PREFACE.

THE numerous amendments made to the Code of 1873, at each succeeding General Assembly, together with the many other general statutes, taken in connection with the fact that the State edition of the Code was practically exhausted, seemed to make a revision of the Code almost a necessity, at least much to be desired. In this belief the work of revision and annotation was undertaken.

It has been the object of the editor to revise the Code, so as to show wherein it has been changed in its various provisions, and to present it as it is now in force; and to embody the general and permanent statutes passed by the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth General Assemblies in connection with the appropriate matter in the Code. In doing this part of the work amendments to any section of the Code, by way of change or substitution, are included in brackets with marginal references to the chapter and section of the amending act. Statutes of a general or permanent character passed subsequent to the Code, which are not expressed to be amendatory of any specific section thereof, are included entire under sub-headings in their appropriate connection with the text, except the chapter on mechanics' liens, being Chapter 100, Laws of 1876, which is substituted for Chapter 8 of Title IV of the Code, which is repealed by the former act.

In the publication of the State edition of the Code numerous errors occurred, some of which changed the sense and effect of the law. These have been corrected, so that this work will correctly embody all the general statute law of the State in force on the 4th day of July, 1880. In addition to the matter of the appendix of the Code will be found the various organic acts, the swamp land laws, rules of the Supreme Court, and notes to the State Constitution, besides other statutes of general interest.

In the first volume following the Analysis will be found a table showing where the various general statutes passed since the Code may be found.

In the work of annotation it has been the aim of the author to give the substance of every decision of the Supreme Court construing any of the provisions of the statute, either directly or remotely, without repetition, and in doing this the opinions themselves have been carefully examined, and not simply the head-note or digests of the case adopted. The notes come down to and include the decisions of the fifty-first volume of Iowa Reports.

Hoping that the labor and care bestowed upon the preparation of the work may materially lighten the labors of the members of the legal profession, and be found useful to all who have occasion to use the book, it is respectfully submitted.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers February 7, 1874.)

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE STATUTES.

SECTION 28. When the governor approves a bill, he shall set his name thereto with the date of his approval.

Approval of bills.
R. § 19.

SEC. 29. When a bill, having passed the general assembly, is returned by the governor with his objections, and is afterward passed as provided in the constitution, a certificate signed by the presiding officer of each house in the following form shall be indorsed thereon or attached thereto: "This bill having been returned by the governor with his objections to the house in which it originated, and after reconsideration having again passed both houses by yeas and nays by a majority of two-thirds of the members of each house, has become a law this — day of —."

Proceedings when bill is returned by governor.
R. § 20.

Bill retained by
than three days.
R. § 21.

SEC. 30. When a bill has passed the general assembly, and is not returned by the governor within three days as provided in the constitution, it shall be authenticated by the secretary of state indorsing thereon: "This bill having remained with the governor three days (Sunday excepted), the general assembly being in session, has become a law this ____ day of _____. _____, Secretary of State."

Original acts
deposited.
R. § 22.
Of private nature.
R. § 23.

SEC. 31. The original acts of the general assembly shall be deposited with and kept by the secretary of state.

SEC. 32. Acts of a private nature which do not prescribe the time when they take effect, shall do so on the thirtieth day next after they have been approved by the governor, or indorsed as provided in this chapter.

Of public nature: publication.
R. § 24.

SEC. 33. Acts which are to take effect by publication in newspapers, shall be published in at least two papers, one at least of them at the seat of government, and if such papers are not designated in the act, the same may be designated by the secretary of state, and the act published accordingly. All such acts shall take effect on the twentieth day after the date of the last publication, and the secretary of state shall make and sign on the original roll of each of such acts a certificate, stating in what papers it was published, and the date of the last publication in each of them, which certificate and the printing thereof at the foot of the act shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated.^b

^b Where a statute contains a provision that it shall take effect from and after its publication in certain newspapers named therein, it will be in force as a law from the date of such publication notwithstanding the provisions of section 33, above. Hunt v. Murray, 17 Iowa, 313; State v. Donehey, 8 Id., 396. See also Thatcher v. Haun, 12 Id., 303.

The publication of a statute without the direction of the general assembly will give it no effect. Scott v. Clark et al., 1 Iowa, 70; Calkin v. The State ex rel., 1 G. Greene, 68.

The legislature cannot delegate authority to the governor to determine when a statute shall take effect. Such delegation would be unconstitutional. Scott v. Clark, 1 Id., 70.

Where a statute, regularly passed by the general assembly, and approved by the governor, contains provisions for submitting it to a vote of the people, as to whether it shall become a law or not, such provisions are void, and a vote of the people in pursuance with such provisions has no legal effect whatever. The act becomes a law by being passed by the two houses of the general assembly, signed by the governor, and at the time fixed in the constitution. Santo v. The State of Iowa, 2 Id., 164.

A law can no more be repealed than it can be enacted by a vote of the people. Geebrick v. The State, 5 Id., 491.

The case of Santo v. The State, 2 Id., is cited and reaffirmed in The State v. Beneke, 9 Id., 203; The State v. Weir, 33 Id., 134.

The validity or taking effect of a law cannot be made to depend on a vote of the people, and a section of an act providing for such vote is unconstitutional. But if the act is complete without such invalid section it will be held valid without regard thereto. Weir v. Cram, 37 Id., 649.

Chapter 144 of the acts of 1868, restraining stock from running at large, was accordingly held to be valid and in force, regardless of the section therein providing that the adoption of the act, should be dependent on a vote of the people of the different counties. Id.

An act of the legislature of 1855 in relation to the taking effect of the general statutes, provided "that the governor of the state whenever he may deem it necessary that any law or laws of a general nature should take effect at an earlier day than by the general publication and distribution, may, in writing, direct any such law to be published in any paper published in this state, and from such publication thus directed, such law shall be in full force, was held to be unconstitutional. The power conferred upon the general assembly by the constitution, it was held, could not be constitutionally conferred upon the governor or any other person. Pilky v. Gleason, 1 Id., 522.

So also the publication of a statute in newspapers, without the authority or direction of the general assembly, is not sufficient, under the constitution, to give it force or effect. Calkins v. The State ex rel. Hampton, 1 G. Greene, 68.

A statute is not "passed" by the legislature until it is approved by the governor. The United States ex rel. Jones v. Fanning, Mor., 348.

The act of January 24, 1855, entitled "an act to relocate the seat of government," although it provided that it should take effect from and after its passage, did not take effect until published and distributed under the general law on the first of July following; because it could not take effect, under the constitution, until published by direction of the legislature—the publication by direction of the governor gave it no validity. Scott v. Clark et al., 1 Id., 70.

The original act on file in the office of the secretary of state, is the ultimate proof of a statute, whatever errors there may be in what purports to be a copy thereof; and the appellate court will inform itself, and take cognizance of the true reading of a statute, by referring to the original act on file in the office of the secretary of state. Clare v. The State of Iowa, 5 Id., 509.

When the general assembly by law provide that an act shall be published in certain newspapers, and take effect from such publication, and the act is published accordingly, it takes effect from the time of such publication; and where the act published corresponds with the original act, on file in the office of the secretary of state, it is to be deemed in force, although the act, as published in the session laws, may not correspond with it. *The State of Iowa v. DISTRIBUTION OF COPIES OF THE CODE.

AN ACT to provide state institutions, justices of the peace, and township clerks with copies of the Code.

County auditor to furnish code to public institutions, justices and township clerks.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it shall be the duty of the auditor of each county in the state to furnish to any state institution in his county, and to each justice of the peace and township clerk of such county, a copy of the code, and

SEC. 2. In all cases where the county auditors have already furnished copies of the code to the justices of the peace or township clerks or any of them in their respective counties, such action by said county auditors is hereby legalized, and his sworn statement of the number of copies, so furnished, shall be a sufficient voucher therefor in his settlement with the auditor of state.

Where already furnished, legalized.

SEC. 3. Should the number of copies of the code in the possession of any county auditor at time of taking effect of this act be insufficient for the purposes hereinbefore mentioned, it shall be lawful for him to draw upon the secretary of state [for the] number required to make up the deficiency, who shall as soon as practicable thereafter transmit the same to such county auditor, and shall certify to the auditor of state the number of copies so transmitted by him. The auditor of state shall charge to such county auditor the number of copies of the code furnished him by the state, and shall credit him with such as have been or may be disposed of as provided in the first and second sections of this act.

County auditor may draw upon secretary of state, when.

Justices and clerks to turn over codes, etc., to successors.

SEC. 4. It shall be the duty of every justice of the peace and township clerk, upon the expiration of his term of office, or whenever his office becomes vacant, to deposit with his successor in office, or with the county auditor, such copy of the code as well as all other books and papers which have come into his hands as such justice of the peace or township clerk.

SEC. 41. The secretary of state and county auditor shall sell the copies remaining in their hands at fifty cents a copy. The secretary of state shall report under oath to the auditor of state the number of copies remaining on hand after the distribution aforesaid, and the auditor of state shall charge him therewith and credit him with the proceeds of all that are sold, upon payment of the same into the state treasury. The county auditor shall pay the proceeds of all copies sold by him to the county treasurer, taking his duplicate receipts therefor, one of which he shall transmit to the auditor of state.

Report to be made annually.

SEC. 43. When the secretary of state or county auditor goes out of office having any such copies remaining, he shall deliver them to his successor, taking his duplicate receipts therefor, one of which he shall transmit to the auditor of state, who shall thereupon give such officer the proper credit and charge his successor with the copies received by him. Every officer receiving a copy of such laws shall execute a receipt therefor, and shall deliver such copy to his successor, or to the officer from whom he received it, for the use of such successor, and upon failure to do so shall be liable on his official bond or in his individual capacity.

Construction.
R. § 29, 4121,
4123, 4124.

SEC. 45. In the construction of the statutes, the following rules shall be observed, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the manifest intent of the general assembly or repugnant to the context of the statute:

Repeal of.

1. The repeal of a statute does not revive a statute previously repealed, nor affect any right which has accrued, any duty imposed, any penalty incurred, or any proceeding commenced, under or by virtue of the statute repealed;^c phrases.

2. Words and phrases shall be construed according to the context and the approved usage of the language; but technical words and phrases, and such others as may have acquired a peculiar and appropriate meaning in law, shall be construed according to such meaning;^d

^c Under this clause it has been held that the modification of section 779 of the Revision of 1860, by section 13, chapter 173, laws of 1862 (now section 890 of the Code), did not affect the right of the wife to redeem her homestead sold before such change, at any time within one year after the removal of the disability of coverture as provided in that section. Adams v. Beale, 19 Iowa, 61; Myers v. Copeland, 20 Id., 22.

An indictment found under a statute is not affected by a repeal of such statute. State v. Shaffer, 21 Iowa, 486; see, also, Peoria M. & F. Ins. Co. v. Dickerson, 28 Id., 274.

An amendment of the statute of limitations will not operate retrospectively and have the effect to revive a right of action that was barred under the former statute. Thompson v. Read, 41 Iowa, 48.

The defendant executed his promissory note in Iowa, and resided in Minnesota long enough for the action to be fully barred by the statutes of that state: Held, that the enactment of section 10, chapter 167, acts of the Thirteenth General Assembly, did not remove the bar. Ibid.

The continuance of a cause and the time in which pleadings in actions should be filed are not "rights accrued" which cannot be affected by the repeal of a statute. And where an original notice was served prior to the taking effect of the Code, but the second day of the term occurred thereafter, it was held, that the provisions of the Code would govern respecting the time to plead. Brotherton v. Brotherton, 41 Iowa, 112.

Where an action has been commenced under and prior to the repeal of a statute, it is saved by subdivision one of section 45. Inskeep v. Inskeep, 5 Iowa, 204, 221.

Nor will such repeal affect rights of dower which accrued previous to the repealing act. Burke v. Barron, 8 Id., 132.

The repeal of that part of the revenue laws imposing penalties for delinquencies will not remove penalties incurred prior to such repeal, unless the intention to do so be clearly expressed. Bartruff v. Remy, 15 Id., 257.

The repeal of a statute does not revive a statute previously repealed. City of Burlington v. Kellar, 18 Id., 63; Adams v. Beale et ux., 19 Id., 61.

An indictment presented under a statute which is afterward repealed is not affected thereby. The State v. Shaffer, 21 Id., 486.

On the repeal of a statute fixing the times for holding courts, and fixing different times by the repealing statute, no saving clause is necessary in order to preserve actions commenced prior to such repeal, and parties who have been served with notice will be held to appear at the term as changed by the new act without further notice: Peoria M. & F. Ins. Co. v. Dickerson, 28 Id., 274.

Where an original notice was served before the Code took effect, and the second day of the term occurred after that time, it was held, that the Code would govern in respect to the time to plead. Brotherton v. Brotherton, 41 Id., 112.

The continuance of a case and the time in which pleadings should be filed are not "rights accrued" which cannot be affected by the repeal of existing statutes. Id. But a sale of real property, made after the taking effect of the Code, under a judgment rendered before that time, should conform to the statute in force at the time the judgment was rendered, and in such case the judgment debtor had the right to elect to have the property appraised or sold subject to redemption. Holland v. Dickerson, Id., 367.

The repeal of a statute under which penalties had accrued for the non-payment of taxes, will not affect the liability of the owner for the amount of such penalties. The C. R. & M. R. R. Co. et al. v. Carroll County, 41 Id., 153.

The provisions of the Revision relating to a stay of execution govern where the judgments were rendered prior to the taking effect of the Code. Du Boise et al. v. Bloom, 38 Id., 512.

^d See Hinds v. Hinds, 1 Iowa, 36, 39. The word "assignment" has acquired a peculiar and appropriate meaning in law. It is a technical word, and is to be construed according to its peculiar and technical meaning. Cowles & Co. v. Ricketts, 1 Id., 582, 585.

3. Words importing the singular number may be extended to several persons or things, and words importing the plural number may be applied to one person or thing, and words importing the masculine gender only may be extended to females;
4. Words giving a joint authority to three or more public officers or other persons, shall be construed as giving such authority to a majority of them, unless it be otherwise expressed in the act giving the authority;

9. The words "personal property" include money, goods, chattels, evidences of debt, and things in action;^g
10. The word "property" includes personal and real property;^h
11. The word "month" means a calender month, and the word "year," and the abbreviation "A. D.," are equivalent to the expression "year of our Lord;"
12. The word "oath" includes affirmation in all cases where an affirmation may be substituted for an oath, and in like cases the word "swear" includes "affirm;"
13. The word "person" may be extended to bodies corporate;ⁱ
14. Where the seal of a court or public office or officer may be required to be affixed to any paper the word "seal" shall include an impression upon the paper alone as well as upon wax or a wafer affixed thereto;^j
15. The word "state," when applied to the different parts of the United States, includes the District of Columbia and the territories, and the words "United States" may include the said district and territories;

^f The terms "real property" include "all rights thereto and interest therein, equitable as well as legal." It is this interest which a minor may redeem in lands sold for taxes, after three years. He redeems the interest of a minor, and not that of an adult owner. Jacobs v. Potter, 34 Iowa, 341. See also Adams v. Beale, 19 Id., 61; Burton v. Heintrager, 18 Id., 348; *Stout v. CREATING THE FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

Title.

AN ACT creating the fourteenth judicial district, and providing for the election of district and circuit judges and a district attorney therein, and changing the boundaries of the fourth judicial district.

Fourteenth judicial district.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the counties of Calhoun, Sac, Ida, Buena Vista, Pocahontas, Humboldt, Kossuth, Palo Alto, Clay, Dickinson and Emmet shall constitute the fourteenth judicial district.

^e The district court has a general supervision over all inferior courts, to prevent and correct abuses, where no other remedy is provided. Pierson's Executors, 13 Iowa, 449.

The jurisdiction is general and original, and can only be taken away by express words or irresistible implication. Mere negative words will not oust the jurisdiction. Sterritt v. Robinson, 17 Iowa, 61. See also Waples v. Marsh, 19 Iowa, 381.

The district court being a court of general original jurisdiction, has power to recall a grand jury to pass upon an offense committed after their discharge and before the adjournment of the term. The State of Iowa v. Reid, 22 Id., 413.

It was held that under the Revision the district court had not jurisdiction in bastardy proceedings; that the jurisdiction belonged to the circuit court. The State v. Cook, 31 Id., 519. But see section 4715 of the Code.

^f Under the Revision the circuit court had no jurisdiction in certiorari proceedings. Thompson v. Reed, 29 Iowa, 117; 48 Id., 679.

Under chapter 86, laws of the twelfth general assembly, as amended by chapter 153, laws of the thirteenth general assembly, the circuit court had exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from the special tribunals organized for contesting elections under chapter 37 of the Revision; and of all appeals from inferior tribunals in civil cases. McKinney v. Wood, 35 Id., 167.

Where a judgment of a justice of the peace was appealed from to the district court prior to the taking effect of the act creating the circuit court, the appellee afterward filed the transcript in the circuit court, and obtained judgment thereon against the appellant and his sureties in the appeal bond; at the following term the defendant applied to set aside the judgment for certain reasons specified, but made no objection to the jurisdiction of the circuit court; it was held, that by thus appearing and failing to object to the jurisdiction, he was thereby estopped from doing so for the first time in the supreme court. The I. N. C. R. Co. v. Ritter, 36 Id., 568.

^g The other judicial districts and circuits are as follows:

First District.—The counties of Des Moines, Lee, Henry and Louisa.

D. 1877, and shall hold their offices for four years, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Electors of fourteenth judicial district shall elect, etc.

SEC. 4. The district and circuit courts shall be held in the several counties of the fourth judicial district as heretofore provided by law, and shall have full jurisdiction in all counties comprising said district and circuit prior to the passage of this act until the first day of January, A. D. 1877, after which time the jurisdiction of the judges of said fourth and fourteenth judicial districts and circuits shall extend to said districts and circuits as herein provided.

Jurisdiction.

SEC. 5. On or before the first day of December, A. D. 1876, the judges of the fourth judicial district may, if they deem it necessary, make an order assigning terms of court in said district for the year A. D. 1877, and in the fourteenth judicial district terms of court in the several counties shall remain as heretofore fixed until altered by the judges of said fourteenth district; and said judges shall, on or before the fifteenth day of January, A. D. 1877, fix terms of court for the year 1877, to take effect at such date as they may order.

Times of holding court in fourth district.

the district, was held not invalid on the ground of having been found at such special term. State v. Clark, 30 Iowa, 168.

SEC. 169. If the judge is sick, or for any other sufficient cause is unable to attend court at the regularly appointed time, he may, by a written order, direct an adjournment to a particular day therein specified, and the clerk shall, on the first day of the term, or as soon thereafter as he receives the order, adjourn the court as therein directed.¹

R. § 2670.

¹ It was held under this section prior to the Code that where a trial was commenced in the middle of a term, under the belief that it can be concluded before the day when the judge is directed, but not imperatively required, to hold court in another county, he may remain and conclude that case, receive the verdict and pass judgment, even though this may be done on a day, or at a time, when regularly he would be opening or holding court in another county. *State v. the effect to discharge the sureties upon an appearance bond. State of Iowa v. Brown, 16 Iowa, 314.

^k When by the omission of the clerk, judgment was not entered upon a verdict at the term at which it was returned, it was held competent for the court at a subsequent term, both parties appearing and being heard, to order the entry of judgment on the verdict. Shepherd v. Brenton, 20 Iowa, 41.

When at a regular term of the court, a special term has been ordered to be held at a future day fixed, which special term was postponed by the clerk, on the written order of the judge made in vacation, it was held that the postponement was regular under section 1583 of the Code of 1851, which was the same as this section. The State v. Ballenger, 10 Id., 368.

The provisions of this section are directory, and a failure to sign the records will not affect the validity of the judgments entered therein. Childs v. McChesney, 20 Id., 431.

The judge may by written order to the clerk direct an adjournment of the term under this section. State v. Clark, 30 Id., on p. 171.

This provision of the statute, requiring the judge to sign the records, is directory merely, and a non-compliance therewith does not affect the validity of judgments entered on such records. Childs v. McChesney, Id., 431.

rules.

SEC. 180. The judges of the district and circuit court in any district, may provide by general rule:

1. That the time of filing pleadings or motions shall be other than provided in this code;
2. That issues in all, or a part of the counties in such district, shall be made up in vacation;
3. Prescribing penalties that shall follow the overruling or sustaining a motion or demurrer;
4. Adopting such other rules as they may deem expedient, not inconsistent with this code. Such rules shall be signed by said judges, and such number published as they deem expedient, and shall be distributed by the district judge as follows: To the secretary of state, to each of the judges of the supreme court, attorney-general, clerk of the supreme court, state library, and law department of the state university, one copy each, to be filed and preserved in the said several offices or departments; and the residue to the clerks of the district court in each county composing such district, in such proportion as such judge deems proper. The expense of publishing and distributing such rules shall be paid by the counties composing the district, as the judges may direct. Such rules may be revised and changed as often as the judges deem proper, and shall be published and distributed in the same man-

^m This section applies to all entries made without authority, or upon a supposed state of facts, which is afterward found not to exist. The court may on its own motion, under this section, correct its record, and it is required to permit nothing to be made or remain of record that is not in accord with truth and within its authority. Boals v. Shules, 29 Id., 507.

Under this section it was held that it is competent for the trial court to change its previous rulings upon a demurrer at any time during the term. Brace v. Grady, 36 Id., 352.

The court may correct or expunge any entry in the records thereof before the same is read or signed. Shepherd v. Brenton, 15 Id., 84.

Where the clerk omitted to record a decree which had been duly signed, and the term of office of the judge before whom the cause was tried having expired, his successor directed that the cause be referred; held, that the clerk should have been ordered to spread the decree upon the proper record book, and that it was erroneous to disregard the decree and order a reference of the cause for a trial anew. Tracy v. Beeson, 47 Id., 155.

Whether the records are approved or not during the term, is entirely immaterial. The statute on this subject is merely directory. Besides the statute provides that when it is not practicable to have the records read during the term, they may be read and approved at a succeeding term. Finch v. Hollinger, 47 Id., 178.

ⁿ Where it is shown that the name of a grand juror has, by mistake of the clerk, been omitted from the record of a prior term, the court may order a correction of the record by the insertion therein of the name of such juror. The State v. McComb, 18 Iowa, 43.

Where the record omitted to state that, in an equitable action, by consent the trial was by the second method, it was competent for the District Court, by an order nunc pro tunc, to so correct the record as to supply the omission, and this may be done after the case has been appealed and is pending in the Supreme Court. This section does not deprive the court of the power to make such a nunc pro tunc entry. Buckwalter v. Craig, 24 Id., 215.

So a nunc pro tunc order may be made at a term of court subsequent to the finding of an indictment showing that some of the grand jurors were selected from the bystanders upon the failure of some of those named in the precept to appear. The State v. Munzenmaier, Id., 87. See further Roberts v. Austin, Corbin & Co., 26 Id., 315.

An alteration in an entry in the records of the court can be made at a subsequent term only to correct an evident mistake. The State, ex rel. Alderson, v. Jones, County, etc., 11 Id., 11.

A mistake made by the clerk in entering up a judgment, may be corrected on motion of the plaintiff, within the time and in the manner prescribed by the statute, even after payment and satisfaction by the defendant of the erroneous judgment. Goldsmith v. Clauson, 14 Id., 278.

ner, but shall not take effect until ninety days after their entry of record.^o

SEC. 181. The judge of the district or circuit court may appoint, whenever in the judgment of either of them it will expedite the public business, a short-hand reporter, who shall be well skilled in the art and competent to discharge the duties required, for the purpose of recording the oral testimony of witnesses [in civil cases upon the request of either party thereto, and in all criminal cases which are tried upon indictment, and in other criminal cases and such other matters as the judge may direct. But the judge shall not so direct in any criminal case unless it shall satisfactorily appear to him that the interests of the state or defendant require the reporting of the testimony in said case: provided, the defendant in any criminal case may have the testimony therein reported without an order of the judge by first paying or securing to said reporter his fees for reporting the same.]^p

Short-hand reporter. C. 99, § 100, 14 G. A.

SEC. 182. Such reporter shall take an oath faithfully to perform the duties of his office, which shall be filed in the office of the clerk. He shall attend such sessions of the court as the judge may direct, and may be removed by the judge making the appointment, for misconduct, incapacity, or inattention to duty.

Oath: removal. Same.

SEC. 183. With consent of parties; actions, special proceedings, and other matters pending in the courts named in this chapter, may be taken under advisement by the judges, decided and entered of record in vacation, or at the next term; if so entered in vacation, they shall have the same force and effect from the time of such entry as if done in term time.

SEC. 185. In all judicial proceedings in any of the courts of this state where a jury trial has been commenced in any case during any term of court, and where such jury may agree upon a verdict, but not until after the time for holding court in some other county in the same district, and where the jury has agreed upon a verdict and reported the same after the opening of court in another county and judgment has been rendered thereon, then and in that case such judgment shall not be deemed invalid by reason of the time of receiving such verdict and the rendition of such judgment.

In such cases judgment may be rendered at next term.

When any of the above proceedings are taken from his district to the supreme court, he shall furnish to the attorney-general a brief, containing the substance thereof, and the questions therein involved, before the proceeding is set for hearing in the supreme court. He shall also appear for the state, or any county, in any proceedings brought to his district from another on change of place of trial. He may, in his discretion, appear before a magistrate at the preliminary hearing of a criminal case; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the board of supervisors from employing other counsel, in any case properly belonging to his duties, when they deem it necessary.^u

OF ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS.

SECTION 208. All persons, who by the laws heretofore in force were permitted to practice as attorneys and counselors, may continue to practice as such; and, hereafter, any person twenty-one years of age, who is an inhabitant of this state, and who satisfies any court of record that he or she possesses the requisite learning, and is of good moral character, may, by such court, be licensed to practice as an attorney and counselor in all the courts of the state, upon taking an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of this state, and to faithfully discharge the duty of an attorney and counselor of the courts of the state according to the best of his or her ability.

Who may be: oath.
R. 2699, 2700,
C. 21, 13 G. A.

SEC. 209. Graduates of the law department of the Iowa State University, shall be admitted by any court of record to practice as attorneys and counselors in all the courts of the state, upon the production of their diploma and taking the oath prescribed in the preceding section.

Graduates of State University.

^u A criminal cause is under the control of the district attorney until the supreme court acquires jurisdiction, after which it is under the sole control of the attorney-general. The State v. Fleming, 13 Iowa, 443.

The board of supervisors has power to employ an attorney, or attorneys, to prosecute in a criminal case properly belonging to the duties of the district-attorney; and the board may properly devolve the duty and power of carrying out such employment to a committee of its own members. Hopkins v. Clayton County, 32 Id., 15.

^v Where a change of venue is taken by a defendant in a criminal case to another county, and he enters into bond for his appearance at the latter county, which is forfeited for want of appearance, the forfeiture belongs to the county where, by the terms of the bond, the defendant was bound to appear; and suit on the bond should be brought in that county. Decatur County v. Maxwell, 26 Iowa, 398.

Of another state.
R. § 2702.

SEC. 210. Any practicing attorney of another state, having professional business in the courts of this state, may be admitted to practice in either of such courts, upon taking the oath aforesaid.

Duties.
R. § 2704.

SEC. 211. It is the duty of an attorney and counselor:

1. To maintain the respect due to the courts of justice and judicial officers;

2. To counsel or maintain no other actions, proceedings or defenses than those which appear to him legal and just, except the defense of a person charged with a public offense;

3. To employ, for the purpose of maintaining the causes confided to him, such means only as are consistent with truth, and never to seek to mislead the judges by any artifice or false statement of fact or law;

4. To maintain inviolate the confidence, and, at any peril to himself, to preserve the secret of his client;

5. To abstain from all offensive personalities, and to advance no fact prejudicial to the honor or reputation of a party or witness, unless required by the justice of the cause with which he is charged;

6. Not to encourage either the commencement or continuance of an action or proceeding from any motive of passion or interest;

7. Never to reject, for any consideration personal to himself, the cause of the defenseless or the oppressed.

When dis-
barred.
R. § 2705.

SEC. 212. An attorney and counselor who is guilty of deceit or collusion, or consents thereto, with intent to deceive a court, or judge, or a party to an action or proceeding, is liable to be disbarred, and shall forfeit to the injured party treble damages, to be recovered in a civil action.

Power: authority.
R. § 2706.

SEC. 213. An attorney and counselor has power:

1. To execute in the name of his client a bond, or other written instrument, necessary and proper for the prosecution of an action or proceeding about to be or already commenced; or for the prosecution or defense of any right growing out of an action, proceeding, or final judgment rendered therein;

2. To bind his client to any agreement, in respect to any proceeding within the scope of his proper duties and powers; but no evidence of any such agreement is receivable, except the statement of the attorney himself, his written agreement signed and filed with the clerk, or an entry thereof upon the records of the court;*

3. To receive money claimed by his client in an action or proceeding during the pendency thereof, or afterward, unless he has been previously discharged by his client, and upon payment thereof, and not otherwise, to discharge the claim or acknowledge satisfaction of the judgment.

*The record of an agreement between attorneys respecting a matter in litigation, based upon testimony or affidavits offered after the agreement was disputed, constitutes no stronger evidence than the testimony or affidavits themselves, and is not conclusive upon the objecting party. Hillier v. Landis, 44 Iowa, 223. Beck, J., dissenting.

In this case a motion was made to amend the record by adding thereto the statement that, by agreement of counsel, the case was to be heard by the court and a decree rendered in vacation, as of the term at which it was submitted. The motion was supported by affidavits and opposed by counter-affidavits denying the existence of such agreement. The court below sustained the motion. It was held by the supreme court that such a record was not sufficient to establish the alleged agreement, and reversed the judgment.

An attorney employed to secure the possession of real property by legal proceedings, cannot bind his client by an agreement to pay the party in possession a sum of money in consideration of the surrender of the possession. Stuck v. Reese, 15 Id., 122.

The record of an agreement between attorneys respecting a matter in litigation, based upon testimony or affidavits offered after the agreement is disputed, is no stronger evidence than the testimony or affidavits themselves, and is not conclusive upon the objecting party. Heller v. Landis, 44 Id., 223.

SEC. 214. The court may, on motion, for either party and on the showing of reasonable grounds therefor, require the attorney for the adverse party, or for any one of the several adverse parties, to produce, or prove by his own oath or otherwise, the authority under which he appears, and, until he does so, may stay all proceedings by him on behalf of the parties for whom he assumes to appear.

May be required to prove authority. R. § 2707.

SEC. 215. An attorney has a lien for a general balance of compensation upon:

Lien: extent of. R. § 2708. C. 167, § 2, 13 G. A.

1. Any papers belonging to his client, which have come into his hands in the course of his professional employment;

2. Money in his hands belonging to his client;

3. Money due his client in the hands of the adverse party, or attorney of such party, in an action or proceeding in which the attorney claiming the lien was employed, from the time of giving notice in writing to such adverse party, or attorney of such party, if the money is in the possession or under the control of such attorney, which notice shall state the amount claimed, and, in general terms, for what services.

4. After judgment in any court of record, such notice may be given and the lien made effective against the judgment debtor, by entering the same in the judgment docket opposite the entry of the judgment.*

SEC. 216. Any person interested may release such lien, by executing a bond in a sum double the amount claimed, or in such sum as may be fixed by a judge, payable to the attorney, with surety to be approved by the clerk of the supreme or district court, conditioned to pay an amount finally found due the attorney for his services, which amount may be ascertained by suit on the bond. Such lien will be released, unless the attorney, within ten days after demand therefor, files with the clerk a full and complete bill of particulars of the services and amount claimed for each item, or written contract with the party for whom the services were rendered.†

How released. R. § 2709.

SEC. 217. Any court of record may revoke or suspend the license of an attorney or counselor at law to practice therein, and a revocation or suspension in one county operates to the same extent in the courts of all other counties.‡

License revoked. R. § 2710.

*The lien of an attorney on the moneys due to his client and in the hands of the adverse party, is binding from the date of notice to such party, and will have priority over proceedings in garnishment wherein the notice is subsequently served. Myers v. McHugh, 16 Iowa, 335. But where the right to set off a judgment recovered in one action against that recovered in another between the same parties arises before notice of the lien is given, the right of set-off is superior. Hurst v. Sheets et al., 21 Id., 501.

†At any time before an attorney gives notice to the adverse party of his lien for fees upon money due his client, and in the absence of collusion between the parties to the suit, it is entirely competent for them to settle without reference to the claim of the attorney for his fees. Casar v. Sargeant, 7 Id., 317.

‡An attorney is entitled to a lien for his services in an action by giving notice thereof to the adverse party, against whom the judgment has been rendered, and after such notice the latter cannot escape responsibility to the attorney by paying the money to the clerk, though the attorney have notice thereof, nor do any act to defeat the lien, which can only be discharged by payment or legal proceedings. Fisher v. The City of Oskaloosa, 28 Id., 381.

The claim by an attorney of a lien on the judgment must be in writing to bind the judgment creditor. Phillips v. Gorman, 43 Id., 101. See second head note on page 350, 48 Iowa.

†A, an attorney, claimed a lien upon a judgment which he had recovered for his client, C; and subsequently the latter filed a bond, in conformity with section 216 of the code, to discharge the lien. Held, that the lien was not kept in force by the filing of a bond by the attorney in compliance with sections 225 and 226 of the code. Cross v. Ackley, 40 Iowa, 493.

‡In order to revoke or suspend the license of an attorney there must be an accusation and charges—a notice and a “day in court”; and it cannot be done summarily by order of the court. The State of Iowa v. Start, 7 Iowa, 499.

Causes for.
R. § 2711.

SEC. 218. The following are sufficient causes for revocation or suspension:

1. When he has been convicted of a felony, or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, in either of which cases the record of conviction is conclusive evidence;

2. When he is guilty of a willful disobedience or violation of the order of the court, requiring him to do or forbear an act connected with, or in the course of his profession;

3. For a willful violation of any of the duties of an attorney or counselor as hereinbefore prescribed;

4. For doing any other act to which such a consequence is, by law, attached.

Proceedings for.
R. § 2712.

SEC. 219. The proceedings to remove or suspend an attorney may be commenced by the direction of the court, or on motion of any individual. In the former case, the court must direct some attorney to draw up the accusation; in the latter, the accusation must be drawn up and sworn to by the person making it.

Same.
R. § 2713.

SEC. 220. If the court deem the accusation sufficient to justify further action, it shall cause an order to be entered requiring the accused to appear and answer on a day therein fixed, either at the same or a subsequent term, and shall cause a copy of the accusation and order to be served upon him personally.^a Trial.

R. § 2714.

SEC. 221. To the accusation he may plead or demur, and the issues joined thereon shall, in all cases, be tried by the court, all the evidence being reduced to writing, filed and preserved.

Judgment.
R. § 2715.

SEC. 222. If the accused plead guilty, or fail to answer, the court shall proceed to render such judgment as the case requires.

Appeal.
R. § 2716.

SEC. 223. In case of a removal or suspension being ordered by a district or circuit court, an appeal therefrom lies to the supreme court, and all the original papers, together with a transcript of the record, shall thereupon be transferred to the supreme court, to be there considered and finally acted upon. A judgment of acquittal by the district or circuit court is final.

Misdemeanor :
when guilty.
R. § 2717.

SEC. 224. An attorney who receives the money or property of his client in the course of his professional business, and refuses to pay or deliver it in a reasonable time after demand, is guilty of a misdemeanor:

Exceptions.
R. § 2718.

SEC. 225. When the attorney claims to be entitled to a lien upon the money or property, he is not liable to the penalties of the preceding section, until the person demanding the money proffers sufficient security for the payment of the amount of the attorney's claim when it is legally ascertained.

Same.
R. § 2719.

SEC. 226. Nor is he in any case liable as aforesaid, provided he gives sufficient security that he will pay over the whole, or any portion thereof, to the claimant when he is found entitled thereto.^b

^a A proceeding upon charges preferred by a private prosecutor to disbar an attorney is a special proceeding wherein a change of venue on account of the prejudice of the judge may be granted on the same conditions and upon compliance with the same rules as in ordinary actions. The State v. Clarke, 46 Iowa, 155.

OF SECURITIES AND INVESTMENTS.

Remedy when defective.
R. § 4119.

^s Where, in a civil action, after all of the regular jurors but one had been excused by the court, a party demanded and insisted upon having the regular jury, and the court, after the one remaining juror was called, ordered the sheriff to fill up the panel with talesmen, and the cause being tried by one regular juror and eleven talesmen, it was held, that there was no such abuse of the discretion vested in the court below as to the manner of obtaining the requisite number of petit jurors, as to warrant the interference of the supreme court. Emerick v. Sloan, 13 Iowa, 139.

Where a challenge, for the cause that the juror was not of the regular panel, and had served as a juror in a court of record within one year before that time, is overruled, and the party making the challenge fails to exhaust his peremptory challenges, the action of the court, though erroneous, Officer may require affidavit.

R. § 4126.

SEC. 250. The officer whose duty it is to take a surety in any bond provided for by this code, shall require the person offered as surety to make affidavit of his qualification, which affidavit may be made before such officer, or other officer authorized to administer oaths. They shall be qualified electors, and be elected by the qualified voters of their respective counties, and shall hold their office for three years. Number: election. Ch. 148, § 1, 13 G. A.

*This chapter, assuming to give holders of bonds in excess of the constitutional limit, a lien on the materials furnished is unconstitutional and invalid. Mosher v. The Ind. School District of Ackley, 44 Iowa, 122.

When elected. Same, § 2.	SEC. 295. At the general election in each year, there shall be at least one supervisor elected in each county, who shall not be a resident of the same township with either of the members holding over, and who shall continue in office three years.

If the majority of the votes cast shall be for the increase of the number, then, at the next ensuing election for a supervisor, the requisite additional supervisors shall be elected, whose terms of office shall be determined by lot in such a manner that one-half of the additional members shall hold their office for three years, and one-half for two years. In any county where the number of supervisors has been increased to "five" or "seven," the board of supervisors, on the petition of one-fourth of the legal voters of the county, shall submit to the qualified voters of the county at any regular election the question, "Shall the number of supervisors be reduced to "five," or "three?" If a majority of the votes cast shall be for the decrease, then the board of supervisors shall be reduced to the number indicated by such vote, and thereafter there shall be annually elected the number requisite to keep the board full.

Board may establish supervisor districts, or may abolish them.	SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the board of supervisors of each county may, at their regular meeting in June, A. D. 1874, [or at their regular June meeting in any even numbered year thereafter,] divide their respective counties by townships into a number of supervisor districts corresponding to the number of supervisors in their respective counties; [or at such regular meeting they may abolish supervisor's districts and provide for electing supervisors for the county at large.]
Amended by Ch. 68, laws of 1878.

SEC. 3. In case such division, or any subsequent division, shall be found to leave any district or districts without a member of such board of supervisors, then at the next ensuing general election a supervisor shall be elected by and from such district having no member of such board; and if there be two such districts or more, then the new member or members of said board shall be elected by and from the district or districts having the greatest population according to the last state census and so on till each of said districts shall have one member of such board.

Election of member from unrepresented districts.

SEC. 4. Any county may be re-districted as provided by the preceding sections of this act, once in each and every two years, and not oftener, and nothing herein contained shall be construed or have the effect to lengthen or diminish the term of office of any member of such board.

Board may re-district.

(Took effect by publication in newspapers April 9, 1874.)

ORGANIZATION—POWERS.

SEC. 300. The board of supervisors, at their first meeting in every year, shall organize by choosing one of their number as chairman, who shall preside at all the meetings of the board during the year. Every chairman of the board of supervisors shall have power to administer an oath to any person concerning any matter submitted to the board or connected with their powers.

Organization: powers. R. § 398.

SEC. 301. Special meetings of the board of supervisors shall be held only when requested by a majority of the board, which request shall be in writing, addressed to the county auditor, and shall specify the object for which such special meeting is desired. The auditor shall thereupon fix a day for such meeting, not later than ten days from the day of the filing of the petition with him, and shall immediately give notice in writing to each of the supervisors personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at his residence, at least six days before the day set for such meeting. The notice shall state the time and place where the meeting will be held and the object of it, as stated in the petition; and at such special meeting no business other than that so designated in the petition and notice shall be considered or transacted. The auditor shall also give public notice of the meeting by publication in not exceeding two newspapers published in the county, or, if there be none, by causing notice of the same to be posted on the front door of the court house of the county, and in two other public places therein, one week before the time set therefor.*

Failure of duty. R. § 311.

Board of Supervisors of Jackson County*, 11 Iowa, 552.

It is not necessary to the validity of a contract on part of the county that it should be entered into at a regular session of the board of supervisors. The board can exercise its powers at a special meeting called by a majority of its members, and in the absence of a contrary showing the meeting will be deemed to be regular. *Allen v. ¹The board of supervisors has no power to bind the county for the erection of a public building, the probable cost of which will exceed $5,000, unless authorized to do so by a majority vote of the legal voters of the county; and then only to the extent of the sum authorized by the vote. Richard v. Warren County, 31 Iowa, 381.

And since the county cannot be made liable on an express contract by the board in excess of the amount authorized by the vote, so it cannot be made liable on an implied one. Id.

The occupancy of a public building by a county will not render it liable to pay an amount in excess of the sum voted. Id.

The board of supervisors has power to order the erection of a public building, the cost of which does not exceed $5,000, and may also order the purchase of grounds on which to erect the same, the cost of which does not exceed $2,000. The cost of the building and the cost of the grounds are not to be estimated together. Merchant v. Tama County, 32 Iowa, 200.

The appropriation of $7,000 out of the swamp land moneys of the county, to aid in the construction of a bridge, authorized by a vote of the electors of a county, imposes no restriction upon the power of the board to make an additional approriation under the statute. Bell v. Fouch, 21 Id., 119.

The authority of the board of supervisors to lay out, establish, alter, or discontinue roads was not abridged or taken away by the provisions of chapter 160, acts of the twelfth general assembly. Payne v. Brooks et al., 38 Id., 263.

The board has no power to submit a proposition to raise money by taxation for the construction of bridges, at a special election. Yant v. Brooks, 19 Id., 87.

But it may submit a proposition for appropriating the swamp land fund to the erection of a county high school building at a special election. Gray et al. v. Mount et al., 45 Id., 591; Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 34 Id., 54. The board of supervisors alone is authorized to submit this question. Id.

In the submission to the electors of a proposition for the outlay of money, two distinct objects, each calling for a certain specified amount of funds, cannot be included in one proposition, so that the voter shall be unable to vote for the one and against the other. Id.

And when the warrants of a county are at a depreciated value, they may, in like manner, submit the question whether a tax of a higher rate than that provided by law shall be levied, and in all cases when an additional tax is laid, in pursuance of a vote of the people of any county, for the special purpose of re-paying borrowed money, or constructing, or aiding to construct, any highway or bridge, such special tax shall be paid in money, and in no other manner.^k

SEC. 314. The board of supervisors, on being satisfied that the above requirements have been substantially complied with, and that a majority of the votes cast are in favor of the proposition submitted, shall cause the proposition and the result of the vote to be entered at large in the minute book, and a notice of its adoption to be published for the same time and in the same manner as above provided for publishing the preliminary notice, and from the time of entering the result of the vote in relation to borrowing or expending money, and from the completion of the notice of its adoption in the case of a local or police regulation, the vote and entry thereof on the county records shall be in full force and effect.^o

¹ When the board of supervisors are satisfied that the requirements of sections 309 and 310 of the Code have been substantially complied with, in respect to levying a tax of a higher rate than that provided by law, and that a majority of votes has been cast in favor of the proposition, they are empowered to levy such tax in pursuance of the vote. The Iowa R. R. Land Co. v. Sac County et al., 39 Iowa, 124.

Where the board of supervisors resolved to submit the question of issuing bonds for the construction of a court house, and of levying a tax to pay the same, and prescribed that the form of the ballot should be: "For Court House Bonds," and "Against Court House Bonds," it was held, that a majority of votes in favor of the proposition included the adoption of the proposition to levy the tax. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Kossuth County, 41 Id., 57.

As to the appropriation of the swamp lands, the question may be submitted by the board of supervisors at a special election. Gray v. Mount et al, 45 Id., 591.

^m A submission by the board of supervisors to the voters of a county, of a question involving the expenditure of money in the purchase of a public building, is of no effect unless accompanied by a proposition to levy a tax for the payment thereof, and the adoption of the same, together with the proposition of expenditure. Starr v. Board of Supervisors, 22 Iowa, 491.

ⁿ Under this section a county has power to grade and improve its public highways, make contracts therefor, and issue warrants in payment thereof. Long v. Boone County, 32 Iowa, 181, explaining Soper v. Henry County, 26 Id., 264.

SEC. 315. Propositions thus adopted, and local regulations thus established, may be rescinded in like manner and upon like notice by a subsequent vote taken thereon, but neither contracts made under them, nor the taxes appointed for carrying them into effect, can be rescinded.

May be rescinded.
R. § 256.

SEC. 316. The board shall submit the question of the adoption or rescission of such a measure when petitioned therefor by one-fourth of the voters of the county, unless a different number be prescribed by law in any special case.

When submitted.
R. § 257.

SEC. 317. The record of the adoption or rescission of any such measure shall be presumptive evidence that all the proceedings necessary to give the vote validity have been regularly conducted.

Record: evidence.
R. § 258.

SEC. 318. In case the amount produced by the rate of tax proposed and levied exceeds the amount sought for the specific object, it shall not, therefore, be held invalid, but the excess shall go into the ordinary county funds.

Excess of tax.
R. § 259.

SEC. 319. Money so raised for such purposes is specially appropriated, and constitutes a fund distinct from all others in the hands of the treasurer until the obligation assumed is discharged.

(CHAPTER 48, LAWS OF 1880.)

AN ACT to authorize boards of supervisors to compromise judgments against county treasurers and their sureties in certain cases.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, Where judgment has been heretofore rendered against any county treasurer and his sureties in favor of any county in this state, which judgment exceeds the sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000), and remains unsatisfied, and the board of supervisors of such county are satisfied that the full amount thereof cannot be collected on execution, such board of supervisors shall have full power, and are hereby authorized to compromise the said judgment, and to enter full satisfaction thereof under the terms of such compromise.

Board of supervisors may compromise judgment exceeding $40,000.

SEC. 2. In all cases referred to in section one of this act, the principal debtor and every one of the sureties shall, in writing, execute a written consent to a compromise, with any one or more of the sureties, and to a release of such surety, or sureties, and in such writing shall agree that such compromise or release shall not release any of the sureties who shall not compromise and be released from payment of the unpaid judgment; then, in that case, upon the filing of such written consent with the county auditor of such county, the board of supervisors of such county shall have full power, and are hereby authorized, to compromise with any one or more of such sureties, and to release such surety or sureties upon the terms which may be agreed upon in such compromise.

Principal and sureties must sign release, etc.

SEC. 3. In case of any compromise as herein provided made under section one of this act, or made under section two of this act, the money received by the county shall be paid to the various funds of the county, in proportion to the amount of each fund in default, as the same existed at the time the judgment was rendered, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, so that each fund shall receive its pro rata share as the same shall be determined by the board of supervisors thereof, and no more.

Money received to be apportioned to various funds.

Approved March 16, 1880.

5. Preserve and file all accounts acted upon by the board, with their action thereon, and perform such special duties as are or may be required of him by law;
6. Designate upon every account on which any sum shall be allowed by the board, the amount so allowed, and the charges for which the same was allowed;
7. Deliver to any person who may demand it, a certified copy of any record or account in his office on payment of his legal fees therefor.

SEC. 321. The auditor shall not sign or issue any county warrant except upon the recorded vote or resolution of the board of supervisors authorizing the same, except for jury fees, and every such warrant shall be numbered, and the date, amount, and number of the same, and the name of the person to whom issued, shall be entered in a book to be kept by him in his office for the purpose.^q

SEC. 322. Whenever the auditor of any county shall receive from the state auditor notice of the apportionment of school moneys to be distributed in the county, he shall file the same in his office and transmit a certified copy thereof to the county treasurer, and he shall also lay a certified copy thereof before the board at its next regular meeting.

