

rectness of the doctrines of the republican party and followed thoughtfully his party's platform wherein the same did not violate the principles of the republican party as he understood them. He was not a politician in any sense of the word, but was a genuine and thorough, patriotic American citizen and had an unlimited faith in the future progress of the great state of Iowa. He was elected to the Iowa Senate by a splendid majority and served in the senate of the Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh General Assemblies, where he was loved by all who knew him and he served his district and state with distinction; with credit to himself and honor to the state.

For many years he was a sufferer and during all of his years of suffering he was uncomplaining and always sought to contribute to the comfort and happiness of others. He was unostentatious, charitable in his relationship with men, guided by his sense of justice and directed by a love of humanity. It may be truly said of him:

"Large was his bounty and his soul sincere,
Heaven did a recompense as largely send
He gave to misery, 'twas all he had—a tear,
He gained from Heaven, 'twas all he asked, a friend."

He gave to his community, his city, state and nation largely of his time, his talents and his love. He sought no greater reward than the reward of faithful friends which he gained in large measures.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, By the Iowa Senate that the state of Iowa, in the demise of the Honorable Fred G. Henigbaum, has lost one of its most distinguished, faithful and patriotic citizens; that the city of Davenport and the community in which he lived have been deprived of the benefit of the counsel and the influence of so noble a character, as our late lamented brother senator; that his family and near relatives have been deprived of the society, companionship and love of a faithful husband, a kind, generous, indulgent father and in this hour of their bereavement and sorrow we point them to the Father of all mankind as the only comfort in this their day of sorrow.

D. W. KIMBERLY,
W. G. HASKELL,
JNO. R. PRICE.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Senator Price spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT—It is to be regretted that the senator from Scott is unable to be present on account of his illness; also the senator from Linn, who is absent on account of illness. Had they been present, particularly the senator from Scott, who knew Fred Henigbaum so intimately, there isn't any doubt but what a beautiful eulogy would be now pronounced, and it is to be regretted that my only knowledge and acquaintance of Mr. Henigbaum was during the Thirty-seventh General Assembly, which was his last session as a member of the senate of Iowa.

However brief that acquaintance might have been it was sufficiently long for me to know a very excellent man. I am reminded of the expression that his influence was as the gentle rain that falls from high heaven and laves and soothes the parched land. How true it might be said of him in that trite, common way, that he was seen and rarely heard, yet he formed great estimates and judgments of the things that transpired in this senate. I often thought of Fred Henigbaum in all of his kindness and compassion for the frailties of men and how firm and abiding he was in his convictions of those things that were right and wrong. Whenever he formed his opinion as to right he was firm and determined and as courageous as a lion. He was as immovable as the Rock of Gibraltar, and yet he was a gentleman and as loving as the mother who clasps for the first time, her first born to her breast.

In my brief acquaintance with him I learned to know that his home was a shrine, his wife was its queen and his child the idol of his heart. He was uncomplaining in all things; charitable toward all mankind and toward all their frailties.

The senate of Iowa has lost a distinguished member and the community in which he lived has lost a loving citizen.

THEODORE BOLIVAR PERRY

Theodore Bolivar Perry was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, April first, eighteen hundred thirty-three, and died at Albia, Iowa, May fourteenth, nineteen hundred twenty-one, aged eighty-nine years, one month and twelve days. His parents were Louis Franklin Perry and Margaret Nixon Perry. In the year eighteen hundred fifty he removed with his parents from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Burlington, Iowa, and from that time until his death he was a resident of the state of Iowa, and his life became a part of its history. His youth was spent with his mother and father, brothers and sisters, at Burlington and Osceola and other points in Iowa. In his young manhood he taught school in Wapello, Polk, Warren, Madison and Monroe counties, and was distinguished as an educator in those pioneer days.

When the first board of education was created in 1857 he was chosen one of its members and served throughout its existence. In May of 1852 he made Albia his home, and entered the law office of Hon. J. S. Townsend, circuit judge of that district, where he read law, and on April 17, 1854 he was admitted to the bar by a committee in the district court composed of the late H. H. Trimble, George Wright and H. B. Hendershott, all of whom were distinguished and able lawyers of their day.

Mr. Perry at once entered into the practice of law and formed a partnership with Judge Townsend, and from that time until almost the time of his death he was reputed to be one of the most able and distinguished lawyers in southern Iowa.

Fidelity to his clients and his cause guided him throughout the relationship. He had a natural faculty for discerning the controlling feature and pivotal point in every case and concentrated every honorable effort to bring this point clearly to the attention of judge and jury.

He was a distinguished lawyer of rare ability and high ideals. He was faithful to his clients, true to his cause, untiring in his efforts to obtain justice for his clients. He belonged to that old school which is fast passing away, and followed not so much precedent as he did ad-
