Sec. 9. [Penalty for violation or omission.]—That in case any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall do, cause to be done, or permit to be done, any act, matter or thing in this act prohibited, or declared to be unlawful, or shall omit to do any act, matter or thing, in this act required to be done, such common carrier shall be liable to the person or persons injured thereby, for three times the amount of damages sustained in consequence of any such violation of the provisions of this act, together with costs of suit and a reasonable counsel or attorney's fee, to be fixed by the court in which the same is heard on appeal or otherwise, which shall be taxed and collected as part of the costs in the case; provided, that in all cases demand in writing on said common carrier shall be made for the money damages sustained before suit is brought for recovery under this section, and that no suit shall be brought until the expiration of fifteen days after such demand.

Sec. 10. [Complaint to railroad commissioners, etc.]—That any person or persons claiming to be damaged by any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act, may either make complaint to the board of railroad commissioners of this state or may bring suit in his or their own behalf for the recovery of damages for which any such common carrier may be liable under the provisions of this act, in any court of this state of competent jurisdiction; but such person or persons shall not have the right to pursue both of said remedies at the same time.

[Attendance of witnesses and evidence.]—In any such action brought for the recovery of damages, the court before whom the same shall be pending may compel any director, officer, receiver, trustee or agent of the corporation or company, defendant in such suit, to attend, appear and testify in such case, and may compel the production of books and papers of such corporation or company party to any such suit; the claims that any such testimony or evidence may tend to criminate the person giving such evidence shall not excuse such person or witness from testifying or producing said books and papers; but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person in any way on the trial of any criminal proceedings.

Sec. 11. [Violation by individual or agent, and penalty.]—That except as otherwise specially provided for in sections twenty-three to twenty-eight inclusive, of this act, and unless relieved from the consequences of a violation of the law as provided in section fifteen of this act, any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act, or whenever such common carrier is a corporation, any director or officer thereof, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, agent or person acting for, or employed by such corporation, who, alone or with any other corporation, company, person or party, shall willfully do, or cause to be done, or shall willingly suffer or permit to be done any act, matter or thing in this act prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or who shall aid or abet therein, or shall willfully omit or fail to do any act, matter or thing in this act required to be done, or shall cause or willingly suffer, or permit any act, matter or thing so directed or required by this act to be done, not to be so done, or shall aid or abet any such omission, or failure, or shall be guilty of any infraction of this act, or shall aid or abet therein, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction thereof in any district court of this state of competent jurisdiction, be subject to a fine of not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000) and not less than five hundred dollars ($500) for each offense.

Sec. 12. [Commissioners may inquire into business of common carriers.]—That it shall be the duty of, and the board of railroad commissioners of this state shall have authority to inquire into the management of the business of all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act, and shall keep itself informed as to the manner and method in which the same is conducted, and shall have the right to obtain from such common carriers full and complete information necessary to enable the said commissioners to perform the duties and carry out the object for which said board was created, and which are contemplated by this act; and for the purposes of this act the said commissioners shall have power to require the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and the production of all books, papers, tariffs, schedules, contracts, agreements and documents relating to any matter under investigation, and to that end may invoke the aid of any court of this state in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and the production of all books, papers and document under the provisions of this section. And any court of this state, within the jurisdiction of which such inquiry is carried on, shall, in case of contumacy, or refusal to obey a subpoena, or other process issued to any common carrier or person subject to the provisions of this act, or other person, issue an order requiring such common carrier, or other person, to appear before said commissioners (and produce books and papers if so ordered) and give evidence touching or in relation to the matter in question; and any failure to obey such order of the court shall be punished by such court as a contempt thereof; the claim that any such testimony or evidence may tend to criminate the person giving such evidence shall not excuse such person or witness from testifying; but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person on the trial of any criminal proceeding.

Sec. 13. [Complaint: mode of entering and making.]—That any person, firm, corporation or association, or any mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, or any body politic or municipal organization, complaining of anything done or omitted to be done, by any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act, in contravention of the provisions thereof, may apply to said commissioners by petition, which shall briefly state the facts whereupon a statement of the complaint thus made, with the damages, if any are alleged, shall be forwarded by the said commissioners to such common carrier who shall be called upon to satisfy the complaint, or to answer the same in writing within a reasonable time to be specified by the commissioners. If such common carrier within the time specified shall make reparation for the injury alleged to have been done, or shall correct the wrong complained of, said carrier shall be relieved of liability to the complainant only for the particular violation of the law thus complained of. If such common carrier shall not satisfy the complaint within the time specified, or there shall appear to be any reasonable ground for investigating said complaint, it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to investigate the matters complained of in such manner and by such means as said commissioners shall deem proper, and said commissioners, whenever they have sufficient reason to believe that any common carrier is violating any of the provisions of this act, shall at once institute an inquiry in the same manner, and to the same effect, as though complaint had been made. No complaint shall at any time be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant or complainants or petitioners.

Sec. 14. [Investigations: report of findings.]—That whenever an investigation shall be made by said commissioners after notice as provided by section 13 of this act, it shall be their duty to make a report in writing in respect thereto, which shall include the findings of fact upon which the conclusions of the commissioners are based, together with its or their recommendation or orders as to what reparation, if any, should be made by the common carrier to any party, or parties, who may be found to have been injured; and such finding, so made, shall thereafter in all judicial proceedings be deemed and taken as prima facie evidence as to each and every fact found. All reports of investigation made by said commissioners shall be entered of record, and a copy thereof shall be furnished to the party who may have complained and any other person or persons directly interested, and to any common carrier that may have been complained of.

Sec. 15. [Findings of the commissioners.]—That if in any case in which an investigation shall be made by said commissioners it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the commissioners, either by the testimony of witnesses or other evidence, that anything has been done or omitted to be done in violation of the provisions of this act or of any law cognizable by said commissioners by any common carrier, or that any injury or damages has been sustained by the party or parties complaining or by other parties aggrieved in consequence of any such violation, it shall be the duty of said commissioners forthwith to cause a copy of their report in respect thereto to be delivered to such common carrier, together with a notice to said common carrier to cease and desist from such violation, or to make reparation for the injury so found to have been done, or both, within a reasonable time to be specified by the commissioners; and if within the time specified it shall be made to appear to the commissioners that such common carrier has ceased from such violation of law and has made reparation for the injury found to have been done in compliance with the report and notice of the commissioners, or to the satisfaction of the party complaining, a statement to that effect shall be entered of record by the commissioners and the said common carrier shall thereupon be relieved from further liability or penalty for such particular violation of law.

Sec. 16. [Refusal or neglect to obey board of commissioners' requirements.]—That whenever any common carrier as defined in and subject to the provisions of this act shall violate or refuse or neglect to obey any lawful order or requirement of the said board of railroad commissioners, it shall be the duty of said commissioners, and lawful for any company or person interested in such order or requirement to apply in a summary way, by petition to the district or superior court in any county of this state in which the common carrier complained of has its principal office, or in any county through which its line or road passes or is operated, or in which the violation or disobedience of such order or requirement shall happen, alleging such violation or disobedience, as the case may be; and the said court shall have power to hear and determine the matter, on such short notice to the common carrier complained of as the court shall deem reasonable; and such notice may be served on such common carrier, his or its officers, agents or servants in such manner as the court shall direct; and said court shall proceed to hear and determine the matter speedily as a court of equity and without the formal pleadings and proceedings applicable to ordinary suits in equity, but in such manner as to do justice in the premises; and to this end such court shall have power, if it think fit, to direct and prosecute, in such mode and by such persons as it may appoint, all such inquiries as the court may think needful to enable it to form a just judgment in the matter of such petition; and on such hearing the report of said commissioners shall be prima facie evidence of the matter therein, or in any order made by them stated; and if it be made to appear to such court on such hearing or on the report of any such person or persons, that the order or requirement of said commissioners drawn in question, has been violated or disobeyed, it shall be lawful for such court to issue a writ of injunction, or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such common carrier from further continuing such violation or disobedience of such order or requirement of said commissioners and enjoining obedience to the same; and in case of any disobedience of any such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, it shall be lawful for such courts to issue writs of attachment, or any other process of said court incident or applicable to writs of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, against such common carrier, and if a corporation, against one or more of the directors, officers or agents of the same, or against any owner, lessee, trustee, receiver or other person failing to obey such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise; and said court may, if it shall think fit, make an order directing such common carrier or other person so disobeying such writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to pay such sum of money not exceeding for each carrier or person in default the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars for every day after a day to be named in the order that such carrier or other person shall fail to obey such injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise; and such monies (moneys) shall, upon the order of the court, be paid into the treasury of the county in which the action was commenced and one-half thereof shall be transferred by the county treasurer to the state treasury; and the payment thereof may, without prejudice to any other mode of recovering the same, be enforced by attachment or order, in the nature of a writ of execution, in like manner as if the same had been recovered by a final decree in personam in such court, saving to the commissioners and any other party or person interested the right of appeal to the supreme court of the state under the same regulations now provided by law in relation to appeals to said court as to security for such appeal, except that in no case shall security for such appeal be required when the same is taken by said commissioners; but no appeal to said supreme court shall operate to stay or supersede the order of the court, or the execution of any writ or process thereon; and such court may in every such matter order the payment of such costs and attorney and counsel fees as shall be deemed reasonable. Whenever any such peti­tion shall be filed or presented, or be prosecuted by the said commissioners, or by their direction it shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state to prosecute the same, and in such prosecution he shall have the right to have the assistance of any county attorney of the county in which any such proceedings are instituted, and it is hereby made the duty of any such county attorney to render such assistance; and the costs and expenses on the part of said commissioners of any such prosecution shall be paid out of the appropriations for the expenses of said board of commissioners.

Sec. 17. [Commissioners empowered to make schedules.]—The board of railroad commissioners of this state are hereby empowered and directed to make for each of the railroad corporations, doing business in this state, as soon as practicable, a schedule of reasonable maximum rates of charges for the transportation of freight and cars on each of said railroads, and said power to make schedules shall include the power of classification of all such freights, and it shall be the duty of said commissioners to make such classification; provided, that the said rates of charges to be so fixed by said commissioners shall not in any case exceed the rates which are or may hereafter be established by law; and said schedules so made by said commissioners, shall in all suits brought against any such railroad corporations, wherein is in any way involved the charges of any such railroad corporation for the transportation of any freight or cars or unjust discrimination in relation thereto, be deemed and taken in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence that the rates therein fixed are reasonable and just maximum rates of charges for the transportation of freight and cars upon the railroads for which said schedules may have been respectively prepared. Said commissioners shall from time to time, and as often as circumstances may require, change and revise said schedules, subject to the same provision that the rates fixed are not to be higher than now or hereafter established by law. When any schedule shall have been made or revised as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of said commissioners to cause notice thereof to be published for two successive weeks in some public newspaper published in the city of Des Moines in this state, which notice shall state the date of the taking effect of said schedule, and said schedule shall take effect at the time so stated in such notice and a printed copy of said revised schedule shall be conspicuously posted by such common carrier in each freight office and passenger depot upon its line or lines. All such schedules, so made, shall be received and held in all such suits as prima facie the schedule of said commissioners without further proof than the production of the schedule desired to be used as evidence, with a certificate of said railroad commissioners that the same is a true copy of the schedule prepared by them for the railroad company or corporation therein named, and that notice of making the same has been published as required by law; provided, that before finally fixing and deciding what the original maximum rates and classification shall be, it shall be the duty of the railroad commissioners to publish ten days notice in two daily papers published in Des Moines, setting forth in such notice that at a certain time and place they will proceed to fix and determine such maximum rates and classification; and they shall at such time and place and as soon as practicable afford to any person, firm, corporation or common carrier who may desire it an opportunity to make an explanation or showing or to furnish information to said commissioners on the subject of determining and fixing such maximum rates and classification; and in any event the original schedule of rates and classification of freights on all lines of railroads in Iowa shall be fixed and shall go into effect within sixty days from the taking effect of this act.

Sec. 18. [Investigation of violation of schedule.]—Whenever any person upon his own behalf, or class of persons similarly situated, or any firm, corporation or association, or any mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, or any body politic or municipal organization, shall make complaint to said board of railroad commissioners that the rate charged or published by any railroad company, or the maximum rates fixed by said commissioners in the schedules of rates made by them under the provisions of section 17 of this act, or the maximum rate that now or hereafter may be fixed by law is unreasonably high or discriminating, it shall be the duty of said commissioners to immediately investigate the matter of such complaint. If such complaint appears to be well founded and not trivial in character the board shall fix a day for hearing the same and shall notify the railroad company of the time and place of such hearing by mailing a notice, properly directed, to any division superintendent, general or assistant superintendent, general manager, president or secretary of such company, which notice shall contain the substance of the complaint so made, and the board shall also notify the person or persons complaining of such time and place.

SEC. 19. [Hearing of case as to violation.]—Upon such hearing so provided for, the said commissioners shall receive whatever evidence, statements or arguments either party may offer or make pertinent to the matter under investigation; and the burden of proof shall not be held to be upon the person or persons making the complaint, but the commissioners shall add to the showing made at such hearing whatever information they may then have, or can secure from any source whatsoever, and the person or persons complaining shall be entitled to introduce any published schedules of rates of any railroad company, or evidence of rates actually charged by any railroad company for substantially the same kind of service, whether in this or any other state; and the lowest rates published or charged by any railroad company for substantially the same kind of service, whether in this or any other state, shall, at the instance of the person or persons complaining, be accepted as prima facie evidence of a reasonable rate for the services under investigation, and if the railroad company complained of is operating a line of railroad beyond the state of Iowa, or if it appears that it has a traffic arrangement with any such railroad company, then the commissioners, in determining what is a reasonable rate, shall take into consideration the charge made or rate established by such railroad company or the company with which it has traffic arrangements for carrying freight from beyond the state to points within the state and from within the state to points beyond (the) state; and if such company be operating a line of railway beyond the state they shall also take into consideration the rate charged or established for a substantially similar or greater service by such company in any other state in which said railroad company operates a line of railway.

SEC. 20. [Decision of the commissioners in the matter.]—After such hearing and investigation the said commissioners shall fix and determine the maximum charge to be thereafter made by the railroad company or common carriers complained of, which charge shall in no event exceed the one now or hereafter fixed by law, and the said commissioners shall render their decision in writing, and shall spread the same at length in the record to be kept for that purpose; such decision shall specifically set out the sums or rate which the railroad company or common carrier, so complained of, may thereafter charge or receive for the service therein named and including a classification of such freight, and the said commissioners shall not be limited in their said decision and the schedule to be contained therein to the specific case or cases complained of, but it shall be extended to all such rates between points in this state and whatever part of the line of railway of such company or common carrier within this state as may have been fairly within the scope of such investigation, and any such decisions so made and entered on record of said commissioners, including any such schedules and classifications, shall, when duly authenticated, be received and held in all suits brought against any such railroad corporation or common carrier wherein is in any way involved the charges of any such corporation or carrier mentioned in said decisions, in any of the courts of this state, as prima facie evidence that the rates therein fixed are reasonable maximum rates, the same as the schedules made by said commissioners as provided in section 17 hereof; and the rates and classifications so established after such hearing and investigation shall from time to time thereafter, upon complaint duly made, be subject to revision by said commissioners the same as any other rates and classifications.
Sec. 21. [Conduct of proceedings.]—That the said board of railroad commissioners may in all cases conduct its proceedings, when not otherwise particularly prescribed by law, in such manner as will best conduce to the proper dispatch of business and to the ends of justice. A majority of the commissioners shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but no commissioner shall participate in any hearing or proceeding in which he has any pecuniary interest. Said commissioners may from time to time make or amend such general rules, or orders, as may be requisite for the order and regulation of proceedings before it, including forms of notices and the service thereof, which shall conform as nearly as may be to those in use in courts of this state. Any party may appear before said board of commissioners and be heard in person or by attorney. Every vote and official action of said board of commissioners shall be entered of record and its proceedings shall be public upon the request of either party or any person interested. Said board of railroad commissioners shall have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed, and every commissioner shall have the right to administer oaths and affirmations in any proceeding pending before said board.

Sec. 22. [Annual report required.]—The said board of railroad commissioners is hereby authorized to require annual reports from all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act, to fix the time and prescribe the manner in which such report shall be made and to require from such carriers specific answers to all questions upon which said commissioners may need information. Such annual reports shall show in detail the amount of the capital stock issued, the amounts paid therefor and the manner of the payment of the same; the dividends paid, the surplus fund if any, and the number of stockholders; the funded and floating debts and the interest paid thereon; the costs and value of the carrier’s property, franchises and equipment; the number of employees and the salaries paid each class; the amounts expended for improvements each year, how and where expended and the character of such improvements; the earnings and receipts from each branch of business, and from all sources; the operating and other expenses; the balances of profit and loss; and a complete exhibit of the financial operations of the carrier each year including an annual balance sheet. Such report shall also contain such information in relation to rates or regulations, concerning fares or freights, or agreements, arrangements, or contracts, with other common carriers as the commissioners may require; and the said board of commissioners may within its discretion for the purpose of enabling it the better to carry out the purpose of this act, (if in the opinion of the commissioners it is practicable to prescribe such uniformity and methods of keeping accounts) prescribe a period of time within which all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act shall have as near as may be a uniform system of accounts and the manner in which such accounts shall be kept.

Sec. 23. [Extortion and penalty.]—If any railroad corporation or common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall charge, collect, demand or receive more than a fair and reasonable rate of toll or compensation for the transportation of passengers or freight of any description or for the use and transportation of any railroad car upon its track, or any of the branches thereof, or upon any railroad within this state which it has the right, license or permission to use, operate or control, or shall make any unjust and unreasonable charge prohibited in section two (2) of this act, the same shall be deemed guilty of extortion, and shall be dealt with as hereinafter provided, and if any such railroad corporation, (or common carrier) shall be found guilty of any unjust discrimination as defined in section three (3) of this act, upon conviction thereof, shall be dealt with as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 24. [Discrimination defined and punished.]—If any such railroad corporation shall charge, collect or receive for the transportation of any passenger or freight of any description upon its railroad for any distance within this state, a greater amount of toll or compensation than is at the same time charged, collected or received for the transportation in the same direction of any passenger or like quantity of freight of the same class over a greater distance of the same railroad, or if it shall charge, collect or receive at any point upon its railroad a higher rate of toll or compensation for receiving, handling or delivering freight of the same class and quantity, than it shall at the same time charge, collect or receive at any other point upon the same railroad; or if it shall charge, collect or receive for the transportation of any passenger or freight of any description over its railroad a greater amount as toll or compensation than shall at the same time be charged, collected or received by it for the transportation of any passenger or like quantity of freight of the same class being transported in the same direction over any portion of the same railroad of equal distance; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person or persons a higher or greater amount of toll or compensation than it shall at the same time charge, collect or receive from any other person or persons for receiving, handling or delivering freight of the same class and like quantity, at the same point upon its railroad; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person or persons, for the transportation of any freight upon its railroad, a greater or higher rate of toll or compensation than it shall, at the same time, charge, collect or receive from any other person or persons, for the transportation of the like quantity of freight of the same class, being transported from the same point in the same direction, over equal distance of the same railroad, or if it shall charge, collect or receive, from any person or persons, for the use and transportation of any railroad car or cars upon its railroad, for any distance, a greater amount of toll or compensation than is at the same time charged, collected or received from any other person or persons, for the use and transportation of any railroad car of the same class or number, for a like purpose, being transported in the same direction, over a greater distance of the same railroad; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person or persons, for the use and transportation of any railroad car or cars upon its railroad, a higher or greater compensation in the aggregate, than it shall, at the same time, charge, collect or receive from any other person or persons, for the use and transportation of any railroad car or cars of the same class for a like purpose, being transported from the same original point, in the same direction, over an equal distance of the same railroad; all such discriminating rates, charges, collection or receipts, whether made directly, or by means of any rebate, drawback, or other shift or evasion, shall be deemed and taken, against such railroad corporation, as prime facie evidence of the unjust discrimination prohibited by the provisions of this act; and it shall not be deemed a sufficient excuse or justification of such discrimination on the part of said railroad corporation, that the railway station or point at which it shall charge, collect or receive less compensation in the aggregate, than it shall, at the same time, charge, collect or receive from any other person or persons, for the use and transportation of any railroad car or cars of the same class for a like purpose, being transported from the same original point, in the same direction, over an equal distance of the same railroad; all such discriminating rates, charges, collection or receipts, whether made directly, or by means of any rebate, drawback, or other shift or evasion, shall be deemed and taken, against such railroad corporation, as prime facie evidence of the unjust discrimination prohibited by the provisions of this act; and it shall not be deemed a sufficient excuse or justification of such discrimination on the part of said railroad corporation, that the railway station or point at which it shall charge, collect or receive less compensation in the aggregate, for the transportation of such passenger or freight, or for the use and transportation of such railroad car the greater distance than for the shorter distance, is a railway station or point at which then exists competition with any other railroad or means of transportation. This section shall not be construed so as to exclude other evidence tending to show any unjust discrimination in freight and passenger rates. The provisions of this section shall extend and apply to any railroad, the branches thereof, and any road or roads which any railroad corporation has the right, license or permission to use, operate or control wholly or in part, within this state; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as to prevent railroad corporations from issuing commutation, excursion or thousand mile tickets: provided the same are issued alike to all applying therefor.

Sec. 25. [Discrimination as to cars. ]—It shall be unlawful for any such common carrier to charge, collect, demand or receive more for transporting a car of freight than it at the same time charges, collects, demands or receives per car for several cars of a like class of freight over the same railroad, for the same distance, in the same direction, or to charge, collect, demand or receive more for transporting a ton of freight than it charges, collects, demands or receives per ton for several tons of freight under a carload, of a like class of freight over the same railroad for the same distance, in the same direction, or to charge, collect, demand or receive more for transporting a hundred pounds of freight than it charges, collects, demands or receives per hundred for several hundred pounds of freight, under a ton, of a like class of freight over the same railroad, for the same distance, in the same direction; all such discriminating rates, charges, collections or receipts, whether made directly or by means of any rebate, drawback or other shift or evasion, shall be deemed and taken against such railroad company as prima facie evidence of the unjust discrimination prohibited by this act; provided, however, that for the protection and development of any new industry within this state, such railroad company may grant concession or special rates for any agreed number of car loads, but such special rates aforesaid shall first be approved by the board of railroad commissioners, and a copy thereof filed in the office thereof.

Sec. 26. [Discrimination as to passengers, etc.]

Any such railroad corporation guilty of extortion or making any unjust discrimination as to passengers or freight rates or the rates for the use and transportation of railroad cars or in receiving, handling or delivering freights, shall upon conviction thereof be fined in any sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) nor more than five thousand dollars ($5,000) for the first offense; and for every subsequent offense ten thousand dollars ($10,000), such fine to be imposed in a criminal prosecution by indictment, or shall be subject to the liability prescribed in the next succeeding section, to be recovered as therein provided.

Sec. 27. [Penalty for discrimination.]

Any such railroad corporation guilty of extortion or of making any unjust discrimination as to passenger or freight rates or the rates for the use and transportation of railroad cars, or in receiving, handling or delivering freights, shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) nor more than five thousand dollars ($5,000) for the first offense, and not less than five thousand dollars ($5,000) nor more than ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for every subsequent offense, to be recovered in a civil action by ordinary proceedings instituted in the name of the state of Iowa. And the release from liability or penalty provided for in section 15 of this act shall not apply to either a criminal prosecution under the last preceding section or a civil action brought under this section.

Sec. 28. Whenever said railroad commissioners have good reason to believe that any railroad corporation or common carrier subject to the provisions of this act has been guilty of extortion or unjust discrimination, and thereby become liable to the penalties prescribed in sections 26 and 27 hereof, it shall be their duty to immediately cause suits to be commenced and prosecuted against any such railroad corporation or common carrier. Such suits and prosecutions may be instituted in any county of this state through or into which the line of the railroad corporation sued for violation of this act may extend. And such railroad commissioners are hereby authorized, when in their judgment it is necessary so to do, to employ counsel to assist the attorney-general in conducting such suit on behalf of the state. No such suit commenced by said commissioners shall be dismissed unless the said commissioners and the attorney-general shall consent thereto. And the court may, in its discretion, give preference to such suits over all other business except criminal cases.

Sec. 29. [Handling of property for United States or the state.]

That nothing in this act shall apply to the carriage, storage or handling of property free or at reduced rates for the United States or this state or municipal governments or for charitable purposes, or to and from fairs and expositions for exhibition thereat, or for the employees of such common carriers or their families, or private property or goods for the family use of the employes of such common carriers, or the issuance of mileage, excursion or commutation passenger tickets.
Nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit any common carrier from giving reduced rates to ministers of religion, or to prevent railroads from giving free carriage to their own officers and employes and their families dependent upon said officer or employe for support, and to persons in charge of live stock being shipped from the point of shipment to destination and return, or to prevent the principal oficers of any railroad company or companies from exchanging passes or tickets with other railroad companies for their officers and employes; and nothing in this act contained shall in any way abridge or alter the remedies now existing at common law or by statute, but the provisions of this act are in addition to such remedies; provided, that no pending litigation shall in any way be affected by this act.

Sec. 30. [Railroad commissioners and secretary to be transported free.].—The said railroad commissioners and their secretary shall have the right of free transportation in the performance of their duties concerning railroads, on all railroads and railroad trains in this state; and they may take with them experts or other agents whose services they may require, and who shall, in like manner, be transported free of charge.

Sec. 31. [Expenses of commissioners' investigation: how met.].—To defray the necessary expenses of the said railroad commissioners in making investigations and prosecuting suits and to pay all necessary costs attending the same under the provision of this act, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be drawn upon warrants of the state auditor issued upon the requisition of said commissioners, approved by the governor, which requisition shall be accompanied by an itemized statement of the cost and expenses to be paid.

Sec. 32. [Conflicting law repealed.].—Section 11 of chapter 77 of the acts of the seventeenth general assembly, in relation to the board of railroad commissioners, and all laws now in force in direct conflict with any of the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

Approved April 5, 1888.

(Chapter 29, Laws of 1888.)

An Act to change the manner of selecting railroad commissioners, and to repeal sections 2 and 8, chapter 77, acts of the seventeenth general assembly, and to provide for the election of and to prescribe the qualification of railroad commissioners, and for the appointment of a secretary.

Section 1. [Repeals sections 2 and 8 of ch. 77, laws of 17th g. a.].—
Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That sections 2 and 8, of chapter 77, acts of the seventeenth general assembly, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. [Election of commissioners.].—That at the regular election in the year 1888, there shall be three persons having the qualifications of electors, in the places where they shall respectively reside in the state of Iowa, chosen by the electors of the state, from the body of the electors of said state, who, when they shall have taken the oath of office and given such bond as may be required of them by the governor of the state, shall be known and styled the board of railroad commissioners of the state of Iowa. They shall hold office, beginning on the second Monday in January, 1889, for the period of one, two and three years respectively, as shall be decided between them by lot at their first meeting as a board in such manner as may be designated by the secretary of state. At the regular election in the year 1889, and every year thereafter at each such election, there shall be chosen one person as commissioner, having the qualification hereinbefore and hereinafter described, who shall hold his office for three years from the second Monday in January after his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Said person shall fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of the commissioner whose term expires on the second Monday in January following his said election. It shall organize on each second Monday in every year immediately after the new member has been qualified, and if for any cause this is not done, it may be done at a subsequent meeting. The organization shall be by the selection of one member as chairman and a person having the qualifications hereinbefore and hereinafter described for a commissioner as secretary. The board shall have power to employ such additional clerical help as it may deem necessary and for the good of the service. No person in the employ of any common carrier or owning any bonds, stock, or property in any railroad company, or who is in any way or manner pecuniarily interested in any railroad corporation, shall be eligible to the office of railroad commissioner, and the entering into the employ of any common carrier, or the acquiring of any stock or other interest in any common carrier, or the acquiring of any stock or other interest in any common carrier by any officer under this act after his election or appointment, shall disqualify him to hold the office, and to perform the duties thereof.

Sec. 3. [Vacancies: how filled.]—All vacancies in the office of railroad commissioners shall be filled by appointment of the governor. The person appointed to serve until his successor is elected and qualified. The board of commissioners as constituted by chapter 77, acts seventeenth general assembly, shall hold office and have all powers conferred upon them by chapter 77, acts of the seventeenth general assembly, and acts amendatory thereto, and such other powers and authority as are now or may hereafter be conferred upon them by law, until commissioners shall be chosen and enter upon their duties as contemplated by this act.

Sec. 4. [Canvass of votes.]—The canvass of votes cast for the election of commissioners provided for in this act shall be made and returns and abstracts thereof and relating thereto be made, certified and forwarded and results of said election declared (by the executive council) in all respects in the same manner and by the same officers and boards as now provided by law for canvassing, making, certifying, forwarding and declaring the same as to other state officers.

Sec. 5. [Powers of commissioners.]—The commissioners chosen under this act shall have all the powers that are conferred upon the railway commission by chapter 77, acts of the seventeenth general assembly, and such other powers and authority as may now or shall hereafter be imposed by law.

Approved April 6, 1888.

An Act requiring railroad companies to fence their tracks within the state of Iowa, and to keep the fences in good repair.

Section 1. [All railway corporations required to fence track.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all railroad corporations organized under the laws of this state, or any other state, owning or operating a line of railroad within this state, which have not already erected a lawful fence, shall construct, maintain and keep in good repair a suitable fence of posts and barb wire, or posts and boards, on each side of the tracks of said railroad within the state of Iowa, and so connected with cattle-guards at all public highway crossings as to prevent cattle, horses, and other live stock from getting on the railroad tracks. Said railroad tracks to be fenced by said railroad companies, on or before January 1, 1890, where the railroads are now built, and within six months after the completion of any new railroads, or any part thereof; the said fences to be constructed either of five barbed wires, securely fastened by posts, said posts to be not more than twenty feet apart, and not less than fifty-four inches in height, or of five boards, securely nailed to posts, said posts to be not further than eight feet apart, and said fence to be not less than fifty-four inches in height; provided, when said railroad corporations, who have now their fences built, shall, when they rebuild or repair their fences, the same shall be built as provided in this act; provided further, that any other fences which, in the judgment of the fence viewers, is equivalent to the fence herein provided, shall be a lawful fence; provided, however, that this act shall not be so construed as to compel a railway company operating a third class railway to fence its road through the land of any farmer or other person who, by written agreement with said company, has waived, or may waive, the fencing of said road through such land; provided further, however, that at any points where third class roads are not released by written agreement from building fence as herein provided for, and fences are built on both sides of railway track at such points, cattle-guards shall be so constructed at such points as to prevent stock from going upon said track so fenced.

SEC. 2. [Penalty for refusal to fence.]
If any corporation, or officer thereof, or lessee, owning or engaged in the operation of any railroad in this state, neglect or refuse to comply with any provision of section one of this act, such corporation, officer or lessee shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars for each and every offense; and every thirty days continuance of such refusal or neglect shall constitute a separate and distinct offense within and for the purposes of this act.

SEC. 3. [Killing stock.]
Nothing herein contained shall relieve said railroad corporation from pecuniary liability arising from the killing or maiming of live stock on said track, or right of way, by said corporation, that may occur through the negligence of said corporation or through its employees; and provided further, that nothing in this act shall be construed so as to interfere with the right to open or private crossings, as now maintained, or with the right of persons to such crossings; provided further, that nothing in this act contained shall in any way limit or qualify the liability of any corporation or person owning or operating a railway that fails to fence the same against live stock running at large, for any stock injured or killed by reason of the want of such fence as now provided for in section 1289 of the code of 1873.

Approved April 6, 1888.

CHAPTER 6.
OF TELEGRAPHS.

Section 1324. (As amended by ch. 104, 19th g. a.) [Who may construct: right of way granted.]
Any person or company may construct a telegraph [or telephone] line along the public highways of this state, or across the rivers or over any lands belonging to the state or to any private individual, and may erect the necessary fixtures therefor; provided, that when any highway along which said line has been constructed shall be changed, said person or company shall, upon ninety days notice in writing, remove said line to said highway as established. Said notice contemplated herein may be served on any agent or operator in the employ of said person or company.
SEC. 1325. [How constructed.]—Such fixtures must not be so constructed as to incommode the public in the use of any highway, or the navigation of any stream; nor shall they be set up on the private grounds of any individual without paying him a just equivalent for the damages he thereby sustains.

SEC. 1326. [Damages assessed.]—If the person over whose lands such telegraph line passes claims more damage therefor than the proprietor of the telegraph is willing to pay, the amount of damages may be determined in the same manner as is provided in chapter four of this title.

SEC. 1327. [Liability of proprietor for refusing to transmit messages.]—If the proprietor of any telegraph within this state, or the person having the control and management thereof, refuses to receive dispatches from any other telegraph line, or to transmit the same with fidelity and without unreasonable delay, all the laws of the state in relation to limited partnerships, to corporations, and to obtaining private property for the use of such telegraph shall cease to operate in favor of the proprietor thereof; and, if private property has been taken for the use of such telegraph without the consent of the owner, he may reclaim and recover the same.

SEC. 1328. [For willful failure: guilty of misdemeanor.]—Any person employed in transmitting messages by telegraph must do so without unreasonable delay, and any one who willfully fails thus to transmit them, or who intentionally transmits a message erroneously, or makes known the contents of any message sent or received to any person except him to whom it is addressed, or to his agent or attorney, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 1329. [Liable for mistakes.]—The proprietor of a telegraph is liable for all mistakes in transmitting messages made by any person in his employment, and for all damages resulting from a failure to perform any other duties required by law.

It seems to be competent for a telegraph company, notwithstanding this section, to adopt reasonable rules, conditions and regulations governing the transmission of messages, restricting its liability in cases where the message is not repeated. Sweatland v. The Miss. Tel. Co., 27 Iowa, 431.

Where it is competent for a telegraph company to restrict by printed stipulations and conditions annexed to the message sent, its liability in cases where the message is not repeated, it will, notwithstanding, be liable for mistakes in transmission resulting from its own fault or negligence. Id.; Manville v. The W. U. Tel. Co., 37 Id., 214.

A telegraph company is also liable for injuries resulting from negligence in the delivery of a message. Id.

The parties to telegraphic messages have the right to their use to prove contracts made thereby and an operator having them in his possession may be required by a court to produce them as evidence. This section does not apply to the use of messages as evidence. Woods & Bradley v. Miller & Co., 55 Id., 168.

TAXATION OF TELEGRAPHS.

An Act to provide for the assessment and taxation of telegraph lines within the state of Iowa. [Additional to code, title X, chapter 6: "Of telegraphs."]

SECTION 1. [All telegraphs subject to taxation.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all telegraph lines built and operated within the state of Iowa shall be subject to taxation as hereinafter required.

SEC. 2. [Every telegraph company shall report annually to the auditor of state.]—It shall be the duty of the president, vice-president, general manager or superintendent of every telegraph company operating a line in this state, to furnish the auditor of state, on or before the first Monday in May of each year, a statement under oath, and in such form as the auditor may prescribe, showing the following facts: First—The total number of miles owned, operated or leased, within the state, with a separate showing of the number leased. Second—The total number of miles in each separate line or division thereof, together with the number of separate wires thereon, and stating the counties through which the same is carried. Third—The total number of telegraph stations on each separate line, and the total number of telegraphic instruments in use therein, together with the total number of stations, other than railroad stations, maintained. Fourth—The average number of telegraph poles, per mile, used in the construction and maintenance of said lines.

SEC. 3. [Upon which report the state board of equalization shall assess.]—Upon the receipt of the said statement from the several companies, the auditor of state shall lay the same before the state board of equalization at its meeting on the first Monday in July in each year, which shall proceed to assess said telegraph lines at the true cash value thereof.

SEC. 4. [And shall determine the rate of tax to be levied.]—The said state board shall also, at said meeting, determine the rate of tax to be levied and collected upon said assessment, which shall not exceed the average rate of taxes, general, municipal and local, levied throughout the state during the previous year, which rate shall be ascertained from the records and files in the auditor’s office, which tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes, state and local, and shall be payable into the state treasury.

SEC. 5. [When tax shall become due.]—The taxes levied as provided by this chapter shall become due and payable at the state treasury on the first day of February, following the levy thereof, and if said taxes are not paid as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the treasurer of state to collect the same by distress and sale of any property belonging to such company in the state, in the same manner as required of county treasurers, in like cases, by section 559 of the code; and the record of the state board in such case shall be sufficient warrant therefor.

SEC. 6. [Proviso: telegraph line used by, and taxed as property of railroad exempt from provisions of this act.]—Provided, however, that any telegraph line which may be owned and operated by any railroad company exclusively for the transaction of the business of such company, and which has been duly reported as such in the annual report of such company, and been duly taxed as part of the property thereof under the laws providing for the taxation of railway property, shall be exempt from the provisions of this act.

SEC. 7. [Penalty for not filing report as per section 2.]—If the officers of any company fail to make and file the report required by section two (2) of this act, such neglect shall not release its lines from taxation, but the state board shall proceed to assess the line notwithstanding, adding thereto thirty per centum on the assessable value thereof.

SEC. 8. [Repealing clause.]—All acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. (Took effect by publication in newspapers, March 21, 1878.)
TITLE XI.
OF THE POLICE OF THE STATE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SETTLEMENT AND SUPPORT OF THE POOR.

SECTION 1330. [Who liable to maintain.].—The father, mother, and children of any poor person who is unable to maintain himself by work, shall, jointly or severally, relieve or maintain such poor person in such manner as may be approved by the trustees of the township where such poor person may be; but these officers shall have no control unless the poor person has applied for aid.

Under sections 1330, 1333, the son of a poor person, unable to support himself by work, is liable to the county for money expended in his support, upon the order of the township trustees, and may be compelled by order of court to support him. Jasper County v. Osborn, 59 Iowa, 208.

This section does not make a father legally liable for medical services rendered his adult daughter in her last illness, at her request, even though she be still living with her father as a member of his family and the services were rendered with the knowledge of the father, and without any objection on his part, where it does not appear that the daughter was a poor person. Blachley v. Laba, 63 Id., 22.

A father, who cares for and supports his insane daughter, committed to him by the direction of the board of supervisors, may recover of the county a reasonable compensation therefor, notwithstanding the provisions of this section. Speedling v. Worth County, 68 Id., 152.

SEC. 1331. In the absence or inability of nearer relatives, the same liability shall extend to grand-parents, if of ability without personal labor, and to the male grand-children who are of ability by personal labor or otherwise.

SEC. 1332. [Putative father: illegitimate child.].—The word “father” in this chapter includes the putative father of an illegitimate child, and the question of his being the father may be tried in any action or proceeding to recover for, or to compel the support of an illegitimate child. But there shall be no obligation to proceed against the putative father before proceedings against the mother.

SEC. 1333. [Proceeding to compel.].—Upon the failure of such relative so to relieve or maintain a poor person who has made application for relief, the township trustees may apply to the circuit court of the county where such poor person resides, for an order to compel the same, and all provisions of this chapter relating to trustees shall apply to any other officers of a county, township, or incorporated town or city, charged with the oversight of the poor.

Under this section a county has no lien, without judgment, upon the real estate of an insane person for expense incurred on account of such person in the hospital. Thode, Guard., v. Spofford et al., (two cases), 65 Iowa, 294.

SEC. 1334. [Notice given.].—At least ten days’ notice of the application shall be given in writing, which shall be served as original notice in an action. In such proceedings the county is plaintiff, and the person to be charged is defendant.

SEC. 1335. [Same.].—The court shall make no order affecting a person not served, but may notify him at any stage of the proceedings.

SEC. 1336. [Hearing: order of court.].—The court may proceed in a summary manner to hear the allegations and proofs of the parties, and order any one or more of the relatives of such poor person who appear to be able, to relieve and maintain him, charging them, as far as practicable, in the order above named, and for that purpose making new parties to the proceedings when necessary.

Sec. 1337. [Same.]—Such order may be for the entire or partial support of the poor person, and it may be for the support either by money or by taking the poor person to a relative's house, or the order may assign the poor person for a certain time to one, and for another period to another relative, as may be adjudged just and convenient, taking into view the means of the several relatives; but no person shall be sent to the house of any relative who shall be willing to pay the amount necessary for his support.

Sec. 1338. If the court order the relief in any other manner than in money, it shall fix a just weekly value upon it.

Sec. 1339. The order may be specific in point of time, or it may be indefinite until the further order of the court, and may be varied from time to time when the circumstances require it, on the application of the trustees of the poor person, or of any relative affected by it, upon ten days' notice being given.

Sec. 1340. When money is ordered to be paid it shall be paid to such officers as the court may direct.

Sec. 1341. [Failure to comply.]—If any person fails to render the support ordered, on the affidavit of one of the proper trustees showing the fact, the court may order execution for the amount due, rating any support ordered in kind as before assessed.

Sec. 1342. [Appeal.]—Any appeal may be taken from such judgment as from other judgments of the circuit court.

Sec. 1343. [Abandonment: property ordered seized.]—Whenever a father, or mother, abandon children, or husband abandons his wife, or wife her husband, leaving them chargeable, or likely to become chargeable, upon the public for their support, the trustees of the township where such abandoned person may be, upon application being made to them, may apply to the clerk or the circuit court or judge of any county in which the parties reside, or in which any estate of such abscending father, mother, husband or wife, may be, for an order to seize the same, and upon due proof of the above facts, the clerk of the court or judge may issue an order authorizing the trustees or the sheriff of the county to take into their possession the goods, chattels, things in action, and lands of the person absconding.

Sec. 1344. [Seizure of.]—By virtue of such order, the trustees or sheriff may take the property wherever the same may be found, and shall be vested with all the right and title to the personal property, and to the rent of the real property which the person absconding had at the time of his departure.

Sec. 1345. [When affecting real estate.]—Such order, when affecting any real estate, may be entered in the incumbrance book, and all sales, leases and transfers of any such property, real and personal, made by the person after the issuing and entry of the order, shall be void.

Sec. 1346. [Inventory of.]—The trustees or sheriff shall immediately make an inventory of the property so seized by them, and return the same, together with the proceedings, to the court, there to be filed.

Sec. 1347. [Discharge of: sale ordered.]—The court, upon inquiry into the facts and circumstances of the case, may discharge the order of seizure; but if it be not discharged, the court shall have power to direct from time to time what part of the personal property shall be sold and how, and how much of the proceeds of such sale, and of the rents and profits of the real estate shall be applied to the maintenance of the children, wife or husband, of the person so absconding.

Sec. 1348. [Security given: property restored.]—If the party against whom such order is issued, return and support the person so abandoned, or give security to the county satisfactory to the clerk of the circuit court that such person shall not become chargeable to the county, the order shall be discharged by another order from such clerk, and the property taken and remaining restored.

SEC. 1349. [Trial by jury.]—The defendant may demand a jury in the trial contemplated, on the question of his ability and of his obligation to support a poor relative; and also on the question of abandonment and liability to become a public charge as provided above, which demand may be made upon the inquiry contemplated above, and such inquiry shall take place on the request of the defendant unless it be ordered on the motion of the court itself with notice to the defendant.

SEC. 1350. [Action by county.]—Any county having expended any money for the relief of a poor person under the provisions of this chapter, may recover the same from any of his kindred mentioned in sections one thousand three hundred and thirty and one thousand three hundred and thirty-one of this chapter, by an action brought in any court having jurisdiction, within two years from the payment of such expenses.

SEC. 1351. [By a relative.]—A more distant relative who may have been compelled to aid a poor person, may recover from any one or more of the nearer relatives, and one so compelled to aid may recover contribution from others of the same degree.

SEC. 1352. [How acquired.]—Legal settlements may be acquired in the counties as follows:

1. Any person having attained majority, and residing in this state one year without being warned as hereinafter provided, gains a settlement in the county of his residence;

2. A married woman follows and has the settlement of her husband, if he have any within the state, and if she had a settlement at the time of marriage it is not lost by the marriage;

3. A married woman abandoned by her husband, may acquire a settlement as if she were unmarried;

4. Legitimate minor children follow and have the settlement of their father, if he have one, but if he have none, then that of their mother;

5. Illegitimate minor children follow, and have the settlement of their mother, or if she have none, then that of the putative father;

6. A minor whose parent has no settlement in this state, and a married woman living apart from her husband and having no settlement, and whose husband has no settlement in this state, residing one year in any county, gains a settlement in such county;

7. A minor bound as an apprentice or servant, immediately upon such binding, if done in in good faith, gains a settlement where his master has one.

Where a person removes to a county with the intent to reside there, the domicile thus acquired is not affected if he afterward, and before he acquires a legal settlement, becomes insane, and his insanity and removal to the insane hospital will not prevent his acquiring a legal settlement.
Washington County v. Mahaska County, 47 Iowa, 57.

Although this section is found in the chapter on the settlement and support of the poor, it is sufficiently general in its application to embrace the case of an insane person who has become a county charge. Scott County v. Polk County, 61 Id., 616.

The residence in a county necessary to establish a settlement therein must be personal presence in a fixed and permanent abode, or of a character indicating permanency of occupation as distinct from lodging, boarding or temporary occupation. Cerro Gordo County v. WrightCounty, 50 Id., 439.

Where a person having a legal settlement in one county becomes sick and disabled in another, a notice by the auditor of the latter to the auditor of the former that relief is being furnished, is sufficient to charge the county in which the pauper has a settlement. Id.

SEC. 1353. [Lost.]—A settlement once acquired continues until it is lost by acquiring a new one.

An insane and helpless pauper, who was removed from the county of her residence to another county that she might be continued in charge of the person who had previously cared for her, and was supported by the former county for a year after her removal, it was held did not acquire a settlement in the county to which she removed, nor lose her residence in the former county. Fayette County v. Bremer County, 36 Id. 516.

SEC. 1354. [Foreign paupers.]—A person coming from another state, and not having become a citizen of, nor having a settlement in this state, falling into want and applying for relief, may be sent to the state whence he came, at the expense of the county, under an order of the circuit court, or judge, otherwise he is to be relieved in the county where he applies.

SEC. 1355. [Warning to depart.]—Persons coming from other states or counties who are, or of whom it is apprehended that they will become county charges, may be prevented from obtaining a settlement in a county by warning them to depart from the same or any township thereof, and thereafter they shall not acquire a settlement except by the requisite residence for one year uninterrupted by another warning.

SEC. 1356. [How given and served.]—Such warning shall be in writing, and may be served upon the order of the trustees of the township, or of the board of supervisors, by any person; and such person shall make a return of his doings thereon to the board of supervisors; and, if not made by a sworn officer, it must be verified by affidavit.

SEC. 1357. [Removal when settlement is in another county.]—When a poor person applying for relief in one county has a settlement in another, he may be removed to the county of his settlement, if he be able to be removed, upon the order of the trustees of the township or board of supervisors of the county where he applied for relief, and delivered to any officer charged with the oversight of the poor in the county where his settlement is, giving written notice of the fact to the county auditor; or the trustees of the township or board of supervisors of the county where he applied for relief, may, in their discretion, cause the auditor of the county where he has a settlement, to be notified of his being a county charge, and, thereupon, it will become the duty of the latter board to order the removal of the poor person, if he is able to be removed, and, if not able, then to provide for his relief and for all expenses incurred in his behalf.

SEC. 1358. [County of settlement liable.]—The county where the settlement is, shall be liable to the county rendering relief for all reasonable charges and expenses incurred in the relief and care of a poor person, if notice of relief being rendered is given to the county of the settlement within a reasonable time after the county of the settlement is ascertained, and for the charges of removal and expenses and support incurred after notice given, in all cases.

Where a person removed to a county with the intent to reside there, the domicile thus acquired is not affected if the party afterward, and before he acquires a legal settlement, becomes insane, and his insanity will not prevent him acquiring a settlement. Washington County v. Mahaska County, 47 Iowa, 57.

The cause of action for the support of a pauper, against the county of his settlement, arises when the support is furnished, and the operation of the statute of limitation is not suspended by the ignorance of the county furnishing it that the pauper is chargeable upon another county. Id.

SEC. 1359. [Order binding unless notice of contest given.]—Such order of removal shall be binding on the county to which the removal is to be made, unless, within thirty days after receipt of the notice provided by section thirteen hundred and fifty-seven, it gives notice to the auditor of the county making such order, of its intention to contest the same. In such case, the proper settlement of the pauper in such county may be tested and determined in an action brought to recover the amount already expended in his behalf. A notice of such action, signed by the county auditor, shall be served on the auditor of the other county, specifying the amount claimed and the facts out of which the claim arises, and no other proceeding shall be necessary to commence the action. The notice hereinbefore provided for, and a transcript of whatever other proceedings or papers there may be relative to the matter, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, and the cause may be entitled as of the county issuing the order as plaintiff against the county contesting the same as defendant.

Under this section the circuit court had exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings by one county against another to recover for money expended in support of a pauper whose legal residence was in the latter county. Cerro Gordo County v. Wright County, 59 Iowa, 485.

The giving of notice by the plaintiff to the defendant county that certain paupers had applied for and were receiving aid from the plaintiff, and that defendant was required to provide for said paupers, and that plaintiff would hold defendant responsible for expenses incurred, followed by the neglect of the defendant to notify plaintiff that it denied the settlement and refused to be liable for the support of the paupers, did not estop the defendant from denying the settlement of the paupers, in an action to recover for aid rendered by the plaintiff county. Winnebago County v. Allamakee County, 62 Id., 582.

Where a county sought to be charged with the expenses of an insane person denies the settlement of such person, and gives notice of such denial, the circuit court has exclusive jurisdiction to try the issues, but where no notice of such denial is given, the action to recover for such expenses may be maintained in the district court. Id.

SEC. 1360. [Trial: manner.]—The cause may be tried as other actions at law, but no pleadings are necessary, the only issues being whether the pauper had a settlement in the county to which he was ordered to be removed at the time of such order, and whether the amount claimed, or any part thereof, was actually and properly expended by the plaintiff county in his behalf; and the burden of proof shall be on the county making the order of removal.

SEC. 1361. (As substituted by ch. 133, 18th g. a.) [Three trustees may afford relief.]—[The trustees of each township shall provide for the relief of such poor persons in their respective townships as should not in their judgment be sent to the county poor house. But where a city of the first or second class or acting under special charter is embraced within the limits of any township, the board of supervisors may appoint an overseer of the poor, who shall have within said city all the powers and duties conferred by this chapter on the township trustee. The relief thus furnished may be in the form of food, clothing, fuel, lights, rent, medical attendance or money; but exclusive or medical attendance the relief thus furnished shall not exceed the sum of two dollars per week for each person. And when in the opinion of the trustees or overseer, the person asking aid, or any member of his family, is able to work, and such a condition would not be oppressive, they may require the person or any member of his family who is able, as a condition on which relief shall be granted, to earn the relief by labor on the public highway at the rate of not to exceed sixty-five cents per day. The trustees of townships or overseers of the poor, are also authorized to grant relief by furnishing food to transient persons who appear needy, and who are able to work; but such relief shall not exceed the sum of forty cents per day; and they may require such able bodied persons to labor faithfully on the streets or highway at the rate of five cents an hour in payment for and as a condition of granting the relief. Said labor shall be performed under the direction of the officer having charge of working streets or highways.]

The board of supervisors has no right to prescribe the rule that a bill for medical services rendered a pauper shall only be allowed at a regular meeting of the township trustees. Hunter v. Jasper County, 40 Iowa, 568.

When no limit has been fixed for such services, the trustees must allow a reasonable compensation. Id.

The words “medical attendance,” as used in this section are not restricted in their meaning to the professional attendance of a physician, but may include nursing and watching. Where the plaintiff and his family cared for a pauper who was sick and helpless and required constant attendance, it was held that the plaintiff’s recovery from the county was not limited by this section to two dollars per week. Scott v. Winneshiek County, 52 Id., 579.

Where, under this section, the board of supervisors appointed an overseer of the poor for a city, such overseer was held to have exclusive jurisdiction of the poor within the city, and the township trustees to have exclusive control of the poor of the township outside of the city, so that where aid was rendered to a city pauper by order of the township trustees, the county was held not liable therefor. Hoyt v. Black Hawk County, 59 Id., 154.

SEC. 1362. (As amended by ch. 37, 17th g. a.) [Families of Iowa soldiers.]—
In no case shall a soldier or the widows or families of soldiers, requiring public relief, be sent to the county poor-house, when they can and prefer to be relieved out of the poor-house. All other persons in families requiring such aid, may, at the discretion of the board of supervisors, or the overseer of the poor under the supervision of the board of supervisors of such county, be sent to the county poor-house, or receive aid out of poor-house, as the board may deem necessary, not to exceed the extent as above provided.)

SEC. 1363. [Expense to be paid out of county treasury.]—All moneys expended as contemplated in the two preceding sections, shall be paid out of the county treasury, after the proper account rendered thereof shall have been approved by the board of supervisors of the respective counties, and in all cases the necessary appropriations therefor shall be made by the respective counties. But the board of supervisors may limit the amount of relief to be thus furnished.

WHERE THERE IS NO POOR-HOUSE.

SEC. 1364. [Township trustees have charge of.]—The trustees in each township, in counties where there is no poor-house, have the oversight and care of all poor persons in their township, and shall see that they receive proper care, until provided for by the board of supervisors.

SEC. 1365. (As amended by ch. 101, 22d g. a.) [Application: how made.]—The poor must make application for relief to the trustees of the township where they may be, and, if the trustees are satisfied that the applicant is in such a state of want as requires relief at the public expense, they may afford such relief (subject to the approval of the board of supervisors) as the necessities of the person require, and shall report the case forthwith to the board of supervisors, who may continue or deny relief as they find cause. (The board of supervisors may examine into all claims for medical attendance allowed by the township to be unreasonable, extortionate, or for any goods or services other than for the necessaries of life, they may reject or diminish the claims as in their judgment would be right and just, and this act shall apply to all counties in the state, whether there are poor-houses established in the same or not; provided, that this act shall apply to acts of overseers of poor in cities as well as to township trustees.)

Where a physician rendered services to a pauper at the request of the township trustees, it was held to be competent for the board of supervisors to waive a certificate from the trustees that the services had been rendered, and that the physician was entitled to recover against the county. Collins v. Lucas County, 50 Iowa, 448.

The obligation of a county to support its poor is purely statutory, and, to render it liable, the case must fall within, and the liability be created pursuant to, and in the manner prescribed by the statute. Cooledge v. Mahaska County, 24 Id., 211.

Under sections 1364 and 1365, the township trustees may bind the county for medical services rendered at their instance, during the vacation of the board of supervisors to poor sick persons in the township. Id.

The board of supervisors have power to employ a competent physician to attend all the poor in the county, where there is no poor-house, and the trustees of the township in which such physician resides has no right to disregard such appointment and employ another physician to render such services, within such township, and thereby make the county liable to pay for the same. Mansfield v. Sac County, 59 Id., 694.

Under the provisions of sections 1364 and 1368, application for aid for paupers must first be made and passed upon by the township trustees, whose duty it is to report the cases forthwith to the board of supervisors. Where the trustees have employed a physician for a poor person, and have failed to report to the board of supervisors, the medical aid may be continued in good faith until the board order otherwise, and the county will be liable therefor, but the township trustees will be liable to the county for damages arising from the continuance of aid furnished to persons not properly entitled thereto. Mansfield v. Sac County, 60 Id., 11.
Where a pauper resident of one township was temporarily in another township, and was there disabled by breaking his leg, the attending physician forbade his removal, held, that the trustees of the latter township might lawfully furnish him aid under section 365. Mussel v. Tama County, 34 N. W. R., 762.

SEC. 1366. [Expenses paid by county.]—All claims and bills for the care and support of the poor shall be certified to be correct by the proper trustees and presented to the board of supervisors, and, if they are satisfied that they are reasonable and proper, they are to be paid out of the county treasury. In no case shall a trustee, or either of the trustees, nor overseer of the poor, draw an order upon himself, or upon either of the board for supplies for the poor, except such trustees or overseer has a contract to furnish such supplies.

Under sections 1364 and 1365, the township trustees may bind the county for medical services rendered at their instance, during the vacation of the board of supervisors, to poor sick persons in the township. Coolidge v. Mahaska County, 24 Iowa, 211.

Whether a failure of the trustees to report to the board of supervisors, as required in section 1365, where medical services have been thus rendered, at their instance, will deprive the physician of the right to compensation for services rendered after the time when the trustees ought to have reported, although not notified of the omission, nor to discontinue his services, quere. Id.

Where a claim against a county is presented, and disallowed or reduced by the board of supervisors, the claimant is not limited to an appeal from the action of the board, but may bring and maintain an action against the county upon his claim. Armstrong v. Tama County, 34 Id., 398.

Under this and the two preceding sections, the township trustees, where there is no poor-house, are vested with the power of determining, in the first instance, the question whether the necessities of a poor person are such as to require aid at the public expense, as well as the nature of the relief required, and, if their determination is made in good faith, it is binding upon the board of supervisors, and not subject to review. Id.

The board of supervisors have no right to prescribe the rule that a bill for medical services rendered a pauper shall only be allowed at a regular meeting of the township trustees. Hunter v. Jasper County, 40 Id., 568.

Where a physician rendered services to a pauper at the request of the township trustees, it was held to be competent for the board of supervisors to waive a certificate from the trustees that the services had been rendered and that the physician was entitled to recover against the county. Collins v. Lucas County, 50 Id., 448.

The board of supervisors have power to employ a competent physician to attend all the poor in the county, where there is no poor-house, and the trustees of a township in which such physician resides have no right to disregard such appointment and employ another physician to render such services, within such township, and thereby make the county liable to pay for the same. Mansfield v. Sac County, 59 Id., 694.

The certificate of the township trustees to the correctness of a bill for aid or support furnished to the poor under this section, is conclusive on the county. Their determination partakes of a judicial character and settles the relations of the parties, in the absence of fraud. Mussel v. Tama County, 34 N. W. R., 762.

SEC. 1367. [Allowance for.]—The board may, in its discretion, allow and pay to poor persons who may become chargeable as paupers and who are of mature years and sound mind, and who will probably be benefited thereby, such sums or such annual allowance as will not exceed the charge of their maintenance in the ordinary mode.

SEC. 1368. [Appeal to board of supervisors.]—If any poor person on application to the trustees, is refused the required relief, he may apply to the board of supervisors, who, on examination into the matter, may direct the trustees to afford relief, or they may direct specific relief.

SUPERVISORS MAY CONTRACT.

SEC. 1369. [Supervisors may contract.]—The board of supervisors may enter into contract with the lowest bidder, through proposals opened and examined at a regular session of the board, for the support of all the poor of the county for one year at a time, and may make all requisite orders to that effect; and shall require such contractor to give bonds in such sum as they deem sufficient to secure the faithful performance of the same.
SEC. 1370. [Supervision of]—When such a contract is made, the board shall, from time to time, appoint some person to examine and report upon the manner the poor are kept and treated, which shall be done without notice to the person contracting for their support; and, if upon due notice and inquiry, the board find that the poor are not reasonably and properly supported and cared for, they may, at a regular session, set aside the contract, making the proper allowances for the time it has been in force.

SEC. 1371. [Employment of paupers]—Any such contractor may employ a poor person in any work for which his age, health and strength is competent, subject to the control of the trustees, and in the last resort of the board of supervisors.

SUPERVISORS MAY ESTABLISH POOR-HOUSE.

SEC. 1372. [People to vote]—The board of supervisors of each county may order the establishment of a poor-house in such county whenever it is deemed advisable, and also the purchase of such land as may be deemed necessary for the use of the same, and may make the requisite contracts and carry such order into effect, provided the cost of said poor-house and land shall be first estimated by said board and approved by a vote of the people.

SEC. 1373. [Contracts: government of]—The board of supervisors, or any committee appointed by them for that purpose, may make all contracts and purchases requisite for the poor-house, and may prescribe rules or regulations for the management and government of the same, and for the sobriety, morality, and industry of its occupants.

SEC. 1374. [Steward appointed]—The board may appoint a steward of the poor-house, who shall be governed in all respects by the rules and regulations of the board and its committees, and may be removed by the board at pleasure, and who shall receive such compensation, perform such duties, and give such security for his faithful performance as the board may appoint.

SEC. 1375. [Duty of]—The steward shall receive into the poor-house any person producing an order as hereafter provided, and enter in a book to be kept for that purpose the name and age, and the date of the reception of such person.

SEC. 1376. [Employment of paupers]—He may require of persons so admitted, such reasonable and moderate labor as may be suited to their ages and bodily strength, the proceeds of which, together with the receipts of the poor-farm, if there be one, shall be appropriated to the use of the poor-house in such manner as the board may determine.

The poor-farm is appurtenant to the poor-house, and whoever is appointed steward of the poor-house becomes, ipso facto, steward of the poor-farm. The State v. Plautner, 43 Iowa, 140.

The board of supervisors may remove the steward of the poor-house at their pleasure, and they cannot contract with one for a specified time in such a way as to deprive themselves or their successors of the power of removal. Id.

SEC. 1377. [Admission to poor-house]—No person shall be admitted to the poor-house, unless upon the written order of a township trustee or member of the board of supervisors, and relief is to be furnished in the poor-house only, when the person is able to be taken there, unless in the cases hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 1378. [Binding out]—The board may bind out such poor children of the poor-house as they believe are likely to remain a permanent charge on the public, males until eighteen and females until the age of sixteen, unless sooner married, on such terms and conditions as prescribed in the chapter concerning master and apprentices. And they may bind for shorter periods on such conditions as they may adopt.

SEC. 1379. [Discharge of]—When any inmate of the poor-house becomes able to support himself, the board may order his discharge.
Sec. 1380. [Visitation of poor-house.—]—The board shall cause the poor-house to be visited at least once a month by one of their body, who shall carefully examine the condition of the inmates and the manner in which they are fed and clothed and otherwise provided for and treated, ascertain what labor they are required to perform, inspect the books and accounts of the steward, and look into all matters pertaining to the poor-house and its inmates and report to the board.

Sec. 1381. (As amended by ch. 10, 21st g. a.) [Expenses: how paid.]—The expenses of supporting the poor-house shall be paid out of the county treasury in the same manner with other disbursements for county purposes; and in case the ordinary revenue of the county prove insufficient for the support of the poor, the board may levy a poor tax not exceeding one (and one-half) mills on the dollar to be entered on the county list and collected as the ordinary county tax; (provided, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to counties in which the population is less than fourteen thousand [14,000] inhabitants.)

(The expense of the poor-house shall include such an amount of tuition for the instruction of the children as the whole number of days' attendance of such pauper children is to the total number of days' attendance in the school at which such pauper children attend, and such amount shall be paid into the treasury of the district where said children attend.)

Section 1381 of the code as amended by chapter 149, laws of 1876, empowered counties having a population of 33,000 inhabitants or more to levy a poor tax of one and a half mills on the dollar, in case the ordinary revenue of the county proved insufficient for the support of the poor, but it did not take away the power given by the section before that amendment to counties containing a less number of inhabitants, to levy a tax of one mill on the dollar for the same purpose. Lucas County v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co., 67 Id., 541.

Sec. 1382. [Supervisors: power.]—The board is invested with authority to let out the support of the poor, with the use and occupancy of the poor-house and farm for a period not exceeding three years.

OF THE CARE OF THE INSANE.

Section 1383. [Hospitals established: trustees: members of general assembly not eligible.]—The hospital for the insane, located at Mount Pleasant, in Henry county, shall be known by the name of the Iowa hospital for the insane at Mount Pleasant; and the hospital for the insane, located at Independence, in Buchanan county, shall be known by the name of the Iowa hospital for the insane at Independence. Each of said hospitals shall be under the charge of five trustees, two of whom may be women, three of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; and in future no member of the general assembly shall be eligible to that office. When the term of a trustee expires, his successor shall be appointed by the general assembly for four years; but no vacancy shall be filled until the number of trustees is reduced to the number provided in this section. No trustees shall receive pay for more than thirty days in any year.

Sec. 1384. (As amended by ch. 66, 20th g. a.) [Trustees: compensation: meetings of.]—The trustees shall be paid five cents per mile for each mile traveled, and five dollars per day during the time they are actually engaged in the discharge of their official duties, from the state treasury, out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, by an order drawn by the secretary of the board and approved by the board. Each board of trustees shall hold an annual meeting upon the (second) Wednesday of (July) at the hospital, when they shall choose one of their number president and another secretary, and shall also choose a treasurer for the year then ensuing and until their successors are elected and qualified. They shall also hold quarterly meetings on the second Wednesday in October, January and April.

SEC. 1385. [Trustees to visit: keep record: report of.]—The board of trustees, or a majority thereof, shall inspect the hospital under their charge at each quarterly meeting; and a committee may visit the hospital monthly. The trustees shall make a record of their proceedings in books kept for the purpose; and at the annual meetings preceding the regular sessions of the general assembly, they shall make a report to the governor of the condition and wants of the hospital, which shall be accompanied by full and accurate reports of its superintendent and treasurer, and an account of all moneys received and disbursed.

SEC. 1386. (As amended by ch. 53, 15th g. a.) [Trustees to control and manage hospitals.]—The trustees shall have the general control and management of the hospital under their charge; shall make all by-laws necessary for the government of the same, not inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the state, and conduct the affairs of the institution in accordance with the laws and by-laws regulating the same. They shall appoint a medical superintendent, (and upon the nomination of the superintendent shall appoint) an assistant physician or physicians, a steward, and a matron, who shall reside in the hospital and be styled resident officers of the same, and be governed and subject to all the laws and by-laws for government of the said institution. But the same person shall not hold the office of superintendent and steward. They may, also, in their discretion, and upon the nomination of the superintendent, appoint a chaplain and prescribe his duties. The board of trustees shall, from time to time, fix the salaries and wages of the officers and other employes of the hospital, and certify the same to the auditor of state; and they may remove any officer or other employe of such institution.

SEC. 1387. [Trustees may take land in trust.]—The board of trustees may take, in the name of the state, and hold in trust for the hospital, any land conveyed or devised, and any money or other personal property given or bequeathed, to be applied for any purpose connected with the institution.

SEC. 1388. [Officers cannot be interested in contracts.]—No trustee, or officer of the hospital, shall be, either directly or indirectly, interested in the purchase of building material, or any article for the use of the institution.

SEC. 1389. [Trustee ineligible.]—No trustee shall be eligible to the office of steward or superintendent of the hospital during the term for which he was appointed, nor within one year after his term shall have expired.

SEC. 1390. (As amended by ch. 100, 17th g. a.) [Trustees to give bond.]—
The treasurer shall execute a bond to the state of Iowa, for the use of the hospital (naming which), in double the highest amount of money likely to come into his hands, and with such securities as the executive council shall require, conditioned that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office, and pay over and account for all money that shall come into his hands, and shall be filed with the secretary of state. He shall receive such compensation as the board shall fix, not exceeding one-half of one per cent on all moneys paid out by him. Upon authority granted by the board, he may draw from the state treasury, out of money not otherwise appropriated, upon his order, approved by the superintendent and not less than two of the trustees, and under seal of the hospital, a sufficient amount [quarterly] for the purpose of defraying any deficiencies that may arise in the current expenses of the hospital, but the amount of each requisition shall in no case exceed [sixteen] dollars per month for each public patient in the hospital, taking the number of such patients on the fifteenth day of each month as the average number on which the estimate shall be made, the number then in the hospital to be certified to the auditor of state by the superintendent and steward, which certificate shall accompany the requisition. But no part of the money so drawn for current expenses shall be used in making improvements. Upon the presentation of such order to the auditor of state, he shall draw a warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount therein specified, not exceeding the amount for each patient hereinbefore specified.

SEC. 1391. [Superintendent of; chief executive officer. ]—The superintendent of the hospital shall be a physician of acknowledged skill and ability in his profession. He shall be the chief executive officer of the hospital, and shall hold his office for six years, unless sooner removed as above provided. He shall have the entire control of the medical, moral, and dietetic treatment of the patients, and he shall see that the several officers of the institution faithfully and diligently discharge their respective duties. He shall employ attendants, nurses, servants, and such other persons as he may deem necessary for the efficient and economical administration of the affairs of the hospital, assign them their respective places and duties, and may, at any time, discharge any of them from service.

SEC. 1392. [Steward to make purchases: keep accounts: take and preserve vouchers. ]—The steward, under the direction of the trustees [and superintendent], shall make all purchases for the hospital where and in such manner as they can be made on the best terms, keep the accounts, pay all employes, and have a personal superintendence of the farm. He shall take duplicate vouchers for all purchases made, and for all wages paid by him, which he shall submit to the trustees at each of their quarterly meetings, for their examination and approval. Such settlement of accounts shall be made by the board of trustees in open session, and shall not be entrusted to a committee. The trustees shall, after examining and approving such vouchers, file one set of them with the auditor of state. The books and papers of the steward and treasurer shall be open at all times to the inspection of any one of the trustees, state officers, or members of the general assembly.

SEC. 1393. [Seal. ]—The superintendent shall provide an official seal, upon which shall be inscribed the statute name of the hospital under his charge, and the name of the state.

SEC. 1394. [Assistant physicians. ]—The assistant physicians shall be medical men of such character and qualifications as to be able to perform the ordinary duties of the superintendent during his necessary absence, or inability to act.

COMMISSIONERS OF INSANITY.

SEC. 1395. [Who may be; judge of circuit court to appoint. ]—In each county there shall be a board of three commissioners of insanity. The clerk of the circuit court shall be a member of such board and clerk of the same. The other members shall be appointed by the judge of said court. One of them shall be a respectable practicing physician, and the other a respectable practicing lawyer; and the appointment shall be made of persons residing as convenient as may be to the county seat. Such appointment may be made during the session of the court or in vacation; and, if made in vacation, it shall be by written order, signed by the judge and recorded by the clerk of the court. The appointment shall be for two years, and so that the term of one commissioner shall expire every year. The appointment of successors may be made at any time within three months prior to the expiration of the term of the incumbent, who shall hold his office until his successor is appointed and qualified. In the temporary absence or inability to act of two commissioners, the judge of the circuit court, if present, may act in the room of one, or the commissioner present may call to his aid a respectable prac-
Sec. 1396. [Organization of.]—They shall organize by choosing one of their number president. They shall hold their meetings for business at the office of the clerk of said court, unless, for good reasons, they shall fix on some other place, and shall also meet on notice from the clerk.

Sec. 1397. [Clerk of: duty.].—The clerk of said board of commissioners shall sign and issue all notices, appointments, warrants, subpoenas or other process required to be given or issued by the commissioners, affixing thereto his seal as clerk of the circuit court. He shall file and preserve in his office all papers connected with any inquest by the commissioners, and properly belonging to his office, with all notices, reports, and other communications. He shall keep separate books in which to minute the proceedings of the board, and his entries therein shall be sufficiently full to show, with the papers filed, a complete record of their findings, orders and transactions. The notices, reports and communications herein required to be given or made, may be sent by mail, unless otherwise expressed or implied; and the facts and date of such sending and their reception, must be noted on the proper record.

Sec. 1398. [Jurisdiction and power.].—The said commissioners shall have cognizance of all applications for admission to the hospital, or for the safe keeping otherwise of insane persons within their respective counties, excepting in cases otherwise especially provided for. For the purpose of discharging the duties required of them, they shall have power to issue subpoenas and compel obedience thereto, to administer oaths, and to do any act of a court necessary and proper in the premises.

Sec. 1399. [Applications for admission.].—Applications for admission to the hospital must be made in the form of an information, verified by affidavit, alleging that the person in whose behalf the application is made is believed by the informant to be insane, and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital; that such a person is found in the county, and has a legal settlement therein, if such is known to be the fact; and, if such settlement is not in the county, where it is, if known; or where it is believed to be, if the informant is advised on the subject.

Sec. 1400. [Investigation warrant: certificate of physician.]—On the filing of such information, the commissioners may examine the informant, under oath, and, if satisfied there is reasonable cause therefore, shall at once investigate the grounds thereof. For this purpose they may require that the person for whom such admission is sought be brought before them, and that the examination be had in his presence; and they may issue their warrant therefor, and provide for the suitable custody of such person until their investigation shall be concluded. Such warrant may be executed by the sheriff, or any constable of the county; or, if they shall be of opinion from such preliminary inquiries as they may make—and in making which they shall take the testimony of the informant, if they deem it necessary or desirable, and of other witnesses if offered—that such course would probably be injurious to such person, or attended with no advantage, they may dispense with such presence. In their examination they shall hear testimony for and against such application, if any is offered. Any citizen of the county, or any relative of the person alleged to be insane, may appear and resist the application, and the parties may appear by counsel, if they elect. The commissioners, whether they dispense with the presence before them of such person or not, shall appoint some regular practicing physician of the county to visit such person and make a personal examination touching the truth of the information, and the actual condition of such person, and forthwith report to them thereon. Such physician may, or may not, be of their own number; and the physician so appointed and acting shall certify, under his hand, that he has, in pursuance of his appointment, made a careful personal examination as required; and that, on such examination, he finds the person in question insane, if such is the fact, and if otherwise, not insane; and in connection with his examination, the said physician shall endeavor to obtain from the relatives of the person in question, or from others who know the facts, correct answers, so far as may be, to the interrogatories hereinafter required to be propounded in such cases, which interrogatories and answers shall be attached to his certificate.

The physician's certificate prepared from the statement of relatives and friends of a patient in the insane asylum, is not competent evidence to show what has been the mental condition of the patient previous to his confinement in the asylum. Butler v. The St. Louis Life Ins. Co., 45 Iowa, 93.

The opinion of a witness who is not an expert, respecting the sanity of a person, is competent where he states all the facts upon which his opinion is founded. Id.

In the trial of an issue of insanity, it is not competent for a medical witness to give his opinion as an expert respecting the testimony which has been introduced in the case, but the inquiry should be limited to his conclusion respecting the facts. Id.

SEC. 1401. (As amended by ch. 132, 15th g. a., and ch. 68, 22d g. a.) [Finding of commissioners.]—On the return of the physician's certificate, the commissioners shall, as soon as practicable, conclude their investigation, and shall find whether the person alleged to be insane, is insane; whether, if insane, a fit subject for treatment and custody in the hospital; whether the legal settlement of such person is in their county, and, if not in their county, where it is, if ascertained. If they find such person is not insane, they shall order his immediate discharge, if in custody. If they find such person insane, and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital, [they shall order said person to be committed to the hospital, unless said person so found to be insane (or some one in his or her behalf), shall appeal from the finding of said commissioners.] They shall forthwith issue their warrant, and a duplicate thereof, stating such finding, with the settlement of the person, if found; and, if not found, their information, if any, in regard thereto, authorizing the superintendent of the hospital to receive and keep such person as a patient therein. Said warrant and duplicate, with the certificate and finding of the physician, shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who shall execute the same by conveying such person to the hospital, and delivering him, with such duplicate and physician's certificate, and finding, to the superintendent thereof. The superintendent, over his official signature, shall acknowledge such delivery on the original warrant, which the sheriff shall return to the clerk of the commissioners, with his costs and expenses indorsed thereon. If neither the sheriff nor his deputy is at hand, or if both are otherwise engaged, the commissioners may appoint some other suitable person to execute the warrant in his stead, who shall take and subscribe an oath faithfully to discharge his duty, and shall be entitled to the same fees as the sheriff. The sheriff, or any other person so appointed, may take to his aid such assistants as he may need to execute such warrant; but no female shall thus be taken to the hospital without the attendance of some other female, or some relative. The superintendent, in his acknowledgment of delivery, must state whether there was any person in attendance, and give the name or names, if any. But if any relative or immediate friend of the patient who is a suitable person, shall so request, he shall have the privilege of executing such warrant in preference to the sheriff, or any other person, and without taking such oath; and for so doing he shall be entitled to his necessary expenses, but to no fees. [And no person during such investigation or who shall be found to be insane, as above provided, shall, during investigation, or after such finding, and pending commitment to the hospital for the insane, or when en route to said hospital, be confined in any jail or prison or other place of solitary confinement except in case of extreme violence when it may be deemed absolutely necessary for the safety of such insane person, or of the public; and if such violent insane person be so confined there shall be at all times during such confinement some suitable person or persons in attendance in charge of such insane person; but at no time shall any female be placed in such confinement without at least one female attendant remaining in charge of such insane person.] The requirements of this and preceding sections are modified by the provisions of the next section.

This section is not in conflict with section 9 and 10, of article 1, of the constitution, securing to every person a speedy and impartial trial by an impartial jury, in all cases involving life or liberty. Those sections apply only to accusations for criminal offenses, and not to inquests of lunacy or insanity. The County of Black Hawk v. Springer, 63 Iowa, 417.

SEC. 1402. [When settlement is in another county: proceedings.]—If the commissioners find that the person so committed to the hospital has, or probably has, a legal settlement in some other county, they shall immediately notify the auditor of such county of such finding and commitment; and the auditor so notified shall thereupon inquire and ascertain, if possible, whether the person in question has a legal settlement in that county, and shall immediately notify the superintendent of the hospital and the commissioners of the county from which such person was committed, of the result of such inquiry. If the legal settlement of a person so committed cannot for a time be ascertained, and is afterwards found, the notices so required shall then be given.

A county from which an insane person has been committed to the hospital, and which has been charged with, and has paid the expenses of such person in the hospital, cannot recover such expenses from the county of such insane person's settlement, unless the commissioners of the plaintiff county, at the time of the commitment found that such person had, or probably had, a settlement in the defendant county, and immediately notified the auditor of the defendant county of such finding and commitment, and a petition which does not allege such notice is bad on demurrer. Poweshiek County v. Case County, 63 Iowa, 244.

Appeals from Commissioners of Insanity.

An Act providing for appeals from the findings of the commissioners of insanity, and to amend section 1401, of chapter 2, title XI, of the code.

Section 1. [Any person found insane has right of appeal.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That any person found to be insane by the commissioners of insanity may appeal to the circuit court by giving the clerk of said court notice in writing that he or she appeals from said finding, which notice may be signed by the party, his or her attorney, agent, or guardian.

Section 2. [To be taken in ten days.]—Such appeal may be taken at any time within ten (10) days after the filing of the finding of said commissioners.

Section 3. [Docketed in circuit court.]—The cause, when thus appealed, shall be placed upon the docket by the clerk of said court, and stand for trial anew in the circuit court.

Section 4. [Person appealing to be discharged or suitably provided for.]—If any person found to be insane by the commissioners of insanity takes an appeal from such finding, such person shall be discharged from custody pending such appeal, unless the commissioners, for any reason, find that such person cannot, with safety, be allowed to go at large, in which case they shall require that such patient shall be suitably provided for, as provided in section 1403 of the code, until such appeal can be tried and determined.

Section 5. [Discharged.]—If, upon the trial, such person is found not insane, the court shall order his or her immediate discharge, if in custody. If such person is found to be insane, and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital, the court shall order that such person be committed to the hospital, and the clerk of the court shall issue a warrant to carry said finding and order into effect; which warrant and the proceedings on and under it, shall be substantially the same as are provided for in section 1401 of chapter 2, title 11, of the code.

SEC. 6. [Amendment.]—That section 1101 of chapter 2 of the title 11 of the code be amended by inserting, after the word "hospital," in the tenth line thereof, the words: "They shall order said person to be committed to the hospital," and "unless said person so found to be insane (or some one in his or her behalf) shall appeal from the finding of said commissioners."

Approved March 26, 1880.

A person found by the commissioners of insanity to be insane may appeal to the district court within ten days after the finding is filed, under this statute, but the statute makes no provision for a rehearing before the commissioners; and from a refusal by them to grant a rehearing, an appeal will not lie. Wilson v. The State, 66 Iowa, 487.

SEC. 1403. [(As amended by ch. 6s, 22d g. a.)] [When person cannot be sent to hospital: special custodian appointed.]—If any person found to be insane and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital cannot at once be admitted therein for want of room, or for any other cause, and cannot with safety be allowed to go at liberty, the commissioners shall require that such patient shall be suitably provided for otherwise until such admission can be had, or until the occasion therefor no longer exists. Such patients may be cared for either as private or as public patients. Those shall be treated as private patients whose relations or friends will obligate themselves to take care of and provide for them without public charge. In such case the commissioners shall appoint some suitable person a special custodian, who shall have authority, and who shall, in all suitable ways, restrain, protect, and care for such patient, in such manner as to best secure his safety and comfort, and to best protect the person and property of others. In the case of public patients, the commissioners shall require that they be in like manner restrained, protected and cared for by the board of supervisors at the expense of the county, and they may, accordingly, issue their warrant to such board, who shall forthwith comply with the same. If there is no poor house for the reception of such patients, or if no more suitable place can be found, they may be confined in the jail of the county in charge of the sheriff. [Provided, however, that any female who may be so confined in such poor house or jail shall be at all times under the care of a suitable female attendant, who alone shall hold the key of the apartment in which said insane person is confined.]

SEC. 1404. [When admission to hospital is not desired.]—On application to the commissioners in behalf of persons alleged to be insane, and whose admission to the hospital is not sought, made substantially in the manner above prescribed, and asking that provisions be made for their care as insane—either public or private—within the county, and on proof of their insanity and need of care as above pointed out, the commissioners may provide for their restraint, protection and care, as in the case of other applications.

SEC. 1405. [When suffering from want of care.]—On information laid before the commissioners of any county that a certain insane person in the county is suffering for want of proper care, they shall forthwith inquire into the matter, and if they find the information well founded, they shall make all needful provisions for the care of such person, as provided in other cases.

SEC. 1406. [May be transferred to hospital.]—Insane persons who have been under care, either as public or private patients, outside of the hospital, by authority of the commissioners of any county, may, on application to that effect, be transferred to the hospital whenever they can be admitted thereto, on the warrant of such commissioners. Such admission may be had without another inquest, at any time within six months after the inquest already had, unless the commissioner shall deem further inquest advisable.
SEC. 1407. [Interrogatories to be answered.]—In each case of application for admission to the hospital, correct answers to the following interrogatories, so far as they can be obtained, shall accompany the physician’s certificate; and if, on further examination, after the answers are stated, any of them are found to be erroneous, the commissioners shall cause them to be corrected:

1. What is the patient’s name and age? Married or single? If any children, how many? Age of youngest child?
2. Where was the patient born?
3. Where is his (or her) place of residence?
4. What has been the patient’s occupation?
5. Is this the first attack? If not, when did the others occur, and what was their duration?
6. When were the first symptoms of this attack manifested, and in what way?
7. Does the disease appear to be increasing, decreasing, or stationary?
8. Is the disease variable, and are there rational intervals? If so, do they occur at regular periods?
10. Has the patient shown any disposition to injure others?
11. Has suicide ever been attempted? If so, in what way? Is the propensity now active?
12. Is there a disposition to filthy habits, destruction of clothing, breaking of glass, etc.?
13. What relatives, including grandparents and cousins, have been insane?
14. Did the patient manifest any peculiarities of temper, habits, disposition, or pursuits, before the accession of the disease?—any predominant passion, religious impressions, etc.?
15. Was the patient ever addicted to intemperance in any form?
16. Has the patient been subject to any bodily disease; epilepsy, suppressed eruptions, discharges of sores, or ever had any injury of the head?
17. Has restraint or confinement been employed? If so, what kind, and how long?
18. What is supposed to be the cause of the disease?
19. What treatment has been pursued for the relief of the patient? Mention particulars and effects.
20. State any other supposed to have a bearing on the case.

SEC. 1408. [Discharge on application of friends.]—On the application of the relations or immediate friends of any patient in the hospital, who is not cured, and who cannot be safely allowed to go at liberty, the commissioners of the county where such patient belongs, on making provision for the care of such patient within the county as in other cases, may authorize his discharge therefrom; provided, no patient who may be under criminal charge or conviction, shall be discharged without the order of the district court or judge, and notice to the district attorney of the proper district as hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 1409. [Discharge of care for in county.]—Whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the commissioners of insanity of any county, that cause no longer exists for the care within the county of any particular person as an insane patient, they shall order the immediate discharge of such person.

SEC. 1410. [Expenses estimated and paid in advance from county treasury.]—Whenever the commissioners issue their warrant for the admission of a person to the hospital, and funds to pay the expense thereof are needed in advance, they shall estimate the probable expense of conveying such person to the hospital, including the necessary assistance, and not including the compensation allowed the sheriff; and on such estimate, certified by the clerk, the auditor of the county shall issue his order on the treasury of the county in favor of the sheriff or other person entrusted with the execution of such warrant; the sheriff, or other person executing such warrant, shall accompany his return with a statement of the expenses incurred; and the excess or deficiency may be deducted from or added to his compensation, as the case may be. If funds are not so advanced, such expenses shall be certified and paid in the manner above prescribed on the return of the warrant. When the commissioners order the return of a patient, compensation and expenses shall be in like manner allowed.

SEC. 1411. [Warrant and certificate: superintendent not liable to prosecution.]—The warrant of the commissioners of insanity, authorizing the admission of any person to the hospital as a patient, accompanied by a physician’s certificate as herein provided, shall operate to shield the superintendent and other officers of the hospital against all liability to prosecution of any kind on account of the reception and detention of such person in the hospital; provided, such detention shall be otherwise in accordance with the laws and by-laws regulating its management.

INSANE PRISONERS.

SEC. 1412. [Commissioners to make inquiry, etc.]—If any person in prison charged with a crime, shall at any time before indictment is found against him, at the request of any citizen be brought before the commissioners in the manner provided by law, and if it shall be found by them that such person was insane when he committed the offense; or if any person in prison shall, after the commission of the offense, and before conviction, become insane, and if at the request of any citizen an inquest be instituted as provided for in this chapter, and if the commissioners shall find that such person became insane after the commission of the crime of which he stands charged or indicted, and is still insane, they shall issue their warrant authorizing and requiring the superintendent of either hospital to receive and keep the person as a patient therein. In such case the warrant can only be executed by the sheriff or his deputy; and no delivery of the insane prisoner to any other person than the superintendent of the hospital shall exonerate the sheriff from his liability for the custody of such prisoner, and any such lunatic prisoner, when restored to reason, be prosecuted for any offense committed by him previous to such insanity.

SEC. 1413. [Cannot be discharged until county attorney is notified.]—When any lunatic shall be confined in either hospital under the preceding section, the superintendent in whose charge he may be, shall, as soon as such lunatic is restored to his reason, give notice thereof to the district attorney of the proper county, and retain such lunatic in custody for such reasonable time thereafter as may be necessary for said attorney to cause a warrant to issue and to be served, by virtue whereof the said person so restored to reason shall again be returned to the jail of the proper county to answer to the offense alleged against him.

SEC. 1414. [Becoming insane after conviction: governor suspend, etc.]—If any person, after being convicted of any crime or misdemeanor, and before the execution in whole or part of the sentence of the court, becomes insane, the governor shall inquire into the facts, and he may pardon such lunatic, or commute or suspend, for the time being, the execution in such manner and for such a period as he may think proper, and may, by his warrant to the sheriff of the proper county or warden of either penitentiary, order such lunatic to be conveyed to the hospital and there kept until restored to reason. If the sentence of any lunatic be suspended by the governor, the sentence of the court shall be executed upon him after such period of suspension has expired, unless otherwise directed by the governor.
 Custodian of Insane Persons.

Sec. 1415. [Guilty of misdemeanor.]—Any person having care of an insane person, and restraining such person either with or without authority, who shall treat such person with wanton severity, harshness, or cruelty, or shall in any way abuse such person, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, besides being liable in an action for damages.

Sec. 1416. [Insane cannot be restrained except by authority.]—No person supposed to be insane shall be restrained of his liberty by any other person, otherwise than in pursuance of authority obtained as herein required, excepting to such extent and for such brief period as may be necessary for the safety of person and property until such authority can be obtained.

Superintendent—Trustees—Regulations.

Sec. 1417. [When sent from one county whose settlement is in another.]—When the superintendent of the hospital has been duly notified as herein required, that a patient sent to the hospital from one county has a legal settlement in another county, he shall thereafter hold and treat such patient as from the latter county; and such holding shall apply to expenses already incurred in behalf of such patient and remaining unadjusted.

Sec. 1418. [Expenses may be recovered of the county of the settlement.]—Expenses incurred as hereinafter provided by one county on account of an insane person whose legal settlement is in another county, shall be refunded, with lawful interest thereon, by the county of such settlement, and shall be presented to the board of supervisors of the county sought to be charged, allowed, and paid the same as other claims. If the settlement is denied by the latter board, they may serve a notice similar to that provided for in section thirteen hundred and fifty-nine, of chapter one of this title, for cases of removal; and all the provisions of that chapter in regard to the determination of a disputed claim upon an order of removal shall apply to the change of settlement of an insane person.

Sec. 1419. (As amended by ch. 47, 21st g. a.) [When no settlement, state to pay.]—Patients in the hospital having no legal settlement in the state, or whose legal settlement cannot be ascertained, shall be supported at the expense of the state, and the trustees may authorize the superintendent to remove any patient at the expense of the state if they see proper. [The cost of such removal to be paid directly from the state treasury upon the sworn statement of the superintendent approval of the trustees appended to each voucher, and counties from which such and patients are hereafter received shall be reimbursed for expenses incurred in sending such patients to the hospital, claim for such reimbursement to be certified to by the county auditor and be paid directly from the state treasury.]

Sec. 1420. [Special care may be given when paid for by relatives.]—All patients in the hospital shall be regarded as standing upon an equal footing; and the several patients, according to their different conditions of mind and body, and their respective needs, shall be provided for and treated with equal care; but if the relatives or friends of any patient shall desire it, and shall pay the expense thereof, such patient may have special care, and may be provided with a special attendant, as may be agreed upon with the superintendent. In such cases, the charges for such special care and attendance shall be paid quarterly in advance.

Sec. 1421. [Expenses paid by relatives.]—The relatives or friends of any patient in the hospital shall have the privilege of paying any portion or all of the expenses of such patients therein; and the superintendent shall cause the account of such patient to be credited with any sums so paid.
SEC. 1422. [Discrimination between patients.]—If at any time it may become necessary, for want of room or other cause, to discriminate in the general reception of patients into the hospital, a selection shall be made as follows:

1. Recent cases, i.e., cases of less than one year’s duration, shall have the preference over all others;

2. Chronic cases, i.e., where the disease is of more than one year’s duration, presenting the most favorable prospects of recovery shall be next preferred;

3. Those for whom application has been longer on file, other things being equal, shall be next preferred;

4. Where cases are equally meritorious in all other respects, the indigent shall have the preference.

SEC. 1423. [Escape of.]—If any patient shall escape from the hospital, the superintendent shall cause immediate search to be made for him; and, if he cannot soon be found, shall cause notice of such escape to be forthwith given to the commissioners of the county where the patient belongs; and if such patient is found in their county, the commissioners shall cause him to be returned, and shall issue their warrant therefor as in other cases, unless the patient shall be discharged, or unless, for good reasons, they shall provide for his care otherwise, of which they shall notify the superintendent.

SEC. 1424. [Discharge of when cured.]—Any patient who is cured shall be immediately discharged by the superintendent. Upon such discharge, the superintendent shall furnish the patient, unless otherwise supplied, with suitable clothing and a sum of money, not exceeding twenty dollars, which shall be charged with the other expenses in the hospital of such patient. The relatives of any patient not susceptible of cure by remedial treatment in the hospital, and not dangerous to be at large, shall have the right to take charge of and remove such patient on consent of the board of trustees. In the interim of the meetings of the board, the consent of two of the trustees shall be sufficient.

SEC. 1425. [Incurable and harmless removed.]—The board of trustees shall order the discharge or removal from the hospital of incurable and harmless patients, whenever it is necessary to make room for recent cases; in the interim between the meetings of the board, the superintendent, in connection with two trustees, shall possess and exercise the same power.

SEC. 1426. [Notice of discharge sent commissioners.]—When patients are discharged from the hospital by the authorities thereof without application therefor, notice of the order of discharge shall at once be sent to the commissioners of the county where they belong; and the commissioners shall forthwith cause them to be removed, and shall at once provide for their care in the county as in other cases, unless such patients are discharged as cured.

SEC. 1427. (As amended by ch. 84, 17th g. a.) [Compensation for keeping fixed.]—The trustees shall, from time to time, fix the sum to be paid per (month) for the board and care of the patients, which shall not exceed the sum of (sixteen dollars per month and the monthly sum so fixed,) shall be the sum the said hospital shall be entitled to demand for keeping any patient; and the certificate of the superintendent, attested by the seal of the hospital, shall be evidence in all places of the amount due as fixed.

SEC. 1428. (As amended by ch. 28, 16th g. a.) [Superintendent to certify to auditor of state.]—The superintendent shall certify to the auditor of state on the first day of January, April, July and October, the amount, not previously certified by him, due to said hospital, from the several counties having patients chargeable thereto; and said auditor shall pass the same to the credit of the hospital. The auditor shall, thereupon, notify the county auditor of each county so owing of the amount thereof, and charge the same to said county; and the board of supervisors shall levy a tax in said county for said amount, and pay the amount due the state into the state treasury.

(As amended by ch. 183, laws 17th g. a.) [On failure to levy insane tax.]—

(And should they within one year from the taking effect of this act fail to levy such tax sufficient to pay the amount now due the state, as shown by the books of the auditor of state, and shall fail at the time of levying other taxes thereafter to levy the tax aforesaid to an amount sufficient to pay the sum then due the state, it shall be the duty of the auditor of state to charge such delinquent county with a penalty three per centum per month upon the amount of indebtedness then six months due, for each month until payment thereof and penalty therein be made.)

RELATING TO SUPPORT OF THE INSANE.

An Act to amend section 1428, chapter 2, title XI, of the code, relating to insane expenses.

SECTION 1. [Code, § 1428, amended. ]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section fourteen hundred and twenty-eight of the code be amended by adding thereto the following, that is to say—“and should they within one year from the taking effect of this act fail to levy such tax sufficient to pay the amount now due the state, as shown by the books of the auditor of state, and shall fail at the time of levying other taxes thereafter to levy the tax aforesaid to an amount sufficient to pay the sum then due the state, it shall be the duty of the auditor of state to charge such delinquent county with a penalty of three per centum per month upon the amount of indebtedness then six months due, for each month until payment thereof and penalty thereon be made.”

SEC. 2. [Duty of county treasurer.]—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer on collection of the taxes herein required to be levied, to pay into the state treasury the amount due and owing from his county at the times and in the manner required for the payment of state taxes collected.

SEC. 3. [Insane tax shall not be diverted to other fund.]—Taxes levied and collected in any county for the purpose named in this act, shall be used only to defray the expenses of the insane chargeable to such county and the costs incident thereto, and shall not be diverted to any other purpose, nor be transferred to any other fund.

SEC. 4. [Penalty for violation of these provisions.]—Any member of the board of supervisors, or any county treasurer who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought against him in the district court of his county, in the name of the state, by the attorney-general.

SEC. 5. [Duty of state and county auditor.]—The auditor of state shall notify the several county auditors and county treasurers of the provisions of this act, and it shall be the duty of said officers to present said notice to the board of supervisors at their first meeting thereafter.

An Act to legalize the levy of certain taxes for the insane, and to provide for the collection thereof.

Section 1. [Levy made valid.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That wherever any of the boards of supervisors in any of the counties of this state have heretofore levied a tax known or called "insane tax," or "insane fund," upon the taxable property of such counties, that the said levy and said tax be, and are hereby declared to be, legal and valid in all respects, the same as though the said boards of supervisors of said counties had been authorized by law to levy the same, and had levied such taxes in the manner required or authorized by law.

Section 2. [Collection.]—That wherever any of said taxes now remain uncollected, the treasurers of said counties are hereby authorized to collect the same as other taxes are collected.

Section 1429. [Fees of superintendent when attending court.]—When the superintendent of the hospital, in obedience to a subpoena, attends any court of the county in which the hospital is situated as witness for either party in the case of a person on trial for a criminal offense, and the question of the sanity of such person is raised, he shall be allowed, on such account, his necessary and actual expenses, and such daily pay as is allowed to other witnesses, and such expenses and pay shall be paid by the state. When compelled so to attend in civil cases, he shall be entitled to the same compensation, to be paid by the party requiring his attendance.

Section 1430. [Seal of affixed.]—The superintendent shall affix the seal of the hospital to any notice, order of discharge, or other paper required to be given by him or issued.

Section 1431. [Blanks sent commissioners.]—The trustees of the hospital shall provide for furnishing the commissioners of the counties entitled to send patients to the hospital with such blanks for warrants, certificates, etc., as will enable them with regularity and facility to comply with the provisions of this chapter; and, also, with copies of the by-laws of the hospital when printed.

Section 1432. (As amended by ch. 76, 22d g. a.) [Rules adopted: who to form]—The superintendents of the hospitals and the governor of the state shall adopt such regulations as they may deem expedient in regard to what patients, or class of patients, shall be admitted to and provided for in the respective hospitals; or from what portion of the state patients, or certain classes of patients, may be sent to [any] hospital; and they may change such regulations from time to time as they may deem best; and they shall make such publication of these regulations as they may deem necessary for the information of those interested. The regulations so adopted shall be confirmed by the parties interested.

Section 1433. (As amended by ch. 26, 13th g. a.) [Estates of patients and relatives bound for support.]—The provisions herein made for the support of the insane at public charge shall not be construed to release the estates of such persons from liability for their support; and the auditors of the several counties, subject to the direction of the board of supervisors, are authorized and empowered to collect from the property of such patients, any sums paid by the county in their behalf, as herein provided; and the certificate from the superintendent, and the notice from the auditor of state, stating the sums charged in such cases, shall be presumptive evidence of the correctness of the sums so stated. If the board of supervisors, in the case of any insane patient who has been supported at the expense of the county, shall deem it a hardship to [charge the estate] of [any] such patient [with such cost of supporting the patient] they may relieve such [estate or estates] from any part or all of such burden, as may seem to them reasonable and just.

Under this section as amended by chapter 26 of the laws of 1874, the husband is not liable for the expenses incurred in the treatment of his insane wife who has been ordered to be sent to the hospital for the insane, and the county cannot recover from him the amount it has expended therefor. Delaware County v. McDonald, 46 Iowa, 170.

SEC. 1434. [Meaning of term “insane”: idiots not admitted.]—The term “insane,” as used in this chapter, includes every species of insanity or mental derangement. The term “idiot,” is restricted to persons foolish from birth, supposed to be naturally without mind. No idiot shall be admitted to the hospital.

VISITING COMMITTEE.

SEC. 1435. [Appointed by governor: power and duties.—There shall be a visiting committee of three, one of whom at least shall be a woman, appointed by the governor, to visit the insane asylums of the state at their discretion, and without giving notice of their intended visit, who may, upon such visit, go through the wards unaccompanied by any officer of the institution, with power to send for persons and papers, and to examine witnesses on oath, to ascertain whether any of the inmates are improperly detained in the hospital, or unjustly placed there, and whether the inmates are humanely and kindly treated, with full power to correct any abuses found to exist; and any injury inflicted upon the insane shall be treated as an offense, misdemeanor, or crime, as the like offense would be regarded when inflicted upon any other citizen outside of the insane asylums. They shall have power to discharge any attendant or employe who is found to have been guilty of misdemeanor meriting such discharge; and in all these trials for misdemeanor, offense, or crime, the testimony of patients shall be taken and considered for what it is worth, and no employe at the asylum shall be allowed to sit upon any jury before whom these cases are tried. Said committee shall make an annual report to the governor.

SEC. 1436. (As amended by section 2, ch. 53, 15th g. a.) [Inmates of hospital allowed to write.]—The names of this visiting committee and their post-office address, shall be kept posted in every ward in the asylum, and every inmate in the asylum shall be allowed to write [once a week, what he or she pleases to this committee.] And any member of this committee who shall neglect to heed the calls of the patient to him for protection, when proved to have been needed, shall be deemed unfit for his office, and shall be discharged by the governor.

SEC. 1437. [Superintendent to furnish writing material.]—Every person confined in any insane asylum shall be furnished by the superintendent or party having charge of such person, at least once in each week, with suitable materials for writing, enclosing, sealing and mailing letters, if they request the same, unless otherwise ordered by the visiting committee, which order shall continue in force until countermanded by said committee.

SEC. 1438. (As amended by section 2, ch. 53, 15th g. a.) [Letters to be deposited in p. o.]—The superintendent or party having charge of any person under confinement, shall receive, if requested to do so by the person so confined, at least one letter in each week [addressed to one of the visiting committee and] without opening or reading the same, and without delay to deposit it in a post-office for transmission by mail, with a proper postage stamp affixed thereto; [and to deliver to said person any letter without opening or reading the same, written to him or her by one of the visiting committee. But all other letters written by, or to, the person so confined may be examined by the superintendent, and if, in his opinion, the delivery of such letter would be injurious to the person so confined, he may retain the same.

Sec. 1439. [Inquest held.]—In the event of the sudden and mysterious death of any person so confined, a coroner’s inquest shall be held as provided for by law in other cases.

Sec. 1440. [Punishment for violation of law.]—Any person neglecting to comply with, or willfully and knowingly violating any of the provisions of the five preceding sections, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, and by ineligibility for this office in the future, and upon trial had for such offense, the testimony of any person, whether insane or otherwise, shall be taken and considered for what it is worth.

Sec. 1441. [Visits of.]—At least one member of said committee shall visit the asylum for the insane every month.

When Illegally Confined.

Sec. 1442. [May be discharged by district judge.]—On a statement in writing, verified by affidavit, addressed to a judge of the district or circuit court of the county in which the hospital is situated, or of the county in which any certain person confined in the hospital has his legal settlement, alleging that such person is not insane, and is unjustly deprived of his liberty, such judge shall appoint a commission of not more than three persons, in his discretion, to inquire into the merits of the case, one of whom shall be a physician, and if two or more are appointed, another shall be a lawyer. Without first summoning the party to meet them, they shall proceed to the hospital and have a personal interview with such person, so managed as to prevent him, if possible, from suspecting its object; and they shall make any inquiries and examinations they may deem necessary and proper of the officers and records of the hospital touching the merits of the case. If they shall judge it prudent and advisable, they may disclose to the party the object of their visit, and either in his presence or otherwise, make further investigation of the matter. They shall forthwith report to the judge making the appointment the result of their examination and inquiries. Such report shall be accompanied by a statement of the case, made and signed by the superintendent. If, on such report and statement, and the hearing of the testimony, if any is offered, the judge shall find the person not insane, he shall order his discharge. If the contrary, he shall so state, and authorize his continued detention. The finding and order of the judge, with the report and other papers, shall be filed in the office of the court over which such judge presides, who shall enter a memorandum thereof on his record, and forthwith notify the superintendent of the hospital of the finding and order of the judge, and the superintendent shall carry out the order. The commissioners appointed as provided in this section shall be entitled to their necessary expenses and a reasonable compensation, to be allowed by the judge, and paid by the state out of any funds not otherwise appropriated; provided, that the applicant shall pay the same if the judge shall find that the application was made without probable grounds, and shall so order.

Sec. 1443. [Commission: when appointed.]—The commission so provided for shall not be repeated oftener than once in six months in regard to the same party; nor shall such commission be appointed in the case of any patient within six months of the time of his admission.
SEC. 1444. [Habeas corpus.]—All persons confined as insane shall be entitled to the benefits of the writ of habeas corpus, and the question of insanity shall be decided at the hearing, and if the judge shall decide that the person is insane, such decision shall be no bar to the issuing of the writ a second time, whenever it shall be alleged that such person has been restored to reason.

SEC. 1445. [Failure of duty punished.]—Any officer required herein to perform any act, and any person accepting an appointment under the provisions of this chapter, and willfully refusing or neglecting to perform his duty as herein prescribed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, besides being liable to an action for damages.

ASYLUM FOR FEEBLE-MINDED CHILDREN REORGANIZED.

An Act to repeal chapter 152 of the acts of the sixteenth general assembly, and chapter 164 of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly, and to provide for the establishment and maintenance of the institution for feeble-minded children at Glenwood.

SECTION 1. [Chapter 152 of 16th g. a. and 164 of 18th g. a. amended.]
—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:
That chapter 152 of the sixteenth general assembly, and chapter 164 of the eighteenth general assembly, be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

SEC. 2. [Name changed to institution for.]
—That the institution located at Glenwood, in Mills county, and heretofore known as the asylum for feeble-minded children, shall by this act be termed the institution for feeble-minded children. Said institution shall be under the management of a board of trustees, consisting of three persons, two of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Said trustees shall be elected by the general assembly, one of whom shall be elected for two years, one for four years, and one for six years; and at least one of them shall be a resident of Mills county, and each general assembly shall hereafter elect one trustee for six years.

SEC. 3. [Purposes.]—The purposes of this institution are to train, instruct, support, and care for feeble-minded children.

SEC. 4. [Duty of trustees and superintendent.]
The board of trustees shall appoint a superintendent, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the board, to superintend the care, management, training, and instruction of the wards of the institution, and the management of its finances. He shall give a bond to the state of Iowa in such sum as the board shall require, to be approved by the board, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. He shall make quarterly settlements with the treasurer of the board.

SEC. 5. [Trustees to supervise the institution.]—The board of trustees shall have the general supervision of the institution and all its affairs, and shall adopt such rules and regulations for the management of the same as will carry into effect the provisions and purpose of this act. The trustees shall elect one of their number president, and they shall elect a secretary and treasurer, who may or may not be members of the board. The treasurer shall give bonds as the board may require, conditioned for the faithful accounting of all moneys that come into his hands. The secretary and treasurer, if not a member of the board, shall receive three dollars per day for the time he is actually employed during the sessions of the board, or under their direction. Said board shall meet at the institution on the first Wednesday in October of each year, and every three months thereafter, and at such other times as two of their number may decide. The full compensation of the members of the board shall be four dollars per day for time actually employed, and mileage such as is allowed by law to members of the general assembly.

SEC. 6. [Admission of pupils, and duty of county superintendents.]—

Every child and youth residing in the state between the ages of five and eighteen years of age, who, by reason of deficient intellect, is rendered unable to acquire an education in the common schools, shall be entitled to receive the physical and mental training and care of this institution at the expense of the state; and it shall be the duty of the county superintendent of common schools in each county to report to the superintendent of the institution, on the first day of October of each year, the name, age, and postoffice address of every person in his county between the ages of five and twenty-one, who, by reason of feeble mental and physical condition, is deprived of a reasonable degree of benefit from the common schools. He shall also state in said report whether or not such person has ever attended school, and how long, if at all; and he shall also give the postoffice address of the parent, guardian, or nearest friend of such person.

SEC. 7. [Who can apply for admission.]—There shall be received into the institution feeble-minded children between the ages of five and eighteen years, whose admission shall be applied for as follows:

First—By the father and mother, or either of them, if the other be adjudged insane.

Second—By the guardian duly appointed.

Third—In all other cases by the board of supervisors of the county in which the child resides. It shall be the duty of such board of supervisors to make such application for any such child that has no living sane parent or guardian in the state, unless such child is comfortably provided for already.

SEC. 8. [Trustees to prescribe form of application.]—The forms for applications for admission into the institution shall be such as the trustees shall prescribe, and each application shall be accompanied by answers to such interrogatories as the trustees shall require propounded.

SEC. 9. [$10 per month support fund.]—For the support of said institution there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten (10) dollars per month for each inmate therein supported by the state, counting the actual time such person is an inmate and supported by the institution; and upon presentation to the auditor of state of a sworn statement of the average number of inmates supported in the institution by the state for the preceding month, the auditor of state shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for such sum. For the ordinary expenses of the institution, including furniture, books, school apparatus, and compensation of officers and teachers, there is hereby appropriated the sum of eleven (11) thousand dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, which may be drawn quarterly upon the order of the trustees.

SEC. 10. [Superintendent to furnish clothing: when.]—When the pupils of the institution are not otherwise provided with clothing, the same shall be furnished by the superintendent, who shall make out an account of the cost thereof in each separate case, together with the cost of transmission of the pupil, when the latter is not otherwise provided for; and said account shall be made against the parent or guardian, if there be such, or otherwise against the inmate; and when said account shall have been certified by the superintendent it shall be presumed to be correct in all courts, and shall be transmitted by mail to the county auditor of the county from which said pupil was sent to the institution. The said auditor shall then proceed at once to collect the same, by suit if necessary, in the name of the county, and pay the same into the state treasury. The superintendent shall at the same time transmit a duplicate of the same account to the auditor of state, who shall credit the same to the account of the institution and charge it to the proper county: Provided, (if) it shall appear by the affidavit of three disinterested citizens of the county, not kin to the inmate, that the parent or guardian would be unreasonably oppressed by such suit, then such auditor shall not institute such suit, but shall credit the same to the state on his books, and report the amount of such account to the board of supervisors of his county, and the said board shall draw from the county fund the amount claimed and cause the same to be paid into the state treasury. All accounts for clothing and transportation of pupils on the books of the superintendent of this institution, and not paid at the time of the enactment of this section, hereby are made subject to the same, and shall be collected accordingly.

Sec. 11. [Inmates returned: when.]—Any inmate of the institution may be returned to the parents or guardian whenever the trustees may so direct.

Sec. 12. [Feeble-minded include idiotic children.]—The term "feeble-mind," as used in connection with this institution, shall be so construed as to include idiotic children, and the institution shall provide a custodian department for the care of such children as cannot be benefited by educational training.

Sec. 13. (As amended by ch. 68, 22d g. a.) [Trustees to report to general assembly.]—The board of trustees shall make a full report of the disbursements of the institution, and its condition, financial and otherwise, (to the governor biennially.)

Sec. 14. [Appointment of subordinate officers.]—The superintendent may, under the direction of the board of trustees, appoint such subordinate officers, teachers, attendants and other help as may be needed for the efficient working of the institution.

CHAPTER 3.

OF DOMESTIC AND OTHER ANIMALS.

Section 1446. (As substituted by sec. 2, ch. 70, 15th g. a.) [Swine and sheep restrained.]—(Every owner of swine, sheep or goats, shall restrain the same from running at large.)

Sec. 1447. [Male animals running at large taken up.]—Any person may take possession of any stallion, jack, bull, boar or buck, found at large in the county in which such person resides, and give notice thereof to any constable in the county, who shall sell the animals so taken at public auction to the best bidder for cash, having given ten days notice of the time and place of sale, by posting the same in writing in three public places in the township wherein such animals were found at large. Out of the proceeds of sale he may pay all costs and charges of keeping and any damage done by said animals, and shall pay the remainder of said proceeds into the county treasury, to be applied to the use of the county, unless legal proof be made to the county auditor by the owner of said animals of his right thereto; such proof may be made at any time within twelve months from the sale, and thereupon said auditor shall order the proper amount to be paid to the owner out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. But if the owner, or any person for him, shall, on or before the day of sale, pay the costs and charges thus far made, and all damages, and make satisfactory proof of his ownership, the constable shall release the animal to him without proceeding further.
The owner of a bull, who allows him to run at large, is liable for all damages he may cause, and where an unpedigreed bull thus running at large gets a thoroughbred cow with calf, the measure of damages is the difference in value of plaintiff's cow for breeding purposes, before and after meeting defendant's bull. Crawford v. Williams, 43 Iowa, 247.

SEC. 1448. (As substituted by sec. 3, ch. 70, 15th g. a.) [Domestic animals doing damage restrained.]—(When any person is injured in his lands, inclosed by a lawful fence, by any kind of domestic animal, he may recover his damages by an action against the owner, or by distraining the animals doing the damage; but if they were lawfully on the adjoining land, and escaped therefrom in consequence of the neglect of the person suffering the damage to maintain his part of the division fence, the owner of the animals shall not be liable for such damage; provided, that if the party injured elects to recover by action against the owner of the stock, no appraisement need be made by the trustees as in cases of distrain; and in counties where by police regulation stock is restrained from running at large, any person injured in his improved or cultivated lands by any domestic animal may recover his damages as provided in section six of this act and sections 1454, 1455 and 1456 of the code, whether the lands wherein the injury was done was inclosed by a lawful fence or not.)

The fact that stock is prohibited from running at large in a county does not relieve the land owner from the duty of maintaining partition fences, and if he suffers damage resulting from his own neglect to keep up his fences, he cannot recover therefor from the owner of the stock doing the damage. Duffress v. Judd, 49 Iowa, 256.

The common law rule, that every man is required to keep his cattle within his own close, under the penalty of answering in damages for all injuries arising from their running at large, was held not in force in Iowa. Wagner v. Bissell, 3 Id., 396 (1856); Heath v. Coltenback, 5 Id., 490 (1857); Alger v. The M. & M. R'y Co., 10 Id., 263 (1859); Smith v. The C., K. I. P. R'y Co., 34 Id., 596.

In an action for trespass committed by cattle, under the law as it stood in 1856—57, the plaintiff, in order to recover, had to show that his fence was sufficient to turn ordinary stock. Heath v. Coltenback, supra; Frazier v. Noritus, 34 Id., 29.

In an action for damages under this section, the plaintiff may prove the damages sustained by him by the ordinary character of evidence. The finding of the damages by the fence viewers is done only where the plaintiff elects to distrain the beasts. Quinton v. Van Tuyll, 30 Id., 554.

An agent or servant may distrain for, and at the direction of the master or owner of the premises or crops, trespassing animals doing damage thereon; and as such agent he may justly, in an action of replevin brought against him to recover the cattle while thus held by him. Beorninger v. O'Hare, 36 Id., 259.

The fact that stock is prohibited from running at large in a county does not relieve the land owner of the duty of maintaining partition fences, and if he suffers damage resulting from his neglect to keep up his fences, he cannot recover therefor from the owner of the stock causing the damage. Duffress v. Judd, 41 Id., 256.

If cattle break over a good and sufficient fence into one field, and from thence into another field belonging to the same owner, separated from the first by an insufficient fence, such owner may maintain an action for damages to the second field. Herold v. Meyer, 30 Id., 375.

An agent or servant may distrain for, and at the direction of the master or owner of the premises or crops, trespassing animals doing damage thereon; and as such agent he may justly, in an action of replevin brought against him to recover the cattle while thus held by him. Beorninger v. O'Hare, 36 Id., 259.

[Adjoining owner.]—And if the animals are not lawfully upon the adjoining close and came thereupon, or if they escaped therefrom into the injured enclosure in consequence of the neglect of the adjoining owner to maintain any partition fence, or any part thereof, which it was his duty to maintain, then any part of the adjoining land shall be liable as well as the owner of the animals.

SEC. 1449. (As substituted by §§ 3, 4, ch. 70, 15th g. a.) [Section 300 of the code is hereby amended by striking out the word “now” in the fifth line thereof; and the word “stock,” as used therein and in this chapter, is hereby declared to mean cattle, horses, mules and asses; and, under said section, the board of supervisors of each county may—and on petition of one-fourth of the legal voters thereof, as shown by the returns of the last general election, must—submit, in the manner provided by section 310 of the code, except as herein modified, to the electors of the county at the next general election, or, if they deem it advisable, at a special election called for that purpose, the following questions of police regulation, or either of them, and no others, to-wit:

First. Shall stock be restrained from running at large?

Second. Shall stock be restrained from running at large between sunset and sunrise?

Third. Shall stock be restrained from running at large between sunset and sunrise from the first day of (naming the month) in each year, until the first day of (naming the month) following?

Fourth. Shall stock be restrained from running at large between sunset and sunrise from the first day of (naming the month) in each year until the first day of (naming the month) following?

The provisions of the statute authorizing the people of the several counties of the state to decide by a majority vote to restrain swine and sheep from running at large, held, not inconsistent with article 1, of section 6, of the state constitution. Dalby v. Wolf et al., 14 Iowa, 228. See, also, Wir v. Cram, 37 Id., 649; Little v. McGuire, 38 Id., 560.

It was held that, under chapter 26, laws of 1870, the owner of trespassing animals was liable for damages done by them without inquiry as to whether the lands were fenced or not. Little v. McGuire, 38 Id., 560; Hallock v. Hughes, 42 Id., 516.

SEC. 1451. (As amended by sec. 5, ch. 70, 15th g. a.) [Regulation in force when. ]—[If at such election a majority of the electors voting thereon shall vote in favor of either of such regulations, then the same shall take effect and be in force at the end of thirty days after said election, and shall continue in force until the end of ninety days after an election at which, on a resubmission of the same question, a majority of the electors of the county voting thereon shall vote against the same; Provided, that where any county prior to the taking effect of this act, shall have voted, on the submission of such question, for for restraining stock from running at large; or for restraining stock from running at large between the hours of sunset and sunrise, as provided in chapter three, title eleven, of the code, or in the law or laws to which the same is amendatory, such vote is hereby declared to be legal and valid, and to amount to an adoption by the county of the police regulation so voted for, as the same is herein set out, as fully and effectually as if the same was submitted and voted for under this act, except that the same shall be and remain in force in such county until the end of thirty days after the next general election and no longer, unless re-adopted thereat. ]

SEC. 1452. (As amended by section 1, ch. 158, 18th g. a.) [Owner of stock liable for damage where police regulation is adopted. ]—[The owner of any stock or domestic animal, prohibited by law or police regulation of any county, from running at large at any of the times hereinbefore mentioned, shall be liable for all damages done thereby while wrongfully remaining at large upon the public highway or upon the improved or cultivated lands of another, which may be recovered by action at law, or the party injured may, at his option, restrain the trespassing animals, and retain the same in some safe place, at the expense of the owner, until the damages are paid as provided in section[s] 1454, 1455 and 1456 of the code. [Said damages to be assessed pro rata per head, and each owner, if more than one owner, shall be liable for the pro rata amount, and each owner shall have the right to discharge his stock from distraint by paying the said pro rata amount to the person damaged, together with his pro rata share of the costs of the distraint. ] Provided, that no stock or domestic animal, except the male animals mentioned in section 1447 of the code, shall be considered as running at large, so long as the same is upon the unimproved or uncultivated lands, and under the immediate care and control of the owner, or upon the public highway under like care and control, for the purpose of travel or driving thereon.

The plowing of a single furrow around an 80 acre tract of wild and unimproved land, the cultivation of three acres for a garden, the breaking of eight acres and the cutting of some brush on a portion of the remainder do not constitute the whole tract improved as contemplated by this section; but such acts sufficiently indicate the owner's possession of the land and his purpose to use the grass growing thereon, to enable him to maintain an action for damages against one who, without his consent, herds cattle upon the unbroken part of the land. Otis v. Morgan, 61 Iowa, 712.

SEC. 1453. (As amended by ch. 70, 15th g. a.) [Who to be considered owner.]

—[The word owner, as used in the preceding and in the three succeeding sections of this chapter of the code, shall include the person entitled to the present possession of the animal, and also the person having the care or charge of the same, as well as the person having the legal title thereto.]

RELATIVE TO DAMAGE DONE BY DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

An Act amending section 6 of chapter 70 of the laws of the fifteenth general assembly, relating to the liability of owners of stock for damage done by domestic animals running at large; and for the punishment of persons unlawfully relieving stock from distraint.

SECTION 1. (Amendment of section 6, ch. 70, 15th g. a.) Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That section 6 of chapter 70 of the [public] acts of the fifteenth general assembly be amended as follows: By adding, after the word “code” and before the word “provided,” in the tenth line of the said section, the following: “Said damages to be assessed pro rata per head, and each owner, if more than one owner, be liable for the pro rata amount, and each owner shall have the right to discharge his stock from distraint by paying the said pro rata amount to the person damaged, together with his pro rata share of the costs and distraint.”

SEC. 2. [Relieving stock from distraint by force punished. ]—That if any person by force or otherwise without leave of the person having stock under distraint, relieve the stock from distraint, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall pay a fine of not less than 10 dollars nor more than 100 dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than 10 days nor more than 30 days.

Approved March 27, 1880.

The word “stock” as used in section 2 of chapter 188 of the laws of 1880, making it a misdemeanor to release distrained stock, has its ordinary meaning as used in agriculture, and includes swine. The State v. Clark, 65 Iowa, 386.

SEC. 1454. [Township trustees notified to assess damages: sale of stock.]—Within twenty-four hours after the stock has been distrained, Sunday not being included, the party so injured, or his agent, shall notify the owner of said stock, when known, and if said owner shall fail to satisfy the owner of, or occupant cultivating said land, he shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, notify the township trustees to be and appear upon the premises to view and assess the damages; such notices to be either verbal or in writing. When two or more trustees have assembled, they shall proceed to view and assess the damages and the amount to be paid for keeping said stock; and if the persons owning such distrained stock refuse to pay such damages so assessed, then the trustees shall post up notices in three conspicuous places in the township where such damages were done, that the said stock, or so much thereof as is necessary to pay said damages with costs of sale, will be sold to the highest bidder; any money or stock left after satisfying such claims, shall be returned to the owner of the stock so disposed of; said sale shall take place at the enclosure where such stock was distrained, between the hours of one and three p. m., on the tenth day after the posting of said notice; provided, that if any one or more of said trustees are interested in said damages, the trustee or trustees not so interested shall appoint some one or more, as the case may require, to act in the place of the person or persons so interested; the owner of the stock, or the person entitled to the possession thereof, when known, sh-also be notified of the time and place of the meeting of said trustees to assess said damages. When either trustee is absent so that notice cannot be served upon him, then any justice of the peace shall appoint a suitable person, having the qualifications of a juror, to supply the place of the absent trustee, and the person so appointed shall serve as such trustee for all the purposes of this and the following sections.

SEC. 1455. [Assessment filed with clerk: appeal from.]—The trustees shall make their assessment in writing and file the same with the township clerk, to be of record in his office. Any person aggrieved by the action of the trustees under this chapter, may appeal to the circuit court of the proper county. The bond shall be filed with the clerk of the township in a penalty double the value of the property distrained, or if the value of the property exceed the amount of the damage claimed, then double the amount of the damage. Notice of such appeal shall be given in the same time and manner as in appeals from a judgment of a justice of the peace, with good and sufficient securities, to be approved by the clerk; and from and after the filing of the appeal bond, the same shall operate as a supersedeas. In case the owner of such stock be a appellant the same shall be delivered to him. The clerk, after the appeal is taken, shall certify all the original papers to the clerk of the circuit court within the time prescribed for the appeal.

On an appeal from an assessment of damages by the township trustees under this section, not only the amount of the damages awarded by the trustees, but also the question as to whether the claimant is entitled to any damages at all, may be considered. Duffees v. Judd, 48 Iowa, 256.

When power is conferred upon three or more persons to do an act, and notice to such persons is required, all must be notified, if possible, although, when duly notified, a majority may act. Accordingly held that an appraisement by two of the township trustees, of the damage done by trespassing animals, under this section of the code, was void, where no attempt was made to notify the other trustee. Barrett v. Dolan, 71 Id., 94.

SEC. 1456. [Estrays.]—If the owners of such distrained stock are not known it shall be treated as estrays.

The fact that a horse found running at large has escaped from, or been turned loose by a thief, will not prevent one who distrains him, and complies with the provisions of the statute concerning estrays, from acquiring a good title to him in due time, under the estray laws; and another may purchase the title so acquired, and hold the horse against the person from whom he was taken, even though he has been notified by the latter that the horse was stolen from him, and that he would claim him. Kinnie v. Roe, 70 Id., 509.

(Sections 1457, 1458, 1459, 1460, 1461, 1462 and 1463, are repealed by section one (1), of chapter 70, laws of 1874.)

SEC. 1464. [Unbroken Animals.]—No person shall take up an unbroken animal as a stray, between the first day of May and the first day of November, unless the same be found within his lawful enclosure; nor shall any person take up any stray unless he be a householder.

An estray is an animal whose owner is unknown. And a person cannot, under the statute, lawfully take up an animal found upon his unfenced premises, whose owner is known to him; and the owner of the animal may, in such case, replevy the animal without first tendering to the person who has taken it up, the costs and expenses incurred in respect thereto. Walters v. Glates, 29 Iowa, 437.

Under this section a householder may take up as an estray a broken animal running in the highway; the restriction is upon the taking up of an unbroken animal unless found within the enclosure of the distrainer. Knudson v. Geison, 38 Id., 234.

SEC. 1453. [Who may take up strays.]—If any horse, mule, neat cattle, or other animal, liable to be taken up as a stray, come upon any person's premises, any other person may notify him of the fact, and if he fail to take up such stray for more than five days after such notice, any other person being a householder in the same township may take up such stray and proceed with it as if taken upon his own premises; provided, that he shall produce to the justice of the peace proof of the service of such notice, and all persons taking up stray animals shall state to the justice, under oath, where such stray was taken up.
Sec. 1466. [Notice containing description of animal posted up.]—Any person taking up a stray, shall, within five days thereafter, post up written notices in three of the most public places in the township, containing a full description of said animal, and unless such stray shall have been previously reclaimed by the owner, he shall, within ten days, go before a justice of the peace in the township, in which such stray was taken up, or, in case there is no justice in the township, he shall go before the nearest justice in the county, and make oath as to where said stray was taken up, and that the marks or brands have not been altered to his knowledge either before or after the same was taken up.

Sec. 1467. [Appraisers: oath: duty of justice.]—If necessary, the justice shall issue a notice to three disinterested householders in the township, to appear at the time and place mentioned in said notice to appraise the stray. The persons so notified, or any two of them attending, shall take an oath that they will fairly and impartially appraise said stray, and their appraisement, embracing a description of the size, age, color, sex, marks, and brands of the stray, shall be entered by the justice in a book to be kept by him for that purpose.

Sec. 1468. [Justices to send copy of to county auditor: his duty.]—The justice shall, within ten days thereafter, send a certified copy of said entry to the county auditor, who shall immediately enter the same in an estray book, to be kept by him for that purpose. If the appraised value of the stray is ten dollars, or more, the auditor shall cause a copy of said entry to be posted on the court house door, and a copy of said notice to be inserted three times in some newspaper in the county, if there be one, if not, he shall cause to be posted up written notices in three public places in the county, and he shall, within ten days after receiving the notice of appraisement, unless the animal shall have been previously reclaimed by the owner, forward a certified copy of the same to the public printer hereafter provided; together with the amount required to pay for two insertions of said notice in the paper published by such printer.

Sec. 1469. [Secretary of state to contract for publishing notices: auditor notified.]—The secretary of state shall select and contract with a printer to print such advertisements of strays, and shall immediately notify the auditor of each county of the name and residence of such printer, and the price of such advertisements. In making the contract the secretary shall select an agricultural paper, published at the capital, if there be one. Such contract shall be renewed on the first day of January, annually; and if a vacancy should from any cause occur, the secretary shall immediately fill it with a new contract.

Sec. 1470. [Publication of notice: county auditor to subscribe for paper.]—The printer thus selected shall, once in each week, issue a newspaper or printed sheet, in which he shall give two successive insertions of all estray notices sent to him, and shall send one copy of each paper issued to the auditor of each county, who shall receive, file, and preserve the same, to be examined by any person who may desire to see them. The auditor is hereby required to subscribe for one copy of the paper selected by the secretary of state for the publication of estray notices, and the amount of the subscription price shall be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the county.

Sec. 1471. [When value is less than five dollars.]—When the appraised value of any stray does not exceed five dollars, no further proceedings need be had for the justice to enter a description of said stray on his estray book, and if no owner appear within six months, the right of the property shall vest in the finder, if he has complied with the law and paid all costs.

Sec. 1472. [When title to property vests.]—Where the appraised value of the stray exceeds five dollars and is less than ten, and the finder shall have complied with the provisions of this chapter, and paid all costs, the property shall vest in him after the expiration of nine months, if no owner appear.
SEC. 1473. [Taker up may use and work animal.]—Any person legally taking up a stray may use or work, if he does so with care and moderation, and does not abuse or injure it. But if any person unlawfully take up any stray, or take up any stray and fail to comply with the provisions of this chapter, or use or work it in a manner contrary to this chapter, or work it before having it appraised, or keep such stray out of the county for more than five days at any one time before he acquires a title to said stray, such offender shall forfeit to the county twenty dollars, to be sued for by any person in the county; and the owner of the stray may also recover of such offender double the amount of all injury sustained, with costs.

SEC. 1474. [Owner may prove property: proceeding.]—The owner of any stray may, within one year from the time of taking up, prove his ownership of the same before a justice of the peace (and if the title shall not have already vested in the finder by sections fourteen hundred and seventy-one or fourteen hundred and seventy-two of this chapter), and upon payment of all costs, the reward, and a reasonable allowance, he shall be entitled to recover the stray. If the owner and finder cannot agree upon the amount of such allowance, it shall be settled by some justice of the peace, who shall take into consideration the trouble and expense incurred by the finder, and whatever use he may have had of the stray.

SEC. 1475. [Title to vest in finder: exceptions.]—If the owner fail to claim his title to any stray for one year after the time of taking up, and the finder shall have complied with this law, a complete title to the stray shall vest in the finder; but if the owner shall appear within eighteen months from the time of taking up, and prove his ownership of such stray, and pay all costs and expenses as above provided, the finder shall pay him the appraised value of such stray, or may, at his option, deliver up the stray.

SEC. 1476. [Finder not liable for accidents.]—If any stray legally taken up escape from the finder, or die, without any fault on his part, he shall not be liable for the loss.

SEC. 1477. [Penalty.]—If any person shall sell, or trade, or take out of the state, any stray before the legal title shall have vested in him, he shall forfeit to the owner double the value of said stray, and shall be punished by fine not exceeding ninety dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 1478. If any printer, auditor or justice of the peace, fail to perform the duties enjoined upon him by this chapter in relation to strays, he shall forfeit to the county not less than five or more than fifty dollars, to be sued for by any person in the county.

SEC. 1479. [Marks and brands, book for.]—The board of supervisors of each county shall procure at the expense of the county, a book for each civil township, in which to record the marks and brands of horses, sheep, hogs and other animals.

SEC. 1480. [Recorded.]—Any person wishing to mark or brand his domestic animals with any distinguishing mark, may adopt his own mark and have a description thereof recorded by the clerk of the township in which the owner lives.

SEC. 1481. [Mark of another.]—No person shall adopt a mark or brand previously recorded to another person residing in the same township, nor shall the clerk record the same one to two persons unless on their joint application.

SEC. 1482. [Abandoned animals taken care of at owner's expense.]—Any person may take charge of any animal whose owner has abandoned it, or fails to properly take care and provide for it, and may furnish the same with proper shelter, nourishment, and care, at the owner's expense, and shall have a lien on such animal for the same; which lien at the expiration of three months, shall become a perfect title to the property as provided in the case of a stray.
SEC. 1483. [Cruelty to animals: food and water to be supplied.]—In case any creature impounded or otherwise confined shall be without necessary food or water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any person, as often as necessary, to enter the pound, enclosure, or building, and supply it with food and water so long as it shall remain so confined; and the reasonable cost of such food and water may be collected by him of the owner of such creature.

SEC. 1484. [Diseased animals killed.]—The sheriff, constable, police officer, officer of any society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or any magistrate shall destroy any horse or any other animal having the disease called and known as the glanders, or any disabled creature unfit for further use.

SEC. 1485. [Dogs may be killed.]—It shall be lawful for any person to kill any dog caught in the act of worrying, maiming or killing any sheep or lambs, or other domestic animal, or any dog attacking or attempting to bite any person, and the owner shall be liable to the party injured for all damages done by his dog, except when the party is doing an unlawful act.

The owner of domestic animals is justified in killing a dog which is harassing, maiming or worrying the animals, and the killing is justifiable even at the time the dog is not committing the act, providing his conduct is such as to excite a reasonable apprehension that he is about to do so. Marshall v. Blackshire, 44 Iowa, 475.

This section imposes liability upon the owners of dogs for all injuries done by them. O'Harrava v. Miller, 64 Id., 462-3.

SEC. 1486. [Animals seized released on execution of bond.]—Any animal, or other property; taken up, held, distrained or seized under this chapter, may be released at once by the owner, upon execution and filing of a bond in double the value of the property held, conditioned for the payment of all costs and damages for which the same is held, and to which the one taking up, holding, or distraining, may be legally entitled, within twenty days from the filing and approval of such bond; said bond shall be filed with and approved by any constable, sheriff, or other officer having custody of the property, or by the nearest acting justice of the peace, or by the justice before whom any legal proceedings relating to such property is pending. Said bond shall be for the use of any person having any right or interest in or to said property so released.

SEC. 1487. [Bounty: paid from county treasury.]—A bounty of one dollar shall be allowed on each scalp of a wolf, lynx, swift, or wildcat, to be paid out of the treasury of the county in which the animal was taken, upon a verified statement of the facts showing the claimant to be entitled thereto.

SEC. 1488. [Proceedings to obtain.]—The person claiming the bounty shall produce such statement, together with the scalp or scalps, with the ears thereon, to the county auditor, or a justice of the peace of the county wherein such wolf, lynx, swift, or wildcat may have been taken and killed; and the officer before whom such scalps are produced shall deface or destroy the scalps when so produced, so as to prevent the use of the same to obtain for a second time the bounty herein provided for.

CHAPTER 4.

OF FENCES.

SECTION 1489. [Partition maintained.]—The respective owners of lands enclosed with fences, shall keep up and maintain partition fences between their own and next adjoining enclosure so long as they improve them in equal shares, unless otherwise agreed between them.
SEG. 1490. [Neglect to build or repair.]—If any party neglect to repair or rebuild a partition fence, or a portion thereof, which he ought to maintain, the aggrieved party may complain to the fence viewers, who, after due notice to each party, shall examine the same, and if they determine the fence is insufficient, shall signify it in writing to the delinquent occupant of the land, and direct him to repair or rebuild the same within such time as they judge reasonable.

Section 1490 does not, in terms, require a written notice, though, properly, it should be in writing and proceed from the fence viewers; but where it appears that a party, in fact, was notified verbally by the opposite party, and was present at the meeting of the fence viewers and made no objection, the statute is sufficiently complied with. Talbot v. Bluckledge, 22 Iowa, 572. A verbal notice was held sufficient in Gantz v. Clark, 54 Id., 578.

The proceedings of the fence viewers should not be measured with technical nicety, but, like those before a justice of the peace, receive indulgent consideration. Id.

An adjacent proprietor cannot evade the law in relation to the erection and maintenance of partition fences, by purposely building his fence a few feet from, instead of on, the dividing line. Id.

An owner of land is not liable for a failure to comply with the requirement of the township trustees acting as fence viewers under section 1492 of the code, unless he has been served with written notice of their meeting to take action in the premises. Lookhart v. Wessels, 46 Id., 81. This case certainly overruled Gantz v. Clark, 51 Id., 254, in so far as that case holds that a verbal notice is sufficient.

The action of the fence viewers in locating and apportioning division lines of fence is not conclusive, and it is competent for a land owner to show, in a proper action, that the fence was located upon his land, and not upon the division line, and he may recover damages therefor. Peschongs v. Meueller, 50 Id., 297.

It is not necessary that a complainant to the fence viewers of the insufficiency of a partition fence should be in writing. Stubbs v. Ogden, 46 Id., 134.

The party whose fence is complained of should have reasonable notice of the meeting of the fence viewers, but no definite time is required. Id.

An adjudication respecting the sufficiency of the fence must be made by the trustees setting as a board, and must be based upon personal inspection, although that inspection need not be made jointly, nor is it necessary that such adjudication should be reduced to writing and certified by them. Id.

The certificate of the fence viewers as to the value of the fence built by the complainant, after a refusal of the other party to comply with the order of the fence viewers, need not be delivered to or served upon him to entitle the complainant to recover therefor. It is sufficient if it be filed with the clerk. Id.

The statute creates the fence viewers a special tribunal for the adjudication of the rights and settlement of controversies of adjoining owners respecting the erection and maintaining of partition fences, and no action will lie in the courts for that purpose until the fence viewers have been appealed to and acted in the premises as prescribed by statute. Lease v. Vance, 28 Id., 509.

SEG. 1491. [Penalty, if order of fence viewers is not complied with.]—If such fence be not repaired or rebuilt accordingly, the complainant may repair or rebuild it, and the same being adjudged sufficient by the fence viewers, and the value thereof, with their fees, being ascertained by them and certified under their hands, the complainant may demand of the owner of the land where the fence was deficient the sum so ascertained, and, in case of neglect to pay the same for one month after demand, may recover it with one per cent a month interest by action.

SEC. 1492. [Disputes: fence viewers to settle.]—When a controversy arises between the respective owners about the obligation to erect or maintain partition fences, either party may obtain apply to the fence viewers, who, after due notice to each party, may inquire into the matter and assign to each his share thereof, and direct the time within which each shall erect or repair his share in the manner provided above.

An owner of land is not liable for a failure to comply with the requirements of the township trustees, acting as fence viewers under this section, unless he was served with written notice of their meeting to take action in the premises. Lookhart v. Wessels, 46 Iowa, 81.

A fence built on the line of a public alley, but used by the owner of the lot on the opposite side of the alley, by fencing across and enclosing the alley, does not become a partition fence by reason of such use, and the township trustees have no jurisdiction to apportion its cost between the parties. Anderson v. Cox, 54 Id., 578.
Sections 1490 and 1492 of the code, and section 2 of chapter 106, laws of 1876, confer jurisdiction upon the fence viewers to decide upon the sufficiency of a hedge and its value, and their decision upon the question within their jurisdiction is conclusive. McKeever et al. v. Jenks et al., 50 Id., 300.

Sec. 1493. [Failure to comply.]—If a party neglect to erect or maintain the part of fence assigned him by the fence viewers, it may be erected and maintained by the aggrieved party in the manner before provided, and he shall be entitled to double the value thereof, to be recovered as directed above.

Under section 1493, it is not necessary that the fence viewers notify a party who neglects to erect the portion of fence assigned him under the preceding section, of their meeting to ascertain the value of the fence which has been erected by the aggrieved party. Talbot v. Blackledge, 22 Iowa, 573.

In an action to recover double the value of a partition fence which the defendant by the decision of the fence viewers had been required to erect, it was held proper for the jury, under the instructions of the court, to determine whether or not the land of plaintiff was used for pasturing swine and sheep, and whether a fence was required to turn these animals. Huber et al. v. Wilkinson, 46 Id., 458.

Sec. 1494. [Repair.]—All partition fences shall be kept in good repair throughout the year, unless the owners on both sides otherwise agree.

Sec. 1495. (As amended by ch. 95, 22d g. a.) Who required to maintain.—No person not wishing his land enclosed and not occupying nor using it otherwise than in common, shall be compelled to contribute to erect or maintain any fence between him and an adjacent owner; but when he encloses (cultivates) or uses his land otherwise than in common, he shall contribute to the partition fences as in this chapter provided.

One who incloses land adjoining another's close, and does not own any part of the division fence, may throw any portion of such land open to common at pleasure. Miner v. Bennett, 45 Iowa, 635.

When one uses his land otherwise than in common, he can be compelled to contribute to the erection of partition fences. Hewett v. Jewell, 59 Id., 37.

Where two persons owning contiguous lands were not using their lands in common, it was held that either of them could be compelled to join in the erection of a partition fence on the line between their lands. Id.

Land may said to be used in common where its use does not require an inclosure. The term "in common" is used solely with reference to the obligation to contribute to a partition fence. Says v. Peck et al., 58 Id., 256.

Sec. 1496. [Enclosed in common: proceedings where division is sought.]—When lands owned in severalty have been enclosed in common without a partition fence, and one of the owners is desirous to occupy his in severalty, and the other refuses or neglects to divide the line where the fence should be built or build a sufficient fence on his part of the line when divided, the party desiring it may have the same divided and assigned by the fence viewers, who may, in writing, assign a reasonable time, having regard for the season of the year for making the fence, and if either party neglect to comply with the decisions of the viewers, the other, after making his own part, may make the other part and recover as directed above.

Where adjoining owners agree to enclose lands in common, such agreement releases, for the time being, each party from the obligation to build a partition fence; and if one of them turns his cattle upon his own land from which they stray upon the land of the other, and do damage, he is liable therefor, the same as he would be if the lands were separated by a lawful partition fence; and the injured party may distrain the cattle while thus trespassing upon his land, regardless of the fact as to whether their owner turned them on his own land with the intention that they should go upon the land of the other. Winters v. Jacobs, 29 Iowa, 115.

While a lawful fence is not necessary between adjoining farms to constitute an occupation in severalty, still the partition fence must be such as will turn stock, and premises separated only by a hedge which is insufficient for that purpose must be considered as enclosed in common within the meaning of section 1496 of the code. Miner v. Bennett, 45 Id., 635.

Sec. 1497. [When it is desired not to enclose.]—In the case mentioned in the preceding section, when one of the owners desires to throw open any portion of his field not less than twenty feet in width, and leave it unenclosed to be used in common by the public, he shall first give the other party six months notice thereof.

SEC. 1498. [When owner encloses he must pay for partition fence.]—When land which has lain unenclosed is enclosed, the owner thereof shall pay for one-half of each partition fence between his lands and the adjoining lands, the value to be ascertained by the fence viewers, and if he neglect for thirty days after notice and demand to pay the same, the other party may recover as before provided; or he may, at his election, rebuild and make half of the fence, and if he neglect so to do for two months after making such election he shall be liable as above provided.

To confer jurisdiction upon fence viewers, the fence respecting which they determine must be in fact a partition fence, and they cannot conclude a party by determining that to be a partition fence which is not. Bults v. Belknap, 38 Id., 225.

If parties vise a fence as a partition between their farms, it is wholly immaterial whether it is on the exact boundary line or not, so far as the obligation to maintain the fence or contribute to its construction is concerned. Card v. Dale, 67 Id., 552.

SEC. 1499. [Division of fence recorded.]—When a division of fence between the owners of improved lands may have been made, either by fence viewers, or by agreement in writing, recorded in the office of the clerk of the township where the lands are, the owners and their heirs and assigns shall be bound thereby, and shall support them accordingly, but if any desire to lay his lands in common and not improve them adjoining the fence divided as above, the proceeding shall be as directed in the case where lands owned in severalty have been enclosed in common without a partition fence.

A failure to have recorded with the township clerk the assignment of the respective shares of each party will not affect their rights in respect to building the share assigned to the other on his failure to do so, and the recovery of double damages therefor as provided in the statute, if he had actual notice of such assignment. Gantz v. Clark, 31 Iowa, 254.

SEC. 1500. [Definition of "owner" and "fence viewers.".—In the provisions of this chapter, the term "owner" shall apply to the occupant or tenant when the owner does not reside in the county, but these proceedings will not bind the owner unless notified. The term "fence viewers" means the fence viewers of the township in which the division line in controversy is, and if that line is between two townships, and both parties live in the same, then it means the viewers of that township, but if the parties live in different townships, one viewer at least shall be taken from that of the party complained against.

SEC. 1501. [Fence on another's land may be removed.]—When a person has made a fence or other improvement on an enclosure, which, on afterward making division lines is found to be on land of another, and the same has occurred through mistake, such first person may enter upon the land of the other and remove his fence or other improvement and material within six months after such line has been run, upon his first paying, or offering to pay, the other party for any damage to the soil which may be occasioned thereby, and when the parties cannot agree as to the damages the fence viewers may determine them as in other cases.

SEC. 1502. [Same.]—But such fence or other improvement, except substantial buildings, shall not be removed if they were made or taken from the land on which they lie, until the party pays the owner the value of the timber, to be ascertained by the fence viewers, nor shall a fence be removed at a time when the removal will throw open or expose the crop of the other party, but it shall be removed in a reasonable time after the crop is secured, although the above six months have passed.

SEC. 1503. [Disputes: fence viewers to determine.]—When any question arises between parties, other than those above stated, concerning their rights in fences, or their duties in relation to building or supporting or removing them, such question may be determined by the fence viewers upon the principles of this chapter.
Where the parties had agreed to erect a fence sufficient to turn swine and sheep, the trustees could properly determine whether or not the agreement had been performed, and if not, direct the time and manner of performance. Huber v. Wilkinson, 46 Iowa, 438.

In an action to recover double the value of a partition fence which the defendant by the decision of the township trustees had been required to erect, it was held, proper for the jury, under the instruction of the court, to determine whether or not the land of the plaintiff was used in pasturing swine and sheep, and whether a fence was required to turn these animals. Id.

SEC. 1504. [Lines: fence on.]—A person building a fence, may lay the same upon the line between him and the adjacent owners, so that the fence may be partly on one side and partly on the other, and the owner shall have the same right to remove it as if it were wholly on his own land.

SEC. 1505. [Same.]—The foregoing provisions concerning partition fences shall apply to a fence standing wholly upon one side of the division line.

SEC. 1506. [Other proceedings.]—The foregoing provisions of this chapter do not bar any other legal proceedings for the determination of the title to land, or the dividing line between contending owners, nor do they preclude agreements by the parties.

SEC. 1507. (As amended by ch. 101, 16th g. a., and ch. 47, 18th q. a.) [Lawful fence defined.]—A fence made of three rails of good, substantial material, or three boards, not less than six inches wide, and three-quarters of an inch thick, such rails or boards to be fastened in or to good, substantial posts, not more than ten feet apart where rails are used, and not more than eight feet apart where boards are used, wire either wholly or in part, substantially built and kept in good repair, or any other kind of fence, which in the opinion of the fence viewers, shall be equivalent thereto, shall be declared a lawful fence; provided, that the lowest or bottom rail, [wire] or board shall not be more than twenty nor less than sixteen inches from the ground, and that such fence shall be fifty-four inches in height; except that a barbed wire fence may consist of three barbed wires, or of four wires, two of which shall be barbed, such fence in either case to have not less than [thirty-six] iron barbs to the rod [of two points each, twenty-six iron barbs of four points each on each wire;] the wires to be firmly fastened to posts not more than two rods apart, with two stays between the posts, or with posts not more than one rod apart without such stays, the top wire to be not more than [fifty-four] nor less than forty-eight inches in height, and the bottom wire not more than twenty nor less than sixteen inches from the ground; provided further, that all partition fences may be made tight at the expense of the party desiring it, and such party may take from such fence the same material by him added thereto whenever he may elect; and provided further, that when the owner or occupants of adjoining land use the same for the purpose of pasturing swine or sheep, each of said owners or occupants shall keep their respective share of the partition fence sufficiently tight to restrain such swine or sheep.

It was held, that a fence of less height than four feet and six inches might, under section 1544 of the revision, be a lawful fence if it afforded equal strength and security to the enclosure. Phillips v. Oystee, 32 Iowa, 247.

A steep bluff, a hedge, a ditch, a wall, or the like, which furnishes as effectual security to the inclosure as the fence prescribed by the statute, may be regarded as a lawful fence. Hilliard v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 37 Id., 442.

This section does not determine the character of fence which a railway company is required to build under section 1259 of the code. Lee v. The Minn. & St. Louis R'y Co., 66 Id., 131.

SEC. 1508. (As amended by ch. 95, 22d g. a.) [Where stock is restrained.]—That all the provisions of this chapter in relation to partition fences, shall be alike applicable to counties or townships having restrained, or which may restrain, stock from running at large, [and section 1495 of the code of 1873, and all parts thereof, shall be so construed in counties where stock is not so restrained; provided, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to counties having a population of less than twelve thousand inhabitants, according to the census of 1885.]

In a county where the herd law is in force, a party cultivating a farm and using it for raising crops cannot be required to build and maintain one-half of the partition fence between his farm and that of an adjoining owner whose farm is inclosed, and this section is not inconsistent with this holding. Says v. Peck, 58 Iowa, 256.

IN RELATION TO DIVISION HEDGES.

An Act in relation to hedges on division lines between adjoining land owners.

[Additional to code, chapter 4, title XI: "Of fences."]

SECTION 1. [Fence may be built five feet beyond the division line.—]
Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That if any person shall desire to plant or make a hedge fence on any line separating his lands, or enclosures from the lands, or enclosures of any other person, or persons, he shall be allowed to make or build a fence sufficient to protect the hedge and set the same five feet beyond the line on the adjoining lands and keep the same there, not more than five years, and free from weeds, and then he shall be allowed to remove the same, and during which time he shall be permitted to cultivate the land thus enclosed for the benefit of the hedge; provided, he shall enter upon the cultivation of said hedge within twelve months from the time said fence is removed on the adjoining land.

SEC. 2. [Builder of hedge on entire division line to receive pay for one-half.]—When any person builds a hedge on the entire line between his own and unenclosed lands, when said lands are enclosed the owner thereof shall pay for one-half of said hedge, the value to be ascertained by the fence viewers, and the manner of proceeding in this respect shall conform to the provisions of the law now in force in relation to the ascertainment of the value of partition fences with like remedies; the maker of said hedge to select his own half thereof; provided, this act shall not apply to town lots.

The language of this section is not to be construed so as to defeat, recovery for the value of one-half of a hedge merely because at some points on the line, on account of the nature of the ground, a hedge could not be grown for short distances. McKeever et al. v. Jenks et al., 59 Iowa, 300.

CHAPTER 5.

OF LOST GOODS.

SECTION 1509. [Rafts, logs and lumber: proceedings when taken up.] If any person shall hereafter stop or take up any raft of logs, or part thereof, or any logs suitable for making lumber, or hewn timber or sawed lumber, found adrift on any water-course within the limits or upon the boundaries of this state, such person, within five days thereafter, provided the same shall not have been previously restored to the owner, shall go before some justice of the peace or notary public of the county in which the same was taken up, and make affidavit in writing, setting forth an exact description of the articles found, and stating when and where the same were found, the number of logs or other pieces, and the marks and brands thereon, and that the same have not been altered or defaced since the taking up by him, or by any other person to his knowledge. And such justice of the peace or notary public, within five days thereafter, shall transmit such affidavit to the county auditor of said county, and the said auditor shall thereupon file the same in his office, and enter in his estray book the description of the said property, the time and place, when and where, and the name and residence of the person by whom the same was taken up, and the said auditor shall also publish a notice thereof for three weeks successively in some newspaper printed in the county.

Sec. 1510. [Disposition of property unclaimed.]-In all cases where the value of the articles so taken up shall not exceed five dollars, and no person shall appear to claim and prove the same within three months after the publication of such notice, then the property in the same shall vest in the person taking them up; but if the value thereof shall exceed five dollars, and the same be not claimed or proven within six months after such publication, then the finder shall deliver them to the sheriff of said county, and thereupon the same proceedings shall be had, and the same disposition be made of the proceeds arising from the sale thereof, as is provided for in section fifteen hundred and thirteen of this chapter, in relation to boats, vessels, etc., the value of which exceeds twenty dollars.

Sec. 1511. [Compensation for.]-As a reward for the taking up of any boards, timber, logs, rafts of logs or any part thereof, there shall be paid by the owner to the person taking up the same, for each log, not exceeding ten, twenty-five cents; for each log exceeding ten and not exceeding fifty, twenty cents; and for sawed lumber, fifty cents per thousand feet.

Sec. 1512. [Vessels and water crafts: value.]-If any person shall stop or take up any vessel or water craft found adrift within the limits or upon the boundaries of this state, of the value of five dollars or upwards, including her cargo, tackle, rigging and other appendages, such person, within five days thereafter, provided the same shall not have been previously proven, and restored to the owner, shall go before some justice of the peace in the township where the craft or vessel is found of the proper county, and make affidavit in writing, setting forth the exact description of such vessel or water craft; where and when the same was found; whether any, and if so, what cargo, tackle, rigging or other appendages, were found on board or attached thereto; and that the same has not been altered or defaced, either in the whole or in part, since the taking up, either by him, or by any other person, to his knowledge; and the said justice shall thereupon issue his warrant, directed to some constable of his township or district, commanding him to summon three respectable householders of the neighborhood, who shall proceed, without delay, to examine and appraise such boat or vessel, her cargo, or tackle, rigging and all other appendages as aforesaid, and to make report thereof, under their hands, to the justice issuing such warrant, who shall enter the same, together with the affidavit of the taker-up at large in his estray book; and, within five days, shall transmit a certified copy thereof to the county auditor of the proper county, to be by him recorded in his estray book and filed in his office.

Sec. 1513. [Value less than twenty dollars: advertisement.]-In all cases where the appraisement of any such boat or vessel, including her cargo, tackle, rigging or other appendages, shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the taker-up shall advertise the same on the door of the court house and in three other of the most public places in the county within five days after the appraisement, and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such boat or vessel within six months from the time of taking up, the property in the same shall vest in the taker-up; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the time of reception of the justice's certificate at his office, shall cause an advertisement to be set up on the door of the court house, and at three other of the most public places of the county; and, also, a notice thereof to be published for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed in this state, and if the said boat or vessel be not claimed or proven within ninety days after the advertisement of the same as aforesaid, the taker-up shall deliver the same to the sheriff of the county wherein such boat or vessel may have been taken up, who shall thereupon proceed to sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of sale; and the proceeds of all such sales, after deducting the cost and other necessary expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury.

Sec. 1514. [Money, bank notes, etc.: description of.]—If any person shall find any lost goods, money, bank notes, or other things of any description whatever, of the value of five dollars and upwards, such person shall inform the owner thereof, if known, and make restitution of the same without any compensation whatever, except the same be voluntarily given; but if the owner be unknown, such person shall, within five days after such finding, take such goods, money, bank notes, or other things, before some justice of the peace of the proper county, and make affidavit of the description thereof, the time and place, when and where the same was found, and that no alteration had been made in the appearance thereof since the finding of the same; whereupon the justice shall enter a description of the property, and the value thereof, as near as he can ascertain in his estray book, together with the affidavit of the finder; and shall also, within five days, transmit to the county auditor a certified copy thereof to be by him recorded in his estray book and filed in his office.

The finder of lost goods which have no marks by which the owner could be identified, and who does not know to whom they belong, is not guilty of larceny, even if he does not exercise diligence to discover who the owner of the goods may be. State v. Dean, 49 Iowa, 73.

Sec. 1515. [When value exceeds ten dollars: advertisement.]—In all cases where such lost goods, money, bank notes, or other things, shall not exceed the sum of ten dollars in value, the finder shall advertise the same on the door of the court house, and three other of the most public places in the county; and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such money, goods, bank notes, or other things, within twelve months from the time of such advertisement, the right to such property, when the same shall consist in goods, money, or bank notes, shall be vested in the finder; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of ten dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the receipt of the justice's certificate, shall cause an advertisement to be set upon the court house door, and in three of the most public places in the county; and also a notice thereof to be published for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed in this state; and if the said goods, money, bank notes, or other things, be not reclaimed within six months after the finding, the finder, if the same shall consist in money or bank notes, shall deliver the same to the county treasurer, after deducting the necessary expenses hereinafter provided for; if in bills, notes of hand, patents, deeds, mortgages, or other instruments of value, the same shall be delivered to the county auditor, to be preserved in his office for the benefit of the owner, whenever legal application shall be made therefor; if in goods or merchandise, the same shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who shall thereupon proceed to sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of such sale; and the proceeds of all such sales, after deducting the cost and other expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury.

Sec. 1516. [When value is less than five dollars.]—In all cases where any vessel or water craft shall be taken up, or any goods, money, or bank notes shall be found as aforesaid, which shall be of a value less than five dollars, the finder shall advertise the same by setting up three advertisements in the most public places in the neighborhood; but in such cases he shall keep and preserve the same in his possession, and shall make restitution thereof to the owner, without fee or reward, except the same be given voluntarily, whenever legal application be made for the same, provided it shall be done in three months from such taking up or finding; but if no owner shall appear to claim such property within the time aforesaid, the exclusive right to the same shall be vested in the finder or taker up.

Sec. 1517. [Ownership settled.]—In any case where a claim is made to property found or taken up, and the ownership of the property cannot be agreed upon by the finder and claimant, they may make a case before any justice of the peace, who may hear and adjudicate it, and if either of them refuses to make such case, the other may make an affidavit of the facts which have previously occurred, and the claimant shall also verify his claim in his affidavit, and the justice may take cognizance of and try the matter on the other party having one day's notice, but there shall be no appeal from the decision. This section does not bar any other remedy given by law.

Sec. 1518. [Compensation.]—As a reward for the taking up of all boats and other vessels, and for finding of lost goods, money, bank notes, and other things, before restitution of the property or proceeds thereof shall be made, the finder shall be entitled to ten per cent upon the value thereof, in addition to which said allowance the owner shall also be required to pay to the taker up, or finder, all such costs and charges as may have been paid by him for services rendered as foresaid, including the cost of publication, together with reasonable charges for keeping and taking care of such property, which last mentioned charge, in case the taker up or finder, and the owner cannot agree, shall be assessed by two disinterested householders of the neighborhood, to be appointed by some justice of the peace of the proper county, whose decision, when made, shall be binding and conclusive on all parties.

Sec. 1519. [Proceeds paid into county treasury.]—The net proceeds of all sales made by the sheriff, and all money or bank notes paid over to the county treasurer, as directed in this chapter, shall remain in the hands of the county treasurer in trust for the owner, if any such shall apply in one year from the time the same shall have been paid over; but if no owner shall appear within the time foresaid, the said money shall be considered as forfeited, and the claim of the owner thereto forever barred, in which event the money shall remain in the county treasury for the use of common schools in said county.

Sec. 1520. [Taker up not accountable for accidents.]—If the taker up of any water craft, raft, logs, timber or boards, or finder of lost goods, bank notes, or other things, shall be faithful in taking care of the same, and if any unavoidable accident shall happen thereto, without the fault or neglect of the finder or taker up before the owner shall have an opportunity of reclaiming the same, such taker up or finder shall not be accountable therefor; provided, that in cases of accident as aforesaid, the taker up or finder, within ten days thereafter, shall certify the same under his hand to the county auditor, who shall make an entry thereof in his estray book.

Sec. 1521. [Penalty for disposing of property.]—If any person shall trade, sell, or loan, out of the limits of this state, any such property as may at any time be taken up or found as aforesaid before he shall be vested with the right to the same, agreeably to the foregoing provisions, he shall forfeit and pay double the value thereof, to be recovered by any person who shall sue for the same, in any court, or before any justice of the peace having jurisdiction thereof; one half shall go to the person suing, and the other half to the county aforesaid.

Sec. 1522. [Penalty for failure to comply.]—If any person shall take up any boat or vessel, or any raft, logs, timber or boards, or shall find any goods, money, bank notes, or other things, and shall fail to comply with the requisitions of this chapter, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace by any person who will sue for the same, one half for the use of the person suing, and the other half to be deposited in the county treasury for the use of common schools; but nothof INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

CHAPTER 6.

OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Section 1523. [Sale of prohibited: declared a nuisance.]—No person shall manufacture or sell, by himself, his clerk, steward, or agent, directly or indirectly, any intoxicating liquor except as hereinafter provided. And the keeping of intoxicating liquor, with the intent on the part of the owner thereof, or any person acting under his authority, or by his permission, to sell the same within this state contrary to the provisions of this chapter, is hereby prohibited, and the intoxicating liquor so kept, together with the vessels in which it is contained, is declared a nuisance, and shall be forfeited and dealt with as hereinafter provided.

The keeping of intoxicating liquors without an intention to sell the same contrary to law is not prohibited by the statute. The State v. Harris, 36 Iowa, 136.

The original prohibitory law of January 22, 1855, was held, constitutional in Santo et al. v. The State of Iowa, 2 Id., 168, and its constitutionality re-affirmed in The State v. Donkey, 8 Id., 996.

This law as found in the revision of 1860, held, constitutional in The State v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497; The State v. Bartemeyer, 31 Id., 601.

The owning of intoxicating liquors in this state, in a state of transportation, was not unlawful; nor were such liquors a nuisance which any one might abate by destroying them. Bowen v. Hale, 4 Id., 430.

Where A purchased of B intoxicating liquors, upon which an attachment was afterwards levied as the property of B, at the suit of C, whereupon A intervened, claiming the property under his purchase from B, averring in his petition that they were not purchased or kept by him with intent to sell the same in violation of the statute, it was held, that if the facts averred in his petition were true, A was entitled to recover the liquor. Niles v. Fries, 35 Id., 41.

So long as the liquors retain their character as intoxicating liquors, capable of use as a beverage, notwithstanding other ingredients may have been mixed therewith, they fall under the ban of the law, but when they are so compounded with other substances as to lose their distinctive character of intoxicating liquors, and are no longer desirable for use as a stimulating beverage, and are in fact medicine, then their sale is not prohibited. The State v. Looffer, 31 Id., 422.

The prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is not unconstitutional legislation. Santo v. The State, 2 Id., 165; The State v. Donkey, 8 Id., 396; The State v. Baughman, 20 Id., 497; The State v. Bartemeyer, 31 Id., 601; The State v. Stucker, 55 Id., 496; License Cases 5 How. (U. S.) 504 to 633; Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wal. (U. S.) 62; Beer Co. v. Mass., 79 U. S., 26.

A license from the United States government is no protection for a violation of the state law against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. State v. McClary, 17 Id., 41; State v. Corney, 20 Id., 82; State v. Baughman, Id., 497; State v. Stutz, Id., 488; Pervear v. The Government, 5 Walt., (U. S.), 475.

A manufacturer has no right to manufacture or sell without a permit. And a person with a permit who purchases of one having no permit, may set up the unlawful sale as a defense to an action for the price, or may recover the price paid. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id., 688.

The legislature has no power to make the operation or repeal of a statute dependent upon a vote of the people. Santo v. The State, 2 Id., 203; Geebrick v. The State 5 Id., 492; The State v. Weir, 33 Id., 135; The State v. Bemke, 9 Id., 203.

Chapters 222, laws of 1857, and 82 of the laws of 1870, held unconstitutional and void on the ground that they were made to depend for their force and vitality upon a vote of the people at large. The State v. Weir, 33 Id., 135.

Where A purchased of B intoxicating liquors, upon which an attachment was afterwards levied as the property of B, at the suit of C, whereupon A intervened, claiming the property under his purchase from B, averring in his petition that they were not purchased or kept by him with intent to sell the same in violation of the statute, it was held, that if the facts averred in his petition were true, A was entitled to recover the liquor. Niles v. Fries, 35 Id., 41.

At the present day it cannot be doubted that the state has the right and power to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. The courts, both state and federal, have uniformly affirmed the existence of such right. Per Seevers, J., in McLane et al. v. Leicht, 69 Id. 405.

(Sec. 1524 repealed by chapter 71, laws of 1888.)

Sec. 1525. (As substituted by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [Penalty for manufacturing.]—(Every person who shall manufacture any intoxicating liquors as in this chapter prohibited, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon his first conviction for said offense, shall pay a fine of two hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed six months and on his second and every subsequent conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars and costs of prosecution, and be imprisoned in the county jail one year.)

Under this section, as 1561 of the revision, an allegation in an indictment for nuisance, that a certain building was used by two defendants as a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and that they did then and there keep intoxicating liquors for sale in said building, without a further averment that such building was under their control, was held sufficient; and where the indictment, after such statement of the offense, averred that it was "under his control," without naming which of the two defendants was meant, it was held, that the unnecessary averment should be treated as surplusage, and that it did not vitiate the indictment. The State v. Schiltz, 14 Iowa, 455.

A manufacturer has no right to manufacture or sell without a permit; and a person with a permit who purchases of one having no permit may set up the unlawful sale as a defense to an action for the price, or to recover the price paid. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id. 668.

(Sec. 1536 was repealed by chapter 71, laws of 1888. Under that section the supreme court made some of the following rulings.)

This section is not in conflict with section one (1), of article (1), nor with section six (6) of the same article of the state constitution. In re Ruth, 32 Iowa. 296.

Under section 1526, a grocery keeper cannot obtain a permit to sell liquor for any purpose. Per Day, J., in Rindskoff & Bro. v. Curran, 34 Id. 327.

The selling of intoxicating liquors even for medical purposes, without permission first obtained from the board of supervisors is a misdemeanor, and any person who uses a building for this purpose is guilty of committing a nuisance and may be punished therefor. The State v. Waynick, 45 Id. 516.

In an indictment for selling intoxicating liquors contrary to law, it is not necessary to aver that the liquors were not sold for sacramental, medicinal, mechanical or culinary purposes; nor that at the time of the sale of the liquor the defendant was the keeper of a hotel, grocery, eating house or confectionery. The State v. Beneke, 9 Id. 203.

A sale of intoxicating liquor by an agent is considered as made where the order is given, unless such order, after being forwarded to the principal, is to be subject to his approval before it is filled. Taylor & Co. v. Picket et al., 52 Id. 467.

A grocery keeper cannot, under this section, legally obtain a permit to sell intoxicating liquors for any purpose. Rindskoff & Bro. v. Curran, 34 Id. 327. Nor does this section confer upon a manufacturer of intoxicating liquors the right to sell the same in this state even for mechanical, medicinal, culinary or sacramental purposes, without first obtaining a permit from the board of supervisors. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id. 668. To the same effect is The State v. Waynick, 45 Id., 516.

This section does not confer upon the manufacturer of intoxicating liquors the right to sell the same in this state, even for mechanical, medicinal, culinary or sacramental purposes, without permission first obtained from the board of supervisors of the county. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id., 668.

A person who, with a permit to sell intoxicating liquors, purchases a quantity of such liquors from a manufacturer having no permit to sell, may not only set up the unlawful sale to defeat an action for the price of the same, but where he has made a payment thereon may recover the amount thus paid. Id.

It is the duty of one authorized to sell intoxicating liquors for legal purposes to exercise due diligence and act in good faith in making such sales; when this is done, he is not responsible for the illegal use made of the liquors by the purchaser. Taylor & Co. v. Picket, 52 Id. 467.

The bill passed by the nineteenth general assembly purporting to amend section 8 of chapter 75 of the laws of the eighteenth general assembly, and to repeal section 1527, and amend section 1537 and 1538 of the code, but which was not approved or disapproved by the governor, held that it was not law. Darling v. Bosch, 67 Iowa, 702.
SEC. 1539. (As amended by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [Penalty for selling or giving to minors or intoxicated persons.]—It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, give away, by agent or otherwise, any spirituous or other intoxicating liquors, including wine or beer, to any minor for any purpose whatever, unless upon the written order of his parent, guardian, or family physician, or to sell the same to any intoxicated person, or to any person who is in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay to the school fund the sum of one hundred dollars for each offense, to be collected by action against him, or by action against him and the sureties on his bond, if one has been given, by any citizen in the county. [One-half of the amount so recovered shall go to the informer, and the other half shall go to the school fund of the county.]

The sale of intoxicating liquors to a minor is within the prohibition, notwithstanding the seller has no knowledge that the purchaser is a minor. And in an action under this section for the benefit of the school fund, it is not necessary to allege in the petition that the seller had such knowledge. * * * *

Any citizen of the county may bring an action under this section for a forfeiture to the school fund against one who sells intoxicating liquors to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Church v. Higham, 44 Iowa, 482.

This section applies as well to the giving as to the sale of liquors to an intoxicated person. * * * *

The fact that the seller did not know the person receiving the liquor to be intoxicated does not relieve him from liability. * * * *

The sale by an agent, of intoxicating liquors, to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated, renders the principal liable therefor, notwithstanding he may have been expressly forbidden by the principal to sell to such person. Dudley v. Southbine, 49 Iowa, 650.

This section applies not only to those having a permit to sell, but also to all persons who may sell intoxicating liquors to minors or to persons who are in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Cobleigh v. McBride et al., 45 Iowa, 116.

A judgment in an action for selling intoxicating liquors to a minor, under this section, will not be a lien upon the premises where the liquor was sold, where they are owned by a third person, unless he have knowledge of and assent to the unlawful act for which the judgment is recovered. * * * *

In an action under this section it is not competent to inquire of the plaintiff why he instituted the suit. * * * *

Testimony that it was a matter of report and public notoriety that intoxicating liquors were sold by the defendant is not admissible. * * * *

In an action under this section, it is proper to instruct the jury that plaintiff has no interest therein. * * * *

A party cannot justify the act of giving intoxicating liquors to a minor by establishing that he did it by the order of the parent, unless he shows that the order was in writing. The State v. Cowan, 45 Iowa, 587.

This section forbids the sale of liquors by any person to minors, intoxicated persons, or those who are in the habit of becoming intoxicated, and imposes a penalty for sales to such persons, but does not make them misdemeanors. State v. Douglass, 34 N. W. 8, 856.

Where a corporation by a committee sold beer to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated, at a ball given under its supervision, it was held liable under this section the same as a natural person, for the penalty therein provided to be collected for the benefit of the school fund. Stewart v. The Waterloo Turn Verein, 71 Iowa, 226.

Upon the trial of an information for having in possession intoxicating liquor the state proved that the defendant, a pharmacist, had sold liquors to persons who were in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Held that, under section 1539 of the code, which provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to sell * * * intoxicating liquor * * * to any person who is in the habit of becoming intoxicated, the prosecution had made out a good case as to the unlawful sale, without proving any guilty knowledge on the part of the seller. State v. Ward, 30 N. W. R., 755.

SEC. 1540. (As substituted by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [Penalty for selling without a permit: first offense.]—If any person not holding such a permit by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, shall for himself or any person else, directly or indirectly, or on any pretense, or by any device, sell in consideration of the purchase of any other property, give to any person any intoxicating liquors, he shall, for the first offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction for said first offense shall pay a fine of not less than fifty or more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, and stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid; for the second and every subsequent offense he shall pay on conviction thereof a fine of not less than three hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, and be imprisoned in the county jail, not to exceed six months. All clerks, servants, and agents of whatever kind engaged or employed in the manufacture, sale, or keeping for sale in violation of this chapter, of any intoxicating liquor, shall be charged and convicted in the same manner as principals may be, and shall be subject to the penalties herein provided. Indictments and informations for violations under this section may allege any number of violations of its provisions by the same party, but the various allegations must be contained in separate counts, and the person so charged may be convicted and punished for each of the violations so alleged as on separate indictments or informations, but a separate judgment must be entered on each count on which a verdict of guilty is rendered. The second and subsequent convictions mentioned in this section shall be construed to mean convictions on separate indictments or information. And in default of the payment of fines and cost provided for the first conviction under this section, the person so convicted shall not be entitled to the benefit of chapter forty-seven, title twenty-five of this code, until he shall have been imprisoned sixty days.)

Where two or more defendants are indicted jointly for a violation of the liquor law, they may be tried jointly or separately, in the discretion of the court, but a separate judgment must be entered against each. The State v. Hunter, 33 Iowa, 361.

Under this section the selling of intoxicating liquor without a permit, for any purpose whatever, is a misdemeanor, and punishable as therein prescribed, and by section 1: 43 any person who uses any building to violate the provisions of section 1540 is guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be subject to additional penalties for that offense. State v. Waynick, 45 Id., 516.

A defendant charged in an information with "selling intoxicating liquors unlawfully, having been heretofore convicted of the crime of selling intoxicating liquors unlawfully," may be found guilty as for a first offense. Gordon v. The State, 3 Id., 410; Beahm v. The State, 1 Id., 542; The State v. Ensley; The Same v. Welt; The Same v. Brown; and The Same v. Front, 10 Id., 149.

It is no defense for a clerk or agent, charged with the sale of intoxicating liquors, that his employer is guilty of the same offense, and has been convicted and punished. Id.

But where an indictment is made unnecessarily particular by charging the unlawful sale of whiskey, it will not be supported by proof of the sale of other intoxicating liquors. Id., 494.

The first offense in selling intoxicating liquors in violation of law is necessarily included in the third, and so under section 4466 of the code, one charged with the third offense may be lawfully convicted of the first. The State v. Gaffeney, 66 Id., 262.

Where two or more defendants are indicted jointly for a violation of the liquor law, they may be tried jointly or separately, in the discretion of the court, but a separate judgment must be entered against each. The State v. Hunter, 33 Id., 361.

In an indictment for selling intoxicating liquors in violation of law, it is not necessary to charge the particular kind of liquor sold. The State v. Whalen, 54 Id., 753; The State v. Hensler, 55 Id., 494. But where an indictment is made unnecessarily particular by charging the unlawful sale of whisky, it will not be supported by proof of the sale of other intoxicating liquors. Id., 494.

That the defendant held a permit to sell intoxicating liquors for the purposes therein specified, did not shield him from a criminal prosecution, or limit the state to an action on his bond for the sale of such liquors as a beverage or for other purposes prohibited by law. The State v. Adams, 20 Id., 486.

This section as amended by chapter 143, laws of 1884, applies to licensed pharmacists, and they are liable for giving away intoxicating liquors for unlawful purposes, no matter how artfully done. The State v. Harris, 64 Id., 287.

Where the defendant in a prosecution for the sale of intoxicating liquors was a licensed pharmacist, an instruction to the effect that he was obliged to use the utmost good faith and ordinary caution to see that liquors were sold by him for medicine only, and that his license would not protect him if he artfully sold liquors for other purposes than as a medicine, and that no cover or subterfuge could be permitted to be used for a substantial violation of the law, was held not erroneous. Id.

Where the sale of intoxicating liquors is a crime under the statute, the purchaser is not a participant in the crime, and he cannot excuse himself from testifying as to such purchases made by him, on the ground that his testimony would tend to criminate himself. Wakeman v. Chambers, 69 Id., 169.

The first offense, in selling intoxicating liquors unlawfully is necessarily included in the third, so that under section 4466 of the code, one may be lawfully found guilty of the first offense on trial under an indictment charging him with the third. The State v. Gaffney, 66 Id., 262.

In The State v. Bissell et al., who were licensed pharmacists, and were indicted for selling intoxicating liquors for medical purposes, the supreme court held that, their license as pharmacists did not authorize such sale; that the provisions of the code as amended by chapter 143 of the laws of the twentieth general assembly had the effect to repeal section 8 of chapter 75, laws of the eighteenth general assembly. Opinion by Beck, J., at December term, 1885.

Any number of violations may be charged in separate counts and a separate conviction had on each. Walter v. The State, 5 Id., 907; but the first and second, or second and third offenses cannot be charged in the same indictment or information. State v. Leis, 11 Id., 416.

Under an information charging a second offense and a former conviction, defendant may be found guilty of a first offense. The latter is necessarily included in the former under section 4466. The State v. Finan, 10 Id., 149.

An information for an offense under this section should charge that defendant sold, etc., to some person, giving the name if known. The State v. Allen, 32 Id., 491.

The giving, etc., of intoxicating liquors is not an offense under this section unless it is in consideration of the purchase, etc., and the fact that the liquors were so given should be averred. The State v. Finan, 10 Id., 19.

That the defendant acted in the selling as a clerk of another, or as a volunteer and without pecuniary reward, is no defense. Clerks are also liable equally with their principals, and it is no defense that the principal has been convicted for the same act. Id.

If A. calls for liquor to be delivered to B. for B.'s benefit and it is so delivered, it is a sale to B. although A. pays for the liquor. State v. Hubbard, 60 Id., 466.

It is not an offense to give intoxicating liquors to an adult person not intoxicated nor in the habit of becoming so, when such gift is made without any consideration being received or expected in return, and without any subterfuge or attempt to evade the provisions of section 1540 of the code. State v. Hutchins, 36 N. W. R., 775.

Section 1540 of the code authorizes any number of violations of its provisions, by the same person, to be charged in a single information or indictment, but requires that each offense shall be charged in a separate count thereof, and that a separate judgment shall be rendered upon each count on which a verdict of guilty is rendered. Section 3829 provides a fee of five dollars to "any attorney selected to prosecute before a justice of the peace a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquors." Held that an attorney selected to prosecute an information of twelve counts, each count charging a separate sale to different persons, is not entitled to a fee of five dollars for each count prosecuted to conviction, there being but one prosecution. Schutte v. Keokuk County, 37 N. W. R., 376.

Sec. 1541. [Sale of mixed liquors; punished.]—Any person who shall mix any intoxicating liquor with any beer, wine or cider by him sold, and shall sell, or keep for sale as a beverage, such mixture, shall be deemed guilty under the preceding section, and shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 1542. (As amended by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [ Owning or keeping with intent to sell.]—[No person shall own, or keep, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed, in owning or keeping any intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same in this state, or to permit the same to be sold therein in violation of the provisions hereof, and any person who shall so own or keep, or be concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping such liquor with any such intent, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on his first conviction for said offense, pay a fine of twenty dollars and the cost of prosecution, and stand committed until the same be paid. On his second conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of fifty dollars and the costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed until the same be paid, and on his third and every subsequent conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of one hundred dollars and the costs of prosecution, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than three nor more than six months. And upon the trial of every indictment or information for violations of the provisions of this section, proof of the finding of the liquor named in the indictment or information in the possession of the accused in any place except his private dwelling-house, or its dependencies, or in such dwelling-house or dependencies if the same be a tavern, public eating-house, grocery or other place of public resort, shall be received and acted upon by the court as presumptive evidence that such liquor was kept or held for sale contrary to the provisions hereof.

A person who acts as the agent or employe of a social club, to keep and deal out its liquors to members purchasing and presenting tickets, may be indicted and punished for a violation of the prohibitory liquor law, under this section. State v. Mercer, 32 Iowa, 405.

While under this section the finding of intoxicating liquors upon the premises is presumptive evidence that they are kept there for sale contrary to law, yet where there is no evidence of any such liquors being in the defendant's possession or under his control, the testimony of one who is in the employ of the defendant that the witness on one occasion sold a small quantity of liquor, this evidence is not sufficient to warrant a conviction. The State v. Findley, 45 Id., 435.

An information charging a defendant with keeping intoxicating liquors for “the purpose of sale,” is equivalent to one charging him with keeping “with intent to sell,” the offense defined in the statute, and is sufficient. The State v. Moehr, 53 Id., 261.

The offense of nuisance under this section may be committed either by the manufacture, sale,

The owning of intoxicating liquors in this state, in a state of transportation held not unlawful under the code of 1851. Bowen & King v. Hale, 4 Id., 430.

It was held under the prohibitory act of 1855, that the owning of intoxicating liquors in this state, in a state of transportation, was not unlawful; nor were such liquors under that act a nuisance, that any one might abate by destroying them. Bowen & King v. Hale, 4 Id., 500.

An information charging a defendant with “keeping intoxicating liquors for the purpose of sale,” is equivalent to charging him with keeping “with intent to sell,” the offense defined in the statute, and is sufficient. The State v. Moehr, 53 Id., 261.

The crime of keeping for sale and selling intoxicating liquors, as defined by this section, is not the same as that defined by 1543, and an acquittal upon an information under the former section is no bar to a subsequent prosecution upon an indictment under the latter section. The State v. Harris, 64 Id., 257.

The owning of intoxicating liquors, in this state, in a state of transportation, was held, under this chapter, not unlawful; nor were such liquors deemed a nuisance under the statutes prior to that date, which any one might abate by destroying them. Bowen & King v. Hale, 4 Id., 430.

The provision of this section, as amended by section 11, of chapter 143, of the laws of 1884, that in case of conviction, a fine and costs shall be imposed, and that in default of payment thereof the defendant shall be imprisoned for a certain time; the imprisonment is no part of the penalty, but simply a means of collection; and so when the fine provided does not exceed one hundred dollars the cause may be tried on information before a justice of the peace, under section 11, of article 1, of the constitution, although the time for which the convict may be imprisoned in default of payment of the fine and costs may exceed thirty days. It was accordingly held, that a justice of the peace has jurisdiction of the “first offense” contemplated in section 1542 as amended. Albertson v. Kreekbaum, 65 Id., 11.

The provision of the statute which provides a fine of $500 for the disobedience of an injunction against the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors is not unconstitutional. Jordan v. The Circuit Court, 69 Id., 177.

SEC. 1543. (As amended by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [Building and contents declared a nuisance. —] [In cases of violation of the provision of either of the preceding sections, or of section fifteen hundred and twenty-five of this chapter, the building or erection of whatever kind, or the ground itself in or upon which such unlawful manufacture or sale, or keeping with intent to sell, use or give away, of any intoxicating liquor is carried on, or continued, or exists, and the furniture, fixtures, vessels, and contents, is hereby declared a nuisance, and shall be abated as hereinafter provided, and whoever shall erect or establish, or continue, or use any building, erection or place for any of the purposes prohibited in said sections shall be deemed guilty of a nuisance, and may be prosecuted and punished accordingly, and upon conviction shall pay a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars and costs of prosecution, and stand committed until the fine and costs are paid; and the provisions of chapter 47, title 25 of this code shall not be applicable to persons committed under this section. Any citizen of the county where such nuisance exists, or is kept or maintained, may maintain an action in equity to abate and perpetually enjoin the same, and any person violating the terms of any injunction granted in such proceedings shall be punished as for contempt by a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.]

The offense of nuisance under this section may be committed either by the manufacture, sale-
OR KEEPING WITH THE INTENT TO SELL, INTOXICATING LIQUORS, CONTRARY TO LAW; AND WHILE AN INDICTMENT IS SUFFICIENT WHICH CHARGES THE COMMISSION OF THE OFFENSE BY THE DOING OF EITHER ONE OF THE UNLAWFUL ACTS, IT IS BAD FOR DUPLICITY IF IT CHARGES THE OFFENSE TO HAVE BEEN COMMITTED BY DOING TWO OR THREE OF THE SPECIFIED UNLAWFUL ACTS. THE STATE V. BAUGHMAN, 20 IOWA, 497.

AND IN AN INDICTMENT FOR A NUISANCE UNDER THIS SECTION, IT IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO MERELY CHARGE THAT THE DEFENDANT USED AND KEPT A PLACE FOR THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS. THE OFFENSE OF NUISANCE, UNDER THIS SECTION, IS COMPLETE BY THE DOING OF EITHER OF THE ACTS PROHIBITED IN SECTIONS 1555, 1540, OR 1542 OF THE CODE, AS BY DOING OF THEM ALL. HENCE AN INDICTMENT CHARGING THE OFFENSE TO HAVE BEEN COMMITTED AT A PARTICULAR TIME AND PLACE, BY KEEPING INTOXICATING LIQUORS WITH INTENT TO SELL THE SAME CONTRARY TO LAW, IS THE SAME ACCUSATION AS THAT CONTAINED IN ANOTHER INDICTMENT CHARGING THE OFFENSE TO HAVE BEEN COMMITTED AT THE SAME TIME AND PLACE BY SELLING INTOXICATING LIQUORS CONTRARY TO LAW; AND A CONVICTION ON ONE INDICTMENT WOULD BE A BAR TO A PROSECUTION ON THE OTHER. THE STATE V. LEYTON, 25 ID., 193.

AN INDICTMENT UNDER THIS SECTION IS SUFFICIENT WHICH CHARGES THE OFFENSE AS HAVING BEEN COMMITTED BY USING AND KEEPING A ROOM AND PLACE FOR THE PURPOSE OF SELLING, AND BY SELLING THEREIN INTOXICATING LIQUORS IN VIOLATION OF SECTION 1562 OF THE REVISION. THE STATE V. FREEMAN, 27 ID., 334.

THE FINDING OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS IN ANY OTHER BUILDING THAN ONE USED AS A PRIVATE DWELLING AFFORDS PRESUMPTIVE EVIDENCE THAT THEY ARE KEPT BY THEIR OWNER FOR SALE, AND WILL SUPPORT AN INDICTMENT FOR "KEEPING AND MAINTAINING A HOUSE FOR SELLING INTOXICATING LIQUORS." THE STATE V. NORTON, 41 ID., 490.

THE OWNER OF PREMISES UPON WHICH INTOXICATING LIQUORS ARE KEPT FOR SALE, CONTRARY TO LAW, IS NOT GUILTY OF AN OFFENSE IF HE LEASED THEM FOR A LAWFUL PURPOSE AND DID NOT AFFIRMATIVELY ASSENT TO SUCH UNLAWFUL USE. THE MERE FAILURE TO PREVENT OR ATTEMPT TO PREVENT THE ILLEGAL USE OR SALE OF THE LIQUORS DOES NOT SUBJECT HIM TO THE PENALTIES OF THE STATUTE. THE STATE V. BALLINGALL, 42 ID., 87.

ON THE TRIAL OF AN INDICTMENT UNDER SECTION 1543 OF THE CODE, THE STATE IS NOT BOUND TO SHOW AFFIRMATIVELY THAT THE LIQUORS WERE NOT KEPT IN ORIGINAL VESSELS OR PACKAGES, AND THAT THEY WERE NOT SOLD FOR MECHANICAL, MEDICAL OR SACRAMENTAL PURPOSES. ID.

UNDER THIS SECTION, A BAR-TENDER OR CLERK IN A SALOON WHERE INTOXICATING LIQUORS ARE SOLD BY HIM IN VIOLATION OF LAW, MAY BE INDICTED FOR NUISANCE. THE STATE V. STUCKER, 33 ID., 933.
OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS. [TITLE XI.

Under this section, as enacted by section 12 of chapter 143, acts of 1884, any citizen of a county in which nuisance is kept, in the form of a place used for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, may maintain an action in equity to enjoin and abate it; and said act is not repugnant to the constitution, as depriving the defendant of the right of trial by jury, or as being an attempt by the legislature to enforce a criminal law by civil action, nor because it authorizes any citizen of the county to maintain the action for injunction without showing that he is specially damaged by the nuisance, and in such case the court may grant a temporary injunction before the defendant has been convicted criminally. Littleton v. Fritz, 65 Id., 558. Reaffirmed in Pontus v. Winebrenner, (two cases), Id., 591.

An action to abate a nuisance under this section where intoxicating liquors are sold, is an action for the public benefit and according to the terms of the statute can be maintained only by a citizen of the county where the alleged nuisance exists. Applegate v. Winebrenner, 66 Id., 67.

Defendant was charged with nuisance, under this section, by keeping a place for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors. Held that if he kept the liquors with the intent that they should be sold only for lawful purposes, and himself made only lawful sales thereof, he was not criminally liable on account of unlawful sales thereof made by his clerk—the unlawful intent being an essential ingredient in the crime. The State v. Hayes, 67 Id., 27.

The case of Littleton v. Fritz, 67 Id., 488, followed and re-affirmed in Shermerhorn v. Webber et al., 67 Id., 278; (four cases,) Landbeck v. Wiest et al., Id.; (nine cases,) Farley v. Palen et al., Id.; (seven cases,) and Myers v. Kirt, 68 Id., 124.

An action to enjoin a nuisance caused by the sale and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors, held not removable from the state court to the circuit court of the United States on the ground that a federal question is involved. Lemon v. Wagner, 68 Id., 690.

A person committed to the county jail for the non-payment of a fine imposed for the violation of an injunction restraining him from maintaining a nuisance under this section as amended, is not entitled to avail himself of the provisions of section 4611 of the code, and to be discharged upon tendering to the sheriff his note for the amount of the fine together with a written schedule of his property. Hanks v. Workman, Sheriff, 29 N. W. R., 628. (October term, 1886.)

On conviction of a contempt of court for the violation of an injunction against keeping a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, he was not criminally liable on account of unlawful sales made by his clerk—the unlawful intent being an essential ingredient in the crime. The State v. Hayes, 67 Iowa, 27.

The lessor of a building used as a place for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors becomes an aider and abettor in violating the law, and he is a proper party to proceedings by injunction to restrain the traffic as a nuisance. Martin v. Blattner et al., 68 Id., 253.

While only the second and subsequent offenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, as defined by section 1542 of the code, are indictable, the same rule does not apply to section 1543, which provides for punishment for keeping nuisances for the sale of such liquors; and in an indictment for such nuisance it is not necessary to allege that it is the second offense, in order to give the district court jurisdiction. The State v. Hays, 70 Id., 195.

A former conviction under section 1542 before a justice of the peace is not a bar to indictment under this section. The two sections relate to different offenses. State v. G. abam, 35 N. W. R., 628.