SEC. 323. The county auditor shall have the general custody and control of the court-house in each county respectively, subject to the direction of the board of supervisors.

SEC. 324. The county auditor shall report to the secretary of state the name, office, and term of office of every county officer elected or appointed, within ten days after their election and qualification, and the secretary of state shall record the same in a book to be kept for that purpose in his office.

SEC. 325. The clerk of the district court and county recorder shall each be eligible to the office of county auditor, and may discharge the duties of both offices.

^p It is the specific duty of the auditor to sign and issue warrants as directed by the board of supervisors. Prescott v. Gonser, 34 Iowa, 175, 178.

^q Where a claim against a county was examined by the board of supervisors and marked "allowed" by one of them, with the consent of all, in accordance with the usual course of business, and the auditor issued warrants for the amount, it was held, that the allowance was legal and bound the county, although no formal vote was taken or appeared of record. This section of the code is directory. Griggs v. Kimball, 42 Iowa, 512.

SEC. 326. The offices of county auditor and county treasurer shall not be united in the same person. The auditor and his deputy are prohibited from acting as attorney, either directly or indirectly, in any matter pending before the board of supervisors.

Cannot be treasurer.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE COUNTY TREASURER.

SECTION 327. The treasurer shall receive all money payable to the county, and disburse the same on warrants drawn and signed by the county auditor and sealed with the county seal, and not otherwise; and shall keep a true account of all receipts and disbursements, and hold the same at all times ready for the inspection of the board of supervisors.^r

Duties.
R. § 360.

SEC. 328. When the warrant drawn by the auditor on the treasurer is presented for payment, and not paid for want of money, the treasurer shall indorse thereon a note of that fact and the date of presentation, and sign it, and thenceforth it shall draw interest at the rate of six per cent; and when a warrant which draws interest is taken up, the treasurer is required to indorse upon it the date and amount of interest allowed, and such warrant is to be considered as canceled and shall not be re-issued.^s

When no funds.
R. § 361.

SEC. 329. When a person wishing to make a payment into the treasury presents a warrant of an amount greater than such payment, the treasurer shall cancel the same and give the holder a certificate of the overplus, upon the presentation of which to the county auditor, he shall file it and issue a new warrant of that amount, and charge the treasurer therewith, and such certificate is transferable by delivery, and will entitle the holder to a new warrant, which, however, must be issued in the first drawee's name.^t

Warrants, when divided.
R. § 362.

SEC. 330. The treasurer shall keep a book, ruled so as to contain a column for each of the following items in relation to the warrants drawn on him by the auditor—the number, date, drawee's name, when paid, to whom, original amount, and interest paid on each.

Warrant book.
R. § 363.

^rThe treasurer of the county is authorized to disburse the funds of the county upon warrants drawn, signed and sealed with the county seal, and not otherwise. Prescott v. Gonser, 34 Iowa, 175, 178.

A county warrant is of no validity unless it has the seal of the county attached thereto. The seal of the district court is insufficient. Springer v. Clay County, 35 Id., 241.

The principal and interest of loans from the school fund are payable to the county treasurer and the payment of the proceeds of a judgment in favor of such fund to the county auditor by the clerk of the district court is unauthorized. Mahaska County v. Searle et al., 44 Id., 492.

^sThere is no provision of the statute to the effect that upon giving notice that the county is ready to redeem its warrants, the interest thereon shall cease. Rooney v. Dubuque County, 44 Iowa, 128.

^tWhere the treasurer received a county warrant in payment of taxes which was in excess of the amount due, and instead of issuing a certificate of overplus, issued warrants, which were void for want of authority to make them, it was held, that the treasurer was authorized to receive the warrant from the plaintiff, and that the county was liable for the excess beyond his debt to the county. Barney v. Buena Vista County, 33 Iowa, 261.

Keep separate accounts.
R. § 364.

SEC. 331. The treasurer shall keep a separate account of the several taxes for state, county, school, and highway purposes, opening an account between himself and each of those funds, charging himself with the amount of the tax, and crediting himself with the amounts paid over severally, and with the amount of delinquent taxes when legally authorized so to do.

Warrants canceled.
R. § 365.

SEC. 332. The warrants returned by the treasurer shall be compared with the warrant book, and the word "canceled" be written over the minute of the proper numbers in the warrant book, and the original warrant be preserved for at least two years.*

Returns of.
R. § 366.

SEC. 333. The treasurer is required to make weekly return to the auditor of the number, date, drawee's name, when paid, to whom paid, original amount, and interest, as kept in the book before directed.

Accounts each term.
R. § 367.

SEC. 334. A person re-elected to, or holding over, the office of treasurer, shall keep separate accounts for each term of his office.†

(CHAPTER 22, LAWS OF 1880.)

AN ACT further defining the duties of county officers.

To furnish in-
governor or
gen. assembly.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, It is hereby made the duty of each county officer, when called upon by the governor or either house of the general assembly so to do, to communicate to the governor, or such house, any information that may be in his possession as such officer, and to furnish any statistics at his command when thus called upon.

Auditor to re-
penses.

SEC. 2. In order to enable the clerk of the district court to comply with the provisions of section two hundred and three (203) of the code, it is made the duty of the county auditor to report to said clerk, before the first day of November, in each year, the expenses of the county criminal prosecutions, during the year ending the thirtieth day of September preceding, including, but, distinguishing the compensation of the district attorney.

To what time
report to come.

SEC. 3. It is hereby made the duty of the clerk of the district court in preparing the report required by said section 203 of the code, to make such report for the year ending the 30th day of September, preceding.

Failure punished.

SEC. 4. Failure on the part of any officer to perform any duty required of him by this act, shall render him liable to prosecution and punishment for a misdemeanor.

Approved March 4, 1880.

* Where a county treasurer neglected to cancel warrants upon receiving them, in the manner prescribed by law, and they were afterward abstracted from his office, and again put in circulation, it was held that he was liable to the county, on his official bond, for the amount of the warrants abstracted, although he was guilty of no fault or negligence other than his failure to cancel the warrants. Johnson County v. Hughes, 12 Iowa, 360.

† It was held under the code of 1851 that, where a treasurer was re-elected and continued in office during the second term, after the time fixed for qualification he did not legally hold over, but remained treasurer de facto only; and that the sureties on his official bond given for his first term were not liable for his misfeasance or non-feasance in office after the expiration of that term. The County of Wapello v. Bigham, 10 Iowa, 39.

(CHAPTER 84, LAWS OF 1876.)

RELATING TO TRANSFER OF FUNDS RAISED BY SPECIAL LEVY.

AN ACT to provide for the transfer of moneys raised by special levy to county fund for general purposes. [Additional to Code, chapter 4, title IV: "Of board of supervisors."]

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in any county of this state, where any special levy has been made to pay any claim, bond, or other indebtedness, and the same shall have remained in the treasury of the county uncalled for, for a period of three years, the board of supervisors of such county may authorize such unclaimed fund to be transferred to the general county fund.
(Took effect March 16, 1876, by publication in newspapers.)

Special taxes uncalled for transferred to general fund.

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE COUNTY RECORDER.

SECTION 335. The recorder shall keep his office at the county seat, and he shall record at length, and as speedily as possible, all instruments in writing which may be delivered to him for record, in the manner directed by law.

Duties of R. § 358.

SEC. 336. The same person may be eligible to, and hold the office of county recorder and county treasurer; provided, the number of inhabitants in such county does not exceed ten thousand.

Treasurer eligible. C. 129, § 8, 10 G. A.

(CHAPTER 40, LAWS OF 1880.)

AN ACT extending the right to hold the office of county recorder to women.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That no person shall be disqualified for holding the office of county recorder on account of sex.*
Approved March 12, 1880.

Sex does not disqualify.

* In the case of Huff v. Cook, 44 Iowa, 639, it was held that there is no constitutional inhibition upon the right of a woman to hold the office of county superintendent of schools. The case was an appeal from Warren circuit court, wherein the plaintiff was contesting the right of a woman to hold that office to which she had been duly elected. While this case was pending in the supreme court on appeal, the sixteenth general assembly passed an act as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. That no person shall be deemed ineligible by reason of sex, to any school office in the state.

SEC. 2. No person who may have been or shall be elected or appointed to the office of county superintendent of common schools, or school director in the state of Iowa, shall be deprived of office by reason of sex."

It will be observed that neither by this act nor by chapter 40 of the laws of 1880 does the legislature undertake to confer upon woman the right to hold these offices, probably for the reason that the right exists without legislation.

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE SHERIFF.

Duties.
R. § 383.

SECTION 337. The sheriff shall, by himself or his deputies, execute according to law, and return all writs and other legal process issued by lawful authority and to him directed or committed, and shall perform such other duties as may be required of him by law.^u Disobedience.

R. § 384.

SEC. 338. His disobedience of the command of any such process is a contempt of the court from which it issued, and may be punished by the same accordingly, and he is further liable to the action of any person injured thereby.

Jail, charge of.
R. § 385.

SEC. 339. He has the charge and custody of the jail or other prison of his county, and of the prisoners in the same, and is required to receive those lawfully committed, and to keep them himself, or by his deputy or jailor, until discharged by law.^v

the peace.
R. § 386.

SEC. 340. The sheriff and his deputies are conservators of the peace, and to keep the same, or to prevent crime, or to arrest any person liable thereto, or to execute process of law, may call any person to their aid, and, when necessary, the sheriff may summon the power of the county.

Attend courts.
R. § 387.

SEC. 341. The sheriff shall attend upon the district and circuit courts of his county, and while either remains in session he shall be allowed the assistance of such number of bailiffs as either may direct. They shall be appointed by the sheriff, and shall be regarded as deputy sheriffs, for whose acts the sheriff shall be responsible.

counsel.
R. § 388.

SEC. 342. No sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, or constable, shall appear in any court as attorney or counsel for any party, nor make any writing or process to commence, or to be in any manner used in the same, and such writing or process made by any of them shall be rejected.

^u The deputy acts in place of the sheriff, and the special constables mentioned in section 341 are to assist the sheriff in the discharge of his duties at and during the sessions of the court, which includes the service of process issued during the session in the transaction of the business of court. The State v. Arthur, 39 Iowa, 631, 633.

A deputy sheriff has the same power as his principal to administer an oath to a garnishee, when directed so to do by the plaintiff, under an attachment or execution. Conable & Smith v. Hylton, 10 Iowa, 593.

A sheriff and his sureties are liable on his official bond for trespasses committed by him in attempting to discharge his official duties. Charles v. Haskins et al., 11 Id., 329.

For a failure of a deputy sheriff to pay over money collected by him on execution, the action should be brought against the sheriff and the sureties on his official bond, and not against the deputy. Brayton v. Town et al., 12 Id., 347.

A judgment obtained against a sheriff for malfeasance in office is assignable, and the assignee may sue thereon in his own name. Charles v. Haskins et al., 11 Id., 329.

The determination upon the merits of issues joined on the allegations of a bill filed by a judgment debtor against a sheriff and a purchaser of certain real property sold at judicial sale to satisfy the judgment, is binding as a prior adjudication of such issues, upon the debtor, the creditor and those claiming through them. Campbell v. Ayres et al., 13 Id., 252.

A judgment against the sheriff on his official bond is prima facie evidence against his sureties. The sureties may show fraud or collusion in obtaining the judgment against their principal, or a mistake in the amount of the judgment, or that it has been paid; but they cannot go behind the judgment, and re-litigate the question already determined. Charles v. Haskins, 14 Id., 471.

^v A sheriff is not entitled to additional compensation for personal attention rendered to prisoners in the jail beyond payment for their board. The fees and salary of the officer include compensation for such services. Grubb v. Louisa County, 40 Iowa, 314.

SEC. 343. No sheriff, deputy-sheriff, coroner, or constable, shall become the purchaser, either directly or indirectly, of any property by him exposed to sale under any process of law, and every such purchase is absolutely void. Purchase void.
R. § 389.

SEC. 344. Sheriffs and their deputies may execute any process which may be in their hands at the expiration of their office, and, in case of a vacancy occurring in the office of sheriff from any cause, his deputies shall be under the same obligation to execute legal process then in his or their hands, and to return the same, as if the sheriff had continued in office, and he and they will remain liable therefor under the provisions of law as in other cases. Execute process - when out of office.
R. § 390.

SEC. 345. Where a sheriff goes out of office, he shall deliver to his successor all books and papers pertaining to the office, and property attached and levied upon, except as provided in the preceding section, and all prisoners in the jail, and take his receipt specifying the same, and such receipt shall be sufficient indemnity to the person taking it. Deliver to successor.
R. § 391.

SEC. 346. If the sheriff die or go out of office before the return of any process then in his hands, his successor, or other officer authorized to discharge the duties of the office, may proceed to execute and return the same in the same manner as the out-going sheriff should have done, but nothing in this section shall be construed to exempt the out-going sheriff and his deputies from the duty imposed on them by section three hundred and thirty-seven of this chapter, to execute and return all process in their hands at the time the vacancy in the office of sheriff occurs. Successor may serve.
R. § 3264.

SEC. 347. On the election or appointment of a new sheriff all new process shall be directed to him. Same.
R. § 392.

SEC. 348. If the sheriff, who has made a sale of real estate on execution, die, or go out of office before the period of redemption expires, his successor shall make the necessary deed to carry out such sale. Same.

CHAPTER 7.

OF THE CORONER.

SECTION 349. It is the duty of the coroner to perform all the duties of the sheriff when there is no sheriff, and in cases where exception is taken to the sheriff as provided in the next section.* Duties.
R. § 393.

SEC. 350. In all proceedings in the courts of record, where it appears from the papers that the sheriff is a party to the action; or where, in any action commenced or about to be commenced, an affidavit is filed with the clerk of the court, stating that the sheriff and his deputy are absent from the county, and are not expected to return in time to perform the service needed; or stating a partiality, prejudice, consanguinity or interest on the part of the sheriff, the clerk or court shall Serve process.
R. § 394.

* The failure of the outgoing sheriff to take a receipt from his successor for property turned over to him, would not, necessarily, continue his liability for the keeping of the property. If the property is actually delivered to his successor, it is sufficient to devolve the responsibility on the latter. McKay v. Leonard, 17 Iowa, 569. And so an offer on the part of a sheriff, on the expiration of his term of office, to deliver attached property to his successor discharges the former from future responsibility for the safe keeping of the property attached, and devolves this duty upon his successor. Fockler v. Martin et al., 32 Id., 117.

* The sureties on the official bond of the coroner are liable for his acts while he is acting ex officio as sheriff. Fieman v. Shaw, 49 Iowa, 312.

direct process to the coroner, whose duty it shall be to execute it in the same manner as if he were sheriff.*

Same.
R. § 395.

SEC. 351. When there is no sheriff, deputy sheriff, or coroner qualified to serve legal process, the clerk of the court may, by writing under his hand and the seal of the court certifying the above fact, appoint any suitable person specially in each case to execute such process, who shall be sworn, but he need not give bond, and his return shall be entitled to the same credit as the sheriff's when the appointment is attached thereto.

Inquest.
R. § 396.

SEC. 352. The coroner shall hold an inquest upon the dead bodies of such persons only as are supposed to have died by unlawful means. When he has notice of the dead body of a person supposed to have died by unlawful means, found or being in his county, he is required to issue his warrant to a constable of his county, requiring him to summon forthwith three electors of the county to appear before the coroner at a time and place named in the warrant.

Warrant.
R. § 397.

SEC. 353. The warrant may be in substance as follows:

STATE OF IOWA, }
.....County. }

To any constable of the said county:—In the name of the state of Iowa you are hereby required to summon forthwith three electors of your county, to appear before me at (name the place), at (name the day and hour or say forthwith), then and there to hold an inquest upon the dead body of ———, there lying, and find by what means he died.

Witness my hand this ——— day of ———, A. D. 18—.

A. B., coroner of ——— county.

Service.
R. § 398.

SEC. 354. The constable shall execute the warrant, and make return thereof at the time and place named.

Jurors.
R. § 399.

SEC. 355. If any juror fails to appear, the coroner shall cause the proper number to be summoned or returned from the bystanders, immediately, and proceed to impanel them and administer the following oath in substance:

“You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will diligently inquire, and true presentment make, when, how, and by what means the person whose body lies here dead came to his death, according to your knowledge and the evidence given you.”

Subpoenas: contempt.
R. § 400.

SEC. 356. The coroner may issue subpoenas within his county for witnesses, returnable forthwith, or at such time and place as he shall therein direct, and witnesses shall be allowed the same fees as in cases before a justice of the peace, and the coroner has the same authority to enforce the attendance of witnesses, and to punish them and jurors for contempt in disobeying his process, as a justice of the peace has when his process issues in behalf of the state.

Oath.
R. § 401.

SEC. 357. An oath shall be administered to the witnesses in substance as follows:

“You do solemnly swear that the testimony which you shall give to this inquest concerning the death of the person here lying dead, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.”

* This section applies to criminal as well as civil cases. Accordingly, when the accused shall file an affidavit to the effect that, by reason of partiality or prejudice, he believes the sheriff will not act fairly in the selection of talesmen, the duty of filling up the jury should be taken by the court from the sheriff. The State v. Hardin et al., 46 Iowa, 623.

SEC. 358. The testimony shall be reduced to writing under the coroner's order, and subscribed by the witnesses.

Testimony.
R. § 402.

SEC. 359. The jurors having inspected the body, heard the testimony, and made all needful inquiries, shall return to the coroner their inquisition in writing, under their hands in substance as follows, and stating the matters in the following form suggested, as far as found:

Verdict.
R. § 403.

STATE OF IOWA, }
..... County. }

An inquisition holden at....., incounty, on the day of A. D. 18.., before....., coroner of the said county, upon the body of (or a person unknown), there lying dead, by the jurors whose names are hereto subscribed. The said jurors upon their oaths do say (here state when, how, by what person, means, weapon, or accident, he came to his death, or whether feloniously).

In testimony whereof the said jurors have hereunto set their hands, the day and year aforesaid:

SEC. 360. If the inquisition find that a crime has been committed on the deceased, and name the person whom the jury believe has committed it, the inquest shall not be made public until after the arrest directed in the next section.

Kept secret.
R. § 404.

SEC. 361. If the person charged be present, the coroner may order his arrest by an officer or any other person present, and shall then make a warrant requiring the officer or other person to take him before a justice of the peace.

Arrest.
R. § 405.

SEC. 362. If the person charged be not present, and the coroner believes he can be taken, the coroner may issue a warrant to the sheriff and constables of the county, requiring them to arrest the person and take him before a justice of the peace.

Warrant.
R. § 406.

SEC. 363. The warrant of a coroner in the above case shall be of equal authority with that of a justice of the peace, and when the person charged is brought before the justice, such justice shall cause an information to be filed against him, and the same proceedings shall be had as in other cases under information, and he shall be dealt with as a person held under an information in the usual form.

Same.
R. § 407.

SEC. 364. The warrant of the coroner shall recite substantially the transactions before him, and the verdict of the jury of inquest leading to the arrest, and such warrant shall be a sufficient foundation for the proceeding of the justice instead of an information.

SEC. 366. The coroner shall cause the body of a deceased person which he is called to view, to be delivered to his friends if any there be, but if not, he shall cause him to be decently buried and the expense to be paid from any property found with the body, or, if there be none, from the county treasury, by certifying an account of the expenses which, being presented to the board of supervisors, shall be allowed by them, if deemed reasonable, and paid as other claims on the county.

Title. AN ACT to further amend section 591, chapter one (1), title five (5) of the Code, relating to the election of township officers.

Township clerk, assessor and road supervisor elected at general election biennially. SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That at the general election in the year 1880, and biennially thereafter, there shall be elected in each civil township of the state by the qualified electors thereof in the manner prescribed by law, one township clerk, one assessor, and one highway supervisor for each

* To support the acts of one on the ground that he is an officer de facto, they must have been done under color of the office, the duties of which should have been discharged by the person filling it. Barley v. Fisher, 38 Iowa, 229.

If one holds himself out as a public officer, or acts as an officer de facto, he is estopped to deny that he was an officer de jure, even when indicted for malfeasance. The State v. Stone, 40 Id., 547.

All acts of public officers are to be regarded as prima facie correct; and when an act has been shown to have been done by an officer pursuant to law, it will be deemed lawful and valid until the contrary be established by affirmative proof. Smith v. The District Township of Knox, 42 Id., 522.

Until the contrary is shown it will be presumed that public officers have acted in compliance with the law. Spittler v. Scofield, 43 Id., 571; Brown v. Lamb, 4 G. Greene, 465; Barney v. Buena Vista County, 33 Id., 261; Dollarhide v. The Board of Commissioners, 1 G. Greene, 158; Cole v. Porter, 4 Id., 510; McGuffie v. Dervine, 1 G. Greene, 251; Barney v. Crittenden, 2 Iowa, 165; Neally v. Redman, 5 Id., 387.

In relation to officers, civil and municipal, when the question arises between third parties, parol evidence is admissible to show that they were officers at a given time, and perhaps to show that they acted as such. Gourley v. Hankins, 2 Id., 75.

As between third persons, when the question arises whether a person in doing an act was an officer, it is sufficient to show him to be such de facto; and it is not required of the person claiming or justifying under the act of the officer, to show that he is such, by the highest and best evidence. This, however, is required when the officer himself is a party, and he justifies, or claims, by virtue of his office. Id.

A usurper is one who intrudes himself into or undertakes to exercise the duties of an office without any claim or color of right or authority.

An officer de jure, is one who has a complete legal title to his office against the world; and an officer de facto, is one who comes in by the forms of an election or appointment, and who thus acts under claim or color of right, but who, in consequence of some informality, omission or want of qualification, could not hold the office, if his right were tried in a direct proceeding, by an information in the nature of a quo warranto Ex parte Stahl, 16 Id., 369.

There is a clear distinction between an act done by an officer by virtue of his office, and an act done by color of his office. The first implies that it is lawful, either by the common law or highway district, who shall hold their offices for the term of two years and until their successors are elected and qualified.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed. Repealing clause.

Approved March 26, 1880.

AN ACT for the protection of cemeteries in the state of Iowa.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the trustees, board of directors, or other officers, having the custody and control of any cemetery in this state, shall have power, subject to the by-laws and regulations of said cemetery, to inclose, improve and adorn the grounds of such cemetery, to construct avenues in the same, to erect proper buildings for the use of said cemetery, to prescribe rules for improving or adorning the lots therein, or for the erection of monuments or other memorials of the dead upon such lots; to prohibit any use, division, improvement or adornment of a lot which they may deem improper.

Officers in control may improve, subject to by-laws.

SEC. 2. Any person who shall willfully and maliciously destroy, mutilate, deface, injure or remove any tomb, vault, monument, gravestone or other structure placed in any public or private cemetery in this state, or any fences, railing or other work for the protection or ornamentation of said cemetery, or of any tomb, vault, monument, tinues to act without filing a new bond or taking the official oath anew, is an officer de facto, and is competent to make arrests. The State v. Bates, 23 Id., 96.

Before one can claim to be an officer de facto, there must be a law creating the office. The office itself must be de jure; the officer may then be de facto. The Town of Decorah v. Bullis, 25 Id., 12.

A public officer duly elected or appointed, but who has failed to qualify, in the manner prescribed by law, acts de facto, and his acts as to third persons are entitled to credit. Keeny v. Lees & Lyon, 14 Id., 464.

As an action against a justice of the peace for false imprisonment, evidence on the part of the defendant that he was and had been acting as a justice of the peace de facto is admissible, and when given it will be presumed that he has been duly appointed to the office until the contrary shall appear. Londegan v. Hammer, 30 Id., 508.

While, for some purposes, a constable is considered a county officer, he is nevertheless generally classed as a township officer. The State v. Bevans, 37, Id., 178.

When an assessor has filed an official bond and taken the oath of office he is an officer de facto, and a party refusing to take the required oath in the assessment of his property, cannot escape liability by showing that the bond was informal, or any other mere irregularity in qualifying. Washington County v. Miller, 14 Id., 584.

Courts will take judicial notice of the time of elections established by law. Davis et al. v. Best, 2 Id., 96.

The official acts of an alderman de facto, of a city, will be held valid in collateral proceedings. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Id., 75.

In this country all offices are public, except such as, though called offices, are nevertheless employments of a private nature, like the offices of a bank or other private corporation. Keeney v. Lees & Lyon, 14 Id., 464.

A constable who has been re-elected and con-

Incompatibility in offices exists where the nature and duties of the two offices are such as to render it improper, from considerations of public policy, for one incumbent to retain both. It does not necessarily arise when the incumbent places himself for the time being in a position where it is impossible to discharge the duties of both offices. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Id., 538.

Also liable to action of trespass.

Trustees may appoint watchmen.

SEC. 3. It shall be lawful for the trustees, directors, or other officers having the custody and control of any cemetery in this state, to appoint as many day and night watchmen of their grounds as they may think expedient, and such watchmen, and also all their sextons, superintendents, gardeners and agents, stationed upon or near said grounds, are hereby authorized to take and subscribe before any mayor of a city, or justice of the peace of the township where such cemetery is situated, an oath of office similar to that required by law of constables, and upon the taking of such oath such watchmen, sextons, superintendents, gardeners, and agents, shall have, exercise and possess all the powers of police officers within and adjacent to the cemetery grounds, and they and each of them shall have power to arrest any and all persons engaged in violating the laws of this state in reference to the protection, care and preservation of cemeteries, and of the trees, shrubbery, plants, structures, grass and adornments therein, and to bring such person so offending before any justice of the peace within such township to be dealt with according to law.

In any such proceeding, where the court trying the same shall be satisfied that the work has been done, or materials furnished, which, according to the intent of the act, would be properly chargeable upon the lot or land through or by which the street, alley or highway improved, repaired, or lighted, may pass, a recovery shall be permitted, or a charge enforced, to the extent of the proper proportion of the value of the work or materials which would be chargeable on such lot or land, notwithstanding any informality, irregularity, or defect in any such municipal corporation or any of its officers. But in such case the court may adjudge as to costs as may be deemed proper, and in cases where an assessment shall have been regularly made, and payment shall have been neglected or refused at the time when the same was required, any municipal corporation may be entitled to demand and recover, in addition to the amount assessed and interest thereon at ten per cent from the time of the assessment, five per cent to defray the expenses of collection, which shall be included in any judgment or decree which may be rendered. The provisions and powers conferred in this chapter from section four hundred and sixty-five to section four hundred and seventy-nine, inclusive, shall apply to cities acting under special charters.^u

Preceding fifteen sections to apply to cities acting under special charters.

^t Under this section the corporation may institute but one suit against all the owners of lots against which an assessment was made for the construction of sidewalks; but the court may, in its discretion, compel the plaintiff to sever and file a separate petition against each defendant. The proceedings in cases of this character are governed by this and the next section. City of Des Moines v. Stephenson, 19 Iowa, 507.

This section (478) making the liability for a special tax a lien upon the property of the abutting owner, is not in conflict with the constitution. The City of Burlington v. Quick, 47 Id., 222.

In McInerney v. Reed, 23 Iowa, 410, it was held that the power to levy and collect a special tax, given in a city charter, does not carry with it the power to collect such tax by a sale of the property upon which it is assessed. The collection of such tax is effected in a court of equity.

It was also held in the same case that such special tax was not assignable so as to enable the person claiming as assignee thereof, to enforce its collection.

It was further held in Morrison v. Hershire, 32 Iowa, 271, that a municipal corporation, organized under the general incorporation law, had authority under the general law as amended by chapter 14, of the acts of the 13th general assembly, to certify special assessments or taxes levied upon lots for the purpose of street improvements abutting thereon, to the county auditor, to be collected and paid over by the treasurer the same as other taxes are; and that to this end the treasurer is empowered in case of non-payment to sell the lots on which the assessments are made, the same as other property is sold for the non-payment of taxes.

^u The last clause of this section making sections 465 to section 479 inclusive, applicable to cities acting under special charters, is new, and was not a part of section 1069 of the Revision. It was held under that section that a city organized under a special charter, could not recover from the owners of lots the costs of improvements of adjacent streets, "notwithstanding any irregularity or defect in the proceedings" under which the work was ordered. Starr v. City of Burlington, 45 Iowa, 87.

It was further held in that case, that this provision was not retro-active so as to apply to proceedings for improvements ordered or contracts for work entered into prior to the taking effect of the code of 1873.

It is competent for a city, when not inconsistent with its charter, to prescribe by ordinance the steps to be taken in order to acquire jurisdiction over particular subjects. If these steps are not taken when the requirements of the ordinance are mandatory, the act of the city in an attempt to exercise authority is void. Ibid. See also City of Dubuque v. Wooton, 28 Iowa, 571.

SEC. 482. Municipal corporations shall have power to make and publish, from time to time, ordinances, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, for carrying into effect or discharging the powers and duties conferred by this chapter, and such as shall seem necessary and proper to provide for the safety, preserve the health, promote the prosperity, improve the morals, order, comfort, and convenience of such corporation and the inhabitants thereof and to enforce obedience to such ordinances by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.†

shall be ordered by resolution describing the streets and improvements, and that notice shall be given by publication of the resolution, is not directory but mandatory. Ibid.

Where the proceedings for the levy of the assessment of a special tax for street improvements are void for want of jurisdiction, the property owner is not estopped to deny their validity, by the fact that he made no objection, while the improvement was in progress. Ibid.

* It was held in Morrison v. Hershire, 32 Iowa, 271, that chapter 65, of the laws of 1870, was not intended as a limitation upon the power conferred by chapter 51, of the revision, as to the manner of levying a special tax for street improvements, and that the assessment and levy might lawfully be made under authority of a resolution of the city council as well as by an ordinance.

A city may, by resolution of its council, require the owners of lots within its limits, upon which water becomes stagnant, to fill the same, and a publication of the resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the corporation is sufficient notice of the resolution to enable the city to recover for filling up the lots, in case the owner fails to do it, in a personal action against him therefor. The City of Independence v. Purdy, 46 Id., 202.

† The reorganization of a city government under the general incorporation law, does not have the effect to repeal an ordinance lawfully enacted under a former charter, making the council the tribunal for the trial of contested municipal elections. Ex parte Stahl, 16 Iowa, 369.

The revocation by a municipal corporation of a license to sell intoxicating liquors upon certain specified conditions, a violation of which, according to the express terms of the license, should have the effect to revoke it, is not a forfeiture beyond the powers of the corporation. *Harber v. The general assembly may delegate to municipal corporations the power to enact ordinances, which, when authorized, have within the corporate limits the force and effect of laws passed by the state legislature. Des Moines Gas Co. v. City of Des Moines, 44 Iowa, 505.

That a city has passed an ordinance professing to give to a gas company an exclusive right to lay pipes through its streets and light the same for a specified compensation, does not deprive it of the right to charter another gas company before the first franchise shall have expired, conferring upon it similar rights and privileges, and such rights cannot be restrained by injunction. Ibid.

* It was held in *Burke v. This defect is obviated in the section as it now stands.

OF CITIES.

SEC. 517. The corporate authority of cities organized under this chapter, shall be vested in a mayor and a board to be denominated the city council, together with such officers as are in this chapter mentioned, or may be created under its authority.*

Corporate authority: in whom vested. R. § 1090.

* A municipal corporation possesses and can exercise the following powers, and none others: 1. Those granted in express words; 2. Those necessarily implied, or necessarily incident to the powers expressly granted; 3. Those absolutely essential to the declared objects and purposes of the corporation—and not simply convenient, but not indispensable; and any fair doubt as to the existence of a power will be resolved by the courts against the corporation and the existence of the power. Ham v. Miller, 20 Iowa, 450, 453; Merriam v. Moody's Executors, 25 Id., 163; The State v. Smith, 31 Id., 493; Logan & Sons v. Payne, 43 Id., 524; Carter v. The City of Dubuque, 35 Id., 416; The City of Keokuk v. Scroggs, 39 Id., 477.

The power is to be strictly construed and closely pursued. The City of Burlington v. Keller, 18 Id., 59.

Municipal corporations have and can exercise only such powers as are expressly granted, and such as are incidental and necessary to make the granted powers available, and are essential to effectuate the purposes of the corporation, and these powers are to be strictly construed. Clark v. The City of Des Moines, 19 Id., 199.

A municipal corporation may set up the plea of ultra vires, or its own want of power or authority under the law or its charter to enter into a given contract, or to do a given act in excess of its corporate power. Id.

When the officers of a city have no express power to issue for ordinary, current expenses or debts, negotiable paper which shall be free from equities in the hands of purchasers, and is not necessary as an incident to those granted, or to carry out the purposes and objects of the corporation, it cannot be held to exist by implication. Id.

The power to borrow money, conferred upon a corporation, does not authorize the loan of the credit of the city. And if bonds are issued by a municipal corporation which show upon their face the authority under which they are executed, and such authority is insufficient, they are void even in the hands of third parties. Chamberlain v. The City of Burlington, 19 Id., 398.

The powers of municipal corporations are created only by positive enactment, and any act done in the exercise of a power not thus created,

Vacancy in office of mayor: powers enumerated.
R. § 1091.

SEC. 518. The mayor shall be elected biennially in cities of the first class, and annually in cities of the second class, by the qualified voters of the city. He shall be a qualified elector and reside within the limits of the city, and shall hold his office for the term for which he shall have been elected and qualified. He shall keep an office at some convenient place in the city, to be provided by the council, and shall keep the corporate seal of the city in his charge; [he shall act as president of the city council;] he shall sign all commissions, licenses, and permits granted by the authority of the city council, and such other acts as by the law or ordinances may require his certificate.^o

SEC. 519. In case of the mayor's death, disability, resignation, or other vacation of his office, the city council shall order a special election, as soon as practicable, to fill the vacancy for the remainder of the time of office, and may appoint some qualified elector to act as mayor until such special election. The mayor of the city shall be its chief executive officer and conservator of the peace, and it shall be his special duty to cause the ordinances and the regulations of the city to be faithfully and constantly obeyed; he shall supervise the conduct of all the officers of the city, examine the grounds of all reasonable comis of no validity. McPherson v. Foster Bros., 43 Id., 48.

The attempted exercise of powers not conferred, is equally illegal with the exercise of a prohibited power. Id.

The subsequent recognition by a municipal corporation of acts done in the exercise of a prohibited power will not estop the corporation to afterward deny the validity of the acts. Id.

The general assembly may delegate to municipal corporations the power to enact ordinances which, when authorized, have within the corporate limits the force and effect of laws enacted by the state legislature. The Des Moines Gas Company v. The City of Des Moines, 44 Id., 505.

Municipal corporations are the creatures of the legislature, and can acquire no rights in antagonism to those of their creator. They can possess no vested right to an uncollected tax, authorized by a general law and for a general purpose, which shall deprive the legislature of the right to alter and repeal the general law, thereby defeating the collection of the tax. With respect to private corporations the rule is otherwise, but the doctrine of exemption from legislative authority should not be extended. Per COLE, J., in The City of Dubuque v. The Ill. Central R'y Co., 39 Id., 56.

Although a municipal corporation may be divested of its corporate powers, and they are in no sense, vested rights as against the state, yet it may not be lawfully deprived of its right to collect taxes, which have been legally levied, because, 1. A municipal corporation has a private character in which it may acquire property and make contracts; 2. There is no such distinction as public rights and private rights, the same rights being common to both corporations and natural persons. Corporations, however, may be clothed with powers which cannot be conferred upon the natural person, and these may be abrogated, while rights cannot; 3. While the legislature can control the corporate property, its power is limited in this respect, to the purposes for which the city exists; 4. A release of municipal taxes, which have already been levied, by a statute which provides for a different kind of taxation, is not a commutation of taxes within legislative authority. Per BECK, J., in The City of Dubuque v. The Ills. Cent. R'y Co., 39 Id., 56.

The term "municipal corporations" includes, and especially refers to cities, towns, counties, school districts, etc. Hull et al. v. Marshall County, 11 Id., 142; The State, etc., v. Wapello County, 13 Id., 389; Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. Carroll County, 37 Id., 152.

A municipal corporation, having authority to hold and dispose of lands granted to it, possesses the incidental power, the same as individuals, to do, through its proper officers, whatever in their judgment may be necessary to preserve and perfect its interests in and title to the same. Allen v. Cerro Gordo County, 34 Id., 54.

It is a well settled principle that a municipal corporation cannot exercise the power or right of taxation, unless such power is expressly given to it by the legislature. Clarke, Dodge & Co. v. The City of Davenport, 14 Id., 494; The State v. Smith, 31 Id., 493.

No property can lawfully be taxed until the legislature authorizes and requires it to be done, and when the act requires it to be done in a particular way, that way alone can be pursued. The City of Davenport v. The M. & M. R. Co., 12 Id., 539.

SEC. 520. [The numbers, divisions, and boundaries of the several wards of all cities heretofore incorporated, shall remain as fixed when this code goes into operation, until changed by the city council. Said council may, at any time, create new wards, or alter those now established, or the boundaries thereof, as may be deemed expedient; but in cities of the second class the number of wards now existing shall not be increased to a greater number than seven, nor decreased to a less number than three.]

SEC. 521. [In cities of the second class the qualified electors of each ward shall, on the first Monday of March of each year, elect by a plurality of votes one member of the city council, who shall at the time be a resident of the ward and a qualified elector therein. His term of office shall be two years, so that there may always be in the council two members from the same ward whose time of office shall expire in different years; but at the first election held on the organization of a new city government under this chapter, two members of the city council shall be elected in each ward, and the city council shall determine by lot their time of service, so that one trustee from each ward may serve for two years, and one for one year. In cities of the first class, the qualified electors of each ward shall, on the first Monday of March of the year 1878, and each second year thereafter, elect, by a plurality of votes, one member of the city council, who shall at the time be a resident of the ward and a qualified elector thereof. And in each of the same years the qualified electors of cities of this class shall also elect two members at large of such city council, each of whom shall be a resident and qualified elector of the city in which he will be so elected. The members of said council shall hold their offices for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified. As soon as the members of the city council of cities of the first class elected at the first election after the passage of this act, shall have been qualified, the term of office of all members whose terms would not otherwise expire until the first Monday in March, 1879, shall at once cease and determine. Provided, that when any city of the first class numbers within its corporate limits the whole or parts of two or more different townships, that only one of the aldermen at large herein provided for shall be elected from any one of such township[s] or part of townships.]

SEC. 522. The members elected for each city shall, on the second Monday after their election, assemble together and organize the city council. A majority of the whole number of members shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, for the transaction of business; they shall be judges of the election returns and qualifications of their own members; they shall determine the rule of their own proceedings and keep a journal thereof, which shall be open to the inspection and examination of any citizen; they may compel the attendance of absent mem-

OF PLATS.

SECTION 559. Every original owner or proprietor of any tract or parcel of land, who has heretofore subdivided, or shall hereafter subdivide the same into three or more parts for the purpose of laying out any town or city, or any addition thereto or any part thereof, or suburban lots, shall cause a plat of such subdivision, with references to known or permanent monuments, to be made, which shall accurately describe all the subdivisions of such tract or parcel of land, numbering the same by progressive numbers, and giving the dimensions and length and breadth thereof, and the breadth and courses of all the streets and alleys established therein. Descriptions of lots or parcels of land in such subdivisions, according to the number and designation thereof on said plat contained, in conveyances or for the purposes of taxation, shall be deemed good and valid for all intents and purposes. The duty to file for record a plat as provided herein, shall attach as a covenant of warranty in all conveyances of any part or parcel of such subdivision by the original owner or proprietors against any and all assessments, costs, and damages paid, lost, or incurred by any grantee, or person claiming under him, in consequence of the omission on the part of said owner or proprietors to file such plat.^a

SEC. 560. Every such plat shall contain a statement, to the effect that the above or foregoing subdivision of (here insert a correct description of the land or parcel subdivided), as appears on this plat, is with the free consent and in accordance with the desire of the undersigned owners and proprietors, which shall be signed by the owners and proprietors, and shall be duly acknowledged before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgment of deeds; and when thus executed and acknowledged, said plat shall be filed for record and recorded in the office of the recorder of the proper county.

SEC. 561. The acknowledgment and recording of such plat, is equivalent to a deed in fee simple of such portion of the premises platted as is on such plat set apart for streets or other public use; or as is thereon dedicated to charitable, religious, or educational purposes.^b

SEC. 562. Streets and alleys so platted and laid out, or which have been platted or laid out under any prior law of this state regulating private plats, may be altered or vacated in the manner provided by law for the alteration or discontinuance of highways.

SEC. 563. Any such plat may be vacated by the proprietors thereof, at any time before the sale of any lots therein, by a written instrument declaring the same to be vacated, duly executed, acknowledged, or proved and recorded in the same office with the plat to be vacated; and the execution and recording of such writing shall operate to destroy the force and effect of the recording of the plat so vacated, and to divest all public rights in the streets, alleys, commons, and public grounds laid out or described in such plat. And in cases where any lots have been sold, the plat may be vacated, as herein provided, by all the owners of lots in such plat joining in the execution of the writing aforesaid.^c

^a When a town is properly platted, certified, acknowledged and recorded, such acts amount to a conveyance of the streets, alleys, public squares, commons, etc., to, and vest the title in, the corporation or public, for the uses specified and intended, and the corporation or public is capable of taking and holding the title for such uses and trusts. The City of Pella v. Scholte, 21 Iowa, 463. See also Fisher v. Beard, 40 Id., 625. See also Dubuque v. Benson, 23 Id., 248.

In The City of Des Moines v. Hall, 24 Iowa, 234, it was held that where the proprietor caused land adjoining a city to be platted into blocks and lots with streets and alleys, as an addition to the city in conformity with chapter 41 of the code of 1851, that an entry upon the plat that the streets and alleys marked thereon were conveyed to the county within which the city was situated was ineffectual to deprive the latter, or to confer upon the former any rights in or control over such streets and alleys. The city had the sole right of control over the same.

The laying off and recording a town plat or addition thereto under that section of the code of 1851 had the effect to vest in the corporation the fee simple title to and exclusive dominion over the streets and alleys dedicated to public use. Id.

^b When a town is laid out with a street running parallel with a navigable river, and a narrow strip of land between the street and river is not embraced in the plat of the town, it will not be presumed that it was dedicated to public use as a front or water street for the town. Cowles v. Gray, 14 Iowa, 1. See Yost v. Leonard, 34 Id., 1, as to intersection of streets.

^c What effect such vacation will have on private rights, see Deeds v. Sanborn, 26 Iowa, 419.

SEC. 564. Any part of a plat may be vacated under the provisions and subject to the conditions of this chapter, provided such vacating does not abridge or destroy any of the rights and privileges of other proprietors in said plat, and provided further, that nothing contained in this section shall authorize the closing or obstructing of any public highways laid out according to law.

Not vacated when it affects the rights of others. Same, § 2.

SEC. 565. When any part of a plat shall be vacated as aforesaid, the proprietors of the lots so vacated may enclose the streets, alleys, and public grounds adjoining said lots in equal proportions.

Streets enclosed. Same, § 3.

SEC. 566. The county recorder, in whose office the plats aforesaid are recorded, shall write in plain, legible letters across that part of said plat so vacated, the word "vacated," and also make a reference on the same to the volume and page in which the said instrument of vacation is recorded.

Recorder's duty when vacated. Same, § 4.

SEC. 567. The owner of any lots in a plat so vacated, may cause the same and a proportionate part of adjacent streets and public grounds, to be platted and numbered by the county surveyor; and when such plat is acknowledged by such owner, and is recorded in the record office of the county, such lots may be conveyed and assessed by the numbers given them on such plat.

Plats vacated may be re-platted and conveyed accordingly. Same, § 5.

SEC. 568. Whenever the original owner or proprietor of any subdivision of land, as contemplated in section five hundred and fifty-nine of this chapter, have sold or conveyed any part thereof, or invested the public with any rights therein, and have failed and neglected to execute and file for record a plat as provided in section five hundred and fifty-nine of this chapter, the county auditor shall notify some, or all, of such owners and proprietors by mail or otherwise, and demand the execution of said plat as provided; and if such owners or proprietors, whether so notified or not, fail and neglect to execute and file for record said plat for thirty days after the issuance of such notice, the auditor shall cause to be made the plat of such subdivision and any surveying necessary therefor. Said plat shall be signed and acknowledged by the auditor, who shall certify that he executed by reason of the failure of the owners or proprietors named to do so, and filed for record; and, when so filed for record, shall have the same effect for all purposes as if executed, acknowledged, and recorded by the owners or proprietors themselves. A correct statement of the costs and expenses of such plat, surveying, and recording, verified by oath, shall be by the auditor laid before the first session of the board of supervisors, who shall allow the same, and order the same to be paid out of the county treasury, and who shall, at the same time, assess the said amount, pro rata, upon all the several subdivisions of said tract, lot, or parcel so subdivided; and said assessment shall be collected with and in like manner as the general taxes, and shall go to the general county fund; or said board may direct suit to be brought in the name of the county before any court having jurisdiction, to recover of the said original owners or proprietors, or either of them, the said cost and expense of procuring and recording said plat.

SEC. 569. Whenever any congressional subdivision of land of forty acres or less, or any lot or subdivision is owned by two or more persons in severalty, and the description of one or more of the different parts or parcels thereof can not, in the judgment of the county auditor, be made sufficiently certain and accurate, for the purposes of assessment and taxation without noting the metes and bounds of the same, the auditor shall require and cause to be made and recorded, a Conveyance deemed warranty.	SEC. 570. Every conveyance of land in this state, shall be deemed to be a warranty that the description therein contained is sufficiently definite and accurate to enable the auditor to enter the same on the plat book required by law to be kept; and when there is presented to be entered on the transfer book, any conveyance in which the description is not, in the opinion of the auditor, sufficiently definite and accurate, he shall note said fact on said deed with that of the entry for transfer, and shall notify the person presenting the same that the land therein not sufficiently described must be platted within thirty days thereafter. Any person aggrieved by the opinion of the auditor, may, within said thirty days, appeal therefrom to the board of supervisors, by claiming said appeal in writing, and thereupon no further proceeding shall be taken by the auditor, and at their next session the board of supervisors shall determine said question and direct whether or not said plat shall be executed and filed and within what time; and if the grantor in such conveyance shall neglect for thirty days thereafter to file for record a plat of said land and of the appropriate congressional subdivision in which the same is found, duly executed and acknowledged as required by the auditor, or in case of appeal as directed by the board of supervisors, then the auditor shall proceed as is provided in section five hundred and sixty-eight of this chapter, and cause such plat to be made and recorded, and thereupon the same proceedings shall be had and rights shall accrue, and remedies had, as are in said section provided. Such plat shall describe said tract of land and any other subdivisions of the smallest congressional subdivision of which the same is part, numbering them by progressive numbers, setting forth the courses and distances, and number of acres, and such other memoranda as are usual and proper; and descriptions of such lots or subdivisions according to the number and designation thereof on said plat shall be deemed good and sufficient for all purposes of conveyancing and taxation.

