This bill relates to the issuance of and violations of civil protective orders and criminal no-contact orders, and modifies penalties.

Current law defines a no-contact order as a court order issued in a criminal proceeding requiring a defendant to have no contact with the alleged victim, persons residing with the alleged victim, or members of the alleged victim's immediate family, and to refrain from harassing the alleged victim, persons residing with the alleged victim, or members of the alleged victim's family. A protective order is defined as a protective order issued pursuant to Code chapter 232 (juvenile justice), a court order or court-approved consent agreement entered pursuant to Code chapter 236 (civil domestic abuse), including a valid foreign protective order, a temporary or permanent protective order or order to vacate the homestead under Code chapter 598 (dissolution of marriage and domestic relations), an order that establishes conditions of release or is a protective order or sentencing order in a criminal prosecution arising from a domestic abuse assault (criminal domestic abuse), or a civil injunction issued to restrain harassment or intimidation of victims or witnesses in a criminal case. The bill amends the definition of protective order to eliminate language allowing for the issuance of a protective order in criminal proceedings. The bill amends a related provision allowing the court to issue a no-contact order as a result of a violation of a protective order.

Current law allows a court to issue a temporary no-contact order and a permanent no-contact order. The bill eliminates the distinction between temporary and permanent no-contact orders.

Current law provides for a mandatory arrest procedure for violations of no-contact orders but not for violations of protective orders. The bill amends this provision to provide that a person who violates a protective order is also subject

1 to mandatory arrest.

2 Under current law, if a person violates a no-contact order or
3 a protective order, the person may be charged with a criminal
4 offense (simple misdemeanor) or may be held to be in contempt
5 of court. The bill eliminates the criminal offense option
6 for violations of no-contact orders or protective orders. A
7 person held in contempt for a violation of a no-contact order
8 or a protective order is subject to confinement in the county
9 jail for a minimum of seven days and a maximum of 180 days per 10 violation. A $500 fine may also be imposed. A hearing in a
11 contempt proceeding is required to be held not less than five
12 days but not more than 20 days after the initial appearance.

13 The bill allows the court to terminate a no-contact order
14 if the court finds that the defendant no longer poses a threat
15 to the safety of the victim, persons residing with the victim,
16 or members of the victim's family upon the filing of an
17 application by the state or a protected party.

18 The bill makes conforming changes.