Where on an indictment for nuisance in keeping a drug store for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, the evidence showed that the defendant had sold such liquors to minors and inebriates, to show the absence of unlawful intent, the defendant put in evidence his statutory permit, and also written statements signed by the purchasers that they were 21 years old, and not inebriates. Held, that under sections 1543 and 1544 of the code, the unlawful intent may be presumed from the unlawful sales. State v. Thompson, 37 N. W. R., 194.

SEC. 1544. [Information: search warrant.—If any credible resident of any county shall, before a justice of the peace of the same county, make written information, supported by his oath or affirmation, that he has reason to believe, and does believe, that any intoxicating liquor, described as particularly as may be, in said information, is in said county, in any place described, as particularly as may be, in said information; owned or kept by any person named or described in said information, as particularly as may be, and is intended by him to be sold in violation of the provisions of this chapter, said justice shall, upon finding probable cause for such information, issue his warrant of search, directed to any peace officer in said county, describing, as particularly as may be, the liquor and the place described in said information, and the person named or described in said information as the owner or keeper of said liquor, and commanding the said officer to search thoroughly said place, and to seize the said liquor, with the vessels containing it, and to keep the same securely until final action be had thereon; whereupon, the said peace officer to whom such warrant shall be delivered, shall forthwith obey and execute, so far as he shall be able, the commands of said warrant, and make return of his doings to said justice, and shall securely keep all liquors so seized by him, and the vessels containing it, until final action be had thereon; provided, however, that if the place to be searched be a dwelling-house in which any family resides, and in which no tavern, eating-house, grocery, or other place of public resort is kept, such warrant shall not be issued unless said complaint shall, on oath or affirmation, declare before said justice that he has reason to believe, and does believe, that within one month next before the making of said information, intoxicating liquor has been, in violation of this chapter, sold in said house, or in some dependency thereof, by the person accused in said information, or by his consent, or permission; nor unless from the facts and circumstances disclosed by such complaint to said justice, the said justice shall be of opinion that said complainant has adequate reason for such belief.

If the justice issuing the warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors, under section 1544 of the code, has jurisdiction to authorize the seizure, and the information and all the proceedings thereunder are regular, the liquors cannot be taken from the custody of the officer by a writ of replevin; and police justices of cities under special charters have concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to issue such warrants. Weir v. Allen, 47 Iowa, 482.

It is for the justice to determine whether an informant applying for a warrant under section 1544 of the code is a credible resident or not, but neither the information nor warrant need state such fact. The State v. Thompson, 41 Id., 399.

Where the information was entitled, "State of Iowa, Clayton county, " it was held unnecessary to allege in the information that the liquors were in Clayton county. Id.

A description of the place to be searched, by giving the owner's name, the place where he lives, and the kind of liquors which he was believed to keep, was held sufficient. Id.

An objection to the warrant for insufficient description cannot be made for the first time on appeal in the district court. Id.

An information which charges the keeping of intoxicating liquors by the defendant, with the intent by him to be sold in violation of law, is sufficient, without specifying by title and chapter of the statute violated. Id.

Intoxicating liquors seized under proceedings for their forfeiture are not subject to an action of replevin. Fries etc., v. Porch, 49 Id., 351; Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Id., 455; Cooley v. Davis, 44 Id., 125.

A particular description of the place to be searched, or the property to be seized, is required by this section; and the charge against the defendant is to be distinctly and fully stated. Santo v. The State, 2 Id., 165.

The expression "as particular as may be" conveys the idea of the greatest degree of certainty, and this section is, therefore, not in conflict with the Const., Art. 1, Sec. 3, as authorizing a search warrant to issue without the particularity of description therein required; nor as authorizing unreasonable search or seizure. Id., 212.

It is not necessary that either the information or warrant should state that the former is made by a "credible resident" of the county. That fact is to be found by the justice. The State v. Thompson, 44 Id., 399; Weir v. Allen, 47 Id., 482.

It will not be presumed that the place to be searched is a "dwelling house," etc., from the mere fact that the information avers that the liquors are kept in a certain house or place known, etc. Saunders v. The State, 2 Id., 309, 277.

A previous conviction of the owner for selling liquors in violation of law will not bar a prosecution under this section against the liquors. Id.

The jurisdiction here conferred upon justices of the peace is not exclusive, but may be exercised by police justices in cities acting under special charter. Weir v. Allen, 47 Id., 482.

Liquors seized as contemplated in this section cannot be taken from the custody of the officer by replevin. Fries v. Israel, 5 Id., 358; The State v. Harris, 38 Id., 242; Weir v. Allen, 47 Id., 482; Fries v. Porch, 49 Id., 352. Nor can the owner of the liquors recover from the officer by way of damages in an action of trespass unless he shows that he possessed them with lawful intent and was unlawfully deprived of them. Plumer v. Harbut, 5 Id., 308.
An information for a search warrant under this section for the seizure of liquors owned and kept with unlawful intent, must charge some specific person as the owner or keeper of the liquor with unlawful intent. State v. Harris, 36 Id., 135; State v. Certain Intoxicating Liquors, 64 Id., 300.

Certain intoxicating liquors were shipped by the Seipp Brewing Co., of Elroy, Wis., by rail, to Bigelow, Minn. The way bill, under the heading, "Consignee, Marks and Destination," read as follows: "The Seipp Brewing Co. Notify McEvoy & McClarty, Bigelow, Minn." The liquors were delivered to defendants at Bigelow, where they kept a saloon; but they also kept a saloon at the neighboring town of Sibley, Iowa, to which the liquors were conveyed by the defendants, and where they were seized and condemned to destruction under the laws of Iowa. The Seipp Brewing Co. drew upon the defendants at Sibley, Iowa, for the price of the liquors, but defendants refused to pay the draft. The bill of lading was attached to the draft, but was not in evidence, nor was it shown who appeared by the bill of lading to be the consignee of the liquors. It was shown, however, that the same company had made prior like consignments, which had in like manner been delivered to defendants, and that drafts to cover the same had been sent to Sibley for collection, and had been paid by defendants. The railroad company appeared in the proceedings against the liquor and claimed possession thereof, on the ground that the Seipp Brewing Co. was the consignee, and that the delivery to defendants at Bigelow was a mistake, and that their possession was wrongful; and that as the railroad company had not violated the law by transporting the liquors into Iowa, they should be restored to it, for delivery to the proper consignee in Minnesota. Held, that this claim could not be maintained, and that the liquors were properly condemned. State of Iowa v. McEvoy, 69 Id., 65.

Under this section it is not necessary, in case of an information against one holding a permit from the board of supervisors to sell liquors for lawful purposes, that the information shall charge that defendant has sold intoxicating liquors in violation of law, although section 1536 provides that a permit for the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be no bar to their confiscation and destruction if it shall be found that the party claiming them has sold such liquors in violation of law. That section simply operates to make the fact of sale evidence of the intent in keeping the liquors.

Sec. 1545. [Information: what contain.]—The information and search warrant in such case, shall describe the place to be searched, as well as the liquors to be seized, with reasonable particularity. When any liquors shall have been seized by virtue of any such warrant, the same shall not be discharged or returned to any person claiming the same, by reason of any alleged insufficiency of description in the warrant of the liquor or place, but the claimant shall only have a right to be heard on the merits of the case.

Sec. 1546. [Notice of seizure served.]—Whenever upon such warrant such liquors shall have been seized, the justice who issued such warrant shall, within forty-eight hours after such seizure, cause to be left at the place where said liquor was seized, if said place be a dwelling house, store, or shop, posted in some conspicuous place on or about said buildings, and also to be left with or at the last known and usual place of residence of the person named or described in said information as the owner or keeper of said liquor, if he be a resident of this state, a notice, summoning such person and all others whom it may concern, to appear before said justice at a place and time named in said notice, which time shall not be less than five nor more than fifteen days after the posting and leaving of said notices, and show cause, if any they have, why said liquor, together with the vessels in which the same is contained, should not be forfeited; and said notice shall, with reasonable certainty, describe said liquor and vessels, and shall state where, when, and why, the same were seized. At the time and place prescribed in said notice, the person named in said information, or any other person claiming an interest in said liquor and vessels, or any part thereof, may appear and show cause why the same should not be forfeited. If any person so appear, he shall become a party defendant in said case, and said justice shall make a record thereof.
Whether any person shall so appear or not, said justice shall, at the prescribed time, proceed to the trial of said case, and said complainants, or either of them, may, and upon their default, the officer having such liquor in custody shall appear before said justice and prosecute said information, and show cause why such liquor should be adjudged forfeited. The proceeding in the trial of such case may be the same, substantially, as in cases of misdemeanor triable before justices of the peace, and if any person shall appear and be made a party defendant as herein provided, and shall make written plea that said liquor, or the part thereof claimed by him, was not owned or kept with intent to be sold in violation of this chapter, such party defendant may, at his option, demand a jury to try the issue, and, if upon the evidence then and there presented, the said justice or jury as the case may be, shall find for verdict that said liquor was, when seized, owned or kept by any person, whether said party defendant or not, for the purpose of being sold in violation of this chapter, the said justice shall render judgment that said liquor, or said part thereof, with the vessels in which it is contained, is forfeited. If no person be made defendant in manner aforesaid, or if judgment be in favor of all the defendants who appear and are made such, then the costs of the proceeding shall be paid as in ordinary criminal prosecutions where the prosecution fails. If the judgment shall be against only one party defendant appearing as aforesaid, he shall be adjudged to pay all the costs of proceedings in the seizure and detention of the liquor claimed by him up to that time, and of said trial. But, if such judgment shall be against more than one party defendant claiming distinct interests in said liquor, then the costs of said proceedings and trial shall be according to the discretion of said justice equitably apportioned among said defendants, and execution shall be issued on said judgments against said defendants for the amount of the costs so adjudged against them. Any person appearing and becoming party defendant as aforesaid, may appeal from said judgment of forfeiture as to the whole, or any part, of said liquor and vessels claimed by him and so adjudged forfeited to the district court as in ordinary cases of misdemeanor.

When intoxicating liquors are seized under a warrant issued under the provisions of the prohibitory liquor law, it is not competent for a party to take the case away from the tribunal whose jurisdiction has attached, by commencing an action of replevin for the liquors seized. Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Iowa, 438; Gooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128.

Intoxicating liquors seized under an information for their forfeiture are not the subject of replevin, and to take them from an officer by such process is an illegal act, and will subject the guilty party to punishment for contempt. The State v. Harris, et al., 38 Id., 242.

The proceeding contemplated under this section is a criminal one, 'State v. Harris, 38 Id., 242.

Sec. 1547. [Destruction of liquor and vessels.]—Whenever it shall be finally decided that liquor seized as aforesaid is forfeited, the court rendering final judgment of forfeiture shall issue to the officer having said liquors in custody, or to some other peace officer, a written order, directing him forthwith to destroy said liquor and vessels containing the same, and immediately thereafter to make return of said order to the court whence issued, with his doings endorsed thereon and sworn to. Whenever it shall be finally decided that any liquor so seized is not liable to forfeiture, the court by whom such final decision shall be rendered shall issue a written order to the officer having the same in custody, or to some other peace officer, to restore said liquor, with the vessels containing the same, to the place where it was seized, as nearly as may be, or to the person entitled to receive it, which order the officer, after obeying the commands thereof, shall return to the said court with his doings thereon indorsed; and the costs of the proceedings in such case attending the restoration, as also the costs attending the destruction of such liquor in case of forfeiture, shall be taxed and paid in the same manner as is provided in case of ordinary criminal prosecution, where the prosecution fails.

To justify an order for the destruction of intoxicating liquors seized upon a warrant, it must be found that they were kept with the intention on the part of the owner, or the one in whose custody they are found, of selling them in violation of law. A finding that they were kept "for the purpose of being sold within the state of Iowa," is not sufficient. The State v. Harris, 36 Iowa, 136.

A proceeding by information for the condemnation of intoxicating liquors alleged to be kept for illegal sale, is in the nature of a criminal one, and after trial in the district court it is error to sustain a motion by the state for a new trial. State v. Harris et al., 49 Id., 93.

An action for the condemnation and destruction of intoxicating liquors kept for illegal sale, is a criminal action, and is not affected by the constitutional provision limiting the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in civil cases. Accordingly held that under sections 1341-1347 of the code a justice had jurisdiction of actions brought under these sections regardless of the value of the liquors involved therein. The State v. Arlen et al., 71 Id., 216.

Sec. 1548. (As amended by Ch. 37, 15th G. A.) [Intoxicated person punished.]—If any person shall be found in a state of intoxication, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and any peace officer may, without warrant, and it is hereby made his duty to take such person into custody, and to detain him in some suitable place until an information can be made before a magistrate and a warrant issued in due form, upon which he may be arrested and tried, and if found guilty, he shall pay a fine of ten dollars and the costs of prosecution, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail thirty days. But the magistrate before whom such person is tried and convicted may remit any portion of such penalty, and order the prisoner to be discharged upon his giving information, under oath, stating when, where, and of whom he purchased or received the liquor which produced the intoxication, and the name and character of the liquor obtained. (Provided, such intoxicated person gives bail for his appearance before the proper magistrate, court or jury to give testimony in any action or complaint against the party for furnishing such liquor.) In cases arising under this section, appeals may be allowed as in cases of ordinary misdemeanor within the jurisdiction of the justices of the peace.

The word "drunkenness" in a warrant of commitment has the same legal signification as the word "intoxication." Smith v. Bigelow, 19 Iowa, 459.

Under sections 1583 and 1586 of the revision, it was held that imprisonment for thirty days was an imperative part of the punishment for intoxication. The State v. Patton, 453. But it is not so under the code. Ed.

A witness may state whether or not, in his opinion, a person was intoxicated, and is not confined to a statement of the conduct and demeanor of the person inquired about. The State v. Huxford, 47 Id., 16.

It is competent for a municipal corporation, under the powers conferred upon it by sections 456 and 432 of the code, to provide by ordinance for the arrest and punishment of persons found in a state of intoxication. The act may be an offense against the city as well as against the state, as provided in this section. Town of Bloomfield v. Trimble, 54 Id., 398.

Sec. 1549. [Requisites of indictment or information.]—In any indictment or information arising under this chapter, it shall not be necessary to set out exactly the kind or quantity of intoxicating liquors manufactured or sold, or kept for purposes of sale, nor the exact time of the manufacture, or sale, or keeping with intent to sell, but proof of the violation by the accused of any provision of this chapter, the substance of which violation is briefly set forth, within the time mentioned in said indictment or information, shall be sufficient to convict such person; nor shall it be necessary in any indictment or information to negative any exceptions contained in the enacting clause, or elsewhere, which may be proper ground of defense; and, in any prosecution for a second or subsequent offense as provided herein, it shall not be requisite to set forth in the indictment or information the record of a former conviction, but it shall be sufficient briefly to allege such conviction; nor shall it be necessary in every case to prove payment in order to prove a sale within the true meaning and intent of this chapter, and the person purchasing any intoxicating liquor sold in violation of this chapter, shall, in all cases, be a competent witness to prove such sale.

The precise time when the offense was committed is not material; it is sufficient if it is alleged that the offense was committed prior to the finding of the indictment and within the period of the statute of limitations, although a particular time is alleged in the indictment. The State v. Layton, 25 Iowa, 133, 196.
The time of selling need not be proved as laid in the indictment. The State v. Curley, 33 Id., 359; The State v. Mailing, 11 Id., 398.

Since the taking effect of the present constitution, the offense of selling intoxicating liquors is not subject to indictment, but of an information before a justice of the peace. The State v. Kohler, 6 Id., 398.

In an information for selling intoxicating liquors in violation of the law, it is not necessary to set forth the kind of liquors sold. Foreman v. Hunter, 59 Id., 550.

Sec. 1550. [Payments for liquor illegal.]—All payments or compensation for intoxicating liquor sold in violation of this chapter, whether such payments or compensation be in money, goods, land, labor, or anything else whatsoever, shall, be held to have been received in violation of law and against equity and good conscience, and to have been received upon a valid promise and agreement of the receiver in consideration of the receipt thereof, to pay on demand to the person furnishing such consideration the amount of said money or the just value of such goods, land labor or other thing. All sales transfers, conveyances, mortgages, liens, attachments, pledges, and securities of every kind, which either in whole or in part shall have been made for or on account of intoxicating liquors sold in violation of this chapter shall be utterly null and void against all persons in all cases, and no rights of any kind shall be acquired thereby, and action of any kind shall be maintained in any court in this state for intoxicating liquors, or the value thereof, sold in any other state or country contrary to the law of said state or country, or with intent to enable any person to violate any provision of this chapter, nor shall any action be maintained for the recovery or possession of any intoxicating liquor, or the value thereof, except in cases where persons owning or possessing such liquor with lawful intent, may have been illegally deprived of the same. Nothing, however, in this section shall affect in any way negotiable paper in the hands of holders thereof in good faith for valuable consideration, without notice of any illegality in its inception or transfer, or the holder of land or other property who may have taken the same in good faith, without notice of any defect in the title of the person from whom the same was taken, growing out of a violation of the provisions of this chapter, and all evidence given in actions brought by or against such holders, shall be in no way affected by the provisions of this section.

The sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, in violation of the law for the suppression of intemperance, even by an agent of the firm residing in an another state, will be held illegal and void without any showing of intent to enable the purchaser to violate the law. The Second Nat. Bk. of Louisville v. Curran, 36 Iowa, 53; Tregler & Go. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194; see also Whitlock v. Workman & Co., 15 Id., 351; Dalter v. Lane, 13 Id., 538; Smith v. Grable, 14 Id., 429; Davis v. Bronson, 6 Id., 410.

But to defeat a recovery on a contract for the sale of intoxicating liquors made with a firm in the state where they reside, it must appear that the vendors had knowledge of our law, and made the sale with intent to enable the purchaser to violate the same. Knowledge of the law alone would not be sufficient. The Second National Bank v. Curran, supra.

Where a claim for rent, payable in corn, was sold and transferred by the lessor to a third person in consideration of intoxicating liquors, sold in violation of law, in an action by the assignee of the rent against the lessee the court held, that he could not recover because the statute declares all contracts on account of intoxicating liquors, sold in violation of law, to be “utterly null and void against all persons in all cases.” Davis v. Slater, 17 Id., 250.

The vendor of intoxicating liquors, sold contrary to law, may be garnished by a creditor of the vendee and required to pay the money received for such liquors in satisfaction of the debt of such vendee to the garnishing creditor. Church v. Simpson, 25 Id., 408.

The judgment, by default, of a justice of the peace cannot be impeached by affidavits showing that the default was taken before the proper time therefor. His record showing that the judgment was rendered at a proper time is conclusive as to the fact. Cory v. King & Co., 49 Id., 355.

The term “liens,” as employed in section 1550 of the code, does not include the lien of a judgment, and if a judgment be rendered in favor of a party selling intoxicating liquors, it cannot be pleaded in another action that such judgment is void, because the subject matter of the action came within the prohibition of the statute. Smith et al. v. Leddy et al., 50 Id., 112.
A contract for the sale of intoxicating liquor for purposes forbidden by law is void, and such sale, when the purpose thereof is known to the seller, will not constitute a sufficient consideration for a promissory note for the purchase price. Tolman v. King & Johnson, 43 Id., 127.

If liquors thus sold have been paid for, the money paid may be recovered back in an action at law; or in an action by the seller against the purchaser upon a general account, the amount of such payment may be pleaded as a counter-claim. Id.

The owner of intoxicating liquors in an action for damages against an officer who has been adjudged to have no authority for their detention, must allege and prove that he owned and kept them with a lawful intent, and not for the purpose of sale contrary to law. Walker v. Snook et al., 49 Id., 264.

The order to the officer to return the liquors to the plaintiff did not relieve him from the necessity of making such allegation and proof. Id.

A promissory note given in part for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, is wholly void and cannot be enforced, even to the extent of the legal consideration. Taylor & Co. v. Pickett et al., 52 Id., 457.

And in an action by the indorsee of a negotiable promissory note, if it be established that the note was given for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, the burden is upon the plaintiff to show that he took the note for value before maturity and without notice of the infirmity. The Rock Island Nat. Bank v. Nelson, 51 Id., 563.

A sale of intoxicating liquors by an agent is considered as made where the order is given, unless such order, after being forwarded to the principal, is to be subject to his approval before it is filled. Taylor v. Davis v. Pickett et al., 52 Id., 457.

A person authorized to sell liquors for legal purposes is bound to exercise due diligence and act in good faith in making such sales; when this is done he is not responsible for the illegal use made of them by the purchaser. Id.

In an action against a common carrier to recover the value of intoxicating liquors lost or destroyed, the plaintiff must prove, not only that he has been illegally deprived of the same, but that he owned or possessed them with lawful intent and not for the purpose of sale contrary to law. Summer v. Ute, 23 Id., 889.

While traffic in intoxicating liquor as an article of beverage is, under the statute, unlawful, it nevertheless retains the character of property. Montz v. Arenson, 25 Id., 383.

In order to defeat a recovery on a contract for the sale of intoxicating liquors made with a firm in the state, not Iowa, where they reside, it must appear that the vendors had knowledge of our law, and made the sale with intent to enable the purchaser to violate the same. Knowledge of the law alone is not sufficient. The Second Nat. Bank v. Curran, 36 Id., 555.

If an agent of a person engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors in another state, merely takes an order of a person residing in this state for a quantity of liquor to be forwarded to him, which order is taken by the agent subject to the approval or disapproval of his principal, the sale will be regarded as made in the state where the vendor resides, and the case will not fall within section 1550. Teager v. Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194.

But if, in such case, the agent had authority to contract the sale, or if the sale was made with intent on the part of the vendor to enable the purchaser to violate any of the provisions of our law for the suppression of intemperance, it would be otherwise; the sale would be void under section 1550. Id.

Although mere knowledge on the part of the vendor, residing in another state, that the purchase is with intent to violate our law is not held sufficient to defeat the contract, yet it is a fact from which, with other circumstances, the jury may infer such intent. Id.

One who has permission to sell intoxicating liquors, purchases a quantity of such liquors from a manufacturer who has not permission to sell, may not only set up the unlawful sale as a defense in an action to recover the price of the liquors, but where he has made a payment thereon may recover back the amount paid. Bicker v. Batten, 39 Id., 668.

A party seeking to recover for the seizure and destruction of intoxicating liquors, must show that he possessed them with a lawful intent, and that he has been deprived of them unlawfully, before he can recover their value. Plummer v. Harbut et al., 5 Id., 308.

A note given in whole or in part consideration for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, is void in the hands of the payee or any assignee having notice of the consideration. The illegal part cannot be separated from the legal part of the consideration. It taints the whole. Braitch v. Guetick, 37 Id., 212.

When the consideration of a contract is the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, it is, by statute, utterly void as against all persons. Davis v. Slater, 17 Id., 259.

An action under section 1550 to recover the price of intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, is a civil action, and not quasi criminal in character, and a motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence is allowable. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 39 Id., 455.

An action under this section for the recovery of money paid for intoxicating liquors in violation of law, will not be barred by the statute of limitations until five years from the time the payment was made. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 41 Id., 677.
It was held in Marienthal, Lehman & Co. v. Shafer et al., 6 Id. 223, and in Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Id. 438, that an illegal vendor of intoxicating liquors could not maintain an action of replevin against attaching creditors of the vendee, on the ground that the sale was void and the right of possession still remained in the vendor. But the contrary seems to be held in Monty v. Arneson, 25 Id., 883.

Intoxicating liquors are property in so far as they are the subject of larceny. The State v. May, 20 Id., 305.

Where a party exchanges goods for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, he may recover the same by an action at law. Smith v. Grable, 41 Id., 429.

A sale of intoxicating liquors by an agent is considered as made where the order is given, unless such order, after being forwarded to the principal, is to be subject to his approval before it is filled. Taylor & Co. v. Pickett et al., 52 Id., 467.

Where orders for liquors were sent by defendant from Vermont to plaintiffs in New York by mail, and where other orders were taken by plaintiff's agent in Vermont, but sent by him to plaintiffs in New York, to be accepted or rejected by them at pleasure, and the liquors ordered were consigned to the defendant by rail, the paying the carrier's charges thereon, held that the contracts were consummated in New York and were not in violation of the laws of Vermont in regard to the sale of such goods, and that recovery may be had thereon in this state notwithstanding the provisions of this section of the code. Engs & Sons v. Priest, 65 Id., 232.

This section declaring the sale, without permit, of intoxicating liquors void, and authorizing a person making payment to recover back the money paid in pursuance thereof, when the contract of sale was made in Iowa, the presumption is that payment was intended to be made and was in fact made therein in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Connely v. Scarr, 72 Id., 223.

SEC. 1551. (As amended by ch. 143, 20th g. a.) [Officers to give information of violations.]—All peace officers shall see that the provisions of this chapter are faithfully executed, and when informed that the law has been violated, or when they have reason to believe that the law has been violated, and that proof of the fact can be had, such officers shall go before a magistrate and make information of the same and of the person so violating the law. Upon the filing of such information before a magistrate he shall institute a suit and proceed to the arrest and trial thereof according to law. Upon trials before a magistrate, it shall be the duty of the district (county) attorney to appear before the state, unless the person filing such information shall select some other attorney. Any peace officer failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and pay a fine of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars, and a conviction shall work a forfeiture of his office. Every peace officer shall give evidence when called upon, of any facts within his knowledge, tending to prove a violation of the provisions of this chapter, but his evidence shall in no case be used against him in any prosecution against him for a violation of the provisions of this chapter.

A constable appointed by a justice of the peace "for the purpose of assisting peace officers of Clinton to seize liquors" is not thereby authorized to select an attorney for the prosecution of a case under the prohibitory law. Foster & Foster v. Clinton County, 51 Iowa, 541. Nor can the district attorney render the county liable for the services of an attorney requested by him to conduct a prosecution. Id.

Under this section a county is not liable to an attorney for his services in prosecuting for a violation of the prohibitory liquor law, where the services are rendered at the request of one not a peace officer. Blair & Bronson v. Dubuque County, 27 Id., 151.

A peace officer cannot refuse to answer questions touching his knowledge of the places where intoxicating liquors are being sold in violation of law, on the ground that under section 1551 of the code he would criminate himself. When the question involves only facts of recent occurrence the answer cannot criminate the witness. Hunt v. McCullar, Sheriff, 22 Id., 20.

SEC. 1552. [Principal and sureties jointly and severally liable.]—The principal and sureties in the bond mentioned in sections fifteen hundred and twenty-eight and fifteen hundred and twenty-nine, shall be jointly and severally liable for all fines and costs that may be adjudged against the principal for any violation of any of the provisions of this chapter, and shall also jointly and severally be liable for all civil damages and costs that may be adjudged against said principal in any civil action brought against him by the provisions of this chapter.

If any express company, railway company, or any agent or person in the employ of any express company, or of any common carrier, or any person in the employ of any common carrier, or of any other person, shall transport or convey between points, or from one place to another within this state, for any other person or persons or corporation, any intoxicating liquors, without first having been furnished with a certificate from and under the seal of the county auditor of the county to which said liquor is to be transported or is consigned for transportation, or within which it is to be conveyed from place to place, certifying that the consignee or person to whom said liquor is to be transported, conveyed or delivered, is authorized to sell such intoxicating liquors in such county. Such company, corporation, or person so offending, and each of them, and any agent of such company, corporation, or person so offending, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in the sum of one hundred dollars for each offense and pay costs of prosecution, and the cost shall include a reasonable attorney fee to be assessed by the court, which shall be paid into the county fund, and stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs of prosecution are paid. The offense herein defined shall be held to be complete and shall be held to have been committed in any county of the state, through or to which said intoxicating liquors are transported, or in which the same is unloaded for transportation or in which said liquors are conveyed from place to place or delivered. It shall be the duty of the several county auditors of this state to issue the certificate herein contemplated, to any person having such permit and the certificate so issued shall be truly dated when issued, and shall specify the date at which the permit expires as shown by the county records.

Provided, however, that the defendant may show, as a defense hereunder, by a preponderance of evidence, that the character and circumstances of the shipment and its contents were unknown to him.

The giving of intoxicating liquors to an intoxicated person construed to be within the prohibition of selling to such a person as provided in section 1539 of the code. Church v. Higham, 44 Iowa, 482.

Where in an action by the wife for selling intoxicating liquors to her husband it was shown that the husband was in the habit of dealing with the defendant, it was held, that the jury might infer from that fact that the liquor he obtained was a purchase and not a gift, although it was not paid for by him or charged to him. Rafferty v. Buckman, 46 Id., 195.

This section changes the common law rule of strict construction, as applied to criminal statutes. Woolheather v. Risley, 38 Id., 426, 491.

Intoxicating liquors imported into this state by express, and held by the express company as agent for the consignor, to be delivered to the consignee upon payment of the purchase price, are subject to be seized and destroyed as contraband property in a proceeding against the liquors. It is wholly immaterial in such case whether the officers of the express company know the character of the property, or the uses to which it is to be put; and where the company voluntarily appears in the proceeding and claims the liquors, the costs may be assessed against it. The State v. U. S. Express Co., 70 Id., 271.

Sec. 1554. [Construction of statute.]

Courts and jurors shall construe this chapter so as to prevent evasion, and so as to cover the giving as well as selling by persons not authorized.

This section changes the common law rule of strict construction, as applied to criminal statutes. Woolheather v. Risley, 38 Iowa 426, 491.

The giving of intoxicating liquors to a intoxicated person was construed to be within the prohibition of selling to such persons, as provided in section 1539 of the code. Church v. Higham, 44 Id., 492.

Where in an action by the wife for selling intoxicating liquors to her husband, it was shown that the husband was in the habit of dealing with the defendant, it was held, that the jury might infer from that fact that the liquor he obtained was a purchase and not a gift, although it was not paid for by him or charged to him. Rafferty v. Buckman et al., 46 Id., 195.

This section applies to licensed pharmacists, and they are liable for giving away intoxicating liquors for unlawful purposes, no matter how artfully done. The State v. Harris, 64 Iowa, 287.
Sec. 1555. (As substituted by ch. 8, 20th g. a.) [Wherever the words intoxicating liquors occur in this chapter, the same shall be construed to mean alcohol, ale, wine, beer, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, and all intoxicating liquors whatever; and no person shall manufacture for sale, or sell, or keep for sale, as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors whatever, including ale, wine and beer. And the same provisions and penalties of law in force relating to intoxicating liquors, shall in like manner be held and construed to apply to violations of this act, and to the manufacture, sale, or keeping for sale, or keeping with intent to sell, or keeping or establishing a place for the sale of ale, wine and beer, and all other intoxicating liquors whatever.]

In a prosecution for violation of the prohibitory liquor law, the time of selling need not be proved as laid in the indictment, nor need it be alleged in the indictment nor proved by the state that the liquors sold were such as are not included in the exceptions of the statute (the exceptions no longer exist). The burden of proving this rests upon the accused. The State v. Curley, 33 Id., 339; Worley v. Spurgeon, 33 Id., 465.

Wine and beer were held included in the terms "intoxicating liquors," for the sale of which a right of action is given. Worley v. Spurgeon, supra, and Jewett v. Wansbura, 43 Id., 574.

This section must be regarded as a police regulation, and not in any just sense a regulation of commerce, or as in conflict with section 8, of article 1, of the constitution of the United States, relating to commerce. The State v. Stucker, 58 Id., 496.

After a statute has been enforced, in both the civil and criminal courts for a long period, it will not be held unconstitutional unless its unconstitutionality is so obvious as to admit of no doubt. Id.

Where a witness testified that he drank beer at defendant's saloon and did not pay for it, but supposed that his companion paid for it, the court instructed the jury as follows: "The statute expressly requires courts and jurors to construe its provisions so as to prevent evasion, and so as to cover the act of giving as well as selling." Held correct. The State v. Reinhartz, 69 Id., 224.

The statute may, as a police regulation, prohibit the sale of one kind of intoxicating liquor and allow the sale of another kind, and the prohibition of wines made from fruits grown in other states is no invasion of the immunities or privileges of the citizens of these states, and not repugnant to section 2, of article 4, of the constitution of the United States. Id.

Under section 1555 of the code, as amended by chapter 8, laws of 1884, it was held that cider made from apples and intoxicating in quality, was included in the terms "all intoxicating liquors whatever." The State v. Hutchinson, 34 N. W. R., 421.

Where a common carrier refused to transport a product called "New Era Beer," into Iowa, because of the prohibitory law, it was held that as the product was denominated "beer" with nothing to show that it was not intoxicating, the carrier had a right to assume that it was intoxicating and refuse to transport it. Milwaukee M. E. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R'y Co., 34 N. W. K., 761.

The sale of cider, when intoxicating, is forbidden by the statutes for the suppression of intemperance, it being included in the terms, "intoxicating liquors," as defined by section 1555 of the code as amended by chapter 8, laws of 1884. The State v. Hutchinson, 72 Id., 561.

Sec. 1556. [Taking care of intoxicated person: expense of.—Any person who shall by the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, contrary to the provisions of this chapter, cause the intoxication of any other person, shall be liable for and compelled to pay a reasonable compensation to any person who may take charge of and provide for such intoxicated person, and one dollar per day in addition thereto for every day such intoxicated person shall be kept in consequence of such intoxication, which sums may be recovered in a civil action before any court having jurisdiction thereof.

There can be no recovery under section 1556, unless it be shown that the liquor sold either caused or contributed to the husband's intoxication. Welch v. Jugenheim, 56 Iowa, 11; Fox v. Wunderlich, supra.

Sec. 1557. [Action by persons injured by intoxicated person.]—Every wife, child, parent, guardian, employer, or other person, who shall be injured in person or property, or means of support, by any intoxicated person, or in consequence of the intoxication, habitual or otherwise, of any person, shall have a right of action in his or her own name, against any person who shall, by selling intoxicating liquors, cause the intoxication of such person, for all damages actually sustained, as well as exemplary damages; and a married woman shall have the same right to bring suits, prosecute, and control the same and the amount recovered as if a single woman; and all damages recovered by a minor under this section, shall be paid either to such minor or his parent, guardian, or next friend, as the court shall direct, and all suits for damages under this section shall be by civil action in any court having jurisdiction thereof.

A seller of intoxicating liquors to the husband, by which the wife is injured in her means of support, is not released from liability if a part of the liquors causing the intoxication were sold by others. He is liable if he contributed thereto. Woolheather v. Risley, 38 Iowa, 486.

A joint action will not lie against several defendants, whose places of business were distinct and who had no business connection with each other, for injuries caused the plaintiff by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband. La France v. Krager et al., 41 Id., 143.

Whether such an action could be maintained if successive sales by the several defendants produced a single act of intoxication from which the injury resulted. queret? Id.

It has been subsequently held, that if several persons sell intoxicating liquors to another, whereby he becomes intoxicated, and inflicts injuries upon persons or property, each of the sellers is liable for all of the injuries, although there can be but one satisfaction therefor. Kearney v. Fitzgerald, 43 Id., 550.

Where several persons have sold intoxicating liquors to the husband, a settlement by the wife with one of such persons will not operate to discharge the others from liability. Jewett v. Wantshura, 1d., 564.

In an action by a wife for damages to her means of support by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, evidence of the number and ages of her children is not admissible to affect the damages. Huggins v. Keenanugh, 52 Id., 388.

Where it is sought to recover for a series of sales a defendant can only be held liable for injuries to which he contributed, and an instruction charging the jury that if they were unable to separate the damages to which the defendant contributed from those which he did not, he would be liable for the whole amount of injury, was held erroneous. Id. Ennis v. Shirley 47 Id., 552.

Under sections 1557 and 1558 a joint action for injury to the wife from the sale of liquors to her husband, and to charge the premises on which the liquors were sold with the lien of the judgment, may be maintained against the seller and owner of the property. Loan v. Heiney & Ettall, 53 Id., 89.

Such an action is triable at law as against both defendants, and either party is entitled to a jury; the lien following as a matter of law upon the finding of facts requisite under the statute in favor of the plaintiff. Id.

The fact that the wife has recovered damages for injury to her means of support, by the sale of intoxicating liquors, cannot be pleaded in mitigation in another action for the same cause against other parties. The fact may be introduced in evidence, not in mitigation, but to show more accurately the damages for which the defendant was liable. Ennis v. Shirley et al. 47 Id., 552; Engleken v. Webber et al., 558; 38 Id., 465; 46-195; 49-34.

In an action for damages from injuries resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors, the seller may be joined as defendant with the owner of the land upon which the liquor was sold and upon which it is sought to establish a lien. La France v. Krager et al., 42 Id., 143.

Where the injury resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors proceeds from a particular act of intoxication, but rather from a general besotted condition, those who may have contributed to such a condition by the sale to him of intoxicating liquors are not jointly liable with those who have contributed to the immediate act. Hitchner v. Eplars et al., 44 Id., 40.

A married woman has the right to rely upon the support of her husband, and is entitled to damages from the person who injures her in her means of support by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, irrespective of his conduct previous to the sale. Woolheather v. Risley, 38 Id., 486.

If the wife has a horse which she claims and uses as her own with the knowledge of her husband, and the husband sells it while he is intoxicated, she may recover its value of the seller of the liquor causing the intoxication. Id.

In an action by the wife for damages caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors to the husband, a witness may be asked if the husband had been frequently intoxicated, before the introduction of the evidence that such intoxication was caused by the defendant. The order of proof rests in the discretion of the court. Id.

It is not necessary that the fact of marriage shall be established to enable a person suing as wife, under this section, to recover for injuries to her person and property. Kearney v. Fitzgerald, 43 Id., 550.

A wife cannot recover damages against a person who sells intoxicating liquors to her husband, for injuries to her person or property, if she voluntarily drinks with him or sanctions the sale to him. Id.
Although the wife may have purchased liquors and taken them home for the purpose of detaining her husband there, this act will not deprive her of the benefit of the statute. \textit{Id.}

In this class of cases damages are not allowed for wounded feelings and disgrace, and evidence that the defendant has sold to plaintiff’s husband since the commencement of the action is not, therefore, competent. \textit{Id.}

By the statutes in force prior to September 1st, 1873, no right of action was given for injuries produced by the sale of beer. \textit{Woole v. Coeman}, 44 Id. 19.

But now under section 1539 of the code, wine and beer are included in the terms intoxicating liquors in section 1551, for the sale of which a right of action is thereby given. \textit{Jewett v. Wanshura}, 42 Id., 574; \textit{Woole v. Spurgeon}, 55 Id., 465.

When the wife had forbidden the sale of liquors to her husband, and subsequently in his presence gave permission to the seller to let him have all he wanted; \textit{held}, that the seller should have inferred that she acted under coercion in giving the permission, and that he was not thereby exempted from liability. \textit{Id.}

The fact that the wife has upon other occasions ordered the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband will not prevent her recovery of damages for a sale upon a particular occasion when she did not assent thereto. \textit{Rofferty v. Buckman et al.}, 46 Id., 195.

The giving of money by the wife to her husband for the purpose of procuring liquor to drink, would not justify the inference that she contributed to his intoxication, in the absence of proof that he procured the liquor with that money. \textit{Id.}

It was held, competent for the wife to testify that her husband was in the habit of returning from the defendant’s store intoxicated, because he would state upon leaving home his intention of going there, and upon his return in that condition would bring articles from the store. \textit{Id.}

This section authorizes the recovery of damages for the death of a husband, which has been caused by intoxication, from the party who sold him the liquors producing the intoxication. \textit{Id.}

In the case of the death of the husband the jury may estimate the damages with reference to the fact that it is the duty of the husband to provide the wife with present support, as well as maintenance for the future, and that she is entitled to such sum as in a pecuniary point of view would make her whole. \textit{Id.}

In an action by the wife for damages for injury to her means of support by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, it was \textit{held}, error to instruct the jury that the husband’s previous habit of becoming intoxicated should be considered in aggravation of damages, where it did not appear that the defendant was acquainted with such previous habit. \textit{Goodenough v. McGeorge}, 44 Id., 670.

The recovery of exemplary damages, in actions of this character, is not limited to cases where the injury complained of is in the nature of a tort, but may be allowed when no breach of the peace has resulted from the alleged sale of the liquors. \textit{Id.}

In an action by the wife for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, a verdict for exemplary damages is sustained by evidence showing that the defendant sold such liquors to plaintiff’s husband when he was intoxicated, and when he was known to the defendant to be in the habit of becoming intoxicated. \textit{Watts v. Ewen}, 50 Id., 34.

In an action by a wife for damages for injury to her means of support by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, evidence of the number and ages of her children is not admissible to affect the damages. \textit{Huggins v. Kavanagh}, 52 Id., 365.

Where it is sought to recover for a series of sales a defendant can only be held liable for injuries to which he contributed and in no case charging the jury that if they were unable to separate the damages to which the defendant contributed from those which he did not, he would be liable for the whole amount of injury was held erroneous. \textit{Id. Ennis v. Shirley}, 47 Id., 552.

Under sections 1557 and 1558 a joint action for injury to the wife from the sale of liquors to her husband, and to charge the premises on which the liquors were sold with the lien of the judgment, may be maintained against the seller and owner of the property. \textit{Loan v. Heiney & Etzell}, 53 Id., 89.

Such an action is triable at law against both defendants, and either party is entitled to a jury; the lien following as a matter of law upon the finding of facts requisite under the statute in favor of the plaintiff. \textit{Id.}

The fact that the wife recovered damages for injury to her means of support, by the sale of intoxicating liquors, cannot be pleaded in mitigation in another action for the same cause against other parties. The fact may be introduced in evidence, not in mitigation, but to show more accurately the damages for which the defendant was liable. \textit{Ennis v. Shirley et al.}, 47 Id., 552; \textit{Engleken v. Webber et al.}, 55 Id., 568.

In an action by a wife to recover damages for injuries caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, evidence that the husband when intoxicated used abusive language toward his family is not admissible, it not being shown that the plaintiff’s health was affected thereby; following \textit{Callaway v. Laydon}, 47 Id., 456; \textit{Welch v. Jugenheimer}, 56 Id., 10. So, also, evidence 36 of the number and ages of the plaintiff's children is also inadmissible to affect the damage in such action. Id.

In an action by a woman for damages caused by the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, where the owner of the saloon building was not made a party, and it was not sought to create a lien upon the building for the damages, a description of the saloon property in the petition was held to be mere surplusage, and that plaintiff was not limited to proof of damages caused by sales made in the building so described. Gustafson v. Wind, 62 Id., 231. And under the facts of this case, it was held, that evidence of sales made more than two years prior to the bringing of the action was properly admitted as rebutting testimony. Id.

It was held that no action could be maintained for damages caused by the sale of wine or beer, unless sold contrary to the provisions of section 1539 of the code. Myers v. Connery et al., 55 Id., 166.

But now under section 1539 of the code, wine and beer are included in the terms intoxicating liquors in section 1557, for the sale of which a right of action is thereby given. Javett v. Wanshure, 43 Id., 574; Worley v. Spurgeon, 35 Id., 465.

Plaintiff's action was based upon the wrongful sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband during six months previous to the action, whereby she was injured in her person, property and means of support. Held, that evidence of personal injuries inflicted upon her by her husband, as the result of his intoxication, more than six months prior to the commencement of the action was not relevant to the issue. Applegate v. Winbrenner, 67 Id., 255.

In an action by the wife for damages for injury to her husband by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, it was held, error to instruct the jury that the husband a previous habit of becoming intoxicated should be considered in aggravation of damages, where it did not appear that the defendant was acquainted with such previous habit. Goodenough v. McFrege, 44 Id., 670.

The allowance of exemplary damages lies in the discretion of the jury, and it is not within the province of the court to instruct that any fact entitles the plaintiff to such damages. Id.

The recovery of exemplary damages, in actions of this character, is not limited to cases where the injury complained of is in the nature of a tort, but may be allowed when no breach of the peace has resulted from the alleged sale of the liquors. Id.

In an action by the wife for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, a verdict for exemplary damages is sustained by evidence showing that the defendant sold such liquors to plaintiff's husband when he was intoxicated, and when he was known to the defendant to be in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Weitz v. Ewens, 50 Id., 34.

In an action by a wife to recover damages for injuries caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, evidence that the husband when intoxicated used abusive language toward his family is not admissible, it not being shown that the plaintiff's health was affected thereby; following Callamay v. Laydon, 47 Id., 456. Welch v. Jugenheim, 56 Id., 10. So, also, evidence of the number and ages of the plaintiff's children is also inadmissible to affect the damage in such action. Id.

Under this section, a wife who is injured in her means of support by the unlawful sale to her husband of intoxicating liquors, causing his intoxication, is entitled to recover, besides her actual damages, exemplary damages, the amount thereof, but not the right to recover, being left to the discretion of the jury, under proper instructions by the court. Fox v. Wunderlich, 64 Id., 187.

Evidence that she was supported by her own labor and by the county is material and admissible. Id.

The allegations of a petition in an action for damages for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors to plaintiff's husband were considered and held sufficient against the lessor's motion in arrest of judgment in Myers v. Kirt, 64 Id., 27.

Where the wife sues for damages on account of being deprived of her means of support through the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, evidence that she was supported by her own labor and by the county is material. Fox v. Wunderlich, Id., 187.

In an action under this section a married woman may not only recover actual damages for injuries to her means of support, but may also recover exemplary damages. Id.

Whoever, by the wrongful sale of intoxicating liquors, contributes to the formation of habits of intoxication, is liable only for the damages caused by his own wrongful act. Flint v. Gauer, 66 Id., 696; following Richmond v. Schickler, 57 Id., 498; Emes v. Shirley, 47 Id., 553; and Engleby v. Webber, 55 Id., 558.

In an action for damages against one who wrongfully sold intoxicating liquors to the plaintiff's husband, which resulted in his intoxication and death, wherein it was shown that the plaintiff was accustomed to let her husband have portions of his wages previously deposited with her, when she had reason to believe that he would purchase liquors with the money and become intoxicated, held, that it was properly left to the jury to determine from all the circumstances, as shown by the evidence, whether the plaintiff thus voluntarily contributed to the injury, with an instruction that if she did, she could not recover. Huff v. Altman, 69 Id., 71.
In an action for damages sustained by reason of the intoxication of plaintiff's husband by liquor sold to him by defendants, the evidence showed that the husband had previously been a drunkard, and had had delirium tremens, but had made some attempts to reform. The court instructed the jury, in substance, that if defendants contributed to the intoxication, then they were liable, even though the intoxication had become habitual. Held correct. Cox v. Needham et al., 34 N. W. R., 492. See also Arnold v. Barklow, id., 807.

Sec. 1558. (As substituted by ch. 66, laws 21st g. a.) [Personal and real property subject to costs and fines.]—[For all fines and costs assessed, or judgments rendered, of any kind, against any person for any violation of the provisions of this chapter, or costs paid by the county on account of such violations, the personal and real property, except the homestead and the personal property of such person which is exempt from execution, as well as the premises and property, personal or real, occupied and used for the purpose, with the knowledge of the owner thereof or his agent by the person manufacturing or selling, or keeping with intent to sell, intoxicating liquors contrary to law, shall be liable; and all such fines, costs and judgments shall be a lien on such real estate until paid. And where any person is required by section fifteen hundred and twenty-eight (1528) and fifteen hundred and twenty-nine (1529) of this chapter to give bond with sureties, the principal and sureties on such bond, shall be jointly and severally liable for all civil damages, costs and judgments that may be adjudged against the principal in any civil action authorized to be brought against him for any violation of the provisions of this chapter; costs paid by any county for the prosecution or on account of any violation of the law prohibiting the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, that would be a lien on the property under the foregoing provisions and including costs paid in seizure and condemnation proceedings, may be recovered by such county, by the enforcement of such lien by execution, or by action against the owner to subject the property to sale for the payment thereof. And evidence of the general reputation of the place shall be admissible on the question of knowledge and written notice given him or his agent by any citizen of the county shall be sufficient to charge the owner with knowledge under the provisions of this section.]

Under this section the lien of a judgment for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors, in an action under section 1557, does not take priority over the lien of a mortgage executed before the judgment was rendered. Goodenough v. McCord & Phillips, 44 Iowa, 659.

A defendant, in an action to charge his property under this section, who, through ignorance of his homestead rights, neglects to assert them in his defense, cannot afterward maintain an action to prevent the enforcement of the lien established thereon. Collins v. Chantland, et al., 48 Id., 241.

In order to charge the premises with the lien of a judgment for damages resulting from the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors thereon, it must be shown that the owner of the premises had knowledge of such unlawful use of the same, and also that he consented thereto. Myers v. Kirt, 57 Id., 431. But the consent of the owner need not be alleged in the petition of the plaintiff in an action under this section. Judge v. Flournoy, 37 N. W. R., 330; Same v. O'Conor, Id., 131.

Under section 12 of chapter 66, laws of 1886, which provides that the premises and property occupied and used for the purpose of illegally selling intoxicating liquors with the knowledge of the owner shall be liable for any judgment rendered on account of such sale, a petition to charge such property, in an action by the wife to recover damages for injuries to her support, caused by selling her husband intoxicating liquors, need not allege that such sale was made with the consent of the owner. Judge v. Flournoy et al., 37 N. W. R., 130; Same v. O'Conor, Id., 131.

It is not necessary, however, to show the consent of the owner by any positive and affirmative act, but it may be inferred from circumstances, and from knowledge of the illegal sales under such conditions as properly call forth a protest, and a failure to make any objection. Loan v. Etzel, 62 Iowa, 428; see, also Putney v. O'Brien, 53 Id., 117.

The right to make a judgment a lien, rests in the exercise of the police power and not in the right of eminent domain. The property is made liable only after it was established in a competent court by a legal jury that it is used for the illegal purpose with the knowledge or consent of the owner. This section does not, therefore, authorize the taking of the property without trial. It is not an ex post facto law, nor does it impair vested rights. Polk County v. Heird, 37 Id., 361.

The lien attaches only on the rendition of the judgment, and is subject to that of a mortgage previously executed. Goodenough v. McCoid, 44 Id., 659.
OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS. [Title XI.

The court should specifically ascertain and fix the property on which the lien should attach. Engleken v. Webber, 5 Id., 358.

To render the property subject to the lien, both knowledge and assent on the part of the owner, of the unlawful selling, must be shown. Cobleigh v. McBride, 45 Id., 116; Myer v. Kirt, 57 Id., 421.

She may sue the seller alone, and by subsequent action enforces the judgment against the property. Or may join the seller and owner in the same action. See La France v. Krayon, 42 Id., 148; Loan v. Hiney, 53 Id., 89; Putney v. O'Brien, 53 Id., 117; O'Brien v. Putney, 55 Id., 292.

Under this section the lien of a judgment for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors, in an action under this section, does not take priority over the lien of a mortgage executed before the judgment was rendered. Goodenough v. McCoid & Phillips, 44 Id., 678.

A defendant, who, in an action under this section, through ignorance of his homestead rights, neglects to assert them in his defense, cannot afterwards maintain an action to prevent the enforcement of the lien established thereon. Collins v. Chautland, 45 Id., 241.

An action under this section is barred by the statute of limitations (code, § 2529.) in two years. The cause of the action is the selling of the liquor, and the personal injury is that done to the one intoxicated, although the right of action is given to the wife or other persons as provided. Emmert v. Grill, 39 Id., 690.

Before premises used for the purpose of selling intoxicating liquors can be subjected to sale for the satisfaction of a fine and judgment under this section, it must be shown that the owner not only had knowledge of and consented to the sales complained of, but also that he had knowledge of the particular facts which made said sales unlawful. Accordingly, where it was shown that the owner of the premises knew of and consented to the sale of beer upon the premises to the plaintiff's husband, who was in the habit of becoming intoxicated, held, that this alone was not sufficient to render the premises liable, but that it was necessary to show, further, that the owner knew that the plaintiff's husband was in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Myer v. Kirt, 64 Id., 58.

Where plaintiff had obtained judgment against one W. for wrongfully selling intoxicating liquors to her husband, upon property leased of defendant G., and in this action she seeks to have her said judgment established and enforced as a lien on the leased property under the provisions of this section. To prove the amount for which she should have a lien, the plaintiff introduces against the objection of the defendant the record of the judgment, held, that the record was not admissible as against G., who was not a party thereto, as to the amount to which his property ought to be subjected. Buckham v. Graupe et al., 65 Id., 335.

In such cases the property owner should be made a party in the original action, so as to make the judgment a lien on his property. Id.

In an action by a wife for damages on account of unlawful sales of liquors to her husband, and for a lien against the saloon property, the original petition asked a lien, but possibly did not state all the facts necessary to establish it. More than two years after the alleged sales, plaintiff amended her petition by alleging that the owner of the building had notice of and consented to the unlawful sales. Held, that the original petition was, at all events, sufficient to prevent the running of the statute of limitations against the claim for a lien. Myers v. Kirt, 68 Id., 124.

In such case a purchaser of the property pending the action takes it subject to the plaintiff's right to a lien, as finally established. Id.

The lessor of a building used for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, becomes an aider and abettor in the violation of the law, and he is a proper party to a proceeding to enjoin the unlawful traffic as a nuisance. Id.

After verdict against a defendant for damages for wrongful sale of intoxicating liquors to the plaintiff's husband, an affidavit was filed, showing that the premises in which the liquors were sold were the property of the defendants. Held, that such affidavit was not competent evidence in the case, and that a decree based thereon making the judgment a lien upon the premises was erroneous. Plant v. Gauer, 66 Id., 696.

Where it is alleged, and admitted by demurrer, that the unlawful sale of liquors is conducted in a building with permission of the owner thereof, this is equivalent to saying that it is done with his knowledge and consent, and a temporary injunction should issue to restrain him from permitting the use of his building for such a purpose; but at that stage of the proceeding a temporary injunction against the premises would be without authority of law. Gray v. Stienes, 69 Id., 124.

Under this section, declaring fines, costs and judgments against any person for unlawful sales of liquors, a lien on all property used or occupied for such purposes with the owner's knowledge, no lien attaches until the fines and costs are asseased or the judgment rendered; and the sale by the owner of property alleged to have been so occupied, pending proceedings for such unlawful sales, should not be enjoined. Bonesteel v. Downs, 35 N. W. R., 524.

Where a house and lot owned by the wife, was occupied by the family as a homestead, but the front room of the house was used by the husband as a saloon, held, that under this section of the statute the part used for a saloon was subject to execution for the satisfaction of a judgment.
against the husband for damages caused by the unlawful sale by him of liquors in such room. Arnold v. Gotshall, 71 Iowa, 572.

SEC. 1559. [Penalty for making false statement to person authorized to sell.]—If any one purchasing intoxicating liquors of a person authorized to sell, shall make to such person any false statement regarding the use to which such liquor is intended by the purchaser to be applied, such person so obtaining such liquor shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine of ten dollars, together with costs of prosecution, or shall stand committed until the same is paid. For the second offense he shall pay a fine of twenty dollars and costs of prosecution, and be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten nor more than thirty days.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS ON ELECTION DAY.

An Act to prohibit the furnishing, or giving, or offering to give, intoxicating liquors, including ale, wine and beer, to voters at or within one mile of the polls on election day.

SECTION 1. [Unlawful to give or offer any intoxicating liquors within one mile of where an election is held.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That it shall be unlawful for any person to furnish or give any intoxicating liquors, including ale, wine and beer, to voters at or within one mile of the polls, during the day upon which any election is held in this state, prior to the closing of the polls.

SEC. 2. [Penalty for violating the provisions of this act.]—Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, nor less than five dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, and in case of fine he shall stand committed until the same be paid. Approved March 22, 1880.

RELATING TO THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

An Act to amend chapter 6, title XI of the code, relating to intoxicating liquors and to provide additional penalties for violations of the provisions of said chapter and the amendments thereto.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: (This section repeals section 1525 of the code, and enacts a substitute in lieu thereof which will be found in its proper place herein.)

SEC. 2. (This section provides a slight amendment of section 1526 of the code which has been added thereto, which see.)

SEC. 14. (This section repeals and enacts a substitute for section 1553 of the code which has been repealed and substituted by chapter 66 of the laws of 1886, and inserted herein as thus amended, which see, ante.)
SEC. 15. [Club houses prohibited.]—Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, keep or maintain, by himself, or by associating or combining with others, or who shall in any manner aid, assist, or abet, in keeping or maintaining any club room or other place in which intoxicating liquors are received or kept for the purpose of use, gift, barter or sale, or for distribution or division among the members of any club or association by any means whatever, and every person who shall use, barter, sell or give away, or assist or abet another in bartering, selling or giving away any intoxicating liquors as received or kept, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months.
SEC. 16. [Inconsistent statutes repealed: proviso.]—All statutes and acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter as hereby amended are hereby repealed; provided, however, that this repeal shall not affect any act done, any right accruing or which has accrued or been established, nor any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause before the time such repeal takes effect, and no offense committed, nor penalty or forfeiture incurred, and no suit or prosecution pending when the repeal takes effect, for an offense committed, or for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture incurred, shall be affected by this repeal, and the provisions of section 1555, as amended and substituted by the act of this general assembly, approved March 4, 1884, shall apply and have relation to the provisions of this code as herein amended, and all penalties as herein provided shall be held to apply to intoxicating liquors as defined in said act March 4, 1884.

Ever since the year 1855, in this state, the building or place where prohibited liquors have been kept or sold has been declared by law a nuisance, and the statute provided for its abatement. Chapter 143 of the laws of 1884, in providing that such nuisances may be restrained by injunction, merely provides an additional remedy for the enforcement of the law, and before a defendant in such an action can claim that he is about to be deprived of his property without compensation, in violation of the constitution of the United States, must show that such property was owned by him, or those under whom he claims, and that it was used for the sale of intoxicating liquors prior to the enactment of the statute of 1855. McLane v. Leicht, 69 Iowa, 401.

In Martin v. Blattner et al., 68 Id., 286, it was adjudged that chapter 143, laws of 1884, was not repugnant to section 29, of article 3, of the constitution, which provides that "every act shall embrace but one subject, and matters properly connected therewith, which subject shall be expressed in the title," nor is it in conflict with section 6, of article 1, which declares that "all laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation." It was further held in the same case, that the act was not repugnant to section 23, of article 1, which forbids involuntary servitude except for the punishment of crime, in that the statute provides for the imprisonment of persons guilty of contempt in violating an injunction; nor are the fines provided by said chapter "excessive" within the meaning of section 17, of article 1, of the constitution; nor is said chapter in conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, on the ground that it abridges the privileges of the citizens of the United States.

Section 4509 of the code, is mandatory in its requirement that when a fine is imposed, and the court orders the defendant to be committed until it is paid, it must specify the extent of the imprisonment, which must not exceed one day for every three and one-third dollars of the fine; and in consideration of said section in connection with other statutes in pari materia, held that the same rule applies where persons are convicted for violation of the prohibitory liquor law under sections 10 and 11 of chapter 143, of the laws of 1884. Ex parte Finchel, 69 Id., 393.

Where one has been fined for violating an injunction issued under the prohibitory liquor law, he may, upon default in paying the fine, be imprisoned under the general provisions of section 4509 of the code, and under section 12 of chapter 143, of the laws of 1884, such person cannot avail himself of the benefits of section 4611 of the code, which permits a poor person, after being imprisoned thirty days for failure to pay a fine in a criminal case, to be released upon giving his note for the amount of the fine, together with a written schedule of his property. Hanks v. Workman, 69 Id., 600.

Chapter 143 of laws of 1884, repeals section 8 of chapter 75, of laws of 1880, and enacts a general prohibitory law, without exception in favor of pharmacists; and the result is that licensed pharmacists may not, under existing legislation (December 1885) sell intoxicating liquors without a permit. The State v. Bussell et al., 67 Id., 616.

A person who holds a permit to manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors, and who fails to make returns to the county auditor on the last Saturday of each month, or within five days thereafter, renders himself and bondsmen liable for the penalty provided in this section of the code, as amended by section 8 of chapter 143, laws of 1884. The State, ex rel. Pearson, v. McEntee et al., 53 Id., 331.

While a licensed pharmacist is required by sections 1537 and 1538 to make a report on or before the tenth day of each month of sales of intoxicating liquors made during the previous month, and is forbidden to sell the liquors at a greater profit than thirty-three and one-third per cent, yet the violation of these provisions will not make him liable as for an unlawful sale of such liquors. State v. Von Haltschuherr, 34 N. W. R., 323.

RELIATING TO THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

An Act amendatory of chapter 143 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, relating to intoxicating liquors, and providing for the more effectual suppression of the illegal sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors and abatement of nuisances.

Section 1. [Chapter 143, acts 20th g. a., amended.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That actions to enjoin nuisances as authorized by section 12, of chapter 143, of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, may be brought in the name of the state of Iowa, by the district or county attorney of the proper county; and it shall be the duty of such district or county attorney where any such nuisance exists, to institute and prosecute such action for the abatement thereof; provided, however, if after notice or information given him of such nuisance, said district or county attorney refuse or neglect to bring suit, and prosecute the same with reasonable diligence, then any citizen residing in the county may institute and prosecute such action in the name of the state for the abatement of such nuisance. But nothing in this section shall prevent any citizen of a county from instituting and maintaining in his own name an action under said section 12, of said chapter 143, and to all of such actions, whether brought under the provisions of said section 12 of said chapter 143 or of this act, the provisions contained in this act shall apply. All such actions shall be triable at the first term of court, after due and timely notice of the commencement thereof has been given. Evidence of the general reputation of the place designated in the petition shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of such nuisance, and if successful in the action the plaintiff shall be entitled to an attorney's fee of not less than twenty-five dollars, to be taxed and collected as costs against the defendant.

SEC. 2. [Injunction shall be granted.]—In any such action the court, if in session, or the judge thereof in vacation, shall upon the demand of the attorney or party charged with the management of the cause for the plaintiff, grant a temporary injunction without bond, if it be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court or judge, by evidence in the form of affidavits or otherwise as the court or judge may order, that such nuisance actually exists, or is being maintained, and when the cause is continued at the instance of the defendant, a temporary injunction shall be issued as a matter of course without bond.

SEC. 3. [For violation of injunction.]—In case of the violation of any injunction granted in such action, the court, or in vacation the judge thereof, shall have power to try summarily and punish the party or parties guilty thereof, as required by section 12 of chapter 143, of the acts of the twentieth general assembly; provided, that if the penalty inflicted for such contempt, be imprisonment alone, it shall not be for less than three nor more than six months. The evidence in such proceeding or trial for contempt, may be in the form of affidavits, or on the demand of either party the witnesses shall be brought before the court for examination, and the provisions of section 3404 of the code shall not be held to apply to persons charged with violating injunctions issued under this act and the act to which this is amendatory.

Where the selling of intoxicating liquors has been enjoined, proceedings for contempt in disobeying the injunction may be entitled the same as the action in which the injunction was issued. Menderscheid v. District Court, 69 Iowa, 240.

Section 3 of chapter 66, laws of 1886, expressly authorizes the reception of oral evidence in cases of contempt for violating an injunction against illegal sale of intoxicating liquors. Goetz v. Stusman, Judge, 36 N. W. R., 644.

Where a judge of the district court in vacation, on information filed, fined and committed a person for contempt under section 3 of chapter 66, laws of 1886, it was held the proceeding authorized by the statute was not in conflict with section 1 of article 5 of the state constitution; that when a statute authorizes the doing of a judicial act in vacation, such act has the effect of an act done by a court, and the commitment was valid. McLane v. Granger, Judge, 37 N. W. R., 123.

SEC. 4. [Penalty upon conviction.]—Whoever is convicted of keeping a nuisance as provided in section 12, of chapter 143, acts of the twentieth general assembly, shall pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than three hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution, and the cost shall include a reasonable attorney fee to be assessed by the court, and stand committed until the fine and costs are paid, and the provisions of chapter 47, title 25, of the code, shall not be applicable to persons committed under this section.

SEC. 5. [Nuisance abated: how.]—If the existence of the nuisance be established either in criminal or equitable action, it shall be abated under the judgment and order of the court, by seizing and destroying the liquor therein, and removing from the building, erection or place, all fixtures, furniture, vessels, and all moveable property, used in or about the premises, in carrying on the unlawful business, and selling the same in a manner provided for sale of chattels under execution, and by securely closing the said building, erection, or place, as against the use or occupation of the same for saloon purposes, and keeping the same securely closed for the period of one year (unless sooner released as hereinafter provided) and any person breaking open said building, erection, or place, or using the premises so ordered to be closed, shall be punished as for contempt as above provided in case of the violation of injunctions, provided, however, that when leasehold premises are adjudged to be a nuisance, the owner thereof shall have the right to terminate the lease by giving three days' notice thereof, in writing, to the tenant, and when this is done the premises shall be turned over to the owner upon the order of the court or judge. But the release of the property shall be upon condition that the nuisance shall not be continued, and the return of the property shall not release any lien upon said property occasioned by any prosecution of the tenant.

Sec. 6. [Proceeds, how applied.]—The proceeds of the sale of the personal property as provided in the preceding section, shall be applied, first: in payment of the costs of the action and abatement; secondly, to the satisfaction of any fine and costs adjudged against the proprietor of the premises and keepers of said nuisance, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the defendant.

Sec. 7. [Owner may pay costs, etc., and abate nuisance.]—If the owner appear and pay all costs of the proceedings and file a bond with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or in vacation by the clerk, auditor and treasurer of the county, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein within the period of one year thereafter, the court, or in vacation the judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises taken and closed under the order of abatement, to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement cancelled as far as the same may relate to said property, and if the proceeding be an action in equity, and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated; provided, however, that the release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment lien or penalty, or liability to which it may be subject under any other statute or law.

Sec. 8. [Presumption of possession.]—In all actions, prosecutions and proceedings under the laws of this state prohibiting the illegal manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, the finding of such liquors, except in the possession, of one legally authorized to sell the same or except in a private dwelling house, which does not include, or is not used in connection with a tavern, public eating house, restaurant, grocery or other place of public resort, shall be presumptive evidence that such liquors were kept for illegal sale; and proof of actual sale shall be presumptive evidence of illegal sale.

Sec. 9. [Penalty for re-engaging in keeping nuisance.]—Any person who shall have been convicted of keeping a nuisance under the laws prohibiting the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, or who shall have been enjoined under the provisions of this act or the act to which this is amendatory, and shall again directly or indirectly engage in such unlawful business, of keeping a nuisance or selling such liquors in violation of law, in the same or in any other county in this state, shall upon conviction thereof be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three months or more than one year. But no equitable proceeding, order or judgment shall be construed as a conviction under the provisions of this section.

(Sec. 10 repeals section 1353 of the code and enacts a substitute therefor, which is found in its proper place.)

Sec. 11. [Penalty for false statements to procure shipments.]—If any person for the purpose of procuring the shipment, transportation, or conveyance of any intoxicating liquors from point to point, or from one place to another, within this state, shall make to any company, corporation or common carrier, or to any agent of such company, corporation or common carrier, or other person, any false statements as to the character or contents of any box, barrel, or other vessel or package containing such liquors, or shall refuse to give correct and truthful information as to the contents of any such box, barrel, or other vessel or package so sought to be transported or conveyed; or shall falsely mark, brand or label such box, barrel, or other vessel or package, in order to conceal the fact that the same contains intoxicating liquors for the purpose aforesaid; or shall by any device or concealment procure or attempt to procure the conveyance or transportation of such liquors as herein prohibited, he shall upon conviction be fined for each offense one hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution, and the costs shall include a reasonable attorney fee, to be assessed by the court, which shall be paid into the county fund, and be committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. Any peace officer of the county, under process or warrant to him directed, shall have the right to open any box, barrel, or other vessel or package, for examination, if he has reasonable ground for believing that it contains intoxicating liquors, either before or while the same is being so transported or conveyed.

(Sec. 12 repeals section 1558 of the code and enacts a substitute therefor, which is found in its proper place.

SEC. 13. [Acts inconsistent, repealed.]—All acts and parts of acts, inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed; provided, however, that this repeal shall not affect any act done, or right accruing or accrued, or which has been established, nor any action or proceeding commenced before the time this repeal takes effect, nor any offense committed, or penalty or forfeiture incurred; and any suit or proceeding pending when the repeal takes effect, or thereafter brought, for any offense committed, or for recovery of a forfeiture or penalty incurred prior thereto, shall be maintained and prosecuted under the law, as in force prior to the taking effect of this act.

Section 12 of ch. 143 of the laws of 1884 (see code, section 1543), provides for enjoining and abatement of nuisances kept in violation of the prohibitory liquor law, but it does not expressly provide how the nuisance shall be abated. Chapter 66, laws of 1886, expressly defines the method of such abatement, "by seizing and destroying the liquor therein," etc. Held, that this method of abatement was properly adjudged to be employed in cases which were pending when the statute was enacted, but which were not finally determined until after that time;—the objection that the law thus becomes ex post facto in its operation, in violation of the constitution, being of no force, since actions of this character are not criminal in their nature, and the acts done in abating nuisances of this character are not done in the punishment of crimes. McLane v. Bonn et al., and two other causes, 70 Iowa, 752.

KELATING TO SALE OE INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

An Act in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors.

SECTION 1. [Possession of revenue liquor tax receipt: evidence of violation.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The fact that any person engaged in any kind of business, has or keeps posted, in or about his place of business, a receipt, or stamp, showing payment of the special tax, levied under the laws of the United States, upon the business of selling distilled, malt or fermented liquors, or shall have paid such special tax for the sale of distilled malt or fermented liquors in the state of Iowa, shall be evidence that said person or persons so owning or controlling such receipts or stamps, or having paid such special tax, are engaged in keeping, and selling intoxicating liquors contrary to the provisions of chapter 143, of the laws of the twentieth general assembly of the state of Iowa, and also prima facie evidence that any and all intoxicating liquors found in the possession or under the control of any person so holding such receipts or stamp or having paid such special tax, are kept for sale in violation of law; and on conviction shall be subject to the penalties provided for in said chapter 143; Provided, however, that this act shall not apply to persons lawfully authorized to keep for sale and to sell intoxicating liquors for such purposes as are authorized by law.

Approved April 9, 1886.
CHAP. 6.]

OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

AMENDMENTS OF PROHIBITORY LAW.

An Act supplemental to chapter 143, of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, and chapter 66 of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors and abatement of nuisances.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: In the abatement of a nuisance as provided in section 5, of chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, the officer shall be entitled to the same fees for removing and selling the movable property that he would be for levying on and selling like property on execution, and for closing and keeping closed, the building, erection or place, as in said section required, he shall receive such reasonable fees as the court may allow. All such fees and costs to be paid out of the proceeds of the property sold, so far as the same may be available.

SEC. 2. [Demand for advance fee.]—In any action brought by a citizen of the county, as provided by section 1, chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, no officer or witness shall be entitled to demand his fees for services or attendance in advance. And the costs, in case of failure of the prosecution, or inability to collect the same from the defendant, shall be paid in the same manner as provided by law for the payment of fees in the case of criminal prosecutions. But nothing herein shall prevent the court trying such action from taxing the costs to the party bringing the same, in case it appears that the action was brought maliciously and without probable cause.

SEC. 3. [Temporary injunction.]—In any action to restrain a nuisance brought under chapter 143, of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, or chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, the party entitled under section 2, of said chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, to demand a temporary injunction, shall be entitled, on such application for a temporary injunction, to prove the existence of such nuisance, by affidavits, depositions or testimony of witnesses examined orally in court, at his election, unless the court has by previous order or otherwise fixed the form and manner of evidence to be adduced; provided, however, that the plaintiff shall serve the defendant or his counsel with notice of such application, at least three days before such hearing.

SEC. 4. [Operation of injunction.]—In any action to enjoin a nuisance as authorized by section 12, of chapter 143, of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, and chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, the injunction granted shall be binding on the party or parties enjoined throughout the judicial district in which the action is brought. And any person enjoined in such action, who shall while such injunction remains in force, again engage in, or be in any manner concerned in the selling or keeping for sale, contrary to law, of any intoxicating liquor, anywhere within the jurisdiction of the court, he shall be deemed guilty of contempt of court and punished accordingly.

SEC. 5. [Violation of injunction.]—In all cases of proceedings against persons charged with contempt for violating any injunctions, either temporary or permanent, issued or decreed, under said chapter 143, acts of the twentieth general assembly, or chapter 66, acts of the twenty-first general assembly, or under this act, the court shall order that the attorney prosecuting or constructing such proceedings against the person so charged, shall be allowed ten per cent of the amount of the fine assessed against such person, if a fine be assessed against him, and the clerk of the court, when such fine is paid, shall pay over to such attorney the amount thus allowed him.
SEC. 6. (As amended by ch. 66, 21st g. a.) That section 1553, of the code as substituted and enacted in section 10 of chapter 66, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, be amended by striking out the words, "knowingly bring within this state for any other person or persons or corporation or shall knowingly," where they occur in said section, and insert in lieu of the words so stricken out, the word "shall," and that said section 1553 be and same is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following: Provided, however, that the defendant may show as a defense hereunder by preponderance of evidence that the character and circumstances of the shipment and its contents were unknown to him.

SEC. 7. [Shipped package properly labelled.]—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier or other person, to transport or convey by any means, from point to point or from one place to another within this state, any intoxicating liquor, unless the vessel or other package containing such liquors shall be plainly and correctly labelled or marked, showing the quantity and kind of liquor contained therein as well as the name of the party to whom it is to be delivered, and no person shall be authorized to receive or keep such liquors unless the same be marked or labelled as herein required. The violation of any provision of this section, by any common carrier or any agent, or employe of such carrier, or by any other person, shall be punished the same as provided in section 1553, as substituted and enacted in section 10, chapter 66, acts of twenty-first general assembly for the violation of the provisions of that section, and liquors conveyed or transported, or delivered without being marked or labelled as herein required, whether in the hands of the carrier or someone to whom it shall have been delivered, shall be subject to seizure and condemnation as liquor kept for illegal sale.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

An Act to provide for and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors for necessary purposes; and to make more efficient the laws for the suppression of intemperance; and to repeal sections 1524, 1526, 1527, 1528, 1529, 1530, 1531, 1532, 1533, 1534, 1535, 1536, 1537 and 1538 of the code of 1873, as amended by chapter 143, of the acts of the 20th general assembly, and all that part of section two (2), chapter eighty-three (83) acts of the 21st general assembly after the words "medicines and poisons" in the fifth line thereof; and to amend sections 1 and 4, chapter 76, acts of the 18th general assembly, and to provide penalties and proceedings for violations of the provisions thereof.

SECTION 1. [Manufacture and sale prohibited.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That after this act takes effect no person shall manufacture for sale, sell, keep for sale, give away, exchange, barter or dispense any intoxicating liquor, for any purpose whatever, otherwise than as provided in this act. Persons holding permits as herein provided shall be authorized to sell and dispense intoxicating liquors for pharmaceutical and medical purposes and alcohol for specified chemical purposes, and wine for sacramental purposes, but for no other purpose whatever; and all permits must be procured as hereinafter provided from the district court of the proper county at any term thereof after this act takes effect, and a permit to buy and sell intoxicating liquors when so procured shall continue in force for one year from date of its issue unless revoked according to law or until applicant for renewal is disposed of, if such application is made before the year expires. Provided, that renewals of permits may be annually granted upon written application by permit holders who show to the satisfaction of the court or judge that they have during the preceding year complied with the provisions of this act, and to execute a new bond as in this act required to be originally given, but parties may appear and resist renewals the same as in applications for permits.

Sec. 2. [Application for permit.]—Notice of an application for a permit or renewal thereof must be published for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper regularly published and printed in the English language and of general circulation in the city or town where the applicant proposes to keep and sell intoxicating liquors, or if there be no newspaper regularly published in such city or town, such publication shall be made in one of the official papers of the county, the last of which publications shall be not less than ten days nor more than twenty days before the first day of the term; and state the name of the applicant, the purpose of the application, the particular location or the place where the applicant proposes to keep and sell liquors, and that the petition provided for in the next section will be on file in the clerk's office at least ten day before the first day of the term, naming it, when the application will be made, and a copy thereof shall be served personally on the county attorney in the same manner and time as required for service of original notices in the district court.

Sec. 3. [Form of Application.]—Applications for permits shall be made by petition signed and sworn to by the applicant and filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the proper county at least ten days before the first day of the term, which petition shall state the applicant's name, place of residence, in what business he is then engaged, and in what business he has been engaged for two years previous to filing petition; the place, particularly describing it, where the business of buying and selling liquors is to be conducted; that he is a citizen of the United States and of the state of Iowa; that he is a registered pharmacist, and now is and for the last six months has been lawfully conducting a pharmacy in the township or town wherein he proposes to sell intoxicating liquors under the permit applied for, and as the proprietor of such pharmacy, that he has not been adjudged guilty of violating the law relating to intoxicating liquors within the last two years next preceding his application; and is not the keeper of a hotel, eating house, saloon, restaurant or place of public amusement; that he is not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and has not within the last two years next preceding his application been directly or indirectly engaged, employed or interested in the unlawful manufacture, sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors, and that he desires a permit to purchase, keep and sell such liquors for lawful purposes only.

Sec. 4. [Applicant to give bond.]—This permit of renewal thereof shall issue only on condition that the applicant shall execute to the state of Iowa a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk of the court, conditioned that he will well and truly observe and obey the laws of Iowa now or hereafter in force in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors; that he will pay all fines, penalties, damages and costs that may be assessed or recovered against him for a violation of such laws during the term for which said permit or renewal thereof is granted.

Said bond shall be for the use and benefit of any person or persons who may be injured or damaged by reason of any violation of the law relative to intoxicating liquors purchased, sold or given away during the term for which said permit or renewal thereof is granted. The said bond shall be deposited with the county auditor, and suit shall be brought thereon at any time by the county attorney, or any person for whose benefit the same is given, and in case the conditions thereof or any of them shall be violated, the principal and sureties therein shall also be jointly and severally liable for all civil damages, costs and judgments that may be obtained against the principal in any civil action brought by a wife, child, parent, guardian, employer, or other person, under the provisions of sections fifteen hundred and fifty-six, fifteen hundred and fifty-seven and fifteen hundred and fifty-eight of the code of Iowa, as the same is amended and now in force, and section twelve, chapter sixty-six, acts of the twenty-first general assembly of the state of Iowa.

All other money collected for breaches of such bond shall go to the school fund of the county.

Said bond shall be approved by the clerk of the district court under the rules and laws applicable to the approval of official bonds.

SEC. 5. [Application to be filed with clerk, supported by petition of freeholders.]—At least ten days before the first day of the term the applicant shall file with the clerk in support of the application, a petition signed by one-third of the freehold voters of the township, incorporated town, city or ward in which the permit is to be used, and each person aforesaid shall sign said petition by his own true name and signature, and state that each, before signing the same, has read said petition and understands the contents and meaning thereof, and is well and personally acquainted with the applicant, that the applicant is a resident of the county, is over twenty-one years of age, is of good moral character, reputed to be law abiding, and has not been found guilty of violating the laws relating to intoxicating liquors in any proceeding at law or in equity, within the last two years next preceding the date of his application as far as the petitioner has knowledge or information, and is not in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage; and that the permit prayed for is necessary for the convenience and accommodation of the people of said locality and that they believe that the applicant is worthy of confidence and will observe the laws governing permitted persons in conducting the dispensation of liquors. On or before 9 o'clock A.M. of the first day of the term any resident of the county may file a remonstrance against granting the permit applied for, which must show the residence, sex and age of the person signing it and the grounds of objection to granting the permit.

SEC. 6. [Notice to be given of petition filed, etc.]—No application for a permit or renewal thereof shall be considered or acted upon by the court until the requisite notice has been given and petitions filed as provided by this act, and each is in form and substance such as required. On the first day of the term, having ascertained that the application is properly presented, the court shall proceed to hear the application, unless objection thereto be made, in which case the court shall appoint a day during the term, but not later, when the same shall be heard; and in doing so shall consider the convenience of the court, and the interested parties and their counsel so far as the state of the business and the necessities of the case will permit. If unavoidable causes prevent a hearing during the regular time allotted to the term, the same shall be heard and disposed of in vacation by the judge as soon as practicable thereafter.

The county attorney, or other counsel, or any citizen may in person or by counsel appear and resist the application, and whether resisted or objection be made or not the court shall not grant the permit until it shall first be made to appear by competent evidence that the applicant is possessed of the character and qualifications requisite, is worthy of confidence, and to receive the trust, and will be likely to execute the same with fidelity; and that the statements made in his application and the petition of residents are all and singular true, and considering the population of the locality and the reasonable necessities and convenience of the people, such permit is proper. If the application is resisted the court or judge shall hear controversy upon the petition, remonstrances and objections, and the evidence offered, and grant or refuse such permit, as the public good may require. If there be more than one permit applied for in the same locality, they shall all be heard at the same time, unless for good cause otherwise directed. and the court may grant or refuse any or all of the applications, as will best subserve the public interest.

SEC. 7. [When permit shall issue.]—If the application for the permit or renewal thereof is granted it shall not issue until the applicant shall make and subscribe an oath before the clerk, which shall be indorsed upon the bond to the effect and tenor following:

"I,———, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly perform all and singular the conditions of the within bond, and keep and perform the trust confided in me to purchase, keep and sell intoxicating liquors. I will not sell, give or furnish to any person any intoxicating liquors otherwise than as provided by law, and, especially, I will not sell or furnish any intoxicating liquors to any person who is not known to me personally, or duly identified; nor to any minor, intoxicated person or persons who are in the habit of becoming intoxicated; and I will make true, full and accurate returns of all certificates and requests made to or received by me as required by law; and said returns shall show every sale and delivery of such liquor, made by or for me during the month embraced therein, and the true signature to every request received and granted; and such returns shall show all the intoxicating liquors sold or delivered to any and every person as returned."

Upon taking said oath and filing bond as hereinbefore provided, the clerk shall issue to him a permit authorizing him to keep and sell intoxicating liquors as in this act provided; and every permit so granted shall specify the building, giving street and number or location in which intoxicating liquors may be sold by virtue of the same, and the length of time the same shall be in force, which in no case shall exceed twelve months.

SEC. 8. [Permits deemed trusts, etc.]—Permits granted under this act shall be deemed trusts reposed in the recipients thereof, not as a matter of right but of confidence, and may be revoked upon sufficient showing, by order of the court or judge thereof. Complaint may be presented at any time to the district court or one of the judges thereof, which shall be in writing and signed and sworn to by three citizens of the county in which the permit was granted, and a copy of such complaint shall, with a notice in writing of the time and place of hearing, be served on the accused, five days before the hearing, and if the complaint is sufficient, and the accused appear and deny the same, the court or judge shall proceed without delay, unless continued for cause, to hear and determine the controversy, but if continued or appealed at the instance of the permit holder, his permit to buy and sell liquors may, in the discretion of the court, be suspended pending the controversy. The complainant and accused may be heard in person or by counsel or both, and submit such proofs as may be ordered by the parties; and if it shall appear upon such hearing, that the accused has in any way abused the trust or so conducted the business under the permit as to acquire notoriety and public repute that liquors are sold by the accused or his employees in violation of law, or if it shall appear that any liquor has been sold or dispensed unlawfully or has been unlawfully obtained at said place from the holder of the permit or any employee assisting therein, or that he has in any proceeding, civil or criminal, since receiving his permit, been adjudged guilty of violating any of the provisions of this act or the acts for the suppression of intemperance, the court or judge shall by order revoke and set aside the permit; the papers and order in such case shall be immediately returned to and filed by the clerk of the court, if heard by the judge, and the order entered of record as if made in court, and if in this or any other proceeding, civil or criminal, it shall be adjudged by the court or judge that any registered pharmacist, proprietor or clerk has been guilty of violating this act or the act for the suppression of intemperance and amendments thereto, by unlawfully manufacturing, selling, giving away, or unlawfully keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquors, such adjudication may in the discretion of the commissioners of pharmacy work a forfeiture of his certificate of registration, and the commissioners of pharmacy shall, upon receipt of a transcript of a judgment or order authenticated by the clerk of the court showing a second and subsequent violation, cancel his registration.

It shall be the duty of the clerk to forward to the commissioners of pharmacy such transcripts without charge therefore as soon as practicable after final judgment or order.

Sec. 9. [Permits may be granted to regular pharmacists.]—Registered pharmacists who show themselves to be fit persons and who comply with all the requirements of this act may be granted permits, and in any township where there is a registered pharmacist conducting a pharmacy and no pharmacist obtains a permit, if found necessary the court may grant a permit to one discreet person in such township not a pharmacist, but having all other qualifications requisite under this act, upon like notice and proceedings as pertain to permitted pharmacists and subject to the same liabilities, duties, obligations and penalties.

Sec. 10. [Clerk of court to preserve all petitions, bonds, etc., relating to permits, and keep record books.]—The clerk of the court granting the permit shall preserve, as part of the record and files of his office, all petitions, bonds and other papers pertaining to the granting or revocation of permits, and keep suitable books in which bonds and permits shall be recorded. The books shall be furnished by the county like other public records. Whether said permit be granted or refused the applicant shall pay the costs incurred in the case, and when granted he shall make payment before any permit issue, except the court may tax the cost of any witnesses summoned by private persons, resisting said application, and the fees for serving such subpoenas to such persons when it is shown that such witnesses were summoned maliciously or without probable cause to believe their evidence material. A fee of one dollar and fifty cents shall be taxed for the filing of the petition and one dollar for entering the order of the court approving bond and granting said application, and witnesses shall be entitled to mileage and per diem as in other cases. And fees for serving notices and subpoenas shall be the same as in other cases in the district court.

Sec. 11. [Mode of purchasing liquors.]—When any person holding a permit in full force desires to purchase or procure any intoxicating liquors to be kept and sold under his permit, the county auditor shall, upon the written or printed application of the permit-holder, signed by him, specifying the kind and quantity of liquors desired by him, issue to such holder under seal of his office a certificate authorizing him to purchase and cause to be transported from the place of purchase to his place of business described in his permit, the kind and quantity of liquors mentioned in such certificate. Said certificate shall be dated as of its true date when issued and attached to the way-bill accompanying the shipment, and when so attached shall be authority for the common carrier in whose hands it may be, to transport and deliver the package or packages containing the liquors therein described and in packages therein designated, according to the direction of the certificate. Upon receipt of the liquors the certificate shall be returned to the auditor who issued the same and be cancelled, filed and preserved by him in his office. No certificate so issued authorizing the purchase and transportation of any intoxicating liquors shall be used more than once, or later than thirty days following its date; and such certificate shall be in the following form, to-wit:

"State of Iowa,

"[County,]"

"I hereby certify that [name], who is permitted under the laws of Iowa to buy and sell intoxicating liquors at [place], in said county of [name], is hereby authorized to purchase and ship to [place], the following described intoxicating liquors, to-wit: ........., provided such liquors are shipped in the following described packages, to-wit: .........

.........................., Auditor.”

Sec. 12. [Manner of selling.]—Before selling and delivering any intoxicating liquors to any person a request must be printed or written, dated of the true date, stating the age and residence of the signor, for whom and whose use the liquor is required, the amount and kind required, the actual purpose for which the request is made and for what use desired and his or her true name and residence, and where numbered by street and number if in a city, and that neither the applicant nor the person for whose use requested habitually uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and the request shall be signed by the applicant by his own true name and signature and attested by the permit-holder who receives and fills the request by his own true name and signature in his own hand writing.

[When sale refused.]—But the request shall be refused notwithstanding the statement made unless the permit holder has reason to believe said statement to be true, and in no case unless the permit holder filling it personally knows the person applying to be of good moral character, reliable and trustworthy, that he is not a minor, that he is not intoxicated, and that he is not in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage; or if the applicant is not so personally known to the permit holder before filling the order or delivering the liquor, he shall require identification and the statement of a reliable and trustworthy person of good character and habits, known personally to him, that the applicant is not a minor and is not in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and is worthy of credit as to the truthfulness of the statements in the application, and this statement shall be signed by the witness in his own true name and handwriting, stating his residence correctly. The requests shall be made upon blanks furnished by the county auditor in packages of one hundred each to the holders of the permits from time to time as the same shall be needed and shall be consecutively numbered by the auditor. The blanks shall be in two series, one for requests by persons known to the seller, and one for requests by unknown applicants, identified and vouched for by a known witness both on one sheet, and each request and identification shall, when used, be attested by the seller, and such attestation shall be conclusive evidence against the permit holder that the seller did fill the order and deliver the liquor as stated therein and that the sale was made with knowledge of the habits and character of the purchaser or witness. The blanks aforesaid shall be procured by the county auditor in uniform cheap books like blank checks, at the expense of the county, and furnished to the holders of permits by the county auditor at actual cost, and the proceeds be by said auditor paid into the county treasury, and the date of delivery shall be endorsed by the county auditor on each book and receipt taken therefor, and preserved in his office. The permit holder shall preserve the application in the original form and book except the filling of the blanks therein until returned to the county auditor. When return thereof is made if the book be full the county auditor shall endorse thereon the date of return and file, and preserve the same. If the book is not filled the auditor shall remove those filled, inclose the same in an envelope and endorse thereon the name of the permit holder, the date of return and number thereof, and file and preserve the same and redeliver the book, with endorsement of the date thereof, and statement of the number remaining therein, and so on until the book is filled and return thereof made. All unused or mutilated blanks shall be returned or accounted for before other blanks are issued to such permit holders.

Sec. 13. [Permit holder to report to county auditor.]—On or before the tenth day of each month each permit holder shall make full returns to the county auditor of all requests filled by him and his clerks during the preceding month and accompany the same with a written or printed oath duly taken and subscribed before the county auditor or notary public, which shall be in the following form, to-wit: "I , being duly sworn, on oath state that the requests for liquors herewith returned are all that were received and filled at my pharmacy (or place of business) under my permit during the month of . . . . . ., 15., that I have carefully preserved the same, and that they were filled up, signed and attested at the date shown thereon, as provided by law; that said requests were filled by delivering the quantity and kind of liquors required and that no liquors have been sold or dispensed under color of my permit during said month except as shown by the requests herewith returned, and that I have faithfully observed and complied with the conditions of my bond and oath taken by me thereon endorsed and with all the laws relating to my duties in the premises."Every permit holder shall keep strict account of all liquors purchased or procured by him in a book kept for that purpose, which shall be subject at all times to the inspection of the commissioners of pharmacy and the county attorney, any grand juror or peace officer of the county, and such book shall show of whom such liquors were purchased or procured, the amount and kind of liquors purchased or procured, the date of receipt and amount sold and amount used in compounding medicines, tinctures and extracts, amount on hand of each kind for each month; such book shall be produced by the party keeping the same, to be used as evidence on the trial of any prosecution against him or against liquors alleged to have been seized from him or his house, on notice duly served that the same will be required as evidence; and at the same time he returns requests to the county auditor he shall file a statement of such account with such auditor, except that the items of sales need not be embraced therein, but the aggregate amount of each kind shall be, and such statement shall be verified before the county auditor or a notary public. All forms necessary to carry out the provisions of this act not otherwise provided for shall be as may be provided by the commissioners of pharmacy.

Sec. 14. [Penalty on holders of permits.]—Every permit holder or his clerk under this act shall be subject to all the penalties, forfeitures and judgments, and may be prosecuted by all the proceedings and actions, criminal and civil, and whether at law or in equity provided for or authorized by the laws now or hereafter in force for any violation of this act, and the act for the suppression of intemperance, and any law regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors and by any or all of such proceedings applicable to complaints against such permit holder; and the permit shall not shield any person who abuses the trust imposed by it or violates the laws aforesaid, and in case of conviction in any proceeding, civil or criminal, all the liquors in possession of the permit holder shall by order of the court be destroyed.

On the trial of any action or proceeding against any person for manufacturing, selling, giving away or keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquors in violation of law, or for any failure to comply with the conditions or duties imposed by this act, the requests for liquors and returns made to the auditor as herein required, the general repute of the accused and his place of business and the manner of conducting the same, the quantity and kinds of liquors sold or kept, purchased or disposed of, the purpose for which liquors were obtained by or from him and for which they were used, the character and habits of applicants for liquor and their general repute as to habits of sobriety or otherwise, shall be competent evidence and may be considered so far as applicable to the particular case with any other recognized, competent and material facts and circumstances bearing on the issues involved in determining the ultimate facts. In any suit, prosecution or proceeding for violations of this act or the acts for the suppression of intemperance and acts amendatory thereof, the court may compel the production in evidence of any books or papers required by this act to be kept, and may compel any permit holder, his clerk or any person who has purchased liquors of either of them to appear and give evidence, and the claim that any such testimony or evidence will tend to criminate the person giving such evidence shall not excuse such person or witness from testifying or producing such books or papers in evidence; but such oral evidence shall not be used against such person or witness on the trial of any criminal proceeding against him. Any number of distinct violations of this act may be charged in one indictment in different counts and all tried in the same action, the jury specifying the counts, if any, on which the defendant is found guilty.

SEC. 15. [Registered pharmacists not holding permits.]—Registered pharmacists, conducting pharmacies and not holding permits, and manufacturers of proprietary medicines are hereby authorized to purchase of permit-holders in the counties of their residence intoxicating liquors (not including malt) for the purpose of compounding medicines, tinctures and extracts that cannot be used as a beverage. Said permit-holders shall not charge such registered pharmacists over ten per cent net profit for liquors so sold; such purchasers shall keep a record of uses to which the same are devoted, giving the kind and quantity so used, and on or before the tenth day of each calendar month they shall make and file with the county auditor sworn reports for the preceding calendar month, giving full and true statements of the quantity and kinds of such liquors purchased and used, the uses to which the same have been devoted, and giving the names of the permit-holders of whom the same were purchased and the dates and quantities so purchased, together with an invoice of the amount of each kind still in stock and kept for such compounding. The commissioners of pharmacy are hereby empowered and directed to make further rules and regulations regarding the quantity of intoxicating liquors to be kept in stock by such pharmacists at any one time, and such further rules and regulations with respect to the purchase, use and keeping of such liquors as they may deem proper for the prevention of abuses of the trusts reposed in such purchasers, and if the said registered pharmacist sell, barter, give away, exchange or in any manner dispose of said liquors, or use the same for any purpose other than authorized in this section, he shall, upon conviction before any district court thereof, forfeit his certificate of registration, and be liable to all the penalties, prosecutions and proceedings at law or in equity provided against persons selling without a permit, and upon any such conviction the clerk of the district court shall, within ten days after said judgment or order, transmit to the commissioners of pharmacy the certified record thereof, upon receipt of which the commission shall strike his name from the list of pharmacists and cancel his certificate.Provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the manufacture or sale of any preparation or compound under any name, form or device which may be used as a beverage and which is intoxicating in its character.

SEC. 16. [Permit-holder liable for sales by clerk.]—A permit-holder may employ not more than two registered pharmacists as clerks to sell intoxicating liquors in conformity to the permit and provisions of this act, but in such case the acts of his clerks in conducting the business shall be deemed the acts of the permit-holder, who shall be liable therefor, as if he had personally done the acts, and in making returns the verification of such requests as may have been received, attested and filled by a clerk must be made by such clerk, and the clerk who transacted any of the business under the permit must join in the general oath required of the employer so far as relates to his own connection therewith. If for any cause a registered pharmacist who holds a permit shall cease to hold a valid and subsisting certificate of registration or renewal thereof, his permit shall thereby be forfeited and be null and void.

SEC. 17. [Permits in force when law takes effect.]—Any person holding a permit in force when this act takes effect may continue to purchase, keep and sell. intoxicating liquors according to the laws under which his permit was given, until such time as the permit can be obtained under the provisions of this act, but all such permits shall expire on the first day of October, 1888.

SEC. 18. [Persons convicted of violation of law.]—If any person shall be convicted of violating any of the provisions of this act, or of the acts regulating the practice of pharmacy, or any acts for the suppression of intemperance, or amendments thereto, by reason of a prosecution by the commissioners of pharmacy, all fines so imposed and collected shall be paid into the county treasury of the proper county for the use of the school fund, and the commissioners of pharmacy shall be entitled to draw from the state treasury an amount not exceeding fifty per cent of the amount of the fines so collected, to be used solely in prosecution instituted by them for failure to comply with the provisions of this act or of the acts regulating the practice of pharmacy. And the court before whom any prosecution instituted and prosecuted by the commissioners of pharmacy shall certify to the auditor of state all cases in which they have appeared as prosecutors, either in person or by their attorney, and the amount of fines imposed and collected in such cases; and the commissioners of pharmacy shall have power to revoke the certificate of registration of pharmacists for repeated violation of this act. Said amount to be drawn from time to time upon the warrants of the state auditor, which shall issue for the payment of expenses actually incurred in said prosecutions after said expenses shall have been audited by the executive council.

SEC. 19. [Penalty for false statement or signature.]—If any person shall make any false or fictitious signature or sign any name other than his own or her own to any paper required to be signed by this act, or make any false statement in any paper or application signed to procure liquors under this act, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $20 (twenty dollars) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100) and costs of prosecution, and shall be committed until said fine and costs are paid, or be imprisoned not less than ten nor more than thirty days. If any permit-holder or his clerk shall make false oath touching any matter required to be sworn to under the provisions of this act, the person so offending shall upon conviction therefor be punished as provided by law for perjury.

If any person holding a permit under this law shall purchase or procure any intoxicating liquors otherwise than authorized by this act, or in any larger quantities than shall be stated in the county auditor's certificate obtained by him for that purpose, or make any false return to the county auditor, or use any request for liquors for more than one sale, or the county auditor's certificate for purchasing liquors for more than one purchase, in any of such cases he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction punished accordingly.

SEC. 20. [Repeals.]—That sections 1524, 1526, 1528, 1529, 1530, 1531, 1532, 1533, 1534, 1536, 1537 and 1538 of the code of 1873, as amended by chapter 143 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, and all that part of section two (2) chapter eighty-three (83) acts of the twenty-first general assembly, after the words "medicines and poisons" in the fifth line thereof, be and the same is hereby repealed, and by inserting after the word poison in the fifth line of section two, chapter eighty-three, acts of the twenty-first general assembly, the following words: "excepting intoxicating liquors." Provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to abate any action or proceeding now pending in any court in this state for a violation of the provisions of the sections hereby repealed, or to operate to bar any prosecutions hereafter brought for any such violations committed prior to the passage and taking effect of this act.

SEC. 21. [Amendment.]—That section one. chapter 75, of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly, be and the same is hereby amended by striking out the words "for medical use, except as hereinafter provided," at the end of said
Suits brought to recover any of the penalties provided for in this act or the acts to which it is amendatory, shall be instituted in the name of the state of Iowa by the county attorney, or under the direction and by the authority of the commissioners of pharmacy for the state of Iowa. In all cases brought under this act or the acts to which it is amendatory, the prosecution need not prove that the defendant has not the required pharmacy certificate of registration; if the defendant has such certificate he must produce it.

SEC. 22. [Same.]—That section 4, chapter 75, of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly, be and the same is hereby amended by striking out the words “a duplicate of which is to be kept in the secretary of state’s office,” in the second and third lines of said section.

Approved April 12, 1888.

CHAPTER 72, LAWS OF 1888.

RELEASE OF PENALTIES.

An Act to release certain penalties for failure to make and file reports of sales of intoxicating liquors by holders of permits, within the time required by law, and to dismiss suits.

WHEREAS, The twentieth general assembly of the state of Iowa passed an act amending title eleven (11), chapter six (6) of the code of Iowa, and fixing the time within which parties holding permits for the sale of intoxicating liquors shall make and file their monthly reports with the county auditor within five days from the last Saturday of each month, as provided in sections 1537 and 1538 of the code of Iowa, and chapter 143 of the laws of the twentieth general assembly of the state of Iowa; and

WHEREAS, Said law fixed and attached a penalty of one hundred dollars for each failure to make and file said monthly report within five days from the last Saturday in each month, one-half of said penalty to go to the informer and one-half to the school fund; and

WHEREAS, A large number of druggists residing in the state and holding permits under the law, have failed to make and file their monthly reports within the five days as required, but in truth and in fact have made and filed said monthly reports with the county auditor as required by law, but not within the five days as aforesaid; and

WHEREAS, In many cases large penalties have been incurred by reason of failure to make and file said monthly reports with the county auditor within the five days as aforesaid, without any intention of violating the prohibitory law on the part of the holders of said permit; therefore,

SECTION 1. [Penalties released.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in all cases in which any druggist holding a permit for the sale of intoxicating liquors has heretofore failed to make and file the monthly reports and statements with the county auditor within the five days required by sections 1538 and 1539 of the code of Iowa, and as amended by chapter 143 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly of the state of Iowa, and within the time therein limited, but has in truth and in fact, prior to the commencement of prosecution subsequently, made and filed such reports with the county auditor as required by law, such filing of monthly reports shall be taken and deemed to be a fulfillment of the requirements and provisions of said law on the part of said druggist holding said permits as to the time of filing said reports, and shall have the same force and effect as though said monthly reports had been filed within the time limited and fixed in said chapter 143 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly of the state of Iowa, and title eleven (11), chapter six (6) of the code of Iowa, and no fine, penalty or forfeiture shall be held or deemed to have been incurred by any druggist holding such permit as aforesaid, by reason of a failure to make and file such monthly reports with the county auditor within the time limited by law. And all penalties, fines and forfeitures incurred by, and not adjudged against, any druggist holding such permit on failure to make and file said monthly reports within the said five days, the same is hereby released, remitted and discharged.

SEC. 2. [Dismissal of cases in court.]—That in all cases the same shall be dismissed by the court upon payment by the defendant of all costs made in the case, and a reasonable attorney’s fee to plaintiff’s attorney, to be fixed by the court.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers.)

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH AND VITAL STATISTICS.

An Act to establish a state board of health in the state of Iowa, to provide for collecting vital statistics, and to assign certain duties to local boards of health, and to punish neglect of duties.

SECTION 1. [Appointment of board.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the governor, with the approval of the executive council, shall appoint nine (9) persons, one of whom shall be the attorney-general of the state (by virtue of his office), one a civil engineer, and seven (7) physicians, who shall constitute a state board of health. The persons so appointed shall hold their offices for seven (7) years: Provided, that the terms of office of the seven physicians first appointed shall be so arranged by lot that the term of one shall expire on the thirty-first (31st) day of January of each year; and the vacancies thus occasioned, as well as all other vacancies otherwise occurring, shall be filled by the governor, with the approval of the executive council.

SEC. 2. [Power of board.]—The state board of health shall have the general supervision of the interest of the health and life of the citizens of the state. They shall have charge of all matters pertaining to quarantine; they shall supervise a state registration of marriages, births and deaths, as hereinafter provided; they shall have authority to make such rules and regulations and such sanitary investigations as they may from time to time deem necessary for the preservation or improvement of the public health; and it shall be the duty of all public officers, sheriffs, constables, and all other officers of the state, to enforce such rules and regulations, so far as the efficiency and success of the board may depend upon their official co-operation.

SEC. 3. (As amended by ch. 110, 19th g. a.) [Duties of clerks of courts.] The clerk of the district and circuit courts of each of the several counties in the state shall be required to keep separate books for the registration of the names and post-office address of physicians and mid-wives, for births, for marriages, and for deaths, which record shall show the names, date of birth, death or marriage; the names of parent and sex of the child, when a birth, and when a death, shall give the age, sex and cause of death, with the date of the record, and the name of the person furnishing the information. Said books shall always be open for inspection without fee; and the clerks of said courts shall be required to render a full and complete report of all births, marriages and deaths to the secretary of the board of health annually, on the first day of October of each year, and at such other times as the board may direct. [For which service the clerk shall receive in addition to the compensation already allowed him by law, the sum of ten cents for each birth, marriage or death so recorded by him, and the further sum of ten cents for each one hundred words of written matter contained in said report, the same to be paid out of the county fund.]

SEC. 4. [Duties of state board.]—It shall be the duty of the board of health to prepare such forms for the record of births, marriages and deaths as they may deem proper; the said forms to be furnished by the secretary of said board to the clerks of the district and circuit courts of the several counties, whose duty it shall be to furnish them to such persons as are herein required to make reports.

SEC. 5. [Duties of physicians and midwives.]—It shall be the duty of all physicians and mid-wives in this state to register their names and post-office address with the clerk of the district and circuit courts of the county where they reside; and said physicians and mid-wives shall be required, under penalty of ten dollars ($10), to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction in the state at suit of the clerk of the court, to report to the clerk of the courts, within thirty (30) days from the date of their occurrence, all births and deaths which may come under their supervision, with a certificate of the cause of death, and such other facts as the board may require, in the blank forms furnished, as hereafter provided.

SEC. 6. [Parent to report, when.]—When any birth or death shall take place, no physician or mid-wife being in attendance, the same shall be reported by the parent to the clerk of the district and circuit courts within thirty (30) days from the date of its occurrence, and if a death, the supposed cause of death, or if there be no parent, by the nearest of kin not a minor, or, if none, by the resident householder where the birth or death shall have occurred, under penalty provided in the preceding section of this act. Clerks of the district and circuit courts shall annually, on the first day of October of each year, send to the secretary of the state board of health a statement of all births and deaths recorded in their offices for the year preceding said date, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars ($25) in case of failure.

SEC. 7. [Coroners shall report.]—The coroners of the several counties shall report to the clerk of the courts all cases of death which may come under their supervision, with the cause or mode of death, etc., as per form furnished, under penalty as provided in section 5 of this act.

SEC. 8. [Special fund.]—All amounts recovered under the penalties of this act shall be appropriated to a special fund for carrying out the object of this law.

SEC. 9. The first meeting of the board shall be within twenty days after its appointment, and thereafter in May and November of each year, and at such other times as the board shall deem expedient. The November meeting shall be in the city of Des Moines. A majority of the members of the board shall constitute a quorum. They shall choose one of their number to be president, and shall adopt rules and by-laws for their government, subject to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 10. (As amended by ch. 173, 20th g. a.) [Election and salary of secretary.]—They shall elect a secretary, who shall perform the duties prescribed by the board and by this act. He shall receive a salary, which shall be fixed by the board, not exceeding $1,200 per annum. He shall, with the other members of the board, receive actual traveling and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of official duties; but no other member of the board shall receive a salary.
The president of the board shall [monthly] certify the amount due the secretary, and on presentation of said certificate the auditor of state shall draw his warrant on the state treasurer of
SEC. 11. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [Biennial report to the governor.]

It shall be the duty of the board of health to make a biennial report through their secretary or otherwise, in writing, to the governor of the state; and such report shall include so much of the proceedings of the board, such information concerning vital statistics, such knowledge respecting diseases, and such instruction on the subject of hygiene as may be thought useful by the board, for dissemination among the people, with such suggestions as to legislative action as they may deem necessary.

SEC. 12. (As amended by ch. 173, 20th g. a.) [$5,000 annually appropriated.]

The sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) per annum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to pay the salary of the secretary, meet the contingent expenses of the office of the secretary, and expenses of the board, and all costs of printing, which together shall not exceed the sum hereby appropriated. Said expenses shall be certified and paid [monthly] in the same manner as the salary of the secretary. The secretary of state shall provide rooms suitable for the meetings of the board and office-room for the secretary of the board.

SEC. 13. [Mayors, aldermen and trustees—local boards of health.]

The mayor and aldermen of each incorporated city, the mayor and council of any incorporated town or village in the state, or the trustees of any township, shall have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of a board of health within the limits of the cities, towns and townships of which they are officers.

Under section 13 of this act, the mayor and alderman of each city, or the mayor and councilmen of each town, constitute a board of health, and are clothed with the powers prescribed by the act, and this provision repeals section 525 of the code. Staples v. Plymouth County, 62 Iowa, 364.

SEC. 14. [Local boards appoint physician and regulate fees.]

Every local board of health shall appoint a competent physician to the board, who shall be the health officer within its jurisdiction, and shall hold his office during the pleasure of the board. The clerks of the townships and the clerks and recorders of cities and towns shall be clerks of the local boards. The local boards shall also regulate all fees and charges of persons employed by them in the execution of the health laws and of their own regulations.

SEC. 15. [Report of physician and clerk of local boards.]

It shall be the duty of the health physician of every incorporated town, and also the clerk of the local board of health in each city or incorporated town or village in the state, at least once a year, to report to the state board of health their proceedings, and such other facts required, on blanks and in accordance with instructions received from said state board. They shall also make special reports whenever required to do so by the state board of health.

SEC. 16. [Regulation respecting nuisances.]

Local boards of health shall make regulations respecting nuisances, sources of filth and causes of sickness within their jurisdiction and on board any boats in their ports or harbors as they shall judge necessary for the public health and safety; and if any person shall violate any such regulations, he shall forfeit a sum of not less than twenty-five [dollars] ($25) for every day during which he knowingly violates or disregards said rules and regulations, to be recovered before any justice of the peace or other court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 17. [Duty of local boards.]

The board of health of any city or incorporated town or village shall order the owner of any property, place or building (at his own expense) to remove any nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness found on private property, within twenty-four (24) hours, or such other time as is deemed reasonable, after notice served as hereinafter provided; and if the owner or occupant neglects to do so, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty dollars ($20) for every day during which he knowingly and willfully permits such nuisance or cause of sickness to remain after the time prescribed for the removal thereof.

Sec. 18. [Power of local board.]—If the owner or occupant fails to comply with such order, the board may cause the nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness to be removed, and all expenses incurred thereby shall be paid by the owner, occupant or other person who caused or permitted the same, if he has had actual notice from the board of health of the existence thereof, to be recovered by civil action in the name of the state before any court having jurisdiction.

Sec. 19. [To purify dwellings.]—The board, when satisfied upon due examination, that any cellar, room, tenement, or building in its town, occupied as a dwelling place, has become, by reason of the number of occupants, or want of cleanliness, or other cause, unfit for such purpose, and a cause of nuisance or sickness to the occupants or the public, may issue a notice in writing to such occupants, or any of them, requiring the premises to be put in proper condition as to cleanliness, or, if they see fit, requiring the occupants to remove or quit the premises within such time as the board may deem reasonable. If the persons so notified, or any of them, neglect or refuse to comply with the terms of the notice, the board may cause the premises to be properly cleaned at the expense of the owners, or may remove the occupants forcibly and close up the premises, and the same shall not again be occupied as a dwelling place without permission in writing of the board.

Sec. 20. [Can enter place, building or vessel to remove or prevent nuisance.]—Whenever the board of health shall think it necessary for the preservation of the lives or health of the inhabitants to enter a place, building or vessel in their township, for the purpose of examining into and destroying, removing or preventing any nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness, and shall be refused such entry, any member of the board may make complaint, under oath, to any justice of the peace of his county, whether such justice be a member of the board or not, stating the facts of the case, so far as he has knowledge thereof. Such justice shall thereupon issue a warrant, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to take sufficient aid, and, being accompanied by two or more members of said board of health, between the hours of sunrise and sunset, repair to the place where such nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness complained of may be, and the same destroy, remove, or prevent, under the direction of such members of the board of health.

Sec. 21. [To guard against small-pox and other infectious diseases.]—When any person coming from abroad, or residing within any city, town or township within this state, shall be infected, or shall lately have been infected with small-pox, or other sickness dangerous to the public health, the board of health of the city, town or township where said person may be, shall make effectual provision, in the manner in which they shall judge best, for the safety of the inhabitants, by removing such sick or infected person to a separate house, if it can be done without damage to his health, and by providing nurses and other assistance and supplies, which shall be charged to the person himself, his parents or other person who may be liable for his support, if able; otherwise at the expense of the county to which he belongs.

Sec. 22. [Make provision for infected persons, when cannot be moved.]—If any infected person cannot be removed without damage to his health, the board of health shall make provision for him, as directed in the preceding section, in the house in which he may be, and in such case they may cause the persons in the neighborhood to be removed, and may take such other measures as may be deemed necessary for the safety of the inhabitants.

Sec. 23. [Duties of justices of the peace.]—Any justice of the peace, on application under oath showing cause therefor by a local board, or any member thereof, shall issue his warrant under his hand, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, requiring him, under the direction of the board of health, to remove any person infected with contagious diseases, or to take possession of condemned houses and lodgings, and to provide nurses and attendants, and other necessities for the care, safety and relief of the sick.

SEC. 24. (As amended by ch. 65, 22d g. a.) [Meetings and report of local boards.]—Local boards of health shall meet for the transaction of business on the first Monday of [April] and the first Monday in [October] of each year, and at any other time the necessities of the health of their respective jurisdictions may demand; and the clerk of each board shall transmit his annual report to the secretary of the state board of health within two weeks after the [October] meeting. Said report shall embrace a history of any epidemic disease which may have prevailed within his district. The failure of the clerk of the board to prepare, or cause to be prepared, and forward such report as above specified, shall be considered a misdemeanor, for which he shall be subject to a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars ($25).

SEC. 25. All laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. (Took effect by publication in newspapers, April 3, 1880.)

Under section 16 of this act, the mayor and aldermen of each city, or the mayor and councilmen of each town, constitute a board of health, and are clothed with the powers prescribed by the act, and this provision repeals section 525 of the code. Staples v. Plymouth County, 62 Iowa, 364.

A county is liable for expense incurred by a board of health in the case of persons afflicted with small-pox, under section 21 of this act, only when the patients themselves, or those who are liable for their support, are unable to make compensation therefor. Gill v. Appanoose County, 68 Id., 20.

Where one has suffered damages on account of the maintenance of a nuisance, it is not necessary that the board of health should first find the nuisance to be such, in order to entitle him to maintain an action for damages. Section 16, of chapter 151, of the laws of 1880, does not have that effect. Baker v. Bohannan, 69 Id., 60.

OF FIRE COMPANIES.

SECTION 1560. [Members exempt from military duty and working highways.]—Any person who is an active member of any fire engine, hook and ladder, hose, or any other company for the extinguishment of fire, or the protection of property at fires, under the control of the corporate authorities of any city or incorporated town, shall during the time he shall continue an active member of such company, be exempted from the performance of any military duty, and from the performance of labor on the highways on account of poll-tax, and from serving as a juror; and any person who shall have been an active member of such company in any city or town as aforesaid, and shall have faithfully discharged his duties as such for the term of ten years, shall be forever thereafter exempted from the performance of military duty in the time of peace, from serving as a juror, and from the performance of labor on the highways.

SEC. 1561. [Same.]—Any person who has served in any company for the term of ten years, as provided in the preceding section, shall be entitled to receive from the foreman of the company of which he shall have been a member, a certificate to that effect, and on the presentation of such certificate to the clerk or recorder of the proper city or town, such clerk or recorder shall file the same in his office, and give his certificate, under the corporate seal, to the person entitled thereto, setting forth the name of the company of which such person shall have been a member, and the duration of such membership; and such certificate shall be received in all courts and places as evidence that the person legally holding the same is entitled to the exemption hereinbefore mentioned.

Sec. 1562. [Same.]—To entitle any person to exemption from labor on the highway before the expiration of the aforesaid term of ten years, he shall, on or before the first day of April of each year, file with the clerk or recorder of the proper city or town, a certificate signed by the foreman of the company of which said person is a member, that the person holding said certificate is an active member of said fire company, and thereupon the clerk or recorder shall enter said exemption upon the street tax list for that year.

Sec. 1563. [Misrepresentation: punished.]—Any person who shall either by misrepresentation or by the use of a false certificate, or the certificate of any other person, endeavor to avail himself of the benefits of this chapter, upon conviction thereof before any mayor, recorder, or magistrate of any incorporated city or town, or before any district court, shall be sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than six months, or less than one month, and to pay a fine of not less than ten dollars, or more than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 1564. [Destruction of fire apparatus punished.]—Any person or persons who shall willfully destroy or injure any engines, hose carriage, hose, hook and ladder carriage, or anything whatever, used for the extinguishment of fires, belonging to any fire company, on conviction thereof shall be sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for a period of not less than one year, nor more than three years.

Sec. 1565. [Removal of fire apparatus punished.]—It shall not be lawful for any person to remove an engine or other apparatus for the extinguishment of fire from the house or other place where the same shall be kept or deposited, except in time of fire or alarm of fire, unless properly authorized so to do by the president and director, or foreman, of the company to whom the same shall belong, or their duly authorized agent; and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, to be sued for and recovered in the name of the state, for the use of the school fund, before any mayor, recorder or magistrate of the city or town wherein the offense has been committed.

Sec. 1566. [False alarm of fire punished.]—It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to cause false alarm of fire, either by setting fire to any combustible material, or by giving an alarm of fire without cause, and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall be fined a sum of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, to be sued for and recovered as specified in the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER 8.

MINES AND MINING.

An Act to regulate mines and mining, and to repeal chapter 202 of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:—(Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, of chapter 21, laws of 1884, are repealed by chapter 140 of the laws of 1886.)
SEC. 7. The agent or owner of every coal mine shall make or cause to be made, an accurate map or plan of the working of such mine on a scale of not less than one hundred feet to the inch, showing the area mined or excavated. Said map or plan shall be kept at the office of such mine. The owner or agent shall, on or before the first day of September of each year, cause to be made a statement and plan of the progress of the workings of such mine up to date, which statement and plan shall be marked on the map or plan herein required to be made. In case of refusal on part of said owner or agent for two months after the time designated to make the map or plan, or addition thereto, the inspector is authorized to cause an accurate map or plan of the whole of said mine to be made at the expense of the owner thereof, the cost of which shall be recoverable against the owner in the name of the person or persons making said map or plan. And the owner or agent of all coal mines hereafter wrought out and abandoned, shall deliver a correct map of said mine to the inspector, to be filed in his office.

SEC. 8. [Outlets or escapes.]—It shall be unlawful for the owner or agent of any coal mine worked by a shaft, to employ or permit any person to work therein unless there are to every seam of coal worked in such mine, at least two separate outlets, separated by natural strata of not less than one hundred feet in breadth, by which shafts or outlets distinct means of ingress and egress are always available to the persons employed in the mine, but in no case shall a furnace shaft be used as an escape shaft; and if the mine is a slope or drift opening, the escape shall be separated from the other openings by not less than fifty feet of natural strata; and shall be provided with safe and available traveling ways, and the traveling ways to the escapes in all coal mines shall be kept free from water and falls of roof; and all escape shafts shall be fitted with safe and convenient stairs at an angle of not more than sixty degrees descent, and with landings at easy and convenient distances, so as to furnish easy escape from such mine, and all air shafts used as escapes where fans are employed for ventilation, shall be provided with suitable appliances for hoisting the underground workmen; said appliances to be always kept at the mine ready for immediate use; and in no case shall any combustible material be allowed between any escape shaft and hoisting shaft, except such as is absolutely necessary for operation of the mine; provided, that where a furnace shaft is large enough to admit of being divided into an escape shaft and a furnace shaft, there may be a partition placed in said shaft, properly constructed so as to exclude the heated air and smoke from the side of the shaft used as an escape shaft, such partition to be built of incombustible material for a distance of not less than fifteen feet up from the bottom thereof; and provided, that where two or more mines are connected underground, each owner may make joint provisions with the other owner for the use of the other’s hoisting shaft or slope as an escape, and in that event the owners thereof shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of this section. And provided further, that in any case where the escape shaft is now situated less than one hundred feet from the hoisting shaft there may be provided a properly constructed underground traveling way from the top of the escape shaft, so as to furnish the proper protection from fire, for a distance of one hundred feet from the hoisting shaft; and in that event the owner or agent of any such mine shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of this section; and provided further, that this act shall not apply to mines operated by slopes or drift openings where not more than five persons are employed therein. [And provided further, that any escapement shaft that is hereafter sunk and equipped, before said escapement shaft shall be located or the excavation for it begun, the district inspector of mines shall be duly notified to appear and determine what shall be a suitable distance for the same. The distance from the main shaft shall not be less than three hundred feet without the consent of the inspector, and no buildings shall be put nearer the escape shaft than one hundred feet, except the house necessary to cover the fan.] [As amended by ch. 56, 22d g. a.]

SEC. 9. [Time allowed for making outlets.]—In all mines there shall be allowed one year to make outlets provided in section eight, when such mine is under two hundred feet in depth, and two years when such mine is over two hundred feet in depth, but not more than twenty men shall be employed in such mine at any one time until the provisions of section eight are complied with, and after the expiration of the period above mentioned should said mines not have the outlets aforesaid, they shall not be operated until made to conform to the provisions of section eight.
["And provided, further that this act shall not apply to mines where the escape way is lost or destroyed by reason of the drawing of pillars preparatory to the abandonment of the mine," Provided, that not more than twenty persons shall be employed in said mine at any one time.]

SEC. 10. [Ventilation.]—The owner or agent of every coal mine, whether it be operated by shaft, slope, or drift, shall provide and maintain for every such mine an amount of ventilation of not less than one hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each person employed in such mine, and not less than five hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each mule or horse employed in the same, which shall be distributed and circulated throughout the mine in such manner as to dilute, render harmless, and expel the poisonous and noxious gases from each and every working place in the mine. [And, whenever, the inspector shall find men working without sufficient air, or under any unsafe conditions, he shall first give the operator or his agent a reasonable notice to rectify the same, and upon refusal or neglect so to do the inspector may himself order them out until said portion of the mine shall be put in proper condition.] And all mines governed by the provisions of this act shall be provided with artificial means for producing ventilation, such as exhaust or forcing fans, furnaces, or exhaust steam, or other contrivances of such capacity and power as to produce and maintain an abundant supply of air for all the requirements of the persons employed in the mine; but in case a furnace is used for ventilating purposes it shall be built in such manner as to prevent the communication of fire to any part of the works by lining the upcast with incombustible material for a sufficient distance up from said furnace to ensure safety.

SEC. 11. [Safety appliances.]—The owner or agent of every coal mine operated by a shaft or slope, in all cases where the human voice cannot be distinctly heard, shall forthwith provide and maintain a metal tube, or other suitable means for communication from the top to the bottom of said shaft or slope, suitably calculated for free passage of sound therein, so that communication can be held between persons at the bottom and top of the shaft or slope. And there shall be provided a safety catch of approved pattern and a sufficient cover overhead on all carriages used for lowering and hoisting persons, and on the top of every shaft an approved safety gate, and also approved safety spring on the top of every slope, and an adequate brake shall be attached to every train used on a slope, all of said appliances to be subject to the approval of the inspector.

SEC. 12. [Hoisting engines: operation.]—No owner or agent of any coal mine operated by a shaft or slope shall knowingly place in charge of any engine used for lowering into or hoisting out of such mine persons employed therein, any but experienced, competent and sober engineers, and no engineer in charge of such engine shall allow any person except such as may be deputed for that purpose by the owner or agent, to interfere with it, or any part of the machinery; and no person shall interfere or in any way intimidate the engineer in the discharge of his duties; and the maximum number of persons to ascend out of or descend into any coal mine on one cage shall be determined by the inspector, but in no case shall such number exceed ten, and no person shall ride upon or against any loaded cage or car in any shaft or slope except the conductor in charge of the train.

SEC. 13. No boy under twelve years of age shall be permitted to work in any mine; and parents or guardians of boys shall be required to furnish an affidavit as to the ages of their boys when there is any doubt in regard to their age, and in all cases of minors applying for work the agent or owner of the mines shall see that the provisions of this section is [are] not violated.

SEC. 14. In case any coal mine does not, in its appliances for the safety of the persons working therein, conform to the provisions of this act, or the owner or agent disregards the requirements of this act for twenty days after being notified by the inspector, any court of competent jurisdiction, while in session, or the judges in vacation may, on application of the inspector, by civil action in the name of the state, enjoin or restrain by writ of injunction, the said agent or owner from working or operating such mines, ("with more persons at once than are necessary to make the improvements needed." [As amended by ch. 56, 22d g. a.]) except as provided in section eight and nine, until it is made to conform to the provisions of this act, and such remedies shall be cumulative, and shall not take the place of,
or affect any other proceedings against such owner or agent authorized by law, for the matter complained of in such action; and for any willful failure or neglect to comply with the provisions of this law by any owner, lessee, or operator of any coal mine or opening whereby any one is injured, a right of action shall accrue to the party so injured for any damage he may have sustained thereby; and in case of loss of life by reason of such willful neglect or failure aforesaid, a right of action shall accrue to the widow, if living, and if not living, to the children of the person whose life shall be lost, for like recovery of damages for the injury they shall have sustained.

SEC. 15. [Malicious mischief.]—Any miner, workman or other person who shall knowingly injure or interfere with any air-course or brattice, or obstruct, or throw open doors, or disturb any part of the machinery, or disobey any order given in carrying out the provisions of this act, or ride upon a loaded car or wagon in a shaft or slope, except as provided in section twelve, or do any act whereby the lives and health of the persons, or the security of the mines and machinery is endangered; or if any miner or person employed in any mine governed by the provisions of this act, shall neglect or refuse to securely prop or support the roof and entries under his control, or neglect or refuse to obey any order given by the superintendent in relation to the security of the mine in the part of the mine under his charge or control, every such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

SEC. 16. (As amended by ch. 43, 21st g. a.)—Whenever written charges of gross neglect of duty or malfeasance in office against any inspector shall be made and filed with the governor, signed [and sworn to by five miners], or one or more operators of mines, together with a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars, payable to the state, and signed by two or more responsible freeholders, and conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses arising from the investigation of such charges, it shall be the duty of the governor to convene a board of examiners, to consist of two practical miners, one mining engineer and two operators, at such time and place as he may deem best, giving ten days' notice to the inspector against whom charges may be made, and also the person whose name appears first in the charges, and said board when so convened, and having first been duly sworn or affirmed truly to try and decide the charges made, shall summon any witnesses desired by either party and examine them on oath or affirmation, which may be administered by any member of the board, and depositions may be read on such examination as in other cases, and report the result of their investigation to the governor, and if their report shows that said inspector has grossly neglected his duties, or is incompetent, or has been guilty of malfeasance in office, it shall be the duty of the governor forthwith to remove said inspector and appoint a successor, and said board shall award the costs and expenses of such investigation against the inspector or person signing said bond.

SEC. 18. [Supply of props.]—The owner, agent or operator of any coal mine shall keep a sufficient supply of timber to be used as props, so that the workmen may at all times be able to properly secure the workings from caving in, and it shall be the duty of the owner, agent or operator to send down all such props when required.

SEC. 19. [Penalties.]—Any person willfully neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of this act when notified by the mine inspector to comply with such provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, except when different penalties are herein provided.

Sec. 20. Chapter 209 of the acts of the eighteenth general assembly is hereby repealed.

Approved March 18, 1884.

CHAPTER 52, LAWS OF 1888.

STATE MINE INSPECTORS.

An Act to amend section 4, chapter 140, of the laws of the twenty-first general assembly, and to amend chapter 21 of the laws of the twentieth general assembly, relative to state mine inspectors, their duties and manner of appointment.

SECTION 1. (Amendment of section 4, of ch. 140, laws of 1886.)—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That section 4, chapter 140, of the acts of the twenty-first general assembly, be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto the following words: "And each of said mine inspectors shall, during his term of office, have and keep a residence in the district to which he is assigned, without expense to the state. Also have and keep an office at a place designated by the governor, accessible to railroad and telegraph, in their respective districts, where, at all reasonable times and when not actually engaged elsewhere, such inspectors shall be found."

Sec. 2. That chapter 21, laws of the twentieth general assembly, be and the same is hereby amended by enacting the following supplementary sections:

Sec. 22. [Executive council must appoint board of examiners.]—The executive council shall appoint a board of examiners composed of two practical miners, two mine operators and one mining engineer, who shall have at least five years experience in his profession. The members of said board shall be of good moral character, and citizens of the United States and state of Iowa, and they shall, before entering upon their duties take the following oath (or affirmation):

"I, ...., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will perform the duties of examiner of candidates for the office of mine inspector to the best of my ability, and that in recommending any candidate I will be governed by the evidence of qualification to fill the position under the law creating the same, and not by any consideration of political and personal favors; that I will grant certificates to candidates according to their qualifications and the requirements of the law." They shall hold their office for two years.

Sec. 23. [Meeting of board of examiners.]—Said board shall meet biennially on the first Monday in April of each even numbered year, except that for the year 1888 said board shall meet on the second Monday of May in the office of the state mine inspector in the capitol, and they shall publish in at least one newspaper published in each mining district of the state, the date fixed by them for the examination of candidates. They shall be furnished with the necessary stationery and other necessary material for said examination, in the same manner as other state officers are now provided. They shall receive as compensation the sum of $5 per day for time actually employed in the duties of their office and actual traveling expenses. The said compensation and expenses shall be paid in the same manner as the salaries and expenses of other state officers are now paid: provided, that in no case shall the per diem received by any member exceed $50 for each biennial session.

Sec. 24. [Certificates: to whom granted.]—Certificates of competency shall be granted only to citizens of the United States and state of Iowa, of good moral character, not less than twenty-five years of age, who shall have at least five years' experience in the mines, and who shall not have been acting agent or superintendent of any mine for at least six months prior to their appearance for examination.

SEC. 25. [Manner of examination for mine inspector.]—The examination of candidates for the office of mine inspector shall consist of oral and written questions in theoretical and practical mining and mine engineering, on the nature and properties of noxious and poisonous gases found in mines, and on the different systems of working and ventilating of coal mines. The candidates shall not be allowed to have in their possession, at the time of their examination, any book, memoranda or notes to be used as aids in said examination. The board of examiners shall give to all persons examined, who, in their judgment possess the requisite qualifications, certificates of such qualification, and from the persons holding such certificates the governor shall appoint the state mine inspectors.

PROVIDING FOR MINE INSPECTORS—THEIR APPOINTMENT, DUTIES AND COMPENSATION.

An Act to repeal sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 of chapter 21, acts of the twentieth general assembly, and enact substitutes therefor, providing for mine inspectors, their manner of appointment, compensation, and defining their duties and terms of office.

SECTION 1. [Governor shall appoint three inspectors of mines.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there shall be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate, three inspectors of mines who shall hold their offices for two years. The said inspectors, subject, however, to be removed by the governor for neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. Said term of office shall commence on the first day of April of each even numbered year. Said inspectors shall have a theoretical and practical knowledge of the different systems of working and ventilating coal mines, and of the nature and properties of the noxious and poisonous gases of mines and of mining engineering; and said inspectors before entering upon the discharge of their duties shall take an oath or affirmation to discharge the same faithfully and impartially, which oaths or affirmations shall be endorsed upon their commissions, and their commissions so endorsed shall be forthwith recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and such inspectors shall each give bonds in the sum of two thousand ($2,000) dollars, with sureties to the approval of the governor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties. The governor shall divide the state into inspection districts and shall assign the inspectors to duty in such place or districts as he shall deem proper.

SEC. 2. [Duties.]—Said inspectors shall give their whole time and attention to the duties of their offices respectively and shall examine all the mines in this state as often as their duties will permit, to see that the provisions of this act are obeyed, and it shall be lawful for such inspectors to enter, inspect and examine any mine in this state, and the works and machinery belonging thereto, at all reasonable times by night or by day, but so as not to unnecessarily obstruct or impede the working of the mines, and to make inquiry and examination into the state and condition of the mine as to ventilation and general security as required by the provisions of this act. The inspectors shall make a record of all examinations of mines inspected by them, showing the date when made, the condition in which the mines are found, the extent to which the laws relating to mines and mining are observed or violated, the progress made in the improvement and security of life and health sought to be secured by the provisions of this chapter, number of accidents, injuries or deaths in or about the mines; the number of mines visited, the number of persons employed in or about the mines, together with all such facts and information of public interest concerning the condition of mines as they may think useful and proper, or so much thereof as may be of public interest, to be included in their biennial report. The owner and agents of all coal mines are hereby required to furnish the means necessary for such inspection, and it shall be the duty of the person having charge of any mine, whenever any loss of life shall occur by accident connected with the workings of such mine, to give notice forthwith by mail or otherwise to the inspector of mines of his district and to the coroner of the county in which such mine is situated, and the coroner shall hold an inquest on the body of the person or persons whose death has been caused, and inquire carefully into the cause thereof, and shall return a copy of the verdict and all testimony to the said inspector. No person having a personal interest in or employed in the mines where a fatal accident occurs shall be qualified to serve on the jury empaneled on the inquest, and the owner or agent of all coal mines shall report to the inspector all accidents to miners in and around the mines, giving cause of same, such report to be made in writing and within ten days from the time any accident occur.

Sec. 3. [Inspectors shall not be interested.]—Said inspectors while in office shall not act as agents or managers or mining engineers, or be interested in operating any mine, and the inspector shall biennially, on or before the fifteenth day of August preceeding the regular session of the general assembly, make a report to the governor, of their proceedings and the condition and operation of the mines in this state, enumerating all accidents in or about the same, and giving all such information as they may think useful and proper, and making such suggestions as they may deem important as to future legislation on the subject of mining.

Sec. 4. (As amended by ch. 52, 22d g. a.) [Compensation: how paid.]—The inspectors provided for in this act shall each receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars ($1,200) per annum, payable monthly, and shall be furnished with necessary stationery, and actual traveling expenses not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500) per annum; Provided, that each inspector shall file at the end of each quarter of his official year with the auditor of state a sworn statement of his actual traveling expenses incurred in the performance of his official duty for such quarter. The said salary and expenses to be paid by the state as the salaries and expenses of other state officers are provided for. They shall have and keep an office in the capitol at Des Moines, in which shall be kept all records, correspondence, papers, apparatus and property pertaining to their duties belonging to the state, and which shall be handed over to their successors in office. [And each of said mine inspectors shall, during his term of office, have and keep a residence in the district to which he is assigned without expense to the state. Also have and keep an office at a place designated by the governor, accessible to railroad and telegraph in their respective districts where, at all reasonable times and when not actually engaged elsewhere, such inspector shall be found.]

Sec. 5. [Vacancies.]—Any vacancy occurring in the office of inspector when the senate is not in session, either by death or resignation, removal by the governor or otherwise, shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall hold good until his successor is appointed and qualified.

Sec. 6. [Instruments, etc.]—There shall be provided for such inspectors all instruments necessary for the discharge of their duties under this act, which shall be paid for by the state on the certificate of the inspectors, and shall be the property of the state.
An Act to amend chapter 21 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, providing for the weighing of coal at mines.

SEC. 1. [Scales provided.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the owner or agent of each coal mine within this state at which the miners are paid by weight shall provide at each mine suitable scales of standard make for the weighing of all coal mined.

SEC. 2. [Weighmaster to be sworn.]-The owner or agent of such mine shall require the person authorized to weigh the coal delivered from said mine to be sworn before some person having authority to administer oaths, to keep the scales correctly balanced, to accurately weigh and to record a correct account of the amount weighed of each miner’s car of coal delivered from such mine, and such oath shall be kept conspicuously posted at the place of weighing. The record of the coal mined by each miner shall be kept separate, and shall be open to his inspection at all reasonable hours, and also for the inspection of all others peculiarly interested in such mine.

SEC. 3. [Check weighmaster may be furnished.]-In all coal mines in this state the miners employed and working therein may furnish a competent check weighman, who shall at all proper times have full right of access and examination of such scales, machinery and apparatus, and seeing all measures and weights of coal mined and accounts kept of the same, provided that not more than one person on behalf of the miners collectively shall have such right of access, examination and inspection of scales, measures and accounts at the same time, and that such person shall make no unnecessary interference with the use of such scales, machinery or apparatus. The agent of the miners as aforesaid shall, before entering upon his duties, make and subscribe to an oath before some officer duly authorized to administer oaths, that he is duly qualified and will faithfully discharge the duties of check weighman. Such oath shall be kept conspicuously posted at the place of weighing.

SEC. 4. [Penalty for fraud in weighing.]-Any person, company or firm having or using any scale or scales for the purpose of weighing the output of coal at mines so arranged or constructed that fraudulent weighing may be done thereby, or who shall knowingly resort to or employ any means whatsoever by reason of which such coal is not correctly weighed or reported in accordance with the provisions of this act, or any weighman or check weighman who shall fraudulently weigh or record the weights of such coal, or connive at or consent to such fraudulent weighing, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction for such offense, be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars ($200) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500), or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not to exceed sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, proceeding to be instituted in any court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 5. [Failure to comply with law.]-Any person, owner or agent, operating a coal mine in this state, who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this act, or who shall obstruct or hinder the carrying out of its requirements, shall be fined for the first offense not less than fifty dollars ($50) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200), for the second offense not less than two hundred dollars ($200) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500), and for a third offense not less than five hundred dollars ($500); provided, that the provisions of this act shall apply only to coal miners whose product is shipped by rail or water.

Sec. 6. That section 17, of chapter 21, of the laws of 1884, is hereby repealed. Approved April 6, 1888.

WEIGHING COAL AT MINES.

An Act to establish a uniform system of weighing coal at the mines of this state, and to punish certain irregularities connected therewith.

Section 1. [Coal to be weighed before screening.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all coal mined in this state under contract for payment by the ton or other guaranty shall be weighed before being screened, unless otherwise agreed upon in writing, and the full weight thereof shall be credited to the miner of such coal; and eighty pounds of coal as mined shall constitute a bushel, and two thousand pounds of coal as mined shall constitute a ton; provided, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to compel payment for sulphur, rock, slate, black-jack, or other impurities, including slack and dirt, which may be loaded with or amongst such coal.

Sec. 2. [Inspector's apparatus.]—Each state mine inspector shall procure from the state superintendent of weights and measures, at the expense of the state, a full and complete set of standards, balances, and other means of adjustment, such as are necessary in the comparison and adjustment of the scales, beams and other apparatus used in weighing coal at the mines, to the state standard of weight; and it shall be the duty of said inspectors to examine, test and adjust as often as occasion demands, all scales, beams, and other apparatus used in weighing coal at the mines.

Sec. 3. [Damages recovered.]—Any person damaged by reason of coal mined not having been weighed and credited to him in accordance with the provisions of this act, may recover his damages in a civil action against the employer, but such action must be begun within two years after the right thereto accrued; but this right to recover in such action shall not be barred by reason of his having knowledge of the violation of this act at the time.

PAYING MINERS.

An Act to provide for the payment of workmen employed in mines, in the state of Iowa, in lawful money of the United States, and to protect said workmen in the management and control of their own earnings.

Section 1. [Scrip, checks, drafts, etc., unlawful.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, company or corporation, owning or operating coal mines in the state of Iowa, to sell, give, deliver, or in any manner issue, directly or indirectly, to any person employed by him or it, in payment for wages due for labor, or as advances on the wages of labor not due, any scrip, check, draft, order, or evidence of indebtedness, payable or redeemable otherwise than in their face value in money; any such person, firm, company or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred (300) dollars nor less than twenty-five (25) dollars; and the amount of any scrip, token, check, draft, order, or other evidence of indebtedness, sold, given, delivered, or in any manner issued in violation of the provisions of this act, shall recover in money at the suit of any holder thereof, against the person, firm, company or corporation selling, giving, delivering, or in any manner issuing the same; provided, that this act shall not apply to any person, firm, company or corporation employing less than ten (10) persons.

Sec. 2. [Coercion in purchases forbidden.]—Whoever compels, or in any manner seeks to compel, or coerce an employe of any person, firm, company or corporation, to purchase goods or supplies from any particular person, firm, company or corporation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred (500) dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding sixty days, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3. [Violation of law.—The county attorney of any organized county, upon complaint being made to him of the violation of any of the provisions of this act within his county, shall cause such complaint to be investigated before the grand jury of the county where such wrong has been complained of, and at the next session following the time such complaint is made.

Approved April 6, 1888.

CHAPTER 9.

OF QUARTERLY BANK STATEMENTS.

Section 1570. [When, to whom made, and what to contain.]—All associations organized under the general incorporation laws of this state, for the purpose of transacting a banking business, buying or selling exchange, receiving deposits, discounting notes, etc., shall make a full, clear, and accurate statement of the condition of the association as hereinafter provided, which shall be verified by oath of the president or vice-president, cashier or secretary, and two of the directors, which statement shall contain:

1. The amount of capital stock actually paid in, and then remaining as the capital of such association;
2. The amount of debts of every kind due to banks, bankers, or other persons, other than regular depositors;
3. The total amount due depositors, including sight and time deposits;
4. The amount subject to be drawn at sight then remaining on deposit with solvent banks or bankers of the country, specifying each city and town and the amount deposited in each and belonging to such association;
5. The amount of gold and silver coin and bullion belonging to such association at the time of making the statement;
6. The amount then on hand of bills of solvent specie-paying banks.
7. The amount of bills, bonds, notes and other evidences of debt, discounted or purchased by such association, and then belonging to the same, specifying particularly the amount of suspended debts, the amount considered good, the amount considered doubtful, and the amount in suit or judgment;
8. The value of real or personal property held for the convenience of such association, specifying the amount of each;
9. The amount of the undivided profits, if any, then on hand;
10. The total amount of all liabilities to such associations on the part of the directors thereof; which statement shall be forthwith transmitted to the auditor of state, and be by him filed in his office.

SEC. 1571. [Auditor of state may require additional reports.]—The auditor of state shall, at any time he may see proper, make, or cause to be made, an examination of any association, as hereinafter provided, contemplated in this chapter, or he shall call upon any such association for a report of its state and condition as hereinbefore provided, upon any given day which has passed, as often as four times a year, and which reports the auditor shall cause to be published for one day in some daily newspaper published in the county where such association shall be located, or if there be no such newspaper published in said county, then such report shall be published in some weekly newspaper printed in said county for one week; the expenses of such publication shall be paid by each institution.

SEC. 1572. [Insolvent: receiver appointed.]—If such auditor is satisfied from said examination or reports that any such institution is insolvent, he shall direct the attorney-general to commence the proper proceedings, to have a receiver appointed and said institution wound up, and the assets thereof ratably distributed among the creditors thereof, giving preference in payment to depositors.

Authority is found in this and the preceding section for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the bank. Stewart v. Lay, 45 Iowa, 604, 612.

SEC. 1573. [Forfeiture.]—Any willful failure or neglect of the proper officers of such association to comply with the provisions of this chapter, shall be regarded as a forfeiture of all the rights and privileges of such association.

SEC. 1574. [Failure to report: officer criminally liable.]—Any officer whose duty it is made to make statement and publication as aforesaid, who shall willfully neglect or refuse to do so, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not less than three months nor more than three years in the penitentiary.

SEC. 1575. [Existing association: how affected: four statements required each year.]—The provisions of sections fifteen hundred and seventy-three and fifteen hundred and seventy-four, of this chapter, shall not apply to or be enforced against any such banking institution, or the officers thereof, who heretofore have been incorporated and come under the provisions of this chapter; provided, that on or before the first day of September, 1873, any such institution shall have shown by a statement of its condition to the satisfaction of the auditor of state, that it is now in a sound condition. In no case shall more than four statements in one year be required.

SEC. 1576. [Amount of capital required.]—No associations shall be organized under the provisions of this chapter with a less amount of paid up capital than fifty thousand dollars, except in cities or towns having a population not exceeding three thousand, where such association may be organized with a paid up capital of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars. But no association shall have the right to commence business until its officers elect, or its stockholders, shall have furnished to the auditor of state a sworn statement of the paid up capital, and when the auditor of state is satisfied as to the fact, he shall issue to such association a certificate authorizing such association to commence business, a copy of which shall be published as provided in section fifteen hundred and seventy-one of this chapter.
An Act to provide for the organization and management of savings banks.

SECTION 1. [May be formed.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That corporations to be known as savings banks may be formed, under and in accordance with the provisions of this act, for the purpose of receiving on deposit the savings and funds of others, and preserving and safely investing the same, and paying interest or dividends thereon; and such corporations and the stockholders thereof, shall be subject to all the conditions and liabilities herein imposed; and hereafter no association shall be formed under the general incorporation acts for the purpose of transacting such banking business; and all corporations now organized thereunder and doing business as savings banks, shall, on or before the first day of July, A.D. 1875, conform to and reorganize under the provisions of this act, as hereinafter provided, and any failure or neglect of the proper officers of such associations to comply with the provisions of this act shall be regarded as a forfeiture of all rights and privileges of such association.

SEC. 2. [Organization: amount of capital.]—It shall be lawful for any number of persons, not less than five, to organize savings banks under the provisions of this act, with a paid up capital stock of not less than ten thousand dollars in cities and towns of ten thousand inhabitants or under; and a paid up capital stock of not less than fifty thousand dollars in cities of over ten thousand inhabitants; which said corporations shall be known as savings banks, and shall have power to transact the usual business of such institutions, but not to issue bank notes to circulate as money, but no such association shall have the right to commence business until its officers elect, or its shareholders, shall have furnished to the auditor of state a sworn statement of the paid up capital, and, when the auditor of state is satisfied as to the fact, he shall issue to such association a certificate authorizing it to commence business, a copy of which shall be published in some newspaper printed in the county where such association is located, for four consecutive weeks, at the expense of such association. If the auditor of state should deem it necessary before issuing a certificate, he may make a personal examination of capital stock, or cause one to be made by some competent person appointed by him, the expense of which shall be paid by the association.

SEC. 3. [Articles of incorporation.]—Any five or more persons of full age, a majority of whom shall be citizens of this state, who may desire to form an incorporated company for the purposes hereinbefore specified, shall make, sign and acknowledge, before some officer competent to take acknowledgments of deeds, and file in the office of the recorder of the county wherein the principal place of business of the company is intended to be located, and a certified copy thereof in the office of the secretary of state, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated the corporate name of the corporation, the object for which the corporation shall be formed, the amount of its capital stock, the time of its existence, not to exceed fifty years, the number of its directors or trustees, and their names, who shall manage the affairs of the association for the first year, and the name of the city, or town, and county in which the principal place of business of the company is to be located; and a notice must be published in some newspaper published in the county wherein said bank is located for four consecutive weeks, stating the substance of the above requirements.

SEC. 4. [Certified copy evidence.]—A copy of any articles of incorporation, filed in pursuance of this act, and certified to by the recorder of the county in which it is filed, or by the secretary of state, shall be received in all courts, and in all actions and proceedings, as presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated.

Sec. 5. [Enumeration of powers.]—When the certificate of the auditor shall have been received, and the articles of incorporation shall have been filed and recorded, and publication shall have been made as hereinbefore provided, the persons who shall have signed and acknowledged the same, and such persons as thereafter become their associates or successors, shall be a body politic and corporate, and by their corporate name shall have succession for the period limited, and power:

First—To sue and be sued in any court.

Second—To make and use a common seal, and to alter the same at pleasure.

Third—To purchase, hold, sell, convey, and release from trust or mortgage, such real and personal estate as hereinafter provided for in this act.

Fourth—To appoint such officers, agents, and servants, as the business of the corporation shall require, to define their powers, prescribe their duties, and fix their compensation, and to require of them such security as may be thought proper for the fulfillment of their duties.

Fifth—To loan and invest the funds of the corporation; to receive deposits of money, and to loan and invest the same as hereinafter provided, and to repay such deposits without interest, or with such interest as the by-laws of the constitution may provide.

Sixth—To make by-laws, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, for the organization of the company, and the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs, the condition on which deposits will be received, the time and manner of dividing the profits and of paying interest on deposits, and for carrying on all kinds of business within the objects and purposes of the company.

Sec. 6. (As amended by ch. 89, Laws of 22d g. A.) [Management.]—The business and property of such savings banks shall be managed by a board of directors or trustees, of no less than five nor more than nine, all of whom shall be shareholders and citizens of this state, the first board to be designated in the articles of incorporation; and who shall organize by taking an oath, diligently, faithfully, and impartially to perform the duties imposed upon them by this act, and not knowingly to violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions thereof; that said directors or trustees are the bona fide owners in their own right of the stock standing in their respective names on the books of the bank; and that the same are not hypothecated, or in any manner pledged as security for any loan obtained, or debt owing to said savings bank; a certificate of which oath, signed by each director, and certified to by the officers before whom it was taken, shall be filed and preserved in the office of the auditor of state. The call for the first meeting of directors or trustees shall be signed by one or more persons named as directors or trustees in the certificate, setting forth the time and place of meeting, which notice shall be delivered personally to each director, or published at least ten days in some newspaper published in the county in which is the principal place of business of the corporation, or, if no newspaper is published in the county, then in a newspaper nearest thereto. At their first meeting, and as often thereafter as their by-laws shall require, the directors or trustees shall elect, from their number, a president and one or more vice-presidents for the ensuing year; and shall appoint a treasurer or cashier, and such other subordinate officers, agents, and servants as may be required, who shall hold their offices at the pleasure of the board, and who shall give such security for the faithful performance of their duties as may be required by the by-laws. All vacancies in the board of directors or trustees shall be filled at the next regular meeting after such vacancy shall arise, from among the stockholders, and the person receiving a majority of the votes of the whole number of directors or trustees shall be duly elected. The directors or trustees, to hold office after the expiration of the term of those named in the certificate of incorporation, shall be annually elected at such time and place, and in such mode, and upon such notice as shall be provided by the by-laws of the company, and shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified. All such elections shall be by ballot, and each stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for every share of stock held by him, and the persons so receiving the greater number of votes, shall be directors of [or] trustees. Shareholders may vote by proxy duly authorized, and no shareholder shall be entitled to vote whose liability to said bank is past due and unpaid. If it should happen at any time that an election of directors or trustees shall not be had on the day designated in the by-laws of the company, it shall be lawful on any other day to hold such election, after giving due notice, and the directors or trustees shall be continued in office until their successors are elected and qualified. A majority of the directors or trustees shall constitute a quorum of said board for the transaction of business, but said bank may provide in the by-laws that a smaller number, not less than five, one of whom shall be the president and [or] vice-president, shall constitute a quorum, which number shall thereupon be authorized to transact business, [but in no case shall a measure be declared carried unless receiving three affirmative votes.]

Sec. 7. All savings banks organized under this act may receive, on deposit, all such sums of money as shall from time to time be offered by tradesmen, merchants, laborers, servants, minors, and others. All such banks with a paid-up capital of ten thousand dollars may receive deposits to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars; those with a paid-up capital of twenty-five thousand dollars may receive deposits to the amount of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; those with a paid-up capital of fifty thousand dollars, deposits to the amount of five hundred thousand; those with a paid-up capital of one hundred thousand dollars, deposits to the amount of one million dollars; and no greater amount of deposits shall be received without a like proportionate increase of cash capital, and which capital shall be regarded a guaranty fund for the better security of depositors, and so invested in some safe and available securities. The deposits so received for the purpose of safe keeping, and invested as provided in this act, shall be paid to such depositor or his or her representatives when requested at such time or times, and with such interest, and under such regulations as the board of directors or trustees shall from time to time prescribe, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act which regulations shall be printed and conspicuously exposed in some place, accessible and visible to all, in the business office of said bank, and no alteration, which may at any time be made in such rules or regulations, shall in any manner affect the rights of depositors in respect to deposits, or the interest thereon, made previous to such alteration. It shall be lawful for savings banks to require sixty days written notice of the withdrawal of any deposits, but when there are sufficient funds on hand the officers of the bank may in their discretion waive this requirement. It shall be lawful for savings banks to close any accounts upon written notice, as may be provided for in the by-laws, to a depositor to withdraw his deposit, after which notice it shall cease to draw interest; provided, nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent such bank in their discretion from issuing certificates of deposits, payable on demand.

Sec. 8. [Accounts closed by limitation.]—All accounts upon which no deposit or drafts shall be made for a period of ten years in succession shall be so far closed that neither the sum deposited, nor the interest that shall have accrued thereon, shall be entitled to any interest after the expiration of ten years from the date of the last deposit or draft. This provision, however, shall not apply to endowments for children, to trust estates, nor to other cases where special provision is made therefor at the time of the deposit thereof.
SEC. 9. [Investment of funds.].—It shall be lawful for the directors or trustees of any such savings bank to invest the funds or capital belonging to said bank, and all moneys deposited therein, and all the gains and profits thereof, only as follows, to wit:

First.—In the stocks or bonds, or interest-bearing notes or certificates, of the United States.

Second.—In the stocks or bonds, or evidences of debt bearing interest, of this state.

Third.—In the stocks, bonds, or warrants of any city, town, county, village, or school district of this state, issued pursuant to the authority of any law of this state, but not exceeding twenty-five per cent of the assets of the bank, shall consist of town, village, or school district bonds or warrants.

Fourth.—In notes or bonds secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon unimpaired real estate in this state, worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon.

Fifth.—It shall be lawful for said banks to discount, purchase, sell, and make loans upon commercial paper, notes, bills of exchange, drafts, or any other personal or public security; but said bank shall not purchase, hold, or make loans upon the shares of its capital stock.

Sith.—[Loans upon real estate.].—In all cases of loans upon real estate, all the expenses of searches, examinations, and certificates of title, or the inspection of property, appraisals of value, and of drawing, perfecting, and recording papers, shall be paid by such borrowers. Whenever buildings are included in the valuation of any real estate upon which a loan shall be made by said bank, they shall be insured by the mortgagor, for the benefit of the bank, for at least two-thirds their value, in some reliable company, and the policy of insurance shall be duly assigned to the bank; and it shall be lawful for said bank to renew such policy of insurance from year to year, in case the mortgagor neglects to do so, and may charge the same to him. All the necessary charges and expenses paid by said bank for such renewals shall be paid for by such mortgagor to said bank, and shall be a lien upon the property so mortgaged until paid.

SEC. 10. [Real estate held by bank.].—It shall be lawful for savings banks to purchase, hold and convey real estate only as follows, to wit:

First.—The lot and building in which the business of the bank may be carried on.

Second.—Such as shall have been purchased at sales upon foreclosure of mortgages owned by the bank, or upon judgment or decrees obtained or rendered for debts due it; and all such real estate as is described in this clause shall be sold by said bank within ten years after the title of the same shall be vested in it by purchases or otherwise.

SEC. 11. [Interest on deposits.].—It shall be the duty of the board of directors or trustees, from time to time, to regulate the rate of interest or dividends to be allowed to depositors, and to pay the same upon the presentation of the deposit book or certificates; and after the payment of, or setting aside a sufficient amount to pay the interest to depositors of said banks, and after deducting the necessary expenses of said banks, the board of directors or trustees may make from the surplus profits in hand in cash such dividends on the capital stock as in their discretion may seem best and proper.

SEC. 12. [Shares.].—The capital stock of all banks organized under this act shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be deemed personal property, and shall be transferable on the books of the banks in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws. No certificate representing shares of stock shall be issued (nor shall such stock be considered as required) until the sum of money which said certificate purports to represent shall have been paid into the corporation. Shareholders in banks organized under the provisions of this act shall be individually and severally liable to the creditors of the corporation.
which they are shareholders, over and above the amount of stock by them held, to an amount equal to their respective shares so held, for all its liabilities accruing while they remained shareholders, and no transfer of stock shall affect such liability for the period of six months thereafter; and should any such bank become insolvent, and its assets be found insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities, its shareholders may, to that extent, be compelled to pay such deficiency, in proportion to the amount of stock owned by each.

SEC. 13. [Stock held by executor, guardian, etc.: by married women.]
—Whenever any stock is held by any person as executor, administrator, trustee, or guardian, he may represent such stock, in person or by proxy, and any married women holding stock in her own name, in any bank organized under this act, may cast her vote or appoint her own proxy to vote for her.

SEC. 14. [Other associations having deposits or holding stock.]
—Any person authorized thereto, by resolution of the board of directors or trustees of any corporation, association, or society, having funds deposited, or owning stock, in any bank formed under this act, shall be entitled to receive such deposit or to transfer such stock, and to cast the vote of such corporation, association, or society thereon.

SEC. 15. [Deposits by executors, etc. By minors.]
—Whenever any deposits are held by any person or as executor, administrator, trustee, or guardian, he shall be entitled to receive the same; and whenever any deposit shall be made by any minor, the directors or trustees shall pay to such depositor such sum as may be due to him or her, although no guardian shall have been appointed by or for such minor, or the guardian of such minor shall not have authorized the drawing of the same; and the check, receipt, or acquittance of such minor shall be as valid as if the same was of full age, if such deposit were made personally by said minor; and whenever any deposit shall be made in her own name by any woman being or thereafter becoming married, said directors or trustees shall pay such sum as may be due to her on her receipt or acquittance.

SEC. 16. [Not to issue circulating notes nor to contract debts except, etc.]
—No bank organized under this act shall, by implication or construction, be deemed to possess the power of creating and issuing bills, notes, or other evidences of debt for circulation as money; nor shall it be lawful for such bank, or the directors or trustees thereof, to contract any debt or liability against the bank, for any purpose whatever, except for deposits and the necessary expenses of management and transacting its business; and the capital stock and the assets of the bank shall be security to depositors.

SEC. 17. [Directors not to be paid.]
—No director or trustee of a saving[s] bank shall, as such, receive any pay or emolument for his services; and no trustee, officer, or servant of such savings bank shall, directly or indirectly, in any manner, use the funds of the said bank, or its deposits, or any part thereof, except for regular business transactions, and all loans made to said trustees, officers, servants, and agents of the bank shall be upon the same security as required of others, and in strict conformity to the rules and regulations of the bank; and all such loans shall be made only by the board, and shall be acted upon in the absence of the party applying therefor; but such reasonable compensation may be paid to the officers of the bank as may from time to time be fixed in the by-laws.

SEC. 18. [Limit of liabilities to the bank.]
The total liabilities to any association of any person or of any company, corporation, or firm, for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members of thereof, shall at no time exceed twenty per cent of capital stock actually paid in; provided, that the discount of bona fide bills of exchange drawn against actually existing value and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, or firm negotiating the same, shall not be considered money borrowed.

Sec. 19. [Misnomer.]—The misnomer of any such savings bank, in any instrument, shall not vitiate or impair the same if it be sufficiently described to ascertain the intention of the parties.

Sec. 20. [Unauthorized use of the term “savings bank” prohibited.]—It shall not be lawful for any bank, banking association or private bankers, to advertise or put forth a sign as a savings bank or savings institution; and any bank, banking association or private banker, violating these provisions, shall forfeit and pay, for every such offense, the sum of one hundred dollars for every day such offense shall be continued, to be sued for, and recovered in the name of the people of the state, in any court having cognizance thereof, for the use of the school fund.

Sec. 21. [Same.]—Any person or persons who shall put up or cause to be put up or exhibited any sign, or who shall issue or circulate any card, circular or advertisement purporting to be a savings bank not being organized under this act, shall, on conviction thereof, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each offense or for each day such offense shall be continued.

Sec. 22. [Banking associations to make quarterly statements.]—All associations organized under the general incorporation laws of this state, for the purpose of transacting a banking business, buying, selling, exchange, receiving deposits, discounting notes, etc., shall make a full, clear and accurate statement of the condition of the association as hereinafter provided, which shall be verified by the oath of the president or vice-president or cashier and two of the directors, which statement shall contain:

First—The amount of capital stock actually paid in.

Second—The amount of debts of every kind due to banks, bankers or other persons other than regular deposits.

Third—The total amount due depositors, including sight and time deposits.

Fourth—The amount subject to be drawn at sight then remaining on deposit with solvent banks or bankers of the country, specifying each city and town and the amount deposited in each and belonging to such association.

Fifth—The amount of gold and silver coin and bullion belonging to such association at the time of making statement.

Sixth—The amount then on hand of bills of solvent banks.

Seventh—The amount of bills, bonds and other evidences of debt, discounted or purchased by such association, and then belonging to the same, specifying particularly the amount of suspended debts, the amount considered good, the amount considered doubtful and the amount in suit or judgment.

Eighth—The value of real or personal property held for the convenience of such association, specifying the amount of each.

Ninth—The amount of undivided profits if any then on hands.

Tenth—The total amount of all liabilities to such association on the part of the director thereof:

Which statement shall be forthwith transmitted to the auditor of state and be by him filed in his office.

Sec. 23. [Auditor to examine association.]—The auditor of state shall at any time he may see proper, make, or cause to be made, an examination of any association, as hereinafter provided, contemplated in this chapter, or he shall call upon any such association for a report of its state and condition as hereinafter provided, upon any given day which has passed, as often as four times in a year, and which report the auditor shall cause to be published for one day in some daily newspaper published in the county where such association shall be located, or, if there be no such newspaper published in said county, then such report shall be published in some weekly newspaper printed in said county for one week, and the expenses of such publication shall be paid by such institution.

SEC. 24. [Auditor to report to general assembly.]—It shall be the duty of the auditor of state to communicate to the legislature, at each session, a statement of the condition of every savings bank from which reports have been received for the preceding year, and to suggest any amendments in the law relative to savings banks which in his judgment may be necessary or proper to increase the security of depositors.

SEC. 25. [Duty of auditor where bank is violating law, or doing unsafe business.]—Whenever it shall appear to the auditor that any savings bank has been guilty of violating this act or the law, or is conducting its business in an unsafe manner, he shall, by an order under his hand and seal of office, addressed to the institution so offending, direct discontinuance of such illegal and unsafe practices, and he shall demand a conformity with the requirements of this act, and whenever any such savings bank shall refuse or neglect to comply with such order he shall communicate the fact to the attorney-general of the state, whose duty it shall be to institute proceedings against such savings banks as are now, or may be hereafter, authorized in law in cases of insolvent corporations.

The auditor of state may appoint, and the person or persons who may be appointed by him, to examine the affairs of any savings banks, shall have power to administer oaths to any person whose testimony may be required on any such examination, and to compel the appearance and attendance of any such person, for the purpose of such examination, by summons, subpoena, or attachment, in the manner now authorized in respect to the attendance of persons as witnesses in the courts of this state, and all books and papers which it may be deemed necessary to examine by the auditor, on the examination so appointed, shall be produced, and their production may be compelled in like manner. The expenses of any examination, made in pursuance of this act, shall be paid by the savings banks so examined, in such amount as the auditor shall certify to be just and reasonable.

SEC. 26. [Penalty for false statements, etc.]—Every officer, agent, or clerk of any savings bank organized under this act, who shall willfully and knowingly subscribe or make any false statements or false entries in the books of such bank, or shall knowingly subscribe or exhibit false papers with the intent to deceive any person authorized to examine as to the condition of said institution, or shall willfully or knowingly subscribe or make false reports, shall be deemed guilty of felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars, and be imprisoned in the state prison not less than two nor more than five years, and be forever after incapable of holding any office created by this act.

SEC. 27. [Intentional fraud punished.]—Intentional fraud on the part of savings banks organized under this act, or in deceiving the public or individuals in relation to their means or their liabilities or diversion of the funds of the bank to other objects than those mentioned in its certificate of incorporation, and the payment of dividends which leave insufficient funds to meet the liabilities of the bank, shall subject those guilty thereof to fine of not less than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment of not less than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, and shall cause a forfeiture of all the privileges herein conferred, and the court may proceed to close the bank by an information in the manner prescribed by law.

SEC. 28. [Taxation of capital.]—The paid-up capital of all savings banks organized and doing business under this act shall be subject to the same rates of taxation and rules of valuation as other taxable property, by the revenue laws of the state, which taxes shall be levied on and paid by the banks, and not the individual stockholders, and the general assembly shall never impose any greater tax upon property employed in banking under this act than is or may be imposed upon the property of individuals. The franchise of all such banks, the savings and funds deposited therein, and the mortgages and other securities, wherever the same are invested, are not to be taxed, but are expressly exempted therefrom, and may be omitted from assessments of the bank required by the revenue laws of this state.

Sec. 29. [Mode of increasing capital stock.]-Whenever it is desired to increase the amount of capital stock of such banks, a meeting of stockholders may be called by a notice signed by the officers of said bank, and at least a majority of its directors, and published at least thirty days in every issue of some newspaper published in the county where the principal place of business of the bank is located, which notice shall specify the object of the meeting, the time and place when it is to be held, and the amount which it is proposed to increase the capital stock; and a vote of two-thirds of all the shares of stock of said bank shall be necessary to an increase of the amount of capital stock. If at any meeting so called a sufficient number of votes have been given in favor of increasing the amount of capital stock, a certificate of the proceedings, showing a compliance with these provisions, the amount of capital stock actually paid in, and the amount to which the capital stock is to be increased, and the manner of such increase, shall be made out, signed and verified by the affidavit of the chairman and secretary of the meeting, certified by a majority of the directors or trustees, and filed and recorded as required by the third section of this act. When this is done the capital stock of the bank shall be increased to the amount specified in the certificate.

Sec. 30. [Voluntary dissolution.]-All savings banks organized under this act may be dissolved, prior to the period fixed upon in the certificate of incorporation, by the affirmative votes of stockholders holding three-fourths of the capital stock, at a meeting of stockholders to be called for this purpose, in the manner and after publication of notice as required in the preceding section. In all cases of dissolution of a bank hereunder, or the commencement of proceedings under this act to close the same, the receiver or receivers appointed thereunder shall not be required or permitted by forced sale to sell the securities of said banks, but shall proceed as expeditiously as possible to collect the same and make distribution of proceeds to those entitled thereto.

Sec. 31. [Existing banks may reorganize.]-Any bank or association existing under and by virtue of any law of this state may be reorganized under the provisions of this act, and when duly organized all securities, real estate, or property may be transferred to such new organization; but no such reorganization shall have the effect to discharge the original bank, its directors or stockholders, from any liability to its depositors or any other person; but the same shall continue until legally discharged, and such new organization or bank shall be legally liable to pay every claim or demand existing against the bank whose assets or property, or any part thereof, it has received by reason of such reorganization. All such banks may avail themselves of the provisions of this act and become incorporated under this act, by filing with the recorder of the county in which the principal place of business is located, and a certified copy thereof in the office of the secretary of state, a certificate stating their intention and election to become so incorporated thereunder, which election and intention may be made and declared by the directors or trustees of such bank or association, or a majority of them. The certificate stating such intention may be signed by the president and secretary of such corporation, association, or bank, and shall be acknowledged before some officer competent to take acknowledgments of deeds; and in all other respects existing banks and associations reorganizing hereunder shall comply with, and conform to, all the provisions and requirements of this act with reference to the original organization of savings banks, so far as the same may be applicable, and as soon thereafter as the auditor’s certificate is received and published, as hereinbefore provided, may proceed to transact business.

SEC. 32. [Prohibited from advertising more capital than is paid in.]—Any saving[s] bank organized under the provisions of this act is hereby prohibited from advertising in any way, either by publication or otherwise, any greater amount of capital than such bank have [has] actually paid in, and such bank shall be subject to a fine of twenty-five dollars for each and every violation of this section.

SEC. 33. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby declared to be inoperative so far as they affect this act.

(CHAPTER 153, LAWS OF 1880.)

TO PROTECT DEPOSITORS AND PUNISH FRAUDULENT BANKING.

An Act to protect depositors in banks and banking institutions, and to punish fraudulent banking.

SECTION 1. [Shall not receive on deposit, etc., any bills of insolvent bank.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That no bank, banking-house, exchange broker, deposit office, or firm, company, corporation, or party, engaged in the banking, broker, exchange, or deposit business, shall accept or receive on deposit, with or without interest, any moneys, bank bills, or notes, or United States treasury notes, or currency, or other notes, bills or drafts circulating as money or currency, when such bank, banking-house, exchange, broker or deposit office, firm or party, is insolvent.

SEC. 2. [Punishment for violating act.]—If any such bank, banking-house, exchange, broker, or deposit office, firm, company, corporation, or party, shall receive or accept on deposit any such deposits as aforesaid, when insolvent, any officer director, cashier, manager, member, party, or managing party thereof, knowing of such insolvency, who shall knowingly receive or accept, be accessory, or permit, or connive at the receiving or accepting on deposit therein, or thereby, any such deposits as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not to exceed ten years, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed one year, or both fine and imprisonment, the fine not to exceed ten thousand dollars.

DOUBLE LIABILITY OF STOCKHOLDERS.

An Act to amend chapter one (1), of title nine (9) of the code of 1873, creating double liability of stockholders or shareholders in corporations organized under said chapter one (1) aforesaid, for the purpose of transacting a banking business, buying or selling exchange, receiving deposits of money, or discounting notes.

SECTION 1. [Stockholders in banks individually liable to creditors.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That chapter one (1), of title nine (9), of the code of 1873, be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto as follows: That all stockholders or shareholders in associations or corporations organized under said chapter one, (1) aforesaid, for the purpose of transacting a banking business, buying or selling exchange, receiving deposits of money or discounting notes, shall be individually and severally liable to the creditors of such association or corporation of which they are stockholders or shareholders, over and above the amount of stock by them held therein, to an amount equal to their respective shares so held for all its liabilities accruing while they remained such stockholders, and should any such association or corporation become insolvent and its assets be found insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities, its stockholders may be compelled to pay such deficiency in proportion to the amount of stock owned by each, not to exceed the extent of the additional liability hereby created.

SEC. 2. [Liability for balance of debts distributed among stockholders.]—That should the whole amount for which the stockholders are made individually responsible, as provided by section one of this act, be found in any case to be inadequate to the payment of all the debts of any such association or corporation, after the application of its assets to the payment of such debts, then the amount due from such stockholders on account of their individual liability created by this act, as such, shall be distributed equally among all the creditors of such corporation in proportion to the amount due to each.

SEC. 3. That the personal liability in this chapter provided for is over and above the stock owned by the stockholders in such corporations and any amount paid thereon.

CHAPTER 72, LAWS OF 1886.

RELATING TO STATE BANKS.

An Act requiring banking corporations other than savings banks to incorporate the word "state" in their corporate name, and to prohibit associations, partnerships or individuals engaged in banking business, buying, or selling exchange, receiving deposits, discounting notes, etc., from adopting, or using the word "state" in connection with such association, partnership, or individual name.

SECTION 1. [Banks incorporated under general law to include word "state" in their name.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all associations hereafter organized under the general incorporation laws of this state, for transacting a banking business, buying, or selling exchange, receiving deposits, discounting notes etc., other than savings banks, shall have the word "state" incorporated in and made a part of the name of such corporation, and no such corporation shall be authorized to transact business unless the provisions of this act have been complied with.

SEC. 2. [May change name to comply with this chapter.]—All such banking associations other than savings banks, incorporated at the time of the taking effect of this act may change their corporate name, by amendment of their respective articles of incorporation, so as to embrace the word "state" in their respective corporate names.

SEC. 3. [Other banks not to use word state in their name.]—It shall be unlawful for any association, not incorporated, partnership, or individual engaged in banking business, buying or selling exchange, receiving deposits, discounting notes and bills etc., to incorporate or embrace in the name of such associations, partnership, or individual the word "state," provided, this act shall not apply to banking associations organized under the laws of the United States.

Approved April 5, 1886,
TITLE XII.

OF EDUCATION.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

SECTION. 1577. [Duties.]—The superintendent of public instruction shall be charged with the general supervision of all the county superintendents and all the common schools of the state. He may meet county superintendents in convention at such points in the state as he may deem most suitable for the purpose, and by explanation and discussion endeavor to secure a more uniform and efficient administration of school laws. He shall attend teachers' institutes in the several counties of the state, as far as may be consistent with the discharge of other duties imposed by law, and assist by lecture or otherwise in their instruction and management. He shall render a written opinion to any school officer asking it, touching the exposition or administration of any school law, and shall determine all cases appealed from the decision of county superintendents.

SEC. 1578. [Office: to file papers and documents.]—An office shall be provided for him at the seat of government, in which he shall file all papers, reports, and public documents, transmitted to him by the county superintendents each year, separately, and hold the same in readiness to be exhibited to the governor, or to a committee of either house of the general assembly, at any time when required; and he shall keep a fair record of all matters pertaining to his office.

SEC. 1579. (As amended by ch. 59, 22d g. a.) [Publish amendments to school law: prepare certificate.]—[After the adjournment of the eighteenth general assembly, and every four years thereafter, if deemed necessary, he may cause to be printed and bound in cloth the school laws, and all amendments thereto, with such notes, rulings, forms and decisions as may seem of value to aid school officers in the proper discharge of their duties. Appropriate reference shall be made to the previous law that has been amended or changed, so as clearly to indicate the effect of such amendment or changes. He shall send to each county superintendent a number of copies sufficient to supply each school district in his county with one copy of such laws, with decisions. He shall also cause to be printed and bound in paper covers the school laws, with notes and with forms necessary to be used in carrying out the school laws; provided that he shall furnish each of the members of the boards of directors with one copy of the laws bound in paper covers, which shall be turned over to their successors in office.

[Took effect by publication in newspapers.]—After such sessions of the general assembly as [if] the state superintendent shall not deem it necessary to publish the laws as provided for in section one of this act, he shall cause to be published in pamphlet form all the amendments to the school laws passed by such general assembly, in sufficient numbers to supply each of the county superintendents and school officers of the state with one copy free of charge, which said amendments shall be sent to the several county superintendents for distribution.]
SEC. 1580. (Repealed by chapter 102, laws of 1878.)

SEC. 1581. [May subscribe for Iowa School Journal.]—He may, if he deem it expedient, subscribe for a sufficient number of the Iowa School Journal, or of such other educational journal published in the state as he may select to furnish each county superintendent with one copy, and his certificate of having thus subscribed, shall be authority for the auditor of state to issue his warrant for the amount of said subscription; provided, he shall cause to be inserted in the journal he may so select a correct copy of any decision he may deem it necessary to make for the efficient carrying out of the school law.

SEC. 1582. [Report to auditor.]—He shall, annually, on the first day of January, report to the auditor of state the number of persons in each county between the ages of five and twenty-one years.

SEC. 1583. (As amended by ch. 82, 20th g. a.) [Report to each regular session of general assembly.]—(He shall make to the governor biennially a report,) which shall embrace, first, a statement of the condition of the common schools of the state; the number of district townships and sub-districts therein; the number of teachers; the number of schools; the number of school-houses and the value thereof; the number of persons between five and twenty-one years of age; the number of scholars in each county that have attended school the previous year, as returned by the several county superintendents; the number of books in the district libraries; and the value of all apparatus in the schools and such other statistical information as he may deem important. Second, such plans as he may have matured for the more perfect organization and efficiency of common schools. He shall cause one thousand copies of his report to be printed, and shall present it to the general assembly on the second day of its session.

SEC. 1584. [May appoint teachers' institute: appropriation for.]—Whenever reasonable assurance shall be given by the county superintendent of any county to the superintendent of public instruction, that not less than twenty teachers desire to assemble for the purpose of holding a teachers' institute in said county, to remain in session not less than six working days, he shall appoint the time and place of said meeting, and give due notice thereof to the county superintendent; and for the purpose of defraying the expenses of said institute there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum not exceeding fifty dollars annually for one such institute in each county held as aforesaid, which the said superintendent shall immediately transmit to the county superintendent in whose county the institute shall be held, who shall therewith defray the necessary expenses of the institute, and, if any balance remains, he shall pay the same into the county treasury and the same shall be credited to the teachers' fund.

OF THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

Section 1585. [Objects of: course of study.]—The objects of the state university, established by the constitution at Iowa City, shall be to provide the best and most efficient means of imparting to young men and women on equal terms, a liberal education and thorough knowledge of the different branches of literature, the arts and sciences, with their varied applications. The university, so far as practicable, shall begin the courses of study in its collegiate and scientific departments, at the points where the same are completed in the high schools; and no student shall be admitted who has not previously completed the elementary studies, in such branches as are taught in the common schools throughout the state.

The state university is an institution established by the constitution, and its organization provided for, and its existence secured by the statutes. The institution is intended to be an efficient means of promoting intellectual improvement. Per BEOK, J., in The State v. Sherman, 46 Iowa, 415, 422.

The state university is not a corporation, but a creature of the legislature, whose property belongs to the state as essentially as does that which is being used for asylums for the insane, the deaf and dumb, the blind, etc. It is not liable to be sued in an action at law. Weary et al. v. The State University, 42 Id., 335.

Sec. 1586. [Control of.]—The university shall never be under the exclusive control of any religious denomination whatever.

Sec. 1587. (As amended by ch. 181, 21st g. a.) [Governed by board of regents: who composes.]—The university shall be governed by a board of regents, consisting of the governor of the state, who shall be president of the board by virtue of his office, the superintendent of public instruction, who shall be a member by virtue of his office, together with one person from each congressional district of the state, who shall be elected by the general assembly.

Sec. 1588. [Members classed.]—The members of said board shall be divided into three classes, consisting of two each. The number in each class, as the congressional districts of the state increase, shall be kept as nearly equal as practicable, and the members in each class shall hold office for the term of six years from their election, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The general assembly shall elect members every two years, as the terms of office of the respective classes expire. The board of regents shall fill all vacancies occurring therein, except when the legislature is in session, and the persons so appointed shall hold their offices until the next session of the general assembly.

Sec. 1589. [May purchase apparatus, library, etc.]—The university shall include a collegiate, scientific, normal, law, and such other departments, with such courses of instruction and elective studies as the board of regents may determine; and the board shall have authority to confer such degrees, and grant such diplomas and other marks of distinction as are usually conferred and granted by other universities.

Sec. 1590. [Meeting of: special: how called.]—The meetings of the board of regents shall be held at such times as the board may appoint. The president of the board may call special meetings when he deems it expedient, or special meetings may be called by any three members of the board.

Sec. 1591. [Executive committee appointed: power: duty of.]—An executive committee, consisting of three competent and responsible persons, shall be appointed by the board of regents, who shall audit all claims, and whose chairman shall draw all orders for such audited claims on the treasurer, but before payment such orders shall be countersigned by the secretary. Said committee shall keep a specific and complete record of all matters involving the expenditure of money, which record shall be submitted to the board of regents at each regular meeting of the same.

Sec. 1592. [Elect secretary: to keep record of proceedings.]—The board of regents shall elect a secretary, who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the board. He shall record all the proceedings of the board of regents, and carefully preserve all its books and papers. His books shall exhibit what parts of the university lands have been sold, when the same were sold and at what price, and to whom, on what terms, what portion of the purchase money has been paid, and when paid, on each sale, how much is due on each sale, by whom and how secured, and when payable, what lands remain unsold, where situated, and their appraised value, if appraised, or their estimated value, if not appraised. His books shall also show how the permanent fund of the university has been invested, the amount of each kind of stocks, if any, with the date thereof and when due, and the interest thereon and when and where payable, the amount of each loan, if any, and when made, and payable to whom, and how secured, and at what rate of interest, and when and where payable. When any further sales of lands, or further instruments shall be made, the secretary shall enter the same upon his books as above set forth. The secretary shall countersign and register all orders for money on the treasurer, and the treasurer shall not pay an order on him for money unless the same be countersigned by the secretary.

SEC. 1593. [Elect treasurer: to give bond: how approved: where filed:
duty of.].—The board of regents shall elect a treasurer, who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the board. He shall keep a true and faithful account of all moneys received and paid out by him, and before entering upon the duties of his office he shall take and subscribe an oath that he will faithfully perform the duties of treasurer; and he shall also give a bond in the penalty of not less than fifty thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as treasurer, and that he will at all times keep and render a true account of moneys received by him as such treasurer, and of the disposition he has made of the same, and that he will at all times be ready to discharge himself of the trust, and to pay over when required; which bond shall have two or more good securities, and shall be approved as to its form and the sufficiency of its sureties by the board of regents, and also the auditor and secretary of state, and shall be filed in the office of the latter.

SEC. 1594. [Books of: what accounts kept by treasurer.].—The treasurer of the university shall have a set of books, in which he shall keep an accurate account of all transactions relative to the sale and disposition of university lands, and the management of the funds arising therefrom; which books shall exhibit what parts and portions of the land have been sold, at what prices and to whom, and how the proceeds have been invested, and on what securities, and what lands still remain unsold, where situated, and of what value respectively

SEC. 1595. [Notify persons in default owing university.].—The treasurer shall, on the first day of June and December of each year, notify in writing each person in default of payment of either principal or interest of funds loaned by or due to the university, and shall cause suit to be commenced against such delinquents, when, in his judgment, the best interest of the institution requires it.

SEC. 1596. The board of regents shall enact laws for the government of the university, and shall appoint a president and the requisite number of professors and tutors, together with such other officers as they may deem expedient, and shall determine the salaries of such officers, the compensation of the secretary and treasurer, and the amount of fees to be paid for tuition. They shall remove any officer connected with the university, when, in their judgment, the good of the institution requires it.

SEC. 1597. [Purchase apparatus, library, etc.].—The board of regents is authorized to expend such portion of the income of the university fund as it may deem expedient, in the purchase of apparatus, library and a cabinet of natural history, in providing suitable means to keep and preserve the same, and in procuring all other necessary facilities for giving instruction.

SEC. 1598. [Cabinet of natural history.].—All specimens of natural history and geological and mineralogical specimens, which are or hereafter may be collected by the state geologist of Iowa, or by any others appointed by the state to investigate its natural history and physical resources, shall belong to and be the property of the state university, and shall form a part of its cabinet of natural history, which shall be under the charge of the professor of that department.

SEC. 1599. [Lands of: how sold and proceeds invested.].—No sales of lands belonging to the university shall hereafter take place unless the same shall have been decided upon at a regular meeting of the board of regents, or at one called for that particular purpose; and then only in the manner, upon the notice, and on the terms which the board shall prescribe; and no member of the board shall be either directly or indirectly interested in any purchase of such lands upon sale, nor shall the secretary or treasurer be so interested. It shall be lawful for the board to invest any portion of the permanent endowment fund, not otherwise invested, as well as any surplus income which is not immediately required for other purposes, in United States stock, or stocks of the state of Iowa, or by note and mortgage on unencumbered real estate, the value of which, after deducting the value of all perishable improvements thereon, shall be double the amount of the sum loaned, and hold the same for the university, either as a permanent fund, or as an income to defray current expenses, as said board of regents may deem expedient. It shall not be lawful for the board to use any portion of the permanent fund for the ordinary expenses of the institution.

SEC. 1600. [President to report to regents.]—The president of the university shall make a report on the fifteenth day of September preceding the meeting of the general assembly, to the board of regents, which shall exhibit the condition and progress of the institution in its several departments, the different courses of study pursued therein, the branches taught, the means and methods of instruction adopted, the number of students, with their names, classes and residences, and such other matters as he may deem proper to communicate.

SEC. 1601. (As amended by ch. —, 22d g. a.) [Regents report to superintendent of public instruction.]—The board of regents shall, on the first day of October preceding each regular meeting of the general assembly, make a report to the superintendent of public instruction, which report, with that of the president of the university, shall be embodied in the said superintendent's report to the [governor]. The report of the board of regents shall contain the number of professors, tutors and other officers, with the compensation of each, the condition of the university fund, and the income received therefrom, the amount of expenditures and the items thereof, with such other information and recommendations as they may deem expedient to lay before the [governor].

SEC. 1602. [Compensation of.]—The regents shall receive no compensation except for mileage in traveling to and from the meetings of the board, which shall be at the same rate, and computed in the same manner, as the mileage allowed to members of the general assembly. The auditor of state is hereby authorized to audit and allow the claims for such attendance, for not more than three meetings annually.

SEC. 1603. [Member of general assembly not eligible.]—No member of the general assembly shall be eligible to the office of regent during the term for which he was so elected.

state university.

An Act for the endowment and support of the state university. (Additional to code, title XII, chapter 2, "Of the state university.")

SECTION 1. [$20,000 endowment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there be and is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twenty thousand (20,000) dollars annually to the state university as an endowment fund for said institution, to be paid in installments of five thousand (5,000) dollars each. The first installment of five thousand (5,000) dollars to be paid on the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight (1878) and the same sum quarterly thereafter.

Sec. 2. [$10,000 for repairs.]—That there be and is hereby appropriated, in addition to the amounts appropriated in the first section of this act, the sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars for repairs on the buildings, and for fencing and walks, and for no other purpose. One-half of said amount to be paid on the first day of September, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, and one half on the first day of September, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

Sec. 3. [Money to be drawn on order of executive committee.]—The money hereby appropriated shall be drawn from the state treasury by the treasurer of said state university, on the order of the executive committee appointed by the board of regents of said university, countersigned by the secretary thereof under the university seal.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

An Act to prevent the use of funds of the state university for support of the preparatory department after July 1, 1879.

Section 1. [Funds shall not be used for preparatory department.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That after the first day of July, 1879, no part of the funds belonging to or appropriated for the state university shall be used for the support of the preparatory or non-collegiate course of studies heretofore taught in said university.

RELATING TO STATE UNIVERSITY LANDS.

An Act to authorize the secretary of state to issue patents to state university lands in certain cases.

Section 1. [Patents to university lands may be issued, where certificate of purchase has been lost.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The secretary of state is hereby authorized to issue patents for lands, the legal title to which is vested in the state university of Iowa, in cases wherein it is shown to the satisfaction of the governor and attorney general that such lands have been in fact sold by the authority of the state and paid for, and that the certificates of purchase have been lost or destroyed.

Sec. 2. [Patent inures to benefit of original purchaser.]—The patents thus issued shall inure to the benefit of the original purchaser and his grantees (grantees) only, and a clause to this effect shall be inserted in the patent.

Approved April 13, 1886.
An Act to establish a central station of the "Iowa weather service," and for the appointment of a director thereof.

SECTION 1. [Central station at Iowa City.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there be and hereby is established, at Iowa City, a central station for the Iowa weather service, with Gustavus Hinrichs as director thereof; and in case of his death or disability, his successor shall be appointed by the governor.

SEC. 2. [Duties of director.]—The duties of said director shall be to establish volunteer weather stations throughout the state, and supervise the same, to receive reports therefrom, and reduce the same to tabular form, and to report the same quarterly to the state printer, for publication, in the form of the "Iowa weather report."

SEC. 3. [Report to be printed and distributed.]—That the state printer be authorized to print two thousand copies of the said Iowa weather report quarterly, one thousand copies of which shall be for distribution by the said director, and one thousand copies delivered to the secretary of state, to be by him distributed in the same manner as other state documents.

SEC. 4. [$1,000 appropriated annually.]—That there is hereby appropriated the sum of one thousand dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the purpose of meeting the actual expenses in carrying out the provisions of this measure, but no part of said sum shall be used in payment of salaries to any officer or officers, except for clerk hire, and only upon the order of the said director.

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND FARM.

SECTION 1604. (As amended by ch. 76, 20th g. a.) [Controlled by board of trustees—one from each congressional district.]—The lands, rights, powers, and privileges granted to and conferred upon the state of Iowa by the act of congress entitled "An act donating public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," approved July 2, 1862, are hereby accepted by the state of Iowa, upon the terms, conditions, and restrictions contained in said act, and there is hereby established an agricultural college and model farm, to be connected with the entire agricultural and mechanical interests of the state; the said college and farm to be under the control and management of a board [of trustees consisting of one person from each congressional district of the state. But the present board of trustees shall continue as members of the board of trustees from their several congressional districts until their terms of office expire.]

SEC. 1605. (As amended by ch. 76, 20th g. a.) [Election and term of trustees.]—[That of the members of said board representing the different congressional districts there shall be elected by this general assembly one to serve two years, four to serve four years, and three to serve six years from the first day of May, A. D. 1884, and as the term of office of the members of the board expire, the general assembly shall elect their successors, whose term of office shall be six years. The board of trustees shall fill all vacancies occurring therein, except when the legislature is in session, and the persons so appointed shall hold their office until the next session of the general assembly after such appointment; but neither the president nor any other officer or employe of the college and farm, nor any member of the general assembly shall be eligible as trustees.

