Mary Wilson of the senior class was out of school last week on account of the sickness and death of her father.

So far as winning the decision in the recent debate the result was not a striking success so far as the Indianola high school was concerned, but in enlisting the interest of the pupils in argumentation it was a triumphant success. Every English recitation is in a sense a debating school.

The senior themes have been selected and the pupils who will represent the class upon the graduation program are hard at work upon their several parts.

Des Assails Hanna and Roe Says Street Car Ownership Is Dead Issue.

Political Meetings Tonight.

Odd Fellows' hall, East Thirtieth and Walnut streets.
Odd Fellows' hall, Chesterfield.
Odd Fellows' hall, Highland Park. (Invitation.)
Ray's hall, South East Sixth street, east of Polk.
502 Polk street. (Brereton, Needham, Ash, Mathis.)

The heartiest reception of the political meeting in the Danish college gymnasium last evening was accorded James R. Hanna. Mr. Hanna followed Councilman Wesley Ash, who said he was not a college professor because he was home taking care of his mother when other people were getting educations. Mr. Ash said he was sorry he was not a college professor," said Mr. Hanna in making his remarks. "I almost have to apologize for being one. You know they tend to divide people in three classes—men, women and school teachers, and I have been accused of being theoretical. But," said Mr. Hanna, "as I understand theory, it is a plan to work to. A man must have a plan and follow it work successfully.

If they mean that I would map out a plan and work to it in the administration of the city's affairs as mayor, I guess I must plead guilty to the charge of being theoretical."

Mr. Hanna said he was sorry Judge M. J. Howe had knocked out the plan for presenting the ordinance for municipal ownership to a vote of the people because he would have liked to have had an expression from the people on that question.

The advantages derived from municipally owned water works plants in the larger cities of America were explained by Mr. Hanna who compared the rates paid in various cities.

Jones Assails Hanna.

Appearing in behalf of Mayor A. J. Mathis, I. T. Jones, brother of Neal Jones, secretary to the mayor, assailed Hanna. Mr. Jones said that Mr. Hanna's latest solution of the street railway proposition was a twenty-five year franchise on the six-ticket-for-a-quarter basis, the property to be given to the city at the end of that time.

Mr. Jones branded that policy as anarchistic and an attempt to confiscate the street car company's property.

"It is going so far in radicalism," said Mr. Jones, "that even the socialists would not indorse the plan."

The next position taken by Mr. Hanna, Mr. Jones claimed, was for immediate municipal ownership, and later he advocated the granting of a franchise. The latter idea, in the opinion of Mr. Jones, is one nearly everybody has and is one the lines the present council has pursued. However, Mr. Jones claims that a man who has been studying municipal ownership for a period of from twelve to twenty years, as Mayor Mathis' opponent has, should have a more determined stand and not take these positions in five or six weeks.

"While I do not know what Mr. Hanna's politics are," said Mr. Jones, outrage. The next thing you know they'll prohibit us from wearing feathers," was the comment of most women as they left the office.

COL. P. GAD BRYAN DEAD

WAS MEMBER OF FOURTH AND FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLIES.

Cousin of William Jennings Bryan Expires at Age of 84 Years.

Col. P. Gad Bryan, aged 84 years, one of the pioneer figures in Iowa politics, died from heart trouble yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Jones, near the Iowa Portland Cement company's plant, on South Park avenue.

Colonel Bryan was a cousin of William Jennings Bryan.

Colonel Bryan had been in failing health for several months. Yesterday he seemed stronger than usual, sitting up and eating a hearty lunch at noon. Shortly afterward, he fainted and never regained consciousness.

Spent Life in Iowa.

Practically Mr. Bryan's entire life had been spent in Iowa. For many years he lived at Des Moines and Indianola, later removing to Oskaloosa. He had been living with his daughter, Mrs. Jones, a year previous to his death.

When the call for volunteers came during the civil war, Mr. Bryan was one of the first to enlist. In 1862 he was made captain of Company A, First Iowa cavalry, and the year following was promoted to high command of the same regiment. He was in many of the main engagements of the war.

Colonel Bryan was a member of the state legislature while the state capital was still at Iowa City. He was in the house of representatives during the Fourth and Fifth general assemblies.

Former City Solicitor.

During his residence in Des Moines Colonel Bryan engaged in the practice of law. In the early '80s he was city solicitor for Des Moines, retiring from the place in 1888.

