SEC. 2790. [View by jury.]—Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper for the jury to have a view of the real property which is the subject of controversy, or of the place in which any material fact occurred, it may order them to be conducted in a body, under the charge of an officer, to the place which shall be shown to them by some person appointed by the court for that purpose; while the jury are thus absent, no person other than the person so appointed shall speak to them on any subject connected with the trial.

The object of this section is to enable the jury the better to apply the evidence given on the trial, and not to base their verdict in any degree upon the examination of the premises, itself, or to become silent witnesses as to facts in relation to which neither party has an opportunity to cross examine. Close v. Samm, 27 Iowa, 503.

This section leaves it to the discretion of the trial court whether or not the jury shall view the premises in controversy, and the supreme court cannot interfere with the exercise of such discretion. So held in an appeal from an award of commissioners of damages for a railroad right of way. Clayton v. The C. I. & Dakota R. R. Co., 67 Id., 228.

Sec. 3791. [Kept together in charge of officer.]—When the case is finally submitted to the jury they may decide in court or retire for deliberation. If they retire, they shall be kept together, under charge of an officer until they agree upon a verdict, or are discharged by the court. The officer having them under his charge shall not suffer any communication to be made to them, or make any himself, except to ask them if they have agreed upon their verdict; unless by order of the court, and he shall not, before their verdict is rendered, communicate to any person the state of their deliberations, or the verdict agreed upon.

A verdict was agreed upon after the adjournment of the court, in the night, and was, without the consent of parties, sealed up by the jury, and by them placed in the hands of the bailiff, to be by him delivered to the clerk, whereupon the jury separated. Held, that the irregularities were not sufficient to invalidate the verdict. Heiser v. Van Dyke, Martin & Co., 27 Iowa, 359; Cook & Desley v. Walters, 4 Id., 72.

Sec. 2792. [Court to advise jury when separating.]—If the jury are permitted to separate during the trial, they must be advised by the court that it is the duty of each one of them not to converse with any other of them, or with any person, nor to suffer himself to be addressed by any person on any subject of the trial, and that during the trial it is the duty of each one of them to avoid, as far as possible, forming any opinion thereon until the cause is finally submitted to them.

Sec. 2793. [Juror sick: when discharged.]—If, after the impanelling of the jury and before verdict, a juror becomes sick so as to be unable to perform his duty, he may be discharged. In such case the trial shall proceed with the remaining jurors, provided the number has not been reduced below ten, or the court may, in its discretion, order the jury to be discharged.

The jury contemplated by the constitution is the jury recognized by the common law, which is constituted of twelve men. It follows that a verdict rendered by a jury of less than twelve men is of no effect unless the objection is waived, and that this section of the code authorizing a verdict from ten or eleven jurors, when the jury has been reduced to that number by sickness, is in conflict with the constitution. Eshelman v. The C., R. I. & P. R'y Co., 61 Id., 269. Following Cowles v. Buckham, 6 Id., 161. This doctrine approved and followed in Kelsh v. The Town of Dyersville, 68 Id., 137; and it was further held in the case that a municipal corporation has an equal right with a natural person to raise the objection.

Sec. 2794. [Discharge: when.]—The jury may be discharged by the court on account of any accident or calamity requiring their discharge, or by the consent of both parties, or, when on an amendment a continuance is ordered, or after they have been kept together until it satisfactorily appears that there is no probability of their agreeing.

Sec. 2795. [Cause re-tried: when.]—In all cases where the jury are discharged during the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, it may be tried again immediately, or at a future time, as the court may then direct.

Sec. 2796. [Adjournment after trial begun.]—The court may also, at any time after having entered upon the trial of any cause, where it may deem it right for the purposes of justice, order an adjournment for such time within the term, and subject to such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise, as it may think just.

Sec. 2797. [What jury may take with them.]—Upon retiring for deliberation, the jury may take with them all books of accounts, and all papers which have been received as evidence in the cause, except depositions, which shall not be so taken, unless all the testimony is in writing, and none of the same has been ordered to be struck out.

Where a jury upon retiring to consider upon their verdict, took with them a deposition which had not been read upon the trial, and read and considered the same in making up their verdict, it was held, that as the deposition was favorable to the party for whom the verdict was rendered, the

Where a deposition is taken by the jury on their retirement, with the knowledge of the appellant and without objection on his part at the time, the judgment will not be reversed, in the absence of a showing that he was prejudiced thereby. Shields v. Guffey, 9 Id., 322; State v. Acosta, 14 Id., 246; Turner v. Kelly, 10 Id., 573; Davenport v. Cummings, 15 Id., 219.

The jury may take the instructions given by the court with them when they retire to consider upon their verdict. Head v. Metzger v. Langworthy & Bros., 15 Id., 295.

Where a jury, on retiring, took with them a deposition which had not been read in evidence but was material to the case, without the knowledge or consent of the parties, the verdict should be set aside and a new trial granted. Coffin v. Kephart, 18 Id., 256.

Where, in an action to recover the value of a lot of wheat, alleged to have been sold by the defendant, copies of a daily commercial price current were admitted in evidence, it was held, that these papers might properly be taken by the jury to their room upon retiring to consider upon their verdict; and that having retired without them it was not erroneous for the court to send them to their room, on a request from the jury to that effect. Peterson v. Haugen, 34 Id., 365.

Where, after the jury had retired for deliberation, the short-hand reporter, under order of the court, but in the absence of court and counsel, and without the knowledge of the appellant or its counsel, went into the jury room and read from his notes such portions of the evidence as the jury called for, it was held that the proceeding was without warrant, and that on account thereof a new trial should have been granted on the defendant's motion. Fleming v. The Town of Shenandooh, 67 Id., 505.

The practice of permitting persons who sue for personal injuries to exhibit to the jury their wounds or injured limbs has been too long sanctioned in this state to be now called in question. Barker v. The Town of Perry, 67 Id., 149.

There is no impropriety in allowing the jury to take to their room a photographic view introduced in evidence on the trial. Id.

SEC. 2738. [Court always open until verdict.]-When the jury is absent, the court may adjourn from time to time in respect to other business, but it is to be deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury, until a verdict is rendered or the jury discharged.

SEC. 2739. [Further testimony to correct mistake.]-At any time before the cause is finally submitted to the court or jury, either party may be permitted by the court to give further testimony to correct an evident oversight or mistake, but terms may be imposed upon the party obtaining the privilege.

This section was intended to prevent the unjust determination of a cause, on account of an accidental or inadvertent omission of a party to call a witness, or to ask a question on some given point; and was not intended to be limited in its application to the period of examining witnesses. McManus v. Finan, 4 Iowa, 283.

To correct an oversight or mistake, evidence may be allowed to be introduced by a party, after the argument of one of the counsel of the opposite party to the court has closed. McCormick & Bros. v. Holbrook, 22 Id., 457.

This section which authorizes the reception of evidence to correct an evident oversight or mistake at any time before the cause is finally submitted, does not deny to the court the power to receive, in its discretion, any evidence out of its usual order, where there is no surprise to the opposite party, and justice is thereby promoted. Huey v. Huey, 26 Id., 525.

While it seems that this section applies alone to civil causes, yet, under some circumstances and for some purposes, in criminal trials, a witness may properly be recalled after the evidence is closed, as where a difference of opinion and misunderstanding as to what the witness testified to exists. The State v. Shean, 32 Id., 38.

Where during the trial of a cause a party went in search of witnesses, whom he found and brought into court, but not until the attorney for the adverse party was addressing the jury, it was held that the testimony of the witnesses should have been then offered before the case was submitted to the jury, and not having been so offered its existence would constitute no ground for a new trial. Dettman v. Zimmerman, 53 Id., 709.

Accidental delay of a witness in reaching the place of trial in time may be sufficient to entitle a party to have his evidence given at any time before the final submission of the cause, and a refusal to allow it would be error. Smith v. The State Ins. Co., 38 Id., 487.

SEC. 2800. [Information given after retirement of.]—After the jury has retired for deliberation, if they desire to be informed as to any point of law arising in the case, they may request the officer to conduct them into court, which he shall do, when the information required shall be given in the presence of, or after notice to, the parties or their council.
Instructions to the jury should always be given in open court. O'Connor v. Guthrie & Jordan, 11 Iowa, 80. Sec. also, Davis v. Fish, 1 G. Greene, 410; Cole v. Stock, 4 Id., 83.

SEC. 2801. [How given.]—Such information shall be in writing, and shall be held approved unless it be excepted to in the same way as the charge, and no discussion thereon shall be allowed to either party.

SEC. 2802. [Food and lodging.]—If, while the jury are kept together, either during the progress of the trial or after their retirement for deliberation, the court order them to be provided with suitable food and lodging, they must be provided by the sheriff, at the expense of the county.

The defendant in a criminal proceeding may, with the consent of the district attorney and the court, waive his right to a trial by twelve jurors and be tried by a less number. The State v. Kaufman, 51 Iowa, 578.

VERDICT.

SEC. 2803. [How signed and rendered.]—The verdict must be written and signed by a foreman chosen by the jury itself, and when agreed, the jury must be conducted into court, their names called, and the verdict rendered by him and read by the clerk to the jury, and the inquiry made whether it is their verdict. If any juror disagrees, the jury must be sent out again, but if no disagreement is expressed and neither party requires the jury to be polled, the verdict is complete and the jury discharged from the case.

A judgment will not be reversed because the verdict is not signed by the foreman of the jury when returned by the jury into court. This section is directory and not imperative. Morrison v. Overton, 20 Iowa, 465.

It is not error to permit a jury, after it has returned a sealed verdict into court, to correct an error in the verdict which has occurred through inadvertence only. Hamilton v. Barton, 1d., 565.

The party against whom a verdict has been rendered cannot complain of the ruling of the court permitting the jury to reduce the amount of the verdict, when the record shows no exceptions taken on the trial, no evidence preserved, and no other steps taken by which he could have escaped the payment of the entire verdict. Id.

In the absence of any showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that the court followed the directions of this section of the statute, and that upon the reading of the verdict to the jury, and inquiry is made of them as to whether it is their verdict, there was no disagreement thereto. Baylies v. Davis, 47 Id., 340.

In an action for the recovery of several articles of personal property a verdict declaring that the plaintiff was "entitled to the following property described in the petition," but failed to enumerate the articles, was held to be so indefinite and uncertain that no judgment could be rendered thereon. Richardson v. McCormick, 47 Id., 89.

Where the verdict was that "the jury in the above case find for the plaintiffs the amount of the note and interest," it was held sufficient to justify the court in ordering the clerk to assess the amount in rendering judgment on the verdict—the form of the verdict sufficiently expressed the intention of the jury, even if objected to at the proper time. McGregor et al. v. Annell, 2 Id., 29; Stevens v. Campbell, 6 Id., 538.

In an action upon a note, the parties consented that upon the agreement of the jury as to their verdict after the adjournment of court, they might seal and return it to the clerk which was done. The verdict, on being opened the following morning, was found to read, "We the jury find for the plaintiffs." Whereupon the court ordered the jury recalled, and instructed them to put their verdict in form, which they did by adding, "for the sum of $590.40"—that being the amount of note with interest. There was no controversy as to the amount. It was held that there was no error in this action of the court. Higley & Co. v. Newell, 28 Id., 516.

Where a jury returned a general verdict and in response to certain special interrogatories as to material facts, answered that they "did not know," held that motion for a new trial should have been sustained. Darling v. West et al., 51 Id., 250.

The court may put the verdict in form when the meaning is not thereby changed. Armstrong v. Pierson, 15 Id., 476; Gordon & Washburn v. Higley, Morris 13. The technical phraseology of the verdict is not material, if the intention of the jury is plain. Harrell v. Stringfield, Id., 18.

When a verdict is informal the court may instruct the jury as to the proper form and direct them to retire for that purpose. Bars v. Hanson, 9 Iowa, 563.

A verdict defective in form may be corrected by the court, but not to supply an omission of the amount by reference to outside evidence. Fromme v. Jones, 13 Id., 474.

To justify a court in reforming the verdict, the data must be unmistakable. Edwards v. McCadden, 20 Id., 520.
When in an action of replevin the ownership and rights of possession of personal property was in issue on the allegations of the plaintiff's petition, the defendant setting up no special property, and the jury returned the following verdict: "We find the ownership in the plaintiff, and assess the value of the mare at $75, and the damage for the wrongful detention at $25," the form of the verdict of the jury was held sufficient and judgment properly entered thereon. Cassel v. The Western Stage Co., 12 Id., 47.

Where the verdict in replevin was, "We, the jury, find the right of property in the plaintiff, except one hundred which was not covered by the mortgage," it was held that the court erred in reforming the verdict and in rendering judgment for a return by the plaintiff to the defendant of one hundred dollars' worth of property, and in ordering in default thereof, execution for that sum. Moore v. Devol et al., 14 Id., 112.

SEC. 2804. [Polled: how done.]—When the verdict is announced, either party may require the jury to be polled, which shall be done by the court or clerk, asking each juror if it is his verdict. If any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation.

SEC. 2805. [Sealed verdict: effect of.]—When, by consent of the parties and the court, the jury have been permitted to seal their verdict and separate before it is rendered, such sealing is equivalent to a rendition and a recording thereof in open court, nor shall such jury be polled or permitted to disagree thereto, unless such a course has been agreed upon between the parties in open court and entered on the record.

If a jury separate after agreeing upon a verdict without the permission of the court and without the consent of the parties, it may amount to misconduct on their part, for which they may be punished; but such separation does not necessarily render the verdict void, or so taint it as to prevent its reception by the court. Cook et al. v. Walters, 4 Iowa, 75; Heiser v. Van Dyke, Martin & Co., 27 Id., 359.

Where it is agreed that if the jury shall agree before the opening of court the following morning, they may seal their verdict, deliver it to the bailiff and separate, which is accordingly done, this is equivalent to the rendition of the verdict and the recording thereof in open court, and the jury cannot be polled or permitted to dissent therefrom. Bingham v. Foster, 37 Id., 332.

It is not error to permit a jury, after it has returned a sealed verdict into open court, to correct an error in the verdict which has occurred through inadvertence merely. Hamilton v. Barton, 20 Id., 506; Higley & Co. v. Newell, 23 Id., 516.

The words "open court," is to be understood as conveying the idea that the court must be in session, organized for the transaction of business. Per Brock, J., in Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Id., 501, 504.

SEC. 2806. [May be general or special.]—The verdict of a jury is either general or special. A general verdict is one in which they pronounce generally for the plaintiff or for the defendant upon all, or upon any of the issues.

When the jury return special findings, without any general verdict, the court may render judgment on such special findings when the amount to which the plaintiff is entitled under the law is clear therefrom. Helprey v. The C. & R. I. R. Co., 29 Iowa, 459.

It is not necessary for the jury to find specially on a counter-claim pleaded by the defendant. A general verdict for the plaintiff involves and disposes of all issues. Stepanick v. Kula, 36 Id., 563.

SEC. 2807. [Special defined.]—A special verdict is one in which the jury finds facts only; it must present the ultimate facts as established by the evidence to prove them, so that nothing remains to the court but to draw from them its conclusions of law.

SEC. 2808. [Interrogatories: how and when submitted.]—In all actions, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or special verdict; and in any case in which they render a general verdict, they may be required by the court, and must be so required on the request of any party to the action, to find specially upon any particular questions of fact to be stated to them in writing, which questions of fact shall be submitted to the attorneys of the adverse party before the argument to the jury is commenced.

This section has reference to trials in civil actions only. The State v. Ridley et al., 48 Iowa, 370.

The refusal of the trial court to require the jury to return a special verdict upon an immaterial fact is not erroneous. Bonham v. The Central Ins. Co., 25 Id., 328.

The refusal of the court to submit to the jury for special finding thereon interrogatories asked by a party, which are not ultimate in their nature, and which are so framed as that the jury could not well consider or answer them without great danger of confusion and misapprehension, is no ground for the reversal of the judgment. Phoeniz v. Lamb et al., 39 Id., 362.

Interrogatories propounded to a jury, which, when answered, are designed to be in the nature of a special verdict, should be in such form that they may be answered by yes or no, or in some other brief and pertinent way. Marshall v. Blackshire, 44 Id., 475.

This section does not require the court to submit to the jury special questions as to immaterial facts. Lawson v. The C., R. I. & P. Ry Co., 672.

The refusal of the court to direct the jury to find specially, not as to a single fact, but upon a conclusion based upon many facts, and involving the issue to be tried, is not erroneous; such a course is not contemplated by this section of the statute. The Home Ins. Co. v. The N. W. Packet Co., 32 Id., 223.

A party if not deprived of his right to a judgment on the verdict of a jury in his favor by the fact that special interrogatories were erroneously submitted to the jury by the court, where the answers to such interrogatories in no manner conflict with the general verdict, and their submission could not have been prejudicial. Petrie v. Boule et al., 55 Id., 163.

It is the right of a party to have special finding of the jury, upon specific questions of facts, to be stated in writing. They must, however, present specific questions of fact, and must not call for conclusions based upon facts, requiring the jury to enter into statement of the grounds upon which the conclusions are based. Lewis v. The C., M. & St. P. R. Co., 57 Id., 127, 129.

In an action by one who fell into a cellar-way in the night time the defendant asked the court to submit to the jury the following question: "Was there sufficient light at the cellar opening in question at the time of the alleged injury to enable a person of ordinary sight, and using ordinary care to see the cellar opening?" Held error in refusing to submit it. Day v. The City of Mount Pleasant, 70 Id., 193.

This section does not require special interrogatories submitted to the jury on the court's own motion to be first submitted to adverse counsel. Clark v. Balls et al., 71 Id., 189.

SEC. 2809. [Special controls general.]—When the special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict, the former controls the latter, and the court may give judgment accordingly.

To entitle a party to judgment on a special verdict against a general one in favor of the other party, the special findings must be inconsistent with the general one, and must themselves, or when taken together with the facts admitted by the pleadings, be sufficient to establish or defeat (as the case may be) the right to recover. Hartfield v. Lockwood, 13 Id., 296.

When a jury, being instructed to find a special verdict upon three separate issues submitted, returned a special and general verdict, and the special verdict as to one issue was inconsistent with the general verdict, and as to another was equivocal and doubtful, it was held, that the court below did not err in setting aside the general verdict, and in overruling a motion for judgment on both the special and general verdict. Davenport S. F. & L. Ass. v. The N. & F. Ins. Co., 34 Id., 87.

The failure or refusal of the jury to answer any one of the special questions submitted to them constitutes no ground for a reversal of the judgment. Garretty v. Brazil, 94 Id., 339.

The refusal of the court to answer definitely an immaterial question submitted to them affords no ground for a new trial. Rogers v. Hanson & Co., 35 Id., 293.

A party is entitled to a special verdict only upon material facts upon which issue has been joined by the pleadings in the case; and it should be in such form as not to involve a statement of evidence or conclusions of law. Lewis v. The C, M. & St. P. R. Co., 32 Id., 223.

To entitle a party to judgment on the special verdict of the jury, it is necessary, first, that the court shall have submitted to the jury the special interrogatories or questions which the court shall think proper to be submitted, and second, that the jury shall answer them; and third, that the answers of the jury shall not be in accord with the general verdict. Garretty v. Brazil, 35 Id., 293.

inconsistency will not be presumed, but must affirmatively appear. Bonham v. The Iowa Central Ins. Co., 25 Id., 328.

Although a special verdict may not be warranted by the evidence, yet if the general verdict is sustained by sufficient evidence the judgment will not be disturbed. Phanix v. Lamb et al., 29 Id., 302.

Where the jury returned a general verdict and in response to certain special interrogatories as to material facts, answered that they "did not know," it was held that a motion for a new trial should have been sustained and a new trial granted. *Darling v. Sections 2806–2809 of the code relate alone to civil cases. They do not authorize special verdicts in criminal cases. There can be no such verdicts in criminal cases. The State v. Fooks, 65 Id., 196.

Where the action was based on slanderous words which clearly import a charge of larceny, and there was a general verdict for the plaintiff, but the jury found specially that the words as spoken, and as understood by the hearers, did not charge larceny, held, that the general verdict was properly set aside, and judgment rendered on the special verdict. O'Donnel v. Hastings, 68 Id., 271.

When the special findings of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict, the former controls the latter, and the court may give judgment accordingly. But where the general verdict is set aside and judgment rendered the other way upon the special findings, the inconsistency should be so distinct and exercise findings so explicit as to lead to the conclusion that under them no judgment could be authorized upon the general verdict. Hammer v. The C., R. I. & P. Ry Co., 51 Id., 56.

SEC. 2010. [Money: amount of assessed.]—When, by the verdict, either party is entitled to recover money of the adverse party, the jury in their verdict must assess the amount of such recovery.

SEC. 2811. [Joint or several verdicts.]—Where there are several plaintiffs or defendants, whether the pleadings are joint or several, the verdicts shall be moulded according to the facts and to suit the exigencies of the case.

SEC. 2812. [Form et.]—The verdict shall be sufficient in form if it expresses the intention of the jury.

If the verdict is defective in form merely, and no objection is made to it at the time of its rendition in the court below, the objection cannot be made on appeal to the supreme court. McGregor et al. v. Armill, 2 Iowa, 30.

The court may put the verdict in form when the meaning is not thereby changed. Armstrong v. Pierson, 15 Id., 476.

Where the verdict read "we the jury find for the plaintiff, for the note and interest," it sufficiently indicates the intention of the jury, and the reference thereof by the court to the clerk for the purpose of computing the amount is but a reduction of the verdict to form and is proper. Stevens v. Campbell, 6 Id., 538.

When the verdict is informal the court may instruct them as to the form and have them retire to put it in form. Bass v. Hanson, 9 Id., 563; and this may be done after the jury have returned a sealed verdict and separated. Lee & Co. v. Bradway, 25 Id., 216; Higley & Co. v. Newell, 28 Id., 516.

To justify a court in reforming a verdict the data must be unmistakable. Edwards v. McFadden, 25 Id., 620.

A verdict defective in form may be corrected by the court, but not to supply an omission as to the amount by reference to outside evidence. Fromme v. Jones, 13 Id., 474.

SEC. 2813. [Entered of record.]—The verdict shall in all cases be filed with the clerk and entered upon the record, after having been put into form by the court, if necessary.

SEC. 2814. [Waiver of trial by.]—Trial by jury may by waived by the several parties to an issue of fact in the following cases:
1. By suffering default or by failing to appear at the trial;
2. By written consent, in person or by attorney, filed with the clerk;
3. By oral consent in open court, entered in the minutes.

An agreement between the parties that an ordinary action and an equitable action shall be tried by the court at the same time and upon the same evidence, will operate as a waiver of a jury trial in the law action, but will not have the effect to change the character of the actions. Leighton v. Orr, 44 Iowa, 679.

Where the defendant fails to appear at the trial he will be deemed to have waived a jury. Gifford v. Cole, 51 Id., 272.
REFERENCE.

SEC. 2815. [Consent of parties required.]—All or any of the issues in an action, whether of fact or of law, or both, may be referred upon the consent of the parties, either written or oral, in court entered upon the record.

It is the general rule in this state that all actions may be referred by consent, and equity cases, wherein issues of fact arise, without consent; but actions for divorce are excepted from the operation of this rule by section 2222 of the code and cannot be referred even by consent, but must be publicly tried in open court. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Iowa, 501.

The fact that exceptions to the report of the referee in such case is filed and argued before the court does not constitute a trial in open court within the meaning of the statute. Nor does an adoption of the findings of the referee by the court comply with this provision. Id.

An issue of fact in an action of divorce cannot be submitted to a jury for determination and a subsequent adoption by the court of the finding of the jury will not cure the error of such submission. Id., 513.

The reference of the cause, by consent of parties, estops either from afterwards claiming a jury. Heprett v. Egbert, 34 Id., 485.

SEC. 2816. [When done without consent.]—When the parties do not consent, the court may, upon the motion of either, or upon its own motion, direct a reference in either of the following cases:

1. When the trial of an issue of fact shall require the examination of mutual accounts, or when, the account being on one side only, it shall be made to appear to the court that it is necessary that the party on the other side should be examined as a witness to prove the account, in which case the referee may be directed to hear and report upon the whole issue, or upon any specific question of fact involved therein; or,

2. When the taking of an account shall be necessary for the information of the court before judgment, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect; or,

3. When a question of fact shall arise in any action by equitable proceedings, in which case the court in the order of reference shall prescribe the manner in which the testimony shall be taken on the trial.

Where an action involves matter of purely equitable cognizance, although there is also sought, in the same action, other relief not of an equitable character, the court has the power, under the statute, as well as under the former equity practice, to refer the cause to a referee or master, without the consent of the parties. The State for the use, etc., v. Orowy et al., 25 Id., 280.

A party in an equitable action, cannot as a matter of right, demand that the issue shall be tried by a jury. Id.

The court has no power under this section to order a reference of a cause where the parties do not consent thereto, in cases not cognizable in courts of equity. The exercise of such power would violate the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the constitution. McMartin v. Bingham, 27 Id., 24.

Courts of equity have not jurisdiction of actions upon accounts, except where there are mutual accounts, or where the accounts are on one side only and discovery is sought, but not when the account is on one side and no other relief is prayed, nor where there is a single matter on one side and a set-off on the other. Id.

Where a contract between the parties has been established or admitted, and there remains thereunder a series of calculations which are necessary to the establishment of the rights of the parties, it is within the province of the court to order a compulsory reference. The Blair Iowa Lot & L. Co. v. Walker, 50 Id., 376.

Where there is perplexity in the accounts between the parties to an action for the establishment of a claim against an estate, and an examination of the accounts by a jury is impracticable, the case is a proper one for equitable cognizance and under section 2816 of the code, the court may, on its own motion refer such a case to a referee to report the testimony, the facts found, and the conclusions of law; and such procedure is not in violation of the guaranty in section 9 of article I of the constitution. Burt v. Harrah, Adm'r., 65 Id., 648.

SEC. 2817. [Majority may decide.]—Where not otherwise declared in the order of reference, all the referees must meet to hear proofs, arguments, and to deliberate, but a decision by the majority shall be regarded as their decision.

SEC. 2818. [Vacancies.]—When appointed by the court, the judge thereof may fill vacancies in vacation.
SEC. 2819. [Stand in place of court.]—The referee shall stand in the place of the court, and shall have the same power, so far as necessary, to discharge his duty.

The presumptions which obtain in favor of the regularity of proceedings in court apply also to proceedings before referees appointed by the court. Oliver v. Townsend, 16 Iowa, 430.

The court may refuse to review the finding of facts made by a referee, when the evidence upon which it is based is not contained in the record. Id.

The finding of a referee stands like the verdict of a jury or the finding of the court, and will be reversed by the appellate court on the ground that it is against the evidence, only, when it is manifest that the ground is well taken. Childs v. Shower, 18 Id., 261.

A party may dismiss his action after the cause has been submitted to a referee, and he has prepared, but not filed, his report. Such a case does not fall within the terms of subdivision 1, of section 2844 of the code respecting the right of a party to dismiss before the final submission to the court or jury. Belzer v. Togten et al., 22 Id., 322.

SEC. 2820. [Trial by: power of.]—The trial by referee shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. He shall have the same power to summon, and enforce by attachment, the attendance of witnesses, to punish them as for a contempt for non-attendance or refusal to be sworn or to testify, and to administer all necessary oaths in the trial of the case, to take testimony by commission, allow amendments to pleadings, grant continuances, preserve order, and punish all violations thereof.

See cases cited in note to section 2819.

SEC. 2821. [Report: judgment.]—The report of the referee on the whole issue, must state the facts found and the conclusions of law, separately, and shall stand as the finding of the court, and judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court; the report may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner.

Issues in equitable actions are tried in the supreme court de novo on the merits, and not upon the finding of facts made by a referee. Cooper v. Sheet, 14 Iowa, 578.

The finding of a referee, in the consideration of a motion for a new trial, in the appellate court, stands upon the same ground as the verdict of a jury, and will not be disturbed unless it is manifestly against the evidence. Whicher et al. v. The Steamboat Ensign, 21 Id., 240.

That the report of a referee was filed, and judgment rendered thereon in vacation, constitutes sufficient cause for not excepting thereto, nor will it prevent the application of the rule that the supreme court will not review the action of the lower court unless excepted to. Roberts v. Cass, 27 Id., 228.

Where the parties agreed upon a reference, with the stipulation that either should have thirty days, after the report of the referee should be made, to file exceptions thereto, and the referee reported in vacation without consent of parties, held, that in a legal sense the report was not in court until the first day of the following term, and that a motion to set aside the report could then be made. Michael v. Longman, 42 Id., 484.

It is competent for the court to refer a case back to a referee for further report upon the facts with reference to particular issues which are not fully reported upon. Sage et al. v. Nichols et al., 51 Id., 44.

The authority of the referee in such case, however, is limited to reporting upon the particular matters specified in the order of the court. Id.

In order that the report of a referee may be received on appeal, it is necessary that exceptions be taken thereto in the court below. An exception taken to the judgment rendered upon such report is not sufficient under this section, to bring up for review in the appellate court alleged error in the report itself. Brandor v. Hinkley, 60 Id., 185.

To secure a review of the findings and conclusions of a referee, it is not essential that the exceptions thereto be taken and noted before the report is signed; they may be taken and made to the court after the report is filed. Edwards & Beardley v. Cottelet et al., 43 Id., 104.

The report of a referee may be assailed by a motion to set it aside or by proper exceptions thereto, filed upon the coming in of the report, and it is not essential that exceptions be taken to errors occurring on the trial before him, if such errors appear of record. Exceptions need be taken before the referee only when it is necessary to make that of the record which otherwise would not so appear. Washington County v. Jones, 45 Id., 269, 262.

The presumptions which obtain in favor of the regularity of proceedings of courts apply also to proceedings before referees appointed by the court. Oliver v. Townsend et al., 16 Id., 430.

It is not error for the court to refuse to review the finding of a referee upon the facts, when the evidence is not presented in the record. Id.

Where the record showed the finding and report of the referee was set aside, and the cause tried by the court, without setting out the evidence submitted to either the referee or the court, the judgment was affirmed. Inman v. Jamison, 18 Id., 22. See, also, Smith & Crittenden v. Harlan, 49 Id., 101.

After a report of a referee has been confirmed, and a judgment rendered thereon, it is too late, several months after the filing of the report, to move that the referee be required to certify up the evidence. Smith et al. v. Harlan et al., 49 Id., 101.

A party will not be allowed to file an amended pleading tendering a new issue after the referee's report has been made, and thereupon have a re-submission of the cause to the referee, without at least offering a reasonable excuse for neglecting to file the amendment before the report of the referee is made. Neveil v. The Mahaska Co. S. B'k et al., 51 Id., 178.

The report of a referee in an action upon an account, finding that several items thereof were furnished under a contract between the parties, is not objectionable on the ground that it finds upon an issue not submitted to the referee, since it is competent to recover upon an account though the items thereof were furnished under a contract. Haywood v. Woods, 28 Id., 563. Nor would the report be objectionable because it failed to give the precise terms of such contract, or to find as to each item contained in the long account. Id.

The report of a referee stands like the verdict of a jury, and will not be reviewed unless all the evidence is contained in the record. Id.; Taylor v. The French L. Co., 47 Id., 662.

The report of a referee, like the verdict of a jury, will be sustained unless there is such an absence of evidence as to authorize the conclusion that it was not the result of the exercise of an honest, intelligent and unprejudiced judgment. Id.

Sec. 2822. [Finding of facts.]—When the reference is to report the facts, the report shall have the effect of a special verdict.

In ordinary actions the finding of a referee has the effect of a special verdict, and will be only disregarded where palpably against the weight of the evidence; but in equitable actions, it is the duty of the appellate court to adjudicate the case de novo on the evidence. Wiigus et al. v. Oettings et al., 21 Id., 178.

Sec. 2823. [To sign bill of exceptions.]—The referee shall sign any true bill of exceptions taken to any ruling by him made in the case whereeto any party demands a bill of exceptions; and the party shall have the same rights to obtain such bill as exist in the court, and such bill shall be returned with the report.

Sec. 2824. [Parties may agree on.]—In all cases of reference, the parties, except when a minor may be a party, may agree upon a suitable person or persons, not exceeding three, and the reference shall be ordered accordingly; and if the parties do not agree, the court shall appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, who shall be persons free from exception, or the court may allow each party to select one, and itself to select a third.

Sec. 2825. [Appointed in vacation: how.]—A judge of the court, when a case is pending, may, in vacation upon the written consent of the parties, make an order of reference. In such case the order of reference shall be written in the written agreement to refer, and shall be filed with the clerk of the court with the other papers in the cause.

Sec. 2825. [Must be sworn.]—The referee must make affidavit well and faithfully to hear and examine the case, and make a just and true report therein according to the best of his understanding. The affidavit shall be returned with the report.

Where objection is made that the report of the referee is not accompanied by his official oath, evidence that the oath was made and afterwards lost shows a sufficient compliance with the statute. Sears v. Sellew, 28 Iowa, 501.

The failure to file the oath of the referee with his report is not a fatal objection where the report recites that he was duly sworn before proceeding to the discharge of his duties. Shindler v. Luke, 43 Id., 89.

Sec. 2827. [Issues must be made up: court to make order as to procedure.]—The order shall not be made until the case is at issue as to the parties whose rights are to be examined on the reference. The order may direct when the referee shall proceed to a hearing, and when he shall make his report; but in the absence of such direction, he shall do so on the morning of the tenth day after the day on which was made the order of reference, and shall file his report as soon as done; of the time thus fixed or determined the parties shall take notice, and non-attendance of either party within an hour of such time shall be attended with like consequences as if the case were in court, which consequences shall be reported as any other fact or finding of the referee.

Where by agreement a pending cause was submitted to arbitrators, who were, by the order made, given authority to fix the day of hearing, it was held that this was not an absence of direction as contemplated by this section, and that the arbitrators might rightfully fix the time of hearing beyond the ten days prescribed in the section for cases where there is no direction given as to the time of hearing. Corbit v. Nealy, 29 Iowa, 445.

An action is not ripe for reference until the issues are made up. Townsend v. Wisner, 62 Id.,

Sec. 2828. [Must accept: record made of,]—The referee must be called on by the court to accept or refuse the appointment, and his acceptance shall be entered of record; and he shall be under the control of the court, who may, on the motion of either party, make proper orders with a view to his proceeding with all due dispatch, and the court or judge may, on his motion, on good cause shown, enlarge the time for making his report.

Sec. 2829. [Issue process: administer oath,]—Any one of such referees may issue and sign subpoenas and other process, and administer oaths necessary for the discharge of their duties and the full exercise of all their powers.

Sec. 2830. [Mode of procedure in court obtains,]—The form of procedure which in the court itself regulates service, pleading, proof, trial, and the preparation, progression, and method of each of these, shall obtain before the referee; and in every incident of the proceeding before him, the rights and responsibilities of parties, ad of their attorneys, and of the referee, shall be the same as if the referee was the court engaged in the same manner.

The method of determining the correctness of an account involved in a controversy which has been submitted to the referee, rests within his discretion. Keokuk County v. Howard, 43 Iowa,

Sec. 2831. (As amended by ch. 209, 18th g. a.) [What and when taken,]— [An exception is an objection taken to a decision of the court, or a party acting as the court, on matter of law. The party objecting to the decision must do so at the time the same is made (but if decision is on motion, demurrer, or judgment, exception may be taken within three days), and embody his objection in a bill of exceptions to be filed during the term or within such time thereafter as the court may fix; but in no event shall the time extend more than thirty days beyond the expiration of the term, except by consent of parties or by order of the judge. But in an equitable action tried as such, no bill of exceptions shall be required.]

Exceptions to the ruling of the court trying the cause must be taken at the time the rulings are made, and when the record does not show affirmatively that exceptions were thus taken, the supreme court will not review the rulings of the court below. Reason v.
Johnson, 14 Iowa, 393; Bremington v. Patton & Swan, 1 Id., 121; Rayclens v. Tucker, 3 Id.,
213; The State v. Burke, 7 Id., 255; Davenport S. F. Association v. N. A. Ins. Co., 16 Id.,
74; Corner & Co. v. Gaston, 10 Id., 512; Gordon v. Phil. 3 Id., 385; Hall v. Denice, 6 Id., 594;
State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 433; Young & Sargent v. Peet, Id., 574; Daniel v. M. McDaniel, 16 Id., 699; Perkins v. Whitam, 14 Id., 596; Cain v. Story, 15 Id., 378; Dudley v. Reid, Id.,
597; Brown v. Webster, 16 Id., 598; Linn County v. Day, 18 Id., 581; Hamline v. Beck, 13
Id., 602; Thomson v. Wilson, 26 Id., 120; Moore v. Daniels, 20 Id., 596; Appanoose County
v. Walker, 23 Id., 26; Sowp v. Smith, 26 Id., 472; Snyder v. Eldridge, 31 Id., 129; Eaton v.
Gester, 31 Id., 475.

If a bill of exceptions is not signed within the time prescribed by the statute, and there is no agreement of the parties extending the time, it may be stricken from the record in the supreme court on motion. Lynch v. Kennedy, 42 Id., 229.

The court may on the trial of a cause, refuse to stop the trial to enable a party to prepare a bill of exceptions, if a reasonable time is given for that purpose after the conclusion of the hearing.
Anson v. Dwight, 18 Id., 241.

Where by agreement of parties, a verdict is returned and judgment rendered in vacation, the bill of exceptions must be presented at the time the judgment is rendered, or within the time which may be stipulated for between the parties, and cannot be presented afterwards if the opposite party objects. Lloyd v. Beadle, 43 Id., 690.
Bills of exception, in the absence of any order or agreement must be settled and filed during the term. The State v. Orneig, 36 Id., 112.

A bill of exceptions may, by consent of parties, be signed after the adjournment of the term. Harrison v. Carleton, 42 Id., 573; Gibbs v. Buckingham, 43 Id., 95, 98.

A certificate of the trial judge, made a year after the trial, to the effect that the evidence contained in the abstract was all the evidence submitted on the trial, is not a compliance with the statute, and the bill of exceptions may, on motion, be stricken from the record. Gibbs v. Buckingham, 43 Id., 96.

That a bill of exceptions was made and filed by the judge of the court at his own instance, and not on the motion of either party, does not affect its conclusiveness as a part of the record. Shepherd v. Breton, 15 Id., 84.

An exception first taken three and one-half months after the decree is settled, signed and entered of record does not furnish any basis for a review of the cause. The Joliet I. & S. Co. v. The C. C. & W. R. Co. et al., 50 Id., 455.

Where the time for settling a bill of exceptions is extended for a definite period beyond the term, it must be settled within the time fixed, or shown that the party excepting made proper effort to have it done. St. John v. Wallace, 25 Id., 21. If the bill of exceptions be not filed within the time fixed it will be stricken from the files on motion. Farmenter v. Elliott et al., 45 Id., 817.

Where time beyond term was given to settle and file a bill of exceptions, within which the judge signed the bill and ordered it made part of the record, but it was not filed with the clerk until the time expired, it was held invalid, the extension beyond the term being presumed to have been without the consent of the adverse party, and the judge having no power to make the bill a part of the record and waive a strict compliance with the terms of the extension. Cobb v. Chase et al., 54 Id., 196.

Where a party in an equity cause stands upon the ruling of the court upon a motion or demurrer, and appeals therefrom, exceptions should be taken to the ruling, and errors assigned thereon in the supreme court. Powers v. The County of O'Brien et al., 51 Id., 501.

The special term of court provided for in chapter 59, laws of 1878, is a distinct term, and cannot be regarded as a continuation of the preceding regular term for the purpose of settling bills of exceptions under section 2831 of the code. Dryden v. Wyllis, Id., 667.

Where the plaintiff was allowed by the court sixty days in which to settle a bill of exceptions, it was held that under this section, the bill must not only be settled but filed also, within the sixty days, and that if filed at a later date, it should on motion of the defendant, be stricken from the record. Hahn v Miller, 60 Id., 96.

Where the trial court allowed defendant ninety days within which to prepare and file his bill of exceptions, but the bill, as shown by the record, was not signed by the trial judge nor filed within ninety days, held that it could not be regarded, and that errors assigned, but not shown by the record, after excluding the bill of exceptions, could not be considered. Mineral Ridge Coal Co. v. Smith, 68 Id., 651.

This section which provides that in equitable actions tried as such, no bill of exceptions shall be necessary, refers to trials de novo in the supreme court; but where a party stands upon the ruling upon a motion or demurrer, and appeals therefrom, he should except to the ruling and assign error. Hodgson v. Folsom et al., 70 Id., 21. Following Powers v. O'Brien Co., 54 Id., 501.

An exception can be preserved only by having it embodied in a bill of exceptions, or by having it noted in the record of the decision to which it relates. And a party who would save his exception by the first method must have his bill of exceptions signed and filed during the term at which the decision objected to was made, or within such time thereafter as the court shall fix; and where the court did not fix any such time, held that a bill of exceptions signed and filed at the next term must be disregarded on appeal, even though it embodied the several rulings of the court, and recites that the appellant excepted to each of them. The State ex rel Littleton v. Leach et al., 71 Id., 54.

Sec. 2832. [No stated form of.]—No stated form of exception is required. If the exception is to the admission or exclusion of evidence, oral or written, the ground of the objection must be also stated, and no other shall be regarded.

An exception to the admission of evidence will not be considered where the ground of the objection is not stated. Carleton v. Byington, 18 Iowa, 429; Childs v. McChesney, 20 Id., 451; Davidson v. Smith, Id., 496; Kibbun v. Mullen, 22 Id., 498; O'Hagan v. Clingensmith, 24 Id., 249; Pock v. McKeen, 45 Id., 18; Gelpcke, Winslow & Co. v. Lovell, 18 Id., 17; Keough v. Scott County, 28 Id., 337.

Where the certificate of the judge trying the cause shows the rulings made during the trial, and states that the same were duly excepted to, such certificate is a sufficient compliance with the statute. The State v. Fay, 43 Id., 651.

The statute provides that no stated form is required for a bill of exceptions; and if the certificates of the short hand reporter and the trial judge appended to a transcript of the reporter's notes in the case were conceded to answer all the purposes of a bill of exceptions and to amount to such a bill in substance, yet not being filed within the sixty days allowed for that purpose, cannot be considered as a bill of exceptions on appeal.  McCarthy v. Watrous & Co., 69 Id., 260.

SEC. 2833. [Noted at end of decision.]—When the decision objected to is entered on the record, and the grounds of the exception appear in the entry, or when any error appears of record, the exception may be taken by the party causing to be noted at the end of the decision, or in connection therewith, that he excepts.

An oral exception to an order or decision is sufficient, where the decision is entered of record, and the grounds of the exception appear in the entry at the end of the decision.  Cramer v. White, 29 Iowa, 36.

SEC. 2834. [Bill of: what to contain.]—An exception, when presented for signature, need not include therein, spread out at length, any writing filed in court, but may incorporate the same by any unmistakable reference thereto; and the clerk, in making a transcript of the bill of exceptions, shall write therein at length all of such writing included therein by reference.

The appellate court will not review instructions given by the court below, to which no specific exception was taken at the time.  Armstrong v. Pierson, 15 Iowa, 476; Lyons v. Thompson, 16 Id., 62.

Under the code of 1851 it was held that the supreme court would not consider a certificate by a clerk showing the evidence received on the trial of a law action, but that it should be embodied in a bill of exceptions signed by the court.  Jordan & Miller v. Quick, 11 Id., 9; Garber v. Morrison & White, 5 Id., 476.

So, also, it was held that in order to bring before the supreme court, and make it part of the record, any paper used or proceedings had in the court below, which is not made part of the record by statute, it must be embodied in a bill of exceptions, or so plainly identified therein that there can be no possibility of mistake as to what is referred to; and that to refer in a bill of exceptions to a motion or instruction as "marked A—here insert," is not sufficiently certain.  Harmon v. Chandler, 3 Id., 150.  See, also, Lyons v. Thompson et al., 16 Id., 62.

Where appellants' abstract shows that the papers set out in the additional transcript and amended abstract filed by appellees were introduced in evidence, and that sufficient reference thereto by their dates and designation, by marks, as exhibits, are found in the record, this is sufficient, under section 2834, to identify the papers and make them part of the record, and to entitle them to be certified to this court on appeal.  McDonald & Co. v. Farrell et al., 60 Id., 385.

Where a bill of exceptions referred to the evidence as follows: "The following testimony and rulings were had and reduced to writing by said reporter, being all the testimony on said trial. (Here insert evidence in full)." Held, a sufficient and unmistakable reference to the testimony taken down by the reporter, and by him duly certified and filed in the clerk's office.  Wilson v. Church, 60 Id., 112; McDonald v. Farrell, 1d., 385.

Under this section a bill of exceptions which does not embody the evidence and instructions but contains the directions, "here insert evidence in full," "here insert instructions," without attempting to identify the evidence or instructions, fails to make the evidence and instructions part of the record.  Wilson v. Tencor et al., 61 Id., 194.

SEC. 2835. [Judge to sign: on refusal other persons may.]—When the decision is not entered on the record, or when the grounds of objection do not sufficiently appear in the record, the party excepting must reduce his exception to writing and present it to the judge for his signature.  If he deems it true he shall sign it.  If the judge refuses to sign it, the party may procure the signature of two bystanders, attesting that the exception is true and that the judge has refused to sign the same, and the bill of exceptions shall then be filed with the clerk and shall become a part of the record.  But the truth of such exception may be controverted and maintained by affidavits, not exceeding five on each side, which shall become part of the record.  All affidavits impugning the exceptions must be filed within three days from time of filing the bill of exceptions, and all affidavits sustaining the same within two days thereafter.

Where the judge refuses to sign the bill of exceptions, it is not competent for one of the attorneys of the party excepting, to sign the bill as one of the bystanders.  Id.

Affidavits impugning the correctness of a bill of exceptions signed by the judge will not be considered by the supreme court unless they are presented to sustain a bill of exceptions purporting to contain a correct statement of the evidence, and signed by two bystanders.  Woodworth v. Byerly, 43 Id., 106.
A bill of exceptions which embraces all the rulings and decisions of the court on the trial, which are complained of and shows that the several exceptions were taken in fact at the proper time, is unobjectionable. It is not necessary that each ruling complained of should be the subject of a separate bill of exceptions. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 6 Id., 456.

The refusal of a judge to sign a bill of exceptions may be shown by the certificate of attorneys of court. It is not necessary that the judge should certify to his refusal to sign the bill. Craig v. Andrews, 7 Id., 17.

Under chapter 148 of the law of 1855, it was held that attorneys of parties taking bills of exceptions were not authorized to sign the same, where the court had refused to sign, but that a bill of exceptions refused by the court and signed by two or more attorneys or officers of the court not interested in the cause wherein the same is taken might be admitted of record under that act. Simons v. Weigel, 10 Id., 515.

When the time for settling a bill of exceptions is, by agreement of parties, extended for a definite period beyond the term, it must be settled within the time fixed, or a showing must be made that the party excepting made proper efforts to have it done. St. John v. Wallace, 25 Id., 21.

SEC. 2836. [Must be on material point.]-No exception shall be regarded in the supreme court unless the ruling has been on a material point and the effect thereof prejudicial to the rights of the party excepting.

No error should be regarded by the supreme court, where it does not affect the substantial rights of the appellant. DeMoss v. Hawcoax, 15 Iowa, 149.

See note of decision in Wetmore v. Mellinger et al., 64 Id., 741, noted under section 2690, ante.

But the fact that a party has had a fair trial before an unprejudiced jury does not make an error in granting a change of venue error without prejudice. Ferguson v. Davis County, 51 Id., 220.

It is not competent for the court, by reference to matters not of record, to leave it in the power of the party taking a bill of exceptions to insert in it matters not of record, nor on the files of the court. Per Buck, J., in Love v. Love, 52 Id., 220, 225.

The supreme court will not disturb a judgment of a lower court in overruling a motion for a new trial in a law action, based upon the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict, unless the bill of exceptions purports to embody all the evidence; and the statement, in a bill of exception, that certain witnesses were introduced and testified "substantially as follows," and concluded "that the above was substantially all the evidence introduced in the cause," was held insufficient. Lea v. Roads, 22 Id., 498. To the same effect are the following: McKenzie v. Killer, 27 Id., 264; Jameson v. Gray, 29 Id., 537; The State v. Lyon, 10 Id., 340; Winslow v. Turner, 20 Id., 294; Davis et al. v. Card, 33 Id., 592.

NEW TRIALS.

SEC. 2837. [For what causes granted.]—A new trial is a re-examination in the same court of an issue of fact, or some part or portions thereof, after verdict by a jury, report of a referee, or a decision by the court. The former report, verdict, or decision, or some part or portion thereof, shall be vacated and a new trial granted on the application of the party aggrieved for the following causes affecting materially the substantial rights of such party:

1. Irregularity in the proceedings of the court, jury, referee, or prevailing party, or any order of the court or referee, or abuse of discretion, by which the party was prevented from having a fair trial:

A new trial will not be granted for irregularities in the proceedings, unless to correct some substantial injury sustained by the complaining party. Speers v. Fortner, 6 Iowa, 553.

If justice has been done and a new trial would result in the same verdict, a new trial should not be granted for errors or irregularities committed during the trial. Dawson v. Wester, 11 Id., 6; Petemourges v. Clark, 9 Id., 1; Woodward v. Hurst, 10 Id., 120; Roney v. Paisley, 13 Id., 59.
OF TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

It is perfectly competent for the court below to order a new trial, when satisfied that an error has been committed, to the prejudice of either party, whether exceptions were taken to the action of the court at the time or not. Farr v. Fuller, 8 Id., 347.

The supreme court will not interfere with the exercise of discretion by the court below in granting a new trial unless it is made to appear that such discretion has been abused to the injury of the appel-lant. Coffey v. Groome, 10 Id., 548.

Where on an application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, it appeared that the applicant had not exercised proper diligence to discover the evidence in time for the first trial, the motion was properly overruled. Lindauer Bros. & Co. v. Hoy, 61 Id., 663.

The question of granting a new trial rests in the sound discretion of the court, which will not be interfered with unless it is shown to have been abused. The First N. J. Bk. etc. v. The W. St. L. & P. R. R. Co. et al., 61 Id., 500; Hill v. Davinger, Id., 241.

Where in an action for damages for personal injury a motion asking the court to direct a verdict for defendant on the ground of contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff was overruled, and a verdict for plaintiff was subsequently set aside on motion of defendant for defendant on the ground of contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff appeared that the applicant had not exercised proper diligence to discover the evidence in time for the first trial, the motion was properly overruled. Laverenz v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 59 Id., 321.

When under the evidence the court might properly, as a matter of law, have rendered judgment for the defendant, it was held not to be prejudicial error to direct a verdict in his favor after the jury had returned one verdict and had separated. Allen v. Wheeler et al., 54 Id., 628.

A party who files a motion for a new trial, in compliance with this and the following section (2637, 2638) of the code, is entitled to have it determined on its merits, and a rule of court requiring a bill of exceptions to be prepared and presented for signature before the hearing of such motion, and providing that in case of failure to present such bill of exceptions the motion shall be overruled, is inconsistent with the statute. Emery et al. v. Emery et al., Id., 106.

Where the court has jurisdiction to grant a new trial, it is immaterial whether granted under this section or under section 3154 of the code. The order in either case, however erroneous, would not be a nullity. Loomis v. McKenzie, 57 Id., 77, 82.

2. Misconduct of jury or prevailing party.

A verdict which is against the instructions of the court should be set aside and a new trial granted, even when the law was erroneously given to the jury. Coffey v. Groome, 10 Iowa, 548; Severy v. Darick, 11 Id., 457; Jeuett & Roet v. Smart et al., Id., 505; Taylor v. Cook, 14 Id., 601; Farley, Norris & Co. v. Budd, Id., 289; Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391.

Where a new trial has been granted on the ground that the jury disregarded the instructions, the supreme court will not review the instructions, but affirm the ruling of the court. Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 301.

Where the jury in arriving at their verdict, in pursuance of an agreement among themselves, each mark down the amount he is willing to return, and the sum of the amounts divided by twelve produced a quotient which they returned as their verdict, it is misconduct on their part and the verdict will be set aside. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Denton v. Lewis, 15 Id., 201; Scanlan v. Porter, 7 Id., 482; Rule v. McDonald, Id., 90; Barton v. Holmes, 16 Id., 232; Hendrickson v. King, 22 Id., 379.

But where the jurors, without any previous agreement to be bound by the result, each mark down the amount he is willing to find and the aggregate of these sums divided by twelve and the quotient is then agreed upon and returned as the verdict, the verdict will not be held to be improperly found. Barton v. Holmes, 16 Id., 292.

The affidavits of jurors may be received by the court to show that a verdict was ascertained in an improper manner, and also to show upon what grounds the verdict was rendered. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Butt v. Tuthill, 10 Id., 585; Stewart v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 11 Id., 62.

The affidavits of jurors may be received for the purpose of avoiding their verdict by showing any matter occurring at the trial or in the jury room which does not necessarily inher in the verdict itself, as misconduct of jurors or a party or the attorney of one of the parties, that the verdict was determined by lot or by a game of chance or other artifice or improper manner, but they are not admissible to show any matter which necessarily inheres in the verdict, as that a juror did not assent to it, that he misunderstood the instructions or charge of the court, the testimony, or the pleadings in the case, that he was unduly influenced by his fellow jurors, or mistaken in his calculations or judgment, or other matters resting alone in the breast of the juror. Wright v. The Ills. & Miss. Tel. Co., 20 Id., 193; Davenport v. Cummings, 15 Id., 213; Shepherd v. Brenton, Id., 84; Took v. Naber, Id., 430; Moffit v. Rogers, Id., 455; Barton v. Holmes, 16 Id., 252; Dunlap v. Watson, 38 Id., 398; Bingham v. Foster, 37 Id., 334.

Misstatements of the counsel in their arguments to the jury may be ground for setting aside a verdict, but a presumption will obtain in favor of the action of the trial judge in refusing a new trial thereof. Wickersham v. Timmons, 49 Id., 257.

Prejudice must be shown to have resulted from the misconduct of counsel in addressing the jury to entitle the innocent party to a new trial thereafter. Hammond v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 49 Id., 459.

Affidavits of jurors cannot be received to impeach their verdict; but may be considered for the purpose of showing misconduct in finding the same. Stuart v. The B. & M. R. Co., 11 Id., 62; Mynux v. Malony, 7 Id., 81; Roble v. McDonald, Id., 90; Schauier & Porter et al., Id., 482; Hall & Co. v. Robinson, 25 Id., 91; Darland v. Wade, 48 Id., 547; The State v. Douglass, 7 Id., 413; Cowles v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 32 Id., 515; Brown v. Cole et al., 43 Id., 601; Ward v. Thompson, 48 Id., 588; The State v. McConkey, 49 Id., 499.

The affidavits of jurors may be received for the purpose of showing that the amount of the verdict was reached by dividing the sum of the amounts suggested by all the jurors by twelve. Darland v. Wade, 48 Id., 547.

The finding of the court below as to alleged misconduct of the jury in arriving at their verdict, under conflicting affidavits will not be disturbed in the appellate court unless clearly wrong. Todd v. Bronner, 30 Id., 439.

The mere fact that one of the jurors in the case, in pursuance of a previous invitation, took dinner and supper with one of the attorneys of the successful party, during the progress of the trial, will not vitiate the verdict. Koester v. The City of Ottumwa, 34 Id., 41.

The misconduct of a juror in holding conversation with an attorney respecting the law of the case after the conclusion of the arguments of counsel was held sufficient ground for granting a new trial. Olson v. Meader, 40 Id., 662. And that the attorney applying for a new trial in such case, knew of the misconduct of the juror before the rendition of the verdict and remained silent will not be held to be negligence unless it be made to appear that after that time the prejudice might have been avoided. Id.

None of the provisions of section 2837, can be so construed as to authorize a new trial on account of the destruction or loss, after trial and judgment in the court below, of the written evidence upon which the case had been tried, or for the loss of any other part of the record. Loamis c. McKenzie, 48 Id., 416, 419; Fuller v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 31 Id., 211; Thompson v. Perkins, 26 Id., 458; Hamilton v. The Des Moines Valley R. R. Co., 36 Id., 31; Mersere v. Shine, 37 Id., 253; Deppe v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 592. Nor will the verdict in such case be vacated by the fact that after a verdict had been arrived at by lot the jury took a vote as to the result of the verdict, and that all voted for the party in whose favor the lot had resulted, when it is shown that this vote was but a declaration of the willingness of the jurors to stand by the result of the lot. Thompson v. Perkins, 26 Id., 256.

Nothing short of a free and deliberate finding made upon the consciences of the jurors will discharge the law. Mersere v. Shine, 37 Id., 253.

Where a verdict has been arrived at by each juror marking and dividing the aggregate by twelve in pursuance of a prior agreement, is only void in part, as where it appeared that by the agreement the verdict should not be less than a certain sum agreed upon, the valid portion will be permitted to stand on the party entering a remittitur as to the excess. Fuller v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 31 Id., 211.

Where a juror, pending the trial, took a small quantity of intoxicating liquor for medicinal purposes at night, it was held that this did not constitute ground for granting a new trial. O'Neal v. The K. & D. M. R. Co., 45 Id., 546.

The use of intoxicating liquor by members of the jury pending the trial, and before the final submission of the case, in the absence of a showing that a prejudice to the defendant resulted therefrom, will not vitiate their verdict. The State v. Bruce, 43 Id., 539.

The drinking of two glasses of beer by a juror pending a trial, after adjournment of the court, and eleven hours before another session, was held not to vitiate the verdict. Van Buekirk v. Dougherty, 44 Id., 42.

Where the jury had retired to consider of their verdict, one of their number left the jury room in charge of the sheriff and went to a grocery store, where he procured and drank a glass of ale or lager beer, after which he returned to the jury room and participated in finding the verdict, it was held that this was misconduct and constituted sufficient ground for setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial. The State v. Boldly, 17 Id., 39. Approved and followed in Bryan et al. v. Harris et al., 37 Id., 494.

The court cannot set aside a verdict and order a rule to issue against the jurors to compel them to disclose the manner of arriving at the verdict. Crumley v. Adkins, 12 Id., 363.

3. Accident or surprise, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against.

A mistake made by a third person in selecting a paper to be used as documentary evidence in the trial of an action to recover lands, when not discovered in time to correct the mistake before the conclusion of the trial, may be good cause for a new trial. Floyd et al. v. Hamilton, 10
Iowa, 552.
To entitle a party to a new trial, on the ground of surprise, he must show that he is prejudiced by the judgment rendered on the former trial, that he was prevented by reason of such accident or surprise from properly defending that action, and that he has material evidence which he could not, by the exercise of reasonable diligence have discovered and produced on the trial.
Richards v. Neubauer, 19 Id., 19.
A new trial will not be granted on the ground of surprise of the unsuccessful party, when his want of preparation was the result of his own negligence. Keys v. Francis, 28 Id., 321; Dun lavey v. Watson, 38 Id., 398.
The proper relief for a party surprised by the disclosure of evidence on the trial, is in an application for a continuance, and if he fails to make such application, a new trial will not be granted on the ground of surprise. Id.
In an application for a new trial, based upon the ground of the sudden illness and consequent unavoidable absence of the party, who it is claimed is a material witness in his own behalf, it must be shown that the party and his attorney have not been guilty of any negligence in the premises. White worth et al. v. Murphy, 29 Id., 470.
While under this section misconduct of the jury is made a ground for granting a new trial, yet the granting or refusing of new trials is left so largely to the sound discretion of the trial court, that the refusal of such court to grant a new trial, for alleged misconduct of the jury, will not be overruled by the supreme court, unless it clearly appears that the court below has abused its discretion. Perry v. Cottingham et al., 63 Id., 41.
4. Excessive damages, appearing to have been given under the influence of passion or of prejudice.
When the jury, in the light of all the facts, has returned a verdict estimating the damages sustained by a personal injury, which the court below has refused to set aside, the supreme court will not interfere unless in case of a manifest abuse of discretion. Brown v. Jefferson County, 16
Iowa, 116; Rawill v. Williams, 29 Id., 216.
Exemplary damages can be properly awarded only in cases in which the evidence shows malice, fraud, gross negligence, or oppression. Williamson v. The Western Stage Co., 20 Id., 171; Coll line v. Council Bluffs, 35 Id., 40; same case, 32 Id., 325.
A verdict of five hundred dollars in an action for malicious prosecution is not so great as to warrant the court in setting it aside as excessive. Pauckett v. Livermore, 5 Id., 277.
A verdict for damages for a personal injury sustained by reason of the negligence of a common carrier, will not be disturbed by the appellate court on the ground that it is excessive unless it is manifestly and clearly so. Russ v. Steamboat War Eagle, 14 Id., 363; Huntington v. How, 15
Id., 606.
Where the verdict in an action for damages is deemed by the court to be excessive, it may impose upon the successful party the alternative of accepting a reduced amount or of submitting it to a new trial. Noel v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. Co., 44 Id., 283. See also, Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 153.
5. Error in the assessment of the amount of recovery, whether too large or too small, where the action is upon a contract or for the injury or detention of property.
A judgment in the court below, claimed to be excessive, will not be revived in the appellate court until after a motion to correct the judgment has been made and overruled in the court Where the judgment is excessive, the supreme court may, on the filing of a remittitur, render judgment for the amount actually due. Anderson v. Herr & Lacy, 10 Id., 286.
Where the verdict or judgment is for a larger amount than is claimed in the petition, it is erroneous. Stadler Bros., & Co. v. Parmerle & Watts, 10 Id., 23.
6. [Verdict against the evidence or law.]—That the verdict, report, or decision, is not sustained by sufficient evidence, or is contrary to law.
There can be but two modes of trial in the supreme court; one is de novo, which obtains in equity causes, and the other is the one which has uniformly prevailed in actions at law, in which, unless satisfied that the verdict or finding is the result of pas­sion or prejudice, the supreme court will not interfere.
The verdict of a jury will not be disturbed by the appellate court on the ground that it is not sustained by the testimony, unless it is so manifestly against the weight of evidence as to show it to have been the result of passion or prejudice. Koester v. The City of Ottumwa, 24 Iowa, 41. To the same effect are the following cases: Fawcett v. Woods, 5 Id., 400; McCoy v. Township, 15 Id., 25; Russ v. War Eagle, 14 Id., 393; Shepherd v.
Brenton, 15 Id., 84; Wise v. Cassidy, 11 Id., 607; Heeman v. M. S. M. Ins. Co., 12 Id., 129;
Jones v. Jones, 19 Id., 236; Crabtree v. Messersmith, 19 Id., 239; Belamy v. Doud, 11 Id., 285;
The ground that the verdict is not sustained by the evidence, unless there is a clear and manifest justice has not been done between the parties. Without restraint from the rule which governs appellant tribunals, and, taking care not to overrule a motion for a new trial, grounded upon the insufficiency of the evidence, does not apply to the district and circuit courts. These courts should independently exercise their power in this respect, without restraint from the rule which governs appellant tribunals, and, taking care not to invade the legitimate province of the jury, grant new trials whenever they believe substantial justice has not been done between the parties.

The sufficiency of evidence to sustain a finding and judgment, discussed and determined in The County of Koekak v. Alexander, 21 Id., 377; Anderson v. Simpson, Id., 399.

The supreme court will not interfere with an order of the court below granting a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is not sustained by the evidence, unless there is a clear and manifest preponderance in support of the verdict. A stronger case must be made to authorize a reversal in such a case than where a new trial is refused. Shepard v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84; Ruble v. McDonald, 7 Id., 90; Newell v. Sanford, 10 Id., 396; Burlington Gas Light Co. v. Thomas & Co., 21 Id., 353; Ackley v. Berkey, 22 Id., 226; Jenkins v. The C. & N. W. Ry. Co., 32 Id., 97; Roberts v. Bro. v. Jones, 30 Id., 525; White v. Poorman, 24 Id., 108; Tegler & Co. v. Jones, 33 Id., 234; Robinson v. Bacon & Strahm, 24 Id., 439; Sanders v. Clark, 22 Id., 275; Garrett v. Brazell, 34 Id., 100; White v. Poorman, 24 Id., 108.

The supreme court will not disturb the action of the court below in overruling a motion for a new trial based upon alleged insufficiency of evidence, unless the record purports to contain all the evidence. Lea v. Roads, 22 Id., 405; Kindakoff Bros. & Co. v. Lyman, 16 Id., 290; State v. Lyons, 18 Id., 348; State v. Hockewilla, 11 Id., 289; Walker v. Phelan, 41 Id., 638; Scherm v. Gentil, 52 Id., 742; Booth & Graham v. Small & Small, 25 Id., 226; Ackley v. Berkey, 22 Id., 226; Burlington Gas Light Co. v. Greene, Thomas & Co., 11 Id., 505.

Unless the record purports to contain all the evidence given on the trial below, the supreme court will not grant a new trial on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence. McCool v. Galena & Chicago W. R. Co., 17 Id., 461; Parsons v. Chapman & Co., 11 Id., 294; Curtis v. Scott, 1 Id., 472; Keyet v. Thompson, 4 G. Greene, 128; Rowan v. Lamb, 405; The State v. Burke, 7 Iowa, 255.

The jury must be governed by the law as given in the instructions of the court; and the supreme court will not review instructions when the verdict is inconsistent therewith. Savoy v. Busiek, 11 Id., 457; Jett v. Root v. Smart & Gillett, Id., 505; Farley, Norris & Co. v. Budd et al., 14 Id., 729.

Newly discovered evidence material for the party applying, which he could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at the trial.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, unless the party asking it shall show to the court that he has been diligent in his efforts to obtain the evidence prior to the trial. Fisher v. Pratt, 9 Iowa, 59; Alger v. Merritt, 16 Id., 121; Richards v. Nuckolls, 19 Id., 553; Mather v. Butler County, 35 Id., 250; Dunlavey v. Watson, 35 Id., 393.

Mere belief that new evidence may be obtained does constitute knowledge of such evidence within the meaning of the statute, making newly discovered evidence ground for a new trial. Alger v. Merritt, 16 Id., 121.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, when such evidence is merely cumulative in its character. Keys v. Francis, 28 Id., 321; Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Sturgeon v. Herron, 14 Id., 190; Wilhelm v. Thorington, 13 Id., 537; McDaniels v. Van Fossen, 11 Id., 195; Stineman v. Beach, 36 Id., 73; Shepherd v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84; Alger v. Merritt, 16 Id., 121.

While a new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence which is merely cumulative, it may be thought in some respects cumulative, if it has, in any degree, an independent and distinct bearing on the issues. Stineman v. Beach, 36 Id., 73.

In an application for a new trial upon this ground, the petition need not set out the evidence introduced on the trial. It need only show the facts upon which the new trial is asked, the same as in other cases, and the issues thereon are to be tried as in ordinary proceedings. Id.

It is not required that the highest degree of diligence in endeavors to procure testimony shall be shown; reasonable diligence is all that is required. Id.

A new trial will not be granted for newly discovered evidence, where such evidence tends only to contradict, or impeach, the evidence of a witness who testified on the trial. Pelamourges v. Clarke, 9 Id., 1.

Admissions made by a party after the trial of the cause, and coming within the rule of newly discovered evidence for the other side, affords sufficient ground for a new trial. Hoskins v. Hattenbach et al., 14 Id., 314; Alger v. Merritt, 19 Id., 121.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, unless it be shown that the applicant has used due diligence to obtain, or could not by the exercise of such diligence have obtained the evidence on the former trial. Kilburn v. Muller, 22 Id., 498; Richards v. Nuckolls, 19 Id., 555; Fisher v. Pratt, 9 Id., 59; Hesser v. Doran, 40 Id., 485; Solley v. Kosh, 20 Id., 470; Hopper v. Moore & Co., 42 Id., 563.

A general allegation of diligence is insufficient. The party must show what he did before the trial to obtain the evidence in order that the court may judge whether diligence has been used. Carson v. Cross, 14 Id., 463; Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396.

When the witness relied on for the newly discovered testimony was subpoenaed and in court on the trial of the cause, it will require a very strong showing to justify the granting of a new trial on this ground. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396.

What constitutes diligence will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Hopper v. Moore, 42 Id., 563.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence unless it is shown that the applicant exercised reasonable diligence to discover the evidence before the trial, where the evidence is cumulative. May v. Wissman, 26 Id., 395; Kilburn v. Mullin, 22 Id., 498; Bingham v. Foster, 37 Id., 399.

The application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence must show meritorious grounds. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Alger v. Merritt, 16 Id., 121; McLean v. Lawson, 25 Id., 277.

An application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, should be accompanied with the affidavit of the newly discovered witness, where it can be procured, in which should be stated the facts to be shown by his testimony, in order that the court may judge whether the new facts are so material as to influence the verdict and produce a different result on a second trial. Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; McLain v. Lawson, 25 Id., 277; McManus v. Finn, 4 Id., 283.

In an application for a new trial the affidavit of the attorney of the party that certain evidence has been discovered since the trial is not sufficient ground for granting the application, when it is not shown that the party himself may not have known of its existence at that time. Roszene v. Wolf, 43 Id., 383.

If objections to the sufficiency of newly discovered evidence, and to the affidavits embodying the same are not presented in the court below on the hearing of the application for a new trial they will not be regarded in the appellate court. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396.

The admission of a party is not evidence of the same character as the testimony of other witnesses, and therefore, not cumulative, although relating to the same controverted fact. Wayt v. The B., C. R. & M. R. Co., 45 Id., 217.

Where the application for a new trial on this ground shows that the evidence is material and not cumulative, and that reasonable diligence has been used to discover it, a new trial should be granted. Id.

If newly discovered evidence is material, and it is made to appear that the applicant did not know of the evidence before suit was brought, and could not, by the use of reasonable diligence have sooner discovered it, a new trial should be granted, though the evidence is, in some degree, though not wholly, cumulative. Hambel v. Williams, 37 Id., 224. See Eickel v. Walker.
et al., 48 Id., 225, where facts are considered which are held to constitute reasonable diligence in producing newly discovered evidence.

A new trial will not be granted for the purpose of impeaching a witness with whose testimony the applicant claims he was surprised. Wise v. Hanslip & Bosley, 32 Id., 34.

In an application for a new trial, upon the ground of newly discovered evidence, the facts showing that diligence has been used to ascertain the existence of such evidence must be set out, and, when practicable, the affidavit of the witness should accompany the application. Salley v. Kuehl, 30 Id., 275; Manix v. Matlony, 7 Id., 81; Carson v. Cross, 14 Id., 463; Lisher v. Pratt, 9 Id., 59; Pelandorgues v. Clark, 1d., 1; Bailey, Wood & Co. v. Landingham et al. 52 Id., 415; The F. N. Bank etc. v. The Charter Oak Ins. Co. 40 Id., 572.

But evidence, although it tends to establish an issue controverted on the trial, yet introduced as a new and distinct fact, is not merely cumulative. German v. Maquoketa Savings Bank, 38 Id., 365; Keys v. Francis, 38 Id., 321.

Cumulative evidence is additional testimony of the same kind bearing on the same point: it does not necessarily include all evidence which tends to establish the ultimate or principally controverted fact. Able & Co. v. Frazier, 43 Id., 175.

Where the judge before whom the cause was tried certifies, in connection with the overruling of a motion for a new trial made on the ground of newly discovered evidence, that such evidence was merely cumulative, such statement of the judge will be treated as a verity in the absence of the certification of the evidence upon which the case was tried. Seymour v. Hoyt & Tabor, 23 Id., 19.

A new trial should not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, unless the application is accompanied with a showing of diligence to produce it on the trial, and unless, also, it be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that a different result might probably be expected if the application is granted and the case again tried. The State v. Bowman, 45 Id., 418; Comish v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co. 49 Id., 378; Carpenter v. Broen, 50 Id., 451; Millard v. Singer, 2 G. Greene, 144.

Effect of granting new trial.—The granting of a new trial operates to vacate the judgment rendered on the former trial, although it has been formally entered of record. Loe et al. v. Fox, 56 Id., 321.

8. [Error of law.—Error of law occurring at the trial, excepted to by the party making the application.]

A new trial was refused on appeal by the supreme court on the ground that a receipt admitted in evidence was not stamped, as required by the revenue laws—it appearing that the receipt was not stamped, as required by the revenue laws. The City of Des Moines v. Cassady, 26 Id., 294.

When the refusal to give an instruction asked may have been based upon the ground that it was not pertinent to any evidence before the court and jury, and the evidence is not contained in the record, the appellate court will not order a new trial. Wilton v. McCune, 21 Id., 294.

The judgment below will not be reversed for an error in admitting evidence on the trial below when the record shows that, subsequently competent evidence was admitted establishing the same fact. The City of Des Moines v. Cassady, 26 Id., 570.

The action of the court below, in overruling a motion for a new trial, based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence and in disregard of the instructions of the court, will not be disturbed, when such instructions are erroneous, and substantial justice has been done between the parties by the verdict. Allison & Crane v. King, 25 Id., 56.

The fact that a witness who gave material testimony in behalf of the party calling him was not sworn, does not entitle the adverse party as a matter of right to a new trial, when it is not shown but that he or his attorney knew of the omission before the verdict was returned. Riley v. Monohan, 26 Id., 507.

Whether a party is entitled to a new trial upon the grounds shown, is a matter of law purely and not of discretion, and the action of the court below will be reviewed on appeal with the same freedom and upon like principles as upon any other question of law. Riley v. Monohan, 26 Id., 507; Stewart v. Everbank, 3 Id., 191; Ruble v. McDonald, 7 Id., 90; Shepherd v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84.

The court below may properly refuse to grant a new trial on the ground that one of the jurors sat in a previous trial of the same case, when it is not shown that the attorneys of the applicant as well as the applicant himself were ignorant of the fact until after the return of the verdict and discharge of the jury, and especially where it does not appear that any inquiries were made of the juror before he was sworn, and the record entry states "that both parties consented to the jury." Hurtet v. Weinurm, 27 Id., 194.

The rejection of evidence which has in substance already been given to the jury in a prior stage of the proceedings or is afterward admitted does not constitute sufficient ground for reversing a case by the appellate court. Smith v. Howard, 28 Id., 51; Mitchell v. The Home Ins. Co., 32 Id., 421; Browley v. Ross, 33 Id., 505.

The action of the court below in refusing a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, will not be disturbed where several trials resulting in the same verdict have been had, except in an exceedingly strong case of abuse of judgment on the part of the jury, and of discretion on the part of the court in refusing another trial. Bur. Gas L. Co. v. Greene, Thomas & Co., Id., 289.

Where an erroneous instruction was, by mistake handed by the court to the jury, and by them taken to their room, and there was no showing that they did not read and consider it a new trial was ordered. Carlin v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 31 Id., 379.

An error in an instruction which is fully cured by a subsequent one furnishes no ground for a new trial. Maxwell & Downs v. Gibbs, 32 Id., 32.

So also the refusal of an instruction, though abstractly correct, but not applicable to the facts disclosed in the evidence, could work no prejudice to the party complaining and affords no ground for granting a new trial. Messer v. Remmaniter, Id., 312.

It is not a sufficient reason for setting aside the verdict of a jury, and ordering a new trial, that some or all of the jurors, supposed that their verdict, if for the defendant, would not be a bar to a subsequent action by the plaintiff for the same cause of action. Minter v. Hite, 4 Id., 388.

If the court below in ruling on a motion for a new trial mistakes or misapplies a legal proposition it will be reviewed by the supreme court with the same freedom as if made at any other stage of the trial. Shepard v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84.

SEC. 2838. [When to be made.]—The application must be made at the term and within three days after the verdict, report or decision is rendered, except for the cause of newly discovered evidence; must be by motion upon written grounds, and if for the causes enumerated in subdivisions two, three and seven of the preceding section, may be sustained and controverted by affidavits.

An application for a new trial upon grounds other than for newly discovered evidence, filed within three days as prescribed by the statute, may be amended, by leave of court, at any time during the term, the amendment being germane to the grounds set out in the original motion. Snowden & Co. v. Craig, 20 Iowa, 477.

The application must be made upon the basis of a new trial must be set out in the motion therefor, or they will not be considered; and affidavits will not be received in support of the same unless thus stated. Beal v. Stone, 22 Id., 447.

A motion for a new trial, based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence and instruction, should embody the instructions and all the evidence. Id.

Where it appears from the record in a case that a motion for a new trial was not made within three days from the rendition of the verdict, the recitals of the record on appeal are conclusive. If the record is erroneous it should be corrected in the court below by proper proceedings. Stiles & Winter v. The Estate of Botkin, deceased, 30 Id., 60.

Where a motion for a new trial on any other ground than newly discovered evidence is not filed within three days after the verdict or decision, it should be overruled. Boardman v. Beckwith, 18 Id., 392; Clinton National Bank v. Graves, 48 Id., 228, 230.

In the case of newly discovered evidence if by the use of reasonable diligence a party is unable to make the discovery, prepare and present his application for a new trial on that ground within three days or at the same term of the court, he may make the application afterwards. Alger v. Merritt, 16 Id., 121.

The application for a new trial must be by motion. Perkins v. Jones & League, 55 Id., 211, 212.

The statute in allowing affidavits of jurors to be used in applications for new trials is an innovation upon the common law. It only permits such affidavits to be so used, but it is not designed to compel jurors to give affidavits for that purpose, and they cannot be compelled to do so. Foshee v. Abrams et al., 2 Id., 571, 575; Grady v. The State, 4 Id., 461.

The affidavit of jurors may be recited for the purpose of showing that the amount of the verdict is against the law or the evidence. Id., 462. If a motion for a new trial must be filed within three days or at the same term of the court, and if for the causes enumerated in subdivisions two, three and seven of the preceding section, may be sustained and controverted by affidavits.

A affidavits of jurors cannot be received to impeach their verdict; but may be considered for the purpose of showing misconduct in finding the same. Stewart v. The B. & M. R. Co., 11 Id., 62; Manix v. Maloney, 7 Id., 81; Ruble v. McDonald, Id., 90; Schouler v. Porter et al., Id., 482; Hall & Co. v. Robinson, 23 Id., 91; Darland v. Wade, 48 Id., 547; The State v. Douglas, 7 Id., 413; Coules v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 32 Id., 515; Brown v. Cole et al., 48 Id., 601; Ward v. Thompson, 48 Id., 588; The State v. McConkey, 49 Id., 490.

This section does not apply to the case of a motion to reinstate a cause dismissed for want of prosecution, and such motion need not be made within three days after the dismissal. Byington v. Quincy, 61 Id., 420.

This section does not require a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence to be filed within three days. Van Horn v. Redmon et al., 67 Id., 699.
If a motion for a new trial is not filed within the time prescribed by the statute, it should be for that reason overruled. The same result will follow when the filing is not within the time fixed by agreement of the party, there being nothing waived by the agreement except as to the time of

Sec. 2839. [Not granted on account of smallness of damages.]-A new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of damages in an action for an injury to the person or reputation, where the damages equal the actual pecuniary injury sustained.

While it is provided by this section that "a new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of the damages, in an action for an injury to the person or reputation, where the damages equal the actual pecuniary injury sustained," yet a court is not required thereby to grant a new trial in every case where the damages are less than the actual pecuniary injury, and where the jury return a verdict for a nominal sum, as for one dollar, a motion for a new trial may be properly overruled. Hubbard v. The Town of Mason City, 64 Iowa, 245.

Sec. 2840. The costs of all new trials shall either abide the event of the suit or be paid by the party to whom such new trial is granted, according to the order of the court, to be made at the time of granting such new trial.

Sec. 2841. [Court may grant on conditions.—The court may determine not to grant a new trial, unless certain terms or conditions named by the court shall be agreed to by the opposite party; in the event of his agreement, to which the terms or conditions named shall be entered on the record, and no new trial shall be granted if the party refuse to agree to the terms or conditions upon which a new trial shall be awarded.

The court may impose conditions upon the successful party to avoid granting a new trial in actions upon either contracts or torts. Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Iowa, 158; Dawson v. Wisner, 11 Id., 6.

The court, under this section, may make the filing of a bond in a sum equal to the amount of the verdict, conditioned for the payment of the judgment and costs, the condition of granting a new trial. Loring v. Holt, 39 Id., 574.

Sec. 2842. [If not omitted statement that alone may be tried.]—Upon any motion for a new trial in arrest of judgment, or for judgment, notwithstanding the verdict, by reason of the non-averment of some material fact, the party whose pleading is thus alleged defective may, if the court deem it necessary, file a statement of the omitted fact which, if true, would remedy the alleged defects, and such statements shall be filed before hearing of the motion and shall suspend the same. If the facts thus stated would not, if proved, defeat the object of the motion, it shall be granted. If such new averments would, if proved, defeat the object of the motion and be not admitted, they must be denied or confessed, and avoided by the opposite party within such time as the court shall direct unless the same are denied by legal operation, and in such case the law of pleading and of procedure applicable to actions and pleadings of that kind shall obtain, except that the party stating the new fact shall be held the plaintiff therein, and the statement and response shall not need to be verified.

The "practice is quite common to allow amendments after verdict and before judgment, for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proof. That such amendments are contemplated by the code is very clear." Per Stevens, Ch. J., in O'Connell v. Cotter, 44 Iowa, 48, 50.

While under this section if the plaintiff's petition fails to state facts entitling him to any relief whatever, advantage may be taken of such defect by motion in arrest of judgment, yet in such case the plaintiff has the right to file an amended pleading, and thus avoid the motion. Wetmore
v. Mellinga, 64 Id., 731.

Sec. 2843. [Same.]—If the facts thus stated be admitted or found to be true, the party stating the same shall be entitled to such judgment as he would have been entitled to if such facts had been stated in the original pleading and admitted as proved on the trial, together with the costs of and occasioned by the new pleading and the proceedings therein; but if the fact be found untrue, the opposite party shall be entitled to his costs of and occasioned by the new pleading and the proceedings therein, in addition to any other costs to which he may be entitled.

A motion in arrest of judgment may be made for a misjoinder of parties, and on such motion the plaintiff may dismiss as to all those not properly joined and take judgment against those who are jointly liable. Cogswell v. Murphy et al., 46 Iowa, 44.

DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

SEC. 2844. [When done without prejudice.]—An action may be dismissed, and such dismissal shall be without prejudice to a future action:
1. By the plaintiff before the final submission of the case to the jury, or to the court when the trial is by the court;
2. By the court, when the plaintiff fails to appear when the case is called for trial;
3. By the court, for want of necessary parties, when not made according to the requirement of the court;
4. By the court, on the application of some of the defendants when there are others whom the plaintiff fails to prosecute with diligence;
5. By the court, for disobedience by the party of an order concerning the pleadings or any proceeding in the action.

The plaintiff cannot dismiss his action after the case has been fully submitted to the court or jury. Hayes v. Turner, 23 Iowa, 214; Mansfield v. Wilkerson, 36 Id., 482.

The plaintiff may, in an action appealed from a justice of the peace, in the circuit court, dismiss his action without prejudice at any time before final submission, the same as if the action had been originally brought in that court. Harris v. Laird, 25 Id., 143.

The plaintiff may dismiss his action after he has failed to answer interrogatories filed by the defendant with his answer, and after the filing of the affidavit provided for in section 2699 of the code, and against the objection of the defendant. Perry v. Heighton, 25 Id., 451.

The plaintiff may, before the action is finally submitted, dismiss his action as to one of several causes upon which it is founded. Bellinger v. Davis, 29 Id., 512.

A plaintiff may dismiss his action after the case has been finally submitted to a referee and before he has filed his report therein. Belzer v. Logan et al., 32 Id., 322.

A case is not finally submitted to a jury within the meaning of this section until they have been directed to proceed to the consideration of their verdict, and it may be dismissed without prejudice after the completion of the charge of the court. Harris v. Beam, 46 Id., 118.

In a suit in equity in the circuit court of the United States, the defendant answered to the merits without interposing any technical objections; the plaintiff's attorneys having withdrawn their appearance the court dismissed the bill, reciting in the decree that the cause had been submitted upon the pleadings and proofs. Held, that the decree was a bar to an action upon the same cause of action in the state court, upon the ground that the record showed a submission and determination of the case on the merits. Scully v. The C. B. & O. R'y Co., 52 Id., 528.

Where a counter-claim is embraced in the issue when the cause is finally submitted and judgment is rendered on the issue, the plaintiff is entitled to immunity from any further action thereon. Gunnsalus v. Cadwallader, 48 Id., 45.

A case is not finally submitted to the jury until they are directed to enter upon the consideration of the case, and where a party offered to dismiss his action before the jury were instructed, but after the court had indicated what the instruction would be, the offer should have been allowed and the case dismissed. Millen v. Peck, 57 Id., 439.

Where there is no evidence tending to establish the plaintiff's case, or there are essential ultimate facts to be found in order to enable him to recover, and there is no evidence tending in that direction, the court may direct the jury as to their verdict. But where there is evidence in any degree tending to establish the cause of action, the case must be left to the determination of the jury.

These provisions apply equally to actions at law and suits in equity, and it is not competent for the court, on its own motion, to dismiss a cause in equity without prejudice, after it has been finally submitted on the evidence. In such case the defendant is entitled to a decision upon the merits, so that the judgment may bar another action for the same cause. Forythe v. McMurty et al., 59 Id., 162.

Before a case has been finally submitted, the plaintiff has the right, under this section, to dismiss it without prejudice to a future action; and a case is not finally submitted when, after being once submitted, the court permits an amendment raising a new issue. Jones et al. v. Currier, 65 Id., 533.

This section in permitting the plaintiff to dismiss his action without prejudice to a future action, does not have the effect to enlarge the statute of limitations as to such action. Archer v. The C. B. & Q. R'y Co., 61 Id., 611.

SEC. 2845. [On the merits.]—In all other cases upon the trial of the action, the decision must be upon the merits.

SEC. 2846. [Counter-claim tried.]—In any case, when a counter-claim has been filed, the defendant shall have the right of proceeding to the trial of his claim, although the plaintiff may have dismissed his action or failed to appear.

Where on plaintiff's motion an action of replevin is dismissed, and is again reinstated on defendant's motion, for the assessment of damages, the plaintiff is treated as a party in default and cannot demand a jury. Wilkins v. Trenor, 14 Iowa, 391.

Where the plaintiff dismisses his action the defendant has the right to proceed and prove up his counter-claim. And where, after the evidence in support of a counter-claim has been introduced, the court dismisses the same, the party prejudiced by such ruling is entitled to have everything on which his right to recover depends, which the evidence tended to prove, regarded as established. Welch v. Jones, 58 Id., 694, 695.

By the provisions of this section "in any case where a counter-claim has been filed, the defendant shall have the right to proceed to the trial of his claim, although the plaintiff may have dismissed his action or failed to appear." But the statute does not contemplate that the defendant may, by pleadings subsequent to the dismissal, introduce causes of action not before involved in the case. Page et al. v. Sackett et al., 69 Id., 223.

The defendant has the right to proceed with the trial of the cause upon his own cross-bill, notwithstanding the plaintiffs have dismissed their action. Foster & Co. v. Ellsworth, 71 Id., 282.

SEC. 2847. [Or dismissed.]—The defendant may, also, at any time before the final submission of the cause to the jury, or to the court when the trial is by the court, dismiss his counter-claim without prejudice.

Where a counter-claim was embraced in the issue in an action at the time of final submission and judgment, the plaintiff is entitled to immunity from further action thereon; and the withdrawal of such claim after judgment cannot affect the status created by the judgment. Gunsaulis v. Cadwallader, 48 Iowa, 48.

SEC. 2848. [Dismissal in vacation: costs: judgment.]—Any party to any claim may dismiss the same in vacation, and the clerk shall make the proper entry of dismissal on the record, and, if the costs are not paid, may enter judgment against such party therefor in favor of the party entitled thereto, and issue execution therefor at the order of such party. The party so dismissing shall be liable for no costs made by the other party after notice to him of such dismissal.

JUDGMENT.

SEC. 2849. [Every final adjudication is.]—Every final adjudication of the rights of the parties in an action, is a judgment; and such adjudication may consist of many judgments, one of which judgments may determine for the plaintiff or defendant on the claim of either as an entirety; or when a claim consists of several parts or items, such judgment may be for either of them on any specific part or item of such aggregate claim, and against him on the other part thereof; or a judgment may, in either of these ways, determine on the claims of co-parties on the same side against each other.

Under the statute a judgment is a final adjudication of the rights of the parties in an action. Per Baldwin, Ch. J., in Beall v. West, 13 Iowa, 61, 65, and per Miller, J., in Wagner v. Tice, 36 Id., 599, 602.

A decree in equity is a "judgment" within the meaning of this section of the code. Wagner v. Tice, 36 Id., 599, 602.

A judgment rendered in vacation, without consent of parties, and in the absence of any order made during the term providing therefor is invalid. Spear v. Fitchpatrick, 37 Id., 127; Townsley v. Morehead, 9 Id., 565.

A decree signed by the judge in vacation and entered of record by the clerk, constitutes a valid judgment although the record is not signed by the judge. Traer Bros. v. Whitman, 56 Id., 443.
The allowance of a claim, filed in the county court, against an estate, and ordering the payment there, was held, not to constitute a judgment within section 2740 of the revision, limiting actions on judgments of courts not of record, to ten years. Smith, Murphy & Co. v. Shawhan, Adm’s., 57 Id., 333.

In a criminal case an intermediate order or decision on a demurrer, held, not to be a final judgment, from which an appeal can be taken to the supreme court. The State v. Sraveon, 43 Id., 336. Overruling The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593.

SEC. 2850. [May be for and against same party.]—Any party who succeeds in part of his cause, or in part of his causes, and fails as to part, may have the entry in such case express judgment for him for such part as he succeeds upon, and against him on the other part.

Under this section it is competent for the supreme court, in reversing a case, to order that the new trial shall extend only to the defendant’s cross-action, in connection with which the error occurred, and that the judgment establishing the plaintiff’s claim remain undisturbed. McAvery v. Hole, 42 Iowa, 385.

In the case of tenants in common any one may bring a separate action respecting his interest in lands, or they may all join in one action, and the court may render judgment for or against one or more of them. Peter v. Jones, 35 Id., 512, 520.

SEC. 2851. [Abatement: how distinguished.]—Where matter in abatement is plead in connection with other matters not such, the finding of the jury or court must distinguish between matter in abatement and matter in bar, and the judgment must, if it is rendered on the matter in abatement, and not on the merits, so declare.

When a defect of parties is apparent on the face of the petition it may be taken advantage of by demurrer; when not thus apparent it must be pleaded in the answer. When thus pleaded it is a matter of fact for the consideration of the jury, and cannot be decided by the court on motion based upon part of the evidence. Enders v. Beck, 18 Iowa, 86.

A judgment for the defendant in an action upon a guaranty of a promissory note, which recites the ground upon which the judgment is based to be that the plaintiff has not sufficiently exhausted his remedy against the maker, is a judgment in abatement, and not an adjudication upon the validity of the guaranty, which can be pleaded in bar of another action thereon after execution against the maker has been returned unsatisfied. Boyer & Barnes v. Austin, 54 Id., 402.

The pendency of a garnishment proceeding against the maker of a promissory note, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the note by an assignee thereof who received it after maturity and after garnishment of the maker. But such garnishment may be pleaded in abatement; and the issue thereon should be submitted to the jury that their verdict and the judgment may be distinguished from those upon the matter pleaded in bar. Clise v. Freebome, 27 Id., 280.

Under this section, where matter in abatement is pleaded in connection with other defenses, the finding of the court or jury must distinguish between matter in abatement and matter in bar, and the judgment when rendered upon the matter in abatement, and not on the merits, must so declare. Atkins v. Anderson, 63 Id., 739, 742.

SEC. 2852. [When special execution desired.]—Where any other than a general execution of the common form is required, the party must state in his pleading the facts entitling him thereto, and the judgment may be entered in accordance with the finding of the court or jury thereon.

In an action against several defendants, judgment may be rendered in favor of the plaintiff against one of them alone, and also against the plaintiff in favor of the remaining defendants, for costs. Eyre v. Cook et al., 9 Iowa, 185.

In an action on a joint and several promissory note, judgment may be rendered against one party and the action continue as to others, and the judgment will be a bar to the plaintiff’s cause of action against the others. Smith, Tyengood & Co., v. Coopers & Clark, 13 Id., 376.

SEC. 2853. [Several plaintiffs and defendants.]—In an action by several plaintiffs, or against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment for or against one or more of them whenever a several judgment is proper, leaving the action to proceed as to the others.

SEC. 2854. [When all not served proceed against those served.]—Though all the defendants have been served with notice, judgment may be rendered against any of them severally, where the plaintiff would be entitled to judgments against such defendants if the action had been against such alone.
SEC. 2855. [Relief asked, or that is consistent granted.]—The relief granted to the plaintiff, if there be no answer, cannot exceed that which he shall have demanded in his petition. But in any other case, the court may grant him any relief consistent with the case made by the petition and embraced within the issue.

Where an answer is filed, the plaintiff is not limited to the relief asked in his petition, but may have "any relief consistent with the case made by the petition and embraced within the issue." Wilson v. Miller et al., 16 Iowa, 111, 115.

Where the original notice stated plaintiff's claim to be a sum of money due on a note and the foreclosure of a mortgage, but the petition, which described the mortgage, failed to ask a foreclosure thereof, held, that a judgment of foreclosure, rendered in the case, was not void, but voidable only, and might be set aside on motion, but that the judgment for the money due on the note should stand. McConnell v. Cotter et al., 44 Id., 48.

SEC. 2856. [When part controverted.]—If only part of the claim is controverted by the pleading, judgment may at any time be rendered for the part not controverted.

A party is not entitled, on motion before trial, to judgment for part of his claim, under this section, unless such part is clearly not controverted. King v. Howell, 28 Iowa, 69.

In an action against a partnership, one partner filed an answer admitting a part of the plaintiff's claim and denying the remainder, after which a motion for a continuance was made on the ground that the partner not answering was in the military service of the United States; held, that a continuance as to one partner operated as a continuance as to both, and that judgment could not be rendered for the amount admitted to be due. Butler et al. v. McCall & Sypher, 15 Id., 480. "Wright, J., dissenting.

Where a petition consists of several counts, stating different causes of action, and to some of the counts there is no answer or other pleading interposed, judgment may properly be rendered thereon. Musser v. Crum, 48 Id., 52, 53.

Where, in an action brought to recover taxes of several years alleged to be due and unpaid, the defendant, in answering, confessed that part of the taxes claimed were due and unpaid, and tendered judgment therefor, it was held proper for the court below to render judgment upon the answer for the taxes admitted. The City of Davenport v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 633.

SEC. 2857. [Judgment on verdict.]—When a trial by jury has been had, judgment must be entered by the clerk in conformity with the verdict, unless it is special or the court orders the case to be reserved for future argument or consideration.

SEC. 2858. [When verdict is special.]—When the verdict is special, or when there has been a special finding on particular questions of fact or issues, or when the court has ordered the case to be reserved, it shall order what judgment shall be entered.

SEC. 2859. [Judgment notwithstanding verdict.]—When, by the statements of the pleadings, one party is entitled by law to judgment in his favor, judgment shall be so rendered by the court, though a verdict has been found against such party, unless the other party proceed as provided in section two thousand eight hundred and forty-two of this chapter.

Where the defendant has pleaded a tender, thereby admitting a certain sum to be due the plaintiff, and the jury returned a general verdict for the defendant, it was held, that the court was authorized under this section to render judgment for plaintiff for the sum tendered by defendant. Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Iowa, 174.

When the allegations of a pleading are not answered or denied, it is the duty of the court to render judgment in accordance with the admissions of the pleadings. The Singer Mf. Co. v. Billings et al., 39 Id., 347.

Where defendant admitted that a certain amount was due plaintiff, but when plaintiff moved for judgment for that amount, defendant asked and obtained leave to amend his answer, held that the court properly refused to enter judgment on the motion until after the amendment was filed. Snyder v. Phillips, 66 Id., 484.

SEC. 2860. [Judgment for excess of counter-claim.]—If a counter-claim, proved, exceed the plaintiff's claim so established, judgment for the defendant must be given for the excess; or, if it appears that the defendant is entitled to any other affirmative relief, judgment must then be given therefor.
SEC. 2861. [Judgment by Agreement.]—Any judgment in a case pending other than for divorce, which may be agreed upon between the parties interested therein, may, at any time, be entered and if not done in open court, the judgment agreed to shall be in writing, signed and filed with the clerk, who shall thereupon enter the same accordingly, and execution thereon may issue forthwith unless therein otherwise agreed upon between the parties.

An agreement between the parties to an action stipulating the terms upon which a decree shall be rendered, when filed in open court becomes a part of the record as a pleading, and cannot, unless for good cause shown, be stricken from the files, or withdrawn upon the motion of a party. Vail v. Stone et al., 13 Iowa, 285.

But where such agreement for judgment has been entered into corruptly, with the view to avoid the statute against usury, and to enable the plaintiff to take judgment for unlawful interest, the defendant is not estopped, before judgment entered, to plead the usury which is the basis of the agreement. Lyon v. Welsh et al., 20 Id., 578.

SEC. 2862. [No distinction between debt and damages.]—In all actions where the plaintiff recovers a sum of money, the amount to which he is entitled may be awarded him by the judgment generally, without any distinction being therein made as to whether such sum is recovered by way of debt or damages.

SEC. 2863. [Provisions as to juries to govern court.]—The provisions of this chapter relative to juries, are intended to be applied to the court when acting as a jury on the trial of a cause so far as they are applicable and not incompatible with other provisions herein contained.

In ordinary actions tried by the court, without a jury, the finding has the same degree of conclusiveness as the verdict of a jury, and are governed by the same rules on appeal. Woods v. Grees, 28 Iowa, 561; Byington v. Woodard, 9 Id., 360, 366; Snell v. Kimbell, 8 Id., 281.

Where a cause at law is heard by the court instead of a jury, exceptions may be taken to this admission or rejection of evidence. Williams v. Souther et al., 7 Id., 485.

SEC. 2864. [Judgments and orders entered of record.]—All judgments and orders must be entered on the record of the court and must specify clearly the relief granted, or order made in the action.

It is essential to the validity of a judgment that it be entered upon the record book of the court, provided for in sub-division 1, of section 197 of the code, that being the book in which, in contemplation of the statutes all the proceeding of the court are recorded, and from which the entries in the judgment docket, and other books required to be kept, are made, and where the record entry of judgment is for a blank amount of damages and a specified amount of costs, such judgment can only be enforced to the amount of such costs, although the judge's calendar contained the direction, "clerk to assess," and the judgment docket showed a judgment for both damages and costs. Case v. Plato et al., 54 Iowa, 64.

It is not competent to prove a judgment in any other way than by the production of the proper record thereof. Oral testimony and memoranda entered upon the books are not intended to preserve the records of judgments, and are not competent. Case v. Plato, 54 Id., 64; followed in Balm v. Nunn, 63 Id., 641.

SEC. 2865. [Satisfaction of to be entered by clerk.]—Where a judgment is satisfied or satisfied by execution or otherwise, the clerk shall at once enter a memorandum thereof on the column left for that purpose in the judgment docket.

A party paying off a judgment is not bound to take the receipt of the attorney, but may insist upon going to the records and having the satisfaction entered there. Fisher v. The City of Oskaloosa, 28 Iowa, 321.

Money paid to the clerk of the district and circuit courts, upon a judgment entered in the records in his office, is received by him in virtue of his office, and upon his failure to pay over the same to the judgment creditor, an action may be maintained upon his official bond therefor. Morgan v. Long, 29 Id., 434.

SEC. 2866. [Complete record in land cases made.]—In cases where the title to land is involved and expressly settled or determined, the clerk shall make a complete record of the whole cause and enter it in the proper book. But in no other case need a complete entry be made except at the request of a party who will pay the expense of such record.
This section does not apply to an action to charge land in the hands of a grantee with debts of his grantor, where the title is in no other respect questioned. In cases where this section does apply, the record should contain only the original notice and return, the pleadings and the judgment or decree; the evidence should not be recorded. Smith v. Cummins & Co., 52 Iowa, 143.

DISCHARGE OF JUDGMENT.

SEC. 2867. [May be done on motion.]—A defendant against whom a judgment has been rendered, or any person interested therein, having some good matter of discharge which has arisen since the judgment, may, upon motion, in a summary way, have the same discharged either in whole or in part, according to the circumstances.

In some cases the controversy may be settled upon motion as contemplated by this section, others, involving the consideration of much testimony, oral and documentary, might most appropriately belong in chancery. Per Wright, J., in Traer v. Lyttle, 20 Iowa, 301.

In the absence of statutory authority, a court has no jurisdiction to cancel a judgment on motion based upon grounds existing prior to its rendition, and section 2867 of the code does not give such authority. Brett v. Myers, 65 Id., 274.

SEC. 2868. [Fraudulent assignment of.]—The court shall have power, on motion, to inquire into the facts attending or connected with the assignment of a judgment, or the entry of the same for the use of any party, and to strike out such use, or to declare such assignment void either in whole or in part, whenever such assignment or use shall be determined to be inequitable or fraudulent, or in bad faith.

DEFAULT.

SEC. 2869. [When made and entered.]—If a party fail to file or amend his pleading by the time prescribed by the rules of pleading, or, in the absence of rules, by the time fixed by the court; or if, having plead, his answer or reply on motion or demurrer is held insufficient or is struck out, and he fail to amend or to answer or reply further, as required by the rules of or by the court, or if he withdraw his pleading without authority or permission to replead, judgment by default may be rendered against him on demand of the adverse party made before such pleading is filed.

It was held, under the revision of 1860, that where a demurrer to an answer was sustained, a default should not be granted for want of further answer, in the absence of any rule or order of court fixing the time within which such answer must be filed. Rollins v. Cogshall, 29 Iowa, 510; Wright v. Howell, 24 Id., 150.

Where an amended answer is held insufficient on motion or demurrer, a judgment by default cannot properly be entered against the defendant for his failure to further plead, in accordance with the ruling of the court, if the original answer remains on file and unaffected by such ruling. Crafts v. Clark, 31 Id., 77.

A judgment by default may be entered against a party who appears in an action before a justice of the peace, but fails to plead. McFarland v. Lowrey, 40 Id., 467; Parke v. Ratcliffe, 42 Id., 42.

In an action against two defendants on a contract, in which one leaves the action undefended by making default, and the other files an answer, making a defense, it is not the practice to enter judgment on the default before the issue raised by the answer is disposed of by the defendant. A motion made by a defendant for a judgment against himself, was held properly overruled. Greenough, Cook & Co. v. Theiden et al., 9 Id., 503.

It is erroneous to enter judgment, by default, against a party after he has answered and while his answer remains on file. Arbuckle v. Bowman et al., 8 Id., 70; The Canal Bank of Cleveland v. Neely, 7 Id., 4.

A default may be granted and judgment entered thereon before a cause is reached in its regular order on the docket. Bronner & Co. v. Gundersheimer, 14 Id., 82.

Where an amended answer is successfully assailed by motion or demurrer, a judgment by default cannot properly be entered against the defendant for his failure to further plead, in accordance with the ruling of the court, if the original answer remains on file unaffected by the ruling. Crafts v. Clark, 31 Id., 77.
SEC. 2870. [Notice.]
Where no appearance is made, default shall not be had until the court determines from an inspection of the record that notice has been given as required by this code.

It will be presumed, in the absence of allegations to the contrary, that a court, in rendering judgment by default, passed upon the sufficiency of the service of notice. An erroneous decision upon the sufficiency of such service is not void. Muscatine Turn Verein v. Funck, 18 Iowa, 469.

A judgment by default will not be reversed in the supreme court unless a motion to set it aside has been made and overruled in the court below. Decatur County v. Clements, 18 Id., 563; Pigmy v. Denney et al., 12 Id., 596; McKinley v. Bechtel, Id., 561; Downing v. Harvson, 13 Id., 585; Rothel v. Leasy, 14 Id., 582; Leonard v. Hallem, 17 Id., 564; Pratt v. Western Stage Co., 27 Id., 365; Berryhill v. Jacobs, 19 Id., 546; De Tar v. Boone County, 34 Id., 488.

The same rule applies where the judgment by default is rendered by a justice of the peace; a writ of error will not lie, until after a motion on before the justice to set aside the judgment has been overruled. Leonard v. Hallem, 17 Id., 564.

Where an appeal is taken to the supreme court from a judgment by default on service by publication, and the judgment is affirmed for the reason that no motion to set aside the judgment had been made in the court below, the defendant is not estopped from afterwards moving for a re-trial of the action. Berryhill v. Jacobs, 20 Id., 246.

This section (2870) is directory merely and not jurisdictional, and where service has been actually made and the court grants a default and renders judgment thereon, the fact that return of service had not been made at the time will not have the effect to render the judgment void. Lawrence v. Showell, 52 Id., 62.

The supreme court will not review the action of the court below in rendering judgment by default upon a return of service that is merely defective, until a motion to correct the irregularity has first been made and overruled in the lower court. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 27 Id., 365.

The action of the court below, in refusing to grant a default for want of an answer, will not be interfered with unless an abuse of discretion be shown. Walker v. Hutchinson et al., 50 Id., 364.

SEC. 2871. Default may be set aside on such terms as the court may deem just among which must be that of pleading issuably and forthwith, but not unless an affidavit of merits be filed and a reasonable excuse shown for having made such default, nor unless application therefor be made at the term in which default was entered, or if entered in vacation, then on the first day of the succeeding term.

A naked default on which no judgment has been rendered, may be set aside at any time on proper grounds. The discretion of the court in this is not limited as to time. But when a judgment has been entered on it, a motion to set it aside must be made at the same term. Harper v. Drake, 14 Iowa, 584.

The court has a large discretion in acting upon motions to set aside defaults, and its action thereon will not be disturbed except in a clear case of abuse of discretion. Marsh v. Cooley, 36 Id., 693; Bolander v. Atwell, 14 Id., 35; Kreisinger v. I. C., 19 Id., 588; McNulty v. Freeman, 17 Id., 581.

During the term the record is under the control of the court, a judgment of nonsuit, or by de­fault may be set aside at the term at which it was rendered, for good cause shown. Taylor v. Lash, 9 Id., 444.

Pleadings filed by a defendant while he is in default should on motion of the plaintiff be stricken from the file. Bragton v. Delaware County, 16 Id., 44.

A defendant in default, before a justice of the peace, will not be permitted to plead until the default has been set aside by a compliance with section 2871 of the code. Id.

A default will not be set aside, especially at a subsequent term, unless a sufficient excuse for the default be shown, accompanied by an affidavit of merits. McDonald v. Donaghue, 30 Id., 568; Harper v. Drake, 14 Id., 583; Stone v. Brown, Id., 585.

Where judgment by default has been entered without legal authority (as upon an insufficient notice) the court may set the same aside without any showing on the party of the defendant, or affidavit of merits, as prescribed in this section. This section has reference to cases where the court has authority to enter the default. Boals et al. v. Shumel et al., 29 Id., 597.

Where in an action against executors the original notice was served upon one of four executors eight months after he had resigned, it was held that such service conferred no jurisdiction to enter judgment by default. The United States Rolling Stock Co. v. Potter, 48 Id., 56.

An application to set aside a default granted for want of an answer, should be accompanied by an answer, or some sufficient excuse given for not presenting it. Thacher v. Hann et al., 12 Id., 303.

A default which is the consequence of the negligence of the party against whom it is rendered, should not be set aside on his application. Id.
Where a party ruled to answer by a particular day, has for his failure to do so a good and valid excuse, he is not thereby released from answering after the time fixed, and before the next term (if the rule day extends into vacation) unless for such continued default he has sufficient excuse. Id.

The action of the court below, in entering default for failure to answer after appearance made, will not be disturbed, where no affidavit of merits is filed, although defendant's attorney was honestly mistaken as to the time he was ruled to answer. Smith v. Watson, 39 Id., 218.

Section 2571 of the code does not apply where a default has been entered without legal authority, where the court has not acquired jurisdiction of the defendant. The W. S. R. Co., 48 Id., 66, 67.

A default will not be waived, nor the rule, requiring a showing of merits and an excuse for the default, be changed, by a subsequent amendment of the petition, merely bringing in new parties, and which in no manner affects the cause of action against, or the rights of the defendants in default. McDonald v. Donaghy, 30 Id., 568.

In Ordean v. Siehard et al., 31 Id., 451, it was held, that, recognizing the rule that the discretion vested in the trial court in applications to set aside defaults should not be exercised in behalf of a party in default in consequence of his own negligence or that of his attorney, where it was made to appear by affidavit of defendant's attorneys that the reason why they did not appear and file an answer was on account of an accidental misplacement of the petition and notice handed them by the plaintiff, whereby the case was overlooked by them in examining their papers at the beginning of the term, in order to ascertain what cases they had to attend to, that the case did not fall within the rule recognized, and that a judgment by default therein rendered should be set aside, all the other requirements of the statute having been complied with.

Where an application to set aside a judgment by default was made at the same term the judgment was rendered, and was accompanied with an affidavit of merits and an excuse for making default, and it did not appear that the discretion of the court below had been unreasonably exercised in granting the application, the ruling was affirmed. Coenen v. McAfee, 38 Id., 556.

Where, in an action against a corporation, the petition failed to allege the corporate character of the defendant, and judgment by default is rendered, the error is such as will justify the setting aside of the judgment on motion therefor. The Savings Bank, &c., v. Horn, 41 Id., 55.

Where a judgment by default is rendered against a garnishee, a motion to set it aside must be made at the same term the judgment by default is entered. Schaumhoen v. Scott, 42 Id., 529.

In such case it is an error in the court below after the garnishee has appeared and judgment by default was entered, to order a suspension of execution and allow the garnishee time to answer. Id.

Where an application for a change of venue on account of prejudice of the judge was filed by defendant, which was withdrawn from the files by the plaintiff's attorney, and the court, without knowledge of the application rendered judgment by default, held, that the default should have been set aside without requiring a showing of a meritorious defense, and the change of venue should have been considered by the court. Beasley v. Cooper, 42 Id., 542.

A motion to set aside a default, if not accompanied with an affidavit of merits and an excuse for the default, will be overruled. The affidavit will not be considered if not presented until after the motion is overruled. Thompson v. Navage et al., 43 Id., 398.

It is not sufficient to aver the existence of a meritorious defense. The facts wherein is based the claim of the existence of a meritorious defense must be set out in the affidavit. Jager v. Evans, 46 Id., 188; King v. Stewart, 48 Id., 394.

Where the defendants are in default they cannot maintain a motion to dismiss the petition. The District Tp. of Newton v. White, 42 Id., 634, 614.

Where defendant's demurrer to the petition is overruled, and he fails to answer over, there must be an assessment of damages, as well as where no appearance is made or pleading filed, and it is error in the court to render judgment in an action on an account without proof of the items. Messer & Co. v. Hobart, 14 Id., 248.

The court below may impose the conditions upon which it will set aside a default, and its action therein will not be reviewed in the supreme court unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Blough v. Van Hoorebeke, 43 Id., 40.

A judgment by default cannot be set aside without an affidavit of merits on the part of the defendant. But such affidavit must set out the facts constituting the defense, and not the affiliate's mere conclusion that he has a good defense. McGreaw v. Downs, 67 Id., 657; Palmer v. Rogers, 70 Id., 351.

Under this section of the code, prescribing the terms upon which a judgment by default may be set aside, unless the motion to set aside is accompanied by the filing of an answer, and an affidavit of merits, it must be overruled. Brunson v. Nichols, 34 N. W. R., 219.

The action of the court below, in refusing to grant a default for want of an answer, will not be interfered with unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Walker v. Hutchinson et al., 50 Iowa, 364.

Where judgment by default has been entered without legal authority, (as upon an insufficient notice) the court may set the same aside without any showing on the part of the defendant, or affidavits of merits, as prescribed in this section. This section has reference to cases where the court has authority to enter the default. Boals et ux. v. Shules et al., 29 Id., 507.

Where in an action against executors the original notice was served upon one of four executors eight months after he had resigned, it was held that such service conferred no jurisdiction to enter judgment by default. The United States Rolling Stock Co. v. Potter, 43 Id., 56.

An application to set aside a default granted for want of an answer, should be accompanied by an answer, or some sufficient excuse given for not presenting it. Thatcher v. Hanr et al., 12 Id., 393.

A default which is the consequence of the negligence of the party against whom it is rendered, should not be set aside on his application. Id.

Where a party ruled to answer by a particular day, has for his failure to do so a good and valid excuse, he is not thereby released from answering after the time fixed, and before the next term (if the rule day extends into vacation) unless for such continued default he has sufficient excuse. Id.

The action of the court below, in entering default for failure to answer after appearance made, will not be disturbed where no affidavit of merits is filed, although defendant's attorney was honestly mistaken as to the time he was ruled to answer. Smith v. Watson, 28 Id., 218.

That the defendant's attorney, after his employment, was so ill that forgetfulness of the fact could not be imputed to negligence, constitutes good ground for vacating a judgment by default. Montgomery Country v. The Am. Em. Co., 47 Id., 91.

When an affidavit of merits under section 2871 of the code on an application to set aside a judgment by default, shows a defense good in law, it must in that proceeding be so accepted, and its truth left for determination on the trial of the action. Jorns v. Nicca, 38 N. W. R., 129.

An affidavit of merits under this section, shows that the amount for which the judgment was rendered is largely in excess of that to which the plaintiff is entitled, discloses a good defense to the action. Id.

SEC. 2872. [When clerk to compute amount.]—When the action is for a money demand, and the amount of the proper judgment is a mere matter of computation, the clerk shall ascertain the amount, but no fee shall be charged therefor.

When long accounts are to be examined, the court may refer the matter. In other cases the court shall assess the damages, unless a jury be demanded by the party not in default. The proper amount having been ascertained by either of the above methods, judgment shall be rendered therefor.

A party who has dismissed his action, or is in default, is not entitled to a jury to assess damages. Wilkins v. Tregenor, 14 Iowa, 391.

A reply to reply will not entitle the defendant to a judgment on a claim for unliquidated damages, such damages must be assessed by the court or jury. Yoe & Co. v. Nichols, 51 Id., 356.

Where the plaintiff is in default for want of a reply, he cannot waive a jury upon the cause of action contained in his petition and demand one on the counter-claim. Clute Bros. & Co. v. Hazelton, Id., 393.

Where the court ordered judgment on a promissory note, the amount of which the clerk was directed to assess, and the clerk made a judgment entry, leaving a blank for the amount, which blank remained for fourteen months, and was then filled by the clerk in vacation, this was held a mere irregularity which could not be inquired into in a collateral proceeding. Lind v. Adams, 10 Id., 390.

In a suit in equity against several defendants, some of whom deny the right of the plaintiff to the relief sought while others make default, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree against those in default, unless he establishes his right to the relief demanded against those who have answered. Pierson v. David, 4 Id., 410.

Where default is made in an equity action and the petition taken as confessed, all distinct and positive allegations are to be taken as true, without proof; but if the allegations are indefinite, or the demand of the plaintiff is in its nature uncertain, the certainty necessary to a proper degree must be furnished by proofs. Harrison v. Kramer et al., 3 Id., 543; Bolander v. Atwell, 14 Id., 35.

A default, is a confession of the plaintiff's cause of action, and that something is due and payable, but not a confession of any fact necessary to be proved on the assessment of damages. The B. & M. R. Co. v. Shaw, 5 Id., 463; Whitney v. Donge, 9 Id., 597.

In cases of judgment by default, where the action is for a money demand, and the amount is a mere matter of computation, the clerk may make the assessment of the amount of the judgment. In other cases of judgment by default the court must assess the damages unless a jury be demanded by the party not in default. The B. & M. R. Co. v. Marchand, Id., 458.

When a party is in default the court is empowered to assess the damages, without a jury, unless one is demanded by the party not in default. Preston v. Wright, 60 Id., 331.
SEC. 2873. [Witness cross-examined.]-The party in default may appear at the time of the assessment and cross-examine the witnesses against him, but for no other purpose.

By suffering default for want of an answer a party admits that something is due the plaintiff, and he has no other right than to cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses on the assessment of damages. Toebor v. Delahaye, 7 Iowa, 478; Cook et al. v. Walters, 4 Id., 72; Kenne v. Lyon, 10 Id., 546; Wilkins v. Tregnor, 14 Id., 392; Carleton v. Byington, 17 Id., 579; The District Tp. of Newton v. White, 42 Id., 608, 614.

A defendant in default for want of an answer, cannot introduce evidence, or object to the admissibility of plaintiff's witnesses, or controvert the averments of plaintiff's petition, or ask instructions, or complain of the refusal to give instructions. Carleton v. Byington, 17 Id., 579; McLott v. Savery, 11 Id., 323; Pfrantz v. Culver, 13 Id., 312. See, also, Buchler v. Reed, 11 Id., 182.

A party in default can only appear for the purpose of cross-examining the plaintiff's witnesses, and cannot object to the introduction of evidence. Wright v. Lacy, 52 Id., 248; Clute Bros. & Co. v. Hazleton, 51 Id., 355.

SEC. 2874. [In equitable proceeding.]-When the action is of an equitable character, the court, upon hearing of the pleadings and proofs, and hearing the testimony offered, shall render such judgment as is consistent with the rules of equity.

If one of several defendants, in an equitable action, makes default, and the plaintiff's action is not sustained as to those who have appeared, default cannot be entered and judgment rendered against the party failing to appear, and the petition should also be dismissed as to him. Curtis v. Smith, 42 Iowa, 655.

SEC. 2875. [When no personal service.]-A defendant served by publication alone, shall be allowed at any time before judgment to appear and defend the action, and upon a substantial defense being declared, time may be given on reasonable terms to prepare for trial.

A debt which is not in existence at the time of garnishment is not a debt "to become due," in the contemplation of this section, hence wages earned after the service of garnishment process are not held thereby. Thomas v. Gibbons et al., 61 Iowa, 50.

The notice required by this section to be served on the principal defendant in garnishment cases must be served ten days before the trial of the issue in the case; or, if there be no issue, ten days before judgment is rendered against the garnishee. This notice is essential to the jurisdiction of the court to render such judgment, and where judgment was rendered without such notice, it was proper for the court to make an order setting it aside as premature, and to continue the cause for such proceedings as either party might be advised to pursue. Williams v. Williams, 61 Id., 612.

SERVICE BY PUBLICATION.

SEC. 2876. [Plaintiff required to give security.]-When judgment by default is rendered against a defendant who has not been personally served, the court, before issuing process to enforce such judgment, may, if deemed expedient, require the plaintiff to give security to abide the future order of the court as contemplated in the following section.

SEC. 2877. [May move for new trial after judgment.]-When a judgment has been rendered against a defendant or defendants served by publication only and who do not appear, such defendants, or any one or more of them, or any person legally representing him or them, may, at any time within two years after the rendition of the judgment, appear in court and move to have the action re-tried, and, security for the costs being given, they shall be admitted to make defense; and thereupon the action shall be re-tried as to such defendants as if there had been no judgment; and, upon the new trial, the court may confirm the former judgment or may modify or set it aside, and may order the plaintiff to restore any money of such defendant paid to him under it and yet remaining in his possession, and pay to the defendant the value of any such property which may have been taken in attachment in the action or under the judgment and not restored.
The supreme court will not review the finding of the court appealed from, upon the sufficiency of a service of notice by publication, in an equitable action, when the record does not show that it embraces all the evidence submitted in the court below. Moon v. Moon, 19 Id., 130.

A defendant who has been served by publication only, cannot appeal from the judgment rendered upon such service before moving for a re-trial in the court below, as provided in this section. Berryhill v. Jacobs, 19 Id., 346.

This section has no application to a decree of divorce rendered upon service of publication only. Gilruth v. Gilruth, 20 Id., 225.

Where judgment by default has been upon a service of publication only, and the defendant has appealed to the supreme court, where the case is affirmed because no motion for a re-trial was made in the court below, the defendant still has the right to make such motion, within the time prescribed by the statute. Berryhill v. Jacobs, 20 Id., 246.

Where a judgment by default on a promissory note has been set aside, and a re-trial ordered under this section, it is not necessary on the re-trial to again introduce the note in evidence. If no sufficient defense to the action be found, the original judgment is simply confirmed and continued in force. Morton v. Coffin, 19 Id., 346.

The filing within the time specified, of a motion in the clerk's office, by a defendant served by publication only, to have the case re-tried is a sufficient compliance with this section, which provides that the defendant may, at any time within two years from the date of the judgment, "appear in court, and move to have the action re-tried." Conting v. Johnson, 34 Id., 256.

Where, in an action for partition of lands, judgment and sale were had upon service by publication, defendant appeared within two years, and moved to have the judgment and sale set aside, alleging as one cause therefor, fraud on the part of the purchaser at the sale, who was the plaintiff; and the court allowed a re-trial of the cause, and affirmed its former judgment, it was held, in a subsequent action in equity to set aside the sale for fraud, that the plaintiffs were not concluded thereon by the judgment in the re-trial, for the reason that the defendant, having been served by publication only, was entitled to a re-trial under the statute (section 2877) independent of the charge of fraud. Fleming's Heirs v. Hutchinson, 36 Id., 519.

Where an attorney appears for an absent defendant, and the latter, in a proceeding to vacate the judgment, alleges that the appearance was unauthorized, he has the burden to establish the fact by a preponderance of evidence. Bond v. Epley, 48 Id., 600.

Where a defendant is served personally with the original notice out of the state and makes default, he is not entitled to a new trial under the provisions of this section, which applies only to cases of service by publication. McBride v. Horn, 52 Id., 79.

A judgment in rem of a justice's court entered upon service by publication, and without an appearance by the defendant, may be set aside, and the cause retried, upon proper application made within two years, under this section. Section 3543 applies only to cases where there has been personal service. Taylor & Farley Organ Co. v. Plumb, 57 Id., 83.

Where the service of the original notice is by publication only and there has been no appearance for the defendant, parties legally representing him may have a retrial of the cause, upon application made therefor within two years after the judgment. In this case involving the title to land, the widow and children of the defendant were held entitled to such retrial. Williamson v. Wachenheim, 62 Id., 126.

It is only a defendant served by publication, or some one legally representing him, as agent, attorney, or possibly administrator, who has a right to appear within two years and demand a new trial under this section of the code. The assignee of such a defendant has no right thus to appear and demand a retrial on his own account. Parsons v. Johnson, 66 Id., 453.

Where a judgment has been rendered upon notice by publication only, the theory of this section of the code is, that he remains in court for two years for the purpose of a motion for a retrial, if any defendant shall see fit to make it; and the court has jurisdiction during such time to hear and pass upon such motion without notice therefor to the plaintiff. But the court should in such case, in the exercise of a proper discretion, allow the plaintiff a reasonable opportunity to appear and prepare for trial. Pollock et al. v. Simpson, 67 Id., 519.

Where the defendant was served personally with the original notice out of the state made default, held, that he was not entitled to a new trial under the provisions of this section, which apply to cases of service by publication. McBride v. Horn, 52 Id., 79.

In a proceeding for the sale of real property by an executor, wherein the probate court prescribes the same notice as in an ordinary proceeding, a defendant in the proceeding who has been served by publication only, is entitled to avail himself of the provisions of this section, and may have the order of sale, made on default, set aside on motion at any time within two years after the making of such order. Huston v. Huston, 29 Id., 347. See, also, White v. Watts, 18 Id., 74.

Where a judgment by default in an action on a promissory note has been set aside and a re-trial ordered under this section, it is not necessary on the re-trial to again introduce the note in evidence. No sufficient defense to the action being found, the original judgment is simply confirmed. Morton v. Coffin, 29 Id., 295.
Sec. 2878. [Title to property not affected.]-The title of a purchaser in good faith to any property sold under attachment or judgment, shall not be affected by the new trial permitted by the preceding section, except the title of property obtained by the plaintiff and not bought of him in good faith by others.

Where the purchaser at a partition sale, upon a judgment rendered upon service by publication, is the plaintiff in the case, and has made no sale to others, he will not be protected against the consequences of a re-trial. Fleming's Heirs v. Hutchinson, 36 Iowa, 519, 525.

Sec. 2879. [Copy of judgment served on defendant.]-The plaintiff may, at any time after the judgment, cause a certified copy thereof to be served on a defendant served by publication only, whereupon the period in which such defendant is allowed to appear and have a new trial shall be reduced to six months after such service.

Where a defendant served by publication only, and who has made no appearance, fails to apply for a new trial after being served with a copy of the judgment, such judgment becomes an adjudication binding upon him. Everhart v. Holloway et al., 55 Iowa, 179.

Sec. 2880. [Manner of.]-The service of the copy of the judgment shall be, whether made within or without the state, actual and personal by delivery of copy, and made and returned as in case of original notice.

Sec. 2881. [Personal judgment: when rendered.]-No personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant served by publication only who has not made an appearance. But a personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant, whether he appear or not, who has been served in any mode in this code provided other than by publication, whether served within or without this state.

The courts of this state, have no power, in an ordinary personal action without more, to render a personal judgment, by default when the defendant is a non-resident of the state and has been served with notice out of the state or by publication. Bates v. N. W. Ry Co., 19 Iowa, 200; Darrance v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Weil v. Lowenthal, 10 Id., 570; Stockdale v. Buckingham, 11 Id., 45; Einstein v. Ochs, ld., 165.

When a court has, by attachment or otherwise, acquired jurisdiction in rem over the property of a non-resident, it may by means of service by publication, or personal service without the state, perfect its jurisdiction or right to adjudicate upon and conclude the rights and interests of the defendant in the property thus seized and held within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Darrance v. Preston, 13 Id., 396; Bates v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 19 Id., 268.

In an action by attachment, when the defendant has not been personally served with notice, the judgment should be in rem only, and not in personam. Smith v. Griffin et al., 59 Id., 409, 410.

LIENS.

Sec. 2882. (As amended by sec. 1, ch. 129, 17th g. a.) [Of judgments.]-Judgments in the supreme, district or circuit court of this state, are liens upon the real estate owned by the defendant at the time of such rendition, and also upon all he may subsequently acquire for the period of ten years from the date of the judgment.

By our law judgment in the supreme, district or circuit courts are liens upon the real estate of the defendant, and by real estate is meant all right thereto, and interest therein, equitable as well as legal. Harrison v. Kramer, 3 Id., 543, 561; Cook & Sargent v. Dillon, 9 Id., 407, 411; Denegre v. Haun, 13 Id., 240; Lathrop v. Brown, 23 Id., 40.

But if there is a sale under a subsequent judgment to a third person, for value without notice, the rights of the purchaser take priority over those of the grantee in an unrecorded deed or mortgage. Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150.

An attachment or judgment lien does not hold over a prior unrecorded deed. Norton, Jeevet & Bushby v. Williams, 9 Id., 523; Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150.

When a judgment is affirmed in the supreme court, and a procedendo issues, the lien of the judgment attaches and continues from the date of the judgment in the court below; but when a new judgment is rendered in the supreme court against the appellant and his sureties on his appeal bond, the judgment of the court below is merged therein and the lien discharged; that of the supreme court, dating only from the rendition of the judgment in that court, being a lien on the real estate of the defendant. Sieff v. Conboy et al., 12 Id., 444.

The judgment, when rendered, becomes a lien on whatever interest the defendant has in real estate, whether such interest appear of record or not. Denegre v. Haun, 13 Id., 240.
But the lien of a judgment will not attach to a naked legal title where the holder thereof has no equitable interest in the land. Blaney v. Hanks, 14 Id., 400.

A judgment is not a lien upon an equitable interest in real property in such a sense as to change or affect a subsequent bona fide purchaser without notice. Bridgey d & Co. v. McKissick & Bone, 15 Id., 260; Hultz et al. v. Zollars et al., 39 Id., 589.

A judgment rendered against the holder of a mortgage on real property does not create a lien upon the mortgaged property, such mortgage being personal property. Scott v. Meachum et al., 49 Id., 487.

A judgment against a partnership, in the firm name, is not a lien upon the real property of the individual partners. Stadler Bro. & Co. v. Allen et al., 44 Id., 193.

The lien of a junior judgment for an individual debt does not take priority over the lien of a judgment first rendered against the same person upon a partnership debt. Gillaspy v. Peck et al., 46 Id., 461.

The lien of a subsequent judgment creditor, in this state, is not paramount to the lien or equity of a prior mortgagee, as to lands intended to be mortgaged, but which, by accident or mistake, were missdescribed. Welton v. Tizzard et al., 15 Id., 495.

After the death of a family acquire the title to real property, but before its actual occupation, he contracted debts on which judgments were rendered after the occupation of the land. Held that the judgments became liens thereupon, for which it was liable to be sold on execution. Hale v. Amsbury et al., 16 Id., 451.

A judgment against a city is not a lien upon real property owned by it and used for hospital purposes. The City of Davenport v. The P. M. & T. Ins. Co., 1 Id., 276.

The lien of a judgment is not superior or paramount to a prior unrecorded conveyance. The creditor who obtains a judgment, which takes effect as a lien on the lands of his debtor, is not regarded in the light of a purchaser, nor is he entitled to a preference over their prior equities and unrecorded conveyances. Parker v. Pierce, 16 Id., 227, 232, and cases cited.

Although a vendor's lien is an equitable interest in real estate, yet it is but an incident merely to the debt of the purchase money, and can be subjected to the satisfaction of a judgment against the vendor only by garnishment, or equitable proceedings. Baldwin v. Thompson, 15 Id., 594.

A judgment lien upon real estate is not affected by a sale thereof under a junior judgment. Lathrop v. Brown, 23 Id., 49.

A general judgment ceases to operate as a lien on real estate after ten years from the date of the judgment. Henderson v. Ping, 24 Id., 134.

A judgment is a lien on a leasehold interest in lands of two years or more, and such lien takes precedence of subsequent conveyances or transfers of the lease by the judgment defendants. The First N't B'k of Davenport v. Bennett, 40 Id., 531.

In case of judgment rendered in a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage, the lien of the mortgage continues until the judgment is paid, or barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Roost, 34 Id., 475; Henderson v. Ping, 24 Id., 134.

A judgment in an action on a promissory note secured by mortgage, is a lien on the mortgaged property only from the date of its rendition, when it does not order a foreclosure. Wilhelm v. Leonard, 13 Id., 339.

A judgment lien attaches only to the actual interest of the debtor in the land. If he has no interest there is nothing upon which the lien can operate, though he may seem to have from the assignment to him of a contract on file, which in fact he had transferred to another before the rendition of the judgment. Churchill v. Morse, 23 Id., 229.

An unrecorded deed will have priority over a judgment or attachment lien; nor is the case varied by the fact that the deed is without a proper acknowledgment. Hoy v. Allen et al., 27 Id., 298; Norton et al. v. Williams, 9 Id., 529; Churchill v. Morse, 23 Id., 229; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 354; Jones v. Jones et al., 13 Id., 276; Blaney v. Hanks, 14 Id., 400; Parker v. Pierce, 16 Id., 227; Seavers v. Delashmutt, 11 Id., 174; Welton v. Tizzard, 15 Id., 496; Hays v. Waals, 18 Id., 52.

A general judgment ceases to be a lien on real property after the expiration of ten years from the date of its rendition. Henderson v. Ping, 24 Id., 134.

It has also been held that the rendition of a judgment does not merge or destroy the lien of a mortgage, or that the lien exists until the debt is paid or discharged. Henderson v. Ping, 1d; Seavers v. Mills, 35 Id., 499. But see Tuttle v. Dowe, 44 Id., 309, which seems to hold a different doctrine.
LIENS ON REAL ESTATE BY JUDGMENTS IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT AND CIRCUIT COURTS.

An Act in relation to liens on real estate, of judgments in the district and circuit courts of the United States. Amending code, title XVII, chapter 9: “Of trial and judgment.”

SECTION 1. [Code § 2882, part repealed.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That the words “or in the district or circuit court of the United States, if rendered within this state,” in section 2882 of the code, are hereby stricken out.

SEC. 2. [How judgment may be made a lien.]-Judgments in the district or circuit court of the United States, if rendered in this state, may be made liens upon the real estate owned by the defendant, and also upon all he may subsequently acquire, for the period of ten years from the date of the judgment, by filing an attested copy of the judgment in the office of the clerk of the state district court of the county in which the land lies; and no lien shall attach to the lands in any county of this state until the date of filing such transcript, except in the county wherein the judgment was rendered, in which case the lien shall attach from the date of such rendition.

SEC. 3. [Duty of clerk.]-The clerk shall, on the filing of such transcript in his office, immediately proceed to docket and index the same in a separate book kept for that purpose, in the same manner as though rendered in the court of his own county, and he shall be allowed to charge and receive the same fees as provided by law for like service.

SEC. 4. [Satisfaction of judgment.]-When the amount due on any judgment is paid off or satisfied in full, the plaintiff, or those legally acting for him, must acknowledge satisfaction thereof in the margin of the record of the judgment, or by execution of an instrument in writing, referring to the judgment, and have it duly acknowledged and filed in the office of the clerk of the district court in every county where the judgment is a lien. If he fails to do so within sixty days after having been requested in writing so to do, he shall forfeit to the plaintiff (defendant) the sum of fifty dollars.

Approved March 25, 1878.

It was held by the United States circuit court for the district of Iowa, at the October term, 1877, at Des Moines, that a judgment rendered in that court became a lien upon the real property of the judgment debtor wherever situated within the state, without the filing of a transcript in the county where the land was situated. See Kinzie v. Elliott.

[The above statute seems to have been passed to reverse that decision.—Ed.]

SEC. 2883. [When attach.]-When the lands lie in the county wherein the judgment was rendered, the lien shall attach from the date of rendition.

SEC. 2884. [In another county how effected.]-If the lands lie in any other county, the lien does not attach until an attested copy of the judgment is filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the land lies.

A transcript of a judgment, rendered in the district court of one county, filed in the clerk’s office in another county, operates only as a lien upon the real estate of the defendant in the county in which it is filed. It does not empower the clerk of such county to issue execution thereon. Seaton & Son v. Hamilton & Co., 10 Iowa, 394.

The lien attaches from the date of rendition or filing. Hendershott v. Ping, 24 Id., 134. 136.

SEC. 2885. [Duty of clerk.]-Such clerk shall, on the filing of a transcript of the judgment in his office, immediately proceed to docket and index the same in the same manner as though rendered in the court of his own county.
Sec. 2886. [When made.]—Real property may be conveyed by a commissioner appointed by the court:
1. Where, by judgment in an action, a party is ordered to convey such property to another;
2. Where such property has been sold under a judgment or order of the court, and the purchase money paid.
Sec. 2887. [Reference to judgment in.—The deed of the commissioner shall refer to the judgment, orders, and proceedings authorizing the conveyance.
This section authorizes a retrial of a cause within two years, in all cases where judgment by default has been rendered against a defendant served by publication only, but has no application to the case of a judgment void for want of jurisdiction to render it, as where a personal judgment was rendered where the court had jurisdiction only to render a judgment in rem.
Smith v. Griffin et al., 59 Iowa, 409.
Sec. 2888. A conveyance made in pursuance to a judgment shall pass to the grantee the title of the parties ordered to convey the land.
Sec. 2889. [Title.—A conveyance made in pursuance of a sale ordered by the court, shall pass to the grantee the title of all the parties to the action or proceeding.
Sec. 2890. [Approval by court.—A conveyance by a commissioner shall not pass any right until it has been examined and approved by the court, which approval shall be indorsed on the conveyance and record with it.
Sec. 2891. [Form of conveyance.—It shall be necessary for the conveyance to be signed by the commissioner only, without affixing the names of the parties whose title is conveyed; but the name of such parties shall be recited in the body of the conveyance.
Sec. 2892. [Recorded.—The conveyance shall be recorded in the office in which, by law, it should have been recorded had it been made by the parties whose title is conveyed by it.
Sec. 2893. [Judge may approve conveyances.—In all cases under this code, whenever by law it is permitted or required that judicial or other sales and conveyances of land may or shall be confirmed and approved by a court, it shall be lawful for the judge of the court, in vacation, to confirm or approve the same, and to cause the proper entry or entries thereof to be made required by law and the rules of such court.

CHAPTER 10.

OF JUDGMENT BY CONFESSION.

Sec. 2894. [Clerk may enter.—A judgment by confession without action may be entered by the clerk of the district or circuit court in the manner hereinafter prescribed.
Sec. 2895. [Can only be for money.—Such confession can be only for money due, or to become due, or to secure a person against contingent liabilities on behalf of the defendant, and must be for a specified sum.
Sec. 2896. [Verified statement filed with clerk.—A statement in writing must be made and signed by the defendant and verified by his oath to the following effect, and filed with the clerk:
1. If for money due, or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which the indebtedness arose, and that the sum confessed therefor is justly due, or to become due, as the case may be.
2. If for the purpose of securing the plaintiff against a contingent liability, it must state concisely the facts constituting such liability, and must show that the sum confessed therefor does not exceed the same.

SEC. 2897. [Judgment: execution.]—The clerk shall thereupon make an entry of judgment in his court record for the amount thus confessed and costs, and shall issue execution thereon as in other cases.

A judgment by confession entered by the clerk in vacation, as authorized by the statute, if founded upon a sufficient written statement of the party, verified by his oath, and filed with the clerk, becomes, when read, approved and signed by the judge, at the next term of the court, the judgment of the court. Edgar v. Greer, 7 Iowa, 136.

To authorize the clerk to enter a judgment by confession, the provisions of the statute must be strictly complied with. And such judgment, though entered by the clerk, is deemed the judgment of the court. Id.

The written statement of the defendant upon which the judgment is to be entered must state the manner in which the indebtedness arose. It is not sufficient to describe the note which is the evidence of the debt, and state the amount due thereon. Id.

The defendant on appeal from a judgment in conformity with a written confession, may object that the written statement made by him is insufficient to authorize the clerk to enter judgment thereon. Id.

An appeal will lie from a judgment by confession. Troxel v. Clark, 9 Id., 201.

Where the statement for a confession of judgment recited that the indebtedness was for a promissory note "given in good faith for a debt justly due the plaintiff, and that the same is unpaid," it was held that this was not a sufficient statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Kennedy v. Love, 9 Id., 580.

A confession of judgment by one member of a partnership, for the firm, is valid only against the partner making it. North & Scott v. Mudge & Co., 13 Id., 496; Christy v. Sherman, 10 Id., 535; Edwards v. Pitzer, 12 Id., 607.

A judgment by confession is void when the power authorizing the entry thereof is not in strict conformity with the requirements of the statute. Edgar v. Greer, 10 Id., 279; Bernard & Co. v. Douglass & Watson, 1 Id., 370.

Where the statement for a judgment by confession which recites that the consideration of the demand on which it is based is a promissory note, which "was given the plaintiff for a balance due on settlement," is insufficient, and a judgment entered thereon is void. Bernard & Co. v. Douglass & Watson, 10 Id., 370.

An invalid judgment by confession may be set aside on the motion of a junior judgment creditor, after notice to the plaintiff. Id.

A statement for a judgment by confession, on a promissory note, which sets up the note and states that the consideration thereof "was money loaned by the plaintiff to the defendant," is sufficiently specific in its statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Vanfleet v. Phillips, 11 Id., 538.

That the verification of the statement for a judgment by confession was made before a notary public who was acting as one of the plaintiff's attorneys, will not of itself render the judgment invalid or justify the court in setting it aside. Id.

Where the record of a judgment by confession, entered by the clerk in vacation, was not read, signed and approved at the term following such entry, held, that such failure did not void the judgment. Id.

A statement for a judgment by confession, showing that the indebtedness was for "sundry articles of dry goods," and "a bill of groceries," without further detail, was held sufficient in this respect. Daniels & Co. v. Clifton, 15 Id., 152.

A statement for judgment by confession does not estop the defendant from pleading usury in the debt before the judgment is entered on the statement. Lyons v. Welsh, 20 Id., 578.

But a judgment by confession duly entered and regular in all its parts, is, in the absence of fraud, or other special ground of equitable relief, conclusive against the defense of usury, as well as every other defense existing when the judgment was rendered. Twogood & Elliott v. Fenice, 22 Id., 543.

A judgment entered in vacation, by confession, upon a statement made by the debtor, of all which the creditor had no knowledge, and to which he did not assent, was vacated on the motion of the creditor. Farmers & Mechanics Bank v. Mather, 30 Id., 293.

Where the sworn statement for judgment shows that a certain sum is due from the party making the same to the party to whom it is made, for which it is consented that judgment shall be entered, such statement is sufficient as between the parties, and the defendant is estopped from impeaching the same on the ground that it does not sufficiently set out the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. Bruchett v. Casady, 18 Id., 342.

A judgment by confession, not entered within a reasonable time after filing the statement, is not void as between the parties, but voidable only, and cannot be impeached collaterally by either of the parties. Id.

A confession of judgment, in consideration of the extension of a note, made to evade the law against usury, will be regarded as invalid. Ohm v. Dickerman, 50 Id., 671.

A statement for judgment of confession “that the consideration of this judgment of confession is for borrowed money, and that there is now due the said C, the above stated sum with interest,” is sufficiently specific. Miller v. Clarke, 57 Id., 425.

The statement for a confession of judgment may be amended after judgment is entered by the clerk, by attaching the seal of the notary thereto inadvertently omitted. Thorp v. Platt, 34 Id., 314.

A confession pertains to the remedy, and is therefore governed by the law of this state. A contract made in another state authorizing a confession to be made by an attorney will not be enforced here. Hamilton v. Schoenberger, 47 Id., 385.

Sec. 2898. [Offer to confess before action: effect and procedure.]-Before an action for the recovery of money is brought against any person, he may go before the clerk of the courts of the county of his residence, or of that in which the person having the cause of action resides, and offer to confess judgment in favor of such person for a specified sum on such cause of action as provided for in the foregoing sections. Whereupon, if such person, having had the same notice as if he were defendant in an action, that the offer would be made, of its amount and of the time and place of making it, refuses to accept it, and should afterwards commence an action upon such cause and not recover more than the amount so offered to be confessed, he shall pay all the costs of action; and on the trial thereof, the offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action or amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, nor be given in evidence.

Sec. 2899. [Same: after action brought.]-After an action for the recovery of money is brought, the defendant may offer in court to confess judgment for part of the amount claimed, or part of the causes involved in the action. Whereupon, if the plaintiff, being present, refuses to accept such confession of judgment in full of his demands against the defendant in the action, or, having had three days' notice that the offer would be made, of its amount and of the time of making it, fails to attend and on the trial does not recover more than was offered to be confessed, such plaintiff shall pay the costs of the defendant incurred after the offer. The offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action, or amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, nor be given in evidence upon trial.

Where, after an appeal to the circuit court from an award of damages by commissioners for the taking of property for a right of way for a railroad, the defendant filed an offer to confess judgment for a stated sum, and the plaintiff failed to recover more, it was held, that the costs accruing after such offer should be taxed against him. Harrison v. The Iowa Midland R. Co., 36 Iowa, 323.

Where a defendant in his answer does not controvert a part of plaintiff's claim, but confesses the same to be due and payable, and offers judgment therefor, the case does not come within the provisions of this section, but it is proper for the court to render judgment on the amount thus confessed under section 2856 of the code. The City of Davenport v. The C., R. I. & P.R. Co., 38 Id., 363.

Pending an action before a justice of the peace, the defendant offered to confess judgment for a part of the claim, which was less than the amount for which judgment was rendered by the justice, but equal to the sum recovered on appeal to the circuit court. Held, that, under section 3404 of the revision, the plaintiff was liable for all costs incurred after the offer to confess was made. Watts v. Lamberton, 39 Id., 272.

An offer to confess judgment in a pending action carries with it as an incident, if accepted, a liability for all the costs accrued in the case up to the time the offer is made. Manning v. Irish, 47 Id., 564.

To entitle a defendant to costs by reason of an offer to confess judgment, under this section of the code, the offer must be confined to the matters in suit. Phillips v. Sheaver, 56 Id., 261.

An offer to confess judgment under this section may be made orally, and there is no provision requiring it to be made of record. And where a question afterwards arises as to the amount of the offer, the court may properly hear parol evidence on the question. Barlow, Adm'r, v. Buckingham et al., 68 Id., 169.
CHAPTER 11.

OF AN OFFER TO COMPROMISE.

SECTION 2900. [By allowing judgment to be taken for a certain sum.]
—The defendant in an action for the recovery of money only, may, at any time after service of notice and before the trial, serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum of money, or to the effect therein specified with costs. If the plaintiff accept the offer, and gives notice thereof to the defendant or his attorney within five days after the offer is made, the offer, and an affidavit that the notice of acceptance was delivered in the time limited, may be filed by the plaintiff, or the defendant may file the acceptance with a copy of the offer verified by affidavit; and in either case, the offer and acceptance shall be entered upon record and judgment shall be rendered by the court accordingly. If the notice of acceptance is not given in the time limited, the offer shall be deemed withdrawn, and shall not be given in evidence or mentioned on the trial. If the plaintiff fails to obtain judgment for more than was offered by the defendant, he cannot recover costs, but shall pay the defendant’s costs from the time of the offer.

Where the person whose name is signed to a promissory note, denied the execution of it, a letter written by him to the holder, offering to pay an amount which he admitted to be due on the note, was properly admitted against him to rebut his denial. Such a letter was not an offer to compromise, to be excluded under section 2900 of the code. Bayliss v. Murray, 69 Iowa, 290.

Where the defendant offered to confess judgment for a certain amount, but the offer was not accepted, and the plaintiff’s attorney referred to it on the trial in the presence of the jury, contrary to the provisions of this section of the code, it was the defendant’s duty then to object and ask the court to discharge the jury, or for other appropriate relief. But as he proceeded without objection to try the cause to the jury, held that he could not, after verdict, demand a new trial on the ground of such misconduct. Riech v. Bolch, 63 Id., 526.

An offer in writing, by the defendant, to pay a certain sum of money and costs of suit if the plaintiff will dismiss his action, will not entitle the defendant to the benefit of this section of the code. The offer must be to allow judgment to go against him. Quinton v. Van Tuyl, 30 Id., 554.

Where the defendant fails to give notice of his acceptance of an offer made by the defendant within the time prescribed, the offer is presumed to have been withdrawn, and the plaintiff cannot avail himself of it after the trial. Holmes v. The City of Hamburg, 47 Id., 345.

In proceeding to assess the damages to real property by reason of a street thereon, an offer of the town to let judgment be entered against it for a certain amount will not, in a case of a verdict for a smaller sum, authorize the court to tax the costs to the land-owner under this section, it not being applicable to such proceedings. The Town of Cherokee v. The S. C. & I. F. Town Lot and Land Co., 32 Id., 279.

SEC. 2901. [Same: conditional offer.]—In an action for the recovery of money only, the defendant, having answered, may serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney an offer in writing, that if he fails in his defense the amount of recovery shall be assessed as a specified sum. If the plaintiff accepts the offer, and gives notice thereof to the defendant or his attorney within five days after it was served, or within three days if served in term time, and the defendant fails in his defense, the judgment shall be for the amount so agreed upon. If the plaintiff does not so accept the offer, he shall prove the amount to be recovered as if the offer had not been made, and the offer shall not be given in evidence or mentioned on the trial. And if the amount recovered by the plaintiff does not exceed the sum mentioned in the offer, the defendant shall recover his costs incurred in the defense, and in respect to the question of amount, to be taxed under the direction of the court.

SEC. 2902. [No cause for continuance.]—The making of any offer pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall not be a cause for a continuance of an action or a postponement of a trial.

OF RECEIVERS.

Section 2903. [When and how appointed.]—On the petition of either party to a civil action or proceeding, wherein he shows that he has a probable right to, or interest in any property which is the subject of the controversy, and that such property, or its rents or profits, are in danger of being lost or materially injured or impaired, and on such notice to the adverse party as the court or judge shall prescribe, the court, or, in vacation, the judge thereof, if satisfied that the interests of one or both parties will be thereby promoted, and the substantial rights of neither unduly infringed, may appoint a receiver to take charge of and control such property under its direction during the pendency of the action, and may order and coerce the delivery of it to him. Upon the hearing of the application, affidavits and such other proof as the court or judge deems proper, may be introduced, and upon the whole case such order made as will be for the best interest of all parties concerned.

The appointment of a receiver may be made upon the petition of a party in interest, showing a probable right to the property in controversy, or to a portion thereof, and that it is in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired. Saylor v. Mockbie, 9 Iowa, 209.

The court has power to appoint a receiver to take charge of partnership assets, to collect debts and convert property into money, and to exercise general control over the same, under the direction of the court. Id.

When property placed in the hands of a receiver as partnership assets, is found upon the hearing to be the individual property of one of the members of the partnership, it will be restored to him. Id.

The appointment of a receiver to take charge of mortgaged property after a final decree of foreclosure, is unusual, and, if allowable at all, should be supported by a strong showing of facts. Adair et al. v. Wright, 16 Id., 385.

A receiver will not be appointed on the application of the mortgagee to take possession of the mortgaged premises, where it does not clearly appear that the whole of the mortgaged premises are insufficient in value to pay the debt, or that the court should take control of the estate to protect the rights of a party who has a clear, strong claim against it. Callanan & Ingham v. Shaw et al., 19 Id., 183.

When the bond or mortgage pledges the income, rents or profits to the payment of the debt, the creditor need not conclusively establish his right to recover before he has a right to ask for the appointment of a receiver; it is sufficient if he shows a probable right. The Des Moines Gas Co. v. West, 44 Id., 23.

If the debtor is insolvent, in such case the appointment follows as a matter of course. Id.

To show that a stock of merchandise is being sold by a mortgagee who is garnished, "in the usual way of merchants," does not show that the property is "in danger of being lost or materially injured or impaired," which is essential under this section to entitle a party to ask for the appointment of a receiver of the property. Silverman et al. v. Kuhn, 53 Id., 436, 452.

Whether in any case a receiver should be appointed to take charge of the mortgagor's homestead pending proceedings to foreclose, query? Id.

An appeal may be taken from an order appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver. Id.

The court has power under the statute to appoint a receiver in an ordinary law action. Jones v. Graves, 20 Id., 596.

A judge of the district court was held to have the power to appoint a receiver in vacation, in a case where it was proper that such an appointment should be made, but not without notice to the opposite party, unless the particular facts and circumstances rendering such a course proper were set forth in the petition. French et al. v. Gifford et al., 30 Id., 148.

The appointment of a receiver in vacation, and without notice to the adverse party, is erroneous, and will not be sustained. Howe & Co. v. Jones, 57 Id., 130, 142.

Where the mortgagee in a chattel mortgage had been garnished by creditors of the mortgagor, had brought his action in equity to foreclose the mortgage, which by its terms gave him the right to take possession of the goods whenever he should choose to do so and sell the same to pay the amount due, or to become due, with costs, etc., it was held that under this section he was entitled to the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the goods and to sell them in the ordinary course of business. Maish v. Bird, 59 Id., 307.

A mortgagee has a right to the appointment of a receiver for the property on which his mortgage is a lien, and then only when there is danger of its being lost or materially injured or impaired in value. He is not entitled to a receiver to take charge of the crops upon the mortgaged premises. White v. Greggs et al., 54 Id., 650; Meyton v. Davenport, 51 Id., 583.

To entitle one claiming to be a partner to the appointment of a receiver to wind up the partnership affairs, it must appear that there was a completed partnership, at least so far as to entitle him to a participation in the profits of the business. An agreement of partnership which has not been executed to this extent is not sufficient. Hubert v. Ballard, 31 Id., 521.

The rule that the compensation of a receiver appointed to take charge of assets and wind up the affairs of a partnership or corporation should be returned from, and paid out of, the funds coming into his hands, generally applies to those cases where the receiver closes up the business and settles his accounts in pursuance of his appointment, and not to cases where the order appointing the receiver is set aside as improperly made before such time. French v. Gifford, 31 Id., 428.

It was held that where the adverse party is out of the jurisdiction of the court, and cannot be served, or cannot readily be served with notice, the court may, under some circumstances, under this section, appoint a receiver, without notice. Id.

Where the circuit court making certain orders had jurisdiction of the defendants in the action and of the subject matter involved therein, which included property which a receiver by order of the court authorized and required to take into his possession, the receiver was, under the order, authorized to take the property. The State v. Rivers et al., 64 Id., 735.

SEC. 2904. [Oath and bond of.]—Before entering on the discharge of his duties, he must be sworn faithfully to discharge his trust to the best of his ability, and must also file with the clerk a bond with sureties, to be by him approved, in a penalty to be fixed by the court or judge, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and that he will obey the orders of the court in respect thereto.

SEC. 2905. [Power of.]—Subject to the control of the court or judge, a receiver has power to bring and defend actions, to take and keep possession of property, to collect debts, to receive the rents and profits of real property, and, generally, to do such acts in respect to the property committed to him as may be authorized.

As a general rule, a receiver has no powers except those conferred upon him by the order of his appointment, but where certain "mills and block" were committed to the care of a receiver, it was held that he was thereby authorized to prosecute an action relating to a private wharf which was connected therewith, and which was primarily and principally constructed for the purpose of more conveniently carrying on said mill. Grant v. City of Davenport, 18 Iowa, 179.

The fraudulent acts or neglect of a receiver of an insolvent corporation constitute no defense to an action against a stockholder for contribution. Stewart v. Lay, 45 Id., 604.

Any irregularities in the pleadings of a receiver can be corrected only by the court which appointed him, and his conduct will not be reviewed in an action in another forum. Id.

CHAPTER 13.

OF SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

SECTION 2906. [Judgments on motion in certain cases.]—Judgments or final orders may be obtained on motion by sureties against their principals, by sureties against their co-sureties, for the recovery of money due them on account of payments made by them as such; by clients against attorneys; plaintiffs in execution against sheriffs, constables, and other officers, for the receiving of money or property collected for them, and damages, and in all other cases specially authorized by statute.

A motion under this section, to compel an attorney to pay over money collected for his client, is heard and disposed of without written pleadings. Mansfield v. Willerson, 26 Iowa, 452. See section 2910.

Where money is paid to the clerk of a third party in pursuance of a decree of court, such third party has no right to object to the disposition of such money on the ground that he had no notice of the action in which the decree was rendered. If the decree was invalid, it could not be attacked in an answer and cross-bill in a proceeding to compel the clerk to pay the money in accordance with the decree. Elliott v. Jones, 47 Id., 124.

This section has no application to sureties on official bonds; such sureties can only be subjected to liability for a judgment against their principals when they are regularly brought into court as defendants, and have an opportunity to contest the claim made by the plaintiff. Bitting v. Moore et al., 53 Id., 593.

Sec. 2907. [Notice; service.]—Notice of such motion shall be served on the party against whom the judgment or order is sought at least ten days before the motion is made.

Sec. 2908. [Form of.]—The notice shall state in plain and ordinary language the nature and grounds of the motion, and the day on which it will be made.

The nature and grounds of the motion only are to be stated in the notice, and the motion is heard without written pleading. Mansfield v. Wilkerson, 26 Iowa, 482, 485. See, also, Rees v. Leach, 10 Id., 439; The State ex rel. v. The Mayor etc., 18 Id., 388, and cases cited.

Sec. 2909. [When abandoned.]—Unless the motion is made and filed with the case on or before the day named in the notice, it shall be considered as abandoned.

Sec. 2910. [No written pleadings.]—The motion shall be heard and determined without written pleadings, and judgment given according to law and the rules of equity.

CHAPTER 14.

OF MOTIONS AND ORDERS.

Sec. 2911. [Motion defined.]—A motion is a written application for an order addressed to the court, or to a judge in vacation, by any party to a suit or proceeding, or by any one interested therein.

Sec. 2912. [Several objects included.]—Several objects may be included in the same motion, if they all grow out of, or are connected with, the action or proceeding in which it is made.

Sec. 2913. [Proof to sustain or resist: how taken.]—Testimony to sustain or resist a motion may be in the form of affidavits, or in such other form as the parties may agree on or the court or judge direct. If by affidavit, the person making the same may be required to appear by the court or judge, and submit to a cross-examination.

In the determination of questions in relation to costs, and as to who shall pay them, the court is authorized to receive affidavits and determine the matter thereon or it may order the deponents to be brought before it and be subjected to an examination. Packer v. Packer, 24 Iowa, 20.

Sec. 2914. [Notice of motion: how and when taken.]—A party who has appeared in an action, or who has been served with the original notice in such action in any manner provided by this code, shall take notice of all motions filed during term time upon the same being filed by the clerk and entered in the appearance docket. All motions filed in vacation shall be entered on such docket and served as herein required.

After judgment the defendant is not required to take notice of subsequent proceedings. Adair v. Wright, 16 Iowa, 383, 386; Wright v. LeClaire, 3 Id., 221.

A motion for a change of venue, made in vacation, should not be heard without notice to the adverse party. Preston v. Winter, 20 Id., 295.

A party once in court must take notice of a motion filed during a term of court for final judgment. No other notice than the filing is necessary. Wagner v. Tice, 36 Id., 599.

An application made in vacation to change the venue in a cause should not be heard without notice to the adverse party. Preston v. Winter, 20 Id., 264; Hornis v. McKenzie, 31 Id., 425.

All parties interested should be notified of the filing of a motion to set aside a judgment rendered at a prior term, and it is error to sustain such motion in the absence of such notice, unless the party entitled to notice appeared by himself or counsel. Keeney v. Lyon, 21 Id., 277.

Sec. 2915. [Notice: what to state.]—When notice of a motion is required to be served, it shall state the names of the parties to the action or proceeding in which it is made, the name of the court or judge before whom it is to be made, and the place where, and the day on which it is to be heard, and, if affidavits are to be used on the hearing, the notice shall be accompanied with copies thereof and shall be served such length of time before the hearing as the court or judge deems reasonable.

SERVICE.

SEC. 2916. [Service: how made.]—Notices, and copies of motions mentioned in this chapter, may be served by any one who would be authorized to serve an original notice.

SEC. 2917. The service shall be on each of the parties adverse to the motion, if more than one, or on an attorney of record of such party.

SEC. 2918. The service may be personal on such party or attorney, or may be made in the same manner as is provided for the service of the original notice in civil actions; or it may be served on the attorney by being left at his office with any person having the charge thereof.

SEC. 2919. [Return.]—Any officer authorized to serve any notice, shall serve at once the same and make prompt return to the party who delivered the same to him, and a failure to do so shall be punished as a disobedience of the process of the court.

SEC. 2920. The return of proof of service must state the manner in which it was made.

SEC. 2921. [When court may direct manner of service.]—When the party has no known place of abode in this state, and no attorney in the county where the action is pending, or where the parties, plaintiffs or defendants, are numerous, the court or judge may direct the mode of serving notices, and on whom they shall be served.

ORDERS.

SEC. 2922. [Order defined.]—Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing and not included in a judgment, is an order.

A final decree in equity is not an "order" but a "judgment" within the meaning of this section of the code. \(Wagner v. Tice, 36 Iowa, 599, 602;\) see also, \(Smith, Murphy & Co. v. Shawhan, 37\) Id. 533.

SEC. 2923. [May issue in vacation.]—For good cause shown, a judge’s order may issue in vacation, directing any of the officers of the court in relation to the discharge of their duties.

The judge in vacation may direct the sheriff to publish notice of a sale in the manner prescribed by law, as determined by the judge. \(Herrman v. Moore, 49 Iowa, 171.\)

Mandamus will not lie to compel the clerk to issue execution on a judgment, because this section provides a plain, speedy and adequate remedy for his refusal to do so. \(Pickell et al. v. Owen, 66 Id., 485.\)

SEC. 2924. [How long in force.]—Such order shall be in force only during the vacation in which it is granted and for the first two days of the ensuing term.

This section applies only to the orders contemplated in section 2923 and not to an order for a temporary injunction made in vacation. \(Shaw v. McHenry, 52 Iowa, 183; Curtis v. Crane, 38\) Id., 459.

SEC. 2925. [Bond.]—The judge granting it may require the filing of a bond as in case of an injunction, unless from the nature of the case such requirement would be clearly unnecessary and improper.

A judge’s order may be obtained in vacation directing the clerk as to his duty. \(Maynes v. Brockway, 55 Iowa, 457, 460.\)

SEC. 2926. [To be filed and entered of record.]—Orders made out of court shall forthwith be filed with and entered by the clerk in the journal of the court in the same manner as orders made in the term.
CHAPTER 15.

OF SECURITY FOR COSTS.

SECTION 2927. [Must be given, when. —] If a defendant shall at any time before answering, make and file an affidavit stating that he has a good defense in whole or in part, the plaintiff, if he be a non-resident of this state or a private or foreign corporation, before any other proceeding in the cause shall file in the clerk's office a bond, with a sufficient security to be approved by the clerk, for the payment of all costs which may accrue in the action in the court in which it is brought or in any other to which it may be carried, either to the defendant or to the officers of the court. The application for such security shall be by motion filed with the case, and the facts supporting it must be shown by affidavits annexed thereto, which may be responded to by counter affidavits on or before the hearing of the motion, and each party shall file all his affidavits at once, and none thereafter.

The provisions of this section are not confined to foreign corporations. A domestic corporation may be required to give security for costs. The D. M. V. Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Henderson, 38 Iowa, 446.

The affidavit annexed to a motion for security for costs need not set out the facts constituting the defense, but only that the party making the motion has a good defense. Id.

The time fixed by the court within which a bond for costs must be filed, will be deemed sufficient, on appeal, unless it is made to appear that the plaintiff was prejudiced by the order. Id.

In a case where a motion for security for costs is proper, such motion must be filed by the time the defendant is required to plead, or such further time as may be granted by the court, otherwise it may be properly overruled. Sprague v. Haight, 54 Id., 446.

If a motion for security for costs could be made at all upon an appeal from a justice of the peace, it would be too late after the jury were sworn. Ade v. Co. v. Zangs, 41 Id., 536.

Where the plaintiff became a non-resident after the institution of a suit, and defendant on that account moved for security for costs, but not until after they had answered, held that the motion was made too late. Gilbert v. Hoffman, 66 Id., 206.

SEC. 2928. [Cause dismissed. ]—An action in which a bond for costs is required by the last section, shall be dismissed if a bond is not given in such time as the court may allow.

A dismissal of the action is the penalty for a non-compliance with an order to secure costs; and where the court below dismisses the action without fixing a further time for filing a bond for costs, the supreme court will not interfere where the order works no substantial prejudice to the plaintiff. The D. M. V. R. Co. v. Henderson, 38 Iowa, 446.

SEC. 2929. [When plaintiff becomes non-resident. ]—If the plaintiff in an action, after its institution becomes a non-resident of this state, he may be required to give security for costs in the manner and under the restrictions provided in the preceding sections of this chapter.

SEC. 2930. [Additional security. ]—In an action in which a bond for costs has been given, the defendant may at any time before trial, make a motion for additional security on the part of plaintiff; and if on such motion the court is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from the state, or is not sufficient for the amount thereof, it may dismiss the action, unless, in a reasonable time to be fixed by the court, sufficient security is given by the plaintiff.

SEC. 2931. [Attorney or officer cannot be. ]—No attorney or other officer of the court shall be received as security in any proceeding in court.

The prohibition of this section against attorneys becoming sureties in proceedings in court, is not limited to costs. It applies to injunctions, attachment and similar bonds, as fully as to those securing costs. Massie v. Mann, 17 Iowa, 131.

An attorney who tenders himself as surety on a bond in court and is accepted, cannot afterwards plead the fact that he is an attorney to relieve him of his obligation. Wright v. Schmidt, 47 Id., 233.

The fact that an attorney's name is signed to the bond, and that the approval of the clerk is indorsed thereon in due form is conclusive of his acceptance as surety. Id.
SEC. 2932. [Judgment on bond rendered on motion.]—After final judgment has been rendered in an action in which security for costs has been given as required by this chapter, the court on motion of the defendant or any other person having the right to such costs or any part thereof, may render judgment summarily according to the chapter on summary proceedings, in the name of the defendant or his legal representatives, against the sureties for costs, for the amount of costs adjudged against the plaintiff or so much thereof as may remain unpaid.

CHAPTER 16.
OF COSTS.

SECTION 2933. [Recoverable by successful party.]—Costs shall be recovered by the successful against the losing party. But where the party is successful as to a part of his demand, and fails as to part, unless the case is otherwise provided for, the court may, on rendering judgment, make an equitable apportionment of costs.

Where a number of witnesses subpoenaed by the plaintiff were in attendance at the trial to testify touching an issue joined, and the defendant withdrew his answer immediately before the jury was impaneled, and presented a new issue which rendered the testimony of said witnesses immaterial, it was held proper for the court to tax a portion of the costs to the defendant, notwithstanding he was the successful party. Whitney v. Hackney, 20 Iowa, 460.

While, as a rule, the successful party is entitled to recover costs, the court has the power, under peculiar circumstances to adjudge otherwise. Scott's Adm'r v. Cole, 27 Id., 109.

Where the plaintiff obtains relief in part, though he fails in the main part of his case, the court may, in its discretion, order the defendant to pay his own costs. Burton v. Mayson, 26 Id., 392.

A plaintiff who recovers in his action is not, as a matter of law, entitled, in all cases, to recover full costs. There may be circumstances justifying an equitable apportionment thereof by the court. Hatch v. Guld, 29 Id., 97; Brie's v. Nuway, 1d., 444; Bury v. Wright, 23 Id., 101.

Where no abuse of discretion is shown, an order of the court below apportioning costs will be sustained in the appellate court, if the plaintiff has recovered but a part of his demand. Boone County v. Wilson, 41 Id., 69.

The apportionment of costs is a matter resting in the discretionary powers of the court, and its action in this respect will not be disturbed, on appeal, unless an abuse of such discretion is affirmatively shown from all the facts. Bush v. Yorman, 39 Id., 479.

It is competent for the trial court to adopt and enforce a rule limiting the right of witnesses, subpoenaed and attending court in several cases at the same time, to fees for mileage and attendance in one case only. Such a rule is consistent with law, within the meaning of section 2860 of the revision (code, section 180). Muffert v. The D. B. S. M. R. Co., 34 Id., 430. Mullen, J., dissenting.

The costs in a proceeding to restore the record of a judgment which has been destroyed, if the motion is resisted and is sustained by the court, should be taxed against the losing party. Ranke & McKinley v. Herron, 45 Id., 276.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace upon four separate items of demand, the judgment of the justice in favor of the plaintiff was appealed from, and the plaintiff recovered one dollar in the circuit court, it was held that the case was a proper one for an apportionment of the costs under section 2933 of the code. Hoedler v. Overholser, 45 Id., 366.

While, as a rule, the successful party is entitled to recover costs, the court has the power, under peculiar circumstances, to adjudge otherwise, and if a party would show error in this respect, the facts upon which the court below acted must in some manner be disclosed, so that the appellate court may see whether there has been any abuse of discretion. Scott's Adm'r v. Cole et al., 27 Id., 109.

The general rule as to costs, both at law and in equity, is that they shall be adjudged to the successful against the unsuccessful party. French v. Gifford, 31 Id., 425.

This section, in providing that in certain cases the court may make an equitable apportionment of the costs between the parties, does not apply to those cases in which the cause of action is a single, indivisible claim. Upson v. Fuller, 43 Id., 409; Hammond v. S. C. & P. R. Co., 49 Id., 450.

Where in an action in equity the relief asked is of such a character that a part thereof may be granted, while a part may be refused, the costs may be apportioned equitably between the parties. Strayer v. Stone, 47 Id., 333.

Where judgment is recovered against an administrator who refuses to defend, but defense is made by the heirs, of the intestate, the costs should be taxed against such heirs. Drummond v. Irish, 52 Id., 41.
OF COSTS. [TITLE XVII.]

Where in an action of replevin the property consists of distinct articles, and there is a recovery for a part only, it is competent for the court to make an equitable apportionment of the costs. Whitaker v. Sigler, 44 Id., 419.

But where the cause of action is a single claim, a reduction in the amount does not entitle the losing party to an apportionment of the costs. Hammond v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 49 Id., 450.

When a plaintiff dismisses the action or any part thereof, or suffers it to abate by death of the defendant, or where there are several issues joined upon the matters therein alleged, it may still in the same case where the plaintiff recovers upon his demand, and the defendant, in whole or in part upon his counter-claim. Arthur v. Funk, 23 Iowa, 238. See, also, Brink v. Neiweg, 29 Id., 444.

Where there are two issues, one of which is determined in favor of the plaintiff and the other in favor of the defendant, it is proper that the plaintiff should pay the costs on the issue decided against him, and that the defendant should pay the costs on the issue decided against him. Porter v. McBride, 44 Id., 479.

Where there are two issues, one of which is determined in favor of the plaintiff and the other in favor of the defendant, it is proper that the plaintiff should pay the costs on the issue decided against him and that the defendant should pay the costs on the issue decided against him. McClatchey v. Finley et al., 62 Id., 200.

Section 2934. [Where several parties and causes of action. ]—In actions where there are several plaintiffs or several defendants, the costs shall be apportioned according to the several judgments rendered; and where there are several causes of action embraced in the same petition, or several issues; the plaintiff shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor, and the defendant shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor.

While this section has reference primarily to cases where the petition embraces several causes of action, or where there are several issues joined upon the matters therein alleged, it may still in the same case where the plaintiff recovers upon his demand, and the defendant, in whole or in part upon his counter-claim. Arthur v. Funk, 23 Iowa, 238. See, also, Brink v. Neiweg, 29 Id., 444.

Where there are two issues, one of which is determined in favor of the plaintiff and the other in favor of the defendant, it is proper that the plaintiff should pay the costs on the issue decided against him and that the defendant should pay the costs on the issue decided against him. Porter v. McBride, 44 Id., 479.

Where there are two issues, one of which is determined in favor of the plaintiff and the other in favor of the defendant, it is proper that the plaintiff should pay the costs on the issue decided against him and that the defendant should pay the costs on the issue decided against him. McClatchey v. Finley et al., 62 Id., 200.

Section 2935. [Uncollected costs: party making to pay. ]—All costs accrued at the instance of the successful party which cannot be collected of the other party, may be recovered on motion by the person entitled to them against the successful party.

A party against whom a judgment is rendered is primarily liable for all the costs to the persons entitled thereto, who may have a fee-bill issued therefor; and failing to collect thereon they may by motion require the successful party to pay such of the costs as accrued at his instance. McCon­key v. Chapman, 55 Id., 281.

Section 2936. [What included in. ]—The necessary fees paid by the successful party in procuring copies of deeds, bonds, wills, or other records filed as a part of the testimony, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Section 2937. [Same. ]—Postage paid by the officers of the court, or by the parties in sending process, depositions, and other papers being part of the record, by mail, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Section 2938. [Cost: allowed party who confess matter which arose after action. ]—When a pleading contains a defense stating matter which arose after the commencement of the action, whether such matter of defense be alone or with other matter of defense which arose before the action, the party affected by such matter may confess the same, and thereupon shall be entitled to the costs of the cause as to the party pleading such matter up to the time of such pleading.

Section 2939. [On dismissal of action or death of party. ]—When a plaintiff dismisses the action or any part thereof, or suffers it to abate by death of the defenddant or other cause, or where the suit abates by death of the plaintiff and his representatives fail to revive the same according to law, judgment for costs may be rendered against such plaintiff or representative, and, if against a representative, shall be paid as other claims against the estate.

SEC. 2940. [Between co-parties.]—The co-parties against whom judgment has been recovered, are entitled as between themselves to a taxation of the costs of witnesses whose testimony was obtained at the instance of one of the co-parties, and incurred exclusively to his benefit.

SEC. 2941. [When dismissed for want of jurisdiction.]—Where an action is dismissed from any court for want of jurisdiction, or because it has not been regularly transferred from an inferior to a superior court, the costs shall be adjudged against the party attempting to institute or bring up the cause.

SEC. 2942. The clerk shall tax in favor of the party recovering costs, the allowance of his witnesses, the fees of officers, the compensation of referees, the necessary expenses of taking depositions by commission or otherwise, and any further sum for any other matter which the court may have awarded as costs in the progress of the cause or may deem just to be taxed.

It was held under this section in the revision, prior to the code, that the compensation of a person agreed upon by the parties and appointed by the court to take down the testimony in writing in a civil case, might be properly taxed as part of the costs against the unsuccessful party. Kun­ kle v. The Ind. S. D. of Charles City, 36 Iowa, 99.

SEC. 2943. [When cause of action is assigned.]—In actions in which the cause of action shall, by assignment after the commencement of the action, or in any other manner, become the property of a person not a party to the action, such party shall be liable for the costs in the same manner as if he were a party.

SEC. 2944. [Re-taxation.]—Any person aggrieved by the taxation of a bill of costs, may, upon application, have the same re-taxed by the court, or by a referee appointed by the court in which the application or proceeding was had, and in such re-taxation all errors shall be corrected; and if the party aggrieved shall have paid any unlawful charge by reason of the first taxation, the clerk shall pay the costs of re-taxation, and also to the party aggrieved the amount which he may have paid by reason of the allowing of such unlawful charges.

Where a receipt purporting to “release and discharge the defendant from all actions, causes of action, debts, claims and demands in law or equity up to date,” includes the costs as well as the debt of a judgment before a justice of the peace, in favor of the person making the receipt and against the one to whom it was delivered, was held to be a question of law for the court and not

SEC. 2945. [On appeals to supreme court.]—In cases of appeals from the district or circuit court, the clerk shall make a complete bill of costs, showing the items which shall accompany the record, and a copy of the same shall be placed upon the execution docket of the court below.

SEC. 2946. [Clerk of supreme court: duty of.]—When the costs accrued in the supreme court and the court below are paid to the clerk of the supreme court, he shall pay so much of them as accrued in the court below to the clerk of said court, and take his receipt for the same.

SEC. 2847. [Duty of clerk below.]—On receiving such costs, the clerk of the court below shall charge himself with the money upon his execution docket, and pay it to the persons entitled to the same.

SEC. 2948. [Interest from verdict to be computed.]—When the judgment is for the recovery of money, interest from the time of the verdict or report until judgment be finally entered shall be computed by the clerk and added to the costs of the party entitled thereto.
TITLE XVIII.

OF ATTACHMENTS, EXECUTIONS, AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT.

SECTION 2949. [Property attached.]—The plaintiff in a civil action may cause any property of the defendant which is not exempt from execution to be attached at the commencement or during the progress of the proceeding, by pursuing the course hereinafter prescribed.

Where the petition and bond for an attachment are filed, and the writ issued on the same day, but the original notice dated and delivered to the sheriff the next day thereafter, a motion to quash the writ because issued before the commencement of the action was held properly overruled. Hagan v. Burch, 8 Iowa, 309.

Where the petition which asks an attachment is filed, the action is so far commenced that the writ of attachment may then issue, before the original notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service. Id.

Where the writ is not issued for several days after the filing of the petition asking an attachment, it will not be quashed. Van Winkle v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264; Hagan v. Burch, 8 Id., 309.

The unassigned dower interest of a widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to attachment in an ordinary action at law. Rusch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

A judgment may be levied on and sold under an execution, like any other personal property, but it can be attached by garnishment only. Ochiltree v. M., I. & N. R. Co., 49 Id., 150.

It was held in Baldwin v. J. C. & E. R. Buchanan, 10 Iowa, 277, that a writ of attachment was properly issued in an action to foreclose a mortgage, the petition alleging that the mortgaged property was insufficient security for the amount of the claim, and prayed an attachment for sufficient cause.

In an action against the joint and several makers of a promissory note an attachment may, for sufficient cause alleged, be issued against the property of but one. Chittenden & Co. v. Hobbs, 9 Id., 417; Smith, Tweed & Co. v. Coopers & Clarke, 1 Id., 376.

An attachment may be issued in any civil action, whether by ordinary or equitable proceedings. Curry v. Allen, 55 Id., 318.

SECTION 2950. [Separate petition.]—If it be subsequent to the commencement of the action, a separate petition must be filed, and in all cases the proceedings relative to the attachment are to be deemed independent of the ordinary proceedings and only auxiliary thereto.

If the writ is asked in the original petition, but one petition is required, but there must be a separate petition where the writ is sued out subsequent to the institution of the action. Shopleigh v. Roop, 6 Iowa, 524.

This section applies to cases when the attachment is sought after the commencement of the action. Van Winkle v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 264.

While an attachment proceeding is auxiliary to the principal action, yet it is also of such an independent character within the meaning of the statute, that an appeal will lie from an order dissolving or sustaining the same. Johnson v. Butler, 1 Id., 459.

A change of venue from the county is not allowed in cases appealed from justices courts under sub. 5 of section 2950 as amended by chapter 118, laws of 1878. *Ardery v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co., 65 Id., 723. See, also, Schuchart v. Lammey, 62 Id., 197.

SEC. 2951. [Petition must state.]—The petition which asks an attachment must in all cases be sworn to. It must state:

1. That the defendant is a foreign corporation, or acting as such; or,
2. That he is a non-resident of the state; or,
3. That he is about to remove his property out of the state without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts; or,
4. That he has disposed of his property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
5. That the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
6. That he has absconded, so that the ordinary process cannot be served upon him; or,
7. That he is about to remove permanently out of the county and has property therein not exempt from execution, and that he refuses to pay or secure the plaintiff; or,
8. That he is about to remove permanently out of the state, and refuses to pay or secure the debt due the plaintiff; or,
9. That he is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the county with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
10. That he is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors; or,
11. That he has property or rights in action which he conceals; or,
12. That the debt is due for property obtained under false pretences.

An amendment of a petition which asks an attachment, by annexing copies of the causes of action sued on, will not warrant the dissolution of the attachment. McCarn & Scott v. Rivers, 7 Iowa, 104.

Where, in an action asking an attachment, the affidavit does not show where it was "subscribed and sworn to," it will be presumed to have been in the proper county, and that the failure to set out definitely the county and state where the affidavit was taken cannot materially prejudice the defendant. Snell v. Eckerson, 8 Id., 284.

It was held under the code of 1851 that where an attachment was sued out upon the ground that "the defendant is, in some manner, about to dispose of, or remove his property out of the state, without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts," the affidavit should allege further, that such disposition or removal was with intent to defraud his creditors. Pittman & Bro. v. Searcey, 8 Id., 352; Bowen v. Gelkison, 7 Id., 503; Lockhard v. Eaton, 3 G. Greene, 543.

But under the revision of 1860 it was held that the fraudulent intent need not be alleged, when seeking an attachment on the ground "that the defendant was about to dispose of or remove his property out of the state without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts."

Where affidavit appended to a petition for an attachment stated "that the facts set forth therein asking a writ of attachment, are true," it was held to be equivalent to an averment that the allegations of the petition were true, and that it was sufficient. Sherrell v. Fay, 14 Id., 292.

An allegation in a petition asking an attachment, that "said defendant is in some manner about to dispose of his property without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts, held, insufficient in that it did not allege the removal or disposition BEYOND THE STATE as mentioned in the third clause of this section. Mingus v. McLeod, 25 Id., 452; Bundy v. McKee, 29 Id., 293.

Nor will an amendment, filed after the issuing of the writ stating that the defendant is in some manner about to dispose of his property out of the state, sustain the writ already issued. It should state that the alleged cause existed at the time the action was commenced or the writ issued. Bundy v. McKee, Id.

Where an action was commenced against a non-resident by attachment in B. county, no property of defendant was found or attached in that county, but on another writ issued to P. county real property belonging to the defendant was attached, after which, on motion of defendant the venue was changed to P. county; held, that the lien of the attachment upon the property was valid from the date of levy, and took precedence of an attachment in another action brought in P. county, the attachment therein being issued and levied after the first and prior to the transfer of the cause from B. county. Laird Bros. v. Dickerson, 40 Id., 665.

The allegation that "the defendant is not an inhabitant of the state" is equivalent to the allegation that he is a non-resident, and is sufficient. Wilse v. Stearns, 13 Id., 282.

An affidavit showing cause for an attachment, may be made by plaintiff's attorney. Chittenden & Co. v. Hobbs, 9 Id., 417; Bates v. Robinson, 1 Id., 318.

In an action against the joint and several makers of a promissory note, an attachment may, for sufficient legal cause alleged, be issued against the property of but one defendant. Chittenden v. Hobbs, 9 Id., 417.

When the petition states the amount claimed to be due, a similar averment in the affidavit for the attachment is not necessary. Id.

When the plaintiff states in his petition more than one cause for an attachment they must be stated in the conjunctive and not in the alternative. Stacey & Co. v. Stichton & Co., 9 Id., 399.

An affidavit to the effect that the defendant is in another state, and that he is about to sell or remove his property, is not sufficient to authorize an attachment. The State v. Morris, 50 Id., 203.

Proceedings in attachment cannot be annulled on the ground that the jurat to the affidavit is not signed by the officer administering the oath, if it be shown that the affidavit was, in fact, sworn to before him. Cook v. Jenkins & Co., 30 Id., 452.

An action on a judgment, although recovered for a tort, is founded on contract, and no allowance by a judge is necessary. Weller v. Halves, 26 Id., 87.

An action on a penal bond for a breach thereof is an action founded on contract. Swan v. Smith et al., 29 Id., 70.

A petition in an action on contract asking for an attachment, which fails to state that something is due, and as nearly as practicable, the amount, which must be more than five dollars in order to authorize an attachment.

An action on a judgment, although recovered for a tort, is founded on contract, and no allowance is necessary, as in case of tort. Johnson et al. v. Butler, 2 Iowa, 536.

A claim for damages resulting from the diseased condition of sheep sold under a representation of soundness, is a demand founded on contract. Keely v. Donnelly, 29 Id., 70.

SEC. 2955. [Not on contract: judge to allow.]-If the demand is not founded on contract the original petition must be presented to some judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, who shall make an allowance thereof of the amount in value of the property that may be attached. The provisions of this section apply only to cases in the district and circuit court.

In an action for false representations, the damages being unliquidated, an attachment should not issue until the provisions of this section have been complied with. Gates v. Reynolds, 13 Iowa, 1.

The law regulating the issuing of attachments in cases of torts applies to the circuit courts and the judges thereof as well as to the district courts and judges. Sturman v. Stone, 31 Id., 115.

In an action to recover value of certain wheat, the petition, which asked an attachment, alleged that the plaintiff had deposited the wheat for storage with the defendant under a special contract by which the defendant agreed to deliver the wheat to plaintiff on demand; and further alleged that plaintiff demanded the wheat of defendants; that they had before such demand sold and shipped the same without authority; that they could not and did not deliver the same to plaintiff, and refused to pay therefor; it was held, that the action was founded on contract and not upon tort, and that no order of allowance by a judge of the amount to be attached was necessary. McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 169.

The order of allowance in attachments for torts must be made by a judge of one of the courts named in the statute in his individual capacity, and not by the court. Sherrill v. Fay, 14 Id., 292.

An action to recover the penalty prescribed for the violation of a city ordinance is not an action ex delicto, but rather ex contractu, and is not governed by this section, wherein an allowance of the amount to be attached must be made. The Town of Decorah v. Dunstan Bros., 34 Id., 390.

An action for damages resulting from the diseased condition of sheep represented to be sound, is a demand founded upon contract, and does not require an order of allowance by a judge of the amount in value of property to be attached. Sean v. Smith, 26 Id., 87.

Where an attachment has been issued and levied, in an action for tort, without an order of allowance having first been made by a judge, the defect may be cured, under section 3021, by an allowance made by the court after the filing of a motion to quash. And it is not a valid objection that the allowance is made by the court instead of the judge. Magoon v. Gillett, 54 Id., 54.

FOR DEBTS NOT DUE.

SEC. 2956. (As amended by ch. 29, 21st g. a.) [What petition must state.]—The property of a debtor may be attached previous to the time when the debt becomes due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness, and when the petition, in addition to that fact, states:
1. That the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
2. That he is about to remove [or has removed] from the state and refuses to make any arrangements for securing the payment of the debt when it falls due, and which [removal or ] contemplated removal was not known to the plaintiff at the time the debt was contracted; or,
3. That the defendant has disposed of his property in whole or in part with intent to defraud his creditors; or,
4. That the debt was incurred for property obtained under false pretences.

The allegation in the petition of refusal to secure the debt applies alone to the second subdivision of this section. Dunforth, Davis & Co. v. Carter & May, 1 Iowa, 546.

Where the plaintiff, in commencing his action, brings himself within the provisions of the statute providing for commencing attachment suits previous to the maturity of the debt, in certain cases, the defendant cannot plead as a defense that the debt was not due when the action was commenced. Churchill v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 45.

An attachment may be issued in an action on a claim before it is due, only when one or more of the causes defined by the statute providing for attachments in such cases, are alleged in the petition. Stacy & Thomas v. Stickson & Co., 9 Id., 399.

Where a petition asking an attachment stated, as a cause of action, the indebtedness of the defendant for the purchase money of certain lands, under a contract which was not then matured, and after it became mature, the plaintiff filed an amended petition claiming damages for a breach of contract on the part of defendant, it was held: 1. That by the filing of an amended petition which was inconsistent with the original petition upon which the writ of attachment issued, the plaintiff would be deemed to have waived his original cause of action; 2. That by this abandonment of the cause of action first alleged, it is to be presumed that it did not exist when the attachment was sued out. Young v. Broadbent, 23 Id., 539.

The existence of an indebtedness is an essential prerequisite to the issuance of the writ and if no indebtedness exists the writ cannot be rightfully sued out. Id.

A surety on a promissory note cannot maintain an action or attachment proceeding against his principal until the maturity of the note and payment thereof by him. Payment by him after the commencement of the action is not sufficient. Dennison v. Soper, 33 Id., 183.

An action may be properly commenced on notes given for rent, before they are due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness, and it is alleged in the petition that the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors. Brace v. Brady, 36 Id., 352.

An attachment may issue on an unmatured debt when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness. Bacon v. Marshall, 37 Id., 581.

SEC. 2957. [When to plead in such case.]—If the debt or demand on which the attachment suit is brought is not due at the time of the service of the attachment, the defendant is not required to file any pleadings until the maturity of such debt or demand; but he may, in his discretion, do so and go to trial as early as the cause is reached.

SEC. 2958. [Judgment in.]—And no final judgment shall be rendered upon such attachment unless the party consents as in the last section, until the debt or demand upon which it is based becomes due. But property of perishable nature may be sold as in other attachment cases.

BOND.

SEC. 2959. [Must be first given: amount.]—In all cases before it can be issued, the plaintiff must file with the clerk a bond for the use of the defendant, with sureties to be approved by such clerk, in a penalty at least double the value of the property sought to be attached, and in no case less than two hundred and fifty dollars in a court of record, nor less than fifty dollars if in a justice's court, conditioned that the plaintiff will pay all damages which the defendant may sustain by reason of the wrongful suing out of the attachment.

An attachment bond with but one surety is not for that reason defective. The word "sureties" in this section may be construed as either singular or plural. Elliott v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 10 Iowa, 418.

Where a bond for an attachment is signed by the principal and sureties in their partnership names, it is sufficient. Danforth, Davis & Co. v. Carter & May, 1 Id., 546; Churchill v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 45.

The penalty of the bond should be double the amount of the value of the property which the sheriff may attach, and not double the amount claimed in the petition to be due. Id. To the same effect are Van Winkle v. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 294; Hamile et al. v. Phenice, Id., 525; Hamble v. Owens, 20 Id., 70. It should not be less than three times the amount claimed in the petition to be due. Hamble v. Owens, 20 Id., 70.

When the penalty of the bond for an attachment is less than the amount required it may be enlarged by the parties to it, or a new and sufficient bond may be filed. Van Winkle v. Stevens & Co., 9 Id., 294; Churchill v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 47.

Where a new bond is substituted for the one filed at the commencement of the action, it takes the place of the original one, and is to be treated as if filed at the commencement of the action, so far as the defendant's claim for damages under it is concerned. Branch of St. Bank v. Morris, 192 Id., 196.

A new bond may be filed after the cause has been reversed by the appellate court, because the bond was not in sufficient amount. Hamble v. Owen, 20 Id., 70.

A misnomer in the bond of the county in which the action is pending, may be cured by filing a new bond. Holmes & Avery v. Budd, 11 Id., 196.

The deputy clerk has authority to approve the bond and sureties for an attachment. Finn & Co. v. Rose et al., 12 Id., 565.

An attachment bond may be executed in the name of the plaintiff by his attorneys, as well as by himself, and the bond will be good, even if not signed by the plaintiff at all, if otherwise sufficient. Pilkins v. Boyd, 4 G. Greene, 255.

