ISAAC W. GRIFFITH.

An Old Resident of Lee County
Died at Des Moines on Wednesday.

A BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD.

Came to Iowa in 1816 and Was a Resident of Denmark and West Point
— Long Years of Public Service.

Colonel Isaac W. Griffith, an old settler of Lee county, died Wednesday at Des Moines, where he had resided for a number of years past. Deceased was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, April 2, 1820, and was a son of Phillip and Lydia (Lee) Griffith. His mother was a daughter of Abijah Lee, and a cousin of the late Bishop Lee of Dayton. Mr. Griffith, sr., who was a carpenter and joiner by trade, removed from Montgomery county, New York, to Trumbull county, Ohio, in 1816, where both he and his wife spent the remainder of their days. His death occurred at the age of 58 years, and his wife departed this life in 1887, at the advanced age of 92 years. The families of both were noted for longevity.

After leaving the district schools in which his primary education was acquired, Isaac Griffith attended the academy at Farmington, O., a branch of the Western Reserve college, situated in Portage county. At the age of 18 he launched out in life for himself, being wholly dependent upon his own resources. He had no capital with which to begin life, but possessed energy and determination, and step by step worked his way upward in life. Aug. 30, 1838, he left Farmington and made an engagement with Mr. Grosbeck, who contracted for his services for a year. He drove a team to Fort Madison, then known as the Black Hawk purchase, after which he cultivated a farm until the time of his service had expired. Then he rented the same land and engaged in business for himself. When he had gathered his crop he went to West Point, Lee county, and worked at the carpenter's trade. It was while a resident at West Point that, in September, 1840, he was united in marriage with Miss Eales Brand, the ceremony being performed by Parson Asa Turner of Denmark.

The bride was a daughter of Samuel and Margaret (Gilbert) Brand, both of whom were descendants from the early and respected families of Virginia. They emigrated from Indiana to Burlington, Ia., in the year 1838, and later removed to West Point, where the mother died at the age of 67 and the father at the ripe age of 82. The father was a soldier of the other matters, Colonel Griffith was one of that committee, but afterward resigned to accept the nomination for sheriff, which his friends urged upon him. He was elected in the fall of 1861 and upon the first day of January, 1862, entered upon the discharge of his duties. He continued in the office of sheriff until 1864, when he went to Memphis, Tenn. He was appointed deputy United States marshal for the western district of Tennessee, a position he held until 1868, when, with his family, he returned to Des Moines. The succeeding six years of his life were spent in charge of the toll bridge and in the pursuit of different enterprises with which to earn a livelihood for his family. These included a number of official positions, and in 1872 he was elected coroner of the county, an office he filled continuously for twenty years. In June, 1886, he was appointed bailiff of the supreme court. He was successively appointed by Governors Merrill, Kirkwood and Newbald on the gubernatorial staff with the rank of lieutenant-colonel of cavalry.

"Returning to the domestic relations of deceased, it may be stated that by his union with Miss Brand, a family of four children was born, the eldest of which died in infancy. Stephen S., who served his country loyally and with bravery during the rebellion, as a member of Company K, Seventeenth Iowa infantry, died in 1877, from disease contracted while in the service; Albert Lee, born in Lee county, Oct. 10, 1846, and who served through the rebellion as a member of Company C, Eighth Iowa infantry, and Augustus J., who has long been known as a most competent telegraph operator."

A reason for the faith that is in him—A responsible citizen of the south writes: From observation covering a great number of cases I unhesitatingly pronounce Salvation Oil to be the most wonderful remedy for burns I have ever tried.

The questions in controversy were settled, however, by the supreme court of the United States, and he returned home. Shortly afterward he was appointed lieutenant of the state militia by Governor Lucas, and in 1843 was commissioned captain by Governor Chambers. In 1846 he volunteered under the first call for troops for the Mexican war, but was unable to get into the army. Later a regiment was organized, comprising six Ohio companies, two companies from Michigan, one from Wisconsin and a tenth from Iowa, and known as the Fifteenth United States infantry. Deceased as sergeant of Company K, which formed a part of the regiment, in 1847 was ordered, with his regiment, to Mexico to join the forces of General Scott at Vera Cruz. They reported on July 10 of that year and were engaged in a number of battles and skirmishes, in one of which—Cherulusco—Sergeant Griffith was wounded, a ball striking him just above the elbow of the right arm. The wound proved to be of such a serious nature that amputation became necessary.