SEC. 1606. [The board of trustee shall have power:]
1. To elect a chairman from their own number, a president of the college and farm, a secretary, a treasurer, professors and other teachers, superintendents of departments, a steward, a librarian, and such other officers as may be required for the transaction of the business of the board; also to fix the salaries of officers and prescribe their duties; and to appoint substitutes who shall discharge the duties of such officers during their temporary absence;
2. To manage and control all the property of the college and farm, whether real or personal;
3. To make rules and regulations for the government of the college and farm;
4. (As amended by ch. 119, 16th g. a.) To establish rules regulating the number of hours which shall be devoted to manual labor, and to fix the compensation therefor; provided, no student shall be exempt from labor except in cases of sickness or other infirmity, or where students from the advanced classes may be employed as teachers;
5. To arrange courses of study and practice, and to establish such professorships as they may deem best to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter; also to prescribe conditions of admission to the college;
6. To grant diplomas, on the recommendation of the faculty, to any student who has completed either of the industrial courses prescribed by said board, or an equivalent thereof;
7. To remove any officer by a majority vote of all the members of the board of trustees;
8. To direct the expenditure of all appropriations which the general assembly shall from time to time make to said college and farm, and the income arising from the congressional grant, and from all other sources;
9. To keep a full and complete record of their proceedings, and to do such other acts as are found necessary to carry out the intent and meaning of this chapter.

SEC. 1607. [Quorum.]—A majority of the trustees shall be a quorum for the transaction of business.

SEC. 1608. (As amended by ch. 7, 15th g. a.) [Compensation.]—The trustees shall receive as their compensation five dollars a day for each and every day actually employed in the discharge of their duties, and five cents per mile for each and every mile actually traveled on such business; provided, that no member shall receive compensation for more than thirty days in each year, (to be audited by the state auditor.)

SEC. 1609. The annual meetings of the board of trustees shall be held at the agricultural college on the second Wednesday of November.

SEC. 1610. (As amended by § 9, ch. 159, 16th g. a.) [College year: report of trustees to governor.]—The college year shall begin on Thursday after the second Wednesday in November of each year, and end on the second Wednesday of November of the following year. The biennial report of the board of trustees shall be filed in the office of the governor, not later than the first day of December preceding the regular meeting of the general assembly.
SEC. 1611. [Power and duty of president.]]—The president of the college and farm shall control, manage and direct the affairs of the college and farm herein established, subject to such rules as may be prescribed by the board of trustees, and shall report to said board at their annual meeting in November, and at such other times as they shall direct, all his acts as such president, and the condition of the several departments of the college and farm, together with his recommendations for the future management thereof.

SEC. 1612. [Of secretary.]]—The secretary shall keep the documents and a record of the proceedings of the board of trustees, and conduct their official correspondence. All acts of the board of trustees as to the management, disposition, or use of the lands, funds, or other property of the institution shall be entered in the record of its proceedings, and said record shall show how each member voted on each proposition. He shall also make the biennial report of the board to the general assembly. Upon the election of any person to an office under said board, he shall give notice thereof to the secretary of state. He shall also keep an account with the treasurer, charging him with all money paid to him from any source, and crediting him with the amounts paid out by him upon the order of the board of audit, which account shall be balanced monthly.

SEC. 1613. [President and secretary compose board of audit.]]—The president and secretary shall constitute a board of audit, who shall, under the rules of the board of trustees, examine all bills presented for payment, and no bills shall be paid without their joint indorsement thereon; provided, that no bill shall be so audited for whose payment the board of trustees has not made appropriation; also, the board of audit shall examine the treasurer's books and vouchers monthly, and at such other times and so often as they shall deem necessary. All the proceedings as contemplated in this section shall be reported by the secretary to the board of trustees at each meeting thereof.

SEC. 1614. [Treasurer to have custody of money, notes, and contracts.]]—The treasurer shall receive and keep all notes and other evidence of indebtedness, contracts, and all moneys arising from the income of the congressional grant, from the appropriations of the general assembly, from the sales of the products of the farm, from the payments of students, and from all other sources, and shall pay out the same upon bills duly audited as above prescribed, and he shall retain such bills with the receipt for their payment as his vouchers; but no bill shall be paid for which appropriation had not been made by the board of trustees. He shall keep an accurate account of the revenue and expenditures of said college and farm from all sources, and in such manner that the receipts and disbursements of each and every one of the several departments thereof shall be apparent at all times, and the gains and losses in such department shall be carefully set forth; and he shall report to the board of trustees at their annual meeting in November, and at such other times as they shall direct. He shall also execute duplicate receipts of all money received by him, specifying the source from which received, and the fund to which it belongs, one of which must be filed with the secretary, and no receipt for money paid him shall be valid unless the duplicate is so filed. The treasurer shall be elected annually, and give a bond every year in double the highest amount of money likely to be in his hands at any one time, with such sureties as the executive council shall prescribe, and said bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and the treasurer may appoint a deputy who shall reside at the college, and the board of trustees shall fix the compensation to be paid to such deputy, and the treasurer shall be responsible on his official bond for all acts done by such deputy.

SEC. 1615. [President and secretary: oath of treasurer.]]—The president and secretary shall have their respective offices at the college, and they, with the treasurer, shall take and subscribe the oath provided in section one hundred and twenty-six, chapter nine, title two of this code.

(SEC. 1616. Repealed by chapter 71, laws of 1874.)

SEC. 1617. (As substituted by ch. 91, 16th g. c.) [Money arising from sales paid to state treasurer and invested.][The money arising from the sale of said lands shall be paid into the state treasury, and shall be invested by the state treasurer subject to the approval of the executive council, in stocks of the United States, or of the states, or some other safe stocks, yielding not less than five per centum per annum on the par value of said stocks as directed by the act of congress granting said lands, and the money arising from the interest on said stocks, on the deferred payments, and on the leases of said lands, as rental thereof, shall be paid over to the board of trustees, and may be loaned by said board of trustees on good and sufficient security when not needed to defray such expenses of the college as said moneys are legally applicable to.]

SEC. 1618. [Agents appointed: to give bond.]—The trustees are hereby endowed with all the necessary authority to appoint agents, or do any other acts necessary to carry out the provisions of the three preceding sections. But no such agent shall be appointed with authority to receive any money until he has executed a good and sufficient bond to be approved by the trustees in a sum double the amount he will be likely to receive. And every such agent shall make a monthly statement under oath to the college treasurer of the amount received by him, and transmit therewith all funds shown to be in his hands.

SEC. 1619. [Tuition free: prior right of counties.]—Tuition in the college herein established shall be forever free to pupils from this state over sixteen years of age, who have been residents of the state six months previous to their admission. Each county in this state shall have a prior right to tuition for three scholars from such county, the remainder equal to the capacity of the college shall be by the trustees distributed among the counties in proportion to the population, subject to the above rule. Transient scholars otherwise qualified may at all times receive tuition.

SEC. 1620. [Sale of liquors or wine and beer prohibited.]—No person shall open, maintain or conduct any shop or other place for the sale of wine, beer or spirituous liquors, or sell the same at any place within a distance of three miles from the agricultural college and farm; provided, that the same may be sold for sacramental, mechanical, medical or culinary purposes; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be punished, on conviction by any court of competent jurisdiction, by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each offense, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 1621. (As amended by ch. 27, 20th g. a.) [Branches of study.]—[That there shall be adopted and taught at the state agricultural college a broad, liberal and practical course of study in which the leading branches of learning shall relate to agriculture and the mechanic arts, and which shall also embrace such other branches of learning as will most practically and liberally educate the agricultural and industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life, including military tactics.]

SEC. 1622. [Money cannot be diverted from appropriate fund.]—No money shall be diverted from the fund to which it belongs, or used for any purpose other than is provided by law, and any trustee, officer or employe of said institution who may, by vote, direction or act, violate the provisions of this section, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the penitentiary or county jail not less than six months.
TO PROVIDE FOR DISPOSING OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE LANDS.

An Act to provide for selling, leasing, and patenting the lands belonging to the Iowa state agricultural college and farm. [Amends chapter 117, acts 10th general assembly, and repeals chapter 71, acts 15th general assembly.]

SEC. 1. [Trustees authorized to sell.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the trustees of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm be, and they are hereby, authorized to sell the lands granted to the state of Iowa by an act of congress entitled "An act donating public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts," approved July 2, 1862. Such sales shall be for cash, or upon a partial credit not exceeding ten years, at such appraised value as shall be fixed by said trustees. All deferred payments shall draw interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, payable annually in advance.

[Failure to pay interest for sixty days a forfeiture.]—Upon a failure to pay the annual interest or principal within sixty days after it becomes due and within sixty days after notice thereof in writing, by mail or otherwise, from the trustees or land agent of said college to the holder of the lease shall have been given, the purchaser shall forfeit all claim to said land and the improvements made thereon, and all sums paid on said contract, unless in the opinion of the trustees an extension should be allowed.

SEC. 2. [Trustees may lease for ten years at 8 per cent.]—Said trustees are also authorized to lease the said lands for a term not exceeding ten years, at an annual rent equal to eight per cent per annum upon the appraised value of the tract, payable annually in advance, and the said lessee, his heirs or assigns, shall have the privilege of purchasing said tract of land at the expiration of the lease at the appraised value stated in the lease. The lessee failing to pay the annual interest upon said lease within sixty days after the same becomes due and within sixty days after notice thereof in writing, by mail or otherwise, from the trustees or land agent of said college to the holders of the lease shall have been given, shall forfeit his lease, together with the interest thereon, and improvements made on said lands.

SEC. 3. [Trustees may cause purchase price to be reviewed.]—The said trustees are authorized at their option to cause to be reviewed [reviewed] the purchase price of the land so sold or leased, or which has been heretofore sold or leased, before the same becomes due, upon such terms and conditions of payment as said trustees may deem for the best interest of the institution.

[May renew leases: subject to taxation.]—Said trustees may also renew leases as they expire, and when so renewed the leasehold estate shall be subject to taxation as provided in chapter one hundred and sixty-nine of the acts of the nineteenth general assembly, entitled "An act to provide for taxation of leasehold estates in agricultural college lands," approved March 25, 1882.

SEC. 4. [All leases assignable.]—Leases heretofore issued by said trustees under the authority of former acts of the general assembly of this state, and all renewals of such leases, shall be deemed assignable, and all transfers of such leases or renewals heretofore made shall be valid, and the owner, whether holding one or more than one such lease or renewal, who has made the annual payments therein required, shall be entitled to all the benefits of such contract or contracts, and shall have the privilege of purchasing the tract or tracts of land so held by him as provided in the lease, and upon payment of the purchase money shall be entitled to a patent for the land described in said lease or leases.
SEC. 5. [Lands acquired by purchase, subject to same conditions.]—The said trustees be and they are hereby authorized in like manner to sell or lease the lands belonging to the said Iowa agricultural college acquired by purchase with accumulated interest fund.

SEC. 6. [President and secretary to issue certificate to purchaser.] Whenever a sale shall be made of any of said lands as hereinbefore provided, the president of the said agricultural college shall issue to the purchaser a certificate, countersigned by the secretary of said board, stating the fact of purchase, the name of the purchaser, description of land and the appraised value thereof. Upon payment of such purchase price to the treasurer of state the purchaser or his assigns shall be entitled to a patent or patents for such tract or tracts of land. And upon presentation of such certificate to the secretary of state, with the receipt of the treasurer of state showing full payment of the purchase money and stating the amount thereof, said secretary of state shall issue to the purchaser, or his assignee, patent or patents for the tract or tracts of land therein described, which patents shall be signed by the governor and secretary of state, as other patents or deeds for lands conveyed by the state, and shall vest in the purchaser all the right, title and interest of the state and of said college in and to the lands therein described.

SEC. 7. [Treasurer of state to hold funds.]—The principal of all moneys collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid to and held by the treasurer of state, and shall be drawn out for the purpose of investment on the order of the board of trustees, only when required to complete a loan. The interest collected shall be paid to the treasurer of the college upon the order of the board of trustees.

SEC. 8. [Repeal.]—Chapter seventy-one of the acts of the fifteenth general assembly, entitled “An act to regulate the leasing of the lands belonging to the Iowa state agricultural college,” approved March 19, 1874, and all acts and parts of acts conflicting with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

COMPENSATION OF TRUSTEES OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

An Act to pay the board of trustees of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm. [Amendatory of chapter 3, title XII, of the code.]

SECTION 1. [Editor to audit pay of trustees.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the auditor of state is hereby authorized to audit and allow the claims of the board of trustees from and after the first day of September, 1873, in accordance with section 1608 of the code of 1873.

TAXATION OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE LEASEHOLDS.

SECTION 1. [Leasehold interest taxable.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in all cases where leases of lands executed by the trustees of the agricultural college have been or shall hereafter be renewed ten years after the date of the original lease has expired, the interest in such lands of the lessee, his heirs, or assigns, shall be subject to assessment and taxation as real property. The value of such interest shall be ascertained by deducting from the value of such lands and the improvements thereon the amount required to be paid by the terms of the lease to acquire the title thereto. Such leasehold interest shall... be assessed, taxed, and sold for delinquent taxes, and redemption from such sale be made or tax-deed be issued, in all respects like other real estate, save as herein otherwise provided, with the same rights, liabilities, and effect, and the treasurer’s tax-deed shall operate as a full and complete assignment of said leasehold interest to the grantee named in such deed.

Sec. 2. [Holder of certificate may pay interest and principal.]—At any time after such leasehold interest shall have been sold for delinquent taxes the holder of the certificate of purchase may pay any interest or principal due by the terms of the lease, or do any other act necessary to prevent a forfeiture of such lease by the terms thereof, and the proper voucher for such payment shall be filed with the auditor of the county where the land is situated. No redemption from a sale of such land shall be allowed until the amounts paid by the holder of the certificate of sale by virtue of this act, together with interest thereon at eight per cent per annum from the dates of payment, shall be paid to the auditor, with all other amounts required by law to complete such redemption, to be by him paid to the holder of such certificate, and the certificate of redemption shall show the amounts paid by the party redeeming on account of such lease.

Sec. 3. [Tax purchaser may buy lands according to lease.]—Where any leasehold interest has been sold for delinquent taxes and a treasurer’s deed issued thereon, the grantee in such deed named, his heirs, or assigns, shall be entitled to purchase the land conveyed by such deed at the price and on the terms specified in the lease therefor then in force, and to receive a patent therefor. In case such lease shall expire before the holder of the certificate of sale shall be entitled to a treasurer’s deed, such holder may pay the amount required by the terms of such lease to acquire the title in fee of said land, and receive a conveyance of the same, and after such conveyance is made no redemption from the tax sale of the land thereby conveyed shall be allowed.

Sec. 4. [Evidence of tax purchaser’s right.]—The right of the tax sale purchaser or his assigns to pay any amount due by virtue of any lease shall be evidenced by a copy of the certificate of sale, or treasurer’s deed as the case may be, duly certified by the officer, or officers, executing the same, and in case no tax deed has been issued the auditor of the proper county shall further certify that redemption from the tax sale has not been made; such copy and certificate shall be filed with the secretary of the board of trustees and become a part of the records of his office.

Sec. 5. [Board to certify to county auditor lists of lands held under renewed leases.]—The board of trustees shall cause to be certified to the auditor of each county in which leased college lands are situated, on or before the first day of April, A. D. 1882, and on or before the fifth day of January of each year thereafter, a list of such lands held under renewed leases, together with name of each lessee thereof, the date and terms of each lease, the amounts to be paid thereunder, and the dates when such amounts will become due. Each auditor of a county in which such lands are situated shall deliver to the assessor of each township which contains any of said lands, on or before the first day of April, A. D. 1882, and on or before the fifteenth day of January for each year thereafter, a list of such land situated in such township, together with a statement showing the lessee of each tract and the amounts to be paid by virtue of the lease thereon, and the dates of payment.

Sec. 6. [Leaseholds not to be taxed for past years.]—Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize the taxation of any leasehold interest under and by virtue of this act for any year prior to 1882.

Sec. 7. [Repealing clause.]—All acts and parts of acts, so far as they conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.

An Act to provide for the investment of the endowment fund of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm. [Amendatory of code, chapter 3, title XII.]

SECTION 1. [Management and investment of endowment fund vested in trustees.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the board of trustees of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm, be, and they are hereby charged and intrusted with the management and investment of the endowment fund of said college, derived from the sale of the lands granted to the state of Iowa by an act of congress entitled, "An act donating public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts," approved July 2, 1862. Such investment may be in stocks of the United States, or of the states, or some other safe stocks yielding not less than five per centum of the par value of said stocks, as provided by act of congress granting said lands.

[Approved by executive council.]—Before the purchase of any such stocks shall be made the proposed investment shall be submitted to and approved by the state executive council.

SEC. 2. [Funds: how loaned.]—Said board of trustees are also authorized to loan said fund upon approved real estate security in accordance with the following rules and regulations:

First—Each loan shall be for a term not exceeding ten years, at a rate of interest to be fixed by said board not exceeding ten per centum, and not less than six per cent per annum, payable annually.

Second—Each loan shall be secured by a mortgage paramount to all other liens upon improved farm lands in the state of Iowa, and shall not exceed forty per cent of the cash value of the mortgaged premises, exclusive of buildings.

Third—Principal and interest shall be payable to the order of said board at the office of the state treasurer at Des Moines, Iowa, and the notes and mortgages shall provide for the payment, by the borrower, of all expenses, attorneys' fees and costs, which shall be incurred in collecting the principal and interest of such loans, or any part thereof, by reason of the default of such borrower.

Fourth—A register containing a complete abstract of such loan, and showing its actual condition shall be kept by the secretary of said board, and shall be at all times open to inspection. The attorney-general, under the direction of the executive council, shall prepare all blanks, forms and instructions necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this section, and to keep the funds loaned as herein provided secure and unimpaired.

SEC. 3. (As amended by ch. 58, 22d g. a.) Trustees authorized to appoint a financial agent.]—That for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, the said trustees are authorized to appoint a financial agent to receive applications and negotiate loans in accordance with the conditions herein contained. [And to take charge of the foreclosure of the mortgages and collection of bonds from delinquent debtors to said fund, when so directed by the said trustees.] The trustees shall require any agent appointed under this act, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, to give bond with approved sureties in a penal sum to be determined by said board of trustees, which shall be at least double the amount of funds liable to come into his hands at any time, and shall be for the use and benefit of said Iowa state agricultural college and farm, and actions for breach of the conditions hereof may be brought in the name of said board of trustees. The appointment of such agent, and the bond given by him, shall be subject to approval by the state executive council. Such agent shall hold his office during the pleasure of the board of trustees.

SEC. 4. [Duty of the secretary.]—The secretary of the board of trustees shall semi-annually report to the executive council, and to the board of trustees at every meeting, all loans made under this act, giving a description of the security taken and the value thereof, the name of the borrower, length of time, and amount of loan and rate of interest.

SEC. 5. [Foreclosure of mortgages.]—Foreclosure of mortgages taken under this act may be made in the name of the board of trustees of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm, and in case of sale on execution under such foreclosure the mortgaged premises may be bid off in the name of the state of Iowa, and if deed therefor be made, said premises shall be held by the state in trust for the benefit of said agricultural college. Such land shall be subject to lease or sale the same as other land belonging to the college.

SEC. 6. [Compensation of agent.]—The agent provided for by section three of this act shall receive compensation to be fixed by said board of trustees at a rate not exceeding the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, and all necessary expenses while necessarily away from his office, in the discharge of his official duties, to be paid as other officers, out of the treasury of the state.

SEC. 7. [Money to be paid into state treasury and principal kept by treasurer of state.]—Moneys collected from delinquents shall be paid at once into the state treasury. The principal of the fund shall be kept by the treasurer of state and shall be drawn out for the purpose of investment as hereinbefore provided upon the order of the board of trustees, subject to such restrictions as may be imposed by the attorney-general and the state executive council.

[Monthly report of treasurer.]—The treasurer of state shall make monthly reports to the secretary of the board of trustees, showing all payments of principal and interest, and shall remit to the treasurer of the college all interest then in his hands, as shown by such reports.

SEC. 8. [Repealing clause.]—All acts and parts of acts conflicting with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

An act to amend chapter 193 of laws of the twentieth general assembly, in relation to the management and investment of the endowment fund of the Iowa agricultural college.

SECTION 1. (Amendment of ch. 193, 20th g. a.)—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 3, of chapter 193, laws of the twentieth general assembly of Iowa, be and the same is hereby amended by inserting after the word “contained,” in the fourth line of said section as the same is printed in the session acts of said twentieth general assembly, the following: “And to take charge of the foreclosure of the mortgages and collection of bonds from delinquent debtors to said fund when so directed by the said trustees.”

SEC. 2. [Bond of financial agent.]—It shall be the duty of said trustees, upon the passage of this act, to require the said financial agent to execute an additional bond in such sums as shall be fixed by the trustees, conditioned for the faithful performance of the additional duties herein required, and for the payment into the state treasury of all sums of money which shall come into his hands belonging to such endowment fund. And when any such agent shall hereafter
An Act to locate the state fish hatching house at Spirit Lake, and sell the property heretofore used for a fish hatchery in Jones county, to abolish the office of assistant fish commissioner, and to appropriate money for the purposes of this act.

SECTION 1. [Hatchery in Jones county transferred to Spirit Lake.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The state fish hatchery now located in Jones county, Iowa, is hereby transferred and located at Spirit Lake, in Dickinson county, Iowa, and the state shall hereafter keep and maintain but the one hatchery located in Dickinson county.

SEC. 2. [Commissioner authorized to purchase land for same.]—The fish commissioner is hereby authorized to purchase, on behalf of the state, the necessary land, at an expense to the state not to exceed one dollar, upon which the state fish hatching house shall be located, and to take a deed of said land in the name of the state of Iowa, and have the same recorded in the proper office for the record of such deed.

SEC. 3. [Time when hatchery shall be removed.]—The fish commissioner shall, as soon as practicable, and not later than the first day of September, 1886, remove all fish and movable property belonging to the state now at said hatching house in Jones county, to Spirit Lake, and shall proceed as soon as possible to make the necessary improvements and preparations for said fish hatching house at Spirit Lake.

SEC. 4. [Property in Jones county to be sold.]—The fish commissioner is hereby directed, with the approval of the executive council, to sell the real estate and such other property as cannot be profitably removed, now located in Jones county, as soon as the same can be sold for the best interest of the state. Said sale may be either public or private, as shall be deemed best. The proceeds of said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be expended in purchasing and improving the grounds for the hatchery at Spirit Lake. There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of this act, the sum of two thousand dollars, one thousand dollars of which may be drawn prior to June, 1887, and the balance prior to June, 1888.

SEC. 5. [Wherever the law in regard to the propagation of fish now in force refers to the hatchery at Anamosa the same shall be deemed hereafter to refer so far as applicable to the hatchery at Spirit Lake.

SEC. 6. [Office of assistant fish commissioner abolished.]—The office of assistant fish commissioner is hereby abolished.

SEC. 7. The fish commissioner shall hereafter have his office and headquarters at Spirit Lake, Dickinson county, Iowa.

Approved April 10, 1886.
An Act to establish and maintain a school for the instruction and training of teachers of common schools.

SECTION 1. [Where established.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That a school for the special instruction and training of teachers for the common schools of this state is hereby established at Cedar Falls, in Black Hawk county.

SEC. 2. (As amended by ch. 64, 22d g. a.) [How managed.]—The school shall be under the management and control of a board of directors consisting of six members, no two of whom shall be from the same county. [And the superintendent of public instruction shall be ex-officio a member of said board and president thereof.] [The board of directors] shall be elected by the general assembly, two for two years, two for four years and two for six years, and the general assembly shall elect two members of said board every two years, for the full term of six years as the terms of office of the respective classes expire. Their term of office shall commence on the first day of June following their election. No member of the board shall be a teacher in the school or receive other compensation for his services than a reimbursement of his actual expenses to be certified to by him and paid out of the state treasury. Any vacancy occurring in the board shall be filled by the appointment of the governor.

SEC. 3. [Board shall convene and organize.]—The board shall convene at the call of the superintendent of public instruction on or before June 15, 1876, and having each qualified according to law, shall organize by the election of a vice-president from their member, (number) and a secretary and a treasurer who shall be persons not numbers (members) of the board. The secretary shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by the board not to exceed the sum of one hundred dollars and actual traveling expenses. The treasurer shall receive no compensation, but shall receive reimbursement of actual expenditures.

SEC. 4. [Treasurer.]—The board shall require a bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars of the treasurer with proper and sufficient sureties, conditional for the safe-keeping of funds coming into his hands. He shall receive and disburse all moneys hereby appropriated, and any other funds as the board may provide. The board may require of any other officer or employe who may be authorized to receive or pay out money a like bond.

SEC. 5. [Duties of board.]—It shall be the duty of the board, in every necessary manner with the means at their disposal, to provide for and carry out the object for which the school is established. For that purpose they shall employ competent and suitable teachers, and other employes. They shall direct, use and control all the property of the state coming into their hands for that purpose. They shall control and direct the expenditure of all moneys. They shall make all necessary rules for the management of the school and the government thereof, and shall provide for the admission of pupils from the several counties of the state in proportion to their respective population and upon the appointment of respective boards of supervisors, or as the board may direct. They shall establish and publish uniform rules for the admission of pupils thereto, and such rules shall provide for equal rights in said school to all the teachers in the state, but they shall require in all cases satisfactory evidence of the good character of the pupil. They shall also further require all pupils upon their admission to the school to sign a statement of their intention in good faith to follow the business of teaching in the schools. of the state. It shall also be the duty of the board to make all possible and necessary arrangements with the means at their disposal for the boarding and lodging of pupils, but the pupils shall pay the cost of the same. They shall require each pupil to pay a fee for contingent expenses amounting to not more than one dollar per month. The school shall be opened during such part of the year as the board shall determine, but the sessions shall continue at least twenty-six weeks.

SEC. 6. [To take buildings used as soldiers' orphans' home.]—At the close of the year, and on or before the first day of July, 1876, it shall be the duty of the board of trustees of the Iowa soldiers' orphans' home, to deliver over to the board of directors provided for herein, the buildings and grounds at Cedar Falls, Iowa, now occupied by said home, transferring for the purpose the inmates of said home to the home at Davenport. They shall also at the same time turn over in like manner all the personal property at said home at Cedar Falls, except such as is necessary for and adapted to the personal use of such inmates at Davenport, and a careful inventory and appraisement thereof shall be made, and a proper voucher given therefor by said board of directors.

SEC. 7. [Board may make changes in same.]—The board of directors shall at once proceed to make such improvements and changes in said buildings and grounds as may be necessary to adapt the same to the use of said school, but without greater expense to the state than is provided for in this act, and shall, on or before September 10, 1876, open the same to the use and instruction of pupils.

SEC. 8. [$14,500 appropriated.]—In addition to the property the use of which is hereby set apart for the purposes of the school, the following sums are hereby appropriated for the establishment and maintenance thereof:
For necessary improvement and repairs, three thousand dollars.
For salaries of teachers and employees, ten thousand dollars.
For contingent expenses, fifteen hundred dollars:
The amount appropriated for repairs and improvements may be paid at any time, on the order of the board; the remaining sums shall be paid in equal quarterly payments, commencing September 1, 1876.

SEC. 9. (As amended by ch. 64, 22d g. a.) [Board to report to superintendent of public instruction.]—The said board shall make, at the end of each school year, to the governor, a detailed report of their proceedings during the year. Their report shall also contain the number of teachers employed in the school, with the compensation of each, the number of pupils, classified; the amount of receipts and expenditures and the items thereof, with such other information and recommendations as they may deem expedient, which report shall be embodied in the superintendent's report to the general assembly.
SEC. 1624. [Make rules and manage affairs of.]—Said board shall govern and manage said homes, and shall have power to enact laws and rules for the regulation of all their concerns, and power also to alter the same from time to time as shall seem to them proper; and shall also have full power to carry on and manage all the affairs in said homes; provided, that the county recorder of the county in which each home is located shall act in connection with the resident trustee in making quarterly settlements with the orphans' home superintendents, for which service he shall be allowed three dollars per day, to be audited and drawn in the same manner with the mileage of trustees.

SEC. 1625. [Members of general assembly.]—No member of the general assembly shall be eligible to the office of trustee during the term for which he was elected.

SEC. 1626. The members of said board shall each receive the same mileage, going to and returning therefrom, as members of the general assembly.

SEC. 1627. [Oath of.]—Said trustees shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, take and subscribe an oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States and of this state, and also faithfully to discharge the duties required of them by law, and the by-laws that may be established.

SEC. 1628. [Superintendents to give bond.]—The board of trustees of the soldiers' orphans' homes shall require the respective superintendents of the soldiers' orphans' homes to give a good and sufficient bond with sureties thereto for the faithful performance of their respective duties.

SEC. 1629. [President, secretary, treasurer: bonds.]—Said board shall have all the power of reception, transmission and succession which belongs to an incorporation, and shall choose a president, treasurer and secretary from their own body, and determine the bonds to be given.

SEC. 1630. [Appropriation for.]—For the support of the several orphans' homes, there is appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of ten dollars per month for each orphan actually supported, counting the average number sustained in the several homes for the month, and upon the presentation to the auditor of state each month of a sworn statement of the average number of orphan children supported by the institution for the preceding month, the auditor shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state in favor of the treasurer of the board of trustees of the Iowa soldiers' orphans' homes for the sum hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 1631. [Expenses.]—The expenses of the transmission of orphans to the homes, and of the board and management, shall be paid out of the fund so provided.

SEC. 1632. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) Report to general assembly.]—The board of trustees shall make a full and minute report of all the disbursements of the homes, and of their condition, financial and otherwise, (biennially to the governor).

SEC. 1633. [Enumeration of orphans.]—In the enumeration of persons between the ages of five and twenty-one years, as provided by section seventeen hundred and forty-four of chapter nine of this title, the orphans at the several homes shall in no case be enumerated in the school district in which such homes are located, except in cases where the mother, guardian, or other person having the legal charge or control of such child, other than the officers of the home, shall reside in such district.

SEC. 1634. [Adoption of children: trustees to approve.]—Any child in either of the orphans' homes may, with the consent of the parents or guardian of such child, be adopted by any citizen of this state, but no article of adoption shall be of any force or validity until approved by the board of trustees, nor shall any child so adopted be removed from the home until articles of adoption are so approved. The board of trustees shall have power to discharge from the homes all children who are of proper age, or have sufficient means to provide for themselves, or whose mothers have sufficient means and are competent to take care of them. Any child adopted from either of the homes shall be returned to the home from which it was taken upon the order of the board of trustees, and the board shall make such order whenever they are satisfied that such child is not properly trained, educated, and provided for by the person by whom it was adopted. Such order shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings of the board of trustees, and shall discharge and cancel the articles of adoption.

Sec. 1635. [Assessor to enumerate children of deceased soldiers.]—The assessor of each ward and township, when he is making assessment for each term of two years, shall take an enumeration of all the children of deceased soldiers who were in the military service of the government of the United States from his ward or township, naming the company, regiment, battery, battalion, or organization to which the deceased soldiers belonged, and make accurate returns to the board of supervisors of his county, designating the name, age, and sex of the children belonging to the family of the deceased, for which the assessor shall receive the same compensation as for other services.

Sec. 1636. [Supervisors to revise.]—The board of supervisors shall revise said enumeration list of orphans from time to time, by adding thereto or striking therefrom as they may deem proper.

Sec. 1637. [Auditor to furnish blanks.]—The county auditor shall furnish to the assessors of the several townships in his county, such blanks as may be necessary for taking the aforesaid enumeration.

Sec. 1638. [Orphan fund: control of.]—The board of supervisors of the several counties shall have control of the county orphan funds, and shall use the same for the maintenance and education of the orphans aforesaid, in such a manner and in such sums as the exigencies of the case may demand, and for no other purpose.

Sec. 1639. [Provided by tax.]—The board of supervisors may levy a tax, not to exceed one-half mill on the dollar in any one year, on all the taxable property in their county, provided that there are any such orphans in their county needing such aid, and shall apply said fund in such manner as hereinbefore directed.

Sec. 1640. [Supervisors to see children are cared for.]—If the children of the deceased soldiers aforesaid have no natural or other guardian, or are neglected, the board of supervisors may appoint some suitable person in the township, who shall see that said children are cared for according to the spirit and intent of this chapter.

Sec. 1641. [Soldiers' county orphan fund.]—The funds raised under the provisions of section sixteen hundred and thirty-nine shall be called the soldiers' county orphan fund, and shall be levied, collected, and paid out in the same manner as other county funds.

Sec. 1642. [Orphans may attend homes.]—The provisions regarding this county tax shall not be so construed as to prevent the orphans, or any number thereof, from their respective counties, to attend any orphans' home in this state.

An Act to enlarge the powers of the trustees of the soldiers' orphans' homes, and provide for other indigent children of the state, and make provision for industrial pursuits therein. (Additional to code, chapter 4, title XII, “Of the soldiers' orphans' homes.”)
SECTION 1. [Who may be admitted: not restricted to soldiers' orphans.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the board of trustees of the soldiers' orphans' home may receive into the care and privileges of the said home at Davenport, such destitute children as should, in their judgment, properly be admitted into said institution; provided, that the destitute children referred to in this act shall in all cases have a legal settlement in this state; and provided further, that the soldiers' orphans now at the other Iowa soldiers' orphans' homes shall be received at this institution and properly provided for before other children shall be received into this institution.

SEC. 2. (As substituted by ch. 111, 21st g. a.) [Application for admission: how made.]—Applications for admission of such children may be made to any court of record, or to any judge thereof, or to the board of supervisors of the county wherein the children to be admitted reside.

SEC. 3. [Government.]—That all children admitted to the said home under the provisions of this act, shall from and after the date of their reception be subject to all the rules and regulations therein in force; and the trustees of said home shall have all the control over and all the powers and rights of disposal of said children as are now or may be by law given them, in respect to the orphans of soldiers.

SEC. 4. [Trustees to determine who shall be admitted.]—That the propriety of admitting any child, under the provisions of this act, into the said home, shall be determined by the trustees of said institution. They may refuse to admit any child, who from any cause is deemed to be inadmissible.

SEC. 5. [Payment for support.]—That payment to the said home, for the support and maintenance of children admitted as herein provided, and expenses of transmission of children to said home, shall be made by the state auditor, at the same time and in the same manner as is now, or may be, provided by law for the maintenance of soldiers' orphans.

SEC. 6. [Board of supervisors shall provide.]—The board of supervisors of the county from which such children are received into said home shall make provisions for the payment, from any funds of the county not otherwise appropriated, for the amounts due monthly for the support of said children, and expenses of their transmission to said home, which amounts shall be paid to the state auditor at the same time that the state taxes are paid.

SEC. 7. [Employment.]—The trustees shall provide for the regular employment of all children received into the home, in some useful industrial pursuit, in order to enable them to support themselves after their discharge from the home, and shall also provide for each child the means of obtaining a common school education while such children remain inmates of the home. And any profits arising from any such labor shall go into the general support of the home, and shall be accounted for by the managers.

SEC. 8. [In cases of neglect or refusal of the board of supervisors of any county in the state to make the necessary levy for the support of children sent from said county, and in that case, the state board of equalization is hereby authorized and empowered to make the levy for such delinquent county or counties.]

SEC. 9. [Removal of orphans from other homes to Davenport.]—And be it further enacted: That the soldiers' orphans now at the other state homes shall be removed to the Davenport home within ninety days after the taking effect of this act.

SEC. 10. [Amendment.]—Section 1623 of the code is hereby amended by striking out from the second and third lines thereof, the words “one person from each of the counties in which the said homes are located, and one from the state
An Act to provide for the publication of names of ex-soldiers, sailors and marines residing in Iowa.

SEC. 1. [Assessor shall make list of persons who served in army or navy.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The assessor in each township shall make and deliver to the county auditor of their respective counties at the time of making their annual assessment in the year of 1885, a corrected list of all persons who served in the United States army, navy, or marine corps during the war of 1812, the Mexican war, and the war of the rebellion, designating the rank, company, regiment, battery, or vessel in which they served, and their present residence, town and county, which several lists shall be returned with the assessor's books to the county auditor, who shall on or before the first day of June, 1885, certify to the adjutant-general a true copy of said lists alphabetically arranged.

SEC. 2. [Adjutant-general shall publish said lists: distribution.]—The adjutant-general on receipt of said lists from the county auditors, shall proceed to consolidate said lists alphabetically, and publish three thousand copies in book form as a roster of the ex-soldiers, sailors, and marines now residents of Iowa, three copies of which shall be furnished each post of the grand army of the republic in the state of Iowa, one hundred copies to the state library for exchange with other libraries, one copy to the office of each county auditor in the state, the remaining books to be retained by the adjutant-general for distribution.

SEC. 3. [Appropriation.]—There is hereby appropriated the sum of two thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purposes named in this act, and all warrants against said appropriation shall be drawn by the auditor of state upon the state treasurer upon the certificate of the adjutant-general.

Approved April 5, 1884.

CHAPTER 58, LAWS OF 1886.

ESTABLISH SOLDIERS' HOME.

An Act to establish and maintain a soldiers' home in the state of Iowa, and making an appropriation for the purchase of land and the construction or purchase of necessary buildings.

SEC. 1. [Soldiers' home established.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there be and is hereby created and established in this state an institution to be known as the "Iowa Soldiers' Home," and that the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as is necessary, be and is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purchase and preparation of grounds and for the erection and completion or purchase of suitable buildings and fixtures thereon, and furnishing and equipping the same; and the further sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the purpose of maintaining such soldiers' home for the year 1887; provided, however, that it shall not be lawful for the board of managers hereinafter created to draw upon the sum hereby appropriated an amount exceeding seventy-five thousand dollars in the year 1886, and the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars in the year 1887.

SEC. 2. [Applicants must have resided in the state three years, or have served in Iowa regiment. ]—The object of the "Iowa Soldiers' Home" shall be to provide a home and subsistence for all honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines who have served in the army or navy of the United States and who are disabled by disease, wounds or otherwise; provided, that no applicant shall be admitted to said home who has not been a resident of the state of Iowa for three years next preceding his application for admission therein unless he served in an Iowa regiment or was accredited to the state of Iowa. The board of commissioners shall determine the eligibility of applicants for admission to said home as herein provided.

SEC. 3. (As substituted by ch. 129, 21st g. a.) [Governor shall appoint a commission to locate home.]—[Said home shall be located by a commission to be appointed by the governor, to consist of one member from each congressional district, no more than seven of whom shall belong to the same political party, and no one of whom shall be a resident of any county in which is located any locality that is a candidate for the location of said home, nor a resident of any county in which is situated any other state institution. The appointment of commissioners shall be made within five days from the approval of this act, and on the third Tuesday thereafter said commissioners shall assemble at the capitol in Des Moines for the purpose of locating said home, and, after having first taken the oath of office prescribed by statute, shall organize by selecting from their number a chairman and secretary, and a correct record of all proceedings, and all votes cast shall be kept and certified by said chairman and secretary to the governor. Said commissioners shall take into consideration only the localities which have made propositions to the general assembly under concurrent resolution relating thereto, and all propositions, bonds, petitions and papers relating to said home and now in possession of the twenty-first general assembly or the soldiers' home or military committees thereof, shall be deposited with the secretary of state and by him turned over to the commissioners for their information, and no other or additional propositions shall be considered or received. Said commissioners, if deemed best, may hear representatives of the different localities that are candidates for the location of the home, but not later than seven days from the assembling of said commissioners as prescribed, said commissioners shall determine by vote the location for the soldiers' home, and ballots shall continue till a majority of all votes cast are cast for one locality, provided, a majority decision is reached by the twentieth ballot; otherwise, the place receiving the lowest number, or places receiving the lowest and an equal number of votes upon the twenty-first ballot, shall be dropped on the next succeeding ballot, provided if two or more of the places having the lowest number have an equal number of votes, then the commission shall vote to decide which shall be dropped, and not more than one place shall be dropped until another ballot is taken, and this same provision shall obtain in the succeeding ballots, and ballots shall continue under this provision until some one place shall receive a majority of the votes of all the commissioners, which place shall be declared the location for said home and so certified to the governor as provided for in this section, whereupon the commission shall dissolve. Said commissioners while in the actual discharge of their duty under this act shall receive as compensation $5.00 per day and actual expenses each, and ten cents per mile for the actual number of miles traveled in reaching the capital. Anything in said chapter 58 in conflict with this section is hereby repealed.]

be vested in a board of commissioners, to consist of six members, who shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, immediately after the taking effect of this act, not more than four of whom shall belong to the same political party, and no two of whom shall be from the same congressional district, and no member of the general assembly shall be eligible to the office, but all shall be ex-union soldiers. The members of the board shall hold their office for the respective terms of two, four, and six years, from the first day of May, eighteen hundred and eighty-six, and until their successors shall be appointed and qualified, said respective terms of office to be determined by lot, and thereafter there shall be two members of said board appointed every two years during the session of the general assembly, whose term of office shall continue for six years from the first day of May next ensuing, or until their successors are appointed and qualified. The governor shall call a meeting of said board for the purpose of organization, within thirty days after the first appointments are made. No compensation shall be allowed any member of the board of commissioners other than president, treasurer, and secretary, save their actual expenses; provided, however, that a building committee may be appointed from the members of said board, consisting of not more than two persons, whose duty it shall be to visit and inspect the buildings at least once in two weeks during their period of construction, and who may receive in addition to their actual expenses the sum of five dollars for each day so actually employed. Provided, however, that no member of said building committee shall receive compensation for more than ten days' service in any month. In case of a vacancy in the board of commissioners by death or any other cause, the appointing power provided for shall have power to fill the vacancy for the unexpired portion of the term. Four members of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; provided, that for the adoption of plans and the letting of contracts for buildings and the selection of a commandant for said home, the affirmative vote of a majority of the entire board shall be required.

SEC. 5. [Board to qualify and give bond.—Before entering upon his duties each member of the board of commissioners shall take and sign an oath and execute a bond in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars for the use of the state of Iowa, to be approved by the executive council and filed in the office of the secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and the honest and faithful disbursement of and accounting for all moneys which may come into his hands under the provisions of this act. The said board having first taken the oath prescribed for the trustees of state institutions, is hereby empowered and required to cause to be prepared suitable plans and specifications by a competent architect, but no plans shall be adopted which shall not first have been approved by the governor. Such plans shall contemplate the erection of a home which shall accommodate not less than one hundred and fifty nor more than three hundred inmates, and shall be accompanied by specifications, and by a detailed estimate of the amount, quality and description of all material and labor required for the entire and full completion of the buildings, and no plan shall be adopted that contemplates the expenditure of more money for its completion than the amount appropriated by this general assembly added to any donations received by the state for the erection of the home.

SEC. 6. [Architect or superintendent.—That the said board of commissioners may at their discretion employ a competent architect or superintendent of construction, who may, in the discretion of said board, be the same person, and who shall receive such compensation as the board shall, by agreement, determine.

SEC. 7. [Bids advertised for.—Whenever the said plans and specifications shall have been approved and adopted, the commissioners shall cause to be inserted in the Iowa State Register and Des Moines Leader, newspapers published in the city of Des Moines, Iowa, an advertisement for sealed bids for the construction of the buildings herein authorized, and they shall furnish a printed copy of this act and of the specifications to all parties applying therefor, and all parties interested who may desire it shall have free and full access to the plans and specifications with the privilege of taking notes and making memoranda.

SEC. 8. [Bids opened in 30 days]—Not less than thirty days after the publication of said proposals for bids, on a day and hour to be named in said advertisement at the place where said institution shall be located in the presence of the bidders, or so many of them as may be present, the bids received shall be opened for the first time, and the contract for building shall be let to the lowest and best bidder; provided, that should the Commissioners deem it for the interest of the state they reject any and all bids and advertise again, and also provided, that no contract shall be made, and no expense incurred for any building or buildings, requiring for the completion of the same and fixtures thereon and furnishing and equipping the same, a greater expense than is provided for in the appropriation made in this act, added to any donations received by the state for the erection of the home. And provided further, that no bid shall be accepted which is not accompanied by a good and sufficient bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, signed by at least three good and sufficient sureties who shall be resident free-holders of the state of Iowa conditioned as a guarantee for the responsibility and good faith of the bidder, and that he will enter into a contract and give bond as provided in this act in case his bid is accepted.

SEC. 9. [Contract bond: architect or superintendent]—The contract to be made with the successful bidder shall be accompanied by a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by the governor before being accepted, conditioned for the faithful performance of his contract, shall provide for the appointment of an architect or a superintendent of construction, who shall receive not more than five dollars per day for his services, and who shall carefully and accurately measure the work done, and the materials upon the ground, at least once a month; for the payment of the contractor upon the aforesaid measurement, and for the withholding of twenty per cent of the value of the work done and materials on hand until the completion of the buildings. And for a forfeiture of a stipulated sum per diem for every day that the completion of the work shall be delayed after the time specified for the completion of the contract, and for the full protection of all persons who may furnish labor or materials by withholding payment from the contractor and by paying the parties to whom any moneys are due for service or materials, as aforesaid, directly for all work done or materials furnished by them; and for a settlement of all disputed questions as to the value of alterations and extras by arbitration, at the time of final settlement, as follows: one arbitrator to be chosen by the commissioners, one by the contractor, and one by the governor of the state, and all three of said arbitrators to be practical mechanics and builders. And said contract shall provide for the power and privilege of the commissioners to order changes in the plans and specifications at their discretion, and to refuse to accept any work which may be done not fully in accordance with the letter and spirit of the plans and specifications; and all work not accepted shall be replaced at the expense of the contractor, and be deducted from the contract price. They may also make such other provisions and conditions in the said contract not hereinabove specified as may seem to them necessary or expedient; provided, that no conditions shall be inserted contrary to the letter and spirit of this act, and that in no event shall the state be liable for a greater amount of money than is appropriated for said buildings and appurtenances.

SEC. 10. [Contract signed]—The said contract shall be signed by the president of the board of commissioners in behalf of the board, after a vote authorizing him so to sign shall have been entered upon the minutes of the board, and it shall be attested by the signature of the secretary of the board and by the seal of the institution hereinafter provided for. It shall be drawn in triplicate, and one copy of the same shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state.

Sec. 11. [Bids to show cost.]—All bids shall show the estimated cost of the work to be done of each description in detail; and the commissioners shall have the right and power at their discretion to accept bids for particular portions of the work, if for the advantage of the state, and all measurements and accounts as the work progresses shall show in detail the amount and character of the work for which payment is made.

Sec. 12. [Location and grounds.]—The cost of location, including the cost of suitable grounds, may be paid out of the appropriations herein made, but shall not exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars. Provided, that should the land be purchased with suitable buildings erected thereon, the same shall not exceed the sum of fifty thousand dollars, and in that case the parts of this act which refer to erections of buildings shall not apply.

Sec. 13. [Moneys, how payable.]—The moneys herein appropriated shall be paid to the parties to whom they may become due and payable, directly from the treasurer of state, on the warrant of the auditor of state, and the auditor is hereby authorized and required to draw the said warrants for money due under this act, upon the order of the board of commissioners, accompanied by vouchers approved by the governor in the usual manner, and the board is authorized to advance and pay on contracts, before the same are fully completed, not exceeding eighty per cent on the estimates of material delivered or labor performed. All other moneys appropriated by this act shall be drawn quarterly on the requisition of the board of commissioners, in the usual manner, and then only in such amounts as the wants of the institution may require.

Sec. 14. [Interest of commissioners.]—No commissioner or officer of the said institution shall be in any way interested in any contract for the erection or purchase of said buildings, or furnishing any materials for said buildings, and if any such commissioner or officer shall be so interested he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars.

Sec. 15. [Meetings of board, annual.]—It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners to meet annually on the second Wednesday in May of each year, and at said annual meeting they shall elect from their own body a president, treasurer and secretary, whose compensation shall be determined by the board, and who shall hold office for one year, or until their successor shall be elected and qualified. The treasurer shall give a bond, which shall be approved by the executive council, for double the amount of money liable to come into his hands at any one time. The board of commissioners shall meet at least once in three months, on the second Wednesday in August, November and February, and oftener if they deem it advisable, and shall have the power to adopt a seal and make rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the state, for the management and government of said home, including such rules as they may deem necessary for the preserving of order, enforcing discipline and preserving the health of its inmates. If necessary, for the purpose of procuring a better insight into the practical working of similar homes, and for the better information of the board, they may authorize not more than three of their number to visit similar institutions now in operation, that they may have the benefit of their personal observation and investigation, and the expense actually incurred in any such visit may be charged against the appropriation hereinbefore made. The board of commissioners shall make full and minute report of all the disbursements of the home, and of its condition, financial and otherwise, to each regular session of the general assembly.
Sec. 16. [Commandant: appointment.]—The board of commissioners shall have the power and it shall be their duty to appoint a commandant for said home, who shall serve as such during the pleasure of the board of commissioners, and who shall be one who has been honorably discharged from the military or naval service of the United States, whose salary shall not exceed twelve hundred dollars per annum, and who shall nominate for the action of the board of commissioners, all necessary subordinate officers, who shall also be persons who have been honorably discharged from the military or naval service of the United States, who may be removed by said commandant for inefficiency or misconduct; but in case of every removal a detailed statement of the cause shall be reported to the board of commissioners by the commandant. The board of commissioners shall have the power to fix the salary of all subordinate officers; provided, the amount so paid shall not exceed such reasonable compensation as is paid for like service in similar institutions.

Sec. 17. Every contract and duty required by this act to be acted upon by the board of commissioners must receive the approval of the majority of the board in regular session duly called, in order to make the same binding and valid; that all the proceedings of said board shall be recorded in a book and open to the inspection of anybody on request.

Approved March 31, 1886.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENTS AND MEMORIAL HALLS.

An Act to repeal chapter 162 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly, and to enact a substitute therefor, in relation to soldiers' monuments and memorial halls, and providing for levying a tax therefor.

Section 1. (Chapter 162, acts 20th g. a., repealed.) [Tax may be voted, of one mill for monuments and memorials.] Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That a tax, not to exceed one mill on the dollar on the assessed valuation of any county, may be voted for the purpose of erecting monuments and memorial halls on which or in which shall be included the names of all deceased soldiers and sailors, and all who may hereafter die, who enlisted or entered the service from the county where such appropriations may be made, and also the names of such other deceased soldiers as the grand army posts of said county shall direct, as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. [Board of supervisors to submit upon petition to a vote.]—Whenever a petition shall be presented to the board of supervisors of any county in this state, signed by a majority of the members of the grand army posts in said county, asking said board of supervisors to submit to the legally qualified voters of said county, at the next general election after said petition shall have been presented, the question of aiding in the erection of a soldiers' and sailors' monument or memorial hall, as provided in section one of this act. At such election the question of taxation shall be submitted; the form of the ballot shall be "for taxation" and "against taxation," and if a majority of the ballots polled be for taxation, then the board of supervisors of said county at the time of levying the ordinary taxes, next succeeding said election, shall levy such tax as is voted under the provisions of this act, the same to placed upon the tax lists of said county and collected as other taxes.

SEC. 3. [Taxes, how drawn and expended.]—The taxes, when collected by the county treasurer, shall be drawn and expended for the erection of such soldiers' and sailors' monuments or memorial halls under the direction of a committee of three to be selected by a majority of all the members of the grand army posts in the county where such tax is voted, and the county auditor shall draw his warrants upon the treasurer for said money at the times and in the amounts as may be directed by said committee, and shall charge it with the same, and the committee shall settle and account with the board of supervisors for all money so drawn in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be provided by law for the settlement of the accounts of township clerks; provided, that this act shall not be held to apply to any county which has before the passage of this act made an appropriation for the erection of a soldiers' monument under the provisions of said chapter 162 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly.

Sec. 4. That chapter 162 of the acts of the twentieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed.

Approved April 1, 1886.

(Chapter 105, Laws of 1888.)

An Act to provide for the relief of union soldiers, sailors and marines and the indigent wives, widows and minor children of indigent or deceased union soldiers, sailors and marines.

Section 1. [Relief tax to be levied.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the board of supervisors of the several counties of this state are hereby authorized to levy, in addition to the taxes now levied by law, a tax not exceeding three-tenths of one mill upon the taxable property of their respective counties, to be levied and collected as now provided by law for the assessment and collection of taxes, for the purpose of creating a fund for the relief and for funeral expenses of honorably discharged union soldiers, sailors and marines, and the indigent wives, widows and minor children not over fourteen years of age in boys and not over sixteen years of age in case of girls, of such indigent or deceased union soldiers, sailors or marines, having a legal residence in said county, to be disbursed as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. [Soldiers' relief commission created.]—The board of supervisors in each county of this state shall on or before the first Monday of September, 1888, appoint three persons, who are residents of such county, at least two of whom shall be honorably discharged union soldiers, one to serve three years, one to serve two years, one to serve one year from date of appointment, and each year thereafter one person to serve for three years, such persons so appointed, when organized by the selection of one of their number as chairman, and one as secretary, shall be designated and known as "the soldier's relief commission." The members of said commission shall be qualified by taking the usual oath of office and shall each give bonds in the sum of five hundred dollars for the faithful performance of their duties. In the event of a vacancy in said commission occurring from any cause, the board of supervisors shall fill the vacancy for the unexpired term.

Sec. 3. [Meetings and duties of commission.]—The soldiers' relief commission shall meet at the county auditor's office on the first Monday in September of each year, and at such other times as is deemed necessary, and shall examine and determine who are entitled to relief under the provisions of this act, and shall make lists of such persons, and at the September meeting such commission after determining the probable amount necessary for the purpose provided herein, shall certify the amount to the board of supervisors, and the board of supervisors of each county, at its September meeting each year, shall make such levies as shall be necessary to raise the required relief fund, not exceeding three­ tenths of a mill on the taxable property of such county. The soldier's relief commisson shall fix the amount to be paid in each case, the aggregate not to exceed the levy of said tax for any one year, and shall certify the lists to the county auditor. The auditor shall, within twenty days thereafter, transmit to the township clerks in his county, a list of the names of the persons in the respective townships to whom relief has been awarded, and the amount thereof. The auditor, on the first Monday of each month after said fund is ready for distribution shall issue his warrant to the soldier's relief commission, upon the county treasurer, for the several amounts awarded. Such commission shall disburse the same to the person or persons named in the lists, taking receipts therefor; or such fund may be disbursed in any other manner directed by the commission; provided, however, that when said commission is satisfied that any person entitled to relief under this act will not properly expend the amount allowed, the commission may pay the amount to some suitable person who shall expend the same for such person in such manner as the commission may direct; and provided further, that said commission, at any meeting, may decrease, increase or discontinue any amount before awarded, and may add new names to the list, which shall be certified to the county auditor. The soldier's relief commission shall, at the end of each year, make to the board of supervisors a detailed report of the transactions of such commission; such report shall be accompanied with vouchers for all moneys disbursed.

SEC. 4. [Commissioners may be removed.]-The board of supervisors may at any time remove any member of the commission for neglect of duty or maladministration and appoint others in the place of members thus removed.

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE STATE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

SECTION 1643. (As amended by ch. 153, 20th g. a.) [An industrial] school shall be permanently located at Eldora, in Hardin county, and maintained for the reformation of such boys and girls under the age of [sixteen] years who may be committed to it as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 1644. [Trustees: appointment of.]-There shall be a board of trustees, whose name and style shall be, "The board of trustees of the Iowa [industrial] school," and it shall consist of five persons, who shall be appointed by the general assembly, no two of whom shall be taken from the same congressional district, and who shall hold office for the term of six years each and until their successors are appointed and qualified. All vacancies in said board shall be filled by appointment by the governor of the state. No member of the general assembly shall be hereafter chosen a trustee of the [industrial] school, and no appointment shall be made till the number of trustees is reduced to five.

SEC. 1645. Said trustees shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, take and subscribe an oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States and of this state, and faithfully discharge the duties required of them by law.

SEC. 1646. [Compensation of.]—The members of said board shall receive no compensation except the same mileage going to and returning from the place of meeting as members of the general assembly, computed for the actual distance from their residence to the place of meeting; provided, that while employed in superintending the erection of buildings for said school they shall receive the sum of three dollars per day and their actual traveling expenses, the amount due each trustee to be certified by the president and secretary of the board.
SEC. 1647. [Officers chosen by trustees: rules: bond of treasurer.]
Said board of trustees shall, from their board, appoint a president, secretary, and treasurer, and shall take charge of the general interests of the institution; shall have power to enact by-laws and rules for the regulation of all its concerns not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state; to see that its affairs are conducted in accordance with the requirements of law, and that strict discipline is maintained therein; to provide employment and instruction for the inmates; to appoint a superintendent, a steward, a teacher or teachers, and such other officers as in their judgment the wants of the institution may require, and prescribe their duties; to exercise a vigilant supervision over the institution, its officers and inmates; to remove such officers at their pleasure and appoint others in their stead, and determine the salaries to be paid to the officers; and shall also require the treasurer to execute a bond to the state of Iowa in a sufficient amount to be approved by the executive council and filed in the office of the secretary of state.

They shall cause the boys and girls under their charge to be instructed in piety and morality, and in such branches of useful knowledge as are adapted to their age and capacity, and in some regular course of labor, either mechanical, manufacturing, or agricultural, as is best suited to their age, strength, disposition and capacity, and as may seem best adapted to secure the reformation and future benefit of the boys and girls.

SEC. 1649. [Pupils bound out with consent of parents or guardians.]
The trustees, with the consent in writing of their parents or guardians, as the case may be, or in case they have no parents or guardians, may bind out boys and girls committed to the school until they attain their majority, or for any less time, stipulating in the indentures for the needful amount of education, and from time to time, as the rightful guardians of the boys and girls, ascertain whether the duties and obligations of the person to whom the boy or girl is bound are faithfully performed, and if not, cancel the indenture and receive the boy or girl into the school again.

SEC. 1650. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [School visited: report of trustees and superintendent.]
When there shall be twenty or more boys and girls in the school, one or more of the trustees shall visit the school once in every month and examine the boys and girls in their school room and labor, and inspect the register and accounts of the superintendent. A record shall be kept of these visits in the books of the superintendent. Once in each year, or oftener if the trustees think it necessary, they shall examine the school in all its departments, including the accounts, vouchers and documents of the superintendent, and prepare a report on the condition of the institution on the first Monday in July next preceding the meeting of the general assembly, which, together with a full report of the superintendent, and a list of the officers and their salaries, with an estimate of the value of the personal property of the state in connection with the school, shall be laid before the general assembly.

SEC. 1651. [Superintendent and officers of: duties defined.]
The superintendent, with such subordinate officers as the trustees may appoint, shall have the charge and custody of the boys and girls in the school, one or more of the trustees shall visit the school once in every month and examine the boys and girls in their school room and labor, and inspect the register and accounts of the superintendent. A record shall be kept of these visits in the books of the superintendent. Once in each year, or oftener if the trustees think it necessary, they shall examine the school in all its departments, including the accounts, vouchers and documents of the superintendent, and prepare a report on the condition of the institution on the first Monday in July next preceding the meeting of the general assembly, which, together with a full report of the superintendent, and a list of the officers and their salaries, with an estimate of the value of the personal property of the state in connection with the school, shall be laid before the general assembly.

SEC. 1652. [Superintendent to give bond, etc.]
He shall, before entering upon his duties, give a bond to the state, with sureties, the amount and sureties to be satisfactory to the board of trustees, conditioned that he shall faithfully perform all his duties, and account for all money received by him as superintendent, which bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state; he shall have charge of all the property of the institution within the precincts thereof; he shall keep in suitable books complete accounts of all his receipts and expenditures, and of all property intrusted to him, showing the income and expenses of the institution, and in such manner as the trustees may require, for all money received by him. His books and documents relating to the school shall, at all times, be open to the inspection of the trustees. He shall keep a register containing the name, age and circumstances connected with the early history of each boy and girl, and shall add such facts as shall come to his knowledge relating to his or her history while at the institution, and after leaving it.

SEC. 1653. (As amended by sec. 2, ch. 38, 16th g. a.) [When convicted of crime: may be sent to school by the court. —When a boy or girl under the age of (sixteen) years, shall, in any court of record, be found guilty of any crime, excepting murder, the said court may, if in its opinion the accused is a proper subject therefor, instead of entering judgment, cause an order to be entered that said boy or girl be sent to the state (industrial) school pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, and a copy of said order, duly certified by the clerk, under the seal of said court, shall be a sufficient warrant for carrying said boy or girl to the school, and for his or her commitment to the custody of the superintendent thereof.

SEC. 1654. (As amended by sec. 4, ch. 38, 16th g. a.) [Proceedings when convicted.] —When a boy or girl under the age of (sixteen) shall be convicted before a justice of the peace or other inferior court of any crime, or of being a disorderly person, it shall be lawful for the magistrate before whom he or she may be convicted, to forthwith send such boy or girl, together with all the papers filed in his office on the subject, under the control of some officer to a judge of a court of record, who shall then issue an order to the parent or guardian of said boy or girl, or such person as may have him or her in charge, or with whom he or she has last resided, or one known to be nearly related to him or her, if he or she be alone and friendless, then to such person as said judge may appoint to act as guardian for the purposes of the case, requiring him or her to appear at a time and place stated in said order, to show cause why said boy or girl should not be committed to the reform school for reformation and instruction. (But no boy or girl shall ever be committed to the Iowa reform school in any case, who is under the age of seven years, or who is not of sound mind.)

SEC. 1655. [Order: how served: compensation of officer.] —Said order shall be served by the sheriff or other officer, by delivering a copy thereof, personally, to the party to whom it is addressed, or leaving it with some person of full age at the place of residence or business of said party, and immediate return shall be made to the said judge of the time and manner of such service. The fees of the sheriff or other officer under this chapter, shall be the same as now allowed by law for like services.

For conveying a convict to the reform school, the sheriff is entitled to the same fees as for conveying a convict to the penitentiary, which is sixteen cents per mile of travel, as his full compensation therefor. Bringolf v. Polk County, 41 Iowa, 554.

SEC 1656. [Hearing: commitment.] —At the time and place mentioned in said order, or at the time and place to which it may be adjourned, if the parent or guardian to whom said order may be addressed shall appear, then in his or her presence, or if he or she shall fail to appear, then in the presence of some suitable person whom the said judge shall appoint as guardian for the purposes of the case, it shall and may be lawful for the said judge to proceed to take the voluntary examination of said boy or girl, and to hear the statements of the party appearing for him or her, and such testimony in relation to the case as may be produced, and if upon such examination and hearing the said judge shall be satisfied that the boy or girl is a fit subject for the state reform school, he may commit him or her to said school by warrant.
CHAP. 5. OF THE STATE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL. 639

SEC. 1657. [Warrant: contents of.]—The judge shall certify in the warrant the place in which the boy or girl resided at the time of his or her arrest, also his or her age, as near as can be ascertained, and command the said officer to take the said boy or girl and deliver him or her, without delay, to the superintendent of said school, or other person in charge thereof, at the place where the same is established; and such certificate, for the purpose of this chapter, shall be conclusive evidence of his or her residence or age. Accompanying this warrant, the judge shall transmit to the superintendent by the officer executing it a statement of the nature of the complaint, together with such other particulars concerning the boy or girl as the judge is able to ascertain.

SEC. 1658. [Appeal.]—If the judge is of the opinion that the boy or girl is not a fit subject for the school, or if said boy or girl shall appeal from the decision of the court in which the conviction was had, he shall remand him or her to the custody of the officer who had him or her in charge, to be returned to the magistrate before whom the conviction was had, to be dealt with according to law.

SEC. 1659. (As amended by ch. 150, 19th g. a.) [Complaint by parent of guardian: proceedings.]—If any parent or guardian shall make complaint to a judge of a court of record, that any boy or girl, the child or ward of such parent or guardian, is habitually vagrant or disorderly, or incorrigible, it shall and may be lawful for said judge to issue a warrant to have the sheriff or constable to cause said boy or girl to be brought before him at such time and place as he may appoint, when and where said judge shall examine the parties, and if in his judgment the boy or girl is a fit subject for the reform school he may issue an order, with the consent of said parent or guardian indorsed thereon, to be executed by a sheriff or constable, committing said boy or girl to the custody of the superintendent of said school for reformation and instruction till he shall attain the age of [twenty-one years]; provided, that security for the payment of said complaint, commitment, and of carrying said boy or girl to the reform school, and the expenses of board at such school, may, in the discretion of said judge, be required of said parent or guardian.

SEC. 1660. (As amended by ch. 150, 19th g. a.) [Majority: discharge.]—No boy or girl shall be committed to said [industrial] school for a longer term than until he or she attain the age of [twenty-one years] but the said trustees by their order may, at any time after one year's service, discharge a boy or girl from said school as a reward of good conduct in the school and upon satisfactory evidence of reformation.

SEC. 1661. [Pupils retained: effect of binding out.]—Any boy or girl committed to the state [industrial] school shall be there kept, disciplined, instructed, employed and governed, under the direction of the trustees, until he or she arrives at the age of [twenty-one years] or is bound out, reformed or legally discharged: The binding out or discharge of a boy or girl as reformed, or having arrived at the age of [twenty-one years] shall be a complete release from all penalties incurred by conviction of the offense for which he or she was committed.

SEC. 1662. [Unruly or incorrigible pupil.]—If any boy or girl, convicted of a felony, committed to the [industrial] school, shall prove unruly or incorrigible, or if his or her presence shall be manifestly and persistently dangerous to the welfare of the school, the trustees shall have power to order his or her removal to the county from which he or she came and delivery to the jailor of the said county, and proceedings against him or her shall be resumed as if no warrant or order committing him or her to the reform school had been made.

SEC. 1663. [Punishment for aiding pupil to escape.] Every person who unlawfully aids or assists any boy or girl lawfully committed to the [industrial] school in escaping, or attempting to escape therefrom, or knowingly conceals such boy or girl after his or her escape, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years.

CHANGING NAME OF REFORM TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

An Act to change the name of the reform schools to industrial schools. [Amendment to code, chapter 5, title XII.]

SEC. 1. [Name of reform schools changed to industrial schools.]—

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the reform schools of this state shall be hereafter known as industrial schools instead of reform schools and the trustees of said schools shall be known as the board of trustees of the industrial schools.

Approved April 5, 1884.

(Under authority conferred by chapter 171, laws of 1880, the state executive council purchased for the use and occupancy of the girls department of the industrial school, the building, furniture and grounds of the “Mitchell seminary,” located at Mitchellville, Iowa, where such department of the industrial school has been established and remains.)

CHAPTER 6.

COLLEGE FOR THE BLIND.

SEC. 1664. [Trustees of: who compose: how chosen.]—There shall be maintained at Vinton, in the county of Benton, a college for the blind, under the supervision of a board of trustees consisting of six persons who shall be chosen by the general assembly as their present or future terms of office expire, and hold their offices for four years from the date of each appointment.

SEC. 1665. No member of the general assembly shall hereafter be chosen a trustee of the college for the blind.

SEC. 1666. [Supervisors: power of trustees.]—The trustees shall have the general supervision of the institution, adopt rules for the government thereof, provided teachers, servants, and necessaries for the institution, and perform all other acts necessary to render the institution efficient and to carry out the purposes of its establishment.

SEC. 1667. [Quorum.]—Three of said trustees shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SEC. 1668. [Compensation of trustees.]—Trustees residing more than ten miles from the institution shall be allowed five dollars per day for actual services and ten cents per mile to and from their place of meeting, which shall be paid out of the funds of the institution, for attendance at the quarterly and annual meetings of the board.

SEC. 1669. [Trustees to fix compensation of officers.]—The board of trustees shall fix the compensation of all the officers and employees of said institution, at such rate as shall by them be deemed just and equitable; provided, that in no event shall the total amount of expenses of their institution exceed the total amount of appropriation for the same.

SEC. 1670. [Officers, appointment of.]—The assistant officers shall receive their appointment from the board, upon the nomination of the principal, and shall be responsible to the principal for the faithful performance of their duties, and the principal shall be held responsible to the board for the performance of his duties.

SEC. 1671. [Steward, duty of.]—The trustees shall appoint some one of the employees, steward, at such compensation as they may deem just, who, under their direction, shall purchase all supplies for the institution.

SEC. 1672. [Non-residents.]—Persons not residents of the state shall be entitled to the benefits of this institution, on paying to the treasurer thereof the sum of fifty-four dollars a quarter in advance, provided, that no such person shall be so received to the exclusion of any resident of this state.

SEC. 1673. [President: treasurer to give bond.]—The board of trustees shall elect one of their number president and another treasurer of the institution, and the treasurer shall enter into bonds, with security, in the sum of not less than thirty thousand dollars, to be approved by the executive council, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, and the honest disbursement of and accountal for all moneys belonging to the institution, which bond shall be filed with the secretary of state.

SEC. 1674. [Indebtedness.]—The board of trustees shall not create any indebtedness against the institution, exceeding the amount appropriated by the general assembly for the support thereof.

SEC. 1675. (As amended by ch. 166, 19th g. a.) [Appropriation for.]—To meet the ordinary expenses of the institution, including furniture, books and maps, the compensation of principal, matron, teachers and employees, and to provide for contingencies, there is hereby appropriated the sum of (ten) thousand dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary to meet the wants of the institution.

SEC. 1676. (As substituted by ch. 166, 19th g. a.) [Current expense allowance increased from.]—(For the purpose of meeting current expenses there is appropriated out of the state treasury so much as is necessary, not to exceed forty dollars per quarter for each pupil in said institution except non-residents at the time of their reception.)

SEC. 1677. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [Report to governor.]—The principal of said institution shall report to the governor, on or before the fifteenth day of (August) preceding each regular session of the general assembly, the number of pupils in attendance, with the name, age, sex, residence, place of nativity, and also the cause of blindness of each pupil. He shall also make a report of the studies pursued and trades taught in said institution, together with a complete statement of the expenditures, and also the number, kind and value of articles manufactured and sold.

SEC. 1678. [Clothing for pupils: how procured.]—When the pupils of said institution are not otherwise supplied with clothing, they shall be furnished by the principal, who shall make out an account therefor in each case against the parent or guardian, if the pupil be a minor, and against the pupil if he or she have no parent or guardian, or has attained the age of majority, which account shall be certified to be correct and sign by the principal, and shall be presumptive evidence of its correctness in the courts, and such principal shall forthwith remit such account to the treasurer of the proper county, who shall proceed to collect the same by suit, if necessary, in the name of such institution, and pay the same into the state treasury, and said principal shall, at the same time, remit a duplicate of such account to the auditor of state, who shall credit the same to account of the college for the blind, and charge it to the proper county.

SEC. 1679. [Appropriation: how drawn.]—The above appropriations, including account of clothing furnished pupils, shall be drawn quarterly on the order of the trustees of the institution made on the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant in the name of such institution on the treasurer, as ordered by the trustees.
SEC. 1680. [Education furnished at expense of state.]—All blind persons, residents of this state, of suitable age and capacity, shall be entitled to an education in this institution at the expense of the state. Each county superintendent of common schools shall report on the first day of November of each year to the superintendent of the college for the blind, the name, age, residence and post office address of every blind person, and every person blind to such an extent as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, and who resides in the county in which he is superintendent.

SEC. 1684. [Vacancies in board: how filled.]—Upon the death, resignation or removal from the state of any member of the board of trustees, the general assembly, if in session at the time, shall fill the vacancy, but if the general assembly is not in session, then shall the governor fill such vacancy by appointment, to continue until the next regular session of the general assembly and until a successor shall be by that body elected. The refusal or neglect of any duly elected or appointed member of said board to act, shall be deemed a resignation.

OF THE INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF AND DUMB.

SECTION 1685. (As amended by sec. 5, ch. 136, 17th g. a.) [Trustees.]—There shall be permanently maintained at Council Bluffs, in the county of Pottawattamie, an institution for the support and education of the deaf and dumb, under the supervision of a board of trustees.

SEC. 1686. [Power and duty of.]—The trustees shall have the general supervision of the institution, adopt rules for the government thereof, provide teachers, servants and necessaries for the institution, and perform all other acts necessary to render it efficient, and to carry out the purposes of its establishment.

SEC. 1687. [Quorum: record kept.]—Three of said trustees shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and their proceedings at each meeting shall be recorded in a minute book, which shall be signed by those present and form a record of their proceedings.

SEC. 1688. [Non-residents.]—Persons not residents of the state, of suitable age and capacity, shall be entitled to an education in said institution, on paying to the trustees thereof the sum of forty dollars a quarter in advance.

SEC. 1689. [Education to residents furnished by state.]—Every deaf and dumb citizen of the state, of suitable age and capacity, shall be entitled to receive an education in said institution at the expense of the state, and each county superintendent of common schools shall report on the first day of November in each year to the superintendent of the institution the name, age and post office address of every deaf and dumb person between the ages of five and twenty-one years residing in his county, including all such persons as may be too deaf to acquire an education in the common schools.

SEC. 1690. [Treasurer to give bond.]—The board of trustees shall select one of their number as president and another as treasurer of the institution, and the treasurer shall enter into bonds, with security, in such sum as the board shall direct, conditioned for the faithful paying over of all money belonging to the institution upon the order of the board, which bond shall be approved by the executive council and filed with the secretary of state.

SEC. 1691. [Indebtedness.]—The board shall not create any indebtedness against the institution exceeding the amount appropriated by the general assembly for the use thereof.

Sec. 1692. (As amended by ch. 105, 19th g. a.) [Appropriation.]—For the purpose of meeting current expenses, there is hereby appropriated the sum of [thirty-five] dollars per quarter for each pupil in said institution.

Sec. 1693. (As further amended by ch. 105, 19th g. a.)—To meet the ordinary expenses of the institution, including furniture, books, school apparatus, and compensation of officers and teachers, there is hereby appropriated the sum of [sixteen] thousand dollars per annum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, which may be drawn quarterly, in such sums as the necessities of the institution may require.

Sec. 1694. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [Superintendent to report to governor: contents of.]—The superintendent of said institution shall report to the governor, on or before the fifteenth day of [August] preceding each regular session of the general assembly, the number of pupils in attendance, with the name, age, sex, residence, place of nativity, and also the cause of the deafness of each pupil. He shall make a report of the studies pursued and trades taught in said institution, together with a complete detailed statement of the expenditures for said institution and the receipts on account of the same, the salaries paid to each officer and teacher, and also the kind, number and value of all articles manufactured and sold.

Sec. 1695. [Clothing for pupils furnished: how procured.]—When the pupils of said institution are not otherwise supplied with clothing, they shall be furnished by the superintendent, who shall make out an account of the cost thereof in each case, against the parent or guardian if the pupil be a minor, and against the pupil if he or she have no parent or guardian or have attained the age of majority; which account shall be certified to be correct by said superintendent; and when so certified, such an account shall be presumed correct in all courts. The superintendent shall thereupon remit the said accounts by mail to the treasurer of the county from which the pupil so supplied shall have come to said institution; such treasurer shall proceed at once to collect the same by suit in the name of his county if necessary, and pay the same into the state treasury; the superintendent shall, at the same time, remit a duplicate of such account to the auditor of state, who shall credit the same to the account of the institution, and charge it to the proper county; provided, if it shall appear by the affidavit of three disinterested citizens of the county not kin to the pupil, that the pupil or his or her parents would be unreasonably oppressed by such suit, then such treasurer shall not commence the said suit, but shall credit the same to the state on his books, and report the amount of such account to the board of supervisors of his county, and the said board shall levy sufficient tax to pay same to the state, and to cause the same to be paid into the state treasury.

Sec. 1696. [Appropriations: how drawn.]—The above mentioned appropriations, including the accounts for clothing aforesaid, shall be drawn quarterly on the requisition of the board of trustees of the institution, in the usual manner, and then only in such amounts as the wants of the institution may require.
INSTITUTION FOR EDUCATION OF DEAF AND DUMB.

An Act to provide for the rebuilding of the institution for the deaf and dumb, and to provide for the government of the same, and repeal a portion of section 1685, chapter 7, title XII, of the code.

SECTION 1. [Board of trustees: term of.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the board of trustees of the institution for the deaf and dumb shall consist of three persons, to be elected by the present general assembly, one for two years, one for four years, and one for six years; and each subsequent general assembly shall elect one trustee to serve for six years. Two of said trustees shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Said trustees shall enter upon the duties of their office on the first day of May in the year in which they are elected.

SEC. 2. [Teachers, etc., may not reside in the institution.]—And no teacher, superintendent, steward, or other employee, shall reside in the institution, or receive board, or any allowance of provision, clothing, fuel, or other supplies from the funds or supplies furnished for the support of the institution, except by arrangement made in advance with the trustees, and at and for prices that shall be just to the state.

SEC. 3. [$40,000 appropriated to rebuild.]—There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $40,000, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, to be expended under the direction of the board of trustees, for the purpose of rebuilding and completing in a plain and substantial manner the main building of the said institution; and the trustees shall cause to be utilized for this purpose so much of the material in the walls of the old main building and east wing as may be suitable for that purpose; provided, that not more than five thousand dollars of said appropriation shall be drawn from the state treasury before the first day of April, A. D., 1879.

SEC. 4. [Inmates may be used in any suitable labor.]—The trustees shall have authority to utilize the inmates of the institution, so far as practicable, without interfering with the proper education of the inmates, in any suitable labor on the farm, in the workshops, in the erection of buildings belonging to the institution, or in the domestic service of the same.

SEC. 5. [Code, § 1685, amended.]—All that portion of section 1685 of the code, after the word "trustees," in the fourth line, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. There is further appropriated for the purchase of furniture for use of pupils in said institution, the sum of two thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

CHAPTER 8.
OF COUNTY HIGH SCHOOLS.

SECTION 1697. [May be established.]—Each county having a population of two thousand inhabitants or over, as shown by the last state or federal census, may establish a high school on the conditions and in the manner hereinafter prescribed, for the purpose of affording better educational facilities for pupils more advanced than those attending district schools, and for persons desiring to fit themselves for the vocation of teaching.

SEC. 1698. [Petition for election: notice published.]—When one-third of the electors of a county, as shown by the returns of the last preceding election, shall petition the board of supervisors requesting that a county high school be established in their county at the place in said petition named, then, or when said board in its discretion shall deem proper, said board shall give twenty days' notice previous to the next general election, or previous to a special election duly called for that purpose, that they will submit the question to the electors of said county whether such high school shall be established; at which election said electors shall vote by ballot, for or against establishing such county high school. The notice contemplated in this section shall be given through one or more newspapers published in said county, if any be published therein, and by at least one written or printed notice to be posted in each township.

SEC. 1699. [Votes canvassed: trustees appointed: qualification of.]—After said election, the ballots on said question shall be canvassed in the same manner as in the election for county officers; and if a majority of all the votes cast on said question shall be in favor of establishing said school, the board of supervisors shall immediately proceed to appoint six persons, who shall be residents of the county, but not more than two of whom shall be residents of the same township, who shall, with the county superintendent of common schools, constitute a board of trustees for said high school. Each of said trustees appointed as aforesaid shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall be required, within ten day after appointment, to qualify by taking the oath of office, and giving such bond as may be required by the said board of supervisors, for the faithful discharge of his duties.

SEC. 1700. [Trustees classified: election of.]—At the next general election after said appointment, there shall be elected in said county six high school trustees, who shall be divided into three classes of two each; each class to hold their office one, two, and three years, respectively, and their respective terms to be decided by lot. And each year thereafter there shall be two such trustees elected to succeed those whose term is about to expire. And said trustees shall qualify and enter upon the duties of their office in the same manner, and at the same time as other county officers.

SEC. 1701. [County superintendent president of board.]—The county superintendent shall, by virtue of his office, be president of said board of trustees; and at their first meeting in each year, they shall appoint from their own number a secretary and treasurer, who shall perform the usual duties devolving upon such officers for the term of one year, or until their successors are appointed to take their places.

SEC. 1702. [Trustees to make estimate of funds: tax for levied.]—At said meeting, or at some succeeding meeting called for such purpose, said trustees shall make an estimate of the amount of funds needed for building purposes, for payment of teachers' wages, and for contingent expenses, and they shall present to the board of supervisors a certified estimate of the rate of tax required to raise the amount desired for such purposes. But in no case shall the tax for such purposes exceed in one year the amount of five mills on the dollar on the taxable property of the county, and, when the tax is levied for the payment of teachers' wages and contingent expenses only, shall not exceed two mills on the dollar.

Sec. 1703. [Collected and paid over.]—The said tax shall be levied and collected in the same manner as other county taxes, and when collected the county treasurer shall pay the same to the treasurer of the county high school, in the same manner that school funds are paid to the district treasurers as required by law.

Sec. 1704. [Treasurer of board to give bond: accounts kept.]—The said treasurer of the high school shall give such additional bond as the board of trustees may deem sufficient, and receive all moneys from the county treasurer and from other parties that belong to the funds of said school, and pay the same out only by direction of the board of trustees upon orders duly executed by the president, countersigned by the secretary thereof, stating the purpose for which they were drawn. Both the secretary and treasurer shall keep an accurate account of all moneys received and expended for said school; and at the close of each year, and as much oftener as required by the board, they shall make a full statement of the financial affairs of the school.

Sec. 1705. [Trustees to select site: purchase materials: make contracts.]—The said board of trustees shall proceed as soon as practicable after their appointment as aforesaid, to select the best site in accordance with the vote of the county, that can be obtained without expense to the same, and the title thereof shall be vested in said county. They shall then proceed to make such purchases of material, and to let such contracts for their necessary school buildings as they may deem proper, but shall not make any purchase or contract in any year to exceed the amount on hand and to be raised by the levy of tax that year.

Sec. 1706. [Trustees to employ teachers: schools encouraged.]—When said board of trustees shall have furnished a suitable building for the school, they shall employ some competent teacher to take charge of the same, and furnish such assistant teachers as they deem necessary, and provide for the payment of their salaries. As far as practicable model schools shall be encouraged, and advanced students and those preparing to become teachers may be employed a portion of their time in teaching the younger pupils, in order that they may become familiar with the practice as well as theory of successful school-teaching, and also avoid, as far as practicable, the expense of employing other assistant teachers.

Sec. 1707. [Tuition free to residents of county: trustees to make rules.]—Tuition shall be free to all pupils of such school residing in the county where the same is located. The board of trustees, however, shall make such general rules and regulations as they deem proper in regard to age and grade of attainments essential to entitle pupils to admission in the school. If there should be more applicants than can be accommodated at any time, each district shall be entitled to send its equal proportion of pupils according to the number of pupils it may have, as shown by the last report to the county superintendent of common schools. And the boards of the respective school districts shall designate such pupils as may attend.

Sec. 1708. [Pupils from other counties admitted.]—If, at any time, the school can accommodate more pupils than apply for admission from that county, the vacancies may be filled by applicants from other counties, upon the payment of such tuition as the board of trustees may prescribe; but at no time shall such pupils continue in said school to the exclusion of pupils belonging in the county in which such high school is situated.

Sec. 1709. [Principal make rules.]—The principal of any high school, with the approval of the board of trustees, shall make such rules and regulations as he
CHAPTER 9.

OF THE SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS.

SECTION 1713. [School districts.]—Each civil township now or hereafter organized, and each independent school district organized as such prior to the taking effect of this code, is hereby declared a school district for all the purposes of this chapter, subject to the provisions hereinafter made.

The school law of this state contemplates that school districts shall coincide in boundary with civil townships. Section 1797 of the code provides the only exception to this rule. District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 30.

No such restrictions upon the formation of independent districts, which may be created from two or more civil townships, or parts thereof, situated even in adjoining counties. Id.

A school district is not liable for personal injuries sustained on account of the negligent construction of a school-house, or for negligence in failing to keep it in repair. Following Kinnard v. Hardin County, 53 Id., 433; Lane v. The District Township of Woodbury, 58 Id., 462.

SECTION 1714. [When no officers: how supplied.]—When an organized district has been left without officers, the township trustees shall give such notice for a special election of directors, as is required in cases of regular district elections; and the persons elected shall continue in office until their successors are elected and qualified.

SECTION 1715. [Division of district: apportionment of assets and liabilities.]—When changes in civil township boundaries are made, or any district shall be divided into two or more entire townships for civil purposes, the existing board of directors shall continue to act for both or all the new districts, or parts of districts, until the next regular district election thereafter, at which time the new district townships shall organize by the election of directors. The respective boards of directors shall, immediately after such organization, make an equitable division of the then existing assets and liabilities between the old and new districts; and in case of a failure to agree, the matter may be decided by arbitrators, chosen by the parties in interest. A similar division shall be made in case of the formation or changes of boundaries of independent districts.

Upon the division of a district township into independent districts, the board of directors of the former are empowered to make a division of the assets, wherein their jurisdiction is exclusive, and their judgment cannot be set aside in a collateral proceeding. Ind. School Dist. of Oakland v. Ind. School Dist. of Asbury, 43 Iowa, 444.

Where the subdistricts of a district township were organized into independent districts, and the directors made a distribution of assets and liabilities and instituted an action at law against the debtor districts for the amount due from them, pending which the term of office of the directors expired, it was held, that the creditor districts could, in equity, compel an accounting and payment of the amounts due them. Ind. School Dist. of Georgia v. Ind. School Dist. of Victoria, 41 Id., 321.

When a district township is divided into two or more districts under the provisions of chapter 172, laws of 1862, school-houses and real estate used for school purposes, situated within the divided districts are to be estimated in making the division of assets contemplated by that act. The District Township of Williams v. The District Township of Jackson, 36 Id., 216.

This construction of the statute does not require an actual division or partition of the real property of the district. The respective districts, after the division, which do not receive their just proportion of the property, have a claim, which they may enforce by action, against those who obtain more than the share to which they are entitled. Id.

When a part of the territory of one school district is attached to another, the board of directors of the two districts, or arbitrators chosen by them, shall apportion the assets upon the reorganization of the districts, and their jurisdiction for this purpose is exclusive. The District Township of Viola v. The District Township of Audubon, 45 Id., 104. See also The Ind. School Dist. of Lowell v. The Ind. School Dist. of Duser, 45 Id., 391, holding the same view as to the conclusiveness of the action of the board of directors.

Upon the subdivision of a district township into independent districts, the directors of the district township are authorized to apportion the assets and liabilities, and it is only upon their failure to agree that the matters in dispute are to be referred to arbitrators. The consent of the various independent districts is not necessary to the jurisdiction of the directors of the district township. The Ind. School Dist. of Lowell v. The Ind. School Dist. of Duser, 45 Id., 391.

Where territory is set into an adjoining county or township, or attached to an independent school district in an adjoining county or township, for school purposes, or is restored from an independent district to the district to which it geographically belonged, there must be an equitable apportionment of all the assets and liabilities. Albin et al. v. The Board of Directors of Independent District of West Branch, 58 Id., 77.

A school district township is a political or municipal corporation within the meaning of article 2, section 5 of the constitution, inhibiting such corporation from incurring indebtedness to an amount exceeding five per cent on the taxable property within the corporation. Winspear v. The Dist. Tp. of Holman, 57 Id., 542.

Where a district township abandons its organization and the territory is organized into independent districts, a creditor of the district township may join such independent district as defendants in an action upon his claim, and a joint and several judgment may be rendered against them therein. The Dist. Tp. of White Oak et al. v. The Dist. Tp. of Okalowa et al., 53 Id., 73.

Neither this section nor section 1820 has any application to the claim of one township against another, accruing after the division of the debtor township into independent districts. Id.

The circuit court as a court of equity has jurisdiction of an action to set aside an award made by arbitrators, chosen under this section (1715) to make a division of assets between two district townships. And the petition having alleged, among other errors committed by the arbitrators, a mistake in computation of the amount of the award, it was held sufficient in default of an answer to authorize the setting aside of the award and a re-submission of the matter in dispute to other arbitrators. Dist. Tp. of Algona v. Dist. Tp. of Lott's Creek, 54 Id., 286.

The arbitration contemplated by this section is the arbitration provided by sections 3416 and 3421 of the code. The award has the force and effect of a verdict of a jury, and the court which renders judgment on the award must follow the award, and has no power to render a different judgment. Dist. Tp. of Little Sioux v. Ind. Dist. of Little Sioux, 60 Id., 141.

Before a county can be called on to pay bills for aid furnished to paupers on the orders of township trustees, the trustees must certify the bills to be "correct," and it is not enough to certify that they ordered the aid furnished. Sloan v. Webster Co., 61 Id., 785.

In an action to compel directors of a district township, out of which an independent district was carved, to meet the directors of the independent district and agree on division of assets, it appearing in the evidence that they had not refused so to meet, but had met repeatedly, and were unable to agree upon a division, it was held, that the petition should have been dismissed. Mandamus would possibly lie in such a case to compel the appointment of arbitrators, but this action was not for that purpose. Case v. Blood et al., 68 Id., 486.

Sec. 1716. [Body corporate.]—Every school district which is now or may hereafter be organized, is hereby made a body corporate by the name of the "district township," or "independent district," (as the case may be), of . . . . in the county of . . . . . . . . , and in that name may hold property, become a party to suits and contracts, and do other corporate acts.

Sec. 1717. [Annual meeting.]—Each district township shall hold an annual meeting on the second Monday in March, and the electors of the district, when legally assembled at such meeting, shall have the following powers:

1. To appoint a chairman and secretary in the absence of the regular officers;

2. (As amended by ch. 51, 19th g. a.) To direct the sale or other disposition to be made of any school-house or the site thereof, and of such other property, personal and real, as may belong to the district, the manner in which the proceeds arising therefrom shall be applied; to determine what additional branches shall be taught in the schools of the district; or to delegate any of these powers to the board of directors; and to authorize the board of directors to obtain, at the expense of the district township, such highways as such board may deem necessary for proper access to the school-houses in their districts.

3. (As amended by ch. 51, 19th g. a.) To vote such tax, not exceeding ten mills on the dollar in any one year, on the taxable property of the district township, as the meeting shall deem sufficient for the purchase of grounds and the construction of the necessary school-houses for the use of the district, and for the payment of the debts contracted for the erection of school-houses, and for procuring district libraries. [And for obtaining highways for access to school-houses.]

4. (As amended by ch. 63, 18th g. a.) To instruct the board of directors to transfer any surplus in the school-house fund, not appropriated, to either the contingent or teachers' fund.]

Contracts for mere repairs of school-houses may be made by the directors of the district township and paid out of "contingent fund," without being specially authorized by a vote of the directors. Whether the improvements in a given case are of a character to come within the meaning of the term "repairs," is a question of fact to be established by proof. Williams v. Pienny, 25 Iowa, 436.

The school directors of a district township have no power to bind the district by a contract for the purchase of school apparatus unless authorized thereto by a vote of the electors of the district. Manning v. The District Township of Van Buren, 28 Id., 322. Nor would such a contract become binding upon the district township by an acceptance and acquiescence in the use in the schools of the apparatus so purchased. Id. Also, Taylor v. The District Township of Wayne, 25 Id., 448. See also, Herrington v. The District Township of Liston, 47 Id., 11.

This section authorizes the electors of a district township "to direct the sale or other disposition to be made of any school-house or the site thereof, and of such other property, personal or real, as may belong to the district." But they have no power to discharge a debtor of the district without consideration. District Township of Washington v. Thomas, 59 Id., 50.

The electors of a district township when legally assembled may lawfully authorize the use of the school-houses in their districts to be used for purposes of religious worship and Sunday-schools, and under the authority thus conferred a subdirector is empowered to permit the school-house in his district to be so used. Davis v. Boget et al., 50 Id., 11; Townsend v. Hagan et al., 35 Id., 194.

The use of the school-house for such purposes, when thus authorized, is not prohibited by section 3 of article 1 of the state constitution. Id.

There is nothing in the statute limiting subdistricts to but one school-house each. Wood v. Farmer, 69 Id., 583.
SUBDISTRICTS.

SEC. 1717. [In case of fire.]—(When a school district, by fire or otherwise, has been deprived of a school building, and the board of directors of such district, by the use of the powers in them vested, are unable to provide for the continuance of the school therein, then such board of directors shall call a meeting of such district. The manner of calling such meeting, and the powers of such meetings, shall be as follows:

First—[Manner of calling meeting.]—The board of directors shall cause to be posted in three public places in such district, at least ten days prior to the designated time of holding such meeting, written notices of such meeting, in which shall be stated the time and place of such meeting and the object or purpose for which the same is called.

Second—[Powers of such meetings.]—The powers of such meeting shall be the same as is prescribed in section 1717 hereof, except those powers which are set forth in paragraph two, after the word “applied” in the fourth line thereof, and in paragraph three, after the word “district” in the fifth line thereof.)

VOTING OF SCHOOL TAXES.

An Act allowing school districts lying in two adjoining counties the right to vote mills instead of specific sums for school purposes. (Additional to code, title XII, chapter 9: "Of the system of common schools.")

SECTION 1. [May vote mills for schools.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all school districts lying in two adjoining counties shall have the right to vote mills instead of specific sums for school purposes.

Approved March 21, 1874.

SEC. 1718. [Meetings of.]—The several subdistricts shall, annually, on the first Monday in March, hold a meeting for the election of a subdirector, five days' notice of which meeting shall be given by the then resident subdirector, or, if there is none, by the district secretary posting a written notice in three public places therein, and such notice shall state the hour of meeting.

Where the board of directors had in due form created a subdistrict, and then a vote was obtained in such subdistrict in favor of an independent organization, it was held that the fact that a subdirector had not been elected before the organization of the independent district did not invalidate such organization. Independent School District No. 8, etc., v. Independent School District of Burr Oak. 48 Iowa, 157; Townsend v. Hogan et al., 30 Id., 194.

The electors of a district township when legally assembled, may authorize the use of the school-houses of the district for religious purposes, and under the authority thus conferred, a subdirector is empowered to permit the school-house in his subdistrict to be so used. Davis v. Bogat et al., 50 Id., 11.

SEC. 1719. [As amended by § 1, ch. 7, 18th g. a.] [Chairman and secretary appointed.]—At the meeting of the subdistrict, a chairman and secretary shall be appointed, who shall act as judges of the election, and give a certificate of election to the subdirector elect. (When there is a tie vote between two persons for the office of subdirector, the secretary shall notify the secretary of the district township board of such tie vote, and shall notify said persons to appear at the regular meeting of the board on the third Monday in March, to determine the tie vote by lot before one or more members of the board elected, and the certificate of election shall be given accordingly. Should either party fail to appear, or take part in the lot, the secretary shall draw for him.)
The law intends that frankness and liberality shall characterize elections for school officers; and where the polls were kept open only forty minutes, and votes refused that were offered a few minutes after, the proceeding held invalid. The State, ex rel. Hanks v. Wollem, 37 Iowa, 131.

SEC. 1720. [Number of subdirectors: how chosen.]—In all district townships comprising but one subdistrict, the board of directors shall consist of three subdirectors; and in all district townships comprising but two subdistricts it shall consist of one subdirector chosen from each subdistrict, and one from the district township at large, who shall in both cases be elected in the manner provided by law for the election of one subdirector from each subdistrict. The judges of the respective subdistrict elections shall canvass the votes for subdirector chosen from the district township at large, and shall issue a certificate of election to the person elected.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

SEC. 1721. (As amended by ch. 27, 15th g. a.) [Subdirectors constitute organization of board.]—The subdirectors of the several subdistricts shall constitute a board of directors for the district township, and shall enter upon their duties upon the day fixed for the regular meeting of the board in March, at which time they shall organize by electing from their own number a president, who shall simply be entitled to a vote as a member of the board; and from the district township at large, (at their regular meeting on the third Monday of September in each year,) a secretary and a treasurer, unless there are at least five subdirectors in the district township, in which case they may be selected from the board, (and said secretary and treasurer thus elected shall qualify and enter upon the duties of their respective offices within ten days following the date of their election.) If selected from the district township at large, they shall have no vote in the proceedings of the board.

The treasurer of a school district township is not necessarily a member of the board of directors, and has no authority to bind the district township by his contracts or admissions, and his indorsement of payments upon a warrant, within ten years, would not defeat the operation of the statute of limitations. Carpenter v. The District Township of Union, 58 Iowa, 335.

SEC. 1722. (As substituted by ch. 176, 18th g. a.) [Meetings of.]—The board of directors shall hold their regular meetings on the third Monday in March and September of each year; and may hold such special meetings as occasion may require, at the call of the president, or by request of a majority of the board; provided, that the board of directors of a district township may hold their meetings at any place within the civil or district township in which such district township is situated.

SEC. 1723. [Make contracts and purchases.]—They shall make all contracts, purchases, payments and sales, necessary to carry out any vote of the district; but before erecting any school-house they shall consult with the county superintendent as to the most approved plan of such buildings. And all school-houses erected or repaired at a cost exceeding three hundred dollars, shall be so erected or repaired by contract, and no such contract for labor or materials shall be let until proposals for the same shall have been invited by advertisement for four weeks in some newspaper published in the county where the work is to be done, if there be one published therein, if not, in the nearest newspaper in an adjoining county; and such contract shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, and bonds with sufficient sureties for the faithful performance of the contract shall be required.

The directors of a school district have power to borrow money to discharge a debt which has been legitimately created, and are authorized to pledge the credit of the district for that purpose. Austin v. The District Township of Colony, 51 Iowa, 102.

They cannot, however, make the obligation evidencing such debt bear a higher rate of interest than six per cent. Id.

The board of directors of a district township having power to make contracts for the erection of school houses in the subdistricts may, by its acts in respect thereto, so ratify a contract of this character, informally entered into, as to give full force and validity to the same. Stevenson et al. v. The District Township of Summit, 35 Id., 462.

The directors of a district township have no power to bind the district by a contract for the purchase of school apparatus, unless authorized thereto by a vote of the electors. Manning v. The District Township of Van Buren, 23 Id., 332. Having no power to make an express contract of this character, unless so authorized, they cannot make an implied one, nor ratify an express contract by using or accepting the apparatus purchased. Id. Taylor v. District Township of Wayne, 25 Id., 448.

The board has no power, in the absence of any consideration, to direct the release from liability of one justly indebted to the district. District Township of Taylor v. Morton et al., 37 Id., 350.

A school district has authority under this section to provide, in a contract for the erection of a school house, that the contractor shall deliver the building to the district "free from liens or claims of every kind," and where a bond taken for the performance of the contract provided that the contractor should "pay all claims for material, labor, etc., used in the construction of the building and produce proper receipts," persons furnishing materials for the building may, in default of payment thereof, have an action upon the bond against the contractor and sureties—the bond being regarded in law as intended for their security. Baker & Co. et al. v. Bryan et al., 64 Id., 361.

SEC. 1724. [Select site for school houses.]—They shall select the site for each school-house, taking into consideration the geographical position and convenience of the people of each portion of the subdistrict, and shall determine what number of schools shall be taught in each subdistrict, and for what additional time beyond the period required by law they shall be continued during each year.

A district school board has the power to change the established site of a school-house, and remove the building to a new site; and where the board, in ordering such change, does not exceed its jurisdiction, nor otherwise act illegally, a court of equity will not interfere with its action, nor restrain its proceeding thereunder. The remedy for unwise or inexpedient action in such case is by appeal to the county superintendent. Vance v. The District Township of Wilton, 23 Iowa, 408.

Neither the board of directors of a district township, nor the subdirector of a subdistrict has the power to bind the district by a contract for the insurance of a school-house, without being authorized by a vote of the electors of the district authorizing or satisfying the same. American Insurance Co. v. The District Township of Willow et al., 55 Id., 666.

Prima facie, an order drawn upon the treasurer of a school district for payment for a lightning-rod out of the contingent fund is invalid, an expenditure for that purpose not being indispensable to the operation of the school. Wolf & Son v. The Independent School District et al., 51 Id., 432.

The board of directors of an independent school district has no power to employ one of the members of the board to oversee the completion of a school-house that has been abandoned by the contractor, and bind the district for his payment, nor can he recover from the district for services so rendered. Moore v. The Independent District of Toledo City, 55 Id., 654.

See Williams v. Pray, 25 Id., 436, and note to section 1717, ante. Also, Manning v. The District Township of Van Buren, 23 Id., 332, and note to section 1717, ante.

The board of directors of a district township have no authority, without a vote of the electors, to purchase lightning-rods for school-houses and give the obligation of the district township therefor. The Monticello Bank v. Township of Coffin's Grove, 51 Id., 350.

The ruling in Vance v. The District Township of Wilton, 23 Id., 408, above noted, adhered to and followed in Atkinson v. Hutchinson, 67 Id., 161.

SEC. 1725. (As amended by ch. 124, 21st g. a.) [Divide districts, etc.]—They shall determine where pupils may attend school, and for this purpose may divide their districts into such subdistricts as may be deemed necessary; provided, that no such subdistrict shall be created for the accommodation of less than fifteen pupils, but the board of directors shall have power to rent a room and employ a teacher for the accommodation of any [ten] scholars; [Provided, further, that nothing in this chapter contained shall be construed to prohibit the construction of as many school-houses, out of moneys derived from taxes levied previous to January 1st, 1876, in any subdistrict, where the subdistrict comprises the entire district township, as shall have been authorized and provided for at the annual meeting of the district township electors.]

An injunction will not lie to restrain the collection of a tax voted to erect a new school-house, on the ground that the independent district already has a school-house, and that it has not divided its territory as required by this section, where it is not shown that the district does not need the new school-house to take the place of the old one, which may have become unfit for school house purposes. Casey v. Ind. Dist. of Nutt et al., 64 Iowa, 659.

Whether the directors of a district township shall rent a room and employ a teacher for the accommodation of any five scholars under this section, is a matter wholly in their own discretion, and their action is to be reviewed, if at all, by appeal to the county superintendent. Mandamus will not lie. Aunanson v. Anderson, 70 Id., 102.

SEC. 1726. (As amended by ch. 109, 16th g. a.) [Graded schools.]—They may establish graded or union schools wherever they may be necessary, and may select a person who shall have the general supervision of the schools in their districts, subject to the rules and regulations of the board.

SEC. 1727. [Schools: time taught, etc.]—In each subdistrict there shall be taught one or more schools for the instruction of youth between the ages of five and twenty-one years, for at least twenty-four weeks, of five school days each, in each year, unless the county superintendent shall be satisfied that there is good and sufficient cause for failure so to do. Any person who was in the military service of the United States during his minority shall be admitted into the schools in the subdistrict in which he may reside, on the same terms on which youths between the ages of five and twenty-one are admitted.

The constitution and statutes provide for the education of all the youths of the state, without distinction of color, and the board of directors have no discretionary power to require colored children of attend a separate school. They may exercise a uniform discretion, operative upon all, as to the residence or qualification of children to entitle them to admission to each particular school, but they cannot deny a youth admission to any particular school, merely because of his color, nationality, religion, or the like. Clark v. The Board of Directors, etc., 24 Iowa, 336; Smith v. The Independent District of Keokuk, 40 Id., 518; Dove v. Same, 41 Id., 639.

Where in a subdistrict containing but five pupils, the board directed that no school should be taught during the winter in their district, and provided for the attendance of their pupils elsewhere, it was held that their action was not inconsistent with section 1727 of the code. Potter v. District Township, etc., 40 Id., 369.

If a person who has attained the age of twenty-one years, voluntarily attends the public school, creating the relation of teacher and pupil, he thereby subjects himself to like discipline with pupils who are within the school age. The State v. Mizner, 45 Id., 248.

The pupil in such case may be punished for refractory conduct, and the teacher will not be liable therefor, if, under the circumstances, the punishment was reasonable. Id.

The board of directors may provide a school for less than twenty-four weeks in the year, with the consent of the county superintendent, and it is not necessary to the validity of their action that such consent shall first be obtained. Herrington v. The District Township of Lison, 47 Id., 11.

Children residing in one district may attend school in another with the consent of the directors of the latter, provided their own school is not in session; and also provided they have not had the privilege of attending school twenty-four weeks in the year in their own district and for such attendance their own district is liable to the district where they may attend. The District Township of Horton v. The District Township of Ocheyden et al., 49 Id., 231.

Where the directors of the district in which the children reside, upon being notified of their attendance elsewhere, determine they will not pay their tuition, no further demand upon them is necessary, and the account may then be filed with the auditor. Id.

SEC. 1728. [Change of books.]—The board of directors of any district township or independent district, shall not order, or direct, or make any change in the school books, or series of text books used in any school under their superintendent, direction, or control, more than once in every period of three years, except by a vote of the electors of the district township or independent district.

SEC. 1729. [Contingent fund: use of.]—They may use any unappropriated contingent fund in the treasury to purchase records, directories, maps, charts and apparatus for the use of the schools of their districts, but shall contract no debts for this purpose.

An independent school district may provide that music shall be taught in its schools, and the board has power to purchase a musical instrument, to be paid for out of any unappropriated funds of the district. Bellinger v. The Independent District of Marshalltown, 44 Iowa, 664.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that there were unappropriated funds of the district on hand at the time of such purchase, and this presumption will not be rebutted by the fact that payment was to be made at a future time. Id.
Sec. 1730. [Temporary officers.]—They shall appoint a temporary president and secretary in case of the absence of the regular officers, and shall fill any vacancy that may occur in the office of president, treasurer, or secretary, or in the board of directors.

Sec. 1731. [Bonds to be given.]—They shall require the secretary and treasurer to give bonds to the district in such penalty and with such security as they may deem necessary to secure the district against loss, conditioned for the faithful performance of their official duties. The bond shall be filed with the president, and in the case of a breach of the conditions thereof, he shall bring suit thereon in the name of the district township or independent district.

It is the duty of the board of directors of a school district to require its treasurer to give bond in such a sum as will secure it against loss. District Township of Grove v. Bowman, 55 Iowa 129.

Sec. 1732. [Examine accounts of treasurer.]—They shall, from time to time, examine the accounts of the treasurer and make settlement with him; and shall present at each regular meeting of the electors of the district township, a full statement of the receipts and expenditures of the district township, and such other information as may be deemed important.

Sec. 1733. [Audit claims.]—They shall audit and allow all just claims against the district, and fix the compensation of the secretary and treasurer, and no order shall be drawn on the treasury until the claim for which it is drawn has been audited and allowed.

Sec. 1734. [Visit schools: make rules: discharge teachers.]—They shall visit the schools in their district, and aid the teachers in establishing and enforcing the rules for the government of the schools; and see that they keep a correct list of the pupils, embracing the periods of time during which they have attended school, the branches taught, and such other matters as may be required by the county superintendent. In case a teacher employed in any of the schools of the district township is found to be incompetent, or is guilty of partiality or dereliction in the discharge of his duties, or for any other sufficient cause shown, the board of directors may, after a full and fair investigation of the facts of the case, at a meeting convened for the purpose, at which the teacher shall be permitted to be present and make his defense, discharge him.

The duties imposed upon school directors by section 1734 of the code respecting the discharge of teachers, are of a judicial character. "This discretion does not extend simply to the execution of a duty or the manner of the performance of an act required by law. It pertains to the determination of the question whether the law requires the act to be done—whether the facts of the case are of the character to call into action the authority conferred by law." Smith v. The District Township of Knox, 42 Iowa, 522.

The remedy of a teacher who is wrongfully discharged by the board of directors for incompetency is by appeal, and he cannot at once maintain an action in the courts to recover for a breach of contract, though the action of the board was irregular, and not in compliance with the provisions of section 1734 of the code. Kirkpatrick v. The Independent School District, etc., 53 Id., 585.

Sec. 1735. [Pupils in independent districts dismissed or suspended.]—The majority of the board in independent districts shall have power, with the concurrence of the president of the board of directors, to dismiss or suspend any pupils from the school in their district for gross immorality or for a persistent violation of the regulations or rules of the school, and to readmit them if they deem proper so to do.

A board of school directors has no power to adopt and enforce a rule which shall deprive a child of school privileges except as a punishment for a breach of discipline or an offense against good morals. Perkins v. The Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Des Moines, 56 Iowa, 476.

A rule adopted by the board of directors under which a pupil was expelled for having while engaged with other pupils of the school in playing ball, at a proper time, near the school-house, accidentally and unintentionally batted a ball through one of the windows of the school-house, breaking a glass of the value of about three dollars, which his parents refused to pay for, was held void, as beyond the power of the board to adopt. Id. See notes to section 1736.
The courts may by mandamus compel the reinstatement of a pupil in the public schools, who has been excluded under a rule which the board of directors had no authority to adopt. Id.

SEC. 1736. [Certificate of election of officers filed.]—They shall, at their regular meeting in March of each year, require the secretary to file with the county superintendent, county auditor, and county treasurer, each, a certificate of the election, qualification and postoffice address of the president, treasurer, and secretary of the district township, and to advise them from time to time of any changes made in said offices by appointment.

SEC. 1737. [Rules for government of subdirectors.]—They shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the direction and restriction of subdirectors in the discharge of their official duties, and not inconsistent with law.

While a subdirector in a school district is authorized to make contracts for the employment of teachers for his subdistrict, his authority is subject to the rules and restrictions, not inconsistent with law, which may be prescribed by the board of directors. Potter v. The District Township of Fredericksburg, 40 Iowa, 369.

SEC. 1738. [Quorum.]

A majority of the board of directors shall be a quorum to transact business, but a less number may adjourn from time to time, and no tax shall be levied by the board after the third Monday in May; nor shall the boundaries of subdistricts be changed except by a vote of a majority of the board, nor shall the members of the board, except its secretary and treasurer, receive pay out of any school funds for services rendered under this chapter.

The concurrence of a majority of the board of directors, when legally assembled, is essential to the performance of a valid act. The assent of the several members separately obtained is not enough, and any action based thereon will not be binding on the district. Herrington v. The District Township of Lisbon, 47 Iowa, 11.

The provision of section 1738, that "no tax shall be levied by the board after the third Monday in May," is mandatory, and a tax levied after that time is void. Standard Coal Co. v. Independent Dist. of Angus, 34 N. W. R., 570.

PRESIDENT.

SEC. 1739. [Duties.]—The president shall preside at all meetings of the board of directors of independent districts, and of the district townships; shall draw all drafts on the treasury for money apportioned to his district, sign all orders on the treasury, specifying in each order the fund on which it is drawn and the use for which the money is appropriated, and shall sign all contracts made by the board, and shall be empowered to administer the oath of office to the secretary, treasurer, and members of the board.

A school order, drawn on the treasurer of a district township by the president and secretary thereof, is not a negotiable instrument, and the assignee thereof takes it subject to all the equities and defenses that it would have been subjected to in the hands of the payee. Boardman v. Hayne at al., 29 Iowa, 319; Shepherd v. Dist.Tp. of Richland, 22 Id., 585.

If such paper be issued without authority it is void, and this defense may be made against the assignee thereof. Id.

All orders drawn on the treasury must specify the fund on which they are drawn. The Dist. Tp. of Coon v. Board of Directors of the Dist. Tp., etc., 52 Id., 595, 590.

An action may be maintained against a school district on an order drawn by the proper officer on the treasurer thereof. The creditor of a corporation is not restricted to mandamus as its sole remedy. Cross v. The Dist. Tp. of Dayton, 14 Id., 28.

SEC. 1740. [Represent district.]—He shall appear in behalf of his district in all suits brought by or against the same, but when he is individually a party this duty shall be performed by the secretary; and in all cases where suits may be instituted by or against any of the school officers to enforce any of the provisions herein contained, counsel may be employed by the board of directors.

The president of a school district township has no authority to employ counsel at the expense of the district, unless in a case brought by or against the district. Templin & Son v. The District Tp. of Fremont, 36 Iowa, 411.
SECRETARY.

SEC. 1741. [Duties.]—The secretary shall record all the proceedings of the board and district meetings in separate books kept for that purpose; shall preserve copies of all reports made to the county superintendent; shall file all papers transmitted to him pertaining to the business of the district; shall countersign all drafts and orders drawn by the president, and shall keep a register of all orders drawn on the treasury, showing the number of the order, date, name of the person in whose favor drawn, the fund on which it is drawn, for what purpose, and the amount; and shall, from time to time, furnish the treasurer with a transcript of the same.

The books of the secretary of a school district, showing its indebtedness, are admissible in an action against the district upon its orders wherein it is pleaded that they were issued in excess of the legal limit of indebtedness. Wormley v. The District Township of Carroll, 45 Iowa, 666.

After proof of the loss of a record, its contents may be proved, like other documents, by secondary evidence. Higgin v. Reed, 8 Id., 298.

This section is but directory, and the failure of the secretary to record all the proceedings of the board, and of the district meetings, in separate books to be kept for that purpose, or a record of them upon loose sheets of paper, instead of a bound book, will not render the proceedings of the board or district void, nor make persons subsequently in office liable for the failure of their predecessors to comply with such directory statute. Id.

Records kept on loose sheets of paper are admissible in evidence as records. Id.

SEC. 1742. [Give notice of meetings.]—He shall give ten days' previous notice of the district township meeting, by posting a written notice in five conspicuous places therein, one of which shall be at or near the last place of meeting, and shall furnish a copy of the same to the teacher of each school in session, to be read in the presence of the pupils thereof, and such notice shall in all cases state the hour of meeting.

SEC. 1743. [Keep accounts.]—He shall keep an accurate account of all the expenses incurred by the district, and shall present the same to the board of directors, to be audited and paid as herein provided.

SEC. 1744. [Notify county superintendent.]—He shall notify the county superintendent when each school of the district begins, and its length of term.

SEC. 1745. (As amended by ch. 112, 16th g. a.) [Making report to: contents of.*]—Between the fifteenth and twentieth days of September in each year, the secretary of each school district shall file with the county superintendent a report of the affairs of the district, which shall contain the following items:

1. The number of persons, male and female, each, in his district between the ages of five and twenty-one years;
2. The number of schools, and the branches taught;
3. The number of pupils, and the average attendance of the same in each school;
4. The number of teachers employed, and the average compensation paid per week, distinguishing males from females;
5. The length of school, in days, and the average cost of tuition per week for each pupil;
   (Subdivisions 6, 7 and 8, stricken out by section 1, chapter 112, sixteenth general assembly.)
9. The text-books used, and the number of volumes in the district library, and the value of apparatus belonging to the district;
10. The number of school-houses, and their estimated value;
11. [Subdivisions 6, 7, and 8, stricken out.]*—The name, age, and post-office address of each deaf and dumb, and each blind person within his district between the ages of five and twenty-one, including all who are blind or deaf to such an extent as to be unable to obtain an education in the common schools.
[12. (Added by ch. 23, 19th g. a.) The number of trees set out and in thrifty condition on each school-house grounds.]

SEC. 1746. [Penalty.]—Should the secretary fail to file his report as above directed, he shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars, and shall make good all losses resulting from such failure, and suit shall be brought in both cases by the district on his official bond.

TREASURER.

SEC. 1747. [Pay orders.]—The treasurer shall hold all moneys belonging to the district, and pay out the same on the order of the president, countersigned by the secretary, and shall keep a correct account of all expenses and receipts in a book provided for that purpose.

A public officer is not excused from compliance with the terms of his bond by any events against which he could have provided therein. The District Township of Union v. Smith et al., 39 Iowa, 9.

This case holds that the treasurer's liability, under the language of his bond and the law, covered a case where the money, which suit was brought to recover, was accidentally consumed by fire without his fault or negligence, by the burning of his residence, no safe having been furnished him by the district.

SEC. 1748. [Different funds.]—The money collected by district tax for the erection of school-houses, and for the payment of debts contracted for the same, shall be called the "school-house fund;" that designed for rent, fuel, repairs, and all other contingent expenses necessary for keeping the schools in operation, the "contingent fund;" and that received for the payment of teachers, the "teachers' fund;" and the district treasurer shall keep with each fund a separate account, and shall pay no order which does not specify the fund on which it is drawn and the specific use to which it is applied. If he have not sufficient funds in his hands to pay in full the warrant drawn on the fund specified, he shall make a partial payment thereon, paying as near as may be an equal proportion of each warrant.

A school district may properly authorize steps to be taken to secure the location of a highway by its school-house, there being none, and may be made liable for expenses incurred in connection with an application for such highway. Ind. Dist. of Flint River v. Kelley et al., 55 Iowa, 568.

SEC. 1749. [Receive money.] He shall receive all moneys apportioned to the district township by the county auditor, and also all money collected by the county treasurer on the district school tax levied for his district.

SEC. 1750. [Register orders.]—He shall register all orders on the district treasury reported to him by the secretary, showing the number of the order, date, name of the person in whose favor drawn, the fund on which it is drawn, for what purpose, and the amount.

SEC. 1751. (As amended by ch. 112, 16th g. a.) [Make statement to directors.]—He shall render a statement of the finances of the district from time to time, as may be required by the board of directors, and his books shall always be open for inspection.

(He shall make to the board, on the third Monday in September, a full and complete annual report, embracing:
1. The amount of teachers' fund held over, received, paid out, and on hand;
2. The amount of contingent fund held over, received, paid out, and on hand;
3. The amount of school-house fund held over, received, paid out, and on hand.
He shall immediately file a copy of his report with the county superintendent, and for failure to file said report he shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars to be recovered by suit brought by the district on his official bond.)

SUBDIRECTOR.

SEC. 1752. [Oath.]—Each subdirector shall, on or before the third Monday in March following his election, appear before some officer qualified to administer oaths, and take an oath to support the constitution of the United States, and that of the state of Iowa, and that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office; and in case of failure to qualify, his office shall be deemed vacant.

SEC. 1753. [Employ teachers: make repairs: control house.]—The subdirector, under such rules and restrictions as the board of directors may prescribe, shall negotiate and make in his subdistrict all necessary contracts for providing fuel for schools, employing teachers, repairing and furnishing school-houses, and for making all other provisions necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools within his subdistrict, and he shall have the control and management of the school-house unless otherwise ordered by a vote of the district township meeting. All contracts made in conformity with the provisions of this section shall be approved by the president and reported to the board of directors, and said board, in their corporate capacity, shall be responsible for the performance of the same on the part of the district township.

The subdirectors of a district township are authorized to employ teachers, and to enter into contracts for that purpose, which, when approved by the president, and reported to the board of directors, are binding on the district. And the same rule applies, also, to the directors of independent districts. Id. And the contract, if executed by the directors while not acting in the capacity of a board, is binding on the district. Id.

While a subdirector is authorized to make contracts for the employment of teachers in his subdistrict, he is to do so under such rules and restrictions as the board of directors may prescribe. Thompson v. Linn, 35 Id., 361.

The board may restrict the subdirector as respects the class or qualifications of teachers, and where a feeling of dissatisfaction prevails among the people of the district as to a particular teacher, the board may properly direct that such person be not employed; and if in the face of such restriction the subdirector employ such person as a teacher, the contract will be regarded unauthorized. Id.

A contract of employment with a teacher becomes binding upon a district township only when made by a subdirector and approved by the president as provided in this section. The statute confers no authority on the board of directors to enter into such a contract. Gambrell v. The Dist. Twp., etc., 54 Id., 417.

No recovery can be had on a contract to teach school, made with a subdirector, but not approved by the president of the board, unless such approval has been waived, and the contract ratified by the district; the fact that the teacher proceeds thereunder, and completes the performance of the contract, is sufficient to constitute such ratification and authorize a recovery. Place v. The District Township of Colfax, 56 Id., 573.

A misnomer of the district in the contract, or a variance from its true name and style, will not operate to defeat the contract, if it appears that the corporation was intended to be described in and bound by the instrument. Id.

SEC. 1754. [Make list of heads of families, etc.]—He shall, between the first and tenth days of September of each year, prepare a list of the names of the heads of families in his subdistrict, together with the number of children between the ages of five and twenty-one years, distinguishing males from females, and shall record the same in a book kept for that purpose.

SEC. 1755. [Report to secretary.]—He shall, between the tenth and fifteenth days of September of each year, report to the secretary of the district township the number of persons in his subdistrict between the ages of five and twenty-one years, distinguishing males from females.

SEC. 1756. [Dismiss pupils with concurrence of directors.]—He shall have power, with the concurrence of the president of the board of directors, to dismiss any pupil from the schools in his subdistrict for gross immorality, or for persistent violation of the regulations of the school, and to re-admit them, if he deems proper so to do; and shall visit the schools in his subdistrict at least twice during each term of said school.

While the board of directors of a school district have power, under the statute, to dismiss a pupil for gross immorality, or for persistent violation of the regulations of the school, it has not power to dismiss or suspend for conduct short of this, as for acts done out of school, which, though having a tendency to injure the reputation of the directors, and insubordination in the school, are not immoral, or prohibited by any rule or regulation. Murphy v. The Board of Directors, etc., 30 Iowa, 429.

Under the constitution and laws of this state, it is competent for the boards of school directors to provide by rule that pupils may be suspended from the schools in case they shall be absent or tardy, except for sickness or other unavoidable cause, a certain number of times within a fixed period. Burlick v. Babcock et al.; Chandler v. Same, 31 Id., 562. Mr. Lee, J., dissenting, and holding, that the power under the constitution and statute, to provide rules and regulations for the government of the schools, is limited to the conduct of the pupils while at school, and cannot (except in cases of gross immorality), extend to the conduct of pupils out of school, or their failure to attend, or the like. These matters are within the rightful control of the parent or guardian.

TEACHERS.

SEC. 1757. (As amended by ch. 60, 22d g. a.) All contracts with teachers shall be in writing, specifying the length of time the school is to be taught, in weeks; the compensation per week, or per month of four weeks, and such other matters as may be agreed upon; and shall be signed by the subdirector or secretary and teacher, and be approved by and filed with the president before the teacher enters upon the discharge of his duties; (and a copy of all such contracts shall also be filed with the secretary of the board by the subdirector before the teacher enters upon the discharge of his duties.)

Where a teacher had made a parol contract with the directors of an independent school district to teach nine months, and had taught seven months, receiving pay therefor according to the contract, after which he was discharged; held, that although the contract was not in writing as required by the statute, nevertheless the acceptance and part performance was a ratification rendering the district liable on the contract. Cook v. Independent School District of North McGregor, 40 Iowa, 444; following Athearn v. The Independent School District of Millersburg, 33 Id., 105.

In an action by a teacher against a school district on a contract of employment entered into with the subdirector, it is no defense that the contract was not approved by nor filed with the president of the board of directors. Conner v. The District Township of Ludlow, 35 Id., 375.

SEC. 1758. [Must obtain certificate from county superintendent.]—No person shall be employed to teach a common school which is to receive its distributive share of the school fund, unless he shall have a certificate of qualification signed by the county superintendent of the county in which the school is situated, or by some other officer duly authorized by law; and any teacher who commences teaching without such certificate shall forfeit all claim to compensation for the time during which he teaches without such certificate.

This section prohibits the employment of any one to teach a public school, which receives its distributive share of the school fund, unless he shall have a certificate. Per Rothrock, J., in Bellingr v. The Independent District of Marshalltown, 44 Iowa, 564.

SEC. 1759. [Keep register.]—The teacher shall keep a correct daily register of the school, which shall exhibit the number or other designation thereof, township and county in which the school is kept; the day of the week, the month and year; the name, age and attendance of each pupil, and the branches taught. When scholars reside in different districts, a register shall be kept for each district.

SEC. 1760. [File copy with secretary.]—The teacher shall, immediately after the close of his school, file in the office of the secretary of the board of directors, a certified copy of the register aforesaid.
GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 1761. [School month.]—A school month shall consist of four weeks of five school days each.

SEC. 1762. [Institute: school closed during.]—During the time of holding a teachers’ institute in any county, any school that may be in session in such county shall be closed; and all teachers, and persons desiring a teacher’s certificate, shall attend such institute, or present to the county superintendent satisfactory reasons for not so attending, before receiving such certificate.

SEC. 1763. [Electors may direct what languages taught.]—The electors of any school district at any legally called school meeting, may, by a vote of a majority of the electors present, direct the German or other language to be taught as a branch in one or more of the schools of said district, to the scholars attending the same whose parents or guardians may so desire; and thereupon such board of directors shall provide that the same be done; provided, that all other branches taught in said school or schools shall be taught in the English language; provided further, that the person employed in teaching the said branches shall satisfy the county superintendent of his ability and qualifications, and receive from him a certificate to that effect.

SEC. 1764. The bible shall not be excluded from any school or institution in this state, nor shall any pupil be required to read it contrary to the wishes of his parent or guardian.

Under this section it is a matter of individual option with school teachers as to whether they will use the bible in their schools or not, such option being restricted only by the provision that no pupil shall be required to read it contrary to the wishes of his parent or guardian; and said section is not in conflict with article 1, section 3 of the state constitution. Moore v. Monroe et al., 64 Iowa, 367.

RELATING TO SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS AND DIRECTORS.

An Act to define who may hold the offices of county school superintendent and school director in the state of Iowa.

SECTION 1. [Sex not to render any one ineligible.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That no person shall be deemed ineligible by reason of sex to any school office in the state of Iowa.

SEC. 2. [Nor deprive one of office.]—No person who may have been or shall be elected or appointed to the office of county superintendent of common schools or school directors in the state of Iowa, shall be deprived of office by reason of sex.

There is no constitutional inhibition upon the rights of a woman to hold the office of county superintendent of schools. Huff v. Cook, 44 Iowa, 639.

In the absence of a constitutional restriction, the general assembly may confer upon women the right to hold an elective office, or by retrospective statute confirm her election thereto. Id.

That such a retrospective statute was not passed until after a judgment was rendered in the inferior court, holding her to be ineligible, will not deprive her of its benefits upon appeal. Id.

So also she is entitled in such case to avail herself of the curative act in the supreme court notwithstanding an agreement that the cause should be there heard and determined upon the pleadings and agreed statement of facts on which the cause was tried below. Id.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

SEC. 1765. [Cannot hold another office.]—The county superintendent shall not hold any office in, or be a member of the board of directors of a district township or independent district, or of the board of supervisors during the time of his incumbency.

Sec. 1766. (As substituted by ch. 143, 17th g. a.)—[Meet and examine teachers.]—(On the last Saturday of each month the county superintendent shall meet all person desirous of passing an examination, and for the transaction of other business within his jurisdiction, in some suitable room provided for that purpose by the board of supervisors at the county seat, at which time he shall examine all such applicants for examination as to their competency and ability to teach orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, physiology and history of the United States; and in making such examination, he may, at his option, call to his aid one or more assistants. Teachers exclusively teaching music, drawing, penmanship, book-keeping, German or other language, shall not be required to be examined except in reference to such special branch, and in such case it shall not be lawful to employ them to teach any branch, except such as they shall be examined upon and which shall be stated in the certificate.

An independent school district may provide that music shall be taught in its schools, and the board of directors have authority to contract on behalf of the district for the purchase of a musical instrument to be paid for out of the unappropriated funds of the district. Bellinger v. The Independent District, etc., 44 Iowa, 504.

The county superintendent cannot recover from the county for services in examining teachers at any other time than as provided in section 1766 of the code. Farrell v. Webster County, 49 Id., 245.

The action of mandamus will not be to compel the issuance of a teacher's certificate by the county superintendent, he being vested with a discretionary power. The court may compel him to act upon an application for a certificate, but cannot control his discretion. Bailey v. Ewart, 52 Id, 111.

The county superintendent, as such, has no power to sue an injunction to restrain a person from teaching a public school, or the school officers from paying for such services out of the school funds of the district, on the ground that the teacher is teaching without a certificate of qualification, in violation of the laws of the state, but it seems that any citizen or resident of the district may maintain such a proceeding. Perkins v. Wolf et al., 17 Id., 228.

Sec. 1767. [Give certificate.]—If the examination is satisfactory, and the superintendent is satisfied that the respective applicants possess a good moral character, and the essential qualifications for governing and instructing children and youth, he shall give them a certificate to that effect, for a term not exceeding one year.

Sec. 1768. [Examination: public record made.]—Any school officer or other person shall be permitted to be present at the examination; and the superintendent shall make a record of the name, residence, age, and date of examination of all persons so examined, distinguishing between those to whom he issued certificates, and those rejected.

Sec. 1769. (As amended by ch. 54, 17th g. a.)—County superintendent to hold institutes annually.][—The county superintendent shall hold, annually, a normal institute for the instruction of teachers and those who may desire to teach, and, with the concurrence of the superintendent of public instruction, procure such assistance as may be necessary to conduct the same, at such times as the schools in the county are generally closed. To defray the expenses of said institute, he shall require the payment of a (registration fee of one dollar from each person attending the normal institutes, and shall require the payment, in all cases, of one dollar from every applicant for a certificate.)

Sec. 2. [To transmit money.]—He shall monthly, and at the close of each institute, transmit to the county treasurer all moneys so received, including the state appropriation for institutes, to be designated the "institute fund," together with a report of the name of each person so contributing, and the amount. The board of supervisors may appropriate such additional sum as may by them be deemed necessary for the further support of the institute. All disbursements of the institute fund shall be upon the order of the county superintendent, and no order shall be drawn except for bills presented to the county superintendent and approved by him for services rendered, or expenses incurred, in connection with the normal institute.

SEC. 1770. [May appoint deputy.]—If, for any cause, the county superintendent is unable to attend to his official duties, he shall appoint a deputy to perform them in his stead, except visiting schools and trying appeals.

SEC. 1771. [May revoke certificate.]—The superintendent may revoke the certificate of any teacher in the county which was given by the superintendent thereof, for any reason which would have justified the withholding thereof when the same was given, after an investigation of the facts in the case, of which investigation the teacher shall have personal notice, and he shall be permitted to be present and make his defense.

SEC. 1772. [Make report to superintendent.]—On the first Tuesday of October of each year, he shall make a report to the superintendent of public instruction, containing a full abstract of the reports made to him by the respective district secretaries, and such other matters as he shall be directed to report by said superintendent, and as he himself may deem essential in exhibiting the true condition of the schools under his charge; and he shall, at the same time, file with the county auditor a statement of the number of persons between the ages of five and twenty-one years in each school district in his county.

SEC. 1773. [Penalty for failure.]—Should he fail to make either of the reports required in the last section, he shall forfeit to the school fund of his county the sum of fifty dollars, and shall, besides, be liable for all damages caused by such neglect.

SEC. 1774. (As amended by ch. 161, 19th g. a.)—[Must conform to instructions.]—He shall at all times conform to the instructions of the superintendent of public instruction, as to matters within the jurisdiction of the said superintendent. He shall serve as the organ of communication between the superintendent and township or district authorities. He shall transmit to the townships, districts, or teachers, all blanks, circulars, and other communications which are to them directed; [he may at his discretion visit the different schools in his county, and shall at the request of a majority of the directors of a district, visit the school in said district at least once during each term.]

SEC. 1775. [Report to colleges for the blind and deaf and dumb.]—He shall report on the first Tuesday of October of each year to the superintendent of the Iowa college for the blind, the name, age, residence, and postoffice address of every person blind to such an extent as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, and who resides in the county in which he is superintendent, and also to the superintendent of the Iowa institution for the deaf and dumb, the name, age, and postoffice address of every deaf and dumb person between the ages of five and twenty-one who resides within his county, including all such persons as may be deaf to such an extent as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools.

SEC. 1776. (As amended by ch. 161, 19th g. a.) [Compensation.]—The county superintendent shall receive from the county treasury the sum of (four) dollars per day for ever day necessarily engaged in the performance of official duties, and also the necessary stationery and postage for the use of his office, and he shall be entitled to such additional compensation as the board of supervisors may allow; provided, that he shall first file a sworn statement of the time he has been employed in his official duties with the county auditor.

The sworn statement of the superintendent, giving the time he has been occupied in the discharge of his official duties and his expenses, is not conclusive upon the board of supervisors, and they may refuse to allow the claim if they deem it unreasonable or unjust. Bean v. The Board of Supervisors, etc., 51 Iowa, 55.
SEC. 1777. [Board to estimate amount, etc.]-The board of directors shall, at their regular meeting in March of each year, or at a special meeting convened for that purpose, between the time designated for such regular meeting and the third Monday in May, estimate the amount required for the contingent fund, and also such sum as may be required for the teachers' fund, in addition to the amount received from the semi-annual apportionment, as shown by the notice from the county auditor, to support the schools of the district for the time required by law for the current year; and shall cause the secretary to certify the same, together with the amount voted for school house purposes, within five days thereafter to the board of supervisors, who shall, at the time of levying taxes for county purposes, subject to the provisions of section seventeen hundred and eighty of this chapter, levy the per centum necessary to raise the sum thus certified upon the property of the district township, which shall be collected and paid over as are other district taxes.

The board of directors are alone authorized to fix the rates of tax to be levied for teachers and contingent funds, and where this function was assumed by the board of supervisors the tax was held illegal and void. The C. R. & M. R. R. Co. et al. v. Carroll County, 41 Iowa, 153, 179.

If the electors of the district shall neglect or refuse to vote the proper school house tax after it has been properly certified, it becomes then the duty of the board of directors to do so. Id.

This section provides that the board of supervisors shall levy the per centum necessary to raise the sum certified to them by the board of directors. Held, that the action of the supervisors depends solely upon that of the board of directors, and where that is invalid there is nothing upon which the supervisors can act. Standard Coal Co. v. Ind. Dist. of Angus, 34 N. W. 2d, 870.

SEC. 1778. [Apportion: school house tax.]—They shall apportion any tax voted by the district township meeting for school house fund among the several subdistricts in such a manner as justice and equity may require, taking as a basis of such apportionment the respective amounts previously levied upon said subdistricts for the use of such fund; provided, that if the electors of one or more subdistricts at their last annual meeting shall have voted to raise the sum for school house purposes greater than that granted by the electors at the last annual meeting of the district township, they shall estimate the amount of such excess on such subdistrict or subdistricts, and cause the secretary to certify the same within five days thereafter to the board of supervisors, who shall, at the time of levying taxes for county purposes, levy the per centum of such excess on the taxable property of the subdistrict asking the same, provided that not more than fifteen mills on the dollar shall be levied on the taxable property of any subdistrict for any one year for school house purposes.

This section, prescribing the time and manner in which a school tax shall be levied, is directory merely, and a failure of the board of supervisors to levy the tax in the time prescribed is not fatal therefrom. Perrin et al. v. Benson, 49 Iowa, 325.

Under section 1778 of the code, a subdistrict in a district township has the power, at its annual meeting of electors, to vote a tax to be raised in the subdistrict for school-house purposes, in addition to the tax voted under section 1717, par. 3, of the code, by the electors of the whole district township at their annual meeting; and when such tax has been voted in a subdistrict, it is the duty of the directors of the district township to certify it to the board of supervisors, to the end that they may levy the same; and mandamus will lie to compel the directors to perform such duty. Wood v. Farmer et al., 69 Id., 533.

SEC. 1779. [Board to levy tax.]-The board of supervisors of each county shall, at the time of levying the taxes for county purposes, levy a tax for the support of schools within the county of not less than one mill nor more than three mills on the dollar, on the assessed value of all the real and personal property within the county, which shall be collected by the county treasurer at the time and in the same manner as state and county taxes are collected, except that it shall be receivable only in cash.
SEC. 1780. [Same: amount of levy limited.]—They shall also levy at the same time, the district school tax certified to them from time to time by the respective district secretaries; provided, that the amount levied for school-house fund shall not exceed ten mills on the dollar on the property of any district, and the amount levied for contingent fund shall not exceed five dollars per pupil, and the amount raised for teachers' fund, including the amount received from the semi-annual apportionment, shall not exceed fifteen dollars per pupil for each pupil residing in the district, as shown by the last report of the county superintendent. And if the amount certified to the board of supervisors exceeds this limit, they shall levy only to the amount limited; provided, that they may levy seventy-five dollars for contingent fund, and two hundred and seventy dollars, including the amount received for the semi-annual apportionment, for the teachers' fund for each subdistrict.

By a division of the township of A the township of W was erected, the division to take effect for school purposes at the March election, 1872. The county superintendent made his return of the number of scholars of the old township in October, 1871, but made no return respecting the new township. The taxes for teachers' and contingent funds for the year 1872, in both townships, were not in excess of the statutory limitation; held, that the taxes in the township of W were collectible. Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co. v. The County of Kossuth, 41 Iowa, 57.

Where two independent districts were organized, embracing certain common territory, it was held that such territory would be included in the limits of the district whose organization was first commenced, and that it was the duty of the board of supervisors to levy the tax in its favor. The Independent District of Sheldon v. The Board of Supervisors, etc., 51 Id., 658.

Courts will not consider whether certain territory included in an independent school district is "contiguous" thereto until the aid of the officers of the school district has first been invoked. Id.

The board of supervisors are not authorized to levy a tax for the payment of a judgment against the school-house fund of a district township, when the tax already levied for the use of that fund equals the maximum rate of ten mills on the dollar. The Sterling S. F. Co. v. Harvey, 45 Id., 466.

COUNTY AUDITOR.

SEC. 1781. [To apportion taxes, etc.]—The county auditor shall, on the first Monday in April and the fourth Monday in September of each year, apportion the county school tax, together with the interest of the permanent school fund to which his county is entitled, and all other money in the hands of the county treasurer belonging in common to the schools of his county and not included in any previous apportionment, among the several sub-districts therein, in proportion to the number of persons between five and twenty-one years of age, as shown by the report of the county superintendent filed with him for the year immediately preceding.

SEC. 1782. [Notify president of school district.]—He shall immediately notify the president of each school district of the sum to which his district is entitled by said apportionment, and shall issue his warrant for the same to accompany said notice, which warrant shall be also signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the district in whose favor the same is drawn; and shall authorize the district treasurer to draw the amount due said district from the county treasurer; and the secretary shall charge the treasurer of the district with all warrants drawn in his favor, and credit him with all warrants drawn on the funds in his hands, keeping separate accounts with each fund.

SEC. 1783. [Forward certificate of election to auditor of state.]—He shall forward to the superintendent of public instruction, a certificate of the election or appointment and qualification of the county superintendent; and shall, also, on the second Monday in February and August of each year, make out and transmit to the auditor of state, in accordance with such form as said auditor may prescribe, a report of the interest of the school fund then in the hands of the county treasurer, and not included in any previous apportionment; and also the amount of said interest remaining unpaid.

COUNTY TREASURER.

SEC. 1784. [To pay over taxes.]—The county treasurer shall, on the first Monday in April of each year, pay over to the treasurer of the district the amount of all school district tax which shall have been collected, and shall render him a statement of the amount uncollected, and shall pay over the amount in his hands quarterly thereafter. He shall also keep the amount of tax levied for school-house purposes, separate in each subdistrict where such levy has been made directly upon the property of the subdistrict making the application, and shall pay over the same quarterly to the township treasurer for the benefit of such subdistrict. He shall, in all counties wherein independent districts are organized, keep a separate account with said independent districts, in which the receipts shall be daily entered, which books shall at all times be open to the inspection and examination of the district board of directors, and shall pay over the said independent districts the amount of school taxes in his possession on the order of the board, on the first day of each and every month.

SEC. 1785. [To notify president of school board.]—On the first day of each quarter, the county treasurer shall give notice to the president of the school board of each township in his county of the amount collected for each fund; and the president of each board shall draw his warrant, countersigned by the secretary, upon the county treasurer for such amount, who shall pay the amount of such taxes to the treasurers of the several school boards only on such warrants.

The fact that a county treasurer paid the funds of a school district to a treasurer without any warrant drawn and countersigned by the officers of the district, as provided in this section, will not render him liable for a deficit in the accounts of the district which was not the proximate result of such irregular payment. Dist. Tp. of Grove v. Bowman, 55 Iowa, 129.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SEC. 1786. [Fines and penalties.]—All fines and penalties collected from a school district officer by virtue of any of the provisions of this chapter, shall inure to the benefit of that particular district. Those collected from any member of the board of directors shall belong to the district township, and those collected from county officers, to the county. In the two former cases, suit shall be brought in the name of the district township; in the latter, in the name of the county, and by the district attorney. The amount in each case shall be added to the fund next to be applied by the recipient for the use of common schools.

SEC. 1787. [Judgments: how paid.]—When a judgment has been obtained against a school district, the board of directors shall pay off and satisfy the same from the proper fund, by an order on the treasurer; and the district meeting at the time for voting a tax, for the payment of other liabilities of the district, shall provide for the payment of such order or orders.

The directors of a school district township, on their refusal to levy a tax to pay a judgment recovered against it, may be compelled by mandamus to do so, the electors of the district having failed and refused to provide therefor, by voting the necessary tax. Boynton v. Dist. Tp. of Newton, 31 Iowa, 510; Dodge v. Same; Stevenson & Rice v. The Dist. Tp. of Summit, 35 Id., 462.

That the board of directors have issued an order on the treasury of the district for the amount of the judgment, does not change the rule above stated. The order thus issued does not amount to a satisfaction of the judgment until paid. Id.

It is the province of the board of directors of a school district township to designate the fund or funds upon which orders shall be drawn for the payment of judgments, and a creditor is not required to specify, in his demand for the issuance of such orders, the amount of his claim against each fund. The Dist. Tp. of Coon v. The Board of Directors, etc., 52 Id., 287.
A creditor who has obtained a judgment against a district township upon an order on the school-house fund, and to whom an order on the treasury has been issued for its payment in compliance with this section, is not entitled to payment out of the general fund to the exclusion of the holders of other orders on the school-house fund who have not obtained judgments. Chase v. Morrison, 40 Id., 620.

The judgment in such case will enable the plaintiff to levy upon the property of the district, if any be found, or by mandamus compel the levy of a special tax, if the district has not levied the maximum allowed by law. Id.

Sec. 1788. [Money borrowed of school fund: how paid.]-In case a school district has borrowed money of the school fund, the board of supervisors shall levy such tax, not exceeding five mills on the dollar in any one year, on the taxable property of the district as constituted at the time of making such loan, as may be necessary to pay the annual interest on said loan, and the principal when the same falls due, unless the board of supervisors shall see proper to extend the time of said loan.

Sec. 1789. (As amended by ch. 51, 22d g. a.) [Hours of meeting and adjourning.]—No district township or subdistrict meeting shall organize earlier than nine o’clock A. M., nor adjourn before twelve o’clock M.; and in all independent districts having a population of three hundred and upward, [the polls shall remain open from twelve o’clock M. to seven o’clock P. M.]

At an election held to vote upon the organization of an independent school district, embracing contiguous territory lying in another township, the polls must be kept open from nine o’clock A. M., to four o’clock P. M. An election called for one o’clock, P. M., is, therefore, invalid. The Dist. Tp of Hesper et al. v. The Ind. Dist. of Burr Oak, 34 Iowa, 306.

Sec. 1790. [Oath: administer to each other.]—Any school director, or director elect, is authorized to administer to any school director elect the official oath required by law, and said official oath may be taken on or before the third Monday in March following the election of directors.

Sec. 1791. [Deliver money, books, etc., to successor: penalty for failure.]-When any school officer is superseded by election or otherwise, he shall immediately deliver to his successor in office, all books, papers and moneys pertaining to his office, taking a receipt therefor; and every such officer who shall refuse to do so, or who shall willfully mutilate or destroy any such books or papers, or any part thereof, or shall misapply any moneys entrusted to him by virtue of his office, shall be liable to the provisions of the general statutes for the punishment of such offense.

Sec. 1792. [Jurisdiction.]—Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to give the board of directors of a district township jurisdiction over any territory included within the limits of any independent district.

Sec. 1793. (As amended by ch. 41, 17th g. a., and ch. 64, 16th g. a.) [Attending school in adjoining district.]—[Children residing in one district may attend school in another in the same or adjoining county or township on such terms as may be agreed upon by the respective boards of directors, but in case no such agreement is made, they may attend school in any adjoining district with the consent of the county superintendent of the county where such pupil resides and the board of directors of said adjoining district, when they reside nearer the school in said district, and one and a half miles or more, by the nearest traveled highway, from any school in their own.] The board of directors of the township, in which such children reside, shall be notified in writing, and the district in which they reside shall pay to the district in which they attend school, the average tuition of said children per week, and an average proportion of the contingent expenses of said district where they attend school; and in case of refusal so to do, the secretary shall file the account of tuition and contingent expenses certified to by the president of the board, with the county auditor of the county in which such children reside, and the said county auditor at the time of making the next semi-annual apportionment thereafter, deduct the amount so certified from the sum apportioned to the district in which said children reside, and cause it to be paid over to the district in which they have attended school.

SEC. 1794. [Residence of pupils.]—Pupils who are actual residents of a district shall be permitted to attend school in the same, regardless of the time when they acquired such residence, whether before or after the enumeration, or of the residence of their parents or guardians; but pupils who are sojourning temporarily in one district, while their actual residence is in another, and to whom the last preceding section is not applicable, may attend school upon such terms as the board of directors may deem just and equitable.

SEC. 1795. [Pupils: where attend school.]—Pupils may attend school in any subdistrict of the district township in which they reside with the consent of the subdirector of such subdistrict, and of the subdirector of the subdistrict in which such pupils reside.

SEC. 1796. [Divide townships.]—The board of directors shall at their regular meeting in September, or at any special meeting called therefor for that purpose, divide their townships into subdistricts, such as justice, equity and the interests of the people require; and may make such alterations of the boundaries of subdistricts heretofore formed, as may be deemed necessary; and shall designate such subdistricts, and all subsequent alterations, in a distinct and legible manner, upon a plat of the district provided for that purpose; and shall cause a written description of the same to be recorded in the district records, a copy of which shall be delivered by the secretary to the county treasurer, and also to the county auditor, who shall record the same in his office; provided, that the boundaries of subdistricts shall conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land; and that the formation and alteration of subdistricts as contemplated in this section, shall not take effect until the next subdistrict election thereafter, at which election a subdirector shall be elected for the new subdistrict.

The boards of directors of independent school districts have no power to change the boundaries of their districts. Such change can only be made, if at all, by the county superintendent, under the joint provisions of sections 1796 and 1806 of the code. Eason v. Douglass et al., 55 Iowa, 390.

Where there has been an agreement for the restoration to a district township of detached territory, in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary it will be held to take effect under this section, or, according to the general scope and intent of the school law, on the first Monday of March after the agreement has been entered into; and the taxes collected and moneys appropriated for the support of the attached territory up to the taking effect of the restoration, are payable to the district township, which supported the school, notwithstanding the warrants therefor are not presented and payment demanded until after the restoration has been perfected. Dist. Tp. of Honey Creek v. Plote, 59 Id., 109.

The board of directors of a district township have power in their discretion under this section, to re-district the township at any time they deem proper; an aggrieved party may appeal to the county superintendent, but he can not enjoin the board from exercising such power. Morgan v. Wilfley et al., 70 Id., 338.

SEC. 1797. [Where streams and other obstacles interfere.]—In cases where, by reason of streams or other natural obstacles, any portion of the inhabitants of any school district cannot, in the opinion of the county superintendent, with reasonable facility enjoy the advantages of any school in their township, the said county superintendent, with the consent of the board of directors of such district as may be affected thereby, may attach such part of said township to an adjoining township, and the order therefor shall be transmitted to the secretary of each district, and be by him recorded in his records, and the proper entry made on his plat of the district.

The school law of this state contemplates that school districts shall coincide in their boundaries with civil townships. Section 1797 of the code provides the only exception to this rule. District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 39.

No such restriction rests upon the formation of independent districts, which may be created from two or more civil townships, or parts of the same, situated in adjoining counties. Id.
A county superintendent of schools has no authority to detach territory from one independent school district and attach it to another, unless by reason of streams, or other natural obstacles, the inhabitants of the territory so detached cannot, with reasonable facility enjoy the advantages of the schools in the district from which the territory is sought to be detached, nor unless the directors of the district deprived of the territory consent thereto. The Independent District of Union v. The Independent District of Cedar Rapids, 62 Id., 616.

SEC. 1798. (As substituted by ch. III, 18th g. a., and amended by ch. 160, 19th g. a.; [Restoration of territory.]—That in all cases where territory has been, or may be set into an adjoining county or township, or attached to any independent school district in any adjoining county or township, for school purposes, such territory may be restored by the concurrence of the respective board[s] of directors; but on the written application of two-thirds of the electors residing upon the territory within such township or independent district in which the school-house is not situated, the said boards shall restore the territory to the district to which it geographically belongs. [Provided, however, that no such restoration shall be made unless there are fifteen or more pupils between the ages of five and twenty-one years actually residing upon said territory sought to be restored, and not until there has been a suitable school house erected and completed within the limits of said territory suitable for school purposes.]

This section provides for detaching territory only when both townships are organized as district townships, and each is governed by a board of directors whose jurisdiction extends over the entire township. The Independent District of Fairview v. Durland et al., 45 Iowa, 53.

An independent district, embracing territory lying within the limits of two district townships, cannot be deprived of its territory, save upon the concurrent action of the boards of directors of both the district townships; and when the organization of one of the townships has been abandoned, the territory lying within the limits of the other cannot be restored to it upon a vote to that effect by two-thirds of the voters residing within the township. Id.

Where a district township had been divided into independent districts, a vote of the electors redistricting the townships did not have the effect to destroy the legal existence of an independent district lying partly within the township and partly within another, notwithstanding the directors of the latter had ordered the territory belonging to it to be restored. Id.

See cases cited under section 1715, ante.

SEC. 1799. [Township lines cannot be so changed as to divide districts.]—The boundary lines of a civil township shall not be changed by the board of supervisors of any county so as to divide any school district by changing the boundary lines thereof, except when a majority of the voters of such district shall petition therefor; provided, however, that this shall not prevent the change of the boundary lines of any civil township, when such change is made by adopting the lines of congressional townships.

ISSUANCE OF BONDS BY SCHOOL DISTRICTS TO FUND JUDGMENT INDEBTEDNESS.

An Act to enable school districts to issue bonds for the purpose of funding judgment indebtedness now existing. [Additional to code, title XII, chapter 9, "Of the system of common schools."

SECTION 1. [Judgment indebtedness now existing.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That any school district against which judgments have been rendered prior to the passage of this act, and which judgments remain unsatisfied, may, for the purpose of paying off such judgments and funding such judgment indebtedness, issue upon the resolution of the board of directors of the district, the negotiable bonds of such district, running not more than ten years, and bearing a rate of interest not exceeding ten per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, which bonds shall be signed by the president of the district and countersigned by the secretary, and shall not be disposed of for less than their par value, nor for any other purpose than that provided for by this act, and such bonds shall be binding and obligatory upon the district.

SEC. 2. [Payment of bonds.]—It shall be the duty of the board of directors of any district which shall issue bonds under this act, to provide for the payment of the same by the levy of tax therefor, in addition to the other taxes provided by law, and they are hereby required to levy such an amount each year as shall be sufficient to meet the interest on such bonds promptly as it accrues.

SEC. 3. [Form of bond, etc.]—The bonds issued under this act shall be in the name of the district, and in substantially the same form as is by law provided for county bonds; shall be payable at the pleasure of the district; shall be registered in the office of the county auditor; shall be numbered consecutively and redeemed in the order of their issuance.

FUNDING JUDGMENT INDEBTEDNESS.

An Act to enable school districts or district townships to issue bonds for the purpose of funding judgment indebtedness now existing. [Additional to code, title XII, chapter 9: "Of the system of common schools."

SECTION 1. [As to issuance of bonds.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That any school district or district township against which judgments have been rendered prior to the passage of this act, and which such judgments remain unsatisfied, may, for the purpose of paying off such judgment indebtedness, issue negotiable bonds of such district township, upon a resolution of the board of directors of the district township, running not more than ten years, and bearing a rate of interest not exceeding eight per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, which bonds shall be signed by the president of the district and countersigned by the secretary, and shall not be disposed of for less than their par value, nor for any other purpose than that provided by this act, and such bonds shall be binding and obligatory upon the district township.

SEC. 2. [Shall provide for paying bonds.]—It shall be the duty of the board of directors of any district township which issues bonds under this act, to provide for the payment of the same by the levy of tax therefor, in addition to the other taxes provided by law, and they are hereby required to levy such an amount each year as shall be sufficient to meet the interest on such bonds promptly as it accrues.

SEC. 3. [How issued.]—The bonds issued under this act shall be in the name of the district township, and in substantially the same form as is by law provided for county bonds; shall be payable at the pleasure of the district township; shall be registered in the office of the county auditor; shall be numbered consecutively and redeemed in the order of their issuance.

Approved March 16, 1880.

INDEPENDENT DISTRICTS.

SEC. 1800. (As substituted by ch. 13918th g. a.) [Separate districts formed.]—[Any city, town, or village containing not less than two hundred inhabitants within its limits, may be constituted a separate school district; and territory contiguous to such a city, town, or village may be included with it as a part of said separate district in the manner hereinafter provided. The village herein mentioned shall be understood to be a collection of inhabitants residing within the limits of a town plat and not organized into a city or incorporated town.

The territory organized into an independent school district must contain not less than two hundred inhabitants; an organization with less than two hundred is unauthorized, and its legality may be inquired into by information in the nature of a quo warranto. The State ex rel. v. The Ind. School Dist. of Carbondale, 29 Iowa, 264.

Under this section, as amended, no village of less than two hundred inhabitants may be organized, with contiguous territory, into an independent school district. The inhabitants of contiguous territory are not to be added to the village proper to increase the number to two hundred. Allen v. The Dist. Tp. of Bertram, 70 Id., 434.

SEC. 1801. [Vote of people.]—At the written request of any ten legal voters residing in such city or town, the board of directors of the district township shall establish the boundaries of the contemplated school district, including such contiguous territory as may best subserve the convenience of the people for school purposes, and shall give at least ten days' previous notice of the time and place of meeting of the electors residing in said district, by posting written notices in at least five conspicuous places therein; at which meeting the said electors shall vote by ballot for or against a separate organization.

In the erection of an independent school district in a city, town, or the "contiguous territory" to be embraced in the new district need not be confined to the same township in which the city or town is situated, but may embrace territory in another township. Nor is it necessary that the boundaries should be fixed by the concurrent action of the two townships. Independent School District of Granville v. Board of Supervisors, etc., 25 Iowa, 305. To the same effect is District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Id., 30.

The extension of the limits of a city or town does not have the effect to enlarge the school district existing in such city or town, previous to such extension of its boundaries. The State v. Independent School District No. 6; The State v. Independent School District of Sunnyside et al., 46 Id., 425.

Where the notice of election to determine a proposition to annex territory to a school district under section 2098 of the revision, instead of providing for taking the vote of all qualified persons residing within the contemplated district, provided for a vote by only a portion thereof, it was held that the organization was invalid, and would not be valid though the votes in favor of the organization exceeded in number all the votes in the excluded territory. Fort Dodge School District v. The Dist. Tp., etc., 17 Id., 85.

SEC. 1802. [Organization of independent districts.]—[Should a majority of votes be cast in favor of such separate organization, the board of directors of the district township shall give similar notice of a meeting of the electors for the election of six directors. Two of these directors shall hold their office until the first annual meeting after their election, and until their successors are elected and qualified, two until the second, and two until the third annual meeting thereafter, their respective terms of office to be determined by lot. The six directors shall constitute a board of directors for the district, and they shall, at their first regular meeting in each year, elect a president from their own number, and at their meeting on the third Monday of September in each year a secretary and treasurer, to be chosen outside of the board: Provided, that in all independent districts having a population of less than five hundred there shall be three directors elected, who shall organize by electing a president from their own number, also a secretary, [who may or may not, be a member of the board, and a treasurer, who shall not be a member of the board]: And provided, further, that in all independent districts already organized the terms of office of such directors as may have been chosen previous to the taking effect of this section for two or three years shall not be interfered with by its passage.]

SEC. 1803. [Meeting for.]—Said meeting for the first election of directors shall organize by appointing a president and secretary, who shall act as judges of the election and issue a certificate of election to the person elected.

SEC. 1804. [When organization of completed: disposition of taxes.]—The organization of such independent district shall be completed on or before the first day of August of the year in which said organization is attempted, and when such organization is thus completed, all taxes levied by the board of directors of the district township of which the independent district formed a part in that year, shall be void so far as the property within the limits of the independent district is concerned; and the board of directors of such independent district shall levy all necessary taxes for school purposes as provided by law for that year at a meeting called for that purpose, at any time before the third Monday of August of that year, which shall be certified to the board of supervisors on or before the first Monday of September, and said board of supervisors shall levy said tax at the time and in the manner that school taxes are required to be levied in other districts.

Sec. 1805. [When formed of parts of two townships.]—In case such district is formed of parts of two or more civil townships in the same or adjoining counties, the duty of giving the notice shall devolve upon the board of directors of the township in which a majority of the legal voters of the contemplated district reside.

Sec. 1806. [Number of schools in.]—Said district may have as many schools, and be divided into such wards or other subdivisions for school purposes, as the board of directors may deem proper, and shall be governed by the laws enacted for the regulation of district townships, so far as the same may be applicable.

Sec. 1807. [School-house tax voted for by electors.]—It shall be lawful for the electors of any independent district, at the annual meeting of such district, to vote a tax, not exceeding ten mills on the dollar in any one year, on the taxable property of such district, as the meeting may deem sufficient, for the purchase of grounds and the construction of the necessary school-houses for the use of such independent district, and for the payment of any debts contracted for the erection of such school-houses, and for procuring a library and apparatus for the use of the schools of such independent district.

This section limits the amount of taxes to be levied, for the purposes mentioned therein, to one cent per annum; a tax in excess of this amount is void for such excess. McPherson v. Foster Bros., 43 Iowa, 48.

This section, providing that the electors of an independent school district shall not vote a tax exceeding ten mills on the dollar for school-house purposes, applies only to districts in which no bonded debt has been created. Richards, Trustee, v. Supervisors of Lyon County, 69 Id., 612.

(CHAP. 9.) OF THE SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS. 671

An Act to amend section 1807 of the code of Iowa, relating to the power of the electors of independent districts at annual meetings, and legalizing acts heretofore done.

Section 1. (Code, section 1807, amended.) [Sale of school property.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 1807 of the code of Iowa be amended by adding at the end thereof as part of said section, the following, to-wit: And said electors may direct the sale or other disposition to be made of any school-house or the site thereof, or any part of such site, and of such other property, real and personal, as may belong to the independent district, and direct the manner in which the proceeds arising therefrom shall be applied.

Sec. 2. [Acts legalized.]—That all acts of independent districts heretofore done in authorizing or making sales of real estate, where done as provided in paragraph 2 of section 1717 of the code of Iowa, or submitted and carried under section 2 of chapter 8 of the laws of A. D. 1880, of Iowa, be and the same are hereby legalized and made valid in all respects as duly authorizing or making such sales.
and conveyances thereunder, the same as though said paragraph 2 of section 1717 of the code had been incorporated in and made part of said section 1807.

Approved April 10, 1886.

SEC. 1808. (As amended by § 2, ch. 7, 18th g. a.)—[Annual meeting.—]—The annual meeting of all independent districts shall be held on the second Monday in March for the transaction of the business of the district, and for the election by ballot of two directors, as the successors of the two whose term expires, who shall continue in office for three years; and the president, secretary, and one of the directors then in office shall act as judges of the election, and shall issue certificates of election to the persons elected for the ensuing term; provided, that in all independent districts having a population of less than five hundred, there shall be elected, annually, one director, who shall continue in office for three years. [In cases of a tie vote in the election of director, or directors, the secretary shall notify them to appear at the regular meeting of the board on the third Monday in March to determine their election by lot before one or more members of the board elected, and the certificate of election shall be given accordingly. Should either party fail to appear, or take part in the lot, the secretary shall draw for him.

SEC. 1809. When an independent district has been formed out of a civil township, or townships, as herein contemplated, the remainder of such township, or of each of such townships, as the case may be, shall constitute a district township as provided in section seventeen hundred and thirteen of this chapter, and the boundaries between such district township and independent district may be changed, or the independent district abandoned at any time, with the concurrence of their respective boards of directors.

SEC. 1810. [When independent district embraces whole township.—]—In case an independent district embraces a part or the whole of a civil township which has no separate district township organization, upon the written application of two-thirds of the electors residing upon the territory of such independent district and within such civil township to the board of directors, they shall set off such territory, whether provided with school-houses or not, to be organized as a district township in the manner provided for such organization when a new civil township is formed.

SEC. 1811. (As amended by ch. 63, laws 1888.)—[Districts may unite: manner of.—]—Independent districts located contiguous to each other may unite and form one and the same independent district, in the manner following: At the written request of any ten legal voters residing in each of said independent districts, (or should there not be ten legal voters in one of such districts, then at the written request of the majority of such voters,) their respective boards of directors shall require their secretaries to give at least ten days' notice of the time and place for a meeting of the electors residing in such districts, by posting written notices in at least five public places in each of said districts, at which meetings the said electors shall vote by ballot for or against a consolidated organization of said independent districts; and if a majority of the votes cast at the election in each district shall be in favor of uniting said districts, then the secretaries shall give similar notice of a meeting of the electors as provided for by the law for the organization of independent districts. The independent district thus consolidated shall be completed, and its directors governed by the same provisions of the law which apply to other independent districts [that where from the courses of Iowa rivers, and the contour of the adjoining territory the proper school facilities cannot be given to the school children of such territory by forming school districts from the territory in any one county, independent school districts may be formed from the contiguous territory in adjoining counties.]
SEC. 1812. [May be formed into independent district.]—Where, under the school laws of the state heretofore in force for the convenience and accommodation of the people, school districts where formed of portions of two counties of territory lying contiguous to each other, at the written request of five legal voters residing in portions of said territory in each county, the board directors of the district township to which such territory belongs, having a majority of the legal voters, shall fix the boundaries of an independent district composed of such sections of land, or portions thereof, as may be described in the petition therefor, and shall give at least ten days' notice of the submission of the question of the formation of said independent district, at a special election for said purpose, specifying the boundaries of the district, the time and place of the meeting of the electors for such election, at which meeting the electors in the contemplated district shall vote by ballot for or against the separate organization. Should a majority of the votes be cast in favor of such separate organization, the said board of directors shall proceed by ballot to elect officers in the manner provided by law, and organize such independent district.

This section applies to the single case where under the laws heretofore in force, school districts were formed of portions of two counties, and provides that steps may be taken for the organization of an independent district, upon the written request of five legal voters residing in portions of the territory in each county. The only thing that can be inferred from this section is that when these conditions exist the independent district must be formed in the manner in this section prescribed. It contains no express or implied provision that no independent district shall be formed of parts of two counties except when these conditions exist. Per Day, J., in District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 80.

SEC. 1813. [Statement to be published.]—The boards of directors of the several independent school districts are hereby required to publish, two weeks before the annual school election in such district, by publication in one or more newspapers, if any are published in such district, or by posting up in writing in not less than three conspicuous places in such independent district, a detailed and specific statement of the receipts and disbursements of all funds expended for school and building purposes for the year preceding such annual election. And the said boards of directors shall also, at the same time, publish in detail an estimate of the several amounts which, in the judgment of such board, are necessary to maintain the schools in such district for the next succeeding school year; and failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall make each director liable to a penalty of ten dollars.

SEC. 1814. [Independent Districts.]—Township districts may be consolidated and organized as independent districts, in the following manner: Whenever the board of directors of any existing district township shall deem the same advisable, and also whenever requested to do so by a petition signed by one-third of the voters of the district township, the board shall submit to the voters of said district township, at a regular election, or one called for the purpose, the question of consolidation, at which election the voters of the district township shall vote for or against consolidation. If a majority of votes shall be in favor of such consolidated organization, such district township shall organize on the second Monday of March following as an independent district; provided, that in townships which have been divided into independent districts, the duties in this section devolving on the board of directors shall be performed by the trustees of the township to whom the petition shall in such cases be addressed; and provided further, that nothing in this section shall be construed to affect independent districts composed wholly or mainly of cities or incorporated towns. Independent districts may in like manner change their boundaries so as to form any number of districts less than the number of districts existing at the time such change is asked for, and such changes shall be specified in the notices for a vote thereon.

The object and purpose of section 1814 is two fold only. 1. To consolidate a district township when it has been divided into subdistricts, and organize the whole township as an independent district. 2. Where a township has been organized into independent districts to consolidate the latter ‘as an independent district’ embracing the whole township. Per SEVERNS, Ch. J., in The

SEC. 1815. (As substituted by ch. 155, 16th g. a.) [Independent district may become district township.]—(The independent districts of a civil township may be constituted a district township in the manner hereinafter provided.)

SEC. 1816. (As amended by ch. 155, 16th g. a.) [Submitted to electors.]—(At the written request of one-third of the legal voters residing in any civil township, which is divided into independent districts, the township trustees shall call a meeting of the qualified electors of such civil township at the usual place of holding the township election, by giving at least ten days’ notice thereof, by posting three written notices in each independent district in the township, and by publication in a newspaper, if one be published in such township, at which meeting the said electors shall vote by ballot for or against a district township organization.)

SEC. 1817. (As amended by ch. 155, 16th g. a.) [When district township organization is agreed to.]—(If a majority of the votes cast at such election be in favor of such district township organization, each independent district shall become a subdistrict of the district township, and shall organize as such subdistrict, on the first Monday in March following, by the election of a subdirector.)

SEC. 1818. [Election of subdirectors.]—(Each subdistrict so formed shall hold a meeting on the first Monday in March for the election of a subdirector, five days’ notice of which meeting shall be given by the secretary of the old independent district, by posting written notices in three public places in each district, which notices shall state the hour and place of meeting.)

SEC. 1819. [Government of district townships.]—(District townships organized under the provisions of the preceding four sections shall be governed and treated in all respects as other district townships; provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to affect independent districts composed wholly or mainly of cities or incorporated towns.)

SEC. 1820. [Meeting of board of directors.]—(When any district township is organized under the provisions of the preceding five sections, the subdirectors shall organize as a board of directors, on the third Monday in March, and make an equitable settlement of the then existing assets and liabilities of the several independent districts.)

A school order was issued to a teacher for the payment of services in a subdistrict. Before its payment the several subdistricts of the township were organized into independent districts; held, that an action upon the order could not be maintained against the independent district formed out of the subdistrict in which the services were rendered; but that the whole district being liable all of the independent districts could be united as defendants, and they themselves should apportion their respective liabilities. The Knoxville Nat'l. Bk. v. The Ind. Dist. of Washington, 40 Iowa, 612; The Dist. Tp. of White Oak et al. v. The Dist. Tp. of Oskaloosa et al., 52 Id., 73.

And in such case mandamus will lie to compel the directors to assemble and apportion the amount of the judgment among the several independent districts. Certoironi will not lie in such case to the court issuing the mandamus on the ground that it had exceeded its jurisdiction. The Ind. Dist. of Asbury v. The Dist. Court of Dubuque County, 48 Id., 182.

Where the several subdistricts of a school district township organize into independents, the district township ceases to exist, and cannot maintain an action to enforce an equitable division of assets among the independent districts. The right acquired by the independent districts under the division made by the old board may be enforced by each in its own name. The Dist. Tp. of Knoxville v. The Ind. Dist. of Liberty et al., 36 Id., 220.

Neither section 1715 nor 1820 of the code has any application to the claim of one district township against another after the division of the debtor township into independent districts. Id.
An act to amend section 1811 of the code, relative to the contiguous territory in adjoining counties, to be formed into independent school districts in certain cases, and to legalize the consolidation of independent school districts heretofore effected, in certain cases.

SECTION 1. [Amendment of § 1811.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

Section 1811 of the code is hereby amended by inserting after the word "district" in the fourth line thereof, the words "or, should there not be ten legal voters in one of such districts, then at the written request of the majority of such voters." That section 1811 be further amended by adding to the end thereof the words: "That where, from the courses of Iowa rivers, and the contour of the adjoining territory, the proper school facilities can not be given to the school children of each territory by forming school districts from the territory in any one county, independent school districts may be formed from the contiguous territory in adjoining counties."

SEC. 2. [Legalization of independent districts.]—Any independent school districts heretofore forming under said section 1811, where there were less than ten legal voters residing therein at the time of the consolidation, is hereby legalized and made valid, provided, that two-thirds of the legal voters then residing in such independent district petitioned for such consolidation.

Approved March 31, 1888.

CHAPTER 61, LAWS OF 1888.

INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

An Act to provide for the formation of independent school districts.

SECTION 1. [Independent districts formed.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The sub-districts of a district township may be constituted independent districts in the manner hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. [Meetings called on request of voters.]—At the written request of one-third of the legal voters in each sub-district of any district township the board of directors shall call a meeting of the qualified electors of each subdistrict by giving at least thirty (30) days' notice thereof by posting three (3) written notices in each subdistrict in the township, at which meeting the electors shall vote by ballot for or against independent district organization.

SEC. 3. [Majority vote.]—If a majority of the votes cast in each subdistrict shall be favorable to such independent organization, then each subdistrict shall become an independent district.

SEC. 4. [Election of directors.]—The board of directors of the old district township so voting shall then call a meeting in each independent district for the election of three (3) or more directors as may be required by law, and the organization of the said independent district shall be completed and governed in the same manner as other and similar independent districts.

Approved April 6, 1888.
An Act to provide for the subdivision of independent school districts. [Additional to code, title XII, chapter 9: "Of the system of common schools."

SECTION 1. (As substituted by ch. 131, 18th g. a.) [Districts may be divided, etc.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: [That any independent school district, organized under any of the laws of this state, may subdivide, for the purpose of forming two or more independent school districts, or have territory detached to be annexed with other territory in the formation of independent district or districts, and it shall be the duty of the board of directors of said independent district to establish the boundaries of the districts so formed, the districts so formed not to contain less than four government sections of land each. This limitation shall not apply when, by reason of a river, or other obstacle, a considerable number of pupils will be accommodated by the formation of a district containing less than four sections, or where there is a city, town, or village within said territory, of not less than one hundred inhabitants, and in such cases the independent districts so formed shall not contain less than two government sections of land, such subdivision to be affected in the manner provided for in sections 2, 3 and 4 of this chapter; provided, that where either of the districts so proposed to be formed contains less than four government sections, it shall require a majority of the votes of each of the proposed districts to authorize such subdivision.]

SEC. 2. [Election.]—At the written request of one-third of the legal voters residing in any independent school district, the board of directors of said independent district shall call a meeting of the qualified electors of the independent district, at the usual place of holding their meeting, by giving at least ten days' notice thereof by posting three notices in the independent district sought to be divided, and by publication in a newspaper, if one be published in the independent district, at which meeting the electors shall vote by ballot for or against such subdivision.

SEC. 3. [Same.]—Should a majority of the votes be cast in favor of such subdivision, the board or boards of directors shall call a meeting in each independent district so subdivided or formed as aforesaid, for the purpose of electing by ballot three directors, who shall hold their offices one, two and three years respectively, the length of their respective terms to be determined by lot; and but one director shall be chosen annually thereafter, who shall hold his office for three years.

SEC. 4. [Naming of district.]—At the meeting of the electors of each independent school district, as provided in the last section, they shall also determine by ballot the name to be given to their district, and each independent district, when so organized, shall be a body corporate, and the name so chosen shall be its corporate name; provided, that the board of directors of any district organized under the provisions of this act may change its name if any other district in the township shall have chosen the same name.

SEC. 5. [How governed.]—Independent districts organized under the provisions of this act shall be governed by the laws relating to independent districts.

An Act to amend chapter 150, laws of the eighteenth general assembly, relating to the publication and distribution of the school laws.

SECTION 1. [Amendment.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That section 1, chapter 150, laws of the eighteenth general assembly, is hereby amended by striking out after the words "school laws," in the fifteenth line of said section, the words, "the distribution of the laws in paper covers shall be made through the county auditors under the direction of secretary and auditor of state, who shall determine the price covering the cost to the state, at which they shall be sold to any party."

Approved April 13, 1888.

An Act authorizing boards of directors to change the boundaries of independent school districts within the same civil township.

SECTION 1. [Change of boundaries.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The boundary lines of contiguous independent districts within the same civil township, may be changed by concurrent action of the respective boards of directors at their regular meeting in September, or at special meetings thereafter called for that purpose; provided, that the district so formed, from which territory has been detached, shall not contain less than four (4) government sections of land; and provided, further, that the boundary lines of said districts shall conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land.

Approved April 9, 1888.

An Act to amend the law governing the election of directors and the powers of boards of directors of independent school districts: (Amendatory of code, title XII, chapter 9.)

SECTION 1. [Divide into election precincts.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in independent school districts having a population of not less than fifteen thousand inhabitants shall be divided into not less than three nor more than six election precincts, in each of which a poll shall be held at a convenient place, to be appointed by the board of directors for the reception of the ballots of the electors residing in such precinct at said election.

Sec. 2. [Submission of questions to voters.]—The board of directors shall provide for the submission of all questions relating to the powers reserved to the electors under section 1807 of the code, which questions shall be decided by ballot, returns to be made on questions submitted as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3. [Election register.]—A register of the electors residing in each precinct shall be prepared by the board of directors from the register of the electors for (of) any city, town, or township, which is in whole or in part included within such independent school district, and for that purpose a copy of such register of electors shall be furnished by the clerk of each such city, town, or township to the board of directors. Said board shall, in each year before the annual election for directors, revise and correct such school election registers by comparison thereof with the last register of elections for such cities, towns, and townships. And the register provided for by this section shall have the same force and effect at elections held under this act, and in respect to the reception of votes at said elections as the register of elections has by law at general elections.

Sec. 4. [Notices of elections.]-Notice of every election under this act shall be given in each district in which the same is to be held by the secretary thereof by posting up the same in three public places in said district and by publication in a newspaper published therein for two weeks preceding such election. Such notice shall also state the respective elective [election] precincts, and the polling place in each precinct.

Sec. 5. [Who to act as judges of election.]—The board of directors shall appoint one of their own number and another elector of the district to act as judges of election, and a clerk for each polling place who shall be sworn as provided by section 609 of the code in case of general elections. The polls shall be opened from 9 o'clock A. M. to 6 o'clock P. M. If either of the judges, or clerk, fail to attend, his place may be filled by the others, by appointing an elector attending in his place, and if all fail to attend in time, or refuse to serve or be sworn, the electors present shall choose two judges and a clerk from the electors attending. A ballot-box and the necessary poll-book shall be provided by the board of directors for each precinct, and the election shall be conducted in the same manner, and under the same rules and regulations, so far as applicable, as or [are] provided by chapter 3 of title 5, of the code for general elections.

Sec. 6. [Canvass of votes, and returns.]-The judges of election and clerk in each precinct shall canvass the vote therein, and shall as soon as possible make out, sign and return to the secretary of the district a certificate showing the whole number of votes cast in such precinct, and the number of votes in favor of each person voted for, and questions submitted. The board of directors shall meet on the next Monday after the election and canvass the returns, and ascertain the result of the election, the whole number of votes cast, and the number in favor of each person voted for shall be entered in their record, and the persons respectively receiving the highest two numbers of votes shall be declared elected, and all questions submitted receiving a majority of votes cast shall be recorded as carried. The secretary shall issue to each person so elected a certificate of his election.

Sec. 7. [Repealing clause.]-All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

MAY ISSUE BONDS.

Sec. 1821. (As amended by ch. 121, 16th g. a.) [Power given to borrow money and issue bonds.]—Independent school districts shall have the power and authority to borrow money for the purpose of redeeming outstanding bonds and, erecting and completing school-houses, by issuing negotiable bonds of the independent district, to run any period not exceeding ten years, drawing a rate of interest not to exceed ten per centum per annum, which interest may be paid semi-annually; which said indebtedness shall be binding and obligatory on the independent district for the use of which said loan shall be made; but no district shall permit a greater outstanding indebtedness than an amount equal to five per centum of the last assessed value of the property of the district.

The powers of a municipal corporation (an independent school district being such), are created only by positive statute, and any act done in the exercise of a power not thus created is void. McPherson v. Fister, 43 Iowa, 48.

The attempted exercise of powers not conferred is equally illegal with the exercise of prohibited power. Id.

That part of the indebtedness contracted by a municipal corporation for a certain purpose is within the constitutional limit, will not legalize that portion of it which is in excess of such limit. Id.

In the absence of the power to issue municipal bonds, no subsequent transfer of the bonds will give them effect, and they are void even in the hands of bona fide holders. Id.

That the tax payers of a municipal corporation have stood by in silence and permitted the bonds to be issued, does not estop them to object to their legality in the hands of an innocent holder, nor will the assent of all the people of such corporation thereto make the debt valid, the contract creating the debt being ultra vires. Id.

Purchasers of the bonds of a municipal corporation are charged with knowledge that the corporation has only express and limited powers, and are bound at their peril to ascertain whether the bonds have been issued in compliance with law. Id.

The constitutional restriction upon the creating of indebtedness does not operate upon the municipal authorities, as agents of the corporation, but upon the corporation itself, as principal, and therefore the latter cannot be bound by an act of its agents creating such indebtedness. Id.

That a municipal corporation has authority to issue negotiable paper will not authorize the presumption that bonds issued upon indebtedness in excess of the constitutional limitation were issued upon the requisite authority. Id.

The holder of such bonds takes them with notice of their informalities; and subsequent acts of the corporation will not estop it to deny their validity. Id.

Nor where bonds were issued in excess of constitutional authority and were therefore void, will the fact that the corporation received the value of such bonds entitle the holder to recover the amount paid therefor. Id.

Where the corporation has issued bonds to evidence an indebtedness in excess of the constitutional limit, the bonds are valid to the extent and within such limit, and invalid beyond such limit. Id.

So also, a tax levied to pay the principal and interest of municipal bonds is valid so far as it is within the municipal power, and beyond that is invalid. Id.

These rulings were made in a case where bonds were issued by an independent school district, many of which were found to have been issued without authority of law. [Ed.]

SEC. 1822. (As amended by ch. 59, 18th g. a.) [Question to be submitted.]—The directors of any independent district may submit to the voters of their district at the annual or a special meeting, the question of issuing bonds as contemplated by the preceding section, giving the same notice of such meeting as is now required by law to be given for the election of officers of such districts, and the amount proposed to be raised by the sale of such bonds; which question shall be voted upon by the electors, and if a majority of all the votes cast on that question be in favor of such loan, then said board shall issue bonds to the amount voted, in denominations of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor exceeding one thousand dollars, due not more than ten years after date, and payable at the pleasure of the district at any time before due; which said bonds shall be given in the name of the independent district issuing them, and shall be signed by the president of the board [and attested by the secretary] and delivered to the treasurer, taking his receipt therefor, who shall negotiate said bonds at not less than their par value, and countersign the same when negotiated. The treasurer shall stand charged upon his official bond with all bonds that may be delivered to him; but any bond or bonds not negotiated that may be returned by him to the board.

SEC. 1823. [Tax for voted.]—If the electors of an independent school district which has issued bonds, shall, at the annual meeting in March for any year, fail to vote sufficient school-house tax to raise a sum equal to the interest on the outstanding bonds which will accrue during the then coming year, and such proportionate portion of the principal as will liquidate and pay off said bonds at maturity, then it shall be lawful for the board of such district to vote a sufficient rate on the taxable property of the district to pay such interest, and such portion of the principal as will pay said bonds in full by the time of their maturity, and shall cause the same to be certified and collected the same as other school taxes. Under this section the limitation of ten mills on the dollar as provided in section 1807, does not apply where a larger tax is required to meet the interest on outstanding bonds issued under section 1821 and 1822, and chapter 132 laws of 1880. Richards v. Supervisors of Lyon Co., 69 Id., 612.
Sec. 1824. [Orders to bear lawful interest.]—All school orders shall draw lawful interest after having been presented to the treasurer of the district and not paid for want of funds, which fact shall be indorsed upon the order by the treasurer.

CHAPTER 132, LAWS OF 1880.

TO AUTHORIZE FUNDING OUTSTANDING BONDED INDEBTEDNESS OF SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

An Act to authorize independent school districts or district townships to fund their outstanding bonded indebtedness and to provide for the payment of the same.

SECTION 1. [Refund indebtedness.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That any independent school district or district township now or hereafter having a bonded [or judgment] indebtedness outstanding is hereby authorized to issue negotiable bonds at any rate of interest not exceeding seven per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, for the purpose of funding said indebtedness; said bonds to be issued upon a resolution of the board of directors of said district; provided, that said resolution shall not be valid unless adopted by a two-thirds vote of said directors.

SEC. 2. (As amended by ch. 95, 21st g. a.) [To sell bonds at par.]—The treasurer of such district is hereby authorized to sell the bonds provided for in this act, at not less than their par value, and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment of the outstanding bonded [or judgment] indebtedness of the district, or he may exchange such bonds for outstanding bonds, par for par; but the bonds hereby authorized shall be issued for no other purpose than the funding of outstanding bonded [or judgment] indebtedness. The actual cost of the engraving and printing of such bonds to be paid for out of the contingent fund of such district.

SEC. 3. [Bonds shall run not more than ten years.]—Said bonds shall run not more than ten years, and be payable at the pleasure of the district after five years from the date of their issue; provided, that in order to stop interest on them, the treasurer shall give the owner of said bonds ninety days written notice of the readiness of the district to pay, and the amount it desires to pay; said notice to be directed to the postoffice address of the owner of the bonds; provided, further, that the treasurer shall keep a record of the parties to whom he sells the bonds, and their postoffice address, and notice sent to the address as shown by said record shall be sufficient.

SEC. 4. [Denomination of bonds, and how given.]—Said bonds shall be in denominations of not less than one hundred dollars, and not more than one thousand dollars; and said bonds shall be given in the name of the independent district or district township, and signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary thereof; and the principal and interest may be made payable wherever the board of directors may by resolution determine.

SEC. 5. [President shall take receipt of treasurer.]—When said bonds are delivered to the treasurer to be negotiated, the president shall take his receipt therefor, and the treasurer shall stand charged on his official bond with the amount of the bonds so delivered to him.

SEC. 6. [How paid.]—The tax for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds shall be raised as provided in section 1823, chapter 9, title XII of the code; provided, that if the district shall fail or neglect to so levy said tax, the board of supervisors of the county in which said district is located shall, upon application of the owner of said bonds, levy said tax.
Sec. 7. [Repealing clause.]—All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITIONS IN SCHOOLS.

An Act to establish and maintain industrial expositions in public schools of the state. [Additional to code, title XII, chapter 9: “Of the system of common schools.”]

SECTION 1. [School directors may establish.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That it shall be the duty of the board of directors of independent school districts, and the subdivisors of each subdistrict, if they should deem it expedient, under the direction of the county superintendent, to introduce and maintain an industrial exposition in connection with each school under their control within this state.

SEC. 2. [To consist of articles made, etc.]—That these expositions shall consist of useful articles made by the pupils, such as samples of sewing, and cooking of all kinds, knitting, crocheting and drawing, iron and wood work of all kinds, from a plain box or horse-shoe to a house or steam engine in miniature; also, all other useful articles known to the industrial world, or that may be invented by the pupils in connection with farm and garden products in their season, that are the results of their own toil.

SEC. 3. [Pupils to explain.]—That the pupils be required to explain the use and method of their work, and kind and process of culture [of] farm and garden products.

SEC. 4. That the parents and friends of the pupils be allowed and requested to be present at said exposition.

SEC. 5. That ornamental work shall be encouraged when accompanied by something useful made by the same pupil.

SEC. 6. [To be held in school rooms: how often.]—That these expositions be held in the school-room upon a school-day as often as once a term, and not oftener than once a month.

Approved March 21, 1874.

PROVIDING FOR TEACHING AND STUDY OF EFFECT OF ALCOHOL AND STIMULANTS UPON THE HUMAN SYSTEM.

An Act to provide for the teaching and study of physiology and hygiene with special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system, in the public schools and educational institutions of the state.

SECTION 1. [The effect of alcohol upon the human system, etc.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That physiology and hygiene, which must in each division of the subject thereof include special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system, shall be included in the branches of study now and hereafter required to be regularly taught to and studied by all pupils in common schools and in all normal institutes, and normal and industrial schools and the schools at the soldiers' orphans' home, and home for indigent children.

SEC. 2. [To be observed by school boards and superintendents.]—It shall be the duty of all boards of directors of schools and of boards of trustees, and of county superintendents in the case of normal institutes, to see to the observance of this statute and make provision therefor, and it is especially enjoined on the county superintendent of each county that he include in his report to the superintendent of public instruction the manner and extent to which the requirements of section one of this act are complied with in the schools and institutes under his charge, and the secretary of school boards in cities and towns is especially charged with the duty of reporting to the superintendent of public instruction as to the observance of said section one hereof, in their respective town and city schools, and only such schools and educational institutions reporting compliance, as above required, shall receive the proportion of school funds or allowance of public money to which they would be otherwise entitled.

SEC. 3. [Certificate granted, etc.] The county superintendent shall not, after the 1st day of July, 1887, issue a certificate to any person who has not passed a satisfactory examination in physiology and hygiene with especial reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system, and it shall be the duty of the county superintendent, as provided by section 1771 to revoke the certificate of any teacher required by law to have a certificate of qualification from the county superintendent, if the said teacher shall fail or neglect to comply with section one of this act, and said teacher shall be qualified for teaching in any public school for one year after such revocation, and shall not be permitted to teach without compliance.

Approved February 17, 1886.

TREES ON SCHOOL GROUNDS.

An Act requiring boards of directors to set out trees on school grounds. [Additional to code, chapter 9, title XII, relating to the system of common schools.]

SECTION 1. [Twelve or more trees on each school-house site, when.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That the board of directors of each district township and independent district shall cause to be set out, and properly protected, twelve or more shade trees on each school-house site, belonging to the district, where such number of trees are not now growing, and such expense shall be paid from the contingent fund.

SEC. 2. [Duty of county superintendent.]—It shall be the duty of the county superintendent, in visiting the several schools in his county, to call the attention of any board of directors neglecting to comply with the requirements of this statute, and the required number of shade trees shall be planted as soon thereafter as the season will admit.

SEC. 3. [§ 1745, code, amended.]—That section 1745 of the code be amended by adding an additional item at the end of said section, as follows: “12. The number of trees set out and in thrifty condition on each school-house grounds.”
An Act to include all the territory of an incorporated city or town, within the independent school district, or districts, now existing, or hereafter to be formed.

SECTION 1. [Boundaries extended.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That all the territory of an incorporated city or town, whether included within the original incorporation or afterwards attached thereto in accordance with the provisions of law, shall be or become a part of the independent district, or districts, of said city or town.

SEC. 2. [Change of boundaries.]—When boundaries are changed by the taking effect of this act, the respective boards of directors shall make an equitable settlement of the then existing assets and liabilities of their districts, as provided for by section 1715 of the code.

An Act to legalize contracts made by school officers for the insurance of school buildings, and to legalize warrants or orders issued therefor.

WHEREAS, Subdirectors and officers of school boards in various school districts and district townships within this state have insured their respective school-houses against loss by fire, and issued orders or warrants therefor, believing that they had the authority of law so to do: therefore,

SECTION 1. [Contracts for insurance of school property made valid.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa, That any and all contracts heretofore made by subdirectors, or any board of directors or officers of any district township or of any independent school district within this state for insuring school houses or school furniture against loss by fire within their respective districts, and all insurance policies issued in pursuance of such contracts, be and the same are hereby made as valid, legal, and binding as though such directors and school officers had been authorized by law to make such contracts for insurance.

SEC. 2. [Warrants, orders, etc., issued for insurance of school property made valid.]—That all warrants, orders, or other evidences of indebtedness heretofore issued by the officers of any school districts within this state for the insurance of school houses and school furniture be and the same are hereby made as legal, binding, and valid as though the law had authorized the issue and making of the same by such officers.

This act legalized all contracts made by school officers for the insurance of school buildings, as well as all warrants, orders, and other evidence of indebtedness issued therefor, but it does not render a district liable on the personal obligation of its officers, such as a note which does not show by its terms that the contract was that of the district. The description, "president" "secretary" "director," added to the respective names of the makers, is not sufficient to show that it is not their individual obligation. American Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59 Iowa, 656.

An Act to enable boards of directors of independent school districts to insure school property.

SECTION 1. [As amended by ch. 107, 21st g. a.] [Board of directors may insure school property, how.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the board of directors of [all] school districts organized under any of the laws of this state may use unappropriated contingent funds for the purpose of effecting an insurance on the school property of their districts, but they may contract no debts for this purpose.