The bond required by this section must be given before the attachment can issue. Mason v. Rice, 66 Iowa, 178.
SEC. 2960. [Additional security.]-The defendant may, at any time before judgment, move the court or judge for additional security on the part of the plaintiff, and if, on such motion, the court or judge is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from this state, or is not sufficient, the attachment may be vacated and restitution directed of any property taken under it, unless, in a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court or judge, security is given by the plaintiff.

The defendant is not limited to a motion for a new bond where that filed is not in sufficient amount, but he may move to dissolve the attachment. Humble v. Oseen, 20 Iowa, 70.

SEC. 2961. [Action on or by way of counter-claim.]-In an action on such bond, the plaintiff therein may recover if he shows that the attachment was wrongfully sued out, and that there was no reasonable cause to believe the ground upon which the same was issued to be true, the actual damages sustained and reasonable attorney's fees, to be fixed by the court; and if it is shown such attachment was sued out maliciously, he may recover exemplary damages, nor need he wait until the principal suit is determined before suing on the bond.

In an action on the attachment bond the plaintiff must allege in his petition, and prove on the trial, that the defendant in suing out the attachment, had no reasonable grounds for believing the facts stated and sworn to in his petition as grounds for the attachment. It is not sufficient to allege generally that the writ was wrongfully sued out. Burton v. Knapp, 14 Iowa, 196; following Winchester v. Cox, 4 G. Greene, 121; Mahake v. Damon & Co., 3 Iowa, 107; Raeer v. Webster, 13 Idaho, 303.

In an action on an attachment bond the plaintiff must allege and prove the breach of its conditions. He must allege the non-payment of the damages which he alleges he has sustained by the wrongful suing out of the writ. Horrson v. Harrison, 37 Id., 372; Ryder v. Thomas, 32 Id., 56.

When an attachment is wrongfully sued out, the right of action on the bond accrues as soon as the attachment defendant is disturbed in the possession of his property by the levy of the writ. Campbell v. Chamberlain, 10 Id., 337.

In such action the measure of damages is all such losses and expenses incurred in defending the attachment proceedings, losses sustained by being deprived of the use of property attached, and for injuries thereto, by its depreciation in value or entire loss. Id.

But injuries to credit, character, or business, are too remote and speculative to be considered in assessing damages sustained by the wrongful suing out of an attachment. Id.

Where the suing out of the attachment was willfully wrong, exemplary damages may be recovered. Id.

Where, in an action on an attachment bond, the suing out of the writ was not willful and malicious, the damages recoverable are confined to actual compensation for the wrong done, and restricted to its immediate consequences. Plumb v. Woodmansee, 34 Id., 116.

In an action on the attachment bond the defendant may show in defense, either that he had good cause to believe the grounds stated for the writ to be true, or that they were true in fact. If true in fact, it would constitute a good defense, though at the time of suing out the writ he had no sufficient knowledge to constitute reasonable ground for believing them true. Vorse v. Phillips, 37 Id., 428.

The plaintiff cannot recover, as part of his damages, attorney's fees for prosecuting the action on the attachment bond. Id.

Nor can he recover attorney's fees incurred in defending the same against the attachment suit, in the absence of an allegation of a general claim for damages, or a special averment of the particular item. Id.

Where the jury found specially that the defendant was entitled to damages for the wrongful suing out of an attachment, and that the plaintiff's claim was not yet due, a judgment for the amount of damages found, not diminished by the amount of plaintiff's claim, was held, correct. Watherell v. Sprigley, 43 Id., 41.

In the absence of malice, an action for the wrongful suing out of an attachment can be maintained only on the attachment bond. In order to maintain an action independently of the statute, and not on the bond, malice in suing out the writ must be averred. Tallant v. The B. G. L. Co., 36 Id., 262.

Where in an action to recover damages on an attachment bond the jury found a general verdict in favor of the plaintiff, it was held that such verdict authorized a further sum as attorney's fees by the court, the finding of the same facts being necessary under section 2961 of the code to sustain the verdict and to authorize such allowance. Noekols v. Eggspieler, 53 Id., 730.

Where the plaintiff in the principal action recovers less than five dollars, the judgment determines that the writ was wrongfully sued out, and the defendant may recover in an action on the bond all actual damages sustained by him; but such judgment without other evidence does not prove that the suit out of the writ was willfully wrong. Goddc v. Lord & Jewett, 10 Id., 141.

Damages are recoverable in an attachment bond, only in the event of the suit being wrongfully sued out, and this is not to be inferred from a voluntary dismissal of the action. Nockles v. Eggspieier, 47 Id., 400.

Whether or not in such case the plaintiff is entitled to nominal damages is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

Attorney's fees, under this section, may be regarded as part of the costs, and the provision authorizing the court to fix the amount of attorney's fees for defending against an attachment wrongfully sued out is within the scope of legislative authority. Weller v. Hawes, 49 Id., 45.

Where in an action on the bond the issue is the wrongful suing out of the attachment, based upon the alleged sale of property to defraud creditors, the testimony of the attachment defendant respecting the intent with which he disposed of his property, is not admissible. The true question in such case, is, had the defendant so conducted himself as to give the plaintiff reasonable grounds to believe his intent was fraudulent. Letz & Co. v. Belden, 48 Id., 451.

Damages are recoverable in an action on an attachment bond only in the event that the attachment was wrongfully sued out, and this is not to be inferred from the voluntary dismissal of the suit. Nockles v. Eggspieier, 47 Id., 400.

Whether or not plaintiff is entitled to recover in such a case, even nominal damages, is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

Under this section a defendant in attachment, where the writ is wrongfully sued out, is not entitled to recover attorney's fees for defending the whole case, but only the reasonable fee of his attorneys for other services in the auxiliary proceedings. Porter et al., Admin'rs. v. Knight, 63 Id., 366.

MODE OF ATTACHMENT.

Sec. 2962. [To whom directed.]-The clerk shall issue an attachment, directing the sheriff of the county therein named to attach the property of the defendant to the requisite amount therein stated.

Where a writ of attachment is issued under the seal of one court, while the action is pending in another, it is competent to amend the writ by attaching the proper seal, and a motion to quash the writ will not lie for this cause. Murdough v. McPerrin, 49 Id., 479.

It is not necessary in a writ of attachment to recite the cause for issuing the writ set out in the petition. Wadsworth & Wells v. Cheeney & Stimson, 13 Id., 576; Hays et al. v. Gorby, 3 Id., 203.

Nor need a writ of attachment recite that a bond has been filed. Ellsworth v. Moore, 5 Id., 486; Hays et al. v. Gorby, 3 Id., 203.

It is not necessary to the validity of a writ of attachment that it contain a direction to the sheriff to make return thereof by the first day of the next term of court, and a motion to quash the writ will not lie for this cause. Westphal, Hinds & Co. v. Sherwood & Chapman, 69 Id., 364; see, also, Wadsworth v. Cheeney, 13 Id., 276; Hays v. Gorby, 3 Id., 203.

Sec. 2963. [More than one attachment may issue and to several counties at same time.]-Attachments may be issued from courts of record to different counties, and several may, at the option of the plaintiff, be issued at the same time, or in succession and subsequently, until sufficient property has been attached; but only those executed shall be taxed in the costs, unless otherwise ordered by the court, and if more property is attached in the aggregate than the plaintiff is entitled to have held, the surplus must be abandoned and the plaintiff pay all costs incurred in relation to such surplus.

Sec. 2964. [Property attached: officer's duty.]-The sheriff shall in all cases attach the amount of property directed if sufficient, not exempt from execution, found in his county, giving that in which the defendant has a legal and unquestionable title a preference over that in which his title is doubtful or only equitable.

Sec. 2965. Where there are several attachments against the same defendant, they shall be executed in the order in which they were received by the sheriff.

Sec. 2966. [May follow to another county: when.]-If, after an attachment has been placed in the hands of the sheriff, any property of the defendant is moved from the county, the sheriff may pursue and attach the same in an adjoining county within twenty-four hours after removal.
In respect to the authority of the sheriff to follow property removed from his county and attach it in an adjoining county under this section, it is immaterial when the defendant removed from the county. The sheriff may levy on the property removed within twenty-four hours after its removal into an adjoining county. Budd v. Duval et al., 36 Iowa, 315, 318.

Sec. 2967. [What may be attached and how done.]—Stock or interest owned by the defendant in any company, and also debts due him, or property of his held by third persons, may be attached, and the mode of attachment must be as follows:

1. By giving the defendant in the action, if found within the county, and also the person occupying or in possession of the property, if it be in the hands of a third person, notice of attachment;
2. If the property is capable of manual delivery, the sheriff must take it into his custody if it can be found;
3. Stock in a company is attached by notifying the president or other head of the company, or the secretary, cashier, or other managing agent thereof, of the fact that the stock has been so attached;
4. Debts due the defendant, or property of his held by third persons and which cannot be found, or the title to which is doubtful, are attacked by garnishment thereof.

In a proceeding of attachment by garnishment, notice of the process to the defendant in the principal action is not necessary as in attachment of property, under section 2967. Phillips v. Germon, 43 Iowa, 101.

In order to constitute a valid levy of an attachment, the officer must do such acts as that without the protection of his writ, he would be a trespasser. Allen v. McGettiga, 25 Id., 464. The officer should do that which will amount to a change of possession, or something that will be equivalent to a claim of dominion, coupled with a power to exercise it. Crawford v. Newell, 23 Id., 453.

In order to make a valid levy on personal property, the sheriff must take, or have it within his power or control, or at least within his view, and if, having, it so, he makes a levy upon it, it will be good if followed up afterward within a reasonable time, by his taking possession in such a manner as to apprise everybody of the fact of its having been levied upon. And he may do this by placing it in the possession or under the control of another person for him; but it is not a valid levy where the sheriff leaves the property in the possession and custody of the defendant. Kingsbury v. Buchanan, 11 Id., 387, 397.

A judgment can be attached only by garnishment. Ochiltree v. The M., I. & N. R. Co., 49 Id., 150.

In order to perfect a levy of an attachment upon lands in possession of defendant, it is necessary to notify the defendant thereof, and make return of the writ; and a return is not made until signed by the officer. First Nat'l B'k of Newton v. Jasper County, 71 Id., 486.

Sec. 2968. [Defendant examined on oath before judge.]—Whenever it appears by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or by the return of the attachment, that no property is known to the plaintiff or the officer on which the attachment can be executed, or not enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and, it being shown to the judge of any court by affidavit, that the defendant has property within the state not exempt, the defendant may be required by such judge to attend before him, or before the court in which the action is pending, and give information on oath respecting his property.

Sec. 2969. [Property bound.]—Property attached otherwise than by garnishment, is bound thereby from the time of the service of the attachment only. The levy of an attachment upon property creates a real lien, which can be divested only by a dissolution of the attachment; and while the legislature may suspend the sale of property thus levied upon, it cannot discharge the lien absolutely. Hannahs v. Felt, 15 Iowa, 141; Day v. Griffith, 1d., 104; Norton v. Williams, 9 Id., 528.

The rule recognized in some of the states, that the death of a defendant, whose personal property has been attached, dissolves the attachment and passes the property to the administrator for distribution among the creditors, does not prevail in this state. Lord v. Allen, 34 Id., 291.

An attachment lien is not superior to a prior unrecorded deed or mortgage of real property. Norton v. Williams, 9 Id., 528; Savery v. Browning, 13 Id., 246.

But an attachment of personal property takes precedence to a chattel mortgage on the same property executed and recorded by the mortgagor without the knowledge or consent of the mortgagor. Day v. Griffith, 15 Id., 104.
A levy of an attachment upon property effected by fraud or violence of the officer or his employe, is unlawful and creates no lien upon the property seized. Pomeroy & Co. v. Parmlee, 9 Id., 140; Patterson v. Pratt, 19 Id., 353.

Where the sheriff seizes property beyond the limits of his own county, under a writ of attachment issued from the court in his county, and carries it back into his own county where he makes a formal levy thereon under the writ in his possession, such levy is illegal and creates no lien, and the property should be discharged. Id. See also, Parmlee v. Leonard, Id., 131.

In an action against one who is the owner of stock in a corporation the secretary of such corporation was attached as garnishee, the notice being directed to him as an individual, requiring him not to pay any debt due by him to the defendant stockholder, it was held, that the process gave to the plaintiff no lien upon the defendant’s stock, even though the secretary understood that the attachment was a valid one and acted in pursuance of that understanding. Moror v. Walker et al., 46 Id., 164.

An attaching creditor cannot acquire through his attachment any higher or better right to the property or assets attached than the defendant had when the attachment was levied, unless he can show some fraud or collusion by which his rights have been impaired. Thomas v. Hillhouse, 17 Id., 67.

A defendant in attachment who is called before a judge to discover his property under section 2968, may, under section 349, be punished for contempt in refusing to answer proper questions. The power to punish such contempt is not confined to the courts. Lutz v. Aylesworth, 66 Id., 629.

SEC. 2970. [Receiver appointed.]—The court before whom the action is pending, or the judge thereof in vacation, may at any time, appoint a receiver to take possession of property attached under the provisions of this chapter, and to collect, manage and control the same, and pay over the proceeds according to the nature of the property and the exigency of the case.

This section conferring upon the court or judge, in a law action, the power to appoint a receiver of attached property, does not authorize the appointment of a receiver without a showing of acts rendering the exercise of the power necessary or proper. Silverman v. Kuhn et al., 53 Iowa, 436.

SEC. 2971. [Pay to clerk.]—All money attached by the sheriff, or coming into his hands by virtue of the attachment, shall forthwith be paid over to the clerk to be by him retained till the further action of the court.

SEC. 2972. [Other property.]—The sheriff shall make such disposition of other attached property as may be directed by the court or judge, and where there is no direction upon the subject he shall safely keep the property subject to the order of the court.

SHERIFFS' INDEMNITY.

An Act to indemnify sheriffs in the service of writs of attachment. [Amendatory of code, chapter 1, title XVIII.]

SECTION 1. [Levy of attachment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: An officer is bound to levy an attachment on any personal property in the possession of, or that he has reason to believe belongs to, the defendant, or on which the plaintiff directs him to levy. But if after such levy he shall receive notice in writing under oath from some other person, his agent or attorney, that such property belongs to him, and stating the nature of his interest and the fact showing how he acquired such interest and for what consideration, such officer may release the property unless a bond is given as provided in the next section. But such officer shall be protected from all liability by reason of such levy until he receives such written notice.

SEC. 2. [Notice: indemnifying bond.]—When the officer receives such notice, he may forthwith give the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, notice that an indemnifying bond is required. Bond may thereupon be given by or for the plaintiff, with one or more sureties, to be approved by the officer to the effect that the obligors will protect and indemnify him against the damages which he may sustain in consequence of the seizure and sale, and warrant to any purchaser of the property such estate or interest therein as is sold, and thereupon the officer shall proceed to subject the property to the attachment, and shall return the bond aforesaid to the district or circuit court of the county in which the levy is made.

SEC. 3. [Proceedings where bond is not given.]—If such bond is not given, the officer holding the attachment may, within a reasonable time after demand being made by said officer, restore the property to the person from whose possession it was taken, and the levy shall stand discharged.

SEC. 4. The provisions of the foregoing sections shall apply to attachments issued by justices of the peace, and such bonds shall be returned to the justice issuing said writ.

SEC. 5. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved March 22, 1884.

Since this chapter does not deprive a person whose property is seized under a writ of attachment against another of his right of action on account thereof, but only requires that such person shall give written notice to the officer of his ownership of the property, as a condition precedent to his right of action, the statute does not authorize the taking of property without due process of law, and is not unconstitutional on that ground. Chandlee & Zangs v. Guittar, 65 Iowa, 683.

Where a third party claiming attached property gives notice to the sheriff, stating that he claims it by virtue of a mortgage giving its date, and that the mortgage was given to secure certain promissory notes given by the mortgagor, this is sufficient, without stating the consideration of the notes. Crawford, Trustee, v. Nolan, 70 Id., 97.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

SEC. 2973. [Inventory and appraisement.]—In executing an attachment against a person who owns property jointly or in common with another, or who is a member of a partnership, the officer may take possession of such property so owned jointly, in common, or in partnership, sufficiently to enable him to inventory and appraise the same, and for that purpose shall call to his assistance three disinterested persons; which inventory and appraisement shall be returned by the officer with the attachment, and such return shall state who claims to own such property.

The creditor of one partner may levy upon the interest of his debtor in partnership property; but the creditors of the firm are entitled to be first satisfied from the partnership funds and property, and the separate creditors from the individual funds and property. Hubbard v. Curtis, 8 Iowa, 1. See also, Richards, Crambaugh & Shaw v. Haines, 30 Id., 574; Switzer v. Smith, 35 Id., 269; Cox v. Russell, 44 Id., 556, 560.

The preference which the law gives the creditors of the partnership to be first satisfied out of the firm property, will be protected in proceedings by garnishment by firm and individual creditors. Switzer v. Smith, 35 Id., 269.

SEC. 2974. [Lien of plaintiff enforced by equitable proceedings.]—The plaintiff shall, from the time such property is taken possession of by the officer, have a lien on the interest of the defendant therein, and may, either before or after he obtains judgment in the action in which the attachment issued, commence an action by equitable proceedings to ascertain the nature and extent of such interest and to enforce the lien; and, if deemed necessary or proper, the court or judge may appoint a receiver under the circumstances and conditions provided in chapter twelve, of title seventeen.

By levy and execution on partnership property in an action against a partner, the creditor simply acquires a lien upon the defendant's interest, the extent of which must be determined by equitable proceedings. Cox v. Russell, 44 Id., 556; Richards, Crambaugh & Shaw v. Haines, 30 Id., 574.
GARNISHMENT.

SEC. 2975. (As amended by ch. 58, 18th g. a.) [How affected.]—The attachment by garnishment is effected by informing the supposed debtor or person holding the property, that he is attached as garnishee, and by leaving with him a written notice to the effect that he is required not to pay any debt due by him to the defendant or thereafter to become due, and that he must retain possession of all property of the said defendant then, or thereafter, being in his custody or under his control, in order that the same may be dealt with according to law, and the sheriff shall summon such persons as garnishees as the plaintiff may direct. [But no judgment shall be entered in any garnishment proceedings condemning the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee until the principal defendant shall have had ten days notice of such proceedings. If the case is pending in the district or circuit court the notice shall be served in the same manner as original notices are required to be served. If the case is pending before a justice of the peace, the defendant shall have at least five days personal notice of such proceeding, if he be a resident of the county; otherwise service of such notice may be made by posting the same in three public places in the township, in the manner provided by sections 3609 and 3610 of the code. The fact that the defendant is not a resident of the county may be shown by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or his attorney, filed with the justice before such notices are posted.]

A notice of garnishment directed to the mayor, recorder and treasurer of an incorporated city by their individual names and name of office respectively, informing them that they and each of them were “attached and held as garnishees, as a debtor and as a person holding property of” the defendant: Held, that the notice did not give the court jurisdiction of the city as garnishee.

Claffin v. Iowa City, Garnishee, 12 Iowa, 254.

Where by the terms of a policy of fire insurance the same became forfeited and void by a change of occupancy and increase of hazard, the company was held not liable to be garnished as a debtor of the policy holder, there being no legal indebtedness on the part of the company. Victor v. The Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 Id., 210.

A garnishee occupies the relation of defendant to the principal action, and, like the defendant therein, may take a change of venue. When either the plaintiff or the defendant has taken a change of venue, in which the garnishee has not joined, the case will proceed as to him in the court where it was commenced. Westphel, Hinds & Co. v. Clark, 42 Id., 371.

In proceedings by garnishment, notice to the defendant in the principal action of the proceeding is not necessary. Phillips v. German, 43 Id., 101.

And the garnishment process may be served before the original notice is served on the defendant. Id.

A debt which is not in existence at the time of garnishment is not a debt “to become due,” in the contemplation of this section, hence wages earned after the service of garnishment process are not held thereby. Thomas v. Gibbons, 61 Id., 50.

The notice required by this section to be served on the principal defendant in garnishment cases must be served ten days before the trial of the issue in the case; or, if there be no issue, ten days before judgment is rendered against the garnishee. This notice is essential to the jurisdiction of the court to render such judgment, and where judgment was rendered without such notice it was proper for the court to make an order setting it aside as premature, and to continue the cause for such proceedings as either party might be advised to pursue. Williams v. Williams, 61 Id., 612.

A mortgagee of personal property which has never come into his possession is not bound, after being garnished by an attaching creditor of the mortgagor, to take possession of the property for the benefit of such creditor, and cannot, in the absence of fraud or collusion, be held liable for the same, though it exceeded in value the mortgage debt. Curtis v. Raymond Bros. & Co., 29 Id., 52.

Without a writ of attachment, the sheriff has no authority to notify an individual that he is attached as garnishee, nor to take his answers to the interrogatories specified in section 2980 of the code. Vanfossen v. Anderson, 8 Id., 251.

It is not necessary that one should have the independent possession of the property of another coupled with the right to maintain the custody and control of it, to render it subject to garnishment in his hands. Although he may act under the order of another who has the disposition of the property, yet he may be still liable as a garnishee in an action against their common employer. The First N't B'k of Davenport v. The Davenport & S. P. R. Co., 45 Id., 120.
A prior settlement between the defendant in the main action and the garnishee, by which the indebtedness of the latter to the former is extinguished, avoids any liability of the garnishee upon a judgment against the defendant. His liability as garnishee is measured by his indebtedness to the defendant at the time of the garnishment. Huntington v. Risdon, 43 Id., 517.

Where one is sued in attachment and brought into court by proper notice, and the attachment is served upon the supposed debtor by process of garnishment, no valid judgment can be rendered against the garnishee unless notice of the garnishment has also been served on the principal defendant as required by this section as amended by chapter 58 laws of 1860. The original notice does not avail for the purpose of the garnishment. Wise v. Rothschild Bros., 67 Id., 84.

A mortgagee of chattels, when garnished in an action against the mortgagor, cannot be charged in a money judgment for the excess in value of the chattels over the secured debt, when he does not have the chattels in possession. Fountain Bros. v. Smith, garnishee, 70 Id., 252.

In order that a garnishee may be held for property of the debtor, he must have the property in his possession and a mere right of possession, so that he can surrender it if the court so orders, in exonerate of his liability as garnishee. Smalley v. Miller, 71 Id., 90.

Sec. 2976. [Sheriff garnished for money in his hands.]—A sheriff or constable may be garnished for money of the defendant in his hands. So may a judgment debtor of the defendant when the judgment has not been previously assigned on the record, or by writing filed in the office of the clerk and by him minuted as an assignment on the margin of the judgment docket, and also an executor for money due from the decedent to the defendant may be garnished, but a municipal or political corporation shall not be garnished.

The objection that the garnishee is exempt from the process of garnishment is a privilege which he alone can assert. Wales & Son v. City of Muscatine, 4 Iowa, 302.

And such garnishee may waive the privilege. Clapp v. Walker, 25 Id., 315.

Prior to the revision of 1860, a municipal corporation was liable to be garnished. Id. See also, Taylor v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 5 Id., 114.

Under the statute, money belonging to a debtor, and in possession of a court or officer, may be attached by garnishment. Patterson v. Pratt, 19 Id., 355.

But property in the hands of a receiver cannot be seized on execution. Martin v. Davis, 21 Id., 535.

The rule that municipal corporations cannot be garnished is not limited to cases where it would interfere with the discharge of corporate duties, but is universal in its application, and the objection may be made at the time or before the answer is filed. Jenks v. Osceola Tp., 45 Id., 554.

The judgment debtor in an action in the district court cannot be attached as garnishee, and subjected to a judgment in a garnishment proceeding in the circuit court. McGuier v. Pitts, 42 Id., 555.

The garnishment of a judgment debtor, under this section, does not affect the rights of claimants, but simply the liability of the garnishee. Howe & Co. v. Jones, 57 Id., 139.

A county is not liable to be attached as a garnishee, and it is doubtful whether it waives such exemption by bringing an action in relation to the garnished fund and making the garnishees parties thereto. County of Des Moines v. Hinckley & Norris, 62 Id., 637.

A railroad or other private corporation, may be garnished, but a municipal corporation is not thus liable. Clapp v. Walker et al., 29 Id., 355. See also, Caldwell v. Stewart, 50 Id., 579.

The guest of an inn-keeper may be garnished in an action by a creditor against the inn-keeper. It seems that municipal or political corporations are the only exceptions to the operation of the statutes as to who may be garnished. Caldwell v. Stewart, 50 Id., 379.

A trustee may be garnished for the surplus money arising from a sale under a trust deed, and such surplus applied to satisfy the debt of the person entitled to such surplus. Cook & Sargent v. Dillon, 9 Id., 497.

A mortgagee of chattels may be attached as a garnishee, and required to answer as to the amount of his claim yet unpaid, the amount and value of the property, and he may be held responsible for the sale and disposition of the property over and above the payment of his own claim. Torbert v. Hayden, 11 Id., 455; Campbell v. Leonard, 1d., 489; Jessup v. Bridge et al., 1d., 572.

Where mortgaged chattels have been seized by the sheriff, to be sold under the mortgage, the balance of the proceeds, after satisfying the mortgage, is the property of the mortgagee, and in an action against him is subject to be garnished by the service of process upon the sheriff. Hoffman v. Wetherell, 42 Id., 89.

The holders of certain notes and accounts which has been assigned to them for collection, and the proceeds to be by them applied on certain specified debts of the assignor, were held not subject to garnishment by other creditors of the assignor. Van Winkle v. The Iowa Iron & Steel Fence Co., 56 Id., 245.
SEC. 2977. [Fund in court.]—Where the property to be attached is a fund in court, the execution of a writ of attachment shall be by leaving with the clerk of the court a copy thereof, with notice, specifying the fund.

Under this and the preceding section, money, belonging to a debtor and in the possession of a court or officer, may be attached. Patterson v. Pratt, 19 Iowa, 352.

But property in the hands of a receiver appointed by the court is not legally liable to seizure by an officer under an execution. Martin & Bro. v. Davis & Co., 21 Id., 555. In order to secure the recognition and enforcement of the right of a creditor in such property application must be made to the court by petition or motion.

SEC. 2978. [Death of garnishee.]—If the garnishee die after he has been summoned by garnishment and pending the litigation, the proceeding may be revived by or against his heirs or legal representatives.

SEC. 2979. [When garnishee to appear at court.]— Unless exempted as provided in the next section, the notice must also require the garnishee to appear on the first day of the next term of the court wherein the main cause is pending, or on the day fixed for trial if in a justice's court, and answer such interrogatories as may be then propounded to him, or that he will be liable to pay the entire judgment which the plaintiff eventually obtains against the defendant.

A garnishee is not compelled to appear and answer unless he is paid the fees and mileage to which a witness would be entitled, when demanded. Westphal v. Clark, 42 Iowa, 371.

But the Garnishee is not discharged from the obligation to retain in his possession all the property of the defendant under his control, and to withhold payment of any money due him, by reason of a failure to pay his fees. Id.

If the fees were not paid or tendered at the first summons, they may be subsequently paid or tendered and the attendance of the garnishee secured. Id.

The plaintiff has the option to direct the sheriff to take the answer of the garnishee, or to require his attendance in the court where the principal action is pending, without regard to the distance of the latter place from the place of notice. Id.

Where A. obtains a judgment against K. which on the same day he assigned to M., P. having a judgment against A. garnished K. who appeared and acknowledged his indebtedness on the judgment obtained by A. No notice of the assignment of the judgment had been given. Held, that K. could not be compelled to pay M., the assignee, while the judgment in the garnishment proceeding remained in force. McGuire v. Pitts, 42 Id., 555.

The rights of the plaintiff in the garnishment proceeding are not affected by the failure to give notice of the prior assignment, since in any event he could only attach the interest of A. which had already passed by the assignment. Id.

In Brainard v. Simmone, 58 Id., 464, it was held that the answer of a garnishee to interrogatories propounded to him cannot be regarded as a pleading, and must be preserved in a bill of exceptions to become a matter of record. Rovnbeck, J., dissenting.

This section provides that the notice served on the garnishee requiring him to appear at court and answer interrogatories, shall require such appearance on the first day of the next term of the court, and that where the notice requires him to appear at any other time the court acquires no jurisdiction by means of such service. Paddon v. Moore, Id., 703.

The provisions of sections 2979 and 2980, requiring a garnishee to appear in court and answer interrogatories, are not in the nature of the case, applicable to a corporation aggregate; and it is, therefore, competent for such corporation to answer in writing through some officer or agent authorized to do so, and cognizant of the facts. Bailey v. The U. P. Ry. Co. Garnishee, 62 Id., 354.

[Why could not such officer appear in court and answer interrogatories as well as to make and file a written statement; the former is no more of a personal act than the latter. Ed.]

SEC. 2980. [Sheriff may take answers of garnishee.]—When the plaintiff, in writing, directs the sheriff to take answer of the garnishee, the sheriff shall put to the garnishee the following questions:

1. Are you in any manner indebted to the defendant in this suit or do you owe him money or property which is not yet due? If so, state the particulars;

2. Have you in your possession or under your control, any property, rights or credits of the said defendant? If so, what is the value of the same, and state all particulars;

3. Do you know of any debts owing to the said defendant, whether due or not due, or any property, rights or credits belonging to him and now in the possession
 Where M. was employed in Iowa by the defendant, a corporation operating a railroad in both Iowa and Missouri, a judgment was rendered against him in the latter state by a court having jurisdiction, and wages due him from defendant were garnished, notwithstanding they were exempt under the laws of Iowa; held, that the garnishee was not bound to interpose such exemption as a defense, and that the judgment rendered against the garnishee could not be attacked in a collateral proceeding, for the purpose of again holding the defendant liable to M. Moore v. The C. R. I. & P. R'y Co., 43 Iowa, 385.

A garnishee is not a party to an action in the sense that he is required to make defense for either of the parties, between whom he is presumed to be indifferent as to the merits of the case. Id.

If a partner is garnished in an action against his co-partner, he has a right to deduct from the amount he may owe the latter any liability which he would have a right to claim against the co-partner in a settlement with him. Coz v. Russell, 44 Iowa, 556.

The provision of sections 2979 and 2980, requiring a garnishee to appear in court and answer interrogatories, cannot, in the nature of the case, apply to a corporation aggregate; and it is, therefore, competent for such corporation to answer in writing or through some officer or agent authorized to do so, cognizant of the facts. Bailey v. U. P. R'y Co., Garnishee, 62 Iowa, 354.

SEC. 2981. [When garnishee refuses to answer.]—If the garnishee refuses to answer fully and unequivocally all the foregoing interrogatories, he shall be notified to appear and answer on the first day of the next term of court, or on the day fixed for trial as above provided, and so he may be required in any event, if the plaintiff so notify him.

SEC. 2982. [Examination in court.]—The questions propounded to the garnishee in court, may be such as are above prescribed to be asked by the sheriff, and such others as the court may think proper and right.

Under the provisions of this section the plaintiff in garnishment has not the absolute right to examine the garnishee under oath before the court, or before a commissioner to be appointed by the court, without let or hindrance as to the pertinency of the examination; but it is within the power of the court to require that written interrogatories shall be filed, the competency of which shall be passed upon by the court before being answered by the garnishee. Elwood & Co. v. Crowley, garnishee, 64 Iowa, 68.

SEC. 2983. [When garnishee entitled to fees.]—Where the garnishee is required to appear at court, unless he has refused to answer as contemplated above, he is entitled to the pay and mileage of a witness, and may in like manner, require payment beforehand in order to be made liable for non-attendance.

SEC. 2984. [Presumption for failure to attend.]—If, when duly summoned, and his fees tendered when demanded, he fail to appear and answer the interrogatories propounded to him without sufficient excuse for his delinquency, he shall be presumed to be indebted to the defendant to the full amount of the plaintiff's demand, and shall be dealt with accordingly.

See Westphal et al. v. Clark et al., 42 Iowa, 371, cited in notes to § 2979, ante.

The garnishee is to be placed in no worse condition than if the attachment defendant, himself, were prosecuting an action against him on the claim. Field v. Wood, 9 Iowa, 249; Smith, Two-good & Co. v. Clark & Henley, 12 Iowa, 241.

When a garnishee is called and fails to appear, a default may be entered against him, though no interrogatories have been prepared and propounded by the plaintiff. It is not necessary to submit interrogatories before the appearance of the garnishee. Parmenter v. Childs, and Noble v. Same, etc., 12 Iowa, 22.

A garnishee is not compelled to appear and answer unless the fees to which a witness is entitled are paid or tendered, if demanded. Westphal et al. v. Clark et al., 42 Iowa, 371.

Where a garnishee, after answering the statutory questions to the sheriff, was summoned before a referee for further examination, where she appeared but refused to answer, the plaintiff might, under this section, have taken judgment against her, but having failed to move for judgment or having moved, he did not insist on a ruling on his motion, but procured an order for the further appearance and examination of the garnishee, held that, after such order, she had a right to assume that no judgment could be rendered against her until such further examination had been completed, and such facts elicited therefrom as would warrant the judgment. Also held that, on appeal to the supreme court from the ruling of the court below, excusing the garnishee from answering further, judgment could not be rendered against her in the supreme court, although the rulings of the court below were reversed. Thompson v. Silvers et al., 59 Id., 670.

Witnesses, including garnishees, may demand their mileage and their fees for one day's attendance in advance, and, if not so paid, they need not attend; but if they do attend without demanding their mileage in advance, they cannot then, as a condition to testifying, for the first time demand their mileage. And where a garnishee appears and demands mileage and one day's attendance, as a condition to answering, and upon the refusal of the plaintiff to comply with such demand, he departs and refuses to answer, the court may rightly render judgment against him to the full extent of the plaintiff's demand. Whether he might not, after appearance, be entitled to his fees for one day's attendance before answering, quare? Stockberger v. Lindsey, 65 Id., 474.

Sec. 2985. [May exonerate himself.]—But, for a mere failure to appear, he is not liable to pay the amount of plaintiff's judgment, until he has had an opportunity to show cause against the issuing of an execution.

Where the record shows that the garnishee was called and failed to appear, the appellate court will not reverse an order of the court below refusing to set aside a default, upon the unsupported affidavit of the garnishee. Parmenter v. Childs, 12 Iowa, 22.

A showing to set aside a default against a garnishee, or against issuing an execution against him, must rebut the presumption of indebtedness, and show a sufficient excuse for the default. Id.

The notice to show cause, required by this section, before execution can issue against a garnishee, is a reasonable one only, and may be served during the term at which it requires the garnishee to appear. Langford et al., v. The Ottumwa Water P. Co., 53 Id., 415. In this case more than ten days' notice was given, and it was not claimed to have been unreasonable. Id.

A judgment by default against a garnishee, who failed to appear when garnished, constitutes no bar to a subsequent action against him on the same debt for which he was garnished by one claiming to own the same by assignment from the defendant in the attachment proceeding, prior to the garnishment. McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137.

Where a garnishee has been required to make his answer more specific, and upon failure to do so judgment has been rendered against him by default, a motion to set aside the default should be made at the same term the default was entered. Scamahorn v. Scott et al., 42 Id., 529.

Where judgment by default is rendered against a garnishee he is entitled to notice to appear and show cause before an execution can be issued against him. Evans v. Mohn, 55 Id., 302, 304.

Sec. 2986. [By paying over money or property in his hands.]—A garnishee may, at any time after answer, exonerate himself from further responsibility, by paying over to the sheriff the amount owing by him to the defendant, and placing at the sheriff's disposal the property of the defendant, or so much of said debts and property as is equal to the value of the property to be attached, all of which may afterward be treated as though attached in the usual manner.

A garnishee is not liable for interest upon funds in his hands from the time of garnishment, unless the presumption, which obtains, that they were not used by him from that time, but kept as a separate fund to answer the judgment of the court, be in some manner overcome. And this rule is not changed by section 2986, which provides that the garnishee may exonerate himself from liability by paying the money to the sheriff. Moore v. Lowrey, 25 Id., 336.

The notice to show cause, required by this section, before execution can issue against a garnishee, is a reasonable one only, and may be served during the term at which it requires the garnishee to appear. Langford et al., v. The Ottumwa Water P. Co., 53 Id., 415. In this case more than ten days' notice was given, and it was not claimed to have been unreasonable. Id.

Where judgment by default is rendered against a garnishee he is entitled to notice to appear and show cause before an execution can be issued against him. Evans v. Mohn, 55 Id., 302, 304.

A garnishee is not generally liable for costs but if he refuses to answer, or seeks to avoid a fair investigation of his liability to the party attached he will be charged with such costs as are caused by such conduct. Fairfield v. Wood, 9 Id., 249; Fagg v. Parker, 11 Id., 18.

A garnishee is not bound to pay money, or property attached in his hands, to the court. He may do so at any time before answer, to avoid further responsibility; but his failure to do so, or to tender the amount confessed to be in his hands, does not make him liable for costs. Randolph et al. v. Hoadslip, 11 Id., 37.

SEC. 2987. [Answer controverted.]—When the garnishee has answered the interrogatories propounded to him, the plaintiff may controvert the same by pleading by him filed, and issue may be joined and the same tried in the usual manner. The answer of the garnishee shall be competent testimony on such trial.

While the answer of a garnishee is competent testimony in the trial of an issue taken thereon, its weight and credit are for the jury alone and the court has no authority to instruct in respect thereto. Druke v. Buck, 35 Iowa, 472; Bean v. Barney et al., 10 Id., 493; Randolph & Leslie v. Heaslip, 11 Id., 37.

The answer of the garnishee if uncontroverted must be taken as true. Bean v. Barnum et al., 10 Id., 498.

A garnishee should not be charged on his answer alone, unless it contains a clear admission of a debt due, or the possession of money or attachable property of the defendant. If it is doubtful he is entitled to judgment in his favor. Morse v. Marshall, 22 Id., 299; Forwell & Co. v. Howard & Co., 36 Id., 381; Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Clarke & Henley, 9 Id., 241.

A garnishee having a lien upon the attached property in his hands, has a right to hold the same until his lien is discharged. Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Clarke & Henley, 9 Id., 246.

The trial of an issue made upon the answer of a garnishee denying indebtedness must take place in the court wherein the principal action is pending, and the garnishee is not entitled to a change of venue to the county of his residence. Miller & Co. v. Mason & Co., 31 Id., 239.

Where a garnishee, in his answer, has denied indebtedness, and the plaintiff files a pleading controverting the answer of the garnishee and alleging an indebtedness in general terms, it was held, that the garnishee should have demurred or moved to make the pleading more specific, and that failing so to do he could not object to the introduction of evidence tending to establish an indebtedness. Ruby v. Scher, 51 Id., 422.

A garnishee upon making his answer, may move to be discharged, but if he fails to do this he must take notice of whatever is done in the case relating to his answer, the same as a party, and follow it until it is disposed of. Chase v. Foster, 9 Id., 421.

When a garnishee answers, confessing his indebtedness, the defendant may make any objection to judgment being rendered against the garnishee, which goes to show that the indebtedness is exempt from execution or attachment, or that the principal judgment was satisfied, or any other defense of a like nature; but he cannot object that the garnishee is not liable to the process of garnishment. Wales & Son v. The City of Muscatine, 4 Id., 502.

Upon the trial of an issue taken on the answer of a garnishee, the answer is admissible in evidence. Fairfield v. McNam, 37 Id., 75.

JUDGMENT.

SEC. 2988. [May be entered.]—If, in any of the above methods, it is made to appear that the garnishee was indebted to the defendant, or had any of the defendant's property in his hands either at the time of being served with the garnishee notice aforesaid, or at any time subsequent thereto, he is liable to the plaintiff in case judgment is finally recovered by him, to the full amount of that judgment, or to the amount of such indebtedness and of the property so held by him; and a conditional judgment shall be entered up against him accordingly, unless he proves paying or delivering the same to the sheriff as above provided.

Unless there is a recovery of judgment against the defendant in the main action, there can be no judgment against a garnishee; hence, in an action on a promissory note, where the maker sets up as a defense, a prior garnishment, as the debtor of the payee of the note, he should show that final judgment was rendered against the payee of the note, in the suit in which he was garnisheed. Burton v. Smith, 7 Iowa, 55.

A judgment against a garnishee should not exceed that against the defendant in the principal action. Timmons v. Johnson, 15 Id., 23.

A garnishee cannot be made liable on a mortgage which is not negotiable, but is assignable, unless the mortgage is produced, or the garnishee is completely exonerated or indemnified from liability thereon after he may have satisfied the judgment. Id.

A garnishee should pay no money to his debtor until an order is made discharging him as garnishee. If he does so it will be at the peril of being compelled to pay it again. Hughes v. Monty, 24 Id., 499.

A garnishee cannot pay over money to the defendant after garnishment, though the defendant receive it as agent of, and in payment of a note given to the defendant's son, for property purchased of the father, but which it was afterwards claimed belonged to the son, if in fact the prop-property belonged to the father, and the use of the son’s name was merely to defraud defendant’s creditors, and the garnishee knew that the object of the garnishment was to reach this money. Kesler v. St. John, 22 Id., 565.

Where a party was garnisheed, who had been a partner of the defendant and held unpaid accounts belonging to the firm, it was held that judgment should not be rendered against him absolutely for the amount of the defendant’s interest in the accounts, but only that he be directed to pay over the sum to which the partner was entitled as the same should be collected. Cox v. Russell, 44 Id., 556.

A garnishee is to be placed in no worse position than if the defendant was enforcing the claim against him. Nor is he entitled to occupy in any respect a better position. He is not to be placed in a situation, except from his own negligence or carelessness, where he will be compelled to pay the debt twice. Smith, Tinswood & Co. v. Clarke & Healey, 9 Id., 241; Fifefield v. Wood, 1 Id., 249; Burton v. District Township of Warren, 11 Id., 166; McCord v. Beauty, 12 Id., 299; Walters v. Washington Insurance Co., 1 Id., 404; McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137; Taylor v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 5 Id., 114; Morse v. Marshall, 22 Id., 290; Williams v. Housei, 2 Id., 299.

Where, in a garnishment proceeding before a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the person of the garnishee, as well as the subject matter, an erroneous judgment is rendered against the garnishee, from which he neglects to appeal, a court of equity will not grant relief. B. & M. R. Co. v. Hall, 37 Id., 620.

To render a garnishee liable on his answer alone, he must clearly admit his indebtedness to the defendant in the attachment or execution, and if there be a reasonable doubt of such indebtedness, judgment should not be rendered against him. Church v. Simpson, 25 Id., 408; Morse v. Marshall, 22 Id., 290.

The right of the plaintiff to a judgment against the garnishee is dependent upon the recovery of a judgment against the principal debtor; and a judgment rendered against the garnishee before judgment against the defendant is erroneous. Bean v. Barney, 10 Id., 498; Burton v. Smith, 1 Id., 53; Toll v. Knight, 15 Id., 370.

The legal effect of a judgment against a garnishee upon his answer, condemning the property or debt in his hands, is to satisfy, to the extent thereof, the indebtedness between the garnishee and the principal debtor; and it is not necessary that the judgment entry shall in terms express such satisfaction. Strader Bros. & Co. v. Parmlee & Watts, 14 Id., 175.

A garnishee will not be discharged by an order quashing the writ of attachment because of a defect in the petition, when such defect is cured by an amendment of the petition. Id.

A money judgment cannot be rendered against a garnishee upon his answer, showing that he has in his possession property of the defendant upon which he holds a lien, without giving him an opportunity to discharge the judgment by a surrender of the property, upon provision being made for the payment of his lien. Hawehorn v. Unthank, 52 Id., 507.

Sec. 2989. [When debt not due.]-If the debt of the garnishee to the defendant is not due, execution shall be suspended until its maturity.

Sec. 2990. [Negotiable paper.]-The garnishee shall not be made liable on a debt due by negotiable paper, unless such paper is delivered, or garnishee completely exonerated or indemnified from all liability thereon after he may have satisfied the judgment.

A garnishee cannot be made liable on a mortgage or assignable paper, unless the same be produced or the garnishee completely exonerated, or indemnified from liability thereon after he shall have paid the judgment. Simmons v. Johnson, 15 Iowa, 23; Yocum v. White, 36 Id., 288.

While the rights of the holder of a promissory note may be affected by a garnishment of the maker, before the transfer under which he claims, the rights of a holder who receives a note before garnishment are not affected thereby. Fowler v. Doyle, 16 Id., 534.

The garnishment of the maker of a negotiable note past due will not render him liable thereon, unless the note is delivered up, or he be completely exonerated or indemnified from all liability thereon. Hughes v. Monty, 24 Id., 499.

If the maker of a negotiable or assignable paper, when garnished thereon fail to require the note to be delivered up or to be indemnified, as he has a right to demand, and does not interpose to prevent a judgment against him, then such judgment will constitute no bar or defense to an action on the note by a holder of the paper who received it before the garnishment. Yocum v. White, 36 Id., 288.

In case of the garnishment of a debt due by non-negotiable or over-due paper, where the same has been assigned, the assignee should give notice to the garnishee of the assignment in time to enable him to show the fact by his answer, or at least before judgment against him. If the garnishee has received such notice and neglects to show in his defense that the debt has been assigned he cannot resist a subsequent claim by the assignee; and if he shows the assignment in his answer he cannot be charged as garnishee. Walters v. The Washington Ins. Co., 1 Id., 404; McCord v. Beauty, 12 Id., 299.
Where a garnishee is indebted to the defendant on negotiable notes, an order that plaintiff have judgment against the garnishee for the amount of the claim against the defendant, provided the garnishee be first fully indemnified as provided by law, or the notes surrendered to him, is not a final judgment, and an execution issued thereon will be enjoined on the application of the assignee. Seals v. Wright, 37 Id., 171.

The answer of a garnishee that he holds a note made by a third person to the debtor, which was placed in his hands by the latter for the purpose of paying a certain judgment against the debtor on which the garnishee is a surety for the stay of execution, will not justify a judgment against the garnishee. Dryden v. Adams, 29 Id., 195.

Where the answer of the garnishee shows merely that he holds a mortgage upon personal property of the debtor, which is in possession of the latter, and the value of which is not shown the garnishee should be discharged. Nat. Bank v. Berry, 29 Id., 296.

Exemption from garnishment in another state where the debtor resides, cannot be pleaded by a garnishee in this state, unless the amount due the debtor from the garnishee be also exempt by the laws of this state. Leiber v. The U. P. R. Co., 49 Id., 688.

A garnishee is not a party to the action in the sense that he is required to make defense for either of the parties or set up the exemption laws. He is presumed to be indifferent respecting the merits of the case. Moore v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co. 43 Id., 385.

That the notice to a garnishee required him to appear in the district court, will not affect the power of the circuit court to render judgment against him upon his answers taken by the sheriff, showing his indebtedness. Nor will the judgment be disturbed where it is not alleged to be unjust and the garnishee does not himself complain. Fanning v. The Minn. R. Co. 51 Id., 379.

Where A was indebted to B on a promissory note which was overdue, in an action against B by C, he may garnish A as the debtor of B, and hold him liable, when the note had been assigned after the garnishment and before the garnishee answered, when the garnishee had knowledge of the fact at the time he answered. Stevens v. Pugh, 12 Id., 430; McCord v. Beatty, Id., 299.

SEC. 2991. Judgment conclusive.—The judgment in the garnishment suit condemning the property or debt in the hands of the garnishee to the satisfaction of the plaintiff’s demand, is conclusive between the garnishee and defendant.

SEC. 2992. Docket of original case shall contain.—The docketing of the original case shall contain a statement of all the garnishments therein, and when judgment is rendered against a garnishee, the same shall distinctly refer to the original judgment.

In a judgment against a garnishee, it is a sufficient compliance with this section if the record entry contains the title of the cause in which the original judgment was rendered, distinctly and fully stated. Boyd v. Rutlege, 25 Iowa, 271.

Where a single pleading was filed controverting the answer of two garnishees, and on motion one of the garnishees was dismissed therefrom as improperly joined with his co-garnishee, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to file a further pleading taking issue upon the answer of such garnishee. Coffman v. Ford, 56 Id., 185.

SEC. 2993. Appeal.—An appeal lies in all garnishment cases at the instance of the plaintiff, the defendant, the garnishee, or an intervenor claiming the property or money.

Where an erroneous judgment is rendered against a garnishee by a justice of the peace, having jurisdiction of the person of the garnishee, as well as the subject matter, from which judgment he neglects to appeal, a court of equity will not grant relief. The B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Hale, 31 Iowa, 620.

Where an erroneous judgment is rendered against a garnishee, from which he appeals to the supreme court, the judgment will not be reviewed unless it appears that exception was taken thereto at the time of its rendition. Enson v. Lester, 31 Id., 415; Pigman v. Know, 12 Id., 306; McKinley v. Rechtel, Id., 561; Downing v. Harmon, 13 Id., 535; Robison v. Saunders, Ribbin & Co., 14 Id., 539; Perkins v. Whittam, Id., 596.

RELEASE OF PROPERTY.

SEC. 2994. By defendant executing bond.—If the defendant, at any time before judgment, causes a bond to be executed to the plaintiff with sufficient securities to be approved by the officer having the attachment, or after the return thereof by the clerk, to the effect that he will perform the judgment of the court, the attachment shall be discharged and restitution made of property taken or proceeds thereof. The execution of such bond shall be deemed an appearance of such defendant to the action.
The bond provided for by this section, may be taken and approved by the sheriff in vacation, if offered before he returns the writ, or by the clerk after the return has been made. Budd v. Dur- all, 36 Iowa, 315.

Where the parties and the sheriff intended to execute a delivery bond under section 2996, by mistake executed a bond under section 2994, to perform the judgment, which before signing was carefully read over by the obligors, fully understanding its language, it was held to be a mistake of law against which they could not be relieved. Moorman v. Collier, 32 Id., 138. To the same effect is Glenn & Price v. Statter, 42 Id., 107.

Where the sheriff releases attached property under a bond providing that the obligors shall be liable for any judgment that may be rendered, the property is nevertheless constructively in his possession so long as it is in the possession of the bondsmen, and parol evidence is not admissible to show that the property was in fact released to the owner thereof. Selz & Co. v. Belden et al., 48 Id., 451.

Where attachment defendants executed to the sheriff, after the levy of the writ upon property of sufficient value to satisfy the plaintiff's demand, a bond conditioned that the defendants "shall produce said goods in satisfaction of the judgment in said action, or pay such judgment as shall be rendered against them," it was held that the bond was valid and that an action for a breach thereof was maintainable by the attachment plaintiffs. Sheppard & Morgan v. Collins, 12 Id., 570.

The execution of an appeal bond on the removal of a case to the supreme court in which a delivery bond had been executed to discharge the attached property, does not discharge the sureties on such bond. Williams v. Robinson, 21 Id., 498.

The defendant in attachment gave bond as provided in this section, and the attached property was restored to him. On the trial the judgment was for the defendant for costs, the attachment was dissolved, and the sureties on defendant's bond were discharged. Plaintiff excepted to all parts of the judgment except the order discharging the sureties, and he appealed from the judgment generally. The order discharging the sureties was in no way raised or considered on appeal, but the judgment otherwise was reversed. Upon a new trial plaintiff recovered judgment and thereupon moved for judgment against the sureties on the bond of defendant, and it was so entered. Held that such judgment was erroneous, because the order discharging them was not excepted to, and was a final adjudication of their liability. Barton v. Thompson et al., 66 Id., 526.

Sec. 2995. [Judgment on bond.]—Such bond shall be part of the record, and, if judgment go against the defendant, the same shall be entered against him and sureties.

Where a delivery bond is given under section 2994, and judgment is rendered against the attachment defendant, such judgment may, under section 2995, be entered also against the sureties in the bond; but this remedy against the sureties is not exclusive, and a separate action on the bond may be maintained against the sureties to recover the amount of the unpaid judgment. The State for the use of Meeker v. McGlothlin, 61 Iowa, 312.

Sec. 2996. [By defendant or person in possession giving bond.]—The defendant, or any person in whose possession any attached property is found, or any person making affidavit that he has an interest in it, may, at any time before judgment, discharge the property attached, or any part thereof, by giving bond with security, to be approved by the sheriff, in a penalty at least double the value of the property sought to be released, but if that sum would exceed three times the claim, then in such sum as equals three times the claim, conditioned that such property, or its estimated value, shall be delivered to the sheriff to satisfy any judgment which may be obtained against the defendant in that suit within twenty days after the rendition thereof. This bond shall be filed with the clerk of the court.

A bond executed by an intervenor after judgment, and not containing the conditions prescribed for a delivery bond, nor executed in the manner provided by the statute, cannot be regarded as a delivery bond, though executed as such, and will not entitle the intervenor to the possession of the attached property. Jenkins v. Warnock, 37 Iowa, 278.

Property attached by garnishment may be released by the execution of a delivery bond, in the same manner that property taken into the actual custody of the officers is discharged. Woodward v. Adams, 9 Id., 474.

In an action on a delivery bond, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to aver or prove that the property released was appraised, or its value fixed by agreement before the execution of the bond. Id.

A third person claiming ownership of personal property, attached in an action to which he is not a party, who has obtained actual possession of the property by the execution of a delivery bond to the officer levying the writ under this and the following sections, may intervene in the attachment suit by virtue of section 3016 of the code, and have his rights in the property adjudicated. Tuttle v. Wheaton et al., 57 Ill., 394.

Where a delivery bond is executed, and the property is not delivered according to the requirements of the bond, an action may be maintained thereon, without any order having been entered in the principal action making the judgment thereon a lien on the attached property. Wyant v. Dotson et al., 12 Ill., 22; Garretson v. Reeder, 23 Ill., 21.

Although a delivery bond may be defective as a statutory bond, because not in the form prescribed in the statute, yet it may be valid as a common law obligation. Id.

A bond given by an attachment defendant, in whose custody the property is left, conditioned that he will return the same on demand to the sheriff, does not constitute a statutory delivery bond which will discharge the attachment. Allerton v. Eldridge, 56 Ill., 709.

SEC. 2997. [Appraisement of property.]—To determine the value of property in cases where a bond is to be given, unless the parties agree otherwise, the sheriff shall summon two disinterested persons having the qualification of jurors, who, after having been sworn by him to make the appraisement faithfully and impartially, shall proceed to the discharge of their duty. If such persons disagree as to the value of the property, the sheriff shall decide between them.

The obligors in a delivery bond given to discharge property from attachment, cannot object to the validity of the bond on the ground that the property released was not appraised before the execution of the bond. Woodward v. Adams, 9 Iowa, 474.

SEC. 2998. [Defense to action on bond.]—In an action brought upon the bond above contemplated, it shall be a sufficient defense that the property for the delivery of which the bond was given, did not, at the time of the levy, belong to the defendant against whom the attachment was issued, or was exempt from seizure under such attachment.

In an action on a delivery bond, an answer averring that the property attached, at the time of the levy, did not belong to the defendant in the attachment proceeding, is insufficient, unless it also alleges to whom the property did belong. Blatchley & Simpson v. Adair, 5 Iowa, 545.

SALE OF PERISHABLE PROPERTY.

SEC. 2999. [How and when done.]—When the sheriff thinks the property attached in danger of serious and immediate waste and decay, or when the keeping of the same will necessarily be attended with such expense as greatly to depreciate the amount of proceeds to be realized therefrom, or when the plaintiff makes affidavit to that effect, the sheriff may summon three persons having the qualification of jurors to examine the same. The sheriff shall give the defendant, if within the county, three days' notice of such hearing, and he may appear before such jury and have a personal hearing. If they are of the opinion that the property requires soon to be disposed of, they shall specify in writing a day beyond which they do not deem it prudent that it should be kept in the hands of the sheriff. If such day occurs before the trial day, he shall thereupon give the same notice as for sale of goods in execution, and for the same length of time, unless the condition of the property renders a more immediate sale necessary. The sale shall be made accordingly. If the defendant gives his written consent, such sale may be made without such finding.

SPECIAL ATTACHMENTS.

SEC. 3000. [In actions to enforce liens, recovery, sale or partition of real property.]—In an action to enforce a mortgage of, or lien upon, personal property, or for the recovery, sale or partition of such property, or by a plaintiff having a future estate or interest therein, for the security of his rights, where it satisfactorily appears by the petition, verified on oath or by affidavits, or the proofs, in the cause that the plaintiff has a just claim, and that the property has been or is about to be sold, concealed or removed from the state, or where plaintiff states on oath that he has reasonable cause to believe, and does believe, unless prevented by the court, the property will be sold, concealed, or removed from the state, an attachment may be granted against the property.

Where an officer in the levy of a special attachment not having indorsed thereon the direction of the court or judge, did not take the attached property into his custody, nor give notice of the levy, nor make such return as required by the statute, the levy was held invalid. Crawford v. Newell, 23 Iowa, 453.

Sec. 3001. [By vendor of property fraudulently purchased.]—In an action by a vendor of property fraudulently purchased, to vacate the contract and have a restoration of the property, or compensation therefor, where the petition shows such fraudulent purchase of property and the amount of the plaintiff's claim, and is verified by his oath, an attachment against the property may be granted.

Sec. 3002. [Granted by court or judge; terms of.]—The attachment in the cases mentioned in the last two sections may be granted by the court in which the action is brought, or by the judge of any court, upon such terms and conditions as to security on the part of the plaintiff for the damages which may be occasioned by them, and with such directions as to the disposition to be made of the property attached, as may be just and proper under the circumstances of each case.

Sec. 3003. [Describe property: to be indorsed by court or judge.]—The attachment shall describe the specific property against which it is issued; and shall have indorsed upon it the direction of the court or judge as to the disposition to be made of the attached property. It shall be directed, executed, and returned as other attachments.

Sec. 3004. [Court to fix terms of bonds given to discharge property.]—The court may, in any of the cases mentioned under this head of specific attachments, direct the terms and conditions of the bond to be executed by the defendant, with security, in order to obtain a discharge of the attachment or to retain the attached property.

INDEBTEDNESS DUE THE STATE.

Sec. 3005. [Duty of district attorney and attorney general.]—In all cases in which any person is indebted to the state of Iowa, or to any officer or agent of the state for the use or benefit of the state, the proper district attorney, or the attorney general, shall demand payment or security therefor, whenever, in the opinion of said district attorney or attorney general, the debt is not sufficiently secured.

Sec. 3006. [Attachment may issue: conditions of.]—In all suits for money due to the state of Iowa, or due to any state agent or officer for the use of the state, it shall be lawful for an attachment to issue against the property or debts of the defendant not exempt from execution, upon the filing of an affidavit by the district attorney of the proper district, or of the attorney general, that he verily believes that a specific amount therein stated is justly due, and the defendant therein has refused to pay or secure the same, and that unless an attachment is issued against the property of the defendant there is danger that the amount due will be lost to the state.

A demand must first have been made of the party against whom an attachment is sought to entitle the state thereto under sections 3005 and 3006 of the code. The State v. Morris, 50 Iowa, 203.

An affidavit to the effect that the defendant is in another state, and that he is about to sell or remove his property, is not sufficient to authorize an attachment. Id.

Sec. 3007. [No bonds can be required.]—The attachment so issued shall be levied as in other cases of attachment, and no bond shall be required of the plaintiff in such cases, and the sheriff shall not be authorized to require any indemnifying bond before levying the same.
SEC. 3008. [Property released: how.]-Any property taken on attachment under the provisions of the two preceding sections, shall be subject to be released upon the execution of a delivery bond, with sufficient security as provided by law in other cases.

SEC. 3009. [Damages paid by sheriff becomes a debt against the state.]—In case any sheriff shall be held liable to pay any damages by reason of the wrongful execution of any writ of attachment issued under the three preceding sections, and if a judgment be rendered therefor by any court of competent jurisdiction, the amount of judgment when paid by such sheriff shall become a claim against the state of Iowa in favor of such sheriff, and a warrant therefor shall be drawn by the auditor upon proper proof.

SEC. 3010. [Sheriff's return: contents of specified.]-The sheriff shall return upon every attachment what he has done under it. The return must show the property attached, the time it was attached, and the disposition made of it, by a full and particular inventory; also the appraisement above contemplated, when such has been made. When garnishees are summoned, their names, and the time each was summoned, must be stated. And where real property is attached, the sheriff shall describe it with certainty to identify it, and, where he can do so, by a reference to the book and page where the deed under which the defendant holds is recorded. He shall return with the writ all bonds taken under it. Such return must be made immediately after he shall have attached sufficient property, or all that he can find; or, at latest, on the first day of the first term on which the defendant is notified to appear.

Where real property has been attached, and the court, in rendering judgment, orders the sale thereof to satisfy the judgment, this will not authorize the sale thereof on execution issued thereon after the death of the judgment debtor; such sale is void. Welch v. Buttern et al., 47 Iowa, 147.

The officer's return on a writ of attachment is the statutory evidence of what he has done under it; as, for example, that he has attached a person, named, as garnishee. And where the writ had no such return indorsed thereon, the garnishee was properly discharged upon the ground that there was no legal evidence before the court that he had been garnished. A notice of garnishment with a return of service indorsed thereon, did not furnish the proper evidence. Boch & Son v. Signmaster, Garnishee, 62 Id., 511.

The last clause of this section does not require that a writ of attachment be returned by the first day of the term at which the defendant is required to appear, unless it has been executed by that time, but the writ remains in force, and a levy may be made at any time before the judgment and before the return of the writ. Westphal, Hinds & Co. v. Sherwood & Chapman, 69 Id., 384.

A sheriff's return on a writ of attachment is evidence only of such of his acts as he may lawfully do under and by virtue of the writ, and so, where the sheriff returned, not only that he had seized certain chattels under the writ, but that he had also, at plaintiff's direction, seized, closed up and held possession of the houses in which the chattels were stored, which was not necessary for the preservation of the chattels, held, in an action on the attachment bond, that the return was not evidence of such seizure of the buildings, nor of the attachment plaintiff's direction so to seize them. The Charles City Plow & Mfg. Co. v. Jones & Co. et al., 71 Id., 234.

SEC. 3011. [Judgment: how satisfied.]—If judgment is rendered for the plaintiff in any case in which an attachment has been issued, the court shall apply in satisfaction thereof, the money arising from the sales of perishable property, and if the same is not sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, the court shall order a sale by the sheriff of any other attached property which may be under his control.

SEC. 3012. [Court may control property.]—The court may, from time to time, make and enforce proper orders respecting the property, sales, and the application of the moneys collected.

SEC. 3013. [Expenses for keeping.]—The sheriff shall be allowed by the court the necessary expenses of keeping the attached property, to be paid by the plaintiff and taxed in the costs.

Where a sheriff employs persons to aid him in guarding attached property, he is personally liable to them for the reasonable value of their services; and he must look for reimbursement to the court, which should allow "the necessary expenses of keeping the attached property, to be paid by the plaintiff and taxed in the costs. Rowley v. Painter, 69 Iowa, 492."

Sec. 3014. [Surplus.]—Any surplus of the attached property and its proceeds shall be returned to the defendant.

Sec. 3015. [Discharge of property.]—If judgment is rendered in the action for the defendant, the attachment shall be discharged, and the property attached, or its proceeds shall be returned to him.

Where, in an attachment proceeding, the special verdict of the jury shows that, at the time of the commencement of the action and issuing of the attachment, no cause of action had accrued to the plaintiff, the defendant is entitled, on motion, to have the attached property discharged. Crane v. White, 29 Iowa, 396.

The clerk does not render himself liable to the plaintiff by making payment to the defendant of the proceeds of the sale of attached property, after the dissolution of the attachment, if such payment is made in good faith, and without notice of plaintiff's intention to appeal, and continue his attachment by a supersedeas bond, but it would be better to have an order of the court directing such payment. Danforth, Davis & Co. v. Rupert et al., 11 Id., 547.

Sec. 3016. [Intervention: how made and tried.]—Any person other than the defendant may, before the sale of any attached property, or before the payment to the plaintiff of the proceeds thereof or any attached debt, present his petition, verified by oath, to the court, disputing the validity of the attachment, or stating a claim to the property or money, or to an interest in, or lien on it under any other attachment or otherwise, and setting forth the facts upon which such claim is founded; and the petitioner's claim shall be in a summary manner investigated. The court may hear the proof or order a reference, or may impanel a jury to inquire into the facts. If it is found that the petitioner has title to, a lien on, or any interest in such property, the court shall make such order as may be necessary to protect his rights. The cost of such proceedings shall be paid by either party at the discretion of the court.

The filing of a petition of intervention under this section, upon which an injunction is granted as merely auxiliary to the proceeding at law in which every issue presented can be tried, does not change the proceeding or the method of trial from law to equity. Pool v. Paul, 23 Iowa, 836.

In an action before a justice of the peace C. was garnished, and answered that he was indebted to the defendant K., who replied that the debt was due to his wife. On appeal in the circuit court, W. and A., were permitted to intervene as assignees of the debt. Held, that the intervention was properly allowed, and that the failure of the garnishee to appeal would not have the effect to affirm the judgment of the justice. Daniels & Co. v. Clark, 38 Id., 456.

The plaintiff in garnishment proceedings stands as against the garnishee in the same relation as the defendant in the main action, and is liable to be met by the same defenses which the garnishee might make against an action by the defendant. Id.

The remedy of a third person claiming a lien upon or interest in attached property is under this section, and not by motion to discharge the property from the levy under section 3015. Tidrick v. Sulgrave, 38 Id., 339.

A party who intervenes in an attachment proceeding, and claims to be the owner of property, and his right thereto is established, may subsequently maintain an action against the plaintiff for the use of the property and reasonable costs of intervention. Jennings v. Hoppe, 44 Id., 205.

An assignee, for the benefit of creditors, may intervene in an attachment suit brought against his assignor prior to the assignment, and set up a claim against the plaintiff therein for damages sustained by his assignor by reason of the wrongful suing out of the attachment, and this though the assignor has himself pleaded the same as a counter claim. Dunham v. Greenbaum, 56 Id., 303.

When real estate has been sold under an attachment, a third party cannot intervene claiming a superior lien by virtue of a prior mortgage, but may proceed in equity to restrain the sale. The First National Bank, etc., v. Jasper County, 71 Id., 486.

After final judgment has been rendered in attachment proceedings, settling all the rights of the parties thereto, including an intervenor, and after the attached property has been sold, it is too late to file an amendment to the intervening petition setting up new issues and new causes of action. This section of the code does not authorize such amendment. Bicklin v. Kendall, 72 Id., 400.

So long as money paid into court by a garnishee on execution has not been paid over to the execution plaintiff, a third party claiming the money may intervene in the action for the purpose of asserting his claim to the money. Edwards v. Cosgro, 71 Id., 296.
SEC. 3017. [Defendant's remedy only on bond.]

—The fact stated as a cause of attachment, shall not be contested in the action by a mere defense. The defendant's remedy shall be on the bond, but he may, in his discretion, sue thereon by way of counter-claim, and in such case shall recover damages as in an original action on such bond.

The allegations in a petition setting forth the causes for an attachment do not constitute any part of the cause of action, and cannot be reached by demurrer, nor can issue be joined thereon by answer. Holliday v. Herryford, 9 Iowa, 353; Berry v. Gravel, 11 Id., 135; McLaren v. Hall, 26 Id., 294; Burrows v. Lehndorff, 8 Id., 36; Branch of State Bank v. Morris, 13 Id., 136.

A motion to dissolve an attachment cannot be aided by affidavits showing that the statements of cause for the attachment were not true. No issue can be joined in the principal action on the averment of facts on which the attachment is prayed. Sturman v. Stone, 31 Id., 115.

Where, in an action of attachment, the defendant in his answer set up a counter claim for damages for wrongfully suing out the attachment, and recovered judgment by default, such judgment was held not conclusive upon the safety on the attachment bond, he not having been a party to the action, and that an action on such judgment against him was not maintainable. Bunt v. Rhem, 52 Id., 619.

SEC. 3018. [Discharge of attachment on motion: causes for.]

—A motion may be made to discharge the attachment, or any part thereof, at any time before trial for insufficiency of statement of cause thereof, or for other cause making it apparent of record that the attachment should not have issued, or should not have been levied on all or on some part of the property held.

In order to justify the discharge of attached property under this section, on the ground that it is exempt from levy, the case should be made clear and satisfactory. McLaren v. Hall, 26 Iowa, 287.

An officer who holds personal goods in his possession under a writ of attachment, may at his discretion, release the same on the claim of a third party that he is their owner, but the officer does so at his peril, and he has the burden of establishing that the attached property did not belong to the defendant. Wadsorth v. Walliker, 41 Id., 395.

It is competent to move to discharge an attachment on real property where the question of ownership is in issue, when the facts upon which the motion is based are conceded. Rusch v. Moore, 43 Id., 611.

Where an attached property was released by a justice of the peace on motion, as exemp, it was held that the decision of the justice was conclusive as to the defendant's right to the property until reversed, and that he might maintain replevin therefor if again seized by the plaintiff, although the latter had sued out a writ of error from the decision of the justice but had filed no supersedeas bond. Pellersottv. Allen et al., 55 Id., 717.

A motion to discharge an attachment based on the allegation that the defendant was about to remove his property out of the state, without leaving sufficient for the payment of his debts, which motion is supported by affidavits showing that the property attached was exempt, should have been sustained under this section. Hastings v. Phoenix, 59 Id., 394; Joyes v. Miller Bros., 1 Id., 761.

SEC. 3019. [Plaintiff to have two days to appeal.]

—When an attachment has been discharged, if the plaintiff then announce his purpose to appeal from such order of discharge, he shall have two days in which to perfect his appeal, and during that time such discharge shall not operate a return of the property nor divest any lien, if such appeal be so perfected at the end thereof.

SEC. 3020. [Same.]

—But, if judgment in the action be also given against the plaintiff, he must also, within the same time, take his appeal thereon, or such discharge shall be final.

Where an attachment has been dissolved in legal effect by the rendition of a judgment, and the party holding the property under the attachment fails to appeal within two days after the judgment is rendered, the attachment is not revived by appeal, nor is the trial court deprived of jurisdiction to order a discharge. Hager v. Spafford, 44 Id., 369.
SEC. 3021. This chapter shall be liberally construed, and the plaintiff, at any time when objection is made thereto, shall be permitted to amend any defect in the petition, affidavit, bond, writ, or other proceeding; and no attachment shall be quashed, dismissed, or the property attached released, if the defect in any of the proceedings has, or can be amended so as to show that a legal cause for the attachment existed at the time it was issued; and the court shall give the plaintiff a reasonable time to perfect such defective proceedings; the causes for attachment shall not be stated in the alternative.

A petition or affidavit for an attachment may be amended, and after amendment the plaintiff will not be prejudiced by the defect corrected, neither is it necessary to issue and levy a new writ upon the attached property. Wadsworth & Wells v. Cheekey & Stinson, 13 Id., 576.

It is not necessary to recite in a writ of attachment the causes alleged in the petition as grounds for attachment. Id. See also, Hays et al. v. Corb., 3 Id., 293. Nor is it necessary to recite in the writ that a bond has been filed. Elsheorv v. Moore, 3 Id., 485; Hays v. Corby supra.

Amendments to the petition, which do not state any new cause for the attachment, but merely make that in the original more specific, held permissible under section 3242 of the revision, and that where the penalty of the bond is for too small an amount, the same may be amended by filing a new bond in the proper amount. See also, Ellsworth v. Moore, 3 Id., 485.

Where a writ of attachment from the circuit court had the seal of the district court affixed thereto instead of that of the circuit court, the writ was held under the revision, to be fatally defective, and could not be amended. Id.

An amendment, curing a defect as to the form of the affidavit for the attachment, may properly be allowed. Shaffer v. Sundwall, 34 Id., 579.

Where a writ of attachment from the circuit court had the seal of the district court affixed thereto instead of that of the circuit court, the writ was held under the revision, to be fatally defective, and could not be amended. Id.

A person not a party to the action, though claiming to own the attached property cannot move to dissolve the attachment. Williams v. Walker, 11 Id., 77.

Proceedings in attachment cannot be successfully attacked on the ground that the jurat to the affidavit is not signed by the officer administering the oath, if it be shown that the affidavit was, in fact, sworn to before him. Cook v. Jenkins & Co., 30 Id., 432; Stout v. Folger, 34 Id., 71.

And where it appears that, through inadvertence or omission, the affidavit to a petition for an attachment was not signed by the party, though actually sworn to by him, nor the affidavit certified by the officer, the defect may be cured by amendment. Stout v. Folger, 34 Id., 71.

When a motion is made to dissolve an attachment, or quash the writ, because the bond is insufficient, the motion should be overruled, if a new and sufficient bond is filed after the motion. Van Winkle v. Stevens & Co., 6 Id., 264.

So, also, where the motion is made because of defects in the petition or affidavit, if the defects be corrected by amendment. Bunn v. Pritchard, 6 Id., 56; Longworthy v. Waters, 11 Id., 492.

Where a writ of attachment is issued under the seal of the district court, while the action was pending in the circuit court, it was held competent to amend the writ by affixing the proper seal thereto, and a motion to quash for such cause will not lie. Murdough v. McPherrin, 49 Id., 479.

An attachment bond which recited that the proceedings were being had in the district court of a county other than the one in which the suit was actually commenced, it was held that the defect might be cured by filing an amended bond. Holmes & Avery v. Buck, 11 Id., 186.

A defective verification of a petition which asks an attachment may be amended under this section. Lovenstein v. Monroe, 52 Id., 231.

So under this section the writ of attachment may be amended after levy. Atkins v. Womeldorf, 53 Id., 150; Murdough v. McPherrin, 49 Id., 479.

And where a writ of attachment has been issued and levied, in an action not founded on contract, by the proper authority, the amount in value of property that might be attached, having been first made, the defect may be cured by an allowance made by the court after the filing of the motion to quash. It is not a valid objection that the allowance was made by the court instead of by the judge. Magoun v. Gillett, 54 Id., 54.

SEC. 3022. [Encumbrance book: notice of attachment to be entered in.]—No levy of attachment on real estate shall be notice to a subsequent vendee or encumbrancer in good faith, unless the sheriff making such levy shall have entered in a book which shall be kept in the clerk's office of each county by the clerk thereof, and called "encumbrance book," a statement that the land, describing it, has been attached, and stating the cause in which it was so attached, and when it was done and signed by such sheriff; and such book shall be open as other books kept by such clerk to public inspection.
Where an equitable interest in land, which does not appear of record, is attached, and a statement thereof is entered in the encumbrance book, this entry will not constitute constructive notice to a vendee or mortgagee of the person holding the legal title. The Farmers Nat. Bank of Salem v. Fletcher, 44 Iowa, 252.

A grantee is not affected by a lis pendens, where the conveyance to him was made prior to the commencement of the action in which it is sought to establish a charge on the land as the property of the grantor. Id. See also Bailey v. McGregor, 46 Id., 667.

The fact that one who buys real estate of a married woman has knowledge of the pendency of an action against her husband will not charge him with notice of an attachment therein levied on the land, nor deprive him of the character of a bona fide purchaser. Bailey v. McGregor, 46 Id., 667; Eldred v. Inman, 45 Id., 589; Farmers' Nat. Bank of Salem v. Fletcher, 44 Id., 252.

The entry in the incumbrance book of the levy of attachment upon lands in an action against one not the holder of the legal title, does not constitute constructive notice to the purchaser of such title. Bailey v. McGregor, 46 Id., 667. Under this section an entry made by the sheriff in the "incumbrance book," showing that certain lands therein described have been attached, is notice to subsequent purchasers, though the entry is not indexed, notwithstanding subdivision 8 of section 197 of the code, which requires the clerk to keep an index of all liens in the district or circuit courts. Blodgett v. Huiscamp Bros., 64 Id., 548.

Where the sheriff intended to attach land in township 67, but his return on the writ showed an attachment of land in township 68 only, but this entry in the incumbrance book recited an attachment of lands in township 67, held that such entry did not constitute notice to subsequent purchasers, and incumbrancers of an attachment of land in township 67. Colter v. French, 64 Id., 577.

SEC. 3023. [Sheriff; constables.]—The word "sheriff," as used in this chapter, is meant to apply to constables when the proceedings are in a justice's court, or the like officer of any other court.

SEC. 3024. [Justice; clerk.]—When the proceedings are in a justice's court, the justice is to be regarded as the clerk of the court for all purposes herein contemplated.

RELATING TO LEVIES ON MORTGAGED PERSONAL PROPERTY.

An Act to provide for the levy of attachment or execution on personal property covered by mortgage.

SECTION 1. [Personal property not exempt from execution may be taken on attachment or execution.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That personal property not exempt from execution hereafter mortgaged, or heretofore mortgaged, when the debt secured thereby is due, may be taken on attachment or execution issued at the suit of a creditor of a mortgagor, but before the property is so taken the officer or plaintiff must pay or tender to the holder of the mortgage the amount of the mortgage debt and interest accrued, or must deposit to the amount thereof with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the mortgaged property is found payable to the order of the holder of the mortgage. When the debt secured by a mortgage hereafter made is not due, as shown by such chattel mortgage, he must also deposit with the clerk, interest on the principal sum at the agreed rate specified in the mortgage, for the term of sixty days from the date of deposit; provided, however, if the debt secured fall due in less than sixty days from the date of deposit, then interest shall be deposited only for such shorter period; and when such sums are tendered to the holder of the mortgage, or deposited with the clerk, the attaching creditor shall be subrogated to all the rights of the holder of the mortgage; and the proceeds from the sale of the mortgaged property shall go, first to the discharge of such indebtedness and costs of execution; provided, however, that if the judgment debtor shall pay the debt for which the attachment or execution was issued, the property shall be released, and the creditor shall be entitled to receive money deposited to pay the mortgage debt, and shall have no right or interest in the mortgage, or in the mortgaged property.

Sec. 2. [Holder of mortgage shall only receive amount due.]—The holder of the mortgage shall state over his signature and under oath on the back of said mortgage, the amount due, or to become thereon, and deliver the same to the person paying him said amount, and if the said sum has been deposited with the clerk of the district court, the holder of the mortgage shall only receive the amount so stated to be due, and shall surrender to the clerk the mortgage and other evidence of indebtedness, and the surplus, if any, shall be returned to the person who made the deposit; provided, however, that the execution or attaching creditor shall have the right to controvert, in the court from which the process issued, such statement of indebtedness in the manner provided in other garnishment proceedings, if he give notice in writing to the clerk at the time of the deposit; and the clerk shall hold the deposit until such matter is determined. If the attaching or judgment creditor fail to sustain his claim against the mortgage, he shall pay to the holder of the mortgage interest upon the debt at the rate of ten per cent per annum, together with the costs of the proceeding, and an attorney’s fee of ten per cent on the amount of the debt.

Sec. 3. [Bid must cover amount of debt and costs.]—At the sale of said property no bid shall be received for a less sum than the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the costs made by virtue of such levy of attachments or executions, and the costs of said sale. And unless there shall be a bid of more than such amount, the execution or attachment creditor shall pay the costs made by such levy and sale. If said property shall sell for more than the amount due on said mortgage and the costs aforesaid, the officer shall immediately pay the sum due on said mortgage to the person who paid the same, and shall apply this surplus on the execution or attachment held by him.

Sec. 4. [Validity of mortgage may be contested.]—But nothing contained in this act shall in any way affect the right of any creditor to contest for any reason the validity of such mortgage.

Sec. 5. [Mortgagee compelled to state amount of debt upon request.]—Upon written demand of a creditor, his agent, or attorney, or of any mortgagor of personal property other than exempt property, the person entitled to receive said debt shall deliver to said creditor a statement in writing under oath, which statement shall show the nature and amount of the original debt secured by the mortgage, the date and amount of each payment, if any, which has been made thereon, and an itemized statement of the amount then due and unpaid.

Sec. 6. [Failure to comply.]—The refusal of the person entitled to receive said mortgage debt, or his failure within a reasonable time after demand to deliver to the attachment or execution creditor, or to his attorney or agent, or either of them, the statements required by the second and fifth sections of this act, is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and willfully swearing to a greater amount of mortgage debt than is actually due, shall be deemed perjury. The person who fails or refuses to furnish the verified statements, or either of them, required by the second and fifth sections of this act, shall also be liable to the attachment or execution creditor for all damages which shall result from such refusal or failure, and for reasonable attorney’s fees and costs in any action brought to recover such damages, or to ascertain the amount of the mortgage debt.

Approved April 9, 1886.
CHAPTER 2.

OF EXECUTIONS.

SEC. 3025. [Limitation on issuance of.]—Executions may issue at any time before the judgment is barred by the statute of limitations, and but one execution shall be in existence at the same time.

Execution may properly issue on a judgment after the lien thereof on land has expired, and at any time within twenty years, the statutory period of limitations; and a sale of real estate thereunder is effectual to pass all the interest the defendant therein had at the time of the levy. State v. Roost et ux., 34 Iowa, 475.

This section in providing that only one execution shall be in existence at the same time is mandatory; and the fact that the first execution was ordered returned, but was not, did not authorize the issue of a second execution or make a sale thereunder valid. Merritt v. Grover, 61 Id., 99.

An execution, ordinarily, must be regarded as existing until it has been returned; and in cases where that cannot be done, it devolves upon the party in interest to allege and prove facts, showing that a second execution might lawfully issue. Merritt et al. v. Grover, 57 Id., 493.

Where the judgment creditor becomes the purchaser of property at a sale under a second execution issued at his instance, before the first execution has been returned, he is bound to know whether such second execution was lawfully issued. Id.

SEC. 3026. [Judgments: orders enforced by.]—Judgments or orders requiring the payment of money, or the delivery of the possession of property, are to be enforced by execution. Obedience to those requiring the performance of any other act, is to be coerced by attachment for contempt.

A court of law by its judgments declares the conclusion of the law upon the facts proved, and leaves the party to the proper process to enforce it. It affords specific relief only in actions in rem. Kramer v. Rebman, 9 Iowa, 114.

An attachment for contempt is the proper mode of enforcing obedience to a continuing order in the form of a mandatory injunction. The State v. Baldwin, 57 Id., 266.

SEC. 3027. [From courts of record.]—Executions from any court of record may issue into any county which the party ordering them may direct.

Where judgment is rendered in one county and a transcript thereof filed in another, execution must issue from the former county for the sale of lands in the latter; and a sale made under an execution issued in the latter is invalid. Furman v. Dewell, 35 Iowa, 170; Seaton v. Hamilton, Id., 394.

Execution may issue from the county where judgment is rendered into any county in the state. Anderson v. Hall, 48 Id., 346, 347.

SEC. 3028. [When issued and served on Sunday.]—An execution may be issued and executed on Sunday, whenever an affidavit shall be filed by the plaintiff or some person in his behalf, stating that he believes he will lose his judgment unless process issue on that day.

SEC. 3029. [Issued on demand of party: duty of clerk.]—Upon the rendition of judgment, execution may be at once issued, and shall be by the clerk on the demand of the party entitled thereto; and upon its issuance, the clerk shall enter on the judgment docket the date of its issuance, and to what county and what officer issued, and shall also enter on said docket the return of the officer with the date of the return, the dates and amount of all moneys received into or paid out of the office thereon; and these entries shall be made at the time of the thing done.

SEC. 3030. [Penalty for clerk's failure of duty.]—The clerk willfully neglecting or refusing to perform any one of the duties in this chapter imposed, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, and to damages to the party aggrieved, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction thereof, shall be removed from office.

SEC. 3031. [When issued to another county what done.]—In case execution is issued to a county other than that in which the judgment is rendered, a transcript of such judgment must be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of such county, who shall make an entry thereof in the judgment docket of such court; and the officer having such execution shall return a copy thereof, with his return and doings indorsed thereon, to such clerk, who shall make entries thereof in the same manner and extent as if such judgment had been entered in and execution issued from such court.

It seems that where for any reason the amount of a judgment cannot safely be paid to the attorney, the judgment debtor may pay it to the clerk, the judgment debtor thus making the clerk his agent for the proper appropriation of the money. Fisher v. Oskaloosa, 25 Id., 381.

Money paid to the clerk of the district and circuit courts upon a judgment recorded in his office, is received by him in virtue of his office; and upon his failure to pay over the money to the judgment creditor, a recovery may be had therefor against him and his sureties on his official bond. Thus held where the clerk deposited the money with a private banker who failed. Morgan & Long and Hibben & Co. v. Same, 29 Id., 434.

Where land is sold in one county under an execution issued on a judgment rendered in another county, the recording of the sheriff's deed in the former county will operate as constructive notice, although no transcript of the judgment has been filed in the county in which the land was situated at the time of the sale. Foreman v. Higgin, 35 Id., 382.

Under this section executions may be issued into any county which the party ordering them may direct, and a valid sale of real property may, as between the parties and as to subsequent purchasers having actual notice thereof, be made in one county under execution issued on a judgment in another county, notwithstanding no transcript of the judgment is filed in the county where the land is situated and sold. Hubbard v. Barnes, 29 Id., 233.

The object and purpose of this section is to provide a method for effecting a lien of the judgment on the real estate where the transcript is filed, and giving of constructive notice thereof and of the proceedings thereunder, by keeping a record showing the same. Id.

Prior to the enactment of this section where land in one county was sold on execution issued upon a judgment rendered in another county, no transcript of the judgment having been filed in the county where the sale took place, a bona fide purchaser from the judgment debtor without notice, whose purchase was after the execution sale but before the execution and recording of the sheriff's deed, would hold the land as against the purchaser at the sheriff's sale. McGinnis v. Edgell, 39 Id., 419.

When judgment is rendered in one county and a transcript thereof filed in another, execution must issue from the former; and a sale made under an execution issued from the latter county is void. Foreman v. Dowell, 35 Id., 170; Section v. Hamilton, 10 Id., 394.

SEC. 3032. [Return, how made: money, how sent.]—When sent into any county other than that in which the judgment was rendered, return may be made by mail. But money cannot thus be sent except by the direction of the party entitled thereto, or his attorney.

SEC. 3033. [General form of execution.]—The execution must intelligibly refer to the judgment, stating the time and place at which it was rendered, the names of the parties to the action as well as to the judgment, its amount, and the amount still to be collected thereon, if for money; and, if not for money, it must state what specific act is required to be performed. If it be against the property of the judgment debtor, it shall require the sheriff to satisfy the judgment and interest out of property of the debtor subject to execution.

A slight variance in the amount stated in an execution from that stated in the judgment will not vitiate the writ. Williams v. Brown, 28 Iowa, 247.

For form of execution issued by a justice of the peace held good under this section, see Burich v. Shipley, 50 Id., 63.

SEC. 3034. [When against representatives.]—If it be against real or personal property in the hands of personal representatives, heirs, devisees, legatees, tenants of real property or trustees, it shall require the sheriff to satisfy the judgment and interest out of property of the party against whom it was rendered subject to execution.

SEC. 3035. [When for delivery of possession of real property.]—If it be for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, it shall require the sheriff to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the sheriff to satisfy any costs, damages or rents and profits, with interest, recovered by the same judgment out of the property of the party against whom it was rendered subject to execution.
and the value of the property for which judgment was recovered to be specified therein if a delivery thereof cannot be had, and shall in that respect be deemed an execution against property.

SEC. 3036. [When for performance of any other act.] When it requires the performance of any other act, a certified copy of the judgment may be served on the person against whom it is given, or upon the person or officer who is required thereby, or by law, to obey the same, and his obedience thereto enforced.

An attachment for contempt is the proper mode of enforcing obedience to a continuing order in the form of a mandatory injunction. The State v. Baldwin, 57 Iowa, 266.

SEC. 3037. [Officer to receipt for.] Every officer to whose hands an execution may legally come shall give a receipt therefor, if required, stating the hour when the same was received, and shall make sufficient return thereof, together with the money collected, on or before the seventieth day from such delivery.

Although this section directs that an execution shall be returned on or before the seventieth day after its delivery to the officer, yet, where a levy has been made before the expiration of that time, a sale after the expiration of the seventy days is valid. Cox v. Currier, Sheriff, 62 Id., 551.

Citing and following Butterfield v. Walsh, 21 Iowa, 97; Stein v. Chambless, 18 Id., 474.

SEC. 3038. [Officer to indorse when received and what he does under it.]—The officer to whom an execution is legally issued, shall indorse thereon the day and hour when he received it, and the levy, sale, or other act done by virtue thereof, with the date, and the dates and amounts of any receipts or payments in satisfaction thereof; the indorsements must be made at the time of the receipt or act done.

The sale of property under an execution after the expiration of seventy days from the date thereof, was held not invalid when the levy was made before the expiration of that time. Butterfield v. Walsh, 21 Iowa, 97.

The proper and best evidence of what an officer has done under an execution is the written return made by him as required by this and the preceding section; and in the absence of a showing that the return on the original execution has been lost, or cannot be produced, a levy thereunder cannot be proved by copy or by parol. West v. St. John, 63 Id., 287.

It is the duty of an officer having an execution to levy upon the debtor's property, as provided in this section; and he is not required, upon a mere disclaimer by the debtor of any interest in the property, to postpone the levy and institute an inquiry as to the truth of the statement. So held in an action by a third party to recover the property from an officer. Id.

The sheriff's return on an execution that "the within execution was satisfied by defendant giving security for said money" is not evidence of satisfaction, nor will such return, with the entry by the clerk upon the judgment record, "execution returned satisfied as per sheriff's return thereon," justify a subsequent mortgagee in relying upon them as showing the judgment satisfied. Ashman, Miller & Co. v. McGrady, 59 Id., 118.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY.

SEC. 3039. [Property of principal first liable.]—When a judgment is against a principal and his surety, the officer having the collection thereof shall exhaust the property of the principal before proceeding to sell that of the surety.

A judgment defendant who is a surety for his co-defendant has such an interest against such co-defendant that he may show that property of his principal is subject to execution for his debts. Delcane v. Pratt, 19 Iowa, 429.

An abandonment of the levy of an execution upon, and a release therefrom of personal property of the principal judgment debtor, operates as a discharge of one who is only surety therein, when such abandonment is without his consent, and the fact of his suretyship was known to the execution plaintiff; especially is this so where the property thus released from levy was held by the surety as his indemnity, and beyond whose legal control it was placed by the levy. Sherarden v. Parker, 24 Id., 28.

The judgment plaintiff in an action against joint defendants may enforce his judgment to its fullest extent against either of them, at his option. Palmer v. Stacey, 44 Id., 340.

SEC. 3040. [Meaning of the term surety.]—The term "surety" in the foregoing section, shall embrace accommodation indorsers, stayers and all other persons whose liability on the claim is posterior to that of another; but the surety shall, if requested by the officer, show property of the principal to entitle himself to the benefit of this provision.

Sec. 3041. [Property of surety liable: when.]—After exhausting the property of the principal, the officer shall subject the property of the other parties in the order of their liability in the execution. But the party subsequently liable, shall, if requested by the officer, show property of the party liable before him so as to entitle himself to the benefit of this provision.

Sec 3042. [Judgment recite order of liability.]—But all the parties will be considered as equally liable in all cases, unless the order of liability is shown to the court and recited in the judgment, and the clerk issuing execution on the judgment containing such recital shall state the order of liability in the execution.

Any act of the creditor which entitles the principal to claim, for any time, an exemption from performance, will work a discharge of the surety. But the surety will not be discharged on the ground that time was given to the principal, if given with the consent of the surety, or if he subsequently ratify the same. Hersheler v. Reynolds, 22 Iowa, 153.

And these rules apply, not only to obligations resting in ordinary contracts, but are to be enforced after the contract has passed into a judgment. Id.; see also, Chambers v. Cochran & Brock, Id., 159.

Where an action at law has been begun against the principal and surety on a note, and the surety sets up the fact of his suretyship and asks judgment accordingly, the plaintiff is not by reason of such plea bound to pursue the alleged principal, but may dismiss as to him, and pursue the surety alone, because as to plaintiff, both are principals, and he may pursue either or both. Dorothy v. Hicks, 53 Id., 240.

LEVY.

Sec. 3043. [Mode of: duty of officer.]—When an execution is delivered to an officer, he must proceed to execute the same with diligence; if executed, an exact description of the property at length, with the date of the levy, shall be indorsed upon or appended to the execution, and if the writ was not executed, or only executed in part, the reason in such case must be stated in the return.

The return of an officer upon an execution is the only legal evidence to show upon what property the writ was levied. Where an execution with the return is lost, parol evidence is admissible to show the contents of the lost return, but it is limited to this. Le Barrow v. Taylor, 53 Iowa, 637.

It was held under the code of 1851 that the statute did not require that notice should be given to the execution defendant of an execution or levy. The law presumes that he has notice that judgment has been rendered against him, and of all the steps taken for the enforcement thereof. Ayres v. Campbell, 9 Id., 213.

The returns on an execution should describe the property levied on with such reasonable certainty as to enable the purchaser to find and identify the same. Payne v. Billingham, 10 Id., 360.

Sec. 3044. [Same.]—The officer must execute the writ by levying on the property of the judgment debtor, collecting the things in action by suit in his own name, if necessary, or by selling the same, selling the other property and paying to the plaintiff the proceeds, or so much thereof as will satisfy the execution.

By the term "property" in this section is meant real, as well as personal, property or estate. Harrison v. Kramer, 3 Iowa, 543, 561.

A judgment creditor may elect, but he is not compelled, to take in payment of his debt script, or the ordinary evidences of indebtedness issued by such corporation. Oswald v. Thedinga, Id., 18.

The levy should describe the property taken, with a certainty that would enable the purchaser to find and identify it. Payne v. Billingham, 10 Id., 360.

Among the steps required by the statute is a levy on, or seizure of, the property, whether it be real or personal. Doward v. Creagh, 49 Id., 293, 299.
SEC. 3045. [What property he shall take.]—The officer shall in all cases select such property, and in such quantities as will be likely to bring the exact amount required to be raised, as nearly as practicable, and having made one levy, may, at any time thereafter, make other levies if he deem it necessary. But no writ of execution shall be a lien on personal property before the actual levy thereof.

When land appraised at $800 was levied on and sold to satisfy a judgment of $21, and accrued costs of less than that sum, it was held that the levy was excessive, and that the sale should be set aside without any further showing. Cook v. Jenkins & Co., 30 Iowa, 452.

The simple noting of personal property on a writ, or taking an inventory, where there is no removal of the property and no person is placed in charge thereof by the officer, does not constitute a valid levy as against one who claims never to have parted with the title to the judgment debtor. Tuchmeyer v. Waltz, 49 Id., 645.

The right of a pledgee will prevail over the lien of an execution levied upon the property pledged by an officer with notice of the contract pledging the same. Reeves & Co. v. Sebern, 16 Id., 254.

SEC. 3046. Judgments, bank bills, and other things in action, may be levied upon and sold, or appropriated as hereinafter provided, and assignment thereof by the officer shall have the same effect as if made by the defendant.

Where a railroad company received a number of its own mortgage bonds from a debtor in payment of his debt, not for the purpose of canceling the same, but with the intention of putting them in circulation as securities, it was held that such bonds were property of the corporation, subject to be levied upon under an execution against its property. Hetherington v. Hayden, 11 Iowa, 335.

As a general rule, the right to levy on and sell personal property under execution, is measured by the power to take and deliver possession thereof. Campbell v. Leonard, 11 Id., 489.

The mortgagor of personal property has no interest therein which can be levied upon and sold under execution. Campbell v. Leonard, 11 Id., 489; Torbert v. Hayden, Id., 435.

A judgment may be levied on and sold under execution as any other personal property under the provisions of this section, but it can be attached only by garnishment under section 2967. Ochiltree v. The M., I. & N. R. Co., 49 Id., 150. See Osborn v. Cloud, 23 Id., 104.

A promissory note may be levied on and sold on execution. Savery v. Hayo, 20 Id., 25, 29.

It was held under section 3272 of the revision, which did not expressly include judgments, that a judgment could not be levied on and sold on execution as any other personal property, but that the proper course was to garnish the judgment debtor. Osborn v. Cloud, 23 Id., 104.

Under this section and section 3091, an assignment of a promissory note by an officer levying on and selling the same has the same effect as if made by the defendant in execution, and confers the same rights upon the assignee of the officer as would be conferred upon an indorsee of the defendant. Earhart v. Gant, 32 Id., 481.

These sections (3045, 3091) are in their nature remedial, and by fair construction, in view of their purpose, the word "defendant", therein should be held to include not only the execution defendant, but a defendant in a garnishment proceeding auxiliary to the execution. Id.

SEC. 3047. [Persons indebted to defendant may pay.]—After the rendition of judgment, any person indebted to the defendant in execution may pay to the sheriff the amount of such indebtedness, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the execution, and the sheriff's receipt shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.

The assignee of railroad bonds under an assignment made after a levy of an execution thereon, takes the same subject to the levy. Hetherington v. Hayden, 11 Iowa, 335.

SEC. 3048. [Public property not liable.]—Public buildings owned by the state, or any county, city, school district, or other municipal corporation, or any other public property which is necessary and proper for carrying out the general purpose for which such corporation is organized, are exempt from execution. The property of a private citizen can in no case be levied on to pay the debt of any such.

A judgment against a city corporation is not a lien upon premises owned by it and used for hospital purposes. City of Davenport v. The F. M. & F. Ins. Co., 17 Iowa, 576.

The property of a municipal corporation which is necessary to be used in carrying out the general purpose of its organization, is exempt from execution. The City of Fort Dodge v. Moore, 37 Id., 388.

A mechanic's lien cannot be established against a building owned by a county and used for county purposes. Lewis v. Chickasaw County, 50 Id., 234.
The mechanic’s lien law is framed with reference only to property which can be sold under execution, and bridges constructed by a county are not, therefore, subject to such a lien. Nor can the court, in an action to enforce a mechanic’s lien on such property, render a personal judgment for the plaintiff. Loring & Co. v. Small, 50 Id., 271.

For the same reason as above, a mechanic’s lien cannot be established against a public school-house. Charnock v. Dist. Ty. of Colfax, 51 Id., 70.

A mechanic’s lien cannot be established against a court-house, or other public property which is exempt from sale under execution under this section. Whiting & Keemer v. Story County, and other cases, 54 Id., 81, and cases cited.

SEC. 3049. [Tax levied to pay corporate debts.]—If no property of a municipal corporation against which execution has issued can be found, or if the judgment creditor elect not to issue execution against such corporation, a tax must be levied as early as practicable to pay off the judgment. When a tax has been so levied and any part thereof shall be collected, the treasurer of such corporation shall pay the same to the judgment creditor, or to the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, in satisfaction thereof.

A municipal corporation can exercise the power of taxation only when expressly conferred by the legislature. Clark v. City of Davenport, 15 low, 401; Jeffries v. Lawrence, 42 Id., 493; The Iowa R. L. Co. v. The Council of Sac, 39 Id., 124.

When a judgment against a municipal corporation can be paid in no other manner, it is the duty of the corporate authorities to levy a special tax sufficient to discharge the same, if within the limit of their power to levy taxes. Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Id., 13; Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 13 Id., 1; Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

When an execution, upon a judgment duly rendered against a municipal corporation, has been issued and returned nulla bona, it is not a matter in the discretion of the city council, but a matter of duty on their part to levy the necessary tax to pay the judgment. Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 13 Id., 1.

The discharge of this duty will be enforced by mandamus. Id. Also, Boynton v. Dist. Ty. of Newton, 34 Id., 570.

When the limitation of the power of a city council renders it impossible to raise sufficient by a single levy to pay off a judgment which is made the basis of a proceeding for mandamus, it is competent for the court to order the making of levies from year to year, within such limitation, until the entire debt is raised and discharged. Id.

A judgment creditor may, but is not compelled to take the scrip of a municipal corporation in payment of his judgment. Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391; Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Id., 13.

After demand upon, and refusal by, the officers of a municipal corporation to levy a tax to pay a judgment, if within the limit of their power to do so, they were individually liable under the revision of 1869. But if the taxing power was exhausted for the year for which the demand was made, they would not be liable for such failure; but the failure to make the levy from year to year, when no legal impediment existed, would render them liable without any new demand. Id.

If the current expenses of a corporation are so large as to absorb the entire amount of taxes which the officers of the corporation are authorized to levy, they will not be liable for a refusal to make a further levy; nor for a failure to set apart a portion of that levied, in payment of the judgment. Porter v. Thompson 22 Id., 391. See also, Coffin v. The City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

The provisions of this section apply to school districts as well as other municipal corporations, and the levy of a tax to pay a judgment against the district may be enforced against the directors by mandamus. And that they have issued an order on the treasurer of the district for the amount of the judgment does not change the rule above stated. Boynton v. The Dist. Ty. of Newton, 34 Id., 510.

If it be shown that the valuation and assessment of property within the corporation is purposely made too low in order to avoid a judgment against the corporation, it will be compelled by mandamus to make a fair assessment of the property, and apply in payment of the judgment, of the proceeds arising from the maximum tax levied thereon, such surplus as remains after deducting the amount required for the current expenses of the municipal government. Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

This section confers no independent power of taxation, and does not require municipal corporations to levy a judgment tax in excess of the maximum rate of taxation established by the statute. The Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. The County of Sac, 39 Id., 124; Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 17 Id., 1; Oswald v. Thedinga, 1d., 13; Porter v. Thompson, 22 Id., 391; Coffin v. City Council of Davenport, 26 Id., 515.

The denomination of a tax in the levy as “for judgment fund,” and “for city judgment tax,” is not so ambiguous as will permit the introduction of evidence to show that the proceeds were intended by the city council to be applied to another purpose than the payment of outstanding judgments against the city. Rice v. Walker, 44 Id., 498.
The levy of a tax of eight mills by a city for the payment of judgments against it, after a tax of ten mills had been levied for general purposes, was held, not illegal. Id.

Where orders are drawn on the treasurer of a school district by order of the board of directors to a creditor for the amount of his claim, and there are no funds in the treasurer's hands to meet the same, it becomes the duty of the board to levy a tax to provide the necessary funds, and on its refusal, it may be compelled thereto by mandamus. Stevenson & Rice v. The Dist. Tp. of Summit, 35 Id., 462. See, also, Brown v.CREO, 32 Id., 498; and The State, ex rel Clark, Dodge & Co. v. The City of Davenport, 12 Id., 335.

SEC. 3050. [Stocks or interests levied upon.]-Stock or interests owned by the defendant in any corporation, and also debts due him, and property of his in the hands of the third persons, may be levied upon in the same manner provided for attaching the same.

Debts due a defendant may be levied upon under execution, in the manner provided for attaching the same, and the proceeding by garnishment must be the same as near as practicable. Cleffin v. Iowa City, 12 Iowa, 286; Lambert v. Powers, 36 Id., 18, 20.

PROCEDINGS BY GARNISHMENT.

SEC. 3051. [How done: proceedings.]-In proceedings by garnishment on execution, the garnishee shall be served as in case of attachment. The plaintiff may, also, if the garnishee is called into court, have a case docketed against him without docket fee, and upon his answer to the officer, issue may be made and notice thereof given him or issue may be made on his answer in court without any notice thereon if made at the same term; and in all these and every other particular, the proceedings shall be the same as under garnishment on attachment, as near as the nature of the case will allow.

Where issue is not taken on the answer of the garnishee at the same time it is filed, the garnishee is entitled to notice. But if he makes a voluntary appearance in person, or by attorney, notice is unnecessary. Kinne v. Anderson, 13 Iowa, 565, 566.

When the property to be levied upon is a fund in court, it may be levied upon in the manner prescribed by statute. Patterson v. Pratt, 19 Id., 358.

SEC. 3052. [Not affected by expiration of execution.]-Proceedings by garnishment on execution shall not be in any manner affected by the expiration of the execution or its return; and where parties thereunder have been garnished, the officer shall return to the next term thereafter a copy of the execution with all his doings thereon, so far as garnishments thereon are concerned.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

SEC. 3053. [Officer may take possession, inventory and appraise.]-When an officer has an execution against a person who owns property jointly, in common, or in partnership with another, such officer may levy on and take possession of the property owned jointly, in common, or in partnership, sufficiently to enable him to appraise and inventory the same, and for that purpose shall call to his assistance three disinterested persons, which inventory and appraisement shall be returned by the officer with the execution, and shall state in his return who claims to own the property.

See ante, section 2973, and notes to that section, as to the effect of a levy upon partnership property.

The interest of a defendant in the assets of a partnership of which he is a member, is liable to be taken in execution or reached by proceedings thereunder, and must be first exhausted before resort can be had to the homestead of the defendant. Lambert v. Powers, 36 Iowa, 18.

SEC. 3054. [Lien enforced by equitable proceeding.]-The plaintiff shall, from the time such property is so levied on, have a lien on the interest of the defendant therein, and may commence an action by equitable proceedings to ascertain the nature and intent of such interest and to enforce the lien; and if deemed necessary or proper, the court or judge may appoint a receiver under the circumstances provided in chapter twelve of title seventeen of this code.
The creditor of an insolvent person can subject to the payment of his debt, real property the title to which is in his wife’s name, but toward the payment of which the debtor has contributed, to the extent of such contributions, and this rule is not varied by the fact that the real property in controversy embraces the homestead, which would to the same extent, be liable for an antecedent indebtedness. Gray & Shaffer v. Morton et ux., 49 Id., 16.

Where it is sought to reach the interest of a party in partnership property, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that the party is a member of the partnership; and where such fact is not established by the evidence, the appointment of a receiver to determine the value of his interest in the partnership is erroneous. Dupuy & Howell v. Schoe & Sharrar, 57 Id., 361.

Where a separate creditor of an individual partner levied upon and sold partnership property, without bringing an action for property the debtor’s interest therein as provided by this section it was held that such sale was invalid as against a creditor of the partnership who afterward levied upon the same property. Aultman & Co. v. Fuller, Williams & Co., 58 Id., 60.

INDEMNIFYING BOND.

SEC. 3055. [May be required when.]—An officer is bound to levy an execution on any personal property in the possession of, or that he has reason to believe belongs to, the defendant, unless he has received notice in writing from some other person, his agent, or his attorney, that such property belongs to him; or, if after levy he receives such notice, such officer may release the property unless a bond is given as provided in the next section; but the officer shall be protected from all liability by reason of such levy until he receives such written notice.

An officer is bound to levy an execution upon any personal property in the possession of the defendants, unless he receives written notice that such property belongs to a third person, and he is protected from all liability by reason of the levy until he receives such notice. Kaster & Farrell v. Pease, 42 Iowa, 488; Finch v. Hollinger, 43 Id., 598.

An action to recover possession of personal property cannot be maintained against a sheriff who holds it by virtue of an execution, unless the plaintiff, prior to the commencement of the action gives the sheriff notice in writing of his ownership thereof. Finch v. Hollinger, 43 Id., 598; Kaster & Farrell v. Pease, 42 Id., 488; Peterson v. Espeset, 43 Id., 202.

Without bringing an action for property the officer, wherein the plaintiff’s title to which is in his wife’s name, but toward the payment of which the debtor has contributed, to the extent of such contributions, and this rule is not varied by the fact that the real property in controversy embraces the homestead, which would to the same extent, be liable for an antecedent indebtedness. Gray & Shaffer v. Morton et ux., 49 Id., 16.

Where an execution was levied on mortgaged chattels, and the mortgagee gave written notice to the officer that he was the owner of the chattels by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and that he demanded immediate return of the chattels to the place from which they had been taken by the officer, it was held, that the notice was sufficient, under this section, to render the further possession of the goods by the officer wrongful, and entile him to demand a bond of indemnity, and to render him liable to a personal action. Wells v. Chapman, 50 Id., 498.

An officer is bound to attach property the title of which is in doubt, but having made a levy, and on demand a proper indemnifying bond having been given, he cannot release the property without making himself liable if, in fact, the property was subject to attachment. Wadsworth & Co. v. Walliker, 51 Id., 605.

Where an officer levies on goods, and subsequently, on his own motion, releases the levy, the burden is on him to show a sufficient cause for such release. Id.

An officer cannot demand an indemnifying bond in excess of the sum necessary to secure him, and an agreement to give such bond cannot be enforced. Id.

A bill of sale to the claimant of property, delivered by him to an officer who is proceeding to levy an execution thereon, does not constitute the notice of his claim provided for in this section. Gray v. Parker et al., 53 Id., 505.

This section does not require a debtor to give notice to the sheriff of his right or claim of exemption to property levied on. McCoy v. Cornell et al., 49 Id., 457.

The provisions of sections 3055 to 3060 relate exclusively to the levy of an execution, and have no reference to an attachment. Wadsworth & Co. v. Walliker, 45 Id., 395, 397.

An officer who holds goods under a writ of attachment may, at his discretion, release the same upon the claim of a third party that he is the owner; but the officer does so at his peril, and he will have the burden of establishing that the attached property did not belong to the attachment defendant. Id.

The fact that property upon which an execution was levied was, at the time, in the custody of the officer under a writ of attachment, will not relieve a third person, who claims to own the property, of the necessity of serving upon the officer the notice required by section 3055 of the code. Allen v. Wheeler et al., 54 Id., 628.

Where an officer held several executions in favor of several plaintiffs, all against the same defendant, which he levied upon property as that of the defendant, which was claimed by a third person as owner, and gave the notice prescribed in this section to the officer, giving only one notice, made applicable to all the executions, and the execution creditors thereupon joined in one indemnifying bond, held, that one notice and bond were sufficient compliance with the statute, and in an action upon the bond against all of the obligors there was no misdemeanor of causes of action. Baxter v. Ray et al., 62 Id., 336.

SEC. 3056. [Terms and conditions of.]—When the officer receives such notice he may forthwith give the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, notice that an indemnifying bond is required. Bond may thereupon be given by or for the plaintiff, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer, to the effect that the obligors will indemnify him against the damages which he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale of the property, and will pay to any claimant thereof the damages he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale, and will warrant to any purchaser of the property such estate or interest therein as is sold; and thereupon the officer shall proceed to subject the property to the execution, and shall return the indemnifying bond to the district court of the county in which the levy was made.

SEC. 3057. [If not given levy discharged.]—If such bond is not given, the officer may refuse to levy, or if he has done so, and the bond is not given in a reasonable time after it is required by the officer, he may restore the property to the person from whose possession it was taken, and the levy shall stand discharged.

SEC. 3058. [Officer protected if bond good when taken.]—The claimant or purchaser of any property, for the seizure or sale of which an indemnifying bond has been taken and returned by the officer shall be barred of any action against the officer levying on the property if the surety on the bond was good when it was taken. Any such claimant or purchaser may maintain an action upon the bond, and recover such damages as he may be entitled to.

This section of the code, in so far as it deprives the claimant of property levied upon by an officer, under the contingency therein provided, from bringing an action against such officer to recover the specific property levied on, is unconstitutional and void. Towle et al v. Man, 2 N. W. Rep. (Iowa), 349, (814).

This section is in conflict with the state constitution in so far as it seeks to bar an action against an officer, who levies an execution on and seizes property of a person not the execution defendant, by the taking and returning, by the officer, of a bond of indemnity, as provided in sections 3055, 3056. Craig v. Fowler, 59 Iowa, 200; Following the reasoning and holding in Foule & Roper v. Mann, 53 Id., 42.

The levy of an attachment is not within the provisions of the sections of the code providing for an indemnifying bond, and the officer, in such case, is not protected thereby; those sections refer solely to the protection of the officer in the service and levy of an execution. Hall v. Ballon, 58 Id., 565.

SEC. 3059. [Application of proceeds of such property.]—Where property, for the sale of which the officer is indemnified, sells for more than enough to satisfy the execution under which it was taken, the surplus shall be paid into the court to which the indemnifying bond is directed to be returned. The court may order such disposition or payment of the money to be made, temporarily or absolutely, as may be proper in respect to the rights of the parties interested.

SEC. 3060. [Executions issued by justices.]—The provisions of the preceding sections as to bonds, shall apply to the proceedings upon executions issued by justices of the peace. Indemnifying bonds shall be returned in such cases with the execution under which they are taken.

Where land was sold on execution issued upon a judgment which was not a lien on the land, and the sale was afterwards set aside for that reason, held that the satisfaction of the judgment by the sale should also have been set aside; and the overruling of a motion to that end was erroneous. Farmer & Sons v. Sasseen, 63 Iowa, 110.

STAY OF EXECUTION.

SEC. 3061. [How effected: for what time.]—On all judgments for the recovery of money except those rendered in any court on an appeal or writ of error thereto, or against any officer, person or corporation, or the sureties of any of them, for money received in a fiduciary capacity, or for the breach of any official duty, there may be a stay of execution if the defendant therein shall, within ten days from the entry of judgment, procure one or more sufficient freehold sureties to enter into a bond acknowledging themselves security for the defendant for the payment of the judgment, interest and costs from the time of rendering judgment until paid, as follows:

1. If the sum for which judgment was rendered, inclusive of costs, does not exceed one hundred dollars, three months;
2. If such sum and costs exceed one hundred dollars, six months; provided, that the provisions of this chapter in relation to stay of execution shall not apply to existing contracts, but such contracts shall be governed by the laws in force at the time they were made, which are as follows:

When judgment has been rendered against any one for recovery of money, he may, by procuring one or more sufficient freehold securities to enter into a recognizance acknowledging themselves security for the defendant for the payment of the judgment, together with the interest and costs accrued and to accrue, have a stay of the execution from the time of rendering judgment, as follows:

I the sum for which judgment was rendered, inclusive of costs, does not exceed five dollars, one month;
If such sum and costs exceed five, but not twenty dollars, two months;
If such sum and costs exceed twenty, but not forty dollars, three months;
If such sum and costs exceed forty, but not sixty dollars, four months;
If such sum and costs exceed sixty, but not one hundred dollars, six months;
If such sum and costs exceed one hundred, but not one hundred and fifty dollars, nine months;
If such sum and costs exceed one hundred and fifty dollars, twelve months;

And provided, further, that all judgments shall bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum on which stay is taken.

A subsequent purchaser of mortgaged property, who has assumed, as between himself and the mortgagor, the payment of the mortgage debt, and who is also a co-defendant with the mortgagor in the action to foreclose the mortgage, may under this section, without the consent of the mortgagor, stay the execution of the judgment of foreclosure. Moses v. The Clerk, etc., 12 Iowa, 139.

The provisions of the revision relating to stay of execution govern in judgments rendered before the code came into effect. Du Boise v. Bloom, 38 Id., 512.

The act of the clerk of the court in passing upon the sufficiency of a stay bond is not a judicial one, and he is liable for any damage sustained by the judgment creditor by reason of his negligence in accepting an insufficient bond. Hubbard v. Switzer, 47 Iowa, 681.

The taking of the affidavit of the surety as required in this section does not exonerate the clerk from liability if he has been negligent. Id.
SEC. 3063. [No appeal where stay is taken.]—No appeal shall be allowed after such stay has been obtained, nor shall a stay be taken on a judgment entered as herein contemplated against one who is surety in the stay of execution, nor shall such stay be allowed to any judgment obtained by a laboring man or mechanic for his wages.

A stay of execution under section 3061, operates as a waiver of the right to appeal. Seacrist v. Newman, 19 Iowa, 323.

SEC. 3064. [Clerk to take and record bond.]—The surety for stay of execution may be taken and approved by the clerk, and the bond shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose and have the force and effect of a judgment confessed from the date thereof against the property of the sureties, and the clerk shall enter and index the same in the proper judgment docket, as in case of other judgments.

Where a bond for a stay of execution taken and filed with the clerk was lost and no entry thereof made upon the records of the court, it was held, that it did not become a lien under this section upon the property of the surety as against subsequent incumbrancers without actual notice. Waldron Bros. v. Dickerson, 52 Iowa, 171.

Parol evidence is not admissible to prove that a stay bond was not filed at the time stated in the records. Maynes v. Brochway, 55 Id., 457.

SEC. 3065. [Execution recalled.]—When the surety is entered after execution issued, the clerk shall immediately notify the sheriff of the stay of the surey, and he shall forthwith return the execution with his doings thereon.

SEC. 3066. [Property levied on released.]—All property levied on before stay of execution, and all written undertakings for the delivery of personal property to the sheriff, shall be relinquished by the officer upon stay of execution being entered.

SEC. 3067. [Execution against: form of.]—At the expiration of the stay, the clerk shall issue a joint execution against the property of all the judgment debtors and sureties, describing them as debtors or sureties therein.

The failure of the clerk to issue execution immediately after the expiration of the stay does not deprive the party in whose favor the bond was given of its benefits, the provisions of this section being directory merely. Parish v. Elwell, 46 Iowa, 162.

SEC. 3068. [Surety may prevent stay.]—When any court shall render judgment against two or more persons, any of whom is surety for any other in the contract on which judgment is founded, there shall be no stay of execution allowed if the surety object thereto at the time of rendering the judgment, whereupon it shall be ordered by the court that there be no stay, unless the surety for the stay of execution will undertake specifically to pay the judgment in case the amount thereof cannot be levied of the principal defendant.

When a judgment is rendered against a principal and surety upon any contract, the surety may object to any stay of execution. If he does so, no stay can be taken unless the surety for the stay will undertake specifically to pay the judgment in case the amount cannot be collected from the principal debtor. But where the original surety does not object to a stay, the surety on the stay bond will not, as between him and the original surety, be charged with primary liability to pay the judgment. Chase v. Watty, 57 Iowa, 230.

Where the original surety makes no objection to a stay of execution on the judgment, he is presumably a party thereto, and has thereby waived his right to redeem his lands subsequently sold on execution to satisfy the judgment. Id.

SEC. 3069. [Surety may determine stay.]—Any surety for the stay of execution may file with the clerk an affidavit, stating that he verily believes he will be liable for the judgment, interest, and costs thereon unless execution issues immediately; and the clerk shall thereupon issue execution forthwith, unless other sufficient surety be entered before the clerk as in other cases.

Sec. 3070. [Other surety given.]—If other sufficient surety be entered, it shall have the force of the original surety entered before the filing of the affidavit, and shall discharge the original surety.

Sec. 3071. [Judgment lien not released.]—Where a stay of execution has been taken, such confessed judgment shall not release any judgment lien by virtue of the original judgment for the amount then due. The officer holding the said execution shall return thereon what amount was made from the principal debtor, and how much from the surety.

EXEMPTIONS.

Sec. 3072. (As amended by ch. 42, 15 g. a., ch. 62, 19 g. a., and ch. 49, 19 g. a.) [Property enumerated.]—If the debtor is a resident of this state and is the head of a family, he may hold exempt from execution the following property: All wearing apparel of himself and family kept for actual use and suitable to their condition, and the trunks or other receptacles necessary to contain the same; one musket or rifle and shot gun; all private libraries, family bibles, portraits, pictures, musical instruments, and paintings, not kept for the purpose of sale; a seat or pew occupied by the debtor or his family in any house of public worship; an interest in a public or private burying ground, not exceeding one acre for any defendant; two cows and calf; one horse, unless a horse is exempt as hereinafter provided; fifty sheep and the wool therefrom, [and the materials manufactured from such wool] six stands of bees; five hogs, and all pigs under six months; the necessary food for all animals exempt from execution, for six months; all flax raised by the defendant on not exceeding one acre of ground and the manufactures therefrom; one bedstead and the necessary bedding for every two in the family; all cloth manufactured by the defendant, not exceeding one hundred yards in quantity; household and kitchen furniture, not exceeding two hundred dollars in value; all spinning wheels and looms, one sewing machine and other instruments of domestic labor kept for actual use; the necessary provisions and fuel for the use of the family for six months; the proper tools, instruments, or books of the debtor, if a farmer, mechanic, surveyor, clergyman, lawyer, physician, teacher, or professor; the horse or the team, consisting of not more than two horses or mules, or two yoke of cattle, and the wagon or other vehicle, with a proper harness or tackle, by the use of which the debtor, if a physician, public officer, farmer, teamster, or other laborer habitually earns his living. [If the debtor is a seamstress one sewing machine shall be exempt from execution and attachment.] And to the debtor, if a printer, there shall also be exempt a printing press and the types, furniture, and material necessary for the use of such printing press and a newspaper office connected therewith, not to exceed in all the value of twelve hundred dollars. [Any person entitled to any of the exemptions mentioned in this section does not waive his rights thereto by failing to designate or select such exempt property, or by failing to object to a levy thereon, unless failing or refusing so to do when required to make such designation or selection by the officers about to levy.]

The exemption contemplated in section 3225 of the code, extends only to the articles enumerated in section 3072, and was intended for the particular parties mentioned. Funk et al. v. Israel, 5 Iowa, 438.

A waiver of exemption laws, contained in a promissory note, will not, when judgment is obtained thereon, entitle the plaintiff to have his execution levied upon property exempt from execution by the general law of the state. Curtis v. O'Brien & Sears, 20 Id., 376.

A widower with whom lived his son and his son's wife, and who employed a household servant, was held to be the head of a family within the meaning of this section. Lyon v. Reynolds, 62 Id., 451.
The stock of goods of plaintiff who was a retail grocer, was taken possession of under a chattel mortgage. Although no contract had been made for plaintiff's services between him and the mortgagee, he continued to assist in the business by delivering in person the goods sold to customers, using therefor a wagon owned and used by him for the purpose while he conducted the business. Two or three days after he surrendered the goods, the wagon was levied on by the defendant under an execution against the plaintiff; held that the wagon was exempt as property by the use of which the plaintiff earned his living. Baker v. Hazlett, 53 Id., 18.

Where the owner of exempt personal property is present when a levy is made thereon, and permits the property to be taken without objection, he will be deemed to have waived his right of exemption, and will be stopped from afterward asserting the same. Angell v. Johnson et al., 51 Id., 629.

A threshing machine used by a farmer to thresh the grain of others for hire, as well as his own, is not exempt from execution, and will be assets in the hands of his administrator. Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 359.

While a physician would be entitled to claim as exempt two horses, if by their use he habitually earned his living, and this whether he used them together or singly, yet, in order to avail himself of this exemption, he must show this use of both horses, for the purpose and in the manner contemplated by the statute. Crop v. Griswold, 37 Id., 379.

Property which under the statute is exempt to a widow, as the head of a family, is not to be deemed assets in the hands of the administrator, nor to be administered upon as such. Ellsworth v. Ellsworth, 53 Id., 164.

Consent on the part of the widow to such administration, under a misapprehension of her rights, will not estop her from afterwards claiming the property or the proceeds. Id.

The exemption law is to be liberally construed. If a person abandons one employment and procures a team, or a part of a team, intending to complete it for the purpose of using the same in good faith to earn for himself a livelihood, it will be deemed such an habitual use of the team in contemplation of the statute, as to exempt the same from execution, whether the person claiming the benefit of the exemption law has had an opportunity of using the team much or little. Bevon v. Hayden, 13 Id., 122, 125.

A person owning property exempt from execution, may dispose of the same by sale, and an attachment levied while a sale is being made and before it is perfected, does not affect the right of the owner under the exemption laws. Id.

The building in which a photographer carries on his business, even though it be personal property, is not exempt from execution under section 3072 of the code. Holden v. Strumahan, 48 Id., 70.

A person who is engaged in the livery business may be a laborer, and if he, in that business, uses a team of horses and wagon, or other vehicle, and thereby habitually earns his living, the same is exempt from execution under this section. Root v. Gray, 64 Id., 399.

The proceeds of personal property exempt from execution, voluntarily sold by the owner, are not exempt from execution. Harrier v. Fossett et al., 56 Id., 264.

Where husband and wife having no children lived separate and apart for the period of seven years prior to the husband's death, he boarding with others, and neither contributing nor being asked to contribute to the support of his wife, it was held that he was not at the time of his death the head of a family within the meaning of the statute exempting personal property from execution. Linton v. Crosby, Id., 386.

A yearling heifer is not exempt from execution under this section, which exempts "two cows and a calf." Mitchell v. Joyce, 69 Id., 121.

Under this section, as amended by chapter 49, laws of 1882, an execution defendant does not waive his right to hold property exempt from execution by failing to assert his claim when he learns of his seizure, unless the officer requires him to designate the property which he claims as exempt, nor does such silence work an estoppel where it is not shown what, if any, expense was incurred by the officer in keeping and sale of the property. Ellsworth v. Sarre, 67 Id., 449.

The provision of this section exempting from execution "the proper tools, instruments, or books of the debtor, if a & * * * lawyer," exempts a lawyer's office furniture, including his table, necessary to enable him to carry on his business, and cannot be seized on a landlord's attachment. Abraham v. Davenport, 34 N. W. R., 767.

A person whose vocation is that of a farmer is entitled to have exempted to him the property with which he, as a farmer, earns a living for himself and family, even though he does not own a farm, and has not leased one, and is not actually engaged in farming at the time such property is levied to satisfy his debts. Hickman v. Cruise, Sheriff, 72 Iowa, 528.

Where the plaintiff entered into an agreement with her brother, who was insolvent, whereby she rented a farm of a third person and employed her brother to cultivate it in the use of his farm implements which were exempt from execution, the object being to enable the brother to employ himself and his implements at a certain rate per month, which would be exempt from execution, rather than to rent the farm himself and raise crop which would be subject to execution, Held, that the transaction was not fraudulent in law, and that the crops could not be taken for his debts. Patterson v. Johnson, 59 Id., 397.

A widower with whom lived his son and his son’s wife, and who employed a household servant, was held to be the head of a family within the meaning of this section. Lyon v. Reynolds, 52 Id., 451.

The husband is the head of the family within the meaning of this statute exempting property from sale on execution with which he habitually earns his living. Such property belonging to the wife before marriage and used for the family support, is not exempt from execution levied under a judgment against his wife. Van Doran v. Marden, 43 Id., 186.

But it has been held that a waiver of the exemption laws contained in a note will not, when a judgment is obtained thereon, entitle the plaintiff to have the execution levied upon property exempt from execution by the general law of the state. Curtis v. O’Brien & Sears, 20 Id., 376. See same case for cases holding the contrary, 378.

The proceeds of personal property exempt from execution, voluntarily sold by the owner, are not exempt from execution. Harrier v. Fassett, 56 Id., 284.

SEC. 3073. The word “family,” as used in the last section, does not include strangers or boarders lodging with the family.

SEC. 3074. The earnings of such debtor for his personal services, or those of his family, at any time within ninety days next preceding the levy, are also exempt from execution and attachment. The earnings of a debtor which are exempt from execution, include as well the earnings of professional men as of mechanics and laborers. McCoy v. Cornell et al., 40 Iowa, 457.

It is not necessary that the person claiming exemption of his personal earnings shall give notice of such claim to the sheriff. Id.

This section does not authorize the creditor to seize by garnishment the earnings of a debtor accruing after the garnishment, except those earnings in excess of ninety days. The earnings for ninety days are exempt whether they accrue before or after garnishment. Davis, Watson & Co. v. Humphrey, 22 Id., 137.

Where the plaintiff, as a subcontractor, agreed to furnish the materials and perform the labor for a certain improvement, for a stipulated sum, the materials, however, to be paid for by the principal contractor, and the amount thereof credited upon the contract, it was held that the remainder, after such materials were paid for, was exempt from execution or counter-claim as the personal earnings of the plaintiff, he being the head of a family, and the work having been performed by him personally within ninety days next preceding the commencement of the action. Banks v. Rodenbach et al., 54 Id., 695.

Money due from boarders to a boarding-house keeper, for boarding and lodging furnished by the boarding-house keeper, for which she charges and receives a stated sum per month, in a lump, for the entire boarding and lodging thus furnished, is not exempt from execution as earnings for personal services under this section. Shelly v. Smith et al., 58 Id., 453.

Where the owner of exempt personal property is present when a levy is made thereon, and permits the property to be taken without objection, he will be deemed to have waived his right of exemption, and will be stopped from afterward asserting the same. Angell v. Johnson et al., 51 Id., 625.

But it has been held that a waiver of the exemption laws contained in a note, will not, when a judgment is obtained thereon, entitle the plaintiff to have the execution levied upon property exempt from execution by the general law of the state. Curtis v. O’Brien & Sears, 20 Id., 376. See same case for cases holding the contrary, 378.

The proceeds of personal property exempt from execution, voluntarily sold by the owner, are not exempt from execution. Harrier v. Fassett et al., 56 Id., 284.

SEC. 3075. [Unmarried persons. ]—There shall be exempt to an unmarried person, not the head of a family, and to non-residents, their own ordinary wearing apparel and trunks necessary to contain the same.

SEC. 3076. [Persons who have started to leave the state. ]—Where the debtor, if the head of a family, has started to leave the state, he shall have exempt only the ordinary wearing apparel of himself and family, and such other property, in addition, as he may select, in all not exceeding seventy-five dollars in value; which property shall be selected by the debtor and appraised according to the provisions of section two thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven of chapter one of this title, but any person coming into this state with the intention of remaining, shall be considered a resident within the meaning of this chapter.

Where a debtor, who was the head of a family, had declared his purpose to move out of the state, and had prepared his wagon to receive his household effects, a part of which he had.boxed and removed from the house, it was held that such acts constituted a starting to leave the state, such as would render his team, and other property otherwise exempt, subject to attachment under section 3076 of the code. Grata v. Manning et al., 54 Iowa, 719. Adams, Ch. J., and Roothrock, J., dissenting.

Sec. 3077. [Purchase money.]-None of the exemptions prescribed in this chapter shall be allowed against an execution issued for the purchase money of property claimed to be exempt, and on which such execution is levied.

Improvements in husbandry are not exempt from execution for the purchase money thereof. Mitchell v. Joyce, 69 Iowa, 121.

Sec. 3078. [Absconding debtor.]—When a debtor absconds and leaves his family, such property shall be exempt in the hands of the wife and children, or either of them.

It is not necessary that a debtor should have deserted his family, or left without their knowledge or consent, to entitle his wife or children to hold property exempt from execution under this section of the code; it is sufficient if he has absconded to escape from the jurisdiction to avoid the service of the process of the courts. Malvin v. Christoph, 54 Iowa, 562. In such case where the debtor has left more property than is exempt under the statute, the wife may select that which she will retain. Id.

EXEMPTING PENSION MONEY.

An Act to exempt from judicial sale, the pension money paid to any person by the United States government, and certain of the proceeds and accumulations thereof.

Sec. 1. [Moneys and credits.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: All money received by any person, resident of the state, as a pension from the United States government, whether the same shall be in the actual possession of such pensioner, or deposited, loaned, or invested by him, shall be exempt from execution or attachment, or seizure by or under any legal process whatever, whether such pensioner shall be the head of a family or not.

Sec. 2. [Homestead.]-The homestead of every such pensioner, whether the head of a family or not, purchased and paid for with any such pension money, or the proceeds or accumulations of such pension money, shall also be exempt as is now provided by the law of this state in relation to homesteads; and such exemption shall also apply to debts of such pensioner contracted prior to the purchase of such homestead.

Sec. 3. [Absconding debtor.]-When a debtor absconds and leaves his family, the property exempted by this act, shall also be exempt to his wife and children, or either of them.

Approved March 20, 1884.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers.)

Where a woman received pension money and loaned it, and took a note for security, and a few days before her death, which occurred a few days prior to the taking effect of chapter 23, laws of 1884 exempting pensions from execution, she assigned the note as a gift to her daughter, held that, in the absence of other assets, the note was liable in the daughter's hands to the payment of claims against her mother's estate. Baugh v. Barrett, Adm'r., 69 Id., 495.

From the time chapter 23, laws of 1884 took effect, a pensioner might make a gift of his pension money, and the donee might hold the same, or property purchased therewith, against the donor's creditors. But in a case where the gift was made to the wife of the pensioner, and the property was purchased and an action commenced to subject the property to the payment of the pensioner's debt, all before the said chapter took effect, it was held that plaintiff had acquired an equitable lien upon the property which it was not within the power of the legislature to divest, and that the actions are not intended to have such effect. Globe & Co. v. Stephenson et al., 68 Id., 370.

Where a husband abandons his wife, leaving in her hands exempt property, such property is exempt in her hands from his debts, under this section, and she may dispose of it in such way as in her judgment may seem best, and the husband's creditors cannot complain. Waugh v. Bridgeford, 69 Id., 334.

SALE.

SEC. 3079. [Notice of.]—The sheriff must give four weeks' notice of the time and place of selling real property, and three weeks' notice of personal property.

SEC. 3080. [How given.]—Notice shall be given by being posted up in at least three public places of the county, one of which shall be at the place where the last district court was held. In addition to which, in case of the sale of real estate, or where personal property to the amount of two hundred dollars or upwards is to be sold, there shall be two publications of such notice in some newspaper printed in the county, if there be one. In constables' sales there shall be no newspaper publication, and the notice shall be posted in three public places of the township of the justice, and one of them at his office door. The time of such notice shall be two weeks.

SEC. 3081. [Penalty for selling without notice.]—An officer selling without the notice above prescribed shall forfeit one hundred dollars to the defendant in execution, in addition the actual damages sustained by either party; but the validity of the sale is not thereby affected.

The purchaser at judicial sale is authorized to assume the regularity of the judgment and levy, and irregularities in other respects will not, in the absence of fraud, affect the title acquired by an innocent purchaser. Cooley v. Wilson, 42 Iowa, 425. See also, Cavender v. Heirs of Smith, 1 Id., 306; Shafer v. Bolander, 4 G. Greene, 201; Burton v. Emerson, Id., 393; Hopping v. Burnham, 2 G. Greene, 39.

A failure to advertise will not invalidate the sale. Cooley v. Wilson, 42 Iowa, 425, 428.

The statute requiring notice of the sale of property on execution is directory, and, in the absence of fraud, a failure to comply with the statute in this respect will not render the sale and deed void. Id.

The penalty provided in this section for selling property on execution without giving the notice prescribed in the preceding section, cannot be recovered where no actual damage has accrued. And where action was begun for damages and penalty, but the claim for damages was withdrawn, a judgment for the penalty was unauthorized. Enfield v. Blyler, 67 Id., 294. See also, Caffey v. Wilson, 63 Id., 270.

SEC. 3082. [Time of sale.]—The sale must be at public auction, between nine o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon, and the hour of the commencement of the sale must be fixed in the notice.

Sheriff's sales must be at public auction. Swortzell v. Martin, 16 Iowa, 519, 527.

For many purposes a sheriff in conducting a judicial sale is to be considered as the agent of both parties; while he is to be diligent in securing the money due to the creditor he is invested with a sound discretion as to the time, place and manner of sale; and this discretion must be exercised with a fair and impartial attention to the interests of all concerned. Id.

Improper conduct on the part of the sheriff is not alone sufficient to set aside a judicial sale when it is not shown that the purchaser was connected with such conduct. Id.

SEC. 3083. [Officer may postpone when.]—When there are no bidders, or when the amount offered is grossly inadequate, or when from any cause the sale is prevented from taking place on the day fixed, the sheriff may postpone the sale for not more than three days, without being required to give any further notice thereof; but he shall not make more than two such postponements, and such postponement shall be publicly announced when the sale should have taken place.

It would seem that where the inadequacy of price is great, the bidders few, and the sheriff has failed judiciously to exercise the power to adjourn the sale, an application to set it aside should be sustained if made within a reasonable time. Id.

When real property is bid in on execution sale by the judgment plaintiff for the amount of his claim, and there is no proof of oppression on his part in not making the levy on other property, or proof that the sale was not properly and fairly conducted, and it appears that the debtor knew the property was advertised for sale, and the year of redemption was allowed to pass without an effort to redeem, the sale will not be set aside even though the price paid was grossly inadequate. Peterson v. Little et al., 37 N. W. R., 189.
SEC. 3084. [Disposition of excess.]—When the property sells for more than the amount required to be collected, the overplus must be paid to the defendant, unless the officer have another execution in his hands on which said overplus may be rightfully applied.

While the surplus of moneys arising from the sale of lands under mortgage foreclosure, when remaining in the hands of the sheriff, or under the control of the court, belongs to subsequent lien-holders in the order of their priority, and should be so awarded by the court; yet when the execution on which the sale is made does not direct the disposition of such surplus, and the sheriff acts in good faith and without such subsequent liens, applies the money on other executions in his hands against the mortgagor, he is not liable therefor to such lien-holders. Polk Co. for use, etc., v. Sypher, 17 Iowa, 358.

Contests in respect to surplus arising on sales on execution may be determined upon motion instead of by petition in equity or other action, especially when the facts are undisputed, or are susceptible of being clearly and easily ascertained. Id.

But when the money has been actually paid over by the sheriff to subsequent execution creditors of the same debtor, such creditors should be brought into court as parties to the proceedings. Id.

Where the sheriff after sale on a foreclosure of a mortgage has a balance in his hands belonging to the mortgagor, such balance or surplus may be legally applied on executions against the mortgagor, then in the hands of the sheriff. Payne v. Bellingham, 10 Id., 360.

Where an execution has been levied upon real property, such levy must be disposed of by a sale or abandonment thereof, or set aside by a court, before a second execution can issue, except as provided in section 3086 of this code. Downard v. Crenshaw, 49 Id., 296.

Where the property has been sold at judicial sale to the execution creditor, he cannot afterwards withdraw his bid, and treat the sale as a nullity, except with the consent of the execution debtor. Id.

SEC. 3085. [Another execution.]—If the property levied on sell for less than sufficient for that purpose, the plaintiff may order out another execution, which shall be credited with the amount of the previous sale. The proceedings under this second sale shall conform to those hereinbefore prescribed.

SEC. 3086. [Levy holds good unless plaintiff abandons.]—When property is unsold for want of bidders, the levy still holds good; and, if there be sufficient time, it may again be advertised or the execution returned and one issued commanding the officer to sell the property, describing it, previously levied on, to which a clause may be added, that if such property does not produce a sum sufficient to satisfy such execution, the officer shall proceed to make an additional levy, on which he shall proceed as on other executions, or the plaintiff may, in writing filed with the clerk or justice, abandon such levy upon paying the costs thereof. In which case the execution may issue with the same effect as if none had ever been issued.

SEC. 3087. [Notice to defendant: sale void without.]—If the defendant is in actual occupation and possession of the land levied on, the officer having the execution, shall, at least twenty days previous to such sale, serve the defendant with written notice, stating that the execution is levied on said land, and mentioning the time and place of sale; and sales made without the notice required in this section, may be set aside on the motion of such owner, as contemplated in this section, is irregular and should be set aside on the motion of such owner. Jensen v. Woodbury et al., 16 Iowa, 515; Fleming v. Maddox et al., 30 Id., 239.

A sale of land on execution without written notice to the owner, if he be in the actual occupation or possession thereof, as contemplated in this section, is irregular and should be set aside on the motion of such owner. Jensen v. Woodbury et al., 16 Iowa, 515; Fleming v. Maddox et al., 30 Id., 239.

To constitute actual occupation within the meaning of this section, it is not necessary that the defendant should reside on the land. The meaning of the terms "actual possession" and "occupation" defined by Miller, J. Id.

The provisions of this section are applicable to sales under special executions, as well as those under a general one. Id.

The notice of the levy of an execution upon real property, required by this section to be served upon the defendant where he is in the actual occupation and possession of the land, need not be given him when the land is in the possession and under the control of an agent. Bennett et al. v. Burton et al., 44 Id., 556.
So, also, no notice is required to be served on the defendant when the property is occupied by tenants of the owner. Babcock v. Garvey, 42 Id., 154.

SEC. 3088. [Defendant may divide land and give officer plan.]—At any time before nine o’clock A. M. of the day of the sale, the defendant may deliver to the officer a plan of division of the land levied on, subscribed by him, and in that case the officer shall sell according to said plan so much of the land as may be necessary to satisfy the debt and costs and no more. If no such plan is furnished, the officer may sell without any division.

A sheriff’s sale to the plaintiff in execution, for an inadequate price, of a large number of city lots, en masse, lying for the most part separate and remote from each other, is, at least, as to those lots remaining unsold by, and in the hands of, the purchaser, voidable, and may be set aside in a proceeding for that purpose brought by the execution defendant. Williams et al. v. Allison et al., 33 Iowa, 275.

But as to those lots that have been resold by the execution plaintiff to third parties, who purchased in good faith and without notice of any fraud or irregularity, and have made improvements thereon, the sale will be held valid after the lapse of several years. Id.

That real property embracing several tracts was sold in a body will not viti ate the sale when it is shown that it was first offered in parcels and no bids were received for it as thus offered. Hill v. Baker, 32 Id., 302. Nor will mere inadequacy of price, nor even gross inadequacy, where the original purchaser was not a party to the proceeding, and the premises have, in good faith, been sold to another. Id.

A sheriff’s sale, under special execution, of two hundred and forty acres of land in a body, will not be held void when it appears that the land was first offered in forty-acre parcels, by the sheriff, and that no bids were received for any portion thus offered. Nor will the case be changed by the fact that one of the tracts thus sold was the homestead of the defendant. The offering of the land in separate tracts by the sheriff before selling the whole was held to be an exhausting of the other property before selling the homestead, as required by section 1992 of the code. Burmeister v. Dewey et al., 27 Id., 468.

When it is shown by the return of the sheriff that lots were sold en masse, this fact alone will not be sufficient to invalidate the sale, where it is not shown that the debtor was injured by the mode of sale adopted, and he has delayed, without excuse, to question the same for nearly six years. Cunningham v. Felker, 26 Id., 117.

A sheriff’s sale of real property en masse, for less than one-sixth its value, pending litigation, was set aside. King v. Thorp, Id., 283.

When an officer’s return of an execution sale of two lots states that they were sold for a certain sum, but does not state whether separately or together, the presumption is that the officer did his duty and sold them separately. Love v. Cherry, 24 Id., 204.

Whether the sale of two lots together for a gross sum, could, after the term of redemption had expired, and sheriff’s deed executed and delivered, be made available to defeat the title of a third party, quere? Id.

A sheriff’s sale ought not to be set aside on motion, when the purchaser, who was not a party to the execution, has not had notice as a party to the motion. Osburn v. Cloud, 21 Id., 238; Wright v. Le Claire, 3 Id., 221; Ritter v. Hinshaw, 7 Id., 97; Lyster v. Brewer, 13 Id., 461; Polk County v. Supher et al., 17 Id., 353.

This section, providing for the sale of land on execution according to a plan furnished by the defendant, applies to sales made under special as well as under general executions. Taylor et al. v. Truelock et al., 39 Id., 558.

SEC. 3089. [When purchaser fails to pay.]—When the purchaser fails to pay the money when demanded, the plaintiff or his attorney may elect to proceed against him for the amount; otherwise the sheriff shall treat the sale as a nullity, and may sell the property on the same day, or after a postponement as above authorized.

Where the plaintiff in execution is the purchaser at judicial sale, and fails to pay the costs of the case, the sheriff may treat the sale as a nullity, and adjourn it to another day. Reese v. Dobbins, 51 Id., 102.

SEC. 3090. [Sales vacated when execution is not a lien.]—When any person shall purchase at a sheriff’s sale any real estate on which the judgment upon which the execution issued was not a lien at the time of the levy, and which fact was unknown to the purchaser, the court shall set aside such sale on motion, notice having been given to the debtor as in case of action, and a new execution may be issued to enforce the judgment, and upon the order being made to set aside the sale, the sheriff or judgment-creditor shall pay over to the purchaser the purchase-money; said motion may also be made by any person interested in the real estate.

In the absence of fraud the law will not ordinarily relieve a purchaser at an execution sale who acquires a defective title. When seasonably applied for the sale will be set aside where the purchaser receives no title whatever. Hamsmith v. Epsey, 19 Iowa, 444; Chambers v. Cochran & Brock, 18 Id., 159.

The purchaser at sheriff's sale on execution takes only the title and interest of the judgment debtor. Hamsmith v. Epsey, 19 Id., 444.

A sale on execution at which the purchaser received an equity of redemption, will not be disturbed, when the evidence does not show that the amount of the prior lien exceeds the value of the property. Hamsmith v. Epsey, 19 Iowa, 444.

The lien of a chattel mortgage, duly recorded, is prior to the lien of a landlord for rent of premises, notwithstanding the mortgaged chattels were afterwards used by the mortgagor as tenant of such premises although the mortgagee may have actual notice that such chattels were being so used upon the leased premises. Jarchow & Sons v. Pickens, 51 Id., 381.

When the judgment debtor has the legal title to property at the time the judgment is rendered and the sale made, the purchaser buys at his peril, and he is not entitled to relief, if, being the judgment creditor, he buys the property and thus satisfies the judgment, even though the property be encumbered by prior liens. Holtzenger v. Edwards, 51 Id., 383.

SEC. 3091. [Disposition of money levied on.]—Money levied upon may be appropriated without being advertised or sold. The same may be done with bank bills, drafts, promissory notes or other papers of the like character, if the plaintiff will receive them at their par value as cash, or if the officer can exchange them for cash at that value.

SEC. 3092. [Judgment against executor or decedent: how satisfied from real property.]—When a judgment has been obtained against the executor of one deceased, or against the decedent in his lifetime, which the personal estate of the deceased is insufficient to satisfy, the plaintiff may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the court where the judgment is a lien against the executor, the heirs and devisees of real estate, if such there be, setting forth the facts, and that there is real estate of the deceased, describing its location and extent, and praying the court to award execution against the same.

Where a judgment has been rendered against a decedent in his lifetime, which the personal estate is insufficient to pay, an action is authorized in this section to enforce the payment of the judgment by the sale of real estate. But collection must first be sought out of the personal estate, and for the purpose of such collection the judgment must be clearly stated, sworn to and filed as a claim against the estate, the same as any other claim. Bayless v. Powers et al., Admin'rs, 62 Iowa, 601.

Where the judgment debtor dies, this section does not require the judgment creditor to file his judgment as a claim against the estate in order to preserve his lien upon the real estate. Boyd v. Collins, 70 Id., 296. (See Davis v. Shawhan, 34 Id., 71, for a case where such filing becomes necessary.)

SEC. 3093. [Notice.]—The person against whom the petition is filed shall be notified by the plaintiff to appear on the first day of the term, and show cause, if any he have, why execution should not be awarded.

SEC. 3094. [How served and returned.]—The notice shall be served and returned in the ordinary manner, and the same length of time shall be allowed for appearance as in civil actions, and service of such notice on non-resident defendants may be had in in such cases by publication.

SEC. 3095. [Execution awarded.]—At the proper time, the court shall award the execution unless sufficient cause be shown to the contrary.

SEC. 3096. [Non-age.]—The non-age of the heirs or devisees shall not be deemed such sufficient cause.

SEC. 3097. [Mutual judgments set off.]—Mutual judgments, the executions on which are in the hands of the same officer, may be set off the one against the other; except that the costs shall not be set off, unless the balance of cash actually collected on the large judgment is sufficient to pay the costs of both judgments, and such costs shall be paid therefrom accordingly. Where a judgment has been fraudulently assigned by the party in whose favor it was rendered, for the purpose of presenting a set-off of mutual judgment under this section, a court of equity will interpose and effect such set-off. Hurst v. Sheets et al., 14 Iowa, 322.

Under this section and sections 2550 and 2655 of the code, an execution issued upon a judgment in favor of a sole plaintiff may be set-off against an execution issued upon a judgment in which such sole plaintiff is a joint defendant. Bollinger v. Tarbell, 16 Id., 491.

The sheriff has the power to set-off executions in his hands only when the parties to the judgments upon which they are issued are in both cases the same, and when the judgments are actually the property of the parties thereto. Bell v. Perry & Townsend, 43 Id., 368.

SEC. 3098. [When sale absolute.]

—When real property has been levied upon if the estate is less than a leasehold having two years of unexpired term, the sale is absolute.

SEC. 3099. [When redeemable.]

—When the estate is of a larger amount, the property is redeemable as hereinafter prescribed.

APPRAISEMENT OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3100. [How done and amount it must sell for.]

—Personal property levied upon and advertised for sale on execution must be appraised before sale by two disinterested householders of the neighborhood, one of whom shall be chosen by the execution debtor and the other by the plaintiff, or in case of the absence of either party, or if either or both parties neglect or refuse to make choice, the officer making the levy shall choose one or both, as the case may be, who shall forthwith proceed to return to said officer a just and true appraisement, under oath, of said property if they can agree; and in case they cannot agree, they shall choose another disinterested householder, and with his assistance they shall complete such appraisement, and the property shall not be sold for less than two-thirds of said valuation; provided, that the same shall be offered for three successive days at the same place and hour of day as advertised, and if no offer equal to two-thirds the value thereof be made, then it shall be lawful to sell said property for one-half of said valuation.

Contracts made prior to the taking effect of the appraisement law of 1860 (see revision §§ 3360-3374) were not affected thereby, even though enforced after the law took effect. Such a law imposes a new condition, rendering the debt more difficult of collection, and to apply it to existing contracts would impair the obligation thereof. Olmstead v. Kellog, 47 Iowa, 460; Rosier v. Hale, 10 Id., 470.

REDEMPTION.

SEC. 3101. [Officer to execute deed or certificate.]

—If the property sold is not subject to redemption, the sheriff must execute a deed therefor to the purchaser; but if the same is subject to redemption, he shall execute to such purchaser a certificate containing a description of the property and the amount of money paid by such purchaser, and stating that unless redemption is made within one year thereafter according to law, he or his heirs or assigns will be entitled to a deed for the same.

A sheriff’s certificate of sale is admissible in evidence, after the proper foundation has been laid for the introduction of secondary evidence, as tending to show the existence and contents of the execution under which the sale was made. Conger v. Converse, 9 Iowa, 554.

SEC. 3102. [By defendant, when.]

—The defendant may redeem real property at any time within one year from the day of the sale as herein provided, and will, in the meantime, be entitled to the possession of the property. But in no action where the defendant has taken an appeal from the circuit or district court, or stayed execution on the judgment, shall he be entitled to redeem.

Under the code of 1851, the sale of mortgaged property upon foreclosure barred and cut off all equity of redemption. The mortgagor or any lien-holder might redeem before sale but not afterwards. Kramer v. Rebman, 9 Iowa, 114.

A judgment creditor has a right to redeem real estate, purchased by him or by his attorney for his benefit, under execution, from the holder of a senior judgment lien, by complying with the provisions of the statute. Sources v. Wood, Bacon & Co., 12Id., 295.

Where, after a judgment had attached as a lien upon real property, it was sold by the judgment debtor and by him conveyed by deed with covenants against incumbrances and of warranty, after which it was sold on execution issued upon the judgment, it was held, 1. That the judgment debtor had a right of redemption for one year from the date of the sale; 2. That the grantee also had a right of redemption as a subsequent purchaser. Harvey v. Spaulding et ux., 16Id., 397.

To redeem from execution sale, the defendant must, within one year, pay the required amount of money into the clerk's office for the use of the person entitled thereto. Webb v. Watson, 18Id., 537.

If in good faith the defendant pays and the clerk receives, before the expiration of the time of redemption, an ordinary bank check, and especially of a bank situated in the town or place where the business is transacted, upon which he realizes the money, though after the expiration of the time, the money being ready to be paid to the holder or the certificate of sale promptly and without trouble to him, the payment is sufficient. Id.

A purchaser of real property at sheriff's sale does not become vested at once with the legal title. During the period of redemption his title is equitable only, which may or may not ripen into a legal title. Shimer v. Hammond, 51Id., 403, 404.

The holder of a lien upon the lands of a sheriff for the stay of execution is entitled to redeem from an execution sale of the lands at the expiration of the stay. Sieben v. Becker et al., 53Id., 24.

The right of redemption from an execution sale is lost to a defendant who has taken an appeal from the judgment under which the sale was made, although no supersedeas bond has been filed. Dobbs v. Lasch, Corton & Co et al., 53Id., 304.

In computing the time of redemption of real estate from execution, the first, or day of sale is to be excluded and the right of redemption exists during and until the last moment of the same day of the succeeding year. Tencer & English v. Hiatt et al., 23Id., 527.

A redemption of real property from sale on execution, effected by a sub-agent appointed by the agent, instead of by the agent himself, is valid if the act be afterward ratified by the principal. Id.

A purchaser of mortgaged lands, whose deed is recorded at the time of the institution of the action to foreclose will not be bound by the foreclosure proceedings unless he be made a party to the suit. But his right will be simply to redeem by payment of the mortgage debt. He will not be entitled to a judgment for possession. Porter v. Kilgore, 32Id., 379.

A sale of real property, after the taking effect of the code of 1873, under a judgment rendered prior to that time, should conform to the law in force at the time the judgment was rendered, which gave the judgment debtor the right to elect whether the property should be appraised before the sale, or sold subject to redemption. Holland v. Dickerson, 41Id., 367; Babcock v. Gurney, 42Id., 154; Fonda v. Clark, 43Id., 300.

Where judgment was rendered after the code took effect, upon a debt contracted before that time, the sale should be conducted under the provisions of the code. Babcock v. Gurney, 42Id., 154; Fonda v. Clark, 43Id., 300.

The fact that upon a sale of real estate on execution the sheriff has made a deed to the purchaser is a mere irregularity, which will not deprive the judgment debtor of his right to redeem. Olmstead v. Kellogg, 47Id., 490.

When the debtor or his assignee redeems the land, it again becomes subject to sale for the satisfaction of any unpaid portion of the judgment under which the prior sale was made. Hayes v. Thode, 18Id., 51.

But it does not become thus liable when the redemption is made by a lien holder. Id.

In an action by a mortgagor who was not made a party, to redeem from a sale under a decree of foreclosure, the amount necessary to redeem should be determined with reference both to the right to rents and the liability to pay for improvements. Barrett v. Blackmar, 47Id., 563.

The right of a judgment debtor to redeem from a sheriff's sale of real property expires at the end of one year whether a valid deed be then executed or not. Conner v. Long et al., 63Id., 295, 300.

The vendee of an execution defendant, whose lands are sold at an execution sale, may, under this section, redeem the lands to which he holds title from such sale, although the judgment debtor may have taken an appeal from the judgment. Thayer v. Coldren et al., 57Id., 110.

The term "defendant," in the first sentence of this section, means the person holding the right of possession as the owner of the land, and this applies to the vendee of the execution defendant who has become such prior to the sale on execution. The term "defendant" in the last sentence of the section is the party to the action, and not his vendee, for he cannot appeal. Id.

Where a party stays a judgment in the court of a justice of the peace, and, thereafter, a tran-
Where real property was ordered to be sold on special execution, and after the issuance thereof and before sale defendants appealed, the purchaser was entitled to a deed at the time of the sale but did not demand it, and took a certificate of purchase subject to redemption, and allowed defendants to remain in possession, it was held that having taken an appeal the defendants were not entitled to redeem, but having remained in possession with the assent of the owner were tenants at will, and entitled to thirty days' notice to quit before action for possession. Munson v. Plummer et al., 59 Id., 120.

The "defendant" contemplated in this section is the mortgagor. Miller v. Ayres, 1d., 424. 426.

Under this section of the code, an execution sale made after an appeal taken is without the right of redemption; but an appeal is not taken by service of a notice on the attorney of the execution plaintiff. It must also be served upon the clerk of the court. Fitzgerald v. Kelso et al., 71 Id., 731.

Defendant's property was sold under an execution, and about eleven months thereafter it was sold under another execution issued upon a different judgment. Held, that he was entitled to redeem from both sales by paying to the clerk, within a year from the date of the first sale, the two amounts for which the property had been sold, with interest on each from date of sale. Harrison v. Witmering, 72 Id., 727.

SEC. 3103. [When by creditors.]—For the first six months after such sale, his right to redeem is exclusive; but if no redemption is made by him at the end of that time, any creditor of the defendant whose demand is a lien upon such real estate, may redeem the same at any time within nine months from the day of sale. But a mechanic's lien, before judgment thereon, is not of such character as to entitle the holder to redeem.

A junior mortgagee, having assigned the mortgage as collateral security for a debt of his own, may redeem the mortgaged premises from a sale made in the foreclosure of a senior mortgage; and such redemption will inure to the benefit of the assignee of the junior mortgage. Manning v. Markel, 19 Iowa, 103.

The refusal of the assignee to ratify the act of his assignor does not affect his rights in respect to such redemption. Id.

It seems that under this section, the objection that a redemption is made by a creditor before the expiration of six months from the date of sale, can be made only by the defendant or purchaser and not by a junior lien holder. Wilson v. Conklin, 22 Id., 452.

Where the purchaser of a junior judgment, but before the formal assignment thereof to him, and before the expiration of six months from the day of sale under execution on a prior judgment, intending to redeem, paid to the purchaser the amount of his claim, and took an assignment of the certificate of sale, it was held, that though his redemption might be informal, he was still entitled to be regarded in the light of a purchaser and holder of the certificate; and that to entitle a judgment creditor, whose lien was junior to his, to redeem, he would be required to pay such holder the amount of his certificate, as well as the amount of his judgment. Id.

Where P. recovered a judgment against Q. for the purchase money of the latter's homestead, and purchased the property at an execution sale therefor for less than the amount of the debt, and P. also recovered a judgment against Q. after the date of P.'s judgment, upon a claim alleged to ante-date the acquisition of the homestead, it was held: 1. That P. could show alio in, that the debt was contracted before the acquisition of the homestead; 2. That he was entitled to redeem from P.'s purchase upon payment of the amount of his bid. Phelps v. Finn, 45 Id., 447.

Where in proceedings to establish a mechanic's lien upon real property which had been sold under a decree of foreclosure, since the claim accrued, the mortgagee and wife, who had parted with the equity of redemption, were the only parties defendant, it was held that the holder of the mechanic's lien claim was not entitled to redeem from the foreclosure sale. Spink v. McCall, 42 Id., 432.

A junior mechanic's lien holder who has not been made a party to an action foreclosing a mortgage, may maintain a suit in equity to redeem from the foreclosure sale. Jones v. Hartsock et al., 42 Id., 147.

The holder of a junior mortgage who is made a defendant in an action to foreclose the senior mortgage, can redeem after sale by paying the amount bid, not with interest, within the time allowed by the statute, notwithstanding the amount bid by the senior mortgagee at the sale is less than the amount of his mortgage debt. Tuttle et al., v. Dewey et al., 41 Id., 306.

The right of judgment creditors to redeem from an execution sale of lands of their debtor becomes barred in nine months from the date of the sale, unless exercised by some creditor within that time. George v. Hart, 56 Id., 706.
A junior lien holder has no right under the statute to redeem real property sold at judicial sale after nine months subsequent to the date of the sale; but where the sale was under the foreclosure of a mortgage to which the junior lien holder was not made a party, he has the right in equity to redeem from the sale, and the mortgagee who was the purchaser at the foreclosure sale has the right also to redeem from the junior lien holder, by paying him the amount upon which his claim is based. Newell v. Pennick et al., 62 Id., 123.

SEC. 3104. [Who creditor.]—Any creditor whose claim becomes a lien prior to the expiration of the time allowed by law for the redemption by creditors may redeem. A mortgagee may thus redeem before or after the debt secured by the mortgage falls due.

Under this section, a mortgagee of lands has a right to redeem the same from a sale made on execution, although the liability secured by his mortgage be only a contingent one which may never ripen into a certainty. Crossen v. White, 19 Iowa, 109.

Where a junior judgment creditor purchases, at execution sale, in satisfaction of a senior judgment, property on which his judgment is a lien, he may, like any other judgment creditor, redeem the property from such sale, though he thereby redeems from himself. Citizens Savings Bank of St. Louis v. Percival, 61 Iowa, 183.

Sections 3103 and 3104 apply to redemption from sales under execution simply, and have no application to one holding a mechanic’s lien on real property which has been sold on a mortgage foreclosure, to which he was not made a party. Jones v. Hartsell, 42 Id., 147, 151.

SEC. 3105. [May redeem from each other.]—Creditors having the right of redemption may redeem from each other within the time above limited, and in the manner herein provided.

SEC. 3106. The terms of redemption in all cases will be the reimbursement of the amount paid by the then holder, added to the amount of his own lien, with interest on the whole at the rate of ten per cent per annum, together with costs, subject to the exception contained in the next section. But where a mortgagee whose claim is not yet due is the person from whom the redemption is thus to be made, a rebate of interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum must be made by such mortgagee on his claim.

The judgment in a foreclosure action directed the sale of the mortgaged premises on special execution, and provided that the proceeds of the sale should be applied in satisfaction of the judgment and costs, and that any balance thereof should be applied in satisfaction of notes secured by the mortgage not yet due. The land (eighty acres) was offered en masse, and bid in by the foreclosure plaintiff for much more than the judgment, but he had not paid the amount into court. Held, that the foreclosure defendant was not entitled to redeem by paying the amount of the judgment only, but must pay the full amount of the purchaser’s bid. Williams v. Dickerson, 66 Iowa, 105.

SEC. 3107. [Senior creditor.]—When a senior creditor thus redeems from his junior, he is required to pay off only the amount of those liens which are paramount to his own, with the interest and costs appertaining to those liens.

SEC. 3108. [Junior.]—The junior creditor may in all such cases prevent a redemption by the holder of the paramount lien by paying off the lien, or by leaving with the clerk beforehand the amount necessary therefor.

SEC. 3109. A junior judgment creditor may redeem from a senior judgment creditor, by praying to the party, the clerk, or the sheriff, if execution has issued, the full sum due, with interest and costs, and shall become thereby vested with the title to the judgment so redeemed.

A junior judgment creditor who purchases and takes an assignment of the certificate of sale from his senior creditor, to whom the land has been sold, will be regarded as a redemption creditor within the meaning of the statute; and to entitle a creditor or lien holder junior to him to redeem the property from such sale, he must pay not only the amount for which it was sold, but also the amount of the other superior judgment liens held by the person thus holding the certificate of the sale by assignment. Good v. Cummings, 36 Iowa, 67.

The holder of a junior mortgage who is made defendant in an action to foreclose a senior mortgage, has the right to redeem after sale by paying the amount bid with interest within the time allowed by the statute, notwithstanding the amount bid by the senior mortgagee at the sale is less than the amount of the mortgage debt. Tuttle et al. v. Dewey, 44 Id., 396.

Real estate which has been sold in part satisfaction of a judgment and redeemed by the judgment debtor does not become again subject in his hands to the lien of the judgment. (Overruling Crosby v. Elkadar Lodge, 16 Id., 399; Clayton et al. v. Ellis et al., 50 Id., 500.

The holder of an unsatisfied balance of a judgment cannot redeem from an execution sale made under the same judgment. Id.

Sec. 3110. [When money paid to sheriff.]—If paid to the sheriff, he shall give to the party redeeming a certificate that he has paid such sum for the redemption of the judgment, describing it, which being presented to the clerk, he shall enter such redemption on the judgment docket, as he shall also do if the money is paid to himself.

Sec. 3111. [Junior from senior creditor.]—Whenever a senior creditor redeems from a junior creditor, the latter may in return redeem from the former, and so on as often as the land is taken from him by virtue of a paramount lien.

Sec. 3112. [When right of creditors expire.]—After the expiration of nine months from the day of sale, the creditors can no longer redeem from each other except as hereinafter provided. But the defendant may still redeem at any time before the end of the year as aforesaid.

Sec. 3113. [Who gets property.]—Unless the defendant thus redeems, the purchaser, or the creditor who has last redeemed prior to the expiration of the nine months aforesaid, will hold the property absolutely.

Sec. 3114. [Claim extinct.]—In case it is thus held by a redeeming creditor, his lien, and the claim out of which it arose, will be held to be extinguished, unless he pursues the course pointed out in the next section.

Sec. 3115. [Exception.]—If he is unwilling to hold the property and credit the defendant therefor with the full amount of his lien, he must, within ten days after the nine months aforesaid, enter on the sale book the utmost amount that he is thus willing to credit on his claim.

When a debtor has actual notice of the filing of the statement he can suffer no prejudice for want of constructive notice. Id.

No particular form of statement under this section is required to be filed by the junior lien holder, and it is sufficient if it indicate with clearness the amount he is willing to credit on his judgment. Id.

The provisions of this section 3115, apply only to redemptions by creditors after the expiration of nine months from the day of sale. A redemption within that time may be sufficiently made by merely paying the necessary amount directly to the creditor or to the clerk. Goode v. Cummings, 35 Id., 67.

Where a national bank, holding a second mortgage, procured an assignment of the certificate of purchase issued upon a judicial sale of the property under the first mortgage, and at the expiration of the period of redemption took a sheriff's deed, no entry being made in the sale-books as required by this section, it was held that the transaction was a purchase and not a redemption, and was valid. Streeter v. First N'l B'k of Tama City, 53 Iowa, 177.

The provisions of this section are applicable to redemptions made before the expiration of the nine months, and that the lien of a junior mortgagee who redeemed after six and before nine months from the foreclosure of a prior mortgage without making the statement of a record of the amount he was willing to credit was discharged. West v. Fitzgerald, sheriff, 72 Id., 306.

Where a junior mortgagee, more than six months and less than nine months after a foreclosure sale under a senior mortgage paid to the purchaser at such sale the full amount of his bid, with interest, and took an assignment of the certificate of sale, and filed an affidavit with the clerk setting out the amount of his mortgage lien, and stating that he had redeemed as junior lien holder, held, that this amounted to a redemption under the statute, though the clerk took no part in the transaction. Lamb et al. v. Feeley et al., 71 Id., 742.

Sec. 3116. [Further redemptions.]—Any unsatisfied lien creditor, within ten days after the expiration of the time thus allowed to make the entry required in the last section, may redeem the property by paying the amount of the legal disbursements of the last holder as hereinbefore regulated, added to the amount taken entered on the sale book, together with interests and costs.

Sec. 3117. [Same.]—Such redemptioner shall also credit the defendant with the full amount of his lien, unless within ten days after redeeming as aforesaid, he likewise makes a like entry on the sale book, in which case any unsatisfied lien creditor may in like manner redeem within ten days as aforesaid, and so on until there are no more unsatisfied liens, or until the expiration of the year for redemption, the defendant having the final privilege of redeeming from the last redemptioner at the end of the year.

Sec. 3118. [Mode of redemption.]—The mode of making the redemption is by paying the money into the clerk's office for the use of the persons thereto entitled.
The person so redeeming, if not defendant in execution, must also file his affidavit, or that of his agent or attorney, stating as nearly as practicable the amount still unpaid and due on his own claim.

The payment to the clerk by bank check will be good payment in redemption. See Webb v.
Watson, 18 Iowa, 537, cited in notes to section 3102, ante.

Whether the affidavit provided for in this section stating the amount due and unpaid on the claim of the party redeeming, is necessary to be filed by him before the expiration of nine months from the day of sale. dubitat. Wilson v. Conklin, 23 Id., 452.

The usual mode of making redemption is by paying the money into the clerk's office. Morgan
v. Long, 29 Id., 434, 436.

The debtor or lien holder may redeem by paying the amount of the bid with interest and costs.
Hayes v. Thode, 18 Id., 51.
A junior lien holder cannot redeem from a prior judgment under which there has been no sale without paying the full amount due on the judgment. Id.

Sec. 3119. [Same.]—The clerk shall thereupon give him a receipt for the money stating the purpose for which it was paid. He must also, at the same time, enter in the sale book a minute of such redemption, of the amount paid, and the amount of the lien of the last redemptioner as sworn to by him.

Sec. 3120. [Entitled to assignment.]—A creditor redeeming as above contemplated, is entitled to receive an assignment of the certificate issued by the sheriff to the original purchaser as hereinbefore directed.

Sec. 3121. [Sale in parcels.]—When the property has been sold in parcels, any distinct portion may be redeemed by itself.

Sec. 3122. [Tenants in common.]—When the interests of several tenants in common have been sold on execution, the undivided portion of any or either of them may be redeemed separately.

Sec. 3123. [Defendant may transfer right.]—The rights of the defendant in relation to redemption are transferable, and the assignee has the like power to redeem.

The right of redemption may be exercised by an assignee of the judgment debtor to the same extent as it could be by the assignor. Stoddard v. Forbes, 13 Iowa, 296.

Sec. 3124. [Deed made to whom.]—If the defendant or his assignee fail to redeem, the sheriff must, at the end of the year, execute a deed to the person who is entitled to the certificate as hereinbefore provided, or to his assignee. If the person entitled be dead, the deed shall be made to his heirs, but the property will be subject to the payment of the debts of the deceased in the same manner as if acquired during his lifetime.

The sheriff in office when a certificate of sale, made by his predecessors, is presented, is the proper officer to make the deed. A sheriff cannot execute a valid deed after his term of office has

Sec. 3125. [As amended by ch. 146, 21st g. a.) [When evidence of title to be recorded.]—The purchaser of real estate at a sale on execution, need not place any evidence of his purchase upon record until sixty days after the expiration of the full time of redemption. Up to that time, the publication of the proceedings is constructive notice of the rights of the purchaser, but no longer.
While under this section a bona fide purchaser without notice, who takes title from the debtor to lands sold on execution after the twenty days mentioned therein, will be protected against the purchaser at such sale. One who thus purchases with actual notice, or one who purchases with a fraudulent intent to defeat the title of a purchaser at the execution sale, will not be protected. Harrison v. Kramer, 3 Iowa, 243.

Delay in taking a sheriff's deed will not estop the purchaser from asserting his title under the sale, when no right adverse to his title was acquired after the expiration of twenty days from the time he was entitled to deed and the execution of the sheriff's deed. Wood, Bacon & Co. v. Young, 38 Id., 102.

Under this section the publicity of the proceedings of a sheriff's sale of land is constructive notice to those only who derive their title from or through the judgment debtor. Hultz v. Zollars, 39 Id., 629.

Where the sheriff gives to the purchaser a certificate of sale and the right of redemption exists for one year, the proceedings are notice for one year and twenty days from the sale. Churchill v. Morse, 23 Id., 229, 234.

Delay in taking a sheriff's deed until more than twenty days after the time for redemption has expired will not avail one who has actual notice of the fact of sale. Walker v. Schreiber, 47 Id., 529.

SEC. 3126. [Deeds imply regularity.]—Deeds executed by a sheriff in pursuance of the sales contemplated in this chapter, are presumptive evidence of the regularity of all previous proceedings in the case, and may be given in evidence without preliminary proof.

A sheriff's deed is presumptive evidence of the regularity of all prior proceedings, and may be offered in evidence without preliminary proofs. Conger v. Converse, 9 Iowa, 554; Deere & Co. v. McConnells, 15 Id., 269, 272; Childs v. Mc Chesney, 20 Id., 431, 437.

It is presumed that a sheriff's sale was regularly conducted, and this presumption is not rebutted by the silence of the sheriff's deed as to whether the sale was made under an alias fi. fa., or a venditioni exponas. Childs v. Mc Chesney, 20 Id., 431.

SEC. 3127. [Damages.]—When real estate has been sold on execution, the purchaser thereof, or any person who has succeeded to his interest, may, after his estate becomes absolute, recover damages for any injury to the property committed after the sale and before possession is delivered under the conveyance.

SEC. 3128. ["Defendant": "plaintiff"].—The term "defendant," as herein used, is intended to designate the party against whom, and the term "plaintiff" the party in favor of whom, any execution is issued.

SEC. 3129. [Application to justices' proceedings.]—The provisions of this chapter are intended to embrace proceedings in justices' courts, so far as they are applicable; and the terms "sheriff" and "clerk" are accordingly to be understood, as qualified in this chapter, in the same manner in this respect as in that relative to attachment.

REVIVOR OF JUDGMENTS.

SEC. 3130. [Death of plaintiff: how execution may issue.]—The death of one or all the plaintiffs shall not prevent an execution being issued, but on such execution the clerk shall indorse the death of such of them as are dead, and if all be dead, the names of the personal representatives, or the last survivor, if the judgment passed to the personal representatives, or the names of the survivors' heirs, if the judgment was for real property.

A levy of an execution after the death of the judgment plaintiff is invalid without the indorsement on the execution provided for by this section of the statute, and the sale thereunder will be enjoined on the application of the defendant. Meek v. Bunker, 33 Iowa, 169.

Where a plaintiff dies after judgment an execution cannot properly issue without an indorsement thereon of the names of the personal representatives or heirs. White v. Sercor, 58 Id., 533.

Where a mortgage was foreclosed, in the name of the mortgagee, by one claiming to be the owner by devise from the mortgagee, the decree was held to be of no validity, and that the same could not, by suit in equity, be corrected and the sheriff's deed reformed by the substitution of the name of the devisee; but that he was entitled to a re-foreclosure of the mortgage in his own name. Id.
SECTION 3131. [Officer's duty.]—The sheriff, in acting upon execution indorsed as provided in the last section, shall proceed as if the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or the personal representatives or heirs, were the only plaintiffs in execution, and take bonds accordingly.

SECTION 3132. [Affidavit required.]—Before making the indorsements named above, an affidavit shall be filed with the clerk by one of the plaintiffs or personal representatives, or heirs or their attorney, of the death of the defendant, and that the persons named as such are the personal representatives or heirs; and in the case of personal representatives, they shall file with the clerk a certificate of their qualification, according to law in this state.

SECTION 3133. [Death of part of Defendants.]—The death of only part of the defendants, shall not prevent execution being issued, which, however, shall operate alone on the survivors and their property. This section does not change the common law rule that execution cannot be issued after the decease of the judgment debtor, even though the judgment be rendered in an attachment proceeding and that a sale of land under an execution so issued is void.

SECTION 3134. [When execution may be quashed.]—The defendant may move the court to quash an execution, on the ground that the personal representatives or heirs of a deceased plaintiff are not properly stated in the indorsement on the execution, and, during the vacation of the court, may obtain an injunction, upon its being made to appear that the persons named are not entitled to the judgment on which the execution was issued.

See Meek v. Bunker, 33 Iowa, 169, cited in note to section 3130, ante.

CHAPTER 3.

PROCEEDINGS AUXILIARY TO EXECUTION.

SECTION 3135. [Defendant examined.]—When execution against the property of a judgment debtor, or one of several debtors in the same judgment, has been issued from the district, circuit, or supreme court to the sheriff of the county where such debtor resides, or if he do not reside in the state, to the sheriff of the county where the judgment was rendered or transcript of a justice's judgment has been filed, and execution issued thereon is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, the owner of the judgment is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of such debtor.

SECTION 3136. [Same.]—The like order may be obtained at any time after the issuing of an execution, upon proof, by the affidavit of the party or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court or officer who is to grant the same, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment.

This section providing for an order for the appearance and examination of a debtor upon an affidavit that the debtor has property which he refuses to apply in satisfaction of the judgment, such affidavit is not necessary upon a second examination which is but the continuation of the former one. McDowell v. Henderson, 33 N. W. Rep., 512.

SECTION 3137. [By whom order granted.]—Such order may be made by the district or circuit court of the county in which the judgment was rendered, or to which execution has been issued, or in vacation by a judge thereof. And the debtor may be required to appear and answer before either of such courts or judges, or before a referee appointed for that purpose by the court or judge who issued the order to report either the evidence or the facts.

SECTION 3138. [Debtor interrogated.]—The debtor, on his appearance, may be interrogated in relation to any facts calculated to show the amount of his property, or the disposition which has been made of it, or any other matter pertaining to the purposes for which the examination is permitted to be made. And the interrogatories and answers shall be reduced to writing and preserved by the court or officer before whom they are taken. All examinations and answers under this chapter shall be on oath, and no person shall, on such examination, be excused from answering any questions on the ground that his examination will tend to convict him of a fraud, but his answers shall not be used as evidence against him in a prosecution for such fraud.

Sec. 3139. [Witness examined.]*—Witnesses may be required by the order of the court or judge, or by subpoenas from the referee, to appear and testify upon any proceedings under this chapter in the same manner as upon the trial of an issue.

Sec. 3140. [Property found: disposition of.]*—If any property, rights, or credits, subject to execution are thus ascertained, an execution may be issued and they may be levied upon accordingly. The court or judge may order any property of the judgment debtor not exempt by law, in the hands either of himself or any other person or corporation, or due to the judgment debtor to be delivered up, or in any other mode applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment.

The purpose of those auxiliary proceedings is to obtain an order for the payment of the debt, and not alone to settle the right of the creditor to the application of the proceeds of a certain fund. Ex parte Grace, 12 Iowa, 208.

The provisions of this chapter, so far as it purports to confer upon the examining officer the power to order any property in the hands of himself or others to be delivered up and applied in satisfaction of the judgment under which the proceedings were had, and the further power to punish as for a contempt any disobedience of any order made by the acting officer in the premises are repugnant to sections 9 and 10 of article 1, of the constitution, and therefore void. Id.

An order that an execution shall issue against a corporation, with a clause inserted therein directing the officer to levy upon the property of certain stockholders, does not render such stockholders judgment debtors within the meaning of this chapter, and they cannot be compelled, after the return of the execution, to disclose property in the summary manner provided in this chapter. Bailey v. The D. W. R. Co., 13 Id., 97.

Sec. 3141. [Receiver.]*—The court or judge may also, by order, appoint the sheriff of the proper county or other suitable person a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor, and may also, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of the property of the judgment debtor, not exempt by law, or may forbid any interference therewith.

Sec. 3142. [Equitable interest.]*—If it shall appear that the judgment debtor has any equitable interest in real estate in the county in which proceedings are had, as mortgagor, mortgagee, or otherwise, and the interest of said debtor can be ascertained as between himself and the person holding the legal estate, or having any lien on, or interest in the same, without controversy as to the interest of such person, the receiver may be ordered to sell and convey such real estate or the debtor's equitable interest therein, in the same manner as is provided by this code for the sale of real estate upon execution.

Sec. 3143. [Sheriff liable.]*—If the sheriff shall be appointed receiver, he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond for the faithful discharge of his duties as such.

Sec. 3144. [Continuance.]*—The judge or referee acting under the provisions of this chapter, shall have power to continue his proceedings from time to time until they shall be completed.

Sec. 3145. [Defendant failing to appear.]*—Should the judgment debtor fail to appear after being personally served with notice to that effect, or should he fail to make full answer to all proper interrogatories thus propounded to him, he will be guilty of contempt and may be arrested and imprisoned until he complies with the requirements of the law in this respect. And if any person, party or witness, disobey an order of the court or judge, or referee, duly served, such person, party or witness may be punished as for contempt.

Sec. 3146. [Service of order.]—The order mentioned herein shall be in writing and signed by the court or judge or referee making the same, and shall be served in the same manner as an original notice in other cases.

Sec. 3147. [Compensation of officers and witnesses.]—Sheriffs, referees, receivers and witnesses, shall receive such compensation as is allowed for like services in other cases, to be taxed as costs in the case, and the collection thereof from such party or parties as ought to pay the same shall be enforced by an order.

In a proceeding against a defendant for refusing to obey the order contemplated in sections 3145 and 3146, having been present in court through all the proceedings, and having been given a full and fair trial, he is not entitled to have the proceedings set aside on the ground that he was not served with a written order signed by the judge.

Sec. 3148. [When warrant of arrest to issue.]—Upon proof to the satisfaction of the court, or officer authorized to grant the order aforesaid, that there is danger that the defendant will leave the state, or that he will conceal himself, the said court or officer, instead of the order aforesaid, may issue a warrant for the arrest of the debtor, and for bringing him forthwith before the court or officer authorized to take his examination as hereinbefore provided. After being thus brought before the said court or officer, he may be examined in the same manner with the like effect as is above provided.

Sec. 3149. [Defendant to give bond.]—Upon being brought before the court or officer he may enter into an undertaking in such sum as the court or officer shall prescribe, with one or more sureties, that he will attend from time to time for examination before the court or officer as shall be directed, and will not, in the meantime, dispose of his property, or any part thereof; in default whereof he shall continue under arrest, and may be committed to jail on the warrant of such court or officer from time to time for safe keeping until the examination shall be concluded.

The right of trial by jury is secured in actions at law, and the general assembly cannot, by an evasion of the constitution, render that which is in its essence a suit at law, a proceeding for contempt. Ex parte Grace, 12 Iowa, 208.

See Eikenberry & Co. v. Edwards, 67 Id., 619, where it is held that sec. 3145 of this chapter is not repugnant to sections 9 and 10 of article 1, of the state constitution.

EQUITABLE PROCEEDINGS.

Sec. 3150. [How and when brought.]—At any time after the rendition of a judgment, an action by equitable proceedings may be brought to subject any property, money, rights, credits or interest therein belonging to the defendant, to the satisfaction of such judgment. In such action, persons indebted to the judgment debtor, or holding any property or money in which such debtor has any interest, or the evidences of sureties for the same, may be made defendants.

Sec. 3151. [Answers verified: petition taken as true.]—The answers of all defendants shall be verified by their own oath, and not by that of an agent or attorney, and the court shall enforce full and explicit discoveries in such answers by process of contempt; or upon failure to answer the petition, or any part thereof, as fully and explicitly as the court may require, the same, or such part not thus answered, shall be deemed true, and such orders made or judgment rendered as the nature of the case may require.

Sec. 3152. [Lien created from time of service of notice.]—In the case contemplated in the two preceding sections, a lien shall be created on the property of the judgment debtor, or his interest therein, in the hands of any defendant or under his control, which is sufficiently described in the petition, from the time of the controlling such property or any interest therein.
SEC. 3153. [Surrender of property enforced.]-The court shall enforce the surrender of the money or securities therefor, or of any other property of the defendant in the execution which may be discovered in the action, and for this purpose may commit to jail any defendant or garnishee failing or refusing to make such surrender until it shall be done, or the court is satisfied that it is out of his power to do so.

The provisions of sections 3150 to 3153, inclusive, apply as well to equities of the debtor in real property; as to moneys, choses in action and other personal property; but as to real property the remedy here provided is merely cumulative. Bridgman & Co. v. McKissick, 15 Iowa, 260.

The lien of a judgment attaches to an equitable interest in real property, and it may be subjected to the satisfaction of a judgment by apt proceedings in equity for that purpose, but cannot be thus subjected by proceedings at law. A junior judgment creditor, by first instituting proceedings in equity to subject the property to the payment of his debt, acquires a priority over the senior judgment creditor who is less diligent. Id.
TITLE XIX.

OF PROCEEDINGS TO REVERSE, VACATE OR MODIFY JUDGMENTS, OR THE PROCEEDINGS OF BOARDS OR INDIVIDUALS ACTING JUDICIALLY.

CHAPTER 1.

OF PROCEEDINGS TO REVERSE, VACATE, OR MODIFY JUDGMENTS IN THE COURTS IN WHICH RENDERED.

SECTION 3154. [By court where rendered.]—The district or circuit court in which a judgment has been rendered, or by which, or by the judge of which, a final order has been made, shall have power after the term at which such judgment or order was made to vacate or modify such judgment or order:

1. By granting a new trial for the cause within the time and in the manner prescribed by the sections on new trials;
2. By a new trial granted on proceedings against defendants served by publication only, as prescribed in title seventeen, chapter nine, section two thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven;
3. For mistake, neglect, or omission of the clerk, or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order;
4. For fraud practiced by the successful party in obtaining the judgment or order;
5. For erroneous proceedings against a minor or person of unsound mind, when the condition of such defendant does not appear in the record, nor the errors in the proceedings;
6. For the death of one of the parties before the judgment in the action;
7. For unavoidable casualty or misfortune preventing the party from prosecuting or defending;
8. For error in a judgment shown by a minor within twelve months after arriving at full age.

It is only an error of fact, committed by the trial court, in its own judgment that can be reviewed on a writ of error coram nobis. McKinney v. The Western Stage Co., 4 Iowa, 420.

An application to vacate a judgment in a case where the court had jurisdiction of the person and of the subject-matter must be made within one year from the rendition of the judgment; and the same limit would apply if the proceedings were in the nature of a new application under the chapter relating to new trials. Hunt & Kendall v. Stevens et al., 28 Id., 399.

That a party intending to appear and defend in an action is, while on a journey attacked with a severe illness, and thereby rendered incapable of attending to and interposing his defense, which is shown to be a valid one, is good ground under subdivision seven of this section for the vacation of the judgment rendered by default against him. Luscomb v. Maloy, 26 Id., 444.

But the mere loss of a note, constituting a defense, is not sufficient to entitle a party to relief under subdivision seven, since he might avail himself of it as a defense by proving the loss.

When a petition was held to be sufficient under this section, see Brown v. Mallory, 26 Id., 469.

Where in an action on a promissory note the clerk by mistake assessed a much smaller amount than was actually due and judgment was rendered accordingly, which mistake was not discovered until after the time allowed by the statute to correct such errors on motion had expired, and until after the case had been appealed to the supreme court, and there affirmed on motion of the plaintiff, the appeal not having been perfected, and judgment rendered for the same amount as in the court below; it was held, notwithstanding the affirmance of the judgment that the plaintiff being without default or negligence, and without any remedy at law, was entitled to maintain an equitably proceeding in the court below to correct the error in the judgment, this being matter not passed upon in the appellate court. Partidge & Co. v. Harrow, 27 Id., 96.

Where a default and judgment thereon are irregular they may be properly set aside on motion. Morgan v. Small, 35 Id., 118, 119.

It is no bar to an application to vacate a judgment under the fourth subdivision of this section, that an application for a new trial had been previously made on other grounds. And in the application to vacate, other facts than those connected with the cause may be united, when they constitute a defense to the claim on which the judgment is based. Reno v. Teagarden, 24 Id., 144.

A judgment may be vacated for fraud practiced by the successful party in obtaining it, by an action commenced within one year after the judgment was rendered. The Ind. S. Dist., etc., v. Schrner, 46 Id., 172.

Where a judgment has been obtained by fraud against a school district, the fact that the directors had levied a tax to pay it, will not estop the district to bring an action to set it aside within one year after it was obtained. Id.

Where a petition is filed to vacate a judgment, the court may first determine whether the grounds upon which the petition is based are sufficient before inquiring into the validity of the defense, although the judgment cannot be vacated until a valid defense to the action is shown. The Niagara Ins. Co. v. Roderick & Pearson, 47 Id., 162.

The fact that service of process was had on the agent of the insurance company in another county than the one where the loss occurred does not constitute “fraud practiced by the successful party,” authorizing a vacation of the judgment. Id.

It was held not sufficient ground for vacating a judgment that the agent served with notice of the action placed the notice in an envelope addressed to the general agent of the company, and placed the letter where he supposed it would be mailed, but which never reached the general agent, and who was, accordingly, ignorant of the pendency of the suit, and judgment was rendered by default. Id.

To entitle a party to have a judgment vacated, either on the fourth or seventh grounds named in section 3154, he must prove due diligence on his part, as well as the existence of good cause. Miller v. Albough, 24 Id., 128.

The loss of all the written evidence on which a case has been tried, occurring after judgment and appeal to the supreme court, without fault on the part of the appellant, affords no ground for granting a new trial by the court below. Loomis v. McKinzie, 48 Id., 416.

Courts have power, independently of statute to supply any part of their record which may have been lost. In the exercise of their general equity powers they cannot grant relief by giving a new trial on account of lost evidence, when the law affords a plain and direct remedy by permitting the substitution of lost evidence. Id.

A judgment cannot be vacated for fraud practiced by the successful party in obtaining it, by an action commenced within one year after the judgment was rendered. Lefever v. Stone, 55 Id., 49.

In a suit in equity. A court of equity will direct a new trial in an action at law, in a case where such trial would have been ordered by the court wherein the judgment was rendered, if timely application had been made therein, upon it being shown that proper reasons existed for not making such application, or the grounds of equitable interference arose after the time had expired for the court wherein the action was tried to grant relief.

On Ground of Fraud. A petition for a new trial, under section 3154 of the code, on the ground of fraud, need not allege the fraud in terms, but is sufficient if it sets up facts which amount in law to fraud. Leftover v. Stone, 55 Id., 49.

New Trial for Minor. A new trial cannot be obtained by a minor, under paragraphs five and eight of section 3154, on the ground that he did not appear on the trial by guardian, where it is shown that after his appearance by attorney, such attorney was appointed his guardian ad litem, and continued to act for him through the trial, and no prejudice to the minor is shown. Webster v. Page, 54 Id., 461.

A motion to vacate a judgment rendered against a garnishee for failure to answer, when he had notice of the time and place when and where his answer was to be taken, may be made after the term at which the judgment was rendered. Thomas v. Hoffman, Garnishee, 62 Id., 125;

A new trial will not usually be granted upon the ground of newly discovered evidence when such evidence is merely cumulative in character. Facts of case held insufficient to entitle party

Where a judgment is rendered in favor of a plaintiff in an action, after his death, the judgment is voidable only, and must be considered valid unless set aside in proceedings under chapter 1, title XIX, of the code, upon an adjudication that there is a valid defense to the action. The court is not authorized to treat such judgment as a nullity, allow a substitution of plaintiffs, and enter a second judgment, upon the application of plaintiff's attorney. Gilman v. Donovan, 53 Id., 562.

A decree of divorce may be set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, notwithstanding the rights of third parties may have intervened. Rush v. Rush, 40 Id., 645; Same v. Same, 33 Id., 701; Whitcomb v. Whitcomb, 46 Id., 437.

A new trial should not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence, when such evidence, if produced, would not authorize a different judgment from that before rendered. Corpen-

A proper order for a guardian's sale is not a judgment; and these sections providing for reversing, vacating, and modifying judgments have no proper application to such an order. Bunee v. Bunee, 59 Id., 533. See also, Gilman v. Donovan, id., 76.

