

JUDICIAL BRANCH

Chapter 3

JUDICIAL BRANCH

The Judicial Branch of the State of Iowa is composed of the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, and the Iowa District Court.

Supreme Court

The Supreme Court is the highest court in the state with jurisdiction to review the decisions of all inferior courts. In Iowa, all appeals are filed with the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court retains certain cases to decide itself, and transfers other cases to the Court of Appeals for a decision. A litigant who is dissatisfied with a Court of Appeals decision may seek further review by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court is also responsible for licensing and disciplining attorneys, promulgating rules of procedure and practice used throughout the state courts, and overseeing the operation of the entire state court system.

Court of Appeals

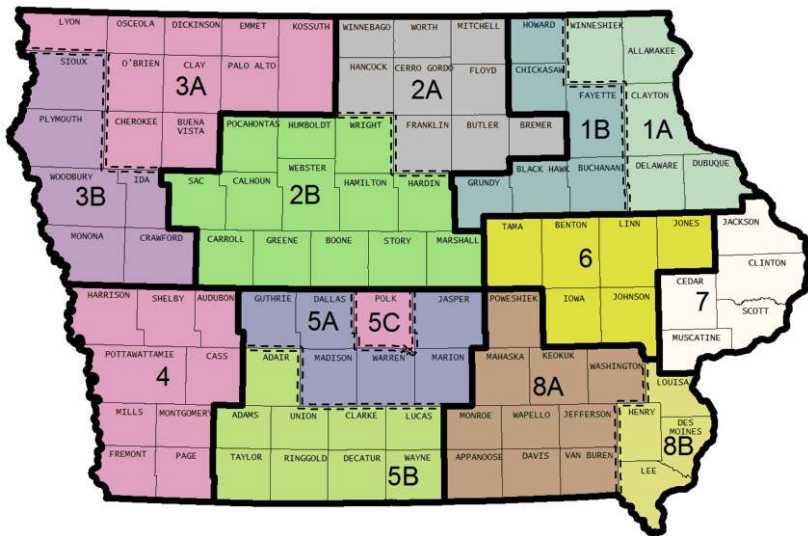

The Court of Appeals is the state’s intermediate appellate court with jurisdiction to hear appealed cases assigned to the Court of Appeals by the Supreme Court.

Iowa District Court

The Iowa District Court was established as a unified trial court, effective July 1, 1973, by the Unified Trial Court Act of 1972, which also abolished all trial courts below the district court such as justice of the peace courts. The district court has general jurisdiction over most all types of cases, such as civil, criminal, juvenile, and probate matters in the state. A district court sits in all county seats in the state.

Judicial Districts

For judicial administration purposes, the 99 counties are organized into eight judicial districts. Five of the eight districts are divided into subdistricts for a total of 14 judicial election districts as shown on the map below. Districts and subdistricts are also used for judicial selection and retention elections purposes.

Judicial Officers

In 1962, Iowa voters approved a constitutional reform that replaced the process of selecting judges by popular vote with a merit selection and retention election process. This reform promotes selection of the best-qualified applicants and ensures that Iowa has fair and impartial judges who are accountable to the public. At the same time, it eliminates the need for judges to raise money from political parties, special interest groups, and others for an election campaign, an activity that may compromise impartial decision making.

The merit selection system involves a nonpartisan commission that reviews the qualifications of applicants for judicial office. Applicants provide the commission with extensive information about their education, professional career, and qualifications. In addition, the commission conducts interviews of all candidates. Once the commission screens and interviews applicants, it forwards a slate of nominees to the Governor, who makes the final appointment.

Within the district court are six types of judicial officers: district judges, district associate judges, associate juvenile judges, associate probate judges, senior judges, and magistrates.

Statewide, the district courts have 116 district judges, 77 district associate judges, 3 associate juvenile judges, 1 associate probate judge, and 140 part-time judicial magistrates. Retired judges called senior judges may also serve temporarily in the district court.

Judicial Magistrates

Every county is assigned at least one judicial magistrate position although the magistrate may reside in a contiguous county. Magistrates may hear cases in other counties upon order of the chief judge of the district. Magistrates serve four-year terms and are appointed by the County Magistrate Appointing Commission; they are not subject to retention elections. Magistrates are required to be attorneys and have jurisdiction over simple misdemeanors, including scheduled violations, county and municipal infractions, small claims, evictions, and certain involuntary commitments. Magistrates have authority to issue search warrants and conduct preliminary hearings.

Associate Juvenile Judges

Associate juvenile judges have authority to issue orders, findings, and decisions in juvenile cases, including cases that involve juvenile delinquency, children in need of assistance, termination of parental rights, involuntary juvenile commitments, and adoptions. Upon expiration of the initial appointment term, associate juvenile judges serve for six-year terms and are subject to retention elections. They are appointed by the district judges of the judicial district from a slate of nominees screened and selected by the County Magistrate Appointing Commission.

Associate Probate Judges

Associate probate judges have authority to issue orders, findings, and decisions in probate cases, such as will contests, trusts, administering intestate estates, and guardianships and conservatorships. Associate probate judges are appointed by the district judges of the judicial district from a slate of nominees screened and selected by the County Magistrate Appointing Commission. Upon expiration of the initial appointment term, associate probate judges serve for six-year terms and are subject to retention elections.

