Where it appears that the person to whom the property is taxed is dead, the proceedings are to be the same as though the owner was "unknown" and no notice is necessary. It is not necessary that the notice be given to the heirs or legal representatives of such person. Ibid.

Notice cannot be given by a purchaser who has assigned the certificate. Sickles v. Union Investment Co., 109–450, 80 N. W. 534.

It is the mandatory duty of the county treasurer to report the fact of service of notice of the expiration of the period of redemption to the county auditor and if such report is not made the notice is not effectual. Ashenfelter v. Seiling, 141–512, 119 N. W. 984.

The statute requires the notice to show at whose direction the service is made. Ibid.

The person who seeks to cut off the right of redemption from tax sale must subsequently comply with all the provisions enacted for the protection of the owner. Ibid.

If it fairly appears from the notice and affidavit who made or gave the direction for the service this is all that should be required. Lindsey v. Booge, 144–168, 122 N. W. 819.

To whom given: The notice must be served upon the person in possession. Hintrager v. McElhinny, 112–325, 82 N. W. 1008, 83 N. W. 1063.

In a particular case held that the return of service of notice was not sufficient. Ibid.

The notice of the expiration of the period for redemption is to be given to the person in whose name the land is assessed and taxed at the time the notice is given rather than at the expiration of two years and nine months from the sale, where the giving of the notice is postponed to a later date than that at which it might first have been given. Smith v. Callanan, 103–218, 72 N. W. 513.

One who is not the owner is not entitled to notice of redemption in the absence of a showing that he is in the actual occupancy of the property. Barcroft v. Mann, 125–530, 101 N. W. 276.

In order for the owner of vacant lots to be in the possession thereof within the meaning of the statutory provision, he is not required to show any other acts of possession or control than such as are usually exercised by resident owners having title to property of that kind. Foy v. Houstman, 128–220, 103 N. W. 369.

Proof of notice: Reference in the affidavit of the purchaser to the printed notice, a copy of which is attached to the affidavit, is sufficient. Hoskins v. Iowa Land Co., 121–299, 96 N. W. 977.

The place of service of notice must be stated in the proof required by statute of the making of such service. Barcroft v. Mann, 125–530, 101 N. W. 276.

While an affidavit of a proprietor of a newspaper in which the notice was published is not competent to prove such publication, yet if such affidavit is made a part of the agent's affidavit of notice, the proof is sufficient. Funson v. Bradt, 105–471, 75 N. W. 337.

An affidavit of notice which does not show that the person making it was the agent or attorney of the holder of the tax certificate is not competent evidence of the facts recited. Ibid.

Where the description of the property in the redemption notice is such as to call the attention of the person upon whom it is served to the sale intended and the property sold, it is sufficient. Ibid.

The affidavit should show by whom the service was made and the facts constituting such service. Wood v. Yearous, 140 N. W. 362.

Where the notice was printed on the reverse side of the affidavit of service, a reference in the affidavit to the "attached notice" held insufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 1442. Deed executed.

Where the description does not furnish the means for determining the boundary line of the tract covered, the deed is not valid. Tucker v. Carlson, 113–449, 85 N. W. 901.

The description must contain in itself sufficient facts when applied to identify the particular tract intended to be conveyed. Armour v. Officer, 116–675, 88 N. W. 1058.

A deed issued to one who is in fact the owner of the certificate is valid, although such owner holds by assignment not recorded. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

SEC. 1444. Effect of deed—vests title.

What vests in purchaser: There is no privity between the holder of the fee and one who claims a tax title upon the land. The latter title is not derived from, but is antagonistic to, the former. The holder of the tax title is not a privy in estate with the holder of the fee. Neither owes any duty to the other, nor is estopped from making any claim against the other. Hussman v. Durham, 165 U. S. 144.

A tax title is not derivative, but a new title in the nature of an independent grant from the sovereign, and the one who claims under a tax deed does not therefore claim title from the same source as the person attacking the deed whose title is derived from a foreclosure proceeding, and who does not show title in the person who executed the mortgage. Petersborough Sav. Bank v. Des Moines Sav. Bank, 110–519, 81 N. W. 786.

The effect of a tax deed is to be determined by the statute in force at the time it is executed. Fitzgerald v. Sioux City, 125–396, 101 N. W. 268.

Where the city certifies special assessments to the county auditor for collection, a purchaser at a sale for taxes including such special assessments by his deed acquires title free from the remaining installments of such special assessments which have not been brought forward so as to preserve the lien thereof on the property. Ibid.

A tax deed may be attacked for insufficiency of the notice given by the holder of the certificate of sale of the expiration of the period of redemption. Pease v. Globe Realty Co., 141–482, 119 N. W. 975.

The title passing by a tax deed is original and not derivative and cuts off the contingent dower right of the wife of the owner. Lucas v. Purdy, 142–359, 120 N. W. 1063; Byington v. Carlin, 146–301, 125 N. W. 233.

A purchaser at a tax sale gets nothing through his purchase if the land was not subject to taxation. The doctrine of caveat emptor applies to such a purchaser. Hart v. Delphey, 157– —, 136 N. W. 702.

Deed as evidence: It is presumed in favor of the tax deed that service of notice of redemption was not required to be made on a person in possession if the contrary does not appear. Funson v. Bradt, 105–471, 75 N. W. 337.

The fact that a deed is issued is prima-facie evidence of the giving of notice of expiration of the period of redemption. Young v. Iowa Toilers' Protective Association, 106–447, 76 N. W. 822.

The holder of a tax deed regular upon its face, makes out a prima-facie case in an action to quiet title and the burden is upon the defendant to establish its invalidity. Even if the invalidity of the deed is shown, it may be sufficient basis for establishing title by adverse possession. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

A tax deed is at least prima-facie evidence of the fact that the grantee named therein was the purchaser at the sale, or one who succeeded to his rights. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Wall, 129–651, 106 N. W. 160.

Where lands covered by a railroad grant were sold for taxes, not having been patented to the railroad at the time of the assessment of the tax, held that the presumption of regularity in favor of the tax sale would warrant the assumption that such lands had been earned and selected prior to the assessment of the tax. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Hemenway, 117–598, 91 N. W. 910.

Irregularity in posting of notice of tax sale will not affect the validity of the deed. Davis v. Magoun, 109–308, 80 N. W. 423.

SEC. 1445. Who may question.

One who attacks a tax deed does not make sufficient showing of title by the introduction of the record of foreclosure proceedings and the acquisition of title by him under such proceedings. The title required to be shown is such an one as that the party claiming thereunder might, if plaintiff, recover thereon. Petersborough Sav. Bank v. Des Moines Sav. Bank, 110–519, 81 N. W. 786.

Whether or not the plaintiff in an action attacking a tax deed must show that a subsequent sale of the land for taxes has been redeemed from, when the land was purchased at such sale by a stranger, quaere. Ibid.

Where the landowner seeks by equitable action to redeem under the provisions of § 1440, he is not required to show title or any payment of taxes as required by this section. A judgment creditor entitled to redeem may maintain such action. Swan v. Harvey, 117–58, 90 N. W. 489; Roth v. Munzenmaier, 118–326, 91 N. W. 1072; Busch v. Hall, 119–279, 93 N. W. 356.

The plaintiff in such a case must show some title, but title by adverse possession is sufficient. Roth v. Munzenmaier, 118–326, 91 N. W. 1072.

Any one having a right to redeem may maintain such equitable action. Busch v. Hall, 119–279, 93 N. W. 356.

One who attacks a tax deed on the ground that he has not had notice of the expiration of the right of redemption is not required to show payment of taxes. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. Pond, 128–600, 105 N. W. 119.

The provisions of this section have application to actions in equity brought to redeem. Hawkeye Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Moore, 139–133, 117 N. W. 51.

Where a valid notice of the expiration of the period of redemption has not been given the provisions of this section are not applicable. Neilan v. Unity Inv. Co., 147–677, 126 N. W. 947.

Proof of title is a condition precedent to the right of a party litigant to take advantage of the five-year limitation provided for in code § 1448. King v. Bolt, 151–1, 130 N. W. 818.

SEC. 1446. Sales wrongfully made—purchaser indemnified.

The provisions of this section entitle the purchaser to recover only where the mistake or error is that of the treasurer, and not where it is due to the auditor, although the land may by reason of such mistake of the auditor not be subject to sale. Lonsdale v. Carroll County, 105–452, 75 N. W. 332.

Such provisions do not entitle the tax purchaser to recover from the county, in case the sale is invalid by reason of mistake or error, the taxes subsequently paid by him on the property. Ibid.

One who pays an illegal tax on real estate in which he has no interest cannot recover the amount paid on the ground of its illegality. Code '73, § 899, providing that when, by mistake or wrongful act of the county treasurer, land has been sold on which no tax was due, the county shall hold the purchaser harmless; and § 901, providing that whenever any tract is sold for taxes which is not subject to taxation, or on which the taxes have been previously paid, the purchase money shall be refunded to the purchaser, apply to county officers and do not authorize the maintenance by the holder of a tax certificate of an action to recover from a city an illegal assessment extended by the county auditor and paid by the holder of the certificate to the county treasurer and by the latter turned over to the city. Hawkeye L. & B. Co. v. Marion, 110–468, 81 N. W. 718.

The wrongful act or mistake of the treasurer which will subject the county to an action for the recovery of taxes under this section is one which the person seeking recovery had no agency in bringing about. And where the bondsmen of one selling intoxicating liquor under the mulct law bought in the real property used for that purpose at a tax sale for the mulct tax, for which his bondsmen were liable, the sale being made at his request, held that he could not recover from the county the amount paid by him at such tax sale, which was afterwards set aside. Guedert v. Emmet County, 116–40, 89 N. W. 85.

Evidence in a particular case, showing but little competition at a tax sale, although quite a number of bidders were present, held not sufficient to prove fraud on the part of the purchaser. Gallaher v. Head, 108–588, 79 N. W. 387.

SEC. 1447. Land not subject to taxation.

After having made an entry of cancellation as provided in this section the treasurer cannot subsequently erase such entry and execute a deed in pursuance of the sale, without notice or opportunity to the property owners to redeem or otherwise protect their rights in the premises. Burchardt v. Scofield, 141–336, 117 N. W. 1061.

SEC. 1448. Limitation of actions.

The statute begins to run from the time the purchaser is entitled to a deed, but if the holder of the fee title makes a surrender to the holder of the tax title, by payment or rent before the five-year limit has expired, this will constitute such surrender of possession as to stop the running of the statute. Gallaher v. Head, 108–588, 79 N. W. 387.

The statute of limitations against the tax deed does not begin to run when the deed is issued without redemption notice being served on the person in whose name the land is taxed, and the same rule applies where the deed is invalid by reason of the failure to notify the person in possession. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Kelley, 105–106, 74 N. W. 935.

The five-year limitation is only available to one who was the owner of the title at the time of the sale, and if such owner, attacking the tax deed, introduces no evidence of title whatever, he cannot recover. Gill v. Candler, 114–332, 86 N. W. 300.

The statute begins to run at the time when the tax sale purchaser might have obtained his deed, that is, three years from the date of sale. If no action is brought by such purchaser within five years thereafter, the tax title is extinguished. Roth v. Munzenmaier, 118–326, 91 N. W. 1072.

As against an action to defeat a tax title in the hands of the agent of the owner of the property, the five-year limitation is applicable. Bemis v. Plato, 119–127, 93 N. W. 83.

The provisions of this section limiting the action attacking a tax title to five years after the tax deed is executed and recorded, constitute a condition as to the right to maintain such action, and therefore the question whether the action is commenced in proper time is not to be determined by code § 3450, which provides that with reference to the general statute of limitations an action is to be deemed commenced when the notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service, but by the provisions of code § 3514, declaring that an action is commenced by service on the defendant. Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

Possession of land by the owner in order to bar an action under a tax title, need not be such as is required to make it adverse, hostile and exclusive, under the general statute of limitations. It is sufficient if it is such as would entitle the tax title owner to an action against the fee owner. Clark v. Sexton, 122–310, 98 N. W. 127.

If the tax deed is simply irregular and not void, the tax title holder relying thereon in an action to quiet title is not subject to having his title attacked after five years. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

One who seeks to redeem from a tax title on the ground that the holder of such tax title was under obligation to hold the same for the benefit of others having an interest in the property, is not limited by the provision with reference to actions attacking a tax title being brought within five years. Gilman v. Heitman, 137–336, 113 N. W. 932.

The limitations of this section do not apply to a tax sale in a special charter city under its charter and the statutes applicable to such cities. Fisk v. Keokuk, 144–187, 122 N. W. 896.

The limitation of this action is not applicable in a case where no valid notice of the expiration of the period of redemption has been given. Neilan v. Unity Inv. Co., 147–677, 126 N. W. 947.

Proof of title is a condition precedent to the right of a party litigant to take advantage of the five-year limitation; but title by adverse possession is sufficient. King v. Bolt, 151–1, 130 N. W. 818.

The statutory bar is applicable also as against a claim for taxes paid. Ibid.

SEC. 1452-a. Actions authorized. In addition to all other remedies and proceedings now provided by law for the collection of taxes on personal property, the county treasurer is hereby authorized to bring or cause an ordinary suit at law to be commenced and prosecuted in his name for the use and benefit of the county for the collection of taxes from any person, persons, firm or corporation as shown by the tax list in his office, and the same shall be in all respects commenced, tried and prosecuted to final judgment the same as provided by the code for ordinary actions. [32 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

Prior to the enactment of this statutory provision, it was held that the treasurer could not maintain an action at law against the owner of property to recover taxes and to meet this rule this statute was passed. McCrary v. Lake City Elec. Light Co., 139–548, 117 N. W. 964.

SEC. 1452-b. Statutes applicable—writ of attachment—damages. All the provisions of chapters one and two of title nineteen of the code and acts amendatory thereto are hereby made applicable to any proceedings instituted by a county treasurer under the provisions of section one hereof, and a writ of attachment shall be issued upon the county treasurer complying with the provisions of said chapter, for taxes, whether due or not due, except that no bond shall be required from the treasurer or county in such cases, but the county shall be liable for damages, only, as provided by section thirty-eight hundred eighty-seven of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE SECURITY OF THE REVENUE.

SECTION 1457. Loaning or depositing public funds—interest on daily balances. That the law as it appears in section fourteen hundred fifty-seven of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"A county treasurer shall be liable to a like fine for loaning out, or in any manner using for private purposes, state, county or other funds in his hands, but the county treasurer shall, with the approval of the board of supervisors as to place of deposit, by resolution entered of record, deposit such funds in any bank or banks in the state to an amount fixed by such resolution at interest at the rate of at least two per cent. per annum on ninety per cent. of the daily balances payable at the end of each month all of which shall accrue to the benefit of the general county fund; but before such deposit is made, such bank shall file a bond with sureties to be approved by the treasurer and the board of supervisors in double the amount deposited, conditioned to hold the treasurer harmless from all loss by reason of such deposit or deposits; provided that in cases where an approved surety company's bond is furnished, said bond may be accepted in an amount equal to ten per cent. more than the amount deposited. Said bond shall be filed with the county auditor and action may be brought thereon either by the treasurer or the county as the board of supervisors may elect; and the state treasurer shall be liable to a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars for a like misdemeanor. But nothing done under the provisions of this section shall alter or affect the liability of the treasurer or the sureties of his official bonds." [33 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 36, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 155; C. '73, § 912; R. § 797.]

The treasurer has no authority to collect taxes through a bank, and is primarily liable for loss of taxes thus collected by failure of the bank. Under such circumstances, the bank holds the taxes thus collected as a trust fund for the county. Page County v Rose, 130–296, 106 N. W. 744.

The board may, in reliance on a bond already given, authorize deposits, as therein contemplated, and the surety on such bond is only liable for deposits thus authorized. Fremont County v. Fremont County Bank, 138–167, 115 N. W. 925.

The validation of a prior unauthorized bond will not render the surety thereon liable for losses which had already occurred. Ibid.

The sureties on such a bond have the right to rely on the compliance by the county treasurer with the order of the board. Ibid.

A deposit of public moneys wrongfully made by a county treasurer does not give rise to any contract rights, and as between the treasurer and the bank no trust arises which renders the treasurer a preferred creditor. Brown v. Sheldon State Bank, 139–83, 117 N. W. 289.

Nor is the treasurer subrogated on accounting for the money to any right which the county would have had if the deposit had been lawful. Ibid.

The county has no preference as to a deposit in a national bank, subsequently becoming insolvent, unless it appears that the assets of the bank have been increased by such deposit and that the preference can be effected without prejudice to the rights of other creditors. To justify a preference, the trust fund must be traced into the assets of the bank which have been augmented thereby. Lucas County v. Jamison, (C. C.) 170 Fed. 338.

A county whose funds have been unlawfully deposited in an insolvent bank by its treasurer is not entitled to preference as against other depositors in such insolvent bank. Empire State Surety Co. v. Carroll County, (C. C. A.) 194 Fed. 593.

The provisions of this section do not prevent a curative act releasing a county treasurer from liability on his bond for the deposit of public money made without complying with the provisions of the statute. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

Where the attempt is to execute a bond in compliance with the provisions of this section the county treasurer cannot rely on the bond if the deposit has not been authorized or made in pursuance of the statutory provisions. Kuhl v. Chamberlain, 140–546, 118 N. W. 776.

The circumstance that money deposited in depository banks is brought into the treasurer's office to be counted does not in itself constitute payment to the treasurer such as to relieve the sureties on the bond from liability. Fremont County v. Fremont County Bank, 145–8, 123 N. W. 782.

When a designated depository gives a bond for the repayment of all money "now or hereafter placed in said bank or under its care or control," the sureties on the bond become liable for all money on deposit at the time the bond is given. Sawyer v. Stilson, 146–707, 125 N. W. 822.

As against the sureties the treasurer is entitled to apply subsequent payments by the bank to obligations antedating the execution of the bond. Ibid.

Taxes paid to the depository bank in accordance with a custom by which the bank turns such taxes over to the treasurer, securing receipts therefor which are delivered to the taxpayer, constitute deposits by the treasurer. Ibid.

The records of the treasurer as to moneys deposited in the bank are evidence of such deposits. Ibid.

Under this section as amended, it is only on the nomination of the county treasurer that the board of supervisors is authorized to designate a county depository of funds. The sole function of the board is to fix the limit of deposit, "approve the place" where it is to be made and, with the concurrence of the treasurer, pass upon the sufficiency of the bond offered by the selected depository. State v. Rhein, 149–76, 127 N. W. 1079.

SEC. 1460. Statement of account—repeal. That section fourteen hunhundred sixty of the code, relating to the statement by the auditor of state of the county treasurer's account with the treasurer of state, be and the same is hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 63.]

SEC. 1461. Settlement with county treasurer.

When a county treasurer is indicted upon the charge of receiving public money and failing to account therefor under the last provision found in code § 4840, it must be alleged and proved that demand was made upon him by the person or officer entitled to receive the funds so demanded. State v. McKinney, 130-370, 106 N. W. 931.

Where the balance in the hands of an outgoing county treasurer has been ascertained on the final settlement with the board of supervisors, his successor in office becomes the person entitled to receive the balance on hand, and is the only person who can make demand therefor, refusal of which will charge the outgoing officer with criminal liability for failure to account. Ibid.

SEC. 1462. Public funds—how kept and accounted for. That section fourteen hundred sixty-two of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The state treasurer and each county treasurer shall at all times keep all funds coming into their possession as public money, in a vault or safe, to be provided for that purpose, or in some bank legally designated as a depositary for such funds. At the time of any examination of any such office, or at the time of any settlement with the treasurer in charge of any such public funds, the treasurer shall produce and count in the presence of the officer or officers making such examination or settlement, all moneys or funds then on deposit in the safe or vault in his office, and shall produce a statement of all money or funds on deposit with any depositary wherein he is authorized to deposit such funds, which statement shall be certified by one or more officers of such depositary, and shall correctly show the balance remaining on deposit in such depositary at the close of business on the day preceding the day of such settlement. The treasurer shall also file a statement setting forth the numbers, dates, and amounts of all outstanding checks, or other items of difference, reconciling the balance as shown by the treasurer's books with those of the depositaries. It shall be the duty of the officer or officers making such settlement to see that the amount of money produced and counted, together with the amounts so certified by the legally designated depositaries, agrees with the balance with which such treasurer should be charged, and he shall make a report in writing of any such settlement or examination, and attach thereto the certified statement of all such depositaries. The report of any such settlement with the treasurer of state shall be filed in the office of the auditor of state, and the report of a settlement with a county treasurer with the auditor of the county. [34 G. A., ch. 67, §§ 1, 2.] [C. '73, § 918; R. § 804.]

SEC. 1462-a. False statements or reports—penalty. "Any officer or other person making a false statement or report or in any manner violating any of the provisions hereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be liable to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars." [34 G. A., ch. 67, § 3.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX.

SECTION 1467. Rate—repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 48; 33 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.] [31 G. A., chs. 54, 55; 30 G. A., ch. 51.]

[See § 1481-a47. EDITOR.]

A tax upon succession with an exemption of one thousand dollars is not unconstitutional. In re McGhee's Estate, 105–9, 74 N. W. 695.

The statute exempts from taxation one thousand dollars of the entire estate and not one thousand dollars of the share coming to each distributee. Ibid.

The valuation of the property is to be made by appraisement and not determined by the regular assessment. Such value is the price which the property will command in the market. Ibid.

The expression, "above the sum of one thousand dollars," is descriptive of an estate which is to be exempt from taxation, and not of a portion of the estate which is to be exempt. Herriott v. Bacon, 110–342, 81 N. W. 701; Gilbertson v. McAuley, 117–522, 91 N. W. 788.

The situs of the property, and not the testator's domicile, determines the liability of the property for the inheritance tax, and where a resident of Iowa died possessed of cattle in an adjoining state which passed under his will to collateral heirs, held that such cattle, or the proceeds thereof, were not liable to the tax. In re Weaver's Estate, 110–328, 81 N. W. 603.

Where a son devised property to his mother, who died before the testator's death leaving as heirs a brother and sister of testator, held that the devised property passed directly from testator to his brother and sister as collateral heirs, and thus became subject to the collateral inheritance tax. In re Hulett's Estate, 121–423, 96 N. W. 952.

Property which passed to collateral heirs on the death of a testator, prior to the passage of the collateral inheritance tax law, is not subject to such a tax. Gilbertson v. Ballard, 125–420, 101 N. W. 108.

Choses in action held by a nonresident against residents of the state are not subject to collateral inheritance tax on the death of the former. Gilbertson v Oliver, 129–568. 105 N. W. 1002.

An order made in a probate proceeding on application of the state treasurer that the executor file an inventory of real property for the purpose of having a collateral inheritance tax assessed against it, held to be such intermediate order substantially affecting the merits or determining a right that the executor might appeal therefrom. In re Stone's Estate, 132–136, 109 N. W. 455.

The devisee of an interest in real property taken collaterally, and therefore subject to an inheritance tax, may renounce the devise in favor of the direct heirs and thus prevent the attaching of the obligation to pay such tax. Ibid.

Property of an estate not distributed prior to the taking effect of 27 G. A., ch. 37, held to be subject to the collateral inheritance tax. Montgomery v. Gilbertson, 134–291, 111 N. W. 964.

While the owner of an estate cannot defeat the tax by any device which secures to him for life the income, profits or enjoyment, while passing title before his death, the conveyance, to be objectionable, must be such as does not pass the possession and title of the property in the grantor's lifetime. Lamb v. Morrow, 140–89, 117 N. W. 1118.

The collateral inheritance tax is not a tax on the property itself but upon the right to succession to property. Morrow v. Durant, 140–437, 118 N. W. 781.

The state cannot complain that a reservation in a will for the erection of a tomb is unreasonable. Ibid.

The constitutionality of the collateral inheritance tax statute can be sustained only on the ground that it is not a tax upon the property itself, but upon the right to succession to the property. Wicting v. Morrow, 151–590, 132 N. W. 193.

The nonresident owner of shares of stock in a corporation has an interest in the property of said corporation which is subject to the collateral inheritance tax. In re Culver's Estate, 145–1, 123 N. W. 743.

In an action to determine whether a devise to a local Masonic lodge was within the exception of this section, held that such lodge was a charitable institution and the devise was therefore not subject to the tax. Morrow v. Smith, 145–514, 124 N. W. 316.

A bequest to the local branch of the salvation army to be expended within the state comes within the exemption of this section although the society itself may be elsewhere incorporated. The fact that the local branch is not incorporated will not defeat the trust. In re Crawford's Estate, 148–60, 126 N. W. 774.

A devise to the dependent poor of a specified county who are maintained wholly or in part at the expense of the county, constituting the board of supervisors trustees to receive and carry into effect the trust for the benefit of the beneficiaries, is a charitable gift within the exception of this section. In re Spangler's Estate, 148–333, 127 N. W. 625.

By the reference to "deed, grant, sale or gift made or intended to take effect in possession or in enjoyment after the death of the grantor," is meant estates granted in deeds or conveyances which in some way make the estate granted dependent upon the grantor's death. Such provision relates only to interests in real estate, the possession or enjoyment of which is postponed until after the death of the grantor. In re Bell's Estate, 150–725, 130 N. W. 798.

The collateral inheritance statute is not to be given a retroactive effect. Lacey v. Treasurer of State, 152–477, 132 N. W. 843.

The statute has no application to interests in land passing to heirs prior to its taking effect although such heirs have not asserted their rights or gone into possession until after the taking effect of the statute. Ibid.

Where rights have been created by a contract of conveyance prior to the taking effect of the statute which are not subject to any contingency dependent on the exercise of any power reserved to the grantor which might defeat the grant, the rights thus passing are not subject to the collateral inheritance tax. Ibid.

An interest in property created by will or deed in the nature of a remainder becomes vested from the time the will or deed takes effect. Ibid.

The collateral inheritance tax law contains no provision making it retroactive or applicable to any interests in property which became vested prior to its taking effect, even though such interests might be subject to conditions or contingencies which would affect their future enjoyment. Morrow v. Depper, 153–341, 133 N. W. 729.

The evident purpose of this section is that an estate whose value is near the dividing line shall not be carried into the exempt class by extraordinary charges under the guise of funeral expenses or by the presentation of stale or fictitious claims which are not allowed within the time specified. Morrow v. Durant, 140–437, 118 N. W. 781.

This section does not qualify code § 1467 as to the description of property subject to collateral inheritance tax. Morrow v. Durant, 140–437, 118 N. W. 781.

Money paid out by legatees under a will in order to prevent a contest of the will should not be deducted from the value of the estate in ascertaining the collateral inheritance tax. In re Wells' Estate, 142–255, 120 N. W. 713.

In determining the collateral inheritance tax on property of a nonresident which is situated in this state, the widow of such nonresident is entitled to take one third of the property charged with the debts of the testator pro rata with other property in the state. Wieting v. Morrow, 151–590, 132 N. W. 193.

SEC. 1469. Appraisal.

The appraisement made of the personal property by the regularly appointed appraisers seems to be made the basis for the limitation of the tax on that kind of property. No notice to the heirs, legatees or devisees is provided for or required, and therefore this section as it originally stood was unconstitutional. The tax is a property tax, and not a tax on succession. But the provision for notice contained in 27 G. A., ch. 37, which is made retroactive, cures the defect as to estates not settled at the time the act was passed and a tax previously levied is rendered valid by said act. Ferry v. Campbell, 110–290, 81 N. W. 604.

Where title to the real property belonging to deceased had vested absolutely in heirs prior to the enactment of 27 G. A., ch. 37, held that the legalizing act did not cure the defect in the law existing at the time inheritance was cast, and therefore did not render the tax valid as against the inheritance by the heirs. Herriott v. Potter, 115–648, 89 N. W. 91.

SEC. 1481-a. Property subject to tax—rate—foreign beneficiaries—lien. The estates of all deceased persons, whether they be inhabitants of this state or not, and whether such estate consists of real, personal or mixed property, tangible or intangible, and any interest in, or income from any such estate or property, which property is, at the death of the decedent owner, within this state or is subject to, or thereafter, for the purpose of distribution, is brought within this state and becomes subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this state, or the property of any decedent, domiciled within this state at the time of the death of such decedent, even though the property of such decedent so domiciled was situated outside of the state, except real estate located outside of the state passing in fee from the decedent owner, which shall pass by will or by the statutes of inheritance of this or any other state or country, or by deed, grant, sale, gift, or transfer made in contemplation of the death of the donor, or made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor or donor, to any person, or for any use in trust or otherwise, other than to or for the use of persons, or uses exempt by this act shall be subject to a tax of five per centum; provided, however, that when property or any interest therein shall pass to heirs, devisees or other beneficiaries subject to the tax imposed by this act who are aliens, nonresidents of the United States, the same shall be subject to a tax of twenty per centum of its true value except when such foreign beneficiaries are brothers or sisters of the decedent owner, when the rate of tax to be assessed and collected therefrom shall be ten per centum of the value of the property or interest so passing. Any person beneficially entitled to any property or interest therein because of any such gift, legacy, devise, annuity, transfer or inheritance, and all administrators, executors, referees and trustees, and any such grantee under a conveyance, and any such donee under a gift, and any such legatee, annuitant, devisee, heir or beneficiary, shall be respectively liable for all such taxes to be paid by them respectively. The tax aforesaid shall be for the use of the state, shall accrue at the death of the decedent owner, and shall be paid to the treasurer of state within eighteen months thereafter, except when otherwise provided in this act, and shall be and remain a legal charge against and a lien upon such estate, and any and all of the property thereof from the death of the decedent owner until paid. Real estate sold under order of court shall be released from the lien imposed by this act and the lien shall attach to the proceeds of such sale, provided that prior to the approval of such sale there shall have been given by the person making such sale a good and sufficient bond conditioned to secure the payment of all tax secured by the lien so released. This provision shall not be construed to relieve from personal liability any person owing such tax or whose duty it is to collect and pay such tax to the treasurer of state. [35 G. A., ch. 120, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 68, § 1.]

SEC. 1481-a1. Exceptions. The tax imposed by this act shall not be collected,

1. When the entire estate of the decedent does not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars after deducting the debts as defined in this act;
2. When the property passes to the husband or wife;
3. When the property passes to the father, mother, lineal descendant, adopted child, or the lineal descendant of an adopted child of decedent;
4. When the property passes to educational and religious societies or institutions, public libraries and public art galleries within this state and open to the free use of the public;
5. Property passing to or for hospitals within this state open to the public, and not operated for gain, or to societies within this state organized for purposes of public charity, including cemetery associations, but not including societies maintained by fees, dues, or assessments in whose benefits the public may not share;
6. Bequests for the care and maintenance of the cemetery or burial lot of decedent and his family, and bequests not to exceed five hundred dollars in any estate, to or for the performance of a religious service or services by some person regularly ordained, authorized or licensed by any religious society to perform such service to be performed for or in behalf of the testator, or some person named in his last will, provided such person so named is, or would be exempt from the tax imposed by this act;
7. When the property passes to a municipal or political corporation within this state for a purely public purpose. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 2.]

SEC. 1481-a2. "Debts" defined—when deducted. The term "debts" as used in this act shall include, in addition to debts owing by the decedent at the time of his death, the local or state taxes due from the estate in January of the year of his death, a reasonable sum for funeral expenses, court costs, the cost of appraisement made for the purpose of assessing the collateral inheritance tax, the statutory fees of executors, administrators, or trustees estimated upon the appraised value of the property, the amount paid by the executor or administrator for a bond, the attorney fee in a reasonable amount, to be approved by the court, for the ordinary probate proceedings in said estate and no other sum; but said debts shall not be deducted unless the same are approved and allowed by the court within eighteen months from the death of the decedent, as established claims against the estate, unless otherwise ordered by the judge or court of the proper county. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 3.]

SEC. 1481-a3. Administrator—appointment on application of treasurer—bond of nonresident administrator. If, upon the death of any person leaving an estate that may be liable to a tax under the provisions of this act, a will disposing of such estate is not offered for probate, or an application for administration made within four months from the time of such decease, the treasurer of state may, at any time thereafter, make application to the proper court, setting forth such fact and praying that an administrator may be appointed, and thereupon said court shall appoint an administrator to administer upon such estate. When the heirs or persons entitled to inherit the property of an estate subject to the tax hereby imposed, desire to avoid the appointment of an administrator as provided in this section, they or one of them shall, before the expiration of four months from the death of the decedent file under oath the inventories and reports and perform all the duties required by this act, of administrators, including the filing of the lien; proceedings for the collection of the tax when no administrator is appointed, shall conform as nearly as may be to the provisions of this act in other cases. A nonresident of this state shall not be appointed as executor, administrator or trustee of any estate that may be subject to the tax imposed by this act, unless such nonresident first file a bond conditioned upon the payment of all tax, interest and costs for which the estate may be liable, such bond to be signed by not less than two resident freeholders or by an approved surety company and in an amount not less than twenty-five per cent. of the total value of the estate, or of the property within this state if the estate is a foreign estate. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 4.]

SEC. 1481-a4. Appraisers—appointment—term—bond not required—removal—vacancies. In each county, the court shall annually at the first term of the court therein appoint three competent residents and freeholders of said county, to act as appraisers of all property within its jurisdiction which is charged or sought to be charged with the collateral inheritance tax. Said appraisers shall serve for one year, and until their successors are appointed and qualified. They shall each take an oath to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of the office, but shall not be required to give bond. They shall be subject to removal at any time at the discretion of the court, and the court or judge thereof in vacation, may also in its discretion, either before or after the appointment of the regular appraisers, appoint other appraisers to act in any given case. Vacancies occurring otherwise than by expiration of term, shall be filled by the appointent of the court or by a judge in vacation. No person interested in any manner in the estate to be appraised may serve as an appraiser of such estate. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 5.]

SEC. 1481-a5. Commission to appraisers—when issued. Whenever it appears that an estate or any property or interest therein is or may be subject to the tax imposed by this act, the clerk shall issue a commission to the appraisers, who shall fix a time and place for appraisement, except that if the only interest that is subject to such tax is a remainder or deferred interest upon which the tax is not payable until the determination of a prior estate or interest for life or term of years, he shall not issue such commission until the determination of such prior estate, except at the request of parties in interest who desire to remove the lien thereon. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 6.]

SEC. 1481-a6. Notice of appraisement—returns filed—appraisement when property is in more than one county. It shall be the duty of all appraisers appointed under the provisions of this act, upon receiving a commission as herein provided, to forthwith give notice to the treasurer of state and other persons known to be interested in the property to be appraised, of the time and place at which they will appraise such property, which time shall not be less than ten days from the date of such notice. The notice shall be served in the same manner as is prescribed for the commencement of civil actions, and if not practicable to serve the notice provided for by statute, they shall apply to the court or a judge thereof in vacation for an order as to notice and upon service of such notice and the making of such appraisement, the said notice, return thereon and appraisement shall be filed with the clerk, and a copy of such appraisement shall at once be filed by the clerk with the treasurer of state. When property is located in more than one county, the appraisers of the county in which the estate is being administered may appraise the whole estate, or those of the several counties may serve for the property within their respective counties or other appraisers be appointed as the district court if in session, or judge thereof in vacation, may direct. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 7.]

SEC. 1481-a7. Objections—when filed—appraisement approved or set aside—appeal. The treasurer of state or any person interested in the estate or property appraised, may, within twenty days thereafter, file objections to said appraisement and give notice thereof as in beginning civil actions, on the hearing of which as an action in equity either party may produce evidence competent or material to the matters therein involved. If upon such hearing the court finds the amount at which the property is appraised is its value on the market in the ordinary course of trade, and the appraisement was fairly and in good faith made, it shall approve such appraisement; but if it finds that the appraisement was made at a greater or less sum than the value of the property in the ordinary course of trade, or that the same was not fairly or in good faith made, it shall set aside the appraisement, appoint new appraisers and so proceed until a fair and good appraisement of the property is made at its value in the market in the ordinary course of trade. The treasurer of state or any one interested in the property appraised may appeal to the supreme court from the order of the district court approving or setting aside any appraisement to which exceptions have been filed. Notice of appeal shall be served within sixty days from the date of the order appealed from, and the appeal shall be perfected in the time now provided for appeals in equitable actions. In case of appeal the appellant, if he is not the treasurer of state, shall give bond to be approved by the clerk of the court, which bond shall provide that the said appellant and sureties shall pay the tax for which the property may by liable with cost of appeal. If upon the hearing of objections to the appraisement the court finds that the property is not subject to the tax, the court shall upon expiration of time for appeal, when no appeal has been taken, order the clerk to enter upon the lien book a cancellation of any claim or lien for taxes. If at the end of twenty days from the filing of the appraisement with the clerk, no objections are filed, the appraisement shall stand approved. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 8.]

SEC. 1481-a8. Transferred property—appraisement of—foreign and domestic—market value—deduction of debts. Within ninety days after the transfer of any property that may be liable for a tax under the provisions of this act, except as herein otherwise provided, the clerk of the proper county upon his own motion or upon the application of the treasurer of state, county attorney, or person interested in the property, shall cause the property to be appraised as provided herein. If there be an estate or property subject to said tax wherein the records in the clerk's office do not disclose that there may be a tax due under the provisions of this act, the person or persons interested in the property shall report the matter to the clerk with an application that the property be appraised. The appraised value of the property shall in all cases be its market value in the ordinary course of trade, and in domestic estates the tax shall be calculated thereon after deducting the debts as defined herein; provided, however, that the debt of a domestic estate owing for or secured by property outside of the state, shall not be deducted before estimating the tax, except when the property for which the debt is owing or by which it is secured is subject to the tax imposed by this act, or when the foreign debt exceeds the value of the property securing it or for which it was contracted, then the excess may be deducted provided that satisfactory proof of the value of the foreign property and the amount of such debt is furnished to the treasurer of state. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 9.]

SEC. 1481-a9. Relief from appraisement. All estates subject in whole or in part to the tax imposed by this act shall be appraised for the purpose of computing said tax by the regular collateral inheritance tax appraisers; provided that estates liable for the payment of the inheritance tax upon specific legacies, annuities, bequests of money or other property the value of which may be determined without appraisement, and estates which consist of money, book accounts, bank deposits, notes, mortgages and bonds, need not be appraised by the collateral inheritance tax appraisers if the administrator, executor or trustee or the persons entitled to or claiming such property are willing to charge themselves with the full face value of such bequests or property, together with the interest, earnings or undivided profits which may be due on said properties, at the time of death of the testator or intestate, as the basis for the assessment of said tax, but in all cases the relief from appraisement for the collateral inheritance tax is dependent upon the consent of the treasurer of state, and the subsequent approval thereof by the court or judge thereof in vacation. In the event that the estate has been duly appraised under the ordinary statutes of inheritance or the property has been sold and such appraisement or selling price is accepted by the treasurer of state as satisfactory for collateral inheritance tax purposes, the court or judge thereof in vacation may, upon proper application, relieve the estate from the appraisement by the collateral inheritance tax appraisers; but in order to obtain such relief, the administrator, executor, trustee or other party interested must file an application for relief with the consent of the treasurer of state thereto in the office of the clerk of the court before said clerk issues a commission to the collateral inheritance tax appraisers. The court or judge thereof in vacation may, upon application of the representatives of the estate or parties interested, relieve the estate of the appraisement for collateral tax purposes if it be shown to said court that the market value of the entire estate will not exceed one thousand dollars; provided, that prior to the application to said court or judge the written consent of the treasurer of state to such relief is procured. In all cases where an estate is relieved from an appraisement for collateral inheritance tax purposes, the order granting relief shall be recorded in the clerk's office, and the fact of such relief and reasons therefor shall be duly noted in the decree or order of final settlement made by the court. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 10.]

SEC. 1481-a10. Remainders in realty after term estates to exempted persons—when appraised. When any person, whose estate over and above the amount of his debts, as defined in this act, exceeds the sum of one thousand dollars, shall bequeath or devise any real property to or for the use of persons exempt from the tax imposed by this act, during life or for a term of years, and the remainder to a collateral heir, said property upon the determination of such estate for life or years, shall be appraised at its then actual market value from which shall be deducted the value of any improvements thereon, or betterments thereto, if any, made by the remainderman during the time of the prior estate, to be ascertained and determined by the appraisers and the tax on the remainder shall be paid by such remainderman as provided in the next succeeding section. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 11.]

SEC. 1481-a11. Life and term estates in realty to those not exempt—appraisement—payment of tax—determination of prior estates—report—tax to be paid by remainderman. Whenever any real property of a decedent shall be subject to such tax and there be an estate or interest for life or term of years given to a party other than those especially exempt by this act, the clerk shall cause such property to be appraised at the actual market value thereof, as is provided in ordinary cases, and the party entitled to such estate or interest shall within one year from the death of decedent owner pay such tax, and in default thereof the court shall order such interest in said estate, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to pay such tax and interest, to be sold. Upon the determination of any prior estate or interest, when the remainder or deferred estate or interest or any part thereof is subject to such tax and the tax upon such remainder or deferred interest has not been paid, the person or persons entitled to such remainder or deferred interest shall immediately report to the clerk of the proper court the fact of the determination of the prior estate, and upon receipt of such report, or upon information from any source, of the determination of any such prior estate when the remainder interest has not been appraised for the purpose of assessing such tax, the clerk shall forthwith issue a commission to the collateral inheritance tax appraisers, who shall immediately proceed to appraise the property as provided in like cases in the next preceding section, and the tax upon such remainder interest shall be paid by the remainderman within one year next after the determination of the prior estate. If such tax is not paid within said time the court shall then order said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay such tax and interest, to be sold. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 12.]

SEC. 1481-a12. Life and term estates in personal property—appraisement—payment of tax. Whenever any personal property shall be subject to the tax imposed by this act and there be an estate or interest for life or term of years given to one or more persons and remainder or deferred estate to others, the clerk shall cause the property so devised or conveyed to be appraised as provided herein in ordinary estates and the value of the several estates or interests so devised or conveyed shall be determined as provided in section seventeen of this act, and the tax upon such estates or interests as are liable for the tax imposed by this act shall be paid to the treasurer of state from the property appraised or by the persons entitled to such estate or interest within eighteen months from the death of the testator, grantor, or donor; provided, however, that payment of the tax upon any deferred estate or remainder interest may be deferred until the determination of the prior estate by the giving of a good and sufficient bond as provided in the next succeeding section. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 13.]

SEC. 1481-a13. Bond to defer payment of tax until determination of prior estate—exception. When in case of deferred estates or remainder interests in personal property or in the proceeds of any real estate that may be sold during the time of a life, term or prior estate, the persons interested who may desire to defer the payment of the tax until the determination of the prior estate, shall file with the clerk of the proper district court a bond as provided herein in other cases, such bond to be renewed every two years until the tax upon such deferred estate is paid. If at the end of any two-year period the bond is not promptly renewed as herein provided and the tax has not been paid, the bond shall be declared forfeited, and the amount thereof be forthwith collected. When the estate of a decedent consists in part of real and in part of personal property, and there be an estate for life or for a term of years to one or more persons and a deferred or remainder estate to others, and such deferred or remainder estate is in whole or in part subject to the tax imposed by this act, if the deferred or remainder estates or interests are so disposed that good and sufficient security for the payment of the tax for which such deferred or remainder estates may be liable can be had because of the lien imposed by this act upon the real property of such estate, then payment of the tax upon such deferred or remainder estates may be postponed until the determination of the prior estate without giving bond as herein required to secure payment of such tax, and the tax shall remain a lien upon such real estate until this tax upon such deferred estate or interest is paid. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 14.]

SEC. 1481-a14. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 15.]

SEC. 1481-a15. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction shall be fined an amount equal to twice the amount of tax, interest and costs for which the estate may be liable, but in no case less than two hundred dollars and imprisoned as the court shall direct, until the fine is paid. Provided, however, that the penalty hereby imposed shall not be enforced, if prior to the removal of such property or the proceeds thereof, the person desiring to effect such removal files with the clerk a bond conditioned upon the payment of the tax, interest and costs, as is provided in the preceding section hereof. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 16.]

SEC. 1481-a16. Determination of value of annuities and life and term estates—basis of computation—release of lien on remainders and reversions. The value of any annuity, deferred estate, or interest,

The taxable value of annuities, life or term, deferred or future estates, shall be computed at the rate of four per cent. per annum of the appraised value of the property in which such estate of interest exists or is founded. Whenever it is desired to remove the lien of the collateral inheritance tax on remainders, reversions, or deferred estates, parties owning the beneficial interest may pay at any time the said tax on the present worth of such interests determined according to the rules herein fixed. Executors, administrators, trustees, or the state treasurer, shall have power to sell so much of the property of the decedent as will enable them to pay said tax, in the same manner as is now provided by law for the sale of such property for the payment of debts of testators or intestates. The treasurer of state may bring, or cause to be brought in his name of office, suit, for the collection of said tax, interest and costs, against the executor, administrator, or trustee, or against the person entitled to property subject to said tax, or upon any bond given to secure payment thereof, either jointly or severally and obtaining judgment may cause execution to be issued thereon as is provided by statute in other cases. The proceedings shall conform as nearly as may be to those for the collection of ordinary debt by suit. If because of necessary litigation or other unavoidable cause of delay enforced payment of the tax hereby imposed, by suit and execution, would result in loss or be to the detriment of the best interests of the estate, the court may extend the time for the payment of the tax. Such extensions of time shall not be granted except in cases where security is given for payment of the tax, interest and costs. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 18.]

Any order contravening the provision of this section shall be void. Upon the filing of such receipt showing payment of the tax, the clerk shall record the same upon the collateral inheritance tax lien book in his office. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 20.]

SEC. 1481-a24. Proofs of amount of tax due—treasurer may demand—assessment without deduction of debts. Before issuing his receipt for the tax, the treasurer of state may demand from administrators, executors, trustees or beneficiaries such information as may be necessary to verify the correctness of the amount of the tax and interest, and when such demand is made they shall send to said treasurer certified copies of wills, deeds, or other papers, or of such parts of their reports as he may demand, and upon the refusal or neglect of said parties to comply with the demand of the treasurer of state, it is the duty of the clerk of the court to comply with such demand, and the expenses of making such copies and transcripts shall be charged against the estate, as are other costs in probate, or the tax may be assessed without deducting debts for which the estate may be liable. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 25.]

necessary to enforce an observance of this section. If it appears from the inventory or report so filed that the real estate or any part of it is subject to an inheritance tax, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator or of any person interested in the property if there be no administration, to cause the lien of the same to be entered upon the lien book in the office of the clerk of the court in each county where each particular tract of said real estate is situated, and when said real estate or any interest therein, is subject to such tax, no conveyance either before or after the entering of said lien, shall discharge the real estate so conveyed from said lien, no final settlement of the account of any executor, administrator or trustee shall be accepted or allowed unless a strict compliance with the provisions of this section has been had by such person. Upon the filing of such report, the clerk of the court shall immediately forward a true copy thereof to the treasurer of state. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 27.]

SEC. 1481-a27. Extension of time of appraisement—complicated estates. Whenever, by reason of the complicated nature of an estate, or by reason of the confused condition of the decedent's affairs, it is impracticable for the executor, administrator, trustee or beneficiary of said estate to file with the clerk of the court a full, complete and itemized inventory of the personal assets belonging to the estate, within the time required by statute for filing inventories of the estates, the court may, upon the application of such representatives or parties in interest, extend the time for making the collateral inheritance appraisement for a period not to exceed three months beyond the time fixed by this act. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 28.]

SEC. 1481-a28. Heirs at law to make report—failure to report does not relieve estate from lien. Whenever any property passing under the intestate laws may be subject to the tax imposed by this act, the person or persons entitled to such property shall make or cause to be made to the clerk of the courts of the county wherein such property is located, within ninety days next following the death of such intestate, a report in writing embodying therein substantially the information required by the second preceding section of this act. Failure to furnish such report or to probate the will in a testate estate shall not relieve the estate from the lien created hereby or the persons entitled to the property of such decedent from payment of the tax, interest or other penalties imposed by this act. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 29.]

SEC. 1481-a29. Entries made by clerk. The clerk shall enter upon the collateral inheritance tax and lien book, the title of all estates subject to the inheritance tax as shown by the inventories or lists of heirs filed in his office, or as reported to him by the county attorney, treasurer of state, or other person, and shall enter in said book as against each estate or title at the appropriate place, all such information relating to the situation and condition of the estate as he may be able to obtain from the papers filed in his office, or from any other source, as may be necessary to the collection and enforcement of the tax. He shall also immediately index in the book kept in his office for that purpose, all liens entered upon the collateral inheritance tax and lien book. Failure to make such entries as are herein required, shall not operate to relieve the estate from the lien or defeat the collection of the tax. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 30.]