When not properly described: auditor's duty.
Appeal from auditor: how taken.
Duty of supervisors.
Auditor to have plat made and recorded.
Plat: what to contain.
Plats heretofore made, legalized.	SEC. 571. None of the provisions of this chapter shall be construed to require replatting in any case where plats have been made and recorded in pursuance of any law heretofore in force; and all plats heretofore filed for record, and not subsequently vacated, are hereby declared valid, notwithstanding irregularities and omissions in the manner or form of acknowledgment or judge's certificate; but the provisions of this section shall not affect any action or proceeding now pending.
Suits pending not affected.
Penalty where plats have not been made. R. § 1027.	SEC. 572. Any person who shall dispose of or offer for sale, or lease any lots in any town, or addition to any town or city, until the plat thereof has been duly acknowledged and recorded as provided in this chapter, shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for each lot and part of lot sold or disposed of, leased, or offered for sale. ⁴

Proceedings. R. § 630.	SEC. 748. The proceedings shall be as nearly like those in other actions at law as the nature of the case admits, excepting where otherwise provided in this chapter. ^k
Petition. R. § 631.	SEC. 749. The petition shall be by an accuser against the accused, and shall contain the charges with the necessary specifications under them and be verified by any elector.
Notice. R. § 632.	SEC. 750. It will be sufficient that the notice require the accused to appear and answer the petition of A. B. (naming the accuser), for "official misdemeanors"; but a copy of the petition must be served with the notice.
When clerk is the accused. R. § 634.	SEC. 751. If the person who holds the office of clerk of the district and circuit court is the accused in either of those capacities, his removal or suspension shall operate in both courts and the petition may be filed with the county auditor, and both he and the clerk may issue subpoenas for witnesses, and the county auditor shall deliver the papers to the judge of the district court, on its sitting.

Costs R. § 637.	SEC. 755. The accuser and the accused are liable to costs as in other actions.
Judges may suspend clerk or sheriff. R. § 639.	SEC. 756. The judges of the district and circuit courts in their respective districts shall have authority, on their own motion, to suspend from office any clerk of those courts, or sheriff of a county, for any of the causes mentioned in this chapter coming to their own knowledge, or manifestly appearing from the papers or testimony in any proceeding in court. ¹
Direct petition to be filed. R. § 640.	SEC. 757. Upon such suspension the court may direct the district attorney to file a petition in the name of the county; but it need not be verified.
Suspension certified. R. § 641.	SEC. 758. Such order of suspension shall be certified to the county auditor and be by him entered in the election book.

^k The proceeding to disbar an attorney for illegal conduct as such is analogous to the proceeding provided for in sections 746, 747 and 749. The State v. Clarke, 46 Iowa, 155, 159.

Upon the suspension of the sheriff the person whom the board of supervisors may appoint is authorized to discharge the duties of the office, and not the deputy of the suspended officer. Id.

Defalcation: suspension.
R. § 48.

SEC. 761. creased.

curity required.
R. § § 649, 650.

SEC. 772. Whenever the governor shall deem it advisable that the bonds of any state officer should be increased and the security enlarged, or a new bond given, he shall notify said officer of the fact, the amount of new or additional security to be given, and the time when the same shall be executed, which said new security shall be approved and filed as provided by law.

SEC. 773. Any officer or board who has the approval of another officer's bond, when of opinion that the public security requires it, upon giving ten days' notice to show cause to the contrary, may require him to give such additional security by a new bond, as may be deemed requisite, within a reasonable time to be prescribed.

^m Prior to the amendment of this section it has been held that the deputy sheriff cannot supply the place of the sheriff, who is required to act with the clerk or his deputy in comparing the ballots with the lists of jurors, and correcting the same if necessary. The State v. Brandt, 41 Iowa, 593. Following Dutell v. The State, 3 G. Greene, 125.

ⁿ A county officer cannot recover against the county for money paid as compensation to a deputy. The county is liable directly to the deputy, and not to the principal. Mahaska County v. Ingalls, 14 Id., 170.

But see Washington County v. Jones, 45 Id., 260, where it is held that the clerk is entitled to such additional allowance over his salary for the hire of a deputy as may be reasonable in view of the amount of labor demanded by the duties of his office.

See also Harvey v. Tama County, 46 Id., 522, in which it was held, that where the board of supervisors appointed a deputy treasurer, in pursuance of a written agreement with the treasurer that the services of such deputy should be paid for by him, and the services were rendered notwithstanding no allowance had been made by the board for their payment, the county was not liable therefor. This decision is based upon the provisions of section 771, rather than upon the agreement.

SEC. 774. If a requisition made under either of the foregoing sections be complied with, both the old and the new security shall be in force; and if not complied with, the office shall become and be declared vacant, and the proceeding be certified to the proper officer to be recorded in the election book or township record.^o

SEC. 776. The surety shall give the principal at least twenty-four hours notice of the presenting and filing of the petition, with a copy thereof. At the expiration of this notice, the approving officer may hear the matter or may postpone the hearing as the case permits or requires.

Notice of petition. R. § 663.

SEC. 777. If, upon the hearing, there appears substantial ground for apprehension, the approving officer or board may order the principal to give a new bond and to supply the place of the petitioning surety within a reasonable time to be prescribed; and upon such new bond being given, the petitioning surety upon the former bond shall be declared discharged from liability on the same for future acts; which order of discharge shall be entered in the proper election book, but the bond will continue binding upon those who do not petition for relief.

vent the removal or suspension of such officer during or after his term, in cases provided by law.^p

SEC. 785. his first term, were not liable for his delinquencies in office after the expiration of that term.

OF REVENUE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE ASSESSMENT OF TAXES.

SECTION 796. The board of supervisors of each county shall, annually, at their September session, levy the following taxes upon the assessed value of the taxable property in the county:

1. For state revenue, one and a-half mills on a dollar, or such rate as may be directed by the executive council, not exceeding two mills on a dollar;

2. For ordinary county revenue, including the support of the poor, not more than four mills on a dollar and a poll-tax of fifty cents;

(By chapter 28, laws of 1874, subdivision 2 of section 796 of the code was amended as follows:)

[SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That subdivision two of section 796 of the code of 1873 be and the same is hereby amended by striking out the word "four" in the second line of said subdivision two of section 796 of the code of 1873, and inserting in lieu thereof the word "six:" provided, that the provisions hereof shall not apply to counties having a population exceeding 14,000 inhabitants] [except to counties having an area exceeding nine hundred square miles, and to such counties the provisions hereof shall apply.]

3. For support of schools, not less than one, nor more than three mills on a dollar;

4. For making and repairing bridges, not more than three mills on a dollar.¹

Levy, amount of. R. § 710. Ch. 24, § 2, Ex. S., 8 G. A. Ch. 87 § 1, 11 G. A.

Amended by Ch. 28, 15 G. A.

Code: § 796. Counties of not more than 14,000 population may levy tax of six mills on the dollar.

Amendment by Ch. 13, 18 G. A. Took effect Feb. 28, 1880.

¹ The power to levy the requisite taxes is given to the board of supervisors. Hill v. Wolfe, 28 Iowa, 577, 579.

The second subdivision of this section was intended to invest the board of supervisors with all the authority necessary to raise the county revenue, including whatever may be necessary for the payment of debts. The limitations in this subdivision have the same controlling operation which those in a city charter have upon the power of municipal taxation. And one who becomes a creditor of a county is presumed to do so in view of the existing law, and cannot complain if his debt exceed its power of immediate payment. The Iowa R. Land Co. v. Sac County, 39 Iowa, 124.

Section 3049 of the code confers no independent power of taxation, and does not require a county or other municipal corporation to levy a tax in excess of the maximum rate of taxation allowed by the statute. Id.

It is not within the power of the board of supervisors to bind the county by the offer of a reward for the arrest of persons charged with the commission of a crime, but they may offer a reward for the recovery of money which has been stolen from the county. Hawk v. Marion County, 48 Id., 472.

EXEMPTIONS.

Property exempt.	SEC. 797. The following classes of property are not to be taxed, and they may be omitted from the assessments herein required:
School.	1. The property of the United States and of this state, including university, agricultural college and school lands, and all property, leased to the state; the property of a county, township, city, incorporated town, or school district, when devoted entirely to the public use and not held for pecuniary profit; public grounds, including all places for the burial of the dead; fire engines, and all implements for extinguishing fires, with the grounds used exclusively for their buildings and for the meetings of the fire companies; all public libraries, grounds, and buildings of literary, scientific, benevolent, agricultural, and religious institutions, and societies devoted solely to the appropriate objects of these institutions, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres in extent, and not leased or otherwise used with a view to pecuniary profit; and all property leased to agricultural, charitable institutions, and benevolent societies, and so devoted during the term of such lease; provided , that all deeds by which such property is held shall be duly filed for record before the property therein described shall be omitted from the assessment;
Fire engines.
Public libraries and property of religious societies, etc.
Books, papers, and apparatus.	2. The books, papers, and apparatus belonging to the above institutions, used solely for the purposes above contemplated, and the like property of students in any such institution used for their education;

* Lands granted by the United States to the state, and by the state to the counties as indemnity for swamp lands granted to the state under the acts of congress relating thereto, were not taxable prior to the act of 1870, chapter 187, though lying in a county different from that owning the lands in question. The County of Guthrie v. The County of Carroll, 34 Iowa, 108.

An entry of land, under the homestead act of congress, does not divest the United States of the title until five years from the date of filing the declaratory statement, and prior to that time the land is not subject to taxation. Moriarty v. Boone County, 39 Id., 634.

Lands granted to railroads under the various acts of congress and of the general assembly are

SEC. 798. For every acre of forest trees planted and cultivated for timber within the state, the trees thereon not being more than twelve feet apart and kept in a healthy condition, the sum of one hundred dollars shall be exempted from taxation upon the owner's assessment, for ten years after each acre is so planted. [Provided, that such exemption be applied only to the realty owned by the party claiming the exemption, not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres of land, upon which the trees are grown, and in a growing condition.] For every acre of fruit trees planted and suitably cultivated within the state, the trees thereon not being more than thirty-three feet apart and kept in a healthy condition, the sum of fifty dollars shall be exempted from taxation upon the owner's assessment, for five years after each acre is planted. Such exemption shall be made by the assessor at the time of the annual assessment, upon satisfactory proof that the party claiming the same has complied with this section; and the assessor shall return to the board of equalization the name of each person claiming exemption, the quantity of lands planted to timber or fruit trees, and the amount deducted from the valuation of his property; [Provided, that the amount so deducted shall not exceed one-half of the valuation of the realty on which such exemption is claimed.]

(Section 799 was repealed and a substitute enacted in lieu thereof by chapter 45, laws of 1874; and by chapter 50 of the laws of 1878, the substituted section is repealed.)

R. § 736.

SEC. 826. When the name of the owner of any real estate is unknown, it shall be lawful to assess such real estate without connecting therewith any name, but inscribing at the head of the page the words, "owners unknown;" and such property, whether lands or town lots, shall be listed, as near as practicable, in the order of the numbers thereof; and no one description shall comprise more than one town lot, or more than the sixteenth part of a section or other smallest subdivision of the land according to the government surveys, except in cases where the boundaries are so irregular that it cannot be described in the usual manner in accordance with such surveys.⁶

known.
R. § 737.

⁵ See opinion of DAY, J., in Rhyno v. Madison Co., 43 Iowa, on p. 634.

While it is required by this section that the assessor shall return the assessment book to the county auditor, yet there was no provision of the code, or law in force in 1868, that required any notice whatever to be taken of such fact in the minute book, or that an assessment had been made. Per SEEVERS, CH. J., in Easton v. Savery et al., 44 Iowa, on p. 655.

⁶ Lands may be sold in tracts greater than forty acres when so assessed; for while subdivisions that are assessed separately, or are in fact distinct, cannot be sold in gross, a subdivision or tract, though greater than forty acres, may be sold in a body if thus assessed; and such sale will not, for that reason, be declared illegal, when it does not appear that the taxes due upon the tract could have been satisfied by the sale of a part thereof. Corbin v. DeWolf, 25 Iowa, 124; Ware v. Thompson, 29 Id., 65; Stewart v. Corbin, 25 Id., 144; Eldridge v. Kuehl, 29 Id., 160.

A tax deed is void upon its face, which shows several tracts of land sold together for a gross sum. Ware v. Thompson, 29 Id., 65.

That a tax deed is void because it shows a sale en masse does not of itself render the sale void. Unless it is made to appear that the land was thus sold, the sale itself would not be thereby invalidated. Id. Per WRIGHT, J.

Lands of known owners may be properly sold for delinquent taxes in tracts greater than forty acres; and when nothing appears to the contrary from the face of the deed, it will be presumed that the owners were known, and that the sale in other respects was authorized. Bulkley v. Callanan, 32 Id., 461.

The fact that the land was assessed as belonging to an unknown owner, when the records of the county disclosed the name of the owner, will not invalidate a sale of the land for taxes. The presumption will obtain that the assessor did his duty, and that the name of the owner was in fact unknown to him. The Corning Town Co. v. Davis, 44 Id., 622.

The term "tract" or "parcel" is properly applied to an entire section, and a tax deed for a section is valid. Martin v. Cole, 38 Id., 141.

Lands assessed to unknown owners in forty acre tracts may be properly advertised and sold in quarter sections. Clark v. Thompson, 37 Id., 536; Stone v. Same, Id.

A tax deed conveying a quarter section en masse, and reciting an offer by the purchaser of the whole amount of taxes due thereon, shows a sale en masse, though there is a recital contained in the deed setting out each forty and the amount of taxes due on each. Id.

A description in the assessment, as six acres, will, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be regarded as six acres in the form of a square. Immegart v. Gorgas, 41 Id., 439.

The use and nature of the property must determine whether or not several lots, assessed to one owner and sold en masse, should be regarded as one lot. Where two lots were occu-

If any assessor shall fail or neglect to perform any of the duties required of him by this chapter, at the time and in the manner specified, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the district court, in the name of the county, and the judgment shall be against him and his bondsmen.

Auditor of state to publish revenue laws.

SEC. 828. The auditor of state is hereby authorized and required to cause to be published, in pamphlet form, the revenue laws of this state, for the benefit of township assessors; and shall cause the same to be distributed to the county auditors, who shall distribute the same to the township assessors of their respective counties.

SEC. 829. The township trustees shall constitute a board of equalization for their respective townships, and have power to equalize the assessments of all tax-payers within the same, except in such cities and incorporated towns as elect a township assessor, in which case the city council shall be the board of equalization, and shall perform such duties in substantially the same manner, as is required of a township board of equalization, by increasing or diminishing the valuation of any piece of property, or the entire assessment of any taxpayer, as they may deem just and necessary for an equitable distribution of the burden of taxation upon all the property of the township; provided, that such boards shall keep a record of their proceedings.

¹The board of supervisors, in their classification of the property of the county for taxation, ordered that shares of bank stock should be assessed at sixty per cent of its par value, and they were so returned by the assessor, but the township trustees acting as a board of equalization for the township, reduced the assessment to forty per cent of the par value, whereupon the board of supervisors restored the assessment to the rate it had first ordered: Held, that while the township trustees are empowered to equalize the taxes of their township, yet the board of supervisors are charged with the duty of equalizing the taxation of the county and accordingly may fix the rate of assessments for the townships. Cassett v. Sherwood, 42 Iowa, 623.

The township trustees are constituted a board for the equalization of assessments of property taxable in their township, and they possess and may exercise this power to the same extent that it was possessed by the board of supervisors prior to the enactment of chapter 89, laws of the 13th general assembly, and as it is now possessed by such board as between the several townships of the county. Keck v. Board of Supervisors, etc., 38 Id., 547.

When the trustees have ordered a change to be made in the assessment of property belonging to an individual, it is the duty of the assessor to make the correction in the assessment book, and on his failure to do so, the proper correction may be ordered in a certiorari proceeding. Id.

The fact that a city council irregularly exercised the authority conferred upon it as a board of equalization will not deprive the property holder of the right of appeal to the circuit court. Ingersoll et al. v. The City of Des Moines, 46 Id., 553.

No time is prescribed in the statute within which an appeal from the board of equalization may be taken, and no bond is required to be given by the appellant. Id.

While an appeal will not lie directly from the assessor to the circuit court, but complaint must first be made to the board of equalization, yet one who is aggrieved need not complain more than once to the board. Id.

Where an appeal is taken by the tax-payer from an assessment fixed by the board of equalization, the amount of the assessment cannot be raised by the court to which the appeal is taken. In the matter of the appeal of the Des Moines Water Co., 48 Id., 324.

and continue from day to day until completed; and at such meeting they may also add to the assessment as returned by the assessor, any taxable property in the township, city, or incorporated town, not included therein, placing the same to the name of the owner, if known, and assessing the value thereof.

SEC. 831. Any person who may feel aggrieved at anything in the assessment of his property, may appear before said board of equalization in person, or by agent, at the time and place mentioned in the preceding section, and have the same corrected in such manner as to said board may seem just and equitable, and the assessors shall meet with said board and correct the assessment books as they may direct. Appeals may be taken from all boards of equalization to the circuit court of the county where the assessment is made [within sixty days after the adjournment of such board of equalization, but not afterward.]

AN ACT to amend section 831, chapter 1, title VI, of the code of Iowa in relation to boards of equalization.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That section 831 of the code of Iowa be amended as follows, By adding to the end of said section 831, the following words: "Within sixty days after the adjournment of such board of equalization, but not afterward."

Amendment of § 831 of code.

SEC. 2. The assessor shall, before administering the oath or affirmation as is provided in section 824 of the code, to the person assessed, inform him of the valuation put upon his property, and notify him that if he feels aggrieved to appear before the board of equalization and show why the assessment should be changed.

Assessor must inform owner of the valuation, and his rights.

SEC. 3. At the first meeting of the board of equalization of any township, town or city, they shall decide what assessments should, in their opinion be raised, and make an alphabetical list of names of the individuals whose assessment it is proposed to raise and post a copy of the same in a conspicuous place in the office or place of meeting of said board, and also in each post-office located in said township, town or city, and the board shall, if in their opinion some assessments should be raised, hold an adjourned meeting with at least one week intervening after posting of said notices before final action thereon, which notices shall state the time and place of holding such adjourned meeting.

Board must decide on valuations.

Must post list of names of those whose assessment is to be raised.

Meeting of board.

SEC. 833. Each county auditor shall, on or before the third Monday in June in each year, make out and transmit to the auditor of state, an abstract of the real and personal property in his county, in which he shall set forth:

1. The number of acres of land in his county, and the aggregate value of the same, exclusive of town lots, returned by the assessors as corrected by the county board of equalization;
2. The aggregate value of real property in each town in the county, returned by the assessor as corrected by the county board of equalization;
3. The aggregate value of personal property in his county;
4. An abstract of the aggregate value and number of cattle, the aggregate value and number of horses, the aggregate value and number of mules, the aggregate value and number of sheep, the aggregate value and number of swine over six months old, as the same are returned by the assessors of his county.

R. § 742.

SEC. 834. The executive council shall constitute the state board of equalization, and shall meet at the seat of government on the second Monday of July in each year in which real property is assessed. The auditor of state shall be clerk of the board by virtue of his office, and shall lay before it the abstracts transmitted to him by the county auditors, as required by the preceding section, and then the board shall proceed to equalize the valuation of real property among the several counties and towns in the following manner;

1. They shall add to the aggregate valuation of real property of each county, which they shall believe to be valued below its proper valuation, such percentage in each case as will raise the same to its proper valuation;
2. They shall deduct from the aggregate valuation of real property of each county, which they shall believe to be valued above its proper valuation, such percentage in each case as will reduce the same to its proper valuation.

S. 8 G. A.

SEC. 835. The state board shall also determine each year, at the same time, the rate of state tax to be levied and collected, not exceeding two mills on the dollar.

^k The board of supervisors has jurisdiction to increase or diminish the valuation of personal property in any town or township in the county, or may add or deduct a given percentage to or from the assessed valuation. Harney et al. v. The Board of Supervisors of Mitchell Co., 44 Iowa, 203.

The board of supervisors does not have jurisdiction to determine the right of a municipal corporation to assess a tax, nor has such board the authority to abate the tax levied by a district township, upon the ground that the right to levy it is in another township. The District Township of Taylor v. Moore et al., 39 Id., 605.

Under section 822, the board of supervisors has no authority to increase the assessment of the property of an individual. Taxes levied under a valuation thus increased are not simply irregular, but illegal. Rood v. Board of Supervisors of Mitchell Co., 39 Id., 444.

If a tax is illegal, and not merely irregular, its collection may be restrained by injunction. Id.

The record of the board of supervisors being incomplete, its failure to show that there was an equalization by the board did not affect the validity of a tax deed. Easton v. Savery, 44 Id., 654.

It is not competent for the board of supervisors, as a board of equalization, to make a correction of the assessment as between individuals nor between different portions of the same district, although such district embraces two civil townships in one assessorial district; but their powers are limited to securing uniformity between the several assessorial districts in the county. Getchell v. The Board of Supervisors of Polk County, 51 Id., 107.

SEC. 836. Said board shall keep a full record of their proceedings, and they shall finish their equalization on or before the first Monday of August, immediately after which the auditor of state shall transmit to each county auditor, a statement of the percentage to be added to, or deducted from the valuation of real property in his county, and a statement of the rate of state tax fixed as aforesaid. The county auditor shall add to or deduct from the valuation of each parcel of real property in his county the required percentage; rejecting all fractions of fifty cents or less in the result, and counting all over fifty cents as one dollar.

AUDITORS SHALL TRANSCRIBE ASSESSMENTS.

SEC. 837. After the equalization in June, hereinbefore provided, and before the first Monday in November, the county auditor shall transcribe the assessments of the several townships into a suitable book, to be provided at the expense of the county, properly ruled and headed with distinct columns, in which shall be entered the names of tax-payers, descriptions of lands, number of acres and value, number of town-lots and value, value of personal property, and each description of tax, with a column for polls, and one for payments.

R. § 745.

SEC. 838. All taxes which are uniform throughout any civil township or independent school district, shall be formed into a single tax, entered upon the tax list in a single column, and denominated a consolidated tax; and each tax-receipt shall show the percentage levied for each separate fund.

SEC. 839. Time for making: entered of record.
Same, § 2.

SEC. 840. It shall not be lawful for the board of supervisors of any county, to levy taxes in any one year for the payment of bonded indebtedness, except as provided in section two hundred and ninety-one, chapter one, title four of this code, including judgments founded on such indebtedness, of more than three mills on the dollar upon the last corrected valuation. COLLECTION OF TAXES IN CITIES ACTING UNDER SPECIAL CHARTERS.

Title. AN ACT to promote the collection of revenue in incorporated cities acting under special charters, and to legalize the taxes heretofore levied therein, and sales made thereunder. [Additional to Code, title VI, "Of revenue."]

City council may certify to county auditor, by first Monday of Sept. the per cent of levy for city purposes.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the council of each municipal corporation, acting under a special charter may, if they deem it expedient, provide by ordinance for certifying to the auditor of the county in which such city is situated on or before the first Monday of September of each year, or such other time as may be fixed by law for the levy of state and county taxes, the percentage or number of mills on the dollar of tax levied for all city purposes by them on the taxable property within the corporation for the year then ensuing, as shown by the assessment roll of said city for said year, and the county auditor when such certification is made, is required to place the same on the tax books of the county in the same manner as state and county taxes are placed thereon, which tax for municipal purposes shall be collected and paid over to the proper officer by the county treasurer, with the same restriction, powers and liabilities, and under the same regulations as to power, mode and manner of proceeding in every respect as in relation to state and county taxes, and in all things relating to the sale of real and personal property, he is authorized and required to proceed according to the provisions of the statutes regulating the sale of property for delinquent state and county taxes, and in all sales for such or any delinquent taxes for municipal purposes, if there be other delinquent taxes due from the same person, or a lien on the same property, the sale shall be for all the delinquent taxes, and such sales and all sales made under or by virtue of this act, shall be of the same validity, and in all respects be deemed and treated as though such sales had been made for delinquent state or county taxes exclusively.

Duty of county auditor in such case.

Certain acts of city officers legalized.

SEC. 2. That all acts of the officers of cities incorporated under special charters, in heretofore certifying the taxes levied or rate of taxes to the county auditor and all collections and tax sales made thereunder, be and the same are hereby declared in all respects as valid, binding, effective and conclusive as if the power to so certify and sell had been expressly conferred by law, but nothing herein contained shall have the effect to make valid any sale for taxes which would be invalid under any other provision of law.

TAX BOOK AND LIST.

Sec. 842. The county auditor, when making up the tax book of the county and before said book is placed in the hands of the county treasurer for collection of the taxes therein, shall designate each piece or parcel of real estate sold for taxes and not redeemed, by writing in a plain manner opposite to each such piece the word "sold."

Auditor to make: form of. Ch. 75, § 1, 12 G. A.

Sec. 843. The county auditor shall make an entry upon the tax list showing what it is, and for what county and year it is, and shall then deliver it to the county treasurer on or before the first day of November, taking his receipt therefor; and such list shall be full and sufficient authority for the county treasurer to collect taxes therein levied. But no informality therein, and no delay in delivering the same after the time above specified, shall affect the validity of any taxes, or sales, or other proceedings for the collection of taxes under this title.^a Treasurer's authority: informality. R. § 748.

Sec. 844. At the time of the delivery of said list to the treasurer, the auditor shall make to the auditor of state a certified statement showing the aggregate valuation of lands, town property, and personal property in the county, each by itself, and also the aggregate amount of each separate tax as shown by said tax book.

Aggregate certified to auditor of state. R. § 748.

DUTY OF TREASURER.

Sec. 845. The treasurer, on receiving the tax book for each year, shall enter upon the same in separate columns, opposite each parcel of real property or person's name, on which, or against whom any tax remains unpaid for either of the preceding years, the year or years for which such delinquent tax so remains due and unpaid. And any sale for the whole or any part of such delinquent tax, not so entered, shall be invalid.^o

To enter taxes unpaid for previous years: sale void. R. § 750.

^a Under the Revision it was held that the warrant provided for in section 748, was not essential to the validity of a tax-sale of land. Parker v. Sexton, 29 Iowa, 421; Hurley v. Powell et al., 31 Id., 64; Rhodes v. Sexton, 33 Id., 541; Johnson v. Case, 30 Id., 308; Stewart v. Corbin, Id., 144, and other cases.

No warrant is required by the code. The tax-list is sufficient authority to the treasurer. This section has no application to taxes levied in aid of railroads. Harwood v. Brownell, 48 Id., 657.

^o It is the duty of the treasurer to bring forward and enter opposite the realty as unpaid tax upon personal property, and where he fails to do so a sale of the land for taxes is invalid as against one who has in the meantime acquired a lien thereon. Cummings v. Easton, 46 Id., 183.

The sales of land for taxes divests the land of the lien of all prior unpaid taxes, and the rule operates as well in favor of the owner who redeems from the sale as the purchaser at the tax sale. Hough v. Easley, 47 Id., 330.

The validity of a tax voted in aid of a railroad in 1868, but which was not certified up by the township trustees until 1876, was held not to depend upon its extension on the taxbooks in the year in which it was voted, and the fact that it was not so extended would not prevent it from being afterward entered thereon as an unpaid tax of a former year. Harwood v. Brownell, 48 Id., 657.

The action of mandamus to compel the county treasurer to enter such tax upon the tax books, would not be barred by the statute of limitations before three years after the certificate of the township trustees was made, if at all. Id.

Treasurer to collect: illegality in proceedings. R. § 751.

SEC. 846. The treasurer, after making the above entry, shall proceed to collect the taxes, and the list shall be his authority and justification against any illegality in the proceedings prior to receiving the list; and he is also authorized and required to collect, as far as practicable, the taxes remaining unpaid on the tax books of previous years.

Notice when land has been sold. Ch. 75, § 2, 12 G. A.

SEC. 847. Each county treasurer shall, when any person offers to pay taxes on any real estate marked "sold," notify such person that such property has been sold for taxes, and inform him for what taxes said property was sold, and at what time said sale was effected.^p

To certify amount required to pay taxes and redeem: compensation for.

SEC. 848. The county treasurer shall certify, in writing, the entire amount of taxes and assessments due upon any parcel of real estate, and all sales of the same for unpaid taxes or assessments shown by the books in his office, with the amount required for redemption from the same, if still redeemable, whenever he shall be requested so to do by any person having any interest in said real estate, and paid or tendered his fees for such certificate at the rate of fifty cents for the first parcel in each township, incorporated town, or city, and ten cents for each subsequent parcel in the same township, town, or city. Each description in the tax list shall be reckoned a parcel in computing the amount of such fees.

Effect of certificate.

SEC. 849. Such certificate, with the treasurer's receipt showing the payment of all the taxes therein specified, and the auditor's certificate of redemption from the tax sales therein mentioned, shall be conclusive evidence for all purposes and against all persons, that the parcel of real estate in said certificate and receipt described, was, at the date thereof, free and clear of all taxes and assessments, and sales for taxes or assessments, except sales whereon the time of redemption had already expired, and the tax purchaser had received his deed.

Treasurer liable for error.

SEC. 850. For any loss resulting to the county, or any subdivision thereof, or to any tax-purchaser, or tax payer, from an error in said certificate or receipt, the treasurer and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond.

May assess property omitted. R. § 752.

SEC. 851. The county treasurer shall assess any real property subject to taxation, which may have been omitted by the assessor, board of equalization, or county auditor, and collect taxes thereon, and in such cases he is required to note opposite the tract or lot assessed, the words, "by treasurer;" provided, that such assessment shall be made within two years after the tax list shall have been delivered to him for collection, and not afterwards.^q

Owner to have property omitted assessed: effect of errors or omissions. K. § 753.

SEC. 852. In all cases where real property subject to taxation shall not have been assessed by the township assessor or other proper officer, the owner thereof, by himself or his agent, shall have the same properly assessed by the treasurer and pay the taxes thereon; and no failure of the owner to have such property assessed, or to have the errors in the assessment corrected, and no irregularity, error, or omis-

^p The failure of the treasurer to notify a person offering to pay taxes on a tract of land which has been sold for taxes, and so marked will not invalidate the tax deed, nor will a failure of the auditor to so mark lands "sold" effect the validity of the sale ordered. *Playter v. OF THE COLLECTION OF TAXES.

SECTION 854. Auditor's warrants shall be received by the county treasurer in full payment of state taxes, and county warrants shall be received at the treasury of the proper county for the ordinary county tax, but money only shall be received for the school tax. Highway taxes may be discharged and highway certificates of work done received as provided by law.

SEC. 855. Paid in legal tender and national bank notes. Ch. 43. § 1, 10 G. A.

SEC. 856. The treasurer of state is hereby required to receive of the several county treasurers the above mentioned notes, in payment of any claims the state may have against any county for any part of the permanent school fund, or for any taxes due the state; and the said treasurer shall pay out said notes in redemption of outstanding auditor's warrants.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in counties divided into two districts for the collection of taxes, and where there are two county seats, the sales of lands and property for delinquent taxes, in each collection district, shall be sold at the county seat, or place where the taxes for each district are collected, and the deputy treasurer and the recorder or his deputy, at such county seat, or place, shall be authorized, and are hereby declared authorized and empowered, to do and perform all the duties required of the treasurer and auditor of such county.

Where taxes to aid in the construction of a railroad were voted in two or more townships in a county, in one, after a part of the taxes had been collected, the tax was declared illegal by the supreme court, it was held, that the treasurer was not authorized to refund the illegal taxes collected out of the taxes lawfully collected from the other townships, and that mandamus would lie to compel him to pay the latter over to the company. The D. M. & M. R. Co. v. Lowry, 51 Id., 486.

^v A tax deed which recites that the sale was begun and publicly held on the first Monday of December, instead of the first Monday of October, as provided by this section, is not void upon the ground that it shows upon its face that the sale was made at a time not authorized by law. When from any good cause, the property cannot be duly advertised and offered for sale on the first Monday of October, he is authorized by section 886 of the code, to make the sale on the first Monday of the next succeeding month in which it can be made. Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Iowa, 160.

The sale of land for taxes is required to be made for all taxes of every description "for the preceding year or years" then delinquent, and the sale for the taxes of one year frees the land, in the hands of the purchaser from any and all liens thereon for delinquent taxes for prior years. Preston v. Van Gorder, 31 Iowa, 250; see also, Litchfield v. Hamilton County, 40 Id., on p. 69; Shoemaker v. Lacey, 45 Id., 422.

But the deed of the treasurer of lands sold for state and county taxes does not divest the lien for city taxes of a city organized under special charter, which were due and unpaid at the time of the sale. Dennison v. City of Keokuk, 45 Id., 266.

Nor will a sale for city taxes of one year, divest the lien of the city for unpaid taxes of prior years. The lien of the city is prior to that of the purchaser. Id.

A court of equity will not interfere to stay the collection of taxes authorized by law, to which the property is justly liable, on account of mere irregularities. Conway v. Younkin, 28 Id., 295; Litchfield v. Hamilton County, 40 Id., on p. 69.

This section requires the county treasurer to offer lands on which taxes are delinquent at public sale, and at a time authorized by law, and where neither of these requirements are observed the sale will be invalid. Butler v. Delano, 42 Id., 350. To the same effect is Besore v. Dosh et al., 43 Id., 211.

together, a gross amount of tax levied thereon, and so advertised, they will be regarded as constituting but one tract, and liable for but one advertising fee. Id.

When taxes are delinquent upon a whole section, belonging to one owner, and lying in one contiguous body, it is the duty of the treasurer to advertise the whole tract in a single description, and not divide it up into sixteen descriptions. The C. R. & M. R. R. Co. et al. v. Carroll County, 41 Id., 153.

³ See Martin v. Cole, 38 Iowa, 141, as to what constitutes a separate "tract or parcel" of real property.

As to what constitutes a sale as required by the statute, see Butler v. Delano, 42 Id., 350.

A sale of a tract of land, part of which constitutes the homestead of the delinquent tax-payer, is under this section, void in toto. Stewart v. Corbin, 25 Id., 144. Following Penn v. Clemans, supra. But see Salter v. The City of Burlington, 42 Id., 531, where it is held that, to exempt the homestead from liability for taxes accruing upon other property, it must be listed separately as a homestead. That the homestead is the only real property of the tax-payer does not relieve him from the necessity of listing it separately, in order to thus limit its liability. This last case was decided upon the law of the Revision of 1860, section 759 of which provided that the taxes due from any person upon personal property should be a lien upon any real estate owned by such person.

⁵ Where a tax deed, regular in form, recited that the land was sold January 4, and the treasurer testified that the sales of land in the county for delinquent taxes begun upon that day, and were continued from day to day until the 18th, and that he entered all the sales as of the date of the commencement; it was held that a sale of land at any time during the continuance of the sale was valid, and that the recording of the sale as of the first day did not impair the title. Phelps v. Meade et al., 41 Iowa, 470.

Where the treasurer announced that the sale of lands for delinquent taxes would be adjourned from day to day and posted a notice to that effect, but instead of resuming the sale, and adjourning it to the following or any day thereafter, he made no further offer of the lands for sale until the agent of the purchaser handed him a list of tracts, and offering in behalf of the person whose name was set opposite each tract to take the same for the taxes delinquent thereon, and the treasurer struck off the entire list as this indicated: Held, that the sale was invalid and should be set aside. Butler v. Delano, 42 Id., 350.

Letters and figures used: informality: effect of. R. § 770.

SEC. 880. In all advertisements for the sale of real property for taxes, and in entries required to be made by the county auditor, treasurer, or other officer, letters and figures may be used as they have been heretofore, to denote townships, ranges, sections, parts of sections, lots, blocks, date, and the amount of taxes, interest, and costs. And no irregularity or informality in the advertisement shall affect in any manner the legality of the sale, or the title to any real property conveyed by the treasurer's deed under this chapter, but, in all cases, the provisions of this chapter shall be sufficient notice to owners of the sale of their property.*

Certificate of publication. R. § 771.

SEC. 881. The treasurer shall obtain a copy of said advertisement, together with a certificate of the due publication thereof, from the printer or publisher of the newspaper in which the same shall have been published, and shall file the same in the office of the county auditor, and such certificate shall be substantially in the following form:

Auditor to attend sales: duty: treasurer to keep record. R. § 772.

SEC. 882. The county auditor shall attend all sales of real property for taxes made by the treasurer, and make a record thereof in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, therein describing the several parcels of real property on which the taxes and costs were paid by the purchaser, as they are described in the list or advertisement on file in his office, stating in separate columns the amount as obtained from the treasurer's tax list, of each kind of tax, interest, and costs for each tract or lot, how much and what part of each tract or lot was sold, to whom sold, and date of sale. The treasurer shall also keep a book of sales in which, at the time of sale, he shall make the same records. He shall also note in the tax list, opposite the description of the property sold, the fact and date of such sale.†

* In addition to the rule of liberal construction under. (See code §§ 852, 880, 903, 904.) Per (code §§ 45, 2528) the revenue law in this and other sections provide that any irregularity, informality, error, etc., shall not affect the validity of the proceedings, or the title derived there- COLE, CH. J., in McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Iowa, 380. † See Boardman v. Bourne, 20 Iowa, on p. 136, where this section, with others, is cited.

SEC. 883. When all the parcels of real property advertised for sale shall have been offered, and a portion thereof shall remain unsold for want of bidders, the treasurer shall adjourn the sale to some day not exceeding two months from the time of adjournment, due notice of which day shall be given at the time of adjournment, and also by keeping a notice thereof posted in a conspicuous place in the treasurer's office; but no further advertisement shall be necessary. On the day fixed for the re-opening of the sale, the same proceedings shall be had as provided hereby for the sale commencing on the first Monday of October. And further adjournments shall be made from time to time, not exceeding two months, and the sales shall be thus continued until the next regular annual sale, or until all the taxes shall have been paid.⁶

Sale adjourned.
R. § 773.

SEC. 884. If any treasurer or auditor shall fail to attend any sale of lands as required by this chapter, either in person or by competent deputy, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than fifty nor more than three hundred dollars, to be recovered by an action in the district court against the treasurer or auditor, as the case may be, and his bondsmen. And if such officer or deputy shall sell, or assist in selling, any real property, knowing the same to be not subject to taxation, or that the taxes for which the same is sold have been paid, or shall knowingly and willfully sell, or assist in selling, any real property for payment of taxes to defraud the owner of such real property, or shall knowingly and willfully execute a deed for property so sold, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than one thousand nor more than three thousand dollars, or to imprisonment not exceeding one year, or to both fine and imprisonment, and to pay the injured party all damages sustained by any such wrongful act, and all such sales shall be void.

Penalty on auditor and treasurer for failure of duty.
R. § 774.

SEC. 885. If any county treasurer or auditor shall hereafter be, either directly or indirectly, concerned in the purchase of any real property sold for the payment of taxes, he shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in an action in the district court, brought in the name of the county against such treasurer or auditor, as the case may be, and his bondsmen; and all such sales shall be void.⁷

Same.
R. § 775.

SEC. 886. If, from neglect of officers to make returns, or from any other good cause, real property cannot be duly advertised and offered for sale on the first Monday of October, the treasurer shall make the sale on the first Monday of the next succeeding months in which it can be made, allowing time for the publication as provided in this chapter.*

Sale at any other time.
R. § 776.

⁶The sale may be adjourned from time to time without re-advertising, where the lands have been once duly advertised. Hurley v. Street, 29 Iowa, 429.

⁷If the treasurer is himself the purchaser at tax sale, or is directly or indirectly interested or concerned in such purchase, the sale is void. Per WRIGHT, J., in Henderson v. Oliver, 28 Iowa, 20.

So also the deputy of the county treasurer is prohibited from acquiring an interest in lands sold at tax sale, and where he entered upon the books a sale as made to a person who was not present, and who subsequently assigned the certificate to him, it was held to be invalid. Ells v. Peck et al., 45 Id., 112.

Such a sale, however, is not absolutely void, but voidable only, and the fraud of the officer will not defeat the title based thereon when held by a subsequent purchaser for value without notice, save upon proper proceedings instituted therefor. Id.

*A tax deed which recites that the sale was begun and publicly held on the first Monday of December instead of the first Monday of October, as directed in section 883 of the code is not void upon the ground that it shows on its face that the sale was made at a time not authorized by law. Section 886 authorizes a sale on the first Monday of the next succeeding month after October for good cause. Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Iowa, 160; Love v. Welch et al., 33 Id., 192.

If any person shall become the purchaser of more than one parcel of property, he may have the whole included in one certificate, but each parcel shall be separately described.^a

The county treasurer shall also make out, sign, and deliver to the purchaser of any real property sold for taxes aforesaid, duplicate receipts for any taxes, interest, and costs, paid by said purchaser, after the date of said purchase for any subsequent year or years, one of which receipts said purchaser shall present to the county auditor, to be by him filed in his office, and a memorandum thereof entered on the register of sales. And if he neglect to file such duplicate receipt with the auditor before the redemption, such tax shall not be a lien upon the lands, and the person paying such tax shall not be entitled to recover the same of the owner of such real estate.^c

^a The "certificate of sale" for taxes made by the treasurer and delivered to the purchaser at the tax sale, is competent evidence to show the manner of sale, etc., when offered by either party in a controversy as to the sufficiency of the tax title; but where there is a difference between such certificate and the record of sale, the former must yield to the latter. McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Iowa, 356.

^b The assignee of a tax certificate acquires no greater right than the original purchaser, and his title is subject to all informalities attending the sale. Watson v. Phelps, 4 Iowa, 482.

One who holds under a quit-claim deed from the assignee of a tax certificate which is void for fraudulent combination of bidders, is not entitled to protection as an innocent purchaser. The grantee in a quit-claim deed not being regarded as a bona fide purchaser without notice of outstanding equities. Id.

Where a tax purchaser assigned his certificate to another, the assignment not being recorded, and after three years from the date of the sale, but before the execution of the treasurer's deed, executed a quit-claim deed to the prior owner of the property, held, that the quit-claim deed conveyed no title, and that the assignment of the certificate was valid. Smith v. Stephenson, 45 Id., 645.

^c If the purchaser of land at tax sale shall fail to file with the auditor duplicate receipts for any subsequent taxes upon such land, paid by him, the taxes so paid do not become a lien upon the land, and the reimbursement of the tax purchaser therefor is not a condition of redemption. Kennedy v. Bigelow et al., 43 Iowa, 74.

auditor of the proper county, to be held by him subject to the order of the purchaser, of the amount for which the same was sold and twenty per centum of such amount immediately added as a penalty, with ten per cent interest per annum on the whole amount thus made from the day of sale, and also the amount of all taxes, interest, and costs paid for any subsequent year or years, and a similar penalty of twenty per centum added as before on the amount of the payment for each subsequent year, with ten per cent interest per annum on the whole of such amount or amounts from the day or days of payment, unless such subsequent taxes shall have been paid by the person for whose benefit the redemption is made, which fact may be shown by the treasurer's receipt; and provided further, that such penalty for the non-payment of the taxes of any such subsequent year or years shall not attach, unless such subsequent tax or taxes shall have remained unpaid until the first day of March after they become due, so that they have become delinquent, nor shall any of said penalties apply in the cases mentioned in the last clause of section eight hundred and sixty-six of this chapter.^d

^d Under section 13, chapter 173, laws of 1862, a penalty of thirty per cent was added to the amount of the bid and had to be paid by the purchaser in making redemption, and the same penalty was also added to subsequent taxes paid by the purchaser. Mulligan v. Hintrager, 18 Iowa, 171.

The wife has such an interest in the homestead owned by her husband as to entitle her to redeem the same from tax sale. And, under the revision (section 779), this right continued until one year after she became discoverer. Pfiffner v. Krappfel, 28 Id., 27; Adams v. Beale, 19 Id., 61.

A person whose land had been sold for taxes, upon hearing of it, went to the clerk to redeem the same, who finding the record of a second sale that had been subsequently made, by mistake, for the taxes of the same year, and never having observed the other sale, advised the owner that it required a certain amount to redeem, which was thereupon paid by him, the clerk delivering to him a certificate of redemption from such second sale. The owner had no knowledge of but one sale, and he intended to, and supposed he was, redeeming from a valid sale. Held, that on these facts the owner was entitled to redeem after the period of redemption had expired, on the ground of mistake of fact, upon his paying to the holder of the tax deed the redemption money with penalty and interest. Noble v. Bullis, 23 Id., 559.

The law authorizing redemption from tax sales is to be liberally construed in favor of the land owner whose estate will be divested by the sale. The Corning Town Co. v. Davis, 44 Id., 622; Rice v. Nelson, 27 Id., 143; Adams v. Beale, 19 Id., 61; Burton v. Hintrager, 18 Id., 348.

It is the duty of the proper officer to impart correct information to parties applying to redeem from tax sales, and their mistake, error or negligence, will support the right of redemption after the execution of the tax deed. Corning Town Co. v. Davis, 44 Id., 622.

If a land owner pays, tenders, or in good faith and without negligence attempts to pay his taxes and fails, through the fault of the officers charged with the duty of receiving the money and making the proper records, a sale and deed of the land will not be upheld. Id.

The agent of a person who owned several parcels of land left with the clerk a sum of money with directions that the clerk and treasurer examine the tax records, pay all taxes due upon the principal's lands and redeem from tax sales of the same, if any had been made; they subsequently returned to him a portion of the money, with certain tax receipts and the assurance that there was no record of tax sale, that the sale to the defendant not being discovered until he demanded a deed; held, that the agent was justified in relying upon the assurance of the officers that no sale had been made, and that the owner was not chargeable with negligence in failing to discover the facts of the sale. DAY, J., dissenting. Id.

This case, though not expressly, yet virtually overrules Bolinger v. Henderson, 23 Iowa, 165, which was a case where the plaintiff upon learning that his lot had been sold for delinquent taxes, applied within the term of redemption to the clerk, and informed him that he desired to redeem the lot from all tax sales, whereupon the clerk issued to him a certificate of redemption from a sale made in a subsequent year to the sale in question, and assured him that was all there was against the lot, and it was held that upon these facts the plaintiff was not entitled to redeem after the expiration of the period therefor. See dissenting opinion of DAY, J., in Corning Town Co. v. Davis, 44 Id., on p. 634.

That the owner of land failed to pay the taxes or redeem from tax sale, through oversight or under the belief that the taxes had been paid, will not relieve him from the effects of his omission, or warrant the setting aside of the sale. These are not mistakes from the effect of which Countersigned by treasurer.

SEC. 891. The county auditor shall, upon application of any party to redeem any real property sold under the provisions of this chapter, and being satisfied that such party has a right to redeem the same, and upon the payment of the proper amount, issue to such party a certificate of redemption setting forth the facts of the sale substantially as contained in the certificate of sale, the date of the redemption, the amount paid, and by whom redeemed, and he shall make the proper entries in the book of sales in his office, and shall immediately give notice of such redemption to the county treasurer. Such certificate of redemption shall then be presented to the treasurer, who shall countersign the same and make the proper entries in the books of his office, equity will grant relief. Playter v. Cochran, 37 Id., 258.

The owner in fee simple of land which has been sold for taxes is only entitled to redeem within three years from the sale, and cannot insist upon that right after the period has expired, whether a deed has been made or not. Pearson v. Robinson, 44 Id., 413.

Since land cannot be twice sold for taxes at the same sale, although the taxes be delinquent thereon for two years, and the second sale being invalid, the purchaser is not entitled to a deed, and redemption therefrom is not necessary. Shoemaker v. Lacy, 45 Id., 422; same case, 39 Id., 277.

A mortgagee has such an interest in property sold for taxes as entitles him to redeem. Floyd v. Bunce, 41 Id., 660.

An agreement between the purchaser at tax sale and the owner, that the latter shall be allowed further time for redemption, is a valid one, and may be enforced. Interest at ten per cent per annum upon taxes paid and penalties, from the time the agreement was made, may be collected by the purchaser. Shoemaker v. Porter et ux., 41 Id., 197.

A tax deed made after the owner had paid to the clerk the amount necessary to redeem from the sale, is unauthorized and void. The failure of the clerk to notify the treasurer will not defeat the redemption. Fenton v. Way et al., 40 Id., 196.

The failure of the county treasurer (now auditor) to make the proper entry of a redemption of land from tax sale will not invalidate the redemption. Byington v. Bookwalter, 7 Id., 512.

Where a tax deed was issued by mistake after redemption, and the purchaser had paid subsequent taxes, he was held entitled to recover the taxes so paid with six per cent interest thereon, tender of the same having been made by the owner. Id.

Redemption from a tax sale will not remove the lien of a former sale for delinquent taxes, and the rights of the purchaser at the former sale will not be affected by the redemption from the subsequent one. Gray v. Coan et al., 40 Id., 327.