District Associate Judges

District associate judges have the jurisdiction of judicial magistrates plus authority to hear serious and aggravated misdemeanor cases, class "D" felonies, civil suits in which the amount in controversy is $10,000 or less, and juvenile cases when the judge is sitting as a juvenile judge. District associate judges are appointed by the district judges of the judicial district from a slate of nominees screened and selected by the County Magistrate Appointing Commission. Upon expiration of the initial appointment term, district associate judges serve for six-year terms and are subject to retention elections.

District Judges

District judges have the authority to hear any type of case within the district court, including those types of cases that may be heard by associate judges or magistrates. District judges typically hear a variety of cases including probate, felony criminal cases, dissolution of marriage, contract disputes, personal injury cases, and other matters. Many district judges travel extensively to make sure all of Iowa's counties have a regular schedule of judicial service. District judges are appointed by the Governor from a slate of nominees chosen by the District Judicial Nominating Commission. Upon expiration of the initial appointment term, district judges serve for six-year terms and are subject to retention elections.

Chief Judges of the Judicial Districts

In each judicial district, a chief judge is appointed by the Supreme Court to a two-year term to supervise the work of all trial judges and magistrates in the judicial district.

Iowa Specialty Courts

The Iowa district court also has “specialty” courts designed to specialize in a particular field to assist in the resolution of certain types of cases.

Iowa Business Specialty Court

Certain complex business disputes may be handled in the Business Specialty Court. While all district courts have the authority to hear these cases, moving them to a designated court allows these cases to move more quickly and at a lower cost to all parties. These cases are heard by a business court judge who has specialized knowledge in that field of law. Currently, Iowa has five judges assigned to the business court.

Problem Solving Specialty Courts

Problem Solving Courts are typically utilized in cases involving criminal conduct or child abuse or neglect. These courts do not follow the traditional adversarial approach to court proceedings. Instead, they address the underlying conditions that lead to an individual’s criminal or abusive conduct, such as substance abuse and untreated mental health disorders. These courts are a partnership between the court system and the local community and aim to provide the support and services needed to overcome these issues. Problem Solving Courts typically bring together a judge, treatment professionals, attorneys, and private agency providers. These courts require regular treatment team meetings with the individuals to empower them to deal with issues such as substance abuse and mental health.

Judicial Branch Building, Des Moines 50319; 515.348.4960

The Iowa Supreme Court is composed of seven justices. The justices are appointed by the Governor from a list of three nominees selected by the State Judicial Nominating Commission. Justices must stand for retention in office at the first general election one year after the initial appointment, and every eight years thereafter. The justices select one of their members to serve as chief justice to hold office for a two-year term in which the chief justice is eligible for reselection.

The Supreme Court is required to hold court at the seat of state government and elsewhere as the court orders and at the times the court orders. The Supreme Court has general appellate jurisdiction in both civil and criminal cases and its opinions are binding on all other Iowa state courts. As the constitutional head of the Iowa Judicial Branch, the Supreme Court has the authority to supervise the trial court and all judicial officers and court employees, to prescribe the rules of procedure and practice used throughout Iowa’s entire court system, and the licensing and disciplining of all attorneys practicing in Iowa.

Under a 1972 constitutional amendment and the provisions of the Iowa Code, a Commission on Judicial Qualifications is established to receive, investigate, and evaluate allegations of judicial misconduct. The commission can apply to the Supreme Court to retire, discipline, or remove a judge or magistrate. The commission has seven members and is independent from the Judicial Branch. Four nonlawyer members are appointed by the Governor and are subject to Senate confirmation; three members, a district court judge and two lawyers, are appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Summaries of Supreme Court decisions and the full text of the opinions are available on the Judicial Branch Internet site at: www.iowacourts.gov/iowa-courts/supreme-court/supreme-court-opinions/.

COURT OF APPEALS

Judicial Branch Building, Des Moines 50319; 515.348.4920

In 1976, the General Assembly established the Court of Appeals as a five-member intermediate court of appeals. A sixth judge was added in 1983. In 1999, three additional judges were added, making the Court of Appeals a nine-member court. The judges are appointed by the Governor from a list of three nominees selected by the State Judicial Nominating Commission. To be considered for appointment, a person must be an attorney licensed to practice in Iowa. The judges must stand for retention in office at the first general election one year after the initial appointment, and every six years thereafter. The judges select one of their members every two years to serve as chief.

A party dissatisfied with the final outcome of a case at the trial level may appeal. A party does not always have the right to appeal. In some cases, for example, those involving a simple misdemeanor crime or a small claims action, the party must seek permission from the Supreme Court to file an appeal. Additionally, in limited circumstances, a party may seek an early appeal, or an appeal in advance of final judgment, by obtaining permission from the Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeals is an intermediate appellate court. It reviews appeals from trial court decisions that have been transferred to the Court of Appeals by the Supreme Court.

At the appellate level, the court does not conduct trials or hear new evidence, but rather it determines whether legal errors were committed in the rendering of the lower court's judgment or order. The appellate court can affirm — uphold the decision or order of the lower court; reverse — set aside the decision or order; or remand — send the case back to the lower court with instructions, including instructions to hold a new trial. A decision of the Court of Appeals is final unless reviewed by the Supreme Court on grant of further review.

Summaries of Court of Appeals decisions and the full text of the opinions are available on the Judicial Branch Internet site at:

www.iowacourts.gov/iowa-courts/court-of-appeals/court-of-appeals-court-opinions/.
