Noted Lawyer and Financier,
Worker for Sixty-Two Years,
Dies Aged Eighty-Nine Years.

The funeral probably will be held Wednesday at the Central Presbyterian church with Rev. George Magill, the pastor, officiating, and Rev. A. L. Frisbie, pastor emeritus of Plymouth Congregational church, assisting.

Though she is bearing her loss with great fortitude, Mrs. Casady today was not able to fully discuss funeral arrangements. The funeral will be simple, as was the life of the deceased. There will be no show nor elaborate sermonizing.

"My father's life was a sermon," said Simon Casady, reverently, this morning. "If you will say for us that while we appreciate the kindness and sympathy of our friends, we would prefer that they send no flowers. We are deeply appreciative of the kind thoughts they give. This would be the wish of my father."

Judge Phineas M. Casady is dead. After having devoted over sixty-two of the nearly ninety years of his life to the upbuilding of Des Moines, Polk county and Iowa, to the living of a clean and honorable and simple life, to the blessing of his relatives, his neighbors and his friends, to the inspiration of his fellowmen toward higher things, Judge Casady peacefully passed away at his home, 515 Fifth street, at 1 o'clock this morning, aged 89 years, 8 months and 28 days. His death was due to a week's serious illness incident to advanced age. At his side at the end were his wife, his two sons, Frank and Simon, and relatives and friends who have been nearest and dearest to him. Judge Casady died in the house which for him and his wife has been a happy home for more than half a century.

Coming to Des Moines to engage in the practice of law sixty-two years ago, Judge Casady was prominently identified with movements making for the betterment of Des Moines along social and spiritual lines. He was the first president of the Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa and was one of the organizers and for many years the redlight women goes on trial after an expected indictment by the grand jury, some of the ring will try to show that the houses supposed to be owned by them are in reality the property of the women themselves, sold on contract to pay on the instalment plan.

The complicated system is known to the police and shows a cunning that the authorities brand scandalous. Superintendent Hamery says he has evidence to prove that one house, worth only a few hundred dollars, was sold to one resort keeper by contract for $8,000, to be paid for in daily instalments of about $7. Other instances of houses sold at from $2,000 to $10,000, and yet never paid for are known to the police.

In these contracts it is said there is a clause which vests the title in the women, but provides that a recorded deed shall not be given until every dollar is paid on the property. And to prevent the women from ever actually buying the house, even at the $8,000 figure, the contract is said to provide a time limit that makes the document void before the full sum can be paid by instalments, which are never accepted in excess of an amount that would make such a thing possible.

On this contract it is said that the ring will base its defense.

Mose Levich in Denial.

In denial of certain newspaper charges that he headed the redlight renting ring, Mose Levich this morning said that he rented only the electric pianos. "I don't rent any of those places," he insisted. "I don't have any property connections with Harry or Hyman Levich or Sam Cohen. I sell the women clothing and jewelry, and rent the pianos, but that is all."

Nevertheless, Mose Levich stated that he had retained Attorney Fritz Conrad to look after his case. Conrad advised Levich not to talk concerning his operations on East Court avenue.

With the publication Saturday of the story of how the redlight district is alleged by the police to be held in a state of slavery the women began closing their resorts in all the houses owned or controlled by the ring. Court avenue was dark last night at the following resorts: 314, 315 and 318 East First street, and the following numbers on East Court avenue: 100, 104, 108, 112, 116, 208, 214, 304, 308, 310 and 316. All these places are said by the police to be the property of the ring.

Without specifying for what places, Mose Levich said this morning that Billy Watts, formerly a city detective, acted as collector. Billy Watts, however, is said also to be collector for Levich at $18 per week salary and occasional gifts, such as a recent $75 diamond, that Watts is said to wear.

Four Resorts Continue Open.

One of the places controlled by the ring at 200-202 Court avenue, where Anna Brown has a number of girls, held forth as usual last night. She refused to move when notified to vacate, because she couldn't see any good reason for doing so after paying rent. Minnie White, Carrie Gill and Mark Clark also kept their resorts open.

Out of the large number of extra girls brought here by the "madams" to entertain the state fair visitors, nearly all the practice of law sixty-two years ago, Judge Casady was prominently identified with movements making for the betterment of Des Moines along social and spiritual as well as business lines. He was the first president of the Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa and was one of the organizers and for many years the president of the Des Moines Savings bank.