Where an insufficient petition for a new trial was filed within the year, as provided by section 3157, and after the expiration of a year an amended petition was filed, setting up facts which might be sufficient, held that the amended petition could not be regarded as a more specific statement of the original, and did not entitle the party to a new trial. Harnett v. Harnett, Id., 401.

When an original notice is duly served upon a married woman, she must be presumed, in the absence of evidence of a mental incapacity, to understand the objects and purpose of the notice, and how her rights are affected thereby; and where, as in this case, she gave the copy of the notice to her husband, claiming that she did it upon the supposition that it did not relate to her individual rights, and the husband neglected to defend, and judgment by default was rendered against her, held that she could not have the judgment set aside on the grounds of unavoidable casualty or

Certain parties were brought into the case upon a notice which stated that no personal judgment was asked against them unless they defended. They appeared, denied knowledge or information, and disclaimed any interest in the subject of the action, but the court rendered judgment against them for costs of the case, and the record was signed and approved. At the next term these parties filed a motion to re-tax costs, the object of which was really to have the judgment wholly set aside as being unwarranted. Held, that the court had no power to vacate the judgment on motion filed after the term at which it was rendered, the ground of the motion not being one of those named in section 3145 of the code. Fairbairn v. Dana, 63 Id., 231.

A motion to vacate a judgment rendered against a garnishee for failure to answer, when he had no notice of the time and place when and where his answer was to be taken, may be made after the term at which the judgment was rendered. Thomas v. Hoffman, Garnishee, 62 Id., 125;

Where one who is entitled to have a judgment against him set aside on account of fraud under subdivision 4 of section 3154, is prevented by fraud or procurement of his adversary from bringing his action therefor within the time prescribed by section 3157, a court of equity will, upon a proper showing, grant him relief after that time. Lumpkin v. Shook, 63 Id., 515. (citing Young
v. Tucker, 39 Id., 538; Dist. Tp. of Newton v. White, 42 Id., 395;) but as a basis for such relief he must bring himself within the terms of the statute.

A judgment of foreclosure was procured under which plaintiff's property was sold and purchased by the defendant. Plaintiff was a minor at the time, and her guardian was alone named as defendant in the papers in the case but the original notice was duly served upon her, by which she was informed as to the nature of the proceeding; but she did not appear, though the guardian did, and he filed an answer denying the allegations of the petition. The judgment, by its terms, foreclosed the equity of redemption of both plaintiff and the guardian. Held that if the mortgage was invalid, as the plaintiff claims, she might have appeared within a year after attaining her majority and asked to have the judgment set aside under paragraph 8 of section 3154 of the code, but that she could not, after that time maintain a collateral proceeding against the defendant to set aside the judgment and sheriff's deed, and to have the title quieted in herself.
Dahms v. Aston, 72 Id., 411.

SEC. 3155. [Petition for new trial: when proper mode.]—When the grounds for a new trial could not with reasonable diligence have been discovered before, but are discovered after the term at which the verdict, report of referee, or decision was rendered or made, the application may be made by petition filed as in other cases, not later than the second term after the discovery, on which notice shall be served and returned, and the defendant held to appear as in an original action. The facts stated in the petition shall be considered as denied without answer. The case shall be tried as other cases by ordinary proceedings, but no petition shall be filed more than one year after the final judgment was rendered.
To entitle a party to a new trial on the ground of surprise, he must show that he was prejudiced by the judgment rendered on the former trial, that he was prevented by reason of such accident or surprise from properly defending the action, and that he has material evidence which he could not, by the exercise of reasonable diligence have discovered and produced on that trial. Richards v. Nuckolls, 19 Iowa, 555.

In a proceeding for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, both the statute and the common law require proof of diligence to discover the evidence before the trial. Stick-slayer v. McKeen, 40 id., 212.

Under this section the applicant for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence should be made by petition, as in an ordinary action. First Nat. Bk. etc. v. Murdough, 40 id., 26.

When it would be proper for a court of law to grant a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, if the application is made while the court has power to do so, it is equally proper for a court of equity to decree a new trial when the application is based upon the ground of evidence discovered after the court of law ceased to have power to grant it. Haskins v. Huttenback et al., 14 id., 314.

When a party goes into a court of equity for relief after a trial at law, he must be able to impeach the justice and equity of the verdict, and it must be upon grounds that either could not be made available to him at law, or which he was prevented from setting up, by fraud, accident or the wrongful act of the other party, without any negligence or other fault on his part. When he brings himself within these requirements a court of equity will grant him a new trial in that court. Johnson v. Lyon, 14 id., 454; Richards v. Nuckolls, 19 id., 555; Humphrey v. Darlington, 15 id., 207; Dixon v. Graham, 16 id., 510; McGregor v. Gardner, id., 538.

A petition for a new trial under this section must be filed and notice thereof served upon the opposite party or his attorney within one year from the date of the judgment or decree of the court in which the same was rendered. Gray v. Coan, 48 id., 424; Bond v. Esplcy, id., 690.

The time within which the petition must be filed commences to run from the date of the decree in the trial court, and not from the date of the affirmance of the decree in the supreme court on appeal. Id.

Pending an application for a new trial made subsequent to the trial term, under this section, for newly discovered evidence, a change of venue may be granted upon a cause shown. Gibles v. Buckingham, 48 id., 36.

A petition for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, under section 3155 of the code which states that the grounds for new trial could not, with reasonable diligence, have been discovered before, is not vulnerable to a demurrer. Woodman v. Dutton, 49 id., 398.

Where a petition for a new trial is filed in accordance with the provisions of section 3155, it is for the court without a jury to first try and decide upon the grounds to vacate or modify the judgment. Carpenter v. Brown, 50 id., 431.

Where a petition for a new trial is filed in accordance with the provisions of this section, it is for the court, without a jury, to “first try and decide upon the grounds to vacate or modify the judgment.” Id.

Under this section an application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence should be made by petition, as in ordinary proceedings. The First National Bank of Tama City v. Murdough, 40 id., 26.

Upon hearing of a petition for a new trial under the first subdivision of section 3154, and section 3155, the court should first make the order granting (in a proper case) a new trial before proceeding to determine the merits of the original case upon the issues made therein. Brown v. Byam, 50 id., 52.

The right to apply for a new trial, under section 3155, and the power of the court to entertain such application during the time limited in the statute are absolute and unconditional; and a subsequent appeal from the judgment on the first trial will not oust the court of such jurisdiction. Cook v. Smith, 58 id., 607.

Where there was an error in the verdict of a jury, which did not inhere in the verdict, but was the result of the jury’s adding extraneous evidence to the case, thus making a case different from that which had been submitted to them in court, which error was not discovered by the plaintiffs until after the term, when they filed a petition for a new trial under this section, held that a new trial should have been granted. Kruidner Bros v. Shields, 70 id., 428.

Upon a petition to vacate a judgment and for a new trial under this section of the code, no answer is allowable, because the allegations of the petition are considered as denied without answer, and the cause made by the petition is alone to be tried, and where the petition in such case sets up the facts relied on as a defense, such facts are considered only in determining whether or not the petitioner is entitled to a new trial and it is not competent there, in an answer to the petition, to reply to such defense; but such reply should be deferred until a new trial is granted, and should be set up as against the facts then pleaded as a defense to the original action. Bennett v. Cressy, 72 id., 476.
SEC. 3156. [Mistakes of clerk and irregularity.]—The proceedings to correct mistakes or omissions of the clerk, or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order, shall be by motion served on the adverse party, or on his attorney in the action and within one year; and when made to vacate a judgment because of irregularity in obtaining it, must be made on the second day of the succeeding term.

A mistake of the clerk in entering up a judgment, may be corrected on motion of the plaintiff, within the time and in the manner prescribed by this section, and when made to vacate a judgment because of irregularity in obtaining it, must be made on the second day of the succeeding term. Goldsmith v. Clausen, 14 Iowa, 278.

When a court of equity will grant relief in the correction of mistakes of the clerk, after the expiration of one year, see Partridge & Co. v. Harrow et al., 27 Id., 96, cited in the notes to section 3154 ante.

Courts possess the inherent power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc and the lapse of time will not bar its exercise. Fuller & Co. v. Stebbins et al., 49 Id., 376.

This section (3156) does not apply to an application for a nunc pro tunc order for the entry of judgment when the duty has been omitted by the clerk. Id.

Equity will interfere to set aside a judgment at law and grant a new trial, after more than one year from the date of the judgment, if it be shown to have been obtained by fraud and valid reasons are assigned for the delay in making the application for relief. The Dist. Tp. of Newton v. White et al., 42 Id., 608. See also, Bowen v. The Troy Portable Mill Co., 31 Id., 460.

A notice of appeal to the supreme court should be filed with the clerk of the court below, and it is one of the original papers, and becomes a part of the record of the court, and it is subject to correction, on motion, in that court within the time prescribed by the statute. Beier v. The C. B. & P. Ry Co., 66 Id., 602.

A motion to modify a final decree on the ground that it is irregularly obtained should be overruled, when it is filed later than the second day of the succeeding term, and no notice thereof has been given to the adverse party. Weirmore v. Harper et al., 70 Id., 846.

SEC. 3157. [When petition must be filed.]—The proceedings, to obtain the benefit of subdivisions four, five, six, seven and eight of section three thousand one hundred and fifty-four of this chapter, shall be by petition, verified by affidavit, setting forth the judgment or order, the facts or errors constituting a cause to vacate or modify it, and the facts constituting a defense to the action if the party applying was a defendant, and such proceedings must be commenced within one year after the judgment or order was made, unless the party entitled thereto be a minor or person of unsound mind, and then within one year from the removal of such disability.

A motion to vacate a judgment does not state the facts constituting a defense, and is otherwise informal in not conforming to section 3157 of the code, should be taken advantage of by a motion for more specific statement or possibly by a demurrer, and cannot be made available on the trial of the merits or after appeal. Turner v. First N't Bk, etc., 30 Iowa, 191.

After a cause has been appealed and is pending in the supreme court, the court below has no authority to make a nunc pro tunc order without notice to the other party. Id.

In a proceeding under this section to vacate a judgment, it is necessary not only that the matters relied upon to excuse the failure to defend are sufficient, but that the facts set out as a defense shall be adjudged sufficient for that purpose. Brewer v. Holborn, 34 Id., 473.

A decree of divorce may be vacated and set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, notwithstanding the rights of innocent third persons may have intervened. Rush v. Rush, 46 Id., 648. The case of Gilruth v. Gilruth, 20 Id., 225, explained. Id.

The provisions of section 3157 are directory merely, and a petition not verified confer jurisdiction on the court, which may give the plaintiff leave to amend so that the pleading shall comply with the statute. Id.

The proceeding is by which to obtain relief under the fourth subdivision of section 3154 is by petition verified by affidavit setting forth the judgment, etc. Reno v. Teagarden, 24 Id., 144, 149.

SEC. 3158. [Party brought into court in the ordinary way.]—In such proceedings the party shall be brought into court in the same way, on the same notice as to time, mode of service, and mode of return, and the pleadings shall be governed by the principles, and issues be made up by the same form, and all the proceedings conducted in the same way, as near as can be, as in original action by ordinary proceedings, except that defendant shall introduce no new cause, and the cause of the petition shall alone be tried.
SEC. 3159. [Not vacated until it is adjudged there is a defense.]—The judgment shall not be vacated on motion or petition until it is adjudged that there is a valid defense to the action in which the judgment is rendered; or, if the plaintiff seeks its vacation, that there is a valid cause of action; and when judgment is modified, all liens and securities obtained under it shall be preserved to the modified judgment.

SEC. 3160. [First try grounds to vacate.]—The court may first try and decide upon the grounds to vacate or modify a judgment or order before trying or deciding upon the validity of the defense or cause of action.

Upon an application to vacate a judgment rendered by default, the court may first try the question of the validity of the defense, and if that shall appear insufficient the application should be overruled. Miracle v. Lancaster, 46 Iowa, 179.

When a petition is filed to vacate a judgment and for a new trial, the court may first determine whether the grounds upon which the petition is based are sufficient before inquiry into the validity of the defense, although the judgment cannot be vacated until it be shown there is a valid defense to the action. The Niagara Ins. Co. v. Rodecker & Pearson, 47 Id., 162.

SEC. 3161. [Injunction.]—The party seeking to vacate or modify a judgment or order, may obtain an injunction suspending proceedings on the whole or part thereof, which injunction may be granted by the court or the judge upon its being rendered probable, by affidavit or petition sworn to, or by exhibition of the record, that the party is entitled to have such judgment or order vacated or modified.

SEC. 3162. [When judgment is affirmed.]—In all cases of affirmance of the judgment or order, when the proceedings have been suspended, judgment shall be rendered against the plaintiff in error for the amount of the former judgment, interest and costs, together with damages at the discretion of the court, not exceeding ten per cent on the amount of the judgment.

CHAPTER 2.

OF APPELLATE PROCEEDINGS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

SECTION 3163. [From what appeals may be taken.]—The supreme court has appellate jurisdiction over all judgments and decisions of all other courts of record, as well in civil action as in proceedings of a special or independent character.

The abstract must show that final judgment has been rendered. Shannon v. Scott, 40 Iowa, 629.

An appeal lies from a judgment in a garnishment proceeding, whether it is for or against the garnishee. Bobb v. Preston, 1 Id., 459.

The principal defendant may appeal from the judgment against a garnishee. Sinard v. Gleason, 19 Id., 165.

No appeal lies from a judgment rendered in a proceeding for contempt. The First Congregational Church, etc., v. Muscatine, 2 Id., 69.

An appeal may be taken to the supreme court, from a judgment rendered by default, or a decree pro confesso. Woodward v. Whitescarver et ux., 6 Id., 1; Harris v. Kramer, 3 Id., 543; Carr v. Kopp, Id., 50; Byington v. Crotshcatt, 1 Id., 148.

So also an appeal will lie from a judgment by confession. Troxell v. Clark, 9 Id., 201; Edgar v. Greer, 7 Id., 136.

A person has no right of appeal until some question to which he was a party has been adjudicated by the court below. Phillips v. Shelton, 6 Id., 545; Borgnthous v. The F. & M. Ins. Co., 36 Id., 250; The State, et rel. Alderson, v. Jones, 11 Id., 11.

An appeal lies from a judgment rendered by an attorney, not the judge, setting and acting temporarily as such. Petty v. Oarell, 4 G. Greene, 129.

An appeal may be taken from any decree rendered in a cause which finally determines any material issue between the parties, although another branch of the suit is still pending and undetermined. Lucas v. Pickel et ux., 20 Iowa, 490.

Where a party takes a stay of execution under the statute, he waives his right to appeal. Searrett v. Newman, 19 Id., 323.

No appeal can properly be taken from a ruling which the court in effect subsequently changed, or set aside in the case. Thompson v. Burnham, 35 Id., 41.

By the express provisions of the constitution, the jurisdiction in chancery causes is appellate only, and in reviewing such causes that court will consider only the issues and evidence presented in the court below, and no evidence will be originally received and considered in the trial de novo in such causes on appeal. McGregor v. Gardner, 16 Id., 53.

An appeal lies from an order refusing to grant a new trial, for the purpose of reviewing any error involved in such ruling which is assigned with the necessary exactness; and the appeal may be taken six months from the date of the order. Kitterman v. The C. M. & St. Paul Ry Co., 69 Id., 440.

In order to deprive the supreme court of jurisdiction of an appeal, on the ground that the amount involved does not exceed $100, that fact must appear affirmatively from the pleadings. Babcock v. The Ty. Board of Eq., &c., 63 Id., 110.

Where the petition claimed less than $100, and the answer alleged the payment of more than $100, but did not set up a counter-claim, nor ask judgment against the plaintiff for any balance, the amount in controversy was less than $100, and the appellate court had no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal in the case, without the certificate of the trial judge required by this section, even though the cause was tried below, and presented in the appellate court, on the theory that the answer did plead a counter-claim. Kirtz & Bittering v. Hoffman, Id., 260.

Sec. 3164. An appeal may also be taken to the supreme court from the following orders:

1. An order made affecting a substantial right in an action, when such order, in effect, determines the action and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken;
2. A final order made in special proceedings affecting a substantial right therein, or made on a summary application in an action after judgment;
3. When an order grants or refuses, continues or modifies a provisional remedy; or grants, refuses, dissolves, or refuses to dissolve an injunction or attachment; when it grants or refuses a new trial, or when it sustains or overrules a demurrer;
4. An intermediate order involving the merits and materially affecting the final decision;
5. An order or judgment on habeas corpus.

An appeal lies from an order of the court dissolving an injunction, where the dissolution affects the merits of the cause, or where the order involves an adjudication upon any of the material questions in controversy. So held under section 1556 of the code of 1851. The Trustees of I. C. v. City of Davenport, 7 Iowa, 253.

The party against whom the court has made a ruling on the admissibility of evidence, may except the same, and where it virtually disposes of the whole case, appeal from it to the supreme court without interposing a motion for a new trial. McCoy v. Julien, 15 Id., 371.

An order of the district court refusing the district attorney the right to appear and defend in an action against the county, is erroneous, and may be corrected on appeal presented by the district attorney in the name of the county. Clark et al. v. Lyon County, 37 Id., 469.

An appeal may be taken from an order of the court, appointing, or refusing to appoint, a receiver. Callanan et al. v. Shaw, 19 Id., 183.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal did not lie from an order of a circuit judge in vacation, dissolving an injunction. Aller, if the order was made by the court in session. Jewett v. Squires, 30 Id., 32.

An appeal to the supreme court does not lie from a ruling of the court below upon the admissibility of evidence. The ruling or order appealed from must extend to and affect the merits of the case; if it be merely incidental to the progress or trial of the cause, no appeal will lie. Richards v. Barden, 31 Id., 395.

An appeal from the final judgment in an action, brings up for review the intermediate rulings of the court which have been duly excepted to, and not otherwise waived. Jones v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 36 Id., 65.

An order of the district court refusing the district attorney the right to appear and defend an action pending against his county is erroneous, and may be corrected on appeal presented by the district attorney in the name of the county. Clarke & Grant v. Lyon County, 37 Id., 469.

An appeal will lie from an order of a court recommencing a cause to arbitrators after the filing of their report. Brown v. Harper, 54 Id., 548.
It was held under the revision of 1860 that an appeal would not lie to the supreme court from an order of a county judge dissolving an injunction (The Monticello Bank v. Smith, 25 Id., 246), but under the code an appeal lies to the supreme court from an order made by any judge allowing or refusing an injunction. Bennett et al. v. Itherington, 41 Id., 142.

The statute does not give a right of appeal from an order granting a change of venue, but an appeal properly taken from an interlocutory order affecting substantial rights brings up for review all rulings therefor made in the action and duly excepted to. Allerton v. Eldridge, 56 Id., 709.

An appeal lies, as a matter of right, from an order sustaining a demurrer to the petition, although the record does not show an election to stand on the petition. Hampton v. Jones, 58 Id., 317.

While, under the statute, appeals are allowed from certain intermediate orders made in the progress of the case, a failure to appeal therefrom does not operate as a waiver in respect thereto, but they are saved and may be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment, if duly excepted to. Id.

An appeal from an order requiring a bond for costs, is premature if taken before the expiration of the time for filing the bond. The D. M. V. Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Henderson, 35 Id., 446.

An appeal lies from an order quashing the original notice. Elliott v. Corbin, 4 Id., 564; Worster, Templin & Co. v. Oliver, Id., 345.

So, also, an appeal lies from an order discharging a garnishee. Bobb v. Preston, 1 Id., 480. An appeal may be taken from an order granting a new trial. Newell v. Sanford, 10 Id., 396; Coffey v. Groom, Id., 545.

An appeal lies to the supreme court from an order overruling a motion to set aside the verdict and quash the writ in a proceeding ad quod damnum. Burnham v. Thompson, 35 Id., 421.

An appeal will not lie from a ruling on a motion to suppress depositions. Baldwin v. Mayne, 40 Id., 657.

An appeal lies from an order of the court overruling a demurrer when the ruling involves the merits of the case, and the party at the time elects to stand on his demurrer, though no final judgment has been rendered. Costen v. Boone et al., 4 Id., 550; Richards v. Burden, 31 Id., 305.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal did not lie from an order of a judge of the supreme court dissolving an injunction; nor under the code (§ 3165) would an appeal lie from such order, made prior to the taking effect of the code. The City of Davenport v. The D. & St. P. R. Co., 37 Id., 624. In re Curley, 34 Id., 154.

An appeal will lie from an order of the court refusing to strike a petition from the files. The First Nat. Bank, etc., v. Gill & Co. et al., 50 Id., 425.

Where a cause is dismissed because of the non-appearance of the plaintiff, and judgment is rendered against him for costs, an appeal will not lie from such judgment. Striker v. Holtz, 50 Id., 291.

An appeal will lie from an order, made in a special proceeding, and affecting a substantial right therein. Dryden v. Wyllis et al., 51 Id., 554.

An agreed statement of facts for the purpose of procuring a review in the supreme court of the action of the court below, in overruling a motion for a new trial, based upon the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, which does not purport to contain even the substance of the evidence on which the case was tried, or the facts established by the evidence, but which is simply a general statement of facts upon which it is agreed the court may give judgment, is insufficient. The supreme court sits, in cases at law, for the correction of errors, and not to decide cases upon the agreement of parties or otherwise as upon an original hearing. Harvey v. Miller, 25 Id., 219.

An appeal to the supreme court will lie from a judgment overruling an demurrer to an answer and dismissing the action at plaintiff's cost. Arnold Bros. v. Kreutzer et al., 61 Id., 214.

Where a cause has been reversed by the supreme court and remanded to the court below for a decree in accordance with the opinion of the supreme court, and defendant was then permitted in the lower court, against plaintiff's objection, to introduce additional evidence, it was held that such ruling was not such a final order as would sustain an appeal, since it could not be said in advance that such evidence would determine the case against the plaintiff. Garmore v. Sturgeon, 67 Id., 700.

The overruling of a motion to appoint counsel to prosecute charges against an attorney, looking to his disbarment, is not such a final order as that an appeal will lie therefrom to the supreme court, under section 3164 of the code. Byington v. Moore, 70 Id., 206.

Under this section of the code, an appeal may be taken when the court refuses a new trial, whether judgment has been rendered on the verdict or not. Baldwin v. Foss, 71 Id., 888.

Under section 4164, paragraph 4, an appeal will lie from an order overruling a motion to strike from the files an amended petition of intervention, when such motion assails the right of the intervenor to recover on such amended petition. Bicklin, Winzer & Co. v. Kendall 73 Id., 490.

In a tardy proceeding, the defendant attached to his answer certain interrogatories to be answered by the mother of the child. The court sustained exceptions to the interrogatories on the ground that the mother was not a party to the action in such a sense as to require her to answer them. Hold that an appeal would not lie from such ruling of the court, it not being such an order as is contemplated by this section of the code. The State v. Arms, Id., 555, following the principle in Richards v. Burden, 31 Id., 305.

This section authorizes an appeal from an order allowing temporary alimony to be paid on certain dates, and giving execution therefor. Blair v. Blair, 37 N. W., 385.

SEC. 3165. [Orders made by judge.]—If any of the above orders are made by a judge, the same is reviewable in the same way as if made by a court. Under section 3632 (code section 3164), were made by a supreme judge or by a circuit judge in vacation, no appeal was allowed therefrom. In re Curley, 34 Iowa, 184; Jewett v. Squires, 30 Id., 92; The Monticello Bank v. Smith, 25 Id., 246.

SEC. 3166. [Court may prescribe rules.]—The court may also, in its discretion, prescribe rules for allowing appeals on such other intermediate orders or decisions as is deemed expedient, and for permitting the same to be taken and tried during the progress of the trial in the court below; but such intermediate appeals must not retard proceedings in the court from which the appeal is taken.

SEC. 3167. [Mistakes of clerk below.]—A mistake of the clerk shall not be ground for an appeal until the same has been presented and acted upon by the court below.

The supreme court will dismiss an appeal from a judgment by confession, when the record fails to show that a motion to set the same aside has been presented to and passed upon by the court below.

SEC. 3168. A judgment or order shall not be reversed for an error which can be corrected on motion in an inferior court, until such motion has been made there and overruled.

The objections that a judgment is excessive, or that the petition does not state a cause of action will not be considered on appeal until a motion has been made to correct the same in the court below and there overruled. Webster v. The Cedar R. & St P. R. Co., 25 Id., 315.

The supreme court will not grant a new trial on the ground that the verdict is excessive where no motion for that purpose was made in the court below. Small v. C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 55 Id., 582.

SEC. 3169. [Motion for new trial.]—The supreme court may review and reverse on appeal any judgment or order of the district or circuit court, although no motion for a new trial was made in such courts.

Under this section it is not necessary to entitle a party to have reviewed in the supreme court the rulings of the court below, properly excepted to, that a motion for a new trial shall have been made and acted upon by the latter court. Fresswell v. Herbert, 34 Iowa, 539; Drefahl v. Tuttle, 42 Id., 177.

Where the case is tried by the court without a jury, it is not necessary to entitle a party to a review on appeal that there should be a finding of fact or conclusion of law upon the record. Drefahl v. Tuttle, 42 Id., 177.

While this section obviates the necessity of a motion for a new trial, it does not dispense with the necessity of excepting to the decision sought to be reviewed; and a judgment will not be reviewed by the appellate court unless it appears in the record that exception was taken thereto at the time of its rendition. "Eason v. Gester, 31 Id., 475; Root v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 29 Id., 102.

Where instructions are excepted to at the time they are given, it is not necessary to make further exceptions to them in a motion for a new trial; in such case no motion for a new trial is required. "Butterfield & Co. v. Stephens, 59 Id., 596.

SEC. 3170. [Finding of facts: evidence certified.]—Where a cause is tried by the court, it shall not be necessary in order to secure a review of the same in the supreme court that there should have been any finding of facts or conclusions of law stated in the record, but the supreme court shall hear and determine the same whenever it shall appear from a certificate of the judge, agreement of parties or their attorneys, or, in case the evidence consists wholly of written testimony, from the certificate of the clerk, that the transcript contains all the evidence introduced by the parties on the trial in the court below.

This and the preceding section are not in conflict with section 4 of article 5 of the state constitution, which provides that the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only in cases in chancery, and shall constitute a court for the correction of errors at law under such restrictions as the general assembly may prescribe. "Coffin v. The City of Davenport, 20 Iowa, 315; Johnson v. Semple, 31 Id., 49.

Where the record does not show that all the evidence is before the appellate court and there is no finding of fact in the court below, the supreme court will not disturb the judgment on matters of fact. "Van Riper v. Baker, 44 Id., 450, 452.

This section does not obviate the necessity of excepting to the decision nor of an assignment of errors in the appellate court. "Eason v. Gester, 31 Id., 475; Root v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 29 Id., 102; Sisters of Visitation v. Glass, 45 Id., 154, 156.

This section applies to actions at law only, and has no application to proceedings in equity. "Vinsant v. Vinsant, 47 Id., 594, 596.

There are but three modes known to our law by which the supreme court can know that all the evidence introduced on the trial of a cause in the court below is before the appellate court, namely: first, by a bill of exceptions stating such fact; second, by certificate of the judge under section 2742; and third, certificate of judge, agreement of the parties or their attorneys, or certificate of the clerk under section 3170 of the code. "Flesher v. Groves, 48 Id., 700, 701.

In all appeals to the supreme court the record must show that all of the evidence introduced and received in the court below is before the supreme court in the case. "Davenport v. Ellis, 22 Id., 296; Winston v. Turner, 20 Id., 294; Lindsay v. Byington, 22 Id., 441; Wetherell v. Goodrich, 1 Id., 583; Chambers v. Ingham, 25 Id., 222; Garner v. Pomerooy, 11 Id., 149; Cook v. Woodbury Co., 13 Id., 21; Van Orman v. Clarke, 16 Id., 186; Kellogg v. Kelsey, 1385; Ford v. Vance, 17 Id., 94; Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 375; Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Id., 55; Kappel v. Where the evidence certified as contained in the abstract in an equity case is stricken out on motion of the appellant, the cause cannot be tried de novo. "Boy v. Cowgill, 52 Iowa, 711.

The parties to an equity cause have the right to have it reviewed in the supreme court upon errors duly assigned, and having so agreed, they may, to effectuate such purpose, agree upon the evidences introduced and considered by the court below, as provided in this section. "Hutchinson v. Wells, 67 Id., 430.

SEC. 3171. [How docketed.]—The cause shall be docketed as it was in the court below, and the party taking the appeal shall be called the appellant, and the other party the appellee.

SEC. 3172. [Process.]—The court may issue all writs and process necessary for the exercise and enforcement of its appellate jurisdiction.

SEC. 3173. [Appeals, when taken: limitation on right.]—Appeals from the district and circuit courts may be taken to the supreme court at any time within six months from the rendition of the judgment or order appealed from, and not afterward. But no appeal shall be taken in any cause in which the amount in controversy between the parties, as shown by the pleadings, does not exceed one hundred dollars, unless the trial judge shall certify that such cause involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court, but this limitation shall not affect the right of appeal in any cause in which is involved any interest in real property.

Under section 3957 of the revision, which limited appeals to the supreme court to one year from the rendition of the judgment or order appealed from, it was held that an appeal had been taken in time, although the record showed the judgment to have been rendered more than one year before the notice of appeal was given. It also appearing that at the term the judgment appeared to have been rendered, a motion for a new trial was interposed by the defendant, which was not decided until sometime after the close of that term, and within one year before the appeal was taken, and that the judgment was not in fact rendered until the motion was decided.

The right of appeal is governed by the provisions of the law in force at the time of the rendition of the judgment appealed from. And under section 2173 of the code, no appeal lies to the supreme court where the amount in controversy is less than $100, unless the appellant shall procure a certificate from the trial judge to the effect that the case involves the determination of a question of law upon which it is desirable to have the opinion of the supreme court.

The certificate required by this section to give the court jurisdiction of a cause involving less than $100 is not revived by filing a petition for a new trial.

The supreme court does not acquire jurisdiction of a cause on appeal where the amount in controversy is less than $100, by the certificate of the trial judge made after the adjournment of the term and more than two months after the rendition of the judgment.

But now under the rules of the supreme court the certificate is insufficient unless it shows what the question is. The certificate must be made at the time of the trial of the cause, and a part of the record.

If the defeated party wishes the right of appeal in a cause involving less than $100 he should make his application for the proper certificate at the time of the decision of the case so that his right of appeal is apparent of record from the rendition of the judgment.

The certificate required by this section to give the court jurisdiction of a cause involving less than $100 must be made at the time the judgment was rendered, and is on file with the papers of this case, it was held that the certificate was insufficient in not stating what question of law was involved.

While the parties may stipulate that judgment may be entered in vacation as of the last preceding term, yet they cannot stipulate that a case involving less than one hundred dollars shall go to the supreme court on the certificate of the trial judge. The judge alone has power to determine that question under section 2173 of the code.

Only questions of law can under this section properly be certified for the opinion of the supreme court, and the certificate must point out the specific questions of law to be determined without mingling them with questions of fact. Gillooby v. C. M. & St. P. R'y Co., 1d., 53.

Rule 12 of the supreme court, providing that appeals in cases involving less than one hundred dollars will only be considered when the certificate of the trial judge states the question of law upon which an opinion is desirable, is not objectionable upon the ground that it limits the jurisdiction of the courts. Wilson v. Iowa County, 52 Id., 339.

It is not necessary that the judge's certificate should be made on the day of the trial of the cause; if made on the day when a motion for a new trial is overruled, it is made in time, for where a motion for a new trial is filed, the certificate cannot be properly made until the cause is finally disposed of by a ruling on the motion. Hiackock v. Buell, 51 Id., 655, 658.

But where the certificate was not made until more than three months after the rendition and entry of the judgments, it was held that it was insufficient to confer jurisdiction upon the supreme court. Herschfield & Mitchell v. The First N°7 B'k, etc., 39 Id., 560.

More than one question may be submitted in a case by a certificate of the trial judge, but each question must be specifically stated, so that each may be determined. Questions or law and fact cannot be mingled and called questions of law. The City of Centerville v. Drake, 58 Id., 504.

Where the petition claimed $70, and the answer set up a counter-claim of $67, held that the supreme court had no jurisdiction of an appeal of the cause without the certificate required in cases involving less than $100. The amount in controversy is not ascertained by adding the amount of the counter-claim to that claimed in the petition. Fox v. Duncan, 60 Id., 321; following, Madison v. Spitznagle, 58 Id., 369.

Where an appeal is sought in a cause involving less than $100, the certificate required in such case must be made and filed at the time of the rendition of the judgment. It is not sufficient that it be done at the same term. Foye v. Walker, 62 Id., 251.

An action brought to enforce a mechanic's lien is not "a cause in which is involved any interest in real property" as contemplated by this section. Andrews & Smith v. Burdick & Goble et al., 63 Id., 714.

Where an appeal is sought in a cause involving less than $100, the certificate required in such case must be made and filed at the time of the rendition of the judgment. It is not sufficient that it be done at the same term. Foye v. Walker, 62 Id., 251.

An action brought to enforce a mechanic's lien is not "a cause in which is involved any interest in real property," as contemplated by this section. Andrews & Smith v. Burdick & Goble et al., 63 Id., 714.

Where a cause involves less than $100, and the certificate of the trial judge fails to state explicitly the facts involved and the questions to be decided, so as to avoid the necessity of finding the facts from the records, the supreme court has no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, and will dismiss it though the question of jurisdiction be not raised by counsel. White v. Bratty, 64 Iowa, 331; following Votaw v. Corwin, 62 Id., 39; and Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 63 Id., 512.

An action to establish a lien upon real property, and to subject it to the satisfaction of a judgment, is not an action involving an interest in real estate, as contemplated by this section of the code; if made on the day when a motion for a new trial is overruled, it is made in time, for where a motion for a new trial is filed the certificate cannot be properly made until the cause is finally disposed of by a ruling on the motion. Foye v. Walker, 62 Id., 251.

In appeals involving less than $100 the supreme court has no jurisdiction to determine any question not properly certified by the judge of the lower court. Vreeland v. Ellisworth, 71 Id., 347. And in such case the appellate court cannot declare the law upon the facts of the case, where the cause was made and certified by the trial court.

Nor can the appellate court decide questions of fact on appeal where the amount in controversy is less than $100, even when certified by the trial judge; and the appeal in such case must be dismissed. Riddell v. Fletcher, 72 Id., 454. See also Clinton v. The C. R. I. & P. R'y Co., 1d., 659.

Under this section if an appeal where the amount involved is less than $100, and there is no certificate of the trial judge stating the questions of law to be decided, no jurisdiction is acquired by the supreme court, although the questions involved in the cause could be determined from the pleadings or the evidence. The certificate is what confers jurisdiction. Beach v. Donavan, 38 N. W. Rep., 404.

Where one of several parties appeals to the supreme court, and serves notice of the appeal on his co-parties, they may join therein and avail themselves of all the benefits arising out of the appeal. Barlow et al. v. Scott's Adm'r, 12 Id., 63.

In an action for partition, where there were several defendants, and only one of them appealed from the judgment, it was necessary, in order to perfect the appeal, for the defendant to serve notice of the appeal on all the other parties to the action, and file proof thereof with the clerk of the supreme court. When this is not done the appeal will be dismissed. Hunt v. Hawley et al., 70 Id., 183.

they cannot, nor can any of them, take an appeal afterwards; nor shall they derive any benefit from the appeal, unless from the necessity of the case.

of all the benefits arising therefrom. Barlow et al. v. Scott's Admr's et al., 12 Id., 63.

SEC. 3277. [Appeal from part of judgment or order.]—An appeal from part of an order, or from one of the judgments of a final adjudication, or from part of a judgment, shall not disturb or delay the rights of any party to any judg­ for him in the case in the court below, and also upon the clerk of the court wherein the proceedings were had, stating the appeal from the same, or from some specific part thereof, defining such part.

An appeal from the decision of the court below to the supreme court is fully effected by the services of a notice of appeal on the clerk and adverse party within the time limited in the statute, and it is not necessary that such notice be filed with, or marked "filed" by, the clerk within that ance on the part of the appellee. Wilgus v. Gettings, 19 Id., 52.

Where a party appeals generally from a decree containing two provisions, one adverse and the other favorable to him, it will not be presumed that he appeals from the part which is in his favor.

Hintrager v. Hennesey, 46 Id., 600.

An appeal must be taken within six months after the rendition of the judgment or order appealed from, but it is not required that the appeal shall be perfected by the filing of a transcript

An appeal to the supreme court cannot be perfected without the service of a notice of appeal on the adverse party, his agent or attorney; and service upon the wife of the attorney is not service upon him. Webster v. Carson, 69 Id., 243.

Sec. 3179. (As amended by ch. 35, 22d g. a.) [When perfected.]—An appeal shall not be perfected until the notice thereof has been served upon both the party and the clerk, and the clerk paid or secured his fees for a transcript; whereupon the clerk shall forthwith transmit by mail, express or messenger, not a party nor the attorney of a party, a transcript of the record in the cause, or so much thereof as the appellant in writing in the notice has directed, to which shall be appended copies of the notices of appeal, and of the supersedeas bond if any. [But no transcript of the record need be forwarded to the supreme court until a denial of the appellant's abstract of the record has been served and if no denial shall be made no transcript of the record shall be required. If such denial shall be entered without good and sufficient cause therefor the costs for such transcript of the record shall be taxed to the party making the denial.]

It is the duty of the appellant to see that the transcript in a cause appealed embraces all the papers therein, which are necessary to a clear understanding of the ruling to which exception is taken. When the facts are found by the court, with the conclusions of the law based thereon, and no exception is taken to the finding of facts, it is not necessary to incorporate the pleadings in the transcript. Hall v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 584.

An appeal will not be dismissed or a judgment affirmed, on motion, on the alleged ground that the case is not triable de novo in the supreme court. White & Smith v. Savery, 49 Id., 197.

Where, on appeal, the clerk's fees for transcript were not paid or secured, it was held that the appeal was not perfected, and that the court below still retained jurisdiction of the cause with power to grant a new trial. Loomis v. McKinzie, 57 Id., 77.

The supersedeas bond secured the clerk's fees for the transcript only, in case the judgment should be affirmed. Id.

Sec. 3180. [When tried.]—The notice of appeal must be served at least thirty days, and the cause filed and docketed at least fifteen days before the first day of the next term of the supreme court, or the same shall not then be tried unless by consent of parties. If the appeal is taken less than thirty days before the term, it must be so filed and docketed before the next succeeding term.

Sec. 3181. [For failure to file transcript and docket appeal: dismissed or judgment affirmed.]—If the appellant fails to file a transcript and have the cause docketed as provided in the preceding section, or fails to file at the time the transcript should be filed, the certificate of the clerk of the inferior court, stating when he was served with notice, and that he has not had sufficient time to prepare the transcript, the appellee may file a certified copy of the judgment or order appealed from, and of the notice served on such clerk, and, on motion, have the appeal dismissed or the judgment or order appealed from affirmed.

Under this section the appellee cannot have the judgment affirmed where the notice of appeal was not served on the clerk and appellee within fifteen days of the term, though the supersedeas bond was filed that length of time before. Pratt v. Western Stage Co., 26 Iowa, 241.

It seems that under sections 3181 and 3182 of the code, an appellee may in proper cases have an affirmance by showing that the clerk has been served in time with notice of appeal, without showing the service of such notice on the appellee. Id.

The mere filing of a supersedeas bond does not amount to the taking of an appeal; nor should the clerk recall an execution until notice of appeal is served. Id.

The failure to file a transcript does not constitute ground for dismissing the appeal, unless the appellee shall have indicated to the appellant a wish that it be filed, and he then fails or neglects, without sufficient excuse, to file it. White & Smith v. Savery, 49 Id., 197.

When the judgment below is affirmed on motion in the supreme court for failure to file a transcript and printed abstract within the time prescribed, the order of affirmance may be set aside upon a showing of facts authorizing such action. Scarf v. Patterson, 57 Id., 568.

Sec. 3182. If the transcript has been sent up, but the appellant does not file the same when the same should be filed as herein provided, the appellee may file the same, and may, on motion, have the appeal dismissed or the judgment affirmed, as the court, from the circumstances of the case, shall determine.

Under this section, an appellee cannot have the judgment affirmed where notices of appeal have not been served on the clerk and appellee until within fifteen days of the time, though the supersedeas bond was filed more than that length of time before. Pratt v. Western Stage Co., 26 Iowa, 241.

IN RELATION TO APPEALS TO THE SUPREME COURT.

An Act to amend sections 3181 and 3182 of the code of 1873 [title XIX, chapter 2: “Of appellate proceedings in the supreme court.”]

SECTION 1. [Appeal not to be dismissed or judgment affirmed, when.] —Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That no appeal to the supreme court of the state shall be dismissed or judgment of court below affirmed because the said cause was not docketed or transcript filed in supreme court, if it be made to appear that an appeal was taken in good faith and not for delay, or if, from the conduct of appellee or his counsel, appellant was induced to believe no motion to dismiss or affirm would be made.

A failure to file a transcript will not necessarily cause a dismissal of the appeal. White & Smith v. Savery, 49 Iowa, 197, 199.

Where an order of affirmance had been entered for failure of appellants to file transcript and docket cause, the affirmance was set aside upon it being shown that the appeal was taken in good faith, and not for the purpose of delay. Engleken v. Schultz, 40 Id., 903.

SEC. 3183. [Same as to assignment of errors.]—If, the transcript being filed, errors are not assigned and filed with the clerk of the supreme court, and a copy of the same served on the appellee or his attorney ten days before the first day of the trial term, the appellee may have the appeal dismissed or the judgment or order affirmed, unless good cause for the failure be shown by affidavit.

An appeal will be dismissed on motion, if the assignment of errors is not served on the appellee ten days before the first day of the trial term. Whether it must be filed with the clerk previous to the day for the hearing of which the cause is assigned, quere. Ind. Dist. of Crocker v. Ind. Dist. of Ankeny, 48 Id., 206. See, also, Berryhill v. Keilmeyer, 33 Id., 20; Rule 24 of supreme court.

An amended assignment of errors, filed during a term of the court when a cause is otherwise ready for submission, is not too late under this section, where the appellee asks and obtains a continuance because of such amendment. Brown v. Rose, 53 Id., 634.

An amended assignment of errors, filed without leave after the filing of the appellee’s argument, will not be considered. Betts v. The City of Glenwood, 52 Id., 124.

Where an assignment of errors was as follows: “The court erred in refusing to give the instructions asked by defendant. The court erred in giving the instructions to the jury that were given. The court erred in overruling defendant’s motion for a new trial. The court erred in rendering any judgment upon the verdict and special findings.” Held, that such assignment of errors was too general and inexplicit, and could not be considered. Id.

Where the appellant fails to assign errors, the appellee, if he desires to take advantage of this failure, must do so at the proper time, and when he does not make the objection until after argument of the cause upon its merits, he will be deemed to have waived his right to object. Andrews v. Burdick, 62 Id., 714.

An assignment of errors filed within the time prescribed in this section is filed in time, though not until after the filing of the appellee’s argument. Conner v. Long, 63 Id., 295; Betts v. Glenwood, 53 Id., 124, distinguished.

The supreme court cannot entertain an appeal where no errors are assigned. Tizzard v. Gray & Conkey, 1d., 213.

An assignment of errors filed within the time prescribed in this section, is filed in time, though not until after the filing of the appellee’s argument. Conner v. Long, 63 Id., 295; Betts v. Glenwood, 53 Id., 124, distinguished.

An assignment of errors not filed ten days before the first day of the term, and not until after appellee’s argument is filed, cannot be considered. Russell & Co. v. Johnson, 67 Id., 279.

SEC. 3184. [What shall be sent up.]—In an action by ordinary proceedings, and in an action by equitable proceedings, tried in the whole or in part on oral testimony, all proper entries made by the clerk, and all papers pertaining to the cause and filed therein, except subpoenas, depositions, and other papers which are used as mere evidence, are to be deemed part of the record. But in an action by equitable proceedings tried upon written testimony, the depositions and all papers which were used as evidence are to be certified up to the supreme court, and shall be so certified, not by transcript but in the original form. But a transcript of a motion, affidavit or other paper, when it relates to a collateral matter, shall not be certified unless by direction of the appellant. If so certified when not material to the determination of the appeal the court may direct the person harmless thereof to pay the costs thereof.

The supreme court will not review on appeal the action of the court below on the facts in an equity action, where it does not appear that all of the evidence on which the case was heard is contained in the record. Davenport v. Ellis, 22 Iowa, 296; The State, for the use, etc. v. Orowg et al., 27 Id., 528; Krouse v. Hampton, 11 Id., 457; State v. Donnell, Id. 452; Schroder v. Carey, Id., 555; State v. Kelsey, Id., 114.

The certificate of the clerk that the transcript contains "all the evidence appearing on file," does not sufficiently show that the evidence certified was all that was used in the court below. Davenport v. Ellis, 22 id., 296.

An appeal to the supreme court from a final decree in an equitable action brings up the case for trial de novo, without regard to interlocutory rulings or decisions of the court below. The State v. Orowg, 27 Id., 528; Blake v. Blake, 13 Id., 40; Van Orman v. Spafford et al., 16 Id., 185; Kellogg v. Kelsey, Id., 398; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, Id., 141; Malloy v. Malloy, 31 Id., 60; Dove v. The Ind. S. D., 41 Id., 680.

In order that the cause may be tried de novo, not only the pleadings and other papers in the case should be certified, but also the evidence, in its original form, upon which the case was tried below. The State v. Orrowg, 27 Id., 528; Winslow et al. v. Farmer, 20 Id., 294; Moon v. Moon, 19 Id., 150.

In the trial of chancery cases the supreme court will consider only the issues and evidence presented in the court below; and evidence will not be originally received and considered in the supreme court. McGregor v. Gardiner, 16 Id., 538.

Under the rules of the supreme court equity causes are tried in that court upon the printed abstract, and the evidence in its original form is not consulted, except in cases of a difference of abstracts, when an amended one is filed. Austin v. Bremer County, 44 Id., 155.

Equity causes only are triable de novo on appeal in the supreme court; in all other cases the trial is confined to legal errors properly presented. Dove v. The J. S. D. of Keokuk, 41 Id., 689.

The transcriptor record of the court below cannot be amended or added to in the supreme court, either upon the certificate of the judge before whom the case was tried, or upon affidavits. The review must be had on the record as made in the court below. Bartle v. The City of Des Moines, 37 Id., 635.

A motion will not lie to strike out the bill of exceptions on the ground that it does not state the evidence correctly. Hughes v. Stanley, 45 Id., 754.

Where, after an appeal in an equity cause had been perfected, all the written evidence on which the case had been tried was lost, without fault of the appellant, who thereupon served notice upon the other party and the clerk that he had withdrawn his appeal, and filed a motion for a new trial, which was granted, it was held that the new trial was improperly granted, that the courts have power to supply the part of a record that may be lost, and therefore cannot grant a new trial on account of such loss. Loomis v. McKenzie, 45 Id., 418.

The supreme court will not review the finding of the lower court upon the sufficiency of the service of notice by publication in an equitable action, when the record does not show that it embraces all the evidence touching the publication which was submitted to the court below. Moon v. Moon, 19 Id., 190.

Where an answer in an action at law sets up both legal and equitable defenses upon which issues are formed, the case will, on appeal to the supreme court, be considered as in equity, and be determined according to the rules applicable to equity cases. Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476.
Where an equitable action is not tried below in such manner as to entitle either party to a trial de novo, the appellant has the right to be heard on appeal on exceptions and errors duly assigned. Cross v. The B. & S. W. R. Co. et al., 61 Id., 688.

An abstract purporting to contain "all of the evidence bearing upon and introduced to sustain the issues and findings as to which the plaintiff appealed," is not sufficient to entitle appellant to a trial de novo. Roe v. Wilmot, 31 Id., 689.

In law actions where appellant assigns as error the ruling of the court upon the sufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict, all of the evidence must be contained in the record, or the questions made therein will not be passed upon by the appellate court. Krouse v. Hampton, 11 Id., 457; State v. Donnell, 1d., 532; Schroder v. Curry, Id., 555; State v. Lewis, Id., 410; Sweet v. Poertl, 12 Id., 587; Hayden et al. v. Wiltsee, 13 Id., 684; Perry, Phelps & Co. v. Montgomery et al., 17 Id., 65; Woods v. Irish, 14 Id., 427; Wilkins v. Trefor, Id., 391; Stones v. Brown et al., Id., 595; Nicking v. Nesmith, 15 Id., 595; Bennett v. Hyland, 15 Id., 597; State v. Mooney, 10 Id., 506; Lauman et al. v. Nichols, 15 Id., 161; Thompson v. Lord, 14 Id., 591; Emerick v. Sloan, 18 Id., 139; Fletcher v. Burrows, 10 Id., 557; Bradley v. Kavanagh, 12 Id., 273; State v. Postlewait, 14 Id., 446.

Prior to the supreme court rules respecting printed abstracts it was held that an equity cause could not be tried de novo on appeal if objected to, except upon the deposition and papers used as evidence in their original form, nor could an ordinary law action be tried except upon a transcript of the original papers. Baldwin v. Tuttle, 23 Id., 66.

Where the cause is in the nature of an equitable action and the abstract recites that the evidence was by order of the court reduced to writing and made a part of the record of the case and purports to contain all the evidence given on the trial, the case is triable de novo in the supreme court. Stoddard et al. v. Hardwick et al., 46 Id., 160.

In an equity cause, triable de novo in the supreme court, the certificate of the trial judge must state that the abstract contains all of the evidence introduced on the trial below. Andrews v. Kerr et al., 49 Id., 659. It is not sufficient to recite that it contains the material portions of the evidence. Id.

The judge's certificate must show that all the evidence offered on the trial in the court below is certified and must be contained in the abstract. Taylor & Co. v. Kier et al., 54 Id., 645.

This section is not repealed by chapter 145 of acts 1878, and the certificate of the clerk, under the seal of the court, that the depositions and papers used in evidence on the trial in equity in the original form are contained in the record transmitted to the supreme court, is sufficient. Cross v. The B. & S. W. R. Co., 58 Id., 62.

SEC. 3185. [Power to obtain perfect transcript.]—The appellant shall file a perfect transcript, and to that end the clerk of the court below must, at any time on his suggestion of the omission of the record and on the payment of fees, certify up any omitted part of the record, according to the truth, as the same appears in his office of record; and such applicant shall not be entitled to any continuance in order to correct the record, unless it shall clearly appear to the court that he is not in fault. Subject to which requirement, either party may on motion before trial day, obtain an order on the court below, commanding him to transmit at once to the supreme court a true copy of such imperfect or omitted part of the record as shall be in general terms described in the affidavit or order. Such motion must be supported by affidavit, unless the diminution be apparent or admitted by the adverse party, and must not be granted unless the court is satisfied that it is not made for delay.

See Hall v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 584, cited in notes to section 3179.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

SEC. 3186. [How obtained: bond, conditions and approval.]—An appeal shall not stay proceedings on the judgment or order, or any part thereof unless the appellant shall cause to be executed before the clerk of the court which rendered the judgment or order, by one or more sufficient sureties to be approved by such clerk, a bond to the effect that the appellant shall pay to the appellee all costs and damages that shall be adjudged against the appellant on the appeal; also that he will satisfy and perform the judgment or order appealed from in case it shall be affirmed, and any judgment or order which the supreme court may render, or order to be rendered by the inferior court, not exceeding in amount or value the original judgment or order, and all rents or damages to property during the pendence of the appeal out of the possession of which the appellee is kept by reason of the appeal. If the bond is intended to stay proceedings on only a part of the judgment or order, it shall be varied so as to secure the part stayed alone. When such bond has been approved by the clerk, and filed, he shall issue a written order commanding the appellee and all others to stay proceedings on such judgment or order, or on such part as is superseded as the case may be. No appeal or stay shall vacate or affect the judgment appealed from.

The filing of an appeal bond, without the service of a notice of appeal, at least upon the clerk, will not stay proceedings on the judgment. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 26 Iowa, 241.

And where an appeal is taken by the service of notice of appeal, but no bond filed, proceedings on the judgment will not be stayed by the appeal. Phillips v. Germon, 43 Id., 101, 102.

In a habeas corpus proceeding, an order of discharge made by the judge before whom the proceeding is had, cannot be superseded pending an appeal. The State v. Kirkpatrick, 54 Iowa, 373. In Thompson v. Oglesby, 42 Id., 598, a supersedeas bond was filed, but no question was made as to its effect.

Where a supersedeas bond, in an appeal from a decree for the possession of real property, failed to obligate the appelleants to pay "all rents and damages to the property pending the appeal, out of which appellee was kept by reason of the appeal," held, that the bond did not in fact supersede the judgment, and that after an affirmation of the decree in the supreme court, the plaintiff could not recover upon the bond for rents and damages, during the pendence of the appeal. Gill v. Sullivan, Muldoon v. Same, Walsh v. Same, 62 Id., 529.

Where in quo warranto proceedings judgment is tendered for plaintiff which is appealed from by the defendant, held that a supersedeas bond, in such case, does not have the effect to keep the plaintiff out of possession of the office, but only stays the enforcement of the judgment for costs. Jayne v. Drorbaugh, 63 Id., 711.

SEC. 3187. [When supreme court or judge may fix condition of bond and approve same.]

In cases wherein the appellant has perfected his appeal to the supreme court, and the clerk of the district or circuit court has unjustly refused to approve the appeal bond offered, or makes the penalty therein too large, or the conditions thereof unjust, the appellant may move the supreme court, if in session, or in its vacation, on such written notice to the appellee as the judge may prescribe, may move any judge thereof to determine the conditions, fix the penalty, and approve the appeal bond. The motion, verified by the affidavit of the appellant or his attorney, shall contain a brief statement of the nature of the action in which the appeal was taken, of the judgment or order appealed from, of the steps taken by the appellant with reference to his appeal, and of his giving, or offering to give, an appeal bond. of the action of the court below with reference to such bond, and wherein he has acted wrongfully; and if the supreme court, or any judge thereof, considers that the clerk has made unjust conditions in the bond, or the penalty thereof too high, or has wrongfully refused to approve the same, such court or judge shall issue an order prescribing the conditions of the appeal bond, fixing the penalty thereof, and either approve it or direct the clerk of the supreme court so to do, which bond shall be filed with the officer last named. The supreme court, or judge thereof, may order that all or any part of the papers and records in the cause appealed, or certified copies thereof, be produced on the hearing of such motion and pending the disposition thereof, may make an order staying the enforcement of the judgment or order, appealed from and on such terms as are just. The order, if made by the judge, shall be in writing and signed by him, and upon the service thereof, or of a certified copy, when made in court, upon the clerk of the court below, all proceedings in the court appealed from shall be stayed, and all orders, processes, executions, or other papers issued therefrom shall be recalled, and the appellant be placed in the same condition that he was when the judgment or order appealed from was made or rendered.

If the appellee believe the bond defective, or the sureties insufficient, he may move the supreme court if in session, or in its vacation, on ten days written notice to the appellant, may move any judge of said court, or the judge of the court below where the appeal was taken, to discharge the bond, and if the court or such judge shall consider the sureties insufficient, or the bond substantially defective in securing the rights of the appellee, the court or such judge shall issue an order discharging such bond, unless a good bond, with sufficient sureties, be executed by a day by him fixed. The order, if made by a judge, shall be in writing and signed by him; and upon his filing, or the filing of a certified copy of the order when made in court in the office of the clerk of the inferior court, execution and other proceedings for enforcing the judgment or order may be taken if a new and good bond is not filed and approved by the day as aforesaid.

SEC. 3189. [Proceedings stayed. ]—But another order staying proceedings may be issued by the clerk, upon the execution before him of a new and lawful bond with sufficient sureties as hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 3190. [Penalty of bond. ]—If the judgment or order is for the payment of money, the penalty shall be in at least twice the amount of the judgment and costs. If not for the payment of money, the penalty shall be sufficient to save the appellee harmless from the consequences of taking the appeal. But it shall in no case be less than one hundred dollars.

Where, in an action to enforce a mechanic’s lien, judgment is rendered for a money judgment and a lien established upon the property, which secures it, and which is ordered sold on special execution to satisfy the judgment, its character as a judgment for money, as contemplated by this section, is not changed, and a bond to supersede the judgment on appeal must be for double the amount thereof. Flynn v. The D. M. & St. L. Ry Co. , 62 Iowa, 521.

SEC. 3191. [When appeal is from a part only. ]—The taking of the appeal from the part of a judgment or order, and the filing of a bond as above directed, does not cause a stay of execution as to any part of the judgment or order not appealed from.

SEC. 3192. [Execution recalled. ]—If execution has issued prior to the filing of the bond above contemplated, the clerk shall countermand the same.

SEC. 3193. [Property surrendered. ]—Property levied upon and not sold at the time such countermand is received by the sheriff, shall forthwith be delivered up to the judgment debtor.

TRIAL—JUDGMENT.

SEC. 3194. [Power of court. ]—The supreme court may reverse or affirm the judgment or order below, or the part of either appealed from, or may render such judgment or order as the inferior court or judge should have done, according as it may think it proper.

It is competent for the supreme court, in reversing a judgment, to order that the new trial shall extend only to defendant’s cross-action, in connection with which the error occurred, and that the judgment establishing the plaintiff’s claim remain undisturbed. McAfferty v. Hale , 24 Iowa, 355.

Where a judgment of the court below, rendered upon a special finding of facts by that court, is appealed to and reversed by the supreme court, upon the sole ground that the law upon the facts thus found is with the appellant, and the cause is remanded, with directions to the court below that further proceedings be had therein not inconsistent with the opinion of the supreme court, the appellant is entitled to judgment upon the finding of facts in the court below, and no new trial can be had. Roberts v. Corbin & Co. , 28 Id., 355.

The supreme court, in reversing a judgment appealed from, may render such judgment or order upon the facts, as the court below should have rendered. Gilmore & Smith v. Ferguson & Cassell , 28 Id., 422.

Where, in a habeas corpus proceeding for the custody of a child, it was possible that the judgment of the court below might constitute a bar to the plaintiff’s right to the custody of the child at a future time, the supreme court, under the power given in this section, modified the judgment so that the plaintiff would not be thus barred. Drumb v. Keen , 47 Id., 435, 438.

The supreme court will not render judgment in reversing a cause where the error in the court below consisted in refusing to grant a new trial. Payne v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 37 Id., 605.

In equity causes the supreme court has complete and final jurisdiction to render such a decree as it may deem proper in the case. McGregor v. Gardiner, 16 Id., 538.

When, in a petition for rehearing, the appellee offered to confess error and remit a sum erroneously included in the judgment below, for which error the judgment was reversed, it was held competent for the supreme court, under this section, to consider the offer, and enter final judgment in that court. Hyle v. The Minneapolis Lumber Co., 51 Id., 243.

Where judgment of affirmance was, by consent of parties, but without the knowledge of the sureties on the appeal bond, entered in the supreme court, it was held that, upon a motion made at the following term at the instance of the sureties the court had jurisdiction to set aside the judgment. Deuze v. Swayne, 41 Id., 410.

A final judgment will not be entered in the supreme court in favor of an appellant which will prevent the appellee from raising questions upon exceptions reversed in the court below. Haid v. C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 55 Id., 121.

On reversing a judgment appealed from the court may, in a law action, render such judgment or order upon the facts as the court below should have rendered. Gilmore & Smith v. Ferguson & Cassell, 28 Id., 422.

The supreme court has no general original jurisdiction, and cannot order that an appellee shall proceed no further with a cause. An appellant who deems that the appellee has, pending the appeal, deprioven himself of his rights thereunder, has the alternative of dismissing his appeal, or to finally submit it on its merits. Simonson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 45 Id., 19.

Where the court, in his instructions to the jury, follows the rule announced in the plaintiff's petition, and the latter fails to ask an instruction announcing a different and the true rule, he cannot avail himself of the error on appeal. Briscoe v. Reynolds, 51 Id., 673.

Where the evidence is conflicting, and the court below which heard the evidence, has overruled appellant's motion for a new trial, based on the insufficiency of the evidence, the supreme court will not interfere, the presumption being that the jury and the court below correctly decided upon the credibility of the witnesses, and found according to the weight of the evidence. Snyder v. Eldridge, 31 Id., 129; Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 131; Havelick v. Havelick, 18 Id., 414; Donaldson v. The M. & M. R. Co., 13 Id., 27; Plimer v. The Branch of the State Bank, 19 Id., 112; Gordon v. Pat, 33 Id., 255; State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72; Snyder v. Nelson, 31 Id., 238; Melhop v. Donoe & Co., 38 Id., 633; Fraunden v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 19 Id., 372; Dunaway v. Watson, 38 Id., 398.

Sec. 3195. [Judgment against sureties on stay bond.—] The supreme court, where it affirms the judgment, shall also, if the appellee moves therefor, render judgment against the appellant and his sureties on the bond above mentioned for the amount of the judgment, damages, and costs referred to therein, in case such damages can be accurately known to the court, without an issue and trial.

Sec. 3196. [Damages for delay.—]—Upon the affirmation of any judgment or order for the payment of money, the collection of which in whole or in part has been superseded by bond as above contemplated, the court shall award to the appellee damages upon the amount superseded; and, if satisfied by the record that the appeal was taken for delay only, must award such sum as damages, not exceeding fifteen per cent thereon, as shall effectively tend to prevent the taking of appeals for delay only.

The supreme court is authorized, under sections 3195 and 3196 of the code, to render judgment against the appellant and his sureties in the appeal bond, and to award damages to the appellee, where it appears that the appeal was taken for delay, in those cases only where the judgment or order appealed from was for the payment of money, "the collection of which, in whole or in part, has been superseded by the bond." Berryhill v. Heilmeier et al., 38 Iowa, 20.

The supreme court can award damages against a party taking an appeal for delay only, where a judgment or order for money is appealed from, or where the damages can be accurately known to the court, without an issue and trial. Branscomb v. Gillian, 55 Id., 235, 237.

Sec. 3197. [Cause remanded.—]—If the supreme court affirm the judgment or order, it may send the cause to the court below to have the same carried into effect, or it may itself issue the necessary process for this purpose and direct such process to the sheriff of the proper county, as the party may require.

It is not necessary that a procedendo should issue to give the court below jurisdiction, but if the case is re-docketed upon service of proper notice, the case will stand for re-trial. Becker v. Becker et al., 50 Iowa, 129.

When a cause has been reversed and remanded, the supreme court will not revoke such order and enter judgment in that court on motion of the party claiming to be entitled thereto, made several months after the order, and after the time for filing a petition therefor had expired. Roberts v. Austin, Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.

SEC. 3198. [Restitution of property.]—If, by the decision of the supreme court, the appellant becomes entitled to a restoration of any part of the money or property that was taken from him by means of such judgment or order, either the supreme court or the court below may direct execution or writ of restitution to issue for the purpose of restoring to such appellant his property or the value thereof.

A purchase of land at sheriff's sale by the plaintiff in execution or his attorney, with actual knowledge of a pending appeal, is at the peril of the purchaser; and the party or his attorney thus buying is not a bona fide purchaser within the meaning of section 3199. Tiegood v. Franklin, 27 Iowa, 239.

Where property, taken under a judgment from which an appeal has been taken, without the filing of a supersedeas bond, and which is afterwards reversed, has by voluntary sale, or by seizure and sale under process, passed to an innocent purchaser pending the appeal, or where money collected under such judgment is received by one occupying a fiduciary capacity, as by an administrator, and he has, pursuant to an order of court, paid it over to another, the summary remedy provided by section 3198 of the code cannot properly be administered, and the party is left to his ordinary remedy. Hauschild v. Strawford, 27 Id., 501. See also, Lombard v. Aiwester, 46 Id., 501.

Where property has been taken and sold on execution issued upon a judgment which is afterwards reversed by the supreme court, it is the duty of the party taking such property to make restitution therefor upon the reversal of the judgment.r, and if he does not do so, the execution defendant may at once maintain an action, without demand, to recover the damages sustained by reason of such taking. Zimmerman v. The Nat. Bank of Winterstet, 56 Id., 173.

Where, pending an appeal, real property was sold on execution and purchased by the execution plaintiff, and subsequently the supreme court reduced the judgment, it was held: 1. That the plaintiff was not a bona fide purchaser, entitled to protection under section 3199; 2. That defendants were entitled to restitution, and that an order of the court setting aside the sale, and restoring all of the property to the defendants, was proper and right; 3. That the plaintiff could not be compelled to keep the property for the amount bid and pay the defendant the difference between that sum and that of the reduced judgment. Munson v. Plummer, 58 Id., 736.

SEC. 3199. [Title not affected.]—Property acquired by a purchaser in good faith under a judgment subsequently reversed, shall not be affected by such reversal.

Whether the purchaser at an execution sale takes the estate charged with the equities and secret trusts which may exist against the judgment debtor, query. Parker v. Pierce, 16 Iowa, 227.

A purchaser at sheriff's sale takes the land purchased, discharged of any claim of title, whether arising under an unregistered deed or a mere equity, of which he had no notice at the time of the purchase, and which would be invalid against an ordinary purchaser, and this principle applies both at law and in equity. Per Dillon, J. in Vannice v. Bergen, 1d., 555.

Under this section a purchaser at judicial sale, who does not pay the full amount of his bid, but only the costs in the case, is not a purchaser in good faith, nor is the grantee of such purchaser, who pays to his grantor only the money paid by such grantor, in any better position than his grantor nor can one who acted as the attorney of the judgment plaintiff, both in the court below and in the supreme court, and who is chargeable with actual knowledge of the appeal, acquire from such grantee of the original purchaser, any better title than such grantee himself had. O'Brien v. Harrison, 59 Id., 886.

SEC. 3200. [Power to imprison.]—The supreme court shall have power to enforce its mandates upon inferior courts and officers by fine and imprisonment, which imprisonment may be continued until obeyed.

SEC. 3201. (As amended by ch. 144, 19th g. a.) [Petition for rehearing suspends judgment till when.]—If a petition for rehearing be filed the same shall suspend the decision, if the court on its presentation, or one of the judges if in vacation, shall so order, in either of which case such decision shall be suspended until after the final arguments provided for in the next section.

The supreme court will not upon a rehearing, consider matters not presented in the former arguments nor considered in the opinion; nor can the record of notice of appeal and its service be supplied in a petition for rehearing when omitted in the abstract. Hintz v. Hennessy, 46 Iowa, 600. Nor will the supreme court, upon a rehearing, consider changes and amendments in the abstract, when such amendments show grounds for a different decision. Nixson v. Donney, 49 Id., 166.

SEC. 3202. (As amended by ch. 144, 19th g. a.) [Oral argument.]—[The party filing a petition for rehearing may make the same an argument or a brief of authorities upon which he relies for a rehearing, and if he desires to make an oral argument in support of his petition, and as upon rehearing, he shall make an indorsement upon his argument, or brief, either in writing or print, stating in substance that the petition[er] for a rehearing will ask to be heard orally in support thereof, which notice shall be served with the petition for rehearing upon the adverse party, and deposited with the clerk of the supreme court; and in such case such petitioner and the counsel for the adverse party shall have the right to be heard orally thereon at the next term of said court, or any subsequent term to which the same is continued. In such case it shall be the duty of the clerk to place the cause wherein the petition is filed upon the docket for the next term of the court, beginning not less than twenty days after the depositing of the petition, indorsed as aforesaid, in his office.]

Where, after a procedendo has been issued from the supreme court, and a petition for a rehearing was filed within sixty days, it was held that the cause could not be transferred to the federal court upon the filing of a petition therefor and bond in the court below, in accordance with the requirements of the act of congress, pending the action of the supreme court on the petition for rehearing. McKinley v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 314.

All petitions for rehearing must be printed as required by sections 97, 98 and 99 of the rules of the supreme court, and a copy must be delivered to the attorney of the adverse party, and if there be more than one, to the attorney of each, and ten copies to the clerk of the supreme court. No. 3, Rules of the Supreme Court.

The petition for a rehearing is the argument therefor. If the court so indicates the opposite party may file a reply, but this is the end of the argument, and a rejoinder to such reply will, on motion be stricken from the files. Webster County v. Hutchinson, 60 Iowa, 721.

While this and the preceding section of the code are general in their character, a proper construction of them in the interest of justice requires that they be considered as authorizing rehearings in the supreme court in criminal cases; and such rehearing may be had upon the petition of the state as well as of the accused. Such has been the practice. The State v. Jones, 64 Id., 349; citing The State v. White, 41 Id., 316; and 45 Id., 325; and State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 493.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 3203. [Clerk to docket and arrange causes: notice of.]—The clerk shall docket the causes as the same are filed in his office, and shall arrange and set a proper number for trial for each day of the term, placing together those from the same judicial district, and shall cause notice of the manner he has set such causes to be published and distributed in such manner as the court may direct.

SEC. 3204. [Hear causes: argument.]—The court shall hear all the causes docketed, when not continued by consent, or for cause shown by the party, and the party may be heard orally or otherwise, in his discretion.

SEC. 3205. [Opinion filed.]—No cause is decided until the opinion in writing is filed with the clerk.

SEC. 3206. [What done in court below on reversal.]—If remanded to the inferior court to be carried into effect, such decision and the order of the court thereon, being certified thereto and entered on the records of the court, shall have the same force and effect as if made and entered during the session of the court in that district.

SEC. 3207. [Assignment of errors: form of.]—An assignment of error need follow no stated form, but must, in a way as specific as the cause will allow, point out the very error objected to. Among several points in a demurrer, or in a motion, or instructions, or rulings in an exception, it must designate which is relied on as an error, and the court will only regard errors which are assigned with the required exactness; but the court must decide on each error assigned.

The assignments of error were as follows: “1. The court erred in admitting improper and incompetent testimony. 2. There was error in the instruction of the jury.” Held, that under the revision, Sec. 3546, the assignments were too general and should be disregarded. Hawes v. Tweedwood, 13 Iowa, 582.

The supreme court will not regard an assignment of error which does not point out the particular point, or points claimed to be erroneous specifically and with the exactness required by the statute. Peck v. Hendershott, 14 Id., 40; Brewington v. Swan, 1 Id., 121.

Where the bill of exceptions contained a large amount of evidence and cross examination, and the assignment was “that there was error in allowing the cross examination, and the introduction of evidence, and the overruling of plaintiff’s objections, as set forth in bill of exceptions, No. 1,” it was held, that the assignment was not sufficiently specific. Wilson v. Hillhouse, 14 Id., 199.

Where an assignment of error is general and fails to comply with the requirements of the statute it will not be noticed by the supreme court. Arnold v. Arnold, 20 Id., 273, 276.

Where the overruling of a motion for a new trial, based upon several distinct grounds, is assigned as error, the assignment should specify the very error relied upon by the appellant. Belle v. Ringland, 14 Id., 422; Morris v. C. B. & Q. R. Co., 46 Id., 29; Benton v. Nichols, 47 Id., 698.

A party cannot be heard on appeal to assign error in the admission of evidence based upon a ground other than that assigned when the evidence was admitted. The Iowa Homestead Company v. Duscombe, 51 Id., 525.

Error cannot be predicated upon the admission of evidence, when the fact which it was introduced to establish is provided by other evidence introduced afterward without objection. Id.

A single assignment of errors may embrace more than one instruction, if the instructions are each designated therein by number, and the assignment will have the same effect as if each instruction objected to were named in a distinct assignment. Sherwood v. Snow, Foote & Co., 46 Id., 451.

An assignment of error as follows: “The court erred in overruling defendant’s motion for a new trial, and to modify and amend the decree,” is not sufficiently specific. Patterson v. Jack, 59 Id., 634.

So an assignment of error in these words: “The court erred in overruling the defendant’s exceptions to the report of the referee and entering judgment against defendant,” was held not sufficiently specific. Hoefer v. City of Burlington, Id., 291.

Where an assignment of errors is so general that any one of a number of rulings might be considered under it, the assignment is insufficient under this section and will be disregarded by the court. Terry v. Thomas, 64 Id., 35.

While an assignment of error need follow no specified form, it must nevertheless, point out in a manner as specific as possible the very error objected to. An assignment in the words: “The court erred in rendering judgment for the appellee,” was held insufficient. Tomblin v. Tall, 46 Id., 190.

An assignment of error must specify which of several points in a motion for a new trial is relied upon as constituting the error which vitiate the judgment. Oschner v. Schunk, 46 Id., 293.

An assignment of error in the form that the court erred in overruling appellant’s motion for a new trial is not specific enough to comply with the requirements of section 8297 of the code, and will be disregarded by the supreme court. Richardson v. McCormack, 47 Id., 270; McCormack v. The C. R. I. & F. R'y Co., Id., 345.

An assignment of error reciting that, “The court erred in refusing to set aside the verdict, and in not rendering judgment for plaintiffs,” is not sufficiently specific. Bardwell v. Clare, 47 Id., 297.

An assignment of error that, “The court erred in giving each of the instructions on its own motion,” is too general to be regarded in the supreme court. Moffat v. Fisher, 1 Id., 474.

An assignment of errors should show affirmatively that the party appealing was in some manner prejudiced by the rulings or decision appealed from. Brewington v. Patton, 1 Id., 721.

Errors assigned but which are not presented in argument, will not be considered by the supreme court. Snyder v. Eldridge, 31 Id., 120; Shaw v. Brown, 13 Id., 598; Wilson v. Hillhouse, 14 Id., 199.

An assignment of error as follows: “1. The court erred in admitting improper and incompetent testimony. 2. There was error in the instructions to the jury," was held too general and disregarded. Hawes v. Twogood, 12 Id., 582.

So where the assignment was that "a new trial should have been given for the reasons set forth in the motion," it was held not sufficiently specific. Morris v. The C. B. & Q. R. Co., 46 Id., 29.

So where the assignment stated that "the court erred in giving each of the instructions given on its own motion," held too general. Muffet v. Fisher, 47 Id., 473, 474. And an assignment in these words: "Appellant says the court erred in refusing to sustain the motion to set aside the verdict," was held too general. Benton v. Nichols, 47 Id., 698. To the same effect are Betta v. The City of Glenwood, 52 Id., 124; Tomlin v. Ball, 46 Id., 190.

The statute requiring the assignment of errors in law actions is peremptory, and unless they are assigned the supreme court cannot entertain the appeal. Barnhart v. Farr, 55 Id., 366.

The assignment should specify which of several points, where there is more than one, in a motion for a new trial is relied upon as constituting error. Oescher v. Schunk, 46 Id., 293.

An assignment of error which does not plainly state the error complained of, but refers opposing counsel and the court to the record wherein the error is said to appear, is not sufficiently specific to justify consideration by the supreme court. Wood v. Whitten, 66 Id., 265.

Where a motion for a new trial is based upon several grounds, an assignment of error in overruling the same must state particularly each of the grounds upon which the appellant intends to rely, or it will not be considered, Id.

"Where a motion for a new trial was based on several grounds, an assignment of error, that "the court erred in overruling the motion," without more, is not sufficiently specific, under this section of the code, and will not be considered by the supreme court. Lecius v. The Noddy's & Mormon Co., Id., 471.

An assignment of errors as follows: "The court erred in admitting improper and rejecting proper testimony, as shown by the record," and "The court erred in admitting certain evidence of the defendant against plaintiff's objection," held, too indefinite to be noticed. The M. U. Barr W. Co. v. Rice, 70 Id., 14.

Where a motion was based on a single ground, and the assignment of error was that the court erred in sustaining the motion, the assignment was sufficiently specific. Nichols v. Wood, 66 Id., 225; Lundak v. C. & N. W. Ry. Co., 65 Id., 473, and Perry v. Couger, Id., 588, followed.

Where each of two defendants separately demurred to the petition, and the demurrers were sustained, and the appellant assigned as error "the rulings of the court in sustaining the several demurrers of the defendants," naming them, held, that the assignment was not sufficiently specific. Bradley v. Johnson, 67 Id., 614.

Errors not assigned with the exactness required by this section of the code will not be considered on appeal. Armstrong v. Killen, 70 Id., 51.

Sec. 3208. [Motion book.]-All motions must be entered in the motion book, and shall stand over till the next morning after the morning on which entered, and till after having been publicly called by the court, unless the parties otherwise agree, and the adverse party shall be deemed to have notice of such motion.

Sec. 3209. [When original paper sent up.]-Where a view of an original paper in the action may be important to a correct decision of the appeal, the court may order the clerk of the court below to transmit the same, which he shall do in some safe mode, to the clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold the same subject to the control of the court.

Sec. 3210. [Security for costs.]—The appellant may be required to give security for costs under the same circumstances as those in which plaintiffs in civil actions in the inferior court may be so required.

Sec. 3211. [Does not abate by death.]—The death of one or all of the parties shall not cause the proceedings to abate, but the names of the proper persons shall be substituted as is provided in such cases in the district and circuit court, and the case may proceed. The court may also, in such case, grant a continuance when such a course will be calculated to promote the ends of justice.

Sec. 3212. [Right to appeal may be lost.]—Where appellant has no right, or no further right to prosecute the appeal, the appellee may move to dismiss the appeal, and if the grounds of the motion do not appear in the record, or by a writing purporting to have been signed by the appellant and filed, they must be verified by affidavit.

A party cannot accept the benefits of an adjudication and afterwards appeal therefrom. M.& M.R. Co. v. Byington, 11 Iowa, 572; The Ind. Dist. of Altoona v. The Dist. Tp. of Delaware, 44 Id., 201.
As to the right of the appellee to pursue a different remedy from that provided in this section, see Cotter v. O'Connell, 48 Id., 552.

A party does not waive his right to appeal from a judgment by causing a transcript thereof to be filed in other counties for the purpose of preserving a lien on real estate, no action being taken by him toward enforcing the judgment. Tama County v. Melindy, 55 Id., 368.

SEC. 3213. [Proceedings in such case.]—The appellee may, by answer filed and verified by himself, agent, or attorney, plead any facts which render the taking of the appeal improper or destroy the appellant's right of further prosecuting the same, to which answer the appellant may file a reply, likewise verified by himself, his agent, or attorney, and the questions of law or fact therein shall be determined by the court.

SEC. 3214. [Notices: how served.]—The service of all notices of appeal, or in any way growing out of such rights or connected therewith, and all notices in the supreme court, shall be in the way provided for the service of like notices in the circuit or district court, and they may be served by the same person and returned in the same manner, and the original notice of the appeal must be returned immediately after service to the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court where the suit is pending.

Service of notice of appeal on the wife of the adverse party does not comply with the requirements of this section, and is insufficient. Draper v. Taylor, 47 Iowa, 407.

SEC. 3215. [Executions: form of.]—Executions from the supreme court shall be the same as those from the district or circuit court and attended with the same consequences, and shall be returnable in the same time.

CHAPTER 3.

OF CERTIORARI.

SECTION 3216. [When the writ may issue.]—The writ of certiorari may be granted whenever specially authorized by law, and especially in all cases where an inferior tribunal, board, or officer exercising judicial functions is alleged to have exceeded his proper jurisdiction, or is otherwise acting illegally, when in the judgment of the superior court there is no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy.

A judgment in the county court for damages sustained by the complainant, by the removal of a road away from his property, should, under the revision, be taken to the district court by appeal, and not by certiorari. Spray & Barnes v. Thompson, 9 Iowa, 49.

The writ of certiorari commands the tribunal to which it is directed to certify fully a transcript of its records and proceedings as well as the facts in the case. Blake v. Bailey, 20 Id., 125.

The proper remedy against an order of the court refusing to correct a mistake in a settlement with an administrator is by appeal, and not by certiorari. O'Hara v. Hemstead, 21 Id., 35.

Certiorari is the proper remedy to test the legality of the action of township trustees, in calling an election for the purpose of voting upon the question of a tax to aid in the construction of a railroad. Jordan v. Hayne, 36 Id., 9.

It is also the proper remedy to test the jurisdiction of the board of supervisors, in the submission of a proposition to remove the county seat. Bennett v. Hetherington, 41 Id., 142.

Proceedings in the establishment of a road will not be annulled on certiorari, unless it is shown that the inferior tribunal has exceeded its proper jurisdiction or is otherwise acting illegally. McCollister v. Shuey, 24 Id., 362.

The writ of certiorari is the proper remedy to test the expediency or propriety of establishing a public highway, and the legality and regularity of the proceedings of the board of supervisors in the premises, but is not the proper remedy to review the question of damages for the land taken for a road. McCrory v. Griswold, 7 Id., 243.

Where the district court did not exceed its jurisdiction in entertaining an action upon a school order, against the several independent districts into which the district, issuing the order, had subsequently divided, the writ of certiorari was denied. The Ind. Dist. of Ashbury v. The Dist. Court of Dubuque Co., 48 Id., 152.

In a proceeding for the punishment of a contempt, growing out of publications alleged to be false, scandalous and defamatory, evidence is admissible to show the meaning and intent of the publications. Henry v. Ellis, 49 Id., 295.

The determination by the board of supervisors of the sufficiency of the remonstrance and number of names signed thereto under section 292 and 233 of the code, is a judicial act and may be reviewed by certiorari. Herrick v. Carpenter, 54 Id., 349, 312.

Equity has no jurisdiction to enjoin the passage of an ordinance by city council establishing or vacating streets, certiorari being the proper method of reviewing such action, Stubenrauch v. Neyemessch, 54 Id., 297.

When a city ordinance is of such a character that in its passage the council act in a legislative rather than a judicial capacity, their action is not subject to review on certiorari. Isk v. The City of Newton, Id., 586.

The validity of a city ordinance cannot be determined in a certiorari proceeding, brought by a citizen who is not shown to be specially affected thereby, or to have some interest therein other than in common with the general public. Id.

Where the board of supervisors has exercised power not within its jurisdiction, certiorari is the proper remedy for the party specially aggrieved thereby. Royce v. Genney, 50 Id., 676.

It is not the office of a writ of certiorari to correct error in the judgments of judicial tribunals, in cases where the party asking the writ has lost a plain, speedy and adequate remedy by his own fault or negligence. Fogg v. Barker, 11 Id., 18.

Where the county judge refused to correct a mistake in a settlement with an administrator, it was held that the proper remedy was by appeal and not by certiorari. O'Hare v. Hempstead, 21 Id., 39.

Certiorari lies when some act has been done by an inferior tribunal, board or officer in excess of their jurisdiction, or is otherwise illegal. Smith v. Powell, 55 Id., 215. It may properly issue where the board of directors of a district township direct their secretary not to certify for collection a tax voted by the electors of the district. Id.

Under this section allowing the writ of certiorari, it is not intended that questions of fact may be reviewed. Tiedt v. Carstenson, 61 Id., 334.

Certiorari will not lie when there is a remedy by appeal, or when the party fails to appeal within the time prescribed by law. Lumberg v. The District Court of Linn County, Id., 597.

Where the only complaint made by an owner of land against proceedings condemning a portion of it for right of way purposes for a railroad is that the damages awarded are inadequate, and that the award was made on a day subsequent to that fixed in the notice, he has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy by appeal, and certiorari will not lie. The C., R. I., P. & N. W. Ry Co. v. Whalen, 64 Id., 691.

Where there is a plain, speedy and adequate remedy by appeal for alleged errors in proceedings before a justice of the peace, certiorari will not lie. Ransom v. Cummins, 66 Id., 137.

Where a demurrer was sustained to the petition and the plaintiffs in the cause electing to stand on their petition, judgment was entered against them for costs. After the record of such proceedings was made, and approved and signed by the judge, and after counsel for the defendant had left the court, but during the term at which the order and judgment were entered the court permitted the plaintiffs in the action to withdraw their election to stand on their petition, and, without any application therefor having been filed, or notice thereof to the defendant, entered, an order setting aside the judgment, and granting plaintiffs time to file an amendment to their petition. Held that the court had no jurisdiction, thus to change the record in the absence of, and without notice to, the defendant; and that, since the defendant had no opportunity to except, and thereby lay the foundation for an appeal, certiorari would lie to correct the error. The Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. DuBois, Judge, etc., 67 Id., 175.

SEC. 3217. [By whom granted.]—The writ may be granted by the district or circuit court, or, in vacation, by a judge or clerk thereof, but if to be directed to either of such courts or judges, then by the supreme court, or, in vacation, by a judge thereof, and shall command the defendant therein to certify fully to the court from which the same issues, at a specified time and place, a transcript of the records and proceedings, as well as the facts in the case, describing or referring to them, or any of them, with convenient certainty, and also to have then and there the writ.

Under the revision the circuit court did not have jurisdiction in certiorari cases. Thompson v. Reed, 29 Iowa, 117.

SEC. 3218. [When stay of proceedings is asked.]—If a stay of proceedings is sought, the writ can only be issued by a court or judge, who may require a bond and fix the penalty and conditions thereof; the sureties thereon may be approved by the judge granting, or clerk who issues the writ.

Under this section the remedy by certiorari, where it applies, is full and complete; when the writ is applied for, the proceedings before the inferior tribunal may be stayed. Stibehrauch v. Neyenesch, 54 Iowa, 571.

Sec. 3219. [Petition.]—The petition for the writ must state facts constituting a case wherein the writ may issue, and must be verified by affidavit, and the supreme court or judge issuing the writ, may require notice of the application to be given the adverse party, or may grant the writ without notice. If a stay of proceedings is sought, the writ can only be granted on reasonable notice of the time, place and court or judge before whom the application will be made.

Where a stay of execution is sought in connection with the issuance of the writ, reasonable notice must be given to the defendant. Iske v. The City of Newton, 54 Iowa, 586.

Sec. 3220. [Service and return.]—The writ must be served and the proof of such service made in the same manner as is prescribed for the original notice in a civil action, except that the original shall be left with the defendant, and the return or proof of service made upon a copy thereof.

Sec. 3221. [Same.]—If the return of the writ be defective, the court may order a further return to be made, and may compel obedience to the writ and to such further order, by attachment if necessary.

Sec. 3222. [Trial: Judgment.]—When full return has been made, the court must proceed to hear the parties, or such of them as may attend for that purpose, on the record proceedings and facts as certified, and such other testimony, oral or written, as either party may introduce pertinent to the issue, and may give judgment affirming or annulling the proceedings in whole or in part, or, in its discretion, correcting the same and prescribing the manner in which the party or either of them shall further proceed.

Sec. 3223. [How prosecuted: Appeal.]—The action shall be prosecuted by ordinary proceedings so far as applicable, and from the decision of the district or circuit court an appeal lies as in other ordinary actions, and the record shall be prepared in the same manner.

Sec. 3224. [Limitation on right.]—No writ shall be granted after twelve months have elapsed from the time the inferior court, tribunal, board, or officer has, as alleged, exceeded his proper jurisdiction, or has otherwise acted illegally.

A writ of certiorari to the board of supervisors, directing them to certify up a transcript of their proceedings upon the question of the removal of the county seat, is not barred until twelve months after the adoption of the order submitting the question to vote. The statute does not commence to run upon the determination that the petition is signed by the requisite number of voters. Jackson v. The Board of Supervisors of Louisa County, 47 Iowa, 388.

In a certiorari, proceeding the court will not consider errors or irregularities relating to or dependent upon facts not stated in the petition. Nor will allegations without a return to sustain them afford grounds of interference. Everett v. The Cedar Rapids & M. R. R. Co., 28 Id., 417; Jordan v. Hayne, 36 Id., 9, 15.

While the action of a board or tribunal cannot be annulled by proceedings in certiorari unless the same shall be instituted within one year from the time of the action complained of, yet, where it was sought to amend the levy and assessment of a ditch tax, on the ground that the establishment of the ditch was illegal, and that, therefore, the assessment and levy of a tax to pay for it was also illegal, held, that the action would lie, though brought more than one year after the proceedings establishing the ditch, but within one year from the assessment and levy of the tax. Sheppark et al. v. Board of Supervisors of Johnson County, 72 Id., 258.
TITLE XX.

OF PROCEDURE IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER 1.

(REPLEVIN AND DETINUE.)

OF ACTIONS FOR THE RECOVERY OF SPECIFIC PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 3225. [Where brought: statements and verification of petition.]—An action for the recovery of specific personal property may be brought in any county in which the property or some part thereof is situated; the petition must be verified and must contain:

1. A particular description of the property claimed;
2. Its actual value and, where there are several articles, the actual value of each;
3. The facts constituting the plaintiff’s right to the present possession thereof, and the extent of his interest in the property, whether it be full or qualified ownership;
4. That it was neither taken on the order or judgment of a court against him, nor under an execution or attachment against him, or against the property. But if it was taken by either of these modes, then is must state the facts constituting an exemption from seizure by such process;
5. The facts constituting the alleged cause of detention thereof, according to his best belief;
6. The amount of damages which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover for the detention thereof.

Where, in an action of replevin, the plaintiff asked the court to instruct the jury as follows:

“1. That it is not necessary in replevin that the plaintiff shall prove that he is the rightful owner of the property replevied. If he had the peaceable possession, his right of possession was good against every person but the real owner, or some one having a better right of possession. 2. That if the plaintiff had possession of the property, his right of possession is good against all persons, until a better right is proved by some other person,” which instructions the court refused to give; held, that the court erred in refusing to give the instructions. McCoy v. Cadle, 4 Iowa, 557.

If the property of A is taken upon attachment, or under execution, against the property of B, it is exempt from such seizure and A may bring replevin. Smith v. Montgomery, 5 Id., 370.

When proceedings are commenced under the prohibitory liquor law, by the seizure of intoxicating liquors, alleged to be owned and kept for sale in violation of law, it is not competent for the party to take the cause away from the tribunal whose jurisdiction has attached by instituting an action of replevin and regaining possession of the liquors. Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Id., 438; Cooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128; The State v. Harris, 38 Id., 242.

A promissory note is personal property, under the code, and its possession may be recovered in an action of replevin. Graff v. Shannon, 7 Id., 505; Sauery v. Haynes, 30 Id., 25.

In an action of replevin, where the residence of the plaintiff becomes material, it may be proved without a specific allegation to that effect in the petition. Newell v. Hayden, 8 Id., 140.

Where personal property is replevied from an officer, on the ground that it was exempt from execution, and it is sought to show that the plaintiff is a non-resident of the state and not entitled to exemption, such defense should be specially pleaded by the defendant and need not be rebutted in the first instance, by the plaintiff. Id.

The exemption of property from execution relates to the remedy, and is governed by the law of the place where the contract is sought to be enforced, instead of the lex loci contractus. Id.
Where the petition in an action of replevin alleges the right of possession as in the plaintiff, an answer which does not specifically deny this in words, but states facts which, under the law, would defeat the plaintiff’s action, is sufficient. Skinner v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 12 Id., 191.

Under the statute, evidence showing that the title of the plaintiff in an action of replevin, to the property in controversy, was acquired through a fraudulent sale, is inadmissible when fraud has not been set up in the pleadings. To admit such evidence the fraud must be specially pleaded. Gray v. Évreux, 13 Id., 188.

The petition of replevin commenced before a justice of the peace, must be sworn to as provided by statute; and if not thus sworn to does not authorize the issuing of the writ. Cure v. Wilson, 25 Id., 206.

An action to recover possession of specific personal property cannot be maintained against a sheriff, who holds it by virtue of an execution, unless the plaintiff, prior to the commencement of the action, gives the sheriff written notice of his ownership thereof. Finch v. Hollinger, 43 Id., 488; Kaster & Farrell v. Pease, 42 Id., 488; Gray v. Parker, 13 Wes. Jur., 40; Richabaugh v. Bade, Id., 57.

But if the want of such notice is not pleaded in the answer of the defendant and he proceeds to trial upon the question of the ownership of the property the plaintiff may recover the property upon proper proof, but may be adjudged to pay the costs. Warder, Mitchell & Co. v. Hoover & Co. & Leonard, 1 N. W. R., 793, 509; 13 Wes. Jur., 380.

The common law rule that a person cannot maintain replevin for the possession of goods taken from him by virtue of legal process, has been modified by our statute so far as respects property exempt from seizure. Cooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128.

An action in a justice’s court may be commenced simply by the service of a notice upon the defendant, save when a writ of replevin is asked for, in which case the petition, duly verified, must be filed. In all other cases, the filing of a petition forms no part of the commencement of an action and need be done, only on the day of the trial. Duffy v. Dale, 42 Id., 215.

An action of replevin will lie, at the instance of the owner, for the recovery of the possession of a building erected under an agreement with the owner of the land upon which it was placed that the lessee should have the free use of the land as long as the house should remain thereon. The Dist. Twp. of Corvina v. Moorehead, 49 Id., 466.

Where personal property has been seized by virtue of an execution duly issued, replevin will not lie to take the property from the possession of the officer upon the mere allegation that the judgment has been satisfied. Armel v. Lendrum, 47 Id., 529.

If process issue from a court having no jurisdiction of the subject matter, or if an execution issue without a judgment having been rendered, or if the law under which the process is issued be unconstitutional, the process is void, and replevin may be maintained for the property seized by the officer under such process. Cooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128; Campbell v. Williams, 39 Id., 464.

When in an action of replevin it has been adjudged that the property repleived was subject to a judgment which the plaintiff was thereupon compelled to pay, his remedy is not by an action for wrongful conversion against the sheriff who levied upon the property under the judgment. Finch v. Hollinger, 46 Id., 216.

An action of replevin may be brought under this section, in any county in which the property or any part thereof is situated, and where such action was dismissed as to the defendant residing in the county in which the action was brought and the property situated, the other defendant, residing in another county were not entitled to have it dismissed as to them. This section does not apply to such cases, but only to actions purely personal. Porter v. Dalhoff & Co., 39 Id., 459.

The action of replevin cannot be maintained against one who does not detain from the plaintiff the possession of the property. And in such case the defendant is entitled to costs. Howe v. McHenry & Allison, 69 Id., 227.

An action of replevin may be brought either in the county where the defendant resides or where the property is situated, at the election of the plaintiff, but the venue cannot properly be held in a county other than one of these on the allegation that the property was wrongfully removed therefrom by the defendant. Hobbs v. Dunham et al., 54 Id., 559.

An action of replevin will lie at the instance of a party whose property has been wrongfully seized by an officer. Smith v. Montgomery, 5 Id., 370; Wilson v. Stripe, 4 G. Greene, 651; Miller v. Bryan, 3 Id., 58; Gimble v. Ackley et al., 12 Id., 27; Shea v. Watkins, Id., 605; Cooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128; Ramaden v. Wilson, 49 Id., 211. The fact that the officer holds it under process issued by the circuit court would not deprive the district court of jurisdiction in an action of replevin. Ramaden v. Wilson, 49 Id., 211.

Replevin will not lie against an officer acting under a tax warrant for the collection of taxes erroneously assessed by a board having competent authority. Belbo v. Henderson, 21 Id., 56.

When there is a want of authority to levy the tax, the owner may replevy the property seized by the officer in payment of the same, but not when the authority exists but is irregularly exercised. Buell v. Ball, 20 Id., 282.
A description of property in a petition of replevin, which would be sufficient to pass the title by a chattel mortgage is sufficiently particular. The City of Fort Dodge v. Moore, 37 Id., 388.

See Smith v. McLean, 24 Id., 322.

Demand of possession before commencing an action of replevin need be made only in those cases where it is necessary to terminate the right of possession in defendant, and confer it upon the plaintiff. Where both parties claim title, and the right of possession incident thereto, no demand is necessary. Smith & Co. v. McLean, 24 Id., 322.

See note to section 2589 ante, from Goldsmith, Assignee, v. Willson et al., 67 Id., 662.

In an action for the conversion of personal property plaintiff alleged that he was the absolute and unqualified owner of the property and, that they acquired such ownership by purchase. In evidence of ownership the plaintiff offered in evidence a chattel mortgage in their favor as mortgagees. Held, that under this section of the code sub. 3, "the facts constituting the plaintiff's right to the present possession, and the extent of his interest in the property, whether it be full or qualified ownership," must be set out, and that the evidence offered was not admissible to prove the facts alleged. Kern et al. v. Wilson, 35 N. W. Rep., 594.

SEC. 3226. [No counter-claim.]—The action shall be by ordinary proceedings, but there shall be no joinder of any cause of action not of the same kind, nor shall there be allowed any counter-claim.

One partner cannot maintain an action of replevin against the other, although by their contract of partnership one partner was to be the sole owner of the partnership property, the profits of the business being equally divided between them. Equity has exclusive jurisdiction of partnership settlements. Kuhn v. Neeman, 49 Iowa, 424.

SEC. 3227. [When process may issue on Sunday.]—If the plaintiff allege in his petition that he will lose his property unless process issue on Sunday, the order may be issued and served on that day.

SEC. 3228. [New parties.]—If a third person claim the property or any part thereof, the plaintiff may amend and bring him in as a co-defendant, or the defendant may obtain his substitution by the proper mode, or the claimant may himself intervene by the process of intervenor.

Where a person intervenes in an action of replevin against an officer, and becomes the substantial defendant, the judgment therein designating the rights of the parties is conclusive upon all of the parties as well between the plaintiff and the intervenor as between the plaintiff and the original defendant. Witter v. Fisher, 37 Iowa, 9.

The owner of personal property which has been taken by an officer under a writ of replevin in an action, to which such owner was not a party, may bring his action, and replevy the property from an officer. The remedy by intervention in the first suit is not exclusive. Davis v. Gambert, 57 Id., 259.

An assignee in bankruptcy may maintain an action of replevin in the state courts to recover property belonging to the estate, when the right thereto does not depend upon the bankrupt law; and the assignee acquires such an interest in the property of the bankrupt as authorizes him to intervene under this section of the code, or maintain an independent action for the recovery of such property fraudulently conveyed by the bankrupt. Wethore v. McMillen et al., 1d., 394.

BOND—ORDER.

SEC. 3229. [When bond required.]—When the plaintiff desires the immediate delivery of the property, he shall execute a bond to the defendant, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in a penalty at least equal to twice the value of the property sought, conditioned that he will appear at the next term of the court and prosecute his suit to judgment and return the property if a return be awarded, and also pay all costs and damages that may be adjudged against him. The bond shall be filed with the clerk of the court, and is for the use of any person injured by the proceeding, and a judgment for money rendered against the plaintiff shall go against the sureties on the bond.

Under (§§ 3554 and 3563 of the revision), 3229 and 3230 of the code, the defendant may, after the action is dismissed by the plaintiff, have an alternative judgment for a return of the property, or the amount of his damages, against both the principal and sureties on his bond. Wilems v. Tregnor, 14 Iowa, 391.

Under this section (3229) the sureties in a replevin bond, by signing the same, consent and agree that any judgment for money that may be adjudged against their principal, may be rendered against them also. Herschler v. Reynolds, 22 Id., 152.
Where grain taken on a writ of replevin was threshed and sold by the plaintiff, and upon the trial the ownership was found to be in the defendant, the measure of his recovery on the plaintiff's bond was held to be the market value of the grain at the time of the trial, less the cost of threshing and marketing, it not appearing that the plaintiff had acted in bad faith in obtaining the writ. Clemet v. Duffy, 54 Id., 632.

Where property levied upon under execution was replevied in an action by the execution defendant (who was the general owner) and sold to a bona fide purchaser, it was held that as to such purchaser the filing of the replevin bond operated to release the property from the lien of the execution. Gimble v. Ackerley et al., 12 Id., 27.

During the pendency of the replevin suit, the sureties in the replevin bond are treated as in court, and in the absence of exceptional circumstances, are not entitled to any other day. Being thus treated as in court, and not objecting, they are concluded by the judgment or order to which the principal consents, settling and fixing the rights of the parties. Id.

A surety in a replevin bond cannot in an action of replevin instituted by his principal before a justice of the peace, prosecute an appeal in his own name, and have the issues between his principal and the defendant re-tried in the appellate court. Cris v. Littleton, 23 Id., 205.

SEC. 3230. [Clerk to issue order.]—The clerk shall thereupon issue an order, under his hand and seal of the court, directed to the sheriff, requiring him to take the property therein described and deliver the same to the plaintiff. And where the petition shows that the property has been wrongfully removed into another county from the one in which the action is commenced, the order may issue from the county whence the property was so wrongfully taken, and may be served in any county where the property may be found, in the same manner and with like effect as in the county where suit is brought.

SEC. 3231. [Order follow property.]—When any of the property is removed to another county after the commencement of the action, counterparts of the proper order may issue on the demand of the plaintiff to such other county, and may be executed upon such goods found in such county, and further orders and the necessary counterparts thereof may issue as often as may be necessary.

ORDER—EXECUTION OF.

SEC. 3232. [Execution of: duty of officer.]—The sheriff must forthwith execute the order by taking possession of the property therein mentioned, if it is found in the possession of the defendant, or of his agent, or of any other person who obtained possession thereof from the defendant, directly or indirectly, after the order was placed in the sheriff's hands, for which purpose he may break open any dwelling house or other enclosure, having first demanded entrance and exhibited his authority, if required.

SEC. 3233. [Defendant examined on oath to discover property.]—When it appears by affidavit that the property claimed has been disposed of, or concealed so that the order cannot be executed, the court or judge may compel the attendance of the defendant, and examine him on oath as to the situation of the property, and punish a willful obstruction or hinderance, or disobedience of the order of the court in this respect as in case of contempt.

Under this section the judge in vacation is authorized to punish a willful disobedience or hinderance of the execution of the replevin, as well as for any disobedience of any order made necessary by the proceedings to examine the defendant under oath. The State v. Meyers, 44 Iowa, 580, 583.

SEC. 3334. [Property delivered to plaintiff.]—The sheriff having taken the property, or any part thereof, shall forthwith deliver the same to the plaintiff.

SEC. 3235. [Defendant may prevent delivery of property to plaintiff.]—At any time before the actual delivery to the plaintiff, the defendant may stay all proceedings under the aforesaid order and retain the property in his own possession, by executing a bond to the plaintiff, with sureties to be approved by the clerk or sheriff, conditioned that he will appear in and defend the action, and deliver the property to the plaintiff if he recover judgment therefor in as good a condition as it was when the action was commenced, and that he will also pay all costs and damages that may be adjudged against him for the taking or detention of the property.

SEC. 3236. [Must let plaintiff inspect property: appraisement of.]—But when the property is so retained by the defendant, he shall permit the sheriff and plaintiff to inspect the same; and if the plaintiff so request, the sheriff shall cause the property to be examined and appraised by two sworn appraisers, chosen by the parties to the action, or, in their default, by the sheriff himself, in the manner provided for other cases of appraisement; and he shall return their appraisement with the execution.

SEC. 3237. [Return of order.]—The sheriff must return the order on or before the first day of the trial term, and shall state fully what he has done thereunder. If he has taken any property he shall describe particularly the same. And if he has taken a bond from the defendant, as provided in the preceding section, he shall file the same with his return.

The taking the receipt of the defendant for the property in an action of replevin is unauthorized by the statute, and does not constitute a levy by the sheriff. He should take actual possession. Davis v. Baylies, 15 West. Jur., 373. See Wittier v. Fisher, 21 Iowa 9, cited in note to section 3278, ante.

In replevin, when the defendant has given a delivery bond for the property which perishes in his hands, the plaintiff's measure of damages for unlawful detention is the same as if the property had been preserved to abide the result of the action. Hinkson v. Morrison, 47 Id., 167; Lillie v. McMillin, 52 Id., 493.

JUDGMENT AND EXECUTION.

SEC. 3238. [Jury to assess value and damages.]—The jury must assess the value of the property, as also the damages for taking or detention, whenever by their verdict there will be a judgment for the recovery or the return of the property, and when required so to do by either party, must find the value of each article thereof.

SEC. 3239. [Form of judgment.]—The judgment shall determine which party is entitled to the possession of the property; and shall designate his right therein, and if such party have not the possession thereof, shall also determine the value of the right of such party, which right shall be absolute as to an adverse party having no right in such property and shall also award such damages to either party as he may be entitled to for illegal detention of such property.

When in an action of replevin the ownership and right to the possession of personal property was in issue on the allegation of the plaintiff's petition, the defendant setting up no special property, and the jury returned the following verdict: "We find the ownership in the plaintiff, and assess the value of the mare at $75 and the damages for wrongful detention at $25.00, it was held, that the form of the verdict was sufficient, and the court did not err in entering judgment thereon. Cassel v. The Western Stage Co., 12 Iowa, 47.

The question to be determined in an action of replevin is, in whom was the right of possession at the time the action was commenced. Id.

As a general rule, ownership of personal property carries with it the right of possession, and in replevin a general allegation of a right to the possession of the property in controversy is sufficiently maintained by evidence of ownership only, when no special right to the possession is shown by the opposite party. Id.

Where property taken in execution was taken from the sheriff by replevin, and the plaintiff, in said action, failed to prosecute his action successfully, the measure of the defendant's damages is the balance due him as execution plaintiff, with interest and costs. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 192.

Under this section an action for the recovery of personal property wrongfully levied upon and sold by a sheriff to pay another's debts, may be brought and maintained against the sheriff, notwithstanding, he may have sold the property and parted with the possession thereof, provided due notice of plaintiff's ownership was served upon him while he was in possession. Hardy v. Moore, 62 Id., 65.

In rendering judgment on a verdict in favor of the defendant in replevin, it is not error to allow interest on the value of the property from the time it was wrongfully taken from the defendant.

Heard v. Gallagher, 14 Id., 394.

As a general rule, the judgment in replevin, where the plaintiff fails to maintain his action, should be for the return of the property.  Chadwick v. Miller, 6 Id., 38; Jansen v. Effry, 10 Id., 227; Mason v. Richards, 12 Id., 73.

A person who purchases and takes possession of personal property subject to mortgages thereon, which he assumes to pay, cannot in an action of replevin brought in his own name, recover upon the ground that he is the agent of the mortgagees.  McMorton v. Akers, 24 Id., 369.

Where, in an action of replevin, the petition alleged the value of the property and that the plaintiff was the absolute owner, and the possession was taken under the writ from the defendant and delivered to the plaintiff, a verdict as follows: "We, the jury, find for the plaintiff," was held sufficiently specific.  Newton v. Reed, 30 Id., 496.

Where in an action of replevin the plaintiff dismisses his petition before an answer is filed, the defendant is, nevertheless, to have judgment for his interest in the property replevined.  But if he files an answer, notwithstanding the dismissal, claiming other and further relief, the plaintiff should be allowed to plead thereto, and introduce evidence upon the issues thus raised.  Crist v. Francis, 50 Id., 297.

A person not a party to an action aided by attachment in the circuit court, may maintain an action of replevin in the district court.  Seaton v. Higgins, 50 Id., 305.

Under this section an action for the recovery of personal property wrongfully levied upon and sold by a sheriff to pay another's debt, may be brought and maintained against the sheriff notwithstanding he may have sold the property and parted with the possession thereof, provided due notice of plaintiff's ownership was served upon him while he was in possession.  Harvey v. Moore, 62 Id., 65.

Sec. 3240. [Execution: form of. ]—The execution shall require the sheriff to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may, at the same time, require the sheriff to satisfy any costs, damages, or rents and profits, with interest, recovered by the same judgment, out of the property of the party against whom it was rendered subject to execution, or otherwise, he may, at his option, have execution for the specific delivery of the property, or for the value thereof as determined by the jury.  And if any article of the property cannot be obtained on execution, he may take the remainder with the value of the missing articles.

Where the plaintiff, in an action of replevin, has established a prima facie title, through a purchase of a judgment debtor, before levy of execution, the burden of showing that the sale was fraudulent is upon the defendant.  Where the fraud is once established, the sheriff's right to the possession may be shown by the execution under which it was seized, and the levy of the same upon the property.  Parsons v. Hedges, 15 Iowa, 110.

Under this section of the code the defendant in replevin may, after the action has been dismissed by the plaintiff, have an alternative judgment for the return of the property or the amount of his damages, against both the principal and creditors on his bond.  Wilken v. Troynor, 14 Id., 391; Clark v. Warner, 32 Id., 219; Byington v. Oaks, 1 Id., 488.

Under sections 3241 and 3242 of the code the plaintiff is entitled to a money judgment at his option when he is found entitled to the property and is not already in possession thereof.  Armel v. Lendrum, 47 Id., 555, 558.

The successful party in replevin may, at his election, have judgment for a return of the property, or a money judgment for the value of his right therein.  McMorton v. Akers, 24 Id., 369; Clark v. Warner, 32 Id., 219; Davis v. Bouliss, 51 Id., 435, 438.

Where an action of replevin is dismissed by the plaintiff, the defendant is entitled to a judgment for the return of the property or for a money judgment against the plaintiff for the extent of the defendant's interest therein, not exceeding the value of the property replevied.  Marshall v. Bunker, 40 Id., 121.

This section, which provides that in actions of replevin the person found entitled to the possession of the property may, at his option, have execution for the specific property, or for the value thereof as determined by the jury, applies only to those cases which are decided on their merits, and not to cases decided on demurrer for want of jurisdiction.  Williams v. Chapman, 60 Id., 57.

Where the plaintiff in replevin prevails on election, under this section, to take a money judgment for the value of the property instead of judgment for the property itself, he does not thereby waive his right to damages for the wrongful detention of the property by defendant. Cook v. Hamilton, 67 Id., 394.

Sec. 3242. [Judgment on bond.]—When property for which a bond has been given, as hereinbefore provided, is not forthcoming to answer the judgment, and the party entitled thereto elects to take judgment for the value thereof, such judgment may be entered against the principal and sureties in the bond.

Sec. 3243. [When property has been concealed.]—When it appears by the return of the officer, or by the affidavit of the plaintiff, that any specific property which has been adjudged to belong to one party, has been concealed or removed by the other, the court or a judge may require him to attend and be examined on oath respecting such matter, and may enforce its order in this respect as in the case of contempt.

Sec. 3244. [Exemption.]—A money judgment taken under the provisions of this chapter in lieu of property exempt from execution, shall also be, to the same extent, exempt from execution, and from all set-off or diminution either by the adverse party or by any other person, and such exemption may, at the option of the party, be stated in the judgment.

Upon consideration of sections 3225, 3229, 3230, 3238 to 3244 of the code it was held that, where an action of replevin was begun in the county where the property was situated but against a defendant residing in another county, a failure to secure the property under the writ did not defeat the jurisdiction of the court to entertain the case to the end; and, in such case, the defendant is not entitled to have the cause removed to the county of his residence. Laughlin v. Main, 69 Iowa, 580. Compare Porter v. Dahff, 59 Id., 459.

CHAPTER 2.

OF ACTIONS FOR THE RECOVERY OF REAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 3245. [By ordinary proceedings.]—Actions for the recovery of real property shall be by ordinary proceedings, and there shall be no joinder and no counter-claim therein, except of like proceedings and as provided in this chapter.

The joinder of actions referred to in this section relates to the cause of action and not to the relief sought. The language will not be construed to forbid an action in equity for full relief, if a decree quieting title will not give such relief. The County of Buena Vista v. I. F. & S. C. R. Co., 49 Id., 657, 662.

The joinder of actions referred to in this section relates to the cause of action and not to the relief sought. The language will not be construed to forbid an action in equity for full relief, if a decree quieting title will not give such relief. The County of Buena Vista v. I. F. & S. C. R. Co., 49 Id., 657, 662.

A defendant in an action to recover real property who is the holder of a lien on the property, cannot foreclose such lien by way of counter-claim in that action. Kemerer v. Bournes, 51 Id., 172, 176.

Sec. 3246. [Who may maintain: against whom.]—Any person having a valid subsisting interest in real property, and a right to the immediate possession thereof, may recover the same by action against any person acting as owner, landlord, or tenant of the property claimed.

A parol license to enter upon mineral lands and work the same, for a specific share of the mineral raised, for an indefinite time, an entry under such license, and an expenditure of labor, and money in sinking shafts, running drifts, procuring machinery and other preparations for mining under such license gives to the licensee a valid subsisting interest in the real estate which the licensor can terminate only by giving him compensation for such expenditure, or the notice necessary to terminate a tenancy at will; and the licensee may assert his right to the possession against the licensor, or his subsequent licensee with notice, by action of ejectment. Beatty v. Gregory, 17 Iowa, 109.

SEC. 3248. [Joint or tenant in common.]—In an action by a tenant in common, or joint tenant of real property against his co-tenant, the plaintiff must show, in addition to his evidence of right, that the defendant either denied the plaintiff's right, or did some act amounting to such denial. The objection that the plaintiff cannot recover without proof that the defendant denied his right before suit brought as provided in this section, cannot be made for the first time in the supreme court. Starry v. Starry, 21 Iowa, 254, 256.

SEC. 3249. [Service on agent, when.]—When the defendant is a non-resident, having an agent of record for the property in the state, service may be made upon such agent in the same manner and with the like effect as though made on the principal.

PETITION—ANSWER—TRIAL.

SEC. 3250. [Form of petition.]—The petition may state generally that the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the premises, particularly describing them, also the quantity of his estate and the extent of his interest therein, and that the defendant unlawfully keeps him out of possession, and the damages, if any, which he claims for withholding the property; but if he claims other damages than the rents and profits, he shall state the facts constituting the cause thereof. It is not necessary under this section that a party in an action for the recovery of real property shall annex, as an exhibit to his petition, the evidence of his title. Boardman v. Beckwith, 18 Iowa, 292.

It is only necessary for the plaintiff in an action to recover real property, to state generally the extent of his interest therein. The evidence upon which he relies to prove his title need not be stated. Larnin v. Wilmer, 35 Id., 244, 247.

In a petition for a recovery of real property, the plaintiff must allege that the defendant unlawfully keeps him out of possession. Barrett v. Love, 48 Id., 103, 123.

In our system of pleading the facts constituting an estoppel in pais, in an action to recover real property, need not be specially pleaded, the averments of the facts constituting defendant's interest being sufficient. Phillips v. Blair, 38 Id., 649.

SEC. 3251. [Abstract of title to be attached.]—The plaintiff shall attach to his petition, and the defendant to his answer, if he claims title, an abstract of the title relied on, showing from and through whom such title was obtained, together with a statement showing the page and book where the same appears of record. If such title, or any portion thereof, is not in writing, or does not appear of record, such fact shall be stated in the abstract, and either party shall furnish the adverse party with a copy of any unrecorded conveyance, or furnish a satisfactory reason for not so doing within a reasonable time after demand therefor. No written evidence of title shall be introduced on the trial, unless it has been sufficiently referred to in such abstract, which, on motion, may be made more specific, and may be amended as other proceedings.

SEC. 3252. [Answer.]—The answer of the defendant, and of each if more than one, must set forth what part of the land he claims, and what interest he claims therein generally, and if as mere tenant, the name and residence of his landlord.

See Phillips v. Blair, 38 Iowa, 649. cited in notes to section 3250, ante.

SEC. 3253. [Landlord substituted for defendant.]—Whenever it appears that the defendant is only a tenant, the landlord may be substituted by the service upon him of original notice, or by his voluntary appearance, and the judgment shall be conclusive against him.

While under this section the landlord may be substituted in an action of right, when it appears that the defendant is only a tenant, such substitution is not imperatively required, and the action may proceed against the tenant alone. But in that case, it seems, the landlord would not be bound unless he had been notified of the action. The State v. Orwig, 34 Iowa, 112.

SEC. 3254. [Possession.]—Where the defendant makes defense, it is not necessary to prove him in possession of the premises.
SEC. 3255. [Alienation: effect of.]—An action for the recovery of real property against a person in possession, cannot be prejudiced by any alienation made by such person after the commencement of the action.

SEC. 3256. [Power to enter and survey land.]—The court, on motion and after notice to the opposite party, may, for cause shown, grant an order allowing the party applying therefor to enter upon the land in controversy and make survey and admeasurement thereof, for the purposes of the action.

SEC. 3257. [Same.]—The order must describe the property, and a copy thereof must be served upon the owner or person having the occupancy and control of the land.

SEC. 3258. [Verdict: form of.]—The verdict may specify the extent and quantity of the plaintiff's estate, and the premises to which he is entitled, with reasonable certainty, by metes and bounds and other sufficient description according to the facts as proved.

SEC. 3259. [General verdict.]—A general verdict in favor of the plaintiff without such specifications, entitles the plaintiff to the quantity of interest or estate in the premises as set forth and described in the petition.

SEC. 3260. [Judgment for damages only.]—If the interest of the plaintiff expire before the time in which he could be put in possession, he can obtain a judgment for damages only.

A conveyance by the plaintiff of the title to the property, involved in a pending action of right, will not abate the action; and the prosecution thereof may be continued in his name notwithstanding such conveyance. This section applies only to cases where the plaintiff holds a limited and determinable estate in the premises, which expires by lapse of time, or the like, during the pendency of the action. Jordan v. Ping, 32 Iowa, 64.

SEC. 3261. [Limitation of damages.]—The plaintiff cannot recover for the use and occupation of the premises for more than six years prior to the commencement of the action.

A doweress is entitled to recover damages for the detention of her dower, from the slimes of her husband, or his grantees, as measured by the use and profits at least, from the time of the demand of dower, provided such demand was not more than six years prior to the commencement of the suit. If the demand was more than six years before the action was commenced, she can only recover for the six years. O'Farrel v. Simplot, 4 Iowa, 381.

In an action to recover real property, the plaintiff, where he holds the legal title and right of possession thereto, may recover for the use and occupation of the land, as well as the title and possession. Dunn v. Starkweather, 6 Id., 466.

In an action of right against the ancestor, and to which the heirs are made parties after his death, the heirs are not liable for damages for the rents and profits while the ancestor was in possession of the premises. They are only liable for damages after such time as they are shown to have been in possession. Cavender v. Smith, 8 Id., 360.

In such a case, if the plaintiff seeks to recover damages from the ancestor, his administrator should be made a party, with the heirs, or a separate action should be instituted against him. Id.

The limitation in this section has no application to the right of an occupying claimant to recover for improvements. Parsons v. Moses, 10 Id., 440.

An action to recover for the use and occupation of real property must be brought within five years from the time when the cause of action accrued. It is not of the class of actions contemplated in this section which may be brought within six years. Gibbetts v. Morris, 42 Id., 120. See Meier v. Bozarth et ux., 44 Id., 489.

SEC. 3262. [Improvements set off against damages.]—When the plaintiff is entitled to damages for withholding, or using, or injuring his property, the defendant may set off the value of any permanent improvements made thereon to the extent of the damages, unless he prefers to avail himself of the law for the benefit of occupying claimants.

A tenant who leases real estate of the apparent legal owner, to whom he pays the rent, cannot afterwards be made liable therefor to one who, by a proceeding in equity against the lessor to quiet title, but in which the tenant was not made a party, was decree to be the rightful owner of the premises, although such proceeding was commenced before, though not decided until after, the expiration of the tenancy and the payment of the rent. The tenant in such case would only be liable for rents accruing after the decree; nor would the case be varied by the fact that he was notified not to pay his lessor. This holding is not in conflict with section 3274 of the code. The proceeding to quiet title is not a suit brought for the recovery of the land within the meaning of this section.

When the plaintiff in an action to recover real property is entitled to damages for the wrongful detention thereof, or injury thereto, the defendant may set off the value of any permanent improvements made thereon to the extent of the damages, unless he prefers to avail himself of the law for the benefit of occupying claimants. Parsons v. Moses, 16 Id., 440, 444.

SEC. 3263. [Wanton aggression.]—In case of wanton aggression on the part of the defendant, the jury may award exemplary damages.

SEC. 3264. [Tenant: extent of liability.]—A tenant in possession in good faith, under a lease or license from another, is not liable beyond the rent in arrear at the time of suit brought for the recovery of land, and that which may afterward accrue during the continuance of his possession.

SEC. 3265. [Where crop is sowed, planted or growing: finding.]—If the defendant aver that he has a crop sowed, planted or growing on the premises, the jury finding for the plaintiff, and also finding that fact, shall further find the value of the premises from the date of the trial until the first day of January next succeeding, and no execution for possession shall be issued until that time, if the defendant executes, with surety to be approved by the clerk, a bond in double such sum to the plaintiff, conditioned to pay at said date the sum so assessed. This bond shall be part of the record, and shall have the force and effect of a judgment, and if not paid at maturity, the clerk, on the application of the plaintiff, shall issue execution against all the obligors.

A tenant in possession of land sold on execution, under lease from the defendant in execution, can have no higher or better rights than his lessor, and he is charged with notice of the sale and of the expiration of the time of redemption, and if he sows a crop which he cannot reap within that time, it is his own folly, and he cannot hold the land for the purpose of reaping the crop, under this section of the code. Wheeler v. Kirkendall, 67 Iowa, 612.

SEC. 3266. [Writ of possession.]—When the plaintiff shows himself entitled to the immediate possession of the premises, judgment shall be entered and a writ of possession issued accordingly.

See Dunn v. Starkweather, 6 Iowa, 470.

SEC. 3267. [Judgment for rent accruing after judgment and before possession.]—The plaintiff may have judgment for the rent of the possession which accrues after judgment and before delivery of possession, by motion in the court in which the judgment was rendered, ten days' notice thereof in writing being given, unless judgment is stayed by appeal and bond given to suspend the judgment, in which case the motion may be made after the affirmance thereof.

NEW TRIAL.

SEC. 3268. [When granted: grounds of.]—In any of the cases provided for by this chapter, the court, in its discretion, may grant a new trial on the application of any party thereto, or those claiming under a party, made at any time within one year after the former trial, although the grounds required for a new trial in other cases are not shown; but only one such new trial shall be granted.

An appeal may be taken from an order of the court below granting a new trial, but such an order will not be interfered with, unless it is shown that the discretion vested in the court has been abused, or that great injustice has been done to the appellant. A stronger case must be made than would be required to justify the reversal of an order refusing a new trial. Newell v. Sanford, 10 Iowa, 396.

Greater latitude is given to the discretion of the court below as to new trials in actions of right than in any other actions. Id.; White v. Poorman, 24 Id., 108.

A mistake made by a third person in selecting a paper to be used as documentary evidence in the trial of an action of right, when not discovered in time to correct the same before the conclusion of the trial, is good cause for a new trial. Floyd v. Hamilton, Id., 552.
The unsuccessful party in an action of right is entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the statute relating to new trials in such cases, as well as where the defense is equitable in its nature, as where it is legal.

The fact that the petition, in addition to asking that plaintiff's title be quieted, prays other equitable relief in regard to the land, will not take the case out of the provisions of this section, in relation to the granting of new trials in actions to quiet title. The County of Buena Vista v. The I. F. & S. C. R. Co., 49 Id., 657.

A new trial will be decreed, where a judgment has been rendered because of a failure to make defense through the mistake of the attorney respecting the time of the term at which the judgment was rendered, when the mistake is from misinformation, and not neglect. Id.

A new trial will be granted, when a judgment has been rendered because of a failure to make defense through the mistake of the attorney respecting the time of the term at which the judgment was rendered, when the mistake arose from misinformation, and not from neglect. The County of Buena Vista v. The I. F. & S. C. R. Co., 49 Id., 657.

The fact that the petition, in addition to asking that plaintiff's title be quieted, prayed other equitable relief in respect to the land, was held not to take the case out of the provisions of this chapter of the code. Id.

This section does not contemplate a trial upon an application for a new trial made under its provisions, and it is not error to refuse a party permission to answer and controvert such application. Id. Id.

The court has a discretion, under this section of the code to grant or refuse a new trial in an action to quiet title; and it cannot be said that such discretion has been abused in denying such trial where it does not appear that a different result might reasonably be expected should such trial be granted. Coleman v. Case, 66 Id., 534.

SEC. 3269. [Notice of application to adverse party.]-If the application for new trial is made after the close of the term at which the judgment was rendered, the party obtaining a new trial shall give the opposite party ten days' notice thereof before the term at which the action stands for trial.

SEC. 3270. [Not to affect rights of other parties.]-The result of such new trial, if granted after the close of the term at which the first trial took place, shall in no case affect the rights of third persons acquired in good faith for a valuable consideration since the former trial.

SEC. 3271. [Damages.]-But the party who, on such new trial, shows himself entitled to lands which have thus passed to a purchaser in good faith, may recover the proper amount of damages against the other party, either in the same or a subsequent action.

SEC. 3272. [Writ of restitution.]-The party who has been successful in such new trial, shall, if the case require it, have his writ of restitution to restore him his property.

QUIETING TITLE.

SEC. 3273. [Who may bring action.]—An action to determine and quiet the title of real property may be brought by any one having or claiming an interest therein, whether in or out of possession of the same, against any person claiming title thereto though not in possession.

Under this section an action in the nature of an action of right may be brought to quiet title to real property, against another claiming title thereto. Fejervary v. Langer, 9 Iowa, 159.

The action provided for in this section cannot be maintained against one holding a certificate of tax sale, not claiming title to the lands. Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Id., 160, 176.

Where the possession and control of real property is given to the executors for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the will, they are authorized to maintain an action to quiet the title thereto. Laverty v. Sexton & Son, 41 Id., 435.

An action under this section may be maintained against a non-resident defendant, and to such action the provisions of the statute relating to the service of notice by publication, or personal service of notice on the defendant out of the state, apply. Miller v. Davisson, 31 Id., 435.

An action to quiet the title to real property may be maintained in all cases where the defendant makes some claim adverse to the estate of the plaintiff, even if the defendant is in the actual possession of the land. Lewis v. Souls, 52 Id., 11.

And see Barrett v. Love, 48 Id., 103, 107.
An action to quiet the title, authorized by this section, may be maintained against a non-resident defendant, and to such action the statute respecting the service of notice by publication, or personal service without the state, applies. Miller v. Davidson, 31 Id., 435.

SEC. 3274. [Petition: form of.]—The plaintiff must file his petition under oath, setting forth the nature and extent of his estate, and describing the premises as accurately as may be, and averring that he is credibly informed and believes that the defendant makes some claims adverse to the estate of the petitioner, and praying for the establishment of the plaintiff’s estate against such adverse claims, and that the defendant be barred and forever stopped from having or claiming any right or title to the premises adverse to the plaintiff. The notice in such action shall accurately describe the property, and in general terms, the nature and extent of plaintiff’s claim, and shall be served as in other cases.

Where an owner in possession of real property brings an action against adverse claimants to quiet his title thereto, this section of the statute will entitle him to the relief sought, if sustained by the proofs, under a general prayer for relief, if the petition embodies the essential averments of the statute, notwithstanding it was not framed with special reference thereto. Puton v. Lancaster, 35 Iowa, 454.

SEC. 3275. [If defendant disclaim title.]—If the defendant shall appear and disclaim all right and title adverse to the plaintiff, he shall recover his costs. In all other cases the costs shall be in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3276. [To be prosecuted by equitable proceedings.]—In all other respects, the action contemplated in the three preceding sections shall be conducted as other actions by equitable proceedings, with the modifications prescribed by this chapter so far as the same may be applicable.

CHAPTER 3.

OF PARTITION.

SECTION 3277. [By equitable proceedings.]—The action for partition shall be by equitable proceedings, and no joinder or counter-claim of any other kind shall be allowed therein, except as provided by this chapter.

In an action to foreclose a title bond, conditioned to convey the undivided half of certain real estate, one holding part thereof under a deed from the vendor is properly made a defendant, and by a pleading in the nature of a cross-bill may ask a partition, and the enforcement of the lien upon the land not claimed by him. Hammond v. Perry, 38 Iowa, 217.

Section 3277 of the code is not applicable to such case; equity has jurisdiction, and may grant the relief asked. Id.

Where the grant of a part of the water-power stipulated that the grantee should have “the right to use water to the amount of the issue of the wheel now in use in said mill, supposed to be six hundred inches, more or less, of water:” Held, 1. That the amount of water which the grantee might use, was to be measured by the capacity of the wheel in the mill at the time of the execution of the deed. 2. That the terms in the deed specifying the amount, six hundred inches, was descriptive only and not a limitation. 3. That the grantee was not limited to the use of one wheel, but could put in operation any number, provided, they did not use in the aggregate more water than the issue of the one wheel originally in the mill. Doan v. Metcalf, 46 Id., 120.

In an action for the partition of a water-power the partition should be made by referees under rules established by the court. Id.

In apportioning the amount of water permitted to be used under a grant a fixed and unvarying measure should be adopted, and an allowance of the water requisite to carry “two sets of barrels and the necessary machinery for bolting,” does not furnish such measure. Id.

Where parties own, in common, a water-power and mills, machinery, dam and other appurtenances, a partition of the whole property may be made. And where either party insists upon such partition, it must be made, regardless of the inconvenience or hardship thereby occasioned. Cooper v. The Cedar Rapids Water Power Co., 43 Id., 395; Doan v. Metcalf, 46 Id., 120.

When the partition of a water-power is to be made, the rules governing it should be certain, definite and self-adjusting, so that they will readily apply to all conditions of the power. Id.
To effect such partition, the land covered by the water and dam may be divided by metes and bounds, and one part thereof assigned to each party, subject to the charge of keeping the dam in repair by the one to whom the part including it is assigned and the right to use such portion of the water as may be assigned to each owner, the extent of which may be indicated by some visible monument or by controlling the flowage through the gates. Id.

PLEADINGS—PARTIES—TRIAL.

SEC. 3278. [Petition: form of.]—The petition must describe the property and respective interests of the several owners thereof, if known. If any interests, or the owners of any interests are unknown, contingent, or doubtful, these facts must be set forth in the petition with reasonable certainty.

SEC. 3279. [Abstract of title to be attached to pleading.]—The plaintiff shall attach to his petition, and the defendant to his answer, if he claims title, an abstract of the title relied on, showing from and through whom such title was obtained, together with a statement showing the page on which the same appears of record. If such title, or any portion thereof, is not in writing, or does not appear of record, such fact shall be stated in the abstract, and either party shall furnish the adverse party with a copy of any unrecorded conveyance, or furnish a satisfactory reason for not so doing within a reasonable time after demand therefor. No written evidence of title shall be introduced on the trial, unless it has been sufficiently referred to in such abstract, which, on motion, may be made more specific, and may be amended as other pleadings.

SEC. 3280. [Contingent interests.]—Persons having contingent interests in such property may be made parties to the proceedings, and the proceeds of the property so situated, or the property itself in case of partition, shall be subject to the order of the court until the right becomes fully vested. The ascertained share of any absent owner shall be retained, or the proceeds invested for his benefit under like order.

SEC. 3281. [Lien creditors.]—Creditors having a specific or general lien upon the entire property may be made parties at the option of the plaintiff or defendant.

SEC. 3282. [Answer: statements of.]—The answers of the defendants must state among other things the amount and nature of their respective interests. They may deny the interest of any of the plaintiffs, and, by supplemental pleading, if necessary, may deny the interests of any of the other defendants.

SEC. 3283. [Issue: trial.]—Issues may thereupon be joined and tried between any of the contesting parties, the question of cost on such issues being regulated between the contestants agreeably to the principles applicable to other cases.

Where a defendant in an action for partition disclaims all right, title or interest in and to the premises described in the plaintiff's petition, at the time the action is brought or afterwards, and is not in possession doing any act inconsistent with such disclaimer, he is entitled to be dismissed with his costs. Urban v. Hopkins, 17 Iowa, 105.

ENCUMBRANCES.

SEC. 3284. [Reference to ascertain encumbrances.]—Before making any order of sale or partition, the court may refer to a clerk, or a referee, to report the nature and amount of general encumbrances by mortgage, judgment, or otherwise, if any there be upon any portion of the property.

SEC. 3285. [Proof of.]—The referees shall give the parties interested at least five days' notice of the time and place when he will receive proof of the amounts of such encumbrances.

SEC. 3286. [Issue as to encumbrance: how tried.]—If any question arise as to the validity or amount of an encumbrance, or the payment of the same, the court may direct an issue to be made up between the encumbrancer and an owner, which shall be decisive of their respective rights; and upon a sale it may order the money to be retained or invested to await a final action in relation to its disposition, and notice thereof to be forthwith given to the encumbrancer unless he has already been made a party.

Sec. 3287. [Undivided interests: lien on.]—If the lien is upon one or more undivided interests, the holder thereof shall be made a party, and the lien shall, after partition or sale, remain a charge upon the particular interests of the proceeds thereof, but the amount of costs is a charge upon those interests, paramount to all other liens.

Where the answer in an action for partition of a grist mill set up that rents were due to the defendant, and that the plaintiffs, while in possession under a lease, allowed the mill to become out of repair to the extent of from $200 to $400, for which they are liable under their lease; Held, that the court below should have heard the parties upon these allegations. Metcalf et al. v. Hoopingardner, 45 Iowa, 510, 512.

The mortgagee of an undivided interest in real property is not bound by a partition to which he is not a party. Lewis v. Atkinson, 39 Id., 596.

Equity will give relief from a decree in a partition action, which, through the fraud of one of the parties, divided and distributed the land in violation of the rights of the others, as settled by the pleadings and interlocutory orders. Id.

The fraud in partition proceedings can only be taken advantage of by one who had a prior interest in the estate, and not by one who, subsequent to the fraud purchases an interest therein. Telford v. Burney, 1 G. Greene, 575; Bruce v. Reed, 42 Id., 422.

Sec. 3288 [Not to delay distribution.]—The proceedings in relation to encumbrances shall not delay the distribution of the proceeds of other shares in respect to which no such difficulties exist.

Sec. 3289. [Judgment of confirmation.]—After all the shares and interests of the parties have been settled in any of the methods aforesaid, judgment shall be rendered confirming those shares and interests, and directing partition to be made accordingly.

In a suit for the partition of real property the court is justified in ordering a sale of the property, although it is capable of division, if such division will greatly depreciate its value. Branscombe v. Gillian, 55 Iowa, 215.

A decree settling and confirming the shares and interests of the respective parties, contemplated by this section, is the proper judgment to be rendered upon an appeal by the parties, who are excluded from any interest in the land. Ramsey v. Abrams, 58 Id., 512.

Proceedings for the partition can be maintained under the code, only in cases of joint ownership of real property and not when it is owned in severalty. Johnson v. Moser, 34 N. W. R., 314.

PARTITION.

Sec. 3290. [Referees appointed to.]—Upon entering such judgment, the court shall appoint referees to make partition into the requisite number of shares, or if it is apparent, or the parties so agree, that the property cannot be equitably divided into the requisite number of shares, a sale may be ordered.

Where the property owned in common cannot be equitably divided, it is competent for the court to direct in action for partition, that the common property be sold and the proceeds divided. Metcalf v. Hoopingardner, 45 Iowa, 510.

Although this section provides that the court shall appoint referees to set apart the shares of the respective parties, their appointment is not required in cases wherein, from the nature of the property and the character of the partition which the law makes, they can render no aid to the court in the just division of the property. Doan v. Metcalf, 46 Id., 120, 128.

Sec. 3291. [Shares marked out.]—When a petition is deemed proper, the referees must mark out the shares by visible monuments, and may employ a competent surveyor and the necessary assistants to aid them therein.

The rules and regulations of the code as to partition have reference alone to real property. Cooper v. The C., R. W. P. Co., 45 Iowa, 396, 401.

In the partition of the real estate of the husband in cases in which the widow, as his heir at law, takes one-half of his estate, she cannot be compelled to take the homestead as a part of her share. Nichols v. Purczell, 21 Id., 265.
SEC. 3292. [Report of referees.]—The report of the referees must be in writing, signed by at least two of them. It must describe the respective shares with reasonable particularity, and be accompanied by a plat of the premises, and must allot the shares to their several owners.

SEC. 3293. [Special allotments.]—For good and sufficient reasons appearing to the court, the referees may be directed to allot particular portions of the land to particular individuals. In other cases the shares must be made as nearly as possible of equal value.

Under this section the homestead may be awarded to the proper owner or tenant without the slightest detriment to his co-tenants. Thorn v. Thorn, 14 Iowa, 49, 55.

Slight deviations by the referees, where it is necessary in the partition of property, are not fatal to the proceedings, and the final judgment may properly correct any erroneous computation or inaccuracy in the report of the referees. Wright v. Marsh, 2 G. Greene, 94.

SEC. 3294. [Partition of part.]—When partition can be conveniently made of part of the premises, but not of all, one portion may be partitioned and the other sold as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 3295. [Report set aside.]—On good cause shown, the report may be set aside and the matter again referred to the same or other referees.

While under this section the report of the referees may be set aside and the matter re-referred, yet where the court dismissed the suit as to one defendant and rendered judgment against the other, upon setting aside the report, held erroneous. Lyons et al. v. Harris et al., 34 N. W. R., 864.

If the report be unsatisfactory to the parties, on good cause shown, it may be set aside and the matter again referred to the same or other referees. Per Rothrock, J., in Douan v. Metcalf, 46 Id., 131.

SEC. 3296. [Judgment.]—Upon the report of the referees being confirmed, judgment thereon shall be rendered that the partition be firm and effectual forever.

SEC. 3297. [Costs.]—All the costs of the proceedings in partition shall be paid, in the first instance, by the plaintiffs, but eventually by all the parties in proportion to their interests, except those costs which are created by contests above provided for.

In an action which is essentially one to determine the title to land, though in form an action for partition, and where the defense is not frivolous, the fees of the plaintiff's attorney cannot properly be taxed as part of the costs and apportioned as provided in this section. McClain v. McClain et al., 52 Iowa, 272.

Whether in any case the plaintiff in a partition case can have his attorney's fees taxed as part of the costs, not decided; but this cannot be done in a suit where there is a contest, as contemplated in these sections. Duncan v. Duncan, 63 Id., 150.

See chapter 184, laws of twentieth general assembly.

SALE.

SEC. 3298. [Referees to give bond before selling.]—Before proceeding to sell, the referees shall give a bond, in a penalty to be fixed by the court, payable to the parties who are entitled to the proceeds, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties. At any time thereafter the court may require farther and additional security, and upon the failure of the referees to comply with such order, they may be removed by the court and others appointed, and the court may at any time, for satisfactory reasons, remove such referees and appoint others.

SEC. 3299. (As amended by ch. 130, 21st g. a.) [Notice: land may be sold at private sale: appraised.]—The same notice of sale shall be given as when lands are sold on execution by the sheriff, and the sales shall be conducted in like manner. [Provided, that whenever in the discretion of the court such lands can be disposed of to better advantage and with less expense at private sale than in the manner hereinbefore provided, the same may be sold in compliance with such terms as are ordered by the court; but in such case the real estate shall be duly appraised.
by three disinterested freeholders to be appointed by the court, and sold for not less than the appraised value.

SEC. 3300. [Report.]—After completing said sale, the referees must report their proceedings to the court, with a description of the different parcels of land sold to each purchaser and the price bid therefor, which report shall be filed with the clerk.

SEC. 3301. [Conveyance.]—If the sale be approved and confirmed by the court, an order shall be entered directing the referees, or any two of them, to execute conveyances pursuant to such sale. But no conveyances can be made until all the money is paid, without receiving from the purchaser a mortgage of the land so sold, or other equivalent security.

A sale by referees in an action for the partition of real estate is not complete until approved and confirmed by the court; and when it appears that the sale was made for an inadequate price, it is the duty of the court, when moved by the parties in interest, to set aside the sale and order a re-sale of the land. Lloyd et al. v. Lloyd et al., and Wisner, Intervenor, 61 Iowa, 243.

SEC. 2302. [Validity of.]—Such conveyance so executed, being recorded in the county where the premises are situate, shall be valid against all subsequent purchasers, and also against all persons interested at the time who were made parties to the proceedings in the mode pointed out by law.

SEC. 3303. [When parties are married.]—If the owner of any share thus sold has a husband or wife living, and if such husband and wife do not agree as to the disposition that shall be made of the proceeds of such sale, the court must direct it to be invested in real estate, under the supervision of such person as it may appoint, taking the title in the name of the owner of the share sold as aforesaid.

SEC. 3304. [Sales disapproved.]—If the sales are disapproved, the money paid and the securities given must be returned to the persons respectively entitled thereto.

SEC. 3305. [Security to refund money.]—The court, in its discretion, may require all or any of the parties, before they receive the moneys arising from any sale authorized in this chapter, to give satisfactory security to refund such moneys, with interest, in case it afterward appears that such parties were not entitled thereto.

SEC. 3306. [Life estates.]—If a tenant for life or years be entitled as such to a part of the proceeds of sale, and if the parties cannot agree upon the sum in gross which they will consider an equivalent for such estate, the court shall direct the avails of the incumbered property to be invested, and the proceeds to be paid to the incumbrancer during the lifetime of the incumbrance.

Lands assigned to a widow as dower prior to the institution of an action by the heirs for partition are not subject to partition or sale in such action. She has the right to claim and hold the specific property assigned to her as her dower, though her dower be but a life estate. Clark v. Richardson, 32 Iowa, 399.

An Act in relation to attorney's fees in partition cases of real estate. [Additional to code, chapter 3, title XX.]

SECTION 1. [Where no defense: attorney fee shall not exceed that allowed in section 2.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in all actions for partition of real estate where there is no defense made, no greater attorney fee shall be allowed by the court to be taxed for and as attorney fees in such action for partition, than provided in section two hereof.
CHAP. 4.

OF THE FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGES.

SECTION 3307. [Of personal property: how foreclosed.]
—Any mortgage of personal property to secure the payment of money only, and where the time of payment is therein fixed, may be foreclosed by notice and sale as hereinafter provided, unless a stipulation to the contrary has been agreed upon by the parties, or may be foreclosed by action in the proper court.

Where mortgaged chattels have been seized by the sheriff, to be sold under the mortgage, the balance of the proceeds after the satisfaction of the mortgage, is the property of the mortgagor, and in an action against the latter is subject to garnishment process served upon the officer. Hoffman v. Wetherell, 42 Iowa, 89.

The foreclosure of a chattel mortgage is the subject of equity jurisdiction. Packard v. Kingman, 11 Id., 219.

SECTION 3308. [Notice.]
—The notice must contain a full description of the property mortgaged, together with the time, place, and terms of sale.

SECTION 3309. [Service, on whom.]
—Such notice must be served on the mortgagor, and upon all purchasers from him subsequent to the execution of the mortgage, and all persons having recorded liens upon the same property which are junior to the mortgage, or they will not be bound by the proceedings.

It is not indispensable that subsequent mortgagees should be made parties in an action to foreclose, but unless they are, and are served with notice, they will not be bound by the proceedings. Street v. Beal, 16 Iowa, 68; Bleidorn v. Abel, 6 Id., 5; Semple v. Lee, 13 Id., 304; Chase v. Abbott, 20 Id., 154; Parrott v. Hughes, 10 Id., 459; Donnelly v. Rush, 15 Id., 99; Johnson v. Harmon, 19 Id., 56.

SECTION 3310. [Return.]
—The service and return must be made in the same manner as in the case of the original notice by which civil actions are commenced, except that no publication in the newspapers is necessary for this purpose, the general publication directed in the next section being a sufficient service upon all the parties in cases where service is to be made by publication.

SECTION 3311. [Notice of sale.]
—After notice has been served upon the parties, it must be published in the same manner, and for the same length of time as is required in cases of sale of like property on execution, and the sale shall be conducted in the same manner.

SECTION 3312. [Title of sale.]
—The purchaser shall take all the title and interest on which the mortgage operated.

SECTION 3313. [Bill of sale.]
—The sheriff conducting the sale shall execute to the purchaser a bill of sale of the personal property, which shall be effectual to carry the whole title and interest purchased.

SECTION 3314. [Evidence of service perpetuated.]
—Evidence of the service and publication of the notice aforesaid, and of the sale made in accordance therewith, together with any postponement or other material matter, may be perpetuated by proper affidavits thereof.

SECTION 3315. [Same.]
—Such affidavits shall be attached to the bill of sale, and shall then be receivable in evidence to prove the facts they state.

SECTION 3316. [Validity of sales.]
—Sales made in accordance with the above requirements, are valid in the hands of a purchaser in good faith, whatever may be the equities between the mortgagor and mortgagee.

A sale made under a deed of trust after payment of the debt secured thereby is absolutely void. There must be a valid subsisting power under the deed to render the sale valid. Penney v. Cook, 19 Iowa, 588.

SEC. 3317. [Contest: how effected.]—The right of the mortgagee to foreclose, as well as the amount claimed to be due, may be contested by any one interested in so doing, and the proceeding may be transferred to the district or circuit court, for which purpose an injunction may issue if necessary.

Where the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage by notice and sale is restrained by injunction, on the ground of usury, and transferred to the district court, it remains as a foreclosure in court, and the power of the court to render a judgment of forfeiture, in favor of the school fund, is, as complete, if the contract be usurious, as if the proceeding to foreclose had been originally commenced in that court. Harlin v. Parsons, 33 Iowa, 207.

This section authorizes an injunction, but has no reference to the appointment of a receiver. Silverman v. Kuhn, 53 Id., 452.

The right to an injunction restraining the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, and for a removal of the proceedings therefor into the district court, given by this section, is not an absolute one, and does not exist where the applicant has a full and complete remedy in a pending action at law. Sweet v. Oliver, 56 Id., 744.

A proceeding in equity to enjoin the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage by notice and sale, in order to contest in the district court the amount due and the right to foreclose, was under the revision, triable by the second method of equitable trials, and the finding of the court stood, on appeal, the same as the verdict of a jury. Braitch v. Guelick, 37 Id., 212.

SEC. 3318. [Deeds of trust.]
Deeds of trust of real or personal property may be executed as securities for the performance of contracts, and shall be considered as, and foreclosed like mortgages.

Deeds of trust may be treated like mortgages and foreclosed by civil action. Newman v. De Lorimer, 19 Iowa, 244.

OF REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3319. [By equitable proceedings.]—No deed of trust, or mortgage of real estate, with or without power of sale, made since the first day of April, A. D. 1861, shall be foreclosed in any other manner than by action in court by equitable proceedings.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage where the mortgagor is dead, his administrator is a proper, if not a necessary, party to the foreclosure proceeding, and in such proceeding the administrator may, upon his own motion, be made a party. Darlington v. Effey, 13 Iowa, 177.

Equity will recognize and enforce a sale and conveyance of the dower interest before the dower has been assigned or admeasured, and will accordingly recognize and enforce the right which a purchaser of the dower interest of the husband or wife, as the case may be, acquires at a foreclosure sale under a mortgage in which both have joined. Huston v. Seeley, et al., 27 Id., 183.

Where a party, who was indebted to another, executed a conveyance to secure the indebtedness and received from the grantee an instrument binding him to re-convey upon the payment of the debt, held, that the transaction constituted a mortgage, and that it was not competent for the grantor to insist upon the foreclosure thereof, but that he must pay the amount due before he could ask a cancellation of the conveyance. White v. Lucas, 46 Id., 319.

In equity a conveyance of land to a trustee as security for the payment of a debt, with power to sell in default of payment, is treated as a mortgage. Newman v. Samuels, 17 Id., 528.

Where it is doubtful whether a transaction is a mortgage or a conditional sale a court of equity will treat it as a mortgage. Trucks v. Lindsey, 18 Id., 504.

A deed absolute in form will be treated as a mortgage, when it is shown that it was executed for the purpose of taking, and not the payment of a debt existing at the time of its execution. Hall v. Savitt, 5 G. Greene, 37; Üser v. Livermore, 2 Iowa, 117; Vennum v. Babcock, 13 Id., 194; Key v. McCleary, 25 Id., 191; Gardner v. Weston, 18 Id., 533; Holliday v. Arthur, 25 Id., 19; Maple v. Nelson, 31 Id., 322.

A deed absolute on its face may be shown by parol evidence to have been intended only as a mortgage. Key v. McCleary, 25 Id., 191.

There is but one method by which a mortgage on real property can be foreclosed in this state. It must be by action in court by equitable proceedings. Todd v. Pollock & Granger v. Johnson, 51 Id., 192, 195.

SEC. 3320. [Separate suits on note and to foreclose.—If separate suits are brought in the same county on the bond or note, and on the mortgage given to secure it, the plaintiff must elect which to prosecute. The other will be discontinued at his cost.

Where a promissory note is executed by one party, and a mortgage to secure the same by another, the maker of the note is not a necessary party to an action to foreclose the mortgage, or at least not so as to enable the defendant to take advantage of the failure to join the maker of the note in the action, by demurrer to the petition. Deland v. Mershon, 7 Iowa, 70.

The mortgagee may proceed in equity against the mortgagor and other encumbrancers of the mortgaged property, to determine the priority and amount of such encumbrances, and to foreclose the mortgage, after recovering a judgment in an action at law, and the note secured by the mortgage. Wahl v. Phillips, 12 Id., 81.

As between the parties to the mortgage, a judgment at law upon a note secured by mortgage is a lien from the date of the recording of the mortgage. But a judgment on a note secured by mortgage does not attach as a lien upon the mortgaged premises from the date of the mortgage unless the property is described and it is so ordered in the decree of foreclosure. The State, for use of School Fund v. Lake et al., 17 Id., 215.

The merger of the note into a judgment at law thereon, does not extinguish the lien of the mortgage executed to secure the payment of the same. But where, at an execution sale on such judgment, the mortgagee became the purchaser for the amount of his debt, it was held, that the mortgage lien was thereby extinguished, there being no ignorance or mistake of fact that a junior mortgage existed. Id.

A valid covenant may be inserted in a mortgage, binding the mortgagor to pay the amount secured thereby at the time specified, and this may be enforced, although there was no note or bond given for such amount. Brown v. Cascaden, 43 Id., 103; Newbury v. Rutter et exx., 38 Id., 179.

A mortgage is not confined to the remedy of foreclosure, but may maintain an action at law upon the note, bond, or other obligation secured by the mortgage. If the covenant for payment is contained in the mortgage, that may be made the basis of an action at law. Id.; Banta v. Woods, 32 Id., 469.

The fact that a judgment has been obtained upon a note without reference to the mortgage given to secure it will not operate to merge or extinguish the lien of the mortgage. Morrison v. Hendershot et al., 38 Id., 78; Hendershot v. Ping, 24 Id., 134; Shearer v. Mills, 35 Id., 499.

A mortgagee is not confined to the remedy of foreclosure, but may sue at law upon the bond, or other obligation secured by the mortgage. Brown v. Cascaden, 43 Id., 103.

SEC. 3321. [Judgment: sale and redemption.]—When a mortgage or deed of trust is foreclosed by equitable proceedings, the court shall render judgment for the entire amount found to be due, and must direct the mortgaged property, or so much thereof as is necessary, to be sold to satisfy the same, with interests and costs. A special execution shall issue accordingly, and the sale thereunder shall be subject to redemption as in cases of such sale under general execution.

In a proceeding in equity to enjoin the summary foreclosure of a mortgage, under the code of 1851, it was held, that the court might decree a foreclosure of the mortgage, in favor of the respondent without his filing a cross-petition praying for that relief, or his making such prayer in his answer. Westfall et ux v. Lee, 7 Iowa, 12.

In a proceeding to foreclose mortgage, where the answer admits the execution of the note and mortgage, and does not deny that the amount claimed in the petition is due and owing, there is nothing for the plaintiff to prove. Cooly v. Hobart, S Id., 358.

The fact that a mortgage was executed to secure the payment of a debt previously contracted, will not invalidate it, nor does it make any difference that it was made by one of the members of a partnership and his wife, to secure a debt of the firm. Id.

Where a petition to foreclose a mortgage asks a judgment on a note, and a foreclosure of the mortgage there is no mingling of law and equity in one proceeding, and the judgment prayed for is authorized by the statute. Id.

A note and mortgage provided that the interest should be paid semi-annually; that if the mortgagor should fail to pay said installments of interest, within thirty days after the several times fixed for the payment thereof, the entire indebtedness; including both principal and interest, should be considered due, and the mortgagee should have power to sell the mortgaged premises, after giving notice as stipulated in the mortgage, and apply the proceeds to the satisfaction of the indebtedness: Held, that upon a failure to pay interest as stipulated in the note and mortgage the mortgagee had the right to declare the whole debt due and enforce a foreclosure of the mortgage. Cramer v. Robman, 9 Id., 114.

The foreclosure of a mortgage is a proceeding in equity. A court of law may render judgment for the debt, but cannot order a sale of the mortgaged property. Id.

Under the code of 1851, the sale of mortgaged property pursuant to a foreclosure proceeding barred and cut off all equity of redemption. The mortgagor or any incumbrancer might redeem at any time before, but not after the sale. Id.

No greater relief can be given in a decree of foreclosure than is prayed for in the petition. McLaughlin v. O'Rourke, 12 Id., 459.

No personal judgment can be rendered against the wife of a mortgagor, in a foreclosure proceeding, when it is not alleged in the petition that the debt secured by the mortgage is one for which her separate property is liable. Id.

Where mortgaged premises have subsequently been sold in parcels to different purchasers, each must bear or contribute proportionally to the discharge of the incumbrance, and not in the inverse order of alienation. Barrett v. Blackman, 23 Id., 472; Massie v. Wilson, 16 Id., 390; Bates v. Rudwick, 2 Id., 427; Griffith v. Lowell, 26 Id., 226.

After sale of lands on mortgage foreclosure the mortgagor has the right to redeem within one year, and in the meantime is entitled to possession of the land. Mills v. Hackett, 59 Id., 215, 216.

A decree of foreclosure should direct a sale of so much of the mortgaged premises as may be necessary to satisfy the mortgage debt and costs. It is error to order a sale of the entire premises, and the payment of the balance remaining after satisfying such debt and costs into court. Maloney v. Fortune et al., 14 Id., 417.

A surety who was the owner of real estate executed a mortgage upon the same, "to be void upon condition that I pay or cause to be paid a certain promissory note for $1200, given by B., dated with this instrument, and payable to A. or order, one year from the date with ten per cent interest," it was held, 1. That the mortgagor assumed only the liability of a security. 2. That an extension of the time of payment by the payee to the maker, for a consideration, and without the consent of the surety, operated to discharge him from liability. 3. That the payment of interest in advance was a sufficient consideration to sustain a contract for the extension of time. Christner v. Brown, 16 Id., 130.

Where a decree of foreclosure ordered "that special execution issue against said defendants for the sale of said property according to law;" held, that while the decree should have followed the statute and ordered the sale of so much property as was necessary to satisfy the mortgage, the defect was of form merely, and did not vitiate the decree. Frieder v. Shaffer, 18 Id., 29.

An incumbrancer not made a party to a foreclosure proceeding is not bound by the decree therein, and is not cut off from his right to redeem, by a sale thereunder. White v. Watts, 18 Id., 74. See also, Heimsstreet v. Winnie, 10 Id., 490; Street v. Beat and Hyatt, 16 Id., 68; Bledova v. Able et al., 5 Id., 5; Parrott v. Hughes et al., 10 Id., 459; Donnelly v. Rush, 15 Id., 99; Johnson v. Harmon, 19 Id., 56.

In an action by a mortgagor who was not made a party to the foreclosure proceedings, to redeem from a sale made thereunder, the amount necessary to redeem should be determined with reference, both to the right to rents and the liability to pay for improvements. Barrett v. Blackmar, 57 Id., 565.

The mortgagor cannot, in a separate action, recover from the purchaser in possession for rents and profits, unless he shows that he was prevented by accident, surprise, fraud or mistake, from considering the rents and profits when he made his offer to redeem. Id.

The foreclosure of a mortgage in this state, can be affected only by a sale of the mortgaged premises, in pursuance of an order of the court. The strict foreclosure of the old chancery practice is not recognized by our statute. Cramer v. Robman, 9 Id., 114.

A personal judgment cannot properly be rendered against a subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged property, when he was not a party to the note or mortgage. Carleton v. Byington, 24 Id., 172.

Where, however, the purchaser of mortgaged premises, has assumed the payment of the mortgage as a part of the consideration of the land, the mortgage may be foreclosed, and a personal judgment rendered against him; and parol evidence is competent to prove such agreement. Bowen v. Kurtz, 57 Id., 229.

SEC. 3392. [General execution: when.]—If the mortgage property does not sell for sufficient to satisfy the execution, a general execution may be issued against the mortgagor, unless the parties have stipulated otherwise.

This section of the code does not apply to mortgages executed by others than the debtor, and a general execution cannot properly issue against the mortgagor in such case for any de-ciciency existing after the sale of the mortgaged property. Chittenden & Co. v. Gossage, 18 Iowa, 157.

Where the court renders a decree of foreclosure on a mortgage, and awards a special execution, it possesses no power to order a stay of the execution for a given time. Carroll v. Redington, 7 Id., 386.

Where the debt was not evidenced by note or bond, and the mortgagors covenanted: "We are justly indebted, etc.", and that "if, from any cause, said property shall fail to satisfy said debt, interest and charges, we covenant and agree to pay the deficiency; held, that the instrument amounted to an acknowledgment of indebtedness and a promise to pay, and that the mortgagee might maintain an action upon the debt without first foreclosing the mortgage. Newberry v. Rutter et ux., 33 Id., 179.

SEC. 3323. [Junior encumbrances entitled to assignment.]—At any time prior to the sale, a person having a lien on the property which is junior to the mortgage, will be entitled to an assignment of all the interest of the holder of the mortgage, by paying him the amount secured, with interest and costs, together with the amount of any other liens of the same holder which are paramount to his. He may then proceed with the foreclosure or discontinue it at his option.

While junior and senior mortgagees may properly be made parties to an action for foreclosure, they are not necessary parties thereto. Heimstreet v. Winnie, 10 Iowa, 469.

A decree of foreclosure con cludes the rights of those persons only who are made parties to the bill. Id.

A junior mortgagee named in a petition as a party defendant in a foreclosure case, may, on motion of the plaintiff be dismissed, unless he appears and insists upon an adjustment of his rights by the decree. A defendant cannot object to an order dismissing a co-defendant. Id.

To entitle a junior incumbrancer to be subrogated to the rights of a senior mortgagee, under section 3323, it is sufficient if the junior incumbrancer tender to the mortgagee, the amount secured by his mortgage, with interest and costs, before the foreclosure sale, though the amount so tendered be not accepted until after such sale. Martin et ux. v. Ruddibik et al., 28 Id., 487.

See note to section 1993 ante, from Grant v. Parsons, 69 Id., 31, respecting right of junior mortgagee to assignment.

Where the plaintiff, being a junior mortgagee, paid the amount of a senior mortgage to an attorney who had commenced an action to foreclose it, in which the plaintiff was made the defendant, held that the attorney was authorized to receive it. Harbach v. Colvin, 35 N. W. R., 663.

SEC. 3324. [Overplus.]—If there is an overplus remaining after satisfying the mortgage and costs, and if there is no other lien upon the property, such overplus shall be paid to the mortgagor.

While the surplus moneys arising from the sale of mortgaged premises in foreclosure, when remaining in the hands of the sheriff, or under the control of the court, belongs to subsequent lien-holders in the order of their priority, and should be so awarded by the court; but when the execution does not direct the disposition, of such surplus, and the sheriff, acting in good faith and without knowledge of subsequent liens, applies the money upon other executions in his hands, against the mortgagor, he is not liable therefor to such lien-holders. Polk County for the use, etc., v. Syphfr, 17 Iowa, 358.

Where mortgaged chatties have been seized and sold by the sheriff under the mortgage, the surplus of the proceeds, after satisfying the mortgage is the property of the mortgagor, and in an action against him may be garnished in the hands of the officer. Hoffman v. Wetherell, 42 Id., 89.

SEC. 3325. [In case there are other liens.]—If there are any other liens on the property sold, or other payments secured by the same mortgage, they shall be paid off in their order. And if the money secured by any such lien is not yet due, a suitable rebate of interest must be made by the holder thereof, or his lien on such property will be postponed to those of a junior date, and if there are none such, the balance will be paid to the mortgagor.

In the foreclosure of a mortgage no personal judgment can properly be rendered against a subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged premises, who is not a party to either the note or mortgage. Carleton v. Byington, 24 Iowa, 172.

Under a decree of foreclosure for failure to pay an installment of interest due, the court may order a sale of the mortgaged property for the payment of the principal of the note, with a rebate of interest. Stafford v. Mau, 39 Id., 138; Carleton v. Byington, 24 Id., 172, 175.

SEC. 3326. [How much sold.]—As far as practicable, the property sold must be only sufficient to satisfy the mortgage foreclosed.
FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGES. [TITLE XX.

In the foreclosure of a mortgage, if the property is susceptible of division, only so much should be sold as may be necessary to satisfy the debt; and a refusal by the sheriff to sell in parcels when the value of the property exceeds the debt, and it may be divided, invalidates the sale. Grapengether v. Pejereavy, 9 Iowa, 183.

Where under a mortgage made by joint tenants, a part of the property is sold on the execution upon a plan of division prejudicial to the rights of one of such owners, the validity of sale is not thereby affected, and the judgment creditor cannot complain, if the judgment is satisfied by the sale. Miller v. Felkner, 42 Id., 458.

The owner who has been wronged by the division and sale, in such case may maintain an action against his co-tenant for reimbursement. Id.

SEC. 3327. [Satisfaction to be acknowledged.]—Whenever the amount due on any mortgage is paid off, the mortgagees, or those legally acting for him, must acknowledge satisfaction thereof in the margin of the record of the mortgage, or by execution of an instrument in writing, referring to the mortgage, and duly acknowledged and recorded. If he fails to do so within sixty days after being requested, he shall forfeit to the mortgagor the sum of twenty-five dollars.

No precise formality is necessary to release the lien of a mortgage. No conveyance is required. Satisfaction may, by the statute, be entered upon the margin of the record of the mortgage. But this method prescribed by the statute is not exclusive. Waters v. Waters & Jones, 20 Iowa, 363, 366.

The assignee of a mortgage, by an assignment not recorded, is not subject to the statutory penalty imposed upon a mortgagee for a failure to enter satisfaction of his mortgage upon the record when paid. Low v. Fox, 56 Id., 221.

The penalty prescribed in section 3327, for a failure to enter satisfaction on the margin of the record, when the mortgage is paid, is incurred, if the mortgagee shall fail to enter satisfaction within six months after being requested to do so; and an entry of satisfaction after that time, even if made before suit brought for the penalty, will not avoid a recovery thereof by the mortgagor. Deter v. Crossley, 26 Id., 180.

SEC. 3328. [Same: duty of clerk.]—Whenever a judgment of foreclosure shall be entered in any court, the clerk thereof shall make upon the margin of the record of the mortgage foreclosed, in the recorder's office, a minute showing that said mortgage was foreclosed, in what court foreclosed, and giving the date of the decree; and when such decree shall be fully paid off and satisfied upon the judgment docket of such court, the clerk of said court shall enter satisfaction in full upon the margin of such mortgage, and he shall be allowed as compensation for such service the sum of twenty-five cents, to be taxed as a part of the costs in the case.

SEC. 3329. [Bond given by vendors treated as mortgages.]—In cases where the vendor of real estate has given a bond or other writing to convey the same on payment of the purchase money, and such money or any part thereof remains unpaid after the day fixed for payment, whether the time is or is not of the essence of the contract, such vendor may file his petition asking the court to require the purchaser to perform his contract, or to foreclose and sell his interest in the property.

It was held under the code of 1851, that a vendor of real estate, when the purchase money remains unpaid, was not compelled to pursue the remedy indicated in sections 2094 and 2095 of the code, which were substantially identical with sections 3329 and 3330, of this code. These sections were held not to take away other rights. Page v. Cole, 6 Iowa, 153.

It was accordingly further held in that case that, where the vendee takes possession of the real estate purchased, with the consent of the vendor, and fails to pay the purchase money according to his contract, the vendor may maintain an action against the vendee for the possession, without returning such part of the purchase money as has been paid, or tendering back the notes of the vendee given for the balance of the purchase money. Id.

This holding was based mainly upon the doctrine that an equitable title could not be set up against the legal title in an action to recover possession. Id.

Where the vendor of real property to which he retains the legal title, having executed a bond for a deed, assigns the promissory note received for the purchased money of the land, and agrees that the assignee shall be substituted to the benefit of all the security had by him, the assignee of such note is entitled to the same rights of the vendor himself, in case of the non-payment of the note by the purchaser; and he may bring an action of foreclosure in his own name against the vendee and all persons claiming under him, with notice. Blair v. Marsh, 8 Id., 144.
An action to foreclose a title bond is local in its nature, and is properly brought in the county where the land is situated. John v. Overett, 9 Id., 230.
The vendor of real estate may treat the bond executed for a conveyance as a mortgage, and may recover a judgment against the vendee for the amount due thereon and for the foreclosure of the same in one action. Hartman v. Clarke, 11 Id., 510.
The vendor may bring his action to foreclose for an installment of the purchase money remaining unpaid. Tupple v. Viers and Nichols, 14 Id., 373.
This section is permissive only, and simply provides a remedy which did not before exist; it does not prohibit the vendor from declaring a forfeiture of the contract in accordance with its terms. Mickelsait et al. v. Leland et al., 54 Id., 682; The Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. Michel, 41 Id., 402; Johnson v. Thornton et al., 54 Id., 144.
Under sections 3329, 3330, the vendee of real estate, under a bond, or written contract, conditioned for the conveyance upon the payment of purchase money, is regarded as the owner of the land, and stands in the same relation as a mortgagor in case of a conveyance and mortgage back to secure the purchase money; and he is to be viewed in this light until the vendor, if he may do so under the contract, declares that it is forfeited. And possession under such equitable title will support a defense based upon the statute of limitations. Montgomery County v. Sessor et al., 64 Id., 328; following Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Id., 489.
So, also, he may recover for an installment of interest due and unpaid. Hershey v. Hershey, 18 Id., 24.
The vendor of real estate who has made a bond for a deed is not confined to the remedy of foreclosure prescribed in sections 3329 and 3330. He may at his election treat the vendee as a mortgagee and foreclose as in case of an express mortgage, or he may proceed at law for the purchase money, or any unpaid and unmatured installment thereof. Id.
A foreclosure for an installment due, according to the terms of the title bond, before the maturity of the principal amount, and a sale of the property thereunder, exhausts the remedy of the creditor in respect to the land and passes a clear title thereto to the purchaser. Poweshiek Co. v. Denson, 36 Id., 244.
This section of the code (3329) does not defeat the right to claim a forfeiture, and requires foreclosure when the parties have stipulated otherwise in their contract. The Iowa R. Land Co. v. Michel, 41 Id., 402.
The rights of parties to a title bond and promissory note made for the purchase and sale of real estate are the same as those of parties to a mortgage, and persons not made parties to a foreclosure of such bond are not affected by the decree theretofore. Barnes v. Turner, 44 Id., 575.
If the land covered by the bond has been divided into parcels, each parcel must contribute its share to the payment of the debt, in redeeming the same from a foreclosure sale of the whole. Id.
In an action at law upon a promissory note executed for the whole or a part of the purchase price of land, which the payee covenants to convey upon its payment, the grantor cannot recover without showing performance on his part, either by tender of a deed or offer to convey. Zebley v. Sears, 38 Id., 507; School District v. Rodgers, 8 Id., 316; Berryhill v. Dayton, 19 Id., 233.
A vendor's lien for the purchase money of real property must be enforced by foreclosure as a mortgage. Scott v. Mechebhirer, 49 Id., 487, 489.
In an action on a title bond for real property, to recover a balance of the purchase money remaining unpaid, the court should not declare the bond forfeited, and the land discharged from the same. In such case judgment should be rendered for the amount due, the bond foreclosed as a mortgage, and the property ordered to be sold to satisfy the judgment. Guant v. Gregg, 37 Id., 573.
The assignee of a contract for the sale of real property, by accepting the assignment thereof, becomes a party to the contract, and personally liable thereon for the purchase money then unpaid. Wightman v. Spofford, 56 Id., 143.
The conveyance of the legal title to land for the purpose of securing the grantee, with a separate agreement to reconvey upon payment of the secured debt, is only a mortgage in effect, and may be foreclosed as such, under this section. Ruhlemann v. Rummel et al., 72 Id., 40.
Sec. 3330. [Parties in such case.]—The vendee shall in such cases, for the purpose of the foreclosure, be treated as a mortgagor of the property purchased, and his rights may be foreclosed in a similar manner.
The design of this section and the next preceding one (3329, 3330) was to place the vendor and vendee of real property in the same position as relates to the remedy, as the mortgagor and mortgagee of express mortgages. Pierson v. David et al., 1 Iowa, 23, 34; Blair & Co. v. Marsh, 8 Id., 144; Walker v. Kynett, 32 Id., 524, 530.
In an action on a title bond for real estate to recover a balance of the purchase money remaining unpaid, it is erroneous for the court to declare the bond forfeited, and the land discharged from... the same. In such case judgment should be rendered for the amount due, the bond should be foreclosed as a mortgage and the property ordered to be sold to satisfy the judgment. Gamut v. Gregg, 37 Id., 573.

CHAPTER 5.

OF ACTIONS FOR NUISANCE, WASTE, AND TRESPASS.

SECTION 3331. [Nuisance: definition of.]—Whatever is injurious to health, or indecent or offensive to the senses, or an obstruction to the free use of property, so as essentially to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, is a nuisance, and a civil action by ordinary proceedings may be brought thereon by any person injured thereby; in which action the nuisance may be enjoined or abated, and damages also recovered therefor.

A public nuisance, consisting in the obstruction of a public highway, may not only be abated and the offender punished under indictment against him, but a court of equity will also grant relief by way of injunction upon the application of an individual who suffers an injury, distinct from the public, as a consequence of the nuisance. Elwell v. Greenwood, 26 Iowa, 377.

Any person whose property is injuriously affected, or whose personal enjoyment is lessened, by the erection of a nuisance, may, under the statute, maintain an action for the abatement thereof and recovery of damages. Id.

A party may, with his own hand, abate that which to him is a nuisance; but he cannot needlessly destroy the property, as it is only the offensive use of it that he is justified in abating. Morrison v. Marquardt, 24 Id., 35; Moffit v. Breese, 1 G. Greene, 348.

If a mill dam be erected so high as to flow the water back upon a dam above it under circumstances which might justify the injured party in abating it by his own acts, he must confine his operations to the dam itself and to such portions of it only as caused, and the destruction of which would remove, the injury. Id.

Where water flowing through the premises of the plaintiff was diverted from its natural course by an artificial channel made by the road supervisor in the construction of a highway over the stream, it was held, that the plaintiff might dam up the artificial channel and thus restore the natural flow of the water over his premises. McCord v. High, 24 Id., 336.

A city council has no power to declare that to be a nuisance which is not such at common law, or has not been declared to be such by statute. Everett v. The City of Council Bluffs, 46 Id., 66.

Trees growing in a street or highway do not constitute a nuisance unless they obstruct public travel. Id.; and Bills v. Bellnap, 36 Id., 388; Patterson v. Vail, 43 Id., 142.

Where the supervisor fails to remove trees that obstruct public travel on the highway mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel him to perform his duty. Patterson v. Vail, Id., 142.

So also the road supervisor may be restrained by injunction at the suit of a land owner from removing trees standing in the highway adjacent to and in front of such owner's premises, where such removal is not demanded by the wants of the public travel and convenience. Bills v. Bellnap, 36 Id., 388.

A nuisance may be both public and private in its character, and in so far as it is private it gives a right of action to the party who suffers special damage therefrom. Park v. The C. & S. W. R. Co., 43 Id., 636.

Injuries resulting from the obstruction of highways leading to the premises of a party complaining, and interfering with access to them, are proper grounds of recovery by the party, even though many others sustain like injuries from the same cause. Id.

A party cannot successfully urge that a structure standing on his neighbor's premises is a nuisance, and have the same abated, when he maintains a like structure, equally offensive, on his own premises. Casady v. Covenor, 37 Id., 300.

To abate a nuisance caused by a pond of water, one injured thereby has not the right to fill up the bed of the water, but may remove the cause rendering it impure, or restrain the one whose conduct produced the result. Finley v. Hershey, 41 Id., 389; see, also, The State v. Kaster, 35 Id., 221.

The remedy given by this section for the abatement of a nuisance does not supersede or take away the jurisdiction of courts of equity that existed prior to its enactment. Bushnell v. Robeson & Co., 62 Id., 540.

Where a railroad company laid a side-track upon the street of a city within six feet of the line of the street, in violation of the city ordinance granting the right of way, which prohibited the construction of any track within eighteen feet of such line, it was held that such track, and the use thereof, constituted a nuisance, for the maintenance of which a property holder who had sustained special damage by reason thereof might maintain an action against the railroad company. Cain v. C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 54 Id., 255; see, also, Cadle v. The Muscatine W. R. Co., 44 Id., 11; Frith v. The City of Dubuque, 45 Id., 466.

Sec. 3332. [Waste by guardian or tenants: damages.]—If a guardian, tenant for life or years, joint tenant or tenant in common, of real property commit waste thereon, he is liable to pay three times the damages which have resulted from such waste, to the person who is entitled to sue therefor.

Sec. 3333. [Forfeiture and eviction.]—Judgment of forfeiture and eviction may be rendered against the defendant, whenever the amount of damages so recovered is more than two-thirds the value of the interest such defendant has in the property wasted, and when the action is brought by the person entitled to the reversion.

Sec. 3334. [Who deemed to have committed.]—Any person whose duty it is to prevent waste, and who has not used reasonable care and diligence to prevent it, is deemed to have committed it.

Sec. 3335. [Treble damages: who liable for.]—For willful trespass in injuring any timber, tree or shrub on the land of another; or in the street or highway in front of another's cultivated ground, yard or town lot, or on the public grounds of any town, or any land held by this state for any purpose whatever, the perpetrator shall pay treble damages of the suit of any person entitled to protect or enjoy the property aforesaid.

Sec. 3336. [Actual value: when assessed on highway.]—Nothing herein contained authorizes the recovery of more than the just value of the timber taken from uncultivated woodland, for the repair of a public highway or bridge upon the land in its immediate neighborhood.

Sec. 3337. [Remainder and reversion.]—The owner of an estate in remainder or reversion, may maintain either of the aforesaid actions for injuries done to the inheritance, notwithstanding any intervening estate for life or years.

Sec. 3338. [Heir.]—An heir, whether a minor or of full age, may maintain these actions for injuries done in the time of his ancestor as well as in his own time, unless barred by the statute of limitations.

Sec. 3339. [Purchaser under execution.]—Whenever lands or tenements are sold by virtue of an execution, the purchaser at such sale may maintain his action against any person for either of the causes above mentioned, occurring or existing after his purchase.

Sec. 3340. [Suitable repairs.]—This provision is not intended to prevent the person who occupies the lands in the meantime, from using them in the ordinary course of husbandry, or from using timber for the purpose of making suitable repairs thereon.

Sec. 3341. [Same.]—But if for this purpose he employs timber vastly superior to that required for the occasion, he will be deemed to have committed waste and will be liable accordingly.

Sec. 3342. [Settlers on public lands.]—Any person settled upon and occupying any portion of the public lands held by the state, is not liable as a trespasser for improving it or cultivating it in the ordinary course of husbandry, nor for taking and using timber or other materials necessary and proper to enable him to do so, provided the timber and other materials be taken from land properly constituting a part of the “claim” or tract of land so settled upon and occupied by him.

Sec. 3343. [Certificate for land sold for taxes.]—The owner of a treasurer’s certificate of purchase of land sold for taxes, may recover treble damages of any person committing waste or trespass thereon as hereinbefore provided.
Sec. 3344. [Disposition of money.]—All moneys recovered in an action brought under the preceding section shall be paid by the officer collecting the same, to the auditor of the county in which such lands are situated, and the same shall be held by such auditor, and an entry thereof made by him in a book kept for that purpose, until such lands are redeemed or a treasurer's deed therefor shall have been executed to the holder of said certificate. If redemption be made, the money shall be paid to the owner of the land, and if not redeemed, to the person to whom such deed is executed.

CHAPTER 6.

ON ACTIONS TO TEST OFFICIAL AND CORPORATE RIGHTS.

Section 3345. [Where state is plaintiff: for what causes brought.] —A civil action by ordinary proceedings may be brought in the name of the state as plaintiff in the following cases:

1. Against any person unlawfully holding or exercising any public office or franchise within this state, or any office in any corporation created by this state;
2. Or against any public officer who has done or suffered any act which works a forfeiture of his office;
3. Or against any person acting as a corporation within this state without being authorized by law;
4. Or against any corporation doing or omitting acts, which amount to a forfeiture of their rights and privileges as a corporation, or exercising powers not conferred by law;
5. Or against any person claiming under any letters patent, granted by the proper authorities of this state, for the purpose of annulling or vacating the same, as having been obtained by fraud, or through mistake or ignorance of a material fact, or when the defendants have done or omitted an act in violation of the terms or conditions on which the letters were granted, or have by any other means forfeited the interest acquired under the same.

Under our statute an action in the nature of a quo warranto against persons claiming to hold office must generally be brought in the name of the state; it can be prosecuted only by the public officer, although he may do so upon the relation of an individual, and even for his benefit; it seems if the proper prosecutor should refuse, he may be directed to prosecute it, by the governor, legislature, or district court. Scott v. Clark, 1 Iowa, 70. [But, see section 3848, of the code as to the prosecution of the action when the district attorney refuses.]

The right to a municipal or city office, may be contested in an action in the nature of a quo warranto. State ex rel v. Funck, 17 id., 365.

Where an office or franchise is being usurped, an injunction, as an independent means of relief, is not a proper remedy. An action in the nature of quo warranto is the only remedy. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Id., 75, 90; Desmond v. McCarthy, 17 Id., 525, 527.

An action under this chapter will not lie to annul a city ordinance passed in the irregular and improper exercise of a power conferred by law. The State, ex rel, v. The City of Lyons, 31 Id., 432.

An action to test the right of certain persons claiming to be a corporation, to act as such must be against the individuals themselves and not against the alleged corporation. When a corporation is brought into court by its corporate name, its existence is admitted. The State v. The Ind. Sch. Dist. of Dallas Center, 44 Id., 227.

The right to preside over the proceedings of a city council is a "franchise" within the meaning of this chapter, the right to which may be tested by an action in the nature of quo warranto. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Id., 75.

When an incumbent of an office holds it by color of right, though he is not an officer de jure, his right will not be inquired into on habeas corpus. It can be determined only in a direct proceeding instituted for that purpose. Ex parte Stahl, 16 Id., 369.
But if a mere usurper should, without color of right, attempt to imprison a person, the legality of the restraint may be inquired into on habeas corpus. Id.

Where one claims to have been duly appointed to fill a vacancy in an office, the duties of which he alleges are being, without authority, performed by another, his remedy is quo warranto, notwithstanding the fact that his claim to the office is based upon an appointment and not upon an election. The State v. Mudon, 49 Id., 591.

SEC. 3346. [Joinder: counter-claim.]—To such action there shall be no joinder of any other cause of action, nor any counter-claim.

SEC. 3347. [When and by whom commenced.]—Such action may be commenced by the district attorney, at his discretion, and must be so commenced when directed by the governor, the general assembly, or a court of record.

SEC. 3348. [By private person.]—If the district attorney, on demand, neglect or refuse to commence the same, any citizen of the state having an interest in the question, may apply to the court in which the action is to be commenced, or to the judge thereof, for leave to do so, and, upon obtaining such leave, may prosecute the action to final judgment in other respects as provided.

SEC. 3349. [Petition: statements of.]—The petition shall contain a plain statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of the proceeding, and, with the notice, and all the subsequent pleadings and proceedings, shall conform to the rule given for procedure in civil actions in title seventeen of this code, except so far as the same are modified by this chapter.

SEC. 3350. [Private individual: costs.]—When such action is brought upon the relation of a private individual, that fact shall be stated in the petition, and the order allowing him to prosecute may require that he shall be responsible for costs in case they are not adjudged against the defendant. In other cases the payment of costs shall be regulated by the same rule as in criminal actions.

SEC. 3351. [When defendant holds an office.]—When the defendant is holding an office to which another is claiming the right, the petition shall set forth the name of such claimant, and the trial must, if practicable, determine the rights of the contesting parties.

SEC. 3352. [Same.]—When several persons claim to be entitled to the same office or franchise, a petition may be filed against all or any portion thereof, in order to try their respective rights thereto, in the manner provided by this chapter.

The proper form of action is by information in the nature of quo warranto. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Iowa, 75.

JUDGMENT.

SEC. 3353. [Effect of.]—If judgment be rendered in favor of such claimant, he shall proceed to exercise the functions of the office after he has qualified as required by law.

SEC. 3354. [Books and papers.]—The court, after such judgment, shall order the defendant to deliver over all books and papers in his custody or under his control belonging to said office.

SEC. 3355. [Execution for damages.]—When the judgment has been rendered in favor of the claimant, he may at any time within one year thereafter bring suit against the defendant and recover the damages he has sustained by reason of the act of the defendant.

SEC. 3356. [Judgment of ouster from corporation.]—If the defendant be found guilty of unlawfully holding or exercising any office, franchise, or privilege, or if a corporation be found to have violated the law by which it holds its existence, or in any manner to have done acts which amount to a surrender or forfeiture of its privileges, judgment shall be rendered that such defendant be ousted and altogether excluded from such office, franchise, or privilege, and also that he pay the costs of the proceeding.
Sec. 3357. If the defendant be found to have exercised merely certain individual powers and privileges to which he was not entitled, the judgment shall be the same as above directed, but only in relation to those particulars in which he is thus exceeding the lawful exercise of his rights and privileges.

Sec. 3358. [Pretended corporation: costs.]—In case judgment is rendered against a pretended but not real corporation, the cost may be collected from any person who has been acting as an officer or proprietor of such pretended corporation.

Sec. 3359. [Action against officers.]—When judgment of ouster is rendered against a corporation on account of the misconduct of the directors or officers thereof, such officers shall be jointly and severally liable to an action by any one injured thereby.

TRUSTEES APPOINTED.

Sec. 3360. [When corporation is dissolved.]—If a corporation is ousted and dissolved by the proceedings herein authorized, the court shall appoint three disinterested persons as trustees of the creditors and stockholders.

Sec. 3361. [Bond.]—Said trustees shall enter into a bond in such a penalty and with such security as the court approves, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their trust.

Sec. 3362. [Action on.]—Suit may be brought on such bond by any person injured by the negligence or wrongful act of the trustees in the discharge of their duties.

Sec. 3363. [Duty of trustees.]—The trustees shall proceed immediately to collect the debts and pay the liabilities of the corporation, and to divide the surplus among those thereto entitled.

Sec. 3364. [Books delivered to.]—The court shall, upon application for that purpose, order any officer of such corporation or any other person having possession of any of the effects, books, or papers of the corporation, in any wise necessary for the settlement of its affairs, to deliver up the same to the trustees.

Sec. 3365. [Inventory.]—As soon as practicable after their appointment, the trustees shall make and file in the office of the clerk of the court, an inventory of all the effects, rights, and credits which come to their possession or knowledge, the truth of which inventory shall be sworn to.

Sec. 3366. [Power of.]—They shall sue for and recover the debts and property of the corporation, and shall be responsible to the creditors and stockholders respectively, to the extent of the effects which come into their hands.

Sec. 3367. [Penalty for refusing to obey order of court.]—Any person who, without good reason, refuses to obey any order of the court, as herein provided, shall be deemed guilty of contempt of court, and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail until he comply with said order, and shall be further liable for the damages resulting to any person on account of his refusal to obey such order.
CHAPTER 7.

SECTION 3368. [Official bonds construed.]—The official bond of a public officer is to be construed as a security to the body politic or civil corporation of which he is an officer, and also to all the members thereof, severally, who are intended to be thereby secured.

Suit may be brought on the bond of a county officer executed in the ordinary form by any person intended to be secured thereby. Wells v. Stomback, 59 Iowa, 376, 378.

The bond of a county treasurer which was executed "unto the county of Warren and state of Iowa," held to be a bond given for the security of the county and not of the state. The State v. Henderson et al., 40 Id., 242.

SEC. 3369. [Judgment no bar.]}—A judgment in favor of a party for one delinquency, does not preclude the same or another party from an action on the same security for another delinquency, except that sureties can be made liable in the aggregate only to the extent of their undertaking.

A judgment rendered against a sheriff for a breach of official duty, is not a bar to another action for the same cause against the sureties on his official bond. Charles v. Haskins, 11 Iowa, 329.

A sheriff and his sureties are liable on his official bond for trespasses committed by him in attempting to perform his official duties. Id.

A mistake as to the name of the obligee in an official bond will not operate to vitiate the instrument. Id.

Where a constable acting in his official capacity levied upon and sold property which was exempt from execution, he and his sureties were held liable on his official bond for the damages thereby sustained. Strunk v. Ocheltree, 11 Id., 158.

Where a deputy sheriff collects money on execution and fails to pay it over, the remedy is by an action against the sheriff on his official bond, and not against the deputy and his sureties. Branstov v. Town, 12 Id., 346.

Sureties on official bonds are liable only for acts done by their principal during the term for which the bond was given, even when the principal holds over after the expiration of such term. Wapello County v. Bigham, 10 Id., 39.

SEC. 3370. [Fines and forfeitures.]—Fines and forfeitures not otherwise disposed of, go into the treasury of the county where the same are collected for the benefit of the school fund.

Where certain criminal cases were taken on change of venue from the plaintiff to the defendant county, where they were tried, and fines imposed on the defendants, a transcript of the judgment and an execution in each case was sent to the plaintiff county, where the defendant resided, but before any levy was made the defendants paid to the sheriff the amounts of the several judgments, and he returned the executions and paid over the money to the clerk of the defendant county. Held, that the fines were "collected" in the defendant county, within the meaning of this section of the code. Pottawattamie County v. Carroll County, 67 Iowa, 456.

Under this section, the county in which a forfeited appearance bond is collectible is entitled to the proceeds thereof for the use of the school fund. Lucas County v. Wilson, 61 Id., 141.

SEC. 3371. [Who prosecuted by.]}—Actions for the recovery thereof may be prosecuted by the officers or persons to whom they are by law given in whole or in part, or by the public officer into whose hands they are to be paid when collected.

SEC. 3372. [Collusion.]—A judgment for a penalty or forfeiture rendered by collusion, does not prevent another prosecution for the same subject matter.
CHAPTER 8.

OF ACTIONS OF MANDAMUS.

SECTION 3373. [Definition of.]—The action of mandamus is one brought in a court of competent jurisdiction, to obtain an order of such court commanding an inferior tribunal, board, corporation, or person to do or not to do an act, the performance or omission of which the law enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station. Where discretion is left to the inferior tribunal or person, the mandamus can only compel it to act, but cannot control such discretion.

Under the code of 1851 the proceeding by mandamus was a prosecution and ran in the name of the state. It was commenced by the filing of an information under oath, and on motion presented in open court, whereupon the court granted a rule to show cause why an alternative writ should not issue or, ordered the alternative writ to issue. To this writ the defendant made return or answer upon which the issues were tried and either granted or refused the peremptory writ. Chance v. Temple, 1 Iowa, 178.

The office of a writ of mandamus is to compel the party to whom it is addressed to perform a duty which results from an office, trust or station. The State ex rel. Dox v. The County Judge, etc., 12 Id., 237, 240; Patterson v. Vail, 43 Id., 143; Larkin v. Harris, 36 Id., 98.

The district court has the power to enforce, by mandamus, the discharge of an official duty involving no exercise of discretion, by an executive officer of the state. Bryan v. Cuttell, 15 Id., 538.

The court may, by writ of mandamus, compel the auditor of state to issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for a sum due a public officer on his salary. Id.

The duty of the council of a municipal corporation to levy a tax not exceeding the maximum limit of the power of taxation, for the payment of a judgment against the corporation, upon which an execution has been issued and returned nulla bona, may be enforced by mandamus. Coy v. The City Council of Lyons, 17 Id., 1.

The proprietor of a newspaper has no such private or personal interest in the publication of the laws or the proceedings of the board of supervisors, as that he can maintain, in his own name, an action of mandamus to compel the board to order such publication in his paper. Welch v. The Board, etc., 23 Id., 199.

Where discretion is allowed to the board or officer, such discretion cannot be controlled by mandamus, though the discretion may be exercised unwisely. Clark v. The Board of Directors, etc., 24 Id., 266; Jones et al. v. Trustees, etc., 26 Id., 594.

Where the clerk of the board of supervisors issued county warrants pursuant to an order of the board, but neglected to affix the seal of the county thereto it was held that his successor in office, the county auditor, might be compelled by mandamus to supply the omission by affixing the seal. Prescott v. Gouser, 34 Id., 175.

Where the remedy in a mandamus proceeding requires more than one act, the action continues until they are all ordered by the court, and fully performed. Palmer v. Jones et al., 49 Id., 406.

Where the railway track of the defendant crossed the farm of the plaintiff between his house and the highway, and the plaintiff constructed a lane from his house to the highway, being open at the end intersecting the highway, and requested the railroad company to make an open crossing at the point where the lane intersected its track, it was held, that on a refusal to do so on the part of the railroad company it might be compelled to do so by mandamus proceedings. Boggs v. The C. B. & Q. R. Co., 54 Id., 494.