CHAPTER 167, LAWS OF 1882.

STATE EDUCATIONAL BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

An Act to create a state educational board of examiners and to encourage training in the science and art of teaching.

SECTION 1. [Board, how constituted.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The superintendent of public instruction, the president of the state university, the principal of the state normal school, and two persons, to be appointed by the executive council, one of whom shall be a woman, for terms of four years: Provided, that of the two first appointed, one shall be for two years; and provided, further, that no one shall be his own successor in said appointments; are hereby constituted a state board of examiners, with the superintendent of public instruction as ex officio its president.

SEC. 2. [Meetings: examinations of teachers: board select assistants.]—The board shall meet at such times and places as its president shall direct for the transaction of business, and shall hold annually at least two public examinations of teachers, at each of which examinations one member of the board shall preside, assisted by such well qualified teachers, not to exceed two in number, as the board of examiners may elect. Said board may adopt such rules, not inconsistent herewith and with the statutes of Iowa, as they may deem proper; and said board shall keep a full record of their proceedings, and a complete register of all persons to whom certificates and diplomas are issued.

SEC. 3. [State certificates and diplomas.]—Said board shall have power to issue state certificates and state diplomas to such teachers as are found, upon examination, to possess good moral character, thorough scholarship, clear and comprehensive knowledge of didactics, and successful experience in teaching.

SEC. 4. Examination for state certificate.]—Candidates for state certificates shall be examined upon the following branches: orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, book-keeping, physiology, history of the United States, algebra, botany, natural philosophy, drawing, civil government, constitution and laws of Iowa, and didactics; and candidates for state diplomas shall pass examination upon all branches required by candidates for state certificates, and in addition thereto in geometry, trigonometry, chemistry, zoology, geology, astronomy, political economy, rhetoric, English literature and general history; and such other branches as the board of examiners may require.

SEC. 5. [Certificates good for five years.]—A state certificate shall authorize the person to whom it is issued to teach in any public school of the state for the term of five years from the date of its issue, and a state diploma shall be valid for the life of the person to whom it is issued: Provided, that any state certificate, and any state diploma, may be revoked by the board of examiners for any cause of disqualification, on well founded complaint entered by any county superintendent of schools.

SEC. 6. [Fee for certificate, $3; for diploma, $5.]—The fee for each state certificate shall be three dollars, and for each state diploma five dollars, which fee shall be paid before examination to each person as the board of examiners may designate from their own number, and the same shall be paid into the state treasury when so collected: Provided, that if said applicant shall fail in said examination, one-half of the fee shall be returned.

SEC. 7. Certificates and diplomas to be registered.—Every holder of a state certificate, or of a state diploma, shall have the same registered by the county superintendent of schools of the county in which he wishes to teach, before entering upon his work, and each county superintendent of schools is required to include in his annual report to the superintendent of public instruction, a full account of the registration of state certificates and diplomas.

SEC. 8. Expenses to be reimbursed.—Each member of the state educational board of examiners, and each person appointed by said board to assist in conducting examinations as provided for in section 2 of this act, shall be entitled to receive for the time actually employed in such service his necessary expenses; and provided further, that each member of said board, not a salaried officer, shall, in addition to his necessary expenses, receive the sum of three dollars per day he or she is actually employed in said examination, which amounts shall be certified by the superintendent of public instruction; and the auditor of state is hereby authorized to audit and draw his warrant for the same upon the treasurer of state: Provided, the aggregate amount for any one year shall not exceed three hundred dollars.

SEC. 9. Account of funds.—The board of examiners shall keep a detailed and accurate account of all moneys received and expended by them, which, with a list of the names of persons receiving certificates and diplomas, shall be published by the superintendent of public instruction in his annual report.

PROHIBITING BARB WIRE AROUND SCHOOL HOUSES.

An Act to prohibit the use of barb wire in enclosing public school grounds. [Additional to chapter 9, title XII, of the code.]

SECTION 1. To be removed.—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: It is hereby made the duty of the board of directors of every independent district and of every district township to remove before the first day of September, A. D. 1884, any barb wire fence enclosing in whole or in part any public school grounds in such district, and it is also made the duty of any person owning or controlling any barbed wire fence within ten feet of any public school grounds to remove the same within the time herein above named.

SEC. 2. Shall not be used within ten feet of school ground.—Hereafter barb wire shall not be used in enclosing in whole or in part any public school building or the grounds upon which the same may stand; and no barbed wire shall be used for a fence or other purpose within ten feet of any public school ground.

SEC. 3. Penalty.—For a failure or neglect on the part of any board of directors of any independent district or of any district township to carry out the provisions of this act, any member of such board shall be fined on conviction not exceeding twenty-five dollars; any person violating the provisions of this act shall on conviction thereof be fined not exceeding twenty-five dollars.

Approved March 29, 1884.

OF SCHOOL HOUSE SITES.

SECTION 1825. [Districts may take real estate for.]—It shall be lawful for any district township, or independent district, to take and hold, under the provisions contained in this chapter, so much real estate as may be necessary for the location and construction of a school-house and convenient use of the school; provided, that the real estate so taken, otherwise than by the consent of the owner or owners, shall not exceed one acre.

SEC. 1826. [Site of.]—The site so taken must be on some public highway, at least forty rods from any residence, the owner whereof objects to its being placed nearer, and not in any orchard, garden or public park. But this section shall not apply to any incorporated town.

SEC. 1827. [May condemn.]—If the owner of any such real estate refuse or neglect to grant the site on his premises, or if such owner cannot be found, the county superintendent of the county in which said real estate may be situated shall, upon application of either party, appoint three disinterested persons of said county, unless a smaller number is agreed upon by the parties, who shall, after taking an oath to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties imposed on them by this chapter, inspect said real estate and assess the damages which said owner will sustain by appropriation of his land for the use of said house and school; said county superintendent giving to the owner of such real estate the same notice as is required for the commencement of a suit at law in the district court, of the time of such assessment of damage, and make a report in writing to the county superintendent of said county, giving the amount of damages, description of land, and exact location, who shall file and preserve the same in his office. If said board shall, at any time before they enter upon said land for the purpose of building said house, deposit with the county treasurer for the use of said owner the sum so assessed as aforesaid, they shall be thereby authorized to build said house, and maintain the right to said premises; provided, that either party may have the right to appeal from such assessment of damages to the circuit court of the county where such real estate is situated, within twenty days after receiving notice that such assessment is made, which appeal shall be final; but such appeal shall not delay the prosecution of work upon said house, if said board shall pay, or deposit with the county treasurer, the amount so assessed by such appraisers, and in no case shall said board be liable for costs on appeal, unless the owner of said real estate shall be adjudged a greater amount of damages than was awarded by said appraisers. The board shall in all cases pay costs of the first assessment. The holder of a certificate of tax sale is entitled to notice of proceedings to condemn the land embraced in his certificate for a school-house site, and he cannot be deprived of his interest without compensation therefor; and a notice by publication to the holder of the legal title, and all other persons interested, is not sufficient to charge the holder of the tax certificate with notice. Cochran v. The Independent District, etc., 50 Iowa, 663.

SEC. 1828. [For school purposes only.]—The title acquired by said school districts in and to said real property, shall be for school purposes only, and in case the same should cease to be used for said purpose for the space of two years, then the title shall revert to the owner of the fee, upon the repayment by him of the principal amount paid for said land by said districts, without interest, together with the value of any improvements thereon erected by said districts; provided, that during the time said site is used for school purposes the owners of the fee shall not injure or remove the timber standing and growing thereon.

OF APPEALS.

SECTION 1829. [To county superintendent.]—Any person aggrieved by any decision or order of the district board of directors, in matter of law or of fact, may, within thirty days after the rendition of such decision, or the making of such order, appeal therefrom to the county superintendent of the proper county.

A district school board has the power to change the established site of a school-house and remove the building to the new site; and where the board, in ordering such change, does not exceed its jurisdiction, nor otherwise act illegally, a court of equity will not interfere with its action nor restrain its proceedings thereunder. The remedy for unwise or inexpedient action in such case is by appeal to the county superintendent. Vance et al. v. The District Township of Wilton, 23 Iowa, 408.

The remedy of a teacher who is wrongfully discharged by the board of school directors for incompetency is by appeal to the county superintendent, and he cannot at once maintain an action in the courts to recover for a breach of contract, though the action of the board was irregular and not in compliance with section 1734 of the code. Kirkpatrick v. The Ind. District of Liberty, 3 Id., 585.

See District Tp. of Algona v. District Tp. of Lotts Creek, 54 Id., 236, cited to notes in section 1715, ante.

A party aggrieved by the action of a board of school directors, having an adequate remedy by appeal to the county superintendent, and from thence to the state superintendent, is not entitled to the writ of mandamus. Marshall v. Sloan et al., 35 Id., 445.

An appeal will lie from the decision of the board of directors to the county superintendent, whose decision, although not in the nature of a judgment upon which process could issue for the collection of the sum awarded, it would be a decision binding upon the parties and may be enforced by action. Independent District of Lowell v. Independent District of Duser, 45 Id., 391.

Right of any aggrieved party to appeal from an order of the board, recognized, in Atkinson v. Hutchinson, 68 Id., 161. See, also, Barneti et al. v. Independent District of Earlham, 34 N. W. R., 780.

From a decision by school directors an appeal lies to the county superintendent; but where the directors refuse to act, mandamus, and not appeal, is the proper remedy. Case v. Blood et al., 71 Iowa, 632.

Sec. 1830. [Basis of.]—The basis of the proceeding shall be an affidavit filed by the party aggrieved, with the county superintendent, within the time for taking appeal.

Sec. 1831. [Errors stated.]—The affidavit shall set forth the errors complained of in a plain and concise manner.

Sec. 1832. [Superintendent to notify secretary of district: duty of.]—The county superintendent shall, within five days after the filing of such affidavit in his office, notify the secretary of the proper district, in writing, of the taking of such appeal. And the latter shall, within ten days after being thus notified, file in the office of the county superintendent a complete transcript of the record and proceedings relating to the decision complained of, which transcript shall be certified to be correct by the secretary.

Sec. 1833. [Parties notified.]—After the filing of the transcript aforesaid in his office, he shall notify in writing all persons adversely interested of the time and place where the matter of the appeal will be heard by him.

Sec. 1834. [Hearing take testimony: administer oaths.]—At the time thus fixed for hearing, he shall hear testimony for either party, and for that purpose may administer oaths if necessary, and he shall make such decision as may be just and equitable, which shall be final, unless appealed from as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 1835. [Appeal to superintendent of public instruction: notice of.]—An appeal may be taken from the decision of the county superintendent, to the superintendent of public instruction in the same manner as provided in this chapter for taking appeals from the district board to the county superintendent, as nearly as applicable, except that he shall give thirty days' notice of the appeal to the county superintendent, and the like notice shall be given the adverse party. And the decision when made shall be final.

If a party who has appealed to the county superintendent is aggrieved by his decisions, the appellant may again appeal to the state superintendent of public instruction. Marshall v. Sloan, et al., 35 Iowa, 445, 448.

The decision of the superintendent of public instruction on questions of fact arising on appeals tried before him is final. Wood v. Farmer, et al., 69 Id., 533.

The perpetual school fund of the state consists of five per cent upon the net proceeds of all sales of the public lands in the state of Iowa; the proceeds of the five hundred thousand acre grants, the proceeds of the sales of escheated estates, and of the sales of the sixteenth sections. The five per centum on the proceeds of the sales are appropriated among the several counties, and the funds arising from the other sources are payable to the county treasurer of the county in which the lands or escheated estates are.

*Sec. 1839. [Five per cent fund payable to treasurer.]—The five per centum of the net proceeds of all sales of the public lands is hereby made payable to the state treasurer, and the state auditor shall apportion the same among the several counties, taking into consideration the amount of the permanent school fund already in possession of and steadily loaned in said counties.

Sec. 1840. [Part of permanent fund made payable to county treasurer.]-Those portions of the permanent school fund enumerated in the second and fourth subdivisions of section eighteen hundred and thirty-seven of this chapter, are hereby made payable to the county treasurer of the county in which the lands sold are situated, and the proceeds of subdivision third of said section to the treasurer of the county where said escheated estates are.

Sec. 1841. [Same as temporary fund.]-The temporary funds enumerated in section eighteen hundred and thirty-eight of this chapter are hereby made payable to the county treasurers of the several counties in which they arise respectively, and shall be accounted for to the board of supervisors, who shall apportion the same among the several school districts of said county as provided by law.

Sec. 1842. [Auditor to audit losses of.]-The auditor is required to audit all losses to the school fund as provided in section three of article seven of the constitution; and, for this purpose, he shall prescribe such regulations for the conduct of officers having such funds in charge as he shall deem necessary to ascertain such losses.

Sec. 1843. [To issue bonds, etc.]-Whenever any amount, not less than one thousand dollars, is audited in favor of the permanent school fund for losses of the same, whereby the state becomes indebted to said fund, the state auditor shall issue the bond or bonds of the state in favor of said fund, bearing interest at the rate of eight per cent, payable semi-annually, on the first day of January and July after the issuing of the same, and the amount required to pay the interest on said bonds, as the same becomes due, is hereby appropriated out of any revenue in the state treasury.

Sec. 1844. [To keep account with different funds.]-The state auditor shall keep the school fund accounts in books provided for that purpose, separate and distinct from the revenue books, and immediately after making the apportionment required by section sixty-six of chapter three, of title two, he shall notify the auditor of each county of the sum to which his county is entitled by said aportainment, and in those cases where the counties have less of such interest than they are entitled to by apportionment, he shall, by such notice, authorize the treasurer of each of such counties to transfer the amount of such deficiency from the state revenue in his hands to such interest fund, and said notice shall be filed by the treasurer and be his proper voucher to the state for the amount of said revenue so transferred. And in those cases where the counties have an excess of such interest over the amount apportioned to each, such notice shall authorize the county treasurer to transfer such excess from the interest fund to the state revenue, and such excess so transferred shall be paid into the state treasury as revenue.

SALE OF LANDS.

Sec. 1845. [Sixteenth section may be sold.]-The board of supervisors may, at such time as they deem best, authorize the trustees of any township where the sixteenth section, or land selected in lieu thereof, has been sold, to lay out the same in such tracts as in their judgment will be for the best interests of the school fund, conforming, as far as the interests of said fund will permit, to the legal subdivisions of the United States surveys; and they shall appraise each tract at what they believe to be its true value, and certify to the said board of supervisors the divisions and appraisements made by them; said division and appraisements shall be approved or disapproved by said board at their first meeting after such report, and in case they disapprove the same, they may at once order another division and appraisal, should they deem it best. Where the board of supervisors approve, the county auditor shall make and keep a record of such division, appraisement, and approval.

SEC. 1846. (As amended by sec. 4, ch. 12, 18th g. a.)—[Sale of five hundred thousand acre grant.]—Whenever the board of supervisors shall offer for sale the sixteenth section, or lands selected in lieu thereof, or any portion of the same, or any part of the five hundred thousand acre grant, the county auditor shall give at least forty days' notice by written or printed notices posted in five public places in the county, two of which shall be in the township in which the land to be sold is situated; and also to publish a notice of said sale for four weeks preceding the same, in a newspaper, should one be published in the county; if there is none published in said county, then in some newspaper authorized by the board of supervisors; and he shall describe the land to be sold, and state the time and place of sale; then at such time and place, or at such other time and place as the sale may be adjourned to, he shall offer to the highest bidder, subject to the provisions of this chapter, and shall sell either for cash, or one-third cash and the balance on a credit not exceeding ten years, with interest on the same at the rate of (eight) per cent per annum; said interest to be paid at the office of the county treasurer of said county, on the first day of January in each year; but in no case shall the land so offered be sold for less than its appraised value; nor shall any member of the board of supervisors or county auditor, township trustees, or any person who was engaged in the division and appraisement of said land, be, directly or indirectly, interested in the purchase thereof; and any sale made where such parties, or any of them, are so interested, shall be void and of no effect.

SEC. 1847. No school lands shall be sold for less than the minimum price of six dollars per acre, except as hereinafter provided, and in no case for less than the amount at which it has been appraised.

SEC. 1848. [Prerequisites of sales.]—No school lands of any kind shall be sold until there shall be at least twenty-five legal voters resident in the congressional township in which said school land is situated, and in a fractional township of less than thirty-six sections, the number of voters residing therein, must have at least the same ratio to twenty-five as the number of sections, or parts of sections in said township has to thirty-six, which fact in all cases must be shown to the satisfaction of the board of supervisors.

SEC. 1849. [When offered and there is no sale.]—Where the board of supervisors of any county shall have once, at least, offered for sale any school lands in compliance with the requirements of section eighteen hundred and forty-five and eighteen hundred and forty-six of this chapter, and are unable to sell the same for the minimum price of six dollars per acre, and, if in the opinion of said board, it is for the best interests of the school fund that the same be sold for a less price, then said board may instruct the auditor of said county to transmit by mail or otherwise to the register of the state land office, a certified copy of the proceedings of said board of supervisors in relation to the order of sale of said land, and subsequent proceedings in relation thereto, including the action of the township trustees, and the price per acre at which said land shall have been appraised, which transcript the register of the state land office shall submit to the executive council; and if a majority of said council, including the register, shall approve of the sale of said land for less than the minimum price of six dollars per acre, then the register shall certify such approval to the auditor of the county from whence said transcript came, which certificate shall be transcribed in the minute book of the board of supervisors of said county, and, thereupon, said land may again be offered and sold to the highest bidder, as provided in section eighteen hundred and forty-six of this chapter, without being again appraised; but in no case under the provisions of this section, shall any school land be sold for less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.
SEC. 1850. [Sale of lands bid in on execution.]

When any lands have been bid in by the state in behalf of the school fund, on execution founded on a judgment in favor of said fund, such lands shall be sold in the same manner as other school lands. Whenever any such lands shall have been conveyed to the counties in which the same are situated for the use of the school fund, instead of to the state as required by law, such conveyance shall be considered valid and binding, and on the proper certificates being made as hereinbefore provided, patents shall be issued to the purchasers of said lands in like manner as in cases where the conveyances were made to the state for the use of the school fund.

SEC. 1851. [Patent to issue when payment made.]

When any purchaser shall pay the full amount of his purchase money at the time of purchase, or, whenever full payment shall be made for lands previously purchased belonging to the school fund, the auditor shall forthwith issue a certificate of that fact, which shall be transmitted to the state land office and entitle the purchaser to a patent which shall be issued by the governor.

SEC. 1852. [Contracts to be reduced to writing, etc.]

In case the lands are purchased upon a partial credit as hereinbefore provided, the contracts shall at once be reduced to writing, signed by the parties, and recorded in the office of the recorder, after which it shall be filed in the office of the county auditor, and during the continuance of such contract, it shall be lawful for such purchaser, his heirs, or assignees, at any time to pay the principal and interest due upon such contract, and receive a certificate of purchase as mentioned in the preceding section.

SEC. 1853. [Supervisors may refuse to sell on credit.]

When in the judgment of the board of supervisors, any school lands are of such a character that a sale upon partial credit would be unsafe or incompatible with the interest of the school fund, and especially in the case of timbered lands, the board of supervisors may, in their discretion, exact the whole of the purchase money in advance; or, if they sell such land upon a partial credit as hereinbefore prescribed, they shall require good collateral security for the payment of the purchase money upon which credit is given.

SEC. 1854. [When failure is made to pay principal or interest.]

Whenever any purchaser of any school lands, sold under the provisions of this chapter upon a partial credit, or any person to whom a portion of the school fund has been loaned, fails to pay the interest upon the amount due the school fund from him on the first day of January, and such payment is not made within six months thereafter, then the entire amount, both of principal and interest, owing to the school fund from such person, shall be deemed to have become due, and the county auditor shall report the name of the delinquent, together with the sum total due from such delinquent, to the district attorney of his judicial district, who shall immediately commence suit for the collection of the amount thus reported. The provisions of this section, in so far as they provide for the principal owing for the purchase of school lands, or for money borrowed from the school fund becoming due and being collected at an earlier day than that stipulated in the contract upon failure to pay the interest, are hereby declared to be a part of every contract made under and by virtue of this chapter, whether expressed in such contract or not.

SEC. 1855. [Same as to university funds.]

The provisions of the last section shall be of force as far as applicable, to all cases where land is purchased or money borrowed from the university fund, and in case of delinquency as provided for in said section, the treasurer of the state university shall make the report therein required to the district attorney of the district where the party so purchasing or borrowing resides, or where the real estate given as security for said purchase or loan is situated.

The State University possesses the equitable rights which belong to other vendors of real property, as connected with the forfeiture of contracts for laches on the part of the vendee. And the exercise of this right is not in conflict with sections (1975, 1979 of the revision) 1854 and 1855 of the code. Hemm, Administrator, v. The State University, 22 Iowa, 185.

It was held in this case, further, that the repeal of section 1052 of the code of 1851, which provided that if any purchaser failed to pay the interest due upon any contract for the sale of university lands, the board of trustees might, at their discretion, consider the contract as forfeited and proceed to re-sell the land, etc., did not deprive the State University of the exercise of the general equitable right possessed by other vendors of real property, of rescinding contracts that have become forfeited for non-compliance on part of the vendee. Id.

sec. 1856. [Lands taxable from date of contract.]—All school lands, the sale of which is provided for under this chapter, shall be subject to taxation from and after the execution and delivery of the contract to the purchaser.

sec. 1857. [Waste: punished.]—All contracts relative to the sale of school lands provided for in this chapter shall be subject to such laws as now are, or may hereafter be in force relative to the prevention or punishment of waste.

sec. 1858. [Township trustees: duty as to waste.]—The township trustees in each township, shall see that no waste be committed upon any school lands lying in their township and in case any such waste be attempted, they shall apply by petition to the district or circuit court, or to any judge thereof, for an injunction to stay waste, and the same, if granted, shall be without bond. The court may make such order in the premises as shall be equitable and calculated to secure the school lands from waste or destruction, and may adjudge damages against the party for injuries done in such cases; the costs shall abide the event of the suit, and the damages shall be paid to the county treasurer and constitute a part of the permanent school fund.

sec. 1859. [Supervisors may have survey made.]—When, in the opinion of the board of supervisors, it may be necessary to have a portion of the school lands within their county surveyed, they may employ the county surveyor for the purpose, who shall be paid out of the county treasury upon proof made of the request and performance of the service.

sec. 1860. [To manage school fund.]—The several boards of supervisors shall hold and manage the securities given to the school fund in their respective counties, and also all judgments and lands therein belonging to said fund for the use of said fund; and to that end such counties shall have power to sue in their own name, for the use of said fund, either by the district attorney, or such other attorney as such board shall select, and to do all other acts in relation to the same necessary for the protection of said fund, and such counties shall be severally liable for all losses upon loans of such fund made in such county. But any county may discharge itself from any liability in any case wherein its liability is not made absolute by sections eighteen hundred and eighty-one and eighteen hundred and eighty-two of this chapter, by showing that the alleged loss was not incurred by reason of any default of its officers or by taking insufficient or imperfect securities. The state auditor shall examine and adjust any claim by a county for exemption from liability under the foregoing proviso, upon proof in writing submitted to him in behalf of the county, within three months after he shall notify the county auditor of his readiness to receive it. In the absence of such proof, or, if the same is insufficient, the state auditor shall charge the amount of such loss against the county as a final adjustment. If found sufficient, he shall present the facts thereof in his report to the general assembly next ensuing.

The principal and interest of loans from the school fund are payable to the county treasurer, and the payment of the proceeds of a judgment in its favor by the clerks to the county auditor is unauthorized; and if the auditor, in such case, fails to pay over to the county treasurer the amount thus paid to him by the clerk, the latter is liable on his official bond for the amount. Mahaska County v. Searle, 44 Iowa, 492.

The statute of limitations will not operate to bar an action for the recovery of the money in such case, until after three years from the time when it was paid to the auditor. Id.

The board of supervisors may make such reasonable rules for the loaning of the school fund as to them shall seem proper, and, among others, may provide that the fund shall be loaned only to residents of the county. Emmet County v. Skinner et al., 48 Id., 244.

The county authorities cannot for the use of the school fund buy in an outstanding tax title for the purpose of defeating the lien of a mortgage held by a third party, and which is junior to the one existing upon the same land in favor of the school fund. Miller v. Gregg et al., 25 Id., 75.

A county auditor has no authority to release real estate from a mortgage executed thereon to the county for the use of the school fund. Madison County v. Kriedler et al., 56 Id., 32.

By this section, the county is made liable for all losses upon loans of the school fund made in the county, and to recover such fund the county may maintain an action in its own name, as the trustee of an express trust. Madison County v. Tullis et al., 69 Id., 720.

SEC. 1861. [Fund loaned: conditions and terms.]—The permanent school fund shall be loaned out as hereinafter provided, as the same may come into the hands of the county treasurer, but no loan to any one person or company shall exceed the sum of five hundred dollars, nor shall any loan of the school fund be made to the county auditor, treasurer, or to any member of the board of supervisors. Said loans shall not be made for shorter time than one year, nor for more than five years.

SEC. 1862. (As amended by ch. 174, 19th g. a.) [How secured: interest.]—The payment of the money thus borrowed, together with the interest thereon at the rate of [eight] per cent per annum, shall be secured by promissory notes executed by the party borrowing, and by mortgage on unencumbered real estate, which, exclusive of any buildings, is appraised by the appraisers hereinafter provided for at double the value of the amount of money loaned; which real estate must be situated in the county where such loan is made.

SEC. 1863. [Real estate offered as security appraised.]—The value of real estate offered as security for money loaned as herein provided, shall be fixed by three appraisers under oath, who shall be selected by the county auditor, and, in making the valuation provided for, the appraisers shall not take into consideration any buildings that may be on the land; said appraisers shall be allowed for their services the sum of fifty cents each, to be paid by the party borrowing, and the party borrowing shall pay for recording the mortgage given to secure such loan.

SEC. 1864. [Loan of permanent fund by county auditor.]—When any person desires to borrow from the permanent school fund, he shall apply to the county auditor, and if, in the opinion of said auditor, it would be to the interest of the school fund to grant such application, he shall order the necessary papers to be made out to secure the amount thus to be borrowed, as required by sections eighteen hundred and sixty-two and eighteen hundred and sixty-three of this chapter. When the same are made out, they shall be presented to said auditor, who shall, if he approves the same, indorse thereon, “accepted,” and sign his name below the same, and he shall examine the title to any real estate offered as security, make and preserve an abstract of such title, which shall be certified by him and submitted to the board of supervisors at the first meeting thereafter; he may charge a fee not to exceed two dollars for his services in making such abstract of title, to be paid by the party borrowing. He shall then give to the party borrowing a copy of the promissory note, certifying over his hand and official seal that it is a correct copy of the same, which together with a mortgage securing it, has been filed in his office, and upon the parties presenting said certificate to the treasurer, he shall pay the amount specified in said copy of note out of the permanent school fund in his possession, and retain the said certified copy as his voucher. The said auditor shall file the original note in his office, and also the mortgage after having it recorded.

The auditor, under this section, is to file the original note in his office, and also the mortgage after it has been recorded, but he is not authorized to receive payment thereof. Mahaska County v. Searle et al., 44 Iowa, 492; see also The Same v. Ruan et al., 45 Id., 328.

(SEC. 1865. Repealed by chapter 174, laws of 1882.)

SEC. 1866. [Auditor make report to supervisors of loans made.]—At each meeting of the board of supervisors, the auditor shall make a full statement of all money received for and loaned out of the school fund under his control, and shall also submit for their examination all notes, mortgages, and abstracts of title connected with the school fund which have come into his possession since their last meeting. Said board, at the first meeting after such report and papers are submitted to them, shall either approve or disapprove of each loan made by said auditor. Should they disapprove of any loan or security thus reported, they may require the party borrowing to give additional security within thirty days; and in case of failure so to do, the entire amount, both of principal and interest, owing to the school fund, shall be deemed to have become due, and the district attorney shall be directed immediately to collect the same; and in such case, should it be found impossible to collect the entire amount due, and the security prove insufficient, then the county auditor and his bondsmen shall be liable for the deficiency. The provision herein contained with regard to principal and interest becoming due on the failure to give additional security when required for money borrowed from the school fund, is hereby declared to be a part of every contract made under and by virtue of this chapter, whether expressed in the contract or not.

SEC. 1867. [How paid: auditor to certify amount due.]—When any person desires to pay either principal or interest due the school fund, he shall obtain a certificate from the county auditor specifying the amount due from such person to the school fund, stating whether it is principal or interest, or both, and setting forth distinctly the amount of each. Upon the presentation of which certificate to the county treasurer, the treasurer shall receive the amount so specified from the person presenting the certificate, and shall indorse on said certificate the date and his name, and upon the return to the auditor of such certificate so indorsed, the party returning it shall have a receipt from him for the amount so paid.

The county auditor is not authorized to receive money collected upon judgments in favor of the school fund, and his sureties are not liable for an amount thus collected and paid by the clerk to the auditor. Mahaska County v. Ruan et al., 45 Iowa, 328.

SEC. 1868. [Supervisors may pay prior incumbrances.]—Whenever any portion of the school fund has been loaned upon real estate security, upon which exists a prior incumbrance other than for taxes, the board of supervisors shall have authority, in their discretion, if they deem it necessary to remove said prior incumbrance in order that said fund may ultimately realize the money upon said loan, to appropriate so much money out of the school fund, if any there be within said county, as shall be necessary to remove said incumbrance; provided, said incumbrance shall not exceed one-half the actual cash value of said real estate.

LOANING THE PERMANENT SCHOOL FUND.

An Act in relation to loaning and management of the permanent school fund.

SECTION 1. [Rate of interest on school funds 8 per cent. ]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The rate of interest on all permanent school funds loaned after January 1, A.D. 1880, shall not exceed eight per cent per annum from date of such loan.

SEC. 2. [Interest to bear interest.]—Interest not paid when due shall bear interest at the same rate as the principal.

SEC. 3. [When six per cent charged.]—After July 1, A.D. 1880, the counties having permanent school funds in control shall be charged only six per cent instead of eight per cent, as now provided by the code.

SEC. 4. [Amendment of § 1846 of code.]—Section 1846 of the code is hereby amended by striking out the words “ ten per cent ” in the sixteenth and seventeenth lines, and inserting in lieu thereof the words “ eight per cent. ”

SEC. 5. [Amendment to § 1873 of code.]—Section 1873 of the code is hereby amended by adding at the end of the section the following: “ But in no case to exceed ten per cent on the amount for which judgment is rendered, and in no case to exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars.”

SEC. 6. [Loans.]—Loans may hereafter be made to one person, or one company, to the amount of one thousand dollars: provided, it is found impracticable to keep the whole amount of the funds loaned in sums of five hundred dollars or less.

SEC. 7. [Repeal.]—All laws inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 1869. [Supervisors may assign claims due fund.]—The board of supervisors may, by resolution, assign without recourse any school fund claim to any person having a subsequent lien on the premises affected by such claim, upon the full payment of the amount due the said fund, but not otherwise.

SEC. 1870. [May employ agents to examine securities and make abstracts of titles.]—Such board may, when deemed necessary, employ some competent person to examine the securities aforesaid, make abstracts of titles to the lands mortgaged, and make out complete statements thereof for such boards, and under the direction of said boards, or committee thereof, to procure the renewal of such notes and mortgages, when demanded by persons entitled thereto, upon such terms as to time and security in all respects as in making new loans. And such agent may, with the consent of said board or committee, take from any person responsible for any loan, any additional security by way of bond or mortgage, or both, in cases where the property mortgaged is inadequate security for the sum loaned, and the applicant shall pay up all interest and procure the written consent of the sureties on the note; but in all cases of the continuance of loans, as well as in cases of new loans, abstracts of title shall be presented and filed with the mortgage, which shall show that the title to the mortgaged premises is in the mortgagor, free and clear of any incumbrance or debt.

SEC. 1871. [Upon payment of interest, principal reloaoned.]—Any person responsible to the school fund for any part of the principal thereof, who shall promptly pay all interests and costs, if any, thereon, whether the same may be rendered into a judgment or not, shall be permitted to borrow such principal upon complying in all respects with the requirements of law relating to new loans.

SEC. 1872. [Auditor to publish notice when money is due.]—Every county auditor in whose county there are outstanding contracts on the sale of school lands, which are due, shall immediately publish a notice requiring all persons holding any such lands, to at once pay up the amount due thereon, or otherwise make satisfactory arrangements for an extension of time. He shall also give a like notice to all mortgagors to said fund on whose notes either principal or interest is due. Such notices shall be printed for four weeks in a newspaper published in the county, if there be one; if there be none, then in such newspaper published in this state as will be most likely, in the opinion of said auditor, to give notice to all concerned; and a copy of such notice shall be posted for the same time at the outer door of the building in which the last district court in said county was held.

SEC. 1873. (As amended by sec. 5, ch. 12, 18th g. a.) [Suit brought to enforce collections.]-In case the person holding lands so contracted or mortgaged shall neglect to pay the sums due thereon, or make an arrangement for an extension of time within three months from the first publication of such notice, the board of supervisors may cause suit to be brought and prosecuted with the utmost diligence to secure said fund, and in any action in favor of a county for the use of the school fund, an injunction may issue without bond, and in any such action, where service is made by publication, default and judgment may be entered and enforced without the bond required of individuals. In all such suits the court shall give the plaintiff, as a part of the costs, such an amount as will be a sufficient compensation for the plaintiff's attorney in the case. [But in no case to exceed ten per cent on the amount for which judgment is rendered, and in no case to exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars.]

The limitation of twenty-five dollars as attorney's fees, to be taxed as part of the costs on the foreclosure of school fund mortgages, held to apply to mortgages executed prior to the enactment of the amendment of this section adding such limitation. County of Kosuth v Wallace et al., 60 Iowa, 508.

SEC. 1874. [Land bid off at sale for use of school fund.]-In case of sales of lands on execution founded on any such mortgage or contract, the attorney for said board, or other person authorized by said board, shall bid on behalf of the state or county, as the case may be, for the use of said fund, such sum as the interests of said fund may require, and if struck off to the state, the same shall be held and disposed of in all respects the same as other lands belonging to said fund, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 1875. [Contracts: notes made payable to county.]-All contracts, notes and mortgages given to said fund shall be made payable to the county controlling them, but no such contracts, notes or mortgages shall be invalid because they are made payable to any other payee, but the same shall be deemed and taken to belong to said county for the use of said fund, and suits may be maintained thereon in the name of the said county, with the same effect as if they were drawn payable to the said county.

SEC. 1876. [Treasurer to keep accounts, distinguishing between principal and interest.]-Each county treasurer shall immediately upon receiving or paying out any moneys belonging to the school fund, enter a correct account thereof on proper books kept by him for the purpose in all cases where money is received, distinguishing between principal and interest, and shall keep an account showing all money due the school fund, whether principal or interest, and designating the amount of each and from whom due, and his books shall at all times present a clear and intelligible statement of the school fund in his hands. Said books shall at all times be open to the inspection and examination of any householder or taxpayer in the county.

SEC. 1877. [Auditor to keep accounts with fund and treasurer.]-Each county auditor shall keep in his office, in books provided for that purpose, an account to be known as the school fund account, in which he shall enter all notes, mortgages, bonds, and assets of every kind and description which may come into his hands, and he shall open accounts with the county treasurer in which he shall charge him with all money in his hands at the time such account is opened, and also with all money which may hereafter be paid to him, as shown by the certificates duly indorsed as hereinbefore provided for, distinguishing between principal and interest, which shall be kept in distinct accounts; and shall, on the third Monday in May, the first Monday of October, and the third Monday of December, in each and every year, make a complete settlement of the school fund account with the county treasurer, from the time of the last settlement, and at each regular meeting of the board of supervisors he shall submit a full report of his last settlement with the county treasurer, and also of all notes, mortgages, bonds, and assets of every kind and description which have come into his hands since the last meeting of the board.

SEC. 1878. [Penalty for failure of duty by auditor or treasurer.]—Any county treasurer or auditor failing or neglecting to perform any of the duties which are required of him by the provisions of this chapter, shall be liable to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the district court by the board of supervisors, the judgment to be entered against the party and his bondsmen, and the proceeds to go to the school fund.

SEC. 1879. [Time to pay given.]—Whenever it shall be evident to the board of supervisors that the interest of the school fund will be endangered by the immediate prosecution of any mortgage, or the sale of mortgaged premises, they may give such reasonable time as they may deem for the best interests of the school fund.

SEC. 1880. [Lapse of time no bar to suit.]—Lapse of time shall in no case bar any action brought, or to be brought, on any contract for any part of the school fund, nor shall such lapse of time prevent the introduction of evidence in any such action, any provision of this code to the contrary notwithstanding.

COUNTIES RESPONSIBLE.

SEC. 1881. [Supervisors to control school fund: mortgages foreclosed at expense of county: losses made good by.]—On and after the first day of January, A. D. 1874, the board of supervisors of the several counties shall have sole control and management of all loans on mortgages then held or thereafter made, and shall, when necessary, have them foreclosed at the expense of the county; and any losses sustained or gains realized upon foreclosures and resales of mortgaged property, shall be made good by or inure to the benefit of the county, as the case may be; provided, however, that upon a foreclosure of contracts, when the land is bid in by the county, the auditor of state, as soon as notified by the county auditor that the foreclosure has been effected and the lands bid in, shall give the county credit for the original amount of the notes remaining unpaid; and on being notified by the county auditor that a resale has been effected, he shall charge the county with the full amount of resale; but when the land is purchased by a third party on the foreclosure for a less amount than due on the contract notes, the loss shall be sustained by the county. County auditors shall report annually on the first day of January, the amounts of all sales and resales of the sixteenth section, five hundred thousand acres grant, and escheated estates made the year previous; and the auditor of state shall charge up the same to said counties, and also charge interest on the same from the date of said sales or resales, at the rate of eight per cent per annum.

See notes to section 1860, ante.

SEC. 1882. [Auditor of state to charge counties interest at eight per cent.]—On and after the first day of January, A. D. 1874, the auditor of state shall charge up to each county having permanent school fund under its control, interest on the whole amount in said county, at the rate of eight per cent per annum, semi-annually, on the first day of January and July of each year, which amount so charged shall become due and payable on the first day of January and July of the year following, and be embraced in the semi-annual apportionment of interest collected for the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five and each year thereafter, and shall be deemed the whole amount due from each county on account of interest accrued subsequent to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-four. Any surplus of interest collected over the eight per cent charged to the counties, shall be paid into the county treasury for the benefit of the county. If any county should fail to collect the full amount of interest due the state, the deficiency shall be advanced from the county treasury, and if any county becomes delinquent in the payment of the full amount of interest due the state, the auditor of state shall charge to and collect from such county a penalty of one per cent per month on the amount delinquent until paid.

Sec. 1883. [Where funds cannot be loaned: transfer made.]—Whenever there are funds belonging to the permanent school fund in any county amounting to one thousand dollars that cannot be loaned according to law, the county auditor may certify the fact to the auditor of state, who shall order a transfer of said funds to some other county, or counties, where, in his opinion, it can be loaned readily. Upon such transfer being made, the auditor of state shall give the county making the transfer credit for the amount transferred, and shall charge the county or counties to which the transfer is made with the amount transferred, and shall afterwards charge interest on the actual amount in the possession of each county.

Sec. 1884. [County auditors to report to auditor of state semi-annually.]—The county auditors shall continue to report to the auditor of state, semi-annually as now required by law, the amount of interest collected and which accrued previous to the first day of January, A. D. 1874, until the amount of interest due up to that date has been collected. The amount collected from time to time shall be added to the semi-annual apportionment of interest heretofore provided for. The county auditor shall also embrace in said reports, in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five and thereafter, the amount of interest collected and which accrued subsequent to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, in a separate item.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF COUNTY AUDITORS AND THEIR DEPUTIES LEGALIZED.

An Act to legalize acknowledgments by county auditors and deputy county auditors in the state of Iowa.

WHEREAS, Certain county auditors and deputy county auditors have heretofore taken and certified acknowledgment of school fund mortgages and contracts, believing that they were acting in pursuance of law; therefore,

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

SECTION 1. [Legalized.]—That all acknowledgments of school fund mortgages and contracts heretofore taken and certified by any county auditor or deputy county auditor in this state be and the same is hereby legalized and and declared to be as legal, valid and binding, as though such officer had been authorized to take such acknowledgment when taken.

Approved April 12, 1886.
CHAPTER 13.

OF THE STATE LIBRARY.

SECTION 1885. [Trustees of.]—The governor, judges of the supreme court, secretary of state, and superintendent of public instruction, shall, by virtue of their office, constitute a board of trustees of the state library, of which the governor shall be president.

SEC. 1886. [Powers of.]—The said trustees shall have full power to make and carry into effect such rules and regulations for the superintendence and care of the books, maps, charts, papers and furniture contained in the state library, and for the arrangement and safe keeping of the same as they may deem proper.

SEC. 1887. [Who entitled to books: term limited:]—The said trustees shall provide in their rules and regulations, that any member of the general assembly, any member or attorney of the supreme court, during the sessions of the same, the judges and attorneys of the courts of the United States, and the heads of departments of state, shall be permitted, under proper restrictions, penalties and forfeitures, to take from the library any books, excepting such as the trustees shall determine ought not to be removed therefrom; but none of such persons shall be allowed to take such books or property from the library without executing a receipt therefor, nor to retain the same more than ten days at a time.

SEC. 1888. (As amended by ch. 69, 18th g. a.) [Prohibition.]—[From and after the taking effect of this act (chapter 69, laws of 1880) no books, maps, charts or papers belonging to the state library shall be removed from the capitol building, except to remove the same from the old capitol building to the new capitol building, when such building shall have been prepared to receive the same.]

SEC. 1889. [Kept open.]—The state library shall be kept open every day during the sessions of the general assembly and the supreme court, and during such hours as shall be determined by the trustees.

SEC. 1890. [Librarian to have custody of: bond of.]—The state library shall be in custody of the state librarian, who shall be appointed by the governor, and who shall hold the office for the term of two years, commencing on the first day of May, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. Before entering upon the duties of his office he shall give a bond, with good and sufficient surety, in the penal sum of five hundred dollars, in such form as the governor shall approve, conditioned for the performance of all the duties required of him by law, and for the observance of all the rules prescribed by the trustees of the library.

SEC. 1891. [Duties of.]—The librarian shall give his personal attendance upon the library during the hours it shall be directed to be kept open, and shall perform such duties as shall be imposed on him by law or shall be prescribed by the rules and regulations of the trustees.

SEC. 1892. [Prepare catalogue.]—The librarian shall prepare a complete alphabetical catalogue of the library, number the books therein, and report the same to the governor, who shall cause the same to be published for the use of the library.

SEC. 1893. [Books labeled and marked.]—The librarian shall cause each book in the library to be labeled with a printed label, to be pasted on the inside of the cover, with the words, "Iowa state library," with the number of the volume in the catalogue of said library inscribed on said label, also to write the same words at the bottom of the thirtieth page of each volume. All books that may hereafter be added to the library shall be labeled in the same manner, and entered on the catalogue, immediately on their receipt, and before they can be taken therefrom.
Sec. 1894. [Report to governor.]-The librarian shall make report to the governor five days before the adjournment of any session of the general assembly, of the number of books that have been taken out of the library by the members, giving the names of all members that have any books at the date of such report, with the name and number of such book.

Sec. 1895. [Fines and penalties.]-All fines, penalties, and forfeitures imposed by the rules and regulations of the library for any violation of such rules and regulations, may be recovered in any proper action or proceeding in the name of the state, before any court of competent jurisdiction; and all such fines, penalties, forfeitures, and recoveries shall be applied to the use of the library, under the direction of the trustees.

Sec. 1896. [Penalty for injuring or destroying books.]-Any person injuring, defacing, destroying, or losing a book, shall pay to the librarian twice the value of the book, and, if it be one of a set, he shall be liable to pay the full amount of the value of the set, and the librarian shall prosecute such person on such liability; provided, that if such person shall within a reasonable time replace the book so injured or lost, he shall not be liable under this section.

Sec. 1897. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [Report to governor and general assembly.]-The librarian shall report to the governor, whenever required, a list of books and other property missing from the library, an account of fines and forfeitures imposed and collected, and the amount uncollected, a list of the accessions to the library since the last report, and all other information required by the governor. He shall also make a full and specific report to the (governor biennially).

(Section 1898, repealed by section 9, chapter 159, laws of 1876.)

Sec. 1899. (As amended by ch. 13, 19th g. a., and ch. 191, 20th g. a.)-[Appropria­tion for state library.]-There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of (three) thousand dol­ ars annually, from and after the first day of January, 1882, to be expended by the board of trustees in the purchase of books for the library.

STATE LIBRARY.

An Act to amend chapter thirteen (13), title XII of the code, in relation to the state library.

Section 1. [Forbidding the removal of books, etc., from capitol building.]-Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: From and after the taking effect of this act, no books, maps, charts or papers belonging to the state library, shall be removed from the capitol building, except to remove the same from the old capitol building to the new capitol building, when such build­ing shall have been prepared to receive the same.

Sec. 2. [Repealing clause.]-All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, so far as the same conflict with this act.

An Act providing for the employment and payment of assistant librarian and messengers.

SECTION 1. [Assistant librarians: salaries.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the state librarian be and is hereby authorized to employ to aid in the library one first assistant at a salary of six hundred dollars a year; one second assistant at a salary of five hundred dollars a year, and one messenger at a salary of three hundred dollars a year.

SEC. 2. [Date salaries begin: how paid.]—The salaries herein provided to commence on the 14th day of April, A. D. 1886, and to be paid monthly on warrants to be drawn by the auditor on the state treasury.

SEC. 3. [Repealing clause.]—That all acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. [Publication.]—This act being deemed of immediate importance, shall take effect from and after its publication in the Iowa State Register and the Des Moines Leader, published at the city of Des Moines, Iowa.

Approved April 12, 1886.

STATE LIBRARY.

An Act making an appropriation for the state library, and providing assistants for the librarian, and for the compensation of the librarian and assistants. (Amendatory of section 1899, of the code, and section 1, chapter 138, of acts of the nineteenth general assembly.)

SECTION 1. [$6,000 appropriated.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there be and hereby is appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of six thousand dollars, to be expended by the board of trustees of the library in the purchase of miscellaneous books to improve the character and supply omissions in the miscellaneous divisions of the library; said amount to be drawn when and in such sums as said board of trustees may order, and paid upon warrants issued by the auditor upon the treasurer.

SEC. 2. [$1,500 per annum for assistants and messenger.]—That the librarian be and is hereby authorized to employ the following aid and assistance and employees in the library, and at the compensation specified:

One first assistant at $500 per annum.
One second assistant at $500 per annum.
One messenger at $300 per annum.

And that to meet and pay said salaries, also to provide for extra help and assistance in re-arranging the library when the upper galleries are completed, there is hereby appropriated out of any money not otherwise appropriated the further sum of $1,500 per year for the next two years, to be drawn upon the order of the board of trustees of the library and paid upon warrants drawn by the auditor upon the treasurer.

SEC. 3. [Part of code, § 1899, repealed.]—That the provision in section 1899 of the code, allowing and appropriating $500 per annum for an assistant to the librarian be and the same is hereby repealed.

Title XII.

Section 1900. (As amended by ch. 71, 18th g. a.)—[Appropriation for.]—There is hereby annually appropriated, until the legislature shall, by law, otherwise direct, to the state historical society at Iowa City, in connection with and under the auspices of the state university, the sum of (ten) hundred dollars, to be expended by that society in collecting, embodying, arranging, and preserving in authentic form, a library of books, pamphlets, maps, charts, manuscripts, papers, paintings, statuary, and other materials illustrative of the state of the history of Iowa, to rescue from oblivion the memory of its early pioneers, to obtain and preserve varieties of their exploits, perils and hardy adventures; to secure facts and statements relative to the history, genius and progress or decay of our Indian tribes; to exhibit faithfully the antiquities, past and present resources of Iowa; also to aid in the publication of such of the collections of the society as the society shall from time to time deem of value and interest; to aid in binding its books, pamphlets, manuscripts and papers, and in paying other necessary and incidental expenses of the society.

Section 1901. [Board of curators: how appointed: annual meeting of.]—The board of curators of said society at Iowa City shall consist of eighteen persons, of whom nine shall be appointed by the governor of the state, and nine elected by the members of the society. The term of office of said curators shall be two years, except as provided in the next section, and they shall receive no compensation for their services. The curators appointed by the governor, shall be appointed on or before the last Wednesday in June in each even-numbered year, and their term of office shall commence on that day. And at the annual meeting of said historical society, held next before the last Wednesday in June in each odd-numbered year, there shall be elected by ballot from the members of the society nine curators for the term next ensuing.

Section 1902. [Members admitted.]—The members of said society may be admitted at any time under the rules now in force, or such other rules as may hereafter be adopted by the board of curators.

Section 1903. [Annual meeting: when and where held.]—The annual meeting of the society shall be held at Iowa City, on the Monday preceding the last Wednesday in June of each year.

Section 1904. [Officers: term and duties.]—The board of curators shall choose, annually, or oftener if need be, a corresponding secretary, recording secretary, a treasurer, and a librarian, who shall be selected from the members of the historical society outside of their own number, and shall hold office for one year, unless sooner removed by a vote of the board. Said officers shall be officers of the society as well as of the board of curators, and their respective duties shall be determined by said board. No officer of the society or of the board shall receive any compensation from the state appropriation to the society.
SEC. 1905. [President.]—The board of curators shall also choose from their own number a president, who shall be the executive head of the board, and shall hold his office for one year, and until his successor is elected.

SEC. 1906. (As amended by ch. 82, 22d g. a.) [Residence of curators.]—The curators, a majority of whom shall reside in the vicinity of the state university, and five of whom shall constitute a quorum, shall be the executive department of the society, and shall have full power to manage its affairs. They shall keep a full and correct account of all their doings, and of the receipt and expenditure of all funds collected or granted for the purpose of the society, and shall report the same to the governor on or before the fifteenth day of (August.) as required by law of other state institutions.

SEC. 1907. [Books delivered to.]—There shall be delivered to said society, twenty bound copies of the reports of the supreme court, and of all other books and documents published by the state, or at its order, for the purpose of effecting exchanges with similar societies in other states and countries, and for the preservation in its library, and the other purposes of the society.

An Act to provide a fund from which to pay for sheep or other domestic animals killed or injured by dogs.

Section 1. [Assessors to list dogs.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: If shall be the duty of every assessor of this state, at the time of listing the property of his district, to list each dog over three months of age in the name of the owner thereof, without affixing any value thereto. Any person keeping or harboring a dog or dogs shall be deemed the owner thereof within the meaning of this act.

Sec. 2. The board of supervisors of each county shall, at their September session each year, when levying other taxes, levy a tax of fifty cents on each male, and one dollar on each female dog listed by the assessor, which tax shall constitute a special fund, to be disposed of as provided for in this act.

Sec. 3. [Duty of auditor.]—It shall be the duty of each county auditor to provide suitable columns, properly headed, in the assessor’s book, to carry out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. [Duty of treasurer.]—The treasurer of each county, on receiving the tax books for the collection of other taxes, shall collect the taxes herein provided for as other taxes are collected, and keep the same as a separate fund, to be known as the domestic animal fund.

Sec. 5. (As amended by ch. 42, 22d g. a.) [Damages: how claimed.]—Any person damaged by the killing or injury of sheep, or any other domestic animal, by a dog or dogs, may present to the board of supervisors of the county in which such killing or injury occurred, a detailed account of such killing or injury, stating the amount of damage claimed therefor, and verified by affidavits, such claim to be filed with the county auditor at least ten days before some regular session of the board, and within (sixty) days from the time such killing or injury occurred. At the first regular session of the board of supervisors after such claim shall have been filed for ten days, as herein provided, the same may be established by proof before the board; and upon the hearing thereof, the claimant shall establish his claim for damages by (testimony satisfactory to said board.) It shall also be made to appear to the satisfaction of said board that such damage was not caused, in whole or in part, by a dog or dogs owned or controlled by the claimant, and that claimant does not know whose dog or dogs caused the damage, and that said damage was caused by dogs; or, in case the owner of such dog or dogs is known to the claimant, and that such owner has no property subject to execution, out of which the claim can be made.

[Board of supervisors to allow 75 per cent.]—The board shall hear and determine said claims in the order in which they are filed, unless good cause is shown for continuance, and shall allow the same or such portions thereof as they may deem just, and shall authorize the auditor to issue warrants for the same not to exceed seventy-five per cent of the amount allowed to be paid out of the domestic animal fund.

SEC. 6. [Treasurer to pay: when.]—The treasurer shall, between the first and tenth days of January and the first and tenth days of July of each year, pay the said warrants issued by the auditor as provided for by section five of this act, out of the domestic animal fund. If said fund is insufficient to pay said warrants in full, he shall pay on each pro rata. If after paying all warrants at either period above named, there shall remain more than two hundred and fifty dollars of said fund in the treasury, the board of supervisors shall order the excess to be transferred to the county fund.

TO PROVIDE FOR DISPOSING OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE LANDS.

An Act to provide for selling, leasing and patenting the lands belonging to the Iowa state agricultural college and farm. [Amends chapter 117 acts tenth general assembly, and repeals chapter 71 acts fifteenth general assembly.]

SECTION 1. [Trustees authorized to sell.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That the trustees of the Iowa state agricultural college and farm be, and they are, hereby authorized to sell the lands granted to the state of Iowa by an act of congress entitled, "An act donating public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts," approved July 2, 1862. Such sale shall be for cash, or upon a partial credit not exceeding ten years, at such appraised value as shall be fixed by said trustees. All deferred payments shall draw interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, payable annually in advance.

[Failure to pay interest for 60 days a forfeiture.]—Upon a failure to pay the annual interest or principal within 60 days after it becomes due and within 60 days after notice thereof in writing by mail or otherwise from the trustees or land agent of said college to the holder of the lease shall have been given, the purchaser shall forfeit all claim to said land and the improvements made thereon and all sums paid on said contract, unless in the opinion of the trustees an extension should be allowed.

SEC. 2. [Trustees may lease for ten years at eight per cent.]—Said trustees are also authorized to lease the said lands for a term not exceeding ten years at an annual rent equal to eight per cent per annum upon the appraised value of the tract, payable annually in advance, and the said lessee, his heirs or assigns, shall have the privilege of purchasing said tract of land at the expiration of the lease at the appraised value stated in the lease. The lessee failing to pay the annual interest upon said lease within sixty days after the same becomes due and within sixty days after notice thereof in writing by mail or otherwise from the trustees or land agent of said college to the holders of the lease shall have been given, shall forfeit his lease, together with the interest paid thereon and improvements made on said lands.

Sec. 3. [Trustees may cause purchase price to be reviewed.] — The said trustees are authorized at their option to cause to be reviewed the purchase price of the land so sold or leased, or which has been heretofore sold, or leased before the same comes due, upon such terms and conditions of payment as said trustees may deem for the best interest of the institution.

[May renew leases: subject to taxation.] — Said trustees may also renew leases as they expire, and when so renewed the leasehold estate shall be subject to taxation as provided in chapter 169 of the acts of the nineteenth general assembly entitled, “An act to provide for taxation of leasehold estates in agricultural college lands,” approved March 25, 1882.

Sec. 4. [All leases assignable.] — Leases heretofore issued by said trustees under the authority of former acts of the general assembly of this state and all renewals of such leases shall be deemed assignable and all transfers of such leases or renewals heretofore made shall be valid, and the owner, whether holding one or more than one such lease or renewal who has made the annual payments therein required shall be entitled to all the benefits of such contract or contracts, and shall have the privilege of purchasing the tract or tracts of land so held by him as provided in the lease and upon payment of the purchase money shall be entitled to a patent for the land described in said lease or leases.

Sec. 5. [Lands acquired by purchase subject to same conditions.] — The said trustees be and they are hereby authorized in like manner to sell or lease the lands belonging to the said Iowa agricultural college acquired by purchase with accumulated interest fund.

Sec. 6. [President and secretary to issue certificate to purchaser.] — Whenever a sale shall be made of any of said lands as hereinbefore provided, the president of the said agricultural college shall issue to the purchaser a certificate, countersigned by the secretary of said board, stating the fact of purchase, the name of the purchaser, description of land and the appraised value thereof. Upon payment of such purchase price to the treasurer of state, the purchaser, or his assigns, shall be entitled to a patent or patents for such tract or tracts of land. And upon presentation of such certificate to the secretary of state, with the receipt of the treasurer of state, showing full payment of the purchase money and stating the amount thereof, said secretary of state shall issue to the purchaser, or to his assignee, a patent or patents for the tract or tracts of land therein described, which patents shall be signed by the governor and secretary of state, as other patents or deeds for lands conveyed by the state, and shall vest in the purchaser all the right, title and interest of the state and of said college in and to the lands therein described.

Sec. 7. [Principal to be held by treasurer of state.] — The principal of all moneys collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid to and held by the treasurer of state, and shall be drawn out for the purpose of investment on the order of the board of trustees, only when required to complete a loan. The interest collected shall be paid to the treasurer of the college upon the order of the board of trustees.

Sec. 8. [Chapter 71, 15th g. a., repealed.] — Chapter 71 of the acts of the fifteenth general assembly entitled, “An act to regulate the leasing of the lands belonging to the Iowa state agricultural college,” approved March 19, 1874, and all acts and parts of acts conflicting with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Approved, March 27, 1884.
An Act for the appointment of a state veterinary surgeon and defining his duties.

SECTION 1. [Governor to appoint.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: The governor shall appoint a state veterinary surgeon, who shall hold his office for the term of three years, unless sooner removed by the governor; he shall be a graduate of some regular and established veterinary college, and shall be skilled in veterinary science; he shall be a member of the state board of health, which membership shall be in addition to that now provided by law. When actually engaged in the discharge of his official duties he shall receive from the state treasury as his compensation the sum of five dollars per day and his actual expenses, which shall be presented under oath and covered by written vouchers, before receiving the same.

SEC. 2. [Powers of.]—He shall have general supervision of all contagious and infectious diseases among domestic animals within or that may be in transit through the state, and he is empowered to establish quarantine against animals thus diseased or that have been exposed to others thus diseased, whether within or without the state, and may, with the concurrence of the state board of health, make rules and regulations such as he may deem necessary for the prevention against the spread, and for the suppression, of said disease or diseases, which rules and regulations, after the concurrence of the governor and executive council, shall be published and enforced, and in doing said things, or any of them, he shall have power to call on any one or more peace officers, whose duty it shall be to give him all assistance in their power.

SEC. 3. [Penalty for interfering with.]—Any person who willfully hinders, obstructs or resists said veterinary surgeon or his assistants, or any peace officer acting under him or them when engaged in the duties or exercising the powers herein conferred, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly.

SEC. 4. (As amended by ch. 52, 22d g. a.) [Annual report.]—Said veterinary surgeon shall [biennially] make a full and detailed report of all and singular his doings since his last report to the governor, including his compensation and expenses, and the report shall not exceed one hundred and fifty pages of printed matter.

SEC. 5. [Persons who may demand his service.]—Whenever the majority of any board of supervisors, city council, trustees of an incorporated town, or township trustees, whether in session or not, shall, in writing, notify the governor of the prevalence of, or probable danger from, any of said diseases, he shall notify the state veterinary surgeon, who shall at once repair to the place designated in said notice and take such action as the exigencies may demand, and the governor may, in case of emergency, appoint a substitute or assistants, with equal powers and compensation.

SEC. 6. [May order the destruction of stock.]—Whenever in the opinion of the state veterinary surgeon the public safety demands the destruction of any stock under the provisions of this act he shall, unless the owner or owners consent to such destruction, notify the governor, who may appoint two competent veterinary surgeons as advisors, and no stock shall be destroyed except upon the written order of the state veterinary surgeon countersigned by them and approved by the governor, and the owners of all stock destroyed under the provisions of this act except as hereinafter provided shall be entitled to receive a reasonable compensation therefor, but not more than its actual value in its condition when condemned, which shall be ascertained and fixed by the state veterinary surgeon and the nearest justice of the peace, who, if unable to agree shall jointly select another justice of the peace as umpire, and their judgment shall be final when the value of the stock does not exceed one hundred dollars, but in all other cases either party shall have the right of appeal to the circuit court, but such appeal shall not delay the destruction of the deceased animals. The state veterinary surgeon shall, as soon thereafter as may be, file his written report thereof with the governor, who shall, if found correct, endorse his finding thereon, whereupon the auditor of state shall issue his warrant therefor upon the treasurer of state, who shall pay the same out of any moneys at his disposal under the provisions of this act; provided, that no compensation shall be allowed for any stock destroyed while in transit through or across this state, and that the word stock, as herein used, shall be held to include only neat cattle and horses.

Sec. 7. [May co-operate with government of the United States.]—The governor of the state with the state veterinary surgeon, may co-operate with the government of the United States for the objects of this act and the governor is hereby authorized to receive and receipt for any moneys receivable by this state under the provisions of any act of congress which may at any time be in force upon this subject, and to pay the same into the state treasury, to be used according to the act of congress and the provisions of this act, as nearly as may be.

Sec. 8. [$100,000 appropriated.]—There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated the sum of ten thousand dollars for use in 1884 and 1885, and three thousand dollars annually thereafter, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the uses and purposes herein set forth.

Sec. 9. [Compensation to others when called to act.]—Any person, except a veterinary surgeon, called upon under the provisions of this act, shall be allowed and receive two dollars per day while actually employed.

Approved April 14, 1884.

PRIVATE LAW.

TITLE XIII.

OF RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

CHAPTER 1.

OF RIGHTS OF ALIENS.

This chapter of the code was repealed by the following act of the twentieth general assembly:

RESTRICTING NON-RESIDENT ALIENS TO HOLD REAL ESTATE.

An Act restricting non-resident aliens in their right to acquire and hold real estate and replacing sections 1908 and 1909 of the code.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Non-resident aliens or corporations incorporated under the laws of any foreign country, or corporations organized in this country, one-half of whose stock is owned or controlled by non-resident aliens, are hereby prohibited from acquiring title to or taking or holding any lands or real estate in this state by descent, devise, purchase or otherwise only as hereinafter provided, except that the widow and heirs of aliens who have heretofore acquired lands in this state under the laws thereof, may hold such lands by devise or descent for a period of ten years and no longer, and if at the end of such time herein limited such lands so acquired have not been sold to a bona fide purchaser for value or such alien heirs have not become residents of this state, such lands shall revert and escheat of the state of Iowa, and it shall be the duty of the county attorney in the counties where such lands are situated to enforce forfeitures of all such lands as provided by this act.

SEC. 2. Any non-resident alien may acquire and hold real property to the extent of three hundred and twenty (320) acres, or city property to the amount of $10,000 in value, providing that within five years from the date of purchase of said property the same is placed in the actual possession of a relative of such purchaser, the occupant being related to such owner within the third degree of kindred, or the husband or wife of such relative, and further provided, that such occupant become a naturalized citizen within ten years from the purchase of said property as aforesaid.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the county attorney of the county in which such lands are situated to proceed by information in the name of the state of Iowa, against such alien in the district court of the county, and summons may issue or service to be had upon such alien by publication as provided by statute for equitable proceeding, and the court shall have power to hear and determine such information and declare such lands escheated to the state, and when such forfeiture is declared by the district court it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to notify the governor of the state that the title to such lands is vested in the state by the decree of the said court, and the clerk of the court shall present the auditor of state with the bill of costs incurred by the county in prosecuting such case, and the auditor shall issue a warrant to the clerk of the court on the state treasury to repay the county for such costs incurred, and the lands shall be sold in the manner provided for the sale of school lands in chapter 12, title 12 of the code, and the proceeds of such sale shall become a part of the permanent school fund of the state.

Sec. 4. [Limitation of time for bringing suit.]—No suit for the recovery of property after the execution and recording of the patent or conveyance by the state shall lie, unless said suit shall have been commenced within five years after the title to such property became vested in the grantee of the state, and all persons who fail to bring their suits within the time limited are forever barred, saving, however, to infants and persons of unsound mind, the right to bring suit at any time within five years after disabilities cease or have been removed; providing, however, that the grantee of the state, immediate or remote, shall have the right to demand such restitution for improvements as provided by chapter 7, title 13, of the code of Iowa.

Sec. 5. [Sale of lands by non-resident aliens.]—Any non-resident alien who owns land in this state at the time this act takes effect may dispose of the same during his life to bona fide purchasers for value and may take security for the purchase money with the same rights as to securities as a citizen of the United States.

Sec. 6. [Holders of liens.]—This act shall not prevent the holders of liens upon or interest in real estate heretofore or hereafter acquired from holding or taking a valid title to the real estate in which he has such interest, or upon which he has such lien, nor shall it prevent any alien from enforcing any lien or judgment for any debt or liability which may hereafter be created, or which he may hereafter acquire, or which may hereafter be adjudged in his favor, or from becoming a purchaser at any sale by virtue of such lien or judgment, provided, however, that all lands so acquired shall be sold within ten years after the title shall be perfected in him under such sales, or in default thereof the same shall revert and escheat to the state as provided in this act.

Sec. 7. [Law does not apply to resident aliens.]—This act shall not apply to aliens who are residents of the state of Iowa, who shall have the same right to acquire, hold and dispose of property as natural born citizens of the United States.

Sec. 8. [Sections 1908 and 1909 of code repealed.]—Sections 1908 and 1909, chapter 1, title 13 of the code are hereby repealed, and all acts or parts of the acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved April 9, 1888.

Under the act of March 15th, 1858 (revision, §§ 2488-2493), non-resident aliens could take property by will upon the condition that the devisee should, subsequently to the making of the bequest, become a resident of the state, but could not take property by descent. Krogan v. Kinney, 15 Iowa, 242; Rheim et al. v. Robbins, 20 Id., 45.

In Percell v. Smidt, 21 Id., 540, the court was equally divided as to the proper construction of

In Brown v. Pearson et al., 41 Id., it was held that under the provisions of the revision a non-resident alien had not the capacity to inherit real property. The law of the code is essentially different from that of the revision.

CHAPTER 2.

OF TITLE IN THE STATE OR COUNTY.

SECTION 1910. [When vested in state or county valid.]—Whenever, to secure the state or any county therein from loss, it shall become necessary to take real estate on account of a debt, either by bidding off the same at a sale on execution, or otherwise, the conveyance thereof to the state, or to any county, shall vest in such grantee as complete a title as if such grantee were an actual person.

SECTION 1911. [May purchase when sold on execution.]—The proper person to bid off such real estate shall be:

First—The attorney-general, or the proper district attorney, in case the judgment is in the name of the state, and the proceeds thereof are payable into the state treasury;

Second—in case the proceeds of the judgment are, by law, payable into the county treasury for the use of the county revenue, or the school or other fund of the county, the district attorney of the district, or the president of the board of supervisors of the county, or any attorney employed or authorized by the board of supervisors to prosecute such claim.

SECTION 1912. [To be appraised: amount of bid.]—In all cases where property is sold as above provided, it shall first be appraised in the manner provided by law for the appraisement of property levied on under execution, and the said officers shall bid upon and purchase said property for the lowest sum possible. If no other person shall bid therefor, they shall bid at least two-thirds of the appraised value thereof, or the full amount of the judgment and costs, if the same is less than two-thirds of such appraised value.

SECTION 1913. [Costs and expenses paid by state or county.]—In cases where the state becomes the purchaser of real estate, under execution issued upon judgments rendered in favor of the state, all costs and expenses attending the same shall be audited and allowed by the executive council, and paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, whenever such costs and expenses cannot be collected out of the defendant in such judgments, and if the property is purchased by a county, the costs and expenses in like cases shall be paid by such county.

SECTION 1914. [Lands may be leased.]—Whenever the state or any county holds any such lands undisposed of, it may, by its proper agent, lease and control the use of the same, as shall, in the opinion of the executive council, if belonging to the state, and the board of supervisors, if belonging to the county, be for the best interest of such owner; and the proceeds of such use shall belong to the fund to which the debt on which the land was taken belongs.

SECTION 1915. [Buildings insured.]—The officers invested with the control and management thereof, shall have full power, and shall keep any valuable buildings thereon insured against fire, for the benefit of the state or county, in some responsible insurance company or companies; and the expense of such insurance shall be paid out of the rents of such property or the proceeds thereof when sold.
Sec. 1916. [When title invested in state: executive council to control.]—In any case where the title to any real estate is vested in the state as above provided, the executive council shall have the care, custody, and management thereof, and may sell the same for such sum and upon such terms as to them seems best, and may take such adequate security for any deferred payments as they see proper; and the proceeds of such sale shall be paid to the proper officer and credited to the fund to which the debt on which such real estate was taken belonged. A patent shall be issued to the purchaser of such real estate.

Sec. 1917. [When in county: supervisors to control.]—In cases where the title to any real estate is vested in the county as above provided, it shall be competent for the board of supervisors to sell and dispose thereof, as in their judgment shall be for the best interest of their county; if the same is sold on time for any part of the purchase money, the board shall require adequate security for the payment thereof besides the responsibility of the purchaser; and the proceeds of sales of all such lands shall belong to the fund to which the debt on which the land was taken belonged.

Sec. 1918. [How conveyed by supervisors.]—In case of any such sale and conveyance by such board of supervisors, the resolution making the sale shall be entered on the minutes of the board, and the yeas and nays on the passage thereof shall be there entered with the date; such resolution shall express the consideration paid for such land, and such description thereof as shall be necessary to make a deed thereof; and a transcript of such proceeding relating to said sales, the resolution and yeas and nays on its passage made and certified under the hand of the county auditor and the seal of the said board, shall be a sufficient deed of conveyance by said county, and shall be entitled to be recorded or received in evidence without further proof.

Sec. 1919. [Contract of sale and securities taken valid.]—The state, or county, on selling such lands, may, at the option of the officer making such sale, execute a contract of sale, or an absolute conveyance thereof, and may take notes, mortgages, contracts or other securities, payable to the grantor, which shall be as valid as if made to an actual person.

CHAPTER 3.
PERPETUITIES AND LAND IN MORTMAIN.

Section 1920. [Disposition of property: when void.]—Every disposition of property is void, which suspends the absolute power of controlling the same for a longer period than during the lives of persons then in being and for twenty-one years thereafter.

The lease of a railroad for 999 years, with an annual rent reserved from the gross earnings, which does not preclude the lessor from disposing of the fee title, nor prevent the lessee from selling or assigning the lease, nor prohibit the lessor and lessee, by uniting therein, from conveying both the fee and the leasehold estate, is not within the provisions of this section prohibiting perpetuities. Todhunter & Williamson v. The D. M., I., & M. R. Co., 58 Iowa, 205.

Sec. 1921. [Church organizations may lease: may be leased.]—Church organizations occupying property granted to them by the territory or the state of Iowa, may lease the same for business purposes, and occupy other property with their church edifice; provided, that all of the income derived from such leased property shall be devoted to maintaining the religious exercises and ordinances of the church to which the grant was originally made, and to no other purpose; and such church and its affairs shall remain in the control of a board of trustees, regularly

OF THE TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Section 1922. [Conditional sales: when invalid.]—No sale, contract or lease, wherein the transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend upon any condition, shall be valid against any creditor or purchaser of the vendee, or lessee in actual possession obtained in pursuance thereof, without notice unless the same be in writing, executed by the vendor or lessor, acknowledged and recorded the same as chattel mortgages.

A contract for a sale of a watch by the terms of which the vendee was to carry it thirty days, after which the sale should be consummated if the watch proved satisfactory; held, that the transaction was not a conditional sale, coming within the provisions of this section, and that until the thirty days expired the watch was not subject to seizure in the hands of the party intending to purchase on an execution against him. Knowlton v. Redenbaugh, Id., 114; Moseley & Bro. v. Shattuck, 43 Id., 540.

The possession of personal property is not conclusive evidence of ownership, nor does a change of possession estop the party who has surrendered it from asserting his title in the article surrendered. Moseley & Bro. v. Shattuck, supra.

Where there is a conditional sale of personal property, the title does not pass until the price is paid. Id.

The simple noting of personal property on a writ, or the taking of an inventory, where there is no removal of the property and no person is placed in charge thereof by the officer, does not constitute a valid levy as against one who claims never to have parted with the title to the judgment debtor. Techmeyer v. Waltz, 49 Id., 645.

Where goods were received by defendants under a contract with plaintiffs containing the following provision: "We agree to settle for all goods herewith and subsequently ordered, upon receipt of invoice and bill of lading, by forwarding our note or notes or acceptances, payable with exchange on New York or Chicago," held, that the title ownership and right of possession shall be and remain in J. J. Budlong & Co. until settled for as provided in this contract," that there was no sale, conditional or otherwise, of the goods, until settled for as provided in the contract, and that a mortgage of the goods by defendants before settlement conferred no rights upon the mortgagees which they could assert against plaintiffs. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Holcomb, 40 Id., 33, distinguished. Budlong v. Cottrell et al., 64 Id., 331.

Before the enactment of the statute as embodied in this section, a conditional sale of personal property, without writing, was valid, not only between the parties, but as to all the world, because the title did not pass to the vendee until the price was paid. Warner v. Jameson, et al., 52 Id., 70; Bailey v. Harris, 8 Id., 331; Baker v. Hall, 15 Id., 277; Moseley & Bro. v. Shattuck, 43 Id., 540.

But under this section, where personal property is sold, and possession given under an agreement that the title shall remain in the vendor until payment of the purchase money, the contract must be in writing, executed by the vendor, acknowledged and recorded, to be valid against a purchaser or creditor. The Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Holcomb, 40 Id., 33.

Where personal property was sold, and possession given to the purchaser under an agreement that the title should remain in the seller until payment of the purchase money, it was held, the assignment of a mortgage to the purchaser, who took possession of the property with full knowledge of the agreement, held it subject thereto, although the contract of sale was not recorded. Warner v. Jameson et al., 52 Id., 70.

A bill of sale executed and recorded by the seller two months after the actual sale and delivery of possession of the property described therein, was held not to impart constructive notice to a purchaser from the person having the possession, of the conditions upon which the sale was made. Park v. Weston, Id., 675.

Where the sale and delivery of personal property is made with an agreement by the purchaser to give security for the purchase money, or to do some act as a part of the transaction, such sale is conditional; and the title to the property does not pass until the thing so agreed upon is done by the purchaser, or is waived by the vendor. Thorpe Bros. & Co. v. Fowler et al., 57 Id., 541.

Where one had possession of personal property under a conditional sale to him, whereby the title remained in the vendor until payment was made, and the contract under which he held was not recorded, the mortgagee, against whom the property was sold to a third party, who had no actual notice of the condition of the title, the title of the mortgagee was held superior to that of the vendor. The Moline P. Co v. Braden, 71 Id., 141.

So long as an article sold upon condition, and shipped to the vendee by rail, is in the hands of the carrier, subject to his charges for freight, and to the vendor's right of stoppage in transitu, it cannot be said to be in the "actual possession" of the vendee, as those words are used in this section of the code, and in such case, a third person who buys the article from the vendee, and obtains possession of it from the carrier, takes it subject to the condition on which it was first sold, even though the conditional sale was not made matter of record as provided in this section. Warner v. Johnson & Halakeman, 65 Id., 123.

SEC. 2193. [Mortgages of must be recorded.]—No sale or mortgage of personal property, where the vendor or mortgagor retains actual possession thereof, is valid against existing creditors or subsequent purchasers, without notice, unless a written instrument conveying the same is executed, acknowledged like conveyances of real estate, and filed for record with the recorder of the county where the holder of the property resides.

The right of a pledgee will prevail over the lien of an execution levied upon the property pledged by an officer with notice of the contract pledging the same. Reeves & Co. v. Sebern, 18 Iowa, 234.

The fact that a bill of sale was acknowledged long after its date, is not alone sufficient to raise the presumption that it was antedated. Herns v. Hillhouse, 17 Id., 67.

When personal property at the time of the sale thereof was in possession of a lessee, and remained therein after the sale, it was held, that the vendor did not retain the actual possession thereof, within the meaning of this section. Id.

An attachment creditor cannot acquire, through his attachment, a higher or better right to the property or assets attached than the defendant had when the attachment was levied, unless he can show some fraud or collusion by which his rights have been impaired. Id.

When the execution defendants have, in the absence of any fraud, sold their interest in the property before seizure thereof under process, the purchaser's rights under such sale are paramount to those under the process, notwithstanding it is not shown that the execution plaintiff, or the officer serving the process, had no notice of such sale prior to the seizure of the property. Id.

A gift made in good faith by a father to his child, while he is solvent, if the possession of the property be taken by the child, and it is held as exclusively hers and under her sole and exclusive control, will not become liable to the father's debts subsequently contracted, by the simple fact that it was in his house with his other furniture. Section 2201 of the revision (§ 1923 of the code) has no application to this class of cases. Pierson v. Hersey, 19 Id., 114.

Fixtures so attached to the realty as to become a part thereof between vendor and vendee, pass to the vendee free of the lien of a prior mortgage of the same as personal property, of which the vendee had no notice. A purchaser, in searching the title to real property, is not required to examine the record of chattel mortgages for incumbrances. Bringolf v. Munzenmaier, 20 Id., 513.

A mortgage of personal property, duly executed, though not recorded, and though the mortgagor retains possession of the property, is valid against existing creditors, with notice of the mortgage. Thorpe Bros. & Co. v. Fowler et al., 57 Id., 541. Where notice, "without notice," contained in the statute, apply to creditors as well as to purchasers. Allen v. McCalla, 25 Id., 484.

The notice contemplated by the statute is either actual or constructive. Id.

Notice is actual where the purchaser either knows of the existence of the adverse claim, or is conscious of having the means of knowledge, and does not use them, whether his knowledge is the result of a direct communication, or is gathered from facts and circumstances. And where a person designedly abstains from making inquiry for the purpose of avoiding knowledge he will not be regarded as a bona fide purchaser without notice, but as charged with the knowledge which his inquiries would have developed. Id.

An attaching creditor, who has notice that a mortgage exists, to some one, on the property upon which the levy is made, cannot defeat it by showing that at the time of the levy he believed that the mortgage was being withheld from record in order to delay and defraud creditors. Id.

Notice to the attorney is notice to the client. Whether the notice to the attorney must be in the course of the transaction in which he is acting for his client, not decided. Id.

This section does not apply to the transfer or sale of a chose in action, as an interest in promissory notes not in possession of the assignor. How & Co. v. Jones, 57 Id., 139.
TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY. [Title XIII]

A mortgagee of chattels takes the title thereto unaffected by any lien of the vendor for the purchase money of which he has no notice, unless such lien was evidenced by writing, acknowledged and recorded as required by the statute. Manny & Co. v. Woods et al., 33 Id., 265.

A mortgagee of personal property is a purchaser within the meaning of the recording law. Id.

Where the title to personal property has once passed to the vendee absolutely, it cannot be so qualified by an unrecorded writing as to affect the right or title of a purchaser without notice from the vendee. Id.

The terms "existing creditors," in section 1923 of the code, are not limited to those who were creditors when the sale was made; they apply equally to those who became such before possession is changed, the bill of sale recorded, or notice given. Fox v. Edwards, 33 Id., 215.

The recording of a bill of sale or other instrument having an acknowledgment, defective, in not showing the county of the notary taking the same, does not impart constructive notice. Willard v. Cramer, 36 Id., 22.

A sale of personal property is of no validity against a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer without notice, where the possession is retained by the vendor. Hesser & Hale v. Wilson, 39 Id., 152.

A manufactured a buggy for and on the order of B, furnishing the material therefor, except the top, which was furnished by B. B had paid A the price agreed upon. Under these circumstances, and while the buggy was yet in the possession of A, he executed a mortgage thereon to a creditor without notice of B's rights. Held, that the mortgagee's rights were not affected thereby. Id.

In an action to recover personal property claimed under an alleged sale, it was held proper to instruct the jury that if there was no change of possession of the property, and no record of the sale, it was invalid against existing creditors without notice. Boothby & Co. v. Brown, 40 Id., 104.

The sale of personal property without notice to creditors of the vendor, will not defeat the levy of an attachment. Id.

Possession is a fact which may be established by proof. It is competent to ask a witness who was in possession of property which is the subject of controversy. Id.

Where cattle, purchased while running at large, were separated from the other cattle of the vendor at the time of the sale, but were afterward allowed to run with them as before, under the charge of a son of the vendor, held, that there was not such a change of actual possession as to constitute a valid sale, under section 1923 of the code, as against a subsequent mortgagee without notice. Sutton v. Ballou et al., 46 Id., 517.

Under such circumstances it was held not error to instruct the jury that, if there was an actual delivery of the cattle to the purchaser, he must have continued his possession to the time of the execution of the subsequent mortgage by the vendor, to render such mortgage invalid. Id.

An unrecorded chattel mortgage is not valid as against a mortgage subsequently executed, entered and filed of record. Pitkin & Brooks v. Fletcher & Davis, 47 Id., 53.

Where C, having a quantity of grain, sold it to E, receiving part payment therefor, and agreeing for future delivery, he subsequently stated to W, that he had made a sale, and agreed with W, that he should deliver it, it was held, that this did not constitute a valid sale of the grain as against an existing creditor of C without notice. McKay v. Clapp et al., 47 Id., 418.

The provisions of section 1923 of the code do not apply to a case where personal property sold is not at the time of the sale, in the actual possession of the vendor, but in that of a third person who retains it after the sale, the same as before. Case & Co. v. Burrows et al., 54 Id., 679.

In an action of replevin by the assignees of a lease to recover the landlord's share of the crop, which had been levied upon under an execution against the landlord, it was held that evidence of notice to the defendant and the officer who made the levy, of the assignment of the leases before the levy, was material and should have been admitted in evidence. Lufkin & Wilson v. Preston, 52 Id., 295.

Where standing corn was levied on, under an execution against the owner of the land, who raised the corn, it was held that the levy was good against a prior purchaser, there having been no visible change of possession under the sale, and no written instrument of sale recorded, and the officer making the levy not having actual notice thereof. Nuckolls v. Pence, Id., 581.

Where a person sells a field of corn standing on his farm, and the vendee does not commence to harvest it, nor otherwise to visibly take charge of the corn, or control of the field in which it stands, the actual possession is not changed, within the meaning of the statute, providing that "no sale of personal property, where the vendor retains actual possession, is valid against existing creditors or purchasers without notice," unless the instrument evincing the sale be recorded. Smith v. Champney, 50 Id., 174.

A bill of sale or mortgage of personal property, duly acknowledged and recorded, is notice to the same extent that conveyances of real property similarly acknowledged and recorded are.
The transfer of personal property.

CHAP. 4.

Miller v. Bryan, 3 Id., 58; Crawford v. Burton, 6 Id., 476; McCarvan v. Haupt, 9 Id., 83; J. & I. Kuhn v. Graves, 1d., 393.

The rule that a delivery of goods purchased, to a common carrier, by whom they are to be delivered to the vendee, amounts to a constructive delivery of the goods to the latter, does not apply, unless there is an actual purchase of the goods shipped or delivered to the carrier. Albury, Jordan & Co. v. Lotta et al., 30 Id., 422.

A chattel mortgage under which the mortgagor retains the possession and power to dispose of the property is not fraudulent in law. Torbert v. Hauden, 11 Id., 435; Kuhn v. Graves, 9 Id., 489; Wilhelm v. Leonard, 13 Id., 330; Frame v. Jones, Id., 474.

The recording of a chattel mortgage is not essential when the possession of the mortgaged property passes to the mortgagee at the time of the execution of the mortgage. Frame v. Jones, 13 Id., 474.

The provisions of section 1923 of the code do not apply to a case where personal property sold is not, at the time of the sale, in the actual possession of the vendor, but in that of a third person who retains it after the sale, the same as before. Case & Co. v. Burrows et al., 54 Id., 679.

The fact that the sale of personal property is evidenced by a bill of sale duly acknowledged and recorded, will not preclude an officer seizing the property under process sued out by creditors of the vendor, from attacking the sale as fraudulent in fact. Singer et al. v. Sheldon, 56 Id., 354.

The sale of personal property without a transfer of possession is void, as to creditors without notice, where no written instrument evidencing the same is executed and recorded. The absence of acts of control or ownership is not evidence that actual possession is transferred to the purchaser. Hictok v. Buel et al., 51 Id., 655.

This section does not apply to the transfer or sale of a choice in action, as an interest in promissory notes not in possession of the assignor. Howe & Co. v. Jones, 57 Id., 130.

The fact that property sold by bill of sale, which is recorded, is allowed to remain in the possession of the vendor, and be used by him, is not evidence of fraud in the sale, being expressly authorized and provided for by this section. Jordan v. Lendrum et al., 35 Id., 478.

A mortgage of all the property of the mortgagee to secure the payment of the debts of one creditor, if made in good faith, is not fraudulent even if the mortgagor is insolvent; neither is the mortgage void as an assignment for the benefit of a preferred creditor. Id.

Retention of possession by the mortgagor of personal property does not render the transaction fraudulent under our statute, where the mortgage is duly acknowledged and recorded. Smith & Co. v. McLean, 24 Id., 322.

The constructive notice imparted by the recording of a chattel mortgage is not confined to the county or state where the mortgage was executed and the property then was, but extends to wherever the property may be removed. Id., and cases cited.

A sale of personal property where the vendor continues in the actual possession thereof, is invalid as against existing creditors, unless the instrument conveying the same be duly executed, acknowledged and filed for record. Prathes et al. v. Parker, 34 Id., 26. See, also, Miller v. Bryan, 3 Id., 68; McCarvan v. Haupt, 9 Id., 83; Crawford v. Burton, 6 Id., 476; Cartright v. Leonard, 11 Id., 39; Day v. Griffith, 15 Id., 101.

It was held under the code of 1851 that a chattel mortgage upon machinery which afterward becomes, with the knowledge and consent of the mortgagee, attached to the realty by being placed as fixtures on a mill, will not be affected by the lien of a mechanic having notice of the facts, for work done in the mill; and no person chargeable with such notice can, by purchase of the estate or otherwise, acquire, from or through the mortgagee, any title to such fixtures paramount to that of the mortgagee. Sowden & Co. v. Craig, 30 Id., 442.

A mortgage of personal property may be made to cover future acquisitions and the rights of the mortgagee therein will be enforced against all persons having notice. Scarfenburg v. Bishop, 35 Id., 60; Brown v. Allen, 1d., 306, 310, and cases cited.

As to the description of the property in a chattel mortgage, it should be so explicit as to enable third persons, aided by the inquiries which the instrument itself suggests, to identify the property covered thereby, and a mortgage mis-describing property will not affect the purchase of the same by a third person by imparting notice to him of the incumbrance. Smith v. McLean, 24 Id., 322; Jones v. Hines, 45 Id., 13; Winter v. Lanthemere, 42 Id., 471. See, also, Rowley v. Bartholomew, 37 Id., 374.

Where a bill of sale contained in the same instrument with a lease provided that the vendor was to have a lien on the property for the faithful performance of the obligations given for the chattels sold, and for the rent, it was held that the agreement should be construed as a mortgage and its lien sustained in favor of an assignee. Whiting v. Eichelberger, 16 Id., 422.

Where the mortgagor of chattels retains possession thereof, the mortgagee, in order to be notice to third persons, and take precedence of a subsequent attachment, must be filed for record in the county in which the holder of the property resides. Filing for record in the county where the property is situated is not sufficient. But when the attending officer finds the property in the possession of the agent of the mortgagee, he is bound to take notice of this right of possession, regardless of the filing of the mortgage. Stewart & Brown v. Smith, 60 Id., 375; Bacon & Co. v. Thompson, Id., 284. The words "without notice" in this section, apply to "existing creditors" as well as to "subsequent purchasers," and therefore, attachments levied upon personal property after the execution of a mortgage thereon, but before the same is filed for record, by creditors who have no actual notice of the mortgage, create a valid lien superior to the mortgage. Bacon & Co. v. Thompson et al. Following Boothby v. Brown, 40 Id., 104, and Hickok v. Bush, 51 Id., 655, and overruling Kessey v. McHenry, 54 Id., 187.

A sale of personal property which, at the time of the sale, is in the actual possession of a third person, is valid as against the creditors of the vendor, without any change of possession, and without notice, actual or constructive, of the sale; this section of the code has no application to such case. Campbell v. Hamilton, 63 Id., 293.

A sale of personal property accompanied with delivery and possession, may be valid without the general public having any knowledge upon the subject, and without the sale being evidenced by written acknowledged and recorded instrument. All that the statute requires is that there shall be such a change of possession as shall give to parties dealing with the seller or buyer notice of the transaction. Accordingly, where one in good faith purchases chattels and takes possession thereof, he may afterwards loan or hire them to the seller without making them subject to attachment for the seller's debts. Deere & Co. v. Needles et al., 65 Id., 101.

For a case deciding upon the facts shown as to change the possession of personal property as against creditors, without notice, in the absence of a written conveyance, see Pope et al. v. Cheeny et al., 68 Id., 563.

The mortgagees of chattels, where the mortgage is invalid, and there has been no change of possession, cannot claim anything as against an execution creditor of the mortgagor, on the ground that the mortgagor's possession was that of an agent for the mortgagees under a contract between them. And in such case actual notice of the invalid mortgage is of no consequence. Barr, Sheriff, v. Cannon & Ginn, 69 Id., 20.

A description of property in a chattel mortgage, as follows: "All the grain, oats, wheat, flax and corn raised," on certain land, without stating the year when it was raised or to be raised, held insufficient to impart notice to execution creditors of the mortgagor.

Sec. 1924. [Recorder to keep entry book or index.]—The recorder must keep an entry book or index for instruments of the above description, having the pages thereof ruled, so as to show in parallel columns, in the manner hereinafter provided in case of deeds for real property:
1. The mortgagors or vendors;
2. The mortgagees or vendees;
3. The date of the filing of the instrument;
4. The date of the instrument itself;
5. Its nature;
6. The page and book where the record is to be found.

Sec. 1925. [To make note of day and hour of filing, etc.]—Whenever any written instrument of the character above contemplated is filed for record as afore-said, the recorder shall note thereon the day and hour of filing the same, and forthwith enter in his entry book all the particulars required in the preceding section, except the sixth; and from the time of said entry, the sale or mortgage shall be deemed complete as to third persons, and have the same effect as though it had been accompanied by the actual delivery of the property sold or mortgaged.

The husband's possession of the personal property of the wife does not deprive her of the right to mortgage the property, and the record of the mortgage, by section 1925, is notice to the world of the rights of the mortgagee and mortgagor therein. Root et al. v. Schaffner, 39 Iowa, 516.

The fact that property sold by bill of sale, which is recorded, is allowed to remain in the possession of the vendor, and be used by him, is not evidence of fraud in the sale, being expressly authorized and provided for by this section. Jordan v. Lendrum et al., 35 Id., 478.

Sec. 1926. [Must record.]—The recorder shall, as soon as practicable, record such instrument, and enter in his entry book, in its proper place, the page and book where the record may be found.

Sec. 1927. [Possession of mortgaged property.]—In the absence of stipulations to the contrary in the mortgage, the mortgagee of personal property mortgaged when the instrument is recorded, is neither per se fraudulent, or a badge of fraud in
It may be a circumstance, with others, to prove fraud in fact. Hughes v. Corey, 20 Iowa, 399.

The mortgagor of chattels has an equity of redemption therein, even after the conditions of the mortgage have been broken, and a mortgagee who has taken possession of the property after such breach is liable to garnishment at the suit of a creditor of the mortgagor for any surplus remaining after the satisfaction of the mortgage. Doane & Co. v. Garretson, 24 Id., 351.

But a mortgagor of personal property has no interest therein which can be levied on and sold on execution. Gordon v. Harlin, 33 Id., 550.

The proper method of reaching mortgaged chattels is by garnishment of the mortgagee. Thorbet v. Hayden, 11 Id., 444; Campbell v. Leonard, Id., 489.

A mortgagor of exempt personal property is not for all purposes divested of his title thereto, and he can maintain an action for damages upon an indemnifying bond, where such property in his possession has been wrongfully seized and sold upon execution; but lest the defendants should be subjected to a double liability, the mortgagee should be joined with the mortgagor as plaintiff. Evans v. The St. Paul Harvester Works, 63 Id., 204.

The fact that specific personal property sought to be recovered from attaching creditors by an assignee of the debtor, is under mortgage by the debtor—the mortgage antedating both the assignment and the attachments—will not necessarily defeat a recovery, because, (1) in the absence of a showing to the contrary, the mortgage may provide for a right of possession by the mortgagee, which right the assignee would pass to the assignee; and (2) even if that is not the case, the mortgagee (and his assignee under him) is entitled as against all the world, except the mortgagees, to the possession of the property, and the right of possession is the essence of the action. Goldsmith, Assignee, v. Willson et al., 67 Id., 662.

Section 1928. [Who seized.]—All persons owning lands not held by an adverse possession, shall be deemed to be seized and possessed of the same.

Under our statute “all persons owning lands not held by an adverse possession shall be deemed to be seized and possessed of the same.” Fleming v. Maddox, 30 Iowa, 239, 241.

This presumption of seizure continues until the owner is disseized. Barrett v. Love, 48 Id.

Sec. 1929. [Estate in fee simple.—The term “heirs,” or other technical words of inheritance, are not necessary to create and convey an estate in fee simple. “Under the statute the word ‘heirs’ or other technical words of inheritance are not necessary to create and convey an estate.” The grantee takes the title of his grantor, although no such words are used in the conveyance to the grantor. Barlow v. C., R. I. & P. R'y Co., 29 Iowa, 276, 280; Frederick v. Callanan, 40 Id., 311; Benkert v. Jacoby, 36 Id., 273.

Sec. 1930. [Conveyance passes interest of grantor.—Every conveyance of real estate passes all the interest of the grantor therein, unless a contrary intent can be reasonably inferred from the terms used.

A deed in which the wife joins the husband in the granting clause and in the covenants, operates under our statutes (code §§ 1930, 1935,) to pass all the estate of the wife in the property conveyed, including her right of dower. Edwards v. Sullivan, 20 Iowa, 502.

Where a person erects improvements on real estate under a parol contract for its purchase, he thereby acquires an interest in the land to the extent of such improvements, and this interest may, under our statute, be conveyed or mortgaged. White v. Butt, 32 Id., 335.

A right of redemption is an interest in lands that will pass by a conveyance. Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47, 58. And see Frederick v. Callanan, 40 Id., 311, 313.

Sec. 1931. [After acquired interest.—Where a deed purports to convey a greater interest than the grantor was at the time possessed of, any after acquired interest of such grantor, to the extent of that which the deed purports to convey, inures to the benefit of the grantee.

A grantor conveying an estate in fee in real property, or with covenants of warranty, is thereby estopped from setting up against his grantee a title acquired by him subsequently to his conveyance. Childs v. McChesney, 29 Iowa, 431.

But the joinder of the wife with the husband in the conveyance with his real property, by a deed with general covenants of warranty, does not estop her from subsequently acquiring with her own means, a title to the same property, and asserting the same against her grantee. Id.; O’Niel v. Vanderburg, 23 Id., 184.

Whether she would be thus estopped in case of a conveyance of her own land, query. Id.

Where a deed purports to convey a greater interest than the grantor was at the time possessed of, any after acquired interest of the grantor to the extent of that which his deed purports to convey, inures to the benefit of the grantee. Van Orman v. McGregor, 23 Id., 300.

This rule is subject to an exception, where the grantor executes to his grantee a mortgage to secure a part of the purchase money on the premises subsequently conveyed by the latter to the former. Morgan v. Graham et al., 35 Id., 213.

It was accordingly held, where A executed a deed of conveyance for land, to which he then had no title, to B, and A afterwards purchased and received a deed for the premises from C, the owner, and executed back to him a mortgage for the unpaid purchase money, that the rights of C, under his mortgage were not affected by the prior conveyance from A to B. Id.

The doctrine of the rule of section 1931 applies to grants by the state. See Bellows v. Todd, 39 Id., 209, 217.

A mortgage of real property not owned by the mortgagor, will, under this section, attach and become a lien thereon, where there are no intervening equities, the moment the mortgagor acquires title to the mortgaged property, and it cannot be divested by, or rendered subordinate to the lien of subsequent judgments. Price v. Kelsos, 57 Id., 115.

In order that a conveyance may operate so as to pass an after acquired title, it must have been so executed as to have passed the grantor’s estate at the time of its execution, had he then held the title. Heaton v. Fryberger, 38 Id., 155. See also, Rogers v. Hersey et al., 36 Id., 684.

Sec. 1932. Adverse possession of real property does not prevent any person from selling his interest in the same.

Sec. 1933. [Future estates.—Estates may be created to commence at a future day.

While this section provides that ‘estates may be created to commence at a future day,’ yet any language employed by the grantor which would be sufficient to create an estate to commence at a future day, would in the nature of the case, give a present interest in the property. Leaver v. Gauss, 62 Iowa, 314, 316.

Where a conveyance contained words purporting to convey real estate in the usual form, but also contained the following language: ‘To commence after the death of both of said grantors,” and, ‘It is hereby understood and agreed between the grantors and the grantee that the grantee shall have no interest in the said premises as long as the grantors or either of them shall live,” held, that no present estate to commence at a future day was created, as contemplated by this section, and that the conveyance was of a testamentary character, and could be revoked by the grantors at their option, notwithstanding a valuable consideration may have been paid therefor. Ibid.

Sec. 1934. Declarations, or creation of trusts or powers, in relation to real estate, must be executed in the same manner as deeds of conveyance; but this provision does not apply to trusts resulting from the operation or construction of law.

The bona fide purchaser of real estate, of a vendor who holds title under a deed absolute on its face and duly recorded, is not charged with notice of a trust set out in a separate instrument not recorded. Declarations of trusts must be executed and recorded like deeds of conveyance. Rooms v. Grooves, 20 Iowa, 373.

Where a husband purchased real property and caused the title thereof to be conveyed to his wife, under an express agreement that she would convey the same to her husband on request by him, held, that she had no such interest in the property as would in the event of her death, while holding the title, descend to her heirs, as against her husband. Cotton v. Wood, 25 Id., 43.

Nor would a transaction of this character be in the nature of an express trust which would, under section 1934, have to be evidenced by writing. The consent or agreement of the person to whom the conveyance of real property is made, to hold the title for the benefit of the person furnishing the consideration, does not change the character of the trust from resulting to an express one. Id.

The mere agent of the owner, appointed by parol to rent and care for property, is not a trustee of an express trust, and has no such interest in the property as will authorize him to maintain an action in his own name to recover possession of the property from a claimant under a tax deed. McHenry v. Callanan, 68 Iowa, 385.

While declarations of trust in regard to real estate must be in writing, by this section of the code, the rule does not apply where the subject of the trust is a debt secured by mortgage, and not the land mortgaged. Patterson v. Mills, 69 Id., 706.

Where X, who owned 120 acres of land, forty acres of which was his homestead. After contracting debts he conveyed the land to B. Without consideration, his wife joining in the deed, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. Afterward B. reconveyed to N. by quitclaim, without consideration. N. had continued all the time to live upon the homestead portion of the land. Held—(1) That the conveyance of the homestead to B. was no fraud upon the creditors, because he had no right to appropriate it. (2) That N. could not be heard to assert any right, as by a resulting trust, based upon the character of his conveyance to B. (3) That under sections 1936, 1934 of the Code, the deed to B. carried to him all the interest of the grantors, in the absence of any declaration of trust. Butler v. Nelson et al., 72 Iowa, 732.

SEC. 1935. [Married women may convey same as other persons.]—A married woman may convey or encumber any real estate or interest therein belonging to her, and may control the same, or contract with reference thereto, to the same extent and in the same manner as other persons.

A married woman may encumber or convey real property which she owns in her own right. Sanborn v. Follet v. Castry et al., 21 Iowa, 77.

She may convey to her husband without the intervention of a trustee, an interest she holds in lands. Robertson v. Robertson, 25 Iowa, 360. See also, Mussleman v. Galligher, 32 Iowa, 383; Blake v. Blake, 7 Iowa, 46.

A conveyance by a wife to her husband executed under an agreement of separation, relinquishing her right of dower in his real estate, and releasing all claims upon him for future maintenance and support, will be upheld when supported by a consideration, and no fraud, deception or oppression was practiced upon her. Id.

A married woman is capable of acquiring and holding real property to her own separate use; and a purchase by a married woman on credit, relying upon her son’s earnings with which to pay, was upheld. Shields v. Keys, 24 Iowa, 298, (1868).

But it was held in McKee v. Reynolds, 29 Iowa, 578, that the contingent right of dower of the wife in the husband’s lands, or of his in hers, is not the subject of barter and sale between them. And aside from an agreement to separate, it is not competent for one to convey to the other his or her dower interest in real property. But such would be the holding under the present code.

Where the legal title to real estate is vested in a married woman, who joins with her husband in a deed by the granting clause of which they “grant, bargain, sell and convey” said property, and the concluding clause of which the wife “relinquishes all her right of dower in said premises.” Held, 1. That the whole estate of the wife passed by the deed. 2. That the relinquishment of dower cannot be construed as limiting or qualifying the interest conveyed by the granting clause. Gruppenhauer v. Fejerary, 9 Iowa, 163.

SEC. 1936. [When made by husband or wife: conveys title of both.]—Every conveyance made by a husband and wife shall be deemed sufficient to pass any and all right of either in the property conveyed, unless the contrary appears on the face of the conveyance.

Prior to the code of 1851, the acknowledgment of the wife was essential to the validity of her deed to her own property, but under the code of 1851, and the revision, section 2255, the conveyance of a married woman has had the same effect as a conveyance of a feme sole, or by a man, an acknowledgment being necessary to admit the deed to record as constructive notice to third persons, but not essential to its validity as between the parties thereto. Sims v. Hervey, 19 Iowa, 273.

SEC. 1937. [Covenants: when binding.]—In cases where either the husband or wife joins in a conveyance of real property owned by the other, the husband or wife so joining shall not be bound by the covenants of such conveyance, unless it is expressly so stated on the face thereof.

Where a married woman joins with her husband in the execution of a deed to lands, which are owned by the husband and another, the title to which is not in her name, the law exonerates her from all liability upon the covenants in the deed. Thompson v. Merrill, 58 Iowa, 419.

SEC. 1938. [Mortgagor retains possession.]—In the absence of stipulations to the contrary, the mortgagor of real property retains the legal title and right of possession therefor.

Under our statute, in the absence of stipulations to the contrary, the mortgagor of real estate retains the legal title and right of possession. Per COLE, J. in Chase v. Abbott, 20 Iowa, 198. See also, Waters v. Waters & Jones, id., 360; McHenry v. Cooper, 27 Iowa, 137, 144; Devon v. Hendershott, 32 Iowa, 194.

Upon payment, or performance of the condition, the mortgagor or his assignee holds by virtue of the original title, and not by virtue of any title derived or acquired from the mortgagee. Per DILLON, J. Id.

The interest of a mortgagee under this section is not an estate, but is simply a specific lien or charge to secure a debt, which is the principal thing. Newman v. De Lormer, 19 Id., 244. A mortgage does not operate as a conveyance of the title to the land. It creates a lien thereon, and nothing more. Troubridge v. Supher et al., 55 Id., 352, 359.

Where a married woman joins with her husband in the execution of a deed to lands, which are owned by the husband and another, the title to which is not in her name, the law exonimates her from all liability upon the covenants in the deed. Thompson v. Merrill, 58 Id., 419.

Sec. 1939. [Tenancy in common.]—Conveyances to two or more in their own right, create a tenancy in common, unless a contrary intent is expressed.

Under our law, joint tenancy and survivorship, are not favored, and a conveyance to two or more persons in their own right creates a tenancy in common, unless a contrary intent is expressed. McMillen v. Rose et al., 8 Id., 144.

While the seizin and possession of one tenant in common is the seizin and possession of both, still if a tenant in common assumes to convey the entire estate to a third person, such conveyance will operate as a disseizin of his co-tenant, and the grantee in such conveyance by going into and holding adverse possession under his deed for more than ten years, will have acquired a title barring the co-tenant of his grantor from asserting any right therein. Kinney v. Slattery, 51 Id., 353.

Sec. 1940. [Vendor's lien.]—No vendor's lien for unpaid purchase money shall be recognized or enforced in any court of law or equity after a conveyance by the vendee, unless such lien is reserved by conveyance, mortgage or other instrument duly acknowledged and recorded, or unless such conveyance by the vendee is made after suit brought by the vendor, his executor or assigns, to enforce such lien. But nothing herein shall be construed to deprive a vendor of any remedy now existing against conveyances procured through the fraud or collusion of the vendees therein, or persons purchasing of such vendees with notice of such fraud.

This section, which provides that no vendor's lien shall be enforced after a conveyance by the vendee, unless the lien is recorded, cannot apply to sales of land made before the enactment of the statute. Jordan v. Wirster et al., 45 Iowa, 66; Same v. Same, 48 Id., 180.

The vendor of real estate has a lien upon the property sold for the unpaid purchase money, independent of the existence of a lien evidenced by title bond or mortgage. Id.

Prior to the present code, where the vendor of land, to which he retained the legal title, and for which he executed a bond to convey, assigned a promissory note, received in consideration of the sale of the land, and he agreed that his assignee should be substituted to the benefit of all the security held by him, the assignee of the note was held entitled to the same rights as the vendor himself, and he might bring an action in his own name against the vendee, and all persons claiming under him, with notice, for a foreclosure and sale of the premises. Blair & Co. v. Marsh et al., 8 Id., 144.

The lien of a vendor of land for the unpaid purchase money passes as an equitable incident to the assignee of the notes made for such purchase money, but it can be made available only by proper proceedings to establish it. It can be made operative only against the realty. Robestruck v. Hamilton, 14 Id., 147.

A vendor's lien is not based upon contract; nor is it properly an equitable mortgage, or a trust resulting from the vendee holding the estate with the purchase money unpaid. It is an equity raised and administered by courts of equity without any fixed rules and upon the peculiar circumstances of each case. Porter v. The City of Dubuque, 20 Id., 449.

Where a note given in consideration of a bond for the conveyance of land was transferred to a third party, and the bond was afterwards cancelled by the parties thereto, and the land conveyed to others, it was held that as against the latter, the transferee was not entitled to a vendor's lien upon the property. McMillen v. Rose et al., 1d., 522.

Where the vendor of real property took in part payment thereof the secured note of a third person, indorsed by the vendee, it was held that he had thereby waived his right to a vendor's lien, though the security taken afterward proved worthless, it being considered by all the parties good at the time it was taken. Kembick et al. v. Eggleston et al., 56 Id., 125.

A vendor who takes in payment of land sold a promissory note with a surety thereby waives his right to a lien on the land which is not reinstated by the fact that the surety becomes insolvent before the maturity of the note. Akers v. Luse et al., 56 Id., 346.

A vendor's lien being a mere equity, cannot affect the rights of an attaching creditor of the vendee having no notice of the lien. Allen v. Loring et al., 34 Id., 499.
The vendor has a lien as between himself and the vendee, upon the property sold until he has paid the agreed price, and the lien attaches equally whether the property be actually conveyed or only contracted to be conveyed. Johnson v. McGrew, 42 Id., 555.

As between the vendor and vendee the execution of a mortgage by the latter does not constitute a conveyance as contemplated in this section, which will deprive the vendor of a lien for the purchase money, and such lien attaches to the vendee's equity of redemption under the mortgage. Tinsley v. Tinsley, 52 Id., 14.

Under this section a vendor of land who does not reserve a lien for the unpaid purchase money, by conveyance or other recorded instrument, is not entitled to a lien after a conveyance by his vendee. Bush v. Hussey et al., 52 Id., 694.

The execution by the vendee of land, of a contract for the sale of the land, is not a conveyance such as will defeat the lien of the vendor for the purchase money, under section 1940 of the code. Nones v. Kramer, 54 Id., 22.

The dower interest of a widow in the lands of her deceased husband is subject to the lien of the vendor for the unpaid purchase money. Botch v. Hussey et al., 52 Id., 694.

The execution by the vendee of land, of a contract for the sale of the land, is not a conveyance such as will defeat the lien of the vendor for the purchase money, under section 1940 of the code. Noves v. Kramer, 54 Id., 22.

The provisions of section 2249 of the revision, intended to cure certain defects in the acknowledgment of deeds, was held not repugnant to the constitution as impairing the obligation of contracts, but invalid as to cases in which its application would interfere with rights vested at the date of its going into effect. Id.

The grantee of an unrecorded deed or mortgage has priority over a subsequent judgment creditor of the grantor. Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150; Norton, Jewett & Busby v. Williams, 9 Id., 529; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 353; Seevers v. Delashmutt, 11 Id., 174; Welton v. Tizzard, 15 Id., 495, 497; Hayes v. Rhode, 18 Id., 51.

But if there is a sale under a subsequent judgment to a third person, for value paid, without notice, the purchaser will take priority over the grantee in an unrecorded deed. Evans v. McGlasson, supra.

Where a note and mortgage were assigned to a bank as security for present and future loans, it was held, that the subsequent recording of a prior mortgage would not affect the bank's priority, even with respect to advances made after the recording of such mortgage. Clasey v. Sigg et al., 51 Id., 371.

Actual or constructive notice, to a purchaser, of one lien, does not charge him with constructive notice of equities of which he has had no other notice. Koons v. Grooves, 20 Id., 373. See, also, Bringolf v. Manzenmaier, 1d., 513.

CHAPTER 6.

THE CONVEYANCE OF REAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 1941. [Instrument affecting recorded.]—No instrument affecting real estate is of any validity against subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration, without notice, unless recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the land lies as hereinafter provided.

A mortgagee of real property is a purchaser within the meaning of the recording statute of this state. Porter et al. v. Green et al., 4 Iowa, 571.

So, also, a purchaser of real property at sheriff's sale, without actual or constructive notice of a prior unrecorded deed, is a purchaser within the meaning of the statute. Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 353.

An unrecorded deed is valid against all persons except subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice. Id.

The record of a deed defectively acknowledged will impart no notice of the contents to a subsequent purchaser. Britton v. Seecers, 12 Id., 539; Willard v. Cramer, 36 Id., 22.

The provisions of section 2249 of the revision, intended to cure certain defects in the acknowledgment of deeds, was held not repugnant to the constitution as impairing the obligation of contracts, but invalid as to cases in which its application would interfere with rights vested at the date of its going into effect. Id.

The grantee of an unrecorded deed or mortgage has priority over a subsequent judgment creditor of the grantor. Evans v. McGlasson, 18 Id., 150; Norton, Jewett & Busby v. Williams, 9 Id., 529; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 353; Seevers v. Delashmutt, 11 Id., 174; Welton v. Tizzard, 15 Id., 495, 497; Hayes v. Rhode, 18 Id., 51.

But if there is a sale under a subsequent judgment to a third person, for value paid, without notice, the purchaser will take priority over the grantee in an unrecorded deed. Evans v. McGlasson, supra.

Where a note and mortgage were assigned to a bank as security for present and future loans, it was held, that the subsequent recording of a prior mortgage would not affect the bank's priority, even with respect to advances made after the recording of such mortgage. Clasey v. Sigg et al., 51 Id., 371.

Actual or constructive notice, to a purchaser, of one lien, does not charge him with constructive notice of equities of which he has had no other notice. Koons v. Grooves, 20 Id., 373. See, also, Bringolf v. Manzenmaier, 1d., 513.
The constructive notice arising from the record of a deed which is actually fraudulent, the grantor remaining in possession and claiming and selling the property as his own, to a purchaser for value, without notice, does not defeat the right of such subsequent purchaser to avoid an instrument that would otherwise work a fraud upon him. Gardner v. Cole, 21 Id., 295.

The term "subsequent purchasers" in the recording law, includes purchasers from the heir as well as from the ancestor. It is accordingly held, that a deed of real estate from the heir to a purchaser, without notice, should prevail against an unrecorded deed from the ancestor. McClure v. Tallman, 30 Id., 515.

A judgment creditor who purchases real property, sold at execution sale, will be protected from an unrecorded deed or outstanding equities of which he had no notice at the time of his purchase. He stands upon the same footing, in this respect, as any other bona fide purchaser. Gower v. Doheney et al., 33 Id., 36.

The "subsequent purchasers," who are protected by the recording statute against the grantees in prior unrecorded deeds, are those who claim from a common source of title with the latter. No protection is intended against an independent title, distinct from that on which the recorded deed is based. Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 11, 19, and cases cited.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section that "no instrument affecting real estate is of any validity against subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration, without notice, unless recorded," etc., an assignment of land for the benefit of creditors, though unacknowledged and unrecorded, is paramount to the lien of an attachment levied after the execution of the assign-ment. Munson v. Frazier et al., 34 N. W. R., 804.

The holder under a quitclaim deed is not entitled to protection against a prior unrecorded deed or outstanding equities as a bona fide purchaser, without notice, under the recording law. Watson v. Phelps, 40 Iowa, 432; Smith v. Dunton, 43 Id., 45; Light v. West, Id., 138, 141; Besore v. Dosh, 46 Id., 211, 212; Springer v. Bartle, 46 Id., 685.

The rule that the purchaser of the legal title of a judgment debtor at execution sale takes the land discharged from all equities of third persons therein, of which he has had no notice, does not apply to a case where the judgment debtor has only an equity in the land, and the purchaser buys with full knowledge that he is acquiring thereby only such estate as the debtor has. Churchill v. Morris et al., 23 Id., 229.

A judgment does not take precedence of a prior unrecorded mortgage, and if the mortgage be recorded prior to the sheriff’s sale on the judgment, the purchaser at such sale will be affected with notice of the mortgage. Chapman v. Coats et al., 26 Id., 288. Nor would the assignee or purchaser of the judgment, prior to recording of the mortgage, stand in any better position than the original judgment creditor.

A person taking property by descent does not occupy the position of a bona fide purchaser. Moran et al v. Corbin, 21 Id., 117.

Where real property is ostensibly as much in the possession of the husband as the wife, there is no such actual possession of the wife as will impart notice of an equitable interest possessed by her in the land to a purchaser at execution sale under a judgment against the husband who was the apparent owner of the legal title when the judgment was rendered. Thomas v. Kennedy et ux., 24 Id., 397.

The purchaser at judicial sale of the equity of the defendant in execution in real property, does not thereby acquire any superiority over prior equities of third parties of which he had no notice. Wallace et al v. Bartle et al., 21 Id., 346.

A judgment creditor, however, who purchases at sheriff’s sale real property, the legal title to which is apparently in the judgment debtor, takes it discharged of equities arising under an unrecorded deed of which he had no notice, actual or constructive. Walker v. Elston & Greene, 21 Id., 529; Evans v. McGlosson, 18 Id., 150; Vannice v. Berger, 16 Id., 555; Vannice v. Groer, Id., 574; Holloway v. Plotner, 20 Id., 121.

Where the acknowledgment of a deed conveying real property is fatally defective, the record of the deed will not operate to give constructive notice of its contents to third persons. Dussaume v. Burnett, 5 Id., 95.

In respect to ordinary conveyances of land, if third persons have actual notice of them, they operate as notice to the same extent as they would have done by the recording of the deed in all respects regular and perfect in the acknowledgment. Id. Wilson v. Holcomb, 13 Id., 110.

The lien of an attachment does not take precedence of a prior unrecorded deed. Sawyer v. Browning, 18 Id., 246; Watson v. Tizzard, 15 Id., 495; Norton et al. v. Williams, 9 Id., 328.

Where a creditor, without notice of a mistake in the description of land in a trust deed ex-
A mortgage recorded prior to a senior mortgage is entitled to priority, unless the junior mortgagee, and those claiming under him, had actual or constructive notice of the prior mortgage; or such notice as was sufficient to put them, as reasonable men, on inquiry, particularly if such inquiry would have led to a discovery of the rights of the senior mortgagee. And such notice is sufficient if imparted before the completion of a contract of purchase, or the payment of the purchase-money, though not until after the terms of the contract have been agreed upon. English v. Waples et al., 38 Id., 348, and cases cited on page 350; Sillyman v. King, Id., 207.

The execution of a bond or obligation which has not been negotiated is not equivalent to payment. Id.

Where there has been a partial payment of the purchase-money before notice, the purchaser will be entitled to protection to that extent, and to a lien on the land therefor. Id.

To charge a purchaser with notice of an outstanding equitable title, knowledge must be clearly brought home to him. Rumors, suspicions and assertions made by persons who are strangers to the title, and based upon hearsay, will not be sufficient; the facts must be such as would put him upon inquiry, which, if prosecuted, would lead him to the knowledge of those rights with which it is proposed to affect him. Wilson v. Miller et al., 16 Id., 111.

A person who fraudulently and designately abstains from making inquiry or obtaining knowledge is not a bona fide purchaser. Id.

Where a mortgage of real estate is given for the security of certain negotiable notes which are transferred by the mortgagee without any assignment of the mortgage, after which the mortgagee pays the amount of the notes to the mortgagee by the conveyance of the mortgaged property, and satisfaction of the mortgage is entered upon the record by the mortgagee in his own name, after which the mortgagee, and now, purchaser, borrowed money from the Artisans' Bank of New York, and secured the same by a mortgage on the same property, the bank having had the title of record examined by a competent attorney, who reported the same clear of incumbrances, before making the loan; it was held that although the assignee of the first mortgage never consented to nor had any knowledge of the satisfaction of their mortgage, the Artisans' Bank had the superior equity. The Bank of State of Indiana v. Anderson et al., 14 Id., 544.

The transfer of a promissory note carries with it the mortgage given to secure it, and the mortgagor after the transfer of the note has no such control over the security that he can discharge or impair it to the prejudice of the assignee or transferee of the note. Vandercook v. Baker et al., 43 Id., 199.

A mortgage containing covenants of warranty does not take priority over one of earlier registration which contains no such covenants. Id.

Under this section notice is imparted by the indexing provided for. Haverly v. Alcott, 57 Id., 171.

The fact that the grantor in a deed delivered the same to the recorder for the purpose of having it recorded, may be a circumstance tending to show fraud in the transaction, but that fact alone will not, as a matter of law, render the deed fraudulent, nor would it sustain a verdict of a jury to that effect. Ward v. Wohman, 27 Id., 279.

The grantee, by a quitclaim deed, takes the property described therein subject to equities existing in favor of others, and this rule is not changed by the fact that such deed contains the words "bargain and sell." Wightman v. Spongford et al., 56 Id., 145, and cases cited.

A junior deed is prima facie valid as evidence of title, and its introduction in evidence casts upon one claiming title, through subsequent conveyance from the same grantor, the burden of proving that he was purchaser for a valuable consideration and without notice. Nolan v. Grant, 53 Id., 392. See, also, Sillyman v. King, 36 Id., 207.
The recording laws of the state do not apply to the disposition of lands belonging to the United States until the title has finally passed from it, and until conveyed by its grantee. Until then the rights of the parties will be governed by the regulations established by congress. David v. Kickabaugh et al., 32 Id., 540. See also, Harmon v. Clayson et al., 51 Id., 36. A conveyance by a purchaser of land from the United States, holding a certificate of entry or location before a patent is issued, will pass the title to his grantee. Sillyman v. King, 36 Id., 207.

Sec. 1942. It shall not be deemed lawfully recorded unless it has been previously acknowledged or proved in the manner herein prescribed.

An acknowledgment is not necessary to the validity of a deed or mortgage, as between the parties thereto. Blain v. Stewart, 2 Iowa, 378; Sims v. Hervey, 19 Id., 273; Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 18; Goddard v. Beebe, 4 G. Gr., 126.

Where the certificate of acknowledgment affixed to a deed failed to show that the grantors were personally known to the officer to be the identical persons who executed the deed, it was held, that the deed was defectively acknowledged and the recording of such deed did not impart notice to subsequent purchasers. Brinton v. Seevers, to subsequent purchasers.

Where the certificate of acknowledgment affixed to a deed failed to show that the grantors were personally known to the officer to be the identical persons who executed the deed, it was held, that the deed was defectively acknowledged and the recording of such deed did not impart notice to subsequent purchasers. Brinton v. Seevers, 12 Id., 389; Cavender v. Heirs of Smith, 5 Id., 157; Wickersham v. Reeves et al., 1 Id., 413; Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Id., 238.

Where the record of a deed is duly referred to in the proper index, the index charges all persons with constructive notice of what appears of record, provided the deed is such as to be entitled to be recorded under the statute. Greenwood v. Grantwood et al., 69 Id., 53.

Sec. 1943. [Recorder to keep index of records.]—The recorder must keep an entry book or index, the pages of which are so divided as to show in parallel columns:

1. The grantors;
2. The grantees;
3. The time when the instrument was filed;
4. The date of the instrument;
5. The nature of the instrument;
6. The book and page where the record thereof may be found;
7. The description of the land conveyed.

A conveyance is valid and binding between the parties, though it be neither acknowledged nor recorded. Lake et al. v. Gray et al., 30 Id., 415. And this rule applies to a married woman's acknowledgment of a deed releasing her dower or conveying the estate. Id

Sec. 1944. [To make entries on instrument and in index.]—The recorder must indorse upon every instrument properly filed in his office for record, the time when it was so filed, and shall forthwith make the entries provided for in the preceding section, except that of the book and page where the record of the instrument may be found, and, from that time, such entries shall furnish constructive notice to all persons of the rights of the grantee conferred by such instrument.

Although this section provides that the record "shall furnish constructive notice to all persons of the rights of the grantee conferred by such instrument," the rights or title conferred by the conveyance, as to subsequent purchasers without notice, are to be determined by the instrument as recorded, and not by facts in pari or other instruments not recorded. Miller v. Ware, 31 Iowa; 524.

A trust deed filed for record but not entered in the proper index does not operate as constructive notice of its contents to a subsequent purchaser. Gwynn v. Turner, 18 Id., 1.

The record of a mortgagee from which the name of the mortgagee is omitted, does not charge a subsequent purchaser with notice thereof. Disque v. Wright et al., 49 Id., 583.

The grantee in a deed of trust is not affected by notice of an outstanding mortgage on the same premises, acquired after he has parted with the consideration for the deed, and before he has become vested with an absolute title at a sale under such deed of trust. Barney v. McCarty et al., 15 Id., 510.

The purchaser of real estate is not bound to look beyond the record for incumbrances thereon, and if a mortgage be not of record, or being recorded, is not indexed so as to apprise the purchaser of the existence of the lien, in the absence of actual knowledge he takes the land free from the lien of the mortgage. Howe v. Thayer, 49 Id., 154.
Where the index of a mortgage, executed by husband and wife upon land belonging to the wife, described the husband instead of the wife as mortgagor, it was held that the index was sufficient to put a subsequent purchaser upon inquiry and that this defect did not destroy the constructive notice imparted by the record. Jones v. Berkshire, 15 Id., 245.

The rule is that when the index contains enough to put a careful examiner upon inquiry, and if upon inquiry an adverse title would have been ascertained, the party will be held to have had notice. Id.; Scoles v. Wisley et al., 11 Id., 261; Bostwick v. Powers et al., 12 Id., 466; Calcine v. Bowman et al., 10 Id., 529.

It is no more necessary under our recording laws to enter the names of both husband and wife in the index of the conveyance of a homestead than of any other lands wherein both join, nor is it necessary that the index shall contain a full description of the premises. Hodgson v. Loel, 25 Id., 97. See, also, Calcine v. Bowman et al., 10 Id., 529; Bostwick v. Powers et al., 12 Id., 466; White v. Hampton, 13 Id., 371; Barney v. Little, 15 Id., 527.

Certain real property had been conveyed to a married woman by the name of "Almira J. Stringham." Her name prior to marriage was Almira Jane Ashley. After her marriage she wrote her name in two ways, sometimes as Almira J. Stringham and sometimes as Jane A., or J. A. Stringham; she was commonly called Jane Stringham when her Christian name was used. A conveyance was executed by her in the name of J. A. Stringham, but which was indexed as A. J. Stringham, and there was a caption to the instrument, as recorded, as from "Almira J. Stringham to," etc.: Held, that the record was sufficient to import constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer. Houston v. Sceley et al., 27 Id., 183.

Where a party testified that at the time of filing a mortgage for record no other incumbrances upon the property appeared of record, while the records testified that the entry of another mortgage, prior in date and appearing to be of prior record, had previously been made, and under his supervision: Held, that the presumption in favor of the record would prevail. Vandercook v. Baker et al., 48 Id., 199.

The constructive notice arising from the recording of a deed which is actually fraudulent, the grantor remaining in possession and claiming and selling the property as his own to a purchaser for value, without actual notice, does not defeat the right of such subsequent purchaser to avoid the instrument that would otherwise operate as a fraud upon him. Gardner v. Cole, 51 Id., 295.

By this section notice is imparted by the indexing provided for. Haverly v. Aosst, 57 Id., 171.

Constructive notice, arising from the recording of instruments affecting property, is purely a matter of positive statutory regulation. When the requirements of the law are substantially complied with, the law raises a presumption of notice, which is conclusive and incontrovertible. Barney v. Little et al., 15 Id., 527.

The notice runs from the time the proper entries are made in the index books, provided the subsequent steps necessary to perfect the record are taken. Id.

Where an instrument has not been acknowledged, its record will not import constructive notice of the instrument. Woods v. Banks et al., 34 Id., 599.

This section makes indexing of a deed or mortgage by the recorder, after it is filed for record, constructive notice of the rights of the grantee therein, contemplates that the instrument shall remain in the recorder's office and be recorded as soon as practicable thereafter. Where a mortgage, after being indexed for record, was withdrawn from the recorder's office and not recorded for two years, it was held that third parties acquiring rights in the mortgaged property in the meantime in good faith, and without knowledge of the existence of the mortgage, were not charged with notice thereof by the records. Yerger v. Barz et al., 56 Id., 77.

The filing of a deed under this section gives notice to the world of the rights of the grantee conferred by the deed. Laird v. Kilbourne et al., 70 Id., 88, 86.

SEC. 1945. [Arranged alphabetically.]—The entries in such entry book, shall show the names of the respective grantors and grantees arranged in alphabetical order.

SEC. 1946. [Must be recorded.]—Every such instrument shall be recorded, as soon as practicable, in a suitable book to be kept by the recorder for that purpose; after which he shall complete the entries aforesaid, so as to show the book and page where the record is to be found.

SEC. 1947. [Deeds of town lots recorded in separate books.]—The recorder shall record all deeds, mortgages, and other instruments affecting town lots in cities or villages, the plats whereof are recorded in separate books from those in which other conveyances of real estate are recorded.
An Act relating to the recording of United States and state patents for lands.

SECTION 1. [When deemed to be matters of record.—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That United States and state patents for lands in this state, that have been or hereafter may be recorded in the recorder's office of the county in which the lands are situated, shall be deemed matters of record, and certified copies thereof, under the hand of the recorder, may be received and read in evidence in all the courts in this state, with like effect as other certified copies of original papers recorded in his office.

In order to entitle said patents to be recorded, no acknowledgment, as required by chapter six of the code, shall be necessary.

Approved February 16, 1876.

TRANSFER AND INDEX BOOKS.

SEC. 1948. [County auditors to keep.]—The county auditor shall keep in his office books for the transfer of real estate, which shall consist of a transfer book, index book, and book of plats.

See Wilson v. Hathaway, 42 Iowa, 173, and note of same cited to section 936, ante.

No deed of real property can be lawfully filed for record until the proper entries have been made in the transfer books. Wilson v. Hathaway, supra, page 175.

SEC. 1949. [Form of.]—Said transfer book shall be ruled, and headed substantially after the following form; and entries thereupon shall be in numerical order beginning with section one:

SEC. 1950. [Book of plats: how ruled and kept.—The auditor shall so keep the book of plats as to show the number of lot and block, or township and range, divided into sections and subdivisions, as occasion may require, and shall designate thereon each piece of land or town lot, and mark in pencil the name of the owner thereon in a legible manner. Said plats shall be lettered or numbered so that they may be conveniently referred to by the memoranda of the transfer book, and shall be drawn on a scale of not less than four inches to the mile.

The county auditor’s plat book, provided for in this section, is not competent evidence to aid the defective description in a deed, by identifying the description and showing that it was well known—it not being a published map or chart, within the meaning of section 3653 of the code, nor a certified copy of any record, entry or paper belonging to a public office, as contemplated in section 3702 of the code. Hemricks v. Terrell, 65 Id., 25.

SEC. 1951. [Entries by auditor in index and transfer book. — When a deed of unconditional conveyance of real estate is presented, the auditor shall enter in the index book, in alphabetical order, the name of the grantee, and opposite thereto the number of the page of the transfer book on which such transfer is made; and upon the transfer book he shall enter in the proper columns, the name of the grantee, the name of the grantor, date of instrument, the character of the instrument, the description of the property and the number or letter of the plat on which the same is marked.

The statute in relation to transfer books does not require that the names of occupiers of land should appear thereon; the names of owners are required so to appear. Per Beck, J., in Alcott v. Acheson, 49 Id., 569, 570.

SEC. 1952. [Indorse deed.—After the auditor has made the entries contemplated in the preceding section, he shall indorse upon the deed the following words: “Entered for taxation this......day of......A. D......” with the proper date inserted and sign his name thereeto.

SEC. 1953. [Cannot be filed for record until endorsed. — The recorder shall not file for record any deed of real property, until the proper entries have been made upon the transfer books in the auditor’s office and indorsed upon the deed.

SEC. 1954. [Auditor correct. — The auditor shall correct the transfer books from time to time, as he shall find them incorrect.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS.

SEC. 1955. (As amended by ch. 99, 22d g. a.)—[Manner of in the state. — Any deed, conveyance, or other instrument in writing, by which real estate in this state shall be conveyed or encumbered, if acknowledged within this state, must be so before some court having a seal, or some judge or clerk thereof, or some justice of the peace or notary public [or before the county auditor or his deputy.]

A record copy of a deed, the acknowledgment of which was signed “John S. Dunlap, clerk or the district court of Des Moines county, by J. W. Webber, deputy, was held admissible in evidence, the deputy clerk having authority to take acknowledgments of deeds. Abrams v. Ervin, 9 Iowa, 57.

An acknowledgment of an instrument taken and certified by a person interested therein as grantee, should not be admitted to record; and a record thereof would not operate as constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser. Wilson v. Traer & Co. et al., 20 Id., 231.

SEC. 1956. [When out of, but in the U. S. — When made or acknowledged out of this state but within the United States, it shall be acknowledged before some court of record or officer holding the seal thereof, or before some commissioner appointed by the governor of this state to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or before some notary public or justice of the peace; and, when made by a justice of the peace, a certificate under the official seal of the proper authority of the official character of said justice, and of his authority to take such acknowledgments and of the genuineness of his signature, shall accompany said certificate of acknowledgment.
A certificate of acknowledgment made in another state, and appended to a deed conveying lands in this state, to which there was no seal attached by the court or officer taking the same, nor any certificate, under competent authority, attesting the official character of such officer, was held, insufficient under sections 2245, 2246, of the revision. Jones v. Berkshire, 15 Iowa, 248.

Sec. 1957. [When out of the U. S.]—When made or acknowledged without the United States, it may be acknowledged before any ambassador, minister, secretary of legation, counsel, charge d'affaires, consular agent, or any other officer of the United States in a foreign country who is authorized to issue certificates under the seal of the United States. Said instruments may also be acknowledged or proven before any officer of a foreign country who is authorized by the laws thereof to certify to the acknowledgments of written documents; but the certificate of acknowledgment by a foreign officer must be authenticated by one of the above named officers of the United States, whose official written statement that full faith and credit is due to the certificate of such foreign officer, shall be deemed sufficient evidence of the qualification of said officer to take acknowledgments and to certify thereto, and of the genuineness of his signature or seal if he have any. All instruments in writing already executed in accordance with the provisions of this section, are hereby declared effectual and valid in law, and to be evidence in any court of this state.

Sec. 1958. [Certificate of acknowledgment.]—The court or officer taking the acknowledgment must indorse upon the deed or other instrument, a certificate setting forth the following particulars:

1. The title of the court or person before whom the acknowledgment was taken;
2. That the person making the acknowledgment was personally known to at least one of the judges of the court, or to the officer taking the acknowledgment, to be the identical person whose name is affixed to the deed as grantor, or that such identity was proved by at least one credible witness, naming him;
3. That such person acknowledged the instrument to be his voluntary act and deed.

An acknowledgment of a deed by the grantor as his voluntary act, is a sufficient execution, though the signature may have been affixed thereto by another. Morris v. Sargent, 15 Iowa, 90.

While the certificate of acknowledgment to a deed is not conclusive, but may be rebutted, it is, nevertheless, very strong evidence that the conveyance was executed by the persons stated in the certificate of acknowledgment. Van Orman v. McGregor, 23 Iowa, 303; Morris v. Sargent, 18 Id., 91. This holding was based upon section 1230 of the code of 1851 which was retained in the revision of 1860 as section 2233, and is section 3662 of the code of 1873.

The certificate establishes a prima facie case that the signature to the deed is genuine, but may be rebutted by evidence to the contrary. Boland v. Walrath et al., 33 Id., 130.

The certificate of acknowledgment should show the following acts of the grantor:

1. That he personally appeared before the officer. 2. That he acknowledged the signing of the deed. 3. That such signing was his voluntary act and deed.

It should also show certain conclusions of the officer:

1. That the party thus appearing was personally known to him. 2. That he is the same party who signed the deed as grantor. 3. That he acknowledged the signing of the deed to be his voluntary act. Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 353.

The certificate of acknowledgment to a deed of conveyance read as follows: "This day personally appeared before me, etc., who are to me known to be the identical persons whose names," etc. Held, that the omission of the word "personally" before the word "known" did not render the acknowledgment ineffectual, as the words used necessarily implied personal knowledge, unless negatived by a farther statement that such knowledge came from information. Todd v. Jones & Jones, 22 Id., 146, followed in Rosenthal et al. v. Griffin, 23 Id., 263.

The omission of the word "voluntary" or its equivalent, in a certificate of acknowledgment of an instrument conveying real property, is a fatal defect; and the record of an instrument with a certificate thus defective does not impart constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser, though the defect was corrected by the recorder in the recorded copy. Newman v. Samuels, 17 Id., 528; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 353; Wickersham v. Miller, Id., 413; Dickerson v. Davis, 12 Id., 393.

Where the certificate of acknowledgment of a deed is defective, it cannot be shown aliunde that everything required by the statute was done in fact, and that the officer, through mistake, omitted to certify a part; nor can the certificate be amended upon such evidence. *Of Parrall v. Simplot, 4 Id., 381.

A very strong presumption exists in favor of the correctness of a deed as to the date of its execution recited therein, and shown by the certificate of the notary public taking the acknowledgment. Bird v. Adams et al., 56 Id., 232.

A certificate of acknowledgment which fails to show the county of the notary making it, is fatally defective. Willard v. Cramer, 36 Id., 22.

Where a certificate of acknowledgment by a husband and wife failed to show, either in form or substance, that the wife was "personally known" to the officer taking the same "to be the identical person whose name was affixed to the deed as grantor," it was held, that the certificate was insufficient and that the record of the deed did not impart constructive notice to subsequent purchasers. Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Id., 238.

The same degree of particularity is not required in the acknowledgment of the execution of a submission to arbitrators as in the acknowledgment of a deed of conveyance. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

It is worthy of note that the statute, in terms, does not require that the certificate shall set forth that the person making the acknowledgment did personally appear before the officer. McKnight v. McCullough, 21 Id., 111.

Of course the fact would be necessary in order to take the acknowledgment, but the statute does not require that such fact be set forth in the certificate. Per Cole, J., in Schafenbury v. Bishop, 35 Id., 60, 62.

There is no provision of the statute which requires the name of the officer who certifies to the acknowledgment to be set out in the body of the certificate. If it embraces and states the facts required by this section and is signed by the certifying officer, it is sufficient. Fogg v. Holcomb, 64 Id., 621.

Where the title of an officer taking an acknowledgment appears in the body of a certificate, this is sufficient under this section, and such title need not be again written after the officer's signature. Colby v. Magounberry et al., 71 Id., 469.

SEC. 1959. [Proof of execution and delivery: how done.]-Proof of the due execution and delivery of the deed or other instrument made before the court, or officer authorized to take acknowledgments, by one competent person other than the vendee or other person to whom the instrument is executed in the following cases:

1. If the grantor die before making the acknowledgment;
2. Or, if his attendance cannot be procured;
3. Or, if having appeared, he refuses to acknowledge the instrument.

SEC. 1960. [Certificate: what must state.]-The certificate indorsed by them upon the deeds thus proved must state:

1. The title of the court or officer taking the proof;
2. That it was satisfactorily proved that the grantor was dead, or that for some other reason his attendance could not be procured in order to make the acknowledgment, or that having appeared he refused to acknowledge the deed or other instrument;
3. The names of the witnesses by whom proof was made, and that it was proved by them that the instrument was executed and delivered by the person whose name is thereunto subscribed as a party.

SEC. 1961. [Same.]-The certificate of proof or acknowledgment as aforesaid, may be given under seal or otherwise, according to the mode by which the courts or officers granting the same, usually authenticate their solemn and formal acts.

SEC. 1962. [Acknowledgment by attorney in fact.]-The execution of any deed, mortgage, or other instrument in writing, executed by an attorney in fact, may be acknowledged by the attorney executing the same.

A certificate of acknowledgment executed by an agent prior to the enactment of this section (act of February 24, 1858), in the following form was held sufficient: "STATE OF IOWA, DES MOINES COUNTY.—Before the undersigned, a notary public for said county, came J. M. B., agent of N. M. B. and R. S. C, who are personally known to me to be the identical persons whose names are affixed to the foregoing bill of sale as grantors, and they acknowledged the same to be their voluntary act and deed," etc. Snowdon & Co. v. Craig, 26 Iowa, 156.

SEC. 1963. [Certificate of.]-The court or person taking the acknowledgment, must indorse upon such instrument a certificate setting forth the following particulars:
1. The title of the court or person before whom the acknowledgment was taken;
2. That the person making the acknowledgment was personally known to at least one of the judges of the court, or to the officer taking the acknowledgment, to be the identical person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as attorney for the grantor or grantors therein named, or that such identity was proved to him by at least one credible witness to him personally known and therein named;
3. That such person acknowledged said instrument to be the act and deed of the grantor or grantors therein named by him as his or their attorney thereunto appointed, voluntarily done and executed.

It seems that an acknowledgment of a deed by an attorney in fact, as such, purporting to be the voluntary act and deed of his principal, is in conformity with section 2252 of the revision (code section 1963). Clark v. Conner, 28 Iowa, 311.

Sec. 1964. [Penalty for making false certificate.]—Any officer, who knowingly misstates a material fact in either of the certificates above contemplated, shall be liable for all damages caused thereby, and may be indicted and fined any sum not exceeding the value of the property conveyed or otherwise affected by the instrument on which such certificate is indorsed.

In an action under this section against a justice of the peace, who took an acknowledgment of the assignment of a mortgage in the usual form, stating that the assignor was to him "personally known to be the identical person" whose name was signed to the instrument, the assignment being in fact forged, it was held that the defendant was not liable on his official bond to one who had purchased the notes and mortgage, relying on the validity of the assignment. Wyllis v. Hann, 37 Iowa, 614.

In an action on bond of a notary public for damages resulting from false certificate of acknowledgment, where the evidence failed to show that the name of the person was not what the notary certified it to be, and failed to show that the notary knowingly misstated any material fact in the certificate, it was held that no recovery could be had. Browne v. Dolan et al., 68 Id., 645.

Sec. 1965. [Subpoenas.]—Any court or officer having power to take the proof above contemplated, may issue the necessary subpoenas, and compel the attendance of witnesses residing within the county by attachment if necessary.

CONVEYANCES LEGALIZED.

Sec. 1966. [When acknowledged in accordance with the laws of other states.]—All deeds and conveyances of lands lying and being within this state heretofore executed, and which said deeds have been acknowledged or proved according to and in compliance with the laws and usages of the state, territory or country in which said deeds or conveyances were acknowledged and proved, are hereby declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though the same acknowledgments had been taken or proof of execution made within this state and in pursuance to the acts and laws thereof; and such deed so acknowledged or proved as aforesaid, may be admitted to be recorded in the respective counties in which such lands may be, anything in the acts and laws of this state to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; and all deeds and conveyances of lands situated within this state, which have been acknowledged or proved in any other state, territory or country, according to and in compliance with the laws and usages of such state, territory or country, and which deeds or conveyances have been recorded within this state, be and the same are hereby confirmed and declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though the said deeds or conveyances, so acknowledged or proved and recorded, had, prior to being recorded, been acknowledged or proved within this state,

Section 2248 of the revision, which is substantially the same as section 1966 of the code, was held to be retrospective only, and that it did not cure defective certificates of acknowledgments made after taking effect of the act, which was chapter 30, laws of 1858. Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Iowa, 282; Jones v. Berkshire, Id., 245.

This section does not cure an acknowledgment which is defective under the laws of this state, unless it is shown that it was made according to the laws of the state where made. Nor does the record of a defectively acknowledged deed cure the defect under section 1967 of the code, where it appears either that the grantors did not sign the deed or else the deed has not been duly recorded. Greenwood v. Jenwold et al., 69 Id., 53.

SEC. 1967. [When recorded prior to 30th April, 1872.]—That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing, taken and certified previous to the thirtieth day of April, A. D. 1872, and which have been duly recorded in the proper counties in this state, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid in all courts of law and equity in this state or elsewhere, anything in the laws of the territory or state of Iowa in regard to acknowledgments to the contrary notwithstanding.

Section 2249, revision, substantially the same as section 1967 above, was held not to be repugnant to the constitution as impairing the obligation of contracts; but that it was valid as to cases in which its application would interfere with rights vested at the time it took effect. Brinton v. Seevers, 12 Iowa, 389.

This provision of the statute is not in conflict with the constitution where it does not impair vested rights. Purgeon v. Williams, 58 Id., 717.

Defectively acknowledged deeds certified prior to April 30, 1872, and duly recorded, are cured by this section and may be received in evidence the same as if properly acknowledged. Buckley v. Early et al., 72 Id., 289.

SEC. 1968. [When no seal affixed to certificate.]—All deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing, for the conveyance of lands which have heretofore been made and executed, and the officer taking the acknowledgment has not affixed his seal to the acknowledgment, such acknowledgment shall, nevertheless, be good and valid in law and equity, anything in any law heretofore passed to the contrary notwithstanding.

LEGALIZING CONVEYANCES.

An Act legalizing conveyances.

SECTION 1. [Acknowledgments legalized, when.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all deeds and conveyances of lands lying and being within this state heretofore executed and which said deeds have been acknowledged or proved according to and in compliance with the laws and usages of the state, territory or country in which said deeds or conveyances were acknowledged and proved, are hereby declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though the same acknowledgments had been taken or proof of execution made within this state and in pursuance of the acts and laws thereof, and such deeds so acknowledged or proved as aforesaid shall be admitted to be legally recorded in the respective counties in which such lands may be, anything in acts and laws of this state to the contrary notwithstanding, and all deeds and conveyances of lands situated within this state which have been acknowledged or proved in any other state, territory or country to and in compliance with the laws and usages of such state, territory or country, and which deeds and conveyances have been recorded within this state, be and the same are hereby confirmed and declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though the said deeds or conveyances so acknowledged or proved and recorded had, prior to being recorded, been acknowledged or proved within this state.

SEC. 2. [Applies to deeds, mortgages and conveyances.]—This act shall apply to all deeds, mortgages and conveyances made, filed, recorded and proved as contemplated in section one (1) of this act prior to the first day of January, 1884.

Approved, April 26, 1884.
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF DEEDS BY CERTAIN OFFICERS.

An Act to legalize the acknowledgments of deeds by deputy clerks of court, county auditors and deputy county auditors.

SECTION 1. [Acknowledgments legalized.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all acknowledgments of deeds, heretofore taken and certified by any deputy clerk of court, county auditor or deputy county auditor within this state, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid in law and equity.

Approved March 26, 1878.

SEC. 1969. [Revocation of power of attorney: how done.]—All instruments containing a power to convey, or in any manner to affect real estate, shall be held to be instruments affecting real estate; and no such instrument, when certified and recorded as above prescribed, can be revoked as to third parties by an act of the parties by whom it was executed, until the instrument containing such revocation is acknowledged and filed for record in the same office in which the instrument containing such power is recorded.

SEC. 1970. [Forms of conveyances.]—The following or other equivalent forms, varied to suit circumstances, are sufficient for the purposes therein contemplated:

FOR A QUIT CLAIM DEED.

For the consideration of .............dollars I hereby quitclaim to A B all my interest in the following tracts of land (describing it).

FOR A DEED IN FEE-SIMPLE, WITHOUT WARRANTY.

For the consideration of .............dollars I hereby convey to A B the following tract of land (describing it).

FOR A DEED IN FEE WITH WARRANTY.

The same as the last preceding form, adding the words “and I warrant the title against all persons whomsoever” (or other words of warranty as the party may desire).

FOR A MORTGAGE.

The same as deed of conveyance, adding the following: “To be void upon conditions that I pay,” etc.

Under the statute, a covenant, in a deed conveying real property, “to warrant the title to the same against all persons whomsoever,” implies all the usual covenants in deeds of conveyance in fee simple, including seizin, freedom from incumbrances, and right to convey. Funk v. Creswell, 5 Iowa, 62; Van Wagner v. Van Nostrand, 19 Iowa, 422. See also Frederick v. Callahan, 40 Id., 313.

Under our statute, as at the common law, a grantor, a grantee and a thing to be granted, must all be described in a deed; and an instrument in which any of these are omitted is not legally executed, and can convey no title. Sims v. Harvey et ux., 19 Id., 274.

Where a person owning land, and desiring to sell the same by agent, sent to an agent a deed therefor signed by the grantor, with the name of the grantee, and the amount of the consideration left blank, accompanying said deed with a letter of instructions directing the agent to negotiate a sale and deliver the deed to the purchaser, the agent, so far as third persons, without knowledge of the circumstances were concerned, was held to have power to fill the blanks in the deed, and the deed was held valid. Owen v. Perry, 25 Id., 412.

Where the grantor in a deed omitted the name of the grantee, not knowing his full name, and left a blank therefor, and the deed in this condition was delivered by him to the grantee, who, thereupon, by his attorney, filled the blank with his name, and the grantor afterward ratified the transaction by bringing suit for the consideration agreed to be paid for the land, it was held, that this was a sufficient execution and delivery of the deed. Devin v. Rimer, 29 Id., 297. See also Clark v. Allen, 34 Id., 180.

RECORDS TRANSCRIBED.

SEC. 1971. (As amended by ch. 142, 18th g. a.) [Supervisors may have same done.]—The board of supervisors of any county, whenever they shall deem it necessary and expedient, may have transcribed, indexed, and arranged, any deed, probate, mortgage, court, or county record or government survey belonging to said county, and have made a complete index thereof as contemplated by section nineteen hundred and forty-three of this chapter; and may have correctly transcribed or copied any index of deeds, mortgages, or other records, and may have the said transcripts or copies compared and certified by [the officer to whose office the original record belongs;] but the provisions of this section shall not apply to any county which has been specially authorized to have such transcribing done.

SEC. 1972. [By new counties.]—Whenever any new county shall have been formed from other original and organized counties, or shall have been attached to another county for judicial or other purposes, and shall afterwards be fully organized and detached, and when any records of the kind mentioned in the preceding section are in the original county or counties which properly belong to such new county, the board of supervisors of such new or attached county shall have authority to have transcribed, indexed, and arranged, such records, or any of them, for the use of such new county.

SEC. 1973. [Compensation for.]—The board of supervisors may employ any suitable person to perform the labor contemplated in the two preceding sections; the amount of compensation therefor to be previously fixed by them, not exceeding six cents for each one hundred words of the records proper, and twelve and one-half cents for each one hundred words of indexing; such compensation to be paid out of the treasury of the county for which the records are transcribed and to be audited as other claims.

SEC. 1974. (As amended by ch. 142, 18th g. a.) [County auditor to certify.]—When any such records as are contemplated in section nineteen hundred and seventy-two are so transcribed [the officer to whose office] the original records belong, shall compare the copy so transcribed with the original; and, upon the same being found to be correctly transcribed, shall make a written certificate in each volume or book of such transcribed records, certifying that such transcribed records have been compared with the original by him, and are true and correct copies of the original records.

SEC. 1975. [Force and effect of.]—Such transcribed records so certified, shall have the same force and effect in all respects as the original records, and be admissible as evidence in all cases, and of equal validity with the original records.
An Act to legalize acknowledgments by county auditors, deputy county auditors, and deputy clerks of the district court.

[Preamble.]—Whereas, Certain county auditors, deputy county auditors and deputy clerks of the district court have heretofore taken and certified acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages and contracts, believing that they were acting in pursuance of law; therefore,

SECTION 1. [Acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages and contracts legalized.]
—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That all acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages, and contracts heretofore taken and certified by any county auditor, deputy county auditor, or deputy clerk of the district court within this state, be and the same are hereby declared to be as legal and valid as though the law had authorized such acknowledgments at the time they were made.

CHAPTER 7.

OF OCCUPYING CLAIMANTS.

SECTION 1976. [Proceedings.]
—When an occupant of land has color of title thereto, and in good faith has made any valuable improvements thereon, and is afterwards in a proper action found not to be the rightful owner thereof, no execution shall issue to put the plaintiff in possession of the property after filing the petition hereinafter mentioned, until the provisions of this chapter have been complied with.

At the common law there is no liability on the part of the owner of real estate for improvements made thereon in good faith by an occupying claimant. The right to recover therefor is based upon the statute, and the claimant must bring himself within its provisions. Lunquest v. Ten Eyck, 49 Iowa, 215.

Two facts are essential to the occupant's right of recovery for improvements: First, that the claimant have color of title; second, that in good faith he has made valuable improvements upon the land. Id.

A person out of possession of real property cannot maintain an action under this chapter against the holder of the legal title to recover the value of improvements made by him upon such real property. Webster v. Stewart, 6 Id., 401; Clausen et al. v. Rayburn, 14 Id., 136.

But the personal possession of the land by the claimant is not essential to constitute him an occupant within the meaning of the statute; the occupancy of the tenant is the occupancy of the landlord. Parsons v. Moses, 16 Id., 440.

An occupying claimant of lands situated upon the "half breed tract," who acquired his claim or color of title adversely to the decree of partition, and who has, ever since the acquisition of his claim, resisted such decree, believing it to be fraudulent and void, is entitled to compensation for improvements made upon the land. Craton v. Wright, 16 Id., 133.

The right of an occupying claimant to compensation for improvements made in good faith, with color of title, may be assigned; and the assignee is invested with all the rights of his assignor. Id. See also, Parsons v. Moses, 16 Id., 410.

An occupying claimant is not entitled to compensation for improvements made after he has, in a proper action, been found not to be the rightful owner. Id.

Nor can the purchaser of real estate holding it under a bond for a deed, conditioned upon the payment of the purchase money, recover against his vendor or his grantee, under the occupying claimant statute for improvements made on the land. Jones v. Graves, 21 Id., 474.

In order to establish a right to recover for improvements under the occupying claimant statute, it is essential that the possession under and during which the improvements are made shall be adverse to the holder of the paramount title. Willey v. Hurlay, 11 Id., 473; Parsons v. Mooney, 15 Id., 440; Jones v. Graves, 21 Id., 474; Keas v. Burns, 23 Id., 255.

Where after judgment in favor of the plaintiff in an action to recover land under a congressional grant, and while an action is still pending in the United States supreme court on a writ of error to the supreme court of Iowa, sued out by the defendant, he filed a petition for improvements under the statute of the state, it was held that the court properly refused to grant a writ of possession to the plaintiff, until the defendant's petition was disposed of. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Hornish, 54 Id., 690.

A claim for improvements cannot be pleaded in an action of right, but only after the question of title has been settled in such action adverse to the claimant. Walton v. Gray, 29 Id., 440.

Where one holds a sheriff's deed to lands, and, relying in good faith upon his title under such deed, he pays the taxes on the land, but the title is afterwards adjudged to be in another, he may have a lien established upon the land, against such other person's grantee with notice, for the amount of the taxes so paid, and may have a personal judgment against such grantee for such portion of the taxes as were paid after he became the owner of the land, and one who takes the land by mere quitclaim is charged with notice of the equities of the person so paying the taxes. Bradley v. Cole, 67 Id., 650.

SEC. 1977. [Petition.]-Such petition must set forth the grounds on which the defendant seeks relief, stating with other things, as accurately as practicable, the value of the improvements upon the lands, as well as the value of the lands aside from the improvements.

SEC. 1978. [Issues.]-All issues joined thereon must be tried as in ordinary actions, and if the value of the land or improvements is in controversy, such value must be ascertained on the trial.

These proceedings were designed to enable the occupying claimant of land, under color of title, who has in good faith, made valuable improvements thereon, and who afterward, in the proper action, is found not to be the rightful owner thereof, to have his improvements appraised, that he may obtain payment therefor, or in default of such payment being made, within the time fixed by the court, to enable the claimant to acquire the title to the land, by paying the appraised value, exclusive of the improvements. Dungan v. Van Phuhl, 8 Iowa, 263.

The value of the lands and the value of the improvements must be separately ascertained by the court, to enable the occupying claimant to acquire the title to the land, by paying the appraised value. Dungan v. Van Phuhl, 8 Iowa, 263.

Where one holds a sheriff's deed to lands, and, relying in good faith upon his title under such deed, he pays the taxes on the land, but the title is afterwards adjudged to be in another, he may have a lien established upon the land, against such other person's grantee with notice, for the amount of the taxes so paid, and may have a personal judgment against such grantee for such portion of the taxes as were paid after he became the owner of the land, and one who takes the land by mere quitclaim is charged with notice of the equities of the person so paying the taxes. Walton v. Gray, 29 Id., 440.

A claim for improvements cannot be pleaded in an action of right, but only after the question of title has been settled in such action adverse to the claimant. Walton v. Gray, 29 Id., 440.

Where one holds a sheriff's deed to lands, and, relying in good faith upon his title under such deed, he pays the taxes on the land, but the title is afterwards adjudged to be in another, he may have a lien established upon the land, against such other person's grantee with notice, for the amount of the taxes so paid, and may have a personal judgment against such grantee for such portion of the taxes as were paid after he became the owner of the land, and one who takes the land by mere quitclaim is charged with notice of the equities of the person so paying the taxes. Bradley v. Cole, 67 Id., 650.

A personal judgment can be rendered for the improvements against the owner of the land. Id.

The rendition of a personal judgment, without question by the owner of the land is not a waiver of objections thereto. The court has no power to render such judgment, and the objection may be made for the first time in the appellate court. Id.

The court possesses no power to order a sale of the land to satisfy a judgment for the value of improvements. Id.

In a proceeding under this chapter, the owner is entitled to the rents and profits according to the value of the land for the purpose to which it has been devoted by the occupant. But he is not to be charged with rent on the improvements made by himself. Id.

SEC. 1979. [Plaintiff may elect.]-The plaintiff in the main action may thereupon pay the appraised value of the improvements, and take the property.

SEC. 1980. [Same.]-Should he fail to do this after a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court, the defendant may take the property upon paying the value of the land aside from the improvements.
SEC. 1981. [Tenants in common.]—If this be not done within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court, the parties will be held to be tenants in common of all the land, including the improvements, each holding an interest proportionate to the value of his property as ascertained by the appraisement above contemplated.

SEC. 1982. [Color of title.]—The purchaser in good faith at any judicial or tax sale made by the proper person or officer, has color of title within the meaning of this chapter, whether such person or officer had sufficient authority to sell or not, unless such want of authority was known to such purchaser at the time of the sale. And the rights of such purchaser shall pass to his assignees or representatives.

A grantee is an "assignee," within the meaning of this section. Childs v. Shower, 18 Iowa, 261.

A party claiming title under a tax deed, although defective in the description, has color of title within the meaning of this section. Id.

In such case, where the tax deed is given in evidence to show color of title, it is competent to show by evidence aliquod that the parcels were not sold for one gross sum. Id.

The lessee of real property, holding under a lessor who has but a life estate therein, has not color of title within the meaning of this provision of the statute, and cannot recover for improvements made upon the premises. Wiltsie v. Hurley, 11 Id., 473.

A tax deed void upon its face will constitute color of title, under which adverse possession may be taken and held for the period under which the statute of limitations will operate as a bar. Colvin v. McCoy, 39 Id., 502.

The owner of land is entitled to rents and profits from the occupying claimant, according to the value of the land for the purpose to which it is devoted by the occupant. He cannot claim rent on improvements made by the occupant, but he is entitled to compensation for the increased adaptation of the land to the occupant's uses, even though brought about by the occupant's own labor. Walscot v. Townsend, 49 Id., 406.

The vendee of real property holding it under a bond for a deed conditioned upon the payment of the purchase money, cannot recover against the vendor or his grantee under the occupying claimant law for improvements made thereon. Jones v. Graves, 21 Id., 474.

SEC. 1983. [Same.]—Any person has also such color of title, who has occupied a tract of land by himself, or by those under whom he claims, for the term of five years, or who has thus occupied the land for a less term than five years, if he, or those under whom he claims have, at any time during such occupancy, with the knowledge and consent, express or implied, of the real owner, made any valuable improvements thereon, or if he, or those under whom he claims have, at any time during such occupancy, paid the ordinary county taxes thereon for any one year, and two years thereafter have elapsed without a repayment or proffer of repayment of the same by the owner of the land, and such occupancy is continued up to the time at which the suit is brought by which the recovery of the land is obtained as above contemplated; but nothing in this chapter shall be construed to give tenants color of title against their landlords.

Under section 3269, revision, section 1983, code, possession in good faith for a period of five years, in the claimant's own right and for his own benefit, is sufficient to constitute color of title. Landquest v. Ten Eyck, 40 Iowa, 213.

SEC. 1984. [Same.]—When any person shall have settled upon any lands within this state, and shall have occupied the same for three years under or by virtue of any law of said state, or any contract with its proper officers for the purchase of said land, or under any law of, or by virtue of any purchase from the United States, and shall have made valuable improvements thereon, and shall have been, or shall hereafter be found not to be the true owner thereof, or not to have acquired a right to purchase the same from the state or United States, such person shall be deemed an occupying claimant within the meaning of this chapter.

SEC. 1985. [Waste by claimant.]—In the cases above provided for, if the occupying claimant has committed any injury to the land by cutting timber or otherwise, the plaintiff may set the same off against any claim for improvements made by such claimant.

SEC. 1986. [Execution.]—The plaintiff is entitled to an execution to put himself in possession of his property in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, but not otherwise.

Sec. 1987. [Removal of improvements.]—Any person having improvements on any land heretofore granted to the state in aid of any work of internal improvement, including what is known as the Des Moines river lands, whose title to such land is questioned by another, shall be entitled to remove such improvements owned by him, without injury otherwise to the land, at any time before he is evicted therefrom, or he may claim and have the benefit of this chapter by proceeding as herein directed.

CHAPTER 8.

THE HOMESTEAD.

Section 1988. [Exempt.]—Where there is no special declaration of the statute to the contrary, the homestead of every family, whether owned by the husband or wife, is exempt from judicial sale.

Where homestead premises, acquired previous to the creation of a debt, was sold by the owner, who transferred his homestead for other property of less value than the former homestead, which last homestead was acquired after the contraction of the debt, all of which was before judgment on the debt was rendered, it was held, that the new homestead was exempt from judicial sale upon such judgment. Pearson v. Minerva, 18 Iowa, 36.

The homestead character does not attach to property until it is actually occupied as a home. A mere intention to occupy, although subsequently carried out is not sufficient. Charles et al. v. Lamberson, 1 Id., 435; Williams v. Sweetland, 10 Id., 51; Christy v. Dyer, 14 Id., 433.

The fact that the vendor retains the legal title as security for the unpaid purchase money will not operate to defeat the vendor's claim of homestead in the property. Stinson v. Richardson, 44 Id., 373.

A bond executed by the husband to convey the homestead is of no validity unless the wife joins in its execution. Yost v. Deavall, 9 Id., 60.

The homestead character does not attach to the property until it is actually used and occupied as a home. The reservation of a piece of land with the purpose of erecting a dwelling-house thereon to be used as a home does not protect it from the lien of a judgment. Givens v. Dewey, 47 Id., 414; Christy v. Dyer, 14 Id., 438.

A tenant in common may claim and hold a homestead in his interest in the undivided premises. Thorn v. Thorn, 14 Id., 49.

Property owned by the head of a family is not invested with the character of a homestead before it is actually occupied as a home. Charles & Blow v. Lamberson, 1 Id., 435; Christy v. Dyer, 14 Id., 438; Cole v. Gill, Id., 527; Hale v. Heathsp et al., 16 Id., 451; Page v. Ewbank, 18 Id., 580.

Occupancy of the premises, the use of the house thereon by the family, as a home, is essential to invest the property with the homestead character. A mere intention to thus occupy it is not sufficient, though subsequently carried out; and it may therefore, be subjected to a judgment rendered on a debt contracted prior to such occupancy, though not until after the purchase of the land upon which the improvements are subsequently made. Elston & Green v. Robinson, 23 Id., 205.

A tenant in common holding by an equitable title, may have a homestead in land which he occupies as a home. Hewett v. Rankin et al., 41 Id., 35.

A building erected and occupied by the family as a home upon land leased for a term of years, becomes a homestead and the possession thereof cannot be assigned by the husband without the concurrence of the wife. Pelan v. DeBevard et al., 13 Id., 53.

Sec. 1989. [Head of family defined.]—A widow or widower, though without children, shall be deemed a family while continuing to occupy the house used as such at the time of the death of the husband or wife. The title to the homestead, upon the death of the owner leaving a widow, vests in the heirs, the right of the widow being limited to that of occupancy. Johnson v. Gaulford, 41 Iowa, 362.

The abandonment of the homestead by the widow, when there are surviving heirs, does not subject it to liability for debts other than those which would bind the estate before the death of the owner. Id.
Occupation of the homestead by the heirs is not essential to protect it from the debts of the decedent. Id.

The right of the wife in the homestead owned by the husband before marriage, vests in her at the time of the marriage. It is of a higher character, and more in the nature of a vested interest or title than the dower right of the wife in the other real property of her husband. Chase v. Abbott, 29 Id., 154.

The right of a mortgagee of a homestead is not affected by the subsequent marriage of the mortgagee, but the wife in such case cannot be ousted from the possession by any proceeding to which she is not made a party. Id.

Where a widower, without children, acquired real property which he occupied as a homestead for himself and his mother who was the only other member of his family, it was held that he was the head of a family within the meaning of the statute, and that the premises thus occupied was exempt from execution for debts contracted thereafter. Parsons v. Livingston et al., 11 Id., 104.

The granting of a divorce to a wife and the giving her the custody of the children, does not render the homestead remaining in the possession of the husband, liable for his debts. The provisions of the homestead law are to be construed liberally. Wood v. Davis, 34 Id., 364.

A widow is not entitled to enjoy at the same time both dower and homestead in her deceased husband's real property. Meyers v. Meyers et al., 23 Id., 359; Butterfield v. Wicks, 44 Id., 310.

After the death of the wife the husband has the right to occupy and possess the whole homestead, and this right exists without reference to which of them held the legal title thereto, or whether or not there was issue. Burns v. Roes et al., 21 Id., 257.

A widower, with whom lived his son and son's wife, and who employed a household servant, was held to be the head of a family within the meaning of section 3072 of the code. Tyson v. Reynolds, 53 Id., 431.

SEC. 1990. [Conveyance of.]—A conveyance or incumbrance by the owner is of no validity unless the husband and wife, if the owner is married, concur in and sign the same joint instrument.

An agreement of the husband to convey the homestead, not concurred in by the wife, is absolutely void, and specific performance cannot be enforced. Williams v. Scotland, 10 Iowa, 51; Larson v. Reynolds, 13 Id., 579; Burnett v. Cook, 16 Id., 149; Burnett v. Mendenhall, 42 Id., 296.

A conveyance of the homestead, or an incumbrance thereon, can only be effected when husband and wife concur in and sign the same joint instrument. Burnett v. Mendenhall, 42 Id., 296.

No damages are recoverable for the breach of a contract made by the husband alone to convey the homestead. Id.

Prior to the code of 1873, it was held, that no conveyance of the homestead, whether by deed or mortgage, was of any validity unless both husband and wife concur therein, and sign the same. Alley v. Bay, 9 Id., 509; Yost v. Devault, Id., 63; Williams v. Scotland, 10 Id., 51; Larson v. Reynolds et al., 13 Id., 579; Burnett v. Cook, 16 Id., 149; Eli et al. v. Gridley, 27 Id., 266.

But whether a conveyance of the homestead by the husband and wife in separate deeds by each in which the other did not join was left undecided in Luther v. Drake, 21 Id., 93. This question is now settled, however, under the code of 1873, in Burnett v. Mendenhall, 42 Id., 376.

The assignment of a bond for a deed of the property claimed as a homestead is of no validity unless the wife, if the owner is married, concur in and sign the instrument of assignment. Stinson v. Richardson, 44 Id., 373.

Abandonment of the homestead will not affect the wife's rights, except to render it liable for the debts of the husband. Id.

An assignee of a bond, who took possession under an assignment in which the wife did not join, was held, to account for the rents and profits, the proceeds to be applied upon a judgment which was a lien on the homestead, and which had been discharged by the assignee. Id.

And the assignee in such case was held entitled to compensation for improvements made in good faith. Id.

A mortgage upon the homestead is of no validity unless both husband and wife unite in the execution, and the record of it, therefore, imparted no notice to a subsequent purchaser. Higley & Co. v. Millard et al., 45 Id., 586.

A parol contract, by husband and wife, to convey their homestead in consideration of their maintenance during life, is void. And the fact that the wife, who survived her husband four weeks, being all the time in feeble health, continued to enjoy the benefits of the contract until her death, was held, not to place her in the position of a so e owner who made a parol contract for the sale of the homestead. Clark et al. v. Ecarts et al., 45 Id., 248.

The homestead right is subservient to that of the vendor for the unpaid purchase money. Christy v. Dyer, 14 Id., 438; Cole v. Gill, Id., 527; Burnett v. Cook et al., 16 Id., 149.

The husband may make a valid conveyance of a right of way over the homestead without the concurrence and signature of the wife to the deed, the husband being the owner, when such conveyance will not defeat the substantial enjoyment of the homestead as such. The C. & S. W. Ry Co. v. Sainey et al., 38 Id., 182.
A judgment does not attach as a lien upon the homestead of the judgment debtor; and a conveyance of the homestead while used and occupied as such, vests the grantee with the title thereto free from the lien of any judgments against the grantor. Lamb v. Shays, 14 Id., 567.

Nor does the lien of a judgment attach upon the surrender of the possession of the homestead to the purchaser in pursuance of such conveyance. Cummings v. Long, 16 Id., 41.

A contract for the conveyance of a homestead by a married man is void unless signed by the wife, and cannot be enforced though the consideration has been paid and accepted. Anderson v. Culbert, 55 Id., 233.

A sale of the homestead at auction is not valid unless the husband and wife, if the owner is married, both join in making the sale; and specific performance of the contract will not be enforced. Garlock v. Baker, Id., 334.

After the homestead has attempted to sell the homestead, without the wife's consent, another party may become a good faith purchaser, even though he has notice of the husband's previous contract. Id.

A conveyance of the homestead by the husband, for which he receives the consideration, in which the wife does not join, or to which her name is signed by a person having no authority to do so, is void, and will be set aside at the suit of the wife in which the husband is joined as co-plaintiff. Eli v. Gridley, 27 Id., 376.

Where one leased a lot for a term of five years for an annual rent agreed upon, and it was stipulated in the lease that if the lessee should erect a building suitable for a family, and a stable on the premises, the lessor should pay to the lessee the value of the same at the expiration of the term. The lessee made the proposed improvements and occupied the house as a home, and it was held: 1. That an assignment of the possession of the premises without the concurrence of the wife was void. 2. That an assignment by the husband alone would give the assignee the right to recover from the lessor the value of the improvements. Pelan v. De Bevard, 13 Id., 53.

A lease to remove mineral from land occupied as a homestead, when its enjoyment for the uses of a homestead is not thereby impaired, may be given by the husband, when he is the owner, without the assent of the wife. Harkness v. Burton, 39 Id., 101.

The wife may ratify a void conveyance of her homestead, in all cases where her husband could ratify such act. And a void deed of the homestead may be ratified, in all cases where a similar deed of other property could be ratified, by the assent of the parties expressed or implied from their acts. Spafford v. Warren, 47 Id., 47.

Where a conveyance of the homestead by the wife was void, but she surrendered possession of the property voluntarily, made no objection to the grantee's title when he offered in her presence to sell it, and permitted him to remain in quiet possession for more than three years, and to make improvements without protest; held, that her conduct amounted to a ratification of the deed. Id.

A parol agreement of the wife, who holds the legal title to the homestead occupied by husband and wife, to execute a mortgage thereon, cannot be enforced as a lien on the homestead. No encumbrance of the homestead is of any validity unless it be by a written instrument executed by both husband and wife. Clay v. Richardson, 59 Id., 484.

Where a husband and wife are occupying as a homestead more land than the law exempts as such, and the homestead has not been selected and platted as required by law, a mortgage executed by the husband alone on any part of the land so occupied is invalid; but a judgment rendered upon the debt intended to be secured may be enforced against the excess of land so occupied, provided the holder holding the execution first causes the homestead to be marked off as provided in section 1985 of the code. Goodrich v. Brown, 63 Id., 247. Helfenstein v. Cave, 3 Id., 257, and 6 Id., 374, were decided under a different statute.

A license to remove mineral from land occupied as a homestead, when its enjoyment for the use of a road was his homestead, and his wife did not sign the contract, yet, since a right of way is but an easement, and since the right of way in the particular case did not destroy the homestead or defeat its occupancy as such, held, that the homestead character of the premises would not defeat a specific performance. The O., C. F. & St. F. Ry Co. v. McWilliams et al., 71 Id., 104.

A written assignment of a title bond for the homestead, signed and concurred in by both husband and wife, is a valid disposition of the homestead under this section of the code. Rubleman v. Rummel et al., 72 Id., 40.

This section does not apply to the case of a conveyance by the husband to his wife. Harsh, Guardian, v. Griffin, Id., 698.

A mortgage of a homestead was granted by the husband is of no validity, unless the wife concur in and sign the same joint instrument; and such a mortgage is not validated by the subsequent abandonment of the homestead. Bruner v. Bateman et al., and Heath v. Bruner et al., 66 Id., 488. See, also, Coegill v. Warrington, Id., 666.

The plaintiffs occupied a homestead which was owned by the wife under a bond for a deed. The wife assigned the bond without the concurrence of the husband; held, that the assignment was invalid, and did not become valid upon the subsequent abandonment of the homestead; but where, after such abandonment, another, who had no notice of the facts rendering the assignment invalid, and no knowledge that plaintiffs claimed any interest in the property, purchased it from one in possession, who appeared to have a perfect title of record; held, that his title was superior in equity to the homestead rights of the plaintiffs. Lunt et al. v. Neely et al., 67 Id., 97.

Citing Stinson v. Richardson, 44 Id., 373; Bruner v. Bateman, 66 Id., 488.

A conveyance of the homestead by the husband to the wife is not within the meaning of this section, and is valid, although the wife does not join therein. Horsh v. Griffen, 34 N. W. R., 441.

Sec. 1991. [Liable for taxes.]—The homestead is liable for taxes accruing thereon, and, if platted as hereinafter directed, is liable only for such taxes, and subject to mechanic's liens for work, labor, or material, done or furnished exclusively for the improvement of the same, and the whole or a sufficient portion thereof may be sold to pay the same.

Where under the law in force at the date of the levy of a tax, the homestead was exempt from sale for any taxes except those levied thereon, though not separately listed, a subsequent change in the law would not affect the right of the owner. At a sale made for such taxes it could not be sold in connection with other lands, in such manner as to compel the owner to pay the taxes assessed upon such other lands in order to save his homestead from absolute loss. Penn v. Clemens, 19 Iowa, 372.

A sale of a tract of land of which the homestead constitutes a part, for delinquent taxes on the whole tract, is void in toto. Stewart v. Corbin, 25 Id., 144. See, also, Burmeister v. Duesy et al., 27 Id., 468.

Sec. 1992. [For debts contracted previous to purchase.]—The homestead may be sold on execution for debts contracted prior to the purchase thereof, but it shall not in such case be sold except to supply the deficiency remaining after exhausting the other property of the debtor liable to execution.

A debt for the purchase money of a homestead is not a debt arising after the purchase thereof, and it may, therefore, be sold in satisfaction of the same. And a mortgage executed by the husband alone to secure the purchase money was held not invalid because of the non-concurrence of the wife. Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa, 438; Barnes v. Gey, 7 Id., 26; Cole v. Gill, 14 Id., 521; Burnap v. Cook, 16 Id., 149.

The homestead can be sold only to supply a deficiency existing after exhausting the other property of the debtor liable to execution.

A sale of a tract of land of which the homestead constitutes a part, for delinquent taxes on the whole tract, is void in toto. Stewart v. Corbin, 25 Id., 144. See, also, Burmeister v. Duesy et al., 27 Id., 468.

When the owner of a homestead, or his mortgagee, seeks to restrain the sale of the homestead, to satisfy a judgment on a debt for which it is liable, on the ground that the debtor has other property which is not exempt, and which should be first exhausted, he must make the fact appear affirmatively. Hole v. Henslip, 16 Id., 451.

The interest of a defendant in the assets of a partnership of which he is a member, being liable to be taken in execution or reached by proceedings thereunder, must be first exhausted before resort can be had to the homestead of the defendant. Lambert v. Powers, 38 Id., 18.

The homestead is liable for debts contracted prior to its acquisition, and such liability attaches at the date of the creation of the indebtedness, and not at the date of the rendition of a judgment thereon; and the lien of the judgment also relates back to the time when the debt was contracted, and may be enforced by general execution. Bills v. Mason, 42 Id., 329.

In case of an exchange of homesteads, the new homestead will be liable for an existing debt for the purchase money of the old one, the liability to the latter being transferred by operation of law of the former. Id.

Where P recovered a judgment against Q for the purchase money of the latter's homestead, and bought in the property at execution sale for less than the amount of his judgment, and P also recovered judgment against Q, after the date of P's judgment, upon a claim alleged to antedate the purchase of the homestead, it was held, 1. That P might show aliunde that the debt was contracted prior to the acquisition of the homestead. 2. That he was entitled to redeem from P, upon payment of the amount of his bid. Phelps v. Finn, 45 Id., 447.

The liability of a person who obtained money from another by means of false and fraudulent representations in the sale of a patent right, is a "debt" within the meaning of that word as used in the homestead exemption statute, and that under an execution on a judgment on such debt the homestead may be sold. Warner v. Cammack, 57 Id., 642.

The homestead is liable to be sold on execution for debts contracted in another state prior to its acquisition, after the exhaustion of the other property of the debtor liable to execution. Brainard v. Van Huron, and Same v. Smith et al., 22 Id., 261; Leving v. Cunningham, 17 Id., 510.

A sale of a homestead by a trustee, under a deed of trust, will not be enjoined on the ground that the other property of the owners subject to execution has not been exhausted, when it is not alleged in the petition asking the injunction that the owners have such other property. Stevens v. Myers, 11 Id., 139.
A sheriff’s sale in the foreclosure of a mortgage embracing the homestead, will not be set aside where the sheriff first offers the land in forty acre tracts, according to the government subdivisions, and, receiving no bids, then offers and sells the whole of the land including the homestead.

The homestead descends to the issue of the owner charged with the debts of the latter, which, in his lifetime, have been so enforced against it, but free from such debts as could not, in his lifetime, have been so enforced. Moninger et al. v. Ramsey, 45 Id., 368.

A judgment against a surviving husband is not a lien upon his homestead right in the lands of his wife, unless he shall have abandoned the same, nor can he create a valid lien thereon by the execution of a mortgage. Smith v. Eaton et al., 50 Id., 488.

A homestead may be sold to satisfy a debt of the owner contracted before the enactment of the homestead law, after the other property of the debtor, not exempt from execution, is exhausted; and a delay by the creditor in the enforcement of his claim, during which all the other property belonging to the debtor and subject to execution is alienated, either voluntarily or by judicial sale, for the satisfaction of other debts, does not affect his right to subject the homestead to judicial sale to satisfy the same. Denegre v. Haun, 14 Id., 240.

The defense that the mortgaged premises are the homestead, and for that reason the mortgage is void, must, to be available, be pleaded in the action to foreclose the mortgage, and cannot be interposed in an action to recover the possession by the purchaser at the sale made on the execution under the decree of foreclosure. Hoyne v. Bidd & Co. v. Meek et al., 14 Id., 320.

The conveyance of the homestead by the husband to the wife does not render it liable to debts of the wife contracted prior to such conveyance. Such transfer did not divest the property of its homestead character, which it had prior to the conveyance. Id.

A judgment recovered against the wife after the death of the husband, is not a lien on the homestead which was occupied as such before and after his death. Nye v. Walliker, 46 Id., 396.

And a failure to plat the premises or have the same recorded will not render them liable for debts incurred by the wife after her husband’s death. Id.

The homestead is liable to be taken in execution for debts contracted before it became a homestead. Barhydt & Co. v. Bonny et al., 55 Id., 717.

*Sec. 1993. [When contract stipulates it may be sold.]—The homestead may be sold for debts created by written contract, executed by the persons having the power to convey and expressly stipulating that the homestead is liable therefor, but it shall not in such case be sold except to supply the deficiency remaining after exhausting the other property pledged for the payment of the debt in the same written contract.

It is not essential to the validity of a mortgage of property occupied as a homestead, in the execution of which both concur, to expressly describe the property as a homestead, and to state that it is to that fact that the conveyance is made. Babcock v. Hoyne et al., 11 Iowa, 375.

Where a mortgage embraces several distinct tracts of land, one of which is the homestead of the mortgagor, the homestead should be sold in the foreclosure, only to supply the deficiency remaining after exhausting the other property mortgaged. Lay v. Gibbons, 14 Id., 318.

The homestead cannot be subjected to liability for debt upon mere oral agreement. Rutt v. Howell, 50 Id., 585.

An agreement in a confession of judgment to waive the protection of exemption laws, and to permit execution to issue against any property of the judgment debtor, homestead included, is not such a written contract as will subject the homestead to liability. Id.

Where a deed of trust was substantially as follows: "For the purpose of securing to S. L. S., the sum of, etc., etc., 1, J. C. B., of Polk county, Iowa, do hereby sell and convey, etc., etc., and it said sums of money, to wit, etc., are not promptly paid, etc., then I hereby authorize, etc., etc., In witness whereof the said J. C. B., with ————, his wife, have hereunto set their hands, this 22d day of June, 1857," which deed was duly signed by both the husband and wife, it was held that there was not such a concurrence of the wife as would make it operative as a conveyance of the homestead interest, and that it could be construed only as a relinquishment of dower. Sharp v. Bailey, 14 Id., 357; Sec. also Grapengather v. Freereavy, 9 Id., 163, Shoffner v. Gratzmacher, 6 Id., 131; Westfall v. Lee, 7 Id., 52; Larson v. Reynolds et al., 16 Id., 570.

Where a mortgage of the homestead and other lands was made and delivered as a completed instrument by the husband alone, with the understanding that the wife was not to join therein, but her signature and acknowledgment were subsequently fraudulently obtained by the mortgagee, who thereupon so altered the mortgage and acknowledgment as to make it appear a mortgage by the husband and wife jointly, and thereby giving it the force of a lien upon the homestead, as well as upon other lands covered by the mortgage, it was held, that the alteration was material and rendered the mortgage void. Caudle v. Rose, 35 Id., 456; Lay v. Gibbons, 14 Id., 377.

A subsequent promise by the husband, in such case, to pay additional interest in consideration of an extension of time, would not of itself amount to a ratification of the alteration. Nothing short of full knowledge of the alteration and a manifest intent to ratify the instrument as altered will be sufficient for that purpose. Id.
A mortgage upon a homestead of which the legal title is in the wife, executed by both husband and wife to secure a note given for an existing debt of their son, in consideration of an extension of time, is a valid one, under sections 1990 and 1993 of the code, and may be enforced. Low Bros. & Co. v. Anderson et al., 41 Id., 476.
The homestead may be sold on execution where the debt upon which the judgment was rendered was created by written contract, executed by those having the power to convey the homestead, and expressly stipulating that it shall be liable for the debt. Foley v. Cooper, 431 Id., 376.
The parties possessing the homestead may, however, insist that the other property of the debtor shall be exhausted before the homestead is sold. Id.
If they have notice of the sale of the homestead and make no objection thereto, they are estopped to afterwards claim that other property should have been first exhausted. Id.
Section 2281 of the revision (§§ 1992, 1993 of the code) does not apply to a third person who purchases the property after the execution of a mortgage thereon, nor afford it, in his hands, any exemption from sale in satisfaction of a mortgage in the first instance. Naiker v. Rollins, 30 Id., 412.
A judgment recovered against the widow, after the death of her husband, is not a lien on the homestead, which was occupied as such before and after his death. Nye v. Walliker, 46 Id., 388.
When a widow elects to take her distributive share of her deceased husband's real estate, under the law, and when such share embraces a part or all the homestead, she does not surrender her right to have the property, other than that set apart to her, first exhausted in the payment of a mortgage lien upon the whole premises. Wilson v. Hardesty, 43 Id., 515.
A sale on special execution of two hundred and forty acres of land in gross, part of which was a homestead, will not be held invalid where it appears that the land was first offered in forty acre tracts, by the sheriff, and no bids received for any portion as thus offered. Burmeister v. Devey et al., 27 Iowa, 465.
The offering by the sheriff in separate tracts, and his endeavoring thus to sell before offering and selling in a body, was held to be an exhausting of the other property within the meaning of this section. Id. To the same effect is Brumbaugh v. Shoemaker, 51 Id., 148.
A mortgage upon the homestead in the ordinary form and signed by the husband and wife is valid, although the property is not designated as the homestead of the mortgagees. Reynolds v.
Morse et al., 52 Id., 155.
Where a decree was entered dividing husband and wife, and giving the wife a general judgment for alimony, leaving the husband the head of a family consisting of himself and several children, it was held that the homestead acquired and occupied as such, prior to the rendition of the decree, was not liable to sale for the satisfaction of the decree for alimony. Byers v. Byers et al., 21 Id., 268; Whitcomb v. Whitcomb et al., 42 Id., 715.
This section does not apply to a third person who purchases a homestead after the execution of a mortgage thereon, nor to him, in his hands, any exemption from sale in the first instance. Barker
v. Rollins, 30 Id., 412.
The right of exemption, under this section, when available, is in no sense a cause for a cross-action, but may be claimed in the answer in the foreclosure proceedings, or obtained upon a summary proceeding upon a summary showing, supplemental to the decision of the main case. Id.
A temporary absence of several months, during which the homestead was in the possession of a tenant, was held not to work an abandonment thereof. Robb v. McBride, 28 Id., 396; see, also, Pearson v. Minturn, 18 Id., 56; Surgen v. Chubbuck, 19 Id., 39.
When a mortgage is executed by husband wife on the homestead or other real estate, and prior to foreclosure the mortgagees sell and convey the other real estate and a part of the homestead to other parties, they cannot, under this section, insist in a foreclosure proceeding, that the property so sold and conveyed by them shall be first exhausted, before that part of the homestead which they retain shall be sold. The words "other property" in this section must be limited to property which belongs to the mortgagee at the time of foreclosure. (Beck, J., dissenting.) Dilger v.
Palmer, 60 Iowa, 117.
Where plaintiff commenced an action to foreclose her senior mortgage on two hundred and forty acres of land, of which forty acres were the homestead, a junior mortgagee, whose mortgage covered all the land except the forty acres homestead, was made defendant, and he brought into court the money to pay off the senior mortgage, and demanded an assignment thereof to himself under section 3323 of the code. Held, that he was entitled to an assignment of the senior mortgage only as to the land not included in the homestead. Since the homestead could be sold under the senior mortgage only after exhausting the other land, and could in no case be subjected to the satisfaction of the junior mortgage, an assignment of the senior mortgage as to the homestead could be of no avail in effectuating the purpose of section 3323. Grant v. Parsons et al., 67
CHAP. 8.] THE HOMESTEAD. 743

It is not essential under this section that the homestead shall be specially described as such in a conveyance, or that the deed should in express terms contain a stipulation that the homestead is covered or should be sold. It is sufficient that the parcel of land constituting the homestead is included in the conveyance or mortgage containing the usual provisions. Waterman et al. v. Baldwin, Trustee, et al., 63 Id., 295.

Where a mortgage covering a homestead and other land was foreclosed, and all the land sold thereunder as one tract, a judgment creditor whose claim accrued while the homestead right existed had no lien thereon, but he had a lien on the other portion of the mortgaged premises, and a right to redeem it by paying the amount due on the mortgage, less the value of the homestead. Sutherland v. Tyner, 33 N. W. R., 645.

SEC. 1994. [Extent of homestead.]—The homestead must embrace the house used as a home by the owner thereof, and if he has two or more houses thus used by him at different times and places, he may select which he will retain as his homestead.

An actual removal from the homestead with no intention of returning will be a waiver or forfeiture of the right as against purchasers or creditors, even though no new homestead be gained. Dyffe v. Beers et al., 18 Iowa, 4.

If the removal, however, is but temporary, and the animus revertendi is established, and third persons have not been led to believe that it was not a homestead by the owner out of possession, and to act upon this belief by purchasing or specifically altering their condition upon the faith that it was not exempt as a homestead, the law will treat the homestead right as still subsisting. Id.

Stronger and clearer proof of the abandonment of a homestead is required where the lien sought to be enforced arose during actual occupancy, than where it arose when the owner was not in actual possession. Davis, Moody & Co. v. Kelley, 14 Id., 523; Dunton v. Woodbury, 24 Id., 74.

While the length of absence from the homestead is not conclusive of its abandonment, yet where there are no circumstances or acts of the party manifesting an intention to return and occupy it as such, the length of absence becomes an important fact in determining that question. Id.

Absence from the homestead for about three years without there being manifested, by any circumstances, an intention to return: repeated offers to sell or trade it during that time, and the expression of an intention not to return to it: the creation of the debt sought to be enforced during such absence, and the giving of an order to the creditor authorizing him to collect of the tenant to whom the homestead was rented, sufficient rent to satisfy it, were held, sufficient evidence of abandonment, and to render the property claimed as a homestead liable to the creditor's claim. Id.

In order that the homestead should be exempt from execution sale under the act of January, 1849, entitled "An act to exempt a homestead from forced sale," it must have been owned and actually occupied as a homestead by the owner, while that act was in force; mere constructive possession was not sufficient, nor an intention to occupy together with preparation to that end, and a subsequent actual occupancy will not avail. Charles et al. v. Lamberson, 1 Id., 439.

A homestead law, in force at the date of a contract, becomes part of it, and a repeal of the law does not impair the right of exemption. Bridgman v. Wilcut, 4 G. Greene, 563; Coriell v. Ham, 1 Id., 455.