A purchaser of lands which had been sold for taxes prior to his purchase, is not entitled to redeem on the ground that after the transaction he had asked the treasurer if there were unpaid taxes, and was informed there were none, at the same time making no inquiry as to tax sales. Moore v. Hamlin, 38 Id., 482.

A person having no interest in the land has no right to redeem it from tax sale; and a redemption by such person does not divest the title of the tax purchaser, or inure to the benefit of the prior owner. Penn v. Clemans, 19 Id., 373; Byington v. Bookwalter, 7 Id., 512.

A party holding a deed for an unassigned right of dower in certain real estate has such an interest therein as entitles him to redeem the same from tax sale. And he may thus redeem not merely a part, or to the extent of his dower interest, but the whole estate. Rice v. Nelson, 27 Id., 148.

It may be laid down as a general rule that any right, whether in law or equity, whether perfect or inchoate, in possession or action, or whether in the nature of a charge or incumbrance on the land, amounts to such ownership as will entitle the party holding it to redeem the land from tax sale. Id. See, also, Adams v. Beall et ux., 19 Id., 61.

The heir of a mortgagee of real estate has such an interest therein as entitles him to redeem the land from a tax sale made for delinquent taxes thereon, at any time within one year after attaining his majority. Burton v. Hintrager, 18 Id., 348.

A tender of a sum of money for the purpose of redemption of land from tax sale, is an admission that the amount tendered is due, and is a waiver of any irregularity in the assessment or sale. Id. See, also, Brayton v. Delaware County, 16 Id., 44.

The purchaser of real estate at tax sale, cannot recover of the owner the repayment of taxes paid after the redemption thereof. Byington v. Allen, 11 Id., 3; Same v. Walsh, Id., 27.

An acceptance by the tax purchaser of the amount paid by the owner to the treasurer to redeem lands from tax sale, operates as a ratification of the act of the officer in issuing a certificate of redemption. Byington v. Hampton, 13 Id., 23.

The time of redemption of lands sold for taxes, is governed by the law under which it was sold, and not that under which it was assessed. Negus v. Yancey & Smith, 22 Id., 57.

Where in a proceeding to redeem from tax sales it was found that one of the sales was invalid by reason of several tracts having been sold together, while the other sales were valid, and no certificate of redemption shall be held as evidence of such redemption without such signature of treasurer.⁶

SEC. 892. If real property of any minor or lunatic is sold for taxes, the same may be redeemed at any time within one year after such disability is removed, in the manner specified in the following section, or such redemption may be made by the guardian or legal representative under section eight hundred and ninety, at any time before the delivery of the deed.⁷

SEC. 893. Any person entitled to redeem lands sold for taxes after the delivery of the deed, shall redeem the same by an equitable action in a court of record, in which all persons claiming an interest in the land derived from the tax sale, as shown by the record, shall be made defendants, and the courts shall determine the rights, claims, and interest of the several parties, including liens for taxes and claims for improvements made on the land by the person claiming under the tax title. And no person shall be allowed to redeem land sold for taxes in the plaintiff was held to the payment of the amount of legal taxes paid by defendant, with interest thereon at six per cent, under the invalid sale; and the statute penalty and interest thereon in the valid sales, together with the subsequent taxes paid by the defendant. Curl v. Watson, 25 Id., 35.

A payment to the auditor, by the owner of land sold for taxes, of the amount necessary to redeem from the sales of two years, has the effect to redeem from both sales, notwithstanding the auditor fails to issue a certificate showing a redemption from both, and the treasurer executes a deed under the sale not recited in the certificate. Corbin v. Stewart, 44 Id., 543.

In redeeming but a part of lands sold in gross, the purchaser, or the clerk [auditor] when acting in his stead, has the right to demand only the money paid at the tax sale for the part redeemed, with the penalties and interest thereon, regardless of the fact whether the property was assessed and taxed at more or less than its actual relative value. Penn v. Clemons, 19 Id., 373.

Where one sale was invalid because of several parcels being sold together, while the other sales were valid, it was held that the plaintiff must pay the amount of legal taxes paid by defendant under the first sale, with six per cent interest thereon; and must also pay the statute penalty and interest upon the other sales and subsequent taxes paid by defendant. Id.

* The county treasurer has no right to disregard the act of the county auditor in permitting redemption from tax sale to be made, and to execute a tax deed after such redemption; and an action will not lie against the treasurer for a refusal to execute a deed to the purchaser in such case. Hartman v. Anderson, 48 Iowa, 309.

with him. Jacobs v. Porter et al., 34 Iowa, 341; Stout v. Merrill, 35 Id., 47.

It was held in Curl v. Watson, 25 Iowa, 35, that a person owning any interest in real property subject to redemption from tax sale, might redeem the whole property; and that the purchaser could require him to redeem the whole, if any. See, also, Meyers v. Copeland, 20 Id., 22; Burton v. Hintrager, 18 Id., 348. The apparent conflict with these cases is explained by COLE, J., in Jacobs v. Porter, supra. See, also, Miller v. Porter, 35 Id., 166.

This section gives to minors the right to redeem their lands sold for taxes, after the deed has been made. Tallman v. Cooke, 39 Id., 402.

The minor must be the owner of the lands sold for taxes at the time of such sale to be entitled to an extension of the time of redemption beyond the three years prescribed by law. A subsequently acquired title does not invest a minor with such right. Burton v. Hintrager, 18 Id., 348.

As the law stood under section 779 of the revision of 1860, a married woman was permitted to redeem her lands sold for taxes at any time within one year after the termination of her coverture. Myers v. Copeland et al., 20 Id., 22; Pfiffner v. Krapfel, 28 Id., 27. The code, however, makes no such provision in respect to married women as was contained in that section.

An action by a minor, under the next section, to redeem from a tax sale, is not barred until one year after he has attained his majority. Rankin v. Miller, 43 Id., 11.

The production from the custody of the guardian of a minor, who was a near relative, of an unacknowledged deed to land, sold after the date of such deed for delinquent taxes, was held not to make a prima facie case of ownership in the minor, at the time of the tax sale, entitling him to redeem therefrom. Walker v. Sargent, 47 Id., 448.

An action by the heir of a minor to redeem from tax sale must be commenced within one year after the death of the minor. Gibbs v. Sawyer, 48 Id., 443.

EXECUTION OF DEED—NOTICE GIVEN.

Ch. 124, 14 G. A.

SEC. 894. After the expiration of two years and nine months after the date of sale of the land for taxes, the lawful holder of the certificate of purchase may cause to be served upon the person in possession of such land or town lot, and also upon the person in whose name the same is taxed, if such person resides in the county where the land is situated, in the manner provided by law for the service of original notices, a notice signed by him, his agent or attorney, stating the date of sale, the description of the land or town lot sold, the name of the purchaser, and that the right of redemption will expire and a deed for said land be made, unless redemption from such sale be made within ninety days from the completed service thereof. Service may be made upon non-residents of the county by publishing the same three times in some newspaper printed in said county, and if no newspaper is printed in said county, then in the nearest newspaper published in this state. But any such non-resident may file with the treasurer of the county a written appointment of some resident of the county where his lands or lots are situated as agent upon whom service shall be made, and in such case, personal service of said notice shall be made upon said agent. Service shall be deemed completed when an affidavit of the service of said notice, and of the particular mode thereof, duly signed and verified by the holder of the certificate of purchase, his agent, or attorney, shall have been filed with the treasurer authorized to execute the tax-deed. Such affidavit shall be filed by said treasurer, and entered upon the records of his office, and said record or affidavit shall be presumptive evidence of the completed service of notice herein required, and, until ninety days after the service of said notice, the right of redemption from such sale shall not expire. Any person swearing falsely to any fact or statement contained in said affidavit, shall be deemed guilty of perjury and punished accordingly. The cost of serving said notice, whether by publication or otherwise, together with the cost of the affidavit, shall be added to the redemption money.

When deed shall be made.
R. §§ 781, 782.

SEC. 895. Immediately after the expiration of ninety days from the date of service of the written notice hereinbefore provided, the treasurer then in office shall make out a deed for each lot or parcel of land sold and remaining unredeemed, and deliver the same to the purchaser upon the return of the certificate of purchase. The treasurer shall demand twenty-five cents for each deed made by him on such sales, but any number of parcels of land bought by one person may be included in one deed, if desired by the purchaser.⁵

⁵ Where the county treasurer has made a tax deed so imperfect and irregular as not to pass the title, he may on his own motion, where the law has been substantially complied with, make a second or other deed, correct in fact and regular in form, so as to invest the purchaser with the legal title. McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Iowa, 356; Parker v. Sexton & Son, Id., 421; Hurley v. Street, Id., 428; Johnson v. Chase, 30 Id., 202; Gray v. Coan, Id., 536; Genther v. Fuller, 36 Id., 604.

But when the treasurer has made and delivered to the purchaser a valid deed in compliance with the statute and the sale, he cannot divest or in any manner affect the title thus conveyed by the execution of a second deed. Bulkley v. Callanan, 32 Id., 461.

Where a tax deed does not conform in its recital to the facts, the treasurer is authorized to execute a second and corrected deed, but he has no power to execute a deed which shall misstate the facts respecting any proceedings prior to its

SEC. 896. Deeds executed by the treasurer shall be substantially in the following form:

Know all men by these presents, that whereas the following described real property, viz.: (here follows the description) situated in the county of and state of Iowa, was subject to taxation for the year (or years) A. D.; and whereas the taxes assessed upon said real property for the year (or years) aforesaid remained due and unpaid at the date of the sale hereinafter named; and whereas, the treasurer of said county did, on the day of, A. D. 18...., by virtue of the authority in him vested by law, at (an adjournment of) the sale begun and publicly held on the first Monday of, A. D. 18...., expose to public sale at the office of the county treasurer in the county aforesaid, in substantial conformity with all the requisitions of the statute in such case made and provided, the real property above described, for the payment of the taxes, interest, and costs then due and remaining unpaid on said property; and whereas, at the time and place aforesaid, A. B. of the county of, and state of, having offered to pay the sum of dollars and cents, being the whole amount of taxes, interest, and costs then due and remaining unpaid on said property, for (here follows the description of the property sold) which was the least quantity bid for; and payment of said sum having been by him made to said treasurer, said property was stricken off to him at that price; and whereas, the said A. B. did, on the day of, A. D. 18...., duly assign the certificate of the sale of the property as aforesaid and all his right, title, and interest to said property to E. F., of the county of, and state of and whereas, by the affidavit of, filed in said treasurer's office on the day of, A. Now, therefore, I, C. D., treasurer of the county aforesaid, for and in consideration of said sum to the treasurer paid as aforesaid, and by virtue of the statute in such case made and provided, have granted, bargained, and sold, and by these presents do grant, bargain, and sell unto the said A. EFFECT OF DEED.

Vests title in purchaser. R. § 784.

Is presumptive evidence.

SEC. 897. The deed shall be signed by the treasurer in his official capacity, and acknowledged by him before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds; and, when substantially thus executed and recorded in the proper record of titles to real estate, shall vest in the purchaser all the right, title, interest, and estate of the former owner in and to the land conveyed, and also all the right, title, interest, and claim of the state and county thereto, and shall be presumptive evidence in all the courts of this state, in all controversies and suits in relation to the rights of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, to the land thereby conveyed, of the following facts:

1. That the real property conveyed was subject to taxation for the year or years stated in the deed;
2. That the taxes were not paid at any time before the sale;
3. That the real property conveyed had not been redeemed from the sale at the date of the deed;
4. That the property had been listed and assessed;
5. That the taxes were levied according to law;
6. That the property was duly advertised for sale;
7. That the property was sold for taxes as stated in the deed. And it shall be conclusive evidence of the following facts:

Is conclusive.

1. That the manner in which the listing, assessment, levy, notice, and sale were conducted was in all respects as the law directed;
2. That the grantee named in the deed was the purchaser;
3. That all the prerequisites of the law were complied with by all the officers who had, or whose duty it was to have had, any part or action in any transaction relating to or affecting the title conveyed, or purporting to be conveyed, by the deed, from the listing and valuation of the property up to the execution of the deed, both inclusive, and that all things whatsoever required by law to make a good and valid sale, and to vest the title in the purchaser were done, except in regard to the points named in this section, wherein the deed shall be presumptive evidence only.

What must be proved to defeat title.

And in all controversies and suits involving the title to real property claimed and held under and by virtue of a deed executed substantially as aforesaid by the treasurer, the person claiming title adverse to the title conveyed by such deed, shall be required to prove, in order to defeat the said title, either that the said real property was not subject to taxation for the year or years named in the deed, that the taxes had been paid before the sale, that the property had been redeemed from the sale according to the provisions of this chapter, and that such redemption was had or made for the use and benefit of persons having the right of redemption under the laws of this state, or, that there had been an entire omission to list or assess the property, or to levy the taxes, or to give notice of the sale, or to sell the property; but no person shall be permitted to question the title acquired by a treasurer's deed without first showing that he, or the person under whom he claims title, had title to the property at the time of the sale, or that the title was obtained from the United States or this state after the sale, and that all taxes due upon the property have been paid by such person, or the person under whom he claims title as aforesaid; provided, that in any case where a person had paid his taxes, and through mistake in the entry made in the treasurer's books or in the receipt, the land upon which the taxes were paid was afterwards sold, the treasurer's deed shall not convey the title; provided further, that in all cases where the owner of lands sold for taxes shall resist the validity of such tax title, such owner may prove fraud committed by the officer selling the same, or in the purchaser to defeat the same, and if fraud is so established such sale and title shall be void.¹

In case of mistake or fraud.

¹A tax deed is by the statute made evidence of a compliance with the requirements of the law anterior to the execution of the deed; and a party claiming under such deed is not bound, as preliminary to his right to introduce the same in evidence, to first prove an assessment, levy, advertisement, etc. Allen v. Armstrong, 16 Iowa, 508.

A tax deed, regular in form, is prima facie evidence that all of the essential prerequisites to the exercise of the taxing power have been complied with, notwithstanding it has been held that the portion of the statute making the deed conclusive evidence of such essentials is unconstitutional. McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356; Hurley v. Woodruff, 30 Id., 259.

The provisions of section 784 of the revision of 1860, making the tax deed conclusive evidence of matters vital and essential to any valid exercise of the taxing power were first questioned by the supreme court in Allen v. Armstrong, supra.

It was held in that case that the provisions of the revenue law making the deed conclusive evidence of due notice of the sale, is valid and binding, as such notice is not essential to an exercise of the taxing power. Id.

It was again doubted in Adams v. Beale, 19 Id., 61.

In McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Iowa, 356, it was held that the clause of the revenue law which made the treasurer's deed conclusive evidence of the regularity of all prior proceedings, was unconstitutional, as depriving a person of his property without due process of law, so far as respects the essential prerequisites for the exercise of the taxing power, such as the assessment, levy, sale, and the like; as to non-essentials, or matters merely directory, it was held constitutional. To the same effect is Rima v. Cowan, 31 Id., 125; Hurley v. Powell, Levy & Co., Id., 64; Powers v. Fuller, 30 Id., 475.

While as to the fact of an assessment, levy, and sale, the tax deed is not conclusive, and it is not competent for the legislature to make it so, yet it is conclusive as to the manner thereof. Bulkley v. Callanan, 32 Id., 461. See, also, as holding the same doctrine, Hubbard v. Board of Supervisors, 20 Id., 134; Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Id., 160; McCready v. Sexton & Son, supra; Martin v. Cole, 38 Id., 141.

A tax deed is conclusive as to the manner in which the sale was conducted; and if the deed shows that the sale was made in a manner which under some circumstances would have been proper, those circumstances will conclusively be presumed to have existed. Ware v. Little, 35 Id., 234.

The tax deed is prima facie evidence of the fact of assessment, and this prima facie case is not overcome by the introduction of the assessor's book in which it does not appear who was the assessor, whether he qualified before entering on the discharge of his duties, nor when the assessment was made. The omitted facts may be shown by other evidence than the assessment book. Genther v. Fuller, 36 Id., 604.

But the prima facie evidence of the fact of assessment furnished by the tax deed may be overcome by the introduction of the records of the board of supervisors which fails to show any assessment, provided the records are complete and free from mutilation. Easton v. Savery, 44 Id., 654.

The same rule applies in respect to a levy. Early v. Whittingham, 43 Id., 162.

The tax deed is prima facie evidence of the fact of sale, and conclusive evidence of the manner thereof, and the regularity of the proceedings. Levit v. Watson, 37 Id., 93.

A tax deed showing that the land was sold at an adjourned sale, without reciting the causes for adjournment, is at least prima facie evidence that the sale was properly held, and that proper cause for the adjournment existed. Lorain v. Smith et al., Id., 67.

A tax deed is conclusive evidence that the property was listed and assessed at the time and manner required by law. Easton v. Perry et al., Id., 631; McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356.

The deed is prima facie evidence of the assessment, and conclusive evidence of the advertisement of the sale. Madson v. Sexton, 37 Id., 562; Allen v. Armstrong, 16 Id., 508; McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356.

Previous sales not affected by code.

SEC. 898. The provisions of this title shall not affect sales hereto-

Where no invalidity appears on the face of the tax deed it is, it seems, conclusive evidence that the sale was conducted in the manner required by law. Smith v. Easton, 37 Id., 584. See, also, Jeffrey v. Brokaw, 35 Id., 505.

As to all matters relating to the manner of sale, the tax deed is conclusive; and this rule of the statute prevails in equity cases as in actions at law. Clark v. Thompson, Stone v. Same, 37 Id., 536.

But the record of a tax sale will prevail as against recitals in a certificate. Id.

A memorandum of the treasurer showing an adjournment of the sale cannot be received in evidence to contradict or invalidate the tax deed. Id.

The provisions of section 784 of the revision (897 of the code), do not apply to the case of one resisting a tax deed upon the ground that the land embraced in the deed was not in fact assessed. In so far as that section of the revision made the deed conclusive evidence of the fact of assessment it was unconstitutional. Imme-gart v. Gorgas et al., 41 Id., 439. Following McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356.

The deed is not conclusive of the manner of the assessment in such a sense as to cure indefiniteness in the description upon the assessor's books, and identify the land sold as that assessed. Id.

If there has been a bona fide sale, in substance or in fact, the tax deed is conclusive evidence that it was done at the proper time and in the proper manner. Phelps v. Meade et al., 41 Id., 470; Gould v. Thompson, 45 Id., 450.

The statute has received the same construction by the Supreme Court of the United States in Callanan v. Hurley.

It is only in a qualified sense, however, that the tax deed is conclusive evidence of the regularity of the sale, it being always competent to show fraud committed by the officer conducting the sale or the purchaser. Butler v. Delano, 42 Id., 350.

The prima facie evidence of an assessment, afforded by a tax deed, will be overcome where there are no records showing that there was any assessment, levy or sale for a certain year, nor evidence that such records had once existed and been lost. Early v. Whittingham, 43 Id., 162.

Proof that there was no public sale of the land, and that the sale occurred at a time to which there had been no adjournment of the prior sale will overcome the prima facie evidence of the sale presented by the deed. Thompson v. Ware, Id., 455.

Where parol evidence had been admitted on the trial to show that the land embraced in a tax deed was sold en masse with other parcels the jury should have been instructed either that the deed was conclusive of the regularity of the sale, or that there was no question before them on that point. Chandler v. Keiler, 44 Id., 413.

Where the certificate of sale and tax deed describe land having no necessary identity with that which has been taxed and upon which taxes are delinquent, they do not themselves constitute sufficient evidence to uphold the tax deed, but rather negative it. The Blair Town Lot Co. v. Scott, Id., 143.

A tax deed conveys no title where the evidence shows that the taxes were paid before the sale. Waters v. Glats, 29 Id., 437.

The deed is only prima facie evidence that the taxes were unpaid before the sale or not redeemed from the sale, and the establishment of either fact defeats it. Fenton v. Way, 40 Id., 196.

A tax deed which shows a sale to have been in forty-acre tracts will not be defeated by evidence tending to show a sale in quarter-sections. Sibley v. Bullis, 40 Id., 429.

The owner of land may defeat the tax sale by showing fraud committed by the officer conducting the sale, or by the purchaser. McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356; Corbin v. Beebe, 36 Id., 336.

This may be done in defense to an action at law. A separate proceeding to establish the fraud and annul the sale is not necessary. Corbin v. Beebe, supra.

The act of the treasurer in bidding off lands at a tax sale conducted by himself, as agent of the purchaser from whom he had received money to be so invested, and from whom he was to receive a certain per centum as compensation, is fraudulent, and vitiates the sale. Corbin v. Beebe, 36 Id., 336.

To enable one, resisting a tax title, to defeat it by showing fraud on the part of the officer conducting the sale, it is not necessary to show payment or tender of payment of taxes. The restrictions imposed upon one defending against a tax title by section 897 of the code (section 784, revision), do not apply to the defense of fraud pointed out in the proviso of the section. Id.

Fraud committed by a purchaser at tax sale, as, by combination with other purchasers, will not defeat the title of a subsequent purchaser without notice of the fraud, and for value. Van Shaack v. Robbins, 36 Id., 201.

Where a combination is entered into by bidders at a tax sale, to the effect that they will not bid against each other, or that they will bid in turn, the sale is void. Kerwer v. Allen, 31 Id., 578; Light v. West, 42 Id., 138; Pearson v. Robinson, 44 Id., 413; Eason v. Mackinney, 37 Id., 601; Martin v. Cole, 38 Id., 141; Van Shaack v. Robbins, 36 Id., 102; Sibley v. Bullis, 40 Id., 429.

Where a tax purchaser subsequently assigned his certificate to another who had an agent bidding for him at the same sale, the latter announcing for whom his bids were made, it was fore made, or tax deeds given in pursuance of sales made before the taking effect of this code.¹

SALES WRONGFULLY MADE.

SEC. 899. When by mistake or wrongful act of the treasurer, land has been sold on which no tax was due at the time, or whenever land is sold in consequence of error in describing such land in the tax reheld there was no illegal combination vitiating the sale. Pearson v. Robinson, 44 Id., 413.

That one acts as the agent of two purchasers at a tax sale does not per se constitute fraudulent and illegal combination. Id.

Where there has been no levy, the sale is absolutely void, and a good faith purchaser for value acquires no title thereunder, because this is a defect which the records of the county disclose, but where the assessment and other jurisdictional steps are regular, fraud may defeat the sale, but it will not render it a nullity. Ellis v. Peck, 45 Id., 112.

That the treasurer made a mistake and deceived the agent of the owner, by representing that the taxes had been paid for a certain year, are not sufficient to invalidate a sale for the unpaid taxes of that year, unless some collusion or fraudulent combination be shown between the treasurer and the purchaser. McGahan v. Carr, 6 Id., 331.

As to when evidence of misconduct of tax purchaser will not be admitted to impeach sale, see Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Id., 160.

Where a party attacking the validity of a tax title avers that he is ready and willing and offers to pay to the opposite party the amount paid by him at the tax sale, together with all subsequent taxes, interest and costs; it is error for the court to render judgment setting aside the tax sale, without requiring the payment of the money so tendered. Corbin v. Woodbine, 33 Id., 297.

It is the tax deed and not the sale that divests the owner of his title, and if redemption is duly made from the sale before execution of the deed it divests the lien of the tax, and leaves it as free as before. Lake v. Gray, 35 Id., 44.

Where the tax deed recites the sale to have been made on the 26th day of February, when in fact it was made on the 26th day of January of the same year the sale will not be thereby rendered invalid. Hurlburt v. Dyer, 36 Id., 474.

A mortgagor or one claiming under him, cannot defeat the lien of the mortgage by acquiring a tax title upon the land. Fair v. Brown et al., 40 Id., 209.

A lien holder cannot acquire a title by purchase at tax sale which will defeat the lien of another incumbrancer. Id.; see also Garretson v. Schofield, 44 Id., 35.

A tenant in common cannot acquire a tax title to defeat the interest of his co-tenant, the interest he acquires being held for the benefit of the latter. And the rule is the same where one is the assignee of a tax certificate, and afterwards becomes a tenant in common, before he receives the tax deed. Flinn v. McKinley, 44 Id., 68; see also Austin v. Barrett, Id., 488.

Where a party claims under two tax sales of the same property, upon the first sale being shown to be void, it is competent to introduce the second deed to establish his title. Mallory v. French, 44 Id., 133.

The purchase of lands at tax sale by one claiming to be the owner thereof is invalid, and confers no right or title thereto. Thomas v. Stickle, 32 Id., 71.

A tax deed is conclusive evidence that the treasurer took proceedings to collect the tax by distress and sale of personal property of the delinquent tax payer, before selling real estate. Stewart v. Corbin, 25 Id., 145.

Where a tax deed is set aside for fraud or other causes, the holder thereof may recover from the owner of the land an amount equal to the sum which would have been necessary to discharge the land from taxes if they had not been paid by the purchaser. Besore v. Dosh, 43 Id., 211.

When land is assessed to the owner and also to an "unknown owner" for the same tax, the latter assessment is void, and a sale thereunder confers no title on the purchaser. Nichols v. McGlathery, Id., 189.

Where the agent of a purchaser of lands sold for taxes selected certain lands upon which the taxes were delinquent which he desired to purchase, and thereupon the treasurer marked and entered them upon the books as sold, the sale was held void. Miller v. Corbin et al., 46 Id., 150.

Such sale being fraudulent as against the owner of the land, his right to question the tax title is not defeated by the provisions of section 897 of the code, even though he has not paid all the taxes due on the land. Id.; also, Corbin v. Beebe, 36 Id., 336.

A tax deed, by the provisions of this section, vests in the purchaser all the interest of the holder of the patent title, and the latter may avail himself of the statute of limitations as a defense against the contract to convey the same, as the patent owner could have done. Byington v. Stone et al., 51 Id., 317.

ceipt, the county is to hold the purchaser harmless by paying him the amount of principal and interest and costs to which he would have been entitled had the land been rightfully sold, and the treasurer and his bondsmen will be liable to the county to the amount of his official bond; or the purchaser, or his assignee, may recover directly of the treasurer, in an action brought to recover the same in any court having jurisdiction of the amount, and judgment shall be against him and his bondsmen; but the treasurer or his bondsmen shall be liable only for his own or his deputy's acts.^k

Interest acquired by purchaser in school or university lands, etc., etc.

Same provisions to apply to other lands.

"SEC. 900. [Whenever any school or university land, bought on a credit, is sold for taxes, the purchaser at such tax sale, shall only acquire the interest of the original purchaser in such lands and no sale of any such lands for taxes shall prejudice the rights of the state or university therein, or preclude the recovery of the purchase money or interest due thereon; and in all cases were real estate is mortgaged, or otherwise encumbered, to the school or university fund, the interest of the person who holds the fee shall alone be sold for taxes, and in no case shall the lien or interest of the state be affected by any sale of such encumbered real estate made for taxes."^l

The foregoing provisions shall be extended to and shall include all lands exempted from taxation by the provisions of this title, including lands of the United States and of this state, or of any county, township, city, incorporated town, or school district, including agricultural college lands, swamp lands, burial grounds, fair grounds, public squares, public groves, or public ornamental grounds, and to any legal or equitable estate therein held, possessed or claimed for any public pur-

^k It was held in Coulter v. Mahaska County, 17 Iowa, 92, that, under section 785 of the revision, which was the same as 899 of the code, the county was not liable to the purchaser at a tax sale of lands sold by mistake or wrongfully, after chapter 173, of the laws of 1862 took effect, for the penalty of thirty per cent and interest thereon at ten per cent.

Where there has been a sale of land for taxes after the same were fully paid, the purchaser may recover of the county under this section. But if the owner redeems from such sale he cannot recover from the county the amount paid to redeem. Morris v. The County of Sioux, 42 Iowa, 416.

^l The purchaser, at a sale for taxes of lands incumbered by mortgage to the school fund, takes the same, subject to such encumbrance. Jasper County for use, etc. v. Rogers et al., 17 Iowa, 254.

Under section 811 of the revision, the substance of which is embodied in section 900 of the code, it was held that when the state becomes the purchaser of lands under the foreclosure of a mortgage executed to secure school funds loaned, it takes the property purchased unincumbered by any liens for delinquent taxes; and a purchaser of the same lands from the state acquires a title free of such liens. Helphrey v. Ross, 19 Iowa, 40.

A tax sale of real estate mortgaged to the school or university fund passes only the interest of the person who holds the fee title, and does not affect the mortgage or any encumbrance existing thereon in favor of either of such funds. Crum v. Cotting, 22 Id., 411.

Semble, that under the provisions of our statute, the title derived at a tax sale is not a derivative one, and, as such, subject on the one hand, to encumbrances and equities existing against the former owner, and on the other hand, clothed with rights and equities held by him against third persons, but a new and independent title, derived from the sovereign power under which the tax is levied, paramount to all previous interests, and freed from all encumbrances except in so far as specially provided in favor of the school and university funds. Id.

The rule that the interest of the state in property mortgaged to the school fund, and held by it as security will not be affected by the sale of such property for taxes, but that the interest only of the mortgagor is thereby affected, applies to all sales made after the enactment of section 811 of the revision, whether the taxes accrued after or before. The State v. Shaw, 28 Id., 67.

A sale for taxes of land mortgaged to the school or university fund conveys only the interest of the mortgagor, and does not divest the lien of the mortgage. Lovelace v. Berryhill, 36 Id., 379.

If the mortgage has been foreclosed, the purchaser at foreclosure sale takes the title free from the lien for taxes, etc. Id.

That the mortgage was made, to the board of trustees of the state university instead of the university, does not change the rule. Id.

pose, and no assessment or taxation of any such lands, nor the payment of any such taxes by any person, or the sale or conveyance for taxes of any such lands, shall in any manner affect the right or the title of the public therein, or prejudice the public thereto; nor shall any such payment or sale confer upon the purchaser or person who pays such taxes, any right or interest in such land adverse or prejudicial to the public right, title or ownership thereto.

Provided, That this section shall not in any manner affect or prejudice the rights of any person or party to any action now pending, which was commenced prior to the 4th day of July, 1876.]

SEC. 901. Whenever it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the county treasurer, either before the execution of a deed for real property sold for taxes, or if the deed be returned by the purchaser, that any tract or lot was sold which was not subject to taxation, or upon which the taxes had been paid previous to the sale, he shall make an entry opposite such tract or lot on the record of sales, that the same was erroneously sold, and such entry shall be evidence of the fact therein stated. And in such cases the purchase money shall be refunded to the purchaser as provided by this chapter.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

SEC. 902. No action for the recovery of real property sold for the non-payment of taxes shall lie, unless the same be brought within five years after the treasurer's deed is executed and recorded as above provided; provided, that where the owner of such real property sold as aforesaid, shall, at the time of such sale be a minor or insane, or convict in the penitentiary, five years after such disability shall be removed shall be allowed such person, his heirs, or legal representatives to bring their action.¹ exceptions.

¹ The limitation embraced in this section commences to run from the date of the execution and recording of the treasurer's deed, instead of from the time the land was struck off to the bidder at the sale. The word sale as used in section 790 of the revision, was construed to mean a completed sale which vested the title in the purchaser, and placed him in a position to have the legality thereof tested in the courts. Eldridge v. Kuehl, 27 Iowa, 160. The same holding followed in Henderson v. Oliver, 28 Id., 20; McCready v. Sexton & Son, 29 Id., 356.

This section does not preclude the person claiming under the tax sale and deed from bringing an action against the original owner of land sold for taxes, within the five years to cut off the right of such owner, and to quiet the title in himself. Stevenson v. Bonesteel, 30 Id., 286.

An action for the recovery of lands sold for taxes cannot be maintained, except in the case of minors and other cases excepted by the statute after the lapse of five years from the date of the execution and recording of the tax deed. Thomas v. Stickle, 32 Id., 71; Douglass v. Tullock, 34 Id., 262.

It was the purpose of the statute to cure all irregularities in the mode and manner of sale which, within the limitation fixed, might have rendered the sale invalid. It was accordingly held that, a tax deed, showing the land sold in bulk, was not excepted from the operation of the statute. Id.

The validity of a title acquired under a tax sale cannot be questioned after the lapse of five years from date of the execution and recording of the deed. Jeffrey v. Brokaw et al., 35 Id., 505.

Under this section an action by a purchaser at tax sale for the possession of distinct parcels of land which were sold in gross, and of which the original owner remained in undisturbed, adverse possession for more than five years after the deed was recorded, is barred. Brown & Sully v. Painter, 38 Id., 456. Followed in Laverty et al. v. Sexton & Son, 41 Id., 435.

No objections to the tax deed or proceedings prior thereto, or irregularities in the manner of assessment and levy, will operate to defeat the bar of the statute of limitations. Pierce v. Weare, 41 Id., 378.

Held, that an action for the recovery of land held and occupied under a tax deed based upon a fictional sale is not barred in five years. Early v. Whittington, 43 Id., 162.

The party in possession under such tax deed and sale, is entitled to receive from the owner a sum equal to all he has paid for subsequent taxes with interest at six per cent. Id.

deed to such land which was recorded more than five years prior to the commencement of the action, the holder of the tax deed is barred from setting up title thereunder. Wallace v. Sexton & Son, 44 Id., 257.

The purchaser of land at tax sale cannot maintain an action for its recovery after five years have elapsed from the date of recording the tax deed, where the owner has been in open, adverse possession during that period. Peck v. Sexton & Son, 41 Id., 566. Following Brown & Sully v. Painter, 38 Id., 456; see, also, Laverty v. Sexton & Son, 41 Id., 438; Wallace v. Sexton & Son et al., 44 Id., 257.

When the owner of land, sold for delinquent taxes, continues in the actual possession thereof, a purchaser at tax sale must bring his action for the recovery of the land within five years from the time his right to a deed becomes perfect, and he cannot by delaying the taking his deed, prevent the running of the statute of limitations against him. Hintrager v. Hennessy, 46 Id., 600; Thornton v. Jones, 47 Id., 397.

Where the purchaser at tax sale failed for more than eleven years to apply for his deed, it was held that the owner would be justified in presuming an abandonment of his right thereto by the tax purchaser, and that such purchaser could not afterwards defeat the title of the owner's grantee. Ockendon v. Barnes et ux., 43 Id., 615.

An action by a tenant in common to recover possession of the common property, which is fraudulently held by his co-tenant and to which the latter has acquired a tax deed, is not barred at the expiration of five years from the recording of the deed. Austin et al. v. Barrett, 44 Id., 488.

The fact that the owner of lands in this state resided in a state in rebellion, when the taxes accrued, does not excuse him from their payment. Finley v. Brown et al., 22 Id., 538.

If the sale for taxes is not simply irregular but absolutely void, it will not be protected by the statute of limitations. The owner of the land will not be charged with constructive notice of such sale. Nichols v. McGlathery, 43 Id., 189.

An action by the purchaser at tax sale to recover possession of the property sold for delinquent taxes, is barred after the expiration of five years from the time when he became entitled to a deed. Hintrager v. Hennessy, 46 Id., 600.

Where a tax sale is void and the purchaser not being in possession of the land, he cannot avail himself of the statute of limitations against the former owner. Miller v. Corbin et al., Id., 150.

An action to set aside a tax deed, by the original owner, will not be barred in five years from the time of the execution of the tax deed where the tax sale was void, or the taxes for which the land was sold had in fact been paid. Patton v. Luther et ux., 48 Id., 236.

The original owner of unoccupied lands, sold for taxes, who has remained in the constructive possession of the same until more than five years after the execution of a tax deed, void for the reason that the taxes had been paid, may maintain an action to quiet his title and remove the cloud created by the tax deed. Id.

Four years after the execution and recording of a tax deed, the holder of the patent title went into actual possession of the land, which was, up to that time, unoccupied prairie. After the expiration of five years from the recording of the tax deed the purchaser brought an action to recover the possession. Held:

1. That the limitation provided in section 902 of the code commenced to operate upon the tax deed at the time of the recording thereof, and the bar to an action to recover possession thereunder became complete at the expiration of five years.

2. Both patent owner and tax purchaser are to be regarded as continually claiming title from the time the deed is recorded, and neither has any right under the statute not enjoyed by the other.

3. It is within the province of the legislature to provide that an action for the recovery of lands, held by the assent or sufferance of the owner, and not adversely, will be barred within a prescribed time, and section 902 of the code is an exercise of this power. ADAMS, J., dissenting. Barrett v. Love, 48 Id., 103.

The holder of a tax deed will be deemed to be in the possession of unoccupied land, and if such possession is uninterrupted during five years from the date of the execution and recording of the tax deed, the title acquired thereby becomes perfect and complete. БЕК, Сн. J., and РОТНРОСК, J., dissenting. Moingona Coal Co. v. Blair, 51 Id., 447.

Where the defendant claimed title under a tax deed recorded November 8, 1869, the plaintiff claiming as owner of the patent title, went into possession of the land in 1875, prior to which it had been vacant and unoccupied, it was held that an action for its recovery by the owner of the patent title was barred by section 902 of the code, and that his possession was that of a mere trespasser. 51 Id., 1.

^m That an assessor was not duly qualified when acting as an officer de facto, he assessed property, does not invalidate such assessment, or affect the validity of a sale for taxes. Allen v. Armstrong, 16 Iowa, 503.

PROVISIONS FOR THE SECURITY OF THE REVENUE.

County responsible for state tax.
R. § 793.

SECTION 908. Each county is responsible to the state for the full amount of tax levied for state purposes, excepting such amounts as are certified to be unavailable, double, or erroneous assessments, as hereinafter provided.

When treasurer is a defaulter.
R. § 794.

SEC. 909. If any county treasurer prove to be a defaulter to any amount of state revenue, such amount shall be made up to the state within the next three coming years by additional levies, in such manner as to annual amounts as the board of supervisors may direct. In such cases the county can have recourse to the official bond of the treasurer for indemnity.^a

R. § 795.

SEC. 910. When interest is due and is allowed by the treasurer of any county, or the state treasurer, on the redemption of auditor's warrants, or county warrants, the same shall be receipted on the warrants by the holder of the same, with the date of the payment, and no interest shall be allowed by the auditor of state or board of supervisors except such as is thus receipted.

Penalty for discounting warrants.
R. § 796.

SEC. 911. If the state treasurer, or any county treasurer, discount auditor's warrants at less than the amount due thereon, either directly or indirectly, or through third persons, they shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, to be prosecuted as other fines.

And the state treasurer shall be liable to a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars for a like misdemeanor, to be prosecuted by the attorney-general in the name of the state. PAYMENTS BY COUNTY TREASURER.

SEC. 913. At their regular meeting in January and June, of each year, the board of supervisors shall make a full and complete settlement with the county treasurer, and they shall make and certify to the auditor of state, all credits to the treasurer for double or erroneous assessments, and unavailable taxes, also all dues for state revenue interest, or delinquent taxes, sales of land, peddler's licenses, and other dues, if any; also the amounts collected for these several items, and revenues still delinquent, each year to itself. The treasurer of each county shall, on or before the fifteenth day of each month, prepare a sworn statement of the amount of money in his hands on the first day of that month belonging to the state treasury, and forward the same by mail to the auditor of state, and he shall, each year, unless otherwise directed by the state auditor, pay into the state treasury, on or before the fifteenth day of March, all the money due the state remaining in his hands on the first day of March, and on or before the fifteenth day of November, all the money due the state remaining in his hands on the first day of November; he shall also, at any time when directed by the auditor of state, forthwith pay into the state treasury, or to the treasurer of any county, any or all the money due the state and remaining in his hands. In case the treasurer of any county shall fail to prepare and forward the statement required in this section, he shall forfeit and pay for each and every failure a sum not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the name of the state auditor, against him and his bondsmen, in any court of record.

R. § 799.

Amended by § 1,

° See State v. Brandt, 41 Iowa, par. 7 of opinion, on p. 612.

County treasurers are prohibited from loaning out, or in any manner using for private purposes state or county funds in their hands, and depositing such funds in a bank on account, even where no interest is to be paid by the bank, is a loaning within the meaning of the statute, and the fact that the county does not provide a safe, or suitable place where its money may be kept, will not release the treasurer from liability if he deposits in bank where, by reason of the failure of the bank, it is lost. Lowrey v. Polk County, 51 Iowa, 50.

^p A county treasurer and his sureties are liable, on his official bond, for moneys received by him from tax payers, in partial payment of taxes. Warren County v. Ward et al., 21 Iowa, 84.

The sureties on a treasurer's bond are not liable for his delinquencies prior to the execution of the bond. Id.

A judgment against a treasurer and his sureties upon his first bond, for a breach in refusing to account for moneys received after its execution, and before the execution of a second bond, is no bar to an action on the second bond for a failure to account for moneys received after its execution, but during the same term of office. Id.

R. § 801.

SEC. 916. The state auditor shall make and transmit to each county auditor, on the first day of May of each year, a statement of the county treasurer's account with the state treasurer, which account shall be submitted by said auditor to the board of supervisors at their next meeting, and if they find the same to be incorrect in any particular, they shall forthwith certify the facts in relation to the same to the auditor of state.

Treasurer to settle with supervisors and deliver to successor all public property.
R. § 802.

SEC. 917. When a county treasurer goes out of office, he shall make a full and complete settlement with the board of supervisors, and deliver up all books, papers, moneys, and all other property appertaining to the office, to his successor, taking his receipt therefor. The board of supervisors shall make a statement, so far as state dues are concerned, to the auditor of state, showing all charges against the treasurer during his term of office, and all credits made, the delinquent taxes and other unfinished business charged over to his successor, and the amount of money paid over to his successor, showing to what year and to what account the amount so paid over belongs. They shall also see that the books of the treasurer are correctly balanced before passing into the possession and control of the treasurer elect.

State treasurer keep funds separate: state and county to account.
R. § 804.

SEC. 918. The state treasurer shall keep each distinct fund coming into his possession as public money, in a separate apartment of his safe, and, at each quarterly settlement with the state auditor, he shall count each fund in the presence of the auditor to see if the same agrees with the balance found on the books. The total amount acknowledged to belong to each fund shall be exhibited before the count. County treasurers shall account with such persons as the board of supervisors may direct in like manner, and a report of such accounting shall be made to the board at their next meeting, by the person so appointed by them.

Penalty for failure to perform duty.
Ch. 75, § 3, 12 G. A.

SEC. 919. If any county auditor, or county treasurer, or other officer shall neglect or refuse to perform any act or duty specifically required of him by any provision of this title, such officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and indicted therefor; and, being found guilty, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, for the payment whereof his bondsmen shall also be liable; and he and his bondsmen shall also be liable to an action on his official bond for the damages sustained by any person through such neglect or refusal.

TITLE VII.

OF HIGHWAYS, FERRIES, AND BRIDGES.

CHAPTER 1.

OF ESTABLISHING HIGHWAYS.

R. § 819.

SECTION 920. The board of supervisors has the general supervision over the highways in the county, with power to establish and change them as herein provided, and to see that the laws in relation to them are carried into effect. ^a Width.

R. §§ 820, 821.

SEC. 921. Highways hereafter established must be sixty-six feet in width, unless otherwise directed; but the board of supervisors may, for good reasons, fix a different width, not less than forty feet, and they may be increased or diminished within the limits aforesaid, altered in direction, or discontinued, by pursuing substantially the steps herein prescribed for opening a new highway. ^b

Petition.

SEC. 922. Any person desiring the establishment, vacation, or alteration of a highway, shall file in the auditor's office of the proper county, a petition in substance as follows: To the board of supervisors of county: The undersigned asks that a highway, commencing at, and running thence and terminating at, be established, vacated, or altered (as the case may be.) ^c

Bond.
R. § 826.

SEC. 923. Before filing such petition the auditor shall require the petitioner to file in his office a bond, with sureties to be approved by such auditor, conditioned that all expenses growing out of the application will be paid by the obligors in case the contemplated highway is not finally established, altered, or vacated, as asked in the petition.

^a The board of supervisors is invested with power to erect all bridges in the county which may be necessary, and which the public convenience may require; and may levy a tax for that purpose not exceeding three mills on the dollar. Bell v. Foutch, 21 Iowa, 119.

The board of supervisors have power, at their discretion, to establish and change highways, of which bridges erected by the public constitute a part; and where a bridge has fallen down which they refuse to rebuild, mandamus will not lie to compel them to do so. The State ex rel. Houck v. Morris et al., 43 Id., 192.

Where the county auditor has illegally established a highway forty feet wide, the board of supervisors has jurisdiction to vacate the same. The State v. Wagner, 45 Id., 482.

^b The county auditor has no power to establish a highway of less than sixty-six feet in width, the power to establish such an one being vested in the board of supervisors alone, who may exercise it for good and sufficient reasons. The State v. Wagner, Id.; see also Patterson v. Vail, 43 Id., on p. 145.

^c A petition which asks for "the appointment of a commissioner to open a road," instead of following the language of the statute and ask for "the establishment of a road," is a substantial compliance with the statute. So, also, a notice of the time when the application for the road will be made, using the same language, is sufficient. McCollister v. Shuey, 24 Iowa, 362.

Proceedings in the establishment of a road will not be annulled on certiorari unless it is shown that the inferior tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction, or is otherwise acting illegally. Id.

SEC. 924. If satisfied that the foregoing prerequisites have been complied with, the auditor shall appoint some suitable and disinterested elector of the county a commissioner to examine into the expediency of the proposed highway, alteration, or vacation thereof, and report accordingly.^d

Auditor appoint commissioner.
R. § 828.

DUTY OF COMMISSIONER.

SEC. 925. The commissioner is not confined to the precise matter of the petition, but may inquire and determine whether that or any highway in the vicinity, answering the same purpose and in substance the same, be required; but such highway must not be established through any burying ground which is exempt from execution; nor through any garden, orchard, or ornamental ground contiguous to any dwelling house, [nor] so as to cause the removal of any building without the consent of the owner.

Not confined to matter of petition.

Amended by Ch. 50, 18 G. A.

SEC. 926. In forming his judgment, he must take into consideration both the public and private convenience, and also the expense of the proposed highway.

Convenience considered.
R. § 831.

SEC. 927. After a general examination, if he shall not be in favor of establishing the proposed highway, he will so report, and no further proceedings shall be had thereon.

Report.
R. § 832.

SEC. 928. If he deems such establishment expedient, he may proceed at once to lay out the highway as hereinafter directed, and may report accordingly, if the circumstances of the case are such as to enable him to do so, without pursuing the course pointed out in the next section.

To lay out highway.
R. § 833.

SEC. 929. If the precise location of the highway cannot be otherwise given, he must cause the line of the highway to be accurately surveyed and plainly marked out.

Survey made.
R. § 834.

SEC. 930. Any commissioner, other than the county surveyor, must be sworn to faithfully and impartially discharge his duty as such commissioner, and, after being thus qualified, he shall have power to swear the assistants employed to a faithful and impartial performance of their respective duties in laying out the highway described in his commission.

Commissioner sworn.
Ch. 27, 14 G. A.

SEC. 931. Mile posts must be set up at the end of every mile and the distance marked thereon, and stakes must be set at each change of direction, on which shall be marked the bearing of the new course. Stakes must also be set at the crossing of fences and streams, and at intervals in the prairie not exceeding a quarter of a mile each; in the timber, the course must be indicated by trees suitably blazed.

Mile posts and stakes set up.
R. § 836.

SEC. 932. Bearing trees must, when convenient, be established at each angle and mile post, and the position of the highway relative to the corners of sections, the junction of streams, or any other natural or artificial monument, or conspicuous object, must, as far as convenient, be stated in the field notes and shown on the plat.^e

Bearing trees: monuments.
R. § 837.

SEC. 933. A correct plat of the highway, together with a copy of the field notes of the surveyor, if one has been employed, must be filed as part of the commissioner's report.

Plat and field notes.
R. § 838.

^d As to the power of the board to delegate authority to clerk, see The State v. Kimball, 23 Iowa, 531.