SEC. 1481-a30. Probate record. In all cases entered upon the inheritance tax and lien book, the clerk shall make a complete record in the proper probate record, of all the proceedings, orders, reports, inventory, appraisements and all other matters and proceedings therein. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 31.]

SEC. 1481-a31. Clerk to examine probate records and report estates subject to tax—fee. It shall be the duty of each clerk of the district court to make examination from time to time of all reports filed with him by administrators, executors and trustees, pursuant to law; also to make examination of all foreign wills offered for probate or recorded within his county, as well as of the record of deeds and conveyances in the recorder's office of said county, and if from such examination or from information or knowledge coming to him from any other source, he finds or believes that any property within his county, or within the jurisdiction of the district court of said county has, since July fourth, eighteen hundred ninety-six, passed by will or by the intestate laws of this or any other state, or by deed or other method of conveyance, made in anticipation of or intended to take effect, in possession or in enjoyment after the death of the testator, donor or grantor, to any person other than to or for the use of the persons, societies, or organizations exempt from the tax hereby imposed, he shall make report thereof in writing to the treasurer of state, embodying in such report such information as he may be able to obtain as to the name and residence of decedent, date of death, name and address of administrator, executor, or trustee, the description of any property liable to said tax and the county in which it is located and name and relationship of all beneficiaries or heirs. Any citizen of the state having knowledge of property liable to such tax, against which no proceeding for enforcing collection thereof is pending, may report the same to the clerk and it shall be the duty of such officer to investigate the case, and if he has reason to believe the information to be true, he shall forthwith enter the estate and report the same substantially as above indicated. For reporting such estates or property the clerk shall receive a compensation of one dollar for each one hundred dollars or fraction thereof of tax paid, but not to exceed the sum of five dollars in any one estate, the same to be in addition to the compensation now allowed him by law. Except when this information has first been received from another source, the treasurer of state, when he has issued his receipt for the tax in such estate, shall certify to the auditor of state the amount due the clerk for such service and the auditor of state shall issue his warrant on the treasurer of state in favor of said clerk for the sum due as herein provided. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 32.]

SEC. 1481-a32. Duties of county attorney—compensation—other counsel may be employed. It shall be the duty of the county attorney of each county, when directed by the treasurer of state, to perform such legal services as shall be necessary in the enforcement of said tax, but such attorney shall have no authority to receipt for or receive any of such tax. He shall advise and assist the clerk and appraisers in the discharge of their duties in collateral inheritance tax matters, and see that the notices required by law are properly made and returned. In each estate where the county attorney has performed such legal services, he shall receive a compensation as follows, viz.: On the first one hundred dollars or fraction thereof of tax paid, ten per cent.; on the excess of one hundred dollars to five hundred dollars, five per cent.; on the excess of five hundred dollars to one thousand dollars, three per cent.; on all sums in excess of one thousand dollars, one per cent. but not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars from any one estate. Provided, however, that except in cases of litigation requiring the filing of a petition or answer in court, the fee in any case shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars. When the treasurer of state has issued his receipt for the tax in an estate, in which the county attorney has been directed to render legal services, and has performed such services, the treasurer of state shall certify the amount due for such services to the auditor of state, who shall issue his warrant on the treasurer of state in favor of said county attorney for the sum due. If the county attorney is attorney for the executor, administrator or other person interested in the estate, the treasurer of state may employ another attorney to represent the state. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 33.]

SEC. 1481-a33. Conflicting claims for fees—treasurer to adjust. In the event of uncertainty or of conflicting claims as to fees due county attorneys or clerks under this act, the treasurer of state is empowered to determine the amount of fees, to whom payable, and when the same are due, and as far as possible, such determination shall be in accord with fixed rules made by the treasurer of state. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 34.]

SEC. 1481-a34. Regular inspection of records and reports by court—order instituting proceedings. On the first day of each regular term, the court shall require the clerk to present for its inspection the inheritance tax and lien book hereinbefore provided for, together with all reports of administrators, executors and trustees which have been filed pursuant to this act, since the last preceding term. The county attorney shall also attend and make report to the court concerning the progress of all cases pending for the collection of such taxes, together with any other facts, which in his judgment may aid the court in enforcing the general observance of the collateral inheritance tax law. If from information obtained from the records or reports, or from any other source, the court has reason to believe that there is property within its jurisdiction liable to the payment of an inheritance tax, against which proceedings for collection are not already pending, it shall enter an order of record, directing the county attorney to institute such proceedings forthwith. Should any estate, or the name of any grantee or grantees be placed upon the book at the suggestion of the county attorney, the treasurer of state, or other person, in which the papers already on file in the clerk's office do not disclose that an inheritance tax is due or payable, the county attorney shall forthwith give to all parties in interest such notice as the court or judge may prescribe, requiring them to appear on a day to be fixed by the said court or judge, and show cause why the property should not be appraised and subjected to said tax. At any such hearing any person may be required to appear and answer as to his knowledge of any such estate or property. If upon any such hearing the court is satisfied that any property of the decedent or any property devised, granted or donated by him, is subject to the tax, the same proceedings shall be had as in other cases, so far as applicable. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 35.]

SEC. 1481-a35. In all other cases the costs are to be paid as ordered by the court. When a decision adverse to the state has been rendered, with an order that the state pay the costs, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court in which such action was pending to certify the amount of such costs to the treasurer of state, who shall, if said costs be correctly certified, and the case has been finally terminated, and the tax if any due has been paid, present the claim to the executive council to audit, and said claim being allowed by said council, the auditor of state is directed to issue a warrant on the treasurer of state in payment of such costs. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 36.]

SEC. 1481-a36. Securities and assets held by bank or trust company—notice of transfer. No safe deposit company, trust company, bank or other institution, person or persons holding securities or assets of the decedent shall deliver or transfer the same to the executor, administrator or legal representative of said decedent unless the tax for which such securities or assets are liable under this act shall be first paid, or the payment thereof is secured by bond as herein provided. It shall be lawful for and the duty of the treasurer of state personally, or by any person by him duly authorized, to examine such securities or assets at the time of any proposed delivery or transfer. Failure to serve ten days' notice of such proposed transfer upon the treasurer of state or to allow such examination on the delivery of such securities or assets to such executor, administrator or legal representative shall render such safe deposit company, trust company, bank or other institution, person or persons liable for the payment of the tax upon such securities or assets as provided in this act. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 37.]

SEC. 1481-a37. Transfer of corporation stock by foreign executor, administrator or trustee—liability of corporation for tax. If a foreign executor, administrator or trustee shall assign or transfer any corporate stock or obligations in this state standing in the name of a decedent, or in trust for a decedent, liable to such tax, the tax shall be paid to the treasurer of state on or before the transfer thereof; otherwise the corporation permitting its stock to be so transferred shall be liable to pay such tax, interest, and costs, and it is the duty of the treasurer of state to enforce the payment thereof. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 38.]

Such report shall show the name of the owner of such stocks and his place of residence, the name of the person at whose request the stock was transferred, his place of residence and the authority by virtue of which he acted in making such transfer, the name of the person to whom the transfer was made, and the residence of such person; together with such other information as the officers reporting may have relating to estates of persons deceased who may have been owners of stock in such corporation. If it appears that any such stock so transferred is subject to tax under the provisions of this act, and the tax has not been paid, the treasurer of state shall notify the corporation in writing of its liability for the payment thereof, and shall bring suit against such corporation as in other cases herein provided unless payment of the tax is made within sixty days from the date of such notice. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 39.]

SEC. 1481-a39. Foreign estates—deduction of debts. Whenever any property belonging to a foreign estate, which estate in whole or in part passes to persons not exempt herein from such tax, the said tax shall be assessed upon the market value of said property remaining after the payment of such debts and expenses as are chargeable to the property under the laws of this state. In the event that the executor, administrator or trustee of such foreign estate files with the clerk of the court having ancillary jurisdiction, and with the treasurer of state, duly certified statements exhibiting the true market value of the entire estate of the decedent owner, and the indebtedness for which the said estate has been adjudged liable, which statements shall be duly attested by the judge of the court having original jurisdiction, the beneficiaries of said estate shall then be entitled to have deducted such proportion of the said indebtedness of the decedent from the value of the property as the value of the property within this state bears to the value of the entire estate. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 40.]

SEC. 1481-a40. Property in this state belonging to a foreign estate and not specifically devised—how assessed. Whenever any property, real or personal, within this state belongs to a foreign estate and said foreign estate passes in part exempt from the tax imposed by this act and in part subject to said tax and there is no specific devise of the property within this state to direct heirs or if it is within the authority or discretion of the foreign executor, administrator or trustee administering the estate to dispose of the property not specifically devised to direct heirs or devisees in the payment of debts owing by the decedent at the time of his death, or in the satisfaction of legacies, devises, or trusts given to direct or collateral legatees or devisees or in payment of the distributive shares of any direct and collateral heirs, then the property within the jurisdiction of this state, belonging to such foreign estate, shall be subject to the tax imposed by this act, and the tax due thereon shall be assessed as provided in the next preceding section of this act relating to the deduction of the proportionate share of indebtedness. Provided, however, that if the value of the property so situated exceeds the total amount of the estate passing to other persons than those exempt hereby from the tax imposed by this act such excess shall not be subject to said tax. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 41.]

SEC. 1481-a41. Compromise settlement—how effected—discharge of lien. Whenever an estate charged or sought to be charged with the collateral inheritance tax is of such a nature, or is so disposed, that the liability of the estate is doubtful, or the value thereof cannot with reasonable certainty be ascertained under the provisions of law, the treasurer of state may, with the written approval of the attorney-general, which approval shall set forth the reasons therefor, compromise with the beneficiaries or representatives of such estates, and compound the tax thereon; but said settlement must be approved by the district court or judge of the proper court, and after such approval the payment of the amount of the taxes so agreed upon shall discharge the lien against the property of the estate. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 42.]

SEC. 1481-a42. Unknown heirs. Whenever the heirs or persons entitled to any estate or any interest therein, are unknown or their place of residence cannot with reasonable certainty, be ascertained, a tax of five per cent. shall be paid to the treasurer of state upon all such estates or interests, subject to refund as provided herein in other cases; provided, however, that if it be afterwards determined that any estate or interest passes to aliens, there shall be paid within sixty days after such determination and before delivery of such estate or property, an amount equal to the difference between five per centum, the amount paid, and the amount which such person should pay under the provisions of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 43.]

SEC. 1481-a43. Refund of tax improperly paid. When within five years after the payment of the tax, a court of competent jurisdiction may determine that property upon which a collateral inheritance tax has been paid is not subject to or liable for the payment of such tax, or that the amount of tax paid was excessive, so much of such tax as has been overpaid to the treasurer of state shall be returned or refunded to the executor or administrator of such estate, or to those entitled thereto, when a certified copy of the record of such court showing the fact of nonliability of such property to the payment of such tax has been filed with the executive council of the state, the executive council shall if the case has been finally determined issue an order to the auditor of state directing him to issue a warrant upon the treasurer of state to refund such tax. Such order of court shall not be given until fifteen days' notice of the application therefor shall have been given to the treasurer of state of the time and place of the hearing of such application, which notice shall be served in the same manner as provided for original notices. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 44.]

SEC. 1481-a44. Contingent estates—appraisement—refund of excess payment. Estates in expectancy which are contingent or defeasible and in which proceedings for the determination of the tax have not been taken or where the taxation thereof has been held in abeyance, shall be appraised at their full, undiminished value when the persons entitled thereto shall come into the beneficial enjoyment or possession thereof, without diminution for or on account of any valuation theretofore made of the particular estates for purposes of taxation, upon which said estates in expectancy may have been limited. When an estate, devise, or legacy can be divested by the act or omission of the legatee or devisee, it shall be taxed as if there were no possibility of such divesting. When a devise, bequest or transfer is one in part contingent, and in part vested so that the beneficiary will come into possession and enjoyment of a portion of his inheritance on or before the happening of the event upon which the possible defeating contingency is based, a tax shall be imposed and collected upon such bequest or transfer as upon a vested interest, at the highest rate possible under the terms of this act if no such contingency existed; provided, that in the event such contingency reduces the value of the estate or interest so taxed, and the amount of tax so paid is in excess of the tax for which such bequest or transfer is liable upon the removal of such contingency, such excess shall be refunded as is provided in section forty-four of this act in other cases. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 45.]

SEC. 1481-a45. Definitions—construction respecting county attorney. In the construction of this act, the words "collateral heirs" shall be held to mean all persons who are not specifically exempt from the tax imposed by the provisions hereof. The word "person" shall include a plural as well as singular, and artificial as well as natural persons. This act shall not be construed to confer upon a county attorney authority to represent the state in any case, and he shall represent the treasurer of state only when especially authorized by him to do so. This act shall apply to all estates subject to taxation under the law repealed by this act if the tax for which such estates are liable shall not have been paid prior to the taking effect of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 46.]

8. The amount of fees paid for reporting and collecting such tax;
9. The amount of tax, if any refunded.

He shall also keep a separate record of any deferred estate upon which the tax due is not paid within eighteen months from the death of the decedent, showing substantially the same facts as is required in other cases, and also showing:

a. The date and amount of all bonds given to secure the payment of the tax with a list of the sureties thereon;

b. The name of the person beneficially entitled to such estate or interest, with place of residence;

c. A description of the property or a statement of conditions upon which such deferred estate is based or limited. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 47.]

SEC. 1481-a47. Repeal. Chapter four, of title seven, of the supplement to the code, 1907, and chapter ninety-two of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly, and all other acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 68, § 48.]

TITLE VIII.

OF ROADS, BRIDGES AND FERRIES, AND THE DESTRUCTION OF THISTLES.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE ESTABLISHMENT, ALTERATION AND VACATION OF ROADS.

SECTION 1482. Jurisdiction over.

Jurisdiction: The board of supervisors is without jurisdiction to establish a highway within the limits of an incorporated town. Philbrick v. University Place, 106–352, 76 N. W. 742.

The action of the board of supervisors in vacating a portion of a highway cannot be questioned by mandamus against a road supervisor to compel him to remove obstructions from the portion of the highway vacated. Sullivan v. Robbins, 109–235, 80 N. W. 340.

The fact that the board vacates a portion of the highway so as to leave the remainder less than forty feet in width is not such an irregularity as can be taken advantage of in a collateral proceeding. Ibid.

The right to the highway vests in the public generally, and but for statutory provisions giving the board of supervisors power to establish, maintain and discontinue highways, such power would be in the state, which is the representative of the general public. Dickinson County v. Fouse, 112–21, 83 N. W. 804.

The board is given general supervision of the highways in the county and the provision of § 1524 for the construction of cattle ways with permission, impliedly prohibits the construction of such way without its permission. Davis v. Pickerell, 139–186, 117 N. W. 276.

While the board has supervision of the roads of the county its members are not liable for an injury due to failure to repair. Nolan v. Reed, 139–68, 117 N. W. 25.

The board of supervisors may bind the county as to a highway by estoppel or abandonment. Quinn v. Monona County, 140–105, 117 N. W. 1100.

Dedication: The execution and filing with the county judge of an instrument giving or offering to give a right of way for a highway which was thereafter abandoned, held sufficient to show a dedication. Agne v. Seitsinger, 104–482, 73 N. W. 1048.

No particular form is necessary for the dedication of land for a highway, the vital question as against the owner being whether the animus dedicandi may be inferred from the facts proven; and held that the signature of the owner to a petition to the board of supervisors to lay out a highway was admissible as tending to show an intent to dedicate, although the board of supervisors was without jurisdiction in the matter. Philbrick v. University Place, 106–352, 76 N. W. 742.

While it is well settled that the dedication of a highway or street must be accepted to be effectual, nevertheless the public or a city or town may be estopped by its conduct to open a street or highway which has been closed or occupied for many years by a private person under a claim of right. Uptagraff v. Smith, 106–385, 76 N. W. 733.

To establish a highway by prescription there must be a general uninterrupted public use under a claim of right, continued for the statutory period. The mere fact that neighbors and those owning adjoining lands were permitted to use the way for hauling wood and otherwise, is not sufficient to show a dedication to public use. Fairchild v. Stewart, 117–734, 89 N. W. 1075.

Evidence in a particular case held not sufficient to show dedication of a highway. Fountain v. Keen, 116–406, 90 N. W. 82.

No particular form of dedication is necessary and any act clearly indicating the intention to set apart lands for the use of the public as a highway constitutes a sufficient dedication. But mere dedication without acceptance by the public is not sufficient to create a highway. Carter v. Barkley, 137–510, 115 N. W. 21.

To constitute a highway by dedication an intent to dedicate must clearly appear and the act relied upon to prove such intent must be unequivocal and convincing. O'Malley v. Dillenbeck Lumber Co., 141–186, 119 N. W. 601.

Adverse possession: Mere nonuser will not operate to discontinue a legally established highway unless there has been such long continued adverse possession or transfer of the land by purchase and sale as that justice demands the public should be estopped from asserting the right to open it up. Bradley v. Appanoose County, 106–105, 76 N. W. 519.

Where an adjacent owner fenced up the highway, claiming that it had been discontinued by reason of proceedings to relocate, and had exclusive possession by virtue of such acts, continued for ten years, held that the public was barred from asserting any rights thereto. Rector v. Christy, 114–471, 87 N. W. 489.

Acquiescence of county or township officers in the adverse possession of a lawful highway is not binding upon the public. Weikamp v. Jungers, 150–292, 129 N. W. 953.

The statute of limitations does not run against the public on account of adverse possession of a highway, but the public may be estopped by total abandonment for a period of ten years or more where private rights have been acquired by adverse claim. McElroy v. Hite, 154–453, 135 N. W. 20.

Adverse possession of a portion of a highway by enclosing such portion within a fence and maintaining such inclosure for ten years will not give title to such portion of the highway as against the public. Ford v. Doolittle, 157–210, 138 N. W. 397.

SEC. 1483. Width. That section fourteen hundred eighty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Roads hereafter established, unless otherwise fixed by the board, shall be at least sixty-six feet wide, and in no case less than forty; within these limits they may be increased or diminished in width, altered in direction, or vacated, by pursuing the course prescribed in this chapter; provided, however, that said board may locate and establish consent roads, at its discretion, at a minimum width of not less than thirty feet." [32 G. A., ch. 64; C. '73, §921; R. §§ 820, 821; C. '51, §§ 515, 516.]

Where there is no record as to the width of the highway established, it will be presumed that it is sixty-six feet in width. Biglow v. Ritter, 131–213, 108 N. W. 218.

A highway by prescription may be of less width than sixty-six feet, if the evidence shows the use to have been restricted to a less width. Haan v. Meester, 132–709, 109 N. W. 211.

In view of the statutory provision as to the width of highways, it is not necessary to recite the width in a proceeding for establishment. Quinn v. Baage, 138–426, 114 N. W. 205.

SEC. 1487. Expediency.

Where the opening of a road will require the removal of buildings, the property owner, having due notice, may waive objection to the opening of the highway on that ground and claim compensation by way of damages. Stronsky v. Hickman, 116–651, 88 N. W. 825.

The expediency of vacating a highway is for the board and is not reviewable on certiorari. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

SEC. 1488. Report.

Although the board may be without jurisdiction to proceed with the establishment of a proposed road after an adverse report by the commissioner, nevertheless it will not be without jurisdiction to entertain an entirely new proceeding instituted by the filing of a new petition for the establishment of a new road on the same line or route contemplated by the first petition. Lawrence v. Williams, 146–671, 125 N. W. 656.

SEC. 1489. Survey made—commissioner sworn.

It is only when the precise location cannot be given otherwise in his report that the commissioner is bound to cause the line thereof to be surveyed and plainly marked. Palmer v. Clark, 114–558, 87 N. W. 502.

SEC. 1495. Notice served. Within twenty days after the day is fixed by the auditor as above provided, a notice shall be served on each owner of land lying in the proposed road, or abutting thereon, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, who resides in the county, in the manner provided for the service of original notices. If the owner of the land as thus shown does not reside in the county, similar notice shall be served upon any person who is in the actual occupancy of such land. In any case, notice shall be published, once each week, for four weeks in some newspaper printed in the county. The notice may be in the following form:

To all whom it may concern: The commissioner appointed to locate, vacate, or alter (as the case may be) a road commencing at.....in..... county, running thence (describe in general terms all the points as in the commissioner's report, giving the names of the owners of the land through which the proposed road passes as they appear upon the transfer books of the auditor's office) and terminating at ....., has reported in favor of the establishment, vacation, or alteration thereof, and all objections thereto, or claims for damages, must be filed in the auditor's office on or before noon of the ..... day of ....., A. D. ....., or such road will be established, vacated, or altered without reference thereto.

County Auditor.

[30 G. A., ch. 2, § 4; 19 G. A., ch. 109; C. '73, § 936.]

The notice required by this section is for the purpose of giving the owners of land living or abutting on the road an opportunity to object to the establishment or vacation thereof, or to present their claims for damages. One who has signed a petition asking that action be taken cannot object for want of notice to him. Sullivan v. Robbins, 109–235, 80 N. W. 340.

Where the property owner has due notice he may interpose the objection that the opening of the highway will necessitate the removal of buildings, or he may waive that objection and demand compensation by way of damages. Stronsky v. Hickman, 116–651, 88 N. W. 825.

A notice to nonresidents of the establishment of a highway which is such as might have been authorized by the legislature may be made sufficient by a legalizing act, although not sufficient under the statute in force when it was given. Fair v. Buss, 117–164, 90 N. W. 527.

A general order of the board of supervisors for the opening of highways along all section lines in the county with notice simply "to whom it may concern" is insufficient and the subsequent abandonment of one of the highways claimed to have been thus established may be shown. Hatch v. Barnes, 124–251, 99 N. W. 1072.

The defect in the proceeding is not cured by a subsequent legalizing act. Ibid.

It is not necessary to serve notice on owners whose interests do not appear on the transfer books. Berger v. Tracy, 135–597, 113 N. W. 465.

Where the parties appear, the board of supervisors has jurisdiction in a proceeding to vacate a highway whether there has been service of notice or not. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

SEC. 1501. Final action.

The board of supervisors has discretion in determining whether a highway shall be established, even where its establishment is asked by consent. Perry v. Board of Supervisors, 133–281, 110 N. W. 591.

The board having acquired jurisdiction to establish a highway, every presumption thereafter is in favor of the legality of its proceedings. Biglow v. Ritter, 131–213, 108 N. W. 218.

Where the establishment of a highway is ordered by the board of supervisors on condition that the costs and damages be paid by the petitioner, it does not become a legal highway until such conditions are complied with. Kirkhart v. Roberts, 123–137, 98 N. W. 562.

Where the highway is established by the board on condition and that a specified requirement be complied with, no further action of the board is necessary. McElroy v. Hite, 154–453, 135 N. W. 20.

A highway established by an unauthorized general order for the establishment of highways along all county section lines and without proper notice may be subsequently abandoned so that a legalizing act will not render the original establishment valid. Hatch v. Barnes, 124–251, 99 N. W. 1072.

While an alteration of the road may involve the discontinuance of that part which is altered, it will not result in discontinuance of a portion of the old road which is not rendered unnecessary by reason of the change. Rector v. Christy, 114–471, 87 N. W. 489.

The right to vacate a public highway is different from that of a city to vacate a street which it has accepted by dedication. Long v. Wilson, 119–267, 93 N. W. 282.

A highway outside of the limits of a city or town can only be vacated by the order of the county board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Omaha & Council Bluffs R. & B. Co., 125–133, 100 N. W. 63.

The owner of land abutting on a highway is entitled to recover from the county the damage that he has sustained by reason of the vacation of such highway. (Overruling Brady v. Shinkle, 40–576 and other cases.) McCann v. Clarke County, 149–13, 127 N. W. 1011.

Where a road as laid out is impassable and is never improved, it should after a lapse of many years be regarded as abandoned and the county will be estopped from asserting any claim under the original location. Heller v. Cahill, 138–301, 115 N. W. 1009.

A highway which has been duly and legally established may be abandoned by the public and its rights therein lost. Lucas v. Payne, 141–592, 120 N. W. 59.

SEC. 1503. Record.

A proposed highway described as commencing at a specified section corner and proceeding along the section line is sufficiently located, the line described being presumed to be the center of the highway. Quinn v. Baage, 138–426, 114 N. W. 205.

A record of the auditor's certificate to the township clerk and the clerk's directions to the road supervisors are not essential to the validity of the establishment of the highway. Ibid.

SEC. 1507. Streets in villages.

When the incorporation of a town has been abandoned the control of the streets and alleys reverts to the board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

SEC. 1508. In cities or towns.

The statutory provisions as to highways relate to the streets of cities and towns so far as they are applicable. Newton v. Board of Supervisors, 135–27, 112 N. W. 167.

The streets of a city or town plat are county highways and on the termination of the corporate capacity of the city or town pass completely under the control of the board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

SEC. 1509. By trustees of state institutions. The trustees or board of regents or board of control of the institutions belonging to the state may vacate, alter, change or establish public highways through the lands belonging to the state, and for the use of such institutions, as the said board of trustees or board of regents or board of control may deem for the best interests of the state and the public, subject, however, to the approval of the board of supervisors of the county, or the city council of the city, wherein such lands are situated. [33 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 45, § 1.]

SEC. 1510. County line roads.

A highway cannot be considered as established by joint action of two boards of supervisors where the action of each board is independent in character and in fact separated from that of the other board by a considerable interval of time. Lamansky v. Williams, 125–578, 101 N. W. 445.

While the statute does not expressly mention bridges in connection with the provisions for county line roads to be established by the joint action of the boards of supervisors of two adjoining counties, the provisions of such statute are equally applicable to the proceedings under code § 424 to construct a bridge across an unnavigable stream which is the boundary line of the counties. Bremer County v. Walstead, 130–164, 106 N. W. 352.

SEC. 1511. General control—concurrent action.

The fact that the boards of supervisors of adjoining counties have each, by independent action, established highways in their respective counties which are continuous with each other, does not necessitate joint action of the two boards in the vacation of that portion of the continuous highway located in one county. Lamansky v. Williams, 125–578, 101 N. W. 445.

The fact that the same petition for vacation was presented to the two boards does not preclude final action being taken by one board with reference to the portion of the highway located in its county, in case the independent action of such board would in itself be proper. Ibid

SEC. 1513. Appeals—from what taken.

The appeal in a proceeding for the establishment of a highway is from the final decision of the board. While the damages are assessed in the first instance by the appraisers, the finding may be reviewed by the board and the damages be increased or diminished. Henderson v. Calhoun County, 129–119, 105 N. W. 383.

Appeal does not lie from the order establishing a highway, but only from the award of damages. In re Application of Dugan, 129–241, 105 N. W. 514.

A notice of appeal will be liberally construed, and if it is sufficiently definite for a reasonably certain identification of the judgment, order or decision appealed from, it is good. Ibid.

SEC. 1516. Proceedings in court.

It is only upon a matter of damages that a claimant is entitled to a jury trial in road cases. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

SEC. 1520. Proceedings—record.

The record of a second survey is not sufficient to establish a relocation of the highway where the surveyor does not make use of the field notes of the highway as originally established and the field notes attached to his survey do not purport to be those of a resurvey. Caulkins v. Ward, 127–609, 103 N. W. 956.

SEC. 1524. Cattle ways across highways.

The permission of the board contemplated by this section is not general or continuing but has reference to a particular way and when granted and acted upon furnishes no authority for another at a different place. Davis v. Pickerell, 139–186, 117 N. W. 276.

SEC. 1527-a. Encroachment of streams—purchase or condemnation of land. The board of supervisors at any regular meeting shall have the power to purchase or provide for the condemnation of, pay for out of the county bridge fund, enter upon and take any land necessary for the purpose of preventing the encroachment of a navigable or nonnavigable stream on a public highway, and for the purpose of straightening or altering a public highway when any such stream has encroached thereon, or some other condition in the highway exists that would, in the judgment of the board, render it necessary or advisable to straighten or alter the same, and the proceedings for condemnation of land as contemplated in this act shall be in accordance with the provisions relating to taking private property for works of internal improvement. [32 G. A., ch. 65.]

SEC. 1527-b. Water mains—supervisors may grant use to municipality for construction of—damages. Upon application to the board of supervisors of any county by any municipality for permission to construct its water mains and lay its pipes in the public highway from such municipality to its reservoir, the said board may grant the same upon condition that it shall not in any manner interfere with the public travel. The applicant shall be responsible for all damages that may arise from such construction, or from the same not being kept in repair. [32 G. A., ch. 66.]

SEC. 1527-c. Electric light and power transmission—supervisors may grant use—regulations—notice—damages. The board of supervisors of any county may, upon written application designating the particular highways, the use of which is desired, grant to any person or corporation engaged in the manufacture of electric light and power the right to erect and maintain poles and wires, for the purpose of conducting electricity for lighting, heat and power purposes, in any public highway in their county for a period not to exceed twenty years, subject to the following conditions and such further reasonable regulations as the legislature or the board of supervisors may hereafter prescribe: The grantee shall in no case have the exclusive right to use such highway for the conducting of the electricity. The poles and fixtures shall be so constructed as to not incommode the public in the use of any road or the navigation of any stream. When any road along which such lines have been constructed shall be changed, the person or corporation shall, upon ninety days' notice in writing, remove said lines to said road as established. The grantee shall use only strong and proper wires, properly insulated, attached to strong and sufficient supports and insulated at all points of attachment. They shall replace all wires with new wires whenever by ordinary wear or other causes they are no longer safe, and remove all wires, the use of which is abandoned. They shall properly insulate every wire carrying electric light, heat or power currents where it enters a building and within such building so as to avoid danger from fires. Where such wires are carried across or under wires used for other service, there shall be suspended under or over said power, heat or light service lines, properly constructed and insulated guard nets, or shall be protected by such other equally efficient devices as will prevent contact with such other service lines, in case of sagging or breaking of such wires. After July first, nineteen hundred and nine, no such grant shall be made until notice of the hearing of said application shall be published once each week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper printed and published in the county seat, and of general circulation in said county, stating the time when said application will be acted upon and designating the particular highways named in said application. The grantees shall be responsible for all damages that may arise from such construction and operation under this grant or from a failure to comply with said provisions. [33 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.]

SEC. 1527-d. Failure to comply with regulations—penalty. Any person or corporation having received a grant as above stated who fails to comply with the provisions of the preceding section shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars. [33 G. A., ch. 94, § 2.]

SEC 1527-e. Gas mains and pipes—supervisors may grant use—damages. Upon application to the board of supervisors of any county by any individual or corporation engaged, in any city or town, in the manufacture and distribution of gas for heating and illuminating purposes, asking permission to lay its mains and pipes in the public highways outside of such municipality for the purpose of supplying consumers beyond the territorial limits of the municipality in which the manufacturing plant of such individual or corporation is located, said board may grant the same upon such conditions as it may prescribe, but in all cases such mains and pipes shall be so laid as to not, in any manner, interfere with public travel or with the working of the public highway. The location of pipes and mains shall be changed upon reasonable notice whenever such change shall be made necessary by the working or improvement of the highway. The applicant shall be responsible for all damages that may arise from the construction or maintenance of such mains and pipes, and for any damages that may arise from the same not being kept in a proper state of repair. [34 G. A., ch. 69, § 1.]

SEC. 1527-f. Permanent improvement districts—how established—assessment of cost. The board of supervisors of any county shall have jurisdiction, power and authority at any regular, special or adjourned session, to establish permanent road improvement district or districts and to cause to be constructed as hereinafter provided, by grading, guttering and curbing and paving or macadamizing permanent highways, and to provide for the making and reconstruction of any such highway improvement and to assess not less than fifty per cent. of the cost thereof on abutting or adjacent property as provided in this act. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.]

SEC. 1527-g. Petition—survey—notice. Such highway improvement district may be ordered or established whenever a petition of persons residents in the county owning a majority of the acres of land within said proposed improvement district shall be first filed in the office of the county auditor, setting forth the necessity for the same, the starting point, route and terminus, and the lands to be included within said district. The auditor shall thereupon place a copy of the petition in the hands of the county surveyor or a competent engineer, as selected by the board, who shall make a survey of the proposed improvement and return a plat and profile thereof to the auditor, which return shall set forth a full and detailed description thereof, its availability, necessity and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land owned by different persons within said proposed improvement district and such other lands as in his opinion should be included, with such other facts as he may deem material, which shall be submitted to the board for its approval. If said report is approved the board shall direct the auditor immediately thereafter to cause notice in writing to be served on the owner of each tract of land within said improvement district who is a resident of the county, of the pendency and prayer of said petition and of the recommendations of the engineer and the session of the board of supervisors at which the same will be heard, which notice shall be served ten days prior to said session, in the same manner that original notices are required to be served. In case any such owner is a nonresident of the county, such notice as to him shall be published once each week for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county, proof thereof being made by affidavit as in case of legal notices published in newspapers, and like notice shall be served on those in possession of said land and mortgages of record, which proof shall be filed with the board and the expense of said service shall be paid out of the money collected by the tax herein provided. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 2.]

SEC. 1527-h. Order of location by board. The board at the session set for hearing said petition shall thereupon proceed to establish and determine the petition and if necessary view the premises and if they shall find that said proposed improvement is a necessary improvement they shall locate and establish the same on the route specified in the plat and return of the county surveyor or engineer but no such improvement shall be made or ordered unless the same starts at some county seat or other business center or unless said district connects with some improvement district which has already been ordered by the said supervisors within the county in which said improvement district is asked to be established. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 3.]

SEC. 1527-i. Division into sections. When the board shall have established said improvement it shall divide the same into suitable sections, and prescribe the time within which work upon each section shall be begun and completed. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 4.]

SEC. 1527-j. Contracts—bids advertised for—bond—failure to fulfill—forfeit. The auditor shall cause notice to be given of the time and place of letting the contracts and the time fixed for its completion, by a publication once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in said county and shall let it upon each separate section to the lowest bidder therefor, who shall be required to execute a bond with sufficient sureties, in an amount equal to twenty per cent. of the estimated cost of the work so let, or deposit such amount in cash with the auditor as security for the performance of his contract. When the work shall have been completed the engineer in charge shall furnish the contractor an estimate of the amount of work done under the contract and the cost thereof, which said estimate he shall also file with the county auditor and when said work has been approved by the engineer and board of supervisors, the auditor shall issue a warrant on the treasurer for the portion of the expense of said improvement to be paid by the said county and the balance shall be paid out of the special taxes levied upon the improvement district as provided by this act. If any person to whom a portion of said work has been let shall fail to perform the same as and in the time specified in his contract, the cash deposited by him shall be forfeited to or the penalty named in the bond may be recovered in an action thereon by the county auditor for the benefit of the improvement district on said contract as liquidated damages and it shall be relet by the auditor in the manner as hereinbefore provided. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 5.]

SEC. 1527-k. Compensation of engineer—other fees and costs. The engineer shall be allowed for his services such sum as may be fixed by the board of supervisors and all other fees or costs shall be the same as is provided for by law for like services in relation thereto, all of which, together with damages assessed, shall be paid out of the county treasury from the funds collected for that purpose, upon the order of the county auditor. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 6.]

SEC. 1527-l. Commissioners—powers and duties—apportionment of cost—hearing—assessment—compensation. When any improvement district has been located and established as provided in this act or when it shall be necessary to cause the same to be repaired the board of supervisors shall appoint three persons, one of whom shall be a competent civil engineer and two of whom shall be resident freeholders of the county, not living within the township or townships where the improvement is or is to be located and not interested therein or in a like question nor related to any party whose land is affected thereby, who shall inspect and classify all the lands benefited by the proposed improvement and shall make an equitable apportionment of the costs, expenses, cost of construction and fees assessed for the construction of said improvement, or repairing or reopening the same and make report thereof in writing to the board of supervisors and file the same with the county auditor who shall immediately thereafter fix a time for hearing the objections thereto before the board of supervisors and cause to be served upon the owner of each tract of land or lot described in said report, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, notice in writing of the filing and pendency of said report, the amount of special assessment apportioned to such owner, the day set for hearing the same, and that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor on or before noon of the day set for such hearing, which notice as to residents of the county shall be served not less than ten days prior to the day set for such hearing, in the same manner that original notices are required to be served, and as to nonresidents of the county such notice shall be served by publishing the same in some newspaper published in the county, in the same manner as for notices of improvement districts. When the day set for hearing has arrived the board of supervisors shall proceed to hear all objections made and filed to said report and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment made in said report or any part thereof as may appear to the board to be just and equitable, which apportionment shall be assessed among the owners of the land within said improvement district to be benefited thereby and in proportion to the benefit to each of them and levied upon the lands of the owners so benefited in such proportions and collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected for county purposes, and when so collected shall be kept separate from other county funds and shall be paid out only for purposes properly connected with such improvement on the order of the board of supervisors. The engineer shall receive for each day's services while so engaged five dollars and the other commissioners shall each receive two dollars per day, to be paid out of the funds so collected; provided, however, that not to exceed fifty per cent. of the entire cost of the improvement shall be paid by the said assessment on the property within said improvement district, the balance of the cost of said improvement to be paid by the county out of the funds hereinafter provided in this said act. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 7.]

SEC. 1527-m. Appeal. An appeal may be taken to the district court from the order of the board in fixing the assessment upon lands in the same manner appeals may be taken in the location of roads and within the same time, but on such appeal it shall not be competent to show that the lands assessed were not benefited by the improvement. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 8.]

SEC. 1527-n. Special assessments—how levied and collected—payable in installments. The special assessment for benefits made by the commissioners appointed for that purpose, as corrected and approved by the board of supervisors, shall be levied at one time by the board against the property so benefited, and when levied and certified shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer. If the owner of any parcel of land, lot or premises against which any such levy shall have been made and certified, which is embraced in any certificate provided for in this section, shall within thirty days from the time of such assessment promise and agree in writing endorsed upon such certificate or in a separate agreement, that in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments he will not make any objections of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment of benefits or levy of such tax upon and against his property, but will pay said assessment with interest thereon at such rate, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as shall be prescribed by resolution of the board, such tax so levied against the land, lot or premises of such owner shall be payable in ten equal installments, the first of which with interest on the whole assessment shall mature and be payable on the dates of such assessment, and the others with interest on the whole amount unpaid annually thereafter at the same time and in the same manner as the March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes but where no such terms and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any land, lot or premises, the whole of said special assessment, so levied upon and against the property of such owner, shall mature at one time and be due and payable with interest from the date of such assessment and shall be collected at the next succeeding March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes. All of said taxes with interest shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after maturity and shall bear the same rate [of] interest with the same penalty as ordinary taxes. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 9.]

SEC. 1527-o. Recall of assessment and levy—new proceedings. Where the assessment and levy on account of any highway improvement has been made by the board of supervisors of any county under the provisions of this act without notice or legal notice to the owner of the land affected thereby and the whole or any part thereof remains unpaid, the board of supervisors shall have the authority to recall the assessment or levy thus made without notice and proceed anew as provided in this act to apportion and levy the cost of such improvement among the owners and upon the lands benefited thereby, taking as a basis the original apportionment and report of the commissioners upon which the board had theretofore acted and the new assessment and levy made upon notice and hearing in such cases shall be certified by the county auditor to the county treasurer, reëntered upon the tax list and collected as other taxes for county purposes, and all payments made under the prior assessment and levy shall be credited upon the new assessment and levy. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 10.]

SEC. 1527-p. Invalid bonds or proceedings—tax recalled—reassessment and relevy. When any improvement district is or shall hereafter be established by any board of supervisors of this state and contract or contracts let therefor and the improvement wholly or partly constructed, the improvement bonds issued on account thereof and the proceedings or taxes therefor have been or shall be for any cause found invalid and the board of supervisors has found or shall find that said improvement will be a public improvement and for the convenience and welfare, such board is authorized to provide for the completion of the work and the payment therefor and for the payment of the work already done and of the improvement certificates issued and to that end shall recall the tax already levied and shall reascertain the costs and expenses of such improvement and after a notice and hearing as provided in this act shall assess and levy the same upon the lands benefited thereby and the said board and other county officers shall proceed as provided by the sections heretofore provided in this act. Such reassessment and relevy of taxes shall be in proportion to and not in excess of benefits, and all taxes theretofore paid upon such improvement shall be credited as provided in this act. Such assessment shall fix the proportion for all future levies on account of such improvement or repair of the same and may be levied in one year or apportioned among a series of years and improvement certificates issued therefor as provided for in this act and appeals may be taken as provided in this said act. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 11.]

SEC. 1527-q. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 12.]

SEC. 1527-r. Not applicable if certain levy is made. The provisions of this act shall not be applicable, nor shall any levy be made hereunder by the board of supervisors if the levy provided for in section fifteen hundred thirty of the supplement to the code, 1907, is made by the board of supervisors as therein provided. [33 G. A., ch. 95, § 13.]

OF THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

SECTION 1527-s. Members—term—removal—office—counsel. The office of the state highway commission is hereby located at the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts. Said commission shall be composed of three members, one of which shall be the dean of engineering of said college, and the other two members of the commission shall be appointed by the governor immediately upon taking effect of this act, from different political parties for the period of two and four years, from July first, nineteen hundred thirteen, and terms of office shall thereafter be four years. Such commission when appointed shall fill the interim between the taking effect of this act and July first, nineteen hundred thirteen. Each commissioner shall be subject to removal from office as provided by chapter[1] seventy-seven, laws of the thirty-third general assembly. If for any reason, a vacancy occurs in the membership appointed by the governor, he shall fill such vacancy for the remainder of the unexpired term, from the same political party from which the vacancy occurred. The attorney-general shall act as attorney for the commission, and shall advise them upon all legal questions arising with reference to the duties of said commission. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

The total compensation to such commissioner shall not exceed ten hundred dollars per annum. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

SEC. 1527-s2. Duties. The duties of said commission shall be:

1. To devise and adopt plans of highway construction and maintenance suited to the needs of the different counties of the state, and furnish standard plans to the counties in accordance therewith.
2. To disseminate information and instruction to county supervisors and other highway officers, answer inquiries and advise such supervisors and officers on questions pertaining to highway improvements, construction and maintenance and of reasonable prices for materials and construction.
3. To keep a record of all important operations of the highway commission and to annually report the same to the governor by the first day of December, which report shall be printed as a public document.
4. To appoint such assistants as are necessary to carry on the work of the commission, define the duties and fix the compensation of each, and terminate at will the terms of employment of all employes, provide for necessary bonds, and fix the amount of same.
5. To make investigation as to conditions in any county, and to report any violation of duty, either of commission or omission, to the attorney-general, who shall take such steps as are deemed advisable by him to correct the same.
6. The state highway commission shall have general supervision of the various county and township officers named in this act in the performance of the duties here enjoined, and shall have full power and authority to enforce the provisions of this act.
7. To perform all other duties required by law. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 3.] [30 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

SEC. 1527-s3. Engineers—employment of by supervisors—term—bonds—designation of roads in county road system. The board of supervisors of each county, within thirty days from the taking effect of this act, or as soon thereafter as practicable, shall employ a competent engineer or engineers, whose tenure of office may be terminated by the highway commission, who shall perform the duties as hereinafter provided, and who shall be employed for such length of time and at such compensation as may be fixed by the board of supervisors, and to be paid out of the county fund. Said engineer, or engineers, shall give bonds for the faithful performance of their duties in a sum not less than one thousand dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars. At the time of employing such engineer, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the board shall designate and select from the highways of the county not less than ten per cent. nor more than fifteen per cent. of the total mileage, same to be the main traveled roads of the county, and which must connect the principal market places of the county, as well as connect with the county roads in adjoining counties. The system of road construction herein provided shall apply only to highways outside of the limits of cities and towns, while the system of bridge and culvert work herein provided for shall apply to all highways throughout the county outside of the limits of cities of the first class. Such highways so designated for improvement under the supervision of the board of supervisors shall hereafter be known as the county road system. [35 G. A., ch. 123, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 122, § 4.]

SEC. 1527-s4. Maps of county roads—petition for change—forwarding to commission. As soon as said county roads are so designated, the board of supervisors shall cause said county roads to be plainly marked on a map, to be furnished by the state highway commission. Said map, after being so marked, shall be deposited with the county auditor, and shall be open to public inspection. At once, upon filing said map, the county auditor shall fix a date of hearing thereon, which shall not be more than twenty days distant from the date of filing same; and ten days' notice of the filing of said map with the county auditor and the date of hearing fixed, shall be published in one issue of each of the official county papers. At any time before said hearing is concluded, any ten freeholders of the county may file a petition with the county auditor, asking for any change in said designated roads which may be deemed advisable, which petition shall set forth their reasons for the proposed change, and shall be accompanied by a plat correctly showing such proposed change. If no agreement is reached between the county board and the petitioners at the hearing above provided for, the county auditor shall forward said map, together with all petitions and plats, if any, showing the proposed changes, to the state highway commission. If no objections are filed and no hearing had, or if agreements have been reached, the map shall nevertheless be forwarded to the state highway commission. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 5.]

SEC. 1527-s5. Approval by commission—return to auditor. The state highway commission shall, upon receipt of said maps, petitions and plats, proceed to examine the same, with a view of determining the correct lines to be followed by the county highway, having regard for volume of traffic, continuity and cost of construction. Such portions of said map as meet with the approval of said commission may be approved and returned as a preliminary map for immediate use and the original map, when completed in accordance with the decisions of said commission (which decisions shall be final), shall be returned to the county auditor not later than March first, nineteen hundred fourteen, and a copy of same retained in the office of the highway commission. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 6.]

SEC. 1527-s6. Failure to designate—commission shall act—cost charged to county. Should any county fail to make the designation of county roads, as herein provided, and fail to forward the same to the state highway commission within the time herein provided, said commission shall have the power to make a proper designation of said county roads for said county, and the designation so made shall be final and of the same force and effect as if made by the board of supervisors, and when so made by the commission, said commission shall certify to the county auditor of said county the actual cost of making said designation, and said county auditor shall thereupon issue warrant on the county road funds therefor. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 7.]

SEC. 1527-s7. Division of roads by engineer—survey and report—county road book—reports—witness corners. As soon as any part of said approved map is returned to the county auditor, showing the final designation of county roads, the engineer shall, in writing, divide said roads into sections, designating each section by some appropriate number, name or letter and clearly designating the starting point and terminus of each such section,[1] and such designation shall be recorded at length in a county road book, whereupon the engineer shall proceed to survey said roads and report to the board of supervisors the plan for the road, bridge, tile and culvert work thereon. Such survey and report shall be on the basis and with the object in view of the permanent improvement of said county roads, both as to bridge, culvert, tile and road work. Said survey and report shall consist of an accurate plan and profile of said roads, showing cuts and fills and outline of grades, with careful attention to surface, and lateral drainage and subdrainage, and shall show the location of all lines of tile and size thereof and of all bridges and culverts, their length, height and width, and foundation soundings, and an estimate of the watershed relating to each bridge and culvert. Culverts constructed under the provisions of this act shall have a clear roadway of not less than twenty feet. Proper bench marks shall be established on each permanent bridge and culvert, which shall be duly recorded on both profile and plan of road, for future reference. The engineer shall clearly designate and credit on said plan and profile all existing permanent bridges, culverts and grades. The board may cause all sections to be fully surveyed and a report made thereon before proceeding with the improvement contemplated by this act, or, in order to enable the board to proceed with the most necessary and urgent work, said board may designate the order in which the different sections shall be surveyed and planned, and may order the engineer to survey and report on certain named sections before completing the survey and report on all sections. Whenever it may become necessary in grading the highways to make a cut which will disturb or destroy, or a fill which will cover up a government or other established corner, it shall be the duty of the engineer to establish permanent witness corners, and make a record of the same, which shall show the distance and direction the witness corner is from the corner disturbed or covered up. A failure to perform this duty shall subject the engineer to a fine of not less than ten dollars, nor more than fifty dollars, to be collected on his bond. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 8.]

