Hon. T. W. Clagett, editor and proprietor of the Constitution, died last evening at twenty minutes past 8. He was taken ill six weeks ago last Wednesday night. His physicians pronounced it a case of apoplexy and still adhere to that belief, although there has been no paralysis, except of the left eye lid. At intervals he was semi-conscious and his symptoms were at times more favorable, but at no time was he fully conscious of his condition and of what was going on around him. Nor has there from the first been any encouragement to believe that he would recover. On Thursday he commenced sinking, and failed gradually until the moment of his death. He passed away peacefully and without having manifested any indications of consciousness during the forty-eight hours previous. His physicians pronounce his case one of the most remarkable on record.

The sudden and very unusual rise in the river has caused a good deal of alarm and anxiety hereabouts. Many of our citizens own land down in the submerged region South of here, and have herds of stock thereon, which is being endangered by the high water. At the instance of Mayor Silsby the steam yacht "Modoc," owned by private parties, was manned and sent down to help the farmers rescue their stock.

of Birmingham, art disease on the black and colors,

Judge Clagett was sixty-one years of age. He came to Keokuk in 1850 and has resided here ever since. He occupied a position on the Bench for two years, and served one term as a member of the Legislature. He purchased the Constitution in 1860 or 1861, and has been its editor and proprietor since that time. He was President of the first County Agricultural Society, organized in the State, and the first President of the Iowa State Agricultural Society. He has been a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa for over twenty-five years, and the intelligence of his death will be received with regret not only here in Keokuk where he had many warm personal friends, but all over the State.

Wednesday two young men made a narrow escape from drowning while crossing the river in a skiff. Their names are Mundy and House. They fastened their skiff to the ferry at Alexandria, and aimed to have it tow them over, but by some mismanagement or carelessness the skiff got foul and capsized when a hundred yards or so from shore, and the young men were left to swim for it. They floated several hundred yards down the river in the swift current, but kept the tide out of their maws until aid reached them from shore.

THE NASHVILLE TRAGEDY

A land slide occurred on the T. P. & W. between the shops and depot here last night which detained the out bound passenger at 4:15 a. m., about an hour. The telegraph line was broken by trees coming down the bluff with the mass of earth.

The Centennial tree planting ceremony this afternoon, drew a large number of spectators to the High School building. The ceremonies attending the planting were interesting and interspersed with recitations and speeches. D. H. Cox, who was announced to speak, was suddenly called by telegram to the bed side of his dying father at Circleville, Ohio.

The funeral of Judge Clagett will take place from St. John's Episcopal Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. After service at the church, the remains will be in charge by the Masons and buried with the honors of the Order.

The question of a Centennial Fourth celebration in Keokuk, is now square before our citizens for settlement. The committees are fully organized and have expressed a willingness to go to work and make an enterprise through. It remains for the men and citizens to say by their subscriptions whether they will have the celebration or not. If a disposition is shown by these subscription lists to contribute enough to get up a creditable demonstration, the GARE CITY will do its best to the undertaking a success. But it

The Death of Thomas W. Clagett.
Thomas W. Clagett was born in Prince George county, Maryland, in 1815. He came of an old and honorable lineage. From the settlement of Maryland by Lord Baltimore onward, the name of Clagett was prominent and honorable in its annals. The first Episcopal bishop of Maryland was, we believe, a Clagett. To the pulpit and the bar, the legislation, the planting interests and the learned professions in that commonwealth for more than two centuries kinsmen of his have contributed some of the best talent and service these spheres of labor have known there. He was educated for the bar, and early took good rank in his profession. When he was about thirty years of age he was elected to the Maryland Legislature, and served two terms. He made a good record as a legislator, and particularly drew attention to himself by his earnest leadership in the policy of building up in the State a broad and liberal system of common schools.

On the 14th of April, 1850, just twenty-six years precisely before the day of his death, he landed in Keokuk to make Iowa his home. He was then thirty-five years of age. He soon took a prominent part in the affairs of the city, the county and the State. He was the first President of the Lee County Agricultural Society; so too, of the first State Agricultural Society. Both of these organizations owe much to his zealous and efficient efforts in their behalf for their successful inauguration and early prosperity. In 1852 he was one of the Whig Presidential electors. In 1856 he was elected Judge of the first judicial district and continued on the bench for two years. In 1859 he was elected to the General Assembly and took a prominent part in the work of the regular session of '60 and the special session of '61. In 1862 he started the Daily and Weekly Constitution, of which he has been continuously the editor and proprietor since.

