Where the surety notifies the creditor to sue or permit the surety to do so in the creditor's name upon the contract, nothing more is required of the surety, and the creditor is left to act in response to such notice; and if he fails to bring the suit within ten days thereafter, or notify the surety of his permission to do so, the latter will be discharged. First Nat'l Bank of Newton v. Smith, 25 Id., 210.

It is not necessary in such case for the surety, in order to be entitled to be discharged by the laches of the creditor, to show that he did, in fact, apprehend that the principal was about to become insolvent or remove from the state. The fact of such apprehensions cannot be put in issue. Id.

Neither will the fact, where the plaintiff is a bank, that the surety and stockholder therein, affect his right to be discharged upon the failure of the bank to comply with the notice from the surety. Id.

It may be shown by evidence, aliusnde, that one who is nominally a joint maker of a promissory note is in fact but a surety. And a surety of this character is entitled to all the benefits of sections 1819 and 1820 of the revision. (Sections 2108 and 2109 of the code.) Piper v. Neocomer et al., 25 Id., 221.

Where a person upon leaving the state placed notes, payable to him, in the hands of his son for collection, it was held, that this constituted the latter his agent respecting all matters properly connected with the purpose of the agency; that notice to such agent, by a surety on one of the notes, to proceed against the maker, was equivalent to notice to the principal, and that a statement by such agent to the surety that the debt was paid, and that he need give himself no further trouble respecting it, estopped the principal from afterwards proceeding on the note against the surety. Thornburgh v. Madren et al., 33 Id., 380.

A notice by a surety to the creditor to bring suit upon the obligation, should demand that suit be instituted against all the parties to the instrument, surety as well as principal, and not simply against the principal; otherwise a failure of the creditor to sue will not discharge the surety. Harriman v. Egbert et al., 36 Id., 270; Hill v. Sherman, 15 Id., 365.

A request by the attorney of a guarantor that a copy of the obligation be sent to him with the authority to sue both principal and guarantor, is not such a compliance with the requirements of section 2108 of the code as will discharge the guarantor if the creditor does not bring the suit within ten days thereafter. There should have been a request for the creditor to bring suit or permit the surety to do so. The Davis S. M. Co. v. McGinnis et al., 45 Id., 538.

The notice required to be given by the surety to the holder of a promissory note to proceed by suit on the note or permit the surety to do so, must be given in writing. Stevens v. Campbell, 6 Id., 438.

7 The common law distinction between sealed and unsealed instruments, is abolished by our statute, and want or failure of consideration in whole or in part may be shown in an action upon any instrument made after the statute took effect. Williams v. Haines, 27 Iowa, 251.
Sec. 2113. All contracts in writing, signed by the party to be bound, or his authorized agent or attorney, shall import a consideration.

Sec. 2114. The want or failure, in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract, may be shown as a defense total or partial, as the case may be, except to negotiable paper transferred in good faith and for a valuable consideration before maturity.

OF ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS.

Section 2115. No general assignment of property by an insolvent, or in contemplation of insolvency, for the benefit of creditors shall be valid, unless it be made for the benefit of all his creditors in proportion to the amount of their respective claims.

1 Under the statute, all contracts in writing signed by the party to be bound, import a consideration the same as sealed instruments at common law; and this rule applies to an indorsement of a promissory note by a guarantor. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Iowa, 299; Henderson v. Booth, 11 Id., 212; Sabin v. Harris, 12 Id., 87.

A deed to real property imports a consideration. Per Miller, J., arguendo, in Wolverton v. Collins, 34 Id., 238.

It is not necessary, in an action on a written contract of guaranty, to allege in the petition a sufficient consideration. Every contract in writing imports a consideration. Henderson v. Booth, 11 Id., 212; Linder v. Lake, 6 Id., 164; Towsley v. Olds, I'd., 526; Blake v. Blake, 7 Id., 46.

Fraud may vitiate an assignment made for the benefit of creditors, though the assignor was not a party to, and had no knowledge of, the fraud. Ruble v. McDonald, 18 Id., 493.

2 A creditor under a general assignment, who has special security, may be required by the other creditors to resort to this, and can only claim a dividend upon the amount remaining unpaid, after exhausting his special security. Wurtz, Austin & McVey v. Hart, 13 Iowa, 515.

The execution of a mortgage to one or more creditors is not rendered void by the fact that the mortgagee made the same in contemplation of insolvency, and immediately thereafter executed a general assignment; hence a mortgage upon lands in this state, is not rendered invalid by the execution, on the same day, five minutes intervening between the filing of such deeds were invalid, and could not operate even as assignments in favor of all creditors pro rata. Loving v. Pauro et al., 10 Id., 282.

So where a debtor, contemplating insolvency, on his own motion, executes to certain creditors, at the same time, without consultation with them, several mortgages and deeds of trust, of all his property not exempt from execution, such instrument covering the same property, and reciting that it is subject to the prior conveyance—and causes the same to be filed of record on the same day, five minutes intervening between the filing of such, the transaction was held, to be in legal effect, a general assignment and not being made for all the creditors alike, without preferences, was invalid. Burrows v. Lehnoff, 8 Id., 96.

Where a debtor at the time of making a gen-
ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS. [TITLE XIV.

SEC. 2116. In the case of an assignment of property for the benefit of all the creditors of the assignor, the assent of the creditors shall be presumed.

SEC. 2117. The debtor shall annex to such assignment an inventory, under oath, of his estate, real and personal, according to the best of his knowledge, and also a list of his creditors and the amount of their respective demands; but such inventory shall not be conclusive as to the amount of the debtor's estate; and such assignment shall vest in the assignee the title to any other property belonging to the debtor at the time of making the assignment. Every assignment shall be duly acknowledged in the same manner as conveyances of real estate, and recorded in the county where the person making the same resides, or where the business in respect of which the same is made has been carried on.

SEC. 2118. The assignee shall also forthwith file with the clerk of the district or circuit court of the county where such assignment shall be recorded, a true and full inventory and valuation of said estate, under oath, so far as the same has come to his knowledge, and shall then and there, enter into bonds to said clerk, for the use of the creditors, in double the amount of the inventory and valuation, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by said clerk, for the faithful performance of said trust, and the assignee may thereupon proceed to perform any duty necessary to carry into effect the intention of said assignment.

SEC. 2119. The assignee shall forthwith give notice of such assignment by publication in some newspaper in the county, if any, and if none, then in the nearest county thereto, which publication shall be continued at least six weeks; and shall also forthwith send a notice by mail to each creditor of whom he shall be informed, directed to their usual place of residence, and notify the creditors to present their claims, under oath, to him within three months thereafter.

SEC. 2120. At the expiration of three months from the time of first publishing notice, the assignee shall report and file with the clerk of the court, a true and full list, under oath, of all such creditors of the assignor as shall have claimed to be such, with a statement of their claims, and also an affidavit of publication of notice, and a list of the creditors, with their places of residence, to whom notice has been sent by mail, and the date of mailing, duly verified.

If such debtor is unable to pay his debts according to the usage of trade, or unable to proceed in business, without some general arrangement with his creditors, or some indulgence by way of extension of the time of payment, he is insolvent in contemplation of law.

The fact that some of the agents or servants of the assignee, after the making of the assignment, sold some of the assigned property on credit, will not vitiate the assignment.

A general assignment made for the benefit of creditors, will not be rendered invalid for a failure to make an inventory of the assets and liabilities of the assignor. Wooster v. Templin & Co. v. Stanfield et al., 11 Iowa, 128; Price v. Parker, Id., 144.

An imperfect or defective inventory of property, conveyed by an assignment for the benefit of creditors, cannot be treated as an absolute nullity. Drain v. Michel, 8 Id., 438.

The assent of creditors to a general and unconditional assignment of the property of the debtor is presumed. Price v. Parker, 11 Id., 144.

A creditor who fails to file his claim with the assignee within three months after the first publication of the notice of assignment, is not entitled to share pro rata in the dividends of the estate. In the Matter of the Assignment of Holt, 45 Iowa, 301.
SEC. 2121. Any person interested may appear within three months after filing such report, and file with said clerk any exceptions to the claim or demand of any creditor; and the clerk shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be given to the creditor, which shall be served as in case of an original notice, returnable at the next term; and the said court shall at such term, proceed to hear the proofs and allegations of the parties in the premises, and shall render such judgment thereon as shall be just, and may allow a trial by jury thereon.

SEC. 2122. If no exception be made to the claim of any creditor, or if the same have been adjudicated, the court shall order the assignee to make, from time to time, fair and equal dividends among the creditors of the assets in his hands, in proportion to their claims, and as soon as may be, to render a final account of said trust to said court, who may allow such commissions to said assignee in the final settlement as may be considered just and right.

ASSIGNMENT FOR THE BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.

An Act to amend chapter 7, of title XIV of the code in relation to assignments for the benefit of creditors.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That hereafter in all assignments of property for the benefit of creditors, whether under chapter 7, of title 14, of the code, or at common law, assessments of taxes levied under the laws of this state, including municipal corporations, shall be entitled to priority or preference and be first paid in full.

SEC. 2123. The assignee shall at all times be subject to the order and supervision of the court or judge, and the said court or judge may, by citation and attachment, compel the assignee, from time to time, to file reports of his proceedings, and of the situation and condition of the trust, and to proceed in the faithful execution of the duties required by this chapter.

SEC. 2124. No assignment shall be declared fraudulent or void, for want of any list or inventory as provided in this chapter. The court or judge may, upon application of the assignee or any creditor, compel the appearance in person of the debtor before such court or judge forthwith, or at the next term, to answer under oath such matters as may then and there be inquired of him, and such debtor may then and there be fully examined under oath as to the amount and situation of his estate, and the names of the creditors and amounts due to each, with their places of residence; and may compel the delivery to the assignee of any property or estate embraced in the assignment.

4 This section provides a method for excepting to the genuineness or correctness of a claim or demand, but does not afford any plain, speedy and adequate remedy, whereby creditors holding
SEC. 2125. The assignee shall, from time to time, file with the clerk of the court, an inventory and valuation of any additional property which may come into his hands under said assignment after the filing of the first inventory, and the clerk may thereupon require him to give additional security.

SEC. 2126. Any creditor may claim debts to become due as well as debts due, but on debts not due a reasonable abatement shall be made when the same are not drawing interest, and all creditors who shall not exhibit their claim within the term of three months from the publication of notice aforesaid, shall not participate in the dividends until after the payment in full of all claims presented within said term and allowed by the court.

SEC. 2127. Any assignee as aforesaid, shall have as full power and authority to dispose of all estate, real and personal, assigned, as the debtor had at the time of the assignment, and to sue for and recover in the name of such assignee everything belonging or appertaining to said estate, and generally do whatsoever the debtor might have done in the premises; but no sale of real estate belonging to said trust shall be made without notice, published as in the case of sales of real estate on execution, unless the court shall order and direct otherwise.

SEC. 2128. In case any assignee shall die before the closing of his trust, or in case any assignee shall fail or neglect for the period of twenty days after the making of any assignment, to file an inventory and valuation, and give bonds as required by this chapter, the district or circuit court, or any judge thereof, of the county where such assignment may be recorded, on the application of any person interested, shall appoint some person to execute the trust embraced in such assignment; and such person, on giving bond with sureties as required above of the assignee, shall possess all the powers conferred upon such assignee, and shall be subject to all the duties hereby imposed, as fully as though named in the assignment; and in case any security shall be discovered to be insufficient, or on complaint before the court or judge, it should be made appear that any assignee is guilty of wasting or misapplying the trust estate, said court or judge may direct and require additional security, and may remove such assignee and may appoint others instead; and such person so appointed, on giving bond, shall have full power to execute such duties and to demand and sue for all estate in the hands of the person removed, and to demand and recover the amount and value of all moneys and property or estate so wasted and misapplied which he may neglect or refuse to make satisfaction for, from such person and his sureties.

* By entering into possession of the property assigned, the assignee accepts the trust; after which time he may bring an action of replevin for the property, although no inventory or bond has yet been filed. Price v. Parker, 11 Iowa, 144.

The assignee in a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, takes the assigned property subject to all the equities existing against it in favor of third parties. He merely stands in the shoes, and succeeds only to the rights of his assignor. Roberts v. Austin, Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.
CHAPTER 8.

RELATING TO MECHANICS' LIENS.

Chapter 8 of Code, of mechanics' liens, repealed and substituted by the following:

(Chapter 100, Laws of 1876.)

AN ACT repealing chapter 8, of title XIV of the Code and providing for mechanics' liens.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, Chapter eight of title XIV of the code, entitled, "of mechanics' liens," is hereby repealed; provided, that this repeal shall not affect any contract already made, executed or executory, or impair any right whatever, arising under the law hereby repealed.

SECTION 2. No person shall be entitled to a mechanics' lien, who, at the time of executing or making the contract for furnishing material or performing labor, as hereinafter provided; or during the progress of the work, erection, building or other improvement, shall take any collateral security on such contract. But after the completion of such work, and when the contractor or other person shall have become entitled to claim, or have a lien, the taking collateral or other security shall not affect the right to such mechanics' lien, unless such new security shall be by express agreement given and received in lieu of the mechanics' lien.

SECTION 3. Every mechanic, or other person who shall do any labor upon, or furnish any materials, machinery, or fixtures for, any building, erection or other improvement, upon land, including those engaged in the construction or repair of any work of internal improvement, by virtue of any contract with the owner, his agent, trustee, contractor, or sub-contractor, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, shall have for his labor done, or materials, machinery or fixtures furnished, a lien upon such building, erection or improvement, and upon the land belonging to such owner on which the same is situated, to secure the payment of such labor done, or materials, machinery, or fixtures furnished.

The taking of a promissory note for the amount due for work done or materials furnished, in the erection of a house, will not divest the right of a party to a mechanics lien, and the note may be properly taken as the amount due, and the time of payment under the contract. Logan & Cook v. Attix, 7 Iowa, 77; Bonsall v. Taylor, 5 Id., 546.

A mere promise by a subsequent purchaser of property subject to a mechanics lien, in consideration of forbearance, to pay the claim secured by the lien is not collateral security within the meaning of Section 1009 of the Code of 1851. Mervin v. Sherman, 9 Id., 331.

The law contemplates a contract or agreement more specific than the mere purchase of the materials in the ordinary course of trade to entitle a party to a mechanic's lien. It is not sufficient to show that he furnished the materials, without proof to establish the further fact that they were furnished especially to be used in or about a building. Cotes & Davies v. Shorey, 8 Iowa, 416; Jones v. Swan, 21 Id., 181; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 119; Miller v. Hollingsworth, 33 Id., 224.

It is not necessary that the contract be in [Title XIV.

Mechanics’ Liens.

Extent of Lien.

Sec. 2131 (4). The entire land upon which any such building, erection, or other improvement is situated, including that portion of the same not covered therewith, shall be subject to all liens created by this chapter, to the extent of all the right, title and interest owned therein by the owner thereof for whose immediate use or benefit such labor was done or things furnished, and when the interest owned in said land by such owner of such building, erection or other improvement is only a leasehold interest, the forfeiture of such lease for the non-payment of rent, or for non-compliance with any of the other stipulations therein, shall not forfeit or impair such liens so far as concerns such buildings, erections and improvements, but the same may be sold to satisfy said lien, and be moved within thirty days after the sale thereof by the purchaser. 1

Sec. 2132 (5). And when such material shall have been furnished or labor performed, in the construction, repair, or equipment of any railroad, canal, viaduct, or other similar improvement, the lien therefor shall extend and attach to the erection, excavations, embankments, bridges, road-bed, and all land upon which the same may be situated writing, nor need it be proved by direct and positive testimony, but the jury should be satisfied that such an agreement existed, and that the materials were furnished in pursuance thereof. Id.

It is not necessary that every item furnished should be contemplated and specified at the time of making the contract; and it makes no difference that the items are charged from time to time in the books of the mechanic or builder in the same manner as he charges ordinary customers; neither is it necessary that it should be expressly agreed that he is to have a lien for his materials or work. Jones v. Swan, 21 Id., 181; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 119.

A mechanic is entitled to a lien for labor performed on a house standing on the land of the wife, when such labor was performed under a contract with the husband as agent of the wife, for her use and benefit, with her knowledge and consent, and for which they promised to pay. Riddle v. Wilson, 23 Id., 464; Burdick v. Moon et ux., 24 Id., 418.

The agency of the husband to make a contract for lumber on the part of the wife will not be presumed from the marital relation alone; nor from the fact that the lumber was used by the husband in the erection of a house upon land belonging to the wife. Miller v. Hollingsworth, 31 Id., 294; Price v. Hornby, 46 Id., 696. But where the husband purchases lumber with which to make improvements on the land of his wife, and, it is with her acquiescence, so used in the enhancement of her separate property, with full knowledge on her part that it is paid for, and of all the facts, the seller will be entitled to an equitable lien on the property, for the value of the materials furnished. Miller v. Hollingsworth, 36 Id., 163.

A day laborer upon a railroad is entitled to a lien, under the statute, for his wages. Morgan v. Carroll, 33 Id., 92.

The lien may be enforced against a party having possession under a contract or bond for deed. And the subsequent procurement of the full legal title by the holder of the contract or bond will not prejudice the lien. Monroe v. West, 12 Id., 119; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 119.

A mechanic’s lien attaches to the building or improvement erected with the materials furnished, but does not follow the material into the hands of a vendee of the purchaser and attach to a building he may use them to erect. Heaton & Todd v. Horr et al., 42 Id., 187.

Before the enactment of chapter 100 of the acts of 1876, the only manner of establishing the priority of a mechanic’s lien on a building, over a prior encumbrance on the land was by the sale and removal of the building; and where the nature of the improvement was such that it could not be removed, the lien of the mechanic must have been postponed to the lien on the land. Conrad et al. v. Starr et al., 50 Id., 470.

A mechanic’s lien cannot be established against a building owned by a county and used for county purposes. Lewis v. Chickasaw Co., 50 Id., 234.

The mechanic’s lien law is framed with reference only to property which can be sold on execution, and bridges constructed by a county are not, therefore, subject to such a lien. Nor can the court, in an action to enforce a lien upon such property, render a decree for the amount found due, without ordering a sale of the property. Loring & Co. v. Small et al., 50 Id., 271.

A mechanic’s lien cannot be established against a public school house. And the fact that lumber which had been attached was released by the officer making the attachment and afterwards used in the construction of a school house, with knowledge of the attachment by the officers of the district, was held not to render the district liable therefor, or to give the attaching creditor a lien thereon. Charnock v. The Dist. Tp. of Coffex et al., 51 Iowa, 70.

including the rolling stock thereto appertaining and belonging; all of which, except the easement or right of way, shall constitute the building, erection or improvement provided and mentioned in this statute.

SEC. 2133 (6). Every person, whether contractor or sub-contractor, who wishes to avail himself of the provisions of this statute, shall file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the building, erection or other improvement to be charged with the lien is situated, a just and true statement or account of the demand due him after allowing all credits, setting forth the time when such material was furnished or labor performed, and when completed, and containing a correct description of the property to be charged with the lien, and verified by affidavit. Such verified statement or account must be filed by a principal contractor, within ninety days, and by a sub-contractor within thirty days from the date on which the last of the material shall have been furnished, or the last of the labor was performed. But a failure or omission to file the same within the periods last aforesaid, shall not defeat the lien, except against purchasers or encumbrancers in good faith without notice, whose rights accrued after the thirty or ninety days, as the case may be, and before any claim for the lien was filed: Provided, That where a lien is claimed upon a railway, the sub-contractor shall have sixty days from the last day of the month in which such labor was done or material furnished, within which to file his claim therefor.

1 In Bear v. The B. & C. R. R. Co., filed at the June term, 1878, the Supreme Court ruled that the mechanic's lien does not extend to the whole line of the railroad, and that the improvements are not of such a character as that they can be sold under the lien and be removed by the purchaser. They are part of the road. 13, West. Jur., 531. See 48 Iowa, 619.

It was also held that the lien of a mechanic for repairs upon a completed railway, is not paramount to the lien of a mortgage executed after the commencement and before the completion of the road. Id. Nor where the improvements constitute an integral part of the road. Id.

k Under the Revision it was held that a mechanic's lien for labor performed or materials furnished, held good as against intervening encumbrancers for the period of ninety days from the date of the last item, without filing a statement or claim as the statute directed. After that time the filing was necessary in order to preserve the priority of the lien. Evans v. Tripp, 35 Iowa, 371; Noel v. Temple, 12 Id., 276; Jones v. Sowan & Co., 21 Id., 181.

Where a mechanic's lien, which is junior to a mortgage on the premises, is filed before the expiration of the ninety days, it will not be prejudiced by the commencement of a suit to foreclose the mortgage prior to such filing. Nor will such lien-holder be affected by such foreclosure proceedings to which he is not made a party. Jones v. Hartsock et al., 42 Id., 147.

So also it was held that public bridges of a county cannot be made subject to a mechanic's lien under our statutes. Loring & Co. v. Small et al., and Dunbar v. same. Id., 60.

[This same doctrine would seem to apply to all public buildings of state, counties, cities, and school districts.]

It was held under Chapter 49 of the laws of 1874, that the requirement of that statute that the written settlement with the sub-contractor should be given to the contractor by the laborer claiming the lien, was sufficiently complied with by filing the settlement with the clerk within the thirty days allowed for filing the lien. Bundy v. The K. & D. M. R. Co., 49 Iowa, 207.

Where the party entitled to a mechanic's lien fails to file the same until after the lapse of ninety days, during which time the property has passed to an innocent purchaser, the mechanic is not entitled to enforce his lien against such purchaser, and the rule is not varied by the fact that the vendee took the property under a bond for a deed, and made no actual payment, but simply executed his note for the purchase price. Weston & Co. v. Dunlap et al., 50 Iowa, 183.

The contract required to authorize a mechanic's lien need not be express or in writing, but may be oral or implied. Neilson et al v. The Iowa Eastern R. Co., 51 Iowa, 184.

The fact that such contract was in writing would not exclude evidence to show the purpose for which the materials mentioned in the contract were used. Id.

The statement filed with the clerk is the limit of plaintiff's recovery only with respect to purchasers and encumbrancers. Id.

A mechanic's lien upon a railroad will not embrace the rolling stock thereon. Such stock constitutes no part of the real estate. Id.

The fact that a part only of the material furnished is used in a building or improvement
SEC. 2134 (7). To preserve his lien against the owner and to prevent payments by the latter to the principal contractor or to intermediate sub-contractors, but for no other purpose, the sub-contractor must, within the thirty days as provided in section six (6) serve upon such owner, his agent or trustee, a written notice of the filing of said claim, which notices may be served by any sheriff or constable, or other person; and if the party to be served, his agent or trustee, is out of the county wherein the property is situated a return of that fact by the officers shall constitute sufficient service from and after it is filed with the clerk. But the lien of the sub-contractor may at any time be vacated and discharged by the owner, contractor, or intermediate sub-contractor, filed [filing] with the clerk of the said district court a bond in twice the amount of the sum for which the mechanic's lien is claimed and filed with two or more sureties to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the payment of any sum for which the mechanic may obtain judgment upon the demand of which such statement or account has been filed. But if no claim for a lien is filed within the periods hereinbefore provided and the notice thereof is not served, or if such thing being done and the bond as above provided is filed, then the owner or contractor may thereafter proceed, make payments and adjust their claims, without regard to the lien of the sub-contractor, and nothing in this act contained shall be construed to require the owner to pay a greater amount or in any other manner or at earlier dates than those provided in his contract. But the liens created by this act are for the full enforcement thereof for the use and benefit of the holders of said liens.

SEC. 2135 (8). A subcontractor may at any time after the expiration of said thirty days, file his claim for a mechanic's lien, with the clerk of the district court, as hereinbefore provided, and give written notice thereof to the owner, his agent or trustee, as provided in section seven (7) and from and after the service of such notice his lien shall have the same force and effect, and be prosecuted or vacated by bond, will not prevent the lien from attaching for the whole amount furnished. Id.

A lien for materials furnished for the construction of a railroad embraces only the completed portion of the road, but the fact that the road, as projected when the materials were furnished, was not fully completed will not defeat the lien. Id.

Before the statement of his lien by a subcontractor can be given to the owner to establish his lien, either the contractor or his duly authorized agent must have refused to sign a statement of his claim. Mears & Hayes v. Stubbe & Co., 45 Iowa, 675. [This case was decided under the provisions of the Code of 1873.]

A written notice of the filing of the claim for a mechanic's lien by a subcontractor must be given to the owner, and as this is a statutory lien, it matters not that the owner may have knowledge of the claim, it is not sufficient unless the written notice is given. The statute does not recognize any other notice as sufficient. Townesbury v. The Iowa M. & N. P. R. Co., June term 1878; 12 West. Jur., 694.

To entitle a subcontractor, or a party furnishing a subcontractor with materials, to a lien therefor, he must give notice thereof to the owner or his agent, and his lien attaches only to the extent of the balance due the contractor at the time of the giving the notice. Cutler et al. v. McCormick et al., 48 Id., 406.

Where under a contract for the erection of a building, the contractor gave to a party furnishing material, an order upon the owner, which was accepted by him conditioned upon the performance of the contract, held, that whatever the contractor became entitled to thereafter must be applied to the payment of the order. Id.

The filing of a statement of account required to be filed with the clerk by a subcontractor within thirty days, to establish his lien, or, if he claims a lien upon a railway, within sixty days from the last day of the month in which the work was done, as provided in Section 6 of Chapter 100, laws of 1876, does not entitle the subcontractor to his lien unless he shall, within the proper time, as required in Section 7 of said Chapter, give written notice of the filing thereof to the owner, his agent or trustee. Any other than the written notice prescribed by the statute will not avail. Townesbury v. The I. M. & N. P. R. Co., 49 Iowa, 255.
as if filed within the thirty days; but shall be enforced against the property or upon the bond, if given by the owner only to the extent of the balance due from the owner to the contractor at the time of the service of such notice upon the owner, his agent or trustee. But if in such case the bond is given by the contractor or person contracting with the sub-contractor filing the claim for a lien, such bond shall be enforced to the full extent of the amount found due the sub-contractor.

Sec. 9. The mechanic’s lien provided for by this statute shall take priority as follows:

First. As between persons claiming mechanics’ liens upon the same property, according to the order of the filing of the statements and accounts therefor.

Second. They shall take priority to all garnishments upon the person of the owner for the contract debt, made prior or subsequent to the commencement of the furnishing of the material or performance of the labor, without regard to the date of filing the claim for mechanics’ lien.

Third. They shall be preferred to all other liens and incumbrances which may be attached to or upon such building, erection or other improvements, or either of them, and to the land upon which they are situated, made subsequent to the commencement of said building, erection or other improvement. Provided, that the rights of purchasers, encumbrancers and other persons, who acquire interests in good faith for valuable consideration, and without notice after the expiration of the time for filing claims for liens as provided in section six (6), shall be prior and paramount to the claims of all contractors or sub-contractors, who have not, at the date such rights and interests were acquired, filed their claims for mechanics’ liens.

Fourth. The liens for the things aforesaid or the work, including those for additions, repairs and betterments, shall attach to the buildings, erections or improvements for which they were furnished or done, in preference to any prior lien or encumbrance or mortgage upon the land upon which such erection, building or improvement belongs, or is erected or put. If such material was furnished or labor performed in the erection or construction of an original and independent building, erection or other improvement commenced since the attaching or execution of such prior lien, encumbrance or mortgage, the court may in its discretion order and direct such building, erection or improvement to be separately sold under execution, and the purchaser may remove the same within such reasonable time as the court may fix. But if in the discretion of the court such building should not be separately sold, the court shall take an account and ascertain the separate values of the land, and the erection, building or other improvement, and distribute the proceeds of sale so as to secure to the prior mortgage or other lien, priority upon the land, and to the mechanics’ lien, priority upon the building, erection, or other improvement. Where labor was on additions, the mechanic’s lien shall take priority on enhanced value caused by such repairs. and to the mechanics' lien priority upon the enhanced value caused by such additions, repairs or betterments. In case the premises do not sell for more than sufficient to pay off the prior mortgage or other lien, the proceeds shall be applied on the prior mortgage or other lien.

Sec. 2136 (10). Every person for whose immediate use or benefit any building, erection, or other improvement is made, having the capacity to contract, including guardians of minors, or other persons shall be included in the word "owner" thereof.

Sec. 2137 (11). All persons furnishing things or doing work provided for by this act shall be considered sub-contractors, except such as have therefor contracts directly with the owner, proprietor, his agent or trustee.

Sec. 2138 (12). Any person having filed a claim for a lien by virtue of this chapter, may at once bring suit to enforce the same, or upon any bond given in lien thereof, in the district or circuit court of the county wherein the property is situated.

A mechanic's lien will have priority on the building over the lien of a vendor for the purchase money of the land. Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119.

It was held in Getchell & Tichnor v. Allen, 34 Iowa, 559, under the law as it then stood, that a mechanic's lien for work or materials furnished in making additions or repairs to a building, is not entitled to a prior lien on the building, over a prior mortgage of the premises, but that it will have priority as to an independent structure on the land.

In Neilson v. The Iowa Eastern R'y Co., 44 Id., 71, it was held that a mechanic's lien attaches from the commencement of the building or improvement, and takes precedence over a mortgage executed after that time, although the particular work or material for which the lien is claimed, was not done or promised until after the making and recording of the mortgage.

The party who furnishes materials or machinery for a building, by the filing of his statement and claim for a lien acquires one upon the entire structure, and what he furnishes becomes in turn subject to all liens of his fellow-mechanics which attached earlier. Equitable Life Ins. Co. v. Slye et al., 45 Id., 615. It was also held in this case that a mechanic's lien for materials furnished for the improvement or enlargement of a building does not take priority over an existing mortgage, and this rule prevails even though the building be changed so that very little of the original structure remains. Following Getchell & Tichnor v. Allen, 34 Iowa, 559.

This case was decided under the law as it stood prior to the taking effect of chapter 100 Laws of 1876.

Where a mechanic's lien, which misdescribed what was intended to be covered thereby, had been foreclosed, it was held that the lien did not become merged in the judgment so that another lien, correctly describing the property, might not be filed.

Gray & Stevenson v. Dunham et al., 50 Id., 170.

A person in possession of real property under a contract or bond for a deed thereto is deemed an "owner" within the meaning of the statute. Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119; Monroe v. West, 12 Id., 119.

It was held under the law of the revision that a laborer employed by a sub-contractor for building a railroad cannot enforce a lien upon the road for the amount due him, if the contractor has fully paid the sub-contractor the amount due under his contract, though the railroad company is indebted to the contractor in a sum exceeding the amount of the claim of the laborer against the sub-contractor. Utter v. Crane et al., 37 Iowa, 631.
CHAPTER 9.

OF LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

SECTION 2147. Limited partnerships for the transaction of any lawful business within the state, may be formed by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities herein described.

Sec. 2148. Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons who shall be called general partners, and who shall be responsible as general partners; and of one or more persons who shall contribute in actual cash a specific sum as capital who shall be called special partners, and shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the funds so contributed.

Sec. 2149. The general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and bind the same.

Sec. 2150. The persons desirous of forming such partnership, shall make and severally sign a certificate, which shall contain:

1. The name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted;
2. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted;
3. The names of all general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence;

4. The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the common stock;

5. The period at which the partnership is to commence, and the period at which it will terminate.

SEC. 2151. The certificate shall be acknowledged by the several persons signing the same, before some one authorized to administer oaths and take acknowledgment of deeds.

SEC. 2152. The certificate so acknowledged shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the principal place of business of the partnership is situated, and shall be recorded by him in a book to be kept for that purpose. If the partnership shall have places of business situated in different counties, a transcript of the certificate, and of the acknowledgment thereof duly certified by the clerk in whose office it shall be filed, shall be filed and recorded in like manner in the office of the clerk of the district court of every such county.

SEC. 2153. At the time of filing the original certificate, an affidavit of one or more of the general partners shall be attached thereto, stating that the sums specified in the certificate to have been contributed by each of the special partners, had been actually and in good faith paid in cash.

SEC. 2154. If any false statement be made in such certificate or affidavit, all the persons interested in such partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.

SEC. 2155. When the certificate and affidavit is filed, there shall be published forthwith, for six weeks, in two newspapers published in the senatorial district in which the business is carried on, to be designated by the clerk of the district court of the county where the certificate and affidavit is filed; and if such publication is not made the partnership shall be deemed general.

SEC. 2156. Affidavits of the publication of such notice by the printers of the newspapers in which the same shall be published, may be filed with the clerk of the district court directing the same, and shall be evidence of the facts therein contained.

SEC. 2157. Every renewal of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed, shall be certified, acknowledged and recorded, and an affidavit of a general partner be made and filed, and notice be given in the manner herein required for its original formation, and every such partnership which shall be otherwise renewed or continued, shall be deemed a general partnership.

SEC. 2158. Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares, or in any other matter specified in the certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, and every such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration has been made, shall be deemed a general partnership according to the provisions of the last section.

SEC. 2159. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm, in which the names of the general partners only shall be inserted, without the addition of the word "company" or any other general term, and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm, with his privity, he shall be deemed a general partner.
SEC. 2160. Suits in relation to the business of the partnership, may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

SEC. 2161. No part of the sum which any special partner shall have contributed to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him in the shape of dividends, profits, or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest shall not reduce the original amount of such capital, and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits shall remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits.

SEC. 2162. If it shall appear that, by the payment of interests or profits to any special partner, the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital, with interest.

SEC. 2163. A special partner may, from time to time, examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management, but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney or otherwise. If he shall interfere, contrary to these provisions, he shall be deemed a general partner.

SEC. 2164. The general partners shall be liable to account to each other, and to the special partners.

SEC. 2165. Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership, shall be liable, civilly, to the party injured to the extent of his damage, and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court by which he shall be tried.

SEC. 2166. Every sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership, made by such partnership when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after, or in contemplation of the insolvency, of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner, over other creditors of such partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partnership, under the like circumstances, and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of such partnership.

SEC. 2167. Every such sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of a general or special partner, made by such general or special partner, when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency or after, or in contemplation of the insolvency of the partnership, with the intent of giving to any creditor of his own, or of the partnership, a preference over creditors of the partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by any such partner under the like circumstances and with the like intent shall be void, as against the creditors of the partnership.

SEC. 2168. Every special partner who shall violate any provisions of the two last preceding sections, or who shall concur in or assent to any such violation by the partnership, or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

SEC. 2169. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner shall, under any circumstances, be allowed to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.
SEC. 2170. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties, shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation, or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the district court in which the original certificate was recorded, and published once in each week for four weeks, in a newspaper printed in each of the counties where the partnership may have places of business.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN AND CARRIERS.

SECTION 2171. All warehouse receipts, certificates, or other evidences of the deposit of property, issued by any warehouseman, wharfinger, or other person engaged in storing property for others, shall be, in the hands of the holder thereof, presumptive evidence of title to said property both in law and equity.

SEC. 2172. No warehouseman, wharfinger, or other person shall issue any receipt or other voucher for any personal property to any person unless such property is in store and under his control at the time of issuing the receipt or other voucher.

SEC. 2173. Such property shall remain in store until otherwise ordered by the holder of the receipt or voucher, subject only to the condition thereof, and the contract between the parties as to the time of its remaining in store.

SEC. 2174. No such person shall issue any second receipt or voucher for any such property while any former receipt or voucher for the same property, or any part thereof, is outstanding and uncanceled.

SEC. 2175. No such person shall sell or encumber, ship, transfer, or in any manner remove beyond his immediate control, any personal property for which a receipt or voucher has been given as aforesaid without the written consent of the person holding the same, except to enforce his lien thereon for storage and warehouse charges, as provided for in this chapter.

SEC. 2176. Every person aggrieved by the violation of any of the four sections next preceding, may have and maintain an action at law against the person violating any of the provisions of said sections, before any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall not only recover actual damages, but shall be entitled to exemplary damages which he may have sustained by reason of any such violation, whether such person shall have been convicted under a criminal charge for the same or not.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY—SALE.

SEC. 2177. Personal property transported by, or stored or left with any warehouseman, forwarding and commission merchant, or other depository, express company, or carriers, shall be subject to a lien for
Sec. 2178. If any such property shall for six months remain in the possession, unclaimed, of any of the persons named in the preceding section, with the just and legal charges unpaid thereon, the person having the same in charge or possession shall first give notice to the owner or consignee, if his whereabouts is known, and if not known, shall go before the nearest justice of the peace and make affidavit, stating the time and place where such property was received, the marks or brands by which the same is designated, if any, and, if not, then such other description as may best answer the purpose of indicating what the property is, and shall also state the probable value of the same, and to whom consigned; also the charges paid thereon, accompanied by the original receipt for such charges and by the bill of lading, also the other charges, if any, due and unpaid, and whether the whereabouts of the owner or consignee of such goods is known to the affiant, and if so, whether notice was first given to him as hereinafore provided; which affidavit shall be filed by the said justice of the peace in his office, for the inspection of anyone interested in the same, and he shall also enter in his estray book a statement of the contents of the affidavit, and time and place where and by whom the same was made.

Sec. 2179. If such property still remain unclaimed, and the charges are not paid thereon, then the person in possession of the same, either by himself or his agent, where the probable value does not exceed one hundred dollars, shall advertise the same for sale for the period of fourteen days, by posting five notices in five of the most public places in the city or locality where said property is held, giving such description as will indicate what is to be sold; but when the goods exceed the probable value of one hundred dollars, then the length of notice shall be four weeks, and, in addition to the five notices posted, there shall be a publication of the notice of sale for the same length of time in some newspaper of general circulation in the locality where the property is held, if there be one, and if not, then in the next nearest newspaper published in that neighborhood, at the end of which period, if the property is still unclaimed, or charges unpaid, the agent or party in charge shall sell the same at public auction, between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and four o'clock P. M., for the highest price the same will bring in cash, which sale may be continued from day to day by public announcement to that effect at the time of adjournment until all the property is sold, and from the proceeds of such sale, the said party who held the same shall take and appropriate a sufficient sum to pay all charges thereon, and all costs and expenses of sale; the cost of advertising to be no more than in the case of a constable or sheriff's sale, and the same to be conducted in a similar manner.

Sec. 2180. Fruit, fresh fish, oysters, game, and other perishable property, shall be retained twenty-four hours, and if not claimed within that time and charges paid, after the proper affidavit is made as required by section twenty-one hundred and seventy-eight of this chapter, may be sold either at public or private sale, in the discretion of the party holding the property, for the highest price that the same will bring, and the proceeds of the sale disposed of as above provided. But in both cases, if the owner or consignee of said unclaimed property shall reside in the same city, town or locality in which the same shall be, and shall be known to the agent or party having the same in charge, then personal notice shall be given to said owner or consignee, in writing, that said goods are held subject to his order, on payment of charges, and that unless he pays said charges, and removes the property, the same will be sold as provided by law.

7 A livery stable keeper has no lien at common law for care and feeding, upon a horse delivered to him for such care and keeping, in the absence of a special contract therefor. Nor is such lien conferred by Section 2177 of the Code. See McDonald & Co. v. Bennett, 45 Iowa, 456. See Chapter 25, laws of 1830, 585.

DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS.

SEC. 2181. After the charges due and unpaid on the property, and the expenses and costs of sale have been taken out of the proceeds, the excess in the hands of the agent or person who was in charge thereof, shall be by him forthwith deposited with the county treasurer of the county where the goods were sold, subject to the order of the owner, said ownership being properly authenticated under oath, and such person shall take from such treasurer a receipt for such money, and deposit the same with the county auditor. He shall also file with the county treasurer a schedule of the property, with the name of the consignee or owner, if known, of each piece of property sold, the sum realized from the sale of each separate package, describing the same, together with a copy of the advertisement as hereinafore provided, and a full statement of the receipts of the sale, and the amount disbursed to pay charges, costs, and expenses of sale, all of which shall be under the oath of the party or his agent, which schedule, statement, oath, and advertisement shall all be filed and preserved in the treasurer's office, for the inspection of any one interested in the same.

SEC. 2182. Should the owner of the property sold not make a demand upon the county treasurer for any money that may be in the treasury to his credit, according to the provisions of this chapter, the sum so unclaimed shall be accounted for by the county treasurer, and placed to the credit of the county in the next subsequent settlement made by the treasurer with the county; and should the money, or any part thereof, remain unclaimed during the period of one year, it shall then be paid into the school fund, to be distributed as other funds may be by law, which may be raised by tax on other property of the county. But nothing herein contained shall be a bar to any legal claimant from prosecuting and proving his claim for such money at any time within ten years, and, the claim being within that period prosecuted and proved, it shall be paid out of the county treasury in which it was originally placed without interest.

COMMON CARRIERS—LIABILITY.

SEC. 2183. The proprietors of all omnibuses, transfer companies, or other common carriers, doing business within the limits of this state, and their agents, shall be liable for damages occasioned to baggage or other property belonging to travelers, through careless or negligent handling while in possession of said companies or carriers. And in addition to the damages recoverable therefor, the parties recovering the same shall also be entitled to an allowance of not less than five dollars for every day's detention caused thereby or by a suit brought to recover the same. 9

Sec. 2184. No contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt any corporation or person engaged in transporting persons for hire from the liability of a common carrier, or carrier of passengers, which would exist had no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation been made and entered into. 7

TO PROTECT KEEPER OF LIVERY STABLES.

An Act to protect keepers of livery and feed stables, and herders and feeders of stock, and to give them a lien.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That keepers of livery and feed stables, herders, and feeders, and keepers of stock for hire, shall have a lien on all stock and property coming into their hands as such, for their proper charges, and for the expense of keeping when the same have been received from the owner, or from any person: Provided, however, this lien shall be subject to all prior liens of record.

Sec. 2. The owner or claimant of the property may release the lien, and shall be entitled to the possession of the property on tendering to the person claiming the lien a good and sufficient bond, signed by two sureties, residents of the county, who shall justify, the penalty in the bond being at least three times the amount of the lien claimed, and conditioned to pay any judgment the person claiming the lien shall obtain, for which the property was liable under the lien.

Approved, March 10, 1880.

This section does not authorize a recovery against a railroad company by a traveler for delay caused by the mere detention of baggage, but only for such delay as results from damage to the baggage on institution of suit to recover the same. Anderson v. Toledo N. & W. Ry. Co., 32 Iowa, 86.

Where in a contract for the transportation of cattle by railroad from the city of Clinton, Iowa, to Chicago, Illinois, there was an express stipulation restricting the liability of the company as common carriers, the stipulation was held void under this section of the statute. McDaniel v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 24 Iowa, 412.
SECTION 2185. Marriage is a civil contract, requiring the consent of parties capable of entering into other contracts except as herein otherwise declared.

Sec. 2186. A marriage between a male person of sixteen and a female of fourteen years of age is valid, but if either party has not attained the age thus fixed, the marriage is a nullity or not at the option of such party made known at any time before he or she is six months older than the age thus fixed.

Sec. 2187. Previous to any marriage within this state, a license for that purpose must be obtained from the clerk of the circuit court of the county wherein the marriage is to be solemnized, agreeable to the provisions of this chapter.

Sec. 2188. Such license must not in any case be granted where either party is under the age necessary to render the marriage absolutely valid, nor shall it be granted where either party is a minor without the previous consent of the parent or guardian of such minor, nor where the condition of either party is such as to disqualify him for making any other civil contract.

Sec. 2189. Unless such clerk is acquainted with the age and condition of the parties for the marriage of whom the license is applied for, he must take the testimony of competent and disinterested witnesses on the subject.

Sec. 2190. He must cause due entry of the application for the issuing of a license to be made in a book to be procured and kept for that purpose, stating that he was acquainted with the parties and knew them to be of competent age and condition, or that the requisite proof of such fact was made to him by one or more witnesses, stating their names, which book shall constitute a part of the records of his office.

Sec. 2191. If either party is a minor, the consent of the parent or guardian must be filed in the clerk's office after being acknowledged by the said parent or guardian, or proved to be genuine, and a memorandum of such facts must also be entered in said book.

Sec. 2192. If the clerk of the circuit court grants a license contrary to the provisions of the preceding sections, he is guilty of a misdemeanor, and if a marriage is solemnized without such license being procured, the parties so married, and all persons aiding in such marriage, are likewise guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 2193. Marriages must be solemnized either:
1. By a justice of the peace or mayor of the city wherein the marriage takes place;
2. By some judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court of this state;
3. By some officiating minister of the gospel, ordained or licensed according to the usages of his denomination.

Sec. 2194. After the marriage has been solemnized, the officiating minister or magistrate shall, on request, give each of the parties a certificate thereof.

Sec. 2195. Marriages solemnized with the consent of parties in any other manner than is herein prescribed, are valid; but the parties themselves, and all other persons aiding or abetting, shall forfeit to the school fund the sum of fifty dollars each. *

Sec. 2196. The person solemnizing marriage shall forfeit a like amount, unless within ninety days after the ceremony he make return thereof to the clerk of the circuit court.

Sec. 2197. The clerk of the circuit court shall keep a register containing the names of the parties, the date of the marriage, and the name of the person by whom the marriage was solemnized, which, or a certified transcript therefrom, is receivable in all courts and places as evidence of the marriage and the date thereof. b

Sec. 2198. The provisions of this chapter, so far as they relate to procuring licenses and to the solemnizing of marriages, are not applicable to members of any particular denomination having, as such, any peculiar mode of entering the marriage relation.

Sec. 2199. But where any mode is thus pursued which dispenses with the services of a clergyman or magistrate, the husband is responsible for the return directed to be made to the clerk, and is liable to the above named penalty if the return is not made.

Sec. 2200. Illegitimate children become legitimate by the subsequent marriage of their parents.

Sec. 2201. Marriages between persons whose marriage is prohibited by law, or who have a husband or wife living, are void; but if the parties live and cohabit together after the death of the former husband or wife, such marriage shall be deemed valid. c

* No form of marriage is necessary. Any mutual agreement between the parties, to be husband and wife in presenti, followed by cohabitation, constitutes a valid and binding marriage. Blanchard v. Lambert, 43 Iowa, 233. To the same effect are The State v. Williams, 20 Id., 98; The State v. Wilson, 22 Id., 364, and Kilburn v. Mullen, Id., 498.

Where husband and wife separate, and the former lives and cohabits for years with a woman whom he claims, and is reputed, to be his wife, the law presumes a divorce from the former wife, and she may legally marry again. Id.

If the marriage was originally void, a subsequent marriage will be presumed, if the parties continue to cohabit together after the removal of the legal impediment. Id.

The marriage of persons, without having obtained a license, is to be dealt with as a misdemeanor, and in no other manner. White v. The State, 4 Id., 449.

b The marriage register required to be kept by the clerk, is sufficient evidence to establish a marriage without other evidence showing that the person who officiated was authorized to solemnize marriages. Verholf v. Van Houweningen, 21 Iowa, 429; The State v. Schaunhurst, 34 Id., 547.

Record evidence, however, is not indispensable to prove a marriage, and the fact may be established by witnesses having knowledge thereof. Kilburn v. Mullen, 22 Id., 498; The State v. Wilson, Id., 364; The State v. Williams, 20 Id., 98.

c A marriage void ab initio, for the reason that one of the parties had a lawful husband or wife living, confers no right upon either in the property of the other. Carpenter v. Smith, 24 Iowa, 200.
CHAPTER 2.

OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Married women may own and dispose of property.

SECTION 2202. A married woman may own in her own right, real and personal property acquired by descent, gift, or purchase, and manage, sell, convey, and devise the same by will, to the same extent and in the same manner that the husband can property belonging to him.\(^4\)

Sec. 2203. When property is owned by either husband or wife, the other has no interest therein which can be the subject of contract between them, or such interest as will make the same liable for the contracts or liabilities of either the husband or wife who is not the owner of the property, except as provided in this chapter.\(^5\)

Sec. 2204. Should either the husband or wife obtain possession or control of property belonging to the other, either before or after marriage, the owner of the property may maintain an action therefor, or for any right growing out of the same, in the same manner and extent as if they were unmarried.

Sec. 2205. For all civil injuries committed by a married woman, damages may be recovered from her alone, and her husband shall not be responsible therefor except in cases where he would be jointly responsible with her if the marriage did not exist.

Sec. 2206. A conveyance, transfer, or lien, executed by either husband or wife to or in favor of the other, shall be valid to the same extent as between other persons.\(^6\)

Sec. 2207. In case the husband or wife abandons the other and leaves the state, and is absent therefrom for one year without providing for the maintenance and support of his or her family, or is confined in jail or the penitentiary for the period of one year or upward, \(^4\) By the laws of Iowa the wife has similar property rights, and is chargeable with similar obligations, with her husband under like circumstances, and coverture is no defence against the enforcement of the rights of third persons growing out of her contracts. Spafford v. Warren, 47 Iowa, 47.

The husband is the head of the family within the meaning of the exemption laws. Exempt property belonging to the wife before her marriage, and used for the family support, is not exempt from execution levied under a judgment against her. Van Doran v. Marden, 48 Id., 186.

Under the Code the separate property of the wife cannot be taken for the debts of the husband, even though it be reduced to the possession of the husband, and the creditor have no notice of the wife's interest therein. Schmidt v. Holts, 44 Iowa, 466.

A judgment creditor of the husband has no lien upon the wife's land for improvements made by the husband thereon. Nor can the same be subjected to the payment of the creditor's claim to the extent of such improvements. Corning v. Fowler, 24 Id., 284.

Under Section 2506 of the Revision, a married woman was held liable on her covenants in a deed for her own land. Richmond v. Tibbles, 26 Id., 474.

Under Chapter 126 of the laws of 1870, it was held that the husband had no common or joint interest in a right of action, accruing to the wife on account of a tort committed against her, and that he could not be joined with her in the action. Musselman v. Gallagher, 32 Id., 883.

A wife may in good faith loan to her husband money possessed by her in her own right, and take security therefor upon land, which will be a valid lien upon the same, even though the transaction is not witnessed by any writings. Doyle v. McGuire, 38 Id., 410.

And where she takes his promissory note for such loan, without security she stands on an equal footing with other creditors in case of his insolvency. In re Alexander, 37 Id., 454.

\(^5\) Prior to the Code it was held, that a contract between husband and wife, which was supported by a sufficient consideration and not tainted with fraud, was valid between the parties and against subsequent creditors of the husband. Wright v. Wright, 16 Iowa, 496.
the district or circuit court of the county where the husband or wife so abandoned or not confined resides, may, on application by petition setting forth fully the facts, authorize him or her to manage, control, sell, and encumber the property of the husband or wife for the support and maintenance of the family, and for the purpose of paying debts. Notice of such proceedings shall be given as in ordinary actions, and anything done under or by virtue of the order or decree of the court, shall be valid to the same extent as [if] the same was done by the party owning the property.

Sec. 2208. All contracts, sales, or encumbrances made by either the husband or wife by virtue of the power contemplated in the preceding section, shall be binding on both, and, during such absence or confinement, the person acting under such power may sue and be sued thereon, and for all acts done the property of both shall be liable and execution may be levied or attachment issued accordingly. No suit or proceeding shall abate or be in anywise affected by the return or release of the person confined, but he or she may be permitted to prosecute or defend jointly with the other.

Sec. 2209. The husband or wife affected by the proceedings contemplated in the two preceding sections, may have the order or decree of the court set aside or annulled by filing a petition therefor, and serving a notice on the person in whose favor the same was granted as in ordinary actions. But the setting aside of such decree or order shall in nowise affect any act done thereunder.

Sec. 2210. A husband or wife may constitute the other his or her attorney in fact to control and dispose of his or her property for their mutual benefit, and may revoke the same to the same extent and manner as other persons.

Sec. 2211. A wife may receive the wages of her personal labor and maintain an action therefor in her own name, and hold the same in her own right: and she may prosecute and defend all actions at law or in equity for the preservation and protection of her rights and property, as if unmarried.

*The husband may act as the agent of the wife, but in order to bind her he must be previously authorized to so act, or she must with express or implied knowledge of his act, subsequently ratify it. McLaren v. Hall et al., 26 Iowa, 297.

This section authorizes a married woman to bring actions generally against other parties than her husband, but does not permit either husband or wife to maintain an action against the other for a tort committed during coverture. Peters v. Peters, 42 Iowa, 189.

Under our statutes the husband has no joint interest in an action for tort committed against the wife, and cannot be joined therein. Tuttle v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 518; Pancoast v. Burnell, 32 Id., 394; Musselman v. Galligher, id., 393.

The husband may recover damages from a physician for treatment of his wife, by which he has been subject to expense and deprived of her society, but if her death is the result of such treatment, the right of action thereof exists only in favor of her administrator. Moore v. Chaney, 43 Id., 609; Meehiter v. Hatten, 42 Id., 288.

In an action by the wife for damages for a tort committed against her, she cannot recover for loss of time caused by the injury unless she is engaged in the prosecution of a separate, independent business, which thereby suffers detriment. Tuttle v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 518.

Nor can she recover for money expended in procuring medical attendance and other expenses growing out of her injury, the husband alone having the right of action therefor. Id.

While the wife alone can recover for a direct injury to herself yet the husband has a right of action for the consequential injuries to himself resulting therefrom. Meehiter v. Hatten, 42 Id., 288.

The “wages of the wife’s personal labor” for which she may maintain an action in her own name, are her earnings while in the employment of another than her husband, or while engaged in an independent occupation of her own. Her husband is entitled to her labor and assistance in the discharge of the duties and obligations growing out of the marital relations. Id. See also Grant v. Greene, 41 Id., 88, cited in notes to sec. 2212, post.
Property of one not liable for debts of the other.
Sect. 2212. Neither husband nor wife is liable for the debts or liabilities of the other incurred before marriage, and, except as herein otherwise declared, they are not liable for the separate debts of each other; nor are the wages, earnings, or property of either, nor is the rent or income of such property liable for the separate debts of the other. 1

Sect. 2213. Contracts may be made by a wife and liabilities incurred, and the same enforced by or against her to the same extent and in the same manner as if she were unmarried.

Sect. 2214. The expenses of the family and the education of the children, are chargeable upon the property of both husband and wife, or of either of them, and in relation thereto they may be sued jointly or separately. 1

Sect. 2215. Neither husband nor wife can remove the other nor their children, from their homestead without his or her consent, and if he abandons her she is entitled to the custody of their minor children, unless the district or circuit court, upon application for that purpose, shall, for good cause otherwise, direct. 2

Sanctity of Either.

Sect. 2216. Where either the husband or wife is insane, and incapable of executing a deed, and relinquishing or conveying his or her right to the real property of the other, the same person may petition for a separate property or income of such property liable for the separate debts of the other. 2

1 It was held, prior to the code, that while a married woman could not be made personally liable as surety on a promissory note, yet if she suffered a personal judgment to be rendered against her by default on such note, she could not afterwards avoid the judgment on the ground of coverture. Wolf v. Van Metre, 23 Iowa, 397; Guthrie v. Howard et al., 32 Id., 54.

Where the wife had been appointed by the commissioner of insanity custodian of her insane husband, it was held, that she could not recover compensation for her services in that capacity from his estate. Such a contract is without consideration and void. The service being such as she owed by virtue of the marital relation. Grant v. Greene, 41 Id., 88.

1 One who sells an article of family use to the husband, on his individual credit, may maintain an action against the wife to subject her separate property to payment therefor. Smelley v. Felt, 41 Iowa, 588.

The separate property of the wife is liable for the price of a piano purchased by the husband for the use of the family. Id. For debts incurred for family expenses, the husband and wife are jointly and severally liable, and may be sued together or either sued alone. Same case, 43 Id., 607.

The wife is personally liable with her husband for family expenses, and a personal judgment may be rendered against her therefor in a joint action against both, notwithstanding the husband may have been discharged in bankruptcy. Jones v. Glass et al., 48 Id., 345.

A reaping machine purchased by the husband and for use on his farm is not a family expense chargeable on the property of the wife. McCormick v. Meath et al., 49 Id., 536.

The expenses for the treatment of an insane wife in a hospital for the insane provided by the State, are not part of the family expenses, and the husband is not liable therefor. The County of Delaware v. McDonald, 46 Id., 170.

Prior to the code of 1873, it was held that the contingent right of dower of the wife in the lands of the husband, or his in hers, was not the subject of barter and sale between them. And aside from an agreement to separate, it was not competent for one to convey to the other his or her dower interest in lands. McKee v. Reynolds, 26 Id., 578.

One who advances money to the husband, which is used for the payment of family expenses, cannot claim a lien on the separate property of the wife therefor, where such advances were not made at her request, and there is no assignment to the plaintiff of the original account for such expenses. Sherman v. King et al., 31 Iowa, 182.

A court of equity will decree to the wife a separate support, out of property held by the husband in her right, when it is shown that she has been deserted without adequate means of support, or has been forced by the cruel conduct of her husband to leave his protection. A separate support will not be granted when the separation was not the result of either of these causes. McMullen v. McMullen, 10 Iowa, 412.

This holding was prior to the law as now found in the Code.

Where a married man introduces a woman of profligate habits into his house, and permits her to remain there as an inmate, the wife will be justified in withdrawing from his protection, and he will be bound to provide her with necessary. Descelles v. Kadmus, 8 Id., 51.
the district or circuit court of the county where such petitioner resides, or of the county where said real estate is situated, setting forth the facts and praying for an order authorizing the applicant or some other person to execute a deed of conveyance and thereby relinquish the interest of either in the real property of the other.

SEC. 2217. The petition shall be verified by the oath of the petitioner and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court of the proper county. The court shall appoint some discreet person or attorney guardian for the person alleged to be insane, who shall ascertain as to the propriety, good faith, and necessity of the prayer of the petitioner, and who shall have power to resist said application, and subpoena witnesses, or to take depositions to disprove the petition and prove the impropriety of granting said petition, which guardian or attorney shall be allowed by the court a reasonable compensation to be paid as the other costs.

SEC. 2218. Upon the hearing of said petition, if the court is satisfied that the same is made in good faith, and that the petitioner is the proper person to exercise the power and make the conveyances, and that such power is necessary and proper, said court shall enter up a decree, thereby fully authorizing the execution of all such conveyances for and in the name of such husband or wife, by such person as the court may appoint.

SEC. 2219. All deeds executed as provided in the three preceding sections, shall be valid in law and shall convey the interest of such insane person in the real estate so conveyed; provided, said power shall cease and become void as soon as he or she shall become sane and of sound mind, and apply to the court to revoke said power, and the same shall be revoked; but such revocation shall in nowise affect conveyances previously made.

CHAPTER 3.
OF DIVORCE, ANNULING MARRIAGES, AND ALIMONY.

SECTION 2220. The district or circuit court in the county where either party resides, has jurisdiction of the subject matter of this chapter.

SEC. 2221. Except where the defendant is a resident of this state served by personal service, the petition for divorce, in addition to the facts on account of which the plaintiff claims the relief sought, must state that the plaintiff has been for the last year a resident of the state, specifying the town and county in which he has so resided, and the entire length of his residence therein, after deducting all absences from the state; that he is now a resident thereof; that such residence has been in good faith and not for the purpose of obtaining a divorce only; and it must in all cases state that the application is made in good faith, and for the purpose set forth in the petition.

1 But if neither party have an actual residence in the county where the action of divorce is brought, and the plaintiff "fraudulently assumes a colorable residence * * * for the purpose of obtaining a decree of divorce without the knowledge * * * of the wife and to prevent her making a defense, it was held that the decree should be set aside, the court having no jurisdiction. Rush v. Rush, 48 Iowa, 701.
SEC. 2222. All the statements above required, and all other allegations of the petitioner must be verified by the oath of the plaintiff, and proved to the satisfaction of the court by competent evidence. Unless the court is satisfied that the allegations of residence are fully proved, the hearing shall proceed no further, and the action shall be dismissed by the court on its own motion. No divorce shall be granted on the testimony of the plaintiff alone, and all such actions shall be heard in open court on the testimony of witnesses, or depositions taken as in other equitable actions triable upon oral testimony, or by a commission appointed by the court.\footnote{Actions for divorce must be publicly tried in open court and cannot be sent to a referee for trial as other equitable actions, even with the consent of parties. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Iowa, 501.}

The fact that the findings of a referee, in such case, was filed with the court and exceptions thereto heard and decided, does not constitute such trial in open court. Nor will the adoption of the findings of the referee be a compliance with the statutory requirement. But, where such action has been tried by a referee, the evidence taken before him in writing may be used in a re-trial of the case. \footnote{This provision of the statute authorizing a divorce for a conviction of felony, refers only to a conviction which is final and absolute, either because of affirmance in the appellate court, or because no appeal has been prosecuted. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 49 Iowa, 639.}

\footnote{This provision of the statute authorizing a divorce for a conviction of felony, refers only to a conviction which is final and absolute, either because of affirmance in the appellate court, or because no appeal has been prosecuted. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 49 Iowa, 639.}

The treatment received is not necessary to prove the direct act, it being a crime of darkness and secrecy. The criminal act may be established by, or inferred from, circumstances which lead to the adultery by fair inference, as a necessary consequence, these circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion of guilt. \footnote{In an action for divorce on the ground of adultery, it is not necessary to prove the direct act, it being a crime of darkness and secrecy. The criminal act may be established by, or inferred from, circumstances which lead to the adultery by fair inference, as a necessary consequence, these circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion of guilt. Inskoep v. Inskoep, 5 Iowa, 284.}

Where the facts and circumstances relied on to establish adultery are capable of two interpretations, one of which is consistent with the innocence of the party charged, they will not be sufficient to establish guilt. \footnote{Where the facts and circumstances relied on to establish adultery are capable of two interpretations, one of which is consistent with the innocence of the party charged, they will not be sufficient to establish guilt. Id.}

But if the facts proved cannot be reasonably reconciled with the innocence of the party charged, but are harmonious and consistent with the assumption of guilt, the court may then infer guilt. \footnote{But if the facts proved cannot be reasonably reconciled with the innocence of the party charged, but are harmonious and consistent with the assumption of guilt, the court may then infer guilt. Id.}

If a husband \"willfully desert his wife and absent himself without reasonable cause for the space of two years,\" she will be entitled to a divorce. The \"reasonable cause\" of absence mentioned in the statute must be grounded on some fault of the wife, and if his \textit{desertion} be willful and without such cause, he cannot excuse his absence because of some accident or misfortune subsequently happening to him, as after such willful desertion without reasonable cause he became insane. Douglass v. Douglass, 31 Id., 451.

An attempt to injure the person of the wife is not essential to constitute inhuman treatment to such an extent as to authorize a divorce. Acts which endanger her life by destroying her health and peace may constitute sufficient ground for divorce. Caruthers v. Caruthers, 13 Id., 266.

The statute requires two ingredients in cruel treatment to constitute ground for divorce: 1. It must be inhuman; 2. It must endanger life. Freerking v. Freerking, 19 Id., 34.

A petition for divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment should state the specific facts of inhuman treatment relied on as the ground for divorce; it is not enough to allege generally that the defendant is guilty of such treatment. \footnote{A petition for divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment should state the specific facts of inhuman treatment relied on as the ground for divorce; it is not enough to allege generally that the defendant is guilty of such treatment. Id.}

Insanity occurring after marriage is not ground for a divorce; nor is cruel and inhuman treatment, of which one of the parties, while insane, may be guilty toward the other, a cause for divorce within the contemplation of the statute. Wertz v. Wertz, 43 Id., 534.

The treatment received is not cause for divorce, and may be alleged in the petition for divorce only for the purpose of showing a foundation for the apprehended danger to life contemplated in the statute. Beebe v. Beebe, 10 Iowa, 133.

SEC. 2224. The husband may obtain a divorce from his wife for like cause, and also when the wife at the time of the marriage was pregnant by another than her husband, unless such husband have an illegitimate child or children then living, which was unknown to the wife at the time of their marriage.

SEC. 2225. The defendant may obtain a divorce for like causes as above stated, by filing a cross petition.

SEC. 2226. The court may order either party to pay the clerk a sum of money for the separate support and maintenance of the adverse party and the children, and to enable such party to prosecute or defend the action.

SEC. 2227. The petition may be presented to the court or judge for the allowance of an order of attachment; and said court or judge may, by indorsement thereon, direct such attachment and the amount for which the same may issue and the amount of the bond, if any, that shall be given, and the clerk shall issue the same accordingly; and any property taken by virtue thereof shall be held to satisfy the judgment or decree of the court, but may be discharged or released as in other cases.

SEC. 2228. In making such orders, the court or judge shall take into consideration the age, condition, sex, and pecuniary condition of the parties, and such other matters as are deemed pertinent, which may be shown by affidavits in addition to the pleadings or otherwise, as the court or judge may direct.

SEC. 2229. When a divorce is decreed, the court may make such order in relation to the children, property, parties, and the maintenance of the parties as shall be right and proper. Subsequent changes may be made by the court in these respects when circumstances render them expedient.

In an action for a divorce, the court may direct that either party shall contribute to the support or maintenance of the other, pending the action, or to its prosecution or defense, and in fixing the amount of alimony, the age, sex and pecuniary condition of the parties shall be considered. Small v. Small, 42 Iowa, 111.

In an action to set aside a decree of divorce it is not competent for the court to order the defendant to pay a sum of money to plaintiff to enable her to prosecute the action. Wilson v. Wilson, 49 Id., 544.

Alimony is the allowance made for the nourishment, maintenance and support of the wife out of the husband’s estate when they are legally separated. Russell v. Russell, 4 G. Gr., 26; Jolly v. Jolly, 1 Iowa, 9; O’Hagan v. O’Hagan, 4 Id., 506.

In granting a divorce, the court is not authorized under this section, to direct that the decree shall date back to the time of the levy of the attachment and become a lien upon the property of the husband, in favor of the wife, to the exclusion of a judgment creditor whose judgment was obtained prior to the decree of divorce. Daniels v. Lindley et al., 44 Iowa, 567.

Alimony in its original signification meant other than a portion of the husband’s lands; it was the fixed allowance made by the court for the support of the wife, out of the husband’s estate, when they were legally separated. Jolly v. Jolly, 1 Iowa, 8.

Under our law the court has full power to give Forfeiture.

Code, 1851, § 1486.

SEC. 2230. When a divorce is decreed, the guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by the marriage.

ANNULING ILLEGAL MARRIAGES.

SEC. 2231. Marriages may be annulled for the following causes:
1. Where marriage between the parties is prohibited by law;
2. Where either party was impotent at the time of marriage;
3. Where either party had a husband or wife living at the time of the marriage, provided they have not lived and cohabited together, as provided in section two thousand two hundred and one, of chapter one of this title; to the wife as alimony specific portions of the husband's property, real or personal. Id. See also to the same effect. Inskeep v. Inskeep, 5 Id., 204; Cole v. Cole, 23 Id., 433, 449.

In decreeing a divorce and granting alimony, the court will make such order in respect to the homestead as the circumstances will justify and as shall seem equitable. Ordinarily, the husband when he holds the legal title, and especially when the children are left with him, should be left in its enjoyment. But if the title is in the wife, purchased with her means, and she is given the custody of the only child, she should be awarded the homestead. Cole v. Cole, 23 Id., 433.

If the money of the husband has contributed to the value of the homestead in improvements, when owned by the wife, the case will not be varied, and its sale will not be ordered, so that each may have a due proportion. Nor will the wife's legal title be recognized as subject to a lien in the husband's favor for improvements; but the court will adjust these claims with due regard to rights of both parties. Id.

In deciding whether the husband or wife is to have the custody of the children, it is the duty of the court, under the statute, to make such order in relation thereto as is proper and right. Id.

Although under the statute the court may give the wife, as alimony, a portion of the husband's property, either real or personal, absolutely and in her own right, yet this should not be done, if the husband is in a condition to pay money, unless there is something in the situation of the wife which would render it equitable and just to give her the property instead of the money. Inskeep v. Inskeep, 1d., 204.

The court will render a decree for a divorce and suitable alimony in favor of the wife who has deserted her husband without reasonable cause, when it appears that her conduct subsequent to the separation has been without reproach, while that of the husband has rendered a reconciliation impossible without a sacrifice of principle and self respect on her part. Dupont v. Dupont, 10 Id., 112.

A decree for alimony in an action for a divorce, when prayed for in the petition, is not void because the original notice contained no statement that alimony was claimed. The power to grant alimony is, at least under the statute, a mere incident to the power to grant a divorce between the parties. McEwen v. McEwen, 26 Id., 375.

The court of the county where the plaintiff resides, having jurisdiction in an action for divorce and alimony, may rightfully declare and enforce a lien for alimony granted in the action against real property of the defendant situated in another county. Harshberger v. Harshberger et al., 1d., 585.

And such lien will have priority over an attachment issued in an action commenced in the county where the land lies, and which was not levied thereon until after the rendition of the decree for alimony, though before a transcript thereof was filed in the latter county. Id.

The attaching creditor, in such case, acquires no greater right in the attached property than the defendant actually had when the attachment was levied. Id. See also Norton, etc., v. Williams, 9 Id., 328; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 383; Thomas v. Hillhouse, 17 Id., 67.

Where a divorce is granted to the husband on account of the adultery of the wife, alimony will not be granted to her, where the husband has acquired no property by her, or she has not contributed thereto by her industry or otherwise, and he is without fault as respects her crime. Firecoat v. Firecoat, 32 Id., 198.

An action for alimony cannot be maintained as an independent proceeding after a divorce. The relation of husband and wife must exist to justify the allowance. Wilde v. Wilde, 36 Id., 319; Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 266.

But a court of equity will entertain an action for alimony alone, and will grant the same, though no divorce or other relief be asked, where a divorce has not been granted, and the wife is separated from the husband on account of conduct on his part justifying such separation. Graves v. Graves, 36 Id., 318.

The jurisdiction in such cases will be entertained on the ground of preventing a multiplicity of suits, or of inadequacy of relief at law. Id.

The court having jurisdiction to render a decree of divorce embracing an order respecting the children and property of the parties, retains power to modify the same, so long as it remains unexecuted, notwithstanding both parties may, after the rendition of the decree, and before the
4. Where either party was insane or idiotic at the time of the marriage.

2232. A petition shall be filed in such cases as in actions for divorce, and all the provisions of this chapter shall apply to such cases except as otherwise provided.

SEC. 2233. When the validity of a marriage is doubted, either party may file a petition, and the court shall decree it annulled or affirmed according to the proof.

SEC. 2234. When a marriage is annulled on account of the consanguinity or affinity of the parties, or because of impotency, the issue shall be illegitimate; but when on account of non-age or insanity, or idiocy, the issue is the legitimate issue of the party capable of contracting marriage.

SEC. 2235. When a marriage is annulled on account of a prior marriage, and the parties contracted the second marriage in good faith, believing the prior husband or wife to be dead, that fact shall be stated in the decree of annulment; and the issue of the second marriage begotten before the decree of the court, is the legitimate issue of the parent capable of contracting.

SEC. 2236. In case either party entered into the contract of marriage in good faith, supposing the other to be capable of contracting, and the marriage is declared a nullity, such fact shall be entered in the decree, and the court may decree such innocent party compensation as in cases of divorce.

CHAPTER 4.

OF MINORS.

SECTION 2237. The period of minority extends in males to the age of twenty-one years, and in females to that of eighteen years; but all minors attain their majority by marriage.
SEC. 2238. A minor is bound, not only by contracts for necessaries, but also by his other contracts, unless he disaffirms them within a reasonable time after he attains his majority, and restores to the other party all money or property received by him by virtue of the contract and remaining within his control at any time after attaining his majority.

SEC. 2239. No contract can be thus disaffirmed in cases where, on account of the minor's own misrepresentations as to his majority, or from his having engaged in business as an adult, the other party had good reason to believe the minor capable of contracting.

SEC. 2240. Where a contract for the personal service of a minor has been made with him alone, and those services are afterwards performed, payment made therefor to such minor in accordance with the terms of the contract, is a full satisfaction for those services, and the parent or guardian cannot recover therefor a second time.

* A deed of real property by a minor is voidable, but not void. Jenkins v. Jenkins, 12 Iowa, 193.

What is a “reasonable time” within which a minor may disaffirm his contract after attaining his majority, under the statute, must be determined upon the circumstances of each case. Id. See also Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47; Jones v. Jones, 46 Id., 466.

Where a minor attained his majority on the 5th of January, and filed his petition on the 23d of the same month, to cancel a deed made by him during his minority, it was held that in the absence of equitable circumstances, requiring an earlier disaffirmance, the delay was not unreasonable. Id.

The only property which the party is required to return, upon disaffirming a contract made during minority, is that which was received by him by virtue of the contract and remained in his control at any time after coming of age. Id.

The general rule is that the right of a minor to avoid his contract is absolute and paramount to all equities in favor of third persons, including purchasers without notice. Id.

Under the statute, a contract made by a minor, in order to be avoided, must be disaffirmed by him within a reasonable time after he attains majority. Wright v. Germain, 21 Id., 888; Stucker v. Yoder et al., 33 Id., 177.

In order to avoid the contract, the party must not only disaffirm the same, but redeem or tender to the other party what he received under the contract, within a reasonable time after attaining his majority. Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47. But this rule does not apply when the minor has never received anything either from his guardian or otherwise on the contract. Lyon v. Vanatta, 35 Id., 522.

Where a minor owns an undivided interest in real property, which has been sold for taxes, he can redeem to the extent of his interest only. Stout v. Merrell, 35 Id., 147.

The right of a minor to redeem from tax sale is a transferrable interest, which may be conveyed by deed. Id.

Where a minor entered into a contract with his father respecting his share of the estate, which he failed to disaffirm within six months after attaining his majority, he was held, not entitled to disaffirm it after that length of time had elapsed. Jones v. Jones, 46 Id., 466.

* If a minor who is engaged in business for himself possesses property and manages his affairs as an adult, persons dealing with him are justified in concluding that he is capable of making contracts; and this is not limited to the particular business in which the minor is engaged, but applies to all contracts he may make. Jacques v. Sax, 39 Iowa, 367.

To render a minor who engages in business, and holds himself out as capable of contracting, liable as an adult under this section, his infancy must have been unknown to the person contracting with him. If known to him the statute creates no shield to the disaffirmance of the contract. Beller v. Marchant, 30 Id., 350.

* Where the contract for personal services of a minor is made with him alone, with knowledge of the parent, and those services are afterwards performed, and paid for to the minor, without fraud, and in accordance with the terms of the contract, such payment will operate as full satisfaction for the services rendered; and the parent or guardian cannot recover therefor. Nixon v. Spencer, 16 Iowa, 214; Murphy v. Johnson, 45 Id., 57.
CHAPTER 5.

OF THE GUARDIANSHIP OF MINORS, DRUNKARDS, SPENDTHRIFTS, AND LUNATICS.

Section 2241. The parents are the natural guardians of their minor children, and are equally entitled to the care and custody of them.\footnote{The mother as the natural guardian of the person of her minor son, the father being dead, is entitled to recover for the personal services of the son. \textit{Cain v. Devitt}, 8 Iowa, 116.}

Sec. 2242. Either parent dying before the other, the survivor becomes the guardian. If there be no parent or guardian qualified and competent to discharge the duty, the circuit court shall appoint a guardian.

Sec. 2243. If the minor has property not derived from either parent, a guardian must be appointed to manage such property, which may be either parent if suitable and competent.

Sec. 2244. If the minor be over the age of fourteen years and of sound intellect, he may select his own guardian, subject to the approval of the circuit court of the county where his parents, or either of them, reside; or if such minor is living separate and apart from his parents, the circuit court of the county where he resides has jurisdiction.

Sec. 2245. The guardian and court making the appointment, have power and authority over any property of the minor situate or being in any other county, to the same extent and in the manner as if the same was situate in the county where the appointment was made. But when any order is made by such court affecting the title of lands lying in another county, a certified copy of the same, and of all the papers on which it is founded, shall be transmitted to the clerk of the circuit court in the county where such lands are situated, and such clerk shall enter such order on the proper docket and index the same, and make a complete record thereof in the same manner as if the cause in which the order is made had been commenced in court.

Sec. 2246. Guardians appointed to take charge of the property of a minor must give bond, with surety, to be approved by the court, in a penalty double the value of the personal estate and of the rents and profits of the real estate of the minor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties as such guardians according to law. They must also take an oath of the same tenor as the condition of the bond.\footnote{A guardian’s bond made payable to the county instead of to the parties interested, is not thereby invalid, but inures to the benefit of the latter and suit may be brought thereon by any one injured by a breach thereof. \textit{Pursley v Hayes}, 22 Id., 11.}

Sec. 2247. The court may also direct guardians to give new or supplemental security, or may remove them for good cause shown, which cause must be entered on the records.

Sec. 2248. Within forty days after their appointment, they must make out an inventory of all the property of the minor, which shall be appraised in the same manner as the property of a deceased person. The inventory must be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court.

Sec. 2249. Guardians of the persons of minors, have the same power and control over them that parents would have if living.

SEC. 2250. Guardians of the property of minors must prosecute and defend for their wards. They must also, in other respects, manage their interests under the direction of the court. They may thus lease their lands or loan their money during their minority, and may do all other acts which the court may deem for the benefit of the wards.

SEC. 2251. A failure to comply with any order of the court in relation to guardianship, shall be deemed a breach of the condition of the guardian’s bond, which may accordingly be put in suit by any one aggrieved thereby, for which purpose the court may appoint another guardian of the minor if necessary. The court may also commit him to jail until he complies with such order.

SEC. 2252. Where a new guardian is appointed, the court may order the effects of the minor which are in the hands of his predecessor to be delivered up to such new guardian and failure to comply with such order for three months thereafter, shall subject such guardian to a penalty of one hundred dollars to be recovered in an action on his bond for the benefit of such minor’s estate.

SEC. 2253. A guardian may be appointed for non-resident minors who have property in this state, on proper application made to the circuit court of the county in which such property or any part thereof may be, who shall qualify in the same manner and shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same rules as guardians of resident minors.

SEC. 2254. All guardians of minors are required to appear at least once each year before the circuit court, and render an account of all moneys or other property in their possession, together with all the interest which may have accrued on moneys loaned belonging to the minor or minors.

SEC. 2255. In case the said guardian shall fail to appear before said court within the time above specified, he shall forfeit and pay into the county treasury the sum of fifty dollars, as in other actions of misdemeanor.

SEC. 2256. Guardians shall receive such compensation as the court may from time to time allow. The amount allowed, and the service for which the allowance was made, must be entered upon the records of the court.

PROPERTY OF—SOLD.

SEC. 2257. When not in violation of the terms of a will by which a minor holds his real property, it may, under the direction of the circuit court, be sold or mortgaged on the application of the guardian, either when such sale or mortgage is necessary for the minor’s support or education, or where his interest will be thereby promoted by reason

* An action cannot be maintained against a guardian for money of his ward in his hands as soon as the ward attains his majority, and a failure to pay over the money will not constitute a breach of his bond until the guardianship accounts are settled or he has failed to obey a mandate of the court requiring him to account. O’Brien et al. v. Strang et al., 42 Iowa, 643. The surety on the bond of a guardian which was given in compliance with the revision when the guardian entered upon the discharge of his duties, held, not liable for the loss or misappropriation of money coming into the hands of the guardian from the sale of lands belonging to his ward, a special bond being required for the faithful performance of his duties in that respect. Madison County v. Johnston et al., 51 Iowa, 152.

b Where a new guardian is appointed the court may order the effects of the minor to be delivered to such new guardian, but there should be no judgment rendered against the outgoing guardian. Foteaux v. Lepage, 6 Iowa, 123.

of the unproductiveness of the property, or of its being exposed to waste, or of any other peculiar circumstances.\(^4\)

Sec. 2258. The petition for that purpose must state the grounds of the application, must be verified by oath, and a copy thereof, with a notice of the time at which such application will be made to the court, must be served personally upon the minor at least ten days prior to the time fixed for such application.\(^6\)

Sec. 2259. The court, in its discretion, may direct a postponement of the matter, and may order such farther publication through the newspapers or otherwise, as it may deem expedient.

Sec. 2260. It may also direct a reference for the purpose of ascertaining the propriety of ordering the sale or mortgage as applied for.

Sec. 2261. Before any such sale or mortgage can be executed, the guardian must give security to the satisfaction of the court, the penalty of which shall be at least double the value of the property to be sold, or of the money to be raised by the mortgage, conditioned that he will faithfully perform his duty in that respect, and account for and apply all moneys received by him under the direction of the court.\(^7\)

Sec. 2262. When the application for the sale of property is resisted, the court may, in its discretion, award costs to the prevailing party; and, when satisfied that there was no reasonable ground for making the application, may direct the costs to be paid by the guardian from his own funds.

Sec. 2263. Deeds may be made by the guardian in his own name, but they must be returned to the court and the sale or mortgage be approved before the same are valid.\(^8\)

Sec. 2264. The same rule that is prescribed in the sale of real property by executors, shall be observed in relation to the evidence necessary to show the regularity and validity of the sales above contemplated.

\(^4\) A guardian of heirs holding only a reversionary interest in real property may, under authority of the probate court, mortgage or otherwise convey the same. Foster v. Young, 35 Iowa, 27.

Where a mother as guardian of her children, executes a conveyance, she covenants "for herself, her heirs, executors and administrators, that she is seized of a good and indefeasible title in fee simple, and that she will warrant and defend the title" to the grantee, she will be estopped from afterwards asserting an interest which she held in the property in her own right at the time of making such conveyance. Id.

A guardian may, under the statute and proper order of the proper court, execute a deed of trust or mortgage of his ward. Id.

A guardian's sale of the real estate of his ward is not a proceeding in rem, but one adversary in its nature, and when made without the notice required by law, is void for want of jurisdiction in the court ordering the same. Lyon v. Vannatta et al., 35 Id., 521. See also Good v. Norley, 28 Id., 188; Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 11.

\(^6\) The time when the application will be made is an essential of the notice, hence a notice in which no time is fixed, or which fixes a wrong time, and subsequent to that when the application was made and acted on and the sale ordered, will not confer jurisdiction, and an order of sale thereunder will be void. Lyon v. Vannatta, 35 Iowa, 521.

Under a guardian's petition asking an order for the sale of real property, the court has no jurisdiction to make an order authorizing the guardian to mortgage it. McMannis v. Rice, 48 Id., 361.

If the notice be defective merely the jurisdiction is saved, and the proceedings cannot be collaterally assailed; but it is otherwise, where there has been no notice, or where the paper relied on as such is without some of the essential requirements of a notice. Lyon v. Vannatta, supra.

Distinction between a case of defective notice and no notice pointed out by Miller, J. Id. To the same effect is Haues v. Clark, 37 Id., 355.

An appearance and answer by a guardian ad litem, appointed by the court, without proper notice having been given to the minor will not confer jurisdiction over the person of the infant, and the proceeding, as to him, will be void. Good v. Norley, 28 Id., 188.

\(^7\) See O'Brien v. Strang, 42 Iowa, 643; Pursley v. Hayes, 22 Iowa, 11.

\(^8\) A deed takes effect from its delivery; and a guardian's deed cannot be delivered until it has been approved by the court. Such approval is an affirmation, both of the deed and sale. Wade v. Carpenter, 4 Iowa, 361.
SEC. 2265. No person can question the validity of such sale after the lapse of five years from the time it was made.

FOREIGN GUARDIANS.

SEC. 2266. The foreign guardian of any non-resident minor, may be appointed the guardian in this state of such minor by the circuit court of the county wherein he has any property, for the purpose of selling or otherwise controlling that and all other property of such minor within this state, unless a guardian has previously been appointed under the preceding section.

SEC. 2267. Such appointment may be made upon his filing with the clerk of the circuit court of the county wherein there is any such property, an authenticated copy of the order for his appointment. He shall thereupon qualify like other guardians, except as in the next succeeding section.

SEC. 2268. Upon the filing of an authenticated copy of the bond and the inventory rendered by the guardian in a foreign state, if the court is satisfied with the sufficiency and the amount of the security, it may dispense with the filing of an additional bond.

SEC. 2269. Foreign guardians of non-resident minors may be authorized by the circuit court of the county wherein such minor has personal property, to receive the same on complying with the provisions of the following sections.

SEC. 2270. Such foreign guardian shall file in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county where the property is situated, a certified copy of his official bond, duly authenticated by the court granting the letters of guardianship, and shall also execute a receipt for the property received by him.

SEC. 2271. Upon the filing of the bond as provided by the last section, and the court being satisfied with the amount of said bond, said court shall order the personal property of the minor to be delivered to the guardian; and the court shall spread the bonds and receipt on its records, and direct the clerk to notify, by mail, the court granting the letters of guardianship, of the amount of property allowed to the guardian, and the date of the delivery of the same.

1 This provision of the code has no application to cases of appeals or other process bringing up the matter for review in an appellate court. Pursley v. Hayes, 22 Iowa, 11.

Nor was this section intended to cover sales by a person having no semblance of authority, or where the court had no jurisdiction of the parties or subject-matter and no possession was taken by the purchaser; and in such case the heir would not be estopped by the statute from questioning the validity of the sale, though after the expiration of five years. Id.

In Good v. Norley, 29 Id., 188, the doctrine of Pursley v. Hayes, supra, was adhered to by Beck and Cole, JJ., while Dillon, Ch.J. and Wright, J., held, that the five years limitation provided in the statute applied to sales that were invalid as well as to those where the proceedings were merely defective, in that the action in that case was barred by the statute. The court being equally divided on this question it was undecided, and the judgment was for that reason, affirmed.

In Washburn v. Carmichael, 32 Id., 475, it was held by a majority of the court that this section applied only to cases where the purchaser has taken and held continuous possession of the premises for the statutory period. Mr. Justice Beck expressing satisfaction with the views announced by him in Good v. Norley, 28 Id., 188.

In Rankin v. Miller, 45 Iowa, 11, it was held, that this section does not afford protection to those claiming under a void sale; re-affirming the doctrine of Pursley v. Hayes, supra. See also Boyles v. Boyles, 37 Id., 592, as to sales by an executor.
SEC. 2272. When a petition is presented to the circuit court, verified by affidavit, that any inhabitant of the county is:
1. An idiot, lunatic, or person of unsound mind;
2. An habitual drunkard incapable of managing his affairs;
3. A spendthrift who is squandering his property; and the allegations of the petition have been satisfactorily proved upon the trial provided for in the following section, such court may appoint a guardian of the property of any such person, who shall be the guardian of the minor children of his ward unless the court otherwise orders.¹

SEC. 2273. Such petition shall set forth as particularly as may be, the facts upon which the application is based, and shall be answered as in other ordinary actions, all the rules of which shall govern so far as applicable and not otherwise provided in this chapter. The applicant shall be plaintiff and the other party defendant, and either party may have a trial by jury. The petition may be presented to the judge, who may appoint a temporary guardian.

SEC. 2274. The provisions of this chapter, and all other laws relating to guardians for minors, and regulating or prescribing the powers, duties, or liabilities of each and of the court, so far as the same are applicable, shall be held to apply to guardians and their wards appointed under section two thousand two hundred and seventy-two of this chapter.

SEC. 2275. Such guardian may sue in his own name, describing himself as guardian of the ward for whom he sues; and when his guardianship shall cease by his death, removal, or otherwise, or by the decease of his ward, any suit, action, or proceeding then pending shall not abate; but his successor, or the person for whom he was guardian, or the executor or administrator of such person, as the case may require, shall be made party to the suit or other proceedings, in like manner as is or may be provided by law for making an executor or administrator party to a proceeding of a like kind when the plaintiff dies during its pendency.

SEC. 2276. Whenever the sale of the real estate of such ward is necessary for his support, or the support of his family, or the payment of his debts, or will be for the interest of the estate or his children, the guardian may sell the same under like proceedings as required by law to authorize the sale of real estate by the guardian of a minor.

SEC. 2277. The guardian of any person contemplated in section two thousand two hundred and seventy-two of this chapter, whether appointed by a court in this state or elsewhere, may complete the real contracts of his ward, or any authorized contracts of a guardian who has died or been removed, in like manner and by like proceedings as the real contract of a decedent may under an order of court, be specially performed by his executor or administrator.

¹The appointment of a guardian for an insane person is a determination of the fact of insanity, and will be presumed to have been made under jurisdiction properly acquired according to the forms of law. Ockendon v. Barnes et ux., 43 Iowa, 615.

While ordinarily, the right of every person to manage and control his property is recognized and conceded on all hands, yet to even this rule there is at least one exception, which is, where a party is a spendthrift or drunkard, incapable of managing his affairs. For such, a guardian may be appointed under our statute. Riddle v. Cutter, 49 Id., 547, 534.

SEC. 2278. If the estate of such person is insolvent, or will probably be insolvent, the same shall be settled by the guardian in like manner, and like proceedings may be had as is or may be required by law for the settlement of the insolvent estate of a deceased person.

SEC. 2279. The priority of claim to the custody of any insane person, habitual drunkard, or spendthrift aforesaid, shall be:
1. The legally appointed guardian;
2. The husband or wife;
3. The parents;
4. The children.

CHAPTER 6.
MASTER AND APPRENTICE.

SECTION 2280. Any minor child may be bound to service until the attainment of the age of legal majority as hereinafter described.

SEC. 2281. Such binding must be by written indenture, specifying the age of the minor and the terms of agreement. If the minor is more than twelve years of age and not a pauper, the indenture must be signed by him of his own free will.

SEC. 2282. A written consent must be appended to or indorsed upon such agreement, and signed by one of the following persons, to-wit:
1. By the father of the minor; but if he is dead, or has abandoned his family, or is for any cause incapacitated from giving his assent, then,
2. By the mother; and if she be dead, or unable, or incapacitated for giving such assent, then,
3. By the guardian; and if there be no guardian, then by the clerk of the circuit court.

SEC. 2283. The clerk of the circuit court may bind minors who are paupers till they have attained the age of majority, without obtaining their assent.

SEC. 2284. The written indenture must, in that case, be signed by the master and said clerk.

SEC. 2285. The indenture must, in all cases where there is a parent or guardian, be in three parts, one being left with the master, another with the clerk of the circuit court, and the third with the person by whose assent he is bound.

SEC. 2286. The powers, liabilities, and duties of the master, and the rights of the apprentice, are the same as those of parent and child respectively, except as to inheritances and except as is otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 2287. The parent, guardian, or officer, by whose act or consent any minor is thus bound, must watch over the interest of the minor, and, if the case require, must enter complaint as provided for in the following section.

SEC. 2288. Upon complaint by the minor or by any other person made to the judge of the district or circuit court, stating under oath that the master is ill-treating his apprentice or is in any other manner palpably failing in the discharge of his duty in regard to him, and stating the particulars with reasonable certainty, the court shall summmon the master to appear and answer to such complaint.

Sec. 2289. The complaint, with the proper notice indorsed thereon, must be served and returned in the same manner as in the commencement of an action, and the time for appearance shall be regulated by the same rules.

Sec. 2290. The answer of the master must also be under oath, and, if any other issue be joined thereon, it must be tried as in other cases in court.

Sec. 2291. If the court or jury before whom the cause is pending finds the cause of complaint admitted by the master, or proved upon the trial to be of sufficient magnitude to justify the discharge of the minor from farther service, judgment shall be rendered accordingly, and a certificate of such judgment placed in said minor’s hands.

Sec. 2292. From any judgment in such cases, either the minor or the master may appeal in the same manner as provided for in ordinary cases.

Sec. 2293. The above proceedings form no bar to the bringing of a suit by or on behalf of the minor for damages, or for compensation for services.

Sec. 2294. If the apprentice bound as aforesaid, refuses to serve according to the terms of the indenture, upon complaint made in the manner aforesaid, the judge shall issue a warrant to cause the apprentice to be brought forthwith before him, and shall also cause notice of the proceedings to be given to the parent, guardian, or officer by whose act or consent the minor was bound as an apprentice, if to be found in the county.

Sec. 2295. A reasonable space of time, not exceeding three days, shall be allowed to the minor to consult his parent, guardian, or other friends, previous to making his answer to the complaint.

Sec. 2296. The answer must be made, and the issues thereon tried in the manner hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2297. If he shows sufficient cause for refusing to serve, he may be discharged from service in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 2298. Instead of proceeding as aforesaid, the master may, for any refusal to serve or for any gross misbehavior on the part of the apprentice, file a complaint for the purpose of releasing himself from the force and effect of the indenture aforesaid.

Sec. 2299. Proceedings thereupon shall be had similar to those provided in case of a complaint by or in behalf of the apprentice, and judgment rendered in like manner with the same right of appeal.

Sec. 2300. The death of the master, or his removal from the state, works a dissolution of the indenture unless otherwise provided therein, or unless the apprentice elects to continue in his service. And in the event of a dissolution, the apprentice shall receive such allowance for services previously rendered as may be thought necessary under the circumstances of the case.

Sec. 2301. Upon complaint being made to the circuit court of the proper county, verified by affidavit, that the father or mother of a minor child is, from habitual intemperance and vicious and brutal conduct, or from vicious, brutal, and criminal conduct towards said minor child, an unsuitable person to retain the guardianship and control the education of such child, the court may, if it find the allegations in the complaint manifestly true, appoint a proper guardian.
for the child, and may, if expedient, also direct that such child be bound as an apprentice to some suitable person until he attains his majority. But nothing herein shall be so construed as to take such minor child, if the mother be a proper guardian.¹

SEC. 2302. The same proceedings may take place, and a like order be made where the mother, who has for any cause become the guardian of her minor child, is in like manner found to be manifestly an improper person to retain such guardianship.

SEC. 2303. The complainant in such cases must be sworn to his complaint and file it in the office of the clerk, and a copy thereof, with a notice thereon indorsed, stating the time when the matter will be brought before the circuit court for adjudication, must be served personally on the parent from whom the guardianship is sought to be taken, at least ten days before the time so fixed for the adjudication.

SEC. 2304. Issues joined shall be tried in the same manner as in ordinary civil actions.

SEC. 2305. Preference shall be given to such cases over the ordinary business of the court, but trials actually commenced need not be suspended for that purpose.

SEC. 2306. The master shall send said minor child, after the same be six years old, to school at least four months in each year, if there be a school in the district, and at all times the master shall clothe the minor in a comfortable and becoming manner.

SECTION 2307. Any person competent to make a will is authorized in manner hereinafter set forth, to adopt as his own the minor child of another, conferring thereby upon such child all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities which would pertain to the child if born to the person adopting in lawful wedlock.

SEC. 2308. In order thereto, the consent of both parents, if living and not divorced or separated, and if divorced or separated, or if unmarried, the consent of the parent lawfully having the care and providing for the wants of the child, or if either parent is dead, then the consent of the survivor, or if both parents be dead, or the child shall have been and remain abandoned by them, then the consent of the mayor of the city where the child is living, or, if not in a city, then of the clerk of the circuit court of the county where the child is living, shall be given to such adoption by an instrument in writing signed by the parties or party consenting; and stating the names of the parents, if known, the name of the child, if known, the name of the person adopting such child, and the residence of all if known, and declaring the name by which such child is thereafter to be called and known, and stating also that such child is given to the person adopting, for the purpose of adoption as his own child.

Sec. 2309. Such instrument in writing shall be also signed by the person adopting, and shall be acknowledged by all the parties thereto in the same manner as deeds affecting real estate are required to be acknowledged; and shall be recorded in the recorder’s office in the county where the person adopting resides, and shall be indexed with the name of the parents by adoption as grantor, and the child as grantee, in its original name if stated in the instrument.

Sec. 2310. Upon the execution, acknowledgment, and filing of record of such instrument, the rights, duties, and relations between the parent and child by adoption, shall, thereafter, in all respects, including the right of inheritance, be the same that exist by law between parent and child by lawful birth.

Sec. 2311. In case of maltreatment committed or allowed by the adopted parent, or palpable neglect of duty on his part toward such child, the custody thereof may be taken from him and entrusted to another at his expense, if so ordered by the circuit court of the county where the parent resides, and the same proceedings may be had therefor, so far as applicable, as are authorized by law in such a case in the relation of master and apprentice; or the court may, on showing of the facts, require from the adopted parent, bond with security, in a sum to be fixed by him, the county being the obligee, and for the benefit of the child, conditioned for the proper treatment and performance of duty toward the child on the part of the parent; but no action of the court in the premises shall affect or diminish the acquired right of inheritance on the part of the child, to the extent of such right in a natural child of lawful birth.

OF PROBATE JURISDICTION.

SECTION 2312. The circuit court of each county shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction of the probate of wills, and the appointment of such executors, administrators, or trustees, as may be required to carry the same into effect; of the settlement of the estate of deceased persons, and of the persons and estates of minors, insane persons, and others requiring guardianship, including applications for the sale of real property belonging to any such estates, except as prescribed in chapters one and three, of title fifteen. *

SEC. 2313. The court shall be always open for the transaction of probate business; but the hearing of any matter requiring notice shall be had only in term time, or at such time and place as the judge may appoint.

SEC. 2314. When the judge fixes a time and place of hearing, as contemplated in the preceding section, he shall determine what notice shall be given thereof, and no such hearing shall be had until proof is made of the giving of such notice.

SEC. 2315. The clerk, in vacation, shall have power to appoint executors, administrators, guardians, and appraisers; to issue citations and other notices, and to discharge such other duties in relation to estates of decedents as are in this title specially devolved on him.

SEC. 2316. Any act of the clerk, as contemplated in the preceding section, shall be binding on all parties interested therein until the next term of the court after they are entered of record, when they shall be

* This section does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction of an original action to set aside a will. It has reference only to the probate. The district court cannot admit a will to probate for want of jurisdiction over the subject matter. Not so however, in respect to an original action to set it aside. Leighton v. Orr. 44 Iowa, 679, 683; Maples v. Marsh. 49 Id., 381.

The circuit court as a court of probate has jurisdiction to appoint an administrator, even in a county where there is no property of deceased beyond an interest in an action at law, and its adjudication is not open to be attacked collaterally. Murphy, Neal & Co. v. Creighton, 45 Id., 179. But see Christy v. Vest, 36 Id., 283.

An order of the circuit court, discharging an administrator, does not amount to an adjudication that an heir of the intestate, whom the administrator reported that he was unable to find, is in fact dead, nor will it estop such heir or his creditors from claiming his distributive share of the estate. Crosby v. Calhoun et al., 45 Id., 557.

Upon the probate of a will a jury trial cannot be demanded as a matter of right; and where such trial is granted it will not be error to set aside the finding of the jury. Gilruth v. Gilruth, 40 Id., 346.

The jurisdiction conferred upon the circuit court of the estates of insane persons does not exclude the jurisdiction of the district court upon questions of right between insane persons and others. Flock et al. v. Wyatt et al., 49 Id., 466.
read in open court and approved, set aside, or modified, but until so set aside or modified, it shall have the same force and effect as if done by the court.

Sec. 2317. Where the judge is a party, or connected by blood or affinity with any person so interested nearer than the fourth degree, or is personally interested in any probate matter, he shall order the same transferred to the district court, which shall have jurisdiction therein the same as the circuit court would otherwise have, and its proceedings shall be entered on the records of the circuit court.

Sec. 2318. When a case is originally within the jurisdiction of the courts of two or more counties, that court which first takes cognizance thereof by the commencement of proceedings, shall retain the same throughout.

Sec. 2319. The court of the county in which a will is probated, or in which administration is granted, shall have jurisdiction co-extensive with the state in the settlement of the estate of the decedent and the sale and distribution of his real estate.

Sec. 2320. Any process or authority emanating from the court in probate matters, may for good cause, be revoked and a new one issued.

Sec. 2321. All bonds relating to probate matters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, and shall not be deemed sufficient until examined by the clerk and his approval indorsed thereon.

OF WILLS AND LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION.

Section 2322. Any person of full age and sound mind may dispose, by will, of all of his property except what is sufficient to pay his debts, or what is allowed as a homestead, or otherwise given by law as privileged property to his wife and family. The republication of a will revoked by the subsequent birth of a child cannot be shown by parol. In the absence of statutory provisions the same formalities are necessary to the republication as were required in the original publication. Carey v. Baughn, 36 Iowa, 540; Perjue v. Perjue, 4 Id., 520.

Parol evidence is not admissible to supply an omission or cure a defect in a will, caused through oversight or mistake. Nor in any case to show the intention of the testator, except where there is a latent ambiguity arising, dehors the will, as to the person or subject-matter, or to rebut a resulting trust. Fitzpatrick v. Fitzpatrick, 36 Id., 674.

A verbal will disposing of personal property exceeding three hundred dollars in value is of no validity even to the extent of that sum. Stricker v. Oldenbaugh, 39 Iowa, 630. A bequest of a promissory note of the nominal value of $400 will be held invalid in the absence of proof that its value did not exceed $300. It is necessary to the validity of a will bequeathing personal property exceeding three hundred dollars in value, that two witnesses should subscribe the same; and it is not valid unless thus subscribed, though the witnesses were present and can testify that it was signed by the testator. If no executors.
R. § 2331.

SEC. 2325. A soldier in actual service, or a mariner at sea may dispose of all his personal estate by a will so made and witnessed.

SEC. 2326. All other wills, to be valid, must be in writing witnessed by two competent witnesses and signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction.

SEC. 2327. No subscribing witness to any will can derive any benefit therefrom, unless there be two disinterested and competent witnesses to the same.

SEC. 2328. But, if, without a will, he would be entitled to any portion of the testator’s estate, he may still receive such portion to the extent in value of the amount devised.

SEC. 2329. Wills can be revoked, in whole or in part, only by being canceled or destroyed by the act or direction of the testator with the intention of so revoking them, or by the execution of subsequent wills.

SEC. 2330. When done by cancellation, the revocation must be witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will.

SEC. 2331. Wills, duly sealed up and indorsed, may be deposited with the clerk of the court, who shall file and preserve the same until the death of the testator, unless he sooner demand them.

SEC. 2332. If no executors are named in the will, one or more may be appointed to carry it into effect.

SEC. 2333. If no executors are named therein, or if the executors named fail to qualify and act, it shall be retained until an executor is appointed and qualified in the manner herein prescribed.

POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN—DEVISEE.

SEC. 2334. Posthumous children unprovided for by the father’s will, shall inherit the same interest as though no will had been made.

SEC. 2335. The amount thus allowed to a posthumous child, as well as that of any other claim which it becomes necessary to satisfy in disregard of or in opposition to the contemplation of the will, must be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees.

SEC. 2336. The word “devisee” as used in this title, shall, when applicable, be construed to embrace “legatee,” and the word “devised” shall, in like cases, be understood as comprising the force of the word “bequeathed.”

SEC. 2337. If a devisee die before the testator, his heirs shall inherit the amount so devised to him unless from the terms of the will a contrary intent is manifest.

CUSTODIAN—PROBATE.

SEC. 2338. Any person having the custody of a will, shall, as soon as he is informed of the death of the testator, file the same with the clerk, who shall open and read the same.

Penalty for refusal.
R. § 2324.

SEC. 2339. If any person having the custody of a will fail to produce the same as required by the preceding section after receiving a reasonable notice so to do, the court may commit him to jail until he produce the same; and he shall be liable for all damages occasioned by his failure to produce such will.

SEC. 2340. After the will is produced and read, a day shall be fixed by the court or clerk for proving the same, which day shall be during a term of court, and may be postponed from time to time in the discretion of the court. [Whenever the proving of a will is contested either party shall be entitled to demand a jury and to the verdict of a jury on the issues involved.]

SEC. 2341. The clerk shall give notice of the time thus fixed by publishing a notice, signed by himself and addressed to all whom it may concern, in a daily or weekly paper printed in the county where the will is filed, for three consecutive weeks, the last publication of which shall be at least ten days before the time fixed for such hearing; but the court in its discretion may prescribe a different kind of notice.

SEC. 2342. Wills, when proved and allowed, shall have a certificate thereof indorsed on or annexed thereto, signed by the clerk and attested by the seal of the court; and every will so certified, or the record thereof, or the transcript of such record duly authenticated, may be read in evidence in all courts without further proof.

SEC. 2343. After being approved and allowed, the will, together with the certificate hereinafter required, shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose.

SEC. 2344. When proved and recorded, the court shall direct the executor to have copy. R. § 2336.

Vacancies. Ch. 158, § 8, 13 G. A.

* It was held, in Gilruth v. Gilruth, 40 Iowa, 346, prior to the amendment of this section, that, upon the probate of a will, a jury trial could not be demanded as a matter of right.

b Publication of the notice required by this section (2341) may be proved by the affidavit of any person who is in a situation to have personal knowledge of the fact. Farrell v. Leighton et al., 49 Iowa, 174.

A will devising the use and enjoyment of certain real estate to A, "to be enjoyed by her during her natural life only," and after her death to her heirs, "free and clear of all liens and incumbrances thereon," was held, to give the devisee only a life estate, the intent of the testator being to create a new stock of descent at her death. Stemmer v. Crampton et al., 50 Id., 302.

A will having the certificate of proof and allowance attached, as provided by this section, may be read in evidence without further proof, or any showing that all the directory provisions of the statute have been complied with. Nor need the certificate state such compliance, but only the fact of the proof and allowance of the will. Latham v. Latham, 30 Iowa, 294.

R. § 2340.

Trustees to give bond.
Ch. 153, § 6, 13 G. A.

Sec. 2348. In a case of vacancy, letters of administration, with the will annexed, may be granted to some other person; or if there be another executor competent to act, he may be allowed to proceed by himself in administering the estate.

Sec. 2349. The substitution of other executors shall occasion no delay in the administration of the estate. The periods hereinafter mentioned within which acts are to be performed after the appointment of executors, shall all, unless otherwise declared, be reckoned from the issuing of the commission to the first general executor.

Sec. 2350. Trustees appointed by will, or by the court, must qualify and give bonds the same as executors, and shall be subject to control or removal by the court in the same manner.

Foreign Wills.

Sec. 2351. Wills probated in any other state or country, shall be admitted to probate in this state without the notices required by law in the case of domestic wills, on the production of a copy of such will and of the original record of probate thereof, authenticated by the attestation of the clerk of the court in which such probate was made; or, if there be no clerk by the attestation of the judge thereof, and by the seal of office of such officers, if they have a seal.

Sec. 2352. All provisions of law relating to the carrying into effect of domestic wills after probate, shall, so far as applicable, apply to foreign wills admitted to probate in this state as contemplated in the preceding section:

[Provided, That where, by any will first admitted to probate in any other state or country and then admitted to probate in Iowa, the executors or trustees under said will are empowered to sell and convey real estate, then upon the production of and recording in the proper probate record a copy of the original record of the appointment, qualification and giving bond, unless such bond was waived in the will, of such executors or trustees by the foreign court granting the original probate of the will, duly authenticated in the same manner as foreign wills are required to be, then, in conformity with the power granted in such wills, such executors or trustees may sell and convey real estate within any county in this state where such probate of will and proof of qualification may be so of record, without further qualifying in this state, and without reporting such sale to the circuit courts in this state for approval; and such sales and conveyances shall have the same force and validity as if made by executors and trustees duly qualified within this state and reported to, and approved by the circuit courts, unless at the time of the execution and delivery of said deed, letters testamentary or of administration upon the estate of such decedent shall have been granted in this state and remain in force and unretracted, and due notice of such letters be given in such county in this state, if other than the one in which such letters were originally granted here as required by section 2629 of the code, in reference to

It has been held that the sufficiency of the attestation of a foreign will by the judge of the probate court where the same was proven, without being authenticated by the clerk, cannot be collaterally called in question after the probate court in a county of this state, has under the provisions of the statute, allowed and recorded the will and passed upon the sufficiency of the authentication. Stanley v. Morse et al., 26 Iowa, 454.

Under this section, a will proved and allowed in another state should be allowed and may be recorded by the circuit court of this state. Such allowance is conclusive of the due execution of the will. Vance et al. v. Anderson, 39 Id., 426; see section 2353 of code.
actions affecting real estate; in which case any conveyance made shall be subject to all the rights acquired under the appointment and letters granted in Iowa; provided, that no such conveyance shall be made by such executor or trustee until three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification and bond (unless bond was waived in the will) in the proper probate record of the county where the land is situated.

Sec. 2. That all conveyances heretofore made by foreign executors and trustees in which the requirements of this act have been complied with, or in which such proof of authority at the date of conveyance shall be hereafter made of record as provided in section 1 of this act, are hereby declared to be legal and valid in law and equity from the date of such deed; provided, that the provisions of this section shall in no manner affect adverse rights vested at the date of such conveyance and prior to the taking effect of this act, or the performing the additional requirements of this section.

Sec. 2353. Wills, foreign or domestic, shall not be carried into effect until admitted to probate as hereinbefore provided, and such probate shall be conclusive as to the due execution thereof, until set aside by an original or appellate proceeding.

ADMINISTRATION.

Sec. 2354. In other cases where an executor is not appointed by will, administration shall be granted:
1. To the wife of the deceased;
2. To his next of kin;
3. To his creditors;
4. To any other person whom the court may select.

Sec. 2355. Individuals belonging to the same or different classes, may be united as administrators whenever such course is deemed expedient.

Sec. 2356. To each of the above classes in succession, a period of twenty days, commencing with the burial of the deceased, is allowed within which to apply for administration upon the estate.

Sec. 2357. When from any cause general administration cannot be immediately granted, one or more special administrators may be appointed to collect and preserve the property of the deceased.

Sec. 2358. No appeal from the appointment of such special executors, shall prevent their proceeding in the discharge of their duties.

Sec. 2359. They shall make and file an inventory of the property of the deceased, in the same manner in all respects as is required of general executors or administrators, and shall preserve such property from injury.

Sec. 2360. For this purpose they may do all needful acts under the direction of the court, but shall take no steps in relation to the allowance of claims against the estate.

Sec. 2361. Upon the granting of full administration, the powers of the special administrators shall cease, and all the business shall be transferred to the general executor or administrator.

1 Where the time given by the statute for the next of kin or creditors to take out letters of administration has expired, a stranger may be appointed de bonis non. Crossan v. McCrary, 37 Iowa, 684.
SEC. 2362. Every executor or administrator, except as herein otherwise declared, before entering on the discharge of his duty, must give bond in such penalty as may be required, to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed on him by law, according to the best of his ability.

SEC. 2363. He must also take and subscribe an oath, the same in substance as the condition of the bond aforesaid; which oath and bond must be filed with the clerk.

SEC. 2364. New bonds may be required by the court to be given, and in a new penalty and with new sureties whenever the same is deemed expedient.

SEC. 2365. After the filing of the bond aforesaid, the clerk shall issue letters testamentary or of administration, as the case may be, under the seal of the court, giving the executor or administrator the power authorized by law.

SEC. 2366. The executors or administrators first appointed and qualified for the settlement of an estate, shall, within ten days after the receipt of their letters, publish such notice of their appointment as the court or the clerk may direct; which direction shall be indorsed on the letters when issued.

SEC. 2367. Administration shall not be originally granted after the lapse of five years from the death of the decedent, or from the time his death was known in case he died out of the state.

SEC. 2368. If administration of the estate of a deceased non-resident has been granted in accordance with the laws of the state or country where he resided at the time of his death, the person to whom it has been committed, may, upon his application, and upon qualifying himself in the same manner as is required of other executors, be appointed to administer upon the property of the deceased in this state, unless another has been previously appointed.

SEC. 2369. The original letters or other authority, conferring his power upon such executor, or an attested copy thereof, must be filed with the clerk of the proper court before such appointment can be made.

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE ESTATE.

SECTION 2370. Within fifteen days after his appointment, the executor shall make and file with the clerk an inventory of all the personal effects of the deceased of every description which have come to his knowledge, and a list of all book accounts which appear by the books or papers of the deceased to be unsettled. Such inventory shall

The property left by a decedent cannot be subjected to the claim of a judgment creditor by an action to revive a judgment against the heirs of the decedent, in the absence of any administration upon his estate. Bridgman & Co. v. Miller et al., 50 Iowa 392.

v. Shultz, 49 Iowa. 430.
be so made out as to show separately and distinctly, each by itself, the property inventoried as general assets of the deceased; the property inventoried and which is regarded as exempt under the next two sections; and the book accounts.

SEC. 2371. When the deceased leaves a widow, all personal property which in his hands as the head of a family would be exempt from execution, after being inventoried and appraised, shall be set apart to her as her property in her own right, and be exempt in her hands as in the hands of the decedent.

SEC. 2372. The avails of any life insurance [or any other sum of money made payable by any mutual aid or benevolent society upon the death of a member of such society] are not subject to the debts of the deceased, except by special contract or arrangement, but shall, in other respects, be disposed of like other property left by the deceased.

SEC. 2373. All property inventoried by the executor shall be appraised by three appraisers, who shall be appointed immediately on the filing of the inventory.

SEC. 2374. The clerk shall issue to them a notification of their appointment, accompanied by a copy of the inventory as returned by the executor, and in making their appraisement they shall affix a value to each item of property, separately, as it appears in such inventory.

SEC. 2375. The court shall, if necessary, set off to the widow, and children under fifteen years of age, of the decedent, or to either, sufficient of his property, of such kind as it shall deem appropriate, to support them for twelve months from the time of his death.

SEC. 2376. A supplemental inventory must be made in like manner, whenever the existence of additional property is discovered.

SEC. 2377. The court may, on the petition of the widow, or other person interested, review the allowance so made to the widow or children, and increase or diminish the same, and make such order in the premises as it shall deem right and proper.

SEC. 2378. If any portion of the decedent's personal property be in another county, the same appraisers may serve, or others may be appointed.

The ancient common law rule that a debtor who is made the executor of his creditor is thereby released from the debt, it not appearing that the assets of the estate are insufficient to meet the testator's debts, is not in force in this country, and the debt in the hands of the executor is regarded as general assets of the estate for the benefit, not only of creditors but of legateses and others interested. Kaster v. Pierson, 27 Iowa, 90.

In an action by a receiver against an executor on a promissory note made by the latter to the testator, judgment should be rendered against him in his individual capacity, and not as executor. Id.

Property of the intestate set apart to the widow under section 2361 of the revision, when no longer needed and used by her as the head of his family, fell into the general personal estate, and became liable to distribution according to law, but not for the payment of debts. Gaskell v. Case, 18 Iowa, 147; Mejer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 359.

It was also held, under the same section, that an heir could not claim the exclusive right to property set apart to the widow, by the executor, even though the widow was not entitled thereto because there was no longer a family within the meaning of the section. Paup v. Sylvester, 22 Id., 371.

It was also held under the revision, that the property, which under the statute was exempt to the widow, as the head of the family, was not to be deemed assets in the hands of the administrator, nor to be administered upon as such; and that even consent on her part to such administration, under a misapprehension of her rights, would not estop her from afterwards claiming the property or its proceeds. Elsworth v. Elsworth, 33 Id., 164.

The proceeds of a policy of insurance upon the life of the husband or wife are not exempt from the debts of the survivor, after the proceeds shall be realized.

* The proceeds of a policy of insurance upon the life of the husband or wife are not exempt from the debts of the survivor, after the proceeds shall be realized.

* See Herriman v. McKee, 49 Iowa, 187, cited in notes to section 1182, ante.
Discovery of assets: proceedings.
R. § 2366.

SEC. 2379. The court or judge may require any person suspected of having taken wrongful possession of any of the effects of the deceased, or of having had such effects under his control, to appear and submit to an examination under oath touching such matters; and if on such examination it appear that he has the wrongful possession of any such property, the court or judge may order the delivery of the same to the executor of the estate.

SEC. 2380. If, on being duly served with the order of the court or judge requiring him to do so, any person fail to appear in accordance with such order; or if, having appeared, he refuse to answer any question which the court or judge deem proper to be put to him in the course of such examination; or if he fail to comply with the order of the court or judge requiring him to deliver the property to the executor, he may be committed to the jail of the county until a compliance be yielded.

SEC. 2381. Whenever it is probable that the known and acknowledged property of the deceased will not be sufficient for the payment of his debts, any person to whom the legal title of any real estate was conveyed by the decedent or any person through whom the legal title to any real estate conveyed by the decedent has subsequently passed, or any person claiming an interest in any such real estate, may be required to appear and submit to an examination as contemplated in the preceding sections, subject to the penalties therein prescribed; and the court or judge shall have full power to order the proper declaration of trust to secure the estate, to be made by any person who may appear on such examination to hold the legal title to any real estate which in the event of the insufficiency of the personal property would be assets for the payment of debts, and to enforce compliance with such order as is provided in the next preceding section.

SEC. 2382. The executor, with the approbation of the court, may compound with any debtor of the estate who may be thought unable to pay his whole debt.

SEC. 2383. The interest of a deceased mortgagee shall be included among his personal assets, and, upon its being paid off, satisfaction shall be entered by the executor.

SEC. 2384. When a person by his will makes such a disposition of his effects as to prejudice the rights of creditors, the will may be sustained by giving security to the satisfaction of the court for the payment of the claims of the creditors to the extent of the value of the property devised.

SEC. 2385. When no different direction is given in the will, debts due the estate, shall, as far as practicable, be collected, and the debts owing by the estate paid off therewith to the extent of the means thus obtained.

* Under this and the preceding section the examination must be confined to the person summoned; and it is not competent to introduce other evidence to contradict his statements or to establish the administrator's claim to the property. Smyth v. Smyth, 24 Iowa, 491.

The person thus subjected to examination is not a witness within the meaning of section 3982 of the revision. Id.

These sections of the statute do not confer authority upon the court to try, as an issue of fact, upon general evidence, whether the person examined has taken wrongful possession of the effects of the estate of the deceased, but merely to summon and compel the appearance of such person, and subject him to an examination under oath; and where it appears therefrom that he has property belonging to the estate, order the same to be delivered to the administrator, and to enforce such order by imprisonment of the defendant if necessary. Rickman v. Stanton, 32 Id., 134.

Where the property, claimed to be assets of the estate, has been taken and converted into real estate, this proceeding is not applicable. Madison v. Shockley, 41 Id., 451, 453.
SALE OF PROPERTY.

SEC. 2386. The court, on the application of the executor, shall, from time to time, direct the sale of such portion of the personal effects as are of a perishable nature, or which, from any cause, would otherwise be likely to depreciate in value, and also such portions as are necessary to pay off the debts and charges upon the estate.

SEC. 2387. If the personal effects are found inadequate to satisfy such debts and charges, a sufficient portion of the real estate may be ordered to be sold for that purpose.\(^*\)

SEC. 2388. Application for that purpose can be made only after a full statement of all the claims against the estate, and after rendering a full account of the disposition made of the personal estate.

SEC. 2389. Before any order to that effect can be made, all persons interested in such real estate shall be served with notice in the same manner as is prescribed for the commencement of civil action, unless a different notice is prescribed by the judge.\(^*\)

SEC. 2390. If convenient, the real estate must be divided into parcels, and each appraised in the manner above provided for personal property, and the appraisement filed in like manner.

SEC. 2391. When a part cannot be sold without material prejudice to the general interests of the estate, the court may order the sale of the whole, or of such parts as can be sold advantageously.\(^*\)

SEC. 2392. Property may be permitted to be sold at private sale, whenever the court is satisfied that the interest of the estate will be thereby promoted.

SEC. 2393. In other cases, sales must be made at public auction, after giving the same notice as would have been necessary for the sale of such property on execution.

SEC. 2394. No property can be sold at private sale for less than the appraisement price, without the express approbation of the judge.

SEC. 2395. Property may be ordered to be sold on a partial credit of not more than twelve months.

\(^*\) The real estate of an intestate descends to the heirs at law, and the personal property only goes to the administrator unless the latter proves inadequate for the payment of the debts of the intestate, in which case he may be empowered to sell enough of the real estate to make up the deficit. Kinsell v. Billings, 35 Iowa, 154.

The interest of the widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to the payment of his debts, and may be set apart to her without reference thereto. Mock v. Watson, 41 Id., 241.

This section should be understood as referring to the interest of the estate, as distinguished from that of the wife, in the lands of the intestate. Id.

But where the administrator instituted proceedings in the probate court to sell lands of the intestate to pay debts of the estate, making the widow a party, and she was duly served with process, and the land sold under the order of the court, it was held, that her right to dower was adjudicated in that proceeding, and that she could not afterward maintain an action therefor. Olmsed v. Blair, 45 Id., 42; Garce v. Hatcher, 39 Id., 685.

\(^*\) In a proceeding for the sale of real estate by an executor, wherein the court has prescribed the same notice as is provided by law in ordinary actions, a defendant, who has been served by publication only and has not appeared, may avail himself of the provisions of section 2877 of the code, and may thereunder have the order of sale, made on default, set aside on motion therefor at any time within two years after the making of the order. Huston v. Huston, 29 Iowa, 347.

The objections that the requirements of the statute in regard to the appraisement of lands were not complied with, and that the lands, composed of several tracts, were sold in a body, are not jurisdictional in their character, and will not affect the validity of the sale. Cowins v. Tool, Ex'r, etc., 36 Iowa, 82.

The approval of the administrator's deed by the probate court furnishes presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale, and of the regularity of all the prior proceedings. Id.
SEC. 2396. Any person interested in the estate, may prevent a sale of the whole or any part thereof, by giving bond to the satisfaction of the court, conditioned that he will pay all demands against the estate, to the extent of the value of the property thus kept from sale, as soon as called upon by the court for that purpose.

SEC. 2397. If the conditions of such bond are broken, the property will still be liable for the debts, unless it has passed into the hands of an innocent purchaser, and the executors may take possession thereof and sell the same under the direction of the court, or they may prosecute the bond, or both at once if the court so direct.

SEC. 2398. If the conditions of the bond are complied with, the property passes by devise, distribution, or descent, in the same manner as though there had been no debts against the estate.

SEC. 2399. If the conditions of the bond are complied with, the property passes by devise, distribution, or descent, in the same manner as though there had been no debts against the estate.

SEC. 2400. Such approval shall be entered of record. A certificate thereof must be indorsed on the deed, with the signature of the clerk and the seal of the court affixed thereto; and the deed so indorsed shall be presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale, and of the regularity of all the proceedings connected therewith.

SEC. 2401. No action for the recovery of any real estate sold by an executor can be sustained by any person claiming under the deceased, unless brought within five years next after the sale.

POSSSESSION OF REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 2402. If there be no heir or devisee present and competent to take possession of the real estate left by such decedent, the executor may take possession of such real estate and demand and receive the rents and profits thereof, and do all other acts relating thereto which may be for the benefit of the persons entitled to such real estate.

SEC. 2403. Such executor or administrator, under the order and direction of the court, may apply the profits of such real estate to the payment of taxes and of debts and claims against the estate of the deceased in case the personal assets are insufficient.
Sec. 2404. Such executor or administrator shall account to such heirs or devisees for the rents, profits, or use of such real estate, deducting therefrom the payments made under the preceding section, together with a reasonable compensation for his own services, to be fixed by the court.

Sec. 2405. When there are minor heirs for whom no guardian has been appointed, the executor or administrator shall pay out of any assets in his hands, all taxes assessed against the estate not otherwise provided for, and he shall be credited therefore as for the payment of other claims against the estate.

Sec. 2406. When the interests of creditors will not thereby be prejudiced, a testator may prescribe the entire manner in which his estate shall be administered on; may exempt the executor from the necessity of giving bond, and may prescribe the manner in which his affairs shall be conducted until his estate is finally settled, or until his minor children become of age.

Sec. 2407. The court, in its discretion, may also authorize an executor or administrator to continue the prosecution of any business in which the deceased was engaged at the time of his death, in order to wind up his affairs with greater advantage; but such authority shall not exempt him from returning a full inventory and appraisement as in other cases.

CLAIMS—PAYMENTS.

Sec. 2408. Claims against the estate shall be clearly stated, sworn to, and filed, and ten days' notice of the hearing thereof, accompanied by a copy of the claim, shall be served on one of the executors in the manner required for commencing ordinary proceedings, unless the same have been approved by the administrator, in which case they may be allowed by the clerk without said notice.

Sec. 2409. All claims filed against the estate shall be entitled in the name of the claimant against the executor, naming him as executor of the estate, naming it; and in all further proceedings on the claim, this title shall be preserved.

Sec. 2410. All claims filed and not expressly admitted in writing, signed by the executor with the approbation of the court, shall be considered as denied without any pleading on behalf of the estate.

* The stating, verifying and filing of a claim against an estate is in the nature of a petition. When it is based upon a written instrument it is sufficient to file a copy, but the original must be produced at the time of trial or when it is allowed. Braught v. Griffith et al., 16 Iowa, 26.

It is not a prerequisite to the commencement and prosecution of proceedings against an administrator to correct errors in accounts taken between the plaintiff and the decedent, that a claim shall be stated, sworn to and filed in the clerk's office. The County of Linn v. Day, 16 Iowa, 138.

If a claim be filed within the time prescribed, the filing will not be rendered invalid because it was not sworn to when thus filed. It may be verified after the filing. This section, being directory, is thus sufficiently complied with. Goodrich v. Conrad, 24 Id., 254; Wile v. Wright, 32 Id., 451.

The court may set aside or modify the allowance of a claim against an estate, approved by the administrator and allowed by the clerk in vacation, without any other evidence than what is shown by the papers. Ordway & Husted v. Phelps, 45 Id., 279.

* All claims filed against an estate must be entitled in the name of the claimant against the executor, and if the same are not approved by the latter, they may be proved as in an action by ordinary proceedings. Per Seavers, Ch. J., in Ordway & Husted v. Phelps, 45 Iowa, on p. 281.
Sec. 2411. If a claim filed against the estate is not so admitted by the executor, the court may hear and allow the same, or may submit it to a jury; and, on such hearing, unless otherwise provided, all provisions of law applicable to an ordinary proceeding shall apply.

Sec. 2412. In matters of accounts of executors, the court shall have authority to appoint one or more referees, who shall have all the powers and perform all the duties of referees appointed by the court in a civil action.

Sec. 2413. Demands, though not yet due, may be presented, proved, and allowed as other claims.

Sec. 2414. Contingent liabilities must also be presented and proved, or the executor shall be under no obligation to make any provision for satisfying them when they may afterwards accrue.

Sec. 2415. Claims against an estate, and counter claims thereto, may, in the discretion of the court, be proved up before one or more referees, to be agreed upon by the parties or approved by the court, and their decision being entered upon the record becomes a decision of the court.

Sec. 2416. Suits pending against the decedent at the time of his death, may be prosecuted to judgment, his executor being substituted as defendant, and such judgment shall be placed in the catalogue of established claims, but shall not be a lien.

Sec. 2417. If either of the executors is interested in favor of a claim against the estate, he shall not serve in any matter connected with that case. And if all the executors are thus interested, the court shall appoint some competent person a temporary executor in relation to such claims.

Sec. 2418. As soon as the executors are possessed of sufficient means, over and above the expenses of administration, they shall pay off the charges of the last sickness and funeral of deceased.

Sec. 2419. They shall, in the next place, pay any allowance which may be made by the court for the maintenance of the widow and minor children.

Sec. 2420. Other demands against the estate are payable in the following order:
1. Debts entitled to preference under the laws of the United States;
2. Public rates and taxes;
3. Claims filed within six months after the first publication of the notice given by the executors of their appointment;
4. All other debts;
5. Legacies.

* The filing of the claim by a creditor against the estate of the principal debtor, obviates the necessity of filing the same as a contingent claim.

 Expenses incurred in the last sickness and funeral charges do not constitute claims for which the homestead is liable.

The court may allow or disallow a claim, and designate the class in which it shall be paid.

When a claim has been allowed and its class designated by the court, it should be paid ratably with other claims of the same class, when the assets are insufficient to pay the full amount of all.

The filing of a claim within six months after the notice was given by the administrator of his appointment, entitles it to payment before those filed after that time, even though it is not admitted by the administrator or found upon by the court, until after the six months.

It was held under the revision that where an action was commenced in the district court,
Sec. 2421. All claims of the fourth of the above classes not filed and proved within twelve months of the giving of the notice aforesaid, are forever barred, unless the claim is pending in the district or supreme court, unless peculiar circumstances entitle the claimant to equitable relief.

Sec. 2422. After the expiration of the time for filing the claims of the third of the above classes, the executors shall proceed to pay off all claims against the estate in the order above stated, as fast as the means of so doing come into their hands.

Sec. 2423. Claims of the fourth class may be paid off at any time after the expiration of six months aforesaid, without any regard to those claims not filed at the time of such payment.

Sec. 2424. No payment can be made to a claimant in any one class until those of a previous class are satisfied.

Sec. 2425. Demands not yet due shall be paid off if the holder will consent to such a rebate of interest as the court thinks reasonable.

Sec. 2426. Within their respective classes, debts shall be paid off in the order in which they are filed, subject to the provisions of the next section.

Sec. 2427. If there are not likely to be means sufficient to pay off the whole of the debts of any one class, the court shall, from time to time strike a dividend of the means on hand among all the creditors of that class, and the executors shall pay the several amounts accordingly.

The equitable relief contemplated by the statute will not be granted to a party who had full notice of the decease of the intestate and the appointment and qualification of the administrator, and was negligent in the prosecution of his claim.

Whether equitable relief will be granted or not must depend upon the facts of each particular case.

For cases where equitable relief was granted and claims allowed to be established after the time limited in the statute, see McCormack v. Cook, 11 Id., 267; Brewer v. Kendrick, 17 Id., 479; Farrall v. Irvine, 12 Id., 52; Johnston v. Johnston, 36 Id., 698.

For cases where equitable relief was refused, see Shomo v. Bissell, 20 Iowa, 68; Preston v. Day, 19 Id., 127.

It was held, that the bar of this section of the statute applied only to claims, the satisfaction of which was primarily sought out of the personal assets of the decedent, and not to claims secured by mortgage upon which the creditor relied for satisfaction. Allen v. Moer, 16 Id., 307.

A claim of the fourth class against the estate of a decedent, not filed and proved within twelve months after the publication of the notice of appointment of administrator, is barred, unless the case presents circumstances entitling the claimant to equitable relief.

Wilcox v. Jackson, 51 Iowa, 296; Lacey v. Loughridge, 1d., 629.
SEC. 2428. The executors may, with the approbation of the court, use funds belonging to the estate to pay off encumbrances upon lands owned by the deceased, or to purchase lands claimed or contracted for by him prior to his death.

SPECIFIC LEGACIES—PAYMENT.

SEC. 2429. Specific legacies of property may, by the court, be turned over to the rightful claimant at any time upon his giving unquestionable real estate security to restore the property, or refund the amount at which it was appraised if wanted for the payment of debts.

SEC. 2430. Legacies payable in money, may be paid on like terms whenever the executors possess the means which can be thus used without prejudice to the interest of any claim already filed.

SEC. 2431. After the expiration of the twelve months allowed for the filing claims as above provided, such legacies may be paid off without requiring the security provided for in the preceding two sections, if the means are still retained to pay off all the claims proved or pending as hereinbefore contemplated.

SEC. 2432. If the testator has not prescribed the order in which legacies are to be paid off, and if no security is given as above provided, in order to expedite their time of payment, they may be paid off in the order in which they are given in the will, where the estate is sufficient to pay all.

SEC. 2433. When not incompatible with the manifest intention of the testator, the court may direct all payments of money to legatees to be made ratably.

SEC. 2434. Such must be the mode pursued when there is danger that the estate will prove insufficient to pay off all the legacies, unless security be given to refund as above provided.

SEC. 2435. If the executors fail to make payment of any kind in accordance with the order of the court, any person aggrieved by their failure, may, on ten days notice to the executors and their sureties, apply to the court for judgment against them on the bond of the executors. The court shall hear the application in a summary manner, and may render judgment against them on the bond for the amount of money directed to be paid and costs, and issue execution against them therefor. If any of the obligors are not served, the same proceedings in relation to them may be had with like effect as in an action by ordinary proceedings under similar circumstances.a a Upon a verbal order of the county judge, the executor was authorized to pay into his hands any moneys belonging to the estate or legatees thereof; the judge was held liable on his bond for the proper disbursement of the same. Doogan v. Elliott, 43 Iowa, 342.

The county judge was authorized to receive money paid by an executor upon claims filed and allowed against the estate, and was held liable on his official bond for a failure to pay the same to the proper parties. Wright & Co. v. Harris et al., 31 Id., 272.

It was held under the revision, that, while the county court might, in a summary manner enforce compliance with an order directing an administrator to make payments in accordance with the prior order of the court, such court did not have exclusive jurisdiction. Wheelhouse v. Bryant et al., 13 Id., 160. But see Section 2312 of the code.

Under section 2419 of the revision, which is embodied in section 2435 of the code, with amendments, it was held, that in a proceeding to enforce the payment of a claim by an administrator pursuant to an order of the court, it was not necessary to file a petition alleging a breach of the administrator's bond. Hart v. Jewett, 17 Id., 234.

Where a claim against the estate of a deceased person, barred by the failure to present the same within the time prescribed by law, was afterwards allowed by the administrator and ordered by the court to be paid, it was held, that the sureties on the administrator's bond...
CHAPTER 4.

OF THE DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF INTESTATE PROPERTY.

Section 2436. The personal property of the deceased, not necessary for the payment of debts, nor otherwise disposed of as hereinbefore provided, shall be distributed to the same persons and in the same proportions as though it were real estate.*

Sec. 2437. The distributive shares shall be paid over as fast as the executor can properly do so.

Sec. 2438. The property itself shall be distributed in kind whenever that can be done satisfactorily and equitably. In other cases the court may direct the property to be sold, and the proceeds to be distributed.

Sec. 2439. When the circumstances of the family require it, the court, in addition to what is hereinbefore set apart for their use, may direct a partial distribution of the money or effects on hand at any time after filing the inventory and appraisement, upon the execution of security like that required of legatees in like cases.

Sec. 2440. One-third in value of all the legal or equitable estates in real property, possessed by the husband at any time during the marriage, which have not been sold on execution or any other judicial sale, and to which the wife has made no relinquishment of her right, shall be set apart as her property in fee-simple, if she survive him. The same share of the real estate of a deceased wife shall be set apart to the surviving husband. All provisions made in this chapter in regard to the widow of a deceased husband, shall be applicable to the surviving husband of a deceased wife. The estates of dower and curtesy are hereby abolished.

* Upon the death of the husband without issue, the wife takes only one-half of his personal estate, either as dower or by descent. The same rule applies to the husband, and to real, as well as personal property. Dodds v. Dodds, 23 Iowa, 306; Burns v. Keas, 21 Id., 257; Hale v. Hunter, 24 Id., 158.

The right to a distributive share rests in the person entitled thereto, whether widow or next of kin, instanter upon the death of the intestate, and not from the time of distribution actually made; and distribution gives no new title but only ascertains the property to which the title attaches. If the death of the distributee takes place before distribution actually made, his share goes to his legal representatives or legatees and that the right of the widow to her distributive share is held by a title as high as that of the heir or next of kin, and, like his, is not personal, but transmissible. Moore v. Gordon, 24 Id., 158.

The common law rule that a debtor who is made executor of his creditor's estate is thereby released from the debt, is not in force in this state, and the debt in the executor's hands is regarded as general assets of the estate for the benefit, not only of creditors, but of legatees and all others interested. Kaster v. Pierson, 27 Id., 90.

In an action by a receiver against the executor to collect a debt due the estate, judgment should be rendered against the defendant in his individual capacity, and not as executor. Id.

* At no time during our existence as a territory, was dower changed from what it was under the organic acts of Wisconsin and Iowa, or different from what it was at common law. Pence v. Hixon, 8 Iowa, 462.

Independently of statute, a sale of real property on execution or other judicial sale under a judgment against the husband, would not bar the wife's right of dower. Id.

It is competent for the legislature, at any time before the husband's death, to enlarge, abridge or entirely take away the dower right of the wife in the husband's lands. Lucas v. Sawyer et al., 17 Id., 517.

The general rule is that dower is to be measured by the law in force at the time of the hus-
Sec. 2441. The distributive share of the widow shall be so set off as to include the ordinary dwelling house given by law to the homestead, or so much thereof as will be equal to the share allotted to her by the last section, unless she prefers a different arrangement. But no different arrangement shall be permitted where it would have the effect of prejudicing the rights of creditors. 8

Sec. 2442. The widow of a non-resident alien shall be entitled to the same rights in the property of her husband as a resident, except as against a purchaser from the decedent.

Sec. 2443. The share thus allotted to her may be set off by the mutual consent of all parties interested, when such consent can be obtained, or it may be set off by referees appointed by the court. 9

Sec. 2444. The application for such a measurement by referees, may be made at any time after twenty days and within ten years after the death of the husband, and must specify the particular tracts of 8 This section contemplates the appointment of more than one referee, and where more than one is appointed, and only one acts in the appraisal of the property, the assignment of dower may be set aside upon a slighter showing of prejudice than if the appraisal had been made by all. Jones v. Jones, 47 Iowa, 337.

9 Where the wife has joined in the execution of the mortgage; a foreclosure and sale thereunder, after the death of her husband operates to bar her right to dower in the land mortgaged. Mead v. Mead, 39 Id., 28; Mooney v. Maas, 22 Id., 528.

The surviving husband or wife cannot enjoy at the same time both dower and homestead in the real estate of the decedent, and must elect which of those rights he or she will take. Stevens et al., v. Stevens, 50 Iowa, 491.

* When the widow applies for and has her dower set off so as to include the dwelling-house of the deceased and a portion of the forty acres comprising the homestead, she cannot claim the residue under a homestead right. Meyer v. Meyer et al., 23 Iowa, 539.

Whether the heirs can compel the widow to accept dower and give up the homestead right, quere. Id.

When the widow elects to take her distributive share under the law, and when such share embraces a part or all of the homestead, she does not surrender the right to have the property other than that set apart to her first exhausted in the payment of a mortgage lien on the whole premises. The unassigned dower interest of a widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to attachment in an action at law. Rausch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

SEC. 2445. The court shall fix the time for making the appointment, and direct such notice thereof to be given to all parties interested therein as it deems proper. ¹

SEC. 2446. The referees may employ a surveyor, if necessary; and they must cause the widow’s share to be marked off by metes and bounds, and make a full report of their proceeding to the court as early as practicable.

SEC. 2447. The court may require a report by such a time as it deems reasonable; and, if the referees fail to obey this or any other order of the court, it may discharge them and appoint others in their stead, and may impose on them the payment of all costs previously made, unless they show good cause to the contrary.

SEC. 2448. The court may confirm the report of the referees, or it may set it aside and refer the matter to the same or other referees, at its discretion.

SEC. 2449. Such confirmation, after the lapse of thirty days, unless appealed from according to law, shall be binding and conclusive as to the admeasurement, and the widow may bring suit to obtain possession of the land thus set apart for her.

SEC. 2450. Nothing in the last section shall prevent any person interested from controverting the right of the widow to the share thus admeasured.

SEC. 2451. If the referees report that the property, or any part thereof, cannot be readily divided as above directed, the court may order the whole to be sold and one-third of the proceeds to be paid over to the widow; but such sale shall not take place, if any one interested to prevent it will give security to the satisfaction of the court, conditioned to pay the widow the appraised value of her share with ten per cent interest on the same, within such reasonable time as the court may fix, not exceeding one year from the date of such security.

If no such arrangement is made, the widow may keep the property by giving like security to pay off the claims of all others interested upon the like terms. With any money thus paid to her the widow may procure a homestead, which shall be exempt from liability for all debts from which the former homestead would have been exempt in her hands. And such sale shall not be ordered so long as those in interest shall express a contrary desire, and shall agree upon some mode of sharing and dividing the rents, profits, or use of such property, or shall consent that the court divide it by rent, profits or use.

It was also held in the same case that courts of equity had concurrent jurisdiction with the probate court in the assignment of dower, and that the limitation in section 2428 of the revision applied only to proceedings in the county court. Id.

A right of dower, where the dower has not been assigned, cannot be pleaded as a defense in an action to recover possession of lands, as against the holder of the fee thereto. Cavender v. Smith, 8 Id., 360.

If it appears that there was a notice, though it be defective, or the service thereof be imperfect, neither in strict compliance with the statute, and the court has determined in favor of the sufficiency of the notice and service, though such decision were erroneous, the judgment will not be held void in a collateral proceeding. Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Iowa, 217.
SEC. 2452. The widow's share cannot be affected by any will of her husband, unless she consents thereto within six months after notice to her of the provisions of the will by the other parties interested in the estate, which consent shall be entered on the proper records of the circuit court.

SEC. 2453. Subject to the rights and charges hereinbefore contemplated, the remaining estate of which the decedent died seized, shall, in the absence of other arrangements by will, descend in equal shares to his children.

SEC. 2454. If any one of his children be dead, the heirs of such child shall inherit his share in accordance with the rules herein prescribed in the same manner as though such child had outlived his parents.

SEC. 2455. If the intestate leave no issue, the one-half of his estate shall go to his parents and the other half to his wife; if he leaves no wife, the portion which would have gone to her shall go to his parents.

SEC. 2456. If one of his parents be dead, the portion which would have gone to such deceased parent shall go to the surviving parent, including the portion which would have belonged to the intestate's wife, had she been living.

SEC. 2457. If both parents be dead, the portion which would have fallen to their share by the above rules, shall be disposed of in the same manner as if they had outlived the intestate and died in the possession and ownership of the portion thus falling to their share, and so on through ascending ancestors and their issue.

Where the wife executed a written contract by which she agreed to accept a certain sum of money in lieu of dower, and the husband provided in his will for the payment of this sum, which, after his death, the wife claimed and received from the administrator, giving him a receipt therefor, it was held, that her conduct amounted to an election to take under the will and that she was estopped to claim dower in the estate.

Stoddard v. Cutcompt, 41 Iowa, 329.

It is a settled rule in the construction of wills, that where there is no express declaration in the will barring the dower of the wife, the intention that it shall be barred must be deduced by clear and manifest implication, founded on the fact that the claim of dower would be inconsistent with the will, or so repugnant to some of its dispositions as to defeat them.

The widow's election to take under the will, does not therefore defeat her right to dower unless the provisions for her in the will are either expressed to be in lieu of dower, or are thus inconsistent with her claim therefor. Id.

The acceptance by the widow of a bequest of a life estate in her husband's lands does not bar her right of dower. Id.

See also to the same effect is McGuire v. Brown, 41 Id., 650; and Clark v. Griffith, 4 Id., 405.

This section does not apply to personal property. In the matter of the estate of Jacob Davis deceased, 36 Id., 24.

Section 2435 of the revision required action on the part of the widow, in order to preserve her right unaffected by the will. She was required to object and relinquish all rights under the will.

Where a father adopted two children of his daughter, and afterward died intestate, it was held that the adopted children would inherit from him as his own children, and would also inherit the share of their deceased mother.

Wagner v. Varner, 50 Iowa, 532.

While the word "heir" is not technically limited to children, yet it was not intended by its use to embrace the widowed mother of a child that died before its father.

Id.

Where a testator, dying without issue, devised all of his real estate to his widow during her natural life, the provisions of section 2455 do not apply, so that she may claim one-half of his estate, that section having application only to cases where the owner dies intestate as well
SEC. 2458. If heirs are not thus found, the portion uninherited shall go to the wife of the intestate, or to her heirs if dead, according to like rules; and if he has had more than one wife who either died or survived in lawful wedlock, it shall be equally divided between the one who is living and the heirs of those who are dead, or between the heirs of all, if all are dead, such heirs taking by right of representation.

SEC. 2459. Property given by an intestate by way of advancement to an heir, shall be considered part of the estate so far as regards the division and distribution thereof, and shall be taken by such heir towards his share of the estate at what it would now be worth if in the condition in which it was so given to him. But, if such advancement exceeds the amount to which he would be entitled, he cannot be required to refund any portion thereof.

ESCHEAT.

SEC. 2460. If there be property remaining uninherited, it shall escheat to the state.

SEC. 2461. When the judge or clerk has reason to believe that any property within the county should, by law, escheat to the state, he must forthwith inform the auditor of state thereof, and must also appoint some suitable person administrator to take charge of the property, unless an executor or administrator has already been appointed for that purpose in some county in the state.

SEC. 2462. The administrator must give such notice of the death of the deceased, and the amount and kind of property left by him within this state, as, in the opinion of the clerk or judge appointing him, will be best calculated to notify those interested or supposed to be interested in the property.

SEC. 2463. If, within six months from the giving of such notice, no claimant thereof appears, such property may be sold and the money appropriated by the administrator for the benefit of the school fund, under the direction of the auditor of state; and such sale shall be conducted and the proceeds thereof treated like those of other school lands.

SEC. 2464. The money or any portion thereof, shall be paid over to any one who shows himself entitled thereto within ten years after the sale of the property, or the appropriation of the money as an escheat, but not afterwards.

The heirs of the father and mother of a deceased intestate who leaves neither wife nor issue, under section 2457, inherit the same as they would have done if both parents had survived the intestate, and each died in possession of one-half of the estate. Bassil v. Loffer, 38 Id., 451.

Where the parents of a testator are dead at the time of his decease, their share in his estate, where the will directed that, in the event of the marriage of the widow to whom he bequeathed the estate during widowhood, the estate should "take the course designated by existing laws," will be distributed in the same manner as if their death had occurred after they came into possession of the estate. McGuire v. Brown, 41 Id., 650.

Section 2454 does not authorize the widow of a deceased husband to inherit from their child who died before the death of the husband. While the term "heir" is not technically limited to children, yet it was not intended by its use to embrace the widowed mother of a child that died before the death of the father. McMenomy v. McMenomy, 22 Id., 148.

Under the revision, children of the half-blood inherited equally with children of the whole blood, when the inheritance was derived through the common parent, and even if the code had changed this rule (which is not decided) the party so claiming must show that the descent was cast after the code took effect. Neeley v. Wise et al., 44 Id., 544.
§ 2465. Illegitimate children inherit from the mother, and the mother from the children.

§ 2466. They shall inherit from the father whenever the paternity is proven during the life of the father, or they have been recognized by him as his children, but such recognition must have been general and notorious or else in writing.

§ 2468. But in thus inheriting from an illegitimate child, the rule above established must be inverted so that the mother and her heirs take preference of the father and his heirs, the father having the same right of inheritance in regard to an illegitimate child that the mother has in regard to one that is legitimate.

CHAPTER 5.
OF ACCOUNTING AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

§ 2469. On the expiration of six and within seven months from the first publication of notice of his appointment, and sooner if required by the court, the executor shall render his account to the court, showing the then condition of the estate, its debts and effects, and the amount of money received, and, if any received, what disposition has been made of it by him. And, from time to time as may be convenient, and as may be required by the court, he shall render further accounts until the estate is finally settled. And such final settlement shall be made within three years, unless otherwise ordered by the court. Such accounts shall embrace all matters directed by the court and pertinent to the subject.

§ 2470. The executor may be examined under oath by the court, upon any matters relating to his accounts when the vouchers and proofs in relation thereto are not sufficiently full and satisfactory.

§ 2471. He must account for all the property inventoried at the price at which it was appraised, as well as for all other property which has come into his hands belonging to the estate.

An illegitimate child inherits from the mother, and the fact that she is dead before the descent is cast will not prevent the child from inheriting her share of the estate.

The recognition in writing of an illegitimate child by the father, is not required to be in the shape of a formal avowal, executed for the purpose of making known and perpetuating the fact, but may be sufficiently established from letters and correspondence; and when the recognition is thus established, the illegitimate will inherit from his father, the same as a legitimate.

In an action for a breach of an administrator's bond for not accounting as required by the statute, it is not a complete defense, that the administrator made a report and statement of account to the court since the commencement of the action. Nor does such an accounting constitute a defense to an action for a breach of the bond by converting the assets of the estate to his own use.

In the absence of fraud, mistake, or other grounds of equitable relief, a settlement made by the probate court with an administrator cannot be set aside, though made in the absence of those interested, after the expiration of three months.

[So held, under the revision.]
Sec. 2472. The appraisement is only presumptive evidence of the value of an article, and shall be so regarded, either for or against the executor.

Sec. 2473. He shall derive no profit from the sale of property for a higher price than the appraisement, nor is he chargeable with any loss occurring without any fault of his own.

Sec. 2474. Mistakes in settlement may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge of the executor, and even after that time on showing such grounds for relief in equity as will justify the interference of the court.⁴

Sec. 2475. Any person interested in the estate may attend upon the settlement of accounts by the executor and contest the same. Accounts settled in the absence of any person adversely interested and without notice to him, may be opened within three months on his application.⁷

Sec. 2476. Upon final settlement by the executor, an order shall be entered discharging him from farther duties and responsibilities.

Sec. 2477. If judgment be rendered against an executor for costs in any suit prosecuted or defended by him in that capacity, execution shall be awarded against him as for his own debt, if it appear to the court that such suit was prosecuted or defended without reasonable cause. In other cases the execution shall be awarded against him in his representative capacity only.

Sec. 2478. One of several executors may receive and receipt for money. Such receipt shall be given by him in his own name only, and he must individually account for all the money thus received and receipted for by himself; and this shall not charge his co-executor, except so far as it can be shown to have come into his hands.

Sec. 2479. Whenever the court shall make an order affecting an executor, and such order cannot be personally served upon him, service of such order may be made by publication of a notice, stating the substance thereof, in some weekly newspaper published in the county where such order was made, for four weeks in succession.

Sec. 2480. When there is no newspaper published in such county, then said notice may be published in the newspaper published nearest to the county seat of the county in which said order is made, which publication may be proved as required in like cases in the court.

Sec. 2481. Service made as above shall be as effectual as if personally served, and suits and proceedings may be prosecuted or commenced, had and maintained, in all respects as if such notice or notices, order or orders, had been personally served.

Sec. 2482. Any executor failing to account, upon being required to do so by the court, or as he is required to do by law, shall, for every such failure; forfeit one hundred dollars, to be recovered in a civil action on his bond for the benefit of the estate, by any one interested therein.

SEC. 2483. An executor has no authority to act in the matter wherein his principal was merely executor or trustee.

SEC. 2484. Any person who, without being regularly appointed an executor, intermeddles with the property of a deceased person, is responsible to the regular executor when appointed, for the value of all property taken or received by him, and for all damages caused by his acts to the estate of the deceased, but his liability extends no farther.¹

SEC. 2485. In an action against the heirs and devisees, where the judgment is to be against them in proportion to the respective amounts received by them from the estate, costs awarded against them shall be in like proportion.

SEC. 2486. In such cases, any one may tender the amount due from him to the plaintiff, which shall have the same effect, as far as he is concerned, as though he was the sole defendant.

SEC. 2487. When a person under such obligation to convey real estate as might have been enforced against him if living, dies before making such conveyance, the court may enforce a specific performance of such contract by the executor, and require him to execute the conveyance accordingly.¹

SEC. 2488. It is not necessary to make any other than the executor party defendant to such proceedings in the first instance; but the court, in its discretion, may direct other persons interested to be made parties, and may cause them to be notified thereof in such manner as the court may deem expedient. Heirs and devisees may, on their own motion, at any time be made defendants.

SEC. 2489. In an action against several executors they are considered one person, and judgment may be taken and execution issued against all as such, although only part were duly served with notice.

RECORDS OF CLERK.

SEC. 2490. The clerk shall keep a record, additional to the other records required by law, showing, as follows:

1. The name of every deceased person whose estate is administered, and who dies seized of any real estate situate within the county, and the date of his death;
2. The names of all the heirs at law, and widow of such deceased person, and the ages and places of residence of such heirs so far as the same can be ascertained;
3. A note of every sale of real estate made under the order of the court, with a reference to the volume and page of the court record, where a complete record thereof may be found.

¹ An administrator de son tort is liable in an action by a creditor of the decedent to the extent of the value of the property of the deceased which has come into his hands. Elder v. Littler, 15 Iowa, 65.

Where the widow and heirs have appropriated all the assets of the estate prior to the appointment of an administrator, they are liable as administrators de son tort to the extent of the property appropriated. Madison v. Shockley, 41 Id., 451.

It is no defense in an action against them by a creditor, that an administrator has been appointed. Id.

SEC. 2491. In order to ascertain the facts required to be stated in such record, the clerk may require each executor or administrator to furnish him with a list of the names, ages, and place of residence of the heirs, which list shall be sworn to by the executor; but if such executor shall certify under oath that there are no heirs, or that, after using due diligence, he has been unable to ascertain their names, ages, or residence, the clerk shall make an entry in the record accordingly. If deemed necessary, the clerk may examine the county records to ascertain whether any deceased person died seized of any real estate, and he shall be allowed such fee therefor as may be fixed by the court.