[1]"sections" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1527-s8. Survey and report—submission to and approval by commission—construction and classification of work—funds. The survey and report of each section, as soon as completed and approved by the board of supervisors, shall be submitted to the state highway commission, and the board of supervisors may designate to the said commission which sections, in their estimation, should be first passed upon by said state highway commission. The said commission is hereby charged with the duty of passing upon such reports and plans, and, in so doing, shall take into consideration the thoroughness, feasibility and practicability of such plans, and may approve or modify the same. After said survey and plan for each section is passed upon by the state highway commission, they shall be returned to the county auditor with full and explicit directions as to modifications, if there be any. The county auditor shall, upon receipt of the approved and modified survey and plans, record the same at length in a county road book, and the board of supervisors shall thereupon proceed to the construction of the road, bridge, tile and culvert work in accordance therewith, and as herein provided. The duty to construct and maintain all bridges and culverts throughout the county is imposed on the board of supervisors. All culverts having a span of four feet or less may be classified as road work, and may be paid for out of the county road funds. All culverts over four feet and all bridges shall be paid for out of the county bridge fund. All other moneys received by the board of supervisors for road purposes shall be paid out only on the order of the said board, for the purchase of tools, machinery and equipment, or for work done upon the county road system, or for tile and tiling or for culverts classified as road work, as herein provided. All moneys received by the township trustees for road purposes shall be expended for and upon the township road system. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 9.]

SEC. 1527-s9. Township roads—addition to county system. Whenever all the roads of the county road system have been improved according to the plans as herein provided, the board of supervisors shall add such roads from the township road system as have been improved by the township in accordance with the general plans and specifications furnished by the engineer and in accordance with the requirements of this act, and if the township roads so improved be not sufficient to use all county funds available for that purpose, the board of supervisors may select additional county roads, following the same proceedings in all regards as herein provided for the original selection and improvement of county roads, but no increase shall be made in the mileage of the county road system until that system is completed. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 10.]

SEC. 1527-s10. Cost—how paid—repair work—liability of auditor. All bills for road work, tile and tiling culvert and bridge construction or for repairs designated by the engineer, shall be filed in itemized form and certified to by the engineer before being allowed by the board and before warrants in payment therefor are drawn by the county auditor. Before any warrant shall be issued by the county auditor upon the funds of the county road system in payment for any work or construction of highways, except for dragging, maintenance or repairs not designated by the engineer, he must secure on this bill the certificate of the engineer employed by the board of supervisors, that such improvement has been made in accordance with the plans and specifications as herein provided, and when so endorsed, warrants may be drawn for the amount so certified by the county engineer; but if said engineer make said certificate when said work was not done in accordance with the plans and specifications, and same be not properly made good without additional cost, then the full cost of making same good may be recovered upon said engineer's bond, and his bond shall be liable therefor. Partial payments may be allowed by the board on contract work on the basis of the engineer's certified estimates and the percentages specified in the standard specifications of the state highway commission. Repair work shall be known as work not designated by the highway engineer and work of a temporary character or of immediate necessity and work necessary to maintain finished roads completed under this act. A violation of this section shall render the county auditor liable on his bond for the amount of said warrant. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 11.]

SEC. 1527-s11. Standard specifications—bids—approval of commission—construction by day labor. Standard specifications for all bridges and culverts shall be furnished without cost to the counties by the state highway commission, and the work shall be done in accordance therewith, and when said work is completed and approved a duplicate statement of the cost thereof shall be filed at once with the state highway commission by the county auditor. All culverts and bridge construction, tile and tiling and repair work or materials therefor, of which the engineer's estimated cost shall be ten hundred dollars, or less, may be advertised and let at a public letting, or may be let privately at a cost not to exceed the engineer's estimate, or may be built by day labor. All culvert and bridge construction, tile and tiling and repair work, or materials therefor, of which the engineer's estimated cost shall exceed ten hundred dollars, shall be advertised and let at a public letting, provided, that the board shall have the power to reject all bids, in which event they may readvertise, or let privately by submitting contract to the state highway commission for approval, or build by day labor, at a cost not to exceed the lowest bid received. All bids received shall be publicly opened at the time and place specified in the advertisement and shall be recorded in detail, in a book kept for that purpose, by the county auditor; said book shall at all times be open to the public for inspection. Any proposed contract which shall exceed the sum of two thousand dollars for any one bridge or culvert, or repairs thereon, shall be first approved by the state highway commission before the same shall be effective as a contract. Before beginning the construction of any bridge or culvert by day labor or by contract, the plans, specifications, estimate of drainage area, estimates of cost and their specific location shall be filed in the county auditor's office by the engineer. On completion, a detailed statement of cost, and of any additions or alterations to the plans shall be added to the above records by the engineer, all of which shall be retained in the county auditor's office as permanent records, and when said work is completed and approved a duplicate statement of the cost thereof shall be filed at once with the state highway commission by the county auditor. The board of supervisors may authorize the county auditor to draw warrants for the amount of pay rolls for labor furnished under the day labor system, when said pay rolls are certified to by the engineer in charge of the work. Said bills shall be passed upon by the board at the first meeting following said payment. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 12.]

SEC. 1527-s12. Resolution of necessity — notice — publication — hearing—new resolution. It is hereby made the duty of the board of supervisors, whenever they shall determine to construct a permanent bridge or culvert, the engineer's estimated cost of which exceeds the sum of three hundred dollars, to adopt a resolution of necessity, which shall set forth the determination of said board to construct said bridge or culvert and shall contain the following matters, to wit:

1. The location of such bridge or culvert, which location shall be so plainly pointed out that the same can easily be determined.
2. The material of which such bridge or culvert is to be constructed.

3. The approximate width of the roadway and depth of fill, if any, over the crown or floor of said bridge or culvert.
4. The approximate length of span or arch of said bridge or culvert.
5. The approximate area of the watershed to be drained through said bridge or culvert.
6. The estimated cost of said bridge.
7. The time and place when said board will hear protests, if any, against the construction of said bridge or culvert, which time shall be at least ten days after the date of the last publication of any of said papers, hereinafter specified.

Immediately upon the adoption of said resolution the county auditor shall mail a copy of said resolution to each of the township trustees of the township or townships in which said bridge or culvert is to be located. The county auditor shall also cause said resolution to be published in one issue of each of the official papers of the county. At the time and place fixed for said hearing, the board shall hear all protests, if any, unless on account of some unforeseen contingency it is unable to do so, in which event a new time and place shall be fixed by the board or county auditor, of which time and place all parties shall take notice. Upon the termination of said hearing, the board shall adopt a resolution stating its final determination to construct said bridge or culvert or to abandon the construction of the same. The decision of the board shall be final and no appeal shall be allowed therefrom. The said resolution of necessity may embrace more than one bridge or culvert. If the final order of the board is for the construction of said bridge or culvert and the same is not constructed within one year from the date of such final determination, a new resolution of necessity shall be adopted and proceeding had as herein provided. The publication herein provided for shall be paid for at the rate specified in section four hundred forty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 13.]

SEC. 1527-s13. Draggable roads—superintendent of township road system—bond—duties—compensation—amount expended—report. At every February meeting, or as soon thereafter as possible, the township trustees of each township shall select from its township road system the roads to be dragged for the year, to be known as draggable roads, and shall employ a superintendent of the township road system, who shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in such sum as the township trustees may direct. Said superintendent shall have the general supervision of all dragging and repair work on the township road system, whose term of office and compensation shall be at the discretion of the township trustees. He shall see that the approaches to all the bridges on the said roads are maintained in such manner as to present smooth and uniform surfaces, [and] keep the openings to all culverts and ditches free from weeds, brush and other material that will in any manner prevent the free discharge of surface water. He shall have charge of all draggable roads of the township road system and make contracts for dragging, and shall see that all draggable roads of the township road system are properly dragged at such times as are necessary to maintain such roads in a smooth condition, at such price as is reasonable and necessary to secure such contracts. For this purpose there shall be expended, under the direction of the township trustees, through the road superintendent, upon the township road system not less than the one mill drag tax now authorized by law. The township trustees shall not allow any bills for dragging, maintenance, or repair work, nor shall warrants in payment therefor be drawn by the township clerk upon funds of the township road system until itemized bills therefor shall have been certified to by the township road superintendent. A violation of this section shall render the township clerk liable on his bond for the amount of said warrant. The compensation of such superintendent for all duties, including any dragging actually performed by him, and the cost of all equipment for dragging, shall be paid for out of the township road funds. He shall at least once each year, or on demand, furnish the township trustees a report of all work done under and by him. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 14.]

SEC. 1527-s14. Survey, plans and specifications for township work. Before beginning any work upon the township road system, other than hereinbefore described as repair work, the trustees shall make application to the board of supervisors, who shall furnish them with an engineer, to be paid out of the county fund, who shall survey and lay off such roads according to the plans and specifications as hereinbefore provided for the county road system, and the work shall be done in accordance therewith. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 15.]

SEC. 1527-s15. Repair and dragging of county road system—interest in contracts prohibited. The county board of supervisors and the engineer are charged with the duty of repairing and dragging the county road system as is required to keep same in proper condition, and shall adopt such methods as are necessary to maintain continuously, in the best condition practicable, the entire mileage of this system. No member of the highway commission, their deputies, or assistants, or any other person in the employ of the commission, no county supervisor, township trustee, county engineer, road superintendent or any person in their employ or one holding an appointment under them, shall be, either directly or indirectly, interested in any contract for the construction or building of any bridge or bridges, culvert or culverts or any improvement of any road or parts of road coming under the provisions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 16.]

SEC. 1527-s16. Report by township clerk—recommendation of trustees—report of engineer—uniform blanks. Not later than the first Monday in November, or at any time upon the demand of the township trustees, the township clerk shall report the work accomplished on the township road system in his township, and said township trustees shall, as nearly as practicable, recommend what is to be done upon the township road system for the succeeding year. A duplicate report of the work accomplished shall be filed by the clerk with the county auditor; and the county engineer, as nearly as practicable, shall credit the same on the township road system of the county road map. It shall also be the duty of the engineer to make a written report to the board of supervisors of the work accomplished upon the roads for the current year, which report shall show what roads of the county and township systems have been completed or partially completed, and credit to such roads shall be shown upon the county road plan not later than November fifteenth, and a copy of said report shall be immediately forwarded to the state highway commission upon standard printed forms. All forms and blanks necessary to secure uniformity of records and reports in the systems herein provided, shall be furnished by the state highway commission. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 17.]

SEC. 1527-s17. Obstructions—removal of—notice—poles and fences—expense. County and township boards, charged with the duty of improving public highways, shall have power to remove all obstructions in the highways under their jurisdiction, but fences and poles used for telephone, telegraph or other transmission purposes shall not be removed until notice, in writing, of not less than ten days has been given to the owner, occupant, or agent of the land enclosed in part by such fence or to the owner or company operating such lines. The notice to any owner or operator of any such telephone, telegraph or transmission line may be served on any agent or officer of such line, and all such fences and poles shall, within the time designated, be removed to such line on the highway, and as designated by the engineer, and if not removed by the date fixed in such notice, same may be forthwith removed by the proper officials. Any new lines, or parts of lines hereinafter constructed, shall be located by the engineer, and shall be removable according to the provisions of this section. The notice of removal may designate to which side of the highway the said poles shall be removed. Any removal made in compliance with this section shall be at the expense of the owners thereof, without liability on the part of any officer ordering or effecting the removal. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 18.]

SEC. 1527-s18. Contractors' bonds—limitation of action. The board of supervisors shall require all contractors to give a bond for the faithful performance of the contract, in such sum as the board of supervisors may deem necessary. The surety on any bond given to guarantee the faithful performance and execution of any work shall be deemed and held, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding, to consent without notice:

1. To any extension of time to the contractor in which to perform the contract when each particular extension does not exceed sixty days.

2. To any change in the plans, specifications or contract when such change does not involve an increase of more than twenty per cent. of the total contract price, and shall then be released only as to such excess increase.

No contract shall be valid which seeks to limit the time to less than five years in which an action may be brought upon the bond covering concrete work nor to less than one year upon the bond covering other work. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 19.]

SEC. 1527-s19. Other procedure excluded—designation final. The procedure herein provided for the designation and selection of county roads by the board of supervisors and the approval or modification of such selection by the state highway commission, shall exclude all other procedure, and the decision of the board of supervisors and the state highway commission in the designation and selection of the county road system shall be final. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 20.]

SEC. 1527-s20. District road superintendents—terms ended—township districts consolidated—road funds. The terms of the district road superintendents now serving under the provisions of chapter ninety-eight of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly shall cease and determine on the first day of February, nineteen hundred fourteen, at which time all road districts within each civil township created under the provisions of said chapter ninety-eight shall become consolidated under one township road district, and all township road funds belonging to said districts of said township shall at once become a general township road fund. The township trustees in all such townships shall at their February meeting, nineteen hundred fourteen, employ a superintendent of the township road system. Until the first day of February, nineteen hundred fourteen, all such district road superintendents shall perform within their respective districts the duties imposed upon the superintendent of the township road system, by section fourteen[1] of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 22; 35 G. A., ch. 123, § 2.]

REGISTRATION OF HIGHWAY ROUTES.

SEC. 1527-s22. Application for—priority of right to name and design. Any association organized to promote the improvement of any continuous highway not less than twenty-five miles in length may, by making application to the state highway commission, register in the office of said commission the name, detailed route, color combination and design used in marking said route. The highway commission shall have power to determine priority of right in the use of said name, color combination and designs. [35 G. A., ch. 125, § 1.]

Said application shall be accompanied by a registration fee of five dollars, which fee shall be returned to the association if the application be not granted. [35 G. A., ch. 125, § 2.]

SEC. 1527-s24. Certificate—what designated therein. If the state highway commission shall, after investigation, adjudge the application meritorious and the route to be worthy of the protection of this act, it shall issue to the association a certificate which shall designate in detail the name, the starting and the terminal points, the color combination and designs used in marking the route; all of which facts shall be recorded as a part of the permanent records of the commission in a book kept for that purpose. [35 G. A., ch. 125, § 3.]

SEC. 1527-s25. Infringement prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any person or association of persons to use for similar purposes the name, any recorded color combination and designs herein referred to. [35 G. A., ch. 125, § 4.]

CHAPTER 2.

OF WORKING ROADS.

SECTION 1528. Powers and duties of trustees. That section fifteen hundred twenty-eight of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The township trustees of each township shall meet on the first Monday in February and on the first Monday in April, or as soon thereafter as the assessment book is received by the township clerk and on the first Monday in November in each year. At the February meeting said trustees shall select a superintendent of dragging and employ a road superintendent. At the April meeting said trustees shall determine:

1. The rate of property tax to be levied for the succeeding year for the repair of the roads, culverts and bridges and for guideboards, plows, scrapers, road drags, tools and machinery adapted to the repair of the roads, culverts and bridges and for the destruction of noxious weeds in public highways and other public places and for the payment of any indebtedness previously incurred for road purposes, and levy the same, which shall not be more than four mills on a dollar on the amount of the township assessment for that year, which when collected, shall be expended under the direction and order of the township trustees; and they may determine and certify to the board of supervisors a tax on the assessed property in the township of not exceeding five mills on a dollar of such assessment, which shall be applied, or so much thereof as may be necessary, in paying drainage taxes heretofore levied and still unpaid or for the payment of any drainage assessments that may be hereafter levied against the township on account of benefits to highways under the provisions of section sixteen of chapter one hundred eighteen of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly of Iowa, and the balance of such levy or the whole thereof in case there be no such drainage taxes due from the township, may be applied in paying the expense of draining highways of the township or in coöperating with those owning land in the township in securing the drainage of such highways; but in the event that the amount to be expended in any one place exceeds the sum of fifty dollars, the township shall not pay more than its just proportion of the benefits to be ascertained by a competent civil engineer and duly set forth in his report approving of such drainage, which report shall be filed with the township clerk before any money is paid out for such drainage.

2. The amount that will be allowed for a day's labor done by a man, and by a man and team, on the road. To certify to the board of supervisors the desire for an additional road tax, not to exceed one mill to be levied in whole or in part by the board of supervisors, as hereinafter provided. At the November meeting they shall settle with the township clerk and with all parties with whom contracts have been made for work in repairing or dragging of the roads." [34 G. A., ch. 24, § 8; 33 G. A., ch. 96, § 5.] [29 G. A., ch. 64, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 53, § 3; 26 G. A., ch. 43; 25 G. A., ch. 22; C. '73, §§ 969, 971; R. §§ 880, 891, 895; C. '51, § 568.]

There is no obligation on the part of the county to keep the highways in repair. Wilson v. Wapello County, 129–77, 105 N. W. 363.

The board of supervisors has no authority to purchase machinery out of the road tax with which to work the roads. Harrison County v. Ogden, 133–9, 110 N. W. 32.

The board cannot incur obligations payable in the future out of the road fund. Ibid.

The county is not estopped by the unauthorized acts of its officers, either in incurring indebtedness payable out of such fund or in attempting to ratify unlawful obligations already entered into. Ibid.

The trustees have no authority to issue orders payable out of the funds of the district, nor to issue orders to the road supervisors in payment of their claims payable out of the general township funds. Miller v. Hinke, 135–520, 113 N. W. 325.

Where labor is furnished at the request of the road supervisor a contract will be implied to pay for the labor at its reasonable value, and therefore a township officer furnishing such labor for which he would otherwise be entitled to compensation violates the provisions of code supp. § 468-a which prohibits township trustees furnishing supplies, materials or labor to the township. State v. York, 135–529, 113 N. W. 324.

The duty of actually repairing the highways is not cast on the trustees. Their duty is to exercise general supervision, but the work should be done and the responsibility assumed by the contractor or superintendent who is subjected to the same accountability as the supervisor under code § 1557. Theulen v. Township of Viola, 139–61, 117 N. W. 26.

SEC. 1528-a. Repeal. That section five of chapter ninety-six of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 24, § 7.]

SEC. 1529. General township fund—clerk to give bond—custody of implements.

The highway fund can only be used for the purpose authorized by the statute. There is no authority for paying attorney's fees out of such fund in an action brought against the township trustees for breach of duty in connection with the highway. Davis v. Laughlin, 147–478, 124 N. W. 876.

SEC. 1530. County road and drainage funds—how levied and paid out. That the law as it appears in section fifteen hundred thirty of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of supervisors of each county shall, at the time of levying taxes for other purposes, levy a tax of not more than one mill on the dollar of the assessed value of the taxable properties in its county, including all taxable property in municipalities, which shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes and be known as the county road fund and be paid out only on the order of the board of supervisors for the purchase of road tools or machinery or for work done on the roads in the county in such places as it shall determine; provided that on written petition of a majority of the electors who are freeholders of any township in any county the board of supervisors may levy an additional mill in said township to be expended by said board of supervisors on roads in the township where the same is levied; provided further that the board of supervisors of any county may levy an additional tax of not more than one mill on the dollar of the taxable property in the county, including all taxable property in cities and incorporated towns outside the limits of cities of the first class and cities acting under special charter, which tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes and be known as the county drainage fund and be paid out only on the order of the board for drainage of highways and paying drainage assessments heretofore levied for benefits to highways in the county or that may hereafter be levied for such purposes. One half of the county road fund arising from the property within any municipality shall be paid over by the county treasurer to the treasurer of the municipality in the same manner as other municipal taxes and shall be expended on the roads or streets within such municipality by and under the direction of the council or commission. The county treasurer shall receive the same compensation for collecting this tax as he does for collecting corporation taxes, except as hereinafter provided. Taxes already collected under section fifteen hundred thirty of the supplement to the code, 1907, and in the hands of the county treasurer shall be paid over to the treasurer of the municipality in the same manner as other municipal taxes. Moneys so collected shall not be transferable to any other fund nor used for any other purpose. The board of supervisors shall levy such additional sum for the benefit of such township as shall have certified a desire for such additional levy as provided for in section fifteen hundred twenty-eight of this chapter. [34 G. A., ch. 24, § 6; 33 G. A., ch. 97, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 67; 31 G. A., ch. 56; 29 G. A., ch. 65, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 22; 20 G. A., ch. 200, § 1.]

[See § 1530-a to § 1530-c inclusive.]

This section contemplates the levying of such tax upon the property within city limits, as well as upon other property in the county, although the tax is not to be expended within the city limits. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co. v. Murphy, 106–43, 75 N. W. 680.

The part of the road fund collected within a city must be expended on the roads in and about the city as directed by the city council. Newton v. Board of Supervisors, 135–27, 112 N. W. 167.

The members of the board are not liable to any private party for injury due to negligence in the exercise of discretionary powers as to repair of highways where neither malice nor corruption is involved. Nolan v. Reed, 139–68, 117 N. W. 25.

SEC. 1530-a. Portion due municipality—how expended. "The administrative bodies of such municipalities shall have authority to appropriate out of the fund arising from such tax, the whole or any part thereof, for the improvement of roads outside of the limits of their municipality where the board of supervisors are making improvements on such roads, in which case the amount of such appropriation shall be paid over to the treasurer of the county for such specific improvement and disbursed by the board of supervisors. If expended by the administrative body of the municipality it shall be expended upon that part of the roads within its limits which are reserved and used for traveling purposes and only upon such roads as are a continuation of country roads which are main arteries of travel, and one half of the road fund collected within the municipality and retained for disbursement by the board of supervisors shall be by them used on such roads as are main arteries of travel immediately tributary to the municipality for which such tax has been collected. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the board of supervisors from paying over to the treasurer of the municipality the whole or any part of said tax raised within such municipality to be expended by such municipality as herein provided. [33 G. A., ch. 97, § 2.]

SEC. 1530-b. No compensation to county treasurer. "In municipalities where taxes are collected independent of the county treasurer no compensation shall be paid to the county treasurer for the collection of this tax. [33 G. A., ch. 97, § 3.]

SEC. 1530-c. Municipality defined. "The term municipality as herein used is defined to include cities, towns, cities acting under special charter and those under the commission form of government." [33 G. A., ch. 97, § 4.]

SEC. 1532. Consolidation of township into one road district—roads adjoining state lands—how maintained. That section fifteen hundred thirty-two of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

The board of township trustees of each civil township in this state, at its regular meeting in April, nineteen hundred and three, shall consolidate said township into one road district, except as provided herein, and all road funds belonging to the road districts of said township shall at once become a general township road fund, out of which all claims for work done or material furnished for road purposes prior to the change, and unsettled, shall be paid. That all roads and highways within and adjacent to lands belonging to the state, including those under the supervision of the state board of education, shall constitute a separate road district under the control and supervision of the supervisor appointed by the board of control of state institutions with all the powers, duties and responsibilities imposed upon road supervisors, who shall require all able-bodied males, other than inmates of state institutions, residing within such road district, to perform the labor required by the provisions of section fifteen hundred fifty and section fifteen hundred fifty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, and section fifteen hundred fifty-two of the code, upon the roads of the district within the counties where such persons reside. The supervisor shall make a report to the board of control under the provisions of section fifteen hundred fifty-four of the supplement to the code, 1907, so far as applicable. If it appears from such report that any person has failed to perform the two days' labor required, or any part thereof, and that the supervisor has neglected to collect the amount of money required to be paid in case of such default, the board of control shall certify the name of such person and the amount due from such person to the county auditor of the county where such person resides, who shall enter the amount on the property tax list as against such person and the treasurer of the county shall collect the same and when collected shall pay the amount so collected to the board of control of state institutions, who shall expend same upon the roads of the state district in the county where such money was collected. All cost of maintaining, repairing, renewing and improving the roads within the road district containing state lands, except county bridges, after the expenditure of the road poll tax, either in money collected or in labor, shall be paid out of any general funds in the hands of the state treasurer, not otherwise appropriated, upon warrants drawn by the state auditor after certificate of amount due shall have been filed in his office by the board of control. [35 G. A., ch. 124, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 123, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 98, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 93, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 4; 20 G. A., ch. 200, §§ 4, 11.]

After consolidation of road districts the road funds of the separate districts cannot be made liable for claims which were not payable before such consolidation out of the funds of the districts. Miller v. Hinke, 135–520, 113 N. W. 325.

SEC. 1533. Duty of trustees—road superintendents. Where the one-road district plan is adopted, the board of township trustees shall order and direct the expenditure of the road funds and labor belonging or owing to the township; may let, by contract, to the lowest responsible, competent bidder, any part or all of the work on the roads for the current year, or may appoint not to exceed four superintendents of roads, to oversee, subject to the direction of the board, all or any part of the work, but it shall not incur an indebtedness for such purposes unless the same has been or shall at the time be provided for by an authorized levy; and shall order the township road tax for the succeeding year paid in money and collected by the county treasurer. It shall cause both the property and poll road tax to be equitably and judiciously expended for road purposes in the entire road district; shall cause at least seventy-five per cent. of the township road tax locally assessed to be thus expended by the fifteenth day of July in each year; shall cause the noxious weeds growing in the roads to be cut twice a year, when necessary, and at such times as to prevent their seeding, and it may allow any land owner a reasonable compensation for the destruction thereof, when growing in the roads abutting upon his land. If a superintendent, or superintendents of roads be employed, it shall fix the term of office, which shall not exceed one year, and compensation, which shall not exceed three dollars a day; and no contract shall be made without reserving the right of the board to dispense with his services at its pleasure. [31 G. A., ch. 58, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 57; 30 G. A., ch. 50, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 53, § 5; 29 G. A., ch. 64, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 200, §§ 5–10, 17.]

[The amendment by 30 G. A., ch. 50, and the amendment by 31 G. A., ch. 58, struck out the words "as other taxes" in line 10, except the amendment by 30 G. A. ignored code supplement where the section appeared.]

The trustees are vested with authority to appoint the road superintendent and fix his compensation, and are prohibited by code supp. § 468-a from making contracts with him as individuals to furnish labor or material for the township. State v. York, 131–635, 109 N. W. 122.

Where the township trustees had executed a note for road machinery intended only to bind the township, but so executed as to make them individually liable, held that they might by way of equitable defense ask a reformation of that instrument so as to make it correspond to the intention of the parties. Western Wheeled Scraper Co. v. Stickleman, 122–396, 98 N. W. 139.

Under this section as amended a contractor or superintendent may be liable for damages resulting from a defect in the highway if previously notified in writing and sufficient time has elapsed in which to make repair. Theulen v. Township of Viola, 139–61, 117 N. W. 26.

The superintendent employed by the trustees may in his individual capacity maintain an action to enjoin the obstruction of the highway. Myers v. Priest, 145–81, 123 N. W. 943.

SEC. 1538. Compensation of trustees and treasurer. The trustees shall receive the same compensation per day for time necessarily spent in looking after the roads as they do for other township business; the county treasurer shall receive the same per cent. for collecting the road taxes here contemplated that he does for collecting corporation taxes. [31 G. A., ch. 59; 20 G. A., ch. 200, § 13.]

SEC. 1540. Tax list—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 6.]

SEC. 1540-a. Tax list. That section fifteen hundred forty of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

"He shall, within four weeks after the trustees have levied the property road tax for the succeeding year, certify said levy to the county auditor, who shall enter it upon the tax books for collection by the county treasurer who shall collect in one installment and pay the same over to the clerk of the township entitled thereto. And he shall, not later than the fifteenth day of April, make out and deliver to the superintendent of roads a list of all persons required to pay road poll tax under the provisions of this act. To enable him to make out such list, the assessor shall furnish the clerk of said township, before the first day of April of each year, a complete copy of the assessment lists of said township for that year, which shall be the basis of such poll tax list. Provided, that the property road tax for the year nineteen hundred and three shall be levied as heretofore, that it shall be paid in cash and shall be collected by the superintendent of roads appointed by the trustees or the township clerk, as the board of trustees shall determine and direct. Provided, further, that all delinquent road tax for the year nineteen hundred and three shall be certified to the county auditor by the clerk of each township, for collection as provided by section fifteen hundred forty-two of the code, as amended by this act." [31 G. A., ch. 58, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 53, § 6; C. '73, § 973; R. § 892.]

[Acts in conflict with § 6, ch. 53, 29 G. A., are repealed by § 1567-b. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1541. Collection of tax—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 7.]

SEC. 1541-a. Repeal. That section fifteen hundred forty-one of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 7.]

SEC. 1542. Delinquent tax certified—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 64, § 3.]

SEC. 1542-a. Delinquent tax certified. That section fifteen hundred forty-two of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu of the same:

"He shall, on or before the second Monday of November of each year, make out a certified list of all property, including lands, town lots, personal property and property otherwise assessed, including assessments by the executive council on which the road tax has not been paid in full, and the amount of the tax charged on each separate assessment or parcel of said property, designating the district in which the same is situated and transmit the same to the county auditor, who shall enter the amount of tax on the lists the same as other taxes, and deliver the same to the county treasurer, charging him therewith, which shall be collected in the same manner as county taxes are collected. In case the township clerk shall fail or neglect to make such return, he shall forfeit and pay to the township for road purposes a sum equal to the amount of tax on said property, which may be collected by an action on his bond." [29 G. A., ch. 64, § 3; 29 G. A., ch. 53, § 8; 26 G. A., ch. 43; C. '73, § 975; R. § 898.]

[§ 1542 was first repealed by 29 G. A., ch. 64, § 3, which act was approved March 25, 1902, and took effect by publication March 27, 1902, while § 8 of ch. 53, acts of 29 G. A., which took effect July 4, 1902, attempts to amend the original § 1542.]

SEC. 1545. Superintendent—qualification. Each road superintendent or contractor shall give bond in such sum and with such security as the township clerk may require (but in no case shall a township trustee sign such bond as surety), conditioned that he will faithfully and impartially perform all the duties required of him, and devote all moneys that may come into his hands by virtue of his office, according to law. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 9; 16 G. A., ch. 167; C. '73, §§ 977–8; R. §§ 881, 884.]

SEC. 1546-a. Repeal. That section fifteen hundred forty-six of the code is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 10.]

SEC. 1549. In each district.

The balance of the funds raised by the township levy (after the expenditure authorized by code § 1528) should be expended in the respective road districts in which it is raised; and the trustees have no authority to issue orders payable out of the township fund for material furnished or labor performed in the repair of the roads. For certain circumstances the road supervisors may issue certificates. Miller v. Hinke, 135–520, 113 N. W. 325.

SEC. 1550. Who to perform labor. The road supervisor shall require all able-bodied male residents of his district, between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five, to perform two days' labor upon the roads, between the first days of April and October of each year. [31 G. A., ch. 60; C. '73, § 983.]

One who works on the highway, under the direction of the road supervisors, is not liable, in the absence of trespass, for any injury to adjoining land occasioned by surface water improperly deflected from its natural channel by the improvement of the highway. Mulvihill v. Thompson, 114–734, 87 N. W. 693.

SEC. 1551. Notice of time and place—receipts. The road supervisor shall give at least three days' notice of the day or days and place to work the roads to all persons subject to work thereon, or who are charged with a road tax within his district, and all persons so notified must meet him at such time and place, with such tools, implements and teams as he may direct, and labor diligently under his direction for eight hours each day; and for such two days' labor the supervisor shall give to him a certificate, which shall be evidence that he has performed such labor on the public roads, and exempt him from performing labor in payment of road poll tax in that or any other road district for the same year. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 11; C. '73, § 984; R. §§ 886, 896; C. '51, § 588.]

[§ 4 of ch. 64 of 29 G. A. attempts to amend said section by the insertion of the words "property including" between the words "all" and "lands" in subdivisions five and six, as formerly numbered, but which paragraphs had been stricken out by § 13, ch. 53, of 29 G. A.]

SEC. 1556. Shade trees—timber—drainage.

The mere fact of the planting and raising of trees in the highway does not constitute adverse possession of such portion of the highway as against the public. Biglow v. Ritter, 131–213, 108 N. W. 218.

Highway supervisors have some authority in determining how roads are to be improved and within the scope of a reasonable discretion their plans ought not to be interfered with. Heydon v. Whitaker, 156–87, 135 N. W. 361.

But the statute specifically provides that ingress or egress to property or the natural drainage of the surface water shall not be interfered with to the injury of adjoining owners. Ibid.

SEC. 1557. Liability for unsafe bridge or highway.

A road supervisor is liable for all damages resulting from a defect in the highway allowed to remain after a reasonable time for making repair only where he has had written notice, as required by this section. Sells v. Dermody, 114–344, 86 N. W. 325.

A board of supervisors cannot be required by mandamus, at the suit of a private property owner, to restore or repair a county bridge, that being a matter of discretion with the board, to be exercised in the public interest. Leonard v. Wakeman, 120–140, 94 N. W. 281.

A contractor or superintendent is not liable for injury due to defect in the highway unless notified thereof so as to give sufficient time for making repair. Theulen v. Township of Viola, 139–61, 117 N. W. 26.

The superintendent of the highway district may maintain an action in his individual capacity, alleging that he is such superintendent, to enjoin an obstruction. Myers v. Priest, 145–81, 123 N. W. 943.

SEC. 1560. Obstructions removed. The road supervisor shall remove all obstructions in the roads, but must not throw down or remove fences which do not directly obstruct travel, until notice in writing, not exceeding six months, has been given to the owner or agent of the land inclosed in part by such fence. [28 G. A., ch. 52, § 1; C. '73, § 993; R. § 905; C. '51, § 594.]

The road supervisor may remove all obstructions in a highway, such as fences. Quinn v. Baage, 138–426, 114 N. W. 205.

The provisions of this section as amended relating to the removal of fences which do not directly obstruct travel have no reference to fences which are in no sense boundary fences. Davis v. Pickerell, 139–186, 117 N. W. 276.

The road superintendent or road supervisor may maintain an action to enjoin the obstruction of a public highway. Ford v. Doolittle, 157–210, 138 N. W. 397.

Before making said assessment, ten days' notice shall be given such owner of the time and place of meeting of the trustees, council or commissioners, which notice shall also contain a statement of the work done and the expense thereof with costs, and shall be given in the same manner as originally given to owners as hereinbefore provided. At said time and place such owner may appear with the same rights given by law before boards of review upon increase in assessments. [35 G. A., ch. 128, § 3.]

SEC. 1566-a. Itemized account—filed with county auditor. That the trustees of each township shall take and file with the board of supervisors on or before the first Monday in each year a full and itemized account verified by the township clerk showing each item of expenditures and receipt of all moneys received and disbursed during the preceding year for road purposes in said township, which report shall remain on file with the county auditor, and, omitting certifications and verifications of township officers, a synopsis thereof showing the names of all persons to whom money has been paid and the amount paid to each shall be published in the published report of the proceedings of the January session of the board of supervisors. The board of supervisors should furnish for publication, under the provisions of code § 441, a synopsis of the itemized reports of the township trustees showing names of all persons to whom money has been paid out of the highway funds and the amounts paid to each, so far as the same can be determined from the reports and the accompanying vouchers on file. Index Printing Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150–411, 130 N. W. 401.

SEC. 1566-b. Road supervisors—defined. That wherever the term "road supervisors" appears in the code and amendments thereto it shall be held so far as applicable to mean the superintendent or contractor. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 17.]

SEC. 1567. Orders issued—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 14.]

SEC. 1567-b. Acts in conflict repealed. That all acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 18.]

SEC. 1569. Turning to right—rule when approaching from rear—penalty. That section fifteen hundred sixty-nine of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Persons on horseback, or in vehicles, including motor vehicles, meeting each other on the public highway, shall give one half of the beaten path thereof by turning to the right. Whenever a person in any vehicle shall approach from the rear upon the public highway and desire to pass, it shall be the duty of the driver or operator of such vehicle ahead to give one half of the beaten path thereof, upon proper signal or request, by turning to the right. The vehicle approaching from the rear shall turn to the left and shall not return to such road or path within less than thirty feet of the team or vehicle which has been passed; provided, however, that such vehicle need not give such right of way when it would jeopardize the safety of the driver or operator to do so. Failure to comply with the above shall be deemed a misdemeanor and punishable as such." [35 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1000; R. § 908.]

This provision is applicable where a person on a bicycle meets a person driving a horse and vehicle. Cook v. Fogarty, 103–500, 72 N. W. 677.

One driving along a highway is not bound to yield any portion thereof to allow another proceeding in the same direction to pass him. It is only to avoid a collision reasonably to be apprehended that he is required to turn aside. Elenz v. Conrad, 123–522, 99 N. W. 138.

Failure to turn to the right and give half of the road as required by the statute imposes liability in damages only where such failure is the proximate cause of a resulting injury. Needy v. Littlejohn, 137–704, 115 N. W. 483.

The general rule seems to be that where a collision occurs between a vehicle or a horse of the person on the wrong side of the road and that of a person coming towards him, the presumption is that it was caused by the negligence of the person who was on the wrong side of the road; but his presence on that side may be explained or justified. Carpenter v. Campbell Automobile Co., 140 N. W. 225.

SEC. 1570. Trimming hedges—annually—trees for posts. Owners of osage orange, willow, or any other hedge fence along the public road, unless the same shall be used as a windbreak for orchards or feed lots, shall keep the same trimmed, by cutting back within five feet of the ground at least once every year, when so ordered by the trustees of their respective townships; provided, however, that the owner of said fence may grow on the average three trees to the rod, for posts, on condition that he keep the underbrush to said trees trimmed up to a height of three feet above the height they are required to be trimmed by said section, and burn or remove the trimmings so cut from the road.

Upon a failure to comply with the foregoing provision, the road supervisor shall immediately serve notice in writing upon the owner of the hedge to trim the same, and if he fails to do so for sixty days thereafter, such supervisor shall cause the same to be done at a cost not exceeding forty cents per rod, which shall be paid for out of the road fund, and make return thereof to the township clerk, who shall, in certifying the lands upon which the road tax has not been paid, include the lands along which the hedge has been trimmed, together with the amount paid therefor, which shall be collected by the county treasurer in the manner other county taxes are collected.

Where the one-district system is adopted as provided in this chapter, it shall be the duty of the township trustees to enforce the foregoing provisions. [33 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 1, 2.] [28 G. A., ch. 54, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 48; 25 G. A., ch. 88, §§ 1, 2; 24 G. A., ch. 40.]

The duty of enforcing the provisions of this section as amended is laid primarily upon the road supervisors and devolves upon the trustees only when the one-district system for the township has been adopted. Jones v. Thie, 141–293, 119 N. W. 616.

SEC. 1570-a. Apportionment of work by supervisors. The boards of supervisors of the various counties of the state of Iowa bordering upon the state line are hereby authorized to meet the authorities in control and charge of the public highways in the adjoining counties of other states and agree upon and assign the portion or part of each public highway upon the state line between such states to be kept in repair by the authorities in the state of Iowa and such other states. [32 G. A., ch. 69.]

SEC. 1571. Steam engines on roads. That section fifteen hundred seventy-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whenever any traction engine is being propelled upon the public road, the whistle thereof shall not be blown, and the operator thereof shall exercise reasonable care and caution in the management of the same so as to avoid any accident that might occur from fright upon the part of any horse or other draft or domestic animal. Any person operating a traction engine upon the public highway shall, upon request, or signal by putting up the hand from the person riding or driving a restive horse or other draft or domestic animal, bring such traction engine immediately to a stop, and if traveling in the opposite direction, remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass, and if traveling in the same direction, use reasonable caution while such horse or animal is passing and the operator or any other person employed by the owner of said traction engine shall render necessary assistance to the party having in charge said horse or other draft or domestic animal in so passing. [33 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 52; 28 G. A., ch. 55, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 1, 2; 24 G. A., ch. 68, §§ 1–4.]

The violation of the requirement that planks be placed under a steam engine crossing a bridge will not defeat recovery by the owner for injuries resulting from defects in the bridge for which the county is liable, if the failure to comply with the statute has not directly contributed to the injury. Tackett v. Taylor County, 123–149, 98 N. W. 730.

This section has no application to a case where a steam engine is hauled across a bridge by animal power. The statutory provision was intended to guard against the dangers peculiarly incident to the movement or propulsion of engines on the highway by steam power. Young v. Madison County, 137–515, 115 N. W. 23.

This section has no application to the operation of a traction engine not on a public highway. Burke v. Mally, 141–555, 120 N. W. 305.

SEC. 1571-1a. Bridges—crossings—culverts—planks used. "Until the first day of November, nineteen hundred ten, no traction engine shall cross any bridge, crossing or culvert in the public highway or street unless sound, strong planks not less than one foot wide and two inches thick be placed and kept continuously under the wheels. No traction engine having mud lugs or ice spurs attached to its wheels shall be moved over any bridge, culvert, or street crossing. [33 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 1571-2a. Penalty. "Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty days." [33 G. A., ch. 102, § 3.]

SEC. 1571-3a. Culvert fund for nineteen hundred thirteen. Within thirty days after the taking effect of this act, the township trustees shall, for the year nineteen hundred thirteen, set aside, from the township road fund, a sum of money equal to one mill on all taxable property of the township, which sum the township clerk shall keep as a separate fund to be known as the nineteen hundred thirteen culvert fund, and shall be used only for the payment of culverts constructed in such township on the township road system, by the board of supervisors during the year nineteen hundred thirteen. The cost of culverts constructed during nineteen hundred thirteen in such township on the township road system by the board of supervisors shall, to the extent of such special fund, be paid out of such fund by the trustees, on the certificate of the county auditor as to the correctness of such cost. The fact that an automobile is not registered does not defeat a recovery by a person operating it for negligence of a railroad company occasioning a collision to his injury. Lockridge v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 140 N. W. 834.

[See § 1571-m. EDITOR.]

The statute expressly authorizes the use of automobiles on the highways and confers on the operators of such vehicles the same rights in the roads and streets as are accorded to the drivers of other vehicles. House v. Cramer, 134–374, 112 N. W. 3.

But the operator of an automobile is liable for damages resulting from his negligence in not exercising care to avoid frightening horses. Ibid.

A finding that the driver of an automobile was not operating his machine at a rate of speed prohibited by the statute does not negative a finding that he was operating it at a speed not reasonable and proper to the use of the highway. Walkup v. Beebe, 139–395, 116 N. W. 321.

The statute does not declare that an automobile cannot lawfully be driven at a greater speed than twenty miles per hour on the country road. In determining the negligence of the owner the speed may be considered with reference to the facts as shown by the evidence. Neidy v. Littlejohn, 146–355, 125 N. W. 198.

In an action to recover damages for injuries resulting from negligent operation of an automobile, it is proper to instruct the jury that "operating an automobile at an average speed of more than twenty miles per hour is prima-facie negligence." Scott v. O'Leary, 157– —, 138 N. W. 512.

One operating an automobile is bound to know that people are likely to be traveling upon the highway. Ibid.

[See § 1571-m. EDITOR.]

If the operator of an automobile sees that a horse being driven toward him on the highway is frightened he is required to exercise ordinary care to prevent an accident although he has received no signal from the driver of the horse to stop the machine. Strand v. Grinnell Automobile Garage Co., 136–68, 113 N. W. 488.

Under the facts of a particular case, held that the testimony was sufficient to show that the accident occurring at a dangerous place in the highway was due to the negligence of the operator of the automobile in running at a high rate of speed without turning out so as to allow the driver of the horse to pass in safety and without stopping after danger from the frightening of the horse became apparent. Ibid.

In the absence of a signal to stop the driver of an automobile in the exercise of reasonable care may be in duty bound to stop his machine on seeing another driving in the highway to be in peril by the frightening of his horse. Walkup v. Beebe, 139–395, 116 N. W. 321.

The statutory provisions define the duty of an operator of an automobile upon request or signal, but they do not relieve him of the liability of exercising ordinary care for the safety of others. Reasonable care depends on the speed, size and appearance, manner of movement, noise, and the like of such vehicle as well as the means of locomotion of other vehicles on the highway. Delfs v. Dunshee, 143–381, 122 N. W. 236.

Whether the sounding of a signal horn as a warning to others of the approach of the automobile is essential in the exercise of ordinary care is to be determined by the circumstances. Ibid.

It may constitute negligence to stop a machine after passing a frightened horse and so near as to cause further fright. Ibid.

One who uses a highway on which automobiles are operated assumes only the risk incident to their operation in a reasonably careful manner. Ibid.

TITLE IX.

OF CORPORATIONS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF CORPORATIONS FOR PECUNIARY PROFIT.

SECTION 1607. Who may incorporate.

Any number of persons may unite to form a corporation for carrying on any lawful business. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

The statute authorizes an incorporation for any lawful business, and held that a corporation may properly engage in the sale of intoxicating liquors under the provisions of the mulct law. (But now see 33 G. A., ch. 143, supp. §§ 2383-a–2383-e.) State v. Delahoyde, 147–327, 126 N. W. 330.

SEC. 1609. Powers.

Par. 2. Name: To make notice to a corporation which is named only by the initials of its corporate name sufficient it must appear that at the time such notice was given the corporation was commonly known and customarily referred to by such abbreviations. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Kelley, 105–106, 74 N. W. 935.

Par. 5. Exemption of property: The provisions of the articles in a particular case held sufficient to exempt private property of the stockholders in a mutual insurance company from liability for debts of the corporation, although there was a provision by which such property should be liable for money advanced for creating a guaranty fund. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

Corporations may be legally organized whose articles do not exempt private property of its stockholders from liability for corporate debts. Berkson v. Anderson, 115–674, 87 N. W. 402.

Par. 6. Powers: The powers given by statute to corporations are not required to be enumerated in its articles, and an omission to claim any such powers in the articles would not leave the corporation without such powers. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124.

When the state courts have determined the extent of the powers and liabilities of corporations created under the state law, their decision is conclusive in the federal courts in cases involving no question of general or commercial law and no federal question. Ibid.

A corporation is itself a franchise, and the different powers which may be exercised by the corporation are also franchises. Thus, the right given to a corporation to supply a city with water and of occupying the streets for that purpose may be spoken of as a franchise. But such a privilege is not in the strict sense of the word a corporate franchise. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 118–234, 91 N. W. 1081.

One who becomes shareholder in a corporation thereby assents to the transaction of business expressly or impliedly authorized by its charter. Traer v. Lucas Prospecting Co., 124–107, 99 N. W. 290.

The corporation does not necessarily have all the powers which by statute are within the scope of corporate powers, but only such powers within the statutory scope as are given by the articles of incorporation. Ibid.

While as a general rule a corporation may not sell any part or all of its property for other than a cash consideration unless authorized by charter, yet where the company was authorized by its articles to purchase, sell and deal in corporate stocks of corporations authorized to conduct mining operations, but had not power to carry on business of mining, the power to exchange its property or sell it for stock in a corporation which should engage in the business of mining was clearly implied. Ibid.

A trading corporation unless prohibited by its charter may buy and sell the stock of another corporation. Ibid.

The articles contain the terms of agreement between the company and its stockholders and are to be construed in accordance with the general laws relating to charter grants and legislative power. By accepting stock in the corporation, the stockholder assents to the terms and conditions found in the articles. Dempster Mfg. Co. v. Downs, 126–80, 101 N. W. 735.

A corporation may hold real or personal property in trust for any purpose that is not foreign to the business for which it was created, and a court of equity will enforce such trust. State v. Higby Co., 130–69, 106 N. W. 382.

Whatever may fairly be regarded as incidental to and consequential upon those things which are authorized by the charter of a corporation will not be held ultra vires unless it is specially prohibited. Marshalltown Stone Co. v. Des Moines Brick Mfg. Co., 149–141, 126 N. W. 190.

Par. 7. By-laws: By-laws may be binding on a corporation, although informally adopted, if recognized and acted upon by it. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

SEC. 1610. Articles adopted and recorded—approval—fees—index book of county recorder. That section sixteen hundred ten of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Before commencing any business except their own organization, they must adopt articles of incorporation, which must be signed and acknowledged by the incorporators, recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county where the principal place of business is to be, in a book kept therefor; and the recorder must, within five days thereafter, indorse thereon the time when the same were filed and the book and page where the record will be found. Said articles thus indorsed shall then be forwarded to the secretary of state, and be by him recorded in a book kept for that purpose.

The county recorder shall keep in his office an index book for articles of incorporation, which shall be ruled and headed substantially after the following form, and shall make entries therein in the order in which they are filed in his office.

INDEX TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION.

Name	Place of Business	Date of Filing			Date of Inst.			Where Recorded		Capital Stock	Remarks
		Mo.	Day	Yr.	Mo.	Day	Yr.	B .	Pg.