The homestead character does not attach until the property is actually occupied as a home; a mere intention to occupy, though subsequently carried into effect, is not sufficient. Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa, 435; Edston & Green v. Robinson, 23 Id., 203; but if actually occupied the premises do not lose their homestead character when it serves merely for a temporary purpose. Davis, Moody & Co. v. Kelley, 14 Id., 523; Dyffe v. Beers, 18 Id., 4.

In order to constitute a homestead, there must be a house, situated on real estate, which is used as a home. Waddle v. Brandt, 55 Id., 221, 222.

SEC. 1995. [Same.]—It may contain one or more lots or tracts of land, with the buildings thereon and other appurtenances, subject to the limitations contained in the next section, but must in no case embrace different lots and tracts unless they are contiguous, or unless they are habitually and in good faith used as part of the same homestead.

The homestead embraces the lot and buildings appurtenant to the house, including those used and occupied by the owner in the prosecution of his ordinary business, but does not include buildings which are rented to others and yield a revenue to the owner. Hurz v. Brusch, 14 Iowa, 371.

Where the owner of a building uses the same as a home, the whole of such building, in case of a controversy, will be presumed to constitute the homestead, until it is shown by the adverse party that some specific portion is not of the homestead character, and therefore not exempt. Rhodes, Pegram & Co. v. McCormick, 4 Id., 368.

And, if, under the same roof with the homestead as defined by the statute, there be a floor or floors, room or rooms, which are not used by the family as a part of the home, they are no more exempt than if under another and different roof. Id.

The occupation of a building as a homestead after the execution of a deed of trust conveying the same, in which the wife did not join, cannot change the status of the parties. Hurz v. Brusch, 13 Id., 371.

SEC. 1996. [Same.]—If within a town plat it must not exceed one-half an acre in extent, and if not within a town plat it must not embrace in the aggregate more than forty acres. But, if when thus limited in either case its value is less than five hundred dollars, it may be enlarged till its value reaches that amount.

The homestead when not within a town or city plat, is limited to forty acres, unless its value is less than five hundred dollars, in which case it may be enlarged until its value reaches that sum. 14 Iowa, 49.

So long as the building occupied as a home shall come within the meaning of a homestead as defined by the statute, the value thereof is not limited, though the extent of the ground is: but when not within this definition, it is liable without reference to the value. Rhodes v. Pegram & Co. v. McCormick, 4 Id., 308.

The extent of a homestead situated within a town, will not be limited to half an acre unless the territory embracing it has been platted. McDaniel et al. v. Mace et al., 47 Id., 509.

The extent of a homestead is to be determined from the fee-simple value of the land and not from the value of the tenant’s estate therein. So where the plaintiff’s home was upon a forty acre tract worth more than $500, but her interest in it and an adjoining forty acre tract was only a life estate, worth less than $500, she was not entitled to have more than the forty acres as her homestead. Yates v. McKibben, 65 Id., 357.

Where the home homestead in controversy was an acre in extent, and in a town plat, but the evidence showed that the claimant had offered to sell it for $450, held that under this section of the code the claimant was entitled to hold the whole tract. Boot v. Brewster et al., 36 N. W. R., 649.

SEC. 1997. [Same.]—It must not embrace more than one dwelling-house, or any other buildings except such as are properly appurtenant to the homestead as such; but a shop or other building situated thereon, and really used and occupied by the owner in the prosecution of his own ordinary business, and not exceeding three hundred dollars in value, may be deemed appurtenant to such homestead.

While a tract of land not connected with the dwelling may be held as part of a homestead, it must to this end be shown that “they are habitually and in good faith used as a part of the same homestead.” Reynolds v. Hull, 36 Iowa, 394.

Where the owner of a homestead took possession of a tract of land, under a parol contract of purchase, and improved the same as a part of the homestead, it was held to be exempt from judicial sale to satisfy a debt contracted after such purchase but before an actual conveyance of the property to the debtor. Pyffe v. Beers, 18 Id., 12.

A barn or stable used for ordinary purposes, in connection with a homestead, is property appurtenant to such homestead, within the meaning of this section, and is exempt, without regard to its value. Wright & Co. v. Ditzler, 54 Id., 620.

Where the head of a family for a while occupied both floors of a building as his dwelling, but afterwards used the lower floor for the purposes of a grocery store, carried on by himself, while the family occupied the second floor as a dwelling, held, that the first floor being worth less than $300, was all the time exempt as a part of the homestead, within the meaning and spirit of section 1997 of the code, and the fact that, after he went out of the grocery business, he did not for a while actually use the first floor for any purpose, though it was his intention to occupy it again with his family, did not make it liable for his debts. Smith v. Quigy, 65 Id., 637.

Where the buildings on a city lot were used in part as the dwelling of the owner and his family, and in part for business purposes, and the portions used for business exceeded $300 in value, held that the portions used for business were not exempt as appurtenant to the homestead, under section 1997 of the code, and that such portions might be sold under execution against the owner, together with such easements as were necessary to their proper use and enjoyment. Johnson v. Moer, 66 Id., 558. See also Rhodes v. McCormack, 4 Id., 368, and Mayfield v. Maasden, 50 Id., 517.

SEC. 1998. [Who may select and have platted and recorded.]—The owner, or the husband or wife, may select the homestead and cause it to be marked out, platted, and recorded, as provided in the next section. A failure in this respect does not leave the homestead liable, but the officer having an execution against the property of such a defendant, may cause the homestead to be marked off, platted, and recorded, and may add the expense thence arising to the amount embraced in his execution.
The property occupied by the parties will be regarded and treated as the homestead when both husband and wife failed to select the property they wish to have set apart as such. Alley v. Bay, 9 Iowa, 509.

A failure to plat or have recorded the premises occupied as a homestead will not render them liable for debts incurred by the wife after the death of her husband. Nye v. Walliker, 46 Id. 306.

The plat of a homestead must be recorded to constitute a valid selection under the statute. White v. Rowley et al., 46 Id., 680.

Where an officer holds an execution against a homestead and other lands, and the occupants have failed to select and plat the homestead, it is the duty of the officer to select and plat the same as provided in this section, and to exhaust the other property liable to sale before offering the homestead; and a failure so to do will render the sale void. In such case, the owners of the homestead are not estopped from maintaining an action to set aside the sale on the ground that they had notice thereof and made no objection thereto at the time. As the execution itself notified the officer that there were other lands liable, besides the homestead, the owners had a right to rely upon his doing his duty without notice or request from them. But the rule is otherwise where the officer cannot be charged with notice of other property, unless the same is pointed out by the execution defendants. Owens et al., v. Hart, 62 Id., 629.

The failure of the owners of a homestead and of the sheriff to select and plat it, as prescribed in sections 1998 and 1999 of the code, does not render an execution sale of it void, but only voidable. Newman, Trustee, v. Franklin et al., 60 Id., 244.

Where the dwelling was situated on the land of the wife, lying contiguous to that owned by the husband, and both tracts were occupied as a homestead, and the husband had disappeared, the wife was held entitled to claim as against his creditors, a homestead carved in part out of her own and part of her husband’s land. Lorell v. Shannon et al., 60 Id., 718.

SEC. 1999. The homestead shall be marked off by fixed and visible monuments, and in giving the description thereof, the direction and distance of the starting point from some corner of the dwelling-house shall be stated. The description and plat shall then be recorded by the recorder in a book to be called the “homestead book,” which shall be provided with a proper index.

When the judgment debtor has failed to select and plat his homestead, it is the duty of the officer holding an execution against him, to cause the same to be done before selling any portion of the premises of which the homestead is a part, and a failure to do so will render the sale invalid, even though the government subdivision of forty acres on which the house is situated be not sold. Id.

SEC. 2000. [May be changed.]—The owner may, from time to time, change the limits of the homestead by changing the metes and bounds, as well as the record of the plat and description, or may change it entirely, but such changes shall not prejudice conveyances or liens made or created previously thereto, and no such change of the entire homestead, made without the concurrence of the husband or wife, shall affect his or her right or those of the children.

Where homestead premises, acquired before a debt was contracted by the owner, was sold by him and he transferred his homestead to other property of less value than the former homestead, the new homestead having been acquired after the creation of a debt, but the same was acquired and used as a home before the rendition of judgment on the debt, the new homestead was held exempt from judicial sale for the satisfaction of the debt. Pearson v. Minturn, 18 Iowa, 36.

In Elston & Green v. Robinson, 21 Id., 351, it was held that a change of homestead by a judgment debtor from one parcel of land to another, cannot displace or affect the liens of judgments rendered before such change. But in Farman v. Dewell, 35 Id., 170, it was held, that where the judgment debtor changed his homestead from premises on a lot in a town to a tract of land, not exceeding forty acres, and of no greater value than the former, that the new homestead was exempt; the lien of the judgment thereon being transferred to the old homestead, which being of equal value to that of the new one, the judgment creditor could not be prejudiced by such transfer.

In case of the purchase of a homestead, with means derived partly from the sale of a former one and partly from other sources, where the new homestead did not exceed the value of the old one, the owner is entitled to hold the new homestead exempt from debts contracted during and subsequent to the occupancy of the old one. Benham v. Chamberlain & Co., 39 Id., 358.

The sale of a homestead, with the intention of purchasing another, entitles a party to a sufficient time in which to carry out his intention, and if there be no unreasonable delay, he will hold the new homestead exempt from debts contracted after the sale of the old one. Id. See, also, The State v. Gradelis, 44 Id., 537, where the same doctrine is held.

A new homestead, acquired with the proceeds arising from the sale of the old one, is exempt
SEC. 2001. The new homestead, to the extent in value of the old, is exempt from execution in all cases where the old or former homestead would have been exempt, but in no other, nor in any greater degree.

Under the provisions of our statute the owner may change his homestead, and the new homestead, to the extent in value of the old one, will be exempt in all cases in which that would have been exempt. Furman v. Dewell, 35 Iowa, 170; See, also, Sargent v. Chubbuck, 19 Id., 37; Pearson v. Minturn, 18 Id., 36.

Although, under this and the preceding sections, a party may change his homestead, and the new one acquired with the proceeds of the old one will be exempt from judicial sale in all cases in which the former homestead would have been exempt, yet where the proceeds of an Iowa homestead are invested in a new homestead in another state, and afterwards this new homestead is sold and the proceeds invested in a third homestead in Iowa, this last homestead will not be exempt from execution for a debt which was contracted before it was purchased. The homestead fund loses its distinctive character upon being carried and invested in another state. Rogers v. Raisor, 60 Id., 855.

A new homestead of no greater value than the old one, though purchased in part with proceeds of the old one and part with other funds, is exempt from the debts of the owner, contracted subsequently to the occupancy of the old homestead. Lay v. Templeton et al., 59 Id., 684.

SEC. 2002. [Disagreement: how settled.]—When a disagreement takes place between the owner and any person adversely interested, as to whether any land or buildings are properly a part of the homestead the sheriff shall, at the request of either party, summon nine disinterested persons having the qualification of jurors. The parties then, commencing with the owner of the homestead, shall in turn strike off one juror each and shall continue to do so until only three of the number remain. These shall then proceed as referees to examine and ascertain all the facts of the case, and shall report the same with their opinion thereon to the next term of the court from which the execution or other process may have issued.

The object of a reference under this section is, not to make a selection of the homestead, but to enable the court to determine whether certain land claimed to be exempt really is so. White v. Bowley, 46 Id., 680.

Where it was properly determined, under the provisions of this and the following section, that the whole of the farm of an execution defendant, consisting of one hundred and sixty acres was exempt as a homestead, being of less value than five hundred dollars, it was held, that the fact that it had not been platted as a homestead prior to the levy of the execution upon a portion thereof, did not render it liable to sale under such levy. Green v. Farrar & Wheeler, 53 Id., 426.

When a question arises between an execution creditor and debtor as to what lands are included in a homestead, it may be determined by proceedings under this section of the code, but the question as to whether the debtor has any homestead rights at all is one to be determined by a court, in a proper action for that purpose. McCauley v. Weidell, 70 Id., 725.

SEC. 2003. If either party fail to strike off jurors in the manner directed in the last section, the sheriff may strike off such jurors.

SEC. 2004. The count may also, in its discretion, refer the whole matter, or any part of it, back to the same referees, or to others to be selected in the same manner, or as the parties otherwise agree, giving them directions as to the report that is required of them.

SEC. 2005. When the court is sufficiently possessed of the facts of the case, it shall make its decision, and may, if expedient, direct the homestead to be marked off anew, or a new plat and description to be made and recorded, and may take any further step in the premises which, in its discretion, it may deem proper.
for attaining the objects of this statute. It shall also award costs as nearly as may be in accordance with the practice observed in other cases.

Sec. 2006. [Change of circumstances.]—The extent or appurtenances of the homestead as thus established, are liable to be called in question in like manner, whenever a change in value or circumstances will justify such new proceeding.

Sec. 2007. [Survivor to occupy.]—Upon the death of either husband or wife, the survivor may continue to possess and occupy the whole homestead until it is otherwise disposed of according to law.

Upon the death of the husband, the wife is entitled to continue in the occupancy of the homestead. It, however, she permanently abandons it as a homestead, it will cease to have that character, and she thereby forfeits her right thereto, and becomes a tenant in common with the other heirs. Orman v. Orman, 26 Id., 361.

The granting of a divorce to a wife and giving her the custody of the children, does not render the homestead remaining in the possession of the husband, liable for his debts. The homestead law is to be liberally construed. Woods v. Davis, 34 Id., 264.

The title to the homestead, upon the death of the owner leaving a widow and heirs, vests in the heirs, the right of the widow being limited to that of occupancy. Johnson v. Gaylord, 41 Id., 362.

The abandonment of the homestead by the widow does not subject it to liability for debts where there are surviving heirs, except as to debts which would have bound the estate before the death of the husband. Hart v. Butterfield, 44 Id., 310.

The right of occupancy and possession by the survivor confers no title to the property, and he cannot execute a valid mortgage thereon. Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 359; Butterfield v. Wicks, 44 Id., 310.

The granting of a divorce to the wife and giving her the custody of the children does not render the homestead remaining in the possession of the husband, liable for his debts. The homestead law is to be liberally construed. Woods v. Davis, 34 Id., 264.

Where the title to the land including the homestead, is in the wife, the surviving husband has right to elect to retain the homestead for life, or to take in lieu thereof, one-third of the whole property in fee simple. Burdick v. Kent, 33 Id., 483.

The granting of a divorce to the wife and giving her the custody of the children does not render the homestead remaining in the possession of the husband liable for his debts. The provisions of the homestead statute are to be construed liberally. Woods v. Davis, 34 Id., 264.

Upon the death of either husband or wife, the survivor cannot be therein an abandonment of the homestead by the survivor, if the title was in the deceased, except by setting off the distributive

The surviving widow is, as to the homestead, as much the head of the family and entitled to control the rents and profits of the same, as was the husband while living. Floyd v. Moser, 1 Id., 512.

A judgment against the surviving husband is not a lien upon his homestead right in the real property of his deceased wife, unless he shall have abandoned the same, nor can he create any valid lien thereon by the execution of a mortgage. *Smith v. share of such survivor's share in the real estate of the deceased. Darrah, Adm'r, v. Cunningham et al., 72 Id., 123.

Where the owner of a homestead left the same temporarily, and went to the state of Kansas with her husband, and kept house for him and abode there, but without any intention of permanently residing in Kansas, her husband, however, going into business and becoming a citizen of that state, and about a year later she died in Kansas, and in a few months thereafter her husband also died there, it was held that the wife's homestead right continued notwithstanding the temporary abandonment, and that as her husband's distributive share in her estate had not been set off to him during his life time, the homestead was not liable for his debts, but descended to the children exempt from any antecedent debts of their parents or their own. Bradshaw v. Hurst, 57 Id., 745.

The right of the widow to continue in possession and occupancy of the homestead, after the death of her husband, is not a right or interest in his estate which she takes by inheritance, but is entirely distinct from the interests which she takes by virtue of that right. It is a mere personal right to occupy and possess the premises, but is unaccompanied by any title or interest therein. It does not accrue with the death of the husband, nor is it enlarged or otherwise affected thereby. She had the right to the same during his life and the statute simply continues it after his death. Mahaffy v. Mahaffy, 63 Id., 64.

SEC. 2008. [Disposal of: what deemed descent.]—The setting off of the distributive share of the husband or wife in the real estate of the deceased shall be such a disposal of the homestead as is contemplated in the preceding section. But the survivor may elect to retain the homestead for life in lieu of such share in the real estate of the deceased; but if there be no such survivor, the homestead descends to the issue of either husband or wife according to the rules of descent, unless otherwise directed by will. Lorieux v. Keller, 5 Id., 196. See, also, Parsons v. Livingston et al., 11 Id., 104.

Under this section the homestead descends to the heirs at law of either husband or wife, which ever may have held the legal title. Barnes v. Keyes et al., 21 Id., 251.

Upon the death of the husband the widow is entitled, at her election, to retain the homestead in lieu of so much of her distributive share, or to have her distributive share so assigned as to include the homestead; but she is not entitled to the homestead and dower in the remainder of the estate. Whitehead v. Conklin et al., 48 Id., 478. See, also, Moninger et al. v. Ramsey, Id., 368.

The distributive share of a widow in lands owned by her deceased husband, aside from the homestead, should bear its proportionate share of a mortgage indebtedness thereon, made by her husband in which she joined. Trowbridge v. Sypher, 55 Id., 552.

Where the wife died without issue seized of a homestead, which the husband elected to retain and occupy during life instead of his distributive share, it was held that the share thus relinquished was one-third interest only, and that upon his abandonment of the homestead he was entitled to one-sixth of the estate as heir at law. Having relinquished the homestead, his distributive share therein was relinquished. He could not have both. Smith v. Zuckmeyer, 53 Id., 14; and see Butterfield v. Wicks, 44 Id., 310; Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 353; Burdick v. Kent et al., 53 Id., 553.

A husband and wife joined in a conveyance of their homestead, owned by the wife, to their son, subject to the right of either grantor to occupy during life. The conveyance was without actual consideration, and was designed to take the place of a will. The wife died, and the husband left the homestead and dwelt until his death with his son. There were other heirs who would have inherited an estate in the property, had the conveyance not been made and the wife died intestate. Held, that the son could not hold the property exempt from his prior debts under this section of the code. Keifenstahl v. Osborne & Co., 63 Id., 557.

SEC. 2009. [When sold.]—If there is no such survivor or issue, the homestead is liable to be sold for the payment of any debts to which it might at that time be subjected if it had never been held as a homestead.

SEC. 2010. [Devises of.]—Subject to the rights of the surviving husband or

Under this section the homestead may be disposed of by will by the husband or wife owning the same, subject to the right of the survivor to continue in the occupancy of the same after the defeat of the testator. Stewart v. Brand, 23 Iowa, 471; Lamb v. Shays, 14 Id., 571.

The right of occupancy and possession of the homestead by the survivor, confers no title to the property, and he cannot make a valid mortgage thereon. Butterfield v. Wicks et al., 44 Id., 310.

CHAPTER 9.
OF LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Sec. 2011. [Apportionment of rent.]—The executor of a tenant for life, who demises real property so held, and dies on or before the day on which the rent is payable, and a person entitled to rent dependent on the life of another, may recover the proportion of rent which had accrued at the time of the death.

Sec. 2012. [Holding over.]—A tenant giving notice of his intention to quit the demised premises at a time named, and afterwards holding over, and a tenant or his assignee willfully holding over the premises after the term, and after a notice to quit, shall pay to the person entitled thereto double the rental value of the premises during the time he holds over.

Sec. 2013. [Attornment: when void.]—The attornment of a tenant to a stranger is void, unless made with the consent of the landlord, or pursuant to or in consequence of a judgment at law or in equity, or to a mortgagee after the mortgage has been forfeited.

An attornment to the mortgagee, even after forfeiture by non-payment, is not valid until the mortgage has been foreclosed, and, when the property is sold subject to redemption, the period of redemption has expired. Mills et al. v. Hamilton, 49 Iowa, 105.

The attornment of a tenant to a mortgagee before the expiration of the mortgagor's right of redemption under a foreclosure sale is invalid. Mills v. Heaton, 52 Id., 215.

Sec. 2014. [Tenant at will.]—Any person in the possession of real property with the assent of the owner, is presumed to be a tenant at will until the contrary is shown.

Where an action is brought to recover possession of premises on the ground that the defendant entered into possession with the consent of the owner, and holds over after the termination of his lease, the plaintiff must prove these facts, and cannot (without amendment) recover upon proof

A parcel license of mining land is valid, and can be terminated by compensation to the licensee or the notice necessary to terminate a tenancy at will. Harkness v. Burton, 39 Id., 101.

See, also, Beatty v. Gregory, 17 Id., 109.

When the duration of a tenancy is not shown, it will be presumed to be a tenancy at will. Cotes & Patchin v. The City of Davenport, 9 Id., 227.

When a person is in possession of real property with the assent of the owner, and nothing is shown to the contrary, he will be regarded as a tenant at will. Abercrombie v. Redpath, 1 Id., 110.

Where a tenant at will erected buildings upon unoccupied lots, after which the notice required by the statute to terminate the tenancy was served, but the tenant continued in possession for a series of years, by the sufferance of, and without any interference by, the landlord, it was held, that the service of notice to quit did not change the relations of the parties, that the party in possession continued to be a tenant at will. Newell v. Sanford, 13 Id., 191.

Where a tenant takes possession of premises under an agreement that he is to occupy them only so long as he shall continue in the employment of the landlord, he will not be regarded as a tenant at will, but as one holding under a definite lease; and if, after quitting the service of the landlord, he refuses to yield up possession of the premises, he will be regarded as one holding over after the termination of his lease, and subject to an action of forcible detainer on the part of the landlord, upon three days' notice to quit. Grose nor v. Henry, 27 Id., 269.

Where the defendant held and occupied a stall in a public market as the tenant of a city, for the term of one year, and at the expiration of the term he retained possession, and entered into an agreement to lease for another year, but refused to pay the rent according to the terms of the agreement, it was held that he was a tenant at will, and not from year to year. The City of Dubuque v. Miller, 11 Iowa, 583.

At the expiration of the term of the lease the tenancy ceases, and a lessee holding over, unless after the termination of the lease he has been allowed to plant a crop, is entitled to only the three days’ notice to quit, provided by section 3611 of the code. Kellogg v. Graves et al., 53 Id., 395.

Upon the passage of the title to real property by a sale upon execution, the execution defendant in possession becomes the tenant at will of the purchaser, and such tenancy is only terminated by a legal demand of possession. Where property was sold on execution without redemption, in November, but no demand of possession was made until the following June, it was held that the purchaser was not entitled to the crop planted by the former owner in possession. Dobbins v. Lush et al., Id., 304.

When there becomes a tenant at will he takes the premises in their then condition, and is entitled to the growing crops thereon. Martin v. Knapp, 57 Id., 336.

Possession with the assent of the owner, raises merely a presumption of a tenancy at will, which may be rebutted; as, where it is shown that the person in possession does not recognize the owner as landlord, but holds adversely, either adversely or as tenant of another, this will rebut the presumption of a tenancy at will.

One in possession of real property with the assent of the owner, is at least a tenant at will; and the absence of a showing that he is restrained by his lease, he will be presumed to have the right to sub-let the premises. Goldsmith v. Wilson, Sheriff, 68 Id., 685.

SEC. 2015. [Notice to quit.]

—Thirty days’ notice in writing is necessary to be given by either party, before he can terminate a tenancy at will; but when, in any case, a rent is reserved payable at intervals of less than thirty days, the length of notice need not be greater than such intervals between the days of payment. In case of tenants occupying and cultivating farms, the notice must fix the termination of the tenancy to take place on the first day of March; except in cases of field tenants or croppers, whose leases shall be held to expire when the crop is harvested; provided, that in a case of a crop of corn it shall not be later than the first day of December, unless otherwise agreed upon. But where an express agreement is made, whether the same has been reduced to writing or not, the tenancy shall cease at the time agreed upon, without notice.

The service of notice to quit, given by a landlord to his tenant, cannot be proved by a written return of service and affidavit thereof, by a person not an officer, and the proof in such case must be by the person making the service as a witness on the trial and subject to the right of cross-examination. Hollingsworth v. Snyder, 2 Iowa, 435.

In March, 1882, the plaintiff leased to the defendant, as a “field tenant or cropper,” certain land to be planted in corn, he to have delivered to him as rent one-third of the corn raised. No time was fixed when the lease should terminate, nor when the corn should be delivered. On the fourth day of the following December the plaintiff sued the defendant for a money judgment on account of the corn not delivered, without having made any previous demand for the corn. Held, that, although the lease terminate by operation of law on the first day of December, that provision of the law did not amount to an agreement between the parties that the corn should then be delivered; and in the absence of a stipulation on that point, plaintiff could not recover a money judgment without first demanding the corn. Johnson v. Shank, 67 Id., 115.

SEC. 2016. [How served.]

—When such tenant cannot be found in the county, the notice above required may be given to any sub-tenant or other person in possession of the premises, or if the premises be vacant, by affixing the notice to the principal door of the building, or in some conspicuous position on the land if there be no building.

SEC. 2017. [Lien of landlord.]

—A landlord shall have a lien for his rent upon all crops grown upon the demised premises, and upon any other personal property of the tenant which has been used upon the premises during the term, and not exempt from execution, for the period of one year after a year’s rent or the rent of a shorter period claimed falls due; but such lien shall not in any case continue more than six months after the expiration of the term.

The lien of a landlord for rent may be asserted in an action of replevin, in which the tenant’s goods have been seized by an alleged owner. Edwards et al. v. Cotrell et al., 43 Iowa, 194.

The lien of a mortgage of chattels duly recorded is prior to that of a landlord upon whose premises they may be afterward used by the mortgagee as his tenant, although the mortgagees may have actual knowledge that such chattels were being so used upon the leased premises, Garchow & Sons v. Pickens, 51 Id., 381.

Where land is leased upon condition that the third of the crop shall be delivered to the owner in payment of rent, the owner acquires no title to the part of the crop reserved for the rent until it is set apart for him by the tenant. Townsend et al. v. Osenberger et al., 45 Id., 570.

But a creditor of a tenant who is cultivating land upon shares cannot by a levy of an attachment upon the growing crop of the tenant, deprive the landlord of his lien thereon. Atkins v. Womeldorf, 53 Id., 150.

Under this section a landlord has a lien upon all property of the tenant not exempt from execution, used upon the leased premises, for the rent of the entire term of the lease, and such lien attaches to the property as soon as the same is brought upon the premises. Martin v. Stearns et al., 55 Id., 345.

Under the statute the landlord's lien for rent for the entire term of the lease attaches to property used on the leased premises at the time such property is brought thereon, although it may not be enforceable as to rent not due, so long as the business of the tenant is conducted in the usual manner and as contemplated by the lease. Gilbert, Lodge & Co. v. Greenbaum et al., 36 Id., 211.

Where during the term of the lease another was made between the same parties and covering the same property, it was held that while the execution of the second lease operated as a cancellation of the first, as between the parties, the landlord's lien for rent under the second lease, upon property kept upon the premises at the time of the change, would not be postponed by reason thereof to that of a chattel mortgage made by the lessee prior to such change, and of which the lessor had no knowledge at the time. Rollins v. Proctor, id., 326.

Not only farms and agricultural lands are within the statute, but houses and store rooms in towns and cities; and the landlord has a lien upon property kept upon the premises for the purpose of sale to customers, although not used thereon for any other purpose. Grant v. Whitehall, id., 152.

The lien attaches at the commencement of the term upon all personal property kept by the tenant upon the leased premises in the prosecution of the business for which the term was created, for the rent to become due or that will accrue during the entire term. Garner v. Cutting, 32 Id., 541; Grant v. Whitehall, 9 Id., 152; Carpenter v. Gillespie, 10 Id., 592.

The landlord may have an injunction to restrain a sale and removal of the personal property, on which the lien exists, from the demised premises, by the tenant or his assignee. Grant v. Cutting, 32 Id., 547.

The lien attaches only to property used and incident to the business for the prosecution of which the premises were leased. Grant v. Whitehall, 9 Id., 152.

Seemle, that the lien does not attach to goods sold before the lien is enforced, when selling goods was the business for which the premises under the lease were used. Id. Sec. also, Nesbit v. Bartlett, 14 Id., 485.

A mortgagee of chattels may, after being garnished by a creditor of the mortgagee, pay over out of the surplus in his hands, after satisfying the mortgage debts, to the landlord, rents accrued upon the building in which the goods were kept, and which were in arrears when the mortgagee took possession. Donee & Co. v. Garrettson, 34 Id., 351.

Where land is rented on the shares, the landlord has a lien thereon on the crops grown on the premises the same as if the rent had been payable in money; and where, by the terms of the lease, the lessee is to gather and deliver to the landlord the share to which he is entitled, but fails therein, so that the landlord is obliged to gather it himself, he has a lien for the value of such labor as a part of the rent which the tenant agreed to pay. Secord v. Stivers et al., 35 Id., 580.

This section gives a landlord a lien for rent upon crops raised on the demised premises; and this lien is not divested by a sale of the crops by the tenant; but the landlord may follow the crops into the hands of the purchaser, and if he has consumed them, he will be liable to the landlord in damages. Holden v. Cox, 60 Id., 449.

Where a promissory note, executed in part for rent due and unpaid, was negotiated by the landlord, and upon non-payment by the maker, was paid by him and again became his property, his lien for rent is not lost by the negotiation of the note. Whether or not the lien passed as an incident of the assignment, quere. Farwell v. Grier et al., 38 Id., 83.

Where a farm tenant, the head of a family, kept and used a span of horses on the leased premises, and which were kept for such use and not for sale, and were the only horses owned or used by him; and the lease was not recorded, nor was there any lien or incumbrance on the horses, of record, and prior to the maturity of any rent the tenant traded the horses for another span to a person who had no actual knowledge of the lease, or where the horses were kept, and subsequently absconded with all his property leaving the rent unpaid, it was held: 1. That the horses were subject to the landlord's lien for rent; 2. That the sale of the horses did not have the effect to defeat the lien, the sale being subject to the lien thereon; 3. As the statute creating the lien provides for no protection in favor of persons having no notice thereof, the property subject to the lien cannot be transferred free from the lien on the ground of the want of such notice. Richardson Bros. v. Peterson et al., 58 Id., 724.

Querie.—Were the horses not exempt from execution, and, therefore, not subject to the lien?—Ed.

The lien of a mortgagee of chattels, whose mortgage is duly recorded, is prior to that of a landlord upon whose premises they may be afterward used by the mortgagor as his tenant, although the mortgagee may have knowledge that such chattels were being so used upon the leased premises. Jarcho v. Sons v. Pickens, 51 Id., 381.

The lessor of a hotel has no lien for rent on property owned by the lessee's wife, though it be used in furnishing the hotel during the term of the lease; and where the wife had mortgaged such property to secure a debt, and the mortgage was recorded, and the lessee afterward sold his lease to F., and the wife also sold the mortgaged property to F., subject to the mortgage, and F. took possession under such purchases, it was held, that the lessor had a lien on the property to secure the rent accruing after F. took possession, but that such lien was inferior to the lien of the mortgage with which the wife of the original lessee had placed on the property. Perry v. Waggoner, 65 Id., 493.

A landlord's lien attaches to "all crops grown upon the demised premises," and thus extends to crops grown by a sub-tenant. Houghton v. Bauer et al., 70 Id., 314.

One who purchases from a tenant, and converts to his own use, crops on which the landlord has a lien for rent, is liable to the landlord in damages to the amount of the lien, but the action for such damages must be brought within six months after the expiration of the term of the lease, or it will be too late. Nicholsen v. Negley & Sherwin, 71 Id., 546.

Sec. 1218. [How affected: attachment.]—The lien may be effected by the commencement of an action within the period above prescribed for the rent alone, in which action the landlord will be entitled to a writ of attachment, upon filing with the proper clerk, or the justice, an affidavit that the action is commenced to recover rent accrued within one year previous thereto upon premises described in the affidavit.

The attachment of the property of a lessee does not give the court jurisdiction of the interest of an assignee in the property before such assignee has been notified, or his interest is levied upon by regular process. Wells, Pettit & Co. v. Seguin & Johnson, 14 Iowa, 143.

The remedy by landlord's attachment is purely statutory, and will be strictly construed. Merrett v. Fisher, 19 Id., 354.

Rent is a certain profit, either in money, provisions, chattels or labor issuing out of lands and tenements as retributive or return for their use. Id.

A landlord's attachment will not lie for damages for a failure to till land, or by reason of the breaches of covenants in the agreement of lease not connected with the demise of the land; it can only lie for rent due. Id.

An action to recover rent commenced by ordinary attachment before the rent was due, cannot be deemed an action to affect a landlord's lien, and gives the plaintiff only such lien as an ordinary attachment gives. Clark v. Haynes, 57 Id., 96.

A landlord has a lien for rent upon growing crops, which may be enforced by attachment, if the rent is due and unpaid; and, therefore, an injunction will not issue to restrain the tenant from their removal from the leased premises. Rotzler v. Rotzler et ux, 49 Id., 189.

The landlord may maintain an action for rent due without asking for an attachment in his petition. And if he desires the issuance of the writ, he is to make the affidavit provided for in the statute. Bartlett v. Gaines, 11 Id., 95.

By taking a mortgage which, by a failure to have it recorded, cannot be enforced, a landlord does not lose his lien upon his property of his tenant. Pittin & Brooks v. Fletcher et al, 47 Id., 53.

The lien of a landlord for rent may be asserted in an action of replevin, in which the tenant's goods have been taken by an alleged owner. Edwards & al. v. Cottere et al, 43 Id., 194.

The crops of a sub-tenant can be appropriated under a landlord's attachment in an ordinary action against the original tenant for the rent. Houghton v. Bauer et al., 70 Id., 314.
CHAPTER 10.

OF WALLS IN COMMON.

SECTION 2019. [When built on the land of another.]—In cities, towns, and other places surveyed into building lots, the plats whereof are recorded, he who is about to build contiguous to the land of his neighbor, may, if there be no wall on the line between them, build a brick or stone wall at least as high as the first story, if the whole thickness of such wall above the cellar wall does not exceed eighteen inches, exclusive of the plastering, and rest the one-half of the same on his neighbor’s land; but the latter shall not be compelled to contribute to the expense of said wall.

The right to that portion of a party-wall which rests upon the lot of an adjoining proprietor is, under the statute, a right not personal to the owner of the lot on which the building is erected, but one running with the land; and a conveyance of the lot upon which the building is situated passes to the grantee the right to recover of the adjoining owner the value of one-half the wall when used by him. Thompson et al. v. Curtis et al., 28 Iowa, 229.

Where half of the wall of a building rests upon a vacant lot, the presumption is, that it belongs to the owner of the lot on which the building is situated; but this presumption changes when the owner of the vacant lot builds thereon and uses the half-wall resting on his lot. It will then be presumed to belong to him. Bertram v. Curtis, 31 Id., 46.

Where the owner of a vacant lot, having the half of a neighbor’s wall resting thereon, sells and conveys the same with covenants, he is not liable thereon as for an incumbrance. Id.

While under the statute a person erecting a brick or stone building may rest one-half of the wall thereof on the land of his neighbor, and use the same as a party wall, he cannot subject it to a servitude foreign to its uses as a wall in common, nor injure its capacity by making openings therein. Sullivan v. Graffort, 35 Id., 531.

While it is the duty of a person erecting a party wall to make it of sufficient strength to support another building similar to the one of which it forms a part, yet he is not bound to make it strong enough to support any kind of a building which may be erected by the adjoining proprietor. Gilbert v. Woodruff, 32 Id., 320.

SEC. 2020. [Contribution by owners.]—If his neighbor be willing, and does contribute one-half of the expense of building such wall, then it is a wall in common between them; and if he even refuses to contribute to the building of such wall, he shall yet retain the right of making it a wall in common, by paying to the person who built it one-half of the appraised value of said wall at the time of using it.

Where a party wall is erected, and the owner of the adjoining lot puts the wall in use by erecting an adjacent building, and afterwards conveys to a party, who has notice that his grantor has not paid for his share of such wall, the grantee is liable to the person who erected the wall or to his grantee for his proportion of the value thereof under this section of the code. Poe et al. v. Buchanan, 73 Id., 637.

SEC. 2021. [Openings in: presumption.]—No wall shall be built by any person partly on the land of another with any openings therein, and every wall being a separation between buildings, shall, as high as the upper part of the first story, be presumed to be a wall in common, if there be no titles, proof, or mark to the contrary; and if any wall is erected, which under the provisions of this chapter, becomes, or may become at the option of another, a wall in common, such person shall not be compelled to contribute to the expense of any openings therein, but the same shall be closed at the expense of the owner of such wall.

SEC. 2022. [Repairs: expense apportioned.]—The repairs and rebuilding of walls in common are to be made at the expense of all who have the right to the same, and in proportion to the interest of each therein; nevertheless, every co-proprietor of a wall in common may be exonerated from contributing to the repairs or building, by giving up his right in common if no building belonging to him be actually supported by the wall thus held in common.
Sec. 2023. [Beams, joists and flues.] — Every co-proprietor may build against a wall held in common, and cause beams and joists to be placed therein, and any person building such a wall, shall, on being requested by his co-proprietor, make the necessary flues, and leave the necessary bearings for the joists or beams, at such height and distance apart, as shall be specified by his co-proprietor.

Sec. 2024. [Height of wall.] — Every co-proprietor is at liberty to increase the height of the wall in common; but he alone is to be at the expense of raising it, and of repairing and keeping in repair that part of the wall above the part so held in common.

Sec. 2025. [Rebuilding expenses.] — If the wall so held in common cannot support the wall to be raised upon it, he who wishes to have it made higher, is bound to rebuild it anew entirely and at his own expense, and the additional thickness of the wall must be placed entirely on his own land.

Sec. 2026. [Same.] — The person who did not contribute to the heightening of the wall held in common, may cause the raised part to become common by paying one-half of the appraised value of such raising, and one-half of the value of the grounds occupied by the additional thickness of the wall, if any ground was so occupied.

Sec. 2027. [Same.] — Every proprietor joining a wall, has, in like manner, the right of making it a wall in common, in whole or in part, by repaying to the owner of the wall one-half of its value, or the one-half of the part which he wishes to hold in common, and one-half of the value of the ground on which it is built, if the person who has built the wall has laid the foundation entirely upon his own ground.

Sec. 2028. [Cavities: fixtures.] — Neither of the two neighbors can make any cavity within the body of the wall held by them in common; nor can either affix to it any work without the consent of the other, or without having, on his refusal, caused the necessary precautions to be used so that the new work be not an injury to the rights of the other, to be ascertained by a person skilled in building.

Sec. 2029. [Disputes: delay bonds.] — No dispute between neighbors, as to the amount to be paid by one or the other, by reason of any of the matters treated of in this chapter, shall delay the execution of the provisions of the same, if the party on whom the claim is made shall enter into bonds, with security, to the satisfaction of the clerk of the district court of the proper county, conditioned that he shall pay to the claimant whatever may be found to be his due on the settlement of the matter between them, either in a court of justice or elsewhere; and the said clerk of the district court is hereby required to endorse his approval on said bond when the same is approved by him, and retain the same in his custody until demanded by the opposite party.

Sec. 2030. [Agreements.] — This chapter shall not prevent adjoining proprietors from entering into special agreement about walls on the lines between them; but no evidence of such agreement shall be competent unless it be in writing, signed by the parties thereto, or their lawfully authorized agents, and whenever such proprietor is a minor, the guardian of his estate shall have full authority to act in all matters relating to walls in common.

OF BASEMENTS IN REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 2031. [Adverse possession.]—In all suits hereafter brought, in which title to any easement in real estate shall be claimed by virtue of adverse possession of the same for the period of ten years or by prescription, the use of the same shall not be admitted as evidence that the party claimed the easement as his right, but the fact of adverse possession shall be proved by evidence distinct from and independent of the use, and that the party against whom the claim is made had express notice thereof; and these provisions shall apply to public as well as private claims.

This section of the code does not apply in any case of a highway which had been used as such by the public for more than ten years prior to the enactment of the code. Baldwin v. Herbst, 54 Iowa, 184.

A highway cannot be established by user alone, although the owner of the land had knowledge of such use, unless the owner also had express notice that a highway was claimed independent of the mere use. The State v. Mitchell, 58 Id., 567. Zigefoose v. Zigefoose, 60 Id., 391; State v. K. C., St. J. & C. R. R'y Co., 45 Id., 139.

On an indictment for obstructing a highway the fact that the public used the road is competent evidence of the acceptance of the right of way, where a dedication is alleged to have been made by the owner, providing only that the use shall not be competent evidence to establish title to an easement claimed by adverse possession. State v. Birmingham, 38 N. W. Rep., 121.

SEC. 2032. [Light and air.]—Whoever has erected, or may erect, any house or other building near the land of another person with windows overlooking such land, shall not, by mere continuance of such windows, acquire any easement of light or air, so as to prevent the erection of any building thereon.

SEC. 2033. [Foot way.]—No right of foot way, except claimed in connection with a right to pass with carriages, shall be acquired by prescription or adverse use for any length of time.

SEC. 2034. [Use may be terminated by notice.]—When any person is in the use of a way or other easement, or privilege in the land of another, the owner of the land in such case may give notice in writing to the person claiming or using the way, easement, or privilege, of his intention to dispute any right arising from such claim or use, and such notice served and recorded as hereinafter provided shall be deemed an interruption of such use, and prevent the acquiring of any right thereto by the continuance of such use for any length of time thereafter. Such notice, signed by the owner of the land, his guardian, or agent, may be served like a notice in a civil action, on the party, his agent, or guardian if within this state, otherwise on the tenant or occupant, if there be any; such notice, with the return thereon, shall be recorded within three months thereafter in the recorder's office of the county in which the land is situated, and a copy of such record, certified by the recorder to be a true copy of said notice, and the officer's return thereon, shall be evidence of the notice and the service of the same.

SEC. 2035. [Effect of.]—When notice is given to prevent the acquisition of a right to a way or other easement as aforesaid, such notice shall be considered so far a disturbance of such right or claim, as to enable the party claiming to bring an action for disturbing the same in order to try such right, and if the plaintiff in such a suit prevails he shall recover full costs.

SEC. 2036. [No application.]—The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to easements already acquired.
TITLE XIV.

OF TRADE AND COMMERCE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF WEIGHTS, MEASURES, AND INSPECTION.

SECTION 2037. [Standard of.]—The standard weights and measures now in charge of the secretary of state, being the same that were furnished to this state by the government of the United States, shall be the standard of weights and measures throughout the state.

SEC. 2038. [Yard.]—The unit or standard measure of length and surface from which all other measures of extension, whether they be lineal, superficial, or solid, shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard yard now in possession of the secretary of state and furnished by the government of the United States.

SEC. 2039. [Division of.]—The yard shall be divided into three equal parts called feet, and each foot into twelve equal parts called inches. For the measure of cloths and other commodities commonly sold by the yard, it may be divided in halves, quarters, eights and sixteenths.

SEC. 2040. [Rod, pole or perch.]—The rod, pole or perch, shall contain five and a half such yards, and the mile, one thousand seven hundred and sixty such yards; the chain for measuring land shall be twenty-two yards long, and shall be divided into one hundred equal parts called links.

SEC. 2041. [Land measure.]—The acre for land measure shall be measured horizontally, and contain ten square chain, and shall be equivalent in area to a rectangle sixteen rods in length and ten in breadth; six hundred and forty such acres being contained in a square mile.

SEC. 2042. [Avoirdupois and troy.]—The units or standard of weight from which all other weights shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard avoirdupois and troy weights as furnished this state by the United States.

SEC. 2043. [How divided.]—The avoirdupois pound, which bears to the troy pound the ratio of seven thousand to five thousand seven hundred and sixty, shall be divided into sixteen equal parts called ounces; the hundred weight shall consist of one hundred avoirdupois pounds, and twenty hundred weight shall constitute a ton. The troy ounce shall be equal to the twelfth part of a troy pound.

SEC. 2044. [Liquids: measure of.]—The unit or standard measure of capacity for liquids from which all other measures of liquids shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard gallon and its parts, as furnished this state by the government of the United States.

SEC. 2045. [Barrel: hogshead.]—The barrel shall be equal to thirty-one and a half gallons, and two barrels shall constitute a hogshead.

SEC. 2046. [Substances other than liquids.]—The unit or standard measure of capacity for substances not being liquids, from which all other measures of such substances shall be derived and ascertained, shall be the standard half-bushel furnished this state by the United States.
SEC. 2947. [Peck: divisions of.]—The peck, half-peck, quarter-peck, quart, and pint measures for measuring commodities which are not liquids, shall be derived from the half-bushel by successively dividing that measure by two.

SEC. 2048. [Contracts: construction.]—All contracts hereafter made within this state for work to be done, or for anything to be sold or delivered by weight or measure, shall be taken and construed according to the standards of weight and measure hereby adopted as the standard of this state.

SEC. 2049. [Bushel: what constitutes.]—A bushel of the respective articles hereinafter mentioned will mean the amount of weight in this section specified; that is to say:

- Of wheat, sixty pounds;
- Of shelled corn, fifty-six pounds;
- Of corn in the cob, seventy pounds;
- Of rye, fifty-six pounds.

(As amended by ch. 89, 16th g. a.) [Of oats, thirty-two pounds;]

- Of barley, forty-eight pounds;
- Of potatoes, sixty pounds;
- Of beans, sixty pounds;
- Of bran, twenty pounds;
- Of clover seed, sixty pounds;
- Of timothy seed, forty-five pounds;
- Of flax seed, fifty-six pounds;
- Of buckwheat, fifty-two pounds;
- Of blue grass seed, fourteen pounds;
- Of castor beans, forty-six pounds;
- Of dried peaches, thirty-three pounds;
- Of dried apples, twenty-four pounds;
- Of onions, fifty-seven pounds;
- Of salt, fifty pounds;
- Of stone coal, eighty pounds;
- Of sweet potatoes, forty-six pounds;
- Of lime, eighty pounds;
- Of sand, one hundred and thirty pounds;

(As amended by ch. 21, 18th g. a.) [Of Hungarian grass seed, forty-eight pounds;]

- Of millet seed, forty-eight pounds;
- Of Osage orange seed, thirty-two pounds;
- Of sorghum saccharatum seed, thirty pounds;
- Of broom corn seed, thirty pounds;
- Of apples, peaches, or quinces, forty-eight pounds;
- Of cherries, grapes, currants, or gooseberries, forty pounds;
- Of strawberries, raspberries, or blackberries, thirty-two pounds;

(As amended by ch. 52, 16th g. a.) [Of coke, thirty-eight pounds;]

(As amended by § 1, ch. 42, 17th g. a.) [Of charcoal, twenty pounds.]

(As amended by ch. 50, 21st g. a.) The gauge or inch of cream is two standard quarts, wine measure, 115 cubic inches.

SEC. 2050. The perch of mason work or stone, is hereby declared to consist of twenty-five feet cubic measure.

Under the statute, twenty-five cubic feet constitute a perch of mason or stone work, and where a contract on its face does not show that it is made with reference to some custom, the provision of the statute will govern in determining the right of the parties thereunder. Harris v. Rutledge, 19, Iowa, 388.
SEC. 2051. [Hops: boxes for.]—The standard size for all boxes used in packing hops, shall be thirty-six inches long, eighteen inches wide, and twenty-three and one-fourth inches deep, inside measure.

ESTABLISH UNIFORM GAUGE OF CREAM.

An Act to establish a uniform inch or gauge of cream.

SECTION 1. [Cream gauge: two quarts.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That an inch or gauge of cream shall be two standard quarts, wine measure, 115\(\frac{1}{2}\) cubic inches.

Approved March 26, 1886.

SUPERINTENDENT OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

SEC. 2052. [Superintendent.]—A superintendent of weights and measures for this state, who shall be a scientific man, of sufficient learning and mechanical tact to perform the duties of his office, shall be appointed by the governor from the board of professors of the Iowa state university, and shall hold his office during the pleasure of the governor, and shall give a bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars for the faithful discharge of his duties.

SEC. 2053. [Duty of.]—The superintendent shall take charge of the standards adopted hereby, and see that they are deposited in the building built for this purpose now belonging to the state, from which they shall in no case be removed, and take all necessary precautions for their safekeeping. He shall provide the several counties with such standards, balances and other means of adjustment, as may be ordered by them, and as often as once in ten years, and compare the same with those in his possession. He shall, moreover, have a general supervision of the weights and measures of the state.

SEC. 2054. [Procure copies of standards.]—He shall procure and keep for the state a complete set of copies of the original standard of weights and measures adopted hereby, which shall be used for adjusting the county standards and in no case shall the original standards be used for any other purpose than the adjustment of this set of copies. He shall also procure and keep such apparatus and fixtures as are necessary in the comparison and adjustment of county and town standards.

SEC. 2055. [Impressions on weights furnished by him.]—The state superintendent of weights and measures, shall cause to be impressed upon all standards of weights and measures furnished by him, the word “Iowa,” and such other devices as he shall direct for the particular county, city or incorporated town, and the county sealers shall see that, in addition to the above device, there is impressed on the town and city standards such other device as the board of supervisors shall direct for the several cities and incorporated towns.

SEC. 2056. [Resignations: duty of successors.]—Whenever the state superintendent of weights and measures shall resign, be removed from office, or remove from Iowa City, or whenever any city, county or incorporated town sealer shall resign, be removed from office, or remove from the city, county or town in which he shall have been appointed or elected, the person so resigning, removed or removing, shall deliver to his successor in office all the standard beams, weights and measures in his possession.
Sec. 2057. [Weights and measures procured: county sealer appointed.]—The board of supervisors of any county may, at any regular meeting, provide for obtaining from the state superintendent of weights and measures such standards of weights and measures as they may deem necessary for their county, and in case they order such standards, they shall appoint a county sealer of weights and measures, who shall hold his office during the pleasure of the board.

Sec. 2058. [Duty of sealer.]—The county sealer shall take charge of the county standards and standard balances, and provide for their safe keeping; shall provide cities and incorporated towns with such standard weights and measures, and standard balances, as may be wanting, and shall compare the cities and incorporated towns standards and incorporated towns standards with those in possession as often as once every five years.

Sec. 2059. [Sealer appointed.]—A sealer of weights and measures may be appointed in every city and incorporated town by the town council thereof, and shall hold his office during their pleasure, and said council may obtain from the sealers of weights and measures of their respective counties, such standards of weights and measures as they may deem necessary for their respective cities or incorporated towns; and in case the board of supervisors of any county in which any city or town may be situated shall not have obtained such standards, then said council may obtain the same from the state superintendent of weights and measures.

Sec. 2060. [Duty of.]—Each sealer in cities and incorporated towns shall take charge and provide for the safe keeping of the town or city standards, and see that the weights, measures, and all apparatus used for determining the quantity of commodities used throughout the town or city, which shall be brought to him for that purpose, agree with those standards in his possession.

Sec. 2061. [Expenses.]—All expenses directly incurred in furnishing the several counties, cities, and incorporated towns, with standards, or in comparing those that may be in their possession, shall be borne by the respective counties, cities, and incorporated towns for which such expenses shall have been incurred.

Sec. 2062. [Death of sealer.]—In case of the death of any such sealer of weights and measures, his representatives shall, in like manner, deliver to his successor in office such beams, weights, and measures.

Sec. 2063. [Penalty.]—In case of refusal or neglect to deliver such standards entire and complete, the successor in office may maintain an action against the person or persons so refusing or neglecting, and recover for the use of such county, city, or incorporated town, double the value of such standards as shall not have been delivered. And in every such action in which judgment shall be rendered for the plaintiff, he shall recover double costs.

Sec. 2064. [Penalty.]—If any person or persons shall hereafter use any weights, measures, beams, or other apparatus, for determining quantity of commodities, which shall not be conformable to the standards of this state, in any counties whose standards have been obtained by the board of supervisors, or in any city or incorporated town after such standards have been obtained therein, whereby any person shall be injured or defrauded, he shall be subject to a fine not exceeding five dollars for each offense, to be sued for and collected by the city, county, or town sealer. He shall also be subject to an action at law, in which the defrauded person shall recover treble damages and costs, and every person keeping any store, grocery, or other place, for the sale or purchase of such commodities as are usually sold by weight or measure, shall, once in each year, procure the weights and measures used by him to be compared with the standard herein provided; and he shall be subject to a fine of five dollars for every neglect to comply with this provision, to be recovered by any one who shall prosecute therefor.

WEIGHMasters OF PUBLIC SCALES.

SEC. 2065. [Oath: definition of public scales.]—All persons keeping public scales, before entering upon their duties as weighmasters, shall be sworn before some person having authority to administer an oath, to keep their scales correctly balanced; to make true weights; and to render a correct account to the person or persons having weighing done. Every scale shall be deemed a public one, for use of which a charge is made.

SEC. 2066. [Make correct weights: keep register: give certificate.]

All weighmasters are required to make true weights and to keep a correct register of all weighing done by them, giving the amount of each weight, date of weighing, and the name of the person or persons for whom such weighing was done, and to give, upon demand, to any person or persons having weighing done, a certificate, showing the weight, date of weighing, and for whom weighed.

SEC. 2067. [For weighing stock or grain: standard procured.]—Weighmasters, or keepers of public scales kept for the purpose of weighing stock or grain, shall provide and keep a standard of weight not less than fifty pounds avoirdupois for the purpose of testing such scales, and they shall at least once a month, or oftener if required, make a satisfactory test of the correctness of such scales.

SEC. 2068. [Penalty.]

Any weighmaster, or keeper of public scales, violating any of the provisions of the two preceding sections, upon complaint made before any justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the offense, may, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not more than twenty dollars and not less than five dollars for each offense, and shall be liable to the person or persons injured, for the full amount of damages by them sustained.

OF THE INSPECTION OF SHINGLES AND LUMBER.

SEC. 2069. [Inspector appointed.]

The board of supervisors of each county, as often as may be necessary, shall appoint one inspector of lumber and shingles, who shall have the power to appoint one or more deputies to act under him. For the conduct of the deputies, the principal shall be liable.

SEC. 2070. [Oath: bond of.]

Before any inspector or deputy inspector shall enter upon the duties of his office, he shall take an oath or affirmation that he will faithfully and impartially execute the duties required of him by law, and each inspector shall, moreover, enter into a bond with sufficient security to be approved by the county auditor, in such sum as the board of supervisors may require, made payable to the state of Iowa, which bond shall be deposited with the treasurer of the county, conditioned for the faithful and impartial performance of his duties, as required by law.

SEC. 2071. [Suit on bond.]

Any person who may think himself aggrieved by the incapacity, neglect, or misconduct of such inspector or his deputy, may institute a suit on a copy of the bond certified by the treasurer, in his own name. And in case the person suing shall obtain judgment, he may have execution as in other cases; but the suit shall be commenced within one year after the cause of action accrues.

SEC. 2072. [Duties of inspector.]

The inspectors or their deputies, within their respective counties, shall inspect all lumber, boards and shingles, on application made to them for that purpose; and when inspected, stamp on the lumber, boards and shingles, with branding irons made for that purpose, the name of the state and county where inspected, and the kind and quality of the articles inspected, which branding-iron shall be made and lettered as directed by the board of super­visors. And every inspector shall make, in a book for that purpose, fair and dis­tinct entries of articles inspected by him or his deputies, with the names of the persons for whom said articles were inspected.

Sec. 2073. [Penalty for counterfeiting.]—If any person shall counterfeit the aforesaid brands or marks, or either of them, upon conviction thereof, he shall be deemed guilty of forgery, and shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 2074. [Size of shingles; how branded; division of lumber.]—A lawful shingle shall be sixteen inches in length, four inches wide, and half an inch thick at the butt end; and all lumber shall be divided into four qualities, and shall be designated clear, first common, second common, and refusal. Shingles shall be clear of sap, and designated as first and second quality. The shingles to be branded on each bundle with the quality and the name of the inspector.

CHAPTER 2.

MONEY OF ACCOUNT AND INTEREST.

Section 2075. [How expressed.]—The money of account of this state is the dollar, cent, mill, and all public accounts and the proceedings of all courts in relation to money, shall be kept and expressed in money of the above denomination.

Sec. 2076. The above provisions shall not in any manner affect any demand expressed in money of another denomination, but such demand, in any suit or proceeding affecting the same, shall be reduced to the above denomination.

Sec. 2077. [Interest: rate of.]—The rule of interest shall be six cents on the hundred by the year, on:
1. Money due by express contract;
2. Money after the same becomes due;
3. Money lent;
4. Money received to the use of another, and retained beyond a reasonable time without the owner's consent, express or implied;
5. Money due on settlement of matured accounts from the day the balance is ascertained;
6. Money due upon open accounts after six months from the date of the last item;
7. Money due, or to become due, where there is a contract to pay interest, and no rate is stipulated. In all of the cases above contemplated parties may agree in writing for the payment of interest not exceeding ten cents on the hundred by the year.

Where an agreement in writing is silent as to the rate of interest, the plaintiff is entitled to interest at six per cent per annum from maturity. Myers v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 181; Vennum v. Gregory, 21 Id., 328.

When by the terms of a note the interest is payable annually, the interest after it becomes due and remains unpaid is an indebtedness to the payee of the note upon which he is entitled to interest, in the absence of any agreement as to the rate, at six per cent per annum. Mann v. Cross, 9 Id., 327.

But, while interest may be recovered upon an installment of interest due by express contract, upon interest falling due and not paid at the maturity of the principal, the interest, in such case, is a mere incident to the principal, and the general rule is not changed by the statute. Aspinwall v. Blake, 25 Id., 319.

Where a note is made payable at a specified time "with interest at ten per cent per annum," the payee is entitled to interest thereon after as well as before maturity at the rate of ten per cent per annum. Hand v. Armstrong, 18 Id., 324.
It is not competent for the court to allow, as damages for the non-payment of money, more than the legal rate of interest. Vennum v. Gregory, 21 Id., 329.

Where a note, secured by a mortgage, provided for interest at ten per cent per annum, and the mortgage stipulated for interest at the same rate, "payable annually, according to the terms of the promissory note," it was held that the mortgage provided for something respecting which the note was silent, and would govern. Dobbins v. Parker et ux, 46 Id., 357.

Where the plaintiff set up a parcel contract to pay interest at the rate of ten per cent, but only claimed six per cent, it was held that since ten per cent included six per cent, that plaintiff might recover six per cent upon the allegation of an express oral promise to pay ten. Brockway v. Haller, 57 Id., 365.

A contract which provides for interest at the rate of ten per cent, payable semi-annually, and for interest at the rate of ten per cent on the semi-annual installments of interest after they become due, is not usurious. Following Ryan v. Day, 46 Id., 239. Hawley v. Hottell, 60 Id., 70.

Where money is paid for the use of another under circumstances creating an obligation to reimburse the party paying, interest on the money from the date of payment may be recovered. Goodnow v. Litchfield, 63 Id., 275.

A provision in a note requiring the interest to be paid quarterly, and stipulating that the interest if not paid when due should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent, does not render the contract usurious. Rogan v. Dow et al, 46 Id., 239.

A married woman cannot be charged with attorney's fees and interest at ten per cent on a debt for which she is charged as a family expense, because her husband has given a note stipulating therefor. Fitzgerald v. McGarty et al, 55 Id., 702.

The legal rate of interest cannot exceed ten per cent per annum on the sum actually loaned, by the provisions of sections 2077 and 2078 of the code. Building associations are not authorized by section 1186 of the code to receive more than such sum as interest on their loans actually made. Where a note, bearing interest, was made and delivered by the borrower to such an association including not only the amount actually received by him, but also the premium paid the association for the loan, and the interest contracted to be paid being more than ten per cent on the sum actually loaned, held, that the note was usurious. Hawkeye Benefit Loan Association v. Blackburn, 45 Id., 385.

SEC. 2078. [On judgments and decrees.]—Interest shall be allowed on all moneys due on judgments and decrees of any competent court or tribunal, at the rate of six cents on the hundred by the year, unless a different rate is fixed by the contract on which the judgment or decree is rendered; in which case the judgment or decree shall draw interest at the rate expressed in the contract, not exceeding ten cents on the hundred by the year, which rate must be expressed in the judgment or decree.

A decree or judgment will draw only the rate of interest of the debt, and if a part of the debts draw one rate of interest and a part another, the decree or judgment will in like manner draw different rates of interest. Burrows v. Stryker et al, 47 Iowa, 477.

Chattels mortgaged to secure notes bearing interest at the rate of ten per cent, were seized and converted under execution, and the mortgagees brought suits and obtained judgments on account thereof upon an indemnifying bond given by the plaintiffs in execution to the sheriff. Held that the judgments should draw the same interest as the notes secured by the mortgage. Rand, Ex'r v. Barrett et al, 66 Id., 732.

In order that a judgment on a contract drawing more than six per cent interest may draw the same interest, it must be so expressed in the judgment itself. So where the plaintiff was entitled to have his judgment bear interest at ten per cent, but by oversight the rate of interest was not expressed in the judgment, held that he could not, without first having the error corrected by proper proceedings, enforce the judgment for more than it's face and six per cent interest. Rice v. Harbert, 67 Id., 734.

SEC. 2079. [Prohibition.]—No person shall, directly or indirectly, receive in money, goods, or things in action, or in any other manner, any greater sum of value for the loan of money, or upon contract founded upon any bargain, sale, or loan of real or personal property, than is in this chapter prescribed.

The extension of time of payment of a loan is a loan of money within the meaning of the statute, and where the sureties upon a note executed a new note in consideration for the extension of time upon the original undertaking, the transaction was held, usurious. Kendig v. Linn et al, 41 Iowa, 62.

SEC. 2080. [Usury: penalty for taking.]—If it shall be ascertained in any suit brought on any contract, that a rate of interest has been contracted for greater than is authorized by this chapter, either directly or indirectly, in money or property, the same shall work a forfeiture of ten cents on the hundred by the year.
upon the amount of such contract, to the school fund of the county in which the suit is brought, and the plaintiff shall have judgment for the principal sum without either interest or cost. The court in which said suit is prosecuted shall render judgment for the amount of interest forfeited as aforesaid against the defendant, in favor of the state of Iowa for the use of the school fund of said county, whether the said suit is contested or not; and in no case where unlawful interest is contracted for, shall the plaintiff have judgment for more than the principal sum, whether the unlawful interest be incorporated with the principal or not.

One man may lawfully ask and take from another to whom he sells property on time, a larger sum than he is willing to take for it in case the price is paid down; and the fact that the increased price, payable at a future day, or in installments, is greater than the legal interest at the cash price, will not render the contract usurious. But if it appeared that this form of contract was resorted to as a cover for usury, or for the purpose of evading the usury law, it would be held, usurious.

The statute does not declare the whole contract, when tainted with usury, void, but allows the plaintiff to recover his principal, without interest or costs, and requires the defendant to pay ten per cent to the school fund. And where usurious interest has been once paid, it cannot be recovered back. Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Coopers & Clark, 9 Id., 376; Bacon v. Teel et al., 4 Id., 439.

The "contract" contemplated in section 2080 refers to the original agreement or contract in which the debtor stipulated to pay more than lawful interest; it is not limited to the note or written evidence of that contract. When the note is sued on the law permits the maker, by his own oath, to go behind it and show the consideration, if usurious. And if in a suit thus brought, it shall appear that a rate of interest greater than that allowed by the statute has been contracted for, either directly or indirectly, the same works a forfeiture of ten per cent per annum upon the amount of such contract. Smith et al. v. Coopers & Clark, 9 Id., 376.

When payments have been made upon an usurious contract, and the creditor brings an action to enforce the collection of the balance, such payments will be applied as credits upon the amount legally due, excluding the usury from the amount originally contracted to be paid. Id.

In computing interest where partial payments have been made, such payments are applied, in the first place, to the discharge of interest then due. If the payment exceeds the interest, the surplus goes toward discharging the principal, and the subsequent interest should be computed on the principal then remaining due. If the payment be less than the amount of interest due, the balance of interest, remaining unpaid, will not be taken to augment the principal, but interest will continue on the principal until the payments, taken together, exceed the interest due, when the surplus, if any, will be applied to the discharge of the principal; whereupon interest will be computed on the balance of principal due as before. Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Coopers & Clark, 9 Id., 316; Campbell v. McHarg, Id., 354; Drake v. Lowrey, 14 Id., 125.

In rendering judgment upon an usurious contract for money loaned, in favor of the school fund, the court should compute interest at the rate of ten per cent from the date at which the money was borrowed. Id.

Where not otherwise agreed by the parties, interest on money due on an open account should be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum, after six months from the date of the last item in the account. Isett & Brewer v. Oglevie & Co., 9 Id., 313.

Where the defendants kept an account with the plaintiffs as bankers, and at the end of each month a balance of account was ascertained and entered in the books of both parties, and interest reckoned thereon, and it was proved that such was the custom of bankers, known to the defendants, and they never interposed any objection thereto, it was held, that plaintiffs were entitled to recover interest computed on their account by monthly rests according to the custom. Id.

An agreement to pay a sum of money by a day certain, with ten per cent interest, and more than legal interest, after maturity, by way of penalty, if the debt is not punctually paid, is not usurious, but a promise to pay any further sum in excess of legal interest, for such delinquency, cannot be enforced. Gower & Holt v. Carter & Shattuck, 3 Id., 244; Conrad v. Gibbon, 29 Id., 120.

No damages for the non-payment of money can ever be so liquidated between the parties as to waive the statute which fixes the rate of interest. Id.

Where the maker of a promissory note delivered the same to the payee without consideration, with the design of avoiding the statute against usury, and it was so assigned without recourse, by the payee, to such party, who delivered the consideration to the assignor, by whom it was delivered to the maker, it was held usurious. Nicholas v. Levins et al., 15 Id., 362.

In an action on a promissory note, it appeared, on the trial, that the transaction was usurious, that the defendant had already paid the principal and about twenty per cent interest thereon, and that the note sued on was for additional usurious interest, it was held, error to render judgment against the defendant for interest on the sum loaned in favor of the school fund. Easly v. Brand et al., 18 Id., 132.

The statute does not declare the whole contract, when tainted with usury, void, but allows the plaintiff to recover his principal, without interest or costs, and requires the defendant to pay ten per cent to the school fund. And where usurious interest has been once paid, it cannot be recovered back. Smith, Twogood & Co. v. Coopers & Clark, 9 Id., 376; Bacon v. Teel et al., 4 Id., 439.

Where the maker of a promissory note delivered the same to the payee without consideration, with the design of avoiding the statute against usury, and it was so assigned without recourse, by the payee, to such party, who delivered the consideration to the assignor, by whom it was delivered to the maker, it was held usurious. Nicholas v. Levins et al., 15 Id., 362.

In an action on a promissory note, it appeared, on the trial, that the transaction was usurious, that the defendant had already paid the principal and about twenty per cent interest thereon, and that the note sued on was for additional usurious interest, it was held, error to render judgment against the defendant for interest on the sum loaned in favor of the school fund. Easly v. Brand et al., 18 Id., 132.
To constitute usury there must be a contract and intent to take, directly or indirectly, usurious interest. The incorporation into a note of balance previously due on contract, an additional sum as compensation to the payee for his expenses and loss of time occasioned by the default of the maker in paying him the money first agreed upon, was held not usurious. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Id., 290.

From the taking effect of the code of 1851, until the taking effect of the law of 1853, in regard to interest on money, which has been incorporated into the code of 1873, the taking of a rate of interest as high as twenty-four per cent was held, in the absence of fraud or undue influence by the creditor, not to be in violation of any law of the state, and enforceable in the courts. Palmer v. Leffler, 18 Id., 125.

When the maker of an usurious note, which was secured by a deed of trust, borrowed money of a third party to pay on the same, and instead of making a new note for the money borrowed, caused the note paid thereby to be transferred by the payee to the lender, as evidence of the new debt, held, that the note was not tainted with usury in the hands of the second holder. Wendelbone v. Parks et al., 1 Id., 546.

The cancellation of a note tainted with usury and the execution of a new one for the balance remaining after deducting the payments made from the amount of the principal and usurious interest does not purge the transaction of usury. Smith, Teggard & Co. v. Coopers & Clark, 9 Id., 376; Campbell v. McIlarg, 1 Id., 554; Garth v. Cooper & Smith, 12 Id., 394.

However usury may be covered by changes and substitutions, if it be found to exist, either directly or indirectly, its taint continues and affects all the parts through which it runs; the substitution of one contract for another, the taking of a new note for an old one will not purge it. Id.

A statement for judgment by confession does not estop the defendant, before judgment is entered thereon, to set up the defense of usury in the debt which is the basis of the statement for judgment. Lyon v. Welsh et al., 29 Id., 578.

A confession of judgment in consideration of a renewal of a note, made to evade the law against usury, will be regarded as invalid. Ohm v. Dickerman, 50 Id., 571.

Usury may be pleaded in an action brought on an usurious contract in the name of an indorsor, or innocent holder. Bacon v. Lee & Gray, 4 Id., 490.

The defense of usury cannot be pleaded by a party who is not privy to the contract involved in the action. Drake v. Lowry, 14 Id., 125.

Where the payee of one, and the indorsers of another promissory note, both of which were made by a firm for a consideration tainted with usury, before taking the same, called at the business place of the makers thereof, and asked one of the partners if the note represented by the note was "all right, and would be paid," to which it was replied, that "it was, and would be promptly paid," after which the parties making the inquiry took the notes by assignment without any knowledge of the usury, in payment of a debt due them from the assignors, it was held, that the makers of the notes were estopped by this representation from setting up usury as a defense in an action on the notes. French & Davies v. Rose & Hyde, 15 Id., 583. This would be otherwise if the assignees had knowledge of the usury. Nichols v. Levin, 1 Id., 362.

The bona fide purchaser of an accommodation note, by a person ignorant of the character of the paper, for a less sum than its face, or at a greater rate of discount than legal interest, is not an usurious transaction; and the defense of usury is not available by the maker in an action against him on the note by such holder. Dickerman v. Day, 31 Id., 444.

Where money is borrowed at usurious interest, and a part thereof is paid, and a new note given for the balance bearing a legal rate of interest, the contract is tainted with usury. Collawan v. Shaw, 24 Id., 441.

If the maker of an usurious note represents to a person about to purchase the same that there was no usury in it, and such person purchases the note on the faith of such representations, without knowledge of it being usurious, the maker is estopped from afterwards setting up the defense of usury; *alter", if the representations were not relied on, or the assignee had knowledge of the usury. Id.

In an action by the payee upon an usurious note against the maker and his surety, the state is entitled to a judgment for the amount of interest forfeited against the surety as well as against the principal. Mclntosh v. Likins, 25 Id., 555.

An agreement on the part of a purchaser of a lot of sheep, to pay therefor, in addition to a certain sum of money agreed upon, "two pounds of wool per year for such sheep so sold," is not necessarily usurious. First National Bank of Marshalltown v. Owen, 23 Id., 135.

A contract for the sale of land on a credit of one year, for a sum equal to the amount of the original purchase money, paid to the government, and forty per cent thereon, is not usurious. Id., 93.

To constitute the receiving of more than legal interest, usury, so as to work the forfeiture prescribed in the statute, it must have been received in pursuance of a contract of loan. But while the receiving of more than legal interest, if not in pursuance of such contract, would not work the forfeiture provided by the statute, it will be held as payment to be first applied in discharge of the interest due, and after that on the principal. Section v. Murdock, 36 Id., 516.

Where an agent for the loaning of money made loans at usurious rates, held, that he would not be presumed to have had authority to make the loans at such rates, and that his act would not

Usury may not only be pleaded as a defense, but also may be made the ground of original and affirmative relief, and in the latter case it is not necessary for the party seeking equitable relief from a usurious contract to allege and prove that he has tendered legal interest in addition to the principal. Morrison v. Miller, 46 Id., 84. In New York the rule is different. Fanning v. Dun ham, 5 John. Ch., 122. See, also, I. G. Greene, 121.

An attorney's fee stipulated for in a note in case suit be brought thereon, where in such suit the note is found usurious, cannot be recovered in an action thereon. No more than the principal sum, without interest or costs can be recovered. Miller v. Gardner, 49 Id., 284.

A defendant who was not a party to the usurious contract cannot set up the defense of usury.
Frost v. Shaw, 10 Id., 491; Hollingsworth v. Swickard, Id., 385; Poole v. Hunt, 11 Id., 439; Perry v. Kearns, 13 Id., 174; Dvr v. Lowry, 14 Id., 125; Sternburg v. Callahan et al.,
15 Id., 470; Allison & Crane v. King, 22 Id., 56.

Where a surety has given his own note in part payment of his principal's usurious note, he cannot maintain the plea of usury against the holder of the note so given by him. Culver v. Wilberv Bros., 48 Id., 26.

The fact that the agent of a borrower, who is paid a commission in excess of legal interest by the borrower for procuring the loan, divides such commission with the agents of the lender, will not

Where an agent for loaning money takes a commission beyond the legal rate of interest, without the knowledge or consent of his principal, his action does not affect usury the loan of the principal, and this rule is not modified or varied by the fact that the agent and principal occupy the relation to each of husband and wife. Bringham v. Myers, 51 Id., 397. To the same effect are Gokey v. Knapp, 44 Id., 32; Wyllis v. Ault et al., 46 Id., 46.

It was held in Binehart v. Buckingham et al., 34 Iowa, 409, that section 1791 of the revision (now § 2080 of the code), which made the defendant a competent witness to prove the usurious character of the contract, was not affected by section 3982, which provided that a party was not competent to prove facts transpiring before the death of a person, when the opposite party is his executor or administrator.

Where money has been loaned on a usurious contract, and payment has been made upon the loan, in rendering judgment against the borrower in favor of the school fund, the amount upon which利息 is to be computed should be ascertained by deducting the payments from the whole sum loaned. Sheldon v. Metcalf & Head, 49 Id., 33, Smith, Twoogood & Co. v. Cooper & Clark, 9 Id., 330.

A note and mortgage executed to secure a loan of gold at a higher rate of premium than the market value of the gold, held usurious. Walker v Austin et al., 45 Id., 527.

The extension of the time of payment of a loan is a loan of money within the meaning of the statute, and where the surties upon a note executed a new note for forty dollars for the consideration of the extension of time on the original obligation, the transaction was held to be usurious. Kendig v.
Linn and Hanson, 47 Id., 62.

Where in the progress of an action on a promissory note it appears that there should be a judgment for the school fund on account of usury, under this section, it is competent for the court to ascertain by evidence, in addition to that introduced on the trial, the amount of the forfeiture for which the judgment should be rendered. Seekel v. Norman et al., 71 Id., 284.

Sec. 2081. [Assignee may recover of usurer.—] Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to prevent the proper assignee, in good faith and without notice, of any usurious contract, recovering against the usurer the full amount of the consideration paid by him for such contract, less the amount of the principal money, but the same may be recovered of the usurer in the proper action before any court having competent jurisdiction.

The indorsee of a promissory note who takes it with knowledge that it is tainted with usury, is not a bona fide assignee within the meaning of section 1792 of the revision, (section 2081 of the code), and cannot recover the consideration paid for the same, from the indorser. Brown v. Wilcox and Sawyer, 15 Iowa, 414. Lowry, J., dissenting.

If a surety has made and given his own note for his principal's usurious debt, he cannot main-
CHAPTER 3.
OF NOTES AND BILLS.

SECTION 2082. [Negotiable.]—Notes in writing, made and signed by any person, promising to pay to another person or his order or bearer, or to bearer only, any sum of money, are negotiable by indorsement or delivery in the same manner as inland bills of exchange, according to the custom of merchants.

A promissory note payable in property is not negotiable in the sense of the law merchant, and the maker is not under the laws of Iowa entitled to days of grace. McCartney v. Smalley's Adm'r, 11 Iowa, 55.

The holder of a promissory note, without indorsement, where it is payable to the order of the payee, may maintain an action thereon in his own name, but without prejudice to the maker's right of set-off or equities existing before notice of the transfer. Younker v. Martin, 18 Id., 142.

A presentment to only one of the makers of a joint note is not sufficient to charge an indorser, unless some legal excuse be shown for the failure to make presentment to the other. Blake v. McMillan, 25 Id., 598.

A note or other written evidence of indebtedness payable in current funds is not to be regarded upon its face as negotiable. Haddock v. Woods, 46 Id., 488; Huse v. Hamblin, 29 Id., 501; Rindskoph Bros. & Co. v. Barrett, 11 Id., 172.

But it may be shown by parol evidence, what was the peculiar meaning of the term current funds, and that the parties to the paper knew that it meant money. Pilmer v. The Br. State Bank, 16 Id., 321; Huse v. Hamblin, 29 Id., 501; Haddock v. Woods, 46 Id., 488.

A blank indorsement creates the same liability from the indorser to the indorsee, as if it were in full, giving the holder power to demand payment, or to make it payable to himself, or to any other person on his order. Id.

A stipulation in a promissory note that is negotiable and payable at place therein designated, has no effect upon the negotiability of the note, and does not restrain or limit its negotiability elsewhere. The Schoharie County N. Bank v. Bevard et al., 51 Id., 297.

An instrument in the following form: "Certificate, Illinois Phoenix Bank, Chicago, Sept. 22, 1854. Briggs & Felthouser have deposited in this bank $462.50, to the order of themselves, payable two months after date, payable to their order on the return of this certificate, at interest at six per cent. M. Roe & Co., Cashier," is a negotiable instrument. And when it is transferred by the payees by a blank indorsement, they are liable thereon. Bean v. Briggs & Felthouser, 1 Id., 488.

A promissory note in the ordinary form contained the following clause immediately preceding the signature: "If this agent does not sell enough in one year, one more is granted." Held, that this provision rendered the note non-negotiable. Miller v. Poage, 56 Id., 96. Dax, J., and Adams, Ch. J., dissenting.

An assignment of the monthly royalties, payable as rent under a coal lease, is not the assignment of an open account, but of a right under a contract; and the assignor is bound only by equities which the lessees had against the assignor before notice of the assignment, and not by equities arising before suit brought upon the assignment. Steele et al. v. Mills et al., 65 Id., 406.

SEC. 2083. [Action.]—The person to whom such sum of money is made payable may maintain an action against the maker, and to any person to whom such note is so endorsed or delivered, may maintain his action in his own name against the maker or the endorser, or both of them.

In an action on a promissory note which is payable to the payee "or bearer" it is sufficient to allege that it is the property of the plaintiff, without showing whether it passed by delivery or assignment. Dubney v. Reed, 12 Iowa, 315.

But when the note is payable to "order" an averment that the plaintiff is the owner thereof, without showing by what right he claims the same, is insufficient to enable him to maintain the action. The facts which show ownership should be pleaded. Montague v. Reineger, 11 Id., 593; Thompson v. Cook, 21 Id., 472.

SEC. 2084. [Assignment of non-negotiable instruments.]—Bonds, due bills, and all instruments in writing, by which the maker promises to pay to another, without words of negotiability, a sum of money, or by which he promises to pay a sum of money in property or labor, to deliver any property or labor, or acknowledges any money or labor or property to be due, are assignable by endorsement thereon or by other writing, and the assignee shall have a right of action in his own name, subject to any defense or counter claim which the maker or declor has against any assignor thereof before notice of his assignment.
A promissory note payable in property is not negotiable in the sense of the law merchant. McC carthy v. Smalley's Admin's, 11 Iowa, 35.

A judgment recovered in the district or circuit court may be assigned; and such assignee, if made without fraud, is valid as to the assignor from the day of its execution. Weir v. City of Davenport et al., 11 Id., 49.

A liability for a tort may be assigned so as to give the assignee a priority over an attaching creditor of the assignor. 1d.
A judgment is a chose in an action, and is assignable, but the assignee takes it charged with every propriety and subject to the defenses and set-off which the maker had against the assignor before All instruments are under our statute assignable, and the assignee may maintain an action in his own name. Moorman v. Grewe v. Collier, 32 Id., 138; Frederick v. Callahan, 40 Id., 311.
The rule of common law that a guaranty is not assignable does not prevail in this state. Under our statute, this and every other kind of contract is assignable. The First National Bank of Dubuque v. Carpenter, Stibbs & Co., 41 Id., 518; see also, Merchants' & Mechanics' Bank of While a bill of lading is not negotiable, it is assignable, and possesses attributes not common to the ordinary non-negotiable instruments enumerated in this section. It stands for and represents the property, and an assignment of it passes the title to the property. When issued, it can be altered or changed only upon the surrender of the original, and a collateral oral understanding between the shipper and the carrier, by which the property is to be delivered to one not the assignee and holder of the bill, does not follow it into the hands of the assignee without notice, and cannot defeat his rights under the terms of the bill. The Garden Grove Bank v. The H. &
S. R'y Co., 67 Id., 526.
The assignee of a promissory note secured by mortgage, taken after maturity, takes it exempt from any equities residing in a third party to which it might have been subject in the hands of the assignor, and of which the assignee had no notice. Crosby v. Tanner et al., 49 Id., 136.
The indorsee of a promissory note who receives it without notice of any equities against the payee, before maturity, and in consideration of his becoming surety for the payee upon another note, which he was subsequently compelled to pay, is a holder for value in the ordinary course of business, and is discharged of such equities. Siotts v. Buers, 17 Id., 303.
The indorser of a non-negotiable note is liable to a suit by the holder thereof without demand of the maker, and notice of non-payment. Wilson v. Ralph et al., 3 Id., 450; Long v. Snyzer, Id., 266; Peddicord & Wyman v. Whitman, 9 Id., 471.
It was held in Stannus v. Stannus, 30 Iowa, 44, that while a note transferred after maturity is subject, in the hands of indorser or assignee, to any defense thereto arising out of any equities between the original parties, and attaching to the note, it is not subject to a mere off-set of the maker, though existing at the time the note was negotiated; and this holding is supported by Shipman
v. Robbins, 10 Id., 295; Lewis v. Denton, 13 Id., 441; Ryan v. Chest, 1d., 582; Way v. Lamb, 15
Id., 79; Richard v. Daily, 34 Id., 427.
The assignee of a promissory note under a transfer made in the body of a separate instrument, executed for an independent purpose, is not the holder of the legal title, discharge of prior equities, within the meaning of the law merchant. Franklin v. Twogood, 18 Id., 515.
Under this section of the code all claims and rights are assignable, and a covenant of seizing run with the land. Frederick v. Callahan, 40 Id., 311, 314.
A mortgage is not a negotiable instrument, and an assignee thereof, although purchasing before maturity, takes it subject to all defenses existing against it in the hands of the mortgagee. Tabor
v. Fay 56 Id., 559.

Sec. 2085. [Are negotiable.]—Instruments by which the maker promises to pay a sum of money in property or labor, or to pay or deliver property or labor or acknowledges property or labor or money to be due to another, are negotiable instruments with all the incidents of negotiability, whenever it is manifest from their terms that such was the intent of the maker; but the use of the technical words "order" or "bearer" alone will not manifest such intent.
An instrument wherein one promises to pay a certain sum or deliver certain property, without defalcation, is negotiable; and when transferred by indorsement before maturity, is not subject to defense or set-off for want of consideration in the hands of the transferee. The Council Bluffs Iron Works v. Cuppy, 41 Iowa, 104.
A note payable in currency is not negotiable, under the law merchant; and is not under our
The statute unless it is manifest from its terms that such was the intent of the maker. Rindskoff Bros. & Co. v. Barrett, 11 Id., 172; Huse v. Hamblin and others, 28 Id., 501; McCartney v. Smalley, 11 Id., 85; Peddicord v. Wyman v. Whitman et al., 9 Id., 471.

The fact that such note was made payable at a banking house, in the absence of custom, is not sufficient to show such an intent. When such custom is relied on it must be averred and proved. Id.

The use of the words, "to be delivered to his order," in a note payable in property does not manifest an intention on the part of the maker, to make it negotiable. Merchants and Mechanics Bank of Chicago v. Hewitt, 3 Id., 93.

Where a lessee of real estate, who was entitled to compensation from the lessor for improvements made upon the leased premises, assigned his claim for such compensation to a third party who sued the lessor therefore, it was held, that the latter could set-off the rent due from the lessee at the time when the claim for improvements matured. Zugg v. Turner, 8 Id., 223.

SEC. 2056. [Assignment prohibited.]-When by the terms of an instrument its assignment is prohibited, an assignment of it shall nevertheless be valid, but the maker may avail himself of any defense or counter claim against the assignee which he may have against any assignor thereof before suit is commenced thereon. [Notice of the assignment thereof is given in writing to the maker of such instrument.] (As amended by ch. 183, 20th g. a.)

SEC. 2057. An open account of sums of money due on contract may be assigned, and the assignee will have the right of action in his own name, but subject to the same defenses and counter claims as the instruments mentioned in the preceding section. [Before notice of such assignment is given in writing by the assignee to the debtor.] (As amended by ch. 183, 20th g. a.)

A demand against a steamboat for supplies furnished is assignable; and an assignment of such demand carries with it to the assignee, the statutory lien upon the boat, etc. Strother v. The Steamboat Hamburg, 11 Iowa, 59.

An assignee of an open account may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Kneller v. Sharp, 36 Id., 232; Farewell v. Tyler, 5 Id., 555; Cowingham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Cottle v. Cole, 20 Id., 484; Rice v. Saxery, 22 Id., 470.

A condition in a policy of insurance to the effect that if the policy shall be assigned, either before or after the loss, without the consent of the company, the assured shall not be entitled to recover for any loss occurring, will not preclude the assignee of the policy after loss, from recover­ ing. Mershon v. The National Ins. Co., 34 Id., 87.

To constitute an assignment no particular form is necessary. It is sufficient if the intent of the parties to effect an assignment be clearly established. It may be verbal or in writing. If in writing it may be in the form of an order, agreement, or other instrument, and if the intent and consent of the parties do not fully appear in the writing, it may be shown by evidence aliunde. Moore et al. v. Lowrey, 25 Id., 336.

An order drawn on the whole of a particular fund amounts to an equitable assignment thereof, and, after notice to the drawer, binds the fund in his hands in favor of the payee, as against an attaching creditor of the drawer. McWilliams v. Webb & Son, 32 Id., 571.

The maker of an open book account may availing himself of any defense or counter-claim against the assignee which he might have had against the assignor, before suit was commenced thereon in the name of the assignee. Reynolds v. Martin, 51 Id., 324.

Where the defendant has issued to one F. u. commutation mileage ticket, upon which was printed the following, among other conditions: "This ticket is positively not transferable, and, if presented by any other than the person whose name appears inside of the cover, and whose signature is attached below, it is forfeited to the company," and the conditions were accepted by F., but the plaintiff’s intestate procured the ticket, and was riding upon it on one of defendant’s trains, leaving the conductor to whom he presented it to infer that he was F., held that the relation of passenger and carrier did not exist between him and the defendant, and that the defendant was not bound, so far as he was concerned, to exercise that measure of diligence and care which the law requires of railroads towards those who are in good faith traveling upon their trains. (See authorities cited in opinion.) Such ticket was not an "instrument," assignable notwithstanding its terms, under section 2086 of the code, nor could plaintiff profit by the claim that its issuance by the defendant was in violation of section 11, chapter 77, laws of 1875, nor that the only right which the defendant could insist upon as against one fraudulently riding upon it was to declare it forfeited. Way v. The C., R. I. & P. Ry Co., 64 Id., 43.

Where one had an open account against defendant, which he assigned to plaintiff, of which assignment plaintiff gave the defendant notice, whereupon defendant wrote to plaintiff that he was ready to settle, but afterwards, and before suit brought by plaintiff, defendant settled with and paid plaintiff's assignor, held that such settlement and payment was a defense to plaintiff's action under these sections of the code, and that the question of notice was not material. Wing v. Page, 62 Id., 87 Following Grey v. Farmer, 8 Id., 223; and Reynolds v. Martin, 51 Id., 324.

While the payment of an open account to the assignor of an open account, after notice of the assignment, is a good defense in action thereon by the assignee, yet the assignor could not, after assignment, compel payment to him. Bailey v. The Union Pacific Ry Co., Garnisher, 62 Id., 85.

SEC. 2088. [Assignor of: how charged.]—The assignor of any of the above instruments, not negotiable, shall be liable to the action of his assignee without notice.

The right of an assignee of a negotiable instrument to maintain an action against any or all of the assignors or indorsers thereof, is not limited by this section. Huse v. Hamblin, 29 Iowa, 501.

Indorsers of non-negotiable paper are liable to the holders thereof, without demand upon the maker and notice of non-payment. Id.

GUARANTEE.

SEC. 2089. [Definition of.]—The blank indorsement of an instrument for the payment of money, property, or labor, by a person not a payee, indorsee, or assignee thereof, shall be deemed a guaranty of the performance of the contract.

The indorsement of a non-negotiable instrument is a promise to pay and not a conditional contract to pay on demand of, and refusal by, the maker. Peddicord & Wyman v. Whittam et al., 9 Iowa, 471.

One who writes on the back of a note, as follows: "I hereby indorse the within note," and signs his name, is a guarantor under this section of the code, the same as if he had indorsed in blank, and as a guarantor he may set up as a defense to an action on the note, usury in its inception. Conger et al. v. Babbitt et al., 67 Id., 13.

SEC. 2090. [Guarantor: how charged.]—To charge such guarantor, notice of non-payment by the principal must be given within within a reasonable time; but the guarantor is chargeable without notice, if the holder show affirmatively that the guarantor has received no detriment from the want of notice.

SEC. 2091. [Same.]—A guarantor, as contemplated in the preceding sections, is also liable to the action of an indorsee, assignee, or payee, if due diligence in the institution and prosecution of suit against the maker or his representative has been used.

Where the guaranty is in express terms in writing for the payment of a county warrant, and not a blank indorsement, the liability of the guarantor is not conditional, but absolute. Griffin v. Seymour, 15 Iowa, 30, 33; Knight v. Dinsmore & Chambers, 12 Id., 35; Sabin & Moon v. Harris, 12 Id., 37.

Under the statute, a guarantor of a note, who is not an original party thereto, is rendered liable on his contract of guaranty by notice of non-payment within a reasonable time. Id.

A demand upon the maker is not necessary to charge such guarantor. Knight v. Dinsmore & Chambers, 12 Id., 35.

What constitutes a reasonable time must be determined from the circumstances of each case. Id.

A guarantor of a promissory note who is not an original party thereto, and whose indorsement is not in blank, is liable on his guaranty, without demand of the maker and notice of non-payment, and in the absence of due diligence against the maker, unless it is shown affirmatively by the guarantor, by way of defense, that he has sustained damages from the want of such notice or diligence. Sabin & Moon v. Harris, 12 Id., 57; Mount Pleasant Bank v. McLean, 26 Id., 396.

Such a showing will constitute a defense pro tanto in such an action. Sabin & Moon v. Harris, 12 Id., 57.

A guarantor of a promissory note under the statute, for the accommodation of the holder, is liable the same as an accommodation indorser to a third person to whom the note has in good faith and for value been transferred, though at the time of taking the note, such person had knowledge of the fact that the indorsement or guaranty was without consideration. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Id., 230.

The obligations of a guarantor of a promissory note are that he will pay the same if the maker fails to pay at maturity, and the holder will use due diligence by suit to collect the same. Voorhis v. Atlee et al., 29 Id., 49.

Due diligence, in the absence of special circumstances, would, upon failure of the maker to pay, require suit to be brought against the latter at the first regular term of court, in the defendant's name, after maturity. Id.

In order to hold a guarantor of a promissory note under the rules of the common law, he must, within a reasonable time, have been notified of demand upon, and non-payment by the maker. Greene & Co. v. Thompson, 33 Id., 293.

Such guarantor is not entitled to the same notice as an indorser. It was accordingly held that he cannot urge, as a defense, that he was not notified in time to enable him to hold prior indorsers from or under whom he acquired the note. Id.

As to what is reasonable notice depends upon the facts of each case; and if it appears that the guarantor, as to his remedy against the maker, suffered no injury from delay in giving notice, he will not be absolved from liability. Id.

An express guarantor of a promissory note will not be discharged from liability by mere failure on the part of the holder to give him notice of non-payment, unless the delay in giving notice has been so long as to raise a presumption of waiver or payment, or unless he can show that he has suffered injury in consequence of the delay. The Second Nat. Bank of Rockford v. Gaylord, 34 Id., 246; See also Howard v. Clark, 36 Id., 114, 116.

In an action against a guarantor, who was the payee or assignee of a negotiable note, neither demand nor notice of non-payment need be alleged or proved; nor a want of diligence in bringing suit; nor that the defendant has suffered no detriment by a failure in these respects. Picket & Wyman v. Whitman, 9 Id., 471.

A guarantor may by parol waive the use of due diligence on the part of the holder, in the enforcement of the obligation guaranteed, and a failure to use due diligence in accordance with a promise or request of the guarantors will not discharge him from liability. Goodwin v. Buchman, 11 Id., 308.

Where a guarantor under the statute at the maturity of the note made the following indorsement thereon: "I will extend my name on the within note to March 27, 1861," it was held, that under his first guaranty he could not be charged without reasonable notice of demand and non-payment, unless it was shown affirmatively that he received no detriment for want of notice, and that his second indorsement did not increase his prior liability. Picket v. Hawes, 14 Id., 460.

Section 954 of the code of 1851, as to guarantors, was not changed or repealed by the provisions of "an act relating to evidence," which took effect February 9, 1854. Sibley v. Van Horn, 13 Id., 209.

A "waiver of notice," by an indorser will not be construed to extend beyond the import of the terms used, and hence will not excuse a want of due presentment of the note to the maker for payment. Voorhies v. Atlee, 29 Id., 49.

A guarantor of a note undertakes to pay the same upon conditions that certain steps are taken, while a surety contracts to pay the note, and consequently, any writing upon the note which would render a guarantor a surety is a material alteration, and will defeat recovery against the guarantor. Robinson v. Reed, et al., 46 Id., 219.

GRACE—PROTEST.

SEC. 2092. Grace shall be allowed upon negotiable bills or notes payable within this state, according to the principles of the law merchant; and notice of non-acceptance or non-payment, or both, of said instruments shall be required according to the rules and principles of the commercial law.

A promissory note payable in property is not negotiable in the sense of the law merchant, and the maker is not under laws of this state entitled to the three days grace. McClintic v. Small's Administrators, 11 Iowa, 55; See Picket & Wyman v. Whitman et al., 9 Id., 471; Billingham v. Bryan, 19 Id., 371; Mor., 490.

A draft in which no time for payment is mentioned is payable on demand, and is not entitled to grace. This rule of the law merchant is not changed by chapter 61 of the laws of 1876. First National Bank of Davenport v. Price et al., 52 Id., 570.

The provisions of the statute allowing grace on notes and bills payable within the state, apply only to such notes notice of non-payment of which was required to be given by the holder by the rules and practices of the law merchant. Wilson v. Ralph et al., 3 Id., 450.

A note payable on demand does not entitle the maker to days of grace. Id.

An action on a promissory note commenced before the expiration of the days of grace, without alleging cause for commencing proceedings before the maturity of the note, cannot be maintained. Whitney et al v. Bird et al., 11 Id., 407.

The transmission of notices of the protest of commercial paper under one cover to one of the indorsers in the town where they all reside, for distribution and delivery to his co-indorsers, is sufficient to charge them all with notice if the party to whom they are sent again mails them to the proper parties. Van Brunt & Sons v. Vaughn, 47 Id., 145.

Where the maker of a negotiable promissory note removes from the state before the maturity of the note, leaving no one to represent him, no demand of payment is necessary to bind the indorser. Whitley v. Allen, 56 Id., 224.
An Act to establish uniformity throughout the state in regard to grace upon sight bills of exchange.

Section 1. [Days of grace.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all bills of exchange, drafts and orders payable within this state, except those drawn payable on demand, shall be entitled to grace.

Approved March 11, 1876.

Section 2093. [Demand.]—A demand at any time during the days of grace will be sufficient for the purpose of charging the indorser.

Under section 937 of the code of 1851, as modified by section 3 of chapter 108 of the laws of 1853, it was held, that the presentment of a bill or note, for payment, before the last day of grace was premature, the instrument not being due until then. Edgar v. Greer, 8 Iowa, 354.

The presentment of a bill of exchange by the cashier of a bank at whose counter it is payable, to the acting teller thereof, though after business hours, is sufficient.

Section 2094. [Holidays: protests made.]—The first day of the week, called Sunday; the first day of January; the thirtieth day of May; the fourth day of July; the twenty-fifth day of December; and any day appointed or recommended by the governor of this state, or by the president of the United States, as a day of fasting or of thanksgiving, shall be regarded as holidays for all purposes relating to the presenting for payment or acceptance, and the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes; and any bank or mercantile paper falling due on any of the days above named, shall be considered as falling due on the preceding day.

Section 2095. [Notice of protest.]—In case of a demand of payment of any promissory note, bill of exchange, or other commercial paper, by a notary public, and a refusal by the maker, drawer or acceptor, as the case may be, the notary making said demand may inform the indorser or any party to be charged, if in the same town or township, by notice deposited in the nearest postoffice to the parties to be charged on the day of demand, and no other notice shall be necessary to charge said party.

Where the certificate of a notary public expressly stated that he notified the indorser of a promissory note by depositing a written and printed copy thereof in the mail, directed to the indorser at a certain place, it was held, that such certificate established a prima facie case against the indorser, and that the onus was upon him to show that the place named was not his postoffice address, and that the notice did not accomplish the result certified to. Wamsley v. Ricers, 34 Iowa, 463.

The indorser of a promissory note payable at a banking house in C, resided in the same place. On the 21st of November, 1859 (the date of the maturity of the note), it was protested for non-payment at said banking house by a notary residing in L, two miles distant. Instead of notifying the indorser personally, or by notice deposited in the postoffice at C, the notary returned to L, where he made out the notice, and deposited it in the postoffice at that place, when it would not be received by the indorser at C, by due course of mail, before the third day after protest, the notice was held insufficient to charge the indorser. Fannestock v. Smith, 14 Id., 351.

The drawer of a bill resided five miles from R, and six miles from I. The cashier of the bank where the bill was payable, directed by mail, notice of dishonor to him at the former place, which had been his nearest postoffice address, but it afterward appeared that at this time the postoffice there had been discontinued, and its business transferred to I, the nearest postoffice, where letters were received and distributed that had been directed to R; Held, that the notice was sufficient to charge the drawer. First Nat. Bank of Marshalltown v. Owen, 23 Id., 183.

Section 2096. The rate of damages to be allowed and paid upon the non-acceptance or non-payment of bills of exchange, drawn or indorsed in this state, when damage is recoverable, shall be as follows: If the bill be drawn upon a person at a place out of the United States, or in California, Oregon, Nevada, or any of the territories, five per cent upon the principal specified in the bill, with interest on the same from the time of the protest; if drawn upon a person at any other place in the United States other than in this state, three per cent with interest. This section of the code, providing for the rate of damages to be allowed upon the non-payment or non-acceptance of bills of exchange, relates to foreign and not to inland bills. First National Bank, etc., v. Queen et al., 23 Iowa, 185.

CONTRACT—PAYABLE IN PROPERTY.

Sec. 2097. [Payable in property: demand.—No contract for labor, or for the payment or delivery of property other than money, in which the time of performance is not fixed, can be converted into a money demand, until a demand of performance has been made and the maker refuses, or a reasonable time is allowed for performance. In contracts for the payment of labor or property, in which no time is fixed for performance, the claim will not become a money demand, until performance has been demanded and the maker has refused, or a reasonable time has elapsed without performance. Hambel v. Tower, 14 Iowa, 580. When the time and place of performance is fixed in the contract, a tender by the debtor, by setting apart, at the time and place, the property specified, the title to the property passes to the creditor and the debt is discharged, though he is not present to receive it, or if present, refuses to do so: Id. A tender of the property must be kept good, and a failure by the debtor to deliver it when subsequently demanded by the creditor, places the onus of showing why it was not delivered, upon the debtor. Id.

Sec. 2098. [Tender of.—When a contract for labor, or for the payment or delivery of property other than money, does not fix a place of payment, the maker may tender the labor or property at the place where the payee resided at the time of making the contract, or at the residence of the payee at the performance of the contract, or where the assignee of the contract resides when it becomes due. Sec. 2099. [Exception.—But if the property in such case be too ponderous to be conveniently transported, or if the payee had no known place of residence within the state at the making of the contract, or if the assignee of a written contract has no known place of residence within the state at the time of performance, the maker may tender the property at the place where he resided at the time of making the contract.

Where the maker of a note, payable in personal property at the option of the maker, indicates to the payee his election to deliver the property according to the tenor of the note, and the payee refuses to receive the property, the maker of the note is so far relieved from the duty of tendering the property, or setting it apart for the payee, that the obligation cannot be converted into a money demand, nor its payment as such enforced, without a further demand for the property upon the maker. Williams v. Triplett, 3 Iowa, 518.

Sec. 2100. [When contract has been assigned.—When the contract is contained in a written instrument which is assigned before due; and the maker has notice thereof, he shall make the tender at the residence of the holder if he resides in the state, and no farther from the maker than did the payee at the making thereof.

Sec. 2101. [Effect of tender.—A tender of the property as above provided, discharges the maker from the contract, and the property becomes vested in the payee or his assignee, and he may maintain an action thereto as in other cases.

Sec. 2102. [Perishable property taken care of.—But if the property tendered be perishable, or require feeding or other care, and no person be found to receive it when tendered, the person making the tender shall preserve, feed, or otherwise take care of the same, and he has a lien on the property for his reasonable expenses and trouble in so doing.
SEC. 2103. [Holder absent from state: money paid clerk of district court.]
—When the holder of an instrument for the payment of money is absent from the state when it becomes due, and when the indorsee or assignee of such an instrument has not notified the maker of such indorsement or assignment, the maker may tender payment at the last residence or place of business of the payee before the instrument became due, and if there be no person authorized to receive payment and give the proper credit therefor, the maker may deposit the amount due with the clerk of the district court in the county where the payee resided at the time it became due, paying the clerk one per cent on the amount deposited, and the maker shall be liable for no interest from that time.

By this section the clerk is required to receive money deposited by a debtor, where the holder of the instrument is absent from the state. For WRIGHT, J., in Morgan v. Long, 29 Iowa, 434.

CHAPTER 4.
OF TENDER.

SECTION 2104. [When not accepted.]
—When a tender of money or property is not accepted by the party to whom it is made, the party making it may, if he sees fit, retain in his own possession the money or property tendered; but if afterwards the party to whom the tender was made see proper to accept it and give notice thereof to the other party, and the subject of tender be not delivered to him within a reasonable time, the tender shall be of no effect.

An offer to pay a note in bank notes is not a legal tender. Nor will a mere offer to pay, entitle the debtor to receive the note. Jones v. Multinix, 23 Iowa, 198.

A tender by the maker of a promissory note to the payee, will not discharge the former from interest accruing after such tender, unless it be shown that he was always ready and willing to pay. Id.

The tender will not be efectual unless the money is paid into court ready to be paid to the party entitled to receive it. An offer to pay and a refusal to receive are not sufficient; but to make the tender good the money must be paid into court immediately upon filing the plea. Freeman v. Fleming, 5 Id., 460; Mohn v. Stover, 14 Id., 115; Hambel v. Tower, 14 Id., 580; Warrington v. Pollard, 24 Id., 281; Johnson v. Griggs, 4 G. Greene, 97; Eastman v. The District Township, 21 Id., 593; Hayward v. Munger, 14 Id., 517; Hayden v. Adams, 17 Id., 155; Sugart v. Pattee, 37 Id., 422; Phelps v. Hatton, 30 Id., 236; Long v. Howard, 35 Id., 148.

A tender is an admission that the amount tendered is due, and the plaintiff is entitled to recover at least that sum. Fisher v. Moore, 19 Id., 84; Sheriff v. Hull, 37 Id., 174; Johnson v. Griggs, 4 G. Greene 97; Fink & Co. v. Cee, Id., 555; Brayton v. Delaware Co., 16 Id., 44; Fisher v. Moore, 19 Id., 84; Phelps v. Kathon, 30 Id., 251; Gray v. Graham, 34 Id., 429; Wright v. Howell, 35 Id., 288; Babcock v. Harris, 37 Id., 409.

A tender, made after suit brought must, to be available, include the costs already accrued in the case. Barns v. Greene, 30 Id., 114; Freeman v. Fleming, 5 Id., 460; Warrington v. Pollard, 24 Id., 281.

If a party tender less than is due he does so at his peril, though he may honestly believe the amount tendered to be all that is due. Helprey v. The C. & R. I. R. Co., 29 Id., 489.

That the maker of a note had money in bank where the note was payable, but which was not set apart by him for the purpose of paying the debt will not support the plea of tender. Myers v. Brington, 24 Id., 205.

A tender to a trustee who holds the notes of the debtor for collection, and is proceeding to sell the property of the debtor conveyed to him in trust to secure the payment of the debt, is a tender to the agent of the beneficiary and binds him. Hayward v. Munger, 14 Id., 516.

In an action in equity where a willingness to pay whatever shall be found due is averred, an actual tender is not necessary. Hayward v. Munger, 14 Id., 516; Binford v. Boardman et al., 44 Id., 53.

In an action at law upon a promissory note made for the whole or part of the purchase price of land, which the payee covenants to convey upon its payment, the plaintiff cannot recover without showing performance on his part, either by tender of a deed or an offer to convey. Zebley v. Sears, 38 Id., 507; School District v. Rogers, 8 Id., 316; Berryhill v. Byington, 10 Id., 223.

The failure of a justice of the peace to pay over to the clerk of the court the sum tendered in a case appealed from the justice to the circuit court, will not cause the tender to fail, at least not until the party making the tender shall have had reasonable time after receiving notice of the non-payment to procure an order on the justice for payment.

SEC. 2105. [Offer in writing: effect of.]—An offer in writing to pay a particular sum of money, or to deliver a written instrument, or specific personal property, if not accepted, is equivalent to the actual tender of the money, instrument, or property, subject, however, to the condition contained in the preceding section; but if the party to whom the tender is made, desire an inspection of the instrument or property tendered, other than money, before making his determination, it shall be given him on request.

Under the statute an offer to pay, made in writing, is equivalent to a tender, and where the plaintiff knows the residence and post office address of the defendant, he can make a legal and proper tender to him, although he resides out of the state.  Crawford v. Paine, 19 lowa, 172, 178.

A tender to pay a particular sum without producing the money, under this section, must be in writing.  Casady v. Bosler, 11 l.d., 242.

"The failure to make a good tender, while it may justly be considered as sufficient to induce a court of equity to withhold the exercise of its extraordinary powers of injunction, yet the right to a specific performance, is one so much governed by the sound discretion of the court, as that a mere failure to make a good legal tender, would not necessarily defeat a claim for such specific performance."  Per Colv J. in Crawford v. Paine, 19 l.d., 172, 179.

Where the party attacking the validity of a tax title avers that he is ready and willing and offers to pay to the opposite party the amount paid by him at the tax sale, together with the subsequent taxes, interest and costs, it is error for the court to render judgment setting aside the tax sale, without requiring the payment of the sum so offered.  Corbin v. Woodbine et al., 33 l.d., 297.

Under a contract for the sale of personal property for future delivery, an offer in writing expressing a readiness to deliver, made on the part of the seller, is sufficient under this section to bind the buyer, in a case where the buyer denies his obligation to accept the goods under the contract; and it is immaterial in such a case whether the seller has or has not the goods ready for delivery at the time the offer is made; nor is he compelled to retain the goods, if of a perishable nature, beyond a reasonable time, in order to have them ready for delivery whenever the buyer may choose to accept them.  Holt v. Brown & Co., 63 l.d., 319.

An offer in writing to pay a particular sum of money is equivalent to an actual tender of the money.  But this statute only dispenses with the actual production of the money. In other respects the rule of the common law prevails, which requires that a tender, to be good, must be unconditional.  And so, where the defendant made a written offer which was in effect:  "I am willing to pay you the named sum to avoid litigation; it is not due you, but I am willing to pay," held, not sufficient to make the offer equivalent to a tender.  Kuhns v. C., M. & St. P. B'y Co., 65 l.d., 528.

SEC. 2106. [Receipt.]—The person making a tender may demand a receipt in writing, duly signed, for the money or article tendered, as a condition precedent to the delivery thereof.

SEC. 2107. [Objection.]—The person to whom a tender is made must, at the time, make any objection which he may have to the money, instrument, or property tendered, or he will be deemed to have waived it.

Where the creditor, at the time a tender is made, makes no objection to the amount tendered, it will be held sufficient to discharge the debtor from costs and interest, even if upon the trial it is shown to be less than the amount actually due.  Hayward v. Munger, 14 lowa, 516; Guengerich v. Smith, 36 l.d., 587; Sheriff v. Hull, 37 l.d., 174.

But such tender of less than is due does not preclude the plaintiff from recovering whatever sum may be found to be due him.  Guengerich v. Smith, 1d., 587; Sheriff v. Hull, 37 l.d., 174.

The failure to object to the amount of money tendered, at the time tender is made, will not preclude the party from denying its sufficiency on the trial. The phrase, "objection which he may have to the money tendered," has reference to the character of the money.  The Chicago & N. W. R'y Co. v. The N. W. Union Packet Co., 33 l.d., 377.
CHAPTER 5.

OF SURETIES.

SECTION 2108. [May require creditor to sue.]—When any person bound as surety for another, for the payment of money or the performance of any other contract in writing, apprehends that his principal is about to become insolvent, or to remove permanently from the state without discharging the contract, if a right of action has accrued on the contract, he may, by writing, require the creditor to sue upon the same, or to permit the surety to commence suit in such creditor's name and at the surety's cost.

SEC. 2109. [Refusal of.]—If the creditor refuse to bring suit, or neglect so to do for ten days after the request, and does not permit the surety so to do, and furnish him with a true copy of the contract or other writing therefor, and enable him to have the use of the original when requisite in such suit, the surety shall be discharged.

A surety seeking to be discharged from liability on a promissory note, in the manner provided in the statute, must comply fully with its provisions. Hill v. Sherman, 15 Iowa, 365; Thornbarg v. Madren, 38 Id., 380.

The payee or holder of a note may, when he receives the notice prescribed in the statute, from the surety, elect to either sue on the note himself, or permit the surety to do so in his name. Id.

Where the surety notifies the creditor to sue or permit the surety to do so in the creditor's name upon the contract, nothing more is required of the surety, and the creditor is left to act in response to such notice; and if he fails to bring the suit within ten days thereafter, or notify the surety of his permission to do so, the latter will be discharged. First National Bank of Newton v. Smith, 35 Id., 210.

It is not necessary in such case for the surety, in order to be entitled to be discharged by the laches of the creditor, to show that he did, in fact, apprehend that the principal was about to become insolvent or remove from the state. The fact of such apprehensions cannot be put in issue. Id.

Neither will the fact, where the plaintiff is a bank, that the surety and stockholder therein, affect his right to be discharged upon the failure of the bank to comply with the notice from the surety. Id.

The holder of a promissory note, who has been served with a statutory notice by the surety thereon, must not only direct the institution of a suit on the note, but must see that suit is actually commenced with the time fixed by the statute, or the surety will be discharged. The German Am. Bank v. Denmere, 63 Id., 187.

The notice which a surety may give to a creditor to sue, contemplated by this section of the code, is a notice to sue upon the contract, and not notice to sue the principal debtor only; and a failure by the creditor to comply with a notice requiring suit to be begun against the principal debtor alone will not discharge the surety. The statute, being in derogation of the common law, must be strictly complied with, Harriman v. Egbert, 36 Id., 270, followed; Moore et al. v. Petersen et al., 64 Id., 429.

It may be shown by evidence, aliunde, that one who is nominally a joint maker of a promissory note is in fact but a surety. And a surety of this character is entitled to all the benefits of sections 1819 and 1820 of the revision. (Sections 2108 and 2109 of the code.) Piper v. Newcomer et al., 25 Id., 221.

A notice by a surety to the creditor to bring suit upon the obligation, should demand that suit be instituted against all the parties to the instrument, surety as well as principal, and not simply against the principal; otherwise a failure of the creditor to sue will not discharge the surety. Harriman v. Egbert et al., 36 Id., 270; Hill v. Sherman, 15 Id., 365.

A request by the attorney of a grantor that a copy of the obligation be sent to him with the authority to sue both principal and guarantor, is not such a compliance with the requirements of section 2108 of the code as will discharge the guarantor if the creditor does not bring the suit within ten days thereafter. There should have been a request for the creditor to bring suit or permit the surety to do so. The Davis S. F. Co. v. McGavis et al., 45 Id., 538.

The notice required to be given by the surety to the holder of a promissory note to proceed by suit on the note or permit the surety to do so, must be given in writing. Stevens v. Campbell, 6 Id., 438.

Sec. 2110. [Surety may sue.—When the surety commences such suit, he shall file his undertaking to pay such costs as may be adjudged against the creditor, and the suit shall be brought against all the obligors, but those joining in the request to the creditor shall make no defense to the action, but may be heard on the assessment of the damages.

Sec. 2111. [No application to official bonds.—The provisions of this chapter extend to the executor of a deceased surety and holder of the contract, but they do not extend to the official bonds of public officers, executors, or guardians.

CHAPTER 6.
OF PRIVATE SEALS.

Section 2112. [Abolished.—The use of private seals in written contracts, except the seals of corporations, is abolished; and the addition of a private seal to an instrument in writing, shall not affect its character in any respect.

The common law distinction between sealed and unsealed instruments is abolished by our statute, and want or failure of consideration in whole or in part may be shown in an action upon any instrument made after the statute took effect. Williams v. Haines, 27 Iowa, 258; 212; Sabin v. Harris, 12 Id., 87.

A deed to real property imports a consideration. Per Miller, J., arguendo, in Wolverton v. Collins, 34 Id., 238.

It is not necessary, in an action on a written contract of guaranty, to allege in the petition a sufficient consideration. Every contract in writing imports a consideration. Henderson v. Booth, 11 Id., 212; Linder v. Lake, 6 Id., 154; Towsley v. Olde, Id., 526; Blake v. Blake, 7 Id., 46.

Fraud may vitiate an assignment made for the benefit of creditors, though the assignee was not a party to, and had no knowledge of, the fraud. Ruble v. McDonald, 18 Id., 493.

A written contract is presumed to be founded upon a consideration, but the presumption may be rebutted by evidence. Byers v. Harris et al., 57 Id., 635.

Sec. 2114. (As amended by ch. 90, 22d g. a.) [Failure of.—The want or failure, in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract, may be shown as a defense total or partial, as the case may be, except to negotiable paper transferred in good faith and for a valuable consideration before maturity. [Provided, that if said paper shall have been procured by fraud from the maker thereof, no holder of such paper shall recover thereon of the maker, a greater sum than he paid therefor with interest and costs.] If a debtor is unable to pay his debts according to the usage of trade, or unable to proceed in business without some general arrangement with his creditors, or some indulgence by way of extension of the time of payment, he is insolvent in contemplation of law. Byers v. Harris, 67 Id., 685.

The fact that some of the agents or servants of the assignee, after the making of the assignment, sold some of the assigned property on credit, will not vitiate the assignment. Id.

Nor will the fact that the assignor was engaged in the store as a clerk, after the execution of the assignment, be of itself, evidence of fraud in making assignment. Id.
CHAPTER 7.
OF ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS.

SECTION 2115. [General only valid.]-No general assignment of property by an insolvent, or in contemplation of insolvency, for the benefit of creditors shall be valid, unless it be made for the benefit of all his creditors in proportion to the amount of their respective claims.

A creditor a under general assignment, who has special security, may be required by other creditors to resort to this, and can only claim a dividend upon the amount remaining unpaid, after exhausting his special security. Wurts, Austin & McVeigh v. Hart, 13 Iowa, 515.

The execution of a mortgage to one or more creditors is not rendered void by the fact that the mortgagor made the same in contemplation of insolvency, and immediately thereafter executed a general assignment, hence a mortgage upon lands in this state is not rendered invalid by the execution, on the same day, in another state, of a general assignment, with preference of property in the latter state. Lyon v. McIlvaine, 21 Id., 9; Lampson & Powers v. Arnold, 19 Id., 479.

Under our statute a general assignment with a preference to creditors is void. 24 Id., 9.

A debtor in insolvent circumstances may mortgage or sell all of his property to pay or secure the debts of a single creditor; and a transfer of this kind, if free from fraud, is not void as being in contravention of our statute in relation to general assignments. Farwell & Co. v. Howard & Co., 20 Id., 381.

When a general assignment is made for the purpose of hindering, delaying or defrauding creditors, it will be declared void. Wooster, Tempin & Co. v. Stanfield, 11 Id., 128.

A debtor in insolvent circumstances may pay or secure the claims of part of his creditors to the exclusion of others. All of his property may be given in payment or security to one, and the transaction will not be considered fraudulent or void, as being in contravention of the statute. Davis & Co. v. Gibbon, 24 Id., 257.

It is not necessary that an instrument be denominated an assignment to justify a court in holding it to be such. It may be held an assignment though denominated a mortgage. But a mortgage though executed by an insolvent debtor and covering all of his property, is not necessarily an assignment, unless so intended. If the purpose of a mortgage made to a creditor is, what it purports to be, made in good faith as a security, even on all of the property of an insolvent debtor, it will not be held to be an assignment nor invalid under this section. And, even if such mortgage was made by the debtor for the purpose of hindering and delaying other creditors, it will not be fraudulent and void where there is no evidence to show that the mortgagee had any intention or purpose of aiding in the fraudulent plans of the mortgagor. Koln Bros. et al. v. Clement et al., 58 Iowa, 589.

A clause in a deed of assignment, directing the sale of the assigned property “when convenient, and as soon as can be done without material sacrifice,” is not a badge of fraud, and does not render the assignment void. Id.

Where lands situated in this state were conveyed, in contemplation of insolvency, by deeds of general assignment for the benefit of creditors, which deeds were executed out of the state, at the grantor’s domicile, and by the terms of which certain creditors are preferred, it was held, that such deeds were invalid, and could not operate even as assignments in favor of all creditors pro rata. Loeing v. Parco et al., 11 Id., 282.

So where a debtor, contemplating insolvency, on his own motion, executes to certain creditors, at the same time, without consultation with them, several mortgages and deeds of trust, of all his property not exempt from execution, each instrument covering the same property, and reciting that it is subject to the prior conveyance—and causes the same to be filed of record on the same day, five minutes intervening between the filing of each, the transaction was held, to be in legal effect, a general assignment and not being made for all the creditors alike, without preferences, was invalid. Burnes v. Lehndorff, 8 Id., 96.

Where a debtor at the time of making a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors acts under the belief that he is insolvent, though he may not be so in fact, the assignment will not be invalid for the reason that he was not insolvent. Sweery v. Spaling, 9 Id., 259.

If such debtor is unable to pay his debts according to the usage of trade, or unable to proceed in business, without some general arrangement with his creditors, or some indulgence by way of extension of the time of payment, he is insolvent in contemplation of law. Id.

The fact that some of the agents or servants of the assignee, after the making of the assignment, sold some of the assigned property on credit, will not vitiate the assignment. Id.
Nor will the fact that the assignor was engaged in the store as clerk, after the execution of the assignment, be of itself, evidence of fraud in making the assignment. Id.

Where M and H, with no intention of making a general assignment at the time of making certain mortgages and a partial assignment but made those instruments in good faith for the purpose of the mortgages and indemnifying the partial assignees, those instruments did not in legal effect constitute any part of the general assignment for the benefit of creditors, and that they, as well as the general assignment, were valid under this section of the code. Gage & Co., et al. v. Parry, Assignee, et al., 69 Id., 695.

Whether or not a disposition of property is to be regarded as an assignment for the benefit of creditors, or as a mortgage to secure particular creditors, is to be determined from the intention of the parties. If the conveyance is fo a trustee, and the debtor intends to divest himself, not only of the title to the property, but of all control over it, if it is intended as an absolute conveyance of all his property, and is made for the purpose of securing a distribution of its proceeds among his creditors or a portion of them,—in legal effect it is an assignment for the benefit of creditors no matter what name or designation the parties may give it. On the other hand, if the intention of the debtor is merely to secure his debt to one or more creditor, and the conveyance is not intended as an absolute disposition of his property, but he reserves to himself a right therein, the conveyance will be treated as a mortgage, even though the debtor is insolvent at the time, and it covers all his property, and but a portion of his debts are secured by it. Cadwell's Bank v. Chillemi, Garnishee, 66 Id., 237.

A chattel mortgage made by partners, which does not include all the firm property, and which is not intended by any of the parties to operate as an assignment for the benefit of creditors, cannot be construed as an assignment. Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., v. Byers & Eggers et al., 67 Id., 606.

An assignment for benefit of creditors, whether contained in one or more deeds embracing the whole of the property of the debtor, will be held a general assignment and when it does not provide for the payment of all his creditors in proportion to their respective claims, it will be void. Moore v. Church et al., 70 Id., 208.

The transfer by an insolvent debtor of all his property in parcels, by deeds and mortgages, to several of his creditors in satisfaction of security of their claims, does not constitute an assignment for the benefit of creditors, though all done at one time and as one transaction; and such conveyances cannot be set aside as being in violation of this section of the code. Aulman v. Aulman et al., 71 Id., 124.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors is not void for the reason that it does not convey all the assignor's property where it reserves only such as the law exempts from execution. Perry v. Vezina et al., 65 Id., 25.

Where an assignor for the benefit of creditors, three hours prior to making the assignment, executed a mortgage on certain property, but at the time of executing the same he had no intention of making an assignment, held that the assignment was not rendered void because of the execution of the mortgage. Id. Sec. also, Farrell v. Jones, Id., 316.

SEC. 2116. [Assent of creditors presumed.]—In the case of an assignment for the benefit of all the creditors of the assignor, the assent of the creditors shall be presumed.

A general assignment made for the benefit of creditors will not be rendered invalid for a failure to make an inventory of the assets and liabilities of the assignor. Wooster, Tempia & Co. v. Stanfield et al., 11 Iowa, 128; Price v. Parker, Id., 144.

An imperfect or defective inventory of property, conveyed by an assignment for the benefit of creditors, cannot be treated as an absolute nullity. Drain v. Nickel. 8 Id., 438.

The assent of creditors to a general and unconditional assignment of property is presumed. American & Co. v. Frank et al., 62 Id., 292, 294.

SEC. 2117. [Inventory to be annexed by debtor.]—The debtor shall annex to such assignment an inventory, under oath, of his estate, real and personal, according to the best of his knowledge, and also a list of his creditors and the amount of their respective demands; but such inventory shall not be conclusive as to the amount of the debtor's estate; and such assignment shall vest in the assignee the title to any property belonging to the debtor at the time of making the assignment. Every assignment shall be duly acknowledged in the same manner as conveyances of real estate, and recorded in the county where the person making the same resides, or where the business in respect of which the same is made has been carried on.

The assent of creditors to a general and unconditional assignment of the property of the debtor is presumed. Price v. Parker, 11 Id., 144.
SEC. 2118. (As amended by ch. 115, 21st g. a.) [Assignee to file inventory and appraisement.]—The assignee shall also forthwith file with the clerk of the district or circuit court of the county where such assignment shall be recorded, a true and full inventory and valuation of said estate, under oath, so far as the same has come to his knowledge, and shall then and there, enter into bonds to said clerk, for the use of the creditors, in double the amount of the inventory and valuation, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by said clerk, for the faithful performance of said trust, and the assignee may thereupon proceed to perform any duty necessary to carry into effect the intention of said assignment. (Provided, however, that on application of two-thirds of the creditors, in number and amount, the court shall remove the assignee and appoint in his stead a person as assignee approved by the creditors in number and amount as aforesaid; and when any assignee is removed, he shall immediately turn over to the clerk of the district court, or any person appointed by the court, all money and property of the estate in his hands.)

SEC. 2119. [To give notice.]—The assignee shall forthwith give notice of such assignment by publication in some newspaper in the county, if any, and if none, then in the nearest county thereto, which publication shall be continued at least six weeks; and shall also forthwith send a notice by mail to each creditor of whom he shall be informed, directed to their usual place of residence, and notify the creditors to present their claims, under oath, to him within three months thereafter.

A creditor who fails to file his claim with the assignee within three months after the first publication of the notice of assignment, is not entitled to share pro rata in the dividends of the estate. In the Matter of the Assignment of Holt, 45 Iowa, 301.

SEC. 2120. [To report and file list of creditors.]—At the expiration of three months from the time of first publishing notice, the assignee shall report and file with the clerk of the court a true and full list, under oath, of all such creditors of the assignor as shall have claimed to be such, with a statement of their claims, and also an affidavit of the publication of notice, and a list of the creditors, with their places of residence, to whom notice has been sent by mail, and the date of mailing, duly verified.

An order of the court that a pro rata dividend be paid by an assignee for the benefit of creditors, where the prior proceedings have been in all respects regular, and no exceptions have been filed to any of the claims presented, constitutes an adjudication as between the creditors which cannot be collaterally attacked. Perry v. Murray et al., 55 Iowa, 416

Where the assignee's report, made under this section, shows that a claim was filed after the expiration of the three months prescribed in the statute, it is the duty of the assignee to resist the allowance of said claim, as if filed within the time, though no obligation was made at the time it was filed. Coolot Lumber Co. v. Moyer, 38 N. W. R., 117.

The report of the assignee under this section becomes a part of the record in the assignment proceedings without a formal tender of the report in evidence. Id.

SEC. 2121. [Objections to claims filed: proceedings.]—Any person interested may appear within three months after filing such report, and file with said clerk any exceptions to the claim or demand of any creditor; and the clerk shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be given to the creditor, which shall be served as in case of an original notice, returnable at the next term; and the said court shall at such term, proceed to hear the proofs and allegations of the parties in the premises, and shall render such judgment thereon as shall be just, and may allow a trial by jury thereon.

This section provides a method for excepting to the genuineness or correctness of a claim or demand, but does not afford any plain, speedy and adequate remedy, whereby creditors holding securities may be compelled to exhaust them before taking dividends under the assignment. Wertz et al. v. Hart, 13 Iowa, 515.

In a proceeding under this section, for the trial of exceptions by a party in interest to a claim or demand filed against the estate of an insolvent, the plaintiff, though a non-resident, cannot be required to give bond for security for costs. Meyer v. Evans et al., 66 Id., 179.
The report of an assignee showed that the claim of A was secured by mortgage. To this item of the report B, a creditor, objected on the ground that the mortgage was invalid, and created no lien. A answered, setting the note of the assignor to him, and the mortgage made to secure it, and, claiming by virtue thereof, priority over the other creditors. Held, that these pleadings sufficiently presented for trial the issue as to A's right to priority, under this section of the code. In re Assignment of Guyer, 69 Id., 585.

Sec. 2122. [Dividends ordered.]—If no exception be made to the claim of any creditor, or if the same have been adjudicated, the court shall order the assignee to make, from time to time, fair and equal dividends among the creditors of the assets in his hands, in proportion to their claims, and as soon as may be, to render a final account of said trust to said court, who may allow such commissions to said assignee in the final settlement as may be considered just and right.

Assignment for the benefit of creditors.

An Act to amend chapter 7, of title XIV, of the code, in relation to assignments for the benefit of creditors.

Section 1. [Taxes to be first paid.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That hereafter in all assignments of property for the benefit of creditors, whether under chapter 7, of title XIV of the code, or at common law, assessments or taxes levied under the laws of this state, including municipal corporations, shall be entitled to priority or preference to be first paid in full. (Took effect by publication in newspapers February 27, 1876.)

As between an assignee for the benefit of creditors and the holder of a mortgage upon the real estate of the assignor, taxes levied after the making of the assignment upon property not covered by the mortgage should be paid by the assignee from the funds in his hands. Brooks v. Eightney, 53 Iowa, 276.

In a case where the mortgagee of the assignor had foreclosed and bought in, and had gone into possession under a quit-claim deed from the mortgagor and his assignee, the statute did not apply, the consideration of the quit-claim being, on the part of the purchaser, to take the property subject to the taxes, and on the part of the assignee the release of the right to redeem. Brown et al. v. Keene, Jr., 33 N. W. R., 651.

Where the county has acquired no lien for taxes upon personal property which has passed into the hands of a receiver, pending litigation concerning the priority of liens which have already attached to absorb the property, held, that the county has no claim on the property, or its proceeds in the hands of a receiver, for the taxes on the property. Howard County v. Strohler, 71 Iowa, 683.

Sec. 2123. (As amended by ch. 125, 21st a. a.) The assignee shall at all times be subject to the order and supervision of the court or judge, and the said court or judge may, by citation and attachment, compel the assignee, from time to time, to file reports of his proceedings, and of the situation and condition of the trust, and to proceed in the faithful execution of the duties required by this chapter. [The assignee shall dispose of all personal property, and divide the proceeds of the same among the creditors as they may be entitled thereto, within six months of the date of assignment, and shall dispose of real estate within one year from the date of assignment, and make full settlement at that date unless the court or judge, for good reason shown, shall extend the time within which such disposition shall be made.]

Sec. 2124. [Not void: citation to debtor.]—No assignment shall be declared fraudulent or void, for want of any list or inventory as provided in this chapter. The court or judge may, upon application of the assignee or any creditor, compel the appearance in person of the debtor before such court or judge forthwith, or at the next term, to answer under oath such matters as may then and there be inquired of him, and such debtor may then and there be fully examined under oath.
as to the amount and situation of his estate, and the names of the creditors and the amount due to each, with their places of residence; and may compel the delivery to the assignee of any property or estate embraced in the assignment.

Sec. 2125. [Additional inventory.]—The assignee shall, from time to time, file with the clerk of the court, an inventory and valuation of any additional property which may come into his hands under said assignment after the filing of the first inventory, and the clerk may thereupon require him to give additional security.

Sec. 2126. [Claims not due.]—Any creditor may claim debts to become due as well as debts due, but on debts not due a reasonable abatement shall be made when the same are not drawing interest, and all creditors who shall not exhibit their claim within the term of three months from the publication of notice as aforesaid, shall not participate in the dividends until after the payment in full of all claims presented within said term and allowed by the court.

A creditor of an insolvent, who does not exhibit his claim within three months from the time of giving notice of assessment as required by section 2119 of the code, cannot participate in the dividends until after the payment in full of all claims presented within that time and allowed by the court. McKinley, Gilchrist & Co. v. Nourse, Assignee, et al., 67 Iowa, 118.

This section, providing that claims filed and allowed within three months after notice by publication, shall be paid in full before the payment of any claims filed thereafter, the fact that a creditor did not have actual notice of the assignment until two days before the expiration of the time allowed, and thereby failed to present his claim, will not be entitled to equitable relief; the statute being a complete bar to recovery. Conlee Lumber Co. v. Meyer, 38 N. W. Rep., 117.

Sec. 2127. [Sale of property.]—Any assignee as aforesaid shall have as full power and authority to dispose of all estate, real and personal, assigned, as the debtor had at the time of the assignment, and to sue for and recover in the name of such assignee everything belonging or appertaining to said estate, and generally do whatsoever the debtor might have done in the premises; but no sale of real estate belonging to said trust shall be made without notice, published as in the case of sales of real estate on execution, unless the court shall order and direct otherwise.

By entering into possession of the property assigned, the assignee accepts the trust; after which time he may bring an action of replevin for the property, although no inventory or bond has yet been filed. Price v. Parker, 11 Iowa, 144.

The assignee in a general assignment for the benefit of creditors takes the assigned property subject to all the equities existing against it in favor of third parties. He merely stands in the shoes, and succeeds only to the rights of, his assignor. Roberts v. Austin, Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.

Sec. 2128. [Death or failure of assignee: court may appoint another.]—In case any assignee shall die before the closing of his trust, or in case any assignee shall fail or neglect for the period of twenty days after the making of any assignment, to file an inventory and valuation, and give bonds as required by this chapter, the district or circuit court, or any judge thereof, of the county where such assignment may be recorded, on the application of any person interested, shall appoint some person to execute the trust embraced in such assignment; and such person, on giving bond, with sureties as required above of the assignee, shall possess all the powers conferred upon such assignee, and shall be subject to all the duties hereby imposed, as fully as though named in the assignment; and in case any security shall be discovered to be insufficient, or on complaint before the court or judge, it should be made appear that any assignee is guilty of wasting or misapplying the trust estate, said court or judge may direct and require additional security, and may remove such assignee and may appoint others instead; and such person so appointed, on giving bond, shall have full power to execute such duties and to demand and sue for all estate in the hands of the person removed, and to demand and recover the amount and value of all moneys and property or estate so wasted and misapplied which he may neglect or refuse to make satisfaction for, from such person and his sureties.
An Act to provide for the distribution of funds by the assignees of insolvents.

Section 1. [Personal service, a preferred claim.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That upon making order for the distribution of the assets in the hands of the assignee, of an insolvent, as provided in section 2122 of the code, the court shall order to be paid in full, as a preferred claim, the earnings of any creditor for his personal services rendered to the assignor at any time within ninety days next preceding the execution of the assignment.

Section 2. [When unable to find creditor: distribution of unclaimed dividend.]—That if upon the making of the final dividend to the creditors of the estate of an insolvent by the assignee, he shall be unable after proper efforts, to ascertain the place of residence of any creditor, or any person who is authorized to receive the dividend due such creditor, he shall report the same to the court, with evidence showing diligent attempt to find the creditor, or person authorized to receive the dividend. Whereupon the court may in its discretion, order the distribution of the unclaimed dividend among the other creditors.

Approved April 1, 1884.

CHAPTER 8.

RELATING TO MECHANICS' LIENS.

Chapter 8 of code, of mechanics' liens, repealed and substituted by the following:

An Act repealing chapter 8, of title XIV of the code, and providing for mechanics' liens.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Chapter eight of title XIV of the code, entitled, "of mechanics' liens," is hereby repealed; provided, that this repeal shall not affect any contract already made, executed or executory, or impair any right whatever, arising under the law hereby repealed.

Chapter 44 of the acts of 1874 made a mechanic's lien "transferable and assignable" and when for labor alone was made exempt from execution.

Query.—Was that act repealed by section 1, of chapter 100, laws of 1876, above.

Under chapter 14 of the code, as amended by chapter 44, acts of 1874, the assignment of an installment due a mechanic for work, before the completion of his contract, did not carry with it the right to a mechanic's lien upon the property. Merchant v. Ottumwa W. P. Co., 54 Iowa, 451.

Section 2129 (2). [Collateral security: prevents a lien.]—No person shall be entitled to a mechanic's lien, who, at the time of executing or making the contract for furnishing material or performing labor, as hereinafter provided, or during the progress of the work, erection, building or other improvement, shall take any collateral security on such contract. But after the completion of such work, and when the contractor or other person shall have become entitled to claim, or have a lien, the taking collateral or other security shall not affect the right to such mechanic's lien, unless such new security shall be by express agreement given and received in lieu of the mechanics' lien.
The taking of a promissory note for the amount due for work done or materials furnished, in the erection of a house, will not divest the right of a party to a mechanic's lien, and the note may be properly taken as the amount due, and the time of payment under the contract. Logan & Cook v. Attix, 7 Iowa, 77; Bonsall v. Taylor, 5 Id., 546.

A mere promise by a subsequent purchaser of property subject to a mechanics' lien, in consideration of forbearance to pay the claim secured by the lien, is not collateral security within the meaning of section 1009 of the code of 1851. Merris v. Sherman, 9 Id., 231.

The taking a mortgage by the person claiming a mechanic's lien, upon the same property on which the lien is claimed is not to be considered as collateral security. Gilchrist v. Gotschalk, 39 Id., 311.

Although the right to a mechanic's lien has been forfeited by taking collateral security, such security may be surrendered and the lien, by agreement of parties, restored; and when so restored it becomes as valid and effective between the parties, or those subsequently acquiring rights in the property, as though no security had been taken. Getchell & Sons v. Musgrove, 54 Id., 744.

The fact that a husband, who as agent for his wife, contracts for material to be used in the erection of a building on her land, also binds himself by such contract to pay therefor, will not constitute the taking of collateral security by the material man so as to defeat his right to a mechanic's lien. Riddles v. Lewis et al., 66 Id., 231.

SEC. 2130 (3). [Who may have a lien.]—Every mechanic, or other person who shall do any labor upon, or furnish any materials, machinery, or fixtures for, any building, erection or other improvement, upon land, including those engaged in the construction or repair of any work of internal improvement, by virtue of any contract with the owner, his agent, trustee, contractor, or sub-contractor, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, shall have for his labor done, or materials, machinery or fixtures furnished, a lien upon such building, erection or improvement, and upon the land belonging to such owner on which the same is situated, to secure the payment of such labor done, or materials, machinery, or fixtures furnished.

The law contemplates a contract or agreement more specific than the mere purchase of the materials in the ordinary course of trade to entitle a party to a mechanic's lien. It is not sufficient to show that he furnished the materials, without proof to establish the further fact that they were furnished especially to be used in or about a building. Cotes & Davies v. Shovey, 3 Iowa, 186; Jones v. Swan, 21 Id., 181; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 119; Miller v. Hollingsworth, 33 Id., 224.

It is not necessary that the contract be in writing, nor need it be proved by direct and positive testimony, but the jury should be satisfied that such an agreement existed, and that the materials were furnished in pursuance thereof. Id.

It is not necessary that every item furnished should be contemplated and specified at the time of making the contract; and it makes no difference that the items are charged from time to time in the books of the mechanic or builder in the same manner as he charges ordinary customers; neither is it necessary that it should be expressly agreed that he is to have a lien for his materials or work. Jones v. Swan, 21 Id., 181; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Id., 119.

One who performs labor for a contractor in the erection of a building may establish a mechanic's lien against the building therefor, though no express contract for payment was made. Foerder v. Wesser et al., 56 Id., 157.

The fact that one who performs labor in the erection of a building also acts as overseer of other workmen, will not defeat his right to a mechanic's lien. Id.

The breaking of prairie is not an improvement upon land such as will entitle the person doing the breaking to a mechanic's lien. Brown v. Wyman, 1 Id., 459.

A mechanic is entitled to a lien for labor performed on a house standing on the land of the wife, when such labor was performed under a contract with the husband as agent of the wife, for her use and benefit, with her knowledge and consent, and for which they promised to pay. Riddle v. Wilson, 23 Id., 404; Burdick v. Moon et ux., 24 Id., 418.

The agency of the husband to make a contract for lumber on the part of the wife will not be presumed from the marital relation alone; nor from the fact that the lumber was used by the husband in the erection of a house upon land belonging to the wife. Miller v. Hollingsworth, 33 Id., 224; Price v. Hornby, 46 Id., 696. But where the husband purchases lumber with which to make improvements on the land of his wife, and it is, with her acquiescence, so used in the enhancement of her separate property, with full knowledge on her part that it is unpaid for, and of all the facts, the seller will be entitled to an equitable lien on the property for the value of the materials furnished. Miller v. Hollingsworth, 36 Id., 163.

A day laborer upon a railroad is entitled to a lien, under the statute, for his wages. Morgan v. Carroll, 35 Id., 22.

The lien may be enforced against a party having possession under a contract or bond for deed.
And the subsequent procurement of the full legal title by the holder of the contract or bond will not prejudice the lien. Monroe v. West, 12 Iowa, 119; Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119.

A mechanic's lien attaches to the building or improvement erected with the materials furnished, but does not follow the material into the hands of a vendor of the purchaser and attach to a building he may use them to erect. Heaton v. Todd v. Hoyt et al., 42 Iowa, 157.

Before the enactment of chapter 100 of the acts of 1876, the only manner of establishing the priority of a mechanic's lien on a building over a prior encumbrance on the land was by the sale and removal of the building; and where the nature of the improvement was such that it could not be removed, the lien of the mechanic must have been postponed to the lien on the land. Conrad et al. v. Starr et al., 50 Iowa, 479.

A mechanic's lien cannot be established against a building owned by a county and used for county purposes. Lewis v. Chickasaw Co., 50 Iowa, 234; Breneman v. Harvey, 70 Iowa, 479.

The mechanic's lien law is framed with reference only to property which can be sold on execution, and bridges constructed by a county are not, therefore, subject to such a lien. Nor can the court, in an action to enforce a lien upon such property, render a decree for the amount found due, without ordering a sale of the property. Loring & Co. v. Smell et al., 50 Iowa, 271.

A mechanic's lien cannot be established against a public school house. And the fact that lumber which had been attached was released by the officer making the attachment and afterwards used in the construction of a school house, with knowledge of the attachment by the officers of the district, was held not to render the district liable therefor, or to give the attaching creditor a lien thereon. Charnock v. The Dist. Twp. of Colfax et al., 51 Iowa, 70.

A mechanic's lien will attach and may be enforced against a building and the land on which it is situated for the labor and material used in the construction and erection of lightning rods upon the building, regardless of the question whether or not such rods are of any utility. Harris v. Schultz, 64 Iowa, 539.

The process of the mechanic's lien law cannot be used to subject the indebtedness of a county to a contractor to the payment of a debt owing by him to a subcontractor. Breneman v. Harvey et al., 70 Iowa, 479.

Under this section and section 2136 a right to a lien on improvements may exist without any contract with the owner of the fee, but by contract with the owner of the improvements. Lane v. Snow, 66 Iowa, 544.

Where the defendant in a mechanic's lien foreclosure is the owner of both the land and the building, and there is no prior lien on the land, it is error to order the sale of the building alone, because its removal from the land would defeat the owner's right of redemption. Early v. Burt et al., 68 Iowa, 716.

Where materials were furnished the defendants under one contract for two buildings erected by him on separate lots owned by him, held that it was not necessary in the petition to foreclose a mechanic's lien for such material, to set out a bill of particulars showing the materials purchased for such house separately. The Bowman Lumber Co. v. Newton et al., 72 Iowa, 480.

SEC. 2131 (4). [Extent of lien.]—The entire land upon which any such building, erection, or other improvement is situated, including that portion of the same not covered therewith, shall be subject to all liens created by this chapter, to the extent of all the right, title and interest owned therein by the owner thereof, for whose immediate use or benefit such labor was done or things furnished, and when the interest owned in said land by such owner of such building, erection or other improvement is only a leasehold interest, the forfeiture of such lease for the non-payment of rent, or for non-compliance with any of the other stipulations therein, shall not forfeit or impair such liens so far as concerns such buildings, erections and improvements, but the same may be sold to satisfy said lien, and be moved within thirty days after the sale thereof by the purchaser.

See Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119.

A mechanic's lien will attach and may be enforced against a building, and the land on which it is situated, for the labor and material used in the construction and erection of lightning rods upon the building, regardless of the question whether or not such rods are of any utility. Harris et al. v. Schultz et al., 64 Iowa, 539.

Where work was performed on a railway under a subcontract in July and August, 1881, and the notice required by this section, of the filing of the claim for a lien, was given October 31, 1881, and, prior to the giving of the notice, the subcontractor had been paid in full, in accordance with the contract, for the work, after its completion, it was held, that the lien could not be enforced against the railway. Nash & Phelps v. The C., M. & St. Paul Ry Co., 62 Iowa, 40.

SEC. 2132 (5). [Extent of lien on work of internal improvement.]—And when such material shall have been furnished or labor performed, in the construction, repair, or equipment of any railroad, canal, viaduct, or other similar... improvement, the lien therefor shall extend and attach to the erection, excavations, embankments, bridges, road-bed, and all land upon which the same may be situated, including the rolling stock thereto appertaining and belonging; all of which, except the easement of right of way, shall constitute the building, erection or improvement provided and mentioned in this statute.

In Brewer v. The B. & C. R. R. Co., filed at the June term, 1878, the supreme court ruled that the mechanic's lien does not extend to the whole line of the railroad, and that the improvements are not of such a character as that they can be sold under the lien and be removed by the purchaser. They are part of the road. 12 West Jur., 551. See 48 Iowa, 619.

It was also held that the lien of a mechanic for repairs upon a completed railway is not paramount to the lien of a mortgage executed after the commencement and before the completion of the road. Id. Nor where the improvements constitute an integral part of the road.

Sec. 2133 (6). [Contractor or subcontractor to make and file statement.]—Every person, whether contractor or subcontractor, who wishes to avail himself of the provisions of this statute, shall file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the building, erection or other improvement to be charged with the lien is situated, a just and true statement or account of the demand due him after allowing all credits, setting forth the time when such material was furnished or labor performed, and when completed, and containing a correct description of the property to be charged with the lien, and verified by affidavit. Such verified statement or account must be filed within ninety days, and by a subcontractor within thirty days, from the date on which the last of the material shall have been furnished, or the last of the labor was performed. But a failure or omission to file the same within the periods last aforesaid, shall not defeat the lien, except against purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith without notice, whose rights accrued after the thirty or ninety days, as the case may be, and before any claim for the lien was filed; provided, that where a lien is claimed upon a railway, the subcontractor shall have sixty days from the last day of the month in which such labor was done or material furnished, within which to file his claim therefor.

Under the revision it was held that a mechanic's lien for labor performed or materials furnished, held good as against intervening incumbrancers for the period of ninety days from the date of the last item, without filing a statement or claim, as the statute directed. After that time the filing was necessary in order to preserve the priority of the lien. Evans v. Tripp, 35 Iowa, 371; Noel v. Temple, 12 Id., 216; Jones v. Swan & Co., 21 Id., 181.

Where a mechanic's lien, which is junior to a mortgage on the premises, is filed before the expiration of the ninety days, it will not be prejudiced by the commencement of a suit to foreclose the mortgage prior to such filing. Nor will such lien-holder be affected by such foreclosure proceedings to which he is not made a party. Jones v. Hartstock et al., 42 Id., 147.

So also it was held that public bridges of a county cannot be made subject to a mechanic's lien under our statutes. Loring v. Co., v. Small et al., and Dunbar v. same, Id., 60.

This same doctrine would seem to apply to all public buildings of state, counties, cities, and school districts.

It was held, under chapter 49 of the laws of 1874, that the requirement of that statute that the written settlement with the subcontractor should be given to the contractor by the laborer claiming the lien, was sufficiently complied with by filing the settlement with the clerk within the thirty days allowed for filing the lien. Bundy v. The K. & D. M. R. Co., 49 Id., 207.

In an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, the statement or claim filed for the lien, after stating the making of a contract “that under and by virtue of said contract, the said William Valentine furnished materials for the building, etc., as specified, and two promissory notes were given by the said Rawson to the affiant” (giving dates and amounts), “at and for the usual prices charged for such lumber material,” was held insufficient for the reason that it did not contain a “statement or account” of the demand due the plaintiff. It should show the account whereon the demand was founded. Valentine v. Rawson, 57 Id., 179, 181.

Where the party entitled to a mechanic's lien fails to file the same until after the lapse of ninety days, during which time the property has passed to an innocent purchaser, the mechanic is not entitled to enforce his lien against such purchaser, and the rule is not varied by the fact that the vendee took the property under a bond for a deed, and made no actual payment, but simply executed his note for the purchase price. Weston & Co. v. Dunlap et al., 50 Id., 183.
The contract required to authorize a mechanic's lien need not be express or in writing, but may be oral or implied. Neilsen et al v. The Iowa Eastern R. Co., 51 Id., 134.

The fact that such contract was in writing would not exclude evidence to show the purpose for which the materials mentioned in the contract were used. Id.

The statement filed with the clerk is the limit of plaintiff's recovery only with respect to purchasers and incumbrancers. Id.

A mechanic's lien upon a railroad will not embrace the rolling stock thereon. Such stock constitutes no part of the real estate. Id.

The fact that a part only of the material furnished is used in a building or improvement will not prevent the lien from attaching for the whole amount furnished. Id.

A lien for materials furnished for the construction of a railroad embraces only the completed portion of the road, but the fact that the road, as projected when the materials were furnished, was not fully completed, will not defeat the lien. Id.

A subcontractor may waive his right to the mechanic's lien, and if he fails to do what is required of him by the statute, it is and must be conclusively presumed he has done so. Brown v. Smith, 55 Id., 81, 32.

A subcontractor on a railroad, in order to secure a mechanic's lien for work done, must file his claim therefor within sixty days from the last day of the calendar month in which the work was performed, the word "done" in the statute having reference to the time of the performance of the work, and not to the time when the work of the subcontractor is completed, and each month's work, for this purpose, being considered as separate from that of other months. Sandval v. Ford & Co. et al., 55 Id., 461.

As against the holders of other liens it is not essential to the validity of a mechanic's lien that a statement and claim therefor should be filed with the clerk. Bissell v. Lewis et al., 56 Id., 231.

Where the owner of an improvement knows that subcontractors are furnishing labor and materials, and knows who they are, he cannot defeat them of their rights under the mechanic's lien law by paying to the contractor, or to subsequent subcontractors on his orders, the contract price of the work, in disregard of the claims of the prior subcontractors. The Chicago Lumber Co. v. Woodside et al., 71 Id., 359.

Where the plaintiff, a sub-contractor, commenced an action on a statement and claim for a mechanic's lien, and blended therewith was a claim for money received and disbursed for his immediate employer, and then claimed a lien for a general balance which was much greater than the balance due him for labor, it was held that a demurrer was properly sustained to the petition showing these facts, because the statement and claim filed was not a "just and true statement" as required by the statute, and did not entitle the plaintiff to a lien. Whether a mere mistake in claiming a lien for too large a sum would defeat the claim, Stabbs v. The C., C. S. & S. W. R'y Co., 55 Id., 513.

A mortgage taken more than ninety days after the last item in an account for a mechanic's lien, and before the statement for the lien is filed, is an incumbrance in good faith, without notice, within the meaning of this section of the code, providing that such incumbrances shall be superior to the mechanic's lien. Gilbert, Hodge & Co. v. Thorp et al., 72 Id., 714.

SEC. 2134 (7). [Subcontractor must give notice of filing claim.]—To preserve his lien as against the owner and to prevent payments by the latter to the principal contractor or to intermediate subcontractors, but for no other purpose, the subcontractor must, within the thirty days provided in section six (6), serve upon such owner, his agent or trustee, a written notice of the filing of said claim, which notices may be served by any sheriff or constable, or other person; and if the party to be served, his agent or trustee, is out of the county wherein the property is situated, a return of that fact by the officers shall constitute sufficient service from and after it is filed with the clerk. But the lien of the sub-contractor may at any time be vacated and discharged by the owner, contractor, or intermediate subcontractor, filed [filling] with the clerk of the said district court a bond in twice the amount of the sum for which the mechanic's lien is claimed, and filed with two or more sureties to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the payment of any sum for which the mechanic may obtain judgment upon the demand of which such statement or account has been filed. But if no claim for a lien is filed within the periods hereinbefore provided and the notice thereof is not served, or if such thing being done and the bond as above provided is filed, then the owner or contractor may thereafter proceed, make payments and adjust their claims, without regard to the lien of the subcontractor, and nothing in this act contained shall be construed to require the owner to pay a greater amount or in any other manner or at earlier dates than those provided in his contract. But the liens created by this act are for the full enforcement thereof for the use and benefit of the holders of said liens.

Before the statement of his lien by a subcontractor can be given to the owner to establish his lien, either the contractor or his duly authorized agent must have refused to sign a statement of his claim. Mears & Haas v. Stubbs & Co., 45 Iowa, 675. [This case was decided under the provisions of the code of 1873.]

A written notice of the filing of the claim for a mechanic's lien by a subcontractor must be given to the owner, and as this is a statutory lien, it matters not that the owner may have knowledge of the claim; it is not sufficient unless the written notice is given. The statute does not recognize any other notice as sufficient. Townsbery v. The Iowa, M. & N. P. R. Co., June term, 1878; 12 West. Jur., 694.

To entitle a subcontractor, or a party furnishing a subcontractor with materials, to a lien therefor, he must give notice thereof to the owner or his agent, and his lien attaches only to the extent of the balance due the contractor at the time of the giving the notice. Culler et al. v. McCormick et al., 43 Iowa, 306.

As to the notice required by this section there is no distinction between railroad and other subcontractors, the former like the latter being required to give notice of their claims within thirty days from the completion of their work to prevent payments being made to their principals. Stewart & Ford v. Co., et al., 55 Iowa, 461.

Subcontractors who furnish materials or perform labor for the erection of a building are required to take notice of the terms of the principal's contract, and the owner is protected in making payments to the principal contractor in accordance with the terms of his contract, unless notified of claims for material or labor furnished before such payments are due. Stewart & Howden v. Wright et al., 52 Iowa, 335.

Where, under a contract for the erection of a building, the contractor gave to a party furnishing material, an order upon the owner, which was accepted by him, conditioned upon the performance of the contract, held, that whatever the contractor became entitled to thereafter must be applied to the payment of the order. Id.

The filing of a statement of account required to be filed with the clerk by a subcontractor within thirty days, to establish his lien, or, if he claims a lien upon a railway, within sixty days from the last day of the month in which the work was done, as provided in section 6 of chapter 100, laws of 1876, does not entitle the subcontractor to his lien unless he shall, within the proper time, as required in section 7 of said chapter, give written notice of the filing thereof to the owner, his agent or trustee. Any other than the written notice prescribed by the statute will not avail. Townsbery v. The J. M. & N. P. R. Co., 49 Iowa, 205.

Where a building contract provided that subcontractors should be paid by orders given by the principal contractor, and the owner had knowledge of the furnishing of materials by certain subcontractors, it was held that the owner was liable therefor although full payment had been made to the principal contractor before notice, a claim for a mechanic's lien having been filed and notice served by the subcontractors within the thirty days prescribed by the statute. Winter & Co. v. Hudson, et al., 54 Iowa, 335.

Where a subcontractor undertakes to enforce a mechanic's lien, he should show in his petition such evidence on part of the owner to the contractor, either at the time the subcontractor's account commenced, or later, as will justify the court in decreeing a lien; since under this section the owner cannot be required to pay a greater amount, nor in any other manner, or at earlier dates than those provided in his contract; but notwithstanding the defect in the petition in the case before the court, on account of the manner in which the same was presented, and the plaintiff being entitled to a lien for a certain amount, the judgment was modified accordingly. Martin v. Morgan 64 Id., 270.

Where the owner of a building in the course of erection had contracted to pay to the contractors eighty per cent of all the work done and materials furnished every Saturday night, and the rest of the contract price upon completion of the building, and he knew that the contractors would have to purchase, and did purchase, lumber of some one, but he had no reason to suppose that they were insolvent, and there were several lumber dealers in the city where the building was erected, and he did not in fact know who was furnishing the lumber, and the contractor abandoned the work before it was completed, held that he was authorized to pay the contractors, and in strict accordance with the terms of the contract, for the work done and materials furnished, as well as for extra work done on the building by them, and to pay out to others the amount necessary to complete the building, and that the material man, as a subcontractor, could recover of the owner, on a mechanic's lien, only so much of the contract price as yet remained in his hands. The Fuller ton Lumber Co. v. Osborn, 73 Id., 472.

Sec. 2135 (8). [Extent of lien if claim is filed after expiration of thirty days.]—A subcontractor may at any time after the expiration of said thirty days, file his claim for a mechanic's lien with the clerk of the district court, as herein-before provided, and give written notice thereof to the owner, his agent or trustee, as provided in section seven (7), and from and after the service of such notice his lien shall have the same force and effect, and be prosecuted or vacated by bond, as if filed within the thirty days; but shall be enforced against the property or upon the bond, if given by the owner, only to the extent of the balance due from the owner to the contractor at the time of the service of such notice upon the owner, his agent or trustee. But if in such case the bond is given by the contractor or person contracting with the subcontractor filing the claim for a lien, such bond shall be enforced to the full extent of the amount found due the subcontractor.

Sec. 9. [Priority.]—The mechanic’s lien provided for by this statute shall take priority as follows:

First—As between persons claiming mechanics’ liens upon the same property, according to the order of the filing of the statements and accounts therefor;

Second—[Over garnishments.]—They shall take priority to all garnishments upon the person of the owner for the contract debt, made prior or subsequent to the commencement of the furnishing of the material or performance of the labor, without regard to the date of filing the claim for mechanic’s lien.

Third—[Over all other liens and incumbrances.]—They shall be preferred to all other liens and incumbrances which may be attached to or upon such building, erection or other improvements, or either of them, and to the land upon which they are situated, made subsequent to the commencement of said building, erection or other improvement. Provided, that the rights of purchasers, encumbrances (encumbrancers) and other persons, who acquire interests in good faith for valuable consideration and without notice, after the expiration of the time for filing claims for liens, as provided in section six (6), shall be prior and paramount to the claims of all contractors or subcontractors who have not, at the date such rights and interests were acquired, filed their claims for mechanics’ liens.

Plaintiffs under a contract with W & Son, furnished the materials for the enlargement of a building occupied by W & Son. Afterwards W mortgaged the premises to E. Plaintiffs, in an action to foreclose their lien, sought to have it established as superior to E’s mortgage. But they failed to show that W & Son had such an interest in the property that a mechanic’s lien would attach thereto. Held, that the evidence did not warrant a decree making their lien superior to the mortgage. Dierks Bros. & Lamson v. Walrod & Son et al., 66 Iowa, 354.

Fourth—[Shall attach any building, etc., in preference to prior lien on land where building is situated.]—The liens for the things aforesaid or the work, including those for additions, repairs and betterments, shall attach to the buildings, erections or improvements for which they were furnished or done, in preference to any prior lien or incumbrance or mortgage upon the land upon which such erection, building or improvement belongs, or is erected or put. If such material was furnished or labor performed in the erection or construction of an original and independent building, erection or other improvement, commenced since the attaching or execution of such prior lien, incumbrance or mortgage, the court may in its discretion order and direct such building, erection or improvement to be separately sold under execution, and the purchaser may remove the same within such reasonable time as the court may fix. But if, in the discretion of the court, such building should not be separately sold, the court shall take an account and ascertain the separate values of the land, and the erection, building or other improvement, and distribute the proceeds of sale so as to secure to the prior mortgage or other lien, priority upon the land, and to the mechanic’s lien, priority upon the building, erection, or other improvement. If the material furnished or labor performed was for addition to, repairs of, or betterments upon buildings, erections or other improvements, the court shall take an account of the values before such material was furnished or labor performed, and the enhanced value caused by such addition, repairs or betterments and upon the sale of the premises, distribute the proceeds of sale so as to secure to the prior mortgage or lien priority upon the land and improvements as they existed prior to the attaching of the mechanic's lien, and to the mechanic's lien priority upon the enhanced value caused by such additions, repairs or betterments. In case the premises do not sell for more than sufficient to pay off the prior mortgage or other lien, the proceeds shall be applied on the prior mortgage or other liens.

A mechanic's lien will have priority upon the building over the lien of a vendor for the purchase money of the land. Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119.

It was held in Getchell & Tichnor v. Allen, 34 Id., 559, under the law as it then stood, that a mechanic's lien for work or materials furnished in making additions or repairs to a building, is not entitled to a prior lien on the building, over a prior mortgage of the premises, but that it will have priority as to an independent structure on the land.

In Neilson v. The Iowa Eastern Ry Co., 44 Id., 71, it was held that a mechanic's lien attaches from the commencement of the building or improvement, and takes precedence over a mortgage executed after that time, although the particular work or material for which the lien is claimed, was not done or promised until after the making and recording of the mortgage.

The party who furnishes materials or machinery for a building, by the filing of his statement and claim for a lien acquires one upon the entire structure, and what he furnishes becomes in turn subject to all liens of his fellow-mechanics which attached earlier. Equitable Life Ins. Co. v. Blue et al., 43 Id., 615. It was also held in this case that a mechanic's lien for materials furnished for the improvement or enlargement of a building does not take priority over an existing mortgage, and this rule prevails even though the building be changed so that very little of the original structure remains. Following Getchell & Tichnor v. Allen, 34 Id., 559. [This case was decided upon the law as it stood prior to the taking effect of the act of 1876, now in force.]

Where materials are furnished and used for a building already erected and covered by mortgage, and the whole premises do not sell for more than sufficient to pay off the mortgage, the proceeds must all be applied on the mortgage according to the last clause of this section, which clause must be construed as a proviso to the preceding language of the section to which it belongs. German Bank v. Schloth, 59 Id., 316.

A mechanic's lien will have priority of a mortgage executed and recorded within ninety days from the date of the last item. Lamb & Son v. Hanneman, 40 Id., 41; Evans v. Gripp, 55 Id., 37.

Where a mechanic's lien was not filed against a railroad until two years and two months after the materials were furnished, and a sale of the road was made after the ninety days within which the lien should have been filed, it was held, that the purchaser at such sale took the road discharged of the mechanic's lien. Bear v. The B., C. R. & M. Ry Co., June term, 1878; West. Jur., vol. 12, 531; 48 Iowa, 619.

A mechanic's lien upon a railroad for the construction of a new bridge and abutment in place of an old one, is not a paramount lien to a mortgage upon the road previous to the erection of the new bridge. Id.

The lien of a mechanic for repairs upon a completed railway is not paramount and superior to the lien of a mortgage executed after the commencement and before the completion of the road. Id. Nor will the lien of the mechanic upon the particular work performed by him take precedence of such mortgage, when the improvements he has made constitute an integral part of the road. Id.

[This case was decided upon the law as it stood prior to the taking effect of chapter 100, laws of 1876.]

Where a mechanic's lien, which misdescribed what was intended to be covered thereby, had been foreclosed, it was held, that the lien did not become merged in the judgment so that another lien, correctly describing the property, might not be filed. Gray & Stevenson v. Dunham et al., 50 Id., 170.

While it is true under this provision of the statute a mechanic's lien will, under certain circumstances, have priority of a mortgage, yet this provision has no application to a case where the mortgage was foreclosed and the premises sold thereunder, before the materials for which the lien is claimed were furnished. Shepardson Bros. v. Johnson et al., 60 Id., 239.

October 20, 1882, B executed to S a trust upon certain real estate to secure an existing debt. Between November 9, 1882, and April 3, 1883, plaintiffs furnished B materials for the erection of a building on the real estate. June 4, 1883, the property was seized upon an attachment at the suit of P against B. July 3, 1883, plaintiffs filed their statement for a mechanic's lien, in the clerk's office. The question being upon the priority of the several liens, held, 1. That the trust deed, as a lien, not only on the land, but on the improvements subsequently placed thereon, was superior to the mechanic's lien. Following German Bank v. Schloth, 59 Id., 316. 2. That the mechanic's lien was superior to the attachment, because, while the statement for a lien was not filed within the ninety days required by the statute, P's rights accrued before the expiration of the ninety days, and by the express language of the statute, it is only purchasers and incum-
RELMATING TO MECHANICS’ LIENS. [Title XIV.

Where there was a prior mortgage on the farm on which a new building was erected, for the materials of which plaintiff claimed the establishment of a mechanic’s lien, and the house was securely built upon a stone foundation, and covered a cellar suitable for its purpose, and it was stipulated that the land was not worth enough to pay both plaintiff and the mortgagees, but it did not appear what the land and improvements together were worth, held, that the court below committed no abuse of the discretion vested in it by the statute respecting mechanic’s liens, in refusing to order the separate sale and removal of the dwelling for the satisfaction of the plaintiff’s lien; and that under the doctrine of The German Bank v. Schloth, 59 id., 316, and Curtis v. Broadwell, 68 id., 662, the court properly decreed the mortgage to be the first lien on the whole property, and ordered a foreclosure accordingly. Miller v. Seal et al., 71 Id., 392.

Sec. 3136 (10). [Definition of “owner.”]—Every person for whose immediate use or benefit any building, erection, or other improvement is made, having the capacity to contract, including guardians of minors, or other persons, shall be included in the word “owner” thereof.

A person in possession of real property under a contract or bond for a deed thereto is deemed an “owner” within the meaning of the statute. Stockwell v. Carpenter, 27 Iowa, 119; Monroe v. West, 12 Id., 119.

Sec. 2137 (11). [Definition of “subcontractor.”]—All persons furnishing things or doing work provided for by this act shall be considered subcontractors, except such as have therefor contracts directly with the owner, proprietor, his agent or trustee.

It was held under the law of the revision that a laborer employed by a subcontractor for building a railroad cannot enforce a lien upon the road for the amount due him, if the contractor has fully paid the subcontractor the amount due under his contract, though the railroad company is indebted to the contractor in a sum exceeding the amount of the claim of the laborer against the subcontractor. Utter v. Crane et al., 37 Iowa, 631.

Sec. 2138 (12). [Lien: how enforced.]—Any person having filed a claim for a lien by virtue of this chapter, may at once bring suit to enforce the same, or upon any bond given in lieu thereof, in the district or circuit court of the county wherein the property is situated.

Sec. 2139 (13). [Suit shall be begun on demand, or lien forfeited.]—Upon the written demand of the owner, his agent or contractor, served on the person claiming the lien requiring him to commence suit to enforce such lien, such suit shall be commenced in thirty days thereafter, or the lien shall be forfeited. The mechanics’ liens are assignable, and shall follow the assignment of the debt; and where such lien is for personal services, the same shall be exempt from execution, as now provided for such services.

Where the holder of a mechanic’s lien asked that he be decreed the right to redeem from the sale of the property under another lien of even date with his own, which prayer was granted, it was held that he could not also have the option of treating the sale as made for his benefit and claiming a pro rata share of the proceeds. Phelps v. Pope et al., 53 Iowa, 691.

The mere inchoate right to a mechanic’s lien is not assignable so as to vest in the assignee the right to file and perfect the same; the lien passes, however, by an assignment of the debt. Brown v. Smith, 55 Id., 31; Langen & Noble v. Sankey, Id., 52.

Sec. 2140 (14). [Duty of clerk.]—The clerk of the district court shall indorse upon every account or statement the date of its filing, and make the abstract thereof in a book by him to be kept for that purpose, and properly indexed, containing the date of its filing, the name of the person filing the lien, the amount of the lien, the name of the person against whom the lien is filed, and a description of the property to be charged with the same.

Sec. 2141 (15). [Acknowledgment of satisfaction: penalty for failure.]—Whenever a lien has been claimed by filing the same in the clerk’s office, and is afterwards paid, the creditor shall acknowledge satisfaction thereof upon the proper book in such office, or otherwise, in writing; and if he neglect to do so for ten days after the demand, he shall forfeit and pay twenty-five dollars to the owner or contractor and be liable to any person injured, to the extent of his injury.

Approved March 15, 1876.
An Act to protect subcontractors for labor performed and material furnished for public buildings and improvements. [Additional to ch. 100 of the acts of the sixteenth general assembly.

SECTION 1. [Who may have a lien.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Every mechanic, laborer or other person who as subcontractor shall perform labor upon, or furnish materials for the construction of any public building or bridge or other improvement not belonging to the state, shall have a valid claim against the public corporation constructing such building, bridge or other improvement for the value of such services and material, in an amount not in excess of the contract price to be paid for the building, bridge or other improvement, nor shall any such corporation be required to pay any such claim, at any time before, or in any manner different from that provided in the principal contract.

SEC. 2. [How lien shall be made.]—Such claim shall be made by filing with the public officer through whose order the payment is to be made, an itemized and sworn statement of the demand within thirty days after the performance of the last labor, or the furnishing of the last portion of the material, and claims shall have priority in the order in which they shall be filed.

SEC. 3. [How adjudicated.]—Any party in interest may cause the adjudication as to the amount, validity, priority and mode and time of payment of such claim by equitable proceedings in any court having jurisdiction. In such case the court may assess a reasonable sum to be taxed as attorney’s fees against the party failing in such action in favor of such corporation.

SEC. 4. [Contractor may release claim by filing bond: may prevent filing claim by filing bond.]—The contractor may at any time release such claim by filing with the treasurer of such corporation, a bond to such corporation for the benefit of such claimants in sufficient penalty with sureties to be approved by such treasurer, conditioned for the payment of any sum which may be found due such claimant. And such contractor may prevent the filing of such claim by filing in like manner a bond conditioned for the payment of persons who may be entitled to file such claims. Suit may be brought on said bond by any claimant within one year after the cause of action accrues, and judgment shall be rendered against the principal and sureties for any amount due said claimant.

Approved April 7, 1884.

A subcontractor cannot establish a claim against a county for work done on county bridges, under this chapter, unless he files his claim with the county auditor within thirty days after the date of the last item in his account. Brenneman v. Harvey et al., 70 Iowa, 479.
CHAPTER 9.

OF LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

SECTION 2147. [Authorized.]—Limited partnerships for the transaction of any lawful business within the state may be formed by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities herein described.

SEC. 2148. [General and special partners.]-Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons who shall be called general partners, and who shall be responsible as general partners; and of one or more persons who shall contribute in actual cash a specific sum as capital who shall be called special partners, and shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the funds so contributed.

SEC. 2149. [Power of general partners.]—The general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and bind the same.

SEC. 2150. [Certificate signed: what it must contain.]-The persons desirous of forming such partnership, shall make and severally sign a certificate, which shall contain:
1. The name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted;
2. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted;
3. The names of all general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence;
4. The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the common stock;
5. The period at which the partnership is to commence, and the period at which it will terminate.

SEC. 2151. [Certificate acknowledged.]—The certificate shall be acknowledged by the several persons signing the same, before some one authorized to administer oaths and take acknowledgments of deeds.

SEC. 2152. [To be filed and recorded.]—The certificate so acknowledged shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the principal place of business of the partnership is situated, and shall be recorded by him in a book to be kept for that purpose. If the partnership shall have places of business situated in different counties, a transcript of the certificate, and of the acknowledgment thereof duly certified by the clerk in whose office it shall be filed, shall be filed and recorded in like manner in the office of the clerk of the district court of every such county.

SEC. 2153. [Affidavit attached.]-At the time of filing the original certificate, an affidavit of one or more of the general partners shall be attached thereto, stating that the sums specified in the certificate to have been contributed by each of the special partners, had been actually and in good faith paid in cash.

SEC. 2154. [Effect of false statement.]—If any false statement be made in such certificate or affidavit, all the persons interested in such partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.

SEC. 2155. (As amended by ch. 8, 19th g. a.) [Publication of terms of partnership.]-[When amended by ch. 8, 19th g. a.][Publication of terms of partnership.]-When the certificate and affidavit is filed there shall be published forthwith for six weeks in two newspapers published in the senatorial district in which the business is carried on, to be designated by the clerk of the district court of the county where the certificate and affidavit is filed, a notice which shall contain the facts required to be set out in said certificate, and if such publication is not made the partnership shall be deemed general.]
SEC. 2156. [Affidavits of filed.]-Affidavits of the publication of such notice by the printers of the newspapers in which the same shall be published, may be filed with the clerk of the district court directing the same, and shall be evidence of the facts therein contained.

SEC. 2157. [Renewals acknowledged and recorded.]-Every renewal of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed, shall be certified, acknowledged and recorded, and an affidavit of a general partner be made and filed, and notice be given in the manner herein required for its original formation, and every such partnership which shall be otherwise renewed or continued, shall be deemed a general partnership.

SEC. 2158. [Alterations: Effect of.]-Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares, or in any other matter specified in the certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, and every such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration has been made, shall be deemed a general partnership according to the provisions of the last section.

SEC. 2159. [Firm name.]-The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm, in which the names of the general partners only shall be inserted, without the addition of the word “company” or any other general term, and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm, with his privity, he shall be deemed a general partner.

SEC. 2160. [Suits against.]-Suits in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

SEC. 2161. [Capital contributed by special partner not withdrawn.]-No part of the sum which any special partner shall have contributed to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him in the shape of dividends, profits, or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest shall not reduce the original amount of such capital, and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits shall remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits.

SEC. 2162. [Capital of restored.]-If it shall appear that, by the payment of interests or profits to any special partner, the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital with interest.

SEC. 2163. [Special partner may examine and advise as to business.]-A special partner may, from time to time, examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management, but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney or otherwise. If he shall interfere, contrary to these provisions, he shall be deemed a general partner.

SEC. 2164. [Accounting.]-The general partners shall be liable to account to each other, and to the special partners.

SEC. 2165. [Penalty for fraud.]-Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership shall be liable, civilly, to the party injured to the extent of his damage, and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court by which he shall be tried.

SEC. 2166. [Cannot assign or prefer creditors.]-Every sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership, made by such partnership when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after, or in contemplation of the insolvency of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner, over other creditors of such partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partnership, under the like circumstances, and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of such partnership.

Sec. 2167. [Same.]—Every such sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of a general or special partner, made by such general or special partner, when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after, or in contemplation of the insolvency of the partnership, with the intent of giving to any creditor of his own, or of the partnership, a preference over creditors of the partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partner under the like circumstances and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of the partnership.

Sec. 2168. [Liability of special partners.]—Every special partner who shall violate any provisions of the two last preceding sections, or who shall concur in or assent to any such violation by the partnership, or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

Sec. 2169. [Claims of special partners postponed.]—In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner shall, under any circumstances, be allowed to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.

Sec. 2170. [Dissolution: terms of.]—No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties, shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation, or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the district court in which the original certificate was recorded, and published once in each week for four weeks, in a newspaper printed in each of the counties where the partnership may have places of business.

CHAPTER 10.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN AND CARRIERS.

Sec. 2171. All warehouse receipts, certificates, or other evidences of the deposit of property, issued by any warehouseman, wharfinger, or other person engaged in storing property for others, shall be, in the hands of the holder thereof, presumptive evidence of title to said property both in law and equity.

A warehouse receipt issued by a warehouseman upon his own grain, as collateral security merely, and not intended to transfer the ownership, is invalid under this (2171) section of the code. Sexton & Abbott v. Graham et al., 53 Iowa, 181.

H. delivered certain loads of wheat to defendants, warehousemen, for which he took weighmaster's tickets with the word "stored" written upon their face. After the wheat had all been thus delivered, H. was requested by defendants to bring in his scale tickets and get a warehouse receipt therefor, which he neglected to do. H. afterwards sold and delivered the tickets to plaintiff, but defendants, without the knowledge or consent of H., had sold the wheat, and applied the proceeds thereof upon a debt which H. owed them. In an action by plaintiff upon the tickets, held, (1) that they were not warehouse receipts, in contemplation of the statute. (2) That, as H. had no wheat in defendant's hands at the time of the sale and delivery of the tickets to plaintiff—his right to wheat having been changed into a money demand—plaintiff could not recover upon the tickets. Catheart v. Snow & Huber, 64 Id., 504.

Sec. 2172. [Not issued unless property is in store.]—No warehouseman, wharfinger, or other person shall issue any receipt or other voucher for any personal property to any person unless property is in store and under his control at the time of issuing the receipt or other voucher.

Sec. 2173. [Subject to order of holder.]—Such property shall remain in store until otherwise ordered by the holder of the receipt or voucher, subject only to the conditions thereof, and the contract between the parties as to the time of its remaining in store.

Sec. 2174. [First canceled before second receipt can issue.]—No such person shall issue any second receipt or voucher for any such property while any former receipt or voucher for the same property, or any part thereof, is outstanding and uncanceled.

Sec. 2175. [Property cannot be sold or encumbered.]—No such person shall sell or encumber, ship, transfer, or in any manner remove beyond his immediate control, any personal property for which a receipt or voucher has been given as aforesaid, without the written consent of the person holding the same, except to enforce his lien thereon for storage and warehouse charges, as provided for in this chapter.

Sec. 2176. [Penalty.]—Every person aggrieved by the violation of any of the four sections next preceding, may have and maintain an action at law against the person violating any of the provisions of said sections, before any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall not only recover actual damages, but shall be entitled to exemplary damages which he may have sustained by reason of any such violation, whether such person shall have been convicted under a criminal charge for the same or not.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY—SALE.

Sec. 2177. [Lien for charges.]—Personal property transported by, or stored or left with any warehouseman, forwarding and commission merchant, or other depository, express company, or carriers, shall be subject to a lien for the just and lawful charges on the same, and for the transportation, advances, and storage thereof.

A livery stable keeper has no lien at common law for care and feeding, upon a horse delivered to him for such care and keeping, in the absence of a special contract therefor. Nor is such lien conferrd by section 2177 of the code. McDonald & Co. v. Bennett, 45 Iowa, 456. See chapter 25, laws of 1880.

Sec. 2178. [Proceedings when goods have remained unclaimed for six months.]—If any such property shall for six months remain in the possession, unclaimed, of any of the persons named in the preceding section, with the just and legal charges unpaid thereon, the person having the same in charge or possession shall first give notice to the owner or consignee, if his whereabouts is known, and if not known, shall go before the nearest justice of the peace and make affidavit, stating the time and place where such property was received, the marks or brands by which the same is designated, if any, and if not, then such other description as may best answer the purpose of indicating what the property is, and shall also state the probable value of the same, and to whom consigned; also the charges paid thereon, accompanied by the original receipt for such charges and by the bill of lading, also the other charges, if any, due and unpaid, and whether the whereabouts of the owner or consignee of such goods is known to the affiant, and if so, whether notice was first given to him as hereinbefore provided; which affidavit shall be filed by the said justice of the peace in his office, for the inspection of any one interested in the same, and he shall also enter in his estray book a statement of the contents of the affidavit, and time and place where and by whom the same was made.

Sec. 2179. [Sale: advertisement of: notice: proceedings.]—If any such property still remain unclaimed, and the charges are not paid thereon, then the person in possession of the same, either by himself or his agent, where the probable value does not exceed one hundred dollars, shall advertise the same for sale for the period of fourteen days, by posting five notices in five of the most public places in the city or locality where said property is held, giving such description as will indicate what is to be sold; but when the goods exceed the probable value of one hundred dollars, then the length of notice shall be four weeks, and, in addition to the five notices posted, there shall be a publication of the notice of sale for the same length of time in some newspaper of general circulation in the locality where the property is held, if there be one, and if not, then in the next nearest newspaper published in that neighborhood, at the end of which period, if the property is still unclaimed, or charges unpaid, the agent or party in charge shall sell the same at public action, between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and four o'clock P. M., for the highest price the same will bring in cash, which sale may be continued from day to day by public announcement to that effect at the time of adjournment until all the property is sold, and from the proceeds of such sale, the said party who held the same shall take and appropriate a sufficient sum to pay all charges thereon, and all costs and expenses of sale; the cost of advertising to be no more than in the case of a constable or sheriff's sale, and the same to be conducted in a similar manner.

Sec. 2180. [Perishable property defined: and when and how sold.]—Fruit, fresh fish, oysters, game, and other perishable property, shall be retained twenty-four hours, and if not claimed within that time and charges paid, after the proper affidavit is made as required by section twenty-one hundred and seventy-eight of this chapter, may be sold either at public or private sale, in the discretion of the party holding the property, for the highest price that the same will bring, and the proceeds of the sale disposed of as above provided. But in both cases, if the owner or consignee of said unclaimed property shall reside in the same city, town or locality in which the same shall be, and shall be known to the agent or party having the same in charge, then personal notice shall be given to said owner or consignee, in writing, that said goods are held subject to his order, on payment of charges, and that unless he pays said charges, and removes the property, the same will be sold as provided by law.

DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS.

Sec. 2181. [Surplus over charges to be deposited in county treasury.]—After the charges due and unpaid on the property, and the expenses and costs of sale have been taken out of the proceeds, the excess in the hands of the agent or person who was in charge thereof shall be by him forthwith deposited with the county treasurer of the county where the goods were sold, subject to the order of the owner, said ownership being properly authenticated under oath, and such person shall take from such treasurer a receipt for such money, and deposit the same with the county auditor. He shall also file with the county treasurer a schedule of the property, with the name of the consignee or owner, if known, of each piece of property sold, the sum realized from the sale of each separate package, describing the same, together with a copy of the advertisement as hereinbefore provided, and a full statement of the receipts of the sale, and the amount disbursed to pay charges, costs, and expenses of sale, all of which shall be under the oath of the party or his agent, which schedule, statement, oath, and advertisement shall be filed and preserved in the treasurer's office, for the inspection of any one interested in the same.

Sec. 2182. [Duty of treasurer.]—Should the owner of the property sold not make a demand upon the county treasurer for any money that may be in the treasury to his credit, according to the provisions of this chapter, the sum so unclaimed shall be accounted for by the county treasurer, and placed to the credit of the county in the next subsequent settlement made by the treasurer with the county; and should the money, or any part thereof, remain unclaimed during the period of one year, it shall then be paid into the school fund, to be distributed as other funds may be by law, which may be raised by tax on other property of the county. But nothing herein contained shall be a bar to any legal claimant from prosecuting and proving his claim for such money at any time within ten years, and, the claim being within that period prosecuted and proved, it shall be paid out of the county treasury in which it was originally placed without interest.

COMMON CARRIERS—LIABILITY.

SEC. 2183. [For damages caused to baggage.]—The proprietors of all omnibuses, transfer companies, or other common carriers, doing business within the limits of this state, and their agents, shall be liable for damages occasioned to baggage or other property belonging to travelers, through careless or negligent handling while in possession of said companies or carriers. And in addition to the damages recoverable therefor, the parties recovering the same shall also be entitled to an allowance of not less than five dollars for every day's detention caused thereby or by a suit brought to recover the same.

This section does not authorize a recovery against a railroad company by a traveler for delay caused by the mere detention of baggage, but only for such delay as results from damage to the baggage on institution of suit to recover the same. Anderson v. Toledo N. & W. R'y Co., 32 Iowa, 86.

SEC. 2184. [Cannot limit liability.]—No contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt any corporation or person engaged in transporting persons for hire, from the liability of a common carrier, or carrier of passengers, which would exist had no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation been made and entered into.

Where in a contract for the transportation of cattle by railroad from the city of Clinton, Iowa, to Chicago, Illinois, there was an express stipulation restricting the liability of the company as common carriers, the stipulation was held void under this section of the statute. McDaniel v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 24 Iowa, 412.

(Chapter 25, Laws of 1880.)

TO PROTECT KEEPERS OF LIVERY STABLES.

An Act to protect keepers of livery and feed stables, and herders and feeders of stock, and to give them a lien.

SECTION 1. [Have a lien on stock for proper charges and expenses of keeping.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That keepers of livery and feed stables, herders, and feeders, and keepers of stock for hire, shall have a lien on all stock and property coming into their hands as such, for their proper charges, and for the expense of keeping when the same have been received from the owner, or from any person; provided, however, this lien shall be subject to all prior liens of record.

SEC. 2. [Release the property on receiving bond: penalty of bond.]—The owner or claimant of the property may release the lien, and shall be entitled to the possession of the property on tendering to the person claiming the lien a good and sufficient bond, signed by two sureties, residents of the county, who shall justify, the penalty in the bond being at least three times the amount of the lien claimed, and conditioned to pay any judgment the person claiming the lien shall obtain, for which the property was liable under the lien.

Approved March 10, 1880.

Prior to the enactment of this chapter, a livery stable keeper acquired no lien upon property kept by him, as such, in the course of his business (McDonald v. Bennett, 45 Iowa, 456), and where an account for keeping property at a livery stable began before the enactment of this chapter and continued to accrue up to a date subsequent thereto, and there was no evidence from which to infer that the keeping of the property subsequent to the statute was in pursuance of a contract made prior thereto, held, that the lien did not attach for that part of the account which accrued prior to the taking effect of the statute, but that it did attach for that part of the account accruing subsequent thereto. Munson v. Porter, 63 Iowa, 453.
TITLE XV.

OF THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF MARRIAGE.

SECTION 2185. [A contract.]—Marriage is a civil contract, requiring the consent of parties capable of entering into other contracts except as herein otherwise declared.

SEC. 2186. [Between what ages valid.]—A marriage between a male person of sixteen and a female of fourteen years of age is valid, but if either party has not attained the age thus fixed, the marriage is a nullity or not at the option of such party made known at any time before he or she is six months older than the age thus fixed.

SEC. 2187. [License.]—Previous to any marriage within this state, a license for that purpose must be obtained from the clerk of the circuit court of the county wherein the marriage is to be solemnized, agreeable to the provisions of this chapter.

SEC. 2188. [Same.]—Such license must not in any case be granted where either party is under the age necessary to render the marriage absolutely valid, nor shall it be granted where either party is a minor without the previous consent of the parent or guardian of such minor, nor where the condition of either party is such as to disqualify him for making any other civil contract.

SEC. 2189. [Proof of age required.]—Unless such clerk is acquainted with the age and condition of the parties for the marriage of whom the license is applied for, he must take the testimony of competent and disinterested witnesses on the subject.

SEC. 2190. [Clerk to make entry of record.]—He must cause due entry of the application for the issuing of a license to be made in a book to be procured and kept for that purpose, stating that he was acquainted with the parties and knew them to be of competent age and condition, or that the requisite proof of such fact was made to him by one or more witnesses, stating their names, which book shall constitute a part of the records of his office.

SEC. 2191. [Consent of parent or guardian required.]—If either party is a minor, the consent of the parent or guardian must be filed in the clerk's office after being acknowledged by the said parent or guardian, or proved to be genuine, and a memorandum of such facts must also be entered in said book.

SEC. 2192. [Penalty.]—If the clerk of the circuit court grants a license contrary to the provisions of the preceding sections, he is guilty of a misdemeanor, and if a marriage is solemnized without such license being procured, the parties so married, and all persons aiding in such marriage, are likewise guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 2193. (As amended by ch. 4, 21st g. a.) [Who may solemnize.]—Marriages must be solemnized either:
1. By a justice of the peace or mayor of the city [or incorporated town] wherein the marriage takes place;
2. By some judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court of this state;
3. By some officiating minister of the gospel, ordained or licensed according to the usages of his denomination.

Sec. 2194. [Certificate of.—After the marriage has been solemnized, the officiating minister or magistrate shall, on request, give each of the parties a certificate thereof.

Sec. 2195. [Penalty.—Marriages solemnized with the consent of parties in any other manner than is herein prescribed, are valid; but the parties themselves, and all other persons aiding or abetting, shall forfeit to the school fund the sum of fifty dollars each.

No form of marriage is necessary. Any mutual agreement between the parties, to be husband and wife in presenti, followed by cohabitation, constitutes a valid and binding marriage, if the parties are under no legal disabilities to make a contract of marriage. Blanchard v. Lambert, 33 Iowa, 223. To the same effect are The State v. Williams, 20 Id., 93; The State v. Wilson, 22 Id., 364, and Kilburn v. Mullen, id., 498.

Where husband and wife separate, and the former lives and cohabits for years with a woman whom he claims, and is reputed to be his wife, the law presumes a divorce from the former wife, and she may legally marry again. Id.

If the marriage was originally void, a subsequent marriage will be presumed, if the parties continue to cohabit together after the removal of the legal impediment. Id.

The marriage of persons, without having obtained a license, is to be dealt with as a misdemeanor, and in no other manner. White v. The State, 4 Id., 449.

Sec. 2196. [Return: penalty for not making.—The person solemnizing marriage shall forfeit a like amount, unless within ninety days after the ceremony he make return thereof to the clerk of the circuit court.

Sec. 2197. [Register of marriage.—The clerk of the circuit court shall keep a register containing the names of the parties, the date of the marriage, and the name of the person by whom the marriage was solemnized, which, or a certified transcript therefrom, is receivable in all courts and places as evidence of the marriage and the date thereof.

The marriage register required to be kept by the clerk, is sufficient evidence to establish a marriage without other evidence showing that the person who officiated was authorized to solemnize marriages. Verholf v. Vanhouwenlen, 21 Iowa, 429; The State v. Schaunhurst, 34 Id., 547.

Record evidence, however, is not indispensable to prove a marriage, and the fact may be established by witnesses having knowledge thereof. Kilburn v. Mullen, 22 Id., 498; The State v. Wilson, id., 364; The State v. Williams, 20 Id., 93.