Story of His Life.

Phineas M. Casady was born December 3, 1818, on a farm near Connorsville, Ind. His boyhood days were spent at his birthplace and his early education was acquired in such schools as the country in which he was born and the town of Connorsville afforded. Reaching young manhood's estate he studied law and after the completion of his studies he was admitted to the Indiana bar on February 16, 1841. In the following year he received the appointment of deputy clerk of the court of Rush county, which position he held until in the summer of 1846 he decided to move westward. When this decision was made Judge Casady did not have Des Moines in mind.

The trip west was a long and hard one in those days. Mr. Casady at Keosauqua fell in with Dr. Fagan and W. D. Frase. They were bound for Des Moines, he for Iowa City. They determined to remain together and cast lots, Des Moines winning. The three determined to make Des Moines their home, but subsequently the two who had favored Des Moines went further west and of the trio Judge Casady alone remained.

He reached Des Moines June 11, 1846, and almost immediately began the practice of the law. Shortly after his coming he was appointed postmaster of Ft. Des Moines, then a small office. Near the end of the year 1848 he resigned this position to enter into a law partnership with Robert L. Tildrick, which continued until 1853.

Best Man Political Enemy.

On June 27, 1848, Mr. Casady was married to Miss Augusta Grimmel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Grimmel. One of the remarkable features of the wedding was that Judge Casady's best man was his political enemy, Dr. T. B. Fagan, who at that time was running against Mr. Casady for the office of state senator from the district comprising Polk, Dallas, Marion and Jasper counties and all the other organized and unorganized counties of Iowa west as far as the Missouri river and north as far as the Minnesota state line. Only a few days after the marriage Mr. Casady, who was the candidate of the democratic party, won over his whig opponent by 45 votes.

Miss Grimmel's maid of honor was Miss Melissa Hoxie, daughter of B. T. Hoxie. A few months after the Casady-Grimmel wedding she was married to Dr. Fagan. The Casady-Grimmel marriage ceremony was performed in the Grimmel home, the first frame building erected in Des Moines, by Rev. Thompson Bird, pastor of what is now the Central Presbyterian church of Des Moines.

In 1854 Mr. Casady was elected judge of the Fifth judicial district, which then comprised Polk and several adjacent counties; but he held this office only a few months, resigning to accept the appointment of receiver of public moneys for the United States land district of which Polk county was a part, tendered by President Pierce. This position he resigned in 1857 to form a law partnership with Gen. M. M. Crocker. In 1859 J. S. Polk became a member of the firm and the three men continued in business together until 1861, when General Crocker withdrew in order to enter the union army. Three years later Judge Casady withdrew in order that he might devote relay race. The associations in this class which will take part in the contest will be Oskaloosa, Marshalltown and Des Moines. The run will cover the territory between Oskaloosa and Marshalltown and by way of Des Moines.

The distance from Marshalltown to Oskaloosa is 125 miles. It will take 250 boys, one boy for each half mile. Among the entries to make the run are some of the state's all round athletes. The object is to deliver a message from the mayor of Marshalltown to the mayor of Oskaloosa. Earl Roberts, a prominent worker in the boys' department at the University Christian church, is one of the promoters of the enterprise. Secretary Fellingham and A. J. Hackett of this city are also interested. The date for the race has not been decided upon, but it is planned to try and have it in the middle of September.

DEBS COMES TOMORROW

Decorated with crimson banners, the international emblem of socialism, the "Red Special" bearing Eugene V. Debs, the socialist candidate for president, will reach Des Moines at 4:35 tomorrow afternoon. He will speak tomorrow evening in the Auditorium, departing at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning for the west.

Tickets for the meeting tomorrow night are selling rapidly and the Auditorium will be packed by the time the noted socialist begins his speech at 8 o'clock.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31.—Blue Sunday came to Atlantic City. Many persons familiar with the history of this resort have been inclined to doubt the possibility of such a thing, but today everyone of the 220 saloons and hotel bars were closed. It is said that this was the fourth time in the fifty-four years of its existence that a drinkless day had been experienced in Atlantic City.

GIRL MOTHER GONE, MYSTERY REMAINS

VALLEY JUNCTION WONDERS AT LATEST MOVE.

Beautiful Young Woman, Who Refused Name After Visit by Stork, Suddenly Leaves Town.