Such corporation shall pay to the secretary of state, before a certificate of incorporation is issued, a fee of twenty-five dollars, and, for all authorized stock in excess of ten thousand dollars, an additional fee of one dollar per thousand. Should any corporation increase its capital stock, it shall pay a fee to the secretary of state of one dollar for each one thousand dollars of such increase, and a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words, no recording fee to be less than fifty cents. Farmers' mutual coöperative creamery associations, whose articles of incorporation provide that the business of the association be conducted on a purely mutual and coöperative plan, without capital stock, and whose patrons shall share equally in expense and profits, domestic and domestic local building and loan associations [and] incorporations organized for the manufacture of sugar from beets grown in the state of Iowa, shall be exempt from the payment of the incorporation filing fee provided herein in excess of twenty-five dollars. When articles of incorporation are presented to the secretary of state for the purpose of being filed, if he is satisfied that they are in proper form to meet the requirements of law, that their object is a lawful one and not against public policy, that their plan for doing business, if any be provided for, is honest and lawful, he shall file them; but if he is of the opinion that they are not in proper form to meet the requirements of the law, or that their object is an unlawful one, or against public policy, or that their plan for doing business is dishonest or unlawful, he shall refuse to file them. Should a question of doubt arise as to the legality of the articles, he shall submit them to the attorney-general whose duty it shall be to forthwith examine and return them with an opinion in writing touching the point or points concerning which inquiry has been made of him. If such opinion is in favor of the legality of the articles, and no other objections are apparent, they shall then, upon payment of the proper fee, be filed and otherwise dealt with as the law provides. If, however, such opinion be against their legality they shall not be filed. Upon the rejection of any articles of incorporation by the secretary of state, except for the reason that they have been held by the attorney-general to be illegal, they shall, if the person or persons presenting them so request, be submitted to the executive council, which shall, as soon as practicable, consider the said articles and if the council determines that the articles are in proper form, of honest purpose, not against public policy, nor otherwise objectionable, it shall so advise the secretary of state in writing, whereupon he shall, upon the payment of the proper fees, file the same and proceed otherwise as the law directs; but if the council sustains the previous action of the secretary of state in rejecting said articles, such decision by the council shall be reported to the secretary of state in writing, and he shall then return said articles to the person or persons presenting them with such explanation as shall be proper in the case. Nothing in this act shall be construed as repealing or modifying any statute now in force in respect to the approval of articles of incorporation relating to insurance companies, building and loan associations or investment companies." [35 G. A., ch. 135, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 73, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 104, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 70; 29 G. A., ch. 66, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 41, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 40, §§ 1, 2; 26 G. A., ch. 98; 17 G. A., ch. 23; C. '73, § 1060; R. 1152; C. '51, § 675.]

It is not specifically required that the acknowledgment shall be in the same form as that required for conveyances of real property, and therefore, if the venue is given at the beginning of the certificate, and the officer taking the acknowledgment subscribes as "notary public" without reciting that he is a notary public in and for the county named, the acknowledgment is sufficient, it being presumed that the officer acts only within the scope of his authority. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

The object of requiring the filing and recording of articles of incorporation is to give them the same publicity as nearly as may be as statutory charters, and their provisions are binding on all who deal with the stock of the corporation. Dempster Mfg. Co. v. Downs, 126–80, 101 N. W. 735.

A corporation cannot be held for the acts of those purporting to be its officers prior to its incorporation without some acceptance of or acquiescence in such acts evidenced by its articles or the acts of those formally elected to represent it. Middle Branch Mut. Tel. Co. v. Jones, 137–396, 115 N. W. 3.

One who does not become a member of a corporation at its organization or afterwards cannot be charged with the expense of such organization. Ibid.

SEC. 1611. Limit of indebtedness.

It is doubtful whether an insurance company is required to recite the limit of indebtedness which it may incur by its policies of insurance. At any rate, if the amount of indebtedness is reasonably ascertainable the requirements of the statute have been complied with. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

A debt contracted in excess of the maximum limitation stated in the charter is not void, but is enforceable against the corporation and parties holding under it, and gives rise only to a right of action on the part of the state because of the violation of statute, and perhaps also a liability on the officers of the corporation for the excessive debt so contracted. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 173 U. S. 99; S. C. 82 Fed. 124.

A mortgage given by a debtor corporation on its own property is not intended to be governed by the last sentence of this section (embodying a proviso added to § 1061 of the code of '73 by ch. 22 of 20 G. A.). This sentence applies to the class and not the condition. It singles out this particular kind of corporation, and it is not meant to point out such a state of affairs which it was thought might exist with any corporation. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

The corporation having received the full benefit of the consideration for indebtedness contracted in excess of the limitation of its indebtedness, it cannot question the validity of indebtedness thus incurred. And it is immaterial that money borrowed in excess of the limitation of indebtedness is used for an ultra vires purpose. Traer v. Lucas Prospecting Co., 124–107, 99 N. W. 290.

The provisions of this section limiting the indebtedness of a railroad enlarge instead of limit the power of railway corporations in the matter of incurring indebtedness for construction, and such corporations may contract an indebtedness for that purpose to the extent of $16,000 per mile of single track notwithstanding the provision of code § 2049 that such corporation may issue bonds to refund indebtedness or improve its property. Barnes v. Eastern Iowa R. Co., 155–721, 134 N. W. 90, 136 N. W. 1053.

SEC. 1612. Place of business—how changed—notice or process—upon whom and how served. Any corporation organized under the laws of this state shall fix upon and designate in its articles of incorporation its principal place of business which must be in this state, and if outside the limits of a city or town then its post-office address must be given. The place of business so designated shall not be changed except through an amendment to its articles of incorporation. Its place of business shall be in charge of an agent of the corporation and shall be the place where it shall hold its meetings, keep a record of its proceedings and its stock and transfer books. Provided that any corporation organized under the laws of this state that does not maintain an office in the county of its organization, or transact business in this state, shall file with the secretary of state a written instrument duly signed and sealed, authorizing the secretary of state to acknowledge service of[1] notice or process for and in behalf of such corporation in this state, and consenting that service of notice or process may be made upon the secretary of state, and when so made shall be taken and held as valid as if served according to the laws of this state, and waiving all claim or right or error by reason of such acknowledgment of service. Such notice or process, with a copy thereof, may be mailed to the secretary of state at Des Moines, Iowa, in a registered letter addressed to him by his official title, and he shall immediately upon its receipt acknowledge service thereon in behalf of the defendant corporation by writing thereon, giving the date thereof, and shall immediately return such notice or process in a registered letter to the clerk of the court in which the suit is pending, addressed by his official title, and shall also forthwith mail such copy, with a copy of his acknowledgment of service written thereon, in a registered letter addressed to the corporation or person who shall be named or designated by the corporation in such written instrument. If any such corporation shall fail to file with the secretary of state the power and authority to acknowledge service as herein provided on or before July first, nineteen hundred and six, it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to notify such corporation to file such power and authority within thirty days thereafter, and in case of failure to comply with such notice it shall be the duty of the attorney-general of the state to proceed against such corporation to forfeit its charter and wind up its affairs. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 10; 33 G. A., ch. 104, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 64.]

SEC. 1613. Notice published—what to contain. A notice must be published once each week for four weeks in succession in some newspaper as convenient as practicable to the principal place of business, which must contain:

1. The name of the corporation and its principal place of business;
2. The general nature of the business to be transacted;
3. The amount of capital stock authorized, and the times and conditions on which it is to be paid in;
4. The time of the commencement and termination of the corporation;
5. By what officers or persons its affairs are to be conducted, and the times when and manner in which they will be elected;
6. The highest amount of indebtedness to which it is at any time to subject itself;
7. Whether private property is to be exempt from corporate debts.

Proof of such publication, by affidavit of the publisher of the newspaper in which it is made, shall be filed with the secretary of state, and shall be evidence of the fact. [29 G. A., ch. 67, § 1; C. '73, §§ 1062–3; R., §§ 1154–5; C. '51, §§ 677–8.]

As corporations may be legally organized in whose articles there is no limitation which exempts the individual property of its stockholders, the requirements that the notice make disclosure on this question is important, and where the publication is in an obscure newspaper, published at a place remote from that of the principal place of business, such publication does not meet the requirements of the statute. Berkson v. Anderson, 115–674, 87 N. W. 402.

The publication of notice in a newspaper published at a place remote from the principal place of business is not sufficient compliance with the statute. Clinton Novelty Iron Works v. Neiting, 134–311, 111 N. W. 974.

It is not essential to state in the notice of incorporation the terms and conditions on which the amount of stock authorized to be issued in the future, in excess of that provided to be issued on organization, shall be paid. Brinkley Car Works & Mfg. Co. v. Curfman, 136–476, 114 N. W. 12.

Where the notice indicates that stockholders are not to be liable in suits against the corporation it sufficiently complies with the requirement that it shall state whether private property is to be exempt from corporation debts. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Gilinsky, 142–178, 120 N. W. 476.

The requirement that the affidavit for publication be filed with the secretary of state is not mandatory. If the form of notice is sufficient and it is published as required, the requirements as to publicity have substantially been complied with. Ibid.

SEC. 1613-a. Defective publication—legalized. That each corporation heretofore incorporated under the laws of the state of Iowa which have [has] caused notice of their [its] incorporation to be published once each week for four consecutive weeks in some daily, semiweekly or triweekly newspaper, instead of causing the same to be published in each issue of such newspaper for four consecutive weeks are hereby legalized and are declared legal incorporations the same as though the law had been complied with in all respects in regard to the publication of notice. [29 G. A., ch. 226, § 1.]

SEC. 1614. May begin business.

The filing with the secretary of state of the proof of publication of notice is not essential to the authority of the corporation to do business. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Gilinsky, 142–178, 120 N. W. 476.

Where the publication is made within three months after the date of the certificate of incorporation the stockholders will not be liable for any indebtedness contracted in the interval. Lowden Sav. Bank v. Neiting, 147–119, 124 N. W. 185.

SEC. 1614-a. When time limit for publication has expired—legalized. That in all instances where the incorporators of corporations for pecuniary profit have omitted to publish notice of incorporation within three months from the date of the certificate of incorporation issued by the secretary of state, but have published notice thereafter, in manner and form as by law required, such notices are hereby legalized and shall have the same force and effect as though published within said period of three months, as to all acts of said corporation from the date of said completed publication. [33 G. A., ch. 272, § 1.]

SEC. 1614-b. Pending litigation—not affected. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as to affect pending litigation. [33 G. A., ch. 272, § 2.]

SEC. 1614-c. Annual report—what shown. Any corporation, organized under the laws of this state or under the laws of any other state, territory or any foreign country, which has complied with the laws of this state relating to the organization of corporations and secured a certificate of incorporation or permit to transact business in this state, and any corporation that may hereafter organize and become incorporated under the laws of this state, and shall secure a certificate of incorporation or permit to transact business in this state, and any foreign corporation that may hereafter comply with the laws of this state relating to foreign corporations and secure a permit to transact business within this state, shall, between the first day of July and the first day of August of each year, make an annual report to the secretary of state, said report to be in such form as he may prescribe, upon a blank to be prepared by him for that purpose, and such report shall contain the following information:

1. Name and post-office address of the corporation;
2. The amount of capital stock authorized;
3. The amount of capital stock actually issued and outstanding;
4. Par value of such stock, designating whether preferred or common stock, and amount of each kind;
5. The names and post-office addresses of its officers and directors and whether any change of place of business has been made during the year previous to making said report. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

SEC. 1614-d. Signature and oath—by whom—permit—exemption. The report required by section one of this act shall be signed and sworn to by an officer of the corporation and when filed with the secretary of state shall be accompanied by the fee required in section three hereof and also by an application for a permit to be issued to said corporation under the provisions of this act; said permit to be in such form as the secretary of state may prescribe and which shall be in force and effect for one year from and after the first day of July of the year in which it is issued, except that where the term of a corporate existence shall expire in less than a year from the first day of July aforesaid, then said permit shall be issued for such unexpired term only, provided, however, that any corporation organized under the laws of this state, and any foreign corporation filing a certified copy of its articles of incorporation after the first day of April of any year, shall be exempt from the provisions of this act for the period ending one year from the first day of July following, after which it shall be subject to all the provisions of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 2.]

SEC. 1614-e. Annual fee. Every corporation whose corporate period has not expired, which has heretofore obtained, or may hereafter obtain, a certificate of incorporation or permit under the provisions of chapter one of title nine of the code to transact business in this state as a corporation, whether the same be a domestic or a foreign corporation, shall pay to the secretary of state an annual fee in the sum of one dollar. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 3.]

SEC. 1614-f. Failure to make report and pay fee—penalties—list of delinquents—action to collect. Any corporation organized under the laws of this state, and any foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state, which shall fail to make the report and pay the annual fee provided for in this act, and within the time required in section one hereof, shall incur the following penalties beginning with the month of September and dating from the first day thereof, to wit: For the month of September the sum of two dollars, for the month of October the sum of four dollars, for the month of November the sum of six dollars, for the month of December the sum of eight dollars, and for each month thereafter the sum of ten dollars. If on the first day of May following, such corporation shall not have filed the annual report and paid the annual fee, together with all monthly penalties due at the time of filing said report and paying said fee, the secretary of state shall furnish to the attorney-general a list of delinquent domestic corporations and he may direct the county attorney of the county in which the corporation has its principal place of business to bring suit for the collection of the fee and penalties then due, or may bring such action himself. Any domestic corporation may, prior to the first day of May, nineteen hundred ten, and the first day of May of any subsequent year, escape the payment of fee and penalties by dissolving the corporation and filing with the secretary of state a proof of publication of notice of dissolution. Any foreign corporation that shall fail to make the annual report and pay the annual fee and penalties that may be due shall thereby forfeit its right to do business within this state. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 4.]

SEC. 1614-g. Notice of delinquency. During the month of August of each year the secretary of state shall prepare a list of all delinquent corporations and file the same in his office, and on or before the first day of September he shall send by registered mail to each delinquent a notice of such delinquency and of the penalties provided in section four of this act, and that if the annual report required is not filed and the annual fee paid, together with penalties due, on or before the last day of April, that on the first day of May following, notice of such delinquency will be filed with the attorney-general who may cause action to be brought for the collection of the fee and penalties due the state. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 5.]

SEC. 1614-h. Forfeiture of permit—entry of cancellation. On the first day of May following the date of the notice provided for in section five of this act, all foreign corporations that have not complied with the provisions of this act shall forfeit the right to transact business in this state and a declaration of forfeiture and cancellation shall be entered upon the margin of the record of the certified copy of the articles of incorporation of such company in the office of the secretary of state or in such other record as the secretary of state may provide. [33 G. A., ch. 105, 6.]

SEC. 1614-i. Certain corporations exempted. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as imposing an annual fee or requiring a report from any corporation organized for religious, educational, scientific or charitable purposes or other corporations organized under chapter two of title nine of the code, or of any corporation engaged in the banking business, nor to insurance companies or associations who have paid the taxes provided in sections thirteen hundred thirty-three and thirteen hundred thirty-three-d of the supplement to the code, 1907, and received a certificate of authority from the state auditor. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 20; 33 G. A., ch. 105, § 7.]

SEC. 1614-j. Complying corporations listed with county recorder. After the first day of November and not later than the first day of January of each year, the secretary of state shall compile an alphabetical list of the domestic and foreign corporations that have complied with the provisions of this act, together with post-office address, and mail a copy thereof to each county recorder in this state, who shall file the same in his office. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 8.]

SEC. 1614-k. Annual notice of requirements by secretary of state. It shall be the duty of the secretary of state between the first day of May and the first day of July of each year to notify all corporations whose corporate period has not expired, or that have not dissolved according to law, that are subject to the provisions of this act, of the requirements herein made, enclosing therewith a blank form of report and application as herein provided; and the mailing of said notice at Des Moines, Iowa, addressed to the corporation at its post-office address as shown by the records of his office shall be deemed a full, complete and legal notice for the purpose of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 105, § 9.]

SEC. 1615. Change of articles—fees. That section sixteen hundred fifteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Amendments to articles of incorporation making changes in any of the provisions of the articles may be made at any annual meeting of the stockholders or special meeting called for that purpose, and they shall be valid only when recorded, approved and published as the original articles are required to be. If no increase is made in the amount of capital stock, a certificate fee of one dollar and a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words must be paid; no recording fee less than fifty cents. Where capital stock is increased the certificate fee shall be omitted but a filing fee of one dollar per thousand dollars of such increase together with a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words shall be paid. Such amendments need only be signed and acknowledged by such officers of the corporation as may be designated by the stockholders to perform such act." [33 G. A., ch. 104, § 5.] [22 G. A., ch. 88; C. '73, § 1065; R. § 1157; C. '51, § 680.]

Where a renewal of the corporate franchise is authorized it may be effected by amendment of the articles as provided in this section. Lamb v. Dobson, 117–124, 90 N. W. 607.

SEC. 1616. Individual property liable.

Aside from statute, stockholders of a de facto corporation cannot be held liable as partners on account of irregularities, omissions or mistakes in incorporating or organizing the corporation. The statute does not create a contract liability. Therefore, those dealing with a corporation having actual notice of the articles, and after publication of the notice required by statute, cannot hold the stockholders individually liable because of irregularity in the organization and publication. Seaton v. Grimm, 110–145, 81 N. W. 225.

Stockholders who participated in the organization of the company and became responsible to the same extent as other stockholders for failure to have notice published, cannot hold such other stockholders liable individually on the ground that there was not a proper publication of notice. Ibid.

"Organization and publicity" should be construed "organization or publicity." Ibid.

A subscriber to stock may disaffirm his contract on account of defects in the organization of the company, where it has been represented to him that the organization was legal and complete, and is not bound to go to the records or other sources of information before relying upon such representation. Maine v. Midland Inv. Co., 132–272, 109 N. W. 801.

Whether one who buys stock in a defectively organized corporation incurs liability, in virtue of the statutory provision, for debts of the corporation incurred prior to the date of the purchase, is an open question in this state. Houts v. Sioux City Brass Works, 134–484, 110 N. W. 166.

One who becomes a stockholder within the three months allowed for the publication of notice is liable for the debts incurred after he became a stockholder, if he had knowledge of the facts connected with the organization of the corporation at the time he became a member or when the indebtedness was contracted. It is immaterial that he was not in any way responsible for the failure of the corporation to give proper notice of its organization. Clinton Novelty Iron Works v. Neiting, 134–311, 111 N. W. 974.

Substantial compliance with the statute as to giving notice of organization is sufficient and irregularities which are purely technical and not likely to work appreciable injury to one dealing with the corporation will not have the effect of charging stockholders with personal liability for the corporate debts; and held that failure to state in the published notice the times and condition of payment of that portion of the capital stock authorized but not proposed to be at once issued was not such failure to comply with the statute as to render the stockholders individually liable. Brinkley Car Works & Mfg. Co. v. Curfman, 136–476, 114 N. W. 12.

The personal liability statute has no application to errors arising out of the subsequent conduct of the business of the corporation either as between the corporation and its stockholders or between the corporation and the general public. Ibid.

Defects in the proceeding for incorporation do not deprive the corporation of a de facto existence and are not grounds for winding up the corporation so long as it remains solvent and able to pay its obligations. Troutman v. Council Bluffs Street Fair, etc. Co., 142–140, 120 N. W. 730.

SEC. 1617. Dissolution—notice of.

A sale of the assets of a corporation is not necessarily equivalent to a dissolution, and there is no statute denying such power of sale. Beidenkopf v. Des Moines L. Ins. Co., 142 N. W. 434.

It is doubtful whether a dissolution by unanimous consent of the stockholders, without the notice contemplated in this section, is valid. United States Gypsum Co. v. Hoxie, (C. C.) 172 Fed. 504.

SEC. 1618. Duration—renewal—certificate and articles to be recorded—fees—notice—proof filed—exemptions. That section sixteen hundred eighteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Corporations for the construction and operation, or the operation alone, of steam railways, interurban railways and street railways, for the establishment and conduct of savings banks, or for the transaction of the business of life insurance, may be formed to endure fifty years; those for other purposes, not to exceed twenty years; but in either case they may be renewed from time to time for the same or shorter periods, within three months before or after the time for the termination thereof, if a majority of the votes cast at any regular election, or special election called for that purpose, be in favor of such renewal, and if those voting for such renewal will purchase at its real value the stock voted against such renewal. Such renewals shall date from the expiration of the corporate period which it succeeds and shall be limited in duration to a period not exceeding the time allowed by law to the same class of corporations. Within five days after the said action of the stockholders for the renewal of any corporation, a certificate, showing the proceedings resulting in such renewal, sworn to by the president and secretary of the corporation, or by such other officers as may be designated by the stockholders, together with the articles of incorporation, which may be the original articles of incorporation or amended and substituted articles, shall be filed for record in the office of the recorder of the county in which the principal place of business of said corporation is situated, and the same shall be recorded. Upon filing with the secretary of state the said certificate and articles of incorporation, within ten days after they are filed with the recorder, and upon the payment to the secretary of state of a fee of twenty-five dollars, together with a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words and an additional fee of one dollar per thousand for all authorized stock in excess of ten thousand dollars, the secretary of state shall record the said certificate and the said articles of incorporation in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, and shall issue a proper certificate for the renewal of the corporation. Within three months after the filing of the certificate and articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, the corporation so renewed shall publish a notice of renewal. Said notice shall be published once each week for four weeks in succession in a newspaper as convenient as practicable to the principal place of business of the corporation, and proof of publication filed in the office of the secretary of state, and shall contain the matters and things required to be published by section sixteen hundred thirteen of the code, relating to original incorporations. Farmers' mutual coöperative creamery associations, domestic and domestic local building and loan associations, and corporations organized for the manufacture of sugar from beets grown in the state of Iowa, shall be exempt from the payment of the incorporation fee, provided herein. [34 G. A., ch. 74, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 73, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 13; 29 G. A., ch. 66, § 2; 28 G. A., ch. 56, § 1; C. '73, § 1069; R. § 1158; C. '51, § 681.]

Where a corporation has reincorporated with the same membership and for the purpose of carrying on the same business and assuming the obligations of the old company, the new company is liable on the contracts of the old. Benesh v. Mill Owners' Mut. F. Ins. Co., 103–465, 72 N. W. 674.

A corporation which took proper steps for renewal and tendered to the secretary of state the fees required at the time, held not subject to the provisions of the amending statute requiring higher fees in cases of renewal. Lamb v. Dobson, 117–124, 90 N. W. 607.

The renewal of a corporation may be made by an amendment of its articles as provided in code § 1615. Ibid.

SEC. 1618-a. Renewal of corporate existence. The corporate existence of any state or savings bank may be renewed or extended, from time to time, for a period not longer than the time for which such banks may organize, by an affirmative vote of two thirds of the shareholders thereof, at a stockholders' meeting held for that purpose, within three months before or after the time of the expiration of its charter as shown by its certificate of incorporation issued by the secretary of state. Such meeting shall be called upon a notice signed by at least two of the officers of the bank and by a majority of its directors, specifying the object of the meeting, and the time and place thereof, published once a week for four consecutive weeks before the time at which the same is to be held, in some newspaper in the county wherein the bank is located. If at such meeting the required vote is given, a certificate of the proceedings showing compliance with the foregoing provisions and the time to which the corporate period is to be continued, shall be signed and verified by the affidavit of the chairman and secretary of the meeting, certified to by a majority of the board of directors, and together with the articles of incorporation, as they exist at the date of the meeting, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county and filed, recorded and fees paid, as provided in section sixteen hundred eighteen of the code and shall be by the secretary of state certified to the auditor of state. When the meeting is held previous to the expiration of the charter of the bank, such amendments may be made to the articles of incorporation, subject to the provisions thereof, as may be deemed necessary and whether held before or after the extension of the corporate period, such changes may be made in the articles as are necessary to show the time to which the corporate period is extended and the names of the officers and directors at the time of the renewal or extension. When the above has been complied with, the auditor of state shall issue to such bank a certificate as provided in section eighteen hundred forty-three of the code, notice of which shall be published as required by the provisions of said section. [31 G. A., ch. 65.]

[The above section is made applicable to §§ 1889-d to 1889-n by § 1889-m. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1618-b. Fees—since when due—repeal. That section sixteen hundred eighteen-b of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.] [28 G. A., ch. 56, § 2.]

SEC. 1619. Legislative control.

By express provision of the statute, building and loan associations are subject to legislative control. Wood v. Iowa Bldg. & Loan Assn., 126–464, 102 N. W. 410.

A franchise granted to a street railway company is subject to subsequent modification. Marshalltown Light, P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127–637, 103 N. W. 1005.

While the legislature cannot by the amendment of a corporate charter render invalid a contract executed by a corporation, it may require that the corporation continue in business only on compliance with new conditions imposed, even though that involves a modification of its contract rights. St. John v. Iowa Business Men's B. & L. Assn., 136–448, 113 N. W. 863.

SEC. 1620. Fraud—penalty for.

These provisions authorize the winding up of all such associations as are engaged in the issuance of investment securities on the installment plan provided they do not comply with the provisions of § 1920-k. State v. Syndicate Land Co., 142–22, 120 N. W. 327.

Where a creditor of a corporation sues in his own personal right to recover from an officer losses which he has sustained by extending credit to the corporation, his action must be founded on deceit and not upon negligence and it must ordinarily be brought at law and not in equity. U. S. Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Corning State Sav. Bank, 154–588, 134 N. W. 857.

SEC. 1621. Diversion of funds.

It is only persons injured by the diversion of funds who are deemed to be defrauded thereby. One who is not a creditor at the time of the diversion is not injured thereby. Benge v. Eppard, 110–86, 81 N. W. 183.

As to one who is a creditor at the time of the diversion there is no liability if, notwithstanding the diversion, the corporation had sufficient property remaining to pay all debts. Ibid.

The officers or agents of an insolvent corporation who have absorbed its property may be made codefendants with the corporation in an action to recover a debt due by the corporation; and it is not necessary in such case to show that the assets of the corporation have been exhausted nor that its liability has already been adjudicated. Swartley v. Oak Leaf Creamery Co., 135–573, 113 N. W. 496.

The stockholders of a corporation cannot divide its property or assets among themselves without first paying the corporate debts. Luedecke v. Des Moines Cabinet Co., 140–223, 118 N. W. 456.

In a particular case held that what was relied upon as diversion of funds did not result in injury to creditors, being nothing more than a retirement of outstanding stock. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Gilinsky, 142–178, 120 N. W. 476.

The manifest object of these provisions is to enforce diligence and fidelity on the part of corporate officers and afford a prompt and efficient remedy to creditors who have been injuriously affected thereby. Wisconsin & Ark. Lumber Co. v. Cable, 140 N. W. 211.

Corporate creditors are entitled in equity to the payment of their debts before any distribution of corporate property is made among the stockholders. Ibid.

SEC. 1624. By-laws posted.

The statutory requirements that the corporation shall keep posted a copy of its by-laws and a statement of the amount of capital stock subscribed and the amount of indebtedness, is primarily for the benefit of the public, to be enforced by mandamus at the suit of a party injured. Boardman v. Marshalltown Grocery Co., 105–445, 75 N. W. 343.

By-laws not posted as required by statute are not binding on a stranger without actual notice, but failure to post as required does not constitute a failure to adopt such by-laws. Fee v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 110–271, 81 N. W. 483.

SEC. 1626. Transfer of shares.

A transfer of stock not made upon the books of the company as required by statute will not be effectual as against an attachment of such stock for debts of the person who appears from the books to be the owner. Knowledge on the part of the attaching creditor or the officer of the transfer of the stock will not defeat the lien of the attachment. Ottumwa Screen Co. v. Stodghill, 103–437, 72 N. W. 669; Perkins v. Lyons, 111–192, 82 N. W. 486.

A stipulation for an assignment of shares of stock, actually in the custody of the transferee, implies an obligation to have a formal and effectual transfer thereof made on the books of the corporation. First Nat. Bank v. Park, 117–552, 91 N. W. 826.

The holder of stock as collateral has authority to have proper entry of transfer of such stock made upon the company's books. Ibid.

A person who is entitled to have shares of stock issued to him, or to have stock owned by him transferred on the books of the company, may maintain an action of mandamus to compel the proper issuance or transfer. Hair v. Burnell, 106 Fed. 280.

So long as the stock stands on the books in the name of the judgment debtor it can be levied on and sold, although the creditor has actual notice of a transfer thereof by the debtor. Ibid.

One who has purchased stock which is subject to assessment to the corporation, is not liable for the payment of such assessment until the stock has been transferred to him, and any person who has without right paid for such stock and had it transferred to himself on the books of the company, and has made payment of such assessment, has no claim on the stock except for the repayment of the assessment. Loetscher v. Dillon, 119–202, 93 N W. 98.

The transferee of shares of stock takes same subject to any lien thereon created by the articles in favor of the corporation as against a prior holder and such lien attaches also to dividends declared during its existence. Dempster Mfg. Co. v. Downs, 126–80, 101 N. W. 735.

These provisions relate to corporations organized under the laws of the state and doing business in the state, and the books referred to are required to be kept within the state where they can be inspected. Perkins v. Lyons, 111–192, 82 N. W. 486.

In a particular case held that a pencil notation on the stub of the stock book, made long prior to a levy on the stock, although not dated, was sufficient to constitute a transfer. Ibid.

The provisions of this section relating to transfer of stock as collateral security held not to be retroactive. Ibid.

A private individual cannot require that the books of the company be at all times kept open for public inspection. His right to inspect, if any, is personal. Neither can he have an order with reference to future inspection. Boardman v. Marshalltown Grocery Co., 105–445, 75 N. W. 343.

The design of this section is to enable stockholders to hypothecate their shares of stock without cancellation thereof and the issuance of new stock and yet protect the pledgee against the claims of the pledgor and purchaser without notice. Tierney v. Ledden, 143–286, 121 N. W. 1050.

SEC. 1627. Amount paid in. No certificate or shares of stock shall be issued, delivered or transferred by any corporation, officer or agent thereof, or by the owner of such certificate or shares, without having indorsed on the face thereof what amount or portion of the par value has been paid to the corporation issuing the same, and whether such payment has been in money or property. Any person violating the provisions of this section, or knowingly making a false statement on such certificate, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. This section shall not apply to railway or quasi public corporations organized before the first day of October, eighteen hundred ninety-seven. [28 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.]

Failure to endorse on a certificate of stock the amount and manner of payment therefor will not render a contract in relation to such stock void, especially where it appears that full value in property was paid for the stock, and that such endorsement would not have altered the situation of the parties. French v. Northwestern Laundry, 132–81, 107 N. W. 430.

Nonuser of the franchises does not operate as a forfeiture in such sense as to prevent corporations doing business for the purpose of winding up their affairs. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Gilinsky, 142–178, 120 N. W. 476.

SEC. 1629. Expiration.

The fact that the charter of the corporation has expired will not show that it cannot be the owner of property. After the expiration of the term of the charter the corporation continues to live for the purpose of discharging its obligations and disposing of its property. State v. Fogerty, 105–32, 74 N. W. 754.

The corporate existence may continue after the period limited in the charter for the purpose of winding up the corporate affairs. Rogers v. Western Mut. Life Assn., 123–722, 99 N. W. 589.

The statute contemplates the continuance of the liability of stockholders until the business of the corporation is wound up at least so far as valid indebtedness has been contracted while the corporation has a legal existence. The liability of stockholders does not become that of partners after the expiration of the period fixed by the charter. Elson v. Wright, 134–634, 112 N. W. 105.

It is only corporations whose charters expire by limitation, or the voluntary act of the stockholders, which continue for the purpose of winding up their affairs. Corporations dissolved by action of court have no further legal existence and cannot be represented by officers or agents. State v. Fidelity L. & T. Co., 113–439, 85 N. W. 638.

A court of equity may wind up the affairs of a corporation whose charter has expired, if internal dissensions in the corporation make it necessary. This section only authorizes continuance of the business by the corporation managers for the amicable settlement of its affairs. But a corporation whose charter has not expired will not be dissolved at the suit of a stockholder, and it is error to direct a sale of its property in such suit. Stewart v. Pierce, 116–733, 89 N. W. 234.

The forfeiture of the corporate franchise does not of itself create of the stockholders a partnership nor does the transaction of business in the name of the corporation create a liability against the stockholders other than those who participate therein. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Gilinsky, 142–178, 120 N. W. 476.

A corporation cannot by its own voluntary dissolution and distribution of its property or assets among its stockholders relieve such property and assets from liability for unliquidated demands. Wisconsin & Ark. Lumber Co. v. Cable, 140 N. W. 200.

After dissolution of a corporation by unanimous consent of the stockholders, it still continues to exist for the purpose of winding up its affairs, and to this end it may rightly maintain actions at law or suits in equity to preserve or recover its property. United States Gypsum Co. v. Hoxie, (C. C.) 172 Fed. 504.

SEC. 1631. Liability of stockholders.

Although a certificate of stock recites that it is fully paid, yet if it expressly declares that it is subject to assessment for purposes named, such an assessment will be valid and can be enforced against the holder of the stock. Western Imp. Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank, 103–455, 72 N. W. 657.

Such stock is not fully paid up stock and the holder thereof is individually liable under statutory provisions, even if the articles of incorporation provide otherwise. Ibid.

The corporation may maintain an action against the stockholder for an assessment lawfully made and it is not necessary that it shall appear that the corporation is insolvent. Ibid.

Where a call for an assessment on stock does not specify the time, place or person to whom payment is to be made it will be presumed that the assessment is payable on demand at the place of business of the corporation and to the officer authorized to receive money due to it. Ibid.

When property is received by the corporation in payment of stock at an excessive valuation it is to be considered as constituting payment only to the extent of its real value and the owners of such stock are liable to creditors for the difference between the actual value of the property and the face value of the stock. Stout v. Hubbell, 104–499, 73 N. W. 1060.

It is immaterial that the articles of incorporation show that certain shares of stock have been issued as fully paid up in exchange for property. Creditors have a right to presume in such case that the property received is of the actual value of the face of the stock, and if it is of less value the holder of such stock is liable to the creditors for the difference. Ibid.

The stockholder after the transfer of his stock remains liable for indebtedness of the corporation existing at the time of such transfer. White v. Green, 105–176, 74 N. W. 928; White v. Marquardt, 105–145, 74 N. W. 930.

One who in fact becomes a holder of stock incurs the liability of a stockholder for unpaid installments, although the transfer of the stock to him is not recorded in the books of the company; and upon a subsequent transfer of the stock by him effected by means of a transfer at his instance directly from the original holder to the last purchaser, he nevertheless remains liable in the same way that other holders of stock remain liable after transfer for liabilities of the corporation existing at the time of such transfer. White v. Marquardt, 105–145, 74 N. W. 930.

Indebtedness of the corporation not matured at the time of the transfer of stock is nevertheless a liability for which the stockholder remains liable to the extent of the unpaid installments of his stock. White v. Green, 105–176, 74 N. W. 928.

Property may be accepted in exchange for stock, providing it is taken at its true value. The parties have the right in good faith to agree on the value of the property taken, but this should not be speculative or fictitious. State Trust Co. v. Turner, 111–664, 82 N. W. 1029.

But a creditor of the corporation who has become such with knowledge that stock, although issued as fully paid, has not in fact been paid for, cannot enforce his claim against the holders of such stock, nor can his assignee do so. Ibid.

In an action against a stockholder for an unpaid subscription, the burden is on the creditor seeking to enforce payment by the stockholder to prove that payment by the stockholder has not been made. Merrill v. Timbrell, 123–375, 98 N. W. 879.

In a proceeding by the auditor of state to wind up a bank and distribute its assets among the creditors, the receiver may have an order for the assessment of stockholders based on an estimate of the amount for which they will be liable under the statutory provision for double liability, and the stockholders may be compelled to pay such assessment before the assets of the bank are distributed, subject to the right to a return of any assets left undisposed of after the debts are all paid. State ex rel. v. Union Stock Yards State Bank, 103–549, 70 N. W. 752, 72 N. W. 1076.

The court in a receivership proceeding may order an assessment against stockholders not made parties. Elson v. Wright, 134–634, 112 N. W. 105; Paine v. Mueller, 150–340, 130 N. W. 133.

The promoters of the corporation cannot purchase property and sell to the corporation at an advanced price unless the corporation has full and complete knowledge and consents thereto. Caffee v. Berkley, 141–344, 118 N. W. 267.

SEC. 1633. Indemnity—contribution.

A stockholder who has been compelled to pay more than his just proportion of unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock may enforce contribution from the other stockholders who have not paid their just proportion, and this rule is applicable to a case where a stockholder has voluntarily paid more than his just proportion, but liability in this respect may be determined by the contract between the parties, and if the stockholder pays creditors, knowing that the other stockholders have an agreement by which their stock is to be treated as fully paid up, he cannot recover against them for contribution. Esgen v. Smith, 113–25, 84 N. W. 954.

SEC. 1636. Estoppel.

In an action brought by a corporation to protect its property from wrongful acts the defendant cannot set up want of legal organization as a defense. State Security Bank v. Hoskins, 130–339, 106 N. W. 764.

SEC. 1637. Foreign corporation—filing articles—process—application—increase of capital—fees. Any corporation for pecuniary profit, other than for carrying on mercantile or manufacturing business as clearly defined and restricted by its articles of incorporation, organized under the laws of another state, or of any territory of the United States, or of any foreign country, which has transacted business in the state of Iowa since the first day of September, eighteen hundred eighty-six, or desires hereafter to transact business in this state, and which has not a permit to do such business, shall file with the secretary of state a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, duly attested by the secretary of state or other state officer in whose office the original articles were filed, accompanied by a resolution of its board of directors or stockholders authorizing the filing thereof, and also authorizing service of process to be made upon any of its officers or agents in this state engaged in transacting its business, and requesting the issuance to such corporation of a permit to transact business in this state; said application to contain a stipulation that such permit shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter. Said application shall also contain a statement subscribed and sworn to by at least two of the principal officers of the corporation, setting forth the following facts, to wit:

1. The total authorized capital of the corporation;

2. The total paid up capital of the corporation;

3. The total value of all assets of the corporation, including money and property other than money, represented by capital, surplus, undivided profits, bonds, promissory notes, certificates of indebtedness, or other designation, whether carried as money on hand or in bank, real estate or personal property of any description;

4. The total value of money and all other property the corporation has in use or held as investment in the state of Iowa, at the time the statement is made (if any);

5. The total value of money and all other property the corporation proposes or expects to make use of in the state of Iowa, during the ensuing year;

The secretary of state can make such independent and further investigation as to the property within this state owned by any such corporation as he may desire, and upon the true facts determine the value thereof, and fix the fee to be paid by such company. Before a permit is issued authorizing such corporation to transact business in the state of Iowa, said corporation shall pay to the secretary of state a fee of ten cents per one hundred words for recording the certified copy of the articles of incorporation, with resolution and statement as previously set forth, and a filing fee of twenty-five dollars upon ten thousand dollars or less of money and property of such company actually within the state of Iowa, and of one dollar for each one thousand dollars of such money or property within this state in excess of ten thousand dollars. If from time to time the amount of money or other property in use in the state of Iowa by said foreign corporation is increased, said corporation shall at the time of said increase, or at the time of making annual report to the secretary of state, in July of each year, file with the secretary of state a sworn statement showing the amount of such increase, and shall pay a filing fee thereon of one dollar for each one thousand dollars or fraction thereof of such increase, together with a recording fee of ten cents per one hundred words, but not less than fifty cents. The secretary of state shall upon request furnish a blank upon which to make report of such increase of capital in use within the state. Any corporation transacting business in this state prior to the first day of September, eighteen hundred eighty-six, shall be exempt from the payment of the fees required under the provisions of this section. The secretary of state shall thereupon issue to such corporation a permit, in such form as he may prescribe, for the transaction of the business of such corporation, and upon the receipt of such permit said corporation shall be permitted and authorized to conduct and carry on its business in this state. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent any foreign corporation from buying, selling and otherwise dealing in notes, bonds, mortgages and other securities. [34 G. A., ch. 75, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 104, § 7.] [21 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

[The above section is made applicable to certain public utility corporations by § 1641-1 herein. EDITOR.]

It is within the power of the state to prescribe the method by which corporations doing business within its jurisdiction may be brought into court and to designate the officer or agent of such corporation upon whom the process necessary to commence an action may be served. Green v. Equitable Mut. L. & End. Assn., 105–628, 75 N. W. 635.

The permit here required is not necessary to enable a foreign corporation to purchase property in this state and transport the same through the state. Ware Cattle Co. v. Anderson, 107–231, 77 N. W. 1026.

The fact that statutory requirements as to foreign corporations have not been complied with by the corporation cannot be taken advantage of by one who has received the benefits of a contract with such corporation. Spinney v. Miller, 114–210, 86 N. W. 317.

The exception as to the doing business in the state by foreign corporations covers the transaction of receiving and accepting a note and mortgage for a valid consideration when such transaction is independent of and not connected with any form of business which the company is prohibited from transacting without a permit. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Cushman, 130–378, 106 N. W. 934.

A mortgagor who has received and retained the benefits of the transaction in which the mortgage is given cannot be heard to assert its invalidity on the ground that the mortgagee is a foreign corporation which has failed to comply with the statutes prescribing the terms upon which such corporations may do business in the state, the state alone being entitled to take advantage of the failure of the corporation to comply with the statute. Ibid.

It is no defense to a contract entered into by a foreign corporation that when the contract was made it did not have a permit to do business in the state. Iowa Lillooet Gold Mining Co. v. United States F. & G. Co., 146 Fed. 437.

In a direct action by the state to oust a foreign corporation from doing business therein without a permit, a judgment of ouster will not be awarded if the corporation complies with the law within a reasonable time. Ibid.

Although this section and the sections following by their terms exclude a manufacturing corporation, yet they are applicable to foreign corporations organized to improve water power for the purpose of producing and transmitting electricity. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co. (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

Where a foreign corporation has been recognized by the secretary of state as entitled to comply with these statutory provisions, its right to do so is not to be questioned in the courts. Ibid.

SEC. 1638. Permit.

The provisions of code § 1319 as to taxation of manufacturing corporations are applicable only to domestic corporations of that character. But the provisions of that section, such as those considered, do not amount to a discrimination between foreign and domestic manufacturing corporations. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

A foreign corporation, having complied with the statutory provisions, may proceed to condemn land for proper purposes. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co. (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

SEC. 1640. Dissolution—receiver.

From the time of entry of dissolution by the court in a proper case the corporation is dead and cannot be represented by officers or agents. Therefore held that where the decree contained an order of dissolution, the corporation, without appealing from that portion of the decree, could not ask relief with reference to other orders in the same decree. State v. Fidelity L. & T. Co., 113–439, 85 N. W. 638.

The "good cause shown" referred to in the first sentence of this section is such cause as prior to the adoption of the code would have been a ground for dissolution of the corporation by a court of equity. The substantial effect of the section is to authorize the attorney-general to maintain a suit in equity to wind up the corporation on account of some violation by it of the laws of the state or other such action as involves a violation of this chapter of the code. A court of equity is not authorized on complaint of the minority stockholders to dissolve the corporation on the grounds of lack of success in the business and mismanagement of its affairs by its officers. Platner v. Kirby, 138–259, 115 N. W. 1032

The attorney-general is authorized to maintain a suit in equity in the name of the state to wind up the corporation on account of some violation by it of the laws of the state. The remedy of the stockholder is not enlarged by these provisions. State v. Syndicate Land Co., 142–22, 120 N. W. 327.

So long as the corporation is acting within the scope of its authority and is solvent a minority stockholder cannot institute proceedings to have it dissolved because he is dissatisfied with the method in which it is being conducted. Troutman v. Council Bluffs Street Fair, etc., Co., 142–140, 120 N. W. 730.

A court of equity will not entertain a suit by stockholders to wind up the affairs of a corporation and distribute its assets in the absence of allegations of mismanagement and fraud on the part of the officers or insolvency, unless authorized to do so by statute. Mere difference among stockholders as to the advisability of the continuance of the corporate existence will not justify the appointment of a receiver. Stockholders v. Jefferson County Agr. Assn., 155–634, 136 N. W. 672.

SEC. 1641. Ownership of property. That section sixteen hundred forty-one of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Corporations organized in any foreign country or corporations organized in this country, the stock of which is owned in whole or in part by nonresident aliens, shall have the same rights, powers and privileges with regard to the purchase and ownership of real estate in this state as are granted to nonresident aliens in section twenty-eight hundred ninety of the code." [30 G. A., ch. 54.]

SEC. 1641-a. Right to vote stock—attachment. Every executor, administrator, guardian or trustee shall represent the stock in his hands at all corporate meetings, and may vote the same as a stockholder; and every person who shall pledge his stock, in the absence of a written agreement to the contrary, may represent the same at all such meetings and vote accordingly. The owner of corporate stock levied upon by attachment or other proceeding shall have the right to vote the same at all corporate meetings, until such time as that he shall have been divested of his title thereto by execution sale. But nothing contained in this section shall in any manner conflict with any provision in the articles of incorporation, or the by-laws of the corporation issuing the stock. [30 G. A., ch. 55.]

SEC. 1641-b. Capital stock—how issued—executive council to fix value—certain elements of value considered. That from and after the passage of this act no corporation organized under the laws of the state of Iowa, except building and loan associations as defined and provided for in chapter thirteen, title nine of the code, shall issue any capital stock or any certificate or certificates of shares of capital stock, or any substitute therefor, until the corporation has received the par value thereof. If it is proposed to pay for said capital stock in property or in any other thing than money, the corporation proposing the same must, before issuing capital stock in any form, apply to the executive council of the state of Iowa for leave so to do. Such application shall state the amount of capital stock proposed to be issued for a consideration other than money, and set forth specifically the property or other thing to be received in payment for such stock. Thereupon, it shall be the duty of the executive council to make investigation, under such rules as it may prescribe, and to ascertain the real value of the property or other thing which the corporation is to receive for the stock; and shall enter its finding, fixing the value at which the corporation may receive the same in payment for capital stock; and no corporation shall issue capital stock for the said property or thing in a greater amount than the value so fixed and determined by the executive council. Provided that for the purpose of encouraging the construction of new steam or electric railways, and manufacturing industries within this state, the labor performed in effecting the organization and promotion of such corporation, and the reasonable discount allowed or reasonable commission paid in negotiating and effecting the sale of bonds for the construction and equipment of such railroad or manufacturing plant, shall be taken into consideration as elements of value in fixing the amount of capital stock that may be issued. [34 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.]

SEC. 1641-c. Certificate filed with secretary of state. It shall be the duty of every corporation to file a certificate under oath with the secretary of state, within ten days after the issuance of any capital stock, stating the date of issue, the amount issued, the sum received therefor, if payment be made in money, or the property or thing taken, if such be the method of payment. [32 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

SEC. 1641-d. Cancellation of stock—reimbursement. That section sixteen hundred forty-one-d of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The capital stock of any corporation issued in violation of the terms and provisions hereof shall be void, and in a suit brought by the attorney-general on behalf of the state of Iowa in any court having jurisdiction, a decree of cancellation shall be entered; and if the corporation has received any money or thing of value for the said stock, such money or thing of value shall be returned to the individual, firm, company or corporation from whom it was received, and if represented by labor or other service of intangible nature, the value thereof shall constitute a claim against the corporation issuing stock in exchange therefor." [33 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 71, § 3.]

The mere issuance of certificates of stock constitutes a representation that the corporation has received par value therefor and a misrepresentation in this respect constitutes deceit for which the corporation and the officers in issuing such stock may be liable. Sykes v. Pure Food Cider Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 554.

The corporation and its officers are not only responsible to the persons dealing directly with them in the issuance of stock but to all who deal with the stock in reliance on the representations made. Ibid.

SEC. 1641-e. Dissolution of corporation—distribution of assets. Any corporation violating the provisions hereof shall, upon the application of the attorney-general, in behalf of the state, made to any court of competent jurisdiction, be dissolved, its affairs wound up, and its assets distributed among the stockholders other than those who have received the stock so unlawfully issued. [32 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.]

SEC. 1641-f. Penalty. Any officer, agent or representative of a corporation who violates any of the provisions hereof shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than two hundred dollars nor more than ten hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than six months. [32 G. A., ch. 71, § 5.]

SEC. 1641-g. False statements—penalty. Every director, officer or agent of any corporation or joint-stock association, who knowingly concurs in making, publishing or posting, either generally or privately to the stockholders or other persons, any written report, exhibit, or statement of its affairs or pecuniary condition, or book or notice containing any material statement which is false, or any untrue or wilfully or fraudulently exaggerated report, prospectus, account, statement of operations, values, business, profits, expenditures, or prospects, or any other paper or document intended to produce or give, or having a tendency to produce or give, the shares of stock in such corporation a greater value or a less apparent or market value than they really possess, is guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not to exceed one year, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed six months or a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. [32 G. A., ch. 72.]

