

A. O. GARLOCK.

A. O. Garlock was born in Otsego county, New York, Dec. 4, 1842. He went to De Kalb, Illinois, in 1859. In July, 1861, he joined Company K, Forty-second Illinois Infantry as First Sergeant and later became Lieutenant.

He was married to Miss Amanda Hunt in 1864. He moved to Iowa in 1869, being the first permanent settler of Cedar township, Pocahontas county.

In 1871 he was elected County Auditor and served eight years. In 1888 he was elected to the state senate from the Fiftieth senatorial district and served his state as Senator in the Twenty-second General Assembly.

With others he organized banks at Pocahontas, Rolfe and Plover and the Iowa State Bankers Bank at Des Moines.

He moved to Des Moines in 1890 where he lived for ten years. Since 1902 he spent most of his time in southern California, living in San Diego and Escondido, where he died April 5, 1913.

He was survived by his wife, who departed this life May 13, 1913, and by six children.

Senator Garlock was a genial, kind hearted Christian gentleman. In private and public life his conduct was above reproach. One of the best testimonials of his sterling qualities of manhood and integrity is to be found in the fact that during his long service as auditor of Pocahontas county in pioneer days no blot appears on the financial record of the county. As a member of the Senate he was found to be a true friend, a wise counselor and a fearless advocate of the best things in legislation.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the records of the Senate and that a properly engrossed copy, signed by the President and Secretary, be sent to the family.

Senator Allen in moving the adoption of the resolutions spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT—I wish to say a few brief words. I first became acquainted with Mr. Garlock when a young man, about 19 years of age, and I want to relate the impression which his kind, quiet, familiar manner had upon me. He was one of those men who went about his work in that simple effective way which won friends and kept them. I remember well in those early times in our county how everyone spoke of Mr. Garlock. His habits of life and conduct were an inspiration to every young man in that county in those days. He was a man who did his work according to the best dictates of his own conscience.

Senator Jones from a special committee submitted the following report and moved its adoption:

MR. PRESIDENT—Your committee appointed to draft resolutions commemorative of the life, character and services of Joseph M. Junkin beg to submit the following report:

JOSEPH M'KENNA JUNKIN.

Joseph McKenna Junkin was born at Fairfield, Iowa, on April 8, 1852, and on July 11, 1888, was united in marriage at Ames, Iowa, with Olivette Chevalier, to which union were born two children, Chevalier and Josephine. He died at Red Oak, October 11, 1913.

After completing the school course at Red Oak, he attended the law department of the State University where he graduated in 1879 and in September of that year became a law partner of H. E. Deemer, which partnership continued until 1887 when Mr. Deemer was elected District Judge. He was City Attorney from 1881 to 1885, and in 1895 was elected as State Senator from the district composed of Mills and Montgomery counties. He served in the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth General Assemblies, taking part in the more important work of all four sessions, gaining high rank as a legislator, and had a large part in making the code of Iowa laws issued by the Twenty-sixth General Assembly.

For a number of years Senator Junkin was an active member of the Knights of Pythias lodge and was also a member of the Presbyterian church. His circle of acquaintance was large and his character was such that he left many warm friends over the entire state.

In the death of Mr. Junkin, Iowa lost one of her most distinguished native sons. He was born in the state and never lived outside her borders. He was nobly loyal to all the interests of the state as well as those of the county. His purpose in life was to be true to the highest ideals and to be a truly worthy servant of his fellow men.

The natural courage and forcefulness of the man, his logic, his wide knowledge, his poise, balance and sanity of view, all combined to make him an excellent counsellor. He was always faithful and efficient in service, but, over and above these things, he was a genial, helpful and sympathetic friend.

He went to his grave in the prime of life but even in this brief span of time he made on his state a lasting impress of good. His record is clean and it will be a source of pride and satisfaction to his family and his state until the end of time. Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Joseph M. Junkin the state lost an efficient legislator and an honorable man and we hereby extend to the family and friends our sincere sympathy, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Journal of the Senate and that the Secretary of the Senate be directed to forward an engrossed copy to the family of the deceased.

F. F. JONES,
JOHN T. CLARKSON,
ELI C. PERKINS,