^e The provisions of sections 931 and 932, relating to fixing mile posts and other monuments, and the making of field notes and plat, are directory, and a failure to comply therewith will not render the proceeding invalid. McCollister v. Shuey, 24 Iowa, 362.

Report: day fixed for claiming damages. R. §§ 840, 841.

SEC. 934. Within thirty days from the day of his appointment, the commissioner must file his report in the auditor's office, and if it be in favor of the establishment of the highway, the auditor must appoint a day, not less than sixty nor more than ninety days distant, when the matter will be acted upon; on or before which day, all objections to the establishment of the highway and claims for damages by reason of the establishment thereof, must be filed with the auditor.

Auditor fix day for commissioner to begin. R. § 829.

SEC. 935. The time for the commissioner to commence the examination shall be fixed by the auditor, and if he fails to so commence, or to report as prescribed in the preceding section, the auditor may fix another day or extend the time for making such report, or may appoint another commissioner.

NOTICE—HIGHWAY ESTABLISHED.

Notice served on each land owner or published.

SEC. 936. Within twenty days after the day is fixed by the auditor as above provided, a notice shall be served on each owner or occupier of land lying in the proposed highway, or abutting thereon, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, who resides in the county, in the manner provided for the service of original notice in actions at law; and such notice shall be published for four weeks in some newspaper printed in the county, if any such there be, which notice may be in the following form:⁴

To all whom it may concern: The commissioner appointed to locate, vacate, or alter (as the case may be) a highway commencing at in county, running thence (describe in general terms all the points as in the commissioner's report) and terminating at has reported in favor of the establishment, vacation or alteration thereof, and all objections thereto or claims for damages must be filed in the auditor's office on or before noon of the day of A. D., or such highway will be established, vacated or altered without reference thereto.

I..... R....., county auditor.

Auditor may establish highway.

SEC. 937. If no objections or claims for damages are filed on or before noon of the day fixed for filing the same, and the auditor is satisfied the provisions of the preceding section have been complied with, he shall proceed to establish such highway as recommended by the commissioner upon the payment of costs. If such costs are not paid within ten days, the auditor shall report his action in the premises to the board of supervisors at their next session, who may affirm the action of the auditor or establish such highway at the expense of the county.⁵

⁴ The notice which is required to be given to each owner of land lying in or adjacent to a proposed highway, must be served upon those who are shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office to be the absolute owners. One who claims to be the owner under a title bond, or other contract for conveyance, is not entitled to be personally served with notice. Wilson v. Hathaway, 42 Iowa, 173.

The legislature has the constitutional power to provide for the condemnation of the right of way for public highways upon notice by publication in newspapers, and by the posting of notices. Id.

Under section 936 of the code, notice of a proposed highway must be personally served upon the owner of the abutting land, as shown by the transfer books, when he resides in the county; but where the owner is a non-resident, the notice must be served upon the occupant of the land, if there be one. Alcott v. Acheson, 49 Id., 569.

⁵ While the county auditor is, by this section, authorized, in certain contingencies, to establish highways, he cannot establish one of forty feet in width. The State v. Wagner, 45 Iowa, 482, 484.

SEC. 938. If the auditor is satisfied the notice has not been served and published as provided in section nine hundred and thirty-six of this chapter, he shall appoint another day, and cause such notice to be served or published as provided in said section, and thereafter proceed as provided in the preceding section.

New notice given.

SEC. 939. If objections to the establishment of the highway or claims for damages are filed, the further hearing of the application shall stand continued to the next session of the board of supervisors, held after the commissioners appointed to assess damages have reported.

When referred to supervisors.

DAMAGES CLAIMED.

SEC. 940. When claims for damages are filed, and on the day appointed for filing the same, the auditor must appoint three suitable and disinterested electors of the county as appraisers to view the ground on a day fixed by him, and report upon the amount of damages sustained by the claimants; such report shall be made and filed in the auditor's office within thirty days after the day they are appointed.^b

Vacancies filled.
R. § 845, 846.

FINAL ACTION.

SEC. 946. When the time for final action arrives, the board of supervisors may hear testimony, receive petitions for and remonstrances against the establishment, vacation or alteration, as the case may be, of such highway, and may establish, vacate or alter, or refuse to do so, as in their judgment, founded on the testimony, the public good may require. lages.
Ch. 148, 12 G. A.

SEC. 952. All public streets of towns or villages not incorporated, are a part of the highway; and all supervisors of highways, or persons having charge of the same, in the respective districts of such towns or villages, shall work the same as provided by law.

SEC. 954. Highways or streets shall not be established or opened across the lands reserved by the state for its various institutions lying adjacent thereto, without the express consent of the general assembly.

Sections 941 and 946, of the code, relate simply to the manner of recovery of damages, after they have been allowed. They do not determine when they are recoverable. Brady v. Shinkle, 40 Id., 576.

When the board of supervisors granted a change in a county road upon condition that the petitioners should "put it in good traveling condition," and after the new road was built established the change; it was held that this did not render the county liable for injuries caused by a defect in a small bridge constructed as part of the road. Taylor v. Davis County, Id., 295.

The board is required to vacate and alter roads, or refuse to do so, as in their judgment the public good may require. Per ROTHROCK, J., in Mastelar v. Edgerton, 44 Id., 495.

But they cannot grant relief in case of mistake made in the location of a road by agreement of land owners. Id.

The board of supervisors in establishing a highway are required to determine whether it is likely to be of sufficient public utility to justify the county in incurring the expense of its establishment, and to this end must consider, not only the public necessity for it, but also the cost of its construction. Nelson et al. v. Goodykoontz et al., 47 Id., 32.

It was accordingly held in this case that, where the board of supervisors had established a highway, and ordered the expense to be paid by the county, and had allowed claims for damages to property owners, who appealed from such allowance and recovered larger awards on appeal, the board of supervisors had the authority to reconsider its action establishing the road, upon the ground that it was not of sufficient public utility to justify the county in paying the damages assessed by the court. Id.

IN TWO OR MORE COUNTIES.

SEC. 955. The establishment, vacation, or alteration of a highway, either along or across a county line, may be effected by the concurrent action of the respective boards of supervisors in the mode above prescribed; except that the auditor of neither county can make the final order in such case. The commissioners in such cases must act in concert, and the highway will not be deemed established, vacated, or altered in either county until it is so in both.

Supervisors to act in concert. R. § 861.

SEC. 956. Hereafter there shall be no distinction between highways heretofore known as state roads and county roads; both are alike subject to the provisions of this chapter. Highways established by the concurrent action of the board of supervisors of two or more counties, can only be discontinued by the concurrent action of the board of supervisors of the several counties in which the same may be situated, but such highways shall be treated in all other respects as provided in this title.

Distinctions abolished: concurrent action required. R. § 879.

CONSENT HIGHWAYS.

SEC. 957. Highways may be established without the appointment of a commissioner, provided the written consent of all the owners of the land to be used for that purpose be first filed in the auditor's office; and if it is shown to the satisfaction of the board of supervisors, that the proposed highway is of sufficient public importance to be opened and worked by the public, they shall make an order establishing the same, from which time only shall it be regarded as a highway.

How established. R. § 858.

SEC. 958. If a survey for the establishment of the highway named in the preceding section is necessary, the board of supervisors, before ordering such survey, may require the parties asking for the establishment of such highway to pay, or secure the payment of, the expenses of such survey.

When survey necessary. R. § 859.

APPEALS.

SEC. 959. Any applicant for damages claimed to be caused by the establishment of any highway, may appeal from the final decision of the board of supervisors to the circuit court of the county in which the land lies; but notice of such appeal must be served on the county auditor within twenty days after the decision is made. If the highway has been established on condition that the petitioners therefor pay the damages, such notice shall be served on the four persons first named in the petition for the highway, if there are that many who reside in the county.

From what taken: how perfected. R. § 873.

SEC. 960. An appeal may also be taken by the petitioner for the highway as to amount of damages, if the establishment of the highway has been made conditional upon his paying the damages, by his serving notice of such appeal on the county auditor and applicant for damages within twenty days after the decision of the board of supervisors, and filing a bond in the office of such auditor, with sureties to be approved by him, conditioned for the payment of all costs occasioned by such appeal, unless the appellant fails to recover a more favorable judgment in the circuit court than was allowed him by such board.^j

R. § 873.

SEC. 961. In the cases contemplated in the two preceding sections, the auditor shall, within ten days after the notices aforesaid are served and filed in his office, make out and file in the office of the clerk of said court, a transcript of the papers on file in his office and proceedings of the board in relation to such damages. The claimant for damages shall be plaintiff, and the petitioner for the highway defendant, except the damages have been ordered paid out of the county treasury, in which case the county shall be defendant.

circuit court.

SEC. 962. The amount of damages the claimant is entitled to, shall be ascertained by said circuit court in the same manner as in actions by ordinary proceedings, and the amount so ascertained shall be entered of record, but no judgment shall be rendered therefor. The amount thus ascertained shall be certified by the clerk to the board of supervisors, who shall, thereafter, proceed as if such amount had been by them allowed the claimant as damages.

Judgment for costs.
R. § 873.

SEC. 963. If the appeal has been taken by the claimant, the petitioner for the highway, or the county, must pay the costs occasioned by the appeal; but the county shall pay only when the damages have been ordered to be paid out of the county treasury. If the petitioner for the highway appeals, he must pay the costs, unless the claimant recovers a less amount than was allowed him by the board, in which case the costs shall be paid by the claimant. Judgment shall be rendered in accordance with the foregoing provisions.^k

LOST FIELD NOTES.

Re-survey ordered.
R. § 943.

SEC. 964. When by reason of the loss or destruction of the field notes of the original survey, or in cases of defective surveys or record, or in cases of such numerous alterations of any highway since the original survey, that its location cannot be accurately defined by the papers on file in the proper office, the board of supervisors of the proper county may, if they deem it necessary, cause such highway to be re-surveyed, platted, and recorded as hereinafter provided.^l

^j Where damages are claimed by a person through whose land a road is established by the board of supervisors, such person may appeal and have the question as to the amount of damages he is entitled to tried by a jury. And it is not necessary to the exercise of this right that he should have made a motion before the board of supervisors to set aside the report of the appraisers, or formally claimed an appeal. Sigafoos v. Talbot et al., 25 Iowa, 214.

An order of the board of supervisors, establishing a highway upon condition that the damages assessed by the appraisers be paid by the petitioners, may be appealed from by a land-owner dissatisfied with the appraisal. 42 Id., 385.

Notice of appeal from an assessment of damages for the establishment of a highway must be served within twenty days, not only on the county auditor, but also on the applicant for damages, and if such notice is not served on the latter within the time, the appeal cannot be regarded as perfected. Spurrier v. Wirtner, 48 Id., 486.

The voluntary appearance of the appellee, who has not been served with the notice of appeal, for the purpose of moving to dismiss the appeal, does not constitute a waiver of the requirement of the statute. Id.

^k Where the owner of land appeals from the award of damages by the appraisers, he is entitled to a judgment for costs, notwithstanding the amount awarded him on appeal was the same as that given him by the appraisers. Hanrahan v. Fox et al., 47 Iowa, 102.

^l Where a road was duly surveyed in 1852, and all the necessary and proper steps were taken for its establishment, but the clerk failed to file the field notes and plat, and no entry can be found declaring the establishment of the road, the board of supervisors has power, under this section, to order a new survey. But if there never had been any proceedings, there would be nothing upon which to base such an application or action. Blake v. Baily, 20 Iowa, 124; see also McCullister v. Shuey, 24 Id., 363, 368.

SEC. 965. A copy of the field notes, together with a plat of any highway surveyed under the provisions of the preceding section, shall be filed in the office of the county auditor, and, thereupon, he shall give public notice by publication in some newspaper published within the county, or, if no paper is published in his county, by posting such notice in five of the most public places in the vicinity of such survey, that such survey has been made and that at some term of the board of supervisors, not less than twenty days from the publication, they will, unless good cause be shown against so doing, approve of such survey and plat and order them to be recorded as in cases of the original establishment of a public highway.

Plat and field notes filed: notice given.
R. § 914.

SEC. 966. In case objection shall be made by any person claiming to be injured by the survey made, the board of supervisors shall have full power to hear and determine upon the matter, and may, if deemed advisable, order a change to be made in the survey. Upon the final determination of the board, or in case no objection be made at the term named in the notice of the survey, they shall approve of the same and cause the field notes and plat of the highway to be recorded as in case of the establishment or alteration of highways, and thereafter such records shall be received by all courts as conclusive proof of the establishment and existence of such highway, according to such survey and plat.

Power of supervisors: record evidence.
R. § 915.

SEC. 967. If the same has not been heretofore done in any other manner, the county auditor shall, within six months after this code takes effect, cause every highway in his county, the legal existence of which is shown by the records and files of his office, to be platted in a book to be obtained and kept for that purpose, and known as the "highway plat-book." Each township shall be platted, separately, on a scale of not less than four inches to the mile, and such auditor shall have all changes in or additions to the highways legally established, immediately entered upon said plat-book, with appropriate references to the files in which the papers relating to the same may be found.

Highway plat book made.

SEC. 968. Within the time aforesaid, the auditor shall furnish to the township clerks a certified copy of said plat book, so far as the same relates to their respective townships, which shall be carefully preserved in the office of said clerks. The auditor shall notify said clerks of all changes made in the plat book relative to the highways, so far as the same relate to their townships respectively; on receipt of which, said clerks shall immediately make corresponding changes on the maps in their respective offices.

requirements shall render any proceedings for the collection of such taxes illegal. The clerk is hereby required to cause such lists to be

Ch. 163, § 5, 9 G. A.
Ch. 76, § 1, 10 G. A.
Ch. 100, § 7, 12 G. A.

SEC. 986. The supervisor shall perform the same amount of labor as is required of an able-bodied man, for which he shall be allowed the sum fixed by the trustees for each day's labor, including the time necessarily spent in notifying the hands and making out his returns, which sum shall be paid out of the highway fund, after deducting his two days' work. When there is no money in the hands of the clerk with which to pay the said supervisor, he shall be entitled to receive a certificate for the amount of labor performed, which certificate shall be received in payment of his own highway tax for any succeeding year.

Supervisor to report: what contain.
R. § 897.

SEC. 987. The supervisors of the several districts of each township shall report to the township clerk on the first Monday of April and October of each year, which report shall embrace the following items:

1. The names of all persons in his district required to perform labor on the public highway, and the amount performed by each;
2. The names of all persons against whom suits have been brought, as required by section nine hundred and eighty-five, and the amount collected of each;
3. The names of all persons who have paid their property highway tax in labor, and the amount paid by each;
4. The names of all persons who have paid their property tax in money, and the amount paid by each;
5. A correct list of all non-resident lands and town lots on which the highway tax has been paid, and the amount paid by each;
6. A correct list of all non-resident lands and town lots on which the highway tax has not been paid, and the amount of tax on each piece;
7. The amount of all moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his office, and from what sources;
8. The manner in which moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his office have been expended, and the amount, if any, in his possession;
9. The number of days he has been faithfully employed in the discharge of his duty;
10. The condition of the highways in his district, and such other items and suggestions as said supervisor may wish to make, which report shall be signed and sworn to by said supervisor and filed by the township clerk in his office.

Amount due for labor certified to auditor.

SEC. 988. If it appears from such report, that any person has failed to perform the two days' labor required, or any part thereof, and that the supervisor has neglected to collect the amount in money required to be paid in case of such failure, the clerk shall add the amount required to be paid in case of such failure to such person's property tax and certify the same as required in section nine hundred and seventy-five, and the auditor shall enter the same on the proper tax list, and the treasurer shall collect the same as required in said section nine hundred and seventy-five.

May not cut shade trees.

SEC. 989. [The supervisor is not permitted to cut down or injure any tree growing by the wayside which does not obstruct the highway, and which stands in front of any town lot, enclosure, or cultivated field, or any ground reserved for any public use, where such tree is intended to be preserved for shade or ornament, by the proprietor of the land, on or adjacent to which the tree is standing; and it shall not

SEC. 990. When notified in writing, that any bridge or any portion of the public highway is unsafe, the supervisor shall be liable for all damages resulting from the unsafe or impassable condition of the highway or bridge, after allowing a reasonable time for repairing the same. [And if there is in the district any bridge erected or maintained by the county, then, in that event, he shall, on such notice of the unsafe condition of such bridge, as soon as he reasonably can, obstruct passage on such bridge, and use strict diligence in notifying at least one member of the board of supervisors of his county in writing of the unsafe condition of such bridge; and if he fails so to obstruct and notify, he shall be liable for all damages growing out of the unsafe condition of such bridge, occurring between the time he is so notified, and such time as he neglects in obstructing such passage; and any person who shall remove such obstruction shall be liable for all damages occurring to any person resulting from such removal. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to relieve the county from liability for the defects of said bridge.]

Proviso.

SEC. 991. For making such extraordinary repairs, the supervisor may call out any or all the able-bodied men of the district in which they are to be made, but not more than two days at one time without their consent, and persons so called out shall be entitled to receive a certificate from the supervisor, certifying the number of days labor performed, which certificate shall be received in payment for highway tax for that or any succeeding year at the rate per day established for that year.⁵

Extraordinary repairs. R. § 903.

⁴ Where a highway or street in a city or town has been acquired by prescription, the fee remaining in the land owner, he has a right to all things connected therewith, such as trees upon, or mines and quarries under, the land over which the highway passes, subject only to the right of passage by the public, and the incidental right of repairing and keeping it in proper condition. Overman v. May, 35 Iowa, 89.

In thus keeping the highway in repair the proper officer may use the stone within its limits in a reasonable and proper manner for that purpose. But this does not authorize him to quarry stone in the bed of a river spanned by a bridge, constituting part of the highway, to repair other streets. Id.

A road supervisor will be enjoined at the instance of a land owner from removing trees standing in the highway adjacent to, and in front of, such owner's premises, unless such removal is demanded by the wants of the public travel. Bills v. Belknap, 36 Id., 583.

This liability of the county exists only in respect to defects in bridges of the larger class, "county bridges" proper, which are built under their statutory power to make and repair bridges. The repair of roads and highways devolve upon the several road districts, and it is the supervisor, after notice in writing, and not the county, that is liable for injuries caused by the defective condition of the road or bridge. Barrett v. Brooks, 21 Id., 144; Bell v. Foutch, Id., 119; Brown v. Jefferson Co., 16 Id., 339; Soper v. Henry Co., 26 Id., 264; McCullum v. Black Hawk Co., 21 Id., 409; Wilson & Gustin v. Jefferson Co., 13 Id., 181.

It is the duty of counties to construct and maintain in proper condition for public use "county bridges" within their limits, and they are liable for all injuries resulting from their negligent construction, or the failure to keep them in repair. Chandler v. Fremont Co., 42 Id., 58; Moreland v. Mitchell Co., 40 Id., 394.

County bridges are those which require in their construction an expenditure of money beyond the means at the disposal of the road districts, and those which have been constructed by the county. Id.

Where it appeared by the evidence that the entire cost of the bridge did not exceed seventy-five dollars, that to repair the defect therein

R. § 904.

SEC. 992. If any able-bodied man, when duly summoned for any such purpose, fails to appear and labor diligently by himself or substitute, or send satisfactory excuse therefor, or to pay the value of such work in money at any time before suit is brought, he is liable to a fine of ten dollars, to be recovered by suit before any justice of the peace in the name of the supervisor, and for the use of the highway fund of the district.^a

moved.
R. § 905.

SEC. 993. The supervisor shall remove obstructions in the highways caused by fences or otherwise, but he must not throw down or remove fences which do not directly obstruct the travel upon the highway, until reasonable notice in writing, not exceeding six months, has been given to the owner of the land enclosed in part by such fence.^t

condition:
sign boards.
R. § 907.
Ch. 96, § 1, 9 G.
A.

SEC. 994. The supervisor shall keep the highways in as good condition as the funds at his disposal will permit, and shall place guide-boards at cross-roads and at the forks of the highways in his district; said boards to be made out of good timber, the same to be will painted and lettered, and placed upon good substantial hard wood posts, to be set four feet in and to be at least eight feet above ground.

Ch. 96, 14 G. A.

SEC. 995. The supervisor of highways, when notified in writing that any Canada thistles are growing upon any vacant or non-resident lands or lots within his district, the owner, agent, or lessee of which is unknown, shall cause the same to be destroyed and make return in writing to the board of supervisors of his county, with a bill for his expenses or charges therefor, which shall be audited and allowed by said board and paid from the county fund; and the amount so paid shall be entered up and levied against the lands or lots on which said thistles have been destroyed, and collected by the county treasurer the same as other taxes and returned to the county fund.

Supervisors
trustees.
R. § 909.
Ch. 96, § 3, 9 G.
A.

SEC. 996. The supervisors are required to meet the township trustees at the meeting on the first Monday in October in each year, at which time there shall be a settlement of the accounts of such supervisors connected with the highway fund, for putting up guide-boards and for any other services; and after payment of the supervisors, the trustees shall order such distribution of the fund in the hands of the township clerk, as they may deem expedient for highway purposes, and the clerk shall pay the same out as ordered by the trustees.^a would have cost about five dollars, and that the road district had ample means to construct and repair the bridge; held, that the county was not liable. Chandler v. Fremont Co., supra.

Where an injury results from the negligent construction of a county bridge, or the failure to keep it in repair, the county is liable and cannot escape liability by showing, in a given case, that the injury occurred by reason of an unsound plank which the road supervisor might have replaced. Huston v. Iowa County, 43 Id., 456. See also Krause v. Davis County, 44 Id., 141, which holds the same doctrine.

^a A man who is not able-bodied does not come within the purview of this section, and is not liable to the penalty prescribed therein for a failure to appear when summoned by the road supervisor to perform labor on the roads. Martin v. Gadd, 31 Iowa, 75.

Nor will the failure of such person to make his condition known to the supervisor, nor the fact that he sent a substitute who was rejected for incompetency, change the rule. Id.

^t The supervisor has no right, under this and kindred sections, to throw down a fence projecting into the highway, though not directly obstructing the travel thereon, without first notifying the owner to remove the same, even where the fence is built after the establishment of the road. Mosier v. Vincent, 34 Id., 478.

^a The fund to be distributed under this section is such unexpended balance as there may be of the money originally set apart by the trustees as the general township fund; all the other money is to be expended by each supervisor in the road district where collected, and the fact of its coming into the hands of the clerk is a mere incident to its collection. Henderson v. Simpson, 45 Iowa, on p. 522.

SEC. 997. Should there be no money in the treasury on final settlement of the supervisors with the trustees, said trustees shall order the township clerk to issue orders for the amount due the supervisors. The orders so issued shall be numbered with the number of the district to which they belong, and shall be received the same as money in the payment of highway tax in the district to which they are issued.

When no funds, orders to be issued. Same, § 2.

SEC. 998. Any supervisor failing or neglecting to perform the duties required by this chapter, shall forfeit and pay for the use of the highway fund of his district the sum of ten dollars; the township clerk shall, in case of such failure or neglect, commence suit in his name for the collection of the same, before any justice of the peace within the proper township.

Neglect to perform duty: penalty. R. § 900. Ch. 96, § 4, 9 G. A.

SEC. 999. Where any owner or occupant of land adjoining or abutting upon any highway may desire to plant a hedge upon the line of the same, he shall be allowed to build his fence upon such highway; but he shall not build the fence more than five feet within the outer line of said highway, and said fence may be built on both sides of all highways of fifty feet or more in width at the same time. Such owner or occupant shall not be allowed to occupy such highway as aforesaid for more than ten years, and not more than six months before such hedge shall be planted, and at the expiration of such time he shall remove such fence upon the order of the supervisor of the district where such highway is situated.

Hedges may be planted in highway. Ch. 51, 9 G. A.

SEC. 1000. Persons meeting each other on the public highways, shall give one half of the same by turning to the right. All persons failing to observe the provisions of this section shall be liable to pay all damages resulting therefrom, together with a fine, not exceeding five dollars, which fine shall be appropriated to repairing the highways in the district where the violation occurred; but no prosecution shall be instituted except on complaint of the person wronged.

TO AUTHORIZE USE OF SURPLUS BRIDGE FUND ON HIGHWAYS.

AN ACT to give county boards of supervisors the right to improve the highways in certain cases.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That whenever any county in the state is free from debt, and has a surplus in its bridge fund, after providing for the necessary repairs of bridges in said county, then the board of supervisors of such county may, out of such surplus, make improvements on the highways upon the petition of one-third of the resident freeholders of any township in said county; but in no case shall they be authorized to run the county in debt for such improvements of the highways, and whenever they shall make such improvements they shall let the work by contract to the lowest responsible bidder, after having advertised for proposals in some newspaper printed in the county, for not less than fourteen days previous to the letting of said contract.

Counties free from debt and have surplus bridge fund may improve highways.

Work let to contractors.

Approved, March 23, 1880.

CHAPTER 3.

OF FERRIES AND BRIDGES.

BRIDGES.

Public: part highway.
R. § 822.

SECTION 1001. Bridges erected or maintained by the public, constitute parts of the highway, and must not be less than sixteen feet in width.^v

Penalty for fast driving over.
R. § 823.
Ch. 112, § 1, 9 G.
A.

SEC. 1002. Any person riding or driving faster than a walk across any bridge maintained at the public charge, shall be subject to pay the following penalties: When the bridge is twenty-five feet in length, and does not exceed one hundred, the sum of one dollar for each offense; when it is over one hundred, and does not exceed two hundred feet in length, the sum of three dollars for each offense; where it is over two hundred, and does not exceed three hundred feet in length, the sum of five dollars for each offense; and the further additional sum of one dollar for each offense for every hundred feet in length in excess of three hundred, to be recovered by civil action in the name and for the county in which the bridge is situated. If the bridge is situated in more than one county the action is maintainable in or by either.

TOLL BRIDGES.

How established.
R. § 1214.

SEC. 1003. The board of supervisors may grant licenses for the erection of toll bridges across any water courses or other obstruction which justifies the establishment of such bridge, and which calls for an expenditure that cannot be met without serious inconvenience to the revenues of the county. In granting such licenses, preference shall be given to the owner of the land on which the bridge is proposed to be located, if he applies for the privilege, and is, in other respects, a competent person to erect such bridge.

Supervisors
right of way.
Ch. 145, § § 1, 2,
12 G. A.

SEC. 1004. When any corporation or individual shall obtain from the board of supervisors, license for the construction of a toll bridge across any of the streams of this state, such corporation or individual may take and appropriate so much private property as shall be necessary for a right of way therefor and all approaches thereto, in such width as such corporation or individual may desire, not exceeding sixty feet.

Damages as-
Same, § 3.

SEC. 1005. If the owner of the property over which such way extends shall refuse to grant the same, and the damages therefor cannot be settled by agreement, all damages which the owner, or any person having an interest in or improvement upon the property to be taken, will sustain by reason of the appropriation of such property, shall be assessed, and the right of way taken on the application of either party under the provisions of chapter three of title ten, of this code.

^vThe board of supervisors have power at their discretion to establish and change highways, of which bridges erected by the public constitute a part, and when a bridge has fallen down, which they refuse to rebuild, mandamus will not lie to compel them to do so. The State ex rel. Houck v. Morris et al., 43 Iowa, 192.

When the county will be liable for injuries resulting from defects in bridges, see notes to section 991, ante.

A city is liable for personal injuries resulting from the defective condition of a bridge within its corporate limits. Rusch v. The City of Davenport, 6 Id., 443.

SEC. 1006. Where the extremities of the bridge lie in different counties, a license must be procured from each of such counties, and if different rates of toll are fixed by the different boards of supervisors, each has power to fix the rates of travel which is going from its own county. A similar principle shall be observed where only one of the extremities of the bridge is within this state.

Where extremities lie in different counties or states.
R. § 1216.

SEC. 1007. Such licenses may be granted to continue for any period not exceeding fifty years, and the rate of toll may be fixed, in the first instance, in such a manner as to be unalterable within any stipulated period not exceeding ten years; after that time it shall be under the control of the board of supervisors.

Period for which licenses granted.
R. § 1217.

SEC. 1008. The board of supervisors is also authorized to stipulate in the license that no other bridge or ferry shall be permitted across the same obstruction within any distance not exceeding two miles of such bridge, and for a period not exceeding ten years; any violation of the terms of such stipulation is a nuisance, and he who causes it is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Other bridges or ferries.
R. § 1218.

SEC. 1009. When it is made to appear to the board of supervisors, after ten days notice to the person licensed, that he fails substantially to perform his duties according to law, the board may revoke his license.

Failure of duty.
R. § 1212.

SEC. 1010. All toll bridges must be so regulated as to allow persons to pass at any hour of the night or day, but the board of supervisors may, in its discretion, in fixing the rates of toll, permit a greater amount to be collected during certain hours of the night time.

Day or night: rate of toll.
R. § 1222.

FERRIES.

SEC. 1011. The board of supervisors has power to grant such ferry licenses as may be needed within its county, for a period not exceeding ten years.

License: supervisors, power to grant.
R. § 1200.

SEC. 1012. The board may prescribe the rates of ferriage, as well as the hours of the day or night during which the ferry must be attended, both of which may, from time to time, be changed at the discretion of the board.

Rates of ferries fixed by boards.
R. § 1201.

SEC. 1013. In granting a ferry license, the board of supervisors has power to make the privilege granted exclusive, for a distance not exceeding one mile in either direction from said ferry, in which case no person shall keep a public ferry within the prescribed distance, unless, after twenty days' notice to the person who has obtained such privilege, it is made to appear to the board that the public good requires both ferries, and a new license is issued for the second ferry accordingly. The notice herein required must be served personally on the owner, or on the person in charge of the ferry boat.

Extent of privilege.
R. § 1202.

SEC. 1014. In granting a ferry license, preference must be given to the keeper of a previous ferry at the same point, and if it be a new ferry, preference shall be given to the owner of the land; but if there is no such, or if, after giving the same notice as is required by the last section, he fails to make application for such license, or if, in the opinion of the board, he is an improper person to receive the same, it may be conferred on any other proper applicant.*

Preference: to whom given.
R. § 1203.

* The keeper of a ferry has no right, under this section, to a renewal of his franchise. The section is simply directory, pointing out him as the one better prepared to serve the public than others, but directing, also, that if, in the opinion of the supervisors, he is an improper person to be intrusted with the franchise, it may be conferred on any other proper applicant. Per BECK, J., in Lippencott v. Allander, 23 Iowa, on p. 558. But see Same v. Same, 25 Id., 445, where it is held that an appeal will lie from the action of the board of supervisors revoking a ferry license.

Opposite shores in different counties.
R. § 1204.

SEC. 1015. Where the opposite shores of the stream are in different counties, a license from either is sufficient, and the board of supervisors first exercising jurisdiction by granting a license, retains that jurisdiction during the term of such license.

One shore within the state.
R. § 1205.

SEC. 1016. Where but one side of a river is within this state, the board of supervisors possesses the same power, so far as the shore of this state is concerned, as though the river lay wholly within this state.

License not to issue until bond is filed.
R. § 1207.

SEC. 1017. The board of supervisors, upon being satisfied that the requirements of this chapter have been complied with, and that a ferry is needed at such a place, and that the applicant is a suitable person to keep it, must grant the license, which, however, shall not issue until the applicant files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the board or auditor, in a penalty not less than one hundred dollars, with the condition that he will keep the ferry in proper condition for ferrying, and attend the same at all times fixed by the board for running the same, that he will neither demand nor take any illegal tolls, and that he will perform all other duties which are, or may be enjoined on him by law, which bond shall be filed in the county auditor's office.

U. S. express and mail.
R. § 1209.

SEC. 1018. Every ferryman must transport the public expresses of the United States and of this state, and also the United States mail, at any hour of the day or night.

PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO BOTH FERRIES AND TOLL BRIDGES.

License entered of record.
R. § 1208.

SEC. 1019. All licenses for ferries and toll bridges must be entered upon the records of the board of supervisors, and shall contain the rates of toll allowed.

Rates of toll: where posted.
R. § § 1210, 1220.

SEC. 1020. The rates of toll must be conspicuously posted up at each extremity of the bridge, or on the boat, door of the ferry house, or some other conspicuous place near the ferry.

Failure to post: penalty for.
R. § § 1211, 1220.

SEC. 1021. The failure to have such list posted up as aforesaid, justifies any person in refusing the payment of tolls, and where such failure is habitual, the proprietor of the bridge or ferry is liable to pay twenty-five dollars, and the action therefor may be brought in the name of the county against such proprietor, or on the bond of the proprietor of the ferry; the amount recovered in either case to be paid into the county treasury.

Notice of application to be posted before granting license.
R. § § 1206, 1219.

SEC. 1022. Before a license can be granted for either a bridge or ferry, notice of the intended application therefor must be posted up in at least three public places on each side of the river, if both are within the state, and in the township and neighborhood in which the proposed bridge or ferry is to be erected or kept, at least twenty days prior to the making such application.

Penalty for taking illegal toll.
R. § 1236.

SEC. 1023. The taking of illegal toll by the grantees of any of the licenses herein contemplated, subjects the offender to the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offense, to be recovered by suit on the bond of such licensee, or against him individually, by the person who paid the illegal toll for his own benefit, or he may bring suit in the name of the county, in which case the proceeds shall go into the county treasury.

Forfeiture.
R. § 1237.

SEC. 1024. A failure in other respects to comply substantially with the terms fixed by the board, works a forfeiture of any of the licenses herein authorized, and also subjects the party guilty of such failure to damages for all the injury resulting therefrom, for which he is liable on his bond.

SEC. 1025. Any person who refuses to pay the regular tolls established and posted up in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, or who shall run through or pass around the toll gates with a view of avoiding the payment of just tolls or dues, forfeits the sum of five dollars for every offense, which, together with costs of suit, may be recovered by the person entitled to such toll by civil action; but nothing herein contained shall prevent a person from fording a stream across which a toll bridge or ferry has been constructed.

Refusal to pay tolls: penalty. R. § 1238.

SEC. 1026. The proprietor of any bridge or ferry authorized by this chapter, may establish rules for the regulation of passengers, travelers, teams and freight passing or traveling thereon, and may enforce those rules by penalties, not exceeding five dollars for any one offense, which penalties may be recovered by civil action in the name of the proprietor aforesaid; but such rules must be published by being conspicuously posted up before they can be thus enforced.

Rules established. R. § 1239.

SEC. 1027. Any of the franchises contemplated in this chapter are subject to execution, and shall be sold as personal property, and be subject to the same rights and consequences, except that the purchaser may take immediate possession of the property.

Franchise sold: R. § 1240.

SEC. 1028. The sale of any such franchise carries with it all the material, implements, rights of way, and works of whatever kind, necessary for, or ordinarily used in, the exercise of such franchise.

What goes with it. R. § 1241.

SEC. 1029. Nothing in this chapter contained shall be so construed as to prevent any person, city, incorporated town, or village, from establishing a free ferry at any point where a license to keep a ferry has been granted under the provisions of this chapter; provided, that where said free ferry is established, said person or company shall pay a reasonable compensation to the persons owning said ferry for all boats, ropes, and other material, if the same be fit for use; and when said free ferry is established at a point at or near where a license has been granted to an individual, such individual shall be exonerated from any further obligation in relation to the ferry. Bond and security shall be given in like manner by the person or company establishing the free ferry as required in this chapter.

Free ferry established. R. § 1245.

SEC. 1030. Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to prevent owners of mills from crossing themselves or customers free of charge.

Mill owners. R. § 1246.

RAILWAY AND TOLL BRIDGES.

SEC. 1031. Any railway or bridge company that now is, or hereafter may be, incorporated in pursuance of the laws of this state, or of the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, or Dakota, is authorized to construct a railway bridge across the Mississippi, Missouri or Big Sioux rivers, connecting with the eastern or western terminus, as the case may be, of any railway abutting on the Iowa bank of either of said rivers, at such place as shall be designated therefor by the board of supervisors of the county wherein such abutting is to be made, and extending toward a point on the opposite bank that may be selected by such company.

Supervisors to control location. Ch. 130, § 1, 2, 10 G. A.

SEC. 1032. No bridge shall be built under the provisions of the preceding section, until the plan thereof has been submitted to and approved by the board of supervisors of the county in which the bridge is to be partly located.

Plan to be approved. Same, § 8.

For teams and passengers:
toll for.
Same, § 6.

SEC. 1033. Any such company may, with the consent of said board of supervisors, construct such bridge with suitable highways and foot ways for teams and foot passengers, and charge such rates of toll therefor as may be approved by said board.

Ferry established.
Same, § 7.

SEC. 1034. Any such company may establish a ferry across said rivers at or near the termini of its road, for the sole purpose of crossing the freight and passengers of such highway, until the bridge is ready for use.

Navigation.
Same, § 11.

SEC. 1035. No bridge erected under the provisions of this chapter shall be so located or constructed as to unnecessarily impede, injure, or obstruct the navigation of said rivers.

Bonds and stock issued.
Same, § 5.

SEC. 1036. Any such company may issue its bonds or obligations for an amount not exceeding the cost of such bridge, and of its road in the state, and may secure the payment thereof by a mortgage on the same, and may issue certificates of common and preferred stock; the preferred stock to be issued only on condition that the holders of the common stock give their written consent thereto.

TITLE IX.

OF CORPORATIONS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF CORPORATIONS FOR PECUNIARY PROFIT.

Who may incorporate.
R. § 1150.

SECTION 1058. Any number of persons may associate themselves and become incorporated for the transaction of any lawful business, including the establishment of ferries, the construction of canals, railways, bridges, or other works of internal improvement; but such incorporation confers no power or privilege not possessed by natural persons, except as hereinafter provided.

Powers.
R. § 1151.

SEC. 1059. Among the powers of such body corporate are the following:

1. To have perpetual succession;
2. To sue and be sued by its corporate name;
3. To have a common seal, which it may alter at pleasure;
4. To render the interests of the stockholders transferable;
5. To exempt the private property of its members from liability for corporate debts, except as herein otherwise declared;
6. To make contracts, acquire and transfer property, possessing the same powers in such respects as private individuals now enjoy;
7. To establish by-laws, and make all rules and regulations deemed expedient for the management of their affairs in accordance with law.*

* The possession of the powers granted by sections 1058 and 1059, and the right to exercise all the incidental powers essential to a proper enjoyment of the powers specifically conferred, constitute the franchise of the corporation, which exists in virtue of contract between the state and the corporation, and may not be essentially abridged or impaired by the legislature. Per DAY, J., in Rodedmacher v. The M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 41 Iowa, on p. 301.

In a proceeding by a judgment creditor of a corporation to subject the property of an individual stockholder to its payment, it is a sufficient defense that, by the articles of incorporation, the stockholders are not individually liable beyond the amount of unpaid stock subscribed by them, and that defendant's subscription has been fully paid. Spense & Garlick v. Iowa Valley Con. Co., 36 Id., 407.

A change in the name of a corporation can only be effected by changing the articles of incorporation, and of this change the best evidence is the articles themselves. The C. D. & M. R. R. Co. v. Keisel, 43 Id., 39.

The powers of a corporation organized under this chapter, for the purpose of effecting the objects of its creation, are as broad and comprehensive as those of an individual, except where the exercise of the asserted power is expressly prohibited. Thompson v. Lambert, 44 Id., 239-244, and cases cited in opinion of SEEVERS, CH. J.

A corporation may make an oral or unwritten contract, the same as an individual. Baker v. Johnson County, 33 Id., 151; Merrick v. The Burlington & Warren Plank Road Co., 11 Id., 74.

For the purpose of carrying out the objects of the corporation, its powers are as extensive as those of an individual where they are not expressly limited, and it may borrow money and execute a mortgage on the corporate property. Thompson v. Lambert, and Weber v. Scott Co. Agr. Society, 44 Id., 239.

Order to issue for a jury: notice of served on defendants.
R. § § 1266, 1270

^a The fact that a petition, filed under this section, does not show that the mill is designed to grind grain for toll, does not affect the right of the petitioner to proceed under this chapter. The statute authorizes the erection of mills and other machinery, without limitation as to the purpose for which they will be used. Per BECK, CH. J., in Burnham v. Thompson, 35 Iowa, 421, 425.

This chapter is not unconstitutional. Burnham v. Thompson, 35 Id., 421.

An appeal lies to the supreme court from an order overruling a motion to set aside the verdict and quash the writ in a proceeding ad quod damnum. Id.

When the first writ is quashed, another may thereupon be granted without notice thereof to the opposite party. Id.

The provisions of the statute apply, and the writ may properly issue, after the work has been commenced and is unfinished, as well as before its commencement; and damages arising after the filing of the petition in such case are allowable. Id.

^b This section leaves out the direction as to notice required by section 1265 of the revision, under which it was held, that the service of notice there required was not a prerequisite to the filing of the petition, but that the notice might be given after the petition had been filed. Hoag v. Denton, 20 Id., 118.

at the time of issuing the order, may appoint a guardian to defend for him by indorsement on such order.

When lands are

county.
R. § 1270.

SEC. 1191. If any of the lands are situate in a county other than that in which the petition is required to be filed, the proceedings herein referred to may take place to the same extent and in the same manner as if such lands were situated in the county where the petition is filed.

Jury to appraise damages.
G. A.

SEC. 1192. The jury shall be sworn to impartially and to the best of their skill and judgment view the lands described in the petition, and ascertain and appraise the damages each of the defendants will sustain by reason of such lands being overflowed or otherwise injuriously affected by the dam or race, or the heightening or enlarging the same, and whether the dwelling-house, outhouse, orchard or garden of any defendant will be so affected, and if so, whether the same has been placed there for that purpose.

Hear witnesses and report finding.
Same, § 2.

SEC. 1193. The jury may, in addition to examining the premises, hear and examine witnesses. They shall report their findings in writing and attach the same to the order, which shall be returned by the sheriff to the clerk, and if it appears therefrom that the dwelling-house, outhouse, orchard or garden of any defendant will be injuriously affected, and that the same was placed on the premises for that purpose, such fact shall not be considered any bar or hindrance to the construction or building of the race or dam.

Appeal.
Amended by
Ch. 22, 15 G. A.

SEC. 1194. Either party may appeal from such assessment of damages to the [court where the proceedings are pending] within thirty days after the assessment is made, in the manner, and the proceedings on such appeal shall be, as provided in chapter four of this title.

Cause shown.
R. § 1268.

SEC. 1195. When said report is filed, the clerk shall issue an order directed to the defendants, requiring them to appear at the next term of the court and show cause, if any they have, why a license should not be granted to construct the dam or race, which order shall be served in the same manner as hereinbefore directed.^c

Objections filed: pleadings: amendment of: another jury.

SEC. 1196. On or before the day fixed in the order for the defendants to show cause, they may file any objections to the prior proceedings or to granting the license they see proper. The petition and objections filed thereto shall constitute the pleadings, and the same may be amended upon such terms as the court deems just, and if the proceedings of the jury are found informal or defective in substance, the court may order a new jury to be impaneled upon such terms as to notice as it may direct. The return of the sheriff may be amended at any stage of the proceedings in accordance with the facts.

mony.
Ch. 119, § 2, 11
G. A.

SEC. 1197. Testimony may be taken to be introduced on the final hearing before the court, in the same manner that testimony is taken in equitable actions triable on written testimony.

License granted.
R. § 1269.

SEC. 1198. If it shall appear to the court that neither the dwelling-house, outhouse, garden or orchard of any defendant will be overflowed or injuriously affected, and the court shall judge it reasonable and for the public benefit, license shall be granted to construct such dam or race, on the plaintiff paying to the proper parties the damages found by the jury and decreed by the court.

^c When a second writ issues, no further notice is necessary. It will be presumed that the defendant has been brought into court upon the order required in section 1195. Burnham v. Thompson, 35 Iowa, on p. 426.

SEC. 1199. If the plaintiff does not begin within one year thereafter to construct said dam or race, and finish and have in operation the mill and machinery in three years thereafter, and afterward keep it in good repair for the accommodation of the public, or in case said dam, race, mill or machinery be destroyed, he shall not begin to repair or rebuild it within one year, and finish it in three years, then said license shall be forfeited.

Forfeiture of Same.

SEC. 1200. If the order shall not be executed by the sheriff on the day therein mentioned, he may, from time to time, appoint another day, notice thereof being given to the parties interested as hereinbefore provided; and if inquest cannot be completed in one day, the sheriff shall adjourn the jury, from day to day, until its completion.

Continuance. R. § 1270.

SEC. 1201. No proceeding under this chapter shall bar an action which could have been maintained if this chapter had not been enacted, unless the prosecution or action was actually foreseen and estimated upon the inquest.⁴

No bar to action. R. § 1271.

SEC. 1202. Any owner of land affected by any proceedings under this chapter, who has not been made party by reason of want of notice, or from any other cause, may be made party thereto by proper proceedings at any time thereafter.

New party made. R. § 1272.

SEC. 1203. Costs and fees under this chapter shall be the same as in other cases for like services, and shall be paid by the plaintiff.

Costs. R. § 1273.

SEC. 1204. Where the water backed up by any dam belonging to any mill or machinery is about to break through or over the banks of the stream or race, or to wash a channel, so as to turn the water of such stream or race, or any part thereof, out of its ordinary channel, whereby such mills or machinery will be injured or affected, the owner or occupier of such mill or machinery, if he do not own such banks, or the lands lying contiguous thereto, may, if necessary, enter thereon, and erect and keep in repair such embankments and other works as shall be necessary to prevent such water from breaking through or over the banks of such stream or race, or washing a channel as aforesaid, such owner or occupier committing thereon no unnecessary waste or damage, and being liable to pay any damages which the owner of the lands may actually sustain by the erection and repair aforesaid.

Repair of injured banks or race by owner of machinery. R. § § 1275, 1276.

SEC. 1205. If any person shall injure, destroy or remove any such embankment, or other works, the owner or occupier of such mill or machinery may recover of such person all damages he may sustain by reason of such injury, destruction or removal.

Penalty for injuring embankment. R. § 1277.

SEC. 1206. Any person owning and using a water-power for the purpose of propelling machinery, shall have the right to acquire, maintain and utilize the fall below such power for the purpose of improving the same, in like manner and to the same extent as provided in this chapter for the erection or heightening of mill dams. After such right has been acquired, the fall shall be considered part and parcel of said water-power or privilege, and the deepening or excavating of the stream or tail race as herein contemplated shall in no way affect any rights relating to such water-power acquired by the owner thereof prior thereto.

Utilizing fall below dam.

CHAPTER 2.

OF DRAINS, DITCHES, AND WATER-COURSES.

Supervisors to locate.
Ch. 120, § 1, 14 G. A.
Amended by § 1, Ch. 140, 16 G. A.

SECTION 1207. The board of supervisors of any county having a population of [five] thousand inhabitants, as shown by the last preceding census, may locate and cause to be constructed ditches or drains, or change the direction of any water-course in such county, whenever the same will be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare.

The auditor shall thereupon place a copy of said petition in the hands of the county surveyor, or a competent engineer, who shall take with him the necessary assistants and proceed to make a survey of the proposed ditch, drain, or change in the direction of the water-course, and return a plat and profile of the same to the auditor; such return shall set forth a full and detailed description of the proposed improvement, its availability, necessity, and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land owned by different persons through which the proposed improvement is to be located, how it will be affected thereby, and its situation and level as compared with that of adjoining lands, together with such other facts as he may deem material. The county auditor shall, immediately thereafter, cause notice in writing to be served on the owner of each tract of land along the route of the proposed ditch, drain, or change in the direction of such water-course, who is a resident of the county, of the pendency and prayer of said petition, and the session of the board of supervisors at which the same will be heard, which notice shall be served ten days prior to said session, in the same manner that original notices are required to be served. But, if any application for compensation has been made, further proceedings shall be adjourned to the next regular session; and the county auditor shall forthwith proceed to appoint appraisers to assess and determine the damages and compensation of such claimant, who shall proceed in the manner as provided by law for the assessment of damages in the opening of highways; and the compensation so found and assessed in favor of said claimant, shall be paid, in the first instance, by the parties benefited by such improvement, or secured to be paid upon such terms and conditions as the county auditor may deem just and proper; and the said supervisors shall, at the next regular session after such compensation shall have been assessed and paid, or secured as aforesaid, proceed to locate and establish such ditch, drain or water-course, as hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 1210. Any person claiming compensation for land required for the purpose of constructing any such ditch, drain, or water-course [or for damages sustained by the change of direction of any such water-course] shall make his application in writing therefor to the county supervisors on or before the first day of the session at which the petition has been set for hearing, and, on failure to make such application, shall be deemed and held to have waived his, her, or their right to such compensation.