SEC. 2492. In every case where a sale of real estate is made under the order of the court, either by an executor, administrator, or guardian, the clerk shall enter a complete record thereof in the court record, including complete records of all papers filed and all orders made, and of the deed and the approval thereof.

SEC. 2493. He shall also keep a book known as "records of bonds," in which he shall record all bonds given by executors, administrators, and guardians.

COMPENSATION OF EXECUTORS.

SEC. 2494. Executors shall be allowed the following commission upon the personal estate sold or distributed by them, and for the proceeds of real estate sold for the payment of debts, which shall be received in full compensation for all their ordinary services:

For the first one thousand dollars the rate of five per cent;
For the overplus between one and five thousand dollars, at the rate of two and a-half per cent;
For the amount over five thousand dollars, at the rate of one per cent.

SEC. 2495. Such farther allowances as are just and reasonable may be made by the court for actual, necessary, and extraordinary expenses or services.

REMOVAL OF EXECUTORS.

SEC. 2496. After letters testamentary, or of administration with the will annexed, or of administration, shall have been granted to any person, he may be removed whenever the interests of the estate require it, for any of the following causes:

1. When by reason of age, continued sickness, imbecility of mind, change of residence, or any other cause, he becomes incapable of discharging his trust in such manner as the interest and proper management of the estate may require;
2. When any such executor or administrator shall fail or refuse to return inventories or accounts of sales of the estate, or to make reports of the condition of the estate, or fail or refuse to comply with any order of the court; or fail to seasonably apply to the court for authority to sell personal or real estate for the payment of debts or claims against the estate, when it shall be necessary for him so to do; or fail or refuse to discharge any of the duties prescribed for him by law, or shall be guilty of any waste or mal-administration of the estate;

The probate court may, under the statute, for extraordinary services, allow an administrator a compensation additional to that provided for ordinary services. And where it appears that more than ordinary compensation has been allowed, it will be presumed that it was for extraordinary services, in the absence of a showing to the contrary. Patterson v. Bell, 25 Id., 149.
3. Where it shall be shown to the court by his sureties that such executor or administrator has become, or is likely to become insolvent, in consequence of which such sureties have or will suffer loss.

Section 2497. Petition for the removal of executors or administrators, or for the purpose of requiring additional sureties, shall be filed in the court from which letters were issued by any person interested in the estate.

Section 2498. Such petition must be verified by oath, and shall specify the grounds of complaint.

Section 2499. Upon the filing of such petition, a citation shall issue to the person complained of, requiring him to appear and answer the complaint.

Section 2500. If the executor or administrator is not a resident of the county where such complaint is made, notice thereof shall be served upon him in such manner as the court or clerk may direct.

Section 2501. Upon the removal of any executor or administrator, he shall be required by order of the court to deliver to the person who may be entitled thereto, all the property in his hands or under his control belonging to the estate.

Section 2502. If any executor fail or refuse to comply with any proper order of the court, he may be committed to the jail of the county until compliance is yielded.

Section 2503. Whenever the letters of any executor or administrator are revoked or superseded, all his authority shall cease, and all his acts thereafter as such shall be absolutely void.

PART THIRD.

CODE OF CIVIL PRACTICE.

TITLE XVII.

OF PROCEDURE IN COURTS OF ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

CHAPTER 1.

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

SECTION 2504. Remedies in civil cases in the courts of this state are divided into actions and special proceedings.

Sec. 2505. A civil action is a proceeding in a court of justice in which one party, known as the plaintiff, demands against another party, known as the defendant, the enforcement or protection of a private right, or the prevention or redress of a private wrong. It may also be brought for a recovery of penalty or forfeiture.\(^a\)

Sec. 2506. Every other remedy in a civil case is a special proceeding.\(^b\)

\(^a\) The term "Civil Action" relates to civil proceedings as distinguished from criminal, and includes proceedings at law and in equity. Kramer v. Redman, 9 Iowa, 114.

"If a right is sought to be enforced or protected, or a wrong redressed or prevented, but one 'form' is given, and that is styled a 'civil action.'" Per Wm. H., Ch. J., in Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., on p. 475.

Under the Revision, it was held, that certiorari was a "special proceeding." Thompson v. Reed, 29 Id., 117.

\(^b\) The probate of a will is a special proceeding, triable in the circuit court as an ordinary proceeding, and it follows the rule governing ordinary proceedings as to the manner of appeal to the Supreme Court. Sisters of Visitation v. Glass, 45 Id., 154.

A proceeding in mandamus is held to be "a civil action." Brown v. Crego, 29 Id., 321.

A proceeding to disbar an attorney on charges preferred by a private prosecutor is a special proceeding. State v. Clark, 49 Iowa, 155.
Sec. 2507. All forms of action are abolished in this state; but the proceeding in a civil action may be of two kinds, ordinary or equitable.

Sec. 2508. The plaintiff may prosecute his action by equitable proceedings in all cases where courts of equity, before the adoption of this code, had jurisdiction; and must so proceed in all cases where jurisdiction was exclusive.

Sec. 2509. The action on a note, together with a mortgage or deed of trust, for the foreclosure of the same, shall be by equitable proceedings. An action on the bond or note alone, without regard therein to the mortgage or deed of trust, shall be by ordinary proceedings.

Sec. 2510. The action for mechanics' lien shall be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, and therewith shall no other cause of action be joined.

Sec. 2511. An action for a divorce shall be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, and no cause of action, save for alimony, shall be joined therewith.

Sec. 2512. Actions by sureties, and by occupying claimants, and on a lost note or bond, may be by ordinary proceedings.

Sec. 2513. In all other cases, except in this code otherwise provided, the plaintiff must prosecute his action by ordinary proceedings.

"All prior forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the rules of the Code, and not those laid down by Stephens and Chitty, are the tests of the sufficiency of all pleadings." Per DILLON, J., in Taylor v. Adair and Guff, 22 Iowa, 277, 281; Sargent v. Pittman Bros. Co., 16 Id., 469, 473.

"Under the Code of 1873 we have but two kinds of actions, viz: ordinary and equitable. And equitable actions are not divided into two classes and triable by two methods, as under the Revision." Per MILLER, Jr., in Wadsworth v. Wadsworth, 40 Id., on p. 449.

While the Code abolishes forms of actions, yet it contemplates that the facts constituting a cause of action or defense in its substance shall be stated with briefness, clearness, distinctness, good logic and order. Bryant v. Noster, 1 Id., 388.

There is no "general issue" under the Code. Duson v. Room 9 Id., 51.

Under our statutes all forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the plaintiff recovers, if at all, on the facts stated and proved. Per MILLER, J., in McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 163.

It was held under this and other sections of the Code, that while an action to enforce a mechanic's lien should be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, yet if no motion nor order be made that the testimony be reduced to writing, the case was not triable de novo in the Supreme Court. Kennedy v. Gaul, 44 Iowa, 547. This, however, was changed by chapter 140 of the laws of 1878, by a repeal and enactment of a substitute for section 2743, of the Code. See, also, Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Iowa, 192; Price & Hornby v. Seydell et al., 46 Id., 696.

The manner of enforcing the lien of a mechanic was, under the Revision, by an ordinary action at law. Brodt v. Rohkar, 48 Id., 39, 39.

Where several parties had commenced actions against a common defendant to enforce mechanics' liens, it was held, that it was competent for plaintiff and defendant, by agreement, to have united therewith an ordinary action at law, prosecuted by ordinary proceedings. Hines v. The White Breast Coal & M. Co., 48 Id., 293.

Under the Revision an action for divorce was tried as an ordinary proceeding, and upon appeal to the Supreme Court, the verdict of the jury was entitled to the same effect as in a purely law action. Cole v. Cole, 23 Iowa, 433.

An order relating to alimony, made on the same day as the rendition of the decree for divorce, and following immediately after it, will be regarded as a part of the same judgment that orders the decree.

In Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Iowa, 192, it was held that the action for divorce is an equitable action, and is not triable on appeal to the Supreme Court upon errors of law alone, but must be tried de novo, regardless of the provisions of section 2742 of the Code, before that section was amended by chapter 145, laws of 1878.

Where an action has been commenced in equity which should have been at law, if the defendant fail to move, at the proper time, to have the cause transferred to the law docket, he will be held to have waived his right to a jury trial. Richmond v. The Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. et al., 35 Iowa, 422; MILLER, J., dissenting.

A person having the equitable title to real property cannot recover the same in an action at law on the ground that the legal title is based upon fraud. The legal title must first be attacked and declared void on this ground by an action in equity. Walther v. Kynett, 32 Id., 524.

The objection that the action should have been at law instead of in equity cannot be made for the first time in the appellate court. Tuggle v. Tuggle et al., 38 Iowa, 349; Van Orman v. Merritt, 27 Id., 476; see, also, Drummond v. Keen 47 Id., on p. 437.
SEC. 2514. An error of the plaintiff as to the kind of proceedings adopted shall not cause the abatement or dismissal of the action, but merely a change into the proper proceedings, and a transfer of the action to the proper docket.¹

SEC. 2515. Such error may be corrected by the plaintiff without motion at any time before the defendant has answered, or afterwards, on motion in court.¹

SEC. 2516. The defendant may have the correction made by motion at or before the filing of his answer, where it appears by the provisions of this code the wrong proceedings have been adopted.¹

SEC. 2517. Where the action has been properly commenced by ordinary proceedings, either party shall have the right, by motion, to have any issue heretofore exclusively cognizable in equity tried in the manner hereinafter prescribed in cases of equitable proceedings; and if all the issues were such as were heretofore cognizable in equity, though none were exclusively so, the defendant shall be entitled to have them all tried as in cases of equitable proceedings.¹

SEC. 2518. If there be more than one party plaintiff or defendant who fail to unite on the kind of proceeding to be adopted, the court, on its own motion, may direct such proceedings to be changed to the same extent as if the parties had united in asking that the same be done.

When an action has been commenced in the wrong forum the appropriate remedy is a motion to have the action changed into the proper proceedings. See the cases cited in note k, to section 2514. And this objection will be waived by going to trial without making it. Hatch v. Judah, 29 Iowa, 53; Taylor v. Adair, 22 Id., 279; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 473; Savery v. Browning, 15 Id., 251; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53.

Objection cannot first be made in the appellate court that the remedy sought in equity should have been at law. Tugel v. Tugel et al., 38 Iowa, 349; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 477.

A motion to transfer a cause from the chancery to the law docket, on the ground that it is not cognizable in the former forum, should be made at or before the filing of the answer to the original motion, if it is then apparent that it is proper to be made. Moore v. The District Tp. of Union, 23 Id., 425.

The bringing an action in equity when it should have been at law, or vice versa, is not ground of demurrer. The appropriate remedy is a motion to transfer the cause to the proper docket. Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 417.

Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; Brown v. Mollory, 26 Id., 469; Gibbs v. McFadden, 39 Id., 371. A cause cannot be transferred, under the statute, from the law to the equity docket before issue is joined and it is shown on the face of the pleadings that the defense is equitable in its character. McHenry v. Sypher, 12 Id., 585.

When the defendant has pleaded equitable matter in defense, he is entitled to have the issues thus presented tried in the manner hereinafter prescribed in cases of equitable proceedings; and if all the issues were such as were heretofore cognizable in equity, though none were exclusively so, the defendant shall be entitled to have them all tried as in cases of equitable proceedings. The statute authorizes the pleading of equitable defenses in actions at law; and in an action on a judgment the defendant may plead facts which would, under the former practice, have constituted sufficient grounds for a bill in equity directly assailing the judgment. Rogers v. Gates, 21 Iowa, 58; Rozier v. Van Dam, 16 Id., 175; Van Orman v. Spofford, Clark & Co., 16 Id., 186; Kramer v. Conger, 16 Id., 434; Warren v. Crew, 22 Id., 315; Shawhan v. Long, 26 Id., 483; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476; Hackett v. High, 28 Id., 539; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53.

An answer which sets up a tax title, and asks to have the same quieted in the defendant, does not present an issue or defense which he is entitled to have tried as an equitable issue. Watson v. Gray, 29 Id., 440.

Not only an equitable defense is allowed in a law action, but an equitable counter-claim may be pleaded as well as a legal one, whether the action is at law or in equity. Rozier v. Van Dam, 16 Id., 175.
Sec. 2519. An error as to the kind of proceedings adopted in the action is waived by a failure to move for its correction at the time and in the manner prescribed in this chapter; and all errors in the decisions of the court are waived unless excepted to at the time, except final judgments and interlocutory or final decrees entered of record.1

Sec. 2520. The provisions of this code, concerning the prosecution of a civil action, apply to both kinds of proceeding, whether ordinary or equitable unless the contrary appears, and shall be followed in special proceedings, not otherwise regulated, so far as applicable.2

Sec. 2521. No action shall be brought upon any judgment, against a defendant therein, rendered in any court of record of this state within fifteen years after the rendition thereof without leave of the court for good cause shown, and on notice to the adverse party, nor on a judgment of a justice of the peace of this state within eight years after the same is rendered, except in cases where the docket of the justice, or record of such judgment, is, or shall be, lost or destroyed.3

Sec. 2522. Judgment obtained in an action by ordinary proceedings, shall not be annulled or modified by any order in an action by equitable proceedings, except for a defense which has arisen or been discovered since the judgment was rendered. But such judgment does not prevent the recovery of any claim, though such claim might have been used by way of counter claim in the action on which the judgment was recovered.4

Sec. 2523. No action to obtain a discovery shall be brought, except that where any person or corporation is liable, either jointly or severally with others by the same contract, an action may be brought against any parties who are liable, to obtain discovery of the names and residences of the others who are liable. In such action, the plaintiff shall state in his petition, in effect, that he has used due diligence, without success, to obtain the information asked to be discovered, and that he does not believe the parties to the contract who are known to him have property sufficient to satisfy his claim. The petition shall

1 When the wrong proceedings have been adopted in the commencement of an action, the cause may be placed on the proper docket by motion. Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Iowa, 471.

The objection will be waived unless such motion be made at the proper time. Knott v. Tincher, 39 Id., 623.

Where a case properly cognizable at law is placed on the equity calender, and, without objection, tried as an equitable action, it will, on appeal, be regarded as an equitable action and tried de novo. Corbin v. Woodbine, 33 Id., 297.

2 A proceeding ad quad damnum, except in so far as otherwise directed by statute, is to be conducted as an ordinary civil action, and be governed by like rules so far as the same are applicable. Forney v. Thayer v. Ralls & Wil- lits, 30 Iowa, 559.

It was accordingly held, that a sale of a mill during the pendency of a proceeding to assess the damages caused to the property of adjacent land-owners by reason of heightening the mill-dam, did not stop the proceeding, and that the purchaser might be substituted for the original owner. Id.

3 This section does not limit the remedy of a judgment creditor, when the record of the judgment has been lost or destroyed, to the recovery of a new judgment. But he may apply to the court, and it has power to supply a new record in such case. This power is inherent in courts of record, independent of legislation. Gammon v. Deering v. Randles, 46 Iowa, 455.

In an action upon a judgment of a court of record of this State, brought within fifteen years from the date of the judgment, it must be alleged in the petition that leave of the court to bring the action has been obtained; otherwise the petition may be assailed by demurrer. Watts v. Everett, 47 Id., 209.

4 Where the maker of a promissory note held a receipt, acknowledging payment thereof, from the indorser, who sued upon the note, representing to the maker, however, that he did not intend to enforce its collection against him but against the payee and indorser, and judgment was accordingly rendered by default, it was held that an injunction should be granted, perpetually restraining the enforcement of the judgment against the maker of the note. Baker v. Reed, 44 Iowa, 179.
be verified, and the cost of such action shall be paid by the plaintiff, unless the discovery be resisted.

Sec. 2524. Successive actions may be maintained upon the same contract or transaction, whenever, after the former action, a new cause of action has arisen therefrom.\(^2\)

Sec. 2525. All causes of actions shall survive, and may be brought, notwithstanding the death of the person entitled or liable to the same.\(^3\)

Sec. 2526. The right of civil remedy is not merged in a public offense, but may, in all cases, be enforced independently of, and in addition to, the punishment of the latter. When a wrongful act produces death, the damages shall be disposed of as personal property belonging to the estate of the deceased, except that if the deceased leaves a husband, wife, child, or parent, it shall not be liable for the payment of debts.\(^4\)

Sec. 2527. The actions contemplated in the two preceding sections may be brought, or the court, on motion, may allow the action to be continued by or against the legal representatives or successors in interest of the deceased. Such action shall be deemed a continuing one, and to have accrued to such representative or successor at the same time it did to the deceased if he had survived. If such is continued against the legal representative of the defendant, a notice shall be served on him as provided for service of original notices.\(^5\)

Sec. 2528. The rule of the common law that statutes in derogation thereof are to be strictly construed has no application to this code. Its provisions, and all proceedings under it, shall be liberally construed with a view to promote its objects and assist the parties in obtaining justice.\(^6\)

\(^2\)A judgment in an action for damages for a breach of contract which is not total, will not constitute a bar to an action for future breaches of the same contract. Richmond v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 33 Iowa, 422, 496.

\(^3\)The common law rule that a personal action dies with the person is not in force in this state; and under our statute no cause of action either ex delicto or ex contractu abates by the death of either party. Shafer v. Grimes, 23 Iowa, 559.

An action for damages caused to the estate of an infant by wrongful acts resulting in his death is limited to his probable earnings after he shall have attained his majority, and must be brought by the administrator; for his personal services and earnings during his minority the father, or where abandonment is shown, the mother may maintain the action. Lawrence v. Birney, 40 Id., 377; Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 458.

A claim based upon a personal tort, which at common law died with the party, may be assigned or transferred like any other cause of action. Gray v. McCalister, 50 Id., 497.

\(^4\)Where an employee of a railroad is injured in consequence of the negligence of a co-employee, the company will be regarded as the perpetrator within the meaning of the statute. Philo v. The Ill. Gen. R. Co., 33 Iowa, 47.

The right of action in such case accrues to the representatives of the deceased. Id. See also Lawrence v. Birney, 40 Id., 377.

\(^5\)See Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Iowa, 458, cited in note to section 2525, ante.

This section requires the courts to construe the provisions of the code, and all proceedings under it, literally, and with a view to promote its object, and assist parties in obtaining justice. Per Wainwright, Ch. J., in Hudson v. Blanfus, 22 Iowa, on p. 328; Sack v. Temple, 33 Id., 189.

This section contains the fundamental rule of construction to be applied to the code. Per Miller, Ch. J., in Bacon v. Black, 38 Id., on p. 184; Wright v. Millard, 3 G. Greene, 86; see also Ryerson v. Hendrie, 22 Id., 430.
CHAPTER 2.

OF LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

Sec. 2529. The following actions may be brought within the times herein limited respectively after their causes accrue and not afterwards, except when otherwise specially declared.

1. Actions founded on injuries to the person or reputation, whether based on contract or tort, or for a statute penalty, within two years;

2. Actions to enforce a mechanics' lien, within two years from the time of filing the statement in the clerk's office;

3. Those against a sheriff or other public officer, growing out of a liability incurred by the doing of an act in an official capacity or by the omission of an official duty; including the non-payment of money collected on execution, within three years;

It was held under the Code of 1851, that where the jurisdiction was concurrent, courts of equity, equally with courts of law, are bound by the statutes of limitations; and that they act in obedience to the statute, rather than by way of analogy to the law. Fhires v. Walters, 6 Iowa, 106.

And under the Revision it was held that the statute directly applies to a suit in equity to for­close a mortgage. Newman v. DeLorimer, 19 Id., 244.

Under the Revision, the rule that the statute of limitations is applied only by analogy to suits in equity, no longer prevails in this State. The statute ex vigore suo, operates in both courts alike and not in equity by the mere discretion of the chancellor. Relf v. Eberly, 23 Id., 467.

Statutes of limitation pertain to the remedy and not to the essence of the contract, and an act extending the time for bringing an action is valid as to existing contracts. Edwards v. McCaddon, 20 Id., 521.

The statute of limitations is not available to a party unless taken advantage of by demurrer, or pleaded as a defense in the answer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 27.

An action by a husband, against a stage company, to recover damages for the loss of his wife and child who had been killed while traveling on the defendant's stage, is an action for a personal injury, falling within the first sub-division of section 2529, and will be barred after two years from the time the cause of action happened. Sherman v. Western Stage Company, 22 Iowa, 556. But where the action has accrued to the estate of a decedent instead of to the deceased while living, the statute will not commence to run until the appointment of the administrator. Where the statute has commenced to run, it will not be interrupted by the death of the party having the right of action, but continues. Same case in 24 Iowa, 515.

An action for damages against the seller of intoxicating liquors, for causing the intoxication of the husband, is an action for a personal injury and must be brought within two years from the date of the sale. Emmert v. Grill, 39 Id., 690.

The statute of limitations as to actions to recover damages for personal injuries, commences to run from the time the injury is committed, although the full extent, and nature thereof may not be developed until later. Gustin v. Jefferson County, 15 Id., 158.

In an action under section 1299 of the Code, to recover double damages for stock killed or injured on a railroad, the statute of limitations commences to run from the time of the injury rather than from the service of the notice. Koons v. The C. S. N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 433.

The failure of a mechanic to file his statement and claim for a lien under section 2137 (Sec. 6, Ch. 100, Laws of 1876) of the Code, will not extend the time within which the action to enforce the lien must be commenced. Gilcrist v. Gottschalk et al., 39 Iowa, 311.

In an action of mandamus against the clerk of the board of supervisors to compel him to affix the county seal to a county warrant, the statute would begin to run from the date of issuing the warrant, and not from the time of demand of performance made on such officer and refusal or omission by him, and the proceeding would be barred in three years. Frecott v. Gonser, 34 Iowa, 175.

An action against a county treasurer on his official bond is barred in three years after the cause of action arises. The State v. Henderson, 40 Iowa, 242; Keokuk County v. Howard, 41 Id., 11.

That such action is brought by and in the name of the State will not avoid the operation of the statute. The State v. Henderson, supra.

So also an action against the treasurer personally, instituted, not on his official bond, but upon his implied undertaking to pay over moneys collected by him, as required by law, will be barred in three years. Keokuk County v. Howard, supra.
4. Those founded on unwritten contracts, those brought for injuries to property, or for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of chancery, and all other actions not otherwise provided for in this respect, within five years:

5. Those founded on written contracts, on judgments of any courts, except those courts provided for in the next section, and those brought for the recovery of real property, within ten years.

* When the legal title to real property has been obtained by fraud, an action to recover by the equitable owner may be commenced at any time within five years after the discovery of the fraud. McLenan v. Sullivan, 13 Iowa, 521.

An action for relief on the ground of fraud must, under the 4th sub-section of section 2529 of the Code, be brought within five years from the discovery of the fraud, or it will be barred by the statute of limitations. Hansenbeck v. Riley et al., 35 Id., 103; Shank v. Teeple, 33 Id., 159; Ryan v. Doyle, 31 Id., 53; Cowan v. Toole, Id., 513.

An action against a railroad company for damages for a breach of a contract to transport freight, will be barred in five years from the time the cause of action accrues. Cobb, Blasdel & Co. v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 38 Id., 601.

The statute of limitations will run in favor of a trustee in possession of real property under a constructive or resulting trust, from the time when he denies the trust and claims the trust property as his own. Gebhard v. Sattler, 40 Id., 152; Peters v. Jones, 35 Id., 512.

A cause of action for the recovery from the county of taxes illegally levied and paid, accrues at the very moment of payment, and the action is barred after the lapse of five years from that time. Callanan v. The County of Madison, 45 Id., 561.

Actions for the recovery of money which had been paid for intoxicating liquors, instituted under section 1550 of the Code, will not be barred until after five years from the time the principal was paid. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 41 Id., 677.

While the statute will not run against the State or sovereignty, it will run against a municipal corporation. The City of Pella v. Scholle, 24 Id., 284.

Where the original proprietor of a town held open and visible possession of a square therein for more than ten years, claiming that he had never relinquished, but still retained title thereto, the right of the corporation to recover possession thereof was held to be barred. Id.

The operation of the statute cannot be suspended in such case, by a forcible entry, where the entry is not followed by continuous possession. Id.

Where a party against whom a cause of action exists, by fraud or actual fraudulent concealment prevents the party in whose favor it exists from obtaining knowledge of it, the statute will only commence to run from the time the right of action is discovered, or, by the exercise of proper diligence might have been discovered. Findley v. Stewart, 46 Id., 655. The District v. of Boomer, v. French, 40 Id., 601 —, and cases cited.

Where the relation of principal and surety does not appear on the face of a note made by several persons, and must be established by parol evidence, and the instrument has been merged in a judgment, and satisfied of record, the right of action at law of the surety against the principal will be barred after the lapse of five years from the time when the action accrued. Lamb v. Withrow, 31 Id., 164. The same rule will apply where the surety has paid the note before judgment thereon, in an action to recover the same, or to be subrogated to the rights of the payee. Id.

† The statute of limitations requiring actions founded upon written contracts, to be commenced within ten years, applies to suits for the foreclosure of mortgages as well as to actions upon notes. Hendershot v. Ping, 24 Iowa, 134; Neeman v. De Lorimer, 19 Id., 244.

An action in equity to compel the conveyance of land, purchased for and with the means of the plaintiff, is an action for the recovery of real property, and not "for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of equity," as prescribed in subdivision three of section 2529, and is not barred until after the expiration of ten years. Stanley, v. Morse, 26 Id., 454.

A mere naked possession without claim or color of title, will not enable a defendant in an action of right to avail himself of the statute of limitations. To constitute an adverse possession so that the statute will run, there must be either "color of title," or "claim of title." It need not be under "color of title" if it is held under claim of title. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Id., 493; Clagett v. Conlee, and Jones v. Hockman, 12 Id., 457; Jones v. Hoekman, 102; Wright v. Keithler, 1 Id., 92.

In case of a breach of a written contract for the sale of real estate, where the vendor refuses to convey, after tender of the balance of the purchase money and demand of a deed by the vendor, the statute begins to run against an action by the vendee to recover the purchase money paid, from the date of demand and refusal, and not from the time of payment. Such an action is not for money had and received, but for a breach of the written contract. Deming v. Haney, 23 Id., 77.

A descent cast upon heirs by the ancestor, dying in possession, though he was but a mere trespasser, gives color of title to the heirs. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Id., 480.

To constitute color of title it is not necessary
Twenty years.

6. Those founded on a judgment of a court of record, whether of this or any other of the United States, or of the federal courts of the United States, within twenty years.*

Sec. 2530. In actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake, and in actions for trespass to property, the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the fraud, mistake or trespass complained of shall have been discovered by the party aggrieved.

That the title under which he claims should be a valid one, and it makes no difference whether its want of validity results from original and inherent defects, or from subsequent causes, or whether they be attributable to individual or public causes. *

All actions for the recovery of real property, and all personal actions on written contract commenced since July 1, 1856, must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action accrued. Johnson v. Hopkins, 19 Id., 49.

Where the grantee of real estate assumes the payment of a judgment against the grantor as part of the consideration, but with no definite time of payment being fixed, and the grantor afterward pays off the judgment himself, on the failure of the grantee to do so, the statute begins to run against an action by the grantor from the date of payment by him, and not from the date of the undertaking by the grantee. In equity the parties sustain the relation of principal and surety. Foster v. Marsili, 23 Id., 300.

An action to recover dower, that is to have it assigned or admeasured, is within the general statute of limitations, and must be brought within ten years from the time when the cause of action accrued. Rice v. Nelson, 21 Id., 148.

The right to maintain an action to foreclose a title bond, treating it as a mortgage, is barred in ten years from the time the cause of action accrued. Day v. Baldwin, 34 Id., 390.

The right of a junior mortgagee to redeem the mortgage, if barred in ten years, is not barred when the right to redeem corresponds with the right to foreclose, being based upon the same instrument, and barred in the same time. The doctrine of adverse possession has no influence upon this right. Gowen v. Winchester, 33 Id., 363. See also, Day v. Baldwin, 34 Id., 389; Palmer v. Butler, 29 Id., 578, 583; Clinton County v. Cox, 37 Id., 570; Jameson v. Perry, 38 Id., 14, 15; Crawford v. Taylor et al., 42 Id., 260.

In an action to cancel a deed intended to operate as a mortgage, the mortgagee having been in possession, the statute of limitations was pleaded: it was held, 1. That a mortgagee in possession, after having received payment of the debt, will not be protected by the statute, unless he shows that he has held adversely to the mortgagee for the period which bars recovery of the land. 2. The relation of mortgagee and mortgagor is analogous to that of trustee and cestui que trust, and the possession of the mortgaged premises by either is not, as to the other, adverse. Green v. Turner, 38 Id., 112; Crawford v. Taylor et al., 42 Id., 260.

The revival of a judgment by scire facias was simply a proceeding to enforce the judgment, and did not have the effect of a new judgment, with respect to the operation of the statute of limitations. The statute commences to run at the date of the original judgment. Meek v. Meek, 46 Iowa, 294.

The statute of limitations pertains to the remedy, and not to the validity or right of the cause of action, and the states are not inhibited by article 4, section 1, of the United States constitution, from enacting such statutes barring actions upon judgments rendered in other states. *

This provision applies to judgments rendered in other states as well as those rendered in this state. *

Where a cause of action based upon fraud had not accrued more than five years before the enactment of this provision in chapter 167 of the Acts of the Thirteenth General Assembly, it was held that the right of action would continue until barred by this provision. Higgins v. Medenhall, 42 Iowa, 675.

The statute does not begin to run in actions for relief on the ground of fraud until the discovery of the fraud by the aggrieved party. Ryan v. Doyle et al., 31 Id., 53; McLenan v. Sullivan, 13 Id., 521; Hanlenbeck v. Riley, 35 Id., 103; Shank v. Teplee, 33 Id., 129; Cowan v. Toolie, 34 Id., 513. But if relief can be had at law or in equity, the action must be brought within five years after the perpetration of the fraud. McClamna v. Hunt, 47 Id., 668.

Where a judgment is sought to be enforced against land which it is alleged the debtor fraudulently conveyed to his wife before the rendition of the judgment, the burden of proof is on the defendant pleading the statute of limitations to prove not only that five years have elapsed since the fraud, but since it was discovered or became known to the plaintiff. Both of these facts are essential to constitute the bar. Baldwin v. Tuttle, 23 Id., 66.

Section 2401 of the Code, limiting actions for the recovery of real property sold by an administrator to five years from the date of the sale, does not apply to a case where the proceedings are attacked on the ground of fraud; and in such case the statute will, under sections 2529 and 2530 of the Code, commence to run only from the time of the discovery of the fraud. Cowan v. Toolie, 31 Id., 513.

SEC. 2531. When there is a continuous open current account, the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued on the date of the last item therein as proved on the trial.1

SEC. 2532. The delivery of the original notice to the sheriff of the proper county with intent that it be served immediately, which intent shall be presumed unless the contrary appears, or the actual service of that notice by another person, is a commencement of the action.1

SEC. 2533. The time during which a defendant is a non-resident of the state shall not be included in computing any of the periods of limitation above described.2

SEC. 2534. When a cause of action has been fully barred by the laws of any country where the defendant has previously resided, such bar shall be the same defense here as though it had arisen under the provisions of this chapter; but this section shall not apply to causes of action arising within this state.1

1 A continuous, accruing indebtedness for board, rent and the like, is a continuous, open, current account within the meaning of this section, and the portion of the account beyond five years is not barred, as the statute will, in such case commence to run only from the date of the last item in the account as proved on the trial. Moses v. Crooks, 32 Iowa, 172. See also Wending v. Beser, 31 Id., 243; Tubbs v. The City of Maquoketa, 32 Id., 561.

The statute commences to run under this section from the date of the last item in the account, whether such item be on the debit or credit side thereof. Thorn & Stein v. Moore, 21 Id., 285.

To constitute a continuous, open, current account upon which the statute of limitations will begin to run only from the date of the last item, the account must not be broken or interrupted, but constitute a running, connected series of transactions. Tucker v. Quimby, 37 Id., 17.

An account which was broken by a hiatus of two years, and then resumed by charges of a different nature and outside of the usual business of the creditor, does not constitute such an account. Id.

In an action to enjoin the removal of a county seat, the action was deemed commenced by the service of the writ of injunction, and held that the action was not barred when the writ was served within five years after the election, but the notice was served after that time had elapsed. Sycott v. Faville, 23 Id., 321.

J An action is to be deemed commenced from the delivery of the original notice to the sheriff, or from the date of service, and not from the filing of the petition. Collins v. Bane, 34 Iowa, 385; Reed v. Chubb Bros., Barrows & Co., 9 Id., 173; Hagan v. Burch, 8 Id., 303; Elliott v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 10 Id., 418.

Where the original notice was not served until a month after the petition was filed, it will be presumed that the notice was delivered to the sheriff at the time of filing the petition, with the intention that it should be served immediately, and from that time the statute of limitations was suspended. Snyder v. Ives, 42 Id., 157.

8 The statute of limitations of this State commences to run upon contracts made and matured in other States from the time the defendant became a resident of this State. Pettell v. Hopkins, 19 Iowa, 531; Gillett v. Hill, 32 Id., 220.

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the law is that a debt barred by the laws of the State where it was contracted, is not for that reason barred in another State in which an action may be brought. Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Id., 224.

But under our statute such bar may be set up in an action brought in this State, when the bar was complete under the laws of the State where the defendant previously resided. Id.

The statute of limitations will not run in favor of a non-resident, to bar an action for the recovery of land after ten years, notwithstanding such non-resident has always had a tenant in possession of the land. Heaton v. Fryberger, 38 Id., 185.

Where, by reason of the non-residence of the defendant which under the statute is deducted from the period of limitation, an action on a promissory note is not barred. Neither is an action to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust made to secure such note. Clinton County v. Cox, 37 Id., 470.

Residence and not citizenship is contemplated in the statute of limitations, and it will run in favor of a debtor who resides in this State, although he has his domicile in another State or country. Savage v. Scott, 45 Id., 130.

1 The bar of another State or country, to a cause of action sued on in this State, must have been completed previous to the time the defendant became a resident of Iowa, in order that such bar shall be a defense here. Patchen v. Hopkins, 19 Iowa, 531; Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Iowa, 224; Lloyd v. Perry, 32 Id., 144.

Where the defendant came to this State, from a State where the debt was contracted, resided here for a time, and returned to the State by the laws of which the debt became barred, from whence he returned to this, and became a resident of this State, the case was held not to
Sec. 2535. The times limited for actions herein, except those brought for penalties and forfeitures, shall, in favor of minors as defined by this code, and persons insane, be extended so that they shall have one year from and after the termination of such disability within which to commence said actions. 6

Sec. 2536. If the person entitled to a cause of action die within one year next previous to the expiration of the limitation above provided for, the limitation above mentioned shall not apply until one year after such death. 3

Sec. 2537. If, after the commencement of an action, the plaintiff fail therein for any cause except negligence in its prosecution, and a new suit be brought within six months thereafter, the second suit shall, for the purposes herein contemplated, be deemed a continuation of the first.

Sec. 2538. The above limitations and provisions shall not apply to evidences of debt intended to circulate as money, but shall, in other respects, be applicable to all actions brought by or against all bodies corporate and politic, except when otherwise expressly declared. 6

Sec. 2539. Causes of action founded on contract are revived by an admission that the debt is unpaid, as well as by a new promise to pay the same. But such admission or new promise must be in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby. 5 come within the exception in section 2534 of the Code. 1d.

The last clause of this section being an amendment added thereto by chapter 167, section 10, acts of the Thirteenth General Assembly, held not to act retrospectively so as to revive an action already barred. Thompson v. Reed, 41 Ia., 49.

When an action has been fully barred by the laws of another State, such bar may be pleaded here. Webster & Gage v. Rees, 23 Ia., 269; Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Ia., 224; Lloyd v. Perry, 32 Ia., 144.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage it is not enough to plead in the answer that an action on the note was fully barred by the laws of another State where the note and mortgage were executed; it should also be averred that the right to foreclose the mortgage was so barred. Gillett v. Hill, 32 Ia., 220.

The extension of time as to minors in cases in which the cause of action shall have accrued more than ten years before majority is attained, expires with the first year of majority. Campbell v. Long, 20 Ia., 322.

Ignorance of a right does not prevent the operation of the statute of limitations. 1d.

The statute, limiting the time within which actions for the recovery of real property may be commenced, is not suspended during the infancy of a party, by the provisions of section 2535 of the Code. Matthews v. Stevens, 39 Ia., 279.

Where a cause of action accrues to the estate of a decedent instead of the deceased while living, the statute of limitations will not commence to run until the appointment of an administrator. But if the statute has once began to run in the life time of the party entitled to sue, it is not interrupted by his subsequent death, but continues, and the cause of action survives to the personal representatives. Sherman v. The Western Stage Co., 24 Iowa, 515.

The statute of limitations does not run against the State. The words "bodies corporate and politic" are held not to include the State. Des Moines County, for the use, etc., v. Harker, 36 Iowa, 84.

An action brought in the name of a county for the use of, and to recover money belonging to, the school fund, is, in effect, an action by the State, and hence not barred by the lapse of the statutory period applicable to other actions. 1d.

The statute may, however, run against a Municipal corporation. It was accordingly held, where the original proprietor of a town held open and visible possession of a square therein for the statutory period for the limitation of real actions, claiming that he had never relinquished, but still retained title thereto, the right of the corporation to maintain an action for the recovery thereof was barred. The City of Pella v. Scholte, 24 Ia., 283.

Under our statute of limitations the acknowledgment arising from part payment, and indorsement thereof on a promissory note, is not sufficient to prevent the bar of the statute. The admission or new promise required by the statute must, in all cases, be in writing, signed by the party to be charged. Parsons v. Carey, 23 Iowa, 431; Price v. Price, 34 Ia., 404.

The admission or new promise, however, need not be by a formal writing, but may be established by letters written and signed by the debtor. And where such letters are addressed to the creditor by name, it may be shown by parol that he was the person intended. So, also, parol
CHAPTER 3.

OF PARTIES TO AN ACTION.

SECTION 2543. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as provided in the next section.\(^1\)

An action is commenced when the notice is served upon the defendant, and not when it is placed in the hands of the officer for service. Parkyn v. Travis et al., 50 Iowa, 406.

\(^{1}\) It was agreed in a foreclosure suit that the mortgaged property should be taken at the sale in full satisfaction of the judgment, and accordingly the debtor failed to claim for certain payments he had made; held that the statute of limitations would not run against the counterclaim, until after the repudiation of the agreement. Savory v. Sypher, 39 Iowa, 675.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage the defendant may plead, as a counter-claim, an account against a firm of which the foreclosure plaintiff is a member; and in such case the statute of limitations does not operate to bar the counter-claim. Allen v. Maddox, 40 Id., 124.

\(^{2}\) The holder without indorsement of a promissory note payable to the order of the payee may maintain an action thereon in his own name, but without prejudice to the right of the maker to set-off equities existing before notice of the transfer. Yonker v. Martin, 18 Iowa, 143.

Under our system of practice the assignee of a bond, claiming under a parol assignment may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471.

Under this section the party beneficially interested, though he may not have the legal title to the cause of action, may sue thereon in his own name. Cottle v. Cole, 20 Id., 481; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Rice v. Savory, 22 Id.,
SEC. 2544. An executor or administrator, a guardian, a trustee of an express trust, a party with whom, in whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another, or party expressly authorized by statute, may sue in his own name without joining with him the party for whose benefit the suit is prosecuted.

SEC. 2545. All persons having an interest in the subject of the action, and in obtaining the relief demanded, may be joined as plaintiffs, except where it is otherwise provided in this code.

SEC. 2546. In case of the assignment of a thing in action, the action by the assignee shall be without prejudice to any counter claim, defense or cause of action whether matured or not, if matured when plead, existing in favor of the defendant and against the assignor before notice of the assignment; but this section shall not apply to negotiable instruments transferred in good faith and upon valuable consideration before due.

470; Pearson v. Cummings, 28 Id., 344; McDowell v. Bartlett, 14 Id., 157.

So, under section 2544, the party holding the legal title to a negotiable instrument, though he be an agent or trustee, has a right to recover thereon, but he is open, in such case, to any defense which exists against the party beneficially interested. Roberts v. Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.

Where a bond given for the primary security of one person also contains a clause intended for the security of another, an action may be brought thereon by the latter, though not named in the bond, if he sustains any injury by a breach thereof. Huntington v. Fisher, 27 Id., 276.

Where a recognition for the appearance of a party in a criminal prosecution at the district court of the county is taken in the name of the state, and becomes forfeited, suit may be brought thereon in the name of the county. Shelby Co. v. Suck, 25 Id., 344.

A party holding a note and mortgage by a verbal assignment may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Barthol v. Blakin, 34 Id., 452; Moore v. Lowery, 25 Id., 358.

A person to whom a note and guaranty have been transferred by a verbal assignment, becomes invested with the right of property therein, and may, as the real party in interest, maintain an action thereon in his own name. Green v. Marble, 37 Id., 95.

An undertaking by a railroad company to transport grain may be enforced by the party with whom the contract was made, and who was entitled to its benefits, although he was not the owner of the property to be transported at the time of making the contract and the tender or delivery of the property. Cobb, Blasdel & Co. v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 38 Id., 602.

The party holding the legal title to a cause of action, though he be a mere agent or trustee, with no beneficial interest therein, may sue thereon in his own name, under this section. Cottle v. Cole, 20 Iowa, 451; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Rice v. Savery, 52 Id., 470; Pearson v. Clough, 23 Id., 344.

Under this section an administrator may, at his election, sue either in his individual name or in his representative capacity. Oliver v. Townsend, 16 Id., 450; Carleton v. Byington, 17 Id., 578.

The trustee of a voluntary association, having no corporate powers, may, under this section, maintain an action in his own name for the benefit of the association. Laughlin v. Greene & Weare, 14 Id., 92.

An action upon a cause which accrued to a partnership, but brought after the death of a partner, is properly brought in the name of the surviving partner, and it is not necessary to join the personal representative of the deceased partner. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 906.

An assignee of an open account may bring an action thereon in his own name. Knudtler v. Sharp, 36 Id., 232.

Where a promissory note was given by two persons for the purchase money of a stock of goods, the vendor agreeing not to engage in the same business in the same town, which purchase was made by one of the makers of a note for the benefit of a third person who engaged with the other maker in the prosecution of the business, the makers of the note, in an action thereon, can maintain a counter-claim, under section 2544 of the Code, for a breach of the agreement not to resume the business. Moorehead v. Hyde & Braden, 38 Id., 885.

A judgment is a chose in action merely; it is not invested with the peculiar character of negotiable paper, and passes to an assignee thereof charged with all the equities which could be asserted against it in the hands of the assignor. Bollenger v. Torbett, 16 Iowa, 491; Burtis v. Cook & Sargent, Id., 194.

In an action by the original payee upon a promissory note, for the use of the assignee to whom it has been transferred without indorsement, the same defenses may be made as if held
SEC. 2547. Any person may be made a defendant who has, or claims, an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff; or who is a necessary party to a complete determination or settlement of the question involved in the action, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

SEC. 2548. Persons having an united interest must be joined on the same side either as plaintiffs or defendants, except as otherwise expressly provided by law. But when some who should thus be made plaintiffs refuse to join, they may be made defendants; the reason thereof being set forth in the petition.

SEC. 2549. When the question is one of a common or general interest to many persons, or when the parties are very numerous and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of the whole.

SEC. 2550. Where two or more persons are bound by contract, or by judgment, decree, or statute, whether jointly only, or jointly and severally, or severally only, and including the parties to negotiable paper, common orders, and checks, and sureties on the same, or separate instruments, or by any liability growing out of the same, the action thereon may, at the plaintiff's option, be brought against any by the original payee. Younker for use etc. v. Martin, 18 Id., 143.

But in an action by the indorsee of a promissory note transferred after maturity, the maker cannot plead a counter-claim existing in his favor against the payee and growing out of a transaction unconnected with the note itself. Section 2546 applies to non-negotiable paper and does not change the above rule. Richards v. Daily, 34 Id., 427.

While under our statute, an negotiable note is assignable and the assignee may sue thereon in his own name, it is subject in his hands to any defense or set-off which the maker had against the assignor thereof before notice of the assignment. Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112.

Prior to the code of 1873, and under section 2760 of the revision it was held that the assignment of an negotiable cause of action, did not necessarily draw after it all the equities of an independent nature, but those only which were connected with that transaction. Davis v. Millburn, 3 Id., 169; Burtis v. Cook & Sargent, 16 Id., 124; Isett & Breester v. Lucas, 17 Id., 503; Stannus v. Stannus, 30 Id., 448; Shipman v. Robbins, 10 Id., 393; Lewis v. Denton, 13 Id., 441; Ryan & Louthan v. Chez, Id., 589; May v. Lamb, 15 Id., 79.

Where a mortgagor of real property has conveyed the same by deed containing a covenant of warranty against all incumbrances, he has such an interest, that he may, on his own application, be made a party in an action to foreclose the mortgage. Gifford v. Workman et al., 15 Iowa, 54.

1 Where a mortgage of real property has conveyed the same by deed containing a covenant of warranty against all incumbrances, he has such an interest, that he may, on his own application, be made a party in an action to foreclose the mortgage. Gifford v. Workman et al., 15 Iowa, 54.

In an action to remove a cloud upon a title to land, all persons necessary to a complete settlement of the question involved may properly be made parties. Beekith v. Daggets et al., 18 Id., 303.

Upon the failure of a national bank, the receiver, appointed by the controller of the currency, is a proper party defendant in a suit against the bank. Turner v. The First N't B'k etc. et al., 26 Id., 563.

In an equitable action the fact that a person is a member of a firm which is plaintiff will not prevent the joinder of another firm of which he is also a member, as defendant. Ford & Musson v. The Jud. Dist. etc., 46 Id., 294.

The owner of the real property on which a mechanic's lien is sought to be established is a necessary party to an action for that purpose. Keller & Bennett v. Tracey et al., 11 Iowa, 530.

In Fleming v. Mershon, 30 Id., 413, MILLER and DAY, J., held, under this section that to authorize a plaintiff to sue in behalf of others not named, they must have a common or general interest with him in the result sought to be accomplished by the action, and that several persons charged with a tax have no such common or general interest in resisting the collection of the same as will authorize one to sue for all. Cole J. dissented and BICK Ch. J. expressed no opinion.

Since that case it has been held that where a question respecting the validity of a tax extends to the whole assessment, or where it affects in the same manner a number of persons, so that the question involved can be presented, without confusion, in one suit, all, or any number of those thus affected, may join in bringing the action. Branduff et al. v. Harrison County et al., 13 West. Jur., 112.

Where an alleged illegality in taxation extends to the whole assessment, or where it affects in the same manner a number of persons, so that the question involved can be presented by one petition filed by all or any number thus interested, such joint petitions may be filed. Branduff et al. v. Harrison County et al., 50 Id., 164.
or all of them. When any of those so bound are dead, the action may be brought against any or all of the survivors, with any or all of the representatives of the decedents, or against any or all such representatives. An action or judgment against any one or more of several persons jointly bound, shall not be a bar to proceedings against the others.\^p

Sec. 2551. The court may determine any controversy between parties before it, when it can be done without prejudice to the rights of others, or by saving their rights. But when a determination of the controversy between the parties before the court cannot be made without the presence of other parties, the court must order them to be brought in.\^w

Sec. 2552. When a bond or other instrument given to the state or county, or other municipal corporation, or to any officer or person, is intended for the security of the public generally, or of particular individuals, suit may be brought thereon in the name of any person intended to be thus sued who has sustained an injury in consequence of a breach thereof.\^x

\^p Under this section an action may be maintained against either the administrator of a deceased joint debtor for the survivors, whether the death occurred before or after the taking effect of the statute. Sellon & Co. v. Braden, 13 Iowa, 365; Mosier v. Hull, 15 Id., 603.

A decree in an action to foreclose a mortgage against the principal maker of a note, the sureties thereon not being made parties, does not merge the note as to the sureties, unless the decree is fully satisfied by sale of the mortgaged property. A separate action may be maintained against one of the sureties for any balance remaining unpaid. The County of Dubuque et al. v. Koch, 17 Id., 229.

Under this section an action may be maintained against one partner alone upon a promissory note executed by the firm. Ryerson v. Hendrie, 22 Id., 480; Hoosier v. Burke, 26 Id., 353, 356.

This section authorizes actions, at the option of the plaintiff, against any one or more, or all of the parties bound by non-negotiable instruments. House v. Hamblin, 29 Id., 501, 506; Tucker v. Shiner, 24 Id., 334.

An indorser in full, of a promissory note payable to bearer, may be joined with the maker in an action thereon. Stout & Co. v. Noteman, 30 Id., 414.

The maker and guarantor of a negotiable note may be joined as defendants in an action thereon. Martin v. Adamson, 11 Id., 371; Meix v. Fairchild, 12 Id., 351.

This section does not apply to defendants in actions for delivering, or selling intoxicating liquors to the injury of wife or children. Lafayette v. Kray et al., 42 Id., 143.

The statute has altered the common law rule which required all joint debtors to be sued in the same action but has made no alteration of the rule in relation to torts where all the tort feasors might be sued jointly or each separately, although there could be but one satisfaction. Turner v. Hitchcock, 20 Id., 310.

A judgment by confession against the principal maker of a promissory note is no bar to subsequent actions against the surety on the same note. Citizen's Savings Bank v. Olson, 47 Id., 492.

\^w The execution defendant is not a necessary party to a proceeding to set aside a sheriff’s sale on the ground that the real estate sold was the property of a third person. Baldwin v. Thompson, 15 Iowa, 504.

When the amount due on a promissory note is claimed by a judgment plaintiff under a garnishment, and by an indorsee under a transfer before such garnishment, the court should proceed to have all the parties interested brought before the court. Fowler v. Doyle et al., 16 Id., 534.

When the question of the right to levy taxes involves the validity of a title adverse to that of the plaintiff in the lands, the court will dismiss an application for an injunction if the adverse claimant be not brought in as a party. Litchfield v. Polk County, 18 Id., 70.

On an action to quiet title and to correct a description of the premises running through the deeds of several prior grantors, such grantors, or, if dead, their heirs, should be made parties to the action. Flandera v. McClanahan, 24 Id., 486.

\^x A guardian’s bond, made payable to the county instead of to the parties interested, is not thereby vitiated, but inures to the benefit of the latter, and suit may be brought thereon in the name of any one thus secured who has suffered injury by a breach thereof. Purtley v. Hayes, 22 Iowa, 11.

A defective delivery bond, conditioned to indemnify the sheriff against all damages and to Sec. 2553. Suits may be brought by or against a partnership as such, or against all or either of the individual members thereof, and a judgment against the firm, as such, may be enforced against the partnership property or that of such members as have appeared or been served with notice. But a new action may be brought against the other members on the original cause of action.

Sec. 2554. Foreign corporations may bring suit in the courts of this state in their corporate name.

Sec. 2555. An unmarried female may prosecute as plaintiff an action for her own seduction, and recover such damages as may be found in her favor.

Sec. 2556. A father, or in case of his death or imprisonment or desertion of his family, the mother may prosecute as plaintiff an action for the expenses and actual loss of service resulting from the injury or death of a minor child.

deliver attached property to him when ordered, or an equivalent in money, although defective as a statutory bond, is valid as a common law obligation. Garretson v. Beeler et al., 23 Id., 21; Sheppard & Morgan v. Collins, 12 Id., 570.

Where, after the levy of a writ of attachment upon property sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff’s demand, the defendant made to the sheriff a bond conditioned “that he should produce said goods in satisfaction of the judgment in said action, or pay such judgment as shall be rendered against him,” it was held that the bond was valid, and that an action could be maintained for a breach thereof by the plaintiff in the attachment suit. Sheppard et al. v. Collins, 12 Id., 570.

A bond for the return or delivery of property is not invalid because it fails to recite the time, terms and conditions upon which the return or delivery is to be made; and where such bond is given primarily for the security of one person, and containing a clause intended for the security of another person not named, suit may be brought thereon by the latter, if he sustains injury by the breach of the bond. Huntington v. Fisher, 27 Id., 276. To the same effect are the following cases: Moorman v. Collier, 32 Id., 138; Morgan v. Long, 29 Id., 434; Strunk v. Ocheltree, 11 Id., 158; State v. Fredericks, 8 Id., 533; Latham v. Brown, 16 Id., 118; Biningter v. Dickinson, 20 Id., 260.

7 Under the revision the method of making the individual property of members of a partnership liable for the satisfaction of a judgment against the firm was by scire facias. Davis & Co. v. Buchanan & Bone, 12 Iowa, 570; revision, § 2785; Lewis & Bro. v. Conrad, Young & Co., 11 Id., 153; Hamsmith v. Espy et al., 13 Id., 439; Levally et al. v. Ellis et al., Id., 544; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, 16 Id., 141, 145.

An action may be brought against a partnership either in the firm name or in the individual names of the partners. Markham v. Buckingham, 21 Id., 494. And they may sue in the same manner. Id.

When a partnership is sued by the individual names of the partners the property of either partner may be taken under execution, without

An action on a claim due to a partnership may be maintained in the firm name, although one of the partners may be entitled to the proceeds if the claim itself has not been applied to extinguish the debt due such partner. White & Smith v. Savery, 50 Iowa, 315.

It was held under the code of 1851 that the right of the father to recover for the seduction of his minor daughter was not taken away by the statute, but that he might recover, although she be not living with him, and there be no actual loss of service. Updegraff v. Bennett, 8 Iowa, 72.

In that case, it was also held that it need not be alleged in the petition that she was the “unmarried daughter” of the plaintiff, nor that she was of “previously chaste character.” Id.

Where an action of seduction is brought by the female seduced and she dies pending the action, it may be prosecuted to judgment by her administrator. The action does not abate as at common law. Shafer v. Grimes, 23 Id., 550.

Where the petition, after alleging the facts of the seduction, averred, “that plaintiff had been damaged by the defendant in the sum of $5,000, for which she asks judgment,” it was held, after verdict, that the damages were sufficiently alleged to be the result of the seduction to sustain the verdict. Gray v. Bean, 27 Id., 221.

In a trial for seduction inquiry into the character of the prosecuting witness for chastity must be strictly limited to the time prior to the alleged seduction. The State v. Deltrick, 51 Iowa, 467.

In an action by the administrator for damages caused the estate of a minor by wrongful acts resulting in his death, the recovery is limited to his probable earnings after he shall have attained his majority; for his personal services and earnings during minority, the father, in case of abandonment by him, the mother, is entitled to maintain the action. Lawrence v. Birney et al., 40 Iowa, 377; Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co. 36 Id., 458.
PARTIES TO AN ACTION. [TITLE XVII.

Name unknown. R. § 3786.
Written instrument: how sent or brought. R. § 3786.
Prisoner in penitentiary. R. § 3784.
State: actions by. R. § 3793.
Transfer: abatement. R. § 3794.

SEC. 2557. When the precise name of any defendant cannot be ascertained, he may be described as accurately as practicable, and when the name is ascertained it shall be substituted in the proceedings.

SEC. 2558. When an action is founded on a written instrument, suit may be brought by or against any of the parties thereto, by the same name and description as those by which they are designated in such instrument.

SEC. 2559. No judgment can be rendered against a prisoner in the penitentiary until after a defense made for him by his attorney, or if there is none, by a person appointed by the court to defend him.

SEC. 2560. The state shall commence and prosecute suits according to the laws of the land as in cases between individuals, except that no security shall in such cases be required.

SEC. 2561. No action shall abate by the transfer of any interest therein during its pendency.

MARRIED WOMEN.

SEC. 2562. A married woman may in all cases sue and be sued without joining her husband with her, to the same extent as if she were unmarried, and an attachment or judgment in such action shall be enforced by or against her as if she were a single woman.

b In the absence of a statute expressly authorizing an order for the substitution of the true name of a defendant when ascertained, it is entirely competent for the court to so direct, under the numerous liberal statutory provisions relating to amendments of pleadings. Arbuckle v. Bowman, 6 Iowa, 70.

* Where a promissory note was made payable to the "S. B. Pembinaw and Owners," it was held that a suit could not be maintained in the name of the "Steamboat Pembinaw." This section was not intended to authorize a suit to be brought in the name of a steamboat, hotel, toll-gate or race-horse. The word "name" in the statute refers to persons or corporations. Steamboat etc. v. Wilson, 11 Iowa, 479.

In an action by a corporation upon a promissory note, payable to it by its corporate name, it is not necessary to allege the corporate capacity of the plaintiff. The Harris Mf. Co. v. Marsh, 29 Id., 11.

a A conveyance by the plaintiff, during the pendency of an action for the recovery of land, of the title to the property, will not abate the action; and the prosecution thereof may be continued in his name notwithstanding such conveyance. Jordan v. Ping, 32 Iowa, 64.

Where, pending an action, its cause is assigned to a third person, the action may, at the discretion of the court, be continued in the name of the original party, or the assignee may be substituted. Chickasaw County v. Pitcher, 36 Id., 593.

* Under the revision a married woman could maintain an action relating to her separate property without the joinder of her husband with her. Kramer v. Conger, 16 Iowa, 434.

In an action for the slander of the wife, the husband was a necessary party, jointly with the wife, under the revision. Enders v. Beck, 18 Id., 86.

Where a wife had abandoned her husband for cause, or had been driven from his home without cause, it was held that she could maintain an action of replevin against him in her own name, to recover possession of her separate property. Jones v. Jones, 19 Id., 236.

Section 2771 of the revision changed the common law rule, that, in an action wherein the husband and wife were joined, for an injury to the wife, the recovery was limited to damages for that injury alone, and did not embrace the injury to the husband, so that under that section the husband, in such an action, could properly join thereto a claim in his own right, and recover for the loss of the services of his wife, caused by the injury. McDonald v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 26 Id., 124.

The provisions of the statute as contained in sections 2202-2213, 2562, have effected a complete emancipation of married women from the disabilities of coverture to which they were subjected by the common law, so that now the husband has no common or joint interest in a right of action, accruing to the wife on account of a tort inflicted against her, and he cannot, therefore, be joined with her in an action upon such tort. Musselman v. Galliger et al., 32 Id., 883. To the same effect is Pancake v. Burnett, 1d., 394; Tuttle v. The C. R. I. & P. R Co., 42 Id., 518.

In an action against a husband and wife jointly, they cannot plead a counter-claim for a previous malicious prosecution of the wife. Id.

Nor can the husband, in such action, set up as a counter-claim, a claim for damages accruing
Sec. 2563. If husband and wife are sued together, the wife may defend for her own right; and if either neglect to defend, the other may defend for such one also. 1

Sec. 2564. When a husband has deserted his family, the wife may prosecute or defend in his name any action which he might have prosecuted or defended, and shall have the same powers and rights therein as he might have had; and under like circumstances the same right shall apply to the husband upon the desertion of the wife.

MINORS.

Sec. 2565. The action of a minor must be brought by his guardian or next friend; but the court has power to dismiss it if it is not for the benefit of the minor, or to substitute the guardian of the minor or other person as next friend. 2

Sec. 2566. The defense of a minor must be by his regular guardian, or by a guardian appointed to defend him where no regular guardian appears, or where the court directs a defense, by a guardian appointed for that purpose. No judgment can be rendered against a minor until after a defense by a guardian. 3

1 It was held under the revision that a married woman was liable on her covenants in a deed made by her for her own real property, the same being a contract in relation to her separate property. Richmond v. Tipples et al., 26 Iowa, 54. See revision § 2506.

2 An infant may bring an action by his next friend, and in such action it is proper to prove infancy. Byers v. The Lesses of the D. V. R. Co., 21 Iowa, 54. The court has no power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant unless there has first been a complete service of notice upon such infant, and an appearance and answer by a guardian ad litem appointed without such service of notice having been made, will not confer jurisdiction of the person, and the proceedings as to him will be void. Good v. Norley et al., 28 Id., 288.

3 In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the next friend in an action by an infant plaintiff is liable for costs. Vance v. Fall, 45 Id., 364.

Sec. 2567. The court has no power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant unless there has first been a complete service of notice upon such infant, and an appearance and answer by a guardian ad litem appointed without such service of notice having been made, will not confer jurisdiction of the person, and the proceedings as to him will be void. Good v. Norley et al., 28 Id., 288.

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the next friend in an action by an infant plaintiff is liable for costs. Vance v. Fall, 45 Id., 364.

Where in an action against minors, the mother was permitted by the court to come in and defend for them, it was held, that the decree should not be reversed because there was no formal entry of the appointment of a guardian ad litem. Treiber v. Shafer, 18 Iowa, 29.

In an action in behalf of minors by their mothers as "next friend and guardian," it was held unnecessary to serve upon the minors an original notice of the filing of an answer in the nature of a cross-bill. Id.

The district court has jurisdiction of actions against minors as well as adult defendants, but where a minor is sued, his defense must be made by his regularly appointed guardian, if he has one, and if not, by a guardian appointed by the court. Judd v. Mosley, 30 Id., 423.

An infant is supposed to be incapable of guarding his own interests, and it is the duty of the court, before it directs him of his estate, to be satisfied that he has had a full opportunity to have "his day in court," by a proper and suitable guardian, and to see, notwithstanding any admissions of facts, even by his guardian, that his rights are not sacrificed. Id.

When the court has jurisdiction of the person of the minor and of the subject matter of the action, the failure to appoint a guardian ad litem is a mere irregularity, and the judgment is valid until set aside by direct proceedings. An injunction will not be granted to restrain the enforcement of the judgment. Drake v. Hamsaw et al., 47 Id., 291.

The failure to appoint a guardian ad litem, in an action against a minor, until after the trial has commenced, will not vitiate the verdict where no prejudice is shown to have resulted from such failure. Wickersham v. Tinninns, 49 Id., 267.

Notice to a ward of an application to the circuit court for an order directing the guardian to pay for the support of the ward is unnecessary, the proceeding not being adversary in its nature, and the guardian being subject to the direction of the court like its own officers. Brewer et al. v. Stoddard, 49 Id., 279.
PARTIES TO AN ACTION. [TITLE XVII.

SEC. 2567. The appointment cannot be made until after service of the notice in the action as directed in this code, and may then be made by the court or judge thereof, or during vacation, by the clerk; but the court shall have the power to remove such guardian when the interests of the minor require such change. If made by the judge or clerk, it shall be done by indorsing the name of the person appointed, and the time thereof on the petition in the action.1

SEC. 2568. The appointment may be made on the application of the minor if he is of the age of fourteen years, and applies at or before the time he is required to appear and defend. If he does not so apply, or is under that age, the appointment may be made on the application of any friend of the minor or on that of the plaintiff in the action.

INSANE.

SEC. 2569. The action of a person judicially found to be of unsound mind, must be brought by his guardian, and, if he have none, the court or judge thereof, or the clerk in vacation, may appoint one for the purposes of the action.

SEC. 2570. The defense of an action against a person judicially found to be of unsound mind, or a person confined in any state lunatic asylum, who, by the certificate of the physician in charge, appears to be of unsound mind, must be by his guardian or a guardian appointed by the court to defend for him. Such appointment may be made upon the application of any friend of the defendant, or on that of the plaintiff, but not until service has been made as directed in this code, and no judgment can be rendered against him until defense has been made as herein provided.

SEC. 2571. Where a party is judicially found to be of unsound mind, or is confined in any state lunatic asylum, and, by the certificate of the physician in charge, appears to be of unsound mind during the pendency of an action, the fact being stated on the record, if he is plaintiff his guardian may be joined with him in the action as such; if he is defendant, the plaintiff may, on ten days' notice thereof to his guardian, have an order making the guardian a defendant also.

FOR RECOVERY OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 2572. Upon affidavit of a defendant before answer, in any action upon contract for the recovery of personal property, that some third party without collusion with him has, or makes a claim to the subject of the action, or on proof thereof as the court may direct, the court may make an order for the safe-keeping, or for the payment or deposit in court or delivery of the subject of the action to such person as it may direct, and an order requiring such third person to appear in a reasonable time and maintain or relinquish his claims against the defendant, and in the meantime stay the proceedings. If such third party, being served with a copy of the order, fails to appear, the court 1Before any judgment can be rendered against a minor he must be defended by guardian, and the court is authorized to appoint a guardian for this purpose only after due and legal service of the original notice on the infant, in the manner directed in the statute. Judd v Mosely, 39 Iowa, 423.

The publication of notice as required by law is all that is necessary to confer jurisdiction of the parties, and personal service upon a minor under fourteen years of age is not necessary. Farrell v. Leighton, 49 Id., 174.
may declare him barred of all claim in respect to the subject of the action against the defendant therein. If such third person appears, he shall be allowed to make himself defendant in the action in lieu of the original defendant, who shall be discharged from all liability to either of the other parties, in respect to the subject of the action upon his compliance with the order of the court for payment, deposit, or delivery thereof.

Sec. 2573. The provisions of the last section shall be applicable to an action brought against a sheriff or other officer, for the recovery of personal property taken by him under an attachment or execution, or for the value of such property so taken and sold by him. And the defendant in any such action shall be entitled to the benefit of these provisions against the party in whose favor the attachment or execution issued, upon exhibiting to the court the process under which he acted, with his affidavit that the property, for the recovery of which, or its proceeds, the action was brought, was taken under such process.

Sec. 2574. In an action against a sheriff or other officer, for the recovery of property taken under an attachment or execution, the court may, upon application of the defendant and of the party in whose favor the process issued, permit the latter to be substituted as defendant, sureties for the costs being given.

Sec. 2575. An action to recover the possession of specific personal property taken under a landlord's attachment, when it is brought by the tenant or his assignee or under-tenant, may be against the party who sued out the attachment; and the property claimed by such action may, under the writ therefor, be taken from the officer who seized it when he has no other claim to hold it than that derived from the writ. The indorsement of a levy on the property made upon the process by the officer holding it, shall be sufficient taking of the property to sustain action against the party who sued out the writ.1

CHAPTER 4.

OF PLACE OF BRINGING SUIT.

Section 2576. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county in which the subject of the action, or some part thereof, is situated:

1. For the recovery of real property, or of an estate therein, or for the determination of such right or interest;
2. For the partition of real property;
3. For injuries to real property.

Sec. 2577. Actions for injuries to real property may be brought either in the county where the property is, or where the defendant resides.

Sec. 2578. An action for the foreclosure of a mortgage of real property, or for the sale of real property under an incumbrance or charge, or to enforce a mechanics' lien on real property, may be brought in the county in which the property to be affected, or some part thereof, is situated.\(^1\)

SEC. 2579. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose:

1. An action for the recovery of a fine, penalty or forfeiture imposed by a statute, except that when the offense for which the claim is made was committed on a water course or highway which is the boundary of two counties, the action may be brought in either of them;

2. An action against a public officer or person specially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue or under color of his office, or against one who by his command, or in his aid, shall do anything touching the duties of such officer or for neglect of official duty;

3. An action on the official bond of a public officer.\(^1\)

SEC. 2580. An action, when aided by attachment, may be brought in any county of the state wherever any part of the property sought to be attached may be found, when the defendant whose property is thus pursued is a non-resident of this state. If such defendant is a resident of this state, such action must be brought in the county of his residence, or that in which the contract was to be performed, except that if an action be duly brought against such defendant in any other county by virtue of any provisions of this chapter, then such action may, if legal cause for an attachment exist, be aided by an attachment.\(^2\)

SEC. 2581. When, by its terms, a written contract is to be performed in any particular place, action for breach thereof may be brought in the county wherein such place is situated.\(^3\)

\(^1\) An equitable action against husband and wife jointly to recover judgment for articles property included within the terms "expenses of the family," and to make the same chargeable upon the real estate of the wife, is a proceeding for the sale of real property under a charge, and under the statute may be brought in the county in which the property is situated. Hauke & Bro. v. Urban et ux., 18 Iowa, 83. In an action on a promissory note secured by mortgage, if the object of the action is for a judgment for the amount due, to be enforced by general execution, suit should be brought in the county where the mortgagor resides. But if the object of the action is to foreclose the defendant's equity of redemption in the mortgaged property, suit should be brought in the county in which the property is situated. Cole v. Corner, 10 Iowa, 299.

An action to foreclose a mortgage on real property must be brought in the county in which the mortgaged property or some part thereof is situated. Chadbourne et al., v. Gillman et ux., 29 Iowa, 181.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution takes a change of venue to another county and gives bail for his appearance at the district court of the latter county, which is forfeited for want of appearance, the forfeiture belongs to the county where, by the terms of the bond, the defendant was bound to appear, rather than to the county where the indictment was found; and suit on the bond should be brought in the county thus entitled. Decatur County v. Maxwell, 25 Iowa, 396.

\(^2\) In legal contemplation, a railroad corporation, resides in the counties through which its road passes, and in which it transacts its business, and may be sued in any county through which the road runs. Richardson & Co. v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Iowa, 26.

Where by the terms of a verbal contract for the purchase of a lot of hogs, they were to be delivered to the purchaser at a certain time and place named, it was held, that an action for a breach thereof was properly commenced in the county of the place, where by the terms of the contract, the property was to be delivered, though the defendant resided in another county. Oliver v. Bass, 30 Iowa, 90.

But a verbal contract stipulating that payment for goods sold, should be made at the place of sale, the purchaser residing in another county, will not sustain a personal action in the county where the goods were sold; holding this section applicable only to written contracts. Hatch & Abbott v. Johnson, 44 Iowa, 536. [This case seems to be in conflict with Oliver v. Bass, supra.]

Where an action embraced in the preceding section is against several defendants, some of whom are residents, and others non-residents, of the county, and the action is dismissed as to the residents, or judgment is rendered in their favor, or there is a failure to obtain judgment against such residents, such non-residents may, upon motion, have said cause dismissed with reasonable compensation for trouble and expense in attending at the wrong county, unless they, having appeared to the action, fail to object before judgment is rendered against them.

SEC. 2588. If, after the commencement of an action in the county of the defendant's residence, he removes therefrom, the service of notice upon him in another county shall have the same effect as if it had been made in the county from which he removed.

SEC. 2589. If a suit be brought in a wrong county, it may there be prosecuted to a termination, unless the defendant, before answer, demand a change of place of trial to the proper county. In which case the court shall order the same at the costs of the plaintiff, and may award the defendant a reasonable compensation for his trouble and expense in attending at the wrong county. And if the sum so awarded, and costs, are not paid to the clerk at a time to be fixed by the court, or if the papers in such case are not filed by the plaintiff in the court to which the change is ordered ten days before the first day of the next term thereof, or if ten days do not intervene between the making of said order and the first day of the next term of said court, ten days preceding the first day of the next succeeding term thereof, in either event the action shall be deemed to be discontinued.

The district court of the county where the plaintiff resides, having jurisdiction of the case for divorce and alimony, may rightfully declare and enforce a lien for alimony, granted in the action, against real estate of the defendant situated in another county,

That a personal action was brought in the wrong county does not affect the validity of the judgment rendered therein. Nor can fraud be predicated upon such fact. The failure of the defendant to move for a change of venue is a waiver of his right to such change.

OF CHANGE IN PLACE OF TRIAL.

SECTION 2590. A change of the place of trial, in any civil action, may be had in any of the following cases:

1. Where the county in which the action is pending is a party thereto, if the motion is made by the party adversely interested, and the issue be triable by jury;

2. Where the judge is a party, or is directly interested in the action, or is connected by blood or affinity with any person so interested nearer than the fourth degree;

3. Where either party files an affidavit verified by himself and three disinterested persons, not related to the party making the motion nearer than the fourth degree, nor standing in the relation of servant, agent, or employee of such party, stating that the inhabitants of the county, or the judge, is so prejudiced against him, or that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants of the county, that he cannot obtain a fair trial;

4. By the written agreement of the parties, and their attorneys;

5. If the issue is one triable by jury, and it is made apparent to the court or judge that a jury cannot be obtained in the county where the action is pending, then, upon the application of either party, a change of place of trial shall be granted to the nearest county in which a jury can be obtained.

[Provided, however, That not more than two changes to either party of the place of trial shall be allowed for any of the causes enumerated in this section; nor shall a change of venue from the county be allowed in case of appeal from a justice of the peace; nor shall a change of the place of trial be allowed when the issue can only be tried to the court, for any objection to the inhabitants of the county, or for the objection that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants thereof, that he cannot obtain a fair trial; and

Provided, That after any change of venue has been taken as herein provided, and a trial had and the jury been discharged or a new trial has been granted them a subsequent change of venue may be taken for any of the causes mentioned in said section.]

vate prosecutor to disbar an attorney is a "special proceeding" wherein a change of venue on account of prejudice of the judge should be granted upon the same terms and upon compliance with the same rules as in ordinary civil actions. The State v. Clarke, 46 Id., 155.

It does not constitute ground for a change of venue, in an action for the recovery of a forfeiture, that the county in which the action is brought is the party-plaintiff in the action. The State v. Merrimack, 47 Id., 112.

* An application for a change of venue, based upon the alleged prejudice of the judge, made after the cause has been once continued, is in­sufficient where it fails to state that the grounds for the change were not known prior to such contin­

Where the defendant made a motion for a more specific statement of the cause of action which was overruled, and he thereupon made an application for a change of venue on account of alleged prejudice of the judge, which was withdrawn from the files by the plaintiff's atorney, and the court, without knowledge of the application, rendered judgment by default; held, that the default should have been set aside without a showing of a meritorious defense, and the application for a change of venue should have been considered by the court. Beasley v. Cooper et al., 42 Id., 542.

After a change of venue, the party applying for another must allege and show that the use upon which he bases his application was not in existence when the first change was obtained. Schaeffer v. Smith, 43 Id., 539.

be so transmitted, but a copy thereof. And as to those who take no change, the cause shall proceed as if none had been taken, except that if the place of trial is changed to a court in the same county, no transcript or copies shall be made out, but the original papers shall be transmitted.¹

SEC. 2595. Upon filing such transcript and papers in the office of the clerk of the court to which the same were certified, the cause shall be docketed without fee and proceeded in as though it had originated therein.

SEC. 2596. Unless the change be granted under sub-divisions two, four, or five, of section two thousand, five hundred and ninety of this chapter, all costs caused thereby or that are rendered useless by reason thereof, shall be paid by the applicant, and the court, or judge, at the time of making the order, shall be designated in general terms such costs, and no change shall be deemed perfected until such costs are paid.

SEC. 2597. Where the place of trial in any civil action is changed to any county other than that in which the same was properly commenced, where the trial thereof takes place at a regular term, and occupies more than one calendar day, the judge trying said case shall certify the number of days so occupied, and the county in which the case was originally commenced shall be liable to the county where the same is tried for the sum of two dollars per day for each juryman engaged in the trial thereof.

SEC. 2598. Where a special term of any court is held for the trial of any action contemplated in the preceding section, the court trying the same shall make out and certify the amount of county expenses incurred in the trial of each case, and the same shall be a legal and valid claim against the county in which the same was properly commenced.

¹The supreme court refused to interfere with an order of the court below overruling a motion to re-docket a cause after a change of venue, on the ground that the transcript fees were not paid to the clerk within the time prescribed by the statute, when it did not appear affirmatively that such fees were not secured to the clerk. Brown v. Jefferson County, 16 Iowa, 339.

The provisions of the statute requiring the change to be perfected within the time specified therein, does not apply where a change is granted upon the agreement of the parties, and after such order the court making it has no further jurisdiction over the case. Carroll County v. The American Emigrant Co., 37 Id., 371.

In a case where a change of venue was taken in term time it was held, that the payment of the costs at any time during the day upon which they were required to be paid was a sufficient compliance with the statute, provided such payment was made before the order for the change was vacated. Bacon v. Black, 38 Id., 162.

A garnishee occupies the relation of defendant to the principal action, and like the defendant therein may take a change of venue. When either of the parties has procured a transfer of the cause, it will, nevertheless proceed against the garnishee in the court where it was commenced unless he applies for a change of venue. Westphall, Hinds & Co. v. Clark, 42 Id., 371.

Where a change of venue had been granted, and the costs were ordered to be paid by the applicant, upon whose failure to pay the same the order granting the change of venue was set aside and judgment by defendant rendered, it was held, that although the costs were subsequently re-taxed, and their amount paid by the applicant, this did not entitle him to have the default set aside and a change of venue again granted. Stryker v. Rivers, 47 Id., 109.
MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS. [TITLE XVII.

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

SECTION 2599. Actions in a court of record shall be commenced by serving the defendant with a notice signed by the plaintiff or his attorney, informing the defendant of the name of the plaintiff, and that on or before a date therein named, a petition will be filed in the office of the clerk of the court wherein suit is brought, naming it, and stating in general terms the cause or causes of action, and if the action is for money, the amount thereof, and that unless he appears thereto and defends before noon of the second day of the term at which defendant is required to appear, naming it, or at such other time as may be by rule of such court prescribed, default will be entered against him and judgment rendered thereon. In all cases where the time for the commencement of the term has been changed after the notice has been served, the defendant shall be held to appear at the time to which such term has been so changed.

A judgment for alimony in an action for divorce, when prayed in the petition, is not void because the original notice contained no statement that alimony was claimed. The power to grant alimony is, at least under the statute, a mere incident to the power to grant a divorce between the parties. McEwen v. McEwen, 26 Id., 375.

If the notice be defective or the service imperfect merely, the jurisdiction is saved and the proceedings cannot be collaterally assailed, but it is otherwise where there has been no notice, or where the paper relied on as such is without the essential requirements of a notice. Cooper v. Sunderland, 3 Id., 114; Boker v. Chapline, 12 Id., 204; Bonsall v. Isett, 14 Id., 398; Morrow v. Weed, 4 Id., 77; Ballinger v. Tarbell, 16 Id., 498; Shipman v. Loffler, 24 Id., 211; Parley v. Hayes, 22 Id., 14; Lyon v. Vanatta, 35 Id., 355; Hunter v. Clark, 37 Id., 355; Woodbury v. Maguire, 42 Id., 339.

An original notice requiring the defendant to appear on or before noon of the second day of the term of the district court, to be begun on the 12th day of April, 1870, was held, insufficient to require the defendant to appear when the term did not commence until the 18th of said month. Beals et al. v. Shutes et al., 29 Id., 507.

Where an original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed the foreclosure of a mortgage, which was properly described, and other relief as prayed for in the petition, it was held, that it was sufficient to give the court jurisdiction over the person of the defendant and the subject matter in controversy, although it did not state how much was claimed. York v. Boardman, 40 Id., 57.

Where the original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed a certain sum of money and the foreclosure of a mortgage, but the petition failed to ask a foreclosure, it was held, that a judgment of foreclosure was not void, but void-
SEC. 2600. If the petition is not filed by the date thus fixed, and ten days before the term, the action will be deemed discontinued.*

SERVICE OF NOTICE.

SEC. 2601. The notice may be served by any person not a party to the action.^

SEC. 2602. The defendant shall be held to appear at the next term after service, provided:
1. He be served within the county where suit is brought, in such time as to leave at least ten days between the day of service and the first day of the next term;
2. He be served without the county, but within the judicial district, so as to leave at least fifteen such days;
3. He be served elsewhere, so as to leave twenty such days for every one thousand miles, or fraction thereof, extending between the places of trial and service, which distance shall be judicially noticed by the court. If not so served, he shall be held to appear at the second term after service.^

SEC. 2603. The notice shall be served as follows:
1. By reading the notice to the defendant, or offering to read it in case he neglects or refuses to hear it read, and, in either case, by delivering him personally a copy of the notice, or if he refuses to receive it, offering to deliver it;
2. If not found within the county of his residence, by leaving a copy of the notice at his usual place of residence with some member of the family over fourteen years of age;

able only, and might be set aside upon motion, but that the judgment for the money due on the note should not be disturbed. O'Connell v. Cotter et al., 44 Id., 48.

An original notice required the defendants to appear at a term in July, which was, as then fixed by law, the next term, and in the mean time the law was changed, fixing the term in October. Held, that the defendants were bound to appear at the October term, without additional notice. Peoria M. & Fire Ins. Co. v. Dickinson, 28 Id., 274.

A notice of the commencement of an action served upon the defendant's wife, out of the state, and duly published in a weekly newspaper requiring the defendant to appear at a time specified in the district court in Linn county, was held sufficient as to place, and conferred jurisdiction on the court to render a judgment in rem against property attached in the action. Bond v. Epley, 45 Id., 600.

* Unless the petition is filed by the date fixed in the original notice, the action will be discontinued. Hudson v. Blanfus et al., 22 Iowa, 323; Gibula v. Pitt's Son's Mf. Co., 43 Id., 328.

And the appearance of the defendant for the purpose of presenting a motion to continue will not be a waiver of the defeat resulting from the failure to file the petition in time. *

The fact that the petition was filed in the circuit court, at the time stated in the notice where the notice required the defendant to appear in the district court, and the petition was subsequently transferred to the district court, will not change the rule of the statute requiring the discontinuance of the action. Morgan v. Small, 33 Id., 115.

The original notice in an action in the circuit court may be served by a constable, and he is entitled to receive, therefore, fifty cents and mileage, as fixed by section 3805 of the code, which may be taxed as part of the costs in the case. DuBoise & Bro. v. Babcock et al., 42 Iowa, 233.

Service of notice of appeal upon the wife of the adverse party does not comply with the requirements of the statute and is not sufficient. Draper v. Taylor, 47 Id., 407.

The notice cannot be served by a party to the action. *

If a petition be on file at the time the original notice is in fact served, the action will not be deemed discontinued because the petition was not filed at the time specified in the notice. Smith Bros. v. Shaw et al., 49 Id., 294.

* In the computation of time in the service of the original notice, both the day on which the service is made and the first day of the appearance term, are excluded. Robinson v. Foster, 12 Iowa, 186.
3. By taking an acknowledgment of the service indorsed on the notice, dated and signed by the defendant.

Sec. 2604. If served personally, the return must state the time and manner and place of making the service, and that a copy was delivered to defendant, or offered to be delivered. If made by leaving a copy with the family, it must state at whose house the same was left, and that it was the usual place of residence of the defendant, and the township, town, or city in which the house was situated, the name of the person with whom the same was left, or a sufficient reason for omitting to do so, and that such person was over fourteen years of age and was a member of the family.

Return when personally served. R. § 2607.

When the sheriff’s return on an original notice shows that “the defendant was not found,” it will be presumed that he could not be found in the sheriff’s bailiwick. Macklot & Corbin v. Hart, 12 Iowa, 428.

A return on an original notice reads as follows: “Served the written notice by delivering to, and leaving a copy of the same with the mother of the within named, she being a member of her family, and over fourteen years of age (at her residence), the within named defendant not being found.” Held, insufficient in this: 1. It did not show the “usual place” of residence of defendant. 2. It did not give the name of the person with whom the copy was left. Tavenor v. Reed, 10 Id., 416.

Where the return reads as follows: “Served” (giving date) “by reading the same in the presence and hearing of the within named Louis and Clara Englest,” held, that the service was defective in that it did not show that the notice was read to the defendants. Hynek v. Englest, 11 Id., 210. See also, Farris v. Powell, 10 Id., 553; Hodges v. Hodges, 6 Id., 78.

A waiver of service of notice, by an indorsement on the back thereof signed and dated as required by this section is equivalent to an acknowledgment of service, and confers upon the court jurisdiction of the person of the defendant. Johnson v. Monell, 13 Id., 300.

The courts of this state cannot acquire jurisdiction of the person of the defendant in ordinary personal actions, so as to proceed to judgment, against a non-resident by the service of notice out of the state without more. Bates v. The C. & N. W. Ry. Co., 19 Id., 260; Wiel v. Lowenthal, 10 Id., 578; Dorrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Hakes v. Shupe, 27 Id., 405.

A purely technical defect in the return of service of the notice in a foreclosure case, upon the minor heirs of the mortgagor, which might have been held defective on appeal, cannot be made available in a collateral proceeding by such heirs to redeem the mortgaged premises, especially where several years have elapsed since the sale, and there are no supporting equities in the case. Mooney v. Maas, 22 Id., 380.

A return on an original notice that it was “personally served by reading in the hearing of the defendant and leaving a true copy with him, was held, good. Grossenor v. Henry, 27 Id., 269. See also, Anderson v. Kerr, 10 Id., 223.

The service of an original notice on the wife of one member of a partnership is not sufficient service on the firm. Sub-division 3 of this section does not apply to such case. Brydolf v. Wolf, Carpenter & Co., 32 Id., 509.

It will be presumed, in the absence of allegations to the contrary, that the court, in rendering judgment by default, passed upon the sufficiency of the service of the original notice. An erroneous ruling thereon is not void. Muscatine Turn Verein v. Funk, 18 Id., 469.

A return on an original notice reciting that it was served upon C. by copy left at his usual place of residence with Mrs. C. was held to be in compliance with the statute. Wilson & Co. v. Call et al., 49 Id., 463.

The return need not specify that the defendant could not be found in the county to justify substituted service. Id.

The absence of a recital in the return of the place where the service is made is cured by a statement after the signature of the officer of the place of service. Id.

While the return should specify the date when service was made, yet a failure to incorporate the date will not render the judgment liable to collateral attack. Id.

A return that an original notice was “duly served,” is not sufficient. Hodges v. Hodges, 6 Iowa, 78.

It is the duty of the officer or person serving an original notice, to state in his return all the acts by him done in order that the court may determine the sufficiency of the service. Id.

Where an original notice was addressed to Luther Bart, and the return showed service on “L. Burt;” it was held, that the court was authorized to infer that the person named in the return was the person named in the notice. Davis v. Burt, 7 Id., 56.

Where a defendant is not found, and service of the original notice is made by leaving a copy at his residence, the return should state at whose house, and the name of the person with whom the copy was left, or a sufficient reason be given for omitting to do so. Id.

A return of service of an original notice should state the time as well as the manner and place of service. Hakes v. Shupe, 27 Id., 465.

A return of service of an original notice in the following form: “Served this notice on the within named J. F. by leaving a copy of the
SEC. 2605. If the notice is placed in the hands of a sheriff, he must note thereon the date when received, and proceed to serve the same without delay in his county, and must file the same with his return thereon in the office of the clerk, or return the same by mail or otherwise to the party from whom he received it.

SEC. 2606. If a notice be not duly filed or returned to the person from whom it was received by the sheriff, or if the return thereon is defective, the officer making the same may be fined by the court, not exceeding ten dollars, and shall also be liable to the action of any person aggrieved thereby. But the court may permit an amendment according to the truth of the case.

SEC. 2607. Notice shall not be served on Sunday, unless the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, make oath thereon that personal service will not be possible unless then made; and a notice indorsed with such affidavit shall be served by the sheriff, or may be served by another, as on a secular day.

SEC. 2608. The plaintiff may set forth in the notice the general object of the action, a brief description of the property affected by it, and that no personal claim is made against any defendant, naming or operating any railway, telegraph line, canal, stages, coaches, or cars, or any express company, service may be made upon any general agent thereof transacting said business in any other county.

SEC. 2609. If service be made within the state, the truth of the return is proven by the signature of the sheriff, or his deputy, and the court shall take judicial notice thereof. If made without the state, or if such defendant unreasonably defends he must pay costs.

SEC. 2610. If a county is defendant, service may be made on the chairman of the board of supervisors or county auditor. But no action shall be brought against any county on an unliquidated demand, until the same has been presented to such board and payment demanded.

ON CORPORATIONS.

SEC. 2611. If the action is against any corporation, or person owning or operating any railway, telegraph line, canal, stages, coaches, or cars, or any express company, service may be made upon any general agent of such corporation, or person wherever found, or upon any station, ticket, or other agent of such corporation, or person transacting the business thereof in the county where the suit is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then service may be had upon an agent thereof transacting said business in any other county.

same at his usual place of residence in the village of Jessup, Buchanan county, Iowa, with M. P., a member of defendant's family, over fourteen years of age, the defendant not being found, etc., was held sufficient. Farris v. Ingraham, Kennedy & Day, 34 Iowa, 251; Nealy v. Redman, 5 Id., 387.

* Where service of an original notice is made by any one not the sheriff of the county, it must be proved by the affidavit of the person making the same. Moss Brothers v. Bunn, 7 Iowa, 261.

Before an action can be maintained against a county upon an unliquidated demand, the same must be presented to the board of supervisors, and payment by them refused. Cerro Gordo Co. v. Wright Co., 50 Iowa, 439.

SEC. 2615. The service of notice of appeal upon a railroad company, where it appears that the corporation has officers, is not sufficient to confer jurisdiction over the company. Richardson & Co. v. B. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Iowa, 260.

The service of notice of appeal upon a director of a railroad company is sufficient service on the corporation under section 2825, of the revision. Robertson v. The Eldora R. & C. Co., 27 Id., 445.

In an action against a corporation service of notice may be made upon any agent, general or special, charged with the business of the corporation within the county where suit is brought, if it arises out of or is connected with the business of the agency in that county. The Cerro Gordo Mutual Life Association, 50 Iowa, 75.
SEC. 2612. When the action is against a municipal corporation, service may be made on the mayor or clerk, and if against any other corporation, on any trustee or officer thereof, or on any agent employed in general management of its business, or on any of the last known or acting officers of said corporation, and if no person can be found on whom service can be made as provided in this and the preceding section, service may be made by publication as provided in other cases.

SEC. 2613. When a corporation, company, or individual, has, for the transaction of any business, an office or agency in any county other than that in which the principal resides, service may be made on any agent or clerk employed in such office or agency, in all actions growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency.

MINORS—INSANE—PRISONERS.

SEC. 2614. When the defendant is a minor under the age of fourteen years, the service must be made on him, and also on his father, or mother, or guardian, and if there be none of these within the state, then on the person within this state having the care and control of such minor, or with whom he shall reside, or in whose service he shall be employed. When the minor is over fourteen years of age, service on him shall be sufficient.

SEC. 2615. When a defendant has been judicially declared to be of unsound mind, or who is confined in any state lunatic asylum, service may be made upon him and upon his guardian, and if he have no guardian, then upon his wife or the person having the care of him, or with whom he lives, or the keeper of the asylum in which he may be confined.

SEC. 2616. When it becomes necessary to serve personally with a notice or process of any kind, a person who is confined in any state lunatic asylum, the superintendent thereof shall acknowledge service of the same for such person, whenever, in the opinion of such superintendent, personal service would injuriously affect such person, which fact shall be stated in the acknowledgment of service. A service thus made shall be deemed a personal one on the defendant.

SEC. 2617. When the defendant is a prisoner in the penitentiary, a copy of the petition must be delivered to the prisoner at the time the notice is served, and a copy of the notice must be delivered to the husband or wife of the defendant, if any such there be within this state.

* Where an agent is employed in the general management of the business of a private corporation, service of notice may be made upon him in all actions growing out of or connected with the business of his office or agency. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 27 Iowa, 363.

The treasurer of a school district is an officer thereof, and service of an original notice upon him in an action against the district constitutes service on the district. Kennedy v. The Ind. S. D. of Derby Grange, 48 Id., 189.

A defendant cannot, after he has by his own act or that of his attorney, recognized the validity of service of notice upon his agent, object to the jurisdiction of the court. Baker v. Kerr, 13 Iowa, 394.

Service may be made upon a partnership by serving the notice on an agent in the general management of its business in the county, in actions growing out of or connected with the business of the agency within the county. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 27 Id., 363.

Also service of notice upon one member of the partnership is sufficient service on the firm. Id.

But service on the wife of a partner is not "service on the partnership." Brydolf v. Wolf et al., 32 Id., 509.
SERVICE BY PUBLICATION.

Sec. 2618. Service may be made by publication, when an affidavit is filed that personal service cannot be made on the defendant within this state, in either of the following cases:
1. In actions brought for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein;
2. In an action for the partition of real property;
3. In an action for the sale of real property under a mortgage, lien, or other encumbrance or charge;
4. In actions to compel the specific performance of a contract of sale of real estate, or in actions to establish or set aside a will where, in such cases, any or all of the defendants reside out of this state and the real property is within this state;
5. In actions brought against a non-resident of this state or a foreign corporation, having in this state property or debts owing to such defendant sought to be taken by any of the provisional remedies, or to be appropriated in any way;
6. In actions which relate to, or the subject of which is real or personal property in this state when any defendant has, or claims, a lien of interest, actual or contingent therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly, or partly, in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is a non-resident of this state, or a foreign corporation;
7. In all actions where the defendant being a resident of the state has departed therefrom, or from the county of his residence with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a notice, or keeps himself concealed therein with like intent;
8. Where the action is for a divorce, if the defendant is a non-resident of the state of Iowa, or his residence is unknown.

Sec. 2619. The publication must be made by publishing the notice required in section two thousand five hundred and ninety-nine of this chapter, four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county where the petition is filed, and if there be none printed in such county, then in such paper printed at the next nearest county of this state, which paper shall in either case be determined by the plaintiff or his attorney.

When a court has, by attachment or otherwise, acquired jurisdiction in rem over the property of a non-resident, it may by means of service, by publication, or personal service without the state, acquire jurisdiction to adjudicate upon and conclude the rights and interests of the defendant in the property thus seized and within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Iowa, 396. See also, Harshberger v. Harshberger, 26 Id., 503; Miller v. Davidson, 31 Id., 435.

A non-resident minor may be served by publication the same, and with like effect as a non-resident adult, and when thus served the court has authority to appoint a guardian ad litem, to defend for him on the failure of his regularly appointed guardian to appear. Judd v. Mosely, 30 Id., 425.

It is essential to the validity of a service by publication that the affidavit constituting the basis by an order of publication should appear of record. Barbsley v. Hines, 33 Id., 157.

It would seem that the publication of an original notice published in the county where the petition is filed but printed in a different county, is not a compliance with section 2619 of the code, and does not confer jurisdiction upon the court. Cooke v. Tallman, 40 Iowa, 133.

Where no newspaper is printed and published in the county, publication may be made in a newspaper printed in either of the counties bordering upon the one in which suit is brought, and this may be selected by plaintiff’s attorney. Id.

SEC. 2620. When the foregoing provisions have been complied with, the defendant so notified shall be required to appear as if personally served within the county in which the petition is filed, on the day of the last publication. Proof thereof being made by the affidavit of the publisher or his foreman, and filed before default is taken.

SEC. 2621. Actual personal service of the notice, either within or without the state, supersedes the necessity of publication.6

(Chapter 124, Laws of 1880.)

* TO LEGALIZE SERVICE OF ORIGINAL NOTICES BY PUBLICATION.

AN ACT to legalize the service of original notices by publication in cases where the petition has not been filed until after the publication of the original notice.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in all cases where an action has been begun in any of the courts of record of this state by serving the original notice by publication as by law provided, and said publication of the original notice has been begun or completed prior to the time of the filing of the petition in the cause, that in each and all said cases, the court in which said cause or action is pending, shall be deemed to have acquired as full and complete jurisdiction thereof as though said petition had been on file at the time said publication of the original notice therein was begun, or at the time the affidavit, provided for in section 2618 of the code of 1873 was filed, and the service of the original notice in all said causes shall be deemed a full compliance with said section 2618, and sections 2619, 2620 and 2621 of the code of 1873.

Approved March 25, 1880.

UNKNOWN DEFENDANTS.

SEC. 2622. In actions where it shall be necessary to make an unknown person defendant, the petition shall be sworn to, and shall state what interest such person has or claims to have, how the same was derived or is claimed to have been derived, as exactly as possible, that the name and residence of such person is unknown to plaintiff and that he had sought diligently to learn the same, and thereon proceedings may be had against such person without naming him, as follows:

SEC. 2623. The court shall approve a notice collected from the averments of the petition, which notice shall contain the name of the plaintiff, a description of the property, and all the allegations of the petition concerning the interest of the unknown person, and the mode of render judgment and to order the sale of the attached property. Billings v. Kothe, 49 Id., 34. Where notice of a motion to vacate a judgment was not served on the plaintiff, but plaintiff appeared and moved to correct the record, his motion being sustained the day after the motion to vacate was filed, and he excepted to the ruling upon the latter motion, held, that he suffered no prejudice for the want of formal notice. Id. 6 Actual personal service of an original notice without the state, supersedes the necessity of publication, and in such a case it is not necessary to file the affidavit that service cannot be made within the state, required by section 2618 of the code. Miller v. Davidson, 31 Iowa, 434. See also, Darmance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Bates v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 19 Id., 260.
of devolution thereof, the relief demanded, also the name of the court and the term at which appearance must be made. Said notice must be entitled in the full name of the plaintiff against the unknown claimants of property, and shall be signed by the plaintiff’s attorney.

Sec. 2624. The court, on its approval of said notice, shall indorse the same thereon, and order that the said notice be published in some newspaper of this state, designating such paper as shall be most likely to give notice to such unknown person.

Sec. 2625. Such notice shall be filed in the cause, and its contents, without more, shall be published in the paper designated at least weekly, for six successive weeks, and at the end of said time service shall be deemed complete, and such unknown person in court at the next term thereafter.

APPEARANCE.

Sec. 2626. The mode of appearance may be:

1. By delivering to the plaintiff or the clerk of the court, a memorandum in writing to the effect that the defendant appears, signed either by the defendant in person, or his attorney, dated the day of its delivery, and to be filed in the case;

2. By announcing to the court an appearance, which shall be entered of record;

3. By an appearance, even though specially made, by himself or his attorney, for any purpose connected with the cause; or for any purpose connected with the service or insufficiency of the notice. And an appearance, special or other, to object to the substance or service of the notice, shall render any further notice unnecessary; but may entitle the defendant to a continuance, if it shall appear to the court that he has not had the full timely notice required of the substantial cause of action stated in the petition.

4. No member of the general assembly shall be held to appear or answer in any civil action or special proceeding, in any court of record, or inferior court, while such general assembly is in session, nor shall any person be so held to answer or appear in any such court, on the 1st day of January, the 4th day of July, the 25th day of December, or on any day of thanksgiving appointed by the president of the United States or by the governor of this state.

A memorandum in writing signed by the defendant, stating that he waives further notice and makes a voluntary appearance, is sufficient to confer jurisdiction upon the court. Shaw v. The N’t St. B’k etc., 49 Iowa, 179.

It is competent for the court to render a decree on the same day that appearance is so entered. Id.

An appearance to object to the sufficiency of the original notice or to the service thereof, is an appearance in the case, but if the defendant has not been notified of the cause of action, he may have a continuance as of course.

When the defect complained of relates to the time for appearance and not to the statement of the cause of action, a continuance can be had only for cause shown. The Des Moines Br. S. Bank v. Van, 12 Iowa, 523.

Where a court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter, a mere irregularity in the notice or in its service will not prevent its exercise where there is a voluntary appearance. By such appearance, the purpose and object of the notice is accomplished, and hence the notice is rendered unnecessary. Wilgus v. Gettings, 19 Id., 82, 84; Post v. Brownell, 36 Id., 497.

An appearance to object to the sufficiency of the notice and to cross-examine plaintiffs’ witnesses is an appearance in the action, and renders the sufficiency of the notice immaterial. Wilsey v. Maynard, 21 Id., 107; Childs v. Limback, 30 Id., 398, and cases cited; Danforth v. Thompson, 34 Id., 243; Hale v. Van Saun, 18 Id., 16.

But an appearance by motion to set aside a sheriff’s sale on a judgment rendered against attached property is not “an appearance for any purpose connected with the suit” within the

SEC. 2627. When the action is against two or more defendants, and one or more shall have been served, but not all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows:

1. If the action be against defendants jointly, or jointly and severally, or severally liable only, he may, without prejudice to his rights in that or any other action against those not served, proceed against those served in the same manner as if they were the only defendants; if he recover against those jointly liable only, he may take judgment against all thus liable, which may be enforced against the joint property and separate property of those served, but not against the separate property of those not served, until they have had opportunity to show cause why judgment should not be enforced against their separate property; or,

2. The plaintiff may continue till the next term, and proceed to bring in the other defendants; but at such second term the suit shall proceed against all who have been served in due time, and no further delay shall be allowed to bring in the others, unless all that appear shall consent to such delay.

REAL ESTATE.

SEC. 2628. When a petition has been filed affecting real estate, the action is pending so as to charge third persons with notice of its pendency, and while pending no interest can be acquired by third persons in the subject matter thereof as against the plaintiff’s title, if the real property affected be situated in the county where the petition is filed.

meaning of the provisions of this section. Osborn v. Cloud, Id., 238.

The appearance of a defendant, who has not been served with notice, to testify as a witness in the case does not constitute an appearance so as to bring him within the jurisdiction of the court as a party to the action. Nixon v. Downey et al., 42 Id., 78.

Where a defendant appears and pleads, he waives all defects in the process. Bell & Pearson v. Achison, Morris, 21; Lorrimer v. The Bank of IIs., Id., 223.

Where a defendant appears by his attorney and consents that a judgment may be entered against him with stay of execution, etc., it is a waiver of objection to the jurisdiction of the court, and of any irregularity in the mesne process. Switzer v. Goudy, Mor., 243.

1 The purchaser of real property at a foreclosure sale is charged with notice of the rights of the plaintiff in another proceeding to foreclose another mortgage on the same property, and is bound by the decree thereafter rendered, notwithstanding he was not a party thereto. Cooley v. Brayton, 16 Iowa, 10.

The doctrine of lis pendens has been enlarged by the statute. Id.

A pending action to foreclose a mortgage is, under the statute, constructive notice to the world of the interest of the mortgagor. Knowles v. Rablin et al., 20 Id., 101; Woodin v. Clemons, 32 Id., 280.

A purchaser of lands at tax sale made after the commencement of an action to foreclose a mortgage on the same lands in favor of the university fund, acquires no interest in the premises as against such mortgage which would not be cut off or bound by the decree in favor of such fund. Crum v. Cotting, 22 Id., 411.

The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply where neither the vendor nor the purchaser are parties to the action. This rule is not changed by this section of the statute. Parsons v. Hoyt, 24 Id., 154.

The pendency of an action affecting real property is sufficient to charge third persons, purchasing one of the parties, with notice thereof. Snowden & Co. v. Craig, 26 Id., 156; Blanchard et al. v. Ware, 37 Id., 393.

The filing of a petition affecting real property creates a lis pendens under the statute. Harshberger v. Harshberger, 26 Id., 503.

Where land is sold in one county under an execution issued upon a judgment rendered in another county, the recording of the sheriff’s deed will operate as constructive notice, although no transcript of the judgment was filed in the county where the land was situated. Foreman v. Higham, 35 Id., 382.

Where land is conveyed, after the commence-
When any part of real property, the subject of an action, is situated in any other county than the one in which the action is brought, the plaintiff must, in order to affect third persons with constructive notice of the pendency of the action, file with the clerk of the district court of such county, a notice of the pendency of the action, containing the names of the parties, the object of the action, and a description of the property in the county affected thereby, and from the time of such filing only shall the pendency of the action be constructive notice to subsequent vendees or incumbrancers thereof, who shall be bound by all the proceedings taken after the filing of such notice, to the same extent as if a party to the action, and the clerk of such county must, immediately on receipt of such notice, index and record the same in the incumbrance book. And within two months after the determination of such action, there shall be filed with such clerk a certified copy of the final order, judgment, or decree, who shall enter and index the same in the manner as though rendered in that county, or such notice of pendency shall cease to be constructive notice.

CHAPTER 7.

OF JOINDER OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 2630. Causes of action of whatever kind, where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings, provided that they be by the same party, and against the same party in the same rights, and if suit on all may be brought and tried in that county, may be joined in the same petition; but the court, to prevent confusion therein, may direct all or any portion of the issues joined therein to be tried separately, and may determine the order thereof.1

Under section 2630 of the code a cause of action arising from tort, may be joined with one arising on contract, when they are between the same parties, in the same right, and have the same venue and where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings. Turner v. The First N. Bk. etc., 26 Iowa, 562; Reed v. House, 28 Id., 250; Hinkle v. Davenport, 38 Id., 355.

This section does not apply to actions by a municipal corporation against lot owners upon an assessment for the construction of side walks. The City of Des Moines v. Stephenson, 19 Id., 507.

An action upon a promissory note against the maker and indorser, cannot be joined with an action on an account against the indorser only. Thorpe Bros. & Co. v. Dickey et al., 51 Iowa, 676.

A joint action for trespass and damage to crops by stock cannot be maintained against the several owners of the stock. Cogswell v. Murphy, et al., 46 Id., 44.

The objection to such a misjoinder may be taken by answer and also by motion in arrest of judgment. Id.

In an action by a creditor to set aside a conveyance of land on the ground of fraud and subject it to the plaintiff's claim against the grantor, a money demand arising on contract cannot be joined. Stevens v. Chance, 47 Id., 602.

R. §§ 2846, 2847.

SEC. 2631. The plaintiff may strike from his petition any cause of action or any part thereof, at any time before the final submission of the case to the jury or to the court, when the trial is by the court.²

SEC. 2632. The court, at any time before the defense, shall on motion of the defendant, strike out of the petition any cause or causes of action improperly joined with others.¹

SEC. 2633. All objections to the misjoinder of causes of actions shall be deemed to be waived, unless made as provided in the last section.³

SEC. 2634. When a motion is sustained on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action, the court, on motion of the plaintiff, shall allow him, with or without costs in its discretion, to file several petitions, each including such of said causes of action as might have been joined, and action shall be docketed for each of said petitions, and the same shall be proceeded in without further service, and the court shall determine, by order, the time of pleading therein.

CHAPTER 8.

OF PLEADING.

SEC. 2635. The defendant shall, in an action commenced in a court of record, demur, answer, or do both as to the original petition before noon of the second day of the term.

SEC. 2636. Each party shall demur, answer, or reply to all subsequent pleadings, including amendments thereto and substitutes therefor, before noon of the day succeeding that on which the pleading is filed. But all pleadings must be filed by the time the cause is reached for trial.

SEC. 2637. The day on which the judge actually opens court shall be, for the purpose of timing the pleading, considered the first day of the term.

SEC. 2638. The court may extend the time of filing any pleading beyond that herein fixed, but shall do so with due regard to making up issues at the earliest day possible.

SEC. 2639. All motions assailing a pleading shall be in writing, and filed before an answer or reply has been filed to the pleading assailed, except as provided in section two thousand six hundred and fifty of this chapter, and shall specify the causes on which they are founded, and none other shall be argued or considered. But one

¹ Where an action has been commenced to foreclose a mortgage upon land lying in another county, the plaintiff may, after a motion to change the venue has been made, dismiss that part of his cause of action which asks a foreclosure, and take judgment for the amount due on the note it being payable in that county. Allen v. Bidwell, et al., 35 Iowa, 283.

² When a party has once plainly and clearly denied each of the averments of the petition essential to the recovery, he cannot do the same thing in several other courts and call each a defense, and if he does so the court will strike out these redundant counts. Martin v. Sieckens, 17 Iowa, 346, 348; Davenport Gas l. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Id., 6.

³ Where there is a misjoinder of parties as well as of causes of action a failure to make the motion provided for in section 2633, will not operate as a waiver of the objections; but the same may be urged in a motion in arrest of judgment. Cogswell v. Murphy et al., 46 Id., 44.
motion and one demurrer assailing such pleading shall be filed, unless such pleading be amended after the filing of a motion or demurrer thereto.

Sec. 2640. A demurrer or motion assailing any pleading or count thereof, suspends the necessity of filing any other pleading to such pleading or count until the same has been determined, and the next pleading shall be filed by the morning of the day succeeding such determination.

Sec. 2641. All motions and demurrers shall be argued and submitted when filed, unless the adverse party is absent or desires time, in which case it shall be extended until the morning of the succeeding day unless the cause is sooner reached for trial.

Sec. 2642. A motion or demurrer once filed, shall not be withdrawn without the consent of the adverse party entered thereon, or of the court.

Sec. 2643. The filing of a pleading or motion in the clerk's office during a term, and a memorandum of such filing made in the appearance docket within the time allowed, shall be equivalent to filing the same in open court.

Sec. 2644. All technical forms of action and pleading, all common counts, general issues, and all fictions are abolished, and hereafter the forms of pleading in civil actions, and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, are those prescribed in this code.

Sec. 2645. Pleadings are the written statements by the parties of their respective claims and defenses, and are:
1. The petition of the plaintiff;
2. The demurrer or answer of the defendant;
3. The demurrer or reply of the plaintiff;
4. The demurrer or answer of the defendant.

PETITION.

Sec. 2646. The petition must contain:
1. The name of the court and county in which the action is brought;
2. The names of the parties to the action, plaintiffs and defendants, followed by the word "petition" if the proceedings are ordinary, and by the words "petition in equity" if the proceedings are equitable;
3. The names of the parties to the action, plaintiffs and defendants, followed by the word "petition" if the proceedings are ordinary, and by the words "petition in equity" if the proceedings are equitable;
4. Under the statute all forms of action and pleadings are abolished, and the plaintiff recovers, if at all, on the facts stated and proved. McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 160, 163.
5. Under the code a cause of action may be stated in more than one count of the petition and while a statement therein that such counts are for the same cause of action is unnecessary, yet it will not vitiate the pleading. Pearson v. The M. & St. Paul R. Co., 45 Id., 497.
6. All prior forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the rules of the code, and not those laid down by Stephen and Chitty, are the tests to determine the sufficiency of pleadings. Per Dillon, J. in Taylor v. Adair et al., 22 Iowa, 275, 281.
7. A motion to dismiss an appeal from a justice's court, made on an imperfect record, will not preclude the party from making another motion for the same purpose upon an amended and perfected record. Seacrist v. Newman, 19 Iowa, 324.
8. A motion to dissolve an injunction which does not specify the grounds on which it is founded, should not be considered by the court. Hall v. Crouse, 14 Id., 487.
3. A statement of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action;\
4. A demand of the relief to which the plaintiff considers himself entitled, and if such demand be for money, the amount thereof must be stated;\
5. Where the petition contains more than one cause of action, each must be stated wholly in a count or division by itself, and must be sufficient in itself; but one prayer for judgment may include a sum based on all counts looking to a money remedy;\
6. In a petition by equitable proceedings, each division shall also be separated into paragraphs, numbered as such for more convenient reference, and each paragraph shall contain, as near as may be convenient, a complete and distinct statement.

Amended before answer. R. § 2975.

Sec. 2647. The plaintiff may amend his petition without leave at any time before the answer is filed, without prejudice to the proceedings already had; but a notice of such amendment shall be served on the defendant or his attorney, and the defendant shall have the same time to answer or demur thereto as he had to the original petition.

DEMURRER.

Sec. 2648. The defendant may demur to the petition only where it appears on its face, either:
1. That the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant or the subject of the action; or,
2. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue; or,
3. That there is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause; or,
4. That there is a defect of parties, plaintiffs or defendants; or,

The entire conversation in which slanderous words are spoken, constitutes but a single cause of action, although the words contain several distinct charges, either of which is actionable. Cragcraft v. Cochran, 16 Iowa, 301.

It is only the ultimate facts—the facts which the evidence will establish—that constitutes the cause of action, which should be stated, and not the circumstantial facts which go to prove them. Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220.

In an action of replevin, the wrongful detention is the gist of action, and a failure to allege it in the petition may be taken advantage of by demurrer, in arrest of judgment or upon appeal. Darperi v. Ellis, 12 Id., 316.

Under our code the word "petition" takes the place of the word "bill" as heretofore used in equity, and the word "declaration" as used at law. Per Dillon, J. in Freiber v. Shafer, 18 Id., 29, 32.

In equitable proceedings under a prayer or demand for general relief such a decree will be rendered as is warranted by the facts stated, beyond that specifically asked for. Simplot v. Simplot, 14 Iowa, 449; Casady v. Woodbury county, 13 Id., 119.

A decree will not be rendered against a party against whom no relief is demanded in the petition. Mohly v. Dubuque Gas L. & Coke Co., 11 Id., 71.

Nor, in an action to foreclose a mortgage, will the court make a decree against property not described in the petition, although it may be included in the mortgage on which the deed is brought. Carson v. Underwood, 12 Id., 52.

Each count must contain a statement of a cause of action as fully and sufficiently as if it was the only count in the petition. It cannot be aided by being stated in another count. The National Bank of Mich. v. Green, 33 Iowa, 140.

When the contract which is the basis of the action, is made by each of several defendants, the cause of action arising thereon should be stated in but one count of the petition; but where several defendants are liable to the plaintiff on different contracts for the same debt, as in the case of the maker and indorser of a promissory note, furnishing different causes of action against each, they must be stated in different counts. Tucker v. Shiner, 24 Id., 334; Turner v. The First National Bank, S. C., 26 Id., 562.

A plaintiff may amend his petition, without leave, at any time before answer is filed, upon giving proper notice thereof to defendant. Per Buck Ch. J. in Allen v. Bedwell, 35 Iowa, 86, 88.
5. That the facts stated in the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded;
6. That the petition, on the face thereof, shows that the claim is barred by the statute of limitations; or fails to show it to be in writing where it should be so evidenced; or, if founded on an account, or writing as evidence of indebtedness, and neither of such writings, account, or copy thereof is incorporated into or attached to such pleading, or a sufficient reason stated for not doing so."
Jones v. Brunskill, 18 Id., 129; McKeller v. Stout, 13 Id., 487.

A demurrer may be interposed only for objections appearing on the face of the pleading. Polk County v. Hierb, 57 Id., 361.

When the objections do not appear on the face of the pleading, they may be taken by answer. Meunch v. Breitenbach, 41 Id., 527.

Demurrer is the proper remedy where a petition asking a writ of mandamus shows that the act is a plain, speedy and adequate remedy by an ordinary action. A motion to dismiss will not lie. Meyer v. Dubuque County, 43 Id., 592.

In an equitable action improperly commenced in behalf of the "minor heirs" of a deceased devisee, instead of in behalf of the "heirs of her body," advantage may be taken of the defect by general demurrer, although the demurrer be not in the precise language of the code, the intention of the pleader to assail the defect being apparent. Hanna v. Hawes et al., 45 Id., 437.

Where the petition shows on its face that its cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations, it may be assailed by a demurrer. Miller v. Dawson et al., 26 Id., 136; Brown v. Bockhold, 49 Id., 232.

A demurrer is proper where a pleading does not on its face show a sufficient cause of action or defense, and can be interposed only where the legal sufficiency of the entire count in the pleading is assailed. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158.

A demurrer which strikes alone at the sufficiency of the account annexed to the petition, does not admit the truth of the other allegations therein, and upon failure of defendant to answer over, the right of the plaintiff to judgment must be established by evidence, as upon a default. Seiler v. Reed, 11 Id., 89.

In a proceeding to set aside a confession of judgment on the ground of insufficiency of the statement on which it was rendered, it is not necessary to annex a copy of such statement to the petition as an exhibit. Vannice v. Greene, Tracy & Co., 14 Id., 262.

Where a pleading sets up, as a cause of action or counter-claim, the breach of covenants in a deed, a copy of the deed should be annexed to such pleading as an exhibit. Nosler v. Hunt, 18 Id., 212.

Where a petition shows affirmatively that its cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations, it may be assailed by demurrer. Lawrence v. Sinnamon, 24 Id., 80; Miller v. Dawson & Cone, 26 Id., 136; Parsons v. Carey, 25 Id., 431; Lamb v. Withrow, 31 Id., 164.

To be available, the statute of limitations must be pleaded either by answer or raised by demurrer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 27.

The statute does not contemplate that instruments of evidence merely, which do not constitute the basis of the cause of action, or counter-claim, should be annexed to or set out in the pleading, in order to render them admissible in evidence. Taylor v. The C. R. & St. P. R. Co., 26 Id., 371.

The failure, in an action for damages for breach of contract, to state specifically the damage suffered by the plaintiff cannot be objected to by demurrer, but it is ground for a motion for a more specific statement. McCormick v. Basal, 46 Id., 235.

In an action against a railroad company to recover double damages for killing stock, the objection that the petition failed to set out the notice served upon the company must be made by demurrer, or it will be held to be waived. McKinley v. The Co., B. I. & P. R. Co., 47 Id., 76.

Where an action is brought upon a judgment of a court of record of this State before the expiration of fifteen years from the date of its rendition, the petition will be demurrable, unless it alleges that leave of court to bring the action has been obtained. Watts v. Everett, 47 Id., 269.

Where the demurrer sets forth in general terms that the petition does not state a cause of action or show such a state of facts as will justify the court in granting any relief, it should be disregarded because not sufficiently specific. McKeller v. Stout, 13 Iowa, 487.

A demurrer should use language which will point to the fact which renders the pleading bad, but need not give the reasons leading to this conclusion. Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Id., 6; see also Middleton Savings Bank v. The City of Dubuque, 13 Id., 494; Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 34 Id., 45.

A demurrer should clearly point out the objection to the pleading, which is intended to be developed by the argument; when not thus specified it should be disregarded by the court. Jones v. Brunskill, 18 Id., 129; Luse v. City of Des Moines, per Dillon, J., 22 Id., on p. 592; Piper v. Newcomer & Campbell, 25 Id., 221; Singer v. Calera, 25 Id., 275; McGregor & S. C. R. Co. v. Birdsall, 30 Id., 255; Childs v. Limbach, 13 Id., 583; McLoughlin v. Bascomb, 36 Id., 583; Hanna v. Hawes, 45 Id., 437, 441.

In equitable actions, a demurrer may properly state, in general terms, that the facts alleged in the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded. Fisher v. Beard, 32 Id., 346; 348, per Miller, J.; Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 34 Id., 54; Cowen v. Boo.v et al., 48 Id., 350.
SEC. 2650. When any of the matters enumerated as grounds of demurrer do not appear on the face of the petition, the objection may be taken by answer. If no such objection is taken, it shall be deemed waived. If the facts stated by the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to any relief whatever, advantage may be taken of it by motion in arrest of judgment, before judgment is entered.\[w\

SEC. 2651. The defendant may demur to one or more of the several causes of action alleged in the petition, and answer as to the residue.\[w\

SEC. 2652. The opposite party shall be deemed to join in a demurrer, whenever he shall not amend the pleading to which it is addressed.\[w\

SEC. 2653. Upon a demurrer being overruled, the party demurring may answer or reply.\[w\

SEC. 2654. Upon a decision of a demurrer, if the unsuccessful party fail to amend or plead over, the same consequences shall ensue as though a verdict had passed against the plaintiff, or the defendant had made default, as the case may be.\[7\

\[w\]An objection apparent on the face of a pleading, which might have been raised by a demurrer, will be waived by going to trial on the merits, and cannot be raised for the first time in an instruction. Young v. Broadbent, 20 Id., 359. So, also, when the plaintiff fails to annex to his petition either the original or a copy of an instrument which is the foundation of the action; if the objection is not made by demurrer, it will be waived. Smith & Co. v. McLean, 21 Id., 322.

An objection that the petition in an action against a railroad company contains no allegation of the corporate character of the defendant, cannot be made on a motion in arrest of judgment, but should have been raised by demurrer. Andre v. The C. & N. W. Ry. Co., 30 Id., 107; see also Byington v. M. & M. R. Co., 11 Id., 502.

Want of jurisdiction is ground for demurrer only when it appears on the face of the petition; a demurrer cannot be aided by extraneous evidence. Childs v. Limback, 30 Id., 398.

The statute of limitations, as a defense, is not available unless taken advantage of on demurrer or pleaded by answer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 27.

When a petition asking a mandamus shows on its face that the plaintiff has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy, it should be assailed by demurrer. Meyer v. Dubuque County, 43 Id., 592.

Where a petition is defective in substance and the defendant answers instead of demurring thereto, he may move in arrest of judgment after trial. Edgerly v. The Farmers' Ins. Co., 43 Id., 587.

That the petition, in an action for selling liquor to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated, did not show that the action was commenced by a citizen of the county, cannot be made for the first time in the Supreme Court. Church v. Higham, 44 Id., 452.

If a petition is not assailed by motion, demurrer, or in arrest of judgment, an objection which may have been made by either of those methods, but was not, will be deemed to have been waived. Murphy, Neal Co., v. Creighton, 45 Id., 179.

The objection that one who is a necessary party is not joined in the action, will be waived if not raised by demurrer. Ryan & Co. v. Meul- linz, 63 Id., 451.

Where a party fails to take the objection, either by demurrer or answer, it will be waived. Springer v. Bartle, 46 Id., 688, 692.

Advantage may be taken of a misjoinder of parties by answer and by motion in arrest of judgment. Cogswell v. Murphy, 44 Id., 44. See also Boude v. The M. E. Church, 47 Id., 705, 707.

An objection to the sufficiency of a pleading must be taken by motion, demurrer, reply or in arrest of judgment. It cannot be raised for the first time by way of an instruction to the jury. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 45 Id., 511; Nollen v. Wisner, 11 Id., 191.

\[7\]Upon the overruling of a demurrer to a petition, if the defendant fails to plead over, he should be regarded as in default, merely; and final judgment should not be rendered against him in behalf of the plaintiff without evidence sustaining the cause of action. Musser & Co. v. Hobart, 14 Id., 248.

Where the plaintiff demurred to defendant's answer, which set up a complete defense to the action, and upon the overruling of the demurrer, stood by his demurrer and refused to further plead, it was held not error for the court to render judgment for the defendant for costs without a trial of the issues of fact. Simeral v. The Des Moines Fire Insurance Co., 18 Id., 319; Brown v. Mallory, 26 Id., 469, 472; Bridge, Back & Co. v. Livingstone, 11 Id., 59.

A demurrer will not lie to a single paragraph or allegation of a pleading in an equitable action, when such paragraph or allegation, though deficient in itself, when taken with others in the pleading, they constitute a good cause of action or ground of defense. Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., 37.

Where a demurrer to an answer is overruled.
ANSWER.

Sec. 2655. The answer shall contain:
1. The name of the court, of the county, and of the plaintiffs and defendants, but when there are several plaintiffs and defendants, it shall only be necessary to give the first name of each class, with the words, and others;
2. A general denial of each allegation of the petition, or else of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief;
3. A specific denial of each allegation of the petition controverted by the defendant, or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief;
4. A statement of any new matter constituting a defense;
5. A statement of any new matter constituting a counter-claim;
6. The defendant may set forth in his answer as many causes of defense, counter-claim, whether legal or equitable, as he may have.

Sec. 2656. The guardian of a minor, or person of unsound mind, or attorney for a person in prison, must deny in the answer all the material allegations of the petition prejudicial to such defendant.

Sec. 2657. Each affirmative defense shall be stated in a distinct division of the answer, and must be sufficient in itself, and must inand judgment rendered against the plaintiff thereon upon his failure to plead over or prosecute his action, he will not, after appeal, be allowed to withdraw the demurrer and have a trial on the issues of fact. Dunlop & Co. v. Cody, 31 Id., 290; Grimes v. Hamilton county, 37 Id., 290.

A demurrer cannot properly be sustained to a whole pleading, one count of which is good as putting in issue material facts alleged in the petition. McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt 29 Id., 137.

A denial in answer of any information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the matter alleged in the petition, raises no issue to be tried by a jury or otherwise. The denial must be of any knowledge as well as of any information. Both must be stated. Manny & Co. v. French, 23 Iowa, 250.

But when the denial is in this respect in the language of the statute it forms a material issue and cannot be stricken from the files as frivolous. McFarland, Dodge & Co. v. Lester, Id., 290; McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137.

An equitable defense may be pleaded in an action at law, or by ordinary proceeding; for the recovery of the possession of real property. Van Orman v. Stafford, Clarke & Co., 16 Iowa, 186; Bosierz v. Van Dam, Id., 175; Rainer v. Conger, Id., 494; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; per Cole, J., in Thompson v. Hurley, 19 Id., on page 355; Shawhan v. Long, 26 Id., 455; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476; Hackett v. High, 28 Id., 539.

The defendant may plead as many defenses, either legal or equitable, as he has. When the defense in a law action is equitable in its nature it is to be viewed in the same manner as to the substance, as if the same facts had been made the basis of a petition in equity for affirmative relief. Penny v. Cook, 19 Id., 538; Thompson v. Hurley, Id., 355; Rogers v. Guinn, 21 Id., 58; Roberts v. Austin Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315, 327.

An accord with tender of satisfaction may be pleaded by way of counter-claim for damages, resulting to him from the failure of the plaintiff to perform his part of the contract by refusing to accept what he agreed to receive in satisfaction. Bronner v. Piper, 25 Id., 400.

Sub-division six of this section contemplates that the counter-claim shall be pleaded in or as part of the answer, and there is no provision of the statute requiring the pleading to state in words that the matter set forth is pleaded as counter-claim. The Union National Bank v. Carr, 49 Id., 359, 360.

The defendant, in an ordinary or law action, may plead equitable matters in defense, and have the issues thus presented tried in the manner provided for the trial of equitable actions; and the court would order, and the better practice would dictate, that these issues be first tried. Hackett v. High, 28 Id., 539; Kramer v. Conger, 16 Id., 434; Byers v. Rodabaugh 17 Id., 53.

A counter-claim is an answer, and a suit for damages on an attachment bond, by the defendant in the main action, is a counter-claim; that the counter-claim is interposed merely for delay, and not in good faith, does not affect the legal rights of the parties. Town v. Bringolf, 47 Id., 133.

It is within the discretion of the court to permit an answer to be withdrawn and a demurrer filed, and the exercise of this discretion will not be reviewed by the appellate court unless an abuse of it be shown. Byington v. Stone, 51 Id., 317.
terligibly refer to that part of the petition to which it is intended to apply.

SEC. 2658. In the defense part of an answer or reply, it shall not be necessary to make any prayer for judgment.

COUNTER CLAIM.

SEC. 2659. Each counter claim must be stated in a distinct division, and must be:

1. When the action is founded on contract, a cause of action also arising on contract, or ascertained by the decision of a court; or,

2. A cause of action in favor of the defendants, or some of them, against the plaintiffs, or some of them, arising out of the contracts or transactions set forth in the petition or connected with the subject of the action; or,

3. Any new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of the defendant, or all of the defendants if more than one, against the plaintiff, or all of the plaintiffs if more than one, and which the defendant or defendants might have brought when suit was commenced or which was then held, either matured or not, if matured when so plead.  6

SEC. 2660. An equitable division must also be separated into paragraphs, and numbered as required in regard to an equitable cause of action in the petition.

SEC. 2661. A co-maker, or surety, when sued alone, may, with the consent of his co-maker or principal, avail himself by way of counter claim, of a debt or liquidated demand due from the plaintiff at the commencement of the suit to such co-maker, or principal, but the plaintiff may meet such counter claim in the same way as if made by the co-maker or principal himself.

A division of an answer, which does not purport to relate to any particular count in the petition, will be considered with reference to the whole petition, and when such division is insufficient as to any one count of the petition, it will be treated as insufficient as to all. The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Iowa, 6, 18.

Each count, if an answer, must be sufficient in itself for the purposes for which it is pleaded; otherwise, it is vulnerable to a demurrer; it cannot be aided by matter stated in another count. The National Bank of Michigan v. Green, 33 Id., 140.

Where new matter is pleaded in evidence, there should be in the same count a confession that but for such new matter the action would be maintainable; but such confession may be by implication as well as directly. Morgan & Rogers v. The Hawkeye Ins. Co., 37 Id., 359, Anson v. Dwight, 18 Id., 241.

Claims for damages arising upon torts, as well as for money due on contracts, may be pleaded by way of counter-claim. Campbell v. Fink, 11 Iowa, 318, 319, 1 Id.

Where matter pleaded in an answer is not set up as a counter-claim, and is not stated as a defense in bar, it may be stricken from the answer. Amsden v. The D. & S. C. Ry Co., 13 Id., 132.

A defendant may plead as a counter-claim against the plaintiff, a claim arising on contract, which would constitute in his favor a cause of action against the plaintiff and others jointly bound with him. Redman & Fear v. Malvin & Cloud, 23 Id., 296.

In an action against husband and wife jointly, the defendants cannot plead as a counter-claim, a cause of action against the plaintiff for a previous malicious prosecution of the wife alone; nor can the husband, in such case, set up by way of counter-claim, a claim for damages accruing to him for a malicious prosecution of himself or minor children by plaintiff. Musselman v. Galligher, 32 Id., 383.

Under our statute, fraud may be pleaded as a counter-claim, and when so pleaded, in addition to defeating plaintiff’s action, it may entitle the defendant to an affirmative judgment; but this does not take away the common law right of relying upon the fraud as a defense in whole or in part. Coe v. Lindley, 32 Id., 437, 442.

A pleading setting up a counter claim, which does not arise out of the contract or transaction set forth in the petition, and is not connected with the subject of the action, and does not contain new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of all the defendants against all the plaintiffs, may be stricken from the files. Exline v. Loury, 46 Id., 556.
Pleading. [Title XVII.]

Sec. 2662. When a new party is necessary to a final decision upon a counter claim, the court may either permit such party to be made, or direct that it be stricken out of the answer and made the subject of a separate action.

Sec. 2663. When a defendant has a cause of action affecting the subject matter of the action against a co-defendant, or a person not a party to the action, he may in the same action, file a cross petition against the co-defendant or other person. The defendants thereto may be notified as in other cases, and defense thereto shall be made in the time and manner prescribed in regard to the original petition, and with the same right of obtaining provisional remedies applicable to the case. The prosecution of the cross petition shall not delay the trial of the original action, when a judgment can be rendered therein that will not prejudice the rights of the parties to the cross petition.

Sec. 2664. When the facts stated in the answer, or any count or division thereof, are not sufficient to constitute a defense or counter claim, the adverse party may demur, and shall be held to the same certainty in the statement of the grounds therefor as obtains in a demurrer to the petition.

Reply.

Sec. 2665. There shall be no reply except:
1. Where a counter claim is alleged; or,
2. Where some matter is alleged in the answer to which the plaintiff has no new matter to plead in confession and avoidance.

4 Where a defendant files a cross-petition, under this section, against his co-defendant, the subsequent dismissal of the original petition will not necessarily operate to dismiss the cross-petition. Spearing v. Chambers et al., 25 Iowa, 99.

An answer in order to be sufficient must either deny the allegations of the petition, or it must confess and avoid them. The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Iowa, 6.

A demurrer to an answer must be as specific as a demurrer to a petition. Fockler v. Martin, 32 Id., 117, 119; McKellar v. Stout, 13 Id., 457; Jones v. Brunsstill, 18 Id., 129.

Under the revision a reply was allowable only when allegations of counter claims, set-off or cross-demand were pleaded in the answer. When no such allegations were contained in the answer, it was deemed controverted without further pleading, as upon direct denial, or confession, or avoidance; as the case required. Smith v. Milburn, 17 Iowa, 30; Adams v. Peck, 14 Id., 508; Davenport S. F. & L. A. v. The North Am. P. Ins. Co., 16 Id., 74; Clark v. Cross, 20 Id., 50, 54; Finley v. Brown, 22 Id., 558; Noble v. The S. B. N. Ins., 23 Id., 109; Carleton v. Byington, 24 Id., 175; Allison & Crane v. King, 25 Id., 55; Harris v. Bawmer, 36 Id., 389; Geyer v. Higgins, 37 Id., 517.

Under the code a reply is unnecessary where the answer does not set up a counter-claim, and the plaintiff has no new matter to plead in confession and avoidance. Nor is a reply allowable under such circumstances. Davis v. Payne, et al., 45 Id., 194. But if the plaintiff desires to prove matter in avoidance of the defense set up, he must plead it in a reply. Id.

When the defendant pleads an assignment, and the plaintiff fails to reply thereto, he cannot introduce evidence to show the assignment to be a forgery, but the burden is upon the defendant to prove the genuineness of the assignment. Hay v. Frazier, 49 Id., 454.

The allegations of an answer, unless the same contains a counter claim, are deemed to be denied without further pleading on the part of the plaintiff, and unless they are supported by evidence, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment upon proof of the statements of his petition. Cassidy v. Caton, 47 Id., 22.

The plaintiff may file a reply later than noon of the day succeeding that on which the answer is filed, upon reasonable terms to be imposed by the court. Williams v. The Niagara F. Ins. Co., 50 Id., 561.

A failure to reply will not entitle the plaintiff to a judgement upon a claim for unliquidated damages, it being necessary that such damages should be assessed by a jury or by the court. Yoe & Co. v. Nichols, 51 Id., 930.

An allegation in an answer is to be taken as true when the plaintiff, in reply, pleads in confession and avoidance. Clapp v. Cunningham, 50 Id., 307.
Sec. 2666. When a reply must be filed, it shall consist of:
1. A general or specific denial of each allegation or counter claim controverted, or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief; or,
2. Any new matter not inconsistent with the petition, constituting a defense to the matter alleged in the answer; or the matter in the answer may be confessed, and any new matter alleged, not inconsistent with the petition, which avoids the same. 9

Sec. 2667. Any number of defenses, negative or affirmative, are pleadable to a counter claim, and each affirmative matter of defense in the reply shall be sufficient in itself, and must intelligibly refer to the part of the answer to which it is intended to apply. A division of equitable matter must also be separated into paragraphs and numbered as required in case of such matter in the answer.

Sec. 2668. When the facts stated in the reply do not amount to a sufficient defense, the defendant may demur, subject to the same requirements of certainty in statements of grounds thereof as obtain in demurrer to the petition.

Verification.

Sec. 2669. Every pleading must be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and when any pleading in a case shall be verified by affidavit, all subsequent pleadings, except demurrers, shall be verified also; and in all cases of verification of a pleading, the affidavit shall be to the effect that the affiant believes the statements thereof to be true. b

Sec. 2670. Where a corporation is a party, the affidavit may be made by an officer thereof.

Sec. 2671. When there are several parties united in interest, the affidavit may be made by any one of them.

Sec. 2672. If the pleading be founded on a written instrument for the payment of money only, and such instrument be in possession of the agent or attorney, the affidavit may be made by such agent or attorney, so far as relates to the statement of the cause of action thereon; but when relief is asked other than a money judgment or decree of foreclosure, the affidavit must contain averments showing competency as herein provided. 1

9 Where a petition is defective in substance and the defendant fails to demur, but takes advantage of the defect by answer, the plaintiff may either amend his petition or reply by confessing and avoiding the matter stated in the answer. Edgarly v. The Farmers' Ins. Co., 43 Iowa, 587, 592.

This section, in providing that a reply must not be inconsistent with the petition, does not apply to an amendment to a petition after a petition of intervention has been filed, which is in effect an answer to the latter, and sets up a counter claim, notwithstanding such amendment be inconsistent with the original petition. Judd et al. v. The D. & F. T. R. Co., 49 Id., 627.

b An answer to a verified petition in an attachment suit, which was not sworn to as required by this section, was held properly stricken from the files, on motion of the plaintiff. Harper v. Drake, 15 Iowa, 157. See also Brady v. Otis, 40 Id., 97, 99.

The court may, after answer filed, permit the plaintiff to amend his petition, which is not sworn to, by adding a verification to the same; and after such amendment, if the defendant refuse to verify his answer, or to file a verified answer within the time allowed by law to plead, a default may be entered against him. Wilson v. Preston, Id., 246.

The certificate to the affidavit should state not only that the affidavit was subscribed in the officer's presence, but that it was sworn to before him. Way v. Lamb, Id., 79.

1 An attorney who has full knowledge of the facts stated in the petition, where the plaintiff himself could have possessed no more complete or certain knowledge, is competent to verify the petition. Brady v. Otis, 40 Iowa, 97.

A pleading may be verified by an attorney who states in his affidavit that his knowledge of the facts therein stated is better than that of the party himself, and that he knows the facts thus stated to be true. Yoe & Co. v. Nichols, 51 Iowa, 330.
By any person knowing the facts.
R. §§ 2905, 2909.

Counter claim may be.

Sec. 2673. If the statements of a pleading are known to any person other than the party, such person may make the affidavit, which shall contain averments showing affiant competent to make the same.

Sec. 2674. Where the petition is not verified, and the answer contains a counter claim, the same may be verified apart from the defense part of the answer, and the foregoing provisions are applicable to the counter claim as if the same were a separate pleading.

Sec. 2675. Verification shall not be required to any pleading of a guardian, executor, or prisoner in the penitentiary, nor to any pleading controverting the answer of a garnishee, nor to one grounded on an injury to the person or the character.

Sec. 2676. When it can be seen from the pleading to be answered, that an admission of the truth of its allegations might subject the party to a criminal prosecution, no verification shall be required.

Sec. 2677. If a pleading be not verified, it may be struck out on motion; but such defect will be deemed waived if the other party respond thereto, or proceed to trial without such motion.

Sec. 2678. The verification of the pleading does not apply to the amount claimed, except in actions founded on contract, express or implied, for the payment of money only.

Sec. 2679. The verification shall not make other or greater proof necessary on the side of the adverse party.

Sec. 2680. Courts may permit the amendments authorized by this chapter to be made without being verified, unless a new and distinct cause of action or counter claim is thereby introduced.

SLANDER—LIBEL.

Sec. 2681. In an action for slander or libel, it shall not be necessary to state any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of any defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, or that the matter was used in a defamatory sense; but it shall be sufficient to state the defamatory sense in which such matter was used, and that the same was spoken or published concerning the plaintiff.

1 In an action commenced by a partnership in the firm name of "S. G. L. Bro. & Co.," the petition was verified by the affidavit of I. L. the affidavit failing to show that he was a member of plaintiff's firm, although an account annexed to the petition was sworn to by said I. L. as a member of the firm; it was held, that in the absence of proof to the contrary it will be presumed that the petition was properly verified. Lessom Bro. & Co. v. Wilson, 48 Iowa, 483.

In action in which an attachment is asked, the affidavit of the attorney for the plaintiff to the effect that the facts set forth in the petition are better known to him than to the plaintiff and that he knows them to be true, constitutes a sufficient verification. Brusch v. Moore, 45 Id., 611.

2 A defective verification to a pleading is waived by pleading thereto without objection. Hughes v. Peter, 18 Iowa, 142.

A verified answer does not make other or greater proof necessary than if the answer is not verified. Shepard v. Ford, 10 Iowa, 502; Mitchell v. Moore, 24 Id., 894; Robinson v. Lair, 31 Id., 9, 11.

The old rule that, to overcome the effect of a sworn answer in chancery, two witnesses, or one witness and corresponding circumstances were necessary, has no existence under the practice in this state. Smith v. Phelps, 32 Id., 537; Graves & Co. v. Aiden, 13 Id., 573.

5 The court may, under this section, allow no amendment to be made, without verification, to previous pleadings which have been verified. Teyler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Iowa, 194.

5 Under this section, if words published convey a libelous meaning upon their face, it is sufficient to set them out in the petition without any allegation of such meaning, and the court will determine whether the words are actionable or not. Where the words alleged to have been published are not actionable on their face, the plaintiff must show by proper allegation their defamatory sense, and that they were spoken of
SEC. 2682. In an action brought to recover damages for an injury to person, character, or property, the defendant may set forth in a distinct division of his answer, any facts of which evidence is legally admissible to mitigate or otherwise reduce the damages, whether a complete defense or justification be pleaded or not, and he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances whether he provoke the defense or justification or not, and no mitigating circumstances shall be proved unless plead, except such as are shown by, or grow out of, the testimony introduced by the adverse party; and in actions for slander or libel, an unproved allegation of the truth of the matter charged, shall not be deemed proof of malice, unless the jury on the whole case find that such defense was made with malicious intent.

In an action of slander the defamatory words charged were as follows: "My table-cloths are gone, and you know where they are gone. My husband has gone down town to get a warrant to search for the table-cloths and imprison you." Held, that the words imputed a crime and that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that they were so understood by those who heard them. Where the meaning of slanderous words is not clear, such testimony is competent. Hess v. Fockler, 25 Id., 10.

It is not necessary, under this section, to set out extrinsic facts showing that the words charged were used in a defamatory sense, but it is sufficient to set out the words themselves, and state the defamatory sense in which they were used. Clarke v. Jones, 49 Id., 474.

* The bad character may always be given in evidence in mitigation of damages in an action of slander. Armstrong v. Pearson, 8 Iowa, 29.

In an action of slander the plaintiff may show the pecuniary condition of the defendant in aggravation of damages, and the defendant may be permitted to show the same in mitigation of damages. Karney v. Paisley, 13 Id., 89.

On the trial of an action of slander, all circumstances cotemporaneous with the speaking of the alleged slanderous words which might have been given in evidence under the general issue of "not guilty" at common law, may be given in evidence under an answer in denial, but those which tend to show the truth of the charge must be pleaded before they can be given in evidence. Beardsley v. Bridgman et al., 17 Id., 290, 295.

Under section 2682, the defendant in an action for slander, may plead in justification or in mitigation or both, and a failure to sustain a justification will not of itself be deemed proof of malice neither will a failure to establish such a plea preclude evidence of mitigating circumstances. Kinyon v. Palmer, 18 Id., 377.

In an action of libel or slander, the defendant cannot plead, either in defense or mitigation, that the plaintiff has been guilty of a specific crime in no way connected with the alleged defamatory words, or with the occasion on which they were written or spoken. Fisher v. Tise, 20 Id., 479.

In an action of slander the defendant may al­lege circumstances in mitigation without confessing the speaking of the words, or avering his belief in the truth, or denying malice. Des­mond v Brown, 33 Id., 13.

To constitute slander the alleged slanderous words must have been spoken in the presence and hearing of some person other than the plaintiff. Id.

And the words will be construed according to the sense in which they were intended by the defendant, and understood by those who heard them. Id. See also, McCabe v. Smith, 22 Id., 242.

When mitigating facts are pleaded they must not be set up as a defense or justification, when they do not amount to that. They must be pleaded as mitigating circumstances, or as going to reduce the damages, and not as full defense, Ronan v. Williams, 41 Id., 680.
INTERVENTION.

SEC. 2683. Any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, in the success of either of the parties to the action, or against both, may become a party to an action between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the petition, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, or by demanding any thing adversely to both the plaintiff and defendant, either before or after issue has been joined in the cause and before the trial commences.6

SEC. 2684. The court shall determine upon the intervention at the same time that the action is decided, and the intervenor has no right to delay; and if the claim of the intervenor is not sustained, he shall pay all costs of the intervention.

SEC. 2685. The intervention shall be by petition, which must set forth the facts on which the intervention rests, and all the pleadings therein shall be governed by the same principles and rules as obtain in other pleadings provided for in this chapter. But if such petition is filed during term, the court shall direct the time in which an answer shall be filed thereto.7

AMENDMENTS.

SEC. 2686. No variance between the allegations in a pleading and the proof is to be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action or defense upon the merits. Whenever it is alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact must be shown by proof to the satisfaction of the court, and such proof must also show in what respect he has been so misled, and 6 A purchaser of real property under a mortgage foreclosure, succeeds to the right of the mortgagee therein, and therefore has the right subsequently to intervene and be joined with the plaintiff in the foreclosure proceeding, which, after foreclosure and decree against the mortgagee, has been continued as to a defendant who purchased a part of the premises after the execution of the mortgage, and who contests the claim of plaintiff. Dyer v. Harris, 22 Iowa, 293.

7 The equitable owner of a promissory note may assert his rights thereto and obtain a recovery, by intervening in an action at law, commenced by the person having the possession and legal title to the note, against the maker. In such case the intervenor claims adversely to both plaintiff and defendant. Taylor v. Adair et al., 1d., 279.

Where a person intervenes in an action of replevin, and becomes the substantial defendant, the judgment therein designating the rights of the parties is conclusive upon all the parties, as well as between the plaintiff and the original defendant. Witter v. Fisher, 27 id., 9.

In an action to enjoin the collection of a tax voted to aid in the construction of a railroad through a particular township, under the act for that purpose, the railroad company constructing the road through such township, and to be benefited by such tax, may properly intervene for the purpose of interposing a defense. Brown v. Bryan et al., 31 id., 556.

When in an action against a county, the board of supervisors conspire with the plaintiff to aid him in procuring a judgment, a tax payer has such an interest in the litigation as entitles him to intervene and defend the action. Greeley v. The County of Lyon, 40 id., 72.

Where the plaintiff and defendant in an action adjust and settle their respective claims by a voluntary agreement between them, and nothing remains but final judgment to determine the action, a third person, claiming an interest in the subject of the litigation cannot then intervene. Henry, Lee & Co. v. The Cass Co. M. & E. Co., 42 id., 33.

Where a person has or claims an interest in the matter in litigation adverse to one of the parties, he has a right to intervene. Per Beck, J. in Young v. Tucker, 39 id., 596, 600.

8 Pending an application to intervene and be substituted as a party, the applicant is not entitled to a change of venue. Barkdull v. Callanan, 33 Iowa, 391.
thereupon the court may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as may be just."

Sec. 2687. When the variance is not material as provided in the last section, the court may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, and may order an immediate amendment without costs.

Sec. 2688. When, however the allegation of the claim or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved in its general meaning, it shall not be deemed a case of variance within the last two sections, but a failure of proof.

Sec. 2689. The court may, on motion of either party at any time, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, permit such party to amend any pleadings or proceedings by adding or striking out the name of a party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect, or by inserting other allegations material to the case, or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceedings to the facts proved.*

A slight amendment allowed to make the pleading conform to the proof, and which could not have operated to surprise the adverse party, was held, not an abuse of discretion justifying a reversal of the judgment, although leave to amend was not granted until after the close of the evidence and arguments of counsel, and the amendment was not actually filed until after the return of the verdict. Correll v. Glasscock, 28 Iowa, 83.

An amendment after verdict, and pending a motion in arrest of judgment, curing a variance between the name of the defendant, as stated in the petition and as signed to the promissory note upon which suit was brought, was held, properly allowed without terms, it appearing that no prejudice could have resulted to the adverse party therefrom. Thompson v. Wilson, 26 Iowa, 120.

An amendment may be made during the trial by striking out the name of a party plaintiff. Hinkle v. Davenport, 38 Iowa, 355.

A party will not be allowed to file an amended pleading tendering a new issue after a referee's report has been made in the case, and thereupon have a re-submission to the referee, without at least offering a reasonable excuse for neglecting to file the amendment before the referee's report is made. Nevess v. The Mahaska County Savings Bank, et al., 51 Iowa, 178.

An amendment to a petition by the addition of another count, based upon the same state of facts on which the cause of action stated in the original petition is based, will not be regarded as the commencement of a new action. Mather v. Butler County, 16 Iowa, 59.

The right to amend is not an absolute, unconditional right, but is to be allowed in "furtherance of justice" under a sound judicial discretion, Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Iowa, 183; Harvey v. Spalding, 7 Iowa, 423.

It was held competent for the court to permit the plaintiff to file a new affidavit, properly stamped, to a petition for an injunction, when the first affidavit was defective because not properly stamped. Hughes v. Fetter, 18 Iowa, 142.

Where an action is brought upon a cause of action belonging to a partnership, in the name of one of the partners only, against one who was a partner of plaintiff, the court may at any time, in furtherance of justice, permit an amendment of the petition by inserting the name of the firm as plaintiff. Dixon v. Dixon, 19 Iowa, 512.

A motion for a new trial filed within the three days prescribed by statute, upon grounds other than newly discovered evidence, may be leave of court, be amended at any time during the term, the amendment being german to the grounds set out in the original motion. Souden & Co., v. Craig, 20 Iowa, 474.

The court may in the exercise of the discretion vested in it, permit amendments to pleadings during the progress of the trial. Arnold v. Arnold, 1d., 273.

The allowance or ejection of amendments is, to a very considerable extent, one of sound judicial discretion, and the ruling thereon will only be interfered with by the appellate court where substantial injustice has resulted to the party complaining. Flumer v. Flumer, 22 Iowa, 290; Seevers v. Hamilton, 11 Iowa, 66; The State ex rel., etc., v. Mayor of Keokuk, 18 Iowa, 388; Hatfield v. Gano, 15 Iowa, 177; Denton v. Thornton, ld., 217; Smith v. Howard, 25 Iowa, 51; Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 39 Iowa, 194.

The allowance of a slight amendment to meet the case made by the evidence, and which could not have operated to surprise the adverse party, held, not such an abuse of discretion as would justify a reversal of the judgment, although the leave was not granted until after the close of the evidence and arguments of counsel, and the

Sec. 2690. The court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any error or defect in the proceeding which does not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party; and no judgment shall be reversed or affected by reason of such error or defect.

Sec. 2691. When either party shall amend any pleading or proceeding, the case shall not be continued in consequence thereof, unless the court shall be satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, that the adverse amendment not actually filed until after verdict.

Carroll v. Glasscock, 26 Id., 83.

An amendment after verdict, and pending a motion in arrest of judgment, curing a variance between the name of the defendant, as stated in the petition and as signed to the promissory note sued on, was held properly allowed without amendment not actually signed to the promissory note. Thompson v. Wilson, Id., 120. See also Smith v. Howard, 28 Id., 51; Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194.

The action of the court below in allowing an amendment after without imposing terms, will not be disturbed, unless it be shown that there was an abuse of the discretion confided to the court in such cases. Harrison v. Colton, 31 Id., 16.

Where a decree in an equity case is, upon the merits, modified and affirmed on appeal to the supreme court, and the cause remanded for the court below to enter and enforce the decree, the appellee will be allowed to amend his pleading, asking judgment for the value of the property adjudged by the decree to belong to him, but which the opposite party has converted to his own use. Jones v. Clark & Clark, Id., 497.

An amendment filed in vacation without notice to the other party and without leave of the court may be stricken from the files on motion. Allen v. Bidwell, 35 Id., 86.

An amendment may be made during the trial by striking out the name of a party plaintiff. Hinkle v. Davenport et al., 38 Id., 335.

Where an action before a justice of the peace, upon a draft, the name of the plaintiff was misspelled, and commissions to take depositions and other proceedings were had with the error uncorrected. Upon appeal to the circuit court and after a jury was impaneled it was held, the error might be corrected. Adae & Co. v. Zangs, 41 Id., 538.

Amendments in furtherance of justice may be made at any time, and it is competent to amend after judgment when no new cause of action is introduced, the granting of such amendment resting in the sound discretion of the court. O'Connell v. Cotter et al., 44 Id., 48.

Where an amendment, setting up a new and different defense, is filed after a part of the evidence has been introduced, and the plaintiff does not at the time indicate an unwillingness to proceed in consequence thereof, he cannot be heard to complain after a verdict has been rendered. Sheldon v. Booth, 50 Id., 209.

In an action against an administrator by heirs for making fraudulent sales of real property for less than its value, which action was sustained upon a final hearing in the supreme court, and after the filing of the proceeding in the court below the defendant asked leave to file an amended answer, alleging that a certain amount was due him for fees and disbursements as administrator and as one of the heirs at law, and asking that the same be applied in cancellation of the judgment against him. Held, that the pleading contained no matter that might not have been set up before the trial, and that the amended answer should not have been permitted to be filed. Reed v. Howe, 44 Id., 300.

A demurrer is a pleading within the meaning of section 2899, and may be amended like any other pleading. Morrison v. Miller, 46 Id., 84.

What may not come in by way of amendment or supplemental pleading, is the exception under the code, and that which may forms the rule. Per Whiting, J., in Seers v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66.

The terms upon which amendments are allowed are within the sound discretion of the court. Olivier v. Townsend, 16 Id., 493; Seeers v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66; Glick v. Hartman, 10 Id., 410; Rees v. Lench, 18 Id., 439; Williams v. Miller, 10 Id., 344.

The court may properly refuse to allow an amendment setting up a defense which cannot be made available, or which is a substantial repetition of a former pleading. Abbott v. Chase, 13 Id., 453; Meyer v. Woodbury & Strohm, 14 Id., 57.

An amendment to a petition after the evidence has been introduced is allowable, when it does not change the nature of the claim, and when the same evidence was admissible under the original petition as would have been under the amended one. Hammond v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 49 Id., 450.

When an action is brought upon a cause belonging to a partnership, in the name of one partner only, the court may, at any time, permit an amendment substituting the name of the partnership as plaintiff. Hodges & Co. v. Kimball et al., 49 Id., 577.

The objection that the petition in an action against a railroad company contains no averment of the corporate character of the defendant, comes too late after judgment, and constitutes no ground for a motion in arrest. Andre v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 30 Iowa, 107.