SEC. 1641-h. Political contributions prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any corporation doing business within the state, or any officer, agent or representative thereof acting for such corporation, to give or contribute any money, property, labor or thing of value, directly or indirectly, to any member of any political committee, political party, or employe or representative thereof, or to any candidate for any public office or candidate for nomination to any public office or to the representative of such candidate, for campaign expenses or for any political purpose whatsoever, or to any person, partnership or corporation for the purpose of influencing or causing such person, partnership or corporation to influence any elector of the state to vote for or against any candidate for public office or for nomination for public office or to any public officer for the purpose of influencing his official action, but nothing in this act shall be construed to restrain or abridge the liberty of the press or prohibit the consideration and discussion therein of candidacies, nominations, public officers or political questions. [32 G. A., ch. 73, § 1.]

SEC. 1641-i. Solicitation from corporations prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any member of any political committee, political party, or employe or representative thereof, or candidate for any office or the representative of such candidate, to solicit, request or knowingly receive from any corporation or any officer, agent or representative thereof, any money, property or thing of value belonging to such corporation, for campaign expenses or for any political purpose whatsoever. [32 G. A., ch. 73, § 2.]

SEC. 1641-j. Testimony—immunity from prosecution. No person, and no agent or officer of any corporation within the purview of this act shall be privileged from testifying in relation to anything herein prohibited; and no person having so testified shall be liable to any prosecution or punishment for any offense concerning which he is required to give his testimony, provided that he shall not be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. [32 G. A., ch. 73, § 3.]

SEC. 1641-k. Penalty. Any person convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not less than six months or more than one year and in the discretion of the court, by fine not exceeding ten hundred dollars. [32 G. A., ch. 73, § 4.]

SEC. 1641-l. street railways or the business carried on by any of such works or plants or the ownership or control of the capital stock in any corporation owning or operating any of such works, plants, interurban or street railways by any foreign corporation in violation of the provisions of this act is hereby declared to be unlawful. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 1.]

SEC. 1641-m. Holding companies—provisions made applicable to. The provisions hereof are hereby made applicable to all corporations, including so-called "holding companies" which by or through the ownership of the capital stock in any other corporation or corporations or a series of corporations owning or controlling the capital stock of each other can or may exercise control over the capital stock of any corporation which owns, uses, operates or is concerned in the operation of any public gasworks, electric light plant, electric power plant, heating plant, waterworks, interurban or street railway located in the state of Iowa, or the business carried on by such works or plants. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 2.]

SEC. 1641-n. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 2-a.]

SEC. 1641-o. Sale of capital stock—obligations. The provisions of this act are hereby made applicable to the sale of its own capital stock by any corporation subject to the provisions of this act, whether said capital stock has been heretofore issued by said corporation or not, including the sale of so-called "treasury stock" or stock of the corporation in the hands of a trustee or where the corporation participates in any way or manner in the benefits of said sales, and also to the sale of any of the obligations of any corporation subject to the provisions of this act, the payment of which is secured by the deposit or pledge of any of the capital stock of said corporation. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 3.]

SEC. 1641-p. Violations—stock void. Shares of capital stock of any corporation owned or controlled in violation of the provisions of this act shall be void and the holder thereof shall not be entitled to exercise the powers of a shareholder of said corporation or permitted to participate in or be entitled to any of the benefits accruing to shareholders of said corporation, and section sixteen hundred thirty-nine of the code is hereby made applicable to violations of the provisions of this act; and courts and juries shall construe this act so as to prevent evasion and to accomplish the intents and purposes hereof. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 4.]

SEC. 1641-q. Dissolution—powers of courts of equity—receiver. Courts of equity shall have full power to dissolve, close up or dispose of any business or property owned, operated or controlled in violation of the provisions of this act; to dissolve any corporation owning or controlling the capital stock of any other corporation in violation of the provisions of this act and to close up or dispose of the business or property of said corporation; and if the court finds that, in order to carry out the purposes of this act, it is necessary so to do, it may dissolve the corporation issuing the stock which is owned in violation of the provisions of this act, close up the business of said corporation and dispose of its property, and the court may also appoint a receiver who shall be a resident of Iowa for any business or for any corporation which has violated the provisions of this act or of the corporation issuing the stock which is held in violation of this act. Any action to enforce the provisions of this act may be instituted by the attorney-general in the name of the state of Iowa or by a citizen in the name of

SEC. 1641-r. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts, so far as the same are in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 136, § 6.]

CHAPTER 2.

OF CORPORATIONS NOT FOR PECUNIARY PROFIT.

SECTION 1642. Organization—purposes—name.

The secular acts of religious corporations are to be governed by the same principles of law as those applied to civil corporations. Moore v. First etc. Methodist Church, 117–33, 90 N. W. 492.

The law presumes that meetings of trustees of a religious corporation are regular and upon proper notice and that contracts made by them and under which they have accepted benefits are binding. Ibid.

Corporations for religious purposes have no stock, and being without authority to levy assessments upon or enforce contributions from their members, the membership of an insolvent religious corporation may organize as a new corporation without becoming liable for the debts of the old in the absence of fraud and if no property of the old corporation is taken by the new. Allen v. North Des Moines M. E. Church, 127–96, 102 N. W. 808.

A religious society seeking to effectuate its ideals of religious life through the common ownership and management of the property of its members may acquire and hold real property and establish and conduct industrial enterprises so long as its property is owned and managed and its enterprises are conducted and extended simply to meet the needs of its members, and maintain them in a manner consistent with their religious faith, to which its total income and accumulation of property is devoted; and such a corporation will not be dissolved and its privileges forfeited on the ground that it has exceeded its corporate powers. State v. Amana Society, 132–304, 109 N. W. 894.

The management of the property of such a corporation so that it shall yield a profit to be used in promoting its business is not prohibited, the power to acquire and make use of property being incidental to and in aid of the power conferred to accomplish the business appropriate to the execution of the purposes of the organization. Ibid.

A mutual insurance company or association is a corporation for pecuniary profit, but under the provisions of code supp. § 1333-d it seems that there may be county mutual associations which are not corporations for pecuniary profit; the tax thus imposed is not a property tax, but a business or license tax. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn. v. Gilbertson, 129–658, 106 N. W. 153.

A county agricultural association is an association not for pecuniary profit. Stockholders v. Jefferson County Agr. Assn., 155–634, 136 N. W. 672.

SEC. 1642-b. Legalization. Any corporation so organized under chapter two of title nine of the code which shall have heretofore adopted articles of incorporation, or changed its name or amended its articles and some question has arisen as to whether such articles, change in name or

A bishop of the Catholic church may be for some purposes denominated a corporation sole, but he is none the less an individual and as such may act as a trustee for any lawful purpose; and a devise to such bishop by name in trust for charitable uses is not in violation of the provisions of code § 3270 which prohibits devises to corporations of more than one fourth of the property of the testator. Rine v. Wagner, 135–626, 113 N. W. 471.

The corporations herein referred to may be dissolved by operation of law, but this section does not enlarge the recognized jurisdiction of courts of equity in such cases. Stockholders v. Jefferson County Agr. Assn., 155–634, 136 N. W. 672.

CHAPTER 4.

OF INSURANCE OTHER THAN LIFE.

SECTION 1687. Name.

An insurance company, although authorized to do business by the auditor of state, may be enjoined from using a name which is so similar to the name of a foreign insurance company authorized to do business in the state that it is calculated to deceive the public. Atlas Assurance Co. v. Atlas Insurance Co., 138-228, 112 N. W. 232, 114 N. W. 609.

SEC. 1689. Kind of company. Every insurance company organized as provided in this chapter shall, if it be a mutual company, embody the word "mutual" in its title, which must appear upon the first page of every policy and renewal receipt; and every company doing business as a stock company shall, upon the face of its policies, express in some suitable manner that such policies are issued by a stock company. Provided that from and after July fourth, nineteen hundred and six, no company shall be organized upon the mutual plan, under the provisions of this chapter, for the purpose of transacting the business specified in subdivisions one and four of section seventeen hundred and nine of the supplement to the code [1902]. [31 G. A., ch. 68; C. '73, § 1140.]

The provisions as to mutual benefit associations are distinct from those for the incorporation of mutual companies, and the statutory requirement that the word "mutual" shall be included in the name of the company organized under the later provisions has no application to such a society. Moore v. Union Fraternal Acc. Assn., 103-424, 72 N. W. 645.

SEC. 1690. Stock or mutual.

A mutual company cannot issue policies upon the stock plan, and such policies, if issued, are illegal and void. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

A company issuing a policy on the stock plan will be presumed to have authority to issue such a policy until the contrary appears. One contracting with the company is not bound to know at his peril whether the company has complied with the condition authorizing it to do a stock insurance business. Harris-Emery Co. v. Pitcairn, 122–595, 98 N. W. 476.

SEC. 1698. Secretary and other officers—by-laws—records.

By-laws duly adopted, but not posted as required by law, are valid and controlling as to all persons informed of their existence, the posting being required for the sole purpose of imparting constructive notice, and if the existence of the by-laws is expressly recognized, the person who receives such certificate is bound thereby. Fee v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 110–271, 81 N. W. 483.

While members of a mutual company may be bound by by-laws adopted after they become members, nevertheless the terms of a policy of insurance will be presumed to be governed by the by-laws in force when it is issued, and not to be affected by those subsequently adopted. Farmers' Mut. Hail Ins. Assn. v. Slattery, 115–410, 88 N. W. 949.

SEC. 1699. Funds invested. Section sixteen hundred ninety-nine of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any company organized under this chapter shall invest its capital and funds in the following described securities and no other:

1. The bonds of the United States.

2. The bonds of this state or any other state when such bonds are at or above par.

3. Bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any county, city, town or school district within the state or any other state, drainage district bonds of this state, improvement certificates issued by any municipal corporation of this state, such certificates being a first lien upon real estate within the corporate limits of the municipality issuing the same, where such bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness are issued by authority of and according to law and bearing interest.

4. Bonds and mortgages and other interest-bearing securities being first liens upon real estate within this state or any other state worth at least double the amount loaned thereon and secured thereby exclusive of improvements, or two and one-half times such amount including the improvements thereon, but no such improvement shall be considered in estimating the value unless the owner shall contract to keep the same insured during the life of the loan, in some reliable fire insurance company or companies authorized to do business in the state, other than the company making the investment, in a sum at least double the excess of the loan above one half the value of the ground exclusive of the improvements, the insurance to be made payable in case of loss to the company or association investing its funds, as its interest may appear at the time of loss; except that the surplus funds may be invested in stocks other than bank stock or in bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any solvent dividend-paying corporation organized under the laws of any of the states, or of the United States, or may be loaned thereon upon pledge thereof, at not exceeding eighty per cent. of their current market value, but no investment shall be made in the company's own stock. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 111, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1130.]

While as between the state and the company the investment of its surplus in bank stock may be unauthorized, such a transaction entered into by the officers for the purpose of avoiding loss to the company may be so ratified by the directors in taking advantage of the benefits thereof as to estop the corporation from treating the transaction as ultra vires. Fidelity Ins. Co. v. German Sav. Bank, 127–591, 103 N. W. 958.

SEC. 1706. Settlement of losses.

The authority of making assessments conferred on the directors is exclusive and cannot be exercised by other officers under the direction of such directors. Farmers' Milling Co. v. Mill Owners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 127-314, 103 N. W. 207.

4. Insure horses, cattle and other live stock against loss or damage by accident, theft or any unknown or contingent event which may be the subject of legal insurance, and stock companies may insure horses and registered cattle against loss by death from disease or accident;

5. Insure the health of persons and against personal injuries, disablement or death resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water, insure against loss or damage to property caused by the accidental discharge or leakage of water from automatic sprinkling systems, and insure employers against loss in consequence of accidents or casualties of any kind to employes or other persons, or to property resulting from any act of an employe, or any accident or casualty to persons or property, or both, occurring in or connected with the transaction of their business, or from the operation of any machinery connected therewith; and insure against liability for loss or expense arising or resulting from accidents occurring by reason of the ownership, maintenance or use of automobiles or other conveyances, resulting in personal injuries or death, or damage to property belonging to others, or both. Provided that should an execution on a judgment against the owner of any such automobile or conveyance be returned unsatisfied in an action by a person who is injured or whose property is damaged by the use of such automobile or other conveyance, and such owner has insured his liability for such personal injury or property damage, the judgment creditor shall have a right of action against the insurer to the same extent that such owner could have enforced his claim against such insurer had such owner paid said judgment;

6. Insure against loss or injury to person or property, or both, growing out of explosion or rupture of steam boilers;

7. Any insurance company organized and incorporated on the stock or mutual plan may insure against loss or damage resulting from burglary or robbery, or attempt thereat. A mutual company organized under this subdivision shall not issue any policy to any person, firm, or corporation other than banks, bankers, loan companies, trust companies, and county treasurers. Provided, also, that companies organized to transact business as provided by this subdivision seven may hold their annual meetings in the month of July, instead of January;

8. Insure or guarantee and indemnify merchants, traders and those engaged in business and giving credit from loss and damage by reason of giving and extending credit to their customers and those dealing with them, which business shall be known as credit insurance;

9. Insure vessels, freights, goods, wares, merchandise, specie, bullion, jewels, profits, commissions, bank notes, bills of exchange and other evidences of debt, bottomry and respondentia interests and every insurance appertaining to or connected with marine risks of transportation and navigation, and insurance upon automobiles against loss or damage by fire from any cause whatsoever, explosion, self-ignition, lightning, salvage, theft, robbery, pilferage, collision, or marine or railroad perils. [35 G. A., ch. 144, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 143, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 18, § 4; 33 G. A., ch. 112, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 72, §§ 1, 2; 31 G. A., ch. 71, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 70, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 69; 29 G. A., ch. 71, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 70, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 60, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 32; 24 G. A., ch. 29; C. '73, § 1132.]

Par. 1. A policy of insurance against loss by burglary, although issued prior to 28 G. A., ch. 60, is valid. Bankers' Mut. Cas. Co. v. First National Bank, 131–456, 108 N. W. 1046.

The statutory provision authorizing insurance against "loss or damage by fire or other casualty" is sufficiently broad to cover such casualty as burglary. Ibid.

In ordinary usage, "casualty" is commonly applied to losses and injuries which happen suddenly and unexpectedly, not in the usual course of events, and without any design on the part of the person suffering the injury, although the result is brought about by the conscious or intended act of another. Ibid.

Par. 5. The first clause of subdivision 5 of this section authorizes insurance against accidents that result in personal injury to the insured and not indemnity insurance against liability that may be imposed by law for some negligent or wrongful act of the insured. The second clause provides for liability insurance but limits it to employers. Therefore the second does not authorize the issuing of a policy to indemnify the owner of an automobile against liability that may be imposed upon him by law. American Fidelity Co. v. Bleakley, 157– —, 138 N. W. 508.

Foreign corporations are only permitted to do such insurance business in this state as is prescribed by statute. Ibid.

It would not be against public policy to permit indemnity insurance to owners of automobiles against liability that may be imposed upon them by law, if the statute should so provide. Ibid.

SEC. 1710. Kinds of risks—limitation. That the law as it appears in section seventeen hundred ten of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No company organized by either of the methods provided in this chapter, or authorized to do business in this state, shall issue policies of insurance for more than one of the nine purposes mentioned in the preceding section, or expose itself to loss on any one risk or hazard, to an amount exceeding ten per cent. of its paid up capital, unless the excess shall be reinsured in some other good and reliable company, except as in this section provided, as follows: Any stock company organized under the laws of this state, or authorized to do business in this state for the purpose of transacting the business specified in subdivision one of the preceding section, and whose charter will permit, is authorized, in addition to insuring against the casualties specified in subdivision one, to also insure against the casualties specified in subdivision nine of the preceding section. Any stock company organized under the laws of this state for the purpose of transacting the business specified in subdivision five of the preceding section with one hundred fifty thousand dollars capital stock, seventy-five thousand dollars of which is paid in cash, may in addition to insuring against the casualties specified in subdivision five, also insure against injury or loss to persons or property or both, growing out of explosion, or rupture of steam boilers and insure plate glass against breakage from accident; and any stock company organized under the laws of any other state, or nation, and authorized under the laws of this state to transact the business specified in subdivision five of the preceding section, may if it has a paid up capital of two hundred fifty thousand dollars, in addition to insuring against the casualties specified in subdivision five of the preceding section, also insure against the casualties specified in subdivision six or insure plate glass against breakage from accident, or if such company is possessed of a paid up capital of three hundred thousand dollars, it may, in addition to insuring against the casualties specified in subdivision five, insure against the casualties specified in subdivision six and also insure plate glass against breakage from accident; and if said company is possessed of a paid up capital of five hundred thousand dollars, it may in addition to insuring against the casualty specified in subdivision five, insure against the casualty specified in subdivisions two and six and also insure plate glass against breakage from accident; provided further, however, that any stock company now or hereafter authorized under the laws of this state to transact the business described in [sub]division two or subdivision five of the preceding section shall, in addition to such insurance, also be authorized to insure against loss, or damage, resulting from theft, larceny, burglary, robbery, or attempt thereat. The restrictions as to the amount of risk a company may assume shall not apply to companies that receive on deposit and guarantee the safe keeping of books, papers, moneys, and other personal property. [34 G. A., ch. 78, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 18, § 21; 33 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 71, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 70, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 72, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 61, § 1; C. '73, § 1132.]

[§ 21, ch. 18, 34 G. A., attempts to make an amendment to § 1710 of the code; but, at the time ch. 18, 34 G. A., was enacted, the said § 1710 of the code had long since been repealed, as had also § 1710 of the supplement to the code, 1907. It is impossible to place the amendment proposed in said § 21, ch. 18, 34 G. A., in the above § 1710, but substantially the same amendment is included in § 360 of this supplement. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1711. Loans—reinsurance. Such company may lend money on bottomry or respondentia, and cause itself to be insured in companies only authorized to do business in this state, against any loss or risk it may have incurred in the course of its business, and upon the interest which it may have in any property on account of any such loan, and generally to do and perform all other matters and things proper to promote these objects. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 5.] [C. '73, § 1132.]

SEC. 1714. Annual statement.

The statement required as to the financial condition of an insurance company is intended, not alone for the information of the auditor to enable him to determine whether he should issue a certificate, but also by way of information to the public. The fact that such statement is required to be published indicates such legislative intention. Therefore not only one who contracts for insurance, but also one who becomes a purchaser of stock of the company, is entitled to rely upon such statements, and a purchaser of stock may recover damages against an officer of a company for an intentional false statement which has operated to his prejudice. Warfield v. Clark, 118–69, 91 N. W. 833.

The provision that the statement shall show expenditures for the preceding year, and also the amount of losses paid during that time, how much subsequent to the date of the preceding statement, and the amount at which such losses were estimated in such statement, implies that some of the matters to be included in the statement are to be given by way of estimate. Ibid.

SEC. 1720. Auditor's report—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

SEC. 1720-a. Auditor's report. That section seventeen hundred twenty of the code be repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"He shall cause the information contained in the statements required of the companies organized or doing business in the state to be arranged in detail, and prepare the same for printing, which report shall be made to the governor on or before the first day of May of each year." [28 G. A., ch. 62, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 164; C. '73, § 1158.]

SEC. 1721. Foreign companies—capital required. No insurance company, association or partnership incorporated, associated or organized under or by the laws of any other state or any foreign government, for the purposes specified in this chapter, shall directly or indirectly take risks or transact any business of insurance in the state, unless possessed of two hundred thousand dollars of actual paid up capital, exclusive of any assets deposited in other states and territories for the special benefit or security of the insured therein; but the provisions of this section shall not apply to mutual insurance companies or associations specifically organized for the purpose of and insuring a single class of property only; and companies organized to insure plate glass exclusively are not required to have a greater capital than one hundred thousand dollars; but such companies organized to insure the health of persons and against personal injuries, disablement or death resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water, having an actual paid up capital of one hundred thousand dollars and surplus to be approved by the auditor of state, exclusive of any assets deposited in other states and territories for the special benefit or security of the insured therein, shall be deemed sufficient, within the meaning of this section. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 6.] [21 G. A., ch. 145; 16 G. A., ch. 60; 15 G. A., ch. 55; C. '73, § 1144.]

SEC. 1722. Service of process—statement.

It is the written consent of the corporation, and not the statute itself, which confers on the auditor power to acknowledge service. Greaves v. Posner, 111–651, 82 N. W. 1022.

SEC. 1724. Certificate.

The power to exclude foreign corporations includes the right to preclude such corporations from continuing in business without complying with the provisions imposed by statute. Manchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 91 Fed. 711.

It is only upon compliance with statutory requirements that foreign companies become entitled to do business within the state. Hartman v. Hollowell, 126–643, 102 N. W. 524.

SEC. 1725. Agent to have certificate of authority.

An agent procuring insurance for his principal in a company not authorized to do business in the state becomes liable to the principal for any loss resulting from the failure to procure valid insurance. Hartman v. Hollowell, 126–643, 102 N. W. 524.

SEC. 1727. Forfeiture of policies.

This section was designed to give to the assured at least thirty days from the mailing of the notice in which to make the payment to which the notice refers, and the time cannot be shortened by a direction on the envelope containing the notice that it shall be returned if not delivered within fifteen days. Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108–382, 79 N. W. 126.

Where such notice treats two policies as one, although they are separate and distinct, it should specify the amount required to cancel each policy, and also the amount of the premium about to become due on account thereof. Ibid. Born v. Home Ins. Co., 110–379, 81 N. W. 676.

Forfeitures are not favored and the provisions of this section are mandatory and must be strictly followed. McDonald v. Anchor Mut. Ins. Co., 116–371, 89 N. W. 1091.

Error in stating the amount of the short rate, as fixed by the auditor under the provisions of code § 1729, will defeat the forfeiture. Ibid.

The provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 210, as to notice of forfeiture for nonpayment of premium note, had no application to a forfeiture of membership in a mutual association for failure to pay assessments. Beeman v. Farmers' Pioneer Mut. Ins. Assn., 104–83, 73 N. W. 597.

Notwithstanding the proper notice of forfeiture for failure to pay a premium note the failure in that respect will not defeat recovery under the policy if a copy of the note is not attached to the policy as a part of the application in which the provision as to forfeiture is contained. Robey v. State Ins. Co., 146–23, 124 N. W. 775.

SEC. 1728. Cancellation of policy. At any time after the maturity of a premium, assessment or installment provided for in the policy, or any note or contract for the payment thereof, or after the suspension, forfeiture or cancellation of any policy or contract of insurance, the insured may pay to the company the customary short rates and costs of action, if one has been commenced or judgment rendered thereon, and may then, if he so elect, have his policy and all contracts or obligations connected therewith, whether in judgment or otherwise, canceled, and they and each of them thereafter shall be void; and in case of suspension, forfeiture or cancellation of any policy or contract of insurance, the assured shall not be liable for any greater amount than the short rates earned at the date of such suspension, forfeiture or cancellation and the costs herein provided. The policy may be canceled by the insurance company by giving five days' notice of such cancellation, in which event it may retain only the pro rata premium. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 7.] [18 G. A., ch. 210, § 3.]

An association purporting to be organized under the provisions of § 1160 of the code of '73, but in fact exacting premium notes instead of assessments from its members, thereby subjected itself to the requirements of 18 G. A., ch. 210 (code § 1727), as to giving notice of forfeiture on account of nonpayment of such notes. Bradford v. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 112–495, 84 N. W. 693.

SEC. 1731. Examination—dissolution.

An insurance company may enforce assessments for the purpose of making good a depletion of its capital, without a requisition from the auditor of state directing such assessment. Iowa National Bank v. Cooper, 131–556, 107 N. W. 625.

SEC. 1737. Certificates of compliance—how published. That section seventeen hundred thirty-seven of the code, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The auditor of state shall annually, as soon as practicable after the first of March, publish in two newspapers of general circulation, a statement made up from the annual report of every insurance company of the character provided for in this chapter and doing business in this state whether organized under the laws of this or any other state, which statements shall contain a synopsis of the company's annual report and shall show that the company has in all respects complied with the laws of the state relating to insurance and is authorized to transact business in the state. One publication as above contemplated, shall be made at the seat of government, and in case of companies organized in this state and located elsewhere than in the city of Des Moines, the other shall be made in the county in which the home office of the company is located. The fee for each publication shall be six dollars, which shall be paid to the auditor of state at the time and in the manner provided for in section seventeen hundred fifty-two, supplement to the code, [1902] and shall be by him paid to the papers making the publication upon receipt of a bill for same, together with an affidavit by the publisher or foreman showing that such publication has been properly made, the same to be filed within thirty days from the date of such publication." [31 G. A., ch. 73; C. '73, § 1155.]

SEC. 1741. Copy of application.

The fact that the application is not embodied in or attached to the policy does not preclude proof of the terms of the application in a suit by the insured against members and officers of a mutual benefit association to compel the payment of the assessment, where such evidence is sought to be introduced for the purpose of showing that the assured knew that the company was conducted on the assessment plan. Moore v. Union Fraternal Acc. Assn., 103–424, 72 N. W. 645.

The purpose of the statutory provisions under which it is necessary to set the application out in or attach it to the policy is, that when the application is made a part of the contract, a true copy must be attached to the policy, so that the writings composing the contract may all appear together and that the insured may be in possession of the evidence of what his contract is. Therefore, held that the statute contemplates more than a mere substantial copy of the application and yet not a true likeness or fac simile. The copy must be so exact and accurate as that upon comparison it can be said to be a true copy without resorting to construction. Johnson v. Des Moines L. Assn., 105–273, 75 N. W. 101.

Where a copy of an application attached to or incorporated in the policy is defective and incomplete, the company is precluded from proving the falsity of the representations in the application as a defense to an action on the policy. Corson v. Anchor Mut. F. Ins. Co., 113–641, 85 N. W. 806.

Where the copy of an application attached to the policy is totally defective and insufficient, the company cannot show misrepresentations or breach of conditions contained in such application. Corson v. Iowa Mut. Fire Ins. Assn., 115–485, 88 N. W. 1086.

The provisions of this section are applicable to mutual companies, notwithstanding the provisions of code § 1759. Ibid.

A premium note, nonpayment of which will by the terms of the application render the policy void, must be set out as a part of the application under the provisions of this section. (Following Lewis v. Burlington Ins. Co., 71–97; S. C. 80–259.) Summers v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 116–593, 88 N. W. 326.

The examiners' report on an application for life insurance is not a part of the application or representation of the assured, and is not required to be included in the copy of the application. The same is true as to notes of instructions given for making the application and answers and notes and indorsements upon the back of the application made for mere convenience. Johnson v. Des Moines L. Assn., 105–273, 75 N. W. 101.

Where the copy of the application attached to the policy indicated that it had been signed, but did not show a copy of the signature, held that it was not such copy as required by the statute and the terms of the application could not be considered in an action on the policy. Seiler v. Economic L. Assn., 105–87, 74 N. W. 941.

It is the application or representations of the assured only that is required to be attached to or indorsed upon the policy. It is not necessary to indorse thereon provisions found in the by-laws of a mutual company by which the policy is issued. Fitzgerald v. Metropolitan Acc. Assn., 106–457, 76 N. W. 809.

Indorsement of a copy of the application upon the policy, or its attachment thereto, is a necessary foundation for pleading the falsity of statements made therein. Parker v. Des Moines L. Assn., 108–117, 78 N. W. 826.

The provisions of ch. 211, acts of 18 G. A., embodied in this section, held applicable to fraternal societies issuing certificates on lives of members. Stork v. Supreme Lodge K. of P., 113–724, 84 N. W. 721.

The statutory provision requiring insurance companies to attach a copy of the application to each policy of insurance is applicable to fidelity insurance companies. United States F. & G. Co. v. Egg Shippers' Strawboard & F. Co., 148 Fed. 353.

The fact that warranties and representations embodied in the application cannot be proven because no copy of such application was attached to the policy, does not prevent the company from relying on such warranties and representations as are included in the policy itself. Kirkpatrick v. London Guar. & Acc. Co., 139–370, 115 N. W. 1107.

Where no copy of the application is indorsed on the policy the defense of false representation in the application cannot be relied upon. Salzman v. Machinery Mut. Ins. Assn., 142–99, 120 N. W. 697.

Where the provision as to forfeiture for nonpayment of premium note is contained in the application, failure to attach copy of application to the policy will prevent reliance on default in the payment of a premium note as a defense although notice of such default has been duly given. Robey v. State Ins. Co., 146–23, 124 N. W. 775.

The statute does not require that a copy of any agreement made subsequently to the issuance or renewal of the policy shall be attached. Wilson v. Royal Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 137–184, 114 N. W. 1051.

SEC. 1742. Evidence of value—proofs—action.

Evidence of value: The statute does not attempt to fix, as the measure of recovery in case of the destruction of buildings, any other than the actual value of the building at the time of loss. If, after the prima-facie showing made by proof of the amount of insurance, the company shall offer evidence to show the actual value to be less, then the amount of recovery becomes a question for the jury, and the actual value is as the jury shall find it. The parties may by contract stipulate for the ascertainment of this actual value by appraisers as a condition precedent to the right of action. Zalesky v. Home Ins. Co., 108–341, 79 N. W. 69.

Whether the latter part of this section is applicable in case of loss of personal property covered by the policy, quaere. Westenhaver v. German-American Ins. Co., 113–726, 84 N. W. 717.

Where a policy for four thousand dollars was issued under an arrangement with the soliciting agent that total insurance to the extent of seven thousand dollars should be procured on the property, held that in an action on the four thousand dollar policy the total amount of insurance contemplated was prima facie the value of the property insured. Wensel v. Property Mutual Ins. Assn., 129–295, 105 N. W. 522.

An instruction directing the jury that the law presumes the building to have been of the value for which it was insured instead of saying that the amount stated in the policy should be received as prima-facie evidence of the insurable value of the property, held not erroneous, where the verdict was for less than half of the amount of the insurance. Walrod v. Des Moines F. Ins. Co., 140 N. W. 218.

Proofs of loss furnished to the company are only admissible in evidence in the first instance to establish the fact that they were so furnished. If a schedule attached to such proofs is referred to by a witness as furnishing a correct statement of the items of property destroyed and the value thereof, it may be introduced in evidence in connection with such testimony, but the two purposes should be kept distinct. Names v. Union Ins. Co., 104–612, 74 N. W. 14.

Under previous statutory provisions held that proofs of death in a particular case were not sufficient. Stephenson v. Bankers' Life Assn., 108–637, 79 N. W. 459.

There is no statutory requirement of proof of loss as a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action for benefit or indemnity against a mutual assessment association. Brinsmaid v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 152–134, 132 N. W. 34.

SEC. 1742-a. Proofs of loss. In furnishing proofs of loss under any contract of insurance for damages or loss of personal property it shall only be necessary for the assured, within sixty days from the time the loss occurs, to give notice in writing to the company issuing such contract of insurance accompanied by an affidavit, stating the facts as to how the loss occurred, so far as same are within his knowledge, and the extent of the loss, any agreement or contract to the contrary notwithstanding. [29 G. A., ch. 73, § 1.]

The provisions of the policy relating to proofs of loss are superseded by the statutory provisions so far as they are inconsistent. American Cereal Co. v. Western Assur. Co., 148 Fed. 77.

SEC. 1743. Conditions. Any condition or stipulation in an application, policy or contract of insurance, making the policy void before the loss occurs, shall not prevent recovery thereon by the insured, if it shall be shown by the plaintiff that the failure to observe such provision or the violation thereof did not contribute to the loss: provided, however, that any condition or stipulation referring to any other insurance, valid or invalid, or to vacancy of the insured premises or the title or ownership of the property insured, or to lien, or incumbrances thereon created by voluntary act of the insured and within his control, or to the suspension or forfeiture of the policy during default or failure to pay any written obligation given to the insurance company for the premium, or to the assignment or transfer of such policy of insurance before loss without the consent of the insurance company, or to the removal of the property insured, or to a change in the occupancy or use of the property insured, if such change or use makes the risk more hazardous, or to the fraud of the insured in the procurement of the contract of insurance, shall not be changed or affected by this provision. No recovery on a policy or contract of insurance shall be defeated for failure of the insured to comply, after a loss occurs, with any arbitration or appraisement stipulation as to fixing value of property.

No arbitration shall take place except where the property was situated at the time of loss. Any agreement, stipulation or condition in any policy or contract of insurance by which any insurance company reserves or has the right to rebuild shall be void and of no effect in case of total loss, or where the amount of loss, upon the request of the insurance company, has been submitted to arbitration. Nothing herein shall be construed to change the limitations or restrictions respecting the pleading or proving of any defense by any insurance company to which it is subject by law. The provisions of this section shall apply to all contracts of insurance on real and personal property. [32 G. A., ch. 75; 28 G. A., ch. 64, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.]

This provision has no application to the failure of the insured to comply with a condition precedent to the taking effect of the policy. Banco De Sonora v. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co., 124–576, 100 N. W. 532.

A breach of warranty or condition constitutes, generally speaking, no defense if it appears that such breach did not occasion or contribute to the loss; but the defense based on change in use or occupancy is good if such change makes the risk in fact more hazardous. Krell v. Chickasaw Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 127–748, 104 N. W. 364.

The burden is on the insured suing on the policy to show that change in use or occupancy in violation of the provisions of the policy did not contribute to the loss. Ibid.

The question whether a change in occupancy without consent increases the risk is for the jury. Nicholas v. Iowa Merch. Mut. Ins. Co., 125–262, 101 N. W. 115.

The fact that the furniture in a dwelling house is insured after taking a policy on the house itself does not in the absence of fraud or over-insurance constitute an increase of hazard as to the building. Ibid.

Breach of an agreement to keep a set of books in an iron safe will not defeat recovery for a loss under the policy unless it is pleaded and proven that such breach contributed to the loss. Johnson v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 126–565, 102 N. W. 502.

A provision in the policy that the removal of the property shall be deemed an increase of the risk as a matter of law is void in view of the statutory provision that the breach of the condition as to removal shall not affect the validity of the policy unless it increases the risk. The burden is on the insured to show that the removal, in violation of the terms of the policy, did not cause or contribute to the loss, but the burden is on the company to show, as a matter of defense, that it increased the risk. Adams v. Atlas Mut. Ins. Co., 135–299, 112 N. W. 651.

This section does not apply to forfeitures accrued under policies previously issued. Elliott v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 114–153, 86 N. W. 224.

This section does not apply to provisions making void the policy for vacancy or unoccupancy. Cone v. Century Fire Ins. Co., 139–205, 117 N. W. 307.

The burden is on the plaintiff to show that a change of occupancy, if any, in violation of the provisions of the policy did not cause or contribute to the fire, and the burden is on the defendant to show that such change, if any, increased the risk. Seaman v. Anchor Fire Ins. Co., 149–583, 128 N. W. 934.

This section has relation to cases where there is provision in the policy prohibiting the act complained of. Where there is no such provision, the burden does not rest on the plaintiff to show that there was in fact not an increase of hazard. When it is shown that the insured has done some act prohibited by the policy, then the burden rests on him to show that the violation did not increase the hazard. Kinney v. Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Soc'y, 141 N. W. 706.

From the provision of this section it is evident that it was not intended by code § 1750 to invalidate a provision in a policy that the agent shall bind the company only in writing. Mulrooney v. Royal Ins. Co., (C. C.) 157 Fed. 598.

SEC. 1744. Notice and proof of loss—time of bringing action—provisions not affected by contract. The notice of loss and proof thereof required in section seventeen hundred forty-two hereof, and the notice and proof of loss under oath in case of insurance on personal property, shall be given within sixty days from the time loss occurred, and no action for such loss shall be begun within forty days after such notice and proofs have been given to the company, nor shall the time within which action shall be brought be limited to less than one year from the time when a cause of action for the loss accrues. No provisions of any policy or contract to the contrary shall affect the provisions of this and the three preceding sections. [27 G. A., ch. 44, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 211, § 3.]

Proofs of loss: The statutory requirement as to notice and proofs of loss is all that can be made essential by the contract. A notice and affidavit are sufficient to constitute the proof required. The sufficiency of the document is not dependent on the intent, but on the contents. Parks v. Anchor Mut. F. Ins. Co., 106–402, 76 N. W. 743.

This statute concerning proofs of loss supersedes the provisions of a policy of insurance with relation to the same matter. Washburn-Halligan Coffee Co. v. Merchants' etc. Fire Ins. Co., 110–423, 81 N. W. 707.

Stipulations in a policy that no officer or agent shall have power to waive any provision or condition of the policy, except such as by the terms of the policy may be subject of agreement endorsed thereon or added thereto, do not prevent waiver of proofs of loss by an officer or agent having general authority to do so. Such a stipulation relates to the conditions and provisions of the policy and not to their performance. Ibid, and Lake v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 110–473, 81 N. W. 710.

The provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 211, § 3, relating to proofs of loss, as originally enacted, held applicable to mutual benefit associations as well as fire insurance companies. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108–6, 78 N. W. 676.

The legislature provides the character and kind of proofs that shall be made upon the happening of a loss, and no greater proof can be exacted; but the company may stipulate for less than is required by the statute in this respect. Kinney v. Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Soc'y, 141 N. W. 706.

Waiver: Good faith requires that upon receipt of proofs of loss, if the company is not satisfied therewith, it should specify its objections thereto to the end that the proofs may be perfected if possible, and if the company fails to specify the objections at a time when they might be remedied it should not afterwards be heard to urge them. Dyer v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 103–524, 72 N. W. 681.

The action of the company in asking for an arbitration to determine the amount to be paid is a waiver of defects in the proofs or notice of loss known to the company before the arbitration took place. Dee & Sons Co. v. Key City F. Ins. Co., 104–167, 73 N. W. 594.

Notwithstanding a provision in the policy that none of its terms or conditions can be waived by any person except in writing by the secretary of the company, and that no agent has any authority to waive or modify any printed conditions of the policy, an adjusting agent having power to determine what proofs are satisfactory may waive those proofs which are regarded unimportant, although certain specified proofs are required by the policy. Brock v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 106–30, 75 N. W. 683.

Failure to object to the proofs of loss because not accompanied by affidavit, as required, amounts to a waiver of objection on this ground. Pringle v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 107–742, 77 N. W. 521.

Where the company refuses payment on the ground that the policy has been suspended in consequence of failure to pay an installment of premium, waiver of proofs of loss may be inferred. Pray v. Life Indemnity & Security Co., 104–114, 73 N. W. 485; Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108–382, 79 N. W. 126.

Unqualified refusal to pay constitutes a waiver on the part of the insurance company of proofs of death, where something purporting to be proofs of death has been received by the company and not objected to. Stephenson v. Bankers' Life Assn., 108–637, 79 N. W. 459.

The promise of the company to pay is as effective as the waiver of proofs, as a denial of liability and the promise of settlement is inconsistent with insistence on strict compliance with the conditions of the contract. Lake v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 110–473, 81 N. W. 710.

Telegrams from insured advising the company of the loss and giving it all information which the insured could be supposed to have may constitute sufficient proof of the loss and by failing to object for want of an affidavit to such proofs, the company waives the requirement. Nicholas v. Iowa Merch. Mut. Ins. Co., 125–262, 101 N. W. 115.

An agent having power to adjust a loss has authority to waive formal proofs of loss. Lake v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 110–473, 81 N. W. 710.

Where the adjuster requires the procurement of duplicate invoices, which are prepared at considerable expense, the company cannot afterwards object that the proofs of loss are not sufficient. If the conduct of the company is such as to induce the insured to rest, in good faith, under the well founded belief of strict compliance and that the conditions will not be insisted on, it cannot afterwards set up nonperformance of such conditions as a bar to recovery. Ibid. Corson v. Anchor Mut. F. Ins. Co., 113–641, 85 N. W. 806.

Time for bringing action: Where action is prematurely brought because of failure of insured to demand an appraisement he cannot cure the defect in his proceeding by subsequently demanding such appraisal and setting out the fact in the supplemental petition. Zalesky v. Home Ins. Co., 102–613, 71 N. W. 566.

The statutory provision cannot be waived and an action brought in less than ninety days after notice of loss or a waiver of notice and proof is premature. Blood v. Hawkeye Ins. Co., 103–728, 69 N. W. 1141.

Although in the second action it is claimed that the first action was not prematurely brought, this will not sustain the second action brought after the period of limitation under the policy has expired. Wilhelmi v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 103–532, 72 N. W. 685.

Where the first action for a loss under a policy was prematurely brought and subsequently another action was brought after the time limited in the policy for bringing action, held, that the second action was not to be deemed a continuation of the first action under the provisions of code § 3455. Harrison v. Hartford F. Ins. Co., 67 Fed. 298.

The provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 211, as to time of bringing action were not applicable to associations organized under § 1160 of the code of '73, but associations collecting premiums instead of assessments from members were not properly organized under that section, and therefore were subject to the provisions of said act of 18 G. A. Bradford v. Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 112–495, 84 N. W. 693.

Where the policy limited the time of bringing action to six months next after the fire, held that the six months commenced to run, not from the time of the fire, but from the time when the loss became payable, that is, sixty days after the notice and proof of loss were furnished. Read v. State Ins. Co., 103–307, 72 N. W. 665.

The provision of this section as to time of bringing suit held applicable to a loss occurring prior to the taking effect of the code, when the statute provided that suit should not be brought within ninety days. Such a statutory provision relates to the remedy and is no part of the contract. Jones v. German Ins. Co., 110–75, 81 N. W. 188.

The defense that action on a policy is not brought within the statutory period specified in the contract is one which must be affirmatively introduced, otherwise it will be deemed waived. Miller Brewing Co. v. Capital Ins. Co., 111–590, 82 N. W. 1023.

Prior to the adoption of this section it was lawful for the parties to create a contract limitation which would be binding on the courts, and under this section the parties may contract as before, provided the limitation fixed by them is not less than one year. Farmers' Co-Op. Creamery Co. v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 112–608, 84 N. W. 904.

The change in the statute is not applicable to contract limitations under a policy executed before the change in the statute, and which were valid when made. Ibid.

The time within which action on a policy may be brought cannot by stipulation be limited to less than one year from the time when a cause of action has accrued. Kenny v. Bankers' Acc. Ins. Co., 136–140, 113 N. W. 566.

SEC. 1745. Forms of policies. The form of all policies or permits issued or proposed to be issued by any insurance company doing business in this state under the provisions of this chapter, shall first be examined and approved by the auditor of state [who] shall refuse to authorize it to do business or to renew its permission to do business when the form of policy issued or proposed to be issued does not provide for the cancellation of the same at the request of the insured upon equitable terms, and the return to the insured of any premium paid in excess of the customary short rates for the insurance up to the time of cancellation, or the release of the insured from any liability beyond such short rates, or for losses after the cancellation of the policy if the insurance be in a mutual company; and in case any company or association shall issue any policies not containing such provision, it shall be the duty of the auditor to revoke the authority of such company or association to do business. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 8.] [17 G. A., ch. 39, § 1.]

The provision of a policy for cancellation by the insured should not be construed as requiring repayment of premiums by the company before such cancellation can become effective. Parsons v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co., 133–532, 110 N. W. 907.

SEC. 1746. Other insurance—coinsurance clause—prorating. Any provision, contract or stipulation contained in any policy of insurance, issued by any insurance company doing business in the state under the provisions of this chapter, providing or stipulating that the insured shall maintain insurance on any property covered by such policy to any extent, or shall to any extent be an insurer of the property insured in such policy, or shall bear any portion of the loss on the property insured, shall be void; and the auditor of state shall refuse to authorize any such company to do business or to renew the authority or the certificate of any such company when the form of policy issued or proposed to be issued contains any such provision, contract or stipulation; provided, that upon the written request of any person desiring insurance, a rider providing for coinsurance may be attached to and become a part of the policy, but in no case shall such rider apply to dwellings or farm property, nor to any risk where the total value of the property to be insured is less than twenty-five thousand dollars, except as to grain elevators and grain warehouses and their contents. The request for the application of the coinsurance clause or rider to any policy of insurance shall be written or printed on a single sheet of paper which shall contain nothing but the request hereinafter set out, and said request must be signed by the insured and a copy thereof be left with him by the agent at the time the insurance is applied for. No form of request for coinsurance except the following shall be used by any company doing business within this state:

REQUEST FOR THE APPLICATION OF THE COINSURANCE CLAUSE.

In consideration of a reduction from the established rate of ..... per cent. to ..... per cent. in premiums to be paid to the ..... insurance company for insurance upon the following described property .....
.....,
I hereby request that a coinsurance rider be attached to the policy to be issued by said company and hereby agree, that during the life of the policy I will maintain insurance on said property to the extent of at least ..... dollars, (or) ..... per cent. (whichever may be agreed upon) of the actual cash value thereof at the time of fire, and that failing to do so, I shall become a coinsurer to the extent of such deficit.

Before signing this request or the coinsurance rider to be attached to the policy to be issued I carefully read each of them and fully understand that in case I shall fail to maintain insurance on the previously described property to the extent above provided, then in the event of loss or damage this company shall not be liable for a greater per cent. of the loss or damage to said property than:

1. The total amount of insurance maintained bears to ..... dollars, or:
2. The total amount of insurance maintained bears to ..... per cent. of the actual cash value of the property insured at the time of fire.

Date..... .....Insured.

The coinsurance rider to be used shall be signed by both the agent and the insured and a copy thereof shall be left with the insured at the time the application is made for insurance. The rider shall be in form and restrictions as follows:

1. To the extent of ..... dollars, or
2. To the extent of at least ..... per cent. of the actual cash value thereof at the time of fire (whichever may be agreed upon) and, that failing to do so the insured shall be a coinsurer to the extent of such deficit.

No condition or stipulation in a policy of insurance fixing the amount of liability or recovery under such policy with reference to prorating with other insurance on property insured shall be valid except as to other valid and collectible insurance, any agreement to the contrary notwithstanding. [34 G. A., ch. 79, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 31.]

A stipulation to include a void policy in determining the prorata liability of the company cannot be enforced, and the fact that the company issuing the void policy may have treated it as valid, cannot affect the liability of the company issuing a subsequent policy. Gurnett v. Atlas Mut. Ins. Co., 124–547, 100 N. W. 542.

This section does not prohibit the use of the "average clause" where several distinct items of property are covered by one policy. Dahms v. German F. Ins. Co., 153–168, 132 N. W. 870.

SEC. 1749. Advertisements—soliciting agents.

An agent instructed to procure insurance is liable to his principal for any loss resulting from procuring insurance in a company not authorized to do business in the state. Hartman v. Hollowell, 126–643, 102 N. W. 524.

SEC. 1750. Who deemed agent.

A soliciting agent with power to take and forward applications and receive money to be paid when the insurance is effected, does not have authority to bind the company by declarations as to the validity of the contract of insurance or as to the rights and liabilities of the company, when such declarations are not made while discharging his duties as agent in the transaction in question. Schoep v. Bankers' Alliance Ins. Co., 104–354, 73 N. W. 825.

An adjusting agent with authority to ascertain and settle losses has of necessity power to determine what proofs are satisfactory and to waive those which are regarded as unimportant. Brock v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 106–30, 75 N. W. 683.

An agent having the power to transact all the business within the apparent scope or usual extent of his employment in issuing policies may waive the conditions of a policy as to incumbrances, notwithstanding a provision in the policy denying such authority to the agent. Liquid Carbonic Acid Mfg. Co. v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 126–225, 101 N. W. 749.

An adjuster of losses has authority to waive conditions affecting the validity of the policy. Arispe Mercantile Co. v. Queen Ins. Co., 141–607, 120 N. W. 122.

Knowledge by a soliciting agent of the existence of other insurance is a waiver of a stipulation against such insurance. Salzman v. Machinery Mut. Ins. Assn., 142–99, 120 N. W. 697.

Knowledge of a soliciting agent as to the habits of the applicant for life insurance constitutes knowledge on the part of the company. Biermann v. Guar. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 142–341, 120 N. W. 963.

A company is chargeable with notice of other insurance of which the soliciting agent has knowledge. Wilson v. Anchor F. Ins. Co., 143–458, 122 N. W. 157.