The action of mandamus will lie to compel the county treasurer, holding money collected upon tax to pay a judgment against the county, to pay the same over to the judgment creditor on demand. Brown v. Crego, 32 Id., 498.

The directors of a school district, on their refusal to levy a tax to pay a judgment against the district, may be compelled to do so by mandamus, the electors of the district having failed and refused to provide therefor, by voting the necessary tax. Section 3049 of the code applies as well to school districts as to other civil corporations. Boynton v. The District Tp. of Newton, etc., 34 Id., 510.

That the board of directors have issued an order on the treasurer of the district under section 79 of chapter 172 laws of 1862, for the amount of the judgment against the district, was held, not to operate as payment or satisfaction, or to change the rule above stated. Id.

Mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel the board of supervisors, acting as canvassers of election returns, to declare elected and issue certificates to the persons receiving the highest number of votes cast at an election. Bradford v. Wart etc., 36 Id., 291; The State ex rel. Rice v. The County Judge of Marshall Co., 7 Id., 186.

The action of mandamus will not lie to compel the officers of a county to strike from the tax books an assessment alleged to be erroneous. Meyer v. the County of Dubuque, 43 Id., 592.
Nor to compel the board of supervisors to levy a tax to pay a judgment rendered upon warrants issued for ordinary expenses and bridge purposes, when it appears that they have levied the maximum rate allowed by law for those purposes for that year. Polk v. Hubbell v. Winett, 37 Ia., 34; The Iowa R. & L. Co v. Sac County, 39 Ia., 126.

Mandamus will not lie to compel the issuance of a teacher’s certificate by the county superintendent; the superintendent being vested with a discretionary power, the court cannot control his discretion, but may compel him to act upon an application. Bailey v. Evart, 52 Ia., 111.

The electors of a school district, having determined that the school-houses of the district may at proper times be used for religious meetings and Sunday schools, the duty of the directors to open the houses for these purposes may be enforced by mandamus. Davis v. Bogert, 50 Ia., 11.

The writ of mandamus may be properly issued to compel the county treasurer to pay over to a railroad company entitled thereto a tax voted and collected. The McGregor & S. C. R. Co v. Birdsall, 50 Ia., 555.

Mandamus, and not replevin, is the proper remedy for a municipal corporation for the wrongful detention of its books and papers by a public officer after his resignation. The City of Keokuk v. Merrian, 44 Ia., 432.

A mandamus proceeding to enforce the collection of a judgment rendered in the United States circuit court is not in the nature of an original or new action in a jurisdictional sense, but auxiliary to, and in continuation of the original judgment. Ex-parte Holman, 23 Ia., 88.

Although township trustees have bought land for a cemetery, they still have a discretion as to its use, and they cannot be compelled by mandamus to devote it to that purpose, if for any reason they deem it unsuitable. Christy v. Whitmore, 67 Ia., 69.

Sec. 3374. [Issued by whom.]—The order may be issued by the district or circuit court, to any inferior tribunal, or to any corporation, officer, or person; and by the supreme court, to any district or circuit court, if necessary, and also in any other case where it is found necessary for that court to exercise its legitimate power.

See cases cited above to section 3373.

The writ of a mandamus can issue from the supreme court only when directed to the district or circuit court and in aid of the execution of its own powers and orders. Westbrook v. Wicks, 36 Ia., 383.

The action may be brought in the circuit court, as well as in the district court. Brown v. Crego, 29 Ia., 321.

Sec. 3375. [Extent of remedy by.]—The plaintiff in any action, except those brought for the recovery of specific real or personal property, may also as an auxiliary relief have an order of mandamus to compel the performance of a duty established in such action. But if such duty, the performance of which is sought to be compelled, is not one resulting from an office, trust, or station, it must be one for the breach of which a legal right to damages is already complete at the commencement of the action, and must also be a duty of which a court of equity would enforce the performance.

The circuit court has jurisdiction in mandamus proceedings, a proceeding of this character being “a civil action at law” within the meaning of the statute. Brown v. Crego, 39 Ia., 321.

An action of mandamus will lie against a road supervisor to compel him to remove a fence or other obstruction improperly placed by him on a highway. Larkin v. Harris, 36 Ia., 93.

So, also, mandamus will lie to compel the road supervisor to remove trees standing in and obstructing the highway, when he fails to perform his duty in this respect. Patterson v. Vail, 43 Ia., 142.

Sec. 3376. [When not to issue.]—An order of mandamus shall not be issued in any case where there is a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law, except as herein provided.

A party aggrieved by the action of a board of school directors having an adequate remedy by appeal to the county superintendent, and from him to the superintendent of public instruction, is not entitled to maintain an action of mandamus. Marshall v. Sloan, 35 Ia., 445.

An action of mandamus will not lie to compel the officers of a county to strike out an assessment alleged to be erroneous. The proper remedy in such case is by application to the board of equalization, from whose decision an appeal may be taken to the circuit court. Meyer v. The County of Dubuque, 43 Ia., 592.

Where the petition, in an action of mandamus, shows that the plaintiff has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law, the pleading should be assailed by demurrer and not by motion to dismiss. Id.

Where a judgment has been rendered against a municipal corporation and an individual in an action for injuries resulting from the negligence of the co-defendant, the plaintiff is not compelled to resort to the property of the latter for the satisfaction of the judgment, but may proceed by mandamus to compel the corporation to levy a tax for the payment of the judgment. That the co-defendant has property subject to execution does not afford such a remedy as will prevent proceedings by mandamus, Palmer v. Stacey, 44 Id., 340.
OF ACTIONS OF MANDAMUS.

Where it is the duty of a county treasurer to collect and pay over a tax voted in aid of a railroad, yet the company cannot enforce this duty, under chapter 48, laws of 1868, by mandamus, until it shows itself fully entitled to the tax by presenting to the treasurer an order of the president or managing director accompanied by certified estimates of the engineer, showing that an amount equal to the tax has been expended by the company within the county. Harwood v. R. Co. v. Case, 37 Id., 692.

The writ of mandamus cannot properly issue where there is any other plain, speedy and adequate remedy. Smith v. Powell, 55 Id., 215, 216.

A writ of mandamus will not issue to compel an officer to do what is not within his power to do. If he has put it out of his power to do what his duty required, he may be liable in damages to the person injured by his act, but mandamus will not lie in such case. Rice v. Walker, 44 Id., 458.

Sec. 3377. [Who entitled to benefit of.]—The order of mandamus is granted on the petition of any private party aggrieved, without the concurrence of the prosecutor for the state, or on the petition of the state by the district attorney, when the public interest is concerned, and is in the name of such private party or of the state, as the case may be in fact brought.

A debt while it remains in its original form, as a simple contract not reduced to a judgment, cannot be the basis of an action of mandamus to compel the levy of a tax to pay the same, unless it was contracted under a law or vote authorizing such proceedings to enforce payment. Coy v. The C. of L. C, 17 Iowa, 1.

Sec. 3378. [Petition: form of.]—The plaintiff in such action shall state his claim, and shall also state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for such claim, and shall also set forth that the plaintiff, if a private individual, is personally interested therein, and that he sustains and may sustain damage by the non-performance of such duty, and that performance thereof has been demanded by him, and refused or neglected, and shall pray an order of mandamus commanding the defendant to fulfill such duty.

Where the ordinary expenses of carrying on the government of a municipal corporation requiring all of the proceeds arising from a tax which is up to the full limit which the corporation is authorized by law to levy, it cannot be compelled by mandamus to apply a part of such fund to the payment of a judgment against the corporation. Coffin v. The City of Davenport, 26 Iowa, 516.

Where the plaintiff, a private person, sought by writ of mandamus to compel school directors to observe and enforce the law forbidding sectarian instruction in the public schools, it was held that the relief was properly refused, because it did not appear that plaintiff had demanded of the directors the performance of the duty sought to be enforced. Scripture v. Burns et al., 59 Id., 70.

But if it appear that the valuation and assessment of property within the corporation is purposely made too low in order to avoid the payment of its outstanding indebtedness, it will be compelled, by mandamus to make a fair assessment, and apply in payment of the judgment, of proceeds arising from the maximum tax levied thereon, such surplus as may remain after deducting the amount required for the current expenses. Id.

Sec. 3379. [Other pleadings.]—The pleadings and other proceedings in any action in which a mandamus is claimed, shall be the same in all respects as nearly as may be, and costs shall be recoverable by either party as in an ordinary action for the recovery of damages.

At the common law, a mandamus proceeding was not an action proper, nor was it a writ of right, but a prerogative writ obtained upon an information under oath, showing good cause for its issuance. Chance v. Temple, 1 Iowa, 175.

Under the code mandamus is an ordinary action at law triable as nearly as may be, like an ordinary action for the recovery of damages, and is not triable de novo in the supreme court. Dove v. The Ind. School Dist. of Keokuk, 41 Id., 689.

The writ of mandamus cannot properly be issued as preliminary or intermediate process, but only after hearing and judgment. Wright v. Connor et al., 34 Id., 240.

Sec. 3380. [Injunction may issue, when: joinder.]—When the action is brought by a private person, it may be joined with a cause of action for such an injunction as may be obtained by ordinary proceedings, or with the causes of action specified in section three thousand three hundred and seventy-five, but no other joinder, and no counter-claim shall be allowed.

The rule that a party cannot bring an action at law against a partnership, board of trustees, or other board of which he is a member, does not apply to the action of mandamus. Cooper v. Nelson, 36 Iowa, 440.

SEC. 3381. [Peremptory.]—When the plaintiff recovers judgment, the court may include therein a peremptory order of mandamus, directed to the defendant, commanding him forthwith to perform the duty to be enforced, together with a money judgment for damages and costs, upon which an ordinary execution may issue.

SEC. 3382. [Same: no return but compliance allowed.]—The order shall simply command the performance of the duty, shall be directed to the party and not the sheriff, and may be issued in term or vacation, and returnable forthwith, and no return except that of compliance shall be allowed; but time to return it may, upon sufficient grounds, be allowed by the court or judge, either with or without terms.

SEC. 3383. [Acts performed by another at defendant's costs.]—The court may, upon application of the plaintiff, besides, or instead of proceeding against the defendant by attachment, direct that the act required to be done, may be done, by the plaintiff or some other person appointed by the court at the expense of the defendant, and upon the act being done, the amount of such expense may be ascertained by the court, or by a reference appointed by the court, as the court or judge may order, and the court may render judgment for the amount of such expenses and costs, and enforce payment thereof by execution.

SEC. 3384. [Temporary orders.]—During the pendency of the action, the court, or judge in vacation, may make temporary orders for preventing damage or injury to the plaintiff until the case is decided.

SEC. 3385. [Security.]—When the state is a party, it may appeal without security.

CHAPTER 9.

SECTION 3386. [When and for what causes obtained.]—An injunction may be obtained as an independent remedy in the action by equitable proceedings, in all cases where such relief would have been granted in equity previous to the adoption of this code; and in all cases of breach of contract or other injury, where the party injured is entitled to maintain, and has brought an action by ordinary proceedings, he may, in the same cause, pray and have a writ of injunction against the repetition or continuance of such breach of contract or other injury, or the committal of any breach of contract or injury of a like kind, arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right, and he may also, in the same action, include a claim for damages or other redress.

A creditor is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the sale of real property by his debtor before he has recovered a judgment upon his demand, which is a lien upon such property. Buchanan v. Marsh, 17 Iowa, 494.

The right to a public office or franchise cannot be determined in an independent action for an injunction. Cochran v. McLeary, 22 Id., 75.

In an action for a breach of contract, the plaintiff may, in the same proceeding, under this section, have an injunction against the continuance of the breach, which injuriously affects his property or right. Ewell v. Greenwood, 26 Id., 377; Berger & Yeiser v. Armstrong, 41 Id., 447.

The liberal provisions of our code in relation to the subjects of amendments are, so far as reasonable and proper, to be applied to injunction suits as well as others. Des Moines Nav. & R. Co. v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 487.
An injunction restraining a public officer from executing conveyances from the state to individuals who have purchased lands from it, but who are not made parties to the proceeding, will not be continued when it is alleged in the petition upon which the writ is issued, that the plaintiff has the full and complete title to the land, and it appears that there is no obstacle in the way of the plaintiff bringing suits against the individuals claiming adversely, and thus have the question of title settled, and the injunction has been in force for several years and no such actions have been commenced. Id.

In an action for damages for breach of a contract that the defendant would not engage, in the same town, in a certain business purchased of him by the plaintiff, in order to entitle the plaintiff to an injunction, the petition should allege a continuance and present engagement in the business by the plaintiff. Berger v. Yeo, 41 Id., 417.

An injunction may, in a proper case made, be granted a stay of proceedings at law, either before or after judgment. Hamson v. Wore, 4 Id., 12; Dunham v. Collier, 1 G. Greene, 54; Smith v. Short, 11 Iowa, 523; Gevins v. Campbell, 20 Id., 79; Crawford v. Patine, 10 Id., 112; Way v. Lamb, 15 Id., 40; Kreilbbaum v. Bridges, 1 Id., 1; Butch v. Lash, 4 Id., 215; Siroker v. Field, 9 Id., 366; Hyatt v. The City of Keokuk, 4 Id., 190; The Key City G. L. & C. Co. v. Manwell, 19 Id., 305; Litchfield v. Polk County, 18 Id., 70; Humphrey v. Darlington, 15 Id., 297; Targett v. Woods, 20 Id., 236; Reno v. Teagarden, 24 Id., 144; Crocker v. Robertson, 8 Id., 404; Town of Anamosa v. Wurzacker, 31 Id., 25; Chicago & S. W. R. Co v. Swimney, 38 Id., 182; Brigham v. Ward, 44 Id., 677.

An injunction will sometimes be granted to restrain the making and negotiation of negotiable paper. Stokes v. Scott County, 10 Id., 163; Hull v. Ayralls v. The County of Marshall, 12 Id., 143.

The writ may also be granted to suppress the continuance of a public or private nuisance. Horton v. Hoyt, 10 Id., 496; Connelly v. Griswold, 7 Id., 416; Iowa College v. City of Davenport, 1 Id., 213; Oates & Patchen v. City of Davenport, 9 Id., 227; McMahon v. City of Council Bluffs, 12 Id., 298; Musser v. Hershey, 42 Id., 326; Ewell v. Greenwood, 20 Id., 377; Buchanan v. Harvey, 33 Id., 205.

It is not error to overrule a motion to dissolve an injunction for defects in the petition upon which it was granted, when an amended petition has been filed curing such defects and taking the place of the original without changing the cause of action. Sweatt v. Fariile, 23 Id., 321.

The rule is well settled in Iowa that a court of equity will restrain by injunction the collection of an illegal tax. Zorger v. The Tp. of Rapidas et al., 36 Id., 175; Rood v. Board of Supervisors, etc., 39 Id., 444. See also, Spencer v. Wheaton, 14 Id., 38; Langworthy v. City of Dubuque, 13 Id., 86; Litchfield v. Polk County, 15 Id., 70; Omsstead v. Board of Supervisors of Henry County, 24 Id., 33; Williams v. Peinny, 25 Id., 436; Cattell v. Lowrey et al., 45 Id., 478.

But equity will not enjoin the collection of taxes for mere irregularities in the assessment. Patterson v. Baumer, 45 Id., 477; The C. R. & M. R. R. Co. et al. v. Carroll County, 41 Id., 138; Conway v. Youngin, 28 Id., 235; The Iowa R. L. Co. v. Carroll County, 39 Id., 151; The Same v. Scott County, 1 Id., 24; The S. C. & St. Paul R. Co. v. The County of Osceola et al., 43 Id., 188.

A court of equity has jurisdiction of an action to enjoin repealed and continuing acts of trespass, where the party committing the same is insolvent. Gibbs v. McPadden, 39 Id., 371.

A party may have an incorporeal interest in a street such as will entitle him to an injunction to restrain a diversion of it to objects and uses inconsistent with the purposes for which it was granted to the city. Ingraham, Kennedy & Day v. The C. D. & M. R. Co., 38 Id., 689.

One who is not injured by the fencing up of a street so that it cannot be used, cannot restrain the inclosure thereof by injunction. Price v. McCoy, 40 Id., 53.

After a railroad company has effected the condemnation of land for a right of way, it will be restrained by injunction from entering upon the land condemned until payment of the damages awarded. Richards v. The D. V. R. Co., 18 Id., 299; Henry v. The D. & P. R. Co., 19 Id., 540; Hibbs v. The Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 39 Id., 340.

Where a foreign railroad corporation is using by suffrage the line of a domestic corporation, a land owner is entitled to an injunction restraining it from the use of that portion of the line running through his land until compensation shall be made for the right of way. Holbert v. The St. L. C. & N. W. R. Co., 45 Id., 23.

A preliminary injunction will not be dissolved on the bare allegations of an answer, but proof must be introduced in support thereof. Mills et al. v. Hamilton, 49 Id., 105.

In an action asking damages for a trespass, the plaintiff may also pray for an injunction restraining a repetition of the trespass, and the fact that he has erroneously entitled his action an equitable one will not defeat his right to ask for the injunction, nor is it essential in such case, to allege in the petition that the injury threatened will be irreparable. Id.

While courts of equity will, under certain circumstances, interfere by injunction to prevent repeated trespasses upon real property, yet in such case it must be made to appear that the injury would be irreparable, or that adequate compensation could not be obtained therefor. The City of Council Bluffs v. Stewart, 51 Id., 355.

A citizen and resident of the county, who, as such, is interested in the public welfare, shows such an interest as entitles him to present a petition for, and obtain an injunction to, restrain a public officer from the commission of an act which would be a public wrong. Collins v. Ripley, 8 Id., 139.

Where defendant sold to plaintiff his business and the good will of the same, and entered into bond in the penalty of $100, not to engage in the same business at the same place, held that the one hundred dollars was in the nature of stipulated damages for breach of the bond, that the whole penalty was incurred by a single breach; that plaintiff’s remedy was exhausted on receiving that amount, and that he was not entitled to an injunction under this section to restrain a continuation of the breach of the contract, notwithstanding defendant was insolvent, so that the penalty of the bond could not be collected of him. Stefford v. Shortread, 62 Iowa, 524.

Our statutes enlarge the powers of courts of law, so that in the classes of cases mentioned they may grant relief for injuries already committed, and by injunction restrain a continued commission of the same wrongs by the same parties. It is sufficient for the applicant for the writ to substantially comply with the requirements of the statute, without bringing himself within the rules and usage of courts of chancery. Hall v. Croyse et al., 14 Id., 457. But the statute does not confer upon the law courts, either general or special, chancery jurisdiction, or power to grant remedies beyond the issuing and enforcing an injunction against the repetition of breaches of contract or other injuries which constitute the foundation of actions pending therein. Richmond v. The D. & S. C. R. Co. et al., 33 Id., 422.

In an action for damages for a breach of contract, the party injured may also pray for an injunction restraining a repetition or continuance of the breach. Berger et al. v. Armstrong, 41 Id., 457. See further: Brandreth et al. v. Harrison County et al., 50 Id., 104; Rice v. Smith, 9 Id., 570; Mocklot v. The City of Davenport, 17 Id., 379.

SECTION 3387. [Same.]*—In any of the cases mentioned in the preceding section, the injunction may either be a part of the judgment rendered in the action, or it may, if proper grounds therefor are shown, be granted by order at any stage of the case before judgment, and shall then be known as a temporary injunction.

SECTION 3388. [Same.]*—Where it appears by the petition therefor, which must be supported by affidavit, that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded, and such relief, or any part thereof, consists in restraining the commission or continuance of some act which would produce great or irreparable injury to the plaintiff; or where, during litigation, it appears that defendant is doing, or threatens, or is about to do, or is procuring, or suffering to be done, some act in violation of the plaintiff’s rights respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual, a temporary injunction may be granted to restrain such act. It may also be granted in any case where it is specially authorized by statute.

Where a petition is sworn to, and the affidavit is to the effect that the contents thereof are true, as the party making the affidavit believes, is sufficient. When the petition sets forth the facts upon which the relief is demanded, an affidavit of their truth is all that is required. Kelley v. Bridge, 83 Iowa, 332, 335.

Where a defendant in his answer in an injunction suit alleged that he did not desire or intend to do the act enjoined, held that in an action on an injunction bond, he could not recover the expense of procuring a dissolution of the injunction. Bank of Monroe v. Gifford et al., 70 Id., 550.

Sec. 3389. [By whom granted.]—A temporary injunction may be granted:

1. By the court or judge thereof in which the action is pending or is to be brought;

2. By any judge of the district or circuit court of such district;

3. By any judge of the supreme or a judge of any other district or circuit court.

But in cases where an action is pending, and it is applied for to affect the subject matter of such action, it can only be granted by the court or judge thereof, in which such action is pending. Nor shall it be granted by any judge mentioned in the second subdivision hereof, unless it satisfactorily appears by affidavit that the court or judge thereof in which the action is brought, cannot, for want of time, sickness, or other disability, hear the same, or that the residence of the judge is inconvenient, or that it is for some sufficient reason impracticable to make the application to him. Nor shall it be granted by any judge mentioned in the third subdivision hereof, unless it be made satisfactorily to appear to such judge, by affidavit, that the application therefor cannot, for some sufficient reason, be made to either of the courts or judges mentioned in the first or second subdivision of this section.
In an action by attachment in the circuit court upon a note not yet due, the attachment is the subject matter of action in such a sense that an injunction will not be granted by the district court restraining the defendant from committing waste of the property attached. Cooney v. Morey, 43 Iowa, 292.

A judge has authority to grant an injunction in vacation under sections 3389, 3394 and the word vacation as used means when the court is not in actual session, and is not to be restricted to the time between terms. Thomson v. Benepe et al., 67 Id., 79.

Sec. 3390. [Notice: when required.]—An injunction shall not be granted against a defendant who has answered, unless he has had notice of the application.

Sec. 3391. [Same.]—An injunction to stop the general and ordinary business of a corporation, or the operations of a railway, or of a municipal corporation, or the erection of any building or other work, or the board of supervisors of any county, or to restrain a nuisance, can only be granted upon reasonable notice of the time and place of the application to the party to be enjoined.

The removal of a school house by a school district township taken from another district township is not the general and ordinary business of a district township, and an injunction restraining such removal may be granted without notice of the time and place of application therefor. Dist. Tp. of Lodomillo v. Dist. Tp. of Cass, 54 Iowa, 115, 117.

The question as to who is legally employed to teach a school, and who is authorized to make such employment, cannot properly be determined in an action to restrain by injunction one who assumes to act as sub-director, or a teacher employed by him. The Dist. Tp., etc., v. Barrett, 47 Id., 119.

An injunction to restrain a nuisance can only be granted after notice to the party to be enjoined, and the error in granting an injunction in such case without notice is not waived by an appearance and motion to dissolve. Hughes v. Eckerson, 55 Id., 641.

The “operations of a railway,” referred to in this section, means the operation of a constructed railway, and not the operations of a railway company in building or constructing a railway. Johnston v. The C., M. & St. P. R. Co., 58 Id., 597.

Sec. 3392. No injunction shall be granted by a judge, after the application therefor has been overruled by the court; nor by a court or judge when it has been refused by the court or judge thereof in which the action is brought. A judge refusing an injunction, shall, if requested by either party, give him a certificate thereof.

Sec. 3393. [Motion to dissolve.]—The defendant may move to dissolve the injunction, either before or after the filing of the answer.

An order dissolving an injunction will not operate as a dismissal of the action in which it was issued and it is error for the court to so order. Massie v. Mann, 17 Iowa, 131; Watters v. Frederick, 11 Id., 181; Russell v. Wilson, 57 Id., 377; Sennett v. Moles, 38 Id., 25.

A temporary injunction granted by a judge in vacation is not dissolved at the next term of court by the mere failure to procure an order making it permanent. Curtis v. Crane, 38 Id., 498. If the motion to dissolve is made after answer filed, and the answer plainly and fully, without evasion, denies in substance all the facts relied on in the petition, the injunction will be dissolved, unless there are circumstances making the case an exception, as that irreparable mischief will result from the dissolution. Taylor v. Dickinson, 15 Id., 483; Stevens v. Myers, 11 Id., 183; Anderson v. Reed, 1d., 177; Shricker v. Field, 9 Id., 396; Russell v. Wilson, 31 Id., 377.

It is the right of the defendant to file his motion to dissolve, either before or after answering and to have the same disposed of as soon as practicable thereafter. Taylor v. Dickinson, 15 Id., 483.

Where the answer of the defendant admits the facts stated in the petition as grounds for the injunction, but seeks to avoid their force and effects by pleading affirmative matter, the injunction should not be dissolved without proof of the averments of the answer. In such case the burden rests on the defendant. Judd v. Hutch, 31 Id., 401; Bennett v. Hanchett, 49 Id., 71.

Where the equity of a petition for injunction is admitted or not denied, and the answer sets up new matter in avoidance, or contains matter which amounts to a defense, such answer is equivalent to a denial of the plaintiff's equities, and the injunction should not be dissolved, but continued to a final hearing. Fargo & Co. v. Ames, 45 Id., 494; Shricker v. Field, 9 Id., 396.

Sec. 3394. [Issued by clerk.]—If the order is made by the court the clerk shall make an entry thereof in the court record and issue the order accordingly. If made in vacation, the judge must indorse said order upon the petition.

This section, directing the judge to indorse his order for an injunction, made in vacation, on the petition, is directory merely, and writing the order on a separate piece of paper will not vitiate the injunction. Jordan v. Circuit Court of Wapello County, 69 Iowa, 177.
SEC. 3395. [Bond.]—In the cases contemplated in the preceding sections, the order of allowance must direct the injunction to issue only after the filing of a bond in the office of the clerk of the proper court, in a penalty to be therein fixed, with sureties to be approved by such clerk, and conditioned for the payment of all damages which may be adjudged against petitioner by reason of such injunction. An injunction bond is to secure such damages as may be adjudged against the obligors in an action brought to determine whether any damages have been sustained—a question which cannot be determined in the injunction cause; and the value of the services of an attorney employed in procuring a dissolution of the injunction is an element of such damages, of which proper evidence should be admitted. Fountain v. Weet et al., 63 Iowa, 380.

SEC. 3396. [Condition of bond when to restrain judgment.]—When proceedings in a civil action, or on a judgment or final order, are sought to be enjoined, suit must be brought in the county and court in which such action is pending, or the judgment or order was obtained. The bond must also in that case be further conditioned to pay such judgment, or comply with such final order if the injunction is not made perpetual, or to pay any judgment that may be ultimately recovered against the party obtaining the injunction on the cause of action enjoined.

The district court of a county in which an execution issued from the supreme court is levied on real property, has jurisdiction to enjoin the sale thereunder, upon a proper showing being made. Davis v. Bonar et al., 15 Iowa, 171.

To restrain a special execution the remedy by injunction must be pursued in the county and court where the judgment was rendered upon which the special execution issued. Lockwood v. Kitteringham, 42 Id., 257.

The remedy is not thus limited when it is sought to restrain a sale under a general execution, of property alleged to belong, not to the judgment debtor, but to a third person, who seeks the injunction. Id.

The fact that the judgment was rendered in a county whose court had no jurisdiction, will not vary the rule that, to restrain the enforcement of a judgment by execution, the remedy must be sought in the county and court where the judgment was rendered on which the execution issued. Anderson v. Hall, 48 Id., 346.

An action to set aside a judgment and restrain the collection thereof, on the ground that it had been rendered without jurisdiction, must be brought in the county and court in which the judgment was rendered. Gratton v. Matteson, 51 Id., 622.

Where it is sought to restrain the collection of a judgment, the injunction bond must be for double the amount of the judgment; but this rule does not apply where it is sought to restrain the sale of certain specific property under the execution issued on the judgment. Hardin v. White, 63 Id., 633.

The district court has jurisdiction of an action to set aside an execution sale of exempt property though the execution issued from the circuit court upon a transcript of judgment of a justice of the peace. Visek et al. v. Doolittle et al., 63 Iowa, 602.

An action for damages being a mere personal action should be brought in the county of defendant’s residence, and an injunction in aid thereof, conceding it to have been properly allowed, did not necessitate the bringing of the action in the county in which (Scott) the action was brought because it was not based upon any alleged defect or invalidity of the judgment, but on facts subsequently arising, and to such case this section does not apply. Baker v. Ryan, 67 Id., 708.

SEC. 3397. [Penalty.]—The penalty of the bond must be fixed by the court or judge who makes the order, and must be doubly sufficient to cover any probable amount of liability to be thereby incurred.

SEC. 3398. [Defendant to show cause.]—The court or judge before granting the writ, may, if deemed advisable, allow the defendant an opportunity to show cause why such order should not be granted.

See Curtis v. Crane, 33 Iowa, 460.

VACATION OF.

SEC. 3399. [Application for: to whom made.]—If the order is granted without allowing the defendant to show cause, he may, at any time before the next term of the court, apply to the judge who made the order to vacate or modify the same or the application may be made to the judge of the court in which the action is pending.
Under this section, where an injunction has been allowed without an opportunity to defendant to show cause against it, defendant may, upon his answer alone, move the judge for its vacation; and in such case the plaintiff may support his petition by affidavits. The Palo Alto B. & I. Co. v. Mahar et al., 65 Iowa, 74.

SEC. 3400. [Notice of application.]—Such application must be with notice to the plaintiff, and may rest upon the ground that the order was improperly granted, or it may be founded on the answer of defendants and affidavits. In the latter case the plaintiff may fortify his application by counter affidavits, and have reasonable time therefor.

SEC. 3401. [Dissolution.]—The judge may thereupon decide the matter at once, unless some good cause for delay is shown. But the vacation of the order shall not prevent the cause from proceeding if anything be left to proceed upon.

SEC. 3402. [Only one motion.]—Only one motion to dissolve or modify an injunction upon the whole case shall be allowed.

While under this section only one motion to dissolve an injunction may be made in a case, yet where the circuit judge who granted the injunction, overruled a motion to dissolve, with leave to renew and present the same to the district court, in which the main cause was pending since renewal, was not another motion in contemplation.

While under this section only one motion to dissolve an injunction may be made in a case, yet where the circuit judge who granted the injunction overruled a motion to dissolve, with leave to renew and present the same to the district court, in which the main cause was pending since renewal, was not another motion in contemplation.

VIOLATION OF.

SEC. 3403. [Disobedience of: how punished.]—Any judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, being furnished with an authenticated copy of the injunction, and also with satisfactory proof that such injunction has been violated, shall issue his precept to the sheriff of the county where the violation of the injunction occurred, or to any other sheriff, naming him, more convenient to all parties concerned, directing him to attach said defendant, and bring him forthwith before the same or some other judge, at a place to be stated in said precept.

The basis of a precept for violating an injunction is an authenticated copy of the injunction and satisfactory proof that it has been violated, and this fact may be established by affidavits. The State v. Myers, 44 Iowa, 580.

SEC. 4404. [Contempt purged.]—If, when thus produced, he files his affidavit denying or sufficiently excusing the contempt charged, he shall be released, and the affidavit shall be filed with the clerk of the court for preservation.

SEC. 3405. [Bond required.]—But if he fails to do so, the judge may require him to give bond, with surety, for his appearance at the next term of the court, and also for his future obedience to the injunction, which bond shall be filed with the clerk.

SEC. 3406. [Committed to jail.]—If he fails to give such security, he may be committed to the jail of the county where the proceedings are pending until the next term of the court.

SEC 3407. [Contempt punished.]—If the security be given, the court at the next term shall act upon the case and punish the contempt in the usual mode.
CHAPTER 10.

OF SUBMITTING CONTROVERSIES WITHOUT ACTION OR IN ACTION.

SECTION 3408. [Agreed statement of facts.]—Parties to a question in difference which might be the subject of a civil action, may, without action, present an agreed statement of the facts thereof to any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter.

SEC. 3409. [Controversy real.]—It must be shown by affidavit that the controversy is real, and that the proceeding is in good faith to determine the rights of the parties thereto.

The courts of Iowa have no jurisdiction to entertain a cause presented without action upon an agreed statement of facts unless it is shown by affidavit that the controversy is real, and that the proceeding is in good faith to determine the rights of the parties thereto. Keeline v. The City of Council Bluffs, 62 Iowa, 450.

SEC. 3410. [Judgment.]—The court shall thereupon hear and determine the case, and render judgment thereon as if an action were pending.

SEC. 3411. [Record.]—The statement, the submission and the judgment, shall constitute the record.

SEC. 3412. [How enforced.]—The judgment shall be with costs, and it may be enforced, and shall be subject to review, in the same manner as if it had been rendered in an action, unless otherwise provided for in the submission.

SEC. 3413. [Pending cause.]—The same may be also done at any time before trial in any action then pending, subject to the same requirements and attended by the same results as in a case without action, and such submission of a stated case shall be an abandonment by both parties of all pleadings filed in such cause, and the cause shall stand on the agreed case alone, which must provide also for any lien had by any attachment, and for any property in the custody of the law, else such lien and such legal custody shall be held waived.

SEC. 3414. [Agreement when facts are found: judgment accordingly.] The parties may, if they think fit, enter into an agreement in writing, that upon the judgment of the court being given in the affirmative or negative of the questions of law raised by such special case, particular property therein described, or a sum of money fixed by the parties, or to be ascertained by the court, or in such manner as the court may direct, shall be delivered to and vested in one of the parties by the other, or in case of money, shall be paid by one of such parties to the other of them, either with or without costs of the action, and the judgment of the court may be entered for the transfer and delivery of such property, or for such sum as shall be so agreed or ascertained, with or without costs, as the case may be.

SEC. 3415. [Costs.]—In case no agreement shall be entered into as to the costs of such action, the same shall follow the event, and be recovered by the successful party.
SECTION 3416. [What may be.]—All controversies which might be the subject of civil action, may be submitted to the decision of one or more arbitrators, as hereafter provided.

At common law parties may by parol submit any matters in controversy between them to arbitration; and this right has not been taken away by this chapter of the code. Conger v. Dean, 3 Iowa, 463.

Where parties seek the aid of the courts for judgment upon an award of arbitrators, the submission to arbitrators must be in the manner required by the statute. Id.

But if parties do not design to ask such aid of the courts, they may, without complying with the regulations of the statute, make such a submission as will be binding upon them. Id.

The remedy upon an award of arbitrators, where the submission has not been in conformity with the statute, is by action thereon. Id.

The term "civil action," used in the statute, includes every kind of action, legal and equitable, except those which come under the criminal jurisdiction of the courts; and matters of purely equitable cognizance may be submitted to arbitration under the statute. Thomlinson v. Hammond, 8 Id., 40.

Where parties to a controversy enter into an agreement to submit a matter to arbitrators, whose award shall be filed in the office of a justice of the peace who shall render judgment thereon as upon the verdict of a jury, the parties thereby submit themselves to the jurisdiction of the justice, and the judgment on the award for an amount within the jurisdiction of the justice is valid and binding. Van Horn v. Bellar, 20 Id., 255.

A submission to arbitrators by parties residing in the county, provided that if the award did not exceed $500, judgment should be entered thereon by a justice of the peace named; that if the amount should exceed the jurisdiction of a justice "judgment shall be entered in any court having jurisdiction of the same;" Held, that it was competent for the district court of the county to render judgment on the award if it exceeded the sum of four hundred dollars. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

An action may be maintained upon an award and to foreclose a mortgage, where the mortgage had been made to indemnify the grantee of certain real property for breach of warranty, and after such breach the matter had been submitted to a common law arbitration, and an award made. McKinnis v. Freeman, 38 Id., 364.

A submission to arbitration at common law is always construed most liberally; and where parties submit their "business pertaining to a trade in land," to which the arbitrators confined their deliberations, embracing all the points involved in the controversy, it was held sufficiently certain. Id.

In the absence of a showing of fraud or partiality, an award in a common law arbitration will be sustained, even if the relief granted lie outside of the local rights of the parties. Id.

Where parties have submitted their controversy to arbitration, the one who seeks to set aside the award, on the ground of mistake, must not only clearly establish the mistake, and that he was prejudiced thereby, but must also show that if the mistake had not occurred the award would have been different. Garban v. Millard, 50 Id., 554.

Sect. 3417. [How done.]—The parties themselves, or those persons who might lawfully have controlled a civil action in their behalf for the same subject matter, must sign and acknowledge a written agreement, specifying particularly what demands are to be submitted, the names of the arbitrators and court by which the judgment on their award is to be rendered.

In whatever manner a controversy is to be settled, the subject matter of it must be ascertained and made definite. The only exception to this rule is, where parties submit to arbitrators all matters in controversy between them, which will embrace every particular matter. Woodward v. Atwater, 3 Iowa, 91.

Where the parties to an action pending in court, submit the matters involved therein to arbitrators, by agreement, and without any order of court, the agreement of submission must be acknowledged as required by this section. Fink v. Fink, 8 Id., 313.

If the submission is not acknowledged, the award cannot be received and adopted by the court as one made under the statute; but it may still be good at common law, and an action maintained thereon, as upon any other agreement. Id.

The same degree of particularity is not required in the acknowledgment of the execution of a submission to arbitrators as in the acknowledgment of the execution of a deed of conveyance. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.
Where matters in controversy are submitted to arbitrators, all of the essential requirements of the statute must be complied with in order to authorize the court to act upon the award. Love v. Burns, 35 Iowa, 150.

Where the agreement of submission fails to provide for rendering judgment on the award, the court has no power to render such judgment, or to reject the award and recommite the matter to the arbitrators. Id.

It is necessary to name the arbitrators in the agreement of submission, if the parties intend to ask judgment on the award under the statute. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Iowa, 111.

This section of the code, requiring an agreement to arbitrate to be in writing and signed and acknowledged by the parties does not apply to suits already commenced. The City of Marion v. Granby et al., 63 Iowa, 142.

If parties design to ask the aid of the courts for judgment upon an award of arbitrators, the agreement to submit to arbitrators must specify the court in which the judgment is to be rendered, and conform to the requirements of the statute in other respects. Foust v. Hastings, 66 Iowa, 522.

SEC. 3418. [What submitted.]-The submission may be of some particular matters or demands, or of all demands which the one party has against the other, or of all mutual demands on both sides.

SEC. 3419. [Of action pending.]-A submission to arbitration of the subject matter of a suit, may also be made by an order of court, upon agreement of parties after suit is commenced.

Parties to an action may, by agreement, and without any order of the court, submit to arbitration any and all matters involved in any action then pending between them. Higgins v. Kennedy, 20 Iowa, 474.

A proceeding begun in court to condemn land for the extension of a city street is a "suit" within the meaning of section 3419, and may be submitted to arbitration by order of the court upon the agreement of the parties. The City of Marion v. Granby et al., 63 Iowa, 142.

SEC. 3420. [Rules.]-All rules prescribed by law in cases of referees, are applicable to arbitrators except as herein otherwise expressed, or except as otherwise agreed upon by the parties.

The statute empowers the parties to agree upon the rules that shall govern an arbitration. Thompson v. Blanchard, 2 Iowa, 43, 47.

Arbitrators are not required, like referees, to return a separate finding of facts and their conclusions of law based thereon. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Iowa, 111.

SEC. 3421. [Revocation.]-Neither party shall have the power to revoke the submission without the consent of the other.

SEC. 3422. [Neglect to appear.]-If either party neglect to appear before the arbitrators after due notice, except in case of sickness, they may, nevertheless, proceed to hear and determine the cause upon the evidence which is produced before them.

SEC. 3423. [Award.]-If the time within which the award is to be made is fixed in the submission, no award made after that time shall have any legal effect, unless made upon a recommittal of the matter by the court to which it is reported.

SEC. 3424. [Same.]-If the time of filing the award is not fixed in the submission, it must be filed within one year from the time such submission is signed and acknowledged, unless by mutual consent the time is prolonged.

SEC. 3425. [Same.]-The award must be in writing, and shall be delivered by one of the arbitrators to the court designated in the agreement, or it may be enclosed and sealed by them and transmitted to the court, and not opened until the court so orders.

The award must be in writing and filed in the court named in the agreement of submission. Love v. Burns, 35 Iowa, 150, 153.

The arbitrators may deliver their award to the clerk personally in vacation. Id.
HEARING IN COURT.

Sec. 3426. [Hearing in court.]—The cause shall be entered on the docket of the court at the term to which the award is returned, and shall be called up and acted upon in its order. But the court may require actual notice to be given to either party, when it appears necessary and proper, before proceeding to act on the award.

Sec. 3427. [Rejection: re-hearing.]—The award may be rejected by the court for any legal and sufficient reasons, or it may be recommitted for a rehearing to the same arbitrators, or any others agreed upon by the parties.

An award can be set aside for fraud, mistake, misconduct or partiality of the arbitrators. Sullivan v. Frink & Co., 3 Iowa, 66.

Where the action of the arbitrators, prejudiced, or had a strong tendency to prejudice, the rights of one of the parties, even though there was no wrong intention, the award should be set aside. Id.

The report of arbitrators is entitled to, at least, the same consideration as the verdict of a jury. It will require something more than the mere opinion of the party complaining, to overthrow the finding of arbitrators. If there is error or mistake in their finding, it must be made apparent. Dunn v. Starkweather, 6 Id., 406.

This section does not confer upon the court the right to reject or recommit the award at mere discretion. Per Day, in Brown v. Harper, 54 Id., 549.

An appeal does not lie from a judgment of a justice of the peace on an award of arbitrators. The action of the justice, in refusing to set aside the award, or to recommit the cause to the arbitrators, may be reviewed upon writ of error from the circuit court; but no trial of the cause upon its merits can be had after the return of the award. White v. Culver, 25 Id., 30.

A justice of the peace may render judgment on an award of arbitrators under an agreement of parties, when the amount does not exceed his jurisdiction to render judgments by consent. Id.

An award of arbitrators will not be set aside because it was not "inclosed and sealed and transmitted to the court," when the record shows that it was placed in the hands of the clerk by one of the arbitrators. Higgins v. Kennedy, 20 Id., 474.

An award of arbitrators, who by the terms of submission are empowered and required to determine all questions at issue, may be set aside if not final and conclusive of the rights of the parties. It is objectionable for that reason. The M. & M. B. Co. v. The S. C. & St. P. R. Co. et al., 49 Id., 604.

Where a party to an award of arbitrators seeks to have it set aside on the ground of mistake, he must not only clearly establish the alleged mistake, but must also show that if the mistake had not occurred the award would have been different and more favorable to him. Gorham v. Millard et al., 50 Id., 554.

In an action upon an award of arbitrators, the defendant may show, by way of defense, matters submitted to the arbitrators upon which they did not pass in making their award. Sharp & O'Neal v. Woodbury, 18 Id., 196.

While an arbitrator is protected from civil liability for his acts as such, the fact that his willful misconduct rendered the award invalid and unavailing to the parties, may be shown by them to defeat a recovery in an action to recover for his services as arbitrator. Bever v. Brown et al., 56 Id., 565.

Sec. 3428. [Force and effect of award.]—When the award has been adopted, it shall be filed and entered on the records, and shall have the same force and effect as the verdict of a jury. Judgment may be entered and execution issued accordingly.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction to render judgment upon an award returned to him for that purpose, pursuant to the agreement of the parties to the arbitration, when the amount of the award does not exceed the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace to render judgments by consent. White v. Culver, 25 Iowa, 195.

Sec. 3429. [Appeal.]—When an appeal is brought on such judgment, copies of the submission and award, together with all affidavits, shall be returned to the supreme court.

Sec. 3430. [Costs.]—If there is no provision in the submission respecting costs the arbitrators may award them in their discretion.
Where a submission to arbitration provided that, "said arbitrators to be governed by the laws in and of Iowa, and said award of said arbitrators to be a full settlement of the cause of replevin, now agreed to be referred to their arbitrament and award"; and where the arbitrators made a report to the district court, finding in favor of the plaintiff as to the property in controversy, and awarding that defendant pay all costs; and where in the district court it was ordered, without any action against the action of the arbitrators, that the award be recommitted to the arbitrators, "to determine the question of costs according to the broad principles of right and justice," and thereupon the arbitrators made a return awarding one-half the costs against the plaintiff and one-half against one of the defendants, and releasing the other from all costs, it was held, that the order recommitting the award to the arbitrators to reconsider as to the question of costs, was erroneous. Batliff v. Mann et al., 5 Iowa, 423.

SEC. 3431. [Rights saved.]—Nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect in any manner the control of the court over the parties, the arbitrators, or their award; nor to impair or affect any action upon an award, or upon any bond or other engagement to abide an award.

Tribunals of Voluntary Arbitration.

An Act to authorize the creation and to provide for the operation of tribunals of voluntary arbitration to adjust industrial disputes between employers and employed.

Section 1. [District judge have power to establish arbitration tribunals.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the district court of each county, or a judge thereof in vacation, shall have the power, and upon the presentation of a petition, or of the agreement hereinafter named, it shall be the duty of said court, or a judge thereof in vacation, to issue in the form hereinafter named, a license or authority for the establishment within and for each county of tribunals for voluntary arbitration and settlement of disputes between employers and employed in the manufacturing, mechanical, or mining industries.

sec. 2. [Petition or agreement: signed by twenty persons.]—The said petition or agreement shall be substantially in the form hereinafter given, and the petition shall be signed by at least twenty persons employed as workmen, and by four or more separate firms, individuals, or corporations within the county, or by at least four employers, each of whom shall employ at least five workmen, or by the representative of a firm, corporation or individual employing not less than twenty men in their trade or industry; provided, that at the time the petition is presented, the judge before whom said petition is presented, may, upon motion require testimony to be taken as to the representative character of said petitioners, and if it appears that said petitioners do not represent the will of a majority, or at least one-half of each party to the dispute, the license for the establishment of said tribunal may be denied, or may make such other order in this behalf as to him shall seem fair to both sides.

sec. 3. [License to issue: when.]—If the said petition shall be signed by the requisite number of both employers and workmen, and be in proper form and contain the names of the persons to compose the tribunal, being an equal number of employers and workmen, the judge shall forthwith cause to be issued a license substantially in the form hereinafter given, authorizing the existence of such tribunal and fixing the time and place of the first meeting thereof, and an entry of the license so granted shall be made upon the journal of the district court of the county in which the petition originated.

sec. 4. [To continue one year: jurisdiction.]—Said tribunal shall continue in existence for one year from date of the license creating it, and may take juris-dictation of any dispute between employers and workmen in any mechanical, manufacturing, or mining industry, or business who shall have petitioned for the tribunal, or have been represented in the petition therefor, or who may submit their disputes in writing to such tribunal for decisions. Vacancies occurring in the membership of the tribunal shall be filled by the judge or court that licensed said tribunal, from three names, presented by the members of the tribunal remaining in that class, in which the vacancies occur. The removal of any member to an adjoining county, shall not cause a vacancy in either the tribunal or post of umpire. Disputes occurring in one county may be referred to a tribunal already existing in an adjoining county. The place of umpire in any of said tribunals and vacancies occurring in such place, shall only be filled by the mutual choice of the whole of the representatives, of both employers and workmen constituting the tribunal, immediately upon the organization of the same, and the umpire shall be called upon to act after disagreement is manifested in the tribunal by failure during three meetings held and full discussion had. His award shall be final and conclusive upon such matters only as are submitted to him in writing and signed by the whole of the members of the tribunal, or by parties submitting the same.

Sec. 5. [Number of members of tribunal.]—The said tribunal shall consist of not less than two employers or their representatives, and two workmen or their representatives. The exact number which shall in each case constitute the tribunal, shall be inserted in the petition or agreement, and they shall be named in the license issued. The said tribunal, when convened shall be organized by the selection of one of their members as chairman and one as secretary, who shall be chosen by a majority of the members, or if such majority cannot be had after two votes, then by secret ballot, or by lot, as they prefer.

Sec. 6. [Compensation: expenses.]—The members of the tribunal shall receive no compensation for their services from the city or county but the expenses of the tribunal, other than fuel, light and the use of the room and furniture, may be paid by voluntary subscription, which the tribunal is authorized to receive and expend for such purposes. The session of said tribunal shall be held at the county seat of the county where the petition for the same was presented, and a room in the court house or elsewhere for the use of said tribunal shall be provided by the county board of supervisors.

Sec. 7. [Chairman to administer oaths in absence of umpire.]—When no umpire is acting, the chairman of the tribunal shall have power to administer oaths to all witnesses who may be produced, and a majority of said tribunal may provide for the examination and investigation of books, documents and accounts pertaining to the matters in hearing before the tribunal, and belonging to either party to the dispute; provided, that the tribunal may unanimously direct that instead of producing books, papers and accounts before the tribunal, an accountant agreed upon by the entire tribunal may be appointed to examine such books, papers and accounts, and such accountant shall be sworn to well and truly examine such books, documents and accounts, as may be presented to him, and to report the results of such examination in writing to said tribunal. Before such examination, the information desired and required by the tribunal shall be plainly stated in writing, and presented to said accountant, which statement shall be signed by the members of said tribunal, or by a majority of each class thereof. Attorney at law or other agents of either party to the dispute, shall not be permitted to appear or take part in any of the proceedings of the tribunal, or before the umpire.

Sec. 8. [Umpire to preside while acting.]—When the umpire is acting he shall preside and he shall have all the power of the chairman of the tribunal, and his determination upon all questions of evidence, or other questions in conducting the inquiries there pending, shall be final. Committees of the tribunal consisting of an equal number of each class may be constituted to examine into any question in dispute between employers and workmen which may have been referred to said committee by the tribunal, and such committee may hear and settle the same finally, when it can be done by a unanimous vote; otherwise the same shall be reported to the full tribunal, and be there heard as if the question had not been referred. The said tribunal in connection with the said umpire shall have power to make or ordain and enforce rules for the government of the body when in session to enable the business to be proceeded with, in order, and to fix its sessions and adjournments, but such rules shall not conflict with this statute, nor with any of the provisions of the constitution, and laws of Iowa.

SEC. 9. [Question to be plainly defined in writing. — Before the umpire shall proceed to act, the question or questions in dispute shall be plainly defined in writing and signed by the members of the tribunal, or a majority thereof of each class, or by the parties submitting the same, and such writing shall contain the submission of the decision thereof to the umpire by name, and shall provide that his decision thereon, after hearing, shall be final. The umpire shall be sworn to impartially decide all questions that may be submitted to him during his term of office. The submission and his award may be made in the form hereinafter given, and said umpire must make his award within ten days from the time the question or questions in dispute are submitted to him. Said award shall be made to the tribunal; and if the award is for a specific sum of money, said award may be made a matter of record by filing a copy thereof in the district court of the county wherein the tribunal is in session. When so entered of record it shall be final and conclusive, and the proper court may, on motion of any one interested, enter judgment thereon; and when the award is for a specific sum of money may issue final and other process to enforce the same.

SEC. 10. [Form of petition. — The form of the joint petition or agreement praying for a tribunal under this act shall be as follows:

To the district court of .... county, (or to a judge thereof, as the case may be):
The subscribers hereto being the number, and having the qualifications required in this proceeding, being desirous of establishing a tribunal of voluntary arbitration for the settlement of disputes in the (here name the branch of industry) trade, and having agreed upon A, B, C, D and E, representing the employers, and G, H, I, J and K, representing the workmen, as members of said tribunal, who each are qualified to act thereon, pray that a license for a tribunal in the ... trade may be issued to said persons named above.

SEC. 11. [Form of license.]—The license to be issued upon such petition may be as follows:

STATE OF IOWA,

County, ss:

WHEREAS, The joint petition and agreement of four employers (or representatives of a firm or corporation or individual employing twenty men, as the case may be) and twenty workmen have been presented to this court (or if to a judge in vacation so state) praying the creation of a tribunal of voluntary arbitration for the settlement of disputes in the workman trade within this county, and naming A, B, C, D and E, representing the employers, and G, H, I, J and K, representing the workmen. Now, in pursuance of the statute for such case made and provided, said named persons are hereby licensed and authorized to be and exist as a tribunal of voluntary arbitration for the settlement of disputes between employers and workmen for the period of one year from this date, and they shall meet and organize on the .... day of ...., A.D....

Clerk of the .... District Court of .... County.

SEC. 12. When it becomes necessary to submit a matter in controversy to the umpire it may be in form as follows:

FORM OF SUBMISSION.

We, A, B, C, D, and E, representing employers, and G, H, I, J, and K representing workmen composing a tribunal of voluntary arbitration hereby submit, and refer unto the umpirage of L (the umpire of the tribunal of the .... trade) the following subject matter viz.: (Here state full, and clear the matter submitted), and we hereby agree that his decision and determination upon the same shall be binding upon us, and final, and conclusive upon the question thus submitted, and we pledge ourselves to abide by, and carry out the decision of the umpire when made.

Witness our names this .... day of ....

A. D.... ..... (Signatures) .................................

.................................

.................................

Sec. 13. [Award to be in writing.]—The umpire shall make his award in writing to the tribunal, stating distinctly his decisions on the subject matter submitted, and when the award is for a specific sum of money, the umpire shall forward a copy of the same to the clerk of the proper court.

Approved March 6, 1886.
SECTION 3432. [Boats: when and for what liable.]—In an action brought against the owners of any boat to recover any debt contracted by such owner, or by the master, agent, clerk, or consignee thereof, for supplies furnished, or for labor done, in, about, or on such boat, or for materials furnished in building, repairing, fitting out, furnishing or equipping the same, or to recover for the non-performance of any contract relative to the transportation of persons or property thereon, made by any of the persons afore-mentioned, or to recover for injuries to persons or property by such boat, or the officers or the crew thereof, done in connection with the business of such boat, a warrant may issue for the seizure of such boat, as hereinafter provided.

In an action against a steamboat for supplies, etc., under the statute which is in effect a proceeding in rem, it was held, that in order to give the court jurisdiction, it was necessary that a warrant should issue for the seizure of the boat, and that it should be seized thereunder. Ham v. Steamboat Hamburg, 2 Iowa, 450.

It was held that the seizure and sale of a steamboat under the laws of the state of Missouri, or Illinois, will not divest the lien of a citizen of Iowa, for supplies furnished the boat, while navigating the waters of Iowa. Height & Bro. v. Steamboat Henrietta, 4 Id., 472; Oyden v. Oyden, 13 Id., 176.

Where a steamboat carried freights from the terminus of a railroad and delivered them to the different consignees, and the officers of the boat under a contract with the railroad company collected from the consignees the charges on the freight for transportation over the railroad, it was held that the amount thus collected could not be recovered in an action against the boat under the statute. The C., B. & Q. R. Co. v. The Steamboat W. S. Woodside, 10 Id., 465.

A claim against a steamboat for supplies may be assigned; and such an assignment transfers to the assignee the statutory lien upon the boat, etc. Strother v. The Steamboat Hamburg, 11 Id., 39.

The jurisdiction of the admiralty courts of the United States held not exclusive in all cases of maritime torts. Trevor v. The Steamboat Ad Hoc, 17 Id., 349.

It was further held that under the act of congress of February 26, 1845, the state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the admiralty courts of the United States of maritime torts on navigable rivers, where one of the parties is a steamer or other vessel employed in the commerce or navigation of such river. Id.

It has been subsequently held that the jurisdiction conferred upon the courts of the United States by the ninth section of the revision which undertook to give a remedy in rem, against a boat or vessel for a cause of action of admiralty cognizance, was in conflict with the constitutional legislation of congress conferring exclusive admiralty jurisdiction on the district courts of the United States. Id.

The admiralty jurisdiction, under the ninth section of the judiciary act of 1789, extends to the public navigable rivers of the United States, and to all public waters capable of being navigated by maritime or commercial vessels, propell'd by wind or steam. Id.

Admiralty will take cognizance of maritime torts. Id.

SEC. 3433. [Petition and warrant.]—The original petition must be in writing, sworn to and filed with the clerk or justice of the peace, who shall thereupon issue a warrant to the proper officer, commanding him to seize the boat, its apparel, tackle, furniture and appendages, and detain the same until released by due course of law.

SEC. 3434. [Warrant issued on Sunday.]—And the warrant may be issued on Sunday, if the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall state in his petition and swear thereto, that it would be unsafe to delay proceedings till Monday.

SEC. 3435. [Service of notice.]—It shall be sufficient service of the original notice in such an action, to serve it on the defendant, or on the master, agent, clerk or consignee of such boat; and if none of them can be found, the notice may be served by posting up a copy thereof on some conspicuous part of the boat. The warrant shall be served according to the direction it contains.

SEC. 3436. [By whom served.]—Any constable or marshal of any corporate town may serve and execute the warrant provided for in said section, whether the same issue from the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court, or of a justice.

SEC. 3437. [Who may appear for boat.]—Any person interested in the boat may appear for the defendant by himself, his agent or attorney, and conduct the defense of the suit, and no continuance shall be granted to the plaintiff while the boat is held in custody.

SEC. 3438. [Discharge by giving bond.]—The boat may be discharged at any time before final judgment, by the giving of a bond with sureties, to be approved by the officer serving the warrant, or by the clerk or justice who issued it, in a penalty double the plaintiff’s demand, conditioned that the obligors therein will pay the amount which may be found due to the plaintiff, together with the costs.

A bond executed under this provision of the statute, and returned by the sheriff as the bond taken by him for the release of a boat seized by him, is valid, and should be enforced though no formal entry of approval appears thereon. White v. Tisdale, 12 Iowa, 75.

SEC. 3439. [Special execution.]—If judgment be rendered for the plaintiff before the boat is thus discharged, a special execution shall issue against it. If it have been previously discharged, the execution shall issue against the principal and sureties on the bond without further proceedings.

Under this section, an order for an execution against the principal and sureties on a bond executed in accordance with the provisions of section 3438, may be made, though no formal entry of the discharge of the boat has been made. White v. Tisdale, 12 Iowa, 75.

SEC. 3440. [What first to be sold.]—The officer may sell any of the furniture or appendages of the boat, if by so doing he can satisfy the demand. If he sell the boat itself, he must sell it to the bidder who will advance the amount required to satisfy the execution, for the lowest fractional share of the boat, unless the person appearing for the boat desire a different and equally convenient mode of sale.

SEC. 3441. [Fractional share sold.]—If a fractional share of the boat be thus sold, the purchaser shall hold such share or interest jointly with the other owners.

SEC. 3442. [Appeal.]—If an appeal be taken by the defendant before the boat is discharged as above provided, the appeal bond, if one be filed, will have the same effect in discharging the boat as the bond above contemplated, and execution shall issue against the obligors therein after judgment in the same manner.

SEC. 3443. [Saving clause.]—Nothing herein contained is intended to affect the rights of the plaintiff to sue in the same manner as though the provisions of this chapter had not been enacted.

SEC. 3444. [Petition: allegation of.]—In actions commenced in accordance with the provisions of this chapter it is sufficient to allege the contract to have been made with the boat itself.

In an action against a barge for labor and material furnished, it is sufficient to allege in the petition that the work was done and the materials furnished at the instance and request of the barge for the repair of the same. West & Co. v. Barge Lady Franklin, 2 Iowa, 522.

The petition should aver that the vessel was navigating the waters of the state at the time of the liability incurred. Steamboat Kentucky v. Brooks et al., 1 G. Greene, 388.
RAFTS.

SEC. 3445. [Rafts: liability of.]—Any raft found in the waters of this state shall be liable for all debts contracted by the owner, agent, clerk, or pilot thereof, on account of work done or services rendered for such raft.

Where the owner of a raft of lumber contracted with a third party to the effect that the latter should run the raft to a point named on the Mississippi river, and bear all the expenses of the trip, for a certain sum per thousand feet of the lumber, the contractor to act as pilot of the raft, it was held that the raft was liable, under this section, for the wages of a hand employed thereon by the contractor. Hanson v. Hiles, 34 Iowa, 350.

SEC. 3446. [Lien.]—Claims growing out of either of the above cases shall be liens upon the raft, its tackle, and appendages, for the term of twenty days from the time the right of action therefor accrued.

SEC. 3447. [Action against raft.]—The action may be brought directly against the raft, and the same rules shall govern, and the same process shall be had in such action, as are in this chapter prescribed for actions against owners of boats.

SEC. 3448. [Appearance: what deemed.]—The execution by or for the owner of such boat or raft, of a bond, whereby possession of the same is obtained or retained by him, shall be an appearance of such owner as a defendant to the action.

CHAPTER 13.

OF HABEAS CORPUS.

SECTION 3449. [Petition sworn to: statements of.]—The petition for the writ of habeas corpus must be sworn to, and must state:

1. That the person in whose behalf it is sought is restrained of his liberty, and the person by whom, and the place where he is so restrained, mentioning the names of the parties, if known, and if unknown, describing them with as much particularity as practicable;

2. The cause or pretense of such restraint, according to the best information of the applicant; and if it be by virtue of any legal process, a copy thereof must be annexed, or a satisfactory reason given for its absence; *

3. It must state that the restraint is illegal, and wherein;

4. That the legality of the imprisonment has not already been adjudged upon a prior proceeding of the same character to the best knowledge and belief of the applicant;

5. It must also state whether application for the writ has been before made to, and refused by any court or judge, and if such application has been made, a copy of the petition in that case, with the reasons for the refusal thereto appended, must be produced, or satisfactory reasons given for the failure to do so.

The judgment and proceedings of a competent court cannot be reversed in another court on habeas corpus. Platt v. Harrison, 6 Iowa, 79; Zelle v. McHenry, 2 N. W. Reporter, 322.

After a conviction of a criminal offense, by a court having jurisdiction, though the conviction be irregular or erroneous, the party convicted is not entitled to the writ of habeas corpus. Id.

A person who is held in custody under an order issued by a court of the United States, in the regular course of procedure, is not entitled to be released on habeas corpus by a state court. A state court has no right to thus interfere with the proceedings and process of the United States court. Ex parte Holman, 28 Id., 88.

Every court is the sole judge of matters of contempt of its orders or authority; and when a court, having jurisdiction of a cause, is proceeding to arrest a party for contempt, no other court can intermeddle with, or stay the proceeding, or on habeas corpus release the party who is thus being proceeded against. Id. See also, Robb v. McDonald, 29 Id., 390.

In the exercise of the jurisdiction confided, respectively to the state and federal courts, neither has any right to interfere with, or control the proceedings of the other. Id.

Where the incumbent of an office holds it by color of right, though he is not an officer de jure, his right cannot be inquired into on habeas corpus. It can be determined only in a direct proceeding instituted for that purpose. Ex parte Strahl, 16 Id., 369.

But if a mere usurper should, without color of right, attempt to imprison a person, the legality of the restraint might be inquired into on habeas corpus. Id.

The state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts to inquire into the validity of an enlistment into the army of the United States, upon a writ of habeas corpus. Ex parte Anderson before Dillon, J., at Chambers, 16 Id., 558.

SEC. 3450. [Same.] — The petition must be sworn to by the person confined, or by some one in his behalf, and presented to some court or officer authorized to allow the writ.

SEC. 3451. [Writ: by whom allowed.] — The writ of habeas corpus may be allowed by the supreme, district, or circuit court, or by any judge of either of those courts, and may be served in any part of the state.

Prior to the code of 1873, an appeal to the supreme court did not lie from an order or decision of one of the judges of that court, in a habeas corpus proceeding. In re Curley, 34 Iowa, 154.

SEC. 3452. [Application: to whom made.] — Application for the writ must be made to the court or judge most convenient in point of distance to the applicant, and the more remote court or judge, if applied to for the writ, may refuse the same unless a sufficient reason be stated in the petition for not making the application to the more convenient court, or a judge thereof.

The allegations of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, that minor children were concealed by the respondent in Polk or Dallas counties, were sufficient to give the court in Polk county jurisdiction to order the issuance of the writ; and the fact set up in the answer, that the children were in a foreign jurisdiction did not deprive the court of jurisdiction, or excuse the respondent for not producing the children in court in obedience to the writ. Rivers v. Mitchell, 57 Iowa, 193.

Where the mother residing in one judicial district, made application to the judge of that district for a writ of habeas corpus for the possession of her daughter, a minor, alleged to be restrained of her liberty in another judicial district, it was held that the person restrained was the applicant within the meaning of the statute, and that the application should have been made to the judge or court nearest to her. Thompson v. Oglesby, 42 Id., 598.

The only limitations on the duty of a judge to grant the writ of habeas corpus are, that the application must be made to the most convenient judge, and it may be refused if from the showing made by the petitioner, the judge or court applied to is of opinion that he is not entitled to any relief whatever. Shaw v. McHenry, 52 Id., 182, 184.

SEC. 3453. [May refuse writ.] — If, from the showing of the petitioner, the plaintiff would not be entitled to any relief, the court or judge may refuse to allow the writ. If from the showing made by the petitioner, the court or judge applied to is of opinion that he is not entitled to any relief whatever, such court or judge may refuse to allow the writ. Shaw v. McHenry, 52 Iowa, 182, 186.

SEC. 3454. [Reasons for indorsed on.] — If the writ is disallowed, the court or judge shall cause the reasons of said disallowance to be appended to the petition and returned to the person applying for the writ.

WRIT ALLOWED.

SEC. 3455. [Form of writ.] — But if the petition show a sufficient ground for relief, and is in accordance with the foregoing requirements, the writ shall be allowed, and may be substantially as follows:

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To the sheriff of, &c., (or to A, B, as the case may be).

You are hereby commanded to have the body of C, D, by you unlawfully detained, as is alleged, before the court (or before me, or before E,...
Sec. 3456. [By court: issued by clerk.]—When the writ is allowed by a court it is to be issued by the clerk, but when allowed by a judge he must issue the writ himself, subscribing his name thereto without any seal.

Sec. 3457. [Penalty for refusing.]—Any judge, whether acting individually or as a member of the court, who wrongfully and willfully refuses such allowance of the writ when properly applied for, shall forfeit to the party aggrieved the sum of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3458. [Judge to issue on his own motion.]—Whenever any court or judge authorized to grant this writ, has evidence, from a judicial proceeding before them, that any person within the jurisdiction of such court or officer is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, such court or judge shall issue or cause to be issued, the writ as aforesaid, though no application be made therefor.

Sec. 3459. [District attorney notified.]—The court or officer allowing the writ, must cause the district attorney of the proper county to be informed of the issuing of the writ, and of the time and place, where and when it is made returnable.

Sec. 3460. [By whom.]—The writ may be served by the sheriff, or by any other person appointed for that purpose, in writing, by the court or judge by whom it is issued or allowed. If served by any other than the sheriff, he possesses the same power, and is liable to the same penalty for a non-performance of his duty, as though he were the sheriff.

Sec. 3461. [How.]—The proper mode of service is by leaving the original writ with the defendant, and preserving a copy thereof on which to make the return of service.

Sec. 3462. [When defendant not found.]—If the defendant cannot be found or if he have not the plaintiff in custody, the service may be made upon any person having the plaintiff in his custody, in the same manner and with the same effect as though he had been made defendant therein.

A habeas corpus proceeding cannot be regarded as criminal in its nature. The person restrained of his liberty is denominated plaintiff, and the proceedings properly should be instituted in his name, and where the applicant is remanded to the custody of the defendant the costs cannot be taxed to the county. The State v. Collins et al., 54 Iowa, 441.

Sec. 3463. [Power of officer when defendant is concealed.]—If the defendant conceal himself, or refuse admittance to the person attempting to serve the writ, or if he attempt wrongfully to carry the plaintiff out of the county or the state, after the service of the writ as aforesaid, the sheriff or the person who is attempting to serve or who has served the writ above contemplated, is authorized to arrest the defendant, and bring him, together with the plaintiff, forthwith before the officer or court before whom the writ is made returnable.

Sec. 3464. [Arrest.]—In order to make such arrest, the sheriff or other person having the writ, possesses the same power as is given to a sheriff for the arrest of a person charged with felony.

Sec. 3465. [Same.]—If the plaintiff can be found, and if no one appear to have the charge or custody of him, the person having the writ may take him into cus-
OF HABEAS CORPUS.

TITLE XX.

Sec. 3466. [Want of form.]
The writ of habeas corpus must not be disobeyed for any defects of form or misdescription of the plaintiff or defendant, provided enough is stated to show the meaning and intent of the writ.

Sec. 3467. [Penalty for eluding writ.]—If the defendant attempt to elude the service of the writ of habeas corpus, or to avoid the effect thereof by transferring the plaintiff to another, or by concealing him, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the penitentiary or county jail not more than one year, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. And any person knowingly aiding or abetting in any such act, shall be subject to the like punishment.

Sec. 3468. [Refusal to give copy of process.]—An officer refusing to deliver a copy of any legal process by which he detains the plaintiff in custody, to any person who demands such copy, and tenders the fees therefor, shall forfeit two hundred dollars to the person so detained.

PRECEPT.

Sec. 3469. [When to issue.]
The court or judge to whom the application for the writ is made, if satisfied that the plaintiff would suffer any irreparable injury before he could be relieved by the proceedings as above authorized, may issue a precept to the sheriff, or any other person selected instead, commanding him to bring the plaintiff forthwith before such court or judge.

Sec. 3470. [Evidence.]
When the evidence aforesaid is farther sufficient to justify the arrest of the defendant for a criminal offense committed in connection with the illegal detention of the plaintiff, the precept must also contain an order for the arrest of the defendant.

Sec. 3471. [How served.]
The officer or person to whom the precept is directed, must execute the same by bringing the defendant, and also the plaintiff if required, before the court or judge issuing it, and thereupon the defendant must make return to the writ of habeas corpus in the same manner as if the ordinary course had been pursued.

Sec. 3472. [Examination.]
The defendant may also be examined and committed, or bailed, or discharged, according to the nature of the case.

PLEADINGS—TRIAL—JUDGMENT.

Sec. 3473. [Presumption.]
Any person served with the writ is to be presumed to be the person to whom it is directed, although it may be directed to him by a wrong name or description or to another person.

Sec. 3474. [Appearance.]
Service being made in any of the modes hereinbefore provided, the defendant must appear at the proper time and answer the said petition, but no verification shall be required to the answer.

Sec. 3475. [Body of plaintiff.]
He must also bring up the body of the plaintiff, or show good cause for not doing so.

The respondent to a writ of habeas corpus must produce the bodies of the persons deprived of their liberty before the court, or judge, or show in his return to the writ that he does not have the power to do so in obedience to the writ. [Rivers v. Mitchell, 57 Iowa, 193.]

Sec. 3476. [Penalty for willful failure.]
A willful failure to comply with the above requisitions, renders the defendant liable to be attached for contempt, and to be imprisoned until a compliance is obtained, and also subjects him to the forfeiture of one thousand dollars to the party thereby aggrieved.
SEC. 3477. [Attachment: how served.]-Such attachment may be served by the sheriff, or any other person thereto authorized by the judge, who shall also be empowered to bring up the body of the plaintiff forthwith, and has, for this purpose, the same powers as are above conferred in similar cases.

SEC. 3478. [Answer.]-The defendant in his answer must state plainly and unequivocally whether he then has, or at any time has had, the plaintiff under his control and restraint, and if so, the cause thereof.

SEC. 3479. [Same.]-If he has transferred him to another person, he must state that fact, and to whom, and the time thereof, as well as the reason or authority therefor.

SEC. 3480. [Same.]-If he holds him by virtue of a legal process or written authority, a copy thereof must be annexed.

SEC. 3481. [Demur or reply.]-The plaintiff may demur or reply to the defendant's answer, but no verification shall be required to the reply, and all issues joined therein shall be tried by the judge or court.

SEC. 3482. [Replication: statement of.]-Such replication may deny the sufficiency of the testimony to justify the action of the committing magistrate, on the trial of which issue all written testimony before such magistrate may be given in evidence before the court or judge in connection with any other testimony which may then be produced.

The waiver of a preliminary examination before a committing magistrate will not deprive the defendant of the right, in a habeas corpus proceeding, to introduce testimony for the purpose of showing that he is detained upon insufficient evidence to sustain the charge. Howell v. Patterson, 49 Iowa, 514.

The warrant of commitment issuing to the sheriff of the county in which the examination is held, will authorize his detention and custody by the sheriff.

Where the police court, having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person charged, erroneous rulings by such court cannot be corrected on habeas corpus. Zella v. McHenry et al., 51 Id., 572.

After conviction by a court having jurisdiction, though the conviction be erroneous, the defendant is not entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, as he has a complete remedy in the regular and usual method by appeal. Platt v. Harrison, 6 Id., 79; Morrow v. Weed, 4 Id., 77; Ex parte Grace, 12 Id., 208; Robb v. McDonald, 29 Id., 330; Ex parte Holman, 23 Id., 88.

SEC. 3483. [Grand jury.]-But it is not permissible to question the correctness of the action of the grand jury in finding a bill of indictment, or of the trial jury in trial of a cause, nor of a court or judge when acting within their legitimate province and in a lawful manner.

SEC. 3484. [Discharge.]-If no sufficient legal cause of detention is shown the plaintiff must be discharged.

Where a child has by permission of her parents resided for a certain time with others, who seek to detain her after the expiration of the time, and with whom she prefers to remain, it was held, that while the wishes of the child should not be disregarded, yet the controlling consideration should be the best interests of the child, with a due regard to the natural rights of the parent. State ex rel. Shaw v. Nachtacey, 43 Iowa, 653.

SEC. 3485. [Irregularity of commitment.]-Although the commitment of the plaintiff may have been irregular, still, if the court or judge is satisfied from the evidence before them, that he ought to be held to bail, or committed, either for the offense charged or any other, the order may be made accordingly.

SEC. 3486. [Bail increased or diminished.]-The plaintiff may also, in any case, be committed, let to bail, or his bail be mitigated or increased, as justice may require.

SEC. 3487. [Defendant retained in custody.]-Until the sufficiency of the cause of restraint is determined, the defendant may retain the plaintiff in his custody, and may use all necessary and proper means for that purpose.

SEC. 3488. [Right to be present waived.]-The plaintiff, in writing, or his attorney, may waive his right to be present at the trial, in which case the proceedings may be had in his absence. The writ will in such cases be modified accordingly.

Sec. 3489. [Penalty for disobeying any order.]—Disobedience to any order of discharge subjects the defendant to attachment for contempt, and also to the forfeiture of one thousand dollars to the party aggrieved, besides all damages sustained by him in consequence of such disobedience.

Sec. 3490. [Papers filed with clerk.]—When the proceedings are before a judge, except when the writ is refused, all the papers in the case, including his final order, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the final proceedings were had, and a brief memorandum thereof shall be entered by the clerk upon his judgment docket.

CHAPTER 14.

OF CONTEMPS.

SECTION 3491. [What are.]—The following acts or omissions are deemed to be contempts, and are punishable as such by any of the courts of this state, or by any judicial officer acting in the discharge of an official duty, as hereinafter provided:

1. Contemptuous or insolent behavior towards such court while engaged in the discharge of a judicial duty which may tend to impair the respect due to its authority;

2. Any willful disturbance calculated to interrupt the due course of its official proceedings;

3. Illegal resistance to any order or process made or issued by it;

4. Disobedience to any subpoena issued by it and duly served, or refusing to be sworn, or to answer as a witness;

5. Unlawfully detaining a witness or party to an action or proceeding pending before such court, while going to or remaining at the place where the action or proceeding is thus pending;

6. Any other act or omission specially declared a contempt by law.

To constitute a contempt under the first subdivision of this section, the act or conduct complained of must have taken place in the actual or constructive presence of the court; and the contemptuous or insolent behavior must be towards the court—the court must be engaged in the discharge of any official duty—and the behavior must tend to impair the respect due to its authority. Dunham v. The State, 6 Iowa, 245.

The contemptuous and insolent conduct need not be in the court room and under the very eye of the court, in order to amount to a contempt. Id.

The publication of articles in a newspaper upon the conduct of a judge, in respect to causes pending in his court, and which were disposed of before the publication, or the publication of the evidence and the arguments of counsel in a case undisposed of, in which there was no rule of court against such publication, however unjust and libelous the publication may be, do not amount to contemptuous or insolent behavior towards the court under this chapter; nor are they so calculated to impede, embarrass, or obstruct the court in the administration of the law, as to justify the summary punishment of the offender under the statute. Id.; also, The State v. Anderson, 40 Id., 207.

A refusal to obey a subpoena issued in a matter within his authority, or his refusal to answer when brought before the justice, is a contempt for which the person refusing may be committed by the justice. Robb v. McDonald, 29 Id., 330.

Nor does it furnish a sufficient excuse for the witness in refusing to answer, or any ground for releasing him from such commitment on habeas corpus, that the affidavit which he was subpoenaed to give, would not be admissible in the proceeding in which it was intended to be used. Id.

In a proceeding for the punishment of a contempt, growing out of publications alleged to be false, scandalous and defamatory, evidence is admissible to show the meaning and intent of the publications. Henry v. Ellis, 49 Id., 205.

This section confers general authority upon the courts of this state, and upon any judicial officer acting in the discharge of any official duty, to punish for contempts. Brown v. Davidson, 59 Id., 46, 463—Per Day, J.

Where a contention arose between counsel as to whether a witness had not already answered a certain question, and the court, after hearing the reporter's notes read, decided that she had answered it, whenupon one of the attorneys sprang to his feet, and turning to the court, said, in loud tones and insulting manner: "She has not answered the question." Held, that the attorney was guilty of contempt, regardless of the question whether the decision of the court was right or wrong. Russell v. French, Circuit Judge, 67 Id., 102.

Sec. 3492. [In courts of record.] In addition to the above, any court of record may punish the following acts or omissions as contempts:

1. Failure to testify before a grand jury, when lawfully required to do so;
2. Assuming to be an officer, attorney or counselor of the court, and acting as such without authority;
3. Misbehavior as a juror, by improperly conversing with a party, or with any other person in relation to the merits of an action in which he is acting or is to act as a juror, or receiving a communication from any person in respect to it with out immediately disclosing the same to the court;
4. Disobedience by an inferior tribunal, magistrate or officer, to any lawful judgment, order or process of a superior court, or proceeding in any matter contrary to law, after it has been removed from such tribunal, magistrate or officer.

Sec. 3493. [How punished.] The punishment for contempts may be by fine or imprisonment, or both, but where not otherwise specially provided, courts of record are limited to a fine of fifty dollars, and an imprisonment not exceeding one day and all other courts are limited to a fine of ten dollars.

Sec. 3494. [Same.] But if the contempt consists in an omission to perform an act which is yet in the power of the person to perform, he may be imprisoned until he performs it. In that case the act to be performed must be specified in the warrant of the commitment.

Sec. 3495. [When affidavit necessary.] Unless the contempt is committed in the immediate view and presence of the court, or comes officially to its knowledge, an affidavit showing the nature of the transaction is necessary as a basis for further action in the premises.

It was held that the district court (and the same reasoning applies to the circuit court) has no authority to order a party to deliver the key of a safe, which, with the contents the party claims as his own property, and upon his refusing to obey the order, to punish him as for a contempt. The State v. Start, 7 Iowa, 501.

The affidavit required by this section as a basis for proceedings for contempt need not show that the deponent has personal knowledge of the acts constituting the alleged contempt. Jordan v. The C. C. of Wapello Co., 69 Id., 177.

Sec. 3496. [Notice to show cause.] Before punishing for contempt, unless the offender is already in the presence of the court, he must be served personally with a rule to show cause against the punishment, and a reasonable time given to him therefor; or he may be brought before the court forthwith, or on a given day, by warrant, if necessary. In either case he may, at his option, make a written explanation of his conduct under oath, which must be filed and preserved.

A witness who is in contempt for refusing to answer questions propounded to him by the grand jury, is entitled, as of course, to a reasonable time before punishment in which to prepare and file an explanation of his conduct. The State v. Duffy, 15 Iowa, 425.

A witness who is in contempt may be arrested upon a warrant directing the arrest in vacation, but the court may also order his discharge by the officers interested with the writ, upon bail fixed by the court. These proceedings, however, are authorized only in cases of actual contempt, and when necessary to the proper administration of justice. The State v. Archer, 48 Id., 510.

One charged with contempt committed in the presence of the court has the right to file a written explanation of his conduct, under oath, for the purpose of excusing the contempt or reducing the punishment, and a reasonable opportunity must be given for such purpose before the infliction of punishment. Russell v. French, Judge, 67 Id., 162.
SEC. 3497. [Testimony reduced to writing.]—Where the action of the court is founded upon evidence given by others, such evidence must be in writing, and be filed and preserved, and if the court act upon their own knowledge in the premises, a statement of the facts upon which the order is founded must be entered on the records of the court, or be filed and preserved when the court keeps no record.

In proceedings to punish for contempt the directions as to the evidence and judgment of facts contained in this section must be complied with. Skiff v. State, 2 Iowa, 550; The State v. Utley, 13 Id., 593.

Proceedings to punish for contempt are in their nature criminal, and are not entitled of the case wherein the contempt occurs. First Cong. Ch. v. Muscatine, Id., 69.

A party in contempt for failure to comply with a rule awarded against him may be refused leave to plead until he has purged himself of the contempt. Saylor v. Mockbee, 9 Id., 206.

A writ of attachment against an officer for contempt should run against him in his individual name. The State ex rel., etc., v. Smith, etc., 9 Id., 334.

It is error without prejudice to permit oral evidence to be given in a hearing for contempt, when the action of the court is sufficiently supported by affidavit. The State v. Meyers, 44 Id., 580.

Ordinarily the presumptions are in favor of the regularity of the proceedings of courts of record, and that there was sufficient evidence to justify their judgment; but in cases of contempt the statute has provided otherwise, and the evidence or facts must be entered of record, or filed and preserved. Skiff v. The State, 2 Id., 550.

When the court acts upon its own knowledge in the premises, a statement of the facts upon which the order punishing for contempt was based must appear of record; and when the court acts upon evidence given by others, the record must show the evidence upon which the court acted. The State v. Utley, 13 Id., 593; The State v. Dougherty, 32 Id., 261; The State v. Folsom, 34 Id., 583; The State v. White, Id., 583; Skiff v. The State, 2 Id., 550.

A record entry that "H. J. S., fined for contempt of court, fifty dollars; for a second contempt, fined one hundred dollars, and ordered to be committed to jail for three days. Mitimus issued to sheriff of Polk county to confine H. J. S. in the jail of said county for three days," is too barren of every legal requisite to justify either the fine or imprisonment of a citizen in this country. Skiff v. The State, 2 Id., 550.

A judgment that the defendant pay is fine and stand committed until it is satisfied, for a contempt of court, should specify the extent of the imprisonment, which cannot exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars. The State v. Meyers, 44 Id., 580.

In the absence of the statute each court of record is the sole and final judge in matters of contempt. The First Cong. Ch. of B. v. The City of Muscatine, 2 Id., 69; Ex parte Holman, 28 Id., 88.

This section of the code, providing that the evidence in proceedings for contempt shall be reduced to writing and filed, does not apply to a writ of injunction introduced in evidence, where the alleged contempt is the violation of the injunction. Jordan v. The C. C. of Wapello Co., 69 Id., 177.

Where on a hearing before a judge a party is committed for contempt the judge must file and preserve a statement of the facts on which the order was founded; but where all of the proceedings were taken down by a shorthand reporter, and his notes were extended and filed, and the transcript thus preserved contained a statement of all the necessary facts; held, that this was a sufficient compliance with the statute. Lutz v. Aylesworth, 66 Id., 620.

A contempt may be punished irrespective of the regularity of the original proceedings. Id.

A proceeding against a corporation is necessarily personal: while the corporation cannot be imprisoned those acting in its aid in the violation of an injunction, may. Id.

The power to punish for contempt is a necessary one, but should be carefully exercised. Skiff v. The State, 2 Id., 69.

The writ of habeas corpus will not lie by one court, or a judge thereof, to examine or review the proceedings of another in cases of commitment for contempt, excepting cases so grossly defective as to render them void. Rob v. McDonald, 29 Id., 390; Ex parte Holman, 28 Id., 88.

The district court possesses no power to order a party to deliver to a sheriff the key of a safe, which with the contents, the party claims as his own property; and upon his refusal to obey such order, to fine him, summarily, as for a contempt. The State v. Sart, 7 Id., 501.

The publication by an attorney of an article in a newspaper, criticizing the ruling of the court in a cause tried and determined prior to such publication, does not constitute contempts or violent behavior toward the court, punishable as a contempt. The State v. Anderson, 40 Id., 297.

The publication of an article in a newspaper by one not an attorney, reflecting on the conduct of a judge in respect to a cause pending in his court, which had been disposed of prior to the publi-
CHAPTER 15.
OF CHANGING NAME.

SECTION 3502. [Courts may.]-The district or circuit court has power to change the names of persons in the following manner.

A change in name of a partnership does not have the effect to revoke or annul an agency conferred upon it, when the firm under the new name is composed of the same persons as that under the old one.

SEC. 3503. [Petition.]-The applicant for such change must file his petition verified by his oath, stating that he is a resident of the county, and has for one year then last past, been an actual resident of the state. It must also give a description of his person, stating his age, height, the color of his hair and eyes, the place of his birth, and who were his parents.

SEC. 3504. [Order.]-An order of the court shall thereupon be made and entered of record, giving a description of the applicant as set forth in the petition the new name given, the time at which the change shall take effect, which shall not be less than thirty days thereafter, and directing in what newspaper of general circulation in the county, notice of such change shall be published.

SEC. 3505. [Publication.]-Previous to the time thus prescribed for the taking effect of such change, the applicant shall cause notice thereof to be published for four successive weeks in the newspaper directed by the court.

SEC. 3506. [Proof filed.]-The ordinary proof of such publication being filed in the office of the clerk of the court, shall be by him filed for preservation, and on the day fixed by the court as aforesaid the change shall be complete.
TITLE XXI.

OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND THEIR COURTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND THEIR COURTS.

SECTION 3507. [Jurisdiction: local.]—The jurisdiction of justices of the peace, when not specially restricted, is co-extensive with their respective counties; but does not embrace suits for the recovery of money against actual residents of any other county, except as provided in section three thousand five hundred and thirteen of this chapter.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace against a resident of another county, the defendant appeared, it was held that such appearance did not confer jurisdiction, and that even after such appearance a motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction should be sustained. Boyer v. Moore, 42 Iowa, 544; Post v. Brow nell & Co., 37 Id., 497.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction to render judgment upon an award of arbitrators returned to him for that purpose, pursuant to the agreement of submission, when the amount of the award does not exceed the justice's jurisdiction in cases of consent. White v. Culver, 25 Id., 30; Van Horn v. Bellan, 20 Id., 255.

Section 2589 code, providing that if suit be brought in the wrong county the defendant may have a change of venue to the proper county, is not applicable to actions before justices of the peace. Post v. Brownell & Co., 37 Id., 497.

A partnership may be sued before a justice of the peace of the county where the partnership had its place of business, one member of the firm residing therein, and service of notice upon the resident member will give the justice jurisdiction of the partnership, and he may render judgment against it, as such, which may be enforced against the partnership property, and that of such partners as have been served with notice or have appeared in the action; but where the action is brought against the partners as individuals, the justice has no jurisdiction to render judgment against a partner who resided and was served with notice in another county, except where the action is on a written contract for the payment of money in the township where the action is brought. Ebersole & Son v. Ware, 59 Id., 663.

A justice of the peace cannot acquire jurisdiction in action for the recovery of money against a resident of another county, even though the defendant may have been served with notice in the township where the action is commenced. Hamilton v. Millhouse, 46 Id., 74.

Nor can a justice acquire jurisdiction in such case, even though the action is on a written contract for the payment of money in the township where the action is commenced. Gates v. Wagner, 46 Id., 355.

A resident of one county in the state, who removed with his family to another county for a temporary purpose, and with the intention of returning when such purpose should be accomplished, was held to have remained a resident of the former county for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace in an action against him, under this section. Bradley v. Fraser, 34 Id., 250. See also, Church v. Crossman, 49 Id., 444; Vanderpool v. O'Hanlon, 58 Id., 426.

SEC. 3508. [As to amount.]—Within the prescribed limit, it extends to all civil cases, except cases by equitable proceedings, where the amount in controversy does not exceed one hundred dollars; and, by consent of parties, it may be extended to any amount not exceeding three hundred dollars.

In an action before a justice of the peace, the amount claimed is the criterion of jurisdiction, and not the amount that may appear to be due on the instrument upon which the suit is based;
hence a justice has jurisdiction of an action on a penal bond for three hundred dollars, when the plaintiff only claims to recover one hundred dollars. Stone v. Murphy, 2 Iowa, 35.

A clause in a promissory note consenting that a justice of the peace may have jurisdiction in an action for its collection to the amount of three hundred dollars, is valid, and confers jurisdiction upon any justice who would otherwise have jurisdiction in such action but for the statutory limitation to one hundred dollars. Marshalltown Bank v. Kennedy et al., 53 Id., 387.

A petition in an action before a justice of the peace, claiming one hundred dollars, confers jurisdiction on the justice, notwithstanding the original notice states that if the defendant fails to appear judgment will be rendered for the whole amount with interest and costs. Moran v. Murphy et al., 49 Id., 65.

The amount claimed is the criterion of jurisdiction, and a justice of the peace has no authority to render judgment for one hundred dollars with accrued interest thereon and costs. Galley v. The County of Tama, 40 Id., 49.

Where the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace is by consent of parties extended to a case involving more than one hundred dollars it will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be presumed that such consent was given before the institution of the suit and the issuing of an attachment therein. The rule that courts and officers are presumed to act rightly, extends to inferior courts. Honda v. Haggles et al., 36 Id., 42.

In such case, the consent of a garnishee under the attachment issued, is not necessary in order to bind him. Id.

A justice of the peace has no equitable jurisdiction, and therefore, an equitable defense cannot be pleaded in an action before a justice. David v. Ryan et al., 57 Id., 642, 643.

The amount in controversy, in an action by attachment before a justice of the peace, is not the value of the property attached, but the amount of the debt and costs. Hoppe v. Byers & Jennings, 39 Id., 573.

A judgment rendered by a justice of the peace for more than one hundred dollars is valid, provided the parties, as a matter of fact, have consented to his jurisdiction in the case, notwithstanding he fails to make such consent a matter of record. Schlisman, Assignee, v. Webber et al., 65 Id., 114.

Where a justice has rendered a judgment in an action wherein he had jurisdiction, for an amount which, including costs, exceeds one hundred dollars, he has power to enforce such judgment by garnishment, and may render judgment against the garnishee for the amount of judgment and costs. Id.

In an action before a justice of the peace in which more than one hundred dollars are claimed the justice has no jurisdiction even to render judgment for an amount not exceeding one hundred dollars. Gilbert & Jennison v. Richards, 46 Id., 625.

This section does not deprive a justice of the peace of jurisdiction to render judgment against a partnership doing business in his county though all the partners reside elsewhere, provided the suit grows out of the business of an agency established within his county, and notice is served upon the agent in charge. Fitzgerald v. Grimmel et al., 64 Id., 261.

Where one rents a house and sets up housekeeping with his family in a certain county, with the design of remaining there until he has completed a certain job of work, he thereby becomes an actual resident of that county, and under this section an action for the recovery of money may be maintained against him before a justice of the peace in that county, although his domicile (permanent place of abode), to which he intends to return, may be in another county. Fitzgerald v. Arel, 63 Id., 104.

WHERE SUITS MAY BE BROUGHT.

SEC. 3509. [Where parties reside.]—Suits may in all cases be brought in the township where the plaintiff or defendant, or one of several defendants, resides.

The statute does not authorize a change of venue to the proper township where an action has been commenced before a justice of the peace in the wrong township. Munich v. Brettenbach, 41 Iowa, 527.

Where the want of jurisdiction does not appear on the face of the petition, the objection should be made by plea in abatement. Id.

Where a change of venue was taken from a justice of the peace, and the parties thereupon stipulated that the justice to whom the cause was changed might try it in another township than his own, it was held that he was not ousted of his jurisdiction by so trying the cause. Rogers v. Loop et al., 51 Id., 41.

The provisions of section 2519 of the code authorizing a change of venue when an action has been brought in the wrong county does not apply to a justice of the peace. Post v. Brownell & Co., 39 Id., 497.

Where the plaintiff resides in one township in the county and the defendant in another, in which notice was served on him, but the suit was brought before a justice of the peace in still another township, held that while the justice did not obtain jurisdiction of the person of the defendant by such service, yet when the defendant appeared and without objection consented to an order continuing the case, he thereby conferred jurisdiction on the justice.
Auspach v. Ferguson, 71 Id., 144.

SEC. 3510. [Where served.]{-}—They may also be brought in any other township of the same county, if actual service on one or more of the defendants is made in such township.

SEC. 3511. [To recover personal property: attachment.]{-}—Actions to recover personal property, and suits commenced by attachment, may be commenced in any county and township wherein any portion of the property is found, and justices shall have jurisdiction therein within the county.

The jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, in attachment and replevin cases, is not limited to the township in which the justice resides, or in which the property sought to be attached may be found, but is coextensive with the county.
Knoules v. Pickett, 46 Iowa, 503;
Leversic v. Reynolds, 15 Id., 310;
Biddle v. Alexander et al., 14 Id., 410.

The statute makes no provision for a change of venue to the proper township where an action before a justice of the peace has been commenced in the wrong township, and the want of jurisdiction, in such case, may be pleaded in abatement.
Meunch v. Breitenbach, 41 Id., 527.

The jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, in a suit transferred to him by another justice of the same county on a change of venue, cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding on the ground that he was not the nearest justice to the one from whence the change was taken.
Tennis v. Anderson, 55 Id., 625.

Wherein an action of replevin commenced before a justice of the peace, the property is removed to another county before service of the writ, this does not take away the jurisdiction of the justice before whom the action was brought.
Craft v. Franks, 34 Id., 504.

The language of section 3511 of the code is construed to relate to the location of the property at the time the action is commenced, and not to that where the property is found when seized under the writ.
Id.

In actions for the recovery of money, justices of the peace do not have jurisdiction of residents of another county, even though the action be aided by attachment, except as provided in section 3513 of the code.

SEC. 3512 [Non-resident.]{-}—If none of the defendants reside in the state, suit may be commenced in any county and township wherein either of the defendants may be found.

SEC. 3513. [Contracts in writing.]—On written contracts, stipulating for payment at a particular place, suit may be brought in the township where the payment was agreed to be made.

In an action upon a promissory note by its terms made payable in a particular township named therein, a justice of the peace of such township has jurisdiction of the maker who resides and is served with notice in another county.
Klingel v. Palmer, 42 Iowa, 166.

SEC. 3514. [In adjoining township.]{-}—If there is no justice in the proper township qualified or able to try the suit, it may be commenced in any adjoining township in the same county.

JUSTICE'S DOCKET.

SEC. 3515. [Docket and contents.]{-}—Every justice of the peace shall keep a docket in which shall be entered, in continuous order, with the proper date to each act done:

1. The title to each cause;
2. A brief statement of the nature and amount of the plaintiff's demand, and defendant's counter-claim, if any, giving date to each where dates exist;
3. The issuing of the process, and the return thereof;
4. The appearance of the respective parties;
5. Every adjournment, stating at whose instance and for what time;
6. The trial, and whether by the justice or by a jury;
7. The verdict and judgment;
8. The execution, to whom delivered, the renewals, if any, and the amount of debt, damages and costs indorsed thereon;
9. The taking and allowance of an appeal, if any;
10. The giving a transcript for filing in the clerk's office, or for counter-claim, if one is given;
11. A note of all motions made, and whether refused or granted.

The third sub-division of this section is directory to the justice, and if he fails to obey its directions, the proper remedy is against him by compelling him, under proper proceedings, to make the entry, but is not ground for writ of error. Houston v. Walcott & Co., 1 Iowa, 88, 90.

After an appeal has been allowed from the judgment of a justice of the peace, the justice has no jurisdiction or authority to make entries on his docket in the case appealed. Kimson v. Hunt, 4 Id., 340.

Where a transcript of a justice of the peace, after reciting the verdict of the jury, continued: "And judgment was entered by me thereon accordingly," it was held, that this entry, though informal, was a judgment or final adjudication within the meaning of the statute. Moore v. Manser, 9 Id., 47. See also, Stowers v. Milledge, 1 Id., 150.

In determining a question of fact by the records of a justice of the peace, the whole record must be considered together. Id.

Sub-division eleven of this section does not require a justice of the peace to enter on his docket motions made to exclude or reject evidence offered on the trial. Miller v. O'Neal, Id., 446.

The failure of a justice of the peace to note in his docket the return of process issued, or service of notice on the defendant, does not affect his jurisdiction or the validity of the judgment rendered by him in the case. Bridges v. Arnold, 37 Id., 221.

SUITS—HOW BROUGHT.

SEC. 3516. [Practice.]—The parties to the action may be the same as in the circuit court, and all the proceedings prescribed for that court, so far as the same are applicable and not herein changed, shall be pursued in justices' courts. The powers of the court are only as herein enumerated.

Where a cause of action in a justices' court consists of a book account embracing several items, the defendant is entitled to a bill of particulars, or to have the several items entered upon demanding the same. McKinney v. Hopkins, 20 Iowa, 435.

An application for a change of venue from a justice of the peace, made after the commencement of the trial, was too late, and properly overruled. Id.

Where the original notice with the return of the service thereon, is lost or destroyed, parol evidence is admissible to prove the fact of service and return thereof. Bridges v. Arnold, 57 Id., 221.

The appearance of a party by attorney or agent in a justices' court will have the same effect to waive the sufficiency of service of notice as in the circuit court. Church v. Crossman, 49 Id., 444.

A justice of the peace has only such powers as are enumerated in the statutes, and, as the statute does not confer upon him the power to instruct a jury in a trial before him, he has no such power, and consequently questions as to the correctness of instructions given by a justice will not be considered on appeal to the supreme court. The St. Joseph Mf. Co. v. Harrington, 53 Id., 380.

If a justice of the peace has jurisdiction of the subject matter, jurisdiction of the person will be conferred by a voluntary appearance of the parties. An appearance by defendant's attorney to cross-examine plaintiff's witnesses, where the cause has been retained by the justice after a change of venue had been ordered, will have the effect of a full appearance, and confer jurisdiction. Rohm v. Greer, 37 Id., 627.

SEC. 3517. [Same.]—Actions in justices' courts are commenced by voluntary appearance or by notice.

SEC. 3518. [Petition not necessary.]—When by notice, no petition need be filed, except where the petition must be sworn to, but the notice must state the cause of action in general terms, sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of the claim against him.

The action in a justice's court may be commenced simply by the service of a notice upon the defendant, except where a writ of replevin or other writ is asked for, in which case a petition duly verified must be filed. In an action of detinue, the filing of a petition forms no necessary part of the commencement of the action, and need be done only upon the day of trial. Duffy v. Dale, 42 Iowa, 215.
In an action before a justice of the peace the notice need not contain a technical setting forth of the cause of action. It is sufficient if the cause of action be stated in terms sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of the claim against him. Faulk v. Stewart, 15 Id., 379; Blake v. Cress, 13 Id., 291; Dillery v. Nason, 17 Id., 228; Goff v. Blake, 16 Id., 223.

Where a notice issued by a justice of the peace is defective, being served it gives the justice jurisdiction to determine the sufficiency of the notice and service, and although he may decide erroneously in holding both or either to be sufficient, it does not affect his jurisdiction or the validity of the subsequent proceedings in the case. Such a case is not one of no notice; upon the sufficiency of which he had the power to pass. Donoherty v. McManus, 36 Id., 657; see also, Shea v. Quintin, 30 Id., 38; Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Id., 217; Ballinger v. Tarbell, 16 Id., 491.

Where in a suit before a justice of the peace the original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed of the defendant a certain sum of money, as due her for the labor of her son, and that the amount claimed was justly due her as the balance of accounts for said labor of her son; it was held, that the plaintiff’s cause of action was sufficiently stated; and that there was no error in permitting the plaintiff, in the absence of a bill of particulars, to give evidence under it, to show an indebtedness to her for the labor of her son, Cain v. Devitt, 8 Id., 116.

Where in the notice in the justice’s court the notice stated that the plaintiff claimed of the defendant on a promissory note, although the latter was merely a guarantor of the note, it was held to be sufficient. Francis v. Bentley, 50 Id., 59.

Sec. 3519. [Notice to whom.]—It must be addressed to the defendant by name, but if his name is unknown, a description of him will be sufficient. It must be subscribed by the plaintiff, or the justice before whom it is returnable.

Sec. 3520. [State amount.]—It must state the amount for which the plaintiff will take judgment, if the defendant fail to appear and answer at the time and place therein fixed. A defect in the original notice, returned “not found,” in the attachment proceeding in a justice’s court, does not affect the jurisdiction of the res. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

An omission to name the township in which the action is pending, in the notices posted by order of the court in an attachment suit before a justice, is not a fatal defect. Id.

Sec. 3521. [Limit of time.]—The time thus fixed in the notice must not be more than fifteen days from the date, and the notice must be served not less than five days previous to the trial.

A judgment by default rendered by a justice of the peace, upon a notice served only four days before the day on which the judgment was rendered, is not invalid for want of jurisdiction. It is not a case of no notice, but merely defective notice, and the error of the justice in holding it sufficient must be corrected, if at all, in the manner provided for the correction of other errors. Shea v. Quintin, 30 Iowa, 55; Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Id., 217; Ballinger v. Tarbell, 16 Id., 491.

A defective notice does not affect the jurisdiction of the court or validity of the proceedings. Such a case is not one of no notice, but of defective notice, upon the sufficiency of which the court has jurisdiction to pass. Donoherty v. McManus, 35 Id., 657, and cases cited.

Sec. 3522. [Service and return.]—The service and return thereof must be made in the same manner as in the circuit court, except that no service shall be made by publication other than is herein provided, nor shall any return made by another than the sheriff or a constable of the county be valid unless sworn to.

A defendant cannot after he has by his own act, or that of his attorney, recognized the validity of a service of notice upon his agent, object to the jurisdiction of the justice. Baker v. Kerr, 13 Iowa, 384.

Where in the original notice issued by a justice of the peace there was a material misnomer, and the service was made by leaving a copy at the usual place of residence of the defendant during her temporary sojourn at another place, and she was ignorant of the pending of the action until after judgment and the levy of execution, when she offered to pay the amount she admitted to be due the plaintiff, after which the plaintiff and the officer sold her property under the execution to satisfy the judgment, it was held: 1. That the defendant not being personally served, and having no actual notice of the pending of the action, was not bound to take notice of the misnomer by plea in abatement. 2. That under the circumstances the plaintiff in execution and the officer who executed the writ were trespassers. Journey v. Distmonson et al., 21 Id., 208.

Sec. 3523. [Defendant may pay officer.]—The defendant may at any time pay to the officer having the process, or to the justice of the peace, the amount of the claim, together with the costs which have been accrued, and thereupon the proceedings shall cease.
APPEARANCE OF PARTIES.

SEC. 3524. [Agent's authority.]—An agent appearing for another may be required by the justice to show his authority, if written, or prove it by his own oath or otherwise, if verbal.

A defendant may appear by an agent and consent to judgment before a justice of the peace, and it is not necessary that the authority of the agent to do so should be entered of record. Brown v. Newman, 13 Iowa, 346.

SEC. 3525. [One hour given.]—The parties in all cases are entitled to one hour in which to appear after the time fixed for appearance, and neither party is bound to wait longer for the other.

Although a defendant appeared and filed an answer in an action before a justice of the peace within fifteen minutes after the hour at which the notice was returnable, yet the plaintiff was not required to give any attention to the case until one hour after the return hour, and "the time of joining issue" did not expire until he had a reasonable time, after appearing within the hour, to examine the answer, and to determine what course he would pursue in relation thereto; and a demand for a jury within such reasonable time, to try the issue raised by the answer, was not too late, though made more than an hour after the return hour. Where the hour for appearance has been extended by agreement, the time for joining issue will be correspondingly extended. Hall v. The C., B. & Q. Ry Co., 65 Iowa, 258.

Where a justice of the peace renders judgment by default before the expiration of the hour after the return hour, and the defendant afterwards and within the hour appears to the action, such judgment is irregular, but not void, and the remedy is by appeal or writ of error, and cannot be restrained by injunction. The Central Iowa Railway Co. v. Pierson, Id., 498.

SEC. 3526. [Postponement.]—Upon the return day, if the justice be actually engaged in other official business, he may postpone proceedings in the case until such business is finished.

SEC. 3527. [Adjournment.]—If from any cause the justice is unable to attend to the trial at the time fixed, or if a jury be demanded, he may adjourn the cause for a period not exceeding three days, nor shall he make more than two such adjournments.

SEC. 3528. [Same.]—In case of the absence of witnesses, either party at his own cost may obtain an adjournment, not exceeding sixty days, by filing an affidavit like that required to obtain a continuance in the circuit court for the like cause.

SEC. 3529. [Condition of.]—Either party applying for an adjournment must, if required by the adverse party, consent that the testimony of any witness of the adverse party who is in attendance be then taken to be used on the trial of the cause.

SEC. 3530. [Pleadings.]—The pleadings must be substantially the same as in the circuit court. They may be written or oral. If oral, they must in substance be written down by the justice in his docket, and sworn to when such verification is necessary.

A reply to a set-off, pleaded before a justice of the peace, based upon the account composed of several items, which denies owing the defendant the sum claimed or other sums as alleged, was held sufficient. Goffrey v. Cruise, 1 Iowa, 92.

The pleadings in an action before a justice of the peace may be written or oral, and when oral they must, in substance, be entered by the justice in his docket, but not with that technical particularity required in formal pleadings, and in an action on a bond it is not necessary to specify the breaches complained of. Stone v. Murphy, 2 Id., 35; Glidden v. Higbee, 31 Id., 379, 381; Hall v. Monahan, 1 Id., 554; West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.

When pleadings before a justice of the peace are written, nice technicality of pleading or exact correspondences of proof is not required; but they are required to be substantially the same as in the circuit court. Glidden v. Higbee, 31 Id., 379, 381. See also, Geff v. Blake, 16 Id., 222; Blake v. Graves, 20 Id., 312; West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.

Where a trial of a cause has been had before a justice of the peace, it will be presumed on appeal that the trial was on the merits, and that a set-off pleaded by the defendant was orally denied. The statute directing oral pleadings to be entered upon the docket of the justice is merely directory. West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137.
In an action before a justice the defendant may prove payment at the time he received the goods under a general denial of indebtedness. Id.

In an action before a justice of the peace, a notice that the plaintiff claimed of the defendant upon a promissory note, although the defendant was merely a guarantor of the note, was held sufficient. Francis v. Bently, 50 Id., 59.

It is not necessary to the maintenance of an action in a justice's court against a railroad company for double damages for killing stock, that a petition in writing be filed; an oral statement embodying in substance the plaintiff's claim is sufficient. Finch v. The Central R. Co., 42 Id., 304.

A petition in an action before a justice of the peace claiming one hundred dollars is within the jurisdiction of the justice, notwithstanding the notice states that if the defendant does not appear judgment will be rendered for the whole amount, with interest and costs. Morrow v. Murphy, 49 Id., 68.

Where the defendant in an action before a justice of the peace makes an appearance and there is a full trial on the merits under the testimony introduced by both parties, the plaintiff's claim will, on appeal, be considered as denied, though it appears that there was no formal denial thereof by the defendant in writing or orally before the justice. Richman v. Brown, 23 Id., 33; Stankmon v. Milburn, 4 G. Greene, 309; Hall v. Denise, 6 Iowa, 534; Clark v. Barnes, 7 Id., 6; Brock v. Manatt, 5 Id., 270; Heath v. Cottenback, 1 Id., 490; West v. Moody, 33 Id., 137; Greff v. Blake, 15 Id., 222.

It is not necessary to the maintenance of an action before a justice of the peace against a railroad company for double damages for killing stock that a petition in writing be filed; an oral statement embodying in substance plaintiff's claim is sufficient. Finch v. The Central R. of Iowa, 42 Id., 381.

SEC. 3531. A counter-claim must be made, if at all, at the time the answer is put in.

The plaintiff in an action before a justice of the peace may dismiss the same without the consent of the defendant, at any time before a counter-claim is pleaded, by filing a written answer, or by an oral answer entered on the justice's docket. Kuhn v. Bone, 10 Iowa, 392.

Conversations between parties or their attorneys, in respect to the action pending, should not be entered on the docket of the justice. Id.

SEC. 3532. The original, or a copy of all written instruments upon which a cause of action or counter-claim is founded, must be filed with the claim founded thereon, or a sufficient reason given for not doing so.

In the trial of a cause in court upon appeal from a justice of the peace, it may be shown by parol, that a written contract, which was the basis of the action, was delivered to the justice by the plaintiff for the purpose of having it filed; that the justice neglected to file it, but that it was offered and received in evidence on the trial below; and upon such showing the contract may be received in evidence on the trial of the case on appeal. Engleston v. Collins, 10 Iowa, 554.

SEC. 3533. [Change of place of trial.]—Either party, before the trial is commenced, may have the place of trial changed, upon filing an affidavit that the justice is prejudiced against him, or is a near relation to the other party, or is a material witness for the affiant, or that the affiant cannot obtain justice before him; but no more than one change shall be allowed to each party, unless the justice to whom the case shall be transmitted is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree, or is a witness, or has been an attorney employed in the action, in either of which events, a second change may be allowed to the same party.

An application for a change of venue is in time, when made after one trial in which the jury disagreed and were discharged, and the cause continued to another day, and a second jury was summoned, but not sworn. Marshall & McKee v. Kinney, 1 Iowa, 580.

Where a proper affidavit is made and filed for a change of venue, it is error to refuse it. Berner v. Frazier, 8 Id., 77.

But an affidavit for a change of venue made after the trial has been commenced should be overruled. McKinney v. Hopkins, 20 Id., 485.

SEC. 3534. [Case sent to another justice.]—When said change is allowed, said justice shall transmit all the original papers in said case, and a transcript of his proceedings to the next nearest justice in the township, if there be any, if not, to the next nearest justice in his county, and said justice shall proceed to try said case, and if he cannot try the same immediately, he shall then fix a time therefor, of which all parties shall take notice.
Upon a proper application being filed for a change of venue from a justice of the peace, the case must be sent to the nearest justice of the same township, if there be any; if not, to the next nearest in the county. Tenant v. Anderson, 55 Iowa, 625, 626.

When a justice of the peace grants a change of venue, it is his duty to send the papers to the "next nearest justice," and must designate by name who the next nearest justice is. Until this is done he retains jurisdiction of the cause, and no other justice to whom the papers may be taken can acquire jurisdiction. Brommer v. Hollowell et al., 59 Id., 433.

SEC. 3585. [When title to real property is pleaded.]—If the title to real property be put in issue by the pleadings, supported by affidavit, or shall manifestly appear from the proof on the trial of the issue, the justice shall, without further proceedings, certify the cause and papers, with transcript of his docket, showing the reason of such transfer to the circuit court, where the same shall be tried on the merits. No cause so transferred shall be dismissed because the justice erred in transferring the same.

A defendant in an action before a justice of the peace cannot have the case dismissed by filing an answer which raises the question of title to real property. The answer of the defendant is not the test of jurisdiction of the justice. Coz v. Graham, 3 Iowa, 347.

When it is made to appear on the trial that the title to real estate is involved, the fact operates to transfer the cause to the circuit court, but not to dismiss it. Id.

Where in an action of forcible entry and detainer before a justice of the peace, the petitioner does not set up title in the plaintiff, an answer denying plaintiff's title and averring title in the defendant is not responsive to the petition and does not raise an issue of title to the property which requires the removal of the cause to the circuit court. Jordan v. Walker, 56 Id., 686.

SEC. 3586. [Same.]—But when a case is thus transferred, or dismissed on account of the title to land being involved, if there are other causes of action not necessarily connected, they may be severed and the latter tried before the justice.

THE TRIAL.

SEC. 3537. [By justice.]—Unless one of the parties demand a trial by jury at or before the time for joining issue, the trial shall be by the justice.

SEC. 3538. [Dismissal of action.]—If the plaintiff fails to appear by himself, his agent or attorney, on the return day, or at any other time fixed for the trial, the justice shall dismiss the case and render judgment against him for costs, except in the case provided in the next section.

SEC. 3539. [Not when founded on writing.]—When the suit is founded on an instrument of writing, purporting to have been executed by the defendant, in which the demand of the plaintiff is liquidated, if the signature of the defendant is not denied under oath, and if the instrument has been filed with the justice previous to the day for appearance he may proceed with the cause whether the plaintiff appear or not.

SEC. 3540. [Default.]—In the case provided for in the last section, if the defendant does not appear, judgment shall be rendered against him for the amount of the plaintiff's claim.

SEC. 3541. [Same.]—But if, where the plaintiff's claim is not founded on such written instrument, the defendant does not appear, the justice shall proceed to hear the allegations and proofs of the plaintiff, and shall render judgment thereon for the amount to which he shows himself entitled, not exceeding the amount stated in the notice.

A justice of the peace is entitled to a trial fee in default cases, and in cases coming under this and the following sections he is authorized to charge both a trial fee and a fee for entering judgment by default. Shaw v. Kendig, 57 Iowa, 390.

SEC. 3542. [Counter-claim.]—In the cases contemplated in the last two sections, if the defendant has previously filed a counter-claim, founded on a written instrument purporting to have been signed by the plaintiff, calling for a certain sum, the justice shall allow such counter-claim in the same manner as though the defendant had appeared, and shall render judgment accordingly.
SEC. 3543. [Judgment set aside.]—Judgment dismissing the cause, or by default, may be set aside by the justice at any time within six days after being rendered, if the party applying therefor can show a satisfactory excuse.

A defendant in an action before a justice of the peace who has appealed and answered, but fails to make a further appearance on the day to which the cause is continued, cannot be said to be in default within the meaning of this section, and the justice has no power to open the judgment rendered against him on the testimony of the plaintiff, and order a rehearing of the cause.
—Douglass v. Langdon & Bro., 29 Iowa, 245.

Plains filed when the defendant is in default, should on motion of plaintiff, be stricken from the files. Brayton v. Delaware Co., 16 Id., 44.

When a defendant is in default, before a justice of the peace he will not be permitted to plead until the default has been set aside by a compliance with section 2871 of the code. Id.

Where in an action, before a justice of the peace, an appearance was taken on the papers, and to which the defendant four days thereafter made oath that he had orally denied plaintiff’s claim on the trial, and the justice had failed to enter the denial on his docket, on which affidavit the justice set aside the judgment rendered, and appointed another day for the trial, it was held, that the judgment rendered by the justice, was not a judgment by default, and that the justice had no power to set it aside. Rhodes v. De Bose, 5 Id., 260.

The term “judgment by default,” in this section is to be understood in its strictly technical sense, as a judgment for want of an appearance. Id.

The appellate court will not interfere with an order of a justice of the peace setting aside a judgment by default, if made within the time prescribed by law, unless where there has been a clear abuse of discretion. Stivers v. Thompson, 15 Iowa, 1.

The law does not contemplate notice to the opposite party of an application to set aside a default before a justice of the peace. When it is set aside and a new trial ordered, notice of the time of such trial is necessary. Id. Also Park v. Ratcliffe, 42 Id., 42.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace may be withdrawn and an application to set aside the judgment be made within the time fixed by the statute (six days) for doing so, provided the appeal has not been perfected or the transcript set up. Id.

This section applies only to cases where there has been personal service of notice, but does not apply to cases where the action was by attachment and the service by publication and no appearance for the defendant. In the latter cases the defendant may have the judgment set aside and the case retried by proper application within two years. Taylor & Parley Organ Co. v. Plumb et al., 57 Id., 33.

The judgment by default of a justice of the peace cannot be impeached by affidavits showing that the default was taken before the proper time therefor. The record showing that the judgment was rendered at the proper time is conclusive as to that fact. Cory v. King & Co., 49 Id., 265.

SEC. 3544. [New trial.]—In such case a new day shall be fixed for trial, and notice thereof given to the other party or his agent.

SEC. 3545. [Costs.]—Such orders shall be made in relation to the additional costs thereby created as the justice shall think equitable.

Upon setting aside a judgment by default, the justice will make such order as to the costs as shall be equitable. Stivers v. Thompson, 15 Iowa, 1.

SEC. 3546. [Execution recalled.]—Any execution which may in the meantime have been issued, shall be recalled in the same manner as in cases of appeal.

SEC. 3547. [Jury summoned.]—If a jury trial be demanded, the justice shall issue his precept to some constable of the township, directing him to summon the requisite number of jurors possessing the same qualifications as are required in the circuit court.

SEC. 3548. [Number of jurors.]—The jury shall consist of six jurors, unless a smaller number be agreed upon between the parties. Each party is entitled to three peremptory challenges and no more. Any deficiency in their number, arising from any cause, may be supplied by summoning others in the manner above directed.

SEC. 3549. [Discharge of jury.]—The justice may discharge the jury, when satisfied they cannot agree, and shall immediately issue a new precept for summoning another, to appear at a time therein fixed, not more than three days distant, unless the parties otherwise agree.
SEC. 3550. [Motion in arrest.]—No motion in arrest of judgment, or to set aside a verdict, can be entertained by a justice of the peace.
A motion in arrest of judgment, or to set aside the verdict of a jury cannot be entertained by a justice of the peace. Rhodes v. De Boer, 5 Iowa, 290; Dupont v. Doubling, 6 Id., 172.
Where in a justice's court, there was an issue of tender, and a judgment for costs based on the trial of that issue, the justice had no jurisdiction to entertain a motion to re-tax the costs; for to do so would be equivalent to setting aside the verdict as to that issue; and that he cannot do. And consent of the parties could give jurisdiction only of the persons, and not of the subject matter. Miller v. Haley, 66 Id., 260.
A point of law involved in a cause before a justice of the peace cannot be reviewed on a writ of error unless it was in some proper way raised before the justice, and ruled on by him. And when the question was as to the right of plaintiff to recover exemplary damages, as claimed by him in his petition, but no ruling was asked on that point or secured until after a verdict had been rendered awarding such damages, it was then too late to raise the point; for the justice had no power to set the verdict aside or to arrest the judgment. And he had no alternative but to render judgment on the verdict. Atkinson v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 70 Id., 65.
SEC. 3551. [Verdict.]—The verdict of the jury must be general. But where there are several plaintiffs or defendants, the verdict may be for or against one or more of them.

JUDGMENT AND PROCEEDINGS INCIDENT THERETO.

SEC. 3552. [Judgment.]—In cases of dismissal, confession, or on the verdict of a jury, the judgment shall be rendered and entered upon the docket forthwith. In all other cases, the same shall be done within three days after the cause is submitted to the justice for final action.
Upon the rendition of a verdict of the jury, it is the duty of the justice to enter judgment thereon forthwith, and he has no power or authority to enter it at any other time. Guthrie v. Humphrey, 7 Iowa, 23.
A judgment rendered by the justice on the verdict after the time allowed by law, has no force or effect, and an appeal therefrom cannot be sustained. Id. Also, Harper v. Albee, 10 Id., 389.
Where a verdict of a jury was returned in the justice's court at half past ten o'clock at night and the judgment was entered thereon by the justice at eleven o'clock A. M. the following day, it was held, that giving the statute a liberal construction, this was in time, and valid. Davis v. Simms, 14 Id., 154.
The term “forthwith” as used in the statute means in a reasonable time. Id. Also, Burnette v. Cassidy, 18 Id., 342, 344; Lyon v. Comstock, 9 Id., 306.
Where a garnishee appeared before a justice of the peace and answered admitting his indebtedness to the defendant, and the docket of the justice failed to show that the cause was then finally submitted, his jurisdiction to render judgment against the garnishee was not lost by the fact that more than three days elapsed after filing the answer before the judgment was entered. Moore v. Reeves, 47 Id., 30.
The appellant in an action appealed from a justice of the peace may dismiss his own appeal in the appellate court. Harper v. Albee, 10 Id., 389; Goodnow v. Perry, 12 Id., 330.
SEC. 3553. [In excess of jurisdiction.]—If the sum found for either party exceed the jurisdiction of the justice, such party may remit the excess and take judgment for the residue, but he can never afterward sue for the amount so remitted.
A judgment was rendered by a justice of the peace for $35. On the same day the plaintiff remitted all thereof above $24.99. The next day defendant appealed. Held, that the amount in controversy was only $24.99, and that an appeal would not lie. Miller v. Gross, 66 Id., 252.
SEC. 3554. [Same.]—Instead of so remitting the excess, the party obtaining such verdict may elect to have judgment dismissing the action in which case the plaintiff shall pay the costs.
SEC. 3555. [Mutual judgments.]—Mutual judgments between the same parties, rendered by the same or different justices, may be set off against each other.
SEC. 3556. When rendered by the same court, the same course shall be pursued as is prescribed in the circuit court.
SEC. 3557. [By different justices.]

If the judgment proposed to be set off was rendered by another justice the party offering it must obtain a transcript thereof, with a certificate of the justice who rendered it endorsed thereon, stating that no appeal has been taken, and that the transcript was obtained for the purpose of being used as a counter-claim in that case.

SEC. 3558. [Time.]

Such transcript shall not be given until the time for taking an appeal has elapsed.

SEC. 3559. [Docket entry.]

The justice so giving a transcript shall make an entry of the fact in his docket, and all other proceedings in his court shall thenceforth be stayed.

SEC. 3560. [Execution for balance.]

Such transcript being presented to the justice who has rendered a judgment between the same parties as aforesaid, if execution has not been issued on the judgment rendered by him, he shall strike a balance between the judgments and issue execution for such balance.

SEC. 3561. [Same.]

If execution has already issued, the justice shall also issue execution on the transcript filed with him, and deliver it to the same officer who has the other execution.

SEC. 3562. [Duty of officer.]

Such officer shall treat the lesser execution as so much cash collected on the larger, and proceed to collect the balance accordingly.

SEC. 3563. [Costs.]

The above rules as to counter-claim are subject to the same prohibition as to setting off costs, when the effect will be to leave an insufficient amount of money actually collected to satisfy the costs of both judgments, as is contained in the rules of proceedings in the circuit court.

SEC. 3564. [Transcript filed.]

When the judgment of another justice is thus allowed to be set off, the transcript thereof shall be filed among the papers of the case in which it is to be so used, and the proper entry made in the justice's docket.

SEC. 3565. [Refusal to allow counter-claim.]

If the justice refuses the judgment as a set-off, he shall so certify on the transcript, and return it to the party who offered it. When filed in the office of the justice who gave it, proceedings may be had by him in the same manner as though no transcript had been certified by him.

SEC. 3566. [Judgment by confession.]

A judgment by confession without action may be entered by a justice of the peace for an amount within his jurisdiction, and the provisions of law regulating judgments by confessions in courts of record, shall, as far as applicable, apply to confessions of judgment before a justice of the peace, and the justice shall enter such judgments on his docket, and may issue execution thereon as in other cases.

For cases as to judgments by confession in the district and circuit courts see notes to section 2897, ante.

FILING TRANSCRIPTS IN THE CLERK'S OFFICE.

SEC. 3567. [May be done when.]

The party obtaining a judgment in a justice's court for more than ten dollars, may cause a transcript thereof to be certified to the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county.

A transcript of a judgment of a justice of the peace filed with the clerk of the courts in another county than that in which the judgment was rendered creates no lien upon the real estate of the defendant in the county where filed. Blaney v. Hanks, 14 Iowa, 400.

The only method of making a judgment of a justice of the peace a lien upon lands in another county is by filing a transcript of the judgment in the office of the clerk of the courts in the same county where the judgment was rendered, and then by filing a transcript of the judgment and memorandum in such clerk's office, in the office of the clerk in the other county where the lands are situated. Id.
SEC. 3568. [Manner and effect.]—The clerk shall forthwith file such transcript, and enter a memorandum thereof in his judgment docket, noting the time of filing the same, and from the time of such filing it shall be treated in all respects, as to its effect and mode of enforcement, as a judgment rendered in the circuit court as of that date. And no execution can thereafter be issued by the justice on the judgment.

When the transcript of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace is filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the same county, it amounts, in effect, from that time to a judgment of the circuit court, and can only be enforced by execution issued thereon by the clerk of such court. Anderson v. Hall, 48 Iowa, 346, 347.

Under this section the filing of a transcript of a judgment from a justice of the peace in the circuit court renders the judgment enforceable by execution for the period of twenty years from the date of such filing. McCoy & James v. Cox, 54 Id., 685.

SEC. 3569. [When and by whom issued.]—Executions for the enforcement of judgment in a justice's court, may be issued as provided in this chapter, at any time within ten years from the entry of the judgment, but not afterward.

Under section 3911 of the revision, an execution could not be lawfully issued on a judgment of a justice by the justice after the lapse of five years from the entry of the judgment. Givens v. Campbell, 20 Iowa, 79.

Where a judgment was rendered by a justice of the peace in December, 1868, less than five years prior to the taking effect of the Code of 1873, and execution was issued thereon in 1877, it was held that the execution was lawfully issued, because the limitation in force when the judgment was rendered had not fully run when this section of the code took effect and extended the time for the issuance of the execution to ten years from the date of the judgment. Woods v. Haviland et al., 59 Id., 476.

SEC. 3570. [Substance of.]—Such execution shall be against the goods and chattels of the defendant therein, and shall be directed to any constable of the county.

SEC. 3571. [Return.]—It must be dated on the day on which it is issued, and made returnable within thirty days thereafter.

SEC. 3572. [Renewable.] If not satisfied when returned, it may be renewed from time to time by an endorsement thereon to that effect, signed by the justice, and dated of the date of such renewal.

A sale of personal property under an execution issued by a justice of the peace, made after the life of the execution under which the levy was made has expired, and without its renewal, was held to pass a valid title to the purchaser. Walton v. Wray, 54 Iowa, 531.

SEC. 3573. [For thirty days.]—Such endorsement must state the amount paid on such execution, and shall continue the execution in full force for thirty days from the date of renewal.

SEC. 3574. [Property.—Property levied on before such renewal, may be retained by the officer and sold after renewal.

APPEALS.

SEC. 3575. (As amended by ch. 163, 18th g. a.) [When allowed.]—Any person aggrieved by the final judgment of a justice, may appeal therefrom to the circuit court in the county. [But no appeal shall be allowed in any case where the amount in controversy does not exceed twenty-five dollars.]

There must be a judgment entered before an appeal can be taken. Kimble v. Riggin, 2 G. Green, 265; Brown v. Scott, Id., 404; Guthrie v. Humphrey, 7 Id., 23.

No appeal lies from the verdict of a jury. Id.

Whenever a final judgment is rendered by a justice of the peace an appeal may be taken by the party deeming himself aggrieved. Griffin v. Moss, 3 Id., 261.

The proper mode to review a question of fact is by appeal, and not by writ of error. Taylor v. Rockwell, 10 Id., 530.

This section does not give the right of appeal to a surety in a replevin bond, from the judgment in the case. Crites v. Littleton, 23 Id., 205.

Where, before trial in a justice's court a tender of a certain sum was made but not accepted, and trial was had, it was held that the portion of the claim not tendered was the amount in controversy under this section. Young v. McWaid, 57 Id., 101.

An appeal lies from an order or judgment of a justice of the peace which is in its effect final, whether it be one of law or fact. It was accordingly held that an appeal lies from an order of a justice dissolving an attachment on motion of a garnishee and discharging him thereon; such order being a disposition of the garnishment, and a final judgment thereon within the meaning of the law. Hodge v. Ruggles et al., 30 Id., 42.

An appeal will not lie from a justice of the peace on an award of arbitrators. The action of the justice, in refusing to set aside the award or to recommit the cause, may be reviewed on writ of error, but no trial on the merits can be had after the return of the award. White v. Culver, 25 Id., 30.

Where a cause is dismissed because of the non-appearance of the plaintiff, and judgment is rendered against him for costs only, an appeal will not lie from such judgment because not final. Stricker v. Holte, 40 Id., 291.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace the plaintiff claimed $24.50 and there was a counter-claim for $30, and upon the trial the justice rendered judgment against the plaintiff for costs, from which he appealed, held that the amount in controversy was that shown by the pleadings, and not the amount of the judgment, and that the amount in controversy being over $25, the circuit court had jurisdiction of the appeal, under this section of the code. Perry v. Conger & Norris, 65 Id., 588. To the same effect is Landab v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 1 Id., 473.

Where plaintiff in a justice's court, claimed to recover $100, but he recovered judgment for only $20, and the defendant appealed to the circuit court. Before the appeal, however, plaintiff filed with the justice a paper withdrawing his claim for $100, and claiming only $20. Held, that the effect of this paper was to reduce the amount in controversy, as shown by the pleadings to less than $25, and that an appeal to the circuit court would not lie. Bateman v. Sisson, 70 Id., 518.

To the same effect is Milner v. Gross, 66 Id., 252.

Where a party consents to a judgment before a justice of the peace, he cannot claim to be aggrieved thereby, and hence he cannot appeal therefrom. Steer v. Heald, 61 Id., 709.

This section as amended, held, not in conflict with section 9 article 1 of the state constitution, nor with article 2 of the ordinance of 1787. Higgin & Adams v. The Farmer's Ins. Co., 60 Id., 50.

When a party consents to a judgment before a justice of the peace, he cannot claim to be "aggrieved" thereby, and hence he cannot appeal therefrom. Steer v. Heald, 61 Id., 709.

SEC. 3576. [Time.]—The appeal must be taken and perfected within twenty days after the rendition of the judgment.

A cause was tried on the 5th day of the month, and the original transcript showed that an appeal bond was filed on the 19th day of the same month, while the bond was marked filed on the 24th, and an amended transcript showed that the appeal was taken on the 29th. Held, that the court did not err in holding that the appeal was not taken in time. Brown v. Beesett, 13 Id., 185.

On appeal the court may hear evidence to explain a mistake in the record of a justice of the peace. Id.

An appeal from a justice in a civil action must be taken within twenty days from the rendition of the judgment. When taken later there is no appeal in law, and a motion to strike the case from the docket is the proper practice; but where an order is made, upon a motion, to dismiss the appeal, the court has no jurisdiction to render judgment on the appeal bond, or any other judgment, except for costs. Martin & Sellers v. Crocker, 62 Id., 328.

Where an entry in the transcript, sent up on appeal from a justice of the peace, showed that the appeal bond was filed and approved March 25th, two days after judgment was rendered, notice of appeal was served on the 27th of the same month, and the transcript filed on the 29 of April, but the bond was indorsed as filed and approved on the 27th of May; it was held: 1. That the justice was not required to make the indorsement on the bond, and was required to make the entry in his docket, and that the latter must control. 2. That the record showed the appeal to have been perfected within twenty days after the rendition of the judgment. Moore v. Mauzer; 9 Id., 47.

Appeal, and not writ of error, is the proper remedy for the review of the final decision of a case before a justice of the peace. Lane et al. v. Goldsmith, 23 Id., 240.

SEC. 3577. [By clerk.]—If within twenty days the appellant is prepared to take his appeal, and is prevented only by the absence or death of the justice, or his inability to act, he may apply to the clerk of the circuit court of the county for the allowance of his appeal.
SEC. 3578. [And how.]—Such application shall be founded on an affidavit, stating the amount and nature of the judgment, and the time of the rendition thereof, as nearly as practicable, and the reason why he thus applies.

SEC. 3579. [Same.]—The clerk has thereupon the same power to act in the premises as the justice would have had. He may require the books and papers of the justice to be delivered to him, for which purpose he may issue a precept to the sheriff to that effect, if necessary, and may make out and file the transcript. After this he shall return to the office of the justice of the peace all the papers proper to be kept by the justice.

SEC. 3580. [Form of bond.]—The appeal shall in no case be allowed until a bond in the following form, or its equivalent, is taken and filed in the office of the justice or clerk as above provided, in an amount sufficient to secure the judgment and costs of appeal:

The undersigned acknowledge ourselves indebted to.......in the sum of.......dollars, upon the following condition: Whereas.......has appealed from the judgment of.......a justice of the peace, in an action between.......as plaintiff and.......defendant.

Now, if said appellant pays whatever amount is legally adjudged against him in the further progress of this cause, then this bond to be void.

Approved. A....B..., principal.

E....., justice. C....D..., surety.

If the judgment be affirmed, or if on a new trial the appellee recovers, or if the appeal be withdrawn or dismissed, judgment shall be rendered against the principal and surety in said bond.

An appeal bond which is equivalent to the form given in section 3580 is sufficient. A substantial compliance with the provisions of the statute is all that is necessary in attesting and approving the bond. Moore v. Manser, 9 Iowa, 47.

Where an appeal is taken from the judgment of a justice of the peace to the circuit court, in a case where an appeal is not allowed, because less than $25 is involved, and the appeal is dismissed, on motion, for that reason, while the circuit court has no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, it has jurisdiction under these sections to render judgment against the appellant and his sureties for the costs made on the appeal, and for the amount of the judgment appealed from. Prescott v. Bacon, 64 Id., 792.

The filing of an appeal bond with approved sureties, in the office of the justice of the peace, within the time prescribed by law, supersedes all action on the judgment appealed from beyond what is necessary in transmitting the transcript to the appellate court. McKeever v. Horine et al., 12 Id., 227.

Where in an action in justice's court, the plaintiff demanded judgment for $100 only, and judgment was rendered for him for that amount and costs, and the judgment bore 6 per cent interest, and the defendant appealed to the circuit court where judgment, as limited by the prayers of the petition, was again rendered for $400 and costs, held that the supreme court had no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from the circuit court without a certificate from the trial judge. Hayes v. The C. B. &Q R'y Co., 64 Id., 593.

SEC. 3581. [Proceedings suspended.]—Upon the appeal being taken in accordance with the foregoing provisions, all farther proceedings in the cause by him shall be suspended.

SEC. 3582. [If execution is issued.]—If, in the meantime, an execution has been issued, the justice shall give the appellant a certificate that the appeal has been allowed. Upon that certificate being presented to the constable, he shall cease farther action, and release any property that may have been taken in execution.

SEC. 3583. [Papers filed.]—Upon the taking of any appeal, the justice shall file in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, all the original papers relating to the suit, with the transcript of all the entries in his docket.

To insure a trial in the circuit court on appeal from a justice, the law requires that the justice shall file in the office of the clerk of said court, all the original papers relating to the suit, with a transcript of the entries on his docket. Cain v. Devitt, 8 Iowa, 116, 119.

A justice of the peace is not entitled to a fee for the approval and filing of an appeal bond prepared by the attorney of the appellant, nor can he demand from such party the payment to him of the clerk's fee for docketing the case in the circuit court, before allowing the appeal. He may, however, require the payment of his fee for making and certifying the transcript before allowing the same to go out of his possession. McKay v. Malow, 53 Id., 52.

SEC. 3584. [Upon the return of the justice being filed in the office of the clerk, the cause will be deemed in the circuit court.]

Where an appeal was taken from a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, and allowed more than ten days before the next term of the district court, after the appeal was taken, and the justice failed to return and file the transcript and papers until after the said term of court had passed, it was held, that such failure of the justice constituted no ground for affirming the judgment of the justice, on motion of the appellee, at a subsequent term. Holloway v. Baker, 6 Iowa, 52.

The circuit court has power to make and enforce a rule to the effect, that if the appellant, in an appeal from a justice of the peace, fails to have the transcript filed and the filing fee paid or secured by the second day of the term, that then the appellee may file the transcript and appeal bond and have the judgment of the justice affirmed against the appellant and his sureties on the bond. Pinders v. Yeger, 20 Id., 469. See also, McManus v. Humes, 6 Id., 159; The State v. Glass, 9 Id., 325.

Under this section, an appeal is deemed in the appellate court by the filing of the justice’s return in the office of the clerk. Goodman v. Allen, 54 N. W. R., 445.

SEC. 3585. [Return amended.—The circuit court may, by rule, compel the justice to allow an appeal, or to make or amend his return according to law.]

SEC. 3586. [Mistakes corrected.—Where an omission or mistake has been made by the justice in his docket entries, and that fact is made unquestionable, the circuit court may correct the mistake or supply the omission, or direct the justice to do so.

When a mistake in the transcript of a justice of the peace is unquestionably established, it may be corrected so as to fully try the cause in the appellate court, upon the same issues which were tried before the justice. Cooper v. Woodrow, 3 Iowa, 189.

A return of the justice amending his transcript is a part of his record, and may be read to the jury to show the matters in issue. Id.

Under section 3586 the court may hear evidence to explain a mistake in the record of a justice of the peace. Brown v. Beecatt, 15 Id., 185.

SEC. 3587. [Return: when made.—If an appeal is allowed ten days before the next term of the circuit court, the justice's return must be made at least five days before that term. All such cases must be tried when reached, unless continued for cause.

The failure of a justice of the peace to return the transcript and papers to the clerk of the circuit court five days before the commencement of the next term does not authorize an affirmance of the judgment on motion of the appellee. Fisher v. Harber, 10 Iowa, 293.

If ten days have not elapsed between the time of taking the appeal and the first day of the term, neither party can be compelled to go to trial in the case. Seeburger v. Miller, 20 Id., 428. It was therefore erroneous for the court to affirm the judgment on motion for non-payment of the docket fee, under a rule of court, when the appeal had been taken seven days before the first day of the term. Id.

An appeal from a justice of the peace is returnable at the next regular term of the court, and the judgment cannot be affirmed on motion of the appellee at a special term. Coon v. Mathews, 10 Id., 290.

SEC. 3588. [Notice of appeal.—If an appeal is not allowed on the day on which judgment is rendered, written notice thereof must be served on the appellee or his agent, at least ten days before the term of court to which the cause is returnable, provided there be ten days intervening, or the suit, on motion of the appellee, shall be continued at the cost of the appellant.

To give the appellate court jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice of the peace of the person of the appellee, it must be shown either that the appellee had the notice required by statute, or that he made a voluntary appearance in the appellate court. Quitlan v. Windsor, 6 Iowa, 296.

Notice to the appellee is not necessary to perfect an appeal from a justice of the peace, nor does a failure to give such notice authorize the dismissal of the appeal. Bond v. Davis, 37 Id., 163.

If the notice is not served as required by this section, the suit may, on motion of the appellee, be continued at the cost of the appellant, but it cannot be dismissed for that cause. Id.

On the neglect or refusal of the appellant to take any measures to get the cause into the appellate court; after an appeal has been taken, the appellee may have the cause docketed and the appeal dismissed or the judgment affirmed. Holloway v. Baker, 6 Id., 52.

Where an appeal is allowed and perfected on the day the judgment is rendered, the law does not require that notice of appeal shall be served on the appellee. Id.

When the return of the justice is filed in the clerk's office, the cause is to be deemed in the circuit court. Id.

When the appellate court has jurisdiction of the subject matter, a mere irregularity in the taking of an appeal or in giving notice thereof, is waived by a voluntary appearance. Wilgus v. Gettinqs, 10 Id., 530.

SEC. 3589. [How served.]
Such notice may be served like the original notice, and if the appellee or his agent have no place of residence in the county, it may be served by being left with the justice.

SEC. 3590. [Effect of appeal.]
An appeal brings up a cause for trial on the merits, and for no other purpose. All errors, irregularities, and illegaliies are to be disregarded under such circumstances, if the cause might have been prosecuted in the circuit court.

On appeal from a justice of the peace the case is to be tried on its merits, and errors and irregularities before the justice disregarded. Gilson v. Johnson, 4 Iowa, 463.

A party appealing from a final decision of a justice of the peace is entitled to have the case tried de novo on appeal. Taylor v. Rockwell, 10 Id., 530.

The appellate court will not review the decision of a justice of the peace on an issue of fact on a writ of error. Id.

On an appeal from a justice of the peace, the erroneous ruling of the justice upon a demurrer may be reviewed and disregarded. Oleson v. Hendrickson, 12 Id., 222.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace operates as a waiver of all errors, irregularities and illegaliies, and brings the case up for trial on the merits. Leftwick v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56.

Where in an action before a justice of the peace upon a promissory note, the original notice described the plaintiffs as heirs of the payee, it was held that the notice did not, under the circumstances, show that they sued as heirs. King v. Gottschalk, 21 Id., 512.

An appeal does not lie from a judgment of a justice of the peace on an award of arbitrators. The action of the justice in refusing to set aside an award, or to re-commit the case to the arbitrators, may be reviewed upon writ of error; but no trial of the cause upon the merits can be had after the return of the award. White v. Culver, 25 Id., 30.

By going to trial on the merits, in a case appealed from a justice, the plaintiff waives the right to object to the ruling of the court on a demurrer to the defendant's answer. Warren v. Scott et al., 32 Id., 22.

In an action of tort before a justice of the peace, the defendant being in default, the justice, after hearing the evidence, rendered judgment for the plaintiff; upon appeal to the circuit court, the defendant failing to appear, a judgment of affirmance may properly be entered on motion of the plaintiff, without further trial; such affirmance cannot be entered until the case is reached for trial in regular order. Hartz v. The D. M. & M. R. Co., and Berry v. The same, 54 Id., 327.

Where a justice of the peace entertains an action the subject-matter of which is not within his jurisdiction by an appeal, even though as an original action, it might have been properly commenced in that court. McMeans v. Cameron, 51 Id., 691.

An appellant in the circuit court may dismiss his own appeal. 12 Id., 35.

Where the circuit court rendered judgment for the plaintiff for one hundred dollars, the amount demanded in the petition, held, that the supreme court had no jurisdiction of an appeal therefrom without the proper certificate of the trial judge. Hays v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co., 64 Id., 593.

SEC. 3591. [New demand.] No new demand or counter-claim can be introduced into a case after it comes into the circuit court, unless by mutual consent.

After an appeal to the circuit court from a judgment of a justice of the peace, a party cannot, as a matter of right, file additional or new pleadings. He may, however, be allowed to do so under equitable circumstances and upon proper terms, after satisfactorily excusing his failure to plead before the justice. Warren v. Scott, 22 Iowa, 22.

On an appeal from a justice of the peace the circuit court may allow an answer to be so amended as to set up the defense of payment not pleaded before the justice. Such defense being neither a new demand nor a counter-claim within the meaning of this section. St. Louis Type Foundry v. Medes, 60 Id., 625.
Amendments to the pleadings, in a case appealed from a justice of the peace, may be allowed by the circuit court in furtherance of justice and in the exercise of a sound discretion. Clow v. Murphy, 52 Iowa, 685.

Where a judgment was obtained before a justice of the peace on a note on which there could be no legal recovery, it was error for the circuit court, on appeal, to allow the plaintiff, against the defendant's objection, to amend his petition by setting up a mistake in the making of the note, and asking equitable relief in the reformation of the instrument. This was in violation of this section, which provides that "no new demand or counter-claim can be introduced into a case after it comes into the circuit court, unless by consent." Hollin v. Davis et al., 59 Iowa, 444.

SEC. 3592. [Appellant pay costs.] The appellant must pay the costs of the appeal, unless he obtains a more favorable judgment than that from which he appealed.

Where a defendant appeals from a judgment rendered against him by a justice of the peace, and the plaintiff on appeal recovers a lesser judgment than was rendered by the justice, he (the plaintiff) is entitled to recover the costs made subsequent to the appeal. Best v. Dean, 8 Iowa, 519.

Where the judgment on appeal was the same as that before the justice, the costs was properly taxed against the party appealing. Fisher v. Moore, 19 Iowa, 84.

Where the plaintiff appeals and does not obtain a more favorable judgment than that rendered before the justice, he must pay the costs of the appeal. Trayer v. Fitkins, 10 Iowa, 563.

Where, in an action before a justice of the peace upon four separate items of demand, the judgment of the justice in favor of the plaintiff for twelve dollars was appealed from, and the plaintiff recovered one dollar in the circuit court, it was held, that the case was a proper one for an apportionment of the costs. Howder v. Overholser, 48 Iowa, 365.

Pending an action in a justice's court the defendant offered to confess judgment for a part of plaintiff's claim, which was less than the amount for which judgment was rendered, but equal to the sum recovered on appeal in the circuit court; it was held, that the plaintiff was liable for all costs incurred after the offer to confess was made. Watts v. Lambertson, 39 Iowa, 272.

A party appealing from a judgment of a justice of the peace may dismiss his appeal, but it must be at his own costs. Harper v. Albee, 10 Iowa, 389; Goodenow v. Perry, 12 Iowa, 350.

SEC. 3594. [Sureties.] Any judgment in the circuit court against the appellant shall be entered up against him and his sureties jointly.

On an appeal from a judgment of a justice, rendered by default for want of an appearance, it is not irregular for the appellate court to affirm the judgment, on motion of the plaintiff, where the appellant does not appear. Atkins v. McCready, 8 Iowa, 214.

And where the appellant appears after the judgment has thus been affirmed for want of appearance on his part, he must demand a trial on the merits, before he can object that the judgment of the justice was improperly affirmed on plaintiff's motion. Id.

A judgment by default may be entered against a party who appears before a justice of the peace, but fails or refuses to plead. McFarland v. Loevery, 40 Iowa, 467.

Upon appeal to the circuit court from a judgment by default in the justice's court, the appellant is, under section 3596 of the code, entitled to plead in the appellate court. Id.

Prior to the code of 1873, where a defendant in an action before a justice, after being duly served, made default, and judgment was rendered against him, he could not, on appeal, file an answer or demurrer as a matter of right. Ruddick v. Vail, 1 Iowa, 44; Leftwich v. Thornton, 18 Iowa, 56.

The circuit court has jurisdiction of the persons and of the subject matter to render a judgment against the sureties in an appeal bond, when judgment is rendered against the appellant, and if judgment is rendered for more than the penalty of the bond it is erroneous only and not void. Freeman v. Hart, 61 Iowa, 525.

The circuit court has jurisdiction of the persons and of the subject matter to render a judgment against the sureties in an appeal bond, when judgment is rendered against the appellant; and if judgment is rendered for more than the penalty of the bond, it is erroneous only and not void.

Id.

Sec. 3595. [Damages.]—If an appeal is taken for delay, the circuit court shall award such damages, not exceeding ten per cent on the amount of the judgment below, as may seem right.

Sec. 3596. [Pleadings filed in circuit court.]—If the appeal is taken from a judgment by default, the defendant may file in the circuit court, and the plaintiff reply thereto, any pleadings necessary to properly set forth any defense he may have to the action. In such case, the costs of the trial before the justice shall be taxed to the defendant.

If by reason of a mistake of the justice in rendering a judgment by default, the defendant is deprived of the opportunity to put in his defense, he can do so on appeal in the circuit court, and if he is deprived of setting up a counter-claim he can bring his action thereon. Cory v. King & Co., 49 Iowa, 365.

A judgment rendered by a justice of the peace on default without notice to the defendant, should be taken up by a writ of error, and not by appeal. Crane v. Fical, 10 Id., 457.

The circuit court will not review the finding of a justice of the peace on an issue of fact, on a writ of error. Taylor v. Rockwell, Id., 530.

On appeal from a judgment by default rendered by a justice of the peace, the defendant is entitled, as a matter of right, under this section to plead, upon payment of the costs accrued before the justice, at any time before the cause is reached for trial. Harty v. The D. M. & M. R. Co., 54 Id., 397.

This section has no application to appeals from justices except in cases where the judgment is rendered by default. Griswold v. Bowman, 40 Id., 367, 368.

Except in default cases, our statutes have given no fixed legal right to file a further answer or pleading in a cause after it has been tried before a justice and is pending on appeal in the circuit or district court; but the leave to file, even upon cause shown, is a matter of discretion. Id. See also, Ruddick v. Veil, 7 Id., 44; Denton v. Thornton, 15 Id., 217; Leftwick v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56; Stanton v. Warwick, 21 Id., 76; May v. Wilson, 1d., 79; Nettman v. Schramm, 23 Id., 521; Warren v. Scott, 32 Id., 22.

WRITS OF ERROR.

Sec. 3597. [When allowed.]—Any person aggrieved by an erroneous decision in a matter of law, or other illegality in the proceedings of a justice of the peace, may remove the same, or so much thereof as is necessary, into the circuit court for correction.

A writ of error does not lie to a justice of the peace because of an error that can be corrected by the justice on motion, unless a motion for that purpose has been made and overruled by the justice. Leonard v. Hallem, 17 Iowa, 564; Smith v. Parker, 23 Id., 359.

This rule applies where the error complained of was the rendering of judgment upon insufficient service of notice. Id.

An error committed by a justice of the peace in ruling on a demurrer, should be corrected on the justice on motion, unless a motion for that purpose has been made and overruled by the justice. Leonard v. Hallem, 17 Iowa, 564; Smith v. Parker, 23 Id., 359.

This rule applies where the error complained of was the rendering of judgment upon insufficient service of notice. Id.

An error committed by a justice of the peace in ruling on a demurrer, should be corrected on the justice on motion, unless a motion for that purpose has been made and overruled by the justice. Leonard v. Hallem, 17 Iowa, 564; Smith v. Parker, 23 Id., 359.

The proper remedy of a party aggrieved by the dismissal of an action by a justice of the peace, for want of jurisdiction is by writ of error. An appeal lies only from a final judgment. Belding v. Torrence, 39 Id., 516.

A writ of error does not lie from the district court to an inferior court in criminal cases. The defendant has the right of appeal upon which he may have a new trial on the merits. The State v. Flinn, 51 Id., 133.

A writ of error will not lie to the final decision of a justice of the peace upon the evidence, though erroneous. Appeal is the proper remedy. Lane & Wilson v. Goldsmith, 23 Id., 240.

Sec. 3598. [Affidavit.]—The basis of the proceedings is an affidavit filed in the office of the clerk, setting forth the errors complained of, and must be filed in the same time, and the notice must be the same as in case of appeal.

The affidavit of a writ of error to a justice of the peace may be made by an attorney of a party applying therefor, who knows the facts. Dixon v. Brophy, 29 Iowa, 462.

The statements in an affidavit for a writ of error amount to nothing unless there is a response thereto in the return of the justice. The affidavit lays the foundation for the writ, but cannot be regarded as evidence of the errors alleged. Vance v. Kifman, 20 Id., 13; Rhodes v. DeBow, 5 Id., 269; Lane & Wilson v. Goldsmith, 23 Id., 240.
When the return to the writ completely negatives the errors alleged in the affidavit the writ will not be sustained. 23 Id., 240.

A writ of error requires only so much of the case to be removed as is necessary to secure a correction of the error complained of. Speisberger Bros. v. Thomas, 59 Id., 606. And the affidavit for the writ must set forth the errors complained of. Id.

An affidavit is a written declaration under oath, signed by the affiant, and where a written statement on which a writ of error was not thus signed. A motion to strike it from the files should have been sustained. Cresshaw v. Taylor, 70 Id., 386.

SEC. 3599. [Writ.]—The clerk shall thereupon issue an order commanding the justice to certify the record and proceedings, so far as they relate to the facts stated in the affidavit.

SEC. 3600. [Copy.]—A copy of the affidavit shall accompany the order, and be served upon the justice, who shall, with the least practicable delay, make the return required.

SEC. 3601. [Proceedings stayed.]—All proceedings in the justice's court subsequent to judgment, may be stayed by a bond, entered into like that required in cases of appeals, and on which judgment shall be entered against the principal and surety in like manner and under like circumstances.

Where an appeal has been taken from a judgment of a justice of the peace and no supersedeas bond filed, an execution may issue to enforce the judgment after the appeal has been taken, and a levy of the same will not make the constable liable as a trespasser. Thomas v. Nicklas, 58 Iowa, 49.

SEC. 3602. [Amended return.]—The circuit court may compel an amended return when the first is not full and complete.

SEC. 3603. [Judgment.]—The circuit court may render final judgment, or it may remand the cause to the justice for a new trial, or such further proceedings as shall be deemed proper, and may prescribe the notice necessary to bring the parties again before the justice.

Where the ruling of a justice of the peace, in dissolving an attachment, is reversed upon writ of error, the court reversing such ruling should not render final judgment against the defendant, but remand that branch of the cause to which the writ of error reached, with directions to the justice to enforce the judgment rendered by him against the defendants in the main proceeding, with the lien of the attachment retained. Gourley v. Carmody, 23 Iowa, 212.

SEC. 3604. [Restitution.]—If the circuit court render a final judgment, reversing the judgment of the justice of the peace after such judgment has been collected in whole or in part, it may award restitution with interest, and issue execution accordingly, or it may remand the cause to the justice for this purpose.

The circuit court may in its discretion render final judgment on writ of error to a justice of the peace in certain cases. Broadwell v. Wilcox, 22 Iowa, 565, 569.

RECOVERY OF PERSONAL PROPERTY—ATTACHMENT.

SEC. 3605. [Action to recover personal property.]—The proceedings to gain possession of personal property wrongfully withheld, will be the same as are prescribed in such cases in the circuit court, except as modified in this chapter.

SEC. 3606. [Attachments.]—Attachments are not allowable in justice's courts, if the sum claimed is less than five dollars. And if more is claimed and less recovered, the plaintiff shall pay all the costs of the proceedings so far as they relate to the attachment.

SEC. 3607. [Garnishee.]—The constable has the same power to administer an oath to the garnishee and to take his answer, as is given to the sheriff in cases of attachment in the circuit court.

SEC. 3608. Garnishees may be required to appear and answer at the time fixed for the appearance of the parties to the action.

SEC. 3609. [Against non-residents.]—When an attachment or order for the delivery of property has been issued by any justice of the peace in any action, and it shall be found that the defendant is absent so that personal service cannot be had, the justice, upon the return day, unless the defendant appear, shall make an order fixing the day for trial, not less than sixty days thereafter, and requiring notice to be given by any constable as provided in the next section.

In an action before a justice of the peace in which property of the defendant has been attached, but no personal service of notice has been made on the defendant, it is error to render a personal judgment. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

SEC. 3610. [Notice to be given.]—Upon such order being made, at least sixty days notice of the pendency of such action shall be given by posting up written or printed notices in three public places in the township where the action was commenced, and such notices shall have the effect of a service by publication in the circuit court, and the justice shall proceed to hear the cause upon the day specified for that purpose; but no bond shall be required of the plaintiff after judgment as may be in the circuit court.

An omission to name the township in which the action is pending in the notices posted by order of a justice of the peace in an attachment suit before him, is not a fatal defect. Johnson v. Dodge, 19 Iowa, 106.

FORCIBLE ENTRY OR DETENTION OF REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3611. A summary remedy for forcible entry or detention of real property is allowable:

1. Where the defendant has by force intimidation, or fraud, or stealth, entered upon the prior actual possession of another in real property, and detains the same;

2. Where a lessee holds over after the termination, or contray to the terms of his lease;

3. Where the defendant continues in possession after a sale by foreclosure of a mortgage, or on execution, unless he claims by a tittle paramount to the lien by virtue of which the sale was made, or by title derived from the purchaser at the sale; in either of which cases, such title shall be clearly and concisely set forth in the defendant’s pleading.

A person who enters on land, intending to take possession of the entire tract, no part of which is held adversely at the time of his entry is in actual possession to the extent of his entry. Langworthy v. Myers, 4 Iowa, 18, 39.

If the plaintiff or owner of land, by force intimidation, fraud, or stealth, has entered upon the prior actual possession of the defendant, and detains the same, such prior occupant is entitled to his summary remedy for such entry and detention; and in that action the title cannot be investigated. Webster v. Stewart, 6 Id., 401, 404.

In an action of forcible entry and detainer the plaintiff alleged that the defendant had obtained possession of the premises in controversy, by fraud and stealth, and the answer denied the allegations of the petition, and are set up as a defense on a special contract; it was held, that the demurrer to that portion of the answer setting up the special contract was improperly sustained; that it was competent for the defendant to show by evidence that he entered into possession with plaintiff’s consent, under a contract of purchase. Olsen v. Hendrickson, 12 Id., 222.

Where a tenant takes possession of real property under an agreement that he is to occupy only so long as he shall continue in the employment of the landlord, he will not be regarded a tenant at will, but one holding under a definite lease, and if after quitting the service of his landlord, he refuses to yield up the possession of the premises, he will be regarded as one holding over after the termintion of his lease, and liable to an action of forcible entry and detainer by the landlord, after three days notice to quit. Grose nor v. Henry, 27 Id., 269.

Justices of the peace have exclusive original jurisdiction of actions of forcible entry and detainer, and such action cannot by consent be transferred to the district court for trial. Easton v. Fleming, 51 Id., 305.

At the expiration of the term of a lease the tenancy ceases, and a tenant holding over, unless after the termination of his lease he has been allowed by the landlord to plant a crop, is entitled to only the three days’ notice to quit provided in this section. Kellogg v. Groes et. al., 53 Id., 395.

See Gifford v. King et al., 54 Id., 221, for a discussion of facts under which it was held that the entry of the defendants into a house owned by plaintiffs was not by stealth, but tending to show them entitled to notice to quit as tenants holding over.
SEC. 3612. [Rent in arrear.]—The mere non-payment of rent by the time stipulated in the lease, does not enable a plaintiff to resort to this action unless expressly so stipulated in the lease.

SEC. 3613. [Who may bring.]—The legal representative of a person who might have been plaintiff if alive, may bring this suit after his death.

At common law an executor or administrator could not maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer for the lands of the decedent, but this section of the statute now permits such action to be brought by the personal representative. But it does not deprive the heir of his common law right to bring the action. _Beezley v. Burgett_, 15 Iowa, 192.

A saw mill built in a permanent manner and attached to the soil, will, as between the heir and the administrator, be regarded as part of the realty; and it is, therefore, _held_, that an action will not lie by the administrator against a third person for its conversion. _Kinsell v. Billings_, 35 Id., 154.

SEC. 3614. [Notice to quit.]—Before suit can be brought in any except the first of the above classes, three days notice to quit must be given to the defendant in writing.

Where the action is brought under the first clause of section 3611, no notice to quit is required. _Dicks v. Hatch_, 10 Iowa, 380, 383.

SEC. 3615. [Petition.]—The petition must be in writing and sworn to.

SEC. 3616. [Before what justice brought.]—The proceedings may be had before a justice of the peace of the township where the premises are situated, or if there is no justice therein able or qualified to act, they may be brought before some justice of an adjoining township. They shall be governed by the same rules as other cases before justices of the peace except as herein modified.

Want of jurisdiction of the justice can be taken advantage of by demurrer, only when it appears on the face of the petition. _Chilis v. Limback_, 30 Iowa, 398.

An appearance by the defendant waives all defects in the original notice. _Id._

SEC. 3617. [Time for appearance.]—The time for appearance and pleading must not be less than two, nor more than six days from the time the notice is served on the defendant.

SEC. 3618. [Adjournment.]—No adjournment shall be made for more than ten days, nor to any other place except by consent of parties.

SEC. 3619. [Judgment.]—If the defendant is found guilty, judgment shall be entered that he be removed from the premises, and that the plaintiff be put in possession thereof, and an order of removal shall issue accordingly, to which shall be added a clause commanding the officer to levy the costs as in ordinary cases.

SEC. 3620. [Title not investigated.]—The question of title cannot be investigated in this action. And nothing herein contained prevents a party from suing for a trespass, or from testing the right of property in any other manner.

The question of title is simply a question as to possession. _Beezley v. Burgett_, 15 Iowa, 192, 194.

The question of title being in no way involved in an action for forcible entry and detainer, evidence thereof is inadmissible. _Stevens et al. v. McCloy_, 36 Id., 659; _Settle v. Hanson_, Mon., 111.

In this action the question of title or right of possession is not involved and cannot be tried. The facts of actual possession by plaintiff, and an entry by force, fraud or stealth, or an unlawful detainer by the defendant, are the only ones to be determined. It is immaterial in what capacity or relation the plaintiff is in possession, whether as owner, tenant, agent or a mere trespasser. It is the fact of possession alone that is material. _Emsley v. Bennett_, 37 Id., 15.

SEC. 3621. [Bar.]—Thirty days peaceable and uninterrupted possession with the knowledge of the plaintiff after the cause of action accrued, is a bar to this proceeding.

SEC. 3622. [No joinder.]—An action of this kind cannot be brought in connection with any other, nor can it be made the subject of counter-claim.

SEC. 3623. [Order for removal.]—The order for removal can be executed only in the day time.

SEC. 3625. [Omitted in code. Restored by ch. 41, 15 g. a.] _An appeal or writ of error_, taken in the usual way, if the proper security is given, suspends the Sec. 3624. [Restitution.]—The circuit court, on the trial of the appeal, may issue an order of removal or restitution as the case may require.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 3625. [Official papers to successors.]—Every justice of the peace, upon the expiration of his term of office, must deposit with his successor his official dockets, as well as those of his predecessors which may be in his custody, there to be kept as public records. All his official papers shall also be turned over to his successor.

Sec. 3626. [Or county auditor.]—If his office becomes vacant by death, removal from the township, or otherwise, before his successor is elected, the said docket and papers shall be placed in the hands of the county auditor, to be by him turned over to the successor of the justice when elected and qualified.

Sec. 3627 [Successor may issue execution.]—The justice with whom the docket of his predecessor is thus deposited, may issue execution on or give a transcript of any judgment there entered, in the same manner and with like effect as the justice who rendered the judgment might have done; and in case of the death, absence or inability to act of any justice, or in case of the vacation of the office of any justice from any cause, then in such case execution may be issued from the docket of said justice or transcript given therefrom, by any other justice in said township with like effect as might have been done by the justice who rendered the judgment.

Sec. 3628. [Successor: how determined.]—When two or more justices are equally entitled to be deemed the successor in office of any justice as aforesaid, the county auditor shall determine by lot which is the successor, and certify accordingly; such certificate shall be in duplicate, one copy of which shall be filed in the office of such auditor, and the other given to such successor.

Sec. 3629. [Interchange.]—In case of sickness or other disability, or necessary absence of a justice at the time fixed for a trial of a cause or other proceeding, any other justice of the township may, at his request, attend and transact the business for him without any transfer to another office. The entries shall be made in the docket of the justice at whose office the business is transacted, and the same effect shall be given to the proceedings as though no such interchanging of official service had taken place.

Whether a justice of the peace of one township may hold a court in another township at the request of the resident justice, query? Ely v. Dillon, 21 Iowa, 47. That the justice who tried the case had no jurisdiction is not sufficient ground for dismissing the action, when the justice before whom the case was commenced did have jurisdiction. Only those acts are void which were done by the justice who had no jurisdiction. Id.

Sec. 3630. [Special constables.]—Any justice of the peace may, in writing, specially depute any person of suitable age to perform any particular duty properly devolving upon a constable, and for that particular purpose he shall be subject to the same obligations and receive the same fees. If such person be appointed to serve an attachment, execution or order, for the delivery of property, he shall, before levying upon such property, execute a bond to the state of Iowa in a penal sum of not less than two hundred dollars, to be fixed by the justice, with one or more freeholders as sureties, to be approved by and filed with the justice making the appointment, and the usual official oath shall be indorsed thereon and signed. For any breach of such bond, any person injured thereby may bring suit thereon, in his own name, and recover the same damages as upon a constable’s bond in like cases.
SEC. 3631. [No process.]—No process can issue from a justice's court into another county, except when specially authorized.

SEC. 3632. [Sheriff and constable.]—The constable is the proper executive officer in a justice's court, but the sheriff may perform any of the duties required of him. The powers and duties of the sheriff in relation to the business of the circuit court, so far as the same are applicable and not modified by statute, devolve upon the constable in relation to the justice's court.

SEC. 3633. [Justice his own clerk.]—The justice may be regarded as his own clerk and perform the duty of both judge and clerk.

SEC. 3634. [Successor to renew execution.]—When the term of office of a justice of the peace for any cause expires, his successor may issue execution, or renew execution, in the same manner and under the same circumstances as the former justice might have done if his term of office had not expired.

An execution which showed that the judgment upon which it was issued was "recovered before G. S. M.," without stating that he was a justice of the peace, was not absolutely void in the hands of the constable, so as to enable him to protect himself from liability on his bond for improper or negligent treatment of property levied upon by virtue thereof. Dean v. Goddard, 13 Iowa, 292.

It is the duty of a justice of the peace, upon the expiration of his term of office, to deposit with his successor his official docket and papers, to be kept as public records. His successor is then invested with power to issue executions on unsatisfied judgments on such docket, thus coming into his hands, in the same manner and with like effect as the justice rendering the judgment could do. Id., 295.

SEC. 3635. [Board of supervisors furnish docket.]—The board of supervisors of each county shall furnish to each justice of the peace of such county, a well bound blank record book of not less than four quires, with index, suitable for a docket, upon the certificate of such justice that the same is necessary for the business of the office.
CHAPTER 1.

OF GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF EVIDENCE.

SECTION 3636. (As amended by ch. 168, 17th g. a.) [Who competent.]—Every human being with sufficient capacity to understand the obligation of an oath is a competent witness in all cases, both civil and criminal, except as herein otherwise declared. [Defendants in all criminal proceedings shall be competent witnesses in their own behalf, but cannot be called as witnesses by the state, and should a defendant not elect to become a witness, that fact shall not have any weight against him on the trial, nor shall the attorney or attorneys for the state during the trial, refer to the fact that the defendant did not testify in his own behalf; and should he do so, such attorney or attorneys shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and defendant shall for that cause alone be entitled to a new trial.]

Where two or more defendants are jointly indicted and tried, each may call upon and use his co-defendant as a witness, the same as though separate trials had been granted. The State v. Gipher, 23 Iowa, 318.

Where the prosecuting attorney, on the trial of a criminal cause, refers to the fact that the defendant did not testify in his own behalf, the defendant is entitled to a new trial, under this section, as a matter of law, regardless of whether the remark is addressed to the court or to the jury, or whether the defendant is prejudiced thereby or not. The State v. Ryan, 70 Id., 154.

The plaintiff in an action of slander is a competent witness, and the jury may, if they believe her testimony, and it proves the words charged, find a verdict upon her testimony alone. Hess et ux. v. Fodder et ux., 25 Id., 9, 11.

In a criminal prosecution the wife of an accomplice may testify, and the weight of her testimony is for the jury. The State v. Moore, 25 Id., 128.

The feeling or interest manifested by a witness should be considered by the jury as affecting his credibility, and for no other purpose. Holloway v. Griffith, 32 Id., 409.

The general rule of the statute which "makes parties of record competent and compellable to testify, will not compel a party who is a witness for himself to disclose on cross-examination communications made by him to his attorney in regard to the case. Barker v. Kuhn, 38 Id., 392.

A person indicted for a criminal offense was held not a competent witness in his own behalf prior to the taking effect of chapter 168, laws of 1878, amending section 3636 of the code. The State v. Leffer, 38 Id., 422.

When one of two defendants testifies on behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness, under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself on trial. The State v. Hardin, 46 Id., 623.

Where a motion was made for a new trial on the ground that the attorney for the state referred to the fact that the defendant did not testify in his own behalf, and there was a controversy as to the exact language used by the attorney, it was held that as it would be presumed that the district court heard what was said, it would also be presumed that that court was justified in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial based on the alleged misconduct of the attorney in that regard. State v. Black, 59 Id., 390.

No presumption arises against a defendant in a criminal case on account of his failure to call an alleged accomplice as a witness in his behalf. The State v. Cousins, 58 Id., 239.

Prior to the amendment of this section by chapter 165 of the acts of the seventeenth general assembly, it was held, that a defendant indicted for a criminal offense was not a competent witness in his own behalf. The State v. Leffer, 38 Id., 422; The State v. Bixby, 39 Id., 465.

Since the taking effect or that chapter defendants in criminal cases may be witnesses in their own behalf, and when they thus testify they are subject to the same rules regulating cross-examination and impeachment as other witnesses. The State v. Red, 55 Id., 69. See also, The State v. Hudson, 50 Id., 157, 161; The State v. Moelchen, 53 Id., 310, 316.

SEC. 3637. [Credibility.]—Facts which have heretofore caused the exclusion of testimony, may still be shown for the purpose of lessening its credibility.

The common rule that one defendant in an indictment cannot be called as a witness for his co-defendant on a separate trial, unless acquitted, or convicted and not rendered infamous, was held to be abrogated by this section as it stood in the code of 1851, in connection with section 4 of article 1 of the new constitution. The State v. Nash, 10 Iowa, 81.

Under the common law, persons insensible to the obligation of an oath from defect of religious sentiment and belief were incompetent to testify as witnesses. This fact under this section of the statute no longer excludes such person as a witness, but may still be shown to affect his credibility. The State v. Elliott, 45 Id., 486.

The fact that a person, whose dying declarations offered in evidence, was a materialist is admissible in evidence for the purpose of affecting the credibility and weight of such dying declara tions. Id.

An instruction to the effect that in a criminal trial where the defendant has been a witness in his own behalf, the fact that such witness was a party to the action was proper to be considered by the jury as affecting his credibility, held, to be proper. The State v. Moelchen, 53 Id., 310, 316.

The religious belief of a witness may be shown for the purpose of affecting his credibility. An inquiry of this character is not prohibited by section 4 of article 1 of the constitution. But the want of such religious belief cannot be shown by the examination of the witness himself on the stand, but must be shown, if at all, by his previous declarations voluntarily made. He cannot be required to divulge his religious opinions. Searcy v. Miller, 57 Id., 613.

SEC. 3638. [Interest.]-No person offered as a witness in any action or proceeding in any court, or before any officer acting judicially, shall be excluded by reason of his interest in the event of the action or proceeding, or because he is a party thereto, except as provided in this chapter.

It was held under the revision of 1853, that a party to an action was incompetent to testify as a witness where the adverse party was an administrator, but that the administrator was competent in such cases. Romans v. Hayes, Adm'r, 12 Iowa, 370; Bradley v. Kavanaugh, Id., 273; Terhune v. Henry, 13 Id., 99; Hosmer v. Burk, 26 Id., 353; Quick v. Brooks, 29 Id., 484; Schmid v. Kreismer, 31 Id., 470; Wendeling v. Besser, Id., 248.

SEC. 3639. [Same: when one party is deceased.]—No party to any action or proceeding, nor any person interested in the event thereof, nor any person from, through or under whom any such party or interested person derives any interest or title by assignment or otherwise, and no husband or wife of any said party or person, shall be examined as a witness in regard to any personal transaction or communication between such witness and a person at the commencement of such examination, deceased, insane or lunatic; against the executor, administrator, heir-at-law, next of kin, assignee, legatee, devisee or survivor of such deceased person, or the assignee or guardian of such insane person or lunatic. But this prohibition shall not extend to any transaction or communication as to which any such executor, administrator heir-at-law, next of kin, assignee, legatee, devisee, survivor or guardian, shall be examined on his own behalf, or as to which the testimony of such deceased or insane person or lunatic shall be given in evidence.

The administrator of a deceased person was not, by section 3982 of the revision, rendered incompetent as a witness in an action to recover from another the possession of the property of the intestate. Bradley v. Kavanaugh, 12 Iowa, 278.

The plaintiff in an action of replevin against a sheriff to recover the possession of property taken under attachment, was not, under section 3982 of the revision, rendered incompetent as a witness, by the death of the plaintiff in the attachment suit in which the sheriff seized the property replevined. Beran v. Hayes, 13 Id., 122.

It was also held, under the same section, the plaintiff in an action against an administrator, was not excluded from proving, by his own oath, the loss of a writing, which was the basis of the action, when the facts transpired before the death of the intestate. The prohibition was held to apply only when the party offered himself as a witness to prove facts, the knowledge of which is not, from their nature, confined to himself. Nash v. Gibson, 16 Id., 395; Keech v. Coates, 34 Id., 259.

It was held under this section that in an action by the administrator of the trustee against another concerning the matter of the trust, when the real party was living, the defendant was a competent witness to prove facts transpiring before the death of the trustee. This section was held applicable, only to cases in which the real party in interest is dead. Watson v. Russell, 18 Id., 79.

A person summoned and examined under sections 2366 and 2367 of the revision (code, sections 2379 and 2380), as one suspected of having taken wrongful possession of property of a deceased person, was held not a witness within the meaning of section 3983 of the revision. Smyth v. Smyth, 24 Id., 411.

In an action to enforce a claim against an estate the administrator is a competent witness on behalf of the estate to prove that a settlement of the claim was made between the claimant and the decedent prior to his death. Styles v. Estate of Bodkin, 39 Id., 60.

It was further held under section 3983 that in an action against an administrator, the wife of the plaintiff was not disqualified from being a witness for her husband, and that she was competent to give evidence against the estate. Wendeling v. Besor, 31 Id., 248.

So in an action by a surviving partner for an injury to property of the firm, the opposite party was held not rendered incompetent under that section. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 396.

The husband and wife, in civil actions, are not competent witnesses against each other, but objections to their competency should be made when they are sworn, or when it is proposed to examine them, and, if not then made, will be deemed to have been waived. Watson v. Kissamire, 45 Id., 231.

In a contest between creditors as to priority respecting the funds in the hands of the administrator of one of the debtors, who was made a party defendant to the proceeding, such administrator was held not the adverse party, within the meaning of section 3982 of the revision; and one of such contesting creditors who intervened in such contest was held a competent witness as to matters that transpired before death of the decedent. Gordon v. Kennedy, 36 Id., 167.

A book of account, when admitted, assumes the character of written testimony which cannot be changed by parol. It was accordingly held, wherein the debit side of the account there was entries as follows: Pour By cash in money," "To cash in money," that the evidence of the person offering the books was not, where the adverse party was an executor, competent to show that the word " by, " thus occurring in the entries, was used by him in the sense of " to." Cummins v. Hull's Adm'r, 35 Id., 238.

In an action against an administrator on a promissory note by an assignee thereof, the payee is a competent witness for the plaintiff. Burroughs v. McLain, 37 Id., 189.

In an action to compel a conveyance of land under a parol contract with a person since deceased, whose administrator had been made a party, and who was a proper, though not necessary party, the admissions of the plaintiff and his wife to prove the contract were held to have been properly admitted in evidence. Campbell v. Mayes, 38 Id., 9.

A party was held not disqualified under section 3982 of the revision, in an action to which an administrator was a party, when his testimony related to no personal transactions or communications between him and the deceased. Suppher v. Saxery, 39 Id., 258.

The interest which will disqualify a witness when an administrator is a party, under section 3839 of the code, is such an interest as would disqualify him at common law. Where his interest is equally balanced on both sides, he is competent. Godward v. Leffingwell, 40 Id., 249.

In an action against an administrator de bonis non, a witness may testify to transactions and communications with the former administrator. Such evidence is not excluded under section 3839 of the code. Dunn v. Deery, 1 Id., 291.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage by an assignee from a decedent, the heir is not disqualified by this section of the code from testifying respecting a transaction between the defendant and the deceased. Sweeney v. Collins et al., 1 Id., 540.

Under this section of the code it is not competent for the plaintiff in an action against the administrator, to testify respecting personal transactions between himself and the deceased, for the purpose of rebutting the testimony of the widow of the decedent. Canaday v. Johnson, 1 Id., 397.

In an action on a promissory note by the executors of the assignee thereof, in which action the defendant averred that the alleged assignee was really the agent only of the payee, and that he had made payment to the agent, it was held, that the court might, in a trial without a jury exclude the testimony of the defendant in support of this averment. Williams v. Brown, 45 Id., 312.

One of the proponents of a will cannot be permitted to testify respecting conversations with the testator, even though his testimony be offered, not in his own behalf, but for the other proponents. Sisters of Visitation v. Glass et al., 1 Id., 154.

In an action against an administrator for services rendered to the decedent, the plaintiff cannot be permitted to testify in his own behalf to facts which would raise an implied contract to pay for the services. Smith v. Johnson, Id., 308.

In an action on a promissory note against an administrator, alleged to have been given for work and labor performed by plaintiff's wife, the testimony of the wife was held to be incompetent to show the amount of labor performed. Ashworth v. Grubbs, 47 Id., 333.

In an action by a wife upon a promissory note, which had been executed to her as payee by the procurement of her husband, since deceased, the testimony of the defendant as to what occurred between him and the deceased at the time of the execution of the note is incompetent. Wilcox v. Jackson, 51 Id., 28.

As to the competency of the widow to testify in her own behalf, in an action between herself and one of her children by her deceased husband, in which she seeks to set aside for fraud a conveyance of land made by the deceased in his lifetime to such child, see Hatcher et al. v. Doy et al., 53 Id., 671.

This section is limited in its application to testimony of transactions between a person who at the time of the examination is dead, or insane, and the witness, and does not exclude testimony as to contracts made by the person deceased with another, although the husband or wife of the witness. Lines v. Lines et al., 54 Id., 609; Johnson v. Johnson, 52 Id., 689; Williams v. Barrett et al., Id., 697.

In an action by a corporation against an executor, the testimony of a stockholder of the plaintiff, as to statements and agreements made by the defendant's testator, are not admissible under this section. The First National Bank of Burlington v. Owen et al., 52 Id., 187.

In an action on a promissory note by the executor of the assignee of the note, where the defendants averred that the alleged assignee was really but the agent of the payee, and that he had made payment to the agent, it was held, that the court might, in a trial without a jury, exclude the testimony of the defendant in support of his averment. Williams v. Brown, 45 Id., 102.

In an action against an administrator to recover upon an implied contract for services rendered the deceased, the plaintiff is not competent to testify to the facts which would raise an implied promise. Peck v. McKean, Id., 18; Smith v. Johnson, Id., 308.

The interest which will disqualify a witness in an action to which an administrator is a party must be present, certain and vested, and not uncertain, remote, contingent or doubtful. Wormley v. Hamburg, 40 Id., 22; Zerlie v. Reigart et al., 45 Id., 220.

In an action by a person against the heirs of his deceased wife to set aside a conveyance made to her, upon the ground that it was a trust to himself, he is not a competent witness to the agreement under which the conveyance was made. Wood v. Bottler et al., 40 Id., 391.

Where pending an action the defendant died, and his administrator was substituted, it was held that the deposition of the plaintiff, which was taken in the action prior to the death of the defendant, was not admissible in behalf of the plaintiff, under section 3982 of the Revision. Quick v. Brooks, 29 Id., 484.

Declarations of a party, who afterwards became a legatee in a will, made before the execution of the will, are not admissible to affect the validity of the will. Nor are declarations of a legatee made after the execution of the will admissible to show undue influence in its execution. Nor the declarations of an executor who is a legatee and party to the record admissible, where other legatees may be adversely affected by his declaration. In Matter of Will of Mary Ames, 51 Id., 596.

Under this section, where one of the parties is dead, the other may give testimony as to all matters, except upon personal transactions between the two. Hazen v. Alcott, 57 Id., 171; Miller v. Dayton, Id., 423.

A widow, in an action to set aside a deed made by her husband to the defendant, is not competent to testify to a personal communication between herself and her husband, affecting the merits of the action. Palmer v. Palmer et al., 62 Id., 204.

Where the ground of a motion to suppress a deposition is the incompetency of the testimony under this section, it is not necessary that the motion be filed by the morning of the second day of the first term, under section 3751. Burton v. Baldwin et al., 61 Id., 283.

In an action between the heirs of a deceased person, testimony of the defendants relating to personal transactions between them and the deceased is not admissible under this section which excludes such testimony in all actions against the heirs of the deceased. Neas et al. v. Neas et al., Id., 641.

In a proceeding for the probate of a will, where the issue was as to whether testamentary capacity had been impaired or destroyed by sickness, a non-expert who was well acquainted with the testator, both in sickness and health, and who had the care of him in sickness, was allowed, though a party to the proceeding, to testify that he saw no difference between his mental condition in sickness and his mental condition in health. Severin v. Zache et al., 55 Id., 28.

In an action by an administrator against several defendants, upon a note executed by them to the intestate, one of the defendants withdrew his answer upon a stipulation that the plaintiff was to have the right to take judgment against him for a certain amount, being less than the amount of the note and less than the face of the note, it was held that he was no longer a party to the action, and that his testimony was properly admissible. Conger Adm's v. Bean et al., 58 Id., 321.

Where the testimony of an administrator in an action by him in behalf of the estate is of a negative character, as that a certain transaction did not occur to his knowledge, it will not authorize the other party, under this section, to give testimony showing there had been such a transaction between her and the deceased. In re Estate of Edwards, Id., 431.

This section does not prohibit a witness, introduced by an executor himself, from testifying in favor of the executor as to a personal transaction between the witness and the decedent, even though the witness may be personally interested in the event of the suit. Leasman v. Nicholson Ex'r, 59 Id., 259.

In an action against an administrator for services rendered the intestate, where the services and their value are admitted, and payment was not set up as a defense, it was not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that he had not been paid; but, had the question of payment been in issue, the plaintiff's testimony would not have been admissible under this section. Van Sandt v. Crawford, 60 Id., 424.

So also in an action by an administrator to recover property of the estate, an heir of the decedent has an interest (unless the estate is insolvent, which will not be presumed,) and cannot therefore testify against the administrator as to personal communications between himself and the deceased. But the prohibition of this section does not extend to a transaction as to which the administrator has been examined in his own behalf. Ives v. Ives, Id., 723.

In an action by the administratrix of an estate against children of the decedent to recover notes and mortgages in their possession which formerly belonged to him, and which the plaintiff claimed as assets of the estate, the burden of proof was held to be on the children to establish the making and delivery of the obligations in controversy, and that the children themselves were incompetent to testify, as against the administratrix as to an agreement with the decedent concerning their delivery of the undertakings made by the children to him for the notes and mortgages, and also that the husband of one of the children, who was alleged to have joined with his wife in executing one of the undertakings made in consideration of the transfer by the decedent of the notes and mortgages to the children, was incompetent to testify to the agreement, under section 3639 of the code. Sampson v. Sampson, 67 Id., 206.

In proceeding to prove a will, the husband of the devisee of real property is not incompetent to testify as a subscribing witness, on the ground of being the husband of an interested party and that his testimony will relate to personal transactions between himself and the testor; for it is not necessary, under the laws of this state that there should be any personal transaction between the testator and the subscribing witnesses. Bates et al. v. Officer, 70 Id., 343.

In an action by an administrator, the defendant cannot testify in his own behalf as to personal transactions between himself and the deceased, even though it appear that the transaction occurred in the presence of a third party. Donnell, Adm'r, v. Braden et al., 70 Id., 551.

The execution of a promissory note is a "personal transaction" between the persons executing it and the payee, and the wife of a joint maker is incompetent under this section to testify in an action on the note by the administrator of the payee, that her husband signed it only as surety. Auchambauch, Adm'r, v. Schmitt, 54 N. W. R., 480.

This section of the code does not prohibit one of the devisees in a will from testifying to a personal transaction between another legatee and the testator in a contested proceeding to prove the will; but a witness whose testimony discloses his interest in the controversy is not competent, under this section, to testify to a personal transaction between himself and the testator. Smith et al. v. James et al., 72 Id., 835.

In an action by an administrator against one of the joint makers of a promissory note given to the intestate in his lifetime, the wife of the defendant was incompetent as a witness on behalf of the defendant to prove that he signed the note as surety only; the execution of the note being a personal transaction between the defendant and the decedent. Auchambaugh, Adm'r, v. Schmitt, 72 Id., 856.

In an action involving the validity of a will, the daughter of the testator, being one of the contestants of the will, is not, under this section of the code, a competent witness to prove conversations had with the testator. Blake et al. v. Rourke et al., 38 N. W. Rep., 392.

Sec. 3640. [Depositions taken conditionally.]—Any person may have his own deposition, or that of any other person, read and used as evidence in all cases where his evidence would be incompetent by the provisions of the preceding section, by causing such depositions to be taken either before or after suit brought during the lifetime or sanity of the person against whom his executor, heir, or other representative, the same is to be used; provided, such deposition shall have been taken and filed ten days prior to the death or insanity of such person. If after suit brought, such deposition may be taken in the usual manner; if before, then the same may be taken de bene esse, as provided by law.
SEC. 3641. (As repealed and substituted by ch. 33, 15th g. a.) [Husband and wife as witnesses.]—(Neither the husband nor wife shall in any case be a witness against the other, except in a criminal prosecution for a crime committed one against the other; or in a civil action or proceeding one against the other, but they may in all civil and criminal cases be witnesses for each other.)

The wife of a defendant testified against him before the grand jury which returned an indictment against him, held that objection could not be made thereto after conviction. The State v. Houston, 50 Iowa, 512.

The wife is a competent witness in behalf of the husband in a criminal case, and her credibility is to be tested by the same rules which apply to all other witnesses, and it is error for the court to instruct the jury that her testimony should be examined with peculiar care. The State v. Bernard, 43 id., 254; The State v. Collins, 20 id., 85.

On the trial of an indictment for adultery the husband or the wife is a competent witness against the defendant. The State v. Bennett, 31 id., 24; The State v. Hazen, 39 id., 648.

In an action against husband and wife as joint defendants, but in respect to which action the wife is interested in her own right, though her interests and those of her husband are in a measure connected, the wife may be called by the plaintiff as against her own personal interest, against the objection of her husband. Richards v. Burden, 51 id., 305.

Upon trial of an indictment for bigamy the legal husband or the wife of the defendant is a competent witness in behalf of the prosecution. The State v. Sloan, 35 id., 297.

Where the wife is admitted to testify in behalf of her husband, her testimony is to be received, and her credibility tested, by the same rules which apply to all other witnesses. The State v. Gayer, 6 id., 283.

This section of the code does not prohibit a widow from testifying for the plaintiff in an action upon account against her husband's executor. The prohibition of this section applies only to actions brought against the husband or wife personally. Parrett v. McReynolds et al., Ex'r, 71 id., 623.

The wife of one indicted for the same offense as that for which defendant was alone on trial was a competent witness against defendant, where no communication between her and her husband was sought to be elicited. This section does not exclude her evidence in such case. The State v. Ramebryer, 71 id., 746.

It was held under section 3983 of the revision that the wife was not a competent witness in a civil action for the husband. Karney v. Paiitley, 13 id., 89.

But in Russ v. The Steamboat War Eagle, 14 id., 363, it was held that the wife might under section 3986, be made competent to testify for her husband when he waived the prohibition contained in the statute. To the same effect is Blake v. Graves, 15 id., 314.

It was also held under sections 3983 and 3984 of the revision, that in an action by a vendor of real estate against the heirs of the vendee to enforce a vendor's lien, the widow of the deceased vendee was a competent witness to show a conversation between the plaintiff and her husband, in relation to the subject matter of the action. Pratt v. Delavan, 17 id., 307.

A party could not, under the revision, call as a witness the husband or wife (as the case might be) of the adverse party against the objection of such party. Stoneley v. Morse, 25 id., 464.

In a prosecution against the wife and her paramour for adultery, the husband is a competent witness for the state and is not disqualified from testifying against her. The State v. Bennett, 31 id., 24.

Where the husband and wife were indicted for keeping a house where intoxicating liquors were unlawfully sold, and were tried together, it was held, that the wife was a competent witness for her husband, with the restriction that her testimony should not be considered in her own behalf. The State v. Dowaran, 41 id., 557.

Under section 3641 of the code, as amended by chapter 33 of the acts of the fifteenth general assembly, husband and wife are not competent witnesses against each other in a civil action, but objections to their competency should be made when they are sworn, or when it is proposed to examine them, and, if not then made, will be deemed to have been waived. Watson v. Ricks­wire, 45 id., 391.

SEC. 3642. Neither husband nor wife can be examined in any case as to any communication made by the one to the other while married, nor shall they, after the marriage relation ceases, be permitted to reveal in testimony any such communication made while the marriage subsisted.

This section is identical with section 3984 of the revision, and section 2392 of the code of 1851—Ed.

This section relates only to the communications made by the husband and wife to each other during the marriage. It does not render the wife incompetent after the death of the husband to testify as to matters which she knew of her own knowledge. Romans v. Hay's Adm'r, 12 Iowa, 270.
SEC. 3643. [Professional confidence.]—No practicing attorney, counselor, physician, surgeon, minister of the gospel, or priest of any denomination, shall be allowed in giving testimony to disclose any confidential communication properly entrusted to him in his professional capacity, and necessary and proper to enable him to discharge the functions of his office according to the usual course of practice or discipline. Such prohibition shall not apply to cases, where the party in whose favor the same are made waives the rights conferred.

Communications relating to the subject matter of an action, made by one of the parties thereto, to a person whom he supposed to be an attorney at law, and with a view to engage him as such in said suit, when such person was not an attorney of any court, but was receiving business as one, and was expecting to be, and was admitted to practice at the next term of the district court, were held not privileged under section 2986 of the code of 1851. Sample v. Frost, 10 Iowa, 266.

Communications made to an attorney in the course of a professional consultation, which do not relate to the subject matter of the consultation, are not privileged. The State v. Mewhorter, 46 Id., 88. See, also, Pierson v. Stortz, Morris, 136.

Where a physician, sworn as a witness, in an action for breach of promise of marriage, was asked if the plaintiff had consulted him in respect to "getting rid of a child with which she was pregnant at the time," it was held, that since there was no showing of an unlawful purpose, such communication was privileged under this section. Guptill v. Verback, 58 Iowa, 98.