A judgment will not be reversed upon the ground of defects in pleadings, when it is apparent, upon the face of the record, that the parties have had a full trial, that neither party has been prejudiced by reason of such defect, and that substantial justice has been done. party could not be ready for trial in consequence of such amendment. But if the court is thus satisfied, a continuance may be granted to some day in the same term, or the next term of said court.

Sec. 2692. All matters of supplement or amendment, whether of addition or subtraction, shall not be made by erasure or interlineation of the original, or by addition thereto, but upon a separate paper which shall be filed and constitute, with the original, but one pleading. But if it be stated in such paper that it is a substitute for the former pleading intended to be amended, in that case, it shall be deemed such substitute, but the pleading superseded by the substitute shall not be withdrawn from the files.

INTERROGATORIES.

Sec. 2693. Either party may annex to his petition, answer, or reply, written interrogatories to any one or more of the adverse parties concerning any of the material matters in issue in the action, the answer to which, on oath, may be read by either party as a deposition between the party interrogating and the party answering.

Sec. 2694. The party answering shall not be confined to responding merely to the interrogatories, but may state any new matter concerning the same causes of action, which shall likewise be read as a deposition.

Sec. 2695. The interrogatories shall be answered at the same time the pleading to which they are annexed is answered or replied to, unless they are excepted to by the adverse party; in which event the court shall determine as to the propriety of the interrogatories pronounced, and which of them shall be answered, and within what time such answer shall be made.

Sec. 2696. The trial of an action by ordinary proceedings, shall not be postponed on account of the failure to answer interrogatories, if the party interrogated is present in the court at the trial, so that he may be orally examined; nor in case of absence, unless an affidavit be filed showing the facts the party believes will be proved by the answers thereto, and that the party has not filed the interrogatories for the purpose of delay; whereupon, if the party will consent that the Cooley v. Brown, 35 Iowa, 475; Pharo v. Johnson, 15 Id., 560; Koster dader v. Pierce, 37 Id., 645.

While a pleading which is superseded by a substituted one, ceases to tender any issue, yet it remains part of the record of the case, and the opposite party may avail himself of a distinct admission of fact contained therein. Mulligan v. Ill. Cent. R. Co., 36 Id., 181.

Amendments by erasure or interlineation are prohibited, and the court properly refused to allow an amendment of a sworn answer by striking out a word which occurred therein. Simmons v. Rust, 39 Id., 241.

* Neither the interrogatories nor the answers thereto, provided for by this section will, on demurrer, aid a defective pleading. Lane v. Krekel, 22 Iowa, 399.

The court below may properly strike from the files interrogatories filed by the defendant to be answered by the plaintiff where they are not filed until the case is called for trial, where the action has been pending for several months. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Id., 289.

Where the defendant annexes to his answer interrogatories to the plaintiff, under this section, both the interrogatories and the answers may be read to the jury; and an instruction that they should be considered as part of the evidence in the case was held not erroneous, on the ground that the jury were thereby directed that the questions as well as the answers were to be regarded as evidence. Clinton Nl. Bk. v. Lorrey, 30 Id., 85.

A party answering interrogatories annexed to a pleading is not confined to answers merely responsive, but may state any new matter concerning the cause of action, and the same may be read by either party as a deposition in the case. Gwyer v. Figgins et al., 37 Id., 517.
facts stated in the affidavit shall be considered as admitted by those interrogated, the trial shall not be postponed for that cause.

Sec. 2697. The party, in answering such interrogatories, shall distinguish clearly between what is stated from his personal knowledge, and what is stated from information or belief merely. An unqualified statement of a fact shall be considered as made of his personal knowledge.

Sec. 2698. The answer to the interrogatories shall be verified by the affidavit of the party answering, to the effect that the statements in them made of his own personal knowledge are true, and those made from the information of others he believes to be true.

Sec. 2699. Where a party filing interrogatories shall also file an affidavit that he verily believes the subject of the interrogatories, or any part of them, is in the personal knowledge of the opposite party, and that his answer thereto, if truly made from such knowledge will sustain the claim of defense, or any part thereof, and the opposite party shall fail to answer therein within the time allowed therefor, or by the court extended, the claim or defense, or the part thereof, according to such affidavit, shall be deemed to be sustained, and judgment given accordingly.

Sec. 2700. The court may compel answers to interrogatories by process of contempt, and may, on the failure of the party to answer them, after reasonable time allowed therefor, dismiss the petition, or quash the answer of the party so failing.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF PLEADING.

Sec. 2701. In all cases in which a denial is made by answer or reply, concerning a time, sum, quantity or place alleged, the party denying shall declare whether such denial is applicable to every time, sum, quantity or place, and if not, what time, sum, quantity or place he admits.

Sec. 2702. When time is material, the day, month and year, or when there is a continued act, its duration must be alleged. When time is not material, it need not be stated, and if stated, need not be proved.

Sec. 2703. It shall be necessary to allege a place, only when it forms a part of the substance of the issue.

Sec. 2704. Under a denial of an allegation, no evidence shall be introduced which does not tend to negative some fact the party making the controverted allegation is bound to prove.

* This section establishes a rule of evidence merely, and while the interrogatories unanswered and the affidavit therein prescribed constitute proof of the claim upon which judgment may be rendered on the trial, they do not entitle the party to a judgment without trial, and immediately upon the filing of the affidavit and the failure to answer. Perry v. Heighton, 26 Iowa, 451.

He should have demanded judgment in the court below. Stiley v. Wilson, 44 Id., 394.

The plaintiff may dismiss his action after failure to answer the interrogatories and affidavit filed, notwithstanding the objection of the defendant. Perry v. Heighton, 26 Id., 451.

* When a fact is alleged in a pleading in a manner subject to demurrer or a motion for a more specific statement it does not necessarily follow that the adverse party can take advantage of such insufficiency by objection to the evidence offered to sustain the allegation. Oliver v. Dehue, 14 Iowa, 400.
Sec. 2705. The counts of the petition must be consecutively numbered as such, and so must the divisions of the answer as such, and of the reply as such.

Sec. 2706. If any pleading do not conform to the foregoing requirements as to form, divisions or numbering, or the distinct or separate statements of its cause of action or defense, the court may, on its own motion, or that of the adverse party, order the same to be corrected on such terms as it may impose.7

Sec. 2707. Sham and irrelevant answers and defenses may be stricken out on motion, upon such terms as the court may, in its discretion, impose.8

Sec. 2708. In pleading a statement, or a right derived therefrom, it shall be sufficient to refer to such statute by its title and the day of its passage, and the court shall thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

Sec. 2709. Every court of this state shall take judicial notice of the rules of any other court thereof, if published as directed by law.

Sec. 2710. Inconsistent defenses may be stated in the same answer or reply, and when a verification is required, it must be to the effect that the party believes one or the other to be true, but cannot determine which.9

Sec. 2711. Whenever a party claims a right derogatory from the general law, or when his claim is founded upon an exception of any kind, he shall set forth such claim or such exception particularly in his pleading.

Sec. 2712. Every material allegation in a pleading not controverted by a subsequent pleading, shall, for the purposes of the action, be deemed true. But the allegations of the answer, not relating to a counterclaim, and of the reply, are to be deemed controverted. But an allegation of value, or amount of damage, shall not be deemed true by a failure to controvert it. A party desiring to admit any allegations, which by this section would be deemed controverted, may, at any time, file a written admission thereof.10

7 The objection that more than one cause of action is stated in one and not in separate counts must be taken by motion and not by demurrer. Swords v. Russ, 13 Iowa, 603; Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158; Wright v. Connor, 24 Id., 249.

8 A demurrer will not lie to purge a pleading, good in part, of redundant or irrelevant statements. A motion is the proper remedy. Bolinger v. Henderson, 23 Iowa, 165; Douglass v. Bishop, 27 Id., 214; McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 160, 162.

9 Paragraphs in an answer which constitute no defenses to the action may be stricken out on motion as redundant or irrelevant matter. Evans v. Robbins, 27 Id., 472.

10 Contradictory defenses may be pleaded, but they must be set out in separate counts or divisions of the answer, and each must be sufficient in itself to present the defense intended to be pleaded. Morgan v. The Hawkeye Insurance Co., 37 Iowa, 369.

The defendant may plead inconsistent defenses, and an instruction directing that the admissions in one defense rendered it unnecessary for the jury to consider the evidence in support of another, is erroneous. The defendant is entitled to the full benefit of each defense. Barr v Hack, 46 Id., 308.

11 Every material allegation in a petition uncontroverted by the answer is taken as true. Alexander v. Doran, 13 Iowa, 283; Bolander v. Atwell, 14 Id., 35; Lyon v. Northrup, 17 Id., 314.

Under this section the allegation of new matter not in the nature of a counterclaim is deemed denied without replication, as controverted by a general denial, and also under the revision, by matter in avoidance. Davenport S. F. and L. A. v. The N. A. T. I. Co., 16 Id., 74; Smith v. Milburn, 17 Id., 30; Wilcox v. McCann, 21 Id., 296; Pinley v. Brown, 22 Id., 538; Barger v. Ferris & Wilmer 34 Id., 228.

An allegation of value in a pleading is not to be taken as true on account of a failure to controvert it. The Chicago & S. W. R. Co. v. N. W. U. P. Co., 38 Id., 377.

Where in an action of replevin the allegation of value was not denied, held, not thereby admitted to be true. Id.

The items of such bill of particulars shall be consecutively numbered. 6

Sec. 2714. In pleading a judgment, or the determination of a court, or officer of special jurisdiction, it shall not be necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made. 4

Sec. 2715. In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts constituting such performance, but the party may state, generally, that he duly performed all the conditions on his part.

Sec. 2716. A plaintiff suing as a corporation, partnership, executor, guardian, or in any other way implying corporate, partnership, representative, or other than individual capacity, need not state the facts constituting such capacity or relation, but may aver generally, or as a legal conclusion, such capacity or relation; and where a defendant is held in such capacity or relation, a plaintiff may aver such capacity or relation in the same general way. 6

Sec. 2717. If either of the allegations contemplated in the three preceding sections is controverted, it shall not be sufficient to do in dence will be admitted for the purpose of or tending to controvert them. The Sugar Manufacturing Co. v. Billings, 39 Id., 347.

The denial of a fact of which the court takes judicial notice cannot be well pleaded and is not admitted by demurrer. Cooke v. Tullman, 40 Id., 133.

Under this section as it stands in the code a reply is unnecessary where the answer does not plead a counter-claim and the plaintiff has no matter to plead in confession and avoidance of the answer. Davis v. Payne et al., 45 Id., 194.

The allegations of an answer unless the same contains a counter-claim are deemed denied without further pleading by the plaintiff and unless supported by evidence the plaintiff is entitled to judgment upon proof of the allegations of the petition. Cassady v. Caton, 47 Id., 22.

Where a counter-claim is pleaded it will be deemed admitted unless denied in the reply. The Union National Bank v. Carr, 49 Id., 359, 361.

When the cause of action in a justice's court consists of a book account embracing several items the defendant is entitled to a bill of particulars or to have an entry of the several items entered upon the justice's docket upon demanding the same. McKinley et al. v. Hopkins, 20 Iowa, 495.

That a cause of action is stated in the alternative is not a ground of demurrer but of motion. Turner v. First Nat'l Bank of Keokuk, 21 Id., 562; so also if the pleading is argumentative. Davis v. Bonar et al., 15 Id., 171.

4 The petition in an action on a recognizance need not aver the particular facts showing jurisdiction in the magistrate to take the bail—the existence of the facts necessary to confer jurisdiction; if the preliminary proceedings were not such as to authorize the taking of the recognizance the objection may be made by answer or may appear on the trial. The State v. Huffman, 25 Iowa, 519.

5 In an action by a school district it is not necessary to set out at length in the petition the manner in which the district was formed, and the legality of the acts leading to its formation cannot be questioned by demurrer. Ft. Dodge School District v. The DistrictTp of Wahkonsa, 15 Iowa, 434.

An allegation in a petition that the defendant "is a corporation created by authority of the State of Iowa under the name and style of The City of Oskaloosa," is sufficient to charge the defendant in a corporate capacity. Stier v. The City of Oskaloosa, 41 Id., 553; see also The Home Insurance Company v. The Northwestern Packet Company, 32 Id., on page 244.

In an action by a school district it is not necessary to set out at length in the petition the manner in which the district was formed, and the legality of acts leading to its formation cannot be raised by demurrer. Fort Dodge City S. D. v. The Dist. Tp. of Wahkonsa, 16 Id., 494.
terms contradictory of the allegation, but the facts relied on shall be specifically stated.¹

SEC. 2718. Any defense showing that a contract, written or oral, or any instrument sued on, is void or voidable; or that the instrument was delivered to a person as an escrow, or showing matter of justification, excuse, discharge, or release, and any defense which admits the facts of the adverse pleading, but by some other matter seeks to avoid their legal effect, must be specially pleaded.²

SEC. 2719. The court may, on motion of any person aggrieved thereby, cause irrelevant or redundant matter to be stricken from any pleadings, at the cost of any party whose pleading contains them.³

SEC. 2720. When the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite and uncertain that the precise nature of the charge or defense is not apparent, the court may, on motion, require it to be made more definite and certain. No pleading which recites or refers to a contract or writing or not.

The statute of limitations is not available unless it states whether it is in writing or not. Such motion shall point out wherein the pleading is not sufficiently specific or it shall be disregarded, and if the reason for such demand exists outside of the pleadings, the motion must state the same and be supported by affidavit.¹

³ There is a general allegation of the consolidation of two railroad corporations, a general denial is sufficient. Koons v. C. & N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 493.

When it is alleged in the petition that the plaintiff "was duly appointed guardian," etc., a general denial in the answer will not put the fact of appointment in issue.

In an action on a written contract, evidence was held not admissible on behalf of the defendant, that the instrument was not stamped when made and delivered, when no such defense was specially pleaded, and there was no denial of the execution of the instrument. Glidden v. Higbee, 31 Iowa, 379; see also Record v. Jones, 33 Id., 228.

The statute of limitations is not available unless pleaded as a defense in the answer, or taken advantage of by demurrer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 27.

Matters that must be specially pleaded. R. § 2942.

Irrelevant matter stricken out. R. § 2946.

When pleading made more specific. R. § 2948.

When matter in a pleading is insufficient, it should be attacked by demurrer; but when it contains redundant or irrelevant matter and the adverse party will be aggrieved by suffering it to remain, it may be stricken out on motion. Childs v. Griswold, 15 Iowa, 438; The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Id., 229; Kingson v. Palmer, 18 Id., 377, 387; Bolenger v. Henderson, 23 Id., 165; Douglass v. Bishop, 27 Id., 214; Evans v. Robbins, 29 Id., 473; McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 162; Hayden v. Anderson 17 Id., 158.

It is not error to refuse to strike out irrelevant or redundant matter from a pleading unless the party moving will be aggrieved thereby; and he will not be deemed aggrieved unless compelled to traverse facts which are more properly evidence than substantive averments. Cate v. Gilman, 41 Id., 590.

When the averments of a pleading are not sufficiently full and specific, or contains several causes of action in one count, it may be corrected on motion, but not by demurrer. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Iowa, 158; Barthol v. Blakin, 34 Id., 452, 453; Byington v. Woods, 13 Id., 17; McCormick v. Basal, 46 Id., 235.

Where, in an action on a promissory note, the defendant pleads generally a want of consideration, without stating the facts of such defense, the answer may be assailed by a motion for a more specific statement, but not by demurrer. Simpson Cen. Col. v. Bryan, 50 Iowa, 293.

If the petition founded upon a breach of contract as its cause of action does not state whether the contract is in writing or oral, it may be made more specific on motion. Barthol v. Blakin, 34 Id., 452, 453.

On an action for breach of warranty of soundness in all respects, it was held, that an allega-

SEC. 2722. Matters of which judicial notice is taken need not be stated in a pleading.1
SEC. 2723. When a party claims by conveyance, he may state it according to its legal effect or name.
SEC. 2724. It shall not be necessary to allege the commencement of either a particular or a superior estate, unless it be essential to the merits of the case.
SEC. 2725. In actions for injuries to goods and chattels, their kind or species shall be alleged.
SEC. 2726. In actions for injuries to real property, the petition shall describe the property, and when the injury is to an incorporeal hereditament, shall describe the property in respect of which the right is claimed, as well as the right itself, either by the numbers by which the property is designated in the national survey, or by its abuttals, or by its courses and distances, or by any name which it has acquired by reputation certain enough to identify it.

SEC. 2730. When a written instrument is referred to in a pleading, and the same, or a copy thereof, is incorporated in or attached to such pleading, the signature thereto, and to any indorsement thereon, shall be deemed genuine and admitted, unless the person whose signature the same purports to be, shall, in a pleading or writing filed within the time allowed for pleading, deny the genuineness of such signature under oath. If such instrument be not negotiable, and purport to be executed by a person not a party to the proceeding, the signature thereto shall not be deemed genuine or admitted, if a party to the

1 In action or counter-claim founded upon an attachment bond, the conditions of the bond, and the facts constituting the breach must be alleged. Ryder v. Thomas, 32 Iowa, 56.

2 Where a party is sued in ante droit and it appears from the allegations in the petition that the defendant is liable in his own right, the words "Executor &c." will be treated as surplusage, or as descriptio persona, but where it appears from the record that they were not so treated by the parties, or either of them, in the court below, it will not be so considered on appeal in the supreme court. Laverty v. Woodward, 16 Iowa, 1.

A party is not compelled to prove more than is necessary to entitle the party to the relief asked, such unnecessary allegation will be treated as surplusage and need not be proved. Little v. McGuire, 38 Id., 550.

Whenever a pleading alleges more than is necessary to entitle the party to the relief asked, such unnecessary allegation will be treated as surplusage and need not be proved. Doud v. Waller, 48 Id., 634, 638.

*In an action on a promissory note, evidence of the genuineness of the signature of an indorsement will not be required when the pleadings show that there was no direct issue joined thereon. Manning et al., v. Perkins, 16 Iowa, 71.

This section of the statute applies to written instruments made by trading and municipal corporations as well as to those made by individuals. Clarke v. Polk County, 19 Id., 248.

To cast upon the plaintiff the burden of proving the genuineness of the signature of the defendant to a written instrument upon which the action is founded, or to any writing referred to in the pleading, and the original or a copy thereof is set out therein, the genuineness of such signature must be denied in writing under oath by the defendant. Hall v. The Etna Mf. Co., 30 Id., 215; Loomis et al. v. Metcalf et al., Id., 382.

The denial in such case, must be made by the party whose signature it purports to be, and it was accordingly held that a denial by the maker of the instrument sued on purporting to be, and as a note, by showing that it was changed or altered to its present form from a receipt or the like. This section does not apply to such a case. Lake v. Crukshank, 31 Id., 395.

The denial, in order to cast upon the plaintiff the burden of proving the signature of the instrument sued on, must be of the genuineness of the signature thereto. A denial under oath of the execution of the instrument is insufficient. Douglass v. Matheny, 35 Id., 112; Loomis & Leroy v. Metcalf et al., 30 Id., 382.

In an action upon a deed of a corporation, where the signatures of the officers signing it were not denied under oath, and the seal of the corporation appeared to be affixed, the instrument was held properly admitted in evidence without proof of the signatures. Miller, Ch. J. dissenting. Blackshire v. The Iowa Homestead Co., 39 Id., 624.

Where in an action upon a written instrument the signature of the defendant is denied under oath by him, the onus is upon the plaintiff to prove the genuineness of the signature to the instrument. Farmers and Mer. B'k v. Young, 36 Id., 44.

In an action against an administrator on a promissory note made by the intestate in his life time, a denial of the execution of the note includes a denial of the genuineness of the signature. Ashworth v. Grubbs, 47 Id., 353.

Where the genuineness of the signature is denied, a preponderance of evidence is sufficient to invalidate it. Id.

Prior to the code a denial under oath of sufficient "knowledge or information to form a belief," was held not sufficient to cast the burden of proving the signature upon the plaintiff. Hall v. The Etna Mf. Co., 30 Id., 215.

Where an assignment is not so incorporated into a pleading or attached thereto as to require it to be demed under oath, its genuineness must be proved by the party pleading it. Hay v. Frazier, 49 Id., 453, 455.

The genuineness of a signature may be proved by its similarity to an admitted signature and other circumstances. McDonald & Co. v. Noonan, 50 Iowa, 88.

*Where, in an action on a promissory note the defendant answered, alleging that the maturity of the note was, by the contract of the parties, made contingent upon the payment of certain other notes, made by the payee to a third party, upon which the defendant was liable as an indorser, whereupon the plaintiff filed a supplemental petition, in which it was alleged, that after the commencement of the action the note upon which the defendant was so liable as indorser was paid, and his liability discharged, it was held that a demurrer to the supplemental was, under this section of the code, properly overruled. The City of Davenport v. Mitchell, 15 Iowa, 194.
a party after trial, on matter of abatement, be allowed in the same action to answer or reply matter in bar.\(^6\)

Sec. 2733. Any defense arising after the commencement of any action, shall be stated according to the fact, without any formal commencement or conclusion, and any answer which does not state whether the defense therein set up arose before or after action, shall be deemed to be of matter arising before action.

Sec. 2734. Whenever two or more actions are pending in the same court which might have been joined, the defendant may, on motion and notice to the adverse party, require him to show cause why the same shall not be consolidated, and if no sufficient cause be shown the same shall be consolidated.\(^6\)

Sec. 2735. If an original pleading be lost or withheld by any one, the court may order a copy thereof to be substituted.

Sec. 2736. No record shall be amended or impaired by the clerk or other officer of the court, or by any person without the order of such court, or of some court of competent authority.

CHAPTER 9.

OF TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

Sec. 2737. Issues arise in the pleadings, where a fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds:

1. Of law;
2. Of fact.\(^7\)

\(^6\) Where a defect of parties is apparent on the face of the petition, it may be taken advantage of by demurrer; when not thus apparent it may be set up by answer. When pleaded in the answer, it is a question for the jury, and cannot be determined by the court upon motion based upon but a part of the evidence. Eiders v. Beck, 18 Iowa, 86.

The fact that the maker of a note has been garnished as a debtor of the payee, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the note by an assignee thereof, who received it after maturity and after the garnishment of the maker. But such fact may be pleaded in abatement, and the issue thereon submitted to a jury, and then on this issue and the judgment thereon be distinguished from issues upon matters pleaded in bar. Cise v. Freeborne, 27 Id., 290.

Where want of jurisdiction does not appear upon the face of the petition, the objection should be made by pleading the facts in abatement. Meunch v. Breitenbaugh, 41 Id., 527. A champertous contract between the plaintiff and his attorney in an action for damages is no ground for the abatement of the action. Allison v. The C., & N. W. R. Co., 42 Id., 274.

At common law matter in abatement had to be pleaded before a plea in bar, and both could not be pleaded together. But under the code matters in abatement and in bar may be set up in the same pleading. Herriman v. McKee, 49 Id., 185.

\(^7\) An action at law to recover possession of land cannot on motion of defendant, be transferred to the equity docket and consolidated with a suit brought in that forum by the defendant in the law action, to quiet the title to the same lands, before issue joined and it is shown upon the face of the pleadings that the defense is equitable in its character. McHenry v. Sypker, 12 Iowa, 585.

See Viele v. Germania Ins. Co., 26 Id., 9, where the court was equally divided upon the question of the right of the defendant, to have four actions brought by the same plaintiff against four insurance companies.

A proceeding for the probate of a will is not an equitable action triable de novo in the supreme court, but a special proceeding triable in the circuit court as a law action, and is governed by
Sec. 2738. An issue of fact arises:
1. Upon a material allegation of fact in the petition denied by the answer;
2. Upon a material allegation of new matter presented in the answer and denied by the reply;
3. Upon allegations of new matter in the reply, which shall be considered as controverted by the opposite party without further pleading. Any other issue is one of law.

Issues—how tried.

Sec. 2739. Issues of law must be first tried. A trial is a judicial examination of the issues in an action, whether they be issues of law, or of fact.

Sec. 2740. Issues of fact, in an action in an ordinary proceeding, must be tried by jury, unless the same is waived. All other issues shall be tried by the court, unless a reference thereof is made.

Sec. 2741. [All issues of fact in ordinary actions shall be tried upon oral evidence taken in open court, except that depositions may be used as now provided by law; and, upon appeal, no evidence shall go to the supreme court except such as may be necessary to explain any exception taken in the cause, and such court shall hear and try the case only on the legal errors so presented.]

The same rules as law actions as to mode of appeal and trial in the supreme court. Id.
The finding of the court in ordinary actions and special proceedings stands as the verdict of a jury, and will not be set aside if there is any evidence by which it can be supported. Id.

Generally an issue arises upon a material allegation of fact in a petition or answer, and is denied by answer or reply. The object of a trial is to judicially examine the issue thus made. Per Wright, J., in Wilkins v. Tregynor, 14 Iowa, 391.

A general denial puts in issue all the facts averred. Per Miller, J., in Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., on p. 31.

Issues of fact are to be tried by a jury, unless a jury trial is waived. Wilkins v. Tregynor, 14 Iowa, 393.

Under the revision of 1860, in the trial of an equitable action triable by what was called the second method, either party was entitled to have the issues of fact tried by a jury. Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., 27.

In an action for divorce commenced before the code took effect, but tried afterward, either party had the right to a jury trial. Wadsworth v. Wadsworth, 40 Id., 448.

Under the code of 1860, an action for divorce is an equitable action, and is not triable on appeal in the supreme court upon errors alone, but must be tried de novo regardless of section 3747 of the code. Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Id., 192.

In special proceedings issues of law are triable as in ordinary actions. Sisters etc. v. Glass et al., 45 Id., 154.

Where a promissory note stipulated for “attorney’s fees, and other costs and charges, if the same is not paid when due,” such attorney’s fees should be treated as a part of the costs in the case, and the defendant is not entitled to a jury upon a denial of the reasonableness of the amount claimed therefor. Meusser v. Crum, 48 Id., 52., S eevers and Day, J., dissenting.

Prior to the enactment of chapter 145 of laws of the seventeenth general assembly, it was held, that under the code all actions were triable in the district and circuit courts upon oral evidence, and it devolved upon either or both the parties, in order to secure the right of trial de novo in an equitable action in the supreme court, to move for and obtain an order of court for trial upon written evidence. Finch v. Hollinger, 47 Iowa, 173; Fuller v. Schwartz, Id., 711; Walker v. Plummer, 41 Id., 697; McClay v. Bunkers, 46 Id., 700; Altman v. Farrington, 45 Id., 620.

Under the revision of 1860 equitable actions, triable by the first method were tried de novo in the supreme court on all the evidence in writing. Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 379; Cooper v. Skel, Id., 578; Teonic Bank v. Harvey, 16 Id., 111; Van Orman v. Spofford et al., Id., 186; Kellogg v. Kelsey et al., Id., 388; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 63; Manning v. Hore, 18 Id., 117; Cole v. Cole, 23 Id., 453; Snowden v. Snowden, Id., 457; Kragel v. Pfiffner, 24 Id., 176; Chambers v. Ingham, 25 Id., 222; In re Lorch, 25 Id., 226; Hackworth v. Zollars, 30 Id., 433.

A party in an equitable action cannot, as a matter of right, demand that the issues be tried by a jury. The provisions of our statute denying this right are not in conflict with the state constitution guaranteeing the right of trial by jury. The State of Iowa v. Odger, 25 Id., 220; Done v. The Ind. S. D. of K. et al., 41 Id., 639.
Equitable issues tried on written evidence.

Trial in supreme court.

Court to find facts.

Sec. 2742. [But in equitable actions wherein issue of fact is joined, all the evidence offered in the trial shall be taken down in writing, or the court may order the evidence, or any part thereof, to be taken in the form of depositions, or either party at pleasure may take his testimony, or any part thereof by deposition. All the evidence so taken shall be certified by the judge in term or vacation, be made a part of the record and go on appeal to the supreme court, which shall try the case anew.]

Sec. 2748. In all trials of fact by the court, other than those contemplated in the preceding section, the court shall, if either party request it, give its decision in writing, stating, separately, the facts found and the legal conclusion founded thereon; and the whole decision shall be a part of the record, and the finding shall have the effect of a special verdict.

* It is only in equitable actions that the supreme court will try the cause anew on appeal. Dose v. The Ind. Sch. Dist. of Kekuk, 41 Iowa, 569; Blake v. Blake, 13 Id., 40. See also, Hammersham v. Fairall, 45 Id., 452.

Under section 2742 of the code, prior to its amendment by chapter 145 of the laws of 1878, to entitle a party to a trial de novo in the supreme court, an equity action, he was required to move at the appearance term in the trial below that all the evidence be taken down in writing, Richards v. Hintrager, 45 Id., 283; Altman & Co. v. Farrington, Id., 620; Morse v. The C. Ins. Co., 40 Id., 440; Walker v. Plummer, 41 Id., 697; Hammersham v. Fairall, 44 Id., 462; Clark v. Haddock v. Reynolds, Id., 674; Stoddard v. Hardwicke, 46 Id., 160; Bird v. Bird, 49 Id., 593; Trescott v. Barnes et al., 46 Id., 644; Lutz v. Helby, 47 Id., 311, 312; Lentzinger r. Hershey, Id., 696; Fuller v. Schwartz, Id., 712; Twoood & Elliott v. Reily et al., 48 Id., 543; Koval v. Hanlon, Id., 232, 274; Gow v. Tidrick, Id., 234; Borland v. McNally, Id., 440; Speidel v. Smith, Id., 700; Twoood et al. r. Riley, 48 Id., 546.

Where in an equitable action the abstract recites that the evidence was by order of the court reduced to writing and made a part of the record of the case, and purports to contain all the evidence given on the trial, the case is triable de novo in the supreme court. Stoddard et al. v Hardwicke et al., 46 Id., 160.

The appearance term contemplated by section 2742, of the code before amended, held, to be the term where it first becomes apparent there is for trial and determination any issue of fact. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 47 Id., 594.

The consent of parties to the entry of an order in the court below, that the case be tried upon written evidence, obviates the necessity of a motion for that purpose, and entitles either party to a trial de novo in the supreme court on appeal. Robinson v. The First N't B'k of Cedar Rapids, 45 Id., 574.

Where an action was not set down for trial on written evidence in the court below it was held not triable de novo in the supreme court. Jones et ux. v. Moray, 49 Id., 198; Brewer v. Stoddard, Id., 280.

In an equity case, triable de novo in the supreme court, the certificate of the trial judge in the court below must recite that the abstract contains, not simply the material portions, but all the evidence. Andrews v. Kerr et al., 49 Id., 680; See also, Endersly v. Endersly, Id., 694.

Where either party elected to take the testimony in an equitable action in the form of depositions under section 2742 of the code, as amended by chapter 145 acts of 1878, the appearance term cannot be the trial term for actions to foreclose mortgages and other actions embraced in the exceptions contained in section 2745 of the code. Holbrook v. Folley et al., 51 Id., 406.

Before the modification of section 2142 of the code, a case was not triable de novo in the supreme court unless a motion or order for a trial upon written evidence was made at the appearance term. Reichoff v. Brecht et al., 51 Id., 683.

Where a case has been set down for trial upon written evidence, in pursuance of section 2742 of the code, oral evidence is not admissible. Harlin v. Porter et al., 50 Iowa, 46.

Prior to the taking effect of chapter 145 acts of 1878, a compliance with section 2742 of the code was essential to secure a trial de novo in the supreme court. The Joelit Iron & Steel Co. v. The C. C. & W. R. Co. et al., 50 Id., 455.

Chapter 145 laws of 1878, enacting a substitute for section 2742 of the code, applies only to cases tried in the court below since that statute took effect. Simondson v. Simondson, 50 Iowa, 110.

A case will not be tried de novo in the supreme court unless all the evidence in the case is presented on appeal, and so certified by the judge of the court below. Walker et al. v. Beaver et al., 50 Id., 504.

The repeal of section 2742 of the code respecting trials de novo, pending the appeal of a case, did not entitle the appellant to a trial de novo where the case was tried below on oral evidence. Trebon v. Zurruff, et al., Id., 180.

* No error can be assigned upon a failure of the court to find upon any particular fact
Sec. 2744. Except where otherwise provided, causes shall be tried at the first term after legal and timely service has been made.

Sec. 2745. The appearance term shall not be the trial term for equitable actions, except those brought for divorce, to foreclose mortgages and other instruments of writing whereby a lien or charge on property is created, or to enforce mechanics' liens.

Sec. 2746. The court may, in its discretion, allow separate trials between the plaintiff and any defendant, or of any cause of action united with others, or of any issue in an action; and such separate trials may be had at the same or different terms of the court as circumstances may require.

Sec. 2747. The clerk shall keep a calendar, distinguishing first criminal causes, and next civil causes, and arranging each in the order of their commencement, and shall, under the direction of the court or judge, apportion the same to as many days as is believed necessary, and, at the request of any party to a cause, or his attorney, shall issue subpoenas accordingly. The clerk shall furnish the court and the bar with a sufficient number of printed copies of the calendar.

CONTINUANCES.

Sec. 2748. When time is asked for making application for continuance, the cause shall not lose its place on the calendar, or it may be continued at the option of the other party, or at the cost of the party applying therefor; for which cost, judgment may at once be obtained.

Sec. 2749. A continuance shall not be granted for any cause growing out of the fault or negligence of the party applying therefor; subject to this rule, it may be allowed for any cause which satisfies the court that substantial justice will thereby be more nearly obtained.

when no request therefor has been made by either party. Ruble v. Atkins, 39 Iowa, 694.

Where the court makes a special finding of facts under this section such finding has the effect of a special verdict. Chapman v. Ransom, 44 Id., 378; Leighton v. Orr, 1 Id., 679; Watson v. Hoag, 40 Id., 143.

* This section does not apply to nor purport to change or alter the length of service required but only to fix the time for trial when due legal and timely service has been made. Per Cole in Poole v. Beckwell, 34 Iowa, 492.

* The granting of separate trials where there are several parties with different interests rests largely within judicial discretion, and where there is no abuse of sound discretion and no prejudice resulting from a refusal to grant separate trials, the ruling will not be disturbed on appeal. Kilbourn v. Jenkins & Co. v. Jennings & Co., 40 Iowa, 475.

* Subject to the rule that a continuance will not be granted for any cause growing out of the negligence or fault of the party applying therefor, it may be allowed for any cause which satisfies the court that substantial justice will be more nearly attained. The State v. Rorabacher, 19 Iowa, 154; State v. Tilghman, 6 Id., 496.

Much is left to the sound discretion of the court in passing upon applications for continuance, but the ruling must not be arbitrary or in violation of the rights of the parties. The appellate court will interfere only in cases of manifest injustice. Id. See also State v. Cox, 10 Id., 351; Childs v. Heaton, 11 Id., 271; State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66; State v. Accola, 11 Id., 246; Frank v. Parington, 5 Id., 345; Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 260; Connor v. Griffin et al., 27 Id., 248; Snediker v. Poorbaugh, 29 Id., 458; State v. Rorabacher, 19 Id., 154; Boone v. Mitchell, 33 Id., 43.

When the party applying for a continuance has been negligent the supreme court will sustain the order refusing the continuance, even where it would have been no abuse of discretion to have granted the application. Walker v. Seigfeld, 39 Id., 686.

The continuance of a cause at the request of a guardian ad litem who has just been appointed, to enable him to prepare for trial, is not an abuse of judicial discretion. Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 266.
For want of evidence: affidavit; statements of.
B. § § 3010, 3011.

Overruled or party may admit facts.
B. § § 3012, 3013.

Sec. 2750. Motions for continuance on account of the absence of evidence, must be founded on the affidavit of the party, his agent, or attorney, and must state:
1. The name and residence of such witness, or, if that be not known, a sufficient reason why not known, and also, in either case, facts showing reasonable grounds of belief that his attendance or testimony will be procured at the next term;
2. Efforts, constituting due diligence, which have been used to obtain such witness, or his testimony;
3. What particular facts, as distinguished from legal conclusions, the affiant believes the witness will prove, and that the affiant believes them to be true, and that he knows of no other witness by whom such facts can be fully proved.\(^a\)

Sec. 2751. If the application is insufficient, it shall be overruled; if held sufficient, the cause shall be continued, unless the adverse party will admit that the witness, if present, would testify to the facts therein stated, in which event the cause shall not be continued, but the party may read as evidence of such witness the facts held by the court to be properly stated.\(^b\)

\(^a\) An affidavit for a continuance on the ground of absence of witnesses, or for the reason that there has not been a sufficient time to take their depositions, which does not state the names and residence of the witnesses, nor what facts the applicant expects to prove by them, or show some excuse therefor, is fatally defective. \(\text{The State, ex rel The Attorney General, v. Tilghman, 6 Iowa, 496.}\)

It is not sufficient in an application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness for the party to state that he has used due diligence to obtain the testimony, but what he has done must be set out in the application that the court may judge of the diligence. \(\text{Thurston v. Cassenor, 5 Id., 155.}\)

When a continuance is asked on the ground of the absence of a witness, whose residence is not known to the applicant, it should be shown that the party has not had time to ascertain the residence of the witness, or that he has used proper diligence to ascertain it. \(\text{James v. Arbuckle, 8 Id., 272.}\)

Where there is no defense made no object is to be gained by a continuance in behalf of the defendant, on account of a witness, and it should be refused. \(\text{Id.}\)

An application for a continuance consists of three essential and material parts: 1. The name and residence of the witness and the facts showing the probability of procuring his testimony at the next term; 2. The facts showing due diligence; 3. The facts to be proved by the witness. \(\text{The State v. Shupe, 16 Id., 36.}\)

An affidavit for a continuance must state facts showing reasonable ground of belief that the attendance or testimony of the witness will be procured by the next term. A mere statement of a belief is insufficient. \(\text{The State v. Hornbacker, 19 Id., 134.}\)

An application for a continuance, on the ground of the absence of witnesses, should state their residence, the particular facts expected to be proved by them, and that the applicant knows of no other witness by whom the facts can be so fully proved. \(\text{The State v. Sater, 8 Id., 420.}\)

Where the affidavit, after stating the names of the witnesses, stated that the applicant expected to prove by said witnesses that he did not steal the horse, as charged in the indictment; that at the time said horse was stolen, he was at another and different place; that he expected to prove by them other facts which would establish his innocence, and that he could not prove said facts so fully by any other witnesses, which application was over-ruled, held, properly over-ruled. \(\text{Id.}\)

The death of a party plaintiff and the substitution of his administrator do not constitute sufficient ground for the continuance of the action on application of the defendant. \(\text{Master­son v. Brown, 51 Iowa, 442.}\)

The fact that the court has granted one more adjournment than is authorized by statute, and that the time is extended beyond the period therein fixed, constitutes a mere irregularity, which can only be taken advantage of upon a showing of prejudice therefrom. \(\text{Reese v. Dob­bins, 51 Iowa, 282.}\)

A motion for a continuance based upon the absence of a witness, filed after the second day of the term, should be supported by an affidavit showing that the motion was made as soon as the party learned of the absence of the witness, and that he desired his evidence. \(\text{Bays v. Herr­ring, 51 Id., 286.}\)

\(^b\) If the state, in order to avoid a continuance, applied for by the defendant in a criminal case on account of the absence of a witness, admits that the absent witness would, if present, swear to the facts stated in the affidavit for continuance, such statements acquired the character of the witness' evidence, and cannot be impeached by showing that he has made statements out of court different from those in the affidavit. The SEC. 2752. The motion must be filed on the second day of the term, if it is then certain that it will have to be made before the trial, and as soon thereafter as it becomes certain that it will so need to be made, and shall not be allowed to be made when the cause is called for trial, except for cause which could not, by reasonable diligence, have been before that time discovered, and if made after the second day of the term, the affidavit must state facts constituting an excuse for the delay in making it. If time is taken when the case is called to make such motion, the motion shall be made and determined as soon as the court opens after the next ordinary adjournment.

SEC. 2753. The application shall be amended but once, unless by permission, to supply a clerical error.

SEC. 2754. To such motion, both as original and as amended, the adverse party may, at once, or within such reasonable time as the court shall allow, file written objections stating wherein he claims that the same is insufficient, and on such motion and objections no argument shall be heard unless the court desire it.

SEC. 2755. Such motion and objections shall be a part of the record, and error in refusing a continuance or in compelling an election, may be reviewed.

SEC. 2756. No copy need be served of a motion for continuance or of objections thereto, but a notice of such motion shall be entered on the notice book.

SEC. 2757. Every continuance granted upon the application of either party, shall be at the costs of such party, unless otherwise ordered by the court.

SEC. 2758. The court shall grant continuance whenever the parties agree thereto, and provide as to costs as may be stipulated.

SEC. 2759. A case continued remains for all purposes except a trial on the facts.

SEC. 2760. Where the defenses are distinct, any one of the several defendants may continue as to himself.

SELECTION OF JURY.

SEC. 2761. When a jury trial is demanded, the clerk shall select twelve jurors by lot from the regular panel.

same rule applies as if the witness had testified in open court, and no foundation laid to impeach him. The State v. Shannehan, 22 Id., 435.

Where the facts stated in an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses are admitted by the state and read on trial as the evidence of the absent witnesses, in order to avoid a continuance, such affidavits are not admissible on a second trial of the cause at a subsequent term. The State v. Felter, 32 Id., 49.

* Under this section an application for a continuance should be overruled if not made the second day of the term, or fails to state facts constituting a sufficient excuse for not doing so. Lucas v. Cassidy et al., 13 Iowa, 567; Woolheather v. Risley, 39 Id., 486, 488.

Where an application for a continuance has been overruled in the court below, the ruling will be presumed correct, and error must be affirmatively shown. Woolheather v. Risley, 38 Id., 486.

The continuance of a cause and the time in which pleadings must be filed are not "rights accrued" within the meaning of section 50 of the code, which cannot be affected by the repeal of existing statutes. Brotherton v. Brotherton, 41 Id., 112.

An application for continuance which fails to show due diligence in preparing the case for trial should be overruled. Id.

An application for a continuance, based upon the filing of a deposition after the commencement of the term, which the applicant expects to be able to record, must state the facts to which the absent witness will testify. The C. & S. W. R. Co. v. Heard, 44 Id., 355.
SEC. 2762. A challenge is an objection made to the trial jurors, and is of two kinds:
1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror.

SEC. 2763. Where there are several parties plaintiffs or defendants, and no separate trial is allowed, they are not allowed to sever their challenges, but must join in them.

SEC. 2764. A challenge to the panel can be founded only on a material departure from the forms prescribed by statute in respect to the drawing and return of the jury.

SEC. 2765. A challenge to the panel must be taken before a juror is sworn, and must be in writing, specifying plainly and distinctly the facts constituting the ground of challenge.

SEC. 2766. A challenge to the panel may be taken by either party, and upon the trial thereof, the officers, whether judicial or ministerial, whose irregularity is complained of, as well as any other persons, may be examined to prove or disprove the facts alleged as the ground of the challenge.

SEC. 2767. If the facts of the challenge be allowed by the court, the jury must be discharged and its members disqualified from sitting as jurors so far as the trial in question is concerned; if it be disallowed, the court shall direct the jury to be impaneled.

SEC. 2768. A challenge to an individual juror is either peremptory or for cause.

SEC. 2769. It must be taken when the juror appears and before he is sworn, but the court may, for good cause, permit it to be taken at any time before the jury is completed.

SEC. 2770. A peremptory challenge is an objection to a juror for which no reasons need be given, but upon which the court shall exclude him.

SEC. 2771. Each party shall have the right to challenge peremptorily, five jurors and no more; and the parties shall challenge alternately, commencing with the plaintiff, and the challenges for cause being first exhausted or waived, the parties shall then, in turn, in the same order, exercise the right of peremptory challenge.

SEC. 2772. After each challenge, the vacancy shall be filled before further challenges are made, and any new jurors thus introduced may be challenged. A challenge for cause is an objection to a juror, and may be for any of the following causes:
1. A conviction for felony;
2. A want of any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person a competent juror;
3. Inability to understand the English language, unsoundness of mind, or such defects in the faculties of mind or organs of the body as render him incapable of performing the duties of a juror;
4. Consanguinity or affinity within the ninth degree to the adverse party;

4 Where the clerk of the city court of Dubuque issued a venire for fifteen jurors instead of twenty-four, required by the statute creating that court, for the panel for a term, held, that a challenge to the panel should have been sustained. Baker & Griffin v. The Steamboat Milwaukee, 14 Iowa, 214.
5. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family, or in the employment of the adverse party;
6. Being a party adverse to the challenging party in a civil action, or having complained against, or been accused by him in a criminal prosecution;
7. Having already sat upon the trial of the same issues;
8. Having served as a grand or trial juror in a criminal case based on the same transaction;
9. When it appears the juror has formed or expressed an unqualified opinion on the merits of the controversy, or shows such a state of mind as will preclude him from rendering a just verdict;
10. Being interested in a like question with the issue to be tried.

Sec. 2773. Upon the trial of a challenge to an individual juror, the juror challenged may be examined as a witness to prove or disprove the challenge, and must answer every question pertinent to the inquiry thereon; and other evidence may also be heard.
Sec. 2774. In all challenges, the court shall determine the law and the fact, and must either allow or disallow the challenge.
Sec. 2775. When the requisite number of jurors cannot otherwise be obtained, the sheriff shall select talesmen to supply the deficiency from the body of the county.
Sec. 2776. A person whose religious faith and practice are to keep the seventh day of the week as a day set apart by divine command, and dedicated to rest and religious uses, cannot be compelled to attend as a juror on that day, and shall, in other respects, be protected in the enjoyment of his opinions to the same extent as those who keep the first day of the week.
Sec. 2777. An exemption from service on a jury is not a cause of challenge, but the privilege of the person exempted.

Sec. 2778. The parties may at any time, either before the jury is sworn, or after, agree to take the verdict of the majority, which agreement being stated to the court and stated on the record to have been made, shall bind the parties, and, in such case, a verdict signed by any seven or more and duly rendered, when read and not disapproved by said majority, shall, in every particular, be as binding as if made by a full jury; or, when both parties require it, a struck jury may be ordered, whereupon eighteen jurors shall be called into the box, the plaintiff first, and then the defendant, shall strike out one juror in turn until each has struck six, and the remaining six shall try the cause.
ORDER OF TRIAL.

Sec. 2779. When the jury has been sworn, the court shall proceed in the following order:

1. The party on whom rests the burden of proof, may briefly state his claim and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it;
2. The other party may then briefly state his defense, and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it;
3. The party on whom rests the burden of proof in the whole action, must first produce his evidence; the adverse party must then produce his evidence;
4. The parties then will be confined to rebutting evidence, unless the court, for good reasons, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence in their original case;
5. But one counsel on each side shall examine the same witness, and upon interlocutory questions, the party moving the court or objecting to testimony shall be heard first; the respondent may then reply by one counsel, and the mover rejoin, confining his remarks to the points first stated, and a pertinent answer to respondent's argument. Debate on the questions shall then be closed, unless the court request further argument.1

Sec. 2780. The parties may then either submit or argue the case to the jury. In the argument, the party having the burden of the issue, shall have the opening and closing, but shall disclose in the opening all the points relied on in the cause; and if in the close he should refer to any new material, point, or fact, not relied upon in the opening, the adverse party shall have the right of reply thereto, which reply shall close the argument in the case.1

Sec. 2781. If the party holding the affirmative waive the opening, he shall be limited in the close simply to a reply to his adversary's argument, otherwise the other party shall have the concluding argument.

Sec. 2782. Every plaintiff or defendant shall be entitled to appear by one attorney, and if there be but one plaintiff or defendant, he may appear by two, and where there are several defendants having the same or separate defenses and appearing by the same or different attorneys, the court shall, before argument, arrange their order.

1 After the party adverse to the one on whom rests the burden of proof has produced his evidence, the other is confined to rebutting evidence, but the court may, for good reasons, in furtherance of justice, permit him to offer original testimony. Hubbell & Brother v. Ream et al., 31 Iowa, 289.

It seems that the whole subject of the examination of witnesses, and the order in which the evidence shall be produced, rests very largely in the discretion of the trial court. Id. See also, Crane v. Ellis, Id., 510; Boals et al. v. Shields et al., 35 Id., 231.

And although the action of the court below in admitting evidence not rebutting will not ordinarily be disturbed by the appellate court, neither will the rejection of such evidence be reversed. Id.

In an action upon a judgment, which is admitted by the pleadings but alleged to have been rendered without jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, the defendant has the affirmative of the issue and the onus is upon him. Lowe v. Lowe, 35 Id., 480.

1 While the right to review the question as to which party holds the affirmative of the issue, and has the right of opening and closing the argument, is not absolutely denied, yet there must be a clear case of prejudice to justify a reversal upon this ground, after a trial on the merits. Preston v. Walker, 26 Iowa, 205.

A motion for continuance, being a part of the record, may be commented upon by opposite counsel without it having been formally offered in evidence. Cross v. Garrett, 35 Id., 480.
SEC. 2783. The court may restrict the time of any attorney in any argument to itself, but shall not do so in any case before a jury.

INSTRUCTIONS.

SEC. 2784. When the argument is concluded, either party may request instructions to the jury on points of law, which shall be given or refused by the court. All instructions asked, and the charge of the court, shall be in writing.\(^1\)

SEC. 2785. If the court refuse a written instruction as demanded, but give the same with a modification, which the court may do, such modification shall not be by interlineation or erasure, but shall be well defined, and shall follow some such characterizing words as "changed thus," which words shall themselves indicate that the same was refused as demanded.\(^1\)

SEC. 2786. The court must read over all the instructions which it intends to give, and none other, to the jury, and must announce them as given, and shall announce as refused, without reading to the jury, all those which are refused, and must write the words "given" or "refused," as the case may be, on the margin of each instruction.

SEC. 2787. If the giving or refusal be excepted to, the same may be without any stated reason therefor, and all instructions demanded must be filed, and shall become a part of the record.\(^2\)

when any part of the charge given by the court to the jury is correct, a general exception to the whole charge presents no question for review in the appellate court. Loomis, Conger & Co. v. Simpson, 13 Iowa, 532; The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, Id., 229; Wilhelmi v. Leonard, Id., 330. These instructions on the part of the defendant were passed up to the court during the opening, and only argument made in the case: held, error to refuse to give them on the ground that they were submitted in the cause that could not be examined without keeping the jury in waiting. McCaleb v. Smith, 22 Id., 242. It is not a good reason for refusing to give instructions that they are unnecessarily lengthy. Id.

*When the ruling of the court upon instructions is noted on the margin thereof, with exceptions thereto in accordance with sections 2786 and 2787, they become part of the record, and may be reviewed on appeal without a formal bill of exceptions, but a bill of exceptions is preferable. Cadeallder & Co. v. Blair et al., 18 Iowa, 420. A statement by the clerk that certain instructions were given is not sufficient. Id. See also to the same effect, Phillips v. Starr & Co., 26 Id., 349.

*The modification of instructions should not be by erasure or interlineation. Phillips v. Starr & Co., 26 Iowa, 349. Instructions which are not embodied in a bill of exceptions nor identified thereby, and which are not marked excepted to on the margin, will not be regarded in the appellate court. Alter, if the ruling upon the instructions with the exceptions thereto are noted on the margin. Phillips v. Starr & Co., 26 Id., 349; Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. Davenport, 13 Id., 229.

It is not error to refuse to give an instruction, although embodying a correct statement of the law applicable to the case when its substance has been given in another instruction. Cramer v. City of Burlington, 42 Id., 315; Todd v. Branner, 30 Id., 439; State v. Hockenberry et al., 11 Id., 269; Trustees etc. v. Hill, 12 Id., 492; Peck v. Hendershott, 14 Id., 40; Brudskoff Bros. v. Barrett, Id., 101; Cousins v. Westcott, 15 Id., 254; Denton v. Lewis, Id., 301; Nason v. Woodward, 16 Id., 216; State v. Rovabuck, 19 Id., 154; Smith v. Gamble, 14 Id., 430; Payne v. Billingham, 10 Id., 360. An exception to instructions between certain members given, and "each of them," is sufficiently specific when the objection is made as the instructions are given. Mann v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 46 Id., 637. A general exception to the giving of each of "the instructions embraced in the charge of the court," where the charge involves several propositions of law, any one of which is correct, presents no question for review on appeal. The same rule applies to a general exception by one party to the giving of instructions asked by the other; but when instructions are asked and refused, and such refusal is noted on the margin of each instruction, a general exception presents a question upon each instruction so refused. Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. City of Davenport, 13 Id., 229; Loomis, Conger & Co. v. Simpson, 13 Id., 533; McCaleb v. Smith, 24 Id., 591.*
SEC. 2788. After argument the court may, also, of its own motion, charge the jury. Such charge shall be written in consecutively numbered paragraphs; and no oral explanation thereof shall be allowed. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the instructions asked by the parties.\(^a\)

SEC. 2789. Either party may take and file exceptions to the charge or instructions given, or to the refusal to give any instructions offered within three days after the verdict, and may include the same in a motion for a new trial, but in either case the exceptions shall specify the part of the charge or instruction objected to and the ground of the objection.\(^b\)

RULES REGARDING JURIES.

SEC. 2790. Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper for the jury to have a view of the real property which is the subject of controversy, or of the place in which any material fact occurred, it may order them to be conducted in a body, under charge of an officer, to the place which shall be shown to them by some person appointed by the court for that purpose; while the jury are thus absent, no person other than the person so appointed shall speak to them on any subject connected with the trial.\(^c\)

SEC. 2791. When the case is finally submitted to the jury they may decide in court or retire for deliberation. If they retire, they shall be kept together, under charge of an officer until they agree upon a verdict, or are discharged by the court. The officer having them under his charge shall not suffer any communication to be made to them, or make any himself, except to ask them if they have agreed upon their verdict; unless by order of the court, and he shall not, before their verdict is rendered, communicate to any person the state of their deliberations, or the verdict agreed upon.\(^d\)

\(^a\) It is not error for the court to orally refuse to instruct the jury upon the matters not pertinent to the case. and to direct them orally to proceed to determine the case on the instructions already given. Sullivan v. Collins, 18 Iowa, 223.

\(^b\) Exceptions to the giving or refusal of instructions must be taken at the time the jury is charged, or within three days after the verdict, or errors assigned thereon will not be considered in the appellate court. Harrison v. Charlton, 42 Iowa, 753.

\(^c\) The bill of exception may be signed by consent of parties after the adjournment of the term. Id.

\(^d\) When the defendant fails to except to the instructions of the court, relying upon a practice that all instructions are to be regarded as excepted to, the practice should be stated in the abstract to be of avail to the appellant. Steyer v. Curren, 48 Id., 550.

An exception to instructions after verdict, which specifies them by number, is sufficiently definite as to the part objected to; but, as to the ground of objection, is not explicit enough in stating they "are not applicable to the case," Miller v. Gardner et al., 49 Id., 294.

A bill of exceptions signed by the circuit judge cannot properly recite what occurred in the district court prior to a change of venue therefrom. Ferguson v. Dari County, 51 Iowa, 220.

The party resisting a motion for a change of venue does not waive an objection to the ruling of the court granting the change by appearing in the court to which the change is made and stipulating for a trial at a fixed time, or by moving for a new trial after verdict. Id.

The fact that the party objecting has had a fair trial before an unprejudiced jury does not render an error in granting the change of venue error without prejudice. Id.

\(^e\) The object of this section is to enable the jury the better to apply the evidence given on the trial, and not to base their verdict in any degree upon the examination of the premises, itself, or to become silent witnesses as to facts in relation to which neither party has an opportunity to cross-examine. Close v. Sams, 27 Iowa, 505.

\(^f\) A verdict was agreed upon after the adjournment of the court, in the night, and was, without the consent of parties, sealed up by the jury, and by them placed in the hands of the bailiff, to be by him delivered to the clerk, whereupon the jury separated. Held, that the irregularities were not sufficient to invalidate the verdict. Heiser v. Van Dyke, Martin & Co. 27 Iowa, 359; Cook & Owsley v. Walters, 4 Id., 72.
Sec. 2792. If the jury are permitted to separate during the trial, they must be advised by the court that it is the duty of each one of them not to converse with any other of them, or with any person, nor to suffer himself to be addressed by any person on any subject of the trial, and that during the trial it is the duty of each one of them to avoid, as far as possible, forming any opinion thereon until the cause is finally submitted to them.

Sec. 2793. If, after the impaneling of the jury and before verdict, a juror becomes sick so as to be unable to perform his duty, he may be discharged. In such case the trial shall proceed with the remaining jurors, provided the number has not been reduced below ten, or the court may, in its discretion, order the jury to be discharged.

Sec. 2794. The jury may be discharged by the court on account of any accident or calamity requiring their discharge, or by the consent of both parties, or, when on an amendment a continuance is ordered, or after they have been kept together until it satisfactorily appears that there is no probability of their agreeing.

Sec. 2795. In all cases where the jury are discharged during the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, it may be tried again immediately, or at a future time, as the court may then direct.

Sec. 2796. The court may also, at any time after having entered upon the trial of any cause, where it may deem it right for the purposes of justice, order an adjournment for such time within the term, and subject to such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise, as it may think just.

Sec. 2797. Upon retiring for deliberation, the jury may take with them all books of accounts, and all papers which have been received as evidence in the cause, except depositions, which shall not be so taken, unless all the testimony is in writing, and none of the same has been ordered to be struck out.

Sec. 2798. When the jury is absent, the court may adjourn from time to time in respect to other business, but it is to be deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury, until a verdict is rendered or the jury discharged.

7 Where a jury upon retiring to consider upon their verdict, took with them a deposition, which had not been read upon the trial, and read and considered the same in making up their verdict, it was held, that as the deposition was favorable to the party for whom the verdict was rendered, the verdict should be set aside and a new trial granted. Stewart v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 62.

7 Where a deposition is taken by the jury on their retirement, with the knowledge of the appellant and without objection on his part at the time, the judgment will not be reversed, nor in the absence of a showing that he was prejudiced thereby. Shields v. Guffey, 9 Id., 322; State v. Accola, 11 Id., 246; Turner v. Kelly, 10 Id., 573; Davenport v. Cummings, 15 Id., 219.

The jury may take the instructions given by the court with them when they retire to consider upon their verdict. Head & Metzger v. Langworthy & Bros., 15 Id., 235.

Where a jury, on retiring, took with them a deposition which had not been read in evidence but was material to the case, without the knowledge or consent of the parties, the verdict should be set aside and a new trial granted. Coffin v. Gephart, 18 Id., 256.

Where, in an action to recover the value of a lot of wheat, alleged to have been sold by the defendant, copies of a daily commercial price current were admitted in evidence, it was held, that these papers might properly be taken by the jury to their room upon retiring to consider upon their verdict; and that having retired without them it was not erroneous for the court to send them to their room, on a request from the jury to that effect. Peterson v. Haugen, 54 Id., 395.

SEC. 2799.  At any time before the cause is finally submitted to the court or jury, either party may be permitted by the court to give further testimony to correct an evident oversight or mistake, but terms may be imposed upon the party obtaining the privilege.

SEC. 2800.  After the jury has retired for deliberation, if they desire to be informed as to any point of law arising in the case, they may request the officer to conduct them into court, which he shall do, when the information required shall be given in the presence of, or after notice to, the parties or their counsel.

SEC. 2801.  Such information shall be in writing, and shall be held approved unless it be excepted to in the same way as the charge, and no discussion thereon shall be allowed to either party.

SEC. 2802.  If, while the jury are kept together, either during the progress of the trial or after their retirement for deliberation, the court order them to be provided with suitable food and lodging, they must be provided by the sheriff, at the expense of the county.

VERDICT.

SEC. 2803.  The verdict must be written and signed by a foreman chosen by the jury itself, and when agreed, the jury must be conducted into court, their names called, and the verdict rendered by him and read by the clerk to the jury, and the inquiry made whether it is their verdict.  If any juror disagrees, the jury must be sent out again, but if no disagreement is expressed and neither party requires the jury to be polled, the verdict is complete and the jury discharged from the case.

* This section was intended to prevent the unjust determination of a cause, on account of an accidental or inadvertent omission of a party to call a witness, or to ask a question on some given point; and was not intended to be limited in its application to the period of examining witnesses.  McManus v. Finan, 4 Iowa, 283.

To correct an oversight or mistake, evidence may be allowed to be introduced by a party, after the argument of one of the counsel of the opposite party to the court has closed.  McCormick & Bros. v. Holbrook, 22 Id., 487.

This section which authorizes the reception of evidence to correct an evident oversight or mistake at any time before the cause is finally submitted, does not deny to the court the power to receive, in its discretion, any evidence out of its usual order, where there is no surprise to the opposite party, and justice is thereby promoted.  Huey v. Huey, 20 Id., 525.

While it seems that this section applies alone to civil causes, yet, under some circumstances and for some purposes, in criminal trials, a witness may properly be recalled after the evidence is closed, as where a difference of opinion and misunderstanding as to what the witness testified to exists.  The State v. Shean, 32 Id., 88.

The defendant in a criminal proceeding may with the consent of the district attorney and the court, waive his right to a trial by twelve jurors and be tried by a less number.  The State v. Kaufman, 51 Iowa, 578.

* A judgment will not be reversed because the verdict is not signed by the foreman of the jury when returned by the jury into court.  This section is directory and not imperative.  Morrison v. Overton, 20 Iowa, 465.

It is not error to permit a jury, after it has returned a sealed verdict into court, to correct an error in the verdict which has occurred through inadvertence only.  Hamilton v. Barton, Id., 586.

The party against whom a verdict has been rendered cannot complain of the ruling of the court permitting the jury to reduce the amount of the verdict, when the record shows no exceptions taken on the trial, no evidence preserved, and no other steps taken by which he could have escaped the payment of the entire verdict.  Id.

In the absence of any showing to the contrary it will be presumed that the court followed the directions of this section of the statute, and that upon the reading of the verdict to the jury, and inquiry is made of them as to whether it is their verdict, there was no disagreement thereto.  Boyliss v. Davis, 47 Id., 340, 344.

In an action on a note, the parties consented that upon the agreement of the jury as to their verdict after the adjournment of court, they might seal and return it to the clerk which was done.  The verdict, on being opened the following morning, was found to read, "We the jury find for the plaintiff."  Whereupon the court ordered the jury recalled, and instructed them to put their verdict in form which they did by add-
SEC. 2804. When the verdict is announced, either party may require the jury to be polled, which shall be done by the court, or clerk, asking each juror if it is his verdict. If any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation.

SEC. 2805. When, by consent of the parties and the court, the jury have been permitted to seal their verdict and separate before it is rendered, such sealing is equivalent to a rendition and a recording thereof in open court, nor shall such jury be polled or permitted to disagree thereto, unless such a course has been agreed upon between the parties in open court and entered on the record.

SEC. 2806. The verdict of a jury is either general or special. A general verdict is one in which they pronounce generally for the plaintiff or for the defendant upon all, or upon any of the issues.

SEC. 2807. A special verdict is one in which the jury finds facts only; it must present the ultimate facts as established by the evidence to prove them, so that nothing remains to the court but to draw from them its conclusions of law.

SEC. 2808. In all actions, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or special verdict; and in any case in which they render a general verdict, they may be required by the court, and must be so required on the request of any party to the action, to find specially upon any particular questions of fact to be stated to them in writing, which questions of fact shall be submitted to the attorneys of the adverse party before the argument to the jury is commenced.

SEC. 2809. When the special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict, the former controls the latter, and the court may give judgment accordingly.

The words "open court," is to be understood as conveying the idea that the court must be in session, organized for the transaction of business. For Beek, J., in Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Id., 501, 504.

When the jury return special findings, without any general verdict, the court may render judgment on such special findings when the amount to which the plaintiff is entitled under the law is clear therefrom. Holphrey v. The C. & R. I. R. Co., 29 Iowa, 480.

It is not necessary for the jury to find specially on a counter claim pleaded by the defendant. A general verdict for the plaintiff involves and disposes of all the issues. Stepanek v. Kula, 36 Id., 563.

This section has reference to trials in civil actions only. The State v. Ridley et al., 48 Iowa, 370.

To entitle a party to judgment on a special verdict against a general one in favor of the other party, the special findings must be inconsistent with the general one, and must of themselves, or when taken together with the facts admitted by the pleadings, be sufficient to establish or defeat (as the case may be) the right to recover. Hardin v. Brauer, 25 Iowa, 364; Lamb v. The First P. S. of Marshalltown, 20 Id., 127; Bills v. City of Ottumwa, 35 Id., 107; Mershon v. N. I. Ins. Co., 34 Id., 87.

When a jury, being instructed to find a special verdict upon three separate issues submitted, returned a special and general verdict, and the special verdict as to one issue was inconsistent with the general verdict, and as to another was equivocal and doubtful, it was held, that the court below did not err in setting aside the general verdict, and in overruling a motion for judgment on both the special and general verdict. Davenport S. F. & L. Ass. v. The N. d' F. Ins. Co., 15 Id., 74.

The failure or refusal of the jury to answer any one of the special questions submitted to them constitutes no ground for a reversal of the judgment. Garrett v. Brazell, 34 Id., 339.

The refusal of the jury to answer definitely an immaterial question submitted to them affords no ground for a new trial. Rogers v. Hanson & Co., 25 Id., 283.
A party is entitled to a special verdict only upon material facts upon which issue has been joined by the pleadings in the case; and it should be in such form as not to involve a statement of evidence or conclusions of law. Hatfield v. Lockwood, 18 Id., 296.
When the court may instruct the jury to find a special verdict, see Carlton v. Byington, Id., 482.
After the argument to the jury has commenced, it is too late to present special findings to be submitted with the case to the jury. Hopper v. Moore & Co., 42 Id., 563.
If the jury fail to agree in a special finding submitted to them, their answer showing such disagreement is the same as no answer, and can have no effect in the case. Hardin v. Branner, 25 Id., 364.
To justify the court in setting aside a general verdict on the ground that it is inconsistent with the special findings, the conflict must be irreconcilable. Bills v. The City of Ottumwa, 35 Id., 107.
Where a general verdict with special findings are returned and judgment entered upon the general verdict, a judgment may, on motion of the other party and in a proper case, be rendered on the special findings, without first setting aside the judgment rendered on the general verdict. The sustaining of the motion and rendering judgment on the special findings has the effect to set aside the former judgment. Morning v. Cooper, 35 Id., 257.
If the verdict is defective in form merely, and no objection is made to it at the time of its rendition in the court below, the objection cannot be made on appeal to the supreme court. McGregor et al. v. Amsill, 2 Iowa, 30.
The court may put the verdict in form when the meaning is not thereby changed. Armstrong v. Pierson, 15 Id., 476.
Where the verdict read "we the jury find for the plaintiff, for the note and interest," sufficiently indicates the intention of the jury, and the reference thereof by the court to the clerk for the purpose of computing the amount is but a reduction of the verdict to form and proper. Stevens v. Campbell, 6 Id., 533.
When the verdict is informal the court may instruct them as to the form and have them retire to put it in form. Bass v. Hanson, 9 Id., 563; and this may be done after the jury have returned a sealed verdict and separated. Lee & Co. v. Bradley, 25 Id., 218; Higley & Co. v. Neavell, 28 Id., 516.
To justify a court in reforming a verdict the data must be unmistakable. Edwards v. McFadden, 20 Id., 520.
A verdict defective in form may be corrected by the court, but not to supply an omission as to the amount by reference to outside evidence. Fromme v. Jones, 13 Id., 474.
An agreement between the parties that an ordinary action and an equitable action shall be tried by the court at the same time and upon the same evidence, will operate as a waiver of a jury trial in the law action, but will not have the effect to change the character of the actions. Leighton v. Orr, 44 Iowa, 679.
SEC. 2816. When the parties do not consent, the court may, upon the motion of either, or upon its own motion, direct a reference in either of the following cases:
1. When the trial of an issue of fact shall require the examination of mutual accounts, or when, the account being on one side only, it shall be made to appear to the court that it is necessary that the party on the other side should be examined as a witness to prove the account, in which case the referee may be directed to hear and report upon the whole issue, or upon any specific question of fact involved therein; or,
2. When the taking of an account shall be necessary for the information of the court before judgment, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect; or,
3. When a question of fact shall arise in any action by equitable proceedings, in which case the court in the order of reference shall prescribe the manner in which the testimony shall be taken on the trial.6

SEC. 2817. Where not otherwise declared in the order of reference, all the referees must meet to hear proofs, arguments, and to deliberate, but a decision by the majority shall be regarded as their decision.

SEC. 2818. When appointed by the court, the judge thereof may fill vacancies in vacation.

SEC. 2819. The referee shall stand in the place of the court, and shall have the same power, so far as necessary, to discharge his duty.d

SEC. 2820. The trial by referee shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. He shall have the same power to summon, and enforce by attachment, the attendance of witnesses, to punish them as for a contempt for non-attendance or refusal to be sworn or to testify, and to administer all necessary oaths in the trial of the case, to take testimony by commission, allow amendments to sent; but actions for divorce are excepted from the operation of this rule by section 2522 of the code, and cannot be referred even by consent, but must be publicly tried in open court. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Iowa, 501.

The fact that exceptions to the report of the referee in such case is filed and argued before the court does not constitute a trial in open court within the meaning of the statute. Nor does an adoption of the findings of the referee by the court comply with this provision. Id.

* Where an action involves matters of purely equitable cognizance, although there is also sought, in the same action, other relief not of an equitable character, the court has the power, under the statute, as well as under the former equity practice, to refer the cause to a referee or master, without the consent of the parties. The state for the use, etc., v. Orrig et al., 25 Id., 250.

A party in an equitable action, cannot as a matter of right, demand that the issue shall be tried by a jury. Id.

The court has no power under this section to order a reference of a cause where the parties do not consent thereto, in cases not cognizable in courts of equity. The exercise of such power would violate the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the constitution. McMartin v. Birmingham, 27 Id., 234.

Courts of equity have jurisdiction of actions upon accounts, except where there are mutual accounts, or where the accounts are on one side only and discovery is sought, but not when the account is on one side and no other relief is prayed, nor where there is a single matter on one side and a set-off on the other. Id.

† The presumptions which obtain in favor of the regularity of proceedings in court apply also to proceedings before referees appointed by the court. Oliver v. Townsend, 16 Iowa, 430.

The court may refuse to review the finding of a referee stands like the verdict of a jury or the finding of the court, and will be reversed by the appellate court on the ground that the issue shall require the examination of mutual accounts, or when, the account being on one side only and discovery is sought, but not when the account is on one side and no other relief is prayed, nor where there is a single matter on one side and a set-off on the other. Id.

¶ Where an action involves matters of purely equitable cognizance, although there is also sought, in the same action, other relief not of an equitable character, the court has the power, under the statute, as well as under the former equity practice, to refer the cause to a referee or master, without the consent of the parties. The state for the use, etc., v. Orrig et al., 25 Id., 250.

A party in an equitable action, cannot as a matter of right, demand that the issue shall be tried by a jury. Id.

The court has no power under this section to order a reference of a cause where the parties do not consent thereto, in cases not cognizable in courts of equity. The exercise of such power would violate the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the constitution. McMartin v. Birmingham, 27 Id., 234.
pleadings, grant continuances, preserve order, and punish all violations thereof.°

Sec. 2821. The report of the referee on the whole issue, must state the facts found and the conclusions of law, separately, and shall stand as the finding of the court, and judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court; the report may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner.†

Sec. 2822. When the reference is to report the facts, the report shall have the effect of a special verdict.‡

Sec. 2823. The referee shall sign any true bill of exceptions taken to any ruling by him made in the case whereunto any party demands a bill of exceptions; and the party shall have the same rights to obtain such bill as exist in the court, and such bill shall be returned with the report.

Sec. 2824. In all cases of reference, the parties, except when a minor may be a party, may agree upon a suitable person or persons, not exceeding three, and the reference shall be ordered accordingly; and if the parties do not agree, the court shall appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, who shall be persons free from exception, or the court may allow each party to select one, and itself to select a third.

Sec. 2825. A judge of the court, when a case is pending, may, in vacation, upon the written consent of the parties, make an order of reference. In such case the order of reference shall be written in the written agreement to refer, and shall be filled with the clerk of the court with the other papers in the cause.

Sec. 2826. The referee must make affidavit well and faithfully to hear and examine the case, and make a just and true report therein according to the best of his understanding. The affidavit shall be returned with the report.§

* See cases cited in note to section 2819.

† Issues in equitable actions are tried in the supreme court de novo on the merits, and not upon the finding of facts made by a referee. Cooper v. Skeel, 14 Iowa, 578.

The finding of a referee, in the consideration of a motion for a new trial, in the appellate court, stands upon the same ground as the verdict of a jury, and will not be disturbed unless it is manifestly against the evidence. Whicher et al. v. The Steamboat Ewing, 21 Iowa, 240.

That the report of a referee was filed, and judgment rendered thereon in vacation, constitutes sufficient cause for not excepting thereto, nor will it prevent the application of the rule that the supreme court will not review the action of the lower court unless excepted to. Roberts v. Cass, 27 Id., 223.

Where the parties agreed upon a reference, with the stipulation that either should have thirty days, after the report of the referee should be made, to file exceptions thereto, and the referee reported in vacation without consent of parties, held, that in a legal sense the report was not in court until the first day of the following term, and that a motion to set aside the report could then be made. Michael v. Longman, 42 Id., 434.

It is competent for the court to refer a case back to a referee for further report upon the facts with reference to particular issues which are not fully reported upon. Sage et al. v. Nichols et al., 51 Iowa, 44.

The authority of the referee in such case, however, is limited to reporting upon the particular matters specified in the order of the court. Id.

§ In ordinary actions the finding of a referee has the effect of a special verdict, and will be only disregarded where palpably against the weight of the evidence; but in equitable actions, it is the duty of the appellate court to adjudicate the case de novo on the evidence. Wilgus et al. v. Gettins et al., 21 Iowa, 173.

Where objection is made that the report of the referee is not accompanied by his official oath, evidence that the oath was made and afterwards lost shows a sufficient comp ance with the statute. Sears v. Selles, 22 Iowa, 501.

The failure to file the oath of the referee with his report is not a fatal objection where the report recites that he was duly sworn before proceeding to the discharge of his duties. Shinder v. Luke, 43 Id., 89.
SEC. 2827. The order shall not be made until the case is at issue as to the parties whose rights are to be examined on the reference. The order may direct when the referee shall proceed to a hearing, and when he shall make his report; but in the absence of such direction, he shall do so on the morning of the tenth day after the day on which was made the order of reference, and shall file his report as soon as done; of the time thus fixed or determined the parties shall take notice, and non-attendance of either party within an hour of such time shall be attended with like consequences as if the case were in court, which consequences shall be reported as any other fact or finding of the referee.\(^1\)

SEC. 2828. The referee must be called on by the court to accept or refuse the appointment, and his acceptance shall be entered of record; and he shall be under the control of the court, who may, on the motion of either party, make proper orders with a view to his proceeding with all due dispatch, and the court or judge may, on his motion, on good cause shown, enlarge the time for making his report.

SEC. 2829. Any one of such referees may issue and sign subpoenas and other process, and administer oaths necessary for the discharge of their duties and the full exercise of all their powers.

SEC. 2830. The form of procedure which in the court itself regulates service, pleading, proof, trial, and the preparation, progression, and method of each of these, shall obtain before the referee; and in every incident of the proceeding before him, the rights and responsibilities of parties, and of their attorneys, and of the referee, shall be the same as if the referee was the court engaged in the same matter.\(^2\)

SEC. 2831. [An exception is an objection taken to a decision of the court, or a party acting as the court, on matter of law. The party objecting to the decision must do so at the time the same is made (but if decision is on motion, demurrer, or judgment, exception may be taken within three days), and embody his objection in a bill of exceptions to be filed during the term, or within such time thereafter as the court may fix; but in no event shall the time extend more than thirty days beyond the expiration of the term, except by consent of parties or by order of the judge. But in an equitable action tried as such, no bill of exceptions shall be required.\(^3\)]

1 Where by agreement a pending cause was submitted to arbitrators, who were, by the order made, given authority to fix the day of hearing, it was held that this was not an absence of direction as contemplated by this section, and that the arbitrators might rightfully fix the time of hearing beyond the ten days prescribed in the section for cases where there is no direction given as to the time of hearing. Corbitt v. Nealy, 29 Iowa, 445.

2 The method of determining the correctness of an account involved in a controversy which has been submitted to a referee, rests within his discretion. Keokuk County v. Howard, 43 Iowa, 354.

3 Exceptions to the ruling of the court trying the cases must be taken at the time the rulings are made, and when the record does not show affirmatively that exceptions were thus taken, the supreme court will not review the rulings of the court below. Beason v. Johnson, 14 Iowa, 399; Brevington v. Patton & Sean, 1 Id., 121; Rowena v. Tucker, 3 Id., 213; The State v. Burge, 7 Id., 235; Davison S. F. Association, 16 Id., 74; Corner & Co. v. R. § 3107.

SEC. 2832.  No stated form of exception is required. If the exception is to the admission or exclusion of evidence, oral or written, the ground of the objection must be also stated, and no other shall be regarded.

SEC. 2833.  When the decision objected to is entered on the record, and the grounds of the exception appear in the entry, or when any error appears of record, the exception may be taken by the party causing to be noted at the end of the decision, or in connection therewith, that he excepts.

SEC. 2834.  An exception, when presented for signature, need not include therein, spread out at length, any writing filed in court, but may incorporate the same by any unmistakable reference thereto; and the clerk, in making a transcript of the bill of exceptions, shall write therein at length all of such writing included therein by reference.

SEC. 2835.  When the decision is not entered on the record, or when the grounds of objection do not sufficiently appear in the record, the party excepting must reduce his exception to writing and present it to the judge for his signature. If he deems it true he shall sign it. If the judge refuses to sign it, the party may procure the signature of two bystanders, attesting that the exception is true and that the judge has refused to sign the same, and the bill of exceptions shall then be filed with the clerk and shall become a part of the record. But the truth of such exception may be controverted and maintained by affidavits, not exceeding five on each side, which shall become part of the record. All affidavits impugning the exception must be filed within three days from the time of filing the bill of exceptions, and all affidavits sustaining the same within two days thereafter.

The court may on the trial of a cause, refuse to stop the trial to enable a party to prepare a bill of exceptions, if a reasonable time is given for that purpose after the conclusion of the hearing. Anson v. Dwight, 18 Iowa, 241.

Where by agreement of parties, a verdict is returned and judgment rendered in vacation, the bill of exceptions must be presented at the time the judgment is rendered, or within the time which may be stipulated for between the parties, and cannot be presented afterwards if the opposite party objects. Lloyd v. Beadle, 43 Iowa, 659.

Bills of exception, in the absence of any order or agreement must be settled and filed during the term. The State v. Orwig, 36 Iowa, 112.

A bill of exceptions may, by consent of parties, be signed after the adjournment of the term. Harrison v. Carleton, 42 Iowa, 573; Gibbs v. Buckingham, 48 Iowa, 96, 98.

A certificate of the trial judge, made a year after the trial, to the effect that the evidence contained in the abstract was all the evidence submitted on the trial, is not a compliance with the statute, and the bill of exceptions may, on motion, be stricken from the record. Gibbs v. Buckingham, 48 Iowa, 96.

1An exception to the admission of evidence will not be considered where the ground of the objection is not stated. Carleton v. Byington, 18 Iowa, 482; Childs v. Mesches, 20 Iowa, 431; Davidson v. Smith, 1d., 466; Kilburn v. Mullen, 22 Iowa, 492; O'Hagan v. Clingensmith, 24 Iowa, 249; Peck v. McKern, 45 Iowa, 18; Gelpecke, Winslow & Co. v. Lovell, 18 Iowa, 17; Keough v. Scott County, 28 Iowa, 337.

Where the certificate of the judge trying the cause shows the rulings made during the trial, and states that the same were duly excepted to, such certificate is a sufficient compliance with the statute. The State v. Fay, 43 Iowa, 651.

* An oral exception to an order or decision is sufficient, where the decision is entered of record, and the grounds of the exception appear in the entry at the end of the decision. Gramer v. White, 29 Iowa, 330.

* The appellate court will not review instructions given by the court below, to which no specific exception was taken at the time. Armstrong v. Pierson, 15 Iowa, 476; Lyons v. Thompson, 16 Iowa, 62.

* A bill of exceptions which embraces all the rulings and decisions of the court on the trial, which are complained of and shows that the several exceptions were taken in fact at the proper time, is unobjectionable. It is not necessary that each ruling complained of should be the subject of a separate bill of exceptions. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 5 Iowa, 456.

NEW TRIALS.

SEC. 2837. A new trial is a re-examination in the same court of an issue of fact, or some part or portions thereof after verdict by a jury, report of a referee, or a decision by the court. The former report, verdict, or decision, or some part or portion thereof, shall be vacated and a new trial granted on the application of the party aggrieved for the following causes affecting materially the substantial rights of such party:

1. Irregularity in the proceedings of the court, jury, referee, or prevailing party; or any order of the court or referee, or abuse of discretion, by which the party was prevented from having a fair trial; 6 eyes of court. It is not necessary that the judge should certify to his refusal to sign the bill. Craig v. Andrews, 7 Id., 17.

When the time for settling a bill of exceptions is, by agreement of parties, extended for a definite period beyond the term, it must be settled within the time fixed, or a showing must be made that the party excepting made proper efforts to have it done. St. John v. Wallace, 25 Id., 21.

Where the judge refuses to sign the bill of exceptions, it is not competent for one of the attorneys of the party excepting, to sign the bill as one of the bystanders. Id.

Affidavits impugning the correctness of a bill of exceptions signed by the judge will not be considered by the supreme court, unless they are presented to sustain a bill of exceptions purporting to contain a correct statement of the evidence, and signed by two bystanders. Woodworth v. Byerly, 43 Id., 106.

No error should be regarded by the supreme court, where it does not affect the substantial rights of the appellant. DeMoss v. Haycock, 15 Iowa, 149.

On an appeal to the supreme court, the complaining party must not only show error in the ruling of the court below, but error prejudicial to his substantial rights. Golden & Co. v. Cole, 19 Id., 353; Smith v. Milburn, 17 Id., 30; Donophan & Hughes v. Street, 1 Id., 317; Fuller v. Fuller, 22 Id., 230; Johnson v. Chase, 30 Id., 307; Allison v. Barrett, 16 Id., 278; Jones v. Hockman, Id., 457; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, Id., 141; Grether v. Alexander, 15 Id., 470; McKay v. Leonard, 17 Id., 569; Bradley v. Cavanagh, 12 Id., 273; Oliver v. Depuy, 14 Id., 490; Andrews v. Woodeck, Id., 397; Drath v. Deitz, 15 Id., 436; Campbell v. Chamberlain, 10 Id., 357; Cadewallader & Co. v. Blair, 18 Id., 420; Woler vonton v. Ellis, Id., 413; Wile v. A new trial will not be granted for irregularities in the proceedings, unless to correct some substantial injury sustained by the complaining party. Speers v. Forrer, 6 Id., 559.

If justice has been done and a new trial would result in the same verdict, a new trial should not be granted for errors or irregularities committed during the trial. Dawson v. Wiener, 11 Id., 6; Pelmourges v. Clark, 9 Id., 1; Woodward v. Hurst, 10 Id., 120; Hasty v. Putney, 13 Id., 59.

It is perfectly competent for the court below to order a new trial, when satisfied that an error has been committed, to the prejudice of either party, whether exceptions were taken to the action of the court at the time, or not. Farr v. Fuller, 8 Id., 347.

The supreme court will not interfere with the exercise of discretion by the court below in granting a new trial unless it is made to appear that such discretion has been abused to the injury of the appellant. Caffrey v. Groome, 10 Id., 548.

The finding of the court below as to alleged misconduct of the jury in arriving at their verdict, under conflicting affidavits will not be disturbed in the appellate court unless clearly wrong. Todd v. Branner, 33 Id., 389.

The mere fact that one of the jurors in the case, in pursuance of a previous invitation, took dinner and supper with one of the attorneys of the successful party, during the progress of the trial, will not vitiate the verdict. Koester v. The city of Ottumwa, 34 Id., 41.

The misconduct of a juror in holding a conversation with an attorney respecting the law of the case after the conclusion of the arguments of counsel, was held sufficient ground for granting a new trial. Olson v. Mender, 40 Id., 662. And that the attorney applying for a new trial in such case, knew of the misconduct of the juror before the rendition of the verdict and remained silent will not be held to be negligence unless it be made to appear that after that time the prejudice might have been avoided. Id.

None of the provisions of section 2837, can be so construed as to authorize a new trial on account of the destruction or loss, after trial and judgment in the court below, of the written evidence upon which the case had been tried, or for the loss of any other part of the record. Loomis v. McKenzie, 48 Id., 416, 419.

A judgment in the court below, claimed to be excessive, will not be reviewed in the appellate court until after a motion to correct the judgment has been made and overruled in the court below. Dickey v. Harmon, 26 Iowa, 501.
Where the judgment is excessive, the supreme court may, on the filing of a remittitur, render judgment for the amount actually due. Anderson v. Herr & Lacy, 10 Id., 236.
The verdict or judgment is for a larger amount than is claimed in the petition, it is erroneous. Stadler Bros. & Co. v. Parmelee & Watts, 10 Id., 25.

The verdict of a jury will not be disturbed by the appellate court on the ground that it is excessive, unless it is so manifestly against the weight of evidence as to show it to have been the result of passion or prejudice. Koester v. The City of Ottumwa, 34 Iowa, 41. To the same effect are the following cases: Favceyt v. Woods, 5 Id., 400; McKay v. Thornton, 15 Id., 23; Russ v. War Eagle, 14 Id., 383; Shepherd v. Brenton, 15 Id., 34; Wise v. Cassaday, 1 Id., 607; Heeman v. M. S. M. Ins. Co., 12 Id., 126; Jones v. Jones, 19 Id., 236; Crabtree v. Messmer'smith, 1 Id., 179; Belamy v. Doux, 11 Id., 255; Harper v. Hendershot, 14 Id., 48; Barker v. Brown, 15 Id., 70; Goldsmith v. Duchemps, 21 Id., 283; Worthington v. Olden, 31 Id., 419.
Where the evidence is conflicting, and the court below has overruled a motion for a new trial based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, the supreme court will not interfere. Hall v. Hunter, 4 Id., 439; Gordon v. Pitt, 3 Id., 385; Brackman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 183; Palmer v. The Branch of S. B. at Des Moines, 19 Id., 112; Dowaldson v. The M. & M. R. The sufficiency of evidence to sustain a finding of the court below must be reviewed by the supreme court, that it will not interfere where the court below has overruled a motion for a new trial, grounded upon the insufficiency of the evidence, does not apply to the district and circuit courts. These courts should independently exercise their power in this respect, without restraint from the rule which governs appellate tribunals, and, taking care not to invade the legitimate province of the jury, grant new trials whenever they believe substantial justice has not been done between the parties. Dewey v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 31 Id., 373.

The supreme court will not interfere with an order of the court below granting a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is not sustained by the evidence, unless there is a clear and manifest preponderance in support of the verdict. A stronger case must be made to authorize a reversal in such case than where a new trial is refused. Shepard v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84; Ruble v. McDonald, 7 Id., 90; Nevell v. Sanford, 10 Id., 306; Burlington Gas Light Co. v. Thomas & Co., 21 Id., 355; Ackley v. Berkey, 22 Id., 226; Jenkins v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 32 Id., 97; Roberts v. Bro. v. Jones, 29 Id., 925; White v. Poorman, 24 Id., 108; Tagler & Co. v. Jones, 33 Id., 234; Robinson v. Bacon & Strohm, 24 Id., 409; Sanders v. Clark, 22 Id., 275; Garrey v. Brazil, 34 Id., 100; White v. Poorman, 24 Id., 108.

The supreme court will not disturb the action of the court below in overruling a motion for a new trial based upon alleged insufficiency of evidence, unless the record purports to contain all the evidence. Lea v. Roads, 22 Id., 408; Kindscoff Bros. & Co. v. Lyman, 16 Id., 293; State v. Lyon, 10 Id., 341; State v. Hockenberry, 11 Id., 269; Walker v. Plumer, 41 Id., 698.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, unless the party asking it shall show to the court that he has been diligent in his efforts to obtain the evidence prior to the trial. Fisher v. Pratt, 9 Iowa, 99; Alger v. Merritt 16 Id., 121; Richards v. Nuckols, 19 Id., 555; Mother v. Butler County, 33 Id., 203; Dunlap v. Watson, 38 Id., 388.

8. Error of law occurring at the trial, excepted to by the party making the application.

The application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence must show meritorious grounds. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Alger v. Merrill, 16 Id., 121; McLain v. Lawson, 25 Id., 271. An application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, should be accompanied with the affidavit of the newly discovered witness, where it can be procured, in which should be stated the facts to be shown by his testimony, in order that the court may judge whether the new facts are so material as to influence the verdict and produces a different result on a second trial. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; McLain v. Lawson, 25 Id., 271; McManus v. Finn, 4 Id., 283.

In an application for a new trial the affidavit of the attorney of the party that certain evidence has been discovered since the trial is not sufficient ground for granting the application, when it is not shown that the party himself may not have known of its existence at that time. Rosiene v. Wolf, 43 Id., 393.

If objections to the sufficiency of newly discovered evidence, and to the affidavits embodying the same are not presented in the court below on the hearing of the application for a new trial they will not be regarded in the appellate court. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 296.

A new trial was refused on appeal by the supreme court on the ground that a receipt admitted in evidence was not stamped, as required by the revenue laws—it appearing that the receipt was merely cumulative. Hatfield v. Lockwood, 18 Id., 296.

When the refusal to give an instruction asked may have been based upon the ground that it was not pertinent to any evidence before the court and jury, and the evidence is not contained in the record, the appellate court will not order a new trial. Witeo v. McCune, 21 Id., 294.

The judgment below will not be reversed for an error in admitting evidence on the trial below when the record shows that, subsequently competent evidence was admitted establishing the same fact. The City of Des Moines v. Cassidy, 1 Id., 540.

The act of the court below, in overruling a motion for a new trial, based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence and in disregard of the inclusions of the court, will not be disturbed, when such instructions are erroneous, and substantial justice has been done between the parties by the verdict. Allison & Crane v. King, 25 Id., 56.

The fact that a witness who gave material testimony in behalf of the party calling him, was not sworn, does not entitle the adverse party as a matter of right to a new trial, when it is not shown but that he or his attorney knew of the omission before the verdict was returned. Riley v. Monohan, 26 Id., 507.

Whether a party is entitled to a new trial upon sec. 2838. The application must be made at the term and within three days after the verdict, report or decision is rendered, except for the cause of newly discovered evidence; must be by motion upon written grounds, and if for the causes enumerated in subdivisions two, three and seven of the preceding section, may be sustained and controverted by affidavits. 7

Sec. 2839. A new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of damages in an action for an injury to the person or reputation, where the damages equal the actual pecuniary injury sustained.

Sec. 2840. The costs of all new trials shall either abide the event of the suit or be paid by the party to whom such new trial is granted, according to the order of the court to be made at the time of granting such new trial.

It is not a sufficient reason for setting aside the verdict of a jury, and ordering a new trial, that some or all of the jurors, supposed that their verdict, if for the defendant, would not be a bar to a subsequent action by the plaintiff for the same cause of action. Minter v. Hite, 4 id., 583.

If the court below in ruling on a motion for a new trial, mistakes or misapplies a legal proposition it will be reviewed by the supreme court with the same freedom as if made at any other stage of the trial. Shepherd v. Brenton, 15 id., 84.

A motion for a new trial, based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, will not be disturbed where several trials resulting in the same verdict have been had, except in an exceedingly strong case of abuse of judgment on the part of the jury, and of discretion on the part of the court in refusing another trial. Bur. Gas L. Co. v. Greene, Thomas & Co., 42 id., 505.

The action of the court below in refusing a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, will not be disturbed where several trials resulting in the same verdict have been had, except in an exceedingly strong case of abuse of judgment on the part of the jury, and of discretion on the part of the court in refusing another trial. Bur. Gas L. Co. v. Greene, Thomas & Co., 42 id., 505.

Where an erroneous instruction was, by mistake, given by the court to the jury and by them taken to their room, and there was no showing that they did not read and consider it, a new trial was ordered. Carlos v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 31 id., 370.

An error in an instruction, though correctly, but not applicable to the facts disclosed in the evidence, could work no prejudice to the party complaining affords no ground for granting a new trial. Messer v. Beginniter, 1d., 312.

So also the refusal of an instruction, though abstractly correct, but not applicable to the facts disclosed in the evidence, could work no prejudice to the party complaining affords no ground for granting a new trial. Messer v. Beginniter, 1d., 312.
SEC. 2841. The court may determine not to grant a new trial, unless certain terms or conditions named by the court shall be agreed to by the opposite party; in the event of his agreement to which, the terms or conditions named shall be entered on the record, and no new trial shall be granted if the party refuse to agree to the terms or conditions upon which a new trial shall be awarded.\(^2\)

SEC. 2842. Upon any motion for a new trial in arrest of judgment, or for judgment, notwithstanding the verdict, by reason of the non-averment of some material fact, the party whose pleading is thus alleged defective may, if the court deem it necessary, file a statement of the omitted fact which, if true, would remedy the alleged defects, and such statements shall be filed before the hearing of the motion and shall suspend the same. If the facts thus stated would not, if proved, defeat the object of the motion, it shall be granted. If such new averments would, if proved, defeat the object of the motion and be not admitted, they must be denied or confessed, and avoided by the opposite party within such time as the court shall direct unless the same are denied by legal operation, and in such case the law of pleading and of procedure applicable to actions and pleadings of that kind shall obtain, except that the party stating the new fact shall be held the plaintiff therein, and the statement and response shall not need to be verified.\(^3\)

SEC. 2843. If the facts thus stated be admitted or found to be true, the party stating the same shall be entitled to such judgment as he would have been entitled to if such facts had been stated in the original pleading and admitted as proved on the trial, together with the costs of and occasioned by the new pleading and the proceedings therein; but if the fact be found untrue, the opposite party shall be entitled to his costs of and occasioned by the new pleading and the proceedings therein, in addition to any other costs to which he may be entitled.\(^4\)

DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

SEC. 2844. An action may be dismissed, and such dismissal shall be without prejudice to a future action:

1. By the plaintiff, before the final submission of the case to the jury, or to the court when the trial is by the court;

2. By the court, when the plaintiff fails to appear when the case is called for trial;

3. By the court, for want of necessary parties, when not made according to the requirement of the court;

4. By the court, on the application of some of the defendants when there are others whom the plaintiff fails to prosecute with diligence;

\(^2\) The court may impose conditions upon the successful party to avoid granting a new trial in actions upon either contracts or torts. Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Iowa, 183; Dawson v. Wisner, 11 Id., 6.

\(^3\) A motion in arrest of judgment may be made for a misjoinder of parties, and on such motion the plaintiff may dismiss as to all those not properly joined and take judgment against those who are jointly liable. Cogswell v. Murphy et al., 46 Iowa, 44.

* The court may impose conditions upon the successful party to avoid granting a new trial in actions upon either contracts or torts. Per Sayers, Ch. J., in O'Connell v. Cotter, 44 Iowa, 48, 50.

* The "practice is quite common to allow amendments after verdict and before judgment, for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proof. That such amendments are contemplated by the code is very clear." Per Sayers, Ch. J., in O'Connell v. Cotter, 44 Iowa, 48, 50.
5. By the court, for disobedience by the party of an order concerning the pleadings or any proceeding in the action. [Note]

Sec. 2845. In all other cases upon the trial of the action, the decision must be upon the merits.

Sec. 2846. In any case, when a counter claim has been filed, the defendant shall have the right of proceeding to the trial of his claim, although the plaintiff may have dismissed his action or failed to appear. [Note]

Sec. 2847. The defendant may, also, at any time before the final submission of the cause to the jury, or to the court when the trial is by the court, dismiss his counter claim without prejudice.

Sec. 2848. Any party to any claim may dismiss the same in vacation, and the clerk shall make the proper entry of dismissal on the record, and, if the costs are not paid, may enter judgment against such party therefor in favor of the party entitled thereto, and issue execution therefor at the order of such party. The party so dismissing shall be liable for no costs made by the other party after notice to him of such dismissal.

JUDGMENT.

Sec. 2849. Every final adjudication of the rights of the parties in an action, is a judgment; and such adjudication may consist of many judgments, one of which judgments may determine for the plaintiff or defendant on the claim of either as an entirety; or when a claim consists of several parts or items, such judgment may be for either of them on any specific part or item of such aggregate claim, and against him on the other part thereof; or a judgment may, in either of these ways, determine on the claims of co-parties on the same side against each other. [Note]

* The plaintiff cannot dismiss his action after the case has been fully submitted to the court or jury. Hays v. Turner, 23 Iowa, 214; Mansfield v. Wilkerson, 26 Id., 482.

The plaintiff may, in an action appealed from a justice of the peace, in the circuit court, dismiss his action without prejudice at any time before final submission, the same as if the action had been originally brought in that court. Harris v. Laird, 29 Id., 143.

The plaintiff may dismiss his action after he has failed to answer interrogatories filed by the defendant with his answer, and after the filing of the affidavit provided for in section 2699 of the code, and against the objection of the defendant. Perry v. Heighton, 26 Id., 451.

The plaintiff may, before the action is finally submitted, dismiss his action as to one or several causes upon which it is founded. Ballinger v. Davis, 29 Id., 512.

A plaintiff may dismiss his action after the case has been finally submitted to a referee and before he has filed his report therein. Belzor v. Logan et al., 22 Id., 322.

A case is not finally submitted to a jury within the meaning of this section until they have been directed to proceed to the consideration of their verdict, and it may be dismissed without prejudice after the completion of the charge of the court. Harris v. Beam, 46 Id., 118.

United States, the defendant answered to the merits without interposing any technical objections; the plaintiff’s attorneys having withdrawn their appearance the court dismissed the bill, reciting in the decree that the case had been submitted upon the “pleadings and proofs.” Held, that the decree was a bar to an action upon the same cause of action in the state court, upon the ground that the record showed a submission and determination of the case on the merits. Scully v. The C. B. & Q. R. Co., Id., 528.

Where a counter claim is embraced in the issue when the case is finally submitted and judgment is rendered on the issue, the plaintiff is entitled to immunity from any further action thereon. Gunausals v. Cadwallader, 48 Id., 48.

* Where on plaintiff’s motion an action of replevin is dismissed, and is again reinstated on defendant’s motion, for the assessment of damages, the plaintiff is treated as a party in default and cannot demand a jury. Wilkins v. Treynor, 14 Iowa, 391.

* Under the statute a judgment is a final adjudication of the rights of the parties in an action. Per Baldwin, Ch. J., in Beall v. West, 13 Iowa, 61, 65, and per Miller, J. in Wagner v. Tice, 36 Id., 599, 602.

within the meaning of this section of the code. Wagner v. Tice, 36 Iowa, 599, 601. The allowance of a claim filed, in the county court, against an estate and ordering the payment there, was held, not to constitute a judgment within section 3740 of the revision, limiting actions on judgments of courts not of record, to ten years. 2 When a defect of parties is apparent on the face of the petition it may be taken advantage of by demurrer; when not thus apparent it must be pleaded in the answer. When thus pleaded it is a matter of fact for the consideration of the jury, and cannot be decided by the court on motion based upon part of the evidence. Enders v. Beck, 18 Iowa, 85. The pendency of a garnishment proceeding against the maker of a promissory note, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the note by an assignee thereof who received it after maturity and after garnishment of the maker. SEC. 2864. All judgments and orders must be entered on the record of the court and must specify clearly the relief granted, or order made in the action.

In an action against a partnership, one partner filed an answer admitting a part of plaintiff’s claim and denying the remainder, after which a motion for a continuance was made on the ground that the partner not answering was in the military service of the United States; held, that a continuance as to one partner operated as a continuance as to both, and that judgment could not be rendered for the amount admitted to be due. Butler et al. v. McCall & Sypner, 15 Id., 430. Wimber, J. dissenting.

Where a petition consists of several counts, stating different causes of action, and to some of the counts there is no answer or other pleading interposed, judgment may properly be rendered thereon. Musser v. Crum, 48 Id., 52, 53.

When the defendant has pleaded a tender, thereby admitting a certain sum to be due the plaintiff, and the jury returned a general verdict for the defendant, it was held, that the court was authorized under this section to render judgment for plaintiff for the sum tendered by defendant. DISCHARGE OF JUDGMENT.

SEC. 2867. A defendant against whom a judgment has been rendered, or any person interested therein, having some good matter of discharge which has arisen since the judgment, may, upon motion, in a summary way, have the same discharged either in whole or in part, according to the circumstances.¹

SEC. 2868. The court shall have power, on motion, to inquire into the facts attending or connected with the assignment of a judgment, or the entry of the same for the use of any party, and to strike out such use, or to declare such assignment void either in whole or in part. whenever such assignment or use shall be determined to be inequitable or fraudulent, or in bad faith.¹

DEFAULT.

SEC. 2869. If a party fail to file or amend his pleading by the time prescribed by the rules of pleading, or, in the absence of rules, by the time fixed by the court; or if, having plead, his answer or reply on motion or demurrer is held insufficient or is struck out, and he fail to amend or to answer or reply further as required by the rules of or by the court, or if he withdraw his pleading without authority or permission to replead, judgment by default may be rendered against him on demand of the adverse party made before such pleading is filed.²

SEC. 2870. Where no appearance is made, default shall not be had until the court determines from an inspection of the record that notice has been given as required by this code.²

Money paid to the clerk of the district and circuit courts, upon a judgment entered in the records in his office, is received by him in virtue of his office, and upon his failure to pay over the same to the judgment creditor, an action may be maintained upon his official bond therefor. Morgan v. Long, 29 Id., 434.

² In some cases the controversy may be settled upon motion as contemplated by this section, others, involving the consideration of much testimony, oral and documentary, might most appropriately belong in chancery. Per Wright, J. in Traer v. Lyttle, 20 Iowa, 301.

³ It was held, under the revision of 1860, that where a demurrer to an answer was sustained, a default should not be granted for want of further answer, in the absence of any rule or order of court fixing the time within which such answer must be filed. Rollins v. Coggsball, 29 Iowa, 510; Wright v. Howell, 24 Id., 150.

Where an amended answer is held insufficient on motion or demurrer, a judgment by default cannot properly be entered against the defendant for his failure to further plead, in accordance with the ruling of the court. if the original answer remains on file and unaffected by such ruling. Crafts v. Clark, 31 Id., 77.

A judgment by default may be entered against a party who appears in an action before a justice of the peace, but fails to plead. McDermott v. Lovery, 40 Id., 467; Parke v. Ratcliffe, 42 Id., 42.

⁴ It will be presumed, in the absence of allegations to the contrary, that a court, in rendering judgment by default, passed upon the suffi-
Sec. 2871. Default may be set aside on such terms as the court may deem just, among which must be that of pleading issuably and forthwith, but not unless an affidavit of merits be filed and a reasonable excuse shown for having made such default, nor unless application therefor be made at the term in which default was entered, or if entered in vacation, then on the first day of the succeeding term.

A judgment by default will not be reversed in the supreme court unless a motion to set it aside has been made and overruled in the court below.

The same rule applies where the judgment by default was made at the term at which it was rendered, the error is not limited to the discretion of the court from a judgment by default on service by publication, and the judgment is affirmed for the reason that no motion to set aside the judgment had been made in the court below, the defendant is not estopped from afterwards moving for a re-trial of the action. Berryhill v. Jacobs, 20 Iowa, 246.

A naked default, on which no judgment has been rendered, may be set aside at any time on proper grounds. The discretion of the court in this is not limited as to time. But when a judgment has been entered on it, a motion to set it aside must be made at the same term. Harper v. Drake, 14 Iowa, 534.

The court has a large discretion in acting upon motions to set aside defaults, and its action thereon will not be disturbed except in a clear case of abuse of discretion. Moray v. Cooley, 38 Iowa, 603; Balandre v. Aywell, 14 Iowa, 35; Kreisinger v. I. C., 16 Iowa, 586; McNulty v. Everett, 17 Iowa, 581.

During the term the record is under the control of the court, a judgment of nonsuit, or by default may be set aside at the term at which it was rendered, for good cause shown. Taylor v. Lusk, 9 Iowa, 444.

Pleadings filed by a defendant while he is in a default should on motion of the plaintiff be stricken from the files. Brayton v. Delaware County, 16 Iowa, 44.

A defendant in default, before a justice of the peace, will not be permitted to plead until the default has been set aside by a compliance with section 2871 of the code. Id.

A default will not be set aside, especially at a subsequent term, unless a sufficient excuse for the default be shown, accompanied by an affidavit of merits. McDonald v. Donaghue, 30 Iowa, 568; Harper v. Drake, 14 Iowa, 533; Stone v. Brown, 1d., 595.

A default will not be waived, nor the rule, requiring a showing of merits and an excuse for the default, be changed, by a subsequent amendment of the petition, merely bringing in new parties, and which in no manner affects the cause of action against, or the rights of the defendants in default. McDonald v. Donaghue, 30 Iowa, 568.

In Ordway v. Suchard et al., 31 Iowa, 481, it was held, that, recognizing the rule that the discretion vested in the trial court in applications to set aside defaults should not be exercised in the behalf of a party in default from his own negligence or that of his attorney, where it was made to appear by affidavit of defendant's attorneys that the reason why they did not appear and file an answer was on account of an accidental misplacement of the petition and notice handed them by the plaintiff, whereby the case was overlooked by them in examining their papers at the beginning of the term, in order to ascertain what cases they had to attend to, that the case did not fall within the rule recognized, and that a judgment by default therein rendered should be set aside, all the other requirements of the statute having been complied with.

Where an application to set aside a judgment by default was made at the same term the judgment was rendered, and was accompanied with an affidavit of merits and an excuse for making default, and it did not appear that the discretion of the court below had been unreasonably exercised in granting the application, the ruling was affirmed. Coonen v. McAfee, 38 Iowa, 555.

Where, in an action against a corporation, the petition failed to allege the corporate character of the defendant, and judgment by default is rendered, the error is such as will justify the setting aside of the judgment on motion therefor. The Savings Bank v. Horn, 41 Iowa, 55.

Where a judgment by default is rendered against a garnishee, a motion to set it aside must be made at the same term the judgment by default is entered. Schmahorn v. Scott, 42 Iowa, 529.

In such case it is an error in the court below after the garnishee has appeared and judgment by default was entered, to order a suspension of execution and allow the garnishee time to answer. Id.

The proper amount having been ascertained by either of the above methods, judgment shall be rendered therefor.\(^6\) the plaintiff to give security to abide the future order of the court as contemplated in the following section.

Sec. 2877. When a judgment has been rendered against a defendant or defendants served by publication only and who do not appear, such defendants, or any one or more of them, or any person legally representing him or them, may, at any time within two years after the rendition of the judgment, appear in court and move to have the action re-tried, and, security for the costs being given, they shall be admitted to make defense; and thereupon the action shall be re-tried as to such defendants as if there had been no judgment; and, upon the new trial, the court may confirm the former judgment or may modify or set it aside, and may order the plaintiff to restore any money of such defendant paid to him under it and yet remaining in his possession, and pay to the defendant the value of any such property which may have been taken in attachment in the action or under the judgment and not restored.

Sec. 2878. The title of a purchaser in good faith to any property sold under attachment or judgment, shall not be affected by the new trial permitted by the preceding section, except the title of property obtained by the plaintiff and not bought of him in good faith by others.

Sec. 2879. The plaintiff may, at any time after the judgment, cause a certified copy thereof to be served on a defendant served by publication only, whereupon the period in which such defendant is allowed to appear and have a new trial shall be reduced to six months after such service.

The supreme court will not review the finding of the court appealed from, upon the sufficiency of a service of notice by publication, in an equitable action, when the record does not show that it embraces all the evidence submitted in the court below. Moon v. Moon, 19 Iowa, 130.

A defendant who has been served by publication only, cannot appeal from the judgment rendered upon such service before moving for a re-trial in the court below, as provided in this section. Berryhill v. Jacobs et al., 19 Id., 346.

This section has no application to a decree of divorce rendered upon service of publication only. Gilruth v. Gilruth, 20 Id., 223.

Where judgment by default has been rendered upon service of publication only, and the defendant has appealed to the supreme court, where the case is affirmed because no motion for a re-trial was made in the court below, the defendant still has the right to make such motion, within the time prescribed by the statute. Berryhill v. Jacobs, 20 Id., 246.

Where a judgment by default on a promissory note has been rendered, and a re-trial ordered under this section, it is not necessary on the re-trial to again introduce the note in evidence. If no sufficient defense to the action be found, the original judgment is simply confirmed and continued in force. Morton v. Coffin, 29 Id., 235.

The filing within the time specified, of a motion in the clerk's office, by a defendant served by publication only, to have the case re-tried is a sufficient compliance with this section, which provides that the defendant may, at any time within two years from the date of the judgment, "appear in court, and move to have the action re-tried." Conkling v. Johnson, 34 Id., 266.

Where, in an action for partition of lands, judgment and sale were had upon service by publication, defendant appeared within two years, and moved to have the judgment and sale set aside, alleging as one cause therefore, fraud on the part of the purchaser at the sale, who was the plaintiff; and the court allowed a re-trial of the cause, and affirmed its former judgment, it was held, in a subsequent action in equity to set aside the sale for fraud, that the plaintiffs were not concluded thereon by the judgment in the re-trial, for the reason that the defendant, having been served by publication only, was entitled to a re-trial under the statute (section 2877) independent of the charge of fraud. Fleming's Heirs v. Hutchinson, 36 Id., 519.

Where an attorney appears for an absent defendant, and the latter, in a proceeding to vacate the judgment, alleges that the appearance was unauthorized, he has the burden to establish the fact by a preponderance of evidence. Bond v. Epley, 48 Id., 600.

Where the purchaser at a partition sale, upon a judgment rendered upon service by publication, is the plaintiff in the case, and has made no sale to others, he will not be protected against the consequences of a re-trial. Fleming's Heirs v. Hutchinson, 36 Iowa, 519, 523.

Personal judgment when rendered.
R. § 3164.

SEC. 2880. The service of the copy of the judgment shall be, whether made within or without the state, actual and personal by delivery of copy, and made and returned as in case of original notice.

SEC. 2881. No personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant served by publication only who has not made an appearance. But a personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant, whether he appear or not, who has been served in any mode in this code provided other than by publication, whether served within or without this state.

LIENS.

SEC. 2882. Judgments in the supreme, district or circuit court of this state, are liens upon the real estate owned by the defendant at the time of such rendition, and also upon all he may subsequently acquire for the period of ten years from the date of the judgment.

1 The courts of this state, have no power, in an ordinary personal action without more, to render a personal judgment, by default when the defendant is a non-resident of the state and has been served with notice out of the state or by publication. Bates v. N. W. Ry Co., 19 Iowa, 250; Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Weil v. Lowenthal, 10 Id., 576; Stockdale v. Buckingham, 11 Id., 45; Einstein v. Ocks, Id., 165.

When a court has, by attachment or otherwise, acquired jurisdiction in rem over the property of a non-resident, it may by means of service by publication, or personal service without the state, perfect its jurisdiction or right to adjudicate upon and conclude the rights and interests of the defendant in the property thus seized and held within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Bates v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 19 Id.; 299.

2 By our law judgment in the supreme, district or circuit courts are liens upon the real estate of the defendant, and by real estate is meant all right thereto, and interest therein, equitable as well as legal. Harrison v. Kramer, 3 Id., 543, 561; Cook & Sargent v. Dillon, 9 Id., 407, 411; Denegre v. Haun, 13 Id., 240; Lathrop v. Brown, 23 Id., 40.

But if there is a sale under a subsequent judgment to a third person, for value without notice, the rights of the purchaser take priority over those of the grantee in an unrecorded deed or mortgage. Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150.

An attachment or judgment lien does not hold over a prior unrecorded deed. Norton, Jewett & Bushy v. Williams, 9 Id., 528; Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150.

When a judgment is affirmed in the supreme court, and a procedendo issues, the lien of the judgment attaches and continues from the date of the judgment in the court below; but when a new judgment is rendered in the supreme court against the appellant and his sureties on his appeal bond, the judgment of the court below is merged therein and the lien discharged; that of the supreme court, dating only from the rendition of the judgment in that court, being a lien on the real estate of the defendant. Swift v. Conboy et al., 12 Id., 444.

The judgment, when rendered, becomes a lien on whatever interest the defendant has in real estate, whether such interest appear of record or not. Denegre v. Haun, 13 Id., 240.

But the lien of a judgment will not attach to a naked legal title where the holder thereof has no equitable interest in the land. Blanney v. Hawks, 14 Id., 400.

Although a vendor's lien is an equitable interest in real estate, yet it is but an incident merely to the debt for the purchase money, and can be subjected to the satisfaction of a judgment against the vendor only by garnishment, or equitable proceedings. Baldwin v. Thompson, 15 Id., 504.

A judgment lien upon real estate is not affected by a sale thereof under a junior judgment. Lathrop v. Brown, 23 Id., 40.

A general judgment ceases to operate as a lien on real estate after ten years from the date of the judgment. Hendershot v. Ping, 24 Id., 134.

A judgment is a lien on a leasehold interest in lands of two years or more, and such lien takes precedence of subsequent conveyances or transfers of the lease by the judgment defendants. The First Nth B'tk of Davenport v. Bennett, 40 Id., 537.

In case of judgment rendered in a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage, the lien of the mortgage continues until the judgment is paid, or barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Roost et al., 34 Id., 475; Hendershot v. Ping, 24 Id., 134.

A judgment in an action on a promissory note secured by mortgage, is a lien on the mortgaged property only from the date of its rendition, when it does not order a foreclosure. Wilhelm v. Leonard, 13 Id., 330.

LIENS ON REAL ESTATE BY JUDGMENTS IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT AND CIRCUIT COURTS.

An Act in relation to liens on real estate, of judgments in the district and circuit courts of the United States. Amending code, title XVII, chapter 9: "Of trial and judgment."

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the words "or in the district or circuit court of the United States, if rendered within this state," in section 2882 of the code, are hereby stricken out.

SEC. 2. Judgments in the district or circuit court of the United States, if rendered in this state, may be made liens upon the real estate owned by the defendant, and also upon all he may subsequently acquire, for the period of ten years from the date of the judgment, by filing an attested copy of the judgment in the office of clerk of the state district court of the county in which the land lies; and no lien shall attach to the lands in any county of this state until the date of filing such transcript, except in the county wherein the judgment was rendered, in which case the lien shall attach from the date of such rendition.

SEC. 3. The clerk shall, on the filing of such transcript in his office, immediately proceed to docket and index the same in a separate book kept for that purpose, in the same manner as though rendered in the court of his own county, and he shall be allowed to charge and receive the same fees as provided by law for like service.

SEC. 4. When the amount due on any judgment is paid off or satisfied in full, the plaintiff, or those legally acting for him, must acknowledge satisfaction thereof in the margin of the record of the judgment, or by the execution of an instrument in writing, referring to the judgment, and have it duly acknowledged and filed in the office of the clerk of the district court in every county where the judgment is a lien. If he fails to do so within sixty days after having been requested in writing so to do, he shall forfeit to the plaintiff [defendant] the sum of fifty dollars.

SEC. 2883. When the lands lie in the county wherein the judgment was rendered, the lien shall attach from the date of such rendition.

SEC. 2884. If the lands lie in any other county, the lien does not attach until an attested copy of the judgment is filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the land lies."

SEC. 2885. Such clerk shall, on the filing of a transcript of the judgment in his office, immediately proceed to docket and index the same in the same manner as though rendered in the court of his own county.

* A transcript of a judgment, rendered in the district court of one county, filed in the clerk's office in another county, operates only as a lien upon the real estate of the defendant in the county in which it is filed. It does not empower the clerk of such county to issue execution thereon. Seaton & Son v. Hamilton & Co., 10 Iowa, 394.

The lien attaches from the date of rendition or filing. Hendershott v. Ping, 24 Id., 134, 136.
CONVEYANCE BY COMMISSIONER.

Sec. 2886. Real property may be conveyed by a commissioner appointed by the court:
1. Where, by judgment in an action, a party is ordered to convey such property to another;
2. Where such property has been sold under a judgment or order of the court, and the purchase money paid.

Sec. 2887. The deed of the commissioner shall refer to the judgment, orders, and proceedings authorizing the conveyance.

Sec. 2888. A conveyance made in pursuance of a judgment, shall pass to the grantee the title of the parties ordered to convey the land.

Sec. 2889. A conveyance made in pursuance of a sale ordered by the court, shall pass to the grantee the title of all the parties to the action or proceeding.

Sec. 2890. A conveyance by a commissioner shall not pass any right until it has been examined and approved by the court, which approval shall be indorsed on the conveyance and recorded with it.

Sec. 2891. It shall be necessary for the conveyance to be signed by the commissioner only, without affixing the names of the parties whose title is conveyed; but the name of such parties shall be recited in the body of the conveyance.

Sec. 2892. The conveyance shall be recorded in the office in which, by law, it should have been recorded had it been made by the parties whose title is conveyed by it.

Sec. 2893. In all cases under this code, whenever by law it is permitted or required that judicial or other sales and conveyances of land may or shall be confirmed and approved by a court, it shall be lawful for the judge of the court, in vacation, to confirm or approve the same, and to cause the proper entry or entries thereof to be made required by law and the rules of such court.

CHAPTER 10.

OF JUDGMENT BY CONFESSION.

Sec. 2894. A judgment by confession without action, may be entered by the clerk of the district or circuit court in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

Sec. 2895. Such confession can be only for money due, or to become due, or to secure a person against contingent liabilities on behalf of the defendant, and must be for a specified sum.

Sec. 2896. A statement in writing must be made and signed by the defendant and verified by his oath to the following effect, and filed with the clerk:
1. If for money due or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which the indebtedness arose, and that the sum confessed therefor is justly due, or to become due as the case may be.
2. If for the purpose of securing the plaintiff against a contingent liability, it must state concisely the facts constituting such liability, and must show that the sum confessed therefor does not exceed the same.
SEC. 2897. The clerk shall thereupon make an entry of judgment in his court record for the amount thus confessed and costs, and shall issue execution thereon as in other cases.

SEC. 2898. Before an action for the recovery of money is brought against any person, he may go before the clerk of the courts of the county of his residence, or of that in which the person having the cause of action resides, and offer to confess judgment in favor of such "A judgment by confession entered by the clerk in vacation, as authorized by the statute, if founded upon a sufficient written statement of the party, verified by his oath, and filed with the clerk, becomes when read, approved and signed by the judge, at the next term of the court, the judgment of the court. Edgar v. Greer, 7 Iowa, 136."

To authorize the clerk to enter a judgment by confession, the provisions of the statute must be strictly complied with. And such judgment, though entered by the clerk, is deemed the judgment of the court. Id.

The written statement of the defendant upon which the judgment is to be entered must state the manner in which the indebtedness arose. It is not sufficient to describe the note which is the evidence of the debt, and state the amount due thereon. Id.

The defendant on appeal from a judgment in conformity with a written confession, may object that the written statement made by him is insufficient to authorize the clerk to enter judgment thereon. Id. An appeal will lie from a judgment by confession. Troxel v. Clark, 9 Id., 201.

Where the statement for a confession of judgment recited that the indebtedness was for a promissory note "given in good faith for a debt justly due the plaintiff, and that the same is unpaid," it was held that this was not a sufficient statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Kennedy v. Lowe et al., 9 Id., 580.

A confession of judgment by one member of a partnership, for the firm, is valid only against the partner making it. North & Scott v. Mudge & Clarity, 10 Id., 555; Edwards et al. v. Pitzer, 12 Id., 607.

A judgment by confession is void when the power authorizing the entry thereof is not in strict conformity with the requirements of the statute. Edgar v. Greer, 10 Id., 279; Bernard & Co. v. Douglass & Watson, 1d., 370.

Where the statement for a judgment by confession which recites that the consideration of the demand on which it is based is a promissory note, which "was given the plaintiff for a balance due on settlement," is insufficient, and a judgment entered thereon is void. Bernard & Co. v. Douglass & Watson, 10 Id., 370.

An invalid judgment by confession may be set aside on the motion of a junior judgment creditor, after notice to the plaintiff. Id.

A statement for a judgment by confession, on a promissory note, which sets up the note and states that the consideration thereof "was money loaned by the plaintiff to the defendant," is sufficiently specific in its statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Vanfleet v. Phillips, 11 Id., 558.

That the verification of the statement for a judgment by confession was made before a notary public who was acting as one of the plaintiff's attorneys, will not of itself render the judgment invalid or justify the court in setting it aside. Id.

Where the record of a judgment by confession, entered by the clerk in vacation, was not read, signed and approved at the term following such entry, held, that such failure did not void the judgment. Id.

A statement for a judgment by confession, showing that the indebtedness was for "sundry articles of dry goods," and "a bill of groceries," without further detail, was held sufficient in this respect. Daniels & Co. v. Claffin, 15 Id., 152.

A statement for judgment by confession does not estop the defendant from pleading usury in the debt before the judgment is entered on the statement. Lyon v. Welsh, 20 Id., 578.

But a judgment by confession, duly entered and regular in all its parts, is, in the absence of fraud, or other special ground of equitable relief, conclusive against the defense of usury, as well as every other defense existing when the judgment was rendered. Teagogoo & Elliott v. Pence, 22 Id., 543.

A judgment entered in vacation, by confession, upon a statement made by the debtor, of all which the creditor had no knowledge, and to which he did not assent, was vacated on the motion of the creditor. Farmers & Mechanics Bank v. Mather, 30 Id., 283.

Where the sworn statement for judgment shows that a certain sum is due from the party making the same to the party to whom it is made, for which it is consented that judgment shall be entered, such statement is sufficient as between the parties, and the defendant is estopped from impeaching the same on the ground that it does not sufficiently set out the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Bruchett v. Casady, 19 Id., 542; Churchill v. Lyon, 13 Id., 431; Vannice v. Greene & Co., 16 Id., 574; Van Fleet v. Phillips, 11 Id., 598.

A judgment by confession not entered within a reasonable time after filing the statement, is not void as between the parties, but voidable only, and cannot be impeached collaterally by either of the parties. Id.

A confession of judgment, in consideration of the extension of a note, made to evade the law against usury, will be regarded as invalid. Ohm v. Dickerman, 50 Id., 671.
person for a specified sum on such cause of action as provided for in the foregoing sections. Whereupon, if such person, having had the same notice as if he were defendant in an action, that the offer would be made, of its amount and of the time and place of making it, refuses to accept it, and should afterwards commence an action upon such cause and not recover more than the amount so offered to be confessed, he shall pay all the costs of action; and on the trial thereof, the offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action or amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, nor be given in evidence.

Sec. 2899. After an action for the recovery of money is brought, the defendant may offer in court to confess judgment for part of the amount claimed, or part of the causes involved in the action. Whereupon, if the plaintiff, being present, refuses to accept such confession of judgment in full of his demands against the defendant in the action, or, having had three days' notice that the offer would be made, of its amount and of the time of making it, fails to attend and on the trial does not recover more than was so offered to be confessed, such plaintiff shall pay the costs of the defendant incurred after the offer. The offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action, or amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, nor be given in evidence upon trial.

OF AN OFFER TO COMPROMISE.

Section 2900. The defendant in an action for the recovery of money only, may, at any time after service of notice and before the trial, serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum of money, or to the effect therein specified with costs. If the plaintiff accept the offer, and gives notice thereof to the defendant or his attorney within five days after the offer is made, the offer, and an affidavit that the notice of acceptance was delivered in the time limited, may be filed by the plaintiff, or the defendant may file the acceptance with a copy of the offer verified by affidavit; and in either case, the offer and acceptance shall be entered upon record and judgment shall be rendered by the court accordingly. If the notice of acceptance is not given in the period limited, the offer shall be deemed withdrawn, and shall not be given in evidence or mentioned on the trial. If the plaintiff fails to obtain judgment for more than was offered by the defendant, he cannot recover costs but shall pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer.

* Where, after an appeal to the circuit court from an award of damages by commissioners for the taking of property for a right of way for a railroad, the defendant filed an offer to confess judgment for a stated sum, and the plaintiff failed to recover more, it was held, that the costs accruing after such offer should be taxed against him. Harrison v. The Iowa Midland R. Co., 36 Iowa, 323.

b An offer in writing, by the defendant, to pay a certain sum of money and costs of suit if the plaintiff will dismiss his action, will not entitle the defendant to the benefit of this section of the code. The offer must be to allow judgment to go against him. Quinton v. Van Tuyl, 30 Iowa, 554.

Where the plaintiff fails to give notice of his acceptance of an offer made by the defendant within the time prescribed, the offer is presumed to have been withdrawn, and the plaintiff cannot avail himself of it after the trial. Holmes v. The City of Hamburg, 47 Id., 348.
CHAP. 12.] RECEIVERS. 725

SEC. 2901. In an action for the recovery of money only, the defendant, having answered, may serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney an offer in writing, that if he fails in his defense the amount of recovery shall be assessed as a specified sum. If the plaintiff accepts the offer, and gives notice thereof to the defendant or his attorney within five days after it was served, or within three days if served in term time, and the defendant fails in his defense, the judgment shall be for the amount so agreed upon. If the plaintiff does not so accept the offer, he shall prove the amount to be recovered as if the offer had not been made, and the offer shall not be given in evidence or mentioned on the trial. And if the amount recovered by the plaintiff does not exceed the sum mentioned in the offer, the defendant shall recover his costs incurred in the defense, and in respect to the question of amount, to be taxed under the direction of the court.

SEC. 2902. The making of any offer pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall not be a cause for a continuance of an action or a postponement of a trial.

OF RECEIVERS.

SECTION 2903. On the petition of either party to a civil action or proceeding, wherein he shows that he has a probable right to, or interest in any property which is the subject of the controversy, and that such property, or its rents or profits, are in danger of being lost or materially injured or impaired, and on such notice to the adverse party as the court or judge shall prescribe, the court, or, in vacation, the judge thereof, if satisfied that the interests of one or both parties will be thereby promoted, and the substantial rights of neither unduly infringed, may appoint a receiver to take charge of and control such property under its direction during the pendency of the action, and may order and coerce the delivery of it to him. Upon the hearing of the application, affidavits, and such other proof as the court or judge deems proper, may be introduced, and upon the whole case such order made as will be for the best interest of all parties concerned.

* The appointment of a receiver may be made upon the petition of a party in interest, showing a probable right to the property in controversy, or to a portion thereof, and that it is in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired. Saylor v. Mockbin, 9 Iowa, 209.

The court has power to appoint a receiver to take charge of partnership assets, to collect debts and convert property into money, and to exercise general control over the same, under the direction of the court. Id.

When property, placed in the hands of a receiver as partnership assets, is found upon the hearing to be the individual property of one of the members of the partnership, it will be restored to him. Id.

The appointment of a receiver to take charge of mortgaged property after a final decree of foreclosure, is unusual, and, if allowable at all, should be supported by a strong showing of facts. Adair et al. v. Wright, 16 Id., 385.

A receiver will not be appointed on the application of the mortgagee to take possession of the mortgaged premises, where it does not clearly appear that the whole of the mortgaged premises are insufficient in value to pay the debt, or that the court should take control of the estate to protect the rights of a party who has a clear, strong claim against it. Callanan & Ingham v. Shaw et al., 19 Id., 183.

When the bond or mortgage pledges the income, rents or profits to the payment of the debt, the creditor need not conclusively establish his right to recover before he has a right to
SEC. 2904. Before entering on the discharge of his duties, he must be sworn faithfully to discharge his trust to the best of his ability, and must also file with the clerk a bond with sureties, to be by him approved, in a penalty to be fixed by the court or judge, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and that he will obey the orders of the court in respect thereto.

SEC. 2905. Subject to the control of the court or judge, a receiver has power to bring and defend actions, to take and keep possession of property, to collect debts, to receive the rents and profits of real property, and generally, to do such acts in respect to the property committed to him as may be authorized.

CHAPTER 13.

OF SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

SECTION 2906. Judgments or final orders may be obtained on motion by sureties against their principals, by sureties against their co-securities, for the recovery of money due them on account of payments made by them as such; by clients against attorneys; plaintiffs in execution against sheriffs, constables, and other officers, for the receiving of money or property collected for them, and damages, and in all other cases specially authorized by statute. 8 ask for the appointment of a receiver; it is sufficient if he shows a probable right. The Des Moines Gas Co. v. West, 44 Id., 23.

If the debtor is insolvent, in such case the appointment follows as a matter of course. Id. Whether in any case a receiver should be appointed to take charge of the mortgagor's homestead pending proceedings to foreclose, query? Id.

An appeal may be taken from an order appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver. Id.

The court has power under the statute to appoint a receiver in an ordinary law action. Jones v. Gravers, 20 Id., 396.

A judge of the district court was held to have the power to appoint a receiver in vacation, in a case where it was proper that such an appointment should be made, but not without notice to the opposite party, unless the particular facts and circumstances rendering such a course proper were set forth in the petition. French et al. v. Gifford et al., 30 Id., 148.

To entitle one claiming to be a partner to the appointment of a receiver to wind up the partnership affairs, it must appear that there was a completed partnership, at least so far as to entitle him to a participation in the profits of the business. An agreement of partnership which has not been executed to this extent is not sufficient. Hobart v. Ballard, 31 Id., 521.

The rule that the compensation of a receiver appointed to take charge of assets and wind up the affairs of a partnership or corporation should be retained from, and paid out of, the funds coming into his hands, generally applies to those cases where the receiver closes up the business and settles his accounts in pursuance of his appointment, and not to cases where the order appointing the receiver is set aside as improperly made before such time. French v. Gifford, 31 Id., 428.

As a general rule, a receiver has no powers except those conferred upon him by the order of his appointment, but where certain "mills and block"2 were committed to the care of a receiver, it was held that he was thereby authorized to prosecute an action relating to a private wharf which was connected therewith, and which was primarily and principally constructed for the purpose of more conveniently carrying on said mill. Grant v. City of Davenport, 18 Iowa, 179.

The fraudulent acts or neglect of a receiver of an insolvent corporation constitute no defense to an action against a stockholder for contribution. Stewart v. Lay, 45 Id., 604.

Any irregularities in the pleadings of a receiver can be corrected only by the court which appointed him, and his conduct will not be reviewed in an action in another forum. Id.

A motion under this section, to compel an attorney to pay over money collected for his client, is heard and disposed of without written pleadings. Mansfield v. Wilkerson, 26 Iowa, 482. See sec. 2910.

Where money is paid to the clerk of a third party in pursuance of a decree of court, such third party has no right to object to the disposi-
SEC. 2907. Notice of such motion shall be served on the party against whom the judgment or order is sought at least ten days before the motion is made.

SEC. 2908. The notice shall state in plain and ordinary language the nature and grounds of the motion, and the day on which it will be made.

SEC. 2909. Unless the motion is made and filed with the case on or before the day named in the notice, it shall be considered as abandoned.

SEC. 2910. The motion shall be heard and determined without written pleadings, and judgment given according to law and the rules of equity.

CHAPTER 14.
OF MOTIONS AND ORDERS.

SECTION 2911. A motion is a written application for an order addressed to the court, or to a judge in vacation, by any party to a suit or proceeding, or by any one interested therein.

SEC. 2912. Several objects may be included in the same motion, if they all grow out of, or are connected with, the action or proceeding in which it is made.

SEC. 2913. Testimony to sustain or resist a motion may be in the form of affidavits, or in such other form as the parties may agree on or the court or judge direct. If by affidavit, the person making the same may be required to appear by the court or judge and submit to a cross-examination.

SEC. 2914. A party who has appeared in an action, or who has been served with the original notice in such action in any manner provided by this code, shall take notice of all motions filed during term time upon the same being filed by the clerk and entered in the appearance docket. All motions filed in vacation shall be entered on such docket and served as herein required.

SEC. 2915. When notice of a motion is required to be served, it shall state the names of the parties to the action or proceeding in which it is made, the name of the court or judge before whom it is to be served.
be made, and the place where, and the day on which it is to be heard, and, if affidavits are to be used on the hearing, the notice shall be accompanied with copies thereof and shall be served such length of time before the hearing as the court or judge deems reasonable.

SERVICE.

Sec. 2916. Notices, and copies of motions mentioned in this chapter, may be served by any one who would be authorized to serve an original notice.

Sec. 2917. The service shall be on each of the parties adverse to the motion, if more than one, or on an attorney of record of such party.

Sec. 2918. The service may be personal on such party or attorney, or may be made in the same manner as is provided for the service of the original notice in civil actions; or it may be served on the attorney by being left at his office with any person having the charge thereof.

Sec. 2919. Any officer authorized to serve any notice, shall serve at once the same and make prompt return to the party who delivered the same to him, and a failure to do so shall be punished as a disobedience of the process of the court.

Sec. 2920. The return of proof of service must state the manner in which it was made.

Sec. 2921. When the party has no known place of abode in this state, and no attorney in the county where the action is pending, or where the parties, plaintiffs or defendants, are numerous, the court or judge may direct the mode of serving notices, and on whom they shall be served.

ORDERS.

Sec. 2922. Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing and not included in a judgment, is an order.¹

Sec. 2923. For good cause shown, a judge’s order may issue in vacation, directing any of the officers of the court in relation to the discharge of their duties.

Sec. 2924. Such order shall be in force only during the vacation in which it is granted and for the first two days of the ensuing term.

Sec. 2925. The judge granting it may require the filing of a bond as in case of an injunction, unless from the nature of the case such requirement would be clearly unnecessary and improper.

Sec. 2926. Orders made out of court shall forthwith be filed with and entered by the clerk in the journal of the court in the same manner as orders made in the term.

CHAPTER 15.

OF SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Section 2927. If a defendant shall, at any time before answering, make and file an affidavit stating that he has a good defense in whole or in part, the plaintiff, if he be a non-resident of this state or a private or foreign corporation, before any other proceeding in the cause shall file in the clerk's office a bond, with a sufficient security to be approved by the clerk, for the payment of all costs which may accrue in the action in the court in which it is brought or in any other to which it may be carried, either to the defendant or to the officers of the court. The application for such security shall be by motion, filed with the case, and the facts supporting it must be shown by affidavits annexed thereto, which may be responded to by counteraffidavits on or before the hearing of the motion, and each party shall file all his affidavits at once, and none thereafter.

Section 2928. An action in which a bond for costs is required by the last section, shall be dismissed if a bond is not given in such time as the court may allow.

Section 2929. If the plaintiff in an action, after its institution becomes a non-resident of this state, he may be required to give security for costs in the manner and under the restrictions provided in the preceding sections of this chapter.

Section 2930. In an action in which a bond for costs has been given, the defendant may, at any time before trial, make a motion for additional security on the part of the plaintiff; and if on such motion the court is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from the state, or is not sufficient for the amount thereof, it may dismiss the action, unless, in a reasonable time to be fixed by the court, sufficient security is given by the plaintiff.

Section 2931. No attorney or other officer of the court shall be received as security in any proceeding in court.

Section 2932. After final judgment has been rendered in an action in which security for costs has been given as required by this chapter, the court, on motion of the defendant or any other person having the

[1] The provisions of this section are not confined to foreign corporations. A domestic corporation may be required to give security for costs. The D. M. V. Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Henderson, 38 Iowa, 446. The affidavit annexed to a motion for security for costs need not set out the facts constituting the defense, but only that the party making the motion has a good defense. Id.

[2] The time fixed by the court within which a bond for costs must be filed, will be deemed sufficient, on appeal, unless it is made to appear that the plaintiff was prejudiced by the order. Id.

[4] A dismissal of the action is the penalty for a non-compliance with an order to secure costs; and where the court below dismisses the action without fixing a further time for filing a bond for costs, the supreme court will not interfere where the order works no substantial prejudice to the plaintiff. The D. M. V. R. Co. v. Henderson, 38 Iowa, 446.

[5] The prohibition of this section against attorneys becoming sureties in proceedings in court, is not limited to costs. It applies to injunctions, attachment, and similar bonds, as fully as to those securing costs. Massie v. Means, 17 Iowa, 131.

An attorney who tenders himself as surety on a bond in court and is accepted, cannot afterwards plead the fact that he is an attorney to relieve him of his obligation. Wright v. Schmidt et al., 47 Id., 233.

The fact that an attorneys name is signed to the bond, and that the approval of the clerk is indorsed thereon in due form is conclusive of his acceptance as surety. Id.
right to such costs or any part thereof, may render judgment summarily, according to the chapter on summary proceedings, in the name of the defendant or his legal representatives, against the sureties for costs, for the amount of costs adjudged against the plaintiff or so much thereof as may remain unpaid.

CHAPTER 16.

OF COSTS.

Section 2933. Costs shall be recovered by the successful against the losing party. But where the party is successful as to a part of his demand, and fails as to part, unless the case is otherwise provided for, the court may, on rendering judgment, make an equitable apportionment of costs. 2

Sec. 2934. In actions where there are several plaintiffs or several defendants, the costs shall be apportioned according to the several judgments rendered; and where there are several causes of action embraced in the same petition, or several issues, the plaintiff shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor, and the defendant shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor. 3

Footnotes:

2 Where a number of witnesses subpoenaed by the plaintiff were in attendance at the trial to testify touching an issue joined, and the defendant withdrew his answer immediately before the jury was impaneled, and presented a new issue which rendered the testimony of said witnesses immaterial, it was held proper for the court to tax a portion of the costs to the defendant, notwithstanding he was the successful party. Whitney v. Hackney, 29 Iowa, 490.

3 While, as a rule, the successful party is entitled to recover costs, the court has the power, under peculiar circumstances to adjudge otherwise. Scott's Adm'r v. Cole et al., 27 Id., 109.

A plaintiff who recovers in his action is not, as a matter of law, entitled, in all cases, to recover full costs. There may be circumstances justifying an equitable apportionment thereof by the court. Hatch v. Gould, 29 Id., 55; Brink v. Nuwey, Id., 444; Bare v. Wright, 29 Id., 101.

Where no abuse of discretion is shown, an order of the court below apportioning costs will be sustained in the appellate court, if the plaintiff has recovered but a part of his demand. Boone County v. Wilson et al., 41 Id., 69.

The apportionment of costs is a matter resting in the discretionary powers of the court, and its action in this respect will not be disturbed, on appeal, unless an abuse of such discretion is affirmatively shown from all the facts. Bush v. Yeoman, 30 Id., 479.

It is competent for the trial court to adopt and enforce a rule limiting the right of witnesses, subpoenaed and attending court in several cases at the same time, to fees for mileage and attendance in one case only. Such a rule is consistent with law, within the meaning of § 2680 of the revision (code, section 180). Muffett v. The D. B. S. M. R. Co., 34 Id., 430. Miller, J., dissenting.

The costs in a proceeding to restore the record of a judgment which has been destroyed, if the motion is resisted and is sustained by the court, should be taxed against the losing party. Ranke & McKinley v. Herrum, 48 Id., 276.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace upon four separate items of demand, the judgment of the justice in favor of the plaintiff was appealed from, and the plaintiff recovered one dollar in the circuit court, it was held, that the case was a proper one for an apportionment of the costs under section 2933 of the code. Howder v. Overholser, 48 Id., 365.

While this section has reference primarily to cases where the petition embraces several causes of action, or where there are several issues joined upon the matters therein alleged, it may still include a case where the plaintiff recovers upon his demand, and the defendant, in whole or in part upon his counter claim. Arthur v. Funk, 22 Id., 388. See, also, Brink v. Neunge, 29 Id., 444.

Where there are two issues, one of which is determined in favor of the plaintiff and the other in favor of the defendant, it is proper that the plaintiff should pay the costs on the issue decided against him, and that the defendant should pay the costs on the issue decided in his favor. Porter v. McBride, 44 Iowa, 479.
Sec. 2935. All costs accrued at the instance of the successful party which cannot be collected of the other party, may be recovered on motion by the person entitled to them against the successful party.

Sec. 2936. The necessary fees paid by the successful party in procuring copies of deeds, bonds, wills, or other records filed as a part of the testimony, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Sec. 2937. Postage paid by the officers of the court, or by the parties in sending process, depositions, and other papers being part of which arose after the commencement of the action, whether such which cannot be collected of the other party, may be recovered on the record, by mail, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Sec. 2938. When a pleading contains a defense stating matter which arose after the commencement of the action, whether such matter of defense be alone or with other matter of defense which arose before the action, the party affected by such matter may confess the same, and thereupon shall be entitled to the costs of the cause as to the party pleading such matter up to the time of such pleading.

Sec. 2939. When a plaintiff dismisses the action or any part thereof, or suffers it to abate by the death of the defendant or other cause, or where the suit abates by the death of the plaintiff and his representatives fail to revive the same according to law, judgment for costs may be rendered against such plaintiff or representative, and, if against a representative, shall be paid as other claims against the estate.

Sec. 2940. The co-parties against whom judgment has been recovered, are entitled as between themselves to taxation of the costs of witnesses whose testimony was obtained at the instance of one of the co-parties, and incurred exclusively to his benefit.

Sec. 2941. Where an action is dismissed from any court for want of jurisdiction, or because it has not been regularly transferred from an inferior to a superior court, the costs shall be adjudged against the party attempting to institute or bring up the cause.

Sec. 2942. The clerk shall tax in favor of the party recovering costs, the allowance of his witnesses, the fees of officers, the compensation of referees, the necessary expenses of taking depositions by commission or otherwise, and any further sum for any other matter which the court may have awarded as costs in the progress of the cause or may deem just to be taxed.

Sec. 2943. In actions in which the cause of action shall, by assignment after the commencement of the action, or in any other manner, become the property of a person not a party to the action, such party shall be liable for the costs in the same manner as if he were a party.

Sec. 2944. Any person aggrieved by the taxation of a bill of costs, may, upon application, have the same re-taxed by the court, or by a referee appointed by the court in which the application or proceeding was had, and in such re-taxon every error shall be corrected; and if the party aggrieved shall have paid any unlawful charge by reason of the first taxation, the clerk shall pay the costs of re-taxon, and also to the party aggrieved the amount which he may have paid by reason of the allowing of such unlawful charges.

* It was held under this section in the revision, prior to the code, that the compensation of a person agreed upon by the parties and appointed by the court to take down the testimony in writing in a civil case, might be properly taxed as part of the costs against the unsuccessful party. Kunkle v. The Ind. S. D. of Charles City, 36 Iowa, 99.

Officers whose fees are fixed by law cannot charge fees for services for which no specific fee is allowed. The clerk cannot charge a separate fee for assessing the amount due on a promissory note. Sprout v. Kelly, 37 Id., 44.

SEC. 2945. In cases of appeals from the district or circuit court, the clerk shall make a complete bill of costs showing the items which shall accompany the record, and a copy of the same shall be placed upon the execution docket of the court below.

SEC. 2946. When the costs accrued in the supreme court and the court below are paid to the clerk of the supreme court, he shall pay so much of them as accrued in the court below to the clerk of said court and take his receipt for the same.

SEC. 2947. On receiving such costs, the clerk of the court below shall charge himself with the money upon his execution docket, and pay it to the persons entitled to the same.

TITLE XVIII.

OF ATTACHMENTS, EXECUTIONS, AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF ATTACHMENTS AND GARNISHMENT.

SECTION 2949. The plaintiff in a civil action may cause any property of the defendant which is not exempt from execution to be attached at the commencement or during the progress of the proceeding, by pursuing the course hereinafter prescribed.

SEC. 2950. If it be subsequent to the commencement of the action, a separate petition must be filed, and in all cases the proceedings relative to the attachment are to be deemed independent of the ordinary proceedings and only auxiliary thereto.

SEC. 2951. The petition which asks an attachment must in all cases be sworn to. It must state:

1. That the defendant is a foreign corporation, or acting as such;

or,

2. That he is a non-resident of the state; or,

3. That he is about to remove his property out of the state without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts; or,

4. That he has disposed of his property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud his creditors; or,

5. That the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or,

---

* Where the petition and bond for an attachment are filed, and the writ issued on the same day, but the original notice dated and delivered to the sheriff the next day thereafter, a motion to quash the writ because issued before the commencement of the action was held properly overruled. Hagan v. Burch, 8 Iowa, 309.

Where the petition which asks an attachment is filed, the action is so far commenced that the writ of attachment may then issue, before the original notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service. Id.

Where the writ is not issued for several days after the filing of the petition asking an attachment, it will not be quashed. Van Winkle v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264; Hagan v. Burch, 8 Id., 309.

The unassigned dower interest of a widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to attachment in an ordinary action at law. Rusch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

A judgment may be levied on and sold under an execution, like any other personal property, but it can be attached by garnishment only. Ochiltree et al. v. M., I. & N. R. Co., 49 Id., 150.

If the writ is asked in the original petition, but one petition is required, but there must be a separate petition where the writ is sued out subsequent to the institution of the action. Shapleigh v. Roop, 6 Iowa, 524.

This section applies to cases when the attachment is sought after the commencement of the action. Van Winkle v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264.

While an attachment proceeding is auxiliary to the principal action, yet it is also of such an independent character within the meaning of the statute, that an appeal will lie from an order dissolving or sustaining the same. Johnson et al. v. Butler, 1 Id., 459.
6. That he has absconded, so that the ordinary process cannot be served upon him; or,
7. That he is about to remove permanently out of the county and has property therein not exempt from execution, and that he refuses to pay or secure the plaintiff; or,
8. That he is about to remove permanently out of the state, and refuses to pay or secure the debt due the plaintiff; or,
9. That he is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the county with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
10. That he is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or,
11. That he has property or rights in action which he conceals; or,
12. That the debt is due for property obtained under false pretences.

 Sec. 2952. Where the petition states, in addition to the other facts required, that the plaintiff will lose his claim unless the attachment issues and is served on Sunday, it may be issued and served on that day.

SEC. 2952. Where the petition states, in addition to the other facts required, that the plaintiff will lose his claim unless the attachment issues and is served on Sunday, it may be issued and served on that day.

1 An amendment of a petition which asks an attachment, by annexing copies of the causes of action sued on, will not warrant the dissolution of the attachment.
McCarn & Scott v. Rivers, 7 Iowa, 404. Where, in an action asking an attachment, the affidavit does not show where it was "subscribed and sworn to," it will be presumed to have been in the proper county, and that the failure to set out definitely the county and state where the affidavit was taken cannot materially prejudice the defendant.
Snell v. Eckerson, 8 Id., 284.

It was held, under the code of 1851, that where an attachment was sued out upon the ground that "the defendant is, in some manner, about to dispose of, or remove his property out of the state, without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts," the affidavit should allege further, that such disposition or removal was with intent to defraud his creditors.
Pitman & Bro. v. Stacey, 8 Id., 352; Boeun v. Gillison, 7 Id., 503; Lockhard v. Eaton, 3 G. Greene, 543.

But under the revision of 1860 it was held that the fraudulent intent need not be alleged, when seeking an attachment on the ground that "the defendant was about to dispose of, or remove his property out of the state without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts."

Where affidavit appended to a petition for an attachment stated "that the facts set forth therein asking a writ of attachment, are true," it was held to be equivalent to an averment that the allegations of the petition were true, and that it was sufficient.
Sherrill v. Fay, 14 Id., 292.

An allegation in a petition asking an attachment, that "said defendant is in some manner about to dispose of his property without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts, held, insufficient in that it did not allege the removal or disposition BEYOND THE STATE as mentioned in the third clause of this section.

Nor will an amendment, filed after the issuing of the writ stating that the defendant is in some manner about to dispose of his property out of the state, sustain the writ already issued.
It should state that the alleged cause existed at the time the action was commenced or the writ issued.
Bundy v. McKee, Id.

Where an action was commenced against a non-resident by attachment in B. county, no property of defendant was found or attached in that county, but on another writ issued to P. county real property belonging to the defendant was attached, after which, on motion of defendant the venue was changed to P. county; held, that the lien of the attachment upon the property was valid from the date of levy, and took precedence of an attachment in another action brought in P. county, the attachment thereafter being issued and levied after the first and prior to the transfer of the cause from B. county.
Laird Bros. v. Dickerson, 40 Id., 665.

The allegation that "the defendant is not an inhabitant of the state" is equivalent to the allegation that he is a non-resident, and is sufficient.

An affidavit showing cause for an attachment, may be made by plaintiff's attorney.
Chittenden & Co. v. Hobbs, 9 Id., 417; Bates v. Robinson, 7 Id., 318.

In an action against the joint and several makers of a promissory note, an attachment may, for sufficient legal cause alleged, be issued against the property of but one defendant.
Chittenden v. Hobbs, 9 Id., 417.

When the petition states the amount claimed to be due, a similar averment in the affidavit for the attachment is not necessary.
Id.

When the plaintiff states in his petition more than one cause for an attachment they must be stated in the conjunctive and not in the alternative.
SEC. 2953. If the plaintiff's demand is founded on contract, the petition must state that something is due, and, as nearly as practicable, the amount, which must be more than five dollars in order to authorize an attachment."

SEC. 2954. The amount thus sworn to is intended as a guide to the sheriff, who must, as nearly as the circumstances of the case will permit, levy upon property fifty per cent greater in value than that amount.

SEC. 2955. If the demand is not founded on contract, the original petition must be presented to some judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, who shall make an allowance thereon of the amount in value of the property that may be attached. The provisions of this section apply only to cases in the district and circuit court."

FOR DEBTS NOT DUE.

SEC. 2956. The property of a debtor may be attached previous to the time when the debt becomes due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness, and when the petition, in addition to that fact, states:

1. That the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
2. That he is about to remove from the state and refuses to make any arrangements for securing the payment of the debt when it falls due, and which contemplated removal was not known to the plaintiff at the time the debt was contracted; or,
3. That the defendant has disposed of his property in whole or in part with intent to defraud his creditors; or,

An action on a judgment, although recovered for a tort, is founded on torts. 601: 1st, 22. An action upon a penal bond for a breach thereof is an action founded on contract. Lord v. Gaddis, 61d., 57. So also an action to recover a penalty prescribed by a city ordinance, and in such cases no allowance by a judge is necessary. The Town of Decorah v. Dunstan Bros., 34 d., 569.

In an action for unliquidated damages it is not necessary to state in the petition for an attachment the amount due from the defendant to the plaintiff. Sherrill v. Fay, 14 d., 292.

The provisions of this section denying an attachment where the amount claimed does not exceed five dollars is limited to actions upon contracts, and has no application to actions founded on torts. Weller v. Haves, 49 d., 45.

In an action for false representations the damages being unliquidated, an attachment should not issue until the provisions of this section have been complied with. Gates v. Reynolds, 15 Iowa, 1.

The law regulating the issuing of attachments in cases of torts applies to the circuit courts and the judges thereof as well as to the district courts and judges. Sturman v. Stone, 31 d., 115.

In an action to recover value of certain wheat, the petition, which asked an attachment, alleged that the plaintiff had deposited the wheat for storage with the defendant under a special contract by which the defendant agreed to deliver the wheat to plaintiff on demand; and further alleged that plaintiff demanded the wheat of defendants; that they had before such demand sold and shipped the same without authority; that they could not and did not deliver the same to plaintiff, and refused to pay therefor; it was held, that the action was founded on contract and not upon tort, and that no order of allowance by a judge of the amount to be attached, was necessary. McGinn v. Butler et al., 31 d., 160.

The order of allowance in attachments for torts must be made by a judge of one of the courts named in the statute in his individual capacity, and not by the court. Sherrill v. Fay, 14 d., 292.
ATTACHMENTS AND GARNISHMENT. [Title XVIII.}

4. That the debt was incurred for property obtained under false pretences."

Sec. 2957. If the debt or demand on which the attachment suit is brought is not due at the time of the service of the attachment, the defendant is not required to file any pleadings until the maturity of such debt or demand; but he may, in his discretion, do so and go to trial as early as the cause is reached.

Sec. 2958. And no final judgment shall be rendered upon such attachment unless the party consents as in the last section, until the debt or demand upon which it is based becomes due. But property of perishable nature may be sold as in other attachment cases.

BOND.