An insurance company is not chargeable with notice of other insurance on the part of a soliciting agent where the only scope of such agent's employment was to return the policy for correction. Scrivner v. Anchor F. Ins. Co., 144–328, 122 N. W. 942.

If an agent has knowledge of past conditions or existing facts avoiding a policy which is secured by him, a company issuing a policy with such knowledge on the part of its agent cannot insist upon these facts for the purpose of avoiding it; but knowledge by a soliciting agent of the intention to violate some condition of the policy in the future is not binding upon the company. House v. Security F. Ins. Co., 145–462, 121 N. W. 509.

An adjuster of losses can waive compliance with the provisions of the policy requiring the insurer to separate the damaged from the undamaged goods. Farmers' Mercantile Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 141 N. W. 447.

Even though the secretary of a mutual company has no authority to agree to the removal of property beyond the limits of the county in which the association has authority to take risks, if after notice to the secretary of such removal the association makes assessments on the policy, the prohibition of the policy against removal is waived. Kesler v. Farmers' Mut. F. & L. Ins. Assn., 141 N. W. 954.

Provisions of the policy are valid, notwithstanding this section, which prescribe the manner in which the local agent shall exercise his authority so as to bind the company. Mulrooney v. Royal Ins. Co. (D. C.) 157 Fed. 598, (C. C. A.) 163 Fed. 833.

SEC. 1754. Combinations.

The statutory prohibition of combinations between fire insurance companies in relation to rates, commissions, or the manner of transacting business are not in violation of the state constitution prohibiting the granting of special privileges and immunities, and requiring general laws to be uniform in operation. But so far as such provisions make it unlawful for two or more companies to enter into any agreement as to the amount of commissions to be allowed agents, they are invalid as depriving the companies of the liberty of contract secured by the federal constitution. Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Carroll, 125 Fed. 121. (As to the second point this case is reversed. Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 199 U. S. 401.)

IV. Any company incorporated in this state, or authorized to do business herein, shall print in its policy or attach thereto any provision which such company is required by law to insert in its policies or attach thereto, not included in the provisions of this policy, but such provisions shall be printed apart from the other conditions and agreements of this policy and under a separate title as follows: "Provisions required by law to be stated in the policy of insurance."

It is hereby agreed that the insured may obtain $..... additional insurance in companies authorized to do business in the state of Iowa.

II. This company shall not be liable beyond the actual cash value of the property covered by this policy at the time any loss or damage occurs, and said liability shall in no event exceed what it would cost the insured to repair or replace the property lost or damaged with material of like kind and quality. The sum for which this company is liable pursuant to this policy, shall be payable forty days after due notice and proofs of loss have been received by this company in accordance with law.

III. This policy shall be void if the insured has concealed or misrepresented any material fact or circumstance concerning this insurance or the subject thereof.

IV. Unless otherwise provided by agreement of this company this policy shall be void:

(h) If the property insured or any part thereof (as to the part so removed) be removed to any other building or location than that specified in the policy; or

(i) If this policy be assigned before loss.

V. Unless otherwise provided by agreement of this company, this policy shall be void:

(f) If the insured permits the property which is the subject of insurance, or any part thereof, to be used for any unlawful purpose.

Provided that nothing contained in paragraph five herein shall operate to avoid this policy in any case, if the insured shall establish that the failure to observe and comply with such provisions and conditions did not contribute to the loss.

VI. This company shall not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war, or military or usurped power, or by theft, or by neglect of the insured to use all reasonable means to save and preserve the property during and after a fire, or when the property is endangered by fire in neighboring premises; or (unless fire ensues, and, in that event, for damage by fire only) by explosion of any kind or by lightning; but liability for direct damage by lightning may be assumed by specific agreement.

VII. This company shall not be liable for loss or damage to any property covered by this policy if the insured shall fail to pay any written obligation given to the company for the premium or any assessment or installment of premium when due; provided the company shall have given the insured notice as required by law. Upon payment and acceptance by the company of the delinquent premium, assessment or installment of premium before loss occurs, or after loss, if the company shall have had notice thereof and accepts such payment, this policy shall be revived and in full force according to its terms.

VIII. If a building or any part thereof fall, except as the result of fire, all insurance by this policy on such building, or its contents, shall immediately cease.

IX. This company shall not be liable for loss to accounts, bills, currency, deeds, evidences of debt, money, notes or securities; nor, unless liability is specifically assumed thereon, for loss to awnings, bullion, casts, curiosities, drawings, dies, implements, jewels, manuscripts, medals, models, patterns, pictures, scientific apparatus, signs, store or office furniture or fixtures, sculpture, plate glass, frescoes or decorations; or property held in storage or for repairs; nor, beyond the actual value destroyed by fire for loss occasioned by ordinance or law regulating construction or repairs of buildings, or by interruption of business, manufacturing processes or otherwise.

XI. This policy shall be canceled at any time at the request of the insured; or by the company by giving five days' notice of such cancellation either by registered letter directed to the insured at his last known address, or by personal written notice. If this policy shall be canceled as hereinbefore provided, or becomes void or cease, the premium having been actually paid, the unearned portion shall be returned on surrender of this policy or last renewal, this company retaining the customary short rates; except that when this policy is canceled by this company by giving notice it shall retain only the pro rate premium.

XII. XIII. If property covered by this insurance is so endangered by fire as to require removal to a place of safety, and is so removed, that part of this policy in excess of its proportion of any loss and of the value of property remaining in the original location, shall, for the ensuing five days only, cover the property so removed in the new location; if removed to more than one location, such excess of this policy shall cover therein for such five days in the proportion that the value in any one new location bears to the value in all such new locations; but this company shall not in any case of removal, whether to one or more locations, be liable beyond the proportion that the amount hereby insured shall bear to the total valid and collectible insurance on the whole property at the time of fire, whether the same cover in new location or not.

XIV. If loss occur the insured shall as soon as practicable after he ascertains the fact of such loss, give notice in writing thereof to the company, protect the property from further damage, forthwith separate the damaged and undamaged personal property, and put it in the best possible order, and shall, within sixty days from date of loss, furnish this company with notice thereof in writing accompanied by affidavit stating the facts as to how the loss occurred and the extent thereof, so far as such facts are within his knowledge.

XV. The insured, as often as reasonably required, shall exhibit to any person designated by this company, all that remains of any property herein described as to which a claim for loss or damage is made, and submit to examination under oath by any person named by this company, and subscribe the same, and, as often as reasonably required, shall produce for examination all books of account, bills, invoices, and other vouchers, or certified copies thereof, if originals be lost, at such reasonable place as may be designated by this company or its representatives, and shall permit extracts and copies thereof to be made; provided, however, that this company shall not be held to have waived any of the provisions or conditions of this policy or any forfeiture thereof by any examination or investigation herein provided for.

XVI. This company shall not be liable under this policy for a greater proportion of any loss on the described property, or for loss by and expense of removal from premises endangered by fire, than the amount hereby insured shall bear to the whole amount of valid and collectible insurance covering such property.

XVII. No suit or action on this policy, for the recovery of any claim thereon, shall be sustainable in any court of law or equity, unless commenced within twelve months next after the right of action for the loss accrues.

SEC. 1758-d. Existing statutes—waiver in interest of insured. Nothing contained in this act nor any provisions or conditions in the standard form of policy provided for herein, shall be deemed to repeal or in any way modify any existing statutes nor to prevent any insurance company issuing such policy, from waiving any of the provisions or conditions contained therein, if the waiver of such provisions or conditions shall be in the interest of the insured. CHAPTER 5.

OF MUTUAL FIRE, TORNADO AND HAILSTORM ASSESSMENT INSURANCE ASSOCIATIONS.

SECTION 1759. Repeal. Section seventeen hundred fifty-nine of the code as amended and sections seventeen hundred sixty to seventeen hundred sixty-seven inclusive, are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 16.]

SEC. 1759-a. Organization—purposes. That chapter five of title nine of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any number of persons may, without regard to the provisions of the preceding chapter, enter into contracts with each other for the insurance from loss or damage by fire, tornadoes, lightning, hailstorms, cyclones or windstorms and to insure plate glass against breakage from accident, but such associations of persons shall in no case insure any property not owned by one of their own number, except such school and church property as may be situated within the territory in which they do business and the reinsurance of the risks of similar associations. Associations organizing for the purpose of transacting business under the provisions of this chapter shall incorporate under the provisions of chapter one of title nine of the code.

Risks or hazards above mentioned shall be classified as follows:

1. Fire and lightning.
2. Tornadoes, cyclones and windstorms.

A mutual fire insurance company cannot issue a policy to one not a member nor for a stated and definite amount of insurance nor for a stiplated premium. One who insures his property in a mutual company in a stated amount for a specific premium does not become a member. In re Assignment Mutual Guaranty F. Ins. Co., 107–143, 77 N. W. 868.

One who has accepted such a policy which by statute the company is not allowed to issue cannot recover therein. Ibid.

Members of the company are not individually liable under such a policy. Ibid.

An association organized under the provision of § 1160 of the code of '73 could not collect money from a member by way of premium. Bradford v. Mutual F. Ins. Co., 112–495, 84 N. W. 693.

An association collecting premiums from its members, instead of assessments, was not under that section exempt from the operation of ch. 211, acts of 18 G. A., relating to time of bringing action. Ibid.

The creation of a guaranty fund held not to deprive the corporation of the character of a mutual company. Smith v. Sherman, 113–601, 85 N. W. 747.

The requirements of code § 1741 as to setting out copy of application in connection with the policy are applicable to mutual companies. Corson v. Iowa Mut. Fire Ins. Assn., 115–485, 88 N. W. 1086.

Although in general a money judgment cannot be rendered against an assessment company, yet if the company has issued a policy in which it agrees to pay a fixed sum in case of loss, such action may be maintained. Byrnes v. American Mut. F. Ins. Co., 114–738, 87 N. W. 699.

SEC. 1759-b. County and state associations. Any association incorporated under the laws of this state for the purpose of furnishing insurance as provided for in this chapter, doing business only within the county in which is situated the town or city named[1] in its articles of incorporation as its principal place of business, or the counties contiguous thereto, shall, for the purposes of this chapter, be deemed a county mutual assessment association; all other associations operating hereunder shall, for the purposes of this chapter, be deemed state mutual assessment associations and the two words "mutual" and "association" shall be incorporated into and become a part of their name. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 11.] [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 2.]

[1]The word "named" was erroneously omitted from the supplement of 1907. EDITOR.]

The distinction between state mutual and county mutual associations or companies may be the basis of distinction in the matter of taxation. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn. v. Gilbertson, 129–658, 106 N. W. 153.

The statute does not prohibit the removal of property insured in a farmers' mutual association to another county than that in which it was insured and in which the company had a right to do business, and if it appears that the property destroyed was within the limits of the territory within which the company was authorized to carry risks at the time it was insured, its removal beyond such limits by the consent of the company will not terminate the risk. Kesler v. Farmers' Mut. F. & L. Ins. Assn., 141 N. W. 954.

Whenever reductions shall be made in the liability of members such reduction shall apply proportionately to all policies in force. [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 10.]

SEC. 1759-k. [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 11.]

SEC. 1759-1. Assessments when association is insolvent. Whenever the board of directors or the auditor of state shall ascertain that any association is insolvent, such board, or upon its failure so to do, the auditor of state may direct an assessment ratably upon all members liable therefor in such amount as may be necessary as follows:

2d. What further sum each policyholder should pay to reinsure his policy with some other solvent association.

The board of directors shall forthwith cause written notice and demand of payment to be served personally or by mail upon each policyholder liable therefor. The notice of assessment shall show separately the amount required to be paid in case of withdrawal and the amount required to be paid where withdrawal or cancellation is not desired. [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 12.]

SEC. 1759-m. Upon surrender of his policy and payment of all sums due, his membership shall cease, provided, that during the months of June, July and August, hail insurance policies may be canceled only at the option of the officers of the association carrying the risk. Upon the expiration or cancellation of any policy of insurance issued under the provisions of this act, all obligations to the association having been paid, the members shall be entitled to and shall be paid by the association a sum equal to at least seventy-five per cent. of the unexpended portion of the amount contributed by him to the reinsurance reserve. Such associations as confine their membership to persons of one occupation, which persons maintain a state organization and hold annual meetings thereof, may for the purpose of electing directors and changing or amending their articles of incorporation and by-laws, hold their annual meetings at the same time and place as the annual meeting of the members of the occupation to which the association confines its membership, provided, that until such time as the articles of incorporation of the association provide for the holding of meetings as above contemplated other than at the home office of the association, twenty days' notice of the time and place of the holding of said meetings shall be given to all members of the association. CHAPTER 6.

OF LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

SECTION 1768. On level premium plan. Every life insurance company upon the level premium or the natural premium plan, created under the laws of this or any other state or country, shall, before issuing policies in the state, comply with the provisions of this chapter applicable to such companies. Before any such company shall be permitted to incorporate under the laws of this state, it shall present its articles of incorporation to the auditor of state and the attorney-general and have the same by them approved. Such articles shall show the name, location of principal place of business, object, amount of capital, if a stock company, and shall contain such other provisions as may be necessary to a full understanding of the nature of the business to be transacted and the plan upon which the same is to be conducted. All amendments to such articles and amendments hereafter made to the articles of incorporation of companies already organized under the laws of this state shall be approved in like manner. [32 G. A., ch. 81; C. '73, § 1161.]

It is not unlawful for an insurance company to discriminate between policy holders and those who are not policy holders in the loaning of money, nor for it to agree that one who takes insurance shall have a loan thereon. Key v. National Life Ins. Co., 107–446, 78 N. W. 68.

SEC. 1771. Stock or premium notes. No note shall be accepted as part of the capital of a stock company, nor as a premium note for the purpose of organizing a mutual company, unless accompanied by a certificate of the clerk of the district court or other court of record, of the county in which the person executing it resides, to the effect that the person making it is in his opinion pecuniarily good and responsible therefor in property not exempt from execution. All notes heretofore or hereafter given as a part of the capital stock of a stock company, shall be deposited with the auditor of state, and in the event any stockholder shall dispose of his or her stock in such company, he or she may withdraw the note or notes so given, upon depositing with the auditor of state the note of the purchaser of such stock, accompanied by a certificate as provided for in this section. [29 G. A., ch. 75, § 1.]

SEC. 1782. Discriminations. No life or casualty, health or accident insurance company or association[1] shall make or permit any distinction or discrimination between persons insured of the same class and equal expectancy of life in the amount or payment of premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any other of the terms or conditions of the contract it makes; nor shall any such company or association[1] or agent thereof make any contract of insurance agreement, other than as plainly expressed in the policy issued; nor shall any such company or association[1] or agent pay or allow, directly or indirectly, as an inducement to insurance, any rebate of premium payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever, not specified in the policy or contract of insurance. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 13.] [27 G. A., ch. 46, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 33, § 1.]

The provision of this section as to "any contract of insurance agreement other than as plainly expressed in the policy issued" is to be limited in its application by the title of the act in which it was first enacted, and by the general provisions of the section, and is therefore applicable only to cases of discrimination. Kelley v. Mutual L. Ins. Co., 109 Fed. 56.

The provision as to contracts "plainly expressed in the policy issued" includes in the term "policy" the provision of the application endorsed thereon, in accordance with code § 1819. Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. Kelly, 114 Fed. 268.

The amendment of this section made by 27 G. A., ch. 46, held not applicable where the policy had been issued and the death had occurred prior to the taking effect of the amendment. Beverly v. Northern L. Assn., 112–730, 84 N. W. 933.

SEC. 1783-a. Policy forms filed with auditor of state for approval. It shall be unlawful for any insurance company transacting business within this state, under the provisions of chapter six of title nine of the code, to write or use any form of policy or contract of insurance, on the life of any individual in this state, until a copy of such form of policy or contract has been filed with the auditor of state subject to approval or disapproval by the governor, auditor of state and attorney-general, or by any two of them. Any form of policy or contract which has been disapproved by said officials shall not be written or used in this state. [30 G. A., ch. 59, § 1.]

SEC. 1783-b. Medical examination. Said officials shall decline to approve any such form of policy or contract of insurance unless the same shall, in all respects, conform to the laws of this state applicable thereto, and unless the issuance of the same is based upon a satisfactory medical examination of the applicant by a physician duly authorized to practice medicine in the state of Iowa, or the state where examined and no policy or contract of insurance shall be issued by any insurance company to any individual in this state until such examination shall have been passed and duly approved by the medical examiner or medical board of such company. [30 G. A., ch. 59, § 2.]

SEC. 1783-c. Penalty. Any company violating any of the provisions of this act shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in a sum not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars for each such offense, and the court may also revoke its authority to do business within this state. Should any company decline to file a copy of its form of policies or contracts, as provided in this act, the auditor of state shall suspend its authority to transact business within the state until such form of policies or contracts have been so filed and approved. [30 G. A., ch. 59, § 3.]

SEC. 1783-d. Life insurance companies may write other insurance. Any life insurance company organized on the stock or mutual plan and authorized by its charter or articles of incorporation so to do, may in addition to such life insurance, insure the health of persons and against personal injuries, disablement or death, resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water, and insure employers against loss in consequence of accidents or casualties of any kind to employes or other persons, or to property resulting from any act of the employe or any accident or casualty to persons or property, or both, occurring in or connected with the transaction of their business, or from the operation of any machinery connected therewith, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize any life insurance company to insure against loss or injury to person, or property, or both, growing out of explosion or rupture of steam boilers. [31 G. A., ch. 74.]

SEC. 1783-e. Capital stock—minimum amount. From and after the taking effect of this act, no insurance company shall be incorporated to transact business upon the stock plan, whether life insurance or insurance other than life, with less than one hundred thousand dollars capital, the entire amount of which shall be fully paid up in cash and invested as provided by law. No part of the capital referred to, shall be loaned to any officer or stockholder of the company. [32 G. A., ch. 79, § 1.]

SEC. 1783-f. Companies heretofore organized. The certificate of authority of any company heretofore organized and transacting business on the stock plan shall not be renewed after January first, nineteen hundred ten, unless said company shall have, at said time, at least one hundred thousand dollars of capital stock; at least fifty thousand dollars of which shall be paid up in cash and invested according to law. The remainder of said capital may be represented by stock notes payable to the company on demand of its board of directors and said notes shall be deposited with the auditor of state subject to his approval. But no increase of the capital stock of any company shall hereafter be made unless the amount of said increase is paid up in cash. [32 G. A., ch. 79, § 2.]

SEC. 1783-g. May not advertise authorized capital. No insurance company shall, after the taking effect of this act, be permitted to advertise or publish an authorized capital, or to represent in any manner itself as possessed of any greater capital than that actually paid up and invested as above provided. [32 G. A., ch. 79, § 3.]

SEC. 1783-h. Penalties. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act, or failing to comply with any of its provisions, shall be subjected to the penalties provided in section four[1] of chapter fifty-six, acts of the thirtieth general assembly. [32 G. A., ch. 79, § 4.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF STIPULATED PREMIUM AND ASSESSMENT LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATIONS.

SECTION 1784. Defined. That the law as it appears in section seventeen hundred eighty-four of the supplement to the code [1902] be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Every corporation organized upon the assessment plan, for the purpose of insuring the lives of individuals or furnishing benefits to the widows, heirs, orphans or legatees of deceased members, or insuring the health of persons or furnishing accident indemnity, shall be styled an association, and any corporation doing business under this chapter which provides for the payment of policy claims, accumulation of a reserve or emergency fund, the expense of management and prosecution of the business, by payment of assessments as provided in its contracts, and wherein the liability of the insured to contribute to the payment of policy claims is not limited to a fixed amount, shall be deemed to be engaged in the business of life insurance upon the assessment plan, and shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter, and chapter eight, of title nine of the code." [31 G. A., ch. 75; 28 G. A., ch. 65, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.]

The statutory provisions with reference to mutual benefit associations, held to be applicable to an association organized under such provisions, although it had not fully complied therewith. Crocker v. Hogin, 103–243, 72 N. W. 411.

Life insurance companies, except as otherwise specially provided, are incorporated under the general provision as to the formation of corporations. Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133–199, 110 N. W. 452.

Members of a mutual benefit association are bound to take notice of and be governed by its by-laws. Fitzgerald v. Metropolitan Acc. Assn., 106–457, 76 N. W. 809.

A company operating on the mutual assessment plan is not relieved from the provisions of this chapter by the provisions of code § 1798 exempting from its operation associations organized solely for benevolent purposes. Connell v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 139–444, 116 N. W. 820.

The association cannot amend its by-laws in such manner as to affect the promise of the society to pay a particular sum to the insured. A member has the right to rely on the terms of his contract. Fort v. Iowa Legion of Honor, 146–183, 123 N. W. 224.

The general power to amend the by-laws reserved by the society does not authorize an amendment which impairs the vested rights of the members. Ibid.

Where the association so amended its by-laws as to repudiate its existing contracts and to provide for a new rate of assessment on a diminished policy, held that failure to tender the amount due under the original contract did not defeat his right of action to recover damages for breach of contract by such charge. Ibid.

The fact that the association has no funds with which to pay a judgment does not defeat the right to recover damages for repudiation of the contract. Ibid.

Where the assured agrees to be bound by amendments to the by-laws or articles subsequently adopted, he must take notice thereof and is as effectually concluded thereby as by those existing at the time of the issuance of his certificate or policy. Elliott v. Home Mut. Hail Assn., 140 N. W. 431.

The statute recognizes the authority of such associations to insure for the benefit of legatees and in the absence of limitation prescribed in the articles or by-laws, it is presumed that persons of any class enumerated in the statute may be beneficiaries. Brinsmaid v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 152–134, 132 N. W. 34.

SEC. 1784-a. Repeal. That the law as it appears in sections seventeen hundred eighty-four-a to seventeen hundred eighty-four-o inclusive, supplement to the code [1902] be and the same is hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 76.]

SEC. 1786. Name.

The provision of code § 1689 as to including the word "mutual" in the name of a mutual company has no application to associations organized under this chapter. Moore v. Union Frat. Acc. Assn., 103–424, 72 N. W. 645.

SEC. 1787. Conditions for commencing business—approval of policy forms. Before issuing any policy or certificate of membership, if the association at the time has not a membership sufficient to pay the full amount of its certificate or policy on an assessment, it shall cause all applications for insurance to have printed in red ink, in a conspicuous manner along the margin thereof, the words: "It is understood that the amount of insurance to be paid under this application, and certificate or policy issued thereon, shall depend upon the amount collected from an assessment therefor." It must have actual applications upon at least two hundred fifty lives for at least one thousand dollars each; and it shall file with the auditor of state satisfactory proof that the president, secretary and treasurer have each given a good and sufficient bond for five thousand dollars for the faithful discharge of their duties as such officers, sworn copies of which shall be filed with him. It shall also file with him a list, verified by the president and secretary, of the applications, giving the name, age and residence of each applicant, the amount of insurance applied for by each, together with the annual dues and the proposed assessments thereon. Its policy forms shall be approved, as provided by section seventeen hundred eighty-three-a of the supplement to the code, 1907. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 14.] [21 G. A., ch. 65, § 4.]

Under the bond given by the president of an assessment life insurance company, the sureties are not liable to a receiver of the company for moneys wrongfully paid by him to one member which were collected for the benefit of another who has in turn been satisfied from funds subsequently collected or for money misappropriated after the expiration of the bond. Sherman v. Harbin, 124–643, 100 N. W. 622.

Any act of the president of the association contrary to his duty under its articles of incorporation, even though directed or acquiesced in by the board of directors, constitutes a breach of duty involving liability of the surety on his official bond if it results in loss to the association. Sherman v. Harbin, 125–174, 100 N. W. 629.

A new bond executed on reëlection for another year is a new and independent undertaking and not a continuance of the bond for the previous year. Ibid.

Auditing the books of the company being no part of the duty of the president, he is not liable under his official bond for not discovering errors overlooked by the auditing committee. Ibid.

The act of the president in diverting the beneficiary fund to the payment of expenses in resisting claims renders him liable on his bond. Ibid.

If the obligation of the association is no more than to levy an assessment on its members and pay the benefit or indemnity stipulated from the proceeds derived therefrom, then the remedy is in equity to compel an assessment and an action at law cannot be maintained. But if the contract, whether contained in the certificate of membership, the articles of incorporation or by-laws, is for the payment of defined or fixed sums upon the happening of specific contingencies, then the remedy is at law. Frank v. Interstate Business Men's Acc. Assn., 151–684, 132 N. W. 49.

Where the plan of the association requires that assessments be collected quarterly and that the sums provided in the contract be paid on the death of the member out of the proceeds of assessments on hand derived either from annual dues or assessments, then the action is properly at law even though the amount to be paid is subject to the limitation that it cannot exceed the assessment of a certain amount per member in good standing at the time of the injury. Ibid.

SEC. 1788. Assessments. The articles and by-laws of each such association and its notices of assessment shall state the objects to which the money to be collected is to be devoted, and no part of the proceeds thereof shall be applied to any other purpose than as stated, and the excess, if any, beyond payment of the benefit, shall be set aside and applied only to like purposes, except that all sums collected for expenses and not used for that purpose may be transferred to the benefit, emergency or reserve fund. [30 G. A., ch. 60; 21 G. A., ch. 65, § 6.]

While in the enforcement of a claim for a death loss against a mutual benefit association resort must be had in the first place to an action in mandamus to compel a levy of an assessment, yet, where the corporation fails to make the levy at a time when it would be effectual in furnishing the fund for the payment of the claim, and postpones it until long after, when by reason of decrease in the membership in the association it becomes ineffectual, the association may be held liable in damages. Christie v. Iowa L. Ins. Co., 111–177, 82 N. W. 499.

In such case interest from the time the money should have been collected and paid over under the terms of the contract may be added. Ibid.

The beneficiaries being entitled to the amount realized on particular assessments under their certificates, the misappropriation of an assessment made for a loss under one certificate to the payment of a loss under a different certificate does not give rise to an action on the bond of the officer making such appropriation at the suit of the receiver of the company. Sherman v. Harbin, 124–643, 100 N. W. 622.

SEC. 1789. Insurable age—beneficiary—assignment of policy.

Age: An association is not precluded by the provisions of this section from assuming by consolidation the liability of another association to a member, although at the time of such consolidation the member is over the age when a valid certificate could have been issued. Cathcart v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 111–471, 82 N. W. 964.

A company whose articles do not prohibit the insurance of persons over the age specified by code § 1789 cannot by its by-laws render a contract of insurance with a person within the statutory age ultra vires and void. Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133–199, 110 N. W. 452.

Change of beneficiary: The provision as to change of beneficiaries relates to the certificate and not to the fund, and the word "assignment" as here used is equivalent to the word "endorsement." A beneficiary who is substituted by the act of the person on whose life the certificate is issued is not an assignee of the certificate. Shuman v. Supreme Lodge K. of H., 110–480, 81 N. W. 717.

Where the right to change the beneficiary is specifically provided for in the certificate, and the manner of doing so is pointed out, the method indicated must be adopted and if that method involves the issuance of a new certificate, the endorsement of a certificate without the observance of the formalities required will not give the endorsee a right to the proceeds as against the beneficiaries designated by the certificate itself. Shuman v. A. O. U. W. 110–642, 82 N. W. 331.

Where the benefit was made payable to the wife of the deceased, who was disqualified to collect it on account of having feloniously caused the death of her husband, held that her heirs had no interest in the benefit fund, but that the amount payable was held in trust by the association for the estate of the deceased. Schmidt v. Northern Life Assn., 112–41, 83 N. W. 800.

The beneficiary named in such a certificate has no property right therein, but only an expectancy. If a beneficiary is designated who does not belong to the class of persons enumerated by statute, the insurance becomes payable to those who would have been entitled to it in the absence of any designation. Ibid.

Where the parties have agreed upon a mode by which a change of beneficiary may be effected, the change can be made in that mode only, unless by subsequent agreement, assented to by the association, a different mode is substituted. Modern Woodmen v. Little, 114–109, 86 N. W. 216.

The beneficiary in a fraternal or mutual benefit association has no vested interest, but is subject to provisions as to changing beneficiaries and when the member has done all in his power to effect the change and entitle him to a new certificate in favor of the proposed beneficiary, equity will carry out his purpose, although the actual issuance and acceptance of the new certificate were prevented by the death of the member. Wandell v. Mystic Toilers, 130–639, 105 N. W. 448.

And it seems that if by action of the local officer the member is misled as to the steps necessary to be taken, the association will be estopped to question the sufficiency of the change. Ibid.

This section applies to foreign as well as domestic companies. Belknap v. Johnston, 114–265, 86 N. W. 267.

Where the certificate is a contract of insurance, made in another state, and change of beneficiary is made and completed in that state, according to its laws, it will be valid. Ibid.

The right to change beneficiary existing in such other state at the time the contract was made cannot be affected by subsequent legislation of such state. Ibid.

Upon the surrender of a certificate for the purpose of changing beneficiaries the company is not permitted to alter, add to or take from other conditions of the contract in the new certificate and thereby bind the insured without his assent. Wood v. Brotherhood of Am. Yeomen, 148–400, 126 N. W. 949.

In the absence of any provision for notice to the company of a change of beneficiary, such change may be made by provision in a will. Brinsmaid v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 152–134, 132 N. W. 34.

Assignment: Where it was provided that the certificate should not be assignable in payment of or security for any debt, held that the assignment thereof as a security was invalid and the creditor acquired no rights thereunder. Crocker v. Hogin, 103–243, 72 N. W. 411.

Rights of beneficiary: Until the beneficiary is changed by law, he has an actual, subsisting interest in the policy which will pass to his administrator in case of his death, and as against such beneficiary, or his administrator, suicide on the part of the insured is not a defense in the absence of a provision to that effect in the policy. But fraud, in procuring a policy with the intent to commit suicide, will vitiate the entire contract and defeat recovery. Parker v. Des Moines Life Assn., 108–117, 78 N. W. 826.

Under an ordinary life policy the beneficiary has a vested right which cannot be impaired without his consent. Haerther v. Mohr, 114–636, 87 N. W. 692.

If under the terms of the contract the benefit is payable to some extent and under some conditions to a beneficiary within the description of the statute, the naming of a beneficiary not authorized by statute to receive the benefit under certain conditions does not render the contract invalid and the recovery of the benefit may be had by the beneficiary coming within the statutory provisions. Oliphant v. American Health & Acc. Assn., 147–656, 126 N. W. 806.

The beneficiary named in a certificate of a fraternal beneficiary association has no vested interest during the life of the member; but on the death of such member the person who, under the terms of the contract with the association, is then entitled to receive the benefits provided for in the certificate does acquire a vested interest therein. Holden v. Modern Brotherhood, 151–673, 132 N. W. 329.

The effort of a member to change a beneficiary which is not made in accordance with the rules of the association regulating the manner in which such changes may be made, is ineffectual. But to this rule there are some well defined exceptions, as where the society has waived compliance or estopped itself to assert noncompliance; where it is beyond the power of the member to comply literally with the regulations; or if the insured has pursued the course pointed out in the by-laws and has done all in his power to change the beneficiary, but before the new certificate actually issues he dies. Ibid.

When a benefit society pays the money into court upon one of its certificates, it waives all mere technical defenses which it might have set up against either claimant and leaves the court free to award the fund upon equitable principles and the court will then determine as to which of the two rival claimants is, in equity, entitled to the fund. Ibid.

SEC. 1794. Foreign companies. Any association organized under the laws of any other state to carry on the business of insuring the lives of persons, or of furnishing benefits to the widows, orphans, heirs or legatees of deceased members, or of paying accident indemnity, or surrender value of certificates of insurance, upon the stipulated premium plan or assessment plan, may be permitted to do business in the state by complying with the requirements hereinafter made, but not otherwise. It shall file with the auditor of state a copy of its charter or articles of incorporation, duly certified by the proper officers of the state wherein it was organized, together with a copy of its by-laws, application and policy or certificate of membership. It shall also file with the auditor a statement, signed and verified by its president and secretary, which shall show the name and location of the association, its principal place of business, the names of its president, secretary and other principal officers, the number of certificates or policies in force, the aggregate amount insured thereby, the amount paid to beneficiaries in the event of death or accident, the amount paid on the last death loss and the date thereof, the amount of cash or other assets owned by the association and how invested, and any other information which the auditor may require. The statement, papers and proofs thus filed shall show that the death loss or surrender value of the certificate of insurance or accident indemnity is in the main provided for by assessments upon or contributions by surviving members of such association, and that it is legally organized, honestly managed, and that an ordinary assessment upon its members or other regular contributions to its mortuary fund are sufficient to pay its maximum certificate to the full limit named therein. Upon its complying with the provisions of this section, and of section eighteen hundred and eight, chapter eight, of this title, and the payment of twenty-five dollars, the auditor shall issue to it a certificate of authority to do business in this state, provided the same right is extended by the state in which said association is organized to associations of the same class in this state. When the auditor doubts the solvency of any foreign association, and the failure to pay the full limit named in its certificate or policy shall be such evidence of its insolvency as to require the auditor to investigate it, he shall for this or other good cause, at the expense of such association, cause an examination of its books, papers and business to be made, and if upon such examination he finds that the association is not financially sound, or is not paying its policies or certificates in full, or is conducting its business fraudulently, or if it shall fail to make the statement required by law, he may revoke its authority and prohibit it from doing business until it shall again comply with the provisions of this chapter. If the auditor appoints some one not receiving a regular salary in his office to make this examination, such examiner shall receive five dollars per day for his services in addition to his actual traveling and hotel expenses, to be paid by the association examined, or by the state on the approval of the executive council, if the association fails to pay the same. The provisions of this section shall apply to fraternal beneficiary associations doing exclusively an accident insurance business, and upon compliance with the provisions of this chapter, and the provisions of chapter eight of title nine of the code, so far as the same are applicable, such associations may be authorized to transact business within this state. [32 G. A., ch. 82; 21 G. A., ch. 65, § 13.]

SEC. 1798. Benevolent societies—process. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to apply to any association organized solely for benevolent purposes and composed wholly of members of any one occupation, guild, profession or religious denomination, but any such society may, by complying with the provisions hereof, become entitled to all the privileges thereof, in which event it shall be amenable to the provisions of this chapter so far as they are applicable; provided that if organized under the laws of another state or country, they shall file with the auditor of state an agreement in writing authorizing service or notice of process to be made upon the said auditor of state, and when so made shall be as valid and binding as if served upon the association within this state. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 15.] [21 G. A., ch. 65, § 21.]

A mutual assessment company providing for benefits to its members in case of death or accident is not an association organized solely for benevolent purposes within the provisions of this section. Connell v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 139–444, 116 N. W. 820.

SEC. 1798-a. Future organization or authorization prohibited—valuation of policies of existing associations. No life, health or accident insurance company or association, other than fraternal beneficiary associations, which issues contracts, the performance of which is contingent upon the payment of assessments of call made upon its members, shall do business within this state except such companies or associations as are now authorized to do business within this state and which, if a life insurance company or association, shall value their assessment policies or certificates of membership as yearly renewable term policies according to the standard of valuation of life insurance policies prescribed by the laws of this state. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 16.] [32 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.]

SEC. 1798-b. Reincorporation as legal reserve company—stock company. Any existing domestic assessment company or association may, with the written consent of the auditor of state, upon a majority vote of its trustees or directors, amend its articles of incorporation and by-laws in such manner as to transform itself into a legal reserve or level premium company, and upon so doing and upon procuring from the auditor of state a certificate of authority, as prescribed by law, to transact business in this state as a legal reserve or level premium company, shall incur the obligations and enjoy the benefits thereof, the same as though originally thus incorporated, and such corporation, under its charter as thus amended, shall be a continuation of such original corporation, and the officers thereof shall serve through their respective terms as provided in the original charter, but their successors shall be elected and serve as in such amended articles provided; but such amendment or reincorporation shall not affect existing suits, rights or contracts. Any assessment company reincorporated to transact life insurance business, shall value its assessment policies or certificates as yearly renewable term policies according to the standard of valuation of life insurance policies prescribed by the laws of this state; provided that accident or health associations may take advantage of all the provisions of this section, in so far as applicable, and may thereupon transform themselves into stock companies. But no such company or association shall reorganize under the provisions of this section unless it shall have accumulated sufficient surplus to constitute a reinsurance reserve equal to the unearned premium on all outstanding policies or certificates, as prescribed by the statutes of this state relating thereto. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 17.] [32 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF PROVISIONS APPLYING TO LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND ASSOCIATIONS.

SECTION 1805. Policy exempt from execution.

The execution of an ordinary life policy confers immediately a vested right upon and raises an irrevocable trust in favor of the party named as beneficiary, a right which cannot be impaired without the beneficiary's consent. Haerther v. Mohr, 114–636, 87 N. W. 692.

The purpose of this section being to provide that the money derived from life or accident insurance shall enure to the benefit of the widow, exempt from her antecedent debts, it follows that she may invest a part or the whole thereof in property which shall be necessary for the comfort and support of her family without impairing this right of exemption. The exemption is not limited to the money itself. Cook v. Allee, 119–226, 93 N. W. 93.

In the absence of any contract or arrangement, the proceeds of life insurance are not exempt in the hands of the heir from the debts of such heir. O'Melia v. Hoffmeyer, 119–444, 93 N. W. 497.

Where a bankrupt holds a policy payable to himself, his heirs or legal representatives, the surrender value thereof will be a part of the assets of his estate in bankruptcy under the provisions of the federal bankrupt law. In re Lange, 91 Fed. 361; in re Steele, 98 Fed. 78.

The provisions of the bankrupt law as to exemption of policies of life insurance are only applicable to cases where there is no exemption by the state law, but so far as such policies are exempt by the state law such exemption is recognized under the general provisions as to exempt property. Steele v. Buel, 104 Fed. 968.

The exemption of this section may apply to property purchased with the avails of the insurance. Booth v. Martin, 139 N. W. 888.

SEC. 1806. Investment of funds. That the law which appears as section eighteen hundred and six, supplement to the code [1902], be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The funds required by law to be deposited with the auditor of state by any company or association contemplated in the two chapters preceding, and the funds or accumulations of any such company or association organized under the laws of this state held in trust for the purpose of fulfilling any contract in its policies or certificates, shall be invested in the following described securities and no other:

1. The bonds of the United States;

2. The bonds of this state or of any other state when such bonds are at or above par;

3. Bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any county, city, town or school district within the state or any other state, drainage district bonds of this state, improvement certificates issued by any municipal corporation of this state such certificates being a first lien upon real estate within the corporate limits of the municipality issuing the same, where such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness are issued by authority of and according to law and bearing interest, and are approved by the executive council;

4. Bonds and mortgages and other interest-bearing securities being first liens upon real estate within this state or any other state worth at least double the amount loaned thereon and secured thereby exclusive of improvements, or two and one-half times such amount including the improvements thereon, if such improvements are constructed of brick or stone; but no such improvements shall be considered in estimating the value unless the owner shall contract to keep the same insured in some reliable fire insurance company or companies authorized to do business in the state, during the life of the loan, in a sum at least double the excess of the loan above one half the value of the ground exclusive of the improvements, the insurance to be made payable in case of loss to the company or association investing its funds, as its interests may appear at the time of loss; provided that before a company or association may invest any of its funds in such securities as are specified in this subdivision of this section in any state other than the state of Iowa it shall first obtain consent of the executive council so to do; any mortgage lien upon real estate shall not, for the purposes of this section, be held or construed to be other than a first lien by reason of the fact that drainage or other improvement assessments may have been levied against the real estate covered by said mortgage, whether the installments of said assessment be matured or not, provided that in determining the value of said real esate for loan purposes, the amount of the drainage or other assessment tax unpaid, shall be deducted.

5. Loans upon its own policies, where the same have been in force at least two full years, in an amount not exceeding the net terminal reserve. If such loan is made, the company must describe in the note or contract taken, the amount of the loan, the name of the borrower, the number of the policy, and the terms of such note or contract shall make the amount loaned a lien against such policy and such note or contract shall be numbered, dated and signed, giving the post-office address of the insured.

6. Any such real estate in this state as is necessary for its accommodation as a home office and in the erection of any building for such purposes, it may add thereto rooms for rent; provided that before any company or association shall invest any of its funds, in accordance with the provisions of this subdivision it shall first obtain the consent of the executive council; and provided further that not to exceed ten per cent. of the lawful reserve of such company or association shall be so invested. Any company or association so investing its funds may use the value of any such home office as a part of the deposit of legal reserve in which case it shall convey the same to the auditor of state by deed, such property to be held by him in trust for the benefit of the policyholders or members of the company or association; the value thereof to be determined from time to time by the auditor of state.

All such securities shall be deposited with the auditor of state, subject to his approval, and shall remain with him until withdrawn in accordance with law. Any company or association receiving payments or partial payments on any securities deposited with the auditor of state shall notify him of such fact, giving the amount and date of payment, within thirty days after such payment shall have been made. The officers of any company or association which fails to report the receipt of payments or partial payments as above provided, shall be liable to a fine in double the amount collected and not reported within the time and in the manner above specified. It shall be the duty of the company or association and of the officers thereof to withdraw from deposit any loans made in accordance with the provisions of subdivision five of this section within fifteen days after the date of the lapsing or termination of any policy of insurance upon which any such loan is made. Any association making deposit with the auditor of state as herein contemplated, shall at the time of making request for the withdrawal of any securities designate for what purpose the same are desired to be withdrawn. The auditor of state shall have authority to suspend or revoke the certificate of authority of any company or association failing to comply with any of the provisions of this section or for violating the same." [35 G. A., ch. 145, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 77; 28 G. A., ch. 66, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 33; 24 G. A., ch. 30; 21 G. A., ch. 65, § 9; 21 G. A., ch. 169; 17 G. A., ch. 47; C. '73, § 1179.]

SEC. 1811. Defenses to actions on policies—intoxication.

This provision has no application to mutual benefit associations. Knapp v. Brotherhood of Am. Yeomen, 128–566, 105 N. W. 63; s. c., 149–137, 126 N. W. 336.

If representations as to the habits of an applicant are known to the soliciting agent to be false the false statements in the application as to such habits cannot be relied upon by the company as a defense. Biermann v. Guaranty Mut. Life Ins. Co., 142–341, 120 N. W. 963.

SEC. 1812. Physician's certificate.

To defeat recovery on account of false statements as to the health of the applicant, the defendant must show, not only that the statements of the applicant were false and fraudulent, but that the examiner was deceived thereby. But the defendant is not estopped by the certificate of the medical examiner from setting up fraud on the part of the applicant in procuring such certificate on which the policy was issued. Welch v. Union Central L. Ins. Co., 108–224, 78 N. W. 853.

The purpose of this statutory provision, estopping the company from setting up misrepresentations as to the health of deceased where a medical examiner has passed on the fitness of the applicant, is to prevent recovery being defeated on any policy where the company has, by its agent, examined and passed upon the fitness of the applicant for insurance, and it is quite immaterial what representations have been made or warranties given. The fraud or deceit referred to in the statute is that of procuring the report or certificate of the physician and not the policy. Weimer v. Economic L. Assn., 108–451, 79 N. W. 123.

Unless the examiner is deceived by answers in the application, or in some other way, the company is not entitled to have the condition of health of the insured at the time of the issuance of the policy investigated. In the absence of fraud or deceit practiced on the medical examiner the company is estopped from questioning the truthfulness of the answers made by the insured in the application. Stewart v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 110–528, 81 N. W. 782.

Under this section the company is estopped from inquiring into the correctness of answers in the application in the absence of an allegation that the medical examiner's report was procured through fraud or deceit. The fact that the statements in such application amount to warranties is immaterial. Nelson v. Nederland L. Ins. Co., 110–600, 81 N. W. 807.

The provisions of this section evidently relate to procedure and not to the validity of the contract, and therefore control in an action on a policy issued in another state by a foreign insurance company. Ibid.

Where a physician reports in favor of the application, and it is not proven that such report was secured by fraud practiced upon the physician, the defendant is estopped from denying the truthfulness of the applicant's representations. Brown v. Modern Woodmen, 115–450, 88 N. W. 965.

The medical examiner or physician referred to in this section is the person who examines the applicant and determines his condition of health and reports whether he is a proper risk. Peterson v. Des Moines L. Assn., 115–668, 87 N. W. 397.

The provisions of this section apply to the person who represents the company in making an examination of applicants as to their physical condition, and not to the action of the medical director of the company in determining whether the risk shall be accepted. Wood v. Farmers' Life Assn., 121–44, 95 N. W. 226.

Proof of the falsity of the representations made in an application for life insurance is not alone sufficient to establish that such representations were fraudulently made. Ley v. Metropolitan L. Ins. Co., 120–203, 94 N. W. 568.

The provisions with reference to the conclusiveness of a health certificate given by a medical examiner have no application to mutual benefit associations. Smith v. Supreme Lodge, 123–676, 99 N. W. 553.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate evidence of fraud in the application consisting in false answers as to the conditions of the applicant's health is admissible to defeat recovery. Ibid.

Unless the agent is purposely misled by the applicant for insurance, the company is estopped from putting in issue whether at the time of the issue or delivery of the certificate he was a fit subject for insurance. Roe v. National Life Ins. Assn., 137–696, 115 N. W. 500.

To constitute such fraud or deceit there must have been an intention to deceive and the examiner must have relied upon the false statements made by the insured or have been misled by concealment of facts which good faith required him to disclose. Ibid.

The provisions of this section are not applicable to fraternal benefit societies, orders or associations. Sargent v. Modern Brotherhood, 148–600, 127 N. W. 52.

Where a policy of insurance takes effect from the time it is mailed to the applicant, the applicant's condition of health at that time is not open to question or consideration if he has been pronounced by the company's physician a fit subject of insurance. Unterharnscheidt v. Missouri State L. Ins. Co., 138 N. W. 459.

Section applied. Metzradt v. Modern Brotherhood of America, 112–522, 84 N. W. 498.

SEC. 1813. Misrepresentation of age.

This provision held applicable to a contract of insurance in the Modern Woodmen, it not appearing that such organization was a fraternal beneficiary society as defined in code § 1822, and therefore specially exempted from the general statutory provisions relating to life insurance. Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133–199, 110 N. W. 452.

SEC. 1819. Copy of application.

Whether the provision that a copy of the application must be attached to or endorsed upon the policy pertains solely to matters of remedy and procedure, and is therefore applicable in an action in this state upon a policy regardless of the place of contract, quaere; but held that the statute of Minnesota under which the policy was executed, though different in terms from the statutory provision in this state, should receive the same construction, and that evidence of fraudulent statements in the application not thus attached or endorsed was inadmissible. Rauen v. Prudential Ins. Co., 129–725, 106 N. W. 198.

The provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 211, as to attaching copy of application to policy (now embodied in code § 1741) held applicable to fraternal societies. Stork v. Supreme Lodge K. of P., 113–724, 84 N. W. 721.

A cross-petition asking cancellation of the policy on the ground of fraud committed by the making of false answers in the application cannot be sustained where a copy of the application has not been attached to or incorporated in the policy. Biermann v. Guranty Mut. Life Ins. Co., 142–341, 120 N. W. 963.

The purpose of this section is to require all representations and warranties to be attached to the policy so that all parts of the contract may be together and the insured may be at all times in possession of the evidence of his contract. Nutter v. Des Moines L. Ins. Co., 156–539, 136 N. W. 891.

Section applied. Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. Kelly, 114 Fed. 268.

As applicable to this section, see notes to code § 1741.

SEC. 1820. Limitation of action. That section eighteen hundred twenty of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No stipulation or condition in any policy or contract of insurance or beneficiary certificate issued by any company or association mentioned or referred to in this chapter, limiting the time to a period of less than one year after knowledge by the beneficiary within which notice or proofs of death or the occurrence of other contingency insured against must be given, shall be valid. In case of accident or health insurance it shall be valid for any company or association to limit by contract the time when notice or proofs of death, cause of disability or other contingency insured against shall be given; but in no case shall said notice be limited to a period of less than sixty days after knowledge by the beneficiary within which such notice or proofs must be given." [33 G. A., ch. 113, §§ 1, 2.]

The provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 211, § 3, relating to proofs of loss, held applicable to mutual benefit associations as well as fire insurance companies. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108–6, 78 N. W. 676.

The time within which an action may be brought for the loss on the policy cannot by stipulation be limited to less than one year from the time the cause of action has accrued. Kenny v. Bankers' Acc. Ins. Co., 136–140, 113 N. W. 566.

