HAND OF DEATH

KEABLES

On Monday May 8th, 1911, at 8 o'clock p. m. Dr. B. F. Keables, one of our most useful and universally respected citizens, died at his residence at the age of 82 years, 5 months and 8 days.

B. F. Keables was born at Elba, Ganese County, New York, on the 30th day of November, 1828. When he was four years old he was taken by his parents to Jackson County, Michigan, and there he lived until he had reached the age of 19 years. In 1847 he removed to Oswego, Kendall County, Illinois, where he remained three years, most of the time teaching and studying medicine.

In 1850 he attended medical lectures in Keokuk and pursued his studies until he was graduated as M. D. He came to Pella in 1852, where he established himself as physician and made his home. Then on the 24th of February 1853 he married Miss Sara J., oldest daughter of Rev. H. P. Scholte. In the beginning of the Civil War, in the spring of 1862 he was commissioned assistant surgeon of the Third Iowa Infantry, and in October of the same year he was promoted to the office of surgeon at the special request of the Colonel. He held this position until the regiment was mustered out. In 1871-2 he represented his district in the Thirteenth General Assembly of the State Legislature and in 1872 he was elected his own successor.

In his chosen profession Dr. B. F. Keables built up at Pella a large and remunerative practice. He did not, however, confine his attention to the healing art, but took an active part in all that could promote the prosperity of the city. In educational matters especially he took a deep interest. He was one of the first presidents of the school board, but the especial object of his care from the beginning of its existence was the Baptist college, known as the Central University of Iowa, or Central Colloge, which was established at Pella in 1853. As a member of the general Board, later of the Executive committee and finally as President of this committee he exerted himself in promoting the interests of the institution. It may be safely said that it was mainly through his zeal and unquenchable optimism that this institution was carried safely through the darkest years of its history. It was his privilege to see his untiring efforts crowned with success and the college established on a satisfactory financial basis.

His many friends and all those who feel an interest in the promotion of what is best in society will hold Dr. F. Keables in grateful remembrance.

The funeral took place this morning, Thursday, at the Baptist church. Funeral sermon by Dr. Beyle, President of Central Colloge.

BREUKLANDER

Wm. Breuklander, another of the pioneer citizens who helped blaze the county, passed away at the home for the aged on Sunday morning May, 7th.

GOV. CARROLL HERE TOMORROW

Hon. B. F. Carroll, Iowa's governor, will be in Pella tomorrow and preside at the Peace Oratorical Contest at the Colledge Auditorium. Efforts have been made for some time to secure him, but nothing definite could be announced till the first of the week when word was received from him to the above effect.

It is very fitting and appropriate that one who is at the helm of the affairs of the state should preside at a meeting which is advocating peace. This question is one that is being discussed pro and con all over the world and the oration here tomorrow night will be listened to with intense interest by a great number of citizens.