Mrs. Bryan died a number of years ago.

Five children, four daughters and a son, survive Colonel Bryan. Two daughters, Mrs. W. C. Jones and Mrs. A. A. Johnson, live in Des Moines; Mrs. George W. Seavers, wife of the general counsel for the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad, is a resident of Minneapolis. Another daughter lives in Washington, D. C., and the son is a resident of St. Paul.

No funeral services will be held in Des Moines. The body will be taken to Indianola for interment, either Thursday or Friday.

KELLER'S BOAT WELL FILLED

Revolts of Reformatory Girls Question—Governor Pardons Two Prisoners.

Rev. Charles S. Medbury, pastor of University Place church of Christ, in interview last night, championed the cause of Miss Hattie Garrison, in work as superintendent of the industrial school for girls at Mitchellville.

Mr. Medbury also alighted on Rev. H. B. Bell, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, for his statement, given yesterday morning, upbraiding Gov. Carroll and the state board of control for allowing the confinement in the cell of eight girls who were leaders in the most recent outbreak against the authority of Miss Garrison at the school and accusing Miss Garrison of wrong treatment of her charges.

Mr. Bell stated that the imprisonment of the girls was a crime against the children of the country, and said: "If prison bars are being made at Mitchellville, the citizens of this state should rise and with one voice cry 'Shame!'"

Medbury's Stand.

"I'm wondering if Mr. Bell has visited Mitchellville," said Mr. Medbury last night. "I'm wondering if he ever visited Miss Garrison, the subject of his statement."

"It is easy to say that if such and such conditions prevail certain changes should be made, but suppose those conditions do not prevail. It may be the wrong to imprison the girls to whom Mr. Bell refers, but it is fair to presume that the governor of the state and the members of the board of control have reasonable grounds for the action they have taken. However this may be, it is certainly questionable for a man in Mr. Bell's position and a comparative stranger to the state to prejudice the state against one whom he knows so little and who in every way deserves confidence, not for integrity of purpose but for sane judgment."

"The fact is, Miss Garrison's whole plan and idea of management is contrary to what Mr. Bell attacks, and when understood this estimable woman will be honored and upheld as she deserves."

Two Girls Released.

Leona Adams and Florence Ward, of the eight ringleaders in the recent riots at Mitchellville, who were given sentences in the Polk county jail for the part they played in the uprising were yesterday paroled by Gov. B. Carroll and last night were returned to the industrial school. The girls were given a sentence of ten days, which will not expire until Friday morning.

The right to imprison the girls, of whom are said to be under 14 years of age, in the county jail has been questioned by many.

Governor Carroll stated that the release was not prompted by any complaint from the outside and that he signed pardons solely at the suggestion of the state parole board.

VIADUCT BIDS ASKED

Engineer in Charge of Work
 Councilman MacVicar
 Early

In a letter turned over to Councilman
 John MacVicar this morning, C. H. Cartlidge, the engineer who represents the four railways interested in the construction of the West Seventh street viaduct, explains that the plans and specifications are now in such condition that bids on a portion of the structure may be called for in thirty days.

Mr. Cartlidge's letter, which is under date of Chicago, Ill., March 21, 1910, follows:

We have just completed a remeasure-ment and accurate mapping of the location of the viaduct, to be used in making up the final detailed working plans. This is a matter of considerable importance and required slow and careful work. The steel plans are practically completed, requiring only checking over and some small changes on account of the difference in the measurements of the grounds.
 The concrete work is in general form
 only, but the strains and sections on all of the spans have been computed so that no time may be lost on this account.

A good many of the plans are detailed and traced. The whole proposition now has been agreed to be turned over to me

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23. Recent events in the political world have caused deep gloom and concern in the republican camp. The fight in the last week which ended in partly striking the power of Speaker Cannon which has left traces of deep facialing, has been followed now by the election of Eugene N. Foss on the democratic ticket by an overwhelming majority in Lovering's old district, which in 1908 went 14,000 republican. This outcome has amazed and staggered republican leaders.

Along with these developments such things as the cable of Roosevelt to Pinckney and the threatened outbreak of Charles R. Garfield against the administration in Ohio are causing alarm. Talk of reorganization is in the air and important political conferences will be held in the near future. The democrat leaders are jubilant.