If a client chose to make a statement to his attorney in the presence of persons not employed in the business of the attorney, such persons are competent witnesses to prove the statement. The State v. Sterrett, 68 Id., 76.

Where one injured upon a railway was attended by the company's surgeon, a communication made by him to the surgeon in response to a question asked for the purpose of ascertaining the facts in order properly to treat him, was a privileged communication, within the meaning of this section of the code. Raymond v. The B., C. R. & N. Ry Co., 65 Id., 152.

SEC. 3644. [Public officers.]—A public officer cannot be examined as to communications made to him in official confidence, when the public interests would suffer by the disclosure.

SEC. 3645. [Judge competent.]—The judge of the court is a competent witness for either party, and may be sworn upon the trial. But in such case it is in his discretion to order the trial to be postponed or suspended and to take place before another judge.

SEC. 3646. [Civil liability.]—No witness is excused from answering a question upon the mere ground that he would be thereby subjected to a civil liability.

SEC. 3647. [Criminal.]—But when the matter sought to be elicited would tend to render him criminally liable, or to expose him to public ignominy, he is not compelled to answer except as provided in the next section.

The plaintiff in an action for seduction may, as a witness, refuse to answer whether she had previously had intercourse with other men, on the ground that the matter sought to be elicited tends to expose her to public ignominy. Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Iowa, 239.

The agent of an express company and of a railway company is not excused by section 3647 of the code, from obeying a subpoena of the grand jury, requiring him to produce certain books of the corporation, for the purpose of showing thereby that the corporations have been guilty of transporting intoxicating liquors contrary to law, on the ground that the books would criminate his employers; and for refusing to obey, the witness may be adjudged guilty of contempt. The U. S. Express Co. v. Henderson, Judge, 69 Id., 40.

When one of two defendants testifies in a criminal prosecution in behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself on trial. The State v. Hardin et al., 46 Id., 623.

SEC. 3648. [Provisions: conviction.]—A witness may be interrogated as to his previous conviction for a felony. But no other proof of such conviction is competent except the record thereof.

Under section 3648 of the code providing that "a witness may be interrogated as to his previous conviction for a felony, etc., the question, "were you ever convicted of a crime," is improper; a crime is not necessarily a felony. Hummers v. McClelland, 37, N. W. R., 389.

SEC. 3649. [Moral character.]—The general moral character of a witness may be proved for the purpose of testing his credibility.

In this section allowing the "general moral character" of a witness to be proven for the purpose of affecting his credibility, the word "character" means reputation; and testimony which does not relate to the reputation of the witness as to moral character but is intended to show his moral character as known to the witness, independent of reputation, is not admissible. State v. Egan, 59 Id., 636.

A witness who showed that he had known defendant for many years, even since he was a small boy, was competent to testify as to his moral character as a test of his credibility as a witness. The State v. Hart, 67 Id., 142.

The general moral character of a witness—that is, his reputation for morality in the vicinity of his residence, may be shown as a test of his credibility; and it is error to exclude an inquiry of that kind. The State v. Froelick, 70 Id., 213.

Under sections 3748 and 3849 a witness cannot be asked the question "whether he has not been under arrest and indictment for assault and battery," that offense not being a felony; and an indictment therefor would not necessarily impair the moral character of the witness. Kitteringham v. Dance, 58 Id., 632.

The general moral character of a witness cannot be affected by evidence of a want of chastity, and an inquiry as to the latter is not proper for this purpose. Kilburn v. Mullen, 22 Id., 498, 502.

The doubt cast upon the testimony of a witness by evidence of his bad character may be removed by corroborating evidence. Smeither v. Poorbaugh, 29 Id., 488.

Testimony is admissible to impeach a witness by showing that his mind and memory have become impaired by disease and are in an abnormal condition. Alleman v. Stepp, 52 Id., 628.

Sec. 3650. When part of an act, declaration, conversation, or writing, is given in evidence by one party, the whole on the same subject may be inquired into by the other; thus when a letter is read, all other letters on the same subject between the same parties may be given. And when a detached act, declaration, conversation or writing is given in evidence, any other act, declaration, or writing which is necessary to make it fully understood or to explain the same, may also be given in evidence.

Where in an action on a promisory note, given in part payment for a reaper, in which the defendant claimed damages on the ground of a breach of warranty under which the reaper was sold, a witness for the defendant on cross-examination, testified that after the reaper was delivered, defendant told him he was going across the river to Rock Island, to get some castings for the reaper, and thereupon the defendant offered to prove by the witness, what he told him afterwards in another conversation, about the working of the reaper, with the castings thus obtained, which was admitted. Held, that the evidence was not admissible under this provision of the statute. Williams v. Donaldson, 8 Id., 105.

If a part of a conversation is given in evidence by one party, the opposite party may inquire into all of it which relates to the same subject, on the cross-examination of the witness by whom the conversation is proved. Gaddes v. Lord et al., 10 Id., 141; Wilhelmi v. Leonard, 13 Id., 390; Jones v. Hopkins, 32 Id., 503; Courtright v. Dells, 37 Id., 514, 314; Baker v. Mygatt, 14 Id., 131.

The rule that when a part of a conversation has been introduced, the other party may insist upon the whole of it relating to the same subject, does not apply where a party seeks to introduce hearsay statements in evidence for himself, because a portion of a conversation in which they were made, has been stated by his own witness, at his instance, without objection from the opposite party. The State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72.

The other act or declaration of a party, contemplated in this section, to be admissible in evidence, must be something which is necessary to make the previous or subsequent detached act or declaration fully understood, or to explain it. Dougherty v. Posegate, 6 Iowa, 55.

It is not all that a party may have said at other times, with regard to the subject of the suit, or matter in controversy, that is admissible in evidence under this section of the code. Id.

It is not a sufficient objection to the introduction of a letter in evidence, that the letter to which it was a reply, and which was in the possession of the opposite party, was not called for and put in evidence, when the introduction of such letter is not necessary to an understanding of the contents of the one offered. Brayley v. Ross, 33 Id., 505.

Where a letter written defendant is introduced in evidence, his reply thereto is admissible under this section. The B. C. R. & N. R'y Co. v. Sherwood, 62 Id., 309.

A party seeking to have the benefit of an admission or declaration of another, must take the whole admission or declaration together, and will not be allowed to select what makes in his favor and exclude that which makes against him. Veith v. Hagge, 8 Id., 163.

So where a party against whom entries are made in books of account, or against whom an account is rendered, seeks to avail himself of credits entered therein in his favor, he will not be allowed to do so without, at the same time, making the whole account evidence against himself. Id.

The defendant having testified that at a certain time and place he informed the holder of the notes used on in the action, that he had never seen them before, it was held competent to prove what such party said at the time, it being a part of the same conversation. Hess v. Wilcox et al., 58 Id., 820.
Where a letter written to defendant is introduced in evidence, his reply thereto is admissible under this section. The B. C. R. & N. R'y Co. v. Sherwood, 62 Iowa, 309.

Sec. 3651. [Writing and printing.]—When an instrument consists partly of written and partly of printed form, the former controls the latter when the two are inconsistent.

When the granting clause in a deed is in writing, and the general covenants are printed, the former will govern when the two are inconsistent. McNear v. McComber, 18 Iowa, 12, 17.

Sec. 3652. [Understanding of Parties.]—When the terms of an agreement have been intended in a different sense by the parties to it, that sense is to prevail against either party in which he had reason to suppose the other understood it.

Evidence tending to show how plaintiff understood the contract prior to its consummation, but not shown to have been communicated to the defendant, and which would not throw any light upon the real contract between the parties, was properly excluded. Garrettson v. Bitzer, 51 Iowa, 469.

Sec. 3653. [Historical and works of science.]—Historical works, books of science or art, and published maps or charts, when made by persons indifferent between the parties, are presumptive evidence of facts of general notoriety or interest.

A map of a city purporting to be a correct plat thereof, made by United States Commissioners, who, under an act of congress, laid off and platted the city, is not admissible in evidence in an action of right, when it appears that the map offered is but a copy, and it is not shown that it is a true copy. Pfotzer v. Mulloney, 30 Iowa, 197.

This section of the statute making books of science and art admissible as evidence, does not render inadmissible any other respecting matters to which they relate, which was before admissible. Hence, medical or surgical authorities are not the best or only evidence as to whether there is any difference among them as to the mode of treatment or proper course to be pursued, but the same may be shown by the testimony of physicians or surgeons. Brodhead v. Wiltsie, 35 Iowa, 429.

Such witnesses are also competent to testify who are standard authors, and the treatment they prescribe. Id.

The county auditor's plat book is not competent evidence to aid a defective description in a deed, it not being a published map or chart within the meaning of this section of the code. Heinrichs v. Terrill, 65 Iowa, 25.

Under this section a city map purporting to be made by the city engineer, proven to be recognized and used in the city as substantially correct, is admissible in evidence, without further proof, in an action against a railway company for injuries caused by a collision at a street crossing in the city. Nosler v. The Chicago, B. & Q. R'y Co., 34 N. W. R., 586.

Sec. 3654. [Subscribing witness.]—When a subscribing witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the instrument to which his name is subscribed as such witness, its execution may be proved by other evidence.

Sec. 3655. [Handwriting.]—Evidence respecting handwriting may be given by comparison made by experts, or by the jury, with writings of the same person which are proved to be genuine.

Handwriting may be proved by comparison made by experts, or by the jury, with the writing of the same person which is proved to be genuine. Baker v. Mygatt, 14 Iowa, 131; Hyde v. Woolfolk et al., 1 id., 158; Lay v. Wissman, 36 Iowa, 305.

Where it is sought to prove handwriting by comparison, the standard writing must be proved to be genuine by the testimony of a witness who saw the party write it, or by the party's admission or the like, and the certificate of an acknowledgement of a deed is not competent to establish the genuineness of the signature of the grantor thereto as a standard. Hyde v. Woolfolk et al., 1 id., 159.

On the trial of an equitable action on appeal in the supreme court, the court may compare the signature to a writing in controversy with writing of the same person which is proved to be genuine, as evidence of handwriting. Morris v. Sargent et al., 18 Iowa, 90.

The determination by the court below of the question of the genuineness of a signature upon the evidence of experts, by comparison of handwriting, is entitled on appeal, to the same consideration as the verdict of a jury. Lay v. Wissman, 36 Iowa, 305.

While the evidence of experts to establish the genuineness of handwriting is competent under the statute, it is evidence of the lowest order and most unsatisfactory character. Whitaker v. Parker, 42 Iowa, 585.

In order to render a witness competent as an expert to testify of handwriting by comparison, it is not necessary that he should possess the highest skill or information on the subject, or that he should testify that he is an expert, for the inquiry does not require a witness of a particular calling as an expert, but his admissibility depends on his means of knowledge as a business man and his intelligence. Hyde v. Woolfolk et al., 1 Id., 159.

It is error to permit persons not shown to be experts to testify respecting the authorship of handwriting by comparison. Mixer v. Bennett et al., 70 Id., 329.

The name of defendant written by him in a hotel register in 1883 is competent evidence in a prosecution for forging a promissory note which he sold in 1884, to prove the forgery by comparison of handwriting. State v. Calkins, 34 N. W. R., 777.

Upon an issue respecting the signature to a note, where letters of the alleged maker of the note were given in evidence, both to prove a written admission that the note was unpaid, and to show that the signature was the same as the signature of the note, it was held error for the court to instruct the jury that the letters could not be considered by them upon the question of what note was referred to therein. Saunders v. Howard, 51 Id., 517.

When the genuineness of a signature is in issue, it is competent for the person whose signature it purported to be, as well as of the adverse party, to introduce in evidence other writings and signatures of his, proved or admitted to be genuine, for comparison with the one in dispute; and the fact that a signature so offered was made after the commencement of the action will not render it incompetent, but may be considered by the jury as affecting its weight. The Singer Mfg. Co. v. McFarland, 53 Id., 540.

SEC. 3656. [Private writing.]—Every private writing, except a last will and testament, after being acknowledged or proved and certified in the manner prescribed for the proof or acknowledgment of conveyances of real property, may be read in evidence without farther proof.

SEC. 3657. [Entries by deceased persons.]—The entries and other writings of a person deceased, made at or near the time of the transaction and in a position to know the facts therein stated, are presumptive evidence of such facts when the entry was made against the interest of the person so making it, or when made in a professional capacity or in the ordinary course of professional conduct, or when made in the performance of a duty specially enjoined by law.

Entries made by a party who is dead, in respect to his own business transactions, in a book kept for that purpose, are admissible in evidence as to such transactions, when clearly against the interest of the party making such entries. The State v. Woodard, 20 Iowa, 541.

The jury, however, should be told that while this evidence is competent, the right of cross-examination does not exist, that it is not highly favored by the law, and that they should give it such weight as, under all the circumstances, they deem it entitled to. Id.

BOOKS OF ACCOUNT.

SEC. 3658. [When and how admitted in evidence.]—Books of account containing charges by one party against the other, made in the ordinary course of business, are receivable in evidence only under the following circumstances, subject to all just exceptions as to their credibility:

1. The books must show a continuous dealing with persons generally, or several items of charge at different times against the other party in the same book or set of books;

2. It must be shown by the party’s oath or otherwise that they are his books of original entries;

3. It must be shown in like manner that the charges were made at or near the time of the transactions therein entered, unless satisfactory reasons appear for not making such proof;

4. The charges must also be verified by the party or clerk who made the entries, to the effect that they believe them just and true, or a sufficient reason must be given why such verification is not made.

Where on the trial, the plaintiff produced a small book, containing the account on which the suit was brought, in which were charges against the defendants and other persons, which among other things charged the defendants with a certain quantity of stone; and the plaintiff testified that the charges in the book against the defendant, were not made at or near the time of the transaction, for the reason that he was not present when the defendants were getting the stone, that the defendants told him, after they had finished getting the stone, the amount, which he then entered as appeared in said book, that this was his book of original entries, and that the charges therein made were true; it was held: 1. That the book, so far as it related to the stone, was properly admitted in evidence; 2. That as to the other items of the account, the book should have been rejected; 3. That the showing of the plaintiff brought the book within the reason and spirit of the statute. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 6 Iowa, 486.

Prior to the statute making parties competent witnesses in their own behalf, the plaintiff, in an action on an account was competent to show the preliminary matters required by law in order to introduce his books of account in evidence. Hastings & Co. v. Devoran, 7 Id., 319.

Whenever the law provides for the admission of books of account in evidence, it is based upon the idea of the presence of the books themselves on the trial, and in their absence evidence of their contents cannot be substituted. Churchhill et al. v. Fulliam, 8 Id., 45.

The book itself, when admitted, becomes the witness, and is still subject to any objections which may be made by the opposite party respecting its credibility, arising from the manner in which it has been kept—its appearance, erasures, alterations, confusion and irregularity, and whatever may tend to diminish its credibility in the minds of the jury. Id.

To render books of account admissible in evidence, the necessary preliminary facts must be shown by the oath of the person who made the entries, unless his absence, or the absence of his testimony is satisfactorily accounted for. Karr v. Stivers, 34 Id., 123.

It must appear that the charges sought to be proved were made in the ordinary course of the party's business. Id. See also, Veiths v. Hagge, 8 Id., 163; Young v. Jones, Id., 219; Lord v. Ellis, 9 Id., 301; Snell et al. v. Eckerson, 8 Id., 284; Sloan v. Ault, Id., 229; Cummins v. Hull's Admr's, 35 Id., 253.

It must be shown that the entries in the book were made at or about the time when the transactions therein entered occurred, or a satisfactory reason must be shown why they were not so entered. Anderson v. Ames & Co., 6 Id., 487.

An item of charge in a book of account “for four months' work,” cannot be established by the book specifying dates between which the work was performed. Karr v. Stivers, 34 Id., 123.

Books of account are not admissible for the purpose of proving cash items, as “for money loaned” or “money paid,” unless it be shown that the person offering the books is engaged in a business to justify such charges, as that of banking or receiving money on deposit and paying it out. Cummins v. Hull's Admr's, 35 Id., 253; Veiths v. Hagge, 8 Id., 163; Young v. Jones, Id., 220; Sloan v. Ault, Id., 229.

Whether a book of account is admissible in evidence or not, is a question for the court upon the preliminary proof offered under this section of the code; the degree of credit to be given to it after it is admitted, is a question for the jury under the instructions of the court. Eyrre v. Cook, 9 Id., 185.

Where a party against whom entries are made in books of accounts, or against whom an account is rendered, relies upon or seeks to avail himself of credits entered in favor, he will not be allowed to do so without at the same time making the whole account evidence against him. Veiths v. Hagge, 3 Id., 163.

Books of account cannot be proved by depositions, by proving their character and contents, with copies of the accounts annexed to the depositions, unless the books themselves are produced in court. Churchhill v. Fulliam et al., 5 Id., 45.

A book which was called a book of original entries, but which was taken up with memoranda of purchases of hogs, with the computation of their weights, prices, and amounts paid thereon, was held inadmissible as a book of original entries. Whisler v. Drake, 35 Id., 103; Hart v. Livingston, 39 Id., 217.

Entries in the books of a trustee of subscribers to a loan of money received by him from subscribers and paid over by him to the borrower, are inadmissible as evidence in an action by a subscriber to the loan against such borrower. Sypher v. Savery, 39 Id., 258.

(EVINECE IN ACTIONS ON ACCOUNT.

An Act in relation to evidence in actions upon accounts. [Additional to code, chapter 1, title XXII: “Of evidence.”]

SECTION 1. [In action on open account.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa, That in all actions for money due upon an open account when the defendant has been personally served with the original notice therein and the petition is duly verified, and where a bill of particulars of said account is incorporated into or attached to the petition, if the defendant makes default or fails to controvert or deny the same or any of the items thereof, by pleading duly verified, the account or so much thereof as is not so controverted or denied, shall be taken as true and admitted.
Approved, March 4, 1876.

INSTRUMENTS AFFECTING REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 3659. [Evidence.]—Every instrument in writing affecting real estate, which is acknowledged or proved, and certified as hereinbefore directed, may be read in evidence without farther proof.

Where a sworn answer does not deny the execution of a deed, but avers that it was not executed for a valuable consideration, if it is properly acknowledged, proof of its genuineness and validity is not, under the statute, necessary to its admission in evidence. Savery v. Browning, 18
Iowa, 246.

As between the grantee and a creditor of the grantor, the date which a deed bears is prima facie evidence of the time of its execution, especially when it does not appear that the party was a creditor at the date of the deed. Id.

Secondary evidence of the contents of a deed cannot be given to prove title in an action of right, unless the deed be shown to be lost, or not belonging to, nor within the control of, the party wishing to use the same. Williams v. Heath, 22 Id., 519.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that a deed in the custody of the grantee was delivered by the grantor and accepted by the grantee at the date of its execution.
Wolverton v. Collins, 34 Id., 298.

An acknowledgment of a deed by the grantor as his voluntary act is a sufficient execution, though the signature may have been affixed thereto by another. Morris v. Sargent et al., 18 Id., 90.

SEC. 3660. [Record or certified copy.]—The record of such instrument, or a duly authenticated copy thereof, is competent evidence whenever by the party's own oath or otherwise the original is shown to be lost, or not belonging to the party wishing to use the same, nor within his control. And in such case no objection to the record that no official seal is appended to the recorded acknowledgment thereof, if, when the acknowledgment purports to have been taken by an officer having an official seal, there be a statement in the certificate of acknowledgment that the same was made under his hand and seal of office, and the records show by a scroll or otherwise that there was such a seal, which will be presumptive evidence that the official seal was attached to the original certificate.
The recording laws of this state have no application to patents issued for lands sold by the United States; and a copy of such a patent contained in the record books of a county, is not admissible in evidence under this section of the statute. Curtis v. Hunting, 6 Iowa, 536.
The single fact that a mortgage of lands is found upon the records of a county, raises no presumption of its delivery to, and acceptance by, the mortgagee, against the positive and unqualified denial of the mortgagee and those claiming under him, that he ever received the mortgage, or had any knowledge thereof. Foley v. Howard, 8 Id., 56.

An agent of a party to an action who had held possession of title deeds which are lost, is competent to make the necessary preliminary proof to admit secondary evidence of their contents.
Carbin v. Bebee, 36 Id., 836.

The possession of a written instrument furnishes presumptive evidence of ownership in the person having such possession. Courtright v. Deeds, 37 Id., 503.

Where the original deed is not in the possession or under the control of the party wishing to use it, the record copy of the same is competent. It is not necessary to the competency of such copy that resort shall first have been had to legal process to procure the original. Mc Nichols v.
Wilson, 42 Id., 355.

Upon proof that a deed had been sent to another county and was there in possession of the court, the record of the deed was held properly admitted. Ingle v. Jones, 43 Id., 286.

Secondary evidence of the contents of a deed cannot be introduced to prove title in an action for possession of real property, unless it be shown to be lost, or not belonging to, nor within the control of, the party wishing to use the same. Williams v. Heath, 22 Id., 519; Ackley v. Sexton, 24 Id., 229; Byington v. Oaks, 32 Id., 488.
Proof of the original instrument is not necessary when the original is shown to be not under the party's control, and the record is offered in evidence. Carter v. Davidson et al., 34 N. W. R., 603.
SEC. 3661. [Retrospective.]—The provisions of the preceding section are intended to apply to all instruments heretofore recorded, as well as those hereafter to be recorded.

SEC. 3662. [Not conclusive.]—Neither the certificate nor the record, nor the transcript thereof, is conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated.

STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

SEC. 3663. [Written evidence only admissible.]—Except when otherwise specially provided, no evidence of the contracts enumerated in the next succeeding section is competent, unless it be in writing and signed by the party charged or by his lawfully authorized agent.

SEC. 3664. [Contracts.]—Such contracts embrace:
1. Those in relation to the sale of personal property, when no part of the property is delivered, and no part of the price is paid;
2. Those made in consideration of marriage;
3. Those wherein one person promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, including promises by executors to pay the debt of their principal from their own estate;
4. Those for the creation or transfer of any interest in lands, except leases for a term not exceeding one year;
5. Those that are not to be performed within one year from the making thereof.

Although the language of our statute of frauds (section 3663) is different from the fourth section of 29 Charles II, which provides "that no action shall be brought," while ours provides that "no evidence of the contracts enumerated * * is competent," yet the meaning is the same, no action can be maintained under either, unless the contract be in writing, with the exceptions stated in the statute. Westheimer v. Peacock, 2 Iowa, 537.

A defendant cannot be held liable upon a parol promise to pay the debt of another, made subsequent to the creation of the debt, and while the original debtor continues liable the consideration of the original debt will not attach to the subsequent promise; but if the subsequent promise is distinct in its nature and arises out of some new and original consideration of benefit or harm, moving between the newly contracting parties, the promise is not within the statute of frauds, and may be enforced. Westheimer v. Peacock, 2 Id., 537. See, also, Chadwick v. Brown, 482; Bumford v. Purcell, 4 G. Greene, 488; Morgan v. McLaren, Id., 536.

In the sale of personal property delivery is essential to vest the title in the vendee. Courtright v. Leonard, 11 Iowa, 32.

No evidence is competent to establish a parol contract for the purchase of personal property, where no part of the same has been delivered, nor any portion of the price paid, except that of the party against whom the contract is sought to be enforced. Burnside & Co. v. Ransom & Co., 37 Id., 639.

The statute of frauds will not exempt from liability one who has received part of the consideration of a note, notwithstanding he was not a maker thereof. Dee v. Duane, 50 Id., 310.

A promise to pay the debt of another, when made to subserv some purpose of the promisor, is not within the statute of frauds. Mills v. Brown, 11 Id., 314.

A parol agreement by the vendee of land, that in case he sells the land for more than the price paid, one-half the excess shall be paid to the grantor, does not create an interest in real estate, and is not within the statute of frauds. Miller v. Kendig, 55 Id., 174.

A contract for work and labor to be performed, and to be paid for after the death of the employer, may be proved by oral evidence; and such contract is not within the statute of frauds, since the death might occur within the year. Riddle v. Backus, 38 Id., 81.

The statute of frauds applies to the duration of the term of a lease, and not to the time at which possession of the premises commences. Jones v. Morsey, 49 Id., 188.

An oral agreement to relinquish an interest in real property not occupied as a homestead, made by husband and wife for a valuable consideration received, is a valid agreement and may be enforced. Hutchins v. Coe, 47 Id., 655.

A resulting trust cannot be sustained by parol evidence where no part of the purchase money was paid by the person claiming to be the cestui que trust. Burden v. Sheridan, 36 Id., 125.

A resolution of the board of supervisors of a county proposing to convey a portion of its swamp lands in compromise of an action pending against the county, to recover for services rendered in seeming to it the title to swamp lands from the United States, and the written acceptance of such proposition by the person to whom it was made, constitutes a contract in writing and will be specifically enforced against the county. A formal written contract signed by the parties is not required. Grimes v. Hamilton County, 37 Id., 290.

An agreement to foreclose a mortgage and convey the land acquired thereunder is not within the statute of frauds and may be proved by parol. Cooley v. Osborne, Id., 526.

The provisions of our statute of frauds, unlike the English statute of 29 Charles II, relate merely to the evidence of proof of contracts, and not to their validity. Accordingly, where A agreed to sell B an interest in lands, and to receive in consideration thereof B's note, to be indorsed by C, D and E, B accordingly executed a note and procured the indorsement of C and D. E was not present, but D, though without authority, agreed for him that he would indorse the note, which E subsequently did, with full knowledge of all the facts; held: 1. That D's agreement that E would indorse the note was not void by reason of the statute of frauds; 2. That E's subsequent indorsement operated as a ratification of said agreement by D; 3. That the indorsement by E related back to the date of the note and as between him and A was not open to the plea of want of consideration. Berryhill v. Jones, 55 Id., 335.

Where the promise to pay a debt or discharge the obligation of another arises out of a new and original consideration between the payer and debtor, the case is not within the statute of frauds, and the contract is not required to be evidenced in writing and signed by the party to be charged. The Blair T. L. & Co. v. Walker, 39 Id., 406; Johnson v. Knapp, 36 Id., 616; Chamberlin v. Ingalls, 33 Id., 300.

The plaintiff in his petition alleged that the defendant, being engaged in procuring subscriptions to aid in the construction of a certain railroad, verbally promised the plaintiff that if he would subscribe a certain amount, he, the defendant, would, in case the defendant sold his farm before the payment of all of said subscription, assume plaintiff's obligation, refund to him the amount paid, and pay the balance himself. Held, that parol evidence was not admissible to prove the agreement alleged, in an action against the defendant thereon. Reauffman v. Harteoek, 31 Id., 472.

Where a parol contract for the sale of real property, is followed by the taking possession by the purchaser, and by the payment of a small portion of the purchase money, such facts will take it out of the statute of frauds; the doctrine of part performance assumes the admissibility of parol evidence to explain it. Collins v. Vandecoor, 1 Id., 573.

A parol contract for the sale of improvements on the public lands is not within the statute. Zickafoose v. Hurlock, Mo., 175.

The facts which remove a parol contract from the operation of the statute of frauds may be shown by parol. Bennett v. Nye, 4 G. Greene, 416.

In order that possession shall have the effect to take a parol contract out of the statute of frauds, the possession must have been taken under the contract, and with the consent of the vendor; and when so taken the contract is good. Carrolls v. Cook & Shelley, 15 Iowa, 455; Baldwin v. Thompson, Id., 504.

The fourth subdivision of section 3664 of the code, as respects leases, has reference to the duration of the term of the lease, and not to the time of the performance of the contract, with reference to the date of making or entering into the same. Subdivision five does not apply to contracts for the creation or transfer of an interest in lands. Soby v. Bisbee, 20 Id., 105.

A parol license to mine should be accompanied by possession under the license to exempt it from the operation of the statute of frauds. Anderson v. Simpson, 21 Id., 399.

A party cannot claim exemption from liability where he has received a part of the money for which a note was executed, merely because he did not sign the note. Dee v. Downs et al., 50 Id., 310.

An agreement to foreclose a mortgage and convey the land acquired thereunder to another is not within the statute of frauds, and may be proved by oral evidence. Cooley v. Osborne et al., 50 Id., 526.

Where a party in the sale of cattle pointed out certain ones of his which were running with others in a pasture, and designated their price, which the other party agreed to take as they were, at the stipulated price, it was held that this was a sale and delivery of the cattle, and took the case out of the statute of frauds. Brown v. Wade, 42 Id., 647.

Where an ante-nuptial contract for the conveyance of land was alleged to have been made by letters which were lost, it was held that oral evidence of their contents, to be admissible, should purport to give their language, and that testimony as to the propositions made and accepted therein, as construed by the witnesses, was incompetent. Elwell v. Walker & ux., 52 Id., 356.

A verbal acceptance of an order is valid only where the drawee has funds in his hands belonging to the drawer, so that by payment of the order he satisfies his own debt. Walton v. Madelle et al., 56 Id., 397.

An assignment of a chose in action, by parol, in payment of services rendered and to be rendered, is not within this provision of the statute of frauds. Howe & Co. v. Jones, 57 Id., 130, 141.

In order to exclude evidence of an oral contract, on the ground that it is not to be performed within a year from the making thereof, the contract must show, either by express terms or necessary implication, that its performance within the year is prohibited or impossible. The Blair T. L. & Co. v. Walker, 59 Id., 406.

The statute of frauds relates only to the evidence of the promises enumerated therein, and does not render invalid their voluntary execution. Putnam v. Seivney, 63 Id., 385.

Sections 3663 and 3664 do not preclude parol evidence of an oral contract for the conveyance of land, where the vendor has received the consideration therefor in the services of the vendee, under the terms of the contract,—such consideration being "purchase money," within the meaning of section 3665 of the code. Stem v. Nygamer, 69 Id., 512.

The provisions of section 3664, requiring the evidence of any contract for the creation or transfer of an interest in real estate, except cases for a term not exceeding one year, to be in writing, does not apply when the vendor has received the purchase money, or any portion of it. Dunlap et al. v. Thomas et al., 69 Id., 358.

SEC. 3665. [Exceptions.]—The provision of the first sub-division of the preceding section, does not apply when the article of personal property sold is not at the time of the contract owned by the vendor and ready for delivery; but labor, skill, or money, are necessarily to be expended in producing or procuring the same; nor do those of the fourth sub-division of said section apply where the purchase money, or any portion thereof, has been received by the vendor, or when the vendee, with the actual or implied consent of the vendor, has taken and held possession thereof under and by virtue of the contract, or when there is any other circumstances, which by the law heretofore in force, would have taken a case out of the statute of frauds.

Where a party residing in one place, purchases goods of another, residing at a different place, through an agent where the contract was made, which goods belonged to the vendor and ready for delivery, to be forwarded by express, and paid for with a secured note, payable in six months, it was held that the contract did not come within the exception of this section, and to be valid should have been in writing. Portridge v. Wilsey, 6 Iowa, 459.

Where land is purchased by one party from another by a parol contract, the consideration or part thereof paid, or possession taken, in pursuance of, and under the contract of purchase, the purchaser will be entitled to, and may enforce, specific performance of such contract. Humphrey v. Moore, 17 Id., 193, 194; Collins v. Vandever, 1 Id., 573; Fairbrother v. Shaw, 4 Id., 570; Moore v. Pearson, 6 Id., 379; Derin v. Hiner, 29 Id., 297; White v. Butt, 32 Id., 335.

A parol license to mine should be accompanied with possession to take it out of the statute of frauds. Anderson v. Simpson, 21 Id., 399.

The first subdivision of section 3664 does not, under the provisions of section 3665 apply where the article sold is not at the time owned by the vendor and ready for delivery, and labor, skill or money are necessarily to be expended in producing the same. The same applies to an agreement for the sale of land, under and by virtue of the contract. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 306.

The objection that a contract for the sale of land is not evidenced by writing is not tenable where a part of the purchase-money was paid, and the vendee entered into possession under the contract. Thompson v. Wilson, 36 Id., 120; Chamberlain v. Robertson, 31 Id., 408.

Possession of an article of personal property is conclusive evidence of ownership, and where by agreement between the holder of such title and another the latter takes possession as owner in fact, there is a sale to him which may be proved by parol evidence. Tuttle v. Becker, 47 Id.; 486; see also Baldwin v. Thompson, 15 Id., 504.

The possession which will be sufficient to take a parol contract for the sale of land out of the statute of frauds, must have been taken and held by the actual or implied assent of the vendor, and under and by virtue of the contract. Carrolls v. Cox et al., 15 Id., 455; see also Baldwin v. Thompson, 1 Id., 504.

Where the owner of land wrote to his agent that he would sell the same at a price named, whereupon the plaintiff agreed to purchase, it was held that possession of the latter by the agent was not sufficient to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Steel & Son v. Fife et al., 48 Id., 99.

In order to enforce a parol contract for the sale and conveyance of real property, the existence of the contract and its terms must be shown, and that the vendee, either paid a part of the purchase money, or took possession in pursuance of the contract, Fairbrother v. Shaw, 4 Id., 570.

Parol evidence is admissible to establish a contract for the sale of real property when it has been proven that the party to be charged has received rent for the same under claim of ownership based upon the sale. Sweeney v. O'Hara, 43 Id., 34.

A parol gift of an ancestor to a son and heir, followed by possession thereunder, the payment of taxes, and the making of permanent improvements thereon is not within the statute of frauds, and the title of the donee will be quieted as against the other heirs. Hughes v. Lindsey, 31 Id., 329.

Where a parol promise of a parent to convey real property to his child, is clearly, definitely and conclusively established, and the child, on the faith of such promise, has entered into possession and made permanent improvements upon the land, the parent will be deemed to specifically perform his promise. Moore v. Pearson, 6 Id., 279.

The term “purchase money” as used in this section of the statute, means the consideration received, in whatever form it may be. It was accordingly held, where the plaintiff agreed to convey to the defendant a certain parcel of land for a certain parcel to be conveyed by the defendant to the plaintiff, that a conveyance by the plaintiff in accordance with the contract, was a payment of the purchase money within the meaning of the statute. Denis v. Himer, 29 Id., 297.

Where a sale of land was evidenced by the notice specifying the terms and conditions upon which it would be sold; a plat of the property on which was entered the name of the purchaser and the price bid; a letter of the purchaser relating to the purchase, all of which was connected by the parol evidence of the clerk of the sale, who made the entries upon the plat, it was held that the evidence was admissible to prove the contract of sale. Lee v. Mahoney, 9 Id., 344.

The memorandum in writing transferring an interest in land need not be in one paper. Nor is it necessary that all the parts should be contemporaneous, or so complete when brought together as to preclude the necessity of oral evidence to explain them. Id.

For a case where evidence was held sufficient to establish an oral contract between the defendant and one deceased, in pursuance of which the latter transferred the possession of certain real property to the defendant, in consideration of his support during the remainder of his natural life; see Rink et al v. Sample et al., 56 Id., 100.

SEC. 3666. [When not denied in the pleadings.]-—The above regulations relating merely to the proof of contracts, do not prevent the enforcement of those which are not denied in the pleadings, unless in cases where the contract is sought to be enforced, or damages to be recovered for the breach thereof, against some person other than him who made it.

Under this section, when the plaintiff is otherwise entitled to specific performance, and the defendant either admits, or does not deny in his answer an unwritten contract for the purchase of land, it may be enforced, notwithstanding the benefit of the statute is insisted upon in the answer. Auer v. Miller, 18 Iowa, 405.

The petition alleged that on a certain day named, the plaintiff entered into a verbal contract with the defendant for the purchase of certain lands; the answer denied that on the day named the defendant entered into such contract; denied that at the time stated, the defendant, by any valid contract, agreed to sell and convey the real estate described; and denied that the defendant made any lawful contract with the plaintiff for the sale of the real estate upon the terms alleged; held, that the allegations of the petition were sufficiently denied to put the plaintiff upon proof of the contract by competent evidence. Mahana v. Blunt, 20 Id., 142.

A parol contract, which is within the statute of frauds, may be established if not denied in the pleadings or if admitted by the party against whom it is sought to be enforced, but in such case the petition should state the manner in which it is expected that the contract will be proved, otherwise it will be subject to demurrer. Babcock v. Meek, 45 Id., 137.

SEC. 3667. [Party made witness.]-—Nothing in the above provisions shall prevent the party himself against whom the unwritten contract is sought to be enforced, from being called as a witness by the opposite party, nor his oral testimony from being evidence.

The party against whom a parol contract, which is within the statute of frauds, is sought to be enforced, is the only competent witness to prove such contract. An agent of the party does not come up to the letter or spirit of the statute. Burnside & Co. v. Roxen & Co., 37 Iowa, 639.

When the plaintiff calls the defendant as a witness under this section to establish a parol agreement within the statute of frauds, he will not be permitted to introduce evidence to contradict or impeach that of the defendant. Hunt v. Coe et al., 15 Id., 197.

Where a parol contract within the statute of frauds is proved by the testimony of the party against whom such contract is sought to be enforced, it is thereby taken out of the statute and the contract will be enforced. Hoss v. Brayton, 24 Id., 596, 598; Smith v. Phelps, 32 Id., 537; Lyon v. Thompson, 16 Id., 62; Auer v. Miller, 18 Id., 405; Mahana v. Blunt, 20 Id., 62; Anderson v. Simpson, 21 Id., 399.

Where the contract sued on, is fairly established by the defendant’s testimony, his plea of the statute of frauds, in an action to enforce an oral agreement for the sale of land, will not avail the party as a defense. Cray v. Elsley et al., 60 Id., 361.

SEC. 3668. [Notary public: certificate of.]-—The usual protest of a notary public without proof of his signature or notarial seal, is prima facie evidence of what it recites concerning the dishonor and notice of a bill of exchange or promissory note, and a copy from his record, properly certified to by him, shall receive such faith and credit as it is entitled to by the law and custom of merchants.

A certificate of protest by a notary, in the "usual form," is evidence only of the facts recited therein; and where it states that the notice of protest was sent by mail to the address of the indorser at a certain place, it will be assumed that the place named is the residence of the indorser. "Braddock v. Hedge et al.," 10 Iowa, 492.

A certificate of protest by a notary is not evidence of notice to the drawer of a bill of exchange when it does not recite that such notice was given. It is evidence only of the facts recited therein. "Thorp et al. v. Craig," Id., 461.

It is not necessary that the certificate of protest by a notary should have annexed to it, or set out therein, the notices referred to in the certificate; nor that the certificate should in words formally refer to the notarial seal. "Jones v. Berryhill," 25 Id., 289.

The provisions of this section respecting the effect of the certificate of protest of a notary when given in evidence, relates to civil cases only. It cannot be received in a criminal prosecution for obtaining money on false pretenses, to prove that he had no money on deposit in a bank on which he had drawn drafts. "The State v. Beidel," 26 Id., 430.

The certificate of a notary public, showing the manner in which notice of protest was served upon the maker, and the manner of the presentation and non-payment, properly addressed, but is silent as to the pre-payment of postage, it will be presumed that the postage was paid. "Brooks et al. v. Day," 11 Id., 46.

When the certificate of a notary public expressly stated that he notified the indorser of a promissory note of the non-payment by the maker and then stated that he gave the notice by depositing a written and printed copy thereof in the mail, directed to the indorser at a place named, it was held, that such certificate established a prima facie case against the indorser, and that the burden was on him to show that the place named was not his postoffice address and that the notice did not accomplish the result certified to. "Wamsly v. Rivers," 94 Id., 463.

Sec. 3860. [Inferior tribunals: presumption.]—The future proceedings of all officers, and of all courts of limited and inferior jurisdiction within this state, shall, like those of a general and superior jurisdiction, be presumed regular, except in regard to matters required to be entered of record, and except when otherwise expressly declared.

In an action by attachment the petition was directed to the district court of the proper county, the jurat, to the affidavit on the petition, was as follows: "Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of February, 1858, H. B. M., J. P.," it was held, that the presumption was that the justice administered the oath in the proper county.

Where there was nothing in the record of a sale of the real property of a ward by his guardian, in pursuance of proceedings in the county court, to show that the sale, or the order of sale, was void, it was presumed valid. "Parsley v. Hays," 17 Iowa, 310, 312.

If the jurisdiction of inferior tribunals has once attached, every intention will be made in favor of the validity of all subsequent proceedings, and mere irregularities or defects will not avail in collateral proceeding. The power to decide is not lost because erroneously exercised. "Same v. Same," 22 Id., 113.

Where a justice of the peace has jurisdiction the defendant is bound by the judgment rendered and precluded from retrying questions which must have been involved and determined in the original action. "Haggerty v. Barr," 22 Id., 219.

In an action upon a recognizance, taken by a magistrate upon an adjournment of a preliminary examination before him of one charged with a felony, for the appearance of the party charged on the day to which the case is adjourned, the petition need not state the particular facts which show that the magistrate had authority to take bail. The existence of such facts will be presumed. The want of such facts may be set up or shown on the trial. "The State v. Huyford," 23 Id., 579.

That a petition for a road is not offered in evidence in a prosecution for obstructing a highway, constitutes no valid objection to the admission of the road record when it appears therefrom that the petition was not presented until after the act was committed. "The State v. Lane," 26 Id., 223.

Where the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace is by consent extended to a sum greater than one hundred dollars, it will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be presumed that such consent was given before the commencement of the suit and the issuing of an attachment therein. The rule that courts and officers are presumed to act rightly, is extended by the statute to inferior courts. "Hodge v. Young," 36 Id., 42.

Under chapter 240, acts of the sixth general assembly, it was held, that an affidavit that the person to be served with notice could not be found within the state must have appeared of record.
GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF EVIDENCE. [TITLE XXII.]

The supreme court will exercise the presumption that an inferior court, in making an order for service of notice in a matter within its jurisdiction, rightly exercised its jurisdiction and required all things to be done and shown which the law prescribed. Lees v. Wetmore, 58 Id., 170, 181.

While it may be conceded that under this section, a decision of a justice of the peace that he has jurisdiction is presumed to be right until the contrary is shown, yet when it appears on the face of the record that he had not jurisdiction, the presumption is rebutted. Brown v. Davis, 59 Id., 641.

Sec. 3670. [Records of court in same county.]-The records and papers properly filed in a cause in either the district or circuit court of a county, are equally evidence in the other court. Depositions taken for either court may be used in the other with the same effect, subject to like objection, as if taken in such court.

HOW TESTIMONY IS TO BE PROCURED.

Sec. 3671. [Clerks to issue subpoenas.]-The clerks of the several courts shall, on the application of any person having a cause or any matter pending in court, issue a subpoena for witnesses under the seal of the court, inserting all the names required by the applicant in one subpoena, which may be served by the sheriff, coroner, or any constable of the county, or by the party or any other person. When a subpoena is not served by the sheriff, coroner, or constable, proof of service shall be shown by affidavit; but no costs of serving the same shall be allowed.

Sec. 3672. [To whom directed: contents of.]-The subpoena shall be directed to the person therein named, requiring him to attend at a particular time or place to testify as a witness, and it may contain a clause directing the witness to bring with him any book, writing, or other thing under his control.

Sec. 3673. [How far witnesses in civil cases can be compelled to attend.]-Witnesses in civil cases cannot be compelled to attend the district or circuit court out of the state where they are served, nor at a distance of more than seventy miles from the place of their residence, or from that where they are served with a subpoena, unless within the same county. No other subpoena but that from the district or circuit court can compel his attendance at a greater distance than thirty miles from his place of residence, or of service, if not in the same county.

Sec. 3674. [May demand payment in advance.]-Witnesses are entitled to receive in advance, if demanded, their traveling fees to and from the court, together with their fees for one day’s attendance. At the commencement of each day after the first, they are further entitled, on demand, to receive the legal fees for that day in advance. If not thus paid they are not compelled to attend or remain as witnesses.

It is competent for the district court to adopt and enforce a rule limiting the right of witnesses, subpoenaed and attending court in several cases at the same time, to fees for mileage and attendance in one case only. Such a rule is “consistent with law,” within the meaning of section 186 of the code. Meffert v. D. B. M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 430.

Where a garnishee demands the fees and mileage of a witness, which are not paid or tendered, he is not compelled to appear and answer the garnishment. But he is not thereby discharged from the obligation to retain in his possession all the property of the defendant under his control, and to withhold payment of any sum he may owe him. And his attendance may be procured at a subsequent term by another notice, fully complying with the requirements of the statute and paying or tendering his fees if demanded. Westphal, Heine & Co. v. Clark, 42 Id., 371.
No limit is placed by the law upon the distance to which a notice of garnishment may be sent, as in the case of a subpoena. Id.

Sec. 3675. [Penalty for failure to obey.]—For a failure to obey a valid subpoena, without a sufficient cause or excuse, or for a refusal to testify after appearance, the delinquent is guilty of contempt of court. He is also liable to the party by whom he was subpoenaed for all consequences of such delinquency, together with fifty dollars additional damages.

Sec. 3676. [Same.]—Before a witness is thus liable for a contempt for not appearing, he must be served personally with the process, by reading it to him, and by leaving a copy thereof with him, if demanded, and it must be shown that the fees and traveling expenses allowed by law were tendered to him, if required; or it must appear that a copy of the subpoena, if left at his usual place of residence, came into his hands, together with the said fees and traveling expenses above mentioned.

Sec. 3677. [When witness conceals himself: power of officer.]—If a witness conceal himself, or in any other manner attempt to avoid being personally served with a subpoena, any constable or sheriff having the subpoena may use all necessary and proper means to serve the same, and for that purpose may break into any building or other place where the witness is to be found, having first made known his business and demanded admission.

Sec. 3678. [Prisoner.]—A person confined in any prison in this state may, by order of any court of record, be required to be produced for oral examination in the county where he is imprisoned, and in a criminal case in any county in the state; but in all other cases his examination must be by deposition.

A defendant in a criminal case possesses no absolute right under the constitution and this section of the code to demand the personal attendance of a convict, under an order of court to testify as a witness on the trial. The exercise of the power to make such order is discretionary, and will not be reviewed on appeal except in a case of manifest abuse. The State v. Kennedy, 20 Iowa, 372.

Where a sheriff is directed by order of court to produce as a witness a prisoner in the penitentiary, he is entitled to his mileage and to all expenses incurred in the transportation of the prisoner. Bringholf v. Polk County, 41 Id., 554.

Sec. 3679. [Deposition of.]—While a prisoner's deposition is being taken he shall remain in the custody of the officer having him in charge, who shall afford reasonable facilities for the taking of the depositions.

Sec. 3680. [Persons authorized by laws of other states: power of.]—When by the laws of any other state or country testimony may be taken in this state to be used in the courts of such state or country, and also in all cases herein provided for taking depositions, the persons authorized to take such depositions have power to issue subpoenas and compel obedience thereto, to administer oaths, and to do any other act of a court which is necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which they are acting.

Sec. 3681. [Same.]—Subpoenas issued by them are valid to the same extent as those emanating from a justice's court, and may be served and returned in the same manner.

Sec. 3682. [Officers to serve.]—Any sheriff or constable, when called upon for that purpose, shall serve such subpoenas and make return thereof.

Sec. 3683. [When party fails to obey subpoena.]—In addition to the above remedies, if a party to a suit in his own right, on being duly subpoenaed, fail to appear and give testimony, the other party may, at his option, have a continuance of the cause as in cases of other witnesses, and at the cost of the delinquent.

Sec. 3684. [Same.]—Or if he shows, by his own testimony or otherwise, that he could not have a full personal knowledge of the transaction, the court may order his pleading to be taken as true; such order, however, is subject to be reconsidered during the term of the court upon satisfactory reasons being shown for such delinquency.
PRODUCTION OF BOOKS AND PAPERS.

SEC. 3685. [When and how done.]—The district or circuit court may, by rule, require the production of any papers or books which are material to the just determination of any cause pending before it, for the purpose of being inspected and copied by or for the party thus calling for them.

Where the district or circuit court deems it material to the just determination of a cause pending before it, it may, in its discretion, upon a proper application, direct the production of the tax list in the hands of the collector. Games v. Robb, 8 Iowa, 193, 197.

Under this section as well as under section 2730, a defendant in an action on a promissory note alleged to have been made by him, may obtain possession thereof before trial for the purpose of inspecting it. Lay v. Wissman, 36 Id., 305, 307.

The granting of an order for the production of books and papers under this section is a matter resting in the discretion of the court. Allison et al. v. Vaughn, 40 Id., 481; Sheldon v. Michel & Hend, Id., 19.

SEC. 3686. [Petition.]—The petition for that purpose must state the facts expected to be proved by such books or papers, and that, as the petitioner believes, such books and papers are under the control of the party against whom the rule is sought, and must show wherein they are material. The rule shall thereupon be granted to produce the books and papers, or show cause to the contrary, if the court deem such rule expedient and proper.

SEC. 3687. [Consequence of failure to obey.]—On failure to obey the rule, or show sufficient cause for such failure, the same consequences shall ensue as if the party had failed to appear and testify when subpoenaed by the party now calling for the books and papers.

SEC. 3688. [Writing called for by one party.]—Though a writing called for by one party is by the other produced; the party thus calling for it is not obliged to use it as evidence in the case.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

SEC. 3689. [Affidavit.]—An affidavit is a written declaration under oath, made without notice to the adverse party.

SEC. 3690. [Out of the state.]—An affidavit may be made within or without this state before any person authorized to administer oaths.

SEC. 3691. [Before whom made.]—Affidavits taken out of the state before any judge or clerk of a court of record, or before a notary public, or a commissioner appointed by the governor of the state to take acknowledgement of deeds in the state where such affidavit is taken, are of the same credibility as if taken within the state.

An affidavit annexed to a petition and referring to "the foregoing petition" is sufficient although it does not set out the names of the parties to the action. Levy & Co. v. Wilson, 43 Iowa, 695.

Where the affidavit is made in another state before the clerk of a court, an omission to state in the certificate that the court is a court of record does not render the affidavit invalid. Evidence aliunde may be given to show the character of the court. Id.

SEC. 3692. [How compelled.]—When a person desirous of obtaining the affidavit of another who is unwilling to make the same fully, he may apply to any officer competent to take depositions as herein declared, by petition, stating the object for which he desires the affidavit.

Under this section a justice of the peace has power to require the appearance before him by subpoena, issued for that purpose, of a person whose affidavit is desired, and a refusal to obey such subpoena thus issued, or to answer when brought before the justice, is a contempt, for which the justice may commit the witness. Robb v. McDonald, 29 Iowa, 389.

Where one is subpoenaed to appear before a justice of the peace to make affidavit, as required under these sections, he must obey the subpoena, notwithstanding the affidavit required may be of no use as evidence in the case in aid of which it is sought, and for refusing obedience in such case he may be committed for contempt, and he cannot be relieved upon habeas corpus. State v. Sea-

SEC. 3693. [Same.]—If such officer is satisfied that the object is legal and proper, he shall issue his subpoena to bring the witness before him, and if he fails then to make a full affidavit of the facts within his knowledge to the extent required of him by the officer, the latter may proceed to take his deposition by question and answer in writing in the usual way, which deposition may afterwards be used instead of an ordinary affidavit.

SEC. 3694. [Notice.]—The officer thus applied to may, in his discretion, require notice of the taking of such affidavit or deposition to be given to any other person interested in the subject matter, and allow him to be present and cross-examine such witness.

SEC. 3695. [Cross interrogatories.]—The court or officer to whom any affidavit is presented as a basis for some action, in relation to which any discretion is lodged with such court or officer, may, if deemed proper, require the witness to be brought before some proper officer and subjected to cross-interrogatories by the opposite party.

SEC. 3696. [Signature and seal: presumption.]—The signature and seal of such of the officers herein authorized to take depositions or affidavits as have a seal, and the simple signature of such as have no seal, are presumptive evidence of the genuineness of such signature as well as of the official capacity of the officer, except as herein otherwise declared.

The official acts of a notary public should be authenticated by his official seal and signature. Tunis v. Withrow, 10 Iowa, 305; Chase v. Street, Id., 593.

The jurat or certificate to an affidavit, offered in evidence, may be amended by adding thereto a reference to the notarial seal of the notary before whom the affidavit was made, when such reference was omitted in the original jurat. Hallett v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 22 Id., 259.

SEC. 3697. [Publications: how proved.]—Publications required by law to be made in a newspaper, may be proved by the affidavit of any person having knowledge of the fact, specifying the times when, and the paper in which the publication was made. But such affidavit must, for the purposes now contemplated, be made within six months after the last day of publication.

It is competent to prove the posting of notices of the appointment of an administrator by his own affidavit attached to a copy of the notice as provided in this section. Brownell v. Williams et al., 52 Iowa, 353.

SEC. 3698. [Posting up papers.]—The posting up or service of any notice or other paper required by law, may be proved by the affidavit of any competent witness attached to a copy of said notice or paper, and made within six months of the time of such posting up.

A notice of appeal to the supreme court cannot be served and the proof of service be made by the party appealing. Marion County v. Stanfield, 5 Iowa, 408.

It was not the intention that the mode of service provided by this section should be exclusive of any other, but simply to provide that such proof should be sufficient. The service may be proved by the oath of any person cognizant of the fact, or in any other way recognized by the rules of evidence. Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Id., 217, 228.

Proof of service of the notice and affidavit under section 1289 of the code, in an action against a railroad company for stock killed, may be established by a return of the sheriff, through his deputer, indorsed on the notice as well as by a sworn return by such deputy. Brandt v. C., R. I. & P. R'y Co., 26 Id., 114, 116.

On a trial to recover damages for injuries to stock on a railway track, a copy of the notice and affidavit served on the company under the statute is admissible when accompanied with the oath of affidavit of the person who served the same, to prove the fact of such service, under section 3698 of the code. McLennon v. The K. C., St. Joe & C. B. R'y Co., 69 Id., 320.

SEC. 3699. [Other facts.]—Any other fact which is required to be shown by affidavit, and which may be required for future use in any action or other proceeding, may be proved by pursuing the course above indicated, as nearly as the circum­stances of the case will admit.
Sec. 3700. [How perpetuated.]—Such proof so made may be perpetuated and preserved for future use, by filing the papers above mentioned in the office of the clerk of the circuit court. And the original affidavit appended to the notice or paper, if there be one, and if not, the affidavit by itself, is presumptive evidence of the facts stated therein, but does not preclude other modes of proof now held sufficient.

Sec. 3701. [Field notes and plats.]—A copy of the field-notes of any surveyor, or a plat made by him and certified under oath as correct, may be received as evidence to show the shape or dimensions of a tract of land, or any other fact whose ascertainment requires only the exercise of scientific skill or calculation.

Sec. 3702. [Copies of record and entries.]—Duly certified copies of all records and entries, or papers belonging to any public office, or by authority of law filed to be kept therein, shall be evidence in all cases of equal credibility with the original records or papers so filed.

Copies of letters belonging to and on file in the office of the register of the state land office, duly certified under the band and seal of the register, are, under this section, admissible in evidence, and entitled to the same credibility as the original letters of which they are copies. Bel- lowes v. Todd, 34 Iowa, 18.

A certified copy of a private contract, filed in the office of the county auditor, but not authorized by law to be kept therein, is not competent evidence of the contract. Such a paper is not a record belonging to the auditor's office. Morrison v. Coad, 49 Id., 571.

The certificate of the governor of the state showing the construction of a railroad in accordance with a land grant thereto, was held competent and sufficient evidence of the fact. The C., B. & Q. R. Co. v. Lewis, 58 Id., 101, 107.

When a defendant has been arraigned upon an indictment, and it is afterward lost or abstracted, the court may, upon motion, order the substitution of a copy thereof and proceed with the trial upon the record thus made, the same as on the original indictment. The State v. Rivers, 58 Id., 102.

Sec. 3703. [Books of original entries.]—The recorder in each of the several counties in this state, shall cause to be produced a book, entitled "copies of original entries" to be kept as a record in his office, in which shall be copied a list of the original entries of land within his county, with name of the person or persons entering the same and the date of such entry, for which he shall receive a reasonable compensation, to be audited and allowed by the board of supervisors of his county.

Sec. 3704. [Copies of.]—Said book, containing a copy of such entries when compared with the originals, and certified as true copies by the register of the land office at which such original entries were made, shall be deemed a matter of record, and certified copies thereof under the hand of said recorder may be received and read in evidence in all courts in this state, with like effect as other certified copies of original papers recorded in his office.

Under the statute (sections 3703 and 3704), the certificate of the county recorder is competent evidence to show who entered a particular tract of land in his county. York v. Sheldon, 13 Iowa, 569, 570.

The certificate of the commissioner of the general land office, showing that certain lands were contained in the list of lands covered by a railroad grant, and the certificate of the secretary of the interior approving such list, are competent and sufficient evidence that the lands described passed to the railroad company under the grant. Johnson v. Thornton, 54 Id., 144.

Sec. 3705. [Same.]—Said recorder shall from time to time, as he may deem it necessary, procure in the same manner copies of any additional entries, under the same restrictions and with like effect until all the lands in his county shall have been entered and certified copies of the entries thereof procured.

Sec. 3706. [Officer to give copies.]—Every officer having the custody of a public record or writing is bound to give any person, on demand, a certified copy thereof on payment of the legal fees therefor.
Sec. 3707. [Copies, maps, etc., in office of surveyor general.]—Copies of all maps, official letters and other documents in the office of the surveyor-general of the United States, when certified to by that officer according to law, shall be received by the courts of this state as presumptive evidence of the existence of the originals and that said copies are copies of the original, notwithstanding such maps, official letters, or other papers, may themselves be copied.

Sec. 3708. [Certificates as to loss of papers.]—The certificate of a public officer that he has made diligent and ineffectual search for a paper in his office, is of the same efficacy in all cases as if such officer had personally appeared and sworn to such facts.

Sec. 3709. [Duplicate receipts of receiver of land office.]—The usual duplicate receipt of the receiver of any land office, or if that be lost or destroyed, or beyond the reach of the party, the certificate of such receiver that the books of his office show the sale of a tract of land to a certain individual, is proof of title equivalent to a patent against all but the holder of an actual patent.

Sec. 3710. [Certificate of register.]—The certificate of the register or receiver of any land office of the United States as to the entry of land within his district, shall be presumptive evidence of title in the person entering to the real estate therein named.

The original certificate of a register of a land office of the United States, of the location of agricultural college scrip upon land within his district, is prima facie evidence of title in the person locating it, under this section of the statute. A showing that scrip of the same number was located upon another tract is not sufficient to overcome such title. Pierson v. Reed, 36 Iowa, 257.

This section of the statute relates to the remedy and applies to all actions in the courts of this state, whether the land in controversy is situated in this state or not. Id.

Sec. 3711. [Signature presumed genuine.]—In the cases contemplated in the last seven sections, the signature of the officer shall be presumed to be genuine, until the contrary is shown.

JUDICIAL RECORDS.

Sec. 3712. [Of this state or federal courts.]—A judicial record of this state, or of any of the federal courts of the United States, may be proved by the production of the original, or by a copy thereof certified by the clerk or the person having the legal custody thereof, authenticated by his seal of office, if he have one.

In an action against a justice of the peace for wrongfully issuing an execution, a copy of the execution issued by him, with a copy of the constable's return indorsed thereon, certified by the justice to be a true copy, may be offered in evidence by the plaintiff, without producing the original, or accounting for its absence. Dupont v. Downing, 6 Iowa, 172, 176.

Sec. 3713. [Of another state.]—That of another state may be proved by the attestation of the clerk and the seal of the court annexed, together with a certificate of a judge, chief justice or presiding magistrate that the attestation is in due form of law.

A certificate by a presiding judge or one of the judges to the attestation of the clerk with the seal annexed, that the attestation is in due form of law, is a sufficient authentication of a record under this section of our statute, although it may not comply with the act of Congress of 1790. Lattourette v. Cook, 1 Iowa, 1; Simmons & Co. v. Cook, 29 Id., 324.

The method prescribed by an act of congress for the authentication of records, is not exclusive of any the states may adopt for their own courts, it is entirely competent for the state legislature to control such matters of evidence within their own limits and in their own courts. Id.

The attestation of the clerk of the court to a transcript of a foreign judgment, upon which an action is brought in this state, should be in conformity with the form used in the state from whence the judgment comes, and the evidence of this fact should be found in the certificate of the judge of the court of which the attesting officer is the clerk, but, under our law, it is not necessary that such certificate should be signed by the judge who is the presiding officer. It is sufficient if signed by a judge of the court. Simmons & Co. v. Cook, 29 Id., 324.

Sec. 3714. [Of a justice of the peace.]—The official certificate of a justice of the peace of any of the United States to any judgment and the preliminary proceedings before him, supported by the official certificate of the clerk of any court of record within the county in which such justice resides, stating that he is an acting justice of the peace of that county, and that the signature to his certificate is genuine, is sufficient evidence of such proceedings and judgment.

The authentication of a transcript of a judgment of a justice of the peace in another state, should show that the justice was, at the time of rendering the judgment, a justice of the peace in and for the county of which the certifying officer is clerk; and also, that he was an acting justice of the peace at the time the transcript purports to have been certified by him. Goosdorff v. Gleason, 10 Iowa; 495.

A transcript, defective in its authentication, cannot be rendered admissible in evidence, by the introduction of another transcript of the same judgment, in which the authentication is correct as to the defect in the first, but which is defective in other respects. Id.

Where the transcript of a judgment of a justice of the peace in another state is certified by his successor in office, and such certificate is authenticated by the certificate of the clerk of a court of record of the county in which the certifying justice resides, stating that he is an acting justice of the peace and that his signature to his certificate is genuine, such transcript is admissible in evidence in a suit thereon in this state, without the certificate of the justice who rendered the judgment. Railroad Bank v. Evans, 32 Id., 202.

Two transcripts, of the character above shown, may both be properly authenticated by one certificate of the clerk, when they are against the same person and from the same docket of the same justice. A certificate of authentication to each is not necessary in such case. Id.

SEC. 3715. [Of a foreign country.]—Copies of records and proceedings in the courts of a foreign country may be admitted in evidence, upon being authenticated as follows:

1. By the official attestation of the clerk or officer in whose custody such records are legally kept; and,
2. By the certificate of one of the judges or magistrates of such court, that the person so attesting is the clerk or officer legally entrusted with the custody of such records, and that the signature to his attestation is genuine; and,
3. By the official certificate of the officer who has the custody of the principal seal of the government under whose authority the court is held, attested by said seal, stating that such court is duly constituted, specifying the general nature of its jurisdiction, and verifying the seal of the court.

EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE RECORDS.

SEC. 3716. [Of the executive of U. S. or any state or foreign government.]—Acts of the executive of the United States, or of this or any other state of the union, or of a foreign government, are proved by the records of the state department of the respective governments, or by public documents purporting to have been printed by order of the legislature of those governments respectively, or by either branch thereof.

SEC. 3717. [Of the legislature of this or other state or foreign government.]—The proceedings of the legislature of this or any other state of the union or the United States, or of any foreign government, are proved by the journals of those bodies respectively, or of either branch thereof, and either by copies officially certified by the clerk of the house in which proceeding was had, or by a copy purporting to have been printed by their order.

The journals of the respective houses of the general assembly are the primary and best evidence of a proposed amendment to the constitution, the enrolled resolution is only secondary evidence, and parol testimony of members of either house is inadmissible to contradict the journals as to the language of the proposed amendment as agreed to. Kohler v. Gauge v. Hill, 60 Iowa, 543.

SEC. 3718. [Printed copies of the statute.]—Printed copies of the statute laws of this or any other of the United States, or of congress, or of any foreign government, purporting or proved to have been published under the authority thereof, or proved to be commonly admitted as evidence of the existing laws in the courts of such state or government, shall be admitted in the courts of this state as presumptive evidence of such laws.

Under this section, printed copies of the statute law of a state, purporting to be published under the authority thereof, are admissible as presumptive evidence of such laws. Webster et. al. v. Ress, 23 Iowa, 269.

When a party introduces what purports to be a volume of the statutes of a state, and it is sufficiently proved to be commonly admitted in evidence in the courts of said state, the court below may properly allow it to be given in evidence. Davis v. Harper, 48 Id., 513, 515.

An affidavit of an attorney at law is not competent to prove the statute law of his state. The State v. Cross, 68 Id., 181.

SEC. 3719. [Written law. ]—The public seal of the state or county affixed to a copy of the written law or other public writing, is also admissible as evidence of such law or writing respectively. The unwritten laws of any other state or government may be proved as facts by parol evidence, and also by the books of reports of cases adjudged in their courts.

SEC. 3720. [Printed copies of ordinances of any city or town. ]—The printed copies of the ordinances of any municipal corporation published by its authority, and transcripts of any ordinances or of any act or proceeding of a municipal corporation recorded in any book, or entries on any minutes or journals kept under the direction of such municipal corporation, and certified by its clerk, shall be received in evidence for any purpose for which the original ordinances, books, minutes or journals would be received and with as much effect. The clerk shall furnish such transcripts, and he shall be entitled to charge therefor at the rate that the clerk of the district court is entitled to charge for transcripts of records from that court.

The supreme court will not take judicial notice of the provisions of a city ordinance. Garvin v. Welle, 8 Iowa, 226; Wolf v. The City of Keokuk, 48 Id., 139.

A party who has taken a deposition in an action may use it or withhold it at his pleasure, or any part of it; he is not required to offer it in evidence, but he cannot withdraw it from the files. Hale & Bro. v. Gibbs, 43 Id., 381; Pelamourges v. Clark, 9 Id., 1.

If the party taking a deposition does not offer it in evidence, the other party may do so. Id.; Wheeler v. Smith, 13 Id., 564.

Depositions taken out of the state must be taken on commission and not on notice. Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Id., 56.

Section 3720, above, is made applicable to cities acting under special charters by chapter 93 of the laws of 1866. See ante.

DEPOSITIONS.

SEC. 3721. [When taken and by whom. ]—After the commencement of a civil action or other civil proceeding, if a witness resides within this state but in a different county from the place of trial, or is about to go beyond the reach of a subpoena, or is for any other cause expected to be unable to attend court at the time of trial, the party wishing his testimony, may, whenever he deems it expedient, take his deposition in writing before any person having authority to administer oaths; and if the action is by equitable proceedings and to be tried on written evidence, then without any other reason therefor, either party may so take the deposition of any witness.

Where a witness resides within the state but in a county different from that of the place of trial, his deposition may be taken either upon notice, or on written interrogatories. Fabian v. Davis, 5 Iowa, 456.

If the witness resides out of the state, a commiss must issue to the officer or commissioner taking the same. Id.; Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Id., 56.

A party who has taken a deposition in an action may use it or withhold it at his pleasure, or any part of it; he is not required to offer it in evidence, but he cannot withdraw it from the files. Hale & Bro. v. Gibbs, 43 Id., 381; Pelamourges v. Clark, 9 Id., 1.

If the party taking a deposition does not offer it in evidence, the other party may do so. Id.; Wheeler v. Smith, 13 Id., 564.

Depositions taken out of the state must be taken on commission and not on notice. Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Id., 56.
If the deposition of a witness can be taken in the county where the action is pending, no commission is necessary whether the witness resides in the country or not. Id. Where it appears from a deposition that the witness is a non-resident of the state, it shows sufficient grounds for taking his deposition, although the witness answers that he intended to be personally present at the term of court at which the cause is to be tried, unless it be shown that the witness is present in court at the time of the trial when his deposition is to be used. Nevin v. Roup, 8 Id., 207.

SEC. 3722. [Notice. — Reasonable notice of the name of a witness and the time and place when and where the same will be taken, must be given to the opposite party; but if notices are given in the same case by the same party, and of the taking of depositions at different places upon the same day, they shall be invalid; and no party shall be required to take depositions on the day of the general election, or on the fourth day of July.

It is not necessary, in a notice to take depositions to give the names of all the witnesses whose depositions will be taken. Mamoa v. McKee, 10 Iowa, 107.

Defects in the notice of taking of depositions is cured by the appearance of the party notified. Id.

A notice to take depositions having been served upon the attorneys of record of two of the defendants, they cannot object to the depositions on the ground that other co-defendants were not served. Gleens v. Glenn et al., 17 Id., 493.

Where a notice was given of the taking of a deposition “at the office of Squire Moore in Ashland, Wapello county, Iowa, on the 10th day of April, 1857,” and it appeared from the caption and certificate to the deposition, that it was taken on the same day named in the notice, at the office of Enos Moore a justice of the peace, of Wapello county; held, that the deposition was properly suppressed. McClintock v. Crick, 4 Id., 453.

Where depositions are to be taken under a commission, the requirement of the statute is express that the names of the witnesses shall be given. Fliner v. The Br. of the St. Sk. &c., 16 Id., 321.

SEC. 3723. [Of witness out of county. — The deposition of a witness residing out of the county, may be taken before one or more commissioners on written interrogatories.

When a deposition can be taken in the county of the trial, no commissioner is necessary, although the witness is a resident of another state. Anderson v. Easton & Son, 16 Iowa, 56.

SEC. 3724. [Who commissioners. — The party wishing to take such deposition, may select any of the officers mentioned in the next section as such commissioners, or the parties may agree upon, or the court appoint in the commission, any other individual for that purpose.

Where a commission to take deposition, is issued by the clerk, under the seal of the court, it will be presumed to have been issued by the authority of the court. Plummer v. Roads, 4 Iowa, 387.

SEC. 3725. [Same. — The clerk, or any judge of any court of record, or any commissioners appointed by the governor of this state to take acknowledgment of deeds in another state, or any notary public, or any consul or consular agent of the United States, may be selected and appointed by the party such commissioner, either by the name of office of such officer, or by his individual name and official style and the name of the court of which such constituted commissioner is clerk or judge, and the name of the state and county; or, if without the United States and Canada, the name of the state and town, or city in which such commissioner of deeds, notary, or consul or consular agent resides, must be stated in the notice and in the commission issued.

Where a commission to take depositions, was directed to the “clerk of the district court of Morgan county, Indiana,” and the deposition was taken and certified by the “clerk of the court of common pleas of Morgan county, Indiana,” it was held that the deposition should have been suppressed. Plummer v. Roads, 4 Iowa, 387.
So where the commission was directed to the "clerk of G-. county, Minnesota," and the officer who took the deposition styled himself as the "clerk of the first judicial circuit of Minnesota territory," it was held that the variance was important and that the deposition should have been excluded. Jones v. Smith, 6 Id., 229.

Under this section, it is sufficient in a commission to take a deposition in the United States or Canada, to name the county and state in which the commissioner resides. When the deposition is to be taken in a foreign country, the commission should state the name of the city or town in which the officer resides. Lyons v. Barrows, 13 Id., 428.

The statute contemplates the issuing of a commission, to take a deposition, to some officer, either by his name of office, or his individual name and official style, together with the name of the county and state where he resides. It is not regular to direct a commission to several officers in the alternative. Levell v. Harmon's Adm'r, 20 Id., 533.

But where a commission was directed "to any notary public in and for Davidson county in the state of Tennessee" it was held, not sufficient ground for suppressing the deposition. Such direction is sufficiently specific under this section of the statute. Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Id., 174.

SEC. 3726. [Qualification.]—None of the above named officers are permitted to take the depositions aforesaid, by virtue of a commission directed to him merely as such officer, unless within the limits to which his official jurisdiction extends.

SEC. 3727. [Notice: action before a justice.]—Reasonable notice must be given the adverse party of a time when a commission will be sued out of the office of the clerk of the court in which the action is pending; if such action is in an inferior court, then from the office of the clerk of the circuit court for taking the deposition of the witness, naming him, which notice must be accompanied with a copy of the interrogatories to be asked such witness.

Under a commission to take depositions, only those of the persons named in the commission and notice served on the adverse party can be taken. While the omission of the second initial letter, or a variation in the name which does not change the sound, is immaterial, the deposition of a person whose name is clearly different from the one stated in the commission, although the one intended thereby, is invalid, and will, on motion, be suppressed. Strayer v. Wilson et al., 54 Iowa, 565; Palmer v. The Branch of The State Bank, 16 Id., 321.

SEC. 3728. [Cross interrogatories.]—At or before the time thus fixed, the opposite party may file cross-interrogatories. If cross-interrogatories are not filed, the clerk shall file the following:

1. Are you directly or indirectly interested in this action? and if interested, explain the interest you have;

2. Are all your statements in the foregoing answers made from your personal knowledge? and if not, do your answers show what are made from your personal knowledge, and what are from information, and the source of that information? if not, now show what is from information, and give its source;

3. State everything you know concerning the subject of this action, favorable to either party.

SEC. 3729. [Rules.]—Subject to the regulations herein contained, the court may establish farther rules for taking depositions and all other acts connected therewith.

NOTICE—SERVICE OF.

SEC. 3730. [Reasonable notice: what deemed.]—The notice hereinbefore mentioned, is at least, when served on the attorney, ten days, and when served on the party within the county, five days; if served on the party anywhere else, the notice shall be that required under other similar circumstances in the service of an original notice; and when depositions are to be taken in pursuance of the first of the above methods, one day in addition must be allowed for every thirty miles travel from the place where the notice is served, to that where the depositions are to be taken. No party shall be required to take depositions when the court is in actual session.

The provision in this section that a notice to take depositions shall be five days "when served on the party within the county" means the county in which the depositions are to be taken, and not that in which the court for which they are taken is held. Kennedy v. Roster, 71 Iowa, 671.

SEC. 3731. [How served.]—The notice, or notice and copy of interrogatories, may be served by the same persons on the same persons in the same manner, and may be returned, and the return shall be authenticated in the same way, as should be an original notice in the same cause when served other than by publication.

SEC. 3732. [On attorney.]—It may also be served personally on any attorney of the adverse party of record in the case.

SEC. 3733. [By filing in clerk's office.]—Whenever the adverse party has been notified by publication only, and has not appeared, he shall be deemed served with the notice, or the notice and interrogatories, by the filing of the same with the clerk in the cause.

Where the plaintiff obtained service of the original notice by publication, and took depositions after depositing notice thereof in the clerk's office, in the manner prescribed by section 3733, and after judgment, on motion of the defendant the same was set aside and a retrial ordered, it was held erroneous to suppress the deposition taken ex parte by the plaintiff, upon the motion of the defendant made after the cause had been depending for trial for a considerable time, and after some of the witnesses had died. Watson v. Russell et al., 18 Iowa, 79.

MANNER OF TAKING DEPOSITIONS.

SEC. 3734. [Commission: form of.]—The commission issues in the name of the court and under its seal. It must be signed by the clerk, and need contain nothing but the authority conferred upon the commissioner, instructions to guide him, and a statement of the cause and court in which the testimony is to be used, and a copy of the interrogatories on each side appended.

SEC. 3735. [How taken.]—The person before whom any of the depositions above contemplated are taken, must cause the interrogatories propounded, whether written or oral, to be written out, and the answers thereto to be inserted immediately underneath the respective questions. The answers must be in the language, as nearly as practicable, of the witness, if either party requires it. The whole being read over by or to the witness, must be by him subscribed and sworn to in the usual manner.

That a deposition was written by the attorney of the party by whom it was taken instead of by the commissioner designated in the notice, the adverse party not being present, was held sufficient ground for suppressing the deposition. Hurst & Co. v. Larpin, 21 Iowa, 484.

Where the certificate of the officer before whom a deposition is taken fails to state that the deposition was "read over by or to the witness" before it was signed and sworn to by him, is insufficient, and should be excluded on motion. Ball v. Sykes, 70 Id., 525.

SEC. 3736. [Exhibits appended.]—All exhibits produced before the person taking the deposition, or proved or referred to by any witness, or correct copies thereof, must be appended to the depositions and returned with them, unless sufficient reason be shown for not so doing.

SEC. 3737. [Certificate.]—The person taking the deposition shall attach his certificate thereto, stating that it was subscribed and sworn to by the deponent at the time and place therein mentioned. The whole, including the commission and interrogatories, when any such were issued, must then be sealed up and returned to the clerk of the proper county by mail, unless some other mode be agreed upon between the parties.

Where the certificate of the officer taking depositions did not show that the same was read over to the witness before they were subscribed and sworn to, it was held that the officer might subsequently file an amended certificate conforming to the facts. McKinley v. The G. & N. W. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 314.

The certificate of a notary public attached to a deposition, showing that the deposition was read over by the witness and was subscribed and sworn to by him, at the time and place mentioned in the certificate, is a literal compliance with the statute, and is sufficient. Vaughn v. Smith & Co., 58 Id., 593.

SEC. 3738. [Neither party to be present.]—Where a deposition is taken upon interrogatories, neither party, nor his agent or attorney, shall be present at the examination of a witness, unless both parties are present or represented by an agent or attorney, and the certificate shall state such fact if party or agent is present.

If it is shown that one of the parties to the action was present in the absence of the other, at the time the deposition was taken upon interrogatories under a commission, the deposition will, on motion, be suppressed. Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Iowa, 171.

Sec. 3739. [Opened: not to be taken from clerk's office.]—The depo­sitions when thus returned, must be opened by the clerk and placed on file in his office, after which he shall at any time furnish any person with an attested copy of the same upon payment of the customary fees, but must not allow them to be taken from his office previous to the next term of the court, unless by the mutual written consent of the parties.

Where a deposition is taken upon interrogatories propounded by both parties, and is returned and filed in the office of the clerk of the court, neither party has a right to withdraw it, and either may use it in evidence. Palamourges v. Clark, 9 Iowa, 1.

The court has no power to change the form of an interrogatory in a deposition after it has been answered by the witness. Id.

Sec. 3740. [Returned by mail.]—The depositions when thus returned by mail, must be directed to the clerk of the court. They shall state on the outside of the envelope the title to the cause in which they are to be used.

Sec. 3741. [Unimportant deviations.]—Unimportant deviations from any of the above directions shall not cause the deposition to be excluded where no substantial prejudice could be wrought to the opposite party by such deviation.

Evidence contained in the depositions will not be excluded on the trial on the ground that it was elicited in response to leading questions, when no objections have been taken to the form of the questions when the depositions were taken. Wolverton v. Ellis, 18 Iowa, 413.

A defective notice of the taking of a deposition is obviated by an appearance and cross-examination of the witness. Nevin v. Roup, 8 Id., 207.

While unimportant errors in the taking of depositions are to be disregarded, yet authority to take testimony in this manner being in derogation of the common law, there should be some measure of strictness in the construction of the statute; and where there is a clear departure from the authority given, the deposition should be suppressed. Jones v. Smith, 6 Id., 229.

The safer and better practice is to require that objections to the form of interrogatories be made before the commission issues, and not upon the trial of the cause. Id.

Sec. 3742. [Authentication of.]—Where depositions are directed to be taken before a judge or justice of the peace, merely by his name of office, the return must contain an authentication by the clerk of the proper court, under his seal of office, verifying the fact that the person who took the deposition is really such officer.

Sec. 3743. [Deposition to show reason for taking.]—The deposition in each of the above cases must show that the witness is a non-resident of the county, or such other fact as renders the taking of the deposition legal, and no such deposition shall be read on the trial, if, at the time, the witness himself is produced in court.

Where a deposition has been taken it may be read on the trial if the witness is not in court, notwithstanding the reason given in the deposition for taking it be an invalid one. Cook v.
Blair, 50 Iowa, 128.

Where it appears from a deposition that the witness is a non-resident of the state, it shows a sufficient reason for taking the same; and it will not be suppressed, although the witness may answer that he intends to be personally present at the term of court at which the cause is to be tried; unless it be shown that the witness is present in court at the time of the trial. Nevin v.
Roup, 8 Id., 207.

Sec. 3744. [In justice's court.]—Depositions taken to be used in a justice's court, shall be transferred to the court to which the cause is appealed, and used on the trial of such appeal in the same manner as if regularly taken therein.

An objection to a deposition, taken and used before a justice of the peace, other than for incompetence or irrelevancy will not be considered on appeal, when it was taken before the deposition was read in evidence before the justice. Alverson v. Bell, 13 Iowa, 308.
SEC. 3745. [Testimony.]-The testimony of a witness may be perpetuated in the following manner:

SEC. 3746. [Petition: statements.]-The applicant shall file in the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court, a petition, to be verified in which shall be set forth specially, the subject matter relative to which testimony is to be taken, and the names of the persons interested, if known to the applicant; and if not known, such general description as he can give of such persons, as heirs, devisees, alienees, or otherwise. The petition shall also state the names of the witnesses to be examined, and the interrogatories to be propounded to each; that the applicant expects to be a party to an action in a court of this state, in which such testimony will, as he believes, be material, and the obstacles preventing the immediate commencement of the action, where the applicant expects to be the plaintiff.

SEC. 3747. [Order of court or judge.]-The court, or the judge thereof, may forthwith make an order allowing the examination of such witnesses. The order shall prescribe the time and place of the examination; how long the parties interested shall be notified thereof, and the manner in which they shall be notified.

SEC. 3748. [Notice: if cannot be done: proceedings.]-When it appears satisfactorily to the court or judge that the parties interested cannot be personally notified, such court or judge shall appoint a competent attorney to examine the petition and prepare and file cross interrogatories to those contained therein. The witnesses shall be examined upon the interrogatories of the applicant and upon cross interrogatories where they are required to be prepared, and no others shall be propounded to them; nor shall any statement be received which is not responsive to some of them. The attorney filing the cross interrogatories shall be allowed a reasonable fee therefor, to be taxed in the bill of costs.

SEC. 3749. [Before whom taken.]-Such depositions shall be taken before some one authorized by law to take depositions, or before some one specially authorized by the court or judge, and shall be returned to the clerk's office of the court in which the petition is filed.

SEC. 3750. [Court or judge to approve.]-The court or judge, if satisfied that the depositions have been properly taken and as herein required, shall approve the same and order them to be filed; and if a trial be had between the parties named in the petition, or their privies or successors in interest, such depositions, or certified copies thereof, may be given in evidence by either party where the witnesses are dead or insane, or where their attendance for oral examination cannot be obtained as required; but such depositions shall be subjected to the same objections for irrelevancy and incompetency as may be made to depositions therein pending an action.

Exceptions to depositions, on the ground of insufficiency of the notice under which they were taken, held, to be waived if not filed before the commencement of the trial. Pilmer v. Branch of State Banks, etc., 16 Iowa, 321.

When, in the taking of a deposition, the witness is asked as to the contents of a statement in writing, it should be exhibited to the witness; if not, the objection must be made at the time the deposition is taken. Nelson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 564.

It is error to exclude the answers to cross-interrogatories in a deposition, on the ground of incompetency and irrelevancy, when they relate to what the witness had stated to a particular person at a certain time and place specified, and to the subject matter of his testimony in chief. Id.

Where written objections to the taking of depositions were filed with the officer taking the same, but the attention of the court was never called thereto, and they were never passed upon by the court, no question arises thereon, for determination by the supreme court, on appeal. Neimeyer v. The Cass County Bank, 42 Id., 124.

It is not sufficient objection to a deposition, that while the pleadings, notice and commission give the entire christian names of the witness, they only set it out by the initial. Grimes v. Martin, 10 Id., 347.
Depositions taken before a notary public whose commission is unrecorded, but who is acting de facto as a notary, will not be suppressed for that reason. Keene v. Leon & Lyon, 14 Id., 464.

An objection to parol proof of the contents of a writing need not be made at the time of taking the deposition, or at any time before the trial, for it cannot be known whether it is competent or not until the time it is offered in evidence. Its admissibility will depend upon whether the proper basis has been laid by other proof, and the objection may be made when the deposition is offered to be read to the jury, or after it is received, or even after the testimony is closed. Horseman v. Todhunter, 12 Id., 250.

A motion to suppress depositions, made after the jury is sworn, and the plaintiff has stated his case, comes too late to be regarded by the court. Frazier v. Smith, 10 Id., 591.

A deposition should not be suppressed on the ground that the witness had referred to certain deeds which are not set out or annexed to the deposition as exhibits, when it appears that the deeds were not under the control of the witness, and are not the basis of the plaintiff’s action. Lyon v. Burroughs, 13 Id., 428.

Where the defendants were notified that on a certain day named, between the hours of nine o’clock A. M. and six o’clock P. M. the plaintiff would take the deposition of a person named. The deposition was taken between nine and eleven o’clock in the forenoon. At about the latter hour, and after the notary and witness had left the place where the deposition was taken, the attorney for the defendant appeared and desired to cross-examine the witness. Efforts were made by the plaintiff’s attorney and the notary to procure the return of the witness, but without success. Held, in the absence of any showing of fraud, that the deposition should not be suppressed. Schenck v. Bishop, 36 Id., 60.

Exceptions to the cross-examination in a deposition, on the ground that it is not proper cross-examination, must be in the form of a motion, filed by the morning of the second day of the first term after the deposition has been filed. Johnson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 51 Id., 25.

Courts cannot take judicial notice that a well-known railway company is popularly known by the initials of the words constituting its full name; for example that C. B. & Q. R. R. Co. means the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company. So held where those initials alone were used to designate the party adversely interested in a petition to take depositions to perpetuate testimony under sections 3745-3750 of the Code, and the depositions so taken were not admissible in a subsequent action against said corporation, although some one filed cross-interrogatories, signed “C, B. & Q. R. R. Co.” Accola v. C., B. & Q. R. R. Co., 70 Id., 185.

SEC. 3751. (As substituted by ch. 26, 17th g. a.) [Notice of filing.]—(That the clerk shall, forthwith, after filing depositions in his office issue a notice of the filing of such depositions, reciting therein the title of the cause, names of witnesses, and the date of filing such depositions, and serve the same upon the attorneys of the parties in the action therein recited.

Said notice shall be duly served, when the clerk shall have deposited copies of the same in the post-office at the place where such cause is pending for trial, duly directed to the post-office address of the respective attorneys, for the parties in such action, which notice shall be so mailed by the clerk on the day he files such depositions; and if the post-office address of any attorneys of the parties is unknown to the clerk, he shall then deposit said notice, addressed to such attorney or attorneys, at the post-office where such cause is then pending for trial. No exceptions to depositions other than for incompetency or irrelevancy shall be regarded, unless made by motion filed by the morning of the second day of the first term held after the depositions have been filed by the clerk: Provided, such depositions have been filed three days prior thereto.

If the depositions are afterwards received during such term, such motion shall be filed by the morning of the third day after such depositions are filed. [Time of filing motion to suppress.]—All motions to suppress depositions must be filed before the cause is reached for trial.

A motion to suppress depositions based on any other ground than incompetency or irrelevancy, must be filed by the first morning of the first term after the deposition has been filed with the clerk. That the cross-interrogatories attached by the clerk are not answered, does not constitute incompetency. The Harris Manufacturing Co. v. Marsh, 49 Iowa, 11.

A deposition which has been read in evidence without objection on a former trial of an action cannot be objected to on a second trial, on the ground of incompetency of the witness. McMillan v. The B. & M. R. Co., 56 Id., 221.

An objection to testimony in a deposition, on the ground that it was not proper cross-examination, should be made by a proper exception at the time the deposition is taken, or by motion to suppress, filed within the proper time as prescribed in this section, and cannot be made on the introduction of the deposition. Bixby v. Carskadden, 63 Id., 164.

Depositions which have been regularly taken in one cause may be used in another cause between the same parties or their privies; but in such case the parties have the same right to except to them, or to move their suppression, as if they had been taken in that cause; and in order that they may have an opportunity to avail themselves of this right, it is necessary that the depositions be filed in the cause, or leave to use them obtained before the trial is begun. Searle v. Richardson, 67 Id., 170.

Where it did not appear that the defendant has been properly made a party to proceedings to take depositions to perpetuate testimony, and it did appear that the depositions were never filed in the trial court; held that it was not necessary to move to suppress the depositions before the cause was reached for trial, but that the objection could not be made when they were offered as evidence. Accola v. The C. B. & Q. R'y Co., 70 Id., 185.

Sec. 3752. [Hearing.]—The court shall, on motion of either party, hear and decide the questions arising on exceptions to depositions before the commencement of the trial.

Sec. 3753. [Errors waived.]—Errors of the court in its decision upon exceptions to depositions are waived, unless excepted to.

Sec. 3754. [Costs.]—In all cases of taking depositions as hereinbefore provided the costs thereof must be paid in the first place by the party at whose instance they are taken, subject like other costs to be taxed against the failing party in the suit.
TITLE XXIII.
OF COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS.

CHAPTER 1.
OF STATE AND DISTRICT OFFICERS.

SECTION 3755. [Governor and secretary.]—The salary of the governor shall be three thousand dollars per annum; and the salary of the private secretary of the governor [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum.

Sec. 3756. (As amended by ch. 125, 21st g. a.) [Secretary of state and deputy.]—The salary of the secretary of state shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy secretary of state shall be [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum.

The secretary of state shall collect the following fees:
For each commission to commissioners in other states, three dollars.
For each commission to notaries public, one dollar and twenty-five cents.
For certificate, with seal attached, one dollar.
For a copy of any law or record, upon the request of any private person or corporation, for every hundred words ten cents.
For [filing] articles of incorporation other than those of a public character, [five dollars, and for recording the same, for every hundred words or fraction thereof, fifteen cents; and upon payment of the fees above provided, the secretary of state shall upon request issue a certificate under the seal of his office, setting forth the fact of such filing.]

Sec. 3757. [Auditor and deputy.]—The salary of the auditor of state shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy auditor of state shall be [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum; and the auditor shall collect fees as provided in chapters on insurance.

Sec. 3758. [Treasurer and deputy.]—The salary of the treasurer of state shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy treasurer of state [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum.

(The office of register of the State Land Office abolished by chapter 206, of the laws of 1880. See post page ——.)

Sec. 3759. (As amended by ch. 118, 21st g. a.) [Superintendent of public instruction and deputy.]—The salary of the superintendent of public instruction shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy superintendent of public instruction, [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum.

Sec. 3760. [Adjutant general.]—The salary of the adjutant general shall [be fifteen hundred dollars per annum.]

Sec. 3761. [State librarian.]—The salary of the state librarian shall be [one thousand] dollars per annum, nor shall any extra amount be paid for any assistant librarian.

Sec. 3762. [Superintendent of weights and measures.]—The salary of the superintendent of weights and measures shall be fifty dollars per annum.
SUPREME JUDGES—ATTORNEY-GENERAL—CLERK.

SEC. 3769. (As substituted by ch. 172, 21st g. a.) [Judges of supreme court.]—[The salary of each judge of the supreme court shall be four thousand dollars per annum.]

SEC. 3770. (As substituted by ch. 172, 21st g. a.) [Attorney-general.]-[The salary of the attorney-general shall be fifteen hundred dollars per annum, and whenever he is required by the duties of his office, or by directions of the governor or general assembly to attend any of the courts of this state, or any federal courts of this or any other state, he shall receive, in addition to his salary, five dollars for each day he attends such courts, and the same mileage in going to and from such courts as is allowed members of the general assembly for attending sessions thereof, to be computed by the nearest practicable route.]

SEC. 3771. (As amended by ch. 119, 21st g. a.) [Salary of clerk and deputy clerk supreme court.]—The salary of the clerk of the supreme court shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy clerk of the supreme court shall be [fifteen] hundred dollars per annum.

[Shall charge and collect fees.]—The clerk shall collect the following fees, and account for them as provided in section 3778 of the code, and shall also keep account of and report in like manner all uncollected fees:

Upon filing each appeal, three dollars;
Upon entering judgment when the cause has been tried on its merits, two dollars;
Upon each continuance, one dollar;
Upon issuing each execution, one dollar and twenty-five cents;
Upon entering satisfaction of each judgment, fifty cents;
Upon each writ, rule or order to be served upon any person not in court, twenty-five cents;
For copying an opinion to be transmitted to an inferior court upon reversal of a judgment or an order, to be paid by the party against whom the costs are adjudged, or for a copy of such opinion, or any record made at the request of any person, for each one hundred words, ten cents.]

(Chapter 118, Laws of 1886.)

RELATING TO SALARIES OF DEPUTY STATE OFFICERS AND CLERKS.

An Act to amend sections 3755, 3756, 3757, 3758, 3760 of the code, and section two (2) of chapter 117, laws of the nineteenth general assembly, relating to salaries of deputy state officers and governor's private secretary, and clerks in state offices.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: (Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 enact amendments to sections 3755, 3756, 3757, 3758 and 3760 of the code, respectively, and to section 2, of chapter 117, laws of 1882, by substituting in each of said sections the word “fifteen” in lieu of the word “twelve,” which appears in the amended sections.)

SEC. 7. [All fees turned into state treasury.]—The compensation of fifteen hundred dollars per annum shall be in full for all compensation to such deputy state officers, and all fees received by or paid to any deputy state officers by virtue of their official positions shall be turned into the state treasury. They shall receive no other compensation from the state for any services whatever while acting as such deputy, provided, further, that no clerk appointed by the auditor or his deputy, the treasurer or his deputy, the secretary of state or his deputy, or by the executive council or the governor, shall receive, directly or indirectly, a greater sum than fifteen hundred dollars per annum for such services as such clerk.

Approved April 10, 1886.

(Sec. 3772 repealed by section 2, chapter 74, laws of 1878.)

Sec. 3773. If any of the foregoing fees of the clerk are not paid in advance, execution may issue therefor except where the fees are payable by a county or the state.

DISTRICT OFFICERS.

Sec. 3774. [District judges.]—The salary of each judge of the district and of the circuit court shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum.

Sec. 3775. [District attorney.]—The salary of each district attorney shall be six hundred dollars per annum, and they shall receive in addition thereto the following fees, to be audited and paid like other claims against the counties:

For each conviction on a plea of guilty, five dollars;
For each jury trial in cases of misdemeanor, ten dollars;
For each jury trial in cases of felony, twenty dollars;
For each judgment for costs only, five dollars;
For prosecuting an information before a justice of the peace for a violation of the laws in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors, five dollars;
For all fines and forfeitures actually collected by him, ten per cent upon all sums less than two hundred dollars, and upon all sums exceeding that amount, one per cent.

A district attorney is entitled to the percentage provided in this section of the code upon fines and forfeitures collected through his agency, whether the money actually passes through his hands or not. Smith v. Linn County, 55 Iowa, 232.

The district attorney is not entitled to charge a fee for a conviction in addition to the fee allowed him for a jury trial. Ellis v. Jackson County, 38 Id., 175; Bradley v. Marshall County, Id., 178.

Where defendants are jointly indicted and convicted, a separate judgment must be entered against each, though tried together, and the district attorney is entitled to a conviction fee of five dollars upon each judgment. The State v. Hunter, 33 Id., 351.

Sec. 3776. [In case of conviction.]—In cases of conviction, the fees contemplated in the preceding section shall be taxed against the defendant, and when collected paid into the county treasury.

Sec. 3777. [As substituted by ch. 195, 18th g. a.] [Compensation.]—[Short-hand reporters shall receive compensation as follows: For each day actually in attendance in court under the order of the judge, such sum as may be fixed by the judge, not exceeding six dollars per day, to be audited and paid by the county upon the certificate of the judge of the court; but the judge shall not order the attendance of said reporter except during that part of the term when, in his judgment, the reporting of the testimony will be required, and he shall discharge said reporter from further attendance at each term as soon as, in his judgment, the reporting of testimony will not be further required for such term; and for making transcripts of his original notes, for each one hundred words, six cents; but where such transcripts are desired in any civil case, the fees therefor shall be paid by the party desiring the same, and the amount allowed such reporter for reporting testimony in any case shall, in all instances, except where the defendant in a criminal case is acquitted, be taxed as a part of the costs in the case; provided, that when the defendant in any criminal cause, who shall have perfected an appeal from a judgment against him, presents to the judge satisfactory proof, by affidavit or other-
The taking of stenographic notes of the oral evidence offered upon the trial of an equitable action, is not a taking down of the evidence in writing in compliance with section 2742 of the code, as amended by chapter 145 of the laws of the seventeenth general assembly. Godfrey v. McKean, 54 Iowa, 127.

But where the evidence is so taken down under an order of the court, made on motion of one of the parties, he waives the right to insist that it “be taken down in writing,” and is not entitled to an order of court requiring the reporter to make and file a long-hand translation of his notes as a part of the record, without making provision for payment of such service. Id.

Where a bill of exceptions referred to the evidence as follows: “The following testimony and rulings were had and reduced to writing by said reporter, being all the testimony on said trial. (Here insert evidence in full)”; held a sufficient and unmistakable reference to the testimony taken by the reporter and by him duly certified and filed in the clerk’s office. Wilson v. First Congregational Church, 60 Id., 112; McDonald v. Farrell, 50 Id., 112; Baldwin v. The St. L., K. & N. W. B’I/ Co., 68 Id., 260.

Where the evidence of misconduct of jurors was taken by the short-hand reporter and neither placed on file, as required by this section, nor preserved by bill of exceptions though incorporated in the transcript, on appeal, will be stricken out on motion. The record must be made up in the court below and cannot be made up in the appellate court. The State v. Hessian, 58 Id., 345.

Where the original notes of the reporter were duly filed, and then, instead of being referred to in the bill of exceptions, were incorporated therein, and a long-hand copy, duly certified, was inserted in the transcript, it was held to be a substantial compliance with this section as amended by chapter 195, laws of 1890. McAuley v. Seib, 59 Id., 586. See Wilson v. The First Congregational Church, 60 Id., 112.

This section of the code, as amended, making the original notes of the short-hand reporter, or a transcript thereof, admissible in evidence in any case in which the same are material and competent, has reference to the trial of causes in the nisi prius courts, and not to the making up of the record for an appeal to the supreme court, and does not dispense with the necessity for bills of exceptions in cases where they were before required. McCarthy v. Watrous & Co., 69 Id., 260.

Under this section, the short-hand reporter’s notes of the testimony of a witness cannot be used on the trial of another cause, without first showing, as in the case of the use of a deposition, that the witness himself cannot be produced in court; and evidence that the witness was reputed to have left the state was not sufficient for that purpose. Baldwin v. The St. L., K. & N. W. R’y Co., 65 Id., 37.

Evidence taken in short-hand can become the written evidence, for the purpose of an appeal, only when it is translated, and the translation is certified by the reporter. The certificate of the judge who cannot read the short-hand notes, that they show all the evidence offered and received, cannot give them the character of written evidence. Richards v. Lanoensbury, 65 Id., 587.

Where a witness properly subpoenaed by the plaintiff was out of the state at the time of the trial, without the consent or fault of plaintiff, and three or four days previous to the trial, and in term time, the plaintiff learned that the witness would be absent, and duly notified defendant that the transcript of the reporters notes of the former testimony of the witness in another trial would be offered in evidence, held that such transcript was admissible under section 3777 of the code as amended as above, and that if any notice was necessary in the case, that given was sufficient.

Fleming v. The Town of Shenandoah, 71 Id., 456.

The record of documentary and oral evidence taken and duly preserved on a former trial is not admissible in a subsequent trial, without any showing of the absence of the witnesses, or of inability to produce the original documents, and without any notice to the adverse party.

Case v. Blood et al., 7 Id., 632.

SEC. 3778.  [Certain state officers to pay fees to state treasurer.]—The secretary of state, auditor of state, and register of the state land office, shall keep an accurate and particular account of all fees received by them, which shall be verified by affidavit, and rendered monthly to the treasurer of state, and they shall pay the amounts thus received to such treasurer at the end of each month.

SEC. 3779.  [Judge’s salary not increased.]—During the term for which any judge may have been elected or appointed, his salary shall not be increased by this chapter, except that any judge elected to fill a vacancy shall receive the salary herein provided.

SEC. 3780.  [Salaries paid monthly.]—The salaries of all officers mentioned in this chapter shall be paid in monthly installments at the end of each month, and shall be in full compensation for all services, except as otherwise expressly provided in this chapter.

CHAPTER 2.
OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

SECTION 3781.  [Clerk of district and circuit court.]—The clerk of the district or circuit court shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:
For filing any petition, appeal or writ of error, and docketing the same, one dollar and fifty cents;
For every attachment, fifty cents;
For every cause tried by jury, one dollar and fifty cents;
For every cause tried by the court, seventy-five cents;
For every equity cause, one dollar and fifty cents;
For each injunction, or other extraordinary process or order, one dollar.
For all causes continued on application of a party by affidavit, fifty cents.
For all other continuances, fifteen cents;
For entering any final judgment or decree, seventy-five cents;
For taxing costs, fifty cents;
For issuing execution or other process after judgment or decree, fifty cents;
For filing and properly entering and indorsing each mechanic’s lien, the same to be taxed as other costs in case a suit is brought thereon, one dollar;
For certificates and seal, fifty cents;
For filing and docketing transcript of judgment from another county or a justice of the peace, fifty cents;
For entering any rule or order, twenty-five cents;
For issuing writ or order, not including subpoenas, fifty cents;
For issuing commission to take depositions, fifty cents;
For entering sheriff’s sale of real estate, fifty cents;
For entering judgment by confession, one dollar;
For entering satisfaction of any judgment, twenty-five cents;
For all copies of records or papers filed in his office, transcripts, and making complete record, ten cents for each hundred words;
COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS. [TITLE XXIII.

For taking and approving a bond and sureties thereon, fifty cents;
For declaration of intentions by an alien to become a citizen, twenty-five cents;
For all services on naturalization of aliens, including oaths and certificate, fifty cents;
In criminal cases, and in all cases in which the state or county is a party plaintiff, the same fees for same services as in suits between private parties. When judgment is rendered against the defendant, the fees shall be collected from such defendant. Where the state fails, the clerk's fees shall be paid by the county;
For making out transcripts in criminal cases appealed to the supreme court, when the defendant is unable to pay, for each one hundred words, ten cents, to be paid by the county.
An officer is entitled to charge and receive only such fees as the statute provides as compensation for the services he may perform. Palo Alto County v. Burlingame et al., 71 Iowa, 201; Estate of Packer v. Corlett, Id., 249.

SEC. 3782. [Pensions and bounties.]—The clerks of the district court shall certify under the seal of such court, to all applications and other papers requiring the certificate and seal of a court of record to procure pensions, bounties and back pay for soldiers or other persons entitled thereto, whenever requested by the applicant, his agent or attorney, and such clerk shall be entitled to the sum of ten cents only for such service.

SEC. 3783. [In probate matters.]—There shall be such compensation paid such clerk for his services in probate matters out of the fees collected by him for probate business, as the board of supervisors may allow.

The allowance to be made to the clerk under this section of the code, is not to be in addition to his other legal fees, when they amount in the aggregate to $2,000 per annum. His entire compensation under the code for all of his official services is limited to $2,000 per annum. Washington County v. Jones, 45 Iowa, 260.

SEC. 3784. (As substituted by sec. 1, ch. 184, 18th g. a.) [Compensation limited.]—The total amount of compensation of such clerk for all official services shall not exceed the sum of eleven hundred dollars per annum in counties having a population not exceeding ten thousand; the sum of thirteen hundred dollars per annum in counties having a population in excess of ten thousand but not exceeding twenty thousand; nor the sum of fifteen hundred dollars per annum in counties having a population in excess of twenty thousand but not exceeding thirty thousand. If the fees collected by the clerk in any county in any one year shall exceed the sums aforesaid, the excess shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county fund. In case the aggregate amount of fees so received by the clerk in any one year is less than the limit of his compensation as herein fixed, and such amount is deemed inadequate compensation by the board of supervisors, they may allow such additional amount as they may deem just and proper within the limits herein prescribed. When in the judgment of the board of supervisors it is necessary to the proper discharge of the duties of the office, said board may, upon application of the clerk, authorize said clerk to employ a deputy or clerk, at a salary not exceeding the rate of six hundred dollars per annum for the time actually employed. *(As amended by ch. 36, 22d g. a.) [Provided, however, that in all counties having a population of twenty-five thousand, and not over thirty-six thousand, as shown by the last state census, where the board of supervisors find it necessary to have a deputy clerk, deputy treasurer and a deputy auditor, there shall be allowed as compensation to such deputy clerk, deputy treasurer and deputy auditor, for their service a sum equal to not more than two-thirds (2) the salary or compensation of the county clerk, county treasurer and county auditor of such county, respectively, as the board of supervisors may direct: “Provided, that in counties having a population in excess of forty thousand, the court, upon application of the clerk, may authorize said clerk to appoint, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors, not more than three deputies and one or more clerks, and determine in its order the number of deputies and clerks;" the board of supervisors may allow such compensation to the clerk, deputies and clerks as they may deem just and proper, but that the sum total of such compensation allowed shall not exceed twenty-five hundred dollars, and, provided further, that in counties having a population in excess of forty thousand, the board of supervisors may allow such compensation to the said clerk, deputies and clerks as they may deem just and proper, but the total compensation shall not exceed the fees received by such clerk, or the sum of five thousand dollars, if such fees be less than said sum. Provided further, that in any county having a population of over thirty and under forty thousand, and which is within the judicial district in which the circuit has been divided, the board of supervisors, if they find it necessary, may employ an additional clerk or deputy, for duties in connection with the probate records, at a compensation not exceeding six hundred dollars per annum. Provided further, that in each county having two county seats, the compensation of clerk of courts, including the amount paid his deputies and clerks, shall not exceed three thousand dollars in any one year. Any excess of fees collected to be paid into the county treasury as above provided.

Under the revision of 1860, the total compensation of the clerk of the district and circuit courts, exclusive of the amount allowed by the board of supervisors for probate business, was limited to two thousand dollars per annum. Boone County v. Wilson, 38 Iowa, 372; Washington County v. Jones, 45 Id., 260.

The clerk is entitled under the code in addition to his salary, to such an allowance for the hire of his deputy as may be reasonable, in view of the amount of labor demanded by the duties of his office. Washington County v. Jones, supra.

SEC. 3785. [Report to supervisors: fees collected.]—The clerk of the district court as such, and as clerk of the circuit court, shall report to the board of supervisors of his county at each regular session, a full and complete statement of the amount of fees received by him, which shall be verified by the affidavit of such clerk.

SEC. 3786. [As amended by ch. 151, 19th g. a.] [Clerks of courts to pay over unclaimed fees six months in his hands twice a year.]—The clerk of the district and circuit courts shall, on the first Monday in January and July of each year, pay into the county treasury for the use of the county all fees of whatever kind in his hands at the date of preceding payment, and still unclaimed and at the time of so doing he shall take from the treasurer duplicate receipts thereof [for], giving the title of the cause and style of the court in which the same was pending, with the names of the witnesses, jurors, officers, or other persons, and the amount each one is entitled to receive, one of which receipts he shall file with the county auditor, who shall charge the amount thereof to the treasurer as so much county revenue, and shall enter the same upon the proper records as a claim allowed, and on demand by the persons entitled to said fees he shall issue county orders for the amount due each person respectively.

SEC. 3787. [For marriage licenses and fees in probate matters.]—There shall be paid the clerk of the circuit court the following fees:

For issuing marriage licenses, one dollar;

For all services performed in the settlement of the estate of any decedent, except where actions are brought by the administrator or against him, or as may be otherwise provided herein, where the value of the estate does not exceed three thousand dollars, three dollars;

Where such value is between three and five thousand dollars, five dollars;

Where such value is between five and seven thousand dollars, eight dollars;

Where the value exceeds eight thousand dollars, ten dollars;

And in addition to the foregoing, for making a complete record in cases where the same is required by law or directed by an order of the court, for every one hundred words, ten cents;

All of which fees shall be paid into the county treasury.
An Act to repeal chapter 115, laws of the eighteenth general assembly, relating to compensation of sheriffs, and to enact a substitute in lieu thereof.

SECTION 1. [Repeal of ch. 115, 18th g. a.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That chapter 115, laws of the eighteenth general assembly, relating to compensation of sheriffs, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

SEC. 2. [Per diem for attending court.]—The sheriff is entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

For attending the supreme court, to be paid out of the amount appropriated for contingent expenses of said court, two dollars per day.

SEC. 3. [Fee for serving notices.]—For serving a notice and making a return thereof, for the first person served, fifty cents, and for each additional person, twenty-five cents.

SEC. 4. [Fee for serving warrant.]—For each warrant served two dollars and the repayment of any amount actually paid by him as necessary expenses in executing such warrant as sworn to by the sheriff. If service of the warrant cannot be made, the repayment of all necessary expenses actually paid by the sheriff, while attempting in good faith to serve such warrant within this state, and such reasonable compensation as the board of supervisors may deem just and equitable.

The sheriff is entitled to this fee of two dollars for serving a warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors. Painter v. Polk County, 70 Iowa, 596.

SEC. 5. [Serving subpoena.]—For serving and returning a subpoena, for each person, twenty cents.

SEC. 6. [Summoning jury.]—For summoning a grand or trial jury, for each person served, sixty cents, to be paid out of the county treasury; and such sum shall be in full compensation for such service.

SEC. 7. [Jury to assess damages for right of way.]—For summoning a jury to assess the damages to the owners of lands taken for public improvements, and attending to them, five dollars per day. There shall be nothing in this section so construed that will allow any sheriff to make separate charges for different assessments, provided they can be done by the same set of appraisers and completed in one day of ten hours.

SEC. 8. [Serving execution and attachment.]—For serving an execution, attachment, or order for the delivery of personal property, injunction, or any order of court and making return thereof, two dollars.

SEC. 9. [Per centum on collections.]—For collecting and paying over money:

On the first five hundred dollars ($500) or fraction thereof, two per cent; and on excess over five hundred dollars ($500) and under five thousand dollars ($5,000), one per cent; on all over five thousand dollars, ($5,000) one-half per cent.

SEC. 10. [Certificate of sale.]—For making and executing a certificate or deed for lands sold on execution, or a bill of sale for personal property, one dollar.

SEC. 11. [For making inventory.]—For the time necessarily employed in making an inventory of personal property attached or levied upon, twenty-five cents per hour.

SEC. 12. [For copy of paper.]—For copy of paper required by law, made by him, for each one hundred words, ten cents.

Under this section a sheriff is entitled to receive, for copies of papers required by law to be...
SEC. 13. [Mileage.]—Mileage in all cases required by law, going and returning, per mile, five cents.

SEC. 14. [Taking bond.]—For taking each bond required by law, twenty-five cents.

SEC. 15. [For commitment.]—Each commitment to jail, twenty-five cents; discharge from same, twenty-five cents.

SEC. 16. [Receiving surrender of prisoner.]—For receiving a prisoner on surrender by bail, fifty cents.

SEC. 17. [Boarding prisoner.]—For boarding a prisoner, a compensation to be fixed by the board of supervisors, not less than fifty cents per day.

SEC. 18. [Washing, etc.]—For waiting on and washing for prisoners, the sheriff shall have such reasonable compensation as shall be allowed by the board of supervisors.

SEC. 19. Attending before judge.]—For attending before any judge with a prisoner, one dollar per day.

Section nineteen of this chapter does not entitle the sheriff to one dollar for each prisoner brought by him before the court for arraignment, trial or sentence, but only for attending before a Judge when not holding court. Painter v. Polk Co., 70 Id., 596.

SEC. 20. [Attending sale.]—For attending sale of property, for each day, one dollar.

SEC. 21. [For conveying convicts to penitentiary and insane persons to asylum, etc.]—The sheriff, for conveying one or more convicts to either of the penitentiaries of this state, or any prisoner to any county jail outside of the county in which said sheriff resides, or any insane person or persons to any insane asylum in the state, or person or persons to the reform school in the state, shall be allowed, as full compensation therefor, his necessary traveling expenses, actually paid by him, including board and railroad fare for himself and such convicts, insane, or other prisoners, or any other necessary expenses, and in addition thereto forty cents per hour for the time necessarily employed in going to and returning from said prisons, asylums, or reform schools, to be certified by the oath or affidavit of such sheriff, accompanied by the proper vouchers to the board of supervisors. Should the sheriff need any assistance in taking prisoners to the penitentiary or insane persons to the asylum, the same shall be furnished at the expense of the county, the compensation to be fixed by the board of supervisors.

A sheriff is not entitled to additional compensation for personal attention to a prisoner, beyond the payment for his board. The fees and salary of the officer include payment for such services. Grubb v. Louisa County, 40 Id., 314.

Where the sheriff had for service upon one person seven subpoenas in as many State cases, and made but one trip in serving them all, held that he was entitled to mileage for but the one trip. Bedford v. Shelby County, 64 Id., 11.

SEC. 22. [Dwelling for jailor.]—The jailor may be furnished a dwelling in connection with the jail, or as convenient thereto as practicable, in the discretion of the board of supervisors.

SEC. 23. [Salary of sheriff.]—The sheriff is also entitled, for attending district and circuit courts, and for other service for which no compensation is allowed by law, such annual salary as may be fixed by the board of supervisors, but in no case less than two hundred dollars ($200) nor more than four hundred dollars ($400); and the sheriff shall make a full report to the board of supervisors at their January meeting of each year, showing the full amount of fees received by him for the previous year in pursuance of this act.

SEC. 24. [Repeal.]—All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.
Under section twelve of this act, the fee provided is chargeable by the sheriff for the service of an execution. Bell v. Weddington, 54 Iowa, 501.

Under section twenty-three a sheriff is entitled to mileage for each mile traveled in conveying convicts to the penitentiary and returning therefrom. Haydon v. Montgomery County, 55 Id., 41.

It is only when persons are found to be insane, under the provisions of chapter 49 title 25 of this code, that a sheriff is entitled to the same mileage for conveying them to the hospital as is allowed for conveying convicts to the penitentiary. Id.

The mileage allowed by law to the sheriff for conveying convicts and insane persons to places of confinement is intended to be full compensation for the time spent and expenses incurred in the performance of the services. Id.

Where property sold on execution is purchased by the execution plaintiff, and the proceeds are credited on the judgment, the sheriff is entitled under section 9 of the above chapter, 94, laws of 1883, to the same percentage as compensation as if the purchase had been made by a stranger to the execution. Litchfield v. Ashford et al. and Sane v. Erickson et al., 70 Id., 303.

For conveying a convict to the penitentiary the sheriff is entitled to sixteen cents per mile as his full compensation. Bringolf v. Polk County, 41 Id., 554.

The compensation of the sheriff for conveying a prisoner to the penitentiary for safe keeping is five cents a mile. He can demand in addition therefor his railway fare and amount paid for necessary guards. Id.

Where the sheriff is directed by the court to produce as a witness a prisoner from the penitentiary, he is entitled to his mileage and all his expenses incurred in the transportation of the prisoner. Id.

Where under the same order he thus produces five prisoners, he is entitled to single mileage and expenses for all. Id.

When a sheriff produces a prisoner in court from the county jail located in the basement of the court house he is not entitled to charge mileage. Id.

For serving a subpoena and delivering a copy of the same, the sheriff is entitled to compensation for the latter at the rate of ten cents for every hundred words. Id.

The sheriff is not entitled to ten cents for each jury called by a bailiff, in addition to the per diem paid by the county for the bailiff. Id.

The county should reimburse the sheriff for the amount expended by him for the services of bailiffs to the number designated by the court. Id.

Where a decree of foreclosure of a mortgage upon a railroad has been rendered at the suit of the mortgage-bond holders, and a sale of the road has taken place thereunder, at which a corporation not a party to the foreclosure was the bidder, and the transfer of such bid being subsequently made to the trustees of the bond holders and approved by the court rendering the decree, it was held, that the sheriff's fees for making the sale should be the same as if the execution plaintiffs had been the immediate purchasers, Gilman v. The D. V. R. Co., 42 Id., 435.

Where a sheriff summoned a jury to assess the damages sustained by the owner of land taken for the right of way of a railroad, and on the same day assessments were made by the same jury of several tracts belonging to different owners, it was held, that directing the jury to proceed from one tract to another did not constitute a distinct summons, and that the sheriff was only entitled to compensation for summoning the jury to assess the damages on a single tract. Robb v. The A., K. & D. M. R. Co., 44 Id., 440.

Where a sheriff summoned a jury to assess the damages sustained by the owner of land taken for the right of way of a railroad, and on the same day assessments were made by the same jury of several tracts belonging to different owners, it was held, that directing the jury to proceed from one tract to another did not constitute a distinct summons, and that the sheriff was only entitled to compensation for summoning the jury to assess the damages on a single tract. Robb v. The A., K. & D. M. R. Co., 44 Id., 440.

Section 3788 of the code providing that the mileage of an officer for conveying a convict to the penitentiary shall be computed by the "most direct route of travel," is to be construed as intending the route by which the journey can be most speedily performed. Maynard v. Cedar County, 51 Id., 430.

The salary provided by this section to be paid to the sheriff is intended as a full compensation for all services for which payment is not otherwise provided, and he cannot recover for services he may render as jailor. McDonald v. Woodbury & Co., 45 Id., 404; Grubb v. Louisa Co., 49 Id., 314.

The board of supervisors of a county may properly fix the salary of a sheriff at the beginning of his term, and when this is done the action of the board and the rendering of services by the sheriff upon the faith of such action, constitutes a binding contract upon the county. Holmes v. Lucas County, 53 Id., 211.

The compensation of a sheriff is limited to the amount fixed by the statute, and he cannot recover a quantum meruit for his services. Wapello County v. Monroe County, 39 Id., 349.

(Sections 3788 and 3789 of the code were repealed by chapter 115 of the acts of the 18th general assembly, and that chapter is repealed and substituted by the foregoing chapter 94 of acts of the 19th general assembly.)

Sec. 3790. [In criminal cases.]—In all criminal cases where the prosecution fails, or where the money cannot be made from the person liable to pay the same, the facts being certified by the clerk or justice as far as their knowledge extends, and verified by the affidavit of the sheriff, the fees allowed by law in such cases shall be audited by the county auditor and paid out of the county treasury.

A county is not liable for the cost of printing the abstract and argument of a defendant convicted of crime, on his appeal to the supreme court. This section has reference only to sheriff’s fees. Red v. Polk County, 56 Iowa, 98.

Proceedings under the statute, brought by the mother of a bastard child against the putative father, to charge him with the support of the child, are not criminal in their nature, though brought in the name of the state, and the county is not liable for the costs in such case under section 3790 of the code. McAndrew v. Madison County, 67 Id., 54.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS.

SEC. 3791. (As amended by ch. 15, 21st g. a.) [Per diem: in session: on committee: mileage.]—[The members of the board of supervisors shall each receive four dollars for each day actually in session, and two dollars and fifty cents per day, exclusive of mileage, when not in session but employed on committee service, and six cents per mile for every mile traveled in going to and from the regular and adjourned sessions of the board and in going to and from the place of performing committee service: Provided, that in counties having a population, as shown by the last preceding census, of ten thousand or less, they shall not receive compensation for session service for more than twenty days in one year; and in counties having a population of more than ten thousand but less than twenty-three thousand, for more than thirty-five days of such service in one year; and in counties having a population of twenty-three thousand or over, for more than forty days of such service in one year]; [and in counties having a population of forty thousand or over, not more than fifty days in one year.]

RECORER—TREASURER.

SEC. 3792. The recorder shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:
For recording each instrument containing four hundred words, fifty cents; For every additional hundred words, or fraction thereof, ten cents.

SEC. 3793. (As substituted by § 11, ch. 184, 18th g. a.) Each county treasurer shall receive for his services the following compensation:
1. Three-fourths of one per cent of all money collected by him as taxes due any incorporated city or town, to be paid out of the same.
2. Three per cent of all taxes collected by him for all other tax funds, to be paid out of the county treasury.
3. For each certificate of purchase issued for land sold for non-payment of taxes, twenty cents.
4. For paying money into the state treasury when required by law, or the auditor of state, such compensation as the board of supervisors shall allow, not exceeding one-fourth of one per cent on the amount so paid, which allowance shall be paid by the county.
5. When the aggregate amount of compensation allowed by this and the next section exceeds twelve hundred dollars in any one year in counties where taxes are collected by township collectors, or fifteen hundred dollars in counties having no township collectors, the excess shall be paid into the county treasury; but when in the judgment of the board of supervisors it is necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of the office, said board may, upon application of the treasurer, authorize said treasurer to employ a deputy, or clerk, at a salary not exceeding the rate of six hundred dollars per annum for the time actually employed; provided, that in counties where population does not exceed ten thousand, the salary shall not exceed thirteen hundred dollars in any case, and the board shall not allow it to exceed three hundred dollars clerk hire in such counties; and provided, that in counties having more than thirty thousand population, the board of supervisors may grant such additional compensation for treasurer, deputy, or clerk hire as they may deem just and proper."

Where the board of supervisors allowed the treasurer compensation in addition to the percentage allowed by this section a sum which made his total compensation exceed $1,500 per annum, such allowance was wholly void, and thereunder no additional allowance whatever is recoverable in excess of such percentage. (See subdivision 5 of said section.) Griffin v. Clay County, 63 Iowa, 413.

Sec. 3794. [To give information of amount of taxes due from any person.]-The county treasurer shall, if applied to by letter enclosing thirty cents' value in postage stamps, asking for information of the amount of taxes upon any specified parcel or parcels of land in his county, answer the same correctly by mail, giving direct answers to all the inquiries in such letter respecting the amount and interest of the unpaid taxes as the same appears from the tax books in his office. If the total of such land specified in any one letter exceeds three hundred and twenty acres, then such treasurer is not bound to answer such letter unless it contains, besides the thirty cents above provided, ten cents in addition for every one hundred and sixty acres when the total acres specified in such letter exceed the said three hundred and twenty acres; but the aggregate fees thus charged shall in no case exceed the sum of fifty cents; and upon the return to such treasurer of the letter or a copy thereof so sent to him, with the amount due as shown by such letter, such treasurer shall pay such taxes and return a receipt therefor by mail.

Sec. 3795. [Penalty for failure.]—Any treasurer who shall neglect for twenty days after the receipt of any such letter, with money inclosed as aforesaid, to answer the same fully as required in the preceding section, or who shall directly or indirectly receive or be concerned in receiving any greater compensation for the service mentioned in the preceding section than is therein provided, shall forfeit to the person aggrieved, for each offense the sum of fifty dollars, which may be recovered in a civil action in any court having jurisdiction.

Sec. 3796. [Render account of money received as compensation to supervisors.]—The county treasurer shall enter in a book kept for that purpose, all moneys received by him for services rendered, designating for what the same was received, and shall render an account verified by affidavit to the board of supervisors at each session thereof, stating fully all money so received and from what source derived, and any excess to which he would be entitled under the preceding section over and above the sum therein limited, shall be paid into the county treasury.

AUDITOR.

Sec. 3797. [County auditor.]-The county auditor shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:
  For recording each bond required to be by him recorded, fifty cents;
  For transfers made in the transfer books, for each deed, twenty-five cents;
  For issuing certificate of redemption of land sold for taxes, twenty-five cents;
  For each certificate issued by the treasurer for lands sold for non-payment of taxes, fifteen cents.

Sec. 3798. (As substituted by ch. 184, sec. 3, 18th g. a.) [Compensation of auditor limited.]—The total compensation of the auditor in any one year shall not exceed the sum of twelve hundred dollars, inclusive of fees; but when, in the judgment of the board of supervisors, it is necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of the office, said board may, upon application of the auditor, authorize said auditor to employ a deputy or clerk at a salary not exceeding the rate of six hundred dollars per annum; provided, That in counties of more than twenty-five THOUSAND POPULATION, THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MAY GRANT SUCH ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION TO THE AUDITOR, DEPUTY, OR CLERKS AS THEY DEEM IT JUST AND PROPER.

[Last census to determine population.]—IT SHALL BE THE DUTY OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, IN FIXING THE COMPENSATION OF THE OFFICERS AS PROVIDED IN THIS ACT TO TAKE THE LATEST STATE OR NATIONAL OFFICIAL CENSUS, AS THEIR GUIDE IN SO DOING.

A county is under no legal obligation to reimburse an auditor for money paid by him for services of a deputy. Benton v. Decatur County, 36 Iowa, 504.

Sec. 3790. The coroner is entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

For a view of each body and taking and returning an inquest on same, five dollars;

For a view of each body and examination without inquest, three dollars;

For issuing subpoena, warrant, or order for a jury, twenty-five cents;

For each mile traveled to and returning from an examination or inquest, ten cents;

Which fees shall be paid out of the county treasury when they cannot be obtained from the estate of the deceased;

For all other services, the same fees as are allowed sheriffs in similar cases, to be paid in like manner.

Sec. 3800. (Amended by ch. 25, 16th g. a.) The county surveyor is entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

For each day's service actually performed in travelling to and from the place where any survey is to be made, and for making the same and return thereof, [four] dollars;

For certified copy of the plat or field-notes, fifty cents.

NOTARIES PUBLIC.

Sec. 3801. Notaries public shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

For every protest of a bill or note, seventy-five cents;

For registering any protest, fifty cents;

For being present at a demand, tender, or deposit, and noting the same, fifty cents;

For administering an oath, five cents;

For certifying to the same under his official seal, twenty-five cents;

For certificate under seal, twenty-five cents;

For other services, the same fees as are allowed justices of the peace for similar services.
SEC. 3802. Each sealer of weights and measures shall receive the following fees:
   For sealing and marking every balem, ten cents;
   For sealing and marking measures of extension at the rate of ten cents per yard, not to exceed fifty cents for any one measure;
   For sealing and marking every weight, five cents;
   For sealing and marking liquid and dry measure, five cents for each measure.
   He shall also be entitled to a reasonable compensation for making weights and measures conform to the standard in his possession.

SEC. 3803. The inspector of lumber and shingles shall receive:
   For inspecting and measuring lumber, for each one thousand feet, board measure, fifteen cents;
   For inspecting shingles for each thousand, fifteen cents.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

SEC. 3804. Justices of the peace shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:
   For docketing each case in any action, except in garnishment proceedings, fifty cents;
   For issuing each original notice, fifty cents;
   For issuing attachment or order for the delivery of property, twenty-five cents;
   For drawing and approving bond when required in any case, fifty cents;
   For entering judgment by confession after the suit brought, fifty cents;
   For entering judgment by confession not on suit brought, one dollar;
   For entering judgment by default, or on a plea of guilty, fifty cents;
   For entering judgment when contested, fifty cents;
   For additional when a jury is called, one dollar;
   For issuing venire for jury, twenty-five cents;
   For each subpoena in civil cause, when demanded, twenty-five cents;
   For each oath or affirmation, except in proceedings connected with suits before him, fifty cents;
   For each continuance at the request of either party, fifty cents;
   For setting aside each judgment by default, fifty cents;
   For each information and affidavit, fifty cents;
   For each execution, renewal of execution, or warrant of any kind, fifty cents;
   For each bond or recognition, fifty cents;
   For each mittimus or order of discharge, fifty cents;
   For each official certificate or acknowledgment, twenty-five cents;
   For making and certifying transcript, fifty-cents;
   For trial of all causes, civil or criminal, for each six hours or fraction thereof, one dollar;
   For all money collected and paid over without suit, five per cent; and for all money collected and paid over after suit brought without judgment, two per cent, which shall be added to the costs.

A justice of the peace is entitled to fifty cents for drawing and approving an appeal bond when required in any case, but he is not entitled to any fee for approving an appeal bond prepared by the attorney of the appellant, nor can he demand from the appellant the payment to him of the clerk’s fee for docketing the case in the circuit court, before allowing the appeal. He may, however, demand the payment of his own fee for making and certifying the transcript, before allowing the same to go out of his possession. McKay v. Maloy, 53 Iowa, 33.

This section provides for costs in an action and not for services. A justice cannot recover from CONSTABLES.

SEC. 3805. Constables shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:
- For serving any notice or civil process on each person named therein, fifty cents;
- For copy thereof when required, ten cents;
- For serving attachment or order for the delivery of property, fifty cents;
- For traveling fees, going and returning, per mile, five cents;
- For summoning a jury, including mileage, one dollar;
- For attending the same on trial, for each calendar day, one dollar;
- For serving execution, besides mileage fifty cents;
- For advertising and selling property, seventy-five cents;
- For advertising without selling, twenty-five cents;
- For return of execution when no levy is made, ten cents;
- For serving each subpoena, besides mileage, fifteen cents;
- For posting up each notice required by law, fifteen cents;
- For serving each warrant of any kind, seventy-five cents;
- For attending each trial in a criminal case, for each calendar day, one dollar;
- For serving each mittimus or order of release, besides mileage thirty cents;
- For all money collected on execution and paid over except costs, five per cent, which shall constitute part of the costs.

The original notice in an action in the circuit court may be served by a constable, and he is entitled to receive therefor fifty cents for service, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile. Du Boise & Bro. v. Babcock et al., 42 Iowa, 283.

SEC. 3806. [In criminal cases.]—The fees contemplated in the two preceding sections, in criminal cases shall be audited and paid out of the county treasury in any case where the prosecution fails, or where such fees cannot be made from the person liable to pay the same, the facts being certified by the justice and verified by affidavit.

The mayor of a city is not entitled under this section to fees from the county for services rendered as a magistrate in state cases. Upton v. The County of Clinton, 52 Iowa, 311.

SEC. 3807. [Officers seizing intoxicating liquors.]—A constable or other officer who serves any warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors shall be allowed:
- For such service, one dollar;
- For the removal and custody of such liquor, his reasonable expenses;
- For the destruction of such liquor under the order of the court, his reasonable expenses and one dollar.
- For posting and leaving notices in such cases, one dollar.

This section is repealed as to sheriffs, but remains in force as to constables. Painter v. Polk County, 70 Iowa, 596.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES.

SEC. 3808. The township trustees shall receive:
For each day’s service of eight hours necessarily engaged in official business, to be paid out of the county treasury, to each trustee, two dollars;
For each day engaged in assessing damages done by trespassing animals, one dollar per day, each, to be paid as are other costs in such cases;
But when acting as fence viewers, or viewing or locating any ditch or drain, or in any other case where provision is made for their payment otherwise, they shall not be paid out of such treasury.
(As amended by ch. 35, 16th g. a.) When acting as fence viewers, or in locating any ditch or drain, or in any other place where provision is not made for their payment out of the county treasury, their fees shall be 2 [two] dollars per day each, and in the first instance be paid by the party requiring their services, and they shall append to their report of the proceedings a statement thereof, and therein shall direct who shall pay said fees, and in what sums respectively, and the party having so advanced any such fees may have his action therefor against the party so awarded to pay the same, unless within ten days after demand by the party entitled, the same shall be reimbursed to him.

The necessary expense incurred by the township trustees in providing and furnishing a place in which to hold the general state election is not a lawful claim against the county. Turner & Co. v. Woodbury County, 57 Iowa, 440.

TOWNSHIP CLERK—ASSESSOR.

SEC. 3809. (As amended by ch. 61, 16th g. a.) The township clerk shall receive:

For each day of eight hours necessarily engaged in official business, where no other compensation or mode of payment is provided, to be paid from the county treasury, two dollars;

For all money coming into his hands by virtue of his office [aside from money received from his predecessor in office], five per cent;

For filing each application for a drain or ditch, fifty cents;

For recording each person's mark or brand for animals, twenty-five cents;

For making out and certifying the papers in any appeal taken from an assessment of damages done by trespassing animals, such additional compensation in such cases as the board of supervisors may deem reasonable and allow.

SEC. 3810. Each township assessor shall receive for each day of eight hours necessarily engaged in the discharge of his official duties, to be paid out of the county treasury, two dollars.

CHAPTER 3.

OF WITNESSES, JURORS, AND SPECIAL CASES.

SECTION 3811. Jurors shall receive the following fees:

For each day's service or attendance in courts of record, two dollars, and for each mile traveled from his residence to the place of trial, the sum of ten cents;

For each day's service before a justice of the peace, one dollar;

No mileage shall be allowed jurors before justices, nor to talesmen;

Jurors' fees in justice's courts shall be taxed as part of the costs;

Immediately after the adjournment of each term of a court of record, the clerk thereof shall certify to the county auditor a list of the jurors with the number of days' attendance and mileage to which each one is entitled.

SEC. 3812. (As re-enacted by ch. 39, 16th g. a.) [Fees taxed as part of costs.]—For every case tried in a court of record by jury, there shall be taxed as part of the costs as a jury fee the sum of six dollars, which shall be collected as other costs and paid into the county treasury by the clerk, who shall report the same to the board of supervisors at each regular session thereof, who shall cause the same to be charged to the treasurer.

Section 3812 of the code was repealed and substituted by chapter 32 of the laws of 1874; and by chapter 39 of the laws of 1876, that act was repealed and the original section as it stood in the code was, by the latter act, restored. It was held under the repealed statute that it was not in conflict with the constitution in authorizing jury fees to be taxed as a part of the costs of the case.

The entire jury fee fixed by the statute is properly chargeable as part of the costs, even if the case does not consume the whole of a day when no other case is tried upon the same day. The State v. Verwayne, 44 Id., 621.

SEC. 3813. Every appraiser or commissioner appointed or selected to appraise the damages caused by taking private property for public use, shall receive the same compensation as jurors in courts of record, but when called to appraise property taken on judicial process, they shall receive twenty-five cents per hour.

SEC. 3814. (As amended by ch. 62, 16 g. a.) Witnesses in any court of record [except in the police courts], shall receive for each day’s attendance, one dollar and twenty-five cents; [in the police courts, witnesses shall receive for each day’s attendance, the same fees and mileage as are allowed before justices of the peace.]

Before a justice of the peace, fifty cents for each day;
Mileage for actual travel per mile each way, five cents;
An attorney, juror, or officer, who is in habitual attendance on the court for the term at which he is examined as a witness, shall be entitled to but one day’s attendance.

(As amended by ch. 62, 16th g. a.) [Experts.]-Witnesses called to testify only to an opinion founded on special study or experience in any branch of science, or to make scientific or professional examinations and state the result thereof, shall receive additional compensation, to be fixed by the court with reference to the value of the time employed and the degree of learning or skill required; [provided that such additional compensation so fixed shall not exceed four dollars per day while so employed.]

[Criminal cases.]—For attending before the grand or trial jury, or court, in criminal cases where the defendant is adjudged not guilty, the fees above provided for attending the district or justice’s court shall be paid by the county, upon a certificate of the clerk or justice showing the amount of service to which they are entitled.

Physicians or other professional men who may have been subpoenaed as witnesses are not entitled to extra compensation under this section unless called to testify as experts and give an opinion based upon their special study and experience. Snyder v. Iowa City, 40 Iowa, 646.

A justice of the peace may legally tax the costs in a criminal prosecution, dismissed by him before final trial, because of the failure of the prosecuting witness to appear and prosecute, to the state to be paid by the county. Cassidy v. Palo Alto County, 55 Id., 129.

A witness who is confined in the county jail by order of a magistrate for a failure to give security for his appearance to testify on behalf of the state in a criminal trial, cannot recover from the county his per diem as a witness for the time he has been thus imprisoned. Markweil v.
Warren County, 53 Iowa, 422.

A witness who is subpoenaed to attend court upon the same day in several different cases, is entitled only to fees for attendance and mileage for each separate day of his attendance, and his daily compensation is not increased by the fact that he has been subpoenaed in more than one case. Constructive compensation is not allowed.
Hardin v. Polk County, 39 Id., 661; Muffert v. The D., B. & M. R. R. Co., 34 Id., 430.

SEC. 3815. (As amended by ch. 151, 19th g. a.) [Justice of the peace to pay money received for fees into county treasury.—[ Each justice of the peace shall, on the first Monday in January and July, each year, pay into the county treasury for the use of the county all fees of whatsoever kind in his hands at the date of proceeding payment and still unclaimed, and at the time of so doing he shall take from the treasurer duplicate receipts therefor, giving the title of the cause, with the names of the witnesses, jurors, officers or other persons, and the amount each one is entitled to receive, one of which receipts he shall file with the county auditor, who shall charge the amount thereof to the treasurer as so much county revenue, and shall enter the same upon the proper records as a claim allowed, and on demand by the persons entitled to said fees he shall issue county orders for the amount due each person respectively.

SEC. 3816. [Penalty for failure.]—Any failure to pay over to the county treasurer witness fees as contemplated by this title, is a misdemeanor, and shall be prosecuted as provided by law.

SEC. 3817. [When witness fees are paid by party or county.]—When the county or any party has paid the fees of any witness, and the same is afterward collected from the adverse party, the person or county so paying the same shall, upon the production of the receipt of such witness or other satisfactory evidence, be entitled to such fee, whether it be in the hands of the justice or clerk, or has been paid into the county treasury.

SEC. 3818. (As substituted by ch. 207, 18th g. a.) [Witnesses subpoenaed at expense of the county only on order of the court.]—[In no criminal case shall witnesses for the defense be subpoenaed at the expense of the county, except upon the order of the court or judge before whom the case is pending; then only upon a satisfactory showing that the witnesses are material and necessary for the defense, and the board of supervisors shall in no case audit or allow any claim for witness fees, for the defendant in criminal cases, except upon order or judgment of court or judge thereof. And such order may be made at the time of trial or other disposition of the case, and upon such showing as the court may require.]

Section 3818, of the code, as amended by chapter 207 laws of 1880, being a later expression of the legislative will than section 3814, the latter must now be construed as being limited to the payment of witnesses by the county, to such of defendant’s witnesses as have been subpoenaed after the proper order has been made by the justice. Kennedy v. Delaware County, 59 Iowa, 123.

A motion for an order to subpoena witnesses for defendant in a criminal case under this section held properly overruled, where the affidavit in support of the motion did not state with precision the facts which the defendant expected to prove by the witnesses, and the facts, if proved, did not seem to be material or necessary to the defense. State v. Benge, 61 Id., 658.

It is not necessary that the order of the court or judge for the payment of fees of witnesses for the defense, required by this section, be made upon the application of the accused, nor that it be made during the progress of the trial or at its conclusion. It may be made “at the time of the trial or other disposition of the case,” and in the absence of a counter-showing it will be presumed to have been made at some stage of the disposition of the case. Jones County v. Linn County, 68 Id., 63.

SEC. 3819. [Where no other fees are fixed.]—Any officer legally called on to perform any of the following services, in cases where no fees have been fixed therefor, shall be entitled to receive:

For drawing and certifying an affidavit, or giving a certificate not attached to any other writing, twenty-five cents;

For affixing his official seal to any paper, whether the certificate be under seal or not, thirty-five cents;

For making out a transcript of any public papers or records under his control, for the use of a private person or corporation, or recording articles of incorporation, for every one hundred words, ten cents.

SEC. 3820. [For committing persons to jail: carriage hire.]—Every officer or person who shall arrest any person with a warrant or order issued by any court or officer, or who shall be required to convey a prisoner from a place distant from the county jail to such jail on an order of commitment, shall be allowed to charge as fees, which shall be collectible the same as other fees in criminal cases, besides the fees allowed by law, whatever sums such officer or person shall actually and necessarily pay for carriage hire in so conveying such person to jail.
SEC. 3821. [For taking up estrays.]—Any person taking up an estray horse, mule, jack or jenny, fifty cents; for every head of neat cattle, twenty-five cents; for all other kinds of animals, fifteen cents; for appointing the appraisers, making the necessary entry, certificate and return, the justice shall receive fifty cents.

SEC. 3822. [Trespassing animals.]—In all cases where services shall be performed by any officer or person in respect to estrays or trespassing animals, the following fees or compensation shall be allowed: to the justice of the peace for administering the oath to the taker-up or finder, making an entry thereof, with the report of the appraisers, and making and transmitting a certificate thereof to the clerk of the district court, fifty cents; to the sheriff for making proof of the ownership of the property and granting certificate of the same, twenty-five cents; for registering each certificate transmitted to him by the justice as aforesaid, ten cents; for advertisements, including the newspaper publication, fifty cents; to the sheriff on account of sales made by him in pursuance of chapter three, of title eleven, four per cent on the amount; to the constable, for each warrant served on appraisers, twenty-five cents; to each appraiser, twenty-five cents; all which said cost and charges, with the exception of the justice’s for granting a certificate of ownership, and the sheriff’s commission, shall be paid by the taker-up to the person entitled thereto, whenever the service shall be performed; the printer of the county paper for publishing the notice shall receive the price of his published or ordinary advertising rates; in all cases where it shall be necessary to make publication in a newspaper, the taker-up or finder, as the case may be, shall be required to deposit with the clerk of the district court, a sum of money sufficient to pay the same, previous to the publication thereof; all which costs and charges shall be reimbursed to the taker-up or finder in all cases where restitution of the property shall be made to the owner, or the same shall be delivered to the sheriff to be sold, or where money or bank notes shall be paid into the county treasury, in addition to the reward to which such person may be entitled for such taking up or finding as aforesaid.

SEC. 3823. [Public printer for publishing estray notices.]—The public printer shall receive for each estray notice published, a sum agreed upon by the secretary of state, not, however, exceeding thirty cents for each insertion; and when the appraised value of the estray exceeds fifteen dollars, the finder shall pay the justice a sum sufficient to pay the clerk’s fee, postage, and the cost of publishing such notice. If more than one animal is taken up at the same time, they shall be included in one entry and advertisement, and no additional fees shall be required or allowed in such case, and said clerk shall subscribe for one copy of such paper, to be paid for out of the county treasury, which paper shall be filed and preserved in the office of said clerk.

SEC. 3824. [For laying out public highways.]—The following fees shall be paid persons engaged in laying out and changing highways:

Commissioners for each day, two dollars; Surveyor for each day, four dollars; Chain carriers, markers, and other assistants, for each day, one dollar and fifty cents. If the highway extends into more than one county, such expenses when so adjudged shall be paid by the several counties in proportion to the length of time occupied on the highway in each county.

SEC. 3825. [Commissioners of insanity.]—The commissioners of insanity shall be allowed at the rate of three dollars per day each, for all the time actually employed in the duties of their office. They shall also be allowed their necessary and actual expenses, not including charges for board. The clerk, in addition to what he is entitled to as commissioner, shall be allowed one-half as much more for making the required record entries in all cases of inquest and of meetings of the board for any purpose, and for the filing of any papers required to be filed. He shall also be allowed twenty-five cents for each notice or process given or issued under seal as herein required. The examining physician shall be entitled to the same compensation as a commissioner, and to mileage at the rate of five cents per mile each way. The sheriff shall be allowed for his personal services in conveying a patient to the hospital and returning therefrom, at the rate of three dollars per day for the time necessary and actually employed, and mileage the same as is allowed him in other cases, and for other services the same fees as for like services in other cases. Witnesses shall be entitled to the same fees as witnesses in the circuit court. The compensation and expenses provided for above, shall be allowed and paid out of the county treasury in the usual manner. Whenever the commissioners issue their warrant for the admission of a person to the hospital, and funds to pay the expenses thereof are needed in advance, they shall estimate the probable expense of conveying such person to the hospital, including the necessary assistance, and not including the compensation allowed the sheriff, and on such estimate, certified by the clerk, the auditor of the county shall issue an order on the county treasurer for the amount as estimated in favor of the sheriff or other person intrusted with the execution of such warrant; the sheriff or other person executing such warrant, shall accompany his return with a statement of the expenses incurred, and the excess or deficiency may be deducted from or added to his compensation, as the case may be. If funds are not so advanced, such expenses shall be certified and paid in the manner above prescribed on the return of the warrant. When the commissioners order the return of a patent, compensation and expenses shall be in like manner allowed.

PAYMENT OF UNCLAIMED FEES INTO THE COUNTY TREASURY.

An Act to repeal sections 3786 and 3815 of the code of Iowa, relating to the payment of fees into the county treasury and to enact a substitute therefor.

(Section 1 enacts substitutes for sections 3786 and 3815 of the code, which see.)

Sec. 2. [Treasurer to file statement with county auditor.]—Each county treasurer shall make a certified statement of all unclaimed fees in his hands at the time of the taking effect of this act, showing the title of the cause, style of the court, name of the individual, and the amount to which each one is entitled, and file the same with the county auditor, who shall charge the treasurer in the county fund with the aggregate amount so certified, and place the same on the proper record as a claim allowed, and issue county orders therefor, upon demand by the parties entitled thereto.

An Act to amend chapter 92, laws of the seventeenth general assembly, and fix the per diem and expenses of trustees of state institutions, members of visiting committees to the hospitals for the insane, and regents of the state university.

Section 1. [Repeal.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 1, chapter 92, laws of the seventeenth general assembly, be and is hereby repealed.
SEC. 2. [Compensation.] — That the trustees of state institutions, members of visiting committees to the hospitals for the insane, and regents of the state university shall receive as their compensation four ($4) dollars per day for each and every day actually employed in the discharge of their duties, and the actual and necessary expense incurred while so engaged; but in no case shall the amount allowed for expenses exceed five (5) cents per mile by the nearest traveled route necessarily traveled in such business.

Approved April 11, 1888.

(Chapter 92, Laws of 1878.)

COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS OF HOSPITALS, ETC.

(Section 1 repealed by the foregoing chapter 77, laws of 1888.)

SEC. 2. [Construction.] — This act shall not be construed to allow trustees to receive compensation for a longer time than is now permitted by law.

SEC. 3. [Repeal.] — All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3826. (As amended by ch. 92, 17th g. a.) [Visiting committee to hospital for the insane.] — The visiting committee shall be allowed [four] dollars per day for the time taken in visiting the hospital for the insane, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile each way. The disbursing officer of each hospital for the insane shall pay the per diem and mileage allowed such visiting committee, and each member of such visiting committee shall certify under oath to such disbursing officer the number of days he has served and the number of miles traveled.

SEC. 3827. [Messengers sent for election returns.] — Messengers sent for the returns of elections shall be paid ten cents a mile going and returning, to be audited and paid from the state or county treasury, as the case may be.

SEC. 3828. [Marriages: solemnization.] — Any person authorized to solemnize marriage, is entitled to charge two dollars for officiating in each case, and making return thereof.

SEC. 3829. (As amended by ch. 91, 17 g. a.) [Attorney appointed to defend criminals.] — An attorney appointed by a court to defend a person indicted for any offense, is entitled to receive from the county treasury the following fees:

- For cause of murder [twenty-five dollars];
- For felony [ten dollars];
- For misdemeanor, five dollars;

Any attorney selected by a peace officer, for appearing and prosecuting before a justice of the peace a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquors, five dollars.

The provisions of the statute which establishes the maximum of attorneys' fees for the defense of criminals, appointed by the court, is not unconstitutional.

Samuels v. Dubuque County, 13 Iowa, 536.

The district attorney cannot render the county liable for the services of an attorney requested by him to conduct a criminal prosecution. Foster & Foster v. The County of Clinton, 51 Id., 541.

An attorney at law who has defended a pauper criminal, under appointment by the court, is not entitled to the compensation provided by sections 3829 and 3830 of the code, "until he has filed his affidavit that he has not directly or indirectly received any compensation for such services from any source. An affidavit annexed to the account, as presented to the board of supervisors, that it is just and true, and wholly unpaid, is not sufficient. Ryce v. Mitchell County, 65 Iowa, 447.

An attorney selected by a peace officer to prosecute a person charged with keeping intoxicating liquors for unlawful sale, is entitled to the fee provided for in this section of the code to be paid by the county. Work v. Wapello County, 35 N. W. R., 439.

But where there is a conviction upon several separate counts for unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors for unlawful sale, is entitled to the fee provided for in this section of the code to be paid by the county. Work v. Wapello County, 35 N. W. R., 439.
liquors, under section 1540 of the code, the attorney is not entitled to a separate fee upon each count upon which conviction is had. Schoulb v. Keokuk County, 37 Id., 376.

Sec. 3830. An attorney cannot in such case be compelled to follow a case to another county or into the supreme court, and if he does so, may recover an enlarged compensation, to be graduated on a scale corresponding to the price above allowed.

An attorney appointed by the district court to defend a person indicted therein, may, in his discretion, present the case on appeal to the supreme court, and recover from the county therefor an enlarged compensation, graduated on a scale corresponding to that fixed for his services in the district court. Baylies v. Polk County, 58 Iowa, 357.

Sec. 3831. [Only one attorney.]—Only one attorney in any one case shall receive the compensation above contemplated, nor is he entitled to this compensation until he files his affidavit, that he has not, directly or indirectly, received any compensation for such service from any source.

Sec. 3832. [For publication of legal notices.]—In all cases where publication of legal notices of any kind are required or allowed by law, the person or officer desiring such publication shall not be required to pay more than one dollar per square of ten lines of brevier type, or its equivalent, for the first insertion, and fifty cents per square for each subsequent insertion; and any person desiring such publication, who shall have tendered such notice to the editor, proprietor or person conducting some newspaper published weekly or oftener in such county, having the largest circulation, and has offered to pay for the publication of the same at the rate herein named, and in case the publication of such notice is refused at the price above fixed, then the officer or person desiring such publication shall procure the insertion of such notice in the newspaper nearest the county seat of such county having a general circulation that will publish such notice at the rate herein provided; which publication shall in all respects have the same effect in law and equity as if such notice had been published in the county where such action was commenced or sale is to take place. And in all cases of publication of notices in connection with commencement of actions in court, or sales upon execution, the plaintiff may designate the newspaper published within the county in which such notice shall be published

The judgment creditor has the right to select the newspaper in which the notice of sheriff’s sale on execution shall be published, and the sheriff is required by this section to follow the direction of the plaintiff in this respect. Herriman v. Moore, 49 Iowa, 171.

The judge, in vacation, may direct the sheriff to publish notice of sale in the manner prescribed by law. Id.

Sec. 3833. [For printing delinquent tax list.]—The compensation for printing the delinquent tax list, shall be at a rate not exceeding twenty cents for each tract of real property advertised for sale; and in case there is no newspaper published in the county where such lands lie, then the treasurer shall cause the publication to be made in the nearest newspaper having a circulation in such county, provided that no newspaper shall be considered as one of general circulation unless it has two hundred regular weekly subscribers.

Sec. 3834. [Arbitrators.]—The compensation of arbitrators shall be, for each day actually and necessarily spent in the discharge of their duty, two dollars, or such other sum as may be agreed upon by the parties in interest. The fees of referees acting under a submission made by or agreed to by the parties in a case pending in a court of record, shall be fixed by the court or judge and taxed as a part of the costs in the case.

Sec. 3835. [Depositions.]—Any officer or person taking depositions is authorized to charge therefor at the rate of ten cents per hundred words, exclusive of the certificate.

Sec. 3836. [Receipt for fees paid.]—Every person charging fees shall, if required by the person paying them, give him a receipt therefor, setting forth the items and the date of each.
SEC. 3837. [Bill of particulars.]—When no other provision is made on the subject, the party requiring any service shall pay the fees therefor upon the same being rendered, and a bill of particulars being presented if required.

Where an attorney requires the performance of service by the sheriff who has knowledge that the attorney is therein acting for his client, the attorney will not be personally liable to pay for such services. Doughty v. Paige, 48 Iowa, 483, 485.

The custom of the attorneys of a county to hold themselves responsible for sheriff's fees in cases wherein they are employed, will not subject an attorney to liability therefor, in the absence of an agreement or of proof that the attorneys were accustomed to pay for such services regardless of the responsibility of their clients. Id.

SEC. 3838. [Putting up advertisements.]—In all cases where an officer in the discharge of his duty is required to set up an advertisement, he shall, when not otherwise provided, be allowed twenty-five cents, and if an advertisement is required to be published in a newspaper, the money therefor shall be paid by the party and may be taxed in the bill of costs.

SEC. 3839. [Officers to keep list of fees posted up.]—Every officer entitled to fees, shall keep posted up in his office a fair table thereof on pain of forfeiture of two dollars per day, for the benefit of the county, for each day he fails to keep such table of fees thus posted up.

SEC. 3840. [Penalty for taking more than allowed.]—Any officer who willfully takes higher or other fees than are allowed by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be fined therefor a sum not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

A contract entered into by a sheriff to perform certain official services for a gross sum, in lieu of the fees provided by law, where it does not appear whether such sum will be greater or less than the legal fees, is void because against public policy and in violation of section 3840 of the code. Gilman et al. v. The D. V. R. Co. et al., 40 Iowa, 290.

A sheriff is not entitled to additional compensation for personal attention rendered to prisoners, beyond the payment for their board. Grubb v. Louisa Co., Id., 314.

SEC. 3841. [When paid by a county.]—Where costs are paid by a county other than the one where the offense was committed, the amount of such costs shall be deemed a charge in favor of such county and against the one in which the offense was committed, and may be recovered by an action in any court having jurisdiction.

Where the district court of a county takes jurisdiction of a public offense committed in another county, within five hundred yards of its boundary, and incurs an expenditure of money in prosecuting the offender, it is not entitled to recover the money thus expended from the county within which the offense was committed. This section of the code does not apply to such cases, but is limited to those where the jurisdiction is thrust upon the county without any act of its own, as by change of venue or otherwise. The County of Floyd v. Cerro Gordo County, 47 Iowa, 186.

SEC. 3842. [When fees must be paid in advance.]—No officer or other person mentioned in this title, is entitled to any of the fees mentioned herein in advance, where the same grows out of any criminal prosecution. But in all other cases, except where the fees or compensation is payable by the state or county, or when the orders, judgments or decrees of courts or justices of the peace are to be entered or performed, or their writs executed, the officer performing any of the services named in this chapter, is entitled to his fees in advance if he demand them.

After the expiration of sixty days from the rendition of a final judgment not appealed, removed or reversed, the clerk of the court or a justice of the peace in whose office the judgment is entered, may, and on demand of any party entitled to any part thereof shall, issue a fee bill for all costs of such judgment, which shall have the same force and effect as an execution issued by such officer, and shall be served and executed in the same manner.

The circuit court has power to prescribe and enforce a rule to the effect that, in cases of appeal from justices of the peace, if the appellant fails to have filed a transcript from the justice by the second day of the term, and pay the docket fee, that then the appellee may file such transcript and the appeal bond, and have the judgment of the justice affirmed against the appellant and his sureties in the bond. Pinders v. Yager, 29 Iowa, 486; McManus v. Humes, 6 Id., 159; The State v. Glass, 8 Id., 325.
A party against whom a judgment is rendered is primarily liable for all the costs to the persons entitled thereto, who may have a fee-bill issued for the same, and failing in that, they may by motion, require the successful party to pay the costs accrued at his instance. McConkey v. Chapman, 53 Id., 291.

Sec. 3843. [When fees are payable by state or county.]—In all cases where fees or compensation as distinguished from a certain and fixed salary, are, by the provisions of this title to be paid any officer or other person out of the county or state treasury, no part of the same shall be audited or paid, until a particular account has been filed in the auditor’s office of the county or state, verified by affidavit and showing clearly for what services such fees or compensation are claimed and when the same was rendered.

That a claim against a county is not as definite and certain as directed by the provisions of section 3843, will not, if the claims allowed by the board of supervisors, affect the validity of the warrant drawn on the county therefor. Griggs v. Kimball, 42 Iowa, 572, 575.

Sec. 3844. [Supervisors to furnish officers with office, fuel and stationery.]—The board of supervisors shall furnish the clerk of the district and circuit court, sheriff, recorder, treasurer, auditor and county superintendent, with offices at the county seat, together with fuel, lights, blanks, books and stationery necessary and proper to enable them to discharge the duties of their respective offices; but in no case shall any of such officers be permitted to occupy an office also occupied by a practicing attorney.

IN RELATION TO ATTORNEY’S FEES.

An Act to regulate and limit the amount of attorney’s fees that may be taxed in suits on written contracts stipulating for attorney’s fees in certain cases.

Section 1. [No greater fee than prescribed by this act shall be collected.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in any action upon a written contract for the payment of money, made after the taking effect of this act, in which it is an agreement to pay an attorney’s or collection fee, no greater recovery for attorney’s fee shall be had against the maker of such contract than is provided for in section two hereof, anything in said contract contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sec. 2. [Limiting fees on contract.]—When judgment is recovered on a written contract, made after the taking effect of this act, containing an agreement to pay an attorney’s fee, there shall be an attorney’s fee allowed by the court and taxed as a part of the costs, except as provided in sections three and four hereof; but in no case shall the amount allowed to be greater than the following, to-wit:

For the first two hundred dollars, or fraction thereof, ten per cent of the amount found due;

For the excess of two hundred dollars, up to five hundred dollars, five per cent;

For the excess of five hundred dollars, up to one thousand dollars, three per cent;

For all in excess of one thousand dollars, one per cent.

Provided, that the plaintiff shall be entitled to recover not to exceed one-half the above collection fee in case payment is made after commencement of suit and before return day. And in case of payment before judgment, and after return day, the plaintiff may recover not to exceed three-fourths of the said amounts, and have judgment therefor, and no fee shall be allowed if suit has not been commenced or expense incurred.

Sec. 3. [Court to be satisfied by affidavit.]—Before any allowance of attorney’s fee shall be made by the court, the court shall be fully satisfied by affidavit of the attorney engaged in the cause, which affidavit shall be filed with the original papers, that there has been and there is no agreement, expressed or implied, between the attorney and his client, or between the attorney and any other person, except a practicing attorney engaged with him as attorney in the cause, for any division or sharing of the fee to be taxed; and no fee shall be taxed except in favor of a regular attorney, and in compensation for services actually rendered in the case.

Sec. 4. [Court shall be satisfied.]—Before any attorney's fee shall be allowed by the court, the court shall be fully satisfied that the defendant, if he be a resident of the county, and the suit is not aided by an attachment, had information of the whereabouts of the contract, and had a reasonable opportunity to pay the same before suit was brought. But this provision shall not apply when the contract is by its terms payable at a particular place, and the maker of the contract has not tendered the money due at the place named in the contract.

Approved March 27, 1880.

In order to recover an attorney's fee on a note or contract providing therefor, the affidavit required by section 3, chapter 185 of the laws of 1880, must be filed when the original petition in the action is filed. Wilkins v. Troutner, 66 Iowa, 557.

Where the affidavit for an attorney's fee, required by section three of this chapter, has not been filed with the original papers within the meaning of the statute the fee cannot properly be allowed, and must be disallowed on a trial de novo in the supreme court, even though the precise question was not brought to the attention of the court below. Sweeney v. Davidson, 68 Id., 386.

This chapter regulating the amount of attorney's fees that may be taxed on written contracts stipulating for such fees, applies wholly to contracts made after the passage of the act, and the filing of the affidavit provided in section three is not necessary in order to recover attorney's fees on a contract antedating the statute. Eikenberry v. Edwards, 71 Id., 82.

DRAINS AND DITCHES.

An Act to amend section 3 of chapter 186 of the twentieth general assembly in relation to drains, ditches, etc.

SECTION 1. (Chapter 186, acts 20th general assembly amended.) Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 3 of chapter 186 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly be and the same is hereby amended by adding to said section the following: Provided, that each bond so issued shall express on its face, that the same shall only be paid by taxes assessed, levied and collected on the lands within the district so designated and numbered and for the benefit of which district such bond was issued; and provided, further, that in no case shall any tax be levied or collected for the payment of such bond or bonds, or the interest thereon, on any property outside of the district so numbered, designated and benefited.

Approved April 25, 1888.

EXPENSES OF CERTAIN TRUSTEES, VISITORS AND REGENTS.

An Act to amend chapter 92, laws of the seventeenth general assembly and fix the per diem and expenses of trustees of state institutions, members of visiting committees to the hospitals for the insane and regents of the state university.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 1, chapter 92, laws of the seventeenth general assembly be and is hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. [Expenses trustees and visiting committees.]-That the trustees of state institutions, members of visiting committees to the hospitals for the insane and regents of the state university shall receive as their compensation four ($4) dollars per day for each and every day actually employed in the discharge of their duties, and the actual and necessary expenses incurred while so engaged; but in no case shall the amount allowed for expenses exceed five (5) cents per mile by the nearest traveled route necessarily traveled in such business.

Approved April 11, 1888.
PART FOURTH.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

TITLE XXIV.

OF CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF OFFENSES AGAINST THE SOVEREIGNTY OF THE STATE.

Section 3845. [Treason.]—Whoever is guilty of treason, by levying war against the state, or adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort, shall be punished by imprisonment for life at hard labor in the state penitentiary. Treason is not a bailable offense.

Sec. 3846. [Misprison of treason.]—If any person have knowledge of the commission of the crime of treason against the state and conceal the same, and not as soon as may be disclose such offense to the governor or some judge within the state, he is guilty of misprison of treason, and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding three years nor less than one year.

Sec. 3847. [Evidence.]—No person can be convicted of the crime of treason unless on the evidence of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.
CHAPTER 2.

OFFENSES AGAINST THE LIVES AND PERSONS OF INDIVIDUALS.

SEC. 3848. [Murder.—Whoever kills any human being with malice aforethought, either express or implied, is guilty of murder.

If the unlawful act be trespass only, to make all guilty of murder, the death must ensue in the prosecution of the design. If the unlawful act be a felony, or be more than a bare trespass, it will be murder in all, although the death happened collaterally or beyond the original design. The State v. Nash, 7 Iowa, 547.

While an indictment for murder must charge that the killing was done with "malice aforethought," it is not essential that these identical words be used, but words of the same import may be used instead; so, where an indictment charged that drugs were administered, and an instrument thrust into the body of the deceased, with the specific intent to produce abortion, held, that the language sufficiently charged malice aforethought. The State v. Thurman, 66 Id., 683.

On the trial of one indicted for murder in the first degree, all the degrees of criminal homicide shall be submitted to the jury in the court's instructions. The State v. Clemans, 51 Id., 274; The State v. Glynden, 1d., 463.

A party indicted for murder may be found guilty of manslaughter if the evidence proves the latter offense, and not the former, to have been committed. Gordon v. The State, 3 Id., 410.

Section 3848 defines murder to be the killing of a human being with malice aforethought, and to constitute the crime of murder in the first degree it is essential that the killing be done with malice aforethought. And, as required in section 3849, that it be done wilfully, and also that it be done deliberately and premeditatedly. The State v. Shelton, 64 Id., 332.

An instruction given on the trial of an indictment for murder in the first degree which omits the element of premeditation in defining the crime, is erroneous. The State v. Johnson, 8 Id., 525.

When the defendant, as shown on a trial for murder, sought the deceased with a loaded gun, with the view of provoking a difficulty, or with the intent of having an affray, and a difficulty did ensue, he cannot, without some proof of a change of conduct or action, excuse the homicide on the ground that the deceased fired the first shot. The State v. Neely, 20 Id., 108.

The defendant and others were jointly indicted for the murder of W. The court properly charged the jury, "that if the defendant and others, formed the design of taking the life of said W., whether by hanging or otherwise; that if in pursuance of such design they went in a body to his house, armed and resolved and prepared to resist all opposition; that they by force obtained possession of W., and bound his arms, so as to render him helpless; that after they had so obtained possession of him, the defendant and those engaged with him, or any one of them, in the presence and hearing of said W., avowed their purpose to take his life, by hanging or otherwise; that they forced him into a hack while thus bound and started to the timber with him; that while on the road, and when on the bank of the river, they cast said W. into the river, from the said hack, or compelled him, by threats or otherwise to jump from the back into the river, and they then and there permitted him to drown while standing by, and made no effort to rescue him, if by reasonable efforts they might have done so, then the said defendant is guilty of murder in the first degree. The State v. Shellots, 8 Id., 477.

When death ensues in consequence of the unlawful act of another, it is not necessary that the fatal result sprung from an act of commission; but if the defendant omitted any act incumbent on him, from which death resulted, if there was no malice it was manslaughter, if there was malice it was murder. Id.

Malice aforethought is essential to the crime of murder. It is not necessary that it existed for any particular length of time. The State v. Decklots, 19 Id., 447. The State v. Gillick, 7 Id., 257; The State v. Johnson, 8 Id., 525.

To constitute murder in the first degree, where it is not committed in the perpetration, or attempt to perpetrate, arson, rape, robbery, mayhem or burglary, the killing must not only be deliberate, and premeditated but wilful. But it is not necessary to charge the crime in the precise language of the statute; and to charge in the indictment that the homicide was committed "with a specific intent to kill and murder" was in the case at bar equivalent to alleging that it was wilful. The State v. Townend, 66 Id., 741.

Where it was distinctly charged in an indictment for murder that the killing was committed wilfully, deliberately, premeditatedly and with malice aforethought, every element of murder in the first degree was charged, and the defendant was properly put on trial for that offense. The State v. Perigo, 70 Id., 657.
Section 384S defines murder to be the killing of a human being with malice aforethought, and to constitute the crime of murder in the first degree it is essential that the killing be done with malice aforethought, and that it be done willfully, and also that it be done deliberately and premeditatedly. The State v. Shelton, 61 id., 333.

To constitute a 'good indictment' for murder in the first degree, the facts constituting the offense and the degree must be alleged. Naming the offense murder in the first degree, in the introductory and concluding parts of the indictment, is not sufficient unless the facts charged make it such. The State v. McCormick, 27 id., 402.

An infant is not the subject of murder until an independent circulation is established; prior to that time the life of the child, even after it is born, is substantially fetal life, which the law distinguishes from independent life. The State v. Winthrop, 45 id., 519.

When a person assaults another with a deadly weapon, or an instrument likely to produce death in a certain manner, the law will presume malice, but the fact of the use of a deadly weapon under the particular circumstances is a question for the jury. The State v. Seibert, 40 id., 169.

Where an indictment charged the crime of murder committed in the perpetration of robbery and burglary, and the jury returned a verdict of "guilty as charged in the indictment," it was held that the verdict was sufficient, and found the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, the indictment charging the highest degree of the crime under the statute, and in language that cannot be applied to any lower degree. (The case of The State v. Moran, 7 Iowa, 336, considered and distinguished.) The State v. Weese, 53 id., 93.

SEC. 3849. (As repealed and substituted by ch. 165, 17th g. a. As amended by sec. 1, ch. 2, 18th g. a.) [Murder in first degree.]—All murder which is perpetrated by means of poison or lying in wait, or any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which is committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, mayhem or burglary, is murder in the first degree and shall be punished with death "or imprisonment for life at hard labor, in the state penitentiary, as determined by the jury," [or by the court if the defendant pleads guilty.]

An indictment for murder which would be good at common law, is not necessarily so for murder in the first degree under the statute. Id.

SEC. 2. (As amended by ch. 2, 18th g. a.) [Verdict must designate punishment.]—Upon trial of an indictment for murder, the jury, if they find the defendant guilty, must designate in their verdict whether he shall be punished by death or imprisonment for life at hard labor in the penitentiary. [But if such defendant be convicted upon a plea of guilty, the court shall designate whether he shall be punished by death or imprisonment for life at hard labor in the penitentiary, y.]

This section, as amended by chapter 2 of the laws of 1880, authorizing the jury to designate in their verdict of guilty whether the defendant shall be punished by death or imprisonment for life at hard labor in the penitentiary, is not unconstitutional on the ground that all judicial power is vested in the courts, and that they, and not the jury, must declare the law. State v. Hockett, 70 Iowa, 442.

SEC. 3. (As amended by ch. 2, 18th g. a.) [Judgment and execution.]—[Whenever the court or jury shall designate that a defendant shall be punished by death, the court pronouncing judgment shall fix the day of the execution thereof, which shall not be less than one year after the day on which the judgment is rendered, and not longer than fifteen months, during which time the defendant, against whom judgment of death has been pronounced, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary of the state.

Sec. 4. [After judgment, copy of papers shall be sent the governor.]—Immediately after the entry of the judgment of death, the court rendering such judgment must transmit by mail to the governor of the state a copy of the indictment, plea, verdict, judgment, and of the testimony in the case.

Sec. 5. [Warrant of execution.]—When a judgment of death is pronounced, a certified copy of the entry thereof in the record book must be furnished to the officer whose duty it is to execute the same, who shall proceed and execute accordingly, and no other warrant or authority is necessary to require or justify the execution.

Sec. 6. [Reprieve: who may.]—The only officer[s] who shall have power to reprieve or suspend the execution of a judgment of death are the governor and the sheriff, as provided in the next section, unless in case of an appeal to the supreme court, as provided in section 18 of this act.

Sec. 7. [Insanity or pregnancy, shall suspend sentence.]—When the sheriff is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the defendant is insane or pregnant, he may summon a jury of twelve persons on the jury list, to be drawn by the clerk, who shall be sworn by the sheriff well and truly to inquire into the insanity of [or] pregnancy of the defendant and a true inquisition return, and they shall examine the defendant and hear any evidence that may be presented, and by written inquisition, signed by each of them, find as to the insanity or pregnancy, and unless the inquisition find the defendant insane or pregnant, the sheriff shall not suspend the execution. But if the inquisition find the defendant insane or pregnant, he shall suspend the execution and immediately transmit the inquisition to the governor.

Sec. 8. [In case execution is delayed or suspended.]—Whenever a judgment of death has not been executed on the day appointed by the court therefor, from any cause whatever, the governor, by a warrant under his hand and the seal of the state, shall fix the day of execution, which warrant shall be obeyed by the sheriff, and no one but the governor can then suspend its execution.

Sec. 9. [Time and manner of execution.]—A judgment of death must be executed by the sheriff on the day fixed in the judgment, between sunrise and sunset, by hanging the defendant by the neck until he is dead.

Sec. 10. [Place of execution.]—A judgment of death must be executed within the walls of the jail of the county in which the judgment was rendered, or within a yard or enclosure adjoining thereto, unless as provided in the next sections.

Sec. 11. [Same.]—If there be no jail in the county in which the judgment was rendered, or if it becomes unfit or unsafe for the confinement of prisoners, or be destroyed by fire or otherwise, and the jail of any other county has been legally designated for the imprisonment of the defendant until the day fixed for his execution, the judgment must be executed within the walls of the jail of the county so designated, or within a yard or enclosure adjoining the same, and by the sheriff of such county.

Sec. 12. [Same.]—If there be two or more jails or prisons in the same county, a judgment of death shall be executed within the walls of either of such jails or prisons, or within an enclosure adjoining thereto, as the court rendering such judgment shall therein direct.

Sec. 13. [Witnesses at execution.]—The sheriff executing a judgment of death must, at least three clear days before inflicting the punishment of death, notify the judge of the district court of his county, the district attorney, the clerk of the district court, together with two physicians and twelve respectable citizens of his county, to be selected by him, and the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had and the offense committed (if it be in a different county), to be present as witnesses of such execution. He must also, at the request of the defendant, permit one or more ministers of the gospel, whom the defendant shall name, and any of his relations, to attend the execution, and also such magistrates, peace officers, and guards as the sheriff shall deem proper, but no person other than those mentioned in this section can be present at the execution, nor shall any person under age be permitted to witness the same.

Sec. 14. [Certificate of sheriff and judges.]—The sheriff or his deputy executing the judgment of death, and the judges attending the execution, must prepare and sign with their name of office, a certificate, setting forth the time and place of the execution, and that judgment was executed upon the defendant according to the foregoing provisions, and must cause the certificate to be signed by the public officers, and at least twelve (12) persons not relations of the defendant who witnessed the execution.

Sec. 15. [Must be filed and published.]—The sheriff or his deputy executing such judgment of death, must cause the certificate to be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the judgment was rendered, and a copy thereof to be published in a newspaper printed at the capital of the state, and in one, if any, published in his county.

Sec. 16. [Appeal shall stay execution.]—An appeal by the defendant to the supreme court from a judgment of death shall stay the infliction of that punishment, but the defendant is to be retained in custody to abide the judgment on the appeal.

Sec. 17. [Appeal: proceedings in case of.]—When an appeal is taken from a judgment of death it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court in which the judgment was rendered to give forthwith to the defendant, his agent, or attorney, a certificate under his hand and the seal of the county, stating that an appeal has been taken in the case, and the sheriff or other officer having the custody of the defendant, must upon the delivery of such certificate to him refrain from the infliction of the punishment of death upon the defendant, and retain him in custody to abide the judgment of the appeal.

Sec. 18. [Appeal: proceedings in case judgment is affirmed by supreme court.]—When a judgment of death has been affirmed, the supreme court must cause a copy of the entry of judgment to be remitted to the governor, to the end that a warrant of the execution may be issued by the governor. The governor shall send his warrant of execution by a special messenger, or by mail, to the proper officer, and shall name therein the day and time of execution, but shall not appoint an earlier day than that fixed by the judgment of the district court. The officer receiving the same shall execute the warrant of the governor as therein directed and shall report his action both to the governor and the district court which rendered the original judgment. If for any cause the execution does not take place on the day appointed by the governor, the governor may from time to time appoint another day for the execution until the judgment is carried into effect.

Sec. 19. [Indictments pending shall be prosecuted to judgment under code, § 3849.]—All indictments pending in any court of this state for any crime committed in violation of said section 3849 of the code shall be prosecuted to final judgment, and all crimes that have been committed in violation of said section shall be subject to indictment, trial and punishment in the same manner as they would have been had said section not been repealed.

Sec. 20. [Repealing clause.]—All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3850. [Murder in the second degree.]—Whoever commits murder otherwise than is set forth in the preceding section, is guilty of murder in the second degree, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, or for any term not less than ten years.

An intent to kill is not necessary to constitute murder in the second degree under our statute.
If there was no necessity, either real or apparent, for the killing, the perpetrator would be guilty of murder in the second degree, although he entered the combat without the intent to kill; this would be especially true if there were undue advantage taken by the slayer, and the use by him of a deadly weapon. The State v. Morphy, 33 Iowa, 270. To the same effect are The State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 447; The State v. Meivhert, 46 Id., 88.

On an indictment for murder in the first degree the defendant may be convicted of murder in the second degree, where the killing was not intended. Id.

A specific intention to kill is not essential at common law to constitute murder, nor is it necessary under our statute to constitute murder in the second degree, although it is essential to murder in the first degree. The State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 447.

Where death ensues from a wound given in malice but not in its nature mortal, but from which, being neglected or mismanaged the party dies, the prisoner will not thereby be excused, but will be held guilty of murder, unless he can make it clearly to appear that the maltreatment of the wound, or the medicine given to the patient, or his own misconduct, and not the wound itself, was the sole cause of his death. The State v. Morphy, 33 Id., 270.

The state has the burden of proof to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused; hence, any negative matter, such as the absence of self defense, the want of provocation, etc., must be shown by the prosecution; but when the matter of defense is wholly disconnected from the body of the crime charged, and is distinctly affirmative matter, the burden of proof thereof is on the defendant. Id.

Where an indictment for murder charged that the offense was committed "with intent in so doing, then and there, feloniously, intentionally, willfully, maliciously and deliberately to kill and murder," it was held that the charge necessarily implied, to the common understanding, "malice aforethought," and that under the statute the crime of murder in the second degree was sufficiently charged. The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108.

The presence of malice is necessary to constitute a homicide murder in the second degree. The State v. Spangle, 40 Id., 865.

SEC. 3851. [Degree, how determined.]—Upon the trial of an indictment for murder, the jury, if they find the defendant guilty, must inquire, and by their verdict ascertain, whether he be guilty of murder of the first or second degree; but if such defendant be convicted upon his own confession in open court, the court must proceed by the examination of witnesses to determine the degree of murder, and award sentence accordingly.

SEC. 3852. [Dueling.]—Whoever fights a duel with deadly weapons, and inflicts a mortal wound on his antagonist, whereof death ensues, is guilty of murder in the first degree, and shall be punished accordingly.

SEC. 3853. [Same: aiding and abetting.]—Any person who fights a duel with deadly weapons, or is present at the fighting of such duel as aid, second, or surgeon, or advises, encourages, or promotes such duel, although no homicide ensue; and any person who challenges another to fight a duel, or sends or delivers any verbal or written message purporting or intended to be such challenge, although no duel ensue, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than four hundred dollars, and imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years nor less than one year.

SEC. 3854. [Accepting challenge.]—Any person who accepts such challenge, or who consents to act as a second, aid or surgeon on such acceptance, or who advises, encourages or promotes the same, although no duel ensue, shall be punished as prescribed in the preceding section.

SEC. 3855. [Posting for not accepting challenge.]—If any person post another, or in writing or print use any reproachful or contemptuous language to or concerning another for not fighting a duel, or for not sending or accepting a challenge, he shall be fined not exceeding three hundred dollars nor less than one hundred dollars, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail not more than six months nor less than two months.

SEC. 3856. [Manslaughter.]—Any person guilty of the crime of manslaughter, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding eight years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

The crime of manslaughter is essentially the same under our statute as at common law, and will be so regarded in respect to what constitutes the offense. The State v. Moore, 25 Iowa, 128.

The common law definition of manslaughter has not been changed by this section of the statute. The State v. Shelledy, 8 Id., 477.
If one fires a gun recklessly or heedlessly, and death is caused thereby, the offense will be at least manslaughter, notwithstanding the gun was pointed in the range of the deceased by accident, with no desire or intention to kill or wound. Where the act is done with deliberation, or is attended with probable mortally dangerous consequences to the deceased, or to persons generally, the grade of the offense is to be determined by the degree of deliberation. State v. Vance, 17 Id., 138.

Manslaughter is the unlawful and felonious killing of another, without malice, either express or implied. The State v. Shelledy, 8 Id., 477.

A provocation which does not place the party in a position where self defense is necessary, may reduce a homicide to manslaughter, but can never render it excusable. The State v. Vance, 17 Id., 138; The State v. Shelledy, 8 d., 477.

The general rule is, that when death ensues from sudden transport of passion or heat of blood upon sudden provocation, without malice, the offense is manslaughter and not murder. The State v. Shelledy, supra; Colsey v. The State, 4 Id., 477; The State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 447; The State v. Spangler, 40 Id., 365.

Where a man doing an unlawful act not amounting to felony, by accident kill another, or where a man kills another without malice, either express or implied, either unlawfully upon a sudden quarrel, or unintentionally while the slayer is in the unlawful commission of some act not amounting to a felony, it is manslaughter in either case. The State v. Aberr, 39 Id., 138.

When death ensues in consequence of the unlawful act of another, it is not necessary that the fatal result should have sprung from an act of commission; but if the defendant omitted an act incumbent on him from which death resulted to the deceased, if there was not malice it is manslaughter; if there was malice it is murder. The State v. Shelley, 8 Id., 477.

The crime of murder is essentially the same under our statute as at the common law, and whatever would be regarded as murder or manslaughter in a common law tribunal will be so regarded here. The State v. Moore, 25 Id., 128.

An assault with intent to commit manslaughter is included in an assault with intent to commit murder, and under an indictment for the latter offense the defendant may be convicted of the former. The State v. White, 45 Id., 325.

A homicide committed in sudden passion, without deliberation or premeditation, would be manslaughter. The presence of malice is necessary to constitute the crime of murder in the second degree. The State v. Spangler, 40 Id., 365.

The crime of manslaughter is properly defined to be the unlawful and felonious killing of another, without any malice express or implied. The State v. Eber, 39 Id., 138.

The accidental killing of another, when done in the prosecution of an unlawful act, is not excusable homicide, but manslaughter, but if one engaged in doing a lawful act, and using proper precaution to prevent danger, accidentally kills another the law excuses the homicide. The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154.

SEC. 3857. [Mayhem.]—If any person, with intent to maim or disfigure, cut or maim the tongue; cut out or destroy an eye; cut, slit, or tear off an ear; cut, bite, slit, or mutilate the nose or lip; cut off or disable a limb or any member of another person, with force or violence, or by putting in fear, steal and take from the person of another any property that is the subject of larceny, he is guilty of robbery, and shall be punished according to the aggravation of the offense as is provided in the following two sections.

The sudden snatching of a purse or other property from the hand of another involves the force and violence sufficient under the statute to constitute robbery. The State v. Carr et al., 43 Iowa, 416.

An instruction that "robbery may be committed by force or violence, or by putting in fear, steal and take from the person of another any property that is the subject of larceny, he is guilty of robbery, and shall be punished according to the aggravation of the offense as is provided in the following two sections."

The State v. Carr et al., 43 Iowa, 416.

It is not robbery at common law to compel the payment of money by threats of violence, yet our statute makes it an offense, (see section 3871 of the code). Id.
A charge in an indictment for robbery that the defendants did with force, etc., steal, take and carry away from another certain described property, is not equivalent to charging that it was taken from the person, and is not sufficient to charge the crime of robbery. The State v. Leighton, 56 Id., 585.

The crime of robbery includes the crime of larceny from the person. So, an indictment for larceny from the person is sustained by evidence which establishes the crime of robbery. The State v. Groff, 66 Id., 482.

To constitute the crime of robbery under the code it is necessary that the articles be upon, or attached to, or in the immediate presence of, the person from whom they are taken. It is sufficient if they were taken while in his possession or under his control, and they may be in another room of the house than that wherein the force or violence put in fear is used. State v. Colhoun, 34 N. W. R., 194.

SEC. 3859. [Same.]—If such offender at the time of such robbery is armed with a dangerous weapon, with intent, if resisted, to kill or maim the person robbed; or if being so armed he wound or strike the person robbed; or if he has any confederate aiding or abetting him in such robbery present and so armed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding twenty years nor less than ten years.

SEC. 3860. [Same.]—If such offender commit the robbery otherwise than is mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years nor less than two years.

SEC. 3861. (As amended by ch. 114, 21st g. a.) [Rape.—If any person ravish and carnally know any female of the age of [thirteen] years or more, by force and against her will, or carnally know and abuse any female child under the age of [thirteen] years, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.

On the prosecution for rape, it is not necessary to establish the non-consent or force by proof of outcries of the female, nor, by her or any one else, the fact of an actual struggle; nor is the state bound to show actual penetration by the prosecutrix herself; but the jury, taking all the facts and circumstances into consideration, may say from them whether the requisite facts are proved beyond such reasonable doubt as to warrant a conviction. The State v. Tarr, 28 Iowa, 397.

So, too, if the female ravished was idiotic and unable to talk intelligibly, the jury might infer that the prisoner could and did know her condition upon meeting and talking with her a while before making the assault. Id.

In a prosecution for rape, it may be properly held without resistance on the part of the female being shown, that the force used by the prisoner to effect his purpose was against her will, when it is shown that she was idiotic or of imbecile mind, and there is nothing to indicate that she desired or consented to the sexual intercourse. Id.

Carnal knowledge of a female child under the age of ten years constitutes the crime of rape under this section of the statute. The State v. Newton, 44 Id., 45, 47.

In a prosecution for rape, the fact that the prosecutrix made complaint of the injury soon after the occurrence, is admissible on the part of the state; but the particulars of such complaint, or what she said in respect thereto, are not admissible. The State v. Richards, 33 Id., 420.

A person charged with the commission of a rape may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape, even if the prosecution is based on evidence which satisfies the jury that the assault was made without the consent of the female, although there was not sufficient want of consent at the time of the consummation as to constitute the higher crime. The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66.

The failure of the woman to make any outcry when the violation of her person was attempted, and the fact that her garments were uninjured by the struggle with her assailant, tend strongly to show consent, but are not conclusive; and should always be considered in connection with her age and intelligence. Id.

Upon the trial of one indicted for rape, an instruction directing the jury that they might find the defendant guilty if the woman failed to resist because she was imbecile, was held, properly given, although the record contained no evidence tending to show imbecility. The State v. Atherton, 50 Id., 1-3.

On a trial for rape a conviction for that offense may fail by reason of evidence of the woman's consent, yet it before such consent was given it appears that the defendant used such force as to excite intention to commit rape, the defendant may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape. Id.

The crimes of rape and incest cannot be both committed by the same act, and cannot be charged in an indictment as a compound offense. The State v. Thomas, 53 Id., 214.

Where one indicted for rape was shown to have stated, before the offense became public. known, that he could under certain circumstances "get clear," this was held to be a sufficient corroboration of the statements of the prosecuting witness. The State v. Comstock, 46 Id., 265.

Where, upon the trial of an indictment for rape, the court instructed the jury that if there was a reasonable doubt of the defendant being guilty of the crime of rape or of an assault with intent to commit rape, they should find the defendant not guilty, it was held that the instruction was erroneous in not instructing the jury that they might find the defendant guilty of a simple assault if the evidence justified it. The State v. Vinsant, 49 Id., 241.

For a discussion of the weight of evidence offered to sustain an indictment for rape, see The State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401.

A person may be indicted for the crime of rape, and conviction for that offense fail by reason of evidence of the woman's consent, yet if, before the consent was given, it appears that the defendant used such force as to evince an intention to commit rape, the defendant may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape. The State v. Atherton, 50 Id., 189; The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66.

On the trial of one indicted for rape, an instruction to the effect that the defendant might be convicted if the woman failed to resist because she was imbecile, was held, properly given. The State v. Atherton, 50 Id., 159.

To justify a conviction for rape, the jury must be satisfied that the defendant not only used force, but that he used it with the intention of gratifying his passions on the person of the prosecutrix at all events, and notwithstanding any resistance on her part. The State v. Hagerman, 47 Id., 151.

An indictment for rape includes the crime of assault with intent to commit rape, and that of simple assault, and an instruction precluding the jury from convicting for the latter offense under such an indictment is erroneous. The State v. Peters, 56 Id., 263.

Where the prosecutrix was a child over ten years of age the statute presumes that she is capable of consenting to sexual intercourse. But where the evidence was conflicting as to whether she did consent, and as to whether, if she did consent, she did not withdraw her consent before penetration was effected, the evidence showed an entire lack of puberal development on her part, held, that the jury might consider her want of development, not to establish her inability to consent, but, in connection with other evidence, to aid in determining whether or not she did so in fact consent. The State v. McCaffey, 65 Id., 480.

A man may make an assault upon a woman with the intention of having sexual intercourse with her, and yet not be guilty of an assault with intent to commit a rape. There must be added to the assault the intent to use whatever force is necessary to overcome the woman's resistance and to accomplish the purpose. The State v. Canada, 69 Id., 397.

SEC. 3862. [Compelling to marry.]—If any person take any woman unlawfully and against her will, and by force, menace or duress, compel her to marry him or any other person, or to be defiled, he shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

This section of the statute was intended to cover those cases of defilement in which there was no force except that which is constructive, and in which the act is accomplished principally by menace or duress, acting to subdue the will. Pollard v. The State, 2 Iowa, 567.

SEC. 3863. [Carnal knowledge.]—If any person unlawfully have carnal knowledge of any female by administering to her any substance, or by any other means producing such stupor or such imbecility of mind or weakness of body as to prevent effectual resistance, or have such carnal knowledge of an idiot or female naturally of such imbecility of mind or weakness of body as to prevent effectual resistance, he shall, upon conviction, be punished as provided in the section relating to ravishment.

SEC 3864. (As amended by ch. 19, 19 g. a.) [Producing miscarriage of pregnant woman.]—If any person, with intent to produce the miscarriage of any pregnant woman, willfully administer to her any drug or substance whatever, or, with such intent, use any instrument or other means whatever, unless such miscarriage shall be necessary to save her life, he shall be imprisoned in the state prison for a term not exceeding [five years] and be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

The procuring of an abortion by a married woman upon herself was held not to be a crime under the code of 1851, nor under section 4221 of the revision. Hatfield et ux. v. Gano, 15 Iowa, 177; Abrams v. Forshee et ux., 3 Id., 274.

To cause death by procuring an abortion was, at the common law, and is, therefore, in this state, murder independent of, as well as under the statute, although there was no intent to cause the death of the woman. The State v. Moore, 25 Id., 128.
In a prosecution for abortion, the jurisdiction is with the county in which the medicine intended to produce the miscarriage was administered, and not in that where the miscarriage took place. The State v. Holtenbeck, 36 Id., 112.

The crime of attempting to produce the miscarriage of a pregnant woman is complete, if the attempt is made at any time during pregnancy. The State v. Fitzgerald, 49 Id., 260.

The fact that the accused used a substance which would not have the effect to bring about a miscarriage, would constitute no defense if he employed it with a criminal intent. Id.

SEC. 3865. (As amended by ch. 114, 21st g. a.) [Enticing female child under eighteen years.]—If any person take or entice away any unmarried female under the age of [eighteen] years from her father, mother, guardian or other person having the legal charge of her person for the purpose of prostitution, he shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than three years, or by fine of not more than one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Under an indictment for enticing away an unmarried female, under the age of fifteen years, from her father and mother, without their consent, for the purpose of prostitution, the accused cannot show that the female, before being so enticed, told him that she was over fifteen years of age. The State v. Riehl, 8 Iowa., 447.

The words "or other persons having legal charge of her person," in this section do not mean that such person shall have all the power and authority over the child possessed by the parent, or legally appointed guardian, nor do they mean the person who has the temporary charge for a particular purpose—as a school mistress or governess. If otherwise made out, the crime will be complete, if the enticing away was without the permission of the parents if living or of the person who was entrusted with the care, custody, charge or control of the child, as an actual member of the family. Id.

SEC. 3866. (As amended by ch. 114, 21st g. a.) [When under twelve years of age.]—If any person maliciously, forcibly or fraudulently lead, take, decoy or entice away any child under the age of [fourteen] years, with the intent to detain or conceal such child from its parent, guardian, or any other person having the lawful charge of such child, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 3867. [Seduction.]—If any person seduce and debauch any unmarried woman of previously chaste character, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The act of sexual intercourse alone does not constitute seduction. It must be accomplished by false promises, artifices or deception, to constitute the crime. Smith v. Milburn, 17 Iowa., 30; Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220; Debre v. Boardman, 29 Id., 446.