Some six weeks ago he was attacked with apoplexy and remained in an unconscious and semi-conscious condition up to his death on the evening of April 14th inst.

THE FRESHET.

The Lumber Yards Submerged Over the River in Da Higher Water Predicted.

The freshet in the rivers is a formidable and threatening one. During the twenty-four hours, 11 p. m. yesterday the rise in the water was just a foot, and at dark last evening the river was still rising slowly. We predict that we will have a foot or two feet of water yet, and the water will be almost equal to that of last year.

The water has reached the dyke extending from the bridge bluff on the opposite side of the city all the way along. A force of five teams and fifty men was employed all day yesterday hauling and setting rock to protect it, but it was predicted that if the river kept rising the whole dyke will be carried away, which would be a serious loss, not only to the Bridge Company, but the city would take a long time to replace it.

That portion of the city of Keokuk, the lumber yards, saw mills and almost entirely submerged and the damage has already been done. Lumber dealers all had gangs working yesterday, strengthening piles and protecting the lumber way. It is estimated that with the coming of a single board each firm has damaged to the extent of $500. Magoun & Co. were obliged to close their office yesterday.

There are several inches of water at the K. & D. M. scale house, and at some places is a foot under water. The passenger train came up yesterday noon a man was stationed on the train a pole to push away the drift in the advance of the train.

The water is within a few inches of the K. & D. M. mill and the K. & D. M. The Eagle Packet depot was almost to the door yesterday.

Some six weeks ago he was attacked with apoplexy and remained in an unconscious and semi-conscious condition up to his death on the evening of April 14th inst.

Judge Clagett was married to Miss Harry of Washington county, Maryland, when he was but eighteen years of age. By this marriage he had six children, three of whom —Hon. Wm. H. Clagett, ex-Congressman from Montana, Mr. Thomas Clagett, of Prince George county, Maryland, and Miss Sue H. Clagett, of this city,—alone survive.
 Thirty-two years ago he married Miss Sarah Lewis, a lady of beautiful character, whom he leaves a widow.

The bar meeting yesterday, called to pay respect to Judge Clagett's memory, was one of the most largely attended ever known here. It was an evidence of the cordial and sincere regard held for him by even those who most widely differed with him in personal and political views. He was a man of much force of intellect, positive in his views, courageous in their maintenance, a sincere patriot, a vigorous writer, with full information of the political history of the country, a man quick in resentments, and with no capacity to retain malice, one who scorned anything he thought mean, or dishonorable or dishonest. We could often find fault with his political methods but we never doubted after we came to know the man well, that however differently we might see things he was a man of perfect integrity. He was as kind and generous hearted a man as ever lived. He could never resist an appeal to him to aid public enterprise or private charity. Some months ago he said to us, substantially, that there was no man living, whatever differences there might have been between them, whom he would refuse a friendly service, if asked and in his power.
 No man to whom, however bitter their antagonisms, but if he would come and reach out his hand and say: let us be friends, his hand would be promptly given. It was these noble qualities of heart that, along with his intellectual force, won for Judge Clagett the good opinion of a community and a State that regrets his death and respects his mem-vance of the train.

An old member of the bar pays a tribute to Judge Clagett:

I was well acquainted with deceased ever since he resided in Keokuk, which is about a quarter of a century ago. Judge C. had more than an ordinary share of good qualities and some that were truly great

The extreme kindness of heart at all times was exceeded only by his overwhelming charity towards the whole human family

The Judge may properly be called a proud man, yet his pride was ennobling and of the right kind. It was the kind of pride that all ought to possess and insured dignity and gave true character to the man and dignified all his acts.

As a legislator he justly earned the title of a statesman, as a Judge he earned the reputation of a jurist, as a man of business he has left an example of honesty and high-minded deportment in all his actions. As an editor he was sanguine, generous and able, and his ambition (though great) was governed by the highest morality and justice, and was ever bold and tenacious for the right. S. T. MARSHALL.