SEC. 1220. If the trustees are satisfied from a personal examination of the premises, or from evidence of witnesses, that such swamp or marsh lands are a source of disease, that the public health will be promoted by draining the same, that such ditch is necessary for the proper cultivation of such lands, that the permanent value thereof will be increased thereby, and that it is necessary, in order to drain said lands, that such ditch should pass through the lands of others, they shall determine the direction, depth, and width of such ditch, as near as may be, and, if necessary, may employ the county surveyor to assist them, and after such examination, or hearing such evidence, said trustees may order or refuse the construction of said ditch. CONSTRUCTION OF DRAINS THROUGH TWO OR MORE COUNTIES.

Title.	AN ACT to amend chapter 121, acts of seventeenth general assembly, section 1212, code in 1873, relating to drains of two or more counties.
Amendment to Ch. 121, 17 G. A.	SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That chapter 121 of the acts of the seventeenth general assembly be amended by adding thereto the following sections:
Engineers appointed.	SEC. 2. That said commissioners shall appoint a competent engineer, who shall have charge of the construction of said ditch, drain, or change in said water-course.
Duration of commission.	SEC. 3. That said commission shall continue until the drain or ditch are fully completed. They shall, in connection with the engineer in charge, proceed to make a survey of the proposed ditch, drain, or change of water-course, and return a plat and profile of the same to the county auditor of each county through which the same may pass. Such return shall set forth a full and detailed description of the proposed improvement, its availability, necessity, and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land owned by different persons through which the proposed improvement is to be located, or which may be benefited by reason of its construction, how it will be affected thereby, and its situation and level as compared with that of adjoining lands, together with such facts as they may deem material. The county auditor and the board of supervisors of each county shall then proceed in the same manner as though the ditch or drain was all located in one county, as provided by sections 1208, 1209, code of 1873.
Party aggrieved may appeal to circuit court.	SEC. 4. That any person aggrieved by the action of the board of supervisors of any county in locating said ditch or drain, or in fixing the number of acres of land benefited by reason of the construction of such ditch or drain, shall have the right of appeal to the circuit court of the county in which such person's land may be situated, by serving notice thereof to the first four petitioners within twenty days after such action of the board of supervisors.
Ditches and drains in two or more counties.	SEC. 5. That when a ditch or drain has been located in two or more counties the land benefited by the ditch or drain shall be proportionally taxed, as provided in section 1214, code of 1873, the same as though the drain and land were all in one county.
Transfer of funds.	SEC. 6. That when a greater amount of money is collected by the county treasurer of a county through which such ditch or drain may pass than is needed to pay for the work actually done in that county, and if in any county there should be more work done than the equitable tax in that county will pay for, then the boards of supervisors of the several counties shall confer together and ascertain where the excess and deficiency exists, and the county where the excess exists shall transfer the excess to the county or counties where the deficit exists.

SEC. 7. That if the levy first made by the several boards of supervisors should be insufficient to pay for the construction of the ditch or drain, then the several boards may make an additional levy in the same ratio as the first was made.

SEC. 8. That section 1212, code of 1873, be amended by striking out the following words, commencing after the word "letting" in seventh line: "shall on completion thereof to the satisfaction of the county supervisors, be paid for such work out of the county treasury, upon the order of the county auditor," and that the following be inserted in lieu thereof: "shall be paid in the following manner: That the engineer in charge of the construction of the ditch or drain shall furnish the contractors monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section; that upon the filing of such estimates with the county auditor, the auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of the contractor for eighty per cent of the value of the work done, according to the estimate; and when said ditch or drain is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge, and when he so certifies the same to the county auditor, then the auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of said contractor upon the 'drainage fund' for the balance due to the contractor."

SECTION 1236. There is granted to any corporation hereafter organized in accordance with law, for the purpose of utilizing and improving any water-power within this state, or in the streams lying upon the borders thereof, the right to take and hold so much real estate as may be necessary for the location, construction, and convenient use of its canals, conduits, mains, and water-ways, or other means employed in the utilization of such water-power, and for the construction of such buildings and their appurtenances as may be required for the purpose aforesaid. Such corporation may also take, remove, and use for the construction and repair of its said canals, water-ways, buildings, and appurtenances, any earth, gravel, stone, timber, or other materials, on or from the land so taken. Compensation shall be made for the lands and materials so taken and used by such corporation, to the owner, in compliance with and in the manner provided in chapter four of this title.

Such corporations may use, raise, or lower, any highway for the purpose of having their said canals, water-ways, mains, and pipes, pass over, along, or under the same; and in such case shall put such highway, as soon as may be, in good repair and condition, for the safe and convenient use of the public. And such corporation may construct and carry their canals, conduits, water-ways, mains, or water-pipes, across, over, or under any railway, canal, stream, or water-course, when it shall be necessary for the construction or operation of the same, but shall do so in such manner as not to impede the travel, transportation, or navigation upon, or other proper use of, such railway, canal, or stream. CHAPTER 4.

TAKING PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.

By railway: limit of. R. § 1314. Amended by Ch. 126, 17 G. A.

SECTION 1241. Any railway corporation organized in this state [or chartered by or organized under the laws of the United States or any state or territory,] may take and hold, under the provisions of this chapter, so much real estate as may be necessary for the location, construction, and convenient use of its railway, and may also take, remove, and use for the construction and repair of said railway and its appurtenances, any earth, gravel, stone, timber, or other materials, on or from the land so taken; the land so taken otherwise than by the consent of the owners, shall not exceed one hundred feet in width, except for wood and water stations, unless where greater width is necessary for excavation, embankment, or depositing waste earth.^f

SEC. 1242. It may, also, take and hold additional real estate at its water stations, for the purpose of constructing dams and forming reservoirs of water to supply its engines. Such real estate shall, if the owner requests it, be set apart in a square or rectangular shape, including all the overflowed land, by the commissioners as hereafter provided; but the owner of the land shall not be deprived of access to the water or the use thereof in common with the company on his own land. And the dwelling-house, outhouse, orchards, and gardens of any person shall not be overflowed or otherwise injuriously affected by any proceeding under this section.

SEC. 1243. Any such railway corporation may lay down pipes through any land adjoining the track of the railway, not to a greater distance than three-fourths of a mile therefrom, unless by consent of the owners of the land through which the pipes may pass beyond that distance, and maintain and repair such pipes, and thereby conduct water for the supply of its engines from any running stream; and shall, without unnecessary delay, after laying down or repairing such Pipes laid down and kept in repair: damages caused recovered by suit. Same, § 2.

^f Under the statute a railroad company may take and hold so much land for their right of way, not exceeding one hundred feet in width, as shall be necessary for the location, construction and convenient use of its road, irrespective of whether such location be near a public highway or not, by paying the damages when private property is taken. Per MILLER, CH. J., in The C. R. & St. P. R. Co. v. Spafford, 41 Iowa, 292, 296.

A foreign corporation has no power to acquire or possess land for a railroad right of way in this state, and cannot therefore be made a party to a proceeding for the assessment of damages for land appropriated for that purpose. Holbert v. The St. L., K. C. & N. R. Co., 45 Id., 23.

Where a foreign corporation is using, by sufferance, the line of a domestic corporation, a land owner is entitled to an injunction restraining it from the use of that portion of the line running through his land until he shall have been compensated for the appropriation of the same for right of way. Id.

In procuring the right of way railroad companies do not thereby acquire the right to divert a stream of water from its natural channel to the injury of the land owner. Stodghill v. The C., B. & Q. R. Co., 43 Id., 26.

While a railroad company cannot condemn more than one hundred feet in width for right of way, it is not necessary that it should locate its track in the middle of the land condemned. Stark v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 43 Id., 501.

The fact that the company owns land adjacent to that which it seeks to condemn will not restrict its right of condemnation. Id.

Where lands belonging to one party were inclosed in common with those of another at the time the railroad was constructed through it, and subsequently a division fence was constructed and the company notified to construct a cattle-guard thereat, which it failed to do; held, 1. That the company was liable for injury done to the crops upon the land of the plaintiff by cattle entering from the railway; and, 2. That the measure of damages was the actual value of the crops destroyed. Donald v. The St. L., K. C. & N. R'y Co., 44 Id., 158.

In an action against a railway company for damages for killing stock, wherein it is alleged that a gate was not provided with proper fastenings, it was held that the jury should have been allowed to consider whether or not the company was negligent in the construction of the gate. Hammond v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 43 Id., 168.

The company would not be released from liability by ignorance of the defect in the grate, if in the exercise of reasonable care it would have acquired knowledge of it. Id.

A defect in the original construction of the gate would be presumed to be known by the defendant, and plaintiff would not be required to give notice to the defendant of its existence nor to repair it even though it could be done at small expense. Id.

Where a lane leading from the highway to plaintiff's residence crossed the track of the railroad, and at each end of the lane were gates, which, with the inclosing fences, were maintained by him, his cow having been killed by the cars on the private crossing, it was held that the company was justified in assuming that he preferred the open crossing, and that he could not recover for the killing of the cow. Tyson v. The K. & D. M. R. Co., 43 Id., 207.

pipes, cover the same so as to restore the surface of the land through which they may pass to its natural grade; and shall, as soon as practicable, replace any fence that it may be necessary to open in laying down or repairing such pipes; and the owner of the land through which the same may be laid, shall have a right to use the land through which such pipes pass in any manner so as not to interfere therewith; said pipes shall not be laid to any spring, nor be used so as to injuriously withdraw the water from any farm; provided, that such corporation shall be liable to the owner of any such lands for any damages occasioned by laying down, regulating, keeping open, or repairing such pipes, such damages to be recoverable from time to time as they may accrue in any ordinary action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

MANNER OF CONDEMNATION.

Sheriff to summon jury on demand of either party: proceedings by R. § 1317.

SEC. 1244. If the owner of any real estate, necessary to be taken for either of the purposes mentioned in the three preceding sections, refuse to grant the right of way, or other necessary interest in said real estate required for such purposes, or, if the owner and the corporation cannot agree upon the compensation to be paid for the same, the sheriff of the county in which said real estate may be situated, shall, upon the application of either party, appoint six disinterested freeholders of said county, not interested in a like question, who shall inspect said real estate and assess the damages which said owner will sustain by the appropriation of his land for the use of said corporation, and make report in writing to the sheriff of said county, and if said corporation shall, at any time before it enters upon said real estate for the purpose of constructing said railway, pay to said sheriff for the use of said owner, the sum so assessed and returned to him as aforesaid, it may construct and maintain its railway over and across such premises.⁵

⁵The proceedings under the statute for the condemnation of lands to the use of railroads, simply fix the price at which, upon actual payment, the company may take the right of way. A judgment assessing the amount of damages passes no title to the company before payment, and does not bind it to accept the lands and pay the amount assessed. Gear v. The Dubuque & S. C. R. R. Co., 20 Iowa, 523.

And where, in such a proceeding, a judgment is entered in the usual form of a judgment in an action for debt, it will be construed to have no greater force or effect than it would have if entered conformably to the statute authorizing the proceeding. Id.

In a proceeding to appropriate land for the right of way of a railroad already constructed, evidence of damages resulting from defective construction, or the like, is not admissible. While such damages may furnish a cause of action to recover the same in a suit therefor, they are not to be considered in assessing the compensation to be allowed the owner for the right of way. King v. The Iowa Midland R. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 458.

Nor, for the same reason, could the failure of the company for a time to erect cattle guards be considered in estimating damages in such a proceeding. Id.

In a proceeding of this kind on appeal, the propriety of sending the jury to view the real estate in controversy rests in the sound discretion of the court, and where it refuses to do so, its action will not be disturbed where no abuse of discretion appears. Id.

In such a proceeding, evidence of the price at which the right of way was purchased through adjoining lands is not admissible, unless it be first shown that there is a uniformity of character of the lands thus brought in question. Id.

While the remedy provided by the statute for the assessment of damages sustained by a land owner in the taking of land for railroad right of way is exclusive of all other remedies for that purpose, it is not exclusive of an action of ejectment if his property has been taken by the railroad company without payment or tender of compensation. Daniels v. The C. & N. W. R. R. Co., 35 Id., 129.

A dedication of land for a railroad right of way cannot be established by mere occupancy alone. It must be shown that the occupancy or use was with the knowledge and acquiescence of the land owner for the full period fixed by

SEC. 1245. The application to the sheriff shall be in writing, and the freeholders appointed shall be the commissioners to assess all damages to the owners of real estate in said county, and said corporation, or the owner of any land therein, may, at any time after their appointment, have the damages assessed in the manner herein prescribed by giving the other party five days notice thereof in writing, specifying therein the day and hour when such commissioners will the statute for the limitation of real actions. Id.; see, also, Onstott v. Murray, 22 Id., 457; Manderschid v. The City of Dubuque, 29 Id., 73.

Knowledge of such use by an agent of the land owner, having merely a general oversight of the land, without any authority to sell or convey, would not be sufficient. Id.

A railroad company may abandon land condemned as a right of way under the statute, and such abandonment causes the land to revert to the original owner, but gives the company no claim to the damages that may have been awarded and paid into the hands of the sheriff. Hastings v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 38 Id., 316.

When a railroad company abandons land condemned to its use for a right of way, all of its interest in the land disappears; and the abandonment is a good defense to any claim for additional damages upon appeal from the award of the sheriff's jury. Id.

An agreement in writing, executed by a land owner, to give a right of way to a railroad company upon its compliance with a certain condition, the agreement being placed in the hands of a third party, not an agent of the company, who returned it to the land owner after the company had failed of compliance, did not entitle it to the right of way without compensation. Hibbs v. The C. & S. W. R. R. Co., 39 Id., 340; see, also, Conger v. The B. & S. W. R. R. Co., 41 Id., 419.

A railroad company which enters upon land and appropriates a right of way without proceedings to condemn, or contract with the owner, or tendering him compensation therefor, is a mere trespasser, and acquires no right to hold the land. Id.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the company and its lessees from operating the road, after an award of damages under the statute, until they are paid. Id.

Where a railroad company entered upon and appropriated land for right of way, without proceedings to condemn, and assess damages or grant from the owner, it was held in a proceeding subsequently instituted under the statute by the company to assess the damages, that the measure thereof was the value of the land at the time of its appropriation, with interest from that time. Daniels v. The C. I. & N. R. R. Co., 41 Id., 52.

A railway company appropriated a right of way without compensating the owner therefor, although damages were assessed: held, that ejectment would lie, but that execution for possession should not issue until the company had been granted a reasonable time, fixed by the court, in which to pay the assessed damages and interest thereon from the date of assessment, at the rate of six per centum. Conger v. The B. & S. W. R. R. Co., 41 Id., 419.

Where certain lots in a town, owned and used with other lots for purposes connected with the same business, but separated therefrom by streets and alleys, are appropriated for the right of way of a railroad, the jury, in estimating damages therefor to the owner, should not consider all the lots thus used and separated as an entirety in respect to the business for which they were used, and allow damages accordingly. They should, in such case, estimate the value of the lots taken before the appropriation, then their value afterward, and the difference would be the measure of damages. Fleming v. The C. D. & M. R. R. Co., 34 Id., 353.

In ascertaining the depreciation in value of the premises, the immediate, and not the remote or contingent, consequences of the appropriation must alone be considered. Id. So, also, injuries that may result from unauthorized or unlawful acts, for which the company is liable in an action, are not to be considered. Id.

By the terms "just compensation," in the eighteenth section of the first article of the constitution of 1846, are meant that the persons whose property is taken shall receive a fair equivalent, and be made whole. Sater v. The B. & M. P. Plank Road Co., 1 Id., 386; Henry v. The Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Id., 288.

In ascertaining what that compensation shall be, the fair market value of the premises over which the proposed improvement is to pass, should be first ascertained, and then the like value of the premises in the condition in which they will be after the land for the improvement has been taken, irrespective of the benefit which may result from the improvement, and the difference will be the measure of compensation. Henry v. The D. & P. R. R. Co., 2 Id., 288.

Where the land was fenced, and by taking the right of way it is thrown open, and left in a manner unfenced, this fact should be taken into consideration in arriving at the depreciated value of the remaining premises. Id.

The term "damages," in the statute, has relation to the provision of the constitution under which the property is taken, and is precisely synonymous with the phrase "just compensation" there used. Fleming v. The C. D. & M. R. R. Co., 34 Id., 353.

The right of way conferred by the statute upon a railroad company is the right of way peculiar to a railroad, and contemplates all that is necessary for the construction and maintenance of a railroad over the premises. Id.

SEC. 1247. If the owner of such lands is a non-resident of the county in which the same are situate, no demand of the right of way, or other purpose for which such lands are desired, shall be necessary, except the publication of a notice which may be in the following form:

NOTICE.—For the appropriation of lands for railway purposes. To (here name each person whose land is to be taken or affected) and all other persons having any interest in, or owning any of the following real estate (here describe the land by its congressional numbers in tracts not exceeding one-sixteenth of a section, or, if the land consists of lots in a town or city, by the numbers of the lot and block). You are hereby notified that the has located its railway over the above described real estate, and desires the right of way over the same, to consist of a strip or belt of land . . . feet in width, through the center of which the center line of said railway will run, together with such other land as may be necessary for berms, waste banks and borrowing pits, and for wood and water stations (or desires the same for the purposes mentioned in sections twelve hundred and forty-two, and twelve hundred and forty-three of this chapter, as the case may be), and unless you proceed to have the damages to the same appraised on or before day of, A. D., 18.. (which time must be at least four weeks after the first publication of the notice), said company will proceed to have the same appraised on the . . . day of (which must be at least eight weeks after the first publication of the notice), at which time you can appear before the appraisers that may be selected.

for the right of way of a railroad, remains in the owner of the soil, and the company may take and remove only so much thereof as may be necessary for the construction and repair of the road and its appurtenances. Preston v. The Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 11 Id., 15.

The word "construction," as used in the statute, implies not only the making of the road bed, but also its preparation and readiness for use in a safe and convenient manner. Id.

In The City of Clinton v. The C. R. & M. R. R. Co., 24 Iowa, 455, it was held that where the fee of the streets in a city is vested in the corporation in trust for the public, the legislature may authorize them to be used by a railroad company without the consent of the city.

It was fully settled prior to the code of 1873 that a railroad company had a right under section 1321 of the revision, subject to equitable and police regulations, to pass over a street in a city without consent of the city authorities, and without previous payment to the city of damages occasioned by such occupation. The Chicago N. & S. W. R. Co. v. The Mayor and Trustees, etc., of Newton, 36 Id., 299; Hine v. The K. & D. M. R. Co., 42 Id., 636; *City of Clinton v. The C. R. & M. R. R. Where it was provided in an ordinance of the city of Des Moines "that the right to build and operate a railroad bridge on Market street over and across the Des Moines river in the city of Des Moines, is hereby granted to the D. V. R. R. Co., provided said company build or cause to be built a railroad bridge across said river within five years," it was held, that the right to build and operate the bridge being certain, it carried with it all the incidental rights and powers necessary to the efficacious enjoyment thereof, including the right to construct necessary and suitable approaches to the bridge, and that the construction of the bridge and approaches being thus authorized, the railroad company was not liable for consequential damages resulting therefrom to the lot owner, in front of whose property an embankment had been thrown up in the proper construction of the bridge and approaches. Slatten v. The D. V. R. R. Co., 29 Id., 148.

In a case arising in Muscatine, where the city had granted the right of way for the construction of a railroad upon one of its streets, it was held that the owner of adjacent property has an interest in the street, entitling him to maintain an action against a railroad company for such a careless or unlawful appropriation thereof, or the location of its track thereon, as shall be injurious to his property. Cadle v. The M. W. R. Co., 44 Id., 11; see, also, The State v. The D. & St. P. R. Co., 47 Id., 507.

The same doctrine is held in Park v. The C. & S. W. R. Co. et al., 43 Id., 636; and is followed in Frith v. The City of Dubuque and The C. D. & M. R. Co., 45 Id., 406. The last case, however, holds that the city which granted the railway company the right to use its streets does not thereby become liable for its obstruction to an adjacent owner.

An incorporated street railway has the same rights in respect to right of way as steam railways. Ingram, Kennedy & Day v. The C. D. & M. R. Co., 38 Id., 669; The City of Clinton v. The Clinton & Lyons Horse R'y Co., 37 Id., 61.

A railway has the right under section 1262 of the code, subject to proper equitable control and police regulation, to pass over a street of a city without the consent of the city authorities. The State v. The D. & St. Paul R'y Co., 47 Id., 507. (Is this decision not inconsistent with section 464 of the code, which authorizes cities "to authorize or forbid the location and laying down of tracks for railways and street railways on all streets, alleys and public places.")

The court shall determine the matter in a summary way and make the necessary orders in relation thereto, giving such corporation a reasonable time to comply therewith, and upon failure to do so, said court may enjoin the corporation from using so much of its road as interferes with any such highways, and the court may award costs in favor of the prevailing party.

^m Although a railroad company is authorized by law to construct its road over and across a public highway, yet it is not authorized to obstruct the same, but must, where the railroad crosses the highway, put it in good condition, and the company is liable in damages for neglecting to do so. *Fleming v. In the giving of the notices required by this act, the applicant shall state whether a railway is to be constructed and maintained on the way sought to be established; and if it be so stated the jury shall consider that fact in the assessment of damages.^p

^p While any individual or corporation owning coal lands or stone quarries, may condemn a right of way thereto over the lands of another under this chapter of the statute, yet the way so condemned must be a public one, and if a road be constructed thereon its use must be open to the owners of other mines and quarries upon the payment of proper compensation therefor. Jones et al. v. The Mahaska County Coal Co., 47 Iowa, 35.

Where the corporation seeking to condemn the right of way appeals from the assessment of the commissioner, and the amount allowed to the land owners on appeal is less than that awarded by the commissioners, the court may, under the general rules of law, direct a part of the costs of the appeal to be taxed to the corporation, notwithstanding the provisions of section 1252 of the code. Id.

OF THE TRACK.

SEC. 1288. Every corporation constructing or operating a railway, shall make proper cattle guards where the same enters or leaves any improved or fenced land, and construct at all points where such railway crosses any public highway, good, sufficient, and safe crossings and cattle guards, and erect at such points at a sufficient elevation from such highway to admit of free passage of vehicles of every kind, a sign, with large and distinct letters placed thereon, to give notice of the proximity of the railway and warn persons of the necessity of looking out for the cars; and any railway company neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of this section, shall be liable for all damages sustained by reason of such neglect and refusal, and in order for the injured party to recover it shall only be necessary for him to prove such neglect or refusal.^a

SEC. 1289. Any corporation operating a railway, that fails to fence the same against live stock running at large at all points where such right to fence exists, shall be liable to the owner of any such stock injured or killed by reason of the want of such fence for the value of the property or damage caused, unless the same was occasioned by the willful act of the owner or his agent. And, in order to recover, it shall only be necessary for the owner to prove the injury or destruction of his property; and if such corporation neglects to pay the value of or damage done to any such stock within thirty days after notice in writing, accompanied by an affidavit of such injury or destruction, has been served on any officer, station or ticket-agent employed in the management of the business of the corporation in the county where the injury complained of was committed, such owner, shall be entitled to recover double the value of the stock killed or damages caused thereto; provided, that no law of this state, nor any local or police re-

^a Under the revision the omission of a railroad company to erect a sign-board at a highway crossing to warn persons approaching, as required in this section, does not render the company absolutely liable for injuries to persons or property while attempting to cross the track at such point. Evidence of omission merely establishes the negligence of the company, and, if it appears that the plaintiff's negligence contributed to the injury, he cannot recover. Dodge v. C. R. & M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 276. But under this section of the code it has been held that the failure or refusal of the company to erect the required sign-board renders it absolutely liable for an injury occurring at a highway crossing. Payne v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 44 Id., 236.

It has since been held that the failure to erect a sign at a crossing renders a railroad company liable only for damages sustained by the neglect or refusal to erect the sign, and does not release a party seeking to recover from the necessity of due care on his part. Lang v. The Holiday Creek R. and Coal Mining Co., 49 Id., 469.

Every corporation, owning or operating a railway is required to construct crossings at all points where its road intersects a public highway, and it is liable for all injuries resulting from a neglect of this duty. Farley v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 234.

So, also, railways are required to repair and keep in safe condition for travel, the crossings which the statute requires them to construct, although this requirement does not relieve the road districts of the duty of maintaining the highway in good condition. Id.

The embankment which is constructed as a necessary approach to the railway track is, in legal contemplation, a part of the crossing. Id.

Any railway company claiming to be exempt from the provisions of the statute imposing this duty, has the burden to establish by affirmative proof the facts upon which such exemption is based. Id.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries resulting from a defective cattle-guard, evidence that another cattle-guard, constructed like the one in controversy, had proved sufficient was properly rejected. Downing v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 43 Id., 96.

While it is the duty of the injured party to use all reasonable care to protect his property, he would not be allowed to go upon the railway to repair the cattle-guard, or be required to fence the road. Id.

The statute requires railroad companies to construct cattle-guards wherever their tracks enter or leave any improved land, and they are liable for injuries resulting from a failure to do so. Id.

And this is so where the railroad passes through fences dividing the lands of the same owner, as well as those constituting the boundaries between different owners. Smith v. The C. C. & D. R. Co., 38 Id., 518.

The rights of a party injured at a railway crossing of a public highway were determined by the statute in force at the time of the injury, and he can derive no advantage from a subsequent statute enlarging the liability of a railroad company, though enacted prior to the commencement of his action. Payne v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 44 Id., 236.

The rights of a traveler upon the highway and a railroad company are equal at a crossing, but a traveler approaching a crossing must yield the right of way to the train drawing near. Black v. The B. C. R. & Min. R. Co. 38 Id., 515.

gulations of any county, township, city, or town, regulating the restraint of domestic animals, or, in relation to the fences of farmers or land owners, shall be applicable to railway tracks, unless so specifically stated in the law or regulation. The operating of trains upon depot grounds necessarily used by the company and public, where no such fence is built, at a greater rate of speed than eight miles per hour, shall be deemed negligence and render the company liable under this section.

And provided further, that any corporation operating a railway shall be liable for all damages by fire that is set out or caused by operating of any such railway, and such damage may be recovered by the party damaged in the same manner as set forth in this section in regard to stock, except to double damages.^t

Liable for fires set out.

^t This section is not inconsistent with section 6, article 1, of the state constitution. The legislature has the power to fix the consequences attending the failure of a railroad company to pay the simple or actual value of property destroyed or injured as contemplated in the statute. Jones v. The G. & C. U. R. Co., 16 Iowa, 6.

Under this section of the statute if a railroad company fails to fence its road, where it has the right to do so, it is liable for stock injured or killed by reason of the want of such fence, unless the injury is occasioned by the willful act of the owner. Russell v. Hanley, 20 Id., 219, 221; Jones v. The G. & C. U. R. Co., 16 Id., 6; McCool v. The Same, 17 Id., 461; Koons v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 493; Spence v. The Same, 25 Id., 139; Stewart v. The Same, 27 Id., 282; Helphrey v. The C. & R. I. R. Co., 29 Id., 480; Andre v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 30 Id., 107; Soward v. The Same, Id., 551; Stewart v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 32 Id., 561; Davis v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 40 Id., 292; McCormick v. The Same, 41 Id., 193; Davis v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 26 Id., 549; Brandt v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., Id., 114; Treadway v. The S. C. & St. P. R. Co., 43 Id., 527.

As to third persons, it is the duty of railroad companies not only to fence their roads but to keep gates at private crossings in repair and closed; but where a road is properly fenced and the company uses the necessary care and caution in keeping it up or in good condition, and it is thrown and left down or open by the act of a third person, without the fault of the company, the liability for the injury is upon the party thus throwing down or leaving open the fence, and not upon the railroad company. Russell v. Hanley, 20 Id., 219.

The company will be liable for stock killed or injured on its track by reason of its failure to keep the fences in repair which it has erected along the line of its road, but, before such liability will attach, the company must have knowledge, either actual or implied, that the fence was out of repair, and a reasonable time thereafter to put it in proper condition. This rule applies where gates or bars have been left open by third persons. Aylesworth v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 30 Id., 459; Davis v. Same, 40 Id., 292; Perry v. The D. S. W. R. Co., 36 Id., 102;

McCormick v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 41 Id., 193; Lemon v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 32 Id., 151; Bartlett v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 20 Id., 188; Hammond v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 43 Id., 168.

This section is not a penal statute, nor is the double damages therein provided for a statute penalty within the meaning of the statute of limitations (code, sec. 2529, sub. 1), and the action is, therefore, not barred in two years, but may be brought at any time within five years from the time of the injury. Koons v. The C., & N. W. R'y Co., 23 Id., 493.

Under this section, a railroad company is liable for swine killed upon its track, while running at large, at a point where it has the right to fence its road and neglects to do so, although swine may be prohibited from running at large by vote of the electors of the county where the injury occurs, unless the injury was caused by the willful act of the owner or his agent. Spence v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 25 Id., 139; Stewart v. Same, 27 Id., 282.

So, also, the company will be liable under similar circumstances for the killing of a bull while running at large. The permitting a bull to run at large by the owner does not constitute a willful act within the meaning of the statute, relieving the company from liability. Stewart v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 32 Id., 561. But, see, Pearson v. The M. & St. P. R. Co., 45 Id., 497.

This section in so far as it provides that if a railroad company fails to fence its road against live stock running at large at all points where it has the right to fence, it shall be absolutely liable for stock killed or injured, does not extend or apply to depot grounds; and, in the absence of negligence, the company will not be liable for injuries to stock thereon. Davis v. The B. & M. R. R. Co., 26 Id., 549.

The absolute liability of the company does not attach at all places where it has the abstract right to fence, but only where, in the particular case, it is fit, proper and suitable that a fence should be built. Id. To the same effect are Packard v. The Ill. Central R. Co., 30 Id., 474; Durand v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 26 Id., 559; Comstock v. The D. V. R. Co., 32 Id., 376; Smith v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 34 Id.,

Railway crossings near shore of Mississippi river.
Ch. 33, 14 G. A.

SEC. 1290. Whenever it becomes necessary in the construction of any railway to cross any other railway near the shore of the Mississippi river, each shall be so constructed and maintained at the point of crossing so that the respective road-beds thereof shall be above high water in such river. But where such crossings occur within the limits of cities containing six thousand inhabitants as shown by the last preceding census, the city council of such cities may establish the grade at such crossings.

506; Latta v. The B. C. R. & M. R. Co., 38 Id., 250.

The company is not absolutely liable for stock injured or killed upon street or highway crossings, but only where it fails to exercise ordinary and reasonable care. Davis v. The B. & M. R. Co., 26 Id., 549; Rogers v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., Id., 558.

In order for a railroad company to protect itself from absolute liability for injuries to stock on highway crossings, its fences should be built to, and its cattle guards erected at, the crossing. Andre v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 30 Id., 107.

Where the outer line of a railroad and that of a highway running parallel with each other, intersected several hundred feet before the highway crossed the track of the railroad, the company were held liable for stock killed on the track between cattle guards which were erected at the points where the right of way of the railroad and the highway intersected and where the highway crossed the track and to which the company had erected fences. Id.

A railroad company is not absolutely liable under this section for stock killed at the crossing of a road, used and traveled by the public as a highway, though the route thus traveled was in fact outside of the survey or line of the highway as legally established. Soward v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 33 Id., 386.

Where stock has been injured through the negligence of a railroad company, it is the duty of the company to take proper care of the injured animals, and, failing to do so, the owner is justified in taking proper care of them, for which he may recover a reasonable compensation from the company. Finch v. The Central R. Co., 42 Id., 303.

That the owner of stock permits it to run at large in the vicinity of a railway crossing which he knows to be dangerous, does not constitute negligence which will defeat his recovery for injuries to his stock caused by the negligence of the railway company. Kuhn v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 42 Id., 420.

The owner of stock has the right to expect that the railway company will exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to his property, both in the construction of its crossings and in the operation of its trains; and it is proper for the jury to be instructed that if a crossing is more than ordinarily dangerous they should consider that circumstance in determining whether the company used reasonable care in the operation of its train when the injury occurred. Id.

But a railroad company is not authorized to diminish the speed of a train for the sake of avoiding injury to stock, if by so doing it augments the danger to passengers. There is no such thing as a "reasonable" increase of danger to passengers. Sandham v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 88.

The owner of land adjacent to a railroad, who has agreed with the railroad company to erect and maintain fences between his property and the railroad, cannot recover for injuries to stock caused by the want of fence or defects therein. Semble, that his tenants would likewise be estopped to claim indemnity for losses thus resulting. Warren v. The R. & D. M. R. Co., 41 Id., 434.

Such a contract between the land owner and the company does not release the latter from its liability to other persons than such owner, although it may look to him for indemnity for losses caused by his failure to construct or repair the fence. Id.

In an action to recover damages for killing stock the objection that the petition fails to set out the notice served upon the railroad company should be raised by demurrer, and if not so raised, will be regarded as waived. McKinley v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 47 Id., 76.

Under section 1289 above, railway companies are liable for all stock killed or injured on depot grounds by trains running at a greater rate of speed than eight miles an hour. Monahan v. The Kookuk & Des M. R'y Co., 45 Id., 523.

This provision, however, imposes no restriction upon the rate of speed of trains outside of the limits of depot grounds, and the liability of a railway company for stock killed just beyond such limits is not affected by the fact that the train was running faster than eight miles an hour. Id.

In the absence of statutory limitation upon the rate or speed of railway trains, no conceivable rate is evidence of negligence per se. McKonkey v. The C. B. & Q. R. Co., 40 Id., 205.

The provision of this section limiting the speed of trains on depot grounds is a new provision in the law, enacted as part of the code, and has no application to cases arising prior to the taking effect of the code. Id.

A railroad company is not liable under this section for cattle killed on its track unless they are running at large at the time of the injury. Smith v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 34 Id., 96.

They are "running at large" within the meaning of the statute when they have escaped from the inclosure of their owner, through which

SEC. 1291. In all cases where taxes have been voted under chapter forty-eight, of twelfth general assembly, or chapter one hundred and two of thirteenth general assembly, to aid in the construction of any railway, or where said tax has been transferred under chapter eighty-one of the fourteenth general assembly, and said tax has been voted or transferred under any condition or contract with the railway company which the township may desire to have changed or modified, said township is hereby authorized upon agreement of its trustees with the railway company constructing said proposed railway, to submit to a vote of the electors of the township, the question whether the conditions or contract under which said tax was voted or transferred, shall be changed or modified, and said trustees, upon petition of one-third of the legal voters of the township, as shown by the vote cast at the last general election, asking such change or modification, shall order an election, submitting the agreement to the electors, at a special election called therefor, said election to be conducted in all respects as to notice the road runs, by reason of the company failing to maintain a sufficient fence along its road at that point. Hinman v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 28 Iowa, 491; Ferrow v. Dubuque & S. W. R'y Co., 22 Id., 528; Swift v. The N. Mo. R. Co., 29 Id., 243; Hammond v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 43 Id., 168.

Terms and conditions on which taxes have been voted in aid of may be changed.

But if cattle, while being driven, in charge of the owner or his servant, escape or run on the track and are injured the company is not liable. They are not "running at large" within the meaning of this provision of the statute. Smith v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 34 Id., 96.

In an action for damages against a railway company for injuries to growing crops in consequence of a failure to construct cattle guards, the measure of recovery is the market value of the crops when matured, less the expense of fitting them for the market, and diminished by whatever the value of the portion saved, if any, may be. Smith v. The C. C. & D. R. Co., 38 Id., 518.

And in such case the owner will be entitled to recover a reasonable compensation for time and labor necessarily expended in efforts to save his crops from destruction; and he is not bound to exercise extraordinary diligence to save his crops, even though that might be successful; whether he is negligent or not in this respect is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

To render a railroad company liable for double the value of stock killed on its track under this section, it must be served with a written notice of the killing or injury, accompanied by the original affidavit therein provided for. The leaving of a copy of the affidavit with the notice is not a compliance with the statute. McNaught v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 30 Id., 336; Cole v. The Same, 38 Id., 311; Campbell v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 35 Id., 334.

It is not essential to the recovery of double damages that the affidavit be made by the owner of the stock injured. It may be made by any one cognizant of the fact. Henderson v. The St. L. R. C. & N. R. Co., 35 Id., 387.

Prior to the Code of 1873, to render a railroad company liable for damages on account of fire resulting from sparks emitted from one of its engines, the negligence of the company in the premises must be shown either directly or by circumstances tending to establish, such as the absence of a spark arrester, the use of an excessive amount of steam, an unlawful rate of speed, or the like. The mere fact that the fire was caused by the sparks does not make a prima facie case against the company. Gandy v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 30 Id., 420; Garrett v. The Same, 36 Id., 121.

But, as in the nature of the case, the plaintiff must labor under difficulties in making proof of negligence it may be established by circumstances bearing more or less directly on the case, which might not be satisfactory in other cases free from difficulty and open to clearer proofs. Id.

The decision in Kesee v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 30 Iowa, is not applicable to the subject, since the enactment of the code.

The proviso of section 1289, rendering railway companies absolutely liable for all damages by fire, caused by the operation of their roads, is not in conflict with the state constitution. Rodemacker v. The Mil. & St. Paul R'y Co. 41 Id., 297.

It will not, in an action for such damages, be presumed that injuries by fire to fences and timber a mile from the railway were considered in estimating the damages for the right of way. Id.

The service of a written notice is not necessary to the validity of a claim for damages for losses by fire; such notice is only necessary when double damages are sought to be recovered. Id.

This section providing that railway companies "shall be liable for all damage by fire that is set out or caused by the operation" of their roads, does not create any absolute liability, but makes the fact of an injury so occurring only prima facie evidence of negligence, which may be rebutted by proof of freedom from negligence. Small v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 50 Iowa, 338. BECK, CH. J. and DAY, J., dissenting. Approved and followed in Slosson v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 51 Id., 294.

Change of ownership or name: rights and remedies.

^v A railroad company which, as the lessee of another company owning the road, has the exclusive right to run, operate and control the road as its own during a term of fifty years, and exercises the right of maintaining a fence along the line, was held liable under section 6, of chapter 169, of the laws of 1862, for stock killed by reason of its failure to fence the road operated by it. *Stewart v. That by the terms of the lease the lessor had the right to fix the time table, and that the trains of the lessee were operated in subordination thereto, and the lessor was obliged to keep up repairs and fences would not change the rule. Id.

So where two railroad companies operate trains on the same track, one being the owner and the other a lessee, each is liable for stock killed or injured by its own trains. Clary v. The

But a railroad company cannot escape liability for injuries occurring while its road is being operated in the corporate name, even though in fact it may have been leased, and was at the time of the injury controlled by the lessee. Bower v. The B. & S. W. R. Co., 42 Id., 546.

Maximum rates to be annually fixed and posted up; penalty.
Ch. 139, 13 G. A.

SEC. 1304. In the month of June in each year, every corporation operating a railway in this state shall fix its maximum rates of fare for passengers and freight, for transportation of timber, wood and coal, per ton, cord or thousand feet per mile; also its fare and freight per mile for transporting merchandise and articles of the first, second, third and fourth classes of freight; and, on the first day of July following, shall put up at all the stations and depots on its railway, a printed copy of such fare and freight, and cause a copy to remain posted during the year. For willfully neglecting so to do, or for willfully receiving higher rates of fare or freight than those posted, the company shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa, for the use of the school fund, not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, to be recovered in any civil action in the name of the state; and it is hereby made the duty of the several district-attorneys within their respective districts to sue for and recover all sums forfeited as aforesaid; and such corporation shall also forfeit and pay to the person injured, double the amount of compensation or charge illegally taken, to be recovered by such person in a civil action.

Maximum passenger fare.

SEC. 1305. For the transportation of passengers, no railway company shall charge to exceed three and one-half cents per mile per passenger.

Rights reserved.

SEC. 1306. All contracts, stipulations and conditions regarding the right of controlling and regulating the charges for freight and passengers upon railways, heretofore made in granting land or other property or voting taxes to aid in the construction of, or franchises to, railway corporations, are expressly reserved, continued and perpetuated in full force and effect, to be exercised by the general assembly, whenever the public good and the public necessity requires such exercise thereof.

SEC. 1307. Every corporation operating a railway shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person, including employes of such corporation, in consequence of the neglect of agents, or by any mismanagement of the engineers or other employes of the corporation, and in consequence of the willful wrongs, whether of commission or omission of such agents, engineers or other employes, when such wrongs are in any manner connected with the use and operation of any railway, on or about which they shall be employed, and no contract which restricts such liability shall be legal or binding.^w ^w Under the statute prior to the passage of chapter 169, laws of 1862, it was held, in harmony with the current of common law authority, that the principal is not liable for damages sustained by an employe from the negligence of a co-employe in the same general service; and that the 14th section of the act entitled "an act to grant to railroad companies the right of way, approved January 18, 1853, did not change the general rule on the subject. Sullivan v. The M. & M. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 421.

After the act of 1862 took effect it was held, that while the seventh section thereof gave an employe of a railroad company a right to recover for injuries caused by the negligence of a co-employe, the liability was nevertheless measured by a different standard and rule as to negligence from what it is in case of injuries to passengers. While extraordinary care and caution are required with respect to passengers, ordinary care only is due to the employe. Hunt v The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 26 Id., 363, WRIGHT J., dis-sending, and holding that under the statute the same rule applied to both.

An employe of a railroad company cannot recover from the company for injuries sustained through the negligence of a co-employe, where he has also been guilty of contributory negligence producing the injury. Hoben v. The B. & M. R. Co., 20 Id., 562; McAunich v. The M. & M. R. Co., Id., 338; Kroy v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 32 Id., 357; Nelson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 564.

The rule is settled in this state that in an action for injuries resulting from negligence, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that the injury happened without contributory negligence on his part; yet this may be inferred from circumstances, without direct proof. Nelson v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 38 Id., 564.

As to the scope of the term employe used in the statute it must be limited to those employes engaged in the hazardous business of operating a railroad. Deppe v. The C. R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 52; Fransden v. The Same, Id., 372; Schroeder v. The Same, 41 Id., 344; McAunich v. The M. & M. R. Co., 20 Id., 338.

Nevertheless one who is employed in connection with a dirt train, and who was injured while loading a car by the falling of an impending bank is within the term. Fransden v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., supra.

A person employed as a section hand whose duty it is, with others, to keep a certain distance of the railroad track in repair, and to go with them on the track in a hand car for that purpose, is an employe within this section of the statute. Fransden v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 372. See also Ney v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 20 Id., 347.

This provision of the statute was held to be not in conflict with the constitution in McAunich v. The M. & M. R. Co., 20 Id., 338.

Where the deceased was the conductor and superior officer of the train, and directed the line of conduct by which resulted his death, his personal representatives will be estopped from recovering against the company on the ground of negligence on the part of its employes. Dewey v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 31 Id., 373.

Where an employe of a railway company is killed through the negligence of a co-employe a right of action accrues under this section to the representatives of the deceased. Philo v. The Ill. Cen. R. Co., 33 Id., 47.

The bare fact that an employe is directed by his superior in charge to perform an act at a time and under such circumstances as that a person would reasonably apprehend danger therefrom, would not justify his disobedience of such order; hence to assume such position of danger in obedience to such direction, is not, of itself, negligence. Fransden v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 36 Id., 372.

While an employe would have no right of action for injuries received in such case, since he was employed and paid for assuming such position of danger, yet if the danger was created by reason of the prior negligence of co-employes, or if, by reason of their negligence, the injury was caused to him, he may recover. Id.

It is the duty of railroad companies to provide their cars with such appliances as are calculated and reasonably necessary to insure the safety of their employes. Greenlief v. The Ill. Cen. R. Co., 29 Id., 14; Cooper v. The Cen. R. Co., 44 Id., 134.

If the car in question was wanting in the appliances reasonably necessary for the safety of employes at the time of its construction, and so continued when put and used on the road, it would not be necessary to show any further knowledge thereof on the part of defendant in order to fix its liability. Id.

If the defect was known to the employe, or might have been known by the use of ordinary care, and there was no inducement used for him to remain, by promises to remove the danger by remedying the defect, it would seem that he thereby assumes the risk and would not be entitled to recover for injuries resulting therefrom. Id.

If at one time the car was supplied with these appliances and they were afterwards removed by accident or otherwise, an employe cannot recover on account of the defects without showing that the company or its agents had notice thereof, or might have known it by the use of ordinary diligence. Id.

Though an employe knew of the defects in the appliances of a car, his right to recover for injuries resulting therefrom would not be defeated if he was at the time acting under the immediate order of a superior. Id.

The rule is now recognized in this state, that if the employe knows that another employe is habitually negligent, or that the materials with which he works are defective, and he continues his work without objection and without being induced by his employer to believe that a change will be made, he will be deemed to have assumed the risk and cannot recover for an injury resulting therefrom. Kroy v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 32 Id., 357.

The doctrine of contributory, and not that of comparative negligence prevails in this state, and it has been uniformly held that the plaintiff cannot recover if his own negligence contributed to the injury, although the railroad company was also guilty of negligence. Haley v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 22 Id., 15; Donaldson v. The M. & M. R. Co., 18 Id., 280; Hunt v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 26 Id., 363; Hoben v. The B. & M. R. Co., 50 Id., 562; *O'Keefe v. The C. R. The plaintiff's negligence will not enable the defendant to escape liability if the act which caused the injury was done by defendant after it discovered the plaintiff's negligence, and if the defendant could have avoided the injury by the exercise of reasonable care. Morris v. The C., B. & Q. R. Co., 45 Id., 29.

The giving of signals of an approaching train at a crossing, by blowing the whistle or ringing the bell is not required under the statute or any rule of law. Spencer v. The Ill. Cen. R. Co., 29 Id., 55; Artz v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 34 Id., 153.

And where such signals are required by statute, the omission to give them will not render the company absolutely liable, unless injury results from such omission alone, without the negligence of the party injured. Id.

Nor on the other hand will the absence of such statutory requirement excuse the company from giving such signals under all circumstances. Id.

While it is the duty of a person in crossing the track of a railway to use all reasonable precautions to ascertain whether a train is approaching, he is not, as a matter of law, bound to stop his team and look and listen before attempting to cross. He may have satisfactory and sufficient evidence to justify him in attempting to cross, without this. Spencer v. The Ill. C. R. Co. 29 Id., 55.

A person going upon the track of a railroad for the purpose of walking thereon, is bound to exercise ordinary precaution in looking out for the approach of the cars, and to use his senses to that end. His failure to do so constitutes negligence on his part as matter of law. Carlin v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 37 Id., 316.

When a person knowingly about to cross a railroad track approaches it from a point where he may have an unobstructed view of the railroad, and know of the approach of a train a sufficient time to clearly avoid any injury from it, he cannot, as a matter of law, recover, although the railroad may also have been negligent in omitting to perform a statutory requirement or otherwise. Artz v. The C., R. I. & P. Co., 34 Id., 153.

If, however, the view of the railroad as the crossing is approached, is by any means so obstructed at the time as to render it impossible or difficult to learn of the approach of the train; or there are circumstances connected with the incident calculated to deceive or throw a person off his guard, then whether it was negligence on the part of the person injured in undertaking to cross, is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

In an action for damages against a railroad company for injuries received at a crossing, the following instruction was given: "If you believe from the evidence that the plaintiff neither stopped his team, nor made any effort to see or hear the train before he drove on the railroad track; and you farther believe that if he had stopped and looked he could have seen the train, or if he had listened he could have heard it, then he cannot recover." Held, to embody the correct rule of law. Benton v. The C. R. of Iowa, 42 Id., 192.