A threat made by the defendant to dismiss the plaintiff from his service if she refused to yield to him, is proper to be considered by the jury in determining whether he accomplished his purpose by artifice or not. Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220.

In a criminal trial for seduction, a fact testified to alone by the person injured is not admissible to corroborate her. The State v. Kingsley, 39 Id., 439; Andre v. The State, 5 Id., 389.

If the injured female was not enticed from her previous chastity, but the defendant had sexual intercourse with her by force or without her consent, the offense is not seduction. The State v. Kingsley, 39 Id., 439.

It will be presumed that, on a trial for seduction, the testimony of the prosecutrix will be given, as far as possible, to shield herself, and her language, therefore, should not receive a strained construction in order to sustain a verdict of guilty. The State v. Haven, 43 Id., 181.

"The crime of seduction under our statute is a felony." Per S Newell, J., in The State v. Savage, 41 Id., 565.

It is not necessary that an indictment for a conspiracy to accomplish a woman's seduction should in terms charge that the woman was unmarried and of previously chaste character. Id.

The term character as employed in section 3867 of the code, refers to moral qualities, and not to reputation; and evidence of reputation, in an action for seduction, is not admissible upon the issue involving the woman's character, but only to discredit or support her testimony tending to establish particular acts of lewdness. The State v. Prizer 49 Id., 531.

In an action by a husband for damages for seducing and debauching his wife, whereby her affections have been alienated from him, the gravamen of the action is the alleged criminal conversation, and he cannot, if he fails to prove this, recover for the loss of her society, even though caused by the defendant. Wood v. Mathews, 47 Id., 409.
The previously chaste character of the prosecutrix in a criminal prosecution for seduction is presumed, and the burden is upon the defendant to show the contrary. The State v. Higdon, 52 Id., 262; Andre v. The State, 5 Id., 396; The State v. Wells, 45 Id., 671. In a trial for seduction inquiry into the previous chaste character of the female must be strictly confined to the time prior to the alleged seduction. The State v. Deitrick, 51 Id., 467.

The crime of seduction can be perpetrated only against an unmarried woman of previously chaste character, hence unchaste conduct of the woman with another man prior to the alleged seduction will entitle the defendant to an acquittal. The State v. Corr, 60 Id., 453.

An indictment for seduction is sufficient which charges the offense in the language of the statute. The State v. Curran, 51 Id., 112.

Evidence of a general moral character is not admissible in a prosecution for seduction, but the evidence must be limited to the woman's character for virtue. Id.

It is not competent to show, in order to establish the unchastity of the prosecuting witness, that she had on a particular occasion acted in such a manner as to be reproved by her mother. Id.

The fact that the defendant was the suitor of the witness, proven by other testimony than hers, tends to corroborate her testimony that her seduction was accomplished by him. Id.

It is proper to charge the jury that every woman is presumed to be of chaste character until it is shown to the contrary, and the burden of overcoming this presumption is upon the defendant. Id.

It is competent for the jury to consider the conduct of the defendant toward the prosecutrix subsequent, as well as prior to and at the time of the alleged seduction. Id.

An unmarried female, who has become unchaste by sexual intercourse, may reform and gain a character for chastity, within the meaning of the statute defining the crime of seduction. The State v. Curran, 13 Id., 372.

On the trial of an indictment for seduction, the question as to the previously chaste character of the prosecutrix is one of fact for the jury. Id.

The kind and extent of seductive arts necessary to be shown in order to establish the offense of seduction depend upon the particular circumstances of each case, together with the condition of life, advantages, age and intelligence of the parties. The State v. Higdon, 32 Id., 262.

A defendant cannot be convicted of seduction upon the testimony of the prosecutrix, unless she be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect him with the commission of the offense. Id.

Circumstances which were held to be corroborative. The State v. Wells, 45 Id., 671.

An unmarried female, who has become unchaste by sexual intercourse, may reform and gain a character for chastity, within the meaning of the statute defining the crime of seduction. The State v. Curran, 13 Id., 372.

On the trial of an indictment for seduction, the question as to the previously chaste character of the prosecutrix is one of fact for the jury. Id.

The kind and extent of seductive arts necessary to be shown in order to establish the offense of seduction depend upon the particular circumstances of each case, together with the condition of life, advantages, age and intelligence of the parties. The State v. Higdon, 32 Id., 262.

A defendant cannot be convicted of seduction upon the testimony of the prosecutrix, unless she be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect him with the commission of the offense. Id.

Circumstances which were held to be corroborative. The State v. Wells, 45 Id., 671.

Sec. 3868. [Marriage a bar.]—If before judgment upon an indictment, the defendant marry the woman thus seduced, it is a bar to any further prosecution for the offense.

Marriages celebrated after the commencement of a prosecution for seduction, between the parties to the action, are encouraged by the law, and contracts which promote them will receive favorable interpretation. Armstrong v. Lester et al., 43 Iowa, 150.

Where, on a trial for seduction, the prosecuting witness testified that the defendant overpowered her, it was held that the court below should have instructed the jury that, if the defendant accomplished his purpose by force, he should be acquitted. The crime would be rape and not seduction. The State v. Lewis, 45 Id., 578.

The precise time at which the crime of seduction was accomplished need not be alleged in an indictment, time not being a material ingredient of the offense. The State v. Deitrick, 51 Id., 467.

Sec. 3869. [Kidnapping.]—If any person willfully and without lawful authority, forcibly or secretly confine or imprison any other person within this state against his will or forcibly carry or send such person out of the state, or forcibly seize and confine or inveigle or kidnap any other person with the intent either to cause such person to be secretly confined or imprisoned in this state against his will, or to cause such person to be sent out of this state against his will, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3870. [Exposing child.]—If the father and mother of any child under the age of six years, or any person to whom such child has been entrusted or confided, expose such child in any highway, street, field, house or out-house, or in any other... place with intent wholly to abandon it, he or she, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years.

The word "and" in the first line of section 3570 of the code may be construed to mean "or,"
and the offense defined therein may be committed by either "father or mother." The State v.
Smith, 46 Iowa, 670.

SEC. 3871. [Malicious threats to extort.]—If any person, either verbally or by any written or printed communication, maliciously threaten to accuse another of a crime or offense, or to do any injury to the person or property of another, with intent thereby to extort any money or pecuniary advantage whatever, or to compel the person so threatened to do any act against his will, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than two years or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

Extortion and pecuniary advantage are not necessary ingredients in the offense of maliciously threatening to injure another, with intent, thereby to compel the person threatened to do an act against his will, under section 3871 of the code. The State v. Young, 26 Iowa, 122.

It is not robbery to compel the payment of money by threats of violence, yet it is an offense under this section of the code. The State v. Hollyway, 41 Id., 200.

An indictment charging the defendant with "willfully and maliciously verbally threatening to kill and murder" another, is sufficient under this section notwithstanding it does not set out the words used. The State v. O'Mally, 45 Id., 501.

SEC. 3872. [Assault with intent to murder.]—If any person assault another with intent to commit murder, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

In an indictment for an assault with intent to commit an offense, it is not necessary to make all the averments required in an indictment for the commission of the offense. The State v.
Newberry, 26 Id., 469.

It was therefore held, that in an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder, it need not be averred that the assault was made with malice aforethought. Id.

An assault with intent to commit manslaughter is included in an assault with intent to commit murder, and on an indictment for the latter offense the defendant may be convicted of the former.
The State v. White, 45 Id., 325.

The crime of assault with intent to inflict a great bodily injury is included in an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder. The State v. Schole, 52 Id., 608. And the defendant indicted for an assault with intent to kill may be convicted of an assault of a minor degree. The State v. Sheppard, 10 Id., 126.

An assault with intent to commit murder does not admit of degrees, the intent being the gist of the offense. The State v. Jarvis, 21 Id., 44; The State v. White, 41 Id., 316.

The subsequent declarations of the party injured are not admissible as evidence for the defendant on the trial of an indictment for an assault with intent to commit rape. If offered for the purpose of contradicting the prosecutrix, the proper foundation must be laid by first calling her attention to the alleged declarations. The State v. Eneigh, 19 Id., 122.

An indictment under this section which alleged that "the said K. did then and there unlawfully, deliberately, feloniously, and with malice aforethought, make an assault * * * upon R., and did
* * * feloniously shoot off and discharge the contents of said pistol * * * through the arm of R.
with a felonious intent * * * to kill and murder the said K., contrary," etc; contained all the elements of the crime charged, without an additional averment that the assault and shooting were

SEC. 3873. [Assault with intent to commit rape.]—If any person assault a female with intent to commit a rape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

An assault upon a female child under ten years of age with intent to have carnal knowledge of her person is an offense and indictable under section 3873 of the code. The State v. Newton, 45 Iowa, 45.

To constitute the offense, in such cases, it is not necessary that the defendant should know that the child is under ten years of age, it is sufficient in this respect if such is the fact. Id.

Evidence of previous assaults by the defendant upon the prosecutrix are admissible to show the intent with which the assault charged was committed. The State v. Walters, 45 Id., 389.

SEC. 3874. [Assault with intent to maim, etc.]—If any person assault another with intent to maim, rob, steal, or commit arson or burglary, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years. or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.
The court should instruct the jury that if they have a reasonable doubt of the degree or character of the assault charged, they should only convict of a lower degree of crime included in that charge in the indictment. The State v. Walters, 45 Iowa, 389.

Sec. 3875. [Great bodily injury.]—If any person assault another with intent to inflict a great bodily injury, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

An information filed before a justice of the peace, charging that the defendant did "willfully and maliciously strike and beat C. D. with intent of doing her great bodily injury," charges an indictable offense and one of which a justice has no jurisdiction to try. Nor would an appeal from a judgment of conviction rendered by a justice in such case, confer jurisdiction on the district court. The State v. Carpenter, 23 Iowa, 506.

Sec. 3876. [With intent to commit any felony.]—If any person assault another with intent to commit any felony or crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, where the punishment is not otherwise prescribed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

A battery is only an aggravated assault; when the assault is charged to have been made with a dangerous weapon, it is still further aggravation, and where it is charged to have been made with intent to commit a great bodily injury, it is only an offense in a different degree. The assault is the original offense, and the means, the intent, and the extent to which it is carried, quality only the aggravation of this original offense, to which the statute affixed additional punishment. Cokely v. The State, 4 Iowa, 477.

Sec. 3877. [Mingle poison with food, etc.]—If any person mingle poison with any food, drink, or medicine, with intent to kill or injure any human being, or willfully poison any spring, well, cistern, or reservoir of water, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3878. [Assault and battery.]—Whoever is convicted of an assault, or an assault and battery, where no other punishment is prescribed, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

An assault may be committed without inflicting any personal injury. The State v. Meyers, 19 Iowa, 517.

Pointing an unloaded gun may be an assault. The State v. Shepard, 10 Id., 126.

As every battery includes an assault, so does every intentional maiming include a battery as well as an assault. Benham v. The State 1 Id., 542.

Any person aiding or abetting in the commission of an assault and battery is as guilty as the others, although he did not strike himself. The State v. McClintick, 8 Id., 203.

The offense of assault and battery is triable before a justice of the peace or other officer authorized by law, on information under oath without indictment or the intervention of a grand jury, and not otherwise. The State v. Lee, 37 Id., 402.

The offenses of an assault and an assault and battery are made punishable by the statute; but in order to ascertain what would amount to an assault, or an assault and battery, we are left to the common law definition. The State v. Twogood, 7 Id., 292; see The State v. Abrams, 6 Id., 117.

An information charging a defendant with inhumanly whipping and beating his own child, is sufficient as an information charging an assault and battery, but it should set out the name of the child beaten. The State v. Bitman, 13 Id., 455.

Sec. 3879. [Carrying concealed weapons.]—If any person carry upon his person any concealed weapon, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days; provided, that this section shall not apply to police officers and other persons whose duty it is to execute process or warrants, or make arrests.

It is a good defense to an indictment for carrying a concealed weapon to show that it was carried through restraint or in ignorance of its real character, or for any innocent or lawful purpose, but such defenses need not be anticipated and negatived by allegations and proofs by the state. The State v. Williams, 70 Iowa, 52.
CHAPTER 3.
OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.

SECTION 3880. [Burning inhabited dwellings in night time.]-If any person willfully or maliciously burn in the night time, the inhabited building, boat or vessel of another, or willfully and maliciously set fire to any other building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning whereof such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.

SEC. 3881. [In day time.]-If any person willfully or maliciously burn in the day time the inhabited building, boat or vessel of another, or any building, boat or vessel adjoining thereto; or willfully and maliciously set fire to any building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning whereof such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt in the day time; or in the day time willfully and maliciously set fire to any building, boat or vessel owned by himself or another, by the burning of which any such inhabited building, boat or vessel is burnt in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not exceeding thirty years.

SEC. 3882. [Burning uninhabited dwellings etc., in night time.]-If any person willfully and maliciously burn in the night time any uninhabited dwelling-house, boat or vessel belonging to another, or any court house, jail, college, church, or any building erected for public use; or any other building boat or vessel, by the burning whereof any building, boat or vessel mentioned in this section is burnt in the night time, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

SEC. 3883. [In the day time.]-If any person willfully and maliciously burn in the day time any building, boat or vessel mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding fifteen years.

SEC. 3884. [Burning mills, locks, dams, depots, etc.]—If any person willfully and maliciously burn, either in the night or day time, any warehouse, store, manufactory, mill, railroad depot, barn, stable, shop, office, out-house, or any building whatsoever of another, other than is mentioned in the preceding sections of this chapter, or any bridge, lock, dam or flume, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

It seems, that to constitute a barn within the meaning of the statute against arson, it is not necessary that it should be designated or used, in whole or in part, for the storage of hay, corn or produce of any kind. The State v. Smith, 28 Iowa, 565.

SEC. 3885. [Setting fire with intent to burn.]-If any person set fire to any building, boat or vessel mentioned in the preceding sections of this chapter, or to any material with intent to cause any such building, boat or vessel to be burnt, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

An indictment charging that the defendant, etc., feloniously, etc., intending to set fire to and cause to be burned a certain barn, etc., did feloniously, etc., cause and procure and place a certain lighted candle in and among a certain quantity of hay and grain then and there being in said barn, feloniously, etc., intending, by so causing, procuring, and placing the said lighted candle aforesaid, to set fire to said hay and grain, and as aforesaid, feloniously, etc., cause the said barn to be burned, etc., was held to charge a crime under this section of the statute. The State v. Johnson, 19 Iowa, 230.

SEC. 3886. [ Burning or destroying lumber, fences, grain, etc.]-If any person willfully and maliciously burn, or otherwise destroy or injure any pile or parcel of wood, boards, timber, or lumber, or any fence, bars, or gate, or any grain, hay or other vegetable product severed from the soil, or any standing tree, grain, grass, or other standing product of the soil the property of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3887. [Married woman: liability of.]—The preceding sections of this chapter, severally, extend to a married woman who commits either of those offenses therein described, though the property burnt or set fire to may belong partly or wholly to her husband.

SEC. 3888. [Burning to injure insurers.]—If any person willfully burn any building, goods, wares, merchandize, or other chattels which are insured against loss or damage by fire, or willfully cause or procure the same to be burned, with intent to injure the insurer, whether such person be the owner of such property or not, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

SEC. 3889. (As substituted by ch. 55, 17 g. a.) [Penalty for setting out fire by which property of another is injured.]—(If any person willfully, or without using proper caution, set fire to and burn, or cause to be burned, any prairie or timbered land, or any enclosed or cultivated field, or any highway, by which the property of another is injured or destroyed, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.)

Under this section as it stood prior to its amendment, it was properly held that a party would be liable only where he set out the fire willfully or without using proper caution—negligently. Conn v. May, 36 Iowa, 241; De France v. Spencer, 2 G. Greene, 462; Hallon v. Ingram, 3 Iowa, 81; Jacobs v. Andrews, 4 Id., 506.

So also prior to the amendment it was held, that the kindling of a fire in a cultivated field did not render the person charged therewith liable for resulting damages, regardless of the question of care or negligence. Brunel v. Hopkins, 42 Iowa, 429.

But under chapter 53, laws of 1862, a person setting out fire between the 1st day of September and the 1st day of May, was held absolutely liable for damages caused by its escape on the premises of another, regardless of the question of diligence. Conn v. May, 36 Id., 241. No question was made in that case as to where the fire was set, whether in a cultivated field, or in timber or prairie land.

SEC. 3890. [Same.]—If any person set fire to and burn, or cause to be burned, any prairie or timber land, and allow such fire to escape from his control, between the first day of September in any year and the first day of May following, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Under this section a person is not liable absolutely where the fire is set by him in a cultivated field. Brunell v. Hopkins, 42 Iowa, 429.

Under this section of the code a person setting out fire and burning, or causing to be burned, any timber or prairie land between the dates mentioned in the statute, is absolutely liable for damages caused by its escape to and on the premises of another, regardless of the question of diligence. Conn v. May, 36 Id., 241.

SEC. 3891. [Burglary.]—If any person break and enter any dwelling-house in the night time, with intent to commit any public offense; or, after having entered with such intent, break any such dwelling-house in the night time, he shall be deemed guilty of burglary, and shall be punished according to the aggravation of the offense as is provided in the next two sections.

An indictment for burglary which charges the breaking and entering with an intent to commit a public offense is sufficient; it is not necessary to charge that such breaking and entering were "burglarious." The State v. Short, 54 Iowa, 392.

Where the legal title to a homestead is in the wife but occupied jointly by her and her husband, the ownership may be laid in the latter in an indictment for burglary. Id.

An indictment for burglary is sufficient which charges that the breaking and entering was done with intent to commit larceny, without also averring that there was an intent to take, steal and carry away any property of greater value than twenty dollars. The State v. Jones, 10 Id., 206.
An indictment for burglary under section 3891 would differ but little from an indictment under section 3894, without the use of some of the qualifying words used in the latter section; the indictment in the case at bar was made certain by describing the house burglarized as one "in which goods were kept for use, sale and deposit," words peculiar to section 3894. State v. Franks, 64 Iowa, 39, 41.

In an indictment for breaking and entering a dwelling-house from the outside, in the night time, it is not necessary to allege that any person was in the house at the time of the alleged breaking. The State v. Reid, 29 Iowa, 413.

The pushing open of a closed door, with the intent expressed in the statute, is a sufficient breaking within the meaning of the law to constitute burglary. Id.

While the criminal intent of breaking and entering a dwelling-house in the night time, with intent to commit a larceny, might sufficiently exist in the mind of a drunken person, and while, in such case, his intoxication would be no excuse, yet if it was such that under the influence thereof he entered the house with no intent to commit crime, then he would not be guilty of burglary. The State v. Bell, 29 Iowa, 316.

The law does not necessarily imply the criminal intent from the mere fact of breaking and entering; but whether such intent existed or whether the defendant was capable, in his intoxicated condition of forming an intent is a question for the jury. Id.

SEC. 3892. [Being armed or assaulting a person.]—If such offender, at the time of committing such burglary, is armed with a dangerous weapon, or so armed himself after having entered such dwelling-house, or actually assault any person being lawfully therein, or has any confederate present aiding and abetting in such burglary, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term of years.

SEC. 3893. [When not armed.]—If such offender commit such burglary otherwise than is mentioned in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding twenty years.

SEC. 3894. [Breaking in day time into railway cars, etc., to commit a public offense.]—If any person with intent to commit any public offense in the day time break and enter, or in the night time enter without breaking, any dwelling-house; or at any time break and enter any office, shop, store, warehouse, railroad car, boat, or vessel, or any buildings in which any goods, merchandise, or valuable things are kept for use, sale, or deposit, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

In an indictment for breaking and entering a building in which valuable things are kept, with intent to commit a felony, the name of the building should be averred and set out, if known, and, if not known, then it should be so stated. The State v. Morrissy, 32 Iowa, 158.

An indictment charging the defendant with feloniously and burglariously breaking and entering a store with intent to commit larceny, and with stealing and carrying away certain property therein contained, was held, not vulnerable, to the objection that it charged two distinct offenses. The State v. Hayden, 45 Iowa, 11.

Under this section the unlawful breaking and entering must be "with an intent to commit a public offense." The State v. Ridley et al., 45 Iowa, 370, 372.

An indictment for burglary includes the offense of entering a dwelling-house in the night time without breaking, and will sustain a conviction for the latter offense. The State v. Marvin, 42 Iowa, 208.

An indictment for breaking and entering a dwelling-house was held not fatally defective because instead of alleging that the house was the dwelling house of those who dwelt therein, it alleged that the house belonged to one K. and that his surviving widow and children, being his heirs at law, kept goods and valuable things therein, and that the intent of the defendant was to steal and carry away said goods and valuable things, there being no prejudicial inaccuracy therein. State v. Franks, 64 Iowa, 39.

SEC. 3895. [Selling or concealing mortgaged property.]—If any mortgagor of personal property, while his mortgage of it remains unsatisfied, willfully destroy, conceal, sell, or in any manner dispose of the property covered by such mortgage without the consent of the then holder of such mortgage, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny and be punished accordingly.

In order to recover in a civil action for the driving away cattle or stock by drovers, the plaintiff must allege and prove that the defendant had knowledge at the time of the injury.
done, that the domestic animal of another had entered his drove, or was being driven away. Chamberlain v. Gage et al., 20 Iowa, 383.

A second mortgage upon chattels, though made without the consent of the first mortgagee, is not rendered void by this section, which makes the mortgagor guilty of larceny for disposing of such property without the consent of the mortgagee. Teutle, Rees & Co. v. Taylor et al., garnishees, 64 Id., 629.

By this section, it is a criminal act for the mortgagor to dispose of mortgaged chattels, but it does not make the act of the purchaser criminal. McDonald v. Norton, 72 Id., 625.

SEC. 3896. [Driving stock from home or pasture.]—If any person knowingly or willfully drive off, or suffer to be driven off, any horned or other stock of another to a distance exceeding three miles from the residence of the owner, or of his agent having charge of such stock, or the range in which such stock is usually in the habit of running, without the consent of such owner or agent, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days; and any justice of the peace in any county through which the stock thus driven off should pass, or in which it may be found, shall have jurisdiction of the offense.

An indictment for larceny growing out of the sale of mortgaged chattels, must aver that the mortgage was unsatisfied at the time of the offense charged. The State v. Gustafson, 50 Id., 194.

Where the mortgage of personal chattels provided that if the mortgagor removed it from the county, the mortgagee might take possession of and sell it, it was held that a removal and sale in another state, under the circumstances stated did not constitute an offense indictable in the county where the mortgage was executed. The State v. Julien, 48 Id., 445.

SEC. 3897. [Stealing, injuring, or disfiguring fruit in day time.]—If any person maliciously or mischievously enter the enclosure of another, with intent to knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away; or having lawfully entered, do afterwards wrongfully knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any apples, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, or any other fruit or flower of any tree, shrub, bush, or vine, he shall be punished, for the first offense, by a fine not less than five dollars, nor exceeding one hundred dollars, and costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days; and should any person be found guilty of a second violation hereof, he shall be fined not less than ten dollars and costs of conviction, or imprisonment as above provided.

SEC. 3898. [Same in the night time.]—If any person maliciously or mischievously enter the enclosure of another in the night time, and knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any fruits, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, or other fruit or flower of any tree, shrub, bush, or vine; or, if any person having entered the enclosure of another in the night time, with the intent to knock off, pick, destroy, or carry away any fruit or flower as aforesaid, be actually found therein, he shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than twenty-five nor to exceed one hundred dollars and costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

The offense defined in this section is a misdemeanor. Hooker v. Miller, 37 Iowa, 613, 614.

SEC. 3899. [Destroying or injuring fruit trees.]—If any person maliciously or mischievously bruise, break, pull up, cut down, carry away, destroy, or in anywise injure any fruit or ornamental tree, shrub, or vine, growing, or standing on the land of another, he shall be punished by a fine not less than ten nor exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of conviction, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 3900. [Discharging fire arms near where stock is being fed.]—Any person who knowingly discharges fire arms of any description within, or in the immediate vicinity of, any enclosure where cattle, hogs, or sheep are being fed for the purpose of fattening the same; or any person who enters such enclosure with fire arms, or dog, unless such person shall be the owner of said stock, or have the control of the same, or shall have permission from such owner or the person having control thereof to enter said premises, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(Section 3901 repealed by chapter 185, laws of 1884).

CHAPTER 13, LAWS OF 1874.

BURGLAR TOOLS OR IMPLEMENTS.

An Act for the punishment of persons having in their possession burglar tools or implements with intent to commit the crime of burglary. [Additional to chapter 3, title XXIV, code, concerning “Offenses against property.”]

SECTION 1. [Possession of burglar tools or implements a misdemeanor.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any person shall be found, having in his possession at any time any burglar tools or implements, with intent to commit the crime of burglary, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, and it shall be the duty of the court before whom such conviction is had to retain possession of such burglar tools or implements, to be used in evidence in any court in which said person is tried.

Approved, March 10, 1874.

CHAPTER 11, LAWS OF 1880.

BREAKING AND ENTERING BUILDINGS.

An Act for the punishment of persons for attempting to break and enter buildings with intent to commit a public offense. [Additional to chapter 3, title XXIV, code, concerning “Offenses against property.”]

SECTION 1. [Breaking and entering dwellings at any time or entering a dwelling in night, or to break and enter any office, etc., punished by fine and imprisonment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That if any person, with intent to commit any public offense, shall attempt to break and enter any dwelling-house, at any time, or to enter any dwelling-house in the night time without breaking, or at any time to break and enter any office, shop, store, warehouse, railroad car, boat, vessel, or any building in which any goods, merchandise, or valuable things are kept for use, sale or deposit, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Approved, February 27, 1880.

CHAPTER 78, LAWS OF 1884.

RELATING TO SALE OF FIRE ARMS TO MINORS.

An Act to prohibit the selling or giving of fire arms to minors.

SECTION 1. [Unlawful to sell or give to minors fire arms or toy pistols.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any person to knowingly sell, present or give any pistol, revolver or toy pistol to any minor.
SEC. 2. [Fine or imprisonment.]-Any violation of this act shall be punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail of not less than ten nor more than thirty days. Approved, March 29, 1884.

Where defendant in violation of this chapter, sold a revolver to plaintiff's minor son, fifteen years old, wherewith he, by accident, shot himself through the hand, held that in an action for damages for loss of services and for curing his son, in the absence of a showing that there was something in the boy's disposition or want of experience, from which the defendant might reasonably have anticipated such an accident, plaintiff could not recover. Poland v. Bar- hart, 70 Iowa, 285.

CHAPTER 4.

LARCENY AND RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.

SECTION 3902. [Larceny.]-If any person steal, take, and carry away of the property of another, any money, goods, or chattels; any writ, process, or public record; any bond, bank note, promissory note, bill of exchange, or other bill, order, or certificate; or any book of accounts respecting money, goods, or other things, or any deed or writing containing a conveyance of real estate; or any contract in force; or any receipt, release, or defeasance; or any instrument or writing whereby any demand, right, or obligation is created, increased, extinguished or diminished, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished, when the value of the property stolen exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years; and when the value of the property stolen does not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

A verdict of guilty on the trial of an indictment for grand larceny, must fix the value of the property stolen, that the court may know with certainty the grade of the crime of which the defendant has been convicted. The State v. Redman, 17 Iowa, 329.

Under our statute, which changes the common law rule, a draft, promissory note or other evidence of debt, is the subject of larceny, and also of embezzlement, which is but a similar statutory crime. The State v. Oreg, 24 Id., 102.

Money may be the subject of larceny, and an allegation that money was feloniously taken, is sustained by proof that the crime was the taking of money "called greenbacks." The State v. Carr et al., 43 Id., 418.

The stealing of "bank notes" or "bank bills" is larceny, and these terms mean the same thing under our statute. Munson v. The State, 4 G. Greene, 483; The State v. Bond, 8 Id., 540.

In an action for the larceny of a bank note, it is sufficient to describe it as a promissory note for the payment of money, commonly called a bank note, purporting to be issued by a bank for the payment of a certain sum of money, still due and unpaid, and of a certain value. Id.

An indictment charging the larceny of "$180 in bank notes, usually known and described as greenbacks," was held, sufficiently certain in respect to the subject of the larceny. The State v. Hockenberry, 30 Id., 504.

The jurisdiction of the district court is determined by the value of the property stolen as found in the indictment of the grand jury, and not by the value as ascertained by the verdict of the trial jury. The State v. Stingley et al., 10 Id., 488.

To constitute larceny, possession of the property must have been acquired with an intent to steal it, and, if the original possession was innocent, the defendant is not guilty, even though he may have subsequently conceived the purpose of appropriating it. The State v. Wood, 45 Id., 116.

Where stolen property is brought into this state, the crime of larceny is committed in any county in this state into which the property is brought by the thief, and he may be therein indicted and convicted. The State v. Bennett, 14 Id., 479.

If one holds possession of or disposes of the property of another, under a well founded belief that he is entrusted with the property by the latter for that purpose, he is not guilty of larceny. The State v. Barrackmore, 47 Id., 684.

To sustain an indictment for larceny of money, it is not necessary to show that it was taken from the person of the owner. If it was dropped from the pocket of the owner and picked up by the defendant and converted to his own use, without the knowledge of the owner, the facts would sustain an indictment for the general offense of larceny. The State v. Pratt, 20 Id., 267.

Where personal property was pledged as security for a debt, the pledgor afterwards obtained possession of the pledged property for a special purpose, with the consent of the pledger, and thereupon took the property out of the county, and there was evidence tending to show that the pledgor obtained possession of the pledge with a felonious intent to deprive the pledgee of his security, it was held: 1, that the pledgor had a special property in the pledge; 2, that if the pledgor obtained possession of the pledge by deception and false pretense, the pledgee would not be deemed to have released his lien or special property therein; 3, that where the taking of possession was with the felonious intent to deprive the pledgee of his security, the pledgor would be guilty of larceny. Bruley v. Rose, 57 Id., 651.

When property recently stolen is found in the possession of any person, the burden of proof is upon such person to show how he came into the possession thereof; and unless he shows that he came honestly into possession of the property the law will presume that he stole the same. The State v. Hessler, 50 Id., 135; The State v. Taylor, 25 Id., 273; The State v. Golden, 49 Id., 48; The State v. Brady, 27 Id., 136; Warren v. The State, 1 G. Greene, 106; The State v. Stanley, 48 Id., 221, 222.

On the trial of an indictment for larceny, where the value of the property alleged to have been stolen is in issue, the jury should be instructed to find, as the value of the property, what it would realize in the ordinary course of trade, and not merely what it is worth to the owner. The State v. Smith, 48 Id., 595.

On the trial of an indictment for larceny, the value of the property stolen must be established beyond a reasonable doubt, mere preponderance of evidence that it exceeds twenty dollars not being sufficient to justify a conviction for the higher offense. State v. Wood, 46 Id., 116.

Sec. 3803. (As substituted by sec. 1, ch. 11, 15th g. a.) [In night time in houses, stores, boat, etc. ]—[If any person in the night time commit larceny in any dwelling-house, store or any public or private building, or in any boat, vessel or water craft, when the value of the property stolen exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years; and when the value of the property stolen, [does not exceed] twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Where defendant was charged with robbery under section 3888 of the code, committed by taking money from a dwelling-house, a formal acquittal on an indictment for larceny of the same money, under this section, held, a bar to the prosecution for robbery, because the crime of robbery as charged, could not have been committed without the commission of the larceny, as an included, but inferior, offense. The State v. Mikeell, 70 Iowa, 176.

An indictment which in one count charges larceny from a dwelling house in the night time, and in another count charges the same larceny in the day time is not bad for duplicity. The State v. Elsham, 73 Id., 531.

Under this section embezzlement from a corporation may be committed by an agent, though he be under sixteen years of age; and an allegation in an indictment that he was over that age was superfluous, and proof of it was not necessary to conviction. The State v. Goode, 65 Id., 593.

Under this section a person is guilty of larceny, if he has embezzled his employer's money, coming into his hands by virtue of his employment, by actual conversion, or by secreting the same with intent to convert. Id.

The using by a clerk of money belonging to his employer to replace other sums previously appropriated by him to his own use constitutes embezzlement, for which he is liable to his employer in a civil action. Bowman v. Brown, 52 Id., 437.

Sec. 3904. (As substituted by sec. 2, ch. 11, 15 g. a.) [Same in day time. ]—[If any person in the day time commit larceny as specified in the preceding section, and the value of the property stolen exceeds twenty dollars, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years; and when the value of the property stolen does not exceed twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.]

Where the prisoner was convicted of stealing personal property of less than twenty dollars in value, in a dwelling-house in the day time, it was held, that the district court had jurisdiction of the offense, and that a justice of the peace did not. The State v. Dawson, 17 Iowa, 584.

Sec. 3905. [From building on fire. ]—If any person commit the crime of larceny by stealing from any building on fire; or by stealing any property removed in consequence of an alarm caused by fire; or by stealing from the person of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding fifteen years. The crime of robbery includes the crime of larceny from the person, and under an indictment for larceny from the person, proof of the crime of robbery will warrant a conviction. State v.
Grubb, 66 Id., 482.

SEC. 3906. [Falsey personating another to receive money, etc.]—If any person falsely personate or represent another, and in such assumed character receive any money or property intended to be delivered to the party so personated, with intent to convert the same to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly.

A person who falsely personates another, and in such assumed character receives property intended to be delivered to the party so personated, with intent to convert the same to his own use, is guilty of larceny under section 3906 of the code. The State v. Brown, 66 Id., 482.

SEC. 3907. [Finding and appropriating property.]—If any person come, by finding, to the possession of any personal property of which he knows the owner, and unlawfully appropriate the same or any part thereof to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly.

To constitute the finding and conversion of lost property larceny under section 3907, such finding and conversion must have been by one knowing the owner of the property. The offense is not complete in the absence of this knowledge. The State v. Taylor, 25 Iowa, 273; The State v.
Dean, 49 Id., 73.

The finder of lost goods which have no marks by which the owner could be identified, and does not know to whom they belong, is not guilty of larceny, even if he does not exercise diligence to discover the owner of the goods. The State v. Dean, 49 Id., 73.

Where the evidence warranted the jury in finding that the defendant either stole a pocket-book from the owner, or else that he found it, and knew whose it was, but appropriated it to his own use, a verdict of guilty was properly rendered. The State v. Bolander, 71 Id., 706.

SEC. 3908. [Embezzlement of public money by officer.]—If any state, county, township, school, or municipal officer, or officer of any state institution, or other public officer within the state charged with the collection, safe keeping, transfer, or disbursement of public money, fails or refuses to keep in any place of deposit that may be provided by law for keeping such money, until the same is withdrawn therefrom upon warrants, issued by the proper officer, or deposits such money in any other place than in such safe, or unlawfully converts to his own use in any way whatever, or use by way of investment in any kind of property, or loan without the authority of law any portion of the public money entrusted to him for collection, safe keeping, transfer, or disbursement, or convert to his own use any money that may come into his hands by virtue of his office, shall be guilty of embezzlement to the amount of so much of said money as is thus taken, converted, invested used, loaned, or unaccounted for, and upon conviction thereof, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding five years and fined in a sum equal to the amount of money embezzled; and, moreover, is forever disqualified from holding any office under the laws or constitution of this state.

Conversion may be established either by direct proof of the factor by proof of demand and refusal;
but evidence of demand and refusal will not establish the conversion where the failure to comply with the demand can be sufficiently explained by the existing or other circumstances. The State
v. Bogan, 49 Iowa, 379.

Under section 4243 of the revision (section 3908, code), it was held that the crime of embezlement, as defined therein, consisted only in the converting, using or loaning of so much of the public money entrusted for safe keeping to the person charged, as was taken and unaccounted for.
The state v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593.

Where the board of directors, in violation of this section, loaned the funds of a school district to one Calvin, who gave his promissory note, with three others as sureties therefor, payable to the district township, in an action on the note the plaintiff was held entitled to recover, the illegal act of loaning the money not being the act of plaintiff, but that of the directors. District Tp. of Pleasant Valley v. Calvin, 59 Id., 189.

The crime of embezzlement of public funds by a custodian thereof, consists, under the statute, of the conversion of the public money in his hands and a failure to account for the same; and an indictment for the offense must charge not only the conversion, but also the failure to account. The State v. Parsons, 54 Id., 405. Following The State v. Brownell, 41 Id., 606.

Under an indictment for embezzlement by a public officer, conversion may be established by direct proof of the fact or proof of demand and refusal; but where the fact of conversion is sought to be proved by evidence of demand and refusal, it may be met and neutralized by evidence showing an excuse for the refusal. The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379.

SEC. 3909. (As amended by ch. 30, 21st g. a.) [All persons over 16 years of age who embezzles money or goods guilty of larceny.]—If any officer, agent, clerk or servant of any incorporated company, or voluntary association, or if any clerk, agent or servant of any private person, or of any co-partnership except persons under the age of sixteen years, or if any attorney at law, collector or other person, who in any manner receives or collects money or any other property for the use of and belonging to another, embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use, or takes and secretes with intent to embezzle and convert to his own use without the consent of his employer, master, or the owner of the money or goods collected, or received any money or property of another, or which is partly the property of another and partly the property of such officer, agent, clerk, servant, attorney at law, collector, or other person which has come to his possession or under his care in any manner whatsoever, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny and punished accordingly. And in a prosecution for such crime it shall be no defense that such officer, agent, clerk, servant, collector, attorney at law, or other person was entitled to a commission or compensation out of such money or property as compensation or commission for collecting or receiving the same, for or on behalf of the owner thereof. Provided, it shall be no embezzlement on the part of such agent, clerk, servant, attorney at law, collector, or other person to retain his reasonable compensation or collection fee, for collecting or receiving the same; but this proviso shall not authorize or warrant an attorney at law to retain any money or property as compensation, or as money and property on which he has an attorney's lien after the filing of a bond as provided for in section 216 of the code. No offense committed before the taking effect of this act shall be affected by the repeal of section 3909 of the code.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant, as private secretary of the governor, received in his possession and care a treasury draft of the United States, drawn in favor of the state and payable to the order of the governor, which the defendant feloniously converted to his own use and embezzled, it was held that the indictment was good. The State v. Orwig, 24 Iowa, 102.

Where the defendant, by virtue of an agreement between him and the prosecutor, received from the latter a watch which he was to trade for a wagon, and was to receive five dollars as compensation for his services, it was held, that this constituted such an employment as rendered the defendant guilty of embezzlement for converting the watch to his own use. The State v. Foster, 37 Id., 404.

The unlawful appropriation of money by an agent or employee not authorized to receive it, is not within the provisions of this section (3909), making the offense therein defined punishable as larceny, although the party paying it to the agent or employee supposes him to be authorized to receive it. The State v. Johnson, 49 Id., 141.

This section as it read prior to amendment by chapter 30, of the laws of 1886, providing that if "any person over the age of sixteen years embezzle," etc., "without the consent of his employer," * * * any money of another which has come into his possession by virtue of such employment, he is guilty of larceny," etc., the indictment need not allege the particular nature of the employment by virtue of which the money came into defendant's possession; and if the same has already set forth, an averment that the money came into defendant's possession, "by virtue of such employment," is sufficient. State v. Jamison, 38 N. W. Rep., 508.

An indictment which charged that the defendant "did * * * fraudulently embezzle and convert" etc., sufficiently followed the statute. Id.

SEC. 3910. [Same by carriers and others.]—If any carrier or other person to whom any money, goods or other property, which may be the subject of larceny, has been delivered to be carried for hire, or if any other person entrusted with such property, embezzle or fraudulently convert to his own use any such money, goods, or other property, either in the mass as the same were delivered or otherwise and before the same were delivered at the place or to the person where and to whom they were to be delivered, he is guilty of larceny and shall be punished accordingly.

The crime defined in this section is limited to property which has been delivered to be carried for hire; it was accordingly held, that where a quantity of wheat had simply been stored with the defendant, which he converted to his own use, he was not liable to an indictment for embezzlement. State v. Stoller, 37 Iowa, 321.

Sec. 3911. [Receiving stolen goods.]—If any person buy, receive, or aid in concealing any stolen goods, or any property, the stealing of which is declared to be larceny, or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same to have been so obtained, he shall be punished, when the value of the property so bought, received, or concealed by him exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year; and when the value of the property so bought, received, or concealed by him does not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Where on the trial of an indictment charging the defendant with "concealing" and with "receiving" and "aiding in the concealment" of stolen property, the jury rendered a verdict as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of aiding in concealing the stolen property mentioned in the indictment, as charged therein, and assess the value of the same at one thousand dollars," it was held to be equivalent to a general verdict of guilty. The State v. Turner, 19 Iowa, 144.

In order to convict a defendant indicted with aiding to conceal stolen property under this section of the code, the evidence must show that he assisted to hide the property, in order to evade pursuit, or avoid discovery. Upton v. The State, 5 Id., 496.

The crime of receiving stolen goods may be committed by receiving stolen property, knowing it to be stolen, or by knowingly receiving property which has been obtained by burglary or robbery. In this view the indictment in the case held sufficient. The State v. Lane, 68 Id., 384.

Sec. 3912. [Same on second conviction.]—If any person after having been convicted of the offense of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen money, goods, or any property, the stealing of which is larceny, or property obtained by robbery or burglary, be again convicted of the like offense; or if any person at the same term of court is convicted of three distinct acts of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen property or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same was so obtained, he shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 3913. [Receiver convicted without proof that principal has been.]—In any prosecution for the offense of buying, receiving, or aiding in the concealment of stolen property or property obtained by robbery or burglary, knowing the same was so obtained, it shall not be necessary to aver nor to prove on the trial thereof that the person who stole, robbed, or took the property has been convicted.

Sec. 3914. [Measure of value of stolen goods.]—If the property stolen consist of any bank-note, bond, bill, covenant, bill of exchange, draft, order or receipt, or any evidence of debt whatever; or any public security, or any instrument whereby any demand, right, or obligation may be assigned, transferred, created increased, released, extinguished, or diminished, the money due thereon or secured thereby and remaining unsatisfied, or which in any event or contingency might be collected thereon, or the value of the property transferred or affected, as the case may be, shall be adjudged the value of the thing stolen.

In an indictment for larceny of a bank check, it is sufficient allegation of value to say that it was "of the value of $20.97," that being equivalent to saying that the instrument called for at least that sum of money. State v. Pierson, 59 Iowa, 271.

Sec. 3915. [Removal of goods from custody of an officer.]—If any person knowingly and without authority of law, take, carry away, secrete, or destroy any goods or chattels while the same are lawfully in the custody of any sheriff, coroner, marshal, constable, or other officer, and rightfully held by such officer by virtue of execution, writ of attachment, or other legal process issued under the laws of Iowa, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny, and shall be punished, when the value of the property so taken, carried away, secreted, or destroyed, exceeds the sum of twenty dollars, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than one year; and when the value of the same does not exceed twenty dollars, by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days.

A receiver is not an officer under this section. State v. Rivers, 60 Iowa, 381.

Intoxicating liquors seized under an information for their forfeiture are not the subject of replevin, and to take them from an officer by such process would be an illegal act. The State v. Harris et al., 38 Iowa, 242.

SEC. 3916. [When left by an officer with another for safe keeping.]—The possession or custody of goods and chattels by any person with whom the same have been left or deposited for safe keeping to be returned for the purpose of being disposed of on legal process, shall be deemed to be the possession and custody of the officer having or depositing the same, and entitled to the custody thereof, and in a prosecution under the preceding section, the property taken, carried away, secreted, or destroyed, as therein mentioned, may be laid in the officer entitled to the custody thereof at the time of the commission of the offense.

An instruction as follows was held to be correct: "When property recently stolen is found in the possession of any person the burden of proof is upon such person to show how he came into the possession thereof; and unless he shows that he came honestly into possession of said property, the law will presume that he stole the same." The State v. Hessians, 50 Iowa, 135.

CHAPTER 5.

FORGERY AND COUNTERFEITING.

SECTION 3917. [Forgery of records and instruments in writing.]—If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, alter, forge or counterfeit any public record, or any process issued or purporting to be issued by any competent court, magistrate, or officer, or any pleading or proceeding filed or entered in any court of law or equity; or any attestation or certificate of any public officer, or other person, in relation to any matter wherein such attestation or certificate is required by law, or may be received or taken as legal proof; or any charter, deed, will, testament, bond, writing obligatory, power of attorney, letter of credit, policy of insurance, bill of lading, bill of exchange, promissory note; or any order, acquittance, discharge, or accountable receipt for money, or other valuable thing; or any acceptance of any bill of exchange, or order or any indorsement or assignment of any bill of exchange, promissory note, or order, or of any debt or contract; or any instrument in writing, being, or purporting to be, the act of another, by which any pecuniary demand or obligation, or any right or interest in or to any property, whatever, is, or, purports to be created, increased, transferred, conveyed, discharged or diminished, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years.

The false making or material alteration with intent to defraud, of any writing which if genuine, might apparently be of legal efficacy or the foundation of a legal liability, is forgery. The State v. Johnson, 36 Iowa, 407.

A material alteration of a promissory note is forgery, both at common law and under our statutes. Snyder v. Reno, 38 Id., 329, 333.

While there can be no forgery of a written instrument invalid on its face, yet it is not necessary that it should show actual legal efficacy, and it is sufficient that if genuine it might have such apparent efficacy. Id.

The detachment from a written instrument of a condition thereto, written on the same paper and at the same time, whereby the writing is changed from a non-negotiable instrument to a negotiable promissory note, is forgery, and punishable as such. The State v. Stratton, 27 Id., 439.

Where a person writes his name on a blank piece of paper, to be used for the purpose of identifying his signature, and the person to whom it is given, without the knowledge of the other, writes over such signature a promissory note, it will be held that the instrument is a forgery, and invalid, even in the hands of an innocent holder to whom it was negotiated before maturity. Caulkins v. Whisler, 29 Id., 455.

Under an indictment charging the forgery of the signature, the writing is admissible in evidence, and the jury must determine whether or not the act of the defendant is an attempt to imitate the signature as charged. The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 110.

An indictment for forgery is supported by proof of a material alteration of a written instrument whereby another is defrauded. The State v. Maxwell, 47 Id., 454.

Where a promissory note for ten dollars contained blank space in which the words “one hundred and” and the figure “1” after the dollar mark at the top of the note, thus altering it from a note for ten dollars to one for one hundred and ten dollars, and nothing on the face of the note tended to show such alterations, it was held to be a forgery which vitiates the note in the hands of a bona fide holder. The Knoxville Bank v. Clark, 13 West. Jur., 310. (July 1879.)

In Rainbolt v. Eddy, 34 Iowa, 440, it was held, that the alteration of a promissory note by filling a blank left therein for the rate of interest, so as to make it draw ten per cent, did not affect its validity in the hands of a bona fide indorsee, for value before maturity.

Under an indictment charging the forgery of the signature to a written instrument, the instrument is admissible in evidence, and the jury must determine whether or not the act of the defendant was an attempt to imitate the signature as charged. The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 110.

A material alteration of the terms or conditions of a note or other commercial paper made by the holder with a fraudulent intent, will defeat recovery thereon. Robinson v. Reed, 46 Id., 219.

For other cases holding alterations of notes, etc., fatal to recovery, see Hammond v. Hooper, 46 Id., 515; Dickerman v. Miner, 43 Id., 508; Cutler v. Rose et ux. 35 Id., 456.

SEC. 3918. [Uttering same.]—If any person utter and publish as true any record, process, certificate, deed, will, or any other instrument of writing, mentioning in the preceding section, knowing the same to be false, altered, forged or counterfeited, with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than fifteen years and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars.

SEC. 3919. [Forgery of public securities.]—If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, utter forge, or counterfeit any note, certificate, state bond, warrant, or other instrument, being public security for money or other property issued or purporting to be issued by authority of this state, or any other of the United States; or any indorsement or other writing purporting to transfer the right or interest of any holder of such public security, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than twenty years, or not less than five years.

SEC. 3920. [Counterfeiting bank notes, etc.]—If any person make, alter, forge or counterfeit any bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company duly authorized for that purpose by any state of the United States, or any other government or country, with intent to injure or defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3921. [Having same in possession to defraud.]—If any person has in his possession any forged, counterfeited or altered bank bill, promissory note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued as is mentioned in the preceding section, with intent to defraud, knowing them to be so forged, counterfeited or altered, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

In an indictment for having in possession forged and counterfeit bank bills, with intent to defraud, etc., it is not necessary to allege an intent to defraud any particular person or corporation, nor is it necessary to aver a felonious or willful intent to defraud, but a copy of the bills... should be set out in the indictment, or a reason given for not doing so. The State v. Callendine, 8 Iowa, 288.

SEC. 3922. [Uttering counterfeit securities.]*—If any person utter or pass, or tender in payment as true, any false, altered, forged or counterfeited note, certificate, state bond, warrant or other instrument of public security, or any bank bill, promissory note, draft or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company duly authorized as heretofore mentioned, knowing the same to be false, altered, forged or counterfeited, with the intent to injure or defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The name of the person, to whom counterfeited money is passed should be stated with certainty in the indictment unless the name is unknown, and if so, that fact should be stated. Buckley v. The State, 2 G. Greene, 162.

An indictment which charges the defendant with uttering, passing and tendering in payment a counterfeit bank bill with intent to defraud, etc., does not charge more than one public offense. Id.

SEC. 3923. [Second conviction.]*—If any person, having been convicted of the offenses described in the preceding section, afterward be convicted of a like offense; or if any person at the same term of the court is convicted of three such distinct offenses, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than two years, nor more than ten years.

SEC. 3924. [Making tools, etc., adapted for counterfeiting.]*—If any person engrave, make or mend, or begin to engrave, make or mend any plate, block, press or other tool, instrument or implement; or make or provide any paper or other materials adapted and designed for the forging or making any false and counterfeit note, certificate, state bond, warrant or other instrument of public security for money or other property of this state, or any other of the United States; or any bank bill, promissory note, draft or other evidence of debt issued or purporting to be issued by any corporation or company; and every person who has in his possession any such plate or block engraved in any part, or any press or other tool, instrument, or implement, paper or other material adapted and designated as aforesaid, with intent to use the same, or to cause or permit the same to be used in forging or making any such false and forged certificates, notes, bonds, warrants, public securities or evidences of debt, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not more than five years nor less than two years.

SEC. 3925. [Counterfeiting coin.]*—If any person forge or counterfeit any gold or silver coin current by law or usance within this state, and if any person have in his possession at the same time five or more pieces of false money or coin counterfeit in the similitude of any gold or silver coin current as aforesaid, knowing the same to be false and counterfeit, and with intent to utter or pass the same as true, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years nor less than one year.

An indictment under this section for having in possession false money or coin counterfeit in the similitude of coin current in the state of Iowa, need not allege that the coin was counterfeit in the similitude of the current coin of the United States; nor is it necessary to aver that the counterfeit coin was of any value. The State v. Williams, 8 Iowa, 533.

The conjunction in this section, though copulative in form, will be construed as disjunctive in sense. The State v. Myers, 10 Id., 445.

The evidence to sustain an indictment, charging a defendant with having five or more pieces of counterfeit coin in possession should show the number of pieces in possession of the accused. State of Iowa v. Pepper, 11 Id., 347.

SEC. 3926. [Uttering counterfeit coin and having possession thereof.]*

—Any person who has in his possession any number of pieces less than five of the counterfeit coin mentioned in the preceding section, knowing the same to be false or counterfeit, with intent to utter or pass the same as true; and any person who utters, passes or tenders in payment any false and counterfeit coin, knowing the same to be false and counterfeit, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding eight years, or fined not more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The possession of counterfeit coin, as contemplated in this section, may consist in having it deposited in a secret place within the knowledge and control of the accused. The State v. Washburn, 11 Iowa, 345.

The evidence to sustain an indictment under this section should show the number of pieces of counterfeit coin in the possession of the defendant. The State v. Pepper, Id., 347.

The indictment charging the defendant with counterfeiting coin, and also with having coin in his possession with intent to pass the same as true, is bad for duplicity. The State v. McPherson, 9 Id., 53.

SEC. 3927. [Counterfeiting parts of bank notes and instruments.]—If any person fraudulently connect together different parts of several genuine bank bills, notes, or other instruments in writing, so as to produce one instrument; or alter any note or instrument in writing in a matter that is material with intent to defraud, the same shall be deemed forgery in like manner as if such bill or note or other instrument had been forged and counterfeited, and the offender shall be punished accordingly.

SEC. 3928. [Affixing fictitious signatures.]—If any fictitious or pretended signature of an officer or agent of any corporation be fraudulently affixed to any instrument of writing, purporting to be a note, draft, or other evidence of debt issued by such corporation, with intent to utter or pass the same as true, it is a forgery, though no such person may ever have been an officer or agent of such corporation, nor such corporation have ever existed. Every person guilty of this offense shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3929. [Fraudulent obliteration of instruments.]—The total or partial erasure or obliteration of any record, process, certificate, deed, will or any other instrument in writing mentioned in this chapter with the intent to defraud, shall be deemed forgery, and the offender shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3930. [Second and third convictions.]—If any person having been convicted of either of the offenses mentioned in the preceding section be afterwards convicted of a like offense; or if any person at the same term of court, be convicted of three such distinct offenses, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, nor less than three years.

SEC. 3931. [Having instruments for counterfeiting.]—If any person cast, stamp, engrave, make, or mend, or have in his possession any mould, die, press or other instrument or tool adapted and designed for the forging and counterfeiting of any coin before mentioned with intent to use the same, or permit the same to be used for that purpose, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 3932. [Counterfeiting foreign coin.]—If any person forge or counterfeit any gold or silver coin of any foreign government or country, with intent to export the same to injure or defraud any such government or the citizens thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

SEC. 3933. [Forging or counterfeiting seals.]—Every person who is convicted of having forged, counterfeited, or falsely altered the great seal of this state; or the seal of any public office authorized by law; or the seal of any court, corporation, city or county; or who falsely makes, forges, or counterfeits any impression purporting to be the impression of any such seal with intent to defraud, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 3934. [Existence of corporation proved by reputation.]—On the trial of any person for forging or counterfeiting any bill, note, or any other evidence of debt purporting to be issued by any incorporated company; or for uttering, passing or attempting to pass; or having in possession the same with intent to utter or pass such bill, note, or evidence of debt, it is not necessary to prove the incorporation by the charter or act thereof; but the same may be proved by general reputation, and persons of skill are competent witnesses to prove that such bill, note, or evidence of debt is forged or counterfeited.

Where an indictment for passing counterfeit bank bills, alleged that the bank is a corporation, duly authorized to issue bills, by a certain state named, it is incumbent upon the prosecution to prove the fact alleged. The State v. Newland, 7 Iowa, 242.

Where a party is indicted for forging an indorsement on the back of an order purporting to have been drawn by one bank upon another, proof of the existence of the bank is not necessary, nor is it necessary to aver the genuineness of the instrument indorsed. The State v. Pierce, 8 Id., 231.

Sec. 3935. [Counterfeiting brands or stamps.]—If any person with intent to defraud, falsely make, forge or counterfeit any stamp or brand authorized by law to be affixed to any substance or thing whatever; or, knowing such stamp or brand to be counterfeit, use the same as genuine with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years.

CHAPTER 6.

OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC JUSTICE.

Section 3936. [Perjury.]—If any person on oath or affirmation, lawfully administered, willfully and corruptly swear or affirm falsely to any material matter in any proceeding in any court of justice, or before any officer thereof; or before any tribunal or officer created by law; or in any proceeding in regard to any matter or thing in or respecting which an oath or affirmation is or may be required or authorized by law, he is guilty of perjury, and shall be punished, if the perjury was committed on the trial of a capital crime, by imprisonment in the penitentiary for life or any term not less than ten years; and if committed in any other case, by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years nor less than two years.

Perjury may be committed by willfully giving false testimony in a material matter before a grand jury. The State v. Schill, 27 Iowa, 263.

In order to convict an defendant for perjury, it must be shown that the defendant willfully and corruptly swore falsely respecting a material matter. The materiality must be established by evidence, and cannot be left to presumption or inference. The State v. Atkens, 32 Id., 403.

It is not essential to constitute the crime of perjury that the fact sworn to be material to the main issue in the case. It is sufficient if it be material to a collateral issue before the court. The State v. Shupe, 16 Id., 36.

In an indictment for perjury it is not necessary to charge that the defendant knew of the falsity of the matter testified to by him, except in cases where the assignment of perjury is upon the statement by the accused of his belief or denial of his belief of the alleged false matter. The State v. Raymond, 20 Id., 553.

Where an indictment for perjury charged that the defendant testified on a certain trial to certain matters, whereas he "did know" they were false, it was held that the averment of knowledge of the falsity of his evidence at the time he gave it was sufficient. The State v. Woods, 17 Id., 18.

Where a defendant in a civil action, in which he pleaded the statute of limitations, was called as a witness by the plaintiff under section 2742 of the revision, in order to remove the bar of the statute, and he swore that the claim sued on had no existence, it was held competent to show, on an indictment for perjury that the defendant swore falsely in the civil action. The State v. Vogt, 27 Id., 117.

Sec. 3937. [Subornation of.]—If any person procure another to commit perjury, he is guilty of subornation of perjury, and shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 3938. [Attempt to suborn.]—If any person endeavor to incite or procure another to commit perjury, though no perjury be committed, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3939. [Bribery of public officers.]—If any person give, offer or promise to any executive or judicial officer or member of the general assembly after his election or appointment, and either before or after he has been qualified or has taken his seat, any valuable consideration, gratuity, service, or benefit whatever, with intent to influence his act, vote, opinion or judgment in any matter, question, cause or proceeding which may be pending or which may legally come or be brought before him in his official capacity, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not more than one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

The giving of facilities for the public convenience of the whole county, as an inducement to remove the county seat, or the offering of a public advantage to an entire community as an inducement to the members of such community to vote for such removal, does not constitute bribery within the meaning of sections 2647, 2657 of the code of 1851. (Sections 3939, 3949, code of 1873.) Dishorn v. Smith, 10 Iowa, 212.

Sec. 3940. [Acceptance of bribes by such officers.]—If any executive or judicial officer, or member of the general assembly, accept any valuable consideration, gratuity, service or benefit whatever, or any promise to make the same or to do any act beneficial to such officer or member under the agreement or with the understanding that his vote, opinion, decision or judgment shall be given in any particular manner or upon any particular side of any question, cause or other proceeding which is, or may by law be, brought before him in his official capacity, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or be fined not more than two thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3941. [Same.]—Every person who is convicted under either of the two preceding sections of this chapter, shall forever afterward be disqualified from holding any office under the laws or constitution of this state.

Sec. 3942. [Corrupt solicitation of places of trust.]—If any person directly or indirectly, give, offer or promise any valuable consideration or gratuity to any other person not being such officer as is mentioned in the preceding section, with intent to induce such other person to procure for him by his interest, influence or any other means whatever any place of trust within this state, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3943. [Acceptance of such rewards.]—If any person, not being such officer as is referred to in the preceding sections of this chapter, accept and receive of another any valuable consideration or gratuity whatever as a reward for procuring, or attempting to procure, any office or place of trust within this state for any person, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3944. [Bribery of jurors, referees, etc.]—If any person give, offer or promise any valuable consideration or gratuity whatever, to any one summoned, appointed, or sworn as a juror; or appointed or chosen arbitrator, or umpire, or referee; or to any master in chancery; or appraiser of real or personal estate; or auditor, with intent to influence the opinion or decision of any such person in any matter, inquest or cause which may be pending or can legally come before him, or which he may be called on to decide in either of said capacities, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 3945. [Acceptance of bribes by such persons.]—If any person summoned, appointed or sworn as a juror; or appointed arbitrator, umpire or referee; or master in chancery; or auditor; or appraiser as aforesaid, take or receive any valuable consideration, or gratuity whatever, to give his verdict, award or report in favor of any particular party in a matter for the hearing or decision of which such person has been summoned, appointed or chosen as aforesaid, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3946. [Attempt to corrupt such persons.]—If any person attempt to improperly influence any juror in any civil or criminal cause, or any one drawn or summoned, or appointed, or sworn as such juror, or any arbitrator or referee, in relation to any cause or matter pending in, or to be brought before the court for which such juror has been drawn, summoned, appointed or sworn; or for the hearing and decision of which such arbitrator or referee has been chosen or appointed, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months.

Under the charge of compounding a felony, the mere fact that the defendant was an officer, was no reason why he should not be indicted under sections 3951 and 3952 instead of under this section.
The State v. Ruthven, 58 Iowa, 121.

Sec. 3947. [Jurors acting corruptly.]—If any person drawn, summoned or sworn as a juror, make any promise or agreement to give a verdict for or against any person in any civil or criminal case, or corruptly receive any paper, evidence or information from any one in relation to any matter or cause for the trial of which he is sworn, without the authority of the court or officer before whom such cause or matter is then pending, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three months.

Sec. 3948. (As amended by ch. 123, 20 g. a.) [Sheriff and other officers receiving bribes.]—If any sheriff, constable, [marshal, deputy marshal, policeman, or any police officer of any city or town.] or coroner receive from a defendant, or any other person, any money or other valuable thing as a consideration or inducement for omitting or delaying to arrest any defendant, or to carry him before a magistrate or to prison; or for postponing, delaying or neglecting the sale of property on execution; or for omitting or delaying to perform any other duty pertaining to his office, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3949. [Refusing to execute process in criminal cases.]—If any officer authorized to serve process willfully refuse to execute any lawful process to him directed, requiring him to apprehend or confine any person charged with, or convicted of, any public offense; or willfully delay or omit to execute such process, whereby such person escape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3950. [Extortion.]—If any person corruptly and willfully demand and receive of another, for performing any service or official duty for which the fee or compensation is established by law, any greater fee or compensation than is allowed or provided for the same; or if any witness falsely and corruptly certify that as such he has traveled more miles, or attended more days than he has actually traveled or attended, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months.

Sec. 3951. [Compounding felonies.]—If any person having knowledge of the commission of any offense punishable with imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, take any money, or valuable consideration, or gratuity, or any promise therefor, upon an agreement or understanding, expressed or implied, to compound or conceal such offense, or not to prosecute the same, or not to give evidence thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than six years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

A contract for the compromise or compounding of a felony is illegal, and the parties thereto being in pari delicto, the law will not afford affirmative relief to either, but will leave them as it found them. Allison v. Hess, 28 Iowa, 388, and cases cited on page 390.

Where a mortgage was executed in consideration that the son of the mortgagor, who was under arrest, charged with the crime of embezzlement, should not be prosecuted, it was held, that the mortgage was based upon an illegal consideration, and, therefore, void. Peed v. McKee et al., 42 Id., 689.

Sec. 3952. [Same.]—If any person having knowledge of the commission of any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a limited term of years is guilty of the offense described in the preceding section, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, and by fine not exceeding four hundred dollars.

Sec. 3953. [Suffering prisoner to escape.]—If any jailor or other officer voluntarily suffer any prisoner in his custody, upon a charge or conviction of a felony punishable by imprisonment for life to escape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than ten years, nor less than one year.

Sec. 3954. [Same.]—If any jailor or other officer voluntarily suffer any prisoner in his custody upon charge or conviction of any other felony to escape, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than eight years, or by fine not more than one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3955. [Same.]—If any jailor or other officer suffer any prisoner in his custody upon a charge or conviction of any public offense to escape, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years.

Sec. 3956. [Assisting prisoner to escape.]—If any person by any means whatever aid or assist any prisoner lawfully detained in the penitentiary, or in any jail or place of confinement for any felony in an attempt to escape, whether such escape be effected or not, or forcibly rescue any person held in legal custody upon any criminal charge, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

Sec. 3957. [Same.]—Every person who by any means whatever aids or assists any prisoner lawfully committed to any jail or place of confinement charged with or convicted of any criminal offense other than a felony in an attempt to escape, whether such escape be effected or not; or who conveys into such jail or place of confinement any disguise, instrument, arms, or other things proper or useful to facilitate the escape of any prisoner so committed, whether such escape be effected or attempted or not, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3958. [Same from officer.]—Every person who aids or assists any prisoner in escaping, or attempting to escape, from the custody of any sheriff, deputy sheriff, marshal, constable, or other officer or person who has the lawful charge of such prisoner upon any criminal charge, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years.

To assist a prisoner to escape from the custody of an officer when held under warrant issued by a magistrate for having threatened to commit a public offense, is as much a violation of the statute (§ 3958) as if the prisoner stood charged with its actual commission. The State v. Bates, 23 Iowa, 96.

In a prosecution for assisting a prisoner to escape, when held upon a warrant charging him with threatening to commit a public offense, the defendant cannot avoid a conviction by proving that he was not, in fact, guilty of the charge: all evidence for that purpose is incompetent. Id.

It is equally a crime to assist a prisoner to escape from an officer de facto only, as though he were an officer de jure. Id.

On the trial of an indictment for assisting a prisoner to escape, it is no defense to show that the prisoner was, in fact, not guilty of the crime with which he was charged, and all evidence for that purpose is incompetent. Id.

It is equally an offense to assist a prisoner to escape from an officer de facto as if he were an officer de jure. Id.

Sec. 3959. [Prisoner escaping from county jail.]—If any person confined in a county jail upon any conviction for a criminal offense, break such jail and escape therefrom, he shall be imprisoned in such prison not exceeding one year, to commence from and after the expiration of the former sentence, and fined not exceeding three hundred dollars.

Sec. 3960. [Resisting execution of process.]—If any person knowingly and willfully resist or oppose any officer of this state, or any person authorized by law, in serving or attempting to execute any legal writ, rule, order or any process whatsoever, or shall knowingly and willfully resist any such officer in the discharge of his duties without such writ, rule, order, or process, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

A road supervisor is not such an officer as is referred to in this statute providing a punishment for resisting an officer in the service of process or in the discharge of his duties. The statute contemplates only such officers as are authorized to execute legal process. The State v. Putnam, 35 Iowa, 561.

That a writ of attachment was issued upon an insufficient affidavit, does not constitute a valid defense to an indictment for resisting an officer in the execution of it, when it is not shown that the justice who issued the writ had no jurisdiction of the main action to which it was auxiliary. The State v. Foster, 10 Id., 435.

In an indictment charging the defendant with knowingly and willfully resisting an officer, in attempting to execute legal process, it is not necessary to aver that the officer, at the time, informed the defendant that he acted under the authority of a warrant; nor need the indictment set forth at length, the acts of the officer, or show that in making the arrest, he complied in all respects, with the requisites of the statute. The State v. Freeman, 8 Id., 428.

An indictment for resisting an officer in the execution of process charges a misdemeanor. In such case the defendant may appear by counsel and demand a trial, and it is error for the court to refuse a trial and order a forfeiture of the bond. The State v. Connehan, 57 Id., 851.

One who resists a receiver in the execution of an order of the court is indictable under section 3960 of the code as held in State v. Rivers, 64 Id., 729 and re-affirmed in 66 Id., 653.

Because one charged with the execution of a legal order has no authority for aid in so doing, it does not follow that one who resists him is not guilty of a crime under this section of the code. Id.

A receiver who is required by order of a court of competent jurisdiction to take possession of property, who has in his possession, as evidence of his authority, a properly certified copy of the order, is a person authorized by law to execute a legal order, within the meaning of this section, so that any person knowingly and willfully resisting or opposing him in the execution of such order is guilty of the crime defined in this section. The State v. Rivers et al., 64 Id., 729.

A person who resists an officer in making an arrest cannot justify his resistance on the ground that the party arrested is not guilty of the charge upon which he is arrested. Montgomery v. Sutton, 67 Id., 497.

An indictment for resisting an officer in the execution of process charges a misdemeanor. In such case the defendant may appear by counsel and demand a trial, and it is error for the court to refuse a trial and order a forfeiture of the bond. The State v. Connehan, 57 Id., 351.

SEC. 3961. [Refusing to assist officer.]—If any person, being lawfully required by any sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, constable, or other officer, willfully neglect or refuse to assist him in the execution of his office in any criminal case, or in any case of escape or rescue, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by fine not more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 3962. [Falsely assuming to be judge, etc.]—If any person falsely assume to be a judge, justice of the peace, magistrate, sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, or constable, and take upon himself to act as such or to require any one to aid or assist him in any matter pertaining to the duty of such officer, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars.

An indictment for oppression in office in substantially the following form: "For that the defendant did, by color of his office as constable of, etc., willfully and corruptly oppress one Josephine Snider, by extorting large sums of money from her under pretense of having an order of court to obtain the said money, when in truth and in fact the said defendant had no order of court nor authority, but did willfully and corruptly obtain said money by false and fraudulent representations of his authority and character as an officer, contrary to the statutes," etc., was held to sufficiently charge the offense. The State v. Bevans, 87 Iowa, 178.

A constable may, under this section be guilty of oppression in office. Id.

SEC. 3963. [Exercising office without authority, and officers exceeding authority.]—If any person take upon himself to exercise or officiate in any office or place of authority in this state, without being legally authorized; or if any person by color of his office, willfully and corruptly oppress any person under pretense of acting in his official capacity, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year; or by both fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 3964. [Stirring up quarrels.]—If any judge, justice of the peace, clerk of any court, sheriff, coroner, constable, attorney or counselor at law, encourage, excite, or stir up any suit, quarrel, or controversy between two or more persons, with intent to injure such person or persons, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year; or by both fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 3965. [Neglect of duty by public officers.]—When any duty is or shall be enjoined by law upon any public officer, or upon any person holding any public trust or employment, every willful neglect to perform such duty, where no special provision has been made for the punishment of such delinquency, is a misdemeanor.

SEC. 3966. [Misdemeanors.]—When the performance of any act is prohibited by any statute, and no penalty for the violation of such statute is imposed, the doing of such act is a misdemeanor.

An indictment against the directors of a school district for misconduct in the issuance of school orders, in violation of section 21 of the school laws of Iowa of 1872, should state that the claims to which the orders were alleged to be drawn had not been audited and allowed. The State v. Styles, 40 Iowa, 145.

Where the county auditor gave a false certificate of the receipt by the treasurer of a certain sum in payment of interest upon a loan of the school fund, it was held that such act constituted a crime under section of the code, although the auditor is authorized to issue in case of such payment a receipt and not a certificate. The State v. Morse, 52 Id., 309.

SEC. 3967. [Punishment of, when none other prescribed.]—Every person who is convicted of a misdemeanor, the punishment of which is not otherwise prescribed by any statute of this state, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 3968. [Public officers making false entries and returns.]—If any public officer fraudulently make or give false entries, or false returns, or false certificates or receipts in cases where entries, returns, certificates, or receipts are authorized by law, he shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Where the county auditor gave a false certificate of the receipt by the treasurer of a certain sum in payment of interest upon a loan of the school fund, it was held that such act constituted a crime under this section of the code, although the auditor is authorized to issue in case of such payment a receipt and not a certificate. The State v. Morse, 52 Iowa, 509.

Sec. 3969. [Oppression by officers.]—If any judge or other officer by color of his office, willfully and maliciously oppress any person under pretense of acting in his official capacity, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not less than five nor more than thirty days, and be liable to the injured party for any damage sustained by him in consequence thereof.

Sec. 3970. [Officers failing to pay over fees.]—If any justice of the peace, clerk of the district or other court, county recorder or any other officer who by law is authorized to receive and required to pay over fees of office, or who is or may be authorized to impose or collect fines, shall fail, neglect, or refuse to pay over as prescribed or may hereafter be prescribed by law, all such fees and fines, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, besides being liable in a civil action for the amount of such fines and fees as he may have thus illegally withheld or appropriated.

Sec. 3971. [Making false entries in relation to fees.]—If any justice of the peace, clerk of the district or other court which is now or may hereafter be established, county recorder, or other officer, who by law is authorized or required to keep a court docket, or who is or may be required to keep an account of fees or fines, and to pay over, or in any way account for the same, shall in any manner falsify such docket or account, or shall fail, neglect, or refuse to make an entry upon such docket, or account for such fees and fines, as are required to be paid over according to law, such justice of the peace, clerk of the district court, or clerk of any other court, county recorder and other officer, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject and liable to be prosecuted therefor in any court having jurisdiction of the offense.

Sec. 3972. [Officers appropriating fees to their own use.]—Any justice of the peace, clerk of the district or of any other court which is or may be established, county recorder, or other officer who may be found guilty of the offense of appropriating to his own use fees of office or fines collected for violation of law, or of neglecting to pay over the same as prescribed by law, shall be removed from office by the court before or by whom the offense may be tried and judgment or conviction had, and each and every person so found guilty shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars nor less than ten dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3973. [Officers to report fees to supervisors.]—All officers required by the provisions of the code to collect and pay over fines and fees, shall, on the first Monday in January in each year, make report thereof under oath to the board of supervisors of the proper county, showing the amount of fines assessed and the amount of fines and fees collected, together with the vouchers for the payment of all sums by him collected to the proper officer required to keep the same.

Sec. 3974. [Clerks and justices to report fines, fees, etc.: penalty for failure.]—The clerks of the several courts of this state, except of the supreme court, and all mayors of incorporated towns and cities, and justices of the peace, shall on the first Monday of January of each year, make a report in writing to the board of supervisors of their respective counties, of all forfeited recognizances in their several offices; of all fines, penalties and forfeitures imposed in their respective courts, and which by law go into the county treasury for the benefit of the school fund; in what cause or proceedings, when, for what purpose, against whom, and for what amount rendered; whether said fines, penalties, forfeitures and recognizances have been paid, remitted, canceled or otherwise satisfied; if so, when, how, and in what manner; if not paid, remitted, canceled or otherwise satisfied, what steps have been taken to enforce the collection thereof, and the prospect of such collection. Such report must be verified under oath, to the effect that the same is full, true and complete of the matters therein contained, and of all things required by this section to be reported; and any officer failing so to do shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, may be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 3975. [Notary public exercising improperly duties of office.]—If any notary public exercise the duties of his office after the expiration of his commission, or when otherwise disqualified, or appends his official signature to documents when the parties have not appeared before him, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars, and shall also be removed from office by the governor.

SEC. 3976. [Failure to take oath before entering on duties of office.]—If any officer or person willfully fails to take the oath required by law before entering on the discharge of the duties of any office, trust or station, or makes any contract which contemplates an expenditure in excess of the law under which he was elected or appointed, or fails to report to the proper officer showing the expenditure of all public moneys with proper vouchers therefor by the time required by law, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by both at the discretion of the court.

An Act to punish bribe taking by state, county, township, city, school or other municipal officers, and to punish bribery or the attempt to bribe, or conspiracy to bribe said officers.

SECTION 1. [Accepting bribes punished.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That if any state, county, township, city, school or other municipal officer, not mentioned in section 3940 or 3948 of the code of Iowa of 1873, at any time after his election or appointment to such office, shall, directly or indirectly, accept any valuable consideration, gratuity, service or benefit whatever, or a promise thereof, other than the compensation allowed said officer by law, conditioned upon said officer doing or performing any official act, casting an official vote, making or procuring the appointment of any person to a place of trust or profit, or using his official influence or authority, to give or procure for any person public employment, or conditioned upon said officer refraining from doing or performing any of the foregoing acts or things enumerated. Such officer shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for any term of time, not exceeding two years, or in the county jail not exceeding one year, or fined in any sum not less than twenty or more than three hundred dollars.

SEC. 2. [Conspiracy to bribe.]—That if any person directly or indirectly give, offer or promise, or conspire with others to give, offer, or promise to any officer, contemplated in the foregoing section, after said officer's election or appointment to office any valuable consideration, gratuity, service or benefit whatever with a view or for the purpose of corruptly influencing said officer's official acts or votes, such persons shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary for any term of time not exceeding two years, or in the county jail not exceeding one year, or be fined in any sum not exceeding three hundred dollars, or less than twenty dollars.

Approved April 13, 1888.

CHAPTER 7.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF AND TRESPASS ON PROPERTY.

SECTION 3977. [Injuries to beasts.]—If any person maliciously kill, maim, or disfigure any horse, cattle, or other domestic beast of another; or maliciously administer poison to any such animals; or expose any poisonous substance with intent that the same should be taken by them, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars.

See section 2 of chapter 106, laws of 1878, ante, p. 87.

In an indictment for maliciously killing a hog, it is not necessary to allege that the animal was a domestic beast. The State v. Enslow, 10 Iowa, 116.

In an indictment for malicious injury, it is sufficient to aver ownership, without setting out the character of the title or interest. The State v. Brant, 14 Id., 180.

To sustain an indictment under this section for maliciously killing a domestic animal, it is not necessary that the jury should find the existence of malice against the owner of the animal personally, but it is sufficient if the act is done maliciously and with intent to injure the owner, though he may be unknown to the defendant, and malice may be inferred from the act of the defendant. The State v. Linde et al., 54 Id., 139. See, also, State v. Harris, 11 Id., 415; McCord v. High, 24 Id., 336.

In a prosecution under this section for maiming a horse maliciously, the following instruction held correct: "If you find that the injury, if any, was inflicted by the defendant willfully and wantonly, and without any reasonable excuse shown therefor, then the law will imply malice toward the owner." The State v. Williamson, 68 Id., 351.

SEC. 3978. [To dams, locks, mills, machinery, etc.].—If any person maliciously injure or destroy any dam, lock, canal, trench, or reservoir, or any of the appurtenances thereof, or any of the gear or machinery of any mill or manufactory; or maliciously draw off the water from any mill pond, reservoir, canal, or trench; or destroy, injure, or render useless any engine or the apparatus thereto belonging, prepared or kept for the extinguishing of fires, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year and by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars.

The obstruction of a legally established highway, which cannot be used by the public for the purposes of a highway in consequence of natural obstacles, is not a punishable offense under the statute. The State v. Shinkle, 40 Iowa, 191.

When a part of the property laid out highway was not used on account of natural obstructions, and another line was established by prescription, crossing the other at one or more places, it was held that proof of the natural obstructions would not justify the owner of the adjacent land in fencing the traveled road, whether established by prescription or by county authority. The State v. McGee, Id., 385.

In a prosecution for the obstruction of a highway, the state is not confined to documentary evidence of its establishment the same as under an indictment for obstructing a county road, but may prove the existence of the highway by evidence of user and consent for the requisite length of time. The State v. Robinson, 28 Id., 514. An indictment may be maintained for obstructing a highway established by user, which is less in width than a state or county road established according to the statute. Id.

It is not necessary, under this section, to allege in the indictment, or prove on the trial, that the obstruction willfully or maliciously placed on the track of a railway, actually did obstruct or hinder its trains. The State v. Clemens, 38 Id., 527.

SEC. 3980. [Setting loose rafts, boats, and injuries to.]—If any person maliciously cut away, let loose, injure or destroy any boom or raft of wood, logs or other lumber, or any boat or vessel fastened to any place, of which he is not the owner or legal possessor, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, and shall also forfeit to the use of the person so injured double the amount of damages by him thereby sustained, to be recovered in an action at law.

SEC. 3981. [Injuring trees and breaking down fences, gates, etc.]—If any person maliciously cut down, injure or destroy any fruit or ornamental trees or other tree, vine or shrub of another, standing or growing for ornament or use; or maliciously break down, mar, deface, or injure any fence, hedge or ditch enclosing lands belonging to another; or throw down or open any gate or bars not his own or under his charge and leave them open, whereby an injury is done to another; or maliciously injure, destroy or sever from the land of another and produce thereof, or anything attached thereto, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment and fine at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3982. [Injuring monuments, mile stones, sign boards, etc.]—If any person maliciously take down, injure or remove any monument erected on any tree marked as a boundary of any tract of land, city, or town lot; or destroy, deface or alter the marks of any such monument or tree made for the purpose of designating such boundary or injuring or deface any mile stone, post, or guide board erected on any public way; or remove, deface or injure any sign board; or break or remove any lamp or lamp post, or extinguish any lamp on any bridge, way, street or passage, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3983. [Trespass by digging, cutting, carrying away, etc.]—If any person willfully commit any trespass by cutting down or destroying any timber or wood standing or growing on the land of another; or by carrying away timber or wood being on such land; or by digging or carrying away any earth, stone, marble, slate, coal, copper, lead, iron ore or any other ore or metal; or by taking and carrying from such land any grass, hay, corn, grain, fruit or other vegetables; or carrying away from any wharf, street or landing place, any goods whatever in which he has no interest, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court. If in any case the value of the property so cut down, carried away, or otherwise taken, shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, then the person so offending shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Where the property cut down, carried away or destroyed is of value not exceeding fifty dollars, the offense is triable and punishable before a justice of the peace. The State v. Van Horton, 26 Iowa, 402. See also, Londegan v. Hammer, 30 Id., 508, 509.

An indictment founded upon this section for trespass in cutting down and carrying away the timber, standing and growing upon the land of another, should aver the name of the owner of the land upon which the alleged trespass was committed. The State v. McConkey, 20 Id., 574.

One who cuts and stacks hay on uninclosed prairie lands owned by another, without authority, acquires no property in such hay, and, having neither ownership nor possession, cannot maintain an action for its destruction. Murphy v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 58 Id., 473.

In an indictment for willful trespass by cutting down and destroying timber, it is sufficient to allege that the injury was done by cutting down and destroying, without being more specific. The State v. Watrous, 15 Id., 489.

One statement of the venue, in the indictment is sufficient, and when it is averred that the trespass was committed upon the land of a person, named, and it is described by section, township and range, omitting its situation with reference to the nearest meridian line, it is sufficient if the county wherein it is situated is named. Id.

SEC. 3984. [On garden, orchards, etc.].—If any person willfully commit any trespass by entering upon the garden, orchard or improved land of another, with intent to take, carry away, destroy or injure the trees, shrubs, grain, grass, hay, fruit or vegetables there being, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days.

SEC. 3985. [Injuries to buildings, papers, etc.].—If any person maliciously injure, deface or destroy any building or fixture attached thereto, or willfully or maliciously destroy, injure or secrete any goods, chattels or valuable papers of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and is liable to the party injured in a sum equal to three times the value of the property so destroyed or injured in a civil action.

In a civil action for damages, under this section, a verdict for three times the value of the property destroyed, or three times the amount of the injury is authorized. Garland v. Wholebau, 20 Iowa, 271, 273.

SEC. 3986. [Defacing public buildings.].—If any person willfully write, make marks, or draw characters on the walls or any other part of any church, college, academy, school-house, court-house, or other public building; or willfully injure or deface the same, or any wall or fence enclosing the same, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 3987. [Defacing and destroying proclamations, notices, etc.].—If any person intentionally deface, obliterate, tear down, or destroy in whole or in part, any transcript, or extract from or of any law of the United States, or of this state, or any proclamation, advertisement, or notification set up at any place within this state by authority of law or by order of any court, during the time for which the same is to remain up, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 3988. [Taking property from boat or vessel.].—If any owner, master, clerk, or any other person having charge of or belonging to any boat, vessel, or raft, take any cord wood or any other species of property from the owner or his agent, without the knowledge of such owner or agent, or without paying the customary price for the same, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.

SEC. 3989. [Injuries to monuments of state boundary.].—If any person willfully dig up, pull down, break, or destroy, or in any other manner injure or remove any of the cast iron pillars or other evidences planted and fixed, or which may hereafter be planted or fixed, in and along any part of the boundaries of this state, he may be indicted therefor, and upon conviction before any court having competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by fine not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not less than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3990. [Placing obstructions on railways.].—If any person or persons shall willfully and maliciously place any obstruction on the track of any railroad in this state, or remove any rail therefrom, or in any other way injure such railroad, or do any other thing thereto, whereby the life of any person is or may be endangered, he or they shall be punished by confinement in the state peniteniary for life, or for any term not less than two years.

That the defendant was the owner of the land over which a railroad passed, and had never granted the right of way to the same, is no defense to an indictment under this section for placing obstructions on the track of the road at a point on his own land. The State v. Hessenkamp, 17
Iowa, 25.

Nor will a breach of the contract by which a railroad company has secured the right of way over certain lands justify the owner in placing obstructions on the railroad track where it crosses his land. Id.

SEC. 3991. [Breaking levees.]—If any person maliciously injure, break, or cause to be broken, any levee erected to prevent the overflow of land within this state, such person so offending shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3992. [Obstructing public ditches or drains.]—If any person place any obstruction in any of the public ditches or drains made for the purpose of draining any of the swamps lands in this state, he shall, upon conviction, be compelled to remove said obstructions and be fined not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3992½. [Penalty for obstructing or defacing roads.]—If any person without authority or permission from the proper road supervisor, shall in any manner obstruct; deface, or injure any public road or highway, by breaking up, plowing, or digging within the boundary lines thereof, he shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, at the discretion of the court.

A highway cannot be established by user alone, although the owner of the land had knowledge of such use, unless the owner had express notice that a highway was claimed, independent of the

In a prosecution for defacing a highway under this section evidence offered by the defendant to prove that the change which he made in the highway was an improvement and not an injury to it was properly excluded. The State v. Hunter, 68 Id., 447.

(Chapter 148, Laws of 1876.)

TO PUNISH INTERFERENCE WITH THE PROPERTY OF RAILROAD COMPANIES.

An Act to diminish liability to railroad accidents and to punish interference with,
and injury to, the property of railroad companies.

SECTION 1. [Discharging fire-arms, etc., at railroad trains.]—(Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa.) If any person shall throw any stone, or other substance of any nature whatever, or shall present or discharge any gun, pistol, or other fire-arm at any railroad train, cars or locomotive engine, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly.

SEC. 2. [Jumping off cars while in motion.]—If any person not employed thereon, or not an officer of the law in discharge of his duty, without the consent of the person having the same in charge, shall get upon, or off, any locomotive engine, or car of any railroad company, when said engine or car is in motion, or elsewhere, than at the established depots of such company, or who shall get upon cling to, or otherwise attach himself to any such engine or car, for the purpose of riding upon the same, intending to jump therefrom, when such engine or car is in motion, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

Approved, March 17, 1876.
An Act to further diminish liability to railroad accidents, and to punish interference with, and injury to, railroad property.

Section 1. [Maliciously uncoupling cars punished as felony.]—(Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa.) If any person shall willfully and maliciously uncouple or detach the locomotive or tender or any of the cars of any railroad train, or shall in any manner aid, abet, or procure the doing of the same, such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Section 2. [Running off locomotive, same.]—If any person shall unlawfully seize upon any locomotive, with or without any express, mail, baggage or other car attached thereto, and run the same upon any railroad, or shall aid, abet, or procure the doing of the same, such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary not exceeding ten years, or by fine not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both at the discretion of the court.

Section 3. [Running off hand-car misdemeanor: when felony, when manslaughter.]—If any person shall without permission from the proper authority, wrongfully take or run any hand-car upon any railroad in this state, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days, at the discretion of the court; Provided, that if by such unlawful use of any hand-car, any locomotive or car is thrown from the track, or a collision produced or any person injured thereby, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the penitentiary for a term of not more than five years; and provided further, that, if by reason of such unlawful use of any hand-car any person is killed, such person so offending shall be deemed guilty of manslaughter.

Section 4. [Same penalty for meddling with air-brake or bell-rope.]—If any person not an employee upon the railroad shall wrongfully interfere with any automatic air-brake or bell-rope upon any railroad car, or use the same for the purpose of stopping or in any way controlling the movement of the train [he] shall be subject to the penalty provided in section three of this act for the unlawful running of a hand-car on any railroad; and any conductor or brakeman on a railroad train shall have power to arrest such person so offending and deliver him to some peace officer on the line of the railroad.

Approved, March 16, 1882.
CHAPTER 8.

OFFENSES AGAINST THE RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.

SECTION 3993. [Bribery of electors.]-If any person offer or give a bribe to any elector for the purpose of influencing his vote at an election authorized by law; and if any elector entitled to vote at such election receives such bribe, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year; or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

The giving of facilities for the public convenience of the whole county, as an inducement to vote for the removal of the county seat, or the offering of a public advantage to an entire community, as an inducement to the members of such community to vote for such removal, does not constitute bribery within the meaning of the statute. Dishon v. Smith, 10 Iowa, 212.

SEC. 3994. [Voting more than once.]-If any elector unlawfully vote more than once at any election which may be held by virtue of any law of this state he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3995. [When not qualified.]-If any person knowing himself not to be qualified, vote at any election authorized by law, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.

A charge in an indictment for illegal voting, that the defendant voted at an election then and there held as authorized by law, includes the further idea that it was held by the proper officers. The State v. Douglas, 7 Iowa, 413.

In an indictment under this section, the essence of the offense is that the defendant voted, knowing that he was disqualified, and under such charge the state may prove that he was in fact disqualified, without proving in what the disqualification consisted. Id.

SEC. 3996. [When not a resident of the state.]-If any person go or come into any county of this state, and vote in such county, not being a resident thereof, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3997. [When not a resident of the county.]-If any person go or come into any county of this state, and vote in such county, not being a resident thereof, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3998. [Counseling one to vote when not qualified.]-If any person procure, aid, assist, counsel, or advise another to give his vote, knowing that such person is disqualified, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars nor less than fifty dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.
SEC. 3999. [Inducing one to vote by false representation.]—If any person furnish an elector with a ticket or ballot, informing him that it contains a name or names different from those which are written or printed therein, with an intent to induce him to vote contrary to his inclination, or fraudulently or deceitfully change a ballot of any elector, by which such elector is deprived of voting for such candidate or person, as he intended, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding two years, and by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4000. [Preventing from voting by force or threats.]—If any person unlawfully and by force, or threats of force, prevent, or endeavor to prevent, an elector from giving his vote at any public election in this state, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, and a fine not more that two hundred dollars.

SEC. 4001. [Bribing clerks, judges, etc.]—If any person give or offer a bribe to any judge, clerk, or canvasser of any election authorized by law, or any executive officer attending the same, as a consideration for some act done, or omitted to be done, contrary to his official duty in relation to such election, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding seven hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4002. [Procuring vote by influence or threats.]—If any person procure, or endeavor to procure, the vote of any elector, or the influence of any person over other electors at any election, for himself, or for or against any candidate by means of violence, threats of violence, or threats of withdrawing custom, or dealing in business or trade, or enforcing the payment of debts, or bringing a suit or criminal prosecution, or any other threat of injury to be inflicted by him, or by his means, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

SEC. 4003. [Judges or clerks making false entries, etc.]—If any judge or clerk of any election authorized by law, knowingly make or consent to any false entry on the list of voters, or poll-books; or put into the ballot-box, or permit to be so put in, any ballot not given by a voter; or take out of such box, or permit to be so taken out, any ballot deposited therein, except in the manner prescribed by law; or by any other act or omission designedly destroy or change the ballots given by the electors, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4004. [Refusing to permit electors to vote and the contrary.]—When any one who offers to vote at any election is objected to by an elector as a person not possessing the requisite qualifications, if any judge of such election unlawfully permit him to vote without producing proof of such qualification in the manner directed by law, or if any such judge willfully refuse the vote of any person who complies with the requisites prescribed by law to prove his qualifications, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars nor less than twenty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.

SEC. 4005. [Officers doing any act which renders election void.]—If any judge, clerk, or executive officer designedly omit to do any official act required by law; or designedly do any illegal act in relation to any public election, by which act or omission the votes taken at any such election in any city, town, precinct, township or district, be lost, or the electors thereof be deprived of their suffrage at such election; or designedly do any act which renders such election void, he shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.
SEC. 4006. [Not returning poll books.]-—If any judge, clerk, or messenger, after having been deputed by the judges of election to carry the poll-books of such election to the place where by law they are to be canvassed, willfully or negligently fail to deliver such poll-books within the time prescribed by law, safe, with the seal unbroken, he shall, for every such offense, be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, nor less than fifty dollars.

SEC. 4007. [Improper registry as a voter.]-—Any person who shall cause his name to be registered, knowing that he is not or will not become a qualified voter, in the township where his name is registered previous to the next election, or who shall wrongfully personate any registered voter, and any person causing, aiding, or abetting any person in either of said acts, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and punished for each offense by imprisonment in the state prison not less than one year.

CHAPTER 9.

OFFENSES AGAINST CHASTITY, MORALITY, AND DECENCY.

SECTION 4008. [Adultery.]-—Every person who commits the crime of adultery, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than three years, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year; and when the crime is committed between parties only one of whom is married, both are guilty of adultery and shall be punished accordingly. No prosecution for adultery can be commenced but on the complaint of the husband or wife.

Under this section of the statute, a prosecution for adultery commenced by the husband or wife may be continued without further co-operation on their part. The State v. Baldy, 17 Iowa, 39; The State v. Roth, Id., 396.

The commencement of a prosecution for adultery by husband or wife of one against the other, does not authorize a prosecution against both. The State v. Roth, 17 Id., 396.

An averment in an indictment for adultery that the prosecution is commenced by the husband or wife is not conclusive upon the defendant, but may be rebutted. Id.

Under this section, an unmarried person may be alone indicted and convicted of adultery, upon the complaint of the husband or wife (as the case may be) of the person with whom the crime was committed. The State v. Wilson, 22 Id., 364.

Where the wife filed an information before a justice of the peace, charging her husband with the crime of adultery, it was held that the prosecution was thereby commenced by the wife within the meaning of the statute, and that her non-appearance before the grand jury by which an indictment was found against him does not affect the validity of the indictment. The State v. Dingee, 17 Id., 232.

Under this section if the husband or wife of the defendant begins a prosecution for adultery by preliminary information before a magistrate, and the defendant is thereupon bound over and
An averment in an indictment for adultery, that the action was commenced by the wife of the defendant, is not presumptive of its truth, but the fact that it was so commenced must be established by evidence. The State v. Henke, 58 Id., 457.

This section, which provides that "no prosecution for adultery can be commenced but no complaint of the husband or wife," mean the husband or wife sought to be prosecuted, and not the husband or wife of the other party to the crime, against whom no complaint is made; and where upon habeas corpus, sued out by one held under such charge, the answer of the officer showed that the prosecution was not commenced or sanctioned by the wife of the accused, a demurrer thereto should have been sustained, and the plaintiff discharged. Bush v. Workman, Sheriff, 64 Id., 205.

SEC. 4009. [Bigamy.]—If any person who has a former husband or wife living marry another person, or continue to cohabit with such second husband or wife in this state he or she, except in the cases mentioned in the following sections, is guilty of bigamy and shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Under this section, one who contracts a bigamous marriage in another state, and cohabits with the person so married in this state, is, by reason of such cohabitation, guilty of bigamy in this state, no matter how brief may be the sojourn of the parties in the state where they were married. The State v. Nadal, 69 Iowa, 478.

SEC. 4010. [Exceptions.]—The provisions of the preceding section do not extend to any person whose husband or wife has continually remained beyond seas, or who has voluntarily withdrawn from the other and remained absent for the space of three years together, the party marrying again not knowing the other to be living within that time; nor to any person who has good reason to believe such husband or wife to be dead; nor to any person who has been legally divorced from the bonds of matrimony.

The provisions of this section for the establishment of innocence in prosecution for bigamy, cannot be made the means of establishing guilt on an indictment for adultery. A presumption of death does not arise until the party has been absent seven years without any intelligence concerning him. The State v. Henke, 58 Iowa, 457.

SEC. 4011. Knowing marry husband or wife.]—Every unmarried person who knowingly marries the husband or wife of another, when such husband or wife is guilty of bigamy thereby, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding three years, or by fine not more than three hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4012. [Lewdness.]—If any man or woman not being married to each other lewdly and viciously associate and cohabit together, or if any man or woman, married or unmarried, is guilty of open and gross lewdness and designedly make any open and indecent or obscene exposure of his or her person, or of the person of another, every such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars.

An indictment under this section for lewdness must charge that the parties were not married to each other. The State v. Clinch, 8 Iowa, 401.

Evidence tending to show two acts of incontinence is not sufficient to sustain an indictment under this section for lewd and lascivious conduct. The State v. Marvin, 12 Id., 499.

SEC. 4013. (As substituted by ch. 142, 20th y. a.) [Penalty for keeping house of ill-fame.]—(If any person keep a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness, such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than six months nor more than five years.)

An indictment under this section for keeping a house resorted to for the purpose of prostitution, is sufficient as to venue when it charges the offense as committed within the county. The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575.

The offense defined in this section has no technical name given to it by the statute, and to name it in an indictment as a "nuisance" is mere surplusage and should be disregarded. Id.

So, if a name be given in an indictment, to an offense which has no name by statute, which is repugnant to the facts alleged, it will be deemed surplusage. Id.
On the trial of an indictment for keeping a house of ill-fame, found under this section, proof of a prior conviction of the defendant on an indictment based on section 4091 of the code, but which did not charge the keeping of a house of ill-fame, was held inadmissible to establish a former conviction for a like offense, for the purpose of increasing the penalty under the statute. The State v. Holmes, 56 Id., 588.

The power to suppress and restrain disorderly houses, etc., conferred upon cities by section 456 of the code, does not authorize the passage of an ordinance declaring the keeping of such house a misdemeanor and imposing a punishment by fine and imprisonment. The City of Charleston v. Barber, 54 Id., 360. See also, The City of Mount Pleasant v. Breeze, 11 Id., 396.

An indictment alleging that the defendant kept a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, "and at which prostitution and lewdness were carried on and permitted, to the disturbance of others," was held to sufficiently charge an offense under section 4091 of the code, and did not come under section 4013. The State v. Odell, 42 Id., 75.

To same effect is The State v. Alderman, 40 Id., 375.

SEC. 4014. Lease of to persons convicted void.—When the lessee of a dwelling-house is convicted of keeping the same as a house of ill-fame, the lease or contract for letting such house is, at the option of the lessor, void, and such lessor may thereafter have the like remedy to recover possession as against a tenant holding over after the expiration of his term.

SEC. 4015. Leasing house for such purpose.—If any person let any house, knowing that the lessee intends to use it as a place or resort for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness, or knowingly permit such lessee to use the same for such purpose, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months.

The power to suppress and restrain disorderly houses, etc., conferred upon cities by section 456 of the code, does not authorize the passage of an ordinance declaring the keeping of such house a misdemeanor and imposing a punishment by fine and imprisonment. The City of Charleston v. Barber, 54 Iowa, 360. See also, City of Mt. Pleasant v. Breeze, 11 Id., 396.

In an indictment alleging that the defendant kept a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, "and at which prostitution and lewdness were carried on and permitted, to the disturbance of others," it was held to sufficiently charge an offense under section 4091 of the code and did not come under section 4013. The State v. Odell, 42 Id., 96.

To make a lessor of premises liable under this section of the statute for knowingly permitting the lessee to use the same for the purposes of prostitution and lewdness, there must be shown on the part of such lessor a consent to such use, either expressly given or given by his silent acquiescence. His mere failure to act or prohibit would not amount to a permission, unless the occupants were so far under the control of the lessor as that he could prohibit such use of the premises by his mere dissent or order. Abrahams v. The State, 4 Id., 541.

SEC. 4016. (As amended by ch. 142, 20th g. a.) Enticing females to house of ill-fame.—If any person entice back into a life of shame any person who has heretofore been guilty of the crime of prostitution, or who shall inveigle or entice any female before reported virtuous to a house of ill-fame, or knowingly conceal, or assist or abet in concealing such female, so deluded or enticed for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than ten years.

SEC. 4017. (As amended by ch. 142, 20th g. a.) Violations punished.—If any person, without lawful authority, wilfully dig up, disinter, remove or carry away any human body, or the remains thereof, from its place of interment; or aid, assist, encourage, intice or procure the same to be done or attempted; or wilfully receive conceal, or dispose of any such human body, or the remains thereof; or if any person, with the intent to commit any of the aforesaid acts, partially perform the same; or if any person willfully and unnecessarily, and in an improper manner, indecently expose, throw away, or abandon any human body, or the remains thereof, in any public place, or in any river, stream, pond, or other place, every such offender shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than two years, or by fine not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 4018. (Id.) What bodies may be delivered to medical schools.—Any coroner or undertaker, or the superintendent or managing officer of any public asylum, hospital, poor house, or penitentiary shall deliver to any medical college or school, or any physician in this state, for the purpose of medical and surgical study, the body or remains of any deceased person, except when such body has been interred, but no such body shall be so delivered without the consent of the relatives or friends of such deceased person, if any such are known, nor when such deceased person expressed a desire during his last sickness that his body should be interred. If the body of any person is so delivered and the same shall be subsequently claimed by any relative or friend of such deceased person, such body shall be given up to such relative or friend. Any person who delivers or receives any body or remains, having knowledge that any of the foregoing provisions have been violated shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished as provided in the foregoing section.

(Chapter 142, Laws of 1884.)

HOUSES OF ILL-FAME.

An Act to repeal sections 4013 and 4016 of the code and to enact substitutes therefor, relating to houses of ill-fame and to prostitution, and to enact an additional provision relating to houses of ill-fame and prostitution and lewdness.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

(Sections 1 and 2 amend sections 4013 and 4016, which are shown above as amended.)

SEC. 3. [Penalty for lewdness.]—If any person for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness resorts to, uses, occupies or inhabits any house of ill-fame or place kept for such purpose or if any person be found at any hotel, boarding house, cigar store or other place leading a life of prostitution and lewdness such person shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years.

SEC. 4. [Evidence on trial.]—The state upon the trial of any person indicted for keeping a house of ill-fame, may, for the purpose of establishing the character of the house kept by defendant, introduce evidence of the general reputation of such house as so kept, and such evidence shall be competent for such purpose.

Approved, April 3, 1884.

Section 4 of chapter 142, laws of 1884, providing that “the state upon the trial of any person indicted for keeping a house of ill-fame, may, for the purpose of establishing the character of the house kept by defendant, introduce evidence of the general reputation of the house so kept, and such evidence shall be competent for such purpose, is not unconstitutional on the ground that it authorizes a conviction upon evidence of reputation merely; for a conviction cannot be had without further establishing the fact that the house is resorted to for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness. The State v. Haberle, 72 Id., 138.

SEC. 4019. [Burial of remains.]—The person receiving such body as contemplated in the preceding section, shall decently bury the remains thereof after such body shall have been used as aforesaid, and in case of a failure to so do such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished by fine not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 4019½ [New section by ch. 182, sec. 2, 18 y. a.], [Must keep a record.]—Any physician receiving the body or remains of a deceased person for the purpose of medical or surgical study; and any professor or person in charge of a medical college or school at which such body or remains are received for such purpose, shall, in a suitable book, make or cause to be made a legible record of the time when, the name and the description of the person from whom, and the place where, such body or remains were received, and whether or not such body or remains when so received was enclosed in any box, cask or other receptacle, and, if so enclosed, shall record a description of such box, cask or receptacle, sufficient to identify the same, together with the shipping marks or directions, if any, on same; and also a description of such body or remains, including the length, weight and sex of same, the apparent age of the person at the time of death, color of hair, or beard if any, and all marks or scars on such body by which same might be identified, and whether or not such body when so received was mutilated so as to prevent identification of same. And such physician, professor or person, shall keep the said record, and on demand exhibit the same, as also any and all such bodies or remains of deceased persons then in his charge, for the inspection of any sheriff or his deputy: Provided, such record shall not be required one year or more after such body was received. Any physician or professor or teacher in a medical college or school who uses or allows or permits others under his or her control or charge to use the body or remains of a deceased person for the purpose of medical or surgical study without the record as aforesaid having been first made; or on demand being made by the sheriff or his deputy as aforesaid, shall refuse and fail to exhibit any such record or body in his charge or under his control to such officer for his inspection, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 4020. [Remains to be used for medical study alone.]—The remains of any person received as aforesaid, shall be used for the purpose of medical and surgical study alone, and in this state only, and whoever shall use such remains for any other purpose, or shall remove the same beyond the limits of this state, or in any manner traffic therein, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction, be imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year in a county jail.

SEC. 4021. [Injuring monuments, etc. ]—If any person willfully destroy or injure any tomb, grave-stone, monument, or other thing placed or designated as a memorial of the dead; or any fence, railing, or other thing placed about the same; or any place enclosed for the burial of the dead; or willfully destroy, injure, or remove any tree, shrub, or plant within such enclosure, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 4022. [Selling obscene books, etc. ]—If any person import, print, publish, sell, or distribute any book, pamphlet, ballad, or any printed paper containing obscene language or obscene prints, pictures, or descriptions manifestly tending to corrupt the morals of youth; or introduce into any family, school, or place of education; or buy, procure, receive, or have in his possession any such book, pamphlet, ballad, printed paper, picture, or description, either for the purpose of loan, sale, exhibition, or circulation; or with intent to introduce the same into any family, school, or place of education, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4023. [Disturbing congregations. ]—If any person willfully disturb or disquiet any assembly of persons met for religious worship, by profane discourse or rude and indecent behavior, or by making a noise either within the place of worship or so near as to disturb the order and solemnity of the assembly, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. If any person or persons unlawfully or willfully disturb or interrupt any school, school meeting, teachers' institute, lyceum, literary society, or any other lawful assembly of persons being in the peace of the state, such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 4024. [Same. ]—If any person within one mile from the place where any religious society is collected together for religious worship in any field or woodland, expose to sale or gift any spirituous or other liquors, or any article of merchandise, or any provisions or other article of traffic, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4025. [Exceptions.]—The preceding section does not apply to tavern or grocery keepers exercising their calling or business in the places mentioned in their licenses, if they have such; nor to any distillers or manufacturers or others in the prosecution of their ordinary calling or business, so as to prevent them from vending or exposing to sale the articles above prohibited at their place of residence; nor to any person who has a written permit from the person having the charge of such religious society to sell any of such prohibited articles, on complying with the regulations of such religious assembly and with the laws of the state.

Sec. 4026. [Keeping gambling houses.]—If any person keep a house, shop, or place resorted to for the purpose of gambling; or permit or suffer any person in any house, shop, or other place under his control or care to play at cards, dice, faro, roulette, equality, or other game, for money or other thing, such offender shall be fined in a sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than three hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or be both fined and imprisoned. In a prosecution under this section, any person who has the charge of or attends to any such house, shop, or place, may be deemed the keeper thereof.

The playing of games of chance "for the drinks round," to be delivered when the game is ended is gambling within the meaning of the statute; and the owner of a house who knowingly permits such games to be played therein, is guilty of keeping a gambling house within the meaning of the law. The State v. Leicht 17 Iowa, 28.

An indictment under this section which charged the defendant, in the first count, with keeping a gambling house, and, in the second count, with permitting other persons, in a place under his control, to play for money or other things, was held not objectionable as charging two offenses. The State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 453.

An indictment under this section which charged that the defendant at a time and place stated "being then and there the keeper of a house resorted to for the purpose of gambling, knowingly and unlawfully did permit, and suffer evil disposed persons whose names are to the grand jurors unknown, then and there to play at cards for money, whiskey and other property," etc., was held sufficient. The State v. Middleton, 11 Id., 246.

It is not essential to the crime of gambling that the stakes should be put up before the game progresses. Id.

Where it was shown by the evidence that the defendant kept a house where games were played for the use of the tables or of the instruments of gambling, and for beer, oysters or cigars, it was held that this constituted the offense of keeping a gambling house under section 4026 of the code. The State v. Bushel, 39 Id., 42; The State v. Book, 41 Id., 550.

An indictment which charged the defendant with keeping and controlling a building where intoxicating liquors were sold in violation of the statute, and where "gambling, fighting, drunkenness and breaches of the peace" where permitted by him, was held, not vulnerable to the objection that it charged two distinct offenses. The State v. Dean et al., 44 Id., 648.

An indictment charging that the defendant "did keep a house, place and shop under his care and control, in which house, shop, and place, he did permit divers person, to the jurors unknown to play at cards, dice, and dommos, and other games for money, cigars, beer, and other things, contrary to the form of the statute," etc., was held sufficient under this section. State v. Kaufman, 50 Id., 273. Following State v. Cure, 7 Id., 479; State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 452; State v. Middleton, 11 Id., 246.

Sec. 4027. [Search warrant against.]—If any person make oath before a justice of the peace that he has probable cause to suspect and does suspect that any house, building, or place, naming the house or place and the occupant, is unlawfully used as a common gaming house or place for the purpose of gaming for money or other property, and that persons resort to the same for that purpose, whether they be known to the complainant or not, such justice may issue his warrant for the purpose of searching such house or building for all such implements or gambling devices mentioned in the preceding section, and for the apprehension of the occupant or keeper of said house or building; and after such search, seizure and arrest, the said implements and keeper shall be carried before such justice of the peace to be dealt with as provided by law. And any gambling device brought before the justice may be destroyed by him, and an entry thereof shall be made upon his docket.

SEC. 4028. [Gaming and betting.]—If any person play at any game for any sum of money or other property of any value, or make any bet or wager for money or other property of value, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.
Where persons engage in playing billiards with the understanding that the loser shall pay for the use of the billiard table, the owner of the table is guilty, under the statute, of the offense of keeping a house resorted to for the purpose of gambling. The State v. Book, 41 Iowa, 550.
Under this section of the code, the playing of billiards, with the understanding that the loser of the game shall pay for the use of the table, constitutes gambling. Whether the game played is one of skill or chance is immaterial. (Following the State v. Book, 41 Iowa, 460.) The State
v. Miller et al., 53 Iowa, 104.

SEC. 4029. [Gaming contracts void.]—All promises, agreements, notes, bills, bonds, or other contracts, mortgages or other securities, when the whole or any part of the consideration thereof is for money or other valuable thing won or lost, staked, or bet, at or upon any game of any kind or on any wager, are absolutely void and of no effect.

While an action will not lie to recover money lost in gaming or betting, and actually paid over, a party depositing and losing money on a bet may recover the same before it is paid over. Thrift
v. Reiman, 15 Iowa, 35; Shannon v. Bumner, 10 Iowa, 210; Shaw v. Gardner, 30 Iowa, 111, 112.
Where one of the parties to a bet deposited, instead of money, the note of a third person, which exceeded the amount of the bet, and the same was delivered by the stakeholder to the winner, who converted it to his own use, it was held, that the latter was liable to the other party as for money had and received, for the amount which the value of the note exceeded the wager.
Shaw v. Gardner, supra.

An action will lie and a recovery may be had against a stakeholder for the amount of a wager placed in his hands, and which he paid over to the other party, after being notified by the plaintiff not to do so. Adkins v. Fleming, 29 Iowa, 122.
Under this section of the code a promissory note given for money lost in a gambling contract is absolutely void and of no effect, and no life or vitality is imparted to it by transferring it to an innocent holder for value before due. See cases cited in opinion. The Trader's Bank of Chicago
v. Alsop, 64 Iowa, 97.
Section 8, chapter 75, laws of 1880.—Proof that persons drank liquor in a pharmacy raises the presumption that such liquor had been unlawfully given or sold therein by the proprietor thereof as provided by this statute. State v. Cloughly, 35 N. W. R., 625.

The commissioners of pharmacy have power to cancel a pharmacist's certificate and strike his name from the registry only upon receipt of a transcript of conviction for the unlawful sale of

Chapter 86 of laws of 1886, relating to sales of intoxicating liquors by pharmacists for medicine, is complete in itself, and contains all the law in relation to such sales, and the manner of obtaining permits to sell such liquors, and by implication repeals the provisions of the code so far applicable to pharmacists. State v. Courtney, 35 N. W. R., 655.
Since the passage of chapter 86, laws of 1886, a pharmacist is not required to give a bond to obtain a permit to sell liquors for medical purposes, and such permit is limited to one year. Id.

SEC. 4030. [Incest.]—If any man marry his father's sister, mother's sister, father's widow, wife's mother, daughter, wife's widow, son's widow, sister, son's daughter, daughter's daughter, son's son's widow, daughter's son's widow, brother's daughter or sister's daughter; or if any woman marry her father's brother, mother's brother, father's husband, husband's father, son, husband's son, daughter's husband, brother, son's son, daughter's son, son's daughter's husband, daughter's daughter's husband, brather's son or sister's son; or if any person being within the degrees of consanguinity or affinity in which marriages are prohibited by this section, carnally known each other, they shall be deemed guilty of incest, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for a term not exceeding ten years and not less than one year.

The intermarriage of persons within the degrees of consanguinity forbidden by this section of the statute constitutes the crime of incest as thereina provided. To sustain a conviction, it is not necessary for the state to show, in addition, carnal knowledge between the parties. The State
v. Schaunhurst, 34 Iowa, 547.
Nor, where the prosecution is against brother and sister, is it necessary to show that their father and mother were lawfully married. The statute, in effect, forbids and declares criminal the intermarriage of illegitimate children of the same parents. Id.

The register of marriages, kept by the circuit court, wherein the marriage of the defendants is shown, is sufficient prima facie under code, section 2197, to establish the fact of marriage. Id.

The identity of the defendants, with the persons named in the marriage record, may be established by their admissions, the identity of the names, and by the absence of evidence that there are other persons of the same name. Id.

So, too, the relationship of the defendants may be sufficiently established by their acts and declarations. Id.

SEC. 4031. [Cruelty to animals.]—If any person torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance, cruelly beat, mutilate, cruelly kill, or overdrive any animal; or unnecessarily fail to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from the weather; or cruelly drive or work the same when unfit for labor; or cruelly abandon the same; or carry or cause the same to be carried on any vehicle, or otherwise, in an unnecessarily cruel and inhuman manner, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4032. [By railways: when transporting.]—No railway company in this state, in the carrying or transportation of cattle, sheep, swine, or other animals, shall confine the same in cars for a longer period than twenty-eight consecutive hours, unless delayed by storm or other accidental cause, without unloading for rest, water, and feeding, for a period of at least five consecutive hours. In estimating such confinement, the time the animals have been confined without such rest on connecting railways from which they are received shall be computed, it being the intention of this section to prevent their continuous confinement beyond twenty-eight hours, except upon contingencies hereinafter stated; and animals unloaded for rest, water, and feeding, under the provisions of this section, shall be properly, fed watered, and sheltered during such rest by the owners or persons in custody thereof, or in case of their default in so doing, then by the railway company transporting them, at the expense of said owners or persons in custody thereof, and said company shall have a lien upon such animals for food, care and custody furnished, and shall not be liable for any detention of such animals authorized by this section. Any railway company, owner, or custodian of such animals who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall, for each and every such offense, be liable for, and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one hundred and not greater than five hundred dollars. But when such animals shall be carried in cars in which they shall and do have proper food, water, space, and opportunity for rest, the foregoing provisions in regard to their being unlosed shall not apply.

SEC. 4033. [Keeping cockpits and fighting dogs, bears, etc.]—If any person keep or use, or in any way be connected with, or be interested in the management of, or receive money for the admission of any person to any place kept or used for the purpose of fighting any bull, bear, dog, cock, or other creature, or engage in, aid, abet, encourage, or assist in any bull, bear, dog, or cock fight, or a fight between any other creature he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4034. [Impounding animals without food or water.]—If any person impound or confine, or cause to be impounded or confined in any pound or other place, any creature, and fail to supply the same during such confinement with a sufficient quantity of food and water, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.
CHAPTER 10.

OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC HEALTH.

Section 4035. [Selling unwholesome provisions.]—If any person knowingly sell any kind of diseased, corrupted, or unwholesome provisions, whether for meat or drink, without making the same fully known to the buyer, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail, not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4036. [Adulterating food, etc.]—If any person fraudulently adulterate for the purpose of sale, any substance intended for food, or any wine, spirituous or malt liquor, or other liquor intended for drinking, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, and the article so adulterated shall be forfeited and destroyed.

Sec. 4037. [Drugs or medicines.]—If any person fraudulently adulterate, for the purpose of sale, any drug or medicine in such manner as to lessen the efficacy, or change the operation of such drugs or medicines, or to make them injurious to health; or sell them knowing that they are thus adulterated, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and such adulterated drugs and medicines shall be forfeited and destroyed.

Sec. 4038. [Neglecting to label poisons.]—If any apothecary, druggist, or other person, sell and deliver any arsenic, corrosive sublimate, prussic acid, or any poisonous liquor or substance, without having the word "poison," and the true name thereof written or printed upon a label attached to the vial, box, or parcel containing the same, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. Any person who may dispose of at retail any poisonous substance or liquid to any one, for any purpose, is hereby required to enter in a book, to be kept by such apothecary, druggist, or other person so disposing, the name of the poison, when bought, by whom, and for what purpose; and if the person who calls for such poison is not personally known to the vendor, then such person shall be identified by some one known to the vendor, whose name shall also be entered in such book. Any failure to comply with the requirements of this provision shall subject the party so failing to imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4039. (As amended by ch. 102, 20th g. a.) [Inoculating with small pox.]—If any person inoculates himself or any other person, or suffer himself to be inoculated with the small-pox within this state, or come within the state with the intent to cause the prevalence or spread of this infectious disease, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than three years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year. [Or, if any person shall place, or put, or aid, or abet, in placing or putting any person upon any railroad car, steamboat, or other public conveyance, knowing such persons to be infected with diphtheria, small-pox, or scarlet fever, he shall be punished by fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days.]

Sec. 4040. [Selling drugged liquors.]—If any person willfully sell, or keep for sale, intoxicating, malt, or vinous liquors, which have been adulterated or drugged by admixture with any deleterious or poisonous substance, he shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding two years.

SEC. 4041. [Throwing dead animals in stream, spring, etc.]—If any person throw or cause to be thrown, any dead animal into any river, well, spring, cistern, reservoir, stream or pond, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten nor more than thirty days, or by fine not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4042. [Selling diluted milk, etc.]—If any person knowingly sell to another, or knowingly deliver or bring to be manufactured, to any cheese or butter manufactory in this state, any milk diluted with water, or in any way adulterated, or milk from which any cream has been taken, or milk commonly known as “skimmed milk,” or shall keep back any part of milk known as “stripings” with intent to defraud, or shall knowingly sell the milk, the product of a diseased animal or animals, or shall knowingly use any poisonous or deleterious material in the manufacture of cheese or butter, he shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, and be liable in double the amount of damages to the person or persons, firm, association, or corporation, upon whom such fraud shall be committed.

(CAPITALS 75, LAWS OF 1880.)

TO REGULATE SALE OF MEDICINES AND POISONS.

An Act to regulate the practice of pharmacy, and the sale of medicines and poisons.

SECTION 1. [Who may sell.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa, That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any person, not a registered pharmacist within the meaning of this act, to conduct any pharmacy, drug store, apothecary shop or store for the purpose of retailing, compounding or dispensing medicines or poisons for medical use, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. [Who may compound.]—That it shall be unlawful for the proprietor of any store or pharmacy to allow any person except a registered pharmacist to compound or dispense the prescriptions of physicians, or to retail or dispense poisons for medical use, except as an aid to, and under the supervision of, a registered pharmacist. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, for each and every such offense.

SEC. 3. (As amended by ch. 83, 21st g. a.) [Appointment of commissioners, etc.]—The governor, with the advice of the executive council, shall appoint three persons from among the most competent pharmacists of the state, all of whom shall have been residents of the state for five years, and of at least five years' practical experience in their profession, who shall be known and styled as commissioners of pharmacy for the state of Iowa; one of whom shall hold his office for one year, one for two years, and the other for three years, and each until his successor shall be appointed and qualified; and each year thereafter another commissioner shall be so appointed for three years, and until a successor be appointed and qualified. If a vacancy occur in said commission, another shall be appointed, as aforesaid, to fill the unexpired term thereof. Said commissioners shall have power to make by-laws and all necessary regulations for the proper fulfillment of their duties under this act, without expense to the state. [Except that the secretary of state is authorized to furnish said commissioners with stationery and blanks necessary for their office, and said commissioners are authorized to administer oaths, and take and certify acknowledgments of instruments in writing.]

Sec. 4. [Duties.]—The commissioners of pharmacy shall register in a suitable book, a duplicate of which is to be kept in the secretary of state's office, the names and places of residence of all persons to whom they issue certificates, and dates thereof. [Druggists and pharmacists who were registered without examination forfeit their registration when they have voluntarily sold, parted with, or severed their connection with the drug business for a period of two years at the place designated in certificate of registration. Should such party who has thus forfeited his registration wish to re-engage in the practice of pharmacy he is required to be registered by examination as per section five.] (As amended by ch.
106, 22d g. a.) [Provided, That registered pharmacists who remove to another locality, and re-engage in the practice of pharmacy within a period of two years, and have paid the commissioner of pharmacy the sum of one dollar on or before the 22d day of March of each year as provided in this chapter. Such registered pharmacist shall not be required to register by examination, but his former registration shall be in full force and effect.]

(As amended by ch. 137, 19th g. a.) Every registered pharmacist who desires to continue his profession, shall, on or before the 22d day of March of each year, pay to the commission of pharmacy the sum of one dollar, for which he shall receive a renewal of his certificate unless his name has been stricken from the register for violation of the law. It shall be the duty of each registered pharmacist, before changing his locality as designated in his certificate of registration to notify the secretary of the commissioner of pharmacy of his new place of business, and for recording the same and certification thereto the secretary shall be entitled to receive fifty cents for each certificate. It shall be the duty of every registered pharmacist to conspicuously post his certificate of registration in his place of business. Any person continuing in business, who shall fail or neglect to procure his annual renewal of registration, or who shall change his place of business without complying with this section, or who shall fail to conspicuously post his certificate of registration in his place of business, shall for each such offense be liable to a fine of ten dollars for each calendar month during which he is so delinquent.]

Sec. 5. [Examination of applicants.]—That the said commissioners of pharmacy shall, upon application, and at such time and place, and in such manner as they may determine, examine either by a schedule of questions, to be answered and subscribed to under oath, or orally, each and every person who shall desire to conduct the business of selling at retail, compounding or dispensing drugs, medicines or chemicals for medicinal use or compounding or dispensing physicians prescriptions as pharmacists, and if a majority of said commissioners shall be satisfied that said person is competent and fully qualified to conduct said business of compounding or dispensing drugs, medicines or chemicals for medicinal use, or to compound and dispense physicians' prescriptions, they shall enter the name of such person as a registered pharmacist in the book provided for in section 4 of this act; and that all graduates in pharmacy, having a diploma from an incorporated college or school of pharmacy that requires a practical experience in pharmacy of not less than four years before granting a diploma, shall be entitled to have their names registered as pharmacists, by said commissioners of pharmacy without examination.

Sec. 6. [Fee without examination.]—That the commissioners of pharmacy shall be entitled to demand and receive from each person whom they register and furnish a certificate as a registered pharmacist, without examination, the sum of two dollars; and from each and every person whom they examine orally, or whose answer to a schedule of questions are returned subscribed to under oath, the sum of five dollars, which shall be in full for all services. And in case the examination of said person shall prove defective and unsatisfactory and his name not be registered, he shall be permitted to present himself for re-examination within any period not exceeding twelve months next thereafter, and no charge shall be made for such re-examination.

The creation of a board of pharmacy, with the powers conferred therein, by chapter 75, acts of 1880, is not void as being an attempt to delegate the powers which the constitution vests only in the general assembly.

Hildreth v. Crawford et al., Commissioners of Pharmacy, etc., 65 Iowa, 339.

For the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, the commissioners of pharmacy may revoke the certificate of a registered pharmacist and strike his name from the register. Id.

Plaintiff's certificate as a pharmacist was revoked, and his name stricken from the register, by the commissioners of pharmacy upon the record proof of his conviction by a competent tribunal of the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors. Held, that he could not complain that he was deprived of his property without due process of law. Id.

Under sections 8 and 9 of this chapter, a pharmacist's license may be revoked by the commissioners of pharmacy for the illegal sale of either intoxicating or alcoholic liquors; and such license may be revoked for a single unlawful sale of such liquors. Id.

A pharmacist who has violated the provisions of this chapter cannot, upon an information for having in possession intoxicating liquors, protect himself by alleging that the liquor when seized was not in his actual possession, or that the search and seizure of a portion of the goods was made without a warrant. The State v. Ward et al., 36 N. W. 2d, 766.

Under the Iowa pharmacy law, ignorance of the habits of intoxication, or of the minority of the purchaser of intoxicating liquors, is no defense to an indictment for unlawful sales. The State v. Thompson, 37 Id., 104.

SECT. 7. [Responsibility of pharmacists.]—Every registered pharmacist shall be held responsible for the quality of all drugs, chemicals and medicines he may sell or dispense, with the exception of those sold in the original packages of the manufacturer, and also those known as "patent medicines" and should he knowingly, intentionally and fraudulently adulterate, or cause to be adulterated, such drugs, chemicals or medical preparations, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in addition thereto, his name be stricken from the register.

SECT. 8. (As amended by ch. 83, 21st g. a.) [Pharmacists whose certificates of registration are in full force and effect, shall have the sole right to keep and to sell, under such regulations as have been or may be established from time to time by the commissioners of pharmacy, all medicines and poisons, including intoxicating liquors only for the actual necessities of medicine; provided, that such pharmacists shall have procured permits therefor as hereinafter prescribed. Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to shield the person who in any wise abuses this trust, for the legitimate and actual necessities of medicine only, from the utmost rigors of the law, now or hereafter in force relating to intoxicating liquors, and in addition thereto, for a second violation thereof, his name shall be stricken from the register by the commissioners of pharmacy upon receipt of transcript of conviction, which shall be transmitted by the court or by order of the court before whom conviction is had. Twenty-five per cent of all moneys recovered as fines under the provisions of this act shall be paid into the state treasury, and reported to the state auditor, and held subject to the order of the commissioners of pharmacy as needed, to be by them used solely to defray the expenses of prosecutions, under, and the enforcement of this act or acts to which this is amendatory. In order to procure a permit to sell intoxicating liquors as aforesaid and a shipping permit he shall present to such board of supervisors a petition signed by at least one-fourth of the freeholders having the qualification of electors of the township, town or ward wherein such business is located, certifying that the registered pharmacist applying is a person of good moral character, is not a minor, and is, and for the six months last preceding has been, lawfully conducting a pharmacy as proprietor in such township, town or ward, and that they believe him to be a proper person to buy and sell intoxicating liquors for the purposes named in this act. The board being satisfied that all the provisions of the law have been complied with, a permit shall be issued.

Provided, however, that any resident of the township, town or ward, may appear and show cause why such permit should not be granted, and the same shall be refused unless the board are fully satisfied that all the requirements of the law have been complied with, ten days notice of the time for granting such permit, having been given by publication in a newspaper published in the county or by posting notices in the township, town or ward in which the business is to be conducted. The county auditor shall give to such pharmacist, his certificate of registration and his permit to buy and sell, being in full force and effect, a permit to receive intoxicating liquors within the county in which he does business, and the presentation of said permit to any railway company, express company or common carrier within the borders or traversing the territory of the state, shall convey full authority to receive, transport and deliver, intoxicating liquors to the persons named in such permit; provided, that such permit shall be for specified packages and kinds of liquors, and that a certified copy of such permit shall be kept on file in the office of the auditor issuing the same. The commissioners of pharmacy shall, on the revocation or forfeiture of any certificate of registration, subsequent to their last biennial report or abstract of the state pharmacy register, report such revocation or forfeiture to the county auditor of the county wherein such certificate was last in force. On or before the tenth day of each month said pharmacist shall make to the county auditor a complete report, verified by his affidavit specifically showing all sales of intoxicating liquors made during the preceding calendar month, to whom sold, and the purpose for which the same was to be used as represented by duplicate applications executed by each purchaser. The registered pharmacists to whom application is made shall refuse to execute same, if he has reason to believe that the application is not made in good faith, and that the liquor would be used as a beverage. He shall not accept an application from a minor or from any person who is in the habit of becoming intoxicated, or when any relative of such person has given written notice to said pharmacist that such person uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage. The drinking of intoxicating liquors in a pharmacy, whether under a permit or not, shall be presumptive evidence that the same was sold or given away by such pharmacist contrary to law.

Proof that persons drank liquor in a pharmacy raises the presumption that such liquor had been unlawfully given or sold therein by the proprietor thereof as provided by this act. State v. Cloughly, 30 N. W. R., 652.

SEC. 9. [Regulations as to sale of poisons.]—It shall be unlawful for any person from and after the passage of this act, to retail any poisons enumerated in schedules "A" and "B," excepts as follows:

SCHEDULE A.

Arsenic, and its preparations, corrosive sublimate, white precipitate, red precipitate, biniodide of mercury, cyanide of potassium, hydrocyanic acid, strychnia and all other poisonous vegetables alkaloids, and their salts, essential oil of bitter almonds, opium and its preparations, except paregoric and other preparations of opium containing less than two grains to the ounce.

SCHEDULE B.

Aconite, belladonna, colchicum, conium, nux vomica, hebane, savin, ergot, cotton root, cantharides, creosote, digitalis, and their pharmaceutical preparations; croton oil, chloroform, chloral hydrate, sulphate of zinc, mineral acids, carbolic acid and oxalic acid, without distinctly labeling the box, vessel or paper in which the said poison is contained, and also the outside wrapper or cover, with the name of the article, the word "poison," and the name and place of business of the seller. Nor shall it be lawful for any person to sell or deliver any poison enumerated in schedules "A" and "B" unless, upon due inquiry, it be found that the purchaser is aware of its poisonous character, and represents that it is to be used for legitimate purposes. Nor shall it be lawful for any registered pharmacist to sell any poisons included in schedule "A" without, before delivering the same to the purchaser, causing an entry to be made, in a book kept for that purpose, stating the date of sale, the name and address of the purchaser, the name of the poison sold, the purpose for which it is represented by the purchaser to be required, and the name of the dispenser; such book to be always open for inspection by the proper authorities, and to be preserved for at least five years. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the dispensing of poisons, in not unusual quantities or doses, upon the prescriptions of practitioners of medicine. Nor shall it be lawful for any licensed or registered druggist or pharmacist to retail, or sell, or give away, any alcoholic liquors or compounds as a beverage, and any violations of the provisions of this section shall make the owner or principal of said store or pharmacy liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, and not more than one hundred dollars, to be collected in the usual manner; and, in addition thereto, for repeated violations of this section, his name shall be stricken from the register.

SEC. 10. Any itinerant vendor of any drug, nostrum, ointment or appliance of any kind, intended for the treatment of diseases or injury, who shall, by writing or printing, or any other method, publicly profess to cure or treat diseases, or injury, or deformity, by any drug, nostrum, or manipulation, or other expedient, shall pay a license of one hundred dollars per annum, to be paid to the treasurer of the commission of pharmacy. Whereupon the secretary of said commission shall issue such license for one year. Any person violating this section shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars; all moneys received for licenses to be reported to the auditor of state. The sum of one thousand dollars per year, or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the moneys so received for licenses for the expenses of said commission, all exceeding said amount to be paid into the state treasury.

SEC. 11. [As amended by ch. 137, 19th g. a.] [Penalty for false representations.]—That any person who shall procure, or attempt to procure registrations for himself or for another under this act, by making, or causing to be made, any false representations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof, be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, and the name of the person so fraudulently registered shall be stricken from the register. Any person not a registered pharmacist, as provided for in this act, who shall conduct a store, pharmacy, or place for retailing, compounding or dispensing drugs, medicine or chemicals for medicine or for compounding or dispensing physicians' prescriptions, or who shall take, use or exhibit the title of registered pharmacist, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than fifty dollars [or more than two hundred dollars.]

SEC. 12. [As amended by ch. 81, 22d g. a.] [Exceptions: proviso.]—Physicians dispensing their own prescriptions only, are not required to be registered pharmacists: Provided, that nothing in this act shall prevent any person not a registered pharmacist or not holding a permit, from keeping and selling proprietary medicines, and such other domestic remedies as do not include any intoxicating liquors or poisons. [Nor from selling concentrated lye and potash, provided, however, that if any person sell or deliver said concentrated lye or potash without having the word "poison" and the true name thereof written or printed upon a label attached to the phial, box, or parcel containing the same, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, but they shall not be compelled to register the sales of said lye and potash as required by section 4038 of the code of 1873.

SEC. 14. [Repealing clause.—All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved, March 22, 1880.

This chapter did not repeal chapter 6 of title II of the code, and it is not necessary in an indictment for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors to charge that the defendant was not a registered pharmacist, and a judgment rendered a plea of guilty, no facts being shown to impeach it, will not be set aside. The State v. Mercer, 58 Iowa, 182.

(Chapter 170, Laws of 1882.)

An Act to prevent and punish the adulteration of articles of food, drink, and medicine, and the sale thereof when adulterated.

SECTION 1. [Mixing, coloring, staining, or powdering food prohibited.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That no person shall mix, color, stain, or powder, or order or permit any other person to mix, color, stain, or powder, any article of food with any ingredient or material so as to render the article injurious to health, with the intent that the same may be sold, and no person shall sell or offer for sale any such articles so mixed, colored, stained or powdered.

SEC. 2. [Same as to drugs and medicines.]—No person shall, except for the purpose of compounding in the necessary preparation of medicine, mix, color, stain, or powder, or permit any other person to mix, color, stain, or powder, any drug or medicine with any ingredients or materials, so as to affect injuriously the quality or potency of such drug or medicine, with the intent to sell the same, or shall offer for sale any such drug or medicine so mixed, colored, stained, or powdered.

SEC. 3. [Mixing, etc., food, drink, or medicine, or selling same prohibited.]—No person shall mix, color, stain, or powder any article of food, drink or medicine, or any article which enters into the composition of food, drink, or medicine, with any other ingredient or material, whether injurious to health or not, for the purpose of gain or profit, or sell or offer for sale the same, or order or permit any other person to sell or offer for sale any article so mixed, colored, stained, or powdered, unless the same be so manufactured, used or sold, or offered for sale under its true and appropriate name, and notice that the same is mixed or impure is marked, printed, or stamped upon each package, roll, parcel, or vessel containing the same, so as to be and remain at all times readily visible, or unless the person purchasing the same is fully informed by the seller of the true names of the ingredients (if other than such as are known by the common name thereof) of such articles of food, drink or medicine, at the time of making the sale thereof or offering to sell the same: Provided, nothing in this section shall prevent the use of harmless coloring material used in coloring butter and cheese.

SEC. 4. [Glucose not to be mixed with syrup: skimmed milk cheese to be branded.]—No person shall mix any glucose or grape sugar with syrup, or sugar, intended for human food; and any cheese manufactured from skimmed milk, or from milk that is partly skimmed, shall be branded as skimmed-milk cheese, when the same is offered for sale, or any oleomargarine, suine, beef-fat, lard, or any other foreign substance with any butter, or cheese, intended for human food; or shall mix or mingle any glucose, grape sugar, or oleomargarine, with any article without distinctly marking, stamping or labeling the article or the package containing the same with the true and appropriate name of such article, and the percentage in which glucose or grape sugar, oleomargarine or suine enters into its composition. Nor shall any person sell, or offer for sale, or permit to be sold, or offered for sale, any such food, into the composition of which glucose or grape sugar, oleomargarine or suine, has entered without at the same time informing the buyer of the fact and the proportion in which glucose or grape sugar, oleomargarine or suine has entered into the composition.

SEC. 5. [Penalty.]—Any person or persons convicted of violating any provisions of any of the foregoing sections of this act shall, for the first offense, be fined not less than ten dollars ($10) nor more than fifty dollars ($50). For the second offense they shall be fined not less than twenty-five ($25) dollars nor more than one hundred dollars ($100), or confined in the county jail not more than thirty days. And for the third and all subsequent offenses they shall be fined not to exceed [less than?] five hundred dollars ($500) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), and imprisoned[ed] in the state prison not less than one year nor more than five years.

SEC. 6. [Repeal.]—All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Approved, March 25, 1882.

(Chapter 104, Laws of 1886.)

An Act to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery in the state of Iowa.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That every person practicing medicine, surgery or obstetrics, in any of their departments, within this state shall possess the qualifications required by this act. If a graduate in medicine such person shall present his or her diploma to the state board of examiners, for verification as to its genuineness. If the diploma is found genuine, and is by a medical school legally organized and in good standing, of which the state board of examiners shall determine, and if the person presenting and claiming such diploma be a person to whom the same was originally granted, then the state board of examiners shall issue its certificates to that effect signed by not less than five physicians thereof, representing one or more physicians of the schools on the board, and such certificate shall be conclusive as to right of the lawful holder to practice medicine, surgery and obstetrics within this state. If not a graduate the person practicing medicine or surgery within this state, unless he or she shall have been in continuous practice in this state, for a period of not less than five years, of which he or she shall present to the state board of examiners satisfactory evidence in the form of affidavits, shall appear before said state board of examiners, and submit to such examination as said board may require. All examinations shall be conducted in writing, and all examination papers, together with the reports and action of the examiners thereon, shall be preserved as the records of the said board for a period of five years, during which time they shall remain open for inspection at the office of the said state board of examiners. Such examinations shall be in anatomy, physiology, general chemistry pathology, therapeutics, and the principles and practice of medicine, surgery and obstetrics. Provided, that each applicant upon receiving from the secretary of the board an order for an examination shall receive also a confidential number which he or she shall place upon his or her examination papers so that when said papers are passed upon by the examiners, the latter shall not know by what applicant said papers have been prepared. That upon each day of examination all candidates be given the same set or sets of questions. It is further provided that the examination papers shall be marked upon the scale of one hundred (100), and that in order to secure a license, it shall be necessary for the applicant to attain such average as shall hereafter be determined by the state board of examiners, and if such examination be satisfactory to at least five physicians of said board, representing the different schools of medicine on the board, the board shall issue a certificate which shall entitle the lawful holder thereof to all the rights and privileges herein provided, and the physicians and the secretary of the state board of health shall constitute, and be deemed a board of examiners for the purpose of this act.

SEC. 2. [Shall procure a seal and receive applications for certificates and examinations.]—The state board of examiners shall procure a seal within sixty days after the passage of this act, and through the secretary of said board shall receive applications for certificates and examinations. The president, or any member of the board, shall have the authority to administer oaths and take testimony in all matters relating to their duties as examiners aforesaid. The board shall provide three forms of certificates: One for persons in possession of genuine diplomas; one for candidates examined by the board, and one for persons who have practiced medicine or surgery in any of its departments for five years as provided in this act. Said certificate shall be signed by not less than five physicians of the board, and this number may act as an examining board in the absence of the full board; Provided, that one or more members of the different schools of medicine represented in the state board of health shall also be represented in the board of examiners. The board of examiners shall hold meetings at such places as will best accommodate applicants residing in different portions of the state, and at any such time as they shall deem best, and due notice of the time and place of such meetings shall be published.

SEC. 3. [Shall examine diplomas.]—The board shall examine all diplomas submitted to them for such purpose to determine their genuineness and the rightful ownership of the person presenting the same. The affidavit of the applicant and holder of any diploma that he or she is the person therein named, and is the lawful possessor thereof, shall be necessary to verify the same, with such other testimony of the board may require. Diplomas and accompanying affidavits may be presented in person or by proxy. If the diploma shall be found genuine, and in possession of the person to whom it was issued, the state board of examiners shall, upon the payment of a fee of two dollars, to the secretary of the board, issue a certificate to the holder of such diploma, and no further fee or sum shall be demanded or collected from said applicant by said board for such certificate. If the diploma shall be found to be fraudulent, or not lawfully in possession of the holder or owner thereof, the person presenting such diploma or holding or claiming possession thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, before any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined not less than twenty dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4. [Certificates shall be recorded.]—Every person holding a certificate issued by the state board of examiners, shall, within sixty days after the date of such certificate, have the same recorded in the office of the county recorder in the county wherein he resides, and should he remove from one county to another to practice medicine, surgery or obstetrics, his certificate must be recorded in the county to which he removes. The county recorder shall endorse upon the certificate the date of record, and he shall be entitled to charge and receive a fee of fifty cents for his services, the fee to be paid by the applicant.

SEC. 5. [How recorded.]—The county recorder shall record in a book provided for that purpose, a complete list of the certificates presented for record, and the date of their issue by the state board of examiners. If the certificate is issued by reason of a diploma, the name of the medical college conferring the same, and the date when conferred shall be recorded; and when such certificate shall have been granted upon the examination of the board, or because of five years practice in the state, such fact shall be recorded. Said records shall be open for inspection during business hours.

SEC. 6. [Fees for examination.  ]—Candidates for examination shall pay in advance to the secretary of the state board of examiners, a fee of ten dollars, which fee, together with the fees received for certificates, shall defray the entire expense of the aforesaid board of examiners, and the balance shall be turned over to the state treasurer for the benefit of the school fund, except such an amount as will pay each member of the board ten dollars ($10) per day during the time he is in actual attendance upon the session of the said board for the purpose of performing the duties required of him under this act, and, as will pay the secretary of the board such a salary as they may allow, not to exceed five dollars per day during the time he is actually engaged in performing the work of the board under this act, and each member of the board of examiners shall also receive a sufficient amount to defray his actual and necessary expenses while in the discharge of the duties herein provided. Any one failing to pass the required examination shall be entitled to a second examination within twelve months without fee, provided that any applicant for examination by notice in writing to the secretary shall be entitled to an examination within three months from the time of said notice and a failure to give such opportunity, shall entitle such applicant to practice without the certificate required by this act until the next regular meeting of said board. (As amended ch. 66, 22d g. a.) [Provided, further, that the board may also issue certificates to persons, who, upon application present a certificate of having passed satisfactory examination before any other state board of medical examiners, upon the payment of the fee provided in section three.]

SEC. 7. [Certificates may not be granted, when.  ]—The state board of examiners may refuse to grant a certificate to any person who has been convicted of a felony committed in the practice of his profession or in connection therewith or may revoke certificates for like cause, or for palpable evidence of incompetency, and such refusal or revocation shall prohibit such person from practicing medicine, surgery or obstetrics, provided, such refusal or revocation of a certificate can only be made with the affirmative vote of at least five physicians of the state board of examiners, in which number shall be included one or more members of the different schools of medicine represented in said board; and provided further, that the standing of a legally chartered medical college, from which a diploma may be presented, shall not be questioned except by a like vote.

SEC. 8. [Who deemed as practicing medicine.  ]—Any person shall be deemed as practicing medicine, surgery or obstetrics, or to be a physician within the meaning of this act, who shall publicly profess to be a physician, surgeon or obstetrician, and assume the duties, or who shall make a practice of prescribing or of prescribing and furnishing medicine for the sick, or who shall publicly profess to cure or heal, by any means whatsoever, but nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit students of medicine, surgery or obstetrics, from prescribing under the supervision of preceptors, or gratuitous service in case of emergency, nor shall this act extend to prohibit women who are at this time engaged in the practice of midwifery nor to prevent the advertising, selling or prescribing natural mineral waters flowing from wells or springs, nor shall this act apply to surgeons of the United States army or navy, marine hospital service, nor to physicians as defined herein who have been in practice in this state for five consecutive years, three years of which time shall have been in one locality; provided, such physician shall furnish the state board of examiners satisfactory evidence of such practice, and shall procure the proper certificate, as provided in this act, and for which certificate such physician shall pay the secretary of the state board of examiners a fee of two dollars, and said board shall issue to the applicant such
Sec. 9. [Penalty.]—Any person who shall practice medicine or surgery within this state, without having complied with the provisions of this act, and who is not embraced in any of the exceptions or after being prohibited from so doing as provided in section seven of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten days, nor more than thirty days.

Sec. 10. [Penalty.]—Any person who shall file, or attempt to file, with the state board of examiners, as his or her own, the diploma of another person, or who shall file, or attempt to file with the county recorder the certificate of another person, as his or her own, or who shall file or attempt to file a diploma or certificate with the true name erased therefrom and the claimant's name inserted, or who shall file or attempt to file any forged affidavit of identification, shall be deemed guilty of the crime of forgery.

Sec. 11. [Time of taking effect.]—The penalties, as provided in this act, or violations thereof, shall not be enforced prior to first day of January, A. D. 1887.

Sec. 12. [Repeal.]—All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved April 8, 1886.

(Chapter 79, Laws of 1886.)

PROHIBITING TRAFFIC IN DISEASED HOGS.

An Act to prohibit the traffic in hogs infected with swine plague or hog cholera and to prevent the spread of the same.

Section 1. (As amended by ch. 67, 23d g. a.) [Traffic in diseased swine prohibited.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: All traffic in swine which have died with the swine plague or hog cholera or from other infectious or contagious diseases within the state is hereby prohibited and it shall be unlawful for any person to haul in any vehicle or public conveyance any dead hogs which have so died or are known to be affected with such diseases, upon any public road or highway or upon any enclosure other than that upon which said hogs have died. It shall also be unlawful for any person negligently or willfully to allow his hogs, or those under his control infested with hog cholera or other plague or contagious disease to escape his control or run at large.

Sec. 2. [Shall be burned or buried.]—Any person having in his possession swine which have died from the swine plague hog cholera or other infectious disease shall within a reasonable time cause the same to be burned or buried to a depth of at least thirty inches so as to prevent the spread of the disease.

Sec. 3. [Penalty for violation.]—Any person violating or failing to comply with any provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars at the discretion of the court.

Approved April 6, 1886.
An Act in relation to canned or preserved food.

Section 1. [Canned fruits and vegetables, etc.—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: It shall hereafter be unlawful in this state for any packer or dealer in hermetically sealed, canned or preserved fruits, vegetables, or other articles of food to knowingly offer such canned or preserved articles for sale for consumption in this state after October 1st, 1886, unless the cans or jars which contain the same shall bear the name, address and place of business of the person, firm or corporation that canned or packed the articles so offered, or the name of the wholesale dealer in this state who sells or offers the same for sale; together in all cases with the name of the state, city, town or village, where the same were packed, plainly printed thereon, preceded by the words " packed at," such name, address and place of business shall be, plainly printed on the label together with a mark or term indicating clearly the grade or quality of the articles contained therein.

Section 2. [Soaked goods shall be so marked.—All packers of and dealers in soaked goods or goods put up from products dried or cured before canning shall, in addition to complying with provisions of section one of this act, cause to be plainly branded on the face of the label in good legible type, one-half of an inch in height and three-eighths of an inch in width the word "soaked."

Section 3. [Exemptions.—All goods packed prior to the passage of this act are exempted from the provisions of this act.

Section 4. [Violation a misdemeanor: penalty.—Any packer or dealer who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars for each offense in the case of retail dealers, and in case of wholesale dealers and packers by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense. The term "packer" and "dealer," as used in this act, shall be deemed to include any firm or corporation doing business as a dealer in or packer of the articles mentioned in this act. It shall be the duty of any board of health in this state, cognizant of any violation of this act, to inform the district attorney whose duty it shall be to institute proceedings against any person who is charged with a violation of the provisions of this act, and in case of conviction shall receive twenty-five per cent of the fines actually collected which shall be in addition to any salary he may now receive under the law.

Section 5. [Application.—The provisions of this act shall not apply to canned or condensed milk or cream.

Approved April 13, 1886.
CHAPTER 11.
OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY.

SECTION 4043. [Lotteries, and selling tickets.]—If any person make, or aid in making or establishing any lottery in this state; or advertise or make public any scheme for any such lottery; or advertise or offer for sale any ticket or part of a ticket in any lottery; or sell, negotiate, dispose of, purchase or receive the same; or have in his possession any ticket or paper purporting to be the number of any ticket of any lottery, with intent to sell or dispose of the same on his own account or as the agent of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

In order to sell a tract of land at a good price, the owner had it subdivided into lots, and these lots then divided into three classes, denominated first, second and third class. They were sold in this manner, upon a species of lottery or drawing as follows, parties who subscribed for one or more shares, paid down $25 per share, with the condition that if they drew a lot in the first class they should pay $225 more; if in the second, $200; if in the third, $175. The inducement held out was that there was a house on one of the lots in the first-class which was worth more than $250. The aggregate value of all the lots in a certain class, divided by the number of lots in the class, gave the value affixed on each lot, but in each class there were some lots worth more, and some worth less, than the price. In an action upon a bond given for one of the lots thus purchased it was held, that the manner of sale constituted a lottery scheme, and the contract would not be enforced. P. & C. Gunther v. Dewin, 11 Iowa, 133.

SEC. 4044. [Disposing of liquors to an Indian or intoxicated person.]—If any person give, sell, or dispose of, any spiritous or intoxicating drinks to any Indian within this state, or to any person who is intoxicated, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4045. [Bringing paupers into this state.]—If any person knowingly bring within this state any pauper or poor person, with the intent of making him a charge on any of the townships or counties therein, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and stand charged with his support.

SEC. 4046. [Transacting business without licence.]—If any person carry on or transact any business or occupation without licence therefore when such license is required by any law of this state, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 4047. [Circulation of foreign bank notes prohibited: penalty for.]—If any person pay out, or offer to pay, or in any manner put in circulation, or offer to put in circulation, any bank note, bill or other instrument intended to circulate as money issued or purporting to be issued by any bank, individual or corporation elsewhere than in this state; excepting treasury notes, notes of any bank organized under the laws of the United States, any other description of currency issued by the authority of congress, or notes of the branches of the state bank of Iowa, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction before any court having jurisdiction, be fined the sum of five dollars for each note, bill or other instrument as aforesaid so paid out or offered to be paid out, put in circulation or offered to be put in circulation. In prosecutions under this section it shall not be necessary to state in the indictment or information the name of the bank issuing the notes, nor to prove the existence of the bank or other person purporting to issue the notes; but it shall be sufficient to allege in general terms the fact of paying out, or attempting to pay out, as the case may be, of bank notes issued out of this state; and the proofs may be made as if the particulars were alleged; and any number of offenses may be included in the same prosecution, provided that where the total fines alleged shall not exceed one hundred dollars, the offense shall be cognizable and may be tried before a justice of the peace or other coordinate jurisdictions; and when the total fines alleged exceed one hundred dollars, it shall be within the jurisdiction of the district court.

(Sections 4048, 4049, 4050, and 4051 were repealed and substituted by chapter 69, laws of 1874, which were amended by chapter 122, laws of 1876, and all repealed by chapter 156, laws of 1878.)

(Sections 4052 and 4053, repealed by chapter 50, laws of 1874.)

SEC. 4054. (As amended by ch. 50, laws 15th g. a.) [Trapping fish on the premises of another.]—Any person who shall go upon the premises of any person or corporation, whether enclosed or not, and shall be found seeking to take, by any means whatsoever, except by hook and line, any fish, shall be deemed guilty of trespass, and may be prosecuted in the name of the state of Iowa by any person in possession of said premises, before any justice of the peace, or other court of competent jurisdiction, and fined in any sum not less than five nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 4055. [Bringing diseased sheep into the state.]—If the owner of sheep, or any person having the same in charge knowingly import or drive into this state sheep having any contagious disease; or turn out or suffer any sheep having any contagious disease, knowing the same to be so diseased, to run at large upon any common highway, or unenclosed lands; or sell or dispose of any sheep, knowing the same to be so diseased, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine in any sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4056. [Same as to horses, mules, etc.]—If any person knowingly import or bring within this state, any horse, mule, or ass, affected by the disease known as nasal gleet, glanders, or button-farcey, or suffer the same to run at large upon any common highway, or unenclosed land, or use or tie the same to any public place, or off his own premises, or sell, trade, or offer for sale or trade any such horse, mule, or ass, knowing the same to be so diseased, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be punished by a fine, of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars; and in default of payment shall be imprisoned for any period not to exceed twelve months, or by both fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4057. [Diseased horses, mules, etc., running at large.]—If any horse, mule, or ass, reasonably supposed to be diseased with nasal gleet, glanders, or button-farcey, be found running at large without any known owner, it shall be lawful for the finder thereof to take such horse, mule or ass, so found before some justice of the peace, who shall forthwith cause the same to be examined by some veterinary surgeon, or other person skilled in such diseases, and if, on examination, it is ascertained to be so diseased, it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace to order such diseased animal to be immediately destroyed and buried; and the necessary expense accruing under the provisions of this section shall be defrayed out of the county treasury.

SEC. 4058. (As substituted by ch. 156, 21st g. a.) [Deemed a misdemeanor.]—Any person or persons driving any cattle into this state, or any agent, servant, or employee of any railroad or other corporation who shall carry, transport, or ship any cattle into this state, or any railroad company, or other corporation or person who shall carry, ship or deliver any cattle into this state, or the owners, controllers lessees, or agents or employees of any stock yards, receiving into such stock yards or in any other enclosurers for the detention of cattle in transit, or shipment, or re-shipment or sale, any cattle brought or shipped in any manner into this state which at the time they were either driven, brought, shipped, or transported into this state, were in such condition as to infect with or to communicate to the other cattle, pleuroneumonia[, or splenitic or Texas fever, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars and not more than one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, in the discretion of the court.]

Sec. 4059. [Any person who shall be injured or damaged by any of the acts of the persons named in section 4058, and which are prohibited by such section, in addition to the remedy therein provided, may bring an action at law against any such persons, agents, employes or corporations mentioned therein, and recover the actual damages sustained by the person or persons so injured, and neither said criminal proceeding nor said civil action, in any stage of the same be a bar to a conviction or to a recovery in the other.]

Sec. 4060. [Diseased hop roots.].—If any person use, transplant, or cultivate, or bring into this state for the purpose of using, planting, cultivating, or selling, any hop roots, plants, or cuttings, which may be diseased in any manner, or infected with lice or vermin of any kind, or which may be brought from any state or country in which the cultivation of hops has been retarded or impaired by the presence of any disease, lice, or vermin of a contagious character, he shall be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, and imprisoned not less than five nor more than twenty days.

Sec. 4061. [Search warrant and seizure, etc.].—If complaint is made before a justice of the peace by one or more responsible persons, that they have good reason to believe that hop roots have been introduced into, or are being cultivated in the city or township where they reside in violation of this act, the justice before whom such complaint is made shall issue a warrant authorizing any peace officer to seize such roots, and they shall be held in charge by such officer until suit has been brought against the person or persons so offending, and the cause determined; and in case it is found that the said plants, roots, or cuttings are diseased, or are infected by lice or vermin of a contagious character, the officer before whom suit is brought will order the said roots, plants, or cuttings to be burned, charging the expense of doing the same as costs upon the party owning or cultivating the roots, plants or cuttings; and in no case will he allow them to be planted or delivered to a third party, until the fact is established that they are not infected with any vermin or disease of a contagious character.

Sec. 4062. [Canada thistles.].—If any person or corporation, after having been notified in writing of the presence of Canada thistles on any lands owned or occupied by such person or corporation; or if any highway supervisor, after having been notified in writing of the presence of Canada thistles on the highway under his jurisdiction, shall permit such thistles or any part thereof to blossom or mature, such person, corporation or highway supervisor shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly.

Sec. 4063. [Killing birds, etc.].—If any person kill, trap, ensnare or in any manner destroy any of the birds of this state, excepting birds of prey, the migratory aquatic birds [English sparrow] and those which are useful for food, and the killing of which at certain seasons of the year is now permitted by law, or in any manner destroy the eggs of such birds as are hereby intended to be protected from destruction, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars. But persons killing birds for scientific purposes, or for preservation in museums and cabinets, shall be exempt from the penalties of this section, upon making satisfactory proof of the purpose for which they have killed any such bird or birds.
SEC. 4064. [Running threshing machines without boxing tumbling rods.]—If any person run any threshing machine in this state, without having the two lengths of tumbling rods next the machines, together with the knuckles or joints and jacks of the tumbling rods safely boxed and secured while the machine is running, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars for every day or part of a day he shall violate this section; [and any person who shall, knowingly, permit either his own grain, or any that may be in his possession or under his control, to be threshed by a machine, the rods, knuckles, or joints of which are not boxed in accordance with the requirements of this section, shall be liable to a like fine as that prescribed for the person running such machine, both of which fines may be recovered in an action brought before any court of competent jurisdiction.]

This provision was not intended to change the general rule applicable to such cases, that a plaintiff cannot recover for injuries resulting from the negligence of another person, if his own negligence in any degree contributed directly to the injury. The statute merely provides that a failure to box the tumbling rods as required is, per se, negligence on the part of the owner or person running the machine, leaving the rule respecting contributory negligence on part of the person injured to apply the same as in other cases. Reynolds v. Hindman, 32 Iowa, 146.

In an action to recover for services rendered by the plaintiff in threshing the grain of the defendant, the defendant pleaded as a defense “that it was agreed by and between the plaintiff and defendant that the threshing, for which the plaintiff seeks to recover in this action, was to be done with a machine, all the rods, knuckles, or joints of which were unboxed, and that said threshing was in fact done with a machine the rods and knuckles of which were wholly unboxed,” it was held, that this was a good defense, and that no recovery could be had for threshing done on such a contract. Dillon et al. v. Allen, 46 Id., 289.

Where a person is employed about a threshing machine, the rods and boxes of which are not boxed as required by the statute, he may recover for injuries caused thereby to which his own negligence does not contribute. Messenger v. Pate et al., 42 Id., 443; Reynolds v. Windham, 32 Id., 146.

Where an act is prohibited by statute, one who is injured by the violation of the statute may maintain an action therefor, and such violation, if established by proof, constitutes negligence. Id.

(Chapter 103, Laws of 1888.)

An Act to amend section 4063 of the code and fix penalty for violation thereof and defining duty of peace officers, in relation to offenses against public policy in such a way as to provide further protection for the song birds and birds of beautiful plumage in this state.

SECTION 1. [Duty of peace officers to file information]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be the duty of every peace officer who may have knowledge of any violation of the provisions of section 4063 of the code to immediately file an information against the person so violating said provisions before some justice of the peace having jurisdiction of said offense and to cause the arrest of such person and to immediately give to the county attorney all information within his knowledge concerning such violation.

SEC. 2. [Neglect of duty.]—Any peace officer who may have knowledge of any violation of the provisions of said section 4063 and shall fail and neglect to perform his duty as herein specified shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and conviction thereof shall be fined not less than two nor more than ten dollars.

SEC. 3. [Amendment of section 4063 of the code.]—Section 4063 of the code is hereby amended by inserting after the words “aquatic birds” the words “English sparrows.”

Approved April 11, 1888.
(Chapter 14, Laws of 1874.)

RELATING TO STEAM-BOILERS.

An Act to punish carelessness in the use of steam-boilers. [Additional to code, title XI, "Of the police of the state," and title XXIV, chapter 11, concerning "Offenses against public policy."]

SECTION 1. [Steam boilers, how to be equipped.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be the duty of any person owning or operating steam-boilers in this state to provide such boilers with steam-gauge, safety-valve, and water-gauge, and keep the same in good order.

SEC. 2. [Fine for neglect, $50 to $500.]—That any person neglecting to comply with the the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not less fifty nor more than five hundred dollars.

Approved March 12, 1874.

(Chapter 59, Laws of 1874.)

MINORS IN BILLIARD SALOONS, ETC.

An Act to prohibit the encouragement of minors to remain in certain buildings. [Additional to code, title XXIV, chapter 12 (11) relating to "Offenses against public policy."]

SECTION 1. [Minors not to be allowed to remain in billiard-rooms, saloons, etc.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: It shall be unlawful for any person who keeps a billiard-hall, beer saloon, or nine or ten pin alley, or the agent, clerk, or servant of any such person, or any person having charge or control of any such hall, saloon, or alley, to permit any minor or minors to remain in such hall, saloon, or alley or to take part in any of the games known as billiards, nine or ten pins.

SEC. 2. [Penalty for violation.]—For a violation of the provisions of the foregoing section the offender shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than five dollars nor exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Approved, March 21, 1874.

Under this chapter by which it is made unlawful for the keeper of a billiard saloon or his employees, to permit minors to remain in the saloon, a conviction may be had without proving that the defendant knew of the presence of the minor, or of the fact of his minorty. State v. Probasco, 62 Iowa, 400.

If the keeper of a saloon fails to enforce watchfulness on the part of his employes and a minor is thus allowed to remain in the saloon he and the employe are both guilty and he cannot avoid punishment on the ground that the offense was the offense of the servant only. Id.
An Act to provide for the appointment of a board of fish commissioners for the construction of fish-ways, for the protection and propagation of fish, and to repeal sections 4052 and 4053, and to amend section 4054 [Code, title XXIV, chapter 2, relating to offenses against public policy].

SECTION 1. (As amended by sec. 12, ch. 70, 16th g.a). [State fish commissioners appointed.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa, That the governor of the state is hereby authorized and required to appoint [one competent person who shall be known as fish commissioner], who shall hold his position for the period of two years, and any vacancies occurring in said commission by death, resignation, or otherwise, shall, for the unexpired term be filled by the appointment and commission of the governor. The general duties of the said commissioner, in addition to other' duties prescribed by this act, shall be to forward the restoration of fish to the rivers and waters of this state, and to stock the same with fish as he may be supplied with means for that purpose by the United States fish commissioners and by societies and individuals interested in the propagation of fish in the waters of the state.

SEC. 2. [To examine methods, etc.]—It shall also be the duty of the fish commissioner to make an examination of the various improved fish-ladders, fish-ways, and of the methods necessary to be used to secure the passage of migratory fish up through or over the dams now constructed in the state, and to report to the next general assembly, through the governor, the cost of construction of the various improved methods with the applicability thereof to the streams of the state, with such other information as in his judgment may be proper, with the cause or causes of the decrease of fish in the streams of the state, and the means that must be used to secure fish in abundance therein; and to report also what arrangements it will be necessary to make with the owners of mill-dams now constructed to secure the construction of fish-ways in such dams without doing injustice to the owners of such dams and to report generally such facts in connection with the construction of fish-ways and the stocking of the streams of the state with fish as in their opinion may be needed for the information of the general assembly.

SEC. 3. (As substituted by ch. 70, 16th g.a). [The fish commissioner shall receive in full compensation for his services, twelve hundred dollars per year, to be paid out of the appropriation as herein made, and he shall, by virtue of his office act as superintendent and secretary].

SEC. 4. [To enforce this act.]—It shall also be the duty of said fish commis sioner to see that the provisions of this act are enforced, and for that purpose he shall have the right to call to his assistance any prosecuting attorney, to prosecute all violations of this act in the judicial district, where such violation occurs.

SEC. 5. [Dams hereafter constructed to have fish-ways.]—It shall be the duty of any person or persons, or corporations, hereafter erecting or constructing any dam in any of the rivers within the state, or their tributaries accessible to migratory fishes, to put in or upon the same, fish-ways, under the direction and approval of said fish commissioner, without which every such dam shall be deemed a public nuisance, and liable to be abated upon the information of any one complaining; and the person or persons constructing a dam, in violation of this section, shall be liable to a fine of ten dollars for each day such dam shall be continued without a fish-way, such as shall be required by the commissioners under this act.

Sec. 6. (As amended by sec. 12, ch. 70, 16th g. a.) [Obstructions.]—No person shall place, erect, or cause to be placed or erected across any of the rivers, creeks, ponds, or lakes, [of] the state, any dam, seine, weir, fish-dam, or other obstruction in such manner as [to prevent] the free passage of fish up or down through such watercourse [unless otherwise ordered by the commissioner] and from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any person to use any seine or net for the purpose of catching fish, except minnows [that are natives] of the waters of the state, [provided always, that it shall be lawful for the fish commissioner to take fish in any of the public waters at any time, and by any method, for the purpose of propagation, or for the purpose of exchanging with fish commissioners of other states or of the United States. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prohibit the erection of dams for manufacturing purposes as now provided by law.]

Sec. 7. [Fine for violation.]—Any person found guilty of a violation of the provisions of section six of this act shall upon conviction before a justice of the peace be fined not less than five nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and for the second or any subsequent offense not less than twenty dollars, and shall stand committed until such fine be paid.

Sec. 8. [Lime, etc., with intent etc., prohibited.]—No person shall place in any of the waters of the state any lime, ashes, drug, or medicated bait, with intent thereby to injure, poison, or catch fish. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be punished as provided in section seven of this act.

Sec. 9. [Fishing within half mile of fish-way, except with hook and line or spear unlawful.]—It shall not be lawful to fish with nets or any other method of entrapping fish, except with hook and line, or spear, in the ordinary manner of fishing, within half a mile of any dam in which there is or may be constructed a fish way, for the purpose of the passage of fish up and down any stream in the state. Any person found guilty of the violation of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be fined as provided in section seven of this act.

Sec. 10. [Where prosecution may be brought.]—Prosecutions for violations of this act may be brought either in the county in which the offense was committed or in any other county where the person, company or corporation complained of has had or has in his or their possession any birds or animals herein named, bought, sold, killed, trapped or ensnared, in violation of any of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 11. [Court to appoint attorney.]—In all prosecutions under this act the court before whom the same is brought shall appoint some attorney-at-law for the purpose of managing the prosecution of the cause, and such attorney shall be entitled to a fee of ten dollars in each and every case in which he is so appointed, and the person filing an information under this act shall, in case of conviction, be ettitled to a fee equal to one-half of the amount of the fine imposed on each conviction, and both the fee of such attorney and the informant shall be taxed as costs in the case against the person convicted.

Provided, That the county shall in no case be held liable for said attorney's fee or penalty.

Sec. 12. [Repeal.]—All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers, March 29, 1878.)
An Act to promote fish culture in the state of Iowa, and amend chapter fifty, of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly, enlarge and define the duties of fish commissioner, and appropriate money to carry out the provisions of this act.

SECTION 1. [Duty of commissioner.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it is hereby made the duty of the fish commissioner to proceed without unnecessary delay to distribute among the several counties in the state, fairly and as equally as in the judgment of the commissioner may be to the best interest of the state, all the fish now on hand at the state hatching house at Anamosa, that are now ready and fit for distribution; provided, always, that counties that have heretofore been partially supplied shall receive less, in proportion to the numbers they have heretofore received.

SEC. 2. [Five hundred thousand eels to be distributed.]—That said commissioner is hereby further authorized and empowered to procure and distribute among the several counties of the state during the year 1876, 500,000 live eels, in such lakes, ponds or water courses, throughout said counties, as in the judgment of the fish commissioner are best adapted to the increase and support of the same; said eels to be procured of the United States fish commissioner, or from such other source or sources as are most expedient and of the least expense to the state; and that all fish that may hereafter be bred or hatched at the state hatching house at Anamosa shall, as soon as the same are ready and fit for distribution, be distributed among the several counties, and at such seasons as the fish commissioner shall deem best adapted to the preservation and increase of the same; provided, that not more than one thousand dollars shall be used for this purpose.

SEC. 3. [May expend for increase of native fish.]—That during the years 1876 and 1877, the fish commissioner shall have the power to expend one thousand dollars of the money hereinafter appropriated, in facilitating the increase of the number of fish that are natives of the waters of this state, and in such ways and manner as in the judgment of said commissioner shall be most conducive to that end.

And be it further enacted, That sections 6 and 7, of chapter 50 of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly be amended to read as follows:

SEC. 6. [Obstructions prohibited.]—[No person shall place, erect, or cause to be placed or erected, across any of the rivers, creeks, ponds or lakes of this state, any dam, seine, weir, fish-dam or other obstruction, in such manner as to prevent the free passage of fish up or down through such water courses, unless otherwise ordered by the commissioner; and from and after the passage of this act, it shall be unlawful for any person to use any seine or net for the purpose of catching fish, except minnows that are natives of the waters of the state; provided, always, that it shall be lawful for the fish commissioner to take fish in any of the public waters at any time, and by any method, for the purpose of propagation, or for the purpose of exchanging with fish commissioners of other states or of the United States. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prohibit the erection of dams for manufacturing purposes, as now provided by law.]

SEC. 7. [Fine.]—Any person found guilty of a violation of the provisions of section six of this act, shall upon a conviction before a justice of the peace, be fined not less than five nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and for
SEC. 4. [Fish in waters of private parties.—Persons raising or propagating fish on their own premises, or owning premises on which there are waters having no natural outlet, supplied with fish, shall absolutely own said fish, and any person taking fish therefrom, or attempting to take fish therefrom without the consent of the owner, or his agent, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than twenty-five dollars, nor less than five dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days, and shall be liable to the owners of the fish in damages in double the amount of damages sustained, the same to be recovered in a civil action before any court having jurisdiction over the same.

SEC. 5. [$8,750 appropriated.—That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, there is hereby appropriated out of any money belonging to the state, and not otherwise appropriated, the sum of eight thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars ($8,750) or so much thereof as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, and chapter fifty of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly on the same subject; provided, that the said eight thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars ($8,750) shall be under the control of the executive council, as provided in section one, of chapter seventy-four, of the private, local and temporary laws of the fifteenth general assembly. And provided further, that the fish commissioner make a detailed, itemized and sworn statement to said executive council on or before the 15th day of November, 1876, and annually thereafter, showing the amount of money expended, for what purpose or purposes expended; the number and kind of fish distributed, and when and where distributed, together with such general information on the subject of fish culture as said commissioner may think proper; and upon the submission of such report, and each subsequent report, the executive council shall cause to be printed 2,000 copies thereof; and when so printed shall transmit by mail not less than fifteen of said reports to the auditor of each county in this state for general distribution.

SEC. 6. [When it shall be unlawful to kill certain fish.—It shall be unlawful to catch and kill any bass or wall-eyed pike between the first day of April and the first day of June, or any salmon or trout between the first day of November and the first day of February, of any year, in any manner whatever.

SEC. 7. [Fine.—Any person found guilty of a violation of section six of this act shall, on conviction before a justice of the peace, be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense, and shall stand committed until such fine be paid.

SEC. 8. [Commissioner to purchase certain land.—The commissioner is further authorized to purchase on behalf of the state a certain piece of land situated in Jones county, said to contain twenty acres, upon which the state fish hatching house is located, and pay therefor the sum of three hundred and sixty dollars, and take a deed of said land in the name of the state of Iowa, and have the same recorded in the proper office for the record of such deed.

SEC. 9. [Superintendent.—The commissioner may, with the consent of the executive council, employ a person as superintendent and secretary, who may be one of the said commissioner[s], whose duties shall be to attend to the correspondence and accounts of the commission, supervise the obtaining of ova, the hatching and distribution of fish, and such other duties as the commissioner may from time to time prescribe.

SEC. 10. (As amended by ch. 92, 18th g. a.) [Proviso.—Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be held to apply to fishing in the Mississippi and Missouri rivers nor in so much of the Des Moines river as forms the boundary between the states of Iowa and Missouri.]
OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY. [TITLE XXIV.

SEC. 11. [Repealing clause.]—All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 12. That section 1, of chapter 50, of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly, be amended by striking out of the second and third lines thereof the words “three competent persons who shall be known as fish commissioners,” and inserting in lieu thereof the words “one competent person who shall be known as fish commissioner,” and that said act be so amended as to read and apply to one commissioner, instead of commissioners.

SEC. 13. That Section 3, of chapter 50, of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly, be, and the same is hereby repealed, and that there be enacted in lieu thereof the following:

[SEC. 3.] [Compensation.]—The fish commissioner shall receive in full compensation for his services twelve hundred dollars per year, to be paid out of the appropriation as herein made, and he shall, by virtue of his office, act as superintendent and secretary.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers March 18, 1876.)

[NOTE.—The sections of the foregoing chapter seem to be confused in their order, but except as to the amendment to section 10, the statute is an exact copy of the law as published in the official publications of 1876.]

PROPAGATION OF FISH.

An Act entitled “An Act to promote fish culture in the state of Iowa, and to amend and consolidate the enactments heretofore passed for that purpose, amending chapter 70, acts of the sixteenth general assembly.

SECTION 1. [One commissioner appointed.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the governor of the state is hereby authorized and required to appoint, after the expiration of the term of the present incumbent, and biennially thereafter, one competent person, who shall be known as the state fish commissioner, who shall hold his position for the term of two years; and any vacancy that may occur, for the unexpired term, or by reason of the expiration of the term of said office, shall be filled by the appointment and commission of the governor.

[Duties.]—The general duties of said commissioner, including the present incumbent, shall be to have general charge and superintendence of the state hatching house, now located at Anamosa, to forward the restoration of fish to the rivers and waters of the state, and to stock the same, with fish from said hatching house, and elsewhere to the extent that means therefor may be furnished by the state, and to the extent that means for that purpose may be furnished by the United States fish commissioner, and by societies and individuals interested in the propagation of fish in the waters of this state.

SEC. 2. [Salary.]—The fish commissioner, including the present incumbent, shall receive, in full compensation of his services, twelve hundred dollars per year, to be paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 3. [Six thousand dollars appropriated.]—That for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, and continuing the work as contemplated in laws of 1876, chapter 70 thereof, there is hereby appropriated out of any money belonging to the state, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of six thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act:
Provided, that said amount be under the control of the executive council of the state.

SEC. 4. [Report of commissioner.]-That it shall be the duty of said fish commissioners to make a detailed, itemized and sworn statement, on or before two years after the 15th day of November, 1877, and every two years thereafter, showing the amount of money expended, for what purpose or purposes expended, the number and kinds of fish distributed, together with such general information on the subject of fish culture as such commissioner may think proper; and upon the submission of such report, and each subsequent, the same shall be caused to be printed and distributed to the same extent and in the same manner as now provided by law for the printing and distribution of the reports of public officers of the state.

SEC. 5. [Obstructions prohibited.]-No person shall place, erect, or cause to be placed or erected, across any of the rivers, creeks, ponds or lakes of this state, any trot-line, dam, seine, weir, fish-dam or other obstruction, in such manner as to prevent the free passage of fish up, down or through such water courses, unless the same be done by the instruction or under the direction of the fish commissioner, and that when the same is so done by or through the instruction, or under the direction of the fish commissioner, it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to remove, or in any way interfere with the same. This section shall not be construed to prohibit the erection of dams for manufacturing purposes as provided by law.

SEC. 6. [Penalty.]-Any person found guilty of a violation of the provisions of section five of this act, shall upon conviction before a justice of the peace, be fined not less than twenty-five, nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten days, nor more than thirty days, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 7. [Repeal.]-All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers, March 31, 1878.)

(Chapter 188, Laws of 1878.)

CONSTRUCTION OF FISH-WAYS.

An act to provide for the construction and maintenance of fish-ways to enable fish to pass over dams across the rivers and streams of the state of Iowa.

SECTION 1. [Shall be constructed within reasonable time.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the owner or owners of any dam or obstruction across any river or stream, creek, pond, lake, or water course, in this state, shall, within a reasonable time, erect, construct and maintain, over or across said dam or obstruction, a suitable fish-way of suitable capacity and facility to afford a free passage for fish up and down through such water course when the water of said stream is running over the said dam.

SEC. 2. [Dam or obstruction a nuisance.]-Any dam or obstruction mentioned in section one of this act, not provided with such fish-way within a reasonable time after the taking effect of this act, is hereby declared a nuisance, and may be abated accordingly.

SEC. 3. [Penalty.]-Any person guilty of the violation of the provisions of this act, shall, upon conviction before a justice of the peace, be fined not less than five nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and not less than twenty dollars for each subsequent offense, and shall stand committed until such fine is paid.

Approved, March 26, 1878.
(Took effect by publication in newspapers, April 7, 1878.)
An Act to protect and preserve the fish in the permanent lakes and ponds within the state of Iowa.

Section 1. [Spearing season.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That no person shall take by spearing with a gaff, spear or other device any fish from any of the permanent lakes or ponds, or outlets or inlets thereto within the state of Iowa, between the first day of November and the thirty-first day of May next following.

Section 2. [Unlawful vending.]—It shall be unlawful for any person, company or corporation, knowingly to buy or sell, or offer for sale, or have in his or their possession, any fish which shall have been taken from any of the permanent lakes or ponds, or outlets or inlets thereto within this state by spearing with gaff, spear, or other device between the first day of November and the thirty-first day of May next following. And any person who may draw from the water any game fish such as pike, bass, and the like when seining for minnows for bait, shall return the same without injury under the penalties of this act.

Section 3. [Penalty.]—Any person found guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this act shall upon conviction before any magistrate be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars for the first offense, and for the second or any subsequent offense not less than twenty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall stand committed until such fine be paid.

Section 4. [Place of action.]—Prosecution for violations of this act may be brought and maintained in any county in which the offense was committed or in any county where the person, company, or corporation against whom complaint is made, has or has had or has bought or sold or offered for sale any fish which were taken by spearing in violation of this act.

Section 5. [Prosecutor appointed.]—In all prosecutions under this act the court before whom the same is brought, or in which it shall be prosecuted, shall appoint an attorney for the prosecution of the case, and such attorney and the person filing the information under this act shall each be entitled to a fee of five dollars for each and every conviction, which fees of such attorney and informant shall be taxed as costs in the case against the person or persons so convicted, and any fish found in the possession of any person, company or corporation in violation of the provisions of this act may be seized and sold for the purpose of paying the costs in the case, but in no case under this act shall any county be liable for the fees of such attorney or informant.

Section 6. [Spearing on one's own land.]—Nothing in this act shall prevent any person from taking fish of his own propagation or from waters wholly within his own land, to which there is no natural outlet through which the fish pass up or down.

Approved, March 6, 1884.
Took effect by publication in newspapers.

ESTABLISHING FISH HATCHING AT SPIRIT LAKE.

An Act to locate the state fish hatching house at Spirit Lake, and sell the property heretofore used for fish hatching in Jones county, to abolish the office of assistant fish commissioner and to appropriate money for the purposes of this act.

SECTION 1. [Hatchery in Jones county transferred to Spirit Lake.]
Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The state fish hatchery now located in Jones county, is hereby transferred and located at Spirit Lake in Dickinson county, Iowa, and the state shall hereafter keep and maintain but the one hatchery located in Dickinson county.

SEC. 2. [Commissioner authorized to purchase land for same.]—The fish commissioner is hereby authorized to purchase on behalf of the state the necessary land at an expense to the state not to exceed one dollar, upon which the state fish hatching house shall be located and to take a deed of said land in the name of the state of Iowa and have the same recorded in the proper office for the record of such deed.

SEC. 3. [Time when hatchery shall be removed.]—The fish commissioner shall as soon as practicable, and not later than the first day of September, 1886, remove all fish and movable property belonging to the state now at said hatching house in Jones county to Spirit Lake, and shall proceed as soon as possible to make the necessary improvements and preparations for a fish hatching house at Spirit Lake.

SEC. 4. The fish commissioner is hereby directed, with the approval of the executive council, to sell the real estate and such other property as cannot be profitably removed, now located in Jones county, as soon as the same can be sold for the best interest of the state. Said sale may be either public or private as shall be deemed best. The proceeds of said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended in purchasing and improving the grounds for the hatchery at Spirit Lake. There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purposes of this act the sum of two thousand dollars, one thousand dollars of which may be drawn prior to June, 1887, and the balance prior to June, 1888.

SEC. 5. Whenever the law in regard to the propagation of fish now in force refers to the hatching house at Anamosa the same shall be deemed hereafter to refer so far as applicable to the hatching house at Spirit Lake.

SEC. 6. The office of assistant commissioner is hereby abolished.

SEC. 7. The fish commissioner shall hereafter have his office and headquarters at Spirit Lake, Dickenson county, Iowa.
Approved, April 10, 1886.

FOR THE PRESERVATION OF QUAIL.

An Act for the protection and preservation of quail.

SECTION 1. [Unlawful to destroy quail for two years from October.]
—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons within this state, to shoot or kill, to catch or attempt to catch, in any snare, trap or net, any quail from and after the first day of October 1884, for and during the period of two years from said date except for the preservation of the same during the winter months.

Sec. 2. [Penalty.]—The same penalty, as it now exists, in section 7, chapter 156, of the laws of 1878 shall be held to apply to any violation of this act.

Approved April 5, 1884.

(CHAPTER 156, LAWS OF 1878.)

PROTECTION OF GAME.

An Act to repeal sections 4048, 4049, 4050 and 4051, chapter 11, title XXIV, of the code, chapter 69 of the public laws of the fifteenth general assembly, and chapter 122 of the laws of the sixteenth general assembly, in relation to the protection of game, and to enact a substitute in lieu thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That section 4048, 4049, 4050 and 4051 of the code, chapter 69, of the public laws of the fifteenth general assembly, and chapter 122, of the laws of the sixteenth general assembly be repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

Sec. 2. (As amended by ch. 67, 20th g. a.) [Killing of certain game at certain seasons punished.]—It shall be unlawful for any person within this state to shoot or kill any pinnated grouse or prairie chicken between the first day of December and the [first day of September] next following; any woodcock between the first day of January and the tenth day of July; any ruffed grouse or pheasant, wild turkey or quail, between the first of January and the first day of October; any wild duck, goose or brant, between the first day of May and the fifteenth day of August; or any wild deer, elk or fawn, between the first day of January and the first day of September.

Sec. 3. [Killing of certain game at any time punished.]—It shall be unlawful for any person, at any time, or at any place within this state to shoot or kill for traffic any pinnated grouse or prairie chicken, woodcock, quail, ruffed grouse or pheasant; or for any one person to shoot or kill during any one day, more than twenty-five of either kind of said named birds; or for any one person, firm or corporation, to have more than twenty-five of either kind of said named birds in his or their possession at any one time, unless lawfully received for transportation; or to catch or take, or attempt to catch or take, with any trap, snare or net, any of the birds or animals named in section two (2) of this act, or in any manner willfully to destroy the eggs or nests of any of the birds hereby intended to be protected from destruction.

Sec. 4. [Trapping beaver, etc.]—It shall be unlawful for any person to kill, trap or ensnare, any beaver, mink, otter, or muskrat, between the first day of April and the first day of November, except where such killing, trapping, or snaring may be for the protection of private property.

Sec. 5. [Unlawful to have in possession certain birds at certain seasons.]—It shall be unlawful for any person, company or corporation, to buy or sell, or have in possession any of the birds or animals named in section two (2) of this act during the period when the killing of such bird or animal is prohibited by said section two (2) except during the first five days of such prohibited period; and the having in possession by any person, company or corporation of any such birds or animals during such prohibited period except during the first five days thereof, shall be deemed prima facie evidence of a violation of this act.

Sec. 6. [Shipping of birds out of the state prohibited.]—It shall be unlawful for any person, company or corporation at any time to ship, take or carry out of this state any of the birds or animals named in section two (2) of this act; but it shall be lawful for any person to ship to any person within this state, any game birds, named in said section two (2) not to exceed one dozen in number in any one day, during the period, when by this act the killing of such birds is not prohibited; Provided, he shall first make an affidavit before some person authorized to administer oaths, that said birds have not been unlawfully killed, bought, sold or had in possession, are not being shipped for sale or profit, giving the name and postoffice address of the person to whom shipped and the number of birds to be so shipped. A copy of such affidavit, indorsed, "A true copy of the original," by the person administering the oath, shall be furnished by him to the affiant, who shall deliver the same to the railroad agent or common carrier receiving such birds for transportation, and the same shall operate as a release to such carrier or agent from any liability in the shipment or carrying of such birds.

The original affidavit shall be retained by the officer taking the same, and may be used as evidence in any prosecution for violation of this act. Any person swearing falsely to any material fact of said affidavit, shall be guilty of perjury, and punished accordingly.

SEC. 7. [Penalty for violation of this act.]—If any person shall kill, trap, ensnare, buy, sell, ship or have in possession, or ship, take or carry out of the state, contrary to the provisions of this act, any of the birds or animals named in this act, or shall willfully destroy any eggs or nests of birds named in this act, he shall be punished by a fine of ten dollars for each bird, beaver, mink otter or muskrat; twenty-five dollars for each wild deer, elk or fawn, and ten dollar for each nest or the eggs therein, so killed, trapped, ensnared, bought, sold, shipped, had in possession, destroyed or shipped, taken or carried out of the state, and shall stand committed to the county jail for thirty days unless such fine and costs of prosecution are sooner paid.

SEC. 8. Penalty against railways, etc., who shall transport.]—If any railway, express company, or other common carrier, or any of their agents or servants, knowingly receive any of the above mentioned birds or animals for transportation or other purpose, during the periods hereinbefore limited and prohibited, or at any other time except in the manner provided in section six (6) of this act, they shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 9. Penalty for using swivel gun or poison.]—If any person shall shoot or kill any wild duck, goose or brant, with any swivel gun, or any kind of gun except such as is commonly shot from the shoulder; or shall use medicated or poisoned food to capture or kill any of the birds named in this act, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined twenty-five dollars for each offense, and shall stand committed to the county jail for thirty days, unless such fine and the costs of prosecution are sooner paid.

SEC. 10. [Where prosecution may be brought.]—Prosecutions for violations of this act may be brought either in the county in which the offense was committed or in any other county where the person, company or corporation complained of has had or has in his or their possession any birds or animals herein named, bought, sold, killed, trapped or ensnared, in violation of any of the provisions of this act.

SEC. 11. [Court to appoint attorney.]—In all prosecutions under this act the court before whom the same is brought shall appoint some attorney-at-law for the purpose of managing the prosecution of the cause, and such attorney shall be entitled to a fee of ten dollars in each and every case in which he is so appointed, and the person filing an information under this act shall, in case of conviction, be entitled to a fee equal to one half of the amount of the fine imposed on each conviction, and both the fee of such attorney and the informant shall be taxed as costs in in the case against the person convicted; provided, that the county shall in no case be held liable for said attorney's fee or penalty.

Sec. 12. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

(Chapter 144, Laws of 1878.)

TO PREVENT OFFICERS OF STATE INSTITUTIONS FROM BEING INTERESTED IN CONTRACTS FOR SUPPLIES.

An Act to prevent trustees and other officers of state institutions from furnishing supplies to or being interested in contracts with such institutions, and to punish the violation of the same.

Section 1. [No officer shall be interested in furnishing supplies:]—

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any trustee, warden, superintendent, steward, or any other officer of any educational, penal, charitable, or reformatory institution, supported in whole or in part by the state, to be interested directly or indirectly in any contract to furnish or in furnishing provisions, material, or supplies of any kind, to or for the institution of which he is an officer; and it shall be unlawful for any such trustee, warden, superintendent, steward, or other officer, directly or indirectly, to receive in money or any valuable thing any commission, percentage, discount, or rebate on any provision, material, or supplies furnished for or to any institution of which he is an officer. And it shall be unlawful for any such trustee, warden, superintendent, steward, or other officer of any state institution to be directly or indirectly interested in any contract with the state to build repair, or furnish any institution of which he may be an officer.

Sec. 2. [Penalty.]—Any person violating the provisions of section 1 of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, in the discretion of the court, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Approved, March 25, 1878.

(Chapter 79, Laws of 1888.)

An Act to prevent fraud in the sale of lard, and to provide punishment for the violation thereof.

Section 1. (Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:) No manufacturer or other person or persons shall sell, deliver, prepare, put up, expose or offer for sale any lard or any article intended for use as lard, which contains any ingredient but the pure fat of healthy swine in any tierce, bucket, pail, package, or other vessel or wrapper, or under any label bearing the words "pure," "refined," "family," or either of said words alone or in combination with other words of like import, unless every tierce, bucket, pail, package or other vessel, wrapper or label, in or under which said article is sold, delivered, prepared, put up, exposed or offered for sale bears on the top or outer side thereof, in letters not less than one half-inch in length and plainly exposed to view, the words "Compound Lard" and the name and proportion in pounds and fractional parts thereof of each ingredient contained therein.

Sec. 2. Any person who violates any provisions hereof shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor for each violation, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined for the first offense not less than twenty dollars nor more than fifty dollars, and every subsequent offense under this act shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars.

Approved March 10, 1888.

(Chapter 137, Laws of 1880.)

TO PREVENT FRAUD IN SALE OF LARD.

An Act to prevent fraud in the sale of lard in certain cases.

Sec. 1. [Information to be given.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all persons or associations who shall engage in the business of selling lard rendered from swine that have died of hog cholera, or other diseases, shall, before selling or offering to sell such lard, plainly stamp, print, or write upon the cask, barrel, or other vessel containing such lard, the words: "Lard from hogs which have died of disease"; or, if sold without such cask, barrel, or other receptacles, the purchaser shall be informed that the lard is from hogs which have died of disease.

Sec. 2. [For not giving such notice, fine or imprisonment.]—For a violation of the provisions of the foregoing section the offender shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than five dollars, nor exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers, April 2, 1880.

TO PUNISH FRAUDS ON HOTEL-KEEPERS, ETC.

An Act to define and punish frauds upon hotel, inn, boarding and eating house keepers.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa, That any person who shall obtain food, lodging, or other accommodations at any hotel, inn, boarding or eating house, with intent to defraud the owner or keeper thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 2. Proof that lodging, food, or other accommodation, was obtained by false pretense, or by false or fictitious show or pretense of baggage, or that the party refused or neglected to pay for such food, lodging, or other accommodation, on demand, or that he absconded or left the premises without paying or offering to pay for such food, lodging, or other accommodation, or that he surreptitiously removed, or attempted to remove his baggage, shall be prima facie proof of the fraudulent intent mentioned in section one of this act; but this act shall not apply to regular boarders, nor where there has been an agreement for delay in payment.