Mysteriously as she came, the beautiful unknown young woman visited by the stork in Mrs. McEnamy's rooming house at Valley Junction Tuesday morning, four hours after she arrived there, disappeared Saturday night. Where she went Valley Junction people are as much in ignorance as they are of whence she came. The belief is that the former spurned lover of the girl who gave her aid when she had been led astray by another secured a home for her babe and that the girl has returned to work in order to provide means for its support.

At about 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon an unknown woman, about 45 years of age, appeared at the McEnamy rooming house and asked to see the unknown mother. She was admitted to the room and the door closed upon her and the girl. A few moments later she emerged and cav for Des Moines, whence she had come.

DEATH SUMMONS MAN PROMINENT IN PUBLIC LIFE

his entire time to his private business interests

Organizes Bank.

In 1875 he, with others, organized the Des Moines Savings bank, and until a year ago he was actively concerned in its management. When he resigned he was its president. He also was one of the organizers of the Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa and served as its president for six years.

In the Second and Third general assemblies of Iowa Judge Casady served in the senate, and here he was among those who were responsible for the making of Des Moines the capital of Iowa. He was chairman of the committee which named half the counties of Iowa.

In the general assembly of 1848 he participated in the election of two United States senators from Iowa, a distinction enjoyed by no other Iowa general assembly, except the Twenty-ninth in 1902. In recognition of this fact and out of respect for Judge Casady he was the guest of the Twenty-ninth general assembly when it elected two senators. In 1848 he voted for both Augustus C. Dodge and George W. Jones, and witnessed the elections of William B. Allison and J. A. Dolliver fifty-four years later.

Judge Casady's first office in Des Moines was that of commissioner. He served with Lamp P. Sherman, brother of General Sherman, Senator Sherman and Hoyt Sherman of Des Moines and Rev. Thompson Bird. This commission drew the articles of incorporation for the city of Des Moines. Judge Casady later became a trustee of the city. The last of his associates to pass away was Major Sherman, who also was the last living guest at the Casady-Grinnel wedding.

The Land Grants.

One of the grandest works accomplished by Judge Casady, in company with others of the early days, was the inducement of the state legislature to adopt a memorial asking congress to make land grants which would result in the establishment of a steam railroad in Iowa. It was in February, 1853, that Judge Casady and twenty-five other men made their trip to Iowa City where the legislature was in session. They won their contention before the legislature, but it was years later that the grants were made by congress and the four trunk lines were built through Iowa. In congress it was an easy task to get the bill providing for the four grants through the house, but a battle for it was necessary in the senate, but the combined efforts of Senator Harlan, republican, and Senator Jones, democrat, finally brought victory. Judge Casady often expressed the belief that this was the making of Iowa.

Judge Casady was the oldest pioneer of Des Moines. Before his death all who lived here when he came passed away.

During the greater part of his residence in Des Moines Judge Casady was a prominent Odd Fellow and he was a member of the order at the time of his death. He also was identified with the Central Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Casady had ten grandchild-the voters, without regard to party, to nominate a candidate and thus abolish party organization. This is but a partisan pretense, and is intended not to give the people more power, but rather to deprive a large portion of them of the power which under the spirit of the law they now have. The time may come, although I doubt it, when party organizations will be abandoned, but it has not yet come, nor do I perceive any tendency in that direction. All our elective officers, both national and state, are nominated through party organizations, and if senators were elected by direct vote they would still be nominated by party primaries, caucuses or conventions.

"It is the extreme of prejudice, therefore, to insist that in order to justify an extra session the measure to be considered must provide for a nomination without respect to party affiliation.

What He Asks For.

"For the reasons I have already stated, I recommend the passage of an amendment to the primary election law that will authorize the voters of a party in which the choice for senator made at the primary election has been rendered ineffective through death or withdrawal, to again express their preferences as between candidates for the office, at the November election; or, to put it differently, to enable the voters of the party whose choice has become unavailing to fill the vacancy by another election. I recommend that the additional expression be taken at the November election in order to avoid the expense of an independent primary, for it is manifest that if the vote be taken as suggested, there will be no substantial outlay in addition to that which is necessarily involved in the general election.

Party Choice.

