LORENZO OSBORN HASKELL—was born near Boston, Massachusetts, Nov. 17th, 1817, but when a mere child he removed with his father's family to Lawrence Co., Ohio. Here he grew into young manhood, and in his 33rd year married Mary Jane Gillen. The issue of this union was two daughters. On Oct. 8th, 1844, after a brief illness his wife died. In 1848 he was married to Angelina Bay, and in 1849 removed to Pleasant Township, Monroe Co., Iowa. And here, with the exception of three years spent in Kansas, they walked hand in hand in loving union for forty-five years, rearing a family of eight children, and exhibiting the graces and virtues of the christian character in a most eminent degree. On May 26th, 1893, this union was sundered by death and his wife went triumphantly home to glory. On Oct. 23rd, 1894, he was married to his new bereaved and sorrowing wife, Mrs. Louisa Bay. December 13th, 1893, having provided a comfortable home in South Park, Albia, he took up his residence in that place. The sojourn however in his new home was to be but brief, for on Monday evening, March 6th, he was smitten with the malady that brought the end, which occurred March 14th, at 3:35 p. m. During these eight days his sufferings were most intense, in spite of all that human love and skill could devise and administer. Three and four at times, of the ablest physicians of Albia were in constant attendance, and counsel from the neighboring city of Ottumwa, was called in for consultation, but the disease could not be stayed. Though his sufferings at times were excruciating his faith things to pass and was not without success that attended his efforts even where others failed.

4. He had most profound convictions on the Temperance Reform question and was untiring until the last in his advocacy and labors for the cause. One of the most beautiful things he said during his sickness only a day or two before his death was, "let us work to save a few more young men from drunkenness before we die."

He was always an advocate and patron of education, giving his children the best advantages in their reach—and encouraging and aiding others—distributing a considerable sum to be given in prizes to worthy young persons in our public schools.

6. Though not a politician his fellow citizens twice honored him with a seat in the Legislature of the State, Once in 1859 and 1860, and again 1874 and 1875. His was a case in which the office sought the man and not the man the office.

7. As a christian his religion was of the best type, steadfast and practical, suffering nothing to move him from his loyalty to God and the church, and believing that life was more than profession he "let his light so shine that others seeing his good works glorified God." St James was his favorite epistle and during his last moments many of its practical precepts were on his lips. The nine children born to him were: Mrs. Mary J. Hillyard, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. Ann Eliza Moss, Ottumwa, Iowa; Mr. Cassius L. Haskell, of N. Y.; Mrs. Maria Marshall, Kingly, Iowa; Mrs. Ida A. Dunkle, Independence, Mo.; Mrs. G. Edmonds, deceased; Mrs. Effie B. Dayport, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. Alta M. Sullivan, Fairfield, Iowa; Mrs. Clara E. Reeves, Fayetteville, Ark.

Of these six daughters, three sons-in-law and a number of grand children were present to do honor to his memory; those absent are detained by circumstances they cannot control, for all his children "rise up to call him blessed."

als there, but now I must leave you, do not grieve for me, I am going to be with Jesus." She requested singing, and two verses of "Jesus Lover of My Soul" were sung, in which she joined, and afterward repeated the entire hymn. "My Jesus I Love Thee, I know Thou Art Mine."

When the end came, she resigned her soul to God without a tremor, and closed her eyes to earth and opened them in Heaven.

Her death touched the whole community in which she had lived from a child, and this love found expression in the great crowd that filled the spacious auditorium of the First M. E. Church where the obsequies took place conducted by the Presiding Elder assisted by a number of the Ministers of the Conference. Who came to mingle their tears with their stricken mother, that one so lovely should die so young.

The following ministers from abroad were present: E. E. Brush, 1st M. E. Church, Ottumwa; Thos. Osborn Agency; H. B. Scolca, Cedar; C. W. Wilson, Lovilia; J. M. Hooper, Chillicothe; W. S. Shearer, Durham; J. C. Ecker, Marysville; U. B. Smith, Ottumwa; C. R. Norton, Moravia; J. E. Anwinzie, Melrose; L. Ingham, Hedrick. Revs. Wilson and Shearer were accompanied by their wives.

The following named friends from racey and Durham were present: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rouze, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Rouze, Mr. and Mrs. Reesick, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hogate, Mr. and Mrs. B. Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Doughman, S. Hogate, H. Downing, A. L. Harney, G. Harvey, James Harrington, Mrs. Dr. Park, Mrs. James Cooper, Mrs. Sweem, Mrs. Charles Utter, Mrs. Woodwin, Misses Harrington, Lyman, Marsh, Lash.

There were present also, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rowe, Mrs. Julia and Miss never failed. When his pain seemed beyond endurance he repeated the Lord's prayer with his wife and said that "he was entirely resigned to the will of God." "If any one had sought against him," and he knew not that they had, he "desired their forgiveness," and then said, "I do not want anyone to escape my forgiveness." His religious convictions and experience were not, however, a matter of the last few days of sickness and pain he spent on earth, for he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church in 1841, and for fifty-eight years he had been a devout, faithful, conscientious member of the church which he loved and for which he labored—loyally standing by her doctrines and practice until the end, so that it could be truthfully said of him, "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." And his end was peace in the highest degree, for as the close drew near, his struggles ceased and as his weeping family stood around his dying bed, having commended his soul to God he fell asleep as sweetly and quietly as a tired child upon its mother's bosom. Mr. Haskell was no ordinary man. He possessed traits of character that would have made him a marked man in any community. Some of these as noticed by those who knew him best were;

1. Uncompromising integrity.

He rendered to every man his dues without distinction and his word was as good as his bond.

2. He possessed also great tenacity of purpose.

Having reached a conclusion as to what was right, he had the courage of his convictions and labored to secure the ends he believed in, not yielding to discouragement but held on through all conditions.

3. He was a man that brought things to pass and was noted for the success that attended his efforts even