Sec. 2959. In all cases before it can be issued, the plaintiff must file with the clerk a bond for the use of the defendant, with sureties to be approved by such clerk, in a penalty at least double the value of the property sought to be attached, and in no case less than two hundred and fifty dollars in a court of record, nor less than fifty dollars if in a justice's court, conditioned that the plaintiff will pay all damages which the defendant may sustain by reason of the wrongful suing out of the attachment.*

* The allegation in the petition of refusal to secure the debt applies alone to the second subdivision of this section. Danforth, Davis & Co. v. Carter & May, 1 Iowa, 546.

Where the plaintiff, in commencing his action, brings himself within the provisions of the statute providing for commencing attachment suits previous to the maturity of the debt, in certain cases, the defendant cannot plead as a defense that the debt was not due when the action was commenced. Churchill et al. v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 45.

An attachment may be issued in an action on a claim before it is due, only when one or more of the causes defined by the statute providing for attachments in such cases, are alleged in the petition. Stacy & Thomas v. Stichton & Co., 9 Id., 399.

Where a petition asking an attachment stated, as a cause of action, the indebtedness of the defendant for the purchase money of certain lands, under a contract which was not then matured, and after it became mature, the plaintiff filed an amended petition claiming damages for a breach of the contract on the part of defendant, it was held, 1. That by the filing of an amended petition which was inconsistent with the original petition upon which the writ of attachment issued, the plaintiff would be deemed to have waived his original cause of action; 2. That by this abandonment of the cause of action first alleged, it is to be presumed that it did not exist when the attachment was sued out. Young v. Broadbent, 23 Id., 539.

The existence of an indebtedness is an essential pre-requisite to the issuance of the writ and if no indebtedness exists the writ cannot be rightfully sued out. Id.

A surety on a promissory note cannot maintain an action or attachment proceeding against his principal until the maturity of the note and payment thereof by him. Payment by him after the commencement of the action is not sufficient. Dennison v. Soper, 33 Id., 183.

An action may be properly commenced on notes given for rent, before they are due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness, and it is alleged in the petition that the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors. Brace v. Brady, 36 Id., 352.

An attachment may issue on an unmatured debt when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness. Bacon v. Marshall, 37 Id., 581.

* An attachment bond with but one surety is not for that reason defective. The word "sureties" in this section may be construed as either singular or plural. Elliott v. A. J. Steens & Co., 10 Iowa, 418.

Where a bond for an attachment is signed by the principal and sureties in their partnership names, it is sufficient. Danforth, Davis & Co. v. Carter & May, 1 Id., 546; Churchill v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 45.

The penalty of the bond should be double the amount of the value of the property which the sheriff may attach and not double the amount claimed in the petition to be due. Id. To the same effect are Van Winkle v. Steens & Co., 9 Id., 264; Hamile et al. v. Phenice, Id., 525; Hamble v. Owens, 20 Id., 70. It should not be less than three times the amount claimed in the petition to be due. Hamble v. Owen, 20 Id., 70.

When the penalty of the bond for an attachment is less than the amount required it may be enlarged by the parties to it, or a new and suf-
SEC. 2960. The defendant may, at any time before judgment, move the court or judge for additional security on the part of the plaintiff, and if, on such motion, the court or judge is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from this state, or is not sufficient, the attachment may be vacated and restitution directed of any property taken under it, unless, in a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court or judge, security is given by the plaintiff.

SEC. 2961. In an action on such bond, the plaintiff therein may recover if he shows that the attachment was wrongfully sued out, and that there was no reasonable cause to believe the ground upon which the same was issued to be true, the actual damages sustained and reasonable attorney's fees to be fixed by the court; and if it be shown such attachment was sued out maliciously, he may recover exemplary damages, nor need he wait until the principal suit is determined before suing on the bond.

A sufficient bond may be filed. *Van Winkle v. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264; Churchill v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 47.

filed at the commencement of the action, it takes the place of the original one, and is to be treated as if filed at the commencement of the action, so far as the defendant's claim for damages under

In an action on the attachment bond the plaintiff must allege in his petition, and prove on the trial, that the defendant in suing out the attachment, had no reasonable grounds for believing the facts stated and sworn to in his petition as grounds for the attachment. It is not sufficient to allege generally that the writ was wrongfully sued out. *Burton v. Knapp, 14 Iowa, 196; following Winchester v. Cox, 4 G. Greene, 121; Mahnke v. Damon & Co., 3 Id., 107; Ra-er v. Webster, Id., 503.

In an action on an attachment bond the plaintiff must allege and prove the breach of its conditions. He must allege the non-payment of the damages which he alleges he has sustained by the wrongful suing out of the writ. *Horren
v. Harrison, 37 Id., 378; Ryder v. Thomas, 32
Id., 56.

When an attachment is wrongfully sued out, the right of action on the bond accrues as soon as the attachment defendant is disturbed in the possession of his property by the levy of the writ. *Campbell v. Chamberlana, 10 Id., 937.

In such action the measure of damages is all such losses and expenses incurred in defending the attachment proceedings, losses sustained by being deprived of the use of property attached, and for injuries thereto, by its depreciation in value or entire loss. *Id.

Where an action on an attachment bond, the suing out of the writ was not willful and malicious, the damages recoverable are confined to actual compensation for the wrong done, and restricted to its immediate consequences. *Plumb

In an action on the attachment bond the defendant may show in defense, either that he had good cause to believe the grounds stated for the writ to be true, or that they were true in fact.
If true in fact, it would constitute a good defense, though at the time of suing out the writ he had no sufficient knowledge to constitute rea-sone ground for believing them true. *Vorse

The plaintiff cannot recover, as part of his

ATTACHMENTS AND GARNISHMENT. [TITLE XVIII.

MODE OF ATTACHMENT.

SEC. 2962. The clerk shall issue an attachment, directing the sheriff of the county therein named to attach the property of the defendant to the requisite amount therein stated.

SEC. 2963. Attachments may be issued from courts of record to different counties, and several may, at the option of the plaintiff, be issued at the same time, or in succession and subsequently, until sufficient property has been attached; but only those executed shall be taxed in the costs, unless otherwise ordered by the court; and if more property is attached in the aggregate than the plaintiff is entitled to have held, the surplus must be abandoned and the plaintiff pay all costs incurred in relation to such surplus.

SEC. 2964. The sheriff shall in all cases attach the amount of property directed if sufficient, not exempt from execution, found in his county, giving that in which the defendant has a legal and unquestionable title a preference over that in which his title is doubtful or only equitable.

SEC. 2965. Where there are several attachments against the same defendant, they shall be executed in the order in which they were received by the sheriff.

SEC. 2966. If, after an attachment has been placed in the hands of the sheriff, any property of the defendant is moved from the county, the sheriff may pursue and attach the same in an adjoining county within twenty-four hours after removal.

SEC. 2967. Stock or interest owned by the defendant in any company, and also debts due him, or property of his held by third persons, may be attached, and the mode of attachment must be as follows:

1. By giving the defendant in the action, if found within the county, and also the person occupying or in possession of the property, if it be in the hands of a third person, notice of attachment;

2. If the property is capable of manual delivery, the sheriff must take it into his custody if it can be found;

3. Stock in a company is attached by notifying the president or other head of the company, or the secretary, cashier, or other managing agent thereof, of the fact that the stock has been so attached;

4. Debts due the defendant, or property of his held by third persons and which cannot be found, or the title to which is doubtful, are attached by garnishment thereof.

for the amount of damages found, not diminished by the amount of plaintiff’s claim, was held, correct. Wetherell v. Sprigley, 43 Id., 41.

In the absence of malice, an action for the wrongful suing out of an attachment can be maintained only on the attachment bond. In order to maintain an action independently of the statute, and not on the bond, malice in suing out the writ must be averred. Tallant v. The B. G. L. Co., 36 Id., 362.

Where the plaintiff in the principal action recovers less than five dollars, the judgment determines that the writ was wrongfully sued out, and the defendant may recover in an action on the bond all actual damages sustained by him; but such judgment without other evidence does not prove that the suing out of the writ was willfully wrong. Gaddis v. Lord & Jewett, 10 Id., 141.

Damages are recoverable in an attachment bond, only in the event of the writ being wrongfully sued out, and this is not to be inferred from a voluntary dismissal of the action. Nock­les v. Eggspieker, 47 Id., 400.

Whether or not in such case the plaintiff is entitled to nominal damages is a question of fact for the jury. 1d.

Attorney’s fees, under this section, may be regarded as part of the costs, and the provision authorizing the court to fix the amount of attorney’s fees for defending against an attachment wrongfully sued out is within the scope of legislative authority. Weller v. Hawes, 49 Id., 45.

* In a proceeding of attachment by garnishment, notice of the process to the defendant in the principal action is not necessary as in at.
Sec. 2968. Whenever it appears by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or by the return of the attachment, that no property is known to the plaintiff or the officer on which the attachment can be executed, or not enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and, it being shown to the judge of any court by affidavit, that the defendant has property within the state not exempt, the defendant may be required by such judge to attend before him, or before the court in which the action is pending, and give information on oath respecting his property.

Sec. 2969. Property attached otherwise than by garnishment, is bound thereby from the time of the service of the attachment only.

Sec. 2970. The court before whom the action is pending, or the judge thereof in vacation, may, at any time, appoint a receiver to take possession of property attached under the provisions of this chapter, and to collect, manage, and control the same, and pay over the proceeds according to the nature of the property and the exigency of the case.

Sec. 2971. All money attached by the sheriff, or coming into his hands by virtue of the attachment, shall forthwith be paid over to the clerk to be by him retained till the further action of the court.

Sec. 2972. The sheriff shall make such disposition of other attached property as may be directed by the court or judge, and where there is no direction upon the subject he shall safely keep the property subject to the order of the court.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

Sec. 2973. In executing an attachment against a person who owns property jointly or in common with another, or who is a member of a partnership, the officer may take possession of such property so owned jointly, in common, or in partnership, sufficiently to enable him to inventory and appraise the same, and for that purpose shall call to his attachment of property, under section 2967. Phillips v. Germon, 43 Iowa, 101.

In order to constitute a valid levy of an attachment, the officer must do such acts as that, without the protection of his writ, he would be a trespasser. Allen v. McColla, 25 Id., 464.

The officer should do that which will amount to a change of possession, or something that will be equivalent to a claim of dominion, coupled with a power to exercise it. Crawford v. Newell, 23 Id., 453.

In order to make a valid levy on personal property, the sheriff must take, or have it within his power or control, or at least within his view, and if, having it so, he makes a levy upon it, it will be good if followed up afterward within a reasonable time, by his taking possession in such a manner as to apprise everybody of the fact of its having been levied upon. And he may do this by placing it in the possession or under the control of another person for him; but it is not a valid levy where the sheriff leaves the property in the possession and custody of the defendant. Kingsbury v. Buchanan, 11 Id., 387, 397.

A judgment can be attached only by garnishment. Ochiltree v. The M., I. & N. R. Co., 49 Id., 150.

The levy of an attachment upon property creates a real lien, which can be divested only by a dissolution of the attachment; and while the legislature may suspend the sale of the property thus levied upon, it cannot discharge the lien absolutely. Hannahs v. Felt, 15 Iowa, 141; Day v. Griffith, Id., 104; Norton et al. v. Williams, 9 Id., 523.

The rule recognized in some of the states, that the death of a defendant, whose personal property has been attached, dissolves the attachment and passes the property to the administrator for distribution among the creditors, does not prevail in this state. Lord v. Allen, 34 Id., 281.

An attachment lien is not superior to a prior unrecorded deed or mortgage of real property. Norton et al. v. Williams, 9 Id., 528; Savery v. Browning, 18 Id., 246.

But an attachment of personal property takes precedence to a chattel mortgage on the same property executed and recorded by the mortgagee without the knowledge or consent of the mortgagee till after the levy. Day v. Griffith, 15 Id., 104.
assistance three disinterested persons; which inventory and appraisement shall be returned by the officer with the attachment, and such return shall state who claims to own such property.\(^6\)

Sec. 2974. The plaintiff shall, from the time such property is taken possession of by the officer, have a lien on the interest of the defendant therein, and may, either before or after he obtains judgment in the action in which the attachment issued, commence an action by equitable proceedings to ascertain the nature and extent of such interest and to enforce the lien; and, if deemed necessary or proper, the court or judge may appoint a receiver under the circumstances and conditions provided in chapter twelve, of title seventeen.\(^4\)

GARNISHMENT.

Sec. 2975. The attachment by garnishment is effected by informing the supposed debtor or person holding the property, that he is attached as garnishee, and by leaving with him a written notice to the effect that he is required not to pay any debt due by him to the defendant or thereafter to become due, and that he must retain possession of all property of the said defendant then, or thereafter, being in his custody or under his control, in order that the same may be dealt with according to law, and the sheriff shall summon such persons as garnishees as the plaintiff may direct.\(^5\) [But no judgment shall be entered in any garnishment proceedings condemning the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee until the principal defendant shall have had ten days notice of such proceedings. If the case is pending in the district or circuit court the notice shall be served in the same manner as original notices are required to be served. If the case is pending before a justice of the peace, the defendant shall have at least five days personal notice of such proceeding, if he be a resident of the county; otherwise service

\(^6\) The creditor of one partner may levy upon the interest of his debtor in partnership property; but the creditors of the firm are entitled to be first satisfied from the partnership funds and property, and the separate creditors from the individual funds and property. Hubbard v. Curtis, 8 Iowa, 1. See also, Richards, Crumbaugh & Shaw v. Haines, 30 Id., 574; Switzer v. Smith et al., 35 Id., 269; Cox v. Russell, 44 Id., 556, 569.

The preference which the law gives the creditors of the partnership to be first satisfied out of the firm property, will be protected in proceedings by garnishment by firm and individual creditors. Switzer v. Smith et al., 35 Id., 269.

\(^4\) By levying an attachment on partnership property in an action against a partner, the creditor simply acquires a lien upon the defendant's interest, the extent of which must be determined by equitable proceedings. Cox v. Russell, 44 Id., 556; Richards, Crumbaugh & Shaw v. Haines, 30 Id., 574.

\(^5\) A notice of garnishment directed to the mayor, recorder and treasurer of an incorporated city by their individual names and name of office respectively, informing them that they and each of them were "attached and held as garnishees, as a debtor and as a person holding property of the defendant: Held, that the notice did not give the court jurisdiction of the city as garnishee. Citrin et al. v. Iowa City, Garnishee, 12 Iowa, 324.

Where by the terms of a policy of fire insurance the same became forfeited and void by a change of occupancy and increase of hazard, the company was held not liable to be garnished as a debtor of the policy holder, there being no legal indebtedness on the part of the company. Victor v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Id., 210.

A garnishee occupies the relation of defendant to the principal action, and, like the defendant therein, may take a change of venue. When either the plaintiff or the defendant has taken a change of venue, in which the garnishee has not joined, the case will proceed as to him in the court where it was commenced. Westphal, Hinds & Co. v. Clark et al., 42 Id., 371.

And the garnishment process may be served before the original notice is served on the defendant. Id.
of such notice may be made by posting the same in three public places in the township, in the manner provided by sections 3609 and 3610 of the code. The fact that the defendant is not a resident of the county may be shown by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or his attorney, filed with the justice before such notices are posted.]

Sec. 2976. A sheriff or constable may be garnished for money of the defendant in his hands. So may a judgment debtor of the defendant when the judgment has not been previously assigned on the record, or by writing filed in the office of the clerk by him minuted as an assignment on the margin of the judgment docket, and also an executor for money due from the decedent to the defendant may be garnished, but a municipal or political corporation shall not be garnished.

Sec. 2977. Where the property to be attached is a fund in court, the execution of a writ of attachment shall be by leaving with the clerk of the court a copy thereof, with notice, specifying the fund.

Sec. 2978. If the garnishee die after he has been summoned by garnishment and pending the litigation, the proceedings may be revived by or against his heirs or legal representatives.

Sec. 2979. Unless exempted as provided in the next section, the notice must also require the garnishee to appear on the first day of the next term of the court wherein the main cause is pending, or on the day fixed for trial if in a justice's court, and answer such interrogatories as may be then propounded to him, or that he will be liable to pay the entire judgment which the plaintiff eventually obtains against the defendant.

The objection that the garnishee is exempt from the process of garnishment is a privilege which he alone can assert. Wales & Son v. City of Muscatine, 4 Iowa, 302.

And such garnishee may waive the privilege. Clapp v. Walker, 25 Id., 315.

Prior to the revision of 1890, a municipal corporation was liable to be garnished. Id. See also, Taylor v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 5 Id., 114.

Under the statute, money belonging to a debtor, and in possession of a court or officer, may be attached by garnishment. Patterson v. Pratt, 10 Id., 338.

But property in the hands of a receiver cannot be seized on execution. Martin v. Davis, 21 Id., 535.

The rule that municipal corporations cannot be garnished is not limited to cases where it would interfere with the discharge of corporate duties, but is universal in its application, and the objection may be made at the time or before the answer is filed. Jenks v. Osecola Tp., 45 Id., 554.

The judgment defendant in an action in the district court cannot be attached as garnishee, and subjected to a judgment in a garnishment proceeding in the circuit court. McGuire v. Pitts, 42 Id., 535.

A railroad, or other private corporation, may be garnished, but a municipal corporation is not thus liable. Clapp v. Walker et al., 25 Id., 315.

See also, Caldwell v. Stewart, 30 Id., 379.

A garnishee may be garnished in an action by a creditor against the inn-keeper. It seems that municipal or political corporations are the only exceptions to the operation of the statute as to who may be garnished. Caldwell v. Stewart, 30 Id., 379.

A trustee may be garnished for the surplus money arising from a sale under a trust deed, and such surplus applied to satisfy the debt of the person entitled to such surplus. Cook & Sargent v. Dillon, 9 Id., 497.

A mortgagee of chattels may be attached as a garnishee, and required to answer as to the amount of his claim yet unpaid, the amount and value of the property, and he may be held responsible for the sale and disposition of the property over and above the payment of his own claim. Torbett v. Hayden, 11 Id., 435; Campbell v. Leonard, Id., 489; Jessup v. Bridge et al., Id., 572.

A garnishee is not compelled to appear and answer unless he is paid the fees and mileage to which a witness would be entitled, when demanded. Westphal et al. v. Clark et al., 42 Iowa, 371.

But the garnishee is not discharged from the obligation to retain in his possession all the property of the defendant under his control, and to withhold payment of any money due him, by reason of a failure to pay his fees. Id.

If the fees were not paid or tendered at the first summons, they may be subsequently paid or tendered and the attendance of the garnishee secured. Id.

SEC. 2980. When the plaintiff, in writing, directs the sheriff to take the answer of the garnishee, the sheriff shall put to the garnishee the following questions:

1. Are you in any manner indebted to the defendant in this suit or do you owe him money or property which is not yet due? If so, state the particulars;

2. Have you in your possession or under your control, any property, rights or credits of the said defendant? If so, what is the value of the same, and state all particulars;

3. Do you know of any debts owing to the said defendant, whether due or not due, or any property, rights or credits belonging to him and now in the possession or under the control of others? If so, state the particulars, and append the examination to his return.

MODE.

SEC. 2981. If the garnishee refuses to answer fully and unequivocally all the foregoing interrogatories, he shall be notified to appear on the first day of the next term of court, or on the day fixed for trial as above provided, and so he may be required in any event, if the plaintiff so notify him.

SEC. 2982. The questions propounded to the garnishee in court, may be such as are above prescribed to be asked by the sheriff, and such others as the court may think proper and right.

SEC. 2983. Where the garnishee is required to appear at court, unless he has refused to answer as contemplated above, he is entitled to the pay and mileage of a witness, and may, in like manner, require payment beforehand in order to be made liable for non-attendance.

SEC. 2984. If, when duly summoned, and his fees tendered when demanded, he fail to appear and answer the interrogatories propounded to him without sufficient excuse for his delinquency, he shall be presumed to be indebted to the defendant to the full amount of the plaintiff's demand, and shall be dealt with accordingly.

SEC. 2985. But, for a mere failure to appear, he is not liable to pay the amount of the plaintiff's judgment, until he has had an opportunity to show cause against the issuing of an execution.

SEC. 2986. A garnishee may, at any time after answer, exonerate himself from further responsibility, by paying over to the sheriff the amount owing by him to the defendant, and placing at the sheriff's disposal the property of the defendant, or so much of said debts and property as is equal to the value of the property to be attached, all of which may afterward be treated as though attached in the usual manner.

SEC. 2987. When the garnishee has answered the interrogatories propounded to him, the plaintiff may controvert the same by pleading by him filed, and issue may be joined and the same tried in the usual manner. The answer of the garnishee shall be competent testimony on such trial.

b See Westphal et al. v. Clark et al., 42 Iowa, 371, cited in notes to § 2978, ante.

The garnishee is to be placed in no worse condition than if the attachment defendant, himself, were prosecuting an action against him on the claim. Fifield v. Wood, 9 Id., 249; Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Clark & Henley, Id., 241.

When a garnishee is called and fails to appear, a default may be entered against him, though no interrogatories have been prepared and propounded by the plaintiff. It is not necessary to submit interrogatories before the appearance of the garnishee. Parmenter v. Childs, and Noble v. same, etc., 12 Id., 22.

1 Where the record shows that the garnishee was called and failed to appear, the appellate court will not reverse an order of the court below refusing to set aside a default, upon the unsupported affidavit of the garnishee. Parmenter v. Childs, 12 Iowa, 22.

A showing to set aside a default against a garnishee, or against issuing an execution against him, must rebut the presumption of indebtedness, and show a sufficient excuse for the default. Id.

A judgment by default against a garnishee, who failed to appear when garnished, constitutes no bar to a subsequent action against him on the same debt for which he was garnished by one claiming to own the same by assignment from the defendant in the attachment proceeding, prior to the garnishment. McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137.

Where a garnishee has been required to make his answer more specific, and upon failure to do so judgment has been rendered against him by default, a motion to set aside the default should be made at the same term the default was entered. Scamahorn v. Scott et al., 42 Id., 529.

A garnishee is not chargeable with interest upon funds in his hands from the time of garnishment, unless the presumption, which obtains, that they were not used by him from that time, but kept as a separate fund to answer the judgment of the court, be in some manner overcome. And this rule is not changed by section 2986 which provides that the garnishee may exonerate himself from liability by paying the money to the sheriff. Moore v. Lowrey, 25 Iowa, 336.

A garnishee is not generally liable for costs but if he refuses to answer, or seeks to avoid a fair investigation of his liability to the party attached he will be charged with such costs as are caused by such conduct. Fifield v. Wood, 9 Id., 249; Fagg v. Parker, 11 Id., 18.

A garnishee is not bound to pay money, or property attached in his hands, to the court. He may do so at any time before answer, to avoid further responsibility; but his failure to do so, or to tender the amount confessed to be in his hands, does not make him liable for costs. Randolph et al. v. Heaslip, 11 Id., 37.

k While the answer of a garnishee is competent testimony in the trial of an issue taken thereon, its weight and credit are for the jury alone and the court has no authority to instruct in respect thereto. Drake v. Buck, 35 Iowa, 473; Bean v. Barney et al., 10 Id., 498; Randolph & Leslie v. Heaslip, 11 Id., 37.

The answer of the garnishee if uncontroverted must be taken as true. Bean v. Barney et al., 10 Id., 498.

A garnishee should not be charged on his answer alone, unless it contains a clear admission of a debt due, or the possession of money or attachable property of the defendant. If it is doubtful he is entitled to judgment in his favor. Morse v. Marshall, 22 Id., 290; Farwell & Co. v. Howard & Co., 26 Id., 381; Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Clarke & Henley, 9 Id., 241.

A garnishee having a lien upon the attached property in his hands, has a right to hold the same until his lien is discharged. Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Clarke & Henley, 9 Id., 246.

The trial of an issue made upon the answer of a garnishee denying indebtedness must take place in the court wherein the principal action that the garnishee was indebted to the defendant, or had any of the defendant's property in his hands either at the time of being served with the garnishee notice aforesaid, or at any time subsequent thereto, he is liable to the plaintiff in case judgment is finally recovered by him, to the full amount of that judgment, or to the amount of such indebtedness and of the property so held by him; and a conditional judgment or delivering the same to the sheriff as above provided.¹

Sec. 2991. The judgment of the garnishment suit condemning the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand, is conclusive between the garnishee and defendant.

Sec. 2992. The docketing of the original case shall contain a statement of all the garnishments therein, and when judgment is rendered against a garnishee, the same shall distinctly refer to the original judgment.

Sec. 2993. An appeal lies in all garnishment cases at the instance of the plaintiff, the defendant, the garnishee, or an intervenor claiming the property or money.

RELEASE OF PROPERTY.

Sec. 2994. If the defendant, at any time before judgment, causes a bond to be executed to the plaintiff with sufficient securities to be approved by the officer having the attachment, or, after the return thereof by the clerk, to the effect that he will perform the judgment of the court, the attachment shall be discharged and restitution made of property taken or proceeds thereof. The execution of such bond shall be deemed an appearance of such defendant to the action a

Sec. 2995. Such bond shall be part of the record, and, if judgment go against the defendant, the same shall be entered against him and sureties.

Sec. 2996. The defendant, or any person in whose possession any attached property is found, or any person making affidavit that he has an interest in it, may, at any time before judgment, discharge the property attached, or any part thereof, by giving bond with security, to be approved by the sheriff, in a penalty at least double the value of the property sought to be released, but if that sum would exceed three times the claim, then in such sum as equals three times the claim, conditioned that such property, or its estimated value, shall be delivered to the sheriff to satisfy any judgment which may be obtained against the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee, which is in possession of the latter, and the value of which is not shown the garnishee should be discharged. N'l B'k v. Berry, 29 Id., 288.

a The bond provided for by this section, may be taken and approved by the sheriff in vacation if offered before he returns the writ, or by the clerk after the return has been made. Budd v. Durall et al., 36 Iowa, 315.

Where the parties and the sheriff intended to execute a delivery bond under section 2996, by mistake executed a bond under section 2994, to perform the judgment, which before signing was carefully read over by the obligors, fully understanding its language, it was held to be a mistake of law against which they could not be relieved. Moorman et al. v. Collier, 32 Id., 138. To the same effect is Glenn v. Pryce v. Statler et al., 42 Id., 107.

Where the sheriff releases attached property under a bond providing that the obligors shall be liable for any judgment that may be rendered, the property is nevertheless constructively in his possession so long as it is in the possession of the bondmen, and parol evidence is not admissible to show that the property was in fact released to the owner thereof. Sels Co. v. Belden et al., 45 Id., 451.
the defendant in that suit within twenty days after the rendition thereof. This bond shall be filed with the clerk of the court.\(^6\)

Sec. 2997. To determine the value of property, in cases where a bond is to be given, unless the parties agree otherwise, the sheriff shall summon two disinterested persons having the qualification of jurors, who, after having been sworn by him to make the appraisement faithfully and impartially, shall proceed to the discharge of their duty. If such persons disagree as to the value of the property, the sheriff shall decide between them.\(^7\)

Sec. 2998. In an action brought upon the bond above contemplated, it shall be a sufficient defense that the property for the delivery of which the bond was given, did not, at the time of the levy, belong to the defendant against whom the attachment was issued, or was exempt from seizure under such attachment.\(^8\)

SALE OF PERISHABLE PROPERTY.

Sec. 2999. When the sheriff thinks the property attached in danger of serious and immediate waste and decay, or when the keeping of the same will necessarily be attended with such expense as greatly to depreciate the amount of proceeds to be realized therefrom, or when the plaintiff makes affidavit to that effect, the sheriff may summon three persons having the qualification of jurors to examine the same. The sheriff shall give the defendant, if within the county, three days’ notice of such hearing, and he may appear before such jury and have a personal hearing. If they are of the opinion that the property requires soon to be disposed of, they shall specify in writing a day beyond which they do not deem it prudent that it should be kept in the hands of the sheriff. If such day occurs before the trial day, he shall thereupon give the same notice as for sale of goods in execution, and for the same length of time, unless the condition of the property renders a more immediate sale necessary. The sale shall be made accordingly. If the defendant gives his written consent, such sale may be made without such finding.

\(^6\) A bond executed by an intervenor after judgment, and not containing the conditions prescribed for a delivery bond, nor executed in the manner provided by the statute, cannot be regarded as a delivery bond, though executed as such, and will not entitle the intervenor to the possession of the attached property. Jenkins v. Warnock, 37 Iowa, 278.

Property attached by garnishment may be released by the execution of a delivery bond, in the same manner that property taken into the actual custody of the officers is discharged. Woodward v. Adams, 9 Id., 474.

In an action on a delivery bond, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to aver or prove that the property released was appraised, or its value fixed by agreement before the execution of the bond. Id.

\(^7\) The obligors in a delivery bond, given to discharge property from attachment, cannot object to the validity of the bond on the ground that the property released was not appraised before the execution of the bond. Woodward v. Adams, 9 Iowa, 474.

plaintiff has a just claim, and that the property has been or is about to be sold, concealed, or removed from the state, or where plaintiff states on oath that he has reasonable cause to believe, and does believe, unless prevented by the court, the property will be sold, concealed, or removed from the state, an attachment may be granted against the property.

Sec. 3001. In an action by a vendor of property fraudulently purchased, to vacate the contract and have a restoration of the property; or compensation therefor, where the petition shows such fraudulent purchase of property and the amount of the plaintiff's claim, and is verified by his oath, an attachment against the property may be granted.

Sec. 3002. The attachment in the cases mentioned in the last two sections may be granted by the court in which the action is brought, or by the judge of any court, upon such terms and conditions as to security on the part of the plaintiff for the damages which may be occasioned by them, and with such directions as to the disposition to be made of the property attached, as may be just and proper under the circumstances of each case.

Sec. 3003. The attachment shall describe the specific property against which it is issued; and shall have indorsed upon it the direction of the court or judge as to the disposition to be made of the attached property. It shall be directed, executed, and returned as other attachments.

Sec. 3004. The court may, in any of the cases mentioned under this head of specific attachments, direct the terms and conditions of the bond to be executed by the defendant, with security, in order to obtain a discharge of the attachment or to retain the attached property.

INDEBTEDNESS DUE THE STATE.

Sec. 3005. In all cases in which any person is indebted to the state of Iowa, or to any officer or agent of the state for the use or benefit of the state, the proper district attorney, or the attorney general, shall demand payment or security therefor, whenever, in the opinion of said district attorney or attorney general, the debt is not sufficiently secured.

Sec. 3006. In all suits for money due to the state of Iowa, or due to any state agent or officer for the use of the state, it shall be lawful for an attachment to issue against the property or debts of the defendant not exempt from execution, upon the filing of an affidavit by the district attorney of the proper district, or of the attorney general, that he verily believes that a specific amount therein stated is justly due, and the defendant therein has refused to pay or secure the same, and that unless an attachment is issued against the property of the defendant there is danger that the amount due will be lost to the state.

* Where an officer in the levy of a special attachment not having indorsed thereon the direction of the court or judge, did not take the attached property into his custody, nor give notice of the levy, nor make such return as required by the statute, the levy was held invalid. Crawford v. Newell, 23 Id., 453.

* See Crawford v. Newell, 23 Iowa, 453, cited in note to section 300.

1 A demand must first have been made of the party against whom an attachment is sought to entitle the state thereto under sections 3005 and 3006 of the code. The State v. Morris, 50 Iowa, 203.

An affidavit to the effect that the defendant is in another state, and that he is about to sell or remove his property, is not sufficient to authorize an attachment. Id.
ATTACHMENTS AND GARNISHMENT. [Title XVIII.

SEC. 3007. The attachment so issued shall be levied as in other cases of attachment, and no bond shall be required of the plaintiff in such cases, and the sheriff shall not be authorized to require any indemnifying bond before levying the same.

SEC. 3008. Any property taken on attachment under the provisions of the two preceding sections, shall be subject to be released upon the execution of a delivery bond, with sufficient security as provided by law in other cases.

SEC. 3009. In case any sheriff shall be held liable to pay any damages by reason of the wrongful execution of any writ of attachment issued under the three preceding sections, and if a judgment be rendered therefor by any court of competent jurisdiction, the amount of judgment when paid by such sheriff shall become a claim against the state of Iowa in favor of such sheriff, and a warrant therefor shall be drawn by the auditor upon proper proof.

SEC. 3010. The sheriff shall return upon every attachment what he has done under it. The return must show the property attached, the time it was attached, and the disposition made of it, by a full and particular inventory; also the appraisement above contemplated, when such has been made. When garnishees are summoned, their names, and the time each was summoned, must be stated. And where real property is attached, the sheriff shall describe it with certainty to identify it, and, where he can do so, by a reference to the book and page where the deed under which the defendant holds is recorded. He shall return with the writ all bonds taken under it. Such return must be made immediately after he shall have attached sufficient property, or all that he can find; or, at latest, on the first day of the first term on which the defendant is notified to appear.

SEC. 3011. If judgment is rendered for the plaintiff in any case in which an attachment has been issued, the court shall apply in satisfaction thereof, the money arising from the sales of perishable property, and if the same is not sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, the court shall order a sale by the sheriff of any other attached property which may be under his control.

SEC. 3012. The court may, from time to time, make and enforce proper orders respecting the property, sales, and the application of the moneys collected.

SEC. 3013. The sheriff shall be allowed by the court the necessary expenses of keeping the attached property, to be paid by the plaintiff and taxed in the costs.

SEC. 3014. Any surplus of the attached property and its proceeds shall be returned to the defendant.

SEC. 3015. If judgment is rendered in the action for the defendant, the attachment shall be discharged, and the property attached, or its proceeds, shall be returned to him.

SEC. 3016. Any person other than the defendant may, before the sale of any attached property, or before the payment to the plaintiff of the proceeds thereof or any attached debt, present his petition, verified by oath, to the court, disputing the validity of the attachment, or stating a claim to the property or money, or to an interest in, or lien on it under any other attachment or otherwise, and setting forth the facts upon which such claim is founded; and the petitioner's claim shall be in a summary manner investigated. The court may hear the proof or order a reference, or may empanel a jury to enquire into the facts. If it is found that the petitioner has title to, a lien on, or any interest in such property, the court shall make such order as may be necessary to protect his rights. The costs of such proceedings shall be paid by either party at the discretion of the court. ¹

SEC. 3017. The fact stated as a cause of attachment, shall not be contested in the action by a mere defense. The defendant's remedy shall be on the bond, but he may, in his discretion, sue thereon by way of counter claim, and in such case shall recover damages as in an original action on such bond. ²

SEC. 3018. A motion may be made to discharge the attachment, or any part thereof, at any time before trial for insufficiency of statement of cause thereof, or for other cause making it apparent of record that the attachment should not have issued, or should not have been levied on all or on some part of the property held. ³

SEC. 3019. When an attachment has been discharged, if the plaintiff then announce his purpose to appeal from such order of discharge, he shall have two days in which to perfect his appeal, and during that time such discharge shall not operate a return of the property nor divest any lien, if such appeal be so perfected at the end thereof.

SEC. 3020. But, if judgment in the action be also given against the plaintiff, he must also, within the same time, take his appeal thereon, or such discharge shall be final.

SEC. 3021. This chapter shall be liberally construed, and the plaintiff, at any time when objection is made thereto, shall be permitted to amend any defect in the petition, affidavit, bond, writ, or other proceeding; and no attachment shall be quashed, dismissed, or the property attached released, if the defect in any of the proceedings has, or can be amended so as to show that a legal cause for the attachment thereon by answer. Holliday v. Herrsford, 9 Iowa, 353; Berry v. Gravel, 11 Id., 135; McLaren v. Hall, 26 Id., 237; Burrows v. Lehndorff, 8 Id., 96; Branch of State Bank v. Morris, 13 Id., 136.

In the main action the defendant in his answer may set up a counter-claim in the nature of an action on the attachment bond, in which he may controvert the causes alleged for the attachment. Town v. Bringolf et al., 47 Id., 133.

In order to justify the discharge of attached property under this section, on the ground that it is exempt from levy, the case should be made clear and satisfactory. McLaren v. Hall, 26 Iowa, 297.

Attached property will be discharged on motion under this section, only when it is apparent of record that the property should not have been levied on. Tidrick v. Sulgrave, 38 Id., 339.

An officer who holds personal goods in his possession under a writ of attachment, may at his discretion, release the same on the claim of a third party that he is their owner, but the officer does so at his peril, and he has the burden of establishing that the attached property did not belong to the defendant. Wadsorth v. Walliker, 45 Id., 395.

It is competent to move to discharge an attachment on real property where the question of ownership is in issue, when the facts upon which the motion is based are concealed. Rusch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

¹The filing of a petition of intervention under this section, upon which an injunction is granted as merely auxiliary to the proceeding at law in which every issue presented can be tried, does not change the proceeding or the method of trial from law to equity. Pool v. Paul, 29 Iowa, 421.

In an action before a justice of the peace C. was garnished, and answered that he was indebted to the defendant R., who replied that the debt was due to his wife. On appeal in the circuit court, W. and A. were permitted to intervene as assignees of the debt. Held, that the intervention was properly allowed, and that the failure of the garnishee to appeal would not have the effect to affirm the judgment of the justice. Daniels & Co. v. Clark, 39 Id., 556.

The plaintiff in garnishment proceedings stands as against the garnishee in the same relation as the defendant in the main action, and is liable to be met by the same defenses, which the garnishee might make against an action by the defendant. Id.

The remedy of a third person claiming a lien upon, or interest in, attached property is under this section, and not by motion to discharge the property from the levy, under section 3018. Tidrick v. Sulgrave, 38 Id., 339.

ºThe allegations in a petition setting forth the causes for an attachment do not constitute any part of the cause of action, and cannot be reached by demurrer, nor can issue be joined on bond. R. § 3238.

R. § 3241.

To be liberally construed; amendments made as in other cases.
R. § 3242.
A petition or affidavit for an attachment may be amended, and after amendment the plaintiff shall not be prejudiced by the defect corrected, neither is it necessary to issue and levy a new writ upon the attached property. Wadsworth & Wells v. Cheaney & Stinson, 13 Iowa, 576.

It is not necessary to recite in a writ of attachment the causes alleged in the petition as grounds for attachment. J. S., supra. Hays v. Gorby, 3 Id., 203. Nor is it necessary to recite in the writ that a bond has been filed. Ellsworth v. Moore, 5 Id., 486; Hays v. Gorby, supra.

Amendments to the petition, which do not state any new cause for the attachment, but merely make that in the original more specific, are held permissible under section 3242 of the revision. Jenkins & Co., 30 Id., 452; Stout v. Folger, 34 Id., 71.

And where it appears that, through inadvertence or omission, the affidavit to a petition for an attachment was not signed by the party, though actually sworn to by him, nor the affidavit certified by the officer, the defect may be cured by amendment. Stout v. Folger, 34 Id., 71.

When a motion is made to dissolve an attachment, or quash the writ, because the bond is insufficient, the motion should be overruled, if a new and sufficient bond is filed after the motion. Van Winkle v. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264.

Where a writ of attachment is issued under the seal of the district court, while the action was pending in the circuit court, it was held competent to amend the writ by affixing the proper seal thereto, and a motion to quash for such cause will not lie. Murdock v. McPherrin, 49 Id., 479.

Where an equitable interest in land, which does not appear of record, is attached, and a statement thereof is entered in the incumbrance book, this entry will not constitute constructive notice to a vendee or mortgagee of the person holding the legal title. The Farmers Nat. Bk. of Salem v. Fletcher et al., 44 Iowa, 252.

A grantee is not affected by a lis pendens, where the conveyance to him was made prior to the commencement of the action in which it is sought to establish a charge on the land as the property of the grantor. Id. See, also, Bailey v. McGregor, 46 Id., 667.

The fact that one who buys real estate of a married woman has knowledge of the pendency of an action against her husband will not charge him with notice of an attachment therein levied on the land, nor deprive him of the character of a bona fide purchaser. Bailey v. McGregor et al., 46 Id., 667; Eldred v. Drake, 43 Id., 569; Farmers Nat. Bk. of Salem v. Fletcher et al., 44 Id., 252.

The entry in the incumbrance book of the levy of attachment upon lands in an action against one not the holder of the legal title, does not constitute constructive notice to the purchaser of such title. Bailey v. McGregor et al., 46 Id., 667.
Sec. 3023. The word "sheriff," as used in this chapter, is meant to apply to constables when the proceedings are in a justice's court, or the like officer of any other court.

Sec. 3024. When the proceedings are in a justice's court, the justice is to be regarded as the clerk of the court for all purposes herein contemplated.

CHAPTER 2.

OF EXECUTIONS.

Section 3025. Executions may issue at any time before the judgment is barred by the statute of limitations, and but one execution shall be in existence at the same time.

Sec. 3026. Judgments or orders requiring the payment of money, or the delivery of the possession of property are to be enforced by execution. Obedience to those requiring the performance of any other act, is to be coerced by attachment for contempt.

Sec. 3027. Executions from any court of record may issue into any county which the party ordering them may direct.

Sec. 3028. An execution may be issued and executed on Sunday, whenever an affidavit shall be filed by the plaintiff or some person in his behalf, stating that he believes he will lose his judgment unless process issue on that day.

Sec. 3029. Upon the rendition of judgment, execution may be at once issued, and shall be by the clerk on the demand of the party entitled thereto; and upon its issuance, the clerk shall enter on the judgment docket the date of its issuance, and to what county and what officer issued, and shall also enter on said docket the return of the officer with the date of the return, the dates and amount of all moneys received into or paid out of the office thereon; and these entries shall be made at the time of the thing done.

Sec. 3030. The clerk willfully neglecting or refusing to perform any one of the duties in this chapter imposed, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, and to damages to the party aggrieved, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction thereof, shall be removed from office.

Sec. 3031. In case execution is issued to a county other than that in which the judgment is rendered, a transcript of such judgment must be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of such county.

* Execution may properly issue on a judgment after the lien thereof on land has expired, and at any time within twenty years, the statutory period of limitations; and a sale of real estate thereunder is effectual to pass all the interest the defendant therein had at the time of the levy. State v. Roost et al., 34 Iowa, 475.

b A court of law by its judgments declares the conclusion of the law upon the facts proved, and leaves the party to the proper process to enforce it. It awards specific relief only in actions in rem. Kramer v. Rehman, 9 Iowa, 114.

* Where judgment is rendered in one county and a transcript thereof filed in another, execution must issue from the former county for the sale of lands in the latter; and a sale made under an execution issued in the latter is invalid. Furman v. Dewell, 35 Iowa, 170; Seaton v. Hamilton, 10 Id., 394.

Exection may issue from the county where judgment is rendered into any county in the State. Anderson v. Hall, 49 Id., 346, 347.
county, who shall make an entry thereof in the judgment docket of such court; and the officer having such execution shall return a copy thereof, with his return and doings indorsed thereon, to such clerk, who shall make entries thereof in the same manner and extent as if such judgment had been entered in and execution issued from such court.\(^d\)

Sec. 3032. When sent into any county other than that in which the judgment was rendered, return may be made by mail. But money cannot thus be sent except by the direction of the party entitled thereto, or his attorney.

Sec. 3033. The execution must intelligibly refer to the judgment, stating the time and place at which it was rendered, the names of the parties to the action as well as to the judgment, its amount, and the amount still to be collected thereon, if for money; and, if not for money, it must state what specific act is required to be performed. If it be against the property of the judgment debtor, it shall require the sheriff to satisfy the judgment and interest out of property of the debtor subject to execution.\(^a\)

Sec. 3034. If it be against real or personal property in the hands of personal representatives, heirs, devisees, legatees, tenants of real property, or trustees, it shall require the sheriff to satisfy the judgment and interest out of such property.

Sec. 3035. If it be for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, it shall require the sheriff to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the sheriff to satisfy any costs, damages, or rents and profits, with interest, recovered by the same judgment out of the property of the party against whom it was rendered subject to execution, and the value of the property for which judgment was recovered to be specified therein if a delivery thereof cannot be had, and shall in that respect be deemed an execution against property.

Sec. 3036. When it requires the performance of any other act, a certified copy of the judgment may be served on the person against whom it is given, or upon the person or officer who is required thereby, or by law, to obey the same, and his obedience thereto enforced.

Sec. 3037. Every officer to whose hands an execution may legally come shall give a receipt therefor, if required, stating the hour when the same was received, and shall make sufficient return thereof, to\(^d\) It seems that where for any reason the amount of a judgment cannot safely be paid to the attorney, the judgment debtor may pay it to the clerk, the judgment debtor thus making the clerk his agent for the proper appropriation of the money. Fisher v. Oskaaloosa, 28 Iowa, 381.

Money paid to the clerk of the district and circuit courts upon a judgment recorded in his office, is received by him in virtue of his office; and upon his failure to pay over the money to the judgment creditor, a recovery may be had therefor against him and his sureties on his official bond. Thus held where the clerk deposited the money with a private banker who failed. Morgan v. Long, and Hibben & Co. v. Same, 29 Id., 434.

Under this section executions may be issued into any county which the party ordering them may direct, and a valid sale of real property may, as between the parties and as to subsequent purchasers having actual notice thereof, be made in one county under execution issued on a judgment in another county, notwithstanding no transcript of the judgment is filed in the county where the land is situated, and sold. Hubbard v. Barnes, 29 Iowa, 239.

The object and purpose of this section is to provide a method for effecting a lien of the judgment on the real estate where the transcript is filed, and giving of constructive notice thereof and of the proceedings thereunder, by keeping a record showing the same. Id.

\(^a\) A slight variance in the amount stated in an execution from that stated in the judgment will not vitiate the writ. Williams v. Brown, 28 Iowa, 247.
gather with the money collected, on or before the seventieth day from such delivery.

Sec. 3038. The officer to whom an execution is legally issued, shall indorse thereon the day and hour when he received it, and the levy, sale, or other act done by virtue thereof, with the date, and the dates and amounts of any receipts or payment in satisfaction thereof; the indorsements must be made at the time of the receipt or act done.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY.

Sec. 3039. When a judgment is against a principal and his surety, the officer having the collection thereof shall exhaust the property of the principal before proceeding to sell that of the surety.

Sec. 3040. The term "surety" in the foregoing section, shall embrace accommodation indorsers, stayers and all other persons whose liability on the claim is posterior to that of another; but the surety shall, if requested by the officer, show property of the principal to entitle himself to the benefit of this provision.

Sec. 3041. After exhausting the property of the principal, the officer shall subject the property of the other parties in the order of their liability in the execution. But the party subsequently liable, shall, if requested by the officer, show property of the party liable before him so as to entitle himself to the benefit of this provision.

Sec. 3042. But all the parties will be considered as equally liable in all cases, unless the order of liability is shown to the court and recited in the judgment, and the clerk issuing execution on the judgment containing such recital shall state the order of liability in the execution.

LEVY.

Sec. 3043. When an execution is delivered to an officer, he must proceed to execute the same with diligence; if executed, an exact description of the property at length, with the date of the levy, shall be indorsed upon or appended to the execution, and if the writ was not executed, or only executed in part, the reason in such case must be stated in the return.

The sale of property under an execution after the expiration of seventy days from the date thereof, was held not invalid when the levy was made before the expiration of that time. Butterfield v. Walsh, 21 Iowa, 97.

A judgment defendant who is a surety for his co-defendant has such an interest against such co-defendant that he may show that property of his principal is subject to execution for his debts. Delevan et al. v. Pratt et al., 19 Iowa, 429.

An abandonment of the levy of an execution upon, and a release therefrom of personal property of the principal judgment debtor, operates as a discharge of one who is only surety therein, when such abandonment is without his consent, and the fact of his suretyship was known to the execution plaintiff; especially is this so where the property thus released from levy was held by the surety as his indemnity, and beyond whose legal control it was placed by the levy. Sherraden v. Parker. 24 Id., 28.

The judgment plaintiff in an action against joint defendants may enforce his judgment to its fullest extent, against either of them, at his option. Palmer v. Stacey. 44 Id., 340.

Any act of the creditor which entitles the principal to claim, for any time, an exemption from performance, will work a discharge of the surety. But the surety will not be discharged on the ground that time was given to the principal, if given with the consent of the surety, or if he subsequently ratify the same. Herscheler v. Reynolds, 22 Iowa, 153.

And these rules apply, not only to obligations resting in ordinary contracts, but are to be enforced after the contract has passed into a judgment. Id. See also, Chambers v. Cochran & Brock, 1 Id., 193.
SEC. 3044. The officer must execute the writ by levying on the property of the judgment debtor, collecting the things in action by suit in his own name, if necessary, or by selling the same, selling the other property and paying to the plaintiff the proceeds, or so much thereof as will satisfy the execution.¹

SEC. 3045. The officer shall in all cases select such property, and in such quantities, as will be likely to bring the exact amount required to be raised, as nearly as practicable, and having made one levy, may, at any time thereafter, make other levies if he deem it necessary. But no writ of execution shall be a lien on personal property before the actual levy thereof.

SEC. 3046. Judgments, bank bills, and other things in action, may be levied upon and sold, or appropriated as hereinafter provided, and assignment thereof by the officer shall have the same effect as if made by the defendant.¹

SEC. 3047. After the rendition of judgment, any person indebted to the defendant in execution may pay to the sheriff the amount of such indebtedness, or so much thereof as is necessary, sheriff to satisfy the execution, and the sheriff's receipt shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.²

SEC. 3048. Public buildings owned by the state, or any county, city, school district, or other municipal corporation, or any other public property which is necessary and proper for carrying out the general purpose for which such corporation is organized, are exempt from execution. The property of a private citizen can in no case be levied on to pay the debt of any such.¹

¹ By the term “property” in this section is meant real, as well as personal, property or estate. Harrison v. Kramer et al., 3 Iowa, 543, 561.

² A judgment creditor may elect, but he is not compelled, to take in payment of his debt scrip, or the ordinary evidences of indebtedness issued by such corporation. Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Id., 13.

The levy should describe the property taken, with a certainty that would enable either the successor of the sheriff, if one should be appointed in the meantime, or the purchaser at the sale, to find and identify it. Payne v. Billingham, 10 Id., 360.

Among the steps required by the statute is a levy on, or seizure of, the property, whether it be real or personal. Doenard v. Crenshaw, 49 Id., 298, 299.

³ Where a railroad company received a number of its own mortgage bonds from a Debtor in payment of his debt, not for the purpose of canceling the same, but with the intention of putting them in circulation as securities, it was held that such bonds were property of the corporation, subject to be levied on under an execution against its property. Hetherington v. Hayden, 11 Iowa, 335.

As a general rule, the right to levy on and sell personal property under execution, is measured by the power to take and deliver possession thereof. Campbell v. Leonard, 11 Id., 489.

The mortgagor of personal property has no interest therein which can be levied upon and sold under execution. Campbell v. Leonard, 11 Id., 489; Torbert v. Hayden, Id., 455.

A promissory note may be levied on and sold on execution. Savery v. Hays, 20 Id., 25, 29.

It was held under section 3272 of the revision, which did not expressly include judgments, that a judgment could not be levied on and sold on execution as any other personal property, but that the proper course was to garnish the judgment debtor. Osborn v. Cloud, 23 Id., 104.

Under this section and section 3091, an assignment of a promissory note by an officer, levying on and selling the same, has the same effect as if made by the defendant in execution, and confers the same rights upon the assignee of the officer as would be conferred upon an indorsee of the defendant. Earhart v. Gant et al., 32 Id., 481.

These sections (3045, 3091) are in their nature remedial, and by a fair construction, in view of their purpose, the word “defendant” therein should be held to include not only the execution defendant, but a defendant in a garnishment proceeding auxiliary to the execution. Id.

The property of a municipal corporation which is necessary to be used in carrying out the general purpose of its organization, is exempt from execution. The City of Fort Dodge v. Moore, 37 Id., 388.

A municipal corporation can exercise the power of taxation only when expressly conferred by the legislature. Clark et al. v. City of Davenport, 14 Iowa, 494; Jeffries et al. v. Lowery et al., 42 Id., 488; The Iowa R. L. Co. v. The County of Sac, 39 Id., 124.

When a judgment against a municipal corporation can be paid in no other manner, it is the duty of the corporate authorities to levy a special tax sufficient to discharge the same, if within the limit of their power to levy taxes. Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Id., 13; Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, Id., 1; Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

When an execution, upon a judgment duly rendered against a municipal corporation, has been issued and returned nulla bona, it is not a matter in the discretion of the city council, but a matter of duty on their part to levy the necessary tax to pay the judgment. Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 13 Id., 1.

The discharge of this duty will be enforced by mandamus. Id. Also, Boynton v. Dist. Taxp. of Newton, 34 Id., 570, 34 Id., 570.

When the limitation of the power of a city council renders it impossible to raise sufficient by a single levy to pay off a judgment which is made the basis of a proceeding for mandamus, it is competent for the court to order the making of levies from year to year, within such limitation, until the entire debt is raised and discharged. Id.

A judgment creditor may, but is not compelled to take the scrip of a municipal corporation in payment of his judgment. Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391; Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Id., 13.

After demand upon, and refusal by, the officers of a municipal corporation to levy a tax to pay a judgment, if within the limit of their power to do so, they were individually liable under the revision of 1860. But if the taxing power was exhausted for the year for which the demand was made, they would not be liable for such failure; but the failure to make the levy from year to year, when no legal impediment existed, would render them liable without any new demand. Id.

If the current expenses of a corporation are so large as to absorb the entire amount of taxes which the officers of the corporation are authorized to levy, they will not be liable for a refusal to make a further levy; nor for a failure to set apart a portion of that levied, in payment of the judgment. Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391. See also, Coffin v. The City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

The provisions of this section apply to school districts as well as to other municipal corporations, and the levy of a tax to pay a judgment against the district may be enforced against the directors by mandamus. And that they have issued an order on the treasurer of the district for the amount of the judgment does not change the rule above stated. Boynton v. The Dist. Taxp. of Newton, 34 Id., 510.

If it be shown that the valuation and assessment of property within the corporation is purposely made too low in order to avoid a judgment against the corporation, it will be compelled by mandamus to make a fair assessment of the property, and apply in payment of the judgment, of the proceeds arising from the maximum tax levied thereon, such surplus as remains after deducting the amount required for the current expenses of the municipal government. Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

This section confers no independent power of taxation, and does not require municipal corporations to levy a judgment tax in excess of the maximum rate of taxation established by the statute. The Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. The County of Sac, 39 Id., 124; Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 17 Id., 1; Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391; Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

The denomination of a tax in the levy as "for judgment fund," and "for city judgment tax," is not so ambiguous as will permit the introduction of evidence to show that the proceeds were intended by the city council to be applied to another purpose than the payment of outstanding judgments against the city. Rice v. Walker, 44 Id., 438.

The levy of a tax of eight mills by a city for the payment of judgments against it, after a tax of ten mills had been levied for general purposes, was held, not illegal. Id.
EXECUTIONS. [Title XVIII.

third persons, may be levied upon in the same manner provided for attaching the same.n

PROCEEDINGS BY GARNISHMENT.

SEC. 3051. In proceedings by garnishment on execution, the garnishee shall be served as in case of attachment. The plaintiff may, also, if the garnishee is called into court, have a case docketed against him without docket fee, and upon his answer to the officer, issue may be made and notice thereof given him, or issue may be made on his answer in court without any notice thereon if made at the same term; and in all these and every other particular, the proceedings shall be the same as under garnishment on attachment, as near as the nature of the case will allow.6

SEC. 3052. Proceedings by garnishment on execution shall not be in any manner affected by the expiration of the execution or its return; and where parties thereunder have been garnished, the officer shall return to the next term thereafter a copy of the execution with all his doings thereon, so far as the garnishments thereon are concerned.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

SEC. 3053. When an officer has an execution against a person who owns property jointly, in common, or in partnership with another, such officer may levy on and take possession of the property owned jointly, in common, or in partnership, sufficiently to enable him to appraise and inventory the same, and for that purpose shall call to his assistance three disinterested persons, which inventory and appraisement shall be returned by the officer with the execution, and shall state in his return who claims to own the property.P

SEC. 3054. The plaintiff shall, from the time such property is so levied on, have a lien on the interest of the defendant therein, and may commence an action by equitable proceedings to ascertain the nature and intent of such interest and to enforce the lien; and, if deemed necessary or proper, the court or judge may appoint a receiver under the circumstances provided in chapter twelve of title seventeen of this code.1

a Debts due a defendant may be levied upon under execution, in the manner provided for attaching the same, and the proceeding by garnishment must be the same as near as practicable. Claflin et al. v. Iowa City. 12 Iowa, 236; Lambert v. Powers, 36 Id., 18, 20.

Where issue is not taken on the answer of the garnishee at the same term it is filed, the garnishee is entitled to notice. But if he makes a voluntary appearance in person, or by attorney, notice is unnecessary. Kinne v. Anderson, 13 Iowa, 565, 566.

When the property to be levied upon is a fund in court, it may be levied upon in the manner prescribed by statute. Patterson v. Pratt, 19 Id., 333.

p See ante, section 2973, and notes to that section, as to the effect of a levy upon partnership property.

The interest of a defendant in the assets of a partnership of which he is a member, is liable to be taken in execution or reached by proceedings thereunder, and must be first exhausted before resort can be had to the homestead of the defendant. Lambert v. Powers, 36 Id., 18.

The creditor of an insolvent person can subject to the payment of his debt, real property the title to which is in his wife’s name, but toward the payment of which the debtor has contributed to the extent of such contribution, and this rule is not varied by the fact that the real property in controversy embraces the homestead, which would to the same extent, be liable for an antecedent indebtedness. Croup & Shaffer v. Morton et ux., 49 Iowa, 16.
INDEMNIFYING BOND.

SEC. 3055. An officer is bound to levy an execution on any personal property in the possession of, or that he has reason to believe belongs to, the defendant, or on which the plaintiff directs him to levy, unless he has received notice in writing from some other person, his agent, or attorney, that such property belongs to him; or, if after levy he receives such notice, such officer may release the property unless a bond is given as provided in the next section; but the officer shall be protected from all liability by reason of such levy until he receives such written notice.

SEC. 3056. When the officer receives such notice he may forthwith give the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, notice that an indemnifying bond is required. Bond may thereupon be given by or for the plaintiff, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer, to the effect that the obligors will indemnify him against the damages which he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale of the property, and will pay to any claimant thereof the damages he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale, and will warrant to any purchaser of the property such estate or interest therein as is sold; and thereupon the officer shall proceed to subject the property to the execution, and shall return the indemnifying bond to the district court of the county in which the levy is made.

SEC. 3057. If such bond is not given, the officer may refuse to levy, or if he has done so, and the bond is not given in a reasonable time after it is required by the officer, he may restore the property to the person from whose possession it was taken, and the levy shall stand discharged.

SEC. 3058. The claimant or purchaser of any property, for the seizure or sale of which an indemnifying bond has been taken and returned by the officer shall be barred of any action against the officer levying on the property if the surety on the bond was good when it was given to the officer a written notice which, under this section of the code, would relieve him from the necessity of making the levy. Gray v. Parker et al., 49 Ida., 624.

An officer cannot recover for his time and expenses in successfully defending in an action of replevin for personal property on which he had levied, and with respect to which the plaintiff in the replevin action had served no notice of claim of ownership. Rickabaugh v. Bada, 50 Ida., 57.

An officer is not bound to attach property the title of which is in doubt, but having made a levy, and on demand a proper indemnifying bond having been given, he cannot release the property without making himself liable if, in fact, the property was subject to attachment. Wadsworth & Co. v. Walliker, 51 Iowa, 605.

Where an officer levies on goods, and subsequently, on his own motion, releases the levy, the burden is on him to show a sufficient cause for such release. Id.

An officer cannot demand an indemnifying bond in excess of a sum necessary to secure him, and an agreement to give such bond cannot be enforced. Id.
was taken. Any such claimant or purchaser may maintain an action upon the bond, and recover such damages as he may be entitled to."

Sec. 3059. Where property, for the sale of which the officer is indemnified, sells for more than enough to satisfy the execution under which it was taken, the surplus shall be paid into the court to which the indemnifying bond is directed to be returned. The court may order such disposition or payment of the money to be made, temporarily or absolutely, as may be proper in respect to the rights of the parties interested.

Sec. 3060. The provisions of the preceding sections as to bonds, shall apply to the proceedings upon executions issued by justices of the peace. Indemnifying bonds shall be returned in such cases with the execution under which they are taken.

STAY OF EXECUTION.

Sec. 3061. On all judgments for the recovery of money except those rendered in any court on an appeal or writ of error thereto, or against any officer, person, or corporation, or the sureties of any of them, for money received in a fiduciary capacity, or for the breach of any official duty, there may be a stay of execution if the defendant therein shall, within ten days from the entry of judgment, procure one or more sufficient freehold sureties to enter into a bond acknowledging themselves security for the defendant for the payment of the judgment, interest, and costs from the time of rendering judgment until paid, as follows:

1. If the sum for which judgment was rendered, inclusive of costs, does not exceed one hundred dollars, three months;

2. If such sum and costs exceed one hundred dollars, six months; provided, that the provisions of this chapter in relation to stay of execution shall not apply to existing contracts, but such contracts shall be governed by the laws in force at the time they were made, which are as follows:

When judgment has been rendered against any one for recovery of money, he may, by procuring one or more sufficient freehold securities to enter into a recognizance acknowledging themselves security for the defendant for the payment of the judgment, together with the interest and costs accrued and to accrue, have a stay of the execution from the time of rendering judgment, as follows:

If the sum for which judgment was rendered, inclusive of costs, does not exceed five dollars, one month;

If such sum and costs exceed five, but not twenty dollars, two months;

If such sum and costs exceed twenty, but not forty dollars, three months;

If such sum and costs exceed forty, but not sixty dollars, four months;

If such sum and costs exceed sixty, but not one hundred dollars, six months;

If such sum and costs exceed one hundred, but not one hundred and fifty dollars, nine months;

This section of the code, in so far as it deprives the claimant of property levied upon by an officer, under the contingency therein provided, from bringing an action against such officer to recover the specific property levied on, is unconstitutional and void. Towle et al. v. Man, 2 N. W. Rep. (Iowa), 340, (914).
If such sum and costs exceed one hundred and fifty dollars, twelve months;

And provided, further, that all judgments shall bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum on which stay is taken.

Sec. 3062. Officers approving stay bonds shall require the affidavit of the signers of such bond that they own real estate, not exempt from execution and aside from incumbrance, to the value of twice the amount of the judgment.*

Sec. 3063. No appeal shall be allowed after such stay has been obtained, nor shall a stay be taken on a judgment entered as herein contemplated against one who is surety in the stay of execution, nor shall such stay be allowed to any judgment obtained by a laboring man or mechanic for his wages.†

Sec. 3064. The surety for stay of execution may be taken and approved by the clerk, and the bond shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose and have the force and effect of a judgment confessed from the date thereof against the property of the sureties, and the clerk shall enter and index the same in the proper judgment docket, as in case of other judgments.

Sec. 3065. When the surety is entered after execution issued, the clerk shall immediately notify the sheriff of the stay, and he shall forthwith return the execution with his doings thereon.

Sec. 3066. All property levied on before stay of execution, and all written undertakings for the delivery of personal property to the sheriff, shall be relinquished by the officer upon stay of execution being entered.

Sec. 3067. At the expiration of the stay, the clerk shall issue a joint execution against the property of all the judgment debtors and sureties, describing them as debtors or sureties therein.

Sec. 3068. When any court shall render judgment against two or more persons, any of whom is surety for any other in the contract on which judgment is founded, there shall be no stay of execution allowed if the surety object thereto at the time of rendering the judgment, whereupon it shall be ordered by the court that there be no stay, unless the surety for the stay of execution will undertake specifically to pay the judgment in case the amount thereof cannot be levied of the principal defendant.

Sec. 3069. Any surety for the stay of execution may file with the clerk an affidavit, stating that he verily believes he will be liable for the judgment, interest, and costs thereon unless execution issues immediately; and the clerk shall thereupon issue execution forthwith,

* A subsequent purchaser of mortgaged property, who has assumed, as between himself and the mortgagor, the payment of the mortgage debt, and who is also a co-defendant with the mortgagor in the action to foreclose the mortgage, may under this section, without the consent of the mortgagor, stay the execution of the judgment of foreclosure. Moses v. The Clerk, etc., 12 Iowa, 139.

The provisions of the revision relating to stay of execution govern in judgments rendered before the code came into effect. Du Boise et al. v. Bloom, 38 Id., 512.

A stay of execution, otherwise properly taken, is not rendered invalid by the failure of the clerk to require the sureties to justify as required by the statute. Id.

† The act of the clerk of the court in passing upon the sufficiency of a stay bond is not a judicial one, and he is liable for any damage sustained by the judgment creditor by reason of his negligence in accepting an insufficient bond. Hubbard v. Switzer, 47 Iowa, 681.

The taking of the affidavit of the surety as required in this section does not exonerate the clerk from liability if he has been negligent. Id.

A stay of execution under section 3061, operates as a waiver of the right to appeal. Seacrist v. Newman et al., 19 Iowa, 329.
EXECUTIONS.

SEC. 3070. If other sufficient surety be entered, it shall have the force of the original surety entered before the filing of the affidavit, and shall discharge the original surety.

SEC. 3071. Where a stay of execution has been taken, such confessed judgment shall not release any judgment lien by virtue of the original judgment for the amount then due. The officer holding the said execution shall return thereon what amount was made from the principal debtor, and how much from the surety.

EXEMPTIONS.

SEC. 3072. If the debtor is a resident of this state and is the head of a family, he may hold exempt from execution the following property; All wearing apparel of himself and family kept for actual use and suitable to their condition, and the trunks or other receptacles necessary to contain the same; one musket or rifle and shot gun; all private libraries, family bibles, portraits, pictures, musical instruments, and paintings, not kept for the purpose of sale; a seat or pew occupied by the debtor or his family in any house of public worship; an interest in a public or private burying ground, not exceeding one acre for any defendant; two cows and calf; one horse, unless a horse is exempt as hereinafter provided; fifty sheep and the wool [therefrom, and the materials manufactured from such wool]; six stands of bees; five hogs, and all pigs under six months; the necessary food for all animals exempt from execution, for six months; all flax raised by the defendant on not exceeding one acre of ground and the manufactures therefrom; one bedstead and the necessary bedding for every two in the family; all cloth manufactured by the defendant, not exceeding one hundred yards in quantity; household and kitchen furniture, not exceeding two hundred dollars in value; all spinning wheels and looms, one sewing machine and other instruments of domestic labor kept for actual use; the necessary provisions and fuel for the use of the family for six months; the proper tools, instruments, or books of the debtor, if a farmer, mechanic, surveyor, clergyman, lawyer, physician, teacher, or professor; the horse, or the team, consisting of not more than two horses or mules, or two yoke of cattle, and the wagon or other vehicle, with a proper harness or tackle, by the use of which the debtor, if a physician, public officer, farmer, teamster, or other laborer habitually earns his living; and to the debtor, if a printer, there shall also be exempt a printing press and the types, furniture, and material necessary for the use of such printing press and a newspaper office connected therewith, not to exceed in all the value of twelve hundred dollars.¹

SEC. 3073. The word "family," as used in the last section, does not include strangers or boarders lodging with the family.

SEC. 3074. The earnings of such debtor for his personal services, or those of his family, at any time within ninety days next preceding the levy, are also exempt from execution and attachment.

SEC. 3075. There shall be exempt to an unmarried person not the head of a family, and to non-residents, their own ordinary wearing apparel and trunk necessary to contain the same.

SEC. 3076. Where the debtor, if the head of a family, has started to leave this state, he shall have exempt only the ordinary wearing apparel of himself and family, and such other property, in addition, as he may select, in all not exceeding seventy-five dollars in value; which property shall be selected by the debtor and appraised according to the provisions of section two thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven of chapter one of this title, but any person coming into this state with the intention of remaining, shall be considered a resident within the meaning of this chapter.

SEC. 3077. None of the exemptions prescribed in this chapter shall be allowed against an execution issued for the purchase money of property claimed to be exempt, and on which such execution is levied.

SEC. 3078. When a debtor absconds and leaves his family, such property shall be exempt in the hands of the wife and children, or either of them.

SALE.

SEC. 3079. The sheriff must give four weeks' notice of the time and place of selling real property; and three weeks' notice of personal property.

SEC. 3080. Notice shall be given by being posted up in at least three public places of the county, one of which shall be at the place where the last district court was held. In addition to which, in case of the sale of real estate, or where personal property to the amount of two hundred dollars or upwards is to be sold, there shall be two publications of such notice in some newspaper printed in the county, if manner contemplated by the statute. Crop v. Griswold, 27 Id., 579.

Property which under the statute is exempt to a widow, as the head of a family, is not to be deemed assets in the hands of the administrator, nor to be administered upon as such. Ellisworth v. Elsworth, 33 Id., 164.

Consent on the part of the widow to such administration, under a misapprehension of her rights, will not estop her from afterwards claiming the property or the proceeds. Id.

The exemption law is to be liberally construed. If a person abandons one employment and procures a team or a part of a team, intending to complete it for the purpose of using the same in good faith to earn for himself a livelihood, it will be deemed such an habitual use of the team in contemplation of the statute, as to exempt the same from execution, whether the person claims the benefit of the exemption law or had an opportunity of using the team much or little. Bevan v. Hayden, 13 Iowa, 122, 123.

A person owning property exempt from execution, may dispose of the same by sale, and attachment levied while a sale is being made and before it is perfected, does not affect the right of the owner under the exemption laws. Id.

The building in which a photographer carries on his business, even though it be personal property, is not exempt from execution under section 3072 of the code. Holden v. Stranahan, 45 Id., 70.

The earnings of a debtor which are exempt from execution, include as well the earnings of professional men as of mechanics and laborers. McCoy v. Cornell et al., 40 Iowa, 457.

It is not necessary that the person claiming exemption of his personal earnings shall give notice of such claim to the sheriff. Id.

This section does not authorize the creditor to seize by garnishment the earnings of a debtor accruing after the garnishment, except those earnings in excess of ninety days. The earnings for ninety days are exempt whether they accrue before or after garnishment. Davis, Watson & Co. v. Humphrey, 23 Id., 137.
there be one. In constables' sales there shall be no newspaper publication, and the notice shall be posted in three public places of the township of the justice, and one of them at his office door. The time of such notice shall be two weeks.

SEC. 3081. An officer selling without the notice above prescribed shall forfeit one hundred dollars to the defendant in execution, in addition to the actual damages sustained by either party; but the validity of the sale is not thereby affected.\footnote{w}

SEC. 3082. The sale must be at public auction, between nine o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon, and the hour of the commencement of the sale must be fixed in the notice.\footnote{x}

SEC. 3083. When there are no bidders, or when the amount offered is grossly inadequate, or when from any cause the sale is prevented from taking place on the day fixed, the sheriff may postpone the sale for not more than three days, without being required to give any farther notice thereof; but he shall not make more than two such postponements, and such postponement shall be publicly announced when the sale should have taken place.\footnote{y}

SEC. 3084. When the property sells for more than the amount required to be collected, the overplus must be paid to the defendant, unless the officer have another execution in his hands on which said overplus may be rightfully applied.\footnote{z}

\footnote{w} The purchaser at judicial sale is authorized to assume the regularity of the judgment and levy, and irregularities in other respects will not, in the absence of fraud, affect the title acquired by an innocent purchaser. Cooley v. Wilson, 42 Iowa, 425. See also, Casender v. Heirs of Smith, 1 Id., 306; Shaffer v. Bolander, 4 G. Greene, 201; Burton v. Emerson, 1d., 393; Hopping v. Burnham, 2 G. Greene, 39.

The statute requiring notice of the sale of property on execution is directory, and, in the absence of fraud, a failure to comply with the statute in this respect will not render the sale and deed void. Id.

\footnote{x} Sheriff's sales must be at public auction. Sweertzell v. Martin, 16 Iowa, 519, 537.

For many purposes a sheriff in conducting a judicial sale is to be considered as the agent of both parties; while he is to be diligent in securing the money due to the creditor, he is invested with a sound discretion as to the time, place and manner of sale; and this discretion must be exercised with a fair and impartial attention to the interests of all concerned. Id.

Improper conduct on the part of the sheriff is not alone sufficient to set aside a judicial sale when it is not shown that the purchaser was connected with such conduct. Id.

\footnote{y} It would seem that where the inadequacy of price is great, the bidders few, and the sheriff has failed judiciously to exercise the power to adjourn the sale, an application to set it aside should be sustained if made within a reasonable time. Id.

\footnote{z} While the surplus of moneys arising from the sale of lands under mortgage foreclosure, when remaining in the hands of the sheriff, or under the control of the court, belongs to subsequent lien-holders in the order of their priority, and should be so awarded by the court; yet when the execution on which the sale is made does not direct the disposition of such surplus, and the sheriff acting in good faith and without such subsequent liens, applies the money on other executions in his hands against the mortgagor, he is not liable therefor to such lien-holders. Polk Co. v. use, etc., v. Sypher, 17 Iowa, 358.

Contests in respect to surplus arising on sales on execution may be determined upon motion instead of by petition in equity or other action, especially when the facts are undisputed, or are susceptible of being clearly and easily ascertained. Id.

But when the money has been actually paid over by the sheriff to subsequent execution creditors of the same debtor, such creditors should be brought into court as parties to the proceeding. Id.

Where the sheriff after sale on a foreclosure of a mortgage has a balance in his hands belonging to the mortgagor, such balance or surplus may be legally applied on executions against the mortgagor, then in the hands of the sheriff. Payne v. Billingham, 10 Id., 360.

Where an execution has been levied upon real property, such levy must be disposed of by a sale or abandonment thereof, or set aside by a court, before a second execution can issue, except as provided in section 3086 of the code. Downard v. Crenshaw, 49 Id., 296.

Where property has been sold at judicial sale to the execution creditor, he cannot afterwards withdraw his bid, and treat the sale as a nullity, except with the consent of the execution debtor. Id.
Sec. 3085. If the property levied on sell for less than sufficient for that purpose, the plaintiff may order out another execution, which shall be credited with the amount of the previous sale. The proceedings under this second sale shall conform to those hereinbefore prescribed.

Sec. 3086. When property is unsold for want of bidders, the levy still holds good; and, if there be sufficient time, it may again be advertised or the execution returned and one issued commanding the officer to sell the property, describing it, previously levied on, to which a clause may be added, that if such property does not produce a sum sufficient to satisfy such execution, the officer shall proceed to make an additional levy, on which he shall proceed as on other executions, or the plaintiff may, in writing filed with the clerk or justice, abandon such levy upon paying the costs thereof. In which case execution may issue with the same effect as if none had ever been issued.

Sec. 3087. If the defendant is in actual occupation and possession of the land levied on, the officer having the execution, shall, at least twenty days previous to such sale, serve the defendant with written notice, stating that the execution is levied on said land, and mentioning the time and place of sale; and sales made without the notice required in this section, may be set aside on motion made at the same or at the next term thereafter.

Sec. 3088. At any time before nine o'clock A. M. of the day of the sale, the defendant may deliver to the officer a plan of division of the land levied on, subscribed by him, and in that case the officer shall sell according to said plan so much of the land as may be necessary to satisfy the debt and costs and no more. If no such plan is furnished, the officer may sell without any division.

Sec. 3089. When the purchaser fails to pay the money when demanded, the plaintiff or his attorney may elect to proceed against him for the amount; otherwise the sheriff shall treat the sale as a nullity, and may sell the property on the same day, or after a postponement as above authorized.

Sec. 3090. When any person shall purchase at a sheriff's sale any real estate on which the judgment upon which the execution issued was not a lien at the time of the levy, and which fact was unknown to the purchaser, the court shall set aside such sale on motion, notice having been given to the debtor as in case of action, and a new execution may be issued to enforce the judgment, and upon the order being made to set aside the sale, the sheriff or judgment-creditor shall

A sale of land on execution without written notice to the owner, if he be in the actual occupation or possession thereof, as contemplated in this section, is irregular and should be set aside on the motion of such owner. Jansen v. Woodbury et al., 16 Iowa, 515; Fleming v. Maddox et al., 30 Id., 239.

To constitute actual occupation within the meaning of this section, it is not necessary that the defendant should reside on the land. The meaning of the terms "actual possession" and "occupation" defined by MILLER, J. Id.

The provisions of this section are applicable to sales under special executions, as well as to those under a general one. Id.

Sec. 3091. Money levied upon may be appropriated without being advertised or sold. The same may be done with bank bills, drafts, promissory notes or other papers of the like character, if the plaintiff will receive them at their par value as cash, or if the officer can exchange them for cash at that value.

Sec. 3092. When a judgment has been obtained against the executor of one deceased, or against the decedent in his lifetime, which the personal estate of the deceased is insufficient to satisfy, the plaintiff may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the court where the judgment is a lien against the executor, the heirs and devisees of real estate, if such there be, setting forth the facts, and that there is real estate of the deceased, describing its location and extent, and praying the court to award execution against the same.

Sec. 3093. The person against whom the petition is filed shall be notified by the plaintiff to appear on the first day of the term, and show cause, if any he have, why execution should not be awarded.

Sec. 3094. The notice shall be served and returned in the ordinary manner, and the same length of time shall be allowed for appearance as in civil actions, and service of such notice on non-resident defendants may be had in such cases by publication.

Sec. 3095. At the proper time, the court shall award the execution unless sufficient cause be shown to the contrary.

Sec. 3096. The non-age of the heirs or devisees shall not be deemed sufficient cause.

Sec. 3097. Mutual judgments, the executions on which are in the hands of the same officer, may be set off against the one against the other; except that the costs shall not be set off, unless the balance of cash actually collected on the large judgment is sufficient to pay the costs of both judgments, and such costs shall be paid therefrom accordingly.

\(^b\) In the absence of fraud the law will not ordinarily relieve a purchaser at an execution sale who acquires a defective title. When seasonably applied for the sale will be set aside where the purchaser receives no title whatever.

Sec. 3091. Money levied upon may be appropriated without being advertised or sold. The same may be done with bank bills, drafts, promissory notes or other papers of the like character, if the plaintiff will receive them at their par value as cash, or if the officer can exchange them for cash at that value.

\(^c\) Where a judgment has been fraudulently assigned by the party in whose favor it was rendered, for the purpose of presenting a set-off of mutual judgment under this section, a court of equity will interpose and effect such set-off.

Sec. 3091. Money levied upon may be appropriated without being advertised or sold. The same may be done with bank bills, drafts, promissory notes or other papers of the like character, if the plaintiff will receive them at their par value as cash, or if the officer can exchange them for cash at that value.

SEC. 3098. When real property has been levied upon, if the estate is less than a leasehold having two years of an unexpired term, the sale is absolute.

SEC. 3099. When the estate is of a larger amount, the property is redeemable as hereinafter prescribed.

APPRAISAL OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3100. Personal property levied upon and advertised for sale on execution must be appraised before sale by two disinterested householders of the neighborhood, one of whom shall be chosen by the execution debtor and the other by the plaintiff, or in case of the absence of either party, or if either or both parties neglect or refuse to make choice, the officer making the levy shall choose one or both, as the case may be, who shall forthwith proceed to return to said officer a just and true appraisement, under oath, of said property if they can agree; and in case they cannot agree, they shall choose another disinterested householder, and with his assistance they shall complete such appraisement, and the property shall not be sold for less than two-thirds of said valuation; provided, the same shall be offered for three successive days at the same place and hour of day as advertised, and if no offer equal to two-thirds the value thereof be made, then it shall be lawful to sell said property for one-half of said valuation.

REDEMPTION.

SEC. 3101. If the property sold is not subject to redemption, the sheriff must execute a deed therefor to the purchaser; but if the same is subject to redemption, he shall execute to such purchaser a certificate containing a description of the property and the amount of money paid by such purchaser, and stating that unless redemption is made within one year thereafter according to law, he or his heirs or assigns will be entitled to a deed for the same.

SEC. 3102. The defendant may redeem real property at any time within one year from the day of sale as herein provided, and will, in the meantime, be entitled to the possession of the property. But in no action where the defendant has taken an appeal from the circuit or district court, or stayed execution on the judgment, shall he be entitled to redeem.

Kramer v. Rebman, 9 Iowa, 114. A judgment creditor has a right to redeem real estate, purchased by him or by his attorney for his benefit, under execution, from the holder of a senior judgment lien, by complying with the provisions of the statute. Seevers v. Wood, Bacon & Co., 12 Id., 295.*

Where, after a judgment had attached as a lien upon real property, it was sold by the judgment debtor and by him conveyed by deed with covenants against incumbrances and of warranty, after which it was sold on execution issued upon the judgment, it was held, 1. That the judgment debtor had a right of redemption for one year from the date of the sale; 2. That the grantee also had a right of redemption as a subsequent purchaser. Harvey v. Spaulding et ux., 16 Id., 307.

To redeem from execution sale, the defendant must, within one year, pay the required amount of money into the clerk's office for the use of the persons entitled thereto. Webb v. Watson, 18 Id., 537.

If in good faith the defendant pays and the clerk receives, before the expiration of the time of redemption, an ordinary bank check, and especially of a bank situated in the town or place where the business is transacted, upon which he realizes the money, though after the expiration of the time, the money being ready to be paid to the holder of the certificate of sale promptly and without trouble to him, the payment is sufficient. Id.

In computing the time of redemption of real estate from execution, the first, or day of sale, is to be excluded and the right of redemption exists during and until the last moment of the same day of the succeeding year. Teacher & English v. Hiatt et al., 23 Id., 527.

A redemption of real property from sale on execution, effected by a sub-agent appointed by the agent, instead of by the agent himself, is valid if the act be afterward ratified by the principal. Id.

A purchaser of mortgaged lands, whose deed is recorded at the time of the institution of the action to foreclose will not be bound by the foreclosure proceedings unless he be made a party to the suit. But his right will be simply to redeem by payment of the mortgage debt. He will not be entitled to a judgment for possession. Porter v. Kitgore, 32 Id., 379.

A sale of real property, after the taking effect of the code of 1873, under a judgment rendered prior to that time, should conform to the law in force at the time the judgment was rendered, which gave the judgment debtor the right to elect whether the property should be appraised before the sale, or sold subject to redemption. Holland v. Dickerson, 41 Id., 367; Babcoek v. Gurney, 43 Id., 154; Fonda v. Clark, 43 Id., 300.

Where judgment was rendered after the code took effect, upon a debt contracted before that time, the sale should be conducted under the provisions of the code. Babcoek v. Gurney, 42 Id., 154; Fonda v. Clark, 43 Id., 300.

The fact that upon a sale of real estate on execution the sheriff has made a deed to the purchaser is a mere irregularity, which will not deprive the judgment debtor of his right to redeem. Olmstead v. Kellogg, 47 Id., 460.

When the debtor or his assignee redeems the land, it again becomes subject to sale for the satisfaction of any unpaid portion of the judgment under which the prior sale was made. Hayes v. Thode, 18 Id., 51.

But it does not become thus liable when the redemption is made by a lien holder. Id.

A junior mortgagee, having assigned the mortgage as collateral security for a debt of his own, may redeem the mortgaged premises from a sale made in the foreclosure of a senior mortgage; and such redemption will inure to the benefit of the assignee of the junior mortgage. Manning v. Markel, 19 Id., 163.

The refusal of the assignee to ratify the act of his assignor does not affect his rights in respect to such redemption. Id.

It seems that under this section, the objection that a redemption is made by a creditor before the expiration of six months from the date of sale, can be made only by the defendant or purchaser and not by a junior lien holder. Wilson v. Contkin, 22 Id., 462.

Where the purchaser of a junior judgment, but before the formal assignment thereof to him, and before the expiration of six months from the day of sale under execution on a prior judgment, intending to redeem, paid to the purchaser the amount of his claim, and took an assignment of the certificate of sale, it was held, that though his redemption might be informal, he was still entitled to be regarded in the light of a purchaser and holder of the certificate; and that to entitle a judgment creditor, whose lien was junior to his, to redeem, he would be required to pay such holder the amount of his certificate, as well as the amount of his judgment. Id.

Where P. recovered a judgment against Q. for the purchase money of the latter's homestead, and purchased the property at an execution sale thereon for less than the amount of the debt, and F. also recovered a judgment against Q. after the date of P. 's judgment, upon a claim alleged to antedate the acquisition of the homestead, it was held: 1. That F. could not show ante-date that the debt was contracted before the acquisition of the homestead; 2. That he was entitled to redeem from P. 's purchase upon payment of the amount of his bid. Phelps v. Finn, 45 Id., 447.
may redeem. A mortgagee may thus redeem before or after the debt secured by the mortgage falls due.\footnote{2}

Sec. 3103. Creditors having the right of redemption may redeem from each other within the time above limited, and in the manner herein provided.\footnote{3}

Sec. 3106. The terms of redemption in all cases, will be the reimbursement of the amount paid by the then holder, added to the amount of his own lien, with interest upon the whole at the rate of ten per cent per annum, together with costs, subject to the exception contained in the next section. But where a mortgagee whose claim is not yet due is the person from whom the redemption is thus to be made, a rebate of interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum must be made by such mortgagee on his claim.

Sec. 3107. When a senior creditor thus redeems from his junior, he is required to pay off only the amount of those liens which are paramount to his own, with the interest and costs appertaining to those lines.

Sec. 3108. The junior creditor may in all such cases prevent a redemption by the holder of the paramount lien by paying off the lien, or by leaving with the clerk beforehand the amount necessary therefor.

Sec. 3109. A junior judgment creditor may redeem from a senior judgment creditor, by paying to the party, the clerk, or the sheriff, if execution has issued, the full sum due, with interest and costs, and shall become thereby vested with the title to the judgment so redeemed.

Sec. 3110. If paid to the sheriff, he shall give to the party redeeming a certificate that he has paid such sum for the redemption of the judgment, describing it, which being presented to the clerk, he shall enter such redemption on the judgment docket, as he shall also do if the money is paid to himself.

Sec. 3111. Whenever a senior creditor redeems from a junior creditor, the latter may in return redeem from the former, and so on as often as the land is taken from him by virtue of a paramount lien.

Sec. 3112. After the expiration of nine months from the day of sale, the creditors can no longer redeem from each other except as hereinafter provided. But the defendant may still redeem at any time before the end of the year as aforesaid.

\footnote{2} Under this section, a mortgagee of lands has a right to redeem the same from a sale made on execution, although the liability secured by his mortgage be only a contingent one which may never ripen into a certainty. Crossen v. White, 19 Iowa, 109. Sections 3103 and 3104, apply to redemption from sales under execution simply, and have no application to one holding a mechanic's lien on real property which has been sold on a mortgage foreclosure, to which he was not made a party. Jones v. Hartsock, 43 Id., 147, 151.

\footnote{3} A junior judgment creditor who purchases and takes an assignment of the certificate of sale from his senior creditor, to whom the land has been sold, will be regarded as a redemption creditor within the meaning of the statute; and to entitle a creditor or lien holder junior to him to redeem the property from such sale, he must pay not only the amount for which it was sold, but also the amount of the other superior judgment liens held by the person thus holding the certificate of sale by assignment. Goode v. Cummings, 35 Iowa, 67.

The holder of a junior mortgage who is made defendant in an action to foreclose a senior mortgage, has the right to redeem after sale by paying the amount bid with interest within the time allowed by statute, notwithstanding the amount bid by the senior mortgagee at the sale is less than the amount of the mortgage debt. Tuttle et al. v. Dewey, 44 Id., 305.

Real estate which has been sold in part satisfaction of a judgment and redeemed by the judgment debtor does not become again subject in his hands to the lien of the judgment. (Overruling Crosby v. Elkader Lodge, 16 Iowa, 399; Clayton et al. v. Ellis et al., 50 Id., 590.)

The holder of an unsatisfied balance of a judgment cannot redeem from an execution sale made under the same judgment. Id.,

SEC. 3114. In case it is thus held by a redeeming creditor, his lien, and the claim out of which it arose, will be held to be extinguished, unless he pursues the course pointed out in the next section.

SEC. 3115. If he is unwilling to hold the property and credit the defendant therefor with the full amount of his lien, he must, within ten days after the nine months aforesaid, enter on the sale book the utmost amount that he is thus willing to credit on his claim.

SEC. 3116. Any unsatisfied lien creditor, within ten days after the expiration thus allowed to make the entry required in the last section, may redeem the property by paying the amount of the legal disbursements of the last holder as hereinbefore regulated, added to the amount thus entered on the sale book, together with interests and costs.

SEC. 3117. Such redemptioner shall also credit the defendant with the full amount of his lien, unless within ten days after redeeming as aforesaid, he likewise makes a like entry on the sale book, in which case any unsatisfied lien creditor may in like manner redeem within ten days as aforesaid, and so on until there are no more unsatisfied liens, or until the expiration of the year for redemption, the defendant having the final privilege of redeeming from the last redemptioner at the end of the year.

SEC. 3118. The mode of making the redemption is by paying the money into the clerk’s office for the use of the persons thereto entitled. The person so redeeming, if not defendant in execution, must also file his affidavit, or that of his agent or attorney, stating as nearly as practicable the amount still unpaid and due on his own claim.

SEC. 3119. The clerk shall thereupon give him a receipt for the amount paid, and the amount of the lien of the last redemptioner as sworn to by him.

1 Where a junior judgment creditor redeemed from a sale under a senior judgment, and filed with the clerk, within the time prescribed by the statute, a statement of the amount he was willing to credit on his judgment, which statement the clerk failed to enter upon the sale book until after ten days from the expiration of nine months after the day of sale, it was held, that the neglect of the clerk did not have the effect to invalidate the lien of the junior judgment. Craig et al. v. Alcorn, 46 Id., 560.

When the debtor has actual notice of the filing of the statement he can suffer no prejudice for want of constructive notice. Id.

No particular form of statement under this section is required to be filed by the junior lienholder, and it is sufficient if it indicate with clearness the amount he is willing to credit on his judgment. Id.

The provisions of this section, 3115, apply only to redemptions by creditors after the expiration of nine months from the day of sale. A redemption within that time may be sufficiently made by merely paying the necessary amount directly to the creditor or to the clerk. Goode v. Cummings, 35 Id., 67.

1 See Goode v. Cummings, 35 Iowa, 67, cited in notes to section 3115.

2 The payment to the clerk by bank check will be good payment in redemption. See Webb v. Watson, 18 Iowa, 537, cited in notes to section 3102, ante.

Whether the affidavit provided for in this section stating the amount due and unpaid on the claim of the party redeeming, is necessary to be filed by him before the expiration of nine months from the day of sale, dubitatur. Wilson v. Conklin, 22 Id., 452.

The usual mode of making redemption is by paying the money into the clerk’s office. Morgan v. Long, 29 Id., 434, 436.

The debtor or a lienholder may redeem by paying the amount of the bid with interest and costs. Hayes v. Thode, 18 Id., 51.

A junior lienholder cannot redeem from a prior judgment under which there has been no sale without paying the full amount due on the judgment. Id.
Sec. 3120. A creditor redeeming as above contemplated, is entitled to receive an assignment of the certificate issued by the sheriff to the original purchaser as hereinbefore directed.

Sec. 3121. When the property has been sold in parcels, any distinct portion may be redeemed by itself.

Sec. 3122. When the interests of several tenants in common have been sold on execution, the undivided portion of any or either of them may be redeemed separately.

Sec. 3123. The rights of the defendant in relation to redemption are transferable, and the assignee has the like power to redeem. If the defendant or his assignee fail to redeem, the sheriff must, at the end of the year, execute a deed to the person who is entitled to the certificate as hereinbefore provided, or to his assignee.

Sec. 3124. If the person entitled be dead, the deed shall be made to his heirs, but the property will be subject to the payment of the debts of the deceased in the same manner as if acquired during his lifetime.

Sec. 3125. The purchaser of real estate at a sale on execution, need not place any evidence of his purchase upon record until twenty days after the expiration of the full time of redemption. Up to that time, the publicity of the proceedings is constructive notice of the rights of the purchaser, but no longer.

Sec. 3126. Deeds executed by a sheriff in pursuance of the sales contemplated in this chapter, are presumptive evidence of the regularity of all previous proceedings in the case, and may be given in evidence without preliminary proof.

Sec. 3127. When real estate has been sold on execution, the purchaser thereof, or any person who has succeeded to his interest, may, after his estate becomes absolute, recover damages for any injury to the property committed after the sale and before possession is delivered under the conveyance.

Sec. 3128. The term "defendant" as herein used, is intended to designate the party against whom, and the term "plaintiff" the party in favor of whom, any execution is issued.

The right of redemption may be exercised by an assignee of the judgment debtor to the same extent as it could be by the assignor. Stoddard v. Forbes et al., 13 Iowa, 296.

The sheriff in office when a certificate of sale, made by his predecessor, is presented, is the proper officer to make the deed. A sheriff cannot execute a valid deed after his term of office has expired. Conger v. Converse, 9 Iowa, 554.

While, under this section a bona fide purchaser without notice, who takes title from the debtor to lands sold on execution after the twenty days mentioned therein, will be protected against the purchaser at such sale. One who thus purchases with actual notice, or one who purchases with a fraudulent intent to defeat the title of the purchaser at the execution sale will not be protected. Harrison v. Kramer, 3 Iowa, 541.

Where the sheriff gives to the purchaser a certificate of sale, and the right of redemption exists for one year, the proceedings are notice for one year and twenty days from the sale. Churchill v. More, 23 Id., 229, 234.

Delay in taking a sheriff's deed until more than twenty days after the time for redemption has expired will not avail one who has actual notice of the fact of sale. Walker v. Schreiber, 47 Id., 529.

A sheriff's deed is presumptive evidence of the regularity of all prior proceedings, and may be offered in evidence without preliminary proofs. Conger v. Converse, 9 Iowa, 564; Deere & Co. v. McConnell, 15 Id., 269, 272; Childs v. McCheaney, 20 Id., 431, 437.

It is presumed that a sheriff's sale was regularly conducted, and this presumption is not rebutted by the silence of the sheriff's deed as to whether the sale was made under an alias or a renditio exponas. Childs v. McCheaney, 20 Id., 431.

SEC. 3131. The sheriff, in acting upon an execution indorsed as provided in the last section, shall proceed as if the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or the personal representatives or heirs, were the only plaintiffs in execution, and take bonds accordingly.

SEC. 3132. Before making the indorsements named above, an affidavit shall be filed with the clerk by one of the plaintiffs or personal representatives, or heirs or their attorney, of the death of the defendant, and that the persons named as such are the personal representatives or heirs; and in the case of personal representatives, they shall file with the clerk a certificate of their qualification, according to law in this state.

SEC. 3133. The death of part only of the defendants, shall not prevent execution being issued, which, however, shall operate alone on the survivors and their property.

SEC. 3134. The defendant may move the court to quash an execution, on the ground that the personal representatives or heirs of a deceased plaintiff are not properly stated in the indorsement on the execution, and, during the vacation of the court, may obtain an injunction, upon its being made to appear that the persons named are not entitled to the judgment on which the execution was issued.

CHAPTER 3.

PROCEEDINGS AUXILIARY TO EXECUTION.

SECTION 3135. When execution against the property of a judgment debtor, or one of several debtors in the same judgment, has been issued from the district, circuit, or supreme court to the sheriff of the county where such debtor resides, or if he do not reside in the state, to the sheriff of the county where the judgment was rendered or transcript of a justice's judgment has been filed, and execution issued thereon is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, the owner of the judgment is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of such debtor.

* A levy of an execution after the death of the judgment debtor is invalid without the indorsement on the execution provided for by this section of the statute, and the sale thereunder will be enjoined on the application of the defendant. Meek v. Bunker, 33 Iowa, 169.

+ This section does not change the common law rule that execution cannot be issued after the decease of the judgment debtor, even though the judgment be rendered in an attachment proceeding and that a sale of land under an execution so issued is void. Welch v. Battern, 47 Iowa, 147.

See Meek v. Bunker, 33 Iowa, 169, cited in note to section 3130, ante.
Sec. 3136. The like order may be obtained at any time after the issuing of an execution, upon proof, by the affidavit of the party or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court or officer who is to grant the same, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment.

Sec. 3137. Such order may be made by the district or circuit court of the county in which the judgment was rendered, or to which execution has been issued, or in vacation by a judge thereof. And the debtor may be required to appear and answer before either of such courts or judges, or before a referee appointed for that purpose by the court or judge who issued the order, to report either the evidence or the facts.

Sec. 3138. The debtor, on his appearance, may be interrogated in relation to any facts calculated to show the amount of his property, or the disposition which has been made of it, or any other matter pertaining to the purpose for which the examination is permitted to be made. And the interrogatories and answers shall be reduced to writing and preserved by the court or officer before whom they are taken. All examinations and answers under this chapter shall be on oath, and no person shall, on such examination, be excused from answering any questions on the ground that his examination will tend to convict him of a fraud, but his answers shall not be used as evidence against him in a prosecution for such fraud.

Sec. 3139. Witnesses may be required by the order of the court or judge, or by subpoenas from the referee, to appear and testify upon any proceedings under this chapter in the same manner as upon the trial of an issue.

Sec. 3140. If any property, rights, or credits, subject to execution are thus ascertained, an execution may be issued and they may be levied upon accordingly. The court or judge may order any property of the judgment debtor not exempt by law, in the hands either of himself or any other person or corporation, or due to the judgment debtor, to be delivered up, or in any other mode applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment.

Sec. 3141. The court or judge may also, by order, appoint the sheriff of the proper county, or other suitable person a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor, and may also, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of the property of the judgment debtor, not exempt by law, or may forbid any interference therewith.

Sec. 3142. If it shall appear that the judgment debtor has any equitable interest in real estate in the county in which proceedings are had, as mortgagor, mortgagee, or otherwise, and the interest of said debtor can be ascertained as between himself and the person hold-

The purpose of these auxiliary proceedings is to obtain an order for the payment of the debt, and not alone to settle the right of the creditor to the application of the proceeds of a certain fund, Ex parte Grace, 12 Iowa, 208.

The provisions of this chapter, so far as it purports to confer upon the examining officer the power to order any property in the hands of himself or others to be delivered up and applied in satisfaction of the judgment under which the proceedings were had, and the further power to punish as for a contempt any disobedience of any order made by the acting officer in the premises, are repugnant to sections 9 and 10, of article 1, of the constitution, and therefore void. Id.

An order that an execution shall issue against a corporation, with a clause inserted therein, directing the officer to levy upon the property of certain stockholders, does not render such stockholders judgment debtors within the meaning of this chapter, and they cannot be compelled, after the return of the execution, to disclose property in the summary manner provided in this chapter. Sec. 3143. If the sheriff shall be appointed receiver, he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond for the faithful discharge of his duties as such.

Sec. 3144. The judge or referee acting under the provisions of this chapter, shall have power to continue his proceedings from time to time until they shall be completed.

Sec. 3145. Should the judgment debtor fail to appear after being personally served with notice to that effect, or should he fail to make full answers to all proper interrogatories thus propounded to him, he will be guilty of contempt, and may be arrested and imprisoned until he complies with the requirements of the law in this respect. And if any person, party or witness, disobey an order of the court or judge, or referee, duly served, such person, party, or witness may be punished as for contempt.

Sec. 3146. The order mentioned here shall be in writing and signed by the court or judge or referee making the same, and shall be served in the same manner as an original notice in other cases.

Sec. 3147. Sheriffs, referees, receivers, and witnesses, shall receive such compensation as is allowed for like services in other cases, to be taxed as costs in the case, and the collection thereof from such party or parties as ought to pay the same shall be enforced by an order.

Sec. 3148. Upon proof to the satisfaction of the court, or officer authorized to grant the order aforesaid, that there is danger that the defendant will leave the state, or that he will conceal himself, the said court or officer, instead of the order aforesaid, may issue a warrant for the arrest of the debtor, and for bringing him forthwith before the court or officer authorized to take his examination as hereinbefore provided. After being thus brought before the said court or officer, he may be examined in the same manner and with the like effect as is above provided.

Sec. 3149. Upon being brought before the court or officer th, may enter into an undertaking in such sum as the court or officer shall prescribe, with one or more sureties, that he will attend from time to time for examination before the court or officer as shall be directed, and will not, in the meantime, dispose of his property, or any part thereof; in default whereof he shall continue under arrest, and may be committed to jail on the warrant of such court or officer from time to time for safe keeping until the examination shall be concluded.

Equitable Proceedings.

Sec. 3150. At any time after the rendition of a judgment, an action by equitable proceedings may be brought to subject any property, money, rights, credits, or interest therein belonging to the defendant, to the satisfaction of such judgment. In such action, persons indebted to the judgment debtor, or holding any property or money which is in its essence a suit at law, a proceeding for contempt. Ex parte Grace, 12 Iowa, 208.
in which such debtor has any interest, or the evidences of sureties for the same, may be made defendants.

Sec. 3151. The answers of all defendants shall be verified by their own oath, and not by that of an agent or attorney, and the court shall enforce full and explicit discoveries in such answers by process of contempt; or upon failure to answer the petition, or any part thereof, as fully and explicitly as the court may require, the same, or such part not thus answered, shall be deemed true, and such order made or judgment rendered as the nature of the case may require.

Sec. 3152. In the case contemplated in the two preceding sections, a lien shall be created on the property of the judgment debtor, or his interest therein, in the hands of any defendant or under his control, which is sufficiently described in the petition, from the time of the service of notice and copy of the petition on the defendant holding or controlling such property or any interest therein.

Sec. 3153. The court shall enforce the surrender of the money or securities therefor, or of any other property of the defendant in the execution which may be discovered in the action, and for this purpose may commit to jail any defendant or garnishee failing or refusing to make such surrender until it shall be done, or the court is satisfied that it is out of his power to do so."

* The provisions of sections 3150 to 3153, inclusive, apply as well to equities of the debtor in real property as to moneys, choses in action and other personal property; but as to real property the remedy here provided is merely cumulative. Bridgman & Co. v. McKissick et al., 15 Iowa, 260.

The lien of a judgment attaches to an equitable interest in real property, and it may be subjected to the satisfaction of a judgment by apt proceedings in equity for that purpose, but cannot be thus subjected by proceedings at law. A junior judgment creditor, by first instituting proceedings in equity to subject the property to the payment of his debt, acquires a priority over the senior judgment creditor who is less diligent. Id.
TITLE XIX.

OF PROCEEDINGS TO REVERSE, VACATE OR MODIFY JUDGMENTS, OR THE PROCEEDINGS OF BOARDS OR INDIVIDUALS ACTING JUDICIALLY.

CHAPTER 1.

OF PROCEEDINGS TO REVERSE, VACATE, OR MODIFY JUDGMENTS IN THE COURTS IN WHICH RENDERED.

Section 3154. The district or circuit court in which a judgment has been rendered, or by which, or by the judge of which, a final order has been made, shall have power after the term at which such judgment or order was made to vacate or modify such judgment or order:

1. By granting a new trial for the cause within the time and in the manner prescribed by the sections on new trials;
2. By a new trial granted on proceedings against defendants served by publication only, as prescribed in title seventeen, chapter nine, section two thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven;
3. For mistake, neglect, or omission of the clerk, or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order;
4. For fraud practiced by the successful party in obtaining the judgment or order;
5. For erroneous proceedings against a minor or person of unsound mind, when the condition of such defendant does not appear in the record, nor the errors in the proceedings;
6. For the death of one of the parties before the judgment in the action;
7. For unavoidable casualty or misfortune preventing the party from prosecuting or defending;
8. For error in a judgment shown by a minor within twelve months after arriving at full age.*

* It is only an error of fact, committed by the trial court, in its own judgment that can be reviewed by a writ of error coram nobis. McKinney v. The Western Stage Co. 4 Iowa, 420.

An application to vacate a judgment in a case where the court had jurisdiction of the person and of the subject matter must be made within one year from the rendition of the judgment; and the same limit would apply if the proceedings were in the nature of an application under the chapter relating to new trials. Hunt v. Kendall v. Stevens et al., 26 Iowa, 399.

That a party intending to appear and defend in an action is, while on a journey attacked with a severe illness, and thereby rendered incapable of attending to and interposing his defense, which is shown to be a valid one, is good ground under sub-division seven of this section for the vacation of the judgment rendered by default against him. Lascomb v. Maloy, 26 Id., 444.

But the mere loss of a note, constituting a defense, is not sufficient to entitle a party to relief under sub-division seven, since he might avail himself of it as a defense by proving the loss and
SEC. 3155. Where the grounds for a new trial could not with reasonable diligence have been discovered before, but are discovered after the term at which the verdict, report of referee, or decision was rendered or made, the application may be made by petition filed as in other cases, not later than the second term after the discovery, on which notice shall be served and returned, and the defendant held to appear as in an original action. The facts stated in the petition shall be considered as denied without answer. The case shall be tried as other cases by ordinary proceedings, but no petition shall be filed more than one year after the final judgment was rendered.

The fact that service of process was had on the agent of an insurance company in another county than the one where the loss occurred does not constitute "fraud practiced by the successful party," authorizing a vacation of the judgment. Id.

It was held not sufficient ground for vacating a judgment that the agent served with notice of the action placed the notice in an envelope addressed to the general agent of the company, and placed the letter where he supposed it would be mailed, but which never reached the general agent, and who was accordingly, ignorant of the pendency of the suit, and judgment was rendered by default. Id.

To entitle a party to have a judgment vacated, either on the fourth or seventh grounds named in section 3154, he must prove due diligence on his part, as well as the existence of good cause. Miller v. Albaugh, 24 Id., 123.

The loss of all the written evidence on which a case has been tried, occurring after judgment and appeal to the supreme court, without fault on the part of the appellant, affords no ground for granting a new trial by the court below. Loomis v. McKenzie, 48 Id., 416.

Courts have power, independently of statute to supply any part of their record which may have been lost. In the exercise of their general equity powers they cannot grant relief by giving a new trial on account of lost evidence, even if the law affords a plain and direct remedy by permitting the substitution of lost evidence. Id.

To entitle a party to a new trial on the ground of surprise, he must show that he was prejudiced by the judgment rendered on the former trial, that he was prevented by reason of such accident or surprise from properly defending the action, and that he has material evidence which he could not, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced on that trial. Richards v. Nuckolls, 19 Iowa, 565.

In a proceeding for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, both the statute and the common law require proof of diligence to discover the evidence before the trial. Stuckeiger v. Mckenzie, 40 Id., 212.

Under this section the applicant for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence should be made by petition, as in an ordinary action. The First Nat. Bk. etc. v. Murdough, 40 Id., 26.

When it would be proper for a court of law to
SEC. 3156. The proceedings to correct mistakes or omissions of the clerk, or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order, shall be by motion served on the adverse party, or on his attorney in the action, and within one year; and when made to vacate a judgment because of irregularity in obtaining it, must be made on the second day of the succeeding term.

SEC. 3157. The proceedings to obtain the benefit of subdivisions four, five, six, seven, and eight of section three thousand one hundred and fifty-four, of this chapter, shall be by petition, verified by affidavit, setting forth the judgment or order, the facts or errors constituting a cause to vacate or modify it, and the facts constituting a defense to the action if the party applying was a defendant, and such proceedings must be commenced within one year after the judgment or order was made, unless the party entitled thereto be a minor or person of unsound mind, and then within one year from the removal of such disability.

SEC. 3158. In such proceedings the party shall be brought into court in the same way, on the same notice as to time, mode of service, and mode of return, and the pleadings shall be governed by the principles, and issues be made up by the same form, and all the proceedings conducted in the same way, as near as can be, as in original action by ordinary proceedings, except that defendant shall introduce no new cause, and the cause of the petition shall alone be tried.

A petition for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, if the application is made while the court has power to do so, is equally proper for a court of equity to decree a new trial when the application is based upon the ground of evidence discovered after the court of law ceased to have power to grant it.

Haskins v. Huttonback et al., 14 Id., 314.

When a party goes into a court of equity for relief after a trial at law, he must be able to impeach the justice and equity of the verdict, and it must be upon grounds that either could not be made available to him at law, or which he was prevented from setting up, by fraud, accident or the wrongful act of the other party, without any negligence or other fault on his part. When he brings himself within these requirements a court of equity will grant him a new trial in that court.

A petition for a new trial under this section must be filed and notice thereof served upon the opposite party or his attorney within one year from the date of the judgment or decree of the court in which the same was rendered.

Gray v. Conn et al., 49 Id., 424; Bond v. Epley, Id., 600.

The time within which the petition must be filed commences to run from the date of the decree in the trial court, and not from the date of the affirmance of the decree in the supreme court on appeal. Id.

Pending an application for a new trial made subsequent to the trial term, under this section, for newly discovered evidence, a change of venue may be granted upon a cause shown. Gibles v. Buckingham, 49 Id., 96.
CHAPTER 2.

OF APPELLATE PROCEEDINGS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

SECTION 3163. The supreme court has appellate jurisdiction over all judgments and decisions of all other courts of record, as well in case of civil actions as in proceedings of a special or independent character.

be made available on the trial of the merits, or after appeal.

After a cause has been appealed and is pending in the supreme court, the court below has no authority to make a nunc pro tunc order without notice to the other party.

Id.

In a proceeding under this section to vacate a judgment, it is necessary not only that the matters relied upon to excuse the failure to defend are sufficient, but that the facts set out as a defense shall be adjudged sufficient for that purpose.

Breuer v. Holborn, 34 Id., 473.

A decree of divorce may be vacated and set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, notwithstanding the rights of innocent third persons may have intervened.

The case of Gilruth v. Gilruth, 20 Id., 225, explained.

Id.

The provisions of section 3157, is directory merely, and a petition not verified confers jurisdiction on the court, which may give the plaintiff leave to amend so that the pleading shall comply with the statute.

Id.

The proceedings by which to obtain relief under the fourth subdivision of section 3154 is by petition verified by affidavit setting forth the judgment, etc.

Reno v. Teagarden, 24 Id., 144, 149.

Upon an application to vacate a judgment rendered by default, the court may first try the question of the validity of the defense, and if that shall appear insufficient the application should be overruled.

Miracle v. Lancaster, 46 Iowa, 179.

An appeal cannot be taken from the verdict of a jury.

Judgment must be first rendered thereon before an appeal will lie.

The abstract must show that final judgment has been rendered.

Shannon v. Scott, 40 Id., 629.

An appeal lies from a judgment in a garnishment proceeding, whether it is for or against the garnishee.

Bebb v. Preston, 1 Id., 469.

The principal defendant may appeal from the judgment against a garnishee.

Sinard v. Gleason, 19 Id., 185.

No appeal lies from a judgment rendered in
SEC. 3164. An appeal may also be taken to the supreme court from the following orders:
1. An order made affecting a substantial right in an action, when such order, in effect, determines the action and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken;
2. A final order made in special proceedings affecting a substantial right therein, or made on a summary application in an action after judgment;
3. When an order grants or refuses, continues or modifies a provisional remedy; or grants, refuses, dissolves, or refuses to dissolve an injunction or attachment; when it grants or refuses a new trial, or when it sustains or overrules a demurrer;
4. An intermediate order involving the merits and materially affecting the final decision;
5. An order or judgment on habeas corpus.

A proceeding for contempt. The First Congregational Church etc. v. Muscattie, 2 Id., 69. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from judgment rendered by default, or a decree pro confesso. Woodward v. Whitescarver et uz., 6 Id., 1; Harris v. Kramer, 3 Id., 543; Carr v. Kopp, Id., 80; Byington v. Crosshaut, 1 Id., 145.

So also an appeal will lie from a judgment by confession. Troxell v. Clark, 9 Id., 201; Edgar v. Greer, 7 Id., 136.

A person has no right of appeal until some question to which he was a party has been adjudicated by the court below. Phillips v. Shelton, 6 Id., 545; Borgathous v. The F. & M. Ins. Co. et al., 36 Id., 250; The State ex rel. Alderson v. Jones, 11 Id., 11.

An appeal lies from an order of the court below upon the admission, or exclusion of evidence. Pettv v. Durell, 4 G. Greene, 120.

An appeal may be taken from any decree rendered in a cause which finally determines any material issue between the parties, although another branch of the suit is still pending and undetermined. Lucas et al. v. Pickel et uz., 20 Id., 490.

Where a party takes a stay of execution under the statute, he waives his right to appeal. Seavest v. Newman, 19 Id., 323.

No appeal can properly be taken from a ruling which the court in effect subsequently changed, or set aside in the case. Thompson v. Burnham, 35 Id., 41.

An order of the district court refusing the district attorney the right to appear and defend in an action against the county, is erroneous, and he may prosecute an appeal in the name of the county from such order to the supreme court. Clark et al. v. Lyon County, 37 Id., 469.

An appeal may also be taken to the supreme court from an order or judgment on habeas corpus. An order of the district court refusing the right to appear and defend in an action against the county, is erroneous, and he may prosecute an appeal in the name of the county from such order to the supreme court. Clark et al. v. Lyon County, 37 Id., 469.

An appeal may be taken from an order of the court, appointing, or refusing to appoint, a receiver. Callanan et al. v. Shaw, 19 Id., 183.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal did not lie from an order of a circuit judge in vacation, dissolving an injunction. Alter if the order was made by the court in session. Jewett v. Squires, 30 Id., 92.

An appeal to the supreme court does not lie from a ruling of the court below upon the admission or exclusion of evidence. The ruling or order appealed from must extend to and affect the merits of the case; if it be merely incidental to the progress or trial of the cause, no appeal will lie. Richards v. Burden, 31 Id., 395.

An appeal from the final judgment in an action, brings up for review the intermediate rulings of the court which have been duly excepted to, and not otherwise waived. Jones v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 36 Id., 60.

While, under the statute, appeals are allowed from certain intermediate orders made in the progress of the cause, a failure to appeal therefrom does not operate as a waiver in respect thereto, but they are saved and may be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment, if duly excepted to. Id.

An appeal from an order requiring a bond for costs, is premature if taken before the expiration of the time for filing the bond. The D. M. V. Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Henderson, 38 Id., 446.

An appeal lies from an order discharging a garnishee. Bobb v. Preston, 1 Id., 490.

An appeal may be taken from an order granting a new trial. Nevell v. Sanford, 10 Id., 396; Caffrey v. Groom, 1 Id., 548.

order overruling a motion to set aside the verdict and quash the writ in a proceeding ad quod damnum. Burnham v. Thompson, 35 Id., 421.

An appeal will not lie from a ruling on a motion to suppress depositions. Baldwin v. Mayne, 40 Id., 687.

An appeal lies from an order of the court overruling a demurrer when the ruling involves the merits of the case, and the party at the time elects to stand on his demurrer, though no final judgment has been rendered. Cowen v. Boone et al., 43 Id., 350; Richards v. Burden, 31 Id., 305.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal did not lie from an order of a judge of the supreme court dissolving an injunction; nor under the code (§ 3165), would an appeal lie from such order, made prior to the taking effect of the code. The City of Davenport v. The D. & St. P. R. Co., 37 Id., 624; In re Curley, 34 Id., 184.

An appeal will lie from an order of the court refusing to strike a petition from the files. The First National Bank v. v. Gill & Co. et al., 50 Id., 425.

Where a cause is dismissed because of the non-appearance of the plaintiff, and judgment is rendered against him for costs, an appeal will not lie from such judgment. Striker v. Holtz, 50 Id., 291.

An appeal will lie from a final order, made in a special proceeding, and affecting a substantial right therein. Dryden v. Wyliss et al., 51 Id., 534.

Sec. 3165. If any of the above orders are made by a judge, the same is reviewable in the same way as if made by a court. 1

Sec. 3166. The court may also, in its discretion, prescribe rules for allowing appeals on such other intermediate orders or decisions as is deemed expedient, and for permitting the same to be taken and tried during the progress of the trial in the court below; but such intermediate appeals must not retard, proceedings in the court from which the appeal is taken.

Sec. 3167. A mistake of the clerk shall not be ground for an appeal until the same has been presented and acted upon by the court below. 1

Sec. 3168. A judgment or order shall not be reversed for an error which can be corrected on motion in an inferior court, until such motion has been made there and overruled. 1

Sec. 3169. The supreme court may review and reverse on appeal any judgment or order of the district or circuit court, although no motion for a new trial was made in such courts. 1

1 The supreme court will not reverse a cause because of a defect in the original notice or for any cause that may be corrected in the court below, until a motion has there been made and overruled. Van Vark v. Van Dam, 14 Iowa, 239; Bethel v. Bean, 39 Id., 582; Daniels & Co. v. Cloftin, 15 Id., 152; Berryhill v. Jacobs, 19 Id., 346; Same v. Same, 29 Id., 247; Finch v. Billings, 22 Id., 229; Triceb v. Shafter, 18 Id., 29; Decatur Co. v. Clemente, 58 Id., 538; Hunt v. Stevens et al., 25 Id., 261; Boyd v. Rutledge, 27 Id., 271; Dickey v. Harmon, 26 Id., 501; Webster v. The Cedar Rapids & St. P. R. Co., 27 Id., 315; Pratt v. Western Stage Co. Id., 363; Smith v. Parker, 28 Id., 339; Leonard v. Hallum, 17 Id., 564; Wile v. Wright, 32 Id., 451; Borghaltus v. The Farmer's & M's Ins. Co., 36 Id., 250; Grimes v. Hamilton County, 37 Id., 292; Holmes v. Hall, 45 Id., 177, 180; Smith v. Warren, 49 Id., 336.

The objections that a judgment is excessive, or that the petition does not state a cause of action will not be considered on appeal until a motion has been made to correct the same in the court below and there overruled. Webster v. Cedar R. & St. P. R. Co., 26 Id., 315.

1 Under this section it is not necessary to entitle a party to have reviewed, in the supreme court, the rulings of the court below, properly excepted to, that a motion for a new trial shall have been made and acted upon by the latter court. Presnell v. Herbert, 34 Id., 539; Drafahl v. Tuttle, 42 Id., 177.

While this section obviates the necessity of a motion for a new trial, it does not dispense with the necessity of excepting to the decision sought to be reviewed, and a judgment will not be reviewed by the appellate court unless it appears in the record that exception was taken thereto at the time of the rendition. Eason v. Gester.
Finding of facts; evidence certified.
Same, § 2.

SEC. 3170. Where a cause is tried by the court, it shall not be necessary in order to secure a review of the same in the supreme court that there should have been any finding of facts or conclusions of law stated in the record, but the supreme court shall hear and determine the same whenever it shall appear from a certificate of the judge, agreement of parties or their attorneys, or, in case the evidence consists wholly of written testimony, from the certificate of the clerk, that the transcript contains all the evidence introduced by the parties on the trial in the court below.

SEC. 3171. The cause shall be docketed as it was in the court below, and the party taking the appeal shall be called the appellant, and the other party the appellee.

SEC. 3172. The court may issue all writs and process necessary for the exercise and enforcement of its appellate jurisdiction.

SEC. 3173. Appeals from the district and circuit courts may be taken to the supreme court at any time within six months from the rendition of the judgment or order appealed from, and not afterward. But no appeal shall be taken in any cause in which the amount in controversy between the parties, as shown by the pleadings, does not exceed one hundred dollars, unless the trial judge shall certify that such cause involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court, but this limitation shall not affect the right of appeal in any cause in which is involved any interest in real property.

31 Id., 475; Root v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 29 Id., 102.

Where the case is tried by the court without a jury, it is not necessary to entitle a party to a review on appeal that there should be a finding of fact or conclusion of law upon the record. Drefahl v. Tuttle, 42 Id., 177.

This and the preceding section are not in conflict with section 4 of article 5 of the state constitution which provides that the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only in cases in chancery, and shall constitute a court for the correction of errors at law under such restrictions as the general assembly may prescribe. Coffin v. the City of Davenport, 26 Iowa, 515; Johnson v. Semple, 31 Id., 48.

Where the record does not show that all the evidence is before the appellate court and there is no finding of fact in the court below, the supreme court will not disturb the judgment on matters of fact. Van Riper v. Baker, 44 Id., 450, 452.

This section does not obviate the necessity of excepting to the decision nor of an assignment of errors in the appellate court. Eason v. Gester, 31 Id., 475; Root v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 29 Id., 102; Sisters of Visitation v. Glass, 45 Id., 154, 156.

This section applies to actions at law only, and has no application to proceedings in equity. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 47 Id., 594, 598.

There are at least three modes known to our law by which the supreme court can know that all the evidence introduced on the trial of a cause in the court below is before the appellate court, namely: first, by a bill of exceptions stating such fact; second, by certificate of the judge under section 2742; and third, certificate of judge, agreement of the parties or their attorneys, or certificate of the clerk under section 3170 of the code. Flesher v. Groves, 43 Id., 700, 701.

In all appeals to the supreme court the record must show that all of the evidence introduced and received in the court below is before the supreme court in the case. Davenport v. Eilts, 22 Id., 296; Winslow et al. v. Turner et al., 20 Id., 294; Lindsay v. Byington, 22 Id., 441; Waterell v. Goodrich, 1 Id., 583; Chambers v. Ingham, 25 Id., 522; Garner v. Pomroy, 11 Id., 140; Cook v. Waukee Co., 13 Id., 21; Van Orman v. Clarke et al., 16 Id., 186; Kellogg v. Kelsey, Id., 338; Ford v. Vance, 17 Id., 94; Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 379; Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Id., 56; Krappel v. Epperson, 24 Id., 176; Grant v. Grant, 46 Id., 476; Star v. The City of Burlington, 45 Id., 87; Wornly v. The DistrictTp. of Carroll, 45 Id., 696; Lillie v. Skinner, 46 Id., 329; Grant v. Crow, 47 Id., 632; Vinsant v. Vinsant, Id., 594; Flesher v. Groves, 48 Id., 700; Nice v. Weed, Id., 693; Lentzinger v. Hershey, 47 Id., 696; Kenny v. Pool, 41 Id., 700; Fuller v. Schwartz, Id., 711; Fitzgerald v. Daniels, 3 N. W. Reporter N. S., 108, 630; Walker v. Plummer, 41 Id., 697.
SEC. 3174. A part of several co-parties may appeal; but in such case they must serve notice of the appeal upon all the other co-parties and file the proof thereof with the clerk of the supreme court.  8  § 3177.

appeared to have been rendered, a motion for a new trial was interposed by the defendant, which was not decided until sometime after the close of that term, and within one year before the appeal was taken, and that the judgment was not in fact rendered until the motion was decided.  Kendall v. Lucas County, 28 Iowa, 395.

The right of appeal is governed by the provisions of the law in force at the time of the rendition of the judgment appealed from.  And under section 3173 of the code, no appeal lies to the supreme court where the amount in controversy is less than $100, unless the appellant shall procure a certificate from the trial judge to the effect that the case "involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court."  Rivers v. Cole, 38 Id., 677; Uplinger v. Kettering, 43 Id., 483; Snyser v. Trask, 40 Id., 689; Dean v. Taggart, Id., 688; Jeffries v. The Singer Mf. Co., Id., 702; Harrington v. Pierce, 38 Id., 269.

The supreme court does not acquire jurisdiction of a case on appeal where the amount in controversy is less than $100, by the certificate of the trial judge made after the adjournment of the term and more than two months after the rendition of the judgment.  Nicely v. Rogers, 39 Id., 441.  The certificate must be made at the time of the trial of the cause and made a part of the record. If the defeated party wishes the right of appeal in a cause involving less than $100, he should make his application for the proper certificate to the trial judge at the time of the decision of the case so that his right of appeal is apparent of record from the action of the trial judge. Sooners v. Fletcher, 40 Id., 705; Hinckfield et al. v. The First Nat. Bank, 39 Id., 699; Nicely v. Rogers, Id., 441.

The certificate required by this section of the code must state that the cause involves a question of law, etc., in order to confer jurisdiction upon the supreme court.  Kieruff v. Adams, 40 Id., 31.

But the particular question of law need not be stated in the certificate.  Fell v. The B. C. R. & M. R. Co., 43 Id., 177.

But now under the rules of the supreme court the certificate is insufficient unless it shows what the question is.  Storrier v. Henzie, 3 N. W. Rep., N. S., 292, 634; Wilson v. Iowa County, 13 W. Jur., 366; Wetz v. Austin, Id., 369; Sec. 12, Rules of Supreme Court, 43 Iowa, 691.

The certificate of the trial judge, in order to confer jurisdiction of the appeal, where the amount in controversy is less than $100, must be made at the term in which the cause was tried, otherwise the appeal will be dismissed.  Rose v. Wheeler, 12 W. Jur., 557; City of Independence v. Purdy, 48 Id., 675.

While the parties may stipulate that judgment may be entered in vacation as of the last preceding term, yet they cannot stipulate that a case involving less than one hundred dollars shall go to the supreme court on the certificate of the trial judge. The judge alone has power to determine that question under section 3173 of the code.  Fallan v. The District Tp. of Johnson, etc., 13 W. Jur., 365.

The right of appeal expires in six months from the rendition of the judgment, and this right is not revived by filing a petition for a new trial.  Carpenter v. Brown, 50 Iowa, 451.

Where the abstract recited that "the proper certificate of the judge for an appeal was signed at the time the judgment was rendered, and is on file with the papers of this case," it was held that the certificate was insufficient in not stating what question of law was involved.  Barnes v. Independent District No. 2, 51 Id., 700.

In computing the time in which an appeal may be taken, the day on which the judgment or decree was rendered is excluded, and the corresponding day of the last month in the time is included.  Carleton v. Byington, 16 Id., 588.

An appeal to the supreme court, from a judgment of the district or circuit court on a verdict, must be taken within six months from the rendition of the same.  Cohol v. A Ian, 57 Id., 449.

The time limited by statute within which appeals may be taken, in cases where intermediate rulings have been properly excepted to, is from the date of the final judgment instead of from the ruling of which complaint is made.  Jones v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 36 Id., 68.

It is not competent for the parties to stipulate that the judge render his decision in vacation and grant a certificate indicating a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court.  Fallen v. The District Tp. of Johnson, 51 Id., 206.

A certificate of the trial judge reciting that although the cause involved less than one hundred dollars it "involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court,* does not comply with the requirements of the rule of court relating thereto. It should state the question.  Wetz v. Austin, 51 Id., 342.

The supreme court has jurisdiction in a suit brought to vacate a judgment which with interest exceeds one hundred dollars.  Dryden v. Wyllis et al., 51 Id., 534.

* In an action brought by A. for the use of B. and others not named, the persons for whose use the action is brought are not parties, thereto in such a sense as will entitle them to appeal.  Fleming for the use &c. v. Mershon et al., 36 Iowa, 413.

Where one of several parties appeals to the supreme court, and serves notice of the appeal on his co-parties, they may join therein and avail themselves of all the benefits arising out of the appeal.  Barlow et al. v. Scott's Adm'r, 12 Id., 63.
SEC. 3175. If the other co-parties refuse to join, they cannot, nor can any of them, take an appeal afterwards; nor shall they derive any benefit from the appeal, unless from the necessity of the case.

SEC. 3176. Unless they appear and decline to join, they shall be deemed to have joined, and shall be liable for their due proportion of costs.

SEC. 3177. An appeal from part of an order, or from one of the judgments of a final adjudication, or from part of a judgment, shall not disturb or delay the rights of any party to any judgment, or part of a judgment, or order not appealed from, but the same shall proceed as if no such appeal had been made.

NOTICE AND FILING TRANSPTS.

SEC. 3178. An appeal is taken by the service of a notice in writing on the adverse party, his agent, or any attorney who appeared for him in the case in the court below, and also upon the clerk of the court wherein the proceedings were had, stating the appeal from the same, or from some specific part thereof, defining such part.

SEC. 3179. An appeal shall not be perfected until the notice thereof has been served upon both the party and the clerk, and the clerk paid or secured his fees for a transcript; whereupon the clerk shall forthwith transmit by mail, express, or messenger, not a party nor the attorney of a party, a transcript of the record in the cause, or so much thereof as the appellant in writing in the notice has directed, to which shall be appended copies of the notices of appeal, and of the supersedeas bond if any.

SEC. 3180. The notice of appeal must be served at least thirty days, and the cause filed and docketed at least fifteen days before the first day of the next term of the supreme court, or the same shall not then be tried unless by consent of parties. If the appeal is taken less than thirty days before the term, it must be so filed and docketed before the next succeeding term.

9 Where notice of appeal by one defendant is served upon a co-defendant he will be held to have joined in the appeal, unless he appears in the appellate court, and refuses to do so. Engleken v. Webber et al., 47 Iowa, 558.

10 An appeal from a decision of the court below to the supreme court is fully effected by the service of a notice of appeal on the clerk and adverse party within the time limited in the statute, and it is not necessary that such notice be filed with, or marked "filed" by, the clerk within that time. Baldwin v. Tuttle, 23 Iowa, 66. See also, Carpenter v. Parker, 23 Id., 450; Pratt v. W. Stage Co., 26 Id., 241.

Where a verbal notice of appeal from the judgment of a court of contest in a contested election case, was given at the time the judgment was rendered, and thereupon the parties entered into a new agreement respecting the custody of the ballot-box, it was held, that the appeal should not be dismissed for insufficiency of notice. Whether verbal notice of appeal, unaccompanied by other action would be good, quere. McIntosh v. Livingston, 41 Id., 219.

Service of notice of appeal upon the wife of the adverse party does not comply with the requirements of the statute, and is insufficient. Draper v. Taylor, 47 Id., 407.

The notice of the appeal cannot be served by a party to the action. Id. See also, Marion County v. Stanfield, 8 Id., 406. Sec, also, rule 32 of the supreme court.

Irregularity in taking an appeal, or in giving notice thereof, is waived by a voluntary appearance on the part of the appellee. Wilgus v. Gettings, 19 Id., 82.

11 It is the duty of the appellee to see that the transcript in a cause appealed embraces all the papers therein, which are necessary to a clear understanding of the ruling to which exception is taken. When the facts are found by the court, with the conclusions of the law based thereon, and no exception is taken to the finding of facts, it is not necessary to incorporate the pleadings in the transcript. Hall v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 584.

An appeal will not be dismissed or a judgment affirmed, on motion, on the alleged ground that the case is not triable de novo in the supreme court. White & Smith v. Savery et al., 49 Id., 197.
SEC. 3181. If the appellant fails to file a transcript and have the cause docketed as provided in the preceding section, or fails to file at the time the transcript should be filed, the certificate of the clerk of the inferior court, stating when he was served with notice, and that he has not had sufficient time to prepare the transcript, the appellee may file a certified copy of the judgment or order appealed from, and of the notice served on such clerk, and, on motion, have the appeal dismissed or the judgment or order appealed from affirmed.

SEC. 3182. If the transcript has been sent up, but the appellant does not file the same when the same should be filed as herein provided, the appellee may file the same, and may, on motion, have the appeal dismissed or the judgment affirmed, as the court, from the circumstances of the case, shall determine.

(Chapter 56, Laws of 1874.)

IN RELATION TO APPEALS TO THE SUPREME COURT.

An Act to amend sections 3181 and 3182 of the code of 1873 [Title XIX., chapter 2: "Of appellate proceedings in the supreme court].

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That no appeal to the supreme court of the state shall be dismissed or judgment of court below affirmed because the said cause was not docketed or transcript filed in supreme court, if it be made to appear that an appeal was taken in good faith and not for delay, or if, from the conduct of appellee or his counsel, appellant was induced to believe no motion to dismiss or affirm would be made.

SEC. 3183. If the transcript being filed, errors are not assigned and filed with the clerk of the supreme court, and a copy of the same served on the appellee or his attorney ten days before the first day of the trial term, the appellee may have the appeal dismissed or the judgment or order affirmed, unless good cause for the failure be shown by affidavit.

SEC. 3184. In an action by ordinary proceedings, and in an action by equitable proceedings, tried in whole or in part on oral testimony, all proper entries made by the clerk, and all papers pertaining to the cause and filed therein, except subpoenas, depositions, and other papers

R. § 3512.

Under this section the appellee cannot have the judgment affirmed where the notice of appeal was not served on the clerk and appellee within fifteen days of the term, though the supersedeas bond was filed that length of time before. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 26 Iowa, 241.

It seems that under sections 3181 and 3182 of the code, an appellee may in proper cases have an affrmance by showing that the clerk has been served in time with notice of appeal, without showing the service of such notice on the appellee. Id.

The mere filing of a supersedeas bond does not amount to the taking of an appeal; nor should the clerk recall an execution until notice of appeal is served. Id.

The failure to file a transcript does not constitute ground for dismissing the appeal, unless the appellee shall have indicated to the appellant a wish that it be filed, and he then fails or neglects, without sufficient excuse, to file it. White & Smith v. Savery, 49 Id., 197.

A failure to file a transcript will not necessarily cause a dismissal of the appeal. White & Smith v. Savery, 49 Iowa, 197, 199.

An appeal will be dismissed on motion, if the assignment of errors is not served on the appellee ten days before the first day of the trial term. Whether it must be filed with the clerk previous to the day for the hearing of which the cause is assigned, quere. Ind. Dist. of Crocker v. Ind. Dist of Ankeney, 48 Id., 206. See, also, Berryhill v. Keilmeyer, 33 Id., 20; Rule 24 of supreme court.

The supreme court will not review on appeal the action of the court below on the facts in an equity action, where it does not appear that all of the evidence on which the case was heard is contained in the record. Dove v. The I. S. D. of Keokuk, 41 Id., 689.

The supreme court in a hearing de novo will pay no regard to the finding of facts in the lower court, or by a referee. And no exceptions to the findings or rulings are necessary, nor need a motion for a new trial be made. Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 379; Cooper v. Skeel et al., 14 Id., 578; Vannice v. Bergin, 16 Id., 555, 559; O'Conner v. O'Conner, 15 Id., 303; Rindskoff v. Lyman, 16 Id., 260; Clarke v. Larson, 9 Id., 581; Blake v. Blake, 13 Id., 40; Hackworth v. Zollers, 90 Id., 492; Chambers v. Ingham, 25 Id., 225; Molly v. Molly, 31 Id., 60.

The supreme court will not review the finding of the lower court upon the sufficiency of the service of notice by publication in an equitable action when the record does not show that it embraces all the evidence touching the publication which was submitted to the court below.

Where an answer in an action at law sets up both legal and equitable defenses upon which issues are formed, the case will, on appeal to the supreme court, be considered as in equity, and be determined according to the rules applicable to equity cases. Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476.

Under the rules of the supreme court equity cases are triable de novo, not only the pleadings and other papers in the case should be certified, but also the evidence, in its original form, upon which the case was tried below. The State v. Orwig, 27 Id., 528; Blake v. Blake, 13 Id., 40; Van Orman v. Spofford et al., 16 Id., 186; Kellogg v. Kelsey, Id., 388; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, Id., 141; Malloy v. In order that the cause may be tried de novo, not only the pleadings and other papers in the case should be certified, but also the evidence, in its original form, upon which the case was tried below. The State v. Orwig, 27 Id., 528; Winslow et al. v. Farmer, 20 Id., 294; Moon v. Moon, 19 Id., 130.

Under the rules of the supreme court equity cases are triable in that court upon the printed abstract, and the evidence in its original form is not consulted, except in cases of a difference of abstracts, when an amended one is filed. Austin v. Bremer County, 44 Id., 155.

Equity cases only are triable de novo on appeal in the supreme court; in all other cases the trial is confined to legal errors properly presented. Dove v. The I. S. D. of Keokuk, 41 Id., 689.

The supreme court in a hearing de novo will pay no regard to the finding of facts in the lower court, or by a referee. And no exceptions to the findings or rulings are necessary, nor need a motion for a new trial be made. Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 379; Cooper v. Skeel et al., 14 Id., 578; Vannice v. In the trial of chancery cases the supreme court will consider only the issues and evidence presented in the court below; and evidence will not be originally received and considered in the supreme court. McGregor v. Gardner, 16 Id., 535.

Sec. 3185. The appellant shall file a perfect transcript, and to that end the clerk of the court below must, at any time on his suggestion of the diminution of the record and on the payment of fees, certify up any omitted part of the record, according to the truth, as the same appears in his office of record; and such applicant shall not be entitled to any continuance in order to correct the record, unless it shall clearly appear to the court that he is not in fault. Subject to which requirement, either party may, on motion before trial day, obtain an order on the clerk below, commanding him to transmit at once to the supreme court a true copy of such imperfect or omitted part of the record as shall be in general terms described in the affidavit or order. Such motion must be supported by affidavit, unless the diminution be apparent or admitted by the adverse party, and must not be granted unless the court is satisfied that it is not made for delay.\(^1\)

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

Sec. 3186. An appeal shall not stay proceedings on the judgment or order, or any part thereof, unless the appellant shall cause to be executed before the clerk of the court which rendered the judgment or order, by one or more sufficient sureties to be approved by such clerk, a bond to the effect that the appellant shall pay to the appellee all costs and damages that shall be adjudged against the appellant on the appeal; also that he will satisfy and perform the judgment or order appealed from in case it shall be affirmed, and any judgment or order which the supreme court may render, or order to be rendered by the inferior court, not exceeding in amount or value the original judgment or order, and all rents, or damages to property during the pendency of the appeal out of the possession of which the appellee is kept by reason of the appeal. If the bond is intended to stay proceedings on only a part of the judgment or order, it shall be varied so as to secure the part stayed alone. When such bond has been approved by the clerk, and filed, he shall issue a written order commanding the appellee and all others to stay proceedings on such judgment or order, or on such part as is superseded as the case may be. No appeal or stay shall vacate or affect the judgment appealed from.\(^2\)

Sec. 3187. In cases wherein the appellant has perfected his appeal to the supreme court, and the clerk of the district or circuit court has unjustly refused to approve the appeal bond offered, or makes the penalty therein too large, or the conditions thereof unjust, the appellant may move the supreme court if in session, or in its vacation, on such written notice to the appellee as the judge may prescribe, may move any judge thereof to determine the conditions, fix the penalty, and approve the appeal bond. The motion, verified by the affidavit of the appellant or his attorney, shall contain a brief statement of the nature of the action in which the appeal was taken, of the judgment or order appealed from, of the steps taken by the appellant with reference to his appeal, and of his giving, or offering to give, an appeal bond, of the action of the clerk of the court below with reference to such bond, and wherein he has acted wrongfully; and if the supreme court, or any judge thereof, considers that the clerk has made unjust conditions in the bond, or the penalty thereof too high, or has wrongfully refused to approve the same, such court or judge shall issue an order prescribing the conditions of the appeal bond, fixing the penalty thereof, and either approve it or direct the clerk of the supreme court so to do, which bond shall be filed with the officer last named. The supreme court, or judge thereof, may order that all or any part of the papers and records in the cause appealed, or certified copies thereof, be produced on the hearing of such motion, and pending the disposition thereof, may make an order staying the enforcement of the judgment or order appealed from, and on such terms as are just. The order, if made by the judge, shall be in writing and signed by him, and upon the service thereof, or of a certified copy, when made in court, upon the clerk of the court below, all proceedings in the court appealed from shall be stayed, and all orders, processes, executions, or other papers issued therefrom shall be recalled, and the appellant be placed in the same condition that he was when the judgment or order appealed from was made or rendered.

\(^2\) The filing of an appeal bond, without the service of a notice of appeal, at least upon the clerk, will not stay proceedings on the judgment. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 26 Iowa, 241.

And where an appeal is taken by the service of notice of appeal, but no bond filed, proceedings on the judgment will not be stayed by the appeal. Phillips v. Germon, 43 Id., 101, 102.

Sec. 3188. If the appellee believe the bond defective, or the sureties insufficient, he may move the supreme court if in session, or in its vacation, on ten days written notice to the appellant, may move any judge of said court, or the judge of the court below where the appeal was taken, to discharge the bond, and if the court or such judge shall consider the sureties insufficient, or the bond substantially defective in securing the rights of the appellee, the court or such judge shall issue an order discharging such bond, unless a good bond, with sufficient sureties, be executed by a day by him fixed. The order, if made by a judge, shall be in writing and signed by him; and upon his filing, or the filing of a certified copy of the order when made in court, in the office of the clerk of the inferior court, execution and other proceedings for enforcing the judgment or order may be taken if a new and good bond is not filed and approved by the day as aforesaid.

Sec. 3189. But another order staying proceedings may be issued by the clerk, upon the execution before him of a new and lawful bond with sufficient sureties as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 3190. If the judgment or order is for the payment of money, the penalty shall be in at least twice the amount of the judgment and costs. If not for the payment of money, the penalty shall be sufficient to save the appellee harmless from the consequences of taking the appeal. But it shall in no case be less than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 3191. The taking of the appeal from a part of a judgment or order, and the filing of a bond as above directed, does not cause a stay of execution as to any part of the judgment or order not appealed from.

Sec. 3192. If execution has issued prior to the filing of the bond above contemplated, the clerk shall countermand the same.
SEC. 3193. Property levied upon and not sold at the time such countermand is received by the sheriff, shall forthwith be delivered up to the judgment debtor.

TRIAL—JUDGMENT.

SEC. 3194. The supreme court may reverse or affirm the judgment or order below, or the part of either appealed from, or may render such judgment or order as the inferior court or judge should have done, according as it may think it proper. 1

SEC. 3195. The supreme court, where it affirms the judgment, shall also, if the appellee moves therefor, render judgment against the appellant and his sureties on the bond above mentioned for the amount of the judgment, damages, and costs referred to therein, in case such damages can be accurately known to the court, without an issue and trial.

SEC. 3196. Upon the affirmation of any judgment or order for the payment of money, the collection of which in whole or part has been superseded by bond as above contemplated, the court shall award to the appellee damages upon the amount superseded; and, if satisfied by the record that the appeal was taken for delay only, must award such

It is competent for the supreme court, in reversing a judgment, to order that the new trial shall extend only to defendant's cross-action, in connection with which the error occurred, and that the judgment establishing the plaintiff's claim remain undisturbed. McAlIerty v. Hole, 24 Iowa, 355.

Where a judgment of the court below, rendered upon a special finding of facts by that court, is appealed to and reversed by the supreme court, upon the sole ground that the law upon the facts thus found is with the appellant, and the cause is remanded, with directions to the court below that further proceedings be had therein not inconsistent with the opinion of the supreme court, the appellant is entitled to judgment upon the finding of facts in the court below, and not in the new trial as the court above might constitute a bar of the appeal. McIAlerty v. Hole, 24 Iowa, 355.

The supreme court, in reversing a judgment appealed from, may render such judgment or order upon the facts, as the court below should have rendered. Gilmore & Smith v. Ferguson & Cassell, 28 Id., 422.

The supreme court, in a habeas corpus proceeding for the custody of a child, it was possible that the judgment of the court below might constitute a bar to the plaintiff's right to the custody of the child at a future time, the supreme court, under the power given in this section, modified the judgment so that the plaintiff would not be thus deprived of her opportunity to finally submit the case to the Court of Chancery. Payne v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 47 Id., 595.

In equity causes the supreme court has complete and final jurisdiction to render such a decree as it may deem proper in the case. McGregor v. Gardiner, 16 Id., 538.

On reversing a judgment appealed from may, in a law action, render such judgment or order, upon the facts as the court below should have rendered. Gilmore & Smith v. Ferguson & Cassell, 28 Id., 422.

The supreme court has no general original jurisdiction, and cannot order that an appellee shall proceed no further with a cause. An appellee who deems that the appellee has, pending the appeal, deprived himself of his rights thereunder, has the alternative of dismissing his appeal, or to finally submit it on the merits. Simanson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 48 Id., 19.

Where the court, in his instructions to the jury, follows the rule of law announced in the plaintiff's petition, and the latter fails to ask an instruction announcing a different and the true rule, he cannot avail himself of the error on appeal. Briscoe v. Reynolds, 51 Id., 673.

Where the evidence is conflicting, and the court below which heard the evidence, had full opportunity for observing the manner and appearance of the witnesses, has overruled appellant's motion for a new trial, based on the insufficiency of the evidence, the supreme court will not interpose, the presumption being that the jury and the court below correctly decided upon the credibility of the witnesses, and found according to the weight of the evidence. Snyder v. Eldridge, 31 Id., 129; Brookman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 183; Hertshick v. Hazeltick, 18 Id., 414; Donaldson v. The M. & M. R. Co., 15 Id., 250; *Pifner v. sum as damages, not exceeding fifteen per cent thereon, as shall effectually tend to prevent the taking of appeals for delay only."

SEC. 3197. If the supreme court affirm the judgment or order, it may send the cause to the court below to have the same carried into effect, or it may itself issue the necessary process for this purpose and direct such process to the sheriff of the proper county, as the party may require.

SEC. 3198. If, by the decision of the supreme court, the appellant becomes entitled to a restoration of any part of the money or property that was taken from him by means of such judgment or order, either the supreme court or the court below may direct execution or writ of restitution to issue for the purpose of restoring to such appellant his property or the value thereof.

SEC. 3199. Property acquired by a purchaser in good faith under a judgment subsequently reversed, shall not be affected by such reversal.

SEC. 3200. The supreme court shall have power to enforce its mandates upon inferior courts and officers by fine and imprisonment, which imprisonment may be continued until obeyed.

SEC. 3201. If a petition for rehearing be filed, the same shall suspend the decision, if the court, on its presentation, or one of the judges, if in vacation, shall so order, in either of which case such decision shall be suspended until the next term.

SEC. 3202. The petition for rehearing shall be the argument of the applicant therefor, and if the court think that such argument requires a reply, it shall so indicate to the other party, and he may make reply within such time as said court shall allow, and with a view to a rehearing, and he has, pursuant to an order of court, paid it over to another, the summary remedy provided by section 3198 of the code cannot properly be administered, and the party is left to his ordinary remedy. Hunschild v. Stratford, 27 Id., 301. See also, Lombard v. Atwater, 46 Id., 501.

It is not necessary that a procedendo should issue to give the court below jurisdiction, but if the case is re-docketed upon service of proper notice, the case will stand for re-trial. Becker v. Becker et al., 50 Id., 139.

A purchase of land at sheriff's sale by the plaintiff in execution or his attorney, with actual knowledge of a pending appeal, is at the peril of the purchaser; and the party or his attorney thus buying, is not a bona fide purchaser within the meaning of section 3199. Twogood v. Franklin, 27 Iowa, 239.

Where property, taken under a judgment from which an appeal has been taken without the filing of a superseded bond, and which is afterwards reversed, has by voluntary sale, or by seizure and sale under process, passed to an innocent purchaser pending the appeal, or where money collected under such judgment is received by one occupying a fiduciary capacity, as by an administrator, and he has, pursuant to an order of court, paid it over to another, the summary remedy provided by section 3198 of the code cannot properly be administered, and the party is left to his ordinary remedy. Hunschild v. Stratford, 27 Id., 301. See also, Lombard v. Atwater, 46 Id., 501.

Whether the purchaser at an execution sale takes the estate charged with the equities and secret trusts which may exist against the judgment debtor, query. Parker v. Pierce, 16 Iowa, 227.

A purchaser at sheriff's sale takes the land purchased, discharged of any claim of title, whether arising under an unregistered deed or a mere equity, of which he had no notice at the time of the purchase, and which would be invalid against an ordinary purchaser, and this principle applies both at law and in equity. Per Dillon, J. in Vannice v. Bergen, 1d., 555.

Where, after a procedendo has been issued from the supreme court, and a petition for a rehearing was filed within sixty days, it was held that the cause could not be transferred to the federal court upon the filing of a petition therefore and bond in the court below, in accordance with the requirements of the act of Congress, pending the action of the supreme court on the petition for rehearing. McKinley v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 314.
ing the court may extend the suspension of proceeding yet farther, if need be."

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 3203. The clerk shall docket the causes as the same are filed in his office, and shall arrange and set a proper number for trial, for each day of the term, placing together those from the same judicial district, and shall cause notice of the manner he has set such causes to be published and distributed in such manner as the court may direct.

SEC. 3204. The court shall hear all the causes docketed, when not continued by consent, or for cause shown by the party, and the party may be heard orally or otherwise, in his discretion.

SEC. 3205. No cause is decided until the opinion in writing is filed with the clerk.

SEC. 3206. If remanded to the inferior court to be carried into effect, such decision and the order of the court thereon, being certified thereto and entered on the records of the court, shall have the same force and effect as if made and entered during the session of the court in that district.

SEC. 3207. An assignment of error need follow no stated form, but must, in a way as specific as the case will allow, point out the very error objected to. Among several points in a demurrer, or in a motion, relied on as an error, and the court will only regard errors which are such decision and the order of the court thereon, being certified thereto or instructions, or rulings in an exception, it must designate which is effect as if made and entered during the session of the court in that district.

SEC. 3208. Where an assignment of error is general and fails to comply with the requirements of the statute, it will not be noticed by the supreme court. Arnold v. Arnold, 20 Id., 279, 276.

Where the overruling of a motion for a new trial, based upon several distinct grounds, is assigned as error, the assignment should specify the very error relied upon by the appellant. Reilly v. Ringland, 44 Id., 422; Morris v. C., B. & Q. R. Co., 45 Id., 29; Benton v. Nichols, 47 Id., 698.

While an assignment of error need follow no specified form, it must nevertheless, point out in a manner as specific as possible the very error objected to. An assignment in the words: "The court erred in rendering judgment for the appellee," was held insufficient. Tombin v. Ball, 46 Id., 190.

An assignment of error must specify which of several points in a motion for a new trial is relied upon as constituting the error which vitiates the judgment. Oschner v. Schunk, 46 Id., 293.

An assignment of error in the form that the court erred in overruling appellants motion for a new trial is not specific enough to comply with the requirements of section 3207 of the code, and will be disregarded by the supreme court.

All petitions for rehearing must be printed as required by sections 97, 99 and 99 of the rules of the supreme court, and a copy must be delivered to the attorney of the adverse party, and if there be more than one, to the attorney of each, and ten copies to the clerk of the supreme court. No 93, Rules of Supreme Court.

*b The assignments of error were as follows: "1. The court erred in admitting improper and incompetent testimony. 2. There was error in the instruction to the jury." Held, that under the revision, Sec. 3546, the assignments were too general and should be disregarded. Hawes v. Tewgood, 12 Iowa, 582.

The supreme court will not regard an assignment of error which does not point out the particular point, or points claimed to be erroneous specifically and with the exactness required by the statute. Peck v. Hendershott, 14 Id., 40; Brewington v. Swan, 1 Id., 12.

*Where the bill of exceptions contained a large amount of evidence and cross examination, and the assignment was "that there was error in allowing the cross examination, and the introduction of evidence, and the overruling of plaintiff's objections, as set forth in bill of exceptions, No. 1," it was held, that the assignment was not sufficiently specific. Wilson v. Hillhouse, 14 Id., 199.

SEC. 3208. All motions must be entered in the motion book, and shall stand over till the next morning after the morning on which entered, and till after having been publicly called by the court, unless the parties otherwise agree, and the adverse party shall be deemed to have notice of such motion.

SEC. 3209. Where a view of an original paper in the action may be important to a correct decision of the appeal, the court may order the clerk of the court below to transmit the same, which he shall do in some safe mode to the clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold the same subject to the control of the court.

SEC. 3210. The appellant may be required to give security for costs under the same circumstances as those in which plaintiffs in civil actions in the inferior court may be so required.

SEC. 3211. The death of one or all of the parties shall not cause the proceedings to abate, but the names of the proper persons shall be substituted, as is provided in such cases in the district and circuit court, and the case may proceed. The court may also, in such case, grant a continuance when such a course will be calculated to promote the ends of justice.

SEC. 3212. Where appellant has no right, or no further right to prosecute the appeal, the appellee may move to dismiss the appeal, and if the grounds of the motion do not appear in the record, or by a writing purporting to have been signed by the appellant and filed, they must be verified by affidavit.

SEC. 3213. The appellee may, by answer filed and verified by himself, agent, or attorney, plead any facts which render the taking of the appeal improper or destroy the appellant’s right of further prosecuting the same, to which answer the appellant may file a reply, likewise verified by himself, his agent, or attorney and the questions of law or fact therein shall be determined by the court.

SEC. 3214. The service of all notices of appeal, or in any way growing out of such rights or connected therewith, and all notices in the supreme court, shall be in the way provided for the service of like notices in the circuit or district court, and they may be served by the same person and returned in the same manner, and the original notice of the appeal must be returned immediately after service to the court. Richardson v. McCormack, 47 Id., 80; McCormack v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., Id., 345.

An assignment of error reciting that, “The court erred in refusing to set aside the verdict, and in not rendering judgment for plaintiffs,” is not sufficiently specific. Bardwell v. Clare, 47 Id., 297.