To entitle the plaintiff to recover in such an action, he must affirmatively establish reasonable care on his own part while proving negligence on the part of the company. Id.

See, also, to the same effect, O'Keefe v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 32 Id., 467; Carlin v. Same, 37 Id., 316; Donaldson v. The M. & M. R. Co., 18 Id., 280; Balcom v. The D. & S. C. R. Co., 21 Id., 102; Greenleaf v. The Ill. C. R. Co., 29 Id., 14; Spencer v. Same, Id., 55; Reese v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 30 Id., 78; Dewey v. Same, 31 Id., 373; Reynolds v. Hindman, 32 Id., 146.

Where a railroad company undertook to transport a lot of cattle for the owner, who was to take care of them, in a car which proved to be defective, by reason of which the cattle had to be changed to another car, which the owner of the cattle had no opportunity to provide with bedding, whereby some of the cattle got down and were injured, it was held, that the company was liable for the loss thus sustained. McDaniel v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 24 Id., 412.

If the employes of a railway company, engaged in the operation of the road or in the running of trains, commit an assault upon a citizen who is not a passenger upon the train or in any manner connected with the company, it is not liable for such assault. Porter v. The C., R. I. & P. R. Co., 41 Id., 358.

Prior to the act of April 18, 1872, being chapter 65 of the laws of that year, which is embodied in section 1307 of the code, it was held, that a railroad company was not liable for stock killed or injured on its track in consequence of the willful act of the engineer. DeCamp v. The M. & M. R. Co., 12 Id., 348. Followed in Cooke v. The Ill. Cen. R. Co., 30 Id., 202.

It is now, however, held, that a railway company is liable for the malicious and criminal acts of its agents toward passengers while they are executing what they suppose to be the orders of the company, even though the orders do not in would exist had no contract, receipt, rule or regulation, been made or entered into.^x fact contemplate such acts. McKinley v. The C. & N. W. R. Co., 44 Id., 310.

The decision in the above case does not seem to be based upon the provisions of section 1307 of the code, as no reference is made thereto in the opinion, but it clearly overrules the prior cases on the same question.

A railroad company is chargeable with negligence if any of its employees whose duty it was to observe the condition of a bridge, or keep it in repair, had actual or implied notice of the defects therein, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence would have known them, and failed to make the necessary repairs. Locke v. The S. C. & P. R. Co., 46 Id., 109.

A railroad company is held only to the exercise of ordinary diligence to prevent injury to its employees. Id.

In an action against a railway company for negligence, in killing plaintiff's intestate, when the evidence shows contributory negligence on the part of the deceased, the court may direct a verdict for defendant. Starry v. The D. S. W. R. Co., 51 Id., 419.

^x Where a railroad company undertook to transport cattle from Clinton, Iowa, to Chicago, Illinois, under a contract containing a stipulation restricting the common law liability of the company as a common carrier, this stipulation was held void under chapter 113, laws of the tenth general assembly, and that the company was liable as a common carrier, the same as if no such stipulation had been inserted in the contract. McDaniel v. The C. & N. W. R'y Co., 24 Iowa, 412.

Under sections 1307 and 1308 of the code, railroad companies are liable for all damages caused by the negligence of their agents or employees, and no special contract will exempt them from such liability. The provisions of the statute are general, applying equally to passengers and servants of the company. Rose v. The D. V. R. Co., 39 Id., 246.

Where it appeared that the deceased was twenty-four years of age, without family, of temperate and industrious habits, and whose annual net earnings were found to be $263, a verdict of ten thousand dollars was held to be excessive; judgment affirmed upon a remittitur of five thousand dollars being entered. BECK, J., dissenting.

Where a contract for transportation of freight limited the carrier's liability at common law, in consideration of which the shipper received special rates and a pass over the road, it was held that the contract was void within this section of the code. *Brush v. ESTABLISHING A BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

Title.

AN ACT to repeal chapter 68, acts of the fifteenth general assembly, and provide for the establishment of a board of railroad commissioners, and defining their duties and term of office.

Parts of chapter 68, 15 G. A., repealed.

Board to consist of three persons, one a civil engineer.

Term of office.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That chapter 68, of the acts of the fifteenth general assembly, excepting sections one, two, and seven thereof, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following be enacted:

SEC. 2. The governor, with the advice and consent of the executive council shall, before the first day of April next, appoint three competent persons (one of whom shall be a civil engineer), who shall constitute a board of railroad commissioners, and who shall hold their offices from the date of their respective appointments, for the terms of one, two and three years, respectively, from the first day of April next.

The governor shall, in like manner, before the first day in April of each year thereafter, appoint a commissioner, to continue in office for the term of three years from said day; and in case any vacancy occurs in the said board by resignation or otherwise, shall, in the same manner, appoint a commissioner for the residue of the term, and may remove such commissioners, and appoint others to fill their vacancy at any time, in the discretion of the governor and executive council. No person owning any bonds, stock or property in any railroad company, or who is in the employment of, or who is in any way or manner pecuniarily interested in any railroad corporation, shall be eligible to the office of railroad commissioner. Said commissioners shall be qualified electors of the state.

Owning stock in railroads, etc., shall constitute ineligibility.

The commissioners shall, as nearly as practicable, be selected one from the eastern, one from the central and one from the western portions of the state.

SEC. 3. Said commissioners shall have the general supervision of all railroads in the state operated by steam, and shall inquire into any neglect or violation of the laws of this state by any railroad corporation doing business therein, or by the officers, agents or employes, thereof, and shall also from time to time carefully examine and inspect the condition of each railroad in the state, and of its equipment, and the manner of its conduct and management, with reference to the public safety and convenience, and for the purpose of keeping the several railroad companies advised as to the safety of their bridges, shall make a semi-annual examination of the same, and report their condition to the said companies.

Duties of commissioners.

Shall make semi-annual examination of bridges.

And if any bridge shall be deemed unsafe by the commissioners, they shall notify the railroad company immediately, and it shall be the duty of said railroad company to repair and put in good order within ten days after receiving said notice, said bridge, and in default thereof, said commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to stop and prevent said railroad company from running or passing its trains over said bridge, while in its unsafe condition.

If bridge found unsafe, railroad company shall be notified.

To this suit, all trustees, mortgagees, or other lien holders, and all townships, cities, and counties which have aided by taxation to build the road, must be made defendants by service of original notice, in the time and manner as provided by law for service of original notices.
Who shall be defendants.
Notice.	SEC. 2. In addition to the foregoing notice, a public notice to all whom it may concern, of the time of filing such petition, and of the object thereof and of the term of court at which the application for authority to make the change will be made, and requiring all persons desiring the repayment of money or the return of property, as in this act contemplated, to appear at such court and make good their claim therefor, must be published in a newspaper printed in each county, wherein the change is to be made, for a period of ten successive weeks before the term of court at which the application is to be made. With consent of lien-holders.
Court shall make order.	SEC. 4. If the court is satisfied that due and proper notice has been given, and that the consent of the proper parties, as herein contemplated, has been duly obtained, it shall order and adjudge in favor of all persons who have appeared and established their claims thereto, the repayment of all moneys, and the return of all property, or its value, which were given or donated to the company exclusively in consideration of the roads being located on the line from which it is proposed to make the removal, and shall declare and adjudge all persons not so appearing and establishing their claims as aforesaid, forever thereafter debarred and estopped from setting up or asserting the same. The court may, if the public interest demand it, make an order authorizing the railroad company to change or remove the loca-

Cuts to be filled and banks leveled upon removal.

Title.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in all cases where any railroad corporation, organized under the laws of this state or any other state, owning or operating a line of railroad within this state would have the right at this time, by procuring the right of way from the land owner to dig a channel or cut a ditch in such manner as to change and straighten the course of Intent of act.

SEC. 4. The true intent of this act is, not to create in favor of a railroad corporation any additional right to divert a water course from its natural channel, but simply to give the right to condemn the land necessary for the right of way in all cases where by conveyance to the railroad corporation it would have the right to dig such channels or ditches:

Proviso.

Provided, That nothing herein shall permit any railroad company to turn the channel of any stream off of any cultivated, or pasture or meadow lands, where said stream only touches said lands at one point, unless it be by the consent of the owner of said land.

Warning to depart.
R. § 1380.

Where a person removes to a county with the intent to reside there, the domicile thus acquired is not affected if he afterward, and before he acquires a legal settlement, becomes insane, and his insanity and removal to the insane hospital will not prevent his acquiring a legal settlement. Washington County v. Mahaska County, 47 Iowa, 57.

may be prevented from obtaining a settlement in a county by warning them to depart from the same or any township thereof, and thereafter they shall not acquire a settlement except by the requisite residence for one year uninterrupted by another warning.

How given and served.
R. § 1381.

SEC. 1356. Such warning shall be in writing, and may be served upon the order of the trustees of the township, or of the board of supervisors, by any person; and such person shall make a return of his doings thereon to the board of supervisors; and, if not made by a sworn officer, it must be verified by affidavit.

Removal when settlement is in another county.
R. § 1382.

SEC. 1357. When a poor person applying for relief in one county has a settlement in another, he may be removed to the county of his settlement, if he be able to be removed, upon the order of the trustees of the township or board of supervisors of the county where he applied for relief, and delivered to any officer charged with the oversight of the poor in the county where his settlement is, giving written notice of the fact to the county auditor; or the trustees of the township or board of supervisors of the county where he applied for relief, may, in their discretion, cause the auditor of the county where he has a settlement to be notified of his being a county charge, and, thereupon, it will become the duty of the latter board to order the removal of the poor person, if he is able to be removed, and, if not able, then to provide for his relief and for all expenses incurred in his behalf.

Order binding unless notice of contest given.
R. § 1384.

SEC. 1359. Such order of removal shall be binding on the county to which the removal is to be made, unless, within thirty days after receipt of the notice provided by section thirteen hundred and fifty-seven, it gives notice to the auditor of the county making such order of its intention to contest the same. In such case, the proper settlement of the pauper in such county may be tested and determined in an action brought to recover the amount already expended in his behalf. A notice of such action, signed by the county auditor, shall be served on the auditor of the other county, specifying the amount claimed and the facts out of which the claim arises, and no other proceeding shall be necessary to commence the action. The notice hereinbefore provided for, and a transcript of whatever other proceedings or papers there may be relative to the matter, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, and the cause may be entitled as of the county issuing the order as plaintiff against the county contesting the same as defendant.

R. § 1385.

SEC. 1360. The cause may be tried as other actions at law, but no pleadings are necessary, the only issues being whether the pauper had a settlement in the county to which he was ordered to be removed at the time of such order, and whether the amount claimed, or any part thereof, was actually and properly expended by the plaintiff county in his behalf; and the burden of proof shall be on the county making the order of removal.

Three trustees may afford relief.

SEC. 1361. [The trustees of each township shall provide for the relief of such poor persons in their respective townships as should not in their judgment be sent to the county poor-house. But where a city

The relief thus furnished may be in the form of food, clothing, fuel, lights, rent, medical attendance or money; but exclusive of medical attendance the relief thus furnished shall not exceed the sum of two dollars per week for each person. And when in the opinion of the trustees or overseer the person asking aid, or any member of his family, is able to work, and such a condition would not be oppressive, they may require the person or any member of his family who is able, as a condition on which relief shall be granted to earn the relief by labor on the public highway at the rate of not to exceed sixty-five cents per day. The trustees of townships or overseers of the poor are also authorized to grant relief by furnishing food to transient persons who appear needy, and who are able to work; but such relief shall not exceed the sum of forty cents per day; and they may require such able bodied persons to labor faithfully on the streets or highway at the rate of five cents an hour in payment for and as a condition of granting the relief. The appointment shall be for two years, and so that the term of one commissioner shall expire every year. The notices, reports and communications herein required to be given or made, may be sent by mail, unless otherwise expressed or implied; and the facts and date of such sending and their reception, must be noted on the proper record.

SEC. 1398. The said commissioners shall have cognizance of all applications for admission to the hospital, or for the safe keeping otherwise of insane persons within their respective counties, excepting in cases otherwise especially provided for. Jurisdiction and power.
Same, § 18.

SEC. 1399. Applications for admission to the hospital must be made in the form of an information, verified by affidavit, alleging that the person in whose behalf the application is made, is believed by the informant to be insane, and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital; that such a person is found in the county, and has a legal settlement therein, if such is known to be the fact; and, if such settlement is not in the county, where it is, if known; or where it is believed to be, if the informant is advised on the subject.

On the filing of such information, the commissioners may examine the informant, under oath, and, if satisfied there is reasonable cause therefor, shall at once investigate the grounds thereof. Such warrant may be executed by the sheriff, or any constable of the county; or, if they shall be of opinion from such preliminary inquiries as they may make—and in making which they shall take the testimony of the informant, if they deem it necessary or desirable, and of other witnesses if offered—that such course would probably be injurious to such person, or attended with no advantage, they may dispense with such presence. In their examination they shall hear testimony for and against such application, if any is offered. Any citizen of the county, or any relative of the person alleged to be insane, may appear and resist the application, and the parties may appear by counsel, if they elect. The commissioners, whether they dispense with the presence before them of such person or not, shall appoint some regular practicing physician of the county to visit such person and make a personal examination touching the truth of the information, and the actual condition of such person, and forthwith report to them thereon. Such physician may, or may not, be of their own number; and the physician so appointed and acting shall certify, under his hand, that he has, in pursuance of his appointment, made a careful personal examination as required; and that, on such examination, he finds the person in question insane, if such is the fact, and if otherwise, not insane; and in connection with his examination, the said physician shall endeavor to obtain from the relatives of the person in question, or from others who know the facts, correct answers, so far as may be, to the interrogatories hereinafter

If they find such person is not insane, they shall order his immediate discharge, if in custody. If they find such person insane, and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital, [they shall order said person to be committed to the hospital, unless said person so found to be insane (or some one in his or her behalf), shall appeal from the finding of said commissioners.] They shall forthwith issue their warrant, and a duplicate thereof, stating such finding, with the settlement of the person, if found; and, if not found, their information, if any, in regard thereto, authorizing the superintendent of the hospital to receive and keep such person as a patient therein. SEC. 3. The cause, when thus appealed, shall be placed upon the docket by the clerk of said court, and stand for trial anew in the circuit court. Docketed in circuit court.

SEC. 4. If any person found to be insane by the commissioners of insanity takes an appeal from such finding, such person shall be discharged from custody pending such appeal, unless the commissioners, for any reason, find that such person cannot, with safety, be allowed to go at large, in which case they shall require that such patient shall be suitably provided for, as provided in section 1403 of the code, until such appeal can be tried and determined. Person appealing to be discharged or suitably provided for.

Discharged.

SEC. 6. That section 1401 of chapter 2 of the title 11 of the code be amended by inserting, after the word "hospital" in the tenth line thereof; the words: "They shall order said person to be committed to the hospital" and "unless said person so found to be insane (or some one in his or her behalf) shall appeal from the finding of said commissioners." Committed. Clerk to issue warrant. Code, § 1401 amended.

Approved, March 26, 1880.

SEC. 1403. If any person found to be insane and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital, cannot at once be admitted therein for want of room, or for any other cause, and cannot with safety be allowed to go at liberty, the commissioners shall require that such patient shall be suitably provided for otherwise until such admission can be had, or until the occasion therefor no longer exists. Such patients may be cared for either as private or as public patients. In such case, the commissioners shall appoint some suitable person a special custodian, who shall have authority, and who shall, in all suitable ways, restrain, protect, and care for such patient, in such manner as to best secure his safety and comfort, and to best protect the person and property of others. In the case of public patients, the commissioners shall require that they be in like manner restrained, protected, and cared for by the board of supervisors at the expense of the county, and they may, accordingly, issue their warrant to such board who shall forthwith comply with the same. If there is no poor-house for the reception of such patients, or if no more suitable place can be found, they may be confined in the jail of the county in charge of the sheriff.

When admission to hospital is not desired.

SEC. 1404. On application to the commissioners in behalf of persons alleged to be insane, and whose admission to the hospital is not sought, made substantially in the manner above prescribed, and asking that provision be made for their care as insane—either public or private—within the county, and on proof of their insanity and need of care as above pointed out, the commissioners may provide for their restraint, protection, and care, as in the case of other applications.

May be transferred to hospital.
Same, § 33.

SEC. 1406. Insane persons who have been under care, either as public or private patients, outside of the hospital, by authority of the commissioners of any county, may, on application to that effect, be transferred to the hospital whenever they can be admitted thereto, on the warrant of such commissioners. Such admission may be had without another inquest, at any time within six months after the inquest already had, unless the commissioner shall deem further inquest advisable.

Interrogatories to be answered.
Same, § 34.

SEC. 1407. In each case of application for admission to the hospital, correct answers to the following interrogatories, so far as they can be obtained, shall accompany the physician's certificate; and if, on further examination after the answers are stated, any of them are found to be erroneous, the commissioners shall cause them to be corrected:

17. Has restraint or confinement been employed? If so, what kind, and how long?

18. What is supposed to be the cause of the disease?

19. What treatment has been pursued for the relief of the patient? Mention particulars and effects.

20. State any other supposed to have a bearing on the case.

SEC. 1408. On the application of the relations or immediate friends of any patient in the hospital who is not cured, and who cannot be safely allowed to go at liberty, the commissioners of the county where such patient belongs, on making provision for the care of such patient within the county as in other cases, may authorize his discharge therefrom: provided, no patient who may be under criminal charge or conviction shall be discharged without the order of the district court or judge, and notice to the district attorney of the proper district as hereinbefore provided.

The warrant of the commissioners of insanity, authorizing the admission of any person to the hospital as a patient, accompanied by a physician's certificate as herein provided, shall operate to shield the superintendent and other officers of the hospital against all liability to prosecution of any kind on account of the reception and detention of such person in the hospital; provided, such detention shall be otherwise in accordance with the laws and by-laws regulating its management.

In such case the warrant can only be executed by the sheriff or his deputy; and no delivery of the insane prisoner to any other person than the superintendent of the hospital shall exonerate the sheriff from his liability for the custody of such prisoner, and any such lunatic may, when restored to reason, be prosecuted for any offense committed by him previous to such insanity.

Cannot be discharged until district attorney is notified.
R. § 1460.

SEC. 1413. When any lunatic shall be confined in either hospital under the preceding section, the superintendent in whose charge he may be, shall, as soon as such lunatic is restored to his reason, give notice thereof to the district attorney of the proper county, and retain such lunatic in custody for such reasonable time thereafter as may be necessary for said attorney to cause a warrant to issue and to be served, by virtue whereof the said person so restored to reason shall again be returned to the jail of the proper county to answer to the offense alleged against him.

Becoming insane after conviction; governor suspend execution of sentence.
R. § 1464.

SEC. 1414. CHAPTER 4.

OF FENCES.

Partition maintained.
R. § 1526.

SECTION 1489. The respective owners of lands enclosed with fences, shall keep up and maintain partition fences, between their own and next adjoining enclosure so long as they improve them in equal shares, unless otherwise agreed between them,

Neglect to build or repair.
R. § 1527.

SEC. 1490. If any party neglect to repair or rebuild a partition fence, or a portion thereof, which he ought to maintain, the aggrieved party may complain to the fence viewers, who, after due notice to each party, shall examine the same, and if they determine the fence is insufficient, shall signify it in writing to the delinquent occupant of the land, and direct him to repair or rebuild the same within such time as they judge reasonable.¹

Penalty, if order of fence viewers is not complied with.

SEC. 1491. If such fence be not repaired or rebuilt accordingly, the complainant may repair or rebuild it, and the same being adjudged sufficient by the fence viewers, and the value thereof, with their fees, being ascertained by them and certified under their hands, the complainant may demand of the owner of the land where the fence was deficient the sum so ascertained, and, in case of neglect to pay the same for one month after demand, may recover it with one per cent a month interest by action.

¹ Section 1490 does not, in terms, require a written notice, though, properly, it should be in writing and proceed from the fence viewers; but where it appears that a party, in fact, was notified verbally by the opposite party, and was present at the meeting of the fence viewers and made no objection, the statute is sufficiently complied with. Talbot v. Blackledge, 22 Iowa, 572. A verbal notice was held sufficient in Gantz v. Clark, 31 Id., 254.

The proceedings of the fence viewers, should not be measured with technical nicety, but, like those before a justice of the peace, receive indulgent consideration. Id.

An adjacent proprietor cannot evade the law in relation to the erection and maintenance of partition fences, by purposely building his fence a few feet from, instead of on, the dividing line. Id.

An owner of land is not liable for a failure to comply with the requirement of the township trustees acting as fence viewers under section 1492, of the code, unless he has been served with written notice of their meeting to take action in the premises. Lookhart v. Wessels, 46 Id., 81. This case certainly overruled Gantz v. Clark, 31 Id., 254, in so far as that case holds that a verbal notice is sufficient.

The action of the fence viewers in locating and apportioning division lines of fence is not conclusive, and it is competent for a land owner to show, in a proper action, that the fence was located upon his land, and not upon the division line, and he may recover damages therefor. Peschongs v. Meuller, 50 Id., 237.

SEC. 1492. When a controversy arises between the respective owners about the obligation to erect or maintain partition fences, either party may apply to the fence viewers, who, after due notice to each party, may inquire into the matter and assign to each his share thereof, and direct the time within which each shall erect or repair his share in the manner provided above.

Disputes: fence viewers to settle.
R. § 1529.

SEC. 1493. If a party neglect to erect or maintain the part of fence assigned him by the fence viewers, it may be erected and maintained by the aggrieved party in the manner before provided, and he shall be entitled to double the value thereof, to be recovered as directed above.^m comply.

R. § 1530.

SEC. 1494. All partition fences shall be kept in good repair throughout the year, unless the owners on both sides otherwise agree.

Repair.
R. § 1531.

SEC. 1495. No person not wishing his land enclosed and not occupying nor using it otherwise than in common, shall be compelled to contribute to erect or maintain any fence between him and an adjacent owner; but when he encloses or uses his land otherwise than in common, he shall contribute to the partition fences as in this chapter provided.ⁿ

R. § 1532.

SEC. 1496. When lands owned in severalty have been enclosed in common without a partition fence, and one of the owners is desirous to occupy his in severalty, and the other refuses or neglects to divide the line where the fence should be built or build a sufficient fence on his part of the line when divided, the party desiring it may have the same divided and assigned by the fence viewers, who may, in writing, assign a reasonable time, having regard for the season of the year for making the fence, and if either party neglect to comply with the decisions of the viewers, the other, after making his own part, may make the other part and recover as directed above.^o

ceedings where division is sought.
R. § 1533.

SEC. 1497. In the case mentioned in the preceding section, when one of the owners desires to throw open any portion of his field not less than twenty feet in width, and leave it unenclosed to be used in common by the public, he shall first give the other party six months notice thereof.

When it is
enclose.
R. § 1534.

SEC. 1498. When land which has lain unenclosed is enclosed, the owner thereof shall pay for one-half of each partition fence between his lands and the adjoining lands, the value to be ascertained by the fence viewers, and if he neglect for thirty days after notice and demand to pay the same, the other party may recover as before provided; or he may, at his election, rebuild and make half of the fence, and if he encloses he must pay for partition fence.

R. § 1535.

^m Under section 1493, it is not necessary that the fence viewers notify a party who neglects to erect the portion of fence assigned him under the preceding section, of their meeting to ascertain the value of the fence which has been erected by the aggrieved party. Talbot v. Blackledge, 22 Iowa, 573.

ⁿ One who incloses land adjoining another's close, and does not own any part of the division fence, may throw any portion of such land open to common at pleasure. Meiner v. Bennett, 45 Id., 635.

^o Where adjoining owners agree to inclose lands in common, such agreement releases, for the time being, each party from the obligation to build a partition fence; and if one of them turns his cattle upon his own land from which they stray upon the land of the other, and do damage, he is liable therefor, the same as he would be if the lands were separated by a lawful partition fence; and the injured party may distrain the cattle while thus trespassing upon his land, regardless of the fact as to whether their owner turned them on his own land with the intention that they should go upon the land of the other. Winters v. Jacobs, 29 Iowa, 115.

While a lawful fence is not necessary between adjoining farms to constitute an occupation in severalty, still the partition fence must be such as will turn stock and premises separated only by a hedge which is insufficient for that purpose must be considered as inclosed in common within the meaning of section 1496 of the code. Miner v. Bennett, 45 Id., 635.

fence recorded.
R. § 1536.

SEC. 1499. When a division of fence between the owners of improved lands may have been made, either by fence viewers, or by agreement in writing, recorded in the office of the clerk of the township where the lands are, the owners and their heirs and assigns shall be bound thereby, and shall support them accordingly, but if any desire to lay his lands in common and not improve them adjoining the fence divided as above, the proceedings shall be as directed in the case where lands owned in severalty have been enclosed in common without a partition fence.^q

"fence viewers."
R. § 1537.

SEC. 1500. In the provisions of this chapter, the term "owner" shall apply to the occupant or tenant when the owner does not reside in the county, but these proceedings will not bind the owner unless notified. The term "fence viewers" means the fence viewers of the township in which the division line in controversy is, and if that line is between two townships, and both parties live in the same, then it means the viewers of that township, but if the parties live in different townships, one viewer at least shall be taken from that of the party complained against.

Fence on another's land may be removed.
R. § 1538.

SEC. 1501. When a person has made a fence or other improvement on an enclosure, which, on afterward making division lines is found to be on land of another, and the same has occurred through mistake, such first person may enter upon the land of the other and remove his fence or other improvement and material within six months after such line has been run, upon his first paying, or offering to pay, the other party for any damage to the soil which may be occasioned thereby, and when the parties cannot agree as to the damages the fence viewers may determine them as in other cases.

Same.
R. § 1539.

SEC. 1502. But such fence or other improvement, except substantial buildings, shall not be removed if they were made or taken from the land on which they lie, until the party pays the owner the value of the timber, to be ascertained by the fence viewers, nor shall a fence be removed at a time when the removal will throw open or expose the crop of the other party, but it shall be removed in a reasonable time after the crop is secured, although the above six months have passed.

Disputes: fence
termine.
R. § 1540.

SEC. 1503. When any question arises between parties, other than those above stated, concerning their rights in fences, or their duties in relation to building or supporting or removing them, such question may be determined by the fence viewers upon the principles of this chapter.^r

^p To confer jurisdiction upon fence viewers, the fence respecting which they determine must be in fact a partition fence, and they cannot conclude a party by determining that to be a partition fence which is not. Bills v. Belknap, 38 Id., 225.

^q A failure to have recorded with the township clerk the assignment of the respective shares of each party will not affect their rights in respect to building the share assigned to the other on his failure to do so, and the recovery of double damages therefor as provided in the statute, if he had actual notice of such assignment. Gantz v. Clark, 31 Iowa, 254.

^r Where the parties had agreed to erect a fence sufficient to turn swine and sheep, the trustees could properly determine whether or not the agreement had been performed, and if not, direct the time and manner of performance. Huber v. Wilkinson, 46 Id., 458.

In an action to recover double the value of a partition fence which the defendant by the decision of the township trustees had been required to erect, it was held, proper for the jury, under the instruction of the court, to determine whether or not the land of the plaintiff was used in pasturing swine and sheep, and whether a fence was required to turn these animals. Id.

SEC. 1504. A person building a fence, may lay the same upon the line between him and the adjacent owners, so that the fence may be partly on one side and partly on the other, and the owner shall have the same right to remove it as if it were wholly on his own land.

Lines: fence on R. § 1541.

SEC. 1505. The foregoing provisions concerning partition fences shall apply to a fence standing wholly upon one side of the division line.

Same. R. § 1542.

SEC. 1506. The foregoing provisions of this chapter do not bar any other legal proceedings for the determination of the title to land, or the dividing line between contending owners, nor do they preclude agreements by the parties.

Other proceedings. R. § 1543.

SEC. 1507. A fence made of three rails of good substantial material, or three boards not less than six inches wide, and three-quarters of an inch thick, such rails or boards to be fastened in or to good substantial posts, not more than ten feet apart, where rails are used, and not more than eight feet apart, where boards are used, wire either wholly or in part, substantially built and kept in good repair, or any other kind of fence, which in the opinion of the fence viewers shall be equivalent thereto, shall be declared a lawful fence; provided, that the lowest or bottom rail, [wire] or board shall not be more than twenty nor less than sixteen inches from the ground, and that such fence shall be fifty-four inches in height; [except that a barbed wire fence may consist of three barbed wires, or of four wires, two of which shall be barbed, such fence in either case to have not less than [thirty-six] iron barbs [of two points each, or twenty-six iron barbs of four points each on each wire:] the wires to be firmly fastened to posts not more than two rods apart, with two stays between the posts, or with posts not more than one rod apart without such stays, the top wire to be not more than [fifty-four] nor less than forty-eight inches in height, and the bottom wire not more than twenty nor less than sixteen inches from the ground;] provided further, that all partition fences may be made tight at the expense of the party desiring it, and such party may take from such fence the same material by him added thereto whenever he may elect; and provided further, that when the owner or occupants of adjoining land use the same for the purpose of pasturing swine or sheep, each of said owners or occupants shall keep their respective share of the partition fence sufficiently tight to restrain such swine or sheep.^a ^aThe keeping of intoxicating liquors without an intention to sell the same contrary to law is not prohibited by the statute. The State v. Harris, 36 Iowa, 136.

The original prohibitory law of January 22, 1855, was held, to be constitutional in Santo et al. v. The State of Iowa, 2 Id., 165; and its constitutionality re-affirmed in The State v. Donehey, 8 Id., 396.

SEC. 1526. Any citizen of the state, except hotel-keepers, keepers of saloons, eating houses, grocery-keepers, and confectioners, is hereby permitted within the county of his residence to buy and sell intoxicating liquors for mechanical, medicinal, culinary, and sacramental purposes only, provided he shall first obtain permission from the board of supervisors of the county in which such business is conducted as follows.^w

R. § 1675.

SEC. 1527. He shall first procure a certificate signed by a majority of the legal electors of the township, town, or ward, in which he desires to sell said liquors, that he is a citizen of the county and state, that he is of good moral character, and that they believe him to be a proper person to buy and sell intoxicating liquors for the purposes named in the preceding section.

SEC. 1529. Upon the presentation of such certificate and bond to the county auditor, a day shall be fixed by said auditor for the final hearing of the application by the board of supervisors, and notice thereof given by publication in at least one newspaper published in the county, or by posting such notice in the township, town, or ward, in which the business is to be conducted. ^v Under this section, which was 1561 of the revision, an allegation in an indictment for nuisance, that a certain building was used by two defendants as a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and that they did then and there keep intoxicating liquors for sale in said building, without a further averment that such building was under their control, is sufficient; and where the indictment, after such statement of the offense, averred that it was "under his control," without naming which of the two defendants was meant, it was held, that the unnecessary averment should be treated as surplusage, and that it did not vitiate the indictment. The State v. Schilling, 14 Iowa, 455.

This section does not confer upon the manufacturer of intoxicating liquors the right to sell the same in this state, even for mechanical, medicinal, culinary or sacramental purposes, without permission first obtained from the board of supervisors of the county. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id., 668.

A person who, with a permit to sell intoxicating liquors, purchases a quantity of such liquors from a manufacturer having no permit to sell, may not only set up the unlawful sale to defeat an action for the price of the same, but where he has made a payment thereon may recover the amount thus paid. Id.

The account book of purchases and sales, from which the reports hereinafter mentioned are made, shall at all times be subject to the inspection of the district or circuit judge, district attorney, sheriff, or any constable or marshal, grand jurors, or of all justices of peace of the county, and such other persons as may be authorized by law to examine the same, and shall be produced by the party keeping the same, to be used as evidence on the trial of any prosecution against him, or against liquors alleged to have been seized from him or his house, on notice duly served that the same will be required as evidence.

Same, § 8.

SEC. 1534. Any permit procured or obtained under this chapter by any person not entitled to the same by the provisions hereof, shall be deemed fraudulent and void; and any one who, after obtaining such permit, shall enter upon or be engaged in any pursuit, in consequence of which he would not be eligible to obtain such permit, shall be deemed to have abandoned the same, and shall thereafter claim no protection thereby.

Same, § 4.

SEC. 1535. When any resident of the county shall file a written information, on oath, before any district judge, charging any one now holding, or who may hereafter hold such privilege, with violating the law, either by failing to keep a correct record of purchase or sale, or by making false entries in such record or account, or by selling colorably, and under pretence of complying with the law, but substantially in violation thereof, or when any sheriff, constable, or marshal of the county, shall, in his official character, make, sign, and file such written information, the district judge shall issue his notice to the accused, to appear before him in court, at a time fixed, to show cause why his permit shall not be vacated; and for the purpose of trial, either party may have witnesses summoned as in other cases. The defendant may answer the complaint or charge, and the district court, either on default or on answer, or on finding any of the charges sustained by proof, shall revoke the permission to the party to sell liquor, and shall adjudge the defendant to pay the costs; and no person whose permission shall be revoked by the district court, shall be capable of holding such privilege again within this state for the space of two years thereafter.

Permit no bar to destruction of liquors.
Same, § 5.

SEC. 1536. When intoxicating liquor shall be seized under a search warrant by virtue of the laws now in force, it shall be no bar to the confiscation and destruction of the same, that the party claiming the same has a permit under this or any former law, if the court or jury trying the facts shall be satisfied from the proof, that the defendant has sold such liquors in violation or evasion of law, and at the time of the seizure had the liquors in question, with the intention of selling the same contrary to law, and any judgment of a competent tribunal condemning liquors seized under such warrant, from any person holding such permit, or convicting him of selling contrary to law, shall work a forfeiture of his privilege.

SEC. 1537. No person having a permit to sell intoxicating liquors under this chapter, shall sell the same at a greater profit than thirty-three per cent on the cost of the same, including freights, and every person having such permit, shall make on the last Saturday of every month, a return in writing to the auditor of the county, showing the kind and quantity of the liquors purchased by him since the date of his last report, the price paid, and the amount of freights paid on the same; also the kind and quantity of liquors sold by him since the date of his last report, to whom sold, for what purpose, and what price, also the kind and quantity of liquors remaining on hand, which report shall be sworn to by the person having the said permit, and shall be kept by the auditor, subject at all times to the inspection of the public.

SEC. 1539. Penalty for selling or giving to minors or intoxicated persons. Same, § 5.

Any citizen of the county may bring an action under this section for a forfeiture to the school fund against one who sells intoxicating liquors to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Church v. Higham, 44 Id., 482.

Indictments and informations for violations under this section may allege any number of violations of its provisions by the same party, but the various allegations must be contained in separate counts, and the person so charged may be convicted and punished for each of the violations so alleged as on separate indictments or informations; but a separate judgment must be entered on each count on which a verdict of guilty is rendered. Under this section the selling of intoxicating liquor without a permit, for any purpose whatever, is a misdemeanor, and punishable as therein prescribed, and by section 1543 any person who uses any building to violate the provisions of section 1540 is guilty of a nuisance, and may be subjected to additional penalties for that offense. *State v. SEC. 1543. In cases of violation of the provisions of either of the three preceding sections, or of section fifteen hundred and twenty-five of this chapter, the building or erection of whatever kind, or the ground itself, in or upon which such unlawful manufacture or sale, or keeping with intent to sell, of any intoxicating liquor is carried on, or continued, or exists, is hereby declared a nuisance, and may be abated as the law provides; and, in addition to the penalties prescribed in said sections, whoever shall erect, or establish, or continue, or use any building, erection, or place for any of the purposes prohibited in said sections, shall be deemed guilty of a nuisance, and may be prosecuted and punished accordingly, in the manner provided by law. And proof of the manufacture, sale, or keeping with intent to sell, of any intoxicating liquor in violation of the provisions of this chapter, in or upon the premises described by the party accused, or by any other person under the authority or by the permission of the party accused, shall be presumptive evidence of the offense provided for in this section. ³

² A person who acts as the agent or employe of a social club, to keep and deal out its liquors to members purchasing and presenting tickets, may be indicted and punished for a violation of the prohibitory liquor law, under this section. The State v. Mercer, 32 Iowa, 405.

While under this section the finding of intoxicating liquors upon the premises is presumptive evidence that they are kept there for sale contrary to law, yet where there is no evidence of any such liquors being in the defendant's possession or under his control, the testimony of one who is in the employ of the defendant that the witness on one occasion sold a small quantity of liquor, this evidence is not sufficient to warrant a conviction. The State v. Findley, 45 Id., 435.

³ The offense of nuisance under this section may be committed either by the manufacture, sale, or keeping with intent to sell, intoxicating liquors, contrary to law; and while an indictment is sufficient which charges the commission of the offense by the doing of either one of the unlawful acts, it is bad for duplicity if it charges the offense to have been committed by doing two or three of the specified unlawful acts. The State v. Baughman, 20 Iowa, 497.

And in an indictment for a nuisance under this section, it is not sufficient to merely charge that the defendant used and kept a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors. It should be averred that he either had sold liquors at the place mentioned, or kept them there for the purpose of sale. The State v. Hass, 22 Id., 193; The State v. Harris, 27 Id., 429.

A license granted by the United States affords no protection against the penalties imposed for the sale of intoxicating liquors in violation of the state statute. Id. See, also, State v. Carrey, Id., 82.

Proof that the defendant sold intoxicating liquors in violation of law at the place charged in the indictment for nuisance, is sufficient to convict unless rebutted. Id.

The offense of nuisance, under this section, is complete by the doing of either of the acts prohibited in sections 1525, 1540, and 1542, of the code, being sections 1561, 1562, and 1563, of the revision, as by the doing of them all. Hence an indictment charging the offense to have been committed at a particular time and place by keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same contrary to law, is the same accusation as that contained in another indictment charging the offense to have been committed at the same time and place by selling intoxicating liquors contrary to law; and a conviction under one indictment would be a bar to a prosecution on the other. The State v. Layton, 25 Id., 193.

Nor would the case be affected by the fact that in one indictment the offense is charged to have been committed on the first of the month and in the other on the fifteenth of the same month. Id.

An indictment under this section is sufficient which charges the offense as having been committed "by using and keeping a room and place for the purpose of selling, and by selling therein intoxicating liquors in violation of section 1562 of the revision." The State v. Freeman, 27 Id., 333.

Proof of occasional secret sales, without evidence that the place was notoriously or publicly known as a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, is sufficient to convict in a prosecution for nuisance under this section. Id.

The finding of intoxicating liquors in any other building than one used as a private dwelling affords presumptive evidence that they are kept by their owner for sale, and will support an indictment for "keeping and maintaining a house for selling intoxicating liquors." The State v. Norton, 41 Id., 430.

The owner of premises upon which intoxicating liquor is kept for sale, contrary to law, is not guilty of an offense if he leased them for a lawful purpose, and did not affirmatively assent to such unlawful use. The mere failure to prevent or to attempt to prevent the illegal use or sale of the liquors does not subject him to the penalties of the statute. The State v. Ballingall, 42 Id., 87.

An indictment charging the defendant with keeping and controlling a building where intoxicating liquors were sold in violation of law, and where "gambling, fighting, drunkenness, and breaches of the peace" were permitted by him, held, not vulnerable to the objection of charging two offenses. The State v. Dean et al., 44 Id., 648.

Nor where the indictment charged that the defendant kept intoxicating liquors for sale in a building, and did then and there sell the same. The State v. Beecher, 20 Id., 438.

On the trial of an indictment under section 1543, the state is not bound to show affirmatively that the liquors were not kept in original vessels or packages, and that they were not sold for mechanical, medicinal, or sacramental purposes. Id.

In an indictment under this section against the person, it is not necessary to describe the building and its specific location. Id.

An indictment for nuisance, which charges the keeping of intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same, is good without the allegation that they were kept in violation of law. The State v. Jordan, 39 Id., 387. Following The State v. Collins, 11 Id., 141.

Under this section a bar-tender or clerk in a saloon where intoxicating liquors are sold by him in violation of law, may be indicted for nuisance. The State v. Stucker, 33 Id., 395.

If any person shall so appear, he shall become a party defendant in said case, and said justice shall make a record thereof. Whether any person shall so appear or not, said justice shall, at the prescribed time, proceed to the trial of said case, and said complainants, or either of them, may, and upon their default, the officer having such liquor in custody shall appear before said justice and prosecute said information, and show cause why such liquor should be adjudged forfeited. The proceeding in the trial of such case may be the same, substantially, as in cases of misdemeanor triable before justices of the peace, and if any person shall appear and be made a party defendant as herein provided, and shall make written plea that said liquor, or the part thereof claimed by him, was not owned or kept with intent to be sold in violation of this chapter, such party defendant may, at his option, demanded a jury to try the issue, and, if upon the evidence then and there presented, the said justice or jury as the case may be, shall find for verdict that said liquor was, when seized, owned or kept by any person, whether said party defendant or not, for the purpose of being sold in violation of this chapter, the said justice shall render judgment that said liquor, or said part thereof, with the vessels in which it is contained, is forfeited. If no person be made defendant in manner aforesaid, or if judgment be in favor of all the defendants who appear and are made such, then the costs of the proceeding shall be paid as in ordinary criminal prosecutions where the prosecution fails. If the judgment shall be against only one party defendant appearing as aforesaid, he shall be adjudged to pay all the costs of proceedings in the seizure and detention of the liquor claimed by him up to that time, and of said trial. But, if such judgment shall be against more than one party defendant claiming distinct interests in said liquor, then the costs of said proceedings and trial shall be according to the discretion of said justice equitably apportioned among said defendants, and execution shall be issued on said judgments against said defendants for the amount of the costs so adjudged against them. Any person appearing and becoming party defendant as aforesaid, may appeal from said judgment of forfeiture as to the whole, or any part, of said liquor and vessels claimed by him and so adjudged forfeited to the district court as in ordinary cases of misdemeanor.^c

Whenever it shall be finally decided that liquor seized as aforesaid is forfeited, the court rendering final judgment of forfeiture, shall issue to the officer having said liquors in custody, or to some other peace officer, a written order, directing him forthwith to destroy said liquor and vessels containing the same, and immediately thereafter to make return of said order to the court whence issued, with his doings indorsed thereon, and sworn to. Whenever it shall be finally decided that any liquor so seized is not liable to forfeiture, the court by whom such final decision shall be rendered, shall issue a written order to the

^c When intoxicating liquors are seized under a warrant issued under the provisions of the prohibitory liquor law, it is not competent for a party to take the case away from the tribunal whose jurisdiction has attached, by commencing an action of replevin for the liquors seized. Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Iowa, 438; Cooley v. Davis, 34 Id., 128.

Intoxicating liquors seized under an information for their forfeiture are not the subject of replevin, and to take them from an officer by such process is an illegal act, and will subject the guilty party to punishment for contempt. The State v. Harris et al., 38 Id., 242.

SEC. 1548. If any person shall be found in a state of intoxication, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and any peace officer may, without warrant, and it is hereby made his duty to, take such person into custody, and to detain him in some suitable place, till an information can be made before a magistrate and a warrant issued in due form, upon which he may be arrested and tried, and if found guilty, he shall pay a fine of ten dollars and the costs of prosecution, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail thirty days. But the magistrate before whom such person is tried and convicted may remit any portion of such penalty, and order the prisoner to be discharged upon his giving information, under oath, stating when, where, and of whom he purchased or received the liquor which produced the intoxication, and the name and character of the liquor obtained. SEC. 1549. In any indictment or information arising under this chapter, it shall not be necessary to set out exactly the kind or quantity of intoxicating liquors manufactured or sold, or kept for purposes of sale, nor the exact time of the manufacture, or sale, or keeping with intent to sell, but proof of the violation by the accused of any provision of this chapter, the substance of which violation is briefly set forth, within the time mentioned in said indictment or information, shall be sufficient to convict such person; nor shall it be necessary in any indictment or information to negative any exceptions contained in the enacting clause, or elsewhere, which may be proper ground of defense; and, in any prosecution for a second or subsequent offense as provided herein, it shall not be requisite to set forth in the indictment or information the record of a former conviction, but it shall be sufficient briefly to allege such conviction; nor shall it be ^dTo justify an order for the destruction of intoxicating liquors seized upon a warrant, it must be found; that they were kept with the intention on the part of the owner or the one in whose custody they are found, of selling them in violation of law. A finding that they were kept "for the purpose of being sold within the state of Iowa," is not sufficient. The State v. Harris, 36 Iowa, 136.

A proceeding by information for the condemnation of intoxicating liquors, alleged to be kept for illegal sale, is in the nature of a criminal one, and after trial in the district court it is error to sustain a motion by the state for a new trial. State v. Harris et al, 40 Id., 95.

^eThe word "drunkenness" in a warrant of commitment, has the same legal signification as the word "intoxication." Smith v. Bigelow, 19 Iowa, 459.

Under sections 1568 and 1586 of the revision, it was held that imprisonment for thirty days was an imperative part of the punishment for intoxication. The State v. Patton, Id., 453. But it is not so under the code. Ed.

A witness may state whether or not, in his opinion, a person was intoxicated, and is not confined to a statement of the conduct and demeanor of the person inquired about. The State v. Huxford, 47 Id., 16.

Negotiable paper.

SEC. 1550. All payments or compensation for intoxicating liquor sold in violation of this chapter, whether such payments or compensation be in money, goods, land, labor, or anything else whatsoever, shall be held to have been received in violation of law and against equity and good conscience, and to have been received upon a valid promise and agreement of the receiver in consideration of the receipt thereof, to pay on demand to the person furnishing such consideration the amount of said money or the just value of such goods, land, labor, or other thing. All sales, transfers, conveyances, mortgages, liens, attachments, pledges, and securities of every kind, which either in whole or in part shall have been made for or on account of intoxicating liquors sold in violation of this chapter, shall be utterly null and void against all persons in all cases, and no rights of any kind shall be acquired thereby, and no action of any kind shall be maintained in any court in this state for intoxicating liquors, or the value thereof, sold in any other state or country contrary to the law of said state or country, or with intent to enable any person to violate any provision of this chapter, nor shall any action be maintained for the recovery or possession of any intoxicating liquor, or the value thereof, except in cases where persons owning or possessing such liquor with lawful intent, may have been illegally deprived of the same. Nothing, however, in this section shall affect in any way negotiable paper in the hands of holders thereof in good faith for valuable consideration, without notice of any illegality in its inception or transfer, or the holder of land or other property who may have taken the same in good faith, without notice of any defect in the title of the person from whom the same was taken, growing out of a violation of the provisions of this chapter, and all evidence given in actions brought by or against such holders, shall be in no way affected by the provisions of this section.^g

^f The precise time when the offense was committed is not material; it is sufficient if it is alleged that the offense was committed prior to the finding of the indictment and within the period of the statute of limitations, although a particular time is alleged in the indictment. The State v. Layton, 25 Iowa, 193, 196.

The time of selling need not be proved as laid in the indictment. The State v. Curley, 33 Id., 359; The State v. Malling, 11 Id., 239.

Since the taking effect of the present constitution, the offense of selling intoxicating liquors is not the subject of indictment, but of an information before a justice of the peace. The State v. Koehler, 6 Id., 398.

^g In an action against a common carrier to recover the value of intoxicating liquors lost or destroyed, the plaintiff must prove, not only that he has been illegally deprived of the same, but that he owned or possessed them with lawful intent and not for the purpose of sale contrary to law. Sommer v. Cate, 22 Iowa, 585. WRIGHT, J., dissenting.

While traffic in intoxicating liquor as an arti-

When the consideration of a contract is the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, it is, by statute, utterly void as against all persons. Davis v. Slater, 17 Id., 250.

The sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, in violation of the law for the suppression of intemperance, even by an agent of a firm residing in another state, will be held illegal and void without any showing of intent to enable the purchaser to violate the law. The Second National Bank of Louisville v. Curven, 36 Id., 555; Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194. See also Whitlock v. Workman & Co., 15 Id., 351; Dalter v. Lane et al., 13 Id., 538; Smith v. Grable, 14 Id., 429; Davis v. Bronson, 6 Id., 410.

law alone would not be sufficient. The Second National Bank v. Curren, supra.

If an agent of a person engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors in another state, merely takes an order of a person residing in this state for a quantity of liquor to be forwarded to him, which order is taken by the agent subject to the approval or disapproval of his principal, the sale will be regarded as made in the state where the vendor resides, and the case will not fall within section 1550. Tegler & Co. v. Shipman, 33 Id., 194.

But if, in such case, the agent had authority to contract the sale, or if the sale was made with intent on the part of the vendor to enable the purchaser to violate any of the provisions of our law for the suppression of intemperance, it would be otherwise; the sale would be void under section 1550. Id.

Although mere knowledge on the part of the vendor, residing in another state, that the purchase is with intent to violate our law is not held sufficient to defeat the contract, yet it is a fact from which, with other circumstances, the jury may infer such intent. Id.

When it is established in an action by the indorsee, that the note was given for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, the burden is upon the plaintiff to show that he took the note for value without notice of its infirmity. The Rock Island National Bank v. Nelson, 41 Id., 563.

One who with permission to sell intoxicating liquors, purchases a quantity of such liquors from a manufacturer who has not permission to sell, may not only set up the unlawful sale as a defense in an action to recover the price of the liquors, but where he has made a payment thereon may recover back the amount paid. Becker v. Betten, 39 Id., 668.

A party seeking to recover for the seizure and destruction of intoxicating liquors, must show that he possessed them with a lawful intent, and that he has been deprived of them unlawfully, before he can recover their value. Plummer v. Harbut et al., 5 Id., 308.

A note given in whole or in part consideration for intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, is void in the hands of the payee or any assignee having notice of the consideration. The illegal part cannot be separated from the legal part of the consideration. It taints the whole. Braitch v. Guelick, 37 Id., 212.

An action under section 1550 to recover the price of intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law, is a civil action, and not quasi criminal in character, and a motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence, is allowable. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 39 Id., 435.

An action under this section for the recovery of money paid for intoxicating liquors in violation of law, will not be barred by the statute of limitations until five years from the time the payment was made. Woodward v. Squires & Co., 41 Id., 677.

It was held in Marienthal, Lehman & Co. v. Shafer et al., 6 Id., 223, and in Funk & Hardman v. Israel, 5 Id., 438, that an illegal vendor of intoxicating liquors could not maintain an action of replevin against attaching creditors of the vendee, on the ground that the sale was void and the right of possession still remained in the vendor. But the contrary seems to be held in Monty v. Arneson, 25 Id., 383.

Intoxicating liquors are property in so far as they are the subject of larceny. The State v. May, 20 Id., 305.

Where a party exchanges goods for intoxicating liquors, sold in violation of law, he may recover the same by an action at law. Smith v. Grable, 14 Id., 429.

Where a claim for rent, payable in corn, was sold and transferred by the lessor to a third person in consideration of intoxicating liquors, sold in violation of law in an action by the assignee of the rent against the lessee the court held that he could not recover because the statute declares all contracts on account of intoxicating liquors, sold in violation of law, to be "utterly null and void against all persons in all cases." Davis v. Stater, 17 Id., 250.

The vendor of intoxicating liquors, sold contrary to law, may be garnished by a creditor of the vendee and required to pay the money received for such liquors in satisfaction of the debt of such vendee to the garnishing creditor. Church v. Simpson, 25 Id., 408.

The judgment, by default, of a justice of the peace cannot be impeached by affidavits showing that the default was taken before the proper time therefor. His record showing that the judgment was rendered at a proper time is conclusive as to the fact. Cory v. King & Co., 49 Id., 365.

The term "liens," as employed in section 1550 of the code, does not include the lien of a judgment, and if a judgment be rendered in favor of a party selling intoxicating liquors, it cannot be pleaded in another action that such judgment is void, because the subject matter of the action came within the prohibition of the statute. *Smith et al. v. ^h A peace officer cannot refuse to answer questions touching his knowledge of the places where intoxicating liquors are being sold in violation of law, on the ground that under section 1551 of the code he would criminate himself. When the question involves only facts of recent occurrence the answer cannot criminate the witness. Hunt v. McCalla, Sheriff, 20 Iowa, 20.

It was held, competent for the wife to testify that her husband was in the habit of returning

This section authorizes the recovery of damages for the death of a husband, which has been caused by intoxication, from the party who sold him the liquors producing the intoxication. Id.

In case of the death of the husband the jury may estimate the damages with reference to the fact that it is the duty of the husband to provide the wife with present support, as well as maintenance for the future, and that she is entitled to such sum as in a pecuniary point of view would make her whole. Id.

In an action by the wife for damages for injury to her means of support by the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, it was held, error to instruct the jury that the husband's previous habit of becoming intoxicated should be considered in aggravation of damages, where it did not appear that the defendant was acquainted with such previous habit. Goodenough v. McGrew, 44 Id., 670.

The allowance of exemplary damages lies in the discretion of the jury, and it is not within the province of the court to instruct that any fact entitles the plaintiff to such damages. Id.

The recovery of exemplary damages, in actions of this character, is not limited to cases where the injury complained of is in the nature of a tort, but may be allowed when no breach of the peace has resulted from the alleged sale of the liquors. Id.

In an action by the wife for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors to her husband, a verdict for exemplary damages is sustained by evidence showing that the defendant sold such liquors to plaintiff's husband when he was intoxicated, and when he was known to the defendant to be in the habit of becoming intoxicated. *Weitz v. Each county having a population of two thousand inhabitants or over, as shown by the last state or federal census, may establish a high school on the conditions and in the manner hereinafter prescribed, for the purpose of affording better educational facilities for pupils more advanced than those attending district schools, and for persons desiring to fit themselves for the vocation of teaching.

SEC. 1698. When one-third of the electors of a county, as shown by the returns of the last preceding election, shall petition the board of supervisors requesting that a county high school be established in their county at the place in said petition named, then, or when said board in its discretion shall deem proper, said board shall give twenty days' notice previous to the next general election, or previous to a special election duly called for that purpose, that they will submit the question to the electors of said county whether such high school shall be established; at which election said electors shall vote by ballot, for or against establishing such county high school. The notice contemplated in this section shall be given through one or more newspapers published in said county, if any be published therein, and by at least one written or printed notice to be posted in each township.

After said election, the ballots on said question shall be canvassed in the same manner as in the election for county officers; and if a majority of all the votes cast on said question shall be in favor of establishing said school, the board of supervisors shall immediately proceed to appoint six persons, who shall be residents of the county, but not more than two of whom shall be residents of the same township, who shall, with the county superintendent of common schools, constitute a board of trustees for said high school. Each of said trustees appointed as aforesaid shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall be required, within ten days after appointment, to qualify by taking the oath of office, and giving such bond as may be required by the said board of supervisors, for the faithful discharge of his duties.

SEC. 1700. At the next general election after said appointment, there shall be elected in said county six high school trustees, who shall be divided into three classes of two each; each class to hold their office one, two, and three years, respectively, and their respective terms to be decided by lot. And each year thereafter there shall be two such trustees elected to succeed those whose term is about to expire. And said trustees shall qualify and enter upon the duties of their office in the same manner, and at the same time as other county officers.

SEC. 1701. The county superintendent shall, by virtue of his office, be president of said board of trustees; and at their first meeting in each year, they shall appoint from their own number a secretary and treasurer, who shall perform the usual duties devolving upon such officers for the term of one year, or until their successors are appointed to take their places.

SEC. 1702. At said meeting, or at some succeeding meeting called for such purpose, said trustees shall make an estimate of the amount of funds needed for building purposes, for payment of teachers' wages, and for contingent expenses, and they shall present to the board of supervisors a certified estimate of the rate of tax required to raise the amount desired for such purposes. But in no case shall the tax for such purposes exceed in one year the amount of five mills on the dollar on the taxable property of the county, and, when the tax is levied for the payment of teachers' wages and contingent expenses only, shall not exceed two mills on the dollar.

They shall then proceed to make such purchases of material, and to let such contracts for their necessary school buildings as they may deem proper, but shall not make any purchase or contract in any year to exceed the amount on hand and to be raised by the levy of tax that year.

As far as practicable, model schools shall be encouraged, and advanced students and those preparing to become teachers may be employed a portion of their time in teaching the younger pupils, in order that they may become familiar with the practice as well as theory of successful school-teaching, and also avoid, as far as practicable, the expense of employing other assistant teachers.

CHAPTER 9.

OF THE SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS.

School districts. Ch. 172, § 1, 9G. A.

SECTION 1713. Each civil township now or hereafter organized, and each independent school district organized as such prior to the taking effect of this code, is hereby declared a school district for all the purposes of this chapter, subject to the provisions hereinafter made.^c ^cThe school law of this state contemplates that school districts shall coincide in boundary with civil townships. Section 1797 of the code provides the only exception to this rule. District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 30.

No such restriction upon the formation of independent districts, which may be created from two or more civil townships, or parts thereof, situated even in adjoining counties. Id.

SEC. 1714. When an organized district has been left without officers, the township trustees shall give such notice for a special election of directors, as is required in cases of regular district elections; and the persons elected shall continue in office until their successors are elected and qualified.

When no officers: how supplied. Same, § 3.

SEC. 1715. When changes in civil township boundaries are made, or any district shall be divided into two or more entire townships for civil purposes, the existing board of directors shall continue to act for both or all the new districts, or parts of districts, until the next regular district election thereafter, at which time the new district townships shall organize by the election of directors. The respective boards of directors shall, immediately after such organization, make an equitable division of the then existing assets and liabilities between the old and new districts; and in case of a failure to agree, the matter may be decided by arbitrators, chosen by the parties in interest. A similar division shall be made in case of the formation or changes of boundaries of independent districts.⁴

Division of district: apportionment of assets and liabilities. Same, § 4. Ch. 133, § 1, 14 G. A.

SEC. 1716. Every school district which is now, or may hereafter be organized, is hereby made a body corporate by the name of the "district township," or "independent district" (as the case may be), of, in the county of, and in that name may hold property, become a party to suits and contracts, and do other corporate acts.

Body corporate. Ch. 172, § 5, 9 G. A. Ch. 33, 11 G. A.

SEC. 1717. Each district township shall hold an annual meeting on the second Monday in March, and the electors of the district, when legally assembled at such meeting, shall have the following powers:

Annual meeting. Ch. 172, § 5, 9 G. A. Ch. 143, § 1, 2, 11 G. A. Ch. 84, 14 G. A. Powers.

1. To appoint a chairman and secretary in the absence of the regular officers;
2. To direct the sale or other disposition to be made of any school-house or the site thereof, and of such other property, personal and real,

⁴ Upon the division of a district township into independent districts, the board of directors of the former are empowered to make a division of the assets, wherein their jurisdiction is exclusive, and their judgment cannot be set aside in a collateral proceeding. Ind. School Dist. of Oakville v. Ind. School Dist. of Asbury, 43 Iowa, 444.

Where the subdistricts of a district township were organized into independent districts, and the directors made a distribution of assets and liabilities and instituted an action at law against the debtor districts for the amount due from them, pending which the term of office of the directors expired, it was held, that the creditor districts could, in equity, compel an accounting and payment of the amounts due them. Ind. School Dist. of Georgia v. Ind. School Dist. of Victoria, 41 Id., 321.

When a district township is divided into two or more districts under the provisions of chapter 172, laws of 1862, school-houses and real estate used for school purposes, situated within the divided districts are to be estimated in making the division of assets contemplated by that act. The District Township of Williams v. The District Township of Jackson, 36 Id., 216.

This construction of the statute does not require an actual division or partition of the real property of the district. The respective districts, after the division, which do not receive their just proportion of the property, have a claim, which they may enforce by action, against those who obtain more than the share to which they are entitled. Id.

When a part of the territory of one school district is attached to another, the board of directors of the two districts, or arbitrators chosen by them, shall apportion the assets upon the reorganization of the districts, and their jurisdiction for this purpose is exclusive. The District Township of Viola v. The District Township of Audubon, 45 Id., 104. See also the Ind. School Dist. of Lowell v. The Ind. School Dist. of Duser, Id., 391, holding the same view as to the conclusiveness of the action of the board of directors.

Upon the subdivision of a district township into independent districts, the directors of the district township are authorized to apportion the assets and liabilities, and it is only upon their failure to agree that the matters in dispute are to be referred to arbitrators. The consent of the various independent districts is not necessary to the jurisdiction of the directors of the district township. The Ind. School Dist. of Lowell v. The Ind. School District of Duser, 45, Id., 391.

as may belong to the district the manner in which the proceeds arising therefrom shall be applied; to determine what additional branches shall be taught in the schools of the district; or to delegate any of these powers to the board of directors;

3. To vote such tax, not exceeding ten mills, on the dollar in any one year, on the taxable property of the district township; as the meeting shall deem sufficient for the purchase of grounds and the construction of the necessary school-houses for the use of the district, and for the payment of the debts contracted for the erection of school-houses, and for procuring district libraries.^o

The manner of calling such meeting, and the powers of such meetings, shall be as follows:

The board of directors shall cause to be posted in three public places in such district, at least ten days prior to the designated time of holding such meeting, written notices of such meeting, in which shall be stated the time and place of such meetings, and the object or purpose for which same is called.

VOTING OF SCHOOL TAXES.

Title.

AN ACT allowing school districts lying in two adjoining counties the right to vote mills instead of specific sums for school purposes. [Additional to Code, title XII, chapter 9: "Of the system of common schools."]

Districts in two counties may
schools.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all school-districts lying in two adjoining counties shall have the right to vote mills instead of specific sums for school purposes.

Approved March 21, 1874.

^o Contracts for mere repairs of school-houses may be made by the directors of the district township and paid out of "contingent fund," without being specially authorized by a vote of the directors. Whether the improvements in a given case are of a character to come within the meaning of the term "repairs," is a question of fact to be established by proof. Williams v. Peinny, 25 Iowa, 436.

The school directors of a district township have no power to bind the district by a contract for the purchase of school apparatus unless authorized thereto by a vote of the electors of the district. Manning v. The District Township of Van Buren, 23 Id., 332. Nor would such a contract become binding upon the district township by an acceptance and acquiescence in the use in the schools of the apparatus so purchased. Id. Also, Taylor v. The District Township of Wayne, 25 Id., 448. See also Herrington v. The District Township of Liston, 47 Id., 11.

SEC. 1718. The several subdistricts shall, annually, on the first Monday in March, hold a meeting for the election of a subdirector, five days notice of which meeting shall be given by the then resident subdirector, or, if there is none, by the district secretary, posting a written notice in three public places therein, and such notice shall state the hour of meeting.^f

Meetings of, ch. 172, § 8, 9 G. A.

SEC. 1719. At the meeting of the subdistrict, a chairman and secretary shall be appointed, who shall act as judges of the election, and give a certificate of election to the subdirector elect. [When there is a tie vote between two persons for the office of subdirector, the secretary shall notify the secretary of the district township board of such tie vote, and shall notify said persons to appear at the regular meeting of the board on the third Monday in March, to determine the tie vote by lot before one or more members of the board elected, and the certificate of election shall be given accordingly. Should either party fail to appear, or take part in the lot, the secretary shall draw for him.]

SEC. 1720. In all district townships comprising but one subdistrict, the board of directors shall consist of three subdirectors; and in all district townships comprising but two subdistricts it shall consist of one subdirector chosen from each subdistrict, and one from the district township at large, who shall in both cases be elected in the manner provided by law for the election of one subdirector from each subdistrict. The judges of the respective subdistrict elections shall canvass the votes for subdirector chosen from the district township at large, and shall issue a certificate of election to the person elected.

Number of subdirectors: how chosen.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

SEC. 1721. The subdirectors of the several subdistricts shall constitute a board of directors for the district township, and shall enter upon their duties upon the day fixed for the regular meeting of the board in March, at which time they shall organize by electing from their own number a president, who shall simply be entitled to a vote as a member of the board; and from the district township at large, [at their regular meeting on the third Monday of September in each year.] a secretary and a treasurer, unless there are at least five subdirectors in the district township, in which case they may be selected from the board, [and said secretary and treasurer thus elected shall qualify, and enter upon the duties of their respective offices within ten days following the date of their election.] If selected from the district township at large, they shall have no vote in the proceedings of the board.

Independent School District of Burr Oak*, 48 Iowa, 157.

The electors of a district township when legally assembled, may authorize the use of the school-houses of the district for religious purposes, and under the authority thus conferred, a subdirector is empowered to permit the school-house in his subdistrict to be so used. *Davis v. And all school-houses erected or repaired at a cost exceeding three hundred dollars, shall be so erected or repaired by contract, and no such contract for labor or materials shall be let until proposals for the same shall have been invited by advertisement for four weeks in some newspaper published in the county where the work is to be done, if there be one published therein, if not, in the nearest newspaper in an adjoining county; and such contract shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, and bonds with sufficient sureties for the faithful performance of the contract shall be required.⁵

Select site for school-houses. Same § 21.

SEC. 1724. They shall fix the site for each school-house, taking into consideration the geographical position and convenience of the people of each portion of the subdistrict, and shall determine what number of schools shall be taught in each subdistrict, and for what additional time beyond the period required by law they shall be continued during each year.

Divide districts: determine where pupils shall attend. Same, § 12. Ch. 143, § 3, 11 G. A.

SEC. 1725. They shall determine where pupils may attend school, and for this purpose may divide their district into such subdistricts as may by them be deemed necessary; provided, that no such subdistrict shall be created for the accommodation of less than fifteen pupils, but the board of directors shall have power to rent a room and employ a teacher for the accommodation of any five scholars: [Provided further, that nothing in this chapter contained shall be construed to prohibit the construction of as many school-houses, out of moneys derived from taxes levied previous to January 1st, 1876, in any subdistrict, where the subdistrict comprises the entire district township, as shall have been authorized and provided for at the annual meeting of the district township electors.]

^b The constitution and statutes provide for the education of all the youths of the state, without distinction of color, and the board of directors have no discretionary power to require colored children to attend a separate school. They may exercise a uniform discretion, operative upon all, as to the residence or qualification of children to entitle them to admission to each particular school, but they cannot deny a youth admission to any particular school, merely because of his color, nationality, religion, or the like. Clark v. The Board of Directors, etc., 24 Iowa, 266; Smith v. The Independent School District of Keokuk, 40 Id., 518; Dore v. Same, 41 Id., 689.

Where in a subdistrict containing but five pupils, the board directed that no school should be taught during the winter in their district, and provided for the attendance of their pupils elsewhere, it was held that their action was not inconsistent with section 1727 of the code. Potter v. District Township, etc., 40 Id., 369.

If a person who has attained the age of twenty-one years, voluntarily attends the public school, creating the relation of teacher and pupil, he thereby subjects himself to like discipline with pupils who are within the school age. The State v. Mizner, 45 Id., 248.

The pupil in such case may be punished for refractory conduct, and the teacher will not be liable therefor, if, under the circumstances, the punishment was reasonable. Id.

The board of directors may provide a school for less than twenty-four weeks in the year, with the consent of the county superintendent, and it is not necessary to the validity of their action that such consent shall first be obtained. Herrington v. The District Township of Liston, 47 Id., 11.

Children residing in one school district may attend school in another with the consent of the directors of the latter, provided their own school is not in session; and also provided they have not had the privilege of attending school twenty-four weeks in the year in their own district, and for such attendance their own district is liable to the district where they may attend. The District Township of Horton v. The District Township of Ocheyedon et al., 49 Id., 231.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that there were unappropriated funds of the district on hand at the time of such purchase, and this presumption will not be rebutted by the fact that payment was to be made at a future time. Id.

In case a teacher employed in any of the schools of the district township is found to be incompetent, or is guilty of partiality or dereliction in the discharge of his duties, or for any other sufficient cause shown, the board of directors may, after a full and fair investigation of the facts of the case, at a meeting convened for the purpose, at which the teacher shall be permitted to be present and make his defense, discharge him.^j

In cases where, by reason of streams or other natural obstacles, any portion of the inhabitants of any school district cannot, in the opinion of the county superintendent, with reasonable facility enjoy the advantages of any school in their township, the said county superintendent, with the consent of the board of directors of such district as may be affected thereby, may attach such part of said township to an adjoining township, and the order therefor shall be transmitted to the secretary of each district, and be by him recorded in his records, and the proper entry made on his plat of the district.^w

SEC. 1799. ^w The school law of this state contemplates that school districts shall coincide in their boundaries with civil townships. Section 1797 of the code, provides the only exception to this rule. District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 30.

No such restriction rests upon the formation of independent districts, which may be created from two or more civil townships, or parts of the same, situated in adjoining counties. Id.

^x This section provides for detaching territory only when both townships are organized as district townships, and each is governed by a board of directors whose jurisdiction extends over the entire township. The Independent District of Fairview v. Durland et al., 45 Iowa, 53.

An independent district, embracing territory lying within the limits of two district townships, cannot be deprived of its territory, save upon the concurrent action of the boards of directors of both the district townships; and when the organization of one of the townships has been abandoned, the territory lying within the limits of the other cannot be restored to it upon a vote to that effect by two-thirds of the voters residing within the township. Id.

Where a district township had been divided into independent districts, a vote of the electors re-districting the townships, did not have the effect to destroy the legal existence of an independent district lying partly within the township and partly within another, notwithstanding the directors of the latter had ordered the territory belonging to it to be restored. Id.

SEC. 1815. [The independent districts of a civil township may be constituted a district township in the manner hereinafter provided.]

^aThis section applies to the single case where under the laws heretofore in force, school districts were formed of portions of two counties, and provides that steps may be taken for the organization of an independent district, upon the written request of five legal voters residing in portions of the territory in each county. The only thing that can be inferred from this section is that when these conditions exist the independent district must be formed in the manner in this section prescribed. It contains no express or implied provision that no independent district shall be formed of parts of two counties, except when these conditions exist. Per DAY, J., in District Township of Union v. Independent District of Greene, 41 Iowa, 30.

^bThe object and purpose of section 1814 is two fold only. 1. To consolidate a district township when it has been divided into sub-districts, and organize the whole township as an independent district. 2. Where a township has been organized into independent districts, to consolidate the latter 'as an independent district' embracing the whole township. Per SEEVERS, CH. SEC. 1821. Independent school districts shall have the power and authority to borrow money for the purpose of [redeeming outstanding bonds and,] erecting and completing school-houses, by issuing negotiable bonds of the independent district, to run any period not exceeding ten years, drawing a rate of interest not to exceed ten per centum per annum, which interest may be paid semi-annually; which said indebtedness shall be binding and obligatory on the independent district for the use of which said loan shall be made; but no district shall permit a greater outstanding indebtedness than an amount equal to five per centum of the last assessed value of the property of the district.^c

SEC. 1822. ^cThe powers of a municipal corporation (an independent school district being such), are created only by positive statute, and any act done in the exercise of a power not thus created is void. McPherson v. Fister, 43 Iowa, 48.

The attempted exercise of powers not conferred is equally illegal with the exercise of prohibited power. Id.

That part of the indebtedness contracted by a municipal corporation for a certain purpose is within the constitutional limit, will not legalize that portion of it which is in excess of such limit. Id.

In the absence of the power to issue municipal bonds, no subsequent transfer of the bonds will give them effect, and they are void even in the hands of bona fide holders. Id.

That the tax payers of a municipal corporation have stood by in silence and permitted the bonds to be issued, does not estop them to object to their legality in the hands of an innocent holder, nor will the assent of all of the people of such corporation thereto make the debt valid, the contract creating the debt being ultra vires. Id.

Purchasers of the bonds of a municipal corporation are charged with knowledge that the corporation has only express and limited powers, and are bound at their peril to ascertain whether the bonds have been issued in compliance with law. Id.

The constitutional restriction upon the creating of indebtedness does not operate upon the municipal authorities, as agents of the corporation, but upon the corporation itself, as principal, and therefore the latter cannot be bound by an act of its agents creating such indebtedness. Id.

That a municipal corporation has authority to issue negotiable paper will not authorize the presumption that bonds issued upon indebtedness in excess of the constitutional limitation were issued upon the requisite authority. Id.

The holder of such bonds takes them with notice of their informality; and subsequent acts of the corporation will not estop it to deny their validity. Id.

Nor where bonds were issued in excess of constitutional authority and were therefore void, will the fact that the corporation received the value of such bonds entitle the holder to recover the amount paid therefor. Id.

Where the corporation has issued bonds to evidence an indebtedness in excess of the constitutional limit, the bonds are valid to the extent and within such limit, and invalid beyond such limit. Id.

So also, a tax levied to pay the principal and interest of municipal bonds is valid so far as it is within the municipal power, and beyond that is invalid. Id.

These rulings were made in a case where bonds were issued by an independent school district, many of which were found to have been issued without authority of law. [Ed.]

SECTION 1825. It shall be lawful for any district township, or independent district, to take and hold under the provisions contained in this chapter, so much real estate as may be necessary for the location and construction of a school-house and convenient use of the school; provided, that the real estate so taken, otherwise than by the consent of the owner or owners, shall not exceed one acre.

OF APPEALS.

To county superintendent. R. § 2133.	SECTION 1829. Any person aggrieved by any decision or order of the district board of directors, in matter of law or of fact, may, within thirty days after the rendition of such decision, or the making of such order, appeal therefrom to the county superintendent of the proper county. ^e
Basis of. R. § 2134.	SEC. 1830. The basis of the proceeding shall be an affidavit, filed by the party aggrieved with the county superintendent, within the time for taking the appeal.
Errors stated. R. § 2135.	SEC. 1831. The affidavit shall set forth the errors complained of in a plain and concise manner.
Superintendent to notify secretary of district: duty of. R. § 2136.	SEC. 1832. The county superintendent shall, within five days after the filing of such affidavit in his office, notify the secretary of the proper district, in writing, of the taking of such appeal. And the latter shall, within ten days after being thus notified, file in the office of the county superintendent a complete transcript of the record and proceedings relating to the decision complained of, which transcript shall be certified to be correct by the secretary.
Parties notified. R. § 2137.	SEC. 1833. After the filing of the transcript aforesaid in his office, he shall notify in writing all persons adversely interested of the time and place where the matter of the appeal will be heard by him.

^d The holder of a certificate of tax sale is entitled to notice of proceedings to condemn the land embraced in his certificate for a school-house site, and he cannot be deprived of his interest without compensation therefor; and a notice by publication to the holder of the legal title, and all other persons interested, is not sufficient to charge the holder of the tax certificate with notice. Cochran v. The Independent District, etc., 50 Iowa, 663.

^e A district school board has the power to change the established site of a school-house and remove the building to the new site; and where the board, in ordering such change, does not exceed its jurisdiction, nor otherwise act illegally, a court of equity will not interfere with its action nor restrain its proceedings thereunder. The remedy for unwise or inexpedent action in such case, is by appeal to the county superintendent. Vance et al. v. The District Township of Wilton, 23 Iowa, 408.

A party aggrieved by the action of a board of school directors having an adequate remedy by appeal to the county superintendent, and from thence to the state superintendent, is not entitled to the writ of mandamus. Marshall v. Sloan et al., 35 Id., 445.

An appeal will lie from the decision of the board of directors to the county superintendent, whose decision, although not in the nature of a judgment upon which process could issue for the collection of the sum awarded, it would be a decision binding upon the parties and may be enforced by action. Independent District of Lowell v. Independent District of Duser, 45 Id., 391.

SEC. 1834. At the time thus fixed for hearing, he shall hear testimony for either party, and for that purpose may administer oaths if necessary, and he shall make such decision as may be just and equitable, which shall be final, unless appealed from as hereinafter provided.

R. § 2138.

SEC. 1835. An appeal may be taken from the decision of the county superintendent, to the superintendent of public instruction in the same manner as provided in this chapter for taking appeals from the district board to the county superintendent, as nearly as applicable, except that he shall give thirty days' notice of the appeal to the county superintendent, and the like notice shall be given the adverse party. And the decision when made shall be final.⁴

Appeal to superintendent of public instruction: notice of.
R. § 2139.

SEC. 1836. Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to authorize either the county or state superintendent to render a judgment for money, neither shall they be allowed any other compensation than is now allowed by law. All necessary postage must first be paid by the party aggrieved.

No money judgment rendered: postage.

Five per cent fund payable to state treasurer. R. § 1964.

SEC. 1839. The five per centum of the net proceeds of all sales of the public lands is hereby made payable to the state treasurer, and the state auditor shall apportion the same among the several counties, taking into consideration the amount of the permanent school fund already in possession of and steadily loaned in said counties.

Part of permanent fund made payable to county treasurer. R. § 1965.

SEC. 1840. Those portions of the permanent school fund enumerated in the second and fourth subdivisions of section eighteen hundred and thirty-seven of this chapter, are hereby made payable to the county treasurer of the county in which the lands sold are situated, and the proceeds of subdivision third of said section to the treasurer of the county where said escheated estates are.

Same as to temporary fund. R. § 1966.

SEC. 1841. The temporary funds enumerated in section eighteen hundred and thirty-eight of this chapter, are hereby made payable to the county treasurers of the several counties in which they arise respectively, and shall be accounted for to the board of supervisors, who shall apportion the same among the several school districts of said county as provided by law.

Auditor to audit losses of. Ch. 134, § 3, 10 G. A.

SEC. 1842. The auditor is required to audit all losses to the school fund as provided in section three of article seven of the constitution; and, for this purpose, he shall prescribe such regulations for the conduct of officers having such funds in charge as he shall deem necessary to ascertain such losses.

To issue bonds when same amounts to one thousand dollars. Same, § 2.

SEC. 1843. Whenever any amount, not less than one thousand dollars, is audited in favor of the permanent school fund for losses of the same, whereby the state becomes indebted to said fund, the state auditor shall issue the bond or bonds of the state in favor of said fund, bearing interest at the rate of eight per cent, payable semi-annually, on the first day of January and July after the issuing of the same, and the amount required to pay the interest on said bonds, as the same becomes due, is hereby appropriated out of any revenue in the state treasury.

To keep account with different funds. R. § 1969.

SEC. 1844. The state auditor shall keep the school fund accounts in books provided for that purpose, separate and distinct from the revenue books, and immediately after making the apportionment required by section sixty-six of chapter three of title two, he shall notify the auditor of each county of the sum to which his county is entitled by said apportionment, and in those cases where the counties have less of such interest than they are entitled to by apportionment, he shall, by such notice, authorize the treasurer of each of such counties to transfer the amount of such deficiency from the state revenue in his hands to such interest fund, and said notice shall be filed by the treasurer and be his proper voucher to the state for the amount of said revenue so transferred. And in those cases where the counties have an excess of such interest over the amount apportioned to each, such notice shall authorize the county treasurer to transfer such excess from the interest fund, and such excess so transferred shall be paid into the state treasury as revenue.

SALE OF LANDS.

SEC. 1845. The board of supervisors may, at such time as they deem best, authorize the trustees of any township where the sixteenth section, or land selected in lieu thereof, has not been sold, to lay out the same in such tracts as in their judgment will be for the best interests of the school fund, conforming, as far as the interests of said fund will permit, to the legal subdivisions of the United States surveys; and they shall appraise each tract at what they believe to be its true value, and certify to the said board of supervisors the divisions and appraisements made by them; said division and appraisement shall be approved or disapproved by said board at their first meeting after such report, and in case they disapprove the same, they may at once order another division and appraisement, should they deem it best. Where the board of supervisors approve, the county auditor shall make and keep a record of such division, appraisement, and approval.

SEC. 1846. Whenever the board of supervisors shall offer for sale the sixteenth section, or lands selected in lieu thereof, or any portion of the same, or any part of the five hundred thousand acre grant, the county auditor shall give at least forty days' notice by written or printed notices posted in five public places in the county, two of which shall be in the township in which the land to be sold is situated; and also to publish a notice of said sale for four weeks preceding the same, in a newspaper should one be published in the county; if there is none published in said county, then in some newspaper authorized by the board of supervisors; and he shall describe the land to be sold, and state the time and place of sale; then at such time and place, or at such other time and place as the sale may be adjourned to, he shall offer to the highest bidder, subject to the provisions of this chapter, and shall sell either for cash, or one-third cash, and the balance on a credit not exceeding ten years, with interest on the same at the rate of [eight] per cent per annum; said interest to be paid at the office of the county treasurer of said county, on the first day of January in each year; but in no case shall the land so offered be sold for less than its appraised value; nor shall any member of the board of supervisors, or county auditor, township trustees, or any person who was engaged in the division and appraisement of said land, be, directly or indirectly, interested in the purchase thereof; and any sale made where such parties, or any of them, are so interested shall be void and of no effect.

SEC. 1847. No school lands shall be sold for less than the minimum price of six dollars per acre, except as hereinafter provided, and in no case for less than the amount at which it has been appraised.

SEC. 1848. No school lands of any kind shall be sold until there shall be at least twenty-five legal voters resident in the congressional township in which said school land is situated, and in a fractional township of less than thirty-six sections, the number of voters residing therein, must have at least the same ratio to twenty-five as the number of sections, or parts of sections in said township has to thirty-six, which fact in all cases must be shown to the satisfaction of the board of supervisors.

SEC. 1849. Where the board of supervisors of any county shall have once, at least, offered for sale any school lands in compliance with the requirements of section eighteen hundred and forty-five, and eighteen hundred and forty-six of this chapter, and are unable to sell the same for the minimum price of six dollars per acre, and, if in the opinion of said board, it is for the best interests of the school fund that the same be sold for a less price, then said board may instruct the auditor of said county to transmit by mail or otherwise to the register of the state land office, a certified copy of the proceedings of said board of supervisors in relation to the order of sale of said land, and subsequent proceedings in relation thereto, including the action

SEC. 1855. The provisions of the last section shall be of force as far as applicable, to all cases where land is purchased or money borrowed from the university fund, and, in case of delinquency as provided for in said section, the treasurer of the state university shall make the report therein required to the district attorney of the district where the party so purchasing or borrowing resides, or where the real estate given as security for said purchase or loan is situated.^s

Real estate offered as security appraised. R. § 1985.	SEC. 1863. The value of real estate offered as security for money loaned as herein provided, shall be fixed by three appraisers under oath, who shall be selected by the county auditor, and, in making the valuation provided for, the appraisers shall not take into consideration any buildings that may be on the land; said appraisers shall be allowed for their services the sum of fifty cents each, to be paid by the party borrowing, and the party borrowing shall pay for recording the mortgage given to secure such loan.

LOANS.

SEC. 1864. When any person desires to borrow from the permanent school fund, he shall apply to the county auditor, and if, in the opinion of said auditor, it would be to the interest of the school fund to grant such application, he shall order the necessary papers to be made

^h The principal and interest of loans from the school fund are payable to the county treasurer, and the payment of the proceeds of a judgment in its favor by the clerk to the county auditor is unauthorized; and if the auditor, in such case, fails to pay over to the county treasurer the amount thus paid to him by the clerk, the latter is liable on his official bond for the amount. Mahaska County v. Searle, 44 Iowa, 492.

The statute of limitations will not operate to bar an action for the recovery of the money in such case, until after three years from the time when it was paid to the auditor. Id.

The board of supervisors may make such reasonable rules for the loaning of the school fund as to them shall seem proper, and, among others, may provide that the fund shall be loaned only to residents of the county. Emmet County v. Skinner et al., 48 Id., 244.

out to secure the amount thus to be borrowed, as required by sections eighteen hundred and sixty-two and eighteen hundred and sixty-three of this chapter. When the same are made out, they shall be presented to said auditor, who shall, if he approves the same, indorse thereon, "accepted," and sign his name below the same, and he shall examine the title to any real estate offered as security, and make and preserve an abstract of such title, which shall be certified by him and submitted to the board of supervisors at the first meeting thereafter; he may charge a fee not to exceed two dollars for his services in making such abstract of title, to be paid by the party borrowing. He shall then give to the party borrowing a copy of the promissory note, certifying over his hand and official seal, that it is a correct copy of the same, which together with a mortgage securing it, has been filed in his office, and upon the parties presenting said certificate to the treasurer, he shall pay the amount specified in said copy of note out of the permanent school fund in his possession, and retain the said certified copy as his voucher. The said auditor shall file the original note in his office, and also the mortgage after having it recorded.¹

SEC. 1865. In all cases where the county auditor is required to take mortgages upon real estate as security for money borrowed, and upon the return of the appraisers thereof, the said auditor shall examine the assessment of the said land for the year previous, and should the said appraisal be higher than the said assessment, shall take the security upon one-half of the assessed valuation thereof.

SEC. 1866. At each meeting of the board of supervisors, the auditor shall make a full statement of all money received for and loaned out of the school fund under his control, and shall also submit for their examination all notes, mortgages, and abstracts of title connected with the school fund which have come into his possession since their last meeting. Said board, at the first meeting after such report and papers are submitted to them, shall either approve or disapprove of each loan made by said auditor. Should they disapprove of any loan or security thus reported, they may require the party borrowing to give additional security within thirty days; and in case of failure so to do, the entire amount, both of principal and interest, owing to the school fund, shall be deemed to have become due, and the district attorney shall be directed immediately to collect the same; and in such case, should it be found impossible to collect the entire amount due, and the security prove insufficient, then the county auditor and his bondsmen shall be liable for the deficiency. The provision herein contained with regard to principal and interest becoming due on the failure to give additional security when required for money borrowed from the school fund, is hereby declared to be a part of every contract made under and by virtue of this chapter, whether expressed in the contract or not.

SEC. 1867. When any person desires to pay either principal or interest due the school fund, he shall obtain a certificate from the county auditor specifying the amount due from such person to the school fund, stating whether it is principal or interest, or both, and setting forth distinctly the amount of each. Upon the presentation of which certificate to the county treasurer, the treasurer shall receive the amount so specified from the person presenting the certificate,

May acquire hold, and dispose of property. Ch. 93, § 1, 12 G. A. Retroactive. Same, § 3.

SEC. 1909. The title to any land heretofore conveyed or transferred by devise or descent, shall not be questioned or in any manner affected by reason of the alienage of any person through whom such title may have been derived.

CHAPTER 2.

OF TITLE IN THE STATE OR COUNTY.

SECTION 1910. Whenever, to secure the state or county therein from loss, it shall become necessary to take real estate on account of a debt, either by bidding off the same at a sale on execution or otherwise, the conveyance thereof to the state, or to any county, shall vest

When vested in state or county valid. Ch. 32, § 2, 9 G. A.

^a Under the act of March 15th, 1858 (revision, §§ 2488-2493), non-resident aliens could take property by will upon the condition that the devisee should, subsequently to the making of the bequest, become a resident of the state, but could not take property by descent. Krogan v. Kinney, 15 Iowa, 242; Rheim et al. v. Robbins, 20 Id., 45.

In Purcell v. Smidt, 21 Id., 540, the court was equally divided as to the proper construction of the provisions of the revision in respect to the rights of aliens, COLE, J., and DILLON, J., holding a different view from that in Krogan v. Kinney, 15 Id., 242 and Rheim v. Robbins, 20 Id., 45, LOWE, Ch. J., and WRIGHT, J., adhered to the construction there given.

In Brown v. Pearson et al., 41 Id., it was held that under the provisions of the revision a non-resident alien had not the capacity to inherit real property. The law of the code is essentially different from that of the revision.

May purchase when sold on execution. Same, § 1.

SEC. 1911. The proper person to bid off such real estate shall be:
1. The attorney general, or the proper district attorney, in case the judgment is in the name of the state, and the proceeds thereof are payable into the state treasury;

2. In case the proceeds of the judgment are, by law, payable into the county treasury for the use of the county revenue, or the school or other fund of the county, the district attorney of the district, or the president of the board of supervisors of the county, or any attorney employed or authorized by the board of supervisors to prosecute such claim.

To be appraised: amount of bid. Ch. 110, § 1, 11 G. A.

SEC. 1912. In all cases where property is sold as above provided, it shall first be appraised in the manner provided by law for the appraisalment of property levied on under execution, and the said officers shall bid upon and purchase said property for the lowest sum possible. If no other person shall bid therefor, they shall bid at least two-thirds of the appraised value thereof, or the full amount of the judgment and costs, if the same is less than two-thirds of such appraised value.

Costs and expenses paid by state or county. Same § 3.

SEC. 1913. In cases where the state becomes the purchaser of real estate, under execution issued upon judgments rendered in favor of the state, all costs and expenses attending the same shall be audited and allowed by the executive council, and paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, whenever such costs and expenses cannot be collected out of the defendant in such judgments, and if the property is purchased by a county, the costs and expenses in like cases shall be paid by such county.

Lands may be leased. Ch. 32, § 6, 9 G. A.

SEC. 1914. Whenever the state or any county holds any such lands undisposed of, it may, by its proper agent, lease and control the use of the same, as shall, in the opinion of the executive council, if belonging to the state, and the board of supervisors, if belonging to the county, be for the best interest of such owner; and the proceeds of such use shall belong to the fund to which the debt on which the land was taken belongs.

Buildings insured. Ch. 110, § 2, 10 G. A.

SEC. 1915. The officers invested with the control and management thereof, shall have full power, and shall keep any valuable buildings thereon insured against fire, for the benefit of the state or county, in some responsible insurance company or companies; and the expense of such insurance shall be paid out of the rents of such property or the proceeds thereof when sold.

When title invested in state: executive council to control. Same, § 3.

SEC. 1916. In any case where the title to any real estate is vested in the state as above provided, the executive council shall have the care, custody, and management thereof, and may sell the same for such sum and upon such terms as to them seems best, and may take such adequate security for any deferred payments as they see proper; and the proceeds of such sale shall be paid to the proper officer and credited to the fund to which the debt on which such real estate was taken belonged. A patent shall be issued to the purchaser of such real estate.

When in county: supervisors to control. Same, § 4.

SEC. 1917. In cases where the title to any real estate is vested in any county as above provided, it shall be competent for the board of supervisors to sell and dispose thereof, as in their judgment shall be for the best interest of their county; if the same is sold on time for any part of the purchase money, the board shall require adequate security for the payment thereof besides the responsibility of the purchaser; and the proceeds of sales of all such lands shall belong to the fund to which the debt on which the land was taken belonged.

SEC. 1918. In case of any such sale and conveyance by such board of supervisors, the resolution making the sale shall be entered on the minutes of the board, and the yeas and nays on the passage thereof shall be also there entered with the date; such resolution shall express the consideration paid for such land, and such a description thereof as shall be necessary to make a deed therefor; and a transcript of such proceedings relating to said sales, the resolution and yeas and nays on its passage made and certified under the hand of the county auditor and the seal of the said board, shall be a sufficient deed of conveyance by the said county, and shall be entitled to be recorded or received in evidence without further proof.

How conveyed by supervisors. Same, § 8.

SEC. 1919. The state, or county, on selling such lands, may, at the option of the officer making such sale, execute a contract of sale, or an absolute conveyance thereof, and may take notes, mortgages, contracts or other securities, payable to the grantor, which shall be as valid as if made to an actual person.

Contract of sale and securities taken valid. Same, § 7.

CHAPTER 3.

OF PERPETUITIES AND LAND IN MORTMAIN.

SECTION 1920. Every disposition of property is void, which suspends the absolute power of controlling the same for a longer period than during the lives of persons then in being and for twenty-one years thereafter.

Disposition of property: when void. R. § 1399.

SEC. 1921. Church organizations occupying property granted to them by the territory or state of Iowa, may lease the same for business purposes, and occupy other property with their church edifice; provided, that all of the income derived from such leased property shall be devoted to maintaining the religious exercises and ordinances of the church to which the grant was originally made, and to no other purpose; and such church and its affairs shall remain in the control of a board of trustees regularly chosen in accordance with its charter; but property so leased, shall, in all cases, be subject to taxation the same as the property of individuals.

Church organizations may lease: may be leased. Ch. 133, 13 G. A.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 1922. No sale, contract or lease, wherein the transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend upon any condition, shall be valid against any creditor or purchaser of the vendee, or lessee in actual possession obtained in pursuance thereof, Conditional sales: when invalid. Ch. 63, 14 G. A.

without notice, unless the same be in writing, executed by the vendor or lessor, acknowledged and recorded the same as chattel mortgages.¹

ed.
R. § 2201.

SEC. 1923. No sale or mortgage of personal property, where the vendor or mortgagor retains actual possession thereof, is valid against existing creditors or subsequent purchasers, without notice, unless a written instrument conveying the same is executed, acknowledged like conveyances of real estate, and filed for record with the recorder of the county where the holder of the property resides.¹

¹ Under a contract for the sale of a watch by the terms of which the vendee was to carry it thirty days, after which the sale should be consummated if the watch proved satisfactory; held, that the transaction was not a conditional sale, coming within the provisions of this section, and that until the thirty days expired the watch was not subject to seizure in the hands of the party intending to purchase on an execution against him. Mowbray v. Cady, 40 Iowa, 604.

Section 1922 of the code, does not apply to sales made prior to the enactment of the statute. The intention of the legislature to make a statute retrospective in its operation, must be clearly expressed to justify such a construction. Knowlton v. Redenbaugh, Id., 114; Mosley & Bro. v. Shattuck, 43 Id., 540.

The possession of personal property is not conclusive evidence of ownership, nor does a change of possession estop the party who has surrendered it from asserting his title in the article surrendered. Moseley & Bro. v. Shattuck, supra.

Where there is a conditional sale of personal property, the title does not pass until the price is paid. Id.

The simple noting of personal property on a writ, or the taking of an inventory, where there is no removal of the property and no person is placed in charge thereof by the officer, does not constitute a valid levy as against one who claims never to have parted with the title to the judgment debtor. Techmeyer v. Waltz, 49 Id., 645.

The fact that a bill of sale was acknowledged long after its date, is not alone sufficient to raise the presumption that it was antedated. Herns v. Hillhouse, 17 Id., 67.

When personal property at the time of the sale thereof was in the possession of a lessee, and remained therein after the sale, it was held, that the vendor did not retain the actual possession thereof, within the meaning of this section. Id.

An attachment creditor cannot acquire, through his attachment, a higher or better right to the property or assets attached than the defendant had when the attachment was levied, unless he can show some fraud or collusion by which his rights have been impaired. Id.

When the execution defendants have, in the absence of any fraud, sold their interest in the property before seizure thereof under process, the purchaser's rights under such sale are paramount to those under the process, notwithstanding it is not shown that the execution plaintiff, or the officer serving the process, had no notice of such sale prior to the seizure of the property. Id.

A gift made in good faith by a father to his child, while he is solvent, if the possession of the property be taken by the child, and it is held as exclusively hers and under her sole and exclusive control, will not become liable to the father's debts subsequently contracted, by the simple fact that it was in his house with his other furniture. Section 2201 of the revision, (§ 1923, code) has no application to this class of cases. Pierson v. Hersey, 19 Id., 114.

Fixtures so attached to the realty as to become a part thereof between vendor and vendee, pass to the vendee free of the lien of a prior mortgage of the same as personal property, of which the vendee had no notice. A purchaser, in searching the title to real property, is not required to examine the record of chattel mortgages for incumbrances. Bringolf v. Munzenmaier, 20 Id., 513.

A mortgage of personal property, duly executed, though not recorded, and though the mortgagor retains possession of the property, is valid against existing creditors, with notice of the mortgage. The words, "without notice" contained in the statute, apply to creditors as well as to purchasers. Allen v. McCalla, 25 Id., 464.

Notice is actual where the purchaser either knows of the existence of the adverse claim, or is conscious of having the means of knowledge, and does not use them, whether his knowledge is the result of a direct communication, or is gathered from facts and circumstances. And where a person designedly abstains from making inquiry for the purpose of avoiding knowledge he will not be regarded as a bona fide purchaser without notice, but as charged with the knowledge which his inquiries would have developed. Id.