"It does not fall within the scope of my duty to advise you with regard to the specific form of the desired amendment. The object to be attained is clear and plain and I am sure there will be no serious difficulty in reaching it. I may, however, without impropriety, say that the proposed amendment should confine the privilege of voting for senator, under it, to the members of the party which has been or may be deprived of its choice. In the particular instance now under consideration the vacancy exists in the republican party and none but the republicans should be permitted to fill it. When you have answered the question, What is required to be a republican? you will have discovered the test that should be applied. It is generally believed that there are in Iowa more than three hundred thousand men belonging to that party. Not one of them should be excluded from the privilege, nor should any others be admitted to it.

How Far It Should Go.

My reference to the condition immediately before us must not be misunderstood. At the present time a vacancy in the republican choice is to be filled; but at some future time the vacancy may be in the choice of another political party. The amendment will necessarily be as general in its terms and as comprehensive in its application as the statute which it amends. Therefore it must be right for all parties and for the future as well as the present. The test for the privilege to be exercised must be fair and just for peace and quiet as well as for stress and storm.

"I submit the whole matter to you, confident that there never assembled a legislative body more deeply devoted to the cause of good government than is the Thirty-second general assembly of the state of Iowa.

"There has been much discussion rethe real question before the assoc-

Adjourn This Week.

Adjourn this week, is the word was passed around this morning. Legislators in the lower house are all candidates for re-election or for some other office, or are practically thru their political activities in the leg. They have their own campaigns after. In the senate two candidates, Speaker Kendall and Jamieson, and both are anxious back to their districts without forced to pass any law which will their chances. The latter, a dem. seeking the office now held by Orman "Pet" Hepburn of the Elk tract, and sees an opportunity of something for his candidacy by use of the opposition in the extra sess.

Speaker Kendall is worried over union in the Sixth district, as friends claim that any action will parts from the peace conference will prove detrimental to republicans in the Sixth as well as other where the situation is close.

Gen. Alexander P. Stewart succumbs to Infirmities at Biloxi.

BILOXI, MISS., Aug. 31.—Gen. Alexander P. Stewart, one of the last surviving lieutenant generals of the Confederate army, died at his home here today. Although in his eighty-year and suffering from the infirmities of old age, General Stewart's death was sudden and came as a distinct surprise to his relatives and friends.

General Stewart was born at Hillsville, Hawkins county, Tenn., Oct. 18, 1812. He was appointed to the United States Military academy at West Point, graduated in June, 1831. He was second lieutenant of the Third United States artillery. Resigning from the army in 1845, he accepted the study of mathematics and natural philosophy at Cumberland university, Tenn.

Publish Invitations to Opportunity Seekers in East.

Advertisements to bring young men to Des Moines to start in business here will be published in the Chicago and New York papers by the Greater Des Moines committee. The move was authorized at a meeting of the committee this noon.

After a full investigation, Secretary Lucius Wilson was able to compile data relative to twelve or more lines of business which are little followed in this state and which offer many inducements to a young man with little capital and an ambition to start an independent business career. These advertisements are in the classified columns and urge the young man to write to Secretary Wilson for information concerning business advantages in the city and state.

have left the city. The old timers who have been here for years have largely scattered through fear and are in private rooms over the city. Eva Dotson and another girl are said to have taken refuge with "Shorty" Hays on High street, above Sixteenth, where "Shorty" owns a house and where she has been living since she reformed.

Chief Hume stated today that he personally notified all the girls on East Court avenue that no order has been issued by the police to vacate. He did not promise them protection, but it is understood that the girls are not to be persecuted, but left as usual during good behavior until Hainery can arrange for his new redlight district.

Seek Further Proof.

More affidavits have been gathered by the police to show alleged extortion and Hainery will take the matter before the next session of the grand jury, convening the middle of September.

It also developed today that some of the stores over which the redlight women have their resorts have been collecting a toll of $5 and $10 per month from the houses. Evidence along this line will also be sought. In explanation of the unanimity of preference of the redlight women for Mose Levich as a bondsman a police officer stated that those that did not patronize him sometimes happened to get into trouble through a complaint filed with the police that such a girl had robbed him. Levich himself is not said to have accused the girls of robbery in order to have them "vaxed" out of town when they refused to take his bonds at $10 per $100.

DeGraff Gets Busy.

County Attorney DeGraff is shocked at the disclosures made by the police, but stated today that he had not as yet made any official investigation on his own responsibility.