An assignment of error that “The court erred in giving each of the instructions on its own motion,” is too general to be regarded in the supreme court. Moffatt v. Fisher, Id., 474.

An assignment of errors should show affirmatively that the party appealing was in some manner prejudiced by the rulings or decision appealed from. Brevington v. Patton, 1 Id., 721.

Errors assigned but which are not presented in argument, will not be considered by the supreme court. Snyder v. Eldridge et al., 31 Id., 129; Shaw v. Brown, 13 Id., 508; Wilson v. Hillhouse, 14 Id., 199.

A party cannot be heard on appeal to assign error in the admission of evidence based upon a ground other than that assigned when the evidence was admitted. The Iowa Homestead Company v. Duncombe, 51 Iowa, 525.

Error cannot be predicated upon the admission of evidence, when the fact which it was introduced to establish is proved by other evidence introduced afterward without objection. Id.

A party cannot accept the benefits of an adjudication and afterwards appeal therefrom. M. & M. R. Co. v. Brinton, 14 Iowa, 572; The Ind. Dist. of Altoona v. The Dist. Tp. of Delaware, 44 Id., 201.

office of the clerk of the district or circuit court where the suit is pending. 4

Sec. 3215. Executions from the supreme court shall be the same as those from the district or circuit court and attended with the same consequences, and shall be returnable in the same time.

CHAPTER 3.

OF CERTIORARI.

Sec. 3216. The writ of certiorari may be granted whenever specially authorized by law, and especially in all cases where an inferior tribunal, board, or officer exercising judicial functions is alleged to have exceeded his proper jurisdiction, or is otherwise acting illegally, when in the judgment of the superior court there is no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. 5

Sec. 3217. The writ may be granted by the district or circuit court, or, in vacation, by a judge or clerk thereof, but if to be directed to either of such courts or judges, then by the supreme court, or, in vacation, by a judge thereof, and shall command the defendant therein to certify fully to the court from which the same issues, at a specified time and place, a transcript of the records and proceedings, as well as the facts in the case, describing or referring to them, or any of them, with convenient certainty, and also to have then and there the writ. 6

4 Service of notice of appeal upon the wife of the adverse party does not comply with the requirements of this section, and is insufficient. Draper v. Taylor, 47 Iowa, 407.

* A judgment in the county court for damages sustained by the complainant, by the removal of a road away from his property, should, under the revision, be taken to the district court by appeal, and not by certiorari. Spray v. Barnes v. Thompson, 9 Iowa, 40.

The writ of certiorari commands the tribunal to which it is directed to certify fully a transcript of its records and proceedings, as well as the facts in the case. Blake v. Bailey, 20 Id., 125.

The proper remedy against an order of the court refusing to correct a mistake in a settlement with an administrator is by appeal, and not by certiorari. O'Hare v. Hemstead, 21 Id., 25.

Certiorari is the proper remedy to test the legality of the action of township trustees, in calling an election for the purpose of voting upon the question of a tax to aid in the construction of a railroad. Jordan v. Hayne, 36 Id., 9.

It is also the proper remedy to test the jurisdiction of the board of supervisors, in the submission of a proposition to remove the county seat. Bennett v. Hatherington, 41 Id., 142.

Proceedings in the establishment of a road will not be annulled on certiorari, unless it is shown that the inferior tribunal has exceeded its proper jurisdiction or is otherwise acting illegally. McCollister v. Shuey, 24 Id., 362.

The writ of certiorari is the proper remedy to test the expediency or propriety of establishing a public highway, and the legality and regularity of the proceedings of the board of supervisors in the premises, but is not the proper remedy to review the question of damages for the land taken for a road. McCrory v. Griswold, 7 Id., 243.

Where the district court did not exceed its jurisdiction in entertaining an action upon a school order, against the several independent districts into which the district, issuing the order, had subsequently divided, the writ of certiorari was denied. The Ind. Dist. of Asbury v. The Dist. Court of Dubuque Co., 48 Id., 182.

In a proceeding for the punishment of a contempt, growing out of publications alleged to be false, scandalous and defamatory, evidence is admissible to show the meaning and intent of the publications. Henry v. Ellis, 49 Id., 205.

5 Under the revision the circuit court did not have jurisdiction in certiorari cases. Thompson v. Reed, 29 Iowa, 117.

The circuit court has exclusive jurisdiction to issue the writ of certiorari in civil matters. Hensington v. Hewitt et al., 48 Id., 679.
SEC. 3218. If a stay of proceedings is sought, the writ can only be issued by a court or judge, who may require a bond and fix the penalty and conditions thereof; the sureties thereon may be approved by the judge granting, or clerk who issues the writ.

SEC. 3219. The petition for the writ must state facts constituting a case wherein the writ may issue, and must be verified by affidavit, and the supreme court or judge issuing the writ, may require notice of the application to be given the adverse party, or may grant the writ without notice. If a stay of proceedings is sought, the writ can only be granted on reasonable notice of the time, place, and court or judge before whom the application will be made.

SEC. 3220. The writ must be served and the proof of such service made in the same manner as is prescribed for the original notice in a civil action, except that the original shall be left with the defendant, and the return or proof of service made upon a copy thereof.

SEC. 3221. If the return of the writ be defective, the court may order a further return to be made, and may compel obedience to the writ and to such further order, by attachment if necessary.

SEC. 3222. When full return has been made, the court must proceed to hear the parties, or such of them as may attend for that purpose, on the record proceedings and facts as certified, and such other testimony, oral or written, as either party may introduce pertinent to the issue, and may give judgment affirming or annulling the proceedings in whole or in part, or, in its discretion, correcting the same and prescribing the manner in which the party or either of them shall further proceed.

SEC. 3223. The action shall be prosecuted by ordinary proceedings so far as applicable, and from the decision of the district or circuit court an appeal lies as in other ordinary actions, and the record shall be prepared in the same manner.

SEC. 3224. No writ shall be granted after twelve months have elapsed from the time the inferior court, tribunal, board, or officer has, as alleged, exceeded his proper jurisdiction, or has otherwise acted illegally.

* It was held under the revision that the trial in certiorari proceeding, after the writ had been issued and returned, was had upon the record, and that evidence aliunde was not admissible. Smith v. The Board of Supervisors, 30 Iowa, 531.

The supreme court may on certiorari modify the judgment of the court below rendered in a proceeding for contempt. The State v. Myers, 44 Id., 580, 585.

h A writ of certiorari to the board of Supervisors, directing them to certify up a transcript of their proceedings upon the question of the removal of a county seat, is not barred until twelve months after the adoption of the order submitting the question to vote. The statute does not commence to run upon the determination that the petition is signed by the requisite number of voters. Jamison et al. v. The Board of Supervisors of Louisa County, 47 Iowa, 388.
TITLE XX

OF PROCEDURE IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER 1.

(REPLEVIN AND DETINUE.)

OF ACTIONS FOR THE RECOVERY OF SPECIFIC PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Section 3225. An action for the recovery of specific personal property may be brought in any county in which the property or some part thereof is situated; the petition must be verified and must contain:

1. A particular description of the property claimed;
2. Its actual value and, where there are several articles, the actual value of each;
3. The facts constituting the plaintiff's right to the present possession thereof, and the extent of his interest in the property, whether it be full or qualified ownership;
4. That it was neither taken on the order or judgment of a court against him, nor under an execution or attachment against him, or against the property. But if it was taken by either of these modes, then it must state the facts constituting an exemption from seizure by such process;
5. The facts constituting the alleged cause of detention thereof, according to his best belief;
6. The amount of damages which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover for the detention thereof. Where brought statements and verification of petition. R. § 3533.

Where, in an action of replevin the plaintiff asked the court to instruct the jury as follows: "1. That it is not necessary in replevin that the plaintiff shall prove that he is the rightful owner of the property repleived. If he had the peaceable possession, his right of possession was good against every person but the real owner, or some one having a better right of possession. 2. That if the plaintiff had possession of the property, his right of possession is good against all persons, until a better right is proved by some other person," which instructions the court refused to give; held, that the court erred in refusing to give the instructions. McCoy v. Cadle, 4 Iowa, 357.

If the property of A is taken upon attachment, or under execution, against the property of B, it is exempt from such seizure and A may bring replevin. Smith v. Montgomery, 5 Id., 370.

When proceedings are commenced under the prohibitory liquor law, by the seizure of intoxicating liquors, alleged to be owned and kept for sale in violation of law, it is not competent for the party to take the cause away from the tribunal whose jurisdiction has attached by instituting an action of replevin and regaining possession of the liquors. Funk v. Hardman v. Israel, 5 Id., 438; Cooley v. Davis, 31 Id., 129; The State v. Harris et al., 38 Id., 242.

A promissory note is personal property, under the code, and its possession may be recovered in an action of replevin. Groff v. Shannon, 7 Id., 508; Savery v. Hayes, 20 Id., 25.

In an action of replevin, where the residence of the plaintiff becomes material, it may be proved without a specific allegation to that effect in the petition. Newell v. Hayden, 8 Id., 140.

Where personal property is repleived from an officer, on the ground that it was exempt from execution, and it is sought to show that the sec. 3226. The action shall be by ordinary proceedings, but there shall be no joinder of any cause of action not of the same kind, nor shall there be allowed any counter claim.

sec. 3227. If the plaintiff allege in his petition that he will lose his property unless process issue on Sunday, the order may be issued and served on that day.

sec. 3228. If a third person claim the property or any part thereof, the plaintiff may amend and bring him in as a co-defendant, or the defendant may obtain his substitution by the proper mode, or the claimant may himself intervene by the process of intervenor.

The plaintiff is a non-resident of the state and not titled to exemption, such defense should be spicially pleaded by the defendant and need not be rebutted in the first instance, by the plaintiff.

The exemption of property from execution relates to the remedy, and is governed by the law of the place where the contract is sought to be enforced, instead of the lex loci contractus.

Where the petition in an action of replevin alleges the right of possession as in the plaintiff, an answer which does not specifically deny the title of the plaintiff in an action of replevin, to fraud has not been set up in the pleadings. To mence before a Justice of the sheriff, who holds it by virtue of an execution, sworn to does not authorize the issuing of the writ.

unless the plaintiff, prior to the commencement of the action, gives the sheriff written notice of his property unless process issue on Sunday, the order may be issued and served on that day.

An action of replevin will lie, at the instance of the owner, for the recovery of the possession of a building erected under an agreement with the owner of the land upon which it was placed that the lessee should have the free use of the land as long as the house should remain thereon.

The Dist. Twp. of Corwin v. Moorehead,
43 id., 466.

Where personal property has been seized by virtue of an execution duly issued, replevin will not lie to take the property from the possession of the officer upon the mere allegation that the judgment has been satisfied.

Arnell v. Lendrum, 47 id., 583.

If process issue from a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter, or if an execution issue without a judgment having been rendered, or if the law under which the process is issued be unconstitutional, the process is void, and replevin may be maintained for the property seized by the officer under such process.

Cooly v. Davis, 34 id., 128; Campbell v. Williams, 39 id., 464.

When in an action of replevin it has been adjudged that the property replevied was subject to a judgment which the plaintiff was thereupon compelled to pay, his remedy is not by an action for wrongful conversion against the sheriff who levied upon the property under the judgment.

Finch v. Hollinger, 46 id., 216.

One partner cannot maintain an action of replevin against the other, although by their contract of co-partnership one partner was to be the sole owner of the partnership property, the profits of the business being equally divided between them.

Equity has exclusive jurisdiction of partnership settlements.

Kuhn v. Neuman, 49 Iowa, 424.

Where a person intervenes in an action of replevin against an officer, and becomes the substantial defendant, the judgment therein design-nating the rights of the parties is conclusive upon all of the parties, as well between the plaintiff and the intervenor as between the plaintiff and the original defendant.

CHAP. 1.

RECOVERY OF SPECIFIC PROPERTY.

BOND—ORDER.

SEC. 3229. When the plaintiff desires the immediate delivery of the property, he shall execute a bond to the defendant, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in a penalty at least equal to twice the value of the property sought, conditioned that he will appear at the next term of the court and prosecute his suit to judgment and return the property if a return be awarded, and also pay all costs and damages that may be adjudged against him. The bond shall be filed with the clerk of the court, and is for the use of any person injured by the proceeding, and a judgment for money rendered against the plaintiff shall go against the sureties on the bond.

SEC. 3230. The clerk shall thereupon issue an order, under his hand and seal of the court, directed to the sheriff, requiring him to take the property therein described and deliver the same to the plaintiff. And where the petition shows that the property has been wrongfully removed into another county from the one in which the action is commenced, the order may issue from the county whence the property was so wrongfully taken, and may be served in any county where the property may be found in the same manner and with like effect as in the county where suit is brought.

SEC. 3231. When any of the property is removed to another county after the commencement of the action, counterparts of the proper order may issue on the demand of the plaintiff to such other county, and may be executed upon such goods found in such county, and farther orders and the necessary counterparts thereof may issue as often as may be necessary.

ORDER—EXECUTION OF.

SEC. 3232. The sheriff must forthwith execute the order by taking possession of the property therein mentioned, if it is found in the possession of the defendant, or of his agent, or of any other person who obtained possession thereof from the defendant, directly or indirectly, after the order was placed in the sheriff’s hands, for which purpose he may break open any dwelling house or other enclosure, having first demanded entrance and exhibited his authority, if required.

SEC. 3233. When it appears by affidavit that the property claimed has been disposed of, or concealed so that the order cannot be executed, the court or judge may compel the attendance of the defendant, and examine him on oath as to the situation of the property, and punish —When bond required.

SEC. 3234. Under §§ 3554 and 3563 of the revision, 3229 and 3230 of the code, the defendant, may, after the action is dismissed by the plaintiff, have an alternative judgment for a return of the property, or the amount of his damages, against both the principal and sureties on his bond. Wilkens v. Treynor, 14 Iowa, 391.

Under this section (3229), the sureties in a replevin bond, by signing the same, consent and agree that any judgment for money that may be adjudged against their principal, may be rendered against them also. Hershler v. Reynolds et al., 22 Id., 152.

During the pendency of the replevin suit, the sureties in the replevin bond are treated as in court, and in the absence of exceptional circumstances, are not entitled to any other day. Being thus treated as in court, and not objecting, they are concluded by the judgment or order to which the principal consents, settling and fixing the rights of the parties. Id.

A surety in a replevin bond cannot in an action of replevin instituted by his principal before a justice of the peace, prosecute an appeal in his own name, and have the issues between his principal and the defendant re-tried in the appellate court. Cris v. Littleton, 23 Id., 205.
Property delivered to plaintiff.
R. § 3550.
Defendant may prevent delivery of property to plaintiff.

Must let plaintiff inspect property; appraisement of.

Return of order.
R. § 3559.

Jury to assess value and damages.
R. § 3082.

Form of judgment.
R. §§ 3082, 3567.

JUDGMENT AND EXECUTION.

Sec. 3238. The jury must assess the value of the property, as also the damages for taking or detention, whenever by their verdict there will be a judgment for the recovery or the return of the property, and when required so to do by either party, must find the value of each article thereof.

Sec. 3239. The judgment shall determine which party is entitled to the possession of the property, and shall designate his right therein, and if such party have not the possession thereof, shall also determine the value of the right of such party, which right shall be absolute as to an adverse party having no right in such property, and shall also award such damages to either party as he may be entitled to for illegal detention of such property.1

1 Under this section the judge in vacation is authorized to punish a willful disobedience or hindrance of the execution of the replevin, as well as for any disobedience of any order made necessary by the proceedings to examine the defendant under oath. The State v. Meyers, 44 Iowa, 580, 583.

1 The taking the receipt of the defendant for the property in an action of replevin is unauthorized by the statute and does not constitute a levy by the sheriff. He should take actual possession. Davis v. Baylies, 13 West Jur., 373; See Wittier v. Fisher, 27 Iowa 9, cited in note to section 3275, ante.

2 When in an action of replevin the ownership and right to the possession of personal property was in issue on the allegations of the plaintiff's petition, the defendant setting up no special property, and the jury returned the following verdict: "We find the ownership in the plaintiff, and assess the value of the mare at $75.00 and the damage for wrongful detention at $25.00, it was held, that the form of the verdict was sufficient, and the court did not err in entering judgment thereon. Cassel v. The Western Stage Co., 12 Iowa, 47.

The question to be determined in an action of replevin is, in whom was the right of possession at the time the action was commenced. Id.

As a general rule, ownership of personal property carries with it the right of possession, and in replevin a general allegation of a right to the possession of the property in controversy is suf-
SEC. 3240. The execution shall require the sheriff to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the sheriff to satisfy any costs, damages, or rents and profits, with interest, recovered by the same judgment, out of the property of the party against whom it was rendered subject to execution, and the value of property for which judgment was recovered to be specified therein, if a delivery thereof cannot be had, and shall in that respect be deemed an execution against property.

SEC. 3241. If the party found to be entitled to the property, be not already in possession thereof by delivery under the provisions of this chapter, or otherwise, he may, at his option, have execution for the specific delivery of the property, or for the value thereof as determined by the jury. And if any article of the property cannot be obtained on execution, he may take the remainder with the value of the missing articles.

SEC. 3242. When property for which a bond has been given, as hereinbefore provided, is not forthcoming to answer the judgment, and the party entitled thereto elects to take judgment for the value thereof, such judgment may be entered against the principal and sureties in the bond.

SEC. 3243. When it appears by the return of the officer, or by the affidavit of the plaintiff, that any specific property which has been adjudged to belong to one party, has been concealed or removed by the other, the court or a judge may require him to attend and be examined on oath respecting such matter, and may enforce its order in this respect as in the case of contempt.

SEC. 3244. A money judgment taken under the provisions of this chapter in lieu of property exempt from execution, shall also be, to sufficiently maintained by evidence of ownership only, when no special right to the possession is shown by the opposite party. Id.

Where property taken in execution was taken from the sheriff by replevin, and the plaintiff, in said action, failed to prosecute his action successfully, the measure of the defendant's damages is the balance due him as execution.

SEC. 3245. A person who purchases and takes possession of personal property subject to mortgages thereon, which he assumes to pay, cannot in an action of replevin bring in his own chattels in execution. Id., 158.

A person who purchases and takes possession of personal property subject to mortgages thereon, which he assumes to pay, cannot in an action of replevin bring in his own chattels in execution. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158.

Where property taken in execution was taken from the sheriff by replevin, and the plaintiff, in said action, failed to prosecute his action successfully, the measure of the defendant's damages is the balance due him as execution.

SEC. 3246. Where the plaintiff, in an action of replevin, has established a prima facie title, through a purchase of a judgment debtor, before levy of execution, the burden of showing that the sale was fraudulent is upon the defendant. Where the fraud is once established, the sheriff's right to the possession may be shown by the execution under which it was seized, and the levy of the same upon the property. Parsons v. Hedges, 15 Iowa, 119.

Where the plaintiff, in an action of replevin, has established a prima facie title, through a purchase of a judgment debtor, before levy of execution, the burden of showing that the sale was fraudulent is upon the defendant. Where the fraud is once established, the sheriff's right to the possession may be shown by the execution under which it was seized, and the levy of the same upon the property. Parsons v. Hedges, 15 Iowa, 119.

Under this section of the code the defendant in replevin may, after the action has been dismissed by the plaintiff, have an alternative judgment for the return of the property or the amount of his damages, against both the principal and sureties on his bond. Williams v. Traynor, 14 Id., 391; Clark v. Warner, 32 Id., 219; Byington v. Oaks, Id., 488.

Under sections 3241 and 3242 of the code the plaintiff is entitled to a money judgment at his option when he is found entitled to the property and is not already in possession thereof. Armel v. Lendrum, 47 Id., 533, 533.
the same extent, exempt from execution, and from all set-off or diminution either by the adverse party or by any other person, and such exemption may, at the option of the party, be stated in the judgment.

CHAPTER 2.

OF ACTIONS FOR THE RECOVERY OF REAL PROPERTY.

Section 3245. Actions for the recovery of real property shall be by ordinary proceedings, and there shall be no joinder and no counter-claim therein, except of like proceedings and as provided in this chapter.

Sec. 3246. Any person having a valid subsisting interest in real property, and a right to the immediate possession thereof, may recover the same by action against any person acting as owner, landlord, or tenant of the property claimed.

Sec. 3247. The plaintiff must recover on the strength of his own title.

Sec. 3248. In an action by a tenant in common, or joint tenant of real property against his co-tenant, the plaintiff must show, in addition to his evidence of right, that the defendant either denied the plaintiff’s right, or did some act amounting to such denial.

Sec. 3249. When the defendant is a non-resident, having an agent of record for the property in the state, service may be made upon such agent in the same manner and with the like effect as though made on the principal.

PETITION—ANSWER—TRIAL.

Sec. 3250. The petition may state generally that the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the premises, particularly describing them, also the quantity of his estate and the extent of his interest therein, and that the defendant unlawfully keeps him out of possession, and the damages, if any, which he claims for withholding the

An equitable defense may be interposed in an action at law to recover real property. * Rosier v. Van Dam, 16 Iowa, 175. See also, Thompson v. Hurley, 19 Id., 331; Van Orman v. Spofford et al., 16 Id., 186; Kramer v. Conger, Id., 434; Warren v. Crew, 22 Id., 315; Shaichan v. Long, 26 Id., 488; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476.

The joinder of actions referred to in this section relates to the cause of action and not to the relief sought. The language will not be construed to forbid an action in equity for full relief, if a decree quieting title will not give such relief. The County of Buena Vista v. The I. F. & S. C. R. Co., 49 Id., 657, 662.

A parol license to enter upon mineral lands and work the same, for a specific share of the mineral raised, for an indefinite time, an entry under such license, and an expenditure of labor and money in sinking shafts, running drifts, procuring machinery and other preparations for mining under such license, gives to the licensee a valid subsisting interest in the real estate which the licensor can terminate only by giving him compensation for such expenditure, or the notice necessary to terminate a tenancy at will; and the licensee may assert his right to the possession against the licensor, or his subsequent licensee with notice, by action of ejectment. Beatty v. Gregory, 17 Id., 109.

The objection that the plaintiff cannot recover without proof that the defendant denied his right before suit brought as provided in this section, cannot be made for the first time in the supreme court. Starry v. Starry, 21 Iowa, 254, 256.
property; but if he claims other damages than the rents and profits, he shall state the facts constituting the cause thereof.

Sec. 3251. The plaintiff shall attach to his petition, and the defendant to his answer, if he claims title, an abstract of the title relied on, showing from and through whom such title was obtained, together with a statement showing the page and book where the same appears of record. If such title, or any portion thereof, is not in writing, or does not appear of record, such fact shall be stated in the abstract, and either party shall furnish the adverse party with a copy of any unrecorded conveyance, or furnish a satisfactory reason for not so doing within a reasonable time after demand therefor. No written evidence of title shall be introduced on the trial, unless it has been sufficiently referred to in such abstract, which, on motion, may be made more specific, and may be amended as other proceedings.

Sec. 3252. The answer of the defendant, and of each if more than one, must set forth what part of the land he claims, and what interest he claims therein generally, and if as mere tenant, the name and residence of his landlord.

Sec. 3253. Whenever it appears that the defendant is only a tenant, the landlord may be substituted by the service upon him of original notice, or by his voluntary appearance, and the judgment shall be conclusive against him.

Sec. 3254. Where the defendant makes defense, it is not necessary to prove him in possession of the premises.

Sec. 3255. An action for the recovery of real property against a person in possession, cannot be prejudiced by any alienation made by such person after the commencement of the action.

Sec. 3256. The court, on motion and after notice to the opposite party, may, for cause shown, grant an order allowing the party applying therefor to enter upon the land in controversy and make survey and admeasurement thereof, for the purposes of the action.

Sec. 3257. The order must describe the property, and a copy thereof must be served upon the owner or person having the occupancy and control of the land.

Sec. 3258. The verdict may specify the extent and quantity of the plaintiff's estate, and the premises to which he is entitled, with reasonable certainty, by metes and bounds and other sufficient description according to the facts as proved.

Sec. 3259. A general verdict in favor of the plaintiff without such specifications, entitles the plaintiff to the quantity of interest or estate in the premises as set forth and described in the petition.

* It is not necessary under this section that a party in an action for the recovery of real property shall annex, as an exhibit to his petition, the evidence of his title. Boardman v. Beckwith, 18 Iowa, 292.

It is only necessary for the plaintiff in an action to recover real property, to state generally the extent of his interest therein. The evidence upon which he relies to prove his title need not be stated. Larnin v. Wilmer, 35 Id., 244, 247.

In our system of pleading the facts constituting an estoppel in pari, in an action to recover real property, need not be specially pleaded, the averments of the facts constituting defendant's interest being sufficient. Phillips v. Blair, 38 Id., 649.

* See Phillips v. Blair, 38 Iowa, 649, cited in notes to section 3250, ante.

While under this section the landlord may be substituted in an action of right, when it appears that the defendant is only a tenant, such substitution is not imperatively required, and the action may proceed against the tenant alone. But in that case, it seems, the landlord would not be bound unless he had been notified of the action. The State v. Orwig, 34 Iowa, 112.

Where crop is sowed, planted or growing: finding. R. § 3299.

SEC. 3260. If the interest of the plaintiff expire before the time in which he could be put in possession, he can obtain a judgment for damages only. A conveyance by the plaintiff of the title to the property, involved in a pending action of right, will not abate the action; and the proceeding thereof may be continued in his name notwithstanding such conveyance. This section applies only to cases where the plaintiff holds a limited and determinable estate in the premises, which expires by lapse of time, or the like, during the pendency of the action. Jordan v. Ping, 32 Iowa, 64.

A doweress is entitled to recover damages for the detention of her dower, from the alienee of her husband, or his grantee, as measured by the use and profits at least, from the time of the demand of dower, provided such demand was not more than six years prior to the commencement of the suit. If the demand was more than six years before the action was commenced, she can only recover for the six years. O'Farrell v. Simplot, 4 Iowa, 381.

In an action to recover real property, the plaintiff, where he holds the legal title and right of possession thereto, may recover for the use and occupation of the land, as well as the title and possession. Dunn v. Starkweather, 6 Id., 466.

In an action of right against the ancestor, and to which the heirs are made parties after his death, the heirs are not liable for damages for the rents and profits, while the ancestor was in possession of the premises. They are only liable for damages after such time as they are shown to have been in possession. Cavender v. Smith, 8 Id., 360.

In such a case, if the plaintiff seeks to recover damages from the ancestor, his administrator should be made a party, with the heirs, or a separate action should be instituted against him. Id.

The limitation in this section has no application to the right of an occupying claimant to recover for improvements. Parsons v. Moses, 16 Id., 440.

When the plaintiff in an action to recover real property is entitled to damages for the wrongful detention thereof, or injury thereto, the defendant may set off the value of any permanent improvements made thereon, to the extent of the damages, unless he prefers to avail himself of the law for the benefit of occupying claimants. Parsons v. Moses, 16 Iowa, 440, 444.

A tenant who leases real estate of the apparent legal owner, to whom he pays the rent, cannot afterwards be made liable therefor to one who, by a proceeding in equity against the lessor to quiet title, but in which the tenant was not made a party, was decreed to be the rightful owner of the premises, although such proceeding was commenced before, though not decided until after, the expiration of the tenancy and the payment of the rent. The tenant in such case would only be liable for rents accruing after the decree; nor would the case be varied by the fact that he was notified not to pay to his lessor. This holding is not in conflict with section 3264 of the code. The proceeding to quiet title is not a suit brought for the recovery of the land within the meaning of this section. Gardner v. Gardner, 25 Id., 102.

assessed. This bond shall be part of the record, and shall have the force and effect of a judgment, and if not paid at maturity, the clerk, on the application of the plaintiff, shall issue execution thereon against all the obligors.

SEC. 3266. When the plaintiff shows himself entitled to the immediate possession of the premises, judgment shall be entered and a writ of possession issued accordingly.7

SEC. 3267. The plaintiff may have judgment for the rent of the possession which accrues after judgment and before delivery of possession, by motion in the court in which the judgment was rendered, ten days' notice thereof in writing being given, unless judgment is stayed by appeal and bond given to suspend the judgment, in which case the motion may be made after the affirmance thereof.

NEW TRIAL.

SEC. 3268. In any of the cases provided for by this chapter, the court, in its discretion, may grant a new trial on the application of any party thereto, or those claiming under a party made at any time within one year after the former trial, although the grounds required for a new trial in other cases are not shown; but only one such new trial shall be granted.6

SEC. 3269. If the application for new trial is made after the close of the term at which the judgment was rendered, the party obtaining a new trial shall give the opposite party ten days' notice thereof before the term at which the action stands for trial.

SEC. 3270. The result of such new trial, if granted after the close of the term at which the first trial took place, shall in no case affect the rights of third persons acquired in good faith for a valuable consideration since the former trial.

SEC. 3271. But the party who, on such new trial, shows himself entitled to lands which have thus passed to a purchaser in good faith, may recover the proper amount of damages against the other party, either in the same or a subsequent action.

SEC. 3272. The party who has been successful in such new trial, shall, if the case require it, have his writ of restitution to restore him his property.

7 See Dunn v. Starkweather, 6 Iowa, 470.
6 An appeal may be taken from an order of the court below granting a new trial, but such an order will not be interfered with, unless it is shown that the discretion vested in the court has been abused, or that great injustice has been done to the appellant. A stronger case must be made than would be required to justify the reversal of an order refusing a new trial.
Newell v. Sanford, 10 Iowa, 396.

Greater latitude is given to the discretion of the court below as to new trials in actions of right than in any other actions. Id.; White v.
Poorman, 24 Id., 108.

A mistake made by a third person in selecting a paper to be used as documentary evidence in the trial of an action of right, when not discovered until after the conclusion of the trial, is good cause for a new trial. Floyd v. Hamilton, Id., 552.

The unsuccessful party in an action of right is entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the statute relating to new trials in such cases, as well where the defense is equitable in its nature, as where it is legal. Butterfield v. Walsh, 25
Id., 283.

The fact that the petition, in addition to asking that plaintiff's title be quieted, prays other equitable relief in regard to the land, will not take the case out of the provisions of this section, in relation to the granting of new trials in actions to quiet title. The County of Buena Vista

A new trial in such case will be decreed, where a judgment has been rendered because of a failure to make defense through the mistake of the attorney respecting the time of the term at which the judgment was rendered, when the mistake is from misinformation, and not neglect.

Quieting Title.

Sec. 3273. An action to determine and quiet the title of real property may be brought by any one having, or claiming an interest therein, whether in or out of possession of the same, against any person claiming title thereto though not in possession. 6

Sec. 3274. The plaintiff must file his petition under oath, setting forth the nature and extent of his estate, and describing the premises as accurately as may be, and averring that he is credibly informed and believes that the defendant makes some claim adverse to the estate of the petitioner, and praying for the establishment of the plaintiff's estate against such adverse claims, and that the defendant be barred and forever estopped from having or claiming any right or title to the premises adverse to the plaintiff. The notice in such action shall accurately describe the property, and, in general terms, the nature and extent of plaintiff's claim, and shall be served as in other cases. 2

Sec. 3275. If the defendant shall appear and disclaim all right and title adverse to the plaintiff, he shall recover his costs. In all other cases the costs shall be in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3276. In all other respects, the action contemplated in the three preceding sections shall be conducted as other actions by equitable proceedings, with the modifications prescribed by this chapter so far as the same may be applicable.

Chapter 3.

Section 3277. The action for partition shall be by equitable proceedings, and no joinder or counter claim of any other kind shall be allowed therein, except as provided by this chapter. 6

Under this section an action in the nature of an action of right may be brought to quiet title to real property, against another claiming title thereto. Fejevany v. Langer, 9 Iowa, 159.
The action provided for in this section cannot be maintained against one holding a certificate of tax sale, not claiming title to the lands. Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Id., 160, 176.
Where the possession and control of real property is given to the executors for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the will, they are authorized to maintain an action to quiet the title thereto. Laverty v. Sexton & Son, 41 Id., 435.
An action under this section may be maintained against a non-resident defendant, and to such action the provisions of the statute relating to the service of notice by publication, or personal service of notice on the defendant out of the State, apply. Miller v. Davison, 31 Id., 435.

Where an owner in possession of real property brings an action against adverse claimants to quiet his title thereto. this section of the statute will entitle him to the relief sought, if sustained by the proofs, under a general prayer for relief, if the petition embodies the essential averments of the statute, notwithstanding it is manifest that it was not framed with a special reference thereto. Paton v. Lancaster, 38 Iowa, 494.

In an action to foreclose a title bond, conditioned to convey the undivided half of certain real estate, one holding part thereof under a deed from the vendee is properly made a defendant, and by a pleading in the nature of a crossbill may ask a partition, and the enforcement of the lien upon the land not claimed by him. Hammond v. Perry, 38 Iowa, 217.
Section 3277 of the code is not applicable to such case; equity has jurisdiction, and may grant the relief asked. Id.

Where parties own, in common, a water power and mills, machinery, dam and other appurtenances, a partition of the whole property may be made. And where either party insists upon such partition it must be made, regardless of the Sec. 3278. The petition must describe the property and respective interests of the several owners thereof, if known. If any interests, or the owners of any interests are unknown, contingent, or doubtful, these facts must be set forth in the petition with reasonable certainty.

Sec. 3279. The plaintiff shall attach to his petition, and the defendant to his answer, if he claims title, an abstract of the title relied on, showing from and through whom such title was obtained, together with a statement showing the page on which the same appears of record. If such title, or any portion thereof, is not in writing, or does not appear of record, such fact shall be stated in the abstract, and either party shall furnish the adverse party with a copy of any unrecorded conveyance, or furnish a satisfactory reason for not so doing within a reasonable time after demand therefor. No written evidence of title shall be introduced on the trial, unless it has been sufficiently referred to in such abstract, which, on motion, may be made more specific, and may be amended as other pleadings.

Sec. 3280. Persons having contingent interests in such property, may be made parties to the proceedings, and the proceeds of the property so situated, or the property itself in case of partition, shall be subject to the order of the court until the right becomes fully vested. The ascertained share of any absent owner shall be retained, or the proceeds invested for his benefit under like order.

Sec. 3281. Creditors having a specific or general lien upon the entire property may be made parties at the option of the plaintiff or defendant.

Sec. 3282. The answers of the defendants must state among other things the amount and nature of their respective interests. They may deny the interest of any of the plaintiffs, and, by supplemental pleading, if necessary, may deny the interest of any of the other defendants.

Sec. 3283. Issues may thereupon be joined and tried between any of the contesting parties, the question of cost on such issues being inconvenient or hardship thereby occasioned.

Cooper v. The Ceder Rapids Water Power Co., 42 Iowa, 398; Doan v. Metcalf et al., 46 Id., 120.

When the partition of a water-power is to be made, the rules governing it should be certain, definite and self-adjusting, so that they will readily apply to all conditions of the power. Id.

To effect such partition, the land covered by the water and dam may be divided by metes and bounds, and one part thereof assigned to each party, subject to the charge of keeping the dam in repair by the one to whom the part including it is assigned, and the right to use such portion of the water as may be assigned to each owner, the extent of which may be indicated by some visible monument or by controlling the flowage through the gates. Id.

Where the grant of a part of the water-power stipulated that the grantee should have "the right to use water to the amount of the issue of the wheel now in use in said mill, supposed to be six hundred inches, more or less, of water": Held, 1. That the amount of water which the grantee might use, was to be measured by the capacity of the wheel in the mill at the time of the execution of the deed. 2. That the terms in the deed specifying the amount, six hundred inches, was descriptive only and not a limitation. 3. That the grantee was not limited to the use of one wheel, but could put in operation more water than the issue of the one wheel originally in the mill. Doan v. Metcalf et al., 46 Id., 120.

In an action for the partition of a water-power the partition should be made by referees under rules established by the court. Id.

In apportioning the amount of water permitted to be used under a grant a fixed and unvarying measure should be adopted, and an allowance of the water requisite to carry "two sets of burrs and the necessary machinery for bolting," does not furnish such measure. Id.

regulated between the contestants agreeably to the principles applicable to other cases.5

ENCUMBRANCES.

SEC. 3284. Before making any order of sale or partition, the court may refer to a clerk, or a referee, to report the nature and amount of general encumbrances by mortgage, judgment, or otherwise, if any there be upon any portion of the property.

SEC. 3285. The referees shall give the parties interested at least five days' notice of the time and place when he will receive proof of the amounts of such encumbrances.

SEC. 3286. If any question arise as to the validity or amount of an encumbrance, or the payment of the same, the court may direct an issue to be made up between the encumbrancer and an owner, which shall be decisive of their respective rights; and upon a sale it may order the money to be retained or invested to await final action in relation to its disposition, and notice thereof to be forthwith given to the encumbrancer unless he has already been made a party.

SEC. 3287. If the lien is upon one or more undivided interests, the holder thereof shall be made a party, and the lien shall, after partition or sale, remain a charge upon the particular interests of the proceeds thereof, but the amount of costs is a charge upon those interests, paramount to all other liens.6

SEC. 3288. The proceedings in relation to encumbrances shall not delay the distribution of the proceeds of other shares in respect to which no such difficulties exist.

SEC. 3289. After all the shares and interests of the parties have been settled in any of the methods aforesaid, judgment shall be rendered confirming those shares and interests, and directing partition to be made accordingly.

PARTITION.

SEC. 3290. Upon entering such judgment, the court shall appoint referees to make partition into the requisite number of shares, or if it is apparent, or the parties so agree, that the property cannot be equitably divided into the requisite number of shares, a sale may be ordered.1

5 Where a defendant in an action for partition disclaims all right, title or interest in and to the premises described in the plaintiff's petition, at the time the action is brought or afterwards, and is not in possession doing any act inconsistent with such disclaimer, he is entitled to be dismissed with his costs. Urban et ux. v. Hopkins et al., 17 Iowa, 105.

6 Where the answer in an action for partition of a grist mill set up that rents were due to the defendant, and that the plaintiffs, while in possession under a lease, allowed the mill to become out of repair to the extent of from $200 to $400, for which they are liable under their lease: Held, that the court below should have heard the parties upon these allegations. Metcalf et al. v. Hoopingardner, 45 Iowa, 510, 512.

The mortgagor of an undivided interest in real property is not bound by a partition to which he is not a party. Lewis v. Atkinson, 39 Id., 596.

Equity will give relief from a decree in a partition action, which, through the fraud of one of the parties, divided and distributed the land in violation of the rights of the others, as settled by the pleadings and interlocutory orders. Id.

The fraud in partition proceedings can only be taken advantage of by one who had a prior interest in the estate, and not by one who, subsequent to the fraud purchases an interest therein. Telford v. Barney, 1 G. Greene, 575; Bruce v. Reed, Id., 422.

1 Where property owned in common cannot be equitably divided, it is competent for the court to direct, in an action for partition, that the common property be sold and the proceeds divided. Metcalf v. Hoopingardner, 45 Iowa, 510. Although this section provides that the court...
Sec. 3291. When a partition is deemed proper, the referees must mark out the shares by visible monuments, and may employ a competent surveyor and the necessary assistants to aid them therein.\(^1\)

Sec. 3292. The report of the referees must be in writing, signed by at least two of them. It must describe the respective shares with reasonable particularity, and be accompanied by a plat of the premises, and must allot the shares to their several owners.

Sec. 3293. For good and sufficient reasons appearing to the court, the referees may be directed to allot particular portions of the land to particular individuals. In other cases the shares must be made as nearly as possible of equal value.\(^k\)

Sec. 3294. When partition can be conveniently made of part of the premises, but not of all, one portion may be partitioned and the other sold as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3295. On good cause shown, the report may be set aside and the matter again referred to the same or other referees.\(^j\)

Sec. 3296. All the costs of the proceedings in partition shall be paid, in the first instance, by the plaintiffs, but eventually by all the parties in proportion to their interests, except those costs which are created by contests above provided for.

SALE.

Sec. 3298. Before proceeding to sell, the referees shall give a bond, in a penalty to be fixed by the court, payable to the parties who are entitled to the proceeds, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties. At any time thereafter, the court may require farther and additional security, and upon failure of the referees to comply with such order, they may be removed by the court and others appointed; and the court may at any time, for satisfactory reasons, remove such referees and appoint others.

Sec. 3299. The same notice of sale shall be given as when lands are sold on execution by the sheriff, and the sales shall be conducted in like manner.

Sec. 3300. After completing said sale, the referees must report their proceedings to the court, with a description of the different parts allotted to the respective parties, their appointment is not required in cases wherein, from the nature of the property and the character of the partition which the law makes, they can render no aid to the court in the just division of the property. Doan v. Metcalf, 46 Id., 120, 128.

Sec. 3301. The rules and regulations of the code as to partition have reference alone to real property. Cooper v. The C., R. W. P. Co., 42 Iowa, 398, 401.

In the partition of the real estate of the husband in cases in which the widow, as his heir at law, takes one-half of his estate, she cannot be compelled to take the homestead as a part of her share. Nichols v. Purcell, 21 Iowa, 265.\(^k\)

Sec. 3302. Under this section the homestead may be awarded to the proper owner or tenant without the slightest detriment to his co-tenants. Thorn v. Thorn, 14 Iowa, 49, 55.

Slight deviations by the referees, where it is necessary in the partition of property, are not fatal to the proceedings, and the final judgment may properly correct any erroneous computation or inaccuracy in the report of the referees. Wright v. Marsh, 2 G. Greene, 94.

Sec. 3303. If the report be unsatisfactory to the parties, on good cause shown, it may be set aside and the matter again referred to the same or other referees. Per Rorock, J., in Doan v. Metcalf, 46 Iowa, 131.
FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGES.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGES.

Section 3307. Any mortgage of personal property to secure the payment of money only, and where the time of payment is therein fixed, may be foreclosed by notice and sale as hereinaafter provided, unless a stipulation to the contrary has been agreed upon by the parties, or may be foreclosed by action in the proper court.

Section 3308. The notice must contain a full description of the property mortgaged, together with the time, place, and terms of sale.

R. § 3636.

Sections 3301-3306 were related to the foreclosure of mortgages, including the process for conveying deeds of land sold, the validity of such conveyances, and the distribution of proceeds when parties are married. The sections also addressed sales disapproved, security to refund money, and life estates. The chapters focused on the procedures and legal considerations for foreclosing mortgages and dealing with personal property.
Sec. 3309. Such notice must be served on the mortgagor, and upon all purchasers from him subsequent to the execution of the mortgage, and all persons having recorded liens upon the same property which are junior to the mortgage, or they will not be bound by the proceedings.

Sec. 3310. The service and return must be made in the same manner as in the case of the original notice by which civil actions are commenced, except that no publication in the newspapers is necessary for this purpose, the general publication directed in the next section being a sufficient service upon all the parties in cases where service is to be made by publication.

Sec. 3311. After notice has been served upon the parties, it must be published in the same manner, and for the same length of time as is required in cases of the sale of like property on execution, and the sale shall be conducted in the same manner.

Sec. 3312. The purchaser shall take all the title and interest on which the mortgage operated.

Sec. 3313. The sheriff conducting the sale shall execute to the purchaser a bill of sale of the personal property, which shall be effectual to carry the whole title and interest purchased.

Sec. 3314. Evidence of the service and publication of the notice aforesaid, and of the sale made in accordance therewith, together with any postponement or other material matter, may be perpetuated by proper affidavits thereof.

Sec. 3315. Such affidavits shall be attached to the bill of sale, and shall then be receivable in evidence to prove the facts they state.

Sec. 3316. Sales made in accordance with the above requirements, are valid in the hands of a purchaser in good faith, whatever may be the equities between the mortgagor and mortgagee.

Sec. 3317. The right of the mortgagee to foreclose, as well as the amount claimed to be due, may be contested by any one interested in so doing, and the proceeding may be transferred to the district or circuit court, for which purpose an injunction may issue if necessary.

Sec. 3318. Deeds of trust of real or personal property may be executed as securities for the performance of contracts, and shall be considered as, and foreclosed like mortgages.

* It is not indispensable that subsequent mortgagees should be made parties in an action to foreclose, but unless they are and served with notice, they will not be bound by the proceedings.

A sale made under a deed of trust after payment of the debt secured thereby is absolutely void. There must be a valid subsisting power under the deed, to render the sale valid. Penney v. Cook et ux., 19 Iowa, 538.

* A proceeding in equity to enjoin the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage by notice and sale is restrained by injunction, and transferred to the district court, it there stands as a foreclosure in court, and the power of the court to render a judgment of forfeiture, in favor of the school fund, is as complete, if the contract be usurious, as if the proceedings to foreclose had been originally commenced in that court. Hanlin v. Parsons, 33 Iowa, 207.

A proceeding in equity to enjoin the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage by notice and sale, in order to contest in the district court the amount due and the right to foreclose, was under the revision, triable by the second method of equitable trials, and the finding of the court stood, on appeal, the same as the verdict of a jury. Braitch v. Guelick, 37 Id., 212.

* Deeds of trust may be treated like mortgages and foreclosed by civil action. Newman v. De Lorimer et al., 19 Iowa, 244.

Sec. 3319. No deed of trust, or mortgage of real estate, with or without power of sale, made since the first day of April, A. D. 1861, shall be foreclosed in any other manner than by action in court by equitable proceedings.

Sec. 3320. If separate suits are brought in the same county on the bond or note, and on the mortgage given to secure it, the plaintiff must elect which to prosecute. The other will be continued at his cost.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage where the mortgagor is dead, his administrator is a proper, if not a necessary party to the foreclosure sale under a mortgage in which dower has been assigned or admeasured, and administrator may, upon his own motion, be made a party. Darlington v. Effey, 13 Iowa, 177.

Equity will recognize and enforce a sale and conveyance of the dower interest before the dower has been assigned or admeasured, and will accordingly recognize and enforce the right which a purchaser of the dower interest of the husband or wife, as the case may be, acquires at a foreclosure sale under a mortgage in which both have joined. Huston v. Seeley et al., 27 Id., 183.

Where a party, who was indebted to another, executed a conveyance to secure the indebtedness and received from the grantee an instrument binding him to re-convey upon the payment of the debt, held, that the transaction constituted a mortgage and that it was not competent for the grantor to insist upon the foreclosure thereof, but that he must pay the amount due before he could ask a cancellation of the conveyance. White v. Lucas, 46 Id., 319.

In equity a conveyance of land to a trustee as security for the payment of a debt existing before he could ask a cancellation of the conveyance, Newman v. Samuels, 17 Id., 528.

Where it is doubtful whether a transaction is a mortgage or a conditional sale a court of equity will treat it as a mortgage. Trucks v. Lindsey, 18 Id., 304.

A deed absolute in form, will be treated as a mortgage, when it is shown that it was executed for the purpose of securing the payment of a debt existing at the time of its execution. Hall v. Sacull, 3 G. Greene 37; Usher v. Livermore, 2 Iowa, 117; Vennum v. Babock, 13 Id., 194; Key v. McCleary, 25 Id., 191; Gardner v. Weston, 13 Id., 593; Holliday v. Arthur, 25 Id., 19; Maple v. Nelson, 31 Id., 322.

A deed absolute on its face may be shown by parol evidence to have been intended only as a mortgage. Key v. McCleary, 25 Id., 191.

Equity will regard any conveyance of land, intended to operate as security for a debt or the performance of a contract, as a mortgage. Gw v. Turner, 38 Id., 112; Clinton M. Ip. v. Mowbraving, 39 Id., 281; The N. Y. P. F. Co. v. Mueller, 42 Id., 467; White v. Lucas, 46 Id., 319.

Where a promissory note is executed by one party, and a mortgage to secure the same by another, the maker of the note is not a necessary party to an action to foreclose the mortgage, or at least not so as to enable the defendant to take advantage of the failure to join the maker of the note in the action, by demurrer to the petition. De­land v. Mershon, 7 Iowa, 70.

A mortgagee conditioned that the maker of the note therein described shall pay the same when it becomes due, “with interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from date, payable annually, according to the term and effect of said note,” may be foreclosed for interest due before the maturity of the note. Bahr v. Arndt, 9 Id., 39.

The mortgagee may proceed in equity against the mortgagor and other encumbrances of the mortgaged property, to determine the priority and amount of such encumbrances, and to foreclose the mortgage, after recovering a judgment in an action at law and the note secured by the mortgage. Wahl v. Phillips, 12 Id., 81.

As between the parties to the mortgage, a judgment at law upon a note secured by mortgage is a lien from the date of the recording of the mortgage. But a judgment on a note secured by mortgage does not attach as a lien upon the mortgaged premises from the date of the mortgage, unless the property is described and it is so ordered in the decree of foreclosure. The State for use of School Fund v. Lake et al., 17 Id., 215.

The merger of the note into a judgment at law thereon, does not extinguish the lien of the mortgage executed to secure the payment of the same. But where, at an execution sale on such judgment, the mortgagor became the purchaser for the amount of his debt, it was held, that the mortgage lien was thereby extinguished, there being no ignorance or mistake of fact that a junior mortgage existed. Id.

A valid covenant may be inserted in a mortgage, binding the mortgagor to pay the amount secured thereby at the time specified, and this may be enforced, although there was no note or bond given for such amount. Brown v. Cos­caden, 43 Id., 103; Newbury v. Rutter et ux., 38 Id., 179.

A mortgagee is not confined to the remedy of foreclosure, but may maintain an action at law upon the note, bond, or other obligation secured by the mortgage. If the covenant for payment is contained in the mortgage, that may be made the basis of an action at law. Id.; Danta v. Woods, 32 Id., 469.
SEC. 3321. When a mortgage or deed of trust is foreclosed by equitable proceedings, the court shall render judgment for the entire amount found to be due, and must direct the mortgaged property, or so much thereof as is necessary, to be sold to satisfy the same, with interests and costs. A special execution shall issue accordingly, and the sale thereunder shall be subject to redemption as in cases of such sale under general execution.*

A decree of foreclosure should direct a sale of so much of the mortgaged premises as may be necessary to satisfy the mortgage, and remove all costs. It is error to order a sale of the entire premises, and the payment of the balance remaining after satisfying such debt and costs into court. Malony v. Fortune et ux., 14 Id., 417.

A surety who was the owner of real estate, executed a mortgage upon the same, 'to be void upon condition that I pay or cause to be paid a certain promissory note for $1200, given by D., dated with this instrument, and payable to A. or order, one year from the date with ten per cent interest,' it was held, 1. That the mortgagee assumed only the liability of a security. 2. That an extension of the time of payment by the payee to the maker, for a consideration, and without the consent of the surety, operated to discharge him from liability. 3. That the payment of interest in advance was a sufficient consideration to sustain a contract for the extension of time. Christner v. Brown, 16 Id., 130.

Where a decree of foreclosure ordered "that special execution issue against said defendants for the satisfaction of said mortgage according to law;" it was held, that while the decree should have followed the statute and ordered the sale of so much property as was necessary to satisfy the mortgage, the defect was one of form merely, and did not vitiate the decree. Frieber v. Shafer, 18 Id., 29.

An incumbrancer not made a party to a foreclosure proceeding is not bound by the decree therein, and is not cut off from his right to redeem, by a sale thereunder. White v. Watts, 18 Id., 74. Harmon, 19 Id., 95.

In an action by a mortgagor who was not made a party to the foreclosure proceedings, to redeem from a sale made thereunder, the amount necessary to redeem should be determined with reference, both to the right to rents and the liability to pay for improvements. Barrett v. Blackmar, 47 Id., 505.

The mortgagor cannot, in a separate action, recover from the purchaser in possession for rents and profits, unless he shows that he was prevented by accident, surprise, fraud or mistake, from considering the rents and profits when he made his offer to redeem. Id.

The foreclosure of a mortgage in this state, can be effected only by a sale of the mortgaged premises, in pursuance of an order of the court. The strict foreclosure of the old chancery prac-

A personal judgment cannot properly be rendered against a subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged property, when he is not a party to the note or mortgage. Carleton v. Byington, 24 Id., 172.

Where, however, the purchaser of mortgaged premises, has assumed the payment of the mortgage as a part of the consideration of the land, the mortgage may be foreclosed, and a personal judgment rendered against him; and parol evidence is competent to prove such agreement. Bowen v. Kurtz, 37 Id., 290.

Where mortgaged premises have subsequently been sold in parcels to different purchasers, each must bear or contribute proportionally to the discharge of the incumbrance, and not in the inverse order of alienation. * This section of the code does not apply to mortgages executed by others than the debtor, and a general execution cannot properly issue against the mortgagor in such case for any deficiency existing after the sale of the mortgaged property. Chittenden & Co. v. Gossage, 18 Iowa, 157.

SEC. 3329. In cases where the vendor of real estate has given a bond or other writing to convey the same on payment of the purchase money, and such money or any part thereof remains unpaid after the day fixed for payment, whether time is or is not of the essence of the contract, such vendor may file his petition asking the court to require the purchaser to perform his contract, or to foreclose and sell his interest in the property.

The penalty prescribed is section 3327, for a failure to enter satisfaction on the margin of the record, when the mortgage is paid. If it is incurred, if the mortgagee shall fail to enter satisfaction within six months after being requested to do so; and an entry of satisfaction after that time, even if made before suit brought for the penalty, will not avoid a recovery therefor by the mortgagee. Deeter v. Crossley, 26 id., 180.

It was held under the code of 1851, that a vendor of real estate, when the purchase money remains unpaid, was not compelled to pursue the remedy indicated in sections 2094 and 2095 of the code, which were substantially identical with sections 3329 and 3330, of this code. These sections were held not to take away other rights. Page v. Cole, 6 Iowa, 153.

It was accordingly further held in that case that, where the vendee takes possession of the real estate purchased, with the consent of the vendor, and fails to pay the purchase money as has been paid, or tendering back the notes of the vendee given for the balance of the purchase money. Id.

The vendor shall in such cases, for the purpose of the foreclosure, be treated as a mortgagee of the property purchased, and his rights may be foreclosed in a similar manner.

OF ACTIONS FOR NUISANCE, WASTE, AND TRESPASS.

Section 3331. Whatever is injurious to health, or indecent or offensive to the senses, or an obstruction to the free use of property, so as essentially to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, is a nuisance, and a civil action by ordinary proceedings may be brought thereon by any person injured thereby; in which action bond for a deed, assigns the promissory note received for the purchase money of the land, and agrees that the assignee shall be substituted to the benefit of all the security held by him, the assignee of such note is entitled to the same rights of the vendor himself, in case of the non-payment of the note by the purchaser; and he may bring an action of foreclosure in his own name against the vendee and all persons claiming under him, with notice. Blair v. Marsh, 8 Id., 144.

An action to foreclose a title bond is local in its nature, and is properly brought in the county where the land is situated. Johns v. Orcutt, 9 Id., 350.

The vendor of real estate may treat the bond executed for a conveyance as a mortgage, and may recover a judgment against the vendee for the amount due thereon and for the foreclosure of the same in one action. Hartman v. Clarke, 11 Id., 301.

The vendor may bring his action to foreclose for an installment of the purchase money remaining unpaid. Tuttle v. Viers and Nichols, 14 Id., 575.

So also he may recover for an installment of interest due and unpaid. Hershey v. Hershey, 18 Id., 24.

The vendor of real estate who has made a bond for a deed is not confined to the remedy of foreclosure prescribed in sections 3329 and 3330. He may at his election treat the vendee as a mortgagee and foreclose as in case of an express mortgage, or he may proceed at law for the purchase money, or any unpaid and matured installment thereof. Id.

A foreclosure for an installment due, according to the terms of a title bond, before the maturity of the principal amount, and a sale of the property thereunder, exhausts the remedy of the creditor in respect to the land and passes a clear title thereto to the purchaser. Poweshiek County v. Dennison, 36 Id., 244.

This section of the code (3329) does not defeat the right to claim a forfeiture and required foreclosure when the parties have stipulated otherwise in their contract. The Iowa R. Land Co. v. Hickel, 41 Id., 492.

The rights of parties to a title bond and promissory note made for the purchase and sale of real estate are the same as those of parties to a mortgage, and persons not made parties to a foreclosure of such bond are not affected by the decree therein. Dukes v. Turner, 44 Id., 575.

If the land covered by the bond has been divided into parcels, each parcel must contribute its share to the payment of the debt, in redeeming the same from a foreclosure sale of the whole. Id.

In an action at law upon a promissory note executed for the whole or a part of the purchase price of land, which the payee covenants to convey upon its payment, the grantor cannot recover without showing performance on his part, either by tender of a deed or offer to convey. Zebly v. Sears, 38 Id., 507; School District v. Rogers, 8 Id., 316; Berryhill v. Byington, 10 Id., 223.

A vendor's lien for the purchase money of real property must be enforced by foreclosure as a mortgage. Scott v. Meachem, 49 Id., 457, 459.

The design of this section and the next preceding one (3329, 3330) was to place the vendor and vendee of real property in the same position as relates to the remedy, as the mortgagee and mortgagor of express mortgages. Pierson v. Davoll et al., 1 Iowa, 23, 34; Blair & Co. v. Marsh, 8 Id., 144; Walker v. Kynett, 32 Id., 524, 530.

In an action on a title bond for real estate to recover a balance of the purchase money remaining unpaid, it is erroneous for the court to declare the bond forfeited, and the land discharged from the same. In such case judgment should be rendered for the amount due, the bond should be foreclosed as a mortgage and the property ordered to be sold to satisfy the judgment. Gamut v. Gregg, 37 Id., 573.

Sec. 3332. If a guardian, tenant for life or years, joint tenant or tenant in common, of real property commit waste thereon, he is liable to pay three times the damages which have resulted from such waste, to the person who is entitled to sue therefor.

Sec. 3333. Judgment of forfeiture and eviction may be rendered against the defendant, whenever the amount of damages so recovered is more than two-thirds the value of the interest such defendant has in the property wasted, and when the action is brought by the person entitled to the reversion.

Sec. 3334. Any person whose duty it is to prevent waste, and who has not used reasonable care and diligence to prevent it, is deemed to have committed it.

Sec. 3335. For willful trespass in injuring any timber, tree, or shrub on the land of another; or in the street or highway in front of another's cultivated ground, yard, or town lot, or on the public grounds of any town, or any land held by this statute, maintain an action for the recovery of damages. Sec. 3336. For willful trespass in injuring the nuisance may be enjoined or abated, and damages also recovered therefor.

Trees growing in a street or highway do not constitute a nuisance unless they obstruct public travel. \textit{Id.}; and Bills \textit{v. Belknap}, 36 Id., 583; \textit{Patterson v. Vail}, 43 Id., 142.

Where the supervisor fails to remove trees that obstruct public travel on the highway mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel him to perform his duty. \textit{Patterson v. Vail}, 43 Id., 142.

So also the road supervisor may be restrained by injunction at the suit of a land owner from removing trees standing in the highway adjacent to and in front of such owner's premises, where such removal is not demanded by the wants of the public travel and convenience. \textit{Bills v. Belknap}, 36 Id., 583.

A nuisance may be both public and private in its character, and in so far as it is private it gives a right of action to the party who suffers special damage therefrom. \textit{Park v. The C. & S. W. R. Co.}, 43 Id., 636.

Injuries resulting from the obstruction of highways leading to the premises of a party complaining, and interfering with access to them, are proper grounds of recovery by the party, even though many others sustain like injuries from the same cause. \textit{Id.}

A party cannot successfully urge that a structure standing on his neighbor's premises is a nuisance, and have the same abated, when he maintains a like structure, equally offensive, on his own premises. \textit{Casady v. Cavenor}, 37 Id., 300.

To abate a nuisance caused by a pond of water, one injured thereby has not the right to fill up the bed of the water, but may remove the cause rendering it impure, or restrain the one whose conduct produced the result. \textit{Finley v. Hershey}, 41 Id., 359; see, also, \textit{The State v. Kaster}, 35 Id., 221.
Sec. 3336. Nothing herein contained authorizes the recovery of more than the just value of timber taken from uncultivated woodland, for the repair of a public highway or bridge upon the land in its immediate neighborhood.

Sec. 3337. The owner of an estate in remainder or reversion, may maintain either of the aforesaid actions for injuries done to the inheritance, notwithstanding any intervening estate for life or years.

Sec. 3338. An heir, whether a minor or of full age, may maintain these actions for injuries done in the time of his ancestor as well as in his own time, unless barred by the statute of limitations.

Sec. 3339. Whenever lands or tenements are sold by virtue of an execution, the purchaser at such sale may maintain his action against any person for either of the causes above mentioned, occurring or existing after his purchase.

Sec. 3340. This provision is not intended to prevent the person who occupies the lands in the meantime, from using them in the ordinary course of husbandry, or from using timber for the purpose of making suitable repairs thereon.

Sec. 3341. But if for this purpose he employs timber vastly superior to that required for the occasion, he will be deemed to have committed waste and will be liable accordingly.

Sec. 3342. Any person settled upon and occupying any portion of the public lands held by the state, is not liable as a trespasser for improving it or cultivating it in the ordinary course of husbandry, nor for taking and using timber or other materials necessary and proper to enable him to do so, provided the timber and other materials be taken from land properly constituting a part of the "claim" or tract of land so settled upon and occupied by him.

Sec. 3343. The owner of a treasurer’s certificate of purchase of land sold for taxes, may recover treble damages of any person committing waste or trespass thereon as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 3344. All moneys recovered in an action brought under the preceding section, shall be paid by the officer collecting the same, to the auditor of the county in which such lands are situated, and the same shall be held by such auditor, and an entry thereof made by him in a book kept for that purpose, until such lands are redeemed or a treasurer’s deed therefor shall have been executed to the holder of said certificate. If redemption be made, the money shall be paid to the owner of the land, and if not redeemed, to the person to whom such deed is executed.

CHAPTER 6.

OF ACTIONS TO TEST OFFICIAL AND CORPORATE RIGHTS.

Section 3345. A civil action by ordinary proceedings may be brought in the name of the state as plaintiff in the following cases:

1. Against any person unlawfully holding or exercising any public office or franchise within this state, or any office in any corporation created by this state;
2. Or against any public officer who has done or suffered any act which works a forfeiture of his office.

3. Or against any person acting as a corporation within this state without being authorized by law;

4. Or against any corporation doing or omitting acts, which amount to a forfeiture of their rights and privileges as a corporation, or exercising powers not conferred by law;

5. Or against any persons claiming under any letters patent, granted by the proper authorities of this state, for the purpose of annulling or vacating the same, as having been obtained by fraud, or through mistake or ignorance of a material fact, or when the defendants have done or omitted an act in violation of the terms or conditions on which the letters were granted, or have by any other means forfeited the interest acquired under the same.¹

Sec. 3346. To such action there shall be no joinder of any other cause of action, nor any counter claim.

Sec. 3347. Such action may be commenced by the district attorney at his discretion, and must be so commenced when directed by the governor, the general assembly, or a court of record.

Sec. 3348. If the district attorney, on demand, neglect or refuse to commence the same, any citizen of the state having an interest in the question, may apply to the court in which the action is to be commenced, or to the judge thereof, for leave to do so, and, upon obtaining such leave may, prosecute the action to final judgment in other respects as provided.

Sec. 3349. The petition shall contain a plain statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of the proceeding, and, with the notice, and all the subsequent pleadings and proceedings shall conform to the rule given for procedure in civil actions in title seventeen of this code, except so far as the same are modified by this chapter.

Sec. 3350. When such action is brought upon the relation of a private individual, that fact shall be stated in the petition, and the order allowing him to prosecute may require that he shall be responsible for costs in case they are not adjudged against the defendant. In other cases the payment of costs shall be regulated by the same rule as in criminal actions.

¹ Under our statute an action in the nature of a quo warranto against persons claiming to hold office must generally be brought in the name of the state; it can be prosecuted only by the public officer, although he may do so upon the relation of an individual, and even for his benefit; it seems if the proper prosecutor should refuse, he may be directed to prosecute it, by the governor, legislature, or district court. Scott v. Clark et al., 1 Iowa, 70. But, see section 3348, of the Code, as to the prosecution of the action when the district attorney refuses.

The right to a municipal or city office may be contested in an action in the nature of a quo warranto. State ex rel. v. Funck, 17 Id., 365.

Where an office or franchise is being usurped, an injunction as an independent means of relief, is not a proper remedy. An action in the nature of quo warranto is the only remedy. Cochran v. Mc Cleary, 22 Id., 75, 90; Desmond v. McCarthy, 17 Id., 923, 527.

An action under this chapter will not lie to annul a city ordinance passed in the irregular and improper exercise of a power conferred by law. The State ex rel. v. The City of Lyons 31 Id., 432.

An action to test the right of certain persons, claiming to be a corporation, to act as such, must be against the individuals themselves and not against the alleged corporation. When a corporation is brought into court by its corporate name, its existence is admitted. The State v. The Ind. Sch. Dist. of Dallas Centre, 44 Id., 227.

The right to preside over the proceedings of a city council is a "franchise" within the meaning of this chapter, the right to which may be tested by an action in the nature of quo warranto. Cochran v. Mc Cleary, 22 Id., 75.

CHAPTER 7.

OF ACTIONS ON OFFICIAL SECURITIES, AND FINES AND FORFEITURES.

SECTION 3368. The official bond of a public officer is to be construed as a security to the body politic or civil corporation of which he is an officer, and also to all the members thereof, severally, who are intended to be thereby secured.

Sec. 3369. A judgment in favor of a party for one delinquency, does not preclude the same or another party from an action on the same security for another delinquency, except that sureties can be made liable in the aggregate only to the extent of their undertaking.

Sec. 3370. Fines and forfeitures not otherwise disposed of, go into the treasury of the county where the same are collected for the benefit of the school fund.

A judgment rendered against a sheriff for a breach of official duty, is not a bar to another action for the same cause against the sureties on his official bond. Charles v. Haskins, 11 Iowa, 329.

A sheriff and his sureties are liable on his official bond for trespasses committed by him in attempting to perform his official duties. Id.

A mistake as to the name of the obligee in an official bond will not operate to vitiate the instrument. Id.

Where a constable acting in his official capacity levied upon and sold property which was exempt from execution, he and his sureties were held liable on his official bond for the damages thereby sustained. Strunk v. Ocheltree, 11 Id., 158.

Where a deputy sheriff collects money on execution and fails to pay it over, the remedy is by an action against the sheriff on his official bond, and not against the deputy and his sureties. Brayton v. Town, 12 Id., 346.

Sureties on official bonds are liable only for acts done by their principal during the term for which the bond was given, even when the principal holds over after the expiration of such term. Wapello County v. Bigham, 10 Id., 39.
CHAPTER 8.

OF ACTIONS OF MANDAMUS.

SECTION 3373. The action of mandamus is one brought in a court of competent jurisdiction, to obtain an order of such court commanding an inferior tribunal, board, corporation, or person to do or not to do an act, the performance or omission of which the law enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station. Where discretion is left to the inferior tribunal or person, the mandamus can only compel it to act, but cannot control such discretion.\(^1\)

\(^1\) Under the code of 1851 the proceeding by mandamus was a prosecution, and ran in the name of the state. It was commenced by the filing of an information under oath, and on motion presented in open court, whereupon the court granted a rule to show cause why an alternative writ should not issue, or ordered the alternative writ to issue. To this writ the defendant made return or answer upon which the issues were tried and either granted or refused the peremptory writ. Chance v. Temple, 1 Iowa, 178.

The office of a writ of mandamus is to compel the party to whom it is addressed to perform a duty which results from an office, trust or station. The State ex rel. Dox. v. The County Judge, etc., 12 Id., 237, 246; Patterson v. Vail, 43 Id., 143; Larkin v. Harris, 36 Id., 98.

The district court has the power to enforce, by mandamus, the discharge of an official duty involving no exercise of discretion, by an executive officer of the state. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Id., 558.

The court may, by writ of mandamus compel the auditor of state to issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for a sum due a public officer on his salary. Id.

The duty of the council of a municipal corporation to levy a tax not exceeding the maximum limit of the power of taxation, for the payment of a judgment against the corporation, upon which an execution has been issued and returned nulla bona, may be enforced by mandamus. Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 17 Id., 1.

The proprietor of a newspaper has no such private or personal interest in the publication of the laws or the proceedings of the board of supervisors, as that he can maintain, in his own name, an action of mandamus to compel the board to order such publication in his paper. Welch v. The Board, etc., 23 Id., 199.

Where a discretion is allowed to the board or officer, such discretion cannot be controlled by mandamus, though the discretion be exercised unwisely. Clark v. The Board of Directors, etc., 24 Id., 266; Jones et al. v. Trustees, etc., 26 Id., 594.

The action of mandamus will lie to compel the county treasurer, holding money collected upon tax to pay a judgment against the county, to pay the same over to the judgment creditor on demand. Brown v. Cregy, 32 Id., 498.

The directors of a school district, on their refusal to levy a tax to pay a judgment against the district, may be compelled to do so by mandamus, the electors of the district having failed and refused to provide therefor, by voting the necessary tax. Section 3049 of the code applies as well to school districts as to other civil corporations. Boynton v. The District Tp. of Newton, etc., 34 Id., 510.

That the board of directors have issued an order on the treasurer of the district under section 79 of chapter 172 laws of 1862, for the amount of the judgment against the district, was held, not to operate as payment or satisfaction, or to change the rule above stated. Id.

Mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel the board of supervisors, acting as canvassers of election returns, to declare elected and issue certificates to the persons receiving the highest number of votes cast at an election. Bradford v. Wart etc., 36 Id., 291; The State ex rel. Rice v. The County Judge of Marshall Co., 7 Id., 189.
CHAP. 8.] ACTIONS OF MANDAMUS. 819

SEC. 3374. The order may be issued by the district or circuit court, to any inferior tribunal, or to any corporation, officer, or person; and by the supreme court, to any district or circuit court, if necessary, and also in any other case where it is found necessary for that court to exercise its legitimate power.¹

SEC. 3375. The plaintiff in any action, except those brought for the recovery of specific real or personal property, may also as an auxiliary relief have an order of mandamus to compel the performance of a duty established in such action. But if such duty, the performance of which is sought to be compelled, is not one resulting from an office, trust, or station, it must be one for the breach of which a legal right to damages is already complete at the commencement of the action, and must also be a duty of which a court of equity would enforce the performance.²

SEC. 3376. An order of mandamus shall not be issued in any case where there is a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law, except as herein provided.³

SEC. 3377. The order of mandamus is granted on the petition of any private party aggrieved, without the concurrence of the prosecutor for the state, or on the petition of the state by the district attorney, when the public interest is concerned, and is in the name of such private party or of the state, as the case may be in fact brought.⁴

SEC. 3378. The plaintiff in such action shall state his claim, and shall also state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for such claim, and shall also set forth that the plaintiff, if a private individual, is personally interested therein, and that he sustains and may sustain damage by the non-performance of such duty, and that performance thereof has been demanded by him, and refused or neglected, and shall pray an order of mandamus commanding the defendant to fulfill such duty.⁵

The writ of mandamus can issue from the supreme court only when directed to the district or circuit court, and in aid of the execution of its own powers and orders. Westbrook et al. v. Wicks, 36 Id., 382.

The action may be brought in the circuit as well as in the district court. Brown v. Crego, 29 Id., 321.

² The circuit court has jurisdiction in mandamus proceedings, a proceeding of this character being "a civil action at law" within the meaning of the statute. Brown v. Crego, 29 Iowa, 321.

An action of mandamus will lie against a road supervisor to compel him to remove a fence or other obstruction improperly placed by him upon a highway. Larkin v. Harris, 36 Id., 93.

So also mandamus will lie to compel the road supervisor to remove trees standing in and obstructing the highway, when he fails to perform his duty in this respect. Patterson v. Vail et al., 43 Id., 142.

³ A party aggrieved by the action of a board of school directors having an adequate remedy by appeal to the county superintendent, and from him to the superintendent of public instruction, is not entitled to maintain an action of mandamus. Marshall v. Sloan et al., 35 Iowa, 445.

An action of mandamus will not lie to compel the officers of a county to strike out an assessment alleged to be erroneous. The proper remedy in such case is by application to the board of equalization, from whose decision an appeal may be taken to the circuit court. Meyer v. The County of Dubuque et al., 43 Id., 692.

Where the petition, in an action of mandamus, shows that the plaintiff has a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law, the pleading should be assailed by demurrer and not by motion to dismiss. Id.

⁴ A debt while it remains in its original form, as a simple contract not reduced to a judgment, cannot be made the basis of an action of mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to pay the same, unless it was contracted under a law or vote authorizing such proceedings to enforce payment. Coy v. The City C. of L. C., 17 Iowa, 1.

Sec. 3380. When the action is brought by a private person, it may be obtained by ordinary proceedings, or with the causes of action specified in section three thousand three hundred and seventy-five, but no other joinder, and no counter-claim shall be allowed.

Sec. 3381. When the plaintiff recovers judgment, the court may include therein a peremptory order of mandamus, directed to the defendant, commanding him forthwith to perform the duty to be enforced, together with a money judgment for damages and costs, upon which an ordinary execution may issue.

Sec. 3382. The order shall simply command the performance of the duty, shall be directed to the party and not the sheriff, and may be issued in term or vacation, and returnable forthwith, and no return except that of compliance shall be allowed; but time to return it may, upon sufficient grounds, be allowed by the court or judge, either with or without terms.

Sec. 3383. The court may, upon application of the plaintiff, besides, or instead of proceeding against the defendant by attachment; direct that the act required to be done, may be done, by the plaintiff or some other person appointed by the court at the expense of the defendant, and upon the act being done, the amount of such expense may be ascertained by the court, or by a reference appointed by the court, as the court or judge may order, and the court may render judgment for the amount of such expenses and costs, and enforce payment thereof by execution.

Sec. 3384. During the pendency of the action, the court, or judge in vacation, may make temporary orders for preventing damage or injury to the plaintiff until the case is decided.

Sec. 3385. When the state is a party, it may appeal without security.

At the common law, a mandamus proceeding was not an action proper, nor was it a writ of right, but a prerogative writ obtained upon an information under oath, showing good cause for its issuance.

Chance v. Temple, 1 Iowa, 178.

Under the code mandamus is an ordinary action at law triable as nearly as may be, like an ordinary action for the recovery of damages, and is not triable de novo in the supreme court.

Dove v. The Ind. School Dist. of Keokuk, 41 Id., 689.

The rule that a party cannot bring an action at law against a partnership, board of trustees, or other board of which he is a member, does not apply to the action of mandamus.

Cooper v. Nelson, 38 Iowa, 440.
CHAPTER 9.

OF INJUNCTIONS.

SECTION 3386. An injunction may be obtained as an independent remedy in an action by equitable proceedings, in all cases where such relief would have been granted in equity previous to the adoption of this code; and in all cases of breach of contract or other injury, where the party injured is entitled to maintain, and has brought an action by ordinary proceedings, he may, in the same case, pray and have a writ of injunction against the repetition or continuance of such breach of contract or other injury, or the committal of any breach of contract or injury of a like kind, arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right, and he may also, in the same action, include a claim for damages or other redress.

A creditor is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the sale of real property by his debtor before he has recovered a judgment upon his demand, which is a lien on such property. Buchanan v. Marsh, 17 Iowa, 304.

The right to a public office or franchise cannot be determined in an independent action for an injunction. Cochran v. McLeary, 22 Iowa, 75.

In an action for a breach of contract, the plaintiff may, in the same proceeding, under this section, have an injunction against the continuance of the breach which injuriously affects his property or rights. Ewell v. Greenwood, 26 Iowa, 377; Berger v. Yeiser v. Armstrong, 41 Iowa, 447.

The liberal provisions of our code in relation to the subject of amendments are, so far as reasonable and proper, to be applied to injunction suits as well as others. Des Moines Nat. & Stock Co. v. Colman, 27 Iowa, 487.

An injunction restraining a public officer from executing conveyances from the state to individuals who have purchased lands from it, but who are not made parties to the proceeding, will not be continued when it is alleged in the petition upon which the writ is issued, that the plaintiff has the full and complete title to the land, and it appears that there is no obstacle in the way of the plaintiff bringing suits against the individuals claiming adversely, and thus have the question of title settled, and the injunction has been in force for several years and no such actions have been commenced. Id.

In an action for damages for breach of a contract that the defendant would not engage, in the same town, in a certain business purchased of him by the plaintiff, in order to entitle the plaintiff to an injunction, the petition should allege a continuance and present engagement in the business by the plaintiff. Berger v. Yeiser v. Armstrong, 41 Iowa, 79; Crawford v. Paine, 19 Iowa, 172; Way v. Lamb, 15 Iowa, 80; Kriebbaun v. Bridges, 1 Iowa, 1; Butch v. Lash, 4 Iowa, 215; Schricker v. Field, 9 Iowa, 356; Haight v. The City of Keokuk, 4 Iowa, 412; Ewell v. Greenwood, 26 Iowa, 371; Berger v. Yeiser v. Armstrong, 41 Iowa, 447.

The writ may also be granted to restrain by injunction the collection of taxes for mere irregularities in the assessment. Williams v. City of Dubuque, 13 Iowa, 70; Olmstead v. Board of Supervisors of Henry County, 24 Iowa, 33; Williams v. Price, 25 Iowa, 436; Cattell v. Lowrey et al., 45 Iowa, 473.

A court of equity has jurisdiction of an ac-
SEC. 3387. In any of the cases mentioned in the preceding section, the injunction may either be a part of the judgment rendered in the action, or it may, if proper grounds therefor are shown, be granted by order at any stage of the case before judgment, and shall then be known as a temporary injunction.

SEC. 3388. Where it appears by the petition therefor, which must be supported by affidavit, that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief, or any part thereof, consists in restraining the commission or continuance of some act which would produce great or irreparable injury to the plaintiff; or where, during litigation, it appears that the defendant is doing, or threatens, or is about to do, or is procuring, or suffering to be done, some act in violation of the plaintiff's rights respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual, a temporary injunction may be granted to restrain such act. It may also be granted in any case where it is specially authorized by statute.

SEC. 3389. A temporary injunction may be granted:
1. By the court or judge thereof in which the action is pending or is to be brought;
2. By any judge of the district or circuit court of such district;
3. By any judge of the supreme, or a judge of any other district or circuit court.

But in cases where an action is pending, and it is applied for to affect the subject matter of such action, it can only be granted by the court, or judge thereof, in which such action is pending. Nor shall it be granted by any judge mentioned in the second subdivision hereof, unless it satisfactorily appears by affidavit that the court or judge thereof in which the action is brought, cannot, for want of time, sickness, or other disability, hear the same, or that the residence of the judge is inconvenient, or that it is for some sufficient reason impracticable to make the application to him. Nor shall it be granted by any judge mentioned in the third subdivision hereof, unless it be made satisfactorily to appear to such judge, by affidavit, that the application thereof cannot, for some sufficient reason, be made to either of the

A party may have an incorporeal interest in a street such as will entitle him to an injunction to restrain a diversion of it to objects and uses inconsistent with the purposes for which it was granted to the city. Ingraham, Kennedy & Day v. The C., D. & M. R. Co., 38 Id., 569.

One who is not injured by the fencing up of a street so that it cannot be used, cannot restrain the inclosure thereof by injunction. Price v. McCoy, 40 Id., 53.

After a railroad company has effected the condemnation of land for a right of way, it will be restrained by injunction from entering upon the land condemned until payment of the damages awarded. Richards v. The D. V. R. Co. 18 Id., 260; Henry v. The D. & P. R. Co., 10 Id., 540; Hibbs v. The Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 39 Id., 340.

Where a foreign railroad corporation is using by sufferance the line of a domestic corporation, a land owner is entitled to an injunction restraining it from the use of that portion of the line running through his land until compensation shall be made for the right of way. Holbert v. The St. L. C. & N. R. Co., 45 Id., 23.

A preliminary injunction will not be dissolved upon the bare allegations of an answer, but proof must be introduced in support thereof. Mills et al. v. Hamilton, 49 Id., 165.

In an action asking damages for a trespass, the plaintiff may also pray for an injunction restraining a repetition of the trespass, and the fact that he has erroneously entitled his action an equitable one will not defeat his right to ask for the injunction, nor is it essential in such case to allege in the petition that the injury threatened will be irreparable. Id.

While courts of equity will, under certain circumstances, interfere by injunction to prevent repeated trespasses upon real property, yet in such case it must be made to appear that the injury would be irreparable, or that adequate compensation could not be obtained therefor. The City of Council Bluffs v. Stewart, 51 Iowa, 385.
INJUNCTIONS.

Sec. 3390. An injunction shall not be granted against a defendant who has answered, unless he has had notice of the application.

Sec. 3391. An injunction to stop the general and ordinary business of a corporation, or the operations of a railway, or of a municipal corporation, or the erection of any building or other work, or the board of supervisors of any county, or to restrain a nuisance, can only be granted upon reasonable notice of the time and place of the application to the party to be enjoined.

Sec. 3392. No injunction shall be granted by a judge, after the application therefor has been overruled by the court; nor by a court or judge when it has been refused by the court or judge thereof in which the action is brought. A judge refusing an injunction, shall, if requested by either party, give him a certificate thereof.

Sec. 3393. The defendant may move to dissolve the injunction, either before or after the filing of the answer.

Sec. 3394. If the order is made by the court, the clerk shall make an entry thereof in the court record, and issue the order accordingly. If made in vacation, the judge must indorse said order upon the petition.

Sec. 3395. In the cases contemplated in the preceding sections, the order of allowance must direct the injunction to issue only after the filing of a bond in the office of the clerk of the proper court, in a penalty to be therein fixed, with sureties to be approved by such clerk, and conditioned for the payment of all damages which may be adjudged against petitioner by reason of such injunction.

Sec. 3396. When proceedings in a civil action, or on a judgment or final order, are sought to be enjoined, the suit must be brought in the county and court in which such action is pending, or the judgment or order was obtained. The bond must also in that case be further conditioned to pay such judgment, or comply with such final order if the injunction is not made perpetual, or to pay any judgment that may be ultimately recovered against the party obtaining the injunction on the cause of action enjoined.

1 In an action by attachment in the circuit court upon a note not yet due, the attachment is the subject matter of the action in such a sense that an injunction will not be granted by the district court restraining the defendant from committing waste of the property attached. Cooney v. Morey, 45 Id., 292.

* An order dissolving an injunction will not operate as a dismissal of the action in which it was issued and it is error for the court to order. Massie v. Mann, 17 Iowa, 131; Watters v. Frederick, 11 Id., 181; Russell v. Wilson, 37 Id., 377; Sennett v. Moles, 38 Id., 25.

A temporary injunction granted by a judge in vacation is not dissolved at the next term of court by the mere failure to procure an order making it perpetual. Curtis et al. v. Crane et al., 38 Id., 450.

If the motion to dissolve is made after answer filed, and the answer plainly and fully, without evasion, denies in substance all the facts relied on in the petition, the injunction will be dissolved, unless there are circumstances making the case an exception, as that irreparable mischief will result from the dissolution. Taylor v. Dickinson, 15 Id., 483; Stevens v. Myers, 11 Id., 183; Anderson v. Reed, Id., 177; Shrickel v. Field, 9 Id., 366; Russell v. Wilson, 37 Id., 377.

It is the right of the defendant to file his motion to dissolve, either before or after answering, and to have the same disposed of as soon as practicable thereafter. Taylor v. Dickinson, 15 Id., 483.

Where the answer of the defendant admits the facts stated in the petition as grounds for the injunction, but seeks to avoid their force and effects by pleading affirmative matter, the injunction should not be dissolved without proof of the averments of the answer. In such case the burden rests on the defendant. Judd v. Hatch, 31 Id., 401.

The district court of a county in which an execution issued from the supreme court is levied on real property, has jurisdiction to enjoin the sale thereunder, upon a proper showing be-

Defendant to show cause.
R. § 3781.

Sec. 3397. The penalty of the bond must be fixed by the court or judge who makes the order, and must be doubly sufficient to cover any probable amount of liability to be thereby incurred.

Sec. 3398. The court or judge before granting the writ, may, if deemed advisable, allow the defendant an opportunity to show cause why such order should not be granted.

Vacation of.

Sec. 3399. If the order is granted without allowing the defendant to show cause, he may, at any time before the next term of the court, apply to the judge who made the order to vacate or modify the same; or the application may be made to the judge of the court in which the action is pending.

Sec. 3400. Such application must be with notice to the plaintiff, and may rest upon the ground that the order was improperly granted, or it may be founded on the answer of defendants and affidavits. In the latter case the plaintiff may fortify his application by counter affidavits, and have reasonable time therefor.

Sec. 3401. The judge may thereupon decide the matter at once, unless some good cause for delay is shown. But the vacation of the order shall not prevent the cause from proceeding if anything be left to proceed upon.

Sec. 3402. Only one motion to dissolve or modify an injunction upon the whole case shall be allowed.

Violation of.

Sec. 3403. Any judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, being furnished with an authenticated copy of the injunction, and also with satisfactory proof that such injunction has been violated, shall issue his precept to the sheriff of the county where the violation of the injunction occurred, or to any other sheriff, naming him, more convenient to all parties concerned, directing him to attach said defendant, and bring him forthwith before the same or some other judge, at a place to be stated in said precept.

Sec. 3404. If, when thus produced, he files his affidavit denying or sufficiently excusing the contempt charged, he shall be released, and the affidavit shall be filed with the clerk for preservation.

Sec. 3405. But if he fail to do so, the judge may require him to give bond, with surety, for his appearance at the next term of the court, and also for his future obedience to the injunction, which bond shall be filed with the clerk.

The remedy is not thus limited when it is sought to restrain a sale under a general execution, of property alleged to belong, not to the judgment debtor but to a third person, who seeks the injunction.

The fact that the judgment was rendered in a county whose court had no jurisdiction, will not vary the rule that, to restrain the enforcement of a judgment by execution, the remedy must be sought in the county and court where the judgment was rendered on which the execution issued.

SUBMITTING CONTROVERSIES. 825

Sec. 3406. If he fail to give such security, he may be committed to the jail of the county where the proceedings are pending until the next term of the court.

Sec. 3407. If the security be given, the court at the next term shall act upon the case and punish the contempt in the usual mode.

CHAPTER 10.

OF SUBMITTING CONTROVERSIES WITHOUT ACTION OR IN ACTION.

Sec. 3408. Parties to a question in difference which might be the subject of a civil action, may, without action, present an agreed statement of the facts thereof to any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter.

Sec. 3409. It must be shown by affidavit that the controversy is real, and that the proceeding is in good faith to determine the rights of the parties thereto.

Sec. 3410. The court shall thereupon hear and determine the case, and render judgment thereon as if an action were pending.

Sec. 3411. The statement, the submission, and the judgment, shall constitute the record.

Sec. 3412. The judgment shall be with costs, and it may be enforced, and shall be subject to review, in the same manner as if it had been rendered in an action, unless otherwise provided for in the submission.

Sec. 3413. The same may be also done at any time before trial in any action then pending, subject to the same requirements and attended by the same results as in a case without action, and such submission of a stated case shall be an abandonment by both parties of all pleadings filed in such cause, and the cause shall stand on the agreed case alone, which must provide also for any lien had by any attachment, and for any property in the custody of the law, else such lien and such legal custody will be held waived.

Sec. 3414. The parties may, if they think fit, enter into an agreement in writing, that upon the judgment of the court being given in the affirmative or negative of the questions of law raised by such special case, particular property therein described, or a sum of money fixed by the parties, or to be ascertained by the court, or in such manner as the court may direct, shall be delivered to and vested in one of the parties by the other, or in case of money, shall be paid by one of such parties to the other of them, either with or without costs of the action, and the judgment of the court may be entered for the transfer and delivery of such property, or for such sum as shall be so agreed or ascertained, with or without costs, as the case may be.

Sec. 3415. In case no agreement shall be entered into as to the costs of such action, the same shall follow the event, and be recovered by the successful party.
CHAPTER 11.

OF ARBITRATIONS.

SECTION 3416. All controversies which might be the subject of civil action, may be submitted to the decision of one or more arbitrators, as hereafter provided.*

SEC. 3417. The parties themselves, or those persons who might lawfully have controlled a civil action in their behalf for the same subject matter, must sign and acknowledge a written agreement, specifying particularly what demands are to be submitted, the names of the arbitrators and court by which the judgment on their award is to be rendered. b

* At common law parties may by parol submit any matters in controversy between them to arbitration; and this right has not been taken away by this chapter of the code. Conger v. Dean, 3 Iowa, 463.

Where parties seek the aid of the courts for judgment upon an award of arbitrators, the submission to arbitrators must be in the manner required by the statute. Id.

But if parties do not design to ask such aid of the courts, they may, without complying with the regulations of the statute, make such a submission as will be binding upon them. Id.

The remedy upon an award of arbitrators, where the submission has not been in conformity with the statute, is by action thereon. Id.

The term "civil action," used in the statute, includes every kind of action, legal and equitable, except those which come under the criminal jurisdiction of the courts; and matters of purely equitable cognizance may be submitted to arbitration under the statute. Thomlinson v. Hammond, 8 Id., 40.

Where parties to a controversy enter into an agreement to submit a matter to arbitrators, whose award shall be filed in the office of a justice of the peace who shall render judgment thereon as upon the verdict of a jury, the parties thereby submit themselves to the jurisdiction of the justice, and a judgment on the award for an amount within the jurisdiction of the justice is valid and binding. Van Horn v. Balzar, 20 Id., 255.

A submission to arbitrators by parties residing in the county, provided that if the award did not exceed $500, judgment should be entered thereon by a justice of the peace named; that if the amount should exceed the jurisdiction of a justice, judgment shall be entered in any court having jurisdiction of the same: " Held, that it was competent for the district court of the county to render judgment on the award if it exceeded the sum of four hundred dollars. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

An action may be maintained upon an award and to foreclose a mortgage, where the mortgage had been made to indemnify the grantee of certain real property for breach of warranty, and after such breach the matter had been submitted to a common law arbitration, and an award made. McKinnis v. Freeman et al., 38 Id., 364.

A submission to arbitration at common law is always construed most liberally; and where parties submit their "business pertaining to a trade in land," to which the arbitrators confined their deliberations, embracing all the points involved in the controversy, it was held sufficiently certain. Id.

In the absence of a showing of fraud or partiality, an award in a common law arbitration will be sustained, even if the relief granted lies outside of the legal rights of the parties. Id.

Where parties have submitted their controversy to arbitration, the one who seeks to set aside the award, on the ground of mistake, must not only clearly establish the mistake, and that he was prejudiced thereby, but must also show that if the mistake had not occurred the award would have been different. Gorham v. Millard et al., 50 Id., 554.

In whatever manner a controversy is to be settled, the subject matter of it must be ascertained and made definite. The only exception to this rule is, where parties submit to arbitrators all matters in controversy between them, which will embrace every particular matter. Woodard v. Atwater, 3 Iowa, 61.

Where the parties to an action pending in court, submit the matters involved therein to arbitrators, by agreement, and without any order of court, the agreement of submission must be acknowledged as required by this section. Fink v. Fink, 8 Id., 313.

If the submission is not acknowledged, the award cannot be received and adopted by the court as one made under the statute; but it may still be good at common law, and an action maintained thereon, as upon any other agreement. Id.

The same degree of particularity is not required in the acknowledgment of the execution of a submission to arbitrators as in the acknowledg-
CHAP. 11. ARBITRATIONS. 827

Sec. 3418. The submission may be of some particular matters or demands, or of all demands which the one party has against the other, or of all mutual demands on both sides.

Sec. 3419. A submission to arbitration of the subject matter of a suit, may also be made by an order of court, upon agreement of parties after suit is commenced.

Sec. 3420. All the rules prescribed by law in cases of referees, are applicable to arbitrators except as herein otherwise expressed, or except as otherwise agreed upon by the parties.

Sec. 3421. Neither party shall have the power to revoke the submission without the consent of the other.

Sec. 3422. If either party neglect to appear before the arbitrators after due notice, except in case of sickness, they may, nevertheless, proceed to hear and determine the cause upon the evidence which is produced before them.

Sec. 3423. If the time within which the award is to be made is fixed in the submission, no award made after that time shall have any legal effect, unless made upon a recommitment of the matter by the court to which it is reported.

Sec. 3424. If the time of filing the award is not fixed in the submission, it must be filed within one year from the time such submission is signed and acknowledged, unless by mutual consent the time is prolonged.

Sec. 3425. The award must be in writing, and shall be delivered by one of the arbitrators to the court designated in the agreement, or it may be enclosed and sealed by them and transmitted to the court, and not opened until the court so orders.

HEARING IN COURT.

Sec. 3426. The cause shall be entered on the docket of the court at the term to which the award is returned, and shall be called up and acted upon in its order. But the court may require actual notice to be given to either party, when it appears necessary and proper, before proceeding to act on the award.

Sec. 3427. The award may be rejected by the court for any legal and sufficient reasons, or it may be recommitted for a rehearing to the same arbitrators, or any others agreed upon by the parties.

edgment of the execution of a deed of conveyance. * McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

Where matters in controversy are submitted to arbitrators, all of the essential requirements of the statute must be complied with in order to authorize the court to act upon the award. Love v. Burns, 26 Id., 150.

Where the agreement of submission fails to provide for rendering judgment on the award, the court has no power to render such judgment, or to reject the award and recommit the matter to the arbitrators. * Id.

It is necessary to name the arbitrators in the agreement of submission, if the parties intend to ask judgment on the award under the statute. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

* Parties to an action may, by agreement, and without any order of the court, submit to arbitration any and all matters involved in any action then pending between them. Higgins v. Kennedy, 20 Iowa, 474.

* The statute empowers the parties to agree upon the rules that shall govern an arbitration. Thompson v. Blanchard, 2 Iowa, 43, 47.

Arbitrators are not required, like referees, to return a separate finding of facts and their conclusions of law based thereon. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

The award must be in writing and filed in the court named in the agreement of submission. Love v. Burns, 25 Id., 150, 153.

The arbitrators may deliver their award to the clerk personally in vacation. * Id.

* An award can be set aside for fraud, mistake, misconduct or partiality of the arbitrators. Sullivan v. Fink & Co., 3 Iowa, 66.

OF ACTIONS AGAINST BOATS OR RAFTS.

SECTION 3432. In an action brought against the owners of any boat to recover any debt contracted by such owner, or by the master, agent, clerk, or consignee thereof, for supplies furnished, or for labor done, in, about, or on such boat, or for materials furnished in building, repairing, fitting out, furnishing or equipping the same, or to recover for the non-performance of any contract relative to the transportation of persons or property thereon, made by any of the persons aforementioned, or to recover for injuries to persons or property by such boat, or the officers or the crew thereof, done in connection with the business of such boat, a warrant may issue for the seizure of such boat, as hereinafter provided. 1

Sec. 3433. The original petition must be in writing, sworn to and filed with the clerk or justice of the peace, who shall thereupon issue a warrant to the proper officer, commanding him to seize the boat, its apparel, tackle, furniture, and appendages, and detain the same until released by due course of law.

Sec. 3434. And the warrant may be issued on Sunday, if the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall state in his petition and swear thereto, that it would be unsafe to delay proceedings till Monday.

Sec. 3435. It shall be sufficient service of the original notice in such an action, to serve it on the defendant, or on the master, agent, clerk, or consignee of such boat; and if none of them can be found, the notice may be served by posting up a copy thereof on some conspicuous part of the boat. The warrant shall be served according to the direction it contains.

Sec. 3436. Any constable or marshal of any corporate town may serve and execute the warrant provided for in said section, whether the same issue from the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court, or of a justice.

Sec. 3437. Any person interested in the boat may appear for the defendant by himself, his agent or attorney, and conduct the defense of the suit, and no continuance shall be granted to the plaintiff while the boat is held in custody.

Sec. 3438. The boat may be discharged at any time before final judgment, by the giving a bond with sureties, to be approved by the officer serving the warrant, or by the clerk or justice who issued it, in a penalty double the plaintiff’s demand, conditioned that the obligors

1 In an action against a steamboat for supplies, etc., under the statute which is in effect a proceeding in rem, it was held, that in order to give the court jurisdiction, it was necessary that a warrant should issue for the seizure of the boat, and that it should be seized thereunder. Hem v. Steamboat Hamburg, 2 Iowa, 460.

It was held that the seizure and sale of a steamboat under the laws of the state of Missouri, or Illinois, will not divest the lien of a citizen of Iowa, for supplies furnished the boat, while navigating the waters of Iowa. Height & Bro. v. Steamboat Henrietta, 4 Id., 472; Ogden v. Ogden, 13 Id., 176.

Where a steamboat carried freights from the terminus of a railroad and delivered them to the different consignees, and the officers of the boat under a contract with the railroad company collected from the consignees the charges on the freight for transportation over the railroad, it was held that the amount thus collected could not be recovered in an action against the boat under the statute. The C., B. & Q. R. Co. v. The Steamboat W. G. Woodsides, 10 Id., 465.

A claim against a steamboat for supplies may be assigned; and such an assignment transfers to the assignee the statutory lien upon the boat, etc. Strother v. The Steamboat Hamburg, 11 Id., 59.

The jurisdiction of the admiralty courts of the United States held not exclusive in all cases of maritime torts. Trevor v. The Steamboat Ad Hine, 17 Id., 349.

It was further held that under the act of congress of February 26, 1845, the state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the admiralty courts of the United States of maritime torts on navigable rivers, where one of the parties is a steamer or other vessel employed in the commerce or navigation of such river. Id.

It has been subsequently held that the jurisdiction conferred upon the courts of the United States by the ninth section of the judiciary act of 1789 in civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, is exclusive. Walters v. The Steamboat Mollie Dozier, 21 Id., 192.

It was therefore further held, that so much of chapter 149 of the revision as provided to give a remedy in rem, against a boat or vessel for the cause of action of admiralty cognizance, was in conflict with the constitutional legislation of Congress conferring exclusive admiralty jurisdiction on the district courts of the United States. Id.

The admiralty jurisdiction, under the ninth section of the judiciary act of 1789, extends to the public navigable rivers of the United States, and to all public waters capable of being navigated by maritime or commercial vessels, propelled by wind or steam. Id.

Admiralty will take cognizance of maritime torts. Id.

therein will pay the amount which may be found due to the plaintiff, together with the costs."

SEC. 3439. If judgment be rendered for the plaintiff before the boat is thus discharged, a special execution shall be issued against it. If it have been previously discharged, the execution shall issue against the principal and sureties in the bond without further proceedings.

SEC. 3440. The officer may sell any of the furniture or appendages of the boat, if by so doing he can satisfy the demand. If he sell the boat itself, he must sell it to the bidder who will advance the amount required to satisfy the execution, for the lowest fractional share of the boat, unless the person appearing for the boat desire a different and equally convenient mode of sale.

SEC. 3441. If a fractional share of the boat be thus sold, the purchaser shall hold such share or interest jointly with the other owners.

SEC. 3442. If an appeal be taken by the defendant before the boat is discharged as above provided, the appeal bond, if one be filed, will have the same effect in discharging the boat as the bond above contemplated, and execution shall issue against the obligors therein after judgment in the same manner.

SEC. 3443. Nothing herein contained is intended to affect the rights of a plaintiff to sue in the same manner as though the provisions of this chapter had not been enacted.

SEC. 3444. In actions commenced in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, it is sufficient to allege the contract to have been made with the boat itself.

RAFTS.

SEC. 3445. Any raft found in the waters of this state, shall be liable for all debts contracted by the owner, agent, clerk, or pilot thereof, on account of work done or services rendered for such raft.

SEC. 3446. Claims growing out of either of the above causes shall be liens upon the raft, its tackle, and appendages, for the term of twenty days from the time the right of action therefor accrued.

SEC. 3447. The action may be brought directly against the raft, and the same rules shall govern, and the same process shall be had in such action, as are in this chapter prescribed for actions against owners of boats.

SEC. 3448. The execution by or for the owner of such boat or raft, of a bond, whereby possession of the same is obtained or retained by him, shall be an appearance of such owner as a defendant to the action.

1 A bond executed under this provision of the statute, and returned by the sheriff as the bond taken by him for the release of a boat seized by him, is valid, and should be enforced though no formal entry of approval appears thereon. White v. Tisdale, 12 Iowa, 75.

k Under this section, an order for an execution against the principal and sureties on a bond executed in accordance with the provisions of section 3438, may be made, though no formal entry of the discharge of the boat has been made. White v. Tisdale, 12 Iowa, 75.

1 In an action against a barge for labor and material furnished, it is sufficient to allege in the petition that the work was done and the materials furnished at the instance and request of the barge for the repair of the same. West & Co. v. Barge Lady Franklin, 12 Iowa, 75.

The petition should aver that the vessel was navigating the waters of the state at the time of the liability incurred. Steamboat Kentucky v. Brooks et al., 1 G. Greene, 395.
CHAPTER 13.

OF HABEAS CORPUS.

SECTION 3449. The petition for the writ of habeas corpus must be sworn to, and must state:

1. That the person in whose behalf it is sought is restrained of his liberty, and the person by whom, and the place where he is so restrained, mentioning the names of the parties, if known, and if unknown, describing them with as much particularity as practicable;

2. The cause or pretense of such restraint, according to the best information of the applicant; and if it be by virtue of any legal process, a copy thereof must be annexed, or a satisfactory reason given for its absence;

3. It must state that the restraint is illegal, and wherein;

4. That the legality of the imprisonment has not already been adjudged upon a prior proceeding of the same character, to the best knowledge and belief of the applicant;

5. It must also state whether application for the writ has been made to, and refused by, any court or judge, and if such application has been made, a copy of the petition in that case, with the reasons for the refusal thereto appended, must be produced, or satisfactory reasons given for the failure to do so.

Sec. 3450. The petition must be sworn to by the person confined, or by some one in his behalf, and presented to some court or officer authorized to allow the writ.

Sec. 3451. The writ of habeas corpus may be allowed by the supreme, district, or circuit court, or by any judge of either of those courts, and may be served in any part of the state.

Sec. 3452. Application for the writ must be made to the court or judge most convenient in point of distance to the applicant, and the more remote court or judge, if applied to for the writ, may refuse the same unless a sufficient reason be stated in the petition for not making the application to the more convenient court, or a judge thereof.

* * *

The judgment and proceedings of a competent court cannot be revised in another court on habeas corpus. Platt v. Harrison, 6 Iowa, 79; Zelle v. McHenry, 2 N. W. Reporter, 322.

After a conviction of a criminal offense, by a court having jurisdiction, though the conviction be irregular or erroneous, the party convicted is not entitled to the writ of habeas corpus. Id.

A person who is held in custody under an order issued by a court of the United States, in the regular course of procedure, is not entitled to be released on habeas corpus by a state court. A state court has no right to thus interfere with the proceedings and process of the United States courts. Ex parte Holman, 25 Id., 85.

Every court is the sole judge of matters of contempt of its orders or authority; and when a court, having jurisdiction of a cause, is proceeding to arrest a party for contempt, no other court can intermeddle with, or stay the proceeding, or on habeas corpus release the party who is thus being proceeded against. Id. See also, Robbé v. McDonald, 29 Id., 330.

In the exercise of the jurisdiction confided, respectively to the state and federal courts, neither has any right to interfere with, or control the proceedings of the other. Id.

Where the incumbent of an office holds it by color of right, though he is not an officer de jure, his right cannot be inquired into on habeas corpus. It can be determined only in a direct proceeding instituted for that purpose. Ex parte Strahl, 16 Id., 369.

But if a mere usurper should, without color of right, attempt to imprison a person, the legality of the restraint might be inquired into on habeas corpus. Id.

The state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts to inquire into the validity of an enlistment into the army of the United States, upon a writ of habeas corpus. Ex parte Anderson before Dillion, J. at Chambers, 16 Id., 595.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal to the supreme court did not lie from an order or decision of one of the judges of that court, in a habeas corpus proceeding. In re Curley, 34 Iowa, 154.

SEC. 3453. If, from the showing of the petitioner, the plaintiff would not be entitled to any relief, the court or judge may refuse to allow the writ.

SEC. 3454. If the writ is disallowed, the court or judge shall cause the reasons of said disallowance to be appended to the petition and returned to the person applying for the writ.

WRIT ALLOWED.

SEC. 3455. But if the petition show a sufficient ground for relief, and is in accordance with the foregoing requirements, the writ shall be allowed, and may be substantially as follows:

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To the sheriff of, &c., (or to A........ B........, as the case may be).

You are hereby commanded to have the body of C...... D....... by you unlawfully detained, as is alleged, before the court (or before me, or before E........ F........., judge, &c., as the case may be) at ........, on ........, or immediately after being served with this writ, to be dealt with according to law, and have you then and there this writ, with a return thereon of your doings in the premises.

SEC. 3456. When the writ is allowed by a court it is to be issued by the clerk, but when allowed by a judge he must issue the writ himself, subscribing his name thereto without any seal.

SEC. 3457. Any judge, whether acting individually or as a member of the court, who wrongfully and willfully refuses such allowance of the writ when properly applied for, shall forfeit to the party aggrieved the sum of one thousand dollars.

SEC. 3458. Whenever any court or judge authorized to grant this writ, has evidence, from a judicial proceeding before them, that any person within the jurisdiction of such court or officer is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, such court or judge shall issue or cause to be issued, the writ as aforesaid, though no application be made therefor.

SEC. 3459. The court or officer allowing the writ, must cause the district attorney of the proper county to be informed of the issuing of the writ, and of the time and place, where and when it is made returnable.

SERVICE.

3460. The writ may be served by the sheriff, or by any other person appointed for that purpose, in writing, by the court or judge by whom it is issued or allowed. If served by any other than the sheriff, he possesses the same power, and is liable to the same penalty for a non-performance of his duty, as though he were the sheriff.

SEC. 3461. The proper mode of service is by leaving the original writ with the defendant, and preserving a copy thereof on which to make the return of service.

SEC. 3462. If the defendant cannot be found, or if he have not the plaintiff in custody, the service may be made upon any person having the plaintiff in his custody, in the same manner and with the same effect as though he had been made defendant therein.
SEC. 3463. If the defendant conceal himself, or refuse admittance to the person attempting to serve the writ, or if he attempt wrongfully to carry the plaintiff out of the county or the state, after the service of the writ as aforesaid, the sheriff, or the person who is attempting to serve, or who has served the writ as above contemplated, is authorized to arrest the defendant, and bring him, together with the plaintiff, forthwith before the officer or court before whom the writ is made returnable.

SEC. 3464. In order to make such arrest, the sheriff or other person having the writ, possesses the same power as is given to a sheriff for the arrest of a person charged with a felony.

SEC. 3465. If the plaintiff can be found, and if no one appear to have the charge or custody of him, the person having the writ may take him into custody, and make return accordingly. And to get possession of the plaintiff's person in such cases, he possesses the same power as is given by the last section for the arrest of the defendant.

SEC. 3466. The writ of habeas corpus must not be disobeyed for any defects of form or misdescription of the plaintiff or defendant, provided enough is stated to show the meaning and intent of the writ.

SEC. 3467. If the defendant attempt to elude the service of the writ of habeas corpus, or to avoid the effect thereof by transferring the plaintiff to another, or by concealing him, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the penitentiary or county jail not more than one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. And any person knowingly aiding or abetting in any such act, shall be subject to the like punishment.

SEC. 3468. An officer refusing to deliver a copy of any legal process by which he detains the plaintiff in custody, to any person who demands such copy, and tenders the fees therefor, shall forfeit two hundred dollars to the person so detained.

PRECEPT.

SEC. 3469. The court or judge to whom the application for the writ is made, if satisfied that the plaintiff would suffer any irreparable injury before he could be relieved by the proceedings as above authorized, may issue a precept to the sheriff, or any other person selected instead, commanding him to bring the plaintiff forthwith before such court or judge.

SEC. 3470. When the evidence aforesaid is farther sufficient to justify the arrest of the defendant for a criminal offense committed in connection with the illegal detention of the plaintiff, the precept must also contain an order for the arrest of the defendant.

SEC. 3471. The officer or person to whom the precept is directed, must execute the same by bringing the defendant, and also the plaintiff if required, before the court or judge issuing it, and thereupon the defendant must make return to the writ of habeas corpus in the same manner as if the ordinary course had been pursued.

SEC. 3472. The defendant may also be examined and committed, or bailed, or discharged, according to the nature of the case.
HABEAS CORPUS.

PLEADINGS—TRIAL—JUDGMENT.

SEC. 3473. Any person served with the writ is to be presumed to be the person to whom it is directed, although it may be directed to him by a wrong name or description or to another person.

SEC. 3474. Service being made in any of the modes hereinbefore provided, the defendant must appear at the proper time and answer the said petition, but no verification shall be required to the answer.

SEC. 3475. He must also bring up the body of the plaintiff, or show good cause for not doing so.

SEC. 3476. A willful failure to comply with the above requisitions, renders the defendant liable to be attached for contempt, and to be imprisoned till a compliance is obtained, and also subjects him to the forfeiture of one thousand dollars to the party thereby aggrieved.

SEC. 3477. Such attachment may be served by the sheriff, or any other person thereto authorized by the judge, who shall also be empowered to bring up the body of the plaintiff forthwith, and has, for this purpose, the same powers as are above conferred in similar cases.

SEC. 3478. The defendant in his answer must state plainly and unequivocally whether he then has, or at any time has had, the plaintiff under his control and restraint, and if so, the cause thereof.

SEC. 3479. If he has transferred him to another person, he must state that fact, and to whom, and the time thereof, as well as the reason or authority therefor.

SEC. 3480. If he holds him by virtue of a legal process or written authority, a copy thereof must be annexed.

SEC. 3481. The plaintiff may demur or reply to the defendant's answer, but no verification shall be required to the reply, and all issues joined therein shall be tried by the judge or court.

SEC. 3482. Such replication may deny the sufficiency of the testimony to justify the action of the committing magistrate, on the trial of which issue all written testimony before such magistrate may be given in evidence before the court or judge in connection with any other testimony which may then be produced.

SEC. 3483. But it is not permissible to question the correctness of the action of the grand jury in finding a bill of indictment, or of the trial jury in trial of a cause, nor of a court or judge when acting within their legitimate province and in a lawful manner.

SEC. 3484. If no sufficient legal cause of detention is shown the plaintiff must be discharged.

SEC. 3485. Although the commitment of the plaintiff may have been irregular, still, if the court or judge is satisfied from the evidence before them, that he ought to be held to bail, or committed, either for the offense charged, or any other, the order may be made accordingly.

SEC. 3486. The plaintiff may also, in any case, be committed, let to bail, or his bail be mitigated or increased, as justice may require.

*The waiver of a preliminary examination before a committing magistrate will not deprive the defendant of the right, in a habeas corpus proceeding, to introduce testimony for the purpose of showing that he is detained upon insufficient evidence to sustain the charge. Howell v. Patterson, 49 Iowa, 514.

The warrant of commitment issuing to the sheriff of the county in which the examination is held, will authorize his detention and custody by the sheriff.

Where the police court, having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person charged, erroneous rulings by such court cannot be corrected on habeas corpus. Zelle v. McHenry et al., 51 Iowa, 572.
SEC. 3487. Until the sufficiency of the cause of restraint is determined, the defendant may retain the plaintiff in his custody, and may use all necessary and proper means for that purpose.

SEC. 3488. The plaintiff, in writing, or his attorney, may waive his right to be present at the trial, in which case the proceedings may be had in his absence. The writ will in such cases be modified accordingly.

SEC. 3489. Disobedience to any order of discharge subjects the defendant to attachment for contempt, and also to the forfeiture of one thousand dollars to the party aggrieved, besides all damages sustained by him in consequence of such disobedience.

SEC. 3490. When the proceedings are before a judge, except when the writ is refused, all the papers in the case, including his final order, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the final proceedings were had, and a brief memorandum thereof shall be entered by the clerk upon his judgment docket.

CHAPTER 14.

OF CONTEMPTS.

SECTION 3491. The following acts or omissions are deemed to be contempts, and are punishable as such by any of the courts of this state, or by any judicial officer acting in the discharge of an official duty, as hereinafter provided:

1. Contemptuous or insolent behavior towards such court while engaged in the discharge of a judicial duty which may tend to impair the respect due to its authority;

2. Any willful disturbance calculated to interrupt the due course of its official proceedings;

3. Illegal resistance to any order or process made or issued by it;

4. Disobedience to any subpoena issued by it and duly served, or refusing to be sworn, or to answer as a witness;

5. Unlawfully detaining a witness or party to an action or proceeding pending before such court, while going to or remaining at the place where the action or proceeding is thus pending;

6. Any other act or omission specially declared a contempt by law.

* To constitute a contempt under the first subdivision of this section, the act or conduct complained of must have taken place in the actual or constructive presence of the court; and the contemptuous or insolent behavior must be towards the court—the court must be engaged in the discharge of an official duty—and the behavior must tend to impair the respect due to its authority. Dunham v. The State, 6 Iowa, 215.

The contemptuous and insolent conduct need not be in the court room and under the very eye of the court, in order to amount to a contempt. Id.

The publication of articles in a newspaper upon the conduct of a judge, in respect to causes pending in his court, and which were disposed of before the publication, or the publication of the evidence and the arguments of counsel in a case undisposed of, in which there was no rule of court against such publication, however unjust and libelous the publication may be, do not amount to contumacious or insolent behavior towards the court under this chapter; nor are they so calculated to impede, embarrass, or obstruct the court in the administration of the law, as to justify the summary punishment of the offender under the statute. Id.; also, The State v. Anderson, 40 Id., 207.

A refusal to obey a subpoena issued in a mat-
SEC. 3492. In addition to the above, any court of record may punish the following acts or omissions as contempts:
1. Failure to testify before a grand jury, when lawfully required to do so;
2. Assuming to be an officer, attorney, or counselor of the court, and acting as such without authority;
3. Misbehavior as a juror, by improperly conversing with a party, or with any other person in relation to the merits of an action in which he is acting or is to act as a juror, or receiving a communication from any person in respect to it without immediately disclosing the same to the court;
4. Disobedience by an inferior tribunal, magistrate, or officer, to any lawful judgment, order, or process of a superior court, or proceeding in any matter contrary to law, after it has been removed from such tribunal, magistrate, or officer.

SEC. 3493. The punishment for contempts may be by fine or imprisonment, or both, but where not otherwise specially provided, courts of record are limited to a fine of fifty dollars, and an imprisonment not exceeding one day and all other courts are limited to a fine of ten dollars.

SEC. 3494. But if the contempt consists in an omission to perform an act which is yet in the power of the person to perform, he may be imprisoned until he performs it. In that case the act to be performed must be specified in the warrant of the commitment.

SEC. 3495. Unless the contempt is committed in the immediate view and presence of the court, or comes officially to its knowledge, an affidavit showing the nature of the transaction is necessary as a basis for further action in the premises.

SEC. 3496. Before punishing for contempt, unless the offender is already in the presence of the court, he must be served personally with a rule to show cause against the punishment, and a reasonable time given him therefor; or he may be brought before the court forthwith, or on a given day, by warrant, if necessary. In either case he may, at his option, make a written explanation of his conduct under oath, which must be filed and preserved.

SEC. 3497. Where the action of the court is founded upon evidence given by others, such evidence must be in writing, and be filed and preserved, and if the court act upon their own knowledge in the premises, a statement of the facts upon which the order is founded.

A witness who is in contempt may be arrested upon a warrant directing the arrest in vacation, but the court may also order his discharge by the officers interested with the writ, upon bail fixed by the court. These proceedings, however, are authorized only in cases of actual contempt, and when necessary to the proper administration of justice.

The State v. Archer, 48 Id., 310.
must be entered on the records of the court, or be filed and preserved when the court keeps no record.\(^1\)

Sec. 3408. When the offender is committed, the warrant must state the particular facts and circumstances on which the court acted, or was proved by witnesses.

Sec. 3409. No appeal lies from an order to punish for a contempt, but the proceedings may, in proper cases, be taken to a higher court for revision by certiorari.\(^1\)

\(^1\) In proceedings to punish for contempt the directions as to the evidence and judgment of facts contained in this section must be complied with. Skiff v. State, 2 Ia., 550; The State v. Utley, 13 Ia., 593.

Proceedings to punish for contempt are in their nature criminal, and are not entitled of the case wherein the contempt occurs. First Cong. Ch. v. Muscatine, Id., 69.

A party in contempt for failure to comply with a rule awarded against him, may be refused leave to plead until he has purified himself of the contempt. Saylor v. Mockbie, 9 Ia., 209.

A writ of attachment against an officer for contempt should run against him in his individual name. The State ex rel. etc. v. Smith etc., 9 Ia., 534.

To be error without prejudice to permit oral evidence to be given in a hearing for contempt, when the action of the court is sufficiently supported by affidavit. The State v. Meyers, 44 Ia., 580.

Ordinarily the presumptions are in favor of the regularity of the proceedings of courts of record, and that there was sufficient evidence to justify their judgment; but in cases of contempt the statute has provided otherwise, and the evidence or facts must be entered of record, or filed and preserved. Skiff v. The State, 2 Ia., 550.

When the court acts upon its own knowledge in the premises, a statement of the facts upon which the order punishing for contempt was based, must appear of record; and when the court acts upon evidence given by others, the record must show the evidence upon which the court acted. The State v. Utley, 13 Ia., 593; The State v. Dougherty, 22 Ia., 261; The State v. Felson, 44 Ia., 583; The State v. White, Id., 583; Skiff v. The State, 2 Ia., 550.

A record entry that "H. J. S. fined for contempt of court, fifty dollars; for a second contempt, fined one hundred dollars, and ordered to be committed to jail for three days. Mi. in mus issued to sheriff of Polk county to confine H. J. S. in the jail of said county for three days," is too barren of every legal requisite to justify either the fine or the imprisonment of a citizen in this country. Skiff v. The State, 2 Ia., 550.

A judgment that the defendant pay a fine and stand committed until it is satisfied, for a contempt of court, should specify the extent of the imprisonment, which cannot exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars. The State v. Meyers, 44 Ia., 580.

In the absence of the statute each court of record is the sole and final judge in matters of contempt. The First Cong. Ch. of B. v. The City of Muscatine, 2 Ia., 69; Ex parte Holman, 23 Ia., 88.

A contempt may be punished irrespective of the regularity of the original proceedings. Id. A proceeding against a corporation is necessarily personal, while the corporation cannot be imprisoned those acting in its aid in the violation of an injunction, may. Id.

The power to punish for contempt is a necessary one, but should be carefully exercised. Skiff v. The State, 2 Ia., 69.

The writ of habeas corpus will not lie by one court, or a judge thereof, to examine or review the proceedings of another in cases of commitment for contempt, excepting cases so grossly defective as to render them void. Rob v. McDonald, 29 Ia., 330; Ex parte Holman, 23 Ia., 88.

The district court possesses no power to order a party to deliver to a sheriff the key of a safe, which, with the contents, the party claims as his own property; and upon his refusal to obey such order, to fine him, summarily, as for a contempt. The State v. Start, 7 Ia., 501.

The publication, by an attorney of an article in a newspaper, criticising the ruling of the court in a cause pending, and determining, prior to such publication, does not constitute contemptuous or violent behavior toward the court, punishable as a contempt. The State v. Anderson, 40 Ia., 207.

The publication of an article in a newspaper by one not an attorney, reflecting on the conduct of a judge in respect to a cause pending in his court, which had been disposed of prior to the publication, however unjust and libelous the publication might be, was not punishable as a contempt. Dunham v. The State, 6 Ia., 245.

1 In the absence of a statute allowing it, no appeal lies from an order of a court punishing or refusing to punish for a contempt; each court of record is the sole and final judge in matters of contempt. The First Cong. Ch. of Bloomington v. City of Muscatine, 2 Ia., 69; Dunham v. The State, 6 Ia., 245.

The statute, while it does not allow an appeal, does provide for a review of proceedings for contempt by certiorari. Id. See, also, Henry v. Ellis, 49 Ia., 203, 205.
SEC. 3500. The punishment for a contempt constitutes no bar to an indictment; but if the offender is indicted and convicted for the same offense, the court in passing sentence must take into consideration the punishment before inflicted.

SEC. 3501. Any officer authorized to punish for contempt, is a court within the meaning of this chapter.\(^a\)

CHAPTER 15.

OF CHANGING NAMES.

SECTION 3502. The district or circuit court has power to change the names of persons in the following manner.\(^v\)

SEC. 3503. The applicant for such change must file his petition verified by his oath, stating that he is a resident of the county, and has for one year then last past, been an actual resident of the state. It must also give a description of his person, stating his age, height, the color of his hair and eyes, the place of his birth, and who were his parents.

SEC. 3504. An order of the court shall thereupon be made and entered of record, giving a description of the applicant as set forth in the petition, the new name given, the time at which the change shall take effect, which shall not be less than thirty days thereafter, and directing in what newspaper of general circulation in the county, notice of such change shall be published.

SEC. 3505. Previous to the time thus prescribed for the taking effect of such change, the applicant shall cause notice thereof to be published for four successive weeks in the newspaper directed by the court.

SEC. 3506. The ordinary proof of such publication being filed in the office of the clerk of the court, shall be by him filed for preservation, and on the day fixed by the court as aforesaid the change shall be complete.

\(^a\) The judge from whose court an order has been issued respecting the disposition or possession of property, may in vacation, punish by fine and imprisonment any one guilty of hindering or obstructing the execution of such order. The State v. Myers, 44 Id., 580.

\(^v\) A change in name of a partnership does not have the effect to revoke or annul an agency conferred upon it, when the firm under the new name is composed of the same persons as that under the old one. Billingsly v. Dawson, 27 Iowa, 210.
TITLE XXI.

OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND THEIR COURTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND THEIR COURTS.

SECTION 3507. The jurisdiction of justices of the peace, when not specially restricted, is co-extensive with their respective counties; but does not embrace suits for the recovery of money against actual residents of any other county, except as provided in section three thousand five hundred and thirteen of this chapter.¹

SEC. 3508. Within the prescribed limit, it extends to all civil cases except cases by equitable proceedings, where the amount in controversy does not exceed one hundred dollars; and, by consent of parties, it may be extended to any amount not exceeding three hundred dollars.²

WHERE SUITS MAY BE BROUGHT.

SEC. 3509. Suits may in all cases be brought in the township where the plaintiff or defendant, or one of several defendants, resides.

¹ Where in an action before a justice of the peace against a resident of another county, the defendant appeared, it was held that such appearance did not confer jurisdiction, and that even after such appearance a motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction should be sustained. Boyer v. Moore, 43 Iowa, 544; Post v. Brownell & Co., 37 Id., 497.

² In an action before a justice of the peace, the amount claimed is the criterion of jurisdiction, and not the amount that may appear to be due on the instrument upon which the suit is based; hence a justice has jurisdiction of an action on a penal bond for three hundred dollars, when the plaintiff only claims to recover one hundred dollars. Stone v. Murphy, 2 Iowa, 35.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction to render judgment upon an award of arbitrators returned to him for that purpose, pursuant to the agreement of submission, when the amount of the award does not exceed the justice's jurisdiction in cases of consent. Whitis v. Culver, 25 Id., 30; Van Horn v. Bellar, 20 Id., 235.

Section 2589 code, providing that if suit be brought in the wrong county the defendant may have a change of venue to the proper county is not applicable to actions before justices of the peace. Post v. Brownell & Co., 36 Id., 497.

A justice of the peace cannot acquire jurisdiction in an action for the recovery of money against a resident of another county, even though the defendant may have been served with notice in the township where the action is commenced Hamilton v. Milhouse, 46 Id., 74.

Nor can a justice acquire jurisdiction in such case, even though the action be aided by attachment. Gates v. Wagner, 46 Id., 355.

Where parties reside. R. § 3851. Ch. 149, 12 G. A.
SEC. 3510. They may also be brought in any other township of the same county, if actual service on one or more of the defendants is made in such township.

SEC. 3511. Actions to recover personal property, and suits commenced by attachment, may be commenced in any county and township wherein any portion of the property is found, and justices shall have jurisdiction therein within the county.

SEC. 3512. If none of the defendants reside in the state, suit may be commenced in any county and township wherein either of the defendants may be found.

SEC. 3513. On written contracts, stipulating for payment at a particular place, suit may be brought in the township where the payment was agreed to be made.

SEC. 3514. If there is no justice in the proper township qualified or able to try the suit, it may be commenced in any adjoining township in the same county.

JUSTICE'S DOCKET.

SEC. 3515. Every justice of the peace shall keep a docket in which shall be entered, in continuous order, with the proper date to each act done:

1. The title to each cause;
2. A brief statement of the nature and amount of the plaintiff's demand, and defendant's counter claim, if any, giving date to each where dates exist;
3. The issuing of the process, and the return thereof;
4. The appearance of the respective parties;
5. Every adjournment, stating at whose instance and for what time;
6. The trial, and whether by the justice or by a jury;
7. The verdict and judgment;
8. The execution, to whom delivered, the renewals, if any, and the amount of debt, damages, and costs indorsed thereon;
9. The taking and allowance of an appeal, if any;
10. The giving a transcript for filing in the clerk's office, or for counter claim, if one is given;
11. A note of all motions made, and whether refused or granted.

'The jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, in attachment and replevin cases, is not limited to the township in which the justice resides, or in which the property sought to be attached may be found, but is coextensive with the county. Knowles v. Pickett, 46 Iowa, 503; Leversee v. Reynolds, 15 Id., 310; Biddle v. Alexander et al., 14 Id., 410.

The statute makes no provision for a change of venue to the proper township where an action before a justice of the peace has been commenced in the wrong township, and the want of jurisdiction, in such case, may be pleaded in abatement. Munch v. Breitenbach, 41 Id., 527.

Where in an action of replevin commenced before a justice of the peace, the property is removed to another county before service of the writ, this does not take away the jurisdiction of the justice before whom the action was brought. Craft v. Franks, 34 Id., 504.

The language of section 3511 of the code is construed to relate to the location of the property at the time the action is commenced, and not to that where the property is found when seized under the writ. Id.

4 In an action upon a promissory note by its terms made payable in a particular township named therein, a justice of the peace of such township has jurisdiction of the maker who resides and is served with notice in another county. Klingel v. Palmer et al., 42 Iowa, 166.

The third subdivision of this section is directory to the justice, and if he fails to obey its directions, the proper remedy is against him by compelling him, under proper proceedings, to make the entry, but is not ground for writ of error. Houston v. Walcott & Co., 1 Iowa, 86, 90.
SUTS—HOW BROUGHT.

SEC. 3516. The parties to the action may be the same as in the circuit court, and all the proceedings prescribed for that court, so far as the same are applicable and not herein changed, shall be pursued in justices' courts. The powers of the court are only as herein enumerated. *

SEC. 3517. Actions in justices' courts are commenced by voluntary appearance or by notice.

SEC. 3518. When by notice, no petition need be filed, except where the petition must be sworn to, but the notice must state the cause of action in general terms, sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of the claim against him. ^

SEC. 3519. It must be addressed to the defendant by name, but if his name is unknown, a description of him will be sufficient. It must has no jurisdiction or authority to make entries on his docket in the case appealed. Kimpson v. Hunt, 4 Id., 340.

Where a transcript of a justice of the peace, after reciting the verdict of the jury, continued: "And judgment was entered by me thereon accordingly," it was held, that this entry, though informal, was a judgment or final adjudication within the meaning of the statute. Moore v. Musser, 1 Id., 47. See also, Stewers v. Mil­edge, 1 Id., 150.

In determining a question of fact by the records of a justice of the peace, the whole record must be considered together, Id.

Sub-section eleven of this section does not require a justice of the peace to enter on his docket motions made to exclude or reject evidence offered on the trial. Miller v. O'Neal, 1 Id., 446.

The failure of a justice of the peace to note in his docket the return of process issued, or service of notice on the defendant, does not affect his jurisdiction or the validity of the judgment rendered by him in the case. Bridges v. Ar­nold, 37 Id., 221.

* Where a cause of action in a justice's court consists of a book account embracing several items, the defendant is entitled to a bill of particulars, or to have the several items entered upon demanding the same. McKinney et al. v. Hop­kins, 20 Iowa, 495.

An application for a change of venue from a justice of the peace, made after the commencement of the trial, was too late, and properly overruled. Id.

Where the original notice with the return of service thereon, is lost or destroyed, parol evidence is admissible to prove the facts of service and return thereof. Bridges v. Arnold, 37 Id., 221.

The appearance of a party by attorney or agent in the justice's court will have the same effect to waive the sufficiency of service of notice as in the circuit court. Church v. Crossman, 49 Id., 444.

^ The action in a justice's court may be commenced simply by the service of a notice upon the defendant, except where a writ of replevin or other writ is asked for, in which case a petition duly verified must be filed. In an action of detinue, the filing of a petition forms no necessary part of the commencement of the action, and need be done only upon the day of trial. Duffy v. Dale, 42 Iowa, 215.

In an action before a justice of the peace the notice need not contain a technical setting forth of the cause of action. It is sufficient if the cause of action be stated in terms sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of the claim against him. Fauble v. Steer, 15 Id., 379; Blake v. Graves, 15 Id., 315; Dillery v. Nusum, 17 Id., 298; Greff v. Blake, 16 Id., 291.

Where a notice issued by a justice of the peace is defective, being served it gives the justice jurisdiction to determine the sufficiency of the notice and service, and although he may decide erroneously in holding both or either to be sufficient, it does not affect his jurisdiction or the validity of the subsequent proceedings in the case. Such a case is not one of no notice; upon the sufficiency he had the power to pass. Dougherty v. McCusker, 36 Id., 657; See also, Shea v. Quinton, 90 Id., 58; Shawman v. Loffer, 24 Id., 317; Ballenger v. Torbell, 16 Id., 491.

Where in a suit before a justice of the peace the original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed of the defendant a certain sum of money, as due her for the labor of her son, A., and that the amount claimed was justly due her as the balance of accounts for said labor of her son; it was held, that the plaintiff's cause of action was sufficiently stated; and that there was no error in permitting the plaintiff, in the absence of a bill of particulars, to give evidence under it, to show an indebtedness to her for the labor of her son, A. Cain v. Devitt, 8 Id., 116.

Where in the notice in the justice's court the notice stated that the plaintiff claimed the defendant on a promissory note, although the latter was merely a guarantor of the note, it was held to be sufficient. Francis v. Bentley, 50 Id., 59.
be subscribed by the plaintiff, or the justice before whom it is returnable.

Sec. 3520. It must state the amount for which the plaintiff will take judgment, if the defendant fail to appear and answer at the time and place therein fixed. ¹

Sec. 3521. The time thus fixed in the notice must not be more than fifteen days from the date, and the notice must be served not less than five days previous to the trial.

Sec. 3522. The service and return thereto must be made in the same manner as in the circuit court, except that no service shall be made by publication other than is herein provided, nor shall any return made by another than the sheriff or a constable of the county be valid unless sworn to. ¹

Sec. 3523. The defendant may at any time pay to the officer having the process, or to the justice of the peace, the amount of the claim, together with the costs which have been accrued, and thereupon the proceedings shall cease.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES.

Sec. 3524. An agent appearing for another may be required by the justice to show his authority, if written, or prove it by his own oath or otherwise, if verbal. ²

Sec. 3525. The parties in all cases are entitled to one hour in which to appear after the time fixed for appearance, and neither party is bound to wait longer for the other.

Sec. 3526. Upon the return day, if the justice be actually engaged in other official business, he may postpone proceedings in the case until such business is finished.

Sec. 3527. If from any cause the justice is unable to attend to the trial at the time fixed, or if a jury be demanded, he may adjourn the cause for a period not exceeding three days, nor shall he make more than two such adjournments.

Sec. 3528. In case of the absence of witnesses, either party at his own cost may obtain an adjournment, not exceeding sixty days, by filing an affidavit like that required to obtain a continuance in the circuit court for the like cause.

¹ A defect in the original notice, returned "not found," in the attachment proceeding in a justice's court, does not affect the jurisdiction of the res. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

An omission to name the township in which the action is pending, in the notices posted by order of the court in an attachment suit before a justice, is not a fatal defect. Id.

² A defendant cannot after he has by his own act, or that of his attorney, recognized the validity of a service of notice upon his agent, object to the jurisdiction of the justice. Baker v. Kerr, 13 Iowa, 384.

Where in the original notice issued by a justice of the peace there was a material misnomer, and the service was made by leaving a copy at the usual place of residence of the defendant during her temporary sojourn at another place, and she was ignorant of the pending of the action until after judgment and the levy of execution, when she offered to pay the amount she admitted to be due the plaintiff, after which the plaintiff and the officer sold her property under the execution to satisfy the judgment, it was held: 1. That the defendant not being personally served, and having no actual notice of the pendency of the action, was not bound to take notice of the misnomer by plea in abatement. 2. That under the circumstances the plaintiff in execution and the officer who executed the writ were trespassers. Journey v. Dickerson et al., 21 Id., 308.

A defendant may appear by an agent and consent to judgment before a justice of the peace, and it is not necessary that the authority of the agent to do so should be entered of record. Brown v. Newman, 13 Iowa, 546.
Sec. 3520. Either party applying for an adjournment, must, if required by the adverse party, consent that the testimony of any witness of the adverse party who is in attendance be then taken to be used on the trial of the cause.

Sec. 3530. The pleadings must be substantially the same as in the circuit court. They may be written or oral. If oral, they must in substance be written down by the justice in his docket, and sworn to when such verification is necessary.

Sec. 3531. A counter claim must be made, if at all, at the time the answer is put in.

Sec. 3532. The original, or a copy of all written instruments upon which a cause of action or counter claim is founded, must be filed with the claim founded thereon, or a sufficient reason given for not doing so.

Sec. 3533. Either party, before the trial is commenced, may have the place of trial changed, upon filing an affidavit that the justice is prejudiced against him, or is a near relation to the other party, or is a material witness for the affiant, or that the affiant cannot obtain justice before him; but no more than one change shall be allowed to each party, unless the justice to whom the case shall be transmitted is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree, or is a witness, or has been an attorney employed in the action, either of which events, a second change may be allowed to the same party.

1 A reply to a set-off, pleaded before a justice of the peace, based upon the account composed of several items, which denies owing the defendant the sum claimed or other sums as alleged, was held sufficient. Godfrey v. Cruise, 1 Iowa, 92.

The pleadings in an action before a justice of the peace may be written or oral, and when oral they must, in substance be entered by the justice in his docket, but not with that technical particularly required in formal pleadings, and in an action on a bond it is not necessary to specify the breach complained of. Stone v. Murphy, 2 Id., 35; Glidden v. Higbee, 31 Id., 379, 381; Hall v. Monahan, 1 Id., 554; West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.

When pleadings before a justice of the peace are written, nice technically of pleading or exact correspondence of proof is not required; but they are required to be substantially the same as in the circuit court. Glidden v. Higbee, 31 Id., 379, 381. See also, Geoff v. Blake, 16 Id., 222; Blake v. Graves, 20 Id., 312; West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.

Where a trial of a cause has been had before a justice of the peace, it will be presumed on appeal, that the trial was on the merits, and that a set-off pleaded by the defendant was orally denied. The statute directing oral pleadings to be entered upon the docket of the justice, is merely directory. West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.

In an action before a justice the defendant may prove payment at the time he received the goods under a general denial of indebtedness.
Id.

It is not necessary to the maintenance of an action in a justice's court against a railroad company for double damages for killing stock, that a petition in writing be filed; an oral statement embodying in substance the plaintiff's claim is sufficient. Finch v. The Cent. R. Co., 42 Id., 384.

A petition in an action before a justice of the peace, claiming one hundred dollars, is within the jurisdiction of the justice, notwithstanding the notice states that if the defendant does not appear judgment will be rendered for the whole amount, with interest and costs. Moran v. Murphy, 49 Id., 68.

* The plaintiff in an action before a justice of the peace may dismiss the same without the consent of the defendant, at any time before a counter claim is pleaded, by filing a written answer, or by an oral answer entered on the justice's docket. Kuhn v. Bone, 10 Iowa, 392.

Conversations between parties or their attorneys, in respect to the action pending, should not be entered on the docket of the justice. Id.

An application for a change of venue is in time, when made after one trial in which the jury disagreed and were discharged, and the case continued to another day, and a second jury was summoned, but not sworn. Marshall & McKee v. Kinney, 1 Iowa, 580.

Where a proper affidavit is made and filed for a change of venue, it is error to refuse it. Berner v. Fraser, 3 Id., 71.

But an affidavit for a change of venue made after the trial has been commenced should be overruled. McKinney et al. v. Hopkins, 20 Id., 495.

SEC. 3534. When said change is allowed, said justice shall transmit all the original papers in said case, and a transcript of his proceedings to the next nearest justice in the township, if there be any, if not, to the next nearest justice in his county, and said justice shall proceed to try said case, and if he cannot try the same immediately, he shall then fix a time therefor, of which all parties shall take notice.

SEC. 3535. If the title to real property be put in issue by the pleadings, supported by affidavit, or shall manifestly appear from the proof on the trial of the issue, the justice shall, without further proceedings, certify the cause and papers, with transcript of his docket, showing the reason of such transfer to the circuit court, where the same shall be tried on the merits. No cause so transferred shall be dismissed because the justice erred in transferring the same.

SEC. 3536. But when a case is thus transferred, or dismissed on account of the title to land being involved, if there are other causes of action not necessarily connected, they may be severed and the latter tried before the justice.

THE TRIAL.

SEC. 3537. Unless one of the parties demand a trial by jury at or before the time for joining issue, the trial shall be by the justice.

SEC. 3538. If the plaintiff fails to appear by himself, his agent or attorney, on the return day, or at any other time fixed for the trial, the justice shall dismiss the case and render judgment against him for costs, except in the case provided in the next section.

SEC. 3539. When the suit is founded on an instrument of writing, purporting to have been executed by the defendant, in which the demand of the plaintiff is liquidated, if the signature of the defendant is not denied under oath, and if the instrument has been filed with the justice previous to the day for appearance, he may proceed with the cause whether the plaintiff appear or not.

SEC. 3540. In the case provided for in the last section, if the defendant does not appear, judgment shall be rendered against him for the amount of the plaintiff's claim.

SEC. 3541. But if, where the plaintiff's claim is not founded on such written instrument, the defendant does not appear, the justice shall proceed to hear the allegations and proofs of the plaintiff, and shall render judgment thereon for the amount to which he shows himself entitled, not exceeding the amount stated in the notice.

SEC. 3542. In the cases contemplated in the last two sections, if the defendant has previously filed a counter claim, founded on a written instrument purporting to have been signed by the plaintiff, calling for a certain sum, the justice shall allow such counter claim in the same manner as though the defendant had appeared, and shall render judgment accordingly.

SEC. 3543. Judgment dismissing the cause, or by default, may be set aside by the justice at any time within six days after being rendered, if the party applying therefor can show a satisfactory excuse.

* A defendant in an action before a justice of the peace cannot have the case dismissed by filing an answer which raises the question of title to real property. The answer of the defendant is not the test of jurisdiction of the justice. Cox v. Graham, 3 Iowa, 347.

When it is made to appear on the trial that the title to real estate is involved, the fact operates to transfer the cause to the circuit court, but not to dismiss it. Id.

* A defendant in an action before a justice of the peace, who has appeared and answered, but fails to make a further appearance on the day to
Sec. 3544. In such case a new day shall be fixed for trial, and notice thereof given to the other party or his agent.

Sec. 3545. Such orders shall be made in relation to the additional costs thereby created as the justice shall think equitable. 6

Sec. 3546. Any execution which may in the meantime have been issued, shall be recalled in the same manner as in cases of appeal.

Sec. 3547. If a jury trial be demanded, the justice shall issue his precept to some constable of the township, directing him to summon the requisite number of jurors possessing the same qualifications as are required in the circuit court.

Sec. 3548. The jury shall consist of six jurors, unless a smaller number be agreed upon between the parties. Each party is entitled to three peremptory challenges and no more. Any deficiency in their number, arising from any cause, may be supplied by summoning others in the manner above directed.

Sec. 3549. The justice may discharge the jury, when satisfied that they cannot agree, and shall immediately issue a new precept for summoning another, to appear at a time therein fixed, not more than three days distant, unless the parties otherwise agree.

Sec. 3550. No motion in arrest of judgment, or to set aside a verdict, can be entertained by a justice of the peace.

Sec. 3551. The verdict of the jury must be general. But where there are several plaintiffs or defendants, the verdict may be for or against one or more of them.

JUDGMENT AND PROCEEDINGS INCIDENT THERETO.

Sec. 3552. In cases of dismissal, confession, or on the verdict of a jury, the judgment shall be rendered and entered upon the docket which the cause is continued, cannot be said to be in default within the meaning of this section, and the justice has no power to open the judgment rendered against him on the testimony of the plaintiff, and order a rehearing of the cause. Douglass v. Langdon & Bro. 29 Iowa, 245.

Plea filed when the defendant is in default, should on motion of plaintiff, be stricken from the files. Brayton v. Delaware Co. 16 Id., 44.

When a defendant is in default, before a justice of the peace he will not be permitted to plead until the default has been set aside by a compliance with section 2871 of the code. Id.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace after the trial had been commenced and testimony given to the jury, the justice rendered judgment for the amount of plaintiff's claim on motion of plaintiff for want of an answer; and where the defendant four days thereafter made oath that he had orally denied plaintiff's claim on the trial, and the justice had failed to enter the denial on his docket, on which affidavit the justice set aside the judgment rendered, and appointed another day for the trial, it was held, that the judgment rendered by the justice, was not a judgment by default, and that the justice had no power to set it aside. Rhodes v. De Bow 5 Id., 260.

The term "judgment by default," in this section is to be understood in its strictly technical sense, as a judgment for want of an appearance. Id.

The appellate court will not interfere with an order of a justice of the peace setting aside a judgment by default, if made within the time prescribed by law, unless there has been a clear abuse of discretion. Siviers v. Thompson, 15 Id., 1.

The law does not contemplate notice to the opposite party of an application to set aside a default before a justice of the peace. When it is set aside and a new trial ordered, notice of the time of such trial is necessary. Id. Also Park v. Ratcliffe 42 Id., 42.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace may be withdrawn and an application to set aside the judgment be made within the time fixed by the statute (six days) for doing so, provided the appeal has not been perfected or the transcript sent up. Id.

Upon setting aside a judgment by default, the justice will make such order as to the costs as shall be equitable. Siviers v. Thompson, 15 Iowa, 1.

forthwith. In all other cases, the same shall be done within three days after the cause is submitted to the justice for final action.*

Sec. 3553. If the sum found for either party exceed the jurisdiction of the justice, such party may remit the excess and take judgment for the residue, but he can never afterward sue for the amount so remitted.

Sec. 3554. Instead of so remitting the excess, the party obtaining such verdict may elect to have judgment dismissing the action, in which case the plaintiff shall pay the costs.

Sec. 3555. Mutual judgments between the same parties, rendered by the same or different justices, may be set off against each other.

Sec. 3556. When rendered by the same court, the same course shall be pursued as is prescribed in the circuit court.

Sec. 3557. If the judgment proposed to be set off was rendered by another justice, the party offering it must obtain a transcript thereof, with a certificate of the justice who rendered it indorsed thereon, stating that no appeal has been taken, and that the transcript was obtained for the purpose of being used as a counter claim in that case.

Sec. 3558. Such transcript shall not be given until the time for taking an appeal has elapsed.

Sec. 3559. The justice so giving a transcript shall make an entry of the fact in his docket, and all other proceedings in his court shall thenceforth be stayed.

Sec. 3560. Such transcript being presented to the justice who has rendered a judgment between the same parties as aforesaid, if execution has not been issued on the judgment rendered by him, he shall strike a balance between the judgments and issue execution for such balance.

Sec. 3561. If execution has already issued, the justice shall also issue execution on the transcript filed with him, and deliver it to the same officer who has the other execution.

Sec. 3562. Such officer shall treat the lesser execution as so much cash collected on the larger, and proceed to collect the balance accordingly.

Sec. 3563. The above rules as to counter claim are subject to the same prohibition as to setting off costs, when the effect will be to leave an insufficient amount of money actually collected to satisfy the costs of both judgments, as is contained in the rules of proceedings in the circuit court.

* Upon the rendition of the verdict of the jury, it is the duty of the justice to enter judgment thereon forthwith, and he has no power or authority to enter it at any other time. Guthrie v. Humphrey, 7 Iowa, 23.

A judgment rendered by the justice on the verdict after the time allowed by law, has no force nor effect, and an appeal therefrom cannot be sustained. Id. Also Harper v. Albee, 10 Id., 389.

Where a verdict of a jury was returned in the justice's court at half past ten o'clock at night and the judgment was entered thereon by the justice at 11 o'clock A. M. the following day, it was held, that giving the statute a liberal construction, this was in time, and valid. Davis v. Simma, 14 Id., 154.

The term "forthwith" as used in the statute means in a reasonable time. Id. Also Burchett v. Cassidy et al., 18 Id., 342, 344; Lyon v. Comstock, 9 Id., 306.

Where a garnishee appeared before a justice of the peace and answered, admitting his indebtedness to the defendant, and the docket of the justice failed to show that the cause was then finally submitted, his jurisdiction to render judgment against the garnishee was not lost by the fact that more than three days elapsed after filing the answer before the judgment was entered. Moore v. Reeves, 47 Id., 30.

The appellant in an action appealed from a justice of the peace may dismiss his own appeal in the appellate court. Harper v. Albee, 10 Id., 389; Goodenow v. Perry, 12 Id., 350.
Sec. 3564. When the judgment of another justice is thus allowed to be set off, the transcript thereof shall be filed among the papers of the case in which it is to be so used, and the proper entry made in the justice's docket.

Sec. 3565. If the justice refuses the judgment as a set off, he shall so certify on the transcript, and return it to the party who offered it. When filed in the office of the justice who gave it, proceedings may be had by him in the same manner as though no transcript had been certified by him.

Sec. 3566. A judgment by confession without action, may be entered by a justice of the peace for an amount within his jurisdiction, and the provisions of law regulating judgments by confession in courts of record, shall, as far as applicable, apply to confessions of judgment before a justice of the peace, and the justice shall enter such judgments on his docket, and may issue execution thereon as in other cases.

FILING TRANScripts IN THE CLERK'S OFFICE.

Sec. 3567. The party obtaining a judgment in a justice's court for more than ten dollars, may cause a transcript thereof to be certified to the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county.

Sec. 3568. The clerk shall forthwith file such transcript, and enter a memorandum thereof in his judgment docket, noting the time of filing the same, and from the time of such filing it shall be treated in all respects, as to its effect and mode of enforcement, as a judgment rendered in the circuit court as of that date. And no execution can thereafter be issued by the justice on the judgment.

EXECUTIONS AND PROCEEDINGS THEREON.

Sec. 3569. Executions for the enforcement of judgments in a justice's court, may be issued as provided in this chapter, at any time within ten years from the entry of the judgment, but not afterward.

Sec. 3570. Such execution shall be against the goods and chattels of the defendant therein, and shall be directed to any constable of the county.

Sec. 3571. It must be dated on the day on which it is issued, and made returnable within thirty days thereafter.

Sec. 3572. If not satisfied when returned, it may be renewed from time to time by an indorsement thereon to that effect, signed by the justice, and dated of the date of such renewal.

1 For cases as to judgments by confession in the district and circuit courts see notes to section 2897, ante.

A transcript of a judgment of a justice of the peace filed with the clerk of the courts in another county than that in which the judgment was rendered creates no lien upon the real estate of the defendant in the county where filed. Blaney v. Hanks, 14 Iowa, 400.

The only method of making a judgment of a justice of the peace a lien upon lands in another county is by filing a transcript of the judgment in the office of the clerk of the courts in the same county where the judgment was rendered, and then by filing a transcript of the judgment and memorandum in such clerk's office, in the office of the clerk in the other county where the lands are situated. Id.

* When the transcript of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace is filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the same county, it amounts, in effect, from that time to a judgment of the circuit court, and can only be enforced by execution issued thereon by the clerk of such court. Anderson v. Hall, 48 Iowa, 346, 347.

* Under section 3911 of the revision, an execution could not be lawfully issued on a judgment of a justice by the justice after the lapse of five years from the entry of the judgment Givens v. Campbell, 20 Iowa, 79.
For thirty days.
R. § 3915.

SEC. 3573. Such indorsement must state the amount paid on such execution, and shall continue the execution in full force for thirty days from the date of renewal.

Property.
R. § 3914.

SEC. 3574. Property levied on before such renewal, may be retained by the officer and sold after renewal.

APPEALS.

SEC. 3575. Any person aggrieved by the final judgment of a justice, may appeal therefrom to the circuit court in the county. [But no appeal shall be allowed in any case where the amount in controversy does not exceed twenty-five dollars.]

SEC. 3576. The appeal must be taken and perfected within twenty days after the rendition of the judgment. *

SEC. 3577. If within twenty days the appellant is prepared to take his appeal, and is prevented only by the absence or death of the justice, or his inability to act, he may apply to the clerk of the circuit court of the county for the allowance of his appeal.

SEC. 3578. Such application shall be founded on an affidavit, stating the amount and nature of the judgment, and the time of the rendition thereof, as nearly as practicable, and the reason why he thus applies.

SEC. 3579. The clerk has thereupon the same power to act in the premises as the justice would have had. He may require the books and papers of the justice to be delivered to him, for which purpose he may issue a precept to the sheriff to that effect, if necessary, and may make out and file the transcript. After this he shall return to the office of the justice of the peace all the papers proper to be kept by the justice.

SEC. 3580. The appeal shall in no case be allowed until a bond in the following form, or its equivalent, is taken and filed in the office of the justice or clerk as above provided, in an amount sufficient to secure the judgment and costs of appeal:

* There must be a judgment entered before an appeal can be taken. Kimble v. Riggin, 2 G. Greene, 245; Brown v. Scott, 1d., 454; Guthrie v. Humphrey, 7 Id., 23.

No appeal lies from the verdict of a jury. Id. Whenever a final judgment is rendered by a justice of the peace an appeal may be taken by the party deeming himself aggrieved. Griffin v. Moss, 3 Id., 261.

The proper mode to review a question of fact is by appeal, and not by writ of error. Taylor v. Rockwell, 10 Id., 530.

This section does not give the right of appeal to a surety in a replevin bond, from the judgment in the case. Crites v. Littleton, 23 Id., 205

A cause was tried on the 8th day of the month, and the original transcript showed that an appeal bond was filed on the 19th day of the same month, while the bond was marked filed on the 29th, and an amended transcript showed that the appeal was taken on the 29th. Held that the court did not err in holding that the appeal was not taken in time. Brown v. Beesett, 13 Id., 185.

On appeal the court may hear evidence to explain a mistake in the record of a justice of the peace. Id.

Where an entry in the transcript, sent up on appeal from a justice of the peace, showed that the appeal bond was filed and approved March 25th, two days after judgment was rendered, notice of appeal was served on the 27th of the same month, and the transcript filed on the 29th of April, but the bond was indorsed as filed and approved on the 27th day of May; it was held: 1. That the justice was not required to make the indorsement on the bond, and was required to make the entry in his docket, and that the latter must control; 2. That the record showed the appeal to have been perfected within twenty days after the rendition of the judgment. Moore v. Mauser, 9 Id., 47.

Apel1e, and not writ of error, is the proper remedy for the review of the final decision of a case before a justice of the peace. Lane et al. v. Goldsmith, 23 Id., 240.
The undersigned acknowledge ourselves indebted to........ in the sum of ......... dollars, upon the following condition: Whereas ........ has appealed from the judgment of........ a justice of the peace, in an action between ........ as plaintiff and ........ defendant.

Now, if said appellant pays whatever amount is legally adjudged against him in the further progress of this cause, then this bond to be void.

Approved.

A.... B...., principal.

B...., justice.

C.... D...., surety.

If the judgment be affirmed, or if on a new trial the appellee recovers, or if the appeal be withdrawn or dismissed, judgment shall be rendered against the principal and surety in said bond.

SEC. 3581. Upon the appeal being taken in accordance with the foregoing provisions, all farther proceedings in the cause by him shall be suspended.

SEC. 3582. If, in the meantime, an execution has been issued, the justice shall give the appellant a certificate that the appeal has been allowed. Upon that certificate being presented to the constable, he shall cease farther action, and release any property that may have been taken in execution.