Approved March 22, 1880.
An Act to punish and prevent fraud in the sale of grain, seed and other cereals.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Iowa: That whoever, either for his own benefit or as the agent of any corporation, company, association or person, obtains from any other person anything of value, or procures the signature of any such person, as maker, indorser, grantor or surety thereon, to any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, as the whole or part consideration of any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain, seed or cereals binding the vendor or any other person, corporation, company, association, or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, seed or cereals at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than four times the market price of such grain, seed or cereals; and whoever sells, barter, or disposes of, or offers to sell, barter or dispose of, either for his own benefit or as the agent of any corporation, company, association or person, any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, check, or other evidence of indebtedness, knowing the same to have been obtained as the whole or part consideration of any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain, seed or cereals binding the vendor or any other person, corporation, company, association, or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, seed or cereals at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than four times the market price of such grain, seed or cereals, shall on conviction thereof be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years, or be fined in the sum of not more than $500 nor less than $100, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Approved April 9, 1888.

SECTION 2. This act being deemed of immediate importance, shall be in full force and effect from and after its publication in the Iowa State Register and Des Moines Leader, newspapers published at Des Moines, Iowa.

Approved April 9, 1888.

An act to prevent fraud in the sale of flour and other mill products.

SECTION 1. [Packages to be marked.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in all cases where flour, meal, and other mill products are sold by the sack or package purporting to weigh a certain number of pounds, the weight of each sack, or package, shall be plainly marked, or stamped thereon. And if any such sack or package sold, shall weigh less than the amount marked thereon, the person so selling the same shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than five dollars, or more than twenty-five dollars, in the discretion of the court.

Approved March 30, 1888.
An Act to prevent deception in the manufacture and sale of imitations of butter and cheese.

SECTION 1. [Imitation butter and cheese defined.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That for the purposes of this act every article, substance or compound other than that produced from pure milk or cream from the same made in semblance of butter and designed to be used as a substitute for butter made from pure milk or cream from the same is hereby declared to be imitation butter; and that for the purposes of this act every article, substance or compound other than that produced from pure milk or cream from the same made in the semblance of cheese and designed to be used as a substitute for cheese made of pure milk or cream from the same is hereby declared to be imitation cheese; provided, that the use of salt, rennet, and harmless matter for coloring the product of pure milk or cream, shall not be construed to render such product an imitation.

SEC. 2. [Shall be marked, how: misdemeanor: penalty.]—Each person who manufactures imitation butter or imitation cheese shall mark by branding, stamping or stenciling upon the top and sides of each tub, firkin, box or other package in which such article shall be kept and in which it shall be removed from the place where it is produced, in a clear and durable manner, in the English language, the name of the contents thereof as herein designated, in printed letters of plain roman type, each of which shall be not less than one inch in length by one-half of one inch in width. Every person who by himself or another violates the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not to exceed two hundred and fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed sixty days.

SEC. 3. [Shall not be shipped unless marked.]—No person by himself or another shall knowingly ship, consign or forward by any carrier whether public or private any imitation butter or imitation cheese, unless the same be marked as provided by section two of this act; and no carrier shall knowingly receive for the purpose of forwarding or transporting any imitation butter or imitation cheese, unless it shall be marked as hereinbefore provided, consigned, and by the carrier receipted for by its name as designated by this act; provided that this act shall not apply to any goods in transit between foreign states and across the state of Iowa.

SEC. 4. [Possession.]—No person shall knowingly have in his possession or under his control any imitation butter or imitation cheese unless the tub, firkin, box or other package containing the same be clearly and durably marked as provided by section two of this act; provided, that this section shall not be deemed to apply to persons who have the same in their possession for the actual consumption of themselves or family.

SEC. 5. [Selling without being marked.]—No person by himself or another shall knowingly sell or offer for sale imitation butter or imitation cheese under the name of, or under the pretense that the same is pure butter or pure cheese; and no person by himself or another shall knowingly sell any imitation butter or imitation cheese unless he shall have informed the purchaser distinctly at the time of the sale, that the same is imitation butter or imitation cheese, as the case may be, and shall have delivered to the purchaser at the time of the sale a statement clearly printed in the English language, which shall refer to the article sold and which shall contain in prominent and plain roman type the name of the article sold as fixed by this act and shall give the name and place of business of the maker.

Sec. 6. [Hotels, eating houses, etc.]—No keeper of a hotel, boarding house, restaurant, or other public place of entertainment shall knowingly place before any patron for the use as food any imitation butter or imitation cheese unless the same be accompanied by a placard containing the name in English of such article as fixed by this act printed in plain roman type. Each violation of this section shall be deemed a misdemeanor.

Sec. 7. [Action on contract.].—No action can be maintained on account of any sale or other contract made in violation of or with intent to violate this act by or through any person who was knowingly a party to such wrongful sale or other contract.

Sec. 8. [Possession presumes knowledge.].—Every person having possession or control of any imitation butter or imitation cheese which is not marked as required by the provisions of this act shall be presumed to have known during the time of such possession or control the true character and name as fixed by this act of such imitation product.

Sec. 9. [Defacing or removing marks.].—Whoever shall deface, erase, cancel or remove any mark provided for by this act with intent to mislead, deceive or to violate any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 10. [Penalty for violation.].—Whoever shall violate any of the provisions of the third, fourth and fifth sections of this act shall, for the first offense, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, and for each subsequent offense shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred and fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 11. (As amended by ch. 98, 22d g. a.) [Governor to appoint dairy commissioner.].—[The governor shall on or before the first day of April of each even-numbered year appoint an officer who shall be known as the Iowa state dairy commissioner, who shall have practical experience in the manufacture of dairy products, and who shall hold his office for a term of two years from the first day of May following his appointment and until his successor is appointed and qualified.] [Give bond.].—Said commissioner shall give an official bond conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with sureties to be approved by the governor. He may be removed from office by the governor, with the approval of the executive council, for neglect or violation of duty. Any vacancy shall be filled by the appointment of the governor by and with the advice and consent of the executive council.

Sec. 12. [Salary.].—The state dairy commissioner shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the expenses necessarily incurred in the proper discharge of the duties of his office; provided, that a complete itemized statement of all expenses shall be kept by the commissioner and by him filed with the auditor of state, after having been duly verified by (him) before receiving the same. He shall be furnished a room in the agricultural department of the capitol at Des Moines, in which he shall keep his office and all correspondence, documents, records and property of the state pertaining thereto, all of which shall be turned over to his successor in office. He may, if it is found to be necessary, employ a clerk, whose salary shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars per month. Said salaries and expenses to be paid from the appropriation provided for in section seventeen of this act. The commissioner provided for by this act shall hold no other official position under the laws of Iowa, or a professorship in any of the state institutions.
SEC. 13. [Duties.]—It shall be the duty of the state dairy commissioner to secure, so far as possible, the enforcement of this act. He shall collect, arrange and present in annual reports to the governor, on or before the first day of November of each year, a detailed statement of all matters relating to the purposes of this act, which he shall deem of public importance, including the receipts and disbursements of his office; such reports shall be published with the reports of the state agricultural society.

SEC. 14. [Power.]—The state dairy commissioner shall have power in all cases where he shall deem it important for the discharge of the duties of his office, to administer oaths, to issue subpoenas for witnesses and to examine them under oath and to enforce their attendance to the same extent and in the same manner as a justice of the peace may now do; and such witnesses shall be paid by the commissioner the same fees now allowed witnesses in justices' courts.

SEC. 15. [Possession construed.]—Whoever shall have possession or control of any imitation butter or imitation cheese, contrary to the provisions of this act, shall be construed to have possession of property with intent to use it as a means of committing a public offense within the meaning of chapter 50, of title XXV, of the code; provided, that it shall be the duty of the officer who serves a search warrant issued for imitation butter or imitation cheese, to deliver to the state dairy commissioner, or to any person by such commissioner authorized in writing to receive the same, a perfect sample of each article seized by virtue of such warrant, for the purpose of having the same analyzed, and forthwith to return to the person from whom it was taken the remainder of each article seized as aforesaid. If any sample be found to be imitation butter or imitation cheese it shall be returned to and retained by the magistrate as, and for, the purpose contemplated by section 4648 of the code, but if any sample be found not to be imitation butter or imitation cheese, it shall be returned forthwith to the person from whom it was taken.

SEC. 16. [Costs.]—It shall be the duty of the court in each action for the violation of this act to tax as costs in the cause, the actual and necessary expense of analyzing the alleged imitation butter or imitation cheese which shall be in controversy in such proceeding, provided that the amounts so taxed shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars. It shall be the duty of the district or county attorney, upon the application of the dairy commissioner, to attend to the prosecution in the name of the state of any suit brought for violation of any of the provisions of this act within his district, and in case of conviction he shall receive twenty-five per cent of the fines collected, which shall be in addition to any salary he may receive, to be taxed as costs in the case.

SEC. 17. (As substituted by ch. 98, 22d g. a.) [$20,000 appropriated.]—That the unexpended portion of the appropriation provided by section 17 of the 52d chapter of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, is hereby appropriated for the next biennial period, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the proper carrying out of the purposes of this act; but not more than one half of said unexpended balance shall be drawn from the state treasury prior to the first day of May, 1889. The amount hereby appropriated shall be expended only under the direction and with the approval of the executive council. And all salaries, fees, costs and expenses of every kind incurred in the carrying out of this law shall be drawn from the sum so appropriated.

SEC. 18. Chapter 39, of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly of Iowa, and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.

(The foregoing chapter 52, laws of 1886, as amended by chapter 98, twenty-second general assembly, is also amended by that act declared to be a general and permanent statute of the state. See section 3 of the act.)
An Act to prevent gambling by means of fictitious contracts for the buying or selling of grain or other produce, on margins and to provide a punishment therefor.

Section 1. [Unlawful to keep a place to deal in margins.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any corporation, association or society, person or persons to keep within this state any store, office or other place, wherein is conducted or permitted the pretended buying or selling of grain, pork, lard, or any mercantile or agricultural products on margins, without any intention of future delivery, whether such pretended contracts are to be performed within or without this state; and the keeping of all such places is hereby prohibited; and it shall be unlawful for any person, corporation, association or society, within this state, to make or enter into any contract, or pretended contract such as is above stated and referred to, and all such contracts are hereby prohibited. The intention of this act being to prevent and prohibit within this state the business now engaged in and conducted in places commonly known and designated as bucket shops. Provided, however that this act shall not apply to or in any way affect any contract for the actual buying or selling of any commodity whatever for present or future delivery, where the actual delivery or receipt of the thing sold is contemplated, and in good faith intended by either of the parties to the contract.

Sec. 2. [Punishment.]—Any person whether acting individually or as a member of any copartnership, corporation, association or society, guilty of violating any of the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof be adjudged to pay a fine for each offense of not less than one hundred dollars or more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or be both fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

Approved March 29, 1884.

An Act to insure the better education of practitioners of dentistry in the state of Iowa.

Section 1. [Examination required.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any person who is not at the time of the passage of this act, engaged in the practice of dentistry in this state to commence such practice unless such person shall have received a license from the board of examiners, or some member thereof as hereinafter provided, or a diploma from the faculty of some reputable dental college, duly authorized by the laws of this state, or by some other of the United States, or by the laws of some foreign country, in which college, or colleges, there was, at the time of the issue of such diploma, annually delivered a full course of lectures and instruction in dental surgery.

Sec. 2. [A board of five examiners to be appointed.]—A board of examiners is hereby created whose duty it shall be to carry out the purposes and enforce the provisions of this act. The members of said board shall be appointed by the governor, and shall consist of five practicing dentists, who shall have been engaged in the continuous practice of dentistry in the state for five years or over, at the time of, or prior to, the passage of this act. The term for which the members of said board shall hold their office shall be five years, except that the members of the board first to be appointed under this act shall hold their offices for the term[s] of one, two, three, four, and five years, respectively, and until their successors shall be duly appointed. In case of vacancy occurring in said board, such vacancy shall be filled by the governor.

Sec. 3. [Officers and meetings of the board: quorum and records.]—Said board shall choose one of its members president, and one secretary thereof; and it shall meet at least once in each year, and as much oftener, and at such times and places, as it may deem necessary. A majority of said board shall at all times constitute a quorum, and the proceedings thereof shall at all reasonable times be open to public inspection.

Sec. 4. [All dentists to register within six months.]—It shall be the duty of every person who is engaged in the practice of dentistry in this state, within six months from the date of the taking effect of this act, to cause his or her name and residence, or place of business, to be registered with the said board of examiners, who shall keep a book for that purpose; and every person, who shall so register with said board as a practitioner of dentistry, may continue to practice the same as such without incurring any of the liabilities or penalties of this act.

Sec. 5. [All persons not registered prohibited.]—No person whose name is not registered on the books of said board as regular practitioner of dentistry, within the limits prescribed in the preceding section, shall be permitted to practice dentistry in this state until such person shall have been duly examined by said board, and regularly licensed in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Sec. 6. [All other persons applying to be examined.]—Any and all persons, who shall so desire, may appear before said board at any of its regular meetings, and be examined with reference to their knowledge and skill in dental surgery, and, if such person shall be found after having been so examined to possess the requisite qualifications, said board shall issue a license to such person to practice dentistry in accordance with the provisions of this act. But said board shall at all times issue a license to any regular graduate of any reputable dental college, without examination, upon the payment by such graduate, to the said board, of a fee of one dollar. All licenses issued by said board shall be signed by the members thereof, and be attested by its president and secretary; and such license shall be prima facie evidence of the right of the holder to practice dentistry in the state of Iowa.

Sec. 7. [Temporary license.]—Any member of said board shall issue a temporary license to any applicant, upon the presentation of such applicant of the evidence of the necessary qualifications to practice dentistry; and such temporary license shall remain in force until the next regular meeting of said board occurring after the date of such temporary license, and no longer.

Sec. 8. [Penalty.]—Any person who shall violate any or the provisions of this act shall be liable to prosecution, before any court of competent jurisdiction, upon information, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 9. [Fee for examination.]—In order to provide the means for carrying out and maintaining the provisions of this act, the said board of examiners may charge each person applying to or appearing before them for examination for license to practice dentistry a fee of two dollars; and out of the funds coming into the possession of the board, from the fees so charged, the members of said board may receive as compensation the sum of five dollars for each day actually engaged in the duties of their office. And no part of the salary or other expenses of the board shall ever be paid out of the state treasury. All moneys received in excess of said per diem allowance shall be held by the secretary of said board as a special fund for meeting the expenses of said board, he giving such bond as the board shall from time to time direct. The said board shall make an annual report of its proceedings to the governor, by the fifteenth of November of each year, together with an account of all moneys received and disbursed by them pursuant to this act.

SEC. 10. [License to be registered with county clerk.]-Any person who shall be licensed by said board, to practice dentistry, shall cause his or her license to be registered with the county clerk of any county, or counties, in which such persons may desire to engage in the practice of dentistry; and the county clerks of the several counties in this state shall charge for registering such license a fee of twenty-five cents for each registration. Any failure, neglect, or refusal on the part of any person holding such license to register the same with the county clerk as above directed, for a period of six months, shall work a forfeiture of the license; and no license, when once forfeited, shall be restored, except upon the payment to the said board of examiners of the sum of twenty-five dollars, as a penalty for such neglect, failure, or refusal.

SEC. 11. Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent persons from extracting teeth.

Approved, March 8, 1882.

(Chapter 177, Laws of 1886.)

RELATING TO OBSCENE LITERATURE.

An Act to suppress the circulation, advertising and vending of obscene and immoral literature, and articles of indecent and immoral use, and to confiscate such property.

SECTION 1. [Obscene literature.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Whoever sells, or offers for sale, or gives away, or has in his possession with intent to sell, loan or give away, any obscene, lewd, indecent, or lascivious book, pamphlet, paper, drawing, lithograph, engraving, picture, photograph, model, cast, or any instrument, or article of indecent or immoral use, or any medicine, article, or thing designed or intended for procuring abortion, or preventing conception, or advertises the same for sale, or writes or prints any letter, circular, hand bill, card, book, pamphlet, advertisement, or notice of any kind, giving information, directly or indirectly, when, where, how, or by what means any of the articles or things herein before mentioned can be purchased or otherwise obtained or made, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 2. [Circulating through the mail prohibited.]-Whoever deposits in any post-office within this state, or places in charge of any person to be carried or conveyed, any of the articles or things named in section 1, of this act, or any circular, handbill, card, advertisement, book, pamphlet or notice of any kind, giving information, directly or indirectly, when, how, where, or by what means any of the articles or things mentioned in section 1, of this act, can be purchased or obtained, or knowingly or willfully receives the same to carry or convey, or knowingly carries or conveys the same in any manner, except in the United States mail, shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or both fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.
SEC. 3. [Printing or publishing same prohibited.]—Whoever prints or publishes or causes to be printed or published in any newspaper published or circulated in this state any advertisement of medicine, drug, nostrum or apparatus for the cure of private or venereal diseases, or shall circulate or distribute any newspaper containing such an advertisement or notice mentioned in this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4. [Giving or showing to minors, obscene or immoral literature, etc., prohibited.]—Whoever sells, lends, gives away, or shows or has in his possession with or without intent to sell, give away or show to any minor child, any book, pamphlet, magazine, newspaper, story paper or other paper devoted to the publication, or principally made up of criminal news, police reports or accounts of criminal deeds, or pictures and stories of immoral deeds, lust or crime, or exhibits upon any street or highway, or any place within the view, or which may be within the view of any minor child, any of the above described books, papers or pictures, or uses or employs any minor child to give away, sell or distribute, or who, having the care, custody or control of any minor child, permits such child to sell, give away or distribute any such books, papers or pictures above described, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned not more than six months in the county jail, or both fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 5. [Magistrates have power to issue warrants for search for or seizure of articles prohibited by this chapter.]—All magistrates and police judges in this state are authorized, on due complaint, supported by oath or affirmation, of one or more persons, to issue a warrant directed to the sheriff of the county within which such complaint shall be made, or to any constable or police officer within said county, directing him or them, or any of them, to search for, seize, and take possession of such books, papers, pictures, circulars, articles and things named in sections 1, of this act, and said magistrate or police judge shall deliver personally or shall transmit, enclosed and under seal, specimens thereof to the prosecuting attorney of his county, and shall deposit within the county jail of his county or other secure place as to him shall seem meet, enclosed and under seal, the remainder thereof, and shall, upon the conviction of the person or persons offending under the provisions of this act, forthwith, in the presence of the person or persons upon whose complaint the said seizure or arrest was made, if he or they shall elect to be present, destroy, or cause to be destroyed, the remainder thereof so seized as aforesaid, and shall be caused to be entered upon the record of his court the fact of such destruction.

SEC. 6. [Exceptions.]—Nothing in this act shall be construed to affect teaching in regularly chartered medical colleges; or the publication or use of standard medical books, or the practice of regular practitioners of medicine, or druggists in their regular business; or the possession by artists of models in the necessary line of their art.

SEC. 7. [Repealing clause.]—All acts inconsistent with this (act) are hereby repealed.

Approved April 13, 1886.
An Act to provide for the greater safety of passengers on board all sail and steam boats on the inland waters of the state of Iowa.

Section 1. [Must have license.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That from and after the taking effect of this act it shall be unlawful for any person as owner, agent or master of any sail or steam boat plying on the inland waters of this state, having capacity to carry five persons or more, to hire such boat for the carrying of persons, or to receive passengers for carriage thereon for hire, without each year before the boating season and before its use first obtaining a license for the said boat as hereinafter provided; and every person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished accordingly. Provided, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to any sail or steam boat duly licensed under laws of the United States during the term covered by such license.

Sec. 2. [Governor to appoint inspectors.]—That the governor shall on or before the (2d) second Monday in May in each year appoint such number of competent and suitable persons inspectors of boats as he may deem necessary, to serve until the second Monday in May of the next ensuing even numbered year, unless sooner removed by the governor. The person so appointed shall qualify by taking an oath to be endorsed upon his certificate of appointment, to faithfully and honestly discharge the duties of his office.

Sec. 3. [Inspectors' duty.]—That it shall be the duty of any inspector, upon demand of any owner, or master of any sail or steam boat, having capacity for the carrying of five passengers or more, plying upon the inland waters of the state, and upon payment to him of a fee hereinafter provided for, to thoroughly and carefully inspect such boat and all its machinery and appliances, and if such boat is found safe and suitable to be hired for the carrying of persons or for the carrying of passengers, to give to such owner, agent or master, a certificate to that effect, and certifying therein the number of persons that may be carried thereon, which certificate shall entitle such boat to be used for the carrying of passengers for the season from the date thereon; and said certificate or a copy thereof shall be posted in a conspicuous place on or in said boat, and any owner, agent or master of such boat knowingly permitting or receiving for carriage on such boat a greater number of persons than authorized in such certificate shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than twenty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars.

Sec. 4. [Pilots and engineers must have license.]—That it shall be unlawful for any person to act as pilot or engineer on any steamboat carrying passengers on the inland waters of this state without first obtaining a license so to do as hereinafter provided. And any person violating this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than twenty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. That any person desiring license as such pilot or engineer shall apply therefor to some inspector appointed under this act whose duty it shall be, upon payment to him of the fee hereinafter provided for, to forthwith inquire into the competence of such applicant. If such applicant is found to be of sober habits, competent and capable of performing the duties of a pilot or engineer as the case may be, the inspector shall issue to such pilot or engineer a certificate entitling him to act as such pilot or engineer, as the case may be for five years from the date thereof, unless sooner revoked for good cause by some inspector of the state with the approval of the governor.
SEC. 5. [Inspector's fees.] — That said inspector shall be entitled to charge the following fees and require payment thereof in advance: For each sailboat inspected ($1.00) one dollar; for each steamboat inspected ($10.00) ten dollars; provided that steamers with capacity of twenty or less passengers shall be inspected for five dollars, whether the same be licensed or not, and for each application for license as a pilot or engineer ($3.00) three dollars, whether license is granted or not.

SEC. 6. [Inspector's report.] — Said inspectors shall report on or before January first of each year, to the governor of the state, the whole number of licenses granted by them to pilots and engineers and to whom granted, the total number of sailboats and steamboats inspected by them, also the total amount of fees received by them for such licenses and inspection.

Approved, April 12, 1888.

An Act to prevent persons from unlawfully using or wearing the emblems and badges of the grand army of the republic, or of the military order of the loyal legion of the United States.

SECTION 1. [Unlawful wearing of badge of G. A. R. punished.] — Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That any person who shall willfully wear the badge or button of the grand army of the republic, or the insignia or rosette of the military order of the loyal legion of the United States, or use the same to obtain aid or assistance within this state, unless he shall be entitled to wear the same under the rules and regulations or constitution of such organizations, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not to exceed thirty days, or a fine not to exceed twenty dollars.

Approved, April 9, 1888.

An Act to provide that owners and keepers of pure bred or thorough bred bulls, standard bred or thorough bred stallions shall post notice of their registration.

SECTION 1. [Certificate of registration required.] — Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Any owner or keeper of a stallion or bull for public service, who represents him to be a pure bred or thorough bred bull, or standard bred, or thoroughbred stallion or bull, of any breed of horses or cattle, that have a stud or herd book for the registration of their pedigrees, shall place a copy of certificate of registration on the door of the stall or stable where said stallion is usually kept, giving the number of registration, name of breeder and name of animal and the volume and page of the stud or herd book in which said stallion or bull is recorded, and when requested to do so shall give to any patron a copy of said certificate.

SEC. 2. [Penalty for violation.] — Any owner or keeper of such stallion or bull who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished accordingly.

Approved, April 3, 1888.
CHAPTER 12.
OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC PEACE.

SECTION 4065. [Affray between two or more persons.]—If two or more persons voluntarily or by agreement engage in any fight, or use any blows or violence towards each other in an angry or quarrelsome manner, in any public place to the disturbance of others, they are guilty of an affray, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4066. [Unlawful assembly of three or more.]—When three or more persons in a violent or tumultuous manner assemble together to do an unlawful act, or, when together, attempt to do an act, whether lawful or unlawful, in an unlawful, violent, or tumultuous manner to the disturbance of others, they are guilty of an unlawful assembly, and every such offender shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4067. [Riot.]—When three or more persons together and in a violent or tumultuous manner commit an unlawful act, or together do a lawful act in an unlawful, violent, or tumultuous manner to the disturbance of others, they are guilty of a riot, and every such offender shall be punished as is provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 4068. [Who may be convicted.]—Any person guilty of unlawfully assembling, or of a riot, may alone be indicted and convicted thereof, but it must be alleged in the indictment and proved on the trial that three or more persons were engaged therein.

Sec. 4069. [Exciting disturbance in certain houses.]—If any person make or excite any disturbance in any tavern, store, or grocery, or at any election, or public meeting, or in any other place where the citizens are peaceably and lawfully assembled, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Sec. 4070. [Injuring or destroying houses, boats, etc.]—If any person or persons unlawfully or riotously assemble, pull down, injure, or destroy, or begin to pull down, injure or destroy, any dwelling house or other building; or destroy or attempt to injure or destroy any boat or vessel; or perpetrate any premeditated injury on the person of another, not being a felony, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, and shall also be answerable to any person injured to the full amount of the damages by him sustained in an action at law.

Sec. 4071. [Racing or fast driving on highways.]—Any person who shall be guilty of racing horses, or driving upon the public highway in a manner likely to endanger the persons or lives of others, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

Horse racing, except on the public highway, is not an offense under the statute. Delier v. The Plymouth County Agricultural Society, 57 Iowa, 451, 455.

Sec. 4072. [Breach of Sabbath.]—If any person be found on the first day of the week, commonly called sabbath, engaged in any riot, fighting, or offering to fight, or hunting, shooting, carrying fire arms, fishing, horse-racing, dancing, or in any manner disturbing any worshiping assembly, or private family; or in buying or selling property of any kind, or in any labor, the work of necessity and charity only excepted, every person so offending shall, on conviction, be fined in a sum not more than five dollars nor less than one dollar, to be recovered before any justice of the peace in the county where such offense is committed, and shall be committed to the jail of said county until the said fine, together with the costs of prosecution shall be paid; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to those who conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week as the sabbath, or to prevent persons traveling, or families emigrating from pursuing their journey, or keepers of toll bridges, toll gates, and ferrymen from attending the same.

The courts of this state will not enforce an express or implied contract for the sale of property made on the sabbath day, where the parties thereto do not come within the exceptions expressed in section 4072 of the code. Pike v. King, 16 Iowa, 49; Sayre v. Wheeler, 32 Id., 559; Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112; Clough v. Goggins, 46 Id., 525. And the same rule applies to a contract made in another state, in the absence of evidence that the contract was valid under the laws of the state where made. Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112; Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 559.

A contract made in violation of a statute and against the policy of the state, malum in se or malum prohibitum is invalid, and cannot be enforced by action. Id.

A contract void because made on Sunday, does not prevent the parties from making a valid contract with reference to the same subject matter on a subsequent week-day; nor it would seem from otherwise satisfying the original contract. Harrison v. Colton, 32 Id., 16.

Where a promissory note is void because executed on Sunday, the payee is not precluded from recovering upon the original contract which was the consideration for the note. Sayre v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112.

A written contract for the conveyance of land made on Sunday, but bearing the date of another day of the week, will be enforced in the hands of the transferee in good faith and without notice of the infirmity. Jones v. Bailey et al., 45 Id., 241.

A contract for an exchange of horses was made on Saturday which included the discharge of a debt due from one of the parties to the other, but the plaintiff took possession of the horse he traded for on Sunday: Held, that there was no consummation of the contract on Saturday as rendered it valid. Peske v. Conlan, 46 Id., 297.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff as the result of the frightening of his horse on the highway by the defendant's dogs, it was held, that plaintiff's right to recover was not affected by the fact that the accident occurred on Sunday while he was riding on a business errand. Schmidt v. Humphrey, 48 Id., 652.

A promissory note actually made on Sunday, but dated on a week day, is valid in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value before maturity. The Clinton National Bank v. Graves et al., 48 Id., 228.

An admission that a debt is unpaid, contained in a letter written on Sunday, is sufficient to remove the bar of the statute of limitations, and the letter is admissible as evidence for that purpose. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 518.

A railroad company incurs no other liability for running trains on Sunday than the fine provided by this section. The liability for killing stock by a train run on that day is to be determined by the same rules as if done on a secular day. Gingle v. The C. B. & Q. R'y Co., 60 Id., 333.

(Chapter 57, Laws of 1888.)

An Act for the protection of discharged employees and to prevent black listing.

SECTION 1. [Penalty for preventing employment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That if any person, agent, company or corporation, after having discharged any employe from his or its service shall prevent or attempt to prevent by word or writing of any kind such discharged employe from obtaining employment with any other person, company or corporation, except by furnishing in writing on request a truthful statement of the reasons for such discharge, such person, agent or corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars nor less than one hundred dollars, and such person, agent, company or corporation shall be liable in penal damages to such discharged person to be recovered by civil action; but this section shall not be construed as prohibiting any person or agent of any company or corporation from informing in writing any other person, company or corporation setting forth a truthful statement of the reasons for such discharge.
SEC. 2. [Employes not to be blacklisted by agents.]—If any railroad company or partnership or corporation in this state shall authorize or allow any of its or their agents to blacklist any discharged employes or attempt by word or writing or any other means whatever to prevent such discharged employe or any employe who may have voluntarily left said company's service from obtaining employment with any other person or company except as provided in section one thereof, such company or co-partnership shall be liable in treble damages to such employe so prevented from obtaining employment, to be recovered by him by a civil action.

Approved, April 16, 1888.

Took effect by publication in newspapers.

(CHAPTER 84, LAWS OF 1888.)

PUNISHMENT OF POOLS AND TRUSTS.

An Act for the punishment of pools, trusts, and conspiracies, and as to evidence in such cases.

SECTION 1. [Parties entering pools guilty of conspiracy.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: If any corporation organized under the laws of this state, or any other state or country for transacting or conducting any kind of business in this state, or any partnership or individual shall create, enter into, become a member of or a party to any pool, trust, agreement, combination or confederation with any other corporation, partnership or individual to regulate or fix the price of oil, lumber, coal, grain, flour, provisions, or any other commodity or article whatever; or shall create, enter into, become a member of or a party to any pool, agreement, combination or confederation to fix or limit the amount or quantity of any commodity or article to be manufactured, mined, produced or sold in this state, shall be deemed guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, and be subject to indictment and punishment as provided in the next section.

SEC. 2. [Punishment.]—Any person or corporation found guilty of a violation of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor to exceed five thousand dollars, and stand committed until such fine is paid.

SEC. 3. [Trials: witnesses.]—Upon the trial of any indictment against a corporation or a copartnership for a violation of the first section of this act, all officers and agents of such corporation or copartnership shall be competent witnesses against the defendant on trial, and such officers and agents may be compelled to testify against such defendant, and produce all books and papers in his custody or under his control pertinent to the issue in such trial, and shall not be excused from answering any such question, or from producing any books and papers because the same might tend to criminate such witness; but nothing which such witness shall testify to, and no books or papers produced by him shall in any manner be used against him in any suit, civil or criminal, to which he is a party.

SEC. 4. [Repeal.]—That all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved, April 16, 1888.
An Act to punish and prevent fraud in the sale of grain, seed and other cereals.

SECTION 1. [Penalty for selling at fictitious prices.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That whoever, either for his own benefit or as the agent of any corporation, company, association or person, obtains from any other person anything of value, or procures the signature of any such person, as maker, indorser, grantor or surety thereon; to any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, as the whole or part consideration of any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain seed or cereals binding the vendor or any other person, corporation, company, association or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, seed, or cereals at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than four times the market price of such grain, seed or cereals; and whoever sells, barters or disposes of, or offers to sell, barter or dispose of, either for his own benefit or as the agent of any corporation, company, association or person, any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, check, or other evidence of indebtedness, knowing the same to have been obtained as the whole or part consideration of any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain, seed or cereals binding the vendor or any other person, corporation, company, association, or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, seed or cereals at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than four times the market price of such grain, seed or cereals, shall on conviction thereof be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years, or be fined in the sum of not more than $500 nor less than $100, or both at the discretion of the court.

Approved, April 9, 1888.

CHAPTER 13.
CHEATING, BY FALSE PRETENSES, GROSS FRAUDS, AND CONSPIRACY.

SECTION 4073. [False pretenses.—] If any person designedly and by false pretense, or by any privy or false token, and with intent to defraud, obtain from another any money, goods or other property; or so obtain the signature of any person to any written instrument, the false making of which would be punished as forgery, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than seven years, or by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

To obtain a credit on a note, held by another person against the defendant, is not obtaining money, goods or property, within the meaning of this section of this statute. The State v. Moore, 15 Iowa, 412.

False pretenses cannot be predicated upon representations which are mere matters of opinion. The State v. Webb, 26 Id., 262.

It is essential to the commission of the crime of obtaining a signature by false pretenses to a written instrument, that the instrument be delivered; and an indictment which fails to charge the delivery of the instrument is insufficient. State v. McGinnis, 71 Id., 685; State v. Clark, 72 Id., 30.

An indictment which alleges that the defendant procured the signature of another to a note by “false pretenses” sufficiently charges the crime of cheating by false pretenses. The State v. Joaquin, 43 Id., 131. See The State v. Dowd, 27 Id., 273, where the facts and circumstances constituting the alleged offense were set out in the indictment, and it was held insufficient.

It is not necessary that an indictment for obtaining property by false pretenses should state in terms that credit was given to the alleged false representations, when it contained the allegation that by the representation so made the defendant obtained the property. The State v. McConkey, 49 Id., 499.
An indictment will lie for false pretenses for pointing out to a purchaser valuable property as that sold to him, and in fact conveying other property which is worthless, and in such case the indictment need not allege want of ownership in the seller of the property pointed out. Id.

Sec. 4074. [Fraudulent conveyances.]—Any person who knowingly being a party to any conveyance, or assignment of any estate or interest in lands, goods or things in action, or of any rents or profits arising therefrom; or being a party to any charge on such estate, interest, rents or profits, made or created with intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers, or to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or other persons; and every person who being privy to, or knowing of such fraudulent conveyance, assignment or charge, puts the same in use as having been made in good faith, shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The intent of the parties to a mortgage, in executing the same, to hinder and delay the creditors of the mortgagor, in the collection of their claims, is a legal fraud, as much so as the actual intent to defraud, and renders the mortgage equally void as to existing creditors. Davenport v. Cummings, 15 Iowa, 219.

Fraud in the execution of a mortgage may be shown by direct and positive evidence, or it may be inferred from facts and circumstances established by a preponderance of evidence. Id.

That a mortgage on its face purports to be made for a larger consideration than that which actually passed between the parties, is a badge of fraud. Id.

The making of a conveyance for the purpose of defrauding creditors constitutes a crime under this section of the code. Duy v. Low, 31 Id., 364, 369.

In a civil action where there is an issue upon the alleged fraudulent character of a sale, a fair preponderance only of the evidence is required to establish the fraud. It need not be proved beyond a reasonable doubt as in a criminal case. Gillie v. McMillan, 52 Id., 463. And see also Barton v. Thompson, 46 Id., 30.

Under this section providing that any person who knowingly is a party to any conveyance of goods made with intent to defraud creditors shall be fined and imprisoned, the defendant in an action to enforce a chattel mortgage executed by him in fraud of his creditors may show by parol evidence that plaintiff gave no consideration for such mortgage, and that he took it with intent to defeat a judgment creditor of defendant. Galpin v. Galpin, 38 N. W. R., 156.

Sec. 4075. [Suppression of last will.]—If any person has in his possession, or under his control, any last will and testament of any deceased person, willfully suppress, secrete, deface, or destroy the same, or any codicil thereto belonging, with intent to injure or defraud any devisee, legatee, or other person, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than seven years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year.

Sec. 4076. [False weights and measures.]—If any person with intent to defraud, use a false balance, weight, or measure, in the weighing or measuring of anything whatever that is purchased, sold, bartered, shipped or delivered for sale or barter, or that is pledged or given in payment, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

To say of a person "you are a cheat and a swindler, and you defrauded me," is not indictable per se. The words charged do not import an indictable offense. Lucas v. Elms, 35 Iowa, 9, 11.

Sec. 4077. [Same.]—The magistrate granting the warrant of arrest for this offense must also direct the seizure of the false weights, balances or measures; and if the party be convicted, or they are found to be false, they shall be forfeited to the county, and, after being made of the standard weight or measure, may be sold and the money arising from such sale must be paid into the county treasury.

Sec. 4078. [Altering brands, stamp, etc.]—If any person falsely alter any stamp, brand, or mark on any cask, package, box or bale, containing merchandise or produce, made by a public officer appointed for that purpose, in order to denote the quality, weight, or quantity of the contents thereof, with intent to defraud, he shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.
SEC. 4079. [Counterfeiting marks of another.]
If any person counterfeit any mark, stamp, or brand of another, or falsely mark any cask, package, box, or bale, as to quality or quantity, with intent to defraud, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 4080. [Using box marked by another with intent to defraud.]
If any person with intent to defraud, use any cask, package, box, or bale, marked, branded, or stamped by another, for the sale of merchandise or produce of an inferior quality, or less in quantity or weight than is denoted by such mark, stamp or brand, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

SEC. 4081. [Gross fraud or cheat.]
Every person who is convicted of any gross fraud or cheat at common law, shall be punished as provided in the preceding section.

SEC. 4082. [Fraudulent destruction of boats, etc.]
If any person cast away, sink, or otherwise destroy, any raft, boat or vessel within any county of this state with the intent to defraud any owner or insurer thereof; or the owner or insurer of any property laden on board the same, or of any part thereof, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding two thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4083. [Fitting out for that purpose.]
If any person lade, equip, or fit out, or assist in lading, equipping, or fitting out, any raft, boat or vessel, with intent that the same be cast away, burnt, sunk, or otherwise destroyed, to injure or defraud any owner or insurer thereof, or of any property laden on board the same he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4084. [Making false bill of lading.]
If any owner of any boat or vessel, or of any property laden or pretended to be laden on board the same; or if any person concerned in the lading or fitting out such boat or vessel, make out and either exhibit, or cause to be made out and exhibited, any false estimate of any goods or property laden, or pretended to be laden, on board such boat or vessel with intent to injure or defraud any insurer of such boat or vessel or property, or any part thereof, he shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years.

SEC. 4085. [Making false affidavits or protests.]
If any master or other officer of any boat or vessel, make, or cause to be made, any false affidavit or protest, or if any owner or other person concerned in such boat or vessel, or in the goods or property laden on board the same, procure any such false affidavit or protest to be made, or exhibit the same with intent to injure, deceive, or defraud any insurer of such boat or vessel, or of the goods or property laden on board of the same, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine not exceeding three thousand dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

SEC. 4086. [Conspiracy to prosecute.]
If two or more persons conspire or confederate together with intent, falsely and maliciously, to cause or procure another person to be indicted, or in any way impleaded or prosecuted for an offense of which he is innocent, whether such person be impleaded, indicted, or prosecuted or not, they shall be deemed guilty of a conspiracy, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than five years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollar or less than one hundred dollars and imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

An indictment for a conspiracy must allege the conspiracy to be for the purpose of doing an illegal act, or a legal act by illegal means. The State v. Harris et al., 38 Iowa, 242. In the same case Miller, Justice, in a dissenting opinion held that the indictment should show the conspiracy to be for the purpose of doing a criminal act, or that the act was to be accomplished by criminal means.

An indictment for conspiracy, which charged that the defendants did unlawfully and feloniously conspire to rob and steal from, etc., is not open to the objection of charging more than one offense. The State v. Sterling, 34 Id., 443.

SEC. 4087. [In other cases.]—If any two or more persons conspire or confederate together with the fraudulent or malicious intent wrongfully to injure the person, character, business, or property of another; or to do any illegal act injurious to the public trade, health, morals or police; or to the administration of public justice; or to commit any felony, they are guilty of a conspiracy, and every such offender, and every person who is convicted of a conspiracy at common law, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not more than three years.

To constitute a valid indictment for conspiracy, the particular circumstances of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 28 Iowa, 554.

In the trial of an indictment for conspiracy to injure the property of another, under this section of the statute, evidence that the injury was done in the exercise of an avowed legal right which the testimony tended to establish, and without malicious intent, will not sustain a conviction. The State v. Flynn, 28 Id., 26.

An indictment for conspiracy under this section must show either that the object of the conspiracy was criminal, or allege facts which show that the means employed to accomplish the object was criminal. The State v. Stevens et al., 30 Id., 391; The State v. Potter, 28 Id., 554.

The injury to property contemplated by the statute against conspiracy must be such as is punishable as a crime. Id.

The injury must also be a direct one against the property itself, and not against an inchoate right, as that of the wife in the property of her husband. Id.

An indictment charging that the defendant did "conspire * * * to cause * * * S. to go with them * * * with the view, purpose and intent, with the intention of bringing about a sham marriage, or pretended marriage between her, the said S., and him, the said defendant, and thus bring about the seduction of the said S., in violation of law," was held, to charge a conspiracy to commit a crime. The State v. Savoye, 48 Id., 562.

The indictment in the case for a conspiracy to injure the person and character of another held sufficient to charge the offense defined in this section of the code. The State v. Ormiston et al., 66 Id., 143.

SEC. 4088. [Issuing false voucher by warehouse men, etc.]—If any person issue any receipt or voucher, stating or purporting to state the receipt by him from another, of any property for storage or safe keeping without having in good faith received, and at the time having in his possession or under his control, such property; or issue any second receipt or voucher for any property while his former receipt or voucher for the same, or any part thereof, shall be outstanding and uncanceled; or sell, encumber, transfer, ship or in any manner remove beyond his immediate control, any property for which a receipt or voucher has been given by him as aforesaid, in violation of the terms of such receipt or voucher, without the written consent of the person holding such receipt or voucher, except to enforce his lien for storage and warehouse charges as provided by law; or sell, transfer or dispose of any receipt or voucher, given or purporting to have been given by any person for property in store, knowing that such person has not in his possession such property or any part thereof, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and imprisonment in the penitentiary of this state not exceeding five years.

Where the defendant had received wheat in store in his warehouse for which he executed a receipt as follows: "Received from Wm. Petrie 178 54-60 bushels wheat, quality as sample preserved, to be stowed until he is ready to sell;" and he afterwards shipped the wheat out of the state while the receipt was outstanding, it was held he thereby rendered himself criminally liable under this section of the code, and that evidence tending to show that such shipment was made with the knowledge and verbal consent of the owner of the wheat, was immaterial and properly rejected, the statute being designed to protect third persons who may purchase the receipt as well as the one to whom it is issued. The State v. Stevenson, 52 Iowa, 702.
An Act to define the crime of swindling and to punish the same.

Section 1. [Swindling defined and punishment for.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That whoever by the means of three-card monte so-called or any other form or device, sleight-of-hand or other means whatever, by use of cards or instruments of like character, obtains from another person any money or other property of any description, shall be deemed guilty of the crime of swindling, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than two hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than two years nor more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. All persons aiding, encouraging, advising or confederating with, or knowingly harboring or concealing, any such person or persons, or in any manner being accessory to the commission of the above-described offense, or confederating together for the purpose of playing such games shall be deemed principals therein, and punished accordingly.

Sec. 2. [Jurisdiction.]—The jurisdiction of all the offenses described in section one (1) of this act, which shall be committed on any railroad car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyance, or in or at any railroad station or depot shall be in any county through which said car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyance may pass during the trip or voyage, or in which the trip or voyage may begin or terminate, and in all other cases the jurisdiction shall be in the county in which the offense is committed.

Sec. 3. [Who may make arrest.]—Every person shall possess the power and authority, and it shall be the duty of every conductor, or other employee on any railroad, car or train, and of every captain, clerk or other employee on any boat, or station agent at any railway depot, or the officers of any fairs or fair grounds, and the proprietors of any place of public resort, and their employees, with or without warrant to arrest any person or persons whom they or either of them shall find in the act of committing any of the offenses mentioned in the first section of this act, or any person or persons whom he or they may have good reason to believe to have been guilty of the commission of the said offenses, and to take such person or persons before a magistrate in any county where jurisdiction to try said offenses exists by virtue of this act, and deliver such person or persons so arrested to the magistrate, and make written complaints under oath of the facts. And for executing the powers conferred by this section, the person making the arrest shall possess the same powers in all respects as are exercised by officers with warrants, including the power to summon assistance; and it shall be the duty of the person making such arrest to also arrest the person injured or defrauded by reason of the commission of any of the offenses mentioned in section one (1) of this act, and take such person before the examining magistrate, who shall require such person to give security to appear and testify on the trial of the cause, and such person or persons shall not be deemed to be guilty of the offense mentioned in section one (1) of this act, nor of the offense of gambling, unless such person or persons shall have failed to appear and give evidence on the trial.

[Compensation.]—And the person performing the services required by this act shall receive the same compensation as sheriffs receive for like services.

Sec. 4. [Duty of conductor, captain, etc.]—It shall be the duty of any conductor, captain, hotel or saloon keeper, proprietor or manager of any public conveyance or place of public resort, and the officers of any fair or fair grounds, to eject from his car, train, boat, hotel, saloon, public conveyance, fair grounds or place of public resort, any person known to him or whom he has good reason to believe to be a three-card-monte-man, or who offers to wager or bet money or other valuable things upon what is commonly known as three-card-monte, or bet on any trick, or game with cards, or other gaming device, and for such ejectment no action for damages shall be maintained. And any parties operating any public conveyance by which passengers are carried shall keep posted up a copy of this law in such conveyance.

SEC. 5. [Conductor, captain, etc., to be deemed guilty.]—Any conductor of a railroad train, captain of any steamboat, proprietor or manager of any public conveyance, officer of any fair or fair grounds, or place of public resort, any hotel or saloon keeper, or their agent or employee, who shall fail, neglect or refuse to perform the duties herein mentioned, or who shall knowingly suffer or permit a violation of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and the jurisdiction of such offense shall be the same as that provided in section 2 of this act.

SEC. 6. Any person may be convicted for violation of section number one (1) of this act, on his own confession out of court, or upon the testimony of an accomplice.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers March 24, 1876.)
(This act is identical with chapter 30, passed by the same general assembly.)

nuisances, and abatement thereof.

SECTION 4089. [When deemed nuisances.]—The erecting, continuing or using any building or other place for the exercise of any trade, employment or manufacture which by occasioning noxious exhalations, offensive smells, or other annoyances becomes injurious and dangerous to the health, comfort or property of individuals or the public, the causing or suffering any offal, filth or noisome substance to be collected or to remain in any place to the prejudice of others; the obstructing or impeding without legal authority the passage of any navigable river, harbor or collection of water; or the corrupting or rendering unwholesome or impure the waters of any river, stream or pond; or unlawfully diverting the same from its natural course or state to the injury or prejudice of others; and the obstructing or incumbering by fenses, buildings or otherwise of public highways, private ways, streets, alleys, commons, landing places, or burying grounds, are nuisances.

Where an indictment, charged that the defendant "unlawfully and injuriously did erect, continue and use a certain enclosure or pen in which cattle and hogs were confined, fed and watered, and the excrement, decayed food, slop and other filth were retained," whereby were occasioned "noxious exhalations and offensive smells greatly corrupting and infesting the air; and other annoyances dangerous to the health, comfort and property of the good people residing in that immediate neighborhood," it was held, that the acts charged constituted a public indictable nuisance, both under this section of the statute and at common law. The State v. Koster, 35 Iowa, 221.

In a prosecution for nuisance, the defendant will not be permitted to show in justification that the public benefit resulting from his acts equal the public inconvenience. Id.

Where an indictment charged "that the defendant in, etc., on, etc., being possessed of a certain mill-dam and mill, with their appurtenances, situated near and adjacent to a common highway and public road, and the dwelling houses of diverse persons and citizens of Johnson county, did at etc., unlawfully and injuriously cause and permit the waters of said mill-dam to overflow the adjacent lands, as well of others as his own, by means whereof the water of said dam was rendered impure, corrupted and unwholesome, and the land overflowed, as aforesaid, rendered and kept marshy, and filled with noxious weeds and putrid vegetation, whereby the air became corrupted and infected, to the injury and prejudice of others, etc., it was held, that the indictment sufficiently charged a public or common nuisance under the statute. The State v. Close, 35 Id., 570.

While the owner of premises may lawfully erect a mill-dam across an unnavigable stream, yet if it be so erected or managed as to become prejudicial to the health or comfort of others, it thereby becomes a nuisance. Id.

SEC. 4090. [Manufacture of gunpowder.]—If any person carrying on the business of manufacturing gunpowder, or of mixing or grinding the composition therefor in any building within eighty rods of any valuable building erected at the time when such business may be commenced, the building in which such business is thus carried on is a public nuisance, and such person is liable to be prosecuted accordingly.

SEC. 4091. [Houses of ill-fame, gambling, etc.]—Houses of ill-fame kept for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, gambling houses, or houses where drunkenness, quarreling, fighting, or breaches of the peace are carried on or permitted, to the disturbance of others are nuisances, and may be abated and punished as provided in this chapter.

It is competent to charge in one indictment the various acts which go to make up the offense of nuisance as enumerated in section 4091 of the code. The State v. Spurbeck et al., 44 Id., 667.

A person may be tried in our courts for keeping a house of ill-fame on a boat in the Mississippi river, although such boat may, when so used, for a portion of the time, as the water recedes, rest on the soil of an island, and on the east side thereof, near to the Illinois shore. The State v. Mullen, 35 Id., 199.

Where a farmer manufactured and sold native wine at his house to persons who, after buying the same at his house, drank and became intoxicated while in the highway leading therefrom, and by noisy and riotous conduct disturbed the neighbors living from one-half to one and a half miles from the farmer's, it was held, that these facts did not authorize his conviction for keeping a disorderly house under this section. The State v. Dieffenbach, 47 Id., 638.

Under this section, a saloon keeper, who but once permitted drunkenness, quarreling, fighting, and breaches of the peace to occur in his saloon, to the disturbance of others, is guilty of keeping a nuisance. And so far as the language of the indictment in the case at bar charged a repetition of such disturbances, it was surplusage, and proof of a single disturbance was sufficient to support a verdict of guilty; and an instruction to that effect was approved. The State v. Pierce, 65 Id., 85.

On the trial of an indictment for nuisance under this section, for keeping a disorderly house, the defendant may be convicted upon proof that he kept the house, though the disorderly conduct did not occur in the house, but on the sidewalk in front of it, if it was the character of the house that attracted the disorderly persons there who caused the disturbance. The State v. Webb, 25 Id., 235.

The keeping for sale of wine of his own manufacture by the defendant, who lived on a farm, and the fact that persons buying the same at his house drank it and became intoxicated while in the highways leading therefrom, and by noisy and riotous conduct disturbed the neighbors, living from one-half to one and a half miles from defendant's house, was held, not to authorize the conviction of defendant for keeping a nuisance under section 4091 of the code.

An indictment under this section, charging the defendant with keeping "a house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, to the disturbance of others," is sufficient and conforms to the statute. The State v. Alderman, 40 Id., 375.

So, also, an indictment alleging that the defendant kept a house of ill-fame, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness, "and which prostitution and lewdness were carried on and permitted, to disturbance of others," was held to sufficiently charge the offense of nuisance under this section. The State v. Odell, 42 Id., 75.

It is competent to charge in one indictment the various acts which go to make up the offense of nuisance as enumerated in section 4091 of the code. The State v. Spurbeck, 44 Id., 667.

SEC. 4092. [Punishment and abatement of.]—Whoever is convicted of erecting, causing or continuing a public or common nuisance as described in this chapter, or at common law when the same has not been modified or repealed by statute, where no other punishment therefor is specially provided, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and the court, with or without such fine, may order such nuisance to be abated, and issue a warrant as hereinafter provided.

See The State v. Kaster, 35 Iowa, 221.
The provisions of this section were held not to govern in cases of convictions for violations of the prohibitory liquor law, but that such cases were governed by chapter 69, laws of 1870. The State v. Winsrend, 37 Id., 110.

A defendant convicted under this section may be imprisoned until the fine be paid, but the power of the court to imprison is limited to one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine, (3.4509) and the defendant is not entitled to credit on the judgment by serving out such term of imprisonment. The State v. Jordan, 30 Id., 387.

The punishment for the defense defined in this section is a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars. The State v. Reninghaus, 43 Id., 149, 151; The State v. Dean, 44 Id., 648, 650.

A defendant convicted of nuisance and sentenced to pay a fine can only be ordered to be imprisoned for a term of which the number of days shall be equal to one for every three and one-third dollars of the fine; and if sentenced to confinement at hard labor, he is entitled to a credit upon the judgment of one dollar and fifty cents for each day's labor. The State v. Anwerda, 40 Id., 151; The State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

The supreme court having held that the amendment to the constitution, submitted to the people July 27, 1882, prohibiting the sale of beer was not lawfully adopted, it was accordingly held that an indictment under this section of the code, for selling beer to divers persons, to the common nuisance and annoyance of the neighborhood, could not be sustained. Beck, J., dissenting. The State v. Johnson, 61 Id., 504.

> SEC. 4093. [Process.]
> When upon indictment, complaint or action, any person > is adjudged guilty of a nuisance, the court before whom such conviction is had, may, in addition to the fine imposed, if any, or to the judgment for damages or cost for which a separate execution may issue, order that such nuisance be abated or removed at the expense of the defendant, and after inquiry into and estimating as nearly as may be the sum necessary to defray the expenses of such abatement, the court may issue a warrant therefor.
>
> Where on an indictment for nuisance the district court, in the judgment, directed that the property where the nuisance was kept, being a boat moored to an island in the Mississippi river, be seized by the sheriff and sold, and that the proceeds be applied to the payment of the fine imposed, and the nuisance abated, it was held that the judgment was authorized by this section of the statute. The State v. Mullen, 36 Iowa, 199, 205.
>
> In an action to abate as a nuisance the obstruction of a highway, where the jury found generally for the plaintiff, but the petition failed to locate the alleged obstruction, and to state on whose land it was, held, that a motion in arrest of judgment was properly sustained, because from the facts of record, the court could not in its order of abatement, describe the alleged obstruction, and could not tax the costs of such abatement against the defendant. Sloan et al. v. Robinson, 56 Id., 81.

> SEC. 4094. [Warrant.]
> When the conviction is had upon an action before a justice of the peace and no appeal is taken, the justice, after estimating as aforesaid the sum necessary to defray the expenses of removing or abating the nuisance, may issue a like warrant.

> SEC. 4095. [Execution of stayed.]
> Instead of issuing such warrant, the court or justice may order the same to be stayed upon motion of the defendant, and upon his entering into an undertaking in such sum and with such surety as the court or justice may direct, to the state, conditioned either that the defendant will discontinue such nuisance, or that within a time limited by the court and not exceeding six months, he will cause the same to be abated and removed, as either is directed by the court; and upon his default to perform the condition of his undertaking the same shall be forfeited, and the court in term time or vacation, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, upon being satisfied of such default, may order such warrant forthwith to issue, and a seire facias on such undertaking.

> SEC. 4096. [Expenses.]
> The expense of abating a nuisance by virtue of a warrant can be collected by the officer in the same manner as damages and costs are collected on execution, except that the materials of any buildings, fences or other things that may be removed as a nuisance, may be first levied upon and sold by the officer, and if any of the proceeds remain after satisfying the expense of the removal, such balance must be paid by the officer to the defendant or to the owner of the property thus levied upon, and if such proceeds are not sufficient to pay such expenses the officer must collect the residue thereof.
CHAPTER 15.

OF LIBEL.

SECTION 4097. [Definition.]—A libel is the malicious defamation of a person made public by any printing, writing, sign, picture, representation or effigy, tend­ing to provoke him to wrath or expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to deprive him of the benefits of public confidence and social intercourse; or any malicious defamation made public as offoresaid, designed to blacken and vilify the memory of one who is dead, and tending to scandalize or provoke his surviving relatives or friends.

Where the language charged as libelous was to the effect that plaintiffs had, by entering into a combination for that purpose, reduced the price of grain at the place where they did business, held, that the language was not actionable per se; and that no recovery could be had for the publication of the language without proof of special damages. Achorn & Co. v. Piper, 66 Iowa, 694.

In an action for libel the information and charges made by the defendant in a criminal proceeding against the plaintiff, are not admissible to establish the libel. Mass v. Meire et ux., 37 Iowa, 97.

SECTION 4098. [Punishment.]—Every person who makes, composes, dictates, or procures the same to be done; or who willfully publishes or circulates such libel; or in any way knowingly or willfully aids or assists in making, publishing or circ­ulating the same, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

SECTION 4099. [Truth given in evidence.]—In all prosecutions or indictments for libel, the truth thereof may be given in evidence to the jury, and if it appear to them that the matter charged as libelous was true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the defendant shall be acquitted.

SECTION 4100. [Publication.]—No printing, writing or other thing is a libel unless there has been a publication thereof.

SECTION 4101. [Definition of.]—The delivering, selling, reading or otherwise com­municating a libel; or causing the same to be delivered, sold, read or otherwise communicated to one or more persons, or to the party libled, is a publication thereof.

SECTION 4102. [Law and fact.]—In all indictments or prosecutions for libel, the jury, after having received the direction of the court, shall have the right to deter­mine at their discretion the law and the fact.
TITLE XXV.

OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF PUBLIC OFFENSES.

SECTION 4103. [Division of.]—Public offenses are divided into:
1. Felonies;

Sec. 4104. [Felony.]—A felony is a public offense which is, or in the discretion of the court may be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Sec. 4105. [Misdemeanor.]—Every other public offense is a misdemeanor.

Sec. 4106. [How punishable.]—No person can be punished for a public offense except upon legal conviction in a court having jurisdiction thereof.

There are no crimes in this state but those expressly declared by statute. Per Day, J., in Polk County v. Hierb, 37 Iowa, 367.

Sec. 4107. [As amended by ch. 103, 17th g. a.] [All offenses bailable except.]—All defendants are bailable both before and after conviction, by sufficient surety except for offenses heretofore punishable with death under the laws of the state, where the proof is evident, or the presumption great; [but no defendant convicted of murder shall be admitted to bail.]

When a defendant is accused of an offense that may be punished capitally, he may be admitted to bail by the examining magistrate when the evidence is slight or tends to show that the offense was committed under mitigating circumstances and would not be punished with death. The State v. Klingman, 14 Iowa, 404; The State v. Huffman, 23 Id., 579.

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE TERM MAGISTRATE, AND HIS POWERS, PEACE OFFICERS AND OFFICERS OF JUSTICE, AND COMPLAINTS.

SECTION 4108. [Who are magistrates; duties.]—Any judge of the supreme, district or circuit courts, any judge of any city court, any justice of the peace, any mayor of any incorporated city or town, any police or other special justice of such city or town, shall have power to hear complaints and preliminary informations, to issue warrants, order arrests, require security to keep the peace, make commitments, and take bail in the manner directed by this code. They are designated under the general term magistrate, and may exercise the jurisdiction hereby conferred on them as follows:

1. Judges of the supreme, district and circuit courts throughout the state, in any county in which they may be at the time of complaint made;
2. Judges of city courts, justices of the peace, mayors of incorporated cities and towns, and police and other special justices of such cities and towns, within their respective counties.

The general term "magistrate," applies to each of the officers named in this section. The State v. Emerson, 16 Iowa, 206, 209.

Sec. 4109. [Who are peace officers.—The following persons respectively are designated in this code under the general term, peace officer:

1. Sheriffs and their deputies;
2. Constables;
3. Marshals and policemen of incorporated cities and towns.

Peace officers are sheriffs, and their deputies, constables, marshals and policemen of incorporated cities and towns, and it is their sworn duty to keep the peace and prevent crime, as well as to arrest those charged therewith. Blair v. Dubuque County, 21 Iowa, 181, 183.

A town marshal has authority by virtue of his office to execute an order of a justice committing a vagrant to the county jail; and such authority is not taken away by his appointment by the justice as special constable for that purpose; and one rescuing the prisoner from his custody is indictable therefor. The State v. Watson, 66 Id., 670.

Sec. 4110. Magistrates and peace officers are sometimes designated by the term, officers of justice.

Sec. 4111. Complaint of preliminary information is a statement in writing, under oath or affirmation made before a magistrate, of the commission, or threatened commission of a public offense and accusing some one thereof.

Section 4111 of the code embraces two classes of what are termed complaints of preliminary information, those of the commission of a public offense, and those of the threatened commission of a public offense. Per Day, Ch. J., in The State v. Darrington, 47 Iowa, 519.

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE PREVENTION OF PUBLIC OFFENSES BY THE RESISTANCE OF THE PARTY ABOUT TO BE INJURED AND OTHERS.

Section 4112. [Who may resist.—Lawful resistance to the commission of a public offense may be made by the party about to be injured, or by others.

In a civil action for slander or libel, in which a crime is imputed to the plaintiff, if the defendant pleads in justification, he must in order to sustain his plea, adduce such evidence as would be required to convict the plaintiff, if he were on trial for the crime imputed to him. Forshew v. Abrams et al., 2 Iowa, 571; Fountain v. West, 23 Id., 9; Bradley v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. Greene, 231.

Sec. 4113. [In what cases.—Resistance sufficient to prevent the offense may be made by the party about to be injured;
1. To prevent an offense against his person;
2. To prevent an illegal attempt by force to take or injure property in his lawful possession.

A party may repel force by force in the defense of his person, habituation or property, against one who manifestly intends, by violence or surprise, to commit a felony against either; and, if, in making such defense, he takes life, the killing is excusable. But it the assault is not felonious, the rule is different. An assault without a weapon when there is no reason for a belief on the part of the person assaulted, that his person was in danger of death or great bodily harm, will not justify or excuse the person so assaulted in using a deadly weapon in a deadly manner. The State v. Kennedy, 20 Iowa, 569.

While it is necessary, in order to justify a homicide on the ground of self-defense, that there should have been actual and urgent danger, it is not necessary that the danger should exist in fact, but if it exists to the defendant's comprehension as a reasonable man, it is sufficient. The State v. Collins, 32 Id., 36; The State v. Neely, 20 Id., 108; The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188; The State v. Tweedy, 5 Id., 533; The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154.

A person may lawfully take the life of his assailant, when reasonably necessary to save himself from imminent and great bodily harm. The right of self-defense exists in such cases, the same as where the killing is necessary to save life. The State v. Barker, 30 Id., 931; The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154, 162; The State v. Fraunburg, 40 Id., 555.
Where the assault is only a simple or ordinary non-felonious assault, with the intention simply to whip or chastise the person assaulted, he would not be excusable if he should take the life of his assailant. The State v. Benham, 23 Id., 154.

If in an altercation between two persons, one of whom is armed with a club, the other succeeds in wresting it from him, whereupon the latter retreats, the former is justified in pursuing him, if he believes the latter is going for a dangerous weapon, and that he cannot reasonably get out of the way, and he may be justified in taking life; but if he could retreat with safety, without resorting to the slaying of his adversary, then the killing is not justifiable. The State v. Maloy, 44 Id., 103.

Before a person will be justified in pursuing another and taking life on the ground of self-defense, he should at least stand his ground until he sees whether there is reasonable apprehension of danger. Id.

Sections 4112 and 4113 of the code do not change the common law rule in respect to self-defense. Id.

Where a person is assailed in a manner plainly indicating an intention on the part of the assailant to commit a felony, he is not compelled to flee when he cannot do so without manifest danger to his life. The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188; The State v. Tweedy, 5 Id., 334.

It is not sufficient defense to an indictment for a felonious homicide, that the defendant believed, when he committed the homicide, that he was in imminent danger, unless the facts and circumstances were such as to satisfy the jury that he had reasonable grounds for his belief. Id.

On the trial of an indictment for murder, the court instructed the jury that to sustain the plea of self-defense, the defendant must show that the deceased assaulted him and that the assault was eminently perilous, and the danger to the defendant actual and urgent: Held, that the term actual did not imply that the danger must have existed in fact, but implied danger apparent to the defendant’s comprehension, and that it did not vitiate the instruction. The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108.

Nor will a person be excusable in taking the life of another in self-defense, if he sought the deceased for the purpose of provoking a difficulty or bringing on a quarrel. Id. See, also, The State v. Neeley, 20 Id., 108; The State v. Stanley, 33 Id., 526.

An instruction to the jury as follows: “If however, you find that the defendant inflicted the blow upon the deceased that caused his death, then the burden of proof is upon the defendant to show that he did it in self-defense,” was held erroneous, on the ground that in effect it took away from the defendant the benefit of any reasonable doubt, under the facts, as to whether the act was willful. The State v. Porter, 34 Id., 131.

SEC. 4114. [Any person may aid another.]—Any other person, in aid or defense of the person about to be injured, may make resistance sufficient to prevent the offense.

CHAPTER 4.

OF SECURITY TO KEEP THE PEACE.

SECTION 4115. [Duty of magistrate when complaint is made that a public offense is threatened.]—Whenever complaint is made before a magistrate that any person has threatened to commit any public offense punishable by the laws of this state, and such magistrate is satisfied that there is reason to fear the commission of such offense, he may issue a warrant for the arrest of the person complained of; and the officer to whom the same shall be delivered for service shall forthwith arrest and bring the accused before such magistrate, or, in case of his absence or inability to act, before the nearest and most accessible magistrate of the same county. When the name of the person complained of is unknown, he may be designated in the warrant by any name, and the warrant issued in pursuance hereof may be executed by any peace officer in any county of the state; provided, that when issued by a magistrate other than a judge of the supreme, district or circuit courts, it cannot be served in any county other than that in which it is issued, unless authenticated as is required in case of a warrant of arrest issued on a preliminary information.

SEC. 4116. [Proceedings when taken before magistrate.]—When the person arrested is taken before a magistrate other than the one who issued the warrant, the peace officer who executed the same, and who has charge of the person arrested, must, at the same time, deliver to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, the warrant with his return indorsed and subscribed by him, and the complaint and other affidavits, if any, on which the warrant was issued, may be sent to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, and if they cannot be procured, the complainant and his witnesses, if any, must be subpoenaed, if necessary, by the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, to appear before him and make a new complaint and affidavits.

SEC. 4117. [As amended by ch. 35, 17th g. a.] [Same.]—When the person complained of is brought before the magistrate, if the charge be controverted, the magistrate must take testimony in relation thereto. [And a change of venue may be had as in preliminary examinations.] The evidence must be reduced to writing and subscribed by the witness.

If the magistrate fails to reduce the testimony of the witnesses to writing as directed in this section, that fact furnishes no good reason for dismissing the proceedings, on motion, in the district court. <Gribble v. The State, 3 Iowa, 217.>

SEC. 4118. [Discharge ordered; costs, etc.]—If it appear that there is no just reason to fear the commission of the offense alleged to have been threatened, the person complained of must be discharged, and the complainant may be ordered to pay the costs of the proceeding if the magistrate regard the complaint as unfounded and frivolous, and, unless when the proceeding is before a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, may issue execution therefor, and when the proceeding is before a judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court, he shall transmit the complaint, affidavits, warrant, and order, to the clerk of the district court of the county, who shall file the same, make a memorandum thereof in the judgment docket, and issue execution therefor immediately.

SEC. 4119. [Defendants bound over.]—If there be just reason to fear the commission of the offense the person complained of shall be required to enter into an undertaking in such sum as the magistrate may direct, with one or more sufficient sureties, to abide the order of the district court of the county at the next term thereof, and in the meantime to keep the peace towards the people of this state, and particularly towards the person against whom, or whose property, there is reason to fear the offense may be committed.

SEC. 4120. [Committed to jail.]—If the undertaking required by the last section be given, the party complained of must be discharged. If he do not give it, the magistrate must commit him to prison, specifying in the warrant the requirements to give security, the amount thereof, and the omission to give the same.

SEC. 4121. [May be discharged.]—If the person complained of be committed for not giving an undertaking, he may be discharged by a magistrate upon giving the same.

SEC. 4122. [Disposition of papers.]—The undertaking, together with the complaint, affidavits, if any, and other papers in the proceeding, must be returned by the magistrate to the district court of the county by the first day of the next term thereof.

SEC. 4123. [Assault in the presence of court or magistrate.]—Any person who, in the presence of a court or magistrate, shall assault or threaten to assault another, or to commit an offense against the person or property of another, or contends with another with angry words, may be ordered, without the process, to enter into an undertaking to keep the peace for a period of time not exceeding beyond the next term of the district court of the county as hereinbefore provided, and in case of his omission to comply with said order, he may be committed accordingly.
SEC. 4124. [Undertaking to keep the peace.]—The district court, may on the conviction of any person for an offense against the person or property of another, when necessary for the public good, require the defendant to enter into an undertaking to keep the peace as hereinbefore provided, and on his omission to do so, may commit him accordingly.

SEC. 4125. [Same.]—A person who entered into an undertaking to keep the peace, when required by a magistrate as hereinbefore provided, must appear on the first day of the next term of the district court of the county, and if the complainant appear and the person bound by the undertaking does not appear, the court may forfeit his undertaking, and order the same to be prosecuted unless his default be excused.

SEC. 4126. [Judgment.]—If the principal in an undertaking appear, and the complainant does not appear, or if neither of the parties appear, the court shall hear their proofs, and may require a new undertaking in such sum as it shall prescribe for a period not exceeding one year; and may commit the defendant until the same be given. Judgment shall be entered against the party held to keep the peace for all the costs of the proceeding; but if it is made to appear to the court that the proceeding was instituted without probable cause, the court may render judgment against the complainant for such costs.

The failure of the prosecuting witnesses to appear at the district court and further prosecute a defendant who has, upon his complaint, been bound over to keep the peace, does not warrant a judgment against the complainant for the costs that have been incurred. The State v. Holliday, 22 Iowa, 397; The State v. Lathers, 16 Id., 406; Gribble v. The State, 3 Id., 217.

Where a party has been required by a magistrate to enter into bonds to keep the peace and he is discharged from his recognizance by the district court, he is entitled also to be discharged from the payment of costs in that court, but not from the prior costs before the magistrate. Gribble v. The State, 3 Id., 217.

The inquiry in the district court is as to whether there is still any just reason to fear a commission of the offense against the person or property of the complainant. The jurisdiction of the district court is in no sense in the nature of an appeal from the decision of the magistrate. It will be presumed that the magistrate has properly exercised his authority. Id.

In the district court the fullest investigation may be had, and neither party is restricted to the evidence heard before the magistrate. Id.

A party bound over to keep the peace in a preliminary examination before a magistrate upon a complaint of having threatened to commit a public offense was held not a competent witness in his own behalf. The State v. Darrington, 47 Id., 518. But see chapter 168, laws of 1878, section 1.

Where the defendant was required by a justice of the peace to enter into a recognizance to keep the peace, and at the next term of the district court he appeared and demanded a trial but the complainant did not appear, it was held that the court was authorized under this section of the code to refuse a trial, and to discharge the defendant and render judgment against him for costs. The State v. White, 47 Id., 555.

SEC. 4127. [When undertaking broken.]—An undertaking to keep the peace is broken by the forfeiture of the same, by the court, as hereinbefore provided, or upon the conviction of the party bound by the undertaking of a breach of the peace.

SEC. 4128. [District attorney to bring suit.]—Upon the district attorney producing evidence of such conviction to the district court to which the undertaking is returned, the court must order the undertaking to be prosecuted, and the district attorney must, thereat, commence an action upon it.

SEC. 4129. [Record of conviction.]—In the action, the offense stated in the record of conviction must be alleged as the breach of the undertaking, and is conclusive evidence thereof.
CHAPTER 5.

OF VAGRANTS.

SECTION 4130. [Who are.]—The following persons are vagrants: All persons who tell fortunes, or where lost or stolen goods may be found; all common prostitutes and keepers of bawdy houses or houses for the resort of prostitutes; all habitual drunkards, gamesters, or other disorderly persons; all persons wandering about and having no visible calling or business to maintain themselves; all persons begging in public places, or from house to house, or procuring children so to do; all persons going about as collectors of alms for charitable institutions under any false or fraudulent pretenses; all persons playing or betting in any street or public or open place, at or with any table or instrument of gaming at any game or pretended game of chance.

SEC. 4131. [Complaint: warrant: arrest.]—Upon complaint made on oath to any magistrate against any person as being vagrant within his local jurisdiction as defined in this code, he shall issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, and his examination, and the complaint, warrant and arrest shall be governed by the provisions of the last chapter, as nearly as practicable, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 4132. [Duty of peace officers.]—All peace officers shall arrest any vagrant whom they may find at large and not in the care of some discreet person, and take him before some magistrate of the county, city or town in which the arrest is made.

SEC. 4133. [Time of making arrest.]—If the arrests authorized in the last two sections are made during the night, the officer must keep the person arrested in confinement until the next morning, and if arrests are made within the local jurisdiction of the police or city court, the persons arrested must be taken before a justice of such court, unless he be absent.

SEC. 4134. [Security for good behavior.]—If it appear by the confession of such person, or by competent testimony, that such person is a vagrant, the magistrate before whom he is brought may require of such person an undertaking, with sufficient surety, for good behavior for the term of one year thereafter.

SEC. 4135. [Committed in default of security.]—The magistrate shall make up, sign, and file with the clerk of the district court of the county, a record of conviction of such person as a vagrant, specifying generally the nature and circumstances of the charge, and shall, in default of such security being given, by warrant under his hand, commit such vagrant to the county jail of the county, city or town, as the case may be, until such security be found, or such vagrant discharged according to law.

SEC. 4136. [Breach of undertaking.]—The committing of any of the acts which constitute such person so bound a vagrant, shall be deemed a breach of the condition of such undertaking.

SEC. 4137. [New security.]—On a recovery upon any such undertaking, the court before which such recovery may be had may, in its discretion, either require new sureties for good behavior, or may commit such vagrant to the common jail of the county for any time not exceeding six months.

SEC. 4138. [Discharge of bail.]—Any person committed to jail for not finding sureties for good behavior, may be discharged by any magistrate upon giving such sureties for good behavior as were originally required of such person.
TRIAL IN DISTRICT COURT.

SEC. 4139. [Hearing in district court.]—The district court to which the papers are returned, shall, on demand of the defendant, impanel a jury to inquire into and determine the truth of the charge made against him; and the rules and regulations of law governing said court in the trials or misdemeanors shall be applicable to and govern it in the trial herein contemplated.

SEC. 4140. [Judgment.]—If no jury be demanded, the district court may revise such conviction and discharge such vagrant from the undertaking or confinement absolutely, or upon sureties for good behavior, in its discretion.

SEC. 4141. [Imprisonment.]—Such district court may, in its discretion, order any such vagrant to be kept in the common jail for any time not exceeding six months at hard labor.

SEC. 4142. [Labor.]—If there be no means in such jail for employing offenders at hard labor, such court may direct the keeper thereof to furnish such employment as it shall specify to such vagrant as may be committed thereto either by a justice or any court, and for that purpose to purchase any necessary raw materials and implements, not exceeding such amount as the court shall prescribe, and to compel such persons to perform such work as shall be allotted to them.

SEC. 4143. [Expenses.]—The expenses incurred in pursuance of such order shall be audited by the board of supervisors of the county, and paid out of the county treasury.

SEC. 4144. [Proceeds of labor.]—One-half of the net proceeds of such labor shall be paid to the person earning the same, upon his discharge from imprisonment, and the other half shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the county.

(Chapter 69, Laws of 1876.)

VAGRANTS.

An Act to restrain vagrancy and common begging.

SECTION 1. [Male vagrants to be kept at hard labor.]—(Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That if any male person, physically able to perform manual labor, shall be found in a state of vagrancy or practicing common begging, he shall, on conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars, and sentenced to hard labor in the jail of the county, for which they shall receive a credit at the rate of seventy-five cents per day until said fine and cost of prosecution, and accruing costs, shall be paid.

SEC. 2. [Duty of boards of supervisors.]—The board of supervisors of the several counties are hereby authorized to provide for carrying the provisions of the foregoing section into effect, for which purpose they may, by order entered upon their journals, declare that the jail shall extend to and include the lands of the proper county, and every form and kind of labor commonly performed therein by male persons.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers, March 16, 1876.)
CHAPTER 6.

OF RESISTANCE TO PROCESS AND SUPPRESSION OF RIOTS.

SECTION 4145. [Calling out power of county.]—When the sheriff or other officer authorized to execute process, finds, or has reason to apprehend, that resistance will be made to the execution thereof, he may command as many male inhabitants of his county as he may think proper, and any military companies in the county, armed and equipped, to assist him in overcoming the resistance, and if necessary, in seizing, arresting and confining the resisters, and their aiders and abettors, to be punished by law.

SEC. 4146. [Certify to court names of resisters.]—The officer shall certify to the court from which the process issued, the names of the resisters, and their aiders and abettors, to the end that they may be punished for a contempt.

SEC. 4147. [Refuses to assist.]—Every person commanded by a public officer to assist him in the execution of process, as provided in section four thousand one hundred and forty-five of this chapter, who, without lawful cause, refuses or neglects to obey such command, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4148. [When power of county not sufficient.]—If it appear to the governor that the power of any county is not sufficient to enable the sheriff to execute process delivered to him, he may, on the application of the sheriff, order such posse or military force from any other county or counties as is necessary.

SEC. 4149. [Unlawful assemblages.]—When persons to the number of twelve or more, armed with dangerous weapons, or persons to the number of thirty or more, whether armed or not, are unlawfully or riotously assembled in any city or town, the judges, sheriff and his deputies if they be present, the mayor, aldermen, marshal, constables, and justices of the peace of such city or town, must go among the persons assembled, or as near them as may be safe, and command them, in the name of the state, immediately to disperse.

SEC. 4150. [Arrest.]—If the persons assembled do not immediately disperse, the magistrates and officers must arrest them, that they may be punished according to law, and for that purpose may command the aid of all persons present or within the county.

SEC. 4151. [Refusing to aid.]—If any person commanded to aid the magistrate or officer, without good cause neglect to do so, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4152. [Failure of duty.]—If a magistrate or officer having notice of an unlawful or riotous assembly as above provided in this chapter, neglect to proceed to the place of assembly, or as near thereto as he can with safety, and to exercise the authority with which he is invested for suppressing the same and arresting the persons, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4153. [Assembly will not disperse.]—If the persons so assembled and commanded to disperse, do not immediately disperse, any two of the magistrates or officers before mentioned, may command the aid of a sufficient number of persons, and may proceed in such manner as, in their judgment, is necessary to disperse the assembly and arrest the offenders.

SEC. 4154. [When armed force is called out.]—When an armed force is called out for the purpose of suppressing an unlawful or riotous assembly, or arresting the offenders, it must obey such orders in relation thereto as have been made by the governor, or by a judge of the supreme, district or circuit court, a sheriff or magistrate, as the case may be.
CHAPTER 7.

OF LOCAL JURISDICTION OF PUBLIC OFFENSES.

SECTION 4155. [Who liable to laws of this state.]—Every person, whether an inhabitant of this or any other state or country, or of a territory, or district of the United States, is liable to punishment by the laws of this state for a public offense committed by him therein, except where it is cognizable exclusively in the courts of the United States.

Sec. 4156. [Of district court.]—The local jurisdiction of the district court, is of offenses committed within the county in which it is held, and of such other cases as are, or may be, provided by law.

Sec. 4157. [Offenses commenced without but consummated within.]—When the commission of a public offense commenced without this state is consummated within the state, though he was without the state at the time of the commission of the offense charged; provided, he consummated the offense through the intervention of an innocent or guilty agent within this state, or any other means proceeding directly from himself; and in such case the jurisdiction is in the county in which the offense is consummated.

The stealing of property in another state and bringing it into this state is not the commencement of an offense in another state and its consummation in this state, within the meaning of this section. The State v. Bennett, 14 Iowa, 479.

When stolen property is brought into this state, the crime of larceny is completed in any county into which the property is brought by the thief, and he may be therein indicted and convicted. Id.

Sec. 4158. [Fighting duel without the state.]—When an inhabitant or resident of this state, by previous appointment or engagement, fights a duel, or is concerned as second therein, without the jurisdiction of the state, and in such duel a wound is inflicted upon any person whereof he die within this state, the jurisdiction of the offense is in the county where the death may happen.

Sec. 4159. [Offense part in one county.]—When a public offense is committed in part in one county and part within another, or when the acts or effects constituting, or requisite to the consummation of the offense, occur in two or more counties, jurisdiction is in either county.

The jurisdiction of a case of abortion under section 4159 of the code, is in the county where the medicine intended to procure a miscarriage was administered, and not in another county in which the miscarriage took place. This section (4160) of the code does not apply to such case, for the reason that the administering the medicine with the intent charged makes the crime complete. The State v. Hollenbeck, 36 Iowa, 112.

Where, by this section of the code, the jurisdiction of a crime lies in either of two counties, the court which first obtains jurisdiction of the person of the defendant retains it to the end, to the exclusion of the court of the other county, even though he may have been indicted first in such other county. Ex parte Baldwin, 69 Id., 502.

Sec. 4160. [Near boundary of two counties.]—When a public offense is committed on the boundary of two or more counties, or within five hundred yards thereof, the jurisdiction is in either county.

Where jurisdiction is taken under this section and the case tried in a county other than the one in which the offense was committed, it is not entitled to recover the costs of the prosecution from such county under section 3841 of the code. Floyd County v. Cerro Gordo County, 47 Iowa, 186.

In the State v. Pugsley, 38 N. W. Rep., 498, it was held that this section which provides that “where a public offense is committed on the boundary of two or more counties, or within 500 yards thereof, jurisdiction is in either,” was not in conflict with section 9, article 1, of the constitution which provides that “the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate” when a similar statute was in force when the first constitution was adopted and has remained in force ever since.

Sec. 4161. [On boats, rafts, etc.]—When an offense is committed within the jurisdiction of this state on board a boat, raft, or vessel navigating a river, lake, or canal, or lying therein in the prosecution of her voyage, the jurisdiction is in any county through which the boat, raft, or vessel is navigated in the course of her voyage, or in the county where the voyage shall terminate.

Sec. 4162. [Jurisdiction in any county in certain cases.]—The jurisdiction of an indictment for the crime of forcibly, and without lawful authority seizing and confining another, or kidnapping him with intent, against his will, to cause him to be confined or imprisoned within the state, or to be sent out of the state; or of taking or enticing away a child under the age of twelve years from the parents, guardian, or other person having the legal charge of the person, with the intent to detain or conceal such child; or of taking or enticing away an unmarried female of previously chaste character under the age of fifteen years, for the purpose of prostitution; or of taking any woman unlawfully and against her will, or by force, menace, or duress, compelling her to marry against her will; or of seducing and debauching any unmarried woman of previously chaste character, is in any county in which the offense is committed, or into or out of which the person upon whom the offense was committed may, in the prosecution of the offense, have been brought, or in which any act is done by the offender in instigating, procuring, promoting, aiding in, or being an accessory to the commission of the offense, or in abetting the parties concerned therein.

Sec. 4163. [Bigamy.]—When the offense of bigamy is committed in one county, and the defendant is apprehended in another; the jurisdiction is in either county.

Sec. 4164. [When conviction a bar.]—When the offense is within the jurisdiction of two or more counties, a conviction or acquittal thereof in one county is a bar to prosecution or indictment thereof in another.

CHAPTER 8.

THE TIME OF COMMENCING CRIMINAL ACTIONS.

Section 4165. [Murder.]—A prosecution for murder may be commenced at any time after the death of the person killed.

Sec. 4166. [Limitations within eighteen months.]—An indictment for a public offense must be found within eighteen months after the commission thereof, in the following cases, and not after:

1. Taking or enticing away an unmarried female, under the age of fifteen years, for the purpose of marriage or prostitution;
2. Seducing or debauching an unmarried female, of previously chaste character;
3. For rape and adultery;
4. For an assault with intent to commit a rape.

The statute of limitations cannot be properly set up by demurrer, by instructions to the jury, or by motion for a new trial; it must be specially pleaded so that the state may have an opportunity to reply. The State v. Hussey, 7 Iowa, 4:9.

An indictment for seduction if not found within one year after the commission of the offense, is barred by the statute of limitations. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 308.

The precise time when the crime of seduction was committed need not be alleged in an indictment, time not being a material ingredient of the offense. The State v. Dietrick, 51 Id., 467.

An indictment charging the commission of adultery on a specific day, “and on divers other days and times within eighteen months prior to the finding of this indictment.” Held not bad for duplicity, because, time not being an ingredient of the offense, it was competent to prove the commission of the crime on any day within the eighteen months prior to the finding of the indictment, and the quoted words were properly rejected as surplusage. The State v. Briggs, 68 Id., 416.

Sec. 4167. [Three years.]—In all other cases an indictment for public offense must be found within three years after the commission thereof, and not afterwards.

Section 4168. [Misdemeanor triable before a justice.]—A prosecution for a misdemeanor, triable before a justice of the peace, must be commenced within one year after the commission thereof, and not afterwards.

Section 4169. [Defendant out of the state.]—If, when the offense is committed, the defendant is out of the state, the indictment or prosecution may be found or commenced within the time limited after his coming into the state, and no period during which the party charged was not usually and publicly resident within this state is a part of the limitation.

Section 4170. [When indictment is found.]—An indictment is found, within the meaning of this chapter, when it is duly presented by the grand jury in open court and there received and filed.

CHAPTER 9.
OF FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE.

Section 4171. [Agents appointed to apprehend: expense.]—The governor of the state may, in any case authorized by the constitution and laws of the United States, appoint agents to demand of the executive authority of any other state or territory, or from the executive authority of any foreign government, any fugitive from justice charged with treason or felony, and the accounts of the agents appointed for that purpose must be audited by the auditor of state and paid out of the state treasury.

(As amended by ch. 65, 17th g. a.) [Expenses to be allowed agents.]—[The expenses to be allowed agents for returning fugitives from justice shall be the fees paid the officers of the state upon whose governor the requisition is made; and the agent shall receive not exceeding ten cents per mile, each way, for all necessary travel of himself, and for each fugitive five cents per mile additional for the number of miles which such fugitive shall have been conveyed.

[Form of bill of expenses.]—Bills for such expenses shall be made out in such manner as to show the actual route traveled, and the number of miles, and be verified by affidavit, and be accompanied by proof that the fugitive for whom requisition was made has been returned and delivered into the custody of the proper authority; provided, that the state shall in no case pay the costs of returning the fugitive where he has not been tried, unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the governor that the want of trial has not been owing to any fault or neglect on the part of the person or persons interested in the prosecution.]

Section 4172. [No compensation except provided by law.]—No compensation, fee, or reward of any kind, can be paid to or received by a public officer of this state for a service rendered or expense incurred in procuring from the governor the demand mentioned in the last section, or the surrender of the fugitive, or for conveying him to this state, or detaining him therein, except as provided by law.

Defendant became surety on an appeal bond of one who had been convicted of a felony, and who, pending the appeal, fled to the state of Kansas. Defendant then, in order to secure the fugitive and surrender him in his own exoneration, agreed to pay to the plaintiff, who was the deputy sheriff of the county, a reasonable compensation for securing and returning the fugitive. The plaintiff, under a requisition from the governor of Iowa, proceeded to Kansas and arrested and returned the fugitive and delivered him to the sheriff of the proper county, and this action was brought to recover the reasonable compensation promised. Held, that the agreement was repugnant to this section of the code, which provides that officers shall receive no other compensation.
tion for such services than that provided in section 4171 of the code, and that no recovery could be had.

Davy v. Townsend, 70 Iowa, 558.

SEC. 4173.  [Misdemeanor.]-A violation of the last section is a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4174.  [Executive warrants: for fugitive: when to issue.]-No executive warrant for the arrest and surrender of any person demanded by the executive authority of any state or territory, as a fugitive from the justice of such state or territory, and no requisition upon the executive authority of any other state or territory, for the surrender of any person as a fugitive from the justice of this state shall be issued, unless the requisition from the executive authority of such other state or territory, or the application for such requisition upon the executive authority of such other state or territory shall be accompanied by sworn evidence that the party charged is a fugitive from justice, and by a duly attested copy of an indictment, or a duly attested copy of a complaint, made before a court or magistrate authorized to receive the same.

A citizen and resident of Iowa who is charged with having been constructively guilty of an offense in another state, upon which a requisition is based, but who never in fact has fled therefrom, is not a fugitive from justice within the meaning of the constitution.

Jones v. Leonard, 50 Iowa, 106.

The determination of the governor that the sworn evidence accompanying the requisition is sufficient to establish the facts upon which the requisition is based, is not conclusive of the matters therein set forth.

Id.

The statute providing for the arrest and surrender of fugitives contemplates that a charge of crime against the person to be arrested and delivered up must be made in the state where the crime was committed, in the form of an indictment, information or accusation known to the law of such state, before some court, magistrate, or officer thereof.

State v. Hufford, 28 Id., 391.

SEC. 4175.  [Requisition from another state.]-Whenever a demand is made upon the governor of this state by the executive of any other state or territory, in any case authorized by the constitution and laws of the United States, for the delivery of any person charged in such state or territory with any crime, if such person is not held in custody or under bail to answer for any offense against the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall issue his warrant under the seal of the state authorizing the agent who makes such demand, either forthwith or at such time as may be designated in the warrant, to take and transport such person to the line of this state at the expense of such agent, and may also by such warrant require all peace officer to afford all needful assistance in the execution thereof.

EXAMINATION BY MAGISTRATE.

SEC. 4176.  [Warrant of magistrate: when to issue.]-If any person be found in this state charged with any crime committed in any other state or territory, and liable by the constitution and laws of the United States, for the delivery of any person charged in such state or territory with any crime, if such person is not held in custody or under bail to answer for any offense against the laws of the United States or of this state, he shall issue his warrant under the seal of the state authorizing the agent who makes such demand, either forthwith or at such time as may be designated in the warrant, to take and transport such person to the line of this state at the expense of such agent, and may also by such warrant require all peace officer to afford all needful assistance in the execution thereof.

A person arrested in this state, under section 4176 of the code, charged before a magistrate with the crime of murder in the second degree, committed in another state, is upon an adjournment of the examination entitled to bail for his appearance before the magistrate on the day to which the case is adjourned; and in case of his failure to appear at that time according to the terms of his recognizance, the same may be declared forfeited, and an action maintained thereon against the bail.

The State v. Hufford, 23 Iowa, 579.

SEC. 4177.  [Bail.]-If, upon examination, it appear that there is reasonable cause to believe the complaint true, and that such person may be lawfully demanded of the governor, he shall, if not charged with murder, be required to enter into an undertaking, with sufficient surety in a reasonable sum, to appear before such magistrate at a future day, allowing reasonable time to obtain the warrant from the governor, and abide the order of such magistrate in the premises.
This chapter contemplates that a charge of the crime against the person to be arrested and delivered up must be made in the state where the crime was committed, in the form of an indictment, information or accusation known to the law of such state, before some court or officer thereof. The State v. Hufford, 23 Iowa, 391.

Unless a charge is thus made in the state from which the defendant is an alleged fugitive, a magistrate of this state has no jurisdiction under the statute to hold him to bail, and a bond given by the accused, in such case, is invalid, and though voluntarily executed does not estop the defendant from urging want of jurisdiction in the magistrate. Id.

A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to hold to bail or take bail of a fugitive from justice, arrested under the provisions of section 4176 of the code, without a charge of crime by indictment or otherwise, having been made against such fugitive in the state where the crime was committed, and a bail bond thus taken was invalid. Id.

Sec. 4178. [Committed.]—If such person does not give bail, or if he is charged with the crime of murder, he must be committed to prison, and there detained until such day in like manner as if the offense charged had been committed within this state.

Sec. 4179. [Forfeiture of bail.]—A failure of such person to attend before the magistrate at the time and place mentioned in the undertaking, is a forfeiture thereof.

Sec. 4180. [Discharge.]—If such person appear before the magistrate upon the day ordered, he must be discharged unless he is demanded by some person authorized by the warrant of the governor to receive him, or unless the magistrate see good cause to commit him or to require him to enter into a new undertaking for his appearance at some other day to await a warrant from the governor.

Sec. 4181. [Re-arrest on governor's warrant.]—Whether the person so charged be bound to appear, be committed, or discharged, any person authorized by the warrant of the governor may at any time take him into custody, and the same is a discharge of the undertaking, if there be one.

Sec. 4182. [Costs.]—The complainant in any such case is answerable for all the costs and charges, and for the support in prison of any person so committed, and the magistrate before issuing his warrant or hearing the cause, must require the complainant to give security for the payment of all such costs, or may require them in advance.

Sec. 4183. [Condition as to expense before appointing agent.]—Upon the appointment of any agent for the arrest of a fugitive from justice under the provisions of this chapter, the governor is hereby authorized to make it a condition upon such appointment, and the issue of the writ, that the same shall be executed without expense to the state, if in his opinion justice and equity so require.

Sec. 4184. [When expenses are paid by the state.]—When, in the opinion of the governor, expenses incurred in the arrest of fugitives from justice should be paid by the state, such expenses shall be made out by items in detail, and sworn to, and approved by him and at least two other members of the executive council, and when so approved shall be audited and paid out of the general revenue of the state, and this section shall be sufficient authority for the payment of the same.
CHAPTER 10.

OF WARRANTS OF ARREST ON PRELIMINARY INFORMATION.

SEC. 4185. [Complaint.]—When complaint is made before a magistrate of the commission of some designated public offense; triable on indictment in the county in which such magistrate has local jurisdiction, and charging some person with the commission thereof, he may issue a warrant for the arrest of such person. The complaint may be in form substantially the same as provided in section four thousand six hundred and sixty-three of chapter fifty-two of this title.

SEC. 4186. [Warrant: form of.]—The warrant of arrest on a preliminary information, must be substantially in the following form:

COUNTY OF ........

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To any Peace Officer of the State:

Preliminary information upon oath having been this day laid before me that the crime of (designating it,) has been committed, and accusing A. B. thereof:

You are, therefore, commanded forthwith to arrest the said A. B. and bring him before me at (naming the place), or in case of my absence or inability to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in this county.

Dated at ....... this .... day of .... A. D. 18. .

C.... D...., Justice of the Peace.

Subpœna as witnesses E....F.... and G....H....

SEC. 4187. The warrant must specify the name of the defendant, and if it be unknown to the magistrate, may designate him by any name. It must also state by name or general description, an offense which authorizes the magistrate to issue the warrant, the time of issuing it, and the county, city, town, township or village where it was issued, and must be signed by the magistrate with his name of office.

SEC. 4188 [Directed.—It must be directed to “any peace officer in the state.”

SEC. 4189. [If the offense is a misdemeanor.]—If the offense stated in the warrant be a misdemeanor, the magistrate issuing it must make an indorsement on the warrant as follows: “Let the defendant, when arrested, be admitted to bail in the sum of ....dollars, if he desires to give bail,” and fix in the indorsement the amount in which bail may be taken.

SEC. 4190. [How served.—]The warrant of arrest may be delivered to any peace officer for execution, and executed in any county in the state.

SEC. 4191. [If offense be felony.]—If the offense stated in the warrant be a felony, the officer making the arrest must take the defendant before the magistrate who issued it at the place mentioned in the command thereof, or, in the event of his absence or inability to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which it was issued.

Where a defendant charged with a felony on a preliminary information before a justice of the peace, is arrested in another county, he is not entitled to be taken before a magistrate thereof for the purpose of giving bail, and recognizance taken by such magistrate for the appearance of the defendant at the district court of the county whence the warrant was issued, is under this section of the code invalid as a recognizance. The State v. Cannon, 34 Iowa, 322.

But the obligors on such bond, though not valid as a statutory bond, may nevertheless be made liable thereon as an obligation entered into by them at the request and for the benefit of the accused. Id.
SEC. 4192. [Bail in case of misdemeanor.]—If the offense stated in the warrant be a misdemeanor, and the defendant be arrested in another county, the officer must, upon being required by the defendant, take him before a magistrate or clerk of the district court of the same county in which he was arrested, for the purpose of giving bail, and the magistrate or clerk before whom he is taken in such county, must take bail from him accordingly for his appearance at the district court of the county in which the warrant was issued, on the first day of the next term thereof.

SEC. 4193. [Order of discharge of defendant.]—On taking bail in the case provided for in the preceding section, the magistrate or clerk taking such bail must make on the warrant an order, signed by him with his name of office, for the discharge of the defendant, substantially as follows:

COUNTY OF (here name the county),

THE STATE OF IOWA.

To (here state the name of the officer who has the defendant in custody, with the addition of his name of office thus, A. B. sheriff of ........ county, according to the truth).

The defendant named in the warrant of arrest in your custody, under the authority thereof, for the offense therein designated, having given sufficient bail to answer the same, by the undertaking herewith delivered to you, you are commanded forthwith to discharge him from custody, and without unnecessary delay deliver this order, together with said undertaking of bail, to the clerk of the district court of ........ county, on or before the first day of the next term thereof.

Dated at ........, this ........ day of ...., A. D., (or as the case may be).

.........................., Justice of the Peace.

(or as the case may be).

And must deliver the warrant with the order thereon, together with the undertaking of bail, to the officer having the defendant in custody, who shall forthwith discharge the defendant from arrest and without unnecessary delay, and on or before the first day of the next term of the court at which the defendant is required to appear, deliver or transmit by mail or otherwise the warrant with the order thereon, together with the undertaking or bail, to the clerk of the court at which the defendant is required to appear, who shall forthwith file the same in his office; and the magistrate who issued the warrant shall return to the clerk the affidavits of the informant, and his witnesses upon which the warrant was issued, on or before the first day of the next term of the court, and the clerk shall, when the affidavits are returned by the magistrate, file the same in his office, with the warrant and undertaking of bail.

SEC. 4194. [If bail be not given.]—If bail be not forthwith given by the defendant, as provided in the two preceding sections, the magistrate or clerk must redeliver to the officer the warrant, and the officer must take the defendant before the magistrate who issued it, at the place mentioned in the command thereof, or, if he be absent or unable to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which the warrant was issued.

SEC. 4195. [Proceedings after arrest.]—In all cases when the defendant is arrested, he must be taken before the magistrate or clerk without unnecessary delay, and the officer must at the same time deliver to the magistrate or clerk the warrant, with his return thereon, indorsed and subscribed by him in his name of office.

SEC. 4196. [Same.]—If the defendant be taken before a magistrate in the county in which the warrant was issued, other than the magistrate who issued it as hereinbefore provided, the affidavits on which the warrant was issued must be sent to such magistrate, or if they cannot be procured the informant and his witnesses must be subpoenaed to make new affidavits.
CHAPTER II.

OF ARREST, AND BY WHOM AND HOW MADE.

SECTION 417. Arrest is the taking of a person in custody in a case, and in the manner authorized by law.

SEC. 4198. [By whom.]—An arrest may be made by a peace officer, or by a private person.

SEC. 4199. [With warrant.]—A peace officer may make an arrest in obedience to a warrant delivered to him.

SEC. 4200. [Without, by peace officer.]—A peace officer without a warrant may make an arrest:
1. For a public offense committed or attempted in his presence;
2. Where a public offense has in fact been committed, and he has reasonable ground for believing that the person to be arrested has committed it.

The power to detain an offender in custody for a reasonable length of time is inherent to the duties of a peace officer, and may be pleaded in justification in an action for false imprisonment. Hutchinson v. Sanger, 4 G. Greene, 340.

SEC. 4201. [By private person.]—A private person may make an arrest:
1. For a public offense committed or attempted in his presence;
2. When a felony has been committed, and he has reasonable ground for believing that the person to be arrested has committed it.

SEC. 4202. [Magistrate may orally order arrest.]—A magistrate may orally order a peace officer, or a private person, to arrest any one committing, or attempting to commit, a public offense in the presence of such magistrate, which order shall authorize the arrest.

SEC. 4203. [When made.]—An arrest may be made on any day, or at any time of the day or night.

SEC. 4204. [How to be made.]—The person making the arrest must inform the person to be arrested of the intention to arrest him, of the cause of the arrest, of his authority to make it, and that he is a peace officer, if such be the case, and require him to submit to his custody, except when the person to be arrested is actually engaged in the commission of, or attempt to commit the offense, or flies immediately after its commission, and if acting under the authority of a warrant, he must give information thereof, and show the warrant if required.

SEC. 4205. [When resisted.]—When the arrest is being made by an officer, or a private person, if any public offense, a peace officer acting under the authority of a warrant, or without a warrant, may break open a door or window of a house in which the person to be arrested may be, or in which they have reasonable grounds for believing he is, after having demanded admittance and explained the purpose for which admittance is desired.

SEC. 4206. [In order to get out.]—Any person who has lawfully entered a house for the purpose of making an arrest under the provisions of the preceding section may break open the door or window thereof if detained therein, when necessary for the purpose of liberating himself; and an officer may do the same, when necessary for the purpose of liberating a person who, acting in his aid, and by his command, lawfully entered for the purpose of making an arrest, and detained therein.

SEC. 4207. [Refuses to assist in making arrest.]—Any person making an arrest, may orally summon as many persons as he deems necessary to aid him in making the arrest, and all persons failing to obey such summons shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4209. [Arrest: how made.]-An arrest is made by an actual restraint of the person to be arrested, or by his submission to the custody of the person making the arrest.

SEC. 4210. [Force.]-No unnecessary force or violence shall be used in making an arrest.

SEC. 4211. [How created.]-A person arrested is not to be subjected to any more restraint than is necessary for his detention.

SEC. 4212. [May take weapons from persons arrested.]-He who makes an arrest may take from the person arrested all offensive weapons which he may have about his person, and must deliver them to the magistrate before whom he is taken to be disposed of according to law.

SEC. 4213. [Escape.]-If a person, after being arrested, either by a peace officer without a warrant, or by a private person, escape, or be rescued, the person from whose custody he escaped or was rescued, may immediately pursue and retake him in any part of the state, and for that purpose may, if necessary, break open the door or window of a house in which he may be, or in which he has reasonable grounds to believe he is, after having stated his purpose and demanded admittance, and when the person escaping or rescued was in custody under a warrant or commitment, this may be done at any time under the original warrant or commitment.

SEC. 4214. [Arrest by bystander.]-A peace officer may take before a magistrate a person who, being engaged in a breach of the peace, is arrested by a bystander and delivered to him.

SEC. 4215. [When arrest is by private person.]-A private person who has arrested another for the commission of an offense, must, without unnecessary delay, take him before a magistrate or deliver him to a peace officer.

SEC. 4216. A private person who makes an arrest and delivers the person arrested to a peace officer, must also accompany the officer before the magistrate.

SEC. 4217. [By officer with warrant.]-An officer making an arrest in obedience to a warrant, shall proceed with the person arrested as commanded by the warrant, or as provided by law.

An officer serving a warrant would be authorized to discharge the prisoner upon his giving bail in the required amount. The State v. Archer, 48 Iowa, 310, 312.

SEC. 4218. [When without warrant.]-When an arrest is made without a warrant, whether by a peace officer or a private person, the person arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before the nearest or most accessible magistrate in the county in which the arrest is made; and the grounds on which the arrest was made shall be stated to the magistrate by affidavit, subscribed and sworn to by the person making the statement before the magistrate, in the same manner as upon a preliminary information, as nearly as may be.

HEARING BEFORE MAGISTRATE.

SEC. 4219. [Magistrate may order information to be filed.]-If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in the county in which the arrest was made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, as the case may require, and that it will not be inconvenient for the witnesses on the part of the state that such trial or preliminary examination should be had before him, he shall proceed as if the person arrested had been brought before him on arrest under a warrant, and if the case be one within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against him.
SEC. 4220. [May order hearing to take place before another magistrate.]—If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in the county in which the arrest is made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, and that it will be more convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state that such trial or examination should be had before some other magistrate, he shall, by a written order by him signed with his name of office, commit the person arrested to a peace officer, to be by him taken before such magistrate in the same county who has jurisdiction to try or examine the charge as the case may require, and as shall be convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state, and deliver the affidavit and the order of commitment to the peace officer, who shall proceed with the person arrested as directed by the order; and such magistrate, when the person arrested is brought before him, shall proceed as on an arrest under a warrant, and, if the case be within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against the person arrested.

SEC. 4221. [When the offense is triable in another county.]—If the magistrate believes from the statements in the affidavit that the offense charged is triable in a county different from that in which the arrest is made, and that there is sufficient ground for a trial or preliminary examination, he shall, by a written order by him signed with his name of office, commit the person arrested to a peace officer, to be by him taken before a magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, who has jurisdiction to make either preliminary examination into the charges, or try and determine the same, as the case may require, and, if the offense be a misdemeanor only triable on indictment, shall fix in the order the amount of bail which the person arrested may give for his appearance at the district court of the county in which the offense is indictable, on the first day of the next term thereof, to answer an indictment.

SEC. 4222. [Bail: commitment: discharge.]—If bail be given as provided in the preceding section, it may be either before the magistrate making the order, or the magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable before whom he is taken under the order, or a magistrate of any county through which he passes in going from the county in which the arrest was made to that in which the offense is triable, or the clerk of the district court of either of said counties; and, when given, the magistrate or clerk taking the same shall make on the order of commitment an order for the discharge of the person arrested from custody, who shall forthwith be discharged accordingly, and to transmit by mail or otherwise, to the clerk of the district court of the county at which the person arrested is bound to appear, on or before the first day of the next term thereof, and as soon as it can be conveniently done after taking the bail, the affidavits, the order of commitment and discharge, together with the undertaking of the bail, who shall file the same together in his office.

SEC. 4223. [Same.]—If bail be not given as provided in the last two sections, before the magistrate in the county in which the arrest was made, or if the offense charged is a felony, or a misdemeanor, triable on information, the magistrate must deliver the affidavits and the order of commitment to a peace officer, who shall proceed with the person arrested as directed by the order, or provided by law; and the magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, when the person arrested is brought before him, shall proceed as on an arrest under a warrant, and, if the case be within his jurisdiction to try and determine, shall order an information to be filed against the person arrested.

SEC. 4224. [Officer having person in custody to take him before magistrate.]—In the cases contemplated in the last three sections, the officer having the person arrested in custody, under the order, shall take him before the proper magistrate in the county in which the offense is triable, which is most convenient for the witnesses on the part of the state, unless, in case of a misde­ demeanor triable on indictment as hereinbefore provided, the person arrested desires to give bail, in which case he shall take him before the most convenient magistrate in the county in which the offense with which he is charged is triable, or any county through which he passes in going from the county in which the arrest was made to the county in which the offense is triable, or before the clerk of the district court of either of said counties for the purpose of giving bail.

Sec. 4225. [Officer's return, how made.].—In all cases, the peace officer, when he takes a person committed to him under an order as provided in this chapter before a magistrate, or clerk of the district court, either for the purpose of giving bail, if bail be taken, or for trial or preliminary examination, must make his return on such order and sign such return with his name of office, and deliver the same to the magistrate or clerk.

CHAPTER 12.
OF PRELIMINARY EXAMINATIONS.

Section 4226. [Right of defendant to counsel.].—When the defendant is brought before the magistrate on arrest, either with or without a warrant, the magistrate must immediately inform him of the offense with which he is charged, and of his right to the aid of counsel in every stage of the proceedings.

Sec. 4227. [Same.].—The magistrate must allow the defendant a reasonable time to send for counsel, and, if necessary, must adjourn the examination for that purpose.

Sec. 4228. [Examination.].—The magistrate, immediately after the appearance of counsel, or, if the defendant require the aid of counsel, after waiting a reasonable time therefor, must proceed to examine the case; provided, however, that before said examination is commenced, said defendant may have a change of venue upon filing an affidavit that the magistrate is prejudiced against him, is a material witness for either party, or that the defendant cannot obtain justice before him, as affiant verily believes. On filing of such affidavit a change of venue must be allowed, and the magistrate must immediately transmit all original papers, and a transcript of the record entire in the case, to the next nearest magistrate in the township against whom no objection exists, if there be any; if not, to the next nearest magistrate in the county against whom no such objections in the opinion of the justice exists, who shall proceed with said examination as hereinafter provided.
Only one such change of venue shall be allowed.

Sec. 4229. The examination must be terminated at one session unless the magistrate, for good cause shown, adjourn it.

Sec. 4230. No examination can be adjourned for a longer period than thirty days.

Sec. 4231. [Bail.].—If an adjournment be had for any cause, the magistrate shall commit the defendant for examination, or require him to give ample security for his appearance at the time and place to which the examination is adjourned.

Sec. 4232. If there is no jail in the county, the sheriff must retain the defendant in his custody until the examination.

Sec. 4233. [Subpoenas.].—The magistrate must issue subpoenas for any wittnesses required either by the state or by the defendant, and the witnesses who appear at the examination must be examined in the presence of the defendant.

Sec. 4234. [Depositions.].—The deposition of a witness who resides out of the county in which the examination is had, may be taken on application of the defendant on the order of the magistrate before any officer authorized to take depositions in civil cases; which order shall not be made until three days after the filing with the magistrate of the written interrogatories to be propounded to the witness; nor until three days after the service of notice on the state, or on the attorney who appears for the state, of the filing of such interrogatories.

Sec. 4235. [Cross-interrogatories.]—Before the order to take the deposition is made, the state may file cross-interrogatories to be propounded to the witness, which shall be answered by him in the deposition.

Sec. 4236. [Read in evidence.]—At the expiration of three days from the filing of the magistrate, and the service of the notice thereof on the state as above provided, the magistrate may order the testimony of the witness to be taken in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories, if any, on file; and the deposition thus taken may be read as evidence on the examination; nor shall the same be excluded because of any irregularity in the taking of it, if the magistrate is satisfied that the irregularity complained of could not work no substantial prejudice to the opposite party.

(Section 4237 repealed by section 2, chapter 168, of the laws of 1878.)

Sec. 4238. [Cross-examination.]—When the defendant testifies in his own behalf, he shall be subject to a cross-examination as an ordinary witness; provided, that, in the cross-examination, the state shall be strictly confined to the matters testified to in the examination in chief.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution testifies in his own behalf, he is subject to the same rules regulating cross-examination and impeachment as other witnesses. The State v. Red, 53 Iowa, 99.

TRIAL.

Sec. 4239. [Witnesses excluded.]—While a witness is under examination before the magistrate, he may exclude all others who have not been examined. He may also cause the witnesses to be kept separate, that they may not converse with each other until they are all examined.

Sec. 4240. [Persons excluded.]—The magistrate must also, upon the request of the defendant, exclude from hearing the examination all persons except the magistrate, his clerk, the peace officer who has the custody of the defendant, the attorney or attorneys representing the state, and the defendant and his counsel.

Sec. 4241. [Testimony in writing.]—The magistrate shall, in the minutes of the examination, write out, or cause to be written out, the substance of the testimony given on the examination by each witness examined before him, showing the name of the witness, his place of residence, and his business or profession, and the amount to which each witness is entitled for mileage and attendance.

The minutes of the testimony taken by the justice upon a preliminary examination, as prescribed in the statute are not conclusive when introduced by the defendant on his trial in the district court, as to what the witnesses testified to upon such examination. The State v. Hull, 26 Iowa, 292.

The minutes of evidence taken by a magistrate on a preliminary examination, or before a grand jury, are not admissible upon the trial of an indictment, for the purpose of impeaching a witness. The State v. Hayden, 47 Id., 11.

If the magistrate shall cause the testimony of the witnesses to be reduced to writing, he does it for his own convenience, and the county is not chargeable therefor. Sanford v. Lee County, 49 Id., 148.

Minutes of the testimony of a witness taken down by the magistrate in a preliminary examination before him, are not admissible in evidence against the defendant on trial. The State v. Collins, 32 Id., 69.

The minutes of the evidence given on a preliminary examination before a magistrate, or before the grand jury, are not admissible upon the trial for the purpose of impeaching a witness. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

Sec. 4242. [Magistrate's certificate.]—After the examination is closed, the magistrate must attach together the complaint, the warrant or order of commitment, if any, under which the defendant was brought before him, the minutes of the examination, including all depositions on file with him and used in the examination, and annexed thereto his certificate, which must set forth in substance the time and place of examination, and that the minutes thereof are true, and the certificate must be signed by the magistrate, with his name of office.

Sec. 4243. [Judgment.]—If, after hearing the testimony, it appear to the magistrate, either that a public offense has not been committed, or that there is no sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, he must order the defendant to be discharged; and such order must be indorsed on the minutes of the examination or annexed thereto and signed by the magistrate, to the following effect: "There being no sufficient cause for believing the defendant guilty of the offense herein mentioned, or of any other offense, I order him to be discharged."

Sec. 4244. [Same.]—If it appears from the examination that a public offense triable on indictment has been committed, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, the magistrate shall in like manner indorse on or annex to the minutes of the examination, an order signed by him to the following effect: "It appearing to me by the within minutes that the offense therein mentioned, or any other offense triable on indictment, according to the fact, stating generally the nature thereof, has been committed, and there is sufficient cause for believing the defendant guilty thereof, I order that he be held to answer the same."

BAIL.

Sec. 4245. [Order admitting.]—If bail be taken by the magistrate, the following words in substance must be added to the order mentioned in the preceding section, "and I have admitted him to bail to answer thereto by the undertaking hereto annexed," and the undertaking of bail must be annexed thereto.

When a defendant is accused of a capital offense he may be admitted to bail by the examining magistrate, when the evidence is slight, or tends to show that it was committed under mitigating circumstances and would not be punished with death. The State v. Klinqman, 14 Iowa, 404; The State v. Hufford, 23 Id., 579.

Where a defendant is charged with a felony with a preliminary information before a magistrate, is arrested in another county, he is not entitled to be taken before a magistrate thereof for the purpose of giving bail. The State v. Cannon, 34 Id., 352.

Sec. 4246. [Same.]—If bail be not given by the defendant, then the magistrate must add to the order mentioned in section forty-two hundred and forty-four the following words in substance: "and that he be admitted to bail in the sum of (here state the amount), and that he be committed to the jail of the county of (here name the county) until he give such bail."

Sec. 4247. [Mittimus.]—If the magistrate order the defendant to be committed, he shall make out a warrant of commitment, signed by him with his name of office, and deliver it with the defendant to the officer to whom he is committed, or, if the officer be not present, to a peace officer who shall deliver the defendant into the proper custody, together with the warrant of commitment, which warrant may be in form following:

"The State of Iowa:
To the sheriff of ........ county.
An order having been this day made by me, that A........ B ........, (the name of the defendant) be held to answer upon a charge of (state the offense) you are commanded to receive him into your custody and detain him in the jail of the county until he be legally discharged.

Dated at ........ this ........ day of ........, A D. ....

SEC. 4248. (As amended by ch. 130, 18th g. a.) [Witnesses must give undertaking.]—On holding the defendant to answer, the magistrate must take from each material witness examined by him on the part of the state, a written undertaking, to the effect that he will appear and testify at the court to which the defendant is bound to answer [when required in the further progress of the cause; and that he will not evade or attempt to evade the service of a subpoena], or that he will forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars.

If a witness before a magistrate on a preliminary examination refuses to comply with the order of the magistrate requiring him to enter into the undertaking with sureties for his appearance to testify, he may be committed until he does so or is legally discharged. Markwell v. Warren County, 53 Iowa, 422.

A witness confined in the county jail by order of a magistrate, for a failure to give security for his appearance to testify on behalf of the state in a criminal trial, cannot recover from the county his per diem as a witness for the time he is thus imprisoned. Id.

SEC. 4249. [When to give security.]—Whenever the magistrate is satisfied by oath, or otherwise, that there is reason to believe that any such witness will not fulfill his undertaking and appear and testify unless surety be required, he may order the witness to enter into a written undertaking with sureties, and in such sum as he may deem proper for his appearance.

SEC. 4250. [Minors and married women.]—Minors and married women who are material witnesses against the defendant, may, in like manner, be required to procure sureties for their appearance as provided in the preceding section.

SEC. 4251. [Witness committed.]—If a witness, required to enter into an undertaking to appear and testify, either with or without sureties, refuse compliance with the order for that purpose, the magistrate must commit him until he comply or be legally discharged.

SEC. 4252. [Papers returned to district court.]—When a magistrate has discharged a defendant, or held him to answer an indictment, he must return to the district court of the county, on or before its opening, on the first day of the next term thereof, and as soon after the closing of the examination as practicable, all the papers mentioned in section four thousand two hundred and forty-two of this chapter, together with the undertaking of bail for the appearance of the defendant, and the undertakings of the witnesses, or for them, taken by him.

SEC. 4253. [When magistrate to return papers.]—If it appear from the examination that a public offense has been committed which is not triable on indictment, but on information only, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, the magistrate shall retain all the papers, and forthwith order an information to be filed against the defendant, before him. If he have not jurisdiction to try and determine the same, he shall indorse on, or annex to, the minutes of the examination an order, signed by him to the following effect: "It appearing to me by the within minutes that the offense of (here state its name, or nature generally) has been committed, and that there is sufficient reason for believing the defendant guilty thereof, I order that an information be filed against him therefor before (here name some magistrate who is the nearest and most accessible in the same county, and who has jurisdiction, giving the name of office), and that the defendant be committed to any peace officer to be taken before such magistrate." And the magistrate shall thereupon cause each material witness on the part of the state to enter into a written undertaking, to the effect that he will appear forthwith before the magistrate before whom the defendant is to be taken, or that he will forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, and deliver the undertaking, with all the other papers, to a peace officer, who shall forthwith proceed as directed by the order, and take the defendant before such magistrate, and deliver all the papers with the undertakings of the witnesses to the magistrate directed in the order, and make his return thereto, and sign the same with his name of...
SELECTING THE GRAND JURY. [Title XXIV.

office, and the magistrate before whom he is taken shall thereupon proceed accordingly.

SEC. 4254. (As amended by ch. 30, 15th g. a.) [Costs.]-When the defendant is discharged, the justice shall, if he is satisfied that the prosecution is malicious or without probable cause, tax the costs against the complainant and render judgment therefor; but the person against whom such judgment is rendered may appeal in the same manner, and with the same effect, as is provided for a prosecuting witness in section four thousand six hundred and [ninety-one] of this code. [Otherwise the costs shall be taxed against the state.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF SELECTING, DRAWING, SUMMONING AND EMpaneling OF THE GRAND JURY.

SECTION 4255. [Selecting grand jury.]-The selecting, drawing, and summoning of the grand jury is as prescribed in the code of civil practice.

SEC. 4256. (As substituted by ch. 42, 21st g. a.) [Substitute.]-[At a term of court at which grand jurors are required to appear, the panel shall be called and the names of the grand jurors appearing shall be entered on the record. From the number of jurors thus summoned and appearing the clerk shall select, by lot, the required number. If more grand jurors have appeared than the number required to fill the panel, the remaining number shall be discharged for the term. If from any cause, either then or afterward, the number of the panel be reduced to a less number than required, the court may order the sheriff of the county to summon a sufficient number of qualified persons to complete the panel.]

If by reason of challenges sustained to individual jurors, or from any other cause, the grand jury becomes reduced to a less number than fifteen, it is the duty of the court to order the sheriff of the county to summon a sufficient number of qualified persons to complete the panel. The State v. Garhart, 55 Iowa, 315.

Where a part of the grand jurors drawn fail to appear, it is competent for the court, under this section of the code, to orally direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number to complete the panel. Section 244, requiring a second precept to issue, applies only to a case where the entire panel fail to appear or are illegally drawn. The State v. Miller et al., 53 Id., 84; see, also, The State v. Pierce, 8 Id., 231.

Where a defendant in custody challenged one of the grand jurors, which challenge was sustained by the court, and the challenged juror retired from the grand jury room, when the defendant's case came up for consideration, and an indictment was found against the defendant by fourteen grand jurors, it was held that the indictment was found by a valid grand jury. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435.

When talesmen are called and placed on the grand jury to supply vacancies, such talesmen serve for the term, and if the jury is discharged and recalled during the term the talesmen must be summoned with the other jurors impaneled. The State v. Reed, 22 Id., 413.

A grand jury may be re-organized by the court after it has been impaneled for the term as where challenges to the jury are allowed after it has been impaneled. The State v. Mooney 10 Id., 506.

SEC. 4257. [Same.]-Persons summoned by the sheriff to supply a deficiency in the requisite number of grand jurors, serve only during the term at which they are summoned.

SEC. 4258. [Challenge.]-A defendant held to answer to a public offense, may challenge the panel of the grand jury, and the state or defendant may challenge an individual juror.

The defendant in a criminal case may waive his right to challenge the panel of the grand jury, or any individual juror; and such waiver will be inferred when, upon being held to bail, pending the action of the grand jury upon a re-submission of his case, after a demurrer to one indictment has been sustained, he then fails to exercise his right of challenge. The State v. Harris et al., 98 Iowa, 242.
Where a party was indicted for murder and the cause continued until the next term of the court, at which a new grand jury was organized, and the former indictment withdrawn, and a new one found, which, on defendant's motion, was quashed on the ground that no opportunity had been allowed him to challenge the grand jury, the grand jury was then brought into court for the purpose of challenge, and the defendant asked one juror: "Have you formed or expressed an unqualified opinion that the prisoner is guilty of the crime with which he is charged?" To which the juror replied that he had in the grand jury room, in finding the indictment which had been quashed. The defendant then challenged the juror, and it was overruled. Held, that such ruling was erroneous. The State v. Gillick, 7 Id., 287.

And where in said case the court restricted the defendant in his challenge to said grand juror to the following question: "Have you formed or expressed an unqualified opinion as to the guilt of the prisoner prior to the time you were impaneled as a grand juror?" it was held error. Id.

The failure of a defendant held to answer to appear and challenge the grand jury operates only as a waiver of his right to challenge, but does not authorize the forfeiture of his bond. The State v. Klingman, 14 Id., 404; Ringgold County v. Boss et al., 40 Id., 176.

Sec. 4259. A challenge to an individual juror may be made by the state, for one or more of the following causes:

1. That he is related either by affinity or consanguinity nearer than in the fifth degree, or stands in the relation of agent, clerk, servant or employe to any person held to answer for a public offense whose case may come before the grand jury;
2. That he is bail for any one held to answer for a public offense, whose case may come before the grand jury;
3. That he is defendant in a prosecution similar to any prosecution to be examined by the grand jury;
4. That he is, or within one year preceding has been, engaged or interested in carrying on any business, calling or employment, the carrying on of which is a violation of law, and for which the juror may be indicted by the grand jury.

Sec. 4260. A challenge to the panel can be interposed only for the reason that they were not appointed, drawn or summoned as prescribed by law.

A judgment against a defendant on an indictment for a public offense will not be reversed on the ground that one of the names on the list of grand jurors, as drawn, does not appear upon the list returned by the judges of the election of that year, when it is not shown but that the proper steps were taken by the court below to correct this error, and thus have empaneled a legal grand jury. The State v. Hart, 29 Id., 268.

Sec. 4261. [To individual jurors.]—A challenge to an individual juror by the defendant may be made for one or more of the following causes only:

1. That he is a minor, insane or not competent by law to serve as such juror;
2. That he is a prosecutor upon a charge against the defendant;
3. Having formed or expressed such an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner as would prevent him from rendering a true verdict upon the evidence submitted on the trial.

That a grand juror was not a citizen of the United States, and, therefore, not qualified to act as such, is not ground for setting aside an indictment of a defendant who was held to answer before the finding of the indictment. He had the opportunity to and should have made the objection by way of, challenge to the juror before the grand jury was sworn. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 318.

Sec. 4262. [Decided by the court.]—Challenges to the panel or to an individual juror, must be decided by the court.
SEC. 4263. [When challenge allowed.]—If a challenge to the panel be allowed, the grand jury is prohibited from inquiring into the charge against the defendant by whom it was interposed. If the jury does so and finds an indictment the court must set it aside.

SEC. 4264. [Same.]—If a challenge to an individual juror be allowed, he shall not be present at, or take any part in, the consideration of the charge against the defendant.

SEC. 4265. [Inform the court.]—The grand jury must inform the court of a violation of the last section, that it may be punished as a contempt.

SEC. 4266. [Challenge to panel.]—When several persons are held to answer for one and the same offense, no challenge to the panel can be made unless they all join in such challenge, nor can any objection be interposed by a defendant to the grand jury or to any individual juror for any cause of challenge after they are sworn.

An objection to the grand jury or to an individual grand juror, cannot be interposed by a defendant for any cause of challenge after the jury has been sworn. State v. Ingalls et al., 17 Iowa, 8.

Where a defendant charged with a criminal offense is under arrest, or has given bail for his appearance to answer, he is required to make his challenge to the panel of the grand jury before the indictment is found. Dixon v. State, 3 Id., 416.

That a "grand jury was not selected, drawn, summoned or sworn, as prescribed by law," is not ground for setting aside the indictment of one who was held to answer before the finding of the indictment. State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318.

SEC. 4267. [Foreman.]—From the persons summoned to serve as grand jurors, the court must appoint a foreman; the court must also appoint a foreman when the person already appointed is discharged, excused or from any cause becomes unable to act before the grand jury is finally discharged.

A talesman selected by the sheriff from the bystanders, may be appointed, by the court, foreman of the grand jury. State v. Brandt, 41 Iowa, 573, 605.

SEC. 4268. [Oath.]—The following oath must be administered to the foreman of the grand jury: "You, as foreman of the grand jury, shall diligently inquire and true presentment make of all public offenses against the people of this state, committed or triable within this county, of which you have, or can obtain legal evidence; you shall present no person through malice, hatred, or ill will, nor leave any un presented, through fear, favor, or affection, or for any reward, or the promise or hope thereof, but in all your presentments, you shall present the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, according to the best of your skill and understanding. So help you God."

SEC. 4269. [Same.]—The following oath must thereupon be administered to the other grand jurors present: "The same oath which your foreman has now taken before you on his part, you and each of you shall well and truly observe on your part. So help you God."

SEC. 4270. [Charged by the court.]—The grand jury being impaneled and sworn, may be charged by the court. In doing so, the court shall give them such information as it may deem proper as to the nature of their duties, and any charges for public offenses returned to the court or likely to come before the grand jury, and it is hereby made the duty of the court to specially give in charge to the grand jury, the provisions of law regulating the accounting by public officers for fines and fees collected by them, and providing for the suppression of intemperance.

SEC. 4271. [Discharge.]—The grand jury on the completion of its business shall be discharged by the court. But whether its business be completed or not it is discharged by the final adjournment thereof.
CHAPTER 14.

OF THE POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE GRAND JURY.

SECTION 4272. [Power.]—The grand jury has power, and it is made its duty, to inquire into all indictable offenses committed, or which may be tried, within the county and present them to the court by indictment.

The grand jury is endowed by law with the power and charged with the duty of inquiring into all indictable offenses committed or which may be tried within the county. Per DILLON, Ch. J., in The State v. Schill, 27 Iowa, 295.

SEC. 4273. (As amended by ch. 130, 18th g. a.) [Indictment: how found.]—The indictment must in all cases be found only upon evidence given by witnesses produced, sworn and examined before the grand jury, or furnished by legal documentary evidence, [or upon the minutes of the evidence given by witnesses before a committing magistrate.]

Before the enactment of chapter 130 of the acts of 1880, an indictment could be found only upon evidence given by witnesses produced, sworn and examined before the grand jury or furnished by legal documentary proof, but now section 4273 as amended by that chapter, the grand jury may find an indictment upon the minutes of the evidence given by the witnesses before the committing magistrate. The State v. Kepper, 65 Iowa, 745.

SEC. 4274. [Administer oath.]—The grand jury has power, by its foreman, to administer the oath to all witnesses produced and examined before it.

SEC. 4275. (As amended by ch. 38, 22d g. a.) [Duty.]—It is the duty of the grand jury to appoint one of its number, who is not foreman, clerk thereof, who must take and preserve the minutes of the proceedings and of the evidence given before it, except the votes of the individual members thereof on finding an indictment; Provided, that in counties having a population, as shown by the last preceding census, of twenty thousand or over, the court, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may appoint a competent person, not a member of the grand jury, clerk thereof, who shall receive a compensation of $3.00 per day.

He shall take no part in the proceedings aside from his clerical duties, and he shall strictly abstain from expressing an opinion upon any question before the grand jury either to the jury or to any member thereof, and shall not be present when any vote is being taken upon the finding of an indictment. And provided, further, that the following oath must be administered to such clerk: “You as clerk of the grand jury shall faithfully and impartially perform the duties of clerk, and you will not reveal to any one the proceedings of the grand jury, you will strictly abstain from expressing any opinion upon any question before the grand jury, either to the jury or any member thereof, so help you God.”

Approved April 3, 1888.

Took effect April 5th, 1888.

The statute expressly enjoins upon each member of the grand jury, the duty to keep secret its proceedings; this includes, of course, the votes taken on the question of finding an indictment, and, as respects the votes of the individual members of the grand jury, the clerk of the grand jury is prohibited from recording them. Per MILLER, Ch. J., in The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 322.

The minutes of the evidence given before the grand jury, or of that submitted upon preliminary examination, are not admissible on the trial for the purpose of impeaching a witness. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

SEC. 4276. [Same.]—The grand jury is not bound to hear evidence for the defendant, but it is its duty to weigh all the evidence submitted to it, and when it has reason to believe that other evidence within its reach will explain away the charge, it may order such evidence to be produced.

When the grand jury have reason to believe that evidence within its reach will explain away the charge, it may order such evidence to be produced. The State v. Houston, 50 Iowa, 512, 513.

SEC. 4277. [Of a member.]—If a member of the grand jury knows, or has reason to believe that a public offense has been committed, triable in the county; he must declare the same to his fellow jurors, and be sworn as a witness upon the investigation before them.

SEC. 4278. [Special duties.]—It is made the special duty of the grand jury to inquire:
1. Into the case of every person imprisoned in the jail of the county on a criminal charge and not indicted;
2. Into the condition and management of the public prisons within the county;
3. Into the willful and corrupt misconduct in office of all county officers;
4. Into the obstruction of highways.
A grand jury has no power to present to the court, otherwise than by indictment, the misconduct of an officer; and a report by them to the district court charging an officer with maladministration of his office is not a privileged communication; but such a report, when made in good faith and in the belief that it came within the discharge of their duty, is not actionable. Rector v. Smith, 11 Iowa, 302.

SEC. 4279. [Issue subpoenas.]—The clerk of the court must, whenever required by the foreman of the grand jury or district attorney, issue subpoenas for witnesses to appear before the grand jury.

SEC. 4280. [Access to county jail and public records.]—The jury is entitled to free access at all reasonable times to the county jails, and to the examination without charge, of all public records within the county.

SEC. 4281. [Ask advice of district attorney.]—The grand jury may, at all reasonable times, ask the advice of the district attorney, or the court; and the district attorney may attend before it for the purpose of examining witnesses when the grand jury deems it necessary.

SEC. 4282. [District attorney give information.]—Such attorney shall be allowed at all times to appear before the grand jury on his own request, for the purpose of giving information relative to any matter cognizable by it; but no such attorney, nor any other officer or person, except the grand jury, must be present when the question is taken upon the finding of an indictment.
The mere presence of a bailiff of a court, in attendance on the grand jury, during the investigation by them of a criminal charge, is not such sufficient ground of objection to the indictment, if he were not present when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment. But if it were, the objection should be made by motion to set aside the indictment, and not by motion for a new trial after verdict. The State v. Kimball, 29 Iowa, 257.
No person, except the members of the grand jury, are allowed to be present when the vote is taken upon finding an indictment. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318, 322. The affidavits of grand jurors to the effect that they did not consent to the finding of an indictment, are not admissible in support of a motion to quash the indictment. The State v. Mewharter, 46 Id., 88; The State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318.

SEC. 4283. [Should find indictment: when.]—The grand jury should find an indictment when all the evidence before it, taken together, is such as in its own judgment would, if unexplained, warrant a conviction by the trial jury. When the evidence is not such, it should not.

SEC. 4284. [Proceedings: secret.]—Every member of the grand jury must keep secret the proceedings of that body and the testimony given before them, except as hereinafter required. Nor shall any grand juror or officer of the court disclose the fact that an indictment for a felony has been found against any person not in custody or under bail, otherwise than by presenting the same in court, or issuing or executing process thereon, until such person has been arrested. A violation of this section is a misdemeanor. See The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 318, 322, cited in notes to sections 4275 and 4282, ante.

SEC. 4285. [Exception.]—A member of the grand jury may be required by the court to disclose the testimony of a witness examined before them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is consistent with that given by the witness before court, or to disclose the testimony given before them by any witness upon a charge against him of perjury.
Perjury may be committed by a witness in willfully giving false testimony of a material character before a grand jury. The State v. Schell, 27 Iowa, 1263, 268.

Grand jurors may be called as witnesses to impeach the testimony of a witness given before the court, by showing that he testified differently before the grand jury, but the minutes of the evidence kept by the clerk of the grand jury are not competent for that purpose. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11, 15.

SEC. 4286. [Jurors not to be questioned.]—No grand juror shall be questioned for anything he may say, or any vote he may give, in a grand jury relative to a matter legally pending before them, except for perjury of which he may have been guilty in making an accusation, or in giving testimony to his fellow jurors.

A grand jury has no authority to present to the court otherwise than by indictment the misconduct of an officer; and a report made to the court by the grand jury charging an officer with malfeasance in office is not a privileged communication. But where such a report was made by the grand jury, imputing misconduct to an officer, when made in good faith and under the belief that it came within the discharge of their duty, was held not actionable. Rector v. Smith, 11 Iowa, 302.

SEC. 4287. [When witness refuses to testify.]—When a witness under examination before the grand jury, refuses to testify or to answer a question put to him by the grand jury, the grand jury shall proceed with the witness into the presence of the court, and the foreman shall then distinctly state to the court the refusal of the witness, and, if the court, upon hearing the witness, shall decide that he is bound to testify, or answer the question propounded, he shall inquire of the witness if he persists in his refusal, and if he does, shall proceed with him as in cases of similar refusal in open court.

SEC. 4288. [Or fails to obey subpoena.]—If a witness fails to attend before the grand jury, in obedience to a subpoena issued for that purpose and duly served, the court shall, upon the application of the district attorney, or foreman of the grand jury, proceed and coerce the attendance of the witness, and may punish his disobedience as in the case of a witness failing to attend on the trial.

SEC. 4289. (As substituted by sec. 3, ch. 130, 18th g. a.) [Papers relating to arrest and preliminary examination laid before grand jury.]—[All the papers and other matters of evidence relating to the arrest and preliminary examination of the charge against defendants who have been held to answer, returned to the court by magistrate, shall be laid before the grand jury, and shall be competent evidence upon which an indictment may be found, if the grand jury are [is] satisfied that such evidence alone, or with other evidence, if unexplained, would warrant a conviction by the trial jury, and the grand jury need not have before them for examination any witness who was examined before the committing magistrate, and a minute of whose evidence has been returned by said magistrate, unless requested by the district attorney. And if indictment is found in whole or in part upon the minutes of evidence taken before a committing magistrate, the clerk of the grand jury shall write out a brief minute of the substance of such evidence and the same shall be returned to the court with the indictment. If upon investigation, the grand jury refuses to find an indictment it shall return all of said papers to the court, with an indorsement thereon, signed by the foreman, to the effect that the charge is dismissed, and thereupon the court must order the discharge of the defendant from custody, if in jail, or the exoneration of the bail, if bail be given, unless the court should, upon good cause shown, be of opinion that the charge should be again submitted to the grand jury in which case the defendant may be continued in custody, or on bail, until the next term of the court.]

This section does not require the minutes of a preliminary examination to be filed with the clerk of the district court, in a case where the defendant is discharged upon such examination. The State v. Helvin, 65 Id., 289.

SEC. 4290. [Dismissal of charge.]—Such dismissal of the charge does not prevent the same from being again submitted to a grand jury as often as the court may direct; but without such direction, it cannot again be submitted.

This section of the statute does not forbid the grand jury from finding an indictment upon their
OF THE FINDING AND PRESENTMENT OF INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4291. (As substituted by ch. 42, 21st g. a.) [An indictment cannot be found without the concurrence of four grand jurors, when the grand jury is composed of five members; and not without the concurrence of five grand jurors when the grand jury is composed of seven members. Every indictment must be indorsed "a true bill" and the indorsement must be signed by the foreman of the grand jury.] If the panel of the grand jury should be reduced by challenges to individual jurors, or by sickness or death, or by any other cause, to less than twelve, no valid indictment can be found. The State of Iowa v. Ostrander, 18 Iowa, 435; The Same v. Garhart, 35 Id., 315, 317.

Whether the entire fifteen grand jurors must be present at a finding of the indictment, querie. See, The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435; Norris v. The State, 3 G. Greene, 513.

Where James G. Thornburg was appointed foreman of the grand jury which returned an indictment indorsed "A true bill," and signed by "J. G. Thornburg, foreman" it was held, that the indictment was sufficiently indorsed under this section. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 308.

SEC. 4292. [Private prosecutor.]—When an indictment is found at the instance of a private prosecutor, the following must be added to the indorsement required by the preceding section, "found at the instance of" (here state the name of the person), and in such case, if the prosecution fails, the court trying the cause may award costs against the private prosecutor, if satisfied, from all the circumstances, that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause.

This section does not authorize a judgment for costs against a prosecuting witness for a failure to appear in the district court and prosecute a defendant who has, on his complaint, been placed under bond to keep the peace. The State v. Holliday, 22 Iowa, 397.

This section providing that the grand jury, when an indictment is found at the instance of a private prosecutor, to indorse that fact on the indictment, is merely directory, and such indorsement is not essential to the validity of the indictment. The State v. Briggs, 08 Id., 416.

SEC. 4293. (As substituted by ch. 130, 15th g. a.) [Names of witnesses indorsed on indictment.]—[When an indictment is found, the names of all witnesses, on whose evidence it is found, must be indorsed thereon before it is presented to the court, and the minutes of the evidence of such witnesses must be presented with the indictment to the court, and filed by the clerk of the court, and remain in his office as a record, but the minutes of evidence shall not be open for the inspection of any person except the judge of the court, and the district attorney or his clerk, the defendant and his counsel, or the clerk of such counsel, and the clerk of the court, must within two days after demand made, furnish the defendant or his counsel a copy thereof, without charge, or permit the defendant's counsel or the clerk of such counsel to take a copy.

SEC. 5. [Not open for general inspection.]—That when on a demurrer [or] motion to set aside or otherwise, an indictment is held insufficient, and an order is made to re-submit the case to the same or other grand jury, or where the grand jury have [has] ignored a bill and the same has been ordered back to the same or other grand jury for further investigation, it shall be unnecessary to summon the witnesses again before such jury in such cases, but the minutes of the testimony returned with the defective indictment or ignored bill or information, shall be detached and returned to the grand jury, and thereupon without more, such grand jury may find a bill, and attach said minutes of the evidence thereto, and return said indictment therewith into court in the usual manner, and the grand jury may also, in either case, take additional testimony.
SEC. 6. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

The district court may permit the introduction of a witness in behalf of the state, where the minutes of his evidence before the grand jury were not attached to the indictment, when they are otherwise identified as the minutes taken in the manner required by law. The State v. Postlewait, 14 Iowa, 446.

Where the grand jury examined numerous witnesses upon accusations against different persons for selling intoxicating liquors in violation of law, kept minutes of their evidence, and when indictments were found, returned these minutes as they had taken them, without first separating those portions relating to each indictment, it was held, that while this was irregular, it did not, in the absence of a showing of prejudice to the defendant, constitute sufficient ground for a reversal of the judgment. The State v. Guiesenhause, 20 Id., 227.

Where the papers containing the minutes of evidence taken before a grand jury are, by them, returned into court and deposited with the clerk, they are in fact filed, and the court upon being satisfied of the fact, may order them to be indorsed filed as of the date when filed in fact. Id.

Where the minutes of the evidence of witnesses before the grand jury were not attached to the indictment but were filed separately, while an indorsement upon the indictment set out the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, it was held that the witnesses were properly admitted to testify on the trial. The State v. Hamilton, 42 Id., 655.

The statute does not contemplate that the names of witnesses called before the grand jury, who give no material testimony, should be indorsed upon the indictment found. The State v. Little, 42 Id., 51.

An indictment is not demurrable on the ground that the minutes of the evidence on which it was found have not been filed with the clerk as this section provides. The State v. Hamilton, 42 Id., 655.

They are sufficiently filed by handing them to the clerk, and he receiving them to be kept on file in his office. Id.

SEC. 4294. [Presented to the court.]—The indictment, when found and indorsed as prescribed by this chapter, must be presented by the foreman, in the presence of the grand jury, to the court, and marked "filed" by the clerk of the court, and remain in his office as a record.

The fact that an indictment was presented and filed after the adjournment of the court, cannot be established by affidavits. The correctness of the finding of the court below, that the indictment was regularly presented, will be presumed. The State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 318.

The provisions of the statute requiring an indictment to be indorsed "a true bill," and marked "filed" by the clerk is directory merely, and a failure to comply therewith does not invalidate the proceedings. The State v. Axt, 6 Id., 511; The State v. Jolly, 7 Id., 15.

An indorsement upon an indictment as follows: "Presented to the district court of Marion county, Iowa, in the presence of the grand jury, on the eleventh day of February, 1853, A. B. Miller, Clerk D. C., M. C., Iowa," was held sufficient under section 2914, code of 1851. Wreckles v. The State, 1 Id., 167.

An indictment presented in the proper court and properly filed therein, is not invalid because of an indorsement thereon reciting that it was found in another county. The State v. Smouse, 50 Id., 43.

Where an indictment found and returned into court by a grand jury, and is properly indorsed by the clerk, such indorsement is itself a record and the only record that should appear until after the arrest of the defendant; a subsequent entry in the record of the finding, return, etc., is not erroneous. Herring v. The State, 1 Id., 205.
CHAPTER 16.

OF INDICTMENT; ITS FORM AND REQUISITES.

SECTION 4295. [Indictment defined.]—An indictment is an accusation in writing found and presented by a grand jury, legally convoked and sworn to the court in which it is impaneled, charging that a person therein named has done some act, or been guilty of some omission, which, by law, is a public offense punishable on indictment.

SEC. 4296. [Must contain.]—The indictment must contain:
1. The title of the action, specifying the name of the court to which it is presented, and the name of the parties;
2. A statement of the facts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

When the language, used in charging an offense in an indictment, shows, to the common understanding, what the pleader intended to charge, it is sufficient. The State v. Schilling, 14 Iowa, 455.

An indictment which contains a statement of the facts constituting an offense, is sufficient, though it does not set out the technical name of the offense. The State v. Baldy, 17 Id., 39; The State v. Shaw, 35 Id., 575; The State v. Hessencamp, 17 Id., 25; The State v. Anseleme, 15 Id., 44; The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311.

If the offense charged has no name given to it by the statute, the giving it a name in the indictment, which is repugnant to the facts alleged as constituting the facts will be regarded surplusage. Id.; The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311.

An indictment in the form prescribed in the statute is sufficient as to the allegation of venue. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

And an indictment charging an offense in the language of the statute is not open to objection on account of its form. The State v. Smith, 46 Id., 670.

Where an indictment correctly defines an offense in the statement of facts therein, but in the charging part designates it by another name, it is nevertheless, a good indictment for the offense defined. The State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311, following The State v. Shaw, 35 Id., 575.

It was accordingly held, that where the offense was designated in the indictment as manslaughter, but the statement of facts defined the crime of murder, the defendant was properly put upon his trial for the latter offense. Id.

To constitute a valid indictment, the particular circumstances of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 28 Id., 554.

In all cases the facts constituting the specific crime intended to be charged must be stated in the indictment. The State v. White, 41 Id., 316, 318.

Where a statute defining an offense describes in terms which constitute simply a legal conclusion, it is not sufficient to charge the offense in the indictment in the language of the statute. The facts constituting the alleged crime must be pleaded. Per Miller, C. J., and Cole, J., concurring in The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 253; Day, J., not concurring; Beck, J., dissenting.

An indictment in the form prescribed by section 4297 of the code, is sufficient as to the allegation of venue. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

An indictment cannot be aided by intendment, nor omissions therein supplied by construction; and while the acts charged may, under certain circumstances, be lawful, and these circumstances are not negatived, the indictment is insufficient, even though it be alleged that the acts charged were willfully and unlawfully done. The State v. The C., B. & Pacific R'y Co., 63 Id., 508.

SEC. 4297. [Form.]—It may be substantially in the following form:

District court of the county of........
The state of Iowa, }
against } A. B.
The grand jury of the county of........, in the name and by the authority of the state of Iowa, accuse A. B. of the crime of (here insert the name of the offense if it have one, such as treason, murder, manslaughter, robbery, larceny, or the like, or if it have no general name, then a brief general description of it is given by law, such as "mingling poison with food, with intent to kill a human being," committed as follows:

The said A. B., on the first day of January, A. D. 18.., in the county aforesaid (here insert the act or omission constituting the offense).

...... District Attorney, of the.....judicial district.

This section does not require that the form of the indictment therein given shall be literally followed. That the names of the parties were not set forth, and that there was no title to the action contained on the face of the indictment were held not valid objections. State v. McIntire, 59 Id., 264.

Where an indictment for larceny was in the exact language of this section, except that the word "aforesaid" was used instead of "as aforesaid," it was held sufficient, the variance not being material. State v. Gillard, 59 Id., 479.

This section does not require that an indictment be signed by the district attorney, and that it is not so signed is not ground of demurrer, nor for motion in arrest of judgment. State v. Ruby, 60 Id., 66.

SEC. 4298. [Must be direct and certain.]—The indictment must be direct and certain as regards:

1. The party charged;
2. The offense charged;
3. The particular circumstances of the offense charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense.

It is generally sufficient to charge an offense, created and defined by the statute, in the language of the statute (The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575). But when the statute describes an offense by terms constituting rather a legal conclusion than a statement of the facts constituting it, the indictment must especially describe the offense by a statement of the facts. Per Miller Ch. J., in State v. Brandt, 593, 608; Cole J., concurring.

Naming an offense murder in the first degree in the introductory and concluding parts of an indictment is not sufficient unless the facts charged constitute it such. State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402.

SEC. 4299. [Defendant's name.]—When a defendant is indicted by a fictitious or erroneous name, and in any subsequent stage of the proceedings before execution, his true name is discovered, an entry shall be made in the record of the proceedings, of his true name, referring to the fact of his being indicted by the name mentioned in the indictment, and the subsequent proceedings shall be in the true name, substantially as follows:

The State of Iowa, against

A. B., indicted by the name of C. D.}

SEC. 4300. [Must charge but one offense.]—The indictment must charge but one offense, but it may be charged in different forms to meet the testimony, and if it may have been committed in different modes and by different means, the indictment may allege the modes and means in the alternative; provided, that in case of compound offenses, where in the same transaction more than one offense has been committed, the indictment may charge the several offenses and the defendant may be convicted of any offense included therein; provided further, that this section shall in no manner affect any provision of this code providing for the suppression of intemperance.

An indictment may charge an offense in different forms, to meet the evidence; and if the offense may have been committed in different modes, or by different means, these may be alleged in the alternative; but in charging an offense in different forms, the pleader is not required to use the

The offense of nuisance, under section 1543 of the code, may be committed either by the manufacture, sale, or keeping with intent to sell, intoxicating liquors in violation of law; and while an indictment is sufficient which charges the commission of the offense by either one of the unlawful acts, it is not bad for duplicity if it charges the offense to have been committed by two or three of the specified unlawful acts. The State v. Vaughan, 20 Id., 497; Same v. Becker, Id., 498.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant, on the 6th day of September, 1871, set fire to and burned a stack of hay of the value of $300, and on the same day did burn a building used as a stable and granary, it was held, that the indictment charged two offenses, and was, therefore, bad. The State v. Fidment, 35 Id., 541.

The prosecutor, in case an indictment charges two distinct offenses, may be required to elect on which charge he will proceed. Id. The State v. McPherson, 9 Id., 53.

An indictment charging the defendant with burglariously and feloniously breaking and entering a store with intent to commit larceny, and with stealing and carrying away certain articles therein contained, was held, not liable to the objection of charging two distinct offenses. The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

So an indictment which Charged the defendant with keeping and controlling a building where intoxicating liquors were sold in violation of the statute, and where “gambling, fighting, drunkenness and breaches of the peace” were permitted by him, was held, not as charging two offenses. The State v. Dean, 44 Id., 648.

Where an indictment charged that the defendant “committed an assault and battery upon the person of C. C. How, with the intent to inflict upon the person of said How a great bodily injury,” it was held, that it charged but one offense. Cokely v. The State, 4 Id., 471.

Where an indictment charged the defendant in one count with keeping a gambling-house, and in another with permitting other persons, in a place under his control, to play for money or other things, it was held, not vulnerable to the objection of duplicity. The State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 433.

Where a statute contains different grades or degrees of the same offense, an indictment under it may charge a violation of them all, or of any of them; and the proof need cover only so much of the allegations of the indictment as constitute a complete offense. The State v. Harris, 11 Id., 414.

An indictment that charges the defendant with “injuring” and “defacing” a dwelling-house, charges but one offense. The State v. Hockenberry, 11 Id., 269.

An indictment charging that the defendant did unlawfully and feloniously conspire to rob and steal from, etc., charges but one offense—conspiracy. The State v. Sterling, 34 Id., 443.

An indictment charging the defendant with counterfeiting and with having in his possession counterfeit coin, with intent to utter the same, is not objectionable for duplicity. The State v. Meyers, 10 Id., 448; The State v. Barrett, 8 Id., 536.

Where an indictment in the first count charged the defendant with selling intoxicating liquors to one Arigoni, and in the second with selling such liquors to divers persons whose names were to the grand jury unknown, it was held not to charge two distinct offenses. Walters v. The State, 5 Id., 507.

An information charging that the defendant “did, unlawfully, sell beer to persons unknown,” charges but one sale to several persons jointly, and is not bad for duplicity under a city ordinance making each separate act of selling an offense. The State v. King, 37 Id., 462.

The term “compound offenses,” as used in this section (4900), has reference only to cases where the act constitutes in itself more than one, and does not include cases in which two or more crimes are committed in succession. The State v. Ridley and Johnson, 45 Id., 370.

An indictment which charges the defendant with the commission of both burglary and larceny, is bad for duplicity, the one offense not being included in the other. The State v. McFarland, 49 Id., 99.

The crimes of rape and incest cannot both be committed by the same act, and cannot be charged in an indictment as a compound offense under this section of the code; the consent of both parties to the connection being necessary to constitute the crime of incest under the statute. The State v. Thomas, 53 Id., 214.

The crimes of forgery and of uttering forged paper are two distinct and separate offenses and cannot both be legally charged in the same indictment. The State v. McCormack, 56 Id., 385; (overruling The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 119.)

An indictment for burglary with intent to steal is not bad for duplicity because it contains allegations of facts constituting larceny. The charge of stealing may be regarded as surplusage or as mere pleading of evidence which might properly have been introduced on the trial to support the charge of an intent to steal. The State v. Shafer, 59 Id., 290. Following State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

Where an indictment charges two offenses, but alleges the commission of one of them to have been made to several persons jointly, and is not bad for duplicity under a city ordinance, it was held, not vulnerable to the objection of duplicity. The State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 433.

An indictment which charges the defendant with the commission of both burglary and larceny, is bad for duplicity, the one offense not being included in the other. The State v. McFarland, 49 Id., 99.

The crimes of rape and incest cannot both be committed by the same act, and cannot be charged in an indictment as a compound offense under this section of the code; the consent of both parties to the connection being necessary to constitute the crime of incest under the statute. The State v. Thomas, 53 Id., 214.

The crimes of forgery and of uttering forged paper are two distinct and separate offenses and cannot both be legally charged in the same indictment. The State v. McCormack, 56 Id., 385; (overruling The State v. Nichols, 38 Id., 119.)

An indictment for burglary with intent to steal is not bad for duplicity because it contains allegations of facts constituting larceny. The charge of stealing may be regarded as surplusage or as mere pleading of evidence which might properly have been introduced on the trial to support the charge of an intent to steal. The State v. Shafer, 59 Id., 290. Following State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

Where an indictment charges two offenses, but alleges the commission of one of them to have been in another county, this allegation constitutes mere surplusage and will be disregarded. The State v. Smouse, 50 Id., 43.

An indictment is not vulnerable to an attack for duplicity which sets out the same transaction in different forms to meet the evidence. The State v. Brannon, 50 Id., 372.

An indictment charging that the defendant "in the day-time, did feloniously break and enter into the dwelling house of one W. K., then and there being with intent to commit a public offense, to-wit: the crime of larceny, and did then and there steal, take and carry away the personal goods and clothes of said W. K., two blankets of the value of six dollars each," etc., etc., describing the property stolen as being of the value of forty-three dollars, was held bad for duplicity. The State v. Rhodes, 48 Id., 702; The State v. Ridley and Johnson, Id., 370; see also The State v. McFarland, 49 Id., 98.

But see The State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11, where an indictment charging the defendant with feloniously and burglariously breaking and entering a store with intent to commit larceny, and with stealing and carrying away certain articles therein contained, was held not liable to the objection of duplicity.

It is allowable, under this section, in an indictment for conspiracy, to state the facts constituting the conspiracy in different ways in several counts. The State v. Kennedy, 61 Id., 107.

Where an indictment, in one count, charged the keeping by the defendant of a building in which he kept intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same contrary to law, and in another count it charged the unlawful sale of such liquors by defendant in a building kept and controlled by him; held, not bad for duplicity, since but one offense was charged in different forms, as this section allows. The State v. Howarth, (two cases), 70 Id., 157. See note to section 3903 ante from State v. Elaham Id., 391.

SEC. 4301. [Precise time need not be stated.—The precise time at which the offense was committed need not be stated in the indictment, but it is sufficient if it allege that the offense was committed at any time prior to the time of the finding thereof, except where the time is a material ingredient in the offense.

The precise time at which an offense was committed need not be stated in an indictment, except where time is a material ingredient of the offense. The State v. Layton, 25 Iowa, 193, 196.

Time is sufficiently alleged in an indictment, by an allegation that the act constituting the offense was committed "on or about" a day therem stated. Cokely v. The State, 4 Id., 177.

The precise time at which the crime of seduction was accomplished need not be stated in the indictment, time not being a material ingredient in the offense. The State v. Detrich, 51 Id., 467.

An instruction in a criminal case under which the jury might have found the defendant guilty, if he had committed the offense after the information was filed against him, was erroneous, and in the absence of the evidence, must be presumed to have been prejudicial, where there was a verdict of guilty. The State v. Johnson et al., 69 Id., 625.

Time not being a material ingredient of the offense of keeping a saloon where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, the precise time of the offense need not be alleged in the indictment, and if alleged need not be proved as illegal. But it is competent in such case to prove the commission of the offense at any time within three years prior to the finding of the indictment.

If it becomes necessary in such case to identify the crime by the time of its commission, as on a plea of former conviction or acquittal, the time may be shown for that purpose; but such proof is not necessary to support the indictment. The State v. Wambold, 72 Id., 468.

SEC. 4302. [Erroneous allegations not material: when. —When an offense involves the commission of, or an attempt to commit, an injury to the person or property, and is described in other respects with sufficient certainty to identify the act, an erroneous allegation as to the name of the person injured or attempted to be injured is not material.

An allegation as to the name of the person injured is not material in an indictment, under our statute, if the offense be, in other respects, described with sufficient certainty to identify the act. An error in name, or other similar error, which does not tend to prejudice the substantial rights of the defendant, will not render an indictment insufficient. The State v. Renuigh, 18 Iowa, 122.

In an indictment for resisting an officer it erroneous allegation as to the name of the officer resisted does not constitute a fatal variance. The State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 164.

A mistake in the name of the person injured, in an indictment for robbery, is not material unless it be shown that the party accused has suffered prejudice by reason of the mistake. The State v. Carr & Brown, 45 Id., 418.

A mistake in the name of the person injured, in an indictment for burglary, is not material unless it be shown that the party accused has suffered prejudice by reason of the mistake. The State v. Franks et al., 64 Id., 39, 42.

Where an indictment charged the defendant with feloniously stealing from the person of one A. certain United States treasury notes, etc., the same being the property of the said A., and on the trial the evidence established the larceny but showed that the money was the property of A. and his brother as partners, it was held that under the statute the variance was immaterial. The State v. Cunningham, 21 Id., 430.

Under this section in an indictment for burglary, it is sufficient designation of the person injured to allege that the owner of the property is to the jurors unknown, and the charge that a car broken was in the possession, care, control and custody of the C., B. & Q. Railroad Company, is an averment that said company had a special property in the car and was sufficient to allege the offense as against that company. State v. McIntyre, 59 Id., 264; same case, Id., 267.

Where an indictment charged the defendant with an assault with intent to kill Jesse Cameron, but the evidence showed the name of the person assaulted to be Jesse Cannon, held, in the absence of a showing of prejudice to defendant, that the variance was immaterial under section 4302 of the code. The State v. Crawford, 66 Id., 318.

Where an indictment for an assault with intent to kill George J. Farley, whose name thus appeared four times in the indictment, ended thus: "With a felonious intent, * * * to kill and murder the said Frank I. Farley," held, that the court properly instructed the jury that if it was apparent that the writing of Frank I. Farley was a clerical error in drafting the indictment, and that George J. Farley was meant, and that the defendant was not misled by the mistake, the variance was not fatal, and that the defendant should not be acquitted by reason thereof. The State v. McCunniff, 70 Id., 217.

SEC. 4303. [Construction.]—The words used in an indictment must be construed in their usual acceptation in common language, except words and phrases defined by law, which are to be construed according to their legal meaning.

Under our law it is not necessary, as it was at common law, in an indictment for murder, to specifically charge that the defendant "murdered" the deceased; but the use of allegations which import an equivalent meaning is sufficient. The State v. O'Neil, 23 Iowa, 272.

Where the body of an indictment was in the following form: "The said G. S., on, etc., in, etc., in and upon the body of one W. P., then and there being, willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly, by lying in wait, and of his malice aforethought, did commit an assault with a deadly weapon, being a pistol, then and there held in the hands of the said G. S., and loaded and charged with powder and bullet, and then and there the said G. S. did lie in wait, with the specific intent to kill and murder the said W. P. willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly and of his malice aforethought, shoot off and discharge the contents of said deadly weapon at, against, into and through the head and body of the said W. P., thereby willfully, feloniously, deliberately, premeditatedly and of his malice aforethought, inflicting upon the head and body of the said W. P. a mortal wound, of which mortal wound the said W. P. then and there did die," Held: 1. That the indictment was sufficient as charging murder in the first degree; 2. That the time of the death was sufficiently alleged, as being at the time and place when and where the assault was made; 3. That the indictment was sufficient as charging that the deceased was a human being. The State v. Stanley, 33 Id., 526.

SEC. 4304. [Same.]—Words used in a statute to define a public offense need not be strictly pursued in an indictment, but other words conveying the same meaning may be used.

It was held under this section that an information charging a defendant with keeping intoxicating liquors "for the purpose of sale," is equivalent to one charging him with keeping "with intent to sell," the offense defined by the statute, and was sufficient. The State v. Mohr, 53 Iowa, 261.

SEC. 4305. [Indictment: when sufficient.—The indictment is sufficient if it can be understood therefrom:
1. That it was found by a grand jury of the county empaneled in the court having authority to receive it, though the name of the court is not actually stated;
2. That the defendant is named, or, if his true name is unknown to the grand jury, that fact be stated, and that he be described by a fictitious name;
3. That the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of the court, or is triable therein;
4. That the offense was committed at some time prior to the time of the finding of the indictment;
5. That the act or omission charged as the offense, is stated with such a degree of certainty, in ordinary and concise language, and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the court to pronounce judgment upon a conviction according to the law of the case;
6. That when material, the name of the person injured, or attempted to be
CHAP. 16. INDICTMENT—ITS FORM AND REQUISITES. 1367

Injjured, be set forth when known to the grand jury, or if not known to it, that it be so stated in the indictment.

An indictment is sufficient when the offense is charged with such certainty and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the court to pronounce judgment according to the law of the case. The State v. Watrous, 13 Iowa, 489; The State v. Conlee, 25 id., 257; State v. Newton, 44 id., 45, 47.

An indictment which describes the offense charged in the language of the statute is sufficient, though it does not set out the technical name of the offense. The State v. Hessenkamp, 17 id., 25.

Although an indictment in charging a public offense may be greatly wanting in that clearness and certainty which is desirable in such pleadings, yet if it can be easily determined what was intended by the pleader, the indictment will be held sufficient. The State v. Reed, 20 Id., 415, 417.

In an indictment for willful trespass in cutting down and destroying timber, it is sufficient to allege that the injury was done by cutting down and destroying, without being more specific. Id.

An indictment which describes the offense charged in the language of the statute is sufficient, though it does not set out the technical name of the offense. The State v. Watson, 17 id., 25.

A defendant in a criminal prosecution may be indicted for a public offense, and in such an indictment it is not necessary to follow the language of the statute; the use of equivalent language is sufficient. The State v. Conlee, 25 Id., 257.

Where an indictment for forgery it is necessary to set out a copy of the instrument alleged to be forged, it need not be prefaced by any technical form of words to express that it is so set out; and the words "of the purport and effect following," are sufficient under the statute. The State v. Johnson et al., 26 Id., 407.

To constitute a good indictment for murder in the first degree, the facts showing the commission of the crime and degree must be alleged. The State v. McCormick, 27 Id., 402.

For the requisites of an indictment for murder in the first degree see notes to section 3849, ante.

An indictment for keeping a nuisance under section 1564 of the revision (code §, 1545), which charged the offense as having been committed "by using and keeping a room and place for the purpose of selling, and by selling therein intoxicating liquors, in violation of section 1562 of this revision," was held sufficient. The State v. Freeman, 27 Id., 333.

To constitute a valid indictment for conspiracy, the particular circumstances of the offense must be charged when they are necessary to constitute a complete offense. The State v. Potter, 39 Id., 554.

An indictment which charged the larceny of "one hundred and eighty dollars in bank notes, usually known and described as greenbacks," was held sufficiently certain as to the subject matter of the offense. The State v. Hockenberry, 30 Id., 504.

An information "charging that the defendant on, etc., at etc., did sell intoxicating liquors contrary to the statute," without stating to whom the sale was made, was held insufficient on the ground that the name of the person to whom the liquor was sold was not stated, nor was there a statement that his name was unknown. The State v. Allen, 32 Id., 431. This virtually overrules The State v. Becker, 20 Id., 483, as to this point.

It is only where the name of a person who is charged with a criminal offense cannot be discovered, that the state is permitted to describe him in an indictment by a fictitious name, with the averment that his true name is unknown. And where an indictment in such case described the person, as "a man in Turner Hall, whose name to the grand jurors is unknown," was held not meeting the requirements of the statute. Geiger v. The State, 3 Iowa, 484.

An indictment for perjury is sufficient under this section when the act charged as the offense is stated with such a degree of certainty, and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the court to pronounce sentence. The State v. Schill; 27 Id., 267.

In an indictment for perjury for giving false testimony before a grand jury on a criminal charge, it is not necessary to allege that the party charged was or was not guilty of the offense under investigation before the grand jury, nor the facts constituting such charge. Id.

Under these sections in an indictment for burglary, it is sufficient designation of the person injured to allege that the owner of the property is to the jurors unknown, and that the charge that a car broken was in the possession, care, control and custody of the C. B. & Q. Railroad Company, is an averment that said company had a special property in the car, and was sufficient to allege the offense against that company. The State v. McIntire, 59 Id., 264, Some Case, Id., 267.

In an indictment for breaking and entering a building in which valuable things are kept, with intent to commit a felony, it is necessary to allege and set out the name of the owner, if known, and if not known, then it should be so stated. The State v. Morrissey, 22 Id., 183.

In an indictment for malicious injury, it is sufficient to aver ownership without setting out the character of the title or interest. The State v. Brant, 14 Id., 180.

Where an indictment for burglary alleged the ownership of a building in the husband, which was occupied by him and his wife, the fact that the legal title was in the latter was held to be on defense.
A defect in an indictment in the name of a state, where it does not prejudice the substantial right of the accused, is not fatal thereto. The State v. Gurlock, 14 Id., 444; Wrockledge v. The State, 1 Id., 167; Barouse v. The State, 1d., 375; Hintermeister v. The State, 1d., 101.

In an indictment for illegal voting it is not necessary to allege that candidates for any particular office were voted for or the names of the persons voted for. The State v. Minnick, 15 Id., 123.

Time is sufficiently alleged in an indictment, by an allegation that the offense was committed "on or about" a day therein stated. Cockey v. The State, 4 Id., 477.

SEC. 4306. [When not insufficient.]—No indictment is insufficient, nor can the trial, judgment, or other proceedings thereon be affected by reason of any of the following matters, which were formerly deemed defects, or imperfections:

1. For the want of an allegation of the time or place of any material fact, when the time and place have been once stated;
2. For the omission of any of the following allegations, namely: "with force and arms," "contrary to the form of the statute, or of the statutes," or "against the peace and dignity of the state";
3. For the omission to allege that the grand jury was impaneled, sworn or charged;
4. For any surplusage or repugnant allegation, or for any repetition, when there is sufficient matter alleged to indicate clearly the offense and person charged; nor,
5. Nor for any other matter which was formerly deemed a defect or imperfection, but which does not tend to the prejudice of the substantial rights of the defendant upon the merits.

An indictment describing an offense in the language of the statute, though the offense be not named, is sufficient. The State v. Shaw, 35 Iowa, 575; The State v. Dyeis, 41 Id., 311.

Where an information, to obtain a warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors was entitled "state of Iowa, Clayton county," it was unnecessary to allege in the information that the liquors were in Clayton county. The State v. Thompson, 44 Id., 399.

SEC. 4307. [What need not be stated.]—Neither presumptions of law nor matters of which judicial notice is taken need be stated in the indictment.

SEC. 4308. [Pleading judicial proceedings.]—In pleading a judgment or other determination of, or proceeding before, a court or officer of special jurisdiction, the facts conferring jurisdiction need not be stated in the indictment, but it is sufficient to state that the judgment or determination was duly made or the proceedings duly had, before such court or officer; but the facts constituting the jurisdiction must be established on the trial.

SEC. 4309. [Same: private statute.]—In pleading a private statute, or right derived therefrom, it is sufficient to refer to the same by its title and the day of its approval, and the court must thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

SEC. 4310. [Indictment for libel.]—An indictment for a libel need not set forth any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the party libeled of the defamatory matter upon which the indictment is founded, but it is sufficient to state generally that the same was published concerning him, and the fact that it was so published must be established on trial.

SEC. 4311. [Instrument destroyed or withheld.]—When an instrument which is the subject of an indictment, has been destroyed or withheld by the act or procurement of the defendant, and the fact of such destruction or withholding is alleged in the indictment and established on the trial, the misdescription of the instrument is immaterial.

SEC. 4312. [Indictment for perjury.]—In an indictment for perjury or subornation of perjury, it is sufficient to set forth the substance of the controversy, or matter in respect to which the offense was committed, and in what court or before whom the oath alleged to be false was taken, and that the court or person before whom it was taken had authority to administer the same, with proper allegations of the falsity of the matter on which the perjury is assigned; but the indictment need not set forth the pleadings, record, or proceedings with which the oath is connected, nor the commission or the authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed.

In an indictment for perjury it is essential to aver that the court or person, before whom the alleged false oath was taken, had authority to administer the oath. State v. Nickerson, 46 Iowa, 447.

An indictment is not objectionable in that it does not charge the oath to have been administered by any one, if it allege that the defendant was "duly sworn." State v. O'Hagan, 38 Id., 504.

SEC. 4313. [Intent to defraud.]—In any case where an intent to defraud is required to constitute the offense of forgery, or any other offense that may be prosecuted, it shall be sufficient to allege in the indictment an intent to defraud without naming the particular person or body corporate intended to be defrauded; and on the trial of such indictment it is sufficient if there appear to be an intent to defraud the United States, or any state, county, city, or township, or any body corporate, or any officer in his official capacity, or any co-partnership, or member thereof, or any particular person.

An indictment for forgery which charges generally an intent to defraud, without specifying the person intended to be defrauded, is sufficient under the statute. State v. Maxwell, 47 Iowa, 454.

In an indictment for forgery copies of the alleged forged instrument should be set out, or it should state a sufficient reason for not doing so. State v. Callendine, 8 Id., 288.

An indictment for forgery need not allege the name of the person to whom the forged instrument was uttered. State v. Hart, 67 Id., 142.

SEC. 4314. Distinction abrogated.]—The distinction between an accessory before the fact and a principal, is abrogated, and all persons concerned in the commission of a public offense, whether they directly commit the act constituting the offense, or aid and abet its commission, though not present, must hereafter be indicted, tried, and punished as principals.

By this section the distinction between a principal and an accessory before the fact is abolished, and all persons concerned in the commission of a public offense, including aiders and abettors, are guilty as principals. The State v. Brown, 23 Iowa, 561; The State v. Thornton, 26 Id., 79; The State v. Comstock, 46 Id., 265.

Two or more persons may be charged in an indictment with the commission of a crime, which from its nature could in fact have been committed by only one, those who aid and abet its commission being, under the code, chargeable as principals. The State v. Comstock, 46 Id., 265.

The mere fact that a person was in company with another, at the time of the commission of a crime by him will not render the former guilty; his participation in some manner must be shown. The State v. Farr, 33 Id., 553.

Where the court below instructed the jury that "aiding and abetting" in the commission of a public offense may consist in "agreeing to or taking care of the families of the parties" who have committed the theft, it was held, to be correct where there was evidence on which to base the instruction. The State v. Stanley, 48 Id., 221.

Accessories before the fact may be convicted under an indictment in the ordinary form charging them as principals. The State v. Hessian, 35 Id., 68.

Under this section an accessory is properly charged in an indictment as a principal, and evidence is admissible to show that he simply aided and abetted in the commission of the crime. State v. Pugsley, 38 N. W. B., 498.

SEC. 4315. [Accessory after the fact.]—An accessory after the fact to the commission of a public offense, may be indicted, tried and punished, though the principal be neither tried or convicted.

SEC. 4316. [Compounding offense.]—A person may be indicted for having, with the knowledge of the commission of a public offense, taken money or property of another, or a gratuity or reward, or engagement or promise thereof, upon agreement or understanding, express or implied, to compound or conceal the offense, or to abstain from a prosecution therefor, or to withhold any evidence thereof, though the person guilty of the original offense has not been indicted or tried.

SEC. 4317. [Indictment for embezzlement.]—In an indictment for the embezzlement or fraudulent conversion of money, it shall be sufficient to allege the
CHAPTER 17.

OF PROCESS UPON AN INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4318. [By bench warrant.]—The process upon an indictment for the arrest of an individual, shall be a bench warrant.

Where a party indicted for a criminal offense appeared and submitted to a trial without being arrested on a bench warrant, the issuance of such warrant was unnecessary and the court had jurisdiction of the person of the defendant. The State v. Ray, 50 Iowa, 520, 521.

SEC. 4319. [Court or judge may order.]—When an indictment is filed by the clerk of the court against a defendant, not in custody, or under bail, or who has not posted money instead of bail, the judge of the court shall make an order on the indictment, which shall be signed by him, with his name of office, that a bench warrant issue for the arrest of the defendant, and, if the offense charged in the indictment be bailable, fix the amount in which bail may be taken.

SEC. 4320. [Clerk to issue warrant.]—The clerk, on the application of the district attorney, shall accordingly, at any time after the making of the order of the judge, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties.

SEC. 4321. [Form, in case of felony.]—A bench warrant, if the offense be a felony, may be substantially, in the following form:

County of ..............

The State of Iowa.

To any peace officer in the state:

An indictment having been found in the district court of said county, on the... day of .........., A. D., 18.. (the day on which the indictment is marked filed, by the clerk of the court), charging A. B. with the crime of (here designating the offense by the name, if it have one, or by a brief general description of it, as given by law, substantially, as in the indictment.)

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to arrest the said A. B., and bring him before said court to answer said indictment, if the said court be then in session in said county, or if the said court be not then in session in said county, that you deliver him into the custody of the sheriff of said county.

Given under my hand, and the seal of said court, at my office in .........., [seal] in the county aforesaid, this ........ day of .........., A. D., 18..

By the order of the judge of the court.

SEC. 4322. [If misdemeanor.]—If the offense be a misdemeanor, the bench warrant may be in a similar form, adding to the body thereof a direction, substantially, to the following effect:

"Or, if the said A. B. require it, that you take him before a magistrate, or the clerk of the district court in said county, or in the county in which you arrest him, that he may give bail to answer the said indictment."

SEC. 4323. [If bailable.]—If the offense charged be bailable, the clerk must make an indorsement on the bench warrant, to the following effect: "The defendant is to be admitted to bail in the sum of .... dollars." (The amount fixed by the judge and indorsed on the indictment.)
CHAPTER 18.
ARRAIGNMENT OF THE DEFENDANT.

SECTION 4327. [Defendant arraigned.]—As soon as practicable after an indictment is found, the defendant must be arraigned thereon, unless he waive the same; but where a corporation is defendant, arraignment shall not be required.

If one indicted waives arraignment, he cannot afterwards object that he is not indicted by his right name. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Iowa, 110.

SECTION 4328. [If for felony or misdemeanor.]—If the indictment be for a felony, the defendant must be personally present, but if for a misdemeanor only, his personal appearance is unnecessary, and he may appear upon arraignment by counsel.

In the exercise of a challenge to the grand jury the accused need not necessarily be personally present, but the privilege may be exercised or waived by his attorney in the absence of the accused. The State v. Fetter, 25 Iowa, 67.

That the prisoner on trial for forgery, was not present when the jury were brought into court after the case had been submitted, will not be ground for reversal, when it appears that no prejudice could have resulted to the prisoner from his irregularity. The State v. Vaughan, 29 Id., 286.

SECTION 4329. [If in custody.]—When he is in custody, the court must direct the officer in whose custody he is to bring him before it to be arraigned, and the officer must do so accordingly.

SECTION 4330. [If on bail.]—If the defendant has been discharged on bail, or has deposited money instead thereof, and does not appear for arraignment when his personal appearance is necessary, the court, in addition to the forfeiture of the undertaking of bail, or of the money deposited, may, on motion of the district attorney, make an order directing the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest, and fix the amount in which bail will be taken if the offense be bailable.

SECTION 4331. [Clerk issue bench warrant: when.]—The clerk on application of the district attorney, may, accordingly, at any time after the order, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties of this state for the arrest of the defendant.
SEC. 4332. [Defendant's right to counsel.]-If the defendant appear for arraignment without counsel, he must be informed by the court that it is his right to have counsel before being arraigned, and must be asked if he desire the aid of counsel, and if he does, and is unable to employ any, must allow him to select, or assign him counsel, not exceeding two, who shall have free access to him at all reasonable hours.

SEC. 4333. [Arraignment: by whom made and of what consists.]-The arraignment may be made by the court, or by the clerk or district attorney under its direction, and consists in reading the indictment to the defendant, and unless previously done, delivering to him a copy of the indictment and indorsements thereon, and informing him that if the name by which he is indicted is not his true name, he must then declare what his true name is, or be proceeded against by the name in the indictment, and asking him what he answers to the indictment.

SEC. 4334. [Precluded from objecting: when.]-If he gives no other name, or gives his true name, he is thereafter precluded from objecting to the indictment upon the ground of being therein improperly named.

The objection that the defendant is erroneously named in the indictment cannot be made for the first time after arraignment and trial. Failing to make the objection upon his arraignment, or to declare his true name, he thereby waives his right to subsequently make the objection. The State v. White, 32 Iowa, 17; See, also, The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

If the record is silent as to the arraignment, it will be presumed that the defendant was properly arraigned and failed to give his true name, or that he waived the arraignment. The State v. Winstrand, 37 Id., 110.

SEC. 4335. [Same.]-If he alleges that another name is his true name, the court must direct an entry thereof in the minutes of the arraignment, and the subsequent proceedings on the indictment may be had against him by that name, referring also to the name by which he was indicted.

SEC. 4336. [Answer: time.]-In answer to the arraignment, the defendant may move to set aside the indictment, or he may demur or plead to it, and is entitled to one day after arraignment in which to answer thereto if he demand it.

CHAPTER 19.

OF SETTING ASIDE THE INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4337. [Motion must be sustained.]-The motion to set aside the indictment can be made by the defendant on one or more of the following grounds, and must be sustained:

1. When it is not indorsed "a true bill," and the indorsement signed by the foreman of the grand jury as prescribed by this code;

2. When the names of all the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not indorsed thereon; when the minutes of the evidence of the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not returned therewith;

3. When it has not been presented and marked "filed," as prescribed by this code;

4. When any person, other than the grand jurors, was present before the grand jury when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment, or when any person, other than the grand jurors, was present before the grand jury during the investigation of the charge, except as required or permitted by law;

5. That the grand jury were not selected, drawn, summoned, impaneled, or sworn as prescribed by law.

An objection to an indictment grounded upon the illegality of the grand jury should be taken

Where papers containing minutes of the evidence taken before the grand jury are returned by them into court and deposited with the clerk, they are in fact filed, and the court, upon being satisfied of such fact, may order that they be endorsed "filed" as of that date. The State v. Guisenhouse, 20 Id., 227.

Where the minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury in regard to sales of intoxicating liquors in violation of law, and several indictments were found, were returned by the grand jury as it were taken, without separating those portions of the evidence relating to each indictment, it was held, that while this was irregular, yet in the absence of a showing of prejudice to the accused by reason thereof, it did not afford sufficient ground for a reversal of the judgment. Id.

The admission of incompetent evidence before the grand jury does not constitute sufficient ground for setting aside an indictment. The State v. Tucker, Id., 508.

The mere presence of a bailiff of the court in attendance on the grand jury during their investigation of a criminal charge, is not a sufficient ground for setting aside an indictment, if he were not present when the question was taken upon the finding of the indictment. The State v. Kimball, 29 Id., 207.

An indictment will be set aside for irregularities in the selection of the grand jury only when there has been a departure from the requirements of the statute, affecting the substantial rights of the defendant. The State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593; The State v. Carney et al., 20 Id., 82.

Where the comparison of the ballots with the list of grand jurors was made by the clerk and the deputy sheriff in the absence of the sheriff, it was held that the grand jury thus selected was not a legal body, and incapable of finding a valid indictment. The State v. Brandt, Id.; following Duell v. The State, 3 G. Greene, 125.

Where the testimony of witnesses examined before the grand jury is taken down and returned, as required by statute, but their names are not indorsed upon the indictment, it may be assailed by a motion to set aside; but if not thus assailed, the witnesses may be examined on the trial. The State v. Flinn, 42 Iowa, 164; The State v. Robinson, 47 Id., 489.

Where the name of a witness examined before the grand jury was not indorsed on the indictment, and after the jury had been called into the box the district attorney moved to have the indorsement made then; it was held, that the granting of the motion worked no prejudice to the defendant. Id.

That the minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury do not show sufficient to justify the finding of the indictment, is no ground for quashing or setting aside the indictment. The State v. Morris, 36 Id., 272; The State v. Bowers, 17 Id., 46; The State v. Van Fleet, 23 Id., 27.

The statute does not require that the names of witnesses before the grand jury, who gave no material testimony, should be indorsed on the indictment. The State v. Little, 42 Id., 51.

An indictment presented in the proper court and properly filed therein, is not invalid because of an indorsement thereon reciting that it was found in another county. The State v. Smouse, 50 Id., 43.

When the minutes of the testimony of a witness before the grand jury are properly returned, the fact that his name is not indorsed upon the indictment will not prevent his examination as a witness on the trial. The State v. Fowler, 52 Id., 103; The State v. Flinn, 42 Id., 164.

That the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not indorsed on the indictment is not ground for a motion to set aside the indictment; but if the motion is not made the witness may be examined on the trial. Id.

Witnesses whose names were indorsed on the indictment were competent to testify on the trial, prior to the revision of 1860, notwithstanding minutes of their evidence before the grand jury had not been returned with the indictment. The State v. McComb, 18 Id., 43; The State v. Fosilewait, 14 Id., 446.

Ssc. 4338. [When not sustained.]—A motion to set aside the indictment on the ground that the names of all the witnesses examined before the grand jury are not indorsed thereon; or that the name of any other witness than those so examined is indorsed thereon as prescribed in the second subdivision of section four thousand three hundred and thirty-seven hereof, shall not be sustained if the indorsement is corrected by the insertion or striking out of such names or name by the district attorney or the clerk of the court, under the direction of the court, so as to correspond with the minutes required to be kept by the clerk of the grand jury and returned and preserved with the indictment to the court.

The minutes of evidence taken before the grand jury, should be filed with the clerk, whereupon they become a part of the record, and cannot be contradicted by affidavits of grand jurors or witnesses. This record is conclusive as to the persons who were thus examined as witnesses.

State v. Little, 42 Iowa, 51.

The fact that witnesses were examined on the trial whose names were not indorsed on the indictment, may be taken advantage of by objection first raised after conviction. State v. Houston 50 Id., 512.

SEC. 4339. [What ground of motion not allowed.]—The ground of the motion to set aside the indictment mentioned in the fifth subdivision of section four thousand three hundred and thirty-seven hereof, is not allowed to a defendant who has been held to answer before indictment.

That a "grand jury were not selected, drawn, summoned, impaneled or sworn as prescribed by law," is not ground for setting aside the indictment against one who was held to answer before the finding of the indictment. State v. Gibbs, 39 Iowa, 313.

The right to challenge a grand juror, on the ground that he is an alien, must be exercised before he is sworn. State v. Gibbs, 39 Id., 318.

Affidavits of grand jurors that they did not assent to the finding of an indictment, are not admissible on a motion to set it aside. Id.; State v. Mocherter, 46 Id., 88; State v. Davis, 41 Id., 311.

That one of the names upon the list of grand jurors, as drawn, does not appear upon the list returned by the judges of election for that year, is not ground for reversing a judgment in a criminal case when it is not shown but that the proper steps were taken in the court below to correct this error, and thus have impaneled a legal grand jury. State v. Hart, 29 Id., 268.

An indictment will be set aside for the irregularities in the selection of the grand jury, only when there has been a departure from the requirements of the statute affecting the substantial rights of the defendant. State v. Brandt, 41 Id., 593.

Where the proper number to serve on a grand jury had been returned from all the election precincts save one, and the county canvassers failed to supply the omission, but certain members of the board of supervisors suggested to the county auditor from the delinquent township to supply the deficiency, it was held, not to be such an irregularity as would render the grand jury an illegal body. Id.

Where, in the drawing of the jury, the comparison of the ballots with the list of grand jurors was made by the clerk and the deputy sheriff, in the absence of the sheriff, the grand jury thus selected was held not to be a legal body, and incapable of finding a valid indictment. Id., following Dutel v. State, 3 Gr. Greene, 125.

SEC. 4340. [Hearing.]—The motion must be heard when it is made, unless for good cause the court postpone the hearing to another time.

SEC. 4341. [If denied.]—If the motion be denied, the defendant must immediately answer the indictment, either by demurring or pleading thereto.

When a motion to set aside an indictment is denied, the defendant must immediately demur or plead thereto, and upon his refusal to do either, a plea of "not guilty" must be entered by the court. The State v. Morris, 36 Iowa, 272.

SEC. 4342. [If granted.]—If the motion be granted, the court must order the defendant, if in custody, to be discharged, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated; or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded to him, unless the court direct that the case be re-submitted to the same or another grand jury.

SEC. 4343. [If re-submitted.]—If the court direct that the case be re-submitted, the defendant, if already in custody, must so remain unless he be admitted to bail; or, if already admitted to bail, or money has been deposited instead thereof, the bail or money is answerable for the appearance of the defendant to answer a new indictment.

SEC. 4344. [Order to set aside, no bar.]—An order to set aside the indictment as provided in this chapter, shall be no bar to a future prosecution for the same offense.
CHAPTER 20.

OF PLEADING BY THE DEFENDANT.

SECTION 4345. [Demurrer or plea.]—The only pleading on the part of the defendant is a demurrer or plea.

SEC. 4346. [Where put in.]—The demurrer and plea must be put in in open court, and may be oral; but an entry thereof must be made on the record.

CHAPTER 21.

OF THE MODE OF TRIAL.

SECTION 4347. [Issues: by whom tried.]—Issues of law shall be tried by the court. Issues of fact shall be tried by a jury.

SEC. 4348. [Issues of law.]—An issue of law arises upon a demurrer to the indictment. No joinder in demurrer is necessary.

SEC. 4349. [Issues of fact.]—An issue of fact arises on a plea of not guilty, or of former conviction or acquittal of the same offense. No replication or further pleading is necessary.

SEC. 4350. [Same.]—An issue of fact must be tried by a jury of the county in which the indictment is found, unless a change of venue has been awarded.

It is not possible, under this section, for the defendant in a criminal case to waive a jury and submit to a trial by the court alone. Such waiver gives the court no jurisdiction to try the cause without the aid of a jury, and a judgment of conviction rendered on such trial must be reversed. Seevers, J., dissenting. The State v. Carman, 63 Iowa, 130.

Where defendant has pleaded not guilty and a jury has been sworn to try the issue, and by agreement between the district attorney and defendant a verdict of guilty is rendered, it will be presumed, in absence of evidence to the contrary, that defendant admitted his guilt in open court, and the jury acting upon such admission rendered a verdict according to the evidence. The State v. Keegan, 37 N. W. Rep., 120.

SEC. 4351. [Of the indictment.]—If the indictment be for a misdemeanor, the trial may be had in the absence of the defendant, if he appear by counsel; but if for a felony, he must be personally present.

See The State v. Vaughan, 29 Iowa, 286, cited in notes to section 4328, ante.

It is not necessary that a defendant convicted of felony shall be present in person upon the argument of a motion for a new trial, yet it is better that he should be. The State v. Decklotte, 19 Iowa, 447.

It is competent, under this section, for the defendant indicted for a misdemeanor to appear by counsel and demand a trial, and it is error to refuse a trial in such case on the ground of the personal absence of the defendant. The State v. Connehan, 57 Id., 351.

Where the record shows that a defendant in a criminal prosecution was present at the commencement and conclusion of his trial, in the absence of any affirmative showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that he was present during the trial and at the rendition of the verdict. The State v. Wood, 17 Id., 18.

The personal presence of the defendant, when the verdict of the jury is rendered in court is required in some cases—that of his counsel is required in none. When the verdict is for assault and battery, though charged with a higher offense, his presence when the verdict is rendered is not required. The State v. Shephard, 10 Id., 126.
CHAPTER 22.

OF DEMURRER.

SECTION 4352. [Ground of.]-The defendant may demur to the indictment when it appears upon its face, either:
1. That it does not substantially conform to the requirements of this code;
2. That the indictment contains any matter, which, if true, would constitute a legal defense or bar to the prosecution.

SEC. 4353. [Entry: form.]-The entry on the record of a demurrer, may be substantially in the following form: "The defendant demurs to the indictment." The defendant may demur when the indictment does not substantially conform to the various requirements of the case in regard thereto. The State v. Morrissey, 22 Iowa, 158, 159.

SEC. 4354. [Objection: when heard.]-When the demurrer is put in, the objection thereby presented must be heard immediately, or at such time as the court may appoint.

SEC. 4355. [If sustained.]-If the demurrer is sustained on the ground that the offense charged was within the exclusive jurisdiction of another county in this state, the same proceedings shall be had as provided in section four thousand four hundred and forty-six to four thousand four hundred and forty-nine, inclusive, of this code.

SEC. 4356. [Same.]-If the demurrer is sustained because the indictment contains matter which is a legal defense or bar to the indictment, the judgment shall be final, and the defendant must be discharged.

SEC. 4357. [Same.]-If the demurrer is sustained on any other ground than that mentioned in the last two sections, the defendant must be dealt with as provided in section four thousand three hundred and forty-one of this code, unless the court is of opinion, on good cause shown, that the objection can be remedied or avoided in another indictment; in which case the court may order the cause to be re-submitted to the same or another grand jury, and the defendant may be dealt with as provided in section four thousand three hundred and forty-two of this code.

SEC. 4358. [If overruled.]-If the demurrer is overruled, the defendant has a right to put in a plea. If he fails to do so, final judgment may be rendered against him on the demurrer, and, if necessary, a jury may be impaneled to inquire and ascertain the degree of the offense.

Where the defendant demurred to the indictment, and upon the overruling of the demurrer he neglected to plead, and through inadvertence the cause went to trial without any plea, but was tried in all respects as if a plea of not guilty had been entered, held, that the defendant was not prejudiced by the irregularity, and that a judgment of conviction upon a verdict of guilty should not be set aside because of the want of plea. The State v. Greene, 66 Id., 11.