A stipulation in the by-laws of a mutual benefit association organized and acting under the provisions of code § 1784 exacting written notice of the death of a member within fifteen days after death is invalid. Connell v. Iowa State Trav. Men's Assn., 139–444, 116 N. W. 820.

The auditor of state may, for good cause, decline to issue such license or may, for like cause, revoke the same. The fee charged for such agent's license shall be, for domestic companies, fifty cents, and for companies located outside the state, two dollars. [30 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.]

SEC. 1821-l. Acting without license—penalty. Any person acting as agent or otherwise representing any insurance company or association, in violation of the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a fine of twenty-five dollars for each day he shall so act. [30 G. A., ch. 57, § 2.]

SEC. 1821-m. "Company" defined. The word "company" or "companies" when used in this act shall mean any company or association or-

Provided that nothing contained in this chapter shall prevent any company as defined in section one of this act from reinsuring a fractional part of any single risk. [30 G. A., ch. 58, § 2.]

Consolidation with another company does not require the unanimous consent of the stockholders. Beidenkopf v. Des Moines L. Ins. Co., 142 N. W. 434.

Such consolidation or reinsurance shall only be approved by the consent of all of the members of said commission, and it shall be the duty of said commission to guard the interests of the policyholders of any such company or companies proposing consolidation or reinsurance. In case of companies organized on the assessment plan, the commission may require the plan of consolidation or reinsurance to be submitted to the membership of such company or companies to be voted upon. When submitted, it shall be at a meeting called for that purpose, thirty days' notice being given, and a two-thirds vote of all the members present and voting shall be necessary to an approval of any plan of consolidation or reinsurance, and no proxies shall, in any case, be voted. [30 G. A., ch. 58, § 5.]

SEC. 1821-r. [30 G. A., ch. 58, § 6.]

SEC. 1821-s. Consolidation with unauthorized companies prohibited. No company or companies as defined by section one of this act shall consolidate or reinsure with any other company or companies not authorized to transact business in this state. [30 G. A., ch. 58, § 7.]

SEC. 1821-t. Expenses—how paid. All expenses and costs incident to proceedings under the provisions of this chapter, shall be paid by the company or companies bringing the petition. [30 G. A., ch. 58, § 8.]

SEC. 1821-v. Proportionate representation. From and after the taking effect of this act, the holder or holders, jointly or severally, of not less than one fifth but less than a majority of the shares of the capital stock of corporations organized on the stock plan under the laws of this state for transacting the business of life or fire insurance, shall be entitled to nominate to be elected or appointed, as the case may be, directors or other persons performing the functions of directors by whom, according to the articles of incorporation of such corporations its affairs are to be conducted. In the event such nomination shall be made, there shall be elected or appointed to the extent that the total number to be elected or appointed is divisible, such proportionate number from the persons so nominated as the shares of stock held by persons making such nominations bear to the whole number of shares issued; provided the holder or holders of the minority shares of stock shall only be entitled to one fifth (disregarding fractions) of the total number of directors to be elected for each one fifth of the entire capital stock of such corporation so held by them; and provided further that this act shall not be construed to prevent the holders of a majority of the stock of any such corporation from electing the majority of its directors. Vacancies occurring from time to time shall be filled so as to preserve and secure to such minority and majority stockholders proportionate representation as above provided. [32 G. A., ch. 74, § 1.]

SEC. 1821-y. Nor shall any of the funds of a company or association be expended in procuring proxies. [32 G. A., ch. 77, § 2.]

SEC. 1821-z. Penalty. Any violation of this act shall be deemed a misdemeanor and punishable accordingly. [32 G. A., ch. 77, § 3.]

CHAPTER 9.

OF FRATERNAL BENEFICIARY SOCIETIES, ORDERS OR ASSOCIATIONS.

SECTION 1822. Defined—general provisions. A fraternal beneficiary association is hereby declared to be a corporation, society or voluntary association, formed or organized and carried on for the sole benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system, with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government. Such association shall make provision for the payment of benefits in case of death, and may make provision for the payment of benefits in case of sickness, temporary or permanent physical disability, either as a result of disease, accident or old age, provided the period of life at which payment of physical disability benefits on account of old age commences shall not be under seventy years, subject to the compliance by members with its constitution and laws. Provided that beneficiary societies or associations, whose membership is confined to the members of any one religious denomination, shall only be required to have a branch system and a representative form of government. Such beneficiary societies or associations shall be governed by the provisions of chapter nine, title nine, of the code, and shall be exempt from the provisions of the statutes of this state, relating to life insurance companies, to the same extent as fraternal beneficiary associations. But the provisions of this chapter shall not be construed to include fraternal orders which only provide for sick and funeral benefits. [34 G. A., ch. 81, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 21, § 1.]

Unless it appears that an association engaged in the business of insurance is within the definition of fraternal beneficiary societies, it will be presumed to be within the general provisions relating to life insurance companies and associations.

Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133–199, 110 N. W. 452.

The provision of code § 1812, relating to life insurance companies and associations, that the certificate of the examining physician estops the company from defending on the ground that the assured was not in condition of health required by the policy at the time of the issuance of the certificate, in the absence of any evidence that the certificate was acquired by any fraud or deceit of the assured, has no application to beneficiary societies or associations. Sargent v. Modern Brotherhood. 148–600, 127 N. W. 52.

Such an association may rely upon misrepresentations in the application as breaches of warranty. But held that under a liberal construction in favor of the assured the answers to questions in the application were not false in such sense as to defeat recovery. Ibid.

SEC. 1822-a. Membership confined to one religious denomination —heretofore organized. Any corporation heretofore organized under the laws of this state, whose membership is confined to the members of any one religious denomination, and whose plan of business permits, may take advantage of this act by amendment to its articles of incorporation, and by complying with the provisions of section eighteen hundred thirty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907; provided, that such corporations as on March fifteenth, nineteen hundred and seven, were and have since continuously been doing business under chapter seven, title nine of the code, may take advantage of this act without raising their mortuary assessment rates or showing that their said rates are such as are required by section eighteen hundred and thirty-nine-j of the supplement to the code, 1907. [34 G. A., ch. 81, § 2.]

SEC. 1824. Insurable age—beneficiary.

The designation of a beneficiary in a certificate of fraternal insurance is not affected by the fact that such beneficiary has subsequently ceased to bear the relationship to the member required by the articles of the association with reference to the designation of such beneficiary. White v. Brotherhood of Am. Yeomen, 124–293, 99 N. W. 1071; Schmidt v. Hauer, 139–531, 111 N. W. 966.

Relationship by affinity is not created between the blood relatives on either side of the parties to the marriage relation, and a beneficiary is not a relative of the member within the statutory language as to who may be beneficiaries where their relationship is only by affinity through one who is deceased. Smith v. Knights of Maccabees, 127–115, 102 N. W. 830.

Where a beneficiary named is not capable of taking the proceeds under the limitations of the statute as to who may be made beneficiaries, the administrator of the deceased member can recover such proceeds as though no beneficiary had been named. Ibid.

In an action against a mutual benefit company by one claiming under a certificate as wife of the insured, the company defending on the ground that insured had a prior wife living and that plaintiff was not, therefore, entitled to the benefit, has the burden of showing that a prior marriage existed, and had not been dissolved. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108–6, 78 N. W. 676.

As to changing beneficiary see notes to § 1789.

SEC. 1825. Statutes applicable.

The statutes relating to life insurance companies are not applicable to mutual benefit associations except as specifically provided, and therefore held that the provisions of code § 1812, making the certificate of a medical examiner conclusive on the company as against all statements in the application, are not applicable to such associations. Smith v. Supreme Lodge, 123–676, 99 N. W. 553.

The provisions of the general chapter relating to life insurance are not applicable to mutual benefit associations unless incorporated into the chapter relating to such associations. Knapp v. Brotherhood, 128–566, 105 N. W. 63.

SEC. 1826. Copy of application.

The statute does not require a true likeness or facsimile of the application to be attached to the policy and discrepancies which do not involve any construction in determining that the copies of the application are the same may be disregarded. Knapp v. Brotherhood of Am. Yeomen, 139–136, 117 N. W. 298.

The provisions of the statute as to incorporating the application in or attaching a copy of it to the policy cannot be waived by the assured. Mullen v. Woodmen of the World, 144–228, 122 N. W. 903.

SEC. 1832. Annual certificate—amount of insurance required. That the law which appears as section eighteen hundred thirty-two of the supplement to the code [1902] be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Before any beneficiary society, order or association shall be authorized to commence business within this state, it shall submit to the auditor of state its by-laws or rules by which it is to be governed, and also its articles of incorporation which shall include its plan of business. The auditor of state shall thereupon submit its articles of incorporation to the attorney-general for examination, and if found by him to be in harmony with this title, chapter and with law, he shall so certify upon said articles and return them to the auditor of state. If the auditor of state shall approve the articles and also the by-laws or rules, he shall issue to the society, order or association a permit in writing, authorizing it to transact business within this state for a period of one year from the first day of April of the year of its issue, for which certificate and all proceedings in connection therewith. there shall be paid to the auditor of state a fee of twenty-five dollars, and for each annual renewal thereof a like fee shall be paid; provided, however, that before such certificate shall be issued, the fraternal society, order or association shall have actual bona fide applications upon the lives of at least five hundred persons, residents of this state, for at least one thousand dollars of insurance each, and the auditor of state may require the presentation of such applications, signed by the applicants themselves. No renewal of certificate of authority shall be made to any society, order, or association whose membership, in good standing, or the amount of whose insurance in force shall be reduced below the above requirements. Societies, orders or associations not organized under the laws of this state, in addition to the requirements of the provisions of section eighteen hundred twenty-nine of the code, must also comply with all of the provisions of this chapter, except as to the residence of membership; provided, that no such society, order or association shall be authorized to transact business within this state unless it shall be shown to have actual members, in good standing, of at least one thousand, and at least one million dollars of insurance in force." [30 G. A., ch. 62; 27 G. A., ch. 47, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 21, § 12.]

SEC. 1833. Agents.

Mutual benefit associations are prohibited from employing paid agents, and therefore such an organization cannot, after it is formed, ratify the act of a promoter in agreeing that an agent shall have a commission for procuring members for the organization. First National Bank v. Church Federation, 129–268, 105 N. W. 578.

Such a contract being expressly forbidden, the association is not estopped by taking advantage of the services of such agent from defending against his claim for compensation. Ibid.

The statute does not, however, prohibit others than the association from employing and paying an agent to procure members, and held that the promoter pretending to act as general superintendent of the organization was liable to the agent employed by him in the name of the association for compensation under the contract. Ibid.

SEC. 1839-a. "Association" defined. The term "association" when used in this act shall mean any society, order or association organized or authorized under the provisions of chapter nine of title nine of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 1.]

SEC. 1839-b. Examination—assistants—compensation. The auditor of state may, at any time he may deem it advisable, either in person or by his legally appointed representative, make an examination of or inquire into the affairs of any fraternal beneficiary association authorized or seeking to be authorized to transact business within this state, provided the examination of associations organized under the laws of this state shall not be less frequent than once during each biennial period. To aid in making such examination, the auditor of state may appoint such assistants as may be necessary, each of whom shall receive as compensation for his services not to exceed five dollars per day. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 2.]

SEC. 1839-c. Officers to assist—examiner may administer oaths. When an association is being examined, the officers, agents or employes thereof shall produce for inspection all books, papers, documents or other information concerning the affairs of the association and shall otherwise assist in the examination. The auditor of state or examiner shall have authority to administer oaths, and may summon and may examine under oath any officer, employe, representative or agent of any association concerning its affairs or condition. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 3.]

SEC. 1839-d. Revocation or suspension of authority. If upon investigation or examination, it shall appear to the satisfaction of the auditor of state that any association is doing an illegal or unauthorized business, or is failing to fulfill its contracts with its members, or is conducting its business fraudulently, or if its membership or the amount of its insurance in force has been reduced below the legal requirement, or should any association decline or refuse to submit to an examination, the auditor of state may suspend or revoke its certificate of authority to transact business within this state, and having revoked the certificate of authority of any association organized under the laws of this state, he shall at once report the same to the attorney-general who shall apply to the district court or any judge thereof for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of such association. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 4.]

SEC. 1839-e. Expenses—how paid. In addition to the compensation of the assistants provided for in section two of this act, the auditor or examiner and assistants shall be entitled to actual and necessary traveling, hotel and other expenses while conducting examinations away from their respective places of residence, the same to be paid by the treasurer of state upon warrants drawn by the auditor of state, bills therefor having been filed under oath and approved by the executive council. Such expense and compensation shall, by the auditor of state, be charged to and collected from the associations examined and should any association neglect or refuse to pay the same, the auditor of state shall at once revoke its certificate of authority to transact business within this state. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 5.]

SEC. 1839-f. Soliciting new business—penalty. Any officer, manager, agent or representative of any association who with knowledge that its certificate[1] of authority has been suspended or revoked or that it is doing an illegal, unauthorized or fraudulent business solicits insurance for said association or receives applications therefor, or does any other act or thing toward receiving or procuring any new business for said association, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and for every such act, on conviction thereof, shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than ten hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or be punished by both such fine and imprisonment. [30 G. A., ch. 61, § 6.]

["certificates" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1839-g. Plan of consolidation or reinsurance—approval. When any fraternal beneficiary association shall propose to consolidate or enter into any reinsurance contract with any other association or organization, it shall present its proposed plan of consolidation or reinsurance, together with a statement of the condition of its affairs to the auditor of state for his approval. Should he approve the plan, the same shall be submitted by any association proposing to reinsure its risks or transfer its business, to its local lodges or organizations or to a regular or special meeting of its supreme lodge or governing body to be voted upon, such notice being given as the auditor of state may direct. If, in the judgment of the auditor of state, it is deemed advisable he may also require the plan to be in like manner submitted to the association proposing to accept or reinsure the risks of any other association. In case two or more associations propose to consolidate, the proposed plan of consolidation shall be submitted, as above provided, to all of the associations interested in such consolidation. In any of the above cases, a two-thirds vote of all of the members of each association present and voting shall be necessary to an approval of any plan of consolidation or reinsurance, and in no case shall proxies be voted. On presenting to the auditor of state satisfactory proof that the foregoing provisions have been complied with and that the required number of votes have been cast in favor of the proposed plan, he shall issue to the associations an order to the effect that the plan has been approved, and the same shall be in force and effect from and after the date of such order, and the auditor of state shall direct such distribution of the assets of any such association or associations as shall be just and equitable. [30 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.]

SEC. 1839-h. Expenses—how paid. All expenses or costs incident to proceedings under the provisions of this act shall be paid by the associations interested. [30 G. A., ch. 63, § 2.]

SEC. 1839-i. Penalty. Any officer, director or manager of any association violating or consenting to the violation of any of the provisions of this act, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. [30 G. A., ch. 63. § 3.]

SEC. 1839-j. Mortuary assessment rates. No fraternal beneficiary society not admitted to transact business within this state prior to the passage of this act, shall be incorporated or given a permit or certificate of authority to transact business within this state, unless it shall first show that the mortuary assessment rates provided for in whatever plan of business it has adopted, are not lower than is indicated as necessary by the following mortality table:

Provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to any association organized solely for benevolent purposes and composed wholly of members of any one occupation or guild.

The certificate written by any domestic fraternal beneficiary association operating under the provisions of the foregoing mortality table shall be valued in the same manner as provided in section seventeen hundred seventy-four of the code, except that such valuation shall be based upon the foregoing mortality table and four per cent. interest. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 19.] [32 G. A., ch. 86.]

SEC. 1839-k. Acquisition of real estate—erection of building—conditions. Any fraternal beneficiary society, order or association organized under the laws of this state, accumulating money to be held in trust for the purpose of the fulfillment of its certificates or contracts, shall be permitted to invest not to exceed ten per cent. of the aggregate amount of such accumulation in such real estate in this state as is necessary for its accommodation as a home office, and in the purchase or erection of any building for such purpose it may add thereto rooms for rent; provided that before any association shall invest any of its funds in accordance with the provisions of this subdivision it shall first obtain the consent of the executive council. Any company or association so investing its funds shall convey the real estate thus acquired to the auditor of state by deed, such property to be held by him in trust for the benefit of the members of such association, the value thereof to be determined from time to time by the auditor of state. Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to permit the officials or board of directors of such society, order or association to make such investment without authority specifically granted by the said society, order or association through its grand or supreme lodge or convention. [32 G. A., ch. 87.]

SEC. 1839-1. Investment of funds—securities deposited—auxiliary organizations. Any fraternal beneficiary society, order or association organized under the laws of this state, accumulating money to be held in trust for the purpose of the fulfillment of its certificates or contracts, shall invest such accumulations in the following securities and no other:

1. Bonds of the United States.

2. Bonds of this or of any other state, when such bonds are at or above par.

3. Bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any county, city, town or school district within the state or any other state, or drainage bonds of any drainage district in the state of Iowa where such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness are issued by authority of and according to law and bearing interest, and are approved by the executive council.

4. Bonds, mortgages and other interest-bearing securities being first liens upon real estate within this state or any other state, worth at least double the amount loaned thereon and secured thereby exclusive of improvements, or two and one-half times such amount including the improvements thereon, if such improvements are constructed of brick or stone; but no such improvements shall be considered in estimating the value unless the owner shall contract to keep the same insured in some reliable fire insurance company or companies authorized to do business in the state, during the life of the loan, in a sum at least double the excess of the loan above one half the value of the ground exclusive of the improvements, the insurance to be made payable in case of loss to the company or association investing its funds, as its interest may appear at the time of loss. All such securities shall be deposited with the auditor of state subject to his approval, and shall remain with him until withdrawn in accordance with the provisions of this act. Any fraternal beneficiary society, order or association receiving payments, or partial payments on any securities deposited with the auditor of state, shall notify him of such fact giving the amount and date of payment within fifteen days after such payment shall have been made. The officers of any society, order or association which fails to report the receipt of payments or partial payments as above provided shall be liable to a fine in double the amount collected and not reported within the time and in the manner above specified. Any society, order or association required to make a deposit with the auditor of state as herein contemplated, shall at the time of making such deposit, designate by what provisions of its articles of incorporation or laws such fund is accumulated and upon making request for withdrawal of any funds shall designate for what purpose such withdrawal is desired. Any society, order or association, may at any time change its securities on deposit by depositing a like amount in other securities of the same character and the auditor of state shall permit a withdrawal of the same upon satisfactory proof in writing filed with him that they are to be used for the purpose for which they were originally deposited. The auditor of state shall have authority to suspend or revoke the certificate of authority of any society, order or association failing to comply with any of the provisions of this act or for violating the same.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to any association organized solely for benevolent purposes and composed wholly of members of any one occupation, guild, profession or religious denomination; nor shall the provisions of this chapter be construed to apply to auxiliary societies or associations, the membership of which consists of female members of the families of members of any one occupation, guild, profession or religious denomination. [34 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.] [32 G. A., chs. 88–89.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF SAVINGS BANKS.

SECTION 1841. Business.

A savings bank has authority to receive securities of its depositors for safe keeping. Sherwood v. Home Savings Bank, 131–528, 109 N. W. 9.

SEC. 1842. Articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation of a savings bank shall be signed and acknowledged by the corporators before some officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, and give the corporate name, the object for which it is formed, the amount of capital, the time of its existence, which shall not exceed fifty years, the number of its directors, the name and post-office address of each person or officer who shall manage its affairs until the first election, and the name of the city, town or village, and the county, in which the principal place of business is to be located. Such articles shall be filed and recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county of the principal place of business, and in the office of the secretary of state. Notice of its incorporation shall be given by publication in some newspaper published in the county wherein the bank is located, once each week, for four consecutive weeks, which notice shall state, in substance, the matters required to be given in the articles of incorporation. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 5; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 3.]

SEC. 1843. Capital. The paid up capital of any savings bank shall not be less than ten thousand dollars in cities, towns or villages having a population of ten thousand or less, nor less than fifty thousand dollars in cities having a greater population. The corporation may commence business when its first directors or officers named in its recorded articles of incorporation shall have furnished the auditor of state proof, under oath, that the required capital has been paid in and is held in good faith by said bank, and he has satisfied himself of such fact, for which purpose he may make a personal examination, or cause it to be made, at the expense of such bank, and he is also satisfied that the preceding sections of this chapter have been complied with, and has issued a certificate to that effect, naming therein its first board of directors, notice of which certificate shall be given by the publication thereof once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county where its articles are recorded, at the expense of such bank, and proof of such publication by the oath of the publisher or his foreman filed with such auditor. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 6; 15 G. A., ch. 60, §§ 2, 3.]

SEC. 1844. Powers.

Under a previous statutory provision that a savings bank should not make a loan of money to any person in excess of a certain per cent. of its capital, held that such provision did not render loans in excess void, the prohibition being intended as a rule for the government of the bank. Benton County Sav. Bank v. Boddicker, 105–548, 75 N. W. 632.

A savings bank is not liable for the negligence of a clerk furnished by it to keep account of the sales at a public auction and take notes with good security for such sales. Willett v. Farmers' Sav. Bank, 107–69, 77 N. W. 519.

SEC. 1845. Management—officers—meetings.

While the board of directors of a savings bank may elect a cashier to hold office during the pleasure of the board, it may also adopt the plan of electing or appointing the cashier annually, and if it does so, the surety on the cashier's bond is not liable for defalcation after the annual period for which the bond was given. Ida County Sav. Bank v. Seidensticker, 128–54, 102 N. W. 821.

The provision that the cashier may be dismissed at the pleasure of the board does not negative his appointment for a fixed term. Ibid.

Although the board has appointed a cashier to hold office at pleasure, it may make a new appointment of the same person as cashier for a definite period, which appointment will limit the liability of the sureties on his original bond, although as a matter of fact he continues without interruption to occupy the position under the new arrangement and subsequent arrangements of the same character. Wapello State Bank v. Colton, 133–147, 110 N. W. 450.

The existence of a vacancy is not essential to the authority of the governing board to change the terms and conditions of the service of an officer already holding office which the board has authority to fill at pleasure. Ibid.

While the directors are chargeable in general with the management of the bank, yet they are not specially authorized by law to make report with reference thereto. State v. Henderson, 135–499, 113 N. W. 328.

SEC. 1848. Deposits. Any savings bank organized under this chapter may receive on deposit money equal to twenty times the aggregate amount of its paid up capital and surplus, and no greater amount of deposits shall be received without a corresponding increase of the aggregate paid up capital and surplus, which capital and surplus shall be a guaranty fund for the better security of depositors, and invested in safe and available securities. The deposits so received shall be paid to such depositor or his representative, when requested, with such interest and under such regulations as the board of directors shall, from time to time, prescribe, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, which shall be printed and conspicuously exposed in the business office of the bank, in some place accessible and visible to all; and no alteration which may at any time be made in such rules and regulations shall affect the rights of depositors acquired previously thereto in respect to deposits or interest thereon. Savings banks may require sixty days' written notice of the withdrawal of savings deposits, but when there are sufficient funds on hand the officers thereof may, in their discretion, waive this requirement. They may close any account, upon such written notice as may be provided for in the by-laws, directing a depositor to withdraw his deposits, after which it shall cease to draw interest. But nothing in this chapter shall prevent such banks, in their discretion, issuing certificates of deposit payable upon demand. [29 G. A., ch. 167, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 67, §§ 2, 4; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 7.]

SEC. 1850. Investment of funds. Each savings bank shall invest its funds or capital, all moneys deposited therein and all its gains and profits, only as follows:

1. In bonds or interest-bearing notes or certificates of the United States;

2. In bonds or evidences of debt of this state, bearing interest;

3. In bonds or warrants of any city, town, county, school district, or drainage district of this state, issued pursuant to the authority of law; but not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of the assets of the bank shall consist of such bonds or warrants;

That paragraph four of section eighteen hundred fifty supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof, to wit:

"4. In notes or bonds secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon unincumbered real estate located in Iowa or adjoining states worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon; provided however, that no such loan shall be made upon any real estate located outside of Iowa, except real estate situated in any county adjoining the Iowa state line";

5. It may discount, purchase, sell and make loans upon commercial paper, notes, bills of exchange, drafts, or any other personal or public security, but shall not purchase, hold or make loans upon the shares of its capital stock;

6. In all cases of loans upon real estate, all the expenses of searches, examination and certificates of title, or the inspection of property, appraisals of value, and of drawing, perfecting and recording papers, shall be paid by such borrowers; if buildings are included in the valuation of real estate upon which a loan shall be made, they shall be insured by the mortgagor for at least two thirds of their value, in some solvent company, and the loss, if any, under the policy of insurance shall be made payable to the bank or its assigns, as its interests may appear. When the mortgagor neglects to procure the insurance as above provided, the mortgagee may procure the same in the mortgagor's name for its benefit, and the premium so paid therefor shall be added to the mortgage debt. [35 G. A., ch. 149, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 78; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 9.]

The authority to sell, discount, purchase and make loans on commercial paper, notes, etc., authorizes a savings bank to make a contract for the purchase of notes, notwithstanding the inhibition on contracting debt. Ubbinga v. Farmers' Sav. Bank, 108–221, 78 N. W. 840.

It is within the power of a savings bank to employ such means and assume such obligations as are ordinarily and customarily resorted to in the banking business and such a bank may incur liabilities in the transfer of paper such as is ordinarily essential and customary under the law merchant. State v. Corning Sav. Bank. 139–338, 115 N. W. 937.

SEC. 1850-a. Surplus fund—how invested. The directors of any savings bank may set apart from its earnings, over and above expenses, any desired sum as a surplus fund, to be maintained as such, separate and apart from earnings usually carried and designated as undivided profits, and which surplus fund shall not be drawn upon for the payment of expenses or dividends, except that it may be made use of as a stock dividend for increasing the capital of the bank. Such surplus shall be invested in the same manner as the capital of the bank, as provided in section eighteen hundred forty-eight of this chapter. The directors may transfer said surplus fund, or any part of the same, back to the undivided profits account, and make use of the same, when so transferred, for the payment of expenses and dividends when the deposits of the bank shall be less than ten times the capital, or capital and remaining surplus, and not otherwise. [28 G. A., ch. 67, § 1.]

SEC. 1852. Interest—dividends. No dividend shall be declared or paid to stockholders, save out of the undivided profits on hand after paying or setting apart sums sufficient for the payment of all expenses in operating the bank, and of interest to depositors according to the rate fixed therefor by the board of directors from time to time. The bank shall pay interest to the depositors, when due, upon presentation of deposit book or certificate. [28 G. A., ch. 67, § 3; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 11.]

SEC. 1855. Repeal. Section eighteen hundred fifty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

When a savings bank has become insolvent those who have loaned money to the bank in transactions which are prohibited by the statutory provisions as to the purposes for which the bank is authorized to borrow money are not entitled to participate with depositors and lawful creditors in the distribution of the funds of the bank. State v. Corning State Sav. Bank, 136–79, 113 N. W. 500.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section prohibiting the incurring of indebtedness by savings banks, such a bank may become liable on the transfer of negotiable paper in accordance with the customary business of banking. State v. Corning Sav. Bank, 139–338, 115 N. W. 937.

SEC. 1855-a. Indebtedness. State and savings banks may contract indebtedness or liability for the following purposes only; for necessary expenses in managing and transacting their business, for deposits, and to pay depositors; provided, that in pursuance to an order of the board of directors previously adopted, other liabilities not in excess of amount equal to the capital stock may be incurred. [32 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.]

SEC. 1855-b. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 90, § 3.]

SEC. 1857. Dissolution. State or savings banks may be dissolved prior to the period fixed in the certificate of incorporation, by the affirmative votes of the stockholders holding three fourths of the capital, at a meeting of stockholders to be called for this purpose in the manner and after publication of notice as required in case of the increase of its capital. In case of dissolution of the bank or proceedings to close the same as authorized in this chapter, no receiver appointed thereunder shall be allowed to sell the assets thereof at forced sale, but he shall collect the same with all diligence, and make distribution of the proceeds from time to time to those entitled thereto. [33 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.] [15 G. A., ch. 60, § 30.]

CHAPTER 11.

OF STATE BANKS.

SECTION 1864. Capital—certificate. No state bank shall be organized under the provisions of this chapter with a less amount of paid up capital than fifty thousand dollars, except in cities or towns having a population not exceeding three thousand, where such association may be organized with a paid up capital of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars. But no such association shall have the right to commence business until its officers or its stockholders shall have furnished to the auditor of state a sworn statement of the paid up capital, and, when the auditor of state is satisfied as to that fact, he shall issue to such association a certificate authorizing it to commence business, and it shall cause said certificate to be published in some newspaper printed in the city or town where the association is located, once each week, for at least four weeks, or, if no newspaper is published in such city or town, then in a newspaper published nearest thereto in the county. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 6.]

SEC. 1866. Directors.

Acquiescence by a bank in a course of action by its president who is its managing officer, or any facts constituting a holding out of the president by the bank as having a right to act for it, lay a foundation for authority actual or inferred. Griffin v. Erskine, 131–444, 109 N. W. 13.

A remittance to the president of a bank in his name with an abbreviation of his official title is a payment to the bank. Ibid.

CHAPTER 12.

OF BANKS.

SECTION 1869. Pay of and loan to officers. That section eighteen hundred sixty-nine of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Officers of savings and state banks may receive for their services a reasonable compensation to be fixed from time to time in the by-laws, or by vote of the board of directors; provided, however, directors as such shall receive only such reasonable compensation as shall be fixed from year to year by the stockholders at their annual meeting and when approved by the auditor of state, and a director of such bank who is paid a salary as an active officer thereof shall not draw any added compensation for attendance upon board meetings. No officer or employe of the bank shall in any manner directly or indirectly use its funds or deposits or any part thereof, except for the regular business transactions of the bank, and no loans shall be made by it to any of them except upon express order of the board of directors, made in the absence of the applicant, duly entered in the records of the board proceedings and only upon the same security as required of others; but the board of directors may by resolution, duly entered in the records of the board proceedings, authorize loans to directors not holding any other office nor being an employe, not exceeding a maximum sum at any one time, which resolution shall be voted upon in the absence of such director. Any such officer, director or employe of the bank violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of embezzlement and shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, or fined in a sum not less than the amount embezzled, or by both fine and imprisonment, but nothing in this act shall prevent or defeat the right to recover upon any note or notes given in violation of this provision." [35 G. A., ch. 150, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 91; 31 G. A., ch. 79, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 30, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 17.]

This provision is intended to prohibit any loan to an officer unless that particular loan has been passed upon by the board of directors as provided. A blanket resolution of the directors will not render valid such subsequent loans. German Sav. Bank v. Des Moines National Bank, 122–737, 98 N. W. 606.

But the bank may be bound by the subsequent ratification or approval of such loans and estopped from afterwards questioning the validity of the notes given therefor by the officers and transferred to a purchaser without notice. Ibid.

The statute does not prohibit an officer of the bank from selling negotiable paper unless such sale is resorted to indirectly to obtain a loan. State v. Corning Sav. Bank, 139–338, 115 N. W. 937.

SEC. 1870. Limit of liabilities. The total liabilities to any savings or state bank of any person, corporation, company or firm, for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed twenty per cent. of the actually paid up capital of such bank; provided that they may loan not to exceed one half of their capital stock to any person, corporation, company or firm on notes or bonds secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon unencumbered farm land in this state, worth at least twice the amount loaned thereon; but the discount of bona fide bills of exchange drawn against actually existing value, and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, company or firm negotiating the same, shall not be considered money so borrowed. [29 G. A., ch. 76, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 30, § 2; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 18.]

SEC. 1871. Examinations. The board of directors of each savings and state bank shall, at its annual meeting, appoint from its members an examining committee of not less than two, which shall examine the condition of the bank, at least every quarter, and report the same in writing duly signed to the board, who shall cause said report to be recorded in the directors' minute book of the bank. One of these examinations shall be made during the month of June, and another one during the month of December, in each year, and these two examinations, besides being recorded in the minute book of the bank, shall be reported to the state auditor on blanks to be supplied by him. And in case any bank refuses or neglects to so forward such report, the auditor shall be authorized to have such examination made by one of his regular examiners, and the bank shall be charged with and required to pay the reasonable expense of such examination. Members of such examining committee shall receive for their services a reasonable compensation, to be fixed by the board at its annual meeting, but in no case shall such compensation exceed five dollars per day for each day's actual service to each member. [31 G. A., ch. 80; 25 G. A., ch. 30, § 4.]

A false statement by an officer to the examining committee of the directors who are required to report to the state auditor is such false statement as may be punished under the provisions of code § 1887. State v. Henderson, 135–499, 113 N. W. 328.

SEC. 1872. Quarterly statements.

What is said in this section relating to deposits and exchange does not indicate that the section applies to corporations like investment companies not engaged in a general banking business. Williams v. Lewis Investment Co., 110–635, 82 N. W. 332.

SEC. 1873. Examination by auditor—publication of statement. That section eighteen hundred seventy-three of the code, as amended by chapter ninety-two, acts of the thirty-second general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The auditor of the state may, at any time he may see proper, make or cause to be made an examination of any savings or state bank, or he shall call upon it for a report of its condition upon any given day which has passed, as often as five times each year, which report shall contain the information under the preceding section, and the auditor shall cause it to be published, except as hereinafter provided, in one regular issue in some daily, semiweekly or weekly newspaper in the city or town where such bank is located, or if there be none in such city or town, then, in one regular issue of some daily, semiweekly, triweekly or weekly newspaper printed in said county, and the expense of such publication shall be paid by the bank. The statement published in the newspaper shall not contain the name of the bank or banks in which the bank making the statement, has on deposit, funds subject to be drawn at sight, nor shall said statement show the amount of liabilities due such bank on the part of the directors thereof." [34 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 92; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 23; C. '73, § 1571.]

SEC. 1875. Examiners—how appointed—bond—compensation—fees. That section eighteen hundred seventy-five of the supplement to the code, 1907, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The auditor of state may appoint not to exceed six bank examiners, to hold office at his pleasure, who shall give bond to the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties, in the sum of four thousand dollars, which shall be filed with and the sureties thereon approved by said auditor. One of said examiners shall, under the direction of the auditor of state, have charge of the department, examiners and reports. Said examiners shall receive as compensation for their services a salary of eighteen hundred dollars each, per annum. The auditor of state and examiners shall be entitled to actual and necessary expenses incurred in the examination of banks and loan and trust companies, which shall be audited by the executive council and paid by the treasurer of state upon warrants drawn by the auditor of state, but the total amount of such expenses and the salaries of the examiners shall not in any one year exceed the amount of fees collected from such banks and loan and trust companies. Each of such banks and loan and trust companies shall pay to the auditor of state annually before the first of September, the following fees, which shall be by him turned into the state treasury as other fees of his office; those having a paid up capital of twenty-five thousand dollars or under, the sum of fifteen dollars; those having a paid up capital of fifty thousand dollars and over twenty-five thousand dollars, a fee of twenty-five dollars; those having a paid up capital of one hundred thousand dollars and over fifty thousand dollars, a fee of thirty-five dollars; those having a capital of one hundred fifty thousand dollars and over one hundred thousand dollars, a fee of forty dollars; those having a capital exceeding one hundred fifty thousand dollars, a fee of fifty dollars. No bank examiner shall be assigned by the auditor of state to examine a bank or loan and trust company in a county in which he is interested in the business of a bank, or of a loan and trust company." [33 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 81; 30 G. A., ch. 64, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 50, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 1876. Costs—repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 64, § 1.]

[The repeal of the above section was shown at § 1875 of the 1907 supplement which has since been repealed as shown at § 1875 herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1877. Proceedings against by state—receivers.

The receiver of an insolvent bank appointed under a proceeding brought by the auditor of state under statutory provisions may have an order on the stockholders for the payment of an assessment in such amount as appears to be necessary to meet the liabilities of the bank (under provisions as to double liability of stockholders) and the stockholder is bound to pay the amount of such assessment without waiting for the final distribution of the assets of the bank. In such case the time for collection of such assessment and the amount to be collected can best be left to the sound discretion of the court, the proceeding being one where the estate of the bank is in process of liquidation by direction of the auditor of state. State ex rel. v. Union Stock Yards State Bank, 103–549, 70 N. W. 752, 72 N. W. 1076.

SEC. 1878. Assessments.

The proceeds of an assessment on stockholders should be applied ratably to the payment of the general creditors and of the depositors who were not satisfied out of the assets of the bank as to which they are given preference. State v. Corning State Sav. Bank, 127–198, 103 N. W. 97.

On the appointment of a receiver for an insolvent bank depositors are preferred creditors and entitled to be paid in full after deducting costs and expenses from the general assets of the bank. And they are also entitled to share ratably with all creditors in the distribution of the proceeds of a statutory assessment of the stockholders. Ibid.

SEC. 1882. Liability of shareholders.

The statutory provision rendering stockholders liable to the extent of double the value of their stock for the debts of the bank is not an act authorizing the creation of corporations with banking powers, etc., without submission to the people within the constitutional prohibition. State ex rel. v. Union Stock Yards State Bank, 103–549, 70 N. W. 752, 72 N. W. 1076.

Under the provisions of 18 G. A., ch. 208, incorporated into this section, but which as originally passed related to corporations in general, held that the liability provided for in case of buying and selling exchange, etc., applied to the banking business only, and not to an investment business, although the corporation carrying on the business had authority to receive deposits of money. Williams v. Lewis Investment Co., 110–635, 82 N. W. 332.

An assessment in a receivership proceeding is the proper method of enforcing the stockholder's liability, and to render such assessment valid and binding he must be made a party to the proceedings before the assessment. Elson v. Wright, 134–634, 112 N. W. 105.

SEC. 1884. Deposits not to be received by insolvent banks.

Insolvency may exist although the resources of the bank may be such that ultimately no loss whatever shall fall upon the depositors. As no penalty is imposed upon the depositor for making a deposit in an insolvent bank, such depositor is not precluded from recovering such deposit. Toovey v. Ayrhart, 136–694, 114 N. W. 181.

SEC. 1885. Penalty.

This section contemplates time deposits as well as deposits subject to check and therefore the issuance of a certificate of deposit for money paid in when the bank is insolvent is a criminal act. State v. Boomer, 103–106, 72 N. W. 424.

The insolvency of the bank may be proven by the testimony of experts familiar with the banking business. Ibid.

To authorize a conviction for receiving deposits for an insolvent bank, actual knowledge of the insolvency of the bank on the part of the officer receiving such deposits must be proven, and it is error to instruct that the defendant will be criminally liable if as a reasonable and prudent man he ought to have known of the insolvency of the bank. State v. Dunning, 130–678, 107 N. W. 927.

These provisions are not applicable to an officer of a national bank. Easton v. Iowa, 188 U. S. 220. (Reversing State v. Easton, 113–516, 85 N. W. 795.)

SEC. 1887. Penalty for false statements.

The statement mentioned in the statute is the basis of the offense alleged and the persons to whom made should be described with such particularity as to individuate the offense charged and enable the defendant to know what is charged. State v. Henderson, 135–499, 113 N. W. 328.

SEC. 1889. Statement—doing business—loan and trust companies.

The president and cashier of every savings and state bank shall cause to be kept at all times a full and correct list of the names and residences of the officers, directors, examining committee, and of all the stockholders in the bank, and the number of shares held by each, in the office where its business is transacted. Said list shall be subject to the inspection of all the stockholders and creditors of the bank during business hours of each day in which business may be legally transacted. A copy of such list, verified by the oath of the president or cashier, shall be transmitted to the auditor of state within ten days after each annual meeting. No corporation shall engage in the banking business, receive deposits, and transact the business generally done by banks, unless it is subject to and organized under the provisions of this title, or of the banking laws of the state heretofore existing, except that loan and trust companies may receive time deposits subject to the same limitations as are now or may hereafter be prescribed for the receiving of deposits by state banks and issue drafts on their depositaries.

All such companies and all corporations now existing or hereafter organized under the provisions of chapter one, title nine of the code whose articles of incorporation authorize the acceptance and execution of trusts, and all corporations in whose name the word "trust" is incorporated and forms a part, shall have a full paid capital of not less than the amount of capital of savings[1] banks, as provided in section eighteen hundred forty-three of chapter ten and shall be subject to examination, regulation and control by the auditor of state, like savings and state banks, and their stockholders shall be liable to the creditors of such companies as provided in section eighteen hundred eighty-two of this chapter for stockholders in savings and state banks. Any corporation violating this section shall forfeit its charter at the suit of the attorney-general, and said corporation, its officers, directors and agents, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment of not less than two years in the penitentiary, or by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court; provided that loan and trust companies organized under the general incorporation laws of the state, which were engaged in the banking business prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred eighty-six, and have continued therein since said date, may, by the proper additions to their articles of incorporation, become state banks within the provisions of this title, without incorporating the word "state" in the names of such corporations. [30 G. A., ch. 65; 28 G. A., ch. 68, § 1.]

[The amendment by 30 G. A. refers to the code section, while the same section appeared in the supplement to the code [1902]. The words stricken, and for which other matter was inserted, appear in line 14 of the code, and line 17 of the said supplement to the code.]

SEC. 1889-a. Forged or raised checks—notification. No bank shall be liable to a depositor for the payment by it of a forged or raised check unless within six months after the return to the depositor of the voucher of such payment, such depositor shall notify the bank that the check so paid is forged or raised. [33 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 1889-b. Deposit in names of two persons—how paid. When a deposit shall hereafter be made in any bank or trust company in the names of two persons, payable to either, or payable to either or the survivor, such deposit, or any part thereof, or interest or dividend thereon may be paid to either of said persons whether the other be living or not, and the receipt or acquittance of the person so paid shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge to the bank, banker, or trust company for any payment so made. [34 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

SEC. 1889-c. Postal savings funds—securities for. That all state and savings banks now existing or that may be hereafter organized under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Iowa be and they are hereby authorized and permitted to deposit with the treasurer of the United States such of the securities of the depositing bank as may be required to secure the postal savings funds deposited therein. [35 G. A., ch. 151, § 1.]

CHAPTER 12-A.

1. To be appointed assignee or trustee by deed, and guardian, executor or trustee by will, and such appointment, upon qualification as herein required, shall be of like force as in case of appointment of a natural person.

2. To be appointed receiver, assignee, guardian, administrator, or other trustee by any court of record in this state, and it shall be lawful for such court to appoint such corporation as such receiver, assignee, guardian, administrator, or other trustee, in the manner provided by law for the appointment of any natural person to such trust. Provided any such appointment as guardian shall apply to the estate and not the person.

5. Any court having appointed, and having jurisdiction of any receiver, executor, administrator, guardian, assignee or other trustee, upon the application of such officer or trustee, after such notice to the other parties in interest as the court may direct, and after a hearing upon such application, may order such officer or trustee to deposit any moneys then in his hands, or which may come into his hands thereafter, and until the further order of said court, with any such trust company, state or savings bank, and upon deposit of such money, and its receipt and acceptance by such corporation, the said officer or trustee shall be discharged from further care or responsibility therefor. Such deposit shall be paid out only upon the orders of said court.

6. Whenever, in the judgment of any court having jurisdiction of any estate in process of administration by any assignee, receiver, executor, administrator, guardian or other trustee, the bond required by law of such officer shall seem burdensome or excessive, upon application of such officer or trustee, and after such notice to the parties in interest as the court shall direct, and after a hearing on such application, the said court may order the said officer or trustee to deposit with any such corporation for safe keeping, such portions or all of the personal assets of said estate as it shall deem proper, and thereupon said court shall, by an order of record, reduce the bond to be given, or theretofore given by such officer or trustee, and the property as deposited shall thereupon be held by the corporation under the orders and directions of said court. When any deposit shall be made by any person in trust for another, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given to the corporation in the event of the death of the trustee, the same or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom the said deposit was made, or to his or her legal representatives; provided that the person for whom the deposit was made, if a minor, shall not draw the same during his or her minority without the consent of the legal representatives of said trustee.

SEC. 1889-g. Powers and duties same as individuals—compensation—bond. Every state or savings bank, or trust company, acting as guardian, administrator, executor, trustee, assignee, receiver or custodian shall have the same rights, powers and privileges as individuals so acting, and receive the same compensation as is or may be allowed individuals for exercising similar offices or trusts, so far as the same are fixed by statutes and shall execute a bond for the faithful performance of the trust confided to it in like sum and with like penalties as is required by individuals. [35 G. A., ch. 152, § 4.]

SEC. 1889-h. Retirement or dissolution—successor—how appointed—return of securities. In case any corporation desires to retire from business under this act, or in case of the dissolution of any such corporation the court having jurisdiction of each of the several trusts and appointments held by such corporation shall, upon application of such corporation or its receiver, after such notice to the other parties in interest as the court may direct, and after a hearing upon such application, appoint another corporation as successor trustee or appointee, and upon the acceptance of such office by the successor trustee and due qualification therefor, and the transfer of the property in such case held, to the successor trustee then the dissolving corporation shall be discharged from any further responsibility in such trust capacity or appointment. [1]And the auditor of state, upon being furnished with satisfactory evidence of said corporation release and discharge from all of the obligations and trusts assumed by virtue of this act, shall thereupon return to such corporation the securities deposited by it with him. [35 G. A., ch. 152, § 5.]

[1]The last sentence doubtless refers to certain provisions in § 4 of the original bill respecting securities to be deposited with the auditor, which provisions were eliminated by amendment before the bill was passed. EDITOR.]

A., ch. 152, § 7.]

Said surplus shall be invested the same as the original capital. [35 G. A., ch. 152, § 9.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

SECTION 1890. Defined.

The fundamental purpose of these associations is to assist members by small periodical payments to acquire homes. Home Sav. & Trust Co. v. Fidelity & Dep. Co., 115–394, 88 N. W. 821.

Comity between states does not require the courts of this state to enforce a contract or apply a remedy with reference to a foreign building and loan association which contravenes or nullifies the settled policy of this state with reference to such associations. Field v. Eastern Bldg. & L. Assn., 117–185, 90 N. W. 717.

Where the contract issued by a building and loan association was evidently intended to be construed by the stockholder to whom it was issued as providing for full payment of the par value of the stock after the payment of specific sums by way of dues for a fixed time, held that the contract would be so construed as against the association. Ibid.

Such a contract is not affected by subsequent amendments to the by-laws, which are made parts of the contract, in the absence of any provision authorizing a change of the terms of the contract by such amendments. Ibid.

Such an association, although mutual in name, may in the absence of statutory restrictions bind itself to make payment of the par value of its stock after fixed payment of dues has continued for a specified time. Ibid.

Under the articles of plaintiff association, held that a limitation in the number of payments which could be exacted was not a guarantee that such payments would mature the stock, and the member whose stock had then matured was held bound to pay interest and premiums thereafter on his loan. Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

The retroactive provisions of 26 G. A., ch. 85, and 27 G. A., ch. 48, were not unconstitutional. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Selby, 111–402, 82 N. W. 968.

SEC. 1893-a. Articles amended—maximum rate—appointment of receiver. The provisions of this act shall apply to all building and loan and savings and loan associations hereafter incorporated as well as those now incorporated under the laws of this state or doing business herein, and all such associations shall amend their articles of incorporation so as to conform to the provisions of this act. No such associations shall be authorized or empowered to collect or receive premiums and interest from a borrower at a greater rate than eight per cent. and in case of an amendment to the articles of incorporation so that a lower rate of interest or charge for the use of money loaned to the borrowing member is authorized than the rate of interest charged upon loans, to members who have theretofore borrowed, shall in like manner be reduced to the same rate as that permitted to borrowers after such amendments to the articles of incorporation, so that the interest charged under whatever name, whether charged as premium or interest to all members of the same association, shall be the same, all reductions of the rate of interest or premium charged to new borrowers shall be made and apply equally to those who have theretofore borrowed. In case any such association doing business in the state shall fail to amend its articles of incorporation in conformity herewith prior to July fifteenth, nineteen hundred, its authority to do business in this state shall be revoked by the executive council, and under the direction of the executive council application by the attorney-general shall be made to the proper court for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the association, and in such proceedings the amount due from the borrowing member on mortgages shall be ascertained in the manner provided in section seven[1] of this act, and the balance due on such mortgages shall be treated and considered as due within a reasonable time to be fixed by the court after the appointment of a receiver. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 10.]

An association electing to continue in business under the statute can enforce its existing contracts against borrowing members only as authorized by the new statute. Such borrowing members will be presumed to have assented to the modification of their contracts in their favor made by the statutory provisions. St. John v. Iowa Business Men's B. & L. Assn., 136–448, 113 N. W. 863.