SEC. 3583. Upon the taking of any appeal, the justice shall file in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, all the original papers relating to the suit, with a transcript of all the entries in his docket.

SEC. 3584. Upon the return of the justice being filed in the office of the clerk, the cause will be deemed in the circuit court.

SEC. 3585. The circuit court may, by rule, compel the justice to allow an appeal, or to make or amend his return according to law.

SEC. 3586. Where an omission or mistake has been made by the justice in his docket entries, and that fact is made unquestionable, the circuit court may correct the mistake or supply the omission, or direct the justice to do so.

* An appeal bond which is equivalent to the form given in section 3589 is sufficient. A substantial compliance with the provisions of the statute is all that is necessary in attesting and approving the bond. Moore v. Manzer, 9 Iowa, 47.

To insure a trial in the circuit court on appeal from a justice, the law requires that the justice shall file in the office of the clerk of said court, all the original papers relating to the suit, with a transcript of the entries on his docket. Cain v. Devitt, 8 Iowa, 116, 119.

* Where an appeal was taken from a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, and allowed more than ten days before the next term of the district court, after the appeal was taken, and the justice failed to return and file the transcript and papers until after the said term of court had passed, it was held, that such failure of the justice constituted no ground for affirming the judgment of the justice, on motion of the appellee, at a subsequent term. Holloway v. Baker, 6 Iowa, 52.

The circuit court has power to make and enforce a rule to the effect, that if the appellant, in an appeal from a justice of the peace, fails to have the transcript filed and the filing fee paid or secured by the second day of the term, that then the appellee may file the transcript and appeal bond and have the judgment of the justice affirmed against the appellant and his sureties on the bond. Finders v. Yager, 29 Id., 468. See also, McManus v. Humes, 6 Id., 159; The State v. Glass, 9 Id., 325.

* When a mistake in the transcript of a justice of the peace is unquestionably established, it may be corrected so as to fully try the cause in the appellate court, upon the same issues which were tried before the justice. Cooper v. Woodrow et al., 3 Iowa, 189.

A return of the justice amending his transcript is a part of his record, and may be read to the jury to show the matters in issue. Id.

Under section 3586 the court may hear evidence to explain a mistake in the record of a justice of the peace. Brown v. Becetti, 13 Id., 185.
SEC. 3587. If an appeal is allowed ten days before the next term of the circuit court, the justice's return must be made at least five days before that term. All such cases must be tried when reached, unless continued for cause.

SEC. 3588. If an appeal is not allowed on the day on which judgment is rendered, written notice thereof must be served on the appellee or his agent, at least ten days before the term of the court to which the cause is returnable, provided there be ten days intervening, or the suit, on motion of the appellee, shall be continued at the cost of the appellant.

SEC. 3589. Such notice may be served like the original notice, and if the appellee or his agent have no place of residence in the county, it may be served by being left with the justice.

SEC. 3590. An appeal brings up a cause for trial on the merits, and for no other purpose. All errors, irregularities, and illegalities are to be disregarded under such circumstances, if the cause might have been prosecuted in the circuit court.

SEC. 3591. No new demand or counter claim can be introduced into a case after it comes into the circuit court, unless by mutual consent.

The failure of a justice of the peace to return the transcript and papers to the clerk of the circuit court five days before the commencement of the next term, does not authorize an affirmation of the judgment on motion of the appellee. Fisher v. Harper et al., 10 Iowa, 293.

It was therefore erroneous for the court to affirm the judgment on motion for non-payment of the docket fee, under a rule of court, when the appeal had been taken seven days before the first day of the term. Id.

An appeal from a justice of the peace is returnable at the next regular term of the court, and the judgment cannot be affirmed on motion of the appellee at a special term. Coon v. Mathews, 10 Id., 290.

To give the appellate court jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice of the peace of the person of the appellee, it must be shown either that the appellee had the notice required by statute, or that he made a voluntary appearance in the appellate court. Quillan v. Windsor, 6 Iowa, 395.

Notice to the appellee is not necessary to perfect an appeal from a justice of the peace, nor does a failure to give such notice authorize the dismissal of the appeal. Bond v. Davis, 37 Id., 163.

If the notice is not served as required by this section, the suit may, on motion of the appellee, be continued at the costs of the appellant, but it cannot be dismissed for that cause. Id.

On appeal from a justice of the peace the cause is to be tried on its merits, and errors and irregularities before the justice, disregarded. Gilson v. Johnson, 4 Iowa, 463.

A party appealing from a final decision of a justice of the peace is entitled to have the case tried de novo on appeal. Taylor v. Rockwell, 10 Id., 530.

The appellate court will not review the decision of a justice of the peace on an issue of fact on a writ of error. Id.

On an appeal from a justice of the peace, the erroneous ruling of the justice upon a demurrer may be reviewed and disregarded. Oleson v. Hendrickson, 12 Id., 222.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace operates as a waiver of all errors, irregularities and illegalities, and brings the case up for trial on the merits. Leftwick et al v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56.

Where is an action before a justice of the peace upon a promissory note, the original notice described the plaintiffs as heirs of the payee, it was held that the notice did not, under the circumstances, show that they sued as heirs. King v. Gottschalk et al., 21 Id., 512.

An appeal does not lie from a judgment of a justice of the peace on an award of arbitrators. The action of the justice, in refusing to set aside the arbitrators, may be reviewed upon writ of error; but no trial of the cause upon the merits can be had after the return of the award. Whittie v. Culver, 25 Id., 30.

By going to trial on the merits, in a case appealed from a justice, the plaintiff waives the right to object to the ruling of the court on a demurrer to the defendant's answer. Warren v. Scott et al., 32 Id., 22.

After an appeal to the circuit court from a judgment of a justice of the peace, a party cannot, as a matter of right, file additional or new pleadings. He may, however, be allowed to do so under equitable circumstances and upon proper terms, after satisfactorily excusing his failure to plead before the justice. Warren v. Scott, 32 Iowa, 22.
Sec. 3592. The appellant must pay the costs of the appeal, unless he obtains a more favorable judgment than that from which he appealed.

Sec. 3593. If the judgment below is against the appellant, he may proffer to pay a certain amount, with costs, and if the final amount recovered be less favorable to the appellee than such proffer, he shall pay costs of appeal.

Sec. 3594. Any judgment in the circuit court against the appellant shall be entered up against him and his sureties jointly.

Sec. 3595. If an appeal is taken for delay, the circuit court shall award such damages, not exceeding ten per cent on the amount of the judgment below, as may seem right.

Sec. 3596. If the appeal is taken from a judgment by default, the defendant may file in the circuit court, and the plaintiff reply thereto, any pleadings necessary to properly set forth any defense he may have to the action. In such case, the costs of the trial before the justice shall be taxed to the defendant.

WRITs OF ERROR.

Sec. 3597. Any person aggrieved by an erroneous decision in a matter of law, or other illegality in the proceedings of a justice of the peace, may remove the same, or so much thereof as is necessary, into the circuit court for correction.

1 Where a defendant appeals from a judgment rendered against him by a justice of the peace, and the plaintiff on appeal recovers a less judgment than was rendered by the justice, he (the plaintiff) is entitled to recover the costs made subsequent to the appeal. Best v. Dean, 8 Iowa, 519.

2 Under this section, where a defendant appeals from a judgment of a justice of the peace against him, in order to avoid the liability for the costs on the appeal, although the amount of the judgment is reduced, on appeal, to the sum he proffered to pay, he must have offered to pay such sum with costs. Powell v. The Western Stage Co., 2 Iowa, 50.

3 A party appealing from a judgment of a justice, and a less judgment is rendered against him, he is liable for the costs on appeal, unless he has tendered an amount equal to or greater than that recovered with costs. Best v. Dean, 8 Id., 519. See also, Howder v. Oerholser, 48 Id., 365, 367.

4 A party appealing from a judgment of a justice of the peace may dismiss his appeal, but it must be at his own costs. Harper v. Albee, 10 Id., 359; Goodenou v. Perry, 12 Id., 350.

5 On appeal from a judgment of a justice, rendered by default for want of an appearance, it is not irregular for the appellate court to affirm the judgment, on motion of the plaintiff, where the appellant does not appear. Atkins v. McCreary, 8 Id., 214.

6 A judgment by default may be entered against a party who appears before a justice of the peace, but fails or refuses to plead. McFarland v. Lowry, 40 Id., 467.

7 Upon appeal to the circuit court from a judgment by default in the justice's court the appellant is, under section 3596 of the code, entitled to plead in the appellate court. Id.

8 Prior to the code of 1873, where a defendant in an action before a justice, after being duly served, made default, and judgment was rendered against him, he could not, on appeal, file an answer or demurrer as a matter of right. Badrick v. Pool, 7 Id., 44; Leftwich et al. v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56.

9 If by reason of a mistake of the justice in rendering a judgment by default, the defendant is deprived of the opportunity to put in his defense, he can do so on appeal in the circuit court, and if he is deprived of setting up a counterclaim he can bring his action thereon. Cory v. King & Co., 49 Iowa, 365.

1 A writ of error does not lie to a justice of the peace because of an error that can be corrected by the justice on motion, unless a motion for that purpose has been made and overruled by JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND THEIR COURTS. [TITLE XXI.

Sec. 3598. The basis of the proceedings is an affidavit filed in the office of the clerk, setting forth the errors complained of, and must be filed in the same time, and the notice must be the same as in case of appeal.

Sec. 3599. The clerk shall thereupon issue an order commanding the justice to certify the record and proceedings, so far as they relate to the facts stated in the affidavit.

Sec. 3600. A copy of the affidavit shall accompany the order, and be served upon the justice, who shall, with the least practicable delay, make the return required.

Sec. 3601. All proceedings in the justice's court subsequent to judgment, may be stayed by a bond, entered into like that required in cases of appeals, and on which judgment shall be entered against the principal and surety in like manner and under like circumstances.

Sec. 3602. The circuit court may compel an amended return when the first is not full and complete.

Sec. 3603. The circuit court may render final judgment, or it may remand the cause to the justice for a new trial, or such further proceedings as shall be deemed proper, and may prescribe the notice necessary to bring the parties again before the justice.\(^1\)

Sec. 3604. If the circuit court render a final judgment, reversing the judgment of the peace after such judgment has been collected in whole or in part, it may award restitution with interest and issue execution accordingly, or it may remand the cause to the justice for this purpose.\(^2\)

RECOVERY OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—ATTACHMENT.

Sec. 3605. The proceedings to gain possession of personal property wrongfully withheld, will be the same as are prescribed in such cases in the circuit court, except as modified in this chapter.

Sec. 3606. Attachments are not allowable in justice's courts, if the sum claimed is less than five dollars. And if more is claimed and less recovered, the plaintiff shall pay all the costs of the proceedings so far as they relate to the attachment.

Sec. 3607. The constable has the same power to administer an oath to the garnishee and to take his answer, as is given to the sheriff in cases of attachment in the circuit court.

1 Where the ruling of a justice of the peace, in dissolving an attachment, is reversed upon writ of error, the court reversing such ruling should not render final judgment against the defendant, but remand that branch of the cause to which the writ of error reached, with directions to the justice to enforce the judgment rendered by him against the defendants in the main proceeding, with the lien of the attachment retained. Cournley v. Carmody, 23 Iowa, 212.

2 The circuit court may in its discretion render final judgment on writ of error to a justice of the peace in certain cases. Broadwell v. Wilcox, 22 Iowa, 568, 569.

This rule applies where the error complained of was the rendering of judgment upon insufficient service of notice. Id.

An error committed by a justice of the peace in ruling on a demurrer, should be corrected on writ of error, and not on appeal. Loftweick et al. v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56.

A writ of error will not lie to the final decision of a justice of the peace upon the evidence, though erroneous. Appeal is the proper remedy. Lane & Wilson v. Goldsmith, 23 Id., 240.

The proper remedy of a party aggrieved by the dismissal of an action by a justice of the peace, for want of jurisdiction is by writ of error. An appeal lies only from a final judgment. Belding v. Torrence, 39 Id., 516.

A writ of error does not lie from the district court to an inferior court in criminal cases.
SEC. 3608. Garnishees may be required to appear and answer at the time fixed for the appearance of the parties to the action.

SEC. 3609. When an attachment or order for the delivery of property has been issued by any justice of the peace in any action, and it shall be found that the defendant is absent so that personal service cannot be had, the justice, upon the return day, unless the defendant appear, shall make an order fixing the day for the trial, not less than sixty days thereafter, and requiring notice to be given by any constable as provided in the next section.

SEC. 3610. Upon such order being made, at least sixty days notice of the pendency of such action shall be given by posting up written or printed notices in three public places in the township where the action was commenced, and such notices shall have the effect of a service by publication in the circuit court, and the justice shall proceed to hear the cause upon the day specified for that purpose; but no bond shall be required of the plaintiff after judgment as may be in the circuit court.

FORCIBLE ENTRY OR DETENTION OF REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3611. A summary remedy for forcible entry or detention of real property is allowable:
1. Where the defendant has by force or intimidation, or fraud, or stealth, entered upon the prior actual possession of another in real property, and detains the same;
2. Where a lessee holds over after the termination, or contrary to the terms of his lease;
3. Where the defendant continues in possession after a sale by foreclosure of a mortgage, or on execution, unless he claims by a title paramount to the lien by virtue of which the sale was made, or by title derived from the purchaser at the sale; in either of which cases, such title shall be clearly and concisely set forth in the defendant's pleading.

1 In an action before a justice of the peace in which property of the defendant has been attached, but no personal service of notice has been made on the defendant, it is error to render a personal judgment. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

2 An omission to name the township in which the action is pending in the notices posted by order of a justice of the peace in an attachment suit before him, is not a fatal defect. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

3 A person who enters on land, intending to take possession of the entire tract, no part of which is held adversely at the time of the entry, is in actual possession to the extent of his entry. Langworthy v. Myers, 4 Iowa, 18, 39.

If the plaintiff or owner of land, by force of intimidation, fraud, or stealth, has entered upon the prior actual possession of the defendant, and detains the same, such prior occupant is entitled to his summary remedy for such entry and detention; and in that action the title cannot be investigated. Webster v. Stewart, 6 Id., 301. 494.

In an action of forcible entry and detainer the plaintiff alleged that the defendant had obtained possession of the premises in controversy, by fraud and stealth, and the answer denied the allegations of the petition, are set up as a defense in a special contract; it was held, that the demurrer to that portion of the answer setting up the special contract was improperly sustained; that it was competent for the defendant to show by evidence that he entered into possession with plaintiff's consent, under a contract of purchase. Oleson v. Hendrickson, 12 Id., 222.

Where a tenant takes possession of real property under an agreement that he is to occupy only so long as he shall continue in the employment of the landlord, he will not be regarded as a tenant at will, but as one holding under a definite lease, and if after quitting the service of his landlord, he refuses to yield up the possession of the premises, he will be regarded as one holding over after the termination of his lease, and liable to an action of forcible entry and detainer by the landlord, after three days notice to quit. § 3613. The legal representative of a person who might have been plaintiff if alive, may bring this suit after his death.

§ 3614. Before suit can be brought in any except the first of the above classes, three days notice to quit must be given to the defendant in writing.

§ 3615. The petition must be in writing and sworn to.

§ 3616. The proceedings may be had before a justice of the peace of the township where the premises are situated, or if there is no justice therein able or qualified to act, they may be brought before some justice in any adjoining township. They shall be governed by the same rules as other cases before justices of the peace except as herein modified.

§ 3617. The time for appearance and pleading must not be less than two, nor more than six days from the time the notice is served on the defendant.

§ 3618. No adjournment shall be made for more than ten days, nor to any other place except by consent of parties.

§ 3619. If the defendant is found guilty, judgment shall be entered that he be removed from the premises, and that the plaintiff be put in possession thereof, and an order of removal shall issue accordingly, to which shall be added a clause commanding the officer to levy the costs as in ordinary cases.

§ 3620. The question of title cannot be investigated in this action. And nothing herein contained prevents a party from suing for a trespass, or from testing the right of property in any other manner.

§ 3621. Thirty days peaceable and uninterrupted possession with the knowledge of the plaintiff after the cause of action accrued, is a bar to this proceeding.

§ 3622. An action of this kind cannot be brought in connection with any other, nor can it be made the subject of counter claim.

§ 3623. The order for removal can be executed only in the day time.

* At common law an executor or administrator could not maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer for the lands of the decedent; but this section of the statute now permits such action to be brought by the personal representative. But it does not deprive the heir of his common law right to bring the action. Beezley v. Burgett, 15 Iowa, 192.

A saw mill built in a permanent manner and attached to the soil, will, as between the heir and the administrator, be regarded as part of the realty; and it is, therefore, held, that an action will not lie by the administrator against a third person for its conversion. Kinsell v. Billing, 39 Id., 154.

* Where the action is brought under the first clause of section 3611, no notice to quit is required. Dicks v. Hatch, 10 Iowa, 380, 383.

* Want of jurisdiction of the justice can be taken advantage of by demurrer, only when it appears on the face of the petition. A demurrer cannot be aided by extrinsic proof. Childs v. Limback, 30 Iowa, 398.

An appearance by the defendant waives all defects in the original notice. Id.

* The question of title cannot be investigated in an action for forcible entry and detainer. It is simply a question as to possession. Beezley v. Burgett, 15 Iowa, 192, 194.

The question of title being in no way involved in an action for forcible entry and detainer, evidence thereof is inadmissible. Stevens et al. v. McCoy, 36 Id., 659; Settle v. Henson, Mor., 111.
Tubular Steel Railroad Journals, and Axles.

For Street Railways.

Cedar Rapids & Marion Railway.

Wm. J. Greene, president; A. J. McKean, vice president; G. G. Greene, secretary; George Greene, treasurer; Wm. Elsom, superintendent.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 14, 1889.

To whom it may concern:

We are using Mr. May's Patent Tubular Steel Axles on a branch of the Cedar Rapids Street Railway System, having five curves on right angle street and avenue crossings, giving satisfaction, especially in saving a larger percentage of power on curves. In four weeks' use, no repairs are needed—no more than ordinary wear is observable, and the device for oiling seems to be all that can be desired.

The advantages claimed by the inventor, Col. J. M. May, of this city, appear to be well founded.

W. Elsom, Superintendent.

Advantages

The frequent loss of life and property resulting from broken rails, hot journal boxes, broken axles, and bumping the track, are chiefly obviated. The unpleasant noise and jar of the moving train is greatly reduced, and a slipping of wheels on the rails on curves, often with disastrous results, is reduced to a minimum.

No change of trucks required. The rigid axle and wheels are removed from the present track frame, and the tubular journals and axles, with their automatic oil reservoir, substituted, and is, comparatively, inexorable. Even the present wheels may be transferred to the new axles.

Ten to forty per cent of power saved, and the difficulties and dangers on sharp curves in the alignment, particularly in hilly and mountainous countries are largely, if not wholly overcome. The durability of wheels and rails on curves doubled.

It is adapted to animal, cable, steam and electric power, especially for street and elevated railroads.

Much time for fifteen years, with careful study and experiments has culminated in these results, perfecting, approximately, the ideal railroad of the early and lamented president of the C. M. & St. Paul Railway company, viz:

First—in reducing the terribly severe impingement and concussion of wheels against rails on curves; and second, in requiring less power to move trains.

Valuable Invention.

It sometimes occurs that a community may have in its midst leading minds on some specialty that proves of great value to the world. Just now when railroad accidents are so frequent and fatal to life and property, that any invention and advancement in railroad appliances that will have a counter-vailing influence in saving human life and augmenting real and substantial prosperity, should be carefully considered and thoroughly tried. Such an one may perhaps be found in our unassuming fellow citizen of May Island in his "Tubular Steel Railroad Journal and Axle," described in our columns to-day, which he deems the most valuable of his twenty-patented inventions during the last thirty years, unless he excepts his patented improvements in quartz rock crusher and steel plows.—Daily Republican, March 9, 1890.

The Street Railroad Business.

The horse cars of the city of New York carry 100,491,735 passengers, almost half as many as are carried by all the steam roads in the United States. If to this number are added those carried by the elevated road, we have a total of 371,021,524, or almost as many passengers in New York City alone as are annually carried by all the steam railroads of the whole of the United States. The street railroads of the State of Massachusetts carry over 4,600,000 more people than all the steam roads in that State. One road alone, the electric line of the West End Company of Boston, carries nearly 10,000,000 more passengers than all the steam roads combined.—Railway Age, Oct. 24, 1889.

[Sec. 3623.] An appeal or writ of error, taken in the usual way, if the proper security is given, suspends the execution for costs, and may, with the consent of the plaintiff, prevent the warrant of removal from being executed, but not otherwise.

Sec. 3624. The circuit court, on the trial of the appeal, may issue an order of removal or restitution as the case may require.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 3625. Every justice of the peace, upon the expiration of his term of office, must deposit with his successor his official dockets, as well as those of his predecessors which may be in his custody, there to be kept as public records. All his official papers shall also be turned over to his successor.

Sec. 3626. If his office becomes vacant by death, removal from the township, or otherwise, before his successor is elected, the said docket and papers shall be placed in the hands of the county auditor, to be by him turned over to the successor of the justice when elected and qualified.

Sec. 3627. The justice with whom the docket of his predecessor is thus deposited, may issue execution on or give a transcript of any judgment there entered, in the same manner and with like effect as the justice who rendered the judgment might have done; and in case of the death, absence or inability to act of any justice, or in case of the vacation of the office of any justice from any cause, then in such case execution may be issued from the docket of said justice or transcript given therefrom, by any other justice in said township with like effect as might have been done by the justice who rendered the judgment.

Sec. 3628. When two or more justices are equally entitled to be deemed the successor in office of any justice as aforesaid, the county auditor shall determine by lot which is the successor, and certify accordingly; such certificate shall be in duplicate, one copy of which shall be filed in the office of such auditor, and the other given to such successor.

Sec. 3629. In case of sickness or other disability, or necessary absence of a justice at the time fixed for a trial of a cause or other proceeding, any other justice of the township may, at his request, attend and transact the business for him without any transfer to another office. The entries shall be made in the docket of the justice at whose office the business is transacted, and the same effect shall be given to the proceedings as though no such interchanging of official service had taken place.

Sec. 3630. Any justice of the peace may, in writing, specially depute any person of suitable age to perform any particular duty properly devolving upon a constable, and for that particular purpose he shall be subject to the same obligations and receive the same fees. If such person be appointed to serve an attachment, execution or order, for the delivery of property, he shall, before levying upon such property, execute a bond to the state of Iowa in a penal sum of not less than

v. Dillon, 21 Iowa, 47.

than two hundred dollars, to be fixed by the justice, with one or more freeholders as sureties, to be approved by and filed with the justice making the appointment, and the usual official oath shall be indorsed thereon and signed. For any breach of such bond, any person injured thereby may bring suit thereon in his own name, and recover the same damages as upon a constable’s bond in like cases.

Sec. 3631. No process can issue from a justice’s court into another county, except when specially authorized.

Sec. 3632. The constable is the proper executive officer in a justice’s court, but the sheriff may perform any of the duties required of him. The powers and duties of the sheriff in relation to the business of the circuit court, so far as the same are applicable and not modified by statute, devolve upon the constable in relation to the justice’s court.

Sec. 3633. The justice may be regarded as his own clerk and perform the duty of both judge and clerk.

Sec. 3634. When the term of office of a justice of the peace for any cause expires, his successor may issue execution, or renew execution in the same manner and under the same circumstances as the former justice might have done if his term of office had not expired.1

Sec. 3635. The board of supervisors of each county shall furnish to each justice of the peace of such county, a well bound blank record book of not less than four quires, with index suitable for a docket, upon the certificate of such justice that the same is necessary for the business of the office.

1 An execution which showed that the judgment upon which it was issued was “recovered before G. S. M.,” without stating that he was a justice of the peace, was not absolutely void in the hands of the constable, so as to enable him to protect himself from liability on his bond for improper or negligent treatment of property levied upon by virtue thereof. Dean v. Goddard et al., 18 Iowa, 292.
TITLE XXII.

OF EVIDENCE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF EVIDENCE.

SEC. 3636. Every human being of sufficient capacity to understand the obligation of an oath, is a competent witness in all cases, both civil and criminal, except as herein otherwise declared. [Defendants in all criminal proceedings shall be competent witnesses in their own behalf, but cannot be called as witnesses by the state, and should a defendant not elect to become a witness, that fact shall not have any weight against him on the trial, nor shall the attorney or attorneys for the state during the trial, refer to the fact that the defendant did not testify in his own behalf; and should he do so, such attorney or attorneys will be guilty of a misdemeanor, and defendant shall for that cause alone be entitled to a new trial.]

SEC. 3637. Facts which have heretofore caused the exclusion of testimony, may still be shown for the purpose of lessening its credibility.

*Where two or more defendants are jointly indicted and tried, each may call upon and use his co-defendant as a witness, the same as though separate trials had been granted. The State v. Gigher, 23 Iowa, 318.

The plaintiff in an action of slander is a competent witness and the jury may, if they believe her testimony, and it proves the words charged, find a verdict upon her testimony alone. Hess et al. v. Fockler et al., 25 Id., 9, 11.

In a criminal prosecution the wife of an accomplice may testify and the weight of her testimony is for the jury. The State v. Moore, 25 Id., 128.

The feeling or interest manifested by a witness should be considered by the jury as affecting his credibility, and for no other purpose. Holloway v. Griffith, 32 Id., 409.

The general rule of the statute which makes parties of record competent and compellable to testify, will not compel a party, who is a witness for himself, to disclose on cross-examination, communications made by him to his attorney in regard to the case. Barker v. Kuhn, 38 Id., 892.

A person indicted for a criminal offense was held, not a competent witness in his own behalf prior to the taking effect of chapter 168, laws of 1878, amending section 3636 of the code. The State v. Laffer, 38 Id., 422.

When one of two defendants testifies on behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness, under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself on trial. The State v. Hardin et al., 46 Id., 623.

*The common rule that one defendant in an indictment cannot be called as a witness for his co-defendant on a separate trial, unless acquitted, or convicted and not rendered infamous, was held to be abrogated by this section as it stood in the code of 1851, in connection with section 4 of article 1 of the new constitution. The State v. Nash, 10 Iowa, 81.

A surety in a replevin bond is a competent witness for the plaintiff in the action. Cook v. Lyon et al., Id., 433.

Under the common law, persons insensible to the obligation of an oath from defect of religious sentiment and belief were incompetent to testify as witnesses. This fact under this section of the statute no longer excludes such person as a witness, but may still be shown to affect his credibility. The State v. Elliott, 45 Id., 486.

The fact that a person, whose dying declarations offered in evidence, was a materialist is admissible in evidence for the purpose of affecting the credibility and weight of such dying declarations. Id.
Sec. 3638. No person offered as a witness in any action or proceeding in any court, or before any officer acting judicially, shall be excluded by reason of his interest in the event of the action or proceeding, or because he is a party thereto, except as provided in this chapter.

Sec. 3639. No party to any action or proceeding, nor any person interested in the event thereof, nor any person from, through, or under whom any such party or interested person derives any interest or title by assignment or otherwise, and no husband or wife of any said party or person, shall be examined as a witness in regard to any personal transaction or communication between such witness and a person at the commencement of such examination, deceased, insane, or lunatic; against the executor, administrator, heir-at-law, next of kin, assignee, legatee, devisee, or survivor of such deceased person, or the assignee or guardian of such insane person or lunatic. But this prohibition shall not extend to any transaction or communication as to which any such executor, administrator, heir-at-law, next of kin, assignee, legatee, devisee, or guardian, shall be examined on his own behalf, or as to which the testimony of such deceased or insane person or lunatic shall be given in evidence.

"It was held under the revision of 1860, that a party to an action was incompetent to testify as a witness where the adverse party was an administrator, but that the administrator was competent in such cases. Romens v. Hays, Admin'r, 12 Iowa, 570; Bradley v. Karonagh, Id., 273; Terhune v. Henry et al., 13 Id., 99; Hosmer v. Burk, 26 Id., 333; Quick v. Brooks, 29 Id., 494; Schmidt v. Kriesmer, 31 Id., 479; Wendeling v. Besser, Id., 248.

The administrator of a deceased person was not, by section 3982 of the revision, rendered incompetent as a witness in an action to recover from another the possession of the property of the intestate. Bradley v. Karonagh, 12 Iowa, 273.

The plaintiff in an action of replevin against a sheriff to recover the possession of property taken under attachment, was not, under section 3982 of the revision, rendered incompetent as a witness, by the death of the plaintiff in the attachment suit in which the sheriff seized the property replevied. Beran v. Hayden, 13 Id., 122.

It was also held, under the same section, the plaintiff in an action against an administrator, was not excluded from proving, by his own oath, the loss of a writing, which was the basis of the action, when the facts transpired before the death of the intestate. The prohibition was held to apply only when the party offered himself as a witness to prove facts, the knowledge of which is not, from their nature, confined to himself. Nash v. Gibson, 16 Id., 365; Keech v. Coules, 34 Id., 239.

It was held under the same action that in an action by the administrator of a trustee against another concerning the matter of the trust, when the real party was living, the defendant was a competent witness to prove facts transpiring before the death of the trustee. This section was held, applicable only to cases in which the real party in interest is dead. Watson v. Russell, 18 Id., 75.

A person summoned and examined under sections 2366 and 2367 of the revision (code, sections 2379 and 2380), as one suspected of having taken wrongful possession of property of a deceased person, was held not a witness within the meaning of section 3982 of the revision. Smyth v. Smyth, 24 Id., 491.

In a proceeding to enforce a claim against an estate the administrator is a competent witness on behalf of the estate to prove that a settlement of the claim was made between the claimant and the decedent prior to his death. Stiles et al. v. Estate of Botkin, 30 Id., 60.

It was further held under section 3982 that in an action against an administrator, the wife of the plaintiff was not disqualified from being a witness for her husband, and that she was competent to give evidence against the estate. Wendeling v. Besser, 31 Id., 248.

So in an action by a surviving partner for an injury to property of the firm, the opposite party was held not rendered incompetent under that section. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 306.

The husband and wife, in civil actions, are not competent witnesses against each other, but objections to their competency should be made when they are sworn, or when it is proposed to examine them, and, if not then made, will be deemed to have been waived. Watson v. Riskamire, 45 Id., 231.

In a contest between creditors as to priority respecting the funds in the hands of the administrator of one of the debtors, who was made a party defendant to the proceeding, such administrator was held not "the adverse party," within the meaning of section 3982 of the revision; and one of such contesting creditors who intervened in such contest was held a compe-
Sec. 3640. Any person may have his own deposition, or that of any other person, read and used as evidence in all cases where his evidence would be incompetent by the provisions of the preceding section, by causing such deposition to be taken either before or after suit brought during the lifetime or sanity of the person against whom his executor, heir, or other representative, the same is to be used; provided, such deposition shall have been taken and filed ten days prior to the death or insanity of such person. If after suit brought, such deposition may be taken in the usual manner; if before, then the same may be taken de bene esse, as provided by law.

Sec. 3641. [Neither the husband nor wife shall in any case be a witness against the other, except in a criminal prosecution for a crime committed one against the other, or in a civil action or proceeding one against the other; but they may in all civil and criminal cases be witnesses for each other.]
Sec. 3642. Neither husband nor wife can be examined in any case as to any communication made by the one to the other while married, nor shall they, after the marriage relation ceases, be permitted to reveal in testimony any such communication made while the marriage subsisted.

Sec. 3643. No practicing attorney, counselor, physician, surgeon minister of the gospel, or priest of any denomination, shall be allowed in giving testimony to disclose any confidential communication properly entrusted to him in his professional capacity, and necessary and proper to enable him to discharge the functions of his office according to the usual course of practice or discipline. Such prohibition shall not apply to cases, where the party in whose favor the same are made waives the rights conferred.

Sec. 3644. A public officer cannot be examined as to communications made to him in official confidence, when the public interests would suffer by the disclosure.

Sec. 3645. The judge of the court is a competent witness for either party, and may be sworn upon the trial. But in such case it is in his discretion to order the trial to be postponed or suspended and to take place before another judge.

Sec. 3646. No witness is excused from answering a question upon the mere ground that he would be thereby subjected to a civil liability.

Rules which apply to all other witnesses. The State v. Guyer, 6 Iowa, 293. It was held under section 3983 of the revision that the wife was not a competent witness in a civil action for the husband. Karney v. Paisley, 13 Id., 89.

But in Rues v. The Steamboat War Eagle, 14 Id., 363, it was held that the wife might, under section 3936, be made competent to testify for her husband when he waived the prohibition contained in the statute. To the same effect is Blake v. Graves, 18 Id., 312.

It was also held under sections 3983 and 3984 of the revision, that in an action by a vendor of real estate against the heirs of the vendor to enforce a vendor's lien, the widow of the deceased vendor was a competent witness to show a conversation between the plaintiff and her husband, in relation to the subject matter of the action. Pratt v. Delavan et al., 17 Id., 397.

A party could not, under the revision, call as a witness the husband or wife (as the case might be) of the adverse party against the objection of such party. Stanley v. Morse, 26 Id., 454.

In a prosecution against the wife and her paramour for adultery, the husband is a competent witness for the state and is not disqualified from testifying against her. The State v. Bennett, 31 Id., 24.

Where the husband and wives were indicted for keeping a house where intoxicating liquors were unlawfully sold, and were tried together, it was held, that the wife was a competent witness for her husband, with the restriction that her testimony should not be considered in her own behalf. The State v. Donovan, 41 Id., 587.

Under section 3641 of the code, as amended by chapter 33 of the acts of the fifteenth general assembly, husband and wife are not competent witnesses against each other in a civil action, but objections to their competency should be made when they are sworn, or when it is proposed to examine them, and, if not then made, will be deemed to have been waived. Watson v. Riskamire et ux., 45 Id., 231.

This section is identical with section 3984 of the revision, and section 2392 of the code of 1851.—En. This section relates only to the communications made by the husband and wife to each other during the marriage. It does not render the wife incompetent after the death of her husband to testify as to matters which she knew of her own knowledge. Romans v. Hay's Adm'r, 12 Iowa, 270.

Communications relating to the subject matter of an action, made by one of the parties thereto, to a person whom he supposed to be an attorney at law, and with a view to engage him as such in said suit, when such person was not an attorney of any court, but was receiving business as one, and was expecting to be, and was admitted to practice at the next term of the district court, were held not privileges under section 2393 of the code of 1851. Sample v. Frost, 19 Iowa, 266.

Communications made to an attorney in the course of a professional consultation, which do not relate to the subject matter of the consultation, are not privileged. The State v. Mechem- ter, 49 Id., 83. See also, Person v. Steutz, Morris, 190.
Sec. 3647. But when the matter sought to be elicited would tend to render him criminally liable, or to expose him to public ignominy, he is not compelled to answer except as provided in the next section.

Sec. 3648. A witness may be interrogated as to his previous conviction for a felony. But no other proof of such conviction is competent except the record thereof.

Sec. 3649. The general moral character of a witness may be proved for the purpose of testing his credibility.\(^1\)

Sec. 3650. When part of an act, declaration, conversation, or writing, is given in evidence by one party, the whole on the same subject may be inquired into by the other; thus when a letter is read, all other letters on the same subject between the same parties may be given. And when a detached act, declaration, conversation, or writing is given in evidence, any other act, declaration, or writing which is necessary to make it fully understood or to explain the same, may also be given in evidence.\(^2\)

Sec. 3651. When an instrument consists partly of written and printed form, the former controls the latter when the two are inconsistent.\(^3\)

Sec. 3652. When the terms of an agreement have been intended in a different sense by the parties to it, that sense is to prevail against either party in which he had reason to suppose the other understood it.

Sec. 3653. Historical works, books of science or art, and published maps or charts, when made by persons indifferent between the parties, are presumptive evidence of facts of general notoriety or interest.\(^4\)

\(^1\) When one of two defendants testifies in a criminal prosecution in behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself on trial. The State v. Hardin et al., 46 Iowa, 623.

\(^2\) The other act or declaration of a party, contemplated in this section, to be admissible in evidence, must be something which is necessary to make the previous or subsequent detached act or declaration fully understood, or to explain it. Dougherty v. Posegate, 3 Iowa, 83.

\(^3\) It is not all that a party may have said at other times, with regard to the subject of the suit, or matter in controversy, that is admissible in evidence under this section of the code. Id.

\(^4\) Where in an action on a promissory note, given in part payment for a reaper, in which the defendant claimed damages on the ground of a breach of warranty under which the reaper was sold, a witness for the defendant on cross-examination testified that after the reaper was delivered, defendant told him he was going across the river to Rock Island, to get some castings for the reaper, and thereupon the defendant offered to prove by the witness, what he told him afterwards in another conversation, about the working of the reaper, with the castings thus obtained, which was admitted. Held, that the evidence was not admissible under this provision of the statute. Williams v. Donaldson, 8 Id., 108.

If a part of a conversation is given in evidence by one party, the opposite party may enquire into all of it which relates to the same subject, on the cross-examination of the witness by whom the conversation is proved. Gaddes v. Lord et al., 10 Id., 141; McComber v. Leonard, 13 Id., 330; Jones v. Hopkins, 32 Id., 503; Courtright v. Deeds, 37 Id., 503, 514; Baker v. Mygatt, 14 Id., 131.

The rule that when part of a conversation has been introduced, the other party may insist upon the whole of it relating to the same subject, does not apply where a party seeks to introduce his own statements in evidence for himself; because a portion of a conversation in which they were made, has been stated by his own witness, at his instance, without objection from the opposite party. The State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72.

It is not a sufficient objection to the introduction of a letter in evidence, that the letter to which it was a reply, and which was in the possession of the opposite party, was not called for and put in evidence, when the introduction of such letter is not necessary to an understanding of the contents of the one offered. Brayley v. Ross, 33 Id., 505.

\(^5\) When the granting clause in a deed is in writing, and the general covenants are printed, the former will govern when the two are inconsistent. McNear v. McComber, 18 Iowa, 12, 17.

\(^6\) A map of a city purporting to be a correct plat thereof, made by United States Commissioners, who, under an act of congress, laid off and platted the city, is not admissible in evidence in an action of right; when it appears that the map offered is but a copy, and it is not...
Sec. 3654. When a subscribing witness does not recollect the execution of the instrument to which his name is subscribed as such witness, its execution may be proved by other evidence.

Sec. 3655. Evidence respecting handwriting may be given by comparison made by experts, or by the jury, with writings of the same person which are proved to be genuine.

Sec. 3656. Every private writing, except a last will and testament, after being acknowledged or proved and certified in the manner prescribed for the proof or acknowledgment of conveyances of real property, may be read in evidence without farther proof.

Sec. 3657. The entries and other writings of a person deceased, made at or near the time of the transaction and in a position to know the facts therein stated, are presumptive evidence of such facts when the entry was made against the interest of the person so making it, or when made in a professional capacity or in the ordinary course of professional conduct, or when made in the performance of a duty specially enjoined by law.

Books of Account.

Sec. 3658. Books of account containing charges by one party against the other, made in the ordinary course of business, are receivable in evidence only under the following circumstances, subject to all just exceptions as to their credibility:

When and how admitted in evidence. Sec. 3659.

shown that it is a true copy. Pfozter v. Mullone, 36 Iowa, 197.

This section of the statute making books of science and art admissible as evidence, does not render inadmissible any other respecting matters to which they relate, which was before admissible. Hence, medical or surgical authorities are not the best or only evidence as to whether there is any difference among them as to the mode of treatment or proper course to be pursued, but the same may be shown by the testimony of physicians or surgeons. Brodhead v. Willoe, 36 Id., 429.

Such witnesses are also competent to testify who are standard authors, and the treatment they prescribe. Id.

Hand writing may be proved by comparison made by experts, or by the jury, with the writing of the same person which is proved to be genuine. Baker v. Mygatt, 14 Iowa, 131; Hyde v. Woolfolk et al., 1 Id., 159; Lay v. Wissman, 36 Id., 305.

Where it is sought to prove hand writing by comparison, the standard writing must be proved to be genuine by the testimony of a witness who saw the party write it, or by the party's admission or the like, and the certificate of an acknowledgement of a deed is not competent to establish the genuineness of the signature of the grantor thereto as a standard. Hyde v. Woolfolk et al., 1 Id., 159.

On the trial of an equitable action on appeal in the supreme court, the court may compare the signature to a writing in controversy with writing of the same person which is proved to be genuine, as evidence of hand-writing. Morris v. Sargent et al., 18 Id., 90.

The determination by the court below of the question of the genuineness of a signature upon the evidence of experts, by comparison of handwriting, is entitled on appeal, to the same consideration as the verdict of a jury. Lay v. Wissman, 36 Id., 305.

While the evidence of experts to establish the genuineness of hand writing is competent under the statute, it is evidence of the lowest order and most unsatisfactory character. Whitaker v. Parker, 42 Id., 555.

In order to render a witness competent as an expert to testify of handwriting by comparison, it is not necessary that he should possess the highest skill or information on the subject, or that he should testify that he is an expert, for the inquiry does not require a witness of a particular calling as an expert, but his admissibility depends on his means of knowledge as a businessman and his intelligence. Hyde v. Woolfolk, et al., 1 Id., 150.

Entries made by a party who is dead, in respect to his own business transactions, in a book kept for that purpose, are admissible in evidence as to such transactions, when clearly against the interest of the party making such entries. The State v. Woodard, 20 Iowa, 541.

The jury, however, should be told that while this evidence is competent, the right of cross-examination does not exist, that it is not highly favored by the law, and that they should give it such weight, as, under all the circumstances, they deem it entitled to. Id.
1. The books must show a continuous dealing with persons generally, or several items of charge at different times against the other party in the same book or set of books;
2. It must be shown by the party's oath or otherwise that they are his books of original entries;
3. It must be shown in like manner that the charges were made at or near the time of the transactions therein entered, unless satisfactory reasons appear for not making such proof;
4. The charges must also be verified by the party or clerk who made the entries, to the effect that they believe them just and true, or a sufficient season must be given why such verification is not made.\(^1\)

\(^{1}\) Where on the trial, the plaintiff produced a small book, containing the account on which the suit was brought, in which were charges against the defendants and other persons, which among other things charged the defendants with a certain quantity of stone; and the plaintiff testified that the charges against the defendant, were not made at or near the time of the transaction, for the reason that he was not present when the defendants were getting the stone, that the defendants told him, after they had finished getting the stone, the amount, which he then entered as appear'd in said book, that this was his book of original entries, and that the charges therein made were true; it was held: 1. That the book, so far as it related to the stone, was properly admitted in evidence; 2. That as to the other items of the account, the book should have been rejected; 3. That the showing of the plaintiff brought the book within the reason and spirit of the statute. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 6 Iowa, 486.

Prior to the statute making parties competent witnesses in their own behalf, the plaintiff, in an action on an account was competent to show the preliminary matters required by law in order to introduce his books of account in evidence. Hastings & Co. v. Devoran, 7 Id., 319.

Whenever the law provides for the admission of books of account in evidence, it is based upon the idea of the presence themselves on the trial, and in their absence evidence of their contents cannot be substituted. Churchill et al. v. Fuliam, 8 Id., 45.

The book itself, when admitted, becomes the witness, and is still subject to any objections which may be made by the opposite party respecting its credibility, arising from the manner in which it has been kept—its appearance, erasures, alterations, confusion and irregularity, and whatever may tend to diminish its credibility in the minds of the jury. Id.

To render books of account admissible in evidence, the necessary preliminary facts must be shown by the oath of the person who made the entries, unless his absence, or the absence of his testimony is satisfactorily accounted for. Karr v. Stivers, 34 Id., 123.

It must appear that the charges sought to be proved were made in the ordinary course of the party's business. Id. See, also, Veiths v. Hogge, 8 Id., 163; Young v. Jones, Id., 219; Lord v. Ellis, 9 Id., 301; Nell et al. v. Eckerson, 8 Id., 224; Sloan v. Ault, Id., 229; Cummins v. Hull's Adm'r's, 35 Id., 253.

It must be shown that the entries in the book were made at or about the time when the transactions therein entered occurred, or a satisfactory reason must be shown why they were not so entered. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 6 Id., 487.

An item of charge in a book of account "for four months work," cannot be established.
INSURUMENTS AFFECTING REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3659. Every instrument in writing affecting real estate, which is acknowledged or proved, and certified as hereinbefore directed, may be read in evidence without farther proof.1

SEC. 3660. The record of such instrument, or a duly authenticated copy thereof, is competent evidence whenever by the party’s own oath or otherwise the original is shown to be lost, or not belonging to the party wishing to use the same, nor within his control. And in such case no objection to the record that no official seal is appended to the recorded acknowledgment thereof, if, when the acknowledgment purports to have been taken by an officer having an official seal, there be a statement in the certificate of acknowledgment that the same is made under his hand and seal of office, and the records show by a scroll or otherwise that there was such a seal, which will be presumptive evidence that the official seal was attached to the original certificate.1

by the book specifying dates between which the work was performed. Karr v. Stiters, 34 Id., 123.

Books of account are not admissible for the purpose of proving cash items, as “for money loaned” or “money paid,” unless it be shown that the person offering the books is engaged in a business to justify such charges, as that of banking or receiving money on deposit and paying it out. Cummins v. Hull’s Admr’s, 35 Id., 293; Veits v. Haage, 8 Id., 183; Young v. Jones, 1 Id., 220; Sloan v. Ault, 1 Id., 229.

Whether a book of account is admissible in evidence or not, is a question for the court upon the preliminary proof offered under this section of the code; the degree of credit to be given to evidence or not, is a question for the court upon the preliminary proof offered under this section of the code. Eyre v. Cook, 9 Id., 153.

Where a party against whom entries are made in books of accounts, or against whom an account is rendered, relies upon or seeks to avail himself of credits entered in his favor, he will not be allowed to do so without at the same time making the whole account evidence against him. Veits v. Hagge, 8 Id., 163.

Books of account cannot be proved by depositions, by proving their character and contents, with copies of the accounts annexed to the depositions, unless the books themselves are produced in court. Churchill v. Fulliam et al., 8 Id., 45.

A book which was called a book of original entries, but which was taken up with memoranda of purchases of hogs, with the computation of their weights, prices, and amounts paid thereon, was held inadmissible as a book of original entries. Whisler v. Drake, 35 Id., 103; Hart v. Livingston, 29 Id., 217.

Entries in the books of a trustee of subscribers to a loan of money received by him from subscribers and paid over by him to the borrower, are inadmissible as evidence in an action by a subscriber to the loan against such borrower. Sypher v. Savery, 39 Id., 253.

1 Where a sworn answer does not deny the execution of a deed, but avers that it was not executed for a valuable consideration, if it is properly acknowledged, proof of its genuineness and validity, it not, under the statute, necessary to its admission in evidence. Savery v. Brown- ing, 18 Iowa, 246.

As between the grantee and a creditor of the grantor, the date which a deed bears is prima facie evidence of the time of its execution, especially when it does not appear that the party was a creditor at the date of the deed. Id.

Secondary evidence of the contents of a deed cannot be given to prove title in an action of right, unless the deed be shown to be lost, or not belonging to, nor within the control of, the party wishing to use the same. Williams v. Heath, 22 Id., 519.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that a deed in the custody of the grantee was delivered by the grantor and accepted by the grantee at the date of its execution. Wolverton v. Collins, 34 Id., 238.

1 The recording laws of this state have no application to patents issued for lands sold by the United States; and a copy of such a patent contained in the record books of a county, is not admissible in evidence under this section of the statute. Curtis v. Hunting, 6 Iowa, 536.

The single fact that a mortgage of lands is found upon the records of a county, raises no presumption of its delivery to, and acceptance by, the mortgagee, against the positive and unqualified denial of the mortgagee and those claiming under him, that he ever received the mortgage, or had any knowledge thereof. Fo ley v. Howard, 8 Id., 56.

An agent of a party to an action who had held possession of title deeds which are lost, is competent to make the necessary preliminary proof to admit secondary evidence of their contents. Corbin v. Bebee, 36 Id., 336.

The possession of a written instrument furnishes presumptive evidence of ownership in the person having such possession. Courtright v. Deeds, 37 Id., 593.

SEC. 3661. The provisions of the preceding section are intended to apply to all instruments heretofore recorded, as well as those hereafter to be recorded.

SEC. 3662. Neither the certificate, nor the record, nor the transcript thereof, is conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

SEC. 3663. Except when otherwise specially provided, no evidence of the contracts enumerated in the next succeeding section is competent, unless it be in writing and signed by the party charged or by his lawfully authorized agent.

SEC. 3664. Such contracts embrace:
1. Those in relation to the sale of personal property, when no part of the property is delivered, and no part of the price is paid;
2. Those made in consideration of marriage;
3. Those wherein one person promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, including promises by executors to pay the debt of their principal from their own estate;
4. Those for the creation or transfer of any interest in lands, except leases for a term not exceeding one year;
5. Those that are not to be performed within one year from the making thereof.*

* Although the language of our statute of frauds (section 3663) is different from the fourth section of 29 Charles II, which provides "that no action shall be brought," while ours provides that "no evidence of the contracts enumerated is competent," yet the meaning is the same; no action can be maintained under either, unless the contract be in writing, with the exceptions stated in the statute. Westheimer v. Peacock, 2 Iowa, 527.

A defendant cannot be held liable upon a parol promise to pay the debt of another, made subsequent to the creation of the debt, and while the original debtor continues liable the consideration of the original debt will not attach to the subsequent promise; but if the subsequent promise is distinct in its nature and arises out of some new and original consideration of benefit or harm, moving between the newly contracting parties, the promise is not within the statute of frauds, and may be enforced. Westheimer v. Peacock, 2 Iowa, 527. See also, Chadwick v. Brown, Mor., 452; Bumford v. Purcell, 4 G. Greene, 488; Morgan v. McLaren, 1d., 536.

In the sale of personal property delivery is essential to vest the title in the vendee. Courtright v. Leonard, 11 Id., 32.

No evidence is competent to establish a parol contract for the purchase of personal property, where no part of the same has been delivered, nor any portion of the price paid, except that of the party against whom the contract is sought to be enforced. Burnside & Co. v. Rawson & Co., 37 Id., 639.

The statute of frauds will not exempt from liability one who has received part of the consideration of a note, notwithstanding he was not a maker thereof. Dee v. Downs et al., 50 Iowa, 310.

An agreement to foreclose a mortgage and convey the land acquired thereunder is not within the statute of frauds and may be proved by parol. Cooley v. Osborne et al., 536.

The provisions of our statute of frauds, unlike the English statute of 29 Charles II, relate merely to the evidence or proof of contracts, and not to their validity. Accordingly, where A. agreed to sell B. an interest in lands, and to receive in consideration thereof B’s note, to be endorsed by E., the indorsement by E. related back to the date of the note and as between him and B., E. was not present, but D., though without authority, agreed for him that he would indorse the note, which E. subsequently did, with full knowledge of all the facts; held: 1 That D’s agreement that E. would indorse the note was not void by reason of the statute of frauds; 2 That E’s subsequent indorsement operated as a ratification of said agreement by D.; 3 That the indorsement by E. related back to the date of the note and as between him and A. was not open to the plea of want of consideration. Berryhill v. Jones, 35 Id., 355.

Where the promise to pay the debt or discharge the obligation of another arises out of a new and original consideration between the payee and the debtor, the case is not within the statute of frauds, and the contract is not required to be evidenced in writing and signed by the Exceptions.

Sec. 3665. The provision of the first sub-division of the preceding section, does not apply when the article of personal property sold is not at the time of the contract owned by the vendor and ready for delivery; but labor, skill, or money, are necessarily to be expended in producing or procuring the same; nor do those of the fourth sub-division of said section apply where the purchase money, or any portion thereof, has been received by the vendor, or when the vendee, with the actual or implied consent of the vendor, has taken and held possession thereof under and by virtue of the contract, or when there is any other circumstance, which, by the law heretofore in force, would have taken a case out of the statute of frauds.

The plaintiff in his petition alleged that the defendant, being engaged in procuring subscriptions to aid in the construction of a certain railroad, verbally promised the defendant sold his farm before the payment of all said subscription, assume plaintiff’s obligation, refund to him the amount paid, and pay the balance himself. Held, that parol evidence was not admissible to prove the agreement alleged, in an action against the defendant thereon. Kauffman v. Hartsock, 31 Id., 472.

Where a parol contract for the sale of real property, is followed by the taking possession by the purchaser, and the payment of a small part of the purchase money, such facts will take it out of the statute of frauds; the doctrine of part performance assumes the admissibility of parol evidence to explain it. Collins v. Vande­ver, 1 Iowa, 573.

A parol contract for the sale of improvements on the public lands is not within the statute. Zickafoose v. Hurlecl, Mor., 175.

The fact which removes a parol contract from the operation of the statute of frauds may be shown by parol. Bennett v. Nye, 4 G. Greene, 410.

In order that possession shall have the effect to take a parol contract out of the statute of frauds, the possession must have been taken under the contract, and with the consent of the vendor; and when so taken the contract is good. Carrolls v. Cook & Shelley, 15 Id., 455; Baldwin v. Thompson, 1 Id., 504.

The fourth sub-division of section 3664 of the Code, as respects leases, has reference to the duration of the term of the lease, and not to the time of the performance of the contract, with reference to the date of making in to the same. Sub-division five does not apply to contracts for the creation or transfer of an interest in lands, Sobey v. Brisbee, 20 Id., 105.

A parol license to mine should be accompanied by possession under the license to exempt it from the operation of the statute of frauds. Anderson v. Simons et al., 21 Id., 399.

A resolution of the board of supervisors of a county proposing to convey a portion of its swamp lands in compromise of an action pending against the county, to recover for services rendered in securing to it the title to swamp lands from the United States, and the written acceptance of such proposition by the person to whom it was made, constitutes a contract in writing and will be specifically enforced against the county. A formal written contract signed by the parties is not required. Grimes v. Hamilton County, 37 Id., 290.

In order to exclude evidence of an oral contract, on the ground that it is not to be performed within a year from the making thereof, the contract must show, either by express terms or necessary implication, that its performance within the year is prohibited or impossible. The Blair T. L. & L. Co. v. Walker, 39 Id., 408.

Where a party residing in one place, purchases goods of another, residing at a different place, through an agent where the contract was made, which goods belonged to the vendor and ready for delivery, to be forwarded by express, and paid for with a secured note, payable in six months, it was held that the contract did not come within the exception of this section, and to be valid should have been in writing. Partridge v. Wilsey, 8 Id., 453.

Where land is purchased by one party from another by a parol contract, the consideration or part thereof paid, or possession taken, in pursuance of, and under the contract of purchase, the purchaser will be entitled to, and may enforce, specific performance of such contract. Humphrey v. Moore, 17 Id., 193, 194; Collins v. Vandever, 1 Id., 573; Fairbrother v. Shaw, 4 Id., 570; Moore v. Pearson, 6 Id., 279. Devlin v. Himan, 29 Id., 297; White v. Butt, 32 Id., 335.

In order to enforce a parol contract for the sale and conveyance of real property, the existence of the contract and its terms must be shown, and that the vendee, either paid a part of the purchase money, or took possession in pursuance of the contract. Fairbrother v. Shaw, 4 Id., 570.

Parol evidence is admissible to establish a contract for the sale of real property when it has been proven that the party to be charged has received rent for the same under claim of ownership in violation of the sale. Stweeney v. O'Hara, 43 Id., 34.

A parol gift of an ancestor to a son and heir followed by possession thereunder, the payment of taxes, and the making of permanent improvements thereon is not within the statute of frauds, and the title of the donee will be quieted as against the other heirs. Hughes v. Lindsey, 31 Id., 329.

Where a parol promise of a parent to convey real property to his child, is clearly, definitely and conclusively established, and the child, on the faith of such promise, has entered into possession and made permanent improvements upon the land, the parent will be deemed to specifically perform his promise. Moore v. Pearson, 6 Id., 279.

The term "pur chase money" as used in this section of the statute, means the consideration received, in whatever form it may be. It was accordingly held, where the plaintiff agreed to convey to the defendant a certain parcel of land for a certain parcel to be conveyed by the defendant to the plaintiff, that a conveyance by the plaintiff in accordance with the contract, was a possession of the purchase money within the meaning of the statute. Devil v. Hamer, 29 Id., 237.

A parol license to mine should be accompanied with possession to take it out of the statute of frauds. Anderson v. Simpson, 21 Id., 399.

The first subdivision of section 3664 does not, under the provisions of section 3665 apply where the article sold is not at the time owned by the vendor and ready for delivery, and labor, skill or money are necessarily to be expended in producing the same. The same applies to an agreement for a lien upon, and respecting the possession of property in this condition. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 306.

Under this section, when the plaintiff is otherwise entitled to specific performance, and the defendant either admits, or does not deny in his answer an unwritten contract for the purchase of land, it may be enforced, notwithstanding the benefit of the statute is insisted upon in the answer. Anter v. Miller, 18 Iowa, 405.

The petition alleged that on a certain day named, the plaintiff entered into a verbal contract with the defendant for the purchase of certain lands; the answer denied that on the day named the defendant entered into such contract; denied that at the time stated, the defendant, by any valid contract, agreed to sell and convey the real estate described; and denied that the defendant made any lawful contract with the plaintiff for the sale of the real estate upon the terms alleged; held, that the allegations of the petition were sufficiently denied to put the plaintiff upon proof of the contract by competent evidence. Mahana v. Blunt, 29 Id., 142.

A parol contract, which is within the statute of frauds, may be established if not denied in the pleadings or if admitted by the party against whom it is sought to be enforced, but in such case the petition should state the manner in which it is expected that the contract will be proved, otherwise it will be subject to demurrer. Bobcock v. Meek, 45 Id., 137.

The party against whom a parol contract, which is within the statute of frauds, is sought to be enforced, is the only competent witness to prove such contract. An agent of the party does not come up to the letter or spirit of the statute. Burnside & Co. v. Rawson & Co., 37 Iowa, 639.

When the plaintiff calls the defendant as a witness under this section to establish a parol agreement within the statute of frauds, he will not be permitted to introduce evidence to contradict or impeach that of the defendant. Hunt v. Coo et al., 15 Id., 197.

Where a parol contract within the statute of frauds is proved by the testimony of the party against whom such contract is sought to be enforced, it is thereby taken out of the statute and the contract will be enforced. Hobbs v. Brayton, 24 Id., 596, 598; Smith v. Phelps, 32 Id., 531; Lyon v. Thompson, 16 Id., 62; Anter v. Miller, 18 Id., 405; Mahana v. Blunt, 29 Id., 62; Anderson v. Simpson, 21 Id., 399.

A certificate of protest by a notary, in the "usual form," is evidence only of the facts recited therein; and where it states that the notice of protest was sent by mail to the address of
Sec. 3669. The future proceedings of all officers, and of all courts of limited and inferior jurisdiction within this state, shall, like those of a general and superior jurisdiction, be presumed regular, except in regard to matters required to be entered of record, and except when otherwise expressly declared.\footnote{Sec. 3669.}

Sec. 3670. The records and papers properly filed in a cause in either the district or circuit court of a county, are equally evidence in the other court. Depositions taken for either court may be used in the other with the same effect, subject to like objection, as if taken in such court.

Sec. 3671. The clerks of the several courts shall, on application of any person having a cause or any matter pending in court, issue a subpoena for witnesses under the seal of the court, inserting all the which must have been involved and determined in the original action. Haggerty v. Burr, 22 Id., 219.

In an action upon a recognizance, taken by a magistrate upon an adjournment of a preliminary examination before him of one charged with a felony, for the appearance of the party charged on the day to which the case is adjourned, the petition need not state the particular facts which show that the magistrate had authority to take bail. The existence of such facts will be presumed. The want of such facts may be set up or shown on the trial. The State v. Huford, 23 Id., 579.

That a petition for a road is not offered in evidence in a prosecution for obstructing a highway, constitutes no valid objection to the admission of the road record when it appears therefrom that the petition was presented, filed and acted upon. The State v. Lane, 26 Id., 223.

Where the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace is by consent extended to a sum greater than one hundred dollars, it will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be presumed that such consent was given before the commencement of the suit and the issuing of an attachment therein. The rule that courts and officers are presumed to act rightly, is extended by the statute to inferior courts. Hodge v. Ruggles et al., 36 Id., 42.

Under chapter 240, acts of the sixth general assembly, it was held, that an affidavit that the person to be served with notice could not be found within the state must have appeared of record to confer jurisdiction upon the county to make an order for publication. It will not be presumed under section 3669 of the code. Bradley v. Jamison, 46 Id., 68.

The proceedings of all courts of record, and including those of limited and inferior jurisdiction, are presumed to be regular in respect to all matters not required to be entered of record, and where in an action before a justice of the peace, the justice decided that he had jurisdiction, such adjudication will be presumed correct until the contrary is shown by evidence. Church v. Crossman, 49 Id., 444, 449.
names required by the applicant in one subpœna, which may be served by the sheriff, coroner, or any constable of the county, or by the party or any other person. When a subpœna is not served by the sheriff, coroner, or constable, proof of service shall be shown by affidavit; but no costs of serving the same shall be allowed.

Sec. 3672. The subpœna shall be directed to the person therein named, requiring him to attend at a particular time or place to testify as a witness, and it may contain a clause directing the witness to bring with him any book, writing, or other thing under his control, which he is bound by law to produce as evidence.

Sec. 3673. Witnesses in civil cases cannot be compelled to attend the district or circuit court out of the state where they are served, nor at a distance of more than seventy miles from the place of their residence, or from that where they are served with a subpœna, unless within the same county. No other subpœna but that from the district or circuit court can compel his attendance at a greater distance than thirty miles from his place of residence, or of service, if not in the same county.

Sec. 3674. Witnesses are entitled to receive in advance, if demanded, their traveling fees to and from the court, together with their fees for one day's attendance. At the commencement of each day after the first, they are further entitled, on demand, to receive the legal fees for that day in advance. If not thus paid they are not compelled to attend or remain as witnesses. 3

Sec. 3675. For a failure to obey a valid subpœna, without a sufficient cause or excuse, or for a refusal to testify after appearance, the delinquent is guilty of contempt of court. He is also liable to the party by whom he was subpœnaed for all consequences of such delinquency, together with fifty dollars additional damages.

Sec. 3676. Before a witness is thus liable for a contempt for not appearing, he must be served personally with the process, by reading it to him, and by leaving a copy thereof with him, if demanded, and it must be shown that the fees and traveling expenses allowed by law were tendered to him, if required; or it must appear that a copy of the subpœna, if left at his usual place of residence, came into his hands, together with the said fees and traveling expenses above mentioned.

Sec. 3677. If a witness conceal himself, or in any other manner attempt to avoid being personally served with a subpœna, any sheriff or constable having the subpœna may use all necessary and proper means to serve the same, and for that purpose may break into any building or other place where the witness is to be found, having first made known his business and demanded admission.

Sec. 3678. A person confined in any prison in this state, may by order of any court of record, be required to be produced for oral examination in the county where he is imprisoned, and in a criminal case in any county in the state; but in all other cases his examination must be by a deposition. 4

3 It is competent for the district court to adopt and enforce a rule limiting the right of witnesses, subpœnaed and attending court in several cases at the same time, to fees for mileage and attendance in one case only. Such a rule is "consistent with law," within the meaning of section 186 of the code. Meffert v. D. B. M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 490.

4 A defendant in a criminal case possesses no absolute right under the constitution and this section of the code, to demand the personal attendance of a convict, under an order of court to testify as a witness on the trial. The exercise of the power to make such order is discretionary, and will not be reviewed on appeal except in a
Sec. 3679. While a prisoner's deposition is being taken, he shall remain in the custody of the officer having him in charge, who shall afford reasonable facilities for the taking of the depositions.

Sec. 3680. When by the laws of any other state or country, testimony may be taken in this state to be used in the courts of such state or country, and also in all cases herein provided for taking depositions, the persons authorized to take such depositions have power to issue subpoenas and compel obedience thereto, to administer oaths, and to do any other act of a court which is necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which they are acting.

Sec. 3681. Subpoenas issued by them are valid to the same extent as those emanating from a justice's court, and may be served and returned in the same manner.

Sec. 3682. Any sheriff or constable, when called upon for that purpose, shall serve such subpoenas and make return thereof.

Sec. 3683. In addition to the above remedies, if a party to a suit in his own right, on being duly subpoenaed, fail to appear and give testimony, the other party may, at his option, have a continuance of the cause as in cases of other witnesses, and at the cost of the delinquent.

Sec. 3684. Or if he shows by his own testimony or otherwise, that he could not have a full personal knowledge of the transaction, the court may order his pleading to be taken as true; such order, however, is subject to be reconsidered during the term of the court upon satisfactory reasons being shown for such delinquency.

Production of Books and Papers.

Sec. 3685. The district or circuit court may, by rule, require the production of any papers or books which are material to the just determination of any cause pending before it, for the purpose of being inspected and copied by or for the party thus calling for them.

Sec. 3686. The petition for that purpose must state the facts expected to be proved by such books or papers, and that, as the petitioner believes, such books and papers are under the control of the party against whom the rule is sought, and must show wherein they are material. The rule shall thereupon be granted to produce the books and papers, or show cause to the contrary, if the court deem such rule expedient and proper.

Sec. 3687. On failure to obey the rule, or show sufficient cause for such failure, the same consequences shall ensue as if the party had failed to appear and testify when subpoenaed by the party now calling for the books and papers.

Under this section as well as under section 2730, a defendant in an action on a promissory note alleged to have been made by him, may obtain possession thereof before trial for the purpose of inspecting it. Lay v. Wissman, 36 Id., 305, 307.

The granting of an order for the production of books and papers under this section is a matter resting in the discretion of the court. Allison et al. v. Vaughn, 40 Id., 421; Sheldon v. Michel & Head, Id., 19.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

SEC. 3689. An affidavit is a written declaration under oath, made without notice to the adverse party.

SEC. 3690. An affidavit may be made within or without this state before any person authorized to administer oaths.

SEC. 3691. Affidavits taken out of the state before any judge or clerk of a court of record, or before a notary public, or a commissioner appointed by the governor of this state to take acknowledgment of deeds in the state where such affidavit is taken, are of the same credibility as if taken within the state.

SEC. 3692. When a person is desirous of obtaining the affidavit of another who is unwilling to make the same fully, he may apply to any officer competent to take depositions as herein declared, by petition, stating the object for which he desires the affidavit.

SEC. 3693. If such officer is satisfied that the object is legal and proper, he shall issue his subpoena to bring the witness before him, and if he fails then to make a full affidavit of the facts within his knowledge to the extent required of him by the officer, the latter may proceed to take his disposition by question and answer in writing in the usual way, which deposition may afterwards be used instead of an ordinary affidavit.

SEC. 3694. The officer thus applied to may, in his discretion, require notice of the taking of such affidavit or deposition to be given to any other person interested in the subject matter, and allow him to be present and cross-examine such witness.

SEC. 3695. The court or officer to whom any affidavit is presented as a basis for some action, in relation to which any discretion is lodged with such court or officer, may, if deemed proper, require the witness to be brought before some proper officer and subjected to cross-interrogatories by the opposite party.

SEC. 3696. The signature and seal of such of the officers herein authorized to take depositions or affidavits as have a seal, and the simple signature of such as have no seal, are presumptive evidence of the genuineness of such signature as well as of the official capacity of the officer, except as herein otherwise declared.

Where the affidavit is made in another state before a clerk of a court, an omission to state in the certificate that the court is a court of record does not render the affidavit invalid. Evidence aliunde may be given to show the character of the court. Id.

Under this section a justice of the peace has power to require the appearance before him by subpoena, issued for that purpose, of a person whose affidavit is desired, and a refusal to obey such subpoena thus issued, or to answer when brought before the justice, is a contempt, for which the justice may commit the witness. Sec. 3697. Publications required by law to be made in a newspaper, may be proved by the affidavit of any person having knowledge of the fact, specifying the times when, and the paper in which the publication was made. But such affidavit must, for the purposes now contemplated, be made within six months after the last day of publication.

Sec. 3698. The posting up or service of any notice or other paper required by law, may be proved by the affidavit of any competent witness attached to a copy of said notice or paper, and made within six months of the time of such posting up. *

Sec. 3699. Any other fact which is required to be shown by affidavit, and which may be required for future use in any action or other proceeding, may be proved by pursuing the course above indicated, as nearly as the circumstances of the case will admit. x

Sec. 3700. Such proof so made may be perpetuated and preserved for future use, by filing the papers above mentioned in the office of the clerk of the circuit court. And the original affidavit appended to the notice or paper, if there be one, and if not, the affidavit by itself, is presumptive evidence of the facts stated therein, but does not preclude other modes of proof now held sufficient.

Maps, plats, records, entries.

Sec. 3701. A copy of the field-notes of any surveyor, or a plat made by him and certified under oath as correct, may be received as evidence to show the shape or dimensions of a tract of land, or any other fact whose ascertainment requires only the exercise of scientific skill or calculation.

Sec. 3702. Duly certified copies of all records and entries, or papers belonging to any public office, or by authority of law filed to be kept therein, shall be evidence in all cases of equal credibility with the original record or papers so filed. *

* A notice of appeal to the supreme court cannot be served and the proof of service be made by the party appealing. Marion County v. Stanford, 8 Iowa, 406.

It was not the intention that the mode of service provided by this section should be exclusive of any other, but simply to provide that such proof should be sufficient. The service may be proved by the oath of any person cognizant of the fact, or in any other way recognized by the rules of evidence. Shawhan v. Laffer, 24 Id., 217, 228.

Proof of service of the notice and affidavit under section 1289 of the code, in an action against a railroad company for stock killed may be established by a return of the sheriff through his deputy, indorsed on the notice as well as by a sworn return by such deputy. Brandt v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 26 Id., 114, 116.

*Copies of letters belonging to and on file in the office of the registrar of the state land office duly certified under the hand and seal of the registrar, are under this section, admissible in evidence, and entitled to the same credibility as the original letters of which they are copies. Bellows v. Todd, 34 Iowa, 18.

A certified copy of a private contract, filed in the office of the county auditor; but not authorized by law to be kept therein, is not competent evidence of the contract. Such a paper is not a record belonging to the auditor's office. Morrison v. Coad, 49 Id., 571.
AN ACT relating to the recording of the United States and state patents for lands.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That United States and State patents for lands in this state, that have been or hereafter may be recorded in the recorder's office of the county in which the lands are situated, shall be deemed matters of record, and certified copies thereof, under the hand of the recorder, may be received and read in evidence in all the courts in this state, with like effect as other certified copies of original papers recorded in his office.

In order to entitle said patents to be recorded, no acknowledgment, as required by chapter six of the code shall be necessary.

SEC. 3703. The recorder in each of the several counties in this state, shall cause to be procured a book, entitled "copies of original entries" to be kept as a record in his office, in which shall be copied a list of the original entries of land within his county, with name of the person or persons entering the same and the date of such entry, for which he shall receive a reasonable compensation, to be audited and allowed by the board of supervisors of his county.

SEC. 3704. Said book, containing a copy of such entries when compared with the originals, and certified as true copies by the register of the land office at which such original entries were made, shall be deemed a matter of record, and certified copies thereof under the hand of said recorder may be received and read in evidence in all the courts in this state, with like effect as other certified copies of original papers recorded in his office.

SEC. 3705. Said recorder shall from time to time, as he may deem it necessary, procure in the same manner copies of any additional entries, under the same restrictions and with like effect until all the lands in his county shall have been entered and certified copies of the entries thereof procured.

SEC. 3706. Every officer having the custody of a public record or writing is bound to give any person, on demand, a certified copy thereof on payment of the legal fees therefor.

SEC. 3707. Copies of all maps, official letters and other documents in the office of the surveyor-general of the United States, when certified to by that officer according to law, shall be received by the courts of this state as presumptive evidence of the existence of the originals and that said copies are copies of the original, notwithstanding such maps, official letters, or other papers, may themselves be copied.

SEC. 3708. The certificate of a public officer that he has made diligent and ineffectual search for a paper in his office, is of the same efficacy in all cases as if such officer had personally appeared and sworn to such facts.

* Under the statute (sections 3703 and 3704), the certificate of the county recorder is competent evidence to show who entered a particular tract of land in his county. York v. Sheldon, 18 Iowa, 569, 570.
SECTION 3709. The usual duplicate receipt of the receiver of any land office, or if that be lost or destroyed, or beyond the reach of the party, the certificate of such receiver that the books of his office show the sale of a tract of land to a certain individual, is proof of title equivalent to a patent against all but the holder of an actual patent.

SECTION 3710. The certificate of the register or receiver of any land office of the United States as to the entry of land within his district, shall be presumptive evidence of title in the person entering to the real estate therein named.

SECTION 3711. In the cases contemplated in the last seven sections, the signature of the officer shall be presumed to be genuine, until the contrary is shown.

JUDICIAL RECORDS.

SECTION 3712. A judicial record of this state, or of any of the federal courts of the United States, may be proved by the production of the original, or by a copy thereof certified by the clerk or the person having the legal custody thereof, authenticated by his seal of office, if he have one.

SECTION 3713. That of another state may be proved by the attestation of the clerk and the seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of a judge, chief justice or presiding magistrate that the attestation is in due form of law.

SECTION 3714. The official certificate of a justice of the peace of any of the United States to any judgment and the preliminary proceedings before him, supported by the official certificate of the clerk of any court of record within the county in which such justice resides, stating that he is an acting justice of the peace of that county, and that the signature to his certificate is genuine, is sufficient evidence of such proceedings and judgment.

- The original certificate of a register of a land office of the United States, of the location of agricultural college scrip upon land within his district, is prima facie evidence of title in the person locating it, under this section of the statute. A showing that scrip of the same number was located upon another tract is not sufficient to overcome such title. Pierson v. Reed, 36 Iowa, 257.

This section of the statute relates to the remedy and applies to all actions in the courts of this state, whether the land in controversy is situated in this state or not. Id.

- In an action against a justice of the peace for wrongfully issuing an execution, a copy of the execution issued by him, with a copy of the constable's return indorsed thereon, certified by the justice to be a true copy, may be offered in evidence by the plaintiff, without producing the original, or accounting for its absence. Dupont v. Downing, 6 Iowa, 172, 176.

- A certificate by a presiding judge or one of the judges to the attestation of the clerk with the seal annexed, that the attestation is in due form of law, is a sufficient authentication of a record under this section of our statute, although it may not comply with the act of Congress of
SEC. 3715. Copies of records and proceedings in the courts of a foreign country may be admitted in evidence, upon being authenticated as follows:

1. By the official attestation of the clerk or officer in whose custody such records are legally kept; and,

2. By the certificate of one of the judges or magistrates of such court, that the person so attesting is the clerk or officer legally entrusted with the custody of such records, and that the signature to his attestation is genuine; and,

3. By the official certificate of the officer who has the custody of the principal seal of the government under whose authority the court is held, attested by said seal, stating that such court is duly constituted, specifying the general nature of its jurisdiction, and verifying the seal of the court.

EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE RECORDS.

SEC. 3716. Acts of the executive of the United States, or of this or any other state of the union, or of a foreign government, are proved by the records of the state department of the respective governments, or by public documents purporting to have been printed by order of the legislatures of those governments respectively, or by either branch thereof.

SEC. 3717. The proceedings of the legislature of this or any other state of the union, or the United States, or of any foreign government, are proved by the journals of those bodies respectively, or of either branch thereof, and either by copies officially certified by the clerk of the house in which proceeding was had, or by a copy purporting to have been printed by their order.

SEC. 3718. Printed copies of the statute laws of this or any other of the United States, or of congress, or of any foreign government, purporting or proved to have been published under the authority thereof, or proved to be commonly admitted as evidence of the existing laws in the courts of such state or government, shall be admitted in the courts of this state as presumptive evidence of such laws.

[SEC. 3718.] Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the “revised and annotated code of Iowa,” prepared by William E. Miller, and to be published by Mills & Co., of Des Moines, Iowa, when so published, and certified by the secretary of state to embrace the code of Iowa of 1873, as amended by subsequent statutes, and the general and permanent statutes of the fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth general assemblies, shall be receivable in evidence in all the courts of this state, with like effect as if published by the state.

SEC. 3719. Copies of the records and proceedings of the courts of record of the county in which the certifying justice resides, stating that he is an acting justice of the peace and that his signature to his certificate is genuine, such transcript is admissible in evidence in a suit thereon in this state, without the certificate of the justice who rendered the judgment. Railroad Bank v. Evans, 32 Iowa, 202.

Two transcripts of the character above shown, may both be properly authenticated by one certificate of the clerk, when they are against the same person and from the same docket of the same justice. A certificate of authentication to each is not necessary in such case. Id.

* Under this section, printed copies of the statute laws of a state, purporting to be published under the authority thereof, are admissible as presumptive evidence of such laws. Webster et al. v. Rees, 23 Iowa, 269.

When a party introduces what purports to be a volume of the statutes of a state, and it is sufficiently proved to be commonly admitted in evidence in the courts of said state, the court below may properly allow it to be given in evidence. Davis v. Harper, 48 Id., 513, 515.

* For certificate see page 3, ante.
SEC. 3719. The public seal of the state or county affixed to a copy of the written law or other public writing, is also admissible as evidence of such law or writing respectively. SEC. 3720. The clerk shall furnish such transcripts, and he shall be entitled to charge therefor at the rate that the clerk of the district court is entitled to charge for transcripts of records from that court.

DEPOSITIONS.

SEC. 3721. After the commencement of a civil action or other civil proceeding, if a witness resides within this state but in a different county from the place of trial, or is about to go beyond the reach of a subpoena, or is for any other cause expected to be unable to attend court at the time of trial, the party wishing his testimony, may whenever he deems it expedient, take his deposition in writing before any person having authority to administer oaths; and if the action is by equitable proceedings and to be tried on written evidence, then without any other reason therefor, either party may so take the deposition of any witness.\(^1\)

SEC. 3722. Reasonable notice of the name of a witness and the time and place when and where the same will be taken, must be given to the opposite party; but if notices are given in the same case by the same party, and of the taking of depositions at different places upon the same day, they shall be invalid; and no party shall be required to take depositions on the day of the general election, or on the fourth day of July.\(^2\)

\(^1\) Where a witness resides within the state but in a county different from that of the place of trial, his deposition may be taken either upon notice, or on written interrogatories. Fabian v. Davis, 5 Iowa, 456.

If the witness resides out of the state, a commission must issue to the officer or commissioner taking the same. Id.; Anderson v. Easton et Son, 16 Id., 56.

If the deposition of a witness can be taken in the county where the action is pending, no commission is necessary whether the witness resides in the county or not. Id.

Where it appears from a deposition that the witness is a non-resident of the state, it shows sufficient grounds for taking his deposition, although the witness answers that he intended to be personally present at the term of court at which the cause is to be tried, unless it be shown that the witness is present in court at the time of the trial when his deposition is to be used. Nevin v. Roup, 8 Id., 207.

\(^2\) It is not necessary, in a notice to take depositions to give the names of all the witnesses whose depositions will be taken. Mumma v. McKee, 10 Iowa, 107.

Defects in the notice of the taking of depositions is cured by the appearance of the party notified. Id.

A notice to take depositions having been served upon the attorneys of record of two of the defendants, they cannot object to the depositions on the ground that other co-defendants were not served. Glenn v. Glenn et al., 17 Id., 498.

Where a notice was given of the taking of a deposition at the office of 'Squire Moore in Ashland, Wapello county, Iowa, on the 10th day of April, 1857, and it appeared from the caption and certificate to the deposition, that it was taken on the same day named in the notice, at the office of Enos Moore a justice of the peace, of Wapello county; held, that the deposition
SEC. 3723. The deposition of a witness residing out of the county, may be taken before one or more commissioners on written interrogatories.

SEC. 3724. The officer wishing to take such deposition, may select any of the officers mentioned in the next section as such commissioners, or the parties may agree upon, or the court appoint in the commission, any other individual for that purpose. ¹

SEC. 3725. The clerk, or any judge of any court of record, or any commissioners appointed by the governor of this state to take acknowledgment of deeds in another state, or any notary public, or any consul or consular agent of the United States, may be selected and appointed by the party such commissioner, either by the name of office of such officer, or by his individual name and official style and the name of the court of which such constituted commissioner is clerk or judge, and the name of the state and county; or, if without the United States and Canada, the name of the state and town, or city in which such commissioner of deeds, notary, or consul or consular agent resides, must be stated in the notice and in the commission issued. ²

SEC. 3726. None of the above named officers are permitted to take the depositions aforesaid, by virtue of a commission directed to him merely as such officer, unless within the limits to which his official jurisdiction extends.

SEC. 3727. Reasonable notice must be given the adverse party of a time when a commission will be sued out of the office of the clerk of the court in which the action is pending; if such action is in an inferior court, then from the office of the clerk of the circuit court was properly suppressed. McClinckock v. Crick, 4 Id., 453.

Where depositions are to be taken under a commission, the requirement of the statute is express that the names of the witnesses shall be given. Pitmer v. The Br. of the St. Bk. &c., 16 Id., 391.

Where the notice of suing out the commission and the commission described the witnesses whose depositions were to be taken, as one V. " and such other person or persons as were acting as tellers or cashiers of the Marine Bank of Chicago, on a day named, under which the deposition of one D. was taken, in which he stated that he was the cashier of said bank. It was held that the witness was not sufficiently identified. Id.

A defective notice of the taking of a deposition is obviated by the appearance and cross-examination of the witness. Nevin v. Roup, 8 Id., 207.

² Where a commission to take depositions, was directed to the "clerk of the district court of Morgan county, Indiana," and the deposition was taken and certified by the "clerk of the court of common pleas of Morgan county, Indiana," it was held that the deposition should have been suppressed. Plummer v. Roads, 4 Iowa, 587.

So where the commission was directed to the "clerk of the district court of G. county, Minnesota," and the officer who took the deposition styled himself as the "clerk of the first judicial circuit of Minnesota territory" it was held that the variance was important and that the deposition should have been excluded. Jones v. Smith, 6 Id., 299.

Under this section, it is sufficient in a commission to take a deposition in the United States or Canada, to name the county and state in which the commissioner resides. When the deposition is to be taken in a foreign country, the commission should state the name of the city or town in which the officer resides. Lyon v. Barrows, 13 Id., 428.

The statute contemplates the issuing of a commission, to take a deposition, to some officer, either by his name of office, or his individual name and official style, together with the name of the county and state where he resides. It is not regular to direct a commission to several officers in the alternative. Levally v. Harmon's, Adam's, 20 Id., 538.

But where a commission was directed "to any notary public in and for Davidson county in the state of Tennessee" it, was held, not sufficient ground for suppressing the deposition. Such direction is sufficiently specific under this section of the statute. Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Id., 174.
for taking the deposition of the witness, naming him, which notice must be accompanied with a copy of the interrogatories to be asked such witness.

SEC. 3728. At or before the time thus fixed, the opposite party may file cross-interrogatories. If cross-interrogatories are not filed, the clerk shall file the following:

1. Are you directly or indirectly interested in this action? and if interested, explain the interest you have;

2. Are all your statements in the foregoing answers made from your personal knowledge? and if not, do your answers show what are made from your personal knowledge, and what are from information, and the source of that information? if not, now show what is from information, and give its source;

3. State everything you know concerning the subject of this action, favorable to either party.

SEC. 3729. Subject to the regulations herein contained, the court may establish further rules for taking depositions and all other acts connected therewith.

NOTICE—SERVICE OF.

SEC. 3730. The notice hereinbefore mentioned, is at least, when served on the attorney, ten days, and when served on the party within the county, five days; if served on the party anywhere else, the notice shall be that required under other similar circumstances in the service of an original notice; and when depositions are to be taken in pursuance of the first of the above methods, one day in addition must be allowed for every thirty miles travel from the place where the notice is served, to that where the depositions are to be taken. No party shall be required to take depositions when the court is in actual session.

SEC. 3731. The notice, or notice and copy of interrogatories, may be served by the same persons on the same persons in the same manner, and may be returned, and the return shall be authenticated in the same way, as should be an original notice in the same cause when served other than by publication.

SEC. 3732. It may also be served personally on any attorney of the adverse party of record in the cause.

SEC. 3733. Whenever the adverse party has been notified by publication only, and has not appeared, he shall be deemed served with the notice, or the notice and interrogatories, by the filing of the same with the clerk in the cause.1

MANNER OF TAKING DEPOSITIONS.

SEC. 3734. The commission issues in the name of the court and under its seal. It must be signed by the clerk, and need contain nothing but the authority conferred upon the commissioner, instructions to guide him, and a statement of the cause and court in which 1 Where the plaintiff obtained service of the original notice by publication, and took depositions after depositing notice thereof in the clerk's office, in the manner prescribed by section 3733, and after judgment, on motion of the defendant the same was set aside and a retrial ordered, it was held erroneous to suppress the deposition taken ex parte by the plaintiff, upon the motion of the defendant made after the cause had been depending for trial for a considerable time, and after some of the witnesses had died. Watson v. Russell et al., 18 Iowa., 79.

the testimony is to be used, and a copy of the interrogatories on each side appended.

Sec. 3735. The person before whom any of the depositions above contemplated are taken, must cause the interrogatories propounded, whether written or oral, to be written out, and the answers thereto to be inserted immediately underneath the respective questions. The answers must be in the language, as nearly as practicable, of the witness, if either party requires it. The whole being read over by or to the witness, must be by him subscribed and sworn to in the usual manner.

Sec. 3736. All exhibits produced before the person taking the deposition or proved or referred to by any witness, or correct copies thereof, must be appended to the depositions and returned with them, unless sufficient reasons be shown for not so doing.

Sec. 3737. The person taking the deposition shall attach his certificate thereto, stating that it was subscribed and sworn to by the deponent at the time and place therein mentioned. The whole, including the commission and interrogatories, when any such were issued, must then be sealed up and returned to the clerk of the proper county by mail, unless some other mode be agreed upon between the parties.

Sec. 3738. Where a deposition is taken upon interrogatories, neither party, nor his agent or attorney, shall be present at the examination of a witness, unless both parties are present or represented by an agent or attorney, and the certificate shall state such fact if party or agent is present.\(^a\)

Sec. 3739. The depositions when thus returned, must be opened by the clerk and placed on file in his office, after which he shall at any time furnish any person with an attested copy of the same upon payment of the customary fees, but must not allow them to be taken from his office previous to the next term of the court, unless by the mutual written consent of the parties.\(^a\)

Sec. 3740. The depositions when thus returned by mail, must be directed to the clerk of the court. They shall state on the outside of the envelope the title of the cause in which they are to be used.

Sec. 3741. Unimportant deviations from any of the above directions, shall not cause the depositions to be excluded where no substantial prejudice could be wrought to the opposite party by such deviation.\(^a\)

Sec. 3742. Where depositions are directed to be taken before a judge or justice of the peace, merely by his name of office, the return must contain an authentication by the clerk of the proper court, under his seal of office, verifying the fact that the person who took the deposition is really such officer.

\(^a\) If it be shown that one of the parties to the action was present in the absence of the other, at the time the deposition was taken upon interrogatories under a commission, the deposition will, on motion, be suppressed. Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Iowa, 174.

\(^a\) Where a deposition is taken upon interrogatories propounded by both parties, and is returned and filed in the office of the clerk of the court, neither party has a right to withdraw it, and either may use it in evidence. Pelamourges v. Clark, 9 Iowa, 1.

* The court has no power to change the form of an interrogatory in a deposition after it has been answered by the witness. Id.

* Evidence contained in depositions will not be excluded on the trial on the ground that it was elicited in response to leading questions, when no objections have been taken to the form of the questions when the depositions were taken. Wolverton v. Ellis, 18 Iowa, 419.
SEC. 3743. The deposition in each of the above cases must show that the witness is a non-resident of the county, or such other fact as renders the taking of the deposition legal, and no such deposition shall be read on the trial, if, at the time, the witness himself is produced in court.

SEC. 3744. Depositions taken to be used in a justice's court, shall be transferred to the court to which the cause is appealed, and used on the trial of such appeal in the same manner as if regularly taken therein.

PERPETUATING TESTIMONY.

SEC. 3745. The testimony of a witness may be perpetuated in the following manner.

SEC. 3746. The applicant shall file in the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court, a petition, to be verified, in which shall be set forth specially, the subject matter relative to which testimony is to be taken, and the names of the persons interested, if known to the applicant; and if not known, such general description as he can give of such persons, as heirs, devisees, alienees, or otherwise. The petition shall also state the names of the witnesses to be examined, and the interrogatories to be propounded to each; that the applicant expects to be a party to an action in a court of this state, in which such testimony will, as he believes, be material, and the obstacles preventing the immediate commencement of the action, where the applicant expects to be the plaintiff.

SEC. 3747. The court, or the judge thereof, may forthwith make an order allowing the examination of such witnesses. The order shall prescribe the time and place of the examination; how long the parties interested shall be notified thereof, and the manner in which they shall be notified.

SEC. 3748. When it appears satisfactorily to the court or judge that the parties interested cannot be personally notified, such court or judge shall appoint a competent attorney to examine the petition and prepare and file cross interrogatories to those contained therein. The witnesses shall be examined upon the interrogatories of the applicant, and upon cross interrogatories where they are required to be prepared, and no others shall be propounded to them; nor shall any statement be received which is not responsive to some of them. The attorney filing the cross interrogatories shall be allowed a reasonable fee therefor, to be taxed in the bill of costs.

SEC. 3749. Such depositions shall be taken before some one authorized by law to take depositions, or before some one specially authorized by the court or judge, and shall be returned to the clerk's office of the court in which the petition is filed.

SEC. 3750. The court or judge, if satisfied that the depositions have been properly taken and as herein required, shall approve the same and order them to be filed; and if a trial be had between the parties named in the petition, or their privies or successors in interest, such depositions, or certified copies thereof, may be given in evidence by either party where the witnesses are dead or insane, or where their attendance for oral examination cannot be obtained as required; but such depositions shall be subjected to the same objections for irrelevancy and incompetency as may be made to depositions therein pending an action."

Sec. 3751. [That the clerk shall, forthwith, after filing depositions in his office issue a notice of the filing of such depositions, reciting therein the title of the cause, names of witnesses, and the date of filing such depositions, and serve the same upon the attorneys of the parties in the action therein recited.]

Said notice shall be deemed duly served, when the clerk shall have deposited copies of the same in the post-office at the place where such cause is pending for trial, duly directed to the post-office address of the respective attorneys, for the parties in such action, which notice shall be so mailed by the clerk on the day he files such depositions; and if the post-office address of any of the attorneys of the parties is unknown to the clerk, he shall then deposit said notice, addressed to such attorney or attorneys, at the post-office where such cause is then pending for trial. No exceptions to depositions other than for incompetency or irrelevancy shall be regarded, unless made by motion filed by the morning of the second day of the first term held after the Exceptions to depositions, on the ground of insufficiency of the notice under which they were taken, held, to be waived if not filed before the commencement of the trial. Pilmer v. Branch of State Bank, et al., 16 Iowa, 321.

When, in the taking of a deposition, the witness is asked as to the contents of a statement in writing, it should be exhibited to the witness; if not, the objection must be made at the time the deposition is taken. Nelson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 564.

It is error to exclude the answers to cross-examination in a deposition, on the ground of incompetency and irrelevancy, when they relate to what the witness had stated to a particular person at a certain time and place specified, and to the subject matter of his testimony in chief. Id.

Where written objections to the taking of depositions were filed with the officer taking the same, but the attention of the court was never called thereto, and they were never passed upon by the court, no question arises thereon, for determination by the supreme court, on appeal. Neimeyer v. The Cass County Bank, 42 Id., 124.

It is not sufficient objection to a deposition, that while the pleadings, notice and commission give the entire christian names of the witness, they only set it out by the initial. Grimes v. Martin, 10 Id., 347.

Depositions taken before a notary public whose commission is unrecorded, but who is acting de facto as a notary, will not be suppressed for that reason. Keene v. Leas & Lyon, 14 Id., 494.

An objection to parol proof of the contents of a writing need not be made at the time of taking the deposition, or at any time before the trial, for it cannot be known whether it is competent or not until the time it is offered in evidence. Its admissibility will depend upon whether the proper basis has been laid by other proof, and the objection may be made when the deposition is offered to be read to the jury, or after it is received, or even after the testimony is closed. Horseman v. Todhunter, 12 Id., 230.

A motion to suppress depositions, made after the jury is sworn, and the plaintiff has stated his case, comes too late to be regarded by the court. Frazier v. Smith, 10 Id., 591.

A deposition should not be suppressed on the ground that the witness has referred to certain deeds which are not set out or annexed to the deposition as exhibits, when it appears that the deeds were not under the control of the witness, and are not the basis of the plaintiff's action. Lyon v. Barrows, 13 Id., 428.

Where the defendants were notified that on a certain day named, between the hours of nine o'clock A. M. and six o'clock P. M. the plaintiff would take the deposition of a person named, the deposition was taken between nine and eleven o'clock in the forenoon. At about the latter hour, and after the notary and witness had left the place where the deposition was taken, the attorney for the defendant appeared and desired to cross-examine the witness. Efforts were made by the plaintiff's attorney and the notary to procure the return of the witness, but without success. Held, in the absence of any showing of fraud, that the deposition should not be suppressed. Scharfenbury v. Bishop, 35 Id., 60.

Exceptions to the cross-examination in a deposition, on the ground that it is not proper cross-examination, must be in the form of a motion, filed by the morning of the second day of the first term after the deposition has been filed. Johnson v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 51 Id., 25.
depositions have been filed by the clerk: Provided, such depositions have been filed three days prior thereto.

If the depositions are afterwards received during such term, such motion shall be filed by the morning of the third day after such depositions are filed.

All motions to suppress depositions must be filed before the cause is reached for trial.

SEC. 3752. The court shall, on motion of either party, hear and decide the questions arising on exceptions to depositions before the commencement of the trial.

SEC. 3753. Errors of the court in its decision upon exception to depositions are waived, unless excepted to.

SEC. 3754. In all cases of taking depositions as hereinbefore provided, the costs thereof must be paid in the first place by the party at whose instance they are taken, subject like other costs to be taxed against the failing party in the suit.

In all cases where an officer in the discharge of his duty is required to set up an advertisement, he shall, when not otherwise provided, be allowed twenty-five cents, and if an advertisement is required to be published in a newspaper, the money therefor shall be paid by the party and may be taxed in the bill of costs.

Sec. 3839. Every officer entitled to fees, shall keep posted up in his office a fair table thereof on pain of forfeiture of two dollars per day, for the benefit of the county, for each day he fails to keep such table of fees thus posted up.

Sec. 3840. Any officer who willfully takes higher or other fees than are allowed by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be fined therefor a sum not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.³

² Where an attorney requires the performance of service by the sheriff who has knowledge that the attorney is therein acting for his client, the attorney will not be personally liable to pay for such services. Doughty v. Paige, 48 Iowa, 483, 485.

³ The custom of the attorneys of a county to hold themselves responsible for sheriff's fees in cases wherein they are employed, will not subject an attorney to liability therefor, in the absence of an agreement or of proof that the attorneys were accustomed to pay for such services regardless of the responsibility of their clients. Id.

A contract entered into by a sheriff to perform certain official services for a gross sum, in lieu of the fees provided by law, where it does not appear whether such sum will be greater or less than the legal fees, is void because against public policy and in violation of section 3840 of the code. Gilman et al. v. The D. V. R. Co. et al., 40 Iowa, 200.

A sheriff is not entitled to additional compensation for personal attention rendered to prisoners, beyond the payment for their board. Grubb v. Louisa Co., Id., 314.
Sec. 3841. Where costs are paid by a county other than the one where the offense was committed, the amount of such costs shall be deemed a charge in favor of such county and against the one in which the offense was committed, and may be recovered by action in any court having jurisdiction.

Sec. 3842. No officer or other person mentioned in this title, is entitled to any of the fees mentioned herein in advance, where the same grows out of any criminal prosecution. But in all other cases, except where the fees or compensation is payable by the state or county, or when the orders, judgments or decrees of courts or justices of the peace are to be entered or performed, or their writs executed, the officer performing any of the services named in this chapter, is entitled to his fees in advance if he demand them. After the expiration of sixty days from the rendition of a final judgment not appealed, removed or reversed, the clerk of the court or a justice of the peace in whose office the judgment is entered, may, and on demand of any party entitled to any part thereof shall, issue a fee bill for all costs of such judgment, which shall have the same force and effect as an execution issued by such officer, and shall be served and executed in the same manner.

Sec. 3843. In all cases where fees or compensation as distinguished from a certain and fixed salary, are, by the provisions of this title to be paid any officer or other person out of the county or state treasury, no part of the same shall be audited or paid, until a particular account has been filed in the auditor's office of the county or state, verified by affidavit and showing clearly for what services such fees or compensation are claimed and when the same was rendered.

Sec. 3844. The board of supervisors shall furnish the clerk of the district and circuit court, sheriff, recorder, treasurer, auditor and county superintendent, with offices at the county seat, together with fuel, lights, blanks, books and stationery necessary and proper to enable them to discharge the duties of their respective offices; but in no case shall any of such officers be permitted to occupy an office also occupied by a practicing attorney.

\[^1\] Where the district court of a county takes jurisdiction of a public offense committed in another county, within five hundred yards of its boundary, and incurs an expenditure of money in prosecuting the offender, it is not entitled to recover the money thus expended from the county within which the offense was committed. This section of the code does not apply to such cases, but is limited to those where the jurisdiction is thrust upon the county without any act of its own, as by change of venue or otherwise. The County of Floyd v. Cerro Gordo County, 47 Iowa, 186.

\[^2\] That a claim against a county is not as definite and certain as directed by the provisions of section 3843, will not, if the claims allowed by the board of supervisors, affect the validity of the warrant drawn on the county therefor.

\[^3\] The circuit court has power to prescribe and enforce a rule to the effect that, in cases of appeal from justices of the peace, if the appellant fails to have filed a transcript from the justice by the second day of the term, and pay the docket fee, that then the appellee may file such transcript and the appeal bond, and have the judgment of the justice affirmed against the appellant and his sureties in the bond.

AN ACT to regulate and limit the amount of attorney's fees that may be taxed in suits on written contracts stipulating for attorney's fees in certain cases.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in any action upon a written contract for the payment of money, made after the taking effect of this act, in which it is an agreement to pay an attorney's or collection fee, no greater recovery for attorney's fee shall be had against the maker of such contract than is provided for in section two hereof, anything in said contract contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 2. When judgment is recovered on a written contract, made after the taking effect of this act, containing an agreement to pay an attorney's fee, there shall be an attorney's fee allowed by the court and taxed as a part of the costs, except as provided in sections three and four hereof; but in no case shall the amount allowed be greater than the following, to-wit:

For the first two hundred dollars, or fraction thereof, ten per cent of the amount found due;
For the excess of two hundred dollars, up to five hundred dollars, five per cent;
For the excess of five hundred dollars, up to one thousand dollars, three per cent;
For all in excess of one thousand dollars, one per cent.

Provided, that the plaintiff shall be entitled to recover not to exceed one-half the above collection fee in case payment is made after commencement of suit and before return day. And in case of payment before judgment, and after return day, the plaintiff may recover not to exceed three-fourths of the said amounts, and have judgment therefor, and no fee shall be allowed if suit has not been commenced or expense incurred.

SEC. 3. Before any allowance of attorney's fee shall be made by the court, the court shall be fully satisfied by affidavit of the attorney engaged in the cause, which affidavit shall be filed with the original papers, that there has been and is no agreement, expressed or implied, between the attorney and his client, or between the attorney and any other person, except a practicing attorney engaged with him as attorney in the cause, for any division or sharing of the fee to be taxed; and no fee shall be taxed except in favor of a regular attorney, and in compensation for services actually rendered in the cause.

SEC. 4. Before any attorney's fee shall be allowed by the court, the court shall be fully satisfied that the defendant, if he be a resident of the county, and the suit is not aided by an attachment, had information of the whereabouts of the contract, and had a reasonable opportunity to pay the same before suit was brought. But this provision shall not apply when the contract is by its terms payable at a particular place, and the maker of the contract has not tendered the money due at the place named in the contract.

PART FOURTH.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

TITLE XXIV.
OF CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF OFFENSES AGAINST THE SOVEREIGNTY OF THE STATE.

SECTION 3845. Whoever is guilty of treason, by levying war against the state, or adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort, shall be punished by imprisonment for life at hard labor in the state penitentiary. Treason is not a bailable offense.

Sec. 3846. If any person have knowledge of the commission of the crime of treason against the state and conceal the same, and not as soon as may be disclose such offense to the governor or some judge within the state, he is guilty of misprison of treason, and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding three years nor less than one year.

Sec. 3847. No person can be convicted of the crime of treason, unless on the evidence of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.
CHAPTER 2.

OFFENSES AGAINST THE LIVES AND PERSONS OF INDIVIDUALS.

SECTION 3848. Whoever kills any human being with malice aforethought, either express or implied, is guilty of murder.*

SEC. 3849. [All murder which is perpetrated by means of poison, or lying in wait, or any other willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which is committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, mayhem or burglary, is murder in the first degree, and shall be punished with death "or imprisonment for life at hard labor, in the state penitentiary, as determined by the jury," [or by the court if the defendant pleads guilty.]

SEC. 2. Upon trial of an indictment for murder, the jury, if they find the defendant guilty, must designate in their verdict whether he shall be punished by death or imprisonment for life at hard labor in the penitentiary. [But if such defendant be convicted upon a plea of guilty, the court shall designate whether he shall be punished by death or imprisonment for life at hard labor in the penitentiary.]

SEC. 3. [Whenever the court or jury shall designate that a defendant shall be punished by death,] the court pronouncing judgment shall fix the day of the execution thereof, which shall not be less than one year after the day on which the judgment is rendered, and not longer than fifteen months, during which time the defendant, against whom judgment of death has been pronounced, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary of the state.

SEC. 4. Immediately after the entry of the judgment of death, the court rendering such judgment must transmit by mail to the governor of the state, a copy of the indictment, plea, verdict, judgment, and of the testimony in the case.

SEC. 5. When a judgment of death is pronounced, a certified copy of the entry thereof in the record book must be furnished to the officer whose duty it is to execute the same, who shall proceed and execute accordingly, and no other warrant or authority is necessary to require or justify the execution.

SEC. 6. The only officer[s] who shall have power to reprieve or suspend the execution of a judgment of death, are the governor and the sheriff, as provided in the next section, unless in case of an appeal to the supreme court, as provided in section 18 of this act.

*The crime of murder is essentially the same under our statute as at common law, and whatever would be regarded as murder or manslaughter in a common law tribunal will be so regarded here. The State v. Moore, 25 Iowa, 128.

It is not necessary under our procedure, to charge specifically in an indictment for murder, as required at common law, that the defendant "murdered" the deceased, but the use of allegations which impart an equivalent meaning is sufficient. The State v. O'Niel, 23 Id., 272.

Where two or more persons conspire together, to do an unlawful act, and in the prosecution of the design, an individual is killed, or death ensues, it is murder in all who enter into, or take part in the execution of the design. The State v. Sellecky, 8 Id., 477; The State v. Nash, 7 Id., 347.

If the unlawful act be trespass only, to make all guilty of murder, the death must ensue in the prosecution of the design. If the unlawful act be a felony, or be more than a bare trespass, it will be murder in all although the death happened collaterally or beyond the original design. Id.

Malice is presumed from the commission of an act wrongful in itself and without just cause or excuse. The State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 447.

Malice is essential to the crime of murder, but it is not necessary that it should have existed for any considerable length of time, but is sufficient if it existed for any length of time. Id.
CHAP. 2.] OFFENSES AGAINST THE LIVES OF PERSONS.

Sec. 7. When the sheriff is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the defendant is insane or pregnant, he may summon a jury of twelve persons on the jury list, to be drawn by the clerk, who shall be sworn by the sheriff well and truly to inquire into the insanity or pregnancy of the defendant and a true inquisition return, and they shall examine the defendant and hear any evidence that may be presented, and by written inquisition, signed by each of them—find as to the insanity or pregnancy, and unless the inquisition find the defendant insane or pregnant, the sheriff shall not suspend the execution. But if the inquisition find the defendant insane or pregnant, he shall suspend the execution and immediately transmit the inquisition to the governor.

Sec. 8. Whenever a judgment of death has not been executed on the day appointed by the court therefor, from any cause whatever, the governor, by a warrant under his hand and the seal of the state, shall fix the day of execution, which warrant shall be obeyed by the sheriff, and no one but the governor can then suspend its execution.

Sec. 9. A judgment of death must be executed by the sheriff on the day fixed in the judgment, between sunrise and sunset, by hanging the defendant by the neck until he is dead.

Sec. 10. A judgment of death must be executed within the walls of the jail of the county in which the judgment was rendered, or within a yard or enclosure adjoining thereto, unless as provided in the next two sections.

Sec. 11. If there be no jail in the county in which the judgment was rendered, or if it becomes unfit or unsafe for the confinement of prisoners, or be destroyed by fire or otherwise, and the jail of any other county has been legally designated for the imprisonment of the defendant until the day fixed for his execution, the judgment must be executed within the walls of the jail of the county so designated, or within a yard or enclosure adjoining the same, and by the sheriff of such county.

Sec. 12. If there be two or more jails or prisons in the same county, a judgment of death shall be executed within the walls of either of such jails or prisons, or within an enclosure adjoining thereto, as the court rendering such judgment shall therein direct.

Sec. 13. The sheriff executing a judgment of death, must at least, three clear days before inflicting the punishment of death, notify the judge of the district court of his county, the district attorney, the clerk of the district court, together with two physicians and twelve respectable citizens of his county, to be selected by him, and the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had, and the offense committed (if it be in a different county,) to be present as witnesses of such execution. He must also at the request of the defendant permit one or more ministers of the gospel, whom the defendant shall name, and any of his relations to attend the execution, and also such magistrates peace officers, and guards as the sheriff shall deem proper, but no person other than those mentioned in this section can be present at the execution, nor shall any person under age, be permitted to witness the same.

Sec. 14. The sheriff or his deputy executing the judgment of death, and the judges attending the execution must prepare and sign with their name of office, a certificate, setting forth the time and place of the execution, and that judgment was executed upon the defendant according to the foregoing provisions, and must cause the

Must be filed and published.

Appeal shall stay execution.

Appeal: proceedings in case of.

Certificate to be signed by the public officers, and at least twelve (12) persons not relations of the defendant who witnessed the execution.

SEC. 15. The sheriff or his deputy executing such judgment of death, must cause the certificate to be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the judgment was rendered, and a copy thereof to be published in a newspaper printed at the capital of the state, and in one, if any, published in his county.

SEC. 16. An appeal by the defendant to the supreme court from a judgment of death shall stay the infliction of that punishment, but the defendant is to be retained in custody to abide the judgment on the appeal.

SEC. 17. When an appeal is taken from a judgment of death it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court in which the judgment was rendered to give forthwith to the defendant, his agent, or attorney, a certificate under his hand and the seal of the county, stating that an appeal has been taken in the case, and the sheriff or other officer having the custody of the defendant, must upon the delivery of such certificate to him refrain from the infliction of the punishment of death upon the defendant, and retain him in custody to abide the judgment of the appeal.

SEC. 18. When a judgment of death has been affirmed, the supreme court must cause a copy of the entry of judgment to be remitted to the governor, to the end that a warrant of the execution may be issued by the governor. The governor shall send his warrant of execution by a special messenger, or by mail, to the proper officer, and shall name therein the day and time of execution, but shall not appoint an earlier day than that fixed by the judgment of the district court. The officer receiving the same shall execute the warrant of the governor as therein directed and shall report his action both to the governor and the district court which rendered the original judgment. If for any cause the execution does not take place on the day appointed by the governor, the governor may from time to time appoint another day for the execution until the judgment is carried into effect.

SEC. 19. All indictments pending in any court of this state for any crime committed in violation of said section 3849 of the code shall be prosecuted to final judgment, and all crimes that have been committed in violation of said section shall be subject to indictment, trial and punishment in the same manner as they would have been had said section not been repealed.\(^{b}\)

An indictment for murder in the first degree, where the killing was not done in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any of the felonies mentioned in section 3849 of the code, must charge that the killing was willful, deliberate and premeditated. It is not sufficient to aver that the assault was willful, deliberate and premeditated, and that the blow which caused death was given willfully, deliberately and premeditatedly. It should be alleged that the blow was thus given with intent to kill, or that the killing was willful, deliberate and premeditated. The specific intent to kill must be alleged. The State v. McCormick, 27 Iowa, 402; The State v. Watkins, Id., 415; The State v. Stanley, 33 Id., 526; The State v. Boyle, 28 Id., 522; The State v. Knouse, 29 Id., 118; The State v. Thompson, 31 Id., 393.

b An indictment for murder which would be good at common law, is not necessarily so for murder in the first degree under the statute. Id. To constitute a good indictment for murder in the first degree, the facts constituting the offense and the degree must be alleged. Naming the offense murder in the first degree, in the introductory and concluding parts of the indictment, is not sufficient unless the facts charged make it such. The State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402.

An infant is not the subject of murder until an independent circulation is established; prior to that time the life of the child, even after it is born, is substantially fetal life, which the law distinguishes from independent life. The State v. Winthrop, 43 Id., 519.

Sec. 20. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3850. Whoever commits murder otherwise than is set forth in the preceding section, is guilty of murder in the second degree, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, or for any term not less than ten years.

Sec. 3851. Upon the trial of an indictment for murder, the jury, if they find the defendant guilty, must inquire, and by their verdict determine.

An intent to kill is not necessary to constitute murder in the second degree under our statute. If there was no necessity, either real or apparent, for the killing, the perpetrator would be guilty of murder in the second degree, although he entered the combat without the intent to kill; this would be especially true if there was no advantage taken by the slayer, and the use by him of a deadly weapon. The State v. Murphy, 33 Iowa, 270. To the same effect are The State v. Decklots, 19 Id., 447; The State v. Nevchter, 46 Id., 88.

On an indictment for murder in the first degree the defendant may be convicted of murder in the second degree, where the killing was not intended. Id.

A specific intention to kill is not essential at common law to constitute murder, nor is it necessary under our statute to constitute murder in the second degree, although it is essential to murder in the first degree. The State v. Decklots, Id., 447.

Where death ensues from a wound given in malice but not in its nature mortal, but from which, being neglected or mismanaged the party dies, the prisoner will not be thereby excused, but will be held guilty of murder, unless he can make it clearly to appear that the maltreatment of the wound, or the medicine given to the patient, or the wound misconceived, and not the wound itself, was the sole cause of his death. The State v. Murphy, 33 Id., 270.

The state has the burden of proof to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused; hence, any negative matter, such as the absence of self-defense, the want of provocation, etc., must be shown by the prosecution; but when the matter of defense is wholly disconnected from the body of the crime charged, and is distinctly affirmative matter, the burden of proof thereof is on the defendant. Id.

Where an indictment for murder charged that the offense was committed "with intent in so doing, then and there, feloniously, intentionally, willfully, maliciously and deliberately to kill and murder," it was held that the charge necessarily implied, to the common understanding, "malice aforethought," and that under the statute the crime of murder in the second degree was sufficiently charged. The State v. Nevchter, 20 Iowa, 108.

The presence of malice is necessary to constitute a homicide murder in the second degree. The State v. Spangler, 40 Id., 365.

An intent to kill is not necessary to constitute murder in the second degree under our statute. ascertain, whether he be guilty of murder of the first or second degree; but if such defendant be convicted upon his own confession in open court, the court must proceed by the examination of witnesses to determine the degree of murder, and award sentence accordingly.

Sec. 3852. Whoever fights a duel with deadly weapons, and inflicts a mortal wound on his antagonist, whereof death ensues, is guilty of murder in the first degree, and shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 3853. Any person who fights a duel with deadly weapons, or is present at the fighting of such duel as aid, second, or surgeon, or advises, encourages, or promotes such duel, although no homicide ensue; and any person who challenges another to fight a duel, or sends or delivers any verbal or written message purporting or intended to be such challenge, although no duel ensue, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than four hundred dollars, and imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years nor less than one year.

Sec. 3854. Any person who accepts such challenge, or who consents to act as a second, aid, or surgeon on such acceptance, or who advises, encourages, or promotes the same, although no duel ensue, shall be punished as prescribed in the preceding section.

Sec. 3855. If any person post another, or in writing or print use any reproachful or contemptuous language to or concerning another for not fighting a duel, or for not sending or accepting a challenge, he shall be fined not exceeding three hundred dollars nor less than one hundred dollars, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail not more than six months nor less than two months.

Sec. 3856. Any person guilty of the crime of manslaughter, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding eight years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars. 4

Sec. 3857. If any person, with intent to maim or disfigure, cut or maim the tongue; cut out or destroy an eye; cut, slit, or tear off an ear; cut, bite, slit, or mutilate the nose or lip; cut off or disable a limb or any member of another person, he shall be punished by imprison-

4 The crime of manslaughter is essentially the same under our statute as at common law, and will be so regarded in respect to what constitutes the offense. The State v. Moore, 25 Iowa, 128.

The common law definition of manslaughter has not been changed by this section of the statute. The State v. Sheledy, 8 Id., 477.

If one fires a gun recklessly or heedlessly, and death is caused thereby, the offense will be at least manslaughter, notwithstanding the gun was pointed in the range of the deceased by accident, with no desire or intention to kill or wound. Where the act is done with deliberation, or is attended with probable mortal dangerous consequences to the deceased, or to persons generally, the grade of the offense is to be determined by the degree of deliberation. State v. Vance, 17 Id., 138.

Manslaughter is the unlawful and felonious killing of another, without malice, either express or implied. The State v. Sheledy, 8 Id., 477.

A provocation which does not place the party in a position where self defense is necessary, may reduce a homicide to manslaughter, but can never render it excusable. The State v. Vance, 17 Id., 138; The State v. Sheledy, 8 Id., 477.

The general rule is, that when death ensues from sudden transport of passion or heat of blood upon sudden provocation, without malice, the offense is manslaughter and not murder. The State v. Sheledy, supra; Cokely v. The State. 4 Id., 477; The State v. Decklotis, 19 Id., 447; The State v. Spangler, 40 Id., 365.

Where a man doing an unlawful act not amounting to felony, by accident kill another, or where a man kills another without malice, either express or implied, either unlawfully upon a sudden quarrel, or unintentionally while the slayer is in the unlawful commission of some act not amounting to a felony, it is manslaughter in either case. The State v. Abarr, 39 Id., 185.

When death ensues in consequence of the unlawful act of another, it is not necessary that the fatal result should have sprung from an act of commission; but if the defendant omitted an act incumbent on him from which death resulted to the deceased, if there was not malice it is manslaughter; if there was malice it is murder. The State v. Sheledy, 8 Id., 477.
ment in the penitentiary not more than five years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 3858. If any person, with force or violence, or by putting in fear, steal and take from the person of another any property that is the subject of larceny, he is guilty of robbery, and shall be punished according to the aggravation of the offense as is provided in the following two sections.*

SEC. 3859. If such offender at the time of such robbery is armed with a dangerous weapon, with intent, if resisted, to kill or maim the person robbed; or if being so armed he wound or strike the person robbed; or if he has any confederate aiding or abetting him in such robbery present and so armed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding twenty years nor less than ten years.

SEC. 3860. If such offender commit the robbery otherwise than is mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years nor less than two years.

SEC. 3861. If any person ravish and carnally know any female of the age of ten years or more, by force and against her will, or carnally know and abuse any female child under the age of ten years, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.†

* The sudden snatching of a purse or other property from the hand of another involves the force and violence sufficient under the statute to constitute robbery. The State v. Carr et al., 43 Iowa, 418.

An instruction that "robbery may be committed by force or violence, or putting in fear and it is not necessary that the means used to put a party in fear should be such as to put in fear a man used to the ways of the world," was held to be correct. Id.

† On a prosecution for rape, it is not necessary to establish the non-consent or force by proof of outrages of the female, nor, by her or any one else, the fact of an actual struggle; nor is the state bound to show actual penetration by the prosecutrix herself; but the jury, taking all the facts and circumstances into consideration, may say from them whether the requisite facts are proved beyond such reasonable doubt as to warrant a conviction. The State v. Tarr, 29 Iowa, 397.

So, too, if the female ravished was idiotic and unable to talk intelligibly, the jury might infer that the prisoner could and did know her condition upon meeting and talking with her awhile before making the assault. Id.

In a prosecution for rape, it may be properly held, without resistance on the part of the female being shown, that the force used by the prisoner to effect his purpose was against her will, when it is shown that she was idiotic or of imbecile mind, and there is nothing to indicate that she desired or consented to the sexual intercourse. Id.

Carnal knowledge of a female child under the age of ten years constitutes the crime of rape under this section of the statute. The State v. Newton, 44 Id., 45, 47.

In a prosecution for rape, the fact that the prosecutrix made complaint of the injury soon after the occurrence, is admissible on the part of the state, but the particular of such complaint, or what she said in respect thereto, are not admissible. The State v. Richards, 33 Id., 420.

A person charged with the commission of a rape may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape, upon evidence showing that the offense was consummated under circumstances which satisfy the jury that the assault was made without the consent of the female, although there was not sufficient want of consent at the time of consummation to constitute the higher crime. The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66.

The failure of the woman to make any outcry when the violation of her person was attempted, and the fact that her garments were uninjured by the struggle with her assailant, tend strongly to show consent, but are not conclusive; and should always be considered in connection with her age and intelligence. Id.

Upon the trial of one indicted for rape, an instruction directing the jury that they might find the defendant guilty if she used such force as to resist because she was imbecile, was held, properly given, although the record contained no evidence tending to show imbecility. The State v. Atherton, 50 Id., 189.

On a trial for rape a conviction for that offense may fail by reason of evidence of the woman's consent, yet if before such consent was given it appears that the defendant used such force as to produce intention to commit rape, the defendant may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape. Id.
Sec. 3862. If any person take any woman unlawfully and against her will, and by force, menace or duress, compel her to marry him or any other person, or to be defiled, he shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 3863. If any person unlawfully have carnal knowledge of any female by administering to her any substance, or by any other means producing such stupor or such imbecility of mind or weakness of body as to prevent effectual resistance, or have such carnal knowledge of an idiot or female naturally of such imbecility of mind or weakness of body as to prevent effectual resistance, he shall, upon conviction, be punished as provided in the section relating to ravishment.

Sec. 3864. If any person, with intent to produce the miscarriage of any pregnant woman, willfully administer to her any drug or substance whatever, or, with such intent, use any instrument or other means whatever, unless such miscarriage shall be necessary to save her life, he shall be imprisoned in the state prison for a term not exceeding one year, and be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3865. If any person take or entice away any unmarried female under the age of fifteen years from her father, mother, guardian or other person having the legal charge of her person without their consent, for the purpose of prostitution, he shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than three years, or by fine of not more than one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3866. If any person maliciously, forcibly or fraudulently lead, take, decoy or entice away any child under the age of twelve years, with the intent to detain or conceal such child from its parent, guardian or any other person having the lawful charge of such child, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 3867. If any person seduce and debauch any unmarried woman of previously chaste character, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year. 1

Sec. 3868. If before judgment upon an indictment, the defendant marry the woman thus seduced, it is a bar to any further prosecution for the offense.

Sec. 3869. If any person willfully and without lawful authority, forcibly or secretly confine or imprison any other person within this state against his will, or forcibly carry or send such person out of the state, or forcibly seize and confine or inveigle or kidnap any other person with the intent either to cause such person to be secretly confined or imprisoned in this state against his will, or to cause such person to be sent out of this state against his will, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

1 The act of sexual intercourse alone does not constitute seduction. It must be accomplished by false promises, artifices or deception, to constitute the crime. Smith v. Millburn, 17 Iowa, 30; Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220; Delree v. Boardman, 20 Id., 446.

A threat made by the defendant to dismiss the plaintiff from his service if she refused to yield to him, is proper to be considered by the jury in determining whether he accomplished his purpose by artifice or not. Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220.

In a criminal trial for seduction, a fact testified to alone by the person injured is not admissible up-

The term character as employed in section by sexual intercourse, may reform and gain a

An indictment for seduction is sufficient which charges the offense in the language of the statute. The State v. Curran, 51 Id., 112.

Evidence of general moral character is not admissible in a prosecution for seduction, but the evidence must be limited to the woman's character for virtue. Id.

It is not competent to show, in order to establish the unchastity of the prosecuting witness, that she had on a particular occasion acted in such a manner as to be reproved by her mother. Id.

The fact that the defendant was the suitor of the witness, proven by other testimony than hers, tends to corroborate her testimony that her seduction was accomplished by him. Id.

It is proper to charge the jury that every woman is presumed to be of chaste character until it is shown to the contrary, and the burden of overcoming this presumption is upon the defendant. Id.

It is competent for the jury to consider the conduct of the defendant toward the prosecutrix subsequent, as well as prior to and at the time of, the alleged seduction. Id.

In a prosecution for seduction the law presumes the previous chastity of the prosecutrix without proof; she may, therefore, when introduced and examined by the state for the purpose of proving the fact of her seduction, be asked on cross-examination, in respect to matters showing her want of chastity, for the purpose of contradicting this presumption of law. The State v. Sutherland, 30 Id., 570.

An unmarried female, who has become unchaste by sexual intercourse, may reform and gain a character for chastity, within the meaning of the statute defining the crime of seduction. The State v. Curran, 18 Id., 372.

On the trial of an indictment for seduction, the question as to the previously chaste character of the prosecutrix is one of fact for the jury. Id.
OFFENSES AGAINST THE LIVES OF PERSONS. [TITLE XXIV.]

Sec. 3870. If the father and mother of any child under the age of six years, or any person to whom such child has been entrusted or confided, expose such child in any highway, street, field, house or outhouse, or in any other place with intent wholly to abandon it, he or she, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years.

Sec. 3871. If any person, either verbally or by any written or printed communication, maliciously threaten to accuse another of a crime or offense, or to do any injury to the person or property of another, with intent thereby to extort any money or pecuniary advantage whatever, or to compel the person so threatened to do any act against his will, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than two years or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

Sec. 3872. If any person assault another with intent to commit murder, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 3873. If any person assault a female with intent to commit a rape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

Sec. 3874. If any person assault another with intent to maim, rob, steal or commit arson or burglary, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3875. If any person assault another with intent to inflict a great bodily injury, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

The word "and" in the first line of section 3870 of the code may be construed to mean "or," and the offense defined therein may be committed by either "father or mother." The State v. Smith, 46 Iowa, 670.

Exortion and pecuniary advantage are not necessary ingredients in the offense of malice aforethought to injure another, with intent, thereby, to compel the person threatened to do an act against his will, under section 3871 of the code. The State v. Young, 26 Iowa, 122.

It is not robbery to compel the payment of money by threats of violence, yet it is an offense under this section of the code. The State v. Hollyway, 41 Id., 200.

An indictment for an assault with intent to commit an offense, it is not necessary to make all the averments required in an indictment for the commission of the offense. The State v. Newberry, 26 Id., 469.

It was therefore held, that in an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder, it need not be averred that the assault was made with malice aforethought. Id.

An assault with intent to commit manslaughter is included in an assault with intent to commit murder, and on an indictment for the latter offense the defendant may be convicted of the former. The State v. White, 45 Id., 325.

An assault with intent to commit murder does not admit of degrees, the intent being the gist of the offense. The State v. Jarris, 21 Id., 44, 46; The State v. White, 41 Id., 316.

The subsequent declarations of the party injured are not admissible as evidence for the defendant on the trial of an indictment for an assault with intent to commit a rape. If offered for the purpose of contradicting the prosecutrix, the proper foundation must be laid by first calling her attention to the alleged declarations. The State v. Emeigh, 16 Id., 122.

An assault upon a female child under ten years of age with intent to have carnal knowledge of her person is an offense and indictable under section 3873 of the code. The State v. Newton, 44 Iowa, 45.

To constitute the offense, in such cases, it is not necessary that the defendant should know that the child is under ten years of age, it is sufficient in this respect if such is the fact. Id.

Evidence of previous assaults by the defendant upon the prosecutrix are admissible to show the intent with which the assault charged was committed. The State v. Walters, 45 Id., 389.

The court should instruct the jury that if they have a reasonable doubt of the degree or character of the assault charged, they should only convict of a lower degree of crime included in that charge in the indictment. The State v. Walters, 45 Iowa, 389.
CHAP. 3. OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.

SEC. 3876. If any person assault another with intent to commit any felony or crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, where the punishment is not otherwise prescribed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3877. If any person mingle any poison with any food, drink, or medicine, with intent to kill or injure any human being, or willfully poison any spring, well, cistern or reservoir of water, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

SEC. 3878. Whoever is convicted of an assault, or an assault and battery, where no other punishment is prescribed, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

SEC. 3879. If any person carry upon his person any concealed weapon, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days; provided, that this section shall not apply to police officers and other persons whose duty it is to execute process or warrants, or make arrests.

CHAPTER 3.

OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.

SECTION 3880. If any person willfully or maliciously burn in the night time, the inhabited building, boat or vessel of another, or willfully and maliciously set fire to any other building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning whereof such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.

SEC. 3881. If any person willfully or maliciously burn in the day time the inhabited building, boat or vessel of another, or any building, boat or vessel adjoining thereto; or willfully and maliciously set fire to any building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning whereof such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt in the day time; or in the day time willfully and maliciously set fire to any building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning of which any such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt

An assault may be committed without inflicting any personal injury. The State v. Meyers, 19 Iowa, 317.

Pointing an unloaded gun may be an assault. The State v. Shepherd, 10 Iowa, 126.

As every battery includes an assault, so does every intentional maiming include a battery as well as an assault. Benham v. The State, 1 Iowa, 542.

Any person aiding or abetting in the commission of an assault and battery is as guilty as the others, although he did not strike himself. The State v. McClintick, 8 Iowa, 203.

The offense of assault and battery is triable before a justice of the peace or other officer authorized by law, on information under oath without indictment or the intervention of a grand jury, and not otherwise. The State v. Lee, 1 Iowa, 37 Id., 492.
in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding thirty years.

SEC. 3882. If any person willfully and maliciously burn in the night time, any uninhabited dwelling-house, boat or vessel belonging to another, or any court-house, jail, college, church, or any building erected for public use; or any other building, boat or vessel, by the burning whereof any building, boat or vessel mentioned in this section is burnt in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

SEC. 3883. If any person willfully and maliciously burn in the day time any building, boat or vessel mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding fifteen years.

SEC. 3884. If any person willfully and maliciously burn, either in the night or day time, any warehouse, store, manufactory, mill, railroad depot, barn, stable, shop, office, out-house, or any building whatsoever of another, other than is mentioned in the preceding sections of this chapter, or any bridge, lock, dam or flume, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

SEC. 3885. If any person set fire to any building, boat or vessel mentioned in the preceding sections of this chapter, or to any material with intent to cause any such building, boat or vessel to be burnt, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3886. If any person willfully and maliciously burn, or otherwise destroy or injure any pile or parcel of wood, boards, timber, or lumber, or any fence, bars, or gate, or any grain, hay, or other vegetable product severed from the soil, or any standing tree, grain, grass, or other standing product of the soil the property of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3887. The preceding sections of this chapter, severally, extend to a married woman who commits either of these offenses therein described, though the property burnt or set fire to may belong partly or wholly to her husband.

SEC. 3888. If any person willfully burn any building, goods, wares, merchandise, or other chattels which are insured against loss or damage by fire, or willfully cause or procure the same to be burned, with intent to injure the insurer, whether such person be the owner of such property or not, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

* It seems, that to constitute a barn within the meaning of the statute against arson, it is not necessary that it should be designed or used, in whole or in part, for the storage of hay, corn or produce of any kind. The State v. Smith, 29 Iowa, 565.

* An indictment charging that the defendant, etc., feloniously, etc., intending to set fire to and cause to be burned a certain barn, etc., did feloniously, etc., cause and procure and place a certain lighted candle in and among a certain quantity of hay and grain then and there being in said barn, feloniously, etc., intending, by so causing, procuring and placing the said lighted candle aforesaid, to set fire to said hay and grain, and as aforesaid, feloniously, etc., cause the said barn to be burned, etc., was held to charge a crime under this section of the statute. The State v. Johnson, 19 Iowa, 230.
CHAP. 3.]  OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.  919

SEC. 3889. [If any person willfully, or without using proper caution, set fire to and burn, or cause to be burned, any prairie or timbered land, or any enclosed or cultivated field, or any highway, by which the property of another is injured or destroyed, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.*]

SEC. 3890. If any person set fire to and burn, or cause to be burned, any prairie or timbered land, and allow such fire to escape from his control, between the first day of September in any year and the first day of May following, he shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.†

SEC. 3891. If any person break and enter any dwelling-house in the night time, with intent to commit any public offense; or, after having entered with such intent, break any such dwelling-house in the night time, he shall be deemed guilty of burglary, and shall be punished according to the aggravation of the offense as is provided in the next two sections.μ

SEC. 3892. If such offender, at the time of committing such burglary, is armed with a dangerous weapon, or so armed himself after having entered such dwelling-house, or actually assault any person being lawfully therein, or has any confederate present aiding and abetting in such burglary, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.

* Under this section as it stood prior to its amendment, it was properly held that a party would be liable only where he set out the fire willfully or without using proper caution—negligently. Conn v. May, 30 Iowa, 241; De France v. Spencer, 2 G. Greene, 462; Hanlon v. Ingram, 3 Iowa, 81; Jacobs v. Andrews, 4 Id., 506. So also prior to the amendment, it was held, that the kindling of a fire in a cultivated field did not render the person charged therewith liable for resulting damages, regardless of the question of care or negligence. Brunell v. Hopkins, 42 Id., 429.

But under chapter 53, laws of 1862, a person setting out fire between the 1st day of September and the 1st day of May, was held absolutely liable for damages caused by its escape on the premises of another, regardless of the question of diligence. Conn v. May, 36 Id., 241. No question was made in that case as to where the fire was set, whether in a cultivated field, or in timber or prairie land.

† Under this section a person is not liable absolutely where the fire is set by him in a cultivated field. Brunell v. Hopkins, 42 Iowa, 429.

Under this section of the code a person setting out fire and burning, or causing to be burned, any timber or prairie land between the dates mentioned in the statute, is absolutely liable for damages caused by its escape to and on the premises of another, regardless of the question of diligence. Conn v. May, 36 Id., 241.

μ In an indictment for breaking and entering a dwelling-house from the outside, in the night time, it is not necessary to allege that any person was in the house at the time of the alleged breaking. The State v. Reid, 20 Iowa, 413.

The pushing open of a closed door, with the intent expressed in the statute, is a sufficient breaking within the meaning of the law to constitute burglary. Id.

While the criminal intent of breaking and entering a dwelling-house in the night time, with intent to commit a larceny, might sufficiently exist in the mind of a drunken person, and while, in such case, his intoxication would be no excuse, yet if it was such that under the influence thereof he entered the house with no intent to commit crime, then he would not be guilty of burglary. The State v. Bell, 29 Id., 516.

The law does not necessarily imply the criminal intent from the mere fact of breaking and entering; but whether such intent existed or whether the defendant was capable, in his intoxicated condition, of forming an intent is a question for the jury. Id.

An indictment for burglary is sufficient which charges that the breaking and entering was done with intent to commit larceny, without also averring that there was an intent to take, steal and carry away any property of a greater value than twenty dollars. The State v. Jones, 10 Id., 206.
OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY. [TITLE XXIV.

SEC. 3893. If such offender commit such burglary otherwise than is mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

SEC. 3894. If any person with intent to commit any public offense, in the day time break and enter, or in the night time enter without breaking, any dwelling-house; or at any time break and enter any office, shop, store, warehouse, railroad car, boat, or vessel, or any buildings in which any goods, merchandise, or valuable things are kept for use, sale, or deposit, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3895. If any mortgagor of personal property, while his mortgage of it remains unsatisfied, willfully destroy, conceal, sell, or in any manner dispose of the property covered by such mortgage without the consent of the then holder of such mortgage, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny and be punished accordingly.

SEC. 3896. If any person knowingly or willfully drive off, or suffer or permit to be driven off, any horned or other stock of another to a distance exceeding three miles from the residence of the owner, or of his agent having charge of such stock, or the range in which such stock is usually in the habit of running, without the consent of such owner or agent, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days; and any justice of the peace in any county through which the stock thus driven off should pass, or in which it may be found, shall have jurisdiction of the offense.

SEC. 3897. If any person maliciously or mischievously enter the enclosure of another, with intent to knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away; or having lawfully entered, do afterwards wrongfully knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any apples, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, or any other fruit or flower of any tree, shrub, bush, or vine, he shall be punished, for the first offense, by a fine not less than five dollars nor exceeding one hundred dollars, with the costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days; and should any person be found guilty of a second violation hereof,

* In an indictment for breaking and entering a building in which valuable things are kept, with intent to commit a felony, the name of the building should be averred and set out, if known, and, if not known, then it should be so stated. The State v. Morrissey, 22 Iowa, 158.

An indictment charging the defendant with feloniously and burglariously breaking and entering a store with intent to commit larceny, and with stealing and carrying away certain property therein contained, was held, not vulnerable, to the objection that it charged two distinct offenses. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

Under this section the unlawful breaking and entering must be "with an intent to commit a public offense." The State v. Ridley et al., 22 Iowa, 175.

An indictment for burglary includes the offense of entering a dwelling-house in the night time without breaking, and will sustain a conviction for the latter offense. The State v. Maxwell, 42 Id., 208.

SEC. 3898. In order to recover in a civil action for the driving away cattle or stock by drovers, the plaintiff must allege and prove that the defendant had knowledge at the time of the injury done, that the domestic animal of another had entered his drove, or was being driven away. Chamberlain v. Gage et al., 20 Iowa, 303.

* An indictment for larceny growing out of the sale of mortgaged chattels, must aver that the mortgage was unsatisfied at the time of the offense charged. The State v. Gustafson, 50 Iowa, 194.

Where the mortgage of personal chattels provided that if the mortgagor removed it from the county, the mortgagee might take possession of and sell it, it was held, that a removal and sale in another state, under the circumstances stated did not constitute an offense indictable in the county where the mortgage was executed. The State v. Julien, 48 Id., 445.
he shall be fined not less than ten dollars and costs of conviction, or imprisonment as above provided.

Sec. 3898. If any person maliciously or mischievously enter the enclosure of another in the night time, and knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any apples, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, or other fruit or flower of any tree, shrub, bush, or vine; or, if any person having entered the enclosure of another in the night time, with the intent to knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any fruit or flower as aforesaid, be actually found therein, he shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than twenty-five nor to exceed one hundred dollars and costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 3899. If any person maliciously or mischievously bruise, break, pull up, cut down, carry away, destroy, or in anywise injure any fruit or ornamental tree, shrub, or vine, growing, or standing on the land of another, he shall be punished by a fine not less than ten nor exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 3900. Any person who knowingly discharges fire-arms of any description within, or in the immediate vicinity of, any enclosure where cattle, hogs, or sheep are being fed for the purpose of fattening the same; or any person who enters such enclosure with fire-arms, or dog, unless such person shall be the owner of said stock, or have the control of the same, or shall have permission from such owner or the person having control thereof to enter said premises, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 3901. If any person mixes for sale naptha and illuminating oils, or shall keep or offer for sale or sell such mixture, or shall keep or offer for sale or sell oil made from petroleum for illuminating purposes, or any other product of petroleum inflammable at a less temperature or fire test than one hundred and ten degrees Fahrenheit, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished for the first offense by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days; and for the second and every succeeding offense, by fine not less than one hundred and not more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than twelve months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

BREAKING AND ENTERING BUILDINGS.

An Act for the punishment of persons for attempting to break and enter buildings with intent to commit a public offense. [Addl. to chapter 3, title XXIV, code, concerning "Offenses against property."
]

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any person, with intent to commit any public offense, shall attempt to break and enter any dwelling-house, at any time, or to enter any dwelling-house in the night time without breaking, or at any time to break and enter any office, shop, warehouse, railroad car, boat, vessel, or any building in which any goods, merchandise, or valuable things are kept for use, sale or deposit, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Approved, February 27, 1880.

CHAPTER 4.

LARCENY AND RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.

SECTION 3902. If any person steal, take, and carry away of the property of another, any money, goods, or chattels; any writ, process, or public record; any bond, bank note, promissory note, bill of exchange, or other bill, order, or certificate; or any book of accounts respecting money, goods, or other things; or any deed or writing containing a conveyance of real estate; or any contract in force; or any receipt, release, or defeasance; or any instrument or writing whereby any demand, right, or obligation is created, increased, extinguished, or diminished, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished, when the value of the property stolen exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years; and when the value of the property stolen does not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

A verdict of guilty on the trial of an indictment for grand larceny, must fix the value of the property stolen, that the court may know with certainty the grade of the crime of which the defendant has been convicted. The State v. Redman, 17 Iowa, 393.

Under our statute, which changes the common law rule, a draft, promissory note or other evidence of debt, is the subject of larceny, and also of embezzlement which is but a similar statutory crime. The State v. Orwig, 24 Id., 102.

Money may be the subject of larceny, and an

sec. 3904. [If any person in the day time commit larceny as specified in the preceding section, and the value of the property stolen exceeds twenty dollars, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years; and when the value of the property stolen does not exceed twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.]

sec. 3905. [If any person commit the crime of larceny by stealing from any building on fire; or by stealing any property removed in consequence of an alarm caused by fire; or by stealing from the person of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding fifteen years.

sec. 3906. [If any person falsely personate or represent another and in such assumed character receive any money or property intended to be delivered to the person so personated, with intent to convert the same to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly.]

sec. 3907. [If any person, come, by finding, to the possession of any personal property of which he knows the owner, and unlawfully appropriate the same or any part thereof to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly.]

allegation that money was feloniously taken , is sustained by proof that the crime was the taking of money " called greenbacks." The State v. Carr et al., 43 Id., 418.

The stealing of "bank notes" or "bank bills" is larceny, and these terms mean the same thing under our statute. Munson v. The State, 4 G. Greene, 483; The State v. Bond, 3 Id., 540.

In an action for the larceny of a bank note, it is sufficient to describe it as a promissory note for the payment of money, commonly called a bank note, purporting to be issued by a bank for the payment of a certain sum of money, still due and unpaid, and of a certain value. The State v. Bond, 8 Iowa, 540.

An indictment charging the larceny of " $ 180 in bank notes, usually known and described as greenbacks," was held, sufficiently certain in respect to the subject of the larceny. The State v. Hockenberry, 30 Id., 504.

The jurisdiction of the district court is determined by the value of the property stolen as found in the indictment by the grand jury, and not by the value as ascertained by the verdict of the trial jury. The State v. Stingley et al., 10 Id., 488.

To constitute larceny, possession of the property must have been acquired with an intent to steal it, and, if the original possession was innocent, the defendant is not guilty, even though he may have subsequently conceived the purpose of appropriating it. The State v. Wood, 46 Id., 116.

On the trial of an indictment for larceny, the value of the property stolen must be established beyond a reasonable doubt, mere preponderance of evidence that it exceeds twenty dollars not being sufficient to justify a conviction for the higher offense. Id.

Where the prisoner was convicted of stealing personal property of less than twenty dollars in value, in a dwelling-house in the day time, it was held, that the district court had jurisdiction of the offense, and that a justice of the peace did not. The State v. Dawson, 17 Iowa, 584.

A person who falsely personates another, and in such assumed character receives property intended to be delivered to the party so personated, with intent to convert the same to his own use, is guilty of larceny under section 3906 of the code. The State v. Brown, 25 Iowa, 561.

To constitute the finding and conversion of lost property larceny under section 3907, such finding and conversion must have been by one knowing the owner of the property. The offense is not complete in the absence of this knowledge. The State v. Taylor, 25 Iowa, 273; The State v. Dean, 49 Id., 73.

The finder of lost goods which have no marks
Embezzlement of public money by officers. R. § 806, 807, 4333.

SEC. 3908. If any state, county, township, school, or municipal officer, or officer of any state institution, or other public officer within the state charged with the collection, safe keeping, transfer, or disbursement of public money, fails or refuses to keep in any place of deposit that may be provided by law for keeping such money, until the same is withdrawn therefrom upon warrants issued by the proper officer, or deposits such money in any other place than in such safe, or unlawfully converts to his own use in any way whatever, or use by way of investment in any kind of property, or loan without the authority of law any portion of the public money entrusted to him for collection, safe keeping, transfer, or disbursement, or converts to his own use any money that may come into his hands by virtue of his office, shall be guilty of embezzlement to the amount of so much of said money as is thus taken, converted, invested, used, loaned, or unaccounted for, and, upon conviction thereof, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding five years and fined in a sum equal to the amount of money embezzled; and, moreover, is forever after disqualified from holding any office under the laws or constitution of this state.

SEC. 3909. If any officer, agent, clerk, or servant of any incorporated company; or if any clerk, agent, or servant of a copartnership; or if any person over the age of sixteen years, embezzle and fraudulently convert to his own use, or take and secrete with intent to convert to his own use, without the consent of his employer or master, any money or property of another which has come to his possession or is under his care by virtue of such employment, he is guilty of larceny and shall be punished accordingly.

SEC. 3910. If any carrier or other person to whom any money, goods or other property, which may be the subject of larceny, has been delivered to be carried for hire, or if any other person entrusted with such property, embezzle or fraudulently convert to his own use any such money, goods, or other property, either in the mass as the same were delivered or otherwise, and before the same were delivered by which the owner could be identified, and does not know to whom they belong, is not guilty of larceny, even if he does not exercise diligence to discover the owner of the goods. The State v. Dean, 49 Id., 73.

Conversion may be established either by direct proof of the fact or by proof of demand and refusal; but evidence of demand and refusal will not establish the conversion where the failure to comply with the demand can be sufficiently explained by the existing or other circumstances. The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379. Under section 4243, of the revision (§ 3903, code) it was held that the crime of embezzlement, as defined therein, consisted only in the converting, using or loaning of so much of the public money entrusted for safe keeping to the person charged, as was taken and unaccounted for. The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant, as private secretary of the governor, received in his possession and care a treasury draft of the United States, drawn in favor of the state and payable to the order of the governor, which the defendant feloniously converted to his own use and embezzled, it was held that the indictment was good. The State v. Orwig, 24 Iowa, 102. Where the defendant, by virtue of an agreement between him and the prosecutor, received from the latter a watch which he was to trade for a wagon, and was to receive five dollars as compensation for his services, it was held, that this constituted such an employment as rendered the defendant guilty of embezzlement for converting the watch to his own use. The State v. Foster, 37 Id., 404.

The unlawful appropriation of money by an agent or employe not authorized to receive it, is not within the provisions of this section, making the offense therein defined punishable as larceny, although the party paying it to the agent or employe supposes him to be authorized to receive it. The State v. Johnson, 49 Id., 141.
at the place or to the person where and to whom they were to be delivered, he is guilty of larceny and shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 3911. If any person buy, receive, or aid in concealing any stolen goods, or any property, the stealing of which is declared to be larceny, or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same to have been so obtained, he shall be punished, when the value of the property so bought, received, or concealed by him exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year; and when the value of the property so bought, received, or concealed by him does not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 3012. If any person after having been convicted of the offense of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen money, goods, or any property, the stealing of which is larceny, or property obtained by robbery or burglary, be again convicted of the like offense; or if any person at the same term of court is convicted of three distinct acts of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen property or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same was so obtained, he shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 3913. In any prosecution for the offense of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen property, or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same was so obtained, it shall not be necessary to aver nor to prove on the trial thereof that the person who stole, robbed, or took the property has been convicted.

Sec. 3914. If the property stolen consist of any bank-note, bond, bill, covenant, bill of exchange, draft, order or receipt, or any evidence of debt whatever; or any public security, or any instrument whereby any demand, right, or obligation may be assigned, transferred, created increased, released, extinguished, or diminished, the money due thereon and remaining unsatisfied, or which in any event or contingency might be collected thereon, or the value of the property transferred or affected, as the case may be, shall be adjudged the value of the thing stolen.

Sec. 3915. If any person knowingly and without authority of law, take, carry away, secrete, or destroy any goods or chattels while the same are lawfully in the custody of any sheriff, coroner, marshal, constable, or other officer, and rightfully held by such officer by virtue of execution, writ of attachment, or other legal process issued under the laws of Iowa, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny, and shall be punished, when the value of the property so taken, carried away, secreted, or destroyed, exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in

1 The crime defined in this section is limited to property which has been delivered to be carried for hire; it was accordingly held, that where a quantity of wheat had simply been stored with the defendant, which he converted to his own use, he was not liable to an indictment for embezzlement. The State v. Stoller, 38 Iowa, 321.

2 Where on the trial of an indictment charging the defendant with "concealing" and with "receiving" and "aiding in the concealment" of stolen property, the jury rendered a verdict as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of aiding in concealing the stolen property mentioned in the indictment, as charged therein, and assess the value of the same at one thousand dollars," it was held to be equivalent to a general verdict of guilty. The State v. Turner, 19 Iowa, 144.
the penitentiary not more than one year; and when the value of the same does not exceed twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days.

SEC. 3916. The possession or custody of goods and chattels by any person with whom the same have been left or deposited for safe keeping to be returned for the purpose of being disposed of on legal process, shall be deemed to be the possession and custody of the officer having or depositing the same, and entitled to the custody thereof, and in a prosecution under the preceding section, the property taken, carried away, secreted, or destroyed, as therein mentioned, may be laid in the officer entitled to the custody thereof at the time of the commission of the offense.

CHAPTER 5.

FORGERY AND COUNTERFEITING.

SECTION 3917. If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, alter, forge, or counterfeit any public record, or any process issued or purporting to be issued by any competent court, magistrate, or officer, or any pleading or proceeding filed or entered in any court of law or equity; or any attestation or certificate of any public officer, or other person, in relation to any matter wherein such attestation or certificate is required by law, or may be received or be taken as legal proof; or any charter, deed, will, testament, bond, writing obligatory, power of attorney, letter of credit, policy of insurance, bill of lading, bill of exchange, promissory note; or any order, acquittance, discharge, or accountable receipt for money, or other valuable thing; or any acceptance of any bill of exchange, or order; or any indorsement, or assignment of any bill of exchange, promissory note, or order, or of any debt or contract; or any instrument in writing, being, or purporting to be, the act of another, by which any pecuniary demand or obligation, or any right or interest in or to any property, whatever, is, or purports to be created, increased, transferred, conveyed, discharged or diminished, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years.

Intoxicating liquors seized under an information for their forfeiture are not the subject of replevin, and to take them from an officer by such process would be an illegal act. The State v. Harris et al., 38 Iowa, 242.

An instruction as follows was held to be correct: "When property recently stolen is found in the possession of any person, the burden of proof is upon such person to show how he came into the possession thereof; and unless he shows that he came honestly into possession of said property, the law will presume that he stole the same." The State v. Hessians, 50 Iowa, 135.

The false making or material alteration with intent to defraud, of any writing which if genuine, might apparently be of legal efficacy or the foundation of a legal liability, is forgery. The State v. Johnson, 26 Iowa, 407.

A material alteration of a promissory note is forgery, both at common law and under our statutes. Snyder v. Reno, 39 Id., 329, 333.

While there can be no forgery of a written instrument invalid on its face, yet it is not necessary that it should show actual legal efficacy, and it is sufficient that if genuine, it might have such apparent efficacy. Id.

The detachment from a written instrument of a condition thereto, written on the same paper and at the same time, whereby the writing is changed from a non-negotiable instrument to a negotiable promissory note is forgery, and pun-
Sec. 3918. If any person utter and publish as true any record, process, certificate, deed, will, or any other instrument of writing mentioned in the preceding section, knowing the same to be false, altered, forged, or counterfeited, with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than fifteen years and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3919. If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, utter, forge, or counterfeit any note, certificate, state bond, warrant, or other instrument, being public security for money or other property issued or purporting to be issued by authority of this state, or any other of the United States; or any indorsement or other writing purporting to transfer the right or interest of any holder of such public security, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than twenty years, nor less than five years.

Sec. 3920. If any person make, alter, forge, or counterfeit any bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company duly authorized for that purpose by any state of the United States, or any other government or country, with intent to injure or defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3921. If any person has in his possession any forged, counterfeited, or altered bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued as is mentioned in the preceding section, with intent to defraud, knowing them to be so forged, counterfeited, or altered, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

ishable as such. The State v. Stratton, 27 Id., 420.

Where a person writes his name on a blank piece of paper, to be used for the purpose of identifying his signature and the person to whom it is given, without the knowledge of the other, writes over such signature a promissory note, it will be held that the instrument is a forgery, and invalid, even in the hands of an innocent holder to whom it was negotiated before maturity. Caulkins v. Whisler, 29 Id., 495.

Under an indictment charging the forgery of the signature, the writing is admissible in evidence, and the jury must determine whether or not the act of the defendant is an attempt to imitate the signature as charged. The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 110.

An indictment for forgery is supported by proof of a material alteration of a written instrument whereby another is defrauded. The State v. Maxwell, 47 Id., 454.

Where a promissory note for ten dollars contained blank space in which the words "one hundred and " and the figure " 1 " after the dollar mark at the top of the note thus altering it from a note for ten dollars to one for one hundred and ten dollars, and nothing on the face of the note tended to show such alterations, it was held to be a forgery which vitiated the note in the hands of a bona fide holder. The Knox ville Bank v. Clark, 13 West. Jur., 310. (July 4879.)

In Rainbolt v. Eddy, 34 Iowa, 440, it was held, that the alteration of a promissory note by filling a blank left therein for the rate of interest, so as to make it draw ten per cent did not affect its validity in the hands of a bona fide indorsee, for value before maturity.

Under an indictment charging the forgery of the signature to a written instrument, the instrument is admissible in evidence, and the jury must determine whether or not the act of the defendant was an attempt to imitate the signature as charged. The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 110.

A material alteration of the terms or conditions of a note or other commercial paper made by the holder with a fraudulent intent, will defeat recovery thereon. Robinson v. Reed, 46 Id., 219. For other cases holding alterations of notes etc. fatal to recovery, see Hammond v. Hooper, 46 Id., 515; Dickerman v. Miner, 43 Id., 508; Cutler v. Rose et ux., 35 Id., 456.
SEC. 3922. If any person utter or pass, or tender in payment as true, any false, altered, forged, or counterfeited note, certificate, state bond, warrant, or other instrument of public security, or any bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company duly authorized as heretofore mentioned, knowing the same to be false, altered, forged, or counterfeited, with the intent to injure or defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.\footnote{The name of the person, to whom counterfeit money is passed should be stated with certainty in the indictment unless the name is unknown, and if so that fact should be stated. \textit{Buckley v. The State}, 2 G. Greene, 162.}

SEC. 3923. If any person, having been convicted of the offenses described in the preceding section, afterward be convicted of a like offense; or if any person at the same term of the court is convicted of three such distinct offenses, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than two years, nor more than ten years.

SEC. 3924. If any person engrave, make, or mend, or begin to engrave, make, or mend any plate, block, press, or other tool, instrument, or implement; or make or provide any paper or other materials adapted and designed for the forging or making any false and counterfeit note, certificate, state bond, warrant, or other instrument of public security for money or other property of this state, or any other of the United States; or any bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company; and every person who has in his possession any such plate or block engraved in any part, or any press or other tool, instrument, or implement, paper or other material adapted and designed as aforesaid, with intent to use the same, or to cause or permit the same to be used in forging or making any such false and forged certificates, notes, bonds, warrants, public securities, or evidences of debt, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than five years nor less than two years.

SEC. 3925. If any person forge or counterfeit any gold or silver coin current by law or usage within this state, and if any person have in his possession at the same time five or more pieces of false money or coin counterfeited in the similitude of any gold or silver coin current as aforesaid, knowing the same to be false and counterfeit, and with intent to utter or pass the same as true, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years nor less than one year.\footnote{An indictment under this section for having in possession false money or coin counterfeited in the similitude of coin current in the state of Iowa, need not allege that the coin was counterfeited in the similitude of the current coin of the United States; nor is it necessary to aver that the counterfeit coin was of any value. \textit{The State v. Williams}, 8 Iowa, 583.}

The conjunction in this section, though copulative in form, will be construed as disjunctive in sense. \textit{The State v. Myers}, 10 Id., 418.