Certified transcripts of marriage records are receivable as evidence of marriages and the dates thereof in prosecutions for bigamy. The State v. Mattock, 70 Id., 229.

Sec. 2198. [When not applicable.—The provisions of this chapter, so far as they relate to procuring licenses and to the solemnizing of marriages, are not applicable to members of any particular denomination having, as such, any peculiar mode of entering the marriage relation.

Sec. 2199. [Husband responsible for return.—But where any mode is thus pursued which dispenses with the services of a clergyman or magistrate, the husband is responsible for the return directed to be made to the clerk, and is liable to the above named penalty if the return is not made.

Sec. 2200. [Illegitimates.—Illegitimate children become legitimate by the subsequent marriage of their parents.

Sec. 2201. [When void.—Marriages between persons whose marriage is prohibited by law, or who have a husband or wife living, are void; but if the parties live and cohabit together after the death of the former husband or wife, such marriage shall be deemed valid.

A marriage void ab initio, for the reason that one of the parties had a lawful husband or wife living, confers no right upon either in the property of the other. Carpenter v. Smith, 24 Iowa, 2004.
A marriage between parties one of whom has a husband or wife living is absolutely void, and no rights of the other party are affected thereby. This is not changed by the fact that the statute provides for actions to annul such marriages. Drummond v. Irish, 52 Id., 41.

CHAPTER 2.

OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

SECTION 2202. [Married women may own and dispose of property.]

A married woman may own in her own right, real and personal property acquired by descent, gift, or purchase, and manage, sell, convey, and devise the same by will, to the same extent and in the same manner that the husband can property belonging to him.

By the laws of Iowa the wife has similar property rights, and is chargeable with similar obligations, with her husband under like circumstances, and coverture is no defense against the enforcement of the rights of third persons growing out of her contract. Spafford v. Warren, 47 Iowa, 47.

The husband is the head of the family within the meaning of the exemption laws. Exempt property belonging to the wife before her marriage, and used for the family support, is not exempt from execution levied under a judgment against her. Van Doran v. Marden, 48 Id., 186.

A married woman is capable of acquiring and holding real property to her own separate use; and a purchase by a married woman on credit, relying upon the earnings of her son with which to pay, was upheld. Shields v. Keys, 24 Id., 298.

A married woman may make a valid mortgage upon her separate property, and an extension of time of payment of the debt to another is a sufficient consideration therefor. Low Bros. & Co. v. Anderson et al., 41 Id., 476.

Under this section, where the wife gave to her husband money, with the understanding that he was to use it to the best advantage, and to account to her therefor, with interest or profits, and he invested it in real estate in his own name, the money did not thereby vest in the husband for the benefit of a creditor who became such after the repeal of section 2499 of the revision and the enactment of the above section of the code. Jones v. Brandt, 59 Id., 332.

Where the wife allowed her husband to invest her money in real estate in his own name, thereby enabling him to obtain credit, but such real estate was exhausted in the payment of prior debts of the husband, of which the creditors had knowledge when they gave him credit, they were held not prejudiced by the conduct of the wife, and that she was not thereby estopped from asserting her ownership of the money. Id.

SEC. 2203. [Property of either not subject to contract between them.]

—When property is owned by either husband or wife, the other has no interest therein which can be subject of contract between them, or such interest as will make the same liable for the contracts or liabilities of either the husband or wife who is not the owner of the property, except as provided in this chapter.

Under the code the separate property of the wife cannot be taken for the debts of the husband, even though it be reduced to the possession of the husband, and the creditor have no notice of the wife’s interest therein. Schmidt v. Holtz, 44 Iowa, 446.

A judgment creditor of the husband has no lien upon the wife’s land for improvements made by the husband thereon. Van Doran v. Marden, 48 Id., 186.

A judgment creditor of the husband has no lien upon the wife’s land for improvements made by the husband thereon. Corning v. Fowler, 24 Id., 584.

Under section 2506 of the revision, a married woman was held liable on her covenants in a deed for her own land. Richmond v. Tibbles, 25 Id., 474.

The increase of live stock owned by the wife is her property and is not liable for the debts of the husband, though it is kept and cared for by him. Russell v. Long, 52 Id., 250.

An agreement between husband and wife by which each relinquishes the right of dower in the lands of the other is void under this section. Linton v. Crosley, 54 Id., 473. See also, Truebridge v. Sypher, 55 Id., 332, 355.

Under section 2506 of the revision, a married woman was held liable on her covenants in a deed for her own land. Richmond v. Tibbles, 25 Id., 474.

The increase of live stock owned by the wife is her property and is not liable for the debts of the husband, though it is kept and cared for by him. Russell v. Long, 52 Id., 250.

An agreement between husband and wife by which each relinquishes the right of dower in the lands of the other is void under this section. Linton v. Crosley, 54 Id., 473. See also, Truebridge v. Sypher, 55 Id., 332, 355.

Under chapter 136 of the laws of 1870, it was held that the husband had no common or joint interest in a right of action accruing to the wife on account of a tort committed against her, and that he could not be joined with her in the action. Musselman v. Gallagher, 32 Id., 383.

A wife may in good faith loan to her husband money possessed by her in her own right, and take security therefor upon land, which will be a valid lien upon the same, even though the transaction is not witnessed by any writings. Doyle v. McGuire, 38 Id., 410.
And where she takes his promissory note for such loan without security, she stands on an equal footing with other creditors in case of his insolvency. In re Alexander, 37 Id., 454.

See, also, In re Estate of Catharine Lennon, 55 Id., 260.

The power of husband and wife to contract with each other with reference to the amount which shall be awarded the wife as alimony on the dissolution of the marriage relation by divorce has been recognized by the supreme court in Blake v. Blake, 7 Id., 46, and subsequent cases, and such power is not taken away by this section of the code. But courts will in every case scrutinize the transaction very closely, and the contract will not be enforced unless it appears to have been entered into fairly, and to be reasonably just and fair to the wife. Martin v. Martin, 65 Id., 255.

A wife's inchoate right of dower is not such an interest in land that she can assert it against the creditors of her husband; and the release of such right in a portion of her husband's land conveyed to a creditor in satisfaction of a debt is not a valuable consideration for the conveyance to her by her husband of other lands. Haynes v. Kline, 64 Id., 308.

SEC. 2204. [Rights and liabilities as to property same as other persons.]—Should either the husband or the wife obtain possession or control of property belonging to the other, either before or after marriage, the owner of the property may maintain an action therefor, or for any right growing out of the same, in the same manner and extent as if they were unmarried.

Where money belonging to the wife is used by the husband in payment of the ordinary expenses of the family, with her knowledge and consent, and without any agreement for repayment to her, she cannot recover therefor from her husband's estate. Courtright v. Courtright, 58 Id., 251.

A wife's inchoate right of dower is not such an interest in land that she can assert it against the creditors of her husband; and the release of such right in a portion of her husband's land conveyed to a creditor in satisfaction of a debt is not a valuable consideration for the conveyance to her by her husband of other lands. Haynes v. Kline, 64 Id., 308.

SEC. 2205. [Husband not liable for civil injuries.]—For all civil injuries committed by a married woman, damages may be recovered from her alone, and her husband shall not be responsible therefor except in cases where he would be jointly responsible with her if the marriage did not exist.

SEC. 2206. [Conveyance to each other valid.]—A conveyance, transfer, or lien, executed by either husband or wife to or in favor of the other, shall be valid to the same extent as between other persons.

Prior to the code it was held, that a contract between husband and wife, which was supported by a sufficient consideration and not tainted with fraud, was valid between the parties and against subsequent creditors of the husband. Wright v. Wright, 16 Iowa, 496.

A wife may, under the statutes of Iowa, convey to her husband without the intervention of a trustee, an interest held by her in his lands. Robertson v. Robertson, 25 Id., 350; Blake v. Blake, 7 Id., 53; Wright v. Wright, 16 Id., 496; Logan v. Hall, 19 Id., 498; Simms v. Harvey, Id., 287, (1868).

SEC. 2207. [Abandonment of either: property may be sold to pay debts.]—In case the husband or wife abandons the other and leaves the state, and is absent therefor for one year without providing for the maintenance and support of his or her family, or is confined in the penitentiary for the period of one year or upward, the district or circuit court of the county where the husband or wife so abandoned or not confined resides, may, on application by petition setting forth fully the facts, authorize him or her to manage, control, sell, and encumber the property of the husband or wife for the support and maintenance of the family, and for the purpose of paying debts. Notice of such proceedings shall be given as in ordinary actions, and anything done under or by virtue of the order or decree of the court, shall be valid to the same extent as [if] the same was done by the party owning the property.

This section was not designed to affect the wife's agency of her husband at common law. Rawson v. Rice v. Spangler, 62 Iowa, 55.

SEC. 2208. [Contracts and sales binding on both.]—All contracts, sales, or incumbrances made by either the husband or wife by virtue of the power contemplated in the preceding section, shall be binding on both, and, during such absence or confinement, the person acting under such power may sue and be sued thereon, and for all acts done the property of both shall be liable and execution may be levied or attachment issued accordingly. No suit or proceeding shall abate or be in any-wise affected by the return or release of the person confined, but he or she may be permitted to prosecute or defend jointly with the other.

Sec. 2209. [Decree set aside.]—The husband or wife affected by the proceedings contemplated in the two preceding sections may have the order or decree of the court set aside or annulled by filing a petition therefor, and serving a notice on the person in whose favor the same was granted as in ordinary actions. But the setting aside of such decree or order shall in nowise affect any act done thereunder.

Sec. 2210. [Either may make the other attorney in fact.]—A husband or wife may constitute the other his or her attorney in fact to control and dispose of his or her property for their mutual benefit, and may revoke the same to the same extent and manner as other persons.

The husband may act as the agent of the wife, but in order to bind her he must be previously authorized to so act, or she must with express or implied knowledge of his act, subsequently ratify it. McLaren v. Hall et al., 26 Iowa, 297.

Sec. 2211. [Wages of wife: actions by.]—A wife may receive the wages of her personal labor and maintain an action therefor in her own name, and hold the same in her own right; and she may prosecute and defend all actions at law or in equity for the preservation and protection of her rights and property, as if unmarried.

This section authorizes a married woman to bring actions generally against other parties that her husband, but does not permit either husband or wife to maintain an action against the other for a tort committed during coverture. Peters v. Peters, 42 Iowa, 152.

Under our statutes the husband has no joint interest in an action for tort committed against the wife, and cannot be joined therein. Tuttle v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 518; Pancoast v. Burnett, 32 Id., 394; Musselman v. Galliher, Id., 383.

The husband may recover damages from a physician for treatment of his wife, by which he has been subject to expense and deprived of her society, but if her death is the result of such treatment, the right of action therefor exists only in favor of her administrator. Mourry v. Chaney, 43 Id., 626; Mewhirter v. Hatten, 42 Id., 288.

The employment by the owner of a farm of the husband to take charge of and carry on the same, does not imply the employment of the wife, in such sense as to entitle her to compensation from the owner for housework performed in the family of her husband, in the absence of any agreement that she shall be paid for her labor. Lytle v. Gray, 47 Id., 153.

In an action by the wife for damages for a tort committed against her, she cannot recover for loss of time caused by the injury unless she is engaged in the prosecution of a separate, independent business, which thereby suffers detriment. Tuttle v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 518.

Nor can she recover for money expended in procuring medical attendance and other expenses growing out of her injury, the husband alone having the right of action therefor. Id.

While the wife alone can recover for a direct injury to herself, yet the husband has a right of action for the consequential injuries to himself resulting therefrom. Mewhirter v. Hatten, 42 Id., 288.

The "wages of the wife's personal labor" for which she may maintain an action in her own name, are her earnings while in the employment of another than her husband, or while engaged in an independent occupation of her own. Her husband is entitled to her labor and assistance in the discharge of the duties and obligations growing out of the marital relations. Id. See also, Grant v. Greene, 41 Id., 88, cited in notes to section 2212, post.

The wife cannot recover for a loss of time caused by an injury to her person when her occupation is that of mere housewife in the family of her husband, but when she has a separate and independent employment, which she habitually follows, and for which she receives compensation from her employers, she may recover for loss of time; as where she was habitually engaged in washing clothes for others for a regular compensation, she was held entitled to prove and recover the value of the time she had lost by the injury complained of. Fleming v. Town of Shenandoah, 67 Id., 505. See also, Lytle v. Gray, 47 Id., 153.

Sec. 2212. [Property of one not liable for debts of the other.]—Neither husband nor wife is liable for the debts or liabilities of the other incurred before marriage, and, except as herein otherwise declared, they are not liable for the separate debts of each other; nor are the wages, earnings, or property of either, nor is the rent or income of such property liable for the separate debts of the other.

It was held, prior to the code, that while a married woman could not be made personally liable as surety on a promissory note, yet if she suffered a personal judgment to be rendered against her by default on such note, she could not afterwards avoid the judgment on the ground of coverture. Wolf v. Von Metro, 23 Iowa, 207; Guthrie v. Howard et ux, 32 Id., 54.

Where the wife had been appointed by the commissioners of insanity custodian of her insane husband, it was held, that she could not recover compensation for her services in that capacity from his estate. Such a contract is without consideration and void, the service being such as she owed by virtue of the marital relation. Grant v. Greene, 41 Id., 88.

SEC. 2213. [Contracts of wife.]*—Contracts may be made by a wife and liabilities incurred, and the same enforced by or against her to the same extent and in the same manner as if she were unmarried.

SEC. 2214. [Property of both liable.]*—The expenses of the family and the education of the children are chargeable upon the property of both husband and wife, or of either of them, and in relation thereto they may be sued jointly or separately.

One who sells an article of family use to the husband, on his individual credit, may maintain an action against the wife to subject her separate property to payment thereof. Smedley v. Felt, 41 Iowa, 588.

The separate property of the wife is liable for the price of a piano purchased by the husband for the use of the family. Id. For debts incurred for family expenses, the husband and wife are jointly and severally liable, and may be sued together or either sued alone. Same Case, 43 Id., 697.

The wife is personally liable with her husband for family expenses, and a personal judgment may be rendered against her therefor in a joint action against both, notwithstanding the husband may have been discharged in bankruptcy. Jones v. Glass et al., 48 Id., 345.

A reaping machine purchased by the husband and for use on his farm is not a family expense, chargeable on the property of the wife. McCormick v. Meath et ux, 49 Id., 536.

The expenses for the treatment of an insane wife in a hospital for the insane provided by the state, are not part of the family expenses, and the husband is not liable therefor. The County of Delaware v. McDonald, 46 Id., 170.

Prior to the code of 1873, it was held that the contingent right of dower of the wife in the lands of the husband, or his in hers, was not the subject of barter and sale between them. And aside from an agreement to separate, it was not competent for one to convey to the other his or her dower interest in lands. McKee v. Reynolds, 38 Id., 578.

One who advances money to the husband, which is used for the payment of family expenses, cannot claim a lien on the separate property of the wife therefor, where such advances were not made at her request, and there is no assignment to the plaintiff of the original account for such expenses. Sherman v. King et ux, 51 Id., 182.

A breaking plow is not an article of family expense, for the purchase price of which the property of the wife is liable under this section. Russell v. Long, 52 Id., 250.

A wife cannot be made liable under this section for money borrowed by her husband, on the ground that it was borrowed and used for the purpose of paying family expenses. Davis v. Ritchey, 55 Id., 719.

By the laws of this state, contained in this and previous sections of this chapter, the wife has similar rights of property and is chargeable with similar obligations with the husband under like circumstances, and coverture is no defense against the enforcement of the rights of others growing out of her contracts. Spryford v. Warren et al., 47 Id., 47.

The cost of an organ, though purchased by the husband for re-sale, but never actually sold, but ever afterwards (for about seven years) used in his family, as organs are ordinarily used, is a family expense under section 2214 of the code. And this even in favor of an assignee of the judgment against the husband, on the note given by him for the organ, who is entitled upon a showing of the facts in a proper case to have the wife's property subjected to its payment, and such right is not barred by the statute of limitations, so long as the debt, in the form it has assumed, was not barred against the husband. Frost v. Parker et uc, 65 Id., 178; following Smedley v. Holt, 41 Id., 588.

Where the husband, without cause, abandons his wife and child, and the wife alone supports the child, she cannot recover therefor, in an action against the husband, since under this section of the code, the support of the children is charged upon the parents jointly and severally. Johnson v. Brown et uc, 69 Id., 641.

The defendant, in writing, forbade plaintiffs to sell goods to his wife on his account, he having no account with plaintiffs at the time. Plaintiffs thereafter sold to defendant's wife family supplies, on his account, and they were used as such, but there was no evidence that there was a necessity for such purchases by the wife on account of the husband's failure to furnish such supplies; held, that defendant was not liable for the goods so sold, Davendorf v. Mann, 46 Id., 693.
SEC. 2215. [Rights of both as to the homestead.]—Neither husband nor wife can remove the other nor their children, from their homestead without his or her consent, and if he abandons her she is entitled to the custody of their minor children, unless the district or circuit court, upon application for that purpose, shall, for good cause, otherwise direct.

A court of equity will decree to the wife a separate support out of the property held by the husband in her right, when it is shown that she has been deserted without adequate means of support, or has been forced by the cruel conduct of her husband to leave his protection. A separate support will not be granted when the separation was not the result of either of these causes. McMullen v. McMullen, 10 Iowa, 412. This holding was prior to the law as now found in the code.

Where a married man introduces a woman of profligate habits into his house, and permits her to remain there as an inmate, the wife will be justified in withdrawing from his protection, and he will be bound to provide her with necessaries. Desceiles v. Kadmus, 8 Id., 51.

INSANITY OF EITHER.

SEC. 2216. [Interest in property may be conveyed.]—Where either the husband or wife is insane, and incapable of executing a deed, and relinquishing or conveying his or her right to the real property of the other, the same person may petition the district or circuit court of the county where such petitioner resides, or of the county where said real estate is situated, setting forth the facts and praying for an order authorizing the applicant or some other person to execute a deed of conveyance and thereby relinquish the interest of either in the real property of the other.

SEC. 2217. [Proceedings.]—The petition shall be verified by the oath of the petitioner and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district or circuit court of the proper county. The court shall appoint some discreet person or attorney guardian for the person alleged to be insane, who shall ascertain as to the propriety, good faith and necessity of the prayer of the petitioner, and who shall have power to resist said application, and subpoena witnesses, or to take depositions to disprove the petition and prove the impropriety of granting said petition, which guardian or attorney shall be allowed by the court a reasonable compensation, to be paid as the other costs.

SEC. 2218. [Same.]—Upon the hearing of said petition, if the court is satisfied that the same is made in good faith, and that the petitioner is the proper person to exercise the power and make the conveyances, and that such power is necessary and proper, said court shall enter up a decree, thereby fully authorizing the execution of all such conveyances for and in the name of such husband or wife, by such person as the court may appoint.

SEC. 2219. [Same.]—All deeds executed as provided in the three preceding sections shall be valid in law and shall convey the interest of such insane person in the real estate so conveyed; provided, said power shall cease and become void as soon as he or she shall become sane and of sound mind, and apply to the court to revoke said power, and the same shall be revoked; but such revocation shall in no wise affect conveyances previously made.
CHAPTER 3.

OF DIVORCE, ANNULING MARRIAGES, AND ALIMONY.

SECTION 2220. [Jurisdiction.]-The district or circuit court in the county where either party resides has jurisdiction of the subject matter of this chapter. But if neither party have an actual residence in the county where the action of divorce is brought, and the plaintiff fraudulently assumes a colorable residence for the purpose of obtaining a decree of divorce without the knowledge of the wife and to prevent her making a defense, it was held that the decree should be set aside, the court having no jurisdiction. Rush v. Rush, 48 Iowa, 701.

A divorce can be granted only for cause, and not by consent. The evidence must justify the divorce. Lyster v. Lyster, 1 Id., 130; Pinkney v. Pinkney, 4 G. Greene, 324.

A court of equity will entertain jurisdiction for alimony although no divorce is sought, and has power to vacate a decree obtained by fraud, even though the plaintiff may have subsequently married and become a parent, when such marriage could not have been prevented by any diligence on the part of the party seeking relief against the fraudulent decree. Whitcomb v. Whitcomb, 46 Id., 473.

SECTION 2221. [Petition: statement in.]-Except where the defendant is a resident of this State served by personal service, the petition for divorce, in addition to the facts on account of which the plaintiff claims the relief sought, must state that the plaintiff has been for the last year a resident of the state, specifying the town and county in which he has so resided, and the entire length of his residence therein, after deducting all absences from the state; that he is now a resident thereof; that such residence has been in good faith and not for the purpose of obtaining a divorce only; and it must in all cases state that the application is made in good faith, and for the purpose set forth in the petition.

SECTION 2222. [To be verified: proof: dismissal of action.]—All the statements above required, and all other allegations of the petitioner, must be verified by the oath of the plaintiff, and proved to the satisfaction of the court by competent evidence. Unless the court is satisfied that the allegations or residence are fully proved, the hearing shall proceed no further, and the action shall be dismissed by the court on its own motion. No divorce shall be granted on the testimony of the plaintiff alone, and all such actions shall be heard in open court on the testimony of witnesses, or depositions taken as in other equitable actions triable upon oral testimony, or by a commission appointed by the court.

Actions for divorce must be publicly tried in open court and cannot be sent to a referee for trial as other equitable actions, even with the consent of parties. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Iowa, 501.

The fact that the finding of a referee, in such case, was filed with the court and exceptions thereto heard and decided, does not constitute such trial in open court. Nor will the adoption of the findings of the referee be a compliance with the statutory requirement. But, where such action has been tried by a referee, the evidence taken before him in writing may be used in a re-trial of the case. Id.

An issue of fact in an action for divorce cannot be submitted to a jury for determination, and a subsequent adoption of the finding of the jury will not cure the error of the submission. Hobart v. Hobart, 51 Id., 512.

A decree in equity setting aside a decree of divorce adjudged against the wife and declaring the same void in so far as to give the wife a portion of the estate of her husband, and at the same time leaving so much of the decree as dissolved the bonds of matrimony in full force, is inconsistent and cannot be supported either upon principle or authority. McCorney v. McCorney, 5 Id., 292.

A temporary residence, selected with any other intention than that of making it a permanent domicile, is not sufficient even if extended to the length of time required by the statute, to give the court jurisdiction of an action for divorce. Whitcomb v. Whitcomb, 46 Id., 437.

This section requiring petitions for divorce to be verified must be regarded as mandatory, so that a divorce cannot be be legally granted upon an unverified petition, but the court may require the verification to be made at any time before the final hearing, and in the meantime have jurisdiction for interlocutory purposes, and though the original petition was radically defective, but was cured by an amendment which was not verified, but which defendant answered, held that the court had jurisdiction to make an order for the temporary alimony. Van Duzer v. Van Duzer, 65 Id., 625.

SEC. 2223. [Causes of.]—Divorces from the bonds of matrimony may be decree against the husband for the following causes:

1. When he has committed adultery subsequent to the marriage;

In an action for divorce on the ground of adultery, it is not necessary to prove the direct act, it being a crime of darkness and secrecy. The criminal act may be established by, or inferred from, circumstances which lead to the adultery by fair inference, as a necessary consequence; these circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion of guilt. Inskeep v. Inskeep, 5 Iowa, 204.

Where the facts and circumstances relied on to establish adultery are capable of two interpretations, one of which is consistent with the innocence of the party charged, they will not be sufcient to establish guilt. Id.

But if the facts proved cannot be reasonably reconciled with the innocence of the party charged, but are harmonious and consistent with the assumption of guilt, the court may then infer guilt. Id.

Where a cause for divorce designated by the statute as a continuing one, if the cause has continued after the enactment of the statute for the period required therein for its continuance, it is sufficient, though the cause may have commenced before the passage of the statute. McCarney v.
Wilson, 40 Id., 51.

The verification of the petition in an action for divorce is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. The verification is not a jurisdictional requisite. Id., 254.

A divorce can be granted only for cause, and not by consent. The evidence must justify the divorce. Lyster v. Lyster, 1 Id., 153; Pinkney v. Pinkney, 4 G. Greene, 324.

Where a wife deserts her husband without a reasonable cause, such desertion is no defense to an action for a divorce by her on the ground of adultery, unless the desertion has been so long continued prior to his act of adultery as to constitute itself a ground for divorce. Wilson v. Wilson, 40 Id., 230; Dupont v. Dupont, 10 Id., 112.

In order to justify the abandonment of the husband by the wife, his conduct toward her must have been such as would constitute a ground of action on her part for a divorce. Pierce v. Pierce,
33 Id., 238.

2. When he willfully deserts his wife and absents himself without a reasonable cause for the space of two years;

If a husband “willfully desert his wife and absent himself without reasonable cause for the space of two years,” she will be entitled to a divorce. The “reasonable cause” of absence mentioned in the statute must be grounded on some fault of the wife, and if his desertion is willful and without cause, he cannot excuse his absence because of some accident or misfortune subsequent to the happening to him, as after such willful desertion without reasonable cause he became

Where a wife deserts her husband without a reasonable cause, such desertion is no defense to an action for a divorce by her on the ground of adultery, unless the desertion has been so long continued prior to his act of adultery as to constitute itself a ground for divorce. Wilson v. Wilson, 40 Id., 230; Dupont v. Dupont, 10 Id., 112.

In order to justify the abandonment of the husband by the wife, his conduct toward her must have been such as would constitute a ground of action on her part for a divorce. Pierce v. Pierce,
33 Id., 238.

3. When he is convicted of felony after his marriage;

This provision of the statute authorizing a divorce for a conviction of felony, refers only to a conviction which is final and absolute, either because of affirmance of the appellate court, or because no appeal has been prosecuted. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 49 Iowa, 639.

4. When, after marriage, he becomes addicted to habitual drunkenness;

Where a man is an habitual drunkard at the time of his marriage, his wife cannot obtain a divorce on that ground. York v. Ferner, Adm'r, 59 Iowa, 487.

Nor can the widow recover on an ante-nuptial contract, from the administrator of her deceased husband, in such case, where she had abandoned him in seven weeks and three days after marriage because of such drunkenness, of which she had knowledge at the time of the marriage. Id.

5. When he is guilty of such inhuman treatment as to endanger the life of his wife;

An attempt to injure the person of the wife is not essential to constitute inhuman treatment to such an extent as to authorize a divorce. Acts which endanger her life by destroying her health and peace may constitute sufficient ground for divorce. Caruthers v Caruthers, 13 Iowa, 266.

The statute requires two ingredients in cruel treatment to constitute ground for divorce: 1. It must be inhuman; 2. It must endanger life. Freerking v. Freerking, 19 Id., 34.
A petition for divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment should state the specific facts of inhuman treatment relied on as the ground for divorce; it is not enough to allege generally that the defendant is guilty of such treatment. \textit{Id.}

Insanity occurring after marriage is not ground for a divorce; nor is cruel and inhuman treatment, of which one of the parties, while insane, may be guilty toward the other, a cause for divorce within the contemplation of the statute. \textit{Wertz v. Wertz, 43 Iowa, 534.}

The treatment received is not cause for divorce, and may be alleged in the petition for divorce only for the purpose of showing a foundation for the apprehended danger to life contemplated in the statute. \textit{Beebe v. Beebe, 10 Iowa, 133.}

Words of menace which are merely the language of passion do not constitute inhuman treatment in the sense in which the term is used in the statute; but when such words are the expression of determined malignity, and there is reasonable ground to apprehend that they will be carried into effect, they may constitute sufficient cause for divorce. \textit{Id.}

The threatened injury will not constitute sufficient ground for divorce if it does not endanger the life of the party complaining. \textit{Id.}

Cruel treatment consists in conduct which furnishes reasonable apprehension that the continuance of the cohabitation will be attended with bodily harm, or that it endangers the life or health of the wife. There may be legal cruelty without actual personal violence; and whatever form the ill-treatment assumes, if a continuance of it involves the life or health of the wife, it is "inhuman treatment," within the meaning of the statute. \textit{Cole v. Cole, 23 Id., 433.}

A wife is not entitled to a divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment, when such treatment appears to have been of such a character and under such circumstances as to furnish her no reasonable ground to apprehend physical danger by the continuance of the marriage relation. \textit{Knight v. Knight, 31 Id., 451.}

So, also, if the treatment complained of is the result of the complainant's own misconduct, it will furnish her no sufficient ground for divorce. \textit{Id., Miller, J., dissenting.}

It is not essential that personal violence should be used by the husband toward his wife to entitle her to a divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. If danger is to be reasonably apprehended, that is sufficient, and any course of conduct upon his part which would have the effect to impair her health constitutes legal cruelty. \textit{Wheeler v. Wheeler, 53 Id., 511.}

The extent to which intoxication must have become habitual to afford grounds for an action for divorce, discussed. \textit{Id.}

Where a cause for divorce designated by the statute is a continuing one, if the cause has continued after the enactment of the statute for the period required therein for its continuance, it is sufficient, though the cause may have commenced before the passage of the statute. \textit{McCraney v. McCraney, 5 Id., 232.}

A divorce may be granted only for cause, and not by consent. The evidence must justify the divorce. \textit{Lyster v. Lyster, 11 Id., 130.}

\textbf{SEC. 2224. [Same.]—} The husband may obtain a divorce from his wife for like cause, and also when the wife at the time of the marriage was pregnant by another than her husband, unless such husband have an illegitimate child or children then living, which was unknown to the wife at the time of their marriage.

\textbf{SEC. 2225. [Cross petition.]—} The defendant may obtain a divorce for like causes as above stated, by filing a cross petition.

\textbf{SEC. 2226. [Maintenance during litigation.]—} The court may order either party to pay the clerk a sum of money for the separate support and maintenance of the adverse party and the children, and to enable such party to prosecute or defend the action.

In an action for a divorce, the court may direct that either party shall contribute to the support or maintenance of the other, pending the action, or to its prosecution or defense, and in fixing the amount of alimony, the age, sex and pecuniary condition of the parties shall be considered. \textit{Small v. Small, 42 Iowa, 111.}

In an action to set aside a decree of divorce it is not competent for the court to order the defendant to pay a sum of money to plaintiff to enable her to prosecute the action. \textit{Wilson v. Wilson, 49 Id., 544.}

Alimony is the allowance made for the nourishment, maintenance and support of the wife out of the husband's estate when they are legally separated. \textit{Russell v. Russell, 4 G. Gr., 26; Jolly v. Jolly, 1 Iowa, 9; O'Hagan v. O'Hagan, 4 Id., 506.}

To warrant the court in making an order allowing temporary alimony, the fact of marriage between the parties must be admitted or proved. \textit{York v. York, 34 Id., 530.}

Under this section the authority is conferred upon the court and not upon the judge to order temporary alimony pending a suit for divorce, and a judge in vacation, upon the commencement of a suit for divorce, and before the term at which the defendant is required to appear, has no power.
to render a judgment for temporary alimony upon application made for that purpose, even on notice to the defendant. Prosser v. Prosser, 64 Id., 378.

SEC. 2227. [Attachment may issue.]—The petition may be presented to the court or judge for the allowance of an order of attachment; and said court or judge may, by indorsement thereon, direct such attachment and the amount for which the same may issue and the amount of the bond, if any, that shall be given, and the clerk shall issue the same accordingly; and any property taken by virtue thereof shall be held to satisfy the judgment or decree of the court, but may be discharged or released as in other cases.

In granting a divorce, the court is not authorized, under this section, to direct that the decree shall date back to the time of the levy of the attachment and become a lien upon the property of the husband, in favor of the wife, to the exclusion of a judgment creditor whose judgment was obtained prior to the decree of divorce. Daniels v. Linley et al., 44 Iowa, 567.

The law of homestead has no application in actions for divorce or to annul marriages, and the attachment authorized by section 2227 of the code may, in such actions, be lawfully levied upon the homestead of such parties. A grantee of the adverse party, subsequent to the levying of such attachment, takes the property subject to all the rights to which the plaintiff may be adjudged entitled therein upon the trial of the action. Daniel v. Morris, 54 Id., 396.

This, and other sections of the same chapter, contain the only provisions relating to attachments in divorce cases; and where the plaintiff presents a petition complying with these provisions, the court may properly grant a writ of attachment without a bond. Smith v. Smith, 61 Id., 138.

The remedy by attachment given by this section is cumulative only, and not exclusive. In an action for divorce and alimony the plaintiff, upon a proper showing, is entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant from disposing of his property for the purpose of defeating the claim for alimony. Wharton v. Wharton, 51 Id., 696.

The verification of the petition in an action for divorce is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. The verification is not a jurisdictional requisite. McCraney v. McCraney, 5 Id., 254.

The court has power to make such orders regarding the custody of the children as their welfare demands, and may, during the pendency of proceedings for divorce between the parents, award the custody of the children to either parent, or provide for their separate maintenance, being governed always by a regard for the welfare of the children. Green v. Green, 52 Id., 408.

The provisions of this section do not confer exclusive jurisdiction in the matter upon the court which rendered the decree of divorce. Shaw v. McHenry, 52 Id., 152.

When a suit is brought to set aside a decree of divorce which is voidable only, temporary alimony cannot be allowed to the divorced wife to enable her to prosecute the suit, nor for her support during its pendency. Wilson v. Wilson, 49 Id., 544; McFarland v. McFarland, 51 Id., 565.

But when a voidable decree for divorce had been rendered, and the wife was subsequently induced by her former husband to return and live with him, upon his representation that the proceedings for divorce were void, and they continued to live together for six years as husband and wife, during which time he treated her as his wife, and so acknowledged her to the world, it was held that she was entitled to temporary alimony to enable her to prosecute her action for permanent alimony. McFarland v. McFarland, 51 Id., 565.

Where a divorce was granted, and the custody of three children awarded to the husband, and it subsequently appearing that he was guilty of cruelly treating the children, it was held, on the application of the wife for the custody of the children and alimony for their maintenance, that the application should be granted and alimony allowed. Boggs v. Boggs, 49 Id., 190.

Where a prior decree of divorce rendered in this state was interposed by the husband as a bar to an action for divorce by the wife, it was held that the decree might be assailed in that action, and its force and effect as a former adjudication avoided by showing that it was fraudulently obtained. Whetstone v. Whetstone, 31 Id., 270.

A decree of divorce may be set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, notwithstanding the rights of innocent third parties may have intervened. Rush v. Rush, 46 Id., 648.

Under this section of the code, the court may award permanent alimony and the custody of the children, even though no prayer or claim therefor be made in the pleadings. Zuver v. Zuver, 36 Id., 129.

The fact that the husband obtains a divorce for the fault of the wife, instead of the wife obtaining one for the fault of the husband, has a material bearing on the amount of alimony to be allowed the wife. Id. In this case the alimony allowed by the court below was largely reduced by the supreme court.

The amount to be allowed as alimony is governed by no fixed rule of law, but depends upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case; and when fixed the times of payment thereof should be so adjusted as to avoid, if possible, a sacrifice of the husband's property to pay the amounts fixed. \textit{Parley v. Parley}, 30 Id., 383.

A proceeding by a divorced wife against the husband, asking for changes or modifications of the former decree making the allowance for the support of the wife and children, abates by the death of the husband. \textit{O'Hagan v. O'Hagan}, 4 Id., 509. \textit{Stockton, J., dissenting.}

Where the decree in an action for divorce awards the custody of a child to one parent, it cannot be transferred to another in a collateral action, but only by a change in the decree obtained by direct proceedings for that purpose. \textit{Jennings v. Jennings}, 56 Id., 288.

A modification of a decree of divorce, changing the custody of the child of the parties from the mother to the father may be made where the facts and circumstances render such change proper. \textit{Sherwood v. Sherwood}, 56 Id., 608.

\textbf{SEC. 2228. [Situation of parties considered.] — In making such orders, the court or judge shall take into consideration the age, condition, sex, and pecuniary condition of the parties, and such other matters as are deemed pertinent, which may be shown by affidavits in addition to the pleadings or otherwise, as the court or judge may direct.}

See \textit{Small v. Small}, 43 Id., 111, cited in notes to section 2226, ante.

\textbf{SEC. 2229. [Children: maintenance: changes made.] — When a divorce is decreed, the court may make such order in relation to the children, property, parties, and the maintenance of the parties as shall be right and proper. Subsequent changes may be made by the court in these respects when circumstances render them expedient.}

Alimony in its original signification meant other than a portion of the husband's lands; it was the fixed allowance made by the court for the support of the wife, out of the husband's estate, when they were legally separated. \textit{Jolly v. Jolly}, 1 Iowa, 8.

Under our law the court has full power to give to the wife as alimony specific portions of the husband's property, real or personal. \textit{Id.}

See, also, to the same effect, \textit{Inskeep v. Inskeep}, 5 Id., 204; \textit{Cole v. Cole}, 23 Id., 433, 443.

In decreeing a divorce and granting alimony, the court will make such order in respect to the homestead as the circumstances will justify, and as shall seem equitable. Ordinarily, the husband, when he holds the legal title, and especially when the children are left with him, should be left in its enjoyment. But if the title is in the wife, purchased with her means, and she is given the custody of the only child, she should be awarded the homestead. \textit{Id.}

If the money of the husband has contributed to the value of the homestead in improvements, when owned by the wife, the case will not be varied, and its sale will not be ordered, so that each may have a due proportion. Nor will the wife's legal title be recognized as subject to a lien in the husband's favor for improvements; but the court will adjust those claims with due regard to rights of both parties. \textit{Id.}

In deciding whether the husband or wife is to have the custody of the children, it is the duty of the court, under the statute, to make such order in relation thereto as is proper and right. \textit{Id.}

Although under the statute the court may give the wife, as alimony, a portion of the husband's property, either real or personal, absolutely and in her own right, yet this should not be done, if the husband is in a condition to pay money, unless there is something in the situation of the wife which would render it equitable and just to give her the property instead of the money. \textit{Inskeep v. Inskeep}, 1 Id., 204.

The court will render a decree for a divorce and suitable alimony in favor of the wife who has deserted her husband without reasonable cause, when it appears that her conduct subsequent to the separation has been without reproach, while that of the husband has rendered a reconciliation impossible without a sacrifice of principle and self-respect on her part. \textit{Dupont v. Dupont}, 10 Id., 112.

A decree for alimony in an action for a divorce, when prayed for in the petition, is not void because the original notice contained no statement that alimony was claimed. The power to grant alimony is, at least under the statute, a mere incident to the power to grant a divorce between the parties. \textit{McEwen v. McEwen}, 26 Id., 375.

When parents are living apart, the courts may make such orders regarding the custody of their children as their welfare demands, and may, during the pendency of proceedings for divorce between the parties, award the custody of the children to either parent, or provide for their separate maintenance, being governed always by a regard for the welfare of the children. \textit{Green v. Green}, 52 Id., 403.

The provisions of this section do not confer exclusive jurisdiction in the matter upon the court which rendered the decree of divorce. \textit{Shaw v. McHenry}, 52 Id., 182.

When a suit is brought to set aside a decree of divorce which is voidable only, temporary alimony cannot be allowed to the divorced wife to enable her to prosecute the suit, nor for her

The court of the county where the plaintiff resides, having jurisdiction in an action for divorce and alimony, may rightfully declare and enforce a lien for alimony granted in the action against real property of the defendant situated in another county. Harshberger v. Harshberger et al., Id., 503.

And such lien will have priority over an attachment issued in an action commenced in the county where the land lies, and which was not levied thereon until after the rendition of the decree for alimony, though before a transcript thereof was filed in the latter county. Id.

The attaching creditor, in such case, acquires no greater right in the attached property than the defendant actually had when the attachment was levied. Id. See, also, Norton etc. v. Williams, 3 Id., 522; Bell v. Evans, 10 Id., 365; Thomas v. Hillhouse, 17 Id., 67.

Where a divorce was granted to the husband on account of the adultery of the wife, alimony will not be granted to her, where the husband has acquired no property by her, or she has not contributed thereto by her industry or otherwise, and he is without fault as respects her crime. Fivescoat v. Fivescoat, 32 Id., 198.

An action for alimony cannot be maintained as an independent proceeding after a divorce. The relation of husband and wife must exist to justify the allowance. Wilde v. Wilde, 36 Id., 319; Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 266.

But a court of equity will entertain an action for alimony alone, and will grant the same, though no divorce or other relief be asked, where a divorce has not been granted, and the wife is separated from the husband on account of conduct on his part justifying such separation. Graves v. Graves, 36 Id., 310.

The jurisdiction in such case will be entertained on the ground of preventing a multiplicity of suits, or of the inadequacy of relief at law. Id.

The court having jurisdiction to render a decree of divorce embracing an order respecting the children and property of the parties, retains power to modify the same, so long as it remains unexecuted, notwithstanding both parties may, after the rendition of the decree, and before the modification, become residents of another state. Andrews v. Andrews, 15 Id., 423.

The power of the court to modify a decree of divorce, under the statute, is not limited to one year after the rendition thereof. Id.

The power to change a decree granting alimony, under the statute, can be exercised only where there has been a change of circumstances. The power to grant a new trial of the case is not conferred, but only the power to adapt the decree to the new or changed circumstances of the parties; and an order allowing temporary alimony in a proceeding in which no such change of circumstances is alleged, is erroneous. Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 265; Wilde v. Wilde, 36 Id., 319; Fisher v. Fisher, 32 Id., 20.

Applications for reduction of permanent alimony will not be granted unless it clearly appears that by reason of the changed circumstances of the applicant, the original allowance is no longer proportionate or just. The court will also consider whether the alleged change of circumstances has not been brought about by the improper conduct of the applicant. Fisher v. Fisher, 32 Id., 20.

But when a voidable decree for divorce had been rendered, and the wife was subsequently induced by her former husband to return and live with him, upon his representation that the proceedings for divorce were void, and they continued to live together for six years as husband and wife, during which time he treated her as his wife, and so acknowledged her to the world, it was held that she was entitled to temporary alimony to enable her to prosecute her action for permanent alimony. McFarland v. McFarland, 51 Id., 555.

Where a divorce was granted, and the custody of three children awarded to the husband, and it subsequently appearing that he was guilty of cruelty treating the children, it was held, on the application of the wife for the custody of the children and alimony for their maintenance, that the application should be granted and alimony allowed. Boggs v. Boggs, 49 Id., 190.

Where a prior decree of divorce rendered in this state was interposed by the husband as a bar to an action for divorce by the wife, it was held that the decree might be assailed in that action, and its force and effect as a former adjudication avoided by showing that it was fraudulently obtained. Whitstone v. Whitstone, 31 Id., 376.

A decree of divorce may be set aside on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, notwithstanding the rights of innocent third parties may have intervened. Rush v. Rush, 46 Id., 648.

Under this section of the code, the court may award permanent alimony and the custody of the children, even though no prayer or claim therefor be made in the pleadings. Zuver v. Zuver, 36 Id., 190.

The fact that the husband obtains a divorce for the fault of the wife, instead of the wife obtaining one for the fault of the husband, has a material bearing on the amount of alimony to be allowed the wife. Id. In this case the alimony allowed by the court below was largely reduced by the supreme court.

The amount to be allowed as alimony is governed by no fixed rule of law, but depends upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case, and when fixed, the times of payment thereof should be so adjusted as to avoid, if possible, any sacrifice of the husband's property to pay the amount fixed. Forley v. Farley, 30 Id., 353.

A proceeding by a divorced wife against the husband, asking for changes or modifications in the former decree making an allowance for the support of the wife and children, abates by the death of the husband. O'Hagan v. O'Hagan, 4 Id., 509.

The amount to be allowed as alimony is governed by no fixed rule of law, but depends upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case, and when fixed, the times of payment thereof should be so adjusted as to avoid, if possible, any sacrifice of the husband's property to pay the amount fixed. Jennings v. Jennings, 56 Id., 288.

A modification of a decree of divorce changing the custody of the child of the parties from the mother to the father may be made where the facts and circumstances render such change proper. Sherwood v. Sherwood, 56 Id., 606.

Where parents are living apart, the courts may make such orders regarding the custody of their children as their welfare demands, and may, during the pendency of proceedings for divorce between the parents, award the custody of the children to either parent, or provide for their separate maintenance, being governed always by a regard for the welfare of the children. Green v. Green, 52 Id., 406.

Where the decree in an action for divorce awards the custody of a child to one parent, it cannot be transferred to another in a collateral action, but only by a change in the decree obtained by direct proceedings for that purpose. Jennings v. Jennings, 56 Id., 288.

When a suit is brought to set aside a decree of divorce which is voidable only, temporary alimony cannot be allowed to the divorced wife to enable her to prosecute the suit, nor for her support during its pendency. Wilson v. Wilson, 49 Id., 544; McFarland v. McFarland, 51 Id., 565.

Sec. 2230. [Forfeiture.]—When a divorce is decreed, the guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by the marriage.

ANNULING ILLEGAL MARRIAGES.

Sec. 2231. [Causes specified.]—Marriages may be annulled for the following causes:
1. Where marriage between the parties is prohibited by law;
2. Where either party was impotent at the time of marriage;
3. Where either party had a husband or wife living at the time of the marriage, provided they have not lived and cohabited together, as provided in section two thousand two hundred and one, of chapter one of this title;
4. Where either party was insane or idiotic at the time of the marriage; Marriages may be annulled, under the code, where either party was impotent, insane or idiotic at the time of the marriage. But neither of these, whether existing at the time of the marriage or arising subsequently, are in terms grounds for a divorce. Wertz v. Wertz, 43 Iowa, 534.

Sec. 2232. [Petition.]—A petition shall be filed in such cases as in actions for divorce, and all the provisions of this chapter shall apply to such cases except as otherwise provided.

Sec. 2233. [Validity doubted.]—When the validity of a marriage is doubted, either party may file a petition, and the court shall decree it annulled or affirmed according to the proof.

Sec. 2234. [Children.]—When a marriage is annulled on account of the consanguinity or affinity of the parties, or because of impotency, the issue shall be illegitimate; but when on account of non-age or insanity, or idiocy, the issue is the legitimate issue of the parent capable of contracting marriage.

Sec. 2235. [When, and of which parent, children become legitimate.]—When a marriage is annulled on account of a prior marriage, and the parties contracted the second marriage in good faith, believing the prior husband or wife to be dead, that fact shall be stated in the decree of annulment; and the issue of the second marriage begotten before the decree of the court, is the legitimate issue of the parent capable of contracting marriage.

Sec. 2236. [Compensation as in case of divorce.]—In case either party entered into the contract of marriage in good faith, supposing the other to be capable of contracting, and the marriage is declared a nullity, such fact shall be entered in the decree, and the court may decree such innocent party compensation as in cases of divorce.

CHAPTER 4.

OF MINORS.

Section 2237. [Majority.]—The period of minority extends in males to the age of twenty-one years, and in females to that of eighteen years; but all minors attain their majority by marriage.

As to the right of a minor to recover for injuries accruing to him prior to his majority, see Nelson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Iowa, 564.

If a person who has attained the age of majority voluntarily attends a public school, creating the relation of teacher and pupil, the latter thereby waives any privilege which age confers, and subjects himself to like discipline with those who are within school age, and he may be punished for refractory conduct, and the teacher will not be liable for inflicting such punishment if it was reasonable under the circumstances. The State v. Mizner, 43 Id., 248.

Section 2238. [Contract and disaffirmance.]—A minor is bound, not only by contracts for necessaries, but also by his other contracts, unless he disaffirms them within a reasonable time after he attains his majority, and restores to the other party all money or property received by him by virtue of the contract and remaining within his control at any time after attaining his majority.

A deed of real property by a minor is voidable, but not void. Jenkins v. Jenkins, 12 Iowa, 195.

What is a "reasonable time" within which a minor may disaffirm his contract after attaining his majority, under the statute, must be determined upon the circumstances of each case. Id.

Where a minor attained his majority on the 5th of January, and filed his petition on the 23rd of the same month, to cancel a deed made by him during his minority, it was held that in the absence of equitable circumstances, requiring an earlier disaffirmance, the delay was not unreasonable. Id.

The only property which the party is required to return, upon disaffirming a contract made during minority, is that which was received by him by virtue of the contract and remained in his control at any time after coming of age. Id.

The general rule is that the right of a minor to avoid his contract is absolute and paramount to all equities in favor of third persons, including purchasers without notice. Id.

Under the statute, a contract made by a minor, in order to be avoided, must be disaffirmed by him within a reasonable time after he attains majority. Wright v. German, 21 Id., 585; Stucker v. Yoder et al., 33 Id., 177.

In order to avoid the contract, the party must not only disaffirm the same, but redeem or tender to the other party what he received under the contract within a reasonable time after attaining his majority. Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47. But this rule does not apply when the minor has never received anything either from his guardian or otherwise on the contract. Lyon v. Vanatta, 35 Id., 522.

That the property conveyed by the ward without consideration has passed into the hands of an innocent purchaser will not prevent the revocation of the deed. Gates v. Carpenter, 43 Id., 152.

A minor may disaffirm a contract made by him, at any time thereafter during his minority or within a reasonable time thereafter. This section is not intended to prevent a disaffirmation during minority, but only to fix a limit to the time when it may be made. Childs v. Dobbs, 55 Id., 205.

Where a minor owns an undivided interest in real property, which has been sold for taxes, he can redeem to the extent of his interest only. Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47.

The right of a minor to redeem from tax sale is a transferable interest, which may be conveyed by deed. Id.

Where a minor entered into a contract with his father respecting his share of the estate, which he failed to disaffirm within six months after attaining his majority, he was held, not entitled to disaffirm it after that length of time had elapsed. Jones v. Jones, 46 Id., 466.

Where a minor has rendered services in accordance with the terms of a contract entered into by himself, and has received payment for the same, such payment is a full satisfaction for the services and the minor cannot recover a second time therefor. Murphy v. Johnson, 45 Id., 57.

The father has a right to the care and custody of his minor children, and when he is deprived thereof by another he has a right of action therefor. The statute has not so far modified the common law as to take away these rights, or the right to sue and recover for the minor’s services. The statute only provides that when the minor has made a contract for services, and rendered the same and received payment therefor, the parent cannot again recover. Everett v. Sherfey, 1 Id., 357 (1855).

The father may emancipate his minor child, or abandon his right of control, and in the absence of statutory requirements such emancipation need not be evidenced by any formal or recorded act, but may be proved like any other fact. Id. See also, Nixon v. Spencer, 16 Id., 214; Wolcott v. Rickey et al., 22 Id., 171.

The earnings of a minor child who has, with his father’s consent, been doing business for a number of years upon his own means and in good faith, are not liable to the creditors of the father; nor is a homestead purchased for the family with such means thus liable. Wolcott v. Rickey et al., 22 Id., 171.

An order of the court authorizing a guardian to revoke the deed of his ward is not necessary where there was no consideration for the deed, and no act of revocation is necessary other than an application for relief to a court of equity. Gates v. Carpenter et al., 43 Id., 132.

What is a reasonable time after majority under this section within which an infant may disaffirm a contract made during infancy, will depend upon the circumstances of each case. It was held, in the case where a plaintiff did no act to disaffirm except to bring an action for that purpose three years and eight months after attaining majority, and three months after being legally advised of her right to disaffirm, that the action was not brought within a reasonable time; and that she had been informed by persons not qualified to give legal advice, that she could not bring an action to disaffirm until her infant brother became of full age, was not in the eye of the law a sufficient excuse for the delay. Green v. Wilding, 59 Id., 679.

This section, which requires that a minor is bound by his contract, unless he disaffirms it, and “restores to the other party all money or property received by him by virtue of his contract, and remaining within his control,” only requires a return of the identical money or property, and not the payment of other money or property which he may have at the time of disaffirmance. Hawes v. The B. C. R. & N. R’y Co., 64 Id., 315. Following Jenkins v. Jenkins, 12 Id., 195.

Sec. 2239. [Misrepresentations of.]—No contract can thus be disaffirmed in cases where, on account of the minor’s own misrepresentations as to his majority, or from his having engaged in business as an adult, the other party had good reason to believe the minor capable of contracting.

If a minor who is engaged in business for himself possesses property and manages his affairs as an adult, persons dealing with him are justified in concluding that he is capable of making contracts; and this is not limited to the particular business in which the minor is engaged, but applies to all contracts he may make. Jaques v. Sax, 39 Iowa, 367.

To render a minor who engages in business, and holds himself out as capable of contracting, liable as an adult under this section, his infancy must have been unknown to the person contracting for him. If known to him the statute creates no shield to the disaffirmance of the contract. Beller v. Marchant, 30 Id., 350.

Sec. 2240. [Payments to.]—Where a contract for the personal service of a minor has been made with him alone, and those services are afterwards performed, payment made therefor to such minor in accordance with the terms of the contract, is a full satisfaction for those services, and the parent or guardian cannot recover therefor a second time.

Where the contract for personal services of a minor is made with him alone, with knowledge of the parent, and those services are afterwards performed, and paid for to the minor, without fraud, and in accordance with the terms of the contract, such payment will operate as full satisfaction for the services rendered; and the parent or guardian cannot recover therefor. Nixon v. Spencer, 16 Iowa, 214; Murphy v. Johnson, 45 Id., 57.
CHAPTER 5.

OF THE GUARDIANSHIP OF MINORS, DRUNKARDS, SPENDTHRIFTS, AND LUNATICS.

SECTION 2241. [Natural guardian.]—The parents are the natural guardians of their minor children, and are equally entitled to the care and custody of them. Under the statute of this state the right of the father to the care and custody of a minor child is not paramount to that of the mother. In controversies respecting the custody of a minor child, the controlling consideration is the best interest of the child. A child fifteen months old, and unweaned, was held to have been properly awarded to the custody of the mother, she not being shown to be an improper person to have such custody. The State v. Kirkpatrick, 34 Iowa, 373.

The mother as the natural guardian of the person of her minor son, the father being dead, is entitled to recover for the personal services of the son. Cain v. Devitt, 8 Id., 116.

SEC. 2242. [Death of either parent.]—Either parent dying before the other, the survivor becomes the guardian. If there be no parent or guardian qualified and competent to discharge the duty, the circuit court shall appoint a guardian.

SEC. 2243. [Of property.]—If the minor has property not derived from either parent, a guardian must be appointed to manage such property, which may be either parent if suitable and competent.

SEC. 2244. [Minor may choose.]—If the minor be over the age of fourteen years and of sound intellect, he may select his own guardian, subject to the approval of the circuit court of the county where his parents, or either of them, reside; or if such minor is living separate and apart from his parents, the circuit court of the county where he resides has jurisdiction.

SEC. 2245. [Power of court and guardian.]—The guardian and court making the appointment have power and authority over any property of the minor situate or being in any other county, to the same extent and in the manner as if the same was situate in the county where the appointment was made. But when any order is made by such court affecting the title of lands lying in another county, a certified copy of the same, and of all the papers on which it is founded, shall be transmitted to the clerk of the circuit court in the county where such lands are situated, and such clerk shall enter such order on the proper docket and index the same, and make a complete record thereof in the same manner as if the cause in which the order is made had been commenced in his court.

SEC. 2246. [Bond and oath.]—Guardians appointed to take charge of the property of a minor must give bond, with surety, to be approved by the court, in a penalty double the value of the personal estate and of the rents and profits of the real estate of the minor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties as such guardians according to law. They must also take an oath of the same tenor as the condition of the bond.

A guardian's bond made payable to the county instead of the parties interested, is not thereby invalid, but inures to the benefit of the latter and suit may be brought thereon by any one injured by a breach thereof. Pursley v. Hayes, 22 Iowa, 11.

The surety in a bond required by section 2246 of the code to be given by a guardian appointed to take charge of the property of a minor, is not liable for the loss or misappropriation of money coming into his hands from the sale of his ward's real estate, a special bond being required for the faithful performance of the duties in that respect. Madison County v. Johnson et al., 51 Id., 152.

The sureties in an ordinary guardian's bond, required by section 2246 of the code, are not liable for the wrongs of the guardian in selling his ward's real estate and squandering the proceeds. A special bond is provided for this purpose by section 2261. Bruce v. Bruce et al., 65 Id., 106.

The bond provided for by this section cannot be approved by the clerk; it must be done by the court. Reno v. McCully et al., 1d., 629.

The law does not confer upon the parent the power to make a mere oral gift of his minor child; and the donee in such case, cannot recover the child from his duly appointed guardian. Burges, by his next friend, v. Frakes, 67 Id., 460.
SEC. 2247. [Supplemental security.]—The court may also direct guardians to give new or supplemental security, or may remove them for good cause shown, which cause must be entered on the records.

SEC. 2248. [Inventory and appraisement.]—Within forty days after their appointment, they must make out an inventory of all the property of the minor, which shall be appraised in the same manner as the property of a deceased person. The inventory must be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court.

SEC. 2249. [Powers.]—Guardians of the persons of minors, have the same power and control over them that parents would have if living.

Under this section, a guardian of the person of a child has the same right to its custody as if he were its parent, and unless he is shown to be an unfit person the child will not be taken from him and given to an aunt, though the will of the mother so requested. Jenkins v. Clark, 71 Iowa, 552.

SEC. 2250. [Duties.]—Guardians of the property of minors must prosecute and defend for their wards. They must also, in other respects, manage their interests under the direction of the court. They may thus lease the lands or loan their money during their minority, and may do all other acts which the court may deem for the benefit of the wards.

This section of the code modified the common law rules as to the power of a guardian over the property of his ward. The power he possesses is alone conferred by this section. He is authorized to manage the interest of his ward under the direction of the court, which direction must precede the act. Bates v. Dunham, 58 Iowa, 308.

Under this section of the code, a case made by a guardian is invalid, or voidable at least, unless ordered and approved by the proper probate court. Alexander, Guardian, v. Buffington et al., 66 Id., 360.

Under this section, a guardian has power, under the direction of the court, to compromise a suit against his ward involving the title to real estate; and in doing so he may execute a quit-claim deed for the real estate in litigation, without giving notice to his ward of the application to the court for leave to do so, as is required in ordinary cases where authority is sought to sell the real estate of a minor. Hagy v. Avery, 69 Id., 434.

SEC. 2251. [Failure to comply with order of court: penalty.]—A failure to comply with any order of the court in relation to guardianship, shall be deemed a breach of the condition of the guardian’s bond, which may accordingly be put in suit by any one aggrieved thereby, for which purpose the court may appoint another guardian of the minor if necessary. The court may also commit him to jail until he complies with such order.

An action cannot be maintained against a guardian for money of his ward in his hands as soon as the ward attains his majority, and a failure to pay over the money will not constitute a breach of his bond until the guardianship accounts are settled or he has failed to obey a mandate of the court requiring him to account. O’Brien et al. v. Strang et al., 42 Iowa, 643.

The surety on the bond of a guardian which was given in compliance with the revision when the guardian entered upon the discharge of his duties, held, not liable for the loss or misappropriation of money coming into the hands of the guardian from the sale of lands belonging to his ward, a special bond being required for the faithful performance of his duties in that respect. Madison County v. Johnston et al., 51 Id., 152.

Under this section a failure to comply with any order of the court in relation to the guardianship shall be deemed a breach of the condition of the guardian’s bond. In an action by a ward against her guardian’s surety, to recover the balance found due upon the taking of the guardian’s accounts, it appeared that, although the administration was pending in Marshall county, the circuit judge of Webster county had made the order for payment. Held that the order was void, and there had been no breach of the condition of the bond. Gillespie v. See et al., and Carney v. Same, 33 N. W. R., 676.

SEC. 2252. [New guardian.]—Where a new guardian is appointed, the court may order the effects of the minor which are in the hands of his predecessor to be delivered up to such new guardian and failure to comply with such order for three months thereafter, shall subject such guardian to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action on his bond for the benefit of such minor’s estate.

Where a new guardian is appointed the court may order the effects of the minor to be delivered to such new guardian, but there should be no judgment rendered against the outgoing guardian. Foteaux v. Lepage, 6 Iowa, 123.
SEC. 2253. (As amended by ch. 100, laws of 19th g. a.) [Nonresident minors.]-A guardian may be appointed for non-resident minors who have property in this state on proper application made to the circuit court of the county in which such property or any part thereof may be, who shall qualify in the same manner and shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same rules as guardians of resident minors. (In all cases where a non-resident idiot, lunatic, or person of unsound mind has property in this state requiring care and protection, the circuit court in any county where such property or any part thereof is situated may appoint a guardian of the property of such person, who shall have the same power and authority in relation thereto, and be subject to the same liability, as the guardian of a resident minor.)

SEC. 2254. [Must render account.]-All guardians of minors are required to appear at least once each year before the circuit court, and render an account of all moneys or other property in their possession, together with all the interest which may have accrued on moneys loaned belonging to the minor or minors.

SEC. 2255. [Penalty for failure.]-In case the said guardian shall fail to appear before said court within the time above specified, he shall forfeit and pay into the county treasury the sum of fifty dollars, as in other actions of misdemeanor.

SEC. 2256. [Compensation.]-Guardians shall receive such compensation as the court may from time to time allow. The amount allowed, and the service for which the allowance was made, must be entered upon the records of the court.

See O'Brien v. Strange, 42 Iowa, 649. Cited in notes to section 2251, ante.

PROPERTY OF—SOLD.

SEC. 2257. [Real estate: sale or mortgage of.]-When not in violation of the terms of a will by which a minor holds his real property, it may, under the direction of the circuit court, be sold or mortgaged on the application of the guardian, either when such sale or mortgage is necessary for the minor's support or education, or where his interest will be thereby promoted by reason of the unproductiveness of the property, or of its being exposed to waste, or of any other peculiar circumstances.

A guardian of heirs holding only a reversionary interest in real property may, under authority of the probate court, mortgage or otherwise convey the same. Foster v. Young, 35 Iowa, 27.

Where a mother as guardian of her children, executes a conveyance, she covenants "for herself, her heirs, executors and administrators, that she is seized of good and indefensible title in fee simple, and that she will warrant and defend the title" to the grantee, she will be estopped from afterwards asserting an interest which she held in the property in her own right at the time of making such conveyance. Id.

A guardian may, under the statute and proper order of the proper court, execute a deed of trust as well as a mortgage upon the real property of his ward. Id.

A guardian's sale of the real estate of his ward is not a proceeding in rem, but one adversary in its nature, and when made without the notice required by law, is void for want of jurisdiction in the court ordering the same. Lyon v. Vanatta et al., 35 Id., 521. See also Good v. Norley, 28 Id., 188; Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 11.

SEC. 2258. [Petition.]-The petition for that purpose must state the grounds of the application, must be verified by oath, and a copy thereof, with a notice of the time at which such application will be made to the court, must be served personally upon the minor at least ten days prior to the time fixed for such application.

The time when the application will be made is an essential of the notice, hence a notice in which no time is fixed, or which fixes a wrong time, and subsequent to that when the application was made and acted on and the sale ordered, will not confer jurisdiction, and an order of sale thereunder will be void. Lyon v. Vanatta, 35 Iowa, 521.

Under a guardian's petition asking an order for the sale of real property, the court has no jurisdiction to make an order authorizing the guardian to mortgage it. McMannis v. Rice, 48 Id., 361.

If the notice be defective merely the jurisdiction is saved, and the proceedings cannot be collaterally assailed; but it is otherwise where there has been no notice, or where the paper relied on as such is without some of the essential requirements of a notice. Lyon v. Vanatta, supra.

Distinction between a case of defective notice and no notice, pointed out by MILLEU, J. Id.

To the same effect is Haws v. Clark, Id., 355.

An appearance and answer by a guardian ad litem, appointed by the court without proper notice having been given to the minor, will not confer jurisdiction over the person of the infant, and the proceeding, as to him, will be void. Good v. Norley, 28 Id., 188.

SEC. 2259. [Postponement and publication.]—The court, in its discretion, may direct a postponement of the matter, and may order such further publication through the newspapers or otherwise, as it may deem expedient.

SEC. 2260. [Reference.]—It may also direct a reference for the purpose of ascertaining the propriety of ordering the sale or mortgage as applied for.

SEC. 2261. [Bond to be given before sale.]—Before any such sale or mortgage can be executed, the guardian must give security to the satisfaction of the court, the penalty of which shall be at least double the value of the property to be sold, or of the money to be raised by the mortgage, conditioned that he will faithfully perform his duty in that respect, and account for and apply all moneys received by him under the direction of the court.

SEC. 2262. [Costs.]—When the application for the sale of property is resisted, the court may, in its discretion, award costs to the prevailing party; and, when satisfied that there was no reasonable ground for making the application, may direct the costs to be paid by the guardian from his own funds.

SEC. 2263. [Deeds, how made: court must approve.]—Deeds may be made by the guardian in his own name, but they must be returned to the court and the sale or mortgage be approved before the same are valid.

A deed takes effect from its delivery; and a guardian's deed cannot be delivered until it has been approved by the court. Such approval is an affirmation, both of the deed and sale. Wade v. Carpenter, 4 Iowa, 361.

SEC. 2264. [Directions as to sale.]—The same rule that is prescribed in the sale of real property by executors, shall be observed in relation to the evidence necessary to show the regularity and validity of the sales above contemplated.

SEC. 2265. [Validity of after five years.]—No person can question the validity of such sale after the lapse of five years from the time it was made.

This provision of the code has no application to cases of appeals or other process bringing up the matter for review in an appellate court. Pursley v. Hayes, 22 Iowa, 11.

Nor was this section intended to cover sales by a person having no semblance of authority, or where the court had no jurisdiction of the parties or subject matter and no possession was taken by the purchaser; and in such case the heir would not be stopped by the statute from questioning the validity of the sale, though after the expiration of five years. Id.

In Washburn v. Carmichael, 32 Id., 475, it was held by a majority of the court that this section applied only to cases where the purchaser has taken and held continuous possession of the premises for the statutory period, Mr. Justice Beck expressing satisfaction with the views announced by him in Good v. Norley, 18 Id., 188.

In Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 11, it was held, that this section does not affect protection to those claiming under a void sale; re-affirming the doctrine of Pursley v. Hayes, supra. See also Boyles v. Boyles, 37 Id., 592, as to sales by an executor.
FOREIGN GUARDIANS.

SEC. 2266. [As amended by ch. 100, 19th g. a.) [Foreign guardians.]—The foreign guardian of any non-resident minor, may be appointed the guardian in this state of such minor by the circuit court of the county wherein he has any property, for the purpose of selling or otherwise controlling that and all other property of such minor within this state, unless a guardian has previously been appointed under the preceding section. [The foreign guardian of any non-resident idiot, lunatic or person of unsound mind may be appointed the guardian in this state of such ward by the circuit court, in like manner and with like effect in all cases where the foreign guardian of a non-resident minor could be appointed the guardian of such minor in this state. Such guardian shall have the same powers and be subject to the same liabilities as guardians of resident minors.]

SEC. 2267. [Appointment: how made.]—Such appointment may be made upon his filing with the clerk of the circuit court of the county wherein there is any such property, an authenticated copy of the order for his appointment. He shall thereupon qualify like other guardians, except as in the next succeeding section.

SEC. 2268. Upon the filing of an authenticated copy of the bond and the inventory rendered by the guardian in a foreign state, if the court is satisfied with the sufficiency and the amount of the security, it may dispense with the filing of an additional bond.

SEC. 2269. [Power of as to personal property.]—Foreign guardians of non-resident minors may be authorized by the circuit court of the county wherein such minor has personal property, to receive the same on complying with the provisions of the following sections.

SEC. 2270. [Bond.]—Such foreign guardian shall file in the office of the clerk of the circuit court in the county where the property is situated, a certified copy of his official bond, duly authenticated by the court granting the letters of guardianship, and shall also execute a receipt for the property received by him.

SEC. 2271. [Order of court.]—Upon the filing of the bond as provided by the last section, and the court being satisfied with the amount of said bond, said court shall order the personal property of the minor to be delivered to the guardian; and the court shall spread the bonds and receipt on its records, and direct the clerk to notify, by mail, the court granting the letters of guardianship, of the amount of property allowed to the guardian, and the date of the delivery of the same.

OF DRUNKARDS, SPENDTHRIFTS, AND LUNATICS.

SEC. 2272. [Guardians of: when appointed.]—When a petition is presented to the circuit court, verified by affidavit, that any inhabitant of the county is:
1. An idiot, lunatic, or person of unsound mind;
2. An habitual drunkard, incapable of managing his affairs;
3. A spendthrift who is squandering his property; and the allegations of the petition have been satisfactorily proved upon the trial provided for in the following section, such court may appoint a guardian of the property of any such person who shall be the guardian of the minor children of his ward unless the court otherwise orders.

The appointment of a guardian for an insane person is a determination of the fact of insanity, and will be presumed to have been made under jurisdiction properly acquired according to the forms of law. Ockendon v. Barnes et ux., 43 Iowa, 615.

While ordinarily, the right of every person to manage and control his property is recognized and conceded on all hands, yet to even this rule there is at least one exception, which is, where a party is a spendthrift or drunkard, incapable of managing his affairs. For such, a guardian may be appointed under our statute. Riddle v. Cutter, 49 Id., 547, 534.

In a proceeding under this section, for the appointment of a guardian of the property of a person of alleged unsound mind, it was shown that defendant was very old, very infirm bodily, and that his mind had shared in his physical disability. The jury found that he was of unsound mind. Held:

1. That the verdict was sustained by the evidence.
2. That evidence of a conversation had by a witness with the defendant, was competent to show his mental condition, and that he felt his inability to properly manage and protect his property.
3. That it was not the expression of an opinion for the witness to testify, by way of illustrating the imbecility of age, that the defendant "talked like a child."
4. That in cases of this kind, after stating the facts upon which their opinion is based, non-experts may be allowed to give an opinion as to the defendant's soundness or unsoundness of mind. Smith v. Hickenbottom, 57 Id., 733.

SEC. 2273. [Petition for trial by jury.]—Such petition shall set forth as particularly as may be, the facts upon which the application is based, and shall be answered as in other ordinary actions, all the rules of which shall govern so far as applicable and not otherwise provided in this chapter. The applicant shall be plaintiff and the other party defendant, and either party may have a trial by jury. The petition may be presented to the judge, who may appoint a temporary guardian.

SEC. 2274. [Provisions made applicable.]—The provisions of this chapter, and all other laws relating to guardians for minors, and regulating or prescribing the powers, duties, or liabilities of each and of the court, so far as the same are applicable, shall be held to apply to guardians and their wards appointed under section two thousand two hundred and seventy-two of this chapter.

SEC. 2275. (As amended by ch. 70, 22d g. a.)—[Power, authority and duty of guardian.]—Such guardian may sue in his own name, describing himself as guardian of the ward for whom he sues; and when his guardianship shall cease by his death, removal, or otherwise, or by the decease of his ward, any suit, action, or proceeding then pending shall not abate; but his successor, or the person for whom he was guardian, or the executor or administrator of such person, as the case may require, shall be made party to the suit or other proceedings, in like manner as is or may be provided by law for making an executor or administrator party to a proceeding of a like kind when the plaintiff dies during its pendency. [The court shall, if necessary, set off to the wife, and children under fifteen years of age of the insane person, or to either, sufficient of his property of such kind as it shall deem appropriate to support them for twelve months from the time he was adjudged insane.]

SEC. 2276. [Real estate of may be sold.]—Whenever the sale of the real estate of such ward is necessary for his support, or the support of his family, or the payment of his debts, or will be for the interest of the estate or his children, the guardian may sell the same under like proceedings as required by law to authorize the sale of real estate by the guardian of a minor.

Where the estate of an insane person under guardianship is inadequate for the payment of his debts, the statute does not authorize an allowance for the support of his family to be made out of that portion of his estate which would be subject to execution for the satisfaction of his debts. Dutch, Guardian, v. Marvin, Intervenor, 72 Iowa, 663.

SEC. 2277. [Guardian to complete contracts.—The guardian of any person contemplated in section two thousand two hundred and seventy-two of this chapter, whether appointed by a court in this state or elsewhere, may complete the real contracts of his ward, or any authorized contracts of a guardian who has died or been removed, in like manner and by like proceedings as the real contract of a decedent may under an order of court, be specially performed by his executor or administrator.
SEC. 2278. [When estate is insolvent.]—If the estate of such person is insolvent, or will probably be insolvent, the same shall be settled by the guardian in like manner, and like proceedings may be had as is or may be required by law for the settlement of the insolvent estate of a deceased person.

SEC. 2279. [Custody of: prior right to.]—The priority of claim to the custody of any insane person, habitual drunkard, or spendthrift aforesaid, shall be:
1. The legally appointed guardian;
2. The husband or wife;
3. The parents;
4. The children.

CHAPTER 6.
MASTER AND APPRENTICE.

SECTION 2280. [Minors.]—Any minor child may be bound to service until the attainment of the age of legal majority as hereinafter described.

SEC. 2281. [Indenture: when minor to sign.]—Such binding must be by written indenture, specifying the age of the minor and the terms of agreement. If the minor is more than twelve years of age and not a pauper, the indenture must be signed by him of his own free will.

SEC. 2282. [Consent of relatives required.]—A written consent must be appended to or indorsed upon such agreement, and signed by one of the following persons, to-wit:
1. By the father of the minor; but if he be dead, or has abandoned his family, or is from any cause incapacitated from giving his assent, then,
2. By the mother; and if she be dead, or unable, or incapacitated for giving such assent, then,
3. By the guardian; and if there be no guardian, then by the clerk of the circuit court.

SEC. 2283. [Paupers.]—The clerk of the circuit court may bind minors who are paupers till they have attained the age of majority, without obtaining their assent.

SEC. 2284. [Indenture.]—The written indenture must, in that case, be signed by the master and said clerk.

SEC. 2285. The indenture must, in all cases where there is a parent or guardian, be in three parts, one being left with the master, another with the clerk of the circuit court, and the third with the person by whose assent he is bound.

SEC. 2286. [Powers: rights: liabilities.]—The powers, liabilities, and duties of the master, and the rights of the apprentice, are the same as those of parent and child, respectively, except as to inheritances and except as is otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 2287. [Duty of parent, guardian, or officer.]—The parent, guardian, or officer, by whose act or consent any minor is thus bound, must watch over the interest of the minor, and, if the case require, must enter complaint as provided for in the following section.

SEC. 2288. [Complaint against master.]—Upon complaint by the minor or by any other person made to the judge of the district or circuit court, stating under oath that the master is ill-treating his apprentice or is in any other manner palpably failing in the discharge of his duty in regard to him, and stating the particulars with reasonable certainty, the court shall summon the master to appear and answer such complaint.
Sec. 2289. [Service of.]—The complaint, with the proper notice indorsed thereon, must be served and returned in the same manner as in the commencement of an action, and the time for appearance shall be regulated by the same rules.

Sec. 2290. [Answer: issue trial.].—The answer of the master must also be under oath, and, if any other issue be joined thereon, it must be tried as in other cases in court.

Sec. 2291. [Judgment: discharge.].—If the court or jury before whom the cause is pending finds the cause of complaint admitted by the master, or proved upon the trial to be of sufficient magnitude to justify the discharge of the minor from farther service, judgment shall be rendered accordingly, and a certificate of such judgment placed in said minor's hands.

Sec. 2292. [Appeal.].—From any judgment in such cases, either the minor or the master may appeal in the same manner as provided for in ordinary cases.

Sec. 2293. [Suit for damages.].—The above proceedings form no bar to the bringing of a suit by or on behalf of the minor for damages, or for compensation for services.

Sec. 2294. [Complaint against apprentice.].—If the apprentice bound as aforesaid refuses to serve according to the terms of the indenture, upon complaint made in the manner aforesaid, the judge shall issue a warrant to cause the apprentice to be brought forthwith before him, and shall also cause notice of the proceedings to be given to the parent, guardian, or officer by whose act or consent the minor was bound as an apprentice, if to be found in the county.

Sec. 2295. [Answer: when made.].—A reasonable space of time, not exceeding three days, shall be allowed to the minor to consult his parent, guardian, or other friends, previous to making his answer to the complaint.

Sec. 2296. [Issue: trial.].—The answer must be made, and the issues thereon tried in the manner hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2297. [Discharge of.].—If he shows sufficient cause for refusing to serve, he may be discharged from service in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 2298. [Master released from indenture.].—Instead of proceeding as aforesaid, the master may, for any refusal to serve or for any gross misbehavior on the part of the apprentice, file a complaint for the purpose of releasing himself from the force and effect of the indenture aforesaid.

Sec. 2299. [Proceedings.].—Proceedings thereupon shall be had similar to those provided in case of a complaint by or in behalf of the apprentice, and judgment rendered in like manner with the same right of appeal.

Sec. 2300. [Dissolution of by death or removal.].—The death of the master, or his removal from the state, works a dissolution of the indenture unless otherwise provided therein, or unless the apprentice elects to continue in his service. And in the event of a dissolution, the apprentice shall receive such allowance for services previously rendered as may be thought necessary under the circumstances of the case.

Sec. 2301. [Natural guardian when removed.].—Upon complaint being made to the circuit court of the proper county, verified by affidavit, that the father or mother of a minor child is, from habitual intemperance and vicious and brutal conduct, or from vicious, brutal, and criminal conduct towards said minor child, an unsuitable person to retain the guardianship and control the education of such child, the court may, if it find the allegations in the complaint manifestly true, appoint a proper guardian for the child, and may, if expedient, also direct that such child be bound as an apprentice to some suitable person until he attains his majority. But nothing herein shall be so construed as to take such minor child, if the mother be a proper guardian.

Where upon the application of the father of an illegitimate child for the custody thereof, it appeared that his moral character was no better than that of the mother, and that she had a natural affection for the child, neither neglecting, abusing, nor failing to provide for it, held that the custody of the child should not be awarded to him. Pryatt v. Nitz, 48 Iowa, 33.

Section 2302. [Proceedings.]—The same proceedings may take place, and a like order be made where the mother, who has for any cause become the guardian of her minor child, is in like manner found to be manifestly an improper person to retain such guardianship.

Section 2303. [Same.]—The complainant in such cases must be sworn to his complaint and file it in the office of the clerk, and a copy thereof, with a notice thereon indorsed, stating the time when the matter will be brought before the circuit court for adjudication, must be served personally on the parent from whom the guardianship is sought to be taken, at least ten days before the time so fixed for the adjudication.

Section 2304. [Trial.]—Issues joined shall be tried in the same manner as in ordinary civil actions.

Section 2305. [Preference over other cases.]—Preference shall be given to such cases over the ordinary business of the court, but trials actually commenced need not be suspended for that purpose.

Section 2306. [Schooling and treatment of minors.]—The master shall send said minor child, after the same be six years old, to school at least four months in each year, if there be a school in the district, and at all times the master shall clothe the minor in a comfortable and becoming manner.

---

OF THE ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.

Section 2307. [Who may adopt.]—Any person competent to make a will is authorized in manner hereinafter set forth, to adopt as his own the minor child of another, conferring thereby upon such child all the rights, privileges and responsibilities, which would pertain to the child if born to the person adopting it in lawful wedlock.

Section 2308. [Consent of parents, mayor of city, or clerk of circuit court required.]—In order thereto, the consent of both parents, if living and not divorced or separated, and if divorced or separated, or if unmarried, the consent of the parent lawfully having the care and providing for the wants of the child, or if either parent is dead, then the consent of the survivor, or if both parents be dead, or the child shall have been and remain abandoned by them, then the consent of the mayor of the city where the child is living, or, if not in a city, then of the clerk of the circuit court of the county where the child is living, shall be given to such adoption by an instrument in writing signed by the parties or party consenting, and stating the names of the parents, if known, the name of the child, if known, the name of the person adopting such child, and the residence of all if known, and declaring the name by which such child is thereafter to be called and known, and stating also that such child is given to the person adopting, for the purpose of adoption as his own child.

Section 2309. [Instrument of adoption: acknowledged and recorded.]—Such instrument in writing shall be also signed by the person adopting, and shall be acknowledged by all the parties thereto in the same manner as deeds affecting real estate are required to be acknowledged; and shall be recorded in the recorder's office in the county where the person adopting resides, and shall be indexed with the name of the parents by adoption as grantors, and the child as grantee, in its original name if stated in the instrument.
OF THE ADOPTION OF CHILDREN. [TITLE XV.

Where the instrument intended to affect the adoption of a minor child was signed and acknowledged by the parent but was not signed by the person adopting the child, it was held, not a legal adoption, although the child resided with the intended parents for a year and a half. Long v. Hewitt et al., 44 Iowa, 365.

Where a guardian of the person and property of a minor has been duly appointed, such child cannot be adopted by a third person without the consent of the guardian. Whether it can be done with such consent, quere. Burger, by his Next Friend, v. Frakes, 67 Id., 460.

SEC. 2310. [Rights and relations of child.]—Upon the execution, acknowledgment, and filing of record of such instrument, the rights duties and relations between the parent and child by adoption, shall, thereafter, in all respects, including the right of inheritance, be the same that exist by law between parent and child by lawful birth.

Where a father adopted two children of his daughter, and afterward died intestate, it was held, that the children so adopted inherited from him as his own children, and would also inherit the share of their deceased mother. Wagner v. Varner, 50 Iowa, 582.

Where a written instrument for the adoption of a child was signed and acknowledged by the parties, but not filed for record until after the death of the party making the adoption, it was held that the act of adoption was incomplete, and that the child would not inherit as an heir of the decedent. Tyler et al. v. Reynolds, 53 Id., 146.

Rights of inheritance can be acquired through adoption only by a full compliance with the provisions of the statute in respect thereto; where articles of adoption are properly executed, but are not recorded during the lifetime of the person adopting, no right to inherit from him is thereby conferred upon the child, though the latter has complied with the terms of such articles during the full period of his minority. Shearer et al. v. Weaver et al., 56 Id., 578.

SEC. 2311. [Maltreatment of child: consequences of.]—In case of maltreatment committed or allowed by the adopted parent, or palpable neglect of duty on his part toward such child, the custody thereof may be taken from him and entrusted to another at his expense, if so ordered by the circuit court of the county where the parent resides, and the same proceedings may be had therefor, so far as applicable, as are authorized by law in such a case in the relation of master and apprentice; or the court may, on showing of the facts, require from the adopted parent, bond with security, in a sum to be fixed by him, the county being the obligee, and for the benefit of the child, conditioned for the proper treatment and performance of duty toward the child on the part of the parent; but no action of the court in the premises shall affect or diminish the acquired right of inheritance on the part of the child, to the extent of such right in a natural child of lawful birth.
OF PROBATE JURISDICTION.

TITLE XVI.
OF THE ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

CHAPTER 1.
OF PROBATE JURISDICTION.

SECTION 2312. [Circuit court has exclusive.]-The circuit court of each county shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction of the probate of wills, and the appointment of such executors, administrators, or trustees, as may be required to carry the same into effect; of the settlement of the estate of deceased persons, and of the persons and estates of minors, insane persons, and others requiring guardianship, including applications for the sale of real property belonging to any such estates, except as prescribed in chapters one and three, of title fifteen.

(Chapter 134, Laws of 1886, abolishes the circuit court and vests this jurisdiction in the district court. See page 40, ante.)

This section does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction of an original action to set aside a will. It has reference only to the probate. The district court cannot admit a will to probate for want of jurisdiction over the subject matter. Not so, however, in respect to an original action to set it aside. Leighton v. Orr, 44 Id., 679, 683; Maples v. Marsh, 49 Id., 381.

The circuit court as a court of probate has jurisdiction to appoint an administrator, even in a county where there is no property of deceased beyond an interest in an action at law, and its adjudication is not open to be attacked collaterally. Murphy, Neal & Co. v. Creighton, 45 Id., 179. But see Christy v. Vest, 36 Id., 285.

An order of the circuit court, discharging an administrator, does not amount to an adjudication than an heir of the intestate, whom the administrator reported that he was unable to find, is in fact dead, nor will it estop such heir or his creditors from claiming his distributive share of the estate. Crosby v. Calhoun et al., 45 Id., 557.

An action to set aside a will a jury trial cannot be demanded as a matter of right; and where such trial is granted it will not be error to set aside the finding of the jury. Gilruth v. Gilruth, 49 Id., 346.

The jurisdiction conferred upon the circuit court of the estates of insane persons does not exclude the jurisdiction of the district court upon questions of right between insane persons and others. Flock et al. v. Wyatt et al., 49 Id., 466.

The circuit court has original jurisdiction of actions for the breach of the conditions of administrators' bonds. Wheelhouse v. Bryant et al., 13 Id., 160; Jenkins v. Shields, 36 Id., 526. So, also, the statute conferring jurisdiction on the probate court in respect to claims against estates of deceased persons, does not defeat or oust the general equity jurisdiction of the district court. Hattin v. Stevenson, 30 Id., 371.

An action to set aside a will has always been held to be an action at law, in which either party has a right to a jury trial. Id. See, also, Gilruth v. Gilruth, 40 Id., 346.

The admission of a will to probate is not conclusive on the parties adversely interested, and an appeal may be taken or an original action brought to set the will aside. Id.

In Citizens' Bank v. Rhutesel et al., 67 Id., 316, it was held, under sections 2312 and 2315 of the code, that it was the duty of the clerk to appoint administrators, when the circuit court was not in session; but when it was in session that duty devolved upon the court. But by whomsoever appointed, it was the duty of the clerk to issue the letters of administration.

Want of jurisdiction of the subject matter cannot be waived, even by consent of parties, and the objection may be raised at any time. Orcutt v. Hanson, Ex., et al., 71 Id., 514.

SEC. 2313. (As amended by ch. 144, 21st g. a.)—[Always open: exception.]-The court shall be always open for the transaction of probate business; but the hearing of any matter requiring notice shall be had only in term time, or at such time and place as the judge may appoint [and in case there is no contest, such hearing may be had at any place within the judicial district to which belongs the county in which the business is pending.]

Under this section the court has no authority to hear and determine a matter in probate outside of the county where it belongs, and an order made outside of such county is void. Capper v. Sibley et al., 65 Id., 754.

SEC. 2314. When the judge fixes a time and place of hearing, as contemplated in the preceding section, he shall determine what notice shall be given thereof, and no such hearing shall be had until proof is made of the giving of such notice.

The legislature has conferred upon the judge of the circuit court as a court of probate the right to determine what notice shall be given of the hearing of any matter pending in that court in which notice is required. This includes the kind of notice and mode of service. It was accordingly held that, where an administrator made an application to the court to sell real estate to pay debts, and the court ordered that a notice of the hearing should be served on the defendants (who were non-residents of state) by publication for two weeks in a newspaper, which was done accordingly and due proof made thereof, the court thereby acquired jurisdiction of the person of the defendants. Casey et al. v. Stewart, 60 Iowa, 160.

SEC. 2315. [Clerk: power in vacation.]—The clerk, in vacation, shall have power to appoint executors, administrators [guardians] and appraisers; to issue citations and other notices, and to discharge such other duties in relation to estates of decedents as are in this title specially devolved on him.

It is the exclusive province of the court under section 2246 to approve of a guardian’s bond, and the clerk has no power to do so under section 2315, which authorizes him to appoint a guardian in vacation. Reno v. McCully et al., 65 Iowa, 629.

SEC. 2316. [Orders of clerk set aside.]—Any act of the clerk, as contemplated in the preceding section, shall be binding on all parties interested therein until the next term of the court after they are entered of record, when they shall be read in open court and approved, set aside, or modified, but until so set aside or modified, it shall have the same force and effect as if done by the court.

SEC. 2317. [Causes transferred to district court.]—Where the judge is a party, or connected by blood or affinity with any person so interested nearer than the fourth degree, or is personally interested in any probate matter, he shall order the same transferred to the district court, which shall have jurisdiction therein the same as the circuit court would otherwise have, and its proceedings shall be entered on the records of the circuit court.

SEC. 2318. [Jurisdiction of court.]—When a case is originally within the jurisdiction of the courts of two or more counties, that court which first takes cognizance thereof by the commencement of proceedings, shall retain the same throughout.

SEC. 2319. The court of the county in which a will is probated, or in which administration is granted, shall have jurisdiction co-extensive with the state in the settlement of the estate of the decedent and the sale and distribution of his real estate.

SEC. 2320. [Process revoked.]—Any process or authority emanating from the court in probate matters, may for good cause, be revoked and a new one issued.

SEC. 2321. [Bonds filed; approval of.]—All bonds relating to probate matters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, and shall not be deemed sufficient until examined by the clerk and his approval indorsed thereon.
CHAPTER 2.

OF WILLS AND LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION.

SECTION 2322. [Who may make.]—Any person of full age and sound mind may dispose, by will, of all of his property except what is sufficient to pay his debts, or what is allowed as a homestead, or otherwise given by law as privileged property to his wife and family.

The republication of a will revoked by the subsequent birth of a child cannot be shown by parol. In the absence of statutory provisions the same formalities are necessary to the republication as were required in the original publication. Carey v. Baughn, 86 Iowa, 549; Perjue v. Perjue, 4 Id., 520.

Parol evidence is not admissible to supply an omission or cure a defect in a will, caused through oversight or mistake. Nor in any case to show the intention of the testator, except where there is a latent ambiguity arising, dehors the will, or to rebut a resulting trust. Fitzpatrick v. Fitzpatrick, 86 Id., 674.

SECTION 2323. [Subsequent property.]—Property to be subsequently acquired, may be devised when the intention is clear and explicit.

This section of the code has the effect only to extend to real property the rule which before existed at common law with respect to personal property; and the meaning of the section is, that whenever the intention of the testator to have it so pass is fairly to be inferred from the provisions of the will, when construed according to the established rules for the construction of such instruments. So where a testator devised the remainder of his personal property and the whole of his real estate to the plaintiffs; held, that it carried to plaintiff's real estate, the title of which the testator acquired after the execution of said will. Briggs et al. v. Briggs et al., 69 Iowa, 617.

SECTION 2324. [Verbal wills.]—Personal property to the value of three hundred dollars may be bequeathed by a verbal will, if witnessed by two competent witnesses. A bequest of a promissory note of the nominal value of $400 will be held invalid in the absence of proof that its value did not exceed $300.

It is necessary to the validity of a will bequeathing personal property exceeding three hundred dollars in value, that two witnesses should subscribe the same; and it is not valid unless thus subscribed, though the witnesses were present and can testify that it was signed by the testator. In the matter of the last will, etc., of Boyer Boyens, 23 Id., 354.

A bequest of personal property exceeding three hundred dollars in value is of no validity even to the extent of that sum. Strieker v. Oldenbaugh, 39 Iowa, 653.

A bequest of a promissory note of the nominal value of $400 will be held invalid in the absence of proof that its value did not exceed $300.

Where a decedent on his death bed several times expressed a desire that certain persons should have his property, it was held that the animus testandi would be presumed and his property disposed of in accordance with such desire to the extent which a nuncupative will would be valid. Id.

The fact that real and personal property in excess of three hundred dollars in value are included in a verbal will does not render it invalid in toto, but only for the excess over that sum. Id.

SECTION 2325. [Soldier or mariner.]—A soldier in actual service, or a mariner at sea, may dispose of all his personal estate by a will so made and witnessed.

SECTION 2326. [In writing.]—All other wills, to be valid, must be in writing witnessed by two competent witnesses and signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his express direction.

It is not essential to the validity of a will that the character and purposes of the instrument should be stated to the witnesses by the testator. The statute requires the instrument to be "witnessed," that is, "to see the execution of the instrument, and subscribe it for the purpose of establishing its authenticity." And this may be done without any declaration of the testator, as to the character and purpose of the instrument, made to the witnesses. In the matter of the Will of Rachel Hulse, 52 Iowa, 663.

It is essential to the validity of a will bequeathing property exceeding in value the sum of three hundred dollars, that two witnesses should subscribe the will; and it is not sufficient or valid... unless thus subscribed, even though the witnesses were present and can testify that it was signed by the testator. In the matter of last Will, etc., of Boyer v. Boyens, 23 Id., 594.

A will, in order to pass the title to land situated in this state, must have been executed and witnessed as required by the laws of this state. Lynch v. Miller et al., 54 Id., 516.

SEC. 2327. No subscribing witness to any will can derive any benefit therefrom, unless there be two disinterested and competent witnesses to the same.

The fact that a husband is a legatee under a will does not render his wife incompetent as a subscribing witness to such will. Hawkins v. Hawkins, 54 Iowa, 443.

SEC. 2328. But, if without a will, he would be entitled to any portion of the testator's estate, he may still receive such portion to the extent in value of the amount devised.

SEC. 2329. Wills can be revoked, in whole or in part, only by being cancelled or destroyed by the act or direction of the testator with the intention of so revoking them, or by the execution of subsequent wills.

Where a testator undertakes to dispose by will of both real and personal estate, and he subsequently conveys the real estate by deed, it will not, in general, work a revocation of the will as to the personal property owned by the testator at the time of his decease. Warren v. Taylor, 56 Iowa, 182.

See Milburn v. Milburn, 60 Id., 411.

SEC. 2330. When done by cancellation, the revocation must be witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will.

The cancellation of the signature to a will, made by drawing a scroll through it in such manner as to not render it illegible but was not witnessed in such manner as the making of a new will, as required by the statute, held not to constitute a revocation of the will. Gay v. Gay, 60 Id., 415.

SEC. 2331. Wills, duly sealed up and indorsed, may be deposited with the clerk of the court, who shall file and preserve the same until the death of the testator, unless he sooner demand them.

The cancellation of a signature to a will, made by drawing a scroll through it, was not witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will, as required by this section. Held, not good as a revocation of the will. Gay v. Gay, 60 Iowa, 415.

SEC. 2332. If no executors are named in the will, one or more may be appointed to carry it into effect.

Where the testator has named an executor in his will, the court has no power to appoint an administrator to precede the executor in the settlement of the estate. Pickering v. Welting, 47 Iowa, 242.

SEC. 2333. If no executor, if no executors are named therein, or if the executors named fail to qualify and act, it shall be retained until an executor is appointed and qualified in the manner herein prescribed.

POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN—DEVISEE.

SEC. 2334. Posthumous children unprovided for by the father's will, shall inherit the same interest as though no will had been made.

Where a testator, having two children, bequeathed his entire property to his wife, and subsequently two other children were born to him, it was held that the will was presumptively revoked. Negus v. Negus et al., 46 Iowa, 487. To the same effect is Fallon v. Chidister, 10. 688.

The probate of a will establishes its execution and renders it admissible in evidence, but does not determine the title of property claimed under it. Id.

SEC. 2335. The amount thus allowed to a posthumous child, as well as that of any other claim which it becomes necessary to satisfy in disregard of or in opposition to the contemplation of the will, must be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees.

SEC. 2336. The word "devisees" as used in this title, when applicable, be construed to embrace "legatees," and the word "devised" shall, in like cases, be understood as comprising the force of the word "bequeathed."

SEC. 2337. If a devisee die before the testator, his heirs shall inherit the amount so devised to him unless from the terms of the will a contrary intent is manifest.
The widow of a deceased husband will not inherit from the child who died before the death of the husband. Will v. Gustav L. H. Overdieck, 50 Iowa, 244.

Where a devisee dies before the testator, leaving a widow and a brother, the brother is, but the widow is not, an heir of the devisee within the meaning of this section, and in such case the legacy will go to the brother, and it was held further that the word "heirs" as used in sections 2337 and 2454 of the code have the same meaning. Blackman et al. v. Wadsworth et al., 65 Id., 80; citing McMenomy v. McMenomy, 22 Id., 148, and Will of Overdieck, 50 Id., 244.

CUSTODIAN—PROBATE.

SEC. 2338. [To file will.]—Any person having the custody of a will, shall, as soon as he is informed of the death of the testator, file the same with the clerk, who shall open and read the same.

SEC. 2339. [Penalty for refusal.]—If any person having the custody of a will fail to produce the same as required by the preceding section after receiving a reasonable notice so to do, the court may commit him to jail until he produce the same; and he shall be liable for all damages occasioned by his failure to produce such will.

SEC. 2340. (As amended by ch. 11, 16th g. a.) [Probate.]—After the will is produced and read, a day shall be fixed by the court or clerk for proving the same, which day shall be during a term of court, and may be postponed from time to time in the discretion of the court. [Whenever the proving of a will is contested either party shall be entitled to demand a jury and to the verdict of a jury on the issues involved.]

It was held, in Gilruth v. Gilruth, 40 Iowa, 346, prior to the amendment of this section, that, upon the probate of the will, a jury trial could not be demanded as a matter of right. The amendment to this section requires the issues on the probate of a will to be submitted to a jury on demand of either party, and the verdict in such case has the same effect as in ordinary actions at law, and should not be set aside for any less weighty reasons. Collins v. Brazill, 63 Id., 432.

SEC. 2341. The clerk shall give notice of the time thus fixed by publishing a notice, signed by himself and addressed to all whom it may concern, in a daily or weekly paper printed in the county where the will is filed, for three consecutive weeks, the last publication of which shall be at least ten days before the time fixed for such hearing; but the court in its discretion may prescribe a different kind of notice.

Publication of the notice required by this section (2341) may be proved by the affidavit of any person who is in a situation to have personal knowledge of the fact. Farrell v. Leighton et al., 49 Iowa, 174.

A will devising the use and enjoyment of certain real estate to A, "to be enjoyed by her during her natural life only;" and after her death to her heirs, "free and clear of all liens and incumbrances thereon, was held, to give the devisee only a life estate, the intent of the testator being to create a new stock of descent at her death. Steemer v. Crampton et al., 50 Id., 302.

No other or further notice than that contemplated in this section was necessary to give the circuit court jurisdiction of proceedings for the probate of a will. In re Will of Middleton, 72 Id., 424.

SEC. 2342. [Certificate: evidence.]—Wills, when proved and allowed, shall have a certificate thereof indorsed on or annexed thereto, signed by the clerk and attested by the seal of the court; and every will so certified, or the record thereof, or the transcript of such record duly authenticated, may be read in evidence in all courts without further proof.

A will having the certificate of proof and allowance attached, as provided by this section, may be read in evidence without further proof, or any showing that all the directory provisions of the statute have been complied with. Nor need the certificate state such compliance, but only the fact of the proof and allowance of the will. Latham v. Latham, 30 Iowa, 234.

The probate of a will establishes its execution and renders it admissible in evidence, but does not determine the title of the property claimed under it. The effect of the will and its interpretation, wherein titles are rested, are not determined in the proceedings for its probate. These are matters for adjudication when rights and property are claimed under the will. Fallon v. Childester, 46 Id., 582.

Sec. 2343. [Recorded.]—After being approved and allowed, the will, together with the certificate hereinafter required, shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose.

Sec. 2344. [Executor to have copy.]—When proved and recorded, the court shall direct the will, or an authenticated copy thereof, to be placed in the hands of the executor therein named or otherwise appointed.

EXECUTORS—TRUSTEES.

Sec. 2345. [Married woman.]—A married woman may act as executor independent of her husband.

Sec. 2346. [Minors.]—If a minor under eighteen years of age is appointed an executor, there is a temporary vacancy as to him until he reaches that age.

Sec. 2347. [Vacancies.]—If a person appointed executor refuses to accept the trust, or neglects to appear within ten days after his appointment and give bond as hereinafter prescribed, or if an executor removes his residence from the state, a vacancy will be deemed to have occurred.

An executor may refuse to accept the trust, or may create a vacancy by removal from the state, and he may also surrender his trust by resignation. The United States Rolling Stock Company v. Potter, 48 Iowa, 66.

Non-residence alone does not disqualify one so that he cannot lawfully be appointed an administrator of an estate in this state; but ordinarily, in the absence of circumstances requiring the appointment of a non-resident, it should not be made. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co. v. Gould, 64 Id., 343.

While there are no restrictions or limitations in the statute upon the right of a wife to administer upon the estate of her husband, yet that right cannot be regarded as absolute, for she may be insane or otherwise incompetent, and something must be left to the discretion of the court. The estate of O'Brien, 63 Iowa, 622.

Sec. 2348. [How filed.]—In a case of vacancy, letters of administration, with the will annexed, may be granted to some other person; or if there be another executor competent to act, he may be allowed to proceed by himself in administering the estate.

Upon the resignation of an administrator, the person appointed his successor, whatever may be the peculiar designation applied to him, succeeds to all the duties and powers of his predecessor, and he may complete the discharge of obligations first assumed by the latter without delay or interruption. Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Iowa, 217.

Under sections 2348 and 2349 of the code, a substituted administrator succeeds to the duties and obligations as well as to the powers of the first administrator. Stewart v. Phenice et al., 65 Id., 475. Following Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Id., 217.

Sec. 2349. [Substitution.]—The substitution of other executors shall occasion no delay in the administration of the estate. The periods hereinafter mentioned within which acts are to be performed after the appointment of executors, shall all, unless otherwise declared, be reckoned from the issuing of the commission to the first general executor.

Sec. 2350. [Trustees to give bond.]—Trustees appointed by will, or by the court, must qualify and give bonds the same as executors, and shall be subject to control or removal by the court in the same manner.

Persons to whom personal property is bequeathed by will, and who are charged with certain trust duties in respect thereto, are properly legatees, and not trustees within the meaning of this section of the code requiring trustees to give bonds. This provision applies only to those who take property to hold for a determinate period, at the expiration of which it is to be transferred to the beneficiaries, and during the continuance of which period the estate remains unsettled and under the supervision of the probate court. Perry et al. v Drury et al., 56 Iowa, 60. Server, J., dissenting.
FOREIGN WILLS.

SEC. 2351. [Probated in other states: effect of.]—Wills probated in any state or country, shall be admitted to probate in this state without the notices required by law in the case of domestic wills on the production of a copy of such will and of the original record of probate thereof, authenticated by the attestation of the clerk of the court in which such probation was made; or, if there be no clerk by the attestation of the judge thereof, and by the seal of office of such officers, if they have a seal.

It has been held that the sufficiency of the attestation of a foreign will by the judge of the probate court where the same was proven, without being authenticated by the clerk, cannot be collaterally called in question after the probate court in the county of this state has, under the provisions of the statute, allowed and recorded the will and passed upon the sufficiency of the authentication. Stanford v. Morse et al., 26 Iowa, 454.

Under this section, a will proved and allowed in another state should be allowed and may be recorded by the circuit court of this state. Such allowance is conclusive of the due execution of the will. Vance et al. v. Anderson, 39 Id., 426; see section 2353 of code.

SEC. 2352. All provisions of law relating to the carrying into effect of domestic wills after probate, shall, so far as applicable, apply to foreign wills admitted to probate in this state as contemplated in the preceding section:

(As amended by ch. 162, 18th g. a.) [Foreign executor empowered to sell real estate.]—[Provided, That where, by any will first admitted to probate in any other state or country and then admitted to probate in Iowa, the executors or trustees under said will are empowered to sell and convey real estate, then upon the production of and recording in the proper probate record a copy of the original record of the appointment, qualification and giving bond, unless such bond was waived in the will, of such executors or trustees by the foreign court granting the original probate of the will, duly authenticated in the same manner as foreign wills are required to be, then, in conformity with the power granted in such wills, such executors or trustees may sell and convey real estate within any county in this state where such probate of will and proof of qualification may be so of record, without further qualifying in this state, and without reporting such sale to the circuit courts in this state for approval; and such sales and conveyances shall have the same force and validity as if made by executors and trustees duly qualified within this state and reported to, and approved by the circuit courts, unless at the time of the execution and delivery of said deed, letters testamentary or of administration upon the estate of such decedent shall have been granted in this state and remain in force and unrevoked, and due notice of such letters be given in such county in this state, if other than the one in which such letters were originally granted here as required by section 2629 of the code, in reference to actions affecting real estate; in which case any conveyance made shall be subject to all the rights acquired under the appointment and letters granted in Iowa; provided, that no such conveyance shall be made by such executor or trustee until three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification and bond (unless bond was waived in the will) in the proper probate record of the county where the land is situated.

SEC. 2. [Deed by foreign executors heretofore made: legalized.]—That all conveyances heretofore made by foreign executors and trustees in which the requirements of this act have been complied with, or in which such proof of authority at the date of conveyance shall be hereafter made of record as provided in section 1 of this act, are hereby declared to be legal and valid in law and equity from the date of such deed; provided, that the provisions of this section shall in no manner affect adverse rights vested at the date of such conveyance and prior to the taking effect of this act, or the performing the additional requirements of this section.]
SEC. 2353. [Foreign or domestic must be probated.]—Wills, foreign or domestic, shall not be carried into effect until admitted to probate as hereinbefore provided, and such probate shall be conclusive as to the due execution thereof, until set aside by an original or appellate proceeding.

The probate of a will is not conclusive upon the parties adversely interested, and an original action will lie at law to set it aside. Leighton v. Orr, 44 Iowa, 679, 682.
The same rule applies to the probate of a foreign will on the ground that such will is invalid as an instrument of title to land in this state. Lynch v. Miller et al., 54 Id., 516.

In an action brought to construe and enforce a will, the guardian ad litem of a minor legatee filed a cross-petition attacking its validity. It was held that such cross-petition would be regarded as if made in an original action contemplated by this section; and the guardian in such cross-petition, as in an original action, may lawfully interpose the question of the validity of the will. Kelsey v. Kelsey, 57 Id., 383.

An order of court granting the probate of a will cannot be attacked by motion to set it aside for error in the proceedings, but the remedy must be sought by original or appellate proceedings as directed by this section. Middleton v. Middleton, 72 Id., 424.

ADMINISTRATION.

SEC. 2354. [Who entitled: order of.]—In other cases where an executor is not appointed by will, administration shall be granted:
1. To the wife of the deceased;
2. To his next of kin;
3. To his creditors;
4. To any other person whom the court may select.

Where the time given by the statute for the next of kin or creditors to take out letters of administration has expired, a stranger may be appointed de bonis non. Crossan v. McCrary, 37 Iowa, 684.

The probate court may appoint one or more administrators of an estate, and an appointment of an additional administrator, against the protest of the one first appointed, will not be disturbed when it does not appear that the court has abused its discretion in making such appointment.
Read v. House, 13 Id., 59.

SEC. 2355. [Classes united.]—Individuals belonging to the same or different classes, may be united as administrators whenever such course is deemed expedient.

SEC. 2356. [Time allowed each class.]—To each of the above classes in succession, a period of twenty days, commencing with the burial of the deceased, is allowed within which to apply for administration upon the estate.

SEC. 2357. [Special administrators.]—When from any cause general administration cannot be immediately granted, one or more special administrators may be appointed to collect and preserve the property of the deceased.

In the absence of direct review, by appeal or otherwise, the action of the circuit court in appointing a special administrator will be presumed correct. Masterson v. Brown, 51 Iowa, 442.

A special administrator is authorized to prosecute an action on behalf of his intestate’s estate.

Id.

Where a person dies testate, naming an executor in his will, the court has not jurisdiction to appoint a general administrator to precede the executor in the settlement of the estate; and where, under such circumstances, an administrator is appointed in pursuance of a petition asking the appointment of a special administrator, he will be presumed to be such an one, notwithstanding the letters purport to confer general powers. Pickering v. Welting, 47 Id., 242.

SEC. 2358. [Appeal.]—No appeal from the appointment of such special executors shall prevent their proceeding in the discharge of their duties.

SEC. 2359. [Inventory.]—They shall make and file an inventory of the property of the deceased, in the same manner in all respects as is required of general executors or administrators, and shall preserve such property from injury.

SEC. 2360. [Duties.]—For this purpose they may do all needful acts under the direction of the court, but shall take no steps in relation to the allowance of claims against the estate.
SEC. 2361. [Special: when powers cease.]—Upon the granting of full administration, the powers of the special administrators shall cease, and all the business shall be transferred to the general executor or administrator.

SEC. 2362. [Bond of.]—Every executor or administrator, except as herein otherwise declared, before entering on the discharge of his duty, must give bond in such penalty as may be required, to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed on him by law, according to the best of his ability.

SEC. 2363. [Oath of.]—He must also take and subscribe an oath, the same in substance as the condition of the bond aforesaid; which oath and bond must be filed with the clerk.

SEC. 2364. [New bonds.]—New bonds may be required by the court to be given, and in a new penalty and with new sureties, whenever the same is deemed expedient.

SEC. 2365. [Letters.]—After the filing of the bond aforesaid, the clerk shall issue letters testamentary, or of administration, as the case may be, under the seal of the court, giving the executor or administrator the power authorized by law.

Whether the appointment of an executor or administrator be made by the court in session or by the clerk in vacation, it is the duty of the clerk to issue the letters testamentary or of administration. Citizens Bank v. Bhutael et al., 69 Iowa, 316.

SEC. 2366. [To give notice of appointments.]—The executors or administrators first appointed and qualified for the settlement of an estate, shall, within ten days after the receipt of their letters, publish such notice of their appointment as the court or the clerk may direct; which direction shall be indorsed on the letters when issued.

This section of the statute is directory, and the omission to give the notice prescribed does not have the effect to annul the appointment of an executor or prevent him from discharging the duties pertaining to his office. Johnson v. Barker, 57 Iowa, 32.

It is competent to prove the posting of notices of the appointment of an administrator by the affidavit of the administrator attached to a copy of the notice, as provided in section 3698 of the code. Brunsell v. Williams et al., 54 Id., 393.

SEC. 2367. [Limitation.]—Administration shall not be originally granted after the lapse of five years from the death of the decedent, or from the time his death was known in case he died out of the state.

An administrator de bonis non may be appointed after the lapse of five years from the death of a testator, if the estate has not been fully settled, and the administrator originally appointed has been discharged. Crossan et al. v. McCrary, 37 Iowa, 684.

SEC. 2368. [Administration: when granted in other states.]—If administration of the estate of a deceased non-resident has been granted in accordance with the laws of the state or country where he resided at the time of his death, the person to whom it has been committed may, upon his application, and upon qualifying himself in the same manner as is required of other executors, be appointed to administer upon the property of the deceased in this state, unless another has been previously appointed.

A presumption will be indulged in favor of the regularity of the appointment of an administrator in another state, and his consequent appointment as ancillary administrator here, to dispose of property in this state, upon proper application therefor, may be made after five years from the death of the intestate. Woodruff v. Shultz, 49 Iowa, 490.

The property left by a decedent cannot be subjected to the claim of a judgment creditor by an action to revive a judgment against the heirs of the decedent, in the absence of any administration upon the estate. Bridgman & Co. v. Miller et al., 50 Id., 392.

The mere fact that no administrator of an estate has been appointed after a considerable space of time, does not confer upon the heirs of the intestate the property in the personal effects of the deceased, nor enable them to maintain an action in their own name on a promissory note forming part thereof. Haynes et al. v. Harris, 33 Id., 518.

Upon the appointment of an administrator his title to the personal property relates back to the death of the intestate. Id.

If, however, it were shown that there were no debts against the estate, and that the period fixed for granting letters of administration had expired, it seems the right of the heirs to the proceeds of the note should be protected and enforced. Id.

Where an administrator made a final report and was discharged, but the records of the probate court showed that real property belonging to the estate was undisposed of and debts remained unpaid, such order of discharge was regarded as not a final settlement. Crossan v. McCrary, 37 Id., 684.

Sec. 2369. [Same.]—The original letters or other authority, conferring his power upon such executor, or an attested copy thereof, must be filed with the clerk of the proper court before such appointment can be made.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE ESTATE.

Section 2370. [Inventory.]—Within fifteen days after his appointment the executor shall make and file with the clerk an inventory of all the personal effects of the deceased of every description which have come to his knowledge, and a list of all book accounts which appear by the books or papers of the deceased to be unsettled. Such inventory shall be so made out as to show separately and distinctly, each by itself, the property inventoried as general assets of the deceased; the property inventoried and which is regarded as exempt under the next two sections, and the book accounts.

The ancient common law rule that the debtor who is made the executor of his creditor is thereby released from the debt, it not appearing that the assets of the estate are insufficient to meet the testator’s debts, is not in force in this county, and the debt in the hands of the executor is regarded as general assets of the estate for the benefit, not only of creditors but, of legatees and others interested. Kaster v. Pierson, 27 Iowa, 90.

In an action by a receiver against an executor on a promissory note made by the latter to the testator, judgment should be rendered against him in his individual capacity, and not as executor. Id.

Sec. 2371. [When not assets.]—When the deceased leaves a widow, all personal property which in his hands as the head of the family would be exempt from execution, after being inventoried and appraised, shall be set apart to her as her property in her own right, and be exempt in her hands as in the hands of the decedent.

Property of the intestate set apart to the widow under section 2361 of the revision, when no longer needed and used by her as the head of his family, fell into the general personal estate, and became liable to distribution according to law, but not for the payment of debts. Gaskell v. Case, 18 Iowa, 147; Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 359.

It was also held, under the same section, that an heir could not claim the exclusive right to property set apart to the widow, by the executor, even though the widow was not entitled thereto because there was no longer a family within the meaning of the section. Paup v. Sylvester, 22 Id., 371.

Upon the death of a married man leaving money derived from a pension received from the United States, the money goes to the administrator and not to the widow. Perkins v. Hinkley, 71 Id., 499.

It was also held under the revision, that the property, which under the statute was exempt to the widow, as the head of the family, was not to be deemed assets in the hands of the administrator, nor to be administrated upon as such; and that even consent on her part to such administration, under a misapprehension of her rights, would not estop her from afterwards claiming the property or its proceeds. Elsworth v. Elsworth, 33 Id., 164.

Personal property belonging to the wife and exempt from execution in her hands does not, under this section, vest in her husband at her death but goes to the administrator. This section bestows a right upon the widow, in the property of her deceased husband, which is not given to the husband of a deceased wife in her property. Wilson v. Breeding, 50 Iowa, 629.

When the husband dies, leaving personal property which was exempt from execution in his hands, and the same is taken possession of by his widow, she will not be deprived of her right thereto under the statute by reason of the fact that no inventory or appraisement were made as provided in this section. Adkinson v. Breeding, 56 Id., 26.
SEC. 2372. [As amended by ch. 5, 18th g. a.] [Life insurance.]—The avails of any life insurance [or any other sum of money made payable by any mutual aid or benevolent society upon the death of a member of such society] are not subject to the debts of the deceased, except by special contract or arrangement, but shall, in other respects, be disposed of like other property left by the deceased. The proceeds of a policy of insurance upon the life of the husband or wife are not exempt from the debts of the successor, after the proceeds shall be realized.

The proceeds of a policy of life insurance are not exempt from execution for the debts of the beneficiary. When such property descends to the widow and children of the insured, it becomes subject to their individual debts the same as any other inheritance. Murray v. Wells, 53 Iowa, 296.

SEC. 2373. [Supplemental Inventory.]—A supplemental inventory must be made in like manner, whenever the existence of additional property is discovered.

Under this section the publication of a notice of sale for two weeks in a weekly newspaper, as ordered by the court, was held sufficient. Read et al. v. House et al., 39 Iowa, 553.

SEC. 2374. [Clerk to notify appointees.]—The clerk shall issue to them a notification of their appointment, accompanied by a copy of the inventory as returned by the executor, and in making their appraisement they shall affix a value to each item of property, separately, as it appears in such inventory.

SEC. 2375. [Allowance to widow and children.]—The court shall, if necessary, set off to the widow, and children under fifteen years of age, of the decedent, or to either, sufficient of his property, of such kind as it shall deem appropriate, to support them for twelve months from the time of his death.

Under this section the court, in a proper case, may direct the executor to pay to the widow of the decedent, for the support of herself and children, a sum of money in quarterly installments, instead of setting apart for their support specific property, and it is no valid objection to such order that the executor has not at the time enough money in his hands to pay the first installment; nor is such order objectionable as being in violation of section 2377 of the code. Estate of McReynolds, 61 Iowa, 566.

An allowance made by the court to the widow of a decedent under this section unless notified by the provisions of section 2377, must be paid in preference to a claim of a creditor of the decedent, filed and allowed as a claim against the estate; and the administrator has no power to contract with a creditor that his claim shall have preference; nor has the court power, upon the allowance of the claim, to order that it shall be first paid. In re. estate of Dennis, 67 Id., 110.

SEC. 2376. [Supplemental Inventory.]—A supplemental inventory must be made in like manner, whenever the existence of additional property is discovered.

Under this section the publication of a notice of sale for two weeks in a weekly newspaper, as ordered by the court, was held sufficient. Read et al. v. House et al., 39 Iowa, 553.

An application by an executor for an order to sell real property of the decedent must be made within eighteen months from the time when he gives notice of his appointment, unless the circumstances of the case would justify a court of equity in making an exception to the rule, in which case the application should be made within a reasonable time; but thirteen years is not a reasonable time. McCrory v. Jasper et al., 41 Id., 255.

Where the court ordered a sale of real estate to pay the debts of the decedent upon an administrator's petition, which did not contain a full statement of all the claims against the estate, it was held, that the judgment of the court therein could not be collaterally impeached even if erroneous. Myers v. Davis, 47 Id., 325.

That, the service of the notice was defective, merely, would not render the judgment void and subject to collateral attack; and the failure of the court to appoint a guardian ad litem for the minor defendants constituted a mere irregularity, which could not be taken advantage of in a collateral proceeding. Id.

Where proceedings were instituted, by an administrator, in the probate court, for the sale of real property to pay the debts of the decedent, in which the widow was made a party and duly served with notice, and the land sold under the order of court, it was held that the widow's right to dower was adjudicated in the proceedings for the sale of the land, and that she could not subsequently maintain an action therefor. Olmstead v. Blair et al., 45 Id., 42.

SEC. 2377. [Allowance reversed.]—The court may, on the petition of the widow, or other person interested, review the allowance so made to the widow or children, and increase or diminish the same, and make such order in the premises as it shall deem right and proper.

SEC. 2378. [Property in another county.]—If any portion of the decedent's personal property be in another county, the same appraisers may serve, or others may be appointed.

SEC. 2379. [Discovery of assets: proceedings.]—The court or judge may require any person suspected of having taken wrongful possession of any of the effects of the deceased, or of having had such effects under his control, to appear and submit to an examination under oath touching such matters; and if on such examination it appear that he has the wrongful possession of any such property, the court or judge may order the delivery of the same to the executor of the estate.

SEC. 2380. If, on being duly served with the order of the court or judge requiring him to do so, any person fail to appear in accordance with such order; or if, having appeared, he refuse to answer any question which the court or judge deem proper to be put to him in the course of such examination; or if he fail to comply with the order of the court or judge requiring him to deliver the property to the executor, he may be committed to the jail of the county until a compliance be yielded.

Under this and the preceding section the examination must be confined to the person summoned; and it is not competent to introduce other evidence to contradict his statements or to establish the administrator's claim to the property. Smythe v. Smythe, 24 Iowa, 491.

The person thus subjected to examination is not a witness within the meaning of section 3982 of the revision. Id.

These sections of the statute do not confer authority upon the court to try, as an issue of fact, upon general evidence, whether the person examined has taken wrongful possession of the effects of the estate of the deceased, but merely to summon and compel the appearance of such person, and subject him to an examination under oath; and where it appears therefrom that he has property belonging to the estate, order the same to be delivered to the administrator, and to enforce such order by imprisonment of the defendant if necessary. Riehman v. Stanton, 32 Id., 154.

Where the property, claimed to be assets of the estate, has been taken and converted into real estate, this proceeding is not applicable. Madison v. Shockley, 41 Id., 451, 453.

SEC. 2381. Whenever it is probable that the known and acknowledged property of the deceased will not be sufficient for the payment of his debts, any person to whom the legal title of any real estate was conveyed by the decedent or any person through whom the legal title to any real estate conveyed by the decedent has subsequently passed, or any person claiming an interest in any such real estate, may be required to appear and submit to an examination as contemplated in the preceding sections, subject to the penalties therein prescribed; and the court or judge shall have full power to order the proper declaration of trust to secure the estate, to be made by any person who may appear on such examination to hold the legal title to any real estate which in the event of the insufficiency of the personal property would be assets for the payment of debts, and to enforce compliance with such order as is provided in the next preceding section.

SEC. 2382. [May compound.]—The executor, with the approbation of the court, may compound with any debtor of the estate who may be thought unable to pay his whole debt.

SEC. 2383. [Mortgage assets.]—The interest of a deceased mortgagee shall be included among his personal assets, and, upon its being paid off, satisfaction shall be entered by the executor.

SEC. 2384. [Creditors: will sustained.]—When a person by his will makes such a disposition of his effects as to prejudice the rights of creditors, the will may be sustained by giving security to the satisfaction of the court for the payment of the claims of the creditors to the extent of the value of the property devised.
CHAP. 3. OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE ESTATE. 837

SEC. 2385. [Funds collected: paid out.]—When no different direction is given in the will, debts due the estate, shall, as far as practicable, be collected, and the debts owing by the estate paid off therewith to the extent of the means thus obtained.

SALE OF PROPERTY.

SEC. 2386. [Personal.]—The court, on the application of the executor, shall, from time to time, direct the sale of such portion of the personal effects as are of a perishable nature, or which, from any cause, would otherwise be likely to depreciate in value, and also such portions as are necessary to pay off the debts and charges upon the estate.

SEC. 2387. [Real estate: when ordered sold.]—If the personal effects are found inadequate to satisfy such debts and charges, a sufficient portion of the real estate may be ordered to be sold for that purpose.

The real estate of an intestate descends to the heirs at law, and the personal property only goes to the administrator unless the latter proves inadequate for the payment of the debts of the intestate, in which case he may be empowered to sell enough of the real estate to make up the deficit. Kinsey v. Billings, 35 Iowa, 154.

The interest of the widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to the payment of his debts, and may be set apart to her without reference thereto. Mock v. Watson, 41 Id., 241.

This section should be understood as referring to the interest of the intestate as distinguished from that of the wife, in the hands of the intestate. Id.

But where the administrator instituted proceedings in the probate court to sell lands of the intestate to pay the debts of the estate, making the widow a party, and she was duly served with process, and the land sold under the order of the court, it was held, that her right to dower was adjudicated in that proceeding, and that she could not afterward maintain an action therefor. Olmsted v. Blair, 45 Id., 327; Garvin v. Hatcher, 39 Id., 685. See, also, 41 Id., 255.

SEC. 2388. [Application.]—Application for that purpose can be made only after a full statement of all the claims against the estate, and after rendering a full account of the disposition made of the personal estate.

SEC. 2389. [Notice.]—Before any order to that effect can be made, all persons interested in such real estate shall be served with notice in the same manner as is prescribed for the commencement of civil action, unless a different notice is prescribed by the judge.

In a proceeding for the sale of real estate by an executor, wherein the court has prescribed the same notice as is provided by law in ordinary actions, a defendant, who has been served by publication only and has not appeared, may avail himself of the provisions of section 2877 of the code, set aside, on motion therefor at any time within two years after the making of the order. Huston v. Huston, 29 Iowa, 347.

SEC. 2390. [Sold in parcels: appraisement.]—If convenient, the real estate must be divided into parcels, and each appraised in the manner above provided for personal property, and the appraisement filed in like manner.

SEC. 2391. [Whole may be.]—When a part cannot be sold without material prejudice to the general interests of the estate, the court may order the sale of the whole, or of such parts as can be sold advantageously.

The objections that the requirements of the statute in regard to the appraisement of lands were not complied with, and that the lands, composed of several tracts, were sold in a body, are not jurisdictional in their character, and will not affect the validity of the sale. Cowles v. Tool, Ex'r, et al., 36 Iowa, 89.

The approval of the administrator's deed by the probate court furnishes presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale, and of the regularity of all the prior proceedings. Id.

SEC. 2392. [Private sale.]—Property may be permitted to be sold at private sale, whenever the court is satisfied that the interest of the estate will be thereby promoted.
SEC. 2393. [Public.]-In other cases, sales must be made at public auction, after giving the same notice as would have been necessary for the sale of such property on execution.

SEC. 2394. [Must sell for appraisement.]-No property can be sold at private sale for less than the appraisement price, without the express approbation of the judge.

SEC. 2395. Property may be ordered to be sold on a partial credit of not more than twelve months.

SEC. 2396. [Sale: how prevented.]-Any person interested in the estate, may prevent a sale of the whole or any part thereof, by giving bond to the satisfaction of the court, conditioned that he will pay all demands against the estate, to the extent of the value of the property thus kept from sale, as soon as called upon by the court for that purpose.

SEC. 2397. [Same.]—If the conditions of such bond are broken, the property will still be liable for the debts, unless it has passed into the hands of an innocent purchaser, and the executors may take possession thereof and sell the same under the direction of the court, or they may prosecute the bond, or both at once if the court so direct.

SEC. 2398. [Same.]—If the conditions of the bond are complied with, the property passes by devise, distribution, or descent, in the same manner as though there had been no debts against the estate.

SEC. 2399. [Conveyances: approval of.]-Where real estate is sold, conveyances thereof, executed by the executor, pass to the purchaser all the interest of the deceased therein; but such conveyances shall not be valid until approved by the court.

The interest of the widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to the payment of his debts, and may be set apart without reference thereto. Watson v. Wilson et al., 41 Iowa, 241.

SEC. 2400. [Record of: presumption.]-Such approval shall be entered of record. A certificate thereof must be indorsed on the deed, with the signature of the clerk and the seal of the court affixed thereto; and the deed so indorsed shall be presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale, and of the regularity of all the proceedings connected therewith.

The approval of the administrator’s deed by the court furnishes presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale and the regularity of all the prior proceedings. Cowins v. Tool, 36 Iowa, 82.

SEC. 2401. [Limitation.]-No action for the recovery of any real estate sold by an executor can be sustained by any person claiming under the deceased, unless brought within five years next after the sale.

In Good v. Norley, 28 Iowa, 188, it was held by Beck and Cole, Justices, that the limitation prescribed in this section did not apply to, and would not bar, a sale that was absolutely void for want of jurisdiction in the court to make the order thereof; while Dillon, Ch. J., and Wright, J., held that the statute applied to sales that were invalid as well as to those where the proceedings were merely defective, and that the action in that case was barred. This section does not apply to a case where the proceedings are attacked and sought to be set aside on the ground of fraud, and in such case the statute will not commence to run until five years from the time of the discovery of the fraud under section 2529 and 2530 of the code. Cowin v. Tool, 31 Id., 515.

It was held in Washburn v. Carmichael, 32 Iowa, 475, that a guardian’s sale of real estate, without notice to the heirs, is void for want of jurisdiction in the court ordering the sale. The opinion of Beck and Cole, JJ., in Good v Norley, 28 Id., 188, adhered to by Beck, J.

Where an administrator, under the statute, has applied to the court and obtained authority to sell real estate on which rests a mortgage in the execution of which the wife joined, such sale will have the same effect as one made on special execution in a foreclosure proceeding to which she had been made a party, and the purchaser takes the land discharged of dower. Mead v. Mead et al., 39 Id., 28.
POSSSESSION OF REAL PROPERTY.

SEC. 2402. [When taken by executor.]—If there be no heir or devisee present and competent to take possession of the real estate left by such decedent, the executor may take possession of such real estate and demand and receive the rents and profits thereof, and do all other acts relating thereto which may be for the benefit of the persons entitled to such real estate.

SEC. 2403. [Proceeds: how applied.]—Such executor or administrator, under the order and direction of the court, may apply the profits of such real estate to the payment of taxes and of debts and claims against the estate of the deceased in case the personal assets are insufficient.

SEC. 2404. [Accounts: compensation.]—Such executor or administrator shall account to such heirs or devisees for the rents, profits, or use of such real estate, deducting therefrom the payments made under the preceding section, together with a reasonable compensation for his own services, to be fixed by the court.

SEC. 2405. [When there are minors who have no guardian.]—When there are minor heirs for whom no guardian has been appointed, the executor or administrator shall pay out of any assets in his hands, all taxes assessed against the estate not otherwise provided for, and he shall be credited therefor as for the payment of other claims against the estate.

SEC. 2406. [Testator may prescribe manner of settling estate.]—When the interests of creditors will not thereby be prejudiced, a testator may prescribe the entire manner in which his estate shall be administered on; may exempt the executor from the necessity of giving bond, and may prescribe the manner in which his affairs shall be conducted until his estate is finally settled, or until his minor children become of age.

SEC. 2407. [Court may direct any business continued.]—The court, in its discretion, may also authorize an executor or administrator to continue the prosecution of any business in which the deceased was engaged at the time of his death, in order to wind up his affairs with greater advantage; but such authority shall not exempt him from returning a full inventory and appraisement as in other cases.

CLAIMS—PAYMENTS.

SEC. 2408. [Claims stated: proved: allowance of.]—Claims against the estate shall be clearly stated, sworn to, and filed, and ten days' notice of the hearing thereof, accompanied by a copy of the claim, shall be served on one of the executors in the manner required for commencing ordinary proceedings, unless the same have been approved by the administrator, in which case they may be allowed by the clerk without said notice.

The stating, verifying and filing of a claim against an estate is in the nature of a petition. When it is based upon a written instrument it is sufficient to file a copy, but the original must be produced at the time of trial or when it is allowed. Braught v. Griffith et al., 16 Iowa, 26.

It is not a prerequisite to the commencement and prosecution of proceedings against an administrator to correct errors in accounts taken between the plaintiff and the decedent, that a claim shall be stated, sworn to and filed in the clerk's office. The County of Linn v. Day, 16 Id., 155.

If a claim be filed within the time prescribed, the filing will not be rendered invalid because it was not sworn to when thus filed. It may be verified after the filing. This section, being directory, is thus sufficiently complied with. Goodrich v. Conrad, 34 Id., 254; Wile v. Wright, 32 Id., 451; O'Donnell v. Hermann, 42 Id., 60.

The court may set aside or modify the allowance of a claim against an estate, approved by the administrator and allowed by the clerk in vacation, without any other evidence than what is shown by the papers. Ordway & Husted v. Phelps, 45 Id., 279.
An action against an administrator, properly commenced in the circuit court, may, by consent, be transferred to the district court. McCreary v. Deming et al., 38 Id., 527.

The filing of a claim against an estate advises the administrator that the claim has been made only when he has received notice thereof as contemplated by the statute. Ashton et al. v. Miles, 49 Id., 564.

Where an administrator, as a pretended creditor of the estate, procures an allowance of his claim through fraud, the court in a proper proceeding, may set aside the allowance, but it cannot be assailed by an exception to his report. Id.

The provision of this section with respect to the verification of accounts filed against an estate is directory only, and the account may be sworn to after it has been filed. Goodrich v. Conrad, 24 Id., 294.

SEC. 2409. [Form in which claim should be made out.]—All claims filed against the estate shall be entitled in the name of the claimant against the executor, naming him as executor of the estate, naming it; and in all further proceedings on the claim this title shall be preserved.

All claims filed against an estate must be entitled in the name of the claimant against the executor, and if the same are not approved by the latter, they may be proved as in an action by ordinary proceedings. Per Skees, Ch. J., in Ordway & Husted v. Phelps, 45 Iowa, 281.

SEC. 2410. [Denial.]—All claims filed and not expressly admitted in writing, signed by the executor with the approbation of the court, shall be considered as denied without any pleading on behalf of the estate.

SEC. 2411. [Court may allow trial by jury. ]—If a claim filed against the estate is not so admitted by the executor, the court may hear and allow the same, or may submit it to a jury; and, on such hearing, unless otherwise provided, all proceedings of law applicable to an ordinary proceeding shall apply.

SEC. 2412. [Referees: examination of accounts.]—In matters of accounts of executors, the court shall have authority to appoint one or more referees, who shall have all the powers and perform all the duties of referees appointed by the court in a civil action.

The circuit court had power to appoint a referee to examine the accounts of an administrator and report thereon to the court. In re Heath's Estate, 58 Iowa, 38.

SEC. 2413. [Not due.]—Demands, though not yet due, may be presented, proved, and allowed as other claims.

SEC. 2414. [Contingent liabilities.]—Contingent liabilities must also be presented and proved, or the executor shall be under no obligation to make any provision for satisfying them when they may afterwards accrue.

The filing of the claim by a creditor against the estate of the principal debtor, obviates the necessity of filing the same as a contingent claim. Brought v. Griffith et al., 16 Iowa, 26.

SEC. 2415. [Proved before referees.]—Claims against an estate, and counter claims thereto, may, in the discretion of the court, be proved up before one or more referees, to be agreed upon by the parties or approved by the court, and their decision being entered upon the record becomes a decision of the court.

SEC. 2416. [Suits pending.]—Suits pending against the decedent at the time of his death may be prosecuted to judgment, his executor being substituted as defendant, and such judgment shall be placed in the catalogue of established claims, but shall not be a lien.

A suit pending before a justice of the peace against a decedent at the time of his death may be prosecuted to judgment, the administrator being substituted as defendant, and the justice may adjourn the hearing one or more times, as may be necessary, to allow substitution to be made. Coughlin v. Blake, 55 Iowa, 634.

SEC. 2417. [Executor interested.]—If either of the executors is interested in favor of a claim against the estate, he shall not serve in any matter connected with that case. And if the executors are thus interested, the court shall appoint some competent person a temporary executor in relation to such claims.

SEC. 2418. [Expenses of funeral.]—As soon as the executors are possessed of sufficient means, over and above the expenses of administration, they shall pay off the charges of the last sickness and funeral of deceased.
Expenses incurred in the last sickness and funeral charges do not constitute claims for which the homestead is liable. Knox v. Hanlon, 48 Id., 252.

SEC. 2419. [Allowance to widow.]-They shall, in the next place, pay any allowance which may be made by the court for the maintenance of the widow and minor children.

SEC. 2420. [Other demands.]-Other demands against the estate are payable in the following order:

1. [Order of payment.]—Debts entitled to preference under the laws of the United States;
2. Public rates and taxes;
3. Claims filed within six months after the first publication of the notice given by the executors of their appointment;
4. All other debts;
5. Legacies.

The filing of a claim within six months after notice of the granting of letters of administration fixes its character as a claim of the third class, without reference to the time of its establishment by evidence. Noble v. Morrey, 19 Iowa, 509.

The filing of a claim within six months after the notice was given by the administrator of his appointment entitles it to payment before those filed after that time, even though it is not admitted by the administrator or found upon by the court, until after the six months. Chandler v. Hockett’s Adm’r, 12 Id., 269.

It was held under the revision that where an action was commenced in the district court, upon a claim against an executor, of which the court had jurisdiction, within six months after notice of his appointment, the judgment, when rendered, should be allowed and paid as a claim in the third class, although the judgment was not filed as a claim against the estate until after the expiration of one year and a half after such notice. Cooley v. Smith, 17 Id., 99.

A claim filed within six months after notice of the appointment of the administrator, will not be affected by the limitation relating to claims of the fourth class, and may be established after eighteen months. Goodrich v. Conrad, 24 Id., 254.

The court may allow or disallow a claim, and designate the class in which it shall be paid. Hart v. Jewett, 11 Id., 276.

When a claim has been allowed and its class designated by the court, it should be paid ratably with other claims of the same class, when the assets are insufficient to pay the full amount of all. Id.

In the settlement of an estate of an intestate it is proper for the court to order taxes due on the lands belonging to the estate to be paid out of the proceeds of a sale of land. Trowbridge v. Sypher, 55 Id., 352, 355.

A claim of the third class against an estate is not barred because not proved up until after the expiration of twelve months from notice of the appointment of an administrator. Smith v. Mt. Calm, 56 Id., 429.

A delay in bringing on for hearing a claim against an estate will not operate as an estoppel to prevent its being proved unless the estate has been prejudiced by the delay. Id.

The allowance of part of a claim by an administrator and its approval by the court will not constitute an adjudication which will prevent the claimant from demanding a trial as to the part of his claim not allowed. Id.

SEC. 2421. [Limitation.]-All claims of the fourth of the above classes not filed and proved within twelve months of the giving of the notice aforesaid, are forever barred, unless the claim is pending in the district or supreme court, unless peculiar circumstances entitle the claimant to equitable relief.

Under the revision all claims of the fourth class had to be filed, proved and allowed within eighteen months, and were barred unless embraced within the exceptions provided in section 2405 of the revision (section 2421 of the code). Woodward v. Lavery, 14 Iowa, 392; Noble v. Morrey, 19 Id., 509; Brewster v. Hendrick, 17 Id., 472. See 39 Id., 675.

The equitable relief contemplated by the statute will not be granted to a party who had full notice of the decease of the intestate and the appointment and qualification of the administrator, and was negligent in the prosecution of his claim. Farrall v. Irvine, 12 Id., 52.

Whether equitable relief will be granted or not must depend upon the facts of each particular case. Johnston v. Johnston, 36 Id., 608.

For cases where equitable relief was granted and claims allowed to be established after the time limited in the statute. See McCormack v. Cook, 11 Id., 257; Brewster v. Hendrick, 17 Id., 479; Farrall v. Irvine, 12 Id., 52; Johnston v. Johnston, 36 Id., 608; 37 Id., 189; 33 Id., 505.
OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE ESTATE. [TITLE XVI.

For cases where equitable relief was refused, see Shomo v. Bissell, 20 Iowa, 68; Preston v. Day, 19 Id., 127.

Where the administration in this state is but auxiliary to the original administration in a foreign state, and the law applicable to the case in that state is not shown, it will be presumed to be the same as our own; and where an application for the sale of land for the payment of the debts of the intestate is made long after the original administration, and after the time allowed by our statutes for establishing claims has expired, the proceedings will be barred. Hadley v. Gregory et al., 57 Iowa, 157, 159.

Where a claim against the estate of a deceased person, barred by the statute for a failure to present the same within the time prescribed by law, was afterwards allowed by the administrator and ordered by the court to be paid, it was held that the sureties upon the administrator's bond were liable for his failure to pay the claim out of the funds of the estate in his hands, and that they could not urge in defense that the claim was barred by the statute at the time of its allowance. Weber v. North et al., 51 Id., 375.

A claim against an estate, filed within six months from notice of the appointment of the administrator, belongs to claims of the third class, and is not affected by the limitation relating to claims of the fourth class, as prescribed in this section, and may be established after the expiration of eighteen (twelve) months. Godrich v. Conrard, 24 Id., 294 (1868).

If a claim be filed in time, the filing will not be rendered void because the account was not then sworn to. The oath may be administered afterward. Id.

As to evidence to remove the bar of the statute, see Brownell v. Williams, 54 Id., 353.

It is not necessary that the statute of limitations upon claims of the fourth class, referred to in this section, should be pleaded in bar by the administrator. The matter of the allowance or disallowance of the claim is for the court, and whenever it appears to the court, from an inspection of the claim or otherwise, that it has not been filed or proved as required, it is the duty of the court, independently of any pleading upon the part of the administrator, to reject it. Brownell v. Williams et al., 54 Id., 353, 356.

Where a claim was filed but not proved, within the statutory period, because of the case being continued for the purpose of perfecting service, and because of a re-trial being ordered at a subsequent term, it was held that the claim was not barred. Wilc v. Wright, 32 Id., 451.

It was held under the revision that while a judgment rendered against one prior to his death may be enforced against real estate upon which it became a lien, after his death, without being filed as a claim against the estate, this must be done while the judgment lien exists. Nor can the lien of the judgment in such case be revived for that purpose, after it has expired, by an action on the judgment. Davis v. Showhan, 34 Id., 71.

It was also held, that the bar of this section of the statute applied only to claims, the satisfaction of which was primarily sought out of the personal assets of the decedent, and not to claims secured by mortgage upon which the creditor relied for satisfaction. Allen v. Moer, 16 Id., 307.

A claim of the fourth class against the estate of a decedent, not filed and proved within twelve months after the publication of the notice of appointment of administrator, is barred, unless the case presents circumstances entitling the claimant to equitable relief. Wilcox v. Jackson, 51 Id., 296: Lacey v. Loughridge, 1d., 629.

Where plaintiff's attorney held a claim of the fourth class against an estate, and at the request of another attorney whom he had good reason for believing was authorized to speak for the administratrix, delayed proving the same within the year provided by this section, but as the delay was slight, and the estate was solvent and unsettled, and there was no counter equity arising, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to equitable relief within the meaning of section 2421. Burroughs v. McLain, 37 Id., 139.

The pendency in the district court of an action based upon a claim against an estate at the time of granting administration, is to be regarded as a compliance with the statutory requirement that the claim be filed with the administrator, and in lieu of proving it before the probate court. O'Donnell v. Hermann, 42 Id., 60.

Where a note was filed against an estate as a claim of the fourth class, within twelve months after the giving of the notice required by this section, but the cause was continued by consent of parties, so that the claim was not proved within the twelve months, it was held that the circumstances entitled the claimant to "equitable relief," and that the claim was not barred. Ingham v. Dudley, 60 Id., 17.

Plaintiff held a note secured by chattel mortgage against an estate. He filed it as a claim. against the estate in proper time, but neglected to prove it within the twelve months provided by this section of the code. Held that the claim was barred, notwithstanding plaintiff had permitted the mortgaged property to be sold in the belief that there was "plenty of property to pay the debts," and notwithstanding the administrator had agreed to see him paid. The discharge of the property was immaterial, and the promise of the administrator, whether made before or after the claim was barred, was incompetent to bind the estate. Colby v. King, 67 Id., 458.
Where an administrator himself held a claim of the fourth class against the estate, but neg-llected, without excuse, to file until within a few days of the expiration of the year next following the giving of notice of his appointment, and there was not time within such year to give due notice of the filing of the claim, and for the parties adversely interested to prepare for trial, and so the claim was not proved within the year, as required by this section of the code, it was held that the claim was barred by the statute at the time the trial was reached. Clark v. Tallman et al., 68 Id., 372.

Sec. 2422. [Third class: when to pay.]—After the expiration of the time for filing the claims of the third of the above classes, the executors shall proceed to pay off all claims against the estate in the order above stated, as fast as the means of so doing come into their hands.

Sec. 2423. [When to pay fourth class.]—Claims of the fourth class may be paid off at any time after the expiration of six months aforesaid, without any regard to those claims not filed at the time of such payment.

Sec. 2424. No payment can be made to a claimant in any one class until those of a previous class are satisfied.

Sec. 2425. [Claims not due.]—Demands not yet due shall be paid off if the holder will consent to such a rebate of interest as the court thinks reasonable.
Otherwise, the money to which such claimant would be entitled shall be safely invested until his debt becomes due.

Sec. 2426. [Order of payment.]—Within their respective classes, debts shall be paid off in the order in which they are filed, subject to the provisions of the next section.

Sec. 2427. [Dividend.]—If there are not likely to be means sufficient to pay off the whole of the debts of any one class, the court shall, from time to time strike a dividend of the means on hand among all the creditors of that class, and the executors shall pay the several amounts accordingly.

Sec. 2428. [Incumbrances.]—The executors may, with the approbation of the court, use funds belonging to the estate to pay off incumbrances upon lands owned by the deceased, or to purchase lands claimed or contracted for by him prior to his death.

Sec. 2429. [When paid.]—Specific legacies of property may, by the court, be turned over to the rightful claimant at any time upon his giving unquestionable real estate security to restore the property, or refund the amount at which it was appraised if wanted for the payment of debts.

Sec. 2430. [Same.]—Legacies payable in money may be paid on like terms whenever the executors possess the means which can be thus used without prejudice to the interest of any claim already filed.

Sec. 2431. [Same.]—After the expiration of the twelve months allowed for the filing claims as above provided, such legacies may be paid off without requiring the security provided for in the preceding two sections, if the means are still retained to pay off all the claims proved or pending as hereinbefore contemplated.

Sec. 2332. [Order when testator has given no direction.]—If the testator has not prescribed the order in which legacies are to be paid off, and if no security is given as above provided, in order to expedite their time of payment, they may be paid off in the order in which they are given in the will, where the estate is sufficient to pay all.

SPECIFIC LEGACIES—PAYMENT.
SEC. 2433. [When paid ratably.]—When not incompatible with the manifest intention of the testator, the court may direct all payments of money to legatees to be made ratably.

SEC. 2434. Such must be the mode pursued when there is danger that the estate will prove insufficient to pay off all the legacies, unless security be given to refund as above provided.

SEC. 2435. [Executor failing to pay: judgment on bond.]—If the executors fail to make payment of any kind in accordance with the order of the court, any person aggrieved by their failure may, on ten days notice to the executors and their sureties, apply to the court for judgment against them on the bond of the executors. The court shall hear the application in a summary manner, and may render judgment against them on the bond for the amount of money directed to be paid and costs, and issue execution against them therefor. If any of the obligors are not served, the same proceedings in relation to them may be had with like effect as in an action by ordinary proceedings under similar circumstances.

Upon a verbal order of the county judge, the executor was authorized to pay to into his hands any moneys belonging to the estate or legatees thereof; the judge was held liable on his bond for the proper disbursement of the same. Doogan v. Elliott, 43 Iowa, 342.

The county judge was authorized to receive money paid by an executor upon claims filed and allowed against the estate, and was held liable on his official bond for a failure to pay the same to the proper parties. Wright & Co. v. Harris et al., 31 Id., 272.

It was held under the revision, that, while the county court might, in a summary manner enforce compliance with an order directing an administration to make payments in accordance with the prior order of the court, such court did not have exclusive jurisdiction. Wheelhouse v. Bryant et al., 13 Id., 160. But see section 2312 of the code.

Under section 2419 of the revision, which is embodied in section 2435 of the code, with amendments, it was held, that in a proceeding to enforce the payment of a claim by an administrator pursuant to an order of the court, it was not necessary to file a petition alleging a breach of the administrator's bond. Hart v. Jewett, 17 Id., 234.

Where a claim against the estate of a deceased person, barred by the failure to present the same within the time prescribed by law, was afterwards allowed by the administrator and ordered by the court to be paid, it was held, that the sureties on the administrator's bond were liable for his failure to pay the claim out of the funds of the estate in his hands, and that they could not urge in defense that the claim was barred by the statute at the time of its allowance. Weber v. North et al., 51 Id., 375.

SETTLEMENT OF ESTATES.

An Act to facilitate the settlements of estates, and to enable administrators, guardians, trustees and referees to deposit funds and securities subject to approval of court, and making the clerk and treasurer liable therefor in certain cases.

SECTION 1. [Final report of administrator.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: Whenever any administrator, guardian, trustee or referee shall desire to make his final report as such, and who shall then have in his possession or under his control, in his fiduciary capacity, any funds, moneys, or securities due or to become due to any heir, legatee, devisee, or other person, the payment of which might then be made to such heir, legatee, devisee, or other person, if living or present within the county where such appointment as administrator, guardian, trustee or referee was made, such funds, moneys or securities may be deposited with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such appointment was made, and if he shall otherwise discharge all the duties imposed upon him by such appointment, he may take the receipt of the clerk of the district court for such funds, moneys or securities so deposited, which receipt shall specifically set forth from whom said funds, moneys or securities were derived, the amount of the same persons and in the same proportions as though it were real estate. The right to a distributive share rests in the person entitled thereto, whether widow or next of kin, intestate upon the death of the intestate, and not from the time of distribution actually made; and distribution gives no new title but only ascertains the property to which the title attaches. If the death of the distributee takes place before distribution actually made, his share goes to his legal representatives or legatees and that the right of the widow to her distributive

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF INTESTATE PROPERTY.

SEC. 2436. [Distribution of personal property.]—The personal property of the deceased, not necessary for the payment of debts, nor otherwise disposed of as hereinbefore provided, shall be distributed to the same persons and in the same proportions as though it were real estate. The right to a distributive share rests in the person entitled thereto, whether widow or next of kin, intestate upon the death of the intestate, and not from the time of distribution actually made; and distribution gives no new title but only ascertains the property to which the title attaches. If the death of the distributee takes place before distribution actually made, his share goes to his legal representatives or legatees and that the right of the widow to her distributive share is held by a title as high as that of the heir or next of kin, and, like his, is not personal but transmissible. Moore v. Gordon, 24 Id., 153.

The common law rule that a debtor who is made executor of his creditor’s estate is thereby released from the debt, is not in force in this state, and the debt in the executor’s hands is regarded as general assets of the estate for the benefit, not only of creditors, but of legatees and all others interested. Kaster v. Pierson, 27 Id., 90.

In an action by a receiver against the executor to collect a debt due the estate, judgment should be rendered against the defendant in his individual capacity, and not as executor. Id.

Under this section, a mother who is the surviving parent of an intestate takes one-half of his estate absolutely. Hale v. Hunter, 21 Iowa, 181.

The law places no restriction or limitation on the power of the husband to make such disposition of his personal property during his life-time as he may elect, even though the wife is thereby deprived of the distributive share which otherwise would fall to her upon his death. Samson v. Samson, 67 Id., 253. (The restraining power of the wife, however, is sufficient for her protection without other law.—Ed.)

Sec. 2437. [Payment.]—The distributive shares shall be paid over as fast as the executor can properly do so.

Sec. 2438. [In kind.]—The property itself shall be distributed in kind whenever that can be done satisfactorily and equitably. In other cases the court may direct the property to be sold, and the proceeds to be distributed.

Sec. 2439. [Partial distribution: when made.]—When the circumstances of the family require it, the court, in addition to what is hereinbefore set apart for their use, may direct a partial distribution of the money or effects on hand at any time after filing the inventory and appraisement, upon the execution of security like that required of legatees in like cases.

Sec. 2440. [Share of husband or wife.]—One-third in value of all the legal or equitable estates in real property, possessed by the husband at any time during the marriage, which have not been sold on execution or any other judicial sale, and to which the wife has made no relinquishment of her right, shall be set apart as her property in fee-simple, if she survive him. The same share of the real estate of a deceased wife shall be set apart to the surviving husband. All provisions made in this chapter in regard to the widow of a deceased husband, shall be applicable to the surviving husband of a deceased wife. The estates of dower and courtesy are hereby abolished.

At no time during our existence as a territory, was dower changed from what it was under the organic acts of Wisconsin and Iowa, or different from what it was at common law. Pense v. Hixon, 8 Iowa, 402.

Independently of statute, a sale of real property on execution or other judicial sale under a judgment against the husband, would not bar the wife’s right of dower. Id.

A woman who has been fully divorced from her husband, cannot maintain against his heirs an action for one-third of the real estate of which he died seized; such right belongs only to her who is the wife of the deceased at the time of his death. Marvin v. Marvin et al., 59 Id., 699.

It is competent for the legislature, at any time before the husband’s death, to enlarge, abridge or entirely take away the dower right of the wife in the husband’s lands. Lucas v. Sawyer et al., 17 Id., 517.

The general rule is that dower is to be measured by the law in force at the time of the husband’s death. Id. See also Sturdevant v. Norris et al., 30 Id., 65.

The interest of the widow in her deceased husband’s real property is not subject to the payment of his debts, and may be assigned without reference thereto. Mock v. Watson, 41 Id., 241; Kendall v. Kendall, 42 Id., 464.

The wife’s interest attaches upon the concurrence of the seizing of the husband and couverture of the wife, and is not like that of the heirs, made subject to the rights of others or charges against the estate. Id.

The first section of chapter 151, laws of 1662, which changed the estate of dower from one for life to a fee simple, did not abolish but enlarged the dower estate of the widow. Kendall v. Kendall, 42 Id., 464. See also Moore v. Kent, 37 Id., 20.

The surviving husband or wife cannot hold at the same time both dower and homestead in the same property, but must elect by which right he or she will take. Butterfield v. Wicks et al., 44 Id., 310; Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Id., 359; Briggs v. Briggs, 45 Id., 318.

A judgment against a widow after her homestead rights have accrued, is not a lien upon the distributive share to which she is entitled in the lands of her deceased husband set off to her in lieu of her homestead. Briggs v. Briggs, 44 Id., 318.
So a husband entitled to dower in the lands of his wife which she has devised to another, may, after her death, waive and relinquish his right thereto, so that the devisee of the wife shall take a full title, free from and unaffected by the lien of a judgment existing against the husband at the time of his wife's decease. Shields v. Keye, 24 Id., 295.

Where an intestate left neither wife nor children, and both parents were dead, his father having died first, leaving a second wife, it was held that the latter was entitled to one-sixth of the real property left by the decedent, being one-third of the share which would have been inherited by her husband had both parents of the decedent been living at the time of his death. Moore et al. v. Weaver et al., 53 Id., 12.

In Smith v. Zuckmeyer, 53 Id., 14, it is held that the distributive share of a surviving husband or wife in the lands of the decedent, and which is held free from the debts of such decedent, is limited in all cases to one-third; where intestate leaves no children, and the surviving husband or wife becomes entitled to one-half of the estate, under section 2455 of the code, one-third is held as dower interest under section 2449, and the remaining one-sixth as heir at law.

It was also held, in the same case, where the wife dying without issue, seized of a homestead, which the husband elected to occupy during life in lieu of his distributive share, that the share thus relinquished was one-third interest only, and that upon his abandonment of the homestead he was entitled to one-sixth of the estate as heir at law.

The widow of one who purchases real property, assuming the payment of a mortgage thereon as a part of the purchase price, is not entitled to dower in the property as against the mortgagee. Beezley v. Bowers, ld., 172.

Where the wife joined in the execution of the mortgage, a foreclosure and sale thereunder, after the death of her husband operates to bar her right to dower in the land mortgaged. Mead v. Mead, 39 Id., 28; Mooney v. Maas, 22 Id., 380.

Where the husband through negligence or fraud permitted his son by a former marriage to obtain possession of his real property, by acquiring a sheriff's deed thereto, it was held that the proceeds, in excess of the amount of the judgment against which the property was sold, should be subjected to the widow's claim for dower. Busick v. Busick, 44 Id., 295.

The surviving husband or wife cannot enjoy at the same time both dower and homestead in the real estate of the decedent, and must elect which of those rights he or she will take. Stevens et al. v. Stevens, 50 Id., 491.

A conveyance of real property in which the wife joins the husband in the granting clause, and in the covenants, operates under our statutes to pass all the estate of the wife conveyed, including her contingent right of dower. Edwards v. Sullivan et al., 20 Id., 502; Jones v. The City of Des Moines, 43 Id., 209. And such conveyance will have this effect although the deed releasing dower or conveying an estate be neither acknowledged nor recorded. Lake et al. v. Gray et al., 30 Id., 415.

Where the husband dies seized of several distinct parcels of real property, the widow may have her distributive share in the whole assigned in a body. Montgomery v. Horn et al., 46 Id., 285.

The assignment of the widow's dower in the lands of her deceased husband must be governed by the law in force at the time of his death. Parker v. Small, 55 Id., 732; Cunningham v. Wilde et al., 56 Id., 393.

Equity will recognize and enforce a sale and conveyance of the dower interest of the widow before the dower has been assigned or admeasured, and will accordingly recognize and enforce the rights which a purchaser of the dower interest of the husband or wife, as the case may be, acquires at a foreclosure sale under a mortgage in the execution of which both joined. Huston v. Seeley et al., 27 Id., 183.

Where a contract entered into by husband and wife, before marriage, provided that "each is to have the untrammeled and sole control of his or her own property, real and personal, as though no such marriage had taken place," it was held that the grantees of the husband took real estate conveyed by him unencumbered by the wife's claim of dower, and that after his death she could not assert any right of dower in his estate. Jacobs v. Jacobs et al., 42 Id., 690.

But a contract made between husband and wife after marriage, by which each relinquishes the right of dower in the lands of the other, is void under section 2293 of the code. Linton v. Crosby et al., 54 Id., 478.

A wife's inchoate right of dower, or interest in her husband's estate, is not such an interest in land that she can assert it against the creditors of her husband; and the release of such right in a portion her husband's land conveyed to a creditor in satisfaction of a debt is not a valuable consideration for the conveyance to her by her husband of other land. Hayes v. Kline, 64 Id., 318.

Where one makes an assignment under the statute of all his property, including real estate, for the benefit of his creditors, a sale of the real estate by the assignee is such a "judicial sale" as will, under this section of the code, cut off the wife's right of dower therein. Stidger v. Evans, 64 Id., 91. See, also, Sturdevant v. Norris, 39 Id., 65.

A widow may lawfully take her share of one-third of her deceased husband's real estate as provided in this section, usually termed dower, notwithstanding she also takes other real property under his last will and testament, unless there be an express provision in the will to the contrary, or the claim of dower be inconsistent with and will defeat some provision of the will. So where a devise to the widow of certain lots absolutely, and of a life estate in certain lands with remainder to another, held not to cut off her right to take, in addition thereto, her one-third fee-simple of his lands under this section of the code. Daugherty v. Daugherty, 69 Id., 677.

Under sections 2440 and 2442 the interest of the surviving husband or wife of the deceased spouse is not affected by a will, unless consent thereto is entered of record within six months after notice of the provisions of the will. Consent and acceptance are not sufficient without the record entry. Following Baldassier v. Haynes, 57 Id., 683. In this case the executors of the deceased wife sought to have the consent of the husband entered after his death as against his administrator. Houston, Adm'r, v. Lane's Ex'rs, 62 Id., 291.

SEC. 2441. [Homestead.]—The distributive share of the widow shall be so set off as to include the ordinary dwelling house given by law to the homestead, or so much thereof as will be equal to the share allotted to her by the last section, unless she prefers a different arrangement. But no different arrangement shall be permitted where it would have the effect of prejudicing the rights of creditors.

When the widow applies for and has her dower set off so as to include the dwelling-house of the deceased and a portion of the forty acres comprising the homestead, she cannot claim the remainder under a homestead right. Meyer v. Meyer et al., 23 Iowa, 359.

Whether the heirs can compel the widow to accept dower and give up the homestead right, guare. Id.

When the widow elects to take her distributive share under the law, and when such share embraces a part or all of the homestead, she does not surrender the right to have the property other than that set apart to her first exhausted in the payment of a mortgage lien on the whole premises. Wilson v. Hardesty, 48 Id., 515.

The unassigned dower interest of a widow in the real estate of her deceased husband is not subject to attachment in an action at law. Bousch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

A judgment rendered under sections 2440 and 2442 in favor of a married woman after her rights of homestead have accrued, is not a lien upon the distributive share in the estate of her deceased husband which she elects to have set apart to her in lieu of the homestead. Briggs v. Briggs et al., 45 Id., 318. See also, Nye v. Walthier, 46 Id., 306; Knox v. Hulan, 48 Id., 253.

No person but the widow herself has the power to waive the provision of this section, that her distributive share shall be so set off as to include the homestead, not even her guardian where she is insane. Batefield, Guardian, v. Davis et al., 64 Id., 437.

SEC. 2442. [Widow of alien.]—The widow of a non-resident alien shall be entitled to the same rights in the property of her husband as a resident, except as against a purchaser from the decedent.

SEC. 2443. [How set of.]—The share thus allotted to her may be set off by the mutual consent of all parties interested, when such consent can be obtained, or it may be set off by referees appointed by the court.

This section contemplates the appointment of more than one referee, and where more than one is appointed, and not only acts in the appraisement of the property, the assignment of dower may be set aside upon a stronger showing of prejudice than if the appraisement had been made by all. Jones v. Jones, 47 Iowa, 537.

SEC. 2444. [Application: when made.]—The application for such a measurement by referees may be made at any time after twenty days and within ten years after the death of the husband, and must specify the particular tracts of land in which she claims her share, and ask the appointment of referees.

It was held that this section had no application to a proceeding in equity to admeasure dower, when the defendant had not been in the adverse possession of the land more than ten years prior to the commencement of the suit. Starr v. Starr, 21 Iowa, 254.

It was also held in the same case that courts of equity had concurrent jurisdiction with the probate court in the assignment of dower, and that the limitation in section 2438 of the revision applied only to proceedings in the county court. Id.

A right of dower, where the dower has not been assigned, cannot be pleaded as a defense in an action to recover possession of lands, as against the holder of the fee thereto. Cavender v. Smith, 8 Id., 360.

The limitation prescribed in this section respecting applications for the admeasurement of dower, to ten years from the death of the husband, was held to be applicable only to proceedings in the county court; and that the general statute of limitations applies and begins to run against the dowress or her assignee, and in favor of the heir or his assignee, when and only when he either denies her right or does some act equivalent to such denial. Sully v. Nebergall et al., 30 Id., 339, (1870.) See Phares v. Walters, 6 Id., 106.
It was also held that in addition to the special proceeding in the county court provided by the statute, and a proceeding in equity, a widow could recover her dower by an action under the statute providing for action for the recovery of real property. Rice v. Nelson, 27 Id., 148, (1869)

SEC. 2445. [Notice of appointment.]—The court shall fix the time for making the appointment, and direct such notice thereof to be given to all parties interested therein as it deems proper.

If it appears that there was a notice, though it be defective, or the service thereof be imperfect, neither in strict compliance with the statute, and the court has determined in favor of the sufficiency of the notice and service, though such decision were erroneous, the judgment will not be held void in a collateral proceeding. Shawhan v. Loffer, 24 Iowa, 217.

SEC. 2446. [Duty of referees.]—The referees may employ a surveyor, if necessary; and they must cause the widow's share to be marked off by metes and bounds, and make a full report of their proceeding to the court as early as practicable.

SEC. 2447. [Report: Discharge of.]—The court may require a report by such a time as it deems reasonable; and, if the referees fail to obey this or any other order of the court, it may discharge them and appoint others in their stead, and may impose on them the payment of all costs previously made, unless they show good cause to the contrary.

SEC. 2448. [Confirmation: new reference.]—The court may confirm the report of the referees, or it may set it aside and refer the matter to the same or other referees, at its discretion.

SEC. 2449. [Same.]—Such confirmation, after the lapse of thirty days, unless appealed from according to law, shall be binding and conclusive as to the admeasurement, and the widow may bring suit to obtain possession of the land thus set apart for her.

SEC. 2450. [Right contested.]—Nothing in the last section shall prevent any person interested from controverting the right of the widow to the share thus admeasured.

SEC. 2451. [Sale ordered: division of proceeds.]—If the referees report that the property, or any part thereof, cannot be readily divided as above directed, the court may order the whole to be sold and one-third of the proceeds to be paid over to the widow; but such sale shall not take place, if any one interested to prevent it will give security to the satisfaction of the court, conditioned to pay the widow the appraised value of her share, with ten per cent interest on the same, within such reasonable time as the court may fix, not exceeding one year from the date of such security. If no such arrangement is made, the widow may keep the property by giving like security to pay off the claims of all others interested upon the like terms. With any money thus paid to her the widow may procure a homestead, which shall be exempt from liability for all debts from which the former homestead would have been exempt in her hands. And such sale shall not be ordered so long as those in interest shall express a contrary desire, and shall agree upon some mode of sharing and dividing the rents, profits, or use of such property, or shall consent that the court divide it by rent, profits or use.

SEC. 2452. [Share cannot be affected by will.]—The widow's share cannot be affected by any will of her husband, unless she consents thereto within six months after notice to her of the provisions of the will by the other parties interested in the estate, which consent shall be entered on the proper records of the circuit court.

Where the wife executed a written contract by which she agreed to accept a certain sum of money in lieu of dower, and the husband provided in his will for the payment of this sum, which, after his death, the wife claimed and received from the administrator, giving him a receipt therefor, it was held, that her conduct amounted to an election to take under the will and that she was estopped to claim dower in the estate. Stoddard v. Gatescopt, 41 Iowa, 330.

It is a settled rule in the construction of wills, that where there is no express declaration in the will barring the dower of the wife, the intention that it shall be barred must be deduced by clear and manifest implication, founded on the fact that the claim of dower would be inconsistent with the will, or so repugnant to some of its dispositions as to defeat them. Metter v. Wiley et al., 34 Id., 215; Corriel v. Ham, 2 Id., 552; Sully v. Nebergall, 30 Id., 533; Clark v. Griffith, 4 Id., 405. The widow's election to take under the will, does not therefore defeat her right to dower unless the provisions for her in the will are either expressed to be in lieu of dower, or are thus inconsistent with her claim therefor. Id.

The acceptance by the widow of a bequest of a life estate in her husband's lands does not bar her right of dower. Id.

See also, to the same effect, McGuire v. Brown, 41 Id., 650; and Clark v. Griffith, 4 Id., 405.

Where a widow elected to accept the bequests in her husband's will giving her one-third of his real estate in lieu of dower; in consideration that all of the heirs should agree to give her one-third of the personally in addition, and only part of the heirs consented to the agreement, it was held that the widow was not estopped from afterward relinquishing all rights conferred by the will and claiming her rights of dower. Richart v. Richart, 30 Id., 465.

The widow's share of her husband's property as contemplated in this section includes both real and personal property, and a husband cannot by will, made either before or after marriage, deprive his widow of her share in his personal estate. Ward v. Wolf et al., 56 Id., 485.

The acceptance by a widow of the provisions of a will in lieu of dower, in order to be binding on her under this section, must be made within six months after she received notice of its provisions, and such acceptance must be entered in the proper records of the circuit court and be evidenced by such record, and no other evidence thereof is sufficient or competent. A written notice of acceptance not entered of record is insufficient, and the widow is not estopped thereby from claiming her distributive share in her husband's estate. Baldozier v. Hoynes et al., 57 Id., 833.

This section does not apply to personal property. In the matter of the estate of Jacob Davis deceased, 36 Id., 24.

Section 2435 of the revision required action on the part of the widow, in order to preserve her right unaffected by the will. She was required to object and relinquish all rights under the will. Kane v. Kyne, 43 Id., 21, 24.

Where a father adopted two children of his daughter, and afterward died intestate, it was held that the adopted children would inherit from him as his own children, and would also inherit the share of their deceased mother. Wagner v. Varner, 50 Id., 532.

Where a will was in the following form: "I give and bequeath to my beloved wife all my estate, consisting of 170 acres of land, together with all my personal property (after paying my debts) during her life, or so long as she remains my wife. And if she should be disposed to sell the estate and improve other lands she is at liberty to do so; and at her death or marriage the estate is to be equally divided between my heirs"; it was held that the widow's election to take under the will did not defeat her right of dower. Sully v. Nebergall et al., 30 Id., 339.

So a devise by the testator to his wife of one-third of all his real estate with the residue to his children, does not bar the wife's right of dower. Watrous v. Winn et al., 31 Id., 72.

And so where the will contained the following provision for the widow: "After the payment of my debts, I give and bequeath to my wife all my property, real and personal, except what is heretofore devised to be held by her during her natural life for her sole use and benefit; but at her death I direct that the same be divided among all my children or their heirs," her right of dower held not barred. Metter v. Wiley et al., 34 Id., 214.

Where the widow filed a petition asking that the provisions of her husband's will be enforced in her favor, she thereby elects to take thereunder and cannot afterward revoke such election and claim under the statute. Ashlock v. Ashlock, 52 Id., 319.

The rule is recognized in this state that aside from statute a will to be in lieu of dower must expressly so state, or it must appear by necessary implication that such was the testator's intent; that the claim of the widow would be repugnant to and defeat some part of the testator's disposition. Cain v. Cain et al., 23 Id., 31.

A husband entitled to dower in the real estate of his wife which she has devised to another may, after her death, waive and relinquish his right thereto, so that the devisee will take the full title free from and unaffected by the lien of a judgment standing against the husband at the time of the death of the wife. Shields v. Keys, 24 Id., 299.

Unless a devise to the wife, to be ascertained either from express words or by necessary implication, is clearly intended to be in lieu of dower, she will not be compelled to elect which she will take, but will be entitled to both. But in a case where the testator in the second paragraph of his will, gave certain described property to his wife, and in the third, fourth and fifth paragraphs gave certain legacies, and in the sixth paragraph disposed of all the residue of his property without description, and then in the seventh paragraph provided for the sale of all the remainder of his real estate for the purpose of carrying out the devises named in the sixth paragraph, held, that the manifest intent of the testator would be defeated by allowing the widow to take the property devised to her by the will, and also one-third of the real estate not devised to her. Snyder v. Miller, Ex'r, et al., 67 Id., 201.
Where a testator bequeaths all of his property absolutely to his widow, it is not necessary, in order that she may take under the will, that she file her election so to take, instead of taking her one-third of the estate under the statute. This section does not apply to such a case.

Bulfer v. Willigrod, 71 Id., 620.

DESCENT.

SEC. 2453. [To decedents' children.]—Subject to the rights and charges hereinbefore contemplated, the remaining estate of which the decedent died seized, shall, in the absence of other arrangement by will, descend in equal shares to his children.

SEC. 2454 [Grandchildren.]—If any one of his children be dead, the heirs of such child shall inherit his share in accordance with the rules herein prescribed in the same manner as though such child had outlived his parents.

This section held not to authorize the widow of a deceased husband to inherit from their child who died before the death of the husband. McMenomy v. McMenomy, 22 Iowa, 145; Journell v. Leighton, 49 Id., 601.

While the word "heir" is not technically limited to children, yet it was not intended by its use to embrace the widowed mother of a child that died before its father. Id.

Where a child was adopted in a foreign state under an act of the legislature which provided that she should inherit from the adopting parents, "as if she were their legitimate child," it was held that her status as an heir was fixed by the act, and that it did not constitute her an heir of her adoptive parents to the extent of enabling her to inherit through them. Consequently she was not an heir of her adoptive father in the sense contemplated by this section and did not inherit his share of his father's estate, who survived him and died intestate, leaving property in Iowa. Adams and Day J.J., Dissenting. Estate of Sunderland, 60 Id., 732.

SEC. 2455. [Wife and parents.]—If the intestate leave no issue, the one-half of his estate shall go to his parents and the other half to his wife; if he leaves no wife, the portion which would have gone to her shall go to his parents.

Upon the death of the wife without issue, the husband is under this section entitled to but the one-half of her entire estate for his dower as heir at law. Burns et al. v. Keas et al., 21 Iowa, 257. See, also, Gill v. Sullivan, 53 Id., 341, 344.

Under this section the widow or surviving husband is entitled to one-half of the estate of the deceased only when he or she dies without issue and intestate. Clark v. Griffith, 4 Id., 405.

If the husband or wife die without issue, and the estate or a part of it is disposed of by will, the widow or widower is not entitled to one-half of the estate. Id.

A testator may by will deprive his widow of all interest in his estate, except her dower as allowed by law. Id.

SEC. 2456. [Surviving parent.]—If one of his parents be dead, the portion which would have gone to such deceased parent shall go to the surviving parent, including the portion which would have belonged to the intestate's wife, had she been living.

Where a child survived his father, but died without issue before the death of his grandfather, from whom the property in controversy was derived, it was held that the child never had any vested estate in the property, and that his mother surviving would take nothing by descent. Parents succeed only to the estate which the child has at the time of his death. Leonard v. Lining, 57 Iowa, 648.

SEC. 2457. [Heirs of parents.]—If both parents be dead, the portion which would have fallen to their share by the above rules, shall be disposed of in the same manner as if they had outlived the intestate and died in the possession and ownership of the portion thus falling to their share, and so on through ascending ancestors and their issue.

Where a testator, dying without issue, devised all of his real estate to his widow during her natural life, the provisions of section 2455 do not apply, so that she may claim one-half of his estate, that section having application only to cases where the owner dies intestate as well as without issue. Dobson v. Dobson et al., 30 Iowa, 410.

The heirs of the father and mother of a deceased intestate who leaves neither wife nor issue, under section 2457, inherit the same as they would have done if both parents had survived the intestate, and each died in possession of one-half of the estate. Bassil v. Loffer, 38 Id., 431.

Where the parents of a testator are dead at the time of his decease, their share in his estate, where the will directed that, in the event of the marriage of the widow to whom he bequeathed the estate during widowhood, the estate should "take the course designated by existing laws," will be distributed in the same manner as if their death had occurred after they came into posses­sion of the estate. McGeir v. Brown, 41 Id., 630.

Section 2454 does not authorize the widow of a deceased husband to inherit from their child who died before the death of the husband. While the term "heir" is not technically limited to chil­dren, yet it was not intended by its use to embrace the widowed mother of a child that died before the death of the father. McMenomy v. McMenomy, 22 Id., 148.

Under the revision, children of the half blood inherited equally with children of the whole blood, when the inheritance was derived through the common parent, and even if the code had changed this rule (which is not decided) the party so claiming must show that the descent was cast after the code took effect. Neeley v. Wise et al., 44 Id., 544.

Where an intestate left neither wife nor children, and both of his parents were dead, his father having died last leaving a second wife, it was held that the latter was entitled to one-sixth of the real estate of the intestate, being one-third of the share which would have been inherited by her husband had both parents of the intestate been living at the time of his death. Moore et al. v. Weaver et al., 53 Id., 12.

Where a person died intestate, leaving neither wife nor issue, and both parents being dead, it was held that his property never constituted any portion of his father's estate; that the persons inheriting took directly from the intestate and that the heirs of a deceased sister, cut off by the father's will, inherited the estate notwithstanding the will. Lash v. Lash, 57 Id., 88.

SEC. 2458. [Wife and her heirs.]—If heirs are not thus found, the portion uninherited shall go to the wife of the intestate, or to her heirs if dead, according to like rules; and if he has had more than one wife who either died or survived in lawful wedlock, it shall be equally divided between the one who is living and the heirs of those who are dead, or between the heirs of all, if all are dead, such heirs taking by right of representation.

SEC. 2459. [Advancement.]—Property given by an intestate by way of advancement to an heir, shall be considered part of the estate so far as regards the division and distribution thereof, and shall be taken by such heir towards his share of the estate at what it would now be worth if in the condition in which it was so given to him. But, if such advancement exceeds the amount to which he would be entitled, he cannot be required to refund any portion thereof.

The provisions of this section that an advancement "shall be considered part of the estate so far as regards the distribution thereof, and shall be taken by such heirs towards his share of the estate," at its value at the time of distribution to him, etc., applies only to the heirs and not as to the widow who had renounced under the will and elected to take her distributive share. In re Will of Miller, Dec., 34 N. W. R., 769.

ESCHEAT.

SEC. 2460. [When no heirs.]—If there be property remaining uninherited, it shall escheat to the state.

During the pendency of proceedings instituted by the attorney-general to declare lands escheated to the state, the legislature may, by statute, order an abatement of the proceedings and release all interest in the property in controversy to the parties claiming adversely. The State ex rel v. Tilghman et al., 14 Iowa, 474.

SEC. 2461. [Duty of clerk in case of.]—When the judge or clerk has reason to believe that any property within the county should, by law, escheat to the state, he must forthwith inform the auditor of state thereof, and must also appoint some suitable person administrator to take charge of the property, unless an executor or administrator has already been appointed for that purpose in some county in the state.

SEC. 2462. [Notice.]—The administrator must give such notice of the death of the deceased, and the amount and kind of property left by him within this state, as, in the opinion of the clerk or judge appointing him, will be best calculated to notify those interested or supposed to be interested in the property.

SEC. 2463. [Sale: proceeds paid to school fund.]—If, within six months from the giving of such notice, no claimant thereof appears, such property may be sold and the money appropriated by the administrator for the benefit of the school fund, under the direction of the auditor of state; and such sale shall be conducted and the proceeds thereof treated like those of other school lands.

SEC. 2464. [Payment to persons entitled.]—The money or any portion thereof, shall be paid over to any one who shows himself entitled thereto within ten years after the sale of the property, or the appropriation of the money as an escheat, but not afterwards.

ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN.

SEC. 2465. [Inherit from mother.]—Illegitimate children inherit from the mother, and the mother from the children. An illegitimate child inherits from the mother, and the fact that she is dead before the descent is cast will not prevent the child from inheriting her share of the estate. McGuire v. Brown, 41 Iowa, 650.

Under sections 2465, 2466, 2467, an illegitimate child, which has been notoriously recognized by her father, inherits from the father, share and share alike with his legitimate children; and the birth and recognition of an illegitimate child, after the execution of a will by the father, has the effect to revoke the will, the same as the birth of a legitimate child. Milburn v. Milburn, 60 Id., 411.

SEC. 2466. [From father.]—They shall inherit from the father whenever the paternity is proven during the life of the father, or they have been recognized by him as his children, but such recognition must have been general and notorious or else in writing.

The recognition in writing of an illegitimate child by the father is not required to be in the shape of a formal avowal, executed for the purpose of making known and perpetuating the fact, but may be sufficiently established from letters and correspondence; and when the recognition is thus established, the illegitimate will inherit from his father, the same as a legitimate. Crane v. Crane et al., 81 Iowa, 296.

The rendition of a verdict does not prove the finding of facts as were not necessary to stain the verdict. So, it was held that a verdict, and judgment thereon, in favor of plaintiff's mother and against the defendant's intestate, for seduction, which was alleged to have resulted in the birth of plaintiff, did not conclusively prove that plaintiff was the child and heir of the defendant's intestate. Koon v. Mallet Adm'r., et al., 68 Id., 206.

In Blair et al., by Guardian, v. Howell et al., Id., 619., the supreme court, upon consideration of the evidence, held it sufficient to establish such general and notorious recognition by a father of his illegitimate children as to entitle them to inherit from him under this section of the code.

Sec. 2467. [Same.]—Under such circumstances, if the recognition of relationship has been mutual, the father may inherit from his illegitimate children.

SEC. 2468. [Rule in such cases.]—But in this inheriting from an illegitimate child, the rule above established must be inverted so that the mother and her heirs take preference of the father and his heirs, the father having the same right of inheritance in regard to an illegitimate child that the mother has in regard to one that is legitimate.

CHAPTER 5.

OF ACCOUNTING AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

SECTION 2469. [Term of.]—On the expiration of six and within seven months from the first publication of notice of his appointment, and soon if required by the court, the executor shall render his account to the court, showing the then condition of the estate, its debts and effects, and the amount of money received, and if any received what disposition has been made of it by him. And, from time to time as may be convenient, and as may be required by the court, he shall render further accounts until the estate is finally settled. And such final settlement shall be made within three years, unless otherwise ordered by the court. Such accounts shall embrace all matters directed by the court and pertinent to the subject.

In an action for a breach of an administrator’s bond for not accounting as required by the statute, is not a complete defense that the administrator made a report and statement of account to the court since the commencement of the action. Nor does, an accounting constitute a defense to an action for a breach of the bond by converting the assets of the estate to his own use. Clark v. Cress, 20 Id., 50.

In the absence of fraud, mistake, or other grounds of equitable relief, a settlement made by the probate court with an administrator cannot be set aside, though made in the absence of those interested, after the expiration of three months. Patterson v. Bell, 25 Id., 149. [So held under the revision.]

Sec. 2470. [Examination of executor.]-The executor may be examined under oath by the court, upon any matters relating to his accounts when the vouchers and proofs in relation thereto are not sufficiently full and satisfactory.

Sec. 2471. [Appraised price.]-He must account for all the property inventoried at the price at which it was appraised, as well as for other property which has come into his hands belonging to the estate.

Sec. 2472. [Presumption.]-The appraisement is only presumptive evidence of the value of an article, and shall be so regarded, either for or against the executor.

Sec. 2473. [Profit and loss.]-He shall derive no profit from the sale of property for a higher price than the appraisement, nor is he chargeable with any loss occurring without any fault of his own.

Sec. 2474. [Mistakes corrected.]-Mistakes in settlement may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge of the executor, and even after that time on showing such grounds for relief in equity as will justify the interference of the court.

Settlements made by the probate court with an administrator have the force and effect of adjudications, and are conclusive unless impeached for fraud or mistake. Cowins v. Tool et al., 36 Iowa, 82; Patterson v. Bell, 25 Id., 149.

Mistakes in prior settlements may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge of the administrator; but this must be done by proper proceedings in the probate court. Cowins v. Tool, supra.

Where an administrator, as a pretended creditor of the estate, procures an allowance of his claim by fraud, the court, in a proper proceeding, may set aside the allowance, but it cannot be assailed by an exception to his report. Ashton v. Mills, 49 Id., 564.

The settlement of an estate and the discharge of the administrator is an adjudication, binding upon all the parties in interest, that the estate has been properly administered upon; and such adjudication can only be set aside for fraud or mistake, within the time fixed by the statute. Daniels v. Smith, 58 Id., 577.

Where an administrator, upon notice published in a newspaper of the county, but without actual notice to the plaintiffs, (heirs) who resided in the county, obtained an order of the court approving his final report and discharging him, held that after the lapse of two years, upon a showing that by mistake or fraud he had failed to report as to a certain fund and to charge himself therewith, the order was properly set aside, under this section, in a suit in equity by the heirs against him and his sureties, and judgment rendered against them in favor of each of them for his distribution share of the fund not accounted for. The provisions of section 2475 of the code requiring proceedings to open such accounts to be begun within three months, does not apply to cases of mistake or fraud. Arnold et al. v. Spates et al., 65 Id., 570.

Sec. 2475. [Settlement contested.]-Any person interested in the estate may attend upon the settlement of accounts by the executor and contest the same. Accounts settled in the absence or any person adversely interested and without notice to him, may be opened within three months on his application.

Where a petition is filed to open up the settlement of an estate under section 2474, which does not charge fraud, or set forth any fraudulent acts, it was held barred after three months. Koes v. Mauer, 57 Id., 20.

Where a final order discharging administrators is based upon the receipts of distributees for the amounts due them, respectively, on final accounting, and no application to set aside such order is made within three months, it becomes conclusive as to the distributees, although they are plaintiffs.
in an action pending at the time of settlement against the administrators and their securities. Diehl v. Miller et al., 56 Id. 313.

SEC. 2476. [Discharge.]—Upon final settlement by the executor, an order shall be entered discharging him from further duties and responsibilities.

SEC. 2477. [Judgment: execution against executor.]—If judgment be rendered against an executor for costs in any suit prosecuted or defended by him in that capacity, execution shall be awarded against him as for his own debt, if it appear to the court that such suit was prosecuted or defended without reasonable cause. In other cases the execution shall be awarded against him in his representative capacity only.

SEC. 2478. [Receipts by one executor.]—One of several executors may receive and receipt for money. Such receipt shall be given by him in his own name only, and he must individually account for all the money thus received and receipted for by himself; and this shall not charge his coexecutor, except so far as it can be shown to have come into his hands.

SEC. 2479. [Notice affecting executor: how served.]—Whenever the court shall make an order affecting an executor, and such order cannot be personally served upon him, service of such order may be made by publication of a notice, stating the substance thereof, in some weekly newspaper published in the county where such order was made, for four weeks in succession.

SEC. 2480. [Publication of.]—When there is no newspaper published in such county, then said notice may be published in the newspaper published nearest to the county seat of the county in which said order is made, which publication may be proved as required in like cases in the court.

SEC. 2481. [Effect of.]—Service made as above shall be as effectual as if personally served, and suits and proceedings may be prosecuted or commenced, had and maintained, in all respects as if such notice or notices, order or orders, had been personally served.

SEC. 2482. [Failure to account: penalty.]—Any executor failing to account, upon being required to do so by the court, or as he is required to do by law, shall, for every such failure, forfeit one hundred dollars, to be recovered in a civil action on his bond, for the benefit of the estate, by any one interested therein.

SEC. 2483. [Executor of executor.]—An executor has no authority to act in the matter wherein his principal was merely executor or trustee.

SEC. 2484. [Executors in their own wrong.]—Any person who, without being regularly appointed an executor, intermeddles with the property of a deceased person is responsible to the regular executor when appointed, for the value of all property taken or received by him, and for all damages caused by his acts to the estate of the deceased, but his liability extends no further.

An administrator _de son tort_ is liable in an action by a creditor of the deceased to the extent of the value of the property of the deceased which has come into his hands. Elder v. Littler, 15 Iowa, 65.

Where the widow and heirs have appropriated all the assets of the estate prior to the appointment of an administrator, they are liable as administrators _de son tort_ to the extent of the property appropriated. McKison v. Shackley, 41 Id., 451.

It is no defense in an action against them by a creditor, that an administrator has been appointed. Id.

SEC. 2485. [Action against heirs or devisees.]—In an action against the heirs and devisees, where the judgment is to be against them in proportion to the respective amounts received by them from the estate, costs awarded against them shall be in like proportion.

SEC. 2486. [Tender.]—In such cases, any one may tender the amount due from him to the plaintiff, which shall have the same effect, as far as he is concerned, as though he was the sole defendant.

SEC. 2487. [Specific performance.]—When a person under such obligation to convey real estate as might have been enforced against him if living, dies before making such conveyance, the court may enforce a specific performance of such contract by the executor, and require him to execute the conveyance accordingly.

In an action to enforce the specific performance of a contract to convey real property executed by the decedent, the administrator is a proper, though not a necessary party. The action may be against the heirs alone. Judd v. Mosely, 30 Iowa, 423.

SEC. 2488. [Who made parties.]—It is not necessary to make any other than the executor party defendant to such proceedings in the first instance; but the court, in its discretion, may direct other persons interested to be made parties, and may cause them to be notified thereof in such manner as the court may deem expedient. Heirs and devisees may, on their own motion, at any time be made defendants.

SEC. 2489. [Considered as one person.]—In an action against several executors they are considered one person, and judgment may be taken and execution issued against all as such, although only part were duly served with notice.

RECORDS OF CLERK.

SEC. 2490. [In probate matters.]—The clerk shall keep a record, additional to the other records required by law, showing, as follows:

1. The name of every deceased person whose estate is administered, and who dies seized of any real estate situate within the county, and the date of his death;
2. The names of all the heirs at law, and widow of such deceased person, and the ages and places of residence of such heirs so far as the same can be ascertained;
3. A note of every sale of real estate made under the order of the court, with a reference to the volume and page of the court record, where a complete record thereof may be found.

SEC. 2491. [Executor to furnish list of heirs.]—In order to ascertain the facts required to be stated in such record, the clerk may require each executor or administrator to furnish him with a list of the names, ages, and place of residence of the heirs, which list shall be sworn to by the executor; but if such executor shall certify under oath that there are no heirs, or that, after using due diligence, he has been unable to ascertain their names, ages, or residence, the clerk shall make an entry in the record accordingly. If deemed necessary, the clerk may examine the county records to ascertain whether any deceased person died seized of any real estate, and he shall be allowed such fee therefor as may be fixed by the court.

SEC. 2492. [Complete record.]—In every case where a sale of real estate is made under the order of the court, either by an executor, administrator, or guardian, the clerk shall enter a complete record thereof in the court record, including complete records of all papers filed and all orders made, and of the deed and the approval thereof.

SEC. 2493. [Bond record.]—He shall also keep a book known as “records of bonds,” in which he shall record all bonds given by executors, administrators and guardians.

COMPENSATION OF EXECUTORS.

SEC. 2494. [Amount of.]—Executors shall be allowed the following commission upon the personal estate sold or distributed by them, and for the proceeds of real estate sold for the payment of debts, which shall be received in full compensation for all their ordinary services:

For the first one thousand dollars the rate of five per cent;
For the overplus between one and five thousand dollars, at the rate of two and a-half per cent;
For the amount over five thousand dollars, at the rate of one per cent. The probate court may, under the statute, for extraordinary services, allow an administrator a compensation additional to that provided for ordinary services. And where it appears that more than ordinary compensation has been allowed, it will be presumed that it was for extraordinary services, in the absence of a showing to the contrary. Patterson v. Bell, 25 Iowa, 149.

Sec. 2495. Such further allowances as are just and reasonable may be made by the court for actual, necessary, and extraordinary expenses or services.

REMOVAL OF EXECUTORS.

Sec. 2496. [For what causes.]—After letters testamentary, or of administration, with the will annexed, or of administration, shall have been granted to any person, he may be removed whenever the interests of the estate require it, for any of the following causes:

1. When by reason of age, continued sickness, imbecility of mind, change of residence, or any other cause, he becomes incapable of discharging his trust in such manner as the interest and proper management of the estate may require;

2. When any such executor or administrator shall fail or refuse to return inventories or accounts of sales of the estate, or to make reports of the condition of the estate, or fail or refuse to comply with any order of the court; or fail to seasonably apply to the court for authority to sell personal or real estate for the payment of debts or claims against the estate, when it shall be necessary for him so to do; or fail or refuse to discharge any of the duties prescribed for him by law, or shall be guilty of any waste or mal-administration of the estate;

3. Where it shall be shown to the court by his sureties that such executor or administrator has become, or is likely to become insolvent, in consequence of which such sureties have or will suffer loss.