CHAPTER 23.

OF PLEAS TO THE INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4359. [Number of.]-There are but three pleas to an indictment. A plea of:
1. Guilty;
2. Not guilty;
3. A former judgment of conviction or acquittal of the offense charged, which may be pleaded with or without the plea of not guilty.
SEC. 4360. [Entry: form.]—The plea may be entered on the record, substantially, in the following form:

1. A plea of guilty: “The defendant pleads that he is guilty of the offense charged in the indictment.”

2. A plea of not guilty: “The defendant pleads that he is not guilty of the offense charged in the indictment.”

3. A plea of former conviction or acquittal: “The defendant pleads that he has formerly been convicted, or acquitted (as the case may be), of the offense charged in the indictment, by the judgment of the court of ........ (naming it), rendered on the .... day of ........., A. D. 18.. (naming the time”).

SEC. 4361. [Plea of guilty.]—The plea of guilty can only be put in by the defendant himself in open court.

Where the defendant in a criminal action fails to have the names of the petit jurors called, and an attachment issued against those who are absent at the time the indictment is called for trial, as provided for in this section of the code, he waives the right to make objections on the ground of such absence during the progress of the trial. The State v. Miller et al., 53 Iowa, 84.

SEC. 4362. [Same.]—At any time before judgment, the court may permit the plea of guilty to be withdrawn, and other plea or pleas substituted.

Where a criminal case has been appealed from a justice of the peace by the state, the district court may inquire into the circumstances, in order to settle and fix the amount of the punishment, though the defendant had pleaded guilty below, and though the plea is not withdrawn in the district court. Especially is this so, when the plea and judgment were entered in the absence of the prosecutor and before the day fixed for the trial. The State v. Tait & Tait, 22 Iowa, 140.

Under this section a defendant under indictment has the right to withdraw a plea of guilty and plead not guilty at any time before judgment. The State v. Oehlshlager, 38 Id., 297; The State v. Kraft, 10 Id., 390.

So, the defendant, after pleading not guilty to an indictment, has the right to withdraw the plea and file a motion to set aside the indictment. The State v. Hale, 44 Id., 96.

A defendant who pleaded guilty to an information for an assault and battery before a justice of the peace, has the right on appeal to withdraw the plea, and plead assault only, or not guilty. State v. Parlett, 28 N. W. R., 153.

SEC. 4363. [Plea of not guilty.]—The plea of not guilty is a denial of every material allegation in the indictment; and all matters of fact may be given in evidence under it, except a former conviction or acquittal.

SEC. 4364. [Conviction or acquittal a bar.]—A conviction or acquittal by a judgment upon a verdict shall bar another prosecution for the same offense, notwithstanding a defect in form or substance in the indictment on which the conviction or acquittal took place.

A verdict of guilty upon a former indictment, where there was no judgment on the verdict, but where the court virtually set the verdict aside on a motion in arrest, was not such a former conviction as to bar a prosecution upon a new indictment for the same offense. The State v. Clark, 69 Iowa, 196.

SEC. 4365. [Same.]—When the defendant has been convicted or acquitted upon an indictment for an offense consisting of different degrees, the conviction or acquittal shall be a bar to another indictment for the offense charged in the former or for any lower degree of that offense, or for an offense necessarily included therein.

SEC. 4366. [When judgment shall not bar.]—The judgment for the defendant on a demurrer, except where it is otherwise provided, or for an objection to its form or substance taken on the trial, or for variance between the indictment and the proof, shall not bar another prosecution for the same offense.

SEC. 4367. [Plea by court: when.]—If the defendant fail or refuse to answer the indictment by demurrer or plea, a plea of not guilty must be entered by the court.

Where the defendant refuses to either demur or plead to the indictment, after a motion to set aside the same has been overruled, a plea of “not guilty” must be entered by the court. The State v. Morris, 36 Iowa, 272.
SECTION 4368. [Defendant may petition for.]—In all criminal cases which may be pending in any of the district courts of this state, any defendant therein may petition the court for a change of venue to another county.

The discretion confined to the court by this and subsequent sections of the code, does not exist in applications in civil cases. Miller v. Laraway, 31 Iowa, 533; Jones v. C. & N. W. R. Co., 36 Id., 68.

A trial and conviction for assault and battery, under an information charging that offense, is not a bar to a subsequent indictment and prosecution for an assault with intent to inflict a great bodily injury, based on the same act. The State v. Foster, 33 Id., 525.

SEC. 4369. [Petition may set forth.]—Such petition must set forth the nature of the prosecution, the court where the same is pending, and that such defendant cannot receive a fair and impartial trial owing to the prejudice of the judge, or to excitement or prejudice against him in such county, and must verify the same by his affidavit stating the same to be true as he verily believes.

SEC. 4370. [Verified: when.]—When the ground alleged in the petition is excitement and prejudice against him in the county, it must be verified by three disinterested persons, residents of the county from which the change is sought, in addition to the petitioner himself.

SEC. 4371. [Need not state facts.]—The petition need not state the facts upon which the belief of the petitioner, or other persons verifying the same is founded, but may allege the belief of the particular ground thereof in general terms.

SEC. 4372. [Additional testimony.]—The court may receive additional testimony, by affidavits only, either on the part of the defendant or the state, when the alleged ground in the petition is excitement and prejudice in the county against the petitioner.

SEC. 4373. [Same: filed with clerk.]—The petition and affidavits, if any, must be filed with the clerk, and are parts of the record.

SEC. 4374. (As amended by ch. 9, 18th g. a.) [Court must decide.]—The court, in the exercise of a sound discretion, must decide the matter of the petition, when fully advised, according to the very right of it.

Applications for change of venue, in criminal cases, on the ground of prejudice either of the judge or the people are addressed to the sound legal discretion of the court, and though the averments of the affidavits are in the very language of the statute, the supreme court will not interfere unless it be clearly shown that such discretion has been improperly exercised. State v. Arnold, 12 Iowa, 479; State v. Ingalls & King, 17 Id., 8; State v. Hutchinson, 27 Id., 212; State v. Freeman, Id., 388; State v. Fetter 32 Id., 49; State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435; State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94; State v. Westfall, 49 Id., 328, 332; State v. Spurbeck et al., 44 Id., 667; State v. Mewherter, 46 Id., 88; State v. Ross et al., 21 Id., 467; State v. Baliy, Id., 39.

Affidavits showing the prejudice of the judge, if admissible at all, must state facts and not the opinions and belief of deponents. State v. Mewherter, 46 Id., 88.

When the application for change of venue is applied for on the ground of prejudice and excitement against the defendant on part of the people of the county, the petition must be verified by three disinterested residents of the county, and additional evidence also may be received by the court upon the allegations of the petition. When the petition is based upon the prejudice of the judge it need not be thus supported by the verification or testimony of witnesses. Per BECK J. in State v. Mewherter, Id., 91.

While the determination of applications for change of venue in criminal cases, based upon the local prejudice, is vested in the discretion of the court, yet it is not an absolute and arbitrary discretion, but a sound judicial discretion, subject to review in the appellate court. State v. Canada, 45 Id., 443.

An abuse of discretion must be shown in a refusal to grant a change of venue on account of prejudice of the judge, to constitute error. State v. Ray, 50 Id., 520; State v. Mewherter, 46 Id., 88; State v. Linde, 54 Id., 139, 141.

Although an application for a change of venue in a criminal cause, on the ground of prejudices of the judge, makes allegations upon which, if true a change should be granted, it does not follow as a matter of course, that the change must be granted; for the judge may consult his own feelings as well as the papers, and grant or refuse the change as he may think right, demands, in the exercise of a careful discretion; and his ruling will not be reversed on appeal, unless it has been made to appear that the prejudice in fact existed. The State v. Foley et al., 65 Id., 51.

The statement of a mere belief that the judge is prejudiced, when founded on alleged facts of which the defendant has no personal knowledge is insufficient to overcome the presumption which arises from the denial which is implied in the order overruling the application for a change of venue in a criminal cause, but with the unequivocal statement of the judge that the alleged facts on which the belief of defendant is based, have no existence the question of the correctness of the ruling is not left to depend on the presumption which arises under the law in its favor, but is affirmatively established. The State v. Hale, 65 Id., 575.

SEC. 4375. [Same.]—If sustained, the court must, if the ground alleged be the prejudice of the judge, order the change of venue to the most convenient county in an adjoining district to which no objection exists.

SEC. 4376. [Same.]—If sustained on the ground of excitement and prejudice in the county, it must be awarded to such county in the same district in which no such objection exists.

SEC. 4377. [Duty of clerk.]—Upon the making of the order, if there be but one defendant in the case, unless all have joined in the petition, the clerk must make out and certify a transcript of all papers on file in the case, including the indictment, and file the same in his office; and a certified copy of all record entries, and all the original papers on file must be, without unnecessary delay, transmitted to the clerk of the court to which the change of venue is ordered.

The certificate of the clerk appended to a transcript of the cause in a change of venue, showed that it embraced all of the original papers filed, and a true copy of all the record entries made in the case; held sufficient. The State v. Ross, 21 Iowa, 467.

SEC. 4378. [Same.]—If there be more than one defendant in the case, and all the defendants have not joined in the petition, the clerk, upon the making of such order, must, without unnecessary delay, make out and certify a transcript of all entries appearing on the record, and of all the papers on file in the case, including the indictment, and transmit the transcript so certified to the clerk of the court to which the change of venue is ordered.

SEC. 4379. [Duty of sheriff.]—If a defendant who has applied for a change of venue, which has been ordered, be in custody, the sheriff of the county from which the venue is changed, must, on the order of the court, transfer and deliver such defendant to the sheriff of the county to which such change is allowed, and upon such transfer and delivery, with a certified copy of such order, the sheriff last mentioned must receive and detain the defendant in his custody until legally discharged therefrom, and give a certificate of such delivery.

SEC. 4380. [Court to which changed.]—The court to which such change of venue is granted must take cognizance of the cause, and proceed therein to trial, judgment and execution, in all respects as if the indictment had been found by the grand jury impaneled in such court.

The clerk of the court to which a case is taken by change of venue has the same power to accept a recognizance as the one in the court where the indictment was found. The State v. Merrihew, 47 Iowa, 112.

SEC. 4381. [Cost of change: by whom paid.]—In all changes of venue under the provisions of this chapter, the county from which the change of venue was taken shall pay the expenses and charges of removing, delivering and keeping the defendant, and all other expenses necessary and consequent upon such change of venue and trial of such defendant, which shall be audited and allowed by the court trying such case.

Where the venue in a criminal case was changed, and the sheriff of the county where it was tried presented his bill for services rendered by him in the case to the successor of the trial judge, who made his indorsement thereon, finding it to be just and correct, and recommending its allowance, it was held, that such indorsement did not constitute the auditing and allowance by the court contemplated by this section of the code, and would not be binding upon the county to which it was presented for payment. The act should be that of the court. A mere indorsement by a judge, not purporting to be the act of the court, and merely recommending the allowance of the account, is not what the statute contemplates. Barnes v. Marion County, 54 Iowa, 482.

When a criminal cause is tried in a county other than the one in which the offense was committed, the latter county is liable to the county where the trial is had for all the fees paid the jurors engaged in the trial. Jones County v. Linn County, 63 Id., 63.

Sec. 4382. [Sheriff's fees.]—Sheriffs, for delivering prisoners under the provisions of this chapter, are entitled to the same fees therefor as are allowed for conveyance of convicts to the penitentiary.

Sec. 4383. [District judge may transfer prosecutions from one county to another.]—When any district judge in this state is satisfied from his own knowledge or otherwise, that any organized county in his district does not contain a sufficient number of inhabitants possessing the qualifications of jurors to compose grand and trial jurors for the presentment and trial of any person or persons, charged with the commission of an offense in said county requiring the intervention of a grand jury, said judge shall make an order transferring all prosecutions for such offenses committed in said county to the next nearest county in the same judicial district possessing the requisite number of inhabitants qualified to serve as jurors.

Sec. 4384. [Order may be made in vacation.]—Said order may be made by the judge in vacation or by the court, and the district court of the county to which said prosecution may be transferred, shall have full and complete jurisdiction of the offense, and the person or persons charged with committing the offense may be indicted and tried in the county to which the prosecution is so transferred, in the same manner as though the offense had been committed in said county.

Sec. 4385. [Person charged required to appear and give bond.]—When any prosecution has been transferred by the court or judge under the provisions of this chapter, the person charged with committing the offense shall be required to appear at the next succeeding term of the district court of the county to which the prosecution is transferred, and shall give bond accordingly, and the court or judge may require all material witnesses in behalf of the prosecution to enter into cognizance for their appearance at the district court of the county to which the prosecution is transferred.

When the venue in a criminal case is changed the sureties, upon his recognizance for his appearance, etc., prior to the change, are liable for the appearance of the accused before the court to which the change is ordered; no new recognizance having been entered into for such appearance. The State v. Brown, 16 Iowa, 314.

The appearance of a defendant in a criminal cause does not discharge the sureties on his bond. They are still liable for any failure to obey the orders of the court before surrendered or discharged. Id.; The State v. Merrihew, 47 Id., 112.

Sec. 4386. [Costs.]—The county in which the offense was committed, and from which the prosecution was transferred, shall pay all the costs attending the prosecution.

Sec. 4387. [No appeal from order.]—No appeal or writ of error shall lie from any order for the transfer of prosecutions made under the provisions of this chapter.

Sec. 4388. [This chapter, to what applicable.]—The provisions of this chapter apply to prosecutions or charges now pending, or that may hereafter be instituted for offenses heretofore or hereafter committed.
CHAPTER 25.

OF THE FORMATION OF TRIAL JURY.

SECTION 4389. [How formed.]—The jury for the trial of criminal actions is selected, drawn, and summoned as provided in the code of civil practice.

Sec. 4390. [Ballots prepared by clerk.]—At the opening of the court, the clerk shall prepare separate ballots, containing the names of the persons returned as jurors, which shall be folded each in the same manner, as near as may be, and so that the name thereon shall not be visible, and must deposit them in a box to be kept for that purpose.

The terms "opening of the court," used in this section, are to be understood as conveying the idea that the court is in session, organized for the transaction of judicial business. Hobart v. Hobart, 49 Iowa, 501, 504.

Sec. 4391. [Parties may require names of jurors called.]—When the indictment is called for trial and before drawing the jury, either party may require the names of all the jurors in the panel to be called, and that an attachment issue against those who are absent, but the court may, in its discretion, wait or not for the return of the attachment.

Sec. 4392. [Drawing jurors.]—Before the name of any juror is drawn the box must be closed and shaken, so as to intermingle the ballots therein, and the clerk shall draw such ballots without seeing the names written on them, from the box, through the top or lid thereof.

Sec. 4393. [Disposition of ballots.]—When the jury is completed, the ballots containing the names of the jurors sworn must be laid aside and kept apart from the ballots containing the names of the other jurors, until the jury so sworn is discharged.

Sec. 4394. [Same.]—After the jury is so discharged, the ballots containing their names must be again folded and returned to the box, and so on, as often as a trial is had.

Sec. 4395. [Juror absent.]—If a juror be absent when his name is drawn or be set aside or excused from serving on that trial, the ballot containing his name must be folded and returned to the box as soon as the jury is sworn.

Sec. 4396. [Talesmen.]—If by reason of there being one or more juries impaneled, or for any other reason there should not remain any ballots undrawn, or if in consequence of jurors being set aside no jury can be obtained from the list of those returned by the sheriff for the trial of issues, the court may order the sheriff, or if he be a party to or interested in the cause, some other person, to summon jurors from the bystanders, or other persons, who shall be returned for the trial of the indictment.

When the sheriff summons from the bystanders persons to fill the jury, or if he brings them in under a formal process, selected from the court or those outside the court-house to serve for a particular trial only, he may call them in the order in which they were summoned by him, but the better practice is, when the jurors are summoned on process, to place their names on ballots and draw them as regular jurors, and this is necessary when they are summoned for the entire term.

The State v. Green, 20 Iowa, 424.

The duty of selecting talesmen in a criminal case may be taken from the sheriff by the court and devolved on the coroner, where an affidavit is filed by the accused, to the effect that by reason of partiality and prejudice, he believes the sheriff will not act fairly in the selection of talesmen. The State v. Hardin et al., 46 Id., 623.

Out of a panel of twenty-four trial jurors, only eighteen appeared, and the panel was exhausted before a jury for the trial of the indictment for murder was procured. But before it was known that a jury could not be obtained from the regular panel a special venire was issued "for the purpose of using the names of the jurors so drawn and summoned in the impanelling of a jury," in this case. When the regular panel was exhausted, the sheriff, under the direction of the court, called the persons so drawn and summoned in the order in which their names stood on the list, beginning with the first until a jury was obtained. Held that in all this there was no error. The State v. Ryan, 70 Id., 154.

When twenty jurors were summoned for the term, and the court excused two, and nine of the eighteen were engaged in another case when this case was called for trial, held that it was competent for the court to summon jurors from the by-standers for the trial of this case. The State v. McCauley, 72 Id., 111.

SEC. 4397. [Jury: consists of.—The jury consists of twelve men accepted and sworn to try the issue.

The defendant in a criminal action may, with the consent of the state, and the court, waive the provision of the statute enacted for his benefit. He may consent to proceed with but eleven jurors, and a trial with this number, with such consent is not prohibited by the state constitution. The State v. Kaufman, 51 Iowa, 578.

See, as recognizing the same doctrine, Hughes v. The State, 4 Iowa, 554; The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 455; The State v. Reid, 20 Id., 413; The State v. Felter, 25 Id., 67.

CHAPTER 26.

OF CHALLENGING THE JURY.

SECTION 4398. [Challenge].—A challenge is an objection made to the trial jurors, and is of two kinds:
1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror.

There is no such thing known to our statute as a challenge to the "array." We have two kinds of challenges, namely: to the panel, and to an individual juror. After challenges to the individual have been made, a challenge to the panel comes too late. The State v. Davis, 41 Iowa, 311. See, also, The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379.

SEC. 4399. [No severance of—When several defendants are tried together, they are not allowed to sever their challenges, but must join therein.

SEC. 4400. [To panel.—A challenge to the panel can be interposed, only on the ground that they were not selected, drawn or summoned as prescribed by law.

It is not good ground for challenge to the jury, that the jurors heard the evidence which had been submitted to the court, to raise a doubt as to the insanity or imbecility of the prisoner. The State v. Arnold, 12 Iowa, 479.

SEC. 4401. [When and how taken.—A challenge to the panel must be taken before a challenge to any individual juror, and must be in writing, specifying distinctly and plainly the facts constituting the ground of challenge.

SEC. 4402. [Trial of challenge.—A challenge to the panel may be taken by either party, and upon the trial thereof the officers, whether judicial or ministerial, whose irregularity is complained of, as well as any other persons, may be examined to prove or disprove the facts alleged as the grounds of the challenge.

It is competent for the court to direct in what form evidence shall be presented on the trial of a challenge to a panel of jurors. The State v. Linda, 54 Iowa, 141.

SEC. 4403. [Challenge allowed: jury discharged.—If the facts of the challenge be allowed by the court, the jury must be discharged so far as the trial of the indictment in question is concerned. If it be disallowed, the court shall direct the jury to be impaneled.

SEC. 4404. [To individual juror.—A challenge to an individual juror may be taken orally, and is either:
1. For cause;
2. Peremptory.

SEC. 4405. [For cause.—A challenge for cause may be made, either by the state or by the defendant; it must distinctly specify the facts constituting the causes of challenge, and may be made for any of the following causes:
1. A previous conviction of the juror of a felony;
2. A want of any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person a competent juror;
3. Unsoundness of mind, or such defects in the faculties of the mind or the organs of the body, as rendered him incapable of performing the duties of a juror;
4. Affinity, or consanguinity within the ninth degree, to the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance the prosecution was instituted, or to the defendant, to be computed according to the rule of the civil law;
5. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, or landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance the prosecution was instituted, or in his employ on wages;
6. Being a party adverse to the defendant in a civil action, or having been the prosecutor against, or accused by him, in a criminal prosecution;
7. Having served on the grand jury which found the indictment, or on a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of a person whose death is the subject of the indictment;
8. Having served on a trial jury, which has tried another defendant for the offense charged in the indictment;
9. Having been on a jury formerly sworn to try the same indictment and whose verdict was set aside, or which was discharged without a verdict, after the cause was submitted to it;
10. Having served as a juror, in a civil action brought against the defendant, for the act charged as an offense;
11. Having formed or expressed such an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner as would prevent him from rendering a true verdict upon the evidence submitted on the trial;
12. Because of his being bail for any defendant in the indictment;
13. Because he is defendant in a similar indictment, or complainant or private prosecutor against the defendant or any other person indicted for a similar offense;
14. Because he is, or, within a year preceding, has been engaged or interested in carrying on any business, calling or employment, the carrying on of which is a violation of law, and when the defendant is indicted for a like offense;
15. Because he has been a witness, either for or against the defendant, on the preliminary trial or before the grand jury.

That a juror has served on a trial which convicted another defendant for an offense similar to the one charged in the indictment, is not a good cause of challenge under the statute. The eighth subdivision of section 4405 applies only to cases in which two or more persons have been jointly indicted for the same offense, and have severed in their trials; and not to cases in which the offense is necessarily single and cannot be committed jointly with another. The State v. Shelley, 15 Iowa, 404.

A juror who stated upon his examination that he had not formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, but had in regard to some of the transactions in the case, stated further that he could render an impartial verdict upon the evidence, was held to be competent to serve. The State v. Bryan, 40 Id., 379.

Where persons called as jurors stated that "they had repeatedly heard the matters of the case talked over, and had said and thought that if the reports were true the defendant was guilty of the charge," and another person also called as a juror stated, "that if the reports I have heard are true, the defendant is guilty; unless my opinions are substantiated by the testimony, they would not modify my verdict." Each of said jurors stating that they had not formed or expressed an unqualified opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant; it was held, that they were not disqualified to serve as jurors. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435, 451.

A juror, in answer to interrogatories, stated that he had formed and expressed an opinion as to the killing, but not as to the guilt of the defendant; it was held, 1. That he was a competent juror; 2. That an opinion formed and expressed by a juror does not affect his competency, or afford cause for challenge, unless it is as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, of the crime laid to his charge. The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 188.

The failure of a defendant in a criminal action to object to a juror on the ground of incompetency is not cured by verdict. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 308.

The defendant by accepting the jury waives any exception thereto, for bias or prejudice of any kind in the mind of the juror. And if he accepts the jury with knowledge that one of the jurors is incompetent, he thereby waives his right to object afterwards; but such knowledge must appear before a waiver will be inferred. Id.

Where the following question was put to one called as a juror: "If the defense in the case should be the insanity of the defendant, have you formed or expressed an opinion on the subject?" Held, that the question was improper in that it stated a supposed defense for the purpose of showing actual bias. The State v. Arnold, 12 Id., 579.

Where a juror was asked if he had not just "set upon a jury for the trial of a person indicted for the same kind of an offense," and upon giving an affirmative answer, was asked the further question, "if the evidence in this case should be the same as in the one just decided, if your mind is not made up as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant," it was held, that the court did not err in sustaining an objection to the question. The State v. Leicht, 17 Id., 25.

The propriety of recalling a petit juror, who had been challenged and excused from the jury box, for the purpose of allowing the other party to cross-examine him and thus disprove the ground of challenge, is within the discretion of the district court, and such discretion will not be controlled by the supreme court, unless it is shown to have been greatly abused. The State v. Shelly, 8 Id., 471.

It was held sufficient cause of challenge to a petit juror on the part of the state, that he stated under oath that he thought he had formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief that the defendant was guilty or not guilty of the offense charged; and that it need not appear that such opinion or belief was in favor of the prisoner. Id.

Hypothetical opinions, founded on rumor, do not disqualify a petit juror. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435; The State v. Hinkle, 6 Id., 389; The State v. Thompson, 9 Id., 182; The State v. Bryan, 49 Id., 379.

A juror who was challenged for cause, answered under oath as follows: "I read an account of this matter in the papers, and came to the conclusion that the defendant shot McNamara, and that it was a criminal thing for him to do so. * * * I have not formed such an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the accused as would prevent me from rendering a true verdict." Held, that the juror had not formed such an unqualified opinion as to render him incompetent as a juror in the case. The State v. Bruce, 48 Id., 530.

A person is not disqualified from sitting on a jury on the trial of one for the violation of a city ordinance, because he is a resident of the city. The State v. Wells, 46 Id., 692.

Jury for the district and circuit courts may be drawn from the same list. A separate list is not required for the circuit court. The State v. Lawrence, 33 Id., 31.

An opinion formed in respect to the guilt of defendant, based on pretended facts learned from newspapers or otherwise, does not disqualify one to act as a juror, where the juror on his examination, states his opinion is subject to change upon his learning that the facts differ from what he supposed them to be, and that his opinion would not prevent him from rendering a true verdict according to the evidence given on the trial. The State v. Sopher, 70 Id., 494. See, also, State v. Bruce, 48 Id., 530.

Where a juror in a criminal case admitted that he had formed an opinion as to the prisoner's guilt, and even stated, in answer to the question, that it was an unqualified opinion, yet, where he insisted all through the examination that it was not such an opinion as would disqualify him from rendering a true verdict upon the evidence, held, that the court did not err in overruling a challenge for cause based on the ground of such opinion. The State v. Vatter, 71 Id., 557.

Sec. 4406. [Exemption.]—An exemption from service on a jury is not a cause of challenge, but the privilege of the person exempted.

Sec. 4407. [Juror examined.]—Upon the trial of a challenge to an individual juror, the juror challenged may be examined as a witness to prove or disprove the challenge, and must answer every question pertinent to the inquiry thereon, but his answers shall not afterwards be testimony against him.

Sec. 4408. [Other witnesses examined.]—Other witnesses may also be examined on either side; and the rules of evidence applicable to the trial of other issues shall govern the admission or exclusion of testimony on the trial of the challenge.

Sec. 4409. [Court shall determine.]—In all challenges the court shall determine the law and the fact, and must either allow or disallow the challenge.
SEC. 4410. [Challenges by state.]—The state shall first complete its challenges for cause, and the defendant afterwards.

SEC. 4411. [Peremptory challenges.]—After twelve jurors have been obtained, against whom no cause of challenge has been found to exist, peremptory challenges may be made.

SEC. 4412. A peremptory challenge is an objection to a juror for which no reason need be given, but upon which the court must exclude him.

SEC. 4413. (As amended by ch. 39, 22d g. a.) [Same.]—If the offense charged in the indictment is or may be punished with death or imprisonment for life, the state and defendant are each entitled to ten peremptory challenges; if any other felony to six each; and if a misdemeanor to three each.

SEC. 4414. [Order of challenge.]—The state shall be entitled to the first challenge and shall challenge one juror. The defendant shall be entitled to the second challenge and shall challenge one juror, the state shall be entitled to the third challenge and shall challenge one juror, the defendant shall be entitled to the fourth challenge and shall challenge one juror, and so on alternately until all the challenges are exhausted.

SEC. 4415. The challenges of either party need not be taken at once, but separately in the following order, including in each challenge all the causes of challenge belonging to the same class:

1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror, for cause;
3. To an individual juror, peremptorily;

SEC. 4416. After each challenge which is allowed, the vacancy occasioned thereby shall, if required, be filled before any further challenge is made, and any new juror thus introduced may be challenged for cause, as well as peremptorily, if the peremptory challenges are not exhausted.

SEC. 4417. [Jurors: when sworn.—No juror shall be sworn to try the issue until twelve jurors are accepted.

SEC. 4418. [Bias.]—Bias in a juror against either party is no cause of challenge by the other. It may be waived by the party against whom it exists.

CHAPTER 27.

ON THE TRIAL OF AN ISSUE OF FACT IN AN INDICTMENT.

SECTION 4419. [Provisions to civil code: to what applicable.]—The provisions of the code of civil practice, relative to the continuances of the trial of civil causes, shall apply to the continuance of criminal actions, except that no judgment for costs shall be rendered against a defendant in a criminal action on account of such continuance; and except as in this code otherwise provided; and except that the defendant shall, if he, upon entering his plea demand it, be entitled to three days in which to prepare for trial.

If the state, in order to avoid a continuance applied for by the defendant in a criminal case on account of the absence of a witness, admits that the witness would, if present, swear to the facts stated in the affidavit for continuance, such statements assume the character of the witness' evidence, and cannot be impeached by showing that he has made statements out of court different from those in the affidavit. The State v. Shannahan, 22 Iowa, 485.

The ordinary rule, that the proper foundation must be laid before a witness can be impeached by proving statements made out of court, applies to this class of cases whether criminal or civil. The rule does not lose its application if the statements out of court were made under oath. Id.

Where in a criminal case, the facts stated in an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of absent witnesses, are admitted by the prosecution, and are read on the trial as the evidence of the absent witnesses, in order to avoid a continuance, such affidavits are not admissible on a second trial of the cause at a subsequent term. The State v. Felter, 32 Id., 49.

SEC. 4420. (As substituted by ch. 19, 17th g. a.)—The jury having been impaneled and sworn, the court must proceed in the following order:
1. The clerk or district attorney must read the indictment, and state the defendant's plea to the jury, and the district attorney may briefly state the evidence by which he expects to sustain the indictment.
2. The attorney for the defendant may then briefly state his defense, and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it.
3. The state may then offer the evidence in support of the indictment.
4. The defendant or his counsel may then offer his evidence in support of his defense.
5. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reasons in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case.
6. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted to the jury on both sides, without argument, the district attorney must commence, the defendant follow by one or two counsel at his option, unless the court shall permit him to be heard by a larger number, and the district attorney conclude, confining himself to a response to the arguments of the defendant's counsel, provided that where two or more defendants are on trial for the same offense, they may be heard by one counsel each; and provided further, that the court, when the affirmative of the issue is with the defendant, may, in its discretion, award to the defendant the last argument.

The court shall then charge the jury in writing without oral explanation or qualification.

Under this section the state is not, on the trial of an indictment, restricted, in the examination of a witness whose name is indorsed on the indictment, to the testimony given by him before the grand jury. If the name of a witness is indorsed on the indictment, and the minutes of his testimony are properly presented and filed, he may be examined as to any and all matters within his knowledge touching or bearing upon the defendant's guilt or innocence. Per Lowe and Cole, J. in The State v. Bowers, 17 Iowa, 46. Wright, Ch. J. not concurring; Dillon, J. absent.

The state may, in a criminal case, introduce as rebutting evidence, the testimony of witnesses who were not before the grand jury and whose names are not indorsed on the indictment, and of whose introduction no notice has been given to the defendant. The State v. Parish, 22 Id., 284.

But that is not rebutting testimony which seeks by another witness, after the defense has closed, to sustain the character of the prosecuting witness whose testimony has been impeached, by showing that the statements of the prosecutor as he gave them on his examination, were in accordance with the facts of the case. Id.

The district court has the discretion to permit a witness to be examined on behalf of the state as to matters not rebutting, after the defendant has concluded his testimony. The State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 165.

The word impaneled, as applied to the formation of a jury, means the final act by the ascertaining who should be sworn immediately preceding the administration of the oath to the jurors.
The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 485.

The fact that evidence upon the original case was offered in rebuttal would not prevent the court from admitting it, if in furtherance of justice it should be so admitted, and the fact that it was not ostensiby so admitted would not justify a reversal in the absence of a showing of prejudice by the manner of its admission. The State v. Curran, 51 Id., 113.

In a criminal prosecution it is the duty of the court before whom the cause is being tried, particularly where the charge is of a high crime, and the case complicated, whether requested by counsel or not, to point out to the jury the controverted questions of fact, and to see that the law applicable thereto is given to the jury in proper instructions. And where this is not done, and it is doubtful whether the verdict against the defendant effectuates justice, a new trial will be

But the objection that an instruction fails to present the law fully, will not be considered by the supreme court, where it does not appear that all of the instructions are embodied in the record.
The State v. Hamilton, 32 Id., 572.

The trial court has a discretion under subdivision 4 of this section to allow the state in a criminal case to examine a witness in chief, after defendant has examined some of his witnesses.
State v. Falconer, 70 Id., 416. See also State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 164.
SEC. 4421. [District attorney: offering evidence: notice.]—The district attorney in offering the evidence in support of the indictment, in pursuance of the order prescribed in the last section, under the second subdivision thereof, shall not be permitted to introduce any witness who was not examined before the grand jury; and the minutes of whose testimony was not taken by the clerk of the grand jury, and presented with the indictment to the court, unless he shall have given to the defendant a notice in writing, stating the name, place of residence, and occupation of such witness, and the substance of what he expects to prove by him on the trial, at least four days before the commencement of such trial: (As amended by sec. 3, ch. 168, 17th g. a.) [Provided, that whenever the district attorney desires to introduce evidence to support the indictment of which he shall not have given said four day's notice because of insufficient time therefor since he learned said evidence could be obtained, he may move the court for leave to introduce such evidence, giving the name, place of residence, and occupation of the witnesses he desires to introduce, and the substance of what he expects to prove by said witnesses, and showing diligence such as is required in a motion for a continuance supported by affidavit, whereupon, if the court sustain said motion, the defendant shall elect whether said cause shall be continued on his motion, or the witnesses shall then testify; and if said defendant shall not elect to have said cause continued, the district attorney may examine said witnesses in the same manner and with the same effect as though four days notice thereof had been given defendant as hereinbefore provided, except that the district attorney, in the examination of said witnesses, shall be strictly confined to the matters set out in his motion.]

The defendant in a criminal case who has accepted service of notice that a witness whose name is not endorsed on the indictment will be introduced on the trial, and who has agreed to treat such notice as personally served, cannot object that it was not signed by the district attorney. The State v. Watrous, 13 Iowa, 459. See The State v. Flynn, 42 Id., 164, cited in notes to section 4837, ante.

This section applies to evidence in support of an indictment, and does not preclude the testimony of witnesses who were not before the grand jury, and whose evidence is not reported with the indictment, as to the fact that a certain witness testified before the grand jury. The State v. Fowler, 52 Id., 103, 106.

Where the defendant's wife appeared and testified against him before the grand jury which indicted him, it was held, that objection for this cause could not be made after conviction. The State v. Houston, 50 Id., 512.

Nor could the fact that witnesses were examined on the trial whose names were not indorsed on the indictment be taken advantage of by objection first made after conviction. Id.; 1 G. Greene, 316.

In the trial of a criminal case the prosecution is not confined, in the examination of a witness to the points on which he was examined before the grand jury. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435; The State v. McCoy, 20 Id., 262; The State v. Bowers, 17 Id., 46.

This section is so far superseded by section 5 of chapter 143, laws of 1880, that an indictment may be found by the grand jury upon the minutes of the testimony returned to the court by the committing magistrate, and where the testimony of a witness has thus been properly taken and returned, and the name of the witness placed on the indictment, the witness is competent to testify on the trial, without having testified before the grand jury. State v. Rodman, 62 Id., 456.

Where on the trial of an indictment the state introduced evidence and rested, and the defendant introduced evidence, and the district attorney then moved for leave to introduce a witness who had not been before the grand jury, and of whose examination notice had not been given, and the motion was sustained, and the defendant then elected to have the case continued, which was accordingly done, held that the defendant could not object to another trial on the ground that, he had already been put in jeopardy. State v. Falconer, 70 Id., 416. Following State v. Parker, 66 Id., 586.

Under this section which provides that the district attorney shall give the defendant a notice in writing, stating the name, place of residence and occupation of any witness, whose name is not indorsed on the indictment, and the substance of what he expects to prove by him, at least four days before the commencement of the trial, etc.; Held, that errors in the notice as to the place of residence of the witness and what is expected to be proved by him are not ground for reversal, not being shown to be prejudicial to defendant. State v. Kainabarger, 37 N. W. R., 133.

Mere brevity of the minutes of evidence of a witness before the grand jury will not prevent the witness from testifying as to the subject matter and facts embraced within them however brief they may be. The State v. Vanvelt, 25 Iowa, 37; The State v. Bower, 17 Id., 46.

The state in a criminal trial may introduce as rebutting evidence the testimony of witnesses who were not before the grand jury, and whose names are not indorsed upon the indictment, without giving notice of the intention to do so. The State v. Parish, 22 Id., 284.

But that is not rebutting evidence which seeks by another witness, after the defense was closed, to sustain the character of the prosecuting witness whose testimony has been impeached, by showing that the statements of such witness as he gave them in his examination were according to the facts of the case. Id.

Where the court permitted evidence to be given to the jury, and, before the jury retired, excluded the same evidence, it was held that the party to the admission of the evidence was not thereby prejudiced. State v. Postlewait, 14 Id., 446.

In a criminal case the defendant was put upon trial and one witness on part of the state examined and cross-examined, when it was discovered that none of the state’s witnesses had been examined before the grand jury, but that the indictment had been found upon the minutes of the evidence as returned by the committing magistrate, and that the district attorney had not given the notice required in such cases by section 4421 of the code. Thereupon the district attorney moved for and obtained an order, under the proviso of that section, compelling the defendant to allow the state’s witnesses to be examined, notwithstanding the want of such notice, or else to allow the case to be continued. Defendant excepted to this ruling, and moved the court to direct a verdict for defendant, which motion was overruled, when, upon defendant’s election, the cause was continued and jury discharged. Held, that defendant was not put in jeopardy by these proceedings, within the meaning of the fifth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and that he was not acquitted thereby, within the meaning of article 1, section 12 of the constitution of Iowa, and that he was properly put upon trial at the next term of the court for the same offense. The State v. Parker, 66 Id., 586. Following State v. Redman, 17 Id., 329.

Where the name of “Mrs. H.” was indorsed on the indictment as one of the witnesses, and on the trial the state offered “Mrs. Mary E. H.” as a witness, and it was objected that her name was not indorsed on the indictment, held that it was the duty of the court to determine whether “Mrs. H.” and “Mrs. Mary E. H.” were the same person, and that, in doing so, it was competent to consult not only the indorsement upon the indictment, but the minutes of the evidence; and, further, that, since the court overruled the objection, it must be presumed that it did consult such minutes, and therein found sufficient evidence to determine the identity of the witness. The State v. Briggs, 68 Id., 416.

The state in rebuttal is not limited to the witnesses who were examined before the grand jury, or of whose introduction the prescribed notice has been given. Id. See also, State v. Parish, 22 Id., 284.

Sec. 4422. [Defendant’s plea.]—When the defendant’s only plea is a former conviction or acquittal, the order prescribed in the second and third sub-divisions of the section immediately preceding the last, shall be reversed, and the defendant shall first offer his evidence in support of his defense.

Sec. 4423. [Counsel: time.]—The court shall not restrict counsel as to time in their arguments.

Sec. 4424. [Tried separately.]—When two or more defendants are jointly indicted for felony, any defendant requiring it may be tried separately. In other cases, defendants jointly indicted may be tried separately or jointly in the discretion of the court.

While two or more defendants jointly indicted may, in the discretion of the court, be tried jointly or separately, a separate judgment must be entered against each. The State v. Hunter, 33 Iowa, 361.

Where several parties have been jointly indicted, and they demand separate trials, the order in which they shall be tried may be determined by the district attorney, under the direction of the court. The State v. Hudson, 50 Id., 157.

Defendants jointly indicted for a misdemeanor may, under this section, be tried jointly or separately, at the discretion of the court. The State v. Veiger, 29 Id., 218; The State v. Marion, 12 Id., 499.

The refusal of a separate trial to one jointly indicted with another for an offense not amounting to a felony is within the discretion of the district court. State v. Kirkpatrick, 38 N. W. Rep. 380. 4425. [Trial for conspiracy.]—Upon a trial for a conspiracy, in a case where an overt act is required by law to constitute the offense, the defendant cannot be convicted unless one or more overt acts be expressly alleged in the indictment, nor unless one or more of the acts alleged be proved; but other overt acts not alleged in the indictment may be given in evidence.
SEC. 4426. [Rules of evidence.]—The rules of evidence in civil cases are applicable also to criminal cases, except as otherwise provided.

SEC. 4427. [Confession of defendant.]—The confession of the defendant, unless made in open court, will not warrant a conviction unless accompanied with other proof that the offense was committed.

SEC. 4428. [Doubt.]—Where there is a reasonable doubt of the defendant being proven to be guilty, he is entitled to an acquittal.

When the death of a person alleged to have been murdered is prima facie established by the evidence, County of Mahaska v. Ingalls, 16 Id., 81; State v. Woodward, 20 Id., 542, 550.

In a trial for murder, where the defense is insanity, medical witnesses who have no personal knowledge of the prisoner cannot be allowed to state an opinion formed from the testimony in the case and the defendant's conduct on the trial, as to his sanity or insanity at the time of the commission of the act. This would practically be putting such witnesses in the place of the jury to decide the question. State v. Teller, 25 Id., 67.

It is competent to show the insanity of the defendant prior to the commission of the act; and a physician who visited him during such insanity, and from actual observation and examination became acquainted with his mental condition may give an opinion as to his sanity or insanity at the time when he thus observed or examined him. Id.

So also, it is competent to show, in such cases, that the defendant's father was subject to insanity. Id.

On an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses, consisting of representations by defendant that he had money on deposit in a bank in another state, upon which he drew drafts and placed them in the hands of a local bank to be forwarded for collection, the notarial certificate of protest of the notary who protested the drafts thus drawn, is not admissible in evidence against the defendant to prove that he had no money on deposit in the bank upon which the drafts were drawn. State v. Reidel, 26 Id., 430.

When one of two defendants, jointly indicted, testifies on behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness, under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself on trial. State v. Hardin et al., 46 Id., 623.

An alibi need not be established by such a preponderance of evidence as to "fully satisfy" the jury; a bare preponderance, at most, is all that is required. Id.

An admission of the defendant of the fact charged in an indictment against him is not sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty unless corroborated. The State v. Penny, 70 Id., 284.

A confession made out of court, will not warrant a conviction unless there is other evidence that the offense charged has in fact been committed. The corpus delicti must be shown by proof otherwise. The State v. Turner, 19 Id., 144, 147.

On the trial of an indictment where the insanity of the defendant is the defense, it is incumbent upon him to overcome the presumption of sanity and establish his insanity by a preponderance of evidence, or evidence that is satisfactory. The rule requiring the evidence in a criminal case, to satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, is applicable only to the general conclusion, of guilty or not guilty, upon the whole evidence, and not to any one fact in the case. The State v. Teller, 32 Id., 49. See also, State v. Nash et al., 7 Id., 347; The State v. Outander, 18 Id., 435; State v. Hayden, 45 Id., 11.

When the defense in a criminal case is an alibi, it is not required, in order to acquit, that the jury be fully satisfied of the truth of the alibi. A bare preponderance is sufficient. The State v. Hardin, 46 Id., 623; The State v. Henry, 43 Id., 403; The State v. Northrup et al., Id., 583.

When the death of a person alleged to have been murdered is prima facie established by the identification of the dead body as his, the burden of proof is upon the prisoner to show that such person is still alive. To establish a defense of this character, the same weight of evidence is required as that to sustain an alibi of the accused. The State v. Vincent, 24 Id., 570.

The giving of an instruction which is susceptible of being understood to require the jury to convict unless each individual juror shares a reasonable doubt of defendant's guilt, is error with prejudice. Id.

Sec. 4429. [Same.]—Where there is a reasonable doubt of the degree of the offense of which the defendant is proven to be guilty, he shall only be convicted of the lower degree.

It is the duty of the court to instruct the jury that if they have a reasonable doubt of the degree or character of the assault charged in the indictment they should only convict of a lower degree of crime which is included within that charged in the indictment. The State v. Walters, 45 Iowa, 389.

On the trial of an indictment for larceny, the value of the property charged to have been stolen must be established beyond a reasonable doubt; mere preponderance of evidence that it exceeds twenty dollars is not sufficient to justify a conviction for grand larceny. The State v. Wood, 46 Id., 116.

Where on the trial of an indictment for rape, the court omitted, in the instructions to refer to the provisions of this section and state to the jury that where there was a reasonable doubt as to the degree of guilt, the defendant should only be convicted of the lower degree, held erroneous and prejudicial. The State v. Jay, 57 Id., 164.

The court should direct a conviction of the lower degree of larceny, if the jury entertain a reasonable doubt as to whether the value of the property exceeded $20, as provided in this section. State v. McCarty, 34 N. W. R., 666.

Sec. 4430. [Higher offense proved.]—If it appear by the testimony that the facts proved constitute an offense of a higher nature than that charged in the indictment, the court may direct the jury to be discharged and all proceedings on the indictment to be suspended, and may order the defendant to be committed or continued on bail to answer any new indictment which may be found against him for the higher offense.

There are no degrees in the statutory crime of larceny, the intent in all cases being the same, and the subdivision into grand and petit larceny, based on the value of the property stolen, being only for the determination of the punishment. A conviction for petit larceny is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for grand larceny on the same facts. State v. Murray, 55 Iowa, 539.

Sec. 4431. [Same.]—If the indictment for the higher offense be submitted by the grand jury or be not found at the next term, the court must proceed to try the defendant on the original indictment.

Sec. 4432. [Jury view premises.]—Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper that the jury should view the place in which the offense is charged to have been committed, or in which any other material fact occurred, it may order the jury to be conducted in a body, in the custody of proper officers, to the place, which shall be shown them by a person appointed by the court for that purpose. The officers must be sworn to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with the jury, on any subject connected with the trial, nor to do so themselves, except the person appointed by the court for that purpose, and that only to show the place to be viewed, and to return them into court without any unnecessary delay at a specified time.

Sec. 4433. [Juror as a witness.]—If a juror have any personal knowledge respecting a fact in controversy in a cause, he must declare the same in open court during the trial; and if during the retirement of the jury, a juror declare any fact which could be evidence in the cause, as of his own knowledge, the juror must return into court and the juror must be sworn as a witness, and examined in the presence of the parties, if his evidence be admissible.

SEPARATION OF JURY.

Sec. 4434. [Jury permitted to separate.]—The jurors sworn to try an indictment, may, at any time before the final submission of the cause to them, in the discretion of the court, be permitted to separate, except where one of the parties object thereto, or be kept together in charge of proper officers. The officers must be sworn to keep the jury together during the adjournment of the court, and to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with them on any subject connected with the trial, nor do so themselves, and to return them into court at the time to which it adjourns.

The district court may in its discretion, under section 4434 of the code, permit the jury in the trial of a capital case, to separate, under the admonition of the court as required by section 4435, at the various adjournments of the court during the trial, and prior to the final submission of the case to the jury, although the accused, however, be more safely exercised in granting than in denying the request of the accused. The State v. Felker, 25 Iowa, 67.

SEC. 4435. [Not to communicate or converse.]—The jury, whether permitted to separate or kept together in charge of sworn officers, must be admonished by the court that it is their duty not to permit any person to speak to or communicate with them on any subject connected with the trial, and that any and all attempts to do so, should be immediately reported by them to the court, and that they should not converse among themselves on any subject connected with the trial, or form or express an opinion thereon, until the cause is finally submitted to them. This admonition must be given or referred to by the court at each adjournment, during the progress of the trial, previous to the final submission of the cause to the jury.

This section requires jurors, pending a trial in which they are acting, to keep their minds in status quo, and if during the adjournments of court they do no act which impairs their mind or clouds their understanding, when again called to hear the evidence or arguments of counsel; the drinking of intoxicating liquors by them during such adjournments is not such misconduct as to prejudice either party. The State v. Bruce, 48 Id., 530, 537.

There is a wide distinction between the duty of a juror during an adjournment of the court pending the trial, and his duty after the case is submitted to him for his determination. Id.

SEC. 4436. [Minutes of testimony kept.]—The court shall, on the trial of every indictment, when requested by either party, keep, or cause to be kept, by some person for that purpose by it appointed, full and accurate minutes of the testimony of each witness examined on the trial, showing the name of the witness, place of residence, and his occupation, as well as of any oral evidence introduced, either by the state or defendant, after a plea or verdict of guilty, to be considered by the court in aggravation or alleviation of the punishment in pronouncing sentence against the defendant, which shall be certified to be full and accurate by the judge, and signed by him, and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, which shall be deemed a part of the record of the cause. The person who acts under such an appointment shall be entitled to such compensation for his services as may be allowed by the court, which shall be paid by the proper county, and shall be taxed as costs.

SEC. 4437. [When several defendants.]—Upon an indictment against several defendants, one or more may be convicted or acquitted.

SEC. 4438. [Trial for libel.]—On the trial of an indictment for a libel, the jury have the right to determine the law and the fact.

SEC. 4439. [Of offenses other than libel.]—On the trial of an indictment for any other offense than libel, questions of law are to be decided by the court; saving the right of the defendant and the state to except. Questions of fact are to be tried by jury. And although the jury have the power to find a general verdict which includes questions of law as well as fact, they are bound, nevertheless, to receive as law what is laid down as such by the court.
INSTRUCTIONS.

Sec. 4440. [Court instruct jury.]—The court shall on motion of either party, instruct the jury on the law applicable to the case, which must always be in writing, signed by the judge and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, and it is to be deemed a part of the record of the cause, and no oral qualification thereof shall be permitted.

This section of the code is directory only, and the failure to comply therewith will be held an error only when the party complaining is prejudiced thereby. State v. Stanley, 48 Iowa, 221.

The supreme court will not reverse a judgment because instructions given by the court to the jury which though correct as abstract propositions of law, should have been modified under the circumstances of the case, when the appellant did not ask for any such qualification. State v. Tweedy, 11 Id., 350.

While the court may in a criminal trial, direct an acquittal by the jury where there is no evidence sustaining the charge, or where it is light and indeterminate in its nature that a verdict would be instantly set aside, it cannot thus direct, and thereby usurp the province of the jury to pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence, where there is conflicting testimony of a material character elicited from several witnesses who have testified in the case. State v. Smith, 28 Id., 565.

Under this section requiring the instruction to the jury to be in writing, signed by the judge and filed with the clerk, an instruction that purports to include the indictment, but in fact leaves a blank where it should appear, having read the indictment in the hearing of the jury and there being no statement of the issues in the charge, held an erroneous method of charging the jury. State v. Birmingham, 38 N. W. Rep., 121.

Sec. 4441. [Same.]—Any instruction asked by either party to be given by the court must be in writing, and must be either given or refused, and so marked and signed by the judge, and so marked by him, and is to be deemed a part of the record. It may be qualified in writing by the court, but not orally, and the qualification must be distinguished intelligently, from the instruction as originally asked by the party, and signed by the judge.

The supreme court will not review instructions which have not been made a part of the record, either by the signature of the judge, as contemplated by sections 4440 and 4441 of the code, or by being incorporated into a bill of exceptions. State v. Gibhardt, 13 Iowa, 473.

Instructions which are not signed by the judge nor filed with the clerk, and which are not marked either as "given" or "refused," will not be considered by the supreme court. State v. Watrous, 13 Id., 459.

The practice of giving instructions to the jury, as framed by counsel, is condemned by the supreme court, who say that the better practice, as a general rule, is for the judge to put aside the instructions asked by counsel and cover the whole ground of controversy in a corrected and methodical charge of his own, stating the questions of fact to be decided, and the law applicable thereto, under the issues and the evidence. State v. Collins, 20 Id., 85.

Sec. 4442. [Deliberation: duty of officer in charge.]—After hearing the charge, the jury may either decide in court or may retire for deliberation. If they do not agree without retiring, one or more officers must be sworn to keep them together in some private and convenient place without meat or drink, water excepted, and not to suffer any person to speak to or communicate with them themselves, unless it be to ask them whether they have agreed upon their verdict, and not to communicate to any one the state of their deliberation or the verdict agreed upon, until after the same shall have been declared in open court, and received by the court, and to return them into court when they shall have so agreed upon their verdict, unless by permission or order of the court, or they be sooner discharged.

DISCHARGE OF JURY.

Sec. 4443. [When juror becomes sick.]—If before the conclusion of a trial a juror becomes sick so as to be unable to perform his duty, the court may order him to be discharged, and in such case a new juror may be sworn and the trial begin anew, or the jury may be discharged and a new jury then or afterwards be impaneled.
SEC. 4444. [Want of jurisdiction.]—The court may also discharge the jury where it appears that it has not jurisdiction of the offense, or that the facts as charged in the indictment do not constitute an offense punishable by law.

SEC. 4445. [Same.]—If the jury be discharged because the court has not jurisdiction of the offense charged in the indictment, and it appear that it was committed out of the jurisdiction of this state, the defendant must be discharged or ordered to be retained in custody a reasonable time, until the district attorney shall have a reasonable opportunity to inform the chief executive of the state in which the offense was committed of the facts, and for said officer to require the delivery of the offender.

SEC. 4446. [When offense committed in another county.]—If the offense was committed within the exclusive jurisdiction of another county of this state, the court must direct the defendant to be committed for such time as shall be deemed reasonable to await a warrant from the proper county for his arrest; or, if the offense be bailable, he may be admitted to bail in an undertaking with sufficient sureties that he will, within such time as the court may appoint, render himself amenable to a warrant for his arrest from the proper county, and if not sooner arrested thereon will attend at the office of the sheriff of the county where the trial was had, at a certain time particularly designated in the undertaking, to surrender himself upon the warrant, if issued, or that the bail will forfeit such sum as the court may fix, to be mentioned in the undertaking.

SEC. 4447. [Papers transmitted by clerk.]—In the case provided for in the last section the clerk must transmit, forthwith, a certified copy of the indictment and all the papers in the action filed with him, except the undertaking mentioned in the last section, to the district attorney of the proper county.

SEC. 4448. [Defendant discharged, when.]—If the defendant be not arrested on a warrant from the proper county he shall be discharged from custody, or his bail in the action shall be exonerated, or money deposited instead of bail shall be refunded, as the case may be, and the sureties in the undertaking must be discharged.

SEC. 4449. [When arrested.]—If he be arrested, the same proceedings must be had thereon as upon the arrest of a defendant in another county on a warrant of arrest issued by a magistrate.

SEC. 4450. [Discharged when facts do not constitute offense.]—If the jury be discharged because the facts set forth do not constitute an offense punishable by law, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged therefrom, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded, unless in its opinion a new indictment can be framed upon which the defendant can be legally convicted, in which case the court may direct that the case be submitted to the same or another grand jury.

SEC. 4451. [When defendant under bail appears for trial.]—When a defendant, having given bail, appears for trial, the court may, in its discretion, at any time after his appearance for trial, order him to be committed to the custody of the proper officer to abide the judgment or further order of the court; and he shall be committed and held in custody accordingly.
Chapter 28.

Section 4452. [Jury may take papers.]—Upon retiring for deliberation, the jury may take with it all papers which have been received as evidence in the case, except depositions and copies of such parts of public records or private documents as ought not, in the opinion of the court, to be taken from the person having them in possession.

Sec. 4453. [And notes of testimony.]—The jury may also take with them notes of the testimony or other proceedings on the trial taken by themselves or any of them, but none taken by any other person.

Sec. 4454. [Disagreement: information desired.]—After the jury have retired for deliberation, if there be any disagreement between them as to any part of the testimony, or if they desire to be informed on any point of law arising in the cause, they must require the officer to conduct them into court, and upon their being brought in, the information required must be given in the presence of, or, after oral notice, to the district attorney, and the defendant or his counsel.

A bailiff in charge of a jury has no authority, when requested by the jury, to bring in the minutes of the testimony, in order to settle a disputed point of evidence. The State v. Griffin, 71 Iowa, 372.

Sec. 4455. [Juror sick.]—If, after the retirement of the jury, one of them be taken sick so as to prevent the continuance of his duty, or any other accident or cause occur to prevent their being kept together for deliberation, the court may discharge them.

Sec. 4456. [When discharged.]—Except as provided in the last section, the jury cannot be discharged after the cause is submitted to them until they have agreed upon their verdict and rendered it in open court, unless by the consent of both parties entered upon the record, or unless at the expiration of such time as the court may deem proper, it satisfactorily appears that there is no reasonable probability that the jury can agree.

The discharge of the jury, in a criminal case, on the ground that they are unable to agree, is a matter within the sound discretion of the court, and when not abused, will not work a discharge of the prisoner on the ground that he has been put in jeopardy. The State v. Vaughn, 29 Iowa, 286; The State v. Redman, 17 Id., 329.

Sec. 4457. [New trial.]—In all cases where a jury is discharged or prevented from giving a verdict by reason of any accident or other cause, except where the defendant is discharged from the indictment during the progress of the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, the cause may be again tried at the same or another term of the court.

Sec. 4458. [Court may adjourn.]—While the jury is absent the court may adjourn from time to time as to other business, but it shall be nevertheless deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury until a verdict be rendered or the jury discharged.

Sec. 4459. [Same.]—A final adjournment of the court discharges the jury.
CHAPTER 29.

OF THE VERDICT.

SECTION 4460. [When jury have agreed.]—When the jury has agreed upon its verdict, it must be conducted into court by the officer having it in charge. The names of the jurors must then be called, and if all do not appear the rest must be discharged without giving a verdict. In such case the cause may again be tried at the same or another term.

SEC. 4461. [Defendant present: when.]—If the indictment be for felony, the defendant must be present at the rendition of the verdict. If it be a misdemeanor the verdict may be rendered in his absence.

That the verdict was rendered in the absence of a defendant indicted for forgery and that the names of the jury were not called, is erroneous, but where it appears that no prejudice resulted therefrom the case will not be reversed. The State v. Vaughn, 29 Iowa, 286.

SEC. 4462. [Verdict rendered.]—When the jury have answered to their names the court or clerk shall ask them whether they have agreed upon the verdict, and if the foreman answers in the affirmative they must, on being required, declare the same.

The provisions of sections 4460 and 4462 of the code, contemplate that the jury, after informing the court of their agreement upon a verdict, must, on being required by the court, declare the same, which may be done orally. Per Miller, J., in The State v. Collins, 32 Iowa, 42.

SEC. 4463. [General or special.]—The jury may either render a general verdict, or where they are in doubt as to the legal effect of the facts proven, they may, except upon an indictment for libel, find a special verdict.

On the trial of an indictment charging the defendant with "concealing," and with "receiving" and "aiding in the concealment of stolen property," the jury returned a verdict as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of aiding in concealing the stolen property mentioned in the indictment, as charged therein, and assess the value of the same at one thousand dollars." This was held to be equivalent to a general verdict. The State v. Turner, 19 Iowa, 144.

The jury themselves are to determine whether their verdict shall be general or special. It can be special only when they are in doubt as to the legal effect of the facts proved. The State v. Bidley & Johnson, 48 Id., 370, 374.

SEC. 4464. [General.]—A general verdict upon a plea of not guilty is either "guilty" or "not guilty," which imports a conviction or acquittal on every material allegation in the indictment. Upon a plea of a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense it is either "for the state" or "for the defendant."

A general verdict of guilty imports a conviction of the defendant in a criminal trial, on every material allegation or charge in the indictment. It is accordingly held, that an inquiry by the court of the jury, upon their returning a verdict of guilty, as to whether they found the defendant guilty of the particular charge mentioned in the indictment, was not erroneous. The State v. Collins, 32 Iowa, 36.

SEC. 4465. [Finding an offense of different degrees.]—Upon an indictment for an offense consisting of different degrees, the jury may find the defendant not guilty of the degree charged in the indictment, and guilty of any degree inferior thereto, or of an attempt to commit the offense, if punishable by indictment.

Murder is the felonious killing with malice. Manslaughter is the felonious killing without malice. The latter is not a degree of the former. The State v. White, 45 Iowa, 325.

Where a party is put upon trial for murder in the first degree, all the degrees of criminal homicide should be explained and submitted to the jury, as they are all included therein. The State v. Clemens, 51 Id., 274.

Section 11 of article one (1) of the state constitution, does not prevent the conviction and punishment of an accused of an offense, less than felony, under an indictment in the district court, when it is included in, or is only a less degree of, the offense charged in the indictment. The State v. Jarvis, 21 Id., 44.

A conviction of a defendant of the crime of manslaughter, on an indictment for murder in the second degree, operates as an acquittal of the higher crime, and he cannot again be placed on trial therefor. The State v. Tweedy, 11 Id., 350.
SEC. 4466. [Other offenses than charged.]—In all other cases the defendant may be found guilty of any offense, the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged in the indictment.

Section 4466 of the code, authorizing the conviction and punishment of an accused for an offense less than felony, when it is included in or is only a less degree of the offense charged in the indictment, is not in conflict with section 11 Art. 1 of the state constitution. State v. Jarvis, 21 Iowa, 44.

On an indictment for an assault with the intent to commit murder, the defendant may be found guilty of any offense, the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged in the indictment. State v. White, 41 Id., 316, 320.

An indictment for burglary includes the offense of entering a dwelling-house in the night-time without breaking, and will admit of a conviction for the latter offense. State v. Maxwell, 42 Id., 208.

On an indictment for rape, the defendant may be convicted for an assault with intent to commit rape. State v. McLaughlin, 44 Id., 325, overruling the same case in 41 Iowa, 316, which see.

So, on such an indictment, a conviction may be had for an assault and battery. Dixon v. State, 3 Id., 416.

On an indictment for murder, the defendant may be found guilty of a misdemeanor. Gordon v. State, 3 Id., 415.

Under an indictment for maiming or disfiguring, the defendant may be convicted of an aggravated assault and battery. Benham v. State, 1 Id., 542.

The crime of an assault with the intent to inflict a great bodily injury is included within an indictment for an assault with intent to commit murder. State v. Schote, 52 Id., 608.

Where the defendant is found guilty of an offense which in the opinion of the court, was not included in the one charged in the indictment, it was held competent to sentence him for an offense included in the indictment, and also necessarily included in the verdict. Id.

In a trial of a party indicted for rape, he may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape, or with a simple assault. State v. Vinsant, 49 Id., 241.

So on the trial of an indictment for an assault with intent to murder, the defendant may be convicted of an assault and battery, where a battery as well as an assault was charged in the indictment. State v. Graham, 51 Id., 72.

Where in an information for selling intoxicating liquors unlawfully, it was alleged that the defendant has been heretofore convicted of a like offense, it was held that he might be convicted as for a first offense. State v. Ensley, 10 Id., 149; State v. Gordon, 3 Id., 415; State v. Benham, 1 Id., 542.

A defendant cannot be convicted of assault and battery on an indictment charging assault with intent to commit rape, unless it is averred in the indictment that the attempt was accompanied by actual violence. State v. McAroy, 35 N. W. Rep., 630.

SEC. 4467. [Indictment against several: finding of jury.]—On an indictment against several, if the jury cannot agree upon a verdict as to all, they may render a verdict as to those in regard to whom they do agree, on which a judgment shall be entered accordingly, and the case as to the rest may be tried by another jury.

SEC. 4468. [Verdict insufficient.]—If the jury render a verdict which is neither a general nor special verdict, the court may direct them to reconsider it, and it shall not be recorded until it be entered in some form from which it can be clearly understood what is the intent of the jury, whether to render a general verdict or to find the facts specially and leave the judgment to the court.

Where under an indictment for burglary, the jury found the "defendant guilty of entering the dwelling-house of Charles E. Gale, in the night-time, as stated in the indictment," it was held that this was a special verdict, and failed to respond to all the facts necessary to the rendition of a judgment thereon, and that the court, therefore, had a right to direct the jury to reconsider it. The State v. Maxwell, 42 Iowa, 208, 214.

SEC. 4469. [Informal verdict.]—If the jury persist in finding an informal verdict, from which, however, it can be understood that their intention is to find for the defendant upon the issue, it shall be entered in the terms in which it is found, and the court must give judgment of acquittal. But no judgment of conviction can be given unless the jury expressly find against the defendant upon the issue, or judgment be given against him upon a special verdict.
SEC. 4470. [Verdict rendered: jury polled]—When a verdict is rendered, and before it is recorded, the jury may be polled on the requirement of either party; in which case they shall be severally asked whether it be their verdict, and if any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation. The right of a defendant in a criminal case to have the jury polled before their verdict is recorded is a substantial one, of which he cannot be deprived without his consent. The State v. Callahan et al., 55 Iowa, 394.

SEC. 4471. [If any juror disagrees.]—When the verdict is given, and is such as the court may receive, the clerk may immediately enter it in full upon the record, and must read it to the jury, and inquire of them whether it is their verdict. If any juror disagree, the facts must be entered upon the record, and the jury again sent out. But if no disagreement be expressed, the verdict is complete and the jury must be discharged from the case.

SEC. 4472. [If defense be insanity: jury instructed.]—If the defense be the insanity of the defendant, the jury must be instructed, if they acquit him on that ground, to state that fact in their verdict. The court may thereupon, if the defendant be in custody, and his discharge is deemed dangerous to the public peace and safety, order him to be committed to the Iowa insane hospital, or retained in custody until he becomes sane.

SEC. 4473. [Defendant discharged.]—If judgment of acquittal be given on a general verdict, and the defendant be not detained for any other legal cause, he must be discharged as soon as the judgment is given.

SPECIAL VERDICT.

SEC. 4474. [Special verdict defined.]—A special verdict is that by which the jury finds the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. It must present the conclusions of fact as established by the evidence and not the evidence to prove them, and these conclusion of fact must be so presented as that nothing remains to the court but to draw conclusions of law upon them.

SEC. 4475. [Same.]—The special verdict must be reduced to writing by the jury or in their presence, entered upon the minutes of the court, read to the jury and agreed to by them, before they are discharged.

SEC. 4476. [Same.]—The special verdict need not be in any particular form, but shall be sufficient if it present intelligibly the facts found by the jury.

SEC. 4477. [Judgment upon.]—The court must give judgment upon the special verdict as follows:

1. If the plea be not guilty and the facts prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged in the indictment, or of any other offense of which he could be convicted in law under that indictment, judgment shall be given accordingly. But if the facts found do not prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged, or of any offense of which he could be so convicted under the indictment, judgment of acquittal must be rendered;

2. If the plea be a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense, the court must give judgment of conviction or acquittal according as the facts prove or fail to prove the former conviction or acquittal.

The judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal proceeding instituted by the procurement of the defendants, in which their conviction or acquittal is secured by fraud or collusion, may be appealed to the appellate court, or disregarded and treated as void. It is no bar to other proceedings against the same defendants for the same offense. The State v. Green and Mann, 16 Iowa, 239.

SEC. 4478. [Verdict insufficient.]—If the jury do not, in a special verdict, pronounce affirmatively or negatively on the facts necessary to enable the court to give judgment, or if they find the evidence of facts merely, and not the conclusions of fact from the evidence as established to their satisfaction, the court may order them to retire for further deliberation.

CHAPTER 30.

OF BILLS OF EXCEPTION.

SECTION 4479. [Exceptions.]
On the trial of an indictment, exceptions may be taken by the state or by the defendant, to any decision of the court upon matters of law, in any of the following cases:

1. In disallowing a challenge to an individual juror;
2. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence, on the trial of any challenge;
3. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence, or in deciding any matter of law, not purely discretionary, on the trial of the issue.

SEC. 4480. [How to be construed.]
Nothing herein contained is to be construed so as to deprive either party of the right of excepting to any action or decision of the court which affects any other material or substantial right of either party, whether before or after the trial of the indictment, or on such trial.

SEC. 4481. [Office of bill of exceptions.]
The office of a bill of exceptions is to make a part of the proceedings or evidence appear of record which would not otherwise so appear.

Where the certificate of the judge shows the rulings made during the trial, and states that the same were duly excepted to, such certificate is a sufficient compliance with the statute respecting bills of exceptions.

SEC. 4482. [Papers deemed part of record.]
All papers pertaining to the cause and filed with the clerk, and all entries made by the clerk in the record book pertaining to them, and showing the action or decision of the court upon them, or any part of them, are to be deemed parts of the record, and it is not necessary to except to any action or decision of the court so appearing of record.

SEC. 4483. [Either party may except to decision.]
Either party may allege an exception to any decision or action of the court, on any application of either party, which may be, and is made orally to the court, in any stage of the proceedings upon which the decision or action of the court is not required to be, and is not entered in the record book, and reduce the same to writing, and tender the same to the judge, whose duty it is to sign it; and if he sign the same, it shall be filed with the clerk and thereupon become a part of the record of the cause; but if the judge refuse to sign it, such refusal must be stated at the end thereof; and it may then be signed by two or more attorneys or officers of the court, or disinterested bystanders, and sworn to by the persons so signing the same, and filed with the clerk, and it shall thereupon become a part of the record of the cause.

SEC. 4484. [Time allowed to examine.]
The judge shall be allowed one clear day to examine the bill of exceptions, and the party excepting shall be allowed three clear days thereafter to procure the signatures and file the same.

SEC. 4485. [May be modified.]
If the judge and the party excepting can agree in modifying the bill of exceptions, it shall be modified accordingly.

SEC. 4486. [Time allowed to prepare.]
Time must be given to prepare the bill of exceptions when it is necessary. When it can be reasonably done, it shall be settled at the time of taking the exception.

In criminal as well as in civil actions the evidence, in order to be used in the appellate court must be preserved by bill of exceptions, or certificate of the trial judge, made at the trial term or within the time then fixed therefor by the court, and a judge's certificate or bill of exceptions signed after such time will not be considered by the supreme court. The State v. Newcomb, 56 Iowa, 345.
CHAPTER 31.

OF NEW TRIAL.

SECTION 4487. [Definition.]—A new trial is a re-examination of the issue in the same court before another jury, after a verdict has been given.

SEC. 4488. [Effect.]—The granting of a new trial places the parties in the same position as if no trial had been had. All the testimony must be produced anew, and the former verdict cannot be used or referred to either in the evidence or in argument.

Where the district attorney, while addressing the jury, said: "He has been tried twice in this court by a jury of twelve men. Forty men have tried this defendant on this charge and have found him guilty." Held prejudicial error under the provisions of this section. State v. Clouser, 33 N. W. 686. See, also, State v. Dow, 37 Id., 114.

SEC. 4489. [ Causes for. ]—The court may grant a new trial for the following causes, or any of them:
1. When the trial has been had in the absence of the defendant, if the indictment be for a felony;
2. When the jury has received any evidence, paper, or document out of court not authorized by the court;
3. When the jury have separated without leave of the court, after retiring to deliberate upon their verdict, or have been guilty of any misconduct tending to prevent a fair and due consideration of the case;
4. When the verdict has been decided by lot, or by means other than a fair expression of opinion on the part of all the jurors;
5. When the court has misdirected the jury in a material matter of law;
6. When the verdict is contrary to law or evidence. But no more than two new trials shall be granted for this cause alone;
7. When the court has refused properly to instruct the jury;
8. When from any other cause the defendant has not received a fair and impartial trial.

That one of the jurors left the room where they were considering a criminal case, for a proper purpose, in charge of the deputy sheriff, with whom he had no conversation about the case, did not justify the granting of a new trial. State v. Bowman, 45 Iowa, 418.

An objection to the grand jury comes too late in a motion for a new trial. It should, at least, be made before pleading to the indictment. The State v. Reid, 20 Id., 413, 424, citing The State v. Ingalls & King, 17 Id., 8; The State v. Howard & Cress, 10 Id., 101; The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435.

While it is better that the defendant should be present, when a motion for a new trial in a criminal case is made and passed upon by the court, it is not clear that it is necessary, and where the defendant objected to judgment on that ground, and the court offered to again consider and hear a re-argument of the motion, it was held that there was no error to the prejudice of the defendants. The State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 448.

When the admission or absence of evidence would not have controlled the verdict, and the verdict is sustained by the clear and conclusive nature of the evidence properly admitted, the supreme court will hesitate before reversing a judgment on the ground that such evidence was improperly admitted. The State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94.

A new trial should be ordered where the verdict on the trial of a criminal case fails to pronounce affirmatively or negatively on all facts necessary to enable the court to give judgment; and where no order has been made that the jury retire for further deliberation, the defendant is not entitled to a discharge, but the court should set the verdict aside and order a new trial. The State v. Arthur, 21 Id., 322; The State v. Turner, 19 Id., 144. See, also, The State v. Redman, 17 Id., 329.

The admission of that which could have worked no prejudice to the defendant is not ground for a new trial. The State v. Shean, 32 Id., 88.

The refusal of the court below to sustain an objection to an improper question propounded to a witness, is no ground of reversal if the objecting party was not prejudiced thereby. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 308.

Where a verdict of guilty was rendered upon proof of the stolen property being found in the possession of the defendant, notwithstanding an alibi was testified to by several witnesses, whose testimony no attempt was made to impeach or contradict, a new trial was granted. The State v. Woolsey, 30 Id., 251.

Where the evidence on the part of the state in a criminal prosecution is insufficient to support a verdict of guilty, the supreme court will not hesitate to grant a new trial. The State v. Moffitt, 31 Id., 316; The State v. Hilton & Gordon, 22 Id., 241; The State v. May 29 Id., 365.

In a criminal trial for a high offense, where the case is complicated, it is the duty of the district court trying the cause, whether requested or not by counsel, to point out to the jury the controverted questions of fact, and to see that the law applicable thereto is given to the jury in proper instructions. And where this is not done, and it is doubtful whether the verdict against the defendant effectuates justice, a new trial will be awarded. The State v. Brainard, 25 Id., 572.

The giving of erroneous instructions to the jury will not be sufficient ground for a new trial if the evidence with the law given will sustain the verdict. The State v. Cooster, 10 Id., 453.

The refusal of the court to give instructions which are unobjectionable, will not justify a reversal of the judgment when the record does not contain all the instructions given to the jury. The State v. Johnson, 19 Id., 229.

A defendant will not be concluded by an erroneous assumption by his own counsel which resulted to his prejudice, but a new trial will not be ordered when it is apparent from the record that such an assumption did not operate to his prejudice. State v. Turner, 19 Id., 144.

When, from a view of all the equitable circumstances, it is evident that the defendant in a criminal case, without fault on his part, has not had a full and impartial trial, a new trial will be ordered, although no one of those circumstances amount to error in law. Trulock v. The State, 1 Id., 515. See, also, State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; State v. Collins, 20 Id., 85.

Greater latitude is allowed to the party asking a new trial in a criminal than in a civil case; and all the reasons that apply in favor of an interference with the verdict in a civil case apply with still greater force in criminal trials. State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72; State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401.

A motion for a new trial, on the ground that the jurors had, during their retirement, read the notes of the testimony as taken by one of the attorneys on the trial, was properly overruled. State v. Acoca, 11 Id., 246.

When a juror, after returning to consider upon the verdict, left the jury room in charge of the sheriff and went to a grocery store, where he drank a glass of ale or lager beer, and then returned to the jury room and participated in finding the verdict; held, that the misconduct of the juror was sufficient ground to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial. State v. Baldy, 17 Id., 39; Bryan v. Harrow, 27 Id., 404.

Where a juror, during the progress of a trial, used intoxicating liquor combined with curative agents, as a medicine, without medical advice, will not vitiate the verdict, in the absence of a showing that it was so used without the knowledge of the defendant or his attorney, or that its effects were intoxicating. State v. Morphy, 33 Id., 270.

Where a motion for a new trial is based upon the ground that one of the jurors, previous to the trial, had formed and expressed an unqualified opinion that the defendant was guilty of the offense charged, it must be made to appear of record that the juror was examined on oath as to whether he had formed or expressed such opinion, and if it be not thus shown, there is no ground for a new trial. State v. Shelley, 8 Id., 477. See, also, State v. Funk, 17 Id., 655.

In such case, the affidavit of the defendant, or a recital in the record that “the juror was impeached and sworn,” will not be sufficient to show that they were examined under oath as to whether they had formed or expressed an unqualified opinion as to the defendant’s guilt. Id.

The supreme court may review an order of the district court granting or denying a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, but it will interfere only when it is made manifest that the discretion vested in the district court has been abused. State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; State v. Lyon, 10 Id., 340; State v. Funk, 17 Id., 365; State v. Stoker, 22 Id., 52; State v. Polson, 29 Id., 133; State v. Collins, 24 Id., 85.

A new trial will be granted in a criminal case where the verdict is against the weight of the evidence, and in the consideration of the evidence greater latitude is allowed than would be countenanced in civil cases. State v. Tomlinson, 11 Id., 401; State v. Brainard, 29 Id., 572; State v. Woolsey, 30 Id., 251; State v. Elliott, 15 Id., 72.

An instruction, which, when considered alone, would be erroneous, will not be sufficient ground of reversal, if when taken in connection with the other instruction it would have worked no prejudice to the defendant. The State v. Johnson, 8 Id., 525; The State v. Funk, 10 Id., 19.

On the hearing of a motion for a new trial in a criminal case, an affidavit of one of the jurors, that the verdict was never assented to by him, is not admissible. The State v. Douglass, 7 Id., 418.

Jurors cannot be compelled to make affidavits showing that the jury disregarded or refused to consider the instructions of the court; nor can their declarations be received to prove such facts. Grady v. The State, 4 Id., 461.

The supreme court, in reviewing the judgment of the court below, as to the sufficiency of the evidence, will give much weight to the fact that the judgment is sustained by two different verdicts rendered by different juries upon different trials of the same cause. The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66; Jourdan v. Reed, 1 Id., 135.

Where the accused has been convicted on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, a new trial should be granted. Hay v. The State, 1 G. Greene, 316.

A proceeding by information for the condemnation of intoxicating liquors, kept for illegal sale, is in its nature a criminal one, and after trial in the district court on appeal it is error to sustain a motion by the state for a new trial. The State v. Certain Intoxicating Liquors, etc., 40 Id., 95.

Sec. 4490. [Application: when made.]—The application for a new trial can be made only by the defendant, and must be made before judgment.

---

CHAPTER 32.

OF ARREST OF JUDGMENT.

Section 4491. [Grounds of.]—A motion in arrest of judgment, is an application to the court in which the trial was had, on the part of the defendant, that no judgment be rendered upon a verdict against him, or on a plea of guilty, and shall be granted:

1. Upon any ground which would have been ground for demurrer;
2. When upon the whole record no legal judgment can be pronounced. If an indictment is not vulnerable to a demurrer, it cannot be assailed by motion in arrest of judgment. The State v. Deitrick, 51 Iowa, 467, 473.

Sec. 4492. [On motion of court.]—The court may also, upon its own observation of any of these grounds, arrest the judgment on its own motion.

Sec. 4493. [Defendant held to answer.]—If the court is of opinion from the evidence on the trial that the defendant is guilty of a public offense, of which no legal conviction can be had on the indictment, he may be held to answer the offense in like manner as upon a preliminary examination.

Sec. 4494. [When motion made.]—The motion may be made at any time before judgment, or after judgment, during the same term.

See notes under section 4489, on new trial.

---

CHAPTER 33.

ON JUDGMENT.

Section 4495. [When rendered.]—Upon a verdict of not guilty for the defendant, or special verdict upon which a judgment of acquittal must be given, the court must render judgment of acquittal immediately.

Sec. 4496. [Time when judgment may be pronounced.]—Upon a plea of guilty, upon a verdict of guilty or a special verdict, upon which a judgment of conviction must be rendered, the court must fix a time for pronouncing judgment. The time appointed for pronouncing judgment must be at least three clear days after the verdict is rendered, if the court remain in session so long, or if not, as remote a time as can reasonably be allowed, but in no case can the judgment be pronounced in less than six hours after the verdict is rendered.

The fact that no time was fixed for pronouncing judgment was held not prejudicial error where the judgment was not pronounced until a succeeding term, after a plea of guilty had been entered. The State v. Stevens, 47 Iowa, 276.
The failure to render judgment for the payment of a fine until the next term after the one when the defendant was convicted, was held not erroneous. The State v. Hay, 50 Iowa, 520.

Where the record shows that a judgment was rendered upon a verdict of guilty, in less than three days after the verdict was returned by the jury, and that the court continued in session for more than that time, the supreme court will, unless all presumptions of prejudice are clearly rebutted, remand the cause, not for a new trial, but for judgment on the verdict. The State v. Watrous, 13 Id., 429.

But where the record shows that judgment was rendered in less than three clear days after verdict, but is silent as to when the court adjourned, it will be presumed that the sentence was deferred as the law required. The State v. Wood, 17 Id., 18.

Sec. 4497. [For felony: defendant present. — For the purpose of judgment, if the conviction be for a felony, the defendant must be personally present; if it be for misdemeanor, judgment may be pronounced in his absence.]

Where a defendant was convicted of an assault and battery, it was held, that judgment might be rendered against him in his absence. Hughes v. State, 4 Iowa, 554.

Where it is better that the defendant should be present when a motion for a new trial, in a case of felony, is made and passed upon by the court, it is not clear that it is necessary. State v. Decklotts, 19 Id., 447.

Although judgment for a misdemeanor may be pronounced in the absence of the defendant, yet where the judgment is of a fine, and imprisonment in default of the payment thereof, and the defendant is not present to submit to the imprisonment in case of such default, the court may then rightly declare a forfeiture of his recognizance for appearance. State v. Howorth, 70 Id., 157.

Sec. 4498. [When defendant is out on bail. — If the the defendant has been discharged on bail, or has deposited money instead thereof, and does not appear for judgment when his personal appearance is necessary, the court, in addition to the forfeiture of the undertaking of bail, or money deposited may make an order directing the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest.]

Sec. 4499. [Bench warrant. — The clerk, on the application of the district attorney, may, accordingly, at any time after the order, whether the court be in session or not, issue a bench warrant into one or more counties for his arrest.]

Sec. 4500. [Form of. — The bench warrant may be substantially in the following from.]

COUNTY OF...............

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To any Peace Officer in the State:

A. B. having been duly convicted on the......day of.............., A. D. 18..., in the district court of........county, of the crime of (here designate it generally, as in the indictment).

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to arrest the said A. B. and bring him before said court for judgment, if it be then in session, or if it be not then in session, you deliver him into the custody of the sheriff of said county.

[SEAL.] Given under my hand and the seal of said court, at my office in ........., in said county, this .... day of............, A. D. 18...

By order of the court. ............ , Clerk.

Sec. 4501. [Service. — The bench warrant may be served in any county in the state.

Sec. 4502. [Same. — Whether the bench warrant be served in the county where it was issued, or in another county, the officer must arrest the defendant and bring him before the court, or commit him to the officer mentioned in the warrant according to the command thereof.

Sec. 4503. [Judgment. — Where the defendant appears for judgment, he shall be informed by the court, or by the clerk under its direction, of the nature of the indictment and of his plea, and the verdict, if any thereon, and must be asked whether he have any legal cause to show why judgment should not be pronounced against him.

When the record is silent, the supreme court will presume that in pronouncing sentence after verdict, the district court observed the directions of this section. State v. Wood, 17 Iowa, 18; State v. Wells, 46 Id., 662, 666.

SEC. 4504. [Same.]—He may show for cause against the judgment, that he is insane, or any sufficient ground for a new trial, or in arrest of judgment.

SEC. 4505. [Insanity: how determined.]—If the court is of opinion, that there is reasonable ground for believing him insane, the question of his insanity shall be determined as provided in this code, and if he is found to be insane, such proceedings shall be had as are herein directed.

SEC. 4506. [New trial.]—If he move for a new trial, or in arrest of judgment, the court shall defer the judgment, and proceed to hear and decide the motions.

SEC. 4507. [Rendition of judgment.]—If no sufficient cause be alleged or appear to the court why judgment should not be pronounced, it shall thereupon he rendered.

SEC. 4508. [When convicted of two or more offenses.]—If the defendant is convicted of two or more offenses, before judgment on either, the punishment of each of which is, or may be, imprisonment, the judgment may be so rendered that the imprisonment upon any one shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment upon any other of the offenses.

When a party arraigned under two indictments pleaded guilty upon both and was sentenced upon each to one year in the penitentiary, and it was not provided in either judgment which term of imprisonment should first commence nor that one term should commence at the expiration of the other, but the mittimus in the case in which judgment was last entered, provided that the term of imprisonment in that case should commence at the expiration of the first, held that both terms would not run concurrently, but one should commence at the expiration of the other. McMillen, 51 Iowa, 240.

SEC. 4509. [Fine: how satisfied.]—A judgment that the defendant pay a fine may also direct that he be imprisoned until the fine be satisfied, specifying the extent of the imprisonment, which shall not exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine.

Where a defendant, sentenced to imprisonment in default of the payment of a fine entered against him in a criminal case, substantially complied with sections 4509 and 5005 of the revision (sections 4509 and 4611, code), by suffering imprisonment for the time provided and executing his note to the treasurer as therein required, it was held, that he was not only entitled to his discharge from custody, but to have the judgment against him satisfied. The State v. Van Fleet, 23 Iowa, 168.

Under this section the power of the court to direct the imprisonment of the defendant until the fine is satisfied does not extend to the costs incurred in the case. Hence a payment of the fine, while it is sufficient to entitle the defendant to his discharge from custody, does not operate to release him from the costs adjudged against him in the case. State v. Gray, 35 Id., 503.

A defendant committed for the non-payment of a fine under section 4692 of the code, may be lawfully imprisoned, under section 4509, until the fine is paid, but the power of the court to imprison is limited under the latter section to one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine, and the defendant is entitled to no credit on the fine therefor. But if he is sentenced to labor under section 4738 of the code, he is entitled to a credit of one dollar and a half a day on the judgment. A sentence of imprisonment until the fine and costs are paid by labor at one dollar and a half a day is erroneous. State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

A defendant sentenced to pay a fine can only be ordered to be imprisoned for a term of which the number of days shall be equal to one for every three and one-third dollars of the fine; and if sentenced at hard labor, he will be entitled to a credit upon the judgment of one dollar and a half for each day’s labor. State v. Anwerda, 40 Id., 151; State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 357; The City of Keokuk v. Dressell, 47 Id., 597.

The payment of a fine assessed against a defendant in a criminal case does not discharge him from the costs adjudged against him. Gray v. Ferreby, 36 Id., 146; following State v. Gray, 35 Id., 503.

A judgment that the defendant pay a fine and stand committed until it is satisfied, should specify the extent of the imprisonment, which cannot exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine. State v. Myers, 44 Id., 580.

Authority to imprison for the non-payment of costs not being expressly given by statute, will not be inferred, and a court therefore cannot sentence a defendant to stand committed until a fine and costs are paid. State v. Erwin, 44 Id., 657; State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387.

A person convicted of a crime and adjudged to pay a fine, and in default thereof to be imprisoned for a time named, cannot, after being imprisoned, pay a portion of the fine, and then demand that his term of imprisonment shall be reduced pro tanto; but he must serve for the whole term, unless the whole fine is sooner paid. Galles v. Wilcox, 68 Id., 664.

SEC. 4510. [Committed to jail of another county.]—When any person is, in any event, to be committed to jail, if there be no jail or no sufficient one in the county where the party would be committed under the ordinary provisions of law, the court or magistrate committing may order him to be committed to the jail of some other county, which shall be the one which is most convenient and safe, and the county to which the cause originally belonged shall be holden for all the expenses thereof.

Where the judgment in a criminal case, rendered in the Marshall district court, ordered that the defendant be confined in the Polk county jail for the term of imprisonment specified, and the record did not show that there was a sufficient jail in the county where the judgment was rendered, the presumption was in favor of the regularity of the proceeding of the court below, and the supreme court would not say there was error in directing the imprisonment in a different county. Hughes v. The State, 4 Iowa, 554.

SEC. 4511. [Appeal.]—In all cases, except murder in the first degree, the court rendering judgment must make an order fixing the amount in which bail must be taken, and there shall be no execution of the judgment until such order be made.

Where the district court, on rendering judgment of imprisonment for grand larceny, failed to fix the amount of bail as required by this section, the defendant was entitled to have the omission corrected, but he was not, on habeas corpus, entitled to be discharged from imprisonment on account of the omission. Murphy v. McMillen, 59 Iowa, 515.

CHAPTER 34.

OF EXECUTION.

SECTION 4512. [Copy of judgment furnished officer.]—When a judgment of imprisonment, either in the penitentiary or county jail is pronounced, a certified copy of the entry thereof in the record book, must be forthwith furnished to the officer whose duty it is to execute the same, who shall proceed and execute it accordingly, and no other warrant or authority is necessary to justify or require its execution.

SEC. 4513. [Commitment of defendant.]—If the judgment be imprisonment, or fine and imprisonment until it be satisfied, the defendant must forthwith be committed to the custody of the proper officer, and by him detained until the judgment be complied with or the defendant discharged by due course of law.

SEC. 4514. [By whom executed.]—When the judgment is imprisonment in the county jail of the county in which the trial is had, or a fine and that the defendant be imprisoned in such county jail until it be satisfied, the judgment must be executed by the sheriff of that county. In all other cases, when the judgment is imprisonment, the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had, must deliver the defendant to the proper officer in execution of the judgment.

SEC. 4515. [Same.]—If the judgment be imprisonment, or a fine and imprisonment until it be satisfied, in the county jail of the county in which the trial was had, the sheriff of the county in which the trial was had shall deliver a certified copy of the entry of the judgment, together with the body of the defendant, to the keeper of the jail or prison in which the defendant is to be imprisoned, and take his receipt therefor on a duplicate copy of such entry, which he must forthwith return to the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, with his return thereon.
SECTION 4516. [Officer’s authority in committing.]—The sheriff, or his deputy, while conveying the defendant to the proper prison, has the same authority to require the assistance of any citizen of the state in securing the defendant, and retaking him if he escape, as if the sheriff were in his own county; and every person who neglects or refuses to assist the sheriff when so required shall be punishable as if the sheriff were in his own county.

SECTION 4517. [Return.]—An officer executing a judgment of imprisonment shall make a written return of the execution of such judgment forthwith after such execution, and file the same with the clerk of the court, by which the judgment was rendered.

SECTION 4518. [Execution for fine.]—Upon a judgment for a fine, a writ of execution may be issued as upon a judgment in a civil case.

SECTION 4519. [How judgment for abatement of nuisance enforced.]—When the judgment is for the abatement or removal of a nuisance, or for anything other than the payment of money by the defendant, a certified copy of the entry of such judgment, delivered to the sheriff of the proper county, shall authorize and require him to execute such judgment, and he shall return the same with his doings under the same thereon indorsed to the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered within seventy days after the date of the certificate of such certified copy, unless it be a judgment of imprisonment, which is hereinbefore provided for.

See note to section 4093, from Sloan v. Rebman, 66 Iowa, 81.

CHAPTER 35.
OF APPEALS.

SECTION 4520. [In criminal cases.]—The mode of reviewing in the supreme court any judgment, action, or decision of the district court in a criminal case, is by an appeal.

SECTION 4521. [Who may.]—Either the defendant or the state may take an appeal.

If the state appeals in a criminal case, the supreme court cannot reverse the judgment of the district court so that another trial may be had, but it may point out any errors in the proceedings or the measure of punishment. The effect of the decision is nothing more than an authoritative exposition of the law, to be followed by the inferior courts in other cases. State v. Kinney, 44 Iowa, 444.

SECTION 4522. [When taken.]—No appeal can be taken until after judgment, and then only within one year thereafter.

In The State v. Brandt, 41 Iowa, 593, 639, it was held, by a majority of the court, that whenever the decision of a motion or demurrer involves the merits or the legality of the proceedings in a criminal case, an appeal may be taken therefrom before final judgment is rendered. This point was overruled in The State v. Svearengen, 43 Id., 336, in which it was held that an appeal does not lie from an intermediate decision upon a demurrer to the indictment, but can only be taken from a final judgment. The same ruling was followed in The State v. Davis, 47 Id., 634.

A criminal cause cannot be appealed to the supreme court after the expiration of one year from the rendition of the judgment complained of. The consent of the attorney for the state cannot confer jurisdiction after that time. State v. Fleming, 13 Id., 443.

The right of appeal is waived by a defendant voluntarily paying the fine adjudged against him in a criminal cause. State v. Westfall, 37 Id., 575.

The abstract fails to show that a judgment was rendered in the court below, from which an appeal was taken to the supreme court, the appellate court has no jurisdiction, and the appeal must be dismissed. State v. Wheeler, 65 Id., 619.

SECTION 4523. [How taken.]—An appeal is taken by the party taking it, or the attorney of such party, serving on the adverse party, or the attorney of the adverse party who acted as attorney of record in the district court at the time of the rendition of the judgment, and also on the clerk of the district court by which the judgment was rendered, a notice in writing of the taking of the appeal from the judgment.

Sec. 4524. [When deemed taken.]—The appeal is deemed to be taken when the notices thereof, required by the last section, are filed in the office of the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, with evidence of the service thereof indorsed thereon, or annexed thereto.

Sec. 4525. [Transcript: duty of clerk.]—When an appeal is taken, it is the duty of the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered, without unnecessary delay, to make out a full and perfect transcript of all papers in the case on file in his office, except the papers returned by the examining magistrate on the preliminary examination, where there has been one, and of all entries made in the record book, and certify the same under his hand and the seal of the court, and transmit the same to the clerk of the supreme court.

Sec. 4526. [Several defendants may join.]—When several defendants are indicted and tried jointly, any one or more of them may join in taking the appeal, but those of their co-defendants who do not join shall take no benefit therefrom, yet they may appeal afterward.

Sec. 4527. [Effect by state.]—An appeal taken by the state, in no case, stays the operation of a judgment in favor of the defendant.

Sec. 4528. [By defendant.]—An appeal taken by the defendant does not stay the execution of the judgment unless bail be put in, except as provided in the next section.

Sec. 4529. [Defendant detained in custody.]—Where the judgment is imprisonment in the penitentiary, and an appeal is taken during the term at which the judgment is rendered, and the defendant is unable to give bail, and that fact is satisfactorily shown to the court, it may, in its discretion, order the sheriff or officer having the defendant in custody, to detain him in custody, without taking him to the penitentiary, to abide the judgment on the appeal, if the defendant desire it.

Sec. 4530. [Bail: proceedings, when given.]—When an appeal is taken by the defendant and bail is put in, it is the duty of the clerk to give forthwith to the defendant, his agent or attorney, a certificate under his hand and the seal of the court, stating that an appeal has been taken and bail put in, and the sheriff or other officer having the defendant in custody, must, upon the delivery of such certificate to him, discharge the defendant from custody where imprisonment forms any part of the judgment, and cease all further proceedings in execution of the judgment, and return forthwith to the clerk of the court who issued it, the execution or certified copy of the entry of judgment under which he acted, with his return thereon, if such execution or certified copy has been issued, and if such execution or certified copy has not been issued, it shall not be issued, but shall abide the judgment on the appeal.

Sec. 4531. [Appellant: appellee.]—The party taking the appeal is known as the appellant, the adverse party as the appellee, but the title of action shall not be changed in consequence of the appeal; it shall be docketed in the supreme court as it was in the district court.

Sec. 4532. [How docketed: have precedence over other cases.]—Appeals, in criminal cases, shall be docketed in the supreme court for trial at the commencement of that portion of the term which has been assigned for trying causes from the judicial district from which the appeal comes. They shall take precedence of all other business, and shall be tried at the term at which the transcript is filed, unless continued for cause, or by consent of the parties, and shall be decided, if practicable, at the same term.
TBIAL OF THE APPEAL.

SEC. 4533. [Appeal of defendant.]—The personal appearance of the defendant in the supreme court on the trial of the appeal, is in no case necessary.

SEC. 4534. [Not dismissed for informality.]—An appeal shall not be dismissed for any informality or defect in taking the appeal, if the same be corrected in a reasonable time, and the supreme court must direct how it shall be corrected.

SEC. 4535. [Assignment of error.]—No assignment of error, or joinder in error, shall be necessary.

SEC. 4536. [Argument.]—The defendant shall be entitled to close the argument.

SEC. 4537. [Opinion.]—The opinion of the supreme court must be in writing, filed with its clerk and recorded.

SEC. 4538. [When appeal is taken by defendant.]—If the appeal was taken by the defendant from a judgment against him, the supreme court must examine the record, and, without regard to technical errors or defects which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, render such judgment on the record as the law demands. It may affirm, reverse, or modify such judgment as the district court should have rendered, and may, if necessary or proper, order a new trial. It may reduce the punishment, but cannot increase it.

Although the defendant has failed to file an assignment of errors, or furnish any brief or argument, the supreme court is required to examine the record, and, without regard to technical errors or defects, which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, render such judgment on the record as the law demands. The State v. McKinzie, 18 Iowa, 578; Same v. Thompson, 19 Id., 299, 301; Same v. Mercer, Id., 570; Same v. Decklott, Id., 447, 452; Same v. Brandt, 41 Id., 583, 600; Same v. Potter, 25 Id., 594; Same v. Smith, Id., 565, 567; Same v. Mechemer, 46 Id., 88, 93.

The supreme court will disregard technical errors and refuse to reverse a judgment which is otherwise fair and unexceptionable on the merits. The State v. Knight, 19 Id., 94, 102; Same v. Raymond, 20 Id., 582, 585; Same v. Felter, 25 Id., 67, 71.

The supreme court will not reverse a decision of the district court overruling a motion to quash an indictment upon objections to the manner in which the grand jury was selected, when such objections are purely technical, and do not affect the substantial rights of the parties. The State v. Carney et al., 20 Id., 82; Same v. Ansaleme, 15 Id., 44; Same v. Brandt, 41 Id., 583, 600.

While the supreme court has, by this section, authority to modify the penalties and reduce the punishment imposed by the district court, it will not exercise that power when the evidence upon which that court acted is not in the record. State v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497.

This power of the supreme court to reduce the punishment in a criminal case, should be exercised only in cases where the district court has manifestly imposed too severe punishment—punishment disproportioned to the degree of guilt as shown by the evidence. The State v. Freeman, 27 Id., 533.

That the punishment inflicted by the court below is excessive is no ground for a reversal of the judgment, on appeal to the supreme court, but in such case that court may reduce the punishment as it may deem just and proper in the attainment of justice. The State v. Madden, 35 Id., 511, 512; Same v. Little, 42 Id., 54.

On an indictment for an assault with intent to kill, the defendant was convicted on evidence which was barely sufficient to support the verdict; the supreme court reduced the punishment from imprisonment in the penitentiary five years, to such imprisonment for one year. Id.

Although no errors are assigned, the supreme court will examine the record to see if there be error therein. The State v. Barlow, 50 Id., 701; Same v. Pratt, 20 Id., 267; Same v. Campbell, 50 Id., 695.

To justify the supreme court in reducing the fine adjudged by the district court, all the evidence given in the case must be embodied in the record. The State v. Harris, 36 Id., 208; Same v. Durston 52 Id., 635; Same v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497.

In the absence of an assignment of errors, or of an argument in a criminal case, it is the duty of the supreme court to examine the record and render such judgment upon it as the law demands. The court, however, is not required to imagine errors; and if, upon examination of the record, nothing is found that strikes the mind as erroneous, the court is required to simply announce that fact. The State v. Quinn, and other cases, 63 Id., 396.

This section does not require the supreme court to examine a transcript in a criminal case for the purpose of determining whether the verdict is supported by the evidence, or as to alleged errors in the instructions, where the defendant is represented by counsel, and has made no appli-
The supreme court is not required to reverse a judgment of the district court for mere technical errors or defects in its proceedings which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties. The State v. Day, 58 Id., 678.

Sec. 4539. [By state.]—If the appeal was taken by the state, the supreme court cannot reverse the judgment, or modify it so as to increase the punishment, but may affirm it, and shall point out any error in the proceedings, or in the measure of punishment, and its decision shall be obligatory on the district court, as the correct exposition of the law.

See note to section 4521. A prosecution under a city ordinance enacted in pursuance of a state statute, the violation of which is punishable by fine and imprisonment, is a criminal proceeding and an acquittal on appeal in the district court is an end to the defendant's liability. State v. Vail, 57 Id., 103.

Sec. 4540. [When judgment against defendant reversed.]—If a judgment against the defendant be reversed without ordering a new trial, the supreme court must direct, if the defendant be in custody, that he be discharged, or if he be admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if money be deposited instead of bail, that it be refunded to him.

Sec. 4541. [If affirmed.]—On a judgment of affirmance against the defendant, the original judgment shall be carried into execution as the supreme court shall direct, except as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 4542. [Recorded and transmitted to court below.]—When a judgment of the supreme court is rendered it must be recorded, and a certified copy of the judgment must be forthwith remitted to the clerk of the district court in which the judgment appealed from was rendered, with proper instructions and a copy of the opinion, in such time, and in such manner, as the supreme court may, by rule, prescribe.

Where a judgment of conviction in a criminal case is reversed by the supreme court, and the cause remanded for a re-trial, it cannot be urged that a conviction on the second trial is illegal, on the ground that at the time thereof, no opinion, order, or procedendo of the supreme court had been transmitted therefrom to the court below, wherein the defendant was tried. The State v. Knouse, 33 Iowa, 365.

Sec. 4543. [Same.]—After the certified copy of the entry of the judgment of the supreme court, and its instructions, have been remitted as provided in the preceding section, the supreme court has no farther jurisdiction of the proceedings therein and all proceedings which may be necessary to carry the judgment of the supreme court into effect, must be had in the court to which it is remitted, or by the clerk thereof, except as provided in the next two sections.

Sec. 4544. [Same.]—Unless where some proceedings in the district court are directed by the supreme court, a copy of the certified copy of the judgment of the supreme court, with its directions, certified by the clerk of the district court to whom the same has been transmitted, delivered to the sheriff, or other proper officer, shall authorize him to execute the judgment of the supreme court, or take any steps to bring the proceeding to a conclusion, except as provided in the next section.

Sec. 4545. [Time of imprisonment deducted.]—If a defendant, who has been imprisoned during the pendency of an appeal, upon a new trial ordered by the supreme court shall be again convicted, the period of his former imprisonment shall be deducted by the district court from the period of imprisonment to be fixed on the last verdict of conviction.

The district court is not required to inflict the same punishment on a second conviction as on the first one, after the first one has been reversed on appeal; and in the absence of a contrary show-
CHAPTER 36.

OF IMPEACHMENT.

SECTION 4546. [Form of.]—An impeachment is the written accusation of a state officer by the house of representatives before the senate, of any misdemeanor or malfeasance in office.

SEC. 4547. [By whom found.]—A majority of all the members of the house of representatives elected must concur in an impeachment.

SEC. 4548. [Requisites.]—The impeachment must specify the offenses charged with the same precision as is requisite in an indictment, and the accused must be allowed counsel as in cases of other prosecution.

SEC. 4549. [How stated.]—If the impeachment charge more than one misdemeanor or act of malfeasance, they shall be stated separately and distinctly.

SEC. 4550. [Senate.]—When possessed of an impeachment, the senate must forthwith cause the person accused to be brought before it.

SEC. 4551. [Process.]—All writs and process must be issued by the secretary of the senate, and tested in his name, and may be served by any person thereto authorized by the senate or president.

SEC. 4552. [Answer.]—Upon the appearance of the person impeached, he is entitled to a copy of the impeachment, and to a reasonable time in which to answer the same.

SEC. 4553. [Oath.]—Before proceeding to the trial, an oath, truly and impartially to try and determine the charge in question according to the evidence, shall be administered by the secretary of the senate to the president, and by him to each of the members of that body.

SEC. 4554. [Suspended.]—Every officer impeached shall be suspended from the exercise of his official duties until his acquittal.

SEC. 4555. [President of senate.]—If the president of the senate be impeached, notice thereof must be immediately given to the senate; which shall thereupon choose another president, to hold his office until the result of the trial is determined.

(Chapter 151, Laws of 1886.)

RELATING TO IMPEACHMENT.

An Act to prescribe certain powers and duties of the governor and senate sitting as a court in cases of impeachment.

SECTION 1. [Suspension shall be by the governor; shall appoint successor; rights and duties of appointee.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the suspension provided for by section 4554 of the code shall be effected by the governor, who shall forthwith appoint some suitable person to fill temporarily, the office, and such person having qualified as required by law, shall perform all the duties and enjoy all the rights to the said office belonging, until the removal of the suspension of his predecessor or the election of a successor.
Sec. 2. [Penalty for being found guilty.]—When any person impeached is found guilty, judgment shall thereupon be rendered for his removal from office, and his disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under this state, and such judgment shall have the effect of removing from office the person so found guilty.

Sec. 3. [Senate as a court of impeachment: power.]—When sitting as a court of impeachment the senate shall sit in the senate chamber in the capitol and shall have power to adjourn from time to time, to dissolve when its work is concluded and to compel obedience to its process and orders. Its process, including subpœnas, shall run into any part of the state, and may be served by the same officers when no person is authorized by the president or senate to serve the same, and shall have the same force and effect as subpœnas from district courts in criminal cases.

Sec. 4. [Force of same: further powers and privileges.]—The senate, while sitting as a court of impeachment shall have all the powers and privileges conferred upon each house of the general assembly by sections 14, 15 and 16 of the code, provided that imprisonment for contempt shall not extend beyond the dissolution of the court of impeachment.

Sec. 5. [Fees of witnesses.]—The same fees shall be allowed to witnesses and to officers and other persons serving process or orders as are allowed for like services in criminal cases, but no fees can be demanded in advance. Such fees shall be certified and paid as provided by section 8 of chapter 91 of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, for the payment of other expenses subject to the right of the court to disallow all fees and charges which it shall deem unreasonable or unnecessary.

Approved, April 10, 1886.

(Chapter 19, Laws of 1886.)

Amend chapter 36, title 25, code, relating to impeachment.

An Act to amend chapter thirty-six of title twenty-five of the code of Iowa, of 1873, in relation to impeachment, and the procedure thereunder.

Section 1. [House shall select a board of managers who shall present articles of impeachment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: When an impeachment of an officer is directed, the house of representatives shall elect from its own body seven members whose duty it shall be to prosecute such impeachment, and such members so elected shall, as a board of managers, be authorized and empowered to exhibit and present articles of impeachment in accordance with the resolutions of the house previously adopted.

Sec. 2. [Senate shall organize as a court of impeachment.]—Whenever an impeachment of an officer is directed, the Senate shall forthwith, after the hour of final adjournment of the legislature, be organized as a court for the trial of the same at the capitol of the state, and such organization shall be held and deemed to be perfected when the presiding officer of the senate and all the members thereof present shall have taken the oath or affirmation prescribed; and no member of the court shall sit in the trial, or give his vote upon such trial, until he shall have taken such oath or affirmation, which oath or affirmation shall be administered by the secretary of the senate to the presiding officer thereof, and by the presiding officer to each of the members of the senate. The senate sitting as a court upon the trial of an impeachment shall have the same power to compel the attendance of its members as when engaged in the ordinary business of legislation.
SEC. 3. [Code, section 4552 amended.]-That section 4552 of the code of 1873 be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto the following words; “and shall be allowed counsel as in the trial of ordinary cases.”

SEC. 4. [Secretary to keep record of proceedings: power to administer oaths.]-It shall be the duty of the secretary of the senate, in all cases of impeachment, to keep a full and accurate record of the proceedings, which shall be held and taken as a public record; and shall have power to administer all requisite oaths or affirmations.

SEC. 5. [Power to appoint necessary officers.]-The senate sitting as a court of impeachment shall have power from time to time to appoint such subordinate officers, clerks, and reporters as may be necessary for the convenient transaction of business, and may at any time remove such officers, or any of them.

SEC. 6. [Process for attendance of witnesses.]-The managers elected by the house of representatives and counsel for the person impeached shall severally be entitled to process for compelling the attendance of persons or the production of papers and records required for the trial of the impeachment.

SEC. 7. [May adopt rules.]-The senate sitting as a court of impeachment shall have full power and authority to establish such rules and regulations for the trial of the accused as may be necessary.

SEC. 8. The presiding officer and members of the senate, while sitting as a court of impeachment, and the managers elected by the house of representatives, shall receive the sum of six dollars each per day, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile in going from and returning to their places of residence, by the ordinary traveled routes; and the compensation of the secretary, sergeant-at-arms, and all subordinate officers, clerks and reporters, shall be such an amount as shall be determined upon by a vote of the members of such court. The state treasurer shall, upon presentation of a certificate or certificates signed by the presiding officer and secretary of the senate, pay all expenses of the senate, managers, officers, clerks and reporters which may be incurred under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 9. The provisions of this act shall apply to all resolutions and proceedings heretofore had or hereafter to be had in the impeachment of any civil officer of this state.

Approved April 8, 1886.

CHAPTER 37.

OF EVIDENCE.

SECTION 4556. (As amended by sec. 3, ch. 168, 17th g. a.) [Same as in civil cases.]-The rules of evidence prescribed in the civil part of this code, shall apply to criminal proceedings as far as applicable, and as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter.

The defendant on trial for a criminal offense, has a right to be confronted by the witnesses against him, and to see them face to face. The State v. Reidel, 26 Iowa, 430.

One co-defendant may testify for another jointly indicted with him for the same offense, when tried together the same as when tried separately. The State v. Gigher, 23 Id., 318; Same v. Stewart, 51 Id., 312.

SEC. 4557. In a prosecution against a railway company for obstructing a highway or any private way, proof that any such way is in an unsafe condition or that it is inconvenient for travel at the place of its intersection with such railway, shall be presumptive evidence that such company has obstructed such way.

Where one of two defendants, in a criminal cause, testifies on behalf of the other, he is liable to impeachment as a witness, under the same conditions as he would be if he were not himself upon trial. The State v. Hardin & Henry, 46 Iowa, 623.
Prior to the enactment of chapter 168, laws of 1878, a defendant in a criminal case was not a competent witness on his own behalf. The State v. Durrington, 47 Id., 318, 320; The State v. Loffer, 38 Id., 422; The State v. Bizzy, 39 Id., 465.

SEC. 4558. [Rape.]—Proof of actual penetration into the body is sufficient to sustain an indictment for rape.

An instruction defining the crime of rape in the language of the statute to the effect that the defendant must have ravished and carnally known the prosecutrix by force and against her will, but that proof of actual penetration was sufficient, held correct. Approved in The State v. Tarr, 38 Iowa, 397, 400.

SEC. 4559. [Accomplice.]—A conviction cannot be had upon the testimony of an accomplice, unless he be corroborated by such other evidence as shall tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense; and the corroboration is not sufficient if it merely show the commission of the offense or the circumstances thereof.

An accomplice cannot be corroborated in his testimony against the defendant, by the failure of the latter to introduce the testimony of witnesses present at the trial who, if the testimony of the accomplice had been false might have contradicted him. The State v. Hull, 26 Iowa, 292.

The defendant, in such case, has a right to stand upon the law, requiring the testimony of the accomplice, to be corroborated by "other evidence" and no basis for a presumption in favor of the testimony of the accomplice, can arise from the failure of the defendant to controvert it. Id.

The corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice to warrant a conviction, must not merely relate to the commission of the offense charged, or the circumstances thereof, but must tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the criminal act. The State v. Thornton, 26 Id., 79; Upton v. The State, 5 Id., 465, 521.

The fact that one has received stolen property from the thief, knowing the same to have been stolen, does not constitute such receiver an accomplice in a burglary by which the possession of the goods was obtained. The State v. Hayden, 49 Id., 11.

The corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice is not limited to the testimony of witnesses, but may be by circumstantial evidence. The State v. Stanley, 48 Id., 221.

It is not necessary that the testimony of an accomplice be corroborated as to every material fact to which he testifies; if corroborated as to some of such facts, the jury may believe that he speaks the truth as to all. The State v. Hennessy, 50 Id., 299; The State v. Allen, 51 Id., 431.

A conviction cannot be had on the testimony of an accomplice, unless it is corroborated by other testimony tending to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. But where there is such testimony, its sufficiency is for the jury to determine. The State v. Deitz, 67 Id., 220.

Where on a trial for robbery a witness testified that the defendant and himself committed the crime and that one S. was implicated in it, held, that this testimony was not enough to convict the defendant, without other evidence tending to connect him with the crime. State v. Mikesell, 70 Id., 176.

SEC. 4560. [Of females: on whom rape was perpetrated.]—The defendant in a prosecution for rape, or for enticing or taking away an unmarried female of previously chaste character for the purpose of prostitution, or aiding or assisting therein, or for seducing and debauching any unmarried woman of previously chaste character, cannot be convicted upon the testimony of the person injured, unless she be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense.

See, as to observations in respect to the corroborating evidence contemplated by the statute. Andre v. The State, 5 Iowa, 389; Upton v. State, 1d., 465.

The corroborative testimony required by the statute should be of a character to strengthen and corroborate the testimony of the injured person, and to point out the defendant as the person who committed the offense. Andre v. The State, supra. Sec. also, The State v. Willis, 9 Id., 582; The State v. Tulley, 18 Id., 88.

Where one indicted for rape was shown to have stated, before the commission of the offense became publicly known that he would under certain circumstances, named, "get clear" this was held a sufficient corroboration of the statements of the prosecutrix. The State v. Comstock, 46 Id., 265.

In the trial of an indictment for seduction, a fact which is testified to by the person injured, is not admissible to corroborate her. The State v. Kingsley, 39 Id., 439.

The fact that the crime of rape has been committed may be established by the evidence of the person injured, but the defendant cannot be convicted upon her testimony unless it be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect the accused, with the commission of the crime. The State v. McLaughlin, 44 Id., 82.
Where bruises are found upon the person of the prosecutrix, it should be left to the jury to determine whether or not they are sufficient to corroborate her testimony to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. Id.

In the trial of an indictment for seduction, the infant alleged to be the fruit thereof cannot be offered in evidence to corroborate the prosecutrix by reason of a supposed resemblance between the child and the accused. The State v. Danforth, 48 Id., 43.

Proof of having opportunity for having sexual intercourse does not constitute evidence corroborative of the prosecuting witness on a trial for seduction. The evidence to be corroborative, must tend to connect the defendant with the commission of the offense. The State v. Painter, 50 Id., 313.

On the trial of an indictment for seduction, evidence that the defendant had opportunity to employ acts, deception and false promises is not sufficient as corroborating evidence, to connect him with the commission of the offense charged. The State v. Araah, 55 Id., 258. See also, The State v. Smith, 54 Id., 743; The State v. Wells, 48 Id., 671.

The defendant's confession that he was guilty of sexual intercourse with the prosecutrix, taken with other evidence referred to in the opinion, held to be sufficient corroboration of the testimony of the prosecutrix, under this section of the code. The State v. Fitzgerald, 63 Id., 268.

As to corroboration of prosecutrix in case of rape, see The State v. McIntire, 66 Id., 339.

Sec. 4561. [Subpenas.]—A magistrate, in any criminal proceeding before him may issue subpenas subscribed by him with his name of office for witnesses within the state in behalf of either party thereto.

Sec. 4562. [Same.]—The clerk of the court in which any criminal case is pending must, at all times, upon the application of the defendant or his attorney, issue as many blank subpenas under the seal of the court, subscribed by him, for witnesses within the state, as may be required by the defendant. He must also issue subpenas, on the part of the state, when required.

Sec. 4563. [Who to serve.]—A peace officer must serve within his town or county, as the case may be, any subpena delivered to him for service on the part of either the state or defendant, and must make a written return of the service subscribed by him and state the time and place of service, without delay. A subpena may, however, be served by any other person.

Sec. 4564. [How made.]—The service of a subpena must be by delivering a copy and showing the original to the witness personally.

Sec. 4565. [May break door.]—If a witness conceal himself to avoid the service of a subpena, the officer may break open doors or windows for the purpose of making service.

Sec. 4566. [Disobedience.]—Disobedience to a subpena, or refusal to be sworn or to answer as a witness, may be punished by the court or magistrate as a contempt.

Sec. 4567. [Witness, when liable.]—A witness willfully disobeying a subpena in a criminal case without good cause, shall be liable to the party injured for the amount of the damages sustained by such party.

Sec. 4568. [Forfeiture of bond.]—The undertakings of witnesses in criminal cases may be forfeited and enforced like the undertaking of bail.

Sec. 4569. [Subpena.]—A subpena in a criminal case, runs into any part of the state.

Sec. 4570. [Impeachment.]—In cases of impeachment, subpenas may be issued on behalf of either party by the secretary of the senate.

Sec. 4571. [Witness examined conditionally.]—A defendant in a criminal case, either after preliminary information, indictment, or information, may examine witnesses conditionally or on commission in the same manner and with like effect as in civil actions.

Sec. 4572. [Perpetuating testimony.]—A person apprehensive of a criminal prosecution, may perpetuate testimony in his favor, in the same manner, and with like effect, as it may be done in apprehension of any civil action.
CHAPTER 38.

OF BAIL, UPON BEING HELD TO ANSWER BEFORE INDICTMENT.

Section 4573. [Who may admit.]—When the defendant has been held to answer for any bailable offense, bail must be taken by the magistrate who held him to answer, or by any judge of the supreme, district or circuit courts, or by the court to which the papers on the preliminary examination are to be returned by the magistrate who held him to answer, or by the clerk of such court, or by any magistrate of the county in which the offense is triable.

Sec. 4574. [How given.]—Bail is put in by a written undertaking, executed by one or more sufficient sureties (with or without the defendant, in the discretion of the court, clerk, or magistrate acknowledged before and accepted by the court, clerk or magistrate taking the same, and may be substantially, in the following form:

COUNTY OF .

An order having been made on the ....... day of ....... A. D. 18., by A. B. a justice of the peace of the township of ....... (or as the case may be), that C. D. be held to answer upon a charge of (stating briefly the nature of the offense), upon which he has been duly admitted to bail, in the sum of ....... dollars.

We, E. F. (stating his place of residence and occupation), and G. H. of (stating his place of residence and occupation), hereby undertake that the said C. D. shall appear at the district court of the county of ....... at the next term thereof, and answer said charge, and abide the order and judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or if he fail to perform either of these conditions, that we will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of ....... dollars (inserting the sum in which defendant is admitted to bail).

E. F.
G. H.

Acknowledged before, and accepted by me as ....... in the township of ....... in the county of ....... this ....... day of ....... A. D., 18.

I. J., justice of the peace,
(or, as the case may be).

It is not necessary, under this section, that a defendant in a criminal case, who furnishes bail for his appearance, should sign the bond with his sureties. State v. Patterson, 23 Iowa, 575.

The use of the word “he” in a bail bond drawn to the form prescribed in this section, in place of “we will pay,” etc., is manifest clerical error, and should be disregarded. Id.

The appearance of the defendant in a criminal action, to answer to the charge, does not discharge the sureties on his bond. They are liable for any failure to obey the orders of the court before surrender or discharge. The liability is a continuing one which can be discharged only by surrendering the accused as provided by statute, or by obtaining the discharge of the accused. State v. Brown, 16 Iowa, 314.

The objection that a bail bond, filed and approved by the clerk, was not also marked “accepted” by him, as specified in this section of the code, is technical and cannot affect the right of the state to recover on the bond. State v. Elgin, 24 Id., 24.

A recognizance for the appearance of the accused at a specified term of court, binds the sureties therein for his appearance at the succeeding term, even though no action is taken or order made at the term specified. State v. Ryan, 23 Id., 406; following State v. Brown, 16 Id., 314.

Under section 3219 of the code of 1851, it was held that a recognizance to appear and answer to an indictment might be acknowledged in open court. State v. Elgin, 11 Id., 216.

It was held not necessary to the validity of the recognizance that its approval or acceptance should be written thereon. If by the determination of the proper officer, the bond was regarded by him as sufficient to authorize the discharge, this amounts to a sufficient acceptance; and after such discharge has taken place, such determination will, in the first instance, be presumed. State v. Wright, 37 Id., 522.

In an action on a forfeited recognizance, it is not necessary to allege in the petition, as a con-
Sec. 4575. [Qualifications of bail.]—The qualifications of bail are as follows:
1. Such bail must be a resident and householder, or freeholder, within the state;
2. Such bail must be worth the amount specified in the undertaking, exclusive of property exempt from execution, but the court, clerk or magistrate taking the bail, may allow more than one bail to justify severally in amounts less than that expressed in the undertaking, if the whole justification be equivalent to one sufficient bail.

Sec. 4576. [Justification.]—The bail must in all cases justify, by affidavit taken before the court, clerk, or magistrate, as the case may be, taking such bail, and the affidavit must state that they each possess the qualifications prescribed in the last section.

Sec. 4577. [Same.]—The district attorney, or the court, clerk or magistrate, as the case may be, may thereupon further examine the bail upon oath, concerning their sufficiency, in such manner as may be deemed proper.

Sec. 4578. [Same.]—The court, clerk, or magistrate, may also receive other testimony, either for or against the sufficiency of the bail.

Sec. 4579. [Order.]—When the examination is closed, the court, clerk, or magistrate, must make an order, either allowing or disallowing the bail, and must forthwith cause the same, with the affidavits or justification, and the undertaking of bail, to be filed with the clerk of the court to which the papers on the preliminary examination are required to be sent.

Sec. 4580. [Order of discharge.]—Upon the allowance of the bail and the execution of the undertaking, the court, clerk, or magistrate, must make an order, signed with his name of office, for the discharge of the defendant, to the following effect.

The State of Iowa:
To the sheriff of the county of .......

C. D., who is detained by you on commitment, to answer a charge for the offense of (here designate it generally), having given sufficient bail to answer the same, you are commanded forthwith to discharge him from custody.

Dated at ........., in the township of ........., in the county of ........., this ..... day of ........, A. D., 18...

K. L., justice of the peace,
(or as the case may be).

Sec. 4581. [Disallowed.]—If the bail be disallowed the defendant must be detained in custody until other bail be put in and justify.

CHAPTER 39.
OF BAIL UPON AN INDICTMENT BEFORE CONVICTION.

Section 4582. [For misdemeanor.]—When the offense charged in the indictment is a misdemeanor, the officer serving the bench warrant, if therein required, must take the defendant before a magistrate in the county in which it was issued, or in which he is arrested, or before the clerk of the district court of either of such counties for the purpose of giving bail.

Sec. 4583. [Felony.]—If the offense charged in the indictment be a felony, the officer arresting the defendant must deliver him into custody according to the command of the warrant.
SEC. 4584. [By whom taken.]—When the defendant is so delivered into custody, if the felony charged be bailable, bail must be taken by that court, or the clerk of that court, or by any magistrate in the same county.

A recognizance entered into before the clerk of the district court of one county for the appearance of the defendant before the court in another county wherein the indictment is pending, and where the recognizance is filed, is not thereby rendered invalid. State v. Wells, 36 Iowa, 238.

Nor would the failure of the clerk to indorse the approval of the recognizance, invalidate it. Nor in the absence of an averment or showing that it was acknowledged, prevent a recovery in an action thereon. Nor need it appear in the action that the sureties in the bond were called and their default entered. This is necessary only as to the person indicted. Id.

A recognizance entered into by a person indicted for the crime of seduction, otherwise in due form, which does not describe or designate the offense with which the principal is charged more definitely than by the use of the word "seduction," is sufficient to create a liability. State v. Marshall, 21 Id., 143.

SEC. 4585. [Form of undertaking.]—The bail must be put in by a written undertaking, executed by one sufficient surety, with or without the defendant, in the discretion of the court, clerk, or magistrate, acknowledged before and accepted by the court, clerk or magistrate taking the same, and may be substantially in the following form:

```

"An indictment having been found in the district court of the county of . . . . , on the . . . . day of . . . . , A. D. 18 . . . . , charging A. B. with the crime of (designating it as in the bench warrant), and he having been duly admitted to bail in the sum of . . . . dollars:

We, A. B., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), and C. D., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), and E. F., of (stating his place of residence and occupation), hereby undertake that the said A. B. shall appear and answer the said indictment, and abide the orders and judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or if he fail to perform either of these conditions, that he will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of . . . . dollars (inserting the sum in which the defendant is admitted to bail.)

A. B.,
C. D.,
E. F.

Acknowledged before and accepted by me, at . . . . in the township of . . . . ,in the county of . . . . , this . . . . day of . . . . , A. D. 18 . . . .

G. H., justice of the peace,
(or as the case may be).
```

A bail bond or recognizance entered into before the clerk of the district court of one county for the appearance of the defendant before the court in another county wherein the indictment is pending, and where the bond is filed, is valid. The State v. Wells, 36 Iowa, 238.

Nor would the failure of the clerk to indorse an approval of the bond invalidate it. Nor the absence of an averment or showing that it was acknowledged, prevent a recovery in an action thereon. Id.

In an action upon a bail bond it need not be shown that the sureties were called and their default entered. This is necessary only as to the person indicted. Id.

The clerk of the court to which a criminal cause is removed by change of venue has the same power to take a recognizance as the clerk of the court where the indictment is found. The State v. Merrihew, 47 Id., 112.

The liability of sureties is not affected by the failure to take a forfeiture at the term succeeding the execution of the bond; a continuance would continue the liability, and, no continuance appearing of record, the cause stands continued by operation of law. Id.

The arrest and detention in another county of one who is under bond for his appearance, does not have the effect to release the sureties on his bond. Id.

SEC. 4586. [Provisions of previous chapter applies.]—The provisions of the preceding chapter, subsequent to the form of the undertaking relative to the qualifications of bail, the justification, the examination, receiving other testimony against the sufficiency, and the order of allowance or disallowance thereof, and the filing of the undertaking with the affidavits, and all proceedings incidental thereto, in the cases therein provided for, apply also to the cases provided for in this chapter.

CHAPTER 40.

OF BAIL, UPON AN APPEAL TO THE SUPREME COURT, AFTER CONVICTION.

SECTION 4587. [When bail taken.]—After conviction upon an appeal to the supreme court, the defendant must be admitted to bail as follows:

1. If the appeal be from a judgment imposing a fine, upon the undertaking of bail that will pay the same, or such part of it as the supreme court may direct, and in all respects abide the orders and the judgment of the supreme court upon the appeal;

2. If the appeal be from a judgment of imprisonment, upon the undertaking of bail that he will surrender himself in execution of the judgment and direction of the supreme court, and in all respects abide the orders and judgment of the supreme court upon the appeal. The bail may be taken, either by the court where the judgment was rendered, or the judge thereof, or the district court of the county in which he is imprisoned, or the judge thereof, or the judge of the circuit court of either of such counties, or by the supreme court, or a judge thereof, or by the clerk of either of such courts.

SEC. 4588. [Qualifications of.]—The bail must possess the qualifications, must justify, and must be put in and taken in the manner prescribed in chapter thirty-eight of this title, and the same proceedings had in all respects, as nearly as applicable, varying to suit the case, and the undertaking of the bail must be, in effect, as prescribed by the preceding section.

CHAPTER 41.

OF DEPOSIT OF MONEY INSTEAD OF BAIL.

SECTION 4589. [With whom, and effect.]—The defendant, at any time after an order admitting him to bail, instead of giving bail, may deposit with the clerk of the district court to which the undertaking, in case of bail, is required to be sent, the sum mentioned in the order, and upon delivering to the officer in whose custody he is, a certificate under seal from said clerk of the deposit, he must be discharged from custody.

SEC. 4590. [After giving bail.]—If the defendant has given bail, he may, at any time before the forfeiture of the undertaking, in like manner deposit the sum mentioned in the undertaking, and upon the deposit being made the bail shall be exonerated.

SEC. 4591. [Bail after deposit of money.]—If money be deposited as provided in the last section, bail may be given in the same manner as if it had been originally given upon the order for admission to bail at any time before the forfeiture of the deposit. The court or magistrate before whom the bail is taken shall thereupon direct in the order of allowance that the money deposited be refunded by the clerk to the defendant, and it shall be refunded accordingly.

Where an appeal is taken from the order of a justice of the peace taxing the costs in a criminal prosecution against the prosecuting witness, the district court is to determine simply whether or not the justice abused the discretion which the law reposes in him in such cases, and, for the purpose of doing this, it must put itself as nearly as possible in the place of the justice, by considering the evidence only that was before the justice, as shown by his transcript (corrected if necessary), and new or additional evidence is not admissible. \textit{State v. Kerns, 64 Iowa, 306.}

\textbf{Sec. 4592. [Money: how applied.]—}When money has been deposited, if it remain on deposit at the time of a judgment against the defendant, the clerk shall, under the direction of the court, apply the money in satisfaction of so much of the judgment as requires the payment of money, and after paying the same shall refund the surplus, if any, to the defendant, unless an appeal be taken to the supreme court, and bail put in, in which case the deposit shall be returned to the defendant.

\textbf{CHAPTER 42.}

\textbf{OF SURRENDER OF THE DEFENDANT.}

\textbf{Section 4593. [When and how done.]—}At any time before the forfeiture of their undertaking, the bail may surrender the defendant in their exoneration, or he may surrender himself to the officer to whose custody he was committed at the time of giving bail, in the following manner:

1. A certified copy of the undertaking of bail must be delivered to the officer, who shall detain the defendant in his custody thereon as upon a commitment, and must, by a certificate in writing, acknowledge the surrender;

2. Upon the undertaking and the certificate of the officer, the district court in which the indictment is pending, or was tried, at the next term after the surrender, or, if during term time, at the same term and upon three clear days' notice thereof to the district attorney, with a copy of the undertaking and certificate, may order the bail to be exonerated.

In contemplation of law an accused party admitted to bail is in the custody of his sureties who are considered his keepers. If they have grounds to apprehend an escape, it is their privilege to have the accused re-arrested and surrendered back into the custody of the law, and themselves discharged. \textit{The State v. Holmes, 23 Iowa, 458, 460.}

The sheriff has no authority to receive and hold in custody one bailed, unless the latter is delivered to him as prescribed by the statute, or placed in his custody in the presence of, and with the knowledge and sanction, or by order of, the magistrate. \textit{The State v. Tieman, 39 Id., 474.}

A surety for one charged with a public offense is not released from the obligation of his undertaking by a simple surrender of the accused to the sheriff, in the presence of the court. He is bound not only that the party nailed shall appear at the time and place specified, but also that he shall abide the order and judgment of the court, and not depart without leave. \textit{Id.}

To exonerate himself the bail must arrest and surrender the party indicted to the sheriff, upon presenting him with a copy of the bond. \textit{The State v. Kramer, 50 Id., 582.}

The failure of the sheriff to arrest the party indicted when the bail presents a copy of the bond, will not exonerate the bail from liability upon his undertaking. \textit{Id.}

\textbf{Sec. 4594. [Arrest by bail.]—}For the purpose of surrendering the defendant, the bail, at any time before they are finally charged, and at any place within the state, may themselves arrest him, or by a written authority indorsed on a certified copy of the undertaking may empower any person of suitable age and discretion to do so.

\textbf{Sec. 4595. [On surrender, money returned.]—}If money has been deposited instead of bail, and the defendant, at any time before the forfeiture thereof, shall surrender himself to the officer to whom the commitment was made, or directed in the manner prescribed in this chapter, the court in which the indictment is pending, or was tried, at the next term after the surrender, or, if during the term, at the same term, must order a return of the deposit to the defendant, upon producing the certificate of the officer showing the surrender, and upon three clear days notice to the district attorney, with a copy of the certificate.
CHAPTER 43.

OF FORFEITURE OF THE UNDERTAKING OF BAIL, OR DEPOSIT OF MONEY.

SECTION 4696. [How forfeited.]—If the defendant fail to appear for arraignment, trial or judgment, or at any other time when his personal appearance in court may be lawfully required, or to surrender himself in execution of the judgment, the court must direct an entry of such failure to be made on the record, and the undertaking of his bail, or the money deposited instead of bail, as the case may be, is thereupon forfeited.

The liability of the surety is not affected by the failure to take a forfeiture at the term succeeding the execution of the bond; a continuance will continue the liability, and no continuance appearing of record, the cause is continued by operation of law. The State v. Merrihew, 47 Iowa, 112.

The death of the principal two years after a bond was forfeited in a criminal case is no defense to an action against the surety on the bond. The State v. Scott, 20 Id., 63.

The district court is not authorized, on the failure of a defendant to appear when called, to order a forfeiture of his undertaking when it is not on file in the office of the clerk, and is not in possession of the court. State v. Clingman, 14 Id., 494.

The appearance of the defendant in a criminal action, to answer to the charge, does not discharge the sureties on his recognizance. They are liable for any failure to obey the orders of the court before surrendered or discharged. Their liability is a continuing one which can be discharged only by surrendering the accused as provided by statute or by obtaining his discharge. The State v. Brown, 16 Id., 314.

SEC. 4597. [Discharge of.]—If, before the final adjournment of the court for the term, the defendant appear and satisfactorily excuse his failure, the court may direct an entry to be made on the record, that the forfeiture of the undertaking or deposit be discharged.

If a defendant after default appear, at the same term of the default and excuse his failure to appear, the court may discharge the forfeiture, but his re-arrest and holding for trial after default has been entered, does not affect the right of the state to recover on the forfeiture already taken. State v. Emily, 24 Iowa, 24.

SEC. 4598. [When not.]—If the forfeiture is not discharged, the district attorney may, at any time after the adjournment of the court for the term, proceed by civil action only upon the undertaking of the bail.

SEC. 4599. [Action on undertaking.]—The action on undertaking must be in the court in which the defendant was, or would have been required to appear by the undertaking; provided, that when the undertaking requires the defendant to appear before a justice of the peace or a court of limited jurisdiction, or before an examining magistrate, it shall be the duty of said justice, or court, or examining magistrate, upon the forfeiture of the undertaking, and within thirty days thereafter, to file the same, together with a copy of all his official entries in relation thereto, in the office of the district court of the county; and thereupon it shall be the duty of the district attorney to proceed to collect the same by a civil action in the district court of said county, or any other court of said county, having jurisdiction equal to the penalty of said bond.

Where a bond or undertaking is entered into for the appearance of defendant before a magistrate, suit thereon may be brought in the district court. State v. Emerson, 16 Iowa, 206, 205.

The remission of the whole or any part of a forfeited bond, after the defendant has been surrendered, rests in the discretion of the court, and his action will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion is shown. The State v. Kramer, 50 Id., 575.

When a bond for the appearance of a defendant at the district court of a particular county is taken in the name of the state, an action on a forfeiture thereof may be brought in the name of the county. Shelby County v. Simmonds, 33 Id., 345.

Where a bond was given for the appearance of the defendant in a criminal action in the court of a certain county, and the venue was afterwards changed to another county, it was held that an action on the bond should be brought in the latter county, and when so brought, it was error for the court to sustain a motion for a change of venue to the court of the former county on the ground that the residence of the defendant was in such county. Lucas County v. Wilson, 59 Id., 354.
SEC. 4600. [Surrender before judgment: effect.]—If, before judgment is entered against the bail, the defendant be surrendered or arrested, the court may, in its discretion, remit the whole or any part of the sum specified in the undertaking.

The court may, in its discretion, remit the whole or any amount of the recognizance before judgment is entered, if the defendant be surrendered; but the action of the court in such case will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion be clearly shown. The State v. Kraner, 50 Iowa, 582; Same v. Hirononemas, 1d., 545.

The arrest and detention of a defendant who is under bond for his appearance, does not release the sureties on his bond. The State v. Merrihew, 47 Id., 112.

Nor will the fact that the defendant was in the military service of the United States, in another state, the officers of which prevented the surety from bringing him and surrendering him to the court in the discharge of his undertaking, be any defense in an action on the bond. The State v. Scott, 20 Id., 63.

CHAPTER 44.

ON THE RE-COMMITMENT OF THE DEFENDANT AFTER GIVING BAIL OR DEPOSITING MONEY.

SECTION 4601. [Re-committed.]—The district court in which a criminal action is pending, or during the pendency of an appeal from its judgment in such action, or in which a judgment is to be carried into effect, may, by an order entered on the record, direct the defendant to be arrested and committed to jail until legally discharged, after he has given bail, or deposited money instead thereof, in the following cases:

1. When by reason of his failure to appear, he has incurred a forfeiture of his bail, or money deposited instead thereof;

2. When it satisfactorily appears to the court that his bail, either by reason of the death of one or more of them, or from any other cause, is insufficient, or have removed from the state;

3. When upon the finding of an indictment, the court deems the bail taken by the committing magistrate insufficient.

This section confers the power upon the district court to cause a defendant, after forfeiture of his undertaking for a default in failing to appear, to be re-arrested and committed to jail until legally discharged. The State v. Holmes, 23 Iowa, 458, 460.

When a person is held to answer a criminal charge by a justice of the peace, and an indictment is subsequently found against him, whereupon the court directs a warrant to issue for his arrest, the surety is discharged when the arrest is made and the accused is taken into custody. The State v. Orsler, 47 Id., 348.

The remission of the whole or any part of a forfeited bond, after the defendant has been surrendered, rests in the discretion of the court, and this action will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion is shown. The State v. Kraner, 50 Id., 575.

SEC. 4602. [Order: its requisites.]—The order for re-commitment of the defendant must recite generally the facts upon which it is founded, and must direct that the defendant be arrested and committed to the custody of the sheriff of the county where the depositions and statements were returned, or the indictment was found, or the conviction was had, as the case may be, to be detained until legally discharged.

SEC. 4603. [Arrest.]—The defendant may be arrested pursuant to the order upon a certified copy thereof, in any county in the state.

SEC. 4604. [Committal.]—If the order recite as the ground on which it is made, the failure of the defendant to appear for judgment upon conviction, the defendant must be committed according to the requirements of the order.

SEC. 4605. [New bail.]—If the order be made for any other cause and the offense be bailable, the court may fix the amount of bail, and may cause a direction to be inserted in the order that the defendant be admitted to bail in the sum fixed, which must be specified in the order.
CHAPTER 45.

OF UNDERTAKINGS OF BAIL WHEN LIENS.

SECTION 4606. [On real estate.]—Undertakings of bail, from the time of filing the same in the office of the clerk of the district court in which they are required to be filed, shall be, and may be made, liens upon real estate of the person acknowledging the same, in the same manner, to the same extent, and with like effect, as in judgments in civil actions.

Sec. 4607. [Same.]—They shall, when filed, be immediately docketed and indexed by the clerk of the court in which they are filed, as judgments in civil actions are required to be docketed and indexed.

Sec. 4608. [Same.]—Attested copies of such undertakings may be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the real estate is situated, in the same manner, and with like effect, as attested copies of judgments, and shall be immediately docketed and indexed in the same manner.

CHAPTER 46.

OF JUDGMENTS FOR FINES WHEN LIENS, AND HOW EXECUTIONS THEREON STATED.

SECTION 4609. [On real estate.]—Judgments for fines, in all criminal actions rendered, are, and may be made, liens upon the real estate of the defendant, in the same manner, and with like effect, as judgments in civil actions.

Sec. 4610. [Stay of execution.]—The defendant may have a stay of execution for the same length of time, and in the same manner, as provided by law in civil actions, and with like effect, and the same proceedings may be had therein.

CHAPTER 47.

OF THE LIBERATION OF POOR CONVICTS.

SECTION 4611. [When and on what conditions.]—When any person convicted of a criminal offense is sentenced to pay a fine and costs only, and stand committed until sentence be performed, if the sentence be not complied with by payment of the sum due within thirty days next following, the sheriff may liberate him from prison if committed for no other cause, and if he be unable to pay such fine and costs, upon his giving his promissory note for the amount due, payable to the treasurer of the county where he was committed, on demand with interest, accompanied with a written schedule, containing a true account of all his property, of every kind, and by him signed and sworn to; which note and schedule, must be by such sheriff delivered without delay to treasurer for the use of the county.

When a defendant, sentenced to imprisonment in default of the payment of a fine entered against him substantially complied with sections 4509, 4511 of the code, by suffering imprisonment for the time provided, and executing his note to the treasurer as therein, held, not only entitled to be discharged from custody, but to have the judgment against him satisfied. State v. Van Vleet, 23 Iowa, 108; State v. Peck, 57 Id., 542; The City of Keokuk v. Dressell, 47 Id., 597, 601, 602.

Actual imprisonment for thirty days is necessary to entitle a prisoner to the right to be liber-DISMISSAL OF CRIMINAL ACTIONS.

SECTION 4612. [False schedule.]—If such convict knowingly and willfully make any false schedule on oath, relating to the amount or nature of his property, he is guilty of perjury.

CHAPTER 48.

OF THE DISMISSAL OF CRIMINAL ACTIONS BEFORE AND AFTER INDICTMENT FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION OR OTHERWISE.

SECTION 4613. [When.]—When a person has been held to answer for a public offense, if an indictment be not found against him at the next regular term of the court at which he is held to answer, the court must order the prosecution to be dismissed unless good cause to the contrary be shown.

SECTION 4614. [If tried in certain time.]—If a defendant indicted for a public offense, whose trial has not been postponed upon his application, be not brought to trial at the next regular term of the court in which the indictment is triable after the same is found, the court must order it to be dismissed unless good cause to the contrary be shown.

SECTION 4615. [Discharged on his own undertaking.]—If the defendant be not indicted or tried as provided in the last two sections, and sufficient reason therefor shown, the court may order the action to be continued from term to term, and in the meantime may discharge the defendant from custody on his own undertaking, or on the undertaking of bail for his appearance to answer the charge at the time to which the action is continued, but no such continuance can be extended beyond three terms of the court.

SECTION 4616. [Discharge of.]—If the court direct the action to be dismissed, the defendant must, if in custody, be discharged therefrom, or if admitted to bail, his bail must be exonerated, and if money has been deposited instead of bail it must be refunded to him.

SECTION 4617. [By court or district attorney.]—The court may, either upon its own motion or upon the application of the district attorney, and in furtherance of justice, order an action after an indictment to be dismissed, but in such case the reason of the dismissal must be set forth in the order, which must be entered upon the record.

When a party is put upon trial for a criminal offense, it is not within the scope of the authority of either the district attorney, or of the court, to take the case from the jury, by their own arbitrary will, and without a peremptory and controlling cause, and again hold him to trial on the same charge, although it be merely presented; and such a proceeding amounts to an acquittal and may be pleaded as such. State v. Calendine, 8 Iowa, 288.

SECTION 4618. [Nolle prosequi.]—The entry of nolle prosequi is abolished, and neither the attorney general nor the district attorney shall hereafter discontinue or abandon a prosecution for a public offense except as provided in the last section.

SECTION 4619. [Bar.]—An order for the dismissal of the action as provided in this chapter, is a bar to another prosecution for the same offense if it be a misdemeanor; but it is not a bar if the offense charged be a felony.
CHAPTER 49.

OF THE INSANITY OF A DEFENDANT BEFORE TRIAL OR AFTER CONVICTION.

SECTION 4620. [Trial.]—When a defendant appears for arraignment, trial, judgment, or on any other occasion when he is required, if a reasonable doubt arise as to his sanity, the court must order a jury to be impaneled from the trial jurors in attendance at the term, or who may be summoned by the direction of the court, as provided by this code, to inquire into the fact.

An inquiry as to the sanity of the prisoner under this and the following four sections, should be limited to the time when he appears for arraignment, or to the occasion which renders such inquiry proper, and should not relate to the time at which the offense of which he is accused is committed. The State v. Arnold, 12 Iowa, 479.

SEC. 4621. [Suspension.]—The arraignment, trial, judgment or other proceedings, as the case may be, must be suspended until the question of insanity is determined by the verdict of the jury.

SEC. 4622. [Order of procedure.]—The trial for the question of insanity must proceed in the following order:

1. The counsel of the defendant must offer the evidence in support of the allegation of insanity;
2. The district attorney must then offer the evidence in support of the case on the part of the state;
3. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reason, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case;
4. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted on either side, or both sides, without argument, the district attorney must commence, and the defendant's counsel conclude the argument to the jury;
5. If more than one counsel on each side argue the case to the jury, they must do so alternately;
6. The court shall then, on motion of either party, charge the jury. The provisions of this code, so far as the same are applicable and not herein changed, shall regulate the trial of the question of insanity.

SEC. 4623. [If sane.]—If the jury find the defendant is sane, the proceedings on the indictment shall be resumed.

SEC. 4624. [If insane.]—If the jury find the defendant insane, the proceedings on the indictment shall be suspended until he becomes sane, and the court, if it deem his discharge dangerous to the public peace or safety, may order that he be in the meantime committed by the sheriff to the Iowa Insane Hospital, and that upon his becoming sane, he be delivered by the superintendent of the hospital to the sheriff.

SEC. 4625. [Bail released.]—The commitment of the defendant, as provided in the last section, exonerates his bail, or entitles a person authorized to receive the property of the defendant, to a return of the money he may have deposited instead of bail.

SEC. 4626. [Detained in hospital.]—If the defendant be received into the hospital, he must be detained there until he becomes sane. When he becomes sane, the superintendent of the hospital must give notice of that fact to the sheriff and to the district attorney of the proper district. The sheriff must thereupon, without delay, bring the defendant from the hospital, and place him in the proper custody until he be brought to trial or judgment as the case may be, or be legally discharged.

SEC. 4627. [Expenses.]—The expense of sending the defendant to the hospital, bringing him back, and any other expense incurred, are to be paid in the first instance by the county from which he was sent, but the county may recover from the estate of the defendant, if he have any, or from a relative, or another county, town, township or city, bound to provide for or maintain him elsewhere.

Sec. 4628. [Same.]—Sheriffs for delivering persons found to be insane, under the provisions of this chapter, are entitled to the same fees therefor as are allowed for conveying convicts to the penitentiary.

It is only where persons are found to be insane in proceedings under the provisions of chapter 49, title 25, of the code, that a sheriff is entitled to the same fees for conveying them to the insane hospital as are allowed for conveying convicts to the penitentiary. Harding v. The County of Montgomery, 55 Iowa, 41.

CHAPTER 50.

OF SEARCH WARRANTS, AND PROCEEDINGS THEREON.

Section 4629. [Search warrant: definition.]—A search warrant is an order in writing, in the name of the state, signed by a magistrate, directed to a peace officer, commanding him to search for personal property, and bring it before the magistrate.

Sec. 4630. [Upon what grounds issued.]—It may be issued upon either of the following grounds:

1. When the property was stolen or embezzled, in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed, or from the possession of the person by whom it was stolen or embezzled, or of any other person in whose possession it may be;

2. When it was used as the means of committing a felony; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed, or from the possession of the person by whom it was used in the commission of the offense, or of any other person in whose possession it may be;

3. When it is in the possession of any person with the intent to use it as the means of committing a public offense, or in the possession of another to which he may have delivered it for the purpose of concealing it or preventing its being discovered; in which case it may be taken on the warrant from such person, from a house or other place occupied by him or under his control, or from the possession of the person to whom he may have so delivered it.

Sec. 4631. [Same.]—No search warrant can be issued but upon probable cause, supported by affidavit, naming or describing the person, and particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

Sec. 4632. [Complaint examined.]—The magistrate must, before issuing a warrant, examine on oath the applicant therefor, and any witnesses he may produce, and take their affidavits in writing, and cause each affidavit to be subscribed and sworn to before him by the person making it.

Sec. 4633. [Affidavit must set forth.]—The affidavit must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application, or probable cause for believing that they exist.

Sec. 4634. [Magistrate issue.]—If the magistrate be thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application, or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he shall issue a search warrant, signed by him with his name of office, directed to any peace officer in the county, commanding him forthwith to search the person or place named for the property specified, and bring it before him.

Sec. 4635. [Jurisdiction.]—The local jurisdiction of magistrates, in exercising the powers conferred on them by this chapter, is as defined in this code.
SEC. 4636. [Form of warrant.]—The warrant may be, substantially, in the following form:

COUNTY OF ....  ...

THE STATE OF IOWA:

"To any peace officer of said county:

"Proof, by affidavit, having been this day made before me by (naming every person whose affidavit has been taken) that (stating the particular grounds of the application according to section four thousand six hundred and thirty of this chapter; or, if the affidavit be not positive, that there is probable cause for believing that (stating the ground of the application in the same manner); you are therefore commanded, in the day time (or at any time of the day or night, as the case may be, according to section four thousand six hundred and thirty of this chapter) to make immediate search on the person of C. D., or, in the house situated (describing it or any other place to be searched, with reasonable particularity, as the case may be), for the following property (describing it with reasonable particularity); and if you find the same, or any part thereof, to bring it forthwith before me, at (stating the place).

"Dated at ....  ......, this ..........day of  ...... ...... A. D. 18..

E. F., justice of the peace,"

SEC. 4637. [By whom served.]—A search warrant may in all cases be served by any of the officers mentioned in its direction, but by no other person except in aid of the officer, on his requisition, he being present and acting in its execution.

SEC. 4638. [Officer may break open doors.]—The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of the house, or anything therein, to execute a warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he be refused admittance.

SEC. 4639. [Same.]—He may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house for the purpose of liberating a person, who, having entered to aid him in the execution of the warrant, is detained therein, or when necessary, for his own liberation.

SEC. 4640. [Must be served in day time.]—The magistrate must insert a direction in the warrant that it be served in the day time, unless the affidavit be positive that the property is on the person, or in the place to be searched; in which case he may insert a direction that it may be served at any time of the day or night.

SEC. 4641. [Return: in what time.]—A search warrant must be executed and returned to the magistrate by whom it was issued within ten days after its date. After the expiration of such time, the warrant, unless executed, is void.

SEC. 4642. [Officer receipt for property.]—When the officer takes any property under the warrant, he must give a receipt for the property taken, specifying it in detail, to the person from whom it was taken or in whose possession it was found, or, in the absence of the person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

SEC. 4643. [Return with inventory.]—The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the magistrate, and at the same time deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken, and of the applicant for the warrant, if they be present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the magistrate, to the following effect: "I, the officer by whom the annexed warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."
SEC. 4644. [Magistrate give copy.]-The magistrate, if required, must deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken, and to the applicant for the warrant.

SEC. 4645. [Take testimony.]-If the grounds on which the warrant was issued be controverted, the magistrate must proceed to take testimony in relation thereto.

SEC. 4646. [Same.]-The testimony given by each witness must be reduced to writing and authenticated by the magistrate.

SEC. 4647. [Property restored.]-If it appear that the property taken is not the same as that described in the warrant, or that there is no probable cause for believing the existence of the grounds on which the warrant was issued, the magistrate shall cause it to be restored to the person from whom it was taken.

SEC. 4648. [Same.]-If the property taken by virtue of a search warrant was stolen or embezzled, it must be restored to the owner, upon his making satisfactory proof to the magistrate of his ownership thereof, or of his right of possession thereto, as provided in the next chapter. If it was taken on a warrant issued on the grounds stated in the second and third subdivisions of section four thousand six hundred and thirty of this chapter, the magistrate must retain it in his possession, subject to the order of the court to which he is required to return the proceeding before him, or of any other court in which the offense which the property taken was used as a means of committing, or so intended to be, is triable.

SEC. 4649. [Disposition of papers.]-The magistrate must annex together the affidavits taken before the issuing or the warrant, the warrant, the return, and the inventory, and return them to the next district court of the county, at or before its opening, on the first day of the next term thereof.

SEC. 4650. [Malicious suing out.]-Whoever, maliciously and without probable cause, procures a search warrant to be issued and executed, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4651. [Excess of authority.]-A peace officer who, in executing a search warrant, willfully exceeds his authority, or exercises it with unnecessary severity, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 4652. [Searching person charged with felony.]-When a person charged with a felony is supposed by the magistrate before whom he is brought to have upon his person a dangerous weapon or anything which may be used as evidence of the commission of the offense, the magistrate may direct him to be searched in his presence, and the weapon or other things to be retained, subject to his order, or the order of the court in which the defendant may be tried.

SEC. 4653. [Property kept for evidence.]-When any officer, in the execution of a search warrant, shall find any stolen or embezzled property, or shall seize any other things for which a search is allowed by this chapter, all the property and things so seized shall be safely kept by the direction of the court or magistrate, so long as shall be necessary for the purpose of being produced as evidence on the trial; and as soon as may be afterwards, all such stolen and embezzled property shall be restored to the owner thereof, and all other things seized by virtue of such warrant shall be destroyed under the direction of the court or magistrate.

See The State v. Mullen, cited in note to section 4659, post.
CHAPTER 51.

OF THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY STOLEN OR EMBEZZLED.

SECTION 4654. [Held by officer.]—When the property alleged to have been stolen or embezzled comes into the custody of a peace officer, he must hold the same subject to the order of the magistrate authorized by the next section to direct the disposal thereof.

Sec. 4655. [Delivered to owner.]—On satisfactory proof of title by the owner of property, the magistrate before whom the information is laid, or who shall examine the charge against the person accused of stealing or embezzling the same, may order it to be delivered to the owner, on his paying the reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in the preservation and keeping thereof, to be certified by the magistrate. The order shall entitle the owner to demand and receive the property.

Sec. 4656. [Same.]—If the property stolen or embezzled come into the custody of a magistrate, it must be delivered to the owner on satisfactory proof of his title, and on his paying the necessary expenses incurred in its preservation, to be certified as before provided.

Sec. 4657. [Same.]—If the property stolen or embezzled has not been delivered to the owner, the court before which a conviction is had, order its restoration.

Sec. 4658. [When not claimed.]—If the property stolen or embezzled be not claimed by the owner before the expiration of six months from the conviction of the person for stealing or embezzling it, the magistrate or other officer having it in his custody, must, on payment of the necessary expenses incurred for its preservation, deliver it to the auditor of the county to be applied under the direction of the board of supervisors thereof for the benefit of the poor of the county.

Sec. 4659. [Officer give receipts for property.]—When the money or other property is taken from the defendant arrested upon a charge of a public offense, the officer taking it shall, at the time, give duplicate receipts therefor, specifying particularly the amount of money and the kind of property taken; one of which receipts he must deliver to the defendant, and the other he must forthwith file with the clerk of the district court of the county where the depositions and statements are to be sent by the magistrate.

Sections 4653 and 4659 of the code simply direct the care and disposition to be made of stolen property when taken by the officer, and the receipt to be given by him therefor does not affect or limit the competency on either side. State v. Mullen, 30 Iowa, 203.

A justice of the peace may issue a search warrant for property alleged to be stolen or embezzled; and upon the return of the warrant, the right to possession of the property may be determined, and delivery thereof made accordingly. State v. Akien, 71 Id., 216.

CHAPTER 52.

OF PROCEEDINGS AND TRIALS BEFORE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

SECTION 4660. [Jurisdiction.]—Justices of the peace have jurisdiction of, and must hear, try, and determine all public offenses less than felony, committed within their respective counties, in which the punishment described by law does not exceed a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment thirty days.

Where the defendant was indicted for, and convicted of, stealing personal property of less than twenty dollars in value, in a dwelling house in the day time, held, that the district court had jurisdiction of the offense, and the same was not cognizable by a justice of the peace. State v. Dawson, 17 Iowa, 584.
The jurisdiction of justices of the peace in criminal matters is co-extensive with the county. State v. Kinney, 41 Id., 424.

SEC. 4661. [Action commenced by information.]—Criminal actions for the commission of a public offense must be commenced before a justice of the peace, by an information subscribed and sworn to, and filed with the justice.

SEC. 4662. [Information must contain.]—Such information must contain:
1. The name of the county and of the justice where the information is filed;
2. The names of the parties, if the defendant be known, and if not, then such names as may be given him by the complainant;
3. A statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary and concise language, and the time and place of the commission of the offense as near as may be.

An information is not sufficient if it merely charge the commission of an offense by its technical name. It must contain a statement of the facts constituting the offense intended to be charged. State v. Murray et al., 41 Iowa, 580.

An information may be amended upon application to any extent which the court may deem consistent with the orderly conduct of judicial business, with the public interest, and with private rights. State v. Doe, 50 Id., 541.

An information is amendable, and the signature of the prosecuting witness, inadvertently omitted, may be attached on appeal in the district court, the fact that it was sworn to being shown. State v. Merchant, 38 Id., 375.

An information for assault and battery which charges that defendant “did then and there beat, bruise and ill treat the said J. C. contrary” etc., sufficiently complies with this section of the code. State v. Boynton 38 N. W. Rep., 505.

SEC. 4663. [Form of.]—The information may be substantially in the following form:

.............county, } Before justice.........(here insert the name of the
 The State of Iowa, } against
 A. ........B. .......defendant. } justice).

The defendant is accused of the crime (here name the offense):

For that the defendant, on the ... ...day of .......A. D. 18..., at the (here name the city, village, or township) in the county aforesaid (here state the act or omission constituting the offense as in an indictment).

An information under section 1562 of the revision (section 1540 of the code, which charged “that the defendant on, etc., at, etc., did sell intoxicating liquors in violation of the laws of the state of Iowa,” without stating to whom the sale was made, was held insufficient. State v. Allen 32 Iowa, 491.

An information charging a defendant with inhumanly whipping and beating his own child is sufficient as an information charging an assault and battery; but it should set out the name of the person on whom the offense was committed. State v. Bitman, 13 Id., 485.

SEC. 4664. [Justice must file.]—The justice must file such information, and mark thereon the time of filing the same.

SEC. 4665. [Warrant may issue.]—Immediately upon the filing of such information, the justice may, in his discretion, issue a warrant for the arrest of the defendant, directed in the same manner as a warrant of arrest upon a preliminary information, and may be served in like manner.

SEC. 4666. [Service.]—The officer who receives the warrant must serve the same by arresting the defendant, if in his power, and bringing him without unnecessary delay before the justice who issued the same.

SEC. 4667. [Appearance.]—When the defendant is brought before the justice the charge against him must be distinctly read to him, and he shall be asked whether he is presented by his right name, and be required to plead. If he objects that he is wrongly named in the information, he must give his right name, and if he refuses to do so, or does not object that he is wrongly named, the justice shall make an entry thereof in his docket, and he is thereafter precluded from making any such objection.

Sec. 4668. [Pleading.]-The defendant may plead the same pleas as upon an indictment. His pleas must be oral, and shall be entered on the docket of the justice.

Sec. 4669. [Same.]-Upon a plea other than a plea of guilty, if the defendant do not demand a trial by jury, the justice must proceed to try the issue, unless a change of venue be applied for by the defendant.

A justice of the peace has no authority to try a prisoner after he has demanded a jury trial, and has no right to render judgment against him until he has been found guilty by a jury in the manner provided by law. Dupont v. Downing, 6 Iowa, 172.

A party arrested and brought to trial in the police court of a city of this state for a violation of a city ordinance, is not entitled to a jury trial. Zelle v. McHenry, 51 Id., 572.

CHANGE OF VENUE.

Sec. 4670. [Change of venue.]-If a change of venue be applied for, an affidavit must be filed stating that the justice is prejudiced against the defendant, or is of near relation to the prosecutor upon the charge, or the party injured or interested, or is a material witness for either party, or that the defendant cannot obtain justice before him, as the affiant verily believes.

Sec. 4671. [Same.]-If such affidavit be filed the change of venue must be allowed, and the justice must immediately transmit all the original papers, and a transcript of all his docket entries in the case to the next nearest justice in the township, unless said justice be a party to the action, or is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree, or where he has been attorney for either party in the action or proceeding, and in such case the justice before whom such action or proceeding is commenced, shall transmit all the original papers, together with a transcript of all his docket entries to the next nearest justice in the county against whom none of the above objections exist, who may require the defendant to plead as provided in section four thousand six hundred and sixty-seven of this chapter, if he has not already done so, and shall proceed to try the case, unless a jury trial be demanded, but no more than one change of venue in the same case shall be allowed.

Where a justice of the peace, to whom a criminal case comes by change of venue, refuses to act, no other justice of the peace can take jurisdiction and try the case. Connell v. Stelson, 33 Iowa, 147.

Where a change of venue is granted in a criminal cause pending before a justice of the peace, the fact that the next nearest justice is a material witness for the defendant, is no reason why the cause should not be sent to him as this section requires. The State v. McEvoy, 68 Id., 355.

In this section, the clause providing that, the justice before whom the cause is commenced shall transmit the papers, etc., "to the next nearest justice in the county against whom none of the above objections exist," refers only to the objections enumerated in this section, and not those named in section 4670, which are required to be made by affidavit as a ground for change of venue. Accordingly where the defendant included in his affidavit for change of venue, an allegation that he could not obtain justice before the other justice of the same township, he being the next nearest justice, such allegation was properly stricken out, on motion, and there being no legal objection the cause was properly sent to the next nearest justice, and he thereby acquired jurisdiction thereof. Albertson v. Kriechbaum, Sheriff, 65 Id., 11.

SELECTION OF JURY.

Sec. 4672. [Jury trial.]-Before the justice has heard any testimony upon the trial the defendant may demand a trial by jury.

Sec. 4673. [Jury: how obtained.]-If a trial by jury be demanded, the justice shall direct any peace officer of the county to make a list in writing of the names of eighteen inhabitants of the county having the qualifications of jurors in the district court, from which list the prosecutor and defendant may each strike out three names.

When a justice of the peace is about to issue a venire for a jury in a criminal cause to a certain peace officer, the prosecutor may properly file al motion, supported by affidavit, showing that such officer is prejudiced against the prosecution, and is likely to select jurors to the prejudice of the state, and asking that the venire be issued to some other officer; and in such case it is the duty of the justice to institute an inquiry, and investigate the truth of the charge, and be governed accordingly. Rainbow v. Benson et al., 71 Iowa, 291.

SEC. 4674. [Same.]—In case the prosecutor or the defendant neglect or refuse to strike out such names, the justice shall direct some disinterested person to strike out the names for either or both of the parties so neglecting or refusing, and upon such names being struck out, the justice may issue a venire directed to any peace officer of the county, requiring him to summon the twelve persons whose names remain upon the list, to appear before such justice at the time and place named therein, to make a jury for the trial of the cause.

SEC. 4675. [Jurors summoned.]—The officer to whom such venire is delivered must forthwith summon such jurors, and return the venire to the justice within the time therein specified, naming the persons summoned and the manner of service.

SEC. 4676. [Selection of jury.]—The names of the persons returned as jurors shall be written on separate ballots, folded each in the same manner as nearly as possible, and so that the name be not visible, and shall, under the direction of the justice, be deposited in a box or other convenient thing.

SEC. 4677. [Same.]—The justice must then draw out six of the ballots successively, and if any of the persons whose names are drawn do not appear, or are challenged, or are set aside, such further number must be drawn as will make a jury of six, after all legal challenges have been allowed.

SEC. 4678. [Challenges.]—The same challenges may be taken by either party to any individual juror as on the trial of an indictment for a misdemeanor, but no challenge to the panel is allowed.

SEC. 4679. [Talesmen.]—If any of the jurors named in the venire cannot be found, or do not attend, or are challenged by either party, so that a sufficient number cannot be obtained, the justice may direct the officer to summon any bystander or others who may be competent, and against whom no sufficient cause for challenge appears to act as jurors.

SEC. 4680. [Failure to return: new venire.]—If the officer by whom the venire is received do not return it as required, he may be punished by the justice as for contempt, and the justice shall issue a new venire for the summoning of the same jurors, upon which the same proceedings shall be had as upon the one first issued.

SEC. 4681. [Six a jury.]—When six jurors appear and are accepted, they shall constitute the jury.

SEC. 4682. [Oath.]—The justice must thereupon administer to them the following oath or affirmation: You do swear (or you do solemnly affirm, as the case may be), that you will well and truly try the issue between the state of Iowa and the defendant, and a true verdict give according to the evidence.

TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

SEC. 4683. [Proceedings of jury.]—After the jury are sworn, they must sit together and hear the proof and allegations of the parties, which must be delivered in public. After which, they may either decide in court or retire for consideration.

SEC. 4684. [Retire with officer: oath.]—If they do not immediately agree they must retire with the officer, who shall be sworn to the following effect: "You do swear that you will keep the jury together in some private and convenient place, without meat or drink, unless otherwise ordered by the court; that you will not permit any person to speak to them, nor speak to them yourself, unless it be to ask them whether they have agreed upon a verdict, and that you will return them into court when they have so agreed."

SEC. 4685. [Verdict.]—When the jury have agreed upon their verdict, they must deliver it publicly to the justice, who shall enter it on his docket.

SEC. 4686. [Kept together.]—The jury must be kept together after the cause is submitted to them, until they have agreed upon and rendered their verdict, unless, for good cause, the justice sooner discharge them.

SEC. 4687. [Discharged.]—If the jury be discharged as provided in the last section, the justice may proceed again to the trial in the same manner as upon the first trial; and so on till a verdict is rendered.

SEC. 4688. [Judgment.]—When the defendant pleads guilty, or is convicted, either by the justice or by a jury, the justice shall render judgment thereon, of fine, or imprisonment, as the case may require, being governed by the rules prescribed for the district court, as far as the same are applicable, in rendering such judgment.

SEC. 4689. [Same.]—A judgment that the defendant pay a fine may also direct that he be imprisoned until the fine is satisfied.

The judgment of a justice of the peace committing a defendant to prison until the payment of the fine imposed, is not void because it does not specify the extent of the imprisonment, the limit in such case being fixed by the statute. Jackson v. Boyd, 53 Iowa, 593. But a justice of the peace has no authority to commit a defendant for non-payment of a fine for contempt, unless the judgment imposing the fine provides for imprisonment, and he is liable for damages in an action of tort to a person so illegally committed. Lanpher v. Dewell et al., 56 Id., 153.

SEC. 4690. [Defendant discharged.]—When the defendant is acquitted, either by the justice, or by a jury, he must be immediately discharged.

SEC. 4691. [Costs: appeal: notice: justice make statement: transcript: papers filed: court compel correction.]—When the defendant is acquitted, the justice shall, if he is satisfied that the prosecution is malicious or without probable cause, tax the costs against the prosecuting witness and render judgment therefor, from which he may appeal to the district court by there giving notice to the justice that he claims such appeal, and the fact of the giving of such notice shall be entered on his record by the justice. If notice of appeal is given as herein contemplated, the justice shall, without delay, make out, sign and file in the case a full and true statement of all the testimony admitted on the trial, and on which he bases his finding that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause, and shall, without delay, make out a transcript of his docket entries, and shall file it, together with the statement of the testimony as aforesaid, and all other papers on file in the case, in the clerk's office of the district court of the county. And such appeal shall stand for hearing in said court at the term thereof commencing next after said papers are filed. And said court shall have full power to compel the correction by said justice of any error made apparent in his transcript, said statement of testimony, or in any papers returned by him, or may itself make the necessary correction therein, and may, on the papers, in case they shall be submitted to it, either affirm or reverse the judgment of the justice, or render such judgment as the justice should have rendered in the case.

The power conferred by this section upon a justice of the peace to tax the costs against a prosecuting witness, when satisfied that the prosecution was malicious or without probable cause, may also be exercised by the district court on a trial of the case on appeal, though such order had not been made by the justice before whom it was tried. In re Trenchard, 16 Iowa, 52.

This power may be exercised without the hearing of any evidence on the part of the state in addition to that submitted on the trial of the cause, if that is sufficient to show the want of probable cause; and when the evidence given on the trial is not embraced in the record, the supreme court will presume that it was sufficient. Id.
The person who files an information in a criminal action is considered the prosecuting witness.

A prosecuting witness, who has been adjudged by a justice of the peace to pay the costs of prosecution, may, in the name of the state, appeal from the judgment of the justice to the district court.  The State v. Honey, 37 Iowa, 30.

A justice of the peace may legally tax the costs in a criminal prosecution, dismissed by him; before final trial, for reason of a failure of the prosecuting witness to appear and prosecute to the state, to be paid by the county.  Cassady v. Palo Alto Co., 58 Id., 125;  Palo Alto Co. v. Moncrief, Id., 131. In the absence of any counter showing it will be presumed that in thus taxing the costs to the state to be paid by the county, in such a case that the discretion of the justice was properly exercised.  Id.

Where an appeal is taken from the order of a justice of the peace taxing the costs in a criminal prosecution against a prosecuting witness, the district court is to determine simply whether or not the justice abused the discretion which the law reposes in him in such cases, and, for the purpose of doing this, it must put itself as nearly as possible in the place of the justice, by considering the evidence only that was before the justice, as shown by his transcript (corrected if necessary), and new or additional evidence is not admissible.  The State v. Kerns, 64 Id., 806.

SEC. 4692. [Certificate of conviction.]—Whenever a conviction is had upon a plea of guilty, or upon a trial, the justice must make and sign with his name of office, a certificate of such conviction, in which it shall be sufficient briefly to state the offense charged and the conviction and judgment thereon, and if any fine has been collected, the amount thereof.

SEC. 4693. [Judgment: how executed.]—The judgment shall be executed by a peace officer of the county where the conviction is had, by virtue of a warrant under the hand of the justice specifying the particulars of such judgment.

SEC. 4694. [Fine.]—If a fine be imposed, and paid before commitment, it shall be received by the justice, and by him paid over to the county treasurer, within thirty days after the receipt thereof, for the use of the schools of the county, as provided by law.

SEC. 4695. [Same.]—If the defendant be committed for not paying a fine, he may pay it to the sheriff of the county but to no other person, who must in like manner, within thirty days after the receipt thereof, pay it into the county treasury, for the use of the schools in the county, as provided by law.

SEC. 4696. [Same.]—If the fine, or any part thereof, is paid to the justice or sheriff, he must execute duplicate receipts therefor, one of which he must file without delay, with the county auditor.

SEC. 4697. [How taken.]—The justice rendering a judgment against the defendant, must inform him of his right to an appeal therefrom, and make an entry on the docket of the giving of such information, and the defendant may thereupon take an appeal, by giving notice orally to the justice, that he appeals, and the justice must make an entry on his docket of the giving of such notice.

The district court can acquire no appellate jurisdiction of a criminal case by the mere filing of an appeal bond. The appeal can be taken only by giving the notice required by this section to the justice who rendered the judgment.  The State v. Leyden, 13 Iowa, 433.

Under section 5094 of the revision, the state, in a criminal trial before a justice of the peace, had the right of appeal to the district court as well as the defendant.  The State v. Tait, 22 Id., 140 but that section has been omitted from the code.

That section (5094) was afterwards held to be in conflict with that clause of the constitution of the state declaring that “no person shall after acquittal be tried for the same offense” in  The State v. Van Horton, 26 Id., 402.

An appeal will lie to the district court from the judgment of the mayor of a town, incorporated under the general law, for the violation of a town ordinance.  State for use, etc., v. Hoag, 46 Id., 337.

A prosecuting witness who has been adjudged by a justice of the peace to pay the costs of a criminal prosecution, may, in the name of the state, appeal from the judgment of the justice to the district court.  The State v. Honey, 37 Id., 30.

A writ of error does not lie from the district court to an inferior court in criminal cases. The only mode of review is by appeal.  The State v. Finn, 51 Id., 133;  The City of Ottumwa v. Schaub, 52 Id., 515.

Where on a conviction before a justice of the peace, the justice informs the defendant of his right to appeal, and the defendant gives the requisite notice the appeal is taken. Anderson v. Park, 57 Ia. 69.

SEC. 4698. [Bail: form of bond.]—The justice must thereupon enter an order on his docket, fixing the amount in which bail may be given by the defendant, and the execution of the judgment against the defendant, shall not be stayed, unless bail in that amount be put in, by an undertaking substantially in the following form:

County of ............

A. B. having been convicted before C. D., a justice of the peace of said county, of the crime of (here designate it generally as in the information), by a judgment rendered on the ......day of ......, A. D. 18..., and having appealed from said judgment to the district court of said county:

We, A. B., and E. F. (or I, E. F. and G. A.), hereby undertake that the said A. B. will appear in the district court of said county, at the term thereof to which the appeal is returnable, and abide the judgment of said court, and not depart without leave of the same, or that we (or I, as the case may be) will pay to the state of Iowa the sum of ....dollars (the amount of bail fixed).

A. B.
E. F.
(as the case may be).

Acknowledged before, and accepted by me, at ...., in the township of ........, this ......day of ...., 18... C. D.,

Justice of the Peace.

The condition of an appeal bond in a criminal case, should be, that the defendant will appear, will not depart from the court without leave, and will abide the judgment of the court. A bond conditioned that the defendant will pay whatever amount may be adjudged against him, cannot be required. The State v. Beneke, 9 Iowa, 203.

SEC. 4699. [Qualifications.]—The bail must possess the qualifications, must justify, and must be taken in the same manner prescribed in chapter thirty-eight of this title, and the same proceedings had in all respects, as nearly as applicable, except in this chapter otherwise provided.

SEC. 4700. [By whom taken.]—The bail may be taken by the justice who rendered the judgment, or by any magistrate in the county who has authority to admit to bail, or by the district court or the clerk thereof.

SEC. 4701. [Witness bound over.]—When an appeal is taken, the justice must cause all material witnesses to enter into an undertaking, as in a case where a defendant is held to answer on a preliminary examination, to appear and testify on the trial of the appeal in the district court, at the term at which it is returnable, and shall as soon as practicable, and at least ten days before the first day of such term of the district court of the county, file in the office of the clerk thereof a certified copy of the entries on his docket, together with all the undertakings and papers in the case.

TRIAL IN DISTRICT COURT.

SEC. 4702. [Trial when appealed.]—The cause, when thus appealed, shall stand for trial anew in the district court, in the same manner that it should have been tried before the justice, and as nearly as practicable as an issue of fact upon an indictment, without regard to technical errors or defects which have not prejudiced the substantial rights of either party; and the court has full power over the case, the justice of the peace, his docket entries, and his return, to administer the justice of the case accordingly.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal action is a waiver of irregularities in the justice's court, the case then standing in the district court for a trial de novo upon its merits. State v. McCombs, 13 Iowa, 426.
When the record discloses that in the trial before the justice, the defendant was present and asked for a jury, a plea of "not guilty" will be presumed, if the justice has failed to enter it upon his docket. Id.

In such cases the district court may, under section 3586 of the code, order a plea of "not guilty" to be supplied as an omission apparent on the face of the record. Id.

Sec. 4703. Appeal not dismissed.—No appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal case shall be dismissed.

Sec. 4704. District court.—If any proceedings be necessary to carry the judgment upon the appeal into effect, they shall be had in the district court.

Sec. 4705. Either party may appeal.—Either party may appeal from the judgment of the district court, to the supreme court, in the same manner as from a judgment in a prosecution by indictment, and the defendant may be admitted to bail in like manner, and similar proceedings shall be had on the appeal in all respects, as nearly as applicable.

Sec. 4706. Judgment upon appeal.—The same proceedings shall be had to carry into effect the judgment of the supreme court upon the appeal, as if it had been taken from a judgment prosecuted by indictment.

OF PROCEEDINGS BEFORE POLICE AND CITY COURTS IN INCORPORATED CITIES AND TOWNS.

Sections 4707. [Proceedings in police court.]

—The proceedings in police and city courts in incorporated cities and towns, in criminal cases within their jurisdiction, shall be regulated by the provisions of this code, when not otherwise regulated by law.

A party brought to trial in a police court of a city of this state charged with a violation of a city ordinance is not entitled to jury trial; nor is he entitled to demand a change of venue. Zelle v. McHenry, 51 Iowa, 572.

CHAPTER 54.

ON COMPROMISING CERTAIN OFFENSES BY LEAVE OF THE COURT.

Section 4708. [Offense may be compromised: exceptions.]

—When a defendant is prosecuted in a criminal action for a misdemeanor, for which the person injured by the act constituting the offense has a remedy by a civil action, the offense may be compromised as provided in the next section, except when it was committed:

1. By, or upon an officer while in the execution of the duties of his office;
2. Riotously; or,
3. With an intent to commit a felony.

Sec. 4709. [Same: court may stay proceedings.]

—If the party injured in such a case, appear before the court to which the papers on a preliminary examination are required to be returned, at any time before trial, on an indictment for the offense, or the trial of an appeal in the district court, and acknowledge in writing that he has received satisfaction for the injury, the court may in its discretion, on payment of the costs incurred, order all proceedings to be stayed upon the prosecution, and the defendant to be discharged therefrom. But in that case the reason for the order must be set forth therein, and entered upon the minutes.
CHAPTER 55.

OF PARDONS AND THE REMISSION OF FINES AND FORFEITURES.

SECTION 4712. [Governor may remit fines and forfeitures.]—The governor shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures upon such conditions and with such restrictions and limitations as he may think proper. After conviction of murder in the first degree no pardon shall be granted by the governor until he shall have presented the matter to, and obtained the advice of, the general assembly thereon. Before presenting the matter to the general assembly for their action, he shall cause a notice containing the reasons assigned for granting the pardon to be published in two newspapers of general circulation, one of which shall be published at the capital and the other in the county where the conviction was had, and if there be no such paper in such county, then in some adjoining county, for four successive weeks, the last publication to be at least twenty days prior to the commencement of the session of the general assembly to which the matter shall be presented.

The governor of the state has the power to annex to a pardon any condition precedent or subsequent, provided it be not illegal, immoral, or impossible to be performed. Arthur v. Craig, 48 Iowa, 264.

Where a pardon was granted by the governor upon certain conditions, and it was stipulated therein that upon any violation of such conditions the person pardoned should be liable to summary arrest, and to confinement in the penitentiary for the remainder of the term for which he had been sentenced, and it was further stipulated that the judgment of the executive should be conclusive as to the violations of the conditions of the pardon, held, that upon the violation of the conditions of the pardon the legal status of the party became the same as it was before the pardon was granted. Id.

A general pardon from the governor to a convict does not operate as a remission of the judgment for costs against him. Estep v. Lacy, 35 Id., 419.

SECTION 4713. [Application for pardon.]—When an application is made to the governor for a pardon, reprieve, or commutation, or for the remission of a fine or forfeiture, he may require the judge of the court, or the district attorney, or attorney-general, by whom the action was prosecuted, or the clerk of such court, to furnish him without delay a copy of the minutes of the evidence taken on the trial, and of any other facts having reference to the propriety of his exercise of his powers in the premises. He may also take the testimony of such persons bearing upon such application as he may deem advisable, and for this purpose is authorized to administer the necessary oath. Any person who, in giving such testimony, shall swear falsely, and any person who shall knowingly and corruptly make any false statements in an affidavit intended to be used in connection with an application for pardon, or for remission of fine or forfeiture, shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be punished therefor as provided by law.

SECTION 4714. [When officer to make return to secretary of state.]—Whenever any convict is pardoned, or reprieved, or his sentence commuted, or any fine or forfeiture is remitted, it is the duty of the officer to whom the warrant is directed, as soon as may be after executing the same, to make a return in writing thereon to the secretary of state of his doings under the same, and sign the same with his name of office, and must also file in the office of the clerk of the court in which

OF ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN.

SECTION 4715. [Complaint may be made.]—When any woman residing in any county of the state is delivered of a bastard child, or is pregnant with a child, which, if born alive, will be a bastard, complaint may be made in writing by any person to the district court of the county where she resides, stating that fact, and charging the proper person with being the father thereof. The proceedings shall be entitled in the name of the state against the accused as defendant.

The mother of an illegitimate child may, by a fair settlement, founded upon a reasonable consideration with the putative father, preclude herself and the county from the right to maintain a proceeding under the provisions of the statute relating to bastardy to secure to her the maintenance of the child. Black Hawk County v. Cotter, 32 Iowa, 120; Holmes v. The State, 2 G. Greene, 501.

In a proceeding in bastardy, under this section, a defendant may be found guilty upon the unsupported evidence of the prosecutrix. Such an action is triable by ordinary proceedings, and a preponderance of evidence, only, is necessary to a conviction. The State v. McGlothlen, 56 Id., 544.

The circuit court has no power to order that the defendant in a bastardy proceeding shall pay specified sums at fixed periods for the maintenance of the child. This power is reserved to the district court. Id.

This decision was made under the statute as it stood prior to the code of 1873. Under the code it would seem that the circuit court has no jurisdiction whatever in bastardy cases.

The statute respecting proceedings to enforce the support of bastard children by their fathers are merely local police regulations, and cannot be enforced beyond the limits of the state; but where the local jurisdiction has attached, and the courts of the state have taken cognizance and rendered judgment for the penalty prescribed by the statute, such judgment is entitled to full faith and credit in every other state. The State of Indiana, ex rel. Stone, v. Helmer, 21 Id., 370.

As to the jurisdiction of the county court in bastardy cases, see Mills County v. Hamaker, 11 Id., 206.

A man who marries a woman known by him to be enceinte is regarded by the law as adopting the child into his family at its birth, and he becomes liable for its support as a parent, and an action against the natural father for its support as a bastard will not lie, but this rule of adoption does not apply in cases involving questions of heirship and inheritance. The State v. Shoemaker, 62 Id., 343.

SEC. 4716. [Filing: notice to be given.]—Upon the filing of the complaint, the clerk shall cause notice to be given to the person so charged as in an ordinary action.

SEC. 4717. [Lien created.]—From the time of the filing of such complaint, a lien shall be created upon the real property of the accused in the county where the action is pending, for the payment of any money and the performance of any order adjudged by the proper court.

SEC. 4718. [When complaint verified district judge to issue attachment.]—If the complaint is verified, the district judge may order an attachment to issue thereon without bond, which order shall specify the amount of property to be seized under the attachment, and may be revoked at any time by such judge or the district court, on a showing made to either for a revocation of the same, and on such terms as such court or judge may deem proper in the premises.

SEC. 4719. [District attorney prosecute.]—The district attorney, on being notified of the facts justifying a complaint as contemplated in section four thousand seven hundred and fifteen of this chapter, or of the filing of such complaint, shall prosecute the matter in behalf of the complainant.
Sec. 4720. [Issue how tried.]—The issue on the trial shall be “guilty” or “not guilty,” and shall be tried as an ordinary action.

In a proceeding in bastardy, under this section, a defendant may be found guilty upon the unsupported evidence of the prosecutrix. Such an action is triable by ordinary proceedings, and a preponderance of evidence only is necessary to a recovery. The State v. McGlothlen, 61 Iowa, 312.

Sec. 4721. [Judgment and execution.]—If the accused be found guilty, he shall be charged with the maintenance of the child in such sum or sums, and in such manner as the court shall direct, and with the costs of the suit; and the clerk may issue execution for any sum ordered to be paid immediately, and afterwards, from time to time, as it shall be required to compel compliance with the order of the court.

Under this section the defendant in a bastardy proceeding is not liable for the lying in expenses of the mother, and a judgment against him even for costs was held erroneous, there being no liability except such as the statute provides. State v. Beatty.

Sec. 4722. [Court may enlarge, diminish or vacate order.]—The court may, at any time, enlarge, diminish or vacate any order or judgment rendered in the proceeding herein contemplated, on such notice to the defendant as the court or judge may prescribe.
TITLE XXVI.

OF THE DISCIPLINE AND GOVERNMENT OF PRISONS, AND OF THE PENITENTIARY, ITS GOVERNMENT AND DISCIPLINE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF IMPRISONMENT FOR PUBLIC OFFENSES, AND THE DISCIPLINE OF PRISONS.

SECTION 4723. [Jails: for what used.]—The common jails now erected, or which may hereafter be erected in the several counties in this state, in charge of the respective sheriffs, are to be used as prisons:
1. For the detention of prisoners charged with an offense, and duly committed for trial or examination;
2. For the detention of persons who may be duly committed to secure their attendance as witnesses on the trial of any criminal cause;
3. For the confinement of persons pursuant to sentence upon conviction for any offense, and of all other persons duly committed for any cause authorized by law;
4. The provisions of this section extend to persons detained or committed by authority of the courts of the United States as well as the courts and magistrates of this state.

SEC. 4724. [Keeper's duty.]—It is the duty of the keeper of the jail of the county to see that the same is constantly kept in a cleanly and healthy condition, and he must pay strict attention to the personal cleanliness of all the prisoners in his custody as far as may be. Each prisoner must be furnished daily with as much clean water as may be necessary for drink and for personal cleanliness, and with a clean towel and shirt once a week, and must be served three times each day with wholesome food, which must be well cooked, and in sufficient quantity.

SEC. 4725. [Sheriff's duty.]—The sheriff of the county must keep a true and exact calendar of all prisoners committed to any prison under his care, which calendar must contain the names of all persons who are committed, their place of abode, the time of their commitment, the time of discharge, the cause of commitment, the authority that committed them, and description of their person; and when any prisoner is liberated, such calendar must state the time when, and the authority by which such liberation took place; and if any person escape, it must state particularly the time and manner of such escape.

SEC. 4726. [Calendard for district court.]—At the opening of each term of the district court within his county, the sheriff must return a copy of such calendar under his hand to the judge of such court; and if any sheriff neglect or refuse so to do, he shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

SEC. 4727. [What furnished prisoners.]—The keeper of each jail must furnish necessary bedding, clothing, fuel and medical aid for all prisoners under his charge, and keep an accurate account of the same.

SEC. 4728. [When jail takes fire.]—Whenever, by reason of any jail being on fire, or any building contiguous or near to a jail being on fire, there be reason to apprehend that the prisoners confined in such jail may be injured or endangered thereby, the sheriff or keeper of such jail may, at his discretion, remove such prisoners to some safe and convenient place, and there confine them so long as may be necessary to avoid such danger.

(Chapter 176, Laws of 1886.)

RELATING TO SEPARATE APARTMENTS IN JAILS AND PRISONS FOR FEMALES.

An Act providing for a separate apartment in jails and prisons for the detention of females, and making their detention otherwise unlawful.

SECTION 1. [Separate apartments shall be provided in jails and prisons for females.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: All jails and prisons now erected or which may be hereafter erected in the several counties and cities in this state, shall be provided with a separate apartment for the detention of females in such jail or prison.

SEC. 2. [Females shall be detained in separate apartments.]—All females detained in such jail or prison shall be so detained only in the female apartment thereof, and it shall be unlawful for any sheriff or keeper of any jail to detain at the same time both males and females in the same apartment.

Approved, April 13, 1886.

INSPECTOR OF JAILS.

SEC. 4729. [Who constitute.]—In each county of this state the judge of the circuit court and district attorney are inspectors of the jails respectively, and have power, from time to time, to visit and inspect the same, and inquire into all matters connected with the government, discipline and police of such prisons.

SEC. 4730. [Their duty.]—It is the duty of such inspectors to visit and inspect such prisons twice each year, and at the next district court which is thereafter held in their county, to present to such court on the first day of its sitting, a detailed report of the condition of such prisons at the time of such inspection.

SEC. 4731. [Report.]—Such report must state the number of persons confined in such prison, and for what cause respectively, the number of persons usually confined in one room, the distinction, if any, usually observed in the treatment of the prisoners, the evils, if any, found to exist in such prisons; and particularly whether any provisions of this chapter have been violated or neglected, and the cause of such violation or neglect.

SEC. 4732. [Rights to inspect given fully.]—The keepers of such prisons shall admit the said inspectors, or any of them, into any part of such prisons, to exhibit to them on demand, all the books, papers, documents and accounts pertaining to the prison or to the prisoners confined therein, and to render them every other facility in their power to enable them to discharge the duties above prescribed.

SEC. 4733. [May swear officers.]—For the purpose of obtaining the necessary information to enable them to make such reports as is above required in this chapter, the said inspectors have power to examine on oath, to be administered by either of them, any of the officers of such prison, or any of the prisoners therein.

SEC. 4734. [Refractory prisoners.]—If any person confined in any jail upon a conviction or charge of any offense, is refractory or disorderly, or if he willfully destroy or injure any article of bedding, or other furniture, door or window, or any other part of such prison, the sheriff of the county, after due inquiry, may chain and secure such person, or cause him to be kept in solitary confinement not more than ten days for any one offense; and during such solitary confinement he may be fed with bread and water only, unless other food is necessary for the preservation of his health.

Sec. 4735. [Expenses of jail.]—All charges and expenses of safe keeping, and maintaining convicts and persons charged with public offenses and committed for examination or trial to the county jail, shall be paid from the county treasury, the accounts thereof being first settled and allowed by the board of supervisors; except prisoners committed or detained by the authority of the courts of the United States, in which case the United States must pay such expenses to the county.

A sheriff may procure the articles he is required by the statute to furnish for the use of the prisoners in his custody on the credit of his county, and the persons furnishing the same may maintain an action directly against the county for the purchase price. The person thus supplying articles for prisoners is bound to know that the articles supplied are suitable for the purpose, and possibly that they are necessary, but he is not required to determine beyond that whether or not the sheriff has properly exercised the discretion vested in him by the statute. Fildheimer v. The County of Woodbury, 56 Iowa, 379.

This section was not intended to fix the fees or compensation of the sheriff for any services performed by him in, and about the keeping of, prisoners in the county jail, but its object and purpose was to designate the source from whence the money should come to pay all legal charges and expenses connected with the safe keeping and maintenance of prisoners in the county jails. Grubb v. Louisa County, 40 Id., 314.

The sheriff who employs a jailor, and not the county, is liable for the payment of his services. McDonald v. Woodbury County, 48 Id., 404.

The sheriff has power to bind the county for necessaries of a prisoner in his custody awaiting preliminary examination; and where a prisoner cannot be confined in the jail, the county is responsible for the necessaries furnished him while in custody elsewhere. Miller v. Dickinson County, 68 Id., 103.

HARD LABOR.