The evidence to sustain an indictment, charging a defendant with having five or more pieces of counterfeit coin in possession should show the number of pieces in possession of the accused. \textit{State of Iowa v. Pepper}, 11 Id., 347.
Sec. 3926. Any person who has in his possession any number of pieces less than five of the counterfeit coin mentioned in the preceding section, knowing the same to be false or counterfeit, with intent to utter or pass the same as true; and any person who utters, passes, or tenders in payment any false and counterfeit coin, knowing the same to be false and counterfeit, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding eight years, or fined not more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3927. If any person fraudulently connect together different parts of several genuine bank bills, notes, or other instruments in writing, so as to produce one instrument; or alter any note or instrument in writing in a matter that is material with intent to defraud, the same shall be deemed forgery in like manner as if such bill or note or other instrument had been forged and counterfeited, and the offender shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 3928. If any fictitious or pretended signature of an officer or agent of any corporation be fraudulently affixed to any instrument of writing, purporting to be a note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued by such corporation, with intent to utter or pass the same as true, it is a forgery, though no such person may ever have been an officer or agent of such corporation, nor such corporation have ever existed. Every person guilty of this offense shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3929. The total or partial erasure or obliteration of any record, process, certificate, deed, will, or any other instrument in writing mentioned in this chapter with the intent to defraud, shall be deemed forgery, and the offender shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3930. If any person having been convicted of either of the offenses mentioned in the preceding section be afterwards convicted of a like offense; or if any person at the same term of court, be convicted of three such distinct offenses, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, nor less than three years.

Sec. 3931. If any person cast, stamp, engrave, make, or mend, or have in his possession any mould, die, press, or other instrument or tool adapted and designed for the forging and counterfeiting of any coin before mentioned with intent to use the same, or permit the same to be used for that purpose, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3932. If any person forge or counterfeit any gold or silver coin of any foreign government or country, with intent to injure or defraud any such government or the citizens thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 3933. Every person who is convicted of having forged, counterfeited, or falsely altered the great seal of this state; or the seal of any public office authorized by law; or the seal of any court, corporation, city, or county; or who falsely makes, forges, or counterfeits any impression purporting to be the impression of any such seal with intent to defraud, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 3934. On the trial of any person for forging or counterfeiting any bill, note, or any other evidence of debt purporting to be issued by any incorporated company; or for uttering, passing, or attempting to pass; or having in possession the same with intent to utter or pass such bill, note, or evidence of debt, it is not necessary to prove the incorporation by the charter or act thereof; but the same may be proved by general reputation, and persons of skill are competent witnesses to prove that such bill, note, or evidence of debt is forged or counterfeit.

Sec. 3935. If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, forge, or counterfeit any stamp or brand authorized by law to be affixed to any substance or thing whatever; or, knowing such stamp or brand to be counterfeit, use the same as genuine with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

SECTION 3936. If any person on oath or affirmation, lawfully administered, willfully and corruptly swear or affirm falsely to any material matter in any proceeding in any court of justice, or before any officer thereof; or before any tribunal or officer created by law; or in any proceeding in regard to any matter or thing in or respecting which an oath or affirmation is or may be required or authorized by law, he is guilty of perjury, and shall be punished, if the perjury was committed on the trial of a capital crime, by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term not less than ten years; and if committed in any other case, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years nor less than two years.

Sec. 3937. If any person procure another to commit perjury, he is guilty of subornation of perjury, and shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

Where an indictment for passing counterfeit bank bills, alleged that the bank is a corporation, duly authorized to issue bills, by a certain state named, it is incumbent on the prosecution to prove the fact alleged. The State v. Newland, 7 Iowa, 242.

Perjury may be committed by willfully giving false testimony in a material matter before a grand jury. The State v. Schill, 27 Iowa, 263.

In order to convict on an indictment for perjury, it must be shown that the defendant willfully and corruptly swore falsely respecting a material matter. The materiality must be established by evidence, and cannot be left to presumption or inference. The State v. Aikens, 32 Id., 403.

It is not essential to constitute the crime of perjury that the fact sworn to shall be material to the main issue in the case. It is sufficient if it be material to a collateral issue before the court. The State v. Shupe, 16 Id., 36.
SEC. 3938. If any person endeavor to incite or procure another to commit perjury, though no perjury be committed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3939. If any person give, offer or promise to any executive or judicial officer or member of the general assembly after his election or appointment, and either before or after he has been qualified or has taken his seat, any valuable consideration, gratuity, service, or benefit whatever, with intent to influence his act, vote, opinion or judgment in any matter, question, cause or proceeding which may be pending or which may legally come or be brought before him in his official capacity, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not more than one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3940. If any executive or judicial officer, or member of the general assembly, accept any valuable consideration, gratuity, service or benefit whatever, or any promise to make the same or to do any act beneficial to such officer or member under the agreement or with the understanding that his vote, opinion, decision or judgment shall be given in any particular manner or upon any particular side of any question, cause or other proceeding which is, or may by law be, brought before him in his official capacity, or that in such capacity he will make any particular nomination or appointment, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or be fined not more than two thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3941. Every person who is convicted under either of the two preceding sections of this chapter, shall forever afterward be disqualified from holding any office under the laws or constitution of this state.

SEC. 3942. If any person, directly or indirectly, give, offer or promise any valuable consideration or gratuity to any other person not being such officer as is mentioned in the preceding section, with intent to induce such other person to procure for him by his interest, influence or any other means whatever any place of trust within this state, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3943. If any person, not being such officer as is referred to in the preceding sections of this chapter, accept and receive of another any valuable consideration or gratuity whatever as a reward for procuring, or attempting to procure, any office or place of trust within this state for any person, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3944. If any person give, offer or promise any valuable consideration or gratuity whatever, to any one summoned, appointed, or sworn as a juror; or appointed or chosen arbitrator, or umpire, or referee; or to any master in chancery; or appraiser of real or personal estate; or auditor, with intent to influence the opinion or decision of

* The giving of facilities for the public convenience of the whole county, as an inducement to remove the county seat, or the offering of a public advantage to an entire community as an inducement to the members of such community to vote for such removal, does not constitute bribery within the meaning of sections 2647, 2657 of the code of 1851. (Sections 3939, 3949, code of 1873). Dishorn v. Smith, 10 Iowa, 212.
any such person in any matter, inquest or cause which may be pending or can legally come before him, or which he may be called on to decide in either of said capacities, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3945. If any person summoned, appointed or sworn as a juror; or appointed arbitrator, umpire or referee; or master in chancery; or auditor; or appraiser as aforesaid, take or receive any valuable consideration, or gratuity whatever, to give his verdict, award or report in favor of any particular party, in a matter for the hearing or decision of which such person has been summoned, appointed or chosen as aforesaid, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3946. If any person attempt to improperly influence any juror in any civil or criminal cause, or any one drawn, or summoned, or appointed, or sworn as such juror, or any arbitrator or referee, in relation to any cause or matter pending in, or to be brought before the court for which such juror has been drawn, summoned, appointed or sworn; or for the hearing and decision of which such arbitrator or referee has been chosen or appointed, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months.

SEC. 3947. If any person drawn, summoned or sworn as a juror, make any promise or agreement to give a verdict for or against any person in any civil or criminal case, or corruptly receive any paper, evidence or information from any one in relation to any matter or cause for the trial of which he is sworn, without the authority of the court or officer before whom such cause or matter is then pending, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three months.

SEC. 3948. If any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or coroner receive from a defendant, or any other person, any money or other valuable thing as a consideration or inducement for omitting or delaying to arrest any defendant, or to carry him before a magistrate or to prison; or for postponing, delaying or neglecting the sale of property on execution; or for omitting or delaying to perform any other duty pertaining to his office, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3949. If any officer authorized to serve process willfully refuse to execute any lawful process to him directed, requiring him to apprehend or confine any person charged with, or convicted of, any public offense; or willfully delay or omit to execute such process, whereby such person escape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

³ To assist a prisoner to escape from the custody of an officer when held under a warrant issued by a magistrate for having threatened to commit a public offense, is as much a violation of the statute (§ 3938) as if the prisoner stood charged with its actual commission. The State v. Bates, 23 Iowa, 96.

In a prosecution for assisting a prisoner to escape, when held upon a warrant charging him with threatening to commit a public offense, the defendant cannot avoid a conviction by proving that he was not, in fact, guilty of the charge: all evidence for that purpose is incompetent. Id.

It is equally a crime to assist a prisoner to escape from an officer de facto only, as though he were an officer de jure. Id.

⁴ Under section 4296, of the revision before it was amended by chapter 150 of the laws of the 12th general assembly, it was held not to be a crime to resist a peace officer while attempting to make an arrest without a warrant. State v. Lovell, 23 Iowa, 394.

It was further held that criminal statutes are inelastic, and cannot be made to include cases plainly without the letter, though within the reason and policy of the law. Id.
SEC. 3964. SEC. 3966. When the performance of any act is prohibited by any statute, and no penalty for the violation of such statute is imposed, the doing of such act is a misdemeanor.

SEC. 3967. Every person who is convicted of a misdemeanor, the punishment of which is not otherwise prescribed by any statute of this state, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 3971. If any justice of the peace, clerk of the district or other court which is now or may hereafter be established, county recorder, or other officer, who by law is authorized or required to keep a court docket, or who is or may be required to keep an account of fees or fines, and to pay over, or in any way account for the same, shall in any manner falsify such docket or account, or shall fail, neglect, or refuse to make an entry upon such docket, or account of such fees and fines, as are required to be paid over according to law, such justice of the peace, clerk of the district court, or clerk of any other court, county recorder and other officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject and liable to be prosecuted therefor in any court having jurisdiction of the offense.

*An indictment against the directors of a school district for misconduct in the issuance of school orders, in violation of section 21 of the school laws of Iowa of 1872, should state that the claims for which the orders were alleged to be drawn had not been audited and allowed. The State v. Stiles et al., 40 Iowa, 148.
Sec. 3972. Any justice of the peace, clerk of the district or of any other court which is or may be established, county recorder, or other officer who may be found guilty of the offense of appropriating to his own use fees of office or fines collected for violation of law, or of neglecting to pay over the same as prescribed by law, shall be removed from office by the court before or by whom the offense may be tried and judgment or conviction had, and each and every person so found guilty shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars nor less than ten dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Such report must be verified under oath, to the effect that the same is full, true, and complete of the matters therein contained, and of all things required by this section to be reported; and any officer failing so to do shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, may be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 3975. \(^a\) Where the property cut down, carried away or destroyed is of value not exceeding fifty dollars the offense is triable and punishable before a justice of the peace. The State v. Van Horpton, 26 Iowa, 402. See also Londegan v. Hammer, 30 Id., 508, 509.

An indictment founded upon this section for trespass in cutting down and carrying away the timber, standing and growing upon the land of another, should aver the name of the owner of the land upon which the alleged trespass was committed. The State v. McConkey, 20 Id., 574.

In an indictment for willful trespass by cutting down and destroying timber, it is sufficient to allege that the injury was done by cutting down and destroying, without being more specific. The State v. Watrous, 13 Id., 489.

One statement of the venue, in the indictment is sufficient, and when it is averred that the trespass was committed upon the land of a person named, and it is described by section, township and range, omitting its situation with reference to the nearest meridian line, it is sufficient if the county wherein it is situated is named. \(^w\) In the trial of an indictment under this section of the statute, "for willfully voting when not a citizen of the United States," the court did not err in refusing to instruct the jury "that knowledge is not to be presumed in such case, but is to be alleged and proved as any other fact," for the reason that the instruction was not pertinent. State v. Sheeley, 15 Iowa, 404.

On the trial of an indictment under this section, evidence that the defendant consulted "friends" as to his right to vote, "and was advised by them that such right existed," is inadmissible. It seems that evidence that the defendant had consulted persons learned in the law and that upon being informed of all the facts they advised him that he was a legal voter may be admitted as tending to disprove a criminal intent; but such evidence would not be conclusive. SEC. 4014. When the lessee of a dwelling-house is convicted of keeping the same as a house of ill-fame, the lease or contract for letting such house is, at the option of the lessor, void, and such lessor may thereupon have the like remedy to recover possession as against a tenant holding over after the expiration of his term.

Shaw v. Gardner, supra.

The intermarriage of persons within the degrees of consanguinity forbidden by this section of the statute constitutes the crime of incest as therein provided. To sustain a conviction, it is not necessary for the state to show, in addition, carnal knowledge between the parties.

In estimating such confinement, the time the animals have been confined without such rest on connecting railways from which they are received shall be computed, it being the intention of this section to prevent their continuous confinement beyond twenty-eight hours, except upon contingencies hereinafter stated; and animals unloaded for rest, water, and feeding, under the provisions of this section, shall be properly, fed, watered, and sheltered during such rest by the owners or persons in custody thereof, or in case of their default in so doing, then by the railway company transporting them, at the expense of said owners or persons in custody thereof, and said company shall have a lien upon such animals for food, care and custody furnished, and shall not be liable for any detention of such animals authorized by this section. Any railway company, owner, or custodian of such animals who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall, for each and every such offense, be liable for, and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one hundred and not greater than five hundred dollars. But when such animals shall be carried in cars in which they shall and do have proper food, water, space, and opportunity for rest, the foregoing provisions in regard to their being unloaded shall not apply.

SEC. 4033. If any person keep or use, or in any way be connected with, or be interested in the management of, or receive money for the admission of any person to any place kept or used for the purpose of fighting any bull, bear, dog, cock, or other creature, or engage in, aid, abet, encourage, or assist in any bull, bear, dog, or cock fight, or a fight between any other creature, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4034. If any person impound or confine, or cause to be impounded or confined in any pound or other place, any creature, and fail to supply the same during such confinement with a sufficient quantity of food and water, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4061. If complaint is made before a justice of the peace by one or more responsible persons, that they have good reason to believe that hop roots have been introduced into, or are being cultivated in the city or township where they reside in violation of this act, the justice before whom such complaint is made shall issue a warrant authorizing any peace officer to seize such roots, and they shall be held in charge by such officer until suit has been brought against the person or persons so offending, and the cause determined; and in case it is found that the said plants, roots, or cuttings are diseased, or are infected by lice or vermin of a contagious character, the officer before whom suit is brought will order the said roots, plants, or cuttings to be burned, charging the expense of doing the same as costs upon the party owning or cultivating the roots, plants, or cuttings; and in no case will he allow them to be planted or delivered to a third party, until the fact is established that they are not infected with any vermin or disease of a contagious character.

Sec. 4062. If any person or corporation, after having been notified in writing of the presence of Canada thistles on any lands owned or occupied by such person or corporation; or if any highway supervisor, after having been notified in writing of the presence of Canada thistles on the highway under his jurisdiction, shall permit such thistles or any part thereof to blossom or mature, such person, corporation or highway supervisor, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly.

Sec. 4063. If any person kill, trap, ensnare, or in any manner destroy any of the birds of this state, excepting birds of prey, the migratory aquatic birds, and those which are useful for food, and the killing of which at certain seasons of the year is now permitted by law, or in any manner destroy the eggs of such birds as are hereby intended to be protected from destruction, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars. * This provision was not intended to change the general rule applicable to such cases, that a plaintiff cannot recover for injuries resulting from the negligence of another person, if his own negligence in any degree contributed directly to the injury. The statute merely provides that a failure to box the tumbling rods as required is, per se, negligence on the part of the owner or person running the machine, leaving the rule respecting contributory negligence on part of the person injured to apply the same as in other cases. fish commissioner, and by societies and individuals interested in the propagation of fish in the waters of this state.

Sec. 2. The fish commissioner, including the present incumbent, shall receive, in full compensation of his services, twelve hundred dollars per year, to be paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, and continuing the work as contemplated in laws of 1876, chapter 70 thereof, there is hereby appropriated out of any money belonging to the state, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of six thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act: Provided, that said amount be under the control of the executive council of the state.

Sec. 5. No person shall place, erect, or cause to be placed or erected, across any of the rivers, creeks, ponds or lakes of this state, any trot-line, dam, seine, weir, fish-dam, or other obstruction, in such manner as to prevent the free passage of fish up, down or through such water courses, unless the same be done by the instruction or under the direction of the fish commissioner, and that when the same is so done by or through the instruction, or under the direction of the fish commissioner, it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to remove, or in any way interfere with the same. FISH-WAYS.

AN Act to provide for the further enforcement of chapters 80 and 188, of the acts of the seventeenth general assembly, in relation to the construction and attachment of fish-ways to dams.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That within thirty days after the passage and publication of this act, each clerk of the board of supervisors, in any county in this state in which there is any dam constructed across any stream therein, shall notify the state fish commissioner of the height of each dam in his county, the width of the stream where the dam is constructed, the character of the foundation upon which each dam rests, and shall give to him all other information necessary to convey to said commissioner an intelligent understanding of the situation and location of each dam in said county.

SEC. 2. That within thirty days after the receipt of said notice, the state commissioner shall acknowledge the same by mail, and within thirty days from that date, the said commissioner shall send, through the United States mail, or by express, to the clerk of the said board of supervisors, plans and specifications, also, one model for each county to be retained by the auditor for reference, suitable for the construction of a fish-way for each dam reported as aforesaid, and the expenses connected therewith to be paid by the county receiving the same, and the said clerk shall, immediately on the receipt of said plans and specifications, cause a notice to be served in the same manner as required for the service of original notices and returned to the auditor for preservation; which notice shall be directed to the owner, agent or party in charge of the dam, and which shall inform said owner, agent or party that model, plans and specifications are in his office, subject to his inspection, for the construction of a fish-way to said dam, and that, unless he consult the same and comply therewith within sixty days, the county will proceed to construct the same, and the costs and penalties therefor will be made a tax lien on the entire premises on which such dam is situated.
SEC. 3. If, within sixty days after the service of said notice, the owner, agent or party in charge shall fail to construct and attach a fish-way to such dam, as required by the commissioner, then the county board of supervisors shall immediately proceed to construct and attach the same, and when so constructed and attached, the original cost and twenty per cent thereon as a penalty shall be entered upon the tax books of the county, and shall be a lien on said property, to be collected in the same manner as provided by law for the collection of other taxes.

SEC. 4. To carry out any of the provisions of this act, the county board of supervisors may issue county warrants for the payment of such expenditure and expenses, and when the said taxes are paid the said warrants and all accrued interest thereon shall be refunded to the county, and the balance, after paying the clerk and state commissioner and board of supervisors for their services and for the service of said notice, shall be paid over to the county treasurer to become a part of the school fund of the county.

SEC. 6. The said clerk and state fish commissioner and board of supervisors shall keep an accurate and itemized account of their expenditures, and report the same under oath to the county board of supervisors at any regular meeting, and the said board shall thereupon allow such reasonable compensation for their services as they may consider reasonable and just, to be paid out of any money in the county treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 7. Any person who shall kill, trap, ensnare, detain, or in any manner molest the free and unmolested passage of any fish within one hundred yards of any dam, or in their transit through any fish-way attached or belonging thereto, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine for each offense of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, and five dollars to the complaining witness together with costs of prosecution, including an attorney fee not exceeding ten dollars, and stand committed until the same are fully paid; and when said fine shall be collected the same shall be paid over to the county treasurer, to become part of school fund.

SEC. 8. If any member of any board of supervisors shall, by vote or act, neglect or refuse to enforce the provisions of this act, he shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon the complaint of any person before any justice of the peace having jurisdiction thereof, if he be convicted he shall pay a fine of not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs for each offense, and when collected the same shall be paid over to the county treasurer, to become a part of school fund of the county.

SEC. 9. Nothing in this act shall be construed to repeal any part of chapters 80 and 188 of the acts of the seventeenth general assembly of the state of Iowa.

Sec. 4068. Any person guilty of unlawfully assembling, or of a riot, may alone be indicted and convicted thereof, but it must be alleged in the indictment and proved on the trial that three or more persons were engaged therein.

Sec. 4069. If any person make or excite any disturbance in any tavern, store, or grocery, or at any election, or public meeting, or in any other place where the citizens are peaceably and lawfully assembled, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 4070. If any person or persons unlawfully or riotously assembled, pull down, injure, or destroy, or begin to pull down, injure or destroy, any dwelling-house or other building; or destroy or attempt to injure or destroy any boat or vessel; or perpetrate any premeditated injury on the person of another, not being a felony, he shall be punished in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, and shall also be answerable to any person injured to the full amount of the damages by him sustained in an action at law.

Sec. 4071. Sec. 4072. If any person be found on the first day of the week, commonly called Sabbath, engaged in any riot, fighting, or offering to fight, or hunting, shooting, carrying fire arms, fishing, horse-racing, dancing, or in any manner disturbing any worshiping assembly, or private family; or in buying or selling property of any kind, or in any labor, the work of necessity and charity only excepted, every person

CHAPTER 13.

CHEATING, BY FALSE PRETENSES, GROSS FRAUDS, AND CONSPIRACY.

Section 4073. If any person designedly and by false pretense, or by any privy or false token, and with intent to defraud, obtain from another any money, goods, or other property; or so obtain the signature of any person to any written instrument, the false making of which would be punished as forgery, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than seven years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The courts of this state will not enforce an express or implied contract for the sale of property made on the Sabbath day, where the parties thereto do not come within the exceptions expressed in section 4072 of the code. Pike v. King, 16 Iowa, 49; Sayre v. Wheeler, 32 Id., 559; Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112; Clough v. Goggins, 46 Id., 325. And the same rule applies to a contract made in another state, in the absence of evidence that the contract was valid under the laws of the state where made. Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 113; Sayre v. Wheeler, 32 Id., 559.

A contract made in violation of a statute and against the policy of the state, malum in se or malum prohibitum is invalid, and cannot be enforced by action. Id.

A contract void because made on Sunday, does not prevent the parties from making a valid contract with reference to the same subject matter on a subsequent week-day; nor it would seem from otherwise ratifying the original contract. Harrison v. Colton, 31 Id., 16.

Where a promissory note is void because executed on Sunday, the payee is not precluded from recovering upon the original contract which was the consideration for the note. Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112.

A written contract for the conveyance of land made on Sunday, but bearing the date of another day of the week, when transferred, will be enforced in the hands of the transferee in good faith and without notice of the infirmity. Jones v. Bailey et al., 45 Id., 241.

A contract for an exchange of horses was made on Saturday which included the discharge of a debt due from one of the parties to the other, but the plaintiff took possession of the horse he traded for on Sunday; Held, that there was such a consummation of the contract on Saturday as rendered it valid. Peake v. Conlan, 43 Id., 297.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff as the result of the frightening of his horse on the highway by the defendant's dogs, it was held, that plaintiff's right to recover was not affected by the fact that the accident occurred on Sunday while he was riding on a business errand. Schmidt v. Humphrey, 43 Id., 652.

To obtain a credit on a note, held by another person against the defendant, is not obtaining money, goods or property, within the meaning of this section of the statute. The State v. Moore, 15 Iowa, 412.

False pretenses cannot be predicated upon representations which are mere matters of opinion. The State v. Webb, 26 Id., 262.

An indictment which alleges that the defendant procured the signature of another to a note by "false pretenses" sufficiently charges the crime of cheating by false pretenses. The State v. Joaquin, 43 Id., 191. See, The State v. Dowe, 27 Id., 273, where the facts and circumstances constituting the alleged offense were set out in the indictment, and it was held sufficient.

It is not necessary that an indictment for obtaining property by false pretenses should state in terms that credit was given to the alleged false representations, when it contained the alle-
SEC. 4074. Any person who knowingly being a party to any conveyance, or assignment of any estate or interest in lands, goods, or things in action, or of any rents or profits arising therefrom; or being a party to any charge on such estate, interest, rents, or profits, made or created with intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers, or to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or other persons; and every person who, being privy to, or knowing of such fraudulent conveyance, assignment, or charge, puts the same in use as having been made in good faith, shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4075. If any person having in his possession, or under his control, any last will and testament of any deceased person, willfully suppress, secrete, deface, or destroy the same, or any codicil thereto belonging, with intent to injure or defraud any devisee, legatee, or other person, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than seven years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 4076. If any person with intent to defraud, use a false balance, weight, or measure, in the weighing or measuring of anything whatever that is purchased, sold, bartered, shipped, or delivered for sale or barter; or that is pledged or given in payment, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4077. The magistrate granting the warrant of arrest for this offense must also direct the seizure of the false weights, balances or measures; and if the party be convicted, or they are found to be false, they shall be forfeited to the county, and, after being made of the standard weight or measure, may be sold and the money arising from such sale must be paid into the county treasury.

SEC. 4078. If any person falsely alter any stamp, brand, or mark on any cask, package, box, or bale, containing merchandise or produce, made by a public officer appointed for that purpose, in order to denote the quality, weight, or quantity of the contents thereof, with intent to defraud, he shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4079. If any person counterfeit any mark, stamp, or brand of another, or falsely mark any cask, package, box, or bale, as to quality or quantity, with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The intent of the parties to a mortgage, in executing the same, to hinder and delay the creditors of the mortgagor, in the collection of their claims, is a legal fraud, as much so as the actual intent to defraud, and renders the mortgage equally void as to existing creditors. Davinport v. Cummings, 15 Iowa, 219.

Fraud in the execution of a mortgage may be shown by direct and positive evidence, or it may be inferred from facts and circumstances established by a preponderance of evidence. Id.

That a mortgage on its face purports to be made for a larger consideration than that which actually passed between the parties, is a badge of fraud. Id.

To say of a person "you are a cheat and a swindler, and you defrauded me," is not indictable per se. The words charged do not import an indictable offense. Lucas v. Flink, 35 Iowa, 9, 11.
county jail not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 4080. If any person with intent to defraud, use any cask, package, box, or bale, marked, branded, or stamped by another, for the sale of merchandise or produce of an inferior quality, or less in quantity or weight than is denoted by such mark, stamp, or brand, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4081. Every person who is convicted of any gross fraud or cheat at common law, shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 4082. If any person cast away, sink, or otherwise destroy, any raft, boat, or vessel, within any county of this state with intent to defraud any owner or insurer thereof; or the owner or insurer of any property laden on board the same, or of any part thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 4083. If any person lade, equip, or fit out, or assist in lading, equipping, or fitting out, any raft, boat, or vessel, with intent that the same be cast away, burnt, sunk, or otherwise destroyed, to injure or defraud any owner or insurer thereof, or of any property laden on board the same, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 4084. If any owner of any boat or vessel, or of any property laden or pretended to be laden on board the same; or if any other person concerned in the lading or fitting out such boat or vessel, make out and exhibit, or cause to be made out and exhibited, any false estimate of any goods or property laden, or pretended to be laden, on board such boat or vessel with intent to injure or defraud any insurer of such boat or vessel, or property, or any part thereof, he shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years.

Sec. 4085. If any master or other officer of any boat or vessel, make, or cause to be made, any false affidavit or protest; or if any owner or other person concerned in such boat or vessel, or in the goods or property laden on board the same, procure any such false affidavit or protest to be made, or exhibit the same with intent to injure, deceive, or defraud any insurer of such boat or vessel, or of the goods or property laden on board the same, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding three thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 4086. If two or more persons conspire or confederate together with intent, falsely and maliciously, to cause or procure another person to be indicted, or in any way impleaded or prosecuted for an offense of which he is innocent, whether such person be impleaded, indicted, or prosecuted or not, they shall be deemed guilty of a conspiracy, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than one hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.
SEC. 4087. If any two or more persons conspire or confederate together with the fraudulent or malicious intent wrongfully to injure the person, character, business, or property of another; or to do any illegal act injurious to the public trade, health, morals or police; or to the administration of public justice; or to commit any felony, they are guilty of a conspiracy, and every such offender, and every person who is convicted of a conspiracy at common law, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than three years.

SEC. 4088. If any person issue any receipt or voucher, stating or purporting to state the receipt by him from another, of any property for storage or safe keeping without having in good faith received, and at the time having in his possession or under his control, such property; or issue any second receipt or voucher for any property while his former receipt or voucher for the same, or any part thereof, shall be outstanding and uncanceled; or sell, encumber, transfer, ship, or in any manner remove beyond his immediate control, any property for which a receipt or voucher has been given by him as aforesaid, in violation of the terms of such receipt or voucher, without the written consent of the person holding such receipt or voucher, except to enforce his lien for storage and warehouse charges as provided by law; or sell, transfer, or dispose of any receipt or voucher, given or purporting to have been given by any person for property in store, knowing that such person has not in his possession such property or any part thereof, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the penitentiary of this state not exceeding five years.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa: That whoever by the means of three-card monte so-called or any other form or device, sleight-of-hand or other means whatever, by use of cards or instruments of like character, obtains from another person any money or other property of any description, shall be deemed

* To constitute a valid indictment for conspiracy, the particular circumstances of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 28 Iowa, 551.

In the trial of an indictment for conspiracy to injure the property of another, under this section of the statute, evidence that the injury was done in the exercise of an avowed legal right which the testimony tended to establish, and without malicious intent, will not sustain a conviction. The State v. Flynn, 28 Id., 26.

An indictment for conspiracy under this section must show either that the object of the conspiracy was criminal, or allege facts which show that the means employed to accomplish the object was criminal. The State v. Stevens et al., 30 Id., 391; The State v. Potter, 28 Id., 554.

The injury to property contemplated by the statute against conspiracy must be such as is punishable as a crime. Id.

The injury must also be a direct one against the property itself, and not against an inchoate right, as that of the wife in the property of her husband. Id.

An indictment charging that the defendant did "conspire * * * to cause * * * S. to go with them * * * with the view, purpose and intent, with the intention of bringing about a sham marriage, or pretended marriage between her, the said S., and him, the said defendant, and thus bring about the seduction of the said S., in violation of law," was held, to charge a conspiracy to commit a crime. The State v. Savoye, 48 Id., 592.

guilty of the crime of swindling, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than two hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than two years nor more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. All persons aiding, encouraging, advising or confederating with, or knowingly harboring or concealing, any such person or persons, or in any manner being accessory to the commission of the above-described offense, or confederating together for the purpose of playing such games, shall be deemed principals therein, and punished accordingly.

Sec. 2. The jurisdiction of all the offenses described in section one (1) of this act which shall be committed on any railroad car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyance, or in or at any railroad station or depot shall be in any county through which said car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyance may pass during the trip or voyage, or in which the trip or voyage may begin or terminate, and in all other cases the jurisdiction shall be in the county in which the offense is committed.

Sec. 3. Every person shall possess the power and authority, and it shall be the duty of every conductor, or other employee on any railroad, car or train, and of every captain, clerk or other employee on any boat, or station agent at any railway depot, or the officers of any fairs or fair grounds, and the proprietors of any place of public resort, and their employees, with or without warrant to arrest any person or persons whom they or either of them shall find in the act of committing any of the offenses mentioned in the first section of this act, or any person, or persons whom he or they may have good reason to believe to have been guilty of the commission of the said offenses, and to take such person or persons before a magistrate in any county where jurisdiction to try said offenses exists by virtue of this act, and deliver such person or persons so arrested to the magistrate, and make written complaints under oath of the facts. And for executing the powers conferred by this section, the person making the arrest shall possess the same powers in all respects as are exercised by officers with warrants, including the power to summon assistance; and it shall be the duty of the person making such arrest to also arrest the person injured or defrauded by reason of the commission of any of the offenses mentioned in section one (1) of this act, and take such person before the examining magistrate, who shall require such person to give security to appear and testify on the trial of the cause, and such person or persons shall not be deemed to be guilty of the offense mentioned in section one (1) of this act, nor of the offense of gambling unless such person or persons have failed to appear and give evidence on the trial.

And the person performing the services required by this act shall receive the same compensation as sheriffs receive for like services.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of any conductor, captain, hotel or saloon keeper, proprietor or manager of any public conveyance or place of public resort, and the officers of any fair or fair grounds, to eject from his car, train, boat, hotel, saloon, public conveyance, fair grounds or place of public resort, any person known to him or whom he has good reason to believe to be a three-card-monte-man, or who offers to wager or bet money or other valuable things upon what is commonly known as three-card-monte, or bet on any trick, or game with cards or other gaming device and for such ejection no action

NUISANCES, AND ABATEMENT THEREOF.

SECTION 4089. The erecting, continuing or using any building or which by occasioning noxious exhalations, offensive smells, or other annoyances becomes injurious and dangerous to the health, comfort or property of individuals or the public, the causing or suffering any offal, filth or noisome substance to be collected or to remain in any place to the prejudice of others; the obstructing or impeding without

SEC. 4090. If any person carry on the business of manufacturing gunpowder, or of mixing or grinding the composition therefor in any building within eighty rods of any valuable building erected at the time when such business may be commenced, the building in which such business is thus carried on is a public nuisance, and such person is liable to be prosecuted accordingly.

SEC. 4091. Houses of ill-fame kept for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, gambling houses, or houses where drunkenness, quarrelling, fighting, or breaches of the peace are carried on or permitted, to the disturbance of others, are nuisances, and may be abated and punished as provided in this chapter.

SEC. 4092. Whoever is convicted of erecting, causing or continuing a public or common nuisance as described in this chapter, or at common law when the same has not been modified or repealed by statute, where no other punishment therefor is specially provided, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and the court, with or without such fine, may order such nuisance to be abated, and issue a warrant as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 4093. When upon indictment, complaint or action, any person is adjudged guilty of a nuisance, the court before whom such conviction is had, may, in addition to the fine imposed, if any, or to the judgment for damages or cost for which a separate execution may issue, order that such nuisance be abated or removed at the expense whereby the air became corrupted and infected, to the injury and prejudice of others; it was held, that the indictment sufficiently charged a public or common nuisance under the statute. The State v. Close, 35 Id., 570.

While the owner of premises may lawfully erect a mill-dam across an un navigable stream, yet if it be so erected or managed as to become prejudicial to the health or comfort of others, it thereby becomes a nuisance. Id.

* On the trial of an indictment for nuisance under this section, for keeping a disorderly house, the defendant may be convicted upon proof that he kept the house, though the disorderly conduct did not occur in the house, but on the sidewalk in front of it, if it was the character of the house that attracted the disorderly persons there to caused the disturbance. The State v. Webb, 25 Iowa, 235.

The keeping for sale of wine of his own manufacture by the defendant, who lived on a farm, and the fact that persons buying the same at his house drank it and became intoxicated while in the highways leading therefrom, and by noisy and 'riotous conduct disturbed the neighbors, living from one-half to one and a half miles from defendant's house, was held, not to authorize the conviction of defendant for keeping a nuisance under section 4091 of the code.

An indictment under this section, charging the defendant with keeping “a house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, to the disturbance of others,” is sufficient and conforms to the statute. The State v. Alderman et ux., 40 Id., 375.

So, also, an indictment alleging that the defendant kept a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, “and which prostitution and lewdness were carried on and permitted, to the disturbance of others,” was held to sufficiently charge the offense of nuisance under this section. The State v. Odell, 42 Id., 75.

It is competent to charge in one indictment the various acts which go to make up the offense of nuisance as enumerated in section 4091 of the code. The State v. Spurbeck et al., 44 Id., 667.

A person may be tried in our courts for keeping a house of ill-fame on a boat in the Mississippi river, although such boat may, when so used, for a portion of the time, as the water recedes, rest on the soil of an island, and on the east side thereof, near to the Illinois shore. The State v. Muller, 55 Id., 199.

* See The State v. Kaster, 35 Iowa, 221, cited in notes to section 4090, ante.

The provisions of this section were held not to govern in cases of convictions for violations of the prohibitory liquor law, but that such cases were governed by chapter 69, laws of 1870. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Iowa, 110.

A defendant convicted under this section may be imprisoned until the fine is paid, but the power of the court to imprison is limited to one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine, (3.4509) and the defendant is not entitled to credit on the judgment by serving out such term of imprisonment. The State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

The punishment for the offense defined in this section is a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars. The State v. Reininghaus, 43 Id., 149, 151; The State v. Dean et al., 44 Id., 645, 650.
of the defendant, and after inquiry into and estimating as nearly as may be the sum necessary to defray the expenses of such abatement, the court may issue a warrant therefor.a

Sec. 4094. When the conviction is had upon an action before a justice of the peace and no appeal is taken, the justice, after estimating as aforesaid the sum necessary to defray the expenses of removing or abating the nuisance, may issue a like warrant.

Sec. 4095. Instead of issuing such warrant, the court or justice may order the same to be stayed upon motion of the defendant, and upon his entering into an undertaking in such sum and with such surety as the court or justice may direct, to the state, conditioned either that the defendant will discontinue such nuisance, or that within a time limited by the court and not exceeding six months, he will cause the same to be abated and removed as either is directed by the court; and upon his default to perform the condition of his undertaking, the same shall be forfeited and the court in term time or vacation, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, upon being satisfied of such default, may order such warrant forthwith to issue, and a scire facias on such undertaking.

Sec. 4096. The expense of abating a nuisance by virtue of a warrant can be collected by the officer in the same manner as damages and costs are collected on execution, except that the materials of any buildings, fences or other things that may be removed as a nuisance, may be first levied upon and sold by the officer, and if any of the proceeds remain after satisfying the expense of the removal, such balance must be paid by the officer to the defendant or to the owner of the property levied upon, and if said proceeds are not sufficient to pay such expenses the officer must collect the residue thereof.

CHAPTER 15.

OF LIBEL.

Section 4097. A libel is the malicious defamation of a person made public by any printing, writing, sign, picture, representation or effigy, tending to provoke him to wrath or expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to deprive him of the benefits of public confidence and social intercourse; or any malicious defamation made public as aforesaid, designed to blacken and vilify the memory of one who is dead, and tending to scandalize or provoke his surviving relatives or friends.b

Sec. 4098. Every person who makes, composes, dictates or procures the same to be done; or who willfully publishes or circulates such libel; or in any way knowingly or willfully aids or assists in *a Where on an indictment for nuisance the district court, in the judgment, directed that the property where the nuisance was kept, being a boat moored to an island in the Mississippi river, be seized by the sheriff and sold, and that the proceeds be applied to the payment of the fine imposed, and the nuisance abated, it was held that the judgment was authorized by this section of the statute. The State v. Mullen, 35 Iowa, 199, 203.

*b In an action for libel the information and charges made by the defendant in a criminal proceeding against the plaintiff, are not admissible to establish the libel. Mass v. Meire et ux., 37 Iowa, 97.
making, publishing or circulating the same, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Sec. 4099. In all prosecutions or indictments for libel, the truth thereof may be given in evidence to the jury, and if it appear to them that the matter charged as libelous was true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the defendant shall be acquitted.

Sec. 4100. No printing, writing or other thing is a libel unless there has been a publication thereof.

Sec. 4101. The delivering, selling, reading or otherwise communicating a libel; or causing the same to be delivered, sold, read or otherwise communicated to one or more persons or to the party libeled, is a publication thereof.

Sec. 4102. In all indictments or prosecutions for libel, the jury, after having received the direction of the court, shall have the right to determine at their discretion the law and the fact.
TITLE XXV.
OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

CHAPTER 1.
OF PUBLIC OFFENSES.

Section 4103. Public offenses are divided into:

1. Felonies;

Sec. 4104. A felony is a public offense which is, or in the discretion of the court may be, punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Sec. 4105. Every other public offense is a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4106. No person can be punished for a public offense except upon legal conviction in a court having jurisdiction thereof.

Sec. 4107. All defendants are bailable both before and after conviction, by sufficient surety, except for offenses heretofore punishable with death under the laws of the state, where the proof is evident, or the presumption great; [but no defendant convicted of murder shall be admitted to bail.]

CHAPTER 2.
OF THE TERM MAGISTRATE, AND HIS POWERS, PEACE OFFICERS AND OFFICERS OF JUSTICE, AND COMPLAINTS.

Section 4108. Any judge of the supreme, district, or circuit courts, any judge of any city court, any justice of the peace, any mayor of any incorporated city or town, any police, or other special justice of such city, or town, shall have power to hear complaints and preliminary informations, to issue warrants, order arrests, require security to keep the peace, make commitments, and take bail in the manner directed by this code. They are designated under the general term...

There are no crimes in this state but those expressly declared by statute. Per DAX, J., in Polk County v. Hierb, 37 Iowa, 367.

* When a defendant is accused of an offense that may be punished capitally, he may be admitted to bail by the examining magistrate when the evidence is slight or tends to show that the offense was committed under mitigating circumstances and would not be punished with death. The State v. Klingman, 14 Iowa, 404; The State v. Huffman, 23 Id., 579.
magistrate, and may exercise the jurisdiction hereby conferred on them as follows:
1. Judges of the supreme, district, and circuit courts throughout the state, in any county in which they may be at the time of complaint made;
2. Judges of city courts, justices of the peace, mayors of incorporated cities and towns, and police and other special justices of such cities and towns, within their respective counties.

Sect. 4109. The following persons respectively are designated in this code under the general term, peace officer;
1. Sheriffs and their deputies;
2. Constables;
3. Marshals and policemen of incorporated cities and towns.

Sect. 4110. Magistrates and peace officers are sometimes designated by the term, officers of justice.

Sect. 4111. Complaint of preliminary information is a statement in writing, under oath or affirmation made before a magistrate, of the commission, or threatened commission, of a public offense and accusing some one thereof.

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE PREVENTION OF PUBLIC OFFENSES BY THE RESISTANCE OF THE PARTY ABOUT TO BE INJURED AND OTHERS.

Section 4112. Lawful resistance to the commission of a public offense may be made by the party about to be injured, or by others.

Sect. 4113. Resistance sufficient to prevent the offense may be made by the party about to be injured;
1. To prevent an offense against his person;
2. To prevent an illegal attempt by force to take or injure property in his lawful possession.

1 The general term "magistrate," applies to each of the officers named in this section. The State v. Emerson et al., 16 Iowa, 206, 209.
2 Peace officers are sheriffs, and their deputies, constables, marshals, and police—men of incorporated cities and towns. And it is their sworn duty to keep the peace and prevent crime, as well as to arrest those charged therewith. Blair et al. v. Dubuque County, 27 Iowa, 181, 183.
3 Section 4111 of the code embraces two classes of what are termed complaints of preliminary information, those of the commission of a public offense, and those of the threatened commission of a public offense. Per Day, Ch. J., in The State v. Darrington, 47 Iowa, on p. 519.
4 A party may repel force by force in the defense of his person, habitation or property, against one who manifestly intends, by violence or surprise, to commit a felony against either; and, if, in making such defense, he takes life, the killing is excusable. But if the assault is not felonious, the rule is different. An assault without a weapon when there is no reason for a belief on the part of the person assaulted, that his person was in danger of death or great bodily harm, will not justify or excuse the person so assaulted in using a deadly weapon in a deadly manner. The State v. Kennedy, 20 Iowa, 569.

Sections 4112 and 4113 of the code do not change the common law rule in respect to self-defense. Id.

Where a person is assailed in a manner plainly indicating an intention on the part of the assailant to commit a felony, he is not compelled to flee when he cannot do so without manifest danger to his life. The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188; The State v. Tweedy, 6 Id., 314.

It is not sufficient defense to an indictment for a felonious homicide, that the defendant believed, when he committed the homicide, that he was in imminent danger, unless the facts and circumstances were such as to satisfy the jury
CHAPTER 4.

OF SECURITY TO KEEP THE PEACE.

SECTION 4115. Whenever complaint is made before a magistrate, that any person has threatened to commit any public offense punishable by the laws of this state, and such magistrate is satisfied that there is reason to fear the commission of such offense, he may issue a warrant for the arrest of the person complained of; and the officer to whom the same shall be delivered for service shall forthwith arrest and bring the accused before such magistrate; or, in case of his absence or inability to act, before the nearest and most accessible magistrate of the same county. When the name of the person complained of is unknown, he may be designated in the warrant by any name, and the warrant issued in pursuance hereof may be executed by any peace officer in any county of the state; provided, that when issued by a magistrate other than a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit courts, it cannot be served in any county other than that in which it is issued, unless authenticated as is required in case of a warrant of arrest issued on a preliminary information.

that he had reasonable grounds for his belief. Id.

On the trial of an indictment for murder, the court instructed the jury that to sustain the plea of self-defense, the defendant must show that the deceased assaulted him and that the assault was eminently perilous, and the danger to the defendant actual and urgent: Held, that the term actual did not imply that the danger must have existed in fact, but implied danger apparent to the defendant's comprehension, and that it did not vitiate the instruction. The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108.

While it is necessary, in order to justify a homicide on the ground of self-defense, that there should have been actual and urgent danger, it is not necessary that the danger should exist in fact, but if it exists to the defendant's comprehension as a reasonable man, it is sufficient. The State v. Collins, 32 Id., 36; The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108; The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188; The State v. Tweedy, 5 Id., 388; The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154.

A person may lawfully take the life of his assailant, when reasonably necessary to save himself from imminent and great bodily harm. The right of self-defense exists in such cases, the same as where the killing is necessary to save life. The State v. Barker, 30 Id., 331; The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154, 162; The State v. Fraunberg, 40 Id., 555.

Where the assault is only a simple or ordinary non-felonious assault, with the intention simply to whip or chastise the person assaulted, he would not be excusable if he should take the

Nor will a person be excusable in taking the life of another in self-defense, if he sought the deceased for the purpose of provoking a difficulty or bringing on a quarrel. Id. See, also, The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108; The State v. Stanley, 33 Id., 526.

An instruction to the jury as follows: "If however, you find that the defendant inflicted the blow upon the deceased that caused his death, then the burden of proof is upon the defendant to show that he did it in self-defense." was held erroneous, on the ground that in effect it took away from the defendant the benefit of any reasonable doubt, under the facts, as to whether the act was willful. The State v. Porter, 34 Id., 131.

If in an altercation between two persons, one of whom is armed with a club, the other succeeds in wresting it from him, whereupon the latter retreats, the former is justified in pursuing him, if he believes the latter is going for a dangerous weapon, and that he cannot reasonably get out of the way, and he may be justified in taking life; but if he could retreat with safety, without resorting to the slaying of his adversary, then the killing is not justifiable. The State v. Malloy, 44 Id., 104.

Before a person will be justified in pursuing another and taking life on the ground of self-defense, he should at least stand his ground until he sees whether there is reasonable apprehension of danger. Id.

SEC. 4114. Any other person, in aid or defense of the person about to be injured, may make resistance sufficient to prevent the offense.
SEC. 4116. When the person arrested is taken before a magistrate other than the one who issued the warrant, the peace officer who executed the same, and who has charge of the person arrested, must, at the same time, deliver to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, the warrant with his return indorsed and subscribed by him, and the complaint and other affidavits, if any, on which the warrant was issued, must be sent to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, and if they cannot be procured, the complainant and his witnesses, if any, must be subpoenaed, if necessary, by the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, to appear before him and make a new complaint and affidavits.

SEC. 4117. When the person complained of is brought before the magistrate, if the charge be controverted, the magistrate must take testimony in relation thereto. [And a change of venue may be had as in preliminary examinations.] The evidence must be reduced to writing and subscribed by the witness.

SEC. 4118. If it appear that there is no just reason to fear the commission of the offense alleged to have been threatened, the person complained of must be discharged, and the complainant may be ordered to pay the costs of the proceeding if the magistrate regards the complaint as unfounded and frivolous, and, unless when the proceeding is before a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, may issue execution therefor, and when the proceeding is before a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, he shall transmit the complaint, affidavits, warrant, and order, to the clerk of the district court of the county, who shall file the same, make a memorandum thereof in the judgment docket, and issue execution therefor immediately.

SEC. 4119. If there be just reason to fear the commission of the offense the person complained of shall be required to enter into an undertaking in such sum as the magistrate may direct, with one or more sufficient sureties, to abide the order of the district court of the county at the next term thereof, and in the meantime to keep the peace towards the people of this state, and particularly towards the person against whom, or whose property, there is reason to fear the offense may be committed.

SEC. 4120. If the undertaking required by the last section be given, the party complained of must be discharged. If he do not give it, the magistrate must commit him to prison, specifying in the warrant the requirements to give security, the amount thereof, and the omission to give the same.

SEC. 4121. If the person complained of be committed for not giving an undertaking, he may be discharged by a magistrate upon giving the same.

SEC. 4122. The undertaking, together with the complaint, affidavits, if any, and other papers in the proceeding, must be returned by the magistrate to the district court of the county by the first day of the next term thereof.

SEC. 4123. Any person who, in the presence of a court or magistrate, shall assault or threaten to assault another, or to commit an offense against the person or property of another, or contends with another with angry words, may be ordered, without the process, to enter into an undertaking to keep the peace for a period of time not exceeding beyond the next term of the district court of the county as hereinbefore provided, and in case of his omission to comply with said order, he may be committed accordingly.

IN DISTRICT COURT.

Sec. 4124. The district court may, on the conviction of any person for an offense against the person or property of another, when necessary for the public good, require the defendant to enter into an undertaking to keep the peace as hereinbefore provided, and on his omission to do so, may commit him accordingly.

Sec. 4125. A person who has entered into an undertaking to keep the peace, when required by a magistrate as hereinbefore provided, must appear on the first day of the next term of the district court of the county, and if the complainant appear and the person bound by the undertaking does not appear, the court may forfeit his undertaking, and order the same to be prosecuted unless his default be excused.

Sec. 4126. If the principal in the undertaking appear, and the complainant does not appear, or if neither of the parties appear, the court shall enter an order discharging the undertaking; but if both parties appear, the court shall hear their proofs, and may require a new undertaking in such sum as it shall prescribe for a period not exceeding one year; and may commit the defendant until the same be given. Judgment shall be entered against the party holding the undertaking for all the costs of the proceeding; but if it is made to appear to the court that the proceeding was instituted without probable cause, the court may render judgment against the complainant for such costs.

Sec. 4127. An undertaking to keep the peace is broken by the forfeiture of the same, by the court, as hereinbefore provided, or upon the conviction of the party bound by the undertaking of a breach of the peace.

Sec. 4128. Upon the district attorney producing evidence of such conviction to the district court to which the undertaking is returned, the court must order the undertaking to be prosecuted, and the district attorney must, thereat, commence an action upon it.

Sec. 4129. In the action, the offense stated in the record of conviction must be alleged as the breach of the undertaking, and is conclusive evidence thereof.

1 The failure of the prosecuting witness to appear at the district court and further prosecute a defendant who has, upon his complaint, been bound over to keep the peace, does not warrant a judgment against the complainant for the costs that have been incurred. The State v. Holliday, 22 Iowa, 307; The State v. Luthers, 16 Id., 406; Gribble v. The State, 3 Id., 217.

Where a party has been required by a magistrate to enter into bonds to keep the peace and he is discharged from his recognizance by the district court, he is entitled also to be discharged from the payment of costs in that court, but not from the prior costs before the magistrate. Gribble v. The State, 3 Id., 217.

The inquiry in the district court is as to whether there is still any just reason to fear a commission of the offense against the person or property of the complainant. The jurisdiction of the district court is in no sense in the nature of an appeal from the decision of the magistrate. It will be presumed that the magistrate has properly exercised his authority. Id.

In the district court the fullest investigation may be had, and neither party is restricted to the evidence heard before the magistrate. Id.

A party bound over to keep the peace in a preliminary examination before a magistrate upon a complaint of having threatened to commit a public offense was held not a competent witness in his own behalf. The State v. Darlington, 47 Id., 518. But see chapter 163, laws of 1875, section 1.
CHAPTER 5.

OF VAGRANTS.

SECTION 4130. The following persons are vagrants: All persons who tell fortunes, or where lost or stolen goods may be found; all common prostitutes and keepers of bawdy houses or houses for the resort of prostitutes; all habitual drunkards, gamblers, or other disorderly persons; all persons wandering about and having no visible calling or business to maintain themselves; all persons begging in public places, or from house to house, or procuring children so to do; all persons going about as collectors of alms for charitable institutions under any false or fraudulent pretences; all persons playing or betting in any street or public or open place, at, or with any table or instrument of gaming at any game or pretended game of chance.

Sec. 4131. Upon complaint made on oath to any magistrate against any person as being vagrant within his local jurisdiction as defined in this code, he shall issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, and his examination, and the complaint, warrant and arrest shall be governed by the provisions of the last chapter, as nearly as practicable, except as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 4132. All peace officers shall arrest any vagrant whom they may find at large and not in the care of some discreet person, and take him before some magistrate of the county, city or town in which the arrest is made.

Sec. 4133. If the arrests authorized in the last two sections are made during the night, the officer must keep the person arrested in confinement until the next morning, and if arrests are made within the local jurisdiction of a police or city court, the persons arrested must be taken before a justice of such court, unless he be absent.

Sec. 4134. If it appear by the confession of such person, or by competent testimony, that such person is a vagrant, the magistrate before whom he is brought may require of such person an undertaking, with sufficient surety, for good behavior for the term of one year thereafter.

Sec. 4135. The magistrate shall make up, sign, and file with the clerk of the district court of the county, a record of conviction of such person as a vagrant, specifying generally, the nature and circumstances of the charge, and shall, in default of such security being given, by warrant under his hand, commit such vagrant to the county jail of the county, city or town, as the case may be, until such security be found, or such vagrant discharged according to law.

Sec. 4136. The committing of any of the acts which constitute such person so bound a vagrant, shall be deemed a breach of the condition of such undertaking.

Sec. 4137. On a recovery upon any such undertaking, the court before which such recovery may be had, may, in its discretion, either require new sureties for good behavior, or may commit such vagrant to the common jail of the county for any time not exceeding six months.

Sec. 4138. Any person committed to jail for not finding sureties for good behavior, may be discharged by any magistrate upon giving such sureties for good behavior as were originally required of such person.
TRIAL IN DISTRICT COURT.

SEC. 4139. The district court to which the papers are returned, shall, on demand of the defendant, impanel a jury to inquire into and determine the truth of the charge made against him; and the rules and regulations of law governing said court in the trials of misdemeanors shall be applicable to and govern it in the trial herein contemplated.

SEC. 4140. If no jury be demanded, the district court may revise such conviction and discharge such vagrant from the undertaking or confinement absolutely, or upon sureties for good behavior, in its discretion.

SEC. 4141. Such district court may, in its discretion, order any such vagrant to be kept in the common jail for any time not exceeding six months at hard labor.

SEC. 4142. If there be no means in such jail for employing offenders at hard labor, such court may direct the keeper thereof to furnish such employment as it shall specify to such vagrant as may be committed thereto either by a justice or any court, and for that purpose to purchase any necessary raw materials and implements, not exceeding such amount as the court shall prescribe, and to compel such persons to perform such work as shall be allotted to them.

SEC. 4143. The expenses incurred in pursuance of such order shall be audited by the board of supervisors of the county, and paid out of the county treasury.

SEC. 4144. One-half of the net proceeds of such labor shall be paid to the person earning the same, upon his discharge from imprisonment, and the other half shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

(CHAPTER 69, LAWS OF 1876.)

VAGRANTS.

AN ACT to restrain vagrancy and common beggary.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any male person, physically able to perform manual labor, shall be found in a state of vagrancy or practicing common begging, he shall, on conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars, and sentenced to hard labor in the jail of the county, for which they [he] shall receive a credit at the rate of seventy-five cents per day until said fine and cost of prosecution, and accruing costs, shall be paid.

SEC. 2. The board of supervisors of the several counties are hereby authorized to provide for carrying the provisions of the foregoing section into effect, for which purpose they may, by order entered upon their journals, declare that the jail shall extend to and include the lands of the proper county, and every form and kind of labor commonly performed therein by male persons.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers, March 16, 1876.)
CHAPTER 6.

OF RESISTANCE TO PROCESS AND SUPPRESSION OF RIOTS.

Section 4145. When the sheriff or other officer authorized to execute process, finds, or has reason to apprehend, that resistance will be made to the execution thereof, he may command as many male inhabitants of his county as he may think proper, and any military companies in the county, armed and equipped, to assist him in overcoming the resistance, and if necessary, in seizing, arresting, and confining the resisters, and their aiders and abettors, to be punished by law.

Sec. 4146. The officer shall certify to the court from which the process issued, the names of the resisters, and their aiders and abettors, to the end that they may be punished for a contempt.

Sec. 4147. Every person commanded by a public officer to assist him in the execution of process, as provided in section four thousand one hundred and forty-five of this chapter, who, without lawful cause, refuses or neglects to obey such command, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4148. If it appear to the governor that the power of any county is not sufficient to enable the sheriff to execute process delivered to him, he may, on the application of the sheriff, order such posse or military force from any other county or counties as is necessary.

Sec. 4149. When persons to the number of twelve or more, armed with dangerous weapons, or persons to the number of thirty or more, whether armed or not, are unlawfully or riotously assembled in any city or town, the judges, sheriff, and his deputies if they be present, the mayor, aldermen, marshal, constables, and justices of the peace of such city or town, must go among the persons assembled, or as near them as may be safe, and command them, in the name of the state, immediately to disperse.

Sec. 4150. If the persons assembled do not immediately disperse, the magistrates and officers must arrest them, that they may be punished according to law, and for that purpose may command the aid of all persons present or within the county.

Sec. 4151. If any person commanded to aid the magistrate or officer, without good cause neglect to do so, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4152. If a magistrate or officer having notice of an unlawful or riotous assembly as above provided in this chapter, neglect to proceed to the place of assembly, or as near thereto as he can with safety, and to exercise the authority with which he is invested for suppressing the same and arresting the persons, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4153. If the persons so assembled and commanded to disperse, do not immediately disperse, any two of the magistrates or officers before mentioned, may command the aid of a sufficient number of persons, and may proceed in such manner as, in their judgment, is necessary to disperse the assembly and arrest the offenders.

Sec. 4154. When an armed force is called out for the purpose of suppressing an unlawful or riotous assembly, or arresting the offenders, it must obey such orders in relation thereto as have been made by the governor, or by a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, a sheriff, or magistrate, as the case may be.
CHAPTER 7.

OF LOCAL JURISDICTION OF PUBLIC OFFENSES.

SECTION 4155. Every person, whether an inhabitant of this or any other state or country, or of a territory, or district of the United States, is liable to punishment by the laws of this state for a public offense committed by him therein, except where it is cognizable exclusively in the courts of the United States.

SECTION 4156. The local jurisdiction of the district court, is of offenses committed within the county in which it is held, and of such other cases as are, or may be, provided by law.

SECTION 4157. When the commission of a public offense commenced without this state is consummated within the boundaries thereof, the defendant is liable to punishment therefor in this state though he was without the state at the time of the commission of the offense charged; provided, he consummated the offense through the intervention of an innocent or guilty agent within this state, or any other means proceeding directly from himself; and in such case the jurisdiction is in the county in which the offense is consummated.¹

SECTION 4158. When an inhabitant or resident of this state, by previous appointment or engagement, fights a duel, or is concerned as second therein without the jurisdiction of the state, and in such duel a wound is inflicted upon any person whereof he die within this state, the jurisdiction of the offense is in the county where the death may happen.

SECTION 4159. When a public offense is committed in part in one county and part within another, or when the acts or effects constituting, or requisite to the consummation of the offense, occur in two or more counties, jurisdiction is in either county.²

SECTION 4160. When a public offense is committed on the boundary of two or more counties, or within five hundred yards thereof, the jurisdiction is in either county.³

SECTION 4161. When an offense is committed within the jurisdiction of this state on board a boat, raft, or vessel navigating a river, lake, or canal, or lying therein in the prosecution of her voyage, the jurisdiction is in any county through which the boat, raft, or vessel is navigated in the course of her voyage, or in the county where the voyage shall terminate.

¹ The stealing of property in another state and bringing it into this state is not the commencement of an offense in another state and its consummation in this, within the meaning of this section. The State v. Bennett, 14 Iowa, 479.

² When stolen property is brought into this state, the crime of larceny is completed in any county into which the property is brought by the thief, and he may be therein indicted and convicted. Id.

Where jurisdiction is taken under this section and the case tried in a county other than the one in which the offense was committed, it is not entitled to recover the costs of the prosecution from such county under section 3841 of the code. Floyd County v. Cerro Gordo County, 47 Id., 199.
Sec. 4162. The jurisdiction of an indictment for the crime of forcibly, and without lawful authority seizing and confining another, or kidnapping him with intent, against his will, to cause him to be confined or imprisoned within the state, or to be sent out of the state; or of taking or enticing away a child under the age of twelve years from the parents, guardian, or other person having the legal charge of the person, with the intent to detain or conceal such child; or of taking or enticing away an unmarried female of previously chaste character under the age of fifteen years, for the purpose of prostitution; or of taking any woman unlawfully and against her will, or by force, menace, or duress, compelling her to marry against her will; or of seducing and debauching any unmarried woman of previously chaste character, is in any county in which the offense is committed, or into or out of which the person upon whom the offense was committed may, in the prosecution of the offense, have been brought, or in which an act is done by the offender in instigating, procuring, promoting, aiding in, or being an accessory to the commission of the offense, or in abetting the parties concerned therein.

Sec. 4163. When the offense of bigamy is committed in one county, and the defendant is apprehended in another, the jurisdiction is in either county.

Sec. 4164. When the offense is within the jurisdiction of two or more counties, a conviction or acquittal thereof in one county is a bar to prosecution or indictment thereof in another.

CHAPTER 8.

THE TIME OF COMMENCING CRIMINAL ACTIONS.

Section 4165. A prosecution for murder may be commenced at any time after the death of the person killed.

Sec. 4166. An indictment for a public offense must be found within eighteen months after the commission thereof, in the following cases, and not after:

1. Taking or enticing away an unmarried female, under the age of fifteen years, for the purpose of marriage or prostitution;
2. Seducing or debauching an unmarried female, of previously chaste character;
3. For rape and adultery;
4. For an assault with intent to commit a rape.

Sec. 4167. In all other cases an indictment for public offense must be found within three years after the commission thereof, and not afterwards.

Sec. 4168. A prosecution for a misdemeanor, triable before a justice of the peace, must be commenced within one year after the commission thereof, and not after.

* The statute of limitations cannot be properly pleaded so that the state may have an opportunity to reply. The State v. Hussey, 7 Iowa, 409.
Sec. 4169. If, when the offense is committed, the defendant is out of the state, the indictment or prosecution may be found or commenced within the time herein limited after his coming into the state, and no period during which the party charged was not usually and publicly resident within the state is a part of the limitation.

Sec. 4170. An indictment is found within the meaning of this chapter, when it is duly presented by the grand jury in open court and there received and filed.

CHAPTER 9.

OF FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE.

Section 4171. The governor of the state may, in any case authorized by the constitution and laws of the United States, appoint agents to demand of the executive authority of any other state or territory, or from the executive authority of any foreign government any fugitive from justice charged with treason or felony, and the accounts of the agents appointed for that purpose must be audited by the auditor of state and paid out of the state treasury.

The expenses to be allowed agents for returning fugitives from justice, shall be the fees paid the officers of the state upon whose governor the requisition is made; and the agent shall receive not exceeding ten cents per mile, each way, for all necessary travel of himself and for each fugitive, five cents per mile additional for the number of miles which such fugitive shall have been conveyed.

Bills for such expenses shall be made out in such manner as to show the actual rout traveled, and the number of miles, and be verified by affidavit, and be accompanied by proof that the fugitive for whom requisition was made has been returned and delivered into the custody of the proper authority; provided, that the state shall, in no case, pay the costs of returning the fugitive where he has not been tried, unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the governor that the want of trial has not been owing to any fault or neglect on the part of the person or persons interested in the prosecution.

Sec. 4172. No compensation, fee, or reward of any kind, can be paid to, or received by, a public officer of this state for a service rendered or expense incurred in procuring from the governor the demand mentioned in the last section, or the surrender of the fugitive, or for conveying him to this state, or detaining him therein, except as provided by law.

Sec. 4173. A violation of the last section is a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4174. No executive warrant for the arrest and surrender of any person demanded by the executive authority of any other state or territory, as a fugitive from the justice of such state or territory, and no requisition upon the executive authority of any other state or territory, for the surrender of any person as a fugitive from the justice of this state, shall be issued, unless the requisition from the executive authority of such other state or territory, or the application for such requisition upon the executive authority of such other state or territory shall be accompanied by sworn evidence that the party charged is
Sec. 4175. Whenever a demand is made upon the governor of this state by the executive of any other state or territory, in any case authorized by the constitution and laws of the United States, for the delivery of any person charged in such state or territory with any crime, if such person is not held in custody or under bail to answer for any offense against the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall issue his warrant under the seal of the state authorizing the agent who makes such demand, either forthwith or at such time as may be designated in the warrant, to take and transport such person to the line of this state at the expense of such agent, and may also by such warrant require all peace officers to afford all needful assistance in the execution thereof.

EXAMINATION BY MAGISTRATE.

Sec. 4176. If any person be found in this state charged with any crime committed in any other state or territory, and liable by the constitution and laws of the United States to be delivered over upon the demand of the governor thereof, any magistrate may, upon complaint on oath setting forth the offense and such other matters as are necessary to bring the case within the provisions of law, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person.

Sec. 4177. If, upon examination, it appear that there is reasonable cause to believe the complaint true, and that such person may be lawfully demanded of the governor, he shall, if not charged with murder, be required to enter into an undertaking, with sufficient surety in a reasonable sum, to appear before such magistrate at a future day, allowing reasonable time to obtain the warrant from the governor, and abide the order of such magistrate in the premises.

Sec. 4178. If such person does not give bail, or if he is charged with the crime of murder, he must be committed to prison, and there detained until such day in like manner as if the offense charged had been committed within this state.

*A citizen and resident of Iowa who is charged with having been constructively guilty of an offense in another state, upon which a requisition is based, but who never in fact has fled therefrom, is not a fugitive from justice within the meaning of the constitution. Jones et al. v. Leonard, 50 Iowa, 106.

The determination of the governor that the sworn evidence accompanying the requisition is sufficient to establish the facts upon which the requisition is based, is not conclusive of the matters therein set forth. Id.

A person arrested in this state, under section 4176 of the code, charged before a magistrate with the crime of murder in the second degree, committed in another state, is upon an adjournment of the examination entitled to bail for his appearance before the magistrate on the day to which the case is adjourned; and in case of his failure to appear at that time according to the terms of his recognizance, the same may be declared forfeited, and an action maintained thereon against the bail. The State v. Hufford, 23 Iowa, 579.

This chapter contemplates that a charge of the crime against the person to be arrested and delivered up must be made in the state where the crime was committed, in the form of an indictment, information or accusation known to the law of such state, before some court or officer thereof. The State v. Hufford, 23 Iowa, 391.

Unless a charge is thus made in the state from which the defendant is an alleged fugitive, a magistrate of this state has no jurisdiction under the statute to hold him to bail, and a bond given by the accused, in such case, is invalid, and though voluntarily executed does not estop the defendant from urging want of jurisdiction in the magistrate. Id.
SEC. 4179. A failure of such person to attend before the magistrate at the time and place mentioned in the undertaking, is a forfeiture thereof.

SEC. 4180. If such person appear before the magistrate upon the day ordered, he must be discharged unless he is demanded by some person authorized by the warrant of the governor to receive him, or unless the magistrate see good cause to commit him or to require him to enter into a new undertaking for his appearance at some other day to await a warrant from the governor.

SEC. 4181. Whether the person so charged be bound to appear, be committed, or discharged, any person authorized by the warrant of the governor may at any time take him into custody, and the same is a discharge of the undertaking, if there be one.

SEC. 4182. The complainant in any such case is answerable for all the costs and charges, and for the support in prison of any person so committed, and the magistrate before issuing his warrant or hearing the cause, must require the complainant to give security for the payment of all such costs, or may require them in advance.

SEC. 4183. Upon the appointment of any agent for the arrest of a fugitive from justice under the provisions of this chapter, the governor is hereby authorized to make it a condition upon such appointment, and the issue of the writ, that the same shall be executed without expense to the state, if in his opinion justice and equity so require.

SEC. 4184. When, in the opinion of the governor, expenses incurred in the arrest of fugitives from justice should be paid by the state, such expenses shall be made out by items in detail, and sworn to, and approved by him and at least two other members of the executive council, and when so approved shall be audited and paid out of the general revenue of the state, and this section shall be sufficient authority for the payment of the same.

CHAPTER 10.

OF WARRANTS OF ARREST ON PRELIMINARY INFORMATION.

SECTION 4185. When complaint is made before a magistrate of the commission of some designated public offense; triable on indictment in the county in which such magistrate has local jurisdiction, and charging some person with the commission thereof, he may issue a warrant for the arrest of such person. The complaint may be in form substantially the same as provided in section four thousand six hundred and sixty-three of chapter fifty-two of this title.

SEC. 4186. The warrant of arrest on a preliminary information, must be substantially in the following form:

COUNTY OF .........

Sec. 4187. The warrant must specify the name of the defendant, and if it be unknown to the magistrate, may designate him by any name. It must also state, by name or general description, an offense which authorizes the magistrate to issue the warrant, the time of issuing it, and the county, city, town, township or village where it was issued, and must be signed by the magistrate with his name of office.

Sec. 4188. It must be directed to "any peace officer in the state."

Sec. 4189. If the offense stated in the warrant be a misdemeanor, the magistrate issuing it must make an indorsement on the warrant as follows: "Let the defendant, when arrested, be admitted to bail in the sum of .... dollars, if he desires to give bail," and fix in the indorsement the amount in which bail may be taken.

Sec. 4190. The warrant of arrest may be delivered to any peace officer for execution, and executed in any county in the state.

Sec. 4191. If the offense stated in the warrant be a felony, the officer making the arrest must take the defendant before the magistrate who issued it at the place mentioned in the command thereof, or, in the event of his absence or inability to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which it was issued.

Sec. 4192. If the offense stated in the warrant be a misdemeanor, and the defendant be arrested in another county, the officer must, upon being required by the defendant, take him before a magistrate or clerk of the district court of the same county in which he was arrested, for the purpose of giving bail, and the magistrate or clerk before whom he is taken in such county, must take bail from him accordingly for his appearance at the district court of the county in which the warrant was issued, on the first day of the next term thereof.

Sec. 4193. On taking bail in the case provided for in the preceding section, the magistrate or clerk taking such bail must make on the warrant an order, signed by him with his name of office, for the discharge of the defendant, substantially as follows:

County of (here name the county),
The State of Iowa.

To (here state the name of the officer who has the defendant in custody, with the addition of his name of office thus, A. B. sheriff of .... county, according to the truth).

The defendant named in the warrant of arrest in your custody, under the authority thereof, for the offense therein designated, having given sufficient bail to answer the same, by the undertaking herewith delivered to you, you are commanded forthwith to discharge him from custody, and without unnecessary delay deliver this order, together with the said undertaking of bail, to the clerk of the district court of .... county, on or before the first day of the next term thereof.

Dated at ...., this .... day of ...., A. D., (or as the case may be).

............ ........., Justice of the Peace,
(or as the case may be).

And must deliver the warrant with the order thereon, together with the undertaking of bail, to the officer having the defendant in custody, who shall forthwith discharge the defendant from arrest and without unnecessary delay, and on or before the first day of the next term of the court at which the defendant is required to appear, deliver or transmit by mail or otherwise the warrant with the order thereon, together with the undertaking or bail, to the clerk of the court at which the defendant is required to appear, who shall forthwith file the same in his office; and the magistrate who issued the warrant shall return to the clerk the affidavits of the informant, and his witnesses upon which the warrant was issued, on or before the first day of the next term of the court, and the clerk shall, when the affidavits are returned by the magistrate, file the same in his office, with the warrant and undertaking of bail.

SEC. 4194. If bail be not forthwith given by the defendant as provided in the two preceding sections, the magistrate or clerk must deliver to the officer the warrant, and the officer must take the defendant before the magistrate who issued it, at the place mentioned in the command thereof, or, if he be absent or unable to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which the warrant was issued.

SEC. 4195. In all cases when the defendant is arrested, he must be taken before the magistrate or clerk without unnecessary delay, and the officer must at the same time deliver to the magistrate or clerk the warrant, with his return thereon, indorsed and subscribed by him in his name of office.

SEC. 4196. If the defendant be taken before a magistrate in the county in which the warrant was issued, other than the magistrate who issued it as hereinbefore provided, the affidavits on which the warrant was issued must be sent to such magistrate, or if they cannot be procured, the informant and his witnesses must be subpoenaed to make new affidavits.

CHAPTER 11.

When an arrest is made without a warrant, whether by a peace officer or a private person, the person arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which the arrest is made; and the grounds on which the arrest was made shall be stated to the magistrate by affidavit, subscribed and sworn to by the person making the statement before the magistrate, in the same manner as upon a preliminary information, as nearly as may be.

HEARING BEFORE MAGISTRATE.

SEC. 4219. If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in the county in which the arrest was made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, as the case may require, and that it will not be inconvenient for the witnesses on the part of the state that such trial or preliminary examination should be had before him, he shall proceed as if the person arrested had been brought before him on arrest under a warrant, and if the case be one within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against him.

SEC. 4220. If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in the county in which the arrest is made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, and that it will be more convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state that such trial or examination should be had before some other magistrate, he shall, by a written order by him signed with his name of office, commit the person arrested to a peace officer, to be by him taken before such magistrate in the same county who has jurisdiction to try or examine the charge as the case may require, and as shall be convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state, and deliver the affidavit and the order of commitment to the peace officer, who shall proceed with the person arrested as directed by the order; and such magistrate, when the person arrested is brought before him, shall proceed as on an arrest under a warrant, and, if the case be within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against the person arrested.

SEC. 4221. If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in a county different from that in which the arrest is made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, he shall, by a written order by him signed with his name of office, commit the person arrested to a peace officer, to be by him taken before a magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, who has jurisdiction to make either preliminary examination into the charges, or try and determine the same, as the case may require, and, if the offense be a misdemeanor only triable on indictment, shall fix in the order the amount of bail which the person arrested may give for his appearance at the district court of the county in which the offense is indictable, on the first day of the next term thereof, to answer an indictment.

SEC. 4222. If bail be given as provided in the preceding section, it may be either before the magistrate making the order, or the magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable before whom he is taken under the order, or a magistrate of any county through which he passes in going from the county in which the arrest was made to that in which the offense is triable, or the clerk of the district court of either of said counties; and, when given, the magistrate or clerk taking the same shall make on the order of commitment an order for the discharge of the person arrested from custody, who shall forthwith be discharged accordingly, and to transmit by mail, or otherwise, to the clerk of the district court of the county at which the person arrested is bound to appear, on or before the first day of the next term thereof, and as soon as it can be conveniently done after taking the bail, the affidavits, the order of commitment and discharge, together with the undertaking of the bail, who shall file the same together in his office.

SEC. 4223. If bail be not given as provided in the last two sections, before the magistrate in the county in which the arrest was made, or if the offense charged is a felony, or a misdemeanor, triable on information, the magistrate must deliver the affidavits and the order of commitment to a peace officer, who shall proceed with the person arrested as directed by the order, or provided by law; and the magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, when the person arrested is brought before him, shall proceed as on an arrest under a warrant, and if the case be within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against the person arrested.

SEC. 4224. In the cases contemplated in the last three sections, the officer having the person arrested in custody, under the order, shall take him before the proper magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, which is most convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state, unless, in case of a misdemeanor triable on indictment as hereinbefore provided, the person arrested desires to give bail, in which case he shall take him before the most convenient magistrate in the county in which the offense with which he is charged is triable, or any county through which he passes in going from the county in which the arrest was made to the county in which the offense is triable, or before the clerk of the district court of either of said counties for the purpose of giving bail.

Sec. 4225. In all cases, the peace officer, when he takes a person committed to him under an order as provided in this chapter before a magistrate, or clerk of the district court, either for the purpose of giving bail, if bail be taken, or for trial or preliminary examination, must make his return on such order, and sign such return with his name of office, and deliver the same to the magistrate or clerk.

CHAPTER 12.
OF PRELIMINARY EXAMINATIONS.

Section 4226. When the defendant is brought before the magistrate on arrest, either with or without a warrant, the magistrate must immediately inform him of the offense with which he is charged, and of his right to the aid of counsel in every stage of the proceedings.

Sec. 4227. The magistrate must allow the defendant a reasonable time to send for counsel, and, if necessary, must adjourn the examination for that purpose.

Sec. 4228. The magistrate, immediately after the appearance of counsel, or, if the defendant require the aid of counsel, after waiting a reasonable time therefor, must proceed to examine the case; provided, however, that before said examination is commenced, said defendant may have a change of venue upon filing an affidavit that the magistrate is prejudiced against him, is a material witness for either party, or that the defendant cannot obtain justice before him, as affiant verily believes. On filing of such affidavit a change of venue must be allowed, and the magistrate must immediately transmit all original papers, and a transcript of the record entire in the case, to the next nearest magistrate in the township against whom no objection exists, if there be any; if not, to the next nearest magistrate in the county against whom no such objections in the opinion of the justice exists, who shall proceed with said examination as hereinafter provided. Only one such change of venue shall be allowed.

Sec. 4229. The examination must be terminated at one session unless the magistrate, for good cause shown, adjourn it.

Sec. 4230. No examination can be adjourned for a longer period than thirty days.

Sec. 4231. If an adjournment be had for any cause, the magistrate shall commit the defendant for examination, or require him to give ample security for his appearance at the time and place to which the examination is adjourned.

Sec. 4232. If there is no jail in the county, the sheriff must retain the defendant in his custody until the examination.

SEC. 4233. The magistrate must issue subpoenas for any witnesses required either by the state or by the defendant, and the witnesses who appear at the examination must be examined in the presence of the defendant.

SEC. 4234. The deposition of a witness who resides out of the county in which the examination is had, may be taken, on application of the defendant on the order of the magistrate, before any officer authorized to take depositions in civil cases; which order shall not be made until three days after the filing with the magistrate of the written interrogatories to be propounded to the witness; nor until three days after the service of notice on the state, or on the attorney who appears for the state, of the filing of such interrogatories.

SEC. 4235. Before the order to take the deposition is made, the state may file cross-interrogatories to be propounded to the witness, which shall be answered by him in the deposition.

SEC. 4236. At the expiration of three days from the filing of the interrogatories, and the service of the notice thereof on the state as above provided, the magistrate may order the testimony of the witness to be taken in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, if any, on file; and the deposition thus taken may be read as evidence on the examination; nor shall the same be excluded because of any irregularity in the taking of it, if the magistrate is satisfied that the irregularity complained of could work no substantial prejudice to the opposite party.

(Section 4237 repealed by section 2, chapter 163, of the laws of 1878.)

SEC. 4238. When the defendant testifies in his own behalf, he shall be subject to a cross-examination as an ordinary witness; provided, that, in the cross-examination, the state shall be strictly confined to the matters testified to in the examination in chief.

TRIAL.

SEC. 4239. While a witness is under examination before the magistrate, he may exclude all others who have not been examined. He may also cause the witnesses to be kept separate, that they may not converse with each other until they are all examined.

SEC. 4240. The magistrate must also, upon the request of the defendant, exclude from hearing the examination all persons except the magistrate, his clerk, the peace officer who has the custody of the defendant, the attorney or attorneys representing the state, and the defendant and his counsel.

SEC. 4241. The magistrate shall, in the minutes of the examination, write out, or cause to be written out, the substance of the testimony given on the examination by each witness examined before him, showing the name of the witness, his place of residence, and his business or profession, and the amount to which each witness is entitled for mileage and attendance. The minutes of the testimony taken by the justice upon a preliminary examination, as prescribed in the statute are not conclusive when introduced by the defendant on his trial in the district court, as to what the witnesses testified to upon such examination. The State v. Hull, 26 Iowa, 292.

The minutes of evidence taken by a magistrate on a preliminary examination, or before a grand jury, are not admissible upon the trial of an indictment, for the purpose of impeaching a witness. The State v. Hayden, 47 Id., 11.

If the magistrate shall cause the testimony of the witnesses to be reduced to writing, he does it for his own convenience, and the county is not chargeable therefor. Sanford v. Lee County, 49 Id., 148.
Sec. 4242. After the examination is closed, the magistrate must attach together the complaint, the warrant or order of commitment, if any, under which the defendant was brought before him, the minutes of the examination, including all depositions on file with him and used in the examination, and annex thereto his certificate, which must set forth in substance the time and place of examination, and that the minutes thereof are true, and the certificate must be signed by the magistrate, with his name of office.

Sec. 4243. If, after hearing the testimony, it appear to the magistrate, either that a public offense has not been committed, or that there is no sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, he must order the defendant to be discharged; and such order must be indorsed on the minutes of the examination or annexed thereto and signed by the magistrate, to the following effect: “There being no sufficient cause for believing the defendant guilty of the offense herein mentioned, or of any other offense, I order him to be discharged.”

Sec. 4244. If it appears from the examination that a public offense triable on indictment has been committed, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, the magistrate shall in like manner indorse on or annex to the minutes of the examination, an order signed by him to the following effect: “It appearing to me by the within minutes that the offense therein mentioned, or any other offense triable on indictment, according to the fact, stating generally the nature thereof, has been committed, and there is sufficient cause for believing the defendant guilty thereof, I order that he be held to answer the same.”

BAIL.

Sec. 4245. If bail be taken by the magistrate, the following words in substance must be added to the order mentioned in the preceding section, “and I have admitted him to bail to answer thereto by the undertaking hereto annexed,” and the undertaking of bail must be annexed thereto.¹

Sec. 4246. If bail be not given by the defendant, then the magistrate must add to the order mentioned in section forty-two hundred and forty-four the following words in substance: “and that he be admitted to bail in the sum of (here state the amount), and that he be committed to the jail of the county of (here name the county) until he give such bail.”

Sec. 4247. If the magistrate order the defendant to be committed, he shall make out a warrant of commitment, signed by him with his name of office, and deliver it with the defendant to the officer to whom he is committed, or, if the officer be not present, to a peace officer who shall deliver the defendant into the proper custody, together with the warrant of commitment, which warrant may be in form following:

¹ When a defendant is accused of a capital offense he may be admitted to bail by the examining magistrate, when the evidence is slight, or tends to show that it was committed under mitigating circumstances and would not be punished with death. The State v. Kingman, 14 Iowa, 404; The State v. Hufford e. al., 23 Id., 579.

Where a defendant is charged with a felony with a preliminary information before a magistrate, is arrested in another county, he is not entitled to be taken before a magistrate thereof for the purpose of giving bail. The State v. Cannon et al., 34 Id., 352.
1002 PRELIMINARY EXAMINATIONS. [TITLE XXV.

"THE STATE OF IOWA:
To the sheriff of ........ county.
An order having been this day made by me, that A ....... B ......., (the name of the defendant) be held to answer upon a charge of (state the offense) you are commanded to receive him into your custody and detain him in the jail of the county until he be legally discharged.
Dated ........ this ........ day of ........, A. D. .......

SEC. 4248. On holding the defendant to answer, the magistrate must take from each material witness examined by him on the part of the state, a written undertaking, to the effect that he will appear and testify at the court to which the defendant is bound to answer [when required in the further progress of the cause; and that he will not evade or attempt to evade the service of a subpoena], or that he will forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4249. Whenever the magistrate is satisfied by oath, or otherwise, that there is reason to believe that any such witness will not fulfill his undertaking and appear and testify unless surety be required, he may order the witness to enter into a written undertaking with sureties, and in such sum as he may deem proper for his appearance.

SEC. 4250. Minors and married women who are material witnesses against the defendant, may, in like manner, be required to procure sureties for their appearance as provided in the preceding section.

SEC. 4251. If a witness, required to enter into an undertaking to appear and testify, either with or without sureties, refuse compliance with the order for that purpose, the magistrate must commit him until he comply or be legally discharged.

SEC. 4252. When a magistrate has discharged a defendant, or held him to answer an indictment, he must return to the district court of the county, on or before its opening, on the first day of the next term thereof, and as soon after the closing of the examination as practicable, all the papers mentioned in section four thousand two hundred and forty-two of this chapter, together with the undertaking of bail for the appearance of the defendant, and the undertakings of the witnesses, or for them, taken by him.

SEC. 4253. If it appear from the examination that a public offense has been committed which is not triable on indictment, but on information only, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, the magistrate shall retain all the papers, and forthwith order an information to be filed against the defendant, before him. If he have not jurisdiction to try and determine the same, he shall indorse on, or annex to, the minutes of the examination an order, signed by him to the following effect: "It appearing to me by the within minutes that the offense of (here state its name, or nature generally) has been committed, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, I order that an information be filed against him therefor (here name some magistrate who is the nearest and most accessible in the same county, and who has jurisdiction, giving the name of office), and that the defendant be committed to any peace officer to be taken before such magistrate." And the magistrate shall thereupon cause each material witness on the part of the state to enter into a written undertaking, to the effect that he will appear forthwith before the magistrate before whom the defendant is to be taken, or that he will forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, and deliver the undertaking, with all the other papers, to... a peace officer, who shall forthwith proceed as directed by the order, and take the defendant before such magistrate, and deliver all the papers with the undertakings of the witnesses to the magistrate directed in the order, and make his return thereto, and sign the same with his name of office, and the magistrate before whom he is taken shall thereupon proceed accordingly.

Sec. 4254. When the defendant is discharged, the justice shall, if he is satisfied that the prosecution is malicious or without probable cause, tax the costs against the complainant and render judgment therefor; but the person against whom such judgment is rendered may appeal in the same manner, and with the same effect, as is provided for a prosecuting witness in section four thousand six hundred and [ninety-one] of this code. [Otherwise the costs shall be taxed against the state.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF SELECTING, DRAWING, SUMMONING AND EMPANELING OF THE GRAND JURY.

Section 4255. The selecting, drawing and summoning of the grand jury is as prescribed in the code of civil practice.

Sec. 4256. At a term of court at which grand jurors are required to appear, the panel shall be called, and the names of the grand jurors who shall appear shall be entered on the record. If fifteen grand jurors do not appear, or if the number appearing be reduced from any cause, either then or afterward, to less than fifteen, the court may order the sheriff of the county to summon a sufficient number of qualified persons to complete the panel.

Sec. 4257. Persons summoned by the sheriff to supply a deficiency in the requisite number of grand jurors, serve only during the term at which they are summoned.

Sec. 4258. A defendant held to answer to a public offense, may challenge the panel of the grand jury, and the state or defendant may challenge an individual juror.

Sec. 4259. A challenge to an individual juror may be made by the state, for one or more of the following causes:
1. That he is related either by affinity or consanguinity nearer than in the fifth degree, or stands in the relation of agent, clerk, servant or employe to any person held to answer for a public offense whose case may come before the grand jury;
2. That he is bail for any one held to answer for a public offense, whose case may come before the grand jury;
3. That he is defendant in a prosecution similar to any prosecution to be examined by the grand jury;
4. That he is, or within one year preceding has been, engaged or interested in carrying on any business, calling or employment, the sheriff to fill the panel by summoning a sufficient number of qualified persons for that purpose, The State v. Garhart, 35 Iowa, 315.

carrying on of which is a violation of law, and for which the juror may be indicted by the grand jury. 5

Sec. 4260. A challenge to the panel can be interposed only for the reason that they were not appointed, drawn or summoned as prescribed by law.

Sec. 4261. A challenge to an individual juror by the defendant, may be made for one or more of the following causes only:
1. That he is a minor, insane or not competent by law to serve as such juror;
2. That he is a prosecutor upon a charge against the defendant;
3. Having formed or expressed such an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner as would prevent him from rendering a true verdict upon the evidence submitted on the trial.6

Sec. 4262. Challenges to the panel or to an individual juror, must be decided by the court.

Sec. 4263. If a challenge to the panel be allowed, the grand jury is prohibited from inquiring into the charge against the defendant by whom it was interposed. If the jury does so and finds an indictment the court must set it aside.

Sec. 4264. If a challenge to an individual juror be allowed, he shall not be present at, or take any part in, the consideration of the charge against the defendant.

Sec. 4265. The grand jury must inform the court of a violation of the last section, that it may be punished as a contempt.

Sec. 4266. When several persons are held to answer for one and the same offense, no challenge to the panel can be made unless they all join in such challenge, nor can any objection be interposed by a defendant to the grand jury or to any individual juror for any cause of challenge after they are sworn.

Sec. 4267. From the persons summoned to serve as grand jurors, the court must appoint a foreman; the court must also appoint a foreman when the person already appointed is discharged, excused or from any cause becomes unable to act before the grand jury is finally discharged.4

Sec. 4268. The following oath must be administered to the foreman of the grand jury: “You, as foreman of the grand jury, shall diligently inquire and true presentment make of all public offenses against the people of this state, committed or triable within this county,

A judgment against a defendant on an indictment for a public offense will not be reversed on the ground that one of the names on the list of grand jurors, as drawn, does not appear upon the list returned by the judges of the election for that year, when it is not shown but that the proper steps were taken by the court below to correct this error, and thus have em-

This objection should be taken by challenge to the panel of the grand jury, and not by demurrer to the indictment. Id.

• That a grand juror was not a citizen of the United States, and, therefore, not qualified to act as such, is not ground for setting aside an indictment of a defendant who was held to answer before the finding of the indictment. through fear, favor, or affection, or for any reward, or the promise or hope thereof, but in all your presentments, you shall present the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, according to the best of your skill and understanding. So help you God."

Sec. 4269. The following oath must thereupon be administered to the other grand jurors present: "The same oath which your foreman has now taken before you on his part, you and each of you shall well and truly observe on your part. So help you God."

Sec. 4270. The grand jury being impaneled and sworn, may be charged by the court. In doing so, the court shall give them such information as it may deem proper as to the nature of their duties, and any charges for public offenses returned to the court or likely to come before the grand jury. And it is hereby made the duty of the court to specially give in charge to the grand jury, the provisions of law regulating the accounting by public officers for fines and fees collected by them, and providing for the suppression of intemperance.

Sec. 4271. The grand jury on the completion of its business shall be discharged by the court. But whether its business be completed or not, it is discharged by the final adjournment thereof.

CHAPTER 14.

OF THE POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE GRAND JURY.

Section 4272. The grand jury has power, and it is made its duty. to inquire into all indictable offenses committed, or which may be tried, within the county and present them to the court by indictment.

Sec. 4273. The indictment must in all cases be found only upon evidence given by witnesses produced, sworn and examined before the grand jury, or furnished by legal documentary evidence, (or upon the minutes of the evidence given by witnesses before a committing magistrate.)

Sec. 4274. The grand jury has power, by its foreman, to administer the oath to all witnesses produced and examined before it.

Sec. 4275. It is the duty of the grand jury to appoint one of its number, who is not foreman, clerk thereof, who must take and preserve the minutes of the proceedings and of the evidence given before it, except the votes of the individual members thereof on finding an indictment.

The grand jury is endowed by law with the power and charged with the duty of inquiring into all indictable offenses committed or which may be tried within the county. Per Dillon, Ch. J., in The State v. Schill, 27 Iowa, on page 268.

The statute expressly enjoins upon each member of the grand jury, the duty to keep secret its proceedings; this includes, of course, the votes taken on the question of finding an indictment, and, as respects the votes of the indicidual members of the grand jury, the clerk of the grand jury is prohibited from recording them. Per Miller, Ch. J., in The State v.
Gibbs, 39 Iowa, on page 322.

The minutes of the evidence given before the grand jury, or of that submitted upon preliminary examination, are not admissible on the trial for the purpose of impeaching a witness.
The State v. Hayden, 45 Ia., 11.
SEC. 4276. The grand jury is not bound to hear evidence for the defendant, but it is its duty to weigh all the evidence submitted to it, and when it has reason to believe that other evidence within its reach will explain away the charge, it may order such evidence to be produced.

SEC. 4277. If a member of the grand jury knows, or has reason to believe that a public offense has been committed, triable in the county, he must declare the same to his fellow jurors, and be sworn as a witness upon the investigation before them.

SEC. 4278. It is made the special duty of the grand jury to inquire:
1. Into the case of every person imprisoned in the jail of the county on a criminal charge and not indicted;
2. Into the condition and management of the public prisons within the county;
3. Into the willful and corrupt misconduct in office of all county officers;
4. Into the obstruction of highways.

SEC. 4279. The clerk of the court must, whenever required by the foreman of the grand jury or district attorney, issue subpoenas for witnesses to appear before the grand jury.

SEC. 4280. The jury is entitled to free access at all reasonable times to the county jails, and to the examination without charge, of all public records within the county.

SEC. 4281. The grand jury may, at all reasonable times, ask the advice of the district attorney, or the court; and the district attorney may attend before it for the purpose of examining witnesses when the grand jury deems it necessary.

SEC. 4282. Such attorney shall be allowed at all times to appear before the grand jury on his own request, for the purpose of giving information relative to any matter cognizable by it; but no such attorney, nor any other officer or person, except the grand jury, must be present when the question is taken upon the finding of an indictment.

SEC. 4283. The grand jury should find an indictment when all the evidence before it, taken together, is such as in its own judgment would, if unexplained, warrant a conviction by the trial jury. When the evidence is not such, it should not.

SEC. 4284. Every member of the grand jury must keep secret the proceedings of that body and the testimony given before them, except as hereinafter required. Nor shall any grand juror or officer of the court disclose the fact that an indictment for a felony has been found against any person not in custody or under bail, otherwise than by presenting the same in court, or issuing or executing process thereon, until such person has been arrested. A violation of this section is a misdemeanor.

* The mere presence of a bailiff of a court, in attendance on the grand jury, during the investigation by them of a criminal charge, is not a sufficient ground of objection to the indictment, if he were not present when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment. But if it were, the objection should be made by motion to set aside the indictment, and not by motion for a new trial after verdict. The State v. Kimball, 29 Iowa, 267.

No person, except the members of the grand jury, are allowed to be present when the vote is taken upon finding an indictment. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318, 322.

* See The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 318, 322, cited in notes to sections 4279 and 4282, ante.
Sec. 4285. A member of the grand jury may be required by the court to disclose the testimony of a witness examined before them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is consistent with that given by the witness before court, or to disclose the testimony given before them by any witness upon a charge against him of perjury. 1

Sec. 4286. No grand juror shall be questioned for anything he may say, or any vote he may give, in the grand jury relative to a matter legally pending before them, except for perjury of which he may have been guilty in making an accusation, or in giving testimony to his fellow jurors. 1

Sec. 4287. When a witness under examination before the grand jury, refuses to testify or to answer a question put to him by the grand jury, the grand jury shall proceed with the witness into the presence of the court, and the foreman shall then distinctly state to the court the refusal of the witness, and, if the court, upon hearing the witness, shall decide that he is bound to testify, or answer the question propounded, he shall inquire of the witness if he persists in his refusal, and if he does, shall proceed with him as in cases of similar refusal in open court.

Sec. 4288. If a witness fail to attend before the grand jury, in obedience to a subpoena issued for that purpose and duly served, the court shall, upon the application of the district attorney, or foreman of the grand jury, proceed and coerce the attendance of the witness, and may punish his disobedience as in the case of a witness failing to attend on the trial.

Sec. 4289. [All the papers and other matters of evidence relating to the arrest and preliminary examination of the charge against defendants who have been held to answer, returned to the court by magistrate, shall be laid before the grand jury, and shall be competent evidence upon which an indictment may be found, if the grand jury are [is] satisfied that such evidence alone, or with other evidence, if unexplained, would warrant a conviction by the trial jury, and the grand jury need not have before them for examination any witness who was examined before the committing magistrate, and a minute of whose evidence has been returned by said magistrate, unless requested by the district attorney. And if indictment is found in whole or in part upon the minutes of evidence taken before a committing magistrate, the clerk of the grand jury shall write out a brief minute of the substance of such evidence and the same shall be returned to the court with the indictment. If upon investigation, the grand jury refuses to find an indictment it shall return all of said papers to the court, with an indorsement thereon, signed by the foreman, to the effect that the charge is dismissed, and thereupon the court must order the discharge of the defendant from custody, if in jail, or the exoneration of 1 Perjury may be committed by a witness in willfully giving false testimony of a material character before a grand jury. The State v. Schill, 27 Iowa, 263, 268.

Grand jurors may be called as witnesses to impeach the testimony of a witness given before the court, by showing that he testified differently before the grand jury, but the minutes of the evidence kept by the clerk of the grand jury are not competent for that purpose. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11, 15.

1 A grand jury has no authority to present to the court otherwise than by indictment the misconduct of an officer; and a report made to the court by the grand jury charging an officer with malfeasance in office is not a privileged communication. But where such a report was made by the grand jury, imputing misconduct to an officer, when made in good faith and under the belief that it came within the discharge of their duty, was held not actionable. Rector v. Smith, 11 Iowa, 302.
of the bail, if bail be given, unless the court should, upon good cause shown, be of opinion that the charge should be again submitted to the grand jury in which case the defendant may be continued in custody, or on bail, until the next term of the court.

SEC. 4290. Such dismissal of the charge, does not prevent the same from being again submitted to a grand jury as often as the court may direct; but without such direction, it cannot again be submitted.

CHAPTER 15.

SECTION 4291. An indictment cannot be found without the concurrence of twelve grand jurors; and when so found it must be indorsed "A true bill," and the indorsement must be signed by the foreman of the grand jury.²

SEC. 4292. When an indictment is found at the instance of a private prosecutor, the following must be added to the indorsement required by the preceding section, "found at the instance of" (here state the name of the person), and in such case, if the prosecution fails, the court trying the cause may award costs against the private prosecutor, if satisfied, from all the circumstances, that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause.¹

SEC. 4293. [When an indictment is found, the names of all witnesses, on whose evidence it is found, must be indorsed thereon before it is presented to the court, and the minutes of the evidence of such witnesses must be presented with the indictment to the court, and filed by the clerk of the court, and remain in his office as a record, but the minutes of evidence shall not be open for the inspection of any person except the judge of the court, and the district attorney or his clerk, the defendant and his counsel, or the clerk of such counsel, and the clerk of the court, must within two days after demand made, furnish the defendant or his counsel a copy thereof, without charge, or permit the defendant's counsel or the clerk of such counsel to take a copy.

SEC. 5. That when a demurrer [on] motion to set aside or otherwise an indictment is held insufficient, and an order is made to resubmit the case to the same or other grand jury, or where the grand jury have [has] ignored a bill and the same has been ordered back to the same or other grand jury for further investigation, it shall be unnecessary to summon the witnesses again before such jury in such cases, but the minutes of the testimony returned with the defective indictment or ignored bill or information, shall be detached and returned to the grand jury, and thereupon without more, such grand jury may find a bill, and attach said minutes of the evidence thereto, and return said indictment therewith into court in the usual manner, and the grand jury may also, in either case, take additional testimony.

² If the panel of the grand jury should be reduced by challenges to individual jurors, or by sickness or death, or any other cause, to less than twelve, no valid indictment can be found. The State of Iowa v. Ostrander, 18 Iowa, 435; The Same v. Garhart, 35 Id., 315, 317.

¹ This section does not authorize a judgment for costs against a prosecuting witness for a failure to appear in the district court and prosecute a defendant who has, on his complaint, been placed under bond to keep the peace. The State v. Holliday, 22 Iowa, 397.

Sec. 6. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed."

Sec. 4294. The indictment, when found and indorsed as prescribed by this chapter, must be presented by the foreman, in the presence of the grand jury, to the court, and marked "filed" by the clerk of the court, and remain in his office as a record.

CHAPTER 16.

OF INDICTMENT; ITS FORM AND REQUISITES.

SECTION 4295. An indictment is an accusation in writing found and presented by a grand jury, legally convened and sworn, to the court in which it is impaneled, charging that a person therein named has done some act, or been guilty of some omission, which, by law, is a public offense punishable on indictment.

Sec. 4296. The indictment must contain:
1. The title of the action, specifying the name of the court to which it is presented, and the name of the parties;
2. A statement of the facts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

"The district court may permit the introduction of a witness in behalf of the state, where the minutes of his evidence before the grand jury were not attached to the indictment, when they are otherwise identified as the minutes taken in the manner required by law. The State v. Postlewait, 14 Iowa, 446.

Where a grand jury examined numerous witnesses upon accusations against different persons for selling intoxicating liquors in violation of law, kept minutes of their evidence, and when indictments were found, returned these minutes as they had taken them, without first separating those portions relating to each indictment, it was held, that while this was irregular, it did not, in the absence of a showing of prejudice to the defendant, constitute sufficient ground for a reversal of the judgment. The State v. Guisenkauze, 20 Iowa, 227.

Where papers containing the minutes of evidence taken before a grand jury, are, by them, returned into court and deposited with the clerk, they are in fact filed, and the court upon being satisfied of the fact, may order them to be indorsed filed as of the date when filed in fact. Id.

"The fact that an indictment was presented and filed after the adjournment of the court, cannot be established by affidavits. The correctness of the finding of the court below, that the indictment was regularly presented, will be presumed. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 318.

When the language, used in charging an offense in an indictment, shows, to the common understanding, what the pleader intended to charge, it is sufficient. The State v. Schilling, 14 Iowa, 455.

An indictment which contains a statement of the facts constituting the offense, is sufficient though it does not set out the technical name of the offense. The State v. Baily, 17 Iowa, 39;
The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575; The State v. Hessenkauze, 17 Iowa, 25; The State v. Anseleme, 15 Iowa, 44; The State v. Davis, 41 Iowa, 311.

An indictment charging an offense in the language of the statute defining it is sufficient. The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575; The State v. Hessenkauze, 17 Iowa, 25; The State v. Conlee, 25 Iowa, 237; The State v. Fmostat, 46 Iowa, 670.

If the offense charged has no name given to it by the statute, the giving it a name in the indictment, which is repugnant to the facts alleged as constituting the offense will be regarded as surplusage. Id.; The State v. Davis, 41 Iowa, 311.

An indictment in the form prescribed in the statute is sufficient as to the allegation of venue. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Iowa, 110.

And an indictment charging an offense in the language of the statute is not open to objection.
INDICTMENT, ITS FORM AND REQUISITES. [TITLE XXV.]

Sec. 4297. It may be substantially in the following form:

District court of the county of . . . .

The state of Iowa, } against

A. B.

The grand jury of the county of . . . ., in the name and by the authority of the state of Iowa, accuse A. B. of the crime of (here insert the name of the offense, if it have one, such as treason, murder, manslaughter, robbery, larceny, or the like, or if it have no general name, then a brief general description of it as given by law, such as "mingling poison with food, with intent to kill a human being,") committed as follows:

The said A. B., on the first day of January, A. D. 18 . . . ., in the county as aforesaid (here insert the act or omission constituting the offense).

. . . . District Attorney, of the . . . . judicial district.

Sec. 4298. The indictment must be direct and certain as regards:
1. The party charged;
2. The offense charged;
3. The particular circumstances of the offense charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense.

Sec. 4299. When a defendant is indicted by a fictitious or erroneous name, and in any subsequent stage of the proceedings before execution, his true name is discovered, an entry shall be made in the record of the proceedings, of his true name, referring to the fact of his being indicted by the name mentioned in the indictment, and the subsequent proceedings shall be in the true name, substantially as follows:

The state of Iowa, } against

A. B., indicted by the name of C. D. }

Sec. 4300. The indictment must charge but one offense, but it may be charged in different forms to meet the testimony, and if it may have been committed in different modes and by different means, the on account of its form. The State v. Smith, 46 Id., 670.

Where an indictment correctly defines an offense in the statement of facts therein, but in the charging part designates it by another name, it is nevertheless a good indictment for the offense defined. The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311, following The State v. Shaw, 35 Id., 575.

It was accordingly held, that where the offense was designated in the indictment as manslaughter, but the statement of facts defined the crime of murder, the defendant was properly put upon his trial for the latter offense. Id.

To constitute a valid indictment, the particular circumstances of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 23 Id., 554.

In all cases the facts constituting the specific crime intended to be charged must be stated in the indictment. The State v. White, 41 Id., 316, 318.

An indictment in the form prescribed by section 4297 of the code, is sufficient as to the allegation of venue. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

P It is generally sufficient to charge an offense, created and defined by statute, in the language of the statute (The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575). But when a statute describes an offense by terms constituting rather a legal conclusion than a statement of the facts constituting it, the indictment must especially describe the offense by a statement of the facts. Per Miller Ch. J. in The State v. Brandt, 593, 608; Cole J. concurring.

Naming an offense murder in the first degree in the introductory and concluding parts of an indictment is not sufficient unless the facts charged constitute it such. The State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402.
indictment may allege the modes and means in the alternative; provided, that in case of compound offenses, where in the same transaction more than one offense has been committed, the indictment may charge the several offenses, and the defendant may be convicted of any offense included therein; provided further, that this section shall in no manner affect any provision of this code providing for the suppression of intemperance.9

9An indictment may charge an offense in different forms, to meet the evidence; and if the offense may have been committed in different modes, or by different means, these may be alleged in the alternative; but in charging an offense in different forms, the pleader is not required to use the alternative form of expression. The State v. Watrous, 13 Iowa, 489. See also The State v. Abrams, 1 Id., 111; Same v. Vaughn, 5 Id., 309; Same v. Teegood, 7 Id., 292; Same v. Berrett, 8 Id., 598; Same v. McPeters, 9 Id., 33.

The offense of nuisance under section 1643 of the code may be committed either by the manufacture, sale, or keeping with intent to sell, intoxicating liquors in violation of law; and while an indictment is sufficient which charges the commission of the offense by either one of the unlawful acts, it is bad for duplicity if it charges the offense to have been committed by two or three of the specified unlawful acts. The State v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497; The State v. Becker, 48 Id.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant, on the 6th day of September, 1871, set fire to and burned a stack of hay of the value of $300, and on the same day did burn a building used as a stable and granary, it was held, that the indictment charged two offenses and was, therefore, bad. The State v. Fidnent, 35 Id., 541.

The prosecutor, in case an indictment charges two distinct offenses, may be required to elect upon which charge he will proceed. Id. The State v. McPeters, 9 Id., 53.

An indictment charging the defendant with burglariously and feloniously breaking and entering a store with intent to commit larceny, and with stealing and carrying away certain articles therein contained, was held, not liable to the objection of charging two distinct offenses. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

So an indictment which charged the defendant with keeping and controlling a building where intoxicating liquors were sold in violation of the statute, and where "gambling, fighting, drunkenness and breaches of the peace" were permitted by him, was held, not as charging two offenses. The State v. Dean, 44 Id., 648.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant "committed an assault and battery upon the person of C. C. How, with intent to inflict upon the person of said How a great bodily injury," it was held, that it charged but one offense. Cokely v. The State, 4 Id., 477.

Where an indictment charged the defendant in one count with keeping a gambling-house, and in another with permitting other persons, in a place under his control, to play for money or other things, it was held, not vulnerable to the objection of duplicity. The State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 453.

Where a statute contains different grades or degrees of the same offense, an indictment under it may charge a violation of them all, or of any of them; and the proof need cover only so much of the allegations of the indictment as constitute a complete offense. The State v. Harris, 11 Id., 414.

An indictment that charges the defendant with both "injuring" and "defacing" a dwelling-house, charges but one offense. The State v. Hockenberry, 11 Id., 269.

An indictment charging that the defendant did unlawfully and feloniously conspire to rob and steal from, etc., charges but one offense— conspiracy. The State v. Sterling, 34 Id., 443.

An indictment charging the defendant with counterfeiting and with having in his possession counterfeit coin, with intent to utter the same, is not objectionable for duplicity. The State v. Meyers, 10 Id., 448; The State v. Berrett, 8 Id., 598.

Where an indictment in the first count charged the defendant with selling intoxicating liquors to one Arigoni, and in the second with selling such liquors to divers persons whose names were to the grand jury unknown, it was held not to charge two distinct offenses. Walters v. The State, 5 Id.

An information charging that the defendant "did, unlawfully, sell beer to persons unknown," charges but one sale to several persons jointly, and is not bad for duplicity under a city ordinance making each separate act of selling an offense. The State v. King, 37 Id., 462.

The term "compound offenses" as used in this section (4390), has reference only to cases where the act constitutes in itself more than one, and does not include cases in which two or more crimes are committed in succession. The State v. Ridley and Johnson, 48 Id., 370.

An indictment which charges the defendant with the commission of both burglary and larceny, is bad for duplicity, the one offense not being included in the other. The State v. McFarland, 49 Id., 99.

Where an indictment charges two offenses, but alleges the commission of one of them to have been in another county, this allegation constitutes mere surplusage and will be disregarded. The State v. Swounce, 50 Id., 43.

An indictment is not vulnerable to an attack for duplicity which sets out the same transaction in different forms to meet the evidence. The State v. Brannon, 50 Id., 372.
INDICTMENT, ITS FORM AND REQUISITES. [TITLE XXV.

SEC. 4301. The precise time at which the offense was committed need not be stated in the indictment, but it is sufficient if it allege that the offense was committed at any time prior to the time of the finding thereof, except where the time is a material ingredient in the offense.

SEC. 4302. When an offense involves the commission of, or an attempt to commit, an injury to the person or property, and is described in other respects with sufficient certainty to identify the act, an erroneous allegation as to the time of the person injured, or attempted to be injured, is not material.

SEC. 4303. The words used in an indictment must be construed in their usual acceptation in common language, except words and phrases defined by law, which are to be construed according to their legal meaning.

SEC. 4304. Words used in a statute to define a public offense need not be strictly pursued in an indictment, but other words conveying the same meaning may be used.

SEC. 4305. The indictment is sufficient if it can be understood:
1. That it was found by a grand jury of the county empaneled in the court having authority to receive it, though the name of the court is not actually stated;
2. That the defendant is named, or, if his true name is unknown to the grand jury, that fact be stated, and that he be described by a fictitious name;
3. That the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of the court, or is triable therein;
4. That the offense was committed at some time prior to the time of the finding of the indictment;

* The precise time at which an offense was committed need not be stated in an indictment, except where time is a material ingredient of the offense. The State v. Layton, 25 Iowa, 193, 196.

Time is sufficiently alleged in an indictment, by an allegation that the act constituting the offense was committed "on or about" a day therein stated. Cokely v. The State, 4 Id., 477.

* An allegation as to the name of the person injured is not material in an indictment, under our statute, if the offense be, in other respects, described with sufficient certainty to identify the act. An error in name, or other similar error, which does not tend to prejudice the substantial rights of the defendant, will not render an indictment insufficient. The State v. Emeigh, 18 Iowa, 122.

In an indictment for resisting an officer an erroneous allegation as to the name of the officer resisted does not constitute a fatal variance. The State v. Flynn, 43 Id., 164.

A mistake in the name of the person injured, in an indictment for robbery, is not material unless it be shown that the party accused has suffered prejudice by reason of the mistake. The State v. Carr & Brown, 43 Id., 418.

† Under our law it is not necessary, as it was at common law, in an indictment for murder, to specifically charge that the defendant "murdered" the deceased; but the use of allegations which import an equivalent meaning is sufficient. The State v. O'Niel, 23 Iowa, 272.

Where the body of an indictment was in the following form: "The said G. S., on, etc., in, etc., in and upon the body of one W. P., then and there being, willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly, by lying in wait, and of his malice aforethought, did commit an assault with a deadly weapon, being a pistol, then and there held in the hands of the said G. S., and loaded and charged with powder and bullet, and then and there the said G. S. did lie in wait, with the specific intent to kill and murder the said W. P. willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly, and of his malice aforethought, shoot off and discharge the contents of said deadly weapon at, against, into and through the head and body of the said W. P., thereby willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly, and of his malice aforethought, inflicting upon the head and body of the said W. P. a mortal wound, of which mortal wound the said W. P. then and there did die." Held: 1. That the indictment was sufficient as charging murder in the first degree; 2. That the time of the death was sufficiently alleged, as being at the time and place when and where the assault was made; 3. That the indictment was sufficient as charging that the deceased was a human being. The State v. Stanley, 33 Id., 526.
5. That the act or omission charged as the offense, is stated with such a degree of certainty, in ordinary and concise language, and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the court to pronounce judgment upon a conviction according to the law of the case.

6. That when material, the name of the person injured, or attempted to be injured, be set forth when known to the grand jury, or if not known to it, that it be so stated in the indictment.

SEC. 4306. No indictment is insufficient, nor can the trial, judgment, or other proceedings thereon be affected by reason of any of the following matters, which were formerly deemed defects or imperfections:

1. For the want of an allegation of the time or place of any material fact, when the time and place have been once stated;

2. For the omission of any of the following allegations, namely:
   - "with force and arms;"
   - "contrary to the form of the statute, or of the statutes;" or
   - "against the peace and dignity of the state;"

3. For the omission to allege that the grand jury was impaneled, sworn, or charged;

4. For any surplusage or repugnant allegation, or for any repetition, when there is sufficient matter alleged to indicate clearly the offense and person charged; nor,

"An indictment is sufficient when the offense is charged with such certainty and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the court to pronounce judgment according to the law of the case. The State v. Watrous, 13 Iowa, 439; The State v. Conlee, 25 Id., 297; State v. Newton, 44 Id., 45, 47.

In an indictment for willful trespass in cutting down and destroying timber, it is sufficient to allege that the injury was done, and by cutting down and destroying, without being more specific. Id.

An indictment which describes the offense charged in the language of the statute is sufficient, though it does not set out the technical name of the offense. The State v. Hessenkamp, 17 Id., 25.

Although an indictment in charging a public offense may be greatly wanting in that clearness and certainty which is desirable in such pleadings, yet if it can be easily determined what was intended by the pleader, the indictment will be held sufficient. The State v. Reed, 20 Id., 413, 417.

In an indictment for breaking and entering a building in which valuable things are kept, with intent to commit a felony, the name of the owner of the building must be set out and averred, if known, and if not known, then it should be so stated therein, The State v. Morrissey, 22 Id., 158.

In charging a public offense in an indictment it is not necessary to follow the language of the statute; the use of equivalent language is sufficient. The State v. Conlee, 25 Id., 297.

Where in an indictment for forgery it is necessary to set out a copy of the instrument alleged to be forged, it need not be prefaced by any technical form of words to express that it is so set out; and the words "of the purport and effect following," are sufficient under the statute. The State v. Johnson et al., 26 Id., 407.

To constitute a good indictment for murder in the first degree, the facts showing the commission of the crime and the degree must be alleged. The State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402.

For the requisites of an indictment for murder in the first degree see notes to section 3849, ante.

An indictment for keeping a nuisance under section 1564 of the revision (code § 8, 1543), which charged the offense as having been committed "by using and keeping a room and place for the purpose of selling, and by selling therein intoxicating liquors, in violation of section 1562 of the revision," was held sufficient. The State v. Freeman, 27 Id., 333.

To constitute a valid indictment for conspiracy, the particular circumstances, of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 30 Id., 554.

An indictment which charged the larceny of "one hundred and eighty dollars in bank notes, usually known and described as greenbacks," was held sufficiently certain as to the subject matter of the offense. The State v. Hockenberry, 30 Id., 604.

An information "charging that the defendant on &c., at &c., did sell intoxicating liquors contrary to the statute," without stating to whom the sale was made, was held, insufficient on the ground that the name of the person to whom the liquor was sold was not stated, nor was there a statement that his name was unknown. The State v. Allen, 32 Id., 491. This virtually overrules The State v. Becker, 20 Iowa, 458, as to this point.
5. For any other matter which was formerly deemed a defect or imperfection, but which does not tend to the prejudice of the substantial rights of the defendant upon the merits.*\n
SEC. 4307. Neither presumptions of law nor matters of which judicial notice is taken need be stated in an indictment.

SEC. 4308. In pleading a judgment or other determination of, or proceeding before, a court or officer of special jurisdiction, the facts constituting jurisdiction need not be stated in the indictment, but it is sufficient to state that the judgment or determination was duly made or the proceedings duly had, before such court or officer; but the facts constituting the jurisdiction must be established on the trial.

SEC. 4309. In pleading a private statute, or right derived therefrom, it is sufficient to refer to the same by its title and the day of its approval, and the court must thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

SEC. 4310. An indictment for a libel need not set forth any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the party libeled of the defamatory matter upon which the indictment is founded, but it is sufficient to state generally that the same was published concerning him, and the fact that it was so published must be established on trial.

SEC. 4311. When an instrument which is subject of an indictment, has been destroyed or withheld by the act of procurement of the defendant, and the fact of such destruction or withholding is alleged in the indictment and established on the trial, the misdescription of the instrument is immaterial.

SEC. 4312. In an indictment for perjury, or subornation of perjury, it is sufficient to set forth the substance of the controversy, or matter in respect to which the offense was committed, and in what court or before whom the oath alleged to be false was taken, and that the court or person before whom it was taken had authority to administer the same, with proper allegations of the falsity of the matter on which the perjury is assigned; but the indictment need not set forth the pleadings, record, or proceedings with which the oath is connected, nor the commission or the authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed.*\n
SEC. 4313. In any case where an intent to defraud is required to constitute the offense of forgery, or any other offense that may be prosecuted, it shall be sufficient to allege in the indictment an intent to defraud without naming the particular person or body corporate intended to be defrauded; and on the trial of such indictment it is sufficient if there appear to be an intent to defraud the United States, or any state, county, city, or township, or any body corporate, or any officer in his official capacity, or any co-partnership, or member thereof, or any particular person.*\n * An indictment describing an offense in the language of the statute, though the offense be not named, is sufficient. The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575; The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311.

Where an information, to obtain a warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors, was entitled "State of Iowa, Clayton County," it was unnecessary to allege in the information that the liquors were in Clayton county. The State v. Thompson, 44 Id., 399.

* In an indictment for perjury it is essential to aver that the court or person, before whom the alleged false oath was taken, had authority to administer the oath. The State v. Nickerson, 46 Iowa, 447.

* An indictment for forgery which charges generally an intent to defraud, without specifying the person intended to be defrauded, is sufficient under the statute. The State v. Maxwell, 47 Iowa, 454.

In an indictment for forgery copies of the alleged forged instruments should be set out or, it should state a sufficient reason for not doing so. The State v. Callendine, 8 Id., 238.
CHAP. 17.

PROCESS UPON AN INDICTMENT.

Sec. 4314. The distinction between an accessory before the fact and a principal, is abrogated, and all persons concerned in the commission of a public offense, whether they directly commit the act constituting the offense, or aid and abet its commission, though not present, must hereafter be indicted, tried, and punished as principals.7

Sec. 4315. An accessory after the fact to the commission of a public offense, may be indicted, tried, and punished, though the principal be neither tried nor convicted.

Sec. 4316. A person may be indicted for having, with the knowledge of the commission of a public offense, taken money or property of another, or a gratuity or reward, or engagement or promise thereof, upon agreement or understanding, express or implied, to compound or conceal the offense, or to abstain from a prosecution therefor, or to withhold any evidence thereof, though the person guilty of the original offense has not been indicted or tried.

Sec. 4317. In an indictment for the embezzlement or fraudulent conversion of money, it shall be sufficient to allege the embezzlement or fraudulent conversion to have been of money generally, without designating its particular species; and proof that the defendant embezzled, or fraudulently converted any money or bank note, will be sufficient to support the averment, although the particular species be not proved.

CHAPTER 17.

OF PROCESS UPON AN INDICTMENT.

Sec. 4318. The process upon an indictment for the arrest of an individual, shall be a bench warrant.

Sec. 4319. When an indictment is filed by the clerk of the court against a defendant, not in custody, or under bail, or who has not deposited money instead of bail, the judge of the court shall make an order on the indictment, which shall be signed by him, with his name of office, that a bench warrant issue for the arrest of the defendant, and, if the offense charged in the indictment be bailable, fix the amount in which bail may be taken.

Sec. 4320. The clerk, on the application of the district attorney, shall accordingly, at any time after the making of the order of the judge, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties.

7 By this section the distinction between The mere fact that a person was in company with another, at the time of the commission of a crime by him will not render the former guilty; his participation in some manner must be shown. The State v. Farr, 33 Id., 553.

Where the court below instructed the jury that "aiding and abetting" in the commission of a public offense may consist in "agreeing to or taking care of the families of the parties" who have committed the theft, it was held, to be correct where there was evidence on which to base the instruction. The State v. Stanley, 48 Id., 221.
SEC. 4321. A bench warrant, if the offense be a felony, may be, substantially, in the following form:

County of..............

The State of Iowa.

To any peace officer in the state:

An indictment having been found in the district court of said county, on the....day of............, A. D., 18.. (the day on which the indictment is marked filed, by the clerk of the court), charging A. B. with the crime of (here designating the offense by the name, if it have one, or by a brief general description of it, as given by law, substantially, as in the indictment).

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to arrest the said A. B., and bring him before said court to answer said indictment, if the said court be then in session in said county, or if the said court be not then in session in said county, that you deliver him into the custody of the sheriff of said county.

Given under my hand, and the seal of said court, at my office [seal] in..........., in the county aforesaid, this....day of........, A. D., 18..

By order of the judge of the court.

SEC. 4322. If the offense be a misdemeanor, the bench warrant may be in a similar form, adding to the body thereof a direction, substantially, to the following effect:

"Or, if the said A. B. require it, that you take him before a magistrate, or the clerk of the district court in said county, or in the county in which you arrest him, that he may give bail to answer the said indictment."

SEC. 4323. If the offense charged be bailable, the clerk must make an indorsement on the bench warrant, to the following effect: "The defendant is to be admitted to bail in the sum of....dollars." (The amount fixed by the judge and indorsed on the indictment.)

SEC. 4324. The bench warrant may be served in any county in the state.

SEC. 4325. If the defendant, when arrested, be brought before a magistrate, or the clerk of the district court of the same county in which it was issued, or another county, for the purpose of giving bail, the same proceedings must be had, in all respects, as if he had been arrested on a warrant of arrest, issued by a magistrate on a preliminary information, as nearly as may be.

SEC. 4326. The process upon an indictment against a corporation shall be a notice; which shall be issued by the clerk at any time after the filing of the indictment in his office, on the application of the district attorney. The notice shall be under the seal of the court, and shall, substantially, notify the defendant of the finding of the indictment, of the nature of the offense charged, and that he must forthwith appear and answer the same. It may be served by any peace officer in any county in the state on any officer or agent of the defendant, by reading the same to him and leaving with him a copy thereof. It shall be returned to the clerk's office without delay, with proper evidence of its service; and, from and after two days from the time of the making of such service, the defendant shall be considered in court, and thereafter shall be considered to be present to all proceedings had on the indictment.
CHAPTER 18.

OF ARRAIr\NIENT OF THE DEFENDANT.

SECTION 4327. As soon as practicable after an indictment is found, the defendant must be arraigned thereon, unless he waive the same; but where a corporation is defendant, arraignment shall not be required.\(^6\)

SEC. 4328. If the indictment be for a felony, the defendant must be personally present, but if for a misdemeanor only, his personal appearance is unnecessary, and he may appear upon arraignment by counsel.\(^7\)

SEC. 4329. When he is in custody, the court must direct the officer in whose custody he is to bring him before it to be arraigned, and the officer must do so accordingly.

SEC. 4330. If the defendant has been discharged on bail, or has deposited money instead thereof, and does not appear for arraignment when his personal appearance is necessary, the court, in addition to the forfeiture of the undertaking of bail, or of the money deposited, may, on motion of the district attorney, make an order directing the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest, and fix the amount in which bail will be taken if the offense be bailable.

SEC. 4331. The clerk, on the application of the district attorney, may, accordingly, at any time after the order, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties of this state for the arrest of the defendant.

SEC. 4332. If the defendant appear for arraignment without counsel, he must be informed by the court that it is his right to have counsel before being arraigned, and must be asked if he desire the aid of counsel, and if he does, and is unable to employ any, must allow him to select, or assign him counsel, not exceeding two, who shall have free access to him at all reasonable hours.

SEC. 4333. The arraignment may be made by the court, or by the clerk or district attorney under its direction, and consists in reading the indictment to the defendant, and unless previously done, delivering to him a copy of the indictment and the indorsements thereon, and informing him that if the name by which he is indicted is not his true name, he must then declare what his true name is, or be proceeded against by the name in the indictment, and asking him what he answers to the indictment.

SEC. 4334. If he gives no other name, or gives his true name, he is thereafter precluded from objecting to the indictment upon the ground of being therein improperly named.\(^b\)

---

\(^6\) If one indicted waives arraignment, he cannot afterwards object that he is not indicted by his right name. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Iowa, 110.

\(^7\) In the exercise of a challenge to the grand jury the accused need not necessarily be personally present, but the privilege may be exercised or waived by his attorney in the absence of the accused. The State v. Felter, 25 Iowa, 67.

That the prisoner on trial for forgery, was not present when the jury were brought into court after the case had been submitted, will not be ground for reversal, when it appears that no prejudice could have resulted to the prisoner from this irregularity. The State v. Vaughan, 29 Id., 286.

\(^b\) The objection that the defendant is erroneously named in the indictment cannot be made for the first time after arraignment and trial. Failing to make the objection upon his arraignment, or to declare his true name, he thereby
SEc. 4335. If he alleges that another name is his true name, the court must direct an entry thereof in the minutes of the arraignment, and the subsequent proceedings on the indictment may be had against him by that name, referring also to the name by which he is indicted.

SEc. 4336. In answer to the arraignment, the defendant may move to set aside the indictment, or he may demur or plead to it, and is entitled to one day after arraignment in which to answer thereto if he demand it.

CHAPTER 19.
OF SETTING ASIDE THE INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4337. The motion to set aside the indictment can be made by the defendant on one or more of the following grounds, and must be sustained:

1. When it is not indorsed "a true bill," and the indorsement signed by the foreman of the grand jury as prescribed by this code;
2. When the names of all the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not indorsed thereon; when the minutes of the evidence of the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not returned therewith;
3. When it has not been presented and marked "filed" as prescribed by this code;
4. When any person, other than the grand jurors, was present before the grand jury when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment, or when any person, other than the grand jurors, was present before the grand jury during the investigation of the charge, except as required or permitted by law;
5. That the grand jury were not selected, drawn, summoned, impaneled, or sworn as prescribed by law.

waives his right to subsequently make the objection. The State v. White, 32 Iowa, 17; See, also, The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

If the record is silent as to the arraignment, it will be presumed that the defendant was properly arraigned and failed to give his true name, or that he waived the arraignment. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

An objection to an indictment grounded upon the illegality of the grand jury should be taken before pleading to the indictment. The State v. Reed, 20 Iowa, 413; The State v. Ingalls, 17 Id., 8; The State v. Howard, 10 Id., 101; The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435.

Where papers containing minutes of the evidence taken before the grand jury are returned by them into court and deposited with the clerk, they are in fact filed, and the court, upon being satisfied of such fact, may order that they be indorsed "filed" as of that date. The State v. Guisenhause, 20 Id., 227.

Where the minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury in regard to sales of intoxicating liquors in violation of law, and several indictments were found, were returned by the grand jury as they were taken, without separating those portions of the evidence relating to each indictment, it was held, that while this was irregular, yet in the absence of a showing of prejudice to the accused by reason thereof, it did not afford sufficient ground for a reversal of the judgment. Id.

The admission of incompetent evidence before the grand jury does not constitute sufficient ground for setting aside an indictment. The State v. Tucker, 1 Id., 508.

The mere presence of a bailiff of the court in attendance on the grand jury during their investigation of a criminal charge, is not a sufficient ground for setting aside an indictment, if he were not present when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment. The State v. Kimball, 29 Id., 267.

Where the testimony of witnesses examined before the grand jury is taken down and returned, as required by statute, but their names
SEc. 4338. A motion to set aside the indictment on the ground that the names of all the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not indorsed thereon; or that the name of any other witness than those so examined is indorsed thereon as prescribed in the second subdivision of section four thousand three hundred and thirty-seven hereof, shall not be sustained if the indorsement is corrected by the insertion or striking out of such names or name by the district attorney or the clerk of the court, under the direction of the court, so as to correspond with the minutes required to be kept by the clerk of the grand jury and returned and preserved with the indictment to the court.

SEc. 4339. The ground of the motion to set aside the indictment mentioned in the fifth subdivision of section four thousand three hundred and thirty-seven hereof, is not allowed to a defendant who has been held to answer before indictment.

SEc. 4340. The motion must be heard when it is made, unless for good cause the court postpone the hearing to another time.

are not indorsed upon the indictment, it may be assailed by a motion to set aside; but if not thus assailed, the witnesses may be examined on the trial. The State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 164; The State v. Robinson, 47 Id., 483.

Where the name of a witness examined before the grand jury was not indorsed on the indictment, and after the jury had been called into the box the district attorney moved to have the indorsement made then; it was held, that the granting of the motion worked no prejudice to the defendant. The State v. Robinson, 47 Id., 483.

That the minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury do not show sufficient to justify the finding of the indictment, is no ground for quashing or setting aside the indictment. The State v. Morris, 36 Id., 272; The State v. Bowers, 17 Id., 46; The State v. Van Vleet, 23 Id., 27.

The statute does not require that the names of witnesses before the grand jury, who give no material testimony, should be indorsed on the indictment. The State v. Little, 42 Id., 51.

An indictment presented in the proper court and properly filed therein, is not invalid because of an indorsement thereon reciting that it was found in another county. The State v. Smouse, 50 Id., 43.

The minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury, should be filed with the clerk, whereupon they become a part of the record, and cannot be contradicted by affidavits of grand jurors or witnesses. This record is conclusive as to the persons who were thus examined as witnesses. The State v. Little, 42 Iowa, 51.

The fact that witnesses were examined on the trial whose names were not indorsed on the indictment, may be taken advantage of by objection first raised after conviction. The State v. Houston, 50 Id., 512.

That a "grand jury were not selected, drawn, summoned, impaneled or sworn as prescribed by law," is not ground for setting aside the indictment against one who was held to answer before the finding of the indictment. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318.

The right to challenge a grand juror, on the ground that he is an alien, must be exercised before he is sworn. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318.

Affidavits of grand jurors that they did not assent to the finding of an indictment, are not admissible on a motion to set it aside. Id.; The State v. Mescherter, 46 Id., 88; The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311.

That one of the names upon the list of grand jurors, as drawn, does not appear upon the list returned by the judges of election for that year, is not ground for reversing a judgment in a criminal case, when it is not shown but that the proper steps were taken by the court below to correct this error, and thus have impaneled a legal grand jury. The State v. Hart, 39 Id., 268.

An indictment will be set aside for irregularities in the selection of the grand jury, only when there has been a departure from the requirements of the statute affecting the substantial rights of the defendant. The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 563.

Where the proper number to serve on a grand jury had been returned from all the election precincts save one, and the county canvassers failed to supply the omission, but certain members of the board of supervisors suggested to the county auditor from the delinquent township to supply the deficiency, it was held, not to be such an irregularity as would render the grand jury an illegal body. Id.

Where, in the drawing of the jury, the comparison of the ballots with the list of grand jurors was made by the clerk and the deputy sheriff, in the absence of the sheriff, the grand jury thus selected was held not to be a legal body, and incapable of finding a valid indictment. Id., following Dutell v. The State, 3 G. Greene, 125.
If denied, R. § 4696.
If granted, R. § 4697.
If re-submitted, R. § 4698.

If denied, R. § 4696. If the motion be denied, the defendant must immediately answer the indictment, either by demurring or pleading thereto.

If granted, R. § 4697. If the motion be granted, the court must order the defendant, if in custody, to be discharged, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated; or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded to him, unless the court direct that the case be re-submitted to the same or another grand jury.

If re-submitted, R. § 4698. If the court direct that the case be re-submitted, the defendant, if already in custody, must so remain unless he be admitted to bail; or, if already admitted to bail, or money has been deposited instead thereof, the bail or money is answerable for the appearance of the defendant to answer a new indictment.

Order to set aside, no bar, R. § 4699. An order to set aside the indictment as provided in this chapter, shall be no bar to a future prosecution for the same offense.

CHAPTER 20.
OF PLEADING BY THE DEFENDANT.

Section 4345. The only pleading on the part of the defendant is a demurrer or plea.

Section 4346. The demurrer and plea must be put in in open court, and may be oral; but an entry thereof must be made on the record.

CHAPTER 21.
OF THE MODE OF TRIAL.

Section 4347. Issues of law shall be tried by the court. Issues of fact shall be tried by a jury.

Section 4348. An issue of law arises upon a demurrer to the indictment. No joinder in demurrer is necessary.

Section 4349. An issue of fact arises on a plea of not guilty, or of former conviction or acquittal of the same offense. No replication or further pleading is necessary.

Section 4350. An issue of fact must be tried by a jury of the county in which the indictment is found, unless a change of venue has been awarded.

Section 4351. If the indictment be for a misdemeanor, the trial may be had in the absence of the defendant, if he appear by counsel; but if for a felony, he must be personally present.

When a motion to set aside an indictment is denied, the defendant must immediately demur or plead thereto, and upon his refusal to do either, a plea of "not guilty" must be entered by the court. The State v. Morris, 36 Iowa, 272.

See The State v. Vaughan, 29 Iowa, 236, cited in notes to section 4328, ante.
CHAPTER 22.

OF DEMURRER.

SECTION 4352. The defendant may demur to the indictment when it appears upon its face, either:

1. That it does not substantially conform to the requirements of this code;
2. That the indictment contains any matter, which, if true, would constitute a legal defense or bar to the prosecution.

Sec. 4353. The entry on the record of a demurrer, may be substantially in the following form: "The defendant demurs to the indictment."

Sec. 4354. When the demurrer is put in, the objection thereby presented must be heard immediately, or at such time as the court may appoint.

Sec. 4355. If the demurrer is sustained on the ground that the offense charged was within the exclusive jurisdiction of another county in this state, the same proceedings shall be had as provided in sections four thousand four hundred and forty-six to four thousand four hundred and forty-nine, inclusive, of this code.

Sec. 4356. If the demurrer is sustained because the indictment contains matter which is a legal defense or bar to the indictment, the judgment shall be final, and the defendant must be discharged.

Sec. 4357. If the demurrer is sustained on any other ground than that mentioned in the last two sections, the defendant must be dealt with as provided in section four thousand three hundred and forty-one of this code, unless the court is of opinion, on good cause shown, that the objection can be remedied or avoided in another indictment; in which case the court may order the cause to be re-submitted to the same or another grand jury, and the defendant may be dealt with as provided in section four thousand three hundred and forty-two of this code.

Sec. 4358. If the demurrer is overruled, the defendant has a right to put in a plea. If he fails to do so, final judgment may be rendered against him on the demurrer, and, if necessary, a jury may be impaneled to inquire and ascertain the degree of the offense.

CHAPTER 23.

OF PLEAS TO THE INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4359. There are but three pleas to an indictment. A plea of:

1. Guilty;
2. Not guilty;

Ground of.
Entry: form.
Objection: when heard.
If sustained.
Same.
Same.
If overruled.

The defendant may demur when the indictment does not substantially conform to the various requirements of the case in regard thereto. The State v. Morrissey, 22 Iowa, 158, 159.
3. A former judgment of conviction or acquittal of the offense charged, which may be pleaded with or without the plea of not guilty.

Sec. 4360. The plea may be entered on the record, substantially, in the following form:

1. A plea of guilty: “The defendant pleads that he is guilty of the offense charged in the indictment.”

2. A plea of not guilty: “The defendant pleads that he is not guilty of the offense charged in the indictment.”

3. A plea of former conviction or acquittal. “The defendant pleads that he has formerly been convicted, or acquitted (as the case may be), of the offense charged in the indictment, by the judgment of the court of . . . . (naming it), rendered on the . . . day of . . . ., A. D. 18 . . . (naming the time”).

Sec. 4361. The plea of guilty can only be put in by the defendant himself in open court.

Sec. 4362. At any time before judgment, the court may permit the plea of guilty to be withdrawn, and other plea or pleas substituted.¹

Sec. 4363. The plea of not guilty is a denial of every material allegation in the indictment; and all matters of fact may be given in evidence under it, except a former conviction or acquittal.

Sec. 4364. A conviction or acquittal by a judgment upon a verdict shall bar another prosecution for the same offense, notwithstanding a defect in form or substance in the indictment on which the conviction or acquittal took place.

Sec. 4365. When the defendant has been convicted or acquitted upon an indictment for an offense consisting of different degrees, the conviction or acquittal shall be a bar to another indictment for the offense charged in the former or for any lower degree of that offense, or for an offense necessarily included therein.

Sec. 4366. The judgment for the defendant on a demurrer, except where it is otherwise provided, or for an objection to its form or substance taken on the trial, or for variance between the indictment and the proof, shall not bar another prosecution for the same offense.

Sec. 4367. If the defendant fail or refuse to answer the indictment by demurrer or plea, a plea of not guilty must be entered by the court.²

CHAPTER 24.

OF CHANGE OF VENUE IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Sec. 4368. In all criminal cases which may be pending in any of the district courts of this state, any defendant therein may petition the court for a change of venue to another county.³

¹ Where a criminal case has been appealed from a justice of the peace by the state, the district court may inquire into the circumstances, in order to settle and fix the amount of the punishment, though the defendant had pleaded guilty below, and though the plea is not withdrawn in the district court. Especially is this so, where the plea and judgment were entered in the absence of the prosecutor and before the day fixed for the trial. The State v. Tait, 22 Iowa, 140.

² Where the defendant refuses to either demur or plead to the indictment, after a motion to set aside the same has been overruled, a plea of “not guilty” must be entered by the court. The State v. Morris, 36 Iowa, 272.

³ The discretion confided to the court by this and subsequent sections of the code, does not exist in applications in civil cases. Miller v. Laraway, 31 Iowa, 538; Jones v. C. & N. W. R. Co., 36 Id., 68.
Sec. 4369. Such petition must set forth the nature of the prosecution, the court where the same is pending, and that such defendant cannot receive a fair and impartial trial owing to the prejudice of the judge, or to excitement or prejudice against him in such county, and must verify the same by his affidavit stating the same to be true as he verily believes.

Sec. 4370. When the ground alleged in the petition is excitement and prejudice against him in the county, it must be verified by three disinterested persons, residents of the county from which the change is sought, in addition to the petitioner himself.

Sec. 4371. The petition need not state the facts upon which the belief of the petitioner, or other persons verifying the same, is founded, but may allege the belief of the particular ground thereof in general terms.

Sec. 4372. The court may receive additional testimony, by affidavits only, either on the part of the defendant or the state, when the alleged ground in the petition is excitement and prejudice in the county against the petitioner.

Sec. 4373. The petition and affidavits, if any, must be filed with the clerk, and are parts of the record:

Sec. 4374. The court, in the exercise of a sound discretion, must decide the matter of the petition, when fully advised, according to the very right of it. 1

Sec. 4375. If sustained, the court must, if the ground alleged be the prejudice of the judge, order the change of venue to the most convenient county in an adjoining district to which no objection exists.

Sec. 4376. If sustained on the ground of excitement and prejudice in the county, it must be awarded to such county in the same district in which no such objection exists.

Sec. 4377. Upon the making of the order, if there be but one defendant in the case, unless all have joined in the petition, the clerk must make out and certify a transcript of all papers on file in the case, including the indictment, and file the same in his office; and a certified copy of all record entries, and all the original papers on file

1 Applications for change of venue, in criminal cases, on the ground of prejudice either of the judge or the people are addressed to the sound legal discretion of the court, and though the averments of the affidavits are in the very language of the statute, the supreme court will not interfere unless it be clearly shown that such discretion has been improperly exercised. The State v. Arnold, 12 Iowa, 479; The State v. Ingalls & King, 17 Id., 8; The State v. Hutchinson, 21 Id., 212; The State v. Freeman, Id., 333; The State v. Felter, 32 Id., 49; The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435; The State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94; The State v. Westfall, 49 Id., 328, 332; The State v. Spurbeck et al., 44 Id., 667; The State v. Meecherter, 46 Id., 88; The State v. Ross, et al., 21 Id., 467; The State v. Balgy, Id., 39.

Affidavits showing the prejudice of the judge, if admissible at all, must state facts and not the opinions and belief of deponents. The State v. Mecheckerter, 46 Id., 88.
When the application for change of venue is applied for on the ground of prejudice and excitement against the defendant or on the part of the people of the county, the petition must be verified by three disinterested residents of the county, and additional evidence also may be received by the court upon the allegations of the petition. When the petition is based upon the prejudice of the judge it need not be thus supported by the verification or testimony of witnesses. Per Beck J. in The State v. Meechecerter, 1d., on p. 91.

While the determination of applications for change of venue in criminal cases, based upon local prejudice, is vested in the discretion of the court, yet it is not an absolute and arbitrary discretion, but a sound judicial discretion, subject to review in the appellate court. The State v. Canada, 43 Id., 448.
must be, without unnecessary delay, transmitted to the clerk of the court to which the change of venue is ordered.\textsuperscript{m}

\textsuperscript{m} The certificate of the clerk appended to a transcript of the cause in a change of venue, showed that it embraced all of the original papers filed, and a true copy of all the record entries made in the case; held sufficient. \textit{The State v. Ross}, 21 Iowa, 467.

\textsuperscript{n} The clerk of the court to which a case is taken by charge of venue has the same power to accept a recognizance as the one in the court where the indictment was found. \textit{The State v. Merrihew}, 47 Iowa, 112.

  \item \textbf{Sec. 4378.} If there be more than one defendant in the case, and all the defendants have not joined in the petition, the clerk, upon the making of such order, must, without unnecessary delay, make out and certify a transcript of all entries appearing on the record, and of all the papers on file in the case, including the indictment, and transmit the transcript so certified to the clerk of the court to which the change of venue is ordered, retaining the originals.
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4379.} If a defendant who has applied for a change of venue, which has been ordered, be in custody, the sheriff of the county from which the venue is changed, must, on the order of the court, transfer and deliver such defendant to the sheriff of the county to which such change is allowed, and upon such transfer and delivery, with a certified copy of such order, the sheriff last mentioned must receive and detain the defendant in his custody until legally discharged therefrom, and give a certificate of such delivery.
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4380.} The court to which such change of venue is granted must take cognizance of the cause, and proceed therein to trial, judgment, and execution, in all respects as if the indictment had been found by the grand jury impaneled in such court.\textsuperscript{n}
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4381.} In all changes of venue under the provisions of this chapter, the county from which the change of venue was taken shall pay the expenses and charges of removing, delivering, and keeping the defendant, and all other expenses necessary and consequent upon such change of venue and the trial of such defendant, which shall be audited and allowed by the court trying such case.
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4382.} Sheriffs, for delivering prisoners under the provisions of this chapter, are entitled to the same fees therefor as are allowed for conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary.
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4383.} When any district judge in this state is satisfied from his own knowledge or otherwise, that any organized county in his district does not contain a sufficient number of inhabitants possessing the qualifications of jurors to compose grand and trial jurors for the presentment and trial of any person or persons, charged with the commission of an offense in said county requiring the intervention of a grand jury, said judge shall make an order transferring all prosecutions for such offenses committed in said county to the next nearest county in the same judicial district possessing the requisite number of inhabitants qualified to serve as jurors.
  \item \textbf{Sec. 4384.} Said order may be made by the judge in vacation or by the court, and the district court of the county to which said prosecution may be transferred, shall have full and complete jurisdiction of the offense, and the person or persons charged with committing the offense may be indicted and tried in the county to which the prosecution is so transferred, in the same manner as though the offense had been committed in said county.
\end{itemize}
SEC. 4385. When any prosecution has been transferred by the court or judge under the provisions of this chapter, the person charged with committing the offense shall be required to appear at the next succeeding term of the district court of the county to which the prosecution is transferred, and shall give bond accordingly, and the court or judge may require all material witnesses in behalf of the prosecution to enter into cognizance for their appearance at the district court of the county to which the prosecution is transferred.

SEC. 4386. The county in which the offense was committed, and from which the prosecution was transferred, shall pay all the costs attending the prosecution.

SEC. 4387. No appeal or writ of error shall lie from any order for the transfer of prosecutions made under the provisions of this chapter.

SEC. 4388. The provisions of this chapter apply to prosecutions or charges now pending, or that may hereafter be instituted for offenses heretofore or hereafter committed.

CHAPTER 25.

OF THE FORMATION OF TRIAL JURY.

SECTION 4389. The jury for the trial of criminal actions is selected, drawn, and summoned as provided in the code of civil practice.

SEC. 4390. At the opening of the court, the clerk shall prepare separate ballots, containing the names of the persons returned as jurors, which shall be folded each in the same manner, as near as may be, and so that the name thereon shall not be visible, and must deposit them in a box to be kept for that purpose.

SEC. 4391. When the indictment is called for trial and before drawing the jury, either party may require the names of all the jurors in the panel to be called, and that an attachment issue against those who are absent, but the court may, in its discretion, wait or not for the return of the attachment.

SEC. 4392. Before the name of any juror is drawn the box must be closed and shaken, so as to intermingle the ballots therein, and the clerk shall draw such ballots without seeing the names written on them, from the box, through the top or lid thereof.

SEC. 4393. When the jury is completed, the ballots containing the names of the jurors sworn must be laid aside and kept apart from the ballots containing the names of the other jurors, until the jury so sworn is discharged.

* When the venue in a criminal case is changed the sureties, upon his recognizance for his appearance, etc., prior to the change, are liable for the appearance of the accused before the court to which the change is ordered; no new recognizance having been entered into for such appearance. The State v. Brown, 16 Iowa, 314.

The appearance of a defendant in a criminal cause does not discharge the sureties on his bond. They are still liable for any failure to obey the orders of the court before surrendered or discharged. Id.; The State v. Merrick, 47 Id., 112.

† The terms "opening of the court," used in this section, are to be understood as conveying the idea that the court is in session, organized for the transaction of judicial business. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Iowa, 501, 504.
CHALLENGING THE JURY.

SECTION 4398. A challenge is an objection made to the trial jurors, and is of two kinds:

1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror.\(^2\)

SEC. 4399. When several defendants are tried together, they are not allowed to sever their challenges, but must join therein.

SEC. 4400. A challenge to the panel can be interposed, only on the ground that they were not selected, drawn or summoned as prescribed by law.

SEC. 4401. A challenge to the panel must be taken before a challenge to any individual juror, and must be in writing, specifying distinctly and plainly the facts constituting the ground of challenge.

SEC. 4402. A challenge to the panel may be taken by either party, and upon the trial thereof the officers, whether judicial or ministerial, whose irregularity is complained of, as well as any other persons, may be examined to prove or disprove the facts alleged as the ground of the challenge.

SEC. 4403. If the facts of the challenge be allowed by the court, the jury must be discharged so far as the trial of the indictment in question is concerned. If it be disallowed, the court shall direct the jury to be impaneled:

SEC. 4404. A challenge to an individual juror may be taken orally, and is either:

1. For cause;
2. Peremptory.

\(^2\) There is no such thing known to our statute individual have been made, a challenge to the "array." We have two kinds of challenges, namely: to the panel, and to an individual juror. After challenges to the individual have been made, a challenge to the panel comes too late. The State v. Davis, 41 Iowa, 31. See, also, The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379.
CHAP. 26. CHALLENGING THE JURY.

SEC. 4405. A challenge for cause may be made, either by the state or by the defendant; it must distinctly specify the facts constituting the causes of challenge, and may be made for any of the following causes:

1. A previous conviction of the juror of a felony;
2. A want of any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person a competent juror;
3. Unsoundness of mind, or such defects in the faculties of the mind or the organs of the body, as render him incapable of performing the duties of a juror;
4. Affinity, or consanguinity within the ninth degree, to the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance the prosecution was instituted, or to the defendant, to be computed according to the rule of the civil law;
5. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, or landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance the prosecution was instituted, or in his employ on wages;
6. Being a party adverse to the defendant in a civil action, or having been the prosecutor against, or accused by him, in a criminal prosecution;
7. Having served on the grand jury which found the indictment, or on a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of a person whose death is the subject of the indictment;
8. Having served on a trial jury, which has tried another defendant for the offense charged in the indictment;
9. Having been on a jury formerly sworn to try the same indictment and whose verdict was set aside, or which was discharged without a verdict, after the cause was submitted to it;
10. Having served as a juror, in a civil action brought against the defendant, for the act charged as an offense;
11. Having formed or expressed such an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner as would prevent him from rendering a true verdict upon the evidence submitted on the trial;
12. Because of his being bail for any defendant in the indictment;
13. Having been or interested in carrying on any business, calling or employment, the carrying on of which is a violation of law, and when the defendant is indicted for a like offense;
14. Because he has been a witness, either for or against the defendant, on the preliminary trial or before the grand jury.

*A juror who stated upon his examination that he had not formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, but had in regard to some of the transactions in the case, stating further that he could render an impartial verdict upon the evidence, was held, to be competent to serve. The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379.

Where persons called as jurors stated that "they had repeatedly heard the matters of the case talked over, and had said and thought that if the reports were true the defendant was Exemption, R. § 4772.

Sec. 4406. An exemption from service on a jury is not a cause of challenge, but the privilege of the person exempted.

Sec. 4407. Upon the trial of a challenge to an individual juror, the juror challenged may be examined as a witness to prove or disprove the challenge, and must answer every question pertinent to the inquiry thereon, but his answers shall not afterwards be testimony against him.

Sec. 4408. Other witnesses may also be examined on either side; and the rules of evidence applicable to the trial of other issues shall govern the admission or exclusion of testimony on the trial of the challenge.

Sec. 4409. In all challenges the court shall determine the law and the fact, and must either allow or disallow the challenge.

Sec. 4410. The state shall first complete its challenges for cause, and the defendant afterwards.

Sec. 4411. After twelve jurors have been obtained, against whom no cause of challenge has been found to exist, peremptory challenges may be made.

guilty of the charge," and another person also called as a juror stated "that if the reports I have heard are true, the defendant is guilty. Unless my opinions are substantiated by the testimony, they would not modify my verdict." Each of said jurors stating that they had not formed or expressed an unqualified opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant; it was held, that they were not disqualified to serve as jurors. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435, 451.

A juror, in answer to interrogatories, stated that he had formed and expressed an opinion as to the killing, but not as to the guilt of the defendant; it was held, 1. That he was a competent juror; 2. That an opinion formed and expressed by a juror, does not affect his competency, or afford cause for challenge, unless it is as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, of the crime laid to his charge. The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188.

The failure of a defendant in a criminal action to object to a juror on the ground of incompetency is not cured by verdict. The State v. Bruce, 18 Id., 435; The State v. Hinkle, 6 Id., 380; The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188; The State v. Bryan, 49 Id., 379.

A juror when challenged for cause, answered under oath as follows: "I read an account of this matter in the papers, and came to the conclusion that the defendant shot McNamara, and that it was a criminal thing for him to do so * * * I have not formed such an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the accused as would prevent me from rendering a true verdict." Held, that the juror had not formed such an unqualified opinion as to render him incompetent as a juror in the case. The State v. Bruce, 48 Id., 550.
Sec. 4412. A peremptory challenge is an objection to a juror for which no reason need be given, but upon which the court must exclude him.

Sec. 4413. If the offense charged in the indictment is punishable with imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, or may be so punishable in the discretion of the court, the state is entitled to ten peremptory challenges and the defendant twenty; if any other felony, the state is entitled to six and the defendant to twelve; and if a misdemeanor, the state to three and the defendant to six challenges.

Sec. 4414. The state shall be entitled to the first challenge, and shall challenge one juror; the defendant shall be entitled to the second challenge, and shall challenge two jurors; the state shall be entitled to the third challenge, and shall challenge one juror; the defendant shall be entitled to the fourth challenge, and shall challenge two jurors; and so on, alternately, until all the challenges are exhausted.

Sec. 4415. The challenges of either party need not be all taken at once, but separately in the following order, including in each challenge all the causes of challenge belonging to the same class:
1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror, for cause;
3. To an individual juror, peremptorily.

Sec. 4416. After each challenge which is allowed, the vacancy occasioned thereby shall, if required, be filled before any further challenge is made, and any new juror thus introduced may be challenged for cause, as well as peremptorily, if the peremptory challenges are not exhausted.

Sec. 4417. No juror shall be sworn to try the issue until twelve jurors are accepted.

Sec. 4418. Bias in a juror against either party is no cause of challenge by the other. It may be waived by the party against whom it exists.

CHAPTER 27.

OF THE TRIAL OF AN ISSUE OF FACT IN AN INDICMENT.