"I expect to look into the questions and shall certainly stand behind the grand jury in any investigation it may wish to make when it meets here Sept. 15," he said. "While there are several cases of minor importance relating to prisoners who have been in jail for a long time to be first considered by the grand jury, I am safe in saying that the white slave horror will be investigated early in the September term."

The county attorney is looking up the crimes upon which the members of the alleged trust can be indicted.

DEATH LOSS TO THE STATE.

Judge Casady Most Useful Citizen, Says Isaac Brandt.

"Judge P. M. Casady was one of the most useful citizens to Iowa and Des Moines that has ever lived here," said Isaac Brandt this morning. "Des Moines and Iowa met with a sad loss in his death. He was one of Nature's grand good men. He lived a long and useful life more for the benefit of others than for himself. He loved to do good and assist other people. He loved Des Moines, he loved Iowa, and he loved his country. He was truly a useful man, a model for all to pattern after."

"I have known Judge Casady for fifty years. I have never known him to do anything wrong. He was one of the most careful men I ever knew. He never became excited no matter was the excitement might be. He was always calm. When he spoke they were words of wisdom."

"To our early settlers he has been a godfather and a meeting of the early settlers without Judge Casady did not seem perfect. His presence was necessary to make it complete. He was at our early settlers' meeting August 8, 1838. He was then quite feeble. He said to me: 'I would not stay away. I love to meet the early settlers. I love all of them. This may be my last one, for I will be 90 years old December 2. I cannot expect to live much longer, and I am ready to go to the Great Beyond at any time.'"

"Judge Casady's life from the cradle to the grave has been a long and beautiful one and one we should all try to imitate."

Met With Settlers.

"I first met Judge Casady in 1838. He attended the first meeting of the early settlers in 1835, and has never missed a meeting in forty years. He was one of the early settlers and has always taken an interest in its work."

"Judge Casady was among the most intellectual and active men of the early settlers. He was never anxious for a position himself, but he always urged the election of the best and most efficient men to make Des Moines the very best city in Iowa."

"Judge Casady was really the first postmaster of Des Moines. Previous to his appointment J. N. Smart had acted as the Indian Interpreter and Dr. T. T. Brooks had acted in that capacity as part of his duties. When Judge Casady took the position the postoffice was on the spot where Green's Country is at the present time on West Second street. It is near the markers of the old fort."

"Judge Casady worked toward the best interests always and has always been a strong factor in the upbuilding of Des Moines and Iowa. He served in the Second and Third general assemblies at Iowa City and distinguished himself as a statesman."

specting the manner in which the existing vacancy in the office of senator in congress should be filled. A great deal of it has been carried on without an examination of the law governing the subject and I think it is only fair both to you and to me that this message express the law as I understand it.

"Section 2, paragraph 2, of the constitution of the United States is as follows: 'And if a vacancy happens by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.'"

"According to the well settled interpretation of this clause of the constitution, if I had made an appointment I would have expired with this session of the general assembly, and if you adjourn without filling the vacancy my power will not be revived, but the vacancy must continue until a legislature fills it."

"The act of congress relating to the subject is as follows:

"Whenever on the meeting of the legislature of any state a vacancy exists in the representation of such state in the senate, the legislature shall proceed, on the second Tuesday after meeting and organization, to elect a person to fill such vacancy in the manner prescribed in the preceding section for the election of a senator for a full term."

"The authority, responsibility and duty are wholly yours. I TAQIN session. I doubt much if there shall be any extensive organization. The committee on election will be named and the work of revising the primary law will be the first move of the session."

It is quite probable that a new committee will be appointed from the senate. Mr. Garst today declared that there was no reason why the old committee should hold over and that it was quite possible that a new committee would be appointed. "The committee will be chosen by the presiding officer," he explained. Mr. Garst is the presiding officer of the senate.

If the conference this evening does not agree to some rearranged plan then a long session is likely. Speaker Kendall of the house, who is a candidate for congress in the Sixth district, is opposed to any program which does not include the ratification of the conference agreement, to put the republican senatorial ticket at the foot of the republican column to the exclusion of all democrats. His committee naturally will be representative of the same idea. Lieutenant Governor Garst will name a committee. It was thought this morning which will thoroughly agree to the plans of Governor Cummins. A joint session would result in a clash of ideas as to the best method of procedure and the result will be but problematical.