Sec. 2497. [Petition for.]—Petition for the removal of executors or administrators, or for the purpose of requiring additional sureties, shall be filed in the court from which letters were issued by any person interested in the estate.

No one is authorized to maintain an action for the removal of an administrator unless he be “interested in the estate” as contemplated in this section of the code, unless he have a right to benefits from the estate, which prompts him to act for preserving its assets, increasing their value, and directing their disposition and appropriation; and one against whom an administrator has brought an action for the recovery of money cannot sue for such removal on the ground that he would not be safe in paying a judgment to a de facto administrator. The C., B. & Q. Ry Co. v. Gould, 64 Iowa, 343.

Sec. 2498. [Verification.]—Such petition must be verified by oath, and shall specify the grounds of complaint.

Sec. 2499. [Citation.]—Upon the filing of such petition, a citation shall issue to the person complained of, requiring him to appear and answer the complaint.

Sec. 2500. [How served.]—If the executor or administrator is not a resident of the county where such complaint is made, notice thereof shall be served upon him in such manner as the court or clerk may direct.

Sec. 2501. [Property delivered to person entitled to.]—Upon the removal of any executor or administrator, he shall be required by order of the court to deliver to the person who may be entitled thereto, all the property in his hands or under his control belonging to the estate.

Sec. 2502. [Penalty for failure.]—If any executor fail or refuse to comply with any proper order of the court, he may be committed to the jail of the county until compliance is yielded.

Sec. 2503. [Removal of: acts void.]—Whenever the letters of any executor or administrator are revoked or superseded, all his authority shall cease, and all his acts thereafter as such shall be absolutely void.
ESTATES OF DECEASED PATENTEES.

An Act to vest title in the heirs, devisees, or assignees of deceased patentees. [Additional to code, title 16, "Of the estates of decedents."]

SECTION 1. [If patentee dies pending the issuance of patent to lands.]

—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That where patents have been, or may be issued in pursuance of any law of the state of Iowa, to a person who had died, or who hereafter dies before the date of such patent, the title to the land designated therein shall inure to, and become vested in, the heirs, devisees or assignees of such deceased patentee, as if the patent had issued to the deceased person during life.

Approved March 12, 1878.

(CHAPTER 103, LAWS OF 1886.)

AUTHORIZING ADMINISTRATORS, EXECUTORS AND GUARDIANS TO RELEASE JUDGMENTS, ETC.

An Act to authorize administrators, executors and guardians appointed in other states or countries to release judgments, mortgages and deeds of trust.

SECTION 1. [Certificate and attestation of]

—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

That a copy of the original record of the appointment and qualification of any administrator, executor or guardian in any other state or country including the will of decedent if any, as probated, together with the certificate of the custodian of such record that such appointment is then in full force, which copy of the record shall be duly attested and authenticated as is now provided by law in the case of judicial records of another state, may be recorded in the proper probate record of any county in this state, such record or a duly certified copy thereof shall be presumptive evidence in all cases of such appointment and qualification.

SEC. 2. [Authorized to release of record.]

—Any administrator, executor or guardian, a copy of whose record of appointment or qualification is recorded as provided by section 1 of this act is hereby authorized to release and fully discharge of record in many anner and by any instrument authorized by law, to the same extent as any administrator, executor or guardian appointed under the laws of this state could do, any judgment rendered by the supreme court or by any court of the county where such copy of the original record is recorded, or any mortgage or deed of trust given as a mortgage of property within such county, belonging to the estate or to the minor or other person represented by him, and may also in the same manner and to the same extent release and fully discharge any property in this state from the lien of such judgment, mortgage or deed of trust, provided, that the duly attested copies of the records herein provided for also show that the judgment, mortgage or deed of trust is listed in the assets of the estate in the court from which the said records come; and provided further, that appended to and as a part of such release shall be the certificate of the judge or clerk of the foreign court, duly attested that said executor, administrator or guardian is, at the date of such release or instrument, still acting as such executor, administrator or guardian under authority of said court; and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall authorize any administrator, executor or guardian of another state or country to release or discharge any judgment, mortgage or deed of trust while any administrator, executor or guardian of the estate to which such judgment, mortgage or deed of trust belongs is authorized to act by virtue of appointment and qualification under the laws of this state."

SEC. 3. All releases and discharges of record of any judgment, mortgage or deed of trust heretofore made by administrators, executors or guardians in the manner and to the extent authorized by this act where the copy of the original records required by this act has been or shall hereafter be recorded as required by this act, are hereby declared to be legal and valid from the date of such release or discharge.

Approved April 8, 1886.

(C apital 105, Laws of 1884.)

CIVIL RIGHTS.

An Act to protect all citizens in their civil and legal rights.

SECTION 1. [All citizens entitled to same civil rights.].—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That all persons within this state shall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of inns, public conveyances, barber shops, theaters and other places of amusements; subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law, and applicable alike to every person.

SEC. 2. [Violations of section 1, a misdemeanor.].—That any person who shall violate the foregoing section by denying to any person, except for reasons by law applicable to all persons, the full enjoyment of any of the accommodations, advantages, facilities or privileges enumerated in said section, or by aiding or inciting such denial, shall, for each offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Approved March 29, 1884.

(Capital 132, Laws of 1884.)

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

An Act to create a bureau of labor statistics, and to provide for the appointment of a commissioner of said bureau, and to define his duties and term of office.

SECTION 1. [Appointment of commissioner provided for.].—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That there is hereby created a bureau of labor statistics, to be under the control and management of a commissioner thereof, to be appointed as hereinafter provided by this act.

SEC. 2. [Governor to appoint within 30 days.].—That the governor shall, within thirty days after the taking effect of this act, and biennially thereafter, with the advice and consent of the executive council, appoint a commissioner of labor statistics. The term of office of said commissioner to commence on the first day of April in each even-numbered year and continue for two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified; and said commissioner before entering upon the discharge of his duties shall take an oath or affirmation to discharge the same faithfully and to the best of his ability; and shall give bond in the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000) with sureties to the approval of the governor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his official duties.

SEC. 3. [Salary $1,500 per annum.].—Said commissioner shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, payable monthly, and necessary postage, stationery and office expenses, the said salary and expenses to be paid by the state as the salaries and expenses of other state officers are provided for. He shall have and keep an office in the capitol at Des Moines in which shall be kept all records, documents, papers, correspondence and property pertaining to his office, and shall deliver them to his successor in office.

SEC. 4. [May be removed by governor.—Said commissioner may be removed from his office by the governor for neglect of duty or malfeasance in office; and any vacancy occurring at any time may be filled by the governor by and with the consent of the executive council.

SEC. 5. [Duties of commissioner: statistics to be gathered.—The duties of said commissioner shall be to collect, assort, systematize and present in biennial reports to the governor on or before the 15th day of August preceding each regular meeting of the general assembly, statistical details relating to all departments of labor in the state, especially in its relations to the commercial, social, educational and sanitary conditions of the laboring classes, and to the permanent prosperity of the mechanical, manufacturing and productive industries of the state, and shall as fully as practicable collect such information and reliable reports from each county in the state the amount and condition of the mechanical and manufacturing interests, the value and location of the various manufacturing and coal productions of the state, also sites offering natura, or acquired advantages for the profitable location and operation of different branches of industry; he shall by correspondence with interested parties in other parts of the United States impart to them such information as may tend to induce the location of mechanical and producing plants within the state, together with such other information as shall tend to increase the productions, and consequent employment of producers; and in said biennial report he shall give a statement of the business of the bureau since the last regular report, and shall compile and publish therein such information as may be considered of value to the industrial interests of the state, the number of laborers and mechanics employed, the number of apprentices in each trade, with the nativity of such laborers, mechanics and apprentices' wages earned, the savings from the same, with age and sex of laborers employed, the number and character of accidents, the sanitary condition of institutions where labor is employed, the restrictions if any which are put upon apprentices when indentured, the proportion of married laborers and mechanics who live in rented houses, with the average annual rental and the value of property owned by laborers and mechanics; and he shall include in such report what progress has been made with schools now in operation for the instruction of students in the mechanic arts and what systems have been found most practical, with details thereof.

Such report when printed shall not consist of more than six hundred printed pages octavo.

Five thousand copies thereof shall be printed and bound uniformly similar to the reports of other state officers as now authorized by law. Said reports when published to be disposed of as follows, viz.: To the public libraries in the state, to the various trade organizations, agricultural and mechanical societies, and other places where the commissioner may deem proper and best calculated to accomplish the furtherance of the industrial interests of the state.

SEC. 6. [Power of commissioner.—The commissioner shall have power to issue subpoenas for witnesses and examine them under oath and enforce their attendance to the same extent and in the same manner as a justice of the peace; said witnesses to be paid the same fees as are now allowed witnesses before a justice of the peace, the same to be paid by the state.

SEC. 7. [Publication.—This act being deemed of immediate importance shall be in force and take effect from and after its publication.
PART THIRD.

CODE OF CIVIL PRACTICE.

TITLE XVII.

OF PROCEDURE IN COURTS OF ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

CHAPTER 11

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

SECTION 2504. [Remedies classed.]—Remedies in civil cases in the courts of this state are divided into actions and special proceedings.

SEC. 2505. [Civil action defined.]—A civil action is a proceeding in a court of justice in which one party, known as the plaintiff, demands against another party, known as the defendant, the enforcement or protection of a private right, or the prevention or redress of a private wrong. It may also be brought for a recovery of penalty or forfeiture.

The term "civil action" relates to civil proceedings as distinguished from criminal, and includes proceedings at law and in equity. Kramer v. Redman, 9 Iowa, 114.

"If a right is sought to be enforced or protected, or a wrong redressed or prevented, but one "form" is given, and that is styled a 'civil action.'" Per Wright, Ch. J., in Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 475.

Under the revision, it was held, that certiorari was a "special proceeding." Thompson v. Reed, 29 Id., 117.

The probate of a will is a special proceeding, triable in the circuit court as an ordinary proceeding, and it follows the rule governing ordinary proceedings as to the manner of appeal to the supreme court. Sisters of Visitation v. Glass, 45 Id., 154.

A proceeding in mandamus is held to be "a civil action." Brown v. Crego, 29 Id., 321.

SEC. 2506. [Special proceedings.]—Every other remedy in a civil case is a special proceeding.

A proceeding to disbar an attorney on charges preferred by a private prosecutor is a special proceeding. State v. Clark, 46 Iowa, 155.

Certiorari is a special proceeding and not properly denominated an action. So held under the revision of 1860. Thompson et al. v. Reed et al., 29 Id., 117.

So, also, a proceeding for the probate of a will is a special proceeding. Sisters of Visitation et al. v. Glass, 45 Id., 154.

A proceeding upon charges preferred by a private prosecutor to disbar an attorney in a special proceeding wherein a change of venue on account of prejudice on part of the judge may be granted upon the same conditions and upon compliance with the same rules as in ordinary actions. The State v. Clark, 46 Id., 155.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to try de novo a case prosecuted by special summary proceedings. Bret v. Myers, 66 Id., 274.

SEC. 2507. [Form of actions.]—All forms of action are abolished in this state; but the proceeding in a civil action may be of two kinds, ordinary or equitable.
"All prior forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the rules of the code, and not those laid down by Stephens and Chitty, are the tests of the sufficiency of all pleadings." Per Dillon, J., in Taylor v. Adair and Goff, 22 Iowa, 278, 281; Sargent v. Pittman Bros. & Co., 16 Id., 469, 473.

"Under the code of 1873 we have but two kinds of actions, viz: ordinary and equitable. And equitable actions are not divided into two classes and triable by two methods, as under the revision." Per Miller, C. J., in Wallsworth v. Wallsworth, 41 Id., 449.

While the code abolishes forms of actions, yet it contemplates that the facts constituting a cause of action or defense in its substance shall be stated with briefness, clearness, distinctness, good logic and order. Ballzell v. Nelder, 1 Id., 588.

There is no "general issue" under the code. Dyson v. Ream, 9 Id., 51.

Under our statutes all forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the plaintiff recovers, if at all, on the facts stated and proved. Per Miller, J., in McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 163.

SEC. 2508. [Equitable proceedings. — The plaintiff may prosecute his action by equitable proceeding in all cases where courts of equity, before the adoption of this code, had jurisdiction; and must so proceed in all cases where jurisdiction was exclusive.

If the action is in the nature of a creditor's bill, or if it seeks upon any equitable ground to subject the real property of a deceased to the payment of debts, the administrator would be a proper if not a necessary party. Parish v. Mundy et al., 24 Iowa, 314.

The plaintiff may prosecute his action in equity in all cases where courts of equity, before the adoption of the code, had jurisdiction. Bushnell v. Robeson, 62 Id., 540.

Inasmuch as courts of equity prior to the adoption of the code had jurisdiction to restrain by injunction the continuance of nuisances, that jurisdiction still exists, notwithstanding a remedy by action at law is provided by section 331 of the code. Id.

This section of the code authorizes the bringing of an action in equity for the abatement of a nuisance and for damages, according to the procedure in vogue prior to the enactment of said section 331. Gribben v. Hansen, 69 Id., 255.

SEC. 2509. [Foreclosure of mortgage: action on note.] — The action on a note, together with a mortgage or deed of trust, for the foreclosure of the same, shall be by equitable proceedings. An action on the bond or note alone without regard therein to the mortgage or deed of trust, shall be by ordinary proceedings.

SEC. 2510. [Mechanics' lien.] — The action for mechanics' lien shall be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, and therewith shall no other cause of action be joined.

It was held under this and other sections of the code, that while an action to enforce a mechanic's lien should be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, yet if no motion nor order be made that the testimony be reduced to writing, the case was not triable de novo in the supreme court. Kennedy v. Gauld, 44 Iowa, 537. This, however, was changed by chapter 145 of the laws of 1875, by a repeal and enactment of a substitute for section 2742 of the code. See, also, Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Id., 192; Price & Hornby v. Seydell et al., 46 Id., 696.

The manner of enforcing the lien of a mechanic was, under the revision, by an ordinary action at law. Brodt v. Rohkar, 48 Id., 39.

No other cause of action can be joined with an action to establish a mechanic's lien. Sweetser v. Carrier v. Hornbeck et al., 87 Id., 488.

Where several parties had commenced actions against a common defendant to enforce mechanics' liens, it was held, that it was competent for plaintiff and defendant, by agreement, to have united therewith an ordinary action at law, prosecuted by ordinary proceedings. Hines v. The White Breast Coal and M. Co., 48 Id., 296.

SEC. 2511. [Divorce.] — An action for a divorce shall be prosecuted by equitable proceedings, and no cause of action, save for alimony, shall be joined therewith.

Under the revision an action for divorce was tried as an ordinary proceeding, and upon appeal to the supreme court the verdict of the jury was entitled to the same effect as in a purely law action. Cole v. Cole, 23 Iowa, 433.

An order relating to alimony, made on the same day as the rendition of the decree for divorce, and following immediately after it, will be regarded as a part of the same judgment that orders the decree. Id.

In Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Iowa, 192, it was held that the action for divorce is an equitable action, and is not triable on appeal to the supreme court upon errors of law alone, but must be tried de novo, regardless of the provisions of section 2742 of the code, before that section was amended by chapter 145, laws of 1875.

The action of divorce is now triable by equitable proceedings, and an issue of fact therein cannot be submitted to a jury for determination, and a subsequent adoption by the court of the finding of the jury will not cure the error in the submission. Hobart v. Hobart, 51 id., 512. Nor can such issues be referred to a referee, but must be publicly tried in open court by the court itself.

Same v. Same, 45 id., 501.

Sec. 2512. [Sureties: occupying claimants.]—Actions by sureties, and by occupying claimants, and on a lost note or bond, may be by ordinary proceedings.

Where an action has been commenced in equity which should have been at law, if the defendant failed to move, at the proper time, to have the cause transferred to the law docket, he will be held to have waived his right to a jury trial. Richmond v. The Dubuque & S. C. R. Co., et al., 33 Iowa, 422. Miller, J., dissenting.

A person having the equitable title to real property cannot recover the same in an action at law on the ground that the legal title is based upon fraud. The legal title must first be attacked and declared void on this ground by an action in equity. Walker v. Kyneet, 32 id., 524.

Sec. 2513. [Ordinary proceedings.]—In all other cases, except in this code otherwise provided, the plaintiff must prosecute his action by ordinary proceedings.

The objection that the action should have been at law instead of in equity cannot be made for the first time in the appellate court. Tugel v. Tugel et al., 38 Iowa, 349; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 id., 476. See also, Drum v. Keen, 47 id., 457.

Sec. 2514. [Error: effect of.]—An error of the plaintiff as to the kind of proceedings adopted shall not cause the abatement or dismissal of the action, but merely a change into the proper proceedings, and a transfer of the action to the proper docket.

That a party has an adequate remedy at law is, under the statute, no longer ground for the abatement or dismissal of the action. Savery v. Browning, 18 Iowa, 246, 251; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 id., 471; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 id., 53; Taylor v. Adair et al., 22 id., 279, 281; Brown v. Mallory, 26 id., 469; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 id., 476; Moore v. The District Trp. of Union, 38 id., 425; Tugel v. Tugel et al., 38 id., 349; Gibbs v. McFadden, 39 id., 371; Richmond v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 33 id., 422; Rosier v. Van Dam, 18 id., 175.

The right to have a cause transferred from one docket to the other arises only when the plaintiff has brought his action by the wrong proceeding, and is not absolute even in such cases. Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 id., 53.

Where in an action to recover for fraudulently seizing a stock of goods and selling the same under a chattel mortgage, an amendment to the petition was filed during the trial averring specific acts of fraud in the sale, a motion to strike the amendment, for the reason that it set up matters of equitable cognizance, was properly overruled. Weaver v. Kintzley, 58 id., 191.

The district court has jurisdiction both at law and in equity, and a defendant in an action therein at law, which was in fact brought to establish and enforce a trust, who fails to ask for a transfer of the case to the proper docket, cannot on appeal object to the jurisdiction. Spelman v. Gill, 38 N. W. R., 168.

Sec. 2515. [How corrected by plaintiff.]—Such error may be corrected by the plaintiff without motion at any time before the defendant has answered, or afterwards, on motion in court.

When an action has been commenced in the wrong forum the appropriate remedy is a motion to have the action changed into the proper proceedings. See the cases cited in note to section 2514. And this objection will be waived by going to trial without making it. Hatch v. Judd, 29 Iowa, 95; Taylor v. Adair, 22 id., 279; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 id., 475; Savery v. Browning, 18 id., 251; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 id., 53.

The question whether an action should have been brought at law instead of in equity, or vice versa, cannot be raised by demurrer. Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 id., 53; Wright v. McCormick, 22 id., 545; McDoel v. Purdy, 23 id., 277; Moore v. The Dist. Trp. of Union, 28 id., 425; Richmond v. Dubuque & S. C. R'y Co., 33 id., 422; The Ind. School Dist. of Georgia et al. v. The Ind. School District of Victoria et al., 41 id., 321.

An action by a landlord against his tenant and those to whom the latter has sold and delivered the crops on which the former had a landlord's lien, should be at law for the damages arising from the conversion of the property, but error in bringing such action in equity did not cause an abatement of the cause. The court should have set the cause down for trial at law. Scollan v.
Wall et al., 64 Id., 705.

Sec. 2516. [By defendant.]—The defendant may have the correction made by motion at or before the filing of his answer, where it appears by the provisions of this code the wrong proceedings have been adopted.

Objection cannot first be made in the appellate court that the remedy sought in equity should have been at law. Tugel v. Tugel et al., 88 Iowa, 349; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476.

A motion to transfer a cause from the chancery to the law docket, on the ground that it is not cognizable in the former forum, should be made at or before the filing of the answer to the original petition, if it is then apparent that it is proper to be made. Moore v. The District Ty. of Union, 23 Id., 425.

The right to have corrected, or to object upon the ground of mistake in the selection of the forum, as where the action should have been brought at law instead of in equity, is waived by going to trial without objection. Hatch v. Judd, 29 Id., 95; Taylor v. Adair, 22 Id., 279; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Savery v. Browning, 18 Id., 531; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; Richmond v. The Dubuque & S. C. Ry Co., et al., 33 Id., 442; Holstein v. Dickinson, 51 Id., 244, 248.

The bringing an action in equity when it should have been at law, or vice versa, is not ground of demurrer. The appropriate remedy is a motion to transfer the cause to the proper docket.
Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 417; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; Brown v. Malloy, 29 Id., 499;
Gibbs v. McFadden, 39 Id., 371.

A cause cannot be transferred, under the statute, from the law to the equity docket before issue is joined and it is shown on the face of the pleadings that the defense is equitable, in its character.
McHenry v. Snyder, 13 Id., 585.

The failure of a defendant to move for a transfer of a case erroneously commenced as an action in equity, before answering, is a waiver of the error, and of the right to demand a jury trial. Gibbs Bros v. Coonrod, 54 Id., 736.

Sec. 2517. [Ordinary, changed into equitable.]—Where the action has been properly commenced by ordinary proceedings, either party shall have the right, by motion, to have any issue heretofore exclusively cognizable in equity tried in the manner hereinafter prescribed in cases of equitable proceedings; and if all the issues were such as were heretofore cognizable in equity, though none were exclusively so, the defendant shall be entitled to have them all tried as in cases of equitable proceedings.

The statute authorizes the pleading of equitable defenses in actions at law; and in an action on a judgment the defendant may plead facts which would, under the former practice, have constituted sufficient grounds for a bill in equity directly assailing the judgment. Rogers v. Gwin, 21 Iowa, 58; Rozier v. Van Dom, 16 Id., 176; Van Orman v. Spofford, Clark & Co., Id., 186; Kramer v. Conger, ld., 434; Warren v. Crew, 22 Id., 315; Shawhan v. Long, 26 Id., 483; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476; Hackett v. High, 23 Id., 539; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53.

Where, in an action properly commenced by ordinary proceedings, a portion of the issues are exclusively cognizable in equity and a portion are law issues, either party is entitled to a jury for the trial of the latter. Those issues, whether legal or equitable, the determination of which will be most likely to dispose of the case, should be first tried. Morris v. Merrill & Co. et al., 52 Id., 496.

When the defendant has pleaded equitable matter in defense, he is entitled to have the issues thus presented tried in the manner provided for the trial of equitable actions; and the court may order, and the better practice would dictate, that these issues be first tried. Hackett v. High, 25
Id., 639; Kramer v. Conger, 16 Id., 434; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53.

An answer which sets up a tax title, and asks to have the same quieted in the defendant, does not present an issue or defense which he is entitled to have tried as an equitable issue. Walton
v. Gray, 29 Id., 440.

Not only an equitable defense is allowed in a law action, but an equitable counter-claim may be pleaded as well as a legal one, whether the action is at law or in equity. Rozier v. Van Dom, 16 Id., 175.

Sec. 2518. [Court may order change.]—If there be more than one party plaintiff or defendant who fail to unite on the kind of proceeding to be adopted, the court, on its own motion, may direct such proceedings to be changed to the same extent as if the parties had united in asking that the same be done.

Sec. 2519. [Errors waived.]—An error as to the kind of proceedings adopted in the action is waived by a failure to move for its correction at the time and in the manner prescribed in this chapter, and all errors in the decision of the court are waived unless excepted to at the time, except final judgments and interlocutory or final decrees entered of record.
CHAP. 1. PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

When the wrong proceedings have been adopted in the commencement of an action, the cause may be placed on the proper docket by motion. Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Iowa, 471.

The objection will be waived unless such motion be made at the proper time. Knott v. Tincher, 39 Id., 628.

Where a case properly cognizable at law is placed on the equity calendar, and, without objection, tried as an equitable action, it will, on appeal, be regarded as an equitable action and tried de novo. Corbin v. Woodbine, 33 Id., 297.

If there is an error in the kind of proceedings adopted by the plaintiff it is waived by a failure to move for its correction at the proper time. Hosleton v. Dickinson, 51 Id., 244, 248.

SEC. 2520. [Uniformity of procedure.]—The provisions of this code, concerning the prosecution of a civil action, apply to both kinds of proceeding, whether ordinary or equitable, unless the contrary appears, and shall be followed in special proceedings, not otherwise regulated, so far as applicable.

A proceeding ad quod damnum, except in so far as otherwise directed by statute, is to be conducted as an ordinary civil action, and be governed by like rules so far as the same are applicable. Forney & Thayer v. Rails & Willits, 30 Iowa, 559.

It was accordingly held, that a sale of a mill during the pendency of a proceeding to assess the damages caused to the property of adjacent land-owners by reason of heightening the mill-dam, did not abate the proceeding, and that the purchaser might be substituted for the original owner. Id.

The provisions of the code relating to the granting of a change of venue in civil actions apply also to proceeding on appeal from an award for damages for a right of way by a sheriff's jury. Whitney v. The Atlantic R'y Co., 58 Id., 651.

SEC. 2521. [Actions on judgments: when brought.]—No action shall be brought upon any judgment, against a defendant therein, rendered in any court of record of this state within fifteen years after the rendition thereof without leave of the court for good cause shown, and no notice to the adverse party, nor on a judgment of a justice of the peace of this state within eight years after the same is rendered, except in cases where the docket of the justice, or record of such judgment is, or shall be, lost or destroyed.

This section does not limit the remedy of a judgment creditor, when the record of the judgment has been lost or destroyed, to the recovery of a new judgment. But he may apply to the court, and it has power to supply a new record in such case. This power is inherent in courts of record, independent of legislation. Gammon & Deering v. Knudson, 46 Iowa, 455.

In an action upon a judgment of a court of record of this state, brought within fifteen years from the date of the judgment, it must be alleged in the petition that leave of the court to bring the action has been obtained; otherwise the petition may be assailed by demurrer. Watts v. Everett, 47 Id., 269.

SEC. 2522. [Judgment cannot be annulled.]—Judgment obtained in an action by ordinary proceedings shall not be annulled or modified by any order in an action by equitable proceedings, except for a defense which has arisen or been discovered since the judgment was rendered. But such judgment does not prevent the recovery of any claim, though such claim might have been used by way of counter-claim in the action on which the judgment was recovered.

Where the maker of a promissory note held a receipt, acknowledging payment thereof, from the indorsee, who sued upon the note, representing to the maker, however, that he did not intend to enforce its collection against him, but against the payee and indorser, and judgment was accordingly rendered by default, it was held that an injunction should be granted, perpetually restraining the enforcement of the judgment against the maker of the note. Baker v. Reed, 44 Iowa, 179.

An action in equity is not maintainable to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment at law, within one year after its rendition, upon grounds which authorize the granting of a new trial under the statute. Hintrager v. Lumbargo et al., 54 Id., 694.

SEC. 2523. [For discovery: when brought.]—No action to obtain a discovery shall be brought, except that where any person or corporation is liable, either jointly or severally with others by the same contract, an action may be brought against any parties who are liable, to obtain discovery of the names and residences of the others who are liable. In such action, the plaintiff shall state in his petition, in effect, that he has used due diligence, without success, to obtain the information asked to be discovered, and that he does not believe the parties to the contract who are known to him have property sufficient to satisfy his claim. The petition shall be verified, and the cost of such action shall be paid by the plaintiff, unless the discovery be resisted.

SEC. 2524. [Successive actions.]—Successive actions may be maintained upon the same contract or transaction, whenever, after the former action, a new cause of action has arisen therefrom.

A judgment in an action for damages for a breach of contract which is not total, will not constitute a bar to an action for future breaches of the same contract. Richmond v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 33 Iowa, 452, 499.

SEC. 2525. [Actions survive.]—All causes of actions shall survive, and may be brought, notwithstanding the death of the person entitled or liable to the same.

The common law rule that a personal action dies with the person is not in force in this state; and under our statute no cause of action either ex delicto or ex contractu abates by the death of either party. Shafer v. Grimes, 23 Iowa, 550. A claim based upon a personal tort, which at common law died with the party, may be assigned or transferred like any other cause of action. Gray v. McCallister, 50 Id., 491.

A cause of action for damages caused to the estate of an infant by wrongful acts resulting in his death, is limited to his probable earnings after he shall have attained his majority, and must be brought by the administrator for his personal services and earnings during his minority the father, or where abandonment is shown, the mother may maintain the action. Lawrence v. Birney, 40 Id., 377; Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 458.

A cause of action for a personal tort survives under our statute, and may be assigned or transferred like any other cause of action. Gray v. McCallister et al., 50 Id., 491.

The assignee of such claim, who is a creditor of the assignor, is not postponed to the holder of a judgment against the assignor; no his equities inferior to those of the judgment creditor. Id.

Under this section the cause of action for a tort survives the death of the wrong doer, yet only compensatory damages are recoverable in an action against his personal representatives. Shelt v. Hobson, 64 Id., 148.

Whether or not our statutes give a remedy for a personal injury resulting in instantaneous death, not determined; but where the injured person survives the injury for but a moment of time, a cause of action, (which survives to his representatives,) accrues to him as certainly as if he had lived for a month or a year thereafter; the test being whether he lived after the injury, and not how long he lived. Sherman v. Western Stage Co., 24 Id., 313, overruled. Kellow, Jr., Adm'r, v. The Central I. R'y Co., 68 Id., 470.

A cause of action for a personal injury arising from an accident is not lost by the death of the wrong doer, nor by the non-availability of the assignor. Conners v. The Burlington, C. R. & N. R'y Co., 71 Id., 490.

SEC. 2526. [Homicides civilly liable.]—The right of civil remedy is not merged in a public offense, but may, in all cases, in cases of injury to the person, or in addition to, the punishment of the latter. When a wrongful act produces death, the damages shall be disposed of as personal property belonging to the estate of the deceased, except that if the deceased leaves a husband, wife, child, or parent, it shall not be liable for the payment of debts. A corporation is liable in a civil action for the wrongful acts of its servants, done in its employment and producing death. Donaldson v. The M. & M. R. Co., 48 Id., 90; Sherman v. The Western Stage Co., 24 Id., 518; Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 493; Lawrence v. Birney, 40 Id., 377. Libel being a public offense, is actionable per se under this section, and it is not necessary to allege that the defendant charged plaintiff with the commission of a statutory offense, nor to allege special damages. It is sufficient to allege facts constituting a libel under sections 4097 and 4098 of the code. Call v. Larabee, 60 Id., 212.

SEC. 2527. [Procedings: limitation of action.]-The actions contemplated in the two preceding sections may be brought, or the court, on motion, may allow the action to be continued by or against the legal representatives or successors in interest of the deceased. Such action shall be deemed a continuing one, and to have accrued to such representative or successor at the same time it did to the deceased if he had survived. If such is continued against the legal representative of the defendant, a notice shall be served on him as provided for service of original notices.

See Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Iowa, 458, cited in note to section 2525, ante.

A notice to defendant is not necessary when an action is continued in favor of the legal representative of the plaintiff, and the substitution of such representative is not ground for continuance on behalf of the defendant. Masterman v. Brown, 51 Id., 442.

SEC. 2528. [Construction: rule of common law not applicable.]-The rule of the common law that statutes in derogation thereof are to be strictly construed has no application to this code. Its provisions, and all proceedings under it, shall be liberally construed with a view to promote its objects and assist the parties in obtaining justice.

This section requires the courts to construe the provisions of the code, and all proceedings under it, literally, and with a view to promote its object, and assist parties in obtaining justice. Per Wright, Ch. J., in Hudson v. Blanfus, 22 Iowa, 328; Sauk v. Temple, 33 Id., 189.

CHAPTER 2.

OF LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

SEC. 2529. [Period of.]-The following actions may be brought within the times herein limited respectively after their causes accrue and not afterwards, except when otherwise specially declared.

It was held under the code of 1851, that where the jurisdiction was concurrent, courts of equity, equally with courts of law, are bound by the statutes of limitations; and that they act in obedience to the statute, rather than by way of analogy to the law. Phares v. Walters, 6 Iowa, 106.

And under the revision it was held that the statute directly applies to a suit in equity to foreclose a mortgage. Newman v. DeLorimer, 19 Id., 214.

Under the revision, the rule that the statute of limitations is applied only by analogy to suits in equity, no longer prevails in this state. The statute ex vigore suo, operates in both courts alike and not in equity by the mere discretion of the chancellor. Relf v. Eberly, 23 Id., 487.

Statutes of limitation pertain to the remedy and not to the essence of the contract, and an act extending the time for bringing an action is valid as to existing contracts. Edwards v. McCaddon, 29 Id., 521.

The statute of limitations is not available to a party unless taken advantage of by demurrer, or pleaded as a defense in the answer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 27.

Under section 1229 of the code making railroad companies liable for double the value of stock killed by them, and not paid for after thirty days' notice, the action is deemed to have accrued at, and the statute of limitations begins to run from, the date of the injury rather than from the giving of the notice. Coons v. C. & N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 493.

Where a cause of action accrues to the estate of a decedent instead of to the deceased in his lifetime, the statute will not commence to run until the appointment of an administrator. But if the statute has once begun to run in the lifetime of the party entitled to sue, it is not interrupted by his subsequent death, but continues to run and survives but does not accrue to the personal representatives of the deceased. Sherman v. Western Stage Co., 24 Id., 517.

So upon an unliquidated account against a county, the statute commences to run from the time the account accrued, and not from the date of its presentation for allowance to the board of supervisors. Baker v. Johnson Co., 33 Id., 151.
The statute of limitations does not run against the state, and an action brought in the name of a county for the use of and to recover money belonging to the school fund is, in effect, an action by the state, and is not barred by the lapse of the statutory period applicable to other actions. The County of Des Moines, for the use, etc., v. Harker et al., 34 Iowa, 84; Kellogg et al. v. Decatur County et al., 38 Iowa, 524.

This section of the code limits actions within the prescribed time after "their causes accrue," not after a time when the plaintiff has prepared his proof, and is thereby able to recover judgment. First Nat. Bank v. Green et al., 64 Iowa, 452.

1. [Two years.—Actions founded on injuries to the person or reputation, whether based on contract or tort, or for a statute penalty, within two years.

An action by a husband, against a stage company, to recover damages for the loss of his wife and child who had been killed while traveling on the defendant's stage, is an action for a personal injury, falling within the first subdivision of section 2529, and will be barred after two years from the time the cause of action happened. Sherman v. Western Stage Company, 22 Iowa, 536. But where the action has accrued to the estate of a decedent instead of to the deceased while living, the statute will not commence to run until the appointment of the administrator. Where the statute has commenced to run, it will not be interrupted by the death of the party having the right of action, but continues. Same case in 24 Iowa, 515.

An action for damages against the seller of intoxicating liquors, for causing the intoxication of the husband, is an action for a personal injury and must be brought within two years from the date of the sale. Emmert v. Grill, 39 Iowa, 690.

The statute of limitations as to actions to recover damages for personal injuries commences to run from the time the injury is committed, although the full extent and nature thereof may not be developed until later. Lustin v. Jefferson County, 15 Iowa, 158.

In an action under section 1289 of the code, to recover double damages for stock killed or injured on a railroad, the statute of limitations commences to run from the time of the injury rather than from the service of the notice. Koons v. C. S. N. W. R'y Co., 21 Iowa, 493.

An action against a railroad company to recover for injuries sustained by the negligence of co-employees is, though founded on a contract between the plaintiff and the company, deemed an action for injuries to the person within the meaning of this section, and barred in two years from the time the cause of action accrued. Nord v. The B. & M. R'y Co., 37 Iowa, 408.

An action for damages against a seller of intoxicating liquors, for causing the intoxication of the plaintiff's husband, cannot be maintained after two years from the date of the sale. Emmert v. Grill, 39 Iowa, 690.

The essential idea of "forfeiture" is a loss of property by way of punishment, and as used in chapter 65, laws of 1874, it indicates something more than compensation; and where so much of the claim as embraces a statute penalty is barred, the whole will be barred, for the same provisions of the statute of limitations must be applied to the entire claim. Herriman v. The B., C. R. & N. R'y Co., 57 Iowa, 187.

2. Actions to enforce a mechanic's lien within two years from the time of filing the statement in the clerk's office.

The failure of a mechanic to file his statement and claim for a lien under section 2137 (section 6, chapter 109, laws of 1870) of the code, will not extend the time within which the action to enforce the lien must be commenced. Gierke v. Gotschald et al., 39 Iowa, 311.

One having an interest in real property to be affected by a decree in an action to which he was not made a party, to enforce a mechanic's lien thereon, may resist the enforcement of the decree by injunction on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. Gates v. Ballou et al., 56 Iowa, 741.

The provisions of this clause of the statute in fixing the time within which an action to enforce a mechanic's lien may be brought, has reference to the thirty or ninety days allowed for the filing of claims by subcontractors and contractors respectively under the mechanic's lien statute, and the limitation statute begins to run against such an action at the expiration of such time, if the claim be not sooner filed. Suter v. Parks, 56 Iowa, 407.

3. [Three years.—Those against a sheriff or other public officer, growing out of a liability incurred by the doing of an act in an official capacity or by the omission of an official duty, including the non-payment of money collected on execution, within three years.

In an action of mandamus against the clerk of the board of supervisors to compel him to affix the county seal to a county warrant, the statute would begin to run from the date of issuing the warrant, and not from the time of demand of performance made on such officer and refusal or omission by him, and the proceeding would be barred in three years. Prescott v. Gonaer, 34 Iowa, 175.

An action against a county treasurer on his official bond is barred in three years after the cause of action arises. The State v. Henderson, 40 Id., 242; Keokuk County v. Howard, 41 Id., 11.

That such action is brought by and in the name of the state will not avoid the operation of the statute. The State v. Henderson, supra.

So also an action against the treasurer personally, instituted, not on his official bond, but upon his implied undertaking to pay over moneys collected by him, as required by law, will be barred in three years.

The failure of a county treasurer to account to the county and state and pay over the revenue in his hands, is the "omission of an official duty" within the meaning of this provision, and an action therefore cannot be maintained unless commenced before the expiration of three years from the time the cause of action accrued. The State v. Dyer et al., 17 Id., 223.

An action against a county treasurer upon his official bond or against him personally upon his implied obligation to pay over moneys collected, as required by law, is barred in three years after the cause of action arises. Keokuk County v. Howard, supra.

The statute of limitations will not bar an action of mandamus to compel township trustees to certify to the county treasurer the result of a vote of a tax in aid of a railroad by the electors of the township, in a case where the vote had been taken prior to the enactment of chapters 2 and 50 of the laws of 1872, until three years after they took effect. Harwood v. Quinby et al., 44 Id., 385.

In an action against a railroad company for damages for a breach of contract to transport freight, it was held to be barred in five years from the time of the accruing of the cause of action. Cobb, Bisgeid & Co. v. The Ill. Cent. Ry Co., 35 Id., 691.

An action against a public officer or his sureties for a breach of his official bond is barred in three years from the time of the breach, and the fact that within that time a judgment is obtained against the officer will not remove the bar of the statute in an action afterward brought against his sureties. Widaworth & Co. v. Gerhard et al., 55 Id., 367.

Where a township clerk paid a road order drawn on him by the township trustees, but failed to have the same audited and allowed in his regular settlement with the trustees, the statute of limitations commenced to run thereon from the date of the first settlement, at which the claim should have been presented and paid. Devrey v. Lina et al., 57 Id., 235.

A right of action accrues in favor of the land owner against a sheriff, for money received by him from a railroad company upon the condemnation of a right of way, immediately upon the expiration of the thirty days allowed for appealing from such proceedings; and unless brought within three years after such accruing, it is barred both as against the sheriff and against his sureties. Lower v. Miller, Sheriff, and two other cases, 60 Id., 408.

4. [Five years.]—Those founded on unwritten contracts, those brought for injuries to property, or for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of chancery, and all other actions not otherwise provided for in this respect, within five years.

When the legal title to real property has been obtained by fraud, an action to recover by the equitable owner may be commenced at any time within five years after the discovery of the fraud. McLenan v. Sullivan, 13 Iowa, 521.

An action for relief on the ground of fraud must, under the 4th subdivision of section 2529 of the code, be brought within five years from the discovery of the fraud, or it will be barred by the statute of limitations. Hanlenbeck v. Riley et al., 35 Id., 103; Shank v. Teplee, 33 Id., 189; Ryan v. Doyle, 31 Id., 53; Cowan v. Toole, Id., 513.

An action against a railroad company for damages for a breach of contract to transport freight will be barred in five years from the time the cause of action accrues. Cobb, Blasdel & Co. v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 38 Id., 601.

The statute of limitations will run in favor of a trustee in possession of real property under a constructive or resulting trust, from the time when he denies the trust and claims the trust property as his own. Gebhard v. Satterl, 40 Id., 152; Peters v. Jones, 35 Id., 512.

A cause of action for the recovery, from the county of taxes illegally levied and paid, accrues at the very moment of payment, and the action is barred after the lapse of five years from that time. Callanan v. The County of Madison, 43 Id., 561.

Actions for the recovery of money which had been paid for intoxicating liquors, instituted under section 1550 of the code, will not be barred until after five years from the time the payment was made. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 41 Id., 677.

While the statute will not run against the state or sovereignty, it will against a municipal corporation. The City of Pella v. Scholte, 24 Id., 284.

Where the original proprietor of a town held open and visible possession of a square therein for more than ten years, claiming that he had never relinquished, but still retained title thereto, the right of the corporation to recover possession thereof was held to be barred. Id.
The operation of the statute cannot be suspended in such case, by a forcible entry, where the entry is not followed by continuous possession. Id.

Where a party against whom a cause of action exists, by fraud or actual fraudulent concealment prevents the party in whose favor it exists from obtaining knowledge of it, the statute will only commence to run the time the right of action is discovered, or by the exercise of proper diligence might have been discovered. Findley v. Stewart, 46 Id., 655. The District Tp. of Boomer v. French 40 Id., 691, —, and cases cited.

Where the relation of principal and surety does not appear on the face of a note made by several persons, and must be established by parol evidence, and the instrument has been merged in a judgment, and satisfied of record, the right of action at law of the surety will be barred after the lapse of five years from the time when the action accrued. Lamb v. Withrow, 51 Id., 164. The same rule will apply where the surety has paid the note before judgment thereon, in an action to recover the same, or to be subrogated to the rights of the payee. Id.

A cause of action accrues against a county for the recovery of illegal taxes paid at the time of their payment, and the statute runs against the claim from that time. The fact that the person paying such taxes is not aware of their illegality will not prevent the running of the statute against his claim. Beecher v. The County of Clay, 52 Id., 146.

The defense of the statute of limitations is an affirmative one, and the burden of proof is on the party pleading the statute. It was accordingly held, in an action to set aside a conveyance on the ground of fraud, where more than five years had elapsed since the right of action accrued, that it was incumbent on the defendant, in order to avail himself of the defense of the statute, to show that the plaintiff had knowledge of the fraud more than five years before the action was commenced. Hartin v. Stevenson, 30 Id., 271.

A resolution by the board of supervisors offering a bounty for enlistments, and the acceptance of such resolution by persons enlisting thereunder, constitutes a parol contract, and an action thereon is barred in five years. Kinsey v. Louisa County, 37 Id., 458; Baker v. Johnson County, 33 Id., 151.

A proceeding to set aside a sheriff's sale of land, sold in gross, in which actual fraud is alleged by the plaintiff, is an action cognizable as well at law as in equity; and, hence, does not fall within this subdivision of the statute, which provides that actions for relief on the ground of fraud, in cases heretofore solely cognizable in equity, must be brought within five years from the time the action accrued. Williams v. Allison, 35 Id., 278.

Where a judgment plaintiff failed to credit a payment made on the judgment, and afterward collected the whole amount on execution, it was held that an action to recover the amount thus overpaid was barred in five years from the date of the collection of the judgment, although defendant in the action had no knowledge that the proper credit had not been given until after the expiration of that time. Shreves v. Leonard, 56 Id., 74.

An action for willful trespass committed by entering upon plaintiff's land and, by digging a ditch thereon, interfering with his water-power, accrues immediately upon the act of trespass, and is barred in five years thereafter. Williams v. Mills County, 33 Id., 278.

An action by a surety against a principal, for money paid as such surety, is barred in five years from the time of the payment. Miller v. Lesser, 71 Id., 147.

5. [Ten years.]—Those founded on written contracts, on judgments of any courts, except those courts provided for in the next section, and those brought for the recovery of real property, within ten years.

The statute of limitations requiring actions founded upon written contracts to be commenced within ten years, applies to suits for the foreclosure of mortgages as well as to actions upon notes. Hendershott v. Ping, 24 Iowa, 134; Newsman v. De Lorimer, 19 Id., 344.

An action in equity to compel the conveyance of land, purchased for and with the means of the plaintiff, is an action for the recovery of real property, and not "for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of "equity," as prescribed in subdivision three of section 2529, and is not barred until after the expiration of ten years. Stanley v. Morse, 26 Id., 454.

A mere naked possession without claim or color of title, will not enable a defendant in an action of right to avail himself of the statute of limitations. To constitute an adverse position so that the statute will run, there must be either "color of title" or "claim of title." It need not be under "color of title" if it is held under claim of title. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Id., 459; Cleagett v. Conlee, and Jones v. Hockman, 16 Id., 457; Jones v. Hockman, 12 Id., 102; Wright v. Keithler, 7 Id., 92.

In case of a breach of a written contract for the sale of real estate, where the vendor refuses to convey, after tender of the balance of the purchase money and demand of a deed by the vendor, the statute begins to run against an action by the vendee to recover the purchase money paid, from the date of demand and refusal, and not from the time of payment. Such an action is not for money had and received, but for a breach of the written contract. Deming v. Harney, 23 Id., 77.

A descent cast upon heirs by the ancestor, dying in possession, though he was but a mere trespasser, gives color of title to the heirs. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Id., 450.

To constitute color of title it is not necessary that the title under which he claims should be a valid one, and it makes no difference whether its want of validity results from the original and inherent defects, or from subsequent causes, or whether they be attributable to individual or judicial causes. Id.

The statute of limitations is not available as a defense in an action to recover land unless the defendant has held possession of the land for the statutory period under color of title or claim of right. More possession is not sufficient. Grube v. Wells, 34 Id., 148; Solberg v. City of Decorah, 41 Id., 501.

All actions for the recovery of real property, and all personal actions on written contract commenced since July 1, 1856, must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action accrued. Johnson v. Hopkins, 19 Id., 49.

Where the grantee of real estate assumes the payment of a judgment against the grantor as part of the consideration, but with no definite time of payment being fixed, and the grantor afterwards pays off the judgment himself, on the failure of the grantee to do so, the statute begins to run against an action by the grantor from the date of payment by him, and not from the date of the undertaking by the grantee. In equity the parties sustain the relation of principal and surety. Foster v. Marsh, 55 Id., 390.

An action to recover dower, that is to have it assigned or demeasured, is within the general statute of limitations, and must be brought within ten years from the time when the cause of action accrued. Rice v. Nelson, 27 Id., 148.

The right to maintain an action to foreclose a title bond, treating it as a mortgage, is barred in ten years from the time the cause of action accrued. Day v. Baldwin, 34 Id., 350.

The right of a junior mortgagee to redeem therefrom is absolutely barred in ten years. The right to redeem corresponds with the right to foreclose, being based upon the same instrument, and barred in the same time. The doctrine of adverse possession has no influence upon this right. Gover v. Winchester, 33 Id., 303. See also, Day v. Baldwin, 34 Id., 350; Palmer v. Butler, 36 Id., 576, 583; Clinton County v. Cox, 37 Id., 570; Jameson v. Perry, 38 Id., 14, 18; Crawford v. Taylor et al., 42 Id., 260.

In an action to cancel a deed intended to operate as a mortgage, the mortgagee having been in possession, the statute of limitations was pleaded: it was held, 1. That a mortgagee in possession, after having received payment of the debt, will not be protected by the statute, unless he shows that he has held adversely to the mortgagee for the period which bars recovery of the land. 2. The relation of mortgagee and mortgagor is analagous to that of trustee and cestui que trust, and the possession of the mortgaged premises by either is not, as to the other, adverse. Green v. Turner, 38 Id., 112; Crawford v. Taylor et al., 42 Id., 260.

The intention with which the possession was taken and held by the defendant is an essential consideration. It must be shown that he intended to hold in hostility to the true owner. Grube v. Wells, 34 Id., 148.

A mere belief that the lot which the defendant claimed extended to the limits of the inclosure is not equivalent to a claim of title or right, and, therefore, not sufficient to constitute adverse possession. Grube v. Wells, 34 Id., 148. See also the following cases, which are to the same effect: McDunn v. The City of Des Moines et al., Id., 467; Burdick v. Healy, 23 Id., 511.

To show adverse possession there must be an absence of proof of favor, or mistake as to the true line of the land. The State v. Crow, 20 Id., 258.

A party relying upon the bar of the statute of limitations, in an action for the recovery of real property, must show that he has held, for the statutory period, not only by a possession actual, open and adverse, but that it has been maintained as a right resulting from an exclusive possession in and dominion over the estate, and not subordinate to the will of another, or by an agreement with the true owner of the title. McNamn v. Moreland, 26 Id., 96.

To constitute color of title and adverse possession thereunder it is not necessary that the person in possession should hold under a valid and perfect title. He may, in good faith, acquire a title by adverse possession to a strip of land which is in fact beyond his lines as established by his deed or patent, and upon that of an adjacent owner. Close et al. v. Samm et al., 27 Id., 503.

To constitute adverse possession under which a title to land may be acquired, it is not necessary that the possession should be known to the other party. He must take notice at his peril. Id.

The seizin and possession of one tenant in common are the seizin and possession of the others, and the statute of limitations will not operate in favor of the former to give him title by adverse possession, unless it be sole and exclusive, with the knowledge and acquiescence of his co-tenants. Burns v. Byrne et al., 45 Id., 255.

Possession of real property to be adverse must be:
OF LIMITATION OF ACTIONS. [Title XVII.]

(1). Actual, continued, visible and notorious, hostile and distinct, and commenced under color of title or claim of right.

(2). Actual residence upon or inclosure or cultivation of the land is not necessary to constitute adverse possession.

(3). An entry upon the land under claim of right, and the exercise of such acts of ownership without interruption as clearly indicate an intention to assert ownership, and a notorious claim of title within the knowledge of the plaintiff and those under whom he claims, constitutes adverse possession.

(4). Acts done under claim or color of title, equivalent to actual possession, and which are as open and notorious, exclusive and hostile, will justify the finding of actual adverse possession if continued for sufficient length of time. Booth & Graham v. Small et al., 29 Id., 177.

It is not necessary to constitute actual possession that the land should be inclosed with a fence, or that the party claiming it should reside thereon, but may exist by the exercise of such acts of ownership as are necessary to enjoy the ordinary use of which it is capable, and acquire the profits it yields in its present condition. Such acts, if continued uninterruptedly, will amount to actual possession, and if under claim of right or color of title, will be adverse. Id. See also, as to what constitutes "actual possession," Fleming v. Maddox, 30 Id., 239, and cases cited.

Under the statute of limitations, ten years' adverse user of a highway by the public under a claim of right, will bar the owner of the soil. Keys v. Crawford v. Tait et al., 19 Id., 123; Onstott v. Murray, 23 Id., 257; The State v. Crow, 30 Id., 258.

If the public, with the knowledge of the owner of land, has claimed and continuously exercised the right of using the same as a public highway for a period equal to that fixed by the statute of limitation of real actions, a complete right to the highway thereby becomes established against the owner, unless it appears that such use was by favor, leave or mistake. Onstott v. Murray, 22 Id., 471; The State v. Crow, 30 Id., 258.

Where lands of adjacent owners are divided by a partition fence not on the true line of survey, and one of such owners claims and cultivates up to the fence as the true line, though it is in fact beyond it, and on the land of his neighbor, for a period of ten years, his possession will be held to be adverse under claim of right, and to confer upon him a title by prescription to the land lying between the actual line of survey and the fence. Brown v. Bridges, 31 Id., 138.

And in order to the application of this rule it is not necessary that there should have been any controversy in respect to the division line, prior to the expiration of the statutory period of limitation. Id.

A roving possession from one part of a tract of land to another will not bar the right of the owner upon any part which has not been held adversely for the statutory period. Id.

The possession of a mortgagor or a mortgagee is not adverse as to the other. Crawford v. Taylor et al., 43 Id., 290.

Possession for more than ten years, in good faith, under a claim of title, hostile and adverse, must also be visible and notorious to give title to real property. Teabout v. Daniels, 38 Id., 158.

Where, in the case of an implied trust, the trustee holding the legal title assumed ownership and sold and conveyed the land to a third person, it was held that this amounted to a denial or repudiation of the trust, and the possession of the grantee under such conveyance was regarded as adverse. Peters v. Jones, 35 Id., 513.

Where the right of action in tenants in common would be barred by adverse possession under the statute, except as to one who is within the saving clause, as, for instance, a minor, the right of the others is not thereby saved. Id.

The statute of limitations will run in favor of a trustee in possession of real property under a resulting trust, from the time he claims the property as his own. Gebhard et al. v. Statler et al., 40 Id., 152.

Adverse possession, under a sale in pursuance of a deed of trust, although the sale was made without sufficient notice, is based on color of title, and is entitled to the protection of the statute of limitations. Id.

A party in possession of land under a contract for a deed which provided that if he made default in payment he should have the rights of a tenant at will, and be allowed thirty days after notice in which to quit the possession, does not hold adversely to the owner until after such notice shall have been received. Austin v. Wilson et al., 46 Id., 363.

The fact that more than ten years had elapsed since the maturity of the last note for the purchase money, would be no defense to an action to recover possession. Id. Proof that the notes are barred would not sustain an averment of payment. Id.

When the possession is shown to be open and notorious, the person against whom it is maintained is presumed in law to know it, or to be negligent in not knowing it; and in either case he is bound by it. Teabout v. Daniels, 38 Id., 158.

The heirs of one who held adverse possession of land under a mere claim of right, are in possession under color of title. Id.

To constitute a bar under the statute of limitations, the adverse possession need not have been held under color of title; it is sufficient if possession was taken and held under claim of right. Calvin v. McGune, 39 Id., 502.

A tax deed void on its face will constitute color of title, under which adverse possession, held for the statutory period, will operate as a bar. Id.

Where timber land with a quarry thereon was claimed by the owner of adjacent land, who leased the quarries for ten years, and afterwards continued to procure stone and timber from the land, or permitted others to do so upon payment for the right, and during the time regularly paid the taxes thereon, it was held that the claimant had maintained continued adverse possession. Id.

That a city permitted a street which had not been open to be partially inclosed and occupied for sixteen years by the owner of abutting property, will not estop it to assert its ownership in the land inclosed. Solberg v. City of Decorah, 41 Id., 501.

Section 2401 of the code, limiting actions for the recovery of real property sold by an administrator to five years from the date of the sale, does not apply to a case where the proceedings are attacked on the ground of fraud; and in such case the statute will, under sections 2529 and 2530 of the code, commence to run only from the time of the discovery of the fraud. Cowan v. Toole, 31 Id., 513.

To establish a highway by prescription there must have been a general uninterrupted use of the same as much by the public under a claim of right for a period equal to that for the limitation of actions. The State v. Tucker, 36 Id., 485; Houghman v. Harvey, 40 Id., 654; The State v. Greene, 41 Id., 693.

Where plaintiff held possession of land for twenty years, under a deed purporting to convey the whole, but which in fact conveyed but one-third, claiming ownership of the whole, the statute did not run in his favor as to the whole, against the owners of the two-thirds, who resided in another state during the time, without knowledge of their rights, or of plaintiff's claim and possession, and were most of that time infants. Killmer v. Wachner et al., 37 N. W. R., 778.

6. [Twenty years.]—Those founded on a judgment of a court of record, whether of this or of any other of the United States, or of the federal courts of the United States, within twenty years.

The statute does not begin to run in actions for relief on the ground of fraud until the discovery of the fraud by the aggrieved party. Ryan v. Doyle et al., 31 Iowa, 53; McLenan v. Sullivan, 13 Id., 521; Kienthek v. Riley, 35 Id., 105; Shank v. Teague, 83 Id., 129; Cowan v. Toole, 31 Id., 513. But if relief can be had at law or in equity, the action must be brought within five years after the perpetration of the fraud. Megginis v. Hunt, 47 Id., 668.

Where a judgment is sought to be enforced against land which it is alleged the debtor fraudulently conveyed to his wife before the rendition of the judgment, the burden of proof is on the defendant pleading the statute of limitations to prove not only that five years have elapsed since the fraud, but since it was discovered or became known to the plaintiff. Both of these facts are essential to constitute the bar. Baldwin v. Tuttle, 23 Id., 66.

The revivor of a judgment by seire facias was simply a proceeding to enforce the judgment, and did not have the effect of a new judgment, with respect to the operation of the statute of limitations. The statute begins to run at the date of the original judgment. Mock v. Meek, 45 Id., 294.

The statute of limitations pertains to the remedy, and not to the validity or right of the cause of action, and the states are not inhibited by article 4, section 1, of the United States constitution, from enacting such statutes barring actions upon judgments rendered in other states. Id.

This provision applies to judgments rendered in other states as well as those rendered in this state. Id.

Where a cause of action based upon fraud had not accrued more than five years before the enactment of this provision in chapter 167 of the acts of the thirteenth general assembly, it was held that the right of action would continue until barred by this provision. Higgins v. Mendenhall, 42 Id., 675.

Where an action of slander is brought, and recovery is sought for repetition thereof, each repetition must be declared upon as a distinct cause of action. And where the petition charged the speaking of slanderous words more than two years prior to bringing of the action, the action was barred by the statute of limitations, notwithstanding it also charged the further speaking of slanderous words on many occasions up to the time of filing the petition. Gean v. Hennessy, 69 Id., 573.

Ses. 2529. [Fraud; mistake; trespass.]—In actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake, and in actions for trespass to property, the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the fraud, mistake or trespass complained of shall have been discovered by the party aggrieved.

Where a cause of action based upon fraud had not accrued more than five years before the enactment of this provision in chapter 167 of the acts of the thirteenth general assembly, it was held that the right of action would continue until barred by this provision. Higgins v. Mendenhall, 42 Iowa, 675.

The statute does not begin to run in actions for relief on the ground of fraud until the discovery of the fraud by the aggrieved party. Ryan v. Doyle et al., 31 Id., 53; McLenan v. Sullivan, 13 Id., 521; Hamlenebek v. Riley, 35 Id., 165; Shaw v. Teeple, 33 Id., 189; Cowan v. Toole, 31 Id., 518. But if relief can be had at law or in equity, the action must be brought within five years after the perpetration of the fraud. McGinnis v. Hunt, 47 Id., 682.

Where a judgment is sought to be enforced against land which it is alleged the debtor fraudulently conveyed to his wife before the rendition of the judgment, the burden of proof is on the defendant pleading the statute of limitations to prove not only that five years have elapsed since the fraud, but since it was discovered or became known to the plaintiff. Both of these facts are essential to constitute the bar. Baldw RSA v. Tuttle, 23 Id., 63.

Section 2301 of the code, limiting actions for the recovery of real property sold by an administrator to five years from the date of the sale, does not apply to a case where where the proceedings are attacked on the ground of fraud; and in such case the statute will, under sections 2329 and 2330 of the code, commence to run only from the time of the discovery of the fraud. Cowan v. Toole, 31 Id., 518.

To recover money paid by mutual mistake, or by the mistake of one party and fraudulently received and retained by the other, an action at law will lie, and would be barred, by the statute of limitations, in five years after the payment. Higgins v. Mendenhall, 51 Id., 135, overruling the same case reported in 42 Id., 675.

An action on the bond of a treasurer of a sub-district, not being based upon fraud, although by fraudulent concealment the forfeiture of the bond was not discovered until after the bar of the statute had intervened, is not saved by the provisions of this section of the code. The Dist. Tp. of Boomer v. French, 40 Id., 601.

When there is no fraudulent concealment of the fact that a right of action exists, but a concealment merely of the existence of property from which a judgment might be satisfied, the operation of the statute of limitations is not suspended by this section. Humphreys v. Mottson et al., 43 Id., 556.

This section applies only to cases where relief is asked in controversies heretofore solely cognizable in courts of chancery. Brown v. Brown, 44 Id., 349; Gebhard v. Sattler, 40 Id., 152; The Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Dunkwardt et al., 47 Id., 432; Higgins v. Mendenhall, 51 Id., 185. See Meur v. Bosaruth et al., 44 Id., 499, where the facts established were held to postpone the running of the statute until the discovery of the alleged fraud; and was held entitled to rents and profits for five years preceding the commencement of the action.

Where a party against whom a cause of action exists, by fraud or actual concealment, prevents the party in whose favor it exists from obtaining knowledge of it, the statute only commences to run from the time the right of action is discovered, or might by the use of due diligence have been discovered. Findley et al v. Stewart et al., 46 Id., 655.

An action for the rescission of a contract on the ground of fraud must be commenced within five years from the time of the discovery of the fraud. Evans v. Montgomery, 50 Id., 325.

Where by a mistake of the county treasurer, land is sold for taxes which have previously been paid, the purchaser may, at any time within five years after he discovers the mistake, maintain an action against the county for money paid by him on such sale. In such case, the petition should show the discovery of the mistake within five years of the bringing of the action. The Storm Lake Bank v. Buena Vista County, 66 Id., 128; citing and distinguishing Callanan v. County of Madison, 45 Id., 561; Beecker v. County of Clay, 52 Id., 140.

The retention of money collected upon collateral security in excess of the debt secured is only a breach of contract, and not a fraud; and the failure to discover it will not prevent the running of the statute of limitations under section 2330 of the code. Brunson v. Bollou, 70 Id., 34.

An action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of real estate is barred in five years after the fraud is discovered, and it is conclusively presumed to be discovered when the fraudulent conveyance is filed for record. Laird v. Kilbourne et al., 70 Id., 83.

In actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake, the cause of action will not be deemed to have accrued until the fraud or mistake shall have been discovered by the party aggrieved, and the entry of a judgment against a person without his knowledge, or without service of summons, is such a mistake that a cause of action to cancel such judgment will not be deemed to have accrued until discovery that the judgment is so entered, at which time the statute of limitations will commence to run. Gerrish v. Seaton et al., 34 N. W. R., 483.

When the party against whom a cause of action in favor of another has accrued, by fraud or actual fraudulent concealment prevented him from obtaining knowledge thereof, the statute of limitations will commence to run only from the time the right of action is discovered, or might, by the use of due diligence, have been discovered. Bradfords v. McCornick et al, 71 Iowa, 129. See also, Dist. Tp. of Boomer v. French, 40 Id., 601; and Findley v. Stewart, 46 Id., 655.

The statute of limitations does not run against the state university. It does not commence to run in any case where the action is for relief on the ground of mistake until the mistake is disclosed by the plaintiff. Mowatt v. Sarr et al., 72 Id., 680.

SEC. 2531. [Open account.]—When there is a continuous open current account the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued on the date of the last item therein as proved on the trial.

A continuous, accruing indebtedness for board, rent and the like, is a continuous, open, current account within the meaning of this section, and the portion of the account beyond five years is not barred, as the statute will, in such case, commence to run only from the date of the last item in the account as proved on the trial. Moses v. Crook, 32 Iowa, 172. Sec. also, Wendling v. Beser, 31 Id., 248; Tubbs v. The City Maquoketa, 32 Id., 584.

The statute commences to run under this section from the date of the last item in the account, whether such item be on the debit or credit side thereof. Thorn v. Stem v. Moore, 21 Id., 385.

To constitute a continuous, open, current, account upon which the statute of limitations will begin to run only from the date of the last item, the account must not be broken or interrupted, but constitute a running, connected series of transactions. Tuckett v. Quinby, 37 Id., 17.

An account which was broken by a hiatus of two years, and then resumed by charges of a different nature and outside of the usual business of the creditor, does not constitute such an account.

In an action to enjoin the removal of a county seat, the action was deemed commenced by the service of the writ of injunction, and held that the action was not barred when the writ was served within five years after the election, but the notice was served after that time had elapsed. Sneed v. Faville, 23 Id., 321.

The statute of limitations commences to run from the date of the last item of an account current, whether such item be on the debit or credit side of the account. Miles & Co. v. Davies, 42 Id., 91.

Where, on the retirement of a partner from a mercantile firm, the retiring partner assigned his interests in the accounts to his late co-partner, who continued the business; and where, after such assignment, there were credits entered from time upon one of said unsettled accounts, it was held that the account was an open, continuous, one, and that the assignment thereof did not close it. Keeler v. Jackson, 58 Id., 620.

SEC. 2532. [Commencement of action.]—The delivery of the original notice to the sheriff of the proper county with intent that it be served immediately, which intent shall be presumed unless the contrary appears, or the actual service of that notice by another person, is a commencement of the action.

An action is to be deemed commenced from the delivery of the original notice to the sheriff, or from the date of service, and not from the filing of the petition. Collins v. Bane, 34 Iowa, 389; Reed v. Chubb Bros., Barrows & Co., 9 Id., 173; Hagan v. Burch, 8 Id., 308; Elliott v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 10 Id., 418.

Where the original notice was not served until a month after the petition was filed, it will be presumed that the notice was delivered to the sheriff at the time of filing the petition, with the intention that it should be served immediately, and from that time the statute of limitations was suspended. Snyder v. Ives, 42 Id., 157.

It is only for the purpose of the statute of limitations that the delivery of an original notice to the sheriff for service constitutes the commencement of an action; for all other purposes the commencement of the action dates from the actual service of the notice. Brooks v. McCormick, 56 Id., 318.

A notice of an action, with the appearance day left blank, is not an "original notice" within the meaning of this section; and the delivery of such a notice by a justice of the peace to a constable for service, with the understanding that the latter should insert the appearance day at or before the time of service, held not to be the beginning of an action within the meaning of said section; and where action was not otherwise begun on theedomuary note in question until more than ten years after the note was due, an action thereon was barred by the statute of limitations. Pinney v. Donahue, 67 Id., 192.

Under this section of the code the delivery of an original notice to the sheriff with intent that it shall be served immediately, is the commencement of the action for the purposes of the statute of limitations, yet such intent must be continuous until such service shall be effected. And so when notice was placed in the hands of the sheriff, but he neglected to serve it, and afterwards returned it to plaintiff's attorney, who lost it, and nearly two years later another notice was drawn and placed in the sheriff's hands and served on defendant, held that the action was not begun with the delivery of the first notice to the sheriff, and that the period of the statute of limitations having expired before the second notice was placed in the sheriff's hands, the action was barred. Wolfender v. Barry, 65 Id., 626.
Sec. 2533. [Non-residence.]—The time during which a defendant is a non-resident of the state shall not be included in computing any of the periods of limitation above described.

The statute of limitations of this state commences to run upon contracts made and matured in other states from the time the defendant became a resident of this state. Goodman v. Stryker, 62 Id., 221.

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the law is that a debt barred by the laws of the State where it was contracted, is not for that reason barred in another state in which an action may be brought. Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Id., 224.

But under our statute such bar may be set up in an action brought in this state, when the bar was complete under the laws of the state where the defendant previously resided. Id.

The statute of limitations will not run in favor of a non-resident, to bar an action for the recovery of land after ten years, notwithstanding such non-resident has always had a tenant in possession of the land. Heaton v. Fryberger, 38 Id., 185.

Where, by reason of the non-residence of the defendant which under the statute is deducted from the period of limitation, an action on a promissory note is not barred. Neither is an action to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust made to secure such note. Clinton County v. Coz, 37 Id., 470.

Residence and not citizenship is contemplated in the statute of limitations, and it will run in favor of those who reside in this state, although he has his domicile in another state or country. Savage v. Scott, 45 Id., 130.

A defendant in pleading the statute of limitations is not bound to show a continuous residence within the state during the period of limitation; but the plaintiff, if he seeks to avoid himself of the exception thereto, has the burden of bringing the case within it. Evans v. Montgomery, 50 Id., 325.

A railway corporation doing business in this state, though incorporated elsewhere, is always subject to notice and personal judgment in the courts of this state, and hence is a resident of this state, within the meaning of the statute of limitations, and it may rely upon the statute in bar of an action not begun within the time limited therefor. Wall v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 69 Id., 498.

Sec. 2534. [Exception.]—When a cause of action has been fully barred by the laws of any country where the defendant has previously resided, such bar shall be the same defense here as though it had arisen under the provisions of this chapter; but this section shall not apply to causes of action arising within this state.

The bar of another state or country to a cause of action sued on in this state, must have been completed previous to the time the defendant became a resident of Iowa, in order that such bar shall be a defense here. Patchen v. Hopkins, 19 Iowa, 531; Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Id., 224; Lloyd v. Perry, 33 Id., 144.

Where the defendant came to this state, from a state where the debt was contracted, resided here for a time, and returned to the state by the laws of which the debt became barred, from whence he returned to this, and became a resident of this state, the case was held not to come within the exception in section 2534 of the code. Id.

The last clause of this section being an amendment added thereto by chapter 167, section 10, acts of the thirteenth general assembly, held, not to act retrospectively so as to revive an action already barred. Thompson v. Reed, 41 Id., 43.

When an action has been fully barred by the laws of another state, such bar may be pleaded here. Webster & Gage v. Rees, 23 Id., 269; Sloan v. Waugh, 18 Id., 224; Lloyd v. Perry, 32 Id., 144.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage it is not enough to plead in the answer that an action on the note was fully barred by the laws of another state where the note and mortgage were executed; it should also be averred that the right to foreclose the mortgage was so barred. Gillett v. Hill, 32 Id., 220.

This section of the code does not require that a person shall become a resident of this state to be entitled to plead that the action is barred by the laws of the state in which he resided. Liebrecht v. Wiwozen, 40 Id., 33.

It was held under section 2748 of the revision that when a personal action has become barred by the laws of any other country or state in which the defendant has resided, such bar will constitute a defense to an action on the same cause in this state, and this whether or not the cause of action arose in this state. Davis v. Harper, 43 Id., 513. The amendment of that section as in section 2534 of the code, however, changes it so that it is not now applicable to "causes of action arising within this state."

This section is not available as a defense against a cause of action arising in this state unless the action was fully barred at the time of the taking effect of chapter 1678 of the laws of 1870, which amended this section. Goodman v. Stryker, 62 Id., 221.
SEC. 2535. [Minors and insane persons.]—The times limited for actions herein, except those brought for penalties and forfeitures, shall, in favor of minors as defined by the code, and persons insane, be extended so that they shall have one year from and after the termination of such disability within which to commence said actions.

The extension of time as to minors in cases in which the cause of action shall have accrued more than ten years before majority is attained, expires with the first year of majority. Campbell v. Long, 30 Iowa, 382.

Ignorance of a right does not prevent the operation of the statute of limitations. Id.

The statute, limiting the time within which actions for the recovery of real property may be commenced, is not suspended during the infancy of a party by the provisions of section 2535 of the code. Mathews v. Stevens, 39 Id., 279.

Adverse possession of real property, either actual or constructive, for ten years, will not bar minors of the right of action to quiet title, within one year after attaining their majority. McGinnis et al. v. Edgell, 39 Id., 419.

SEC. 2536. [Death: exception.]—If the person entitled to a cause of action die within one year next previous to the expiration of the limitation above provided for, the limitation above mentioned shall not apply until one year after such death.

Where a cause of action accrues to the estate of a decedent instead of the deceased while living, the statute of limitations will not commence to run until the appointment of an administrator. But if the statute has once begun to run in the lifetime of the party entitled to sue, it is not interrupted by his subsequent death, but continues, and the cause of action survives to the personal representatives. Sherman v. The Western Stage Co., 24 Iowa, 515.

SEC. 2537. [Failure of action.]—If, after the commencement of an action, the plaintiff fail therein for any cause except negligence in its prosecution, and a new suit be brought within six months thereafter, the second suit shall, for the purposes herein contemplated, be deemed a continuation of the first.

This section applies only when no judgment upon the merits has been rendered in the first action, and the second is brought upon the same cause of action. McDonald v. Jackson, 55 Iowa, 37.

In case of failure of an action for any cause, other than negligence, this section extends the time of commencing a new action within six months, but it does not extend the time for bringing into existence the condition without which no action can be maintained, as to make a demand, where no demand had been made, until the action was barred. The Dist. Tp. of Spencer v. The Dist. Tp. of Riverton, 62 Id., 39.

Where a petition was not filed by the time fixed in the original notice, because of its having been mislaid and overlooked by the attorneys of the plaintiff, it was held that the discontinuance of the action was through negligence in its prosecution, and that another action subsequently brought on the same cause of action could not be considered a continuation of the first under the provisions of this section. Clark et al. v. Stevens, 55 Id., 306.

Where plaintiff began an action in the state court for personal injury, which defendant had removed to the federal court, where the plaintiff had dismissed without prejudice, on the ground that he believed that he could not obtain a fair trial, in the federal court, held, that a new action for the same cause, begun more than two years after the cause of action accrued, but less than six months after the first action was dismissed, was barred by section 2539 of the code, and that section 2537 did not save it. Archer v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co., 69 Id., 611.

SEC. 2538. [Bank bills.]—The above limitations and provisions shall not apply to evidences of debt intended to circulate as money, but shall, in other respects, be applicable to all actions brought by or against all bodies corporate and politic, except when otherwise expressly declared.

The statute of limitations does not run against the state. The words "bodies corporate and politic" are held not to include the state. Des Moines County, for the use, etc., v. Harker, 36 Iowa, 84.

An action brought in the name of a county for the use of, and to recover money belonging to, the school fund, is, in effect, an action by the state, and hence not barred by the lapse of the statutory period applicable to other actions. Id.

The statute may, however, run against a municipal corporation. It was accordingly held, where the original proprietor of a town held open and visible possession of a square therein for the statutory period for the limitation of real actions, claiming that he never had relinquished, but still retained title thereto, the right of the corporation to maintain an action for the recovery thereof was barred. The City of Pella v. Scholte, 24 Id., 255.
SEC. 2539. [Admission in writing.]—Causes of action founded on contract are revived by an admission that the debt is unpaid, as well as by a new promise to pay the same. But such admission or new promise must be in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby.

Under our statute of limitations the acknowledgment arising from part payment, and indorsement thereof on a promissory note, is not sufficient to prevent the bar of the statute. The admission or new promise required by the statute must, in all cases, be in writing, signed by the party to be charged. Parsons v. Carey, 28 Iowa, 431; Price v. Price, 34 Id., 494.

The admission or new promise, however, need not be by a formal writing, but may be established by letters, written and signed by the debtor. And where such letters are addressed to the creditor by name, it may be shown by parol that he was the person intended. So, also, parol evidence is competent to prove the contents of a letter in answer to which the one in question was written, where it is shown that such letter has been lost or destroyed. Collins v. Bane, 34 Id., 335.

A letter or writing relied upon as reviving a cause of action barred by the statute, must, to be available, contain a new promise or an admission of liability. A statement tending to relieve defendant of negligence claimed, and consequent liability, is insufficient. Oakson v. Beach, 36 Id., 171.

The treasurer of a school district township has no authority to bind his district by his contracts or admissions, and his indorsements of payments upon a school warrant, within ten years, will not defeat the bar of the statute of limitations. Carpenter v. District Township of Union, 68 Id., 335.

The statute of limitations commences to run, upon school warrants, drawn by the district township upon its own treasurer, from the time they are presented for payment. Id.

To receive a cause of action barred by the statute of limitations, by a written admission, it is not necessary that the name of the party to whom it is made should appear therein. It is enough if it was intended for the benefit of the holder of the note. Makos v. Cooley, 1 Id., 479.

A recital in a mortgage that it is made subject to a prior one executed by the mortgagor on the same premises to the same mortgagees, is sufficient as an acknowledgment of indebtedness on the prior mortgage to remove the bar of the statute both as against the mortgagor and a subsequent grantee of the premises from him. Palmer v. Butler, 1 Id., 578.

A new promise to pay, made before the debt is barred will remove or prevent the bar of the statute. The bar of the statute may be removed by a written admission of the debt as well as a new promise to pay the same; both are not necessary. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 518.

An action is commenced when the notice is served upon the defendant, and not when it is placed in the hands of the officer for service. Parley v. Travis et ux., 30 Id., 434.

The bar of the statute may be removed by evidence of the written admission of the debt, as well as a new promise to pay it; both are not necessary. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 518; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

A letter addressed by the maker of a promissory note to the holder, stating that the writer "hoped to pay," and that in case of his death he had provided for payment out of his life insurance, was held to amount to an admission that the debt was unpaid, reviving the right of action thereon. Bayliss et al. v. Street, 51 Id., 627.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

A letter addressed by the maker of a promissory note to the holder, stating that the writer "hoped to pay," and that in case of his death he had provided for payment out of his life insurance, was held to amount to an admission that the debt was unpaid, reviving the right of action thereon. Bayliss et al. v. Street, 51 Id., 627.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

A letter addressed by the maker of a promissory note to the holder, stating that the writer "hoped to pay," and that in case of his death he had provided for payment out of his life insurance, was held to amount to an admission that the debt was unpaid, reviving the right of action thereon. Bayliss et al. v. Street, 51 Id., 627.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

A letter addressed by the maker of a promissory note to the holder, stating that the writer "hoped to pay," and that in case of his death he had provided for payment out of his life insurance, was held to amount to an admission that the debt was unpaid, reviving the right of action thereon. Bayliss et al. v. Street, 51 Id., 627.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

Bayliss et al. v. Street, 51 Id., 627.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

A note and mortgage which have become barred by the statute of limitations may be revived by an admission of indebtedness by the mortgagors and the priority of the mortgage lien will be thereby preserved against subsequent liens taken before the mortgage became barred and not foreclosed. Ayres v. Bane, 39 Id., 493; Penley v. Waterhouse, 3 Id., 419.

and provided further, that it was not barred when the cause of action against which it is pleaded originated; but no judgment can be rendered thereon for the defendant except for costs. Folsom v. Winch, 63 Id., 477.

SEC. 2541. [Injunction or statutory prohibition.]—When the commencement of an action shall be stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of such injunction or prohibition shall not be part of the time limited for the commencement of the action.

SEC. 2542. [School fund.]—The provisions of this chapter shall not be applicable to any action brought on any contract for any part of the school fund.

CHAPTER 3.

OF PARTIES TO AN ACTION.

SECTION 2543. [Party in interest.]—Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as provided in the next section.

A party acting for himself and others, in depositing with a stakeholder the amount of a wager, cannot sue in his own name and recover from the stakeholder more than the amount contributed by himself to the wager. Toney v. Snyder, 50 Iowa, 73.

The grantee in a deed of trust is entitled to the benefit of the covenants running with the land and may sue for a breach thereof. Devin v. Hendershot, 32 Id., 192.

Where certain promissory notes belonging to B. were placed in the hands of attorneys for the sole purpose of being collected, and the proceeds applied in the payments of certain debts of B., then in the hands of such attorneys, it was held that the parties for whose benefit said notes were thus deposited became, in equity, the owners thereof; that as to them the death of B. did not terminate the agency of the attorneys, and that they were entitled to the notes and their proceeds until the indebtedness for which they were pledged was paid. Bennett v. Stoddard et al., 58 Id., 654.

The holder without indorsement of a promissory note payable to the order of the payee may maintain an action thereon in his own name, but without prejudice to the right of the maker to set-off equities existing before notice of the transfer. Younker v. Martin, 18 Id., 143.

Under our system of practice the assignee of a bond, claiming under a parol assignment may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471.

Under this section the party beneficially interested, though he may not have the legal title to the cause of action, may sue thereon in his own name. Cottle v. Cole, 20 Id., 481; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Rice v. Sovery, 22 Id., 470; Pearson v. Cumings, 28 Id., 344; McDowell v. Bartlett, 14 Id., 157.

So, under section 2544, the party holding the legal title to a note or instrument, though he be an agent or trustee, and liable to account to another for the proceeds of the recovery, may sue thereon; but he is open, in such case, to any defense which exists against the party beneficially interested. Id.

In cases of simple contracts, if one person makes a promise to another for the benefit of a third, the latter may maintain an action upon it. Roberts v. Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.

Where a bond given for the primary security of one person also contains a clause intended for the security of another, an action may be brought thereon by the latter, though not named in the bond, if he sustains any injury by a breach thereof. Huntingdon v. Fisher, 27 Id., 276.

Where a recognizance for the appearance of a party in a criminal prosecution at the district court of the county is taken in the name of the state, and becomes forfeited, suit may be brought thereon in the name of the county. Shelby County v. Simmonds et al., 35 Id., 345.

A surety on a promissory note cannot maintain an attachment proceeding against the principal until he has paid the note after maturity. Payment after the commencement of the action will not be sufficient. Dennison v. Soper, 33 Id., 183.

Where a bond given for the primary security of one person, also contains a clause intended for the security of another, suit may be brought thereon by the latter, though not named in the bond, if he is injured by a breach thereof. Huntingdon v. Fisher, 27 Id., 276.

Where a promissory note placed in the hands of an agent for collection after maturity was converted by him to his own use, and afterwards sold under an execution against him, it was held that the purchaser acquired no interest in the note which would enable him, or any one claiming through him, to maintain an action thereon against the maker or guarantor. Having no interest in the note he could maintain no action thereon. McCormick v. Williams, 54 Id., 50.

A party holding a note and mortgage by a verbal assignment may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Barthol v. Blakie, 54 Id., 482; Moore v. Lawrey, 25 Id., 338.

A person to whom a note and guaranty have been transferred by a verbal assignment, becomes invested with the right of property therein, and may, as the real party in interest, maintain an action thereon in his own name. Green v. Marble, 37 Id., 95.

An understanding by a railroad company to transport grain may be enforced by the party with whom the contract was made, and who was entitled to its benefits, although he was not the owner of the property to be transported at the time of making the contract and the tender or delivery of the property. Cobb, Blade & Co. v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 33 Id., 692.

The assignment of a claim vests the legal title thereto in the assignee. Being such owner, he is legally the real party in interest, and as such this section requires that an action on such claim must be in the name of such party. Per Severs, J., in Vinout v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 64 Id., 523.

Sec. 2544. [Exception.—An executor or administrator, a guardian, a trustee of an express trust, a party with whom, in whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another, or party expressly authorized by statute, may sue in his own name without joining with him the party for whose benefit the suit is prosecuted. The party holding the legal title to a cause of action, though he be a mere agent or trustee, with no beneficial interest therein, may sue thereon in his own name, under this section. Cottle v. Cole, 20 Iowa, 481; Conyngham v. Smith, 16 Id., 471; Rice v. Savery, 22 Id., 470; Pearson v. Cummings, 28 Id., 344.

Under this section an administrator may, at his election, sue either in his individual name or in his representative capacity. Oliver v. Townsend, 16 Id., 430; Carleton v. Byington, 17 Id., 579.

The trustee of a voluntary association, having no corporate powers, may, under this section, maintain an action in his own name for the benefit of the association. Laughlin v. Greene & Weare, 14 Id., 92.

A chose in action may be transferred to a trustee, and by this section he is clothed with the right and power to prosecute an action thereon in his own name. Goodnow v. Litchfield, 69 Id., 275.

An action upon a cause which accrued to a partnership, but brought after the death of a partner, is properly brought in the name of the surviving partner, and it is not necessary to join the personal representative of the deceased partner. Brown v. Allen, 35 Id., 306.

Where a promissory note was given by two persons for the purchase money of a stock of goods, the vendor agreeing not to engage in the same business in the same town, which purchase was made by one of the makers of a note for the benefit of a third person who engaged with the other maker in the prosecution of the business, the makers of the note, in an action thereon, can maintain a counter claim, under section 2544 of the code, for a breach of the agreement not to resume the business. Moorehead v. Hyde & Braden, 38 Id., 385.

Where plaintiffs were the joint owners of a chest, but owners in severalty of articles contained therein, which chest and contents they shipped on the defendant's railway, and a check was issued to them jointly therefor. The chest and contents were lost, and plaintiffs brought their joint action to restrain by injunction the expenditures of county moneys in the erection of a courthouse at a place which is not the county-seat of the county. Rice v. Smith et al., 9 Iowa, 570; The State, v. byers, v. Bailey, 7 Id., 396; The State, ex rel. Rice, v. Smith, 18 Id., 185.

In a suit in equity, where part of the relief asked is the cancellation of a contract, one of the parties to the contract may be properly joined as plaintiff. Mcmurray v. Van Gilder, 50 Id., 605.

The several owners of lands subject to assessment for the construction of a levee, under proceedings had by the county supervisors, may join as plaintiffs in an action, the object of which is to declare the proceedings void. Richman et al. v. The Board of Supervisors of Muscatine County, 70 Id., 627.

SEC. 2546. [Assignment: right of defendant saved.]—In case of the assignment of a thing in action, the action by the assignee shall be without prejudice to any counter claim, defense or cause of action whether matured or not, if matured when plead, in favor of the defendant and against the assignor before notice of the assignment; but this section shall not apply to negotiable instruments transferred in good faith and upon valuable consideration before due.

A judgment is a chose in action merely; is not invested with the peculiar character of negotiable paper, and passes to an assignee thereof charged with all the equities which could be asserted against it in the hands of the assignor. Ballenger v. Tarbell, 18 Iowa, 419; Burtis v. Cook & Sargent, Id., 194.

In an action by the original payee upon a promissory note, for the use of the assignee to whom it has been transferred without indorsement, the same defenses may be made as if held by the original payee. Younger for use, etc., v. Martin, 18 Id., 143.

Under this section when a promissory note is indorsed after maturity, and the maker having no notice of the indorsement, afterwards makes payment to the original payee, he may plead such payment as a defense in an action on the note against him by the indorsee. Haywood & Son v. Leecher et al., 61 Id., 574.

Under this section the defendant in an action on a negotiable promissory note by the assignee thereof, transferred after maturity, may set up as a counter-claim or cause of action a note held by him against the assignor, which was acquired by him before notice of the transfer of his note by the assignor. Downing v. Gibson, 53 Id., 517.

But in an action by the indorsee of a promissory note transferred after maturity, the maker cannot plead a counter-claim existing in his favor against the payee and growing out of a transaction unconnected with the note itself. Section 2546 applies to non-negotiable paper and does not change the above rule. Richards v. Unyly, 34 Id., 427.

While under our statute, an unassignable note is assignable and the assignee may sue thereon in his own name, it is subject in his hands to any defense or set-off which the maker had against the assignor thereof before notice of the assignment. Sage v. Wheeler, 31 Id., 112.

Prior to the code of 1873, and under section 2700 of the revision, it was held that the assignment of an unassignable cause of action, did not necessarily draw after it all of the equities of an independent nature, but those only which were connected with the transaction. Davis v. Milburn, 3 Id., 169; Burtis v. Cook & Sargent, 16 Id., 124; Isett & Brewster v. Lucas, 17 Id., 503; Stannus v. Stannus, 30 Id., 445; Shipman v. Robbins, 10 Id., 208; Levis v. Denton, 13 Id., 441; Ryan & Louthan v. Chex, 15 Id., 589; May v. Lamb, 15 Id., 79.

Where the plaintiff, as assignee, brought suit on an injunction bond executed by the defendant to one M., the defendant set up a certain promissory note made by M. to the defendant, and also a judgment against M., in favor of defendant, as counter-claims. Held:

1. That the counter-claims were properly pleaded as against the plaintiff as assignee of the bond.

2. That the plaintiff had the right to show that the note was obtained by duress, and that the judgment was void for want of jurisdiction in the court rendering it. That the plaintiff, as assignee, could assert the same defenses to said counter-claims that M. could have done. Miller v. City of Centerville, 57 Id., 640.

SEC. 2547. [Defendants.]—Any person may be made a defendant who has, or claims, an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff; or who is a necessary party to a complete determination or settlement of the question involved in the action, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

Where a mortgagee of real property has conveyed the same by deed containing a covenant of warranty against all incumbrances, he has such an interest that he may, on his own application, be made a party to an action to foreclose the mortgage. Gifford v. Workman et al., 15 Iowa, 34.

In an action to remove a cloud upon a title to land, all persons necessary to a complete settlement of the question involved may properly be made parties. Beckwith v. Dargets et al., 18 Id., 303.

Upon the failure of a national bank, the receiver, appointed by the controller of the currency, is a proper party defendant in a suit against the bank. Turner v. The First National Bank, etc., et al., 26 Id., 592.

In an equitable action the fact that a person is a member of a firm which is plaintiff will not prevent the joinder of another firm of which he is also a member, as defendant. Ford & Musson v. The Jud. Dist. etc., 46 Id., 294.
Sec. 2548. [United interest: joinder of parties.]—Persons having an united interest must be joined on the same side either as plaintiffs or defendants, except as otherwise expressly provided by law. But when some who should thus be made plaintiffs refuse to join, they may be made defendants; the reason thereof being set forth in the petition.

One of two joint owners of a promissory note cannot maintain an action thereon in his own name without joining the other owner, though the note is payable to bearer and in his possession. McNamee v. Carpenter, 56 Iowa, 276.

Sec. 2549. [Common interest: one suing for all.]—When the question is one of a common or general interest to many persons, or when the parties are very numerous and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of the whole.

The owner of the real property on which a mechanic’s lien is sought to be established is a necessary party to an action for that purpose. Killer & Bennett v. Tracey et al., 11 Iowa, 380.

In Fleming v. Mershon, 36 Id., 413, MILLER and DAY, JJ., held, under this section that to authorize a plaintiff to sue in behalf of others not named, they must have a common or general interest with him in the result sought to be accomplished by the action, and that several persons charged with a tax have no such common or general interest in resisting the collection of the same as will authorize one to sue for all. Cole, J., dissenting and BRECK, CH. J., expressed no opinion.

Since that case it has been held that where a question representing the validity of a tax extends to the whole assessment, or where it affects in the same manner a number of persons, so that the question involved can be presented, without confusion, in one suit, all, or any number of those thus affected, may join in bringing the action. Branduff et al. v. Harrison County et al., 13 West Jur., 112.

Where an alleged illegality in taxation extends to the whole assessment, or where it affects in the same manner a number of persons, so that the question involved can be presented by one petition filed by all or any number thus interested, such joint petitions may be filed. Branduff et al. v. Harrison County et al., 50 Id., 164.

Where the parties interested are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, and they have a common interest in the subject of the litigation, arising from the fact that all hold land under the conveyance which defendants fraudulently seek to defeat, one of them may prosecute an action for the benefit of all, to enjoin the consummation of the fraud under section 2549 of the code. The Palo Alto B. & I. Co. et al v. Mahar et al., 65 Id., 74, following Branduff v. Harrison County, 50 Id., 164.

Sec. 2550. [Joint and several obligations: how sued.]—Where two or more persons are bound by contract, or by judgment, decree or statute, whether jointly only, or jointly or severally, or severally only, and including the parties to negotiable paper, common orders, and checks, and sureties on the same, or separate instruments, or by any liability growing out of the same, the action thereon may, at the plaintiff’s option, be brought against any or all of them. When any of those so bound are dead, the action may be brought against any or all of the survivors, with any or all of the representatives of the decedents, or against any or all such representatives. An action or judgment against any one or more of several persons jointly bound, shall not be a bar to proceedings against the others.

Under this section an action may be maintained against either the administrator of a deceased joint obligor or the survivors, whether the death occurred before or after the taking effect of the statute. Sellon & Co. v. Braden, 13 Iowa, 365; Mosier v. Hull, 15 Id., 603.

A decree in an action to foreclose a mortgage against the principal maker of a note, the sureties therein not being sued as parties, does not merge the note as to the sureties, unless the decree is fully satisfied by sale of the mortgaged property. A separate action may be maintained against one of the sureties for any balance remaining unpaid. The County of Dubuque, etc., v. Koch, 17 Id., 299.

Under this section an action may be maintained against one partner alone upon a promissory note executed by the firm. Ryerson v. Hendrie, 22 Id., 480; Hosmer v. Burke, 28 Id., 309, 306.

This section authorizes actions, at the option of the plaintiff, against any one or more, or all of the parties bound by non-negotiable instruments. House v. Hamblin, 29 Id., 501, 506; Tucker v. Shiner, 24 Id., 334.

A defendant may plead as a set-off or counter-claim against a plaintiff a claim arising on contract which would constitute, in the defendant's favor, a cause of action against the plaintiff and others jointly bound with him. Redman & Fear v. Malvern & Cloud, 23 Id., 296.

So, in an action to foreclose a mortgage, the defendant may plead, as a counter-claim, an account against a partnership of which the plaintiff is a member. Allen v. Maddox, 49 Id., 124.

Where an action was commenced against two as partners, but was prosecuted as against one of them only, there was no error in rendering judgment upon a verdict against this one only. Poole, Gillman & Co. v. Hintringer, 60 Id., 130.

Where a claim arises out of a joint contract, and one of the joint contractors is dead, an action may be brought against the survivor, and there may be joined with him as defendants the representatives of the deceased. Moore v. McKinley, Id., 367.

When a claim arises out of a joint contract, and one of the joint contractors is dead, an action may be brought against the survivor, and there may be joined with him as defendants the representatives of the deceased. Code, § 2550. And the filing of the petition in such case in the circuit court of the county where the administration of the estate of the deceased is pending, within the time prescribed by law, is a sufficient filing of the claim against the estate. Following McGraw v. Dennings, 38 Id., 527, Id.

An indorser in full, of a promissary note payable to bearer, may be joined with the maker in an action thereon. Stout & Co. v. Noteman, 30 Id., 414.

The maker and guarantor of a negotiable note may be joined as defendants in an action thereon. Marvin v. Adams, 11 Id., 371; Meix v. Fairchild, 12 Id., 354.

This section does not apply to defendants in actions for damages for selling intoxicating liquors to the injury of wife or children. LaFrance v. Krogman et al., 43 Id., 143.

The statute has altered the common law rule which required all joint debtors to be sued in the same action, but has made no alteration of the rule in relation to torts, where all the tortfeasors might be sued jointly or each separately, although there could be but one satisfaction. Turner v. Hitchcock, 20 Id., 310.

A judgment by confession against the principal maker of a promissory note is no bar to subsequent actions against the surety on the same note. Citizens' Savings Bank v. Oleson, 47 Id., 492.

Under this section and sections 2655 and 3097 an execution issued upon a judgment in favor of a sole plaintiff may be set off against an execution issued upon a judgment in which the plaintiff is a joint defendant. Ballenger v. Tarbell et al., 16 Id., 491.

In an action to recover for a tort, in which two are joined as defendants, and it is alleged that the tort was committed by them jointly, the jury may find that it was committed by one of the defendants alone, and judgment may properly be rendered against him therefor. Boswell & Tobbins v. Gates et al., 66 Id., 143. See also, Carothers v. Van Hogan, 2 G. Greene, 481.

This section abolishes the common law distinction between joint and several liabilities, and any one of several parties to a joint obligation may be sued. The holder of such obligation may, therefore, proceed to collect the same from one without first pursuing his remedy against the other. Strong v. Lawrence, 59 Id., 55.

SEC. 2551. [Other parties brought in.]—The court may determine any controversy between parties before it, when it can be done without prejudice to the rights of others, or by saving their rights. But when a determination of the controversy between the parties before the court cannot be made without the presence of other parties, the court must order them to be brought in.

The execution defendant is not a necessary party to a proceeding to set aside a sheriff's sale on the ground that the real estate sold was the property of a third person. Baldwin v. Thompson, 15 Iowa, 304.

When the amount due on a promissary note is claimed by a judgment plaintiff under a garnishment, and by an indorsee under a transfer before such garnishment, the court should proceed to have all the parties interested brought before the court. Fowler v. Doyle et al., 16 Id., 534.

In an action by an assignee of a cause of action, a motion to bring in the assignor as a party plaintiff, on the ground that he is the real party in interest, and that the assignment was but a pretense, was properly overruled, where it appeared that the controversy could be determined between the original parties without prejudice to the assignor. The statute does not contemplate the bringing in of a party for the convenience of one who is already a party. Vinmont v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 64 Id., 514.

When the question of the right to levy taxes involves the validity of a title adverse to that of the plaintiff in the lands, the court will dismiss an application for an injunction if the adverse claimant be not brought in as a party. Litchfield v. Polk County, 19 Id., 70.

On an action to quiet title and to correct a description of the premises running through the deeds of several prior grantees, such grantees, or, if dead, their heirs, should be made parties to the action. Flanders v. McElvanah, 24 Id., 486.

SEC. 2552. [Bond payable to state, county or municipal corporation.]—When a bond or other instrument given to the state or county, or other munic-
OF PARTIES TO AN ACTION. [TITLE XVII

An action for the performance of the contract it was stipulated that the contractor should "pay all claims for materials for the building may, in default of payment therefor, have an action on the bond against the contractor and sureties, the bond being regarded under the statute as intended for their security, and it is not necessary in such case for them to prove that they relied upon this security. Baker & Co. v. Bryant et al., 64 Id., 561; Jordan v. Kavanaugh, 23 Id., 152.

Although an administrator's bond given in 1868 ran to the county judge and his successors in office, it was, under this section, held that after the removal of the administrator who gave the bond his successor might sue thereon for assets of the estate remaining in his hands. Stewart v. Phenice et al., 65 Id., 475.

A person for whose security an injunction bond must have been intended, may maintain an action thereon, though it be not expressly payable to him. Van Gorder v. Lundy et al., 69 Id., 445.

Sec. 2553. [Partnership.]—Suits may be brought by or against a partnership as such, or against all or either of the individual members thereof, and a judgment against the firm, as such, may be enforced against the partnership property or that of such members as have appeared or been served with notice. But a new action may be brought against the other members on the original cause of action.

Under the revision the method of making the individual property of members of a partnership liable for the satisfaction of a judgment against the firm was by "acce facias. Davis & Co. v. Buchanan & Bone, 12 Iowa, 515; revision, § 2755; Lewis & Bro. v. Conrad, Young & Co., 11 Id., 153; Hansmith v. Eddy et al., 13 Id., 439; Leavitt et al. v. Ellis et al., Id., 544; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, 16 Id., 141, 145.

An action may be brought against a partnership either in the firm name or in the individual names of the partners. Markham v. Buckingham, 21 Id., 494. And they may sue in the same manner. Id.

When a partnership is sued by the individual names of the partners the property of either partner may be taken under execution, without "acce facias. Id.; Hansmith v. Eddy, 13 Id., 439; Jones v. Jones, Id., 276; Leavitt v. Ellis, Id., 444.

An action on a claim due to a partnership may be maintained in the firm name, although one of the partners may be entitled to the proceeds if the claim itself has not been applied to extinguish the debt due such partner. White & Smith v. Sanery, 50 Id., 515.

An action may be brought against one partner alone, upon a partnership note executed in the firm name. Bryerson v. Hendrie, 23 Id., 480.
Where an action is brought against one person as a member of a partnership, the court may properly allow another partner to enter an appearance as a party defendant. Green v. Green, 52 Id., 408.

A partnership may be sued before a justice of the peace of the county where the partnership had its place of business, one member of the firm residing therein, and service of notice upon the resident member will give the justice jurisdiction of the partnership, and he may render judgment against it, as such, which may be enforced against the partnership property, and that of such partners as have been served with notice or have appeared in the action; but where the action is brought against the partners as individuals, the justice has no jurisdiction to render judgment against a partner who resided and was served with notice in another county, except where the action is on a written contract for the payment of money in the township where the action is brought. Ebersole & Son v. Ware, 59 Id., 663.

Sec. 2554. [Foreign corporations.].—Foreign corporations may bring suits in the courts of this state in their corporate name.

Sec. 2555. [Unmarried woman.].—An unmarried female may prosecute as plaintiff an action for her own seduction, and recover such damages as may be found in her favor.

It was held under the code of 1851 that the right of the father to recover for the seduction of his minor daughter was not taken away by the statute, but that he might recover, although she be not living with him, and there be no actual loss of service. Updegraff v. Bennett, 8 Iowa, 72.

In that case it was also held that it need not be alleged in the petition that she was the “unmarried daughter” of the plaintiff, nor that she was of “previously chaste character.” Id.

Where an action of seduction is brought by the female seduced and she dies pending the action, it may be prosecuted to judgment by her administrator. The action does not abate as at common law. Shafer v. Grimes, 23 Id., 550.

Where the petition, after alleging the facts of the seduction, averred “that plaintiff had been damaged by the defendant in the sum of $5,000, for which she asks judgment,” it was held, after verdict, that the damages were sufficiently alleged to be the result of the seduction to sustain the verdict. Gray v. Bean, 27 Id., 221.

In a trial for seduction, inquiry into the character of the prosecuting witness for chastity must be strictly limited to the time prior to the alleged seduction. The State v. Deitrich, 51 Id., 467.

This section, by giving an unmarried female the right to prosecute, as plaintiff, an action for her own seduction, does not take away or negative the father’s right of action for the seduction of his minor daughter. Stevenson v. Belden, 6 Id., 97; Updegraff v. Bennett, 8 Id., 72.

Such right of action accrues to the father at the time of the seduction of his minor daughter, and he may maintain his action even after she has attained majority. Id.

In an action by the father, the petition need not allege that she was the “unmarried daughter” of the plaintiff, nor that she was of “previously chaste character.” Updegraff v. Bennett, 8 Id., 72.

Where an action is brought under this section by the father for the seduction of his daughter, where he alleges that his daughter is of full age, or fails to allege that she is a minor, the petition is bad on demurrer. Dod v. Focht, 34 N. W. R., 425.

Sec. 2556. [When parents may sue.].—A father, or in case of his death or imprisonment or desertion of his family, the mother, may prosecute as plaintiff an action for the expenses and actual loss of service resulting from the injury or death of a minor child.

In an action by the administrator for damages caused the estate of a minor by wrongful acts resulting in his death, the recovery is limited to his probable earnings after he shall have attained his majority; for his personal service and earnings during minority, the father, or in case of abandonment by him, the mother, is entitled to maintain the action. Laurence v. Birney et al., 40 Iowa, 377; Walters v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., Id., 458.

A parent cannot, under this section, maintain an action for the seduction of his minor daughter, where he has sustained no loss of service resulting therefrom. And where there was no loss of service or expenses incurred prior to her confinement, but she having prior thereto been married to another man, held, that he was not entitled to recover for loss of services or expenses incurred after such marriage. Hanible v. Shoemaker, 70 Id., 223.

An action by a parent for the seduction of a child can be maintained only when the child is a minor; and a petition in such case which does not allege the minority of the child is bad on demurrer. Dodd v. Focht, 72 Id., 579.

SEC. 2557. [Name unknown.]-When the precise name of any defendant cannot be ascertained, he may be described as accurately as practicable, and when the name is ascertained it shall be substituted in the proceedings.

In the absence of a statute expressly authorizing an order for the substitution of the true name of a defendant when ascertained, it is entirely competent for the court to do so directly, under the numerous liberal statutory provisions relating to amendments of pleadings. Arbuckle v. Bowman, 6 Iowa, 70.

SEC. 2558. [Written instrument: how sent or brought.]-When an action is founded on a written instrument, suit may be brought by or against any of the parties thereto, by the same name and description as those by which they are designated in such instrument.

Where a promissory note was made payable to the “S. B. Pembinaw and Owners,” it was held that a suit could not be maintained in the name of the “Steamboat Pembinaw.” This section was not intended to authorize a suit to be brought in the name of a steamboat, hotel, toll-gate or race horse. The word “name” in the statute refers to persons or corporations. Steamboat, etc., v. Wilson, 11 Iowa, 479.

In action by a corporation upon a promissory note, payable to it by its corporate name, it is not necessary to allege the corporate capacity of the plaintiff. The Harris Mfg. Co. v. Marsh, 29 Id., 11.

When a petition is based upon a contract in writing, and shows that a copy cannot be set out, but it appears by the contract admitted in evidence that the defendants are sued by the name in which they signed the contract, a motion in arrest of judgment should not be sustained on the ground that the petition neither alleged that defendants are a corporation or partnership, nor that the action is founded upon a written instrument wherein defendant’s name and description are designated. Wendell v. Osborne & Co., 63 Id., 99.

SEC. 2559. [Prisoners in penitentiary.]-No judgment can be rendered against a prisoner in the penitentiary until after a defense made for him by his attorney, or if there is none, by a person appointed by the court to defend him.

SEC. 2560. [State: actions by.]-The state shall commence and prosecute suits according to the laws of the land as in cases between individuals, except that no security shall in such cases be required.

SEC. 2561. [Transfer: abatement.]-No action shall abate by the transfer of any interest therein during its pendency.

Where, pending an action, its cause is assigned to a third person, the action may, at the discretion of the court, be continued in the name of the original party, or the assignee may be substituted. Chickasaw County v. Pitcher, 36 Id., 593.

The sale and transfer of a mill pending ad quod damnum proceedings to assess the damages caused to the property of adjacent land owners by reason of heightening the mill-dam, was held not to abate the proceedings, and that the purchaser might be substituted for the original owner. Foney et al. v. Balls et al., 30 Id., 559.

MARRIED WOMEN.

SEC. 2562. [May sue without joining husband.]-A married woman may in all cases sue and be sued without joining her husband with her, to the same extent as if she were unmarried, and an attachment or judgment in such action shall be enforced by or against her as if she were a single woman.

Under the revision a married woman could maintain an action relating to her separate property without the joinder of her husband with her. Kramer v. Cougar, 16 Iowa, 434.

In an action for the slander of the wife, the husband was a necessary party, jointly with the wife, under the revision. Enders v. Beck, 18 Id., 86.

Where a wife had abandoned her husband for cause, or had been driven from his home without cause, it was held that she could maintain an action of replevin against him in her own name, to recover possession of her separate property. Jones v. Jones, 19 Id., 236.

Section 2771 of the revision changed the common law rule, that, in an action wherein the husband and wife were joined, for an injury to the wife, the recovery was limited to damages for that injury alone, and did not embrace the injury to the husband, so that under that section the husband, in such an action, could properly join thereto a claim in his own right, and recover for the loss of the services of his wife, caused by the injury. McDonald v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 26 Id., 124.

The provisions of the statute as contained in sections 2202-221:1, 2562, have effected a complete emancipation of married women from the disabilities of coverture to which they were subjected by the common law, so that now the husband has no common or joint interest in a right of action accruing to the wife on account of a tort inflicted against her, and he cannot, therefore, be joined with her in an action upon such tort. Musselman v. Galliger et ux., 52 Id., 383. To the same effect is Pancoast v. Burnett, Id., 391; Tuttle v. The C., R. I. & P. R'y Co., 42 Id., 518.

In an action against a husband and wife jointly, they cannot plead a counter-claim for a previous malicious prosecution of the wife. Id.

Nor can the husband, in such action, set up as a counter-claim, a claim for damages accruing to him personally for a malicious prosecution of his minor children or himself by the plaintiff. Id.

While the wife alone can recover for a direct injury to herself, yet the husband has a right of action for the consequential injuries to himself resulting therefrom. Mexhirtz v. Hatten, 42 Id., 288.

SEC. 2563. [Defense by.—If husband and wife are sued together, the wife may defend for her own right; and if either neglect to defend, the other may defend for such one also.

It was held under the revision that a married woman was liable on her covenants in a deed made by her for her own real property, the same being a contract in relation to her separate property. Richmond v. Tibbles et al., 26 Iowa, 474. See revision, § 2506.

SEC. 2564. [When husband or wife deserts family.—When a husband has deserted his family, the wife may prosecute or defend in his name any action which he might have prosecuted or defended, and shall have the same powers and rights therein as he might have had; and under like circumstances the same right shall apply to the husband upon the desertion of the wife.

MINORS.

SEC. 2565. [Action, how brought.—The action of a minor must be brought by his guardian or next friend; but the court has power to dismiss it if it is not for the benefit of the minor, or to substitute the guardian of the minor or other person as next friend.

It is entirely competent for the court to discharge the "next friend" of a minor, in whose name an action has been commenced, on his motion, and to substitute another to prosecute the action. Thurston v. Carew, 8 Id., 153.

An action for damages caused to the estate of an infant by wrongful acts and resulting in his death, must be brought by his administrator; for his personal earnings and services during minority which have been lost by his death, the father, or where abandonment is shown, the mother, may maintain the action. Lawrence v. Birney et al., 40 Id., 377.

Under this section the court is authorized to dismiss an action brought for an infant by his next friend, upon finding that the action is not being prosecuted for the benefit of the infant; and where the record does not contain the evidence upon which the court below acted, the supreme court will presume that there was sufficient evidence to warrant the finding and action of the court. Ball, by Next Friend v. Miller, 59 Id., 634.

An infant may bring an action by his next friend, and in such action it is proper to prove infancy. Byars v. The Lessees of the D. V. R. Co., 21 Id., 54.

The court has no power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant unless there has first been a complete service of notice upon such infant, and an appearance and answer by a guardian ad litem appointed without such service of notice having been made, will not confer jurisdiction of the person, and the proceedings as to him will be void. Good v. Norley et al., 28 Id., 188.

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the next friend in an action by an infant plaintiff is liable for costs. Vance v. Fall, 48 Id., 364.

SEC. 2566. [Defense by.—The defense of a minor must be by his regular guardian, or by a guardian appointed to defend him where no regular guardian appears, or where the court directs a defense, by a guardian appointed for that purpose. No judgment can be rendered against a minor until after a defense by a guardian.
Where in an action against the minors, the mother was permitted by the court to come in and defend for them, it was held, that the decree should not be reversed because there was no formal entry of the appointment of a guardian ad litem. Triber v. Shafer, 18 Iowa, 29.

In an action in behalf of minors by their mothers as "next friend and guardian," it was held unnecessary to serve upon the minors an original notice of the filing of an answer in the nature of a cross-bill. Id.

The district court has jurisdiction of actions against minors as well as adult defendants, but where a minor is sued, his defense must be made by his regularly appointed guardian, if he has one, and if not, by the guardian appointed by the court. Judd v. Mosely, 30 Id., 423.

A minor may be sued in his own name, but he cannot appear by attorney, but only by guardian duly admitted or appointed by the court. Cavender v. Heirs of Smith, 5 Id., 157.

An infant is supposed to be incapable of guarding his own interests, and it is the duty of the court, before it divests him of his estate, to be satisfied that he has had a full opportunity to have "his day in court," by a proper and suitable guardian, and to see, notwithstanding any admissions of facts, even by his guardian, that his rights are not sacrificed. Id.

When the court has jurisdiction of the person of the minor and of the subject matter of the action, the failure to appoint a guardian ad litem is a mere irregularity, and the judgment is valid until set aside by direct proceedings. An injunction will not be granted to restrain the enforcement of the judgment. Drake v. Hanshaw et al., 47 Id., 291.

The failure to appoint a guardian ad litem in an action against a minor, until after the trial has commenced, will not vitiate the verdict where no prejudice is shown to have resulted from such failure. Wickersham v. Timmons, 49 Id., 267.

Notice to a ward of an application to the circuit court for an order directing the guardian to say for the support of the ward is unnecessary, the proceeding not being adversary in its nature, and the guardian being subject to the direction of the court like its own officers. Brewer et al. v. Stoddard, 49 Id., 279.

The guardian ad litem of a minor is not limited, under this section, to a mere defense of an action against the minor, but may interpose any matter which will defeat the action, even to the extent of matter pleaded as a cross-petition. Kelsey v. Kelsey, 57 Id., 383, 385.

The appointment of a guardian ad litem in an action against a minor is not jurisdictional, and a failure to appoint one is only an irregularity or error which does not render void a judgment subsequently rendered in the action. Hoover v. Kinsey Plow Co. et al., 55 Id., 685.

SEC. 2567. [Guardian: appointment of.]—The appointment cannot be made until after service of the notice in the action as directed in this code, and may then be made by the court or judge thereof, or during vacation, by the clerk; but the court shall have the power to remove such guardian when the interests of the minor require such change. If made by the judge or clerk, it shall be done by indorsing the name of the person appointed, and the time thereof, on the petition in the action.

Before any judgment can be rendered against a minor he must be defended by guardian, and the court is authorized to appoint a guardian for this purpose only after due and legal service of the original notice on the infant, in the manner directed in the statute. Judd v. Mosely, 30 Iowa, 425.

The publication of notice as required by law is all that is necessary to confer jurisdiction of the parties, and personal service upon a minor under fourteen years of age is not necessary. Farrell v. Leighton, 49 Id., 174.

SEC. 2568. [When over fourteen years of age.]—The appointment may be made on the application of the minor if he is of the age of fourteen years, and applies at or before the time he is required to appear and defend. If he does not so apply, or is under that age, the appointment may be made on the application of any friend of the minor or on that of the plaintiff in the action.

INSANE.

SEC. 2569. [Plaintiff: action by.]—The action of a person judicially found to be of unsound mind must be brought by his guardian, and, if he have none, the court or judge thereof, or the clerk in vacation, may appoint one for the purposes of the action.

SEC. 2570. [Defense: guardian of.]—The defense of an action against a person judicially found to be of unsound mind, or a person confined in any state lunatic asylum, who, by the certificate of the physician in charge, appears to be of unsound mind, must be by his guardian or a guardian appointed by the court to defend for him. Such appointment may be made upon the application of any friend of the defendant, or on that of the plaintiff, but not until service has been made as directed in this code, and no judgment can be rendered against him until defense has been made as herein provided.

SEC. 2571. [Pending suit.]—Where a party is judicially found to be of unsound mind, or is confined in any state lunatic asylum, and, by the certificate of the physician in charge, appears to be of unsound mind during the pendency of an action, the fact being stated on the record, if he is plaintiff his guardian may be joined with him in the action as such; if he is defendant, the plaintiff may, on ten days' notice thereof to his guardian, have an order making the guardian a defendant also.

SEC. 2572. [Interpleader: substitution of parties: deposit of property.]—Upon affidavit of a defendant before answer, in any action upon contract for the recovery of personal property, that some third party without collusion with him has, or makes a claim to the subject of the action, or on proof thereof as the court may direct, the court may make an order for the safe keeping, or for the payment or deposit in court or delivery of the subject of the action to such person as it may direct, and an order requiring such third person to appear in a reasonable time and maintain or relinquish his claims against the defendant, and in the meantime stay the proceedings. If such third party, being served with a copy of the order, fails to appear, the court may declare him barred of all claim in respect to the subject of the action against the defendant therein. If such third person appears, he shall be allowed to make himself defendant in the action in lieu of the original defendant, who shall be discharged from all liability to either of the other parties, in respect to the subject of the action upon his compliance with the order of the court for payment, deposit, or delivery thereof.

SEC. 2573. [Application of rule to sheriffs and officers.]—The provisions of the last section shall be applicable to an action brought against a sheriff or other officer, for the recovery of personal property taken by him under an attachment or execution, or for the value of such property so taken and sold by him. And the defendant in any such action shall be entitled to the benefit of these provisions against the party in whose favor the attachment or execution issued, upon exhibiting to the court the process under which he acted, with his affidavit that the property for the recovery of which, or its proceeds, the action was brought, was taken under such process.

Sections 2572, 2573 and 2574 were held unconstitutional because they deprive the plaintiff of rights which are in the nature of property without "due process of law." Lunbeg v. Babcock, Sheriff, etc., 61 Iowa, 42. See and compare Foule v. Mann, 35 Id., 42; Craig v. Fowler, 59 Id., 200.

SEC. 2574. [Same.]—In an action against a sheriff or other officer, for the recovery of property taken under an attachment or execution, the court may, upon application of the defendant and of the party in whose favor the process issued, permit the latter to be substituted as defendant, sureties for the costs being given. In an action against a sheriff to recover property taken by him under process, a joint application by the sheriff and the person in whose favor the process issued to have the latter substituted as defendant, may be made at any time, although an answer has been previously filed by the sheriff. Bixby v. Blair & Co. et al., 56 Iowa, 416.

This section has reference only to actions for the recovery of specific personal property seized by an officer, and does not allow the substitution of the attachment plaintiff for the sheriff in an action against the latter for trespass committed in serving the writ. Sperry, Watt & Garver v. Etheridge, 70 Id., 28.

SEC. 2575. [In case of landlord's attachment.]—An action to recover the possession of specific personal property taken under a landlord's attachment, when it is brought by the tenant or his assignee or under-tenant, may be against the party who sued out the attachment; and the property claimed by such action may, under the writ therefor, be taken from the officer who seized it when he has no other claim to hold it than that derived from the writ. The indorsement of a levy on the property made upon the process by the officer holding it, shall be sufficient taking of the property to sustain action against the party who sued out the writ.

Sections 2572, 2573, 2574 and 2575 provide merely cumulative remedies, of which the officer may avail himself at his own election. Koster & Farwell v. Pease, 42 Iowa, 488.

CHAPTER 4.

OF PLACE OF BRINGING SUIT.

SECTION 2576. [In relation to real property.]—Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county in which the subject of the action, or some part thereof, is situated:

1. For the recovery of real property, or of an estate therein, or for the determination of such right or interest;
2. For the partition of real property;
3. For injuries to real property.

Sec. 2577. Actions for injuries to real property may be brought either in the county where the property is, or where the defendant resides.

Sec. 2578. (As amended by ch. 126, 20th g. a.) [Mortgage: mechanic's lien.]
—An action for the foreclosure of a mortgage of real property, or for the sale of real property under an incumbrance or charge, or to enforce a mechanic's lien on real property [shall] be brought in the county in which the property to be affected, or some part thereof, is situated.

An equitable action against husband and wife jointly to recover judgment for articles properly included within the terms "expenses of the family," and to make the same chargeable upon the real estate of the wife, is a proceeding for the sale of real property under a charge, and under the statute may be brought in the county in which the property is situated. Hawke & Bro. v. Urban et ux., 18 Iowa, 83.

In an action on a promissory note secured by mortgage, if the object of the action is for a judgment for the amount due, to be enforced by general execution, suit should be brought in the county where the mortgagor resides. But if the object of the action is to foreclose the defendant's equity of redemption in the mortgaged property, suit should be brought in the county in which the property is situated. Cole v. Conner, 10 id., 299.

This section is permissive only; an action to recover on a note, and to foreclose a mortgage securing it, may be brought in the county where the note is, by its terms, made payable, though not that in which the mortgaged property is situated, and this although the mortgage was executed while the revision was in force, which required the action of foreclosure to be brought in the county where the land was situated, the change in the statute being one not affecting the substantial rights of the parties. The Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa v. Gleason et al., 56 Id., 47.

An action to foreclose a mortgage on real property must be brought in the county in which the mortgaged property, or some part thereof, is situated. Chadbourne et al. v. Gilman et ux., 29 Id., 181.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution takes a change of venue to another county and gives bail for his appearance at the district court of the latter county, which is forfeited for want of appearance, the forfeiture belongs to the county where, by the terms of the bond, the defendant was bound to appear, rather than to the county where the indictment was found; and suit on the bond should be brought in the county thus entitled. Decatur County v. Maxwell, 29 Id., 398.

Where several deeds, conveying land in several different counties, were executed as security for a debt evidenced by a promissory note, it was held that they all constituted but one mortgage, and that the action to foreclose was properly brought in the county where some of the land was situated. Lomax v. Smith & Co., 50 Id., 223, 292.

An action by the obligor of a title bond against the obligee to compel specific performance, or an action to foreclose the bond as a mortgage, is local in its nature, and is properly brought in the county in which the land is situated. Johns v. Orcutt, 9 Id., 350.
SEC. 2579. [Fines: forfeitures: against officers and on official bonds.]

—Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose:

1. An action for the recovery of a fine, penalty or forfeiture imposed by a statute, except that when the offense for which the claim is made was committed on a water course or highway which is the boundary of two counties, the action may be brought in either of them;

2. An action against a public officer or person specially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue or under color of his office, or against one who, by his command, or in his aid, shall do anything touching the duties of such officer, or for neglect of official duty;

3. An action on the official bond of a public officer.

See Decatur County v. Maxwell, 26 Iowa, 395.

SEC. 2580. [Attachment of property.—An action, when aided by attachment, may be brought in any county of the state wherever any part of the property sought to be attached may be found, when the defendant whose property is thus pursued is a non-resident of this state. If such defendant is a resident of this state, such action must be brought in the county of his residence, or that in which the contract was to be performed, except that if an action be duly brought against such defendant in any other county by virtue of any provisions of this chapter, such action may, if legal cause for an attachment exist, be aided by an attachment.

In legal contemplation, a railroad corporation resides in the counties through which its road passes, and in which it transacts its business, and may be sued in any county through which the road runs. Richardson & Co. v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Iowa, 26.

Where property is attached the defendant not being served, or when the action relates to real property, the action may be brought in any county where any of the personal property may be found, or where the real property, or any part thereof, is situated. Courthcy v. Carr, 5 Id., 299; Hedrick v. Gillispie, 9 Id., 572; Cole v. Connor, 10 Id., 299; Finnigan v. Manchester, 12 Id., 521; Chadbourne v. Gilman, 29 Id., 151.

In actions for the recovery of money before a justice of the peace, the justice has no jurisdiction of residents of another county, even though the actions be aided by attachment. Gates v. Wagner, 46 Id., 365.

Where an action was commenced against a non-resident by attachment, no property of the defendant being attached in the county where the suit was commenced, but a levy was made upon property in another county to which, on motion of defendant, by special appearance therefor, the venue was changed; held, that the lien upon the property was valid from the date of the levy, and took precedence of an attachment in another action brought in the county to which the venue was transferred. Laird Bros. v. Dickerson et al., 49 Id., 655.

The attachment of property in a county in which the defendant does not reside does not give the court of such county jurisdiction to hear and determine the cause if he is a resident of the state and demands a change of venue. Langworthy & Bros. v. Root, 10 Id., 299.

SEC. 2581. [Place of contract.—When, by its terms, a written contract is to be performed in any particular place, action for breach thereof may be brought in the county wherein such place is situated.

Where by the terms of a verbal contract for the purchase of a lot of hogs, they were to be delivered to the purchaser at a certain time and place named, it was held, that an action for a breach thereof was properly commenced in the county of the place where, by the terms of the contract, the property was to be delivered, though the defendant resided in another county. Oliver v. Bass, 30 Iowa, 90.

But a verbal contract stipulating that payment for goods sold, should be made at the place of sale, the purchaser residing in another county, will not sustain a personal action in the county where the goods were sold; holding this section applicable only to written contracts. Hatch & Abbott v. Johnson, 44 Id., 565. [This case seems to be in conflict with Oliver v. Bass, supra.]

Where an action to foreclose a mortgage was commenced in the county where the note was, by its terms, made payable, and pending a motion by defendant for a change of venue to the county where he resided and the mortgaged premises were situated, the plaintiff asked leave to amend his petition, withdrawing that portion seeking a foreclosure of the mortgage, and asking judgment on the note alone, which the court refused to grant, and ordered the venue changed; held, that the ruling of the court was erroneous. Allen v. Bidwell, 35 Id., 218.

An action to recover damages, for a failure on the part of the vendee of personal property to receive it, may, under this section, be brought in the county of the place, where by the terms of the contract, the property was to be delivered. Haugen & Co. v. McCartney, 34 Id., 415. Following Oliver v. Bass, 33 Id., 90.

This section does not authorize an action to be brought against a defendant where by implication, merely, he was by the contract to make payment. The promise to pay or perform in the particular place must be in terms. Hunt v. Britt, 23 Id., 171; Munley v. Wolf & Co., 24 Id., 141.

Where a banker's certificate is by its terms payable at a specified date, "on the return of this certificate," it was held, that it was payable at the place where the bank was located, and that an action might be brought in the county where the bank was located. Simbors v. Smith, 44 Id., 152.

The district court of a county, in a contract, by its terms, is to be performed, acquires no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, in an action thereon, by the attachment of property situated in another county. There must be personal service to warrant a judgment in personam, and property must be attached in the county in which the action is brought to authorize a judgment in rem. Hendrick & Gillispie v. Brandon, 9 Id., 319; Courtney v. Corr, 6 Id., 238.

Where a railroad corporation is a party, guarantor, merely for the purpose of enabling the holder to bring his action on the note, in a county different from that in which the maker resides, or in which the note is, by its terms, payable, and not for the purpose of additionally securing the debt, the venue should be changed to the proper county, if demanded. The Troy Portable G. M. Co. v. Bowen & Co., 7 Id., 463.

This section authorizes an action to be brought against non-residents of the county only in cases where liability arises upon some written instrument signed by the defendant in the action. And where a note was made payable in one county, but the makers and another who had orally agreed to pay the note, were residents of another county, held that in action against all the parties for the amount of the note, the one who was only orally bound was entitled to have the cause transferred to the county of his residence. Mc Daniels v. Wheeler et al., 64 Id., 678. See The Iowa Loan and Trust Co. v. Day et al., supra, as to proper venue where a mortgage on land in one county is made to secure a note payable in another county.

Where a note made payable in one county is secured by a mortgage on land located in another county, the court of the county where the note is payable has no jurisdiction of an action to foreclose the mortgage, where the notice to the maker is by publication only. The action in such case is strictly in rem, and must be brought in the county where the land lies; but if such service is had upon the maker of the note, and the action is so brought as to enable the court of the county where the note is payable to render a personal judgment upon a note against the maker thereof, (See code, § 2581,) then that court may also render a decree foreclosing the mortgage, though the land lies in another county. Equitable Life Ins. Co. v. Gleason, 56 Id., 47. The rule was different under section 2785 of the revision. See Chadbourne v. Gilman, 29 Id., 151. Iowa Loan and Trust Company v. Day, 63 Id., 439.

SEC. 2582. [Common carriers.]—Actions may be brought against railway corporations, the owners of mail stages, or other line of coaches or cars, including express companies, car companies, telegraph and canal companies, and the lessees, companies, or persons operating the same, in any county through which the line or road thereof passes, or is operated.

A railroad corporation may be sued in any county through which the road passes, or in which the corporate powers of the company are exercised. Baldwin v. The M. & M. R. Co., 5 Iowa, 515; Richardson v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Id., 299; The Niagara Ins. Co. v. Roderich, 41 Id., 162.

A party, by accepting the benefits of a proposition for a sale made by and through another, constitutes the latter his agent, and the place where the sale is made is the agency, in such sense that an action may be maintained against the principal for a breach of warranty in the sale. Milligan et al. v. Davis, 29 Id., 126.

Telephone companies, for the purposes contemplated in this section of the code, are to be considered as telegraph companies, and under said section justices of the peace may enterin suits against such corporations, in any county through which their line is operated, where the amount is within the justice's jurisdiction. Franklin v. The N. W. Tel. Co., 69 Id., 97; Hunt v. Farmers Ins. Co., 67 Id., 742. See also, Wall v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 69 Id., 493.

SEC. 2583. [Construction of railways, telegraphs or canals.]—An action may be brought against any corporation, company or person engaged in the construction of a railway, telegraph line or canal, on any contract relating thereto, or to any part thereof, or for damages in any manner growing out of the work thereon, in any county where such contract was made, or performed in whole or in part, or where the work was done out of which arose the damage claimed.

The provision of the statute in relation to bringing suits against corporations is permissive and not mandatory. Baldwin v. The M. & M. R. Co., 5 Iowa, 518.

A corporation organized under the laws of another state than Iowa will be regarded by the courts, for all jurisdictional purposes, as a citizen of the state under whose laws it is organized. Treadway et al. v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 21 Iowa, 351.

Where a subcontractor is entitled to a mechanic's lien for work done in the construction of a railroad, and the contractors by their contract are personally liable to pay the claims of the subcontractor, such contract is open in relation to the construction of a railway under this section, and the contractors would be entitled to a change of venue to the county of their residence. Vaughan v. Smith & Co., 58 Iowa, 553.

It is not necessary to allege in the petition the facts which show plaintiff's right to maintain his action in the county in which it was brought, and if the defendant appears and moves to have the cause removed to another county, alleged to be the county of his residence, the plaintiff may show such facts by affidavits filed in opposition to the motion. Jordan v. Kavanaugh, 64 Iowa, 152.

Sec. 2584. [Insurance companies.]—Insurance companies may be sued in any county in which is kept their principal place of business, in which was made the contract of insurance, or in which the loss insured against occurred.

The district court of the county, where a loss by fire occurred, has jurisdiction of an action to recover on an insurance policy, although the company resides in a different county. The State Ins. Co. v. Granger, 62 Iowa, 74.

This section of the code confers jurisdiction upon a justice of the peace of an action brought on a policy of insurance insuring property within his county, where the loss occurs, although the principal office or place of business of the insurance company is in another county. Hunt v. The Farmers Ins. Co., 67 Iowa, 742.

Sec. 2585. [Office: agency: suits growing out of.]—When a corporation company or individual, has an office or agency in any county for the transaction of business, any suits growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency may be brought in the county where such office or agency is located.

In an action against a corporation service of notice may be made upon any agent, general or special, charged with the business of the corporation in the county where the action is brought, if it arises out of or is connected with the business of the agency in that county. The Centennial Mutual Life Ass'n v. Walker et al., 60 Iowa, 75.

The plaintiff and defendant, who were residents of different counties, entered into a contract where the plaintiff became the agent of defendant for the transaction of certain business in plaintiff's county. Plaintiff brought an action in his county to recover for a breach of said contract—the discharge of plaintiff without cause; held that under this section the action was properly brought in the county where the agency was located, and that a motion by defendants to remove it to the county of their residence was properly overruled. The statute applies to actions between principal and agent, and it makes no difference that the relation had ceased when the action was brought. Ockerson v. Burnham & Co., 63 Iowa, 570.

A partnership is a legal entity, known to and recognized by the law, and for jurisdictional purposes it may be considered as having a residence in every county in which it does business, though neither partner resides in such county. Consequently a justice of the peace has jurisdiction to render judgment against a partnership doing business in his county, though all the partners reside elsewhere, where the action grows out of the business of an agency established within the county and notice is served upon the agent in charge as provided by this section of the code. Fitzgerald et al. v. Grimmell et al., 64 Iowa, 261.

The provision of the statute in relation to bringing suits against corporations is permissive and not mandatory. Baldwin v. The M. & M. R. Co., 5 Iowa, 518.

A corporation organized under the laws of another state than Iowa will be regarded by the courts, for all jurisdictional purposes, as a citizen of the state under whose laws it is organized. Treadway et al. v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 21 Iowa, 351.

Sec. 2586. [Place of residence.]—Except where otherwise provided herein, personal actions must be brought in a county wherein some of the defendants actually reside. But if none of them have any residence within this state, they may be sued in any county wherein either of them may be found. But in all actions upon negotiable paper, except when made payable at a particular place in which any maker of such paper, being a resident of the state, is made defendant, the place of trial shall be limited to a county wherein some one of the makers of such paper resides.

The attachment of property in a county in which the defendant does not reside, does not confer jurisdiction on the court in such county to hear and determine the cause, if the defendant is a resident of some other county in the state and demands a change of venue. Langworthy & Bro. v. Root, 10 Iowa, 260.

The courts of this state can acquire no jurisdiction of the person of a non-resident of the state by service of an original notice beyond their respective geographical limits. Weil et al. v. Lowenthal, 10 Id., 575.

When a person while in the act of changing his residence from one county to another, is passing through an intermediate one, he is regarded under this section as having no residence within the state, and may be tried in such intermediate county. Cohen v. Daniels, 25 Id., 58.

So also a non-resident of the state may be sued in any county in this state where he or any of his co-defendants may be found and served with notice. Swan et al. v. Smith, 26 Id., 87.

The general rule established by this section is that personal actions must be brought in the county wherein some of the defendants actually reside. Hatch & Abbott v. Johnson, 44 Id., 535; Savage v. Scott, 45 Id., 130, 133.

When defendants, though non-residents, appear in a personal action and demur to the petition, the court thereby acquires jurisdiction of their persons. Johnson & Co. v. Touten & LeRoy, 60 Id., 46.

The general rule under the statute is that personal actions must be brought in the county wherein some of the defendants actually reside; but if none of them have a residence in the state they may be sued in any county wherein either of them may be found. Courtney v. Carr, 6 Id., 238.

An indorser of a promissory note, payable to bearer, may be joined in an action against the maker, and the suit may be properly brought in the county in which the indorser resides, though the maker resides in a different county. Stout & Co. v. Noteman et al., 30 Id., 414.

An action on a bond conditioned for the payment of a penalty if the principal shall fail to erect a school house according to the terms of a written contract, is a personal action which must be brought in the county wherein some of the defendants reside. Superintendent of School District, etc., v. Reichard et al., 39 Id., 168.

A personal action may be brought in the county in which any one or more of the defendants reside; and the objection that the action is brought in the wrong county, for the reason that it is apparent on the face of the petition that the defendant residing therein is not legally liable on the contract upon which the suit is founded, cannot be raised on the motion for a change of venue. Armstrong v. Bordland et al., 35 Id., 537, citing Troy Portable Mill Co. v. Brown, 7 Id., 465; Myer v. Woodbury et al., 14 Id., 57.

SEC. 2587. [Non-residents.]—Where an action embraced in the preceding section is against several defendants, some of whom are residents, and others non-residents, of the county, and the action is dismissed as to the residents, or judgment is rendered in their favor, or there is a failure to obtain judgment against such residents, such non-residents may, upon motion, have said cause dismissed with reasonable compensation for trouble and expense in attending at the wrong county, unless they, having appeared to the action, fail to object before judgment is rendered against them.

This section applies solely to purely personal actions, and does not apply to actions for the recovery of specific personal property. Porter v. Dalhoff & Co. et al., 59 Iowa, 459.

Where one is sued upon a contract in a county of which he is not a resident, along with other defendants who are residents of that county, he cannot have the cause removed to the county of his residence under this section of the code on the ground that the plaintiff has failed to obtain judgment against the other defendants, so long as a right to judgment against such other defendants remains undetermined. McAllister v. Safely, 65 Id., 719.

SEC. 2588. [Change of residence after suit brought.]—If, after the commencement of an action in the county of the defendant's residence, he removes therefrom, the service of notice upon him in another county shall have the same effect as if it had been made in the county from which he removed.

SEC. 2589. [Effect, if brought in wrong county.]—If a suit be brought in a wrong county, it may there be prosecuted to a termination, unless the defendant, before answer, demand a change of place of trial to the proper county. In which case, the court shall order the same at the costs of the plaintiff, and may award the defendant a reasonable compensation for his trouble and expense in attending at the wrong county. And if the sum so awarded, and costs, are not paid to the clerk at a time to be fixed by the court, or if the papers in such case are not filed by the plaintiff in the court to which the change is ordered ten days before the first day of the next term thereof, or if ten days do not intervene between the making of said order and the first day of the next term of said court, ten days preceding the first day of the next succeeding term thereof, in either event the action shall be deemed to be discontinued.

It is error to dismiss an action because it is commenced in the wrong county. The venue should be changed as prescribed in this section. Cole v. Conner, 19 Iowa, 299.

The district court of the county where the plaintiff resides, having jurisdiction of the cause for divorce and alimony, may rightfully declare and enforce a lien for alimony, granted in the action, against real estate of the defendant situated in another county. Harsberger v. Harsberger et al., 26 Id., 503. See also, Carnes v. Crawford, 4 Id., 151; Breckenridge v. Brown, 9 Id., 396; Cole v. Conner, 10 Id., 299; Finnegan v. Manchester, 12 Id., 521.

That a personal action was brought in the wrong county does not affect the validity of the judgment rendered therein. Nor can fraud be predicted upon such fact. The failure of the defendant to move for a change of venue is a waiver of his right to such change. Leach v. Kohn et al., 36 Id., 144.

To enjoin the enforcement of a judgment by execution the action must be brought in the county court where the judgment was rendered upon which the execution is issued. Anderson v. Hall et al., 48 Id., 346. See section 396 and notes.

Where, upon a default being set aside, the defendants were ruled to answer in twenty days, but failed to do so and at the expiration of the time moved for a change of venue on the ground that they were residents of another county, held, that they were not then entitled to the change. The First Nat. Bank of Muscatine v. Krance et al., 50 Id., 235.

This section is not applicable to proceedings before a justice of the peace. Post v. Brownell & Co., 1d., 497; Meunich v. Breitenbach, 41 Id., 527, 529.

An action on a bond, conditioned for the payment of a penalty, if the principal shall fail to erect a school house according to the terms of a written contract between the principal and the school district, is a personal action, which must be brought in the county wherein some of the defendants reside. The Ind. School District, etc., v. Reichard et al., 39 Id., 168.

If, in such case, an action is brought in the county where the school house was to be erected, but in which none of the defendants resided, they will be entitled to a change of venue under this section. Id.

An action may be properly brought in the county where the indorser of a promissory note resides, though the maker resides in a different county. Stout v. Noteman, 30 Id., 414.

The party resisting a motion for a change of venue does not waive his objection to the ruling of the court granting the change by appearing in the court to which the cause is transferred and stipulating for a trial thereof at a time certain, or by moving for a new trial. Ferguson v. Davis Co., 51 Id., 290.

Upon the transfer of an action brought in the wrong county to that of the defendant’s residence the original papers are required to be filed in the court to which the transfer is made, and if they are not so filed ten days before the next ensuing term of such court the cause will be deemed discontinued. And such omission is not waived by the appearance of the defendant to move a dismissal of the action. Hall v. Rogers, 56 Id., 393.

An action to recover specific personal property, brought in the county where the defendant resides, will not be defeated simply because the plaintiff fails to prove that the property is detained in that county, for even if the suit should have been brought in the county in which the property or part of it was situated, still the action may be prosecuted to judgment in the county of defendant’s residence unless he makes application for its removal to the proper county. Goldsmith v. Wilson, 67 Id., 662.

The plaintiff brought an action, aided by attachment, against the defendant in the wrong county, but defendant appeared, and had the cause removed to the county of his residence under this section. Held, that the attachment, having been issued in the wrong county, was without authority of law; that this section did not validate it, or authorize its transfer with the case; that it could not be enforced by the court to which the cause was transferred, and that it should have been dissolved upon motion in that court. (Laird v. Dickinson, 40 Id., 665, distinguished.) Wason v. Millsap, 70 Id., 348.

When an action which should have been brought in the county of the defendant’s residence is brought in another county, but the court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter, the defendant does not waive the want of jurisdiction by failing to move for a change of venue to the proper county under section 2589 of the code. Orcutt v. Hanson, 71 Id., 514.
CHAPTER 5.

OF CHANGE IN PLACE OF TRIAL.

SEC. 2590. [When granted.]—A change of the place of trial in any civil action may be had in any of the following cases:

1. Where the county in which the action is pending is a party thereto, if the motion is made by the party adversely interested, and the issue be triable by jury;

2. Where the judge is a party, or is directly interested in the action, or is connected by blood or affinity with any person so interested nearer than the fourth degree;

3. (As amended by ch. 94, 20th g. a.) Where either party files an affidavit verified by himself and three disinterested persons, not related to the party making the motion nearer than the fourth degree, nor standing in the relation of servant, agent, or employe of such party, stating that the inhabitants of the county, or the judge, is so prejudiced against him, or that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants of the county that he cannot obtain a fair trial. [But when either party files an affidavit as provided by this subdivision the other party shall have a reasonable time to file counter affidavits, and the court or judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, must decide whether a change shall be granted, when fully advised, according to the very right and merits of the matter.]

4. By the written agreement of the parties and their attorneys.

5. If the issue is one triable by jury, and it is made apparent to the court or judge that a jury cannot be obtained in the county where the action is pending, then, upon the application of either party, a change of place of trial shall be granted to the nearest county in which a jury can be obtained.

(As amended by ch. 118, 17th g. a.) [Number of changes limited.]

Provided, however, that not more than two changes to either party of the place of trial shall be allowed for any of the causes enumerated in this section; nor shall a change of venue from the county be allowed in case of appeal from a justice of the peace; nor shall a change of the place of trial be allowed when the issue can only be tried to the court, for any objection to the inhabitants of the county, or for the objection that the adverse party or his attorney has such an undue influence over the inhabitants thereof that he cannot obtain a fair trial; and

Provided, that after any change of venue has been taken as herein provided, and a trial had and the jury been discharged or a new trial has been granted them, a subsequent change of venue may be taken for any of the causes mentioned in said section.

A stipulation for a change of venue, under section 2590 of the code, may be signed either by the parties or their attorneys, the word “and” in the statute being used in a disjunctive sense. Ottego v. Schutte et al., 51 Id., 279.

The discretion confided to the court in determining applications for change of venue in criminal cases does not exist in applications for change of venue in civil cases, and where the applicant for the change brings himself within the provisions of the statute, it is generally erroneous to refuse it. Jones v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 36 Id., 68; Welch v. Savory, 4 Id., 241; Eckles v. Hinney, Id., 539; Berner v. Frazier, 8 Id., 77; Miller v. Laraway, 31 Id., 538; Turner v. Hitchcock, 29 Id., 310.

An affidavit for change of venue under their subdivision, by two or more, is not sufficient, unless it appears that neither of the deponents is related nearer than the fourth degree to either of the persons making the motion. Fairburn v. Goldsmith, 58 Id., 339.

The application under this provision must be verified by the party himself. Hedge v. Gibson, Id., 696.
An application for a change of venue based upon the prejudice of the inhabitants of the county, cannot be made under this section in vacation before the issues are made up. Gibson v. Abbott, 50 Id., 155.

The provisions of this section apply to proceedings on appeal from an award of damages for right of way by sheriff's jury. Whitney v. The Atlantic Southern Ry. Co., 53 Id., 651.

The statute does not authorize a change of venue after verdict and while a motion for a new trial is pending. Perkins v. Jones & Lane, 55 Id., 211.

A change of venue may be had on the ground of the prejudice of the judge, on a proper showing, although the term of the presiding judge expires before the next ensuing term of court, which is the first term at which the case can be tried. Allerton v. Eldridge, 56 Id., 709.

Where an application for a change of venue was made on account of prejudice of the judge, purporting to be supported by the affidavit of the requisite number of persons, whom the applicant refused to designate to an officer, that they might be subjected to cross-examination, it is competent for the court upon being satisfied that the application is made solely for delay, not in good faith, and without any ground therefor, to overrule the application. Davis v. Rivers, 49 Id., 436.

A proceeding upon charges preferred by a private prosecutor to disbar an attorney is a "special proceeding" wherein a change of venue on account of prejudice of the judge should be granted upon the same terms and upon compliance with the same rules as in ordinary civil actions. The State v. Clarke, 45 Id., 155.

It does not constitute ground for a change of venue, in an action for the recovery of a forfeiture, that the county in which the action is brought is the party-plaintiff in the action. The State v. Merrick, 47 Id., 112.

Where a corporation defendant moves for a change of venue on account of the prejudice of the judge, the principal affidavit therefor, as required by this section, may be made by any officer or agent of the corporation having sufficient acquaintance with the facts to make it conscientiously, but an affidavit which does not show the official character of the deponent except by an unverified recitation thereof in the body of the affidavit, is not sufficient. McGovern v. The Koosuk Lumber Co., 61 Id., 265.

Where in an application for a change of venue the affiants stated in reference to their relation to the applicant, "that they are not related to the plaintiff in this action nearer than the fourth degree; nor do they, nor any of them, stand in the relation of servants, agent, or employee of said plaintiff; nor are they in any manner interested in the result or issue in this action," held sufficient. Goodnow v. Litchfield, 63 Id., 375.

This section, as amended by chapter 94 of the laws of 1884, permitting affidavit to be filed in resistance of a motion of change of venue because of the prejudice of the judge, and investing the court with a discretion in the matter, applies to actions which were pending when the amending statute was enacted, as well as to those since begun. Eikenberry & Co. v. Edwards, 71 Id., 82.

Sec. 2591. [To whom and when made.]—The application for a change of place of trial may be made either to the court or to the judge in vacation, and, if made in term time, shall not be awarded until issue be made up unless objection be to the court; nor shall such application be allowed after a continuance, except for a cause not known to the affiant before such continuance; and after one change, no party is entitled to another for any cause in existence when the first change was obtained.

An application for a change of venue, based upon the alleged prejudice of the judge, made after the cause has been once continued, is insufficient where it fails to state that the grounds for the change were not known prior to such continuance. Finch v. Billings, 22 Iowa, 225, cited and followed in McCracken v. Webb, 36 Id., 551.

Where the defendant made a motion for a more specific statement of the cause of action, which was overruled, and he thereupon made an application for a change of venue on account of alleged prejudice of the judge, which was withdrawn from the files by the plaintiff's attorney, and the court, without knowledge of the application, rendered judgment by default; held, that the default should have been set aside without a showing of a meritorious defense, and the application for a change of venue should have been considered by the court. Beasley v. Cooper et al., 42 Id., 542.

After a change of venue, the party applying for another must allege and show that the cause upon which he bases his application was not in existence when the first change was obtained. Schanigen v. Smith, 43 Id., 259.

An application for a change of venue, upon the ground of prejudice of the people of the county, cannot be made in vacation before the issues are made up. Gibson v. Abbott et al., 50 Id., 155.

Where, upon motion of defendants, a change of venue was granted from the circuit to the district court, held to be error for the district court to grant another change of venue upon motion of the plaintiff, after several terms of court had intervened since the first change, in the absence of a showing that the cause on which plaintiff based his application was not in existence when the first change was granted. It was not a compliance with this section for the plaintiff to allege that the cause on which the application was based "came to his knowledge since the last continuance." The statute must be strictly complied with. Michaels v. Crabtree et al., 59 Id., 615.

This section does not apply to a case where the first change of venue was by the agreement of parties. Bizby v. Carskadden et al., 63 Id., 164.

The statute relating to changes of venue does not contemplate a change of forum as distinguished from a change of the place of trial; and when the change is made on account of the prejudice of the judge, and is sent to another court of the same county, it is as much a change of the place of trial, within the meaning of the statute, as when it is sent to another county on account of the prejudice of the inhabitants; and when a change of either kind has been taken, a second change cannot be had for any cause which was in existence when the first change was obtained. Weare & Allison v. Williams, 69 Id., 232. This section also forbids a change of venue from the county of a case on appeal from a justice of the peace. Boileau v. The C., B. & Q. R'y Co., Id., 324.

SEC. 2592. [To what county or court.]—The place of trial shall be changed to some other county in the same district or circuit, unless the objections are to the judge, or the objections made appear from the affidavits to exist as to all the other counties in the district, and shall be to the most convenient county to which no objection is made. Whenever the change shall be granted on account of the prejudice or disability of the judge, the action shall be transferred to the district or circuit court of the same county, unless objections exist as to both the judges, in which case it shall be transferred to the most convenient county in some other district or circuit.

SEC. 2593. [How made during vacation.]—If an application for the change is made in vacation, five days' notice of the same, with a copy of the affidavit, shall be served on the adverse party or his attorney; and if the judge grant the change, he shall forthwith transmit his order to the clerk, together with all the papers used before him.

SEC. 2594. [When deemed perfected: consequences of failure.]—If the order for the change is granted in vacation, the same must be perfected by noon of the second day after the order is received by the clerk, and, if granted during term time, the same must be perfected by the morning of the second day thereafter or before the cause is reached for trial, if sooner reached, or such change, whether granted in term or vacation, will be deemed waived and the cause tried as though no such order has been granted. When the change has been perfected or agreed to by the parties, the clerk must forthwith transmit to the clerk of the proper court, strongly enveloped and sealed, a transcript of the record and proceedings, with all the original papers, having first made out and filed in his office authenticated copies of such original papers; but if less than all of several plaintiffs or defendants take such change, the original papers shall not be so transmitted, but a copy thereof. And as to those who take no change, the cause shall proceed as if none had been taken, except that if the place of trial is changed to a court in the same county, no transcript or copies shall be made out, but the original papers shall be transmitted.

The supreme court refused to interfere with an order of the court below overruling a motion to redocket a cause for a change of venue, on the ground that the transcript fees were not paid to the clerk within the time prescribed by the statute, when it did not appear affirmatively that such fees were not secured to the clerk. Brown v. Jefferson County, 16 Iowa, 339.

The provisions of the statute requiring the change to be perfected within the time specified therein, does not apply where a change is granted upon the agreement of the parties, and after such order the court making it has no further jurisdiction over the case. Carroll County v. The American Emigrant Co., 57 Id., 371.

In a case where a change of venue was taken in term time it was held that the payment of the costs at any time during the day on which they were required to be paid was a sufficient compliance with the statute, provided such payment was made before the order for the change was vacated. Bacon v. Black, 38 Id., 162.

A garnishee occupies the relation of defendant to the principal action, and like the defendant therein may take a change of venue. When either of the parties has procured a transfer of the cause, it will, nevertheless, proceed against the garnishee in the court where it was commenced, unless he applies for a change of venue. Westphall, Hinds & Co. v. Clark, 42 Id., 371.

Where a change of venue had been granted, and the costs were ordered to be paid by the applicant, upon whose failure to pay the same the order granting the change of venue was set aside and judgment by defendant rendered, it was held that although the costs were subsequently relaxed, and their amount paid by the applicant, this did not entitle him to have the default set aside and a change of venue again granted. Stryker v. Rivers, 47 Id., 108.

Sec. 2595. [Docked.]—Upon filing such transcript and papers in the office of the clerk of the court to which the same were certified, the cause shall be docketed without fee and proceeded in as though it had originated therein.

Sec. 2596. [Costs of change.]—Unless the change be granted under subdivisions two, four or five, of section two thousand, five hundred and ninety of this chapter, all costs caused thereby or that are rendered useless by reason thereof, shall be paid by the applicant, and the court, or judge, at the time of making the order, shall be designated in general terms such costs, and no change shall be deemed perfected until such costs are paid.

When the venue of an action is changed, the costs should be taxed as when a cause is continued. Robbins et al. v. Neal et al., 10 Iowa, 560.

Where a change of venue had been granted, and the costs ordered to be paid by the applicant, upon whose failure to discharge the same the order granting the change was set aside and judgment rendered by default, it was held that although the costs were subsequently relaxed, and their amount paid by the applicant, he was not thereby entitled to have the default set aside and the change of venue again granted. Stryker v. Rivers, 47 Id., 108.

Where an order for change of venue was made upon condition of payment of all costs accrued up to date of order, including costs of a former term, it was held error. Bannigan v. Central R'y Co., 58 Id., 671.

Sec. 2597. [Jury to be paid by county from which change is taken.]—Where the place of trial in any civil action is changed to any county other than that in which the same was properly commenced, where the trial thereof takes place at a regular term, and occupies more than one calendar day, the judge trying said case shall certify the number of days so occupied, and the county in which the case was originally commenced shall be liable to the county where the same is tried for the sum of two dollars per day for each jurymen engaged in the trial thereof.

Sec. 2598. [In case special term is held.]—Where a special term of any court is held for the trial of any action contemplated in the preceding section, the court trying the same shall make out and certify the amount of county expenses incurred in the trial of each case, and the same shall be a legal and valid claim against the county in which the same was properly commenced.

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

Section 2599. [Original notice.]—Actions in a court of record shall be commenced by serving the defendant with notice signed by the plaintiff or his attorney, informing the defendant of the name of the plaintiff, and that on or before a date therein named, a petition will be filed in the office of the clerk of the court wherein suit is brought, naming it, and stating in general terms the cause or causes of action, and if the action is for money, the amount thereof, and that unless he appears thereto and defends before noon of the second day of the term at which defendant is required to appear, naming it, or at such other time as may be by rule of such court prescribed, default will be entered against him and judgment rendered thereon. In all cases where the time for the commencement of the term has been changed after the notice has been served, the defendant shall be held to appear at the time to which such term has been so changed.

An action in personam is commenced by delivering the original notice to the sheriff of the county with the intention that he shall serve it immediately, or by the actual service thereof by another person. Elliott v. A. J. Stevens & Co., 10 Iowa, 418.

The original notice must state both the amount of the plaintiff's demand, and the nature of his cause of action. Moody v. Taylor, 12 Id., 71.

The notice should designate by name the term at which the defendant is required to appear and answer; it is not sufficient to require the defendant to appear at "the next term" after service of the notice. The Des Moines Branch of S. B. v. Van, Id., 523; Van Vark v. Van Dam, 14 Id., 252; Decatur County v. Clemens, 18 Id., 596.

Where an original notice required the defendant to appear "on or before noon of the 29th day of September, 1864, being the second day of the next term of the district court," the 29th being in fact the fourth day of the term; it was held, that in the absence of a showing of prejudice there was no error in refusing to set aside a default granted on the day named. Burr v. Wilcox, 19 Id., 31.

An original notice which required the defendant to "appear and answer on or before noon" of a certain date, without naming the term, nor that such date was the second day thereof, was held sufficient under section 2412 of the revision, if the date thus named was in fact the second day of the term. Knapp, Stout & Co. v. Haight, 23 Id., 76. See also, The F. Ins. Co. v. Highsmith, 44 Id., 330.

The service of an original notice which does not state the place or time at which the defendant is required to appear and defend gives the court no jurisdiction of the defendant, and a judgment rendered upon such service is not binding on the parties, and may be attached collaterally. Kitsmiller v. Kitchen, 24 Id., 163.

A judgment for alimony in an action for a divorce, when prayed in the petition, is not void because the original notice contained no statement that alimony was claimed. The power to grant alimony is, at least under the statute, a more incident to the power to grant a divorce between the parties. McEwen v. McEwen, 26 Id., 315.

If the notice be defective or the service imperfect merely, the jurisdiction is saved and the proceedings cannot be collaterally assailed, but it is otherwise where there has been no notice, or where the paper relied on as such is without the essential requirements of a notice. Cooper v. Sudderland, 3 Id., 114; Bolzer v. Chapline, 12 Id., 204; Bonsall v. Isaac, 14 Id., 399; Morrow v. Wend, 4 Id., 77; Ballinger v. Tarbell, 16 Id., 495; Shawshak v. Loffer, 24 Id., 217; Purley v. Hayes, 22 Id., 11; Lyon v. Vannatta, 35 Id., 521; Haas v. Clark, 37 Id., 355; Woodbury v. Maguire, 42 Id., 339.

An original notice, requiring the defendant to appear "on or before noon of the second day of the April term of the district court, to be begun on the 12th day of April, 1870," was held insufficient to require the defendant to appear when the term did not commence until the 18th of said month. Boots et ux. v. Shules et al., 29 Id., 507.

Where an original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed the foreclosure of a mortgage, which was properly described, and other relief as prayed for in the petition, it was held, that it was sufficient to give the court jurisdiction over the person of the defendant and the subject matter in controversy, although it did not state how much was claimed. York v. Boardman, 40 Id., 57.

Where the original notice stated that the plaintiff claimed a certain sum of money and the foreclosure of a mortgage, but the petition failed to ask a foreclosure, it was held, that a judgment of foreclosure was not void, but voidable only, and might be set aside upon motion, but that the judgment for the money due on the note should not be disturbed. O'Connell v. Cotter et al., 44 Id., 48.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section the district court has power, under section 180, to make a rule requiring defendants to appear and plead before noon of the first day of the term, when so notified. McGrew v. Dovens, 67 Id., 657.

An original notice required the defendants to appear at a term in July, which was, as then fixed by law, the next term, and in the mean time the law was changed, fixing the term in October. Held, that the defendants were bound to appear at the October term, without additional notice. Peoria M. & Fire Ins. Co. v. Dickerson, 28 Id., 274.

A notice of the commencement of an action served upon the defendant's wife, out of the state and duly published in a weekly newspaper requiring the defendant to appear at a time specified in the district court in Linn county, was held sufficient as to place, and conferred jurisdiction on the court to render a judgment in rem against property attached in the action. Bond v. Epley, 48 Id., 600.

An appearance by the defendant in an action operates as a waiver of any variances between the original notice and the petition; and after such appearance the statement of the petition and not those of the notice govern as to the amount of the plaintiff's claim. Holmes & Avery v. Budd et al., 11 Id., 166.

An appearance by a guardian ad litem whom the court has appointed, without service having been made upon a minor heir, in a proceeding to sell real estate, will not operate as a waiver of notice to the minor heir, and will not confer jurisdiction of his person, and the proceedings will be void. Good v. Norley et al., 28 Id., 188.

A judgment will not be vacated on the ground that the attorney appearing for the defendant had no authority to do so, when there is doubt about that fact, and there are no allegations in the petition to vacate, showing a defense to the action in which the judgment was rendered. Russell v. Potteraumie County, 20 Id., 256.

A judgment by default, rendered on an original notice which is merely defective, is not void for want of jurisdiction. The judgment in such case would be irregular, but the remedy would be by notice to correct in the court where it was rendered. De Ter v. Boone County, 34 Id., 488; Pratt v. Western Stage Co., 27 Id., 363; Newcomb v. Deace, 1d., 381.

An original notice which required the defendant to appear and "answer" on or before a certain day, was held sufficient to support a default entered for want of an appearance. Lyman & Co. v. Beittel & Ross et al., 55 1st., 417.

SEC. 2600. [Discontinuance.]—If the petition is not filed by the date thus fixed, and ten days before the term, the action will be deemed discontinued.

Unless the date is filed by the date fixed in the original notice, the action will be discontinued. Hudson v. Blanyus et al., 22 Iowa, 323; Cibula v. Pitt's Sons Mfg. Co., 45 Id., 528.

And the appearance of the defendant for the purpose of presenting a motion to discontinue will not be a waiver of the defect resulting from the failure to file the petition in time. Id.

It was held, under the code of 1851, that if the petition was not filed at the time named in the notice, it was sufficient if filed ten days before the commencement of the next term. McCaffree v. Guesford, 10 Id., 233; Cheever v. Lane, 3 Id., 296.

Insufficient service cannot have the effect of quashing the original notice and dismissing the action. Cheever v. Lane, 3 Id., 296.

See Clark et al. v. Stevens, 55 Id., 361, noted under section 2337, ante.

The fact that the petition was filed in the circuit court, at the time stated in in the notice where the notice required the defendant to appear in the district court, and the petition was subsequently transferred to the district court, will not change the rule of the statute requiring the discontinuance of the action. Morgan v. Small, 33 Id., 118.

Where plaintiff filed his petition Thursday, Nov. 29, and the term began Monday, Dec. 10, held that the petition was filed ten days before the term, within the meaning of section 2600 of the code. Conklin v. City of Marshalltown, 65 Id., 122.

Where defendant objects to the petition, because not filed in time, as fixed by the notice, and his objection is overruled, the petition is still pending, and by answering, he waives the objection. Paddleford v. Cook, 38 N. W. R., 137.

SERVICE OF NOTICE.

SEC. 2601. [Who may serve.]—The notice may be served by any person not a party to the action.

The original notice in an action in the circuit court may be served by a constable, and he is entitled to receive, therefor, fifty cents and mileage, as fixed by section 3806 of the code, which may be taxed as part of the costs in the case. DuBoise & Bro. v. Babcock et al., 43 Iowa, 235.

Service of notice of appeal upon the wife of the adverse party does not comply with the requirements of the statute and is not sufficient. Draper v. Taylor, 47 Id., 407.

The notice cannot be served by a party to the action. Id.

If a petition be on file at the time the original notice is in fact served, the action will not be deemed discontinued because the petition was not filed at the time specified in the notice. Smith Bros. v. Shaw et al., 49 Id., 294.

SEC. 2602. [Defendant to appear, when.]—The defendant shall be held to appear at the next term after service, provided:
902 MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS. [TITLE XVII.

1. He be served within the county where suit is brought, in such time as to leave at least ten days between the day of service and the first day of the next term;

2. He be served without the county, but within the judicial district, so as to leave at least fifteen such days;

3. He be served elsewhere, so as to leave twenty such days for every one thousand miles, or fraction thereof, extending between the places of trial and service, which distance shall be judicially noticed by the court. If not so served, he shall be held to appear at the second term after service.

In the computation of time in the service of the original notice, both the day on which the service is made and the first day of the appearance term, are excluded. Robinson v. Foster, 12 Iowa, 186.

Service of the original notice beyond the limits of the state, upon a person who is neither a citizen nor resident of this state, confers no jurisdiction over either his person or his property; but when a court has, by attachment or otherwise, acquired jurisdiction in rem over the property of a non-resident, it may, by means of service by publication within, or actual service without, the state, perfect its jurisdiction or right to adjudicate upon and conclude the rights and interests of such persons in the property thus seized and held within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Darrence v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Weil et al. v. Lowenthall, 10 Id., 575; Lutz et al. v. Kelley et al., 47 Id., 307.

Sec. 2603. The notice shall be served as follows:

1. By reading the notice to the defendant, or offering to read it in case he neglects or refuses to hear it read, and, in either case, by delivering him personally a copy of the notice, or if he refuses to receive it, offering to deliver it;

2. If not found within the county of his residence, by leaving a copy of the notice at his usual place of residence with some member of the family over fourteen years of age;

3. By taking an acknowledgment of the service indorsed on the notice, dated and signed by the defendant.

When the sheriff's return on an original notice shows that "the defendant was not found," it will be presumed that he could not be found in the sheriff's bailiwick. Macklot & Corbin v. Hart, 12 Iowa, 428.

A return on an original notice reads as follows: "Served the written notice by reading to and leaving a copy of the same with the mother of the within named, she being a member of her family, and over fourteen years of age (at her residence), the within named defendant not being found." Held, insufficient in this: 1. It did not show the "usual place" of residence of defendant. 2. It did not give the name of the person with whom the copy was left. Tavenor v. Reed, 10 Id., 416.

Where the return reads as follows: "Served" (giving date) "by reading the same in the presence and hearing of the within named Louis and Clara Englest," held, that the service was defective in that it did not show that the notice was read to the defendants. Hynes v. Englest, 11 Id., 210. See also, Farris v. Powell, 10 Id., 558; Hodges v. Hodges, 6 Id., 75.

A waiver of service of notice by an indorsement on the back thereof, signed and dated as required by this section, is equivalent to an acknowledgment of service, and confers upon the court jurisdiction of the person of the defendant. Johnson v. Monell, 13 Id., 303.

The courts of this state cannot acquire jurisdiction of the person of the defendant in ordinary personal actions, so as to proceed to judgment against a non-resident by service of notice out of the state without more. Bates v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 19 Id., 280; Weil v. Lowenthall, 10 Id., 576; Darrence v. Preston, 18 Id., 396; Hakes v. Shupe, 21 Id., 465.

A purely technical defect in the return of service of the notice in a foreclosure case, upon the minor heirs of the mortgagor, which might have been held defective on appeal, cannot be made available in a collateral proceeding by such heirs to redeem the mortgaged premises, especially where several years have elapsed since the sale, and there are no supporting equities in the case. Moore v. Maes, 22 Id., 300.

A return on an original notice that it was "personally served by reading in the hearing of the defendant and leaving a true copy with him," was held, good. Grosecen v. Henry, 27 Id., 299. See also, Anderson v. Kerr, 10 Id., 233.

The service of an original notice on the wife of one member of a partnership is not sufficient service on the firm. Subdivision 3 of this section does not apply to such case. Brydolf v. Wolf, Carpenter & Co., 32 Id., 509.

It will be presumed, in the absence of allegations to the contrary, that the court, in rendering judgment by default, passed upon the sufficiency of the service of the original notice. An erroneous ruling then reversed. McCammon v. Dearden, 28 Iowa, 329. An erroneous ruling then reversed. McCammon v. Dearden, 28 Iowa, 329.

A return on an original notice reciting that it was served upon C. by copy left at his usual place of residence with Mrs. C., was held to be in compliance of the statute. Wilson & Co. v. Call et al., 49 Iowa, 463.

The return need not specify that the defendant could not be found in the county to justify substituted service. Id.

The absence of a recital in the return of the place where the service is made is cured by a statement after the signature of the officer of the place of service. Id.

While the return should specify the date when service was made, yet a failure to incorporate the date will not render the judgment liable to collateral attack. Id.

SEC. 2604. [Return, when personally served.—If served personally, the return must state the time and manner and place of making the service, and that a copy was delivered to defendant, or offered to be delivered. If made by leaving a copy with the family, it must state at whose house the same was left, and that it was the usual place of residence of the defendant, and the township, town, or city in which the house was situated, the name of the person with whom the same was left, or a sufficient reason for omitting to do so, and that such person was over fourteen years of age and was a member of the family.

A return that an original notice was “duly served,” is not sufficient. Hodges v. Hodges, 6 Iowa, 75.

It is the duty of the officer or person serving an original notice, to state in his return, all the acts by him done in order that the court may determine the sufficiency of the service. Id. Farris v. Powell, 10 Iowa, 585.

Where an original notice was addressed to Luther Burt, and the return showed service on “L. Burt,” it was held, that the court was authorized to infer that the person named in the return was the person named in the notice. Davis v. Burt, 7 Iowa, 56.

Where a defendant is not found, and service of the original notice is made by leaving a copy at his residence, the return should state at whose house, and the name of the person with whom the copy was left, or a sufficient reason be given for omitting to do so. Id.

A return showing service of the original notice, by leaving a copy at the defendant’s usual place of residence, must show that the person to whom the copy was delivered was a member of the defendant’s family. Lyon v. Thompson, 12 Iowa, 183.

A return on an original notice which shows an acknowledgment of service by the defendant shows a good service, that being one of the modes prescribed by the statute. Libby v. McIntosh, 60 Iowa, 328.

A return of service of an original notice should state the time as well as the manner and place of service. Hakes v. Shupe, 27 Iowa, 465.

A return of service of an original notice in the following form: “Served this notice on the within named J. F. by leaving a copy of the same at his usual place of residence in the village of Jessup, Buchanan county, Iowa, with M. F., a member of defendant’s family, over fourteen years of age, the defendant not being found,” etc., was held sufficient. Farris v. Ingraham, Kennedy & Day, 34 Iowa, 231; Nealy v. Redman, 5 Iowa, 378.

An original return on which was addressed to Luther Burt, and the return showed service on “L. Burt,” it was held, that the court was authorized to infer that the person named in the return was the person named in the notice. Davis v. Burt, 7 Iowa, 56.

Where a defendant is not found, and service of the original notice is made by leaving a copy at his residence, the return should state at whose house, and the name of the person with whom the copy was left, or a sufficient reason be given for omitting to do so. Id.

A return showing service of the original notice, by leaving a copy at the defendant’s usual place of residence, must show that the person to whom the copy was delivered was a member of the defendant’s family. Lyon v. Thompson, 12 Iowa, 183.

A return on an original notice which shows an acknowledgment of service by the defendant shows a good service, that being one of the modes prescribed by the statute. Libby v. McIntosh, 60 Iowa, 328.

A return of service of an original notice should state the time as well as the manner and place of service. Hakes v. Shupe, 27 Iowa, 465.

A return of service of an original notice in the following form: “Served this notice on the within named J. F. by leaving a copy of the same at his usual place of residence in the village of Jessup, Buchanan county, Iowa, with M. F., a member of defendant’s family, over fourteen years of age, the defendant not being found,” etc., was held sufficient. Farris v. Ingraham, Kennedy & Day, 34 Iowa, 231; Nealy v. Redman, 5 Iowa, 378.

Under the code of 1851, a return on an original notice which, in the absence of personal service, stated that a copy of the notice was left with a “member of his family over fourteen years,” was held to be defective in not stating: 1, that the defendant could not be found; 2, at whose house the copy was left; 3, the name of the person with whom the copy was left; 4, that the copy was left at the usual place of residence of the defendant. Clark v. Little, 41 Iowa, 497. See also, Converse v. Warren, 4 Iowa, 158; Davis v. Bush, 7 Iowa, 36; Crittenden v. Hobbs, 9 Iowa, 417; Taconer v. Reed, 10 Iowa, 416; Sidles v. Reed, 1 Iowa, 589; Eikensburg v. Barrett, 1 Iowa, 593.

Under the revision of 1886, it was held unnecessary to name the term in an original notice at which the defendant was required to appear; requiring the appearance at the next held sufficient. The Farmers Ins. Co. v. Highsmith, 41 Iowa, 390.

A judgment will not be set aside on the ground that the return on the original notice (where service was made on defendant’s wife) fails to state that the copy was left at the defendant’s usual place of residence, for the court having passed upon the sufficiency of the return in rendering judgment, that question cannot be renewed in collateral proceeding. Ketchum v. White, 72 Iowa, 184.

SEC. 2605. [Sheriff to note when received.]—If the notice is placed in the hands of a sheriff, he must note thereon the date when received, and proceed to serve the same without delay in his county, and must file the same with his return thereon in the office of the clerk, or return the same by mail or otherwise to the party from whom he received it.
The omission of the officer to indorse upon an original notice the time when he received it will not vitiate the service. Cobb v. Newcomb, 7 Iowa, 43.

If the time when the original notice came into the hands of the officer for service becomes important, the return may be amended, or the day of service may be taken as the time. Id.

That a writ of attachment one day before the original notice was placed in the hands of the sheriff is no ground for quashing the writ. Hagen v. Burch, 8 Id., 309.

A return of service indorsed upon an original notice by the county sheriff, or his affidavit thereof, is sufficient proof of the service. Brandt v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 26 Id., 114.

SEC. 2606. [Penalty for defective return: amendment of.—If a notice be not duly filed or returned to the person from whom it was received by the sheriff, or if the return thereon is defective, the officer making the same may be fined by the court, not exceeding ten dollars, and shall also be liable to the action of any person aggrieved thereby. But the court may permit an amendment according to the truth of the case.

SEC. 2607. [How served on Sunday.]—Notice shall not be served on Sunday, unless the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, make oath thereon that personal service will not be possible unless then made; and a notice indorsed with such affidavit shall be served by the sheriff, or may be served by another, as on a secular day.

SEC. 2608. [Notice of no personal claim.]—The plaintiff may set forth in the notice the general object of the action, a brief description of the property affected by it and that no personal claim is made against any defendant, naming him, and if such defendant unreasonably defends he must pay costs.

Where a subsequent purchaser of mortgaged property who, in an action to foreclose the mortgage and correct a mistake therein, was served with notice that no personal judgment was asked against him, and appeared and obtained time to plead, but made default, it was held that he was not concluded by the default, and that on petition, the judgment should be set aside and the party admitted to make defense. Choate v. Sutton, Bell & Co., 39 Iowa, 308.

SEC. 2609. (As amended by ch. 77, 20th g. a.) [Return: how proven.]—If service be made within the state, the truth of the return is proven by the signature of the sheriff, or his deputy, and the court shall take judicial notice thereof. If made without the state, or by one not such officer within the state, the return may be proven by the affidavit of him making the same. Provided, that the service may be made on any patient confined in the hospitals for the insane by the superintendent or assistant superintendent of such hospitals, and the certificate of such officer under the seal of such hospital shall be proof of such service.

Where service of an original notice is made by one not the sheriff of the county, it must be proved by the affidavit of the person making the same. Moss Brothers v. Blinn, 7 Iowa, 261.

Before an action can be maintained against a county upon an unliquidated demand, the same must be presented to the board of supervisors, and payment by them refused. Cerro Gordo County v. Wright County, 50 Id., 439.

SEC. 2610. [Service on county: how made.]—If a county is defendant, service may be made on the chairman of the board of supervisors or county auditor. But no action shall be brought against any county on an unliquidated demand, until the same has been presented to such board and payment demanded.

Where a creditor of a county presents his claim to the board of supervisors, and it is not allowed, after a reasonable time for deliberation, he may bring his action, and cannot be defeated therein by the failure or refusal of the board to make a record of their action, or to take any action in the premises. White v. Polk County, 11 Iowa, 413.

Where a claim against a county is presented and disallowed or reduced by the board of supervisors, the claimant is not limited to an appeal from the decision, but may bring and maintain an action against the county upon his claim. Armstrong v. Tama County, 34 Id., 309.

Before an action can be maintained against a county upon an unliquidated claim the same must have been presented to the board of supervisors, and payment demanded. The County of Cerro Gordo v. The County of Wright, 50 Id., 459.

This section requires that before any action shall be brought upon an unliquidated demand against a county, the same must be presented to the board of supervisors and payment demanded. It is not required as a condition precedent to the bringing of an action that the board shall act upon the claim. All that the claimant needs to do is to present his claim, and give the board a reasonable time to act. Ferguson v. Davis County, 57 Id., 601, 603.

In a proceeding by certiorari to test the legality of the establishment of a highway by the board of supervisors where the county was not a party nor liable for costs, held, that the county auditor was not a proper person upon whom to serve notice of an appeal to bind the defendants in the proceeding, the action not being against the county. Polk & Hubbell v. Foster, 71 Id., 26.

ON CORPORATIONS.

SEC. 2611. [How served on railway corporations.—]—If the action is against any corporation, or person owning or operating any railway, telegraph line, canal, stages, coaches, or cars or any express company, service may be made upon any general agent of any such corporation, or person wherever found, or upon any station, ticket or other agent of such corporation, or person transacting the business thereof in the county where the suit is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then service may be had upon an agent thereof transacting said business in any other county.

The service of an original notice on the trackmaster of a railroad company, where it appears that the corporation has officers, is not sufficient to confer jurisdiction over the company. Richardson & Co. v. B. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Iowa, 260.

The service of notice of appeal upon a director of a railroad company was sufficient service on the corporation under section 2825, of the revision. Robertson v. The Eldora R. & C. Co., 37 Id., 245.

The return of the sheriff showing the service of an original notice upon the agent of a corporation "in the city of Waterloo, August 5, 1872," and that the agent refused to receive a copy, was held to be sufficient. The Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Highsmith et al., 44 Id., 830.

In an action against a corporation service of notice may be made upon any agent, general or special, charged with the business of the corporation within the county where suit is brought, if it arises out of or is connected with the business of the agency in that county. The Cen. Mutual Life Association, 50 Id., 75.

If any notice is required to be given to a railway company to construct cattle-guards where land is inclosed after the railway is built, written notice served on a station agent is sufficient. Haskett v. The Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y Co., 61 Id., 467.

SEC. 2612. [On municipal.—]—When the action is against a municipal corporation, service may be made on the mayor or clerk, and if against any other corporation, on any trustee or officer thereof, or on any agent employed in general management of its business, or on any of the last known or acting officers of said corporation, and if no person can be found on whom service can be made as provided in this and the preceding section, service may be made by publication as provided in other cases.

Where an agent is employed in the general management of the business of a private corporation, service of notice may be made upon him in all actions growing out of or connected with the business of his office or agency. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 27 Iowa, 363.

The treasurer of a school district is an officer thereof, and service of an original notice upon him in an action against the district constitutes service on the district. Kennedy v. The Ind. S. D. of Derby Grange, 31 Id., 189.

In an action against a corporation service of the original notice may be made upon any agent, general or special, charged with the business of the corporation in the county where suit is brought, if it arises out of or is connected with the business of the agency in that county. The M. L. Ins. Co. v. Walker et al., 50 Id., 75.

SEC. 2613. [Agents: service on.—]—When a corporation, company, or individual, has, for the transaction of any business, an office or agency in any county other than that in which the principal resides, service may be made on any agent or clerk employed in such office or agency, in all actions growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency.

A defendant cannot, after he has by his own act or that of his attorney, recognized the validity of service of notice upon his agent, object to the jurisdiction of the court. Baker v. Kerr, 13 Iowa, 384.

Service may be made upon a partnership by serving the notice upon an agent, in the general management of its business in the county, in actions growing out of or connected with the business of the agency within the county. Pratt v. The Western Stage Co., 27 Id., 363.

Also service of notice upon one member of the partnership is sufficient service on the firm. Id.

But service on the wife of a partner is not "service on the partnership." Brydolf v. Wolf et al., 32 Id., 509.

This section requires the principal to respond to service of notice upon the agent only in mat-
MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

TITLE XVII.

TERS CONNECTED WITH THE AGENCY. But the collection of a judgment which a third party had obtained against the agent, was not a matter pertaining to the agency; and upon execution on the judgment, notice served on the agent only, in proceedings whereby it was sought to hold the principal as garnishee, was not notice to the principal, and gave the court no jurisdiction to render judgment against him; and a judgment so rendered was properly vacated.

This section does not authorize service of an original notice upon an agent in the same town growing out of a transaction with another and former agent in the same business, who conducted a different office in the same town; and a notice thus served did not give the court jurisdiction over the principal.

The State Ins. Co. v. Granger, 62 Id., 272; Philip v. Covenant Benevolent Ass'n, 1 Id., 634.

An agreement entered into for definite term, between a corporation created by one state and having chief place of business there, and an individual who is to sell upon commission in a certain county in another state such corporation manufactures, will constitute such individual the agent of the corporation within the meaning of this section of the code.

Although the time mentioned in a contract of agency, between the defendant, a foreign corporation, and the agent on whom the original notice in the case was served, had expired prior to the service of the notice, yet, as the agency still in fact continued to exist, held that the service was sufficient to bind the defendant, where the action was for a breach of warranty of a machine sold to the plaintiff by the defendant through the agent on whom the notice was served. This section, (§ 2613) providing for such service is not limited in its application to domestic corporations.

MINORS—INSANE—PRISONERS.

SEC. 2614. [Minors: how served.]—When the defendant is a minor under the age of fourteen years, the service must be made on him, and also on his father, or mother, or guardian, and if there be none of these within the state, then on the person within this state having the care and control of such minor, or with whom he shall reside, or in whose service he shall be employed. When the minor is over fourteen years of age, service on him shall be sufficient.

Notice of appeal to the supreme court, given by publication in a newspaper to minors under the age of fourteen years, without more, will not give that court jurisdiction, on appeal as to such minors.

Barney v. Barney, 14 Iowa, 189,195.

Where there has been an original notice which the court has adjudged lawfully served, the proceedings cannot be treated as void for want of jurisdiction on account of irregularities appearing in the record which affect the service. The supreme court will presume that due proof of all matters necessary to be shown was made to the court upon which the adjudication of the sufficiency of the service was had.

SEC. 2615. [Insane.]—When a defendant has been judicially declared to be of unsound mind, or who is confined in any state lunatic asylum, service may be made upon him and upon his guardian, and if he have no guardian, then upon his wife or the person having the care of him, or with whom he lives, or the keeper of the asylum in which he may be confined.

SEC. 2616. [When confined in state lunatic asylum.]—When it becomes necessary to serve personally with a notice or process of any kind, a person who is confined in any state lunatic asylum, the superintendent thereof shall acknowledge service of the same for such person, whenever, in the opinion of such superintendent, personal service would injuriously affect such person, which fact shall be stated in the acknowledgment of service. A service thus made shall be deemed a personal one on the defendant.

SEC. 2617. [Prisoner in penitentiary.]—When the defendant is a prisoner in the penitentiary, a copy of the petition must be delivered to the prisoner at the time the notice is served, and a copy of the notice must be delivered to the husband or wife of the defendant, if any such there be within this state.
SEC. 2618. [In what actions and when made.]—Service may be made by publication, when an affidavit is filed and personal service cannot be made on the defendant within this state, in either of the following cases:

1. In actions brought for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein;
2. In an action for the partition of real property;
3. In an action for the sale of real property under a mortgage, lien, or other incumbrance or charge;
4. In actions to compel the specific performance of a contract of sale of real estate, or in actions to establish or set aside a will where, in such cases, any or all of the defendants reside outside of this state and the real property is within this state;
5. In actions brought against a non-resident of this state or a foreign corporation, having in this state property or debts owing to such defendant sought to be taken by any of the provisional remedies, or to be appropriated in any way;
6. In actions which relate to, or the subject of which is real or personal property in this state when any defendant has, or claims a lien of interest, actual or contingent therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly, or partly, in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is a non-resident of this state, or a foreign corporation;
7. In all actions where the defendant being a resident of the state has departed therefrom, or from the county of his residence, with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a notice, or keeps himself concealed therein with like intent;
8. Where the action is for a divorce, if the defendant is a non-resident of the state of Iowa, or his residence is unknown.

When a court has, by attachment or otherwise, acquired jurisdiction in rem over the property of a non-resident, it may by means of service, by publication, or personal service without the state, acquire jurisdiction to adjudicate upon and conclude the rights and interests of the defendant in the property thus seized and within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. Darrance v. Preston, 18 Iowa, 396. See, also, Harshberger v. Harshberger, 25 id., 503; Miller v. Davidson, 31 Id., 435.

A non-resident minor may be served by publication the same and with like effect as a non-resident adult, and when thus served the court has authority to appoint a guardian ad litem to defend for him on the failure of his regularly appointed guardian to appear. Judd v. Mosely, 30 Id., 423.

It is essential to the validity of a service by publication that the affidavit constituting the basis of an order of publication should appear of record. Beardsley v. Hines, 33 Id., 157.

When, upon proper notice by publication, the district court obtained jurisdiction of an action for divorce, it thereby obtained jurisdiction of the cause for all purposes, including the allowance of alimony so far as the subject matter out of which such allowance was made was within the jurisdiction of the court. Teving v. O'Mera, 39 Id., 326.

Where the officer's return on the original notice was "not found" in the county, and there was no affidavit that the defendant could not be found within the state prior to the order of publication, it was held that the publication was not authorized. Clark v. Kirkwood v. Huff et al., 12 Id., 506.

Where the statement in the affidavit, upon which the order of publication was made, was "that the defendant is not a resident of the state of Iowa," it was held sufficient without the statement that the defendant could not be found within the state. Byrne v. Roberts et al., 31 Id., 319.

The courts of the state cannot in an ordinary personal action acquire jurisdiction of the person of a non-resident defendant, so far as to proceed to judgment when such defendant is, without more, served with notice out of the state. Bates v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 19 Id., 290. Nor with notice by publication. Lutz v. Kelly, 47 Id., 307.

The case of Billings v. Kothe, 49 Id., 34, which held that notice by publication in a suit by attachment, made and completed before the filing of the petition, did not confer jurisdiction to render judgment directing the sale of the attached property, is overruled in Foster et al. v. Henderson, 54 Id., 290.
The affidavit required by this section as a basis for serving notice by publication, need not state that the defendant is a non-resident of the state. It is sufficient to follow the letter of the statute; and the fact of non-residence, though a jurisdictional one, may be shown by other evidence. Taylor v. Ormsby Bros., etc., 66 Id., 109.

Where an original notice to a non-resident defendant is given by publication according to law, a judgment thereon will be valid, if the defendant is in fact a non-resident, and the action relates to some of the interests enumerated in subdivision 6, of section 2618 of the code, and the record shows the publication of the notice. It is not necessary that the fact of non-residence should be proved, or that the record show a determination of that fact. Sweeney v. Van Steenburg, 69 Id., 696.

An affidavit that "the defendant * * has absconded, so that ordinary process cannot be served upon him in this state," is not sufficient, under section 2618 of the code, to justify service by publication, nor were the facts in the case such as to warrant service in that manner, and a judgment by default rendered thereon against defendant was held void for want of jurisdiction. Fuller v. Biggs et al., 66 Id., 523.

SEC. 2619. [How made.]—The publication must be made by publishing the notice required in section two thousand five hundred and ninety-nine of this chapter, four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county where the petition is filed, and if there be none printed in such county, then in such paper printed at the next nearest county of this state, which paper shall, in either case, be determined by the plaintiff or his attorney.

It would seem that the publication of an original notice published in the county where the petition is filed, but printed in a different county, is not a compliance with section 2619 of the code, and does not confer jurisdiction upon the court. Cooke v. Tallman, 40 Iowa, 183.

Where no newspaper is printed and published in the county, publication may be made in a newspaper printed in either of the counties bordering upon the one in which the suit is brought, and this may be selected by plaintiff's attorney. Id.

Where notice of an original notice in an action aided by an attachment, against a non-resident defendant, made and completed before the filing of the petition and the issuance of the writ of attachment, fails to confer jurisdiction to render judgment and to order the sale of the attached property. Billings v. Kote, 49 Id., 34.

Where notice of a motion to vacate a judgment, was filed, and plaintiff appeared and moved to correct the record, his motion being sustained the day after the motion to vacate was filed, and he excepted to the ruling upon the latter motion, held, that he suffered no prejudice for the want of formal notice. Id.

SEC. 2620. [Defendant held to appear: proof of publication.]—When the foregoing provisions have been complied with, the defendant so notified shall be required to appear as if personally served within the county in which the petition is filed, on the day of the last publication. Proof thereof being made by the affidavit of the publisher or his foreman, and filed before default is taken.

Under the code of 1851, it was held, where the service of the original was by publication and there was no appearance for the defendant, that a copy of the petition and notice had been directed to the defendant through the post-office at his usual place of residence, or that such residence was unknown. Byington v. Crosthwaite et al., 1 Iowa, 148; Brogill v. Lash, 3 G. Greene, 357; Lot Two, etc. v. Sweetland, 4 Iowa, 465; McCahen v. Carr, 5 Iowa, 331; Carr v. Kopp, 3 Iowa, 50; Tunis v. Withrow, 10 Iowa, 305; McGarvey v. Childs, 11 Iowa, 54; Wheeler v. Edinger, 10 Iowa, 409; Bristow v. Guice, 12 Iowa, 404; Hudson v. Tabbot, 16 Iowa, 97.

A compliance with the requirements of the statute in respect to service by publication, is essential in order to confer jurisdiction, and such compliance should appear of record. Id.; Abell v. Cross, 17 Iowa, 171; Woodward v. Whitescarver, 6 Iowa, 1; Foley v. Connally, 9 Iowa, 240.

SEC. 2621. [Actual service.]-Actual personal service of the notice, either within or without the state, supersedes the necessity of publication.

Actual personal service of an original notice without the state, supersedes the necessity of publication, and in such a case it is not necessary to file the affidavit that service cannot be made within the state, required by section 2618 of the code. Miller v. Davidson, 61 Iowa, 455. See also, Darrance v. Preston, 15 Iowa, 396; Bates v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 19 Iowa, 399.
TO LEGALIZE SERVICE OF ORIGINAL NOTICES BY PUBLICATION.

An Act to legalize the service of original notices by publication in cases where the petition has not been filed until after the publication of the original notice.

SEC. 1. [Where notice has been published prior to filing petition the court shall be deemed to have acquired full jurisdiction.]—Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa: That in all cases where an action has been begun in any of the courts of record of this state by serving the original notice by publication as by law provided, and said publication of the original notice has been begun or completed prior to the time of the filing of the petition in the cause, that in each and all said cases, the court in which said cause or action is pending shall be deemed to have acquired as full and complete jurisdiction thereof as though said petition had been on file at the time said publication of the original notice therein was begun, or at the time the affidavit, provided for in section 2618 of the code of 1873, was filed, and the service of the original notice in all said causes shall be deemed a full compliance with said section 2618, and sections 2619, 2620 and 2621 of the code of 1873.

Approved March 25, 1880.

In Foster v. Henderson, 54 Iowa, 220 (June term, 1880), it was held not to be essential to the acquiring of jurisdiction in a case where service of the original notice is properly made by publication, that the petition should be filed before the publication is made. Overruling Billings v. Kothe, 49 Id., 34.

UNKNOWN DEFENDANTS.

SEC. 2622. [Petition verified; statement of.]—In actions where it shall be necessary to make an unknown person defendant, the petition shall be sworn to, and shall state what interest such person has or claims to have, how the same was derived or is claimed to have been derived, as exactly as possible, that the name and residence of such person is unknown to plaintiff, and that he had sought diligently to learn the same, and thereon proceedings may be had against such person without naming him, as follows:

In proceeding against unknown defendants the petition must be sworn to, the notice approved by the court before it is published and its publication must be ordered by the court in a newspaper therein designated. If these requirements are not complied with, the court acquires no jurisdiction of such defendants and the judgment will be void as to them. Guise, Sr., et al. v. Early et al., 72 Iowa, 283.

SEC. 2623. [Court to approve notice.]—The court shall approve a notice collected from the averments of the petition, which notice shall contain the name of the plaintiff, a description of the property, and all the allegations of the petition concerning the interest of the unknown person, and the mode of deviation thereof, the relief demanded, also the name of the court and the term at which appearance must be made. Said notice must be entitled in the full name of the plaintiff against the unknown claimants of property, and shall be signed by the plaintiff's attorney.