Section 4419. The provisions of the code of civil practice, relative to the continuances of the trial of civil causes, shall apply to the continuance of criminal actions, except that no judgment for costs shall be rendered against a defendant in a criminal action on account of such continuance; and except as in this code otherwise provided; and except that the defendant shall, if he, upon entering his plea demand the facts stated in the affidavit for continuance, such statements assume the character of the witness' evidence, and cannot be impeached by showing that he has made statements out of court different from those in the affidavit. The State v. Shannahan, 22 Iowa, 435.

The ordinary rule, that the proper foundation must be laid before a witness can be impeached by proving statements made out of court, ap-TRIAL OF AN ISSUE OF FACT. [TITLE XXV.

Sec. 4420. [The jury having been impaneled and sworn, the court must proceed in the following order:

1. The clerk or district attorney must read the indictment, and state the defendant's plea to the jury, and the district attorney may briefly state the evidence by which he expects to sustain the indictment.

2. The attorney for the defendant may then briefly state his defense, and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it.

3. The state may then offer the evidence in support of the indictment.

4. The defendant or his counsel may then offer his evidence in support of his defense.

5. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reasons in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case.

6. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted to the jury on both sides, without argument, the district attorney must commence, the defendant follow by one or two counsel at his option, unless the court shall permit him to be heard by a larger number, and the district attorney conclude, confining himself to a response to the arguments of the defendant's counsel, provided that where two or more defendants are on trial for the same offense, they may be heard by one counsel each; and provided further, that the court, when the affirmative of the issue is with the defendant, may, in its discretion, award to the defendant the last argument;

7. The court shall then charge the jury in writing without oral explanation or qualification.]

Sec. 4421. The district attorney in offering the evidence in support of the indictment, in pursuance of the order prescribed in the last section, under the second sub-division thereof, shall not be permitted to introduce any witness who was not examined before the grand jury, and the minutes of whose testimony was not taken by the clerk of the grand jury, and presented with the indictment to the court, unless he shall have given to the defendant a notice in writing, stating the name, place of residence, and occupation of such witness, applies to this class of cases whether criminal or civil. The rule does not lose its application if the statements out of court were made under oath. Id.

Where in a criminal case, the facts stated in an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of absent witnesses, are admitted by the prosecution, and are read on the trial as the evidence of the absent witnesses, in order to avoid a continuance, such affidavits are not admissible on a second trial of the cause at a subsequent term. The State v. Felter, 32 Id., 43.

* Under this section the state is not, on the trial of an indictment, restricted, in the examination of a witness whose name is indorsed on the indictment, to the testimony given by him before the grand jury. If the name of a witness is indorsed on the indictment, and the minutes of his testimony are properly presented and filed, he may be examined as to any and all matters within his knowledge touching or bearing upon the defendant’s guilt or innocence. Per Lowe and Cole, JJ. in The State v. Bowers, 17 Iowa, 46. Wright, Ch. J. not concurring; Dillon, J. absent.

The state may, in a criminal case, introduce as rebutting evidence, the testimony of witnesses who were not before the grand jury and whose names are not indorsed on the indictment, and of whose introduction no notice has been given to the defendant. The State v. Parish, 22 Id., 284.

But that is not rebutting testimony which seeks by another witness, after the defense has closed, to sustain the character of the prosecuting witness whose testimony has been impeached, by showing that the statements of the prosecutor as he gave them on his examination, were in accordance with the facts of the case. Id.

The district court has the discretion to permit a witness to be examined on behalf of the state as to matters not rebutting, after the defendant has concluded his testimony. The State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 165.
and the substance of what he expects to prove by him on the trial, at least four days before the commencement of such trial; [Provided, that whenever the district attorney desires to introduce evidence to support, the indictment of which he shall not have given said four day's notice because of insufficient time therefor since he learned said evidence could be obtained, he may move the court for leave to introduce such evidence, giving the name, place of residence, and occupation of the witnesses he desires to introduce, and the substance of what he expects to prove by said witnesses, and showing diligence such as is required in a motion for a continuance supported by affidavit, whereupon, if the court sustain said motion, the defendant shall elect whether said cause shall be continued on his motion, or the witnesses shall then testify; and if said defendant shall not elect to have said cause continued, the district attorney may examine said witnesses in the same manner and with the same effect as though four days notice thereof had been given defendant as hereinbefore provided, except that the district attorney, in the examination of said witnesses, shall be strictly confined to the matters set out in his motion.]

SEC. 4422. When the defendant's only plea is a former conviction or acquittal, the order prescribed in the second and third sub-divisions of the section immediately preceding the last, shall be reversed, and the defendant shall first offer his evidence in support of his defense.

SEC. 4423. The court shall not restrict counsel as to time in their arguments.

SEC. 4424. When two or more defendants are jointly indicted for felony, any defendant requiring it may be tried separately. In other cases, defendants jointly indicted may be tried separately or jointly in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4425. Upon a trial for a conspiracy, in a case where an overt act is required by law to constitute the offense, the defendant cannot be convicted unless one or more overt acts be expressly alleged in the indictment, nor unless one or more of the acts alleged be proved; but other overt acts not alleged in the indictment may be given in evidence.

SEC. 4426. The rules of evidence in civil cases are applicable also to criminal cases, except as otherwise provided.*

*The defendant in a criminal case who has accepted service of notice that a witness whose name is not indorsed on the indictment will be introduced on the trial, and who has agreed to treat such notice as personally served, cannot object that it was not signed by the district attorney. The State v. Watrous, 13 Iowa, 459. See State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 164; cited in notes to section 4337, ante.

While two or more defendants jointly indicted may, in the discretion of the court, be tried jointly or separately, a separate judgment must be entered in each. The State v. Hunter, 33 Iowa, 361.

Where several parties have been jointly indicted, and they demand separate trials, the order in which they shall be tried may be determined by the district attorney, under the direction of the court. The State v. Hudson, 60 Iowa, 157.

See as to verbal declarations as evidence, The County of Mahaska v. Ingalls, 16 Iowa, 81; The State v. Woodard, 20 Id., 542, 550.

In a trial for murder, where the defense is insanity, medical witnesses who have no personal knowledge of the prisoner cannot be allowed to state an opinion formed from the testimony in the case and the defendant's conduct on the trial, as to his sanity or insanity at the time of the commission of the act. This would practically be putting such witnesses in the place of the jury to decide the question. The State v. Felter, 25 Iowa, 67.

It is competent to show the insanity of the defendant prior to the commission of the act; and a physician who visited him during such insanity, and from actual observation and examination became acquainted with his mental condition may give an opinion as to his sanity or insanity at the time when he thus observed or examined him. Id.

So also, it is competent to show, in such cases, that the defendant's father was subject to insanity. Id.

On an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses, consisting of representations by defendant that he had money on deposit in a
SEC. 4427. The confession of the defendant, unless made in open court, will not warrant a conviction unless accompanied with other proof that the offense was committed. 7

SEC. 4428. Where there is a reasonable doubt of the defendant being proven to be guilty, he is entitled to an acquittal. 3

SEC. 4429. Where there is a reasonable doubt of the degree of the offense of which the defendant is proven to be guilty, he shall only be convicted of the lower degree. 4

SEC. 4430. If it appear by the testimony that the facts proved constitute an offense of a higher nature than that charged in the indictment, the court may direct the jury to be discharged and all proceedings on the indictment to be suspended, and may order the defendant to be committed or continued on bail to answer any new indictment which may be found against him for the higher offense.

SEC. 4431. If the indictment for the higher offense be submitted by the grand jury or be not found at the next term, the court must proceed to try the defendant on the original indictment. 3

SEC. 4432. Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper that the jury should view the place in which the offense is charged to have been committed, or in which any other material fact occurred, it may order the jury to be conducted in a body, in the custody of proper officers, to the place, which shall be shown them by a person appointed by the court for that purpose. The officers must be sworn to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with the jury, on any subject connected with the trial, nor to do so themselves, except the person appointed by the court for that purpose, and that only to show the place to be viewed, and to return them into court without unnecessary delay at a specified time.

SEC. 4433. If a juror have any personal knowledge respecting a fact in controversy in a cause, he must declare the same in open court during the trial; and if during the retirement of the jury, a juror declare any fact which could be evidence in the cause, as of his own knowledge, the jury must return into court and the juror must be sworn as a witness, and examined in the presence of the parties, if his evidence be admissible.

SEPARATION OF JURY.

SEC. 4434. The jurors sworn to try an indictment, may, at any time before the final submission of the cause to them, in the discretion of the court, be permitted to separate, except where one of the parties object thereto, or be kept together in charge of proper officers. The officers must be sworn to keep the jury together during the adjournment of the court, and to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with them on any subject connected with the trial, nor do so themselves, and to return them into court at the time to which it adjourns.

SEC. 4435. The jury, whether permitted to separate or kept together in charge of sworn officers, must be admonished by the court that it is their duty not to permit any person to speak to or communicate with them on any subject connected with the trial, and that any and all attempts to do so, should be immediately reported by them to the court, and that they should not converse among themselves on any subject connected with the trial, or form or express an opinion thereon, until the cause is finally submitted to them. This admonition must be given or referred to by the court at each adjournment, during the progress of the trial, previous to the final submission of the cause to the jury.

TRIAL.

SEC. 4436. The court shall, on the trial of every indictment, when requested by either party, keep, or cause to be kept, by some person for that purpose by it appointed, full and accurate minutes of the testimony of each witness examined on the trial, showing the name of the witness, the place of residence, and his occupation, as well as of any oral evidence introduced, either by the state or defendant, after a plea or verdict of guilty, to be considered by the court in aggravation or alleviation of the punishment in pronouncing sentence against the defendant, which shall be certified to be full and accurate by the judge, and signed by him, and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, which shall be deemed a part of the record of the cause. The person who acts under such an appointment shall be entitled to such compensation for his services as may be allowed by the court, which shall be paid by the proper county, and shall be taxed as costs.

---

The district court may, in its discretion, under section 4434 of the code, permit the jury in the trial of a capital case, to separate, under the admonition of the court as required by section 4435, at the various adjournments of the court during the trial, and prior to the final submission of the case to the jury, although the accused at the time objects to such separation. The discretion confided to the court by the statute, would however, be more safely exercised in granting than in denying the request of the accused. The State v. Felter, 25 Iowa, 67.

This section requires jurors, pending a trial in which they are acting, to keep their minds in statu quo, and if during the adjournments of court they do no act which impairs their mind or clouds their understanding, when again called to hear the evidence or arguments of counsel; the drinking of intoxicating liquors by them during such adjournments is not such misconduct as to prejudice either party. The State v. Bruce, 48 Id., 593, 597.

There is a wide distinction between the duty of a juror during an adjournment of the court pending the trial, and his duty after the case is submitted to him for his determination. Id.
When several defendants. R. § 4810.
Trial of libel. R. § 4811.
Of offenses other than libel. R. § 4812.

SEC. 4437. Upon an indictment against several defendants, any one or more may be convicted or acquitted.
SEC. 4438. On the trial of an indictment for a libel, the jury have the right to determine the law and the fact.
SEC. 4439. On the trial of an indictment for any other offense than libel, questions of law are to be decided by the court; saving the right of the defendant and the state to except. Questions of fact are to be tried by jury. And although the jury have the power to find a general verdict which includes questions of law as well as fact, they are bound, nevertheless, to receive as law what is laid down as such by the court.

INSTRUCTIONS.

SEC. 4440. The court shall, on motion of either party, instruct the jury on the law applicable to the case, which must always be in writing, signed by the judge and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, and it is to be deemed a part of the record of the cause, and no oral qualification thereof shall be permitted.
SEC. 4441. Any instruction asked by either party to be given by the court must be in writing, and must be either given or refused, and so marked and signed by the judge, and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, and is to be deemed a part of the record. It may be qualified in writing by the court, but not orally, and the qualification must be distinguished, intelligibly, from the instruction as originally asked by the party, and signed by the judge.
SEC. 4442. After hearing the charge, the jury may either decide in court or may retire for deliberation. If they do not agree without retiring, one or more officers must be sworn to keep them together in some private and convenient place without meat or drink, water excepted, and not to suffer any person to speak to or communicate with them themselves unless it be to ask them whether they have agreed upon their verdict, and not to communicate to any one the state of their deliberation or the verdict agreed upon, until after the same shall have been declared in open court, and received by the court, and to return them into court when they shall have so agreed upon their verdict, unless by permission or order of the court, or they be sooner discharged.

DISCHARGE OF JURY.

SEC. 4443. If before the conclusion of a trial a juror become sick so as to be unable to perform his duty, the court may order him to be discharged, and in such case a new juror may be sworn and the trial begin anew, or the jury may be discharged and a new jury then or afterwards be impaneled.
SEC. 4444. The court may also discharge the jury where it appears that it has not jurisdiction of the offense, or that the facts as charged in the indictment do not constitute an offense punishable by law.

This section of the code is directory only, and the failure to comply therewith will be held an error only when the party complaining is prejudiced thereby. The State v. Stanley, 43
Iowa, 221.

The supreme court will not review instructions which have not been made a part of the record, either by the signature of the judge, as contemplated by sections 4440 and 4441, of the code, or by being incorporated into a bill of exceptions. The State v. Gibhardt, 13 Iowa, 473.
SEC. 4445. If the jury be discharged because the court has not jurisdiction of the offense charged in the indictment, and it appear that it was committed out of the jurisdiction of this state, the defendant must be discharged or ordered to be retained in custody a reasonable time, until the district attorney shall have a reasonable opportunity to inform the chief executive of the state in which the offense was committed of the facts, and for said officer to require the delivery of the offender.

SEC. 4446. If the offense was committed within the exclusive jurisdiction of another county of this state, the court must direct the defendant to be committed for such time as shall be deemed reasonable to await a warrant from the proper county for his arrest; or, if the offense be bailable, he may be admitted to bail in an undertaking with sufficient sureties that he will, within such time as the court may appoint, render himself amenable to a warrant for his arrest from the proper county, and if not sooner arrested thereon will attend at the office of the sheriff of the county where the trial was had, at a certain time particularly designated in the undertaking, to surrender himself upon the warrant, if issued, or that the bail will forfeit such sum as the court may fix, to be mentioned in the undertaking.

SEC. 4447. In the case provided for in the last section, the clerk must transmit, forthwith, a certified copy of the indictment and all the papers in the action filed with him, except the undertaking mentioned in the last section, to the district attorney of the proper county.

SEC. 4448. If the defendant be not arrested on a warrant from the proper county he shall be discharged from custody, or his bail in the action shall be exonerated, or money deposited instead of bail shall be refunded, as the case may be, and the sureties in the undertaking must be discharged.

SEC. 4449. If he be arrested, the same proceedings must be had thereon as upon the arrest of a defendant in another county on a warrant of arrest issued by a magistrate.

SEC. 4450. If the jury be discharged because the facts set forth do not constitute an offense punishable by law, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged therefrom, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded, unless in its opinion a new indictment can be framed upon which the defendant can be legally convicted, in which case the court may direct that the case be submitted to the same or another grand jury.

SEC. 4451. When a defendant, having given bail, appears for trial, the court may, in its discretion, at any time after his appearance for trial, order him to be committed to the custody of the proper officer to abide the judgment or further order of the court; and he shall be committed and held in custody accordingly.
CHAPTER 28.

OF THE CONDUCT OF JURY AFTER THE CAUSE IS SUBMITTED TO IT.

SECTION 4452. Upon retiring for deliberation, the jury may take with it all papers which have been received as evidence in the case, except depositions and copies of such parts of public records or private documents as ought not, in the opinion of the court, to be taken from the person having them in possession.

SEC. 4453. The jury may also take with them notes of the testimony or other proceedings on the trial taken by themselves or any of them, but none taken by any other person.

SEC. 4454. After the jury have retired for deliberation, if there be any disagreement between them as to any part of the testimony, or if they desire to be informed on any point of law arising in the cause, they must require the officer to conduct them into court, and upon their being brought in, the information required must be given in the presence of, or, after oral notice, to the district attorney, and the defendant or his counsel.

SEC. 4455. If, after the retirement of the jury, one of them be taken sick so as to prevent the continuance of his duty, or any other accident or cause occur to prevent their being kept together for deliberation, the court may discharge them.

SEC. 4456. Except as provided in the last section, the jury cannot be discharged after the cause is submitted to them until they have agreed upon their verdict and rendered it in open court, unless by the consent of both parties entered upon the record, or unless at the expiration of such time as the court may deem proper, it satisfactorily appears that there is no reasonable probability that the jury can agree.

SEC. 4457. In all cases where a jury is discharged or prevented from giving a verdict by reason of any accident or other cause, except where the defendant is discharged from the indictment during the progress of the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, the cause may be again tried at the same or another term of the court.

SEC. 4458. While the jury is absent the court may adjourn from time to time as to other business, but it shall be nevertheless deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury until a verdict be rendered or the jury is discharged.

SEC. 4459. A final adjournment of the court discharges the jury.

* The discharge of the jury, in a criminal case, on the ground that they are unable to agree, is a matter within the sound discretion of the court, and when not abused, will not work a discharge of the prisoner on the ground that he has been put in jeopardy. The State v. Vaughn, 29 Iowa 286; The State v. Redman, 17 Id., 329.
CHAPTER 29.

OF THE VERDICT.

SECTION 4460. When the jury has agreed upon its verdict, it must be conducted into court by the officer having it in charge. The names of the jurors must then be called, and if all do not appear the rest must be discharged without giving a verdict. In such case the cause may again be tried at the same or another term.

Sec. 4461. If the indictment be for a felony, the defendant must be present at the rendition of the verdict. If it be for a misdemeanor, the verdict may be rendered in his absence.†

Sec. 4462. When the jury have answered to their names, the court or the clerk shall ask them whether they have agreed upon the verdict, and if the foreman answers in the affirmative they must, on being required, declare the same.‡

Sec. 4463. The jury may either render a general verdict, or where they are in doubt as to the legal effect of the facts proven, they may, except upon an indictment for libel, find a special verdict.¶

Sec. 4464. A general verdict upon a plea of not guilty is either "guilty" or "not guilty," which imports a conviction or acquittal on every material allegation in the indictment. Upon a plea of a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense it is either "for the state" or "for the defendant."†

Sec. 4465. Upon an indictment for an offense consisting of different degrees, the jury may find the defendant not guilty of the degree charged in the indictment, and guilty of any degree inferior thereto, or of an attempt to commit the offense, if punishable by indictment.∥

Sec. 4466. In all other cases the defendant may be found guilty of any offense, the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged in the indictment.¶

† That the verdict was rendered in the absence of a defendant indicted for forgery and that the names of the jury were not called, is erroneous but where it appears that no prejudice resulted therefrom the case will not be reversed. The State v. Vaughn, 29 Iowa, 286.

‡ The provisions of sections 4460 and 4462, of the code contemplate that the jury, after informing the court of their agreement upon a verdict, must, on being required by the court, declare the same, which may be done orally. Per Miller J. in The State v. Collins, 32 Iowa on p. 42.

¶ On the trial of an indictment charging the defendant with "concealing," and with "receiving" and "aiding in the concealment of stolen property," the jury returned a verdict as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of aiding in concealing the stolen property mentioned in the indictment, as charged therein, and assess the value of the same at one thousand dollars. This was held, to be equivalent to a general verdict. The State v. Turner, 19 Iowa, 144.

The jury themselves are to determine whether their verdict shall be general or special. It can be special only when they are in doubt as to the legal effect of the facts proved. The State v. Ridley & Johnson, 48 Id., 570, 374.

∥ A general verdict of guilty imports a conviction of the defendant in a criminal trial, on every material allegation or charge in the indictment. It is accordingly held, that an inquiry by the court of the jury, upon their returning a verdict of guilty, as to whether they found the defendant guilty of the particular charge mentioned in the indictment was not erroneous. The State v. Collins, 32 Iowa, 36.

† Murder is the felonious killing with malice. Manslaughter is the felonious killing without malice. The latter is not a degree of the former. The State v. White, 45 Iowa, 325.

∥ Section 4466 of the code, authorizing the conviction and punishment of an accused for an offense less than felony, when it is included in or is only a less degree of the offense charged in the indictment, is not in conflict with section 11 Art. 1 of the state constitution. The State v. Jarvis, 21 Iowa, 44.

On an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder, the defendant may be found
Sec. 4467. On an indictment against several, if the jury cannot agree upon a verdict as to all, they may render a verdict as to those in regard to whom they do agree, on which a judgment shall be entered accordingly, and the case as to the rest may be tried by another jury.

Sec. 4468. If the jury render a verdict which is neither a general nor special verdict, the court may direct them to reconsider it, and it shall not be recorded until it be rendered in some form from which it can be clearly understood what is the intent of the jury, whether to render a general verdict or to find the facts specially and leave the judgment to the court.1

Sec. 4469. If the jury persist in finding an informal verdict, from which, however, it can be understood that their intention is to find for the defendant upon the issue, it shall be entered in the terms in which it is found, and the court must give judgment of acquittal. But no judgment of conviction can be given unless the jury expressly find against the defendant upon the issue, or judgment be given against him upon a special verdict.

Sec. 4470. When a verdict is rendered, and before it is recorded, the jury may be polled on the requirement of either party; in which case they shall be severally asked whether it be their verdict, and if any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation.

Sec. 4471. When the verdict is given, and is such as the court may receive, the clerk may immediately enter it in full upon the record, and must read it to the jury, and inquire of them whether it is their verdict. If any juror disagree, the fact must be entered upon the record, and the jury again sent out. But if no disagreement be expressed, the verdict is complete and the jury must be discharged from the case.

Sec. 4472. If the defense be the insanity of the defendant, the jury must be instructed, if they acquit him on that ground, to state that fact in their verdict. The court may thereupon, if the defendant be in custody, and his discharge is deemed dangerous to the public peace and safety, order him to be committed to the Iowa insane hospital, or retained in custody until he becomes sane.

Sec. 4473. If judgment of acquittal be given on a general verdict, and the defendant be not detained for any other legal cause, he must be discharged as soon as the judgment is given.

An indictment for burglary includes the offense of entering a dwelling-house in the nighttime without breaking, and will admit of a conviction for the latter offense. The State v. Maxwell, 42 Id., 208.

On an indictment for rape, the defendant may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape. The State v. McLaughlin, 44 Id., 82, 87.

An assault with intent to commit manslaughter is included in an assault with intent to commit murder, and on an indictment for the latter offense, the defendant may be convicted of the former. The State v. White, 45 Id., 328, overruling the same case in 41 Iowa, 318, which see. So, on such an indictment, a conviction may be had for an assault and battery. Dixon v. The State, 3 Id., 416.

On an indictment for murder, the defendant may be found guilty of manslaughter. Gordon v. The State, 3 Id., 410.

Under an indictment for maiming or disfiguring, the defendant may be convicted of an aggravated assault and battery. Benham v. The State, 1 Iowa, 542.

1 Where under an indictment for burglary, the jury found the "defendant guilty of entering the dwelling-house of Charles E. Gale, in the nighttime, as stated in the indictment," it was held that this was a special verdict, and failed to respond to all the facts necessary to the rendition of a judgment thereon, and that the court, therefore, had a right to direct the jury to reconsider it. The State v. Maxwell, 42 Iowa, 208, 214.
SPECIAL VERDICT.

SEC. 4474. A special verdict is that by which the jury finds the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. It must present the conclusions of fact as established by the evidence and not the evidence to prove them, and these conclusions of fact must be so presented as that nothing remains to the court but to draw conclusions of law upon them.

SEC. 4475. The special verdict must be reduced to writing by the jury or in their presence, entered upon the minutes of the court, read to the jury and agreed to by them, before they are discharged.

SEC. 4476. The special verdict need not be in any particular form, but shall be sufficient if it present intelligibly the facts found by the jury.

SEC. 4477. The court must give judgment upon the special verdict as follows:

1. If the plea be not guilty and the facts prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged in the indictment, or of any other offense of which he could be convicted in law under that indictment, judgment shall be given accordingly. But if the facts found do not prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged, or of any offense of which he could be so convicted under the indictment, judgment of acquittal must be rendered;

2. If the plea be a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense, the court must give judgment of conviction or acquittal according as the facts prove or fail to prove the former conviction or acquittal.

SEC. 4478. If the jury do not, in a special verdict, pronounce affirmatively or negatively on the facts necessary to enable the court to give judgment, or if they find the evidence of facts merely, and not the conclusions of fact from the evidence as established to their satisfaction, the court may order them to retire for further deliberation.

CHAPTER 30.

OF BILLS OF EXCEPTION.

SECTION 4479. On the trial of an indictment, exceptions may be taken by the state, or by the defendant, to any decision of the court upon matters of law, in any of the following cases:

1. In disallowing a challenge to an individual juror;

2. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence on the trial of any challenge;

3. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence, or in deciding any matter of law, not purely discretionary, on the trial of the issue.

SEC. 4480. Nothing herein contained is to be construed so as to deprive either party of the right of excepting to any action or decision of the court which affects any other material or substantial right of either party, whether before or after the trial of the indictment, or on such trial.
CHAPTER 31.

OF NEW TRIAL.

SECTION 4487. A new trial is a re-examination of the issue in the same court before another jury, after a verdict has been given.

SEC. 4488. The granting of a new trial places the parties in the same position as if no trial had been had. All the testimony must be produced anew and the former verdict cannot be used or referred to either in the evidence or in argument.

SEC. 4489. The court may grant a new trial for the following causes, or any of them:

1. When the trial has been had in the absence of the defendant, if the indictment be for a felony;
2. When the jury has received any evidence, paper, or document out of court not authorized by the court;

m Where the certificate of the judge shows the rulings made during the trial, and states that the same were duly excepted to, such certificate is a sufficient compliance with the statute respecting bills of exceptions. The State v. Fay, 43 Iowa, 651.
3. When the jury have separated without leave of the court, after retiring to deliberate upon their verdict, or have been guilty of any misconduct tending to prevent a fair and due consideration of the case;

4. When the verdict has been decided by lot, or by means other than a fair expression of opinion on the part of all the jurors;

5. When the court has misdirected the jury in a material matter of law;

6. When the verdict is contrary to law or evidence. But no more than two new trials shall be granted for this cause alone;

7. When the court has refused properly to instruct the jury;

8. When from any other cause the defendant has not received a fair and impartial trial.

Sec. 4490. The application for a new trial can be made only by the defendant, and must be made before judgment.

Application: when made.

An objection to the grand jury comes too late in a motion for a new trial. It should, at least, be made before pleading to the indictment. The State v. Reid, 20 Iowa, 413, 424, citing The State v. Ingalls & King, 17 Id., 8; The State v. Howard & Cress, 10 Id., 101; The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 455.

While it is better that the defendant should be present, when a motion for a new trial in a criminal case is made and passed upon by the court, it is not clear that it is necessary, and where the defendant objected to judgment on that ground, and the court offered to again consider and hear a re-argument of the motion, it was held that there was no error to the prejudice of the defendant. The State v. Decklott, 19 Id., 445.

When the admission or absence of evidence would not have controlled the verdict, and the verdict is sustained by the clear and conclusive nature of the evidence properly admitted, the supreme court will hesitate before reversing a judgment on the ground that such evidence was improperly admitted. The State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94.

A new trial should be ordered where the verdict of the trial of a criminal case fails to pronounce affirmatively or negatively on all facts necessary to enable the court to give judgment; and where no order has been made that the jury retire for further deliberation, the defendant is not entitled to a discharge, but the court should set the verdict aside and order a new trial. The State v. Arthur, 21 Id., 322; The State v. Turner, 19 Id., 144. See, also, The State v. Redman, 17 Id., 929.

The admission of that which could have worked no prejudice to the defendant is not ground for a new trial. The State v. Shean, 32 Id., 88.

The refusal of the court below to sustain an objection to an improper question propounded to a witness, is no ground of reversal if the objecting party was not prejudiced thereby. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 308.

A defendant will not be condemned by an erroneous assumption by his own counsel which resulted to his prejudice, but a new trial will not be ordered when it is apparent from the record that such assumption did not operate to his prejudice. The State v. Turner, 19 Id., 144.

When, from a view of all the equitable circumstances, it is evident that the defendant in a criminal case, without fault on his part, has not had a full and impartial trial, a new trial will be ordered, although no one of those circumstances amount to error in law. Trulock v. The State, 1 Id., 515. See, also, The State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; The State v. Collins, 20 Id., 85.

Greater latitude is allowed to the party asking a new trial in a criminal than in a civil case; and all the reasons that apply in favor of an interference with the verdict in a civil case apply with still greater force in criminal trials. State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72; The State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401.

A motion for a new trial, on the ground that the jurors had, during their retirement, read the notes of the testimony as taken by one of the attorneys on the trial, was properly overruled. The State v. Accola, 11 Id., 246.

When a juror, after retiring to consider upon the verdict, left the jury-room in charge of the sheriff and went to a grocery store, where he drank a glass of ale or lager beer, and then returned to the jury-room and participated in finding the verdict; held, that the misconduct of the juror was sufficient ground to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial. The State v. Baldy, 17 Id., 39; Bryan v. Harrow, 27 Id., 404.

Where a juror, during the progress of a trial, used intoxicating liquors combined with curative agents, as a medicine, without medical advice, will not vitiate the verdict, in the absence of a showing that it was so used without the knowledge of the defendant or his attorney, or that its effects were intoxicating. The State v. Morphy, 33 Id., 270.

Where a motion for a new trial is based upon the ground that one of the jurors, previous to the trial, had formed and expressed an unqualified opinion that the defendant was guilty of the offense charged, it must be made to appear of record that the juror was examined on oath,
CHAPTER 32.

OF ARREST OF JUDGMENT.

Section 4491. A motion in arrest of judgment, is an application to the court in which the trial was had, on the part of the defendant, that no judgment be rendered upon a verdict against him, or on a plea of guilty, and shall be granted:
1. Upon any ground which would have been ground for demurrer;
2. When upon the whole record no legal judgment can be pronounced.

as to whether he had formed or expressed such opinion, and if it be not thus shown there is no ground for a new trial. The State v. Shelly, 8 Id., 477. See, also, The State v. Funk, 17 Id., 365.

In such case, the affidavit of the defendant, nor a recital in the record that "the jury was impaneled and sworn," will not be sufficient to show that they were examined under oath as to whether they had formed or expressed an unqualified opinion as to the defendant's guilt. Id.

The supreme court may review an order of the district court granting or denying a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, but it will interfere only when it is made manifest that the discretion vested in the district court has been abused. The State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; The State v. Lyon, 10 Id., 340; The State v. Funk, 17 Id., 365; The State v. Siker, 22 Id., 52; The State v. Polson, 29 Id., 135; The State v. Collins, 20 Id., 85.

A new trial will be granted in a criminal case where the verdict is against the weight of the evidence, and in the consideration of the evidence greater latitude is allowed than would be countenanced in civil cases. The State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; The State v. Brainard, 25 Id., 573; The State v. Woolsey, 30 Id., 251; The State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72.

Where a verdict of guilty was rendered upon proof of the stolen property being found in the possession of the defendant, notwithstanding an alibi was testified to by several witnesses, whose testimony no attempt was made to impeach or contradict, a new trial was granted. The State v. Woolsey, 30 Id., 251.

Where the evidence on the part of the state in a criminal prosecution is insufficient to support a verdict of guilty, the supreme court will not hesitate to grant a new trial. The State v. Moffitt, 31 Id., 316; The State v. Hilton & Gordon, 22 Id., 241; The State v. May, 20 Id., 305.

In a criminal trial for a high offense, where the case is complicated, it is the duty of the district court trying the case, whether requested or not by counsel, to point out to the jury the controverted questions of fact, and to see that the law applicable thereto is given to the jury in proper instructions. And where this is not done, and it is doubtful whether the verdict against the defendant effectuates justice, a new trial will be awarded. The State v. Brainard, 25 Id., 572.

The giving of erroneous instructions to the jury will not be sufficient ground for a new trial, if the evidence with the law given will sustain the verdict. The State v. Coaster, 10 Id., 489.

The refusal of the court to give instructions which are unobjectionable, will not justify a reversal of the judgment when the record does not contain all of the instructions given to the jury. The State v. Johnson, 19 Id., 290.

An instruction, which, when considered alone, would be erroneous, will not be sufficient ground of reversal, if when taken in connection with the other instructions it could have worked no prejudice to the defendant. The State v. Johnson, 8 Id., 529; The State v. Finn, 10 Id., 19.

On the hearing of a motion for a new trial in a criminal case, an affidavit of one of the jurors, that the verdict was never assented to by him, is not admissible. The State v. Douglass, 7 Id., 413.

Jurors cannot be compelled to make affidavits showing that the jury disregarded or refused to consider the instructions of the court; nor can their declarations be received to prove such facts. Grody v. The State, 4 Id., 461.

The supreme court, in reviewing the judgment of the court below, as to the sufficiency of the evidence, will give much weight to the fact that the judgment is sustained by two different verdicts rendered by different juries, upon different trials of the same case. The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 68; Jourdan v. Reed, 1 Id., 133.

Where the accused has been convicted on the possession of intoxicating liquors, kept for illegal sale, in its nature a criminal one, and after trial in the district court on appeal it is error to sustain a motion by the state for a new trial. The State v. Certain Intoxicating Liquors, etc., 40 Id., 95.
SEC. 4492. The court may also, upon its own observation of any of these grounds, arrest the judgment on its own motion.

SEC. 4493. If the court is of opinion from the evidence on the trial that the defendant is guilty of a public offense, of which no legal conviction can be had on the indictment, he may be held to answer the offense in like manner as upon a preliminary examination.

SEC. 4494. The motion may be made at any time before judgment, or after judgment, during the same term.°

CHAPTER 33.
OF JUDGMENT.

SECTION 4495. Upon a verdict of not guilty for the defendant, or special verdict upon which a judgment of acquittal must be given, the court must render judgment of acquittal immediately.

SEC. 4496. Upon a plea of guilty, upon a verdict of guilty, or a special verdict, upon which a judgment of conviction must be rendered, the court must fix a time for pronouncing judgment. The time appointed for pronouncing judgment must be at least three days after the verdict is rendered, if the court remain in session so long, or if not, as remote a time as can reasonably be allowed, but in no case can the judgment be pronounced in less than six hours after the verdict is rendered.°

SEC. 4497. For the purpose of judgment, if the conviction be for a felony, the defendant must be personally present; if it be for misdemeanor, judgment may be pronounced in his absence.°

SEC. 4498. If the defendant has been discharged on bail, or has deposited money instead thereof, and does not appear for judgment when his personal appearance is necessary, the court, in addition to the forfeiture of the undertaking of bail, or money deposited, may make an order directing the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest.

SEC. 4499. The clerk, on the application of the district attorney, may, accordingly, at any time after the order, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties for his arrest.

SEC. 4500. The bench warrant may be substantially in the following form:

COUNTY OF . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To any Peace Officer in the State:

A. B. having been duly convicted on the . . . . day of . . . ., A. D.

° See cases cited in notes to sections 4487 and 4490, on new trials.

° Where a defendant was convicted of an assault and battery, it was held, that judgment might be rendered against him in his absence. Hughes v. The State, 4 Iowa, 554.

While it is better that the defendant should be present when a motion for a new trial, in a case of felony, is made and passed upon by the court, it is not clear that it is necessary. The State v. Docklett, 19 Id., 447.
18... in the district court of ....... county, of the crime of (here designate it generally, as in the indictment).
You are, therefore, hereby commanded to arrest the said A. B. and bring him before said court for judgment, if it be then in session, or if it be not then in session, you deliver him into the custody of the sheriff of said county.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court, at my [seal] office in ......., in said county, this .... day of ......., A. D. 18...

By order of the court. ....... ......., Clerk.

Sec. 4501. The bench warrant may be served in any county in the state.

Sec. 4502. Whether the bench warrant be served in the county where it was issued, or in another county, the officer must arrest the defendant and bring him before the court, or commit him to the officer mentioned in the warrant according to the command thereof.

Sec. 4503. Where the defendant appears for judgment, he shall be informed by the court, or by the clerk under its direction, of the nature of the indictment and of his plea, and the verdict, if any thereon, and must be asked whether he have any legal cause to show why judgment should not be pronounced against him.7

Sec. 4504. He may show for cause against the judgment, that he is insane, or any sufficient ground for a new trial, or in arrest of judgment.

Sec. 4505. If the court is of opinion that there is reasonable ground for believing him insane, the question of his insanity shall be determined as provided in this code, and if he is found to be insane, such proceedings shall be had as are herein directed.

Sec. 4506. If he move for a new trial, or in arrest of judgment, the court shall defer the judgment, and proceed to hear and decide the motions.

Sec. 4507. If no sufficient cause be alleged or appear to the court why judgment should not be pronounced, it shall thereupon be rendered.

Sec. 4408. If the defendant is convicted of two or more offenses, before judgment on either, the punishment of each of which is, or may be, imprisonment, the judgment may be so rendered that the imprisonment upon any one shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment upon any other of the offenses.8

Sec. 4509. A judgment that the defendant pay a fine may also direct that he be imprisoned until the fine be satisfied, specifying the extent of the imprisonment, which shall not exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine.9

7 When the record is silent, the supreme court will presume that in pronouncing sentence after verdict, the district court observed the directions of this section. The State v. Wood, 17 Iowa, 18; The State v. Wells, 46 Id., 662, 666. 8 Where a party arraigned under two indictments pleaded guilty upon both and was sentenced upon each to one year in the penitentiary, and it was not provided in either judgment which term of imprisonment should first commence, nor that one term should commence at the expiration of the other, but the mittimus in the case in which judgment was last entered provided that the term of imprisonment in that case should commence at the expiration of the first, held, that both terms would not run concurrently, but one should commence at the expiration of the other. Mier v. McMillen, 51 Iowa, 240. 9 Where a defendant, sentenced to imprisonment in default of the payment of a fine entered against him in a criminal case, substantially complied with sections 4881, and 5005 of the
SEC. 4510. When a person is, in any event, to be committed to jail, if there be no jail or no sufficient one in the county where the party would be committed under the ordinary provisions of law, the court or magistrate committing may order him to be committed to the jail of some other county, which shall be the one which is most convenient and safe, and the county to which the cause originally belonged shall be holden for all the expenses thereof.

SEC. 4511. In all cases, except murder in the first degree, the court rendering judgment must make an order fixing the amount in which bail must be taken, and there shall be no execution of the judgment until such order be made.

CHAPTER 34.

OF EXECUTION.

SECTION 4512. When a judgment of imprisonment, either in the penitentiary or county jail is pronounced, a certified copy of the entry thereof in the record book, must be forthwith furnished to the officer whose duty it is to execute the same, who shall proceed and execute it accordingly, and no other warrant or authority is necessary to justify or require its execution.

SEC. 4513. If the judgment be imprisonment, or fine and imprisonment until it be satisfied, the defendant must forthwith be committed to the custody of the proper officer, and by him detained until the judgment be complied with, or the defendant discharged by due course of law.

A defendant committed for the non-payment of a fine under section 4092 of the code, may be lawfully imprisoned, under section 4509, until the fine is paid, but the power of the court to imprison is limited under the latter section to one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine, and the defendant is entitled to no credit on the fine therefor. But if he is sentenced to labor under section 4736 of the code, he is entitled to a credit of one dollar and a half a day on the judgment. A sentence of imprisonment until the fine and costs are paid by labor at one dollar and a half a day is erroneous. The State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

A judgment that the defendant pay a fine and stand committed until it is satisfied, should specify the extent of the imprisonment, which cannot exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine. The State v. Myers, 44 Id., 580.

Authority to imprison for the non-payment of costs not being expressly given by statute, will not be inferred, and a court therefore cannot sentence a defendant to stand committed until a fine and costs are paid. The State v. Erwin, 44 Id., 637; The State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

Where the judgment in a criminal case, rendered in the Marshall district court, ordered that the defendant be confined in the Polk county jail for the term of imprisonment specified, and the record did not show that there was a sufficient jail in the county where the judgment was rendered, the presumption was in favor of the regularity of the proceeding of the court below, and the supreme court would not say there was error in directing the imprisonment in a different county. Hughes v. The State, 4 Id., 554.
By whom executed.
R. § 4998.

SEC. 4514. When the judgment is imprisonment in the county jail of the county in which the trial is had, or a fine and that the defendant be imprisoned in such county jail until it be satisfied, the judgment must be executed by the sheriff of that county. In all other cases, when the judgment is imprisonment, the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had, must deliver the defendant to the proper officer in execution of the judgment.

SEC. 4515. If the judgment be imprisonment, or a fine and imprisonment until it be satisfied, in the county jail of the county in which the trial was had, the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had, shall deliver a certified copy of the entry of the judgment, together with the body of the defendant, to the keeper of the jail or prison in which the defendant is to be imprisoned, and take his receipt therefor on a duplicate copy of such entry, which he must forthwith return to the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, with his return thereon.

SEC. 4516. The sheriff, or his deputy, while conveying the defendant to the proper prison, has the same authority to require the assistance of any citizen of the state in securing the defendant, and retaking him if he escape, as if the sheriff were in his own county; and every person who neglects or refuses to assist the sheriff when so required shall be punishable as if the sheriff were in his own county.

SEC. 4517. An officer executing a judgment of imprisonment shall make a written return of the execution of such judgment forthwith after such execution, and file the same with the clerk of the court, by which the judgment was rendered.

SEC. 4518. Upon a judgment for a fine, a writ of execution may be issued as upon a judgment in a civil case.

SEC. 4519. When the judgment is for the abatement or removal of a nuisance, or for anything other than the payment of money by the defendant, a certified copy of the entry of such judgment, delivered to the sheriff of the proper county, shall authorize and require him to execute such judgment, and he shall return the same with his doings under the same thereon indorsed to the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered within seventy days after the date of the certificate of such certified copy, unless it be a judgment of imprisonment, which is hereinbefore provided for.

CHAPTER 35.

OF APPEALS.

SEC. 4520. The mode of reviewing in the supreme court any judgment, action, or decision of the district court in a criminal case, is by an appeal.

SEC. 4521. Either the defendant or the state may take an appeal.

* If the state appeals in a criminal cause, the supreme court cannot reverse the judgment of the district court so that another trial may be had, but it may point out any errors in the proceedings or the measure of punishment. The effect of the decision is nothing more than an authoritative exposition of the law, to be followed by the inferior courts in other cases. The State v. Kinney, 44 Iowa, 444.
Sec. 4522. No appeal can be taken until after judgment, and then only within one year thereafter.

Sec. 4523. An appeal is taken by the party taking it, or the attorney of such party, serving on the adverse party, or the attorney of the adverse party who acted as attorney of record in the district court at the time of the rendition of the judgment, and also on the clerk of the district court by which the judgment was rendered, a notice in writing of the taking of the appeal from the judgment.

Sec. 4524. The appeal is deemed to be taken when the notices thereof, required by the last section, are filed in the office of the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, with evidence of the service thereof indorsed thereon, or annexed thereto.

Sec. 4525. When an appeal is taken, it is the duty of the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, without unnecessary delay, to make out a full and perfect transcript of all papers in the case on file in his office, except the papers returned by the examining magistrate on the preliminary examination, where there has been one, and of all entries made in the record book, and certify the same under his hand and the seal of the court, and transmit the same to the clerk of the supreme court.

Sec. 4526. When several defendants are indicted and tried jointly, any one or more of them may join in taking the appeal, but those of their co-defendants who do not join shall take no benefit therefrom, yet they may appeal afterwards.

Sec. 4527. An appeal taken by the state, in no case, stays the operation of a judgment in favor of the defendant.

Sec. 4528. An appeal taken by the defendant does not stay the execution of the judgment unless bail be put in, except as provided in the next section.

Sec. 4529. Where the judgment is imprisonment in the penitentiary, and an appeal is taken during the term at which the judgment is rendered, and the defendant is unable to give bail, and that fact is satisfactorily shown to the court, it may, in its discretion, order the sheriff or officer having the defendant in custody, to detain him in custody, without taking him to the penitentiary, to abide the judgment on the appeal, if the defendant desire it.

Sec. 4530. When an appeal is taken by the defendant, and bail is put in, it is the duty of the clerk to give forthwith to the defendant, his agent or attorney, a certificate under his hand and the seal of the court, stating that an appeal has been taken and bail put in, and the sheriff or other officer having the defendant in custody, must, upon the delivery of such certificate to him, discharge the defendant from custody where imprisonment forms any part of the judgment, and cease all further proceedings in execution of the judgment, and return forthwith to the clerk of the court who issued it, the execution or certified copy of the entry of judgment under which he acted, if such execution or certified copy has not been issued, and if such execution or certified copy has not been issued, it shall not be issued, but shall abide the judgment on the appeal.

* In The State v. Brandt, 41 Iowa, 593, 639, it was held, by a majority of the court, that whenever the decision of a motion or demurrer involves the merits or the legality of the proceedings in a criminal cause, an appeal may be taken therefrom before final judgment is rendered. This point was overruled in The State v. Swearengen, 43 Id., 336, in which it was held that an appeal does not lie from an intermediate decision upon a demurrer to the indictment, but can only be taken from a final judgment. The same ruling was followed in The State v. Davis, 47 Id., 634.

* See note b to section 4521.
SEC. 4531. The party taking the appeal is known as the appellant, the adverse party as the appellee, but the title of action shall not be changed in consequence of the appeal; it shall be docketed in the supreme court as it was in the district court.

SEC. 4532. Appeals, in criminal cases, shall be docketed in the supreme court for trial at the commencement of that portion of the term which has been assigned for trying causes from the judicial district from which the appeal comes. They shall take precedence of all other business, and shall be tried at the term at which the transcript is filed, unless continued for cause, or by consent of the parties, and shall be decided, if practicable, at the same term.

TRIAL OF THE APPEAL.

SEC. 4533. The personal appearance of the defendant in the supreme court on the trial of an appeal, is in no case necessary.

SEC. 4534. An appeal shall not be dismissed for any informality or defect in taking the appeal, if the same be corrected in a reasonable time, and the supreme court must direct how it shall be corrected.

SEC. 4535. No assignment of error, or joinder in error, shall be necessary.

SEC. 4536. The defendant shall be entitled to close the argument.

SEC. 4537. The opinion of the supreme court must be in writing, filed with its clerk and recorded.

SEC. 4538. If the appeal was taken by the defendant from a judgment against him, the supreme court must examine the record, and without regard to technical errors or defects which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, render such judgment as the district court should have rendered, and may, if necessary, or proper, order a new trial. It may reduce the punishment, but cannot increase it.7

7 Although the defendant has failed to file an assignment of errors, or furnished any brief or argument, the supreme court is required to examine the record and without regard to technical errors or defects which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, render such judgment on the record as the law demands. The State v. McKinzie, 18 Iowa, 573; The State v. Thompson, 19 Id., 299, 301; The State v. Mercer, 1 Id., 570; The State v. Decklots, 1 Id., 447, 452; The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593, 600; The State v. Potter, 25 Id., 554; The State v. Smith, 1 Id., 663, 667; The State v. Mecherter, 46 Id., 88, 93.

The supreme court will disregard technical errors and refuse to reverse a judgment which is otherwise fair and unexceptionable on the merits. The State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94, 102; The State v. Raymond, 20 Id., 582, 585; The State v. Felter, 25 Id., 67, 71.

The supreme court will not reverse a decision of the district court overruling a motion to quash an indictment upon objections to the manner in which the grand jury was selected, when such objections are purely technical, and do not affect the substantial rights of the parties. The State v. Carney et al., 20 Id., 82; The State v. Anselme, 15 Id., 44; The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593, 600.

While the supreme court has, by this section, authority to modify the penalties and reduce the punishment imposed by the district court, it will not exercise that power when the evidence upon which that court acted is not in the record. The State v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497.

This power of the supreme court to reduce the punishment in a criminal cause, should be exercised only in cases where the district court has manifestly imposed too severe punishment—punishment disproportioned to the degree of guilt as shown by the evidence. The State v. Freeman, 27 Id., 333.

That the punishment inflicted by the court below is excessive is no ground for a reversal of the judgment, on appeal to the supreme court, but in such case that court may reduce the punishment as it may deem just and proper in the attainment of justice. The State v. Madden, 35 Id., 511, 512; The State v. Little, 42 Id., 54.

On an indictment for an assault with intent to kill, the defendant was convicted on evidence which was barely sufficient to support the verdict; the supreme court reduced the punishment
SEC. 4539. If the appeal was taken by the state, the supreme court cannot reverse the judgment, or modify it so as to increase the punishment, but may affirm it, and shall point out any error in the proceedings, or in the measure of punishment, and its decision shall be obligatory on the district court, as the correct exposition of the law.

SEC. 4540. If a judgment against the defendant be reversed without ordering a new trial, the supreme court must direct, if the defendant be in custody, that he be discharged, or if he be admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if money be deposited instead of bail, that it be refunded to him.

SEC. 4541. On a judgment of affirmation against the defendant, the original judgment shall be carried into execution as the supreme court shall direct, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 4542. When a judgment of the supreme court is rendered it must be recorded, and a certified copy of the judgment must be forthwith remitted to the clerk of the district court in which the judgment appealed from was rendered, with proper instructions and a copy of the opinion, in such time, and in such manner, as the supreme court may, by rule, prescribe.

SEC. 4543. After the certified copy of the entry of the judgment of the supreme court, and its instructions have been remitted as provided in the preceding section, the supreme court has no farther jurisdiction of the proceedings therein, and all proceedings which may be necessary to carry the judgment of the supreme court into effect, must be had in the court to which it is remitted, or by the clerk thereof, except as provided in the next two sections.

SEC. 4544. Unless where some proceedings in the district court are directed by the supreme court, a copy of the certified copy of the judgment of the supreme court, with its directions, certified by the clerk of the district court to whom the same has been transmitted, delivered to the sheriff, or other proper officer, shall authorize him to execute the judgment of the supreme court, or take any steps to bring the proceeding to a conclusion, except as provided in the next section.

SEC. 4545. If a defendant, who has been imprisoned during the pendency of an appeal, upon a new trial ordered by the supreme court shall be again convicted, the period of his former imprisonment shall be deducted by the district court from the period of imprisonment to be fixed on the last verdict of conviction.

from imprisonment in the penitentiary for five years, to such imprisonment for one year. Id.

Where a defendant was convicted and sentenced for murder in the first degree, and on appeal to the supreme court it was held that the indictment charged only murder in the second degree, the supreme court rendered the proper judgment as upon a conviction for the latter crime, the attorney-general and the defendant consenting thereto. The State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402; The State v. Thompson, 31 Id., 393, 394.

When a judgment of conviction is reversed on appeal, because of erroneous proceedings in the district court, legal jeopardy will not be deemed to have attached, and the defendant may be again tried. The State v. Knouse, 33 Id., 365; State v. Redman, 17 Id., 329, and cases cited; The State v. Tweedy, 11 Id., 350.

* See note to section 4521.
CHAPTER 36.

OF IMPEACHMENT.

Section 4546. An impeachment is the written accusation of a state officer by the house of representatives before the senate, of any misdemeanor or malfeasance in office.

Sec. 4547. A majority of all the members of the house of representatives elected must concur in an impeachment.

Sec. 4548. The impeachment must specify the offenses charged with the same precision as is requisite in an indictment, and the accused must be allowed counsel as in cases of other prosecution.

Sec. 4549. If the impeachment charge more than one misdemeanor or act of malfeasance, they shall be stated separately and distinctly.

Sec. 4550. When possessed of an impeachment, the senate must forthwith cause the person accused to be brought before it.

Sec. 4551. All writs and process must be issued by the secretary of the senate, and tested in his name, and may be served by any person thereto authorized by the senate or president.

Sec. 4552. Upon the appearance of the person impeached, he is entitled to a copy of the impeachment, and to a reasonable time in which to answer the same.

Sec. 4553. Before proceeding to the trial, an oath, truly and impartially to try and determine the charge in question according to the evidence, shall be administered by the secretary of the senate to the president, and by him to each of the members of that body.

Sec. 4554. Every officer impeached shall be suspended from the exercise of his official duties until his acquittal.

Sec. 4555. If the president of the senate be impeached, notice thereof must be immediately given to the senate; which shall thereupon choose another president, to hold his office until the result of the trial is determined.

CHAPTER 37.

OF EVIDENCE.

Section 4556. The rules of evidence prescribed in the civil part of this code, shall apply to criminal proceedings as far as applicable, and as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter.

Sec. 4557. In a prosecution against a railway company for obstructing a highway or any private way, proof that any such way is in an unsafe condition, or that it is inconvenient for travel at the place of its intersection with such railway, shall be presumptive evidence that such company has obstructed such way.

* When one of two defendants, in a criminal cause, testifies on behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness, under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself upon trial. The State v. Hardin & Henry, 46 Iowa, 623.

Prior to the enactment of chapter 168, laws of 1878, a defendant in a criminal case was not a competent witness in his own behalf. The State v. Darrington, 47 Id., 318, 320; The State v. Laffer, 38 Id., 422; The State v. Bixby, 39 Id., 465.
Sec. 4558. Proof of actual penetration into the body is sufficient to sustain an indictment for rape.*
Sec. 4559. A conviction cannot be had upon the testimony of an accomplice, unless he be corroborated by such other evidence as shall tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense; and the corroboration is not sufficient if it merely show the commis­sion of the offense or the circumstances thereof.*
Sec. 4560. The defendant in a prosecution for a rape, or for enticing or taking away an unmarried female of previously chaste character injured, unless she be corroborated by other evidence tending to con­nect the defendant with the sec. 4561. A magistrate, in any criminal proceeding before him, may issue subpœnas subscribed by him with his name of office for witnesses within the state in behalf of either party thereto.*

* An instruction defining the crime of rape in the language of the statute to the effect that the defendant must have ravished and carnally known the prosecutrix by force and against her will, but that proof of actual penetration was sufficient, held correct. Approved in The State
v. Tarr, 23 Iowa, 397, 400.

* An accomplice cannot be corroborated in his testimony against the defendant, by the failure of the latter to introduce the testimony of wit­nesses present at the trial, who, if the testimony of the accomplice had been false, might have contradicted him. The State v. Hull, 26 Iowa, 292.

The defendant, in such case, has a right to stand upon the law, requiring the testimony of the accomplice to be corroborated by "other evidence " and no basis for a presumption in favor of the testimony of the accomplice, can arise from the failure of the defendant to controvert it. Id.

The corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice to warrant a conviction, must not merely relate to the commission of the offense charged, or the circumstances thereof, but must tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the criminal act. The State v. Thornton, 26 Id., 79; Upton v. The State, 5 Id., 465, 521.

The fact that one has received stolen property from the thief, knowing the same to have been stolen, does not constitute such receiver an accomplice in a burglary by which the possession of the goods was obtained. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

The corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice is not limited to the testimony of witnesses, but may be by circumstantial evidence. The State v. Stanley, 48 Id., 221.

* See, as to observations in respect to the corroboration evidence contemplated by the statute, Andre v. The State, 5 Iowa, 359; Upton v. The State, Id., 465.

The corroborative testimony required by the statute should be of a character to strengthen and corroborate the testimony of the injured person, and to point out the defendant as the person who committed the offense. Andre v. The State, supra. See also, The State v. Wil­lie, 9 Id., 582; The State v. Tulley, 18 Id., 88.

Where one indicted for rape was shown to have stated, before the commission of the offense became publicly known that he would under certain circumstances, named, "get clear" this was held a sufficient corroboration of the statements of the prosecutrix. The State v. Comstock, 46 Id., 265.

In the trial of an indictment for seduction, a fact which is testified to by the person injured, is not admissible to corroborate her. The State v. Kingsley, 39 Id., 439.

The fact that the crime of rape has been committed may be established by the evidence of the person injured, but the defendant cannot be convicted upon her testimony unless it be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the accused, with the commission of the crime. The State v. McLaughlin, 44 Id., 82.

Where bruises are found upon the person of the prosecutrix, it should be left to the jury to determine whether or not they are sufficient to corroborate her testimony to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. Id.

In the trial of an indictment for seduction, the infant alleged to be the fruit thereof cannot be offered in evidence to corroborate the prosecutrix by reason of a supposed resemblance between the child and the accused. The State v. Danforth, 49 Id., 43.

Proof of having opportunity for having sexual intercourse does not constitute evidence corroborative of the prosecuting witness on a trial for seduction. The evidence to be corroborative, must tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. The State v. Painter, 50 Iowa, 313.
SEC. 4562. The clerk of the court in which any criminal case is pending must, at all times, upon the application of the defendant or his attorney, issue as many blank subpœnas under the seal of the court, subscribed by him, for witnesses within the state, as may be required by the defendant. He must also issue subpœnas, on the part of the state, when required.

SEC. 4563. A peace officer must serve within his town or county, as the case may be, any subpœna delivered to him for service on the part of either the state or defendant, and must make a written return of the service subscribed by him and state the time and place of service, without delay. A subpœna may, however, be served by any other person.

SEC. 4564. The service of a subpœna must be by delivering a copy and showing the original to the witness personally.

SEC. 4565. If a witness conceal himself to avoid the service of a subpœna, the officer may break open doors or windows for the purpose of making service.

SEC. 4566. Disobedience to a subpœna, or refusal to be sworn, or to answer as a witness, may be punished by the court or magistrate as a contempt.

SEC. 4567. A witness willfully disobeying a subpœna in a criminal case without good cause, shall be liable to the party injured for the amount of the damages sustained by such party.

SEC. 4568. The undertakings of witnesses in criminal cases may be forfeited and enforced like the undertaking of bail.

SEC. 4569. A subpœna in a criminal case, runs into any part of the state.

SEC. 4570. In cases of impeachment, subpœnas may be issued on behalf of either party by the secretary of the senate.

SEC. 4571. A defendant in a criminal case, either after preliminary information, indictment, or information, may examine witnesses conditionally or on commission in the same manner and with like effect as in civil actions.

SEC. 4572. A person apprehensive of a criminal prosecution, may perpetuate testimony in his favor, in the same manner, and with like effect, as it may be done in apprehension of any civil action.

CHAPTER 38.

OF BAIL, UPON BEING HELD TO ANSWER BEFORE INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4573. When the defendant has been held to answer for any bailable offense, bail must be taken by the magistrate who held him to answer, or by any judge of the supreme, district, or circuit courts, or by the court to which the papers on the preliminary examination are to be returned by the magistrate who held him to answer, or by the clerk of such court, or by any magistrate of the county in which the offense is triable.

SEC. 4574. Bail is put in by a written undertaking, executed by one or more sufficient sureties (with or without the defendant, in the discretion of the court, clerk, or magistrate), acknowledged before, and accepted by the court, clerk, or magistrate taking the same, and may be, substantially, in the following form:

COUNTY OF .......

An order having been made on the ........ day of ........ A. D., 18 .. , by A. B., a justice of the peace of the township of ........ , (or as the case may be), that C. D. be held to answer upon a charge of (stating briefly the nature of the offense), upon which he has been duly admitted to bail, in the sum of ........ dollars.

We, E. F. (stating his place of residence and occupation), and G. H., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), hereby undertake that the said C. D. shall appear at the district court of the county of ........ , at the next term thereof, and answer said charge, and abide the order and judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or if he fail to perform either of these conditions, that we will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of ........ dollars (inserting the sum in which the defendant is admitted to bail).

E. F.
G. H.

Acknowledged before, and accepted by me as .......... , in the township of ......... , in the county of ......... , this .......... day of ........ , A. D., 18 .. , I. J., justice of the peace, (or, as the case may be) .

Sec. 4575. The qualifications of bail are as follows:
1. Such bail must be a resident and householder, or freeholder, within the state;
2. Such bail must be worth the amount specified in the undertaking, exclusive of property exempt from execution; but the court, clerk, or magistrate taking the bail, may allow more than one bail to justify severally in amounts less than that expressed in the undertaking, if the whole justification be equivalent to one sufficient bail.

Sec. 4576. The bail must in all cases justify, by affidavit taken before the court, clerk, or magistrate, as the case may be, taking such bail, and the affidavit must state that they each possess the qualifications prescribed in the last section.

Sec. 4577. The district attorney, or the court, clerk, or magistrate, as the case may be, may thereupon further examine the bail upon oath, concerning their sufficiency, in such manner as may be deemed proper.

Sec. 4578. The court, clerk, or magistrate, may also receive other testimony, either for or against the sufficiency of the bail.

Sec. 4579. When the examination is closed, the court, clerk, or magistrate, must make an order, either allowing or disallowing the bail, and must forthwith cause the same, with the affidavits of justification, and the undertaking of bail, to be filed with the clerk of the court to

* The appearance of the defendant in a criminal action, to answer to the charge, does not discharge the sureties on his bond. They are liable for any failure to obey the orders of the court before surrender or discharge. The liability is a continuing one which can be discharged only by surrendering the accused as provided by statute, or by obtaining the discharge of the accused. The State v. Brown, 16 Iowa, 314.

The objection that a bail bond, filed and approved by the clerk, was not also marked "accepted" by him, as specified in this section of the code, is technical and cannot affect the right of the state to recover on the bond. The State v. Emily et al., 24 Id., 24.

It is not necessary, under this section, that a defendant in a criminal case, who furnishes bail for his appearance, should sign the bond with his sureties. The State v. Patterson, 23 Id., 575.

The use of the word "he" in a bail bond drawn to the form prescribed in this section, in place of "we will pay," etc., is a manifest clerical error, and should be disregarded. Id.
which the papers on the preliminary examination are required to be sent.

SEC. 4580. Upon the allowance of the bail and the execution of the undertaking, the court, clerk, or magistrate, must make an order, signed with his name of office, for the discharge of the defendant, to the following effect:

THE STATE OF IOWA:

To the sheriff of the county of .........

C. D., who is detained by you on commitment, to answer a charge for the offense of (here designate it generally), having given sufficient bail to answer the same, you are commanded forthwith to discharge him from custody.

Dated at .........., in the township of .........., in the county of .........., this .......... day of .........., A. D. 18 ....

K. L., justice of the peace,
(or as the case may be).

SEC. 4581. If the bail be disallowed the defendant must be detained in custody until other bail be put in and justify.

---

OF BAIL UPON AN INDICTMENT BEFORE CONVICTION.

SECTION 4582. When the offense charged in the indictment is a misdemeanor, the officer serving the bench warrant, if therein required, must take the defendant before a magistrate in the county in which it was issued, or in which he is arrested, or before the clerk of the district court of either of such counties, for the purpose of giving bail.

SEC. 4583. If the offense charged in the indictment be a felony, the officer arresting the defendant must deliver him into custody according to the command of the warrant.

SEC. 4584. When the defendant is so delivered into custody, if the felony charged be bailable, bail must be taken by that court, or the clerk of that court, or by any magistrate in the same county.

SEC. 4585. The bail must be put in by a written undertaking, executed by one sufficient surety, with or without the defendant, in the discretion of the court, clerk, or magistrate, acknowledged before and accepted by the court, clerk, or magistrate taking the same, and may be substantially in the following form:

COUNTY OF ..........

"An indictment having been found in the district court of the county of .........., on the .......... day of .........., A. D. 18 ...., charging A. B. with the crime of (designating it as in the bench warrant), and he having been duly admitted to bail in the sum of .......... dollars:

We, A. B., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), and C. D., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), and E. F., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), hereby undertake that the said A. B. shall appear and answer the said indictment, and abide the orders and judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or if he fail to perform either of these conditions, that he will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of ........ dollars (inserting the sum in which the defendant is admitted to bail.)

A. B.,
C. D.,
E. F.

Acknowledged before and accepted by me, at ........ in the township of ........, in the county of ........, this ........ day of ........, A. D. 18........

G. H., justice of the peace,
(or as the case may be).

Sec. 4586. The provisions of the preceding chapter, subsequent to the form of the undertaking relative to the qualifications of bail, the justification, the examination, receiving other testimony against the sufficiency, and the order of allowance or disallowance thereof, and the filing of the undertaking with the affidavits, and all proceedings incidental thereto, in the cases therein provided for, apply also to the cases provided for in this chapter.

CHAPTER 40.

OF BAIL, UPON AN APPEAL TO THE SUPREME COURT, AFTER CONVICTION.

Section 4587. After conviction upon an appeal to the supreme court, the defendant must be admitted to bail as follows:

1. If the appeal be from a judgment imposing a fine, upon the undertaking of bail that will pay the same, or such part of it as the supreme court may direct, and in all respects abide the orders and the judgment of the supreme court upon the appeal;

2. If the appeal be from a judgment of imprisonment, upon the undertaking of bail that he will surrender himself in execution of the judgment and direction of the supreme court. and in all respects abide the orders and judgment of the supreme court upon the appeal. The bail may be taken, either by the court where the judgment was ren-

1 A bail bond or recognizance entered into before the clerk of the district court of one county for the appearance of the defendant before the court in another county wherein the indictment is pending, and where the bond is filed, is valid. The State v. Wells, 36 Iowa, 238.

The liability of sureties is not affected by the failure to take a forfeiture at the term succeeding the execution of the bond; a continuance would continue the liability, and, no continuance appearing of record, the cause stands continued by operation of law. Id.

The arrest and detention in another county of one who is under bond for his appearance, does not have the effect to release the sureties on his bond. Id.

DERED, or the judge thereof, or the district court of the county in which he is imprisoned, or the judge thereof, or the judge of the circuit court of either of such counties, or by the supreme court, or a judge thereof, or by the clerk of either of such courts.

Sec. 4588. The bail must possess the qualifications, must justify, and must be put in and taken in the manner prescribed in chapter thirty-eight of this title, and the same proceedings had in all respects, as nearly as applicable, varying to suit the case, and the undertaking of the bail must be, in effect, as prescribed by the preceding section.

CHAPTER 41.

OF DEPOSIT OF MONEY INSTEAD OF BAIL.

Sec. 4589. The defendant, at any time after an order admitting him to bail, instead of giving bail, may deposit with the clerk of the district court to which the undertaking, in case of bail, is required to be sent, the sum mentioned in the order, and upon delivering to the officer in whose custody he is, a certificate under seal from said clerk of the deposit, he must be discharged from custody.

Sec. 4590. If the defendant has given bail, he may, at any time before the forfeiture of the undertaking, in like manner deposit the sum mentioned in the undertaking, and upon the deposit being made the bail shall be exonerated.

Sec. 4591. If money be deposited as provided in the last section, bail may be given in the same manner as if it had been originally given upon the order for admission to bail at any time before the forfeiture of the deposit. The court or magistrate before whom the bail is taken shall thereupon direct in the order of allowance, that the money deposited be refunded by the clerk to the defendant, and it shall be refunded accordingly.

Sec. 4592. When money has been deposited, if it remain on deposit at the time of a judgment against the defendant, the clerk shall, under the direction of the court, apply the money in satisfaction of so much of the judgment as requires the payment of money, and after paying the same shall refund the surplus, if any, to the defendant, unless an appeal be taken to the supreme court, and bail put in, in which case the deposit shall be returned to the defendant.

CHAPTER 42.

OF SURRENDER OF THE DEFENDANT.

Sec. 4593. At any time before the forfeiture of their undertaking, the bail may surrender the defendant in their exoneration, or he may surrender himself to the officer to whose custody he was committed at the time of giving bail, in the following manner:

1. A certified copy of the undertaking of bail must be delivered to the officer, who shall detain the defendant in his custody thereon as upon a commitment, and must, by a certificate in writing, acknowledge the surrender;
2. Upon the undertaking and the certificate of the officer, the district court in which the indictment is pending, or was tried, at the next term after the surrender, or, if during term time, at the same term, and upon three clear days' notice thereof to the district attorney, with a copy of the undertaking and certificate, may order the bail to be exonerated.

Sec. 4594. For the purpose of surrendering the defendant, the bail, at any time before they are finally charged, and at any place within the state, may themselves arrest him, or by a written authority indorsed on a certified copy of the undertaking may empower any person of suitable age and discretion to do so.

Sec. 4595. If money has been deposited instead of bail, and the defendant, at any time before the forfeiture thereof, shall surrender himself to the officer to whom the commitment was made, or directed in the manner prescribed in this chapter, the court in which the indictment is pending, or was tried, at the next term after the surrender, or, if during the term, at the same term, must order a return of the deposit to the defendant, upon producing the certificate of the officer showing the surrender, and upon three clear days notice to the district attorney, with a copy of the certificate.

CHAPTER 43.
OF FORFEITURE OF THE UNDERTAKING OF BAIL, OR DEPOSIT OF MONEY.

Section 4596. If the defendant fail to appear for arraignment, trial or judgment, or at any other time when his personal appearance in court may be lawfully required, or to surrender himself in execution of the judgment, the court must direct an entry of such failure to be made on the record, and the undertaking of his bail, or the money deposited instead of bail, as the case may be, is thereupon forfeited.

8 In contemplation of law an accused party admitted to bail is in the custody of his sureties who are considered his keepers. If they have grounds to apprehend an escape, it is their privilege to have the accused re-arrested and surrendered back into the custody of the law, and themselves discharged. The State v. Holmes, 23 Iowa, 458, 460.

The sheriff has no authority to receive and hold in custody one bailed, unless the latter is delivered to him as prescribed by the statute, or placed in his custody in the presence of, and with the knowledge and sanction, or by order of, the magistrate. The State v. Tieman, 39 Id., 174.

A surety for one charged with a public offense is not released from the obligation of his undertaking by a simple surrender of the accused to the sheriff, in the presence of the court. He is bound not only that the party bailed shall appear at the time and place specified, but also that he shall abide the order and judgment of the court, and not depart without leave. Id.

The liability of the surety is not affected by the failure to take a forfeiture at the term succeeding the execution of the bond; a continuance will continue the liability, and no continuance appearing of record, the cause is continued by operation of law. The State v. Merrithew, 47 Iowa, 112.

The death of the principal two years after a bond was forfeited in a criminal case is no defense to an action against the surety on the bond. The State v. Scott, 20 Id., 63.

SECTION 4597. If, before the final adjournment of the court for the term, the defendant appear and satisfactorily excuse his failure, the court may direct an entry to be made on the record, that the forfeiture of the undertaking or deposit be discharged.

SECTION 4598. If the forfeiture is not discharged, the district attorney may, at any time after the adjournment of the court for the term, proceed by civil action only upon the undertaking of the bail.

SECTION 4599. The action on the undertaking must be in the court in which the defendant was, or would have been required to appear by the undertaking; provided, that when the undertaking requires the defendant to appear before a justice of the peace or a court of limited jurisdiction, or before an examining magistrate, it shall be the duty of said justice, or court, or examining magistrate, upon the forfeiture of the undertaking, and within thirty days thereafter, to file the same, together with a copy of all his official entries in relation thereto, in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county; and thereupon it shall be the duty of the district attorney to proceed to collect the same by a civil action in the district court of said county, or any other court of said county, having jurisdiction equal to the penalty of said bond.

SECTION 4600. If, before judgment is entered against the bail, the defendant be surrendered or arrested, the court may, in its discretion, remit the whole or any part of the sum specified in the undertaking.

CHAPTER 44.
OF THE RE-COMMITMENT OF THE DEFENDANT AFTER GIVING BAIL OR DEPOSITING MONEY.

SECTION 4601. The district court in which a criminal action is pending, or during the pendency of an appeal from its judgment in such action, or in which a judgment is to be carried into effect, may, by an order entered on the record, direct the defendant to be arrested and held for trial after default has been entered, does not affect the right of the state to recover on the forfeiture already taken. The State v. Emily, 24 Iowa, 24.

1 If a defendant after default appear, at the same term of the default and excuse his failure to appear, the court may discharge the forfeiture, but his re-arrest and holding for trial after default has been entered, does not affect the right of the state to recover on the forfeiture already taken. The State v. Emily, 24 Iowa, 24.

2 Where a bond or undertaking is entered into for the appearance of a defendant before a magistrate, suit thereon may be brought in the district court. The State v. Emerson, 16 Iowa, 206, 208.

When a bond for the appearance of a defendant at the district court of a particular county is taken in the name of the state, an action on a forfeiture thereof may be brought in the name of the county. Shelby County v. Simmonds et al., 33 Id., 345.

1 This section confers the power upon the district court, to cause a defendant, after forfeiture of his undertaking for a default in failing to appear, to be re-arrested and committed to jail until legally discharged. The State v. Holmes, 23 Iowa, 458, 460.

When a person is held to answer a criminal charge by a justice of the peace, and an indictment is subsequently found against him, whereupon the court directs a warrant to issue for his arrest, the surety is discharged when the arrest
2. When it satisfactorily appears to the court, that his bail, either by reason of the death of one or more of them, or from any other cause, is insufficient, or have removed from the state;

3. When upon the finding of an indictment, the court deems the bail taken by the committing magistrate insufficient.

Sec. 4602. The order for re-commitment of the defendant must recite generally the facts upon which it is founded, and must direct that the defendant be arrested and committed to the custody of the sheriff of the county where the depositions and statement were returned, or the indictment was found, or the conviction was had, as the case may be, to be detained until legally discharged.

Sec. 4603. The defendant may be arrested pursuant to the order upon a certified copy thereof, in any county in the state.

Sec. 4604. If the order recite as the ground on which it is made, the failure of the defendant to appear for judgment upon conviction, the defendant must be committed according to the requirements of the order.

Sec. 4605. If the order be made for any other cause and the offense be bailable, the court may fix the amount of bail, and may cause a direction to be inserted in the order that the defendant be admitted to bail in the sum fixed, which must be specified in the order.

CHAPTER 45.

OF UNDERTAKINGS OF BAIL WHEN LIENS.

Section 4606. Undertakings of bail, from the time of filing the same in the office of the clerk of the district court in which they are required to be filed, shall be, and may be made, liens upon real estate of the person acknowledging the same, in the same manner, to the same extent, and with like effect, as in judgments in civil actions.

Sec. 4607. They shall, when filed, be immediately docketed and indexed by the clerk of the court in which they are filed, as judgments in civil actions are required to be docketed and indexed.

Sec. 4608. Attested copies of such undertakings may be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the real estate is situated, in the same manner, and with like effect, as attested copies of judgments, and shall be immediately docketed and indexed, in the same manner.

is made and the accused is taken into custody.

OF JUDGMENTS FOR FINES WHEN LIENS, AND HOW EXECUTIONS THEREON STAYED.

SECTION 4609. Judgments for fines, in all criminal actions rendered, are, and may be made, liens upon the real estate of the defendant, in the same manner, and with like effect, as judgment in civil actions.

Sec. 4610. The defendant may have a stay of execution for the same length of time, and in the same manner, as provided by law in civil actions, and with like effect, and the same proceedings may be had therein.

CHAPTER 47.

OF THE LIBERATION OF POOR CONVICTS.

SECTION 4611. When any person convicted of a criminal offense is sentenced to pay a fine and costs only, and stand committed until sentence be performed, if the sentence be not complied with by payment of the sum due within thirty days next following, the sheriff may liberate him from prison if committed for no other cause, and if he be unable to pay such fine and costs, upon his giving his promissory note for the amount due, payable to the treasurer of the county where he was committed, on demand with interest, accompanied with a written schedule, containing a true account of all his property, of every kind, by him signed and sworn to; which note and schedule must be by such sheriff delivered without delay to the treasurer for the use of the county. 1

Sec. 4612. If such convict knowingly and willfully make any false schedule, on oath, relating to the amount or nature of his property, he is guilty of perjury.

1 When a defendant, sentenced to imprisonment in default of the payment of a fine entered against him, substantially complied with sections 4881 and 5005 of the revision (now sections 4509, 4611 of the code) by suffering imprisonment for the time provided, and executing his note to the treasurer as therein, held, not only entitled to be discharged from custody, but to have the judgment against him satisfied. The State v. Van Fleet, 23 Iowa, 163; The State v. Peck, 37 Id., 342; The City of Keokuk v. Dressell, 47 Id., 597, 601, 602.

Actual imprisonment for thirty days is necessary to entitle a prisoner to the right to be liberated as a poor convict, upon the making of the oath, schedule and notes as provided by this section. Constructive imprisonment is not sufficient. In re Curley, 34 Id., 184.

Authority to imprison for non-payment of costs as well as fine is not expressly given by the statute and will not be inferred, and therefore a court cannot lawfully sentence a person to stand committed until a fine and costs are paid. The State v. Ervin et al., 44 Id., 637.

In an action on a bail bond, the introduction of the record of forfeiture is admissible, even though it fail to show that the defendant was called in open court. The State v. Hirronemas, 50 Id., 545.
CHAPTER 48.

OF THE DISMISSAL OF CRIMINAL ACTIONS BEFORE AND AFTER INDICTMENT FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION OR OTHERWISE.

Section 4613. When a person has been held to answer for a public offense, if an indictment be not found against him at the next regular term of the court at which he is held to answer, the court must order the prosecution to be dismissed unless good cause to the contrary be shown.

Sec. 4614. If a defendant indicted for a public offense, whose trial has not been postponed upon his application, be not brought to trial at the next regular term of the court in which the indictment is triable after the same is found, the court must order it to be dismissed unless good cause to the contrary be shown.

Sec. 4615. If the defendant be not indicted or tried as provided in the last two sections, and sufficient reason therefor shown, the court may order the action to be continued from term to term, and in the meantime may discharge the defendant from custody on his own undertaking, or on the undertaking of bail for his appearance to answer the charge at the time to which the action is continued, but no such continuance can be extended beyond three terms of the court.

Sec. 4616. If the court direct the action to be dismissed, the defendant must, if in custody, be discharged therefrom, or if admitted to bail, his bail must be exonerated, and if money has been deposited instead of bail it must be refunded to him.

Sec. 4617. The court may, either upon its own motion or upon the application of the district attorney, and in furtherance of justice, order an action after an indictment to be dismissed, but in such case the reason of the dismissal must be set forth in the order, which must be entered upon the record.

Sec. 4618. The entry of a \textit{nolle prosequi} is abolished, and neither the attorney general nor the district attorney shall hereafter discontinue or abandon a prosecution for a public offense except as provided in the last section.

Sec. 4619. An order for the dismissal of the action as provided in this chapter, is a bar to another prosecution for the same offense if it be a misdemeanor; but it is not a bar if the offense charged be a felony.

CHAPTER 49.

OF THE INSANITY OF A DEFENDANT BEFORE TRIAL OR AFTER CONVICTION.

Section 4620. When a defendant appears for arraignment, trial, judgment, or on any other occasion when he is required, if a reasonable doubt arise as to his sanity, the court must order a jury to be impaneled from the trial jurors in attendance at the term, or who may be summoned by the direction of the court, as provided in this code, to inquire into the fact.
INSANITY OF DEFENDANT. [TITLE XXV.

SEC. 4621. The arraignment, trial, judgment, or other proceedings, as the case may be, must be suspended until the question of insanity is determined by the verdict of the jury.

SEC. 4622. The trial for the question of insanity must proceed in the following order:

1. The counsel of the defendant must offer the evidence in support of the allegation of insanity;
2. The district attorney must then offer the evidence in support of the case on the part of the state;
3. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reason, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case;
4. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted on either side, or both sides, without argument, the district attorney must commence, and the defendant’s counsel conclude the argument to the jury;
5. If more than one counsel on each side argue the case to the jury, they must do so alternately;
6. The court shall then, on motion of either party, charge the jury. The provisions of this code, so far as the same are applicable and not herein changed, shall regulate the trial of the question of insanity.

SEC. 4623. If the jury find that the defendant is sane, the proceedings on the indictment shall be resumed.

SEC. 4624. If the jury find the defendant insane, the proceedings on the indictment shall be suspended until he becomes sane, and the court, if it deem his discharge dangerous to the public peace or safety, may order that he be in the meantime committed by the sheriff to the Iowa Insane Hospital, and that upon his becoming sane, he be delivered by the superintendent of the hospital to the sheriff.

SEC. 4625. The commitment of the defendant, as provided in the last section, exonerates his bail, or entitles a person authorized to receive the property of the defendant, to a return of the money he may have deposited instead of bail.

SEC. 4626. If the defendant be received into the hospital, he must be detained there until he becomes sane. When he becomes sane, the superintendent of the hospital must give notice of that fact to the sheriff and to the district attorney of the proper district. The sheriff must thenceupon, without delay, bring the defendant from the hospital, and place him in the proper custody until he be brought to trial or judgment as the case may be, or be legally discharged.

SEC. 4627. The expense of sending the defendant to the hospital, bringing him back, and any other expense incurred, are to be paid in the first instance by the county from which he was sent, but the county may recover from the estate of the defendant, if he have any, or from a relative, or another county, town, township, or city, bound to provide for or maintain him elsewhere.

SEC. 4628. Sheriffs for delivering persons found to be insane, under the provisions of this chapter, are entitled to the same fees therefor, as are allowed for conveying convicts to the penitentiary.
CHAPTER 50.

OF SEARCH WARRANTS, AND PROCEEDINGS THEREON.

SECTION 4629. A search warrant is an order in writing, in the name of the state, signed by a magistrate, directed to a peace officer, commanding him to search for personal property, and bring it before the magistrate.

Sec. 4630. It may be issued upon either of the following grounds:
1. When the property was stolen or embezzled, in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed, or from the possession of the person by whom it was stolen or embezzled, or of any other person in whose possession it may be;
2. When it was used as the means of committing a felony; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed, or from the possession of the person by whom it was used in the commission of the offense, or of any other person in whose possession it may be;
3. When it is in the possession of any person with the intent to use it as the means of committing a public offense, or in the possession of another to which he may have delivered it for the purpose of concealing it or preventing its being discovered; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from such person, from a house or other place occupied by him or under his control.

Sec. 4631. No search warrant can be issued but upon probable cause, supported by affidavit, naming or describing the person, and particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

Sec. 4632. The magistrate must, before issuing a warrant, examine on oath the applicant therefor, and any witnesses he may produce, and take their affidavits in writing, and cause each affidavit to be subscribed and sworn to before him by the person making it.

Sec. 4633. The affidavit must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application, or probable cause for believing that they exist.

Sec. 4634. If the magistrate be thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application, or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he shall issue a search warrant, signed by him with his name of office, directed to any peace officer in the county, commanding him forthwith to search the person or place named for the property specified, and bring it before him.

Sec. 4635. The local jurisdiction of magistrates, in exercising the powers conferred on them by this chapter, is as defined in this code.

Sec. 4636. The warrant may be, substantially, in the following form:

COUNTY OF

THE STATE OF IOWA:

"To any peace officer of said county:

"Proof, by affidavit, having been this day made before me by (naming every person whose affidavit has been taken) that (stating the particular grounds of the application according to section four thousand six hundred and thirty of this chapter; or, if the affidavit be not positive, that there is probable cause for believing that (stating the..."

(or, as the case may be).

SEC. 4637. A search warrant may in all cases be served by any of the officers mentioned in its direction, but by no other person except in aid of the officer, on his requisition, he being present and acting in its execution.

SEC. 4638. The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of the house, or anything therein to execute the warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he be refused admittance.

SEC. 4639. He may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house for the purpose of liberating a person, who, having entered to aid him in the execution of the warrant, is detained therein, or, when necessary, for his own liberation.

SEC. 4640. The magistrate must insert a direction in the warrant, that it be served in the day time unless the affidavit be positive that the property is on the person, or in the place to be searched; in which case, he may insert a direction that it may be served at any time of the day or night.

SEC. 4641. A search warrant must be executed and returned to the magistrate by whom it was issued within ten days after its date. After the expiration of such time, the warrant, unless executed, is void.

SEC. 4642. When the officer takes any property under the warrant, he must give a receipt for the property taken, specifying it in detail, to the person from whom it was taken or in whose possession it was found, or, in the absence of the person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

SEC. 4643. The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the magistrate, and at the same time deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken and of the applicant for the warrant, if they be present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the magistrate, to the following effect: "I, the officer by whom the annexed warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."

SEC. 4644. The magistrate, if required, must deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken, and to the applicant for the warrant.

SEC. 4645. If the grounds on which the warrant was issued be controverted, the magistrate must proceed to take testimony in relation thereto.

SEC. 4646. The testimony given by each witness must be reduced to writing and authenticated by the magistrate.
SEC. 4647. If it appear that the property taken is not the same as that described in the warrant, or that there is no probable cause for believing the existence of the grounds on which the warrant was issued, the magistrate shall cause it to be restored to the person from whom it was taken.

SEC. 4648. If the property taken by virtue of a search warrant was stolen or embezzled, it must be restored to the owner, upon his making satisfactory proof to the magistrate of his ownership thereof, or of his right of possession thereto, as provided in the next chapter. If it was taken on a warrant issued on the grounds stated in the second and third subdivisions of section four thousand six hundred and thirty of this chapter, the magistrate must retain it in his possession, subject to the order of the court to which he is required to return the proceeding before him, or of any other court in which the offense which the property taken was used as a means of committing, or so intended to be, is triable.

SEC. 4649. The magistrate must annex together the affidavits taken before the issuing of the warrant, the warrant, the return, and the inventory, and return them to the next district court of the county, at or before its opening, on the first day of the next term thereof.

SEC. 4650. Whoever, maliciously and without probable cause, procures a search warrant to be issued and executed, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4651. A peace officer who, in executing a search warrant, willfully exceeds his authority, or exercises it with unnecessary severity, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4652. When a person charged with a felony is supposed by the magistrate before whom he is brought, to have upon his person a dangerous weapon or anything which may be used as evidence of the commission of the offense, the magistrate may direct him to be searched in his presence, and the weapon or other thing to be retained, subject to his order, or the order of the court in which the defendant may be tried.

SEC. 4653. When any officer, in the execution of a search warrant, shall find any stolen or embezzled property, or shall seize any other things for which a search is allowed by this chapter, all the property and things so seized shall be safely kept by the direction of the court or magistrate, so long as shall be necessary for the purpose of being produced as evidence on any trial; and as soon as may be afterwards, all such stolen and embezzled property shall be restored to the owner thereof, and all other things seized by virtue of such warrant shall be destroyed under the direction of the court or magistrate.\(^m\)

CHAPTER 51.

OF THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY STOLEN OR EMBEZZLED.

SECTION 4654. When the property alleged to have been stolen or embezzled comes into the custody of a peace officer, he must hold the same subject to the order of the magistrate authorized by the next section to direct the disposal thereof.

\(^m\) See The State v. Mullen, cited in note to section 4659, post.
Delivered to owner.
R. § 5050.

SEC. 4655. On satisfactory proof of title by the owner of the property, the magistrate before whom the information is laid, or who shall examine the charge against the person accused of stealing or embezzling the same, may order it to be delivered to the owner, on his paying the reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in the preservation and keeping thereof, to be certified by the magistrate. The order shall entitle the owner to demand and receive the property.

SEC. 4656. If the property stolen or embezzled come into the custody of a magistrate, it must be delivered to the owner on satisfactory proof of his title, and on his paying the necessary expenses incurred in its preservation, to be certified as before provided.

SEC. 4657. If the property stolen or embezzled has not been delivered to the owner, the court before which a conviction is had, may, on proof of his title, order its restoration.

SEC. 4658. If the property stolen or embezzled be not claimed by the owner before the expiration of six months from the conviction of the person for stealing or embezzling it, the magistrate or other officer having it in his custody, must, on payment of the necessary expenses incurred for its preservation, deliver it to the auditor of the county to be applied under the direction of the board of supervisors thereof for the benefit of the poor of the county.

SEC. 4659. When the money or other property is taken from the defendant arrested upon a charge of a public offense, the officer taking it shall, at the time, give duplicate receipts therefor, specifying particularly the amount of money and the kind of property taken; one of which receipts he must deliver to the defendant, and the other he must forthwith file with the clerk of the district court of the county where the depositions and statements are to be sent by the magistrate.

CHAPTER 52.

OF PROCEEDINGS AND TRIALS BEFORE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

SECTION 4660. Justices of the peace have jurisdiction of, and must hear, try, and determine all public offenses less than felony, committed within their respective counties, in which the punishment described by law does not exceed a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment thirty days.

SEC. 4661. Criminal actions for the commission of a public offense must be commenced before a justice of the peace, by an information subscribed and sworn to, and filed with the justice.

SEC. 4662. Such information must contain:
1. The name of the county and of the justice where the information is filed;

* Sections 4653 and 4659 of the code simply direct the care and disposition to be made of stolen property when taken by the officer, and the receipt to be given by him therefor does not affect or limit the competency on either side. The State v. Mullen, 30 Iowa, 203.

* Where the defendant was indicted for, and convicted of, stealing personal property of less than twenty dollars in value, in a dwelling-house in the day time, held, that the district court had jurisdiction of the offense, and that the same was not cognizable by a justice of the peace. The State v. Dawson, 17 Iowa, 584.

* The jurisdiction of justices of the peace in criminal matters is co-extensive with the county. The State v. Kinney, 41 Id., 424.
2. The names of the parties, if the defendants be known, and if not, then such names as may be given him by the complainant;

3. A statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, and the time and place of the commission of the offense as near as may be.\(^a\)

Sec. 4663. The information may be substantially in the following form:

```
The State of Iowa, against

A. . . . B. . . ., defendant.

The defendant is accused of the crime (here name the offense):

For that the defendant, on the . . . . day of . . . . . A. D. 18 . . . , at the (here name the city, village, or township), in the county aforesaid (here state the act or omission constituting the offense as in an indictment).\(^a\)
```

Sec. 4664. The justice must file such information, and mark thereon the time of filing the same.

Sec. 4665. Immediately upon the filing of such information, the justice may, in his discretion, issue a warrant for the arrest of the defendant, directed in the same manner as a warrant of arrest upon a preliminary information, and may be served in like manner.

Sec. 4666. The officer who receives the warrant must serve the same by arresting the defendant, if in his power, and bringing him without unnecessary delay before the justice who issued the same.

Sec. 4667. When the defendant is brought before the justice the charge against him must be distinctly read to him, and he shall be asked whether he is presented by his right name, and be required to plead. If he objects that he is wrongly named in the information, he must give his right name, and if he refuses to do so, or does not object that he is wrongly named, the justice shall make an entry thereof in his docket, and he is thereafter precluded from making any such objection.

Sec. 4668. The defendant may plead the same pleas as upon an indictment. His pleas must be oral, and shall be entered on the docket of the justice.

Sec. 4669. Upon a plea other than a plea of guilty, if the defendant do not demand a trial by jury, the justice must proceed to try the issue, unless a change of venue be applied for by the defendant.

\(^a\) An information is not sufficient if it merely charge the commission of an offense by its technical name. It must contain a statement of the facts constituting the offense intended to be charged. The State v. Murray et al., 41 Iowa, 580. An information may be amended upon application to any extent which the court may deem consistent with the orderly conduct of judicial business, with the public interest, and with private rights. The State v. Doe, 50 Id., 541.

\(^a\) An information, under section 1562 of the revision (section 1540 of the code), which charged "that the defendant on, etc., at, etc., did sell intoxicating liquors in violation of the laws of the state of Iowa," without stating to whom the sale was made, was held insufficient. The State v. Allen, 32 Iowa, 491. An information charging a defendant with inhumanly whipping and beating his own child, is sufficient as an information charging an assault and battery; but it should set out the name of the person on whom the offense was committed. The State v. Bitman, 13 Id., 455.
CHANGE OF VENUE.

SEC. 4670. If a change of venue be applied for, an affidavit must be filed stating that the justice is prejudiced against the defendant, or is of near relation to the prosecutor upon the charge, or the party injured or interested, or is a material witness for either party, or that the defendant cannot obtain justice before him, as the affiant verily believes.

SEC. 4671. If such affidavit be filed the change of venue must be allowed, and the justice must immediately transmit all the original papers, and a transcript of all his docket entries in the case to the next nearest justice in the township, unless said justice be a party to the action, or is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree, or where he has been attorney for either party in the action or proceeding, and in such case the justice before whom such action or proceeding is commenced, shall transmit all the original papers, together with a transcript of all his docket entries to the next nearest justice in the county against whom none of the above objections exist, who may require the defendant to plead as provided in section four thousand six hundred and sixty-seven of this chapter, if he has not already done so, and shall proceed to try the case, unless a jury trial be demanded, but no more than one change of venue in the same case shall be allowed.

SELECTION OF JURY.

SEC. 4672. Before the justice has heard any testimony upon the trial, the defendant may demand a trial by jury.

SEC. 4673. If a trial by jury be demanded, the justice shall direct any peace officer of the county to make a list in writing of the names of eighteen inhabitants of the county having the qualifications of jurors in the district court, from which list the prosecutor and defendant may each strike out three names.

SEC. 4674. In case the prosecutor or the defendant neglect or refuse to strike out such names, the justice shall direct some disinterested person to strike out the names for either or both of the parties so neglecting or refusing, and upon such names being struck out, the justice must issue a venire directed to any peace officer of the county, requiring him to summon the twelve persons whose names remain upon the list, to appear before such justice at the time and place named therein, to make a jury for the trial of the cause.

SEC. 4675. The officer to whom such venire is delivered must forthwith summon such jurors, and return the venire to the justice within the time therein specified, naming the persons summoned and the manner of service.

SEC. 4676. The names of the persons returned as jurors shall be written on separate ballots, folded each in the same manner as nearly as possible, and so that the name be not visible, and shall, under the direction of the justice, be deposited in a box or other convenient thing.

SEC. 4677. The justice must then draw out six of the ballots successively, and if any of the persons whose names are drawn do not appear, or are challenged, or are set aside, such further number must be drawn as will make a jury of six, after all legal challenges have been allowed.
SEC. 4678. The same challenges may be taken by either party to any individual juror as on the trial of an indictment for a misdemeanor, but no challenge to the panel is allowed.

SEC. 4679. If any of the jurors named in the venire cannot be found, or do not attend, or are challenged by either party, so that a sufficient number cannot be obtained, the justice may direct the officer to summon any bystander or others who may be competent, and against whom no sufficient cause of challenge appears, to act as jurors.

SEC. 4680. If the officer by whom the venire is received do not return it as required, he may be punished by the justice as for contempt, and the justice shall issue a new venire for the summoning of the same jurors, upon which the same proceeding shall be had as upon the one first issued.

SEC. 4681. When six jurors appear and are accepted, they shall constitute the jury.

SEC. 4682. The justice must thereupon administer to them the following oath or affirmation: You do swear (or you do solemnly affirm, as the case may be), that you will well and truly try the issue between the state of Iowa and the defendant, and a true verdict give according to the evidence.

TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

SEC. 4683. After the jury are sworn, they must sit together and hear the proofs and allegations of the parties, which must be delivered in public. After which, they may either decide in court or retire for consideration.

SEC. 4684. If they do not immediately agree they must retire with the officer, who shall be sworn to the following effect: "You do swear that you will keep the jury together in some private and convenient place, without meat or drink, unless otherwise ordered by the court; that you will not permit any person to speak to them, nor speak to them yourself, unless it be to ask them whether they have agreed upon a verdict, and that you will return them into court when they have so agreed."

SEC. 4685. When the jury have agreed upon their verdict, they must deliver it publicly to the justice, who shall enter it on his docket.

SEC. 4686. The jury must be kept together after the cause is submitted to them, until they have agreed upon and rendered their verdict, unless, for good cause, the justice sooner discharge them.

SEC. 4687. If the jury be discharged as provided in the last section, the justice may proceed again to the trial in the same manner as upon the first trial; and so on till a verdict is rendered.

SEC. 4688. When the defendant pleads guilty, or is convicted, either by the justice or by a jury, the justice shall render judgment thereon, of fine, or imprisonment, as the case may require, being governed by the rules prescribed for the district court, as far as the same are applicable, in rendering such judgment.

SEC. 4689. A judgment that the defendant pay a fine may also direct that he be imprisoned until the fine is satisfied.

SEC. 4690. When the defendant is acquitted, either by the justice, or by a jury, he must be immediately discharged.
Costs: appeal; notice; justice make statement; transcript; papers filed; court compel correction. R. § 5086.

SEC. 4691. When the defendant is acquitted, the justice shall, if he is satisfied that the prosecution is malicious or without probable cause, tax the costs against the prosecuting witness and render judgment therefor, from which he may appeal to the district court, by there giving notice to the justice that he claims such appeal, and the fact of the giving of such notice shall be entered on his record by the justice. If notice of appeal is given as herein contemplated, the justice shall, without delay, make out, sign, and file in the case a full and true statement of all the testimony admitted on the trial, and on which he bases his finding that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause, and shall, without delay, make out a transcript of his docket entries, and shall file it, together with the statement of the testimony as aforesaid, and all other papers on file in the case, in the clerk's office of the district court of the county. And such appeal shall stand for hearing in said court at the term thereof commencing next after said papers are filed. And said court shall have full power to compel the correction by said justice of any error made apparent in his transcript, said statement of testimony, or in any papers returned by him, or may itself make the necessary correction therein, and may, on the papers, in case they shall be submitted to it, either affirm or reverse the judgment of the justice, or render such judgment as the justice should have rendered in the case.

SEC. 4692. Whenever a conviction is had upon a plea of guilty, or upon trial, the justice must make and sign with his name of office, a certificate of such conviction, in which it shall be sufficient briefly to state the offense charged and the conviction and judgment thereon, and if any fine has been collected, the amount thereof.

SEC. 4693. The judgment shall be executed by a peace officer of the county where the conviction is had, by virtue of a warrant under the hand of the justice specifying the particulars of such judgment.

SEC. 4694. If a fine be imposed, and paid before commitment, it shall be received by the justice, and by him paid over to the county treasurer, within thirty days after the receipt thereof, for the use of the schools of the county, as provided by law.

SEC. 4695. If the defendant be committed for not paying a fine, he may pay it to the sheriff of the county, but to no other person, who must in like manner, within thirty days after the receipt thereof, pay it into the county treasury, for the use of the schools in the county, as provided by law.

SEC. 4696. If the fine, or any part thereof, is paid to the justice or sheriff, he must execute duplicate receipts therefor, one of which he must file without delay, with the county auditor.

SEC. 4697. The justice rendering a judgment against the defendant, must inform him of his right to an appeal therefrom, and make an entry on the docket of the giving of such information, and the defendant may thereupon take an appeal, by giving notice orally to the

The power conferred by this section upon a justice of the peace to tax the costs against a prosecuting witness, when satisfied that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause, may also be exercised by the district court on a trial of the case on appeal, though such order had not been made by the justice before whom it was tried. In re Trenchard, 16 Iowa, 53.

This power may be exercised without the hearing of any evidence on the part of the state in addition to that submitted on the trial of the cause, if that is sufficient to show the want of probable cause; and when the evidence given on the trial is not embraced in the record, the supreme court will presume that it was sufficient. Id.

The person who files an information in a criminal action is considered the prosecuting witness. Id.
justice, that he appeals, and the justice must make an entry on his docket of the giving of such notice.*

Sec. 4698. The justice must thereupon enter an order on his docket, fixing the amount in which bail may be given by the defendant, and the execution of the judgment against the defendant, shall not be stayed, unless bail in that amount be put in, by an undertaking substantially in the following form:

County of.............

A. B. having been convicted before C. D., a justice of the peace of said county, of the crime of (here designate it generally as in the information), by a judgment rendered on the... day of..., A. D., 18..., and having appealed from said judgment to the district court of said county:

We, A. B., and E. F. (or I, E. F. and G. A.), hereby undertake that the said A. B. will appear in the district court of said county, at the term thereof to which the appeal is returnable, and abide the judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or that we (or I, as the case may be) will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of... dollars (the amount of bail fixed).

A. B.
E. F.

(as the case may be).

Acknowledged before, and accepted by me, at...., in the township of......, this.... day of...., 18...

C. D.,
Justice of the Peace.

Sec. 4699. The bail must possess the qualifications, must justify, and must be taken in the same manner prescribed in chapter thirty-eight of this title, and the same proceedings had in all respects, as nearly as applicable, except as in this chapter otherwise provided.

Sec. 4700. The bail may be taken by the justice who rendered the judgment, or by any magistrate in the county who has authority to admit to bail, or by the district court or the clerk thereof.

Sec. 4701. When an appeal is taken, the justice must cause all material witnesses to enter into an undertaking, as in a case where a defendant is held to answer on a preliminary examination, to appear and testify on the trial of the appeal in the district court, at the term at which it is returnable, and shall as soon as practicable, and at least ten days before the first day of such term of the district court of the county, file in the office of the clerk thereof a certified copy of the entries on his docket, together with all the undertakings and papers in the case.

*The district court can acquire no appellate jurisdiction of a criminal case by the mere filing of an appeal bond. The appeal can be taken only by giving the notice required by this section to the justice who rendered the judgment. The State v. Leyden, 13 Iowa, 438.

Under section 5094 of the revision, the state, in a criminal trial before a justice of the peace, had the right of appeal to the district court as well as the defendant. The State v. Tait, 22 Id., 140, but that section has been omitted from the code.

That section (5094) was afterwards held to be in conflict with that clause of the constitution of the state declaring that "no person shall, after acquittal, be tried for the same offense" in The State v. Van Horton, 26 Id., 402.

An appeal will lie to the district court from the judgment of the mayor of a town, incorporated under the general law, for the violation of a town ordinance. The State, for use, etc., v. Hoag, 45 Id., 337.

A prosecuting witness who has been adjudged by a justice of the peace to pay the costs of a criminal prosecution, may, in the name of the state, appeal from the judgment of the justice to the district court. The State v. Roney, 37 Id., 30.
CHAPTER 53.

OF PROCEEDINGS BEFORE POLICE AND CITY COURTS IN INCORPORATED CITIES AND TOWNS.

SECTION 4707. The proceedings in police and city courts in incorporated cities and towns, in criminal cases within their jurisdiction, shall be regulated by the provisions of this code, when not otherwise regulated by law.

CHAPTER 54.

OF COMPROMISING CERTAIN OFFENSES BY LEAVE OF THE COURT.

SECTION 4708. When a defendant is prosecuted in a criminal action for a misdemeanor, for which the person injured by the act constituting the offense has a remedy by a civil action, the offense may be compromised as provided in the next section, except when it was committed:

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal case is a waiver of irregularities in the justice's court, the cause then standing in the district court for a trial de novo upon its merits. The State v. McCombs, 13 Iowa, 426.

When the record discloses that in the trial before the justice, the defendant was present and asked for a jury, a plea of "not guilty" will be presumed, if the justice has failed to enter it upon his docket. Id.

In such cases the district court may, under section 3586 of the code, order a plea of "not guilty" to be supplied as an omission apparent on the face of the records. Id.
1. By, or upon an officer while in the execution of the duties of his office;
2. Riotously; or,
3. With an intent to commit a felony.

Sec. 4709. If the party injured in such a case, appear before the court to which the papers on a preliminary examination are required to be returned, at any time before trial, on an indictment for the offense, or the trial of an appeal in the district court, and acknowledge in writing that he has received satisfaction for the injury, the court may in its discretion, on payment of the costs incurred, order all proceedings to be stayed upon the prosecution, and the defendant to be discharged therefrom. But in that case the reasons for the order must be set forth therein, and entered upon the minutes.

Sec. 4710. The order authorized by the last section is a bar to another prosecution for the same offense.

Sec. 4711. No public offense can be compromised, nor can any proceedings for the prosecution or punishment thereof, upon a compromise, be stayed, except as provided in this chapter.

CHAPTER 55.
OF PARDONS AND THE REMISSION OF FINES AND FORFEITURES.

Section 4712. The governor shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures upon such conditions and with such restrictions and limitations as he may think proper. After conviction of murder in the first degree no pardon shall be granted by the governor until he shall have presented the matter to, and obtained the advice of, the general assembly thereon. Before presenting the matter to the general assembly for their action, he shall cause a notice containing the reasons assigned for granting the pardon to be published in two newspapers of general circulation, one of which shall be published at the capital and the other in the county where the conviction was had, and if there be no such paper in such county, then in some adjoining county, for four successive weeks, the last publication to be at least twenty days prior to the commencement of the session of the general assembly to which the matter shall be presented.

Sec. 4713. When an application is made to the governor for a pardon, reprieve, or commutation, or for the remission of a fine or forfeiture, he may require the judge of the court, or the district attorney, or attorney general, by whom the action was prosecuted, or the clerk

"The governor of the state has the power to annex to a pardon any condition precedent or subsequent, provided it be not illegal, immoral, or impossible to be performed. Arthur v. Craig, 48 Iowa, 264.

Where a pardon was granted by the governor upon certain conditions, and it was stipulated therein that upon any violation of such conditions the person pardoned should be liable to summary arrest, and to confinement in the penitentiary for the remainder of the term for which he had been sentenced, and it was further stipulated that the judgment of the executive should be conclusive as to the violation of the conditions of the pardon, held, that upon the violation of the conditions of the pardon the legal status of the party became the same as it was before the pardon was granted. Id."
of such court, to furnish him without delay a copy of the minutes of the evidence taken on the trial, and of any other facts having reference to the propriety of his exercise of his powers in the premises. He may also take the testimony of such persons bearing upon such application as he may deem advisable, and for this purpose is authorized to administer the necessary oath. Any person who, in giving such testimony, shall swear falsely and any person who shall knowingly and corruptly make any false statements in an affidavit intended to be used in connection with an application for pardon, or for remission of fine or forfeiture, shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be punished therefor as provided by law.

SEC. 4714. Whenever any convict is pardoned, or reprieved, or his sentence commuted, or any fine or forfeiture is remitted, it is the duty of the officer to whom the warrant is directed, as soon as may be after executing the same, to make a return in writing thereon to the secretary of state, of his doings under the same, and sign the same with his name of office, and must also file in the office of the clerk of the court in which the conviction was had, or in which it was to have been enforced, a certified copy of the warrant and return, the proper entries in relation to which shall be made by such clerk.

CHAPTER 56.

OF ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN.

SECTION 4715. When any woman residing in any county of the state is delivered of a bastard child, or is pregnant with a child, which, if born alive, will be a bastard, complaint may be made in writing by any person to the district court of the county where she resides, stating that fact, and charging the proper person with being the father thereof. The proceeding shall be entitled in the name of the state against the accused as defendant.

SEC. 4716. Upon the filing of the complaint, the clerk shall cause notice to be given to the person so charged as in an ordinary action.

SEC. 4717. From the time of the filing of such complaint, a lien shall be created upon the real property of the accused in the county where the action is pending, for the payment of any money and the performance of any order adjudged by the proper court.

SEC. 4718. If the complaint is verified, the district judge may order an attachment to issue thereon without bond, which order shall specify the amount of property to be seized under the attachment, and may be revoked at any time by such judge or the district court, on a

The mother of an illegitimate child may, by a fair settlement, founded upon a reasonable consideration with the putative father, preclude herself and the county from the right to maintain a proceeding under the provisions of the statute relating to bastardy to secure to her the maintenance of the child. Black Hawk Co. v. Cotter, 32 Iowa, 125; Holmes v. The State, 2 G. Greene, 501.

*The circuit court has no power to order that the defendant in a bastardy proceeding shall pay specified sums at fixed periods for the maintenance of the child. This power is reserved to the district court. [Id.]

showing made to either for a revocation of the same, and on such terms as such court or judge may deem proper in the premises.

SEC. 4719. The district attorney, on being notified of the facts justifying a complaint as contemplated in section four thousand seven hundred and fifteen of this chapter, or of the filing of such complaint, shall prosecute the matter in behalf of the complainant.

SEC. 4720. The issue on the trial shall be "guilty" or "not guilty," and shall be tried as an ordinary action.

SEC. 4721. If the accused be found guilty, he shall be charged with the maintenance of the child in such sum or sums, and in such manner as the court shall direct, and with the costs of the suit; and the clerk may issue execution for any sum ordered to be paid immediately, and afterwards, from time to time, as it shall be required to compel compliance with the order of the court.

SEC. 4722. The court may, at any time, enlarge, diminish or vacate any order or judgment rendered in the proceeding herein contemplated, on such notice to the defendant as the court or judge may prescribe.
TITLE XXVI.

OF THE DISCIPLINE AND GOVERNMENT OF PRISONS, AND OF THE PENITENTIARY, ITS GOVERNMENT AND DISCIPLINE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF IMPRISONMENT FOR PUBLIC OFFENSES, AND THE DISCIPLINE OF PRISONS.

Section 4723. The common jails now erected, or which may hereafter be erected in the several counties in this state, in charge of the respective sheriffs, are to be used as prisons:
1. For the detention of persons charged with an offense, and duly committed for trial or examination;
2. For the detention of persons who may be duly committed to secure their attendance as witnesses on the trial of any criminal cause;
3. For the confinement of persons pursuant to sentence upon conviction for any offense, and of all other persons duly committed for any cause authorized by law;
4. The provisions of this section extend to persons detained or committed by authority of the courts of the United States as well as the courts and magistrates of this state.

Sec. 4724. It is the duty of the keeper of the jail of the county to see that the same is constantly kept in a cleanly and healthy condition, and he must pay strict attention to the personal cleanliness of all the prisoners in his custody as far as may be. Each prisoner must be furnished daily with as much clean water as may be necessary for drink and for personal cleanliness, and with a clean towel and shirt once a week, and must be served three times each day with wholesome food, which must be well cooked, and in sufficient quantity.

Sec. 4725. The sheriff of the county must keep a true and exact calendar of all prisoners committed to any prison under his care, which calendar must contain the names of all persons who are committed, their place of abode, the time of their commitment, the time of discharge, the cause of commitment, the authority that committed them, and description of their person; and when any prisoner is liberated, such calendar must state the time when, and the authority by which such liberation took place; and if any person escape, it must state particularly the time and manner of such escape.

Sec. 4726. At the opening of each term of the district court within his county, the sheriff must return a copy of such calendar under his hand to the judge of such court; and if any sheriff neglect or refuse so to do, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.
SEC. 4727. The keeper of each jail must furnish necessary bedding, clothing, fuel and medical aid for all prisoners under his charge, and keep an accurate account of the same.

SEC. 4728. Whenever, by reason of any jail being on fire, or any building contiguous or near to a jail being on fire, there be reason to apprehend that the prisoners confined in such jail may be injured or endangered thereby, the sheriff or keeper of such jail may, at his discretion, remove such prisoners to some safe and convenient place, and there confine them so long as may be necessary to avoid such danger.

INSPECTOR OF JAILS.

SEC. 4729. In each county of this state the judge of the circuit court and district attorney are inspectors of the jails respectively, and have power, from time to time, to visit and inspect the same, and inquire into all matters connected with the government, discipline and police of such prisons.

SEC. 4730. It is the duty of such inspectors to visit and inspect such prisons twice each year, and at the next district court which is thereafter held in their county, to present to such court on the first day of its sitting, a detailed report of the condition of such prisons at the time of such inspection.

SEC. 4731. Such report must state the number of persons confined in such prison, and for what cause respectively, the number of persons usually confined in one room, the distinction, if any, usually observed in the treatment of the prisoners, the evils, if any, found to exist in such prisons; and particularly whether any provisions of this chapter have been violated or neglected, and the cause of such violation or neglect.

SEC. 4732. The keepers of such prisons shall admit the said inspectors, or any of them, into any part of such prisons, to exhibit to them on demand, all the books, papers, documents and accounts pertaining to the prison or to the prisoners confined therein, and to render them every other facility in their power to enable them to discharge the duties above prescribed.

SEC. 4733. For the purpose of obtaining the necessary information to enable them to make such reports as is above required in this chapter, the said inspectors have power to examine on oath, to be administered by either of them, any of the officers of such prison, or any of the prisoners therein.

SEC. 4734. If any person confined in any jail upon a conviction or charge of any offense, is refractory or disorderly, or if he willfully destroy or injure any article of bedding, or other furniture, door or window, or any other part of such prison, the sheriff of the county, after due inquiry, may chain and secure such person, or cause him to be kept in solitary confinement not more than ten days for any one offense; and during such solitary confinement he may be fed with bread and water only, unless other food is necessary for the preservation of his health.

SEC. 4735. All charges and expenses of safe keeping, and maintaining convicts and persons charged with public offenses and committed for examination or trial to the county jail, shall be paid from the county treasury, the accounts therefor being first settled and allowed by the board of supervisors; except prisoners committed or detained by the authority of the courts of the United States, in which case the United States must pay such expenses to the county.

HARD LABOR.

SEC. 4736. Any able bodied male person over the age of sixteen years and not over the age of fifty years, now or hereafter confined in any jail in this state, under the judgment of any court of record or of any other tribunal authorized to imprison for the violation of any law, ordinance, by-law, or police regulation, may be required to labor during the whole or part of the time of his sentence, as hereinafter provided, and such court or other tribunal, when passing final judgment of imprisonment, whether for non-payment of fine or otherwise, shall have the power to determine, and shall determine, whether such imprisonment shall be at hard labor or not.

SEC. 4737. Such labor may be on the streets or public highways on or about public buildings or grounds, or at such other places in the county where confined, and during such reasonable time of the day as the person having charge of the prisoners may direct, and not exceeding eight hours per day.

SEC. 4738. In case the sentence be for the violation of any of the statutes of the state, the sheriff of the county where the imprisonment is, shall superintend the performance of the labor herein contemplated, and shall furnish the tools and materials, if necessary, to work with, at the expense of the county in which the convict is confined, and such county shall be entitled to his earnings.

SEC. 4739. When the imprisonment is pursuant to the judgment of any court, police court, police magistrate, mayor, or other tribunal of any incorporated city or town, for the violation of any ordinance, by-law, or other regulation, the marshal shall superintend the performance of the labor herein contemplated, and shall furnish the tools and materials, if necessary, at the expense of the city or town requiring the labor, and such city or town shall be entitled to the earnings of its convicts.

SEC. 4740. The officer having charge of any convicts for the purpose specified in this chapter, may use such means as, and no more, than are necessary to prevent escape, and if any convict attempt to escape, either while going from or returning to the jail, or while at labor, or at any time, or if he refuse to labor, the officer having him in charge, after due inquiry may, to secure such person, or to cause him to labor, use the means authorized by section four thousand seven hundred and thirty-four of this chapter; provided, such punishment shall be inflicted within the jail or jail enclosure for refusal to work and shall not be considered as any part of the time for which the prisoner is sentenced.

\[This section was not intended to fix the fees or compensation of the sheriff for any services performed by him in, and about the keeping of, prisoners in the county jail, but its object and purpose was to designate the source from whence the money should come to pay all legal charges and expenses connected with the safe keeping and maintenance of prisoners in the county jails. Grubb v. Louisa County, 40 Iowa, 314.\]

The sheriff who employs a jailor, and not the county, is liable for the payment of his services.

\[McDonald v. Woodbury County, 48 Id., 404.\]

SEC. 4738. In case the sentence be for the violation of any of the statutes of the state, the sheriff of the county where the imprisonment is, shall superintend the performance of the labor herein contemplated, and shall furnish the tools and materials, if necessary, to work with, at the expense of the county in which the convict is confined, and such county shall be entitled to his earnings.

SEC. 4739. When the imprisonment is pursuant to the judgment of any court, police court, police magistrate, mayor, or other tribunal of any incorporated city or town, for the violation of any ordinance, by-law, or other regulation, the marshal shall superintend the performance of the labor herein contemplated, and shall furnish the tools and materials, if necessary, at the expense of the city or town requiring the labor, and such city or town shall be entitled to the earnings of its convicts.

SEC. 4740. The officer having charge of any convicts for the purpose specified in this chapter, may use such means as, and no more, than are necessary to prevent escape, and if any convict attempt to escape, either while going from or returning to the jail, or while at labor, or at any time, or if he refuse to labor, the officer having him in charge, after due inquiry may, to secure such person, or to cause him to labor, use the means authorized by section four thousand seven hundred and thirty-four of this chapter; provided, such punishment shall be inflicted within the jail or jail enclosure for refusal to work and shall not be considered as any part of the time for which the prisoner is sentenced.
SEC. 4741. For every day's labor performed by any convict under the provisions hereof, there shall be credited on any judgment for fine and cost against him, the sum of one dollar and fifty cents, and no person shall be entitled to the benefits of the law providing for the liberation of poor convicts, if, in the opinion of the sheriff, the judgment may be satisfied by the labor of the person as herein authorized.6

SEC. 4742. If any officer or other person treat any prisoner in a cruel or inhuman manner, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding twelve months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 4743. The officer having such a prisoner in charge shall protect him from insult and annoyance, and communication with others while at labor, and going to and returning from the same, and he may use such means as are necessary and proper therefor; and any person persisting in insulting and annoying, or communicating with any prisoner, after being commanded by such officer to desist, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding three days.

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE PENITENTIARY OF THE STATE, AND THE GOVERNMENT AND DISCIPLINE THEREOF.

6 If a defendant sentenced to pay a fine be also sentenced to be committed at labor until the fine is paid he is entitled to a credit of one dollar and a half on the judgment, but the power of the court to direct the imprisonment is limited to one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine, under section 4092 of the code. A sentence of imprisonment until the fine is paid by labor at the rate of one dollar and a half per day, is erroneous. The State v. Jordan, 39 Iowa, 387; The City of Keokuk v. Dressell, 47 Id., 517.

Said warden shall also take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, which shall be indorsed on the back of said bond, that he will support the constitution of the United States, and the constitution of the state of Iowa, and that he will scrupulously observe all the stipulations and conditions of said bond, and faithfully discharge all his duties agreeably to law, according to the best of his ability, which bond shall be filed with the secretary of state.

Sec. 4748. The warden must not carry on nor be concerned in the business of trade or commerce during his continuance in office; he must reside constantly within the precincts of the prison, and shall take charge of the penitentiary, and of all the interests of the state therewith connected, and shall appoint some suitable person as clerk, who shall also act as commissary under the direction of the warden, and one deputy, and as many guards as may be necessary to the safe keeping and government of the convicts, not exceeding one for every ten convicts under his charge, provided that at no time shall there be less than thirteen guards.

The warden shall render to the governor of state, between the first and tenth day of every month, and as nearly as practicable every thirty days, and as much oftener as the governor may require, a statement under oath, of all the transactions of the institution, including the receipts and disbursements of funds, for which disbursements he shall, in all cases, present the proper voucher, the entering into or discharging contracts, the reception and discharge of convicts, the construction, altering, or repairing the buildings, walls, etc., and of all his official acts and doings for thirty days next preceding the presentation of said monthly report, which statement must contain an exact account of all moneys received, together with a copy of all proposals received by him and from what source, and on what account, and of all moneys paid out, and for what purpose the same were expended, and a succinct account of all his doings as warden during the said period, and a reference to his authority for such action.
Sec. 4750. Sec. 4751. The warden shall see that the laws and disciplinary rules and regulations of the institution are faithfully executed by his under-officers, and obeyed by the convicts; and it shall be his duty, upon failure or refusal of any clerk, deputy warden, or guard, to discharge their respective duties agreeably to law, forthwith to discharge such delinquent, and fill the vacancy by the appointment of another person; and disobedience of the convicts shall be punished by the infliction of such penalties as are now provided for by law, and the rules which are now or may hereafter be prescribed for the government of said institution; provided, that it shall be the duty of the warden to keep a register of all punishments inflicted on any convict for disobedience, disorderly conduct, indolence, and of the cause for which they were inflicted.

He shall, also, take and subscribe an oath, which shall be indorsed on the back of said bond, that he will support the constitution of the United States, and the constitution of the state of Iowa, and that he will scrupulously observe all the conditions, stipulations, and requirements of his bond, and will faithfully discharge his duty as clerk and commissary during his continuance in office agreeably to law, according to the best of his judgment and ability; which bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and suit thereon may be brought for the violation of any of its conditions in the name of the state, for the use of the warden or any other person injured by such violation.

Sec. 4753. Among other entries to be made in the books of the institution, the clerk shall open a separate account in said books with the state, and he also shall have a cash, prisoners' fund, construction, report preceding each meeting of general assembly. R. § 5178.

He shall keep a regular time table of the convict labor and record the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, and he shall, moreover, keep a record of all the business under his control, and return an account thereof, together with an account of the convict labor to the clerk at the close of each day.

Sec. 4760. He shall examine every prisoner upon his reception, and make a record of his condition, as to age, constitution, habits, health, ability or disability.

Sec. 4761. When a prisoner dies, the physician may have the privilege of a post mortem examination, unless objection be made by the relatives of such patient, and shall record the result of it, making reference in the record of treatment.

Sec. 4762. He shall have power and authority to purchase by concurrence with and assent of the warden, such medicines and other things as, in his judgment, are necessary for the use of the hospital, and furnish the clerk immediately with the bills of purchase, who shall compare them with the articles received.

Sec. 4766. There shall be a steward nominated by him, who shall receive his appointment from the warden, and whose duty it shall be to dispense the medicine prescribed by the physician, and to do all other things necessary to carry out the treatment as directed. He shall act as guard or keeper of the prisoners in the hospital, and shall receive the same wages as other day guards or keepers, and be subject to the same rules and regulations.

Penalties.

Sec. 4767. No officer or other person employed in or about the penitentiary shall be permitted to receive in any way, perquisites for themselves or families, except that the warden shall keep his office, and reside with his family in the penitentiary, and shall be furnished with a garden of a quarter of an acre, and with fuel, lights, provisions for his family and guests, and stationery, from the stock provided for the use of the prison. Sec. 4770. All punishment in the penitentiary by imprisonment must be by confinement to hard labor, and not by solitary imprisonment; but solitary imprisonment may be used as a prison discipline for the government and good order of the convicts.

Sec. 4771. No convict can be discharged from the penitentiary until he has remained the full term for which he was sentenced, to be computed from and including the day on which he was received into the same, exclusive of the time he may have been in solitary confinement for any violation of the rules and regulations of the prison, unless he be pardoned or otherwise released by legal authority.

SEC. 4778. The warden shall receive and take care of any property that a convict may have with him at the time of his entering the penitentiary, and, when it may be convenient, to place the same at interest for the benefit of such convict; of which property the warden must keep an account, and pay the same to such convict on his discharge, or, in case of his death, to his representatives, unless the same have been otherwise taken and legally disposed of.

SEC. 4779. When any convict is discharged from the penitentiary, the warden shall furnish transportation to said convict to any point within this state that is nearest to his former home or friends. [Or may furnish such transportation to any point of a like distance without the state.] Said transportation shall be furnished by means of tickets for passage, an account of which shall be kept by the warden and paid by the state. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Sec. 4788. The state auditor is required to take immediate steps to cause to be collected and accounted for all those debts owing to the state on account of the penitentiary, or in any manner connected therewith, and all outstanding claims of any nature which the state may have on that account, and to that end he may, if he finds it necessary, place any claim in the hands of the attorney-general for prosecution.

Sec. 4789. In all cases where claims have accrued, or may hereafter accrue, in favor of the warden of the penitentiary of this state, which the warden shall deem it advisable to collect by law, the district attorney of the first judicial district shall bring suit upon and collect the same; and in case the governor of the state shall so direct, the attorney-general of the state shall also give his personal attention to said suits.

Sec. 4790. Judgments now or hereafter rendered in favor of the warden of the penitentiary, shall be collected upon execution, and the attorney-general, or district attorney, shall have the same power to bid upon and purchase property upon such executions as is given where judgments are in favor of the state, and the property shall be held and disposed of for the use of the penitentiary by the governor, in the same manner.

Sec. 4791. All actions founded on contract made with the warden in his official capacity, may be brought by or against the warden for the time being; and any action for injuries done or occasioned to the real or personal property belonging to the state and appropriated to the use of the prison, or being under the management of the warden thereof, may be prosecuted in the name of the warden for the time being, and no such action shall abate by the warden's ceasing to be in office, but his successor, upon notice, is required to assume the prosecution or defense of the same. In any such action the warden is a competent witness, and his property shall not be taken or attached in any such suit, nor shall any execution issue against him on any judgment thereon, but such judgment shall stand as an ascertained claim against the state; and whenever a new warden is appointed, all the books, accounts and papers belonging to the prison shall be delivered to him, and he shall be vested with all the powers and subject to all the obligations with regard to any contract or any debts due to or from the prison that his predecessor would have if no change had taken place in the office.

Sec. 4792. Whenever the office of warden is vacant, or he is absent from the prison, or unable to perform the duties of his office, the deputy warden has the power to perform the duties and shall be subject to all the obligations and liabilities of the warden.

Sec. 4793. SEC. 4794. If any subordinate officer of the prison is guilty of negligence or unfaithfulness in the discharge of his duties, or of a violation of any of the laws or rules and regulations for the government of the prison, the warden may deduct from the pay of such officer a sum not exceeding his pay for one month.

SEC. 4795. In case of any pestilence or contagious sickness breaking out among the convicts in the prison, the warden may cause the convicts confined therein, or any of them to be removed to some suitable place of security where such of them as are sick shall receive all necessary care and medical assistance. Such convicts must be returned as soon as may be to the penitentiary, to be confined according to their respective sentences if the same be unexpired.

SEC. 4796. If any officer or other person employed in the prison or its precincts, negligently suffer any convict confined therein to be at large without the precincts of the prison, or out of the cell or apartment assigned to him, or to be conversed with, relieved or comforted contrary to law or the rules and regulations of the prison, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

SEC. 4797. If a convict sentenced to the penitentiary resist the authority of any officer, or refuse to obey his lawful commands, it is the duty of such officer immediately to enforce obedience by the use of such weapons or other aid as may be effectual; and if in so doing any convict thus resisting be wounded or killed by such officer or his assistants, they are justified and shall be held guiltless.

SEC. 4798. It is the duty of all the officers and other citizens of the state, by every means in their power, to suppress any insurrection among the convicts sentenced to the penitentiary, and to prevent the escape or rescue of any such convict therefrom, or from any other legal confinement or from any person in whose legal custody they may be; and if in so doing or in arresting any convict who may have escaped, such officer or other person wound or kill such convict, or other person aiding or assisting such convict, they shall be justified and held guiltless.

SEC. 4799. The governor shall visit said penitentiary personally, as often, at least, as once in three months, to inspect the books, papers and records of the clerk, and deputy warden, and strictly to inquire into the official conduct of the warden, to examine into the general, economical, sanitary, and disciplinary regulations of the prison; and to alter and amend the same in any manner which may be best calculated to promote economy in expenditure, and the health, safe keeping, and convenience of convicts, and all such alterations and amendments shall be reduced to writing, and signed by the governor, and filed by him with the clerk, who shall forthwith record the same. And in case it is impracticable at any time for the governor to make such visit and inspection personally, he may appoint some suitable person to perform that service and report to him; but such person so appointed shall not have the power to make any alteration in the government of the institution, but may report to the governor only; and it is hereby made the duty of the governor to perform the service personally, if practicable.

SEC. 4800. In making the appointment of visitor, as provided for in the preceding section, the governor shall take care that no one is appointed who may be supposed to be under the influence surrounding said penitentiary, or any of its officers, nor shall any one be appointed who has hitherto been officially connected therewith, nor shall the same person be appointed twice in succession.

Sec. 4801. Should the governor at any time become satisfied that the warden is guilty of official negligence or malfeasance, in any particular, so that the safety or health of the convicts is endangered, or any funds appropriated for said institution, illegally invested or misapplied, or that said warden is in any manner conducting the affairs of the prison contrary to law and good faith, he shall forthwith remove said warden, notifying him of the specific causes for his removal, and also reporting to the next session of the general assembly, specifying his reasons therefor. He shall also appoint a warden to fill the vacancy thus occasioned, who shall qualify in the same manner as the regularly elected warden, but shall hold his office only until the next succeeding general assembly.

Sec. 4802. The governor shall also fill all vacancies that may occur in the office of warden by death, resignation, or otherwise, between the sessions of the general assembly, but no appointment thus made shall last over a session of the general assembly.

Sec. 4803. For the services herein required of the governor, he shall be allowed out of the state treasury his traveling expenses, and he shall present a bill therefor, under oath, to the auditor of state, which bill, thus sworn to, shall be a sufficient voucher for the auditor to issue his warrant on the state treasury for the amount so claimed.

Sec. 4804. Should the governor be compelled to appoint any person or persons, to visit the penitentiary, as herein provided, such person shall render to the governor an account of his traveling expenses and time employed under said appointment, which account shall be sworn to, and the governor shall determine the amount to which said person is entitled, not exceeding three dollars per day and expenses, and shall give him a certificate thereof, which certificate shall authorize the auditor to issue his warrant on the treasurer of state for said amount in favor of the person entitled thereto.

Sec. 4805. Should any person required to perform any duty relative to the penitentiary, willfully fail or refuse obedience thereto, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine in any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and shall forfeit his office, and should said willful failure or refusal result in the escape of any of the convicts, or in loss of any of the funds appropriated to the use and benefit of the penitentiary, provided said sum so lost shall exceed the amount of twenty dollars, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not less than two or more than ten years.

Sec. 4806. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to repeal or in any way affect chapters forty-three or one hundred and eight of the fourteenth general assembly providing for an additional penitentiary at or near Anamosa, in the county of Jones.

CHAPTER 47, OF REVISION OF 1860.

SWAMP LANDS.

ARTICLE I.

An Act in relation to the swamp lands within the state of Iowa.

[Passed February 5, 1851; took effect February 26, 1851; third session, chapter 69, page 169.]

SECTION 918. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the commissioner of the state land office is authorized to take such steps as he thinks necessary, in order to secure to the state, the swamp lands granted by the act of congress of the 28th of September, 1850, entitled "An act to enable the state of Arkansas, and other states, to reclaim the swamp lands within their limits."

SECTION 919. (2.) For this purpose the commissioner, when he has reason to believe there is any tract of swamp land within this state not reported as such by the United States surveyor, sufficient to justify a more particular examination, he shall direct the county surveyor of any county, in which said lands may be located, to make the examination, and provide the proofs necessary to secure such lands to the state, a list of which shall be returned to the land commissioner, or the authority acting in that capacity, verified by affidavit, for which services the surveyor is entitled to two dollars per day for each and every day actually employed; and for the purposes of this act, any unorganized county attached to another for election purposes in which an election precinct is organized, is declared to be a part of such organized county.

SECTION 920. (3.) Previous to the election and qualification of the commissioner of the land office, the duties above prescribed shall devolve upon the governor, whose duty it shall be to procure from the surveyor general's office a list of the lands returned to that office as swamp lands, and take other steps in the premises as in his opinion are necessary to secure the best interests of this state.

SECTION 921. (4.) All compensation for services rendered, or expenses incurred, in carrying out the provisions of this act, must be made out of the proceeds and sales of said swamp lands.

SECTION 922. (5.) Subject to the approval of the governor, the county surveyor is authorized to contract with individuals or companies for making the levies or drains necessary to reclaim any of the swamp lands of the state, by giving them a portion of the lands thus reclaimed or a portion of the proceeds thereof.

SECTION 923. (6.) The commissioner may dispose of any of the swamp lands of the state, for such price as he may think them worth, as herein provided; for the purpose of ascertaining said value, the county surveyor and sheriff in any county in which such lands are located, may, upon the direction of the commission, appraise such lands in such manner as the school lands are now appraised, for which they are to receive a sum not exceeding two dollars per day each, for all the time actually and necessarily expended in making examination and appraisement.

SECTION 924. (7.) The proceeds of the sales of such lands after paying all expenses incurred in selecting, appraising, selling and reclaiming such lands as are deemed worthy of reclaiming, shall be paid into the state treasury, subject to the disposition of the general assembly.

ARTICLE II.

An Act to dispose of the swamp and overflowed lands within the state, and to pay the expenses of selecting and surveying the same.

[Passed January 13, 1853; took effect February 2, 1853; laws of fourth general assembly, chapter 13.]

SECTION 925. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all the swamp and overflowed lands granted to the state of Iowa by the act of congress, entitled "An act to enable the state of Arkansas and other states to claim the swamp land within their limits," approved September 28, 1850, be, and the same is hereby granted to the counties respectively in which the same may lie, or be situated, for the purpose of constructing the necessary levees and drains, to reclaim the same—and the balance of said lands, if any there be after the same are reclaimed as aforesaid, shall be applied to the building of roads and bridges, when necessary, through or across said lands, and if not needed for this purpose, to be expended in building roads and bridges within the county.

SEC. 926. (2.) Whenever it shall appear that any of the lands granted to the state by the aforesaid act of congress, shall have been sold by the United States since the passage of that act, it shall be lawful for the said counties to convey said lands to the purchasers thereof. The deed shall be made by the county court as such and countersigned by the clerk of said court, with the official seal thereof affixed, and on delivering said deed to the purchaser, the county court shall take from him an assignment of all his rights in the premises, and as such assignee, the said court shall be authorized to receive from the United States the purchase money of said land; and whenever any lands embraced by the said act have been located by county land warrants, since the passage thereof, it shall be lawful for such county in which the same are situated, to convey the same in the manner aforesaid, to the person or persons who located said warrant, and take an assignment of the same to the county court which shall thereupon be considered as grantee of the state, and as such may locate said warrant upon any of the public lands belonging to the United States within the limits of said county.

SEC. 927. (3.) In all those counties where the county surveyor has made no examinations and reports of the swamp lands within his county, in compliance with the instructions from the governor, the county court shall at the next regular term thereof, after the taking effect of this act, appoint some competent person, who shall as soon as may be thereafter, after having been duly sworn for that purpose, proceed to examine said lands and make due report, and plats, upon which the topography of the country shall be carefully noted, and the places where drains or levees ought to be made, marked on the said plats, to the county courts respectively, which courts shall transmit to the proper officers, lists of all said swamp lands in each of the counties in order to procure the proper recognition of the same on the part of the United States, which lists, after an acknowledgment. of the same by the general government shall be recorded in a well bound book provided for that purpose, and filed among the records of the county court.

SEC. 928. (4.) The said lands shall be under the care and superintendence of the county courts (board of supervisors*) of the counties respectively, in which the same are situated, and at the next April election, there shall be elected an officer to be styled drainage commissioner of the county of ..........., who shall within twenty days after his said election, enter into a bond with good security, to be approved by the county court, payable to the people of the state of Iowa, for the use of the inhabitants of the county of ..........., in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties required of him, or which may hereafter be required of him by law.

SEC. 929. (5.) It shall be the duty of the surveyors of the several counties in this state who have surveyed, or shall survey, the swamp and overflowed lands in their respective counties, to make out plats of all the swamp and overflowed lands in the several townships, and fractional townships, within their counties, noting distinctly upon the same every tract, or parcel of swamp and overflowed land in each township, the quantity and quality thereof, as to whether the same be first, second or third rate, and it shall be his duty to return the same as soon as practicable, and in reasonable time to the clerk's office of the county court, and the said court, at some regular term thereafter, or sooner if deemed necessary, shall fix a valuation upon each tract, according to its quality, but in no case shall any of said land be valued at less than twenty cents per acre, and the plat with the description and valuation marked thereon shall be recorded in said book, and filed away among the records of the office.

SEC. 930. (6.) After the surveyors have returned the plats aforesaid, the valuations have been made, and recorded as aforesaid, the said court shall fix upon the proper time for selling said lands, which shall in all cases be at the county seat, and at the court-house door of the several counties. The said courts may order the whole of said lands to be sold, and the sale continued from day to day, or they may order a part only of said lands to be sold from time to time, as they may deem expedient, and all such orders, so made by them, shall be entered on record in said book.

SEC. 931. (7.) The said drainage commissioner shall be notified in writing by the clerk, of all such orders, and within reasonable time thereafter, not exceeding ten days, he shall give at least forty days notice of the time and place of sale thereof, by publishing the same in some newspaper printed in the county; or if there be no such newspaper, then by posting up two notices thereof in each election precinct in the county, for the like period of forty days before said day of sale. The said notices shall contain an accurate description of the lands to be sold, and shall specify the time, place and terms thereof, and that the sale will be at public auction, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and five o'clock p. m. of the day fixed therefor, and that the same will be continued from day to day, if deemed necessary.

SEC. 932. (8.) In conducting the sales the said commissioner shall sell the same in such order as may be directed by the county court. No tract shall be sold for less than its valuation, and the same shall be cried separately, and long enough to enable any one to bid who desires it.

Sec. 933. (9.) The terms of selling said lands shall be to the highest bidder, for cash, the amount of which, however, may be discharged by the purchaser in labor, to be performed, in manner and according to the terms hereinafter specified.

Sec. 934. (10.) Upon closing the sales each day, the purchasers shall each pay, or secure the purchase money, according to the terms of sale, or in case of his failure so to do by ten o’clock the succeeding day, the tract purchased shall be again offered at public sale on the same terms as before, and if the valuation shall be bid, the same shall be stricken off, but if the valuation be not bid, the tract shall be set down as not sold. If sale is not made, the former purchaser shall be required to pay the difference between his bid and the valuation of the tract, and in case of his failure to make such payment, the drainage commissioner may forthwith institute an action of debt or assumpsit in his name for the use of the inhabitants of the proper county, for the required sum, and upon making proof, shall be entitled to judgment, with costs of suit, which when collected shall be applied as other moneys arising from the sale of lands.

Sec. 935. (11.) Upon the completion of every sale by the purchaser, the commissioner shall enter the same in a sale book kept for that purpose, and shall deliver to the purchaser a certificate of purchase, stating therein the name and residence of the purchaser describing the land sold and the price paid therefor, which certificate shall be evidence of the facts therein stated, and when presented to the county court, it shall be the duty of said court to execute to him a deed in fee simple for the land therein described, signed in the official capacity of said court, and countersigned by the clerk of said court with the official seal thereto affixed, which said deed shall vest in the purchaser an absolute title in fee simple of said land therein described.

Sec. 936. (12.) The said county courts shall cause said lands to be drained by the construction of proper levees and drains necessary to reclaim the same, and when it becomes necessary in the construction of levees and drains to pass through private property, a just compensation shall be made to the owner or owners thereof, if damage has been done such property, to be ascertained in the same manner as provided in the road law now in force in cases of roads.

Sec. 937. (13.) The surveyors employed to locate said swamp land, shall also report to the county courts all the lands in their respective counties which are susceptible of being drained or reclaimed, in all cases where said information cannot be satisfactorily had in some other way, with an estimate of the probable cost thereof, and at some regular term after said reports are received the said courts shall divide all such drainable lands in their counties into sections numbered one, two, three, etc., and whenever there shall be a sufficiency of lands sold to complete one or more sections, the same shall be as soon as practicable put under contract, and operation commenced thereon, and in like manner shall the work progress until the avails of said lands are exhausted or the work completed.

Sec. 938. (14.) The said county court shall cause the work to be done on the said sections to be let out at public sale to the lowest responsible bidder, and it shall be the duty of the drainage commissioner, on being ordered by said court so to do, to give at least four week’s notice of the time and place of such lettings, by putting up notices thereof in six of the most public places in the county, and in case there shall be a newspaper printed in the county, then, by causing a similar notice thereof to be published in the same, for a like period of four successive weeks before the day of such lettings, and the said notices shall contain specifications of the work to be done, to be made out under the direction and control of the county court, provided that two or more counties may reclaim swamp lands in conjunction, and in such case each county shall make payment in proportion to the amount of lands reclaimed in said county.

Sec. 939. (15.) The persons to whom said lettings shall be struck off shall enter into bond, with good security, payable to said commissioner, for the use of the inhabitants of the county, in the penal sum of double the value of his bid, conditioned for the faithful performance of the work so undertaken by him, according to the specifications thereof, and for a failure to comply with the condition thereof, said bond shall be forfeited, and suit brought upon the same to recover damages for non-compliance.

Sec. 940. (16.) The said county courts, in laying off said work into sections as aforesaid, shall make such division thereof as will enable purchasers of land to pay for the same in necessary work, and if said purchasers shall be the lowest bidders at the lettings, the land so purchased shall be paid for in work; but if any other responsible person or persons shall be lower bidders, the same shall be struck off to him or them, and the purchasers aforesaid shall be forthwith required to pay for their lands in cash, or credit by giving mortgage and good security for the purchase money, at the discretion of the said drainage commissioner. But no such credit shall be given for a greater length of time than twelve months, and shall draw interest at the rate of six per cent per annum.

Sec. 941. (17.) The said county courts shall not dispose or sell any more of said lands than shall be absolutely necessary to complete the reclaiming, and draining of the same, and in all cases where there are any lands remaining unsold after the completing of said draining in any county, they shall be expended in the building of roads and bridges through or across said swamp lands, under the direction and superintendence of the drainage commissioner, and if said lands are not needed for this purpose, then to be disposed of in the construction of roads and bridges within the county.

Sec. 942. (18.) If any drainage commissioner, or other person shall embezzle, or appropriate to their own use any money, bonds, bills, notes or mortgages belonging to the drainage fund of any county in this state, he, she, or they shall be liable to indictment, and on conviction shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary of this state, for a period not less than one, nor more than five years, and such conviction shall work a forfeiture of office in all cases.

Sec. 943. (19.) All lands not sold at public sales as herein provided for shall be subject to sale at any time thereafter at the valuation, and the clerk of the county court is authorized and required to sell all such lands at private sale upon the terms upon which they were offered at public sale, the money to be paid over to the drainage commissioner, and his receipt taken therefor.

Sec. 944. (20.) The surveyor shall be required to file in the office of the clerk of the county court an affidavit setting forth the number of days he was actually and necessarily employed, and the number of days that each person (naming such person) was actually and necessarily employed by him, and when a team was employed, the number of days such team was actually and necessarily employed in examining the swamp and overflowed lands, and in making out plats and descriptions of the same.

Sec. 945. (21.) When accounts are proved and filed in such manner as shall be satisfactory to the county courts, the clerk of said court is hereby authorized and required to issue a county order for the amount thereof, in favor of the persons entitled thereto, or on their written order, the amounts authorized by this act to be paid are hereby appropriated; provided, that the clerk of the county court shall charge the several amounts so paid to the drainage fund of the several counties, and the same shall be a debt due and owing from such fund to the counties, and it is hereby made the duty of the drainage commissioners to pay out of the first moneys received from the sale of lands, to the treasurers of the several counties, the said amounts so charged by the clerk against such drainage fund as aforesaid.

Sec. 946. (22.) Each and every person who on the twenty-eighth day of September, 1850, was the owner of any improvement, or who since that date has become the owner of any improvement on any of the said swamp, or overflowed lands, with a view to a residence, and occupation of said land for agricultural purposes, shall have the right to purchase, at the appraised value thereof, a quantity of land including his said improvement, to be bounded by the leading subdivisions, not exceeding one quarter section, to consist of the quarter-quarter, half-quarter, or quarter section: provided, that any person claiming the right to purchase under this act shall, within three months after the taking effect of this act, file in the clerk's office of the county court of the proper county, a notice of his, her, or their claims, describing the land by its numbers, and proving the facts in relation to such claim to the satisfaction of such clerk: and provided further, that any person, claiming the right to purchase as aforesaid, shall within twelve months from the day set for selling the swamp lands in the neighborhood in which his improvement is situated, pay to the drainage commissioner the consideration money for the land claimed, or the person so claiming shall be allowed to pay the same in labor, according to the provisions of this act, which payment shall entitle him, her, or them, to a deed conveying an estate in fee simple; but in case of failure to make such payment, or to pay in labor as aforesaid, the right to make the purchase shall cease.

Sec. 947. (23.) All business in relation to the swamp and overflowed lands shall be transacted at the regular term of the courts, except on extraordinary occasions, when said county courts shall have power to appoint special terms for the transaction of such business. And the county courts shall have power to allow the drainage commissioners, surveyors, clerks, and all others employed, such fees as they may deem just and right, to be paid out of the county treasury and charged to the drainage fund.

Sec. 948. (24.) It shall be the duty of all constables, coroners, sheriffs, justices of the peace, county surveyors and grand jurors to take notice of all trespasses committed on such lands, either by cutting timber, or otherwise, and to take all legal steps under the laws of this state to bring such offenders to punishment.

said members of the council and house of representatives shall reside in and be inhabitants of the district for which they may be elected. Previous to the first election, the governor of the territory shall cause the census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the several counties in the territory to be taken and made by the sheriffs of the said counties, respectively, and returns thereof made by said sheriffs to the governor. The first election shall be held at such time and place, and be conducted in such manner as the governor shall appoint and direct; and he shall, at the same time, declare the number of members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties is entitled under this act. The number of persons authorized to be elected having the greatest number of votes in each of said counties for the council, shall be declared, by the said governor, to be duly elected to the said council; and the person or persons having the greatest number of votes for the house of representatives, equal to the number to which each county may be entitled, shall also be declared, by the governor, to be duly elected: provided, the governor shall order a new election when there is a tie between two or more persons voted for, to supply the vacancy made by such tie. And the persons thus elected to the legislative assembly shall meet at such place on such day as he shall appoint; but, thereafter, the time, place and manner of holding and conducting all elections by the people, and the apportioning the representation in the several counties to the council and house of representatives, according to population, shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the annual commencement of the session of the said legislative assembly; but no session, in any year, shall exceed the term of seventy-five days.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every free white male citizen of the United States, above the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been an inhabitant of said territory at the time of its organization, shall be entitled to vote at the first election, and shall be eligible to any office within the said territory; but the qualifications of voters at all subsequent elections shall be such as shall be determined by the legislative assembly: provided, that the right of suffrage shall be exercised only by citizens of the United States.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That the legislative power of the territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation; but no law shall be passed interfering with the primary disposal of the soil; no tax shall be imposed upon the property of the United States; nor shall the lands or other property of non-residents be taxed higher than the lands of other property of residents. All the laws of the governor and legislative assembly shall be submitted to, and, if disapproved by the congress of the United States, the same shall be null and of no effect.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That all township officers and all county officers, except judicial officers, justices of the peace, sheriffs and clerks of courts, shall be elected by the people, in such manner as may be provided by the governor and legislative assembly. The governor shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the legislative council, shall appoint, all judicial officers, justices of the peace, sheriffs and all militia officers, except those of the staff, and all civil officers not herein provided for. Vacancies occurring in the recess of the council shall be filled by appointments from the governor, which shall expire at the end of the next session of the legislative assembly; but the said governor may appoint, in the first instance, the aforesaid officers, who shall hold their offices until the end of the next session of the said legislative assembly.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no member of the legislative assembly shall hold or be appointed to any office created or the salary or emoluments of which shall have been increased whilst he was a member, during the term for which he shall have been elected, and for one year after the expiration of such term; and no person holding a commission under the United States, or any of its officers, except as a militia officer, shall be a member of the said council, or shall hold any office under the government of the said territory.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the judicial power of the said territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and in justices of the peace. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate judges, any two of whom shall be a quorum, and who shall hold their offices during good behavior. The said territory shall be divided into three judicial districts; and a district court or courts shall be held in each of the three districts, by one of judges of the supreme court, at such times and places as may be prescribed by law. The jurisdiction of the several courts herein provided for, both appellate and original, and that of the probate courts, and of the justices of the peace, shall be as limited by law: provided however, that the justices of the peace shall not have jurisdiction of any matter of controversy, when the title or boundaries of land may be in dispute, or where the debt or sum claimed exceeds fifty dollars. And the said supreme and district courts, respectively, shall possess chancery as well as common law jurisdiction. Each district court shall appoint its clerk, who shall keep his office at the place where the court may be held, and the said clerks shall also be the registers in chancery; and any vacancy in said office of clerk happening in the vacation of said court, may be filled by the judge of said district, which appointment shall continue until the next term of said court. And writs of error, bills of exception, and appeals in chancery causes, shall be allowed in all cases, from the final decisions of the said district courts to the supreme court, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; but in no case removed to the supreme court, shall a trial by jury be allowed in said court. The supreme court may appoint its own clerk, and every clerk shall hold his office at the pleasure of the court by which he shall have been appointed. And writs of error and appeals from the final decisions of the said supreme court shall be allowed and taken to the supreme court of the United States, in the same manner, and under the same regulations, as from the circuit courts of the United States, where the value of the property, or the amount in controversy, to be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of either party, shall exceed one thousand dollars. And each of the said district courts shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction, in all cases arising under the constitution and laws of the United States as is vested in the circuit and district courts of the United States. And the first six days of every term of the said courts, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be appropriated to the trial of causes arising under the said constitution and laws. And writs of error, and appeals from the final decisions of the said courts, in all such cases, shall be made to the supreme court of the territory, in the same manner as in other cases. The said clerks shall receive, in all such cases, the same fees which the clerk of the district court of the United States in the northern district of the state of New York receives for similar services.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That there shall be an attorney for the said territory appointed, who shall continue in office four years, unless sooner removed by the president, and who shall receive the same fees and salary as the attorney of the United States for the Michigan territory. There shall also be a marshal for the territory appointed, who shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the president, who shall execute all process issuing from the said courts when exercising their jurisdiction as circuit and district courts of the United States. He shall perform the same duties, be subject to the same regulations and penalties, and be entitled to the same fees, as the marshal of the district court of the United States for the northern district of the state of New York; and shall, in addition, be paid the sum of two hundred dollars, annually, as a compensation for extra services.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That the governor, secretary, chief justice and associate judges, attorney and marshal, shall be nominated, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the president of the United States. The governor and secretary, to be appointed as aforesaid, shall before they act as such respectively take an oath or affirmation before some judge or justice of the peace in the existing territory of Michigan, duly commissioned and qualified to administer an oath or affirmation, to support the constitution of the United States, and for the faithful discharge of the duties of their respective offices; which said oaths, when so taken, shall be certified by the person before whom the same shall have been taken, and such certificate shall be received and recorded by the said secretary among the executive proceedings. And afterwards the chief justice and associate judges, and all other civil officers in said territory, before they act as such, shall take a like oath or affirmation before the said governor or secretary, or some judge or justice of the territory who may be duly commissioned and qualified, which said oath or affirmation shall be certified and transmitted by the person taking the same to the secretary, to be by him recorded as aforesaid; and, afterwards, the like oath or affirmation shall be taken, certified, and recorded, in such manner and form as may be prescribed by law. The governor shall receive an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars for his services as governor and as superintendent of Indian affairs. The said chief justice and associate judges shall each receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars. The secretary shall receive an annual salary of twelve hundred dollars. The said salaries shall be paid quarter-yearly, at the treasury of the United States. The members of the legislative assembly shall be entitled to receive three dollars each per day, during their attendance at the sessions thereof, and three dollars each for every twenty miles' travel in going to and returning from the said sessions, estimated according to the nearest usually traveled route. There shall be appropriated, annually, the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars, to be expended by the governor to defray the contingent expenses of the territory, and there shall also be appropriated annually, a sufficient sum, to be expended by the secretary of the territory, and upon an estimate to be made by the secretary of the treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of the legislative assembly, the printing of the laws and other incidental expenses; and the secretary of the territory shall annually account to the secretary of the treasury of the United States for the manner in which the aforesaid sum shall have been expended.

And be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the said territory shall be entitled to, and enjoy, all and singular the rights, privileges, and advantages, granted and secured to the people of the territory of the United States northwest of the river Ohio, by the articles of the compact contained in the ordinance for the government of the said territory, passed on the thirteenth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven; and shall be subject to all the conditions and restrictions and prohibitions in said articles of compact imposed upon the people of said territory. The said inhabitants shall also be entitled to all the rights, privileges, and immunities, heretofore granted and secured to the territory of Michigan, and to its inhabitants, and the existing laws of the territory of Michigan shall be extended over said territory, so far as the same shall not be incompatible with the provisions of this act, subject, nevertheless, to be altered, modified, or repealed, by the governor and legislative assembly of the said territory of Wisconsin; and further, the laws of the United States are hereby extended over, and shall be in force in said territory, so far as the same, or any provisions thereof may be applicable.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That the legislative assembly of the territory of Wisconsin shall hold its first session at such time and place in said territory as the governor thereof shall appoint and direct; and at said session, or as soon thereafter as may by them be deemed expedient, the said governor and legislative assembly shall proceed to locate and establish the seat of government for said territory, at such place as they may deem eligible, which place, however, shall thereafter be subject to be changed by the said governor and legislative assembly. And twenty thousand dollars, to be paid out of any money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, is hereby given to the said territory, which shall be applied by the governor and legislative assembly to defray the expenses of erecting public buildings at the seat of government.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That a delegate to the house of representatives of the United States, to serve for the term of two years, may be elected by the voters qualified to elect members of the legislative assembly, who shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges as have been granted to the delegates from the several territories of the United States to the said house of representatives. The first election shall be held at such time and place or places, and be conducted in such manner, as the governor shall appoint and direct. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be declared by the governor to be duly elected, and a certificate thereof shall be given to the person so elected.