The arrival of legislators this morning almost completed the roster of both houses. The declaration throughout the democrats alone dissent and say nothing. Their game, it is believed, will be to Lundien lies very low at the hospital with his abdomen cut, two ribs severed, and torn lungs, besides numerous cuts about the face.

BODY WILL LIE IN STATE

Friends of Late Judge Casady May View Remains at the Casady Home Tomorrow Morning.

Friends, who through his long years in Des Moines came to know and love former Judge Phineas M. Casady and who desire to look upon his face for the last time, will be afforded this opportunity at the Casady home, 615 Fifth street, tomorrow from 10 a. m. until 12 m. During these two hours the remains will lie in state to be viewed by the friends, many of whom have manifested a desire that this arrangement be made. At noon the casket will be closed.

The funeral of former Judge Phineas M. Casady, who died yesterday morning at 1 o'clock, will be held Wednesday afternoon, September 2, at 4 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church. Rev. Geo. P. Magill, the pastor, officiating, and Rev. A. L. Frisbie, pastor emeritus of Plymouth Congregational church, a long-time friend of Mr. Casady, assisting. The pallbearers, employes of the Des Moines Savings bank, whose president Mr. Casady was for a number of years, will be: W. H. Barnard, Earl Craig, Will M. Maish, Rufus L. Chase, Harry A. Wingate and C. H. Stephenson.

The ceremony will be simple and without sermons or eulogies. Interment will be made in Woodland cemetery.

Members of the Early Settlers and Pioneer Lawmakers' associations are requested to meet at the Chamberlain hotel Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, from whence they will go to the Central Presbyterian church to attend the funeral.

Veterans Will Start Under Training of John Liew, Alumnus of the School.

John Van Liew, former star of East High and Grinnell, will coach the football squad of the institution this fall. Van Liew was one of the most brilliant athletes who ever donned the moleskin. East Side athletes are delighted to have him as coach.

Practice will begin on State tomorrow afternoon. East High has a veteran team this fall and will win back the lost laurels of several seasons. Captain Welsh, Brophy, Ankeney, Bredimus form the nucleus around which will attempt to build a champion team this season.

This is the first time in the history of East High that the football coach has been a teacher in the high school.

PYTHIANS OFF TO

Des Moines Delegates Will Part in Fight Organized to Depose "Sallinger Ring."

Delegates from the five lodges of Pythias leave today for Des Moines to attend the state convention of the K. of P.'s of Iowa, which is being held tonight for a two days' session. The convention promises to be memorable in the history of Iowa Pythians because of the situation in the organization.

Whether the so-called "Sallinger Ring" will be wiped out or whether it will continue to rule is the question being discussed at the convention and Pythians are intensely interested in the result. Ward Ferguson of Des Moines is expected to represent the Sallinger interest for the office of grand master and M. J. Tobin of Vinton is expected to represent the field lodges which started the fight against the "combination." It is a surprise will be felt by Pythians "inside" if the grand lodge should elect officials outside of the "dynasty."

The five Des Moines delegates have from two to ten delegates each. In Polk county there are five lodges in Highland Park, East Des Moines, University Place, West Des Moines and Lehigh Junction. Among those who will be present today for Oskaloosa are: J. W. Roth, Walter Irish, Curtis J. DeFord, Fred Harbach, Z. C. W. H. Bremner, C. C. Dow, J. Charles H. Murrow and others.

FINAL TRIBUTE IS PAID DISTINGUISHED MAN.

Body Lies in State in Home on Fifth Street Today—Funeral Held This Afternoon.

For two hours this morning, from 10 o'clock until noon, a constant stream of neighbors and friends of the late former Judge Phineas M. Casady passed by his bier at the Casady home, 615 Fifth street, to look upon his face for the last time. Many were in tears and many gave voice to their thought of love for their friend.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Casady was a member. The services which will be extremely simple, will be conducted by Rev. George P. Magill, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, and Rev. A. L. Frisbie, pastor emeritus of Plymouth Congregational church, a long-time friend of Mr. Casady. The pall bearers will be employees of the Des Moines Savings bank, of which Mr. Casady was president for many years. In honor of Mr. Casady the Des Moines Savings bank and the Iowa National bank were closed today.

The early settlers and pioneer lawmakers of Polk county will meet at the Chamberlain at 3:30 p. m., and thence will go to the church to attend the funeral in a body.
