

Mr. Wall was eighty-five years, three months and four days old at the time of his death. During his lifetime he had been one of the most promising men of the country, especially in his younger days.

He was born in Tennessee on September 3rd, 1831, but removed to Iowa when a young man and lived on a farm in Appanoose County.

In politics, he was affiliated with the democratic party although in the later years of his life he became an advocate of the doctrine of the Socialist party.

He made his home in Centerville for twenty-one years prior to his death. He had always been an active man, even up to a short time before his death. He is survived by his faithful wife, only. There having been no children born to the union, although the couple had raised several as foster children.

His was a temperament of intense character. His vote on all moral questions was at all times unquestioned, being always an advocate of the right course of living, as well as the proper attitude toward his fellow men. Be it further

Resolved, That the life of J. J. Wall is worthy of commendation, both as to his faithfulness in public life and his dealings with his fellow men in private life.

Be It Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Senate and engrossed copy thereof be sent to his surviving wife.

J. M. WILSON.

K. M. LE COMPTE.

JNO. R. PRICE.

The resolutions were adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

Senator Wilson moved the adoption of the resolutions and spoke in part as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT—I do not know that I can add anything to the resolutions which have been presented and prepared by me commemorative of the life of Mr. Wall.

Some forty years ago he was a member of this body. I had no personal acquaintance or knowledge of him at that time but subsequent thereto it was my pleasure and privilege to be somewhat intimately acquainted with him, and while we did not at all times, or in the majority of times, agree on matters of public policy, yet I came to regard him very highly as a man possessed of the right kind of impulses. In his late years he became, as perhaps many others have, obsessed with the idea that society did not give to its individual members all the rights and privileges to which they were entitled. In other words, he became what might be very well stated as an exponent of the socialistic doctrines. He was an honored citizen and well respected by the community in which he lived.

While it is with regret that I am impelled by a sense of duty to present these resolutions, it is also with a feeling that I am discharging a solemn duty. He lived to an advanced age as stated in the resolutions and in reference to his life I may say that we do well to take the time to act upon these resolutions.