A cabinet member gave out important information today as to the plans of the administration. He did not deny, in fact he made it plain, "there was apprehension as to the attitude of Roosevelt on his resignation. He said no assurances had been given from Roosevelt. But he expressed the belief that when Roosevelt got back here and looked around, he would reverse the administration. He said that would be made entirely clear in the future that the president was carrying out the letter his predecessor's policies and that the department of justice would be long start important anti-trust suits against big concerns which are violating the law." Judge Kenyon of Iowa as assistant attorney general will have charge of them.

CARPENTERS WANT RAISE

Working with a handful of nonunion employees. According to the statement of H. Mabis, secretary of the Des Moines Saddlery company, the manufacturers cannot secure more men, and their output has been reduced practically nothing.

At a canvass this morning of members of a local union indicated that if they had their way the walkout in Des Moines never would have occurred. The harness makers and manufacturers in Des Moines are on good terms, and it is understood that neither class is in sympathy with a general strike declared by the national union.

As the matter stands the local factors cannot even meet the demands of the national union and get their men to return because they are affiliated with the Des Moines Harness Manufacturers' association which has headquarters in Chicago, and cannot reach an agreement of their own. They must wait until the national manufacturers' association and the national union have made a settlement and then must abide by their agreement.

The sewer question has been agitated in Valley Junction for several years. Septic tanks and practically every other method of sewage have been investigated and the better class of citizens of the town now have reached a point where they want the discussion settled.

Although there are three tickets in the field for the coming election, the People's ticket, composed mainly of members of the present council, and the Independent ticket, supported by the Good Government club, are the main factors. The citizens' ticket has only one candidate, W. Pring, who is now a member of the city council. The people's ticket is composed of George W. Pray for mayor, Charles P. Waldron for treasurer, H. Donahy for assessor, John Ames councilman of the First ward and Jos Hartman for councilman of the Second ward. The independent ticket is headed by J. S. Compton. T. G. Young is candidate for assessor, George Williams councilman of the First ward, A. H. Nils for the Second ward and Fred C. Lard from the Third ward. For aldermen at large, H. L. Seyfert and H. A. DIVINE HEALERS CLOSE MEETING

Final Day of Convention Given Over to Devotional Services—Only a Few Remain.

The closing day at the divine healers' convention was today even more quiet than on any previous day at the convention. The convention which started so spectacularly has calmed down until mitted, under cross examination, that he had deceived Mr. Cunningham as to why he wanted to take the books to his hotel. He told him he wanted to check up the statements of other claimants.

He returned the ledger in the afternoon, but as the copying of the journal had not been finished he obtained permission from Mr. Cunningham to take it to Portland. Although he said he again deceived the claimant as to the real reason why he wanted to hold the book. He told Mr. Cunningham that he had other papers in Portland which he wanted to check up by means of the journal, while in a matter of fact he wanted to have the copying of the book finished.

Attorney Gray endeavored to wrest from the witness the admission that when he started the investigation into the question of the validity of the claims he considered the alleged interest of the Guggenheims as one of the important matters to be inquired into, but Mr. Davis maintained he began the investigation satisfied that the Guggenheim interest was all right, because he believed it had been entered into after the entrymen had received their final certificates.

He said the claimants apparently were frank in their statements to him, and answered all his questions, although he added that he could not be certain they told him all they knew about the claims.

SUPREME COURT TURNS PUGH DOWN

Justice Ladd Refuses to Take Up Judge Hows's Ruling On The City Railway Ownership.

One of the last steps to be taken by the socialists in securing the submission of the street car question to a vote of the people, proved vain yesterday afternoon when Justice Ladd of the supreme court held that he had no power to pass upon a decree handed down by Judge Howe yesterday morning. Justice Ladd is the only member of the supreme court in the city and it was for this reason that he could not pass upon the decree of the lower court.

A. D. Pugh, attorney for the socialists in their attempt to secure the municipal ownership of the street railway, made an argument to Justice Ladd yesterday afternoon while the street car company is represented by Judge W. E. Miller. The chances that the people will be given a chance to vote upon the proposed change are exceedingly slim as the supreme court will probably not be in session before next Tuesday. In speaking of the written opinion handed down by Judge Howe yesterday, A. D. Pugh, counsel for the socialists, stated that it was his belief that the ruling was void.