SEC. 2624. [Make order of publication.]—The court, on its approval of said notice, shall endorse the same thereon, and order that the said notice be published in some newspaper of this state, designating such paper as shall be most likely to give notice to such unknown person.

SEC. 2625. [How, and for what time published.]—Such notice shall be filed in the cause, and its contents, without more, shall be published in the paper designated, at least weekly, for six successive weeks, and at the end of said time.
service shall be deemed complete, and such unknown person in court at the next term thereafter.

APPEARANCE.

SEC. 2626. The mode of appearance may be:

1. By delivering to the plaintiff or the clerk of the court, a memorandum in writing to the effect that the defendant appears, signed either by the defendant in person, or his attorney, dated the day of its delivery, and to be filed in the case;

2. By announcing to the court an appearance, which shall be entered of record;

3. By an appearance, even though specially made, by himself or his attorney, for any purpose connected with the cause; or for any purpose connected with the service or insufficiency of the notice. And an appearance, special or other, to object to the substance or service of the notice, shall render any further notice unnecessary; but may entitle the defendant to a continuance, if it shall appear to the court that he has not had the full timely notice required of the substantial cause of action stated in the petition.

4. (As amended by ch. 10, 15th g. a.) No member of the general assembly shall be held to appear or answer in any civil action or special proceeding, in any court of record, or inferior court, while such general assembly is in session, nor shall any person be so held to answer or appear in any such court, on the 1st day of January, the 4th day of July, the 25th day of December, or on any day of thanksgiving appointed by the president of the United States or by the governor of this state.

A memorandum in writing signed by the defendant, stating that he waives further notice and makes a voluntary appearance, is sufficient to confer jurisdiction upon the court. Shaw v. The N'th St. B'k etc., 49 Iowa, 179.

It is competent for the court to render a decree on the same day that appearance is so entered Id.

An appearance to object to the sufficiency of the original notice or to the service thereof, is an appearance in the case, but if the defendant has not been notified of the cause of action he may have a continuance as of course. When the defect complained of relates to the time for appearance and not the statement of the cause of action, a continuance can be had only for cause shown. The Des Moines Br. S. Bank v. Van, 12 Id., 523.

Where a court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter, a mere irregularity in the notice or in its service will not prevent its exercise where there is a voluntary appearance. By such appearance, the purpose and object of the notice is accomplished, and hence the notice is rendered unnecessary. Wilgus v. Getting», 19 Id., 82, 84; Post v. Brownell, 36 Id., 497.

An appearance to object to the sufficiency of the notice and to cross-examine plaintiffs' witnesses is an appearance in the action, and renders the sufficiency of the notice immaterial. Wisley v. Maynard, 21 Id., 107; Childs v. Limback, 30 Id., 365, and cases cited; Danforth v. Thompson, 34 Id., 243; Hale v. Van Swan, 18 Id., 16.

But an appearance by motion to set aside a sheriff's sale on a judgment rendered against attached property is not "an appearance for any purpose connected with the suit" within the meaning of the provisions of this section. Orsborn v. Cloud, Id., 238.

The appearance of a defendant, who has not been served with notice, to testify as a witness in the case does not constitute an appearance so as to bring him within the jurisdiction of the court as a party to the action. Nixon v. Downey et al., 42 Id., 78.

Where a defendant appears and pleads, he waive all defects in the process. Bell & Pearson v. Aekison, Morris, 21; Lorimer v. The Bk. of Ills., Id., 223.

Where a defendant appears by his attorney and consents that a judgment may be entered against him with stay of execution, etc., it is a waiver of objection to the jurisdiction of the court, and of any irregularity in the process. Switzer v. Goody, Mor., 248.

The appearance of a defendant for the purpose of presenting a motion to discontinue the cause because the petition was not filed in time, will not operate as a waiver of the defect. Cibula et al v. Pitt's Sons' Man. Co., 48 Iowa, 588.

An injunction will not be dissolved because it was served before the service of the original notice or the appearance of the defendant. Dist. Tp. v. Dist. Tp. etc., 54 Id., 115.

Where a garnishee has not been legally served with notice of garnishment, a judgment by default against him is without jurisdiction and void, and the filing of a protest by the garnishee against the jurisdiction of the court is not an appearance under this section. Padden v. Moore et al., 68 Id., 700.
Sec. 2627. [Mode of procedure.]—When the action is against two or more defendants, and one or more shall have been served, but not all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows:

1. If the action be against defendants jointly, or jointly and severally, or severally liable only, he may, without prejudice to his rights in that or any other action against those not served, proceed against those served in the same manner as if they were the only defendants; if he recover against those jointly liable only, he may take judgment against all thus liable, which may be enforced against the joint property and separate property of those served, but not against the separate property of those not served, until they have had opportunity to show cause why judgment should not be enforced against their separate property; or,

2. The plaintiff may continue till the next term, and proceed to bring in the other defendants; but at such second term the suit shall proceed against all who have been served in due time, and no further delay shall be allowed to bring in the others, unless all that appear shall consent to such delay.

REAL ESTATE.

Sec. 2628. [Pending of action: notice to third parties.]—When a petition has been filed affecting real estate, the action is pending so as to charge third persons with notice of its pendency, and while pending, no interest can be acquired by third persons in the subject matter thereof as against the plaintiff's title, if the real property affected be situated in the county where the petition is filed.

The purchaser of real property at a foreclosure sale is charged with notice of the rights of the plaintiff in another proceeding to foreclose another mortgage on the same property, and is bound by the decree thereafter rendered, notwithstanding he was not a party thereto. Cooley v. Brayton, 16 Iowa, 10.

The doctrine of lis pendens has been enlarged by the statute. Id.

A pending action to foreclose a mortgage is, under the statute, constructive notice to the world of the interest of the mortgagor. Knowles v. Rublin et al., 29 Id., 101; Woodin v. Clemens, 32 Id., 280.

A purchaser of lands at tax sale made after the commencement of an action to foreclose a mortgage on the same lands in favor of the university fund, acquires no interest in the premises as against such mortgage which would not be cut off or bound by the decree in favor of such fund. Orms v. Cutting, 22 Id., 411.

The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply where neither the vendor nor the purchaser are parties to the action. This rule is not changed by this section of the statute. Parsons v. Hoyt, 24 Id., 154.

The filing of a petition asking an attachment against the property of one defendant, and an injunction restraining a second defendant from disposing of a certain note and mortgage on property of the former defendant, will not discharge with notice of plaintiff's claims one who purchases and pays for and takes the note and mortgage after the filing of the petition and levy of the attachment on the mortgaged property, but before the service of the injunction. Such an action does not come within the provisions of section 2628 of the code. Newcomb Bros. v. Nelson & Reed, 54 Id., 324.

A purchaser of real property is deemed charged with constructive notice of the equities of one who is in actual possession of the premises at the time of his purchase. Sears v. Manson, 28 Id., 320.

Where a railway company procured a conveyance for the right of way over a tract of land which was encumbered by mortgage, during the pendency of an action to foreclose the mortgage, it was charged with notice of the action, without being made a party thereto, and was bound by the decree of foreclosure, and failing to redeem from the sale under the foreclosure, the sheriff's deed divested it of its title. Jackson v. The Centreville M. & A. R'y Co., 64 Id., 292.

The pendency of an action affecting real property is sufficient to charge third persons, purchasing at one of the parties, with notice thereof. Snowden & Co. v. Craig, 28 Id., 156; Blanchard et al. v. Ware, 37 Id., 305.

The filing of a petition affecting real property creates a lis pendens under the statute. Harshberger v. Harshberger, 29 Id., 593.
Where land is sold in one county under an execution issued upon a judgment rendered in another county, the recording of the sheriff’s deed will operate as constructive notice, although no transcript of the judgment was filed in the county where the land was situated. Foreman v. Higham, 35 Id., 382.

Where land is conveyed, after the commencement of an action to foreclose a mortgage thereon, the grantee will acquire no title to the land as against the adverse party to his grantor. Stohl v. Roost, 34 Id., 475, 477.

That a purchaser pendente lite was not informed by his grantor of the pendency of the action, or that he fraudulently concealed the fact, will be no ground for relief to such purchaser. Blanchard et al. v. Ware, 37 Id., 305.

To render a pending action notice lis pendens, it must be duly, constantly and continuously prosecuted. Davis v. Bonar et al., 15 Id., 171.

A person purchasing real property will be charged with notice of the pendency of an action affecting the same, from the time the petition is filed, and the facts that the action was not properly indexed in the appearance docket, and that the notice was not served until after the purchase, is immaterial. The filing of the petition operates as notice under this section. Haverly v. Alcutt, 57 Id., 171.

In a foreclosure suit, one who had title of record was made defendant. He was then in litigation with another over rights acquired in the property after the mortgage, held that, as the mortgagee in no way derived his title from them, the provisions of the statute did not apply to the purchaser at the foreclosure sale. Sprague v. White, 35 N. W. R., 751.

SECT. 2629. [When property is situated in another county.]—When any part of real property, the subject of an action, is situated in any other county than the one in which the action is brought, the plaintiff must, in order to affect third persons with constructive notice of the pendency of the action, file with the clerk of the district court of such county a notice of the pendency of the action, containing the names of the parties, the object of the action, and a description of the property in the county affected thereby, and from the time of such filing only shall the pendency of the action be constructive notice to subsequent vendees or incumbrancers thereof, who shall be bound by all the proceedings taken after the filing of such notice, to the same extent as if a party to the action, and the clerk of such county must, immediately on receipt of such notice, index and record the same in the incumbrance book. And within two months after the determination of such action, there shall be filed with such clerk a certified copy of the final order, judgment, or decree, who shall enter and index the same in the manner as though rendered in that county, or such notice of pendency shall cease to be constructive notice.

CHAPTER 7.

OF JOINDER OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 2630. [Ordinary and equitable cannot be.]—Causes of action of whatever kind, where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings, provided that they be by the same party, and against the same party in the same rights, and if suit on all may be brought and tried in that county, may be joined in the same petition; but the court, to prevent confusion therein, may direct all or any portion of the issues joined therein to be tried separately, and may determine the order thereof.

Under section 2630 of the code a cause of action arising from tort, may be joined with one arising on contract, when they are between the same parties, in the same right, and have the same venue and where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings. Turner v. The First N. Bk. etc., 26 Iowa, 562; Reed v. Howe, 28 Id., 250; Hinkle v. Davenport, 38 Id., 355.

This section does not apply to actions by a municipal corporation against lot owners upon an assessment for the construction of sidewalks. The City of Des Moines v. Stephenson, 19 Id., 507.

An action upon a promissory note against the maker and indorser cannot be joined with an action on an account against the indorser only. Thorpe Bros. & Co. v. Dickey et al., 51 Id., 676.

A joint action for trespass and damage to crops by stock cannot be maintained against the several owners of the stock. Cogswell v. Murphy et al., 46 Id., 44.

The objection to such a misjoinder may be taken by answer and also by motion in arrest of judgment. Id.

In an action by a creditor to set aside a conveyance of land on the ground of fraud and subject it to the plaintiff's claim against the grantor, a money demand arising on contract cannot be joined. Stevens v. Chance, 47 Id., 602.

SEC. 2631. [Plaintiff may strike out cause.]—The plaintiff may strike from his petition any cause of action or any part thereof, at any time before the final submission of the case to the jury or to the court, when the trial is by the court.

Where an action has been commenced to foreclose a mortgage upon land lying in another county, the plaintiff may, after a motion to change the venue has been made, dismiss that part of his cause of action which asks a foreclosure, and take judgment for the amount due on the note, it being payable in that county. Allen v. Bidwell et al., 35 Iowa, 218.

In an action against three persons as joint makers of three promissory notes, stated in three separate counts in the petition, where all of the defendants have been brought into court by the service of the notice, the plaintiff has the right to wholly dismiss one count of the petition, and proceed to trial on the remaining counts. Dorothy v. Dicks, 63 Id., 240.

SEC. 2632. [So may court.]—The court, at any time before the defense, shall on motion of the defendant, strike out of the petition any cause or causes of action improperly joined with others.

When a party has once plainly and clearly denied each of the averments of the petition essential to the recovery, he cannot do the same thing in several other counts and call each a defense, and if he does so the court will strike out these redundant counts. Martin v. Swearengen, 16 Iowa, 347; Davenport Gas L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Id., 6.

A misjoinder of causes of action is waived, unless assailed before defense is made by motion to strike out the cause or causes improperly joined. Flynn et al. v. The Des Moines & St. Louis R'y Co., 63 Id., 490.

SEC. 2633. [Misjoinder waived.]—All objections to the misjoinder of causes of actions shall be deemed to be waived, unless made as provided in the last section.

Where there is a misjoinder of parties as well as of causes of action a failure to make the motion provided for in section 2633 will not operate as a waiver of the objections, but the same may be urged in a motion in arrest of judgment. Cogswell v. Murphy et al., 46 Iowa, 44.

If there be any misjoinder of causes for action it is waived by a failure to object as provided for in this and preceding sections. Knot v. Tinker, 39 Id., 628.

SEC. 2634. [What done when dismissed for misjoinder.]—When a motion is sustained on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action, the court, on motion of the plaintiff, shall allow him, with or without costs in its discretion, to file several petitions, each including such of said causes of action as might have been joined, and action shall be docketed for each of said petitions, and the same shall be proceeded in without the further service, and the court shall determine, by order, the time of pleading therein.

See notes to section 2510, ante, from Sweetser & Currier v. Harwicke et al., 67 Iowa, 488.
CHAPTER 8.

OF PLEADING.

SECTION 2635. [Demur or answer: when.]—The defendant shall, in an action commenced in a court of record, demur, answer, or do both as to the original petition before noon of the second day of the term.

In the absence of a rule of court to the contrary, a default taken before noon of the second day of the term is premature and should be set aside on motion made before that time.

Sec. 2636. [Same.]—Each party shall demur, answer or reply to all subsequent pleadings, including amendments thereto and substitutes therefor, before noon of the day succeeding that on which the pleading is filed. But all pleadings must be filed by the time the cause is reached for trial.

Strictly, a reply should be filed before noon of the day succeeding that on which the answer was filed, but the plaintiff may file a reply later than such time upon reasonable terms to be imposed by the court.

Sec. 2637. [Time of pleading.]—The day on which the judge actually opens court shall be, for the purpose of timing the pleading, considered the first day of the term.

Sec. 2638. [Extension of.]—The court may extend the time of filing any pleading beyond that herein fixed, but shall do so with due regard to making up issues at the earliest day possible.

An extension of time to file an answer does not extend the time to file a demurrer. The defendant, by asking and obtaining an extension of time to answer, does not waive his right to demur, but if he desires to demur he must do so within the time fixed by the statute, and if it be filed after such time it may be stricken from the files.

Sec. 2639. [Motions assailing pleading.]—All motions assailing a pleading shall be in writing, and filed before an answer or reply has been filed to the pleading assailed, except as provided in section two thousand six hundred and fifty of this chapter, and shall specify the causes on which they are founded, and none other shall be argued or considered. But one motion and one demurrer assailing such pleading shall be filed, unless such pleading be amended after the filing of a motion or demurrer thereto.

A motion to dismiss an appeal from a justice's court, made on an imperfect record, will not preclude the party from making another motion for the same purpose upon an amended and perfected record.

Sec. 2640. A demurrer or motion assailing any pleading or count thereof, suspends the necessity of filing any other pleading to such pleading or count until the same has been determined, and the next pleading shall be filed by noon of the day succeeding such determination.

Sec. 2641. All motions and demurrers shall be argued and submitted when filed, unless the adverse party is absent or desires time, in which case it shall be extended until the morning of the succeeding day unless the cause is sooner reached for trial.

Sections 2640 and 2641 apply only to motions assailing pleadings, and have no reference to a motion to dissolve an injunction. Miller et ux. v. Folkner et al., 42 Iowa, 458.

Where a motion for a more specific statement in the petition was filed on the third day of the term, and on the same day an amended petition was filed, but no order was made respecting the motion until the morning of the fourth day, when the court made the entry "motion confessed," it was held that defendant had until noon of the fifth day to answer; that a default on the morning of the fifth day was erroneous and should have been set aside without any affidavits of merits. Brandt v. Wilson, 38 Id., 455.

Sec. 2642. [Not withdrawn.]—A motion or demurrer once filed, shall not be withdrawn without the consent of the adverse party entered thereon, or of the court.

Sec. 2643. [Appearance docket.]—The filing of a pleading or motion in the clerk's office during a term, and a memorandum of such filing made in the appearance docket within the time allowed, shall be equivalent to filing the same in open court.

When a pleading is delivered to the clerk, and a memorandum of the date of the filing thereof made in the appearance docket, it is considered filed. The indexing in the appearance docket is no part of the filing. Haverly v. Alcott, 57 Iowa, 171, 178.

Sec. 2644. [Forms of action abolished.]—All technical forms of action and pleading, all common counts, general issues, and all fictions are abolished, and hereafter the forms of pleading in civil actions, and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, are those prescribed in this code.

All prior forms of actions and pleadings are abolished, and the rules of the code, and not those laid down by Stephen and Chitty, are the tests to determine the sufficiency of pleadings. Per Dillon, J., in Taylor v. Adair et al., 22 Iowa, 279, 281.

Our system of pleading ignores all fictions and technical forms of actions and pleadings. The facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action, stated concisely and in ordinary language, is all that is required. Per Miller, J., in Holloway v. Griffith, 32 Id., 409, 413.

Under the statute all forms of action and pleadings are abolished, and the plaintiff recovers, if at all, on the facts stated and proved. McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 160, 163.

Under the code a cause of action may be stated in more than one count of the petition and while a statement therein that such counts are for the same cause of action is unnecessary, yet it will not vitiate the pleading. Pearson v. The M. & St. Paul R. Co., 45 Id., 497.

Sec. 2645. [Pleadings defined.]—Pleadings are the written statements by the parties of their respective claims and defenses, and are:

1. The petition of the plaintiff;
2. The demurrer and answer of the defendant;
3. The demurrer or reply of the plaintiff;
4. The demurrer of the defendant.

A demurrer is a pleading within the meaning of this section, and may be amended like any other pleading. Morrison v. Miller, 46 Iowa, 84.

Petition.

Sec. 2646. The petition must contain:

1. The name of the court and county in which the action is brought;
2. The names of the parties to the action, plaintiffs and defendants, followed by the word "petition" if the proceedings are ordinary, and by the words "petition in equity" if the proceedings are equitable;
3. A statement of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action.

The entire conversation in which slanderous words are spoken, constitutes but a single cause of action, although the words contain several distinct charges, either of which is actionable. Crawford v. Cochran, 18 Iowa, 391.

It is only the ultimate facts—the facts which the evidence will establish—that constitutes the cause of action, which should be stated, and not the circumstantial facts which go to prove them. Brown v. Kingsley, 38 Id., 220.

In an action of replevin, the wrongful detention is the gist of action, and a failure to allege it in the petition may be taken advantage of by demurrer, in arrest of judgment or upon appeal.

Under our code the word "petition" takes the place of the word "bill" as heretofore used in equity, and the word "declaration" as used at law.  Per Dillon, J. in Freiber v. Shafer, 18 Id., 29, 32.

The evidence must correspond with the allegations of the pleading, and where the court finds a fact which was not in issue, and bases a judgment thereon, such judgment cannot be supported.

Wolley v. Williams, 34 Id., 413.

Where the petition fails to state a cause of action, and the defendant instead of demurring answers thereto he may move in arrest of judgment after a verdict against him.  Edgerly v. The Farmers' Ins. Co., 48 Id., 587.

The plaintiff in an action cannot allege one contract in his pleading and recover upon another not alleged; nor can be allege performance of a contract and prove facts in excuse of performance.

Fauble & Smith v. Davies et al., 48 Id., 462.

This provision applies to a petition in equity as well as to a petition at law.  The statement is required to be of the facts constituting the cause of action.  When this is done a prima facie cause of action is shown, and that is all that it is necessary to state.  The First Nat. Bank v. Baker, 57 Id., 197, 199.

4. A demand of the relief to which the plaintiff considers himself entitled and if such demand be for money, the amount thereof must be stated.

In equitable proceedings under a prayer or demand for general relief such a decree will be rendered as is warranted by the facts stated, beyond that specifically asked for.  Simplot v. Simplot, 14 Iowa, 449; Cassady v. Woodbury county, 13 Id., 112.

A decree will not be rendered against a party against whom no relief is demanded in the petition.  Molby v. Dubuque Gas L. & Coke Co., 11 Id., 71.

Nor, in an action to foreclose a mortgage, will the court make a decree against property not described in the petition, although it may be included in the mortgage on which the deed is brought.  Carson v. Underwood, 12 Id., 52.

Under a general prayer in the petition for interest it is proper to include in the judgment interest accrued since the petition was filed, although the aggregate amounts to a greater sum than was prayed for in the petition, but not greater than that sum with interest from such filing.  Dawson v. Graham, 48 Id., 378.

Where the petition prays for judgment for the principal due on a promissory note, and for interest, interest can be recovered only from the commencement of the action.  Anderson v. Kerr & Lacy, 10 Id., 196.

5. [Separate counts.]-Where the petition contains more than one cause of action, each must be stated wholly in a count or division by itself, and must be sufficient in itself; but one prayer for judgment may include a sum based on all counts looking to a money remedy.

Each count must contain a statement of a cause of action as fully and sufficiently as if it was the only count in the petition.  It cannot be aided by being stated in another count.  The National Bank of Mich. v. Green, 33 Iowa, 140.

When the contract which is the basis of the action, is made by each of several defendants, the cause of action arising thereon should be stated in but one count of the petition; but where several defendants are liable to the plaintiff on different contracts for the same debt, as in the case of a maker and indorser of a promissory note, furnishing different causes of action against each, they must be stated in different counts.  Tucker v. Shiner, 24 Id., 334; Turner v. The First National Bank, S. C., 26 Id., 502.

While, under the statute, different causes of action may be joined in one action, yet they must be stated in separate counts or divisions of the petition; there is nothing in the code which com­

When a petition contains more than one cause of action, each must be stated in a separate count, and must be sufficient in itself, but when this rule is violated the defendant must make his objection in the court below, and, if he fails to do so and goes to trial, he thereby waives the objection.

6. In a petition by equitable proceedings, each division shall also be separated into paragraphs, numbered as such for more convenient reference, and each paragraph shall contain, as near as may be convenient, a complete and distinct statement.

Sec. 2647. [Amended before answer.]—The plaintiff may amend his petition without leave at any time before the answer is filed, without prejudice to the proceedings already had; but a notice of such amendment shall be served on the defendant or his attorney, and the defendant shall have the same time to answer or demur thereto as he had to the original petition.

A plaintiff may amend his petition, without leave, at any time before answer is filed, upon giving proper notice thereof to defendant. Per Beck, Ch. J., in Allen v. Bedwell, 55 Iowa, 86, 88.

DEMURRER.

Sec. 2648. [Cause of.]—The defendant may demur to the petition only where it appears on its face, either:
1. That the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant or the subject of the action; or,
2. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue; or,
3. That there is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause; or,
4. That there is a defect of parties, plaintiffs or defendants; or,
5. That the facts stated in the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded;
6. That the petition, on the face thereof, shows that the claim is barred by the statute of limitations; or fails to show it to be in writing where it should be so evidenced; or, if founded on an account, or writing as evidence of indebtedness, and neither of such writings, account, or copy thereof is incorporated into or attached to such pleading, or a sufficient reason stated for not doing so.

A demurrer should employ such language as will point to the fact, upon which it is claimed the court has no jurisdiction, or that no sufficient cause of action has been stated; but it is not necessary to state the reasons which lead the mind of the pleader to this conclusion. The Davenport Gr. L. & Coke Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Iowa, 6.

When a demurrer to a petition at law stated two grounds: 1. That the matters set forth in the petition do not constitute any cause of action against the defendant; 2. That said petition does not show such a state of facts as will justify the court in granting any relief by judgment or otherwise to said plaintiff: it was held, that it should be disregarded by the court because the same was not sufficiently specific. McKeller v. Stout, 13 Id., 487.

That the action is brought by "ordinary" proceedings when it should be brought in equity, or vice versa, is not ground for demurrer. The cause should be transferred to the proper docket upon motion. Conyngham v. Smith et al., 16 Id., 471; Traer v. Lytle, 20 Id., 301.

A demurrer will not lie for redundancy or irrelevant matter in a pleading. A motion to strike out is the proper remedy. The School D. Tp., etc. v. Pratt, 17 Id., 16; Kinyon v. Kinyon, 18 Id., 377.

A demurrer will not lie to a pleading because the prayer asks relief to which the facts stated in the pleading will not entitle the party. Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 54.

When a defect of parties is apparent on the face of the petition it may be assailed by demurrer, but when it does not so appear the fact may be pleaded by answer. Enders v. Beck, 18 Id., 86. So, also, where the court has not jurisdiction. Judd v. Mosley, 30 Id., 439; Childs v. Limback, 30 Id., 398.

A demurrer to a petition in equity to compel the clerk to satisfy a judgment of record, on the ground that the plaintiff's remedy was by motion, should be overruled. Traer v. Lytle, 18 Id., 86.

Where, in an action on a judgment by the assignee thereof, it was alleged that the "judgment has now become the property of your petitioners," but no written assignment was alleged or shown, it was held that the allegation was bad, being a conclusion of law, but that it could not be attacked by demurrer, a motion being the proper remedy. Thompson v. Cook, 21 Id., 472; Cottle v. Cole, 20 Id., 431.
Where the plaintiff fails to annex to his petition, or set out therein, the original or a copy of a chattel mortgage, under which he claims possession of property, the objection must be taken by demurrer, if at all, and constitutes no ground of objection to the introduction of the writing in evidence on the trial. Smith & Co. v. McLean, 24 Id., 322.

A demurrer based upon a ground not included in the enumeration of causes of demurrer contained in the statute, should be overruled. Orman v. Orman, 26 Id., 361.

Alternative allegations in a pleading cannot be attacked by demurrer, but by motion. Turner v. The First National Bank of Keokuk, 26 Id., 562.

Where there is a defect (or non-joinder) of parties, a demurrer will lie, but where there is a misjoinder of parties the objection must be made by motion, and not by demurrer. Id. See, also, The School District, etc., v. Pratt, 17 Id., 16; Byers v. Rodabaugh, Id., 53; Kenyon v. Palmer, 15 Id., 577; Dubuque County v. Reynolds, 41 Id., 454; King v. King, 40 Id., 120; Enders v. Beck, 18 Id., 26; Dickey v. Dargie, 18 Id., 266; Marron v. Carroll, 35 Id., 22; Dist. Tp. of White Oak v. Dist. Tp. of Osksaloosa, 44 Id., 512; Ind. School Dist., etc., v. Ind. School Dist., etc., 50 Id., 322.

A demurrer in a law action must specify the particular grounds of objection to the pleading assailed; and a demurrer to an answer in such a case, based on the ground that the facts therein stated do not constitute a defense to plaintiff's action, should have been overruled. The Traders' Bank of Chicago v. Alsop, 64 Id., 97.

A defect of parties apparent on the face of the pleading can be objected to only by demurrer, or it will be waived. McCormick v. Blossom, 40 Id., 256; Ryan & Co. v. Muellerh, 45 Id., 631.

A defect of parties not having been assailed by demurrer is deemed waived. Bouton v. Orr et al., 51 Id., 470; Melick v. The First National Bank of Toms City, 52 Id., 34.

A demurrer to an entire answer, when it contains a general denial of the allegations of the petition, should be overruled. Lake v. Greycl, 35 Id., 459.

That no bond was filed; that the writ directed the seizure of specific property, and that the relief asked in the petition was for the enforcement of a landlord's lien, are not objections that can be made by demurrer. Bruce v. Guady, 36 Id., 322.

Where a pleading contains statements of evidence, or conclusions of law, the proper remedy is by motion to strike out, although it may also be assailable by demurrer. The Iowa R. R. L. Co. v. Sac Co., 39 Id., 124.

In an action to compel a county treasurer to levy and collect a tax voted to aid in the construction of a railroad, an allegation that the plaintiff had made the required proof of compliance with all the conditions upon which the tax was to be paid, was held good on demurrer. The Dist. Tp., etc., v. The Dist. Tp., etc., 37 Id., 361.

That the petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, is too indefinite a ground of demurrer in an action at law. Childs v. Limbach, 30 Id., 398; Davenport G. L. & C Co. v. City of Davenport, 15 Id., 6.

It is not competent to assail the paragraphs of a pleading by demurrer; the demurrer must be to the whole pleading or to a court thereof. The Delaware County Bank v. Duncombe, 23 Id., 489; Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158; The Dist. Tp., etc., v. The Dist. Tp., 44 Id., 512.

If, through bad pleading, two distinct and independent causes of action or defense are stated in the same count or division of the pleading, a demurrer may be directed to one of them. Wright v. Conner et al., 34 Id., 210.

A demurrer to a pleading admits the truth of the facts therein well pleaded, but not the law claimed by the pleader, nor the inferences and conclusions drawn by him. Smith v. Henry County, 15 Id., 385; Games v. Robb, 8 Id., 193.

A demurrer can be interposed only for objections appearing on the face of the pleading. Polk County v. Heibr, 37 Id., 361.

When the objections do not appear on the face of the pleading, they may be taken by answer. Munch v. Bredenbach, 41 Id., 527.

Demurrer is the proper remedy where a petition asking a writ of mandamus shows that the plaintiff has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy by an ordinary action. A motion to dismiss will not lie. Meyer v. Dubuque County, 43 Id., 592.

In an equitable action improperly commenced in behalf of the "heirs of her body," advantage may be taken of the defect by general demurrer, although the demurrer be not in the precise language of the code, the intention of the pleading was to assual the defect being apparent. H uzna v. H uses et al., 45 Id., 437.

Where the petition shows on its face that its cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations, it may be assailed by demurrer. Miller v. Dawson et al., 26 Id., 156; Brown v. Rockhold, 49 Id., 355.

A demurrer is proper where a pleading does not on its face show a sufficient cause of action or defense, and can be interposed only where the legal sufficiency of the entire count in the pleading is assailed. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158.

A demurrer which strikes alone at the sufficiency of the account annexed to the petition, does not admit the truth of the other allegations therein, and upon failure of defendant to answer over, the right of the plaintiff to judgment must be established by evidence, as upon a default.

Buehler v. Reed, 11 Id., 182.

In a proceeding to set aside a confession of judgment on the ground of insufficiency of the statement on which it was rendered, it is not necessary to annex a copy of such statement to the petition as an exhibit. Vanrice v. Greene, Traer & Co., 14 Id., 262.

Where a pleading sets up, as a cause of action or counter-claim, the breach of covenants in a deed, a copy of the deed should be annexed to such pleading as an exhibit. Nosler v. Hunt, 18 Id., 212.

A demurrer admits the facts pleaded, but controverts their legal sufficiency. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158.

A demurrer never confesses an allegation which it appears upon the face of the pleading the pleader was espoused to make. Schofield v. McDowell, 47 Id., 129.

The objection that there is a defect of parties cannot be raised for the first time in the supreme court. Melick v. The First National Bank of Tama City et al., 52 Id., 84.

In an action on an attachment bond the petition should set out the bond and the breach of its conditions and allege that the plaintiff in the attachment suit did not have sufficient reason for believing the alleged grounds for attachment to be true. Hunt v. Rheum, 32 Id., 619.

Where, after a demurrer is filed to a pleading, the pleading is amended, the effect is to submit to the demurrer. The Dist. Ty. of White Oak v. The Dist. Ty. of Oskaloosa, 44 Id., 512. If a demurrer be filed to the amended petition, the first demurrer will be considered waived. Id.

That several defendants have no community of interest is not ground for demurrer, but of a motion for misjoinder of parties. Id.

A motion to strike from the petition the name of a party improperly joined, is the proper remedy when one of several plaintiffs has no legal capacity to sue. Id.

It is not necessary that a copy of a written instrument, referred to in the petition, should be annexed thereto. This is required only when action is founded on the writing. Barney v. Buena Vista County, 33 Id., 261.

The statute does not contemplate that instruments of evidence merely which do not constitute the basis of the action or counter-claim, should be annexed to or copied in the pleading. Taylor v. The Cedar Rapids & St. P. R. Co., 25 Id., 371.

Under section 3570 of the revision, it was held that a party to an action for the recovery of real property should annex the evidence of his title as exhibits to his pleading. Boardman v. Beckwith, 15 Id., 292.

Where the petition on its face showed that the contract sued on consisted of a written order, and a letter and the answer thereto in relation to such order, but failed to set out a copy of one of the letters, without giving any sufficient reason therefor, held, that a demurrer to the petition was properly sustained under this section of the code. Johnson & Co. v. Tostevin & LeRoy, 60 Iowa, 46.

The statute does not contemplate that instruments of evidence merely, which do not constitute the basis of the cause of action, or counter-claim, should be annexed to or set out in the pleading, in order to render them admissible in evidence. Taylor v. C. R. & St. P. R. Co., 25 Id., 371.

The failure, in an action for damages for breach of contract, to state specifically the damages suffered by the plaintiff, cannot be objected to by demurrer, but is ground for a motion for a more specific statement. McCormick v. Bassat, 46 Id., 235.

Where a petition shows affirmatively that its cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations, it must affirmatively appear therefrom that its cause is so barred. Moulton v. Walsh, 30 Id., 361.

Where a pleading demurrable on the ground that its cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations, it must affirmatively appear therefrom that its cause is so barred. Moore v. State Ins. Co., 12 Id., 414.
SEC. 2649. [Specify causes and number.]—A demurrer must specify and number the grounds of objection to the pleading, or it will be disregarded; and it shall not be sufficient to state the objection in the terms of the preceding section, except that a demurrer to an equitable petition for the fifth reason of said section may be stated in the terms thereof.

Where the demurrer sets forth in general terms that the petition does not state a cause of action or show such a state of facts as will justify the court in granting any relief, it should be disregarded because not sufficiently specific. McKeller v. Stout, 13 Iowa, 487.

A demurrer should use language which will point to the fact which renders the pleading bad, but need not give the reasons leading to this conclusion. Davenport & L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Id., 6; sec. also, Middletown Savings Bank v. The City of Dubuque, Id., 364-409; Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 24 Id., 54.

A demurrer should clearly point out the objection to the pleading, which is intended to be developed by the argument; when not thus specified it should be disregarded by the court. Jones v. Brumskill, 18 Id., 129; Luse v. City of Des Moines, per Dillon, J., 22 Id., 592; Piper v. Newcomer & Campbell, 26 Id., 221, 222; Singer v. Calhoun, 25 Id., 178; McGregor & S. C. R. R. Co. v. Birdsall, 30 Id., 255; Childs v. Limbach, Id., 398; McLaughlin v. Buscomb, 30 Id., 593; Hanna v. Hawes, 45 Id., 437, 441.

In equitable actions a demurrer may properly state, in general terms, that the facts alleged in the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded. Fisher v. Beard, 32 Id., 346-348, per Miller, J.; Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 34 Id., 54; Cowen v. Boone et al., 48 Id., 290. Where a demurrer specifies the ground of objection it is sufficiently specific under the statute. The M. & I. S. Ry Co. v. Hieme, 53 Id., 592.

In an action at law a demurrer stating that “the facts * * * do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded,” is too general and should be overruled. Hintrager v. Sumbarqo et al., 45 Id., 494.

A demurrer is sufficiently specific when it contains unmistakable reference to the facts of the pleading demurred to. Davenport v. Whisler & Shields, 46 Id., 287.

Where a demurrer strikes at an entire pleading, one count of which is sufficient, it must be overruled. Darre v. Lilley et al., 11 Id., 4; Edwards v. Cochran, 12 Id., 488.

A demurrer in an action at law, which simply avers that “the allegations of the petition are insufficient to entitle the plaintiff to recover,” is not sufficiently specific to be regarded by the court under this section. Davidson v. Biggs, 61 Id., 309.

Under section 3379, the action of mandamus is an ordinary action at law, so that by section 2649 a demurrer to a petition in such case, on the ground that “the facts stated therein do not entitle the plaintiff to the relief demanded,” should be overruled because not sufficiently specific under this section. Dist. Tp. of Eden v. The Ind. Dist. of Jesup, 72 Id., 657.

SEC. 2650. [Waiver.]—When any of the matters enumerated as grounds of demurrer do not appear on the face of the petition, the objection may be taken by answer. If no such objection is taken, it shall be deemed waived. If the facts stated by the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to any relief whatever, advantage may be taken of it by motion in arrest of judgment, before judgment is entered.

An objection apparent on the face of a pleading, which might have been raised by a demurrer, will be waived by going to trial on the merits, and cannot be raised for the first time in an instruction. Young v. Broadbent, 23 Id., 359. So, also, when the plaintiff fails to annex to his petition either the original or a copy of an instrument which is the foundation of the action; if the objection is not made by demurrer, it will be waived. Smith & Co. v. McLeans, 24 Id., 392.

An objection that the petition in an action against a railroad company contains no allegation of the corporate character of the defendant, cannot be made on a motion in arrest of judgment, but should have been raised by demurrer. Andre v. The C. & N. W. Ry Co., 30 Id., 107; see also Byington v. M. & M. R. Co., 11 Id., 502.

Want of jurisdiction is ground for demurrer only when it appears on the face of the petition; a demurrer cannot be aided by extrinsic evidence. Childs v. Limbach, 30 Id., 398.

The statute of limitations, as a defense, is not available unless taken advantage of on demurrer or pleaded by answer. Robinson v. Allen, 37 Id., 37.

When a petition asking a mandamus shows on its face that the plaintiff has a plain, speedy and adequate remedy, it should be assailed by demurrer. Meyer v. Dubuque County, 43 Id., 592.

Where a petition is defective in substance and the defendant answers instead of demurring thereto, he may move in arrest of judgment after trial. Edgerly v. The Farmers’ Ins. Co., 43 Id., 557.

If a petition is not assailed by motion, demurrer, or in arrest of judgment, an objection which might have been made by either of those methods, but was not, will be deemed to have been waived. Murphy v. Neal & Co. v. Creighton, 45 Id., 179.

The objection that one who is a necessary party is not joined in the action, will be waived if not raised by demurrer. Boone & Co. v. Moultrie, Id., 631.

Where a party fails to take the objection, either by demurrer or answer, it will be waived. Springer v. Burtle, 46 Id., 688, 692.

Advantage may be taken of a misjoinder of parties by answer and by motion in arrest of judgment. Coggswell v. Murphy, Id., 44. See also, Boude v. The M. E. Church, 47 Id., 705, 707.

An objection to the sufficiency of a pleading must be taken by motion, demurrer, reply or in arrest of judgment. It cannot be raised for the first time by way of an instruction to the jury. McIntire v. McIntire, 48 Id., 511; Nollen v. Wisner, 11 Id., 191.

That the petition, in an action for selling liquor to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated, did not show that the action was commenced by a citizen of the county, cannot be made for the first time in the supreme court. Church v. Highman, 44 Id., 452.

Where the jury returns a verdict for substantial damages for plaintiff when he is entitled to only nominal damages, it is reversible error for the court to sustain a motion for judgment for the defendant, notwithstanding the verdict. A motion for a new trial is the proper remedy in such case. Carl v. The Granger Coal Co.,” 69 Id., 519. See, also, Watson v. Van Meter, 43 Id., 76.

When the objection that there is a defect of parties is not taken by demurrer or answer it will be deemed waived. Lillie v. Case, 54 Id., 177.

To an action in equity to cancel the assignment of a contract, alleged to be fraudulent, both the assignor and the assignee are necessary parties, and either may insist, either on the trial below or on the trial de novo in the supreme court, that no decree shall be rendered against him until the other is brought into court. Miller et al. v. Mahaffy et al., 45 Id., 289.

In an action upon a promissory note, commenced before the note matured, it was held competent for the court to instruct the jury to find for the defendant, although no demurrer had been interposed. Seaton & Span v. Henneman, 50 Id., 395. But see Nollen v. Wisner and Van Yark, 11 Id., 191; McIntire v. McIntire, 45 Id., 511.

Where there was a failure to aver a material condition precedent to the liability of the defendant, but the defect was not assailed by demurrer or other pleading, it was held not competent for the court to direct a verdict for the defendant, notwithstanding the verdict. The Wrought Iron Bridge Co. v. Greene, 59 Id., 562.

The filing of an answer after a demurrer to the petition has been overruled waives any error which might have been predicated upon the ruling on the demurrer. Smith v. Warren County, 49 Id., 396.

And where a party amends his pleading after a demurrer has been sustained thereto, he waives the right to object in the appellate court to any error in such ruling. Duncan v. Hobart et al., 3 Id., 397; Franklin v. Throoood, 18 Id., 515; The City of Muscatine v. The K. N. L. P. Co.,” 47 Id., 350; Lane v. The B. & S. W. R. Co.,” 52 Id., 18; Wilcox v. McCoy, 21 Id., 394; Cookley v. McCarthy et al., 31 Id., 105; Jones et ux. v. Maroney et al., 49 Id., 187; Westphal, Hinds & Co. v. Henney et ux.,” Id., 542.

An objection apparent upon the face of a petition, which is not taken by demurrer, is to be deemed waived, except where the facts stated do not entitle the plaintiff to any relief. Advantage may be taken of this defect on motion in arrest before judgment. Kendig v. Overhulzer, 58 Id., 195.

If the facts stated in the plaintiff’s petition do not entitle him to any relief, and the defendant fails to demur, advantage may be taken of the defect by motion in arrest of judgment, or the court may at the trial direct the jury to find for the defendant. Smith v. B., C. R. & N. R. Co.,” 50 Id., 797.

Would it not be as well, and a saving of time, for the court to refuse a trial altogether?—Ed.

A motion in arrest of judgment is provided where the facts stated in the petition do not entitle the plaintiff to any relief; but such a motion is properly overruled when based on the ground of want of evidence to sustain the verdict. A motion for a new trial is the proper remedy in that case. Kip v. Hennessey, 71 Id., 717.

SEC. 2651. The defendant may demur. To one or more of the several causes of action alleged in the petition, and answer as to the residue.

The filing an answer with a demurrer is a waiver of the demurrer. The defendant may demur to one or more of several causes of action and answer as to the others, but he cannot do both to the same cause of action. Fisher v. Scholte, 30 Iowa, 221.
SEC. 2652. [No joinder.]—The opposite party shall be deemed to join in a demurrer, whenever he shall not amend the pleading to which it is addressed.

SEC. 2653. [Answer after.]—Upon a demurrer being overruled, the party demurring may answer or reply.

SEC. 2654. [Failure to amend: effect of.]—Upon a decision of a demurrer, if the unsuccessful party fail to amend or plead over, the same consequences shall ensue as though a verdict had passed against the plaintiff, or the defendant had made default, as the case may be.

Upon the overruling of a demurrer to a petition, if the defendant fails to plead over, he should be regarded as in default, merely; and final judgment should not be rendered against him in behalf of the plaintiff without evidence sustaining the cause of action. Musser & Co. v. Hobart, 14 Iowa, 281.

Where the plaintiff demurred to defendant’s answer, which set up a complete defense to the action, and upon the overruling of the demurrer, stood by his demurrer and refused to further plead, it was held not for the court to render judgment for the defendant for costs without a trial of the issues of fact. Simper v. The Des Moines Fire Insurance Co., 18 Id., 319; Brown v. Mallory, 26 Id., 469, 472; Bridge, Bach & Co., v. Livingstone, 11 Id., 59.

A demurrer will not lie to a single paragraph or allegation of a pleading in an equitable action, when such paragraph or allegation, though deficient in itself, when taken with others in the pleading, constitute a good cause of action or ground of defense. Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., 27.

Where a demurrer to an answer is overruled and judgment rendered against the plaintiff thereon upon his failure to plead over or prosecute his action, he will not, after appeal, be allowed to withdraw the demurrer and have a trial on the issues of fact. Dunlop & Co. v. Cody, 31 Id., 260; Grimes v. Hamilton County, 37 Id., 390.

A demurrer cannot properly be sustained to a whole pleading, one count of which is good as putting in issue material facts alleged in the petition. McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137.

Where a party excepts to the overruling of his demurrer and takes time to answer, but does not answer, and allows judgment to be entered against him, he is presumed to stand upon the demurrer, and does not waive his objection to the ruling of the court thereon. Watts v. Everett, 47 Id., 391.

A judgment upon demurrer is a bar to another action between the same parties upon the same facts, the sufficiency of which was put in issue by the demurrer. Felt v. Jurnure et al., 48 Id., 391; Kater & Skinner v. Hock et al., 16 Id., 23.

ANSWER.

SEC. 2655. The answer shall contain:
1. The name of the court of the county, and of the plaintiffs and defendants, but when there are several plaintiffs and defendants, it shall only be necessary to give the first name of each class, with the words, and others;
2. A general denial of each allegation of the petition, or else of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief;
3. A specific denial of each allegation of the petition controverted by the defendant, or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief;
4. A statement of any new matter constituting a defense;
5. A statement of any new matter constituting a counter claim;
6. [Several defenses.]—The defendant may set forth in his answer as many causes of defense, counter-claim, whether legal or equitable, as he may have.

A denial in answer of any information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the matter alleged in the petition, raises no issue to be tried by a jury or otherwise. The denial must be of any knowledge as well as of any information. But both must be stated. Manny & Co. v. French, 23 Iowa, 390.

But when the denial is in this respect in the language of the statute it forms a material issue and cannot be stricken from the files as frivolous. McFarland, Dodge & Co. v. Lester, Id., 260; McPhail & Co. v. Hyatt, 29 Id., 137.

An equitable defense may be pleaded in an action at law, or by ordinary proceeding, for the recovery of the possession of real property. Van Orman v. Stafford, Clarke & Co., 16 Id., 186; Bosierz v. Van Dam, Id., 175; Rainer v. Conger, Id., 434; Byers v. Kodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; per Cole, J., in Thompson v. Hurley, 19 Id., 335; Shawhan v. Long, 26 Id., 458; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476; Hackett v. High, 28 Id., 539.
The defendant may plead as many defenses, either legal or equitable, as he has. When the defense in a law action is equitable in its nature it is to be viewed in the same manner as to the substance, as if the same facts had been made the basis of a petition in equity for affirmative relief. Penny v. Cook, 19 Id., 583; Thompson v. Harvey, 1 Id., 335; Rogers v. Gwinn, 21 Id., 58; Roberts v. Austin Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315, 327.

In an action on a promissory note, an answer which merely denies, as a conclusion, that there is due upon the note the amount claimed in the petition, constitutes no substantial defense and may be assailed by demurrer. Stickelager v. Smith, 27 Id., 286; 9 Id., 546.

There is no such thing as the general issue in pleading under the code, and a party is required to plead whatever defense he intends to rely upon. Hogan v. Burch, 8 Id., 503; Scott v. Morse, 54 Id., 752.

Where facts which constitute only a partial defense are pleaded as a full defense to the action, the allegations may on motion be stricken from the pleading as immaterial. Peck et al. v. Pavenen et al., 52 Id., 46; Davenport Gas L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 16 Id., 6; Martin v. Swearengen, 17 Id., 346.

No notice to the plaintiff is necessary to be given of the filing of an answer in the nature of a cross-bill in a suit brought in behalf of minors. Treiber v. Shafer et al., 18 Id., 29.

Subdivision six of this section contemplates that the counter-claim shall be pleaded in or as part of the answer, and there is no provision of the statute requiring the pleadings to state in words that the matter set forth is pleaded as counter-claim. The Union National Bank v. Carr, 49 Id., 389, 360.

The defendant, in an ordinary or law action, may plead equitable matters in defense and have the issues thus presented tried in the manner provided for the trial of equitable actions; and the court should order, and the better practice would dictate, that these issues be first tried. Hackett v. High, 28 Id., 139; Kramer v. Conger, 16 Id., 434; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53.

A counter-claim is an answer, and a suit for damages on an attachment bond, by the defendant in the main action, is a counter-claim; that the counter-claim is interposed merely for delay, and not in good faith, does not affect the legal rights of the parties. Town v. Bringolf, 47 Id., 133.

It is within the discretion of the court to permit an answer to be withdrawn and a demurrer filed, and the exercise of this discretion will not be reviewed by the appellate court unless an abuse of it be shown. Byington v. Stone, 51 Id., 317.

While, if new matter is pleaded as a defense by way of avoidance, there should be in the count a confession that but for such new matter the action could be maintained, yet such confession may be by implication as well as directly. Morgan & Rogers v. The Hawkeye Ins. Co., 37 Id., 359; Anson v. Dwight, 18 Id., 247.

Where defendants answered that they had no knowledge or information as to whether the facts alleged in the petition of plaintiff were true or not and therefore denied them, held, that the allegations thus referred to were put in issue by the answer. Tyner v. Fuller, 67 Id., 183.

Where an action was founded upon contract, the execution of which was admitted in the answer, but the answer denied performance on the part of the plaintiff, and alleged an alteration of the instrument since its execution, held, that plaintiff had no need to introduce the contract in evidence, but only to prove performance on his part, and that the burden was on the defendant to establish the alteration alleged in the answer. Wing v. Stewart et al., 69 Id., 13.

Where an answer denies knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the material allegations of the petition, a demurrer to such answer cannot properly be sustained. Carr v. Bosworth et al., 68 Id., 639.

SEC. 2656. [Of guardian.]—The guardian of a minor, or person of unsound mind, or attorney for a person in prison, must deny in the answer all the material allegations of the petition prejudicial to such defendant.

SEC. 2657. [Divisions of.]—Each affirmative defense shall be stated in a distinct division of the answer, and must be sufficient in itself, and must intelligibly refer to that part of the petition to which it is intended to apply.

A division of an answer which does not purport to relate to any particular count in the petition, will be considered with reference to the whole petition, and when such division is insufficient as to any one count of the petition, it will be treated as insufficient as to all. The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Iowa, 6, 18.

Each count of an answer must be sufficient in itself for the purposes in which it is pleaded; otherwise, it is vulnerable to a demurrer; it cannot be aided by matter stated in another count.

The National Bank of Michigan v. Green, 33 Id., 140.

Where new matter is pleaded in evidence, there should be in the same count a confession that but for such new matter the action would be maintainable; but such confession may be by implication as well as directly. Morgan & Rogers v. The Hawkeye Ins. Co., 37 Id., 359; Anson v. Dwight, 18 Id., 241.

Several defenses cannot be pleaded in the same count or division of the answer. Each defense must be stated in a separate count. Donahue v. Brosser & Jones, 10 Id., 276; Wright v. Connor et al., 34 Id., 240.

An instruction based upon the theory that a certain defense was set up in the answer, which was not set up in fact, unless the defensive portion of the answer be supplemented by allegations contained in other divisions stating counter claims, held erroneous; as each affirmative defense must be stated in a distinct division of the answer, and must be sufficient in itself. Davis' Sons v. Robinson, 67 Id., 355.

Sec. 2658. [No prayer in defense.]—In the defense part of an answer or reply, it shall not be necessary to make any prayer for judgment.

In an action in equity for the cancellation of a policy of insurance issued by the plaintiff, the defendant may by way of counter-claim set up a cause of action on the policy for loss of the property insured, such cause of action being "connected with the subject of the action," within the meaning of this section of the code. Revere F. Ins. Co. v. Chamberlain et al., 56 Iowa, 508.

COUNTER-CLAIM.

Sec. 2659. [How stated.]—Each counter-claim, must be stated in a distinct division, and must be:

1. When the action is founded on contract, a cause of action also arising on contract, or ascertained by the decision of a court; or,

2. A cause of action in favor of the defendants, or some of them, against the plaintiffs, or some of them, arising out of the contracts or transactions set forth in the petition or connected with the subject of the action; or,

3. Any new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of the defendant, or all of the defendants, if more than one, against the plaintiff, or all of the plaintiffs, if more than one, and which the defendant or defendants might have brought when suit was commenced or which was then held, either matured or not, if matured when so pleaded.

Claims for damages arising upon torts, as well as for money due on contracts, may be pleaded by way of counter-claim. Campbell v. Fox, 11 Iowa, 318.

Where matter pleaded in an answer is not set up as a counter-claim, and is not stated as a defense in bar, it may be stricken from the answer. Amsden v. The D. & S. C. R'y Co., 13 Id., 132.

Under our statute, fraud may be pleaded as a counter-claim, and when so pleaded, in addition to defeating plaintiff's action, it may entitle the defendant to an affirmative judgment; but this does not take away the common law right of relying upon the fraud as a defense in whole or in part. Coe v. Lindley, 32 Id., 437, 442.

A pleading setting up a counter-claim, which does not arise out of the contract or transaction set forth in the petition, and is not connected with the subject of the action, and does not contain new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of all the defendants against all the plaintiffs, may be stricken from the files. Exline v. Lowrey, 46 Id., 556.

A defendant may plead as a counter-claim against the plaintiff, a claim arising on contract, which would constitute in his favor a cause of action against the plaintiff and others jointly bound with him. Redman & Peer v. Malvin & Cloud, 23 Id., 296.

In an action against husband and wife jointly, the defendants cannot plead as a counter-claim, a cause of action against the plaintiff for a previous malicious prosecution of the wife alone; nor can the husband, in such case, set up by way of counter-claim, a claim for damages accruing to him for a malicious prosecution of himself or minor children by plaintiff. Musselman v. Galligher, 32 Id., 383.

The revision of 1850 employed the terms "set-off," "counter-claim," and "cross-demand," and recognized a distinction between them. No such distinction is recognized by the code of 1851. The code of 1873 abolishes the distinction, the "counter-claim" embracing all of them. Per Day, J., in Reynolds v. Martin, 51 Id., 324, 326.
Where an answer pleading a counter-claim fails to state that the cause of action pleaded as such counter-claim was held by the defendant at the time suit was commenced, it may be attacked by demurrer. Rumsey & Co. v. Robinson & Atherton, 58 Id., 225.

A surety may set up any defense that would be available to his principal, and so the principal and surety, when sued on their obligation, may set up, as a counter-claim, any demand which the principal, if sued alone, might plead as a counter-claim. This section does not apply to such a case. Reeves v. Chambers et al., 67 Id., 81.

In an action by an administrator for money due to his intestate, a demand against the intestate acquired by the defendant after the death of the intestate, was held not pleadable as a set-off under the code of 1851. But it was held that the defendant might plead as a set-off an unsettled account against the intestate, which might before his death have been so pleaded. Lucore, Adm'r, v. Kramer, 22 Id., 387.

It was held under section 2856 of the revision that in an action to foreclose a mortgage the defendant might plead as a set-off an account against a firm of which the plaintiff was a member. Allen v. Maddox, 49 Id., 124.

In an action for divorce the defendant may set up any matters connected with the subject of the action, occurring after its commencement and constituting a cause of action against the plaintiff, upon which affirmative relief may be asked; such matter constitutes a counter-claim. Wilson v. Wilson, 40 Id., 230.

Where judgment was recovered against the defendant in another state, and he had at the time an independent cause of action against the plaintiff which he might then have pleaded as a counter-claim; held that he was not bound, then to plead it, and that he might set it up as a counter-claim in an action against him in this state on the foreign judgment. Polson v. Winch, 65 Id., 477.

Under a prayer for general relief a judgment may be granted without specific prayer therefor. Pond v. The Waterloo A. Works et al., 59 Id., 596.

In an action on a promissory note a defendant may, by way of counter-claim, attack the validity of the note and ask affirmative relief in his behalf, and such counter-claim is not rendered inadmissible from the fact that it is in the nature of an action of replevin, in that it prays possession of the note, such relief being equivalent to its cancellation. Sigler v. Hidy et al., 56 Id., 504.

The dismissal of an action on a promissory note without prejudice to the plaintiff, will not entitle him to a dismissal of a counter-claim asking a cancellation of the note. Id.

Where the plaintiff, as assignee, brought suit on an injunction bond executed by the defendant to one M., the defendant set up a certain promissory note made by M. to the defendant, and also a judgment against M. in favor of defendant, as counter-claims. Held:

1. That the counter-claims were properly pleaded as against the plaintiff as assignee of the bond.

2. That the plaintiff had the right to show that the note was obtained by duress, and that the judgment was void for want of jurisdiction in the court rendering it. That the plaintiff, as assignee, could assert the same defenses to said counter-claims that M. could have done. Miller v. City of Centerville, 57 Id., 640.

SEC. 2660. [Equitable matter.]—An equitable division must also be separated into paragraphs, and numbered as required in regard to an equitable cause of action in the petition.

SEC. 2661. [Co-maker or surety.]—A co-maker, or surety, when sued alone, may, with the consent of his co-maker or principal, avail himself by way of counter-claim, of a debt or liquidated demand due from the plaintiff at the commencement of the suit to such co-maker, or principal, but the plaintiff may meet such counter-claim in the same way as if made by the co-maker or principal himself.

See note to section 2659, from Reeves v. Chambers et al., 67 Iowa, 81.

SEC. 2662. [New party.]—When a new party is necessary to a final decision upon a counter-claim, the court may either permit such party to be made, or direct that it be stricken out of the answer and made the subject of a separate action.

SEC. 2663. [Cross petition.]—When a defendant has a cause of action affecting the subject matter of the action against a co-defendant, or a person not a party to the action, he may in the same action file a cross petition against the co-defendant or other person. The defendants thereto may be notified as in other cases, and defense thereto shall be made in the time and manner prescribed in regard to the original petition, and with the same right of obtaining provisional remedies applicable to the case. The prosecution of the cross petition shall not delay the trial.
of the original action, when a judgment can be rendered therein that will not prejudice the rights of the parties to the cross petition.

Where a defendant files a cross petition, under this section, against his co-defendant, the subsequent dismissal of the original petition will not necessarily operate to dismiss the cross petition. Spearing v. Chambers et al., 25 Iowa, 99.

Where a defendant sets up a cause of action by cross bill against his co-defendant, notice of such action must be served upon the co-defendant, in order to give the court jurisdiction to render judgment against him on the cross bill. Thoite, Guardian, v. Spofford et al., 65 Id., 294.

SEC. 2664. [Demurrer to answer.—When the facts stated in the answer, or any count or division thereof, are not sufficient to constitute a defense or counter-claim, the adverse party may demur, and shall be held to the same certainty in the statement of the grounds therefor as obtains in a demurrer to the petition.

An answer in order to be sufficient must either deny the allegations of the petition, or it must confess and avoid them. The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 15 Iowa, 6.

A demurrer to an answer must be as specific as a demurrer to a petition. Fockler v. Martin, 32 Id., 117, 119; McKellar v. Stout, 13 Id., 487; Jones v. Brunskill, 18 Id., 129.

REPLY.

SEC. 2665. [When necessary.—There shall be no reply except:

1. Where a counter claim is alleged; or,

2. Where some matter is alleged in the answer to which the plaintiff claims to have a defense, by the reason of the existence of some fact which avoids the matter alleged in the answer.

Under the revision a reply was allowable only when allegations of counter-claims, set-off or cross-demand were pleaded in the answer. When no such allegations were contained in the answer, it was deemed controverted without further pleading, as upon direct denial, or confession, or avoidance; as the case required. Smith v. Milburn, 17 Iowa, 30; Adams v. Peck, 14 Id., 505; Davenport S. F. & L. A. v. The North Am. F. Ins. Co., 16 Id., 74; Clark v. Cress, 20 Id., 50, 54; Finley v. Brown, 22 Id., 558; Noble v. The S. B. N. Ins., 23 Id., 109; Covelton v. Byington, 24 Id., 172; Allison & Crane v. King, 25 Id., 96; Hardin v. Bronner, 1d., 394, 399; Geyer v. Higgins, 37 Id., 517.

Under the code a reply is unnecessary when the answer does not set up a counter-claim, and the plaintiff has no new matter to plead in confession and avoidance. Nor is a reply allowable under such circumstances. Davis v. Payne et al., 45 Id., 194. But if the plaintiff desires to prove matter in avoidance of the defense set up, he must plead it in a reply. Id.

Where the defendant pleads an assignment, and the plaintiff fails to reply thereto, he cannot introduce evidence to show the assignment to be a forgery, but the burden is upon the defendant to prove the genuineness of the assignment. Hay v. Frazier, 49 Id., 454.

Where the plaintiff in an action does not seek to avoid the allegations of an answer by new matter no reply is required or proper. The allegations of the answer are deemed denied. University of Des Moines v. Livingston, 57 Id., 301, 312; Shaw v. Kendall, Id., 390, 393.

The allegations of an answer, unless the same contains a counter-claim, are deemed to be denied without further pleading on the part of the plaintiff, and unless they are supported by evidence, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment upon proof of the statements of his petition. Cassidy v. Caton, 47 Id., 22.

The plaintiff may file a reply later than noon of the day succeeding that on which the answer is filed, upon reasonable terms to be imposed by the court. Williams v. The Niagara F. Ins. Co., 50 Id., 561.

A failure to reply will not entitle the plaintiff to a judgment upon a claim for unliquidated damages, it being necessary that such damages should be assessed by a jury or by the court. Yoe & Co. v. Nichols, 51 Id., 330.

An allegation in an answer is to be taken as true when the plaintiff, in reply, pleads in confession and avoidance. Clapp v. Cunningham, 50 Id., 307.

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to reply, setting up the facts constituting an estoppel when they appear affirmatively from the answer, nor is it necessary for him to introduce evidence to establish such facts. Scott v. Luther, 44 Id., 570.

When no counter-claim is pleaded and the allegations of the answer are not such as to require a denial, the allegations are deemed controverted by operation of law and a reply is not necessary. Brownlee v. Marion County, 55 Id., 487, 488.

No reply is required to form an issue upon an answer pleading payment as a defense. Kirk v. Woodbury County, 65 Id., 190.

An answer which is not a counter-claim is considered a denial, and a reply denying such answer is not allowed. And where a reply both denies the allegations of such answer, and pleads matter in avoidance thereof, the denial must be disregarded, and the matter in avoidance must be regarded as implying a confession of the answer. Meadows v. Hawkeyz Ins. Co., 62 Id., 387.

Where certain relief is prayed upon allegations made in the petition, the plaintiff cannot be awarded different relief upon other allegations made in the reply, as it is not the office of a reply to state a cause of action. Marder, Luse & Co. v. Wright et al., 70 Id., 42.

Under this section, where, in an action to quiet a tax title, defendant alleged that the land was taxed to it at the time the deed was executed, and that no notice to redeem was served upon it, held that no denial by way of reply was necessary to put the allegation, that the land was taxed to the defendant, in issue. Walker v. The B. C. & I. F. Iowa Lot Co., 65 Id., 565.

In an action to quiet a tax title where the answer denied the validity of the tax title, and then set up the facts relied on to show such invalidity, a reply was not necessary to put those alleged facts in issue; they were all in issue by the petition and the general denial of the answer. Where the special facts in the answer did not amount to a counter-claim, for they did not present any new cause of action; and though the answer closed with a prayer for a cancellation of the tax title, and that the defendants title and right to redeem be established, all such relief would have resulted to defendant from a general judgment in his favor, without a special decree to that effect. Walker v. The Sioux City & Iowa Falls Town Lot & Land Co., 66 Id., 751.

A reply which is not warranted by this section of the code, but which is in substance only a reiteration of one of the material allegations of the petition, should be stricken out on motion, but as it raises no new issue, a refusal to strike it out is not prejudicial error, and is therefore not grounds for reversal. Bayless v. Murray, 69 Id., 290.

No reply is necessary to put in issue allegations in an answer which do not set up a counter-claim, not pleading matter to be avoided by new matter to be stated in the reply. Mills County Nat. Bank v. Perry et al., 72 Id., 15.

SEC. 2666. [Statement of. ]—When a reply must be filed, it shall consist of:

1. A general or specific denial of each allegation or counter-claim controverted, or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief; or,

2. Any new matter not inconsistent with the petition, constituting a defense to the matter alleged in the answer; or the matter in the answer may be confessed, and any new matter alleged, not inconsistent with the petition, which avoids the same.

Where a petition is defective in substance and the defendant fails to demur, but takes advantage of the defect by answer, the plaintiff may either amend his petition or reply by confessing, and avoiding the matter stated in the answer. Edgerly v. The Farmers' Insurance Co., 43 Iowa, 587, 592.

This section, in providing that a reply must not be inconsistent with the petition, does not apply to an amendment to a petition after a petition of intervention has been filed, which is in effect an answer to the latter, and sets up a counter-claim, notwithstanding such amendment be inconsistent with the original petition. Jack et al. v. The D. M. & Ft. D. B. Co., 49 Id., 627.

SEC. 2667. [Any number of defenses stated. ]—Any number of defenses, negative or affirmative, are pleasurable to a counter-claim, and each affirmative matter of defense in the reply shall be sufficient in itself, and must intelligibly refer to the part of the answer to which it is intended to apply. A division of equitable matter must also be separated into paragraphs and numbered as required in case of such matter in the answer.

SEC. 2668. [Demurrer to. ]—When the facts stated in the reply do not amount to a sufficient defense, the defendant may demur, subject to the same requirements of certainty in statements of grounds thereof as obtain in demurrer to the petition.

VERIFICATION.

SEC. 2669. [When verified subsequent pleadings must be. ]—Every pleading must be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and when any pleading in a case shall be verified by affidavit, all subsequent pleadings, except demurrers, shall be verified also; and in all cases of verification of a pleading, the affidavit shall be to the effect that the affiant believes the statements thereof to be true.

An answer to a verified petition in an attachment suit, which was not sworn to as required by this section, was held properly stricken from the files, on motion of the plaintiff. Harper v. Drake, 15 Iowa, 137. See, also, Brady v. Otis, 40 Id., 97, 99.
The court may, after answer filed, permit the plaintiff to amend his petition, which is not sworn to, by adding a verification to the same; and after such amendment, if the defendant refuse to verify his answer, or to file a verified answer within the time allowed by law to plead, a default may be entered against him. Wilson v. Preston, Id., 246.

The certificate to the affidavit should state not only that the affidavit was subscribed in the officer's presence, but also that it was sworn to before him. Way v. Lamb, Id., 79.

An affidavit of verification attached to a petition and referring to "the foregoing petition," is sufficient, notwithstanding it does not set out the names of the parties to the action. Levy & Co. v. Wilson, 43 Id., 605.

Where the affidavit is made in another state before the clerk of a court, an omission to state in the certificate that the court is a court of record is not fatal thereto; evidence aliaunde may be given to show the character of the court. Id.

Where the affidavit annexed to a petition asking an attachment averred "that the facts set forth therein asking a writ of attachment are true," it was held equivalent to a statement that the allegations of the petition were true, and that it was sufficient. Sherrill v. Fay, 14 Id., 262.

An attorney for defendant is competent to verify statements in an answer, the truth of which he shows he has heard the plaintiff admit; but his knowledge that certain other facts pleaded in the answer were adjudicated between the parties in a former trial, does not qualify him to verify the statement of such facts. Searle v. Richardson, 67 Id., 170.

SEC. 2670. [Corporation.—When a corporation is a party, the affidavit may be made by an officer thereof.

SEC. 2671. [United interest.—When there are several parties united in interest, the affidavit may be made by any one of them.

SEC. 2672. [By agent or attorney.—If the pleading be founded on a written instrument for the payment of money only, and such instrument be in possession of the agent or attorney, the affidavit may be made by such agent or attorney, so far as relates to the statement of the cause of action thereon; but when relief is asked other than a money judgment or decree of foreclosure, the affidavit must contain averments showing competency as herein provided.

An attorney who has full knowledge of the facts stated in the petition, where the plaintiff himself could have possessed no more complete or certain knowledge, is competent to verify the petition. Brady v. Otis, 49 Iowa, 97.

A pleading may be verified by an attorney who states in his affidavit that his knowledge of the facts therein stated is better than that of the party himself, and that he knows the facts thus stated to be true. Yor & Co. v. Nichols, 51 Id., 330.

Where a pleading, requiring verification because the prior pleading is verified, is verified by the attorney, who does not set forth in his affidavit that he has any knowledge whatever of the truth of the allegations of the pleading, it may be stricken from the files. Clute Bros. & Co. v. Hazleton, 51 Id., 355.

SEC. 2673. [By any person knowing the facts.—If the statements of a pleading are known to any person other than the party, such person may make the affidavit, which shall contain averments showing affiant competent to make the same.

In an action commenced by a partnership in the firm name of "S. G. L. Bro. & Co.," the petition was verified by the affidavit of J. L., the affidavit failing to show that he was a member of plaintiffs' firm, although an account annexed to the petition was sworn to by said J. L. as a member of the firm, it was held that in the absence of proof to the contrary it will be presumed that the petition was properly verified. Lessom Bros. & Co. v. Wilson, 43 Iowa, 488.

In action in which an attachment is asked, the affidavit of the attorney for the plaintiff to the effect that the facts set forth in the petition are better known to him than to the plaintiff, and that he knows them to be true, constitutes a sufficient verification. Brusch v. Moore, 48 Id., 611.

Where in an action by an indorsee upon an acceptance drawn by a corporation, the verification to a pleading was made by the secretary of the corporation who was also a member thereof, and showed that he was familiar with all the transactions between the corporation and the defendants, the verification was held sufficient. First National Bank of Bellaire, Ohio, v. Mason & Co., 57 Id., 105.

SEC. 2674. [Counter-claim may be.—Where the petition is not verified, and the answer contains a counter-claim, the same may be verified apart from the defense part of the answer, and the foregoing provisions are applicable to the counter-claim as if the same were a separate pleading.
SEC. 2675. [Guardian: executor: prisoner.]—Verification shall not be required to any pleading of a guardian, executor, or prisoner in the penitentiary, nor to any pleading controverting the answer of a garnishee, nor to one grounded on an injury to the person or the character.

SEC. 2676. [When cannot be required.]—When it can be seen from the pleading to be answered, that an admission of the truth of its allegations might subject the party to a criminal prosecution, no verification shall be required.

SEC. 2677. [Effect if not verified.]—If a pleading be not duly verified, it may be struck out on motion; but such defect will be deemed waived if the other party respond thereto, or proceed to trial without such motion.

A defective verification to a pleading is waived by pleading thereto without objection.

Hughes v. Felter, 18 Iowa, 142.

SEC. 2678. [When not amount claimed.]—The verification of the pleading does not apply to the amount claimed, except in actions founded on contract, express or implied, for the payment of money only.

SEC. 2679. [Proof.]—The verification shall not make other or greater proof necessary on the side of the adverse party.

A verified answer does not make other or greater proof necessary than if the answer is not verified.

Sheppard v. Ford, 10 Iowa, 502; Mitchell v. Moore, 24 Id., 394; Robinson v. Lair, 31 Id., 9, 11.

The old rule that, to overcome the effect of a sworn answer in chancery, two witnesses, or one witness and corresponding circumstances were necessary, has no existence under the practice in this state.

Smith v. Phelps, 32 Id., 537; Graves & Co. v. Alden, 13 Id., 573.

SEC. 2680. [Amendments not verified.]—Courts may permit the amendments authorized by this chapter to be made without being verified, unless a new and distinct cause of action or counter-claim is thereby introduced.

The court may, under this section, allow no amendment to be made, without verification, to previous pleadings which have been verified.

Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Iowa, 194.

SLANDER—LIBEL

SEC. 2681. [Statements of petition.]—In an action for slanders or libel, it shall not be necessary to state any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of any defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, or that the matter was used in a defamatory sense; but it shall be sufficient to state the defamatory sense in which such matter was used, and that the same was spoken or published concerning the plaintiff.

Under this section, if words published convey a libelous meaning upon their face, it is sufficient to set them out in the petition without any allegation of such meaning, and the court will determine whether the words are actionable or not. Where the words alleged to have been published are not actionable on their face, the plaintiff must show by proper allegation their defamatory sense, and that they were spoken of him in that sense, but it is not necessary to allege extrinsic facts showing their relation to the plaintiff, the defamatory sense when alleged, and the application to the plaintiff being material allegations of fact, must be proved.

Kinyon v. Palmer, 18 Iowa, 377.

It is sufficient to allege generally that the words were used in a defamatory sense, and were spoken or published of and concerning the plaintiff.

Seaverengen v. Stanley, 23 Id., 115.

Where the words charged are actionable per se, it is not necessary to allege or prove any special damages, and in such a case the allegation of special damages to the plaintiff in his different relations of a citizen, a farmer and a church member, does not vary the rule, nor justify the court in sustaining a motion for a more specific statement of the particular items of damage sustained in each capacity.

Id.

In an action of slander the defamatory words charged were as follows: "My tablecloths are gone, and you know where they are gone. If you will bring them back I will say nothing about it. You have got them. My husband has gone down town to get a warrant to search for the tablecloths and imprison you." Held, that the words imputed a crime and that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that they were so understood by those who heard them. Where the meaning of slanderous words is not clear, such testimony is competent.

It is not necessary, under this section, to set out extrinsic facts showing that the words charged were used in a defamatory sense, but it is sufficient to set out the words themselves, and state the defamatory sense in which they were used. Clarke v. Jones, 49 Id., 474.

Sec. 2682. [Of answer in and for other torts.]—In an action brought to recover damages for an injury to person, character, or property, the defendant may set forth in a distinct division of his answer, any facts of which evidence is legally admissible to mitigate or otherwise reduce the damages, whether a complete defense or justification be pleaded or not, and he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances whether he provoke the defense or justification or not, and no mitigating circumstances shall be proved unless plead, except such as are shown by, or grow out of, the testimony introduced by the adverse party; and in actions for slander or libel, an unproved allegation of the truth of the matter charged, shall not be deemed proof of malice, unless the jury on the whole case find that such defense was made with malicious intent.

In an action of slander the plaintiff may show the pecuniary condition of the defendant in aggravation of damages, and the defendant may be permitted to show the same in mitigation of damages. Karney v. Paisley, 13 Id., 89.

On the trial of an action of slander, all circumstances cotemporaneous with the speaking of the alleged slanderous words which might have been given in evidence under the general issue of "not guilty" at common law, may be given in evidence under an answer in denial, but those which tend to show the truth of the charge must be pleaded before they can be given in evidence. Beardsley v. Bridgman et ux., 17 Id., 290, 295.

Under section 2682, the defendant in an action for slander, may plead in justification or in mitigation or both, and a failure to sustain a justification will not of itself be deemed proof of malice, neither will a failure to establish such a plea preclude evidence of mitigating circumstances. Kinyon v. Palmer, 18 Id., 377.

A defense alleging that the slanderous words charged were rumor repeated by the defendant is bad, even in mitigation of damages, in the absence of a showing that the words were repeated without actual malice. Beardsley v. Bridgman, 17 Id., 290.

In an action for slander, under this section, the defendant may, in his answer, allege circumstances in mitigation without confessing the speaking of the words, or averring his belief in their truth, or denying malice. Desmond v. Brown, 33 Id., 13.

In an action of libel or slander, the defendant cannot plead, either in defense or mitigation, that the plaintiff has been guilty of a specific crime in no way connected with the alleged defamatory words, or with the occasion on which they were written or spoken. Fisher v. Tise, 20 Id., 479.

In an action of slander the defendant may allege circumstances in mitigation without confessing the speaking of the words, or averring his belief in the truth, or denying malice. Desmond v. Brown, 33 Id., 13.

To constitute slander the alleged slanderous words must have been spoken in the presence and hearing of some person other than the plaintiff. Id.

And the words will be construed according to the sense in which they were intended by the defendant, and understood by those who heard them. Id. See also, McCaleb v. Smith, 22 Id., 242.

When mitigating facts are pleaded they must not be set up as a defense or justification, when they do not amount to that. They must be pleaded as mitigating circumstances, or as going to reduce the damages, and not as full defense. Roma v. Williams, 41 Id., 680.

Under this section the same matters only can be pleaded in mitigation, in actions of slander, which are recognized as such by law, independent of the statute. Marker v. Dunn, 68 Id., 726.

While in one sense, facts pleaded in mitigation in an action for libel do not constitute a defense, yet, since under this section, such facts must be pleaded in order to entitle the defendant to introduce evidence of them, the plea must be regarded as tendering an issue which the court should present to the jury. Malone v. Quaideroff, 68 Id., 726.

Under section 2682, which provides that in an action for slander, "no mitigating circumstances shall be proved unless plead, except such are shown by or grow out of, the testimony by the adverse party," it is improper cross-examination, although plaintiff's reputation has been pleaded in mitigation, to ask plaintiff's witnesses regarding her reputation for chastity, they not having testified thereto on direct examination. Homers v. McClelland, 37 N. W. R., 389.
INTERVENTION.

SEC. 2683. [Any person who has an interest may.]—Any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, in the success of either of the parties to the action, or against both, may become a party to an action between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the petition, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, or by demanding any thing adversely to both the plaintiff and defendant, either before or after issue has been joined in the cause and before the trial commences.

A purchaser of real property under a mortgage foreclosure, succeeds to the right of the mortgagee therein, and therefore has the right subsequently to intervene and be joined with the plaintiff in the foreclosure proceeding, which, after foreclosure and decree against the mortgagee, has been continued as to a defendant who purchased a part of the premises after the execution of the mortgage, and who contests the claim of plaintiff. Dyer v. Harris, 22 Iowa, 268.

The equitable owner of a promissory note may assert his rights thereto and obtain a recovery, by intervening in an action at law, commenced by the person having the possession and legal title to the note, against the maker. In such case the intervenor's claim adversely to both plaintiff and defendant. Taylor v. Adair et al., Id., 279.

Where a person intervenes in an action of replevina, and becomes the substantial defendant, the judgment therein designating the rights of the parties is conclusive upon all the parties, as well as between the plaintiff and the original defendant. Witter v. Fisher, 27 id., 9.

In an action to enjoin the collection of a tax voted to aid in the construction of a railroad through a particular township, under the act for that purpose, the railroad company constructing the road through such township, and to be benefited by such tax, may properly intervene for the purpose of interposing a defense. Brown v. Bryan et al., 31 Id., 556.

When in an action against a county the board of supervisors conspire with the plaintiff to aid him in procuring a judgment, a taxpayer has such an interest in the litigation as entitles him to intervene and defend the action. Greeley v. The County of Lyon, 40 Id., 72.

Where the plaintiff and defendant in an action adjust and settle their respective claims by a voluntary agreement between them, and nothing remains but final judgment to determine the action, a third person, claiming an interest in the subject of litigation, cannot then intervene. Henry, Lee & Co. v. The Cass Co. M. & E. Co., 42 Id., 33.

Where a person has or claims an interest in the matter in litigation adverse to one of the parties, he has a right to intervene. Per Beck, J., in Young v. Tucker, 39 Id., 596, 600.

Where a plaintiff, by garnishment proceedings, acquired only the title and interest in the property held at the time by the defendant in action, it was held that a prior lawful assignment would hold the property, and that persons having any interest in the property might intervene, whether the action be at law or in chancery. Howe & Co. v. Jones et al., 57 Id., 130, 136.

In an action by taxpayers against the purchasers of a poor farm from the county, to set aside the sale on account of the inadequacy of the price, and other alleged illegitances, held that the county was entitled, under section 2683 of the code, to intervene and join the defendants in sustaining the sale, on the ground that it was advantageous to the county. McConnell v. Hutchinson, 71 Id., 512.

A party who has intervened in an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, to which there are several parties defendant, will not, upon the rendering of a decree and the dismissal of all the parties save one, from whom the intervenor claims relief, lose his standing in the action. The Joliet I. & S. Co. v. The C., C. & W. R. Co., et al., 51 Id., 300.

An intervenor cannot insist upon a change in the form of proceedings, or delay in the trial of the action, and it is error to allow an intervention which produces these results against the objection of parties. Van Gorden v. Ormsby Bros. & Co. et al., 55 Id., 637.

This section does not give a person interested in the subject matter of the action the right to be substituted for either of the parties. He is given the right to unite with the party in whose success he is interested. Britton v. D., M. O. & S. Ry Co., 59 Id., 540.

SEC. 2684. [Cannot delay main action.]—The court shall determine upon the intervention at the same time that the action is decided, and the intervenor has no right to delay; and if the claim of the intervenor is not sustained, he shall pay all costs of the intervention.

An intervenor cannot insist upon a change in the form of proceedings, or delay in the trial of the action, and it is error to allow an intervention which produces these results against the objection of parties. Van Gorden v. Ormsby Bros. & Co. et al., 55 Iowa, 637.

SEC. 2685. [How affected.]—The intervention shall be by petition, which must set forth the facts on which the intervention rests, and all the pleadings therein shall be governed by the same principles and rules as obtain in other pleadings provided for in this chapter. But if such petition is filed during term, the court shall direct the time in which an answer shall be filed thereto.

Pending an application to intervene and be substituted as a party, the applicant is not entitled to a change of venue. Barkdull v. Callanan, 33 Iowa, 391.

Intervention can only be by petition, and it is impossible by one petition to intervene in three distinct unconsolidated actions. Neither can one be bound by an adjudication upon a petition of interventon filed by another claiming to be his agent. Rosenbaum Bros. v. Adams, Sheriff, etc., 61 Id., 382.

AMENDMENTS.

SEC. 2686. [Variance.]*—No variance between the allegations in a pleading and the proof is to be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action or defense upon the merits. Whenever it is alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact must be shown by proof to the satisfaction of the court, and such proof must also show in what respect he has been so misled, and thereupon the court may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as may be just.

The right to amend a pleading is not an absolute, unconditional right, but is to be allowed by the court in "furtherance of justice" under a sound judicial discretion. Brookman v. Berryhill, 16 Iowa, 183.

A slight amendment allowed to make the pleading conform to the proof, and which could not have operated to surprise the adverse party, was held, not an abuse of discretion justifying a reversal of the judgment, although leave to amend was not granted until after the close of the evidence and arguments of counsel, and the amendment was not actually filed until after the return of the verdict. Corvell v. Glasscock, 26 Id., 83.

An amendment after verdict, and pending a motion in arrest of judgment, curing a variance between the name of the defendant, as stated in the petition and as signed to the promissory note upon which suit was brought, was held, properly allowed without terms, it appearing that no prejudice could have resulted to the adverse party therefrom. Thompson v. Wilson, 26 Id., 120.

An amendment may be made during the trial by striking out the name of a party plaintiff. Hinkle v. Davenport, 38 Id., 355.

A party will not be allowed to file an amended pleading tendering a new issue after a referee's report has been made in the case, and thereupon have a resubmission to the referee, without at least offering a reasonable excuse for neglecting to file the amendment before the referee's report is made. Newell v. The Mahaska County Savings Bank et al., 51 Id., 178.

In general, a party is not bound to prove number and price precisely as alleged; it is essential only that the substance of the issue be proved. If the objection to proof on the ground of variance is made in the court below, the court may allow an amendment of the pleading, but if no such objection be thus made, it cannot be urged in the appellate court. Wilcox v. Jackson, 57 Id., 278, 286.

Under this section, providing that no variance between the allegation and proof shall be material unless it be made to appear that the opposing party has been misled to his prejudice, an allegation that the section boss caused the engineer to increase the speed of the train while the plaintiff was endeavoring to get upon a car, is, in the absence of a showing as to prejudice, supported by evidence that the speed was increased by order of the conductor. Rayburn v. Central Iowa Ry's Co., 38 N. W. R., 520.

SEC. 2687. [Same.]*—When the variance is not material, as provided in the last section, the court may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, and may order an immediate amendment without costs.

SEC. 2688. [When material.]*—When, however, the allegation of the claim or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved in its general meaning, it shall not be deemed a case of variance within the last two sections, but a failure of proof.

SEC. 2689. [Amendments made at any time.]*—The court may, on motion of either party at any time, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, permit such party to amend any pleadings or proceedings by adding or striking out the name of a party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party.
or a mistake in any other respect, or by inserting other allegations material to the case, or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceedings to the facts proved.

An amendment to a petition by the addition of another court, based upon the same state of facts on which the cause of action stated in the original petition is based, will not be regarded as the commencement of a new action. Mather v. Butler County, 16 Iowa, 59.

The right to amend is not an absolute, unconditional right, but it is to be allowed in "furtherance of justice," under a sound judicial discretion. Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 183; Harvey v. Spalding, 7 Id., 423.

It was held competent for the court to permit the plaintiff to file a new affidavit, properly stamped, to a petition for an injunction, when the first affidavit was defective because not properly stamped. Hughes v. Foster, 18 Id., 142.

Where an action is brought upon a cause of action belonging to a partnership, in the name of one of the partners only, against one who was a partner of plaintiff, the court may at any time, in furtherance of justice, permit an amendment of the petition by inserting the name of the firm as plaintiff. Dixon v. Dixon, 19 Id., 512.

A motion for a new trial filed within the three days prescribed by statute, upon grounds other than newly discovered evidence, may, by leave of court, be amended at any time during the term, the amendment being germane to the grounds set out in the original motion. Souden & Co. v. Craig, 20 Id., 477.

The court may, in the exercise of the discretion vested in it, permit amendments to pleadings during the progress of the trial. Arnold v. Arnold, Id., 273.

In an action against an administrator by heirs for making fraudulent sales of real property for less than its value, which action was sustained upon a final hearing in the supreme court, and after the filing of the proceedendo in the court below the defendant asked leave to file an amended answer, alleging that a certain amount was due him for fees and disbursements as administrator and as one of the heirs at law, and asking that the same be applied in cancellation of the judgment against him, held, that the pleading contained no matter that might not have been set up before the trial, and that the amended answer should not have been permitted to be filed. Reed v. Howe, 44 Id., 590.

A demurrer is a pleading within the meaning of section 2689, and may be amended like any other pleading. Morrison v. Miller, 46 Id., 84.

What may not come in by way of amendment or supplemental pleading is the exception under the code, and that which may forms the rule. Per Wright, J., in Seevers v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66.

The terms upon which amendments are allowed are within the sound discretion of the court. Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 16 Id., 450; Seevers v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66; Glick v. Hartman, 10 Id., 410; Seevers v. Leach, 18 Id., 439; Williams v. Miller, 10 Id., 344.

The court may properly refuse to allow an amendment setting up a defense which cannot be made available, or which is a substantial repetition of a former pleading. Abbott v. Chase, 13 Id., 453; Mayer v. Woodbury & Strohm, 14 Id., 57.

An amendment to a petition after the evidence has been introduced is allowable, when it does not change the nature of the claim, and when the same evidence was admissible under the original petition as would have been under the amended one. Hammond v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 49 Id., 450.

The allowance or ejection of amendments is, to a very considerable extent, one of sound judicial discretion, and the ruling thereon will only be interfered with by the appellate court where substantial injustice has resulted to the party complaining. Plumer v. Flumer, 22 Id., 250; Seevers v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66; The State ex rel., etc., v. Mayor of Keokuk, 18 Id., 385; Hatfield v. Gaan, 15 Id., 177; Denton v. Thorington, Id., 217; Smith v. Howard, 28 Id., 51; Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194.

The allowance of a slight amendment to meet the case made by the evidence, and which could not have operated to surprise the adverse party, held, not such an abuse of discretion as would justify a reversal of the judgment, although the leave was not granted until after the close of the evidence and arguments of counsel, and the amendment not actually filed until after the verdict. Carroll v. Glasscock, 26 Id., 83.

An amendment after verdict, and pending a motion in arrest of judgment, curing a variance between the name of the defendant, as stated in the petition and as signed to the promissory note sued on, was held properly allowed without terms, it appearing that no prejudice could have resulted to the defendant. Thompson v. Wilson, Id., 120. See also Smith v. Howard, 25 Id., 51; Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194.

The action of the court below in allowing an amendment without imposing terms, will not be disturbed, unless it be shown that there was an abuse of the discretion confined to the court in such cases. Harrison v. Colton, 31 Id., 16.

Where a decree in an equity case is, upon the merits, modified and affirmed on appeal to the supreme court, and the cause remanded for the court below to enter and enforce the decree, the appellee will be allowed to amend his pleading, asking judgment for the value of the property adjudged by the decree to belong to him, but which the opposite party has converted to his own

An amendment filed in vacation without notice to the other party and without leave of the court may be stricken from the file on motion. Allen v. Bidwell, 35 Id., 86.

An amendment may be made during the trial by striking out the name of a party plaintiff.
Hinkle v. Davenport et al., 38 Id., 355.

In an action before a justice of the peace, upon a draft, the name of the plaintiff was misspelled, and commissions to take depositions and other proceedings were had with the error uncorrected.
Upon appeal to the circuit court and after a jury was impaneled it was held, the error might be corrected. Adae & Co. v. Zangs, 41 Id., 536.

Amendments in furtherance of justice may be made at any time, and it is competent to amend after judgment when no new cause of action is introduced, the granting of such amendment resting in the sound discretion of the court. O'Connell v. Cotter et al., 44 Id., 48.

Where an amendment, setting up a new and different defense, is filed after a part of the evidence has been introduced, and the plaintiff does not at the time indicate an unwillingness to procceed in consequence thereof, he cannot be heard to complain after a verdict has been rendered.

When an action is brought upon a cause belonging to a partnership, in the name of one partner only, the court may, at any time, permit an amendment substituting the name of the partnership as plaintiff. Hodges & Co. v. Kimball et al., 49 Id., 577.

Amendments to the pleadings in a law action may be allowed, in furtherance of justice, after the case has been remanded for a new trial by the supreme court, and exceptions to an order allowing such amendment will be waived unless excepted to. Scott v. The County of Chickasaw, 53
Iowa, 47.

Where an equity case is tried de novo in the supreme court, such trial is final, unless otherwise ordered for special reasons, and amendments to the pleadings are not allowable after the cause has been remanded to the court below. Sexton v. Henderson et al., 47 Id., 131.

While the circuit or district court may, in the exercise of a proper discretion, and under a proper showing, allow amendments to pleadings after appeal from a justice of the peace, the parties cannot file them as a matter of right. Pacard v. Snell, Aiken & Co., 35 Id., 50; Stanton v. Warwick, 21 Id., 76; May v. Wilson, Id., 79.

While the amendments of a petition, by reason of new matter stated therein, may afford grounds for a continuance of the cause, if the defendant is taken by surprise thereby, it is no ground for striking out the amendments. Switlik et ux v. Poorbaugh, 29 Id., 488; Hayes v.
Turner, 25 Id., 214; Fulmer v. Turner, 22 Id., 230, and cases cited, and also Correll v. Glasscock, 26 Id., 83; Avery v. Wilson, Id., 574; Hunt v. Hoover, 24 Id., 230; Nettman v. Schramm, 23
Id., 521.

Amendments to pleadings should always be allowed, in furtherance of justice, within the sound discretion of the court. Miller v. Perry & Townsend, 38 Id., 301; Severe v. Hamilton, 11 Id., 66; Brockman v. Berryhill, 16 Id., 183; Floyd v. Mayor of Keokuk, 18 Id., 388; Pride v. Wormwood, 27 Id., 257.

Where leave was granted to file an amended answer, setting up the statute of limitations, to which the plaintiff filed a reply, it was held that unless an abuse of discretion were shown the action of the court would not be reviewed, and that the filing of the reply was a waiver of any

A demurrer is a pleading within the meaning of section 2689 of the code and may be amended like any other pleading. Morrison v. Miller, 46 Id., 84.

An amendment may be allowed after all the evidence is received in order to conform the pleadings thereof. Ellis v. Lindley et al., 37 Id., 354.

A party will not be allowed to file an amended pleading tendering a new issue after a referee's report has been made, and thereupon have a resubmission of the case to the referee, without at least offering a reasonable excuse for neglecting to file the amendment before the referee's report was made. Nevell v. The M. C. S. B. et al., 51 Id., 178.

The allowance of an amendment, after one trial was had, withdrawing the denial of the due disposition and attestation of a will in a case in which its validity was contested on the ground of mental weakness and undue influence, and thereupon giving the affirmative of the issue and the right to open and close the case to the contestants, was not erroneous. Bates v. Bates et al., 27
Id., 110.

A plaintiff cannot amend his petition and increase his claim for damages after appeal, and while the cause is pending in the appellate court. Johnson v. Chaplin, 28 Id., 570.

After a reversal in an equitable action which is remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with the opinion of the court, the unsuccessful party may file an amended or additional pleading upon such a showing of newly discovered evidence as would entitle a party to a new trial in an action at law. Adams County v. The B. & M. R'y Co., 44 Id., 335. But where a decree in a
A party cannot, on appeal from a justice of the peace, file additional or new pleadings as a matter of right, but he may be allowed to do so upon proper terms, but not without satisfactory evidence excusing his failure to plead before the justice. May v. Wilson, 21 Id., 79. See also, Ruddick v. Vail, 7 Id., 44; Leftwick et al. v. Thornton, 18 Id., 56; Stanton v. Warrick, 21 Id., 76; Warren v. Scott et al., 32 Id., 22; Ping v. Cockyne, 37 Id., 211; Griswold v. Bowman, 40 Id., 367; Clowe v. Murphy, 52 Id., 695.

Where the petition in an action upon an order averred demand and notice, and an amendment filed after argument contained an allegation of waiver of demand and notice, it was held that the pleadings would sustain a finding of waiver. Peck v. Shick & Co., 50 Id., 281.

Under the issues and circumstances in this case, an amendment conforming the allegations of the petition to the facts proved, though offered after the argument of counsel for defendant, was proper, and the court erred in refusing to allow it. Tiffany v. Henderson, 57 Id., 490.

An amendment to the petition, conforming the allegations thereof to the proofs in the case, and made after all the evidence has been introduced at the trial, may be properly allowed. Thomas v. The Town of Brooklyn, 58 Id., 438.

Where an action was brought in the name of a township as plaintiff, and on a demurrer to the petition on the ground that the plaintiff had no capacity to sue, was sustained, it was held not error, under this section, to allow an amendment to the petition by substituting the township clerk as plaintiff. Wells v. Stomback et al., 59 Id., 375.

Ordinarily the supreme court has no power to remand an equity case triable de novo, but must try and determine it upon the record presented, but there are exceptions to the rule, and it has been held that the power to remand exists where it is necessary for the purpose of effectuating justice. Accordingly, where there was an evident mistake in the pleadings, which was not discovered until after the appeal, on account of which a judgment rendered upon record would be unjust, it was held that the cause could be remanded with leave to the parties to replead, and to introduce such further evidence as they might desire. White v. Fertle et al., 67 Id., 628.

SEC. 2690. [Error disregarded.]—The court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any error or defect in the proceeding which does not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party; and no judgment shall be reversed or affected by reason of such error or defect.

The objection that the petition in an action against a railroad company contains no averment of the corporate character of the defendant, comes too late after judgment, and constitutes no ground for a motion in arrest. Andre v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 39 Iowa, 107.

A judgment will not be reversed upon the ground of defects in pleadings, when it is apparent, upon the face of the record, that the parties have had a full trial, that neither party has been prejudiced by reason of such defect, and that substantial justice has been done. Doniphan et al. v. Street, 17 Id., 317; Smith v. Milburn, 17 Id., 30; Coates v. Patchin v. The City of Davenport, 9 Id., 227.

Under the provisions of this section, errors and defects in proceedings are not to be regarded or corrected, either in the trial court or appellate court, unless prejudice results therefrom to the rights of the parties complaining thereof. Wettmore v. Mellinger, 64 Id., 748.

SEC. 2691. [Does not entitle party to continuance.]—When either party shall amend any pleading or proceeding, the case shall not be continued in consequence thereof, unless the court shall be satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, that the adverse party could not be ready for trial in consequence of such amendment. But if the court is thus satisfied, a continuance may be granted to some day in the same term, or the next term of said court.

This section authorizes the continuance of a case upon the amendment of the pleadings, only when the court shall be satisfied that, by reason of the amendment, the other party could not be ready for the trial. The State v. Tieman, 39 Iowa, 474.

SEC. 2692. [Amendments: how made.]—All matters of supplement or amendment, whether of addition or subtraction, shall not be made by erasure or interlineation of the original, or by addition thereto, but upon a separate paper which shall be filed and constitute, with the original, but one pleading. But if it be stated in such paper that it is a substitute for the former pleading intended to be amended, in that case, it shall be deemed such substitute, but the pleading superseded by the substitute shall not be withdrawn from the files.
A pleading which is filed as an amendment to a former pleading will not be construed as a substitute therefor unless it is therein so expressed, but both will constitute one pleading and be construed together. Cooley v. Brown, 35 Iowa, 475; Pharo v. Johnson, 15 Id., 560; Kostendader v. Pierce, 37 Id., 645.

While a pleading which is superseded by a substituted one, ceases to tender any issue, yet it remains part of the record of the case, and the opposite party may avail himself of a distinct admission of fact contained therein. Mulligan v. Ill. Cent. R. Co., 36 Id., 181.

Amendments by erasure or interlineation are prohibited, and the court properly refused to allow an amendment of a sworn answer by striking out a word which occurred therein. Simmons v. Bust, 39 Id., 241.

An amendment to a petition is to be taken as part of and construed in connection with the original, and the prayer for relief in the original, applies to the amendment. Montgomery v. Shockey et al., 37 Id., 107.

It is not erroneous for the court, on motion to strike from the files interrogatories filed by one party to be answered by the other at the time the cause is called for trial, the action having been pending several months. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Id., 289.

INTERROGATORIES.

SEC. 2693. [May be annexed to pleading.]—Either party may annex to his petition, answer or reply, written interrogatories to any one or of the adverse parties concerning any of the material matters in issue in the action, the answer to which, on oath, may be read by either party as a deposition between the party interrogating and the party answering.

Neither the interrogatories nor the answers thereto, provided for by this section, will, on demurrer, aid a defective pleading. Lane v. Krekel, 22 Iowa, 399.

The court below may properly strike from the files interrogatories filed by the defendant to be answered by the plaintiff where they are not filed until the case is called for trial, where the action has been pending for several months. Jones v. Berryhill, 25 Id., 289.

Where the defendant annexes to his answer interrogatories to the plaintiff, under this section, both the interrogatories and the answers may be read to the jury; and an instruction that they should be considered as a part of the evidence in the case was held not erroneous, on the ground that the jury were thereby directed that the questions as well as the answers were to be regarded as evidence. Clinton N. R. R. v. Lorrey, 30 Id., 85.

A party answering interrogatories annexed to a pleading is not confined to answers merely responsive, but may state any new matter concerning the cause of action, and the same may be read by either party as a deposition in the case. Gwyer v. Higgins et al., 37 Iowa, 517.

SEC. 2694. [What response must state.]—The party answering shall not be confined to responding merely to the interrogatories, but may state any new matter concerning the same causes of action, which shall likewise be read as a deposition.

A party answering interrogatories annexed to a pleading is not confined to answers merely responsive, but may state any new matter concerning the cause of action, and the same may be read by either party the same as a deposition taken in the case. Gwyer v. Higgins et al., 37 Iowa, 517.

SEC. 2695. [Time of responding.]—The interrogatories shall be answered at the same time the pleading to which they are annexed is answered or replied to, unless they are excepted to by the adverse party; in which event the court shall determine as to the propriety of the interrogatories propounded, and which of them shall be answered, and within what time such answer shall be made.

A party is bound to take notice of the filing of interrogatories attached to the pleading of the adverse party, and will be in default for a failure to answer the same at the same time as for a failure to plead if any further pleading is required on his part, otherwise he will be entitled to such time as may be granted him by the court. Garvin v. Cannon, 53 Iowa, 716.

Where interrogatories annexed to an answer, to which no reply was required, were unanswered, but the defendant proceeded to trial, and at no time called the attention of the court to the omission, it was held that he could not take advantage of it on appeal. Id.

SEC. 2696. [To cause no delay, when.]—The trial of an action by ordinary proceedings, shall not be postponed on account of the failure to answer interrogatories, if the party interrogated is present in the court at the trial, so that he may be orally examined; nor in case of absence, unless an affidavit be filed showing the facts the party believes will be proved by the answers thereto, and that the party has not filed the interrogatories for the purpose of delay; whereupon, if the party will consent that the facts stated in the affidavit shall be considered as admitted by those interrogated, the trial shall not be postponed for that cause.

Certain counts in an amended or supplemental answer, setting up an equitable defense, filed three years after the commencement of the action, and only three days before the trial, accompanied by interrogatories to persons not parties to the record, and showing no excuse for the delay, held, properly stricken from the files. Courtright v. Deeds, 37 Iowa, 503.

SEC. 2697. [Particularity required.]-The party, in answering such interrogatories, shall distinguish clearly between what is stated from his personal knowledge, and what is stated from information or belief merely. An unqualified statement of a fact shall be considered as made of his personal knowledge.

SEC. 2698. [How verified.]-The answer to the interrogatories shall be verified by the affidavit of the party answering, to the effect that the statements in them made of his own personal knowledge are true, and those made from the information of others he believes to be true.

The answers to interrogatories annexed to a pleading must be verified by the affidavit of the party answering. Where the jurat of the notary alone was attached to the answers, it was held that the provisions of this section of the statute was not substantially complied with, and that the answers should have been suppressed as incompetent. Averill v. Boyles et al., 52 Iowa, 672.

SEC. 2699. [Upon failure to answer when taken as true.]-Where a party filing interrogatories shall also file an affidavit that he verily believes the subject of the interrogatories, or any of them, is in the personal knowledge of the opposite party, and that his answer thereto, if truly made from such knowledge will sustain the claim of defense, or any part thereof, and the opposite party shall fail to answer therein within the time allowed therefor, or by the court extended, the claim or defense, or the part thereof, according to such affidavit, shall be deemed to be sustained, and judgment given accordingly.

This section establishes a rule of evidence merely, and while the interrogatories unanswered and the affidavit therein prescribed constitute proof of the claim upon which judgment may be rendered on the trial, they do not entitle the party to a judgment without trial, and immediately upon the filing of the affidavit and the failure to answer. Perry v. Heighton, 26 Iowa, 451.

The failure to reply to interrogatories annexed to an answer entitles the defendant to judgment under this section, but he cannot claim this right for the first time in the supreme court on appeal. He should have demanded judgment in the court below. Sulley v. Wilson, 44 Id., 394.

The plaintiff may dismiss his action after failure to answer the interrogatories and affidavit filed, notwithstanding the objection of the defendant. Perry v. Heighton, 26 Id., 451.

Where the party filing interrogatories fails to state in his affidavit what facts he expects to prove thereby, no facts can be treated as admitted by a failure to answer. Hogaboom v. Price, 53 Id., 703.

SEC. 2700. [Answer compelled.]—The court may compel answers to interrogatories by process of contempt, and may, on the failure of the party to answer them, after reasonable time allowed therefor, dismiss the petition, or quash the answer of the party so failing.

A defendant who attaches interrogatories to his answer, to which no reply is required, is not entitled to a dismissal of the action for a failure of the plaintiff to answer such interrogatories until the expiration of a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court. Hogaboom v. Price, 53 Id., 703.

Where a number of the interrogatories so attached to a pleading were frivolous and immaterial a motion for an order requiring answers to all the interrogatories was held properly overruled. Id.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF PLEADINGS.

SEC. 2701. [Time: sum: quantity: place: denial of.]-In all cases in which a denial is made by answer or reply, concerning a time, sum, quantity or place alleged, the party denying shall declare whether such denial is applicable to every time, sum, quantity or place, and if not, what time, sum, quantity or place he admits.
SEC. 2702. [Time, when material: how stated.]—When time is material, the day, month and year, or when there is a continued act, its duration must be alleged. When time is not material, it need not be stated, and if stated, need not be proved.

SEC. 2703. [Place: allegation.]—It shall be necessary to allege a place, only when it forms a part of the substance of the issue.

SEC. 2704. [Evidence: denial of allegation.]—Under a denial of an allegation, no evidence shall be introduced which does not tend to negative some fact the party making the controverted allegation is bound to prove.

When a fact is alleged in a pleading in a manner subject to demurrer or a motion for a more specific statement it does not necessarily follow that the adverse party can take advantage of such insufficiency by objection to the evidence offered to sustain the allegation. Oliver v. Depew, 14 Iowa, 490.

Under a general denial—no evidence is admissible which does not tend to negative some fact essential to be proved under the pleading denied. Scott v. Morse et al., 51 Id., 752; Patterson v. Clark et al., 39 Id., 429. See also, Dyson v. Ream, 9 Id., 51; Hagar v. Burch, 8 Id., 310; Hutchinson v. Stanford, 4 O. Green, 340.

Where an action is instituted to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, and the answer was only a general denial, evidence which tended to prove that the defendant acquired title to the premises under the foreclosure of a valid mortgage given to a third person for a valuable consideration, the title to which he (defendant) acquired by lawful means, was admissible, without any special pleading of such facts, because it tended to negative allegations of the petition which plaintiff was bound to prove, and such facts did not constitute a special defense. Johnson v. Pennell et al., 67 Iowa, 669.

In an action against a city for negligence in excavating a street so that the plaintiff in driving over it was injured, it was held under section 2704 of the code, which provides that, “under a denial of an allegation, no evidence shall be introduced which does not tend to negative some fact the party making the controverted allegation is bound to prove,” the plaintiff was bound to prove himself free from negligence, and, therefore, that defendant was entitled under a general denial to introduce evidence of plaintiff’s intoxication at the time of the accident. Fernbach v. City of Waterloo, 84 N. W. R., 610.

SEC. 2705. [Counts: divisions numbered.]—The counts of the petition must be consecutively numbered as such, and so must the divisions of the answer as such, and of the reply as such.

SEC. 2706. [Correction of bad pleading.]—If any pleading do not conform to the foregoing requirements as to form, divisions or numbering, or the distinct or separate statements of its cause of action or defense, the court may, on its own motion, or that of the adverse party, order the same to be corrected on such terms as it may impose.

The objection that more than one cause of action is stated in one, and not in separate counts must be taken by motion and not by demurrer. Swords v. Russ, 13 Iowa, 609; Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158; Wright v. Connor, 34 Id., 240.

SEC. 2707. [Sham defenses stricken out.]—Sham and irrelevant answers and defenses may be stricken out on motion, upon such terms as the court may, in its discretion, impose.

A demurrer will not lie to purge a pleading, good in part, of redundant or irrelevant statements. A motion is the proper remedy. Bolinger v. Henderson, 23 Iowa, 165; Douglass v. Bishop, 27 Id., 214; McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 169, 162.

Paragaphs in an answer which constitute no defense to the action may be stricken out on motion as redundant or irrelevant matter. Eames v. Bobbitt, 27 Id., 472.

SEC. 2708. [Statute, how pleaded.]—In pleading a statute, or a right derived therefrom, it shall be sufficient to refer to such statute by its title and the day of its passage, and the court shall thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

SEC. 2709. [Rules of court.]—Every court of this state shall take judicial notice of the rules of any other court thereof, if published as directed by law.

SEC. 2710. [Inconsistent: defenses pleaded.]—Inconsistent defenses may be stated in the same answer or reply, and when a verification is required, it must be to the effect that the party believes one or the other to be true, but cannot determine which.
Contradictory defenses may be pleaded, but they must be set out in separate counts or divisions of the answer, and each must be sufficient in itself to present the defense intended to be pleaded. Morgan v. The Hawkeye Ins. Co., 37 Iowa, 399.

The defendant may plead inconsistent defenses, and an instruction directing that the admissions in one defense render it unnecessary for the jury to consider the evidence in support of another, is erroneous. The defendant is entitled to the full benefit of each defense. Barr v. Hack, 46 Id., 305.

Under this section, a defendant may plead inconsistent defenses in the same pleading; and admissions made in one defense are not to be construed as affecting a different and inconsistent defense. Heinrichs v. Terrell, 65 Id., 25; Barr v. Hack, 46 Id., 368.

In an action by the mortgagee to recover for the wrongful seizure and conversion of mortgaged goods under a writ of attachment against the mortgagor, the defendant is estopped to set up for the purpose of invalidating the mortgage, that he was the owner of the goods by purchase from the mortgagor at the time the mortgage was made: for a party cannot be allowed to say that he has attached his own property. Crawford, Trustee, v. Nolan et al., 70 Id., 97.

SEC. 2711. [Exceptions to general law stated.]—Whenever a party claims a right derogatory from the general law, or when his claim is founded upon an exception of any kind, he shall set forth such claim or such exception particularly in his pleading.

In an action to subject a homestead to the payment of a debt alleged to have been contracted prior to its purchase, the burden of proof to show that it was purchased with the proceeds of a sale of a former homestead, and therefore exempt, is upon the defendant. The First National Bank, v. Baker, 51 Iowa, 377.

SEC. 2712. [Allegations not controverted admitted]—Every material allegation in a pleading not controverted by a subsequent pleading, shall, for the purposes of the action, be deemed true. But the allegations of the answer, not relating to a counter-claim, and of the reply, are to be deemed controverted. But an allegation of value, or amount of damage, shall not be deemed true by a failure to controvert it. A party desiring to admit any allegations, which by this section would be deemed controverted, may, at any time, file a written admission thereof.

Every material allegation in a petition undenied by the answer is taken as true. Alexander v. Doran, 13 Iowa, 283; Botanover v. Atwell, 14 Id., 35; Lyon v. Northrup, 17 Id., 314.

Under this section the allegation of new matter not in the nature of a counter-claim, is deemed denied without replication, as controverted by a general denial, and also under the revision, by matter in avoidance. The Chicago & S. W. R. Co. v. The N. A. T. I. Co., 38 Id., 74.

An allegation of value in a pleading is not to be taken as true on account of a failure to controvert it. The Chicago & S. W. R. Co. v. N. W. U. P. Co., 36 Id., 377.

Where in an action of replevin the allegation of value was not denied, held, not thereby admitted to be true. Id.

The allegations of pleading which are not answered or denied, being taken as true, no evidence will be admitted for the purpose of or tending to controvert them. The Sugar Manufacturing Co. v. Billings, 39 Id., 347.

The denial of a fact of which the court takes judicial notice cannot be well pleaded and is not admitted by demurrer. Cooke v. Tallman, 40 Id., 133.

Under this section as it stands in the code a reply is unnecessary where the answer does not plead a counter-claim and the plaintiff has no matter to plead in confession and avoidance of the answer. Davis v. Payne et al., 45 Id., 194.

The allegations of the amount of damages sustained is not admitted by a failure to deny the same, and the damages must be proved or the party will be entitled to nominal damages only; and a judgment will not be reversed for a failure to assess mere nominal damages. McIntosh v. Lee, 51 Id., 366; Shaw v. Kendig, 45 Id., 390, 392.

Where the petition in an action by a woman against the administrator of one deceased alleged a marriage between the plaintiff and the deceased in his lifetime, which allegation was not denied in the answer, the allegation of marriage was taken as true and evidence tending to prove it held immaterial. In re Estate of Edwards, 43 Id., 431.

The allegations of an answer unless the same contains a counter-claim are deemed denied without further pleading by the plaintiff, and unless supported by evidence the plaintiff is entitled to judgment upon proof of the allegations of the petition. Cassady v. Caton, 47 Id., 22.

Where a counter-claim is pleaded it will be deemed admitted unless denied in the reply. The Union National Bank v. Carr, 49 Id., 359, 361.

Under our system of pleading, the question of value must be determined by evidence. A party is not stopped from proving the true value when he has, by mistake, alleged it incorrectly, or where it has changed since the allegation was made. Reilly v. Ringland et al. 39 Id., 106.
A failure to deny an allegation in a pleading does not admit it, unless the matter of the allegation be well pleaded. Alston v. Wilson et al., 44 Id., 130.

Where petitions for enjoining and abating of nuisances, kept in violation of the prohibitory liquor laws, contained the necessary averments, and no answers were filed, the averments of the petition stood admitted by operation of law, and no evidence was necessary on part of plaintiffs to entitle them to the relief demanded. Bloomer v. Glendy et al., 757.

SEC. 2713. [Pleading made more specific: how. ]—If a pleading is founded on an account, a bill of particulars thereof must be incorporated into or attached to such pleading, verified as the pleading, and deemed a portion thereof, subject to be made more specific on motion, and shall define and limit the proof, but may be amended as other pleadings. The items of such bill of particulars shall be consecutively numbered.

When the cause of action in a justice's court consists of a book account embracing several items the defendant is entitled to a bill of particulars or to have an entry of the several items entered upon the justice's docket upon demanding the same. McKinley et al. v. Hopkins, 20 Iowa, 495.

That a cause of action as stated in the alternative is not a ground of demurrer but of motion. Turner v. First Nat. Bank of Keokuk, 21 Id., 562: so also if the pleading is argumentative. Davis v. Bonar et al., 15 Id., 171.

An action to recover money alleged to be fraudulently secreted and kept, and for expense, trouble, and inconvenience caused thereby, is an action upon tort to which this section has no application; and a motion to compel plaintiff to attach a bill of particulars to his petition, should be overruled. McDonald v. Barnhill, 58 Id., 669.

SEC. 2714. [Judgment: how pleaded. ]—In pleading a judgment, or the determination of a court, or officer of special jurisdiction, it shall not be necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made.

The petition in an action on a recognizance need not aver the particular facts showing jurisdiction in the magistrate to take the bail—the existence of the facts necessary to confer jurisdiction; if the preliminary proceedings were not such as to authorize the taking of the recognizance the objection may be made by answer or may appear on the trial. The State v. Hufford, 23 Iowa, 579.

SEC. 2715. [Conditions precedent. ]—In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts constituting such performance, but the party may state, generally, that he duly performed all the conditions on his part.

SEC. 2716. [When action is brought in a representative capacity. ]—A plaintiff suing as a corporation, partnership, executor, guardian, or in any other way implying corporate, partnership, representative, or other than individual capacity, need not state the facts constituting such capacity or relation, but may aver generally, or as a legal conclusion, such capacity or relation; and where a defendant is held in such capacity or relation, a plaintiff may aver such capacity or relation in the same general way.

In an action by a school district it is not necessary to set out at length in the petition the manner in which the district was formed, and the legality of the acts leading to its formation cannot be questioned by demurrer. Ft. Dodge School District v. The District Tp. of Wahkanaa, 15 Iowa, 434.

An allegation in a petition that the defendant "is a corporation created by authority of the state of Iowa under the name and style of the city of Oskaloosa," is sufficient to charge the defendant in a corporate capacity. Stier v. The City of Oskaloosa, 41 Id., 353; see also, The Home Ins. Co. v. The Northwestern Packet Co., 32 Id., 244.

An action by a school district is not necessary to set out at length in the petition the manner in which the district was formed, and the legality of acts leading to its formation cannot be raised by demurrer. Ft. Dodge City S. D. v. The Dist. Tp. of Wahkanaa, 15 Id., 434.

The petition in an action by a partnership or corporation should contain an averment of the capacity in which the suit is brought, otherwise it is subject to demurrer. Sweet, Dempster & Co. v. Ermn & Co., 54 Id., 101; Byington v. The M. & M. R Co., 11 Id., 502.

When a city or town is incorporated by a special act of the general assembly, the court will take judicial notice of its incorporation, but when it is incorporated under the general law, the fact of its corporate character must be pleaded and proved. Hard v. The City of Decorah, 48 Id., 318.
The question of the corporate power of a party to an action cannot be raised for the first time on appeal, but must be specially pleaded. Commercial Bank of Keokuk v. King et al., 47 Id., 64.

Where the plaintiff in his petition avers that he is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting administrator, etc., the averment is not put in issue by a general denial, but this can only be done by alleging the facts relied on to show that the averment is not true. And where in such a case a general denial only is pleaded the court may properly instruct the jury as to its legal effect; but an omission so to do is not reversible error, where other instructions given averred all danger of the jury being misled by the omission. Mayers v. Farley, 69 Id., 407.

SEC. 2717. [Facts must be stated.]—If either of the allegations contemplated in the three preceding sections is controverted, it shall not be sufficient to do so in terms contradictory of the allegation, but the facts relied on shall be specifically stated.

An answer denying the corporate capacity of the defendant must set out a specific statement of facts relied upon as a denial; and must deny such capacity as existing at the time the action was commenced. Coates v. G. & C. W. R'y Co., 18 Id., 277.

When the petition alleges that the defendant is a corporation, duly organized under the laws of the state, such corporate existence cannot be put in issue by a general denial. Blackshire v. The Iowa Homestead Co., 39 Id., 624; Stier v. The City of Oskaloosa, 41 Id., 353.

Where there is a general allegation of the consolidation of two railroad corporations, a general denial is sufficient. Koons v. C. & N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 498.

Where it is alleged in the petition that the plaintiff "was duly appointed guardian," etc., a general denial in the answer will not put the fact of appointment in issue.

Where a defendant, sued as a corporation, answered, denying that it was a corporation, or ever had been organized or attempted to be organized as one, such denial was held sufficiently specific under this section of the code. Fulsom & Co. v. The Star Union Line Fast Freight Line, 54 Id., 490.

And when it is claimed that a defendant, sued as a corporation, is estopped by its acts and course of dealing to deny its corporate character it must be specially pleaded. Id.

The validity of the appointment of a guardian cannot be tested in an action by the guardian, wherein the petition simply alleges that he was duly appointed and the answer denies this allegation. Gates v. Carpenter et al., 43 Id., 152.

SEC. 2718. [Matters that must be specially pleaded.]—Any defense showing that a contract, written or oral, or any instrument sued on, is void or voidable; or that the instrument was delivered to a person as an escrow, or showing matter of justification, excuse, discharge, or release, and any defense which admits the facts of the adverse pleading, but by some other matter seeks to avoid their legal effect, must be specially pleaded.

In an action on a written contract, evidence was held inadmissible on behalf of the defendant, that the instrument was not stamped when made and delivered, when no such defense was specially pleaded, and there was no denial of the execution of the instrument. Gildan v. Higby, 51 Id., 379. Sec. also, Ricord v. Jones, 31 Id., 296.

The statute of limitations is not available unless pleaded as a defense in the answer, or taken advantage of by demurrer. Robinson v. Allen, 57 Id., 27.

Where evidence of fraud can be legally admissible, the fraud must be specially pleaded. Gray v. Earl, 13 Id., 188; Root v. Schaffner, 39 Id., 375, 377.

Recovery on a contract cannot be defeated on the ground that it was made on Sunday, and is therefore void, unless that fact is specially pleaded. Rieh v. Bolch, 68 Id., 526.

The defense of payment of interest due on a contract, to be avoidable must be specially pleaded. Jones v. Bowman et al., 72 Id., 645.

SEC. 2719. [Irrelevant matter stricken out.]—The court may, on motion of any person aggrieved thereby, cause irrelevant or redundant matter to be stricken from any pleadings, at the cost of any party whose pleading contains them.

When a pleading in a suit is insufficient, it should be amended by demurrer; but when it contains redundant or irrelevant matter and the adverse party will be aggrieved by suffering it to remain, it may be stricken out on motion. Childs v. Griswold, 15 Iowa, 498; The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Id., 223; King v. Palmer, 15 Id., 377, 387; Bolenger v. Emerson, 23 Id., 185; Douglass v. Bishop, 27 Id., 214; Evans v. Robbins, 29 Id., 472; McGinn v. Butler, 31 Id., 162; Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158.

It is not error to refuse to strike out irrelevant or redundant matter from a pleading unless the party moving will be aggrieved thereby; and he will not be deemed aggrieved unless compelled. to traverse facts which are more properly evidence than substantive averments. Gate v. Gilman, 41 Id., 530.

In an action against a city and railroad company to prevent the occupancy of a street by the latter, and for any damages, it was held, that allegations in the petition to the effect that other streets were occupied by other railroad companies were immaterial, and properly stricken out on motion. Davis v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co. et al., 46 Id., 389.

Any person who is required to answer a pleading containing irrelevant matter is aggrieved thereby, and is entitled to have the same stricken out on motion. Johns v. Pattee, 55 Id., 665.

SEC. 2720. [When pleading made more specific.]—When the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite and uncertain that the precise nature of the charge or defense is not apparent, the court may, on motion, require it to be made more definite and certain. No pleading which recites or refers to a contract shall be deemed sufficiently specific unless it states whether it is in writing or not. Such motion shall point out wherein the pleading is not sufficiently specific or it shall be disregarded, and if the reason for such demand exists outside of the pleadings, the motion must state the same and be supported by affidavit.

When the averments of a pleading are not sufficiently full and specific, or contains several causes of action in one count, it may be corrected on motion, but not by demurrer. Hayden v. Anderson, 17 Id., 158; Barthol v. Blakie, 34 Id., 452, 453; Byington v. Woods, 13 Id., 17; McCormick v. Basal, 46 Id., 235.

Where, in an action on a promissory note, the defendant pleads generally a want of consideration, without stating the facts of such defense, the answer may be assailed by a motion for a more specific statement, but not by demurrer. Simpson Cons. Col. v. Bryan, 50 Id., 293.

If the petition founded upon a breach of contract as its cause of action does not state whether the contract is in writing or oral, it may be made more specific on motion. Barthol v. Blakie 34 Id., 452, 453.

In an action for a breach of warranty of soundness in all respects, it was held, that an allegation that the horse was unsound, that he was unable, except once in a great while, to perform his duty as a stable horse, was sufficiently specific. Schurtz v. Kleinmyer, 36 Id., 392.

A motion for a more specific statement will not lie for any indefiniteness in the demand for judgment, but only when the facts on which the pleading is founded are stated in such a manner that the other party cannot intelligibly respond thereto. The G. F. S. Co. v. Dugardin, 38 Id., 403.

That an allegation in the statement of the cause of action is in the alterative, is not ground for demurrer, but must be attacked by motion. Turner v. The First National Bank of Keokuk, 26 Id., 582.

The right to object to the ruling of the court in overruling the motion for a more specific statement is waived by answering over. Kline v. The K. C., St. J. & C. B. R. Co., 50 Id., 656; so, also, this rule applies in overruling a motion to have the allegations of the petition made more specific. Cunliffe v. McCarthy et al., 34 Id., 106.

SEC. 2721. [Title of Cause not changed.]—The title of a cause shall not be changed in any of its stages of transit from one court to another.

SEC. 2722. [Judicial notice.]—Matters of which judicial notice is taken need not be stated in a pleading.

Courts will take notice of the coincidence of days of the week with days of the month, as what days fall upon Sunday. Matters of which judicial notice is taken need not be pleaded. This was the rule at common law. Clough v. Goggins, 40 Iowa, 325, 326.

SEC. 2723. [Conveyance: how pleaded.]—When a party claims by conveyance, he may state it according to its legal effect or name.

SEC. 2724. [Estate: how pleaded.]—It shall not be necessary to allege the commencement of either particular or a superior estate, unless it be essential to the merits of the case.

SEC. 2725. [Same as to goods.]—In action for injuries to goods and chattels, their kind or species shall be alleged.

SEC. 2726. [Same as to real property.]—In actions for injuries to real property, the petition shall describe the property, and when the injury is to an incorporeal hereditament, shall describe the property in respect of which the right is claimed, as well as the right itself, either by the numbers by which the property is designated in the national survey, or by any name which it has acquired by reputation certain enough to identify it.
SEC. 2727. [Malice.]—When a party intends to prove malice to effect damages, he must aver the same.

Where a party intends to prove malice, to affect the measure of damages, he must expressly allege the same in his pleading. Johnson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 51 Iowa, 25.

In an action to recover for the wrongful disposition of the plaintiff of a dwelling-house, exemplary damages can only be recovered where malice is alleged and proved; such allegation must be contained in the petition, and is not sufficient in a reply. Jones v. Marshall, 56 Id., 789.

SEC. 2728. [Bond: breaches of.]—In an action on a bond with conditions, the party suing thereon shall notice the conditions and allege the facts constituting the breaches relied on.

In action or counter-claim founded upon an attachment bond, the conditions of the bond, and the facts constituting the breach must be alleged. Ryder v. Thomas, 32 Iowa, 56.

In an action on an attachment bond the petition should set out the bond and the breach of its conditions, and allege that the plaintiff in the attachment suit had no reasonable ground for believing the alleged grounds for attachment to be true. Bunt v. Kehun, 32 Id., 619. See also, Horner v. Harrison, et al., 37 Id., 378.

SEC. 2729. [Extent of proof required.]—A party shall not be compelled to prove more than is necessary to entitle him to the relief asked for, or any lower degree included therein, nor more than sufficient to sustain his defense.

Where a party is sued in antre droit and it appears form the allegations in the petition that the defendant is liable in his own right, the words "Executor &c." will be treated as surplusage, or as descriptio persona, but where it appears from the record that they were not so treated by the parties, or either of them, in the court below, it will not be so considered on appeal in the supreme court. Laverty v. Woodward, 16 Iowa, 1.

A party is not compelled to prove more than is needed for his defense notwithstanding he has stated in his answer more than is necessary. Arnold v. Arnold, 20 Id., 273. See also, Chamberlain v. Gage, Id., 304.

Whenever a pleading alleges more than is necessary to entitle the party to the relief asked, such unnecessary allegation will be treated as surplusage and need not be proved. Little v. McGuire, 48 Id., 566.

A plaintiff failing to make a case entitling him to the entire amount of his demand, may still recover so much as he has shown himself entitled to have. Doud v. Walker, 48 Id., 684, 685.

SEC. 2730. [When written instrument referred to in pleading deemed genuine.]—When a written instrument is referred to in a pleading, and the same, or a copy thereof, is incorporated in or attached to such pleading, the signature thereto, and to any indorsement thereon, shall be deemed genuine and admitted, unless the person whose signature the same purports to be, shall, in a pleading or writing filed within the time allowed for pleading, deny the genuineness of such signature under oath. If such instrument be not negotiable, and purport to be executed by a person not a party to the proceeding, the signature thereto shall not be deemed genuine or admitted, if a party to the proceeding, in the manner and within the time before mentioned, state under oath that he has no knowledge or information sufficient to enable him to form a belief as to the genuineness of such signature. The person whose signature purports to be signed to such instrument, shall, on demand, be entitled to an inspection thereof.

In an action on a promissory note, evidence of the genuineness of the signature of an indorser will not be required when the pleadings show that there was no direct issue joined thereon. Manning et al. v. Perkins, 16 Iowa, 71.

This section of the statute applies to written instruments made by trading and municipal corporations as well as to those made by individuals. Clarke v. Polk County, 19 Id., 245.

To cast upon the plaintiff the burden of proving the genuineness of the signature of the defendant to a written instrument upon which the action is founded, or to any writing referred to in the pleading, and the original or a copy thereof is set out therein, the genuineness of such signature must be denied in writing under oath by the defendant. Hall v. The Etna Mfg. Co., 30 Id., 215; Loomis et al. v. Metcalf et al., Id., 382.

The denial in such case, must be made by the party whose signature it purports to be, and it was accordingly held that a denial by the maker of the genuineness of the signature of the indorser is not sufficient to throw the onus on the plaintiff. Robinson v. Lair, 31 Id., 9; Walker v. Sleight, 30 Id., 310. See also, Hall v. The Etna Mfg. Co., 30 Id., 215.

The defendant may, under the plea of non est factum, not under oath, show that he never signed the instrument sued on purporting to be, and as a note, by showing that it was changed or altered to its present form from a receipt or the like. This section does not apply to such a case, Lake v. Cruskinkie, 31 Id., 385.

The denial, in order to cast upon the plaintiff the burden of proving the signature of the instrument sued on, must be of the genuineness of the signature thereto. A denial under oath of the execution of the instrument is insufficient. Douglass v. Matheny, 35 Id., 115; Loomis & Leroy v. Metcalf et al., 30 Id., 382.

In an action upon a deed of a corporation, where the signatures of the officers signing it were not denied under oath, and the seal of the corporation appeared to be affixed, the instrument was held properly admitted in evidence without proof of the signatures. Miller, Ch. J., dissenting. Blackshire v. The Iowa Homestead Co., 30 Id., 624.

Where in an action upon a written instrument the signature of the defendant is denied under oath by him, the issue is upon the plaintiff upon all the whole case to establish the genuineness of the signature to the instrument. Farmers and Merchants Bank v. Young, 36 Id., 44.

In an action against an administrator on a promissory note made by the intestate in his lifetime, a denial of the execution of the note includes a denial of the genuineness of the signature. Ashworth v. Grubbs, 47 Id., 383.

Where the genuineness of the signature is denied, a preponderance of evidence is sufficient to invalidate it. Id.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage where copies of the note and mortgage are annexed to the petition as exhibits, and the signatures thereto are not denied under oath, the genuineness of the signatures will be deemed admitted, and it is wholly immaterial in such case whether the note and mortgage are formally introduced in evidence or not. Henry v. Evans et al., 58 Id., 560.

Prior to the code, a denial under oath of sufficient “knowledge or information to form a belief,” was held not sufficient to cast the burden of proving the signature upon the plaintiff. Hall v. The Allen Mf. Co., 30 Id., 215.

Where an assignment is not so incorporated into a pleading or attached thereto as to require it to be denied under oath, its genuineness must be proved by the party pleading it. Hay v. Frazier, 49 Id., 454, 455.

The genuineness of a signature may be proved by its similarity to an admitted signature and other circumstantial evidence. McDonald & Co. v. Noonan, 50 Id., 83.

In an action against a municipal corporation, upon warrants drawn on its treasury, if the warrants are set out in the petition by copy, and their execution is not denied under oath, they may be admitted in evidence without proof of the genuineness of the signature, or of the authority to issue the same. Clark v. The City of Des Moines, 19 Id., 199.

A party may put in issue the genuineness of his signature to a written instrument in a suit by a pleading not under oath, but the burden of proof upon such issue, under this section, devolves upon him in such case. Brayley v. Hedges, 52 Id., 628; Sonkey v. Gump, 35 Id., 287; Farmers' and Merchants' Bank v. Young, 36 Id., 45; Sally v. Goldsmith, 49 Id., 690; Robinson v. Lair, 31 Id., 10; Ashworth v. Grubbs, 47 Id., 383.

Where the signature to a note sued on was denied under oath, the burden was on the plaintiff to prove it to be genuine. Miller et al. v. House & Lamb, 67 Id., 737.

SEC. 2731. [Supplemental pleading defined.—Either party may be allowed, on motion, to make a supplemental petition, answer, or reply, alleging facts material to the case, which have happened or have come to his knowledge since the filing of the former pleading; nor shall such new pleading be considered a waiver of former pleadings.

Where in an action on a promissory note, the defendant answered, alleging that the maturity of the note was, by the contract of the parties, made contingent upon the payment of certain other notes, made by the payee to a third party, upon which the defendant was liable as an indorser, whereupon the plaintiff filed a supplemental petition, in which it was alleged that after the commencement of the action the note upon which the defendant was so liable as indorser was paid and his liability discharged, it was held that a demurrer to the supplemental was, under this section of the code, properly overruled. The City of Davenport v. Mitchell, 13 Iowa, 194.

Where an action was brought upon a case, and judgment and a landlord's lien were asked for an installment of rent due and one to become due, held, that after the last installment had become due, plaintiff was entitled to file a supplemental petition, setting up that fact and asking judgment for the same.

SEC. 2732. [Matter in abatement: how pleaded.—Matter in abatement may be stated in the answer or reply, either together with or without causes of defense in bar, and no one of such causes shall be deemed to overrule the other; nor shall a party after trial, on matter of abatement, be allowed in the same action to answer or reply matter in bar.
Where a defect of parties is apparent on the face of the petition, it may be taken advantage of by demurrer; when not thus apparent, it may be set up by answer. When pleaded in the answer, it is a question for the jury, and cannot be determined by the court upon motion based upon but a part of the evidence. Enders v. Beek, 18 Iowa, 86.

The fact that the maker of a note has been garnished as a debtor of the payee, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the note by an assignee thereof, who received it after maturity and after the garnishment of the maker. But such fact may be pleaded in abatement, and the issue thereon submitted to a jury, and then on this issue and the judgment thereon be distinguished from issues on matters pleaded at bar. Clise v. Freeborn, 27 Id., 280.

Where want of jurisdiction does not appear upon the face of the petition, the objection should be made by pleading the facts in abatement. Meunch v. Breitenbaugh, 41 Id., 227.

A champertous contract between the plaintiff and his attorney in an action for damages is no ground for the abatement of the action. Allison v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 42 Id., 274.

A common law matter in abatement had to be pleaded before a plea in bar, and both could not be pleaded together. But under the code, matters in abatement and in bar may be set up in the same pleading. Herriman v. McKee, 49 Id., 185.

Where a defendant files a plea to the jurisdiction of the court which is held insufficient on demurrer, he has the right after such ruling to answer in bar of the action, the ruling on the demurrer not being a "trial" within the meaning of this section of the code. Winet v. Berryhill, 55 Iowa, 411.

SEC. 2733. [Subsequent defense: how pleaded.]-Any defense arising after the commencement of any action, shall be stated according to the fact, without any formal commencement or conclusion, and any answer which does not state whether the defense therein set up arose before or after action, shall be deemed to be of matter arising before action.

SEC. 2734. [Consolidation of actions.]-Whenever two or more actions are pending in the same court which might have been joined, the defendant may, on motion and notice to the adverse party, require him to show cause why the same shall not be consolidated, and if no sufficient cause be shown the same shall be consolidated.

An action at law to recover possession of land cannot, on motion of defendant, be transferred to the equity docket and consolidated with a suit brought in that forum by the defendant in the law action, to quiet the title to the same lands, before issue joined and it is shown upon the face of the pleadings that the defense is equitable in its character. McHenry v. Sypher, 12 Iowa, 585.

See Viele v. Germania Ins. Co., 26 Id., 9, where the court was equally divided upon the question of the right of the defendant to have four actions brought by the same plaintiff against four insurance companies.

SEC. 2735. [Lost pleading.]-If an original pleading be lost or withheld by any one, the court may order a copy thereof to be substituted.

SEC. 2736. [Records cannot be altered.]-No record shall be amended or impaired by the clerk or other officer of the court, or by any person without the order of such court, or some court of competent authority.

CHAPTER 9.

OF TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

SEC. 2737. [Issues: law and fact.]-Issues arise in the pleadings, where a fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds:

1. Of law;
2. Of fact.

There are but two kinds of issues, one of law and the other of fact, whether the action be ordinary, equitable or in the nature of a special proceeding. Sisters, etc., v. Glass et al., 45 Iowa, 154.

A proceeding for the probate of a will is not an equitable action triable de novo in the supreme court, but a special proceeding triable in the circuit court as a law action, and is governed by the same rules as law actions as to mode of appeal and trial in the supreme court. Id.

The finding of the court in ordinary actions and special proceedings stands as the verdict of a jury, and will not be set aside if there is any evidence by which it can be supported. Id.

Sec. 2738. An issue of facts arises:
1. Upon a material allegation of fact in the petition denied by the answer;
2. Upon a material allegation of new matter presented in the answer and denied by the reply;
3. Upon allegations of new matter in the reply, which shall be considered as controverted by the opposite party without further pleading. Any other issue is one of law.

Generally an issue arises upon a material allegation of fact in a petition or answer, and is denied by answer or reply. The object of a trial is to judicially examine the issue thus made. Per Wright, J, in Wilkins v. Treynor, 14 Iowa, 391.

A general denial puts in issue all the facts averred. Per Miller, J, in Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., 31.

ISSUES—HOW TRIED.

Sec. 2739. Issues of law must be first tried. A trial is a judicial examination of the issues in an action, whether they be issues of law or of fact.

Sec. 2740. Issues of fact, in an action in an ordinary proceeding, must be tried by jury, unless the same is waived. All other issues shall be tried by the court, unless a reference thereof is made.

Issues of fact are to be tried by a jury, unless a jury trial is waived. Wilkins v. Treynor, 14 Iowa, 393.

Under the revision of 1860, in the trial of an equitable action triable by what was called the second method, either party was entitled to have the issues of fact tried by a jury. Benedict v. Hunt, 32 Id., 27.

In an action for divorce commenced before the code took effect, but tried afterward, either party had the right to a jury trial. Wadsorth v. Wadsworth, 40 Id., 448.

Under the code the action for divorce is an equitable action, and is not triable on appeal in the supreme court upon errors alone, but must be tried de novo regardless of section 2747 of the code. Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Id., 192.

Sec. 2741. Issues of law are triable as in ordinary actions. Sisters, etc., v. Glass et al., 45 Id., 154.

Under this section either party may waive a trial by jury, in a civil action. The State v. Carman, 63 Id., 130.

Where a promissory note stipulated for "attorney's fees, and other costs and charges, if the same is not paid when due," such attorney's fees should be treated as a part of the costs in the case, and the defendant is not entitled to a jury upon a denial of the reasonableness of the amount claimed therefor. Needer v. Cron, 48 Id., 53; Skeeters and Day, J.J., dissenting.

An issue of fact in action for divorce cannot be submitted to a jury for determination, and a subsequent adoption of the decision of the jury by the court will not cure the error of such submission. Hobart v. Hobart, 51 Id., 512.

An action by a wife against two defendants to recover against them jointly for injuries to her from the sale of liquors to her husband, and to charge the premises on which the liquors were sold with a lien of the judgment, is triable as an action at law against both defendants, and either party is entitled to a jury; the lien following as a matter of law upon the finding of the facts requisite under the statute in favor of the plaintiff. Loan v. Hiney and Etzel, 53 Id., 89.

Sec. 2741. (As substituted by ch. c3, 18th g. a.) [On oral evidence.]—All issues of fact in ordinary actions shall be tried upon oral evidence taken in open court, except that depositions may be used as now provided by law; and, upon appeal, no evidence shall go to the supreme court except such as may be necessary to explain any exception taken in the cause, and such court shall hear and try the case only on the legal errors so presented.

Prior to the enactment of chapter 145 of laws of the seventeenth general assembly, it was held, that under the code all actions were triable in the district and circuit courts upon oral evidence, and it devolved upon either or both the parties, in order to secure the right of trial de novo in an equitable action in the supreme court, to move for and obtain an order of court for a trial upon written evidence. Finch v. Hollinger, 47 Iowa, 173; Fuller v. Schwaert, id., 711; Walker v. Plummer, 41 Id., 937; McClay v. Bunkers, 46 Id., 700; Allman v. Farrington, 45 Id., 629.
Chap. 9. Of Trial and Judgment.

Under the revision of 1860 equitable actions, triable by the first method were tried de novo in the supreme court on all the evidence in writing. Robb v. Dougherty, 14 Id., 379; Cooper v. Steel, Id., 578; Ticonic Bank v. Harvey, 16 Id., 141; VonOsman v. Spofford et al., Id., 186; Kellogg v. Kelsey et al., Id., 288; Byers v. Rodabaugh, 17 Id., 53; Manning v. Horry, 18 Id., 117; Cole v. Cole, 23 Id., 433; Snowden v. Snowden, Id., 457; Krapgel v. Pfijfer, 24 Id., 176; Chambers v. Ingham, 25 Id., 222; Lyon v. Lynch, 28 Id., 326; Hackeweth v. Zollars, 30 Id., 433.

A party in an equitable action cannot, as a matter of right, demand that the issues be tried by a jury. The provisions of our statute denying this right are not in conflict with the state constitution guaranteeing the right of trial by jury. The State of Iowa v. Orneig, 25 Id., 250; Dove v. The Ind. S. D. of K., et al., 41 Id., 689.

The supreme court will not try a divorce case de novo on appeal where it was tried before before a referee, even if all the evidence is before the court. Hobart v. Hobart, 45 Id., 501.

SEC. 2742. (As substituted by ch. 35 19, g. a. r. § 300.) [Equitable issues tried on written evidence.]—But in equitable actions wherein issue of fact is joined, all the evidence offered in the trial shall be taken down in writing, or the court may order the evidence, or any part thereof, to be taken in the form of depositions, or either party may, at pleasure, take his testimony, or any part thereof, by deposition. The evidence so taken shall be certified by the judge at any time within the time allowed for the appeal of said cause, and be made a part of the record, and go on appeal to the supreme court, which shall try the cause anew.

It is only in equitable actions that the supreme court will try the cause anew on appeal. Dove v. The Ind. School Dist. of Keokuk, 41 Iowa, 689; Blake v. Blake, 13 Id., 40. See, also, Hamnersham v. Fairall, 45 Id., 462.

Under section 2742 of the code, prior to its amendment by chapter 145 of the laws of 1878, to enable a party to a trial de novo in the supreme court, in an equity action, he was required to move for the appearance term in the trial below that all the evidence be taken down in writing. Richards v. Hintrager, 45 Id., 253; Altman & Co. v. Farrington, Id., 639; Moses v. The C. Ins. Co., 40 Id., 440; Walker v. Plummer, 41 Id., 697; Hamnersham v. Fairall, 44 Id., 462; Clark & Haddock v. Reynolds, Id., 674; Stoddard v. Hardwick, 46 Id., 160; Bird v. Bird, 49 Id., 693; Trescott v. Barnes et al., 46 Id., 644; Litz v. Helrey, 47 Id., 311, 312; Lentzinger v. Hershey, Id., 696; Fuller v. Schwartz, Id., 712; Twogood & Elliott v. Reilly et al., 48 Id., 546; Koox v. Hanlon, Id., 532, 534; Goe v. Tidrick, Id., 284; Bundland v. McNally, Id., 440; Speidel v. Smith, Id., 700; Twogood et al. v. Riley, 48 Id., 546.

Where in an equitable action the abstract recites that the evidence was by order of the court reduced to writing and made a part of the record, the case is triable de novo in the supreme court. Stoddard et al. v. Hardwick, et al., 46 Id., 160.

The appearance term contemplated by section 2742, of the code before amended, held, to be the term where it first becomes apparent there is for trial and determination any issue of fact. Vinsant v. Vinsant, 47 Id., 594.

In an equity case, triable de novo in the supreme court, the certificate of the trial judge in the court below must recite that the abstract contains, not simply the material portions, but all the evidence. Andrews v. Kerr et al., 49 Id., 680; See, also, Endersly v. Endersly, Id., 694.

Where either party elected to take the testimony in an equitable action in the form of depositors under section 2743 of the code, as amended by chapter 145 laws of 1878, the appearance term cannot be the trial term for actions to foreclose mortgages and other actions embraced in the exceptions contained in section 2745 of the code. Holbrook v. Fehey et al., 51 Id., 406.

Before the modification of section 2142 of the code, a case was not triable de novo in the supreme court unless a motion or order for a trial upon written evidence was made at the appearance term. Reichoff v. Brecht et al., 51 Id., 633.

Where a case has been set down for trial upon written evidence, in pursuance of section 2742 of the code, oral evidence is not admissible. Harlin v. Porter et al., 50 Id., 448.

Prior to the taking effect of chapter 145 acts of 1878, a compliance with section 2742 of the code was essential to secure a trial de novo in the supreme court. The Joliet Iron & Steel Co. v. The C. C. & W. R. Co. et al., 50 Id., 455.

Chapter 145 laws of 1878, enacting a substitute for section 2742 of the code, applies only to cases tried in the court below since that statute took effect. Simonson v. Simonson, 50 Id., 110.

To convey to parties to the entry of an order in the court below, that the case be tried upon written evidence, abates the necessity of a motion for that purpose, and entitles either party to a trial de novo in the supreme court on appeal. Robinson v. The First National Bank of Cedar Rapids, 48 Id., 394.

Where an action was not set down for trial upon written evidence in the court below it was held not triable de novo in the supreme court. Jones et ux. v. Marcy, 49 Id., 188; Breves v. Stoddard, Id., 256.
Where the certificate of the judge that the record contained "all the evidence used on the trial" but did not show that no other evidence was offered and rejected, it was held to be a certificate of the evidence received only, and not sufficient to authorize a trial de novo in the appellate court. Hart v. Jackson et al., 57 Id., 75.

Where the certificate does not purport to be attached to any evidence, and does not properly identify the evidence, it is fatally defective. Alexander v. McGrew, ld., 257.

The appellee may supply evidence omitted in appellant's abstract, and still insist upon the insufficiency of the certificate; and specific objections to the certificate need not be set out. Id.

A certificate to the evidence, signed by the trial judge after his term of office has expired, will be disregarded; but where the cause was submitted on depositions and documentary proofs, the certificate of the clerk that the depositions and papers on file are contained in the record will be sufficient, even if not certified until a term of court has intervened. Cross v. The B. & S. W. R. Co. et al., 63 Id., 92.

Upon appeal, in an equity case, all the evidence offered on trial should be certified to the supreme court. An abstract certified to contain all the evidence introduced in the trial is insufficient to authorize a trial de novo by the appellate court, Taylor & Co. v. Kier et al., 54 Id., 645.

Neither the allowance of amendments to pleadings after decree, nor the improper admission of evidence in the court below, are grounds for refusal in a case triable de novo by the supreme court. Tabor v. Floy, 56 Id., 539.

A certificate of the trial judge that the record contained all the evidence "adduced" on the trial was held insufficient to authorize a trial de novo in the supreme court where the record showed that evidence offered on the trial had been excluded, and was not contained therein. Tuttle v. Story County, 56 Id., 316.

A cause tried as an equitable one in the court below will be reviewed in the supreme court under the rules and practice applicable to equity causes regardless of the character of the case and of the relief sought. Blough v. Van Hornebeke, 48 Id., 40; Richmond v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 33 Id., 422; Van Orman v. Merrill, 27 Id., 476.

Where a case is tried de novo in the supreme court such trial is final, unless otherwise ordered for special reasons, and amendments to the pleadings are not allowable after the case is remanded to the court below. Section v. Henderson et al., 47 Id., 191.

It was held, prior to the amendment of this section, that an action of divorce is an equitable action, and not triable in the supreme court on errors alone, but must be tried de novo, regardless of the provisions of section 2742 of the code. Sherwood v. Sherwood, 44 Id., 192. This ruling seems to have been approved and followed in The Howe Machine Company v. Woolly, 50 Id., 540, 552; but in Hobart v. Hobart, 51 Id., 514, Mr. Justice Day says: "What is said is a mere repetition of the dictum in the case of Sherwood v. Sherwood."

Neither the allowance of amendments to pleadings after decree, nor the improper admission of evidence in the court below, are grounds for reversal in a case triable de novo in the supreme court. Tabor v. Floy, 56 Id., 539.

But where evidence is so taken down by order of the court, made on motion of one of the parties, and such party makes no objection to the manner in which it is taken, he waives the right to insist on the statute copy thereof, and is not entitled to an order of court requiring the reporter to file a long-hand copy of his notes, as a part of the record, without providing for payment for making such copy. Id.

Upon appeal, in an equity case, all the evidence offered on trial should be certified to the supreme court. An abstract certified to contain all the evidence introduced in the trial is insufficient to authorize a trial de novo by the appellate court. Taylor & Co. v. Wier et al., 54 Id., 645.

A certificate of the trial judge that "the above and foregoing evidence is all that was offered, adduced and introduced" is sufficient under this section on the appeal in an equitable action. The City of Marshalltown v. Forney, 61 Id., 578.

On the appeal of an equitable cause, where a trial de novo is sought, a certificate of the trial judge which states that the cause was submitted upon the following testimony, being all the evidence submitted in the case: held sufficient—the word "submitted" when so used being equivalent to offered. Miller v. Wolf, 63 Id., 233.

A case will not be tried de novo in the supreme court unless all the evidence in the case is presented on appeal, and so certified by the judge of the court below. Walker et al. v. Beaver et al., 50 Id., 604.

The repeal of section 2742 of the code respecting trials de novo, pending the appeal of a case,
A trial judge has no power to certify to the supreme court the evidence in an equity case after the expiration of six months from the date of the judgment appealed from. Hartnett et al. v. Sioux City, 66 Id., 253.

A trial of de novo cannot be had in the supreme court unless the evidence is certified within the time allowed for an appeal, in the absence of an agreement that the abstract contains all the evidence offered on the trial. Preston v. Hale et al., 65 Id., 409.

Where a cause is tried as an equitable action no order by the court that it be tried on written evidence is necessary. All that is required in that respect for a trial of de novo in the supreme court is that the evidence be in fact taken down in writing and certified by the judge. Hove & Co. v. Jones et al., 66 Id., 196.

When an equity cause has been tried before a referee to find the facts and law, and to report, he must in some way identify the evidence on which his findings are based, for the information of the court to which he is to report; but his certificate is not sufficient to identify the evidence for the purposes of an appeal. This section requires it to be certified by the judge. Porter v. Everett et al., 63 Id., 258.

A trial of de novo cannot be had in the supreme court unless it affirmatively appears by the certificate of the trial judge, in some form, that the evidence set out in the abstract is all the evidence which was offered or introduced on the trial. Pols et al. v. Sturgeon et al., 71 Id., 395.

Where the judge of the district court failed to certify that all the evidence offered on the trial of an equitable action before him is in the record, the certificate was insufficient, and the judgment was affirmed. Groneweg & Schuettgen v. Baraun, 70 Id., 763.

Where, in an equity cause, the evidence is not certified within six months from the date of the judgment appealed from, it is too late to secure a trial of de novo in the supreme court. The Wis., Iowa & Neb. Ry Co. v. Broham et al., 71 Id., 484; Wise v. Ursy, 72 Id., 74.

To entitle an equity case to be heard de novo in the supreme court, the evidence must be certified by the judge within six months from the rendition of the decree; and the rule requires that the written transcript of the short-hand notes be so certified, for it alone, and not the original, constitute the evidence. But where the judge in due form certifies the short-hand notes as containing all the evidence, and the reporter within six months files a transcript thereof, properly certified by himself, the judge's certificate attached to the notes may be regarded as sufficient. Merrill v. Brown, 69 Id., 653.

So, also, where the original certificate of the trial judge to the evidence was insufficient to entitle the appellant to a trial de novo on appeal, an amendment supplying the defect, made after the expiration of the time of taking an appeal, was no part of the record, and could not be considered. Lewis v. Markle et al., 71 Id., 652. See, also, Wise v. Ursy, 72 Id., 74.

Where an interlineation amending a judge's certificate to the evidence was apparent on the face of the original paper, submitted with the cause in the supreme court, it was competent to show by a subsequent certificate of the judge that the interlineation was made by him more than six months after the judgment appealed from was rendered.

Where an order had been made at defendant's request for the trial of a cause on depositions, but no depositions were taken, and a like order was refused when made by defendants at a subsequent term, held, that the request was properly refused, and that at all events, the granting of the order rested in the sound discretion of the court, under section 2742 of the code.

Mills County Nat'l Bank v. Perry et al., 72 Id., 15.

A certificate that the cause was submitted on packages of depositions filed at a certain date, does not sufficiently identify the evidence to allow it to be considered on appeal under section 2742 of the code.

SEC. 2743. [Court to find facts.]—In all trials of fact by the court, other than those contemplated in the preceding section, the court shall, if either party request it, give his decision in writing, stating, separately, the facts found and the legal conclusion founded thereon; and the whole decision shall be a part of the record, and the finding shall have the effect of a special verdict.

No error can be assigned upon a failure of the court to find upon any particular fact when no request therefor has been made by either party.

Ruble v. Atkins, 39 Iowa, 694.

Where the court makes a special finding of facts under this section, such finding has the effect of a special verdict.

A finding of facts may be made by the court on its own motion, and when so made has the same force and effect as though made at the request of the parties.

Jennings v. Jennings, 56 Id., 288.

Findings of fact or law made by the court will be presumed to have been made in compliance with the provisions of the statute authorizing such findings, unless the contrary is shown.

McCue v. Wapello County, Id., 698.

SEC. 2744. [Tried at first term.]—Except where otherwise provided, causes shall be tried at the first term after legal and timely service has been made.

This section does not apply to nor purport to change or alter the length of service required, but only to fix the time for trial when due legal and timely service has been made.

Per Cole in Poole v. Backwell, 34 Iowa, 499.

SEC. 2745. [Exceptions as to equitable issues.]—The appearance term shall not be the trial term for equitable actions, except those brought for divorce, to foreclose mortgages and other instruments of writing whereby a lien or charge on property is created, or to enforce mechanics' lien.

Under this section actions for the foreclosure of mortgages, are triable at the appearance term, unless the court orders the evidence, or a part of it, to be taken in the form of depositions, or one of the parties elects to take his evidence in that form, in which case the court must be continued.

Lombard v. Thorp et al., 70 Iowa, 220.

SEC. 2746. [Separate trials: when granted.]—The court may, in its discretion, allow separate trials between the plaintiff and any defendant, or of any cause of action united with others, or of any issue in an action; and such separate trials may be had at the same or different terms of the court as circumstances may require.

The granting of separate trials where there are several parties with different interests rests largely within judicial discretion, and where there is no abuse of sound discretion and no prejudice resulting from a refusal to grant separate trials, the ruling will not be disturbed on appeal.

Kilbourne, Jenkins & Co. v. Jennings & Co., 40 Iowa, 473.

Orders of the court below, made in connection with granting a motion for plaintiff to sever the causes of action united in his petition, will not be disturbed by the supreme court unless a clear abuse of discretion is shown.

Blades et ux. v. Walker, 36 Id., 266.

Where the service of the original notice is by publication only, and there has been no appearance for the defendant, parties legally representing him may have a retrial of the case upon application made therefor within two years after the judgment.

In this case involving the title to land, the widow and children of the defendant were held entitled to such retrials.

Williamson et al. v. Wachenheim et al., 62 Id., 196.

SEC. 2747. [Calendar and arrangement of.]—The clerk shall keep a calendar, distinguishing first criminal causes, and next civil causes, and arranging each in the order of their commencement, and shall, under the discretion of the court or judge, apportion the same to as many days as is believed necessary, and, at the request of any party to a cause, or his attorney, shall issue subpoenas accordingly.

The clerk shall furnish the court and the bar with a sufficient number of printed copies of the calendar.

A bar docket is not a part of a court record, and is not available on appeal to show that a case was disposed of out of its order, unless duly incorporated in, or sufficiently identified by a bill of exceptions. The book contemplated by this section and section 197, subdivision 7, is the appearance docket. Gifford v. Cole, 57 Iowa, 272.

CONTINUANCES.

SEC. 2748. [When time is asked to apply for.]—When time is asked for making application for continuance, the cause shall not lose its place on the calendar, or it may be continued at the option of the other party, and at the cost of the party applying therefor; for which cost, judgment may at once be entered by the clerk unless the contrary be agreed between the parties.

SEC. 2749. [Not granted when party in fault.]—A continuance shall not be granted for any cause growing out of the fault or negligence of the party applying therefor; subject to this rule, it may be allowed for any cause which satisfies the court that substantial justice will thereby be more nearly obtained.

Subject to the rule that a continuance will not be granted for any cause growing out of the negligence or fault of the party applying therefor, it may be allowed for any cause which satisfies the court that substantial justice will be more nearly attained. The State v. Rorabacher, 19 Iowa, 154; State v. Liggaman, 6 Id., 496.

Much is left to the sound discretion of the court in passing upon applications for continuance, but the ruling must not be arbitrary or in violation of the rights of the parties. The appellate court will interfere only in cases of manifest injustice. Id. See also, State v. Cox, 10 Id., 351; Chiles v. Heaton, 11 Id., 271; State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66; State v. Accola, 11 Id., 246; Frank v. Purington, 5 Id., 345; Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 266; Connor v. Griffin et al., 27 Id., 248; Sandifer v. Poorbaugh, 20 Id., 488; State v. Rorabacher, 19 Id., 154; Boone v. Mitchell, 33 Id., 45.

The granting of a continuance for the reason that the reply, which was not filed until the trial term, presented a new issue, rested within the discretion of the court, and an abuse of discretion alone would justify an interference with the ruling. Williams v. The Niagara F. Ins. Co., 50 Id., 561.

An application for a continuance, based upon sickness in the family of the defendant's attorney, which, it was alleged, would prevent his attendance, and upon the fact that such attorney was in possession of papers material to the defense, was held not sufficient, because it did not show, with particularity, the nature of such papers, nor where the attorney resided, nor show with sufficient precision how long defendant had been aware of the illness, to enable the court to determine whether diligence had been used to procure the papers. Finch v. Billings, 22 Id., 228.

Where in a criminal case the defendant makes application for a continuance on account of popular excitement and prejudice, under this section, and supports his application by affidavits, the application is addressed to the sound discretion of the court, and it may properly allow the state to file counter-affidavits. State v. Wells, 61 Id., 629.

When the party applying for a continuance has been negligent the supreme court will sustain the order refusing the continuance, even where it would have been no abuse of discretion to have granted the application. Walker v. Seigfield, 39 Id., 660.

The continuance of a cause at the request of a guardian ad litem who has just been appointed, to enable him to prepare for trial, is not an abuse of judicial discretion. Blythe v. Blythe, 25 Id., 266.

The absence of defendant's attorney, for any cause, is not good ground for a continuance of a criminal action where sufficient time is given to procure another attorney, and enable him properly to prepare the defense for the trial. The State v. Ostrander, 18 Id., 435.

Where a party asks for the continuance of a cause, on the ground of the absence of a witness whose residence he does not know, he should show, either that he has not had time to ascertain the residence of the witness, or that he has used due diligence to ascertain his residence. James v. Arbuckle, 8 Id., 272.

In order to show due diligence in an application for a continuance, it is not sufficient to state generally that due diligence has been used, but the applicant should state specifically what he has done, so that the court may judge of the diligence. Brady v. Malone, 4 Id., 146.

What is or is not due diligence is a question for the court upon the facts stated, and not for the applicant. Id.

Affidavits for a continuance should be construed strictly, and most strongly against the applicant. Id.
An application for a continuance because of the absence of witnesses, which does not show that any effort has been made to procure their attendance, nor any excuse for the want of diligence, which the law requires, is insufficient. Winder v. Hunt, Id., 325.

In the absence of a party there is no reason why an affidavit for a continuance may not be made by the attorney, if the interest of his client requires it, but the absence of the client should be shown in the affidavit. Id.

It is not competent for an attorney to swear to facts which are solely within the knowledge of his client, unless the client be absent. Id.

SEC. 2750. [For want of evidence: affidavit: statement of.]—Motions for continuance on account of the absence of evidence, must be founded on the affidavit of the party, his agent, or attorney, and must state:

1. The name and residence of such witness, or, if that be not known, a sufficient reason why not known, and also, in either case, facts showing reasonable grounds of belief that his attendance or testimony will be procured at the next term;

2. Efforts, constituting due diligence, which have been used to obtain such witness, or his testimony;

3. What particular facts, as distinguished from legal conclusions, the affiant believes the witness will prove, and that he knows of no other witness by whom such facts can be fully proved.

An affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses, or for the reason that there has not been sufficient time to take their depositions, which does not state the names and residence of the witnesses, nor what facts the applicant expects to prove by them, or show some excuse therefor, is fatally defective. The State, ex rel. The Attorney-General, v. Tilghman, 6 Iowa, 496.

It is not sufficient in an application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness for the party to state that he has used due diligence to obtain the testimony, but what he has done must be set out in the application, that the court may judge of the diligence. Thurston v. Cavenor, 8 Id., 155.

When a continuance is asked on the ground of the absence of a witness, whose residence is not known to the applicant, it should be shown that the party has not had time to ascertain the residence of the witness, or that he has used proper diligence to ascertain it. James v. Arbuckle, 8 Id., 272.

When there is no defense made no object is to be gained by a continuance in behalf of the defendant, on account of a witness, and it should be refused. Id.

An application for continuance consists of three essential and material parts. 1. The name and residence of the witness and the facts showing the probability of procuring his testimony at the next term. 2. The facts showing due diligence. 3. The facts to be proved by the witness. The State v. Shupe, 16 Id., 36.

An affidavit for a continuance must state facts showing reasonable ground of belief that the attendance or testimony of the witness will be procured by the next term. A mere statement of a belief is insufficient. The State v. Rorabacher, 19 Id., 154.

An application for a continuance, on the ground of the absence of witnesses, should state their residence, the particular facts expected to be proved by them, and that the applicant knows of no other witness by whom the facts can be so fully proved. The State v. Sater, 8 Id., 429.

Where the affidavit, after stating the names of the witnesses, stated that the applicant expected to prove by said witnesses that he did not steal the horse, as charged in the indictment; that at the time said horse was stolen, he was at another and different place; that he expected to prove by them other facts which would establish his innocence, and that he could not prove said facts so fully by any other witnesses, which application was overruled. Held, properly overruled. Id.

The death of a party plaintiff and the substitution of his administrator, do not constitute sufficient grounds for the continuance of the action on application of the defendant. Masterson v. Beaven, 51 Id., 442.

The fact that the court has granted one more adjournment than is authorized by statute, and that the time is extended beyond the period therein fixed, constitutes a mere irregularity, which can only be taken advantage of upon a showing of prejudice therefrom. Reese v. Dobbins, 51 Id., 282.

A motion for a continuance based upon the absence of a witness, filed after the second day of the term, should be supported by an affidavit showing that the motion was made as soon as the party learned of the absence of the witness, and that he desired his evidence. Bays v. Herring, 51 Id., 286.

An affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the inability of a witness to be present at the trial, should show that a knowledge of such inability was not known to the party asking the con-
A continuance before the commencement of the term, and in time to have taken the testimony by deposition. Winder v. Hunt, 4 Id., 355.

An application for a continuance showed that a witness, whose evidence was material, was a resident of the county in which the cause was pending; that he was in attendance at a previous term of the court, at which the cause was set for trial, but was not tried; that he was then absent from the state, but had promised the applicant to be present at the term of the court: Held, insufficient in that it did not show a diligent use of the means given by the state to procure the attendance of the witness, or secure his deposition. The State v. Cross, 12 Id., 66.

A party applying for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness must not only show that he made proper efforts to obtain the testimony of the witness, but also that he was reasonably diligent in the use of proper exertions to discover the existence of the evidence. The State v. Bell, 49 Id., 440, 441.

An application for a continuance in a prosecution for murder, based on the ground of absence of a witness by whom the applicant expects to prove that the witness did the killing, and other facts showing that he, and not the defendant, is guilty thereof, should not be overruled on the presumed improbability that the witness would not thus criminate himself. The State v. Farr, 33 Id., 553.

For a cause of sufficiency of statement of facts to entitle the party applying thereto for a continuance, see The State v. Scott, 44 Id., 93.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses must state the particular facts expected to be proved by the witnesses; otherwise it is insufficient. Jackson v. Boyles et al., 84 Id., 428.

SEC. 2751. [Overruled or party may admit facts.]-If the application is insufficient, it shall be overruled; if held sufficient, the cause shall be continued, unless the adverse party will admit that the witness, if present, would testify to the facts therein stated, in which event the cause shall not be continued, but the party may read as evidence of such witness the facts held by the court to be properly stated.

If the state, in order to avoid a continuance, applied for by the defendant in a criminal case on account of the absence of a witness, admits that the absent witness would, if present, swear to the facts stated in the affidavit for continuance, such statements acquire the character of the witness' evidence, and cannot be impeached by showing that he has made statements out of court different from those in the affidavit. The same rule applies as if the witness had testified in open court, and no foundation laid to impeach him. The State v. Shanahan, 32 Iowa, 435.

Where the facts stated in an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses, are admitted by the state and read on trial as the evidence of the absent witnesses, in order to avoid a continuance, such affidavits are not admissible on a second trial of the cause at a subsequent term. The State v. Fetter, 32 Id., 49.

SEC. 2752. [Motion for; when filed.]—The motion must be filed on the second day of the term, if it is then certain that it will have to be made before the trial, and as soon thereafter as it becomes certain that it will so need to be made, and shall not be allowed to be made when the cause is called for trial, except for cause which could not, by reasonable diligence, have been before that time discovered, and if made after the second day of the term, the affidavit must state facts constituting an excuse for the delay in making it. If time is taken when the case is called to make such motion, the motion shall be made and determined as soon as the court opens after the next ordinary adjournment.

Under this section an application for a continuance should be overruled if not made the second day of the term, or fails to state facts constituting a sufficient excuse for not doing so. Lucas v. Cassady et al., 12 Iowa, 567; Woodheaster v. Risley, 38 Id., 486.

Where an application for a continuance has been overruled in the court below, the ruling will be presumed correct, and error must be affirmatively shown. Woodheaster v. Risley, 38 Id., 486.

Where motion for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness was filed after the second day of the term, and it appeared from the record that whatever necessity there was for a continuance existed and was known the day before, it was held that the motion was properly overruled under this section. State v. Bouge, 61 Id., 658.

A motion for a continuance on account of the absence of witnesses, when filed after the second day of the term, without sufficient cause for the delay should be overruled. Bell v. The C., B., & Q. R'y Co., 64 Id., 321.

The continuance of a cause and the time in which pleadings must be filed are not "rights accrued" within the meaning of section 50 of the code, which cannot be affected by the repeal of existing statutes. Brotherton v. Brotherton, 41 Id., 112.
An application for continuance which fails to show due diligence in preparing the case for trial should be overruled. Id.

An application for a continuance, based upon the filing of a deposition after the commencement of the term, which the applicant expects to be able to record, must state the facts to which the absent witness will testify. The C. & S. W. R'y Co. v. Heard, 44 Id., 558.

A motion for a continuance, based upon the absence of a witness, filed after the second day of the term, should be supported by an affidavit showing that the motion was made as soon as the applicant learned of the absence of the witness, and that he desired his testimony. Bays v. Herring, 51 Id., 286. To the same effect is Randall v. Fodder et al., 52 Id., 618.

SEC. 2753. [Amendment.]—The application shall be amended but once, unless by permission, to supply a clerical error.

SEC. 2754. [Written objections to.]—To such motion, both as original and as amended, the adverse party may, at once, or within such reasonable time as the court shall allow, file written objections stating wherein he claims that the same is insufficient, and on such motion and objections no argument shall be heard unless the court desire it.

SEC. 2755. [Part of record.]—Such motion and objections shall be a part of the record, and error in refusing a continuance or in compelling an election, may be reviewed.

SEC. 2756. [Notice book.]—No copy need be served of a motion for continuance or of objections thereto, but a notice of such motion shall be entered on the notice book.

SEC. 2757. [Costs.]—Every continuance granted upon the application of either party, shall be at the costs of such party, unless otherwise ordered by the court.

SEC. 2758. [Parties may agree.]—The court shall grant continuance whenever the parties agree thereto, and provide as to costs as may be stipulated.

SEC. 2759. [Case remains on docket.]—A case continued remains for all purposes except a trial on the facts.

SEC. 2760. [One of several parties.]—Where the defenses are distinct, any one of the several defendants may continue as to himself.

SECTION OF JURY.

SEC. 2761. When a jury trial is demanded, the clerk shall select twelve jurors by lot from the regular panel.

Where a cause is tried, and a verdict rendered by a jury of only eleven men, but without this defect being known to either party, the defect is fatal, and on motion the verdict will be set aside and a new trial granted. Cowles v. Buckman & Son, 6 Iowa, 161.

Such a defect may be waived, but before a waiver can be inferred, it must appear, at least, that the party must have knowledge of its existence. Id.

If a party accepts a jury knowing that one member is incompetent, he thereby waives the defect; but such knowledge must appear before a waiver will be inferred. The State v. Groome, 10 Id., 305.

The law tenders a party a jury for the trial of his cause, and he is not to be charged, as with a fault, if the proper officer has not performed his duty in calling the full number. Cowles v. Buckman & Son, 6 Id., 161.

SEC. 2762. A challenge is an objection made to the trial jurors, and is of two kinds:

1. To the panel;
2. To an individual juror.

Where the clerk of the city court of Dubuque issued a venire for fifteen jurors instead of twenty-four, required by the statute creating that court, for the panel for a term, held, that a challenge to the panel should have been sustained. Baker v. Griffin v. The Steamboat Milwaukee, 14 Iowa, 214.

SEC. 2763. [Parties cannot sever in.]—Where there are several parties plaintiffs or defendants, and no separate trial is allowed, they are not allowed to sever their challenges, but must join in them.
SEC. 2764. [To the panel.]—A challenge to the panel can be founded only on a material departure from the forms prescribed by statute in respect to the drawing and return of the jury.

SEC. 2765. [When made.]-A challenge to the panel must be taken before a juror is sworn, and must be in writing, specifying plainly and distinctly the facts constituting the ground of challenge.

SEC. 2766. [How tried.]—A challenge to the panel may be taken by either party, and upon the trial thereof, the officers, whether judicial or ministerial, whose irregularity is complained of, as well as any other persons, may be examined to prove or disprove the facts alleged as the ground of challenge.

SEC. 2767. [Allowance of: discharge of jury.]—If the facts of the challenge be allowed by the court, the jury must be discharged and its members disqualified from sitting as jurors so far as the trial in question is concerned; if it be disallowed, the court shall direct the jury to be impaneled.

SEC. 2768. [To jurors.]—A challenge to an individual juror is either peremptory or for cause.

SEC. 2769. [When made.]—It must be taken when the juror appears and before he is sworn, but the court may, for good cause, permit it to be taken, at any time before the jury is completed.

SEC. 2770. [Peremptory.]—A peremptory challenge is an objection to a juror for which no reasons need be given, but upon which the court shall exclude him.

SEC. 2771. [Number of: how made.]—Each party shall have the right to challenge peremptorily, five jurors and no more; and the parties shall challenge alternately, commencing with the plaintiff, and the challenges for cause being first exhausted or waived, the parties shall then, in turn, in the same order, exercise the right of peremptory challenge.

In the formation of the jury the challenges should alternate between the parties, the plaintiff having the first challenge. Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Iowa, 229.

Where a challenge to a juror for cause is overruled, and the defendant not having exhausted his peremptory challenges fails to challenge the juror peremptorily, the ruling of the court upon the challenge for cause, if erroneous, is error without prejudice. The State v. Elliott, 45 Id., 486; Barnes v. The Incorporated Town of Newton, 46 Id., 567.

A waiver by a party, in the first instance, to exercise a peremptory challenge, does not estop him from challenging a juror after the opposite party has challenged one. It seems that in such a case, the waiver would count one in reckoning the number of challenges. Fountain v. West, 23 Id., 9.

SEC. 2772. [Cause of: passed: filled after each challenge.]—After each challenge, the vacancy shall be filled before further challenges are made, and any new jurors thus introduced may be challenged. A challenge for cause is an objection to a juror, and may be for any of the following causes:

1. A conviction for felony;
2. A want of any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person a competent juror;
3. Inability to understand the English language, unsoundness of mind, or such defects in the faculties of mind or organs of the body as render him incapable of performing the duties of a juror;
4. Consanguinity or affinity within the ninth degree to the adverse party;
5. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family, or in the employment of the adverse party;
6. Being a party adverse to the challenging party in a civil action, or having complained against, or been accused by him in a criminal prosecution;
7. Having already sat upon the trial of the same issues;
8. Having served as a grand or trial juror in a criminal case based on the same transaction;
9. When it appears the juror has formed or expressed an unqualified opinion on the merits of the controversy, or shows such a state of mind as will preclude him from rendering a just verdict;

10. Being interested in a like question with the issue to be tried.

In an action to which an incorporated city is defendant, it was held no abuse of the "sound discretion" vested in the court to exclude from the jury the tax payers in such city. Dively v. The City of Cedar Falls, 21 Iowa, 565.

Questions as to qualifications of jurors are by the statute left to the sound discretion of the court trying the cause, and its ruling will be reversed by the supreme court only when an abuse of such discretion is made manifest. Anson v. Dwight, 18 Id., 241; Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Id., 229; Dively v. The City of Cedar Falls, 21 Id., 565, 567; May v. Elam, 27 Id., 365.

A challenge to a juror "for cause," which does not state the ground on which it is based, is too indefinite and should be overruled by the court. Bonny v. Cocke, 61 Id., 803.

A juror cannot be said to have formed an unqualified opinion who states that the opinion which he has formed is based upon hearsay, and not upon statements made by any one claiming to have personal knowledge, and that he still thinks that he can render a true verdict. The State v. Ormiston et al., 66 Id., 143.

When the trial court, by its ruling upon a challenge compels a party to submit his cause to a juror who is prejudiced against him, he has good ground of complaint. But when the court sustains a challenge, and the adverse party goes to trial with a jury formed without him exhausting the peremptory challenges allowed him by law, the supreme court will require to be well satisfied that the challenge was sustained without any cause, in order to justify a reversal on that ground; and will not reverse when the record does not show that the challenge complained of may not have been sustained for a sufficient cause. Wisehart v. Dietz, 67 Id., 121.

SEC. 2773. [Challenge: how tried.]—Upon a trial of a challenge to an individual juror, the juror challenged may be examined as a witness to prove or disprove the challenge, and must answer every question pertinent to the inquiry thereon; and other evidence may also be heard.

SEC. 2774. [Same.]—In all challenges, the court shall determine the law and the fact; and either allow or disallow the challenge.

SEC. 2775. [Talesmen.]—When the requisite number of jurors cannot otherwise be obtained, the sheriff shall select talesmen to supply the deficiency from the body of the county.

Where, after all the regular jurors but one had been excused by the court, a party demanded a jury trial, and insisted on having the regular jury, and the court ordered the sheriff to fill up the panel with talesmen, and the cause was tried by a jury composed of the one regular juror and eleven talesmen, held, no such abuse of the discretion vested in the court, as to the manner of obtaining the requisite number of petit jurors as to warrant the interference of the appellate court. Einnerick v. Sloan, 18 Id., 139.

SEC. 2776. [Persons who keep the seventh day of the week as Sunday protected.]—A persons whose religious faith and practice are to keep the seventh day of the week as a day set apart by divine command, and dedicated to rest and religious uses, cannot be compelled to attend as a juror on that day, and shall, in other respects, be protected in the enjoyment of his opinions to the same extent as those who keep the first day of the week.

SEC. 2777. [Exemption not cause of challenge.]—An exemption from service on a jury is not a cause of challenge, but the privilege of the person exempted.

SEC. 2778. [Majority verdict: struck jury.]—The parties may at any time, either before the jury is sworn, or after, agree to take the verdict of the majority, which agreement being stated to the court and stated on the record to have been made, shall bind the parties, and, in such case, a verdict signed by any seven or more and duly rendered, when read and not disapproved by said majority, shall in every particular, be as binding as if made by the full jury; or, when both parties require it, a struck jury may be ordered, whereupon eighteen jurors shall be called into the box, and the plaintiff first and then the defendant, shall strike out one juror in turn until each has struck out six, and the remaining six shall try the cause.

ORDER OF TRIAL.

SEC. 2779. [Procedure after jury is sworn.]—When the jury has been sworn, the court shall proceed in the following order:
1. The party on whom rests the burden of proof, may briefly state his claim and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it;
2. The other party may then briefly state his defense, and the evidence by which he expects to sustain it;
3. The party on whom rests the burden of proof in the whole action, must first produce his evidence; the adverse party must then produce his evidence;
4. The parties then will be confined to rebutting evidence, unless the court, for good reasons, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence in their original case;
5. But one counsel on each side shall examine the same witness, and upon interlocutory questions, the party moving the court or objecting to testimony shall be heard first, the respondent may then reply by one counsel, and the mover rejoin, confining his remarks to the points first stated, and a pertinent answer to respondent’s argument. Debate on the questions shall then be closed, unless the court request further argument.

After the party adverse to the one on whom rests the burden of proof has produced his evidence, the other is confined to rebutting evidence, but the court may, for good reasons, in furtherance of justice, permit him to offer original testimony. Hubbell & Brother v. Ream et al., 31 Iowa, 289.

It seems that the whole subject of the examination of witnesses, and the order in which the evidence shall be produced, rests very largely in the discretion of the trial court. Id. See also, Crane v. Ellis, Id., 510; Boals et al. v. Shiels et al., 35 Id., 231.

And although the action of the court below in admitting evidence not rebutting will not ordinarily be disturbed by the appellate court, neither will the rejection of such evidence be reversed. Id.

In an action upon a judgment, which is admitted by the pleadings but alleged to have been rendered without jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, the defendant has the affirmative of the issue and the onus is upon him. Lowe v. Lowe, 40 Id., 220.

Questions leading in form, intended to direct the attention of the witness to the subject matter of his testimony, are competent. Id.

Allowing or disallowing the introduction of evidence out of its regular order, is largely within the discretion of the court. Hesse v. Wilcox et al., 58 Id., 380.

If, under the state of the pleadings and admissions, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover without evidence the burden of proof is upon him, and he will be entitled to open and close the trial. Viele v. Germania Ins. Co., 26 Id., 9; Vieths v. Hagge, 8 Id., 192. See also Hallowell v. Fawcett, 30 Id., 349.

Where it is apparent upon the principal and material issues that the defendant has the burden of proof, the action of the court in giving him the opening and close of the case cannot be assigned as error. The Del. Co. Bk. v. Duncombe, 48 Id., 488.

The action of the court below in limiting the number of witnesses upon a given point, and refusing further testimony thereon, will not be disturbed on appeal, unless it appears that there has been an abuse of the discretion conferred to the trial court in such cases. Kessee v. The C. & N. W. R’y Co., 30 Id., 78.

The court may in its discretion, limit the number of witnesses introduced for the purpose of impeaching a witness. Boys v. Herring, 51 Id., 280.

The court, in the exercise of its discretion, may permit a party to introduce evidence omitted by inadvertence, mistake or ignorance, after he has rested his case. McNichols v. Williams, 42 Id., 385.

To justify a reversal because the party not having the burden of proof is given the opening and close in the introduction of evidence and the argument to the jury, it must appear that prejudice has resulted from the error. Ashworth v. Grubbs, 47 Id., 353.
Sec. 2780. [Argument: order of.]—The parties may then either submit or argue the case to the jury. In the argument, the party having the burden of the issue, shall have the opening and closing, but shall disclose in the opening all the points relied on in the cause; and if in the close he should refer to any new material, point, or fact, not relied upon in the opening, the adverse party shall have the right of reply thereto, which reply shall close the argument in the case.

While the right to review the question as to which party holds the affirmative of the issue, and has the right of opening and closing the argument, is not absolutely denied, yet there must be a clear case of prejudice to justify a reversal upon this ground, after trial on the merits. Preston v. Walker, 26 Iowa, 205.

A motion for continuance, being a part of the record, may be commented upon by opposite counsel without it having been formally offered in evidence. Cross v. Garrett, 35 Id., 480.

Sec. 2781. [Waiver of opening.]—If the party holding the affirmative waive the opening, he shall be limited in the close simply to a reply to his adversary's argument, otherwise the other party shall have the concluding argument.

Sec. 2782. Number of Attorneys allowed: court to arrange order.]—Every plaintiff or defendant shall be entitled to appear by one attorney, and if there be but one plaintiff or defendant, he may appear by two, and where there are several defendants having the same or separate defenses and appearing by the same or different attorneys, the court shall, before argument, arrange their order.

Sec. 2783. [Argument restricted.]—The court may restrict the time of any attorney in any argument to itself, but shall not do so in any case before a jury.

INSTRUCTIONS.

Sec. 2784. [To be in writing.]—When the argument is concluded, either party may request instructions to the jury on points of law, which shall be given or refused by the court. All instructions asked, and the charge of the court shall be in writing.

When any part of the charge given by the court to the jury is correct, a general exception to the whole charge presents no question for review in the appellate court. Loomis, Conger & Co. v. Simpson, 13 Iowa, 592; The Davenport O. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 1d., 229; Wilhelm v. Leonard, Id., 330.

These instructions on the part of the defendant were passed up to the court during the opening, and only argument made in the case: held error to refuse to give them on the ground that they were submitted in the cause that could not be examined, without keeping the jury in waiting. McCaleb v. Smith, 22 Id., 242.

It is not a good reason for refusing to give instructions that they are unnecessarily lengthy. Id.

The requirement of this section that all instructions asked shall be in writing, is sufficiently complied with when such instructions are written in pencil. Harvey v. Tama County, 58 Id., 229.

And a general exception to the refusal of the court to give instructions asked is sufficient. Id.

Sec. 2785. [Modification of: how done.]—If the court refuse a written instruction as demanded, but give the same with a modification, which the court may do, such modification shall not be by interlineation or erasure, but shall be well defined, and shall follow some such characterizing words as “changed thus,” which words shall themselves indicate that the same was refused as demanded.

When the ruling of the court upon instructions is noted on the margin thereof, with exceptions thereto, in accordance with sections 2786 and 2757, they become part of the record, and may be reviewed on appeal without a formal bill of exceptions, but a bill of exceptions is preferable. Cadwallader & Co. v. Blair et al., 18 Iowa, 420.

A statement by the clerk that certain instructions were given is not sufficient. Id.

See also, to the same effect, Phillips v. Starr & Co., 26 Id., 349.

Where an instruction asked is so modified by the court as to clearly indicate the part given and the part refused, the provisions of this section are complied with. Ham v. The W., I. & Neb. Ry Co., 61 Id., 720.

Sec. 2786. [Only those given to be read: how given or refused.]—The court must read over all the instructions which it intends to give, and none other, to the jury, and must announce them as given, and shall announce as refused, without reading to the jury, all those which are refused, and must write the words "given" or "refused," as the case may be, on the margin of each instruction.

SEC. 2787. [No reason stated.]—If the giving or refusal be excepted to, the same may be without any stated reason therefor, and all instructions demanded must be filed, and shall become a part of the record.

The modification of instructions should not be by erasure or interlineation. Phillips v. Starr &
Co., 26 Iowa, 349.

Instructions which are not embodied in a bill of exceptions nor identified thereby, and which are not marked excepted to on the margin, will not be regarded in the appellate court. Alter, if the ruling upon the instructions with the exceptions thereto are noted on the margin. Phillips

It is not error to refuse to give an instruction, although embodying a correct statement of the law applicable to the case when its substance has been given in another instruction. Cramer v.
City of Burlington, 44 Id., 315; Todd v. Bronner, 39 Id., 439; State v. Hockenberg et al., 11 Id., 269; Trustees, etc. v. Hill, 12 Id., 462; Peck v. Hendershot, 14 Id., 49; Bridekoff Bros. v. Barrett, Id., 101; Cousins v. Wescott, 15 Id., 254; Denton v. Lewis, Id., 301; Nason v. Woodward, 16 Id., 216; State v. Rorabacker, 19 Id., 154; Smith v. Gamble, 14 Id., 430; Payne v. Billingham,
10 Id., 390.

An exception to instructions between certain numbers given, and "each of them," is sufficiently specific when the objection is made as the instructions are given. Mann v. The S. C. &
P. R. Co., 46 Id., 637.

A general exception to the giving of each of "the instructions embraced in the charge of the court," where the charge involves several propositions of law, any one of which is correct, presents no question for review on appeal. The same rule applies to a general exception by one party to the giving of instructions asked by the other; but when instructions are asked and refused, and such refusal is noted on the margin of each instruction, a general exception presents a question upon each instruction so refused. The Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. City of Davenport, 13 Id.,

A general exception to the refusal of the court to give instructions asked is sufficient. Harvey
v. Tama County, 53 Id., 226; Davenport G. L. & C. Co. v. The City of Davenport, 13 Id., 229; Williamson v. Railroad, 53 Id., 126, 143.

When instructions are excepted to at the time they are given no reason need be given therefor.
Johnson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 51 Id., 25, 30; Williamson v. The Same, 53 Id., 126, 143;
Van Velt v. The City of Davenport, 42 Id., 308, 314.

A skeleton bill of exception must identify the papers to be inserted therein by the clerk so as to

Since the enactment of this section an exception to instructions given, if taken at the time when given, may be made to the whole charge, without specifying the particular instruction in which the error relied on occurs. The rule was different under section 3059 of the revision. Hauve v.
The B., C. R. & N. R. Co., 64 Id., 315.

SEC. 2785. [Charge of the court.]—After argument the court may, also, of its own motion, charge the jury. Such charge shall be written in consecutively numbered paragraphs; and no oral explanation thereof shall be allowed. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the instructions asked by the parties.

It is not error for the court to orally refuse to instruct the jury upon the matters not pertinent

Under this section a charge should be wholly in writing; but if a pleading is read as a part of it, thought not included in it, the error is not prejudicial when the charge contains full instructions

SEC. 2789. [Exceptions to: how and when taken.]—Either party may take and file exceptions to the charge or instructions given, or to the refusal to give any instructions offered within three days after the verdict, and may include the same in a motion for a new trial, but in either case the instructions shall specify the part of the charge or instruction objected to and the ground of the objection.

Exceptions to the giving or refusal of instructions must be taken at the time the jury is charged, or within three days after the verdict, or errors assigned thereon will not be considered in the appellate court. Harrison v. Charlton, 42 Iowa, 573.

The bill of exceptions may be signed by consent of parties after the adjournment of the term.
Id.

When the defendant fails to except to the instructions of the court, relying upon a practice that all instructions are to be regarded as excepted to, the practice should be stated in the abstract to be of avail to the appellant. Steyer v. Curran, 48 Id., 580.

An exception to instructions after verdict, which specifies them by number, is sufficiently definite as to the part objected to, but, as to the ground of objection, is not explicit enough in stating "they are not applicable to the case." Miller v. Gardner et al., 49 Id., 234.

A bill of exceptions signed by the circuit judge, cannot properly recite what occurred in the district court prior to a change of venue therefrom. Ferguson v. Davis County, 51 Id., 220.

The party resisting a motion for a change of venue does not waive an objection to the ruling of the court granting the change by appearing in the court to which the change is made and stipulating for a trial at a fixed time, or by moving for a new trial after verdict. Id.

The fact that the party objecting has had a fair trial before an unprejudiced jury does not render an error in granting the change of venue error without prejudice. Id.

Exceptions to instructions which are not taken at the time the instructions are given, must be filed within three days after verdict or they cannot be considered. Brant v. The City of Lyons, 60 Id., 172.

Exceptions must be taken to the giving of instructions in order to secure their review by the supreme court. Betts v. The City of Glenwood, 52 Id., 124.

An exception to an instruction, taken and filed after verdict, specifying that the court "misdirected the jury in a matter of law," is too general, and will not be considered. Benson v. Lundy et al., 52 Id., 265.

An exception first taken three and a half months after the decree is settled, signed and entered of record, does not furnish any basis for a review of a cause in the supreme court. The Joliet Iron & Steel Co. v. The C. C. & W. R. Co., 59 Id., 465.

The giving of instructions to the jury involves a question of power. It is done in the exercise of judicial functions, and is conferred by statute upon the district and circuit courts. It is not conferred upon justices of the peace. St. Joseph Mf. Co. v. Harrington, 53 Id., 380, 381.

It is the province of the jury to determine the weight of evidence, and this should not be assumed by the court in giving instructions. Napper v. Toting, 12 Id., 450.

Exceptions to a decision must be taken at the time it is made, except that, under this section, exceptions to instructions to the jury may be taken within three days after the verdict. Nagle v. Guittar, 62 Id., 510.

An exception to an instruction not shown to have been taken when the instruction was given; not specifically stated, with the grounds therefor, in the motion for a new trial will be disregarded. Stevens v. Taylor, 58 Id., 664.

The supreme court will not review rulings upon instructions which were not excepted to either at the trial or within three days after verdict. Maxon v. The C., M. & St. P. Ry Co., 67 Id., 226.

Exceptions need not be excepted to when given. It may be done within three days after verdict, in a motion for a new trial as provided in this section. Parker v. Middleton, 65 Id., 200.

Where the instructions given were not excepted to at the time, and the exceptions set out in the motion for a new trial were not sufficiently specific, they are not reviewable in the supreme court. Parsons et al. v. Parsons et al., 66 Id., 754.

Exceptions to instructions, in order to secure consideration on appeal, must be taken, either when the instructions are given, or within three days after verdict, as provided in this section. Watson v. Stote et al., 65 Id., 659.

This section requires that exceptions to instructions, when made in a motion for a new trial, shall specify the part of the charge objected to, and the ground of the objection. Patterson v. The C. M. & St. P. Ry Co., 70 Id., 693.

RULES REGARDING JURIES.