The reduction of the rate of interest chargeable against borrowing members to eight per cent. is not only applicable in a foreclosure proceeding to enforce the mortgage given for the previous loan, but may also be relied upon by the member in an action to have his mortgage canceled and released as having been satisfied by the payment of the amount which the association is authorized to collect. Ibid.

SEC. 1894-a. Revocation of certificates. The executive council shall have the power, and it shall be its duty, to revoke any certificate of authority given to any building and loan or savings and loan association whenever it appears to said council that said association is transacting business illegally, or is unjust and oppressive to its members or the public. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 11.]

SEC. 1898. Nature of business—statement. All building and loan or savings and loan associations, upon receiving the certificate from the auditor, shall have power, subject to the terms and conditions contained in their articles of incorporation and by-laws, to issue stock to members to be paid for in single, stated, or monthly payments, but not more than ten thousand dollars of stock, computed at par value, of any kind shall be issued to one person; to assess and collect from members such dues, membership fees, fines, premiums, and interest on loans as may in the articles of incorporation and by-laws have been provided, and the same shall not be held to be usurious; to permit members, other than holders of guarantee stock, to withdraw all or a part of their stock deposits upon such terms and at such times as the articles of incorporation and by-laws may provide; to acquire, hold, encumber and convey such real estate and personal property as may be necessary for the transaction of their business; to make loans to members on such terms, conditions and securities as the articles of incorporation and by-laws provide; said loans to be made only on real estate security, or on the security of their own shares of stock, not to exceed ninety per cent. of the withdrawal value thereof. It shall be the duty of the secretary of every such association doing business in this state to prepare, on or before February fifteenth of each year, a duly verified statement, showing the book value and withdrawal value of a share of each class of stock in said association, for each monthly period up to January first preceding, and file the same with the auditor of state, which shall be preserved in his office. And the said association shall, on or before February fifteenth of each year, mail to each shareholder a written or printed copy of the same. In case of foreclosure, the borrower shall be charged with the full amount of the loan made to him, together with the dues, interest, premium and fines for which he is delinquent, and he shall be credited with the same value of his pledged shares as if he had voluntarily withdrawn the same. In event that judgment is obtained against a borrower from a building and loan association, no greater recovery shall be had than the net amount of principal actually received, with interest thereon at a rate not greater than twelve per centum per annum on the net amount of loan actually received by and paid to borrower, with statutory attorney fees; no evasion of this provision shall be had by means of any dues, membership fees, premiums, fines, forfeitures or other charges, any agreement to the contrary notwithstanding. [The provisions of said section shall apply to and govern all contracts between building and loan and savings and loan associations and their members, made and entered into prior to the taking effect of the code, and every such contract shall in all actions and proceedings be construed and enforced as in said section provided, and with the same force and effect as if made and entered into after the code took effect, anything in the statutes in force when such contracts were made to the contrary notwithstanding.] [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 12; 27 G. A., ch. 48, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 85, § 9; C. '73, §§ 1185, 1186.]

[The above section was amended by 27 G. A., ch. 48, § 1, by adding thereto the portion enclosed in brackets. By § 12, ch. 69, of 28 G. A., said ch. 48 of 27 G. A. is repealed; and § 16 of ch. 69 of 28 G. A. legalizes all loans affected by the repeal of said ch. 48. The supreme court of Iowa, however, in the case of Edworthy et al. v. Iowa Savings and Loan Association, 114 Iowa 220, has held the repealing act unconstitutional so far as it affects contracts legalized by ch. 48 of 27 G. A., hence it is inserted herein, as being still in force as to certain loans.]

Powers: While a building and loan association can only loan money on the security prescribed by statute, yet, as incident to the transaction of its business, it may make a loan on real property on the basis of a valuation fixed with reference to improvements to be made, and accept a bond as security that such improvements will be made in order that the value of the property shall be sufficient to sustain the loan. Home Sav. & Trust Co. v. Fidelity & Dep. Co., 115–394, 88 N. W. 821.

In the absence of express prohibition a building and loan association has the power to borrow money, such power being implied from the general nature of its business. Bohn v. Boone Bldg. & Loan Assn., 135–140, 112 N. W. 199.

Therefore held that in accordance with its usual course of business the president and secretary of such association had authority to execute a note to the holder of matured stock for the amount he was entitled to thereon. Ibid.

Where a contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member is void on the ground that it gives to the member a preference over other members, the association is only entitled to recover the amount actually loaned, with interest. Winegardner v. Equitable Loan Co., 120–485, 94 N. W. 1110.

A contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member, by which it is agreed that the stock of the member shall mature and constitute a full satisfaction of the loan after a specified number of payments of dues, premium and interest, regardless of whether the profits of the association have been in fact such as to mature the stock, is invalid. Such a contract involves the appropriation to the benefit of the borrowing member of assets of the association contributed by other members, thus giving the borrowing member a preference to which he is not entitled. Ibid.

The legalizing act of 27 G. A., ch. 48, with reference to building and loan associations does not validate a previous contract of such association with borrowing members which gives them a preference over other members in the distribution of the assets of the association. Ibid.

Settlement: Where the by-laws contained provisions for withdrawal of members and paying back contributions out of the loan fund, only a percentage of which could be used for such purpose, held that the withdrawal member was not a preferred creditor as to the funds of the association after it had become insolvent, the percentage of the fund applicable to the payment of withdrawals having been exhausted. Rabbitt v. Wilcoxen, 103–35, 72 N. W. 306.

Where the association is insolvent and unable to pay each stockholder the book value of his shares, the borrowing shareholder is entitled only to credit for the withdrawal value of his shares, and not for the book value consisting of the amount of installments paid on the stock and the earnings thereof at the last dividend period. If a borrowing member is allowed for all the payments he has made and the earnings thereof, the loss of the association will fall upon the members who have not borrowed, and inequality between the two classes of members will result. An equitable distribution of the assets, if any, in excess of the liabilities, should be effected, and the borrowing member should only be entitled to credit for the actual value of his shares. Wilcoxen v. Smith, 107–555, 78 N. W. 217.

There is nothing in the statute authorizing a building and loan association to raise money on certificates in any other way than by issuing shares of stock, and the stockholders constitute its members. Teller v. Wilcoxen, 110–565, 81 N. W. 772.

Therefore the holder of a certificate of stock is not a creditor of the association entitled to preference over other members in the winding up of its affairs. Ibid.

In the settlement of the affairs of an insolvent building and loan association a borrowing member whose stock has not matured is to be held for the amount of money actually received by him, with interest thereon, less the premium actually paid by him for the loan, and less the interest on the monthly payments of interest made by him. This rule applies to cases where the affairs of the association are not so far settled as to ascertain the value of the stock. When the value of the stock can be determined, the borrower should then be entitled to credit for its value, in addition to the items mentioned. Hale v. Kline, 113–523, 85 N. W. 814.

Premiums form a part of the profit fund when paid and go to the increase of value of shares. If the association is insolvent the borrower should be allowed his share of the profit fund, made up in part of the premiums, but no further credit on account of premiums paid. Briggs v. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn., 114–232, 86 N. W. 320.

The fact that interest is exacted monthly instead of at longer intervals will not make the contract usurious. Ibid.

The borrower cannot be required to pay more than twelve per cent. per annum, payable monthly, on the loan. Iowa Cent. Bldg. & L. Assn. v. Vogt, 115–59, 87 N. W. 726.

Where the association is solvent and seeking foreclosure, a withdrawing shareholder is entitled to have credited on his stock the dues, but not the premiums paid, for the latter go into the profit fund and are to be shared equally by all members. But where the association is insolvent, a borrowing member is entitled to credit on his debt for premiums paid, but not for interest or dues. Spinney v. Miller. 114–210, 86 N. W. 317; Tootle v. Singer. 118–533, 88 N. W. 446.

In an action by the receiver of a building and loan association after it has become insolvent and ceased to be a going concern, to recover the amount of a loan made to a borrowing member, the member is entitled to have credited upon his loan the interest as paid, and the amount of the premiums paid as of the time of payment, and upon the balance, computing from the time of the appointment of the receiver of the association, the member is chargeable with interest at six per cent., and entitled to credit for the actual value of the shares of stock held by him. Spinney v. Chapman, 121–38, 95 N. W. 230.

In determining the net amount of the loan, monthly payments exacted in advance are not to be included. Oskaloosa Nat. B. L. & I. Assn. v. Bailey, 129–287, 105 N. W. 417.

When the borrower announces his desire to cease further payment of monthly payments and to take up his mortgage, and negotiations are begun to ascertain the amount paid, the amount of the indebtedness becomes fixed and from that time interest should be allowed on such amount at the ordinary rate. Ibid.

The net amount of the loan on which interest may be computed does not include an amount credited by way of advance payment on stock; the association can only recover the amount actually paid to or advanced for the mortgagor. Butson v. Home Sav. & Trust Co., 129–370, 105 N. W. 645.

This rule is not affected by the fact that the company has become insolvent and gone into the hands of a receiver. Ibid.

Every payment which goes to advance or accelerate the process of maturing the stock is a payment in some degree or measure on the debt, irrespective of whether by the contract such payment is to be directly applied in discharge thereof. Ibid.

A provision fixing a withdrawal value on stock held not to entitle the borrower to credit on foreclosure to the full amount of such withdrawal value. LeMars Bldg. & L. Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

A borrower cannot recover back money voluntarily paid to a building and loan association in excess of the amount due on his loan. Carter v. Iowa State Business Men's B. & L. Assn., 135–368, 112 N. W. 828.

The mere establishment of the right to the withdrawal value of stock does not give the stockholder a preference, but if the corporation, although insolvent, before being put into the hands of a receiver, pays a portion of the withdrawal value the transferee of the stock is entitled to dividends on the balance in the same proportion as other stockholders, and the previous payment cannot be accounted as a dividend by the receiver. McKee v. Home Savings & Trust Co., 133–548, 110 N. W. 908.

The fact that the association has undertaken voluntary liquidation and ceased to make new loans does not constitute a breach of contract on its part such as to relieve the borrower from obligation to carry out its terms. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn. v. Fitch, 142–329, 120 N. W. 694.

A settlement made with the secretary in the usual course of business is binding on the association. Asbury v. Rowe, 146–162, 124 N. W. 865.

Premiums, interest, usury: Where the borrower has authorized the secretary of the association to make a certain bid for priority of loan, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the bid was made by the secretary and the money obtained thereby. In such a transaction the contract is not usurious, no interest being charged on the premium bid. Hawkeye State Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Johnston, 106–218, 76 N. W. 678.

It is not unconstitutional to authorize building and loan associations to charge by way of interest or premium more than the lawful rate of interest. The profits inure to the benefit of the borrower with other stockholders. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Heidt, 107–297, 77 N. W. 1050.

In the absence of express statutory provision it is not lawful for the association to exact from the borrower a sum by way of premium which in addition to the interest contracted for renders the amount to be paid for the loan greater than lawful interest. But payment by the borrower of necessary expenses in making the loan in addition to legal interest will not constitute usury. Ibid.

The association may deduct from the amount of the loan charges for making abstract, examination of the same and appraisement. If these charges are actually for amounts paid out it is immaterial that they are entered as expenses for making the loan. Ibid.

The association may deduct a portion of the dues to cover the expense of management. Ibid.

The statute authorizes penalties for the nonpayment of dues and unless exorbitant they will not be unlawful. Ibid.

It is not required that the premium be paid in advance. It may be made payable in monthly installments. But the premium provided for must be fixed and paid in good faith to secure the loan, and not as a mere device to evade the law against usury. If the sums nominally paid as premium and interest together exceed the amount loaned, and the monthly payments of premium and interest together exceed the highest rate of interest allowed by law, the loan is usurious. Wilcoxen v. Smith, 107–555, 78 N. W. 217.

Under the provisions of § 1185 of the code of '73, authorizing building and loan associations to levy, assess and collect from the members dues, fines, interest and premiums, which shall not be construed to make the loan usurious, held that even though it were necessary to avoid the usury law in such case the association adopt a by-law authorizing the collection of such dues, interest and premiums, the existence of such by-law was sufficiently shown by the instrument evidencing the loan. Building, Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Froelich, 110–244, 81 N. W. 449.

The burden is upon the borrower to show that there was in fact no bidding for the right of precedence in making the loan, which would serve as a basis for a premium. Ibid.

To take a loan out of the general law as to usury on the ground that it is authorized as a contract with a building and loan association, it must appear that the lender is in fact such an association, and the mere form of the contract of loan will not evidence that fact. Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Assn., 118–401, 92 N. W. 63.

The curative act, removing the objection of usury to loans of building associations is valid as to contracts previously made, if the borrower continues to recognize the contract as valid after the change in the law. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107–297, 77 N. W. 1050; Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Curtis, 107–504, 78 N. W. 208.

Building and loan contracts are exempted from the operation of the general law relating to usury. Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

Where a loan had been purged of usury by the provisions of 27 G. A., ch. 48, held that the repeal of that act by 28 G. A., ch. 69, did not restore the defense of usury as against such loan. Edworthy v. Iowa S. & L. Assn., 114–220, 86 N. W. 315; Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

Loans made by a building and loan association to a member, which would otherwise be usurious, but which are legalized by 27 G. A., ch. 48, are valid, not only as to the member, but as to a third party who has become surety of the member for such loan. There is no illegality involved in accepting personal security for a loan to a member. Le Mars B. & L. Assn. v. McLain, 120–527, 94 N. W. 1122.

Under this section and the legalizing act of 27 G. A., ch. 48, the computation of interest which is to be made in determining whether the contract with the building and loan association is usurious is to be on the principal sum without rests occasioned by the payment of interest, dues and premiums, and if the total amount of interest and premium paid and delinquent is larger than the principal sum with twelve per cent. interest thereon, then the statutory limit has been exceeded and the borrower is entitled to credit for the excess in addition to the withdrawal value of his stock Bacon v. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn., 121–449, 96 N. W. 977.

The borrower may be charged with such interest, dues and penalties as are provided for by his contract unless the total amount of the charge exceeds the net loan received by him with twelve per cent. per annum thereon. In such event he is not to be required to pay more than such net amount with twelve per cent. interest. In computing the amount paid by way of interest, dues and premiums, the borrower is not to be allowed interest on such sums paid as on partial payments. Iowa Dep. & Loan Co. v. Matthews, 126–743, 102 N. W. 817.

Usurious interest provided for in a building and loan contract made before the enactment of ch. 48, 27 G. A., held to be legalized by that statute. Co-operative Bank v. Meldrum, 128–694, 105 N. W. 206.

The provisions in the articles of a building and loan association properly organized, as to payment of dues and fines do not constitute a contract for usury. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn. v. Fitch, 142–329, 120 N. W. 694.

As to the legalizing act, 27 G. A., ch. 48, see Guaranty S. & L. Assn. v. Ascherman, 108–150, 78 N. W. 823.

The act of 27 G. A., ch. 48, legalizing loans previously made by such associations, is applicable to foreign as well as domestic companies. Tootle v. Singer, 118–533, 88 N. W. 446; Spinney v. Chapman, 121–38, 95 N. W. 230.

SEC. 1898-a. Repeal. Chapter forty-eight of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 12.]

The repeal of the act of 27 G. A., does not render unlawful loans which, though unlawful when made, were rendered valid by such act of 27 G. A. Edworthy v. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn., 114–220, 86 N. W. 315.

SEC. 1898-b. Loans, contracts and mortgages legalized. All loans, contracts, and mortgages which are affected by the repeal of said chapter forty-eight, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, are hereby legalized so far as to permit recovery to be had thereon for interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, but at no greater rate, and nothing contained in such contracts shall be construed to be usurious so as to work a forfeiture of any penalty to the school fund. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 16.]

The statutory reduction of the rate of interest to be charged borrowers is applicable to existing loans and the borrower is entitled to have his mortgage canceled when he has paid the amount which the association is authorized to exact. St. John v. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn., 136–448, 113 N. W. 863.

SEC. 1898-c. Forbidden stocks—rate of dividend. That no building and loan or savings and loan associations shall issue guaranty stock, fully paid stock, or single payment stock, or any stock of any other kind or name which shall receive fixed dividends, or is not subject to all the liabilities of all other classes of stock of said associations, except that it shall be lawful for such associations to issue fully paid stock upon the payment by the holder thereof of the par value of such stock upon which the dividends to be declared shall not exceed the sum named in said certificate of stock, but in no event shall the dividend exceed eight per cent. per annum nor the rate of dividend declared upon the other stock of said association, which said stock shall be subject to be called in and redeemed by the said association by giving the holder thirty days' notice thereof; but such stock shall not be entitled to vote at any stockholders meeting. Any association having heretofore issued stocks forbidden by this section must retire the same on or before January first, nineteen hundred and one, and the same may be retired either by paying the amount due thereon in cash or by the issuing of stock permitted to be issued by the provisions of this section. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 1.]

The holder of stock bearing a fixed dividend issued prior to the statute prohibiting the issuance of such stock, upon giving notice of its withdrawal for the purpose of retiring it, in conformity with the statute, is entitled to legal interest on the amount due from the time of such notice. Kellenberger v. Oskaloosa Nat. B. L. & I. Assn., 129–582, 105 N. W. 836.

SEC. 1898-d. Foreclosure of mortgage—costs. In case of foreclosure of any mortgage given by a shareholder of any such association, the mortgagor shall be charged with the rate of interest agreed upon, not however to exceed eight per cent. per annum, and shall be entitled to be credited, as of any anniversary of said mortgage, with the total amount of all payments made on the stock to the said association during the preceding year, and such payment on the stock shall be treated as a payment upon the mortgage, anything in the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of such association to the contrary notwithstanding. If such association shows affirmatively that losses have occurred during the period of the membership of such shareholder in excess of the amount of any fund accumulated from which to pay such losses, to such an extent that the value of the shares of stock have been impaired, then such associations shall be entitled to have entered as a part of the judgment of foreclosure the equitable contribution of said shareholder toward such losses. If, by the articles of incorporation, the withdrawal value of the stock of such mortgagor is greater than the amount paid thereon, together with eight per cent. interest then such withdrawal value shall be credited on the mortgages of the date to which such value is computed, in lieu of the credits of payment on stock as aforesaid, and judgment and decree shall be rendered for only the balance found due; provided, however, that on any mortgage executed between October first, eighteen hundred ninety-seven, and the date of the taking effect of this act, the rate of interest may be computed at the rate therein named, but in no case at a greater rate than twelve per centum per annum on the net amount of the loan actually received by and paid to the borrower, and no evasion of this provision shall be had by means of any dues, premiums, membership fees, fines, forfeitures, or other charges, any agreement to the contrary notwithstanding. In any suit in which the recovery upon the mortgage shall be for a less amount than the amount demanded in the plaintiff's petition, all costs of suit, including attorney's fees, may in the discretion of the court be taxed to the plaintiff. Provided, further, that in case of foreclosure judgment and decree shall be entered for as much as would be due the association under the provisions of this act if suit had not been brought. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 6.]

The fact that on foreclosure of a mortgage the association claims a larger judgment than it is entitled to does not deprive it of the right to attorneys' fees as contemplated in the statute. Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129–422, 105 N. W. 641.

SEC. 1899-a. Loans—premium and interest. Such associations shall have power to loan money to their members at such rate as may be agreed upon, and may collect premiums and interest thereon, but in no case shall the amount of premium and interest paid exceed eight per cent. per annum, but nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting the payment of such interest and premium monthly, or at such time as may be provided for in the articles of incorporation. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 4.]

SEC. 1900. Voting shares of stock.

The provision that no person shall vote more than ten per cent. of the outstanding shares of the association is applicable to the action of stockholders in adopting a proposition for voluntary liquidation under code supp. § 1907-a. McKee v. Home Sav. & Trust Co., 122–731, 98 N. W. 609.

A proxy given before the adoption of the provision for voting on voluntary liquidation does not authorize the holder to use such proxy in voting on the question. Ibid.

SEC. 1902-a. Expenditures and expenses—compensation of officers and agents. All expenditures and expenses for management and conducting the affairs of said associations, not including membership fees and charges for closing loans, shall be paid from the receipts of interest, premiums, and other sources of profit. Said associations may thus use for expenses in any one year a sum not in excess of the following percentages on their assets, as shown by the last annual report, to wit: Associations with assets not in excess of one hundred thousand dollars, three per centum per annum; associations with assets in excess of one hundred thousand dollars, but less than three hundred thousand dollars, two and one-half per cent.; associations in excess of three hundred thousand dollars, and less than five hundred thousand dollars, two and a quarter per cent.; and associations with assets in excess of five hundred thousand dollars, two per cent.; but in no event shall the expenses of any association exceed twelve thousand dollars in any one year. No officer, employe, or agent of any association shall receive directly or indirectly any salary or other compensation, except for services actually rendered; and any compensation hereafter paid in violation of this section may be recovered by any shareholder or borrower within three years from the receipt of such illegal compensation from the person accepting the same, or from any officer knowingly consenting to the allowance thereof, in a suit which may be brought in the name of the association, or in the name of such shareholder or borrower. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 2.]

After the enactment of 28 G. A., ch. 69, it was not competent for a building and loan association to carry out a contract previously made by which an agent was entitled to a percentage of the gross expense fund received in the business of the association, inasmuch as no such expense fund could be provided by the association. Wood v. Iowa Bldg. & Loan Assn., 126–464, 102 N. W. 410.

SEC. 1903-a. Fines for delinquency—terms of withdrawal. Any stockholder in arrears in payments may be fined in a sum not in excess of three cents per share of one hundred dollars each for the first month's delinquency and five cents per share of one hundred dollars each for each succeeding month's delinquency; but said penalty shall only be due and payable from the profits belonging to said delinquent. The terms of withdrawal of a member from such association shall be such that any withdrawing member shall receive a sum not less than he has paid into said association, unless losses have occurred to said association, during the time that said withdrawing member was a member, which exceed the amount of the profits, or any fund created with which to pay such losses, and in that case such withdrawing member shall be charged with his proportionate share of the excess of the losses over the profits, and no more. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 3.]

While a profit-earning association may assess fines against delinquents, no such penalty should be imposed when no income is produced on payments that have been made. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn. v. Fitch, 142–329, 120 N. W. 694.

SEC. 1903-b. Nonborrowing members—withdrawal of. The articles of incorporation of any building and loan or building and savings association may, by a three-fourths vote of the board of directors, provide that nonborrowing members shall withdraw their stock at book value in the order of its issue, beginning with the stock first issued, by giving the stockholders thereof thirty days notice. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 5.]

SEC. 1906-a. Detailed statement of salaries published. The auditor of state shall publish, in his report of building and loan and savings and loan associations, a detailed statement of the salaries and compensation paid, and to whom, giving the names of the officers and agents respectively receiving such salaries. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 13.]

SEC. 1907-a. Voluntary liquidation. Building and loan or saving and loan associations, by a vote of three fourths of the shareholders of such associations, represented in person or by proxy, may go into voluntary liquidation upon such plan as shall be determined upon by the shareholders at their meeting. In case any such association resolves to go into voluntary liquidation, it shall have power, after crediting the mortgages given by the borrowing member with the full book value of the stock, to sell and assign such mortgage to a similar building and loan association, or to any other parties who will hold the same upon the terms under which such mortgage was given to the association. In that event the said mortgage shall be held to become due, if no other time can be agreed upon between the mortgagor and the association, within three years after the assignment thereof. In case the shareholders are unable to agree upon other plan and terms upon which the said association may wind up its affairs, the following plan shall be adopted. Interest shall be computed on the respective amounts paid in by the several shareholders from the date of such payments until the date that said association resolves to go into liquidation, and amount so found shall be the basis for distribution of the assets of the association. In the case of a borrowing member the amount thus found due him on stock, if there have been no losses so as to impair the capital, shall be credited on his mortgage and the balance of such mortgage shall be paid within one year together with interest at the rate therein agreed upon not to exceed eight per cent., and upon the payments of the outstanding mortgages and the conversion of the assets into money the same shall be distributed pro rata among the stockholders according to the amount found due each as aforesaid. And any balance due the borrowing member, over and above the amount actually received as a credit on the mortgage, shall be paid to such members. In case, however, of an impairment of the capital by loss, the amount of such loss shall be estimated and apportioned to each member pro rata according to the amount found due such members in the manner aforesaid, and the borrowing members shall be entitled to receive a credit on their mortgages for the balance after the stock is charged with its pro rata share of the loss, and the balance due on such mortgages shall be paid within twelve months, and upon the final distribution any balance due such borrowing member shall be paid to him. But in the final distribution, before the final dividend is made, interest shall be allowed on the amount found due the nonborrowing member not to exceed six per cent. so as to equalize between the borrowing member who has received a credit on his mortgage and the nonborrowing member. Any plan other than that herein specified shall be submitted to the executive council for approval before the same is adopted. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 7.]

Where the proceedings for voluntary liquidation are not valid under the statutory provision on that subject a receiver may be appointed without regard to such proceedings. McKee v. Home Sav. & T. Co., 122–731, 98 N. W. 609.

The holder of a proxy given before the adoption of the provision with reference to voluntary liquidation does not have authority to vote under such proxy on that question. Ibid.

SEC. 1907-b. Consolidation with other companies. Any building and loan or savings and loan association organized under the laws of this state shall have authority to consolidate its business and membership with one or more building and loan or savings and loan associations of the same class organized under the laws of this state and to transfer to such association or associations its entire assets subject to its existing liabilities, and upon the consolidation of such associations, if any one or more of said companies shall have heretofore issued guaranty stock, they may provide for the withdrawal and retirement of said guaranty stock, and the same may be withdrawn in accordance with the plan therein adopted. The plan of such consolidation, when approved by the board of directors of each of the associations, shall be reduced to writing and submitted to the executive council, and if they find that the plan is in conformity with the law, and equitable in all respects to the members of both associations, they shall attach thereto their certificate of approval. Such plan shall then be submitted to the members of both associations, either at the regular meetings or at special meetings called for that purpose, and, if approved by a vote of three fourths of the shares of stock of each association, the same shall then be filed in the office of the auditor of state, who shall issue a certificate authorizing the consolidation. At such meetings the members may vote in person or by proxy or by written ballot mailed or otherwise delivered to the secretary at or before the time of meeting. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 8.]

SEC. 1907-c. Consolidation when in hands of receiver. In any case where a receiver has been appointed for any such association, its membership and business may in like manner be consolidated with, and its assets transferred to, another such association of the same class, but in such case the receiver shall act in place of the board of directors, and the plan must also be approved by the court by which the receiver was appointed. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 9.]

SEC. 1908. Foreign companies.

Prior to any specific provisions as to foreign associations, such an association might do business in the state upon complying with the law relating to foreign corporations generally. Tootle v. Singer, 118–533, 88 N. W. 446.

This section implies that foreign corporations are to be put upon an equality with domestic associations of the same character, upon condition only that they comply with the requirements peculiar to them, and held that the act of 27 G. A., ch. 48, legalizing usurious loans by building and loan associations, was applicable to foreign as well as domestic companies. Ibid.

Although the contract of a foreign building and loan association may be so made as to require the court, in determining its validity, to look to the law of the place where the association is organized, rather than to that in which the other contracting party resides, yet, when such an association has become insolvent and is no longer a going concern, the rights and liabilities of a member should be determined in accordance with the law of the forum, that being also the place of residence of the member. Spinney v. Chapman, 121–38, 95 N. W. 230

SEC. 1908-a. Foreign companies. No building and loan or savings and loan association, incorporated under the laws of any other state or country, shall be authorized to do business in this state, whose articles of incorporation are not found by the executive council to be in substantial compliance with the laws of this state, and affording equal security and protection to the members thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 14.]

SEC. 1914. Annual statement.

The fiscal year of building and loan associations with reference to the making of dividends corresponds to the calendar year. The profits out of which fines may be taken are those accruing to the member during the year and which have not been appropriated to the members as dividends. Iowa Bus. Men's B. & L. Assn. v. Fitch, 142–329, 120 N. W. 694.

SEC. 1915-a. Sale or soliciting sale of stock in unauthorized company—penalty. It shall be unlawful for any agent, solicitor, or other person to sell stock or solicit persons to subscribe for stock in any such association named in section fourteen hereof, which has not been authorized to do business in this state, and any person convicted of so doing shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and shall be committed to the county jail until the fine and costs are paid. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 15.]

SEC. 1918. False statements.

An officer of a building and loan association may be prosecuted for embezzlement under code § 4842 relating to embezzlement in general, although he is guilty of a crime under the statutory provisions relating to such associations. State v. Ames, 119–680, 94 N. W. 231.

SEC. 1920-a. Unincorporated building and loan associations—extending provisions of other sections—what included. All unincorporated organizations, associations, societies, partnerships or individuals conducting and carrying on a business, the purpose of which is to create a fund derived from periodical payments by members of such organizations, associations, societies, or other persons, upon contracts or otherwise, as well as from fines, forfeitures, incidental fees and payment of premiums and interest, which fund is to be loaned or advanced to members of the organization, association, society or to the persons making such periodical payments, for the purpose of enabling them to acquire the ownership or free possession of real estate, or personal property or to construct buildings, or any or all of such purposes, shall be deemed building and loan associations; and the provisions of chapter thirteen of title nine of the code, and chapter sixty-nine of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly of the state of Iowa, shall apply to all such building and loan associations so far as the same can be made applicable to unincorporated organizations, associations, societies, partnerships or individuals. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.]

The statute imposing different conditions on the building and loan business when conducted by an unincorporated association from those imposed upon the business when conducted by a corporation is not unconstitutional. Brady v. Mattern, 125–158, 100 N. W. 358.

SEC. 1920-b. Sworn statements—deposit of securities. Every such unincorporated organization, association, society, partnership or individual, conducting and carrying on the business defined in section one hereof, shall, before transacting any business in this state, submit to the executive council a full and complete sworn statement of the resources and liabilities of such organization, association, society, partnership or individual, and of the proposed plan or method of doing business; and no such unincorporated building and loan association shall be permitted to carry on its business within this state unless it shall first deposit with the auditor of state at least fifty thousand dollars of first mortgages and negotiable notes in the same amount secured thereby upon real estate in the state of Iowa, bearing interest at a rate not less than five per cent. per annum, which said mortgages shall in no case exceed one half the actual value of the real estate upon which they are taken; and the auditor of state shall have power and authority to require that such further amount of such securities shall be deposited with him as in his judgment may thereafter be necessary to protect the members of such building and loan association, or the persons making periodical payments thereto. The notes, mortgages and securities so deposited with the auditor of state shall, with all interest and accumulations thereon, be held in trust by him for the purpose of fulfilling and carrying out all contracts made by such building and loan association with the members thereof, and with the persons making periodical payments thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 2.]

SEC. 1920-c. Approval—certificate. If the executive council approves the plan or method of business of any such building and loan association, it shall endorse its approval upon the statement of the resources and liabilities and plan of business presented to it, and such statement shall thereupon be filed in the office of the auditor of state, who shall issue a certificate to such building and loan association to transact business within the state of Iowa, if such association has deposited with him the mortgages and securities required by the provisions of section two hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 3.]

SEC. 1920-d. Officers to give bonds—approval. Every officer of such building and loan association who signs or endorses checks or handles any of the funds or securities thereof, shall give such bond or fidelity insurance for the faithful performance of his duty in such sum as the auditor of state may require, and no such officer shall be deemed qualified to enter upon the duties of his office until his bond is approved by, and deposited with, the auditor of state. And any such bond may be increased or additional sureties required by the auditor of state whenever in his judgment it becomes necessary to protect the interest of the association or its members, or persons making periodical payments of money thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 4.]

SEC. 1920-e. Examination. The auditor of state may at any time he may see proper make, or cause to be made, an examination of any such building and loan association, or he may call upon it for a report of its condition upon any given day which has passed, as often as four times each year, which report shall contain the information hereinafter required. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 5.]

SEC. 1920-f. Expense of examination. The expense of making such examination shall be paid by the building and loan association, and if made by the auditor in person he shall be paid his necessary expenses only; if made by an examiner designated by the auditor, he shall receive ten dollars a day for the time employed by him and his necessary expenses. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 6.]

SEC. 1920-g. Annual reports. On or before the first day of February of each year every such building and loan association shall file with the auditor of state its annual report in writing for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December preceding, giving a complete statement in detail of all of its receipts from all sources, and all disbursements made, during such year, arranged and itemized as may be required by the auditor of state. Such report shall also show the number of members or persons making periodical payments to such association, the number and amount of loans made to such persons, the interest received therefrom, the number and amounts of mortgages, contracts or other securities held by the association, the actual cash value of the real estate securing such mortgages or contracts, the salary paid to each of its officers during the preceding year, the assets and liabilities of the association at the end of the year, and any other matters which in the judgment of the auditor of state may be required to give him full information as to the business transacted by such building and loan association. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 7.]

SEC. 1920-h. Failure or refusal to furnish reports. If any such building and loan association shall fail or refuse to furnish to the auditor of state the report required in the preceding section, the officers or persons conducting the business of such building and loan association shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars for each day that such report is withheld, and the auditor of state may maintain an action, jointly or severally, against them in the name of the state to recover such penalty, and the same shall be paid into the state treasury when recovered by him. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 8.]

SEC. 1920-i. Penalties. If any officer or agent of any such building and loan association, or any person conducting the business thereof, shall knowingly and wilfully swear falsely to any statement in regard to any matter in this act required to be made under oath, he shall be guilty of perjury and punished accordingly. And if any officer, agent or employe of any such association, or any person transacting the business thereof, shall issue, utter or offer to utter, any warrant, check, order, or promise to pay of such association, or shall sign, transfer, cancel or surrender any note, bond, draft, mortgage, or other evidence of indebtedness belonging to such association, or shall demand, collect or receive any money from any member or other person in the name of such association without being authorized so to do; or if any such officer, agent or employe of such association, or any person transacting the business thereof, shall embezzle, convert to his own use, or shall use or pledge for his own benefit or purpose, any moneys, securities, credits or other property belonging to the association, or shall knowingly solicit, transact, or attempt to transact any business for any such association which has not procured and does not hold the certificate of authority from the auditor of state to transact business in this state as provided herein; or shall knowingly make, or cause to be made, any false entries in the books of the association, or shall, with intent to deceive any person making an examination of such association, as herein provided, exhibit to the person making the examination any false entry, paper or statement, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten years, or punished by both such fine and imprisonment. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 9.]

SEC. 1920-j. Revocation of certificate—receiver. If any such building and loan association, holding a certificate of authority to transact business within this state issued by the auditor as herein provided, shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or shall fail to deposit with the auditor of state such further amount of mortgages or securities as he may require under section two hereof, the auditor of state shall at once revoke such certificate and notify the executive council of the revocation thereof; and under the direction of the executive council, application shall be made by the attorney-general to the proper court for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the association; and in such proceedings the amount due from the borrowing members or persons making periodical payments upon contracts or mortgages given by them, shall be ascertained in the manner provided in section seven of chapter sixty-nine[1] of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly; and the amounts owing upon such mortgages or contracts from members of the association or persons making periodical payments thereto, shall be treated and considered as due and payable within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court after the appointment of a receiver. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 10.]

The term "issue" shall mean issue, sell, place, engage in or otherwise dispose of or handle. The term "stock" shall mean certificates, memberships, shares, bonds, contracts, debentures, stocks, tontine contracts, or other investment securities or agreements of any kind or character issued upon the partial payment or installment plan. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.]

It was the intention of the legislature in the enactment of this statute to wind up all associations engaged in the business of issuing investment securities on the installment plan, provided they do not comply with the provisions of the act within sixty days of its passage. State v. Syndicate Land Co., 142–22, 120 N. W. 327.

SEC. 1920-l. Certificate—how obtained. No association contemplated by this act shall issue any stock until it shall have procured from the auditor of state a certificate of authority authorizing it to engage in such business. oath, showing the name and location of such association, the name and post-office address of its officers, the date of organization, and if incorporated a copy of its articles of incorporation, also, a copy of its by-laws or rules by which it is to be governed, the form of its certificates, stocks or contracts, all printed matter issued by it, together with a detailed statement of its financial condition and such other information concerning its affairs or plan of business as the auditor of state may require. The same shall be, by the auditor of state laid before the executive council for consideration. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 2.]

Said statement shall be in such form as shall be prescribed by the auditor of state. If it appears from such statement that such association is doing a safe business and is solvent, the auditor of state may renew its certificate of authority authorizing it to transact business within the state until the first day of March of the following year. If at any time it shall appear that such association is doing an unsafe business or is insolvent the auditor of state may revoke its certificate of authority authorizing[1] it to transact business within the state until the first day of March of the following year. If at any time it shall appear that such association is doing an unsafe business or is insolvent the auditor of state may revoke its certificate of authority to transact business and having revoked the certificate of authority of an association organized under the laws of this state, he shall report his action to the attorney-general who shall at once apply to the district court or a judge thereof for the appointment of a receiver to close up the affairs of such association, and an injunction may issue in the same proceeding enjoining and restraining the association from transacting business in this state. the calendar year in which the association shall first be authorized to transact business. At the end of such calendar year, such association shall deposit with the auditor of state securities of the kind above provided in an amount equal to all its liabilities to persons residing within this state and shall keep such deposit at all times equal to such liability; provided that at no time shall such deposit be reduced below twenty-five thousand dollars except at such time as such association shall be by law closing out its business and its liabilities shall have been reduced below twenty-five thousand dollars. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 6.]

SEC. 1920-q. Unauthorized companies—penalty. Any member or representative of any association who shall attempt to issue or sell any stock as contemplated by this act or to transact any business whatsoever in the name of or on behalf of such association, not authorized to do business within this state, or which has failed or refused to comply with the provisions of this act, or has violated any of its provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than ten hundred dollars or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 8.]

SEC. 1920-s. Examination. Every such association doing business within this state, shall be subject to examination in the same manner as is provided for the examination of insurance companies and shall pay the same fees and costs therefor, and shall so far as is consistent with the plan of business, be subject to the same restrictions and regulations. Such examinations shall be full and complete and in making the same the auditor of state or examiner shall have full access to and may demand the production of all books, securities, papers, moneys, etc., of the association under examination, and may administer oaths, summon and compel the attendance and testimony of any persons connected with such association. If upon such examination, it shall appear that such association does not conduct its business in accordance with law, or if it permits forfeiture of payments by persons holding its stock, after three years from the issuance of said stock or provides for the payment of its expenses other than from earnings, or that any profits, advantage or compensation of any form or description is given to any member or investor over any other member or investor of the same class, or if beneficiaries are selected or determined or advantages given one over another by any form of chance, lottery or hazard, or if certificates of stock are by their terms or by any other provision to be redeemed in numerical order or by any arbitrary order or precedence, without reference [to] the amount previously paid thereon by the holder thereof, or that the affairs are in an unsound condition, or if such association refuses such examination to be made, the auditor of state may revoke its certificate of[1] authority to do business in this state, and having revoked the certificate of authority of an association organized under the laws of this state, he shall report the same to the attorney-general, who shall proceed as provided in section five hereof. But nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit the sale of bonds of the United States, or of the state of Iowa, or of the municipal, county, school or drainage bonds, or of certificates issued by authority of the laws of the state of Iowa, or to prohibit banks from dealing in the various classes of securities now or hereafter authorized by law or to prohibit the sale of stocks, bonds or other securities at judicial sale or by administrators or executors, or bonds or notes secured by mortgage on real estate, provided that the amount of such lien and of all superior liens upon said real estate shall not exceed three fourths of the actual cash value thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 1.]

SEC. 1920-t1. Preliminary application—information contained in —verification. That before any investment company shall secure such permit, it shall be necessary for each and every such investment company to file in the office of secretary of state, together with a filing fee of ten dollars, the following papers, documents, etc., together with such other information and documents as said secretary of state shall deem necessary in each case, to wit:

6. If it shall be a foreign investment company, it shall file a copy of its charter, which copy shall bear the certificate of the secretary of state, or other state officer having custody of such records, that it is a true, complete and correct copy.

All the above described papers shall be verified by the oath of a duly authorized member of a copartnership or association, if it be a copartnership or association, and by the oath of the president and secretary, if it be incorporated, provided that the secretary of state shall have the power to require such officers to make affidavit to such other reports or information as he may call for. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 2.]

SEC. 1920-t2. Foreign companies—agreement for acceptance of service. Every foreign investment company shall, before receiving a certificate as provided in section four hereof, file in the office of the secretary of state an agreement in writing (authenticated by the seal of said foreign investment company and by the signature of a member of a copartnership or company if it be a copartnership or company, or by the signatures of the president and secretary of the incorporated or unincorporated association, and shall be accompanied by a duly certified copy of the order or resolution of the board of directors, trustees or managers of the corporation, authorizing the said president and secretary to execute the same), that thereafter service of notice of any action or process of any kind against such foreign investment company, growing out of the transaction of any business of said company in this state, may be made on the secretary of state, and when so made, such service of notice or process of any kind shall be valid, binding and effective for all purposes as if served upon the foreign investment company according to the laws of this or any other state, and waiving all claims or right of error by reason of such acknowledgment of service. Such notice or process, with a copy thereof, may be mailed to the secretary of state at Des Moines, Iowa, in a registered letter addressed to him by his official title, and he shall immediately upon its receipt acknowledge service thereof on behalf of the defendant foreign investment company by writing thereon, giving the date thereof, and shall immediately return such notice or process in a registered letter to the clerk of the court in which the suit is pending, addressed to him by his official title, and shall also forthwith mail such copy, with a copy of his acknowledgment of service written thereon, in a registered letter addressed to the person or corporation who shall be named or designated as such foreign investment company in such written instrument. The above provisions for the service of notice or process of any kind are merely additions to the general provisions of law relating to the service of notice or process, and are not to be construed to be exclusive. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 3.]

SEC. 1920-t3. Secretary of state to determine sufficiency—permit. It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to examine the statements and documents so filed, and if he shall deem it advisable, he shall require such investment company to furnish him with further and more detailed information regarding the affairs of such investment company, and if he finds that such investment company is solvent; that its articles of incorporation or association, its constitution and by-laws, its proposed plan of business, and proposed contracts contain and provide for a fair, just and equitable plan for the transaction of business, he shall issue to such investment company a statement reciting that such company has complied with the provisions of this act and that such investment company is permitted to do business in this state. In no case shall the secretary of state issue to such investment company or to its stockbrokers or agent thereof a permit to do business in this state unless, in his judgment, said investment company meets the requirements of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 4.]

SEC. 1920-t4. Amendments to charter, articles, constitution and by-laws—consent of secretary. That no amendment of the charter, articles of incorporation, constitution or by-laws of any such investment company shall become operative until a copy of the same has been filed with the secretary of state as provided in regard to the original filing of such papers, nor shall it be lawful for any such investment company to transact business on any other plan than that set forth in the statement required to be filed in section two of this act, or to make any contract other than that shown in the copy of the proposed contract required to be filed by the provisions of said section, until a written statement showing in full detail the proposed new plan of transacting business and a copy of the proposed new contract shall have been filed with the secretary of state in like manner as provided in regard to the original plan of business and proposed contract, and the consent of the secretary of state obtained as to making such proposed new plan of transacting business and proposed new contract. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 5.]

Each annual statement shall be accompanied by a filing fee of two dollars. Any investment company failing to file said statement for the preceding year by the first day of February of each year, or failing to file any other or special report herein required within thirty days after receipt of request therefor, shall forfeit to the state of Iowa the sum of five dollars per day until said statement is filed, or until its right to do business in this state is canceled; and unless said reports are filed within thirty days from the time they are due the secretary of state may cancel the right of said company to do business in this state. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 6.]

SEC. 1920-t6. Accounts—how kept—open to inspection. The general accounts of every such investment company, domestic or foreign, shall be kept in a businesslike and intelligent manner and in sufficient detail that the secretary of state can ascertain at any time its financial condition; and such books of account shall at all times during business hours, except on Sundays and legal holidays, be open to stockholders and investors in said companies and to the secretary of state or his duly authorized representatives. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 7.]

SEC. 1920-t7. General supervision by secretary—examination—costs of same. The secretary of state shall have general supervision and control as provided by this act over any and all investment companies, domestic and foreign, doing business in this state and not expressly exempted, and all such investment companies shall be subject to examination by the secretary of state or his duly authorized representative at any time the said secretary of state may deem it necessary. The right, powers and privileges of the secretary of state in connection with such examination shall be the same as is now provided with reference to examination of state banks; and such investment companies shall pay a fee for each of such examinations of not to exceed six dollars for each day or fraction thereof spent by the said secretary of state or his duly authorized representative while absent from the capitol in making such examination, and also the actual traveling and hotel expenses of said examiner, and upon failure or refusal of any such investment company to pay such fees upon the demand of the secretary of state, or his duly authorized representative, the secretary of state may cancel its right to do business in this state until such fee is paid. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 8.]

SEC. 1920-t8. Cancellation of permit—secretary may act. Whenever it shall appear to the secretary of state that the assets of any investment company doing business in this state are impaired to the extent that such assets do not equal its liabilities or that it is conducting its business in an unsafe, unfair, inequitable or unauthorized manner, or is jeopardiz-ing the interest of its stockholders or investors in stocks, bonds or other securities by it offered for sale in this state, or whenever any investment company shall fail or refuse for a period of thirty days to file any papers, statements or documents required by this act without giving reasons therefor satisfactory to the secretary of state, he shall at once cancel the right of said investment company to continue to do business in this state. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 9.]

SEC. 1920-t9. False statement—penalty. Any investment company or person who shall knowingly and wilfully subscribe to or cause to be made any false statement or false entry in any book of such investment company, or exhibit any false paper with the intention of deceiving any person authorized to examine the affairs of such investment company, or shall knowingly or wilfully make or publish any false statement of the financial condition of such investment company, or the stocks, bonds or other securities by it offered for sale shall be deemed guilty of a felony; and upon the conviction of any such investment company of such felony it shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars, and the secretary of state may forthwith cancel the right of said investment company to transact business in this state; and upon the conviction of a person of such felony he shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars, and he may be imprisoned for not more than ten years, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 10.]

SEC. 1920-t10. Failure to comply—penalty. Any stockbroker, agent or other person, unless expressly exempted from the provisions of this act, who shall sell or attempt to sell the stocks, bonds or other securities of any investment company (domestic or foreign), which has not complied with the provisions of this act, or whose permit has been canceled under the provisions of this act or who shall do or attempt to do business for any such investment company, which has not complied with the provisions of this act, or who shall upon demand refuse to exhibit his duly registered certificate of registration received from the secretary of state, or who shall violate any of the other provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined for each of such offenses not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail of not more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 11.]

SEC. 1920-t11. Fees—how collected—clerks and deputies—how appointed—qualifications—compensation. All fees herein provided for shall be collected by the secretary of state and by him turned in to the state treasurer on the first secular day of each month; and the secretary of state shall keep a record of the receipts and expenditures incurred in carrying out the provisions of this act. The secretary of state is hereby authorized to appoint such clerks and deputies as the executive council may deem actually necessary to carry this act into full force and effect; but none of whom shall be related by blood or marriage to such secretary of state. The compensation of such clerks and deputies shall be fixed by the executive council. Before the salary and expenses of any such clerk or deputy shall be paid, a detailed and itemized statement of account shall be prepared by such claimant and duly verified, which verification shall aver that such claim is just, reasonable and wholly unpaid and that the amount therein stated has been expended by such claimant. When said claim has been approved by the secretary of state and audited and allowed by the executive council, it shall be paid by warrant drawn by the auditor of state upon the state treasurer, and there is hereby appropriated out of any money of the state treasury, and not otherwise appropriated, an amount sufficient to meet said salaries and expenses. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 12.]

SEC. 1920-t12. Appeal from decision of secretary—hearing. Any investment company, domestic or foreign, or any stockbroker, which shall be denied a certificate to transact its business in this state or whose certificate shall be revoked by the secretary of state in pursuance of this act, or any interested citizen of this state, shall have the right to appeal to the executive council of this state from any decision of the secretary of state relating to the provisions of this act, within twenty days from the entry of such decision by serving notice of such appeal upon the secretary of the executive council, and such appeal shall be heard and determined by the executive council under such rules and regulations as they may prescribe. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 13.]

SEC. 1920-t13. Agents—certificates of appointment—fee. Any investment company which has complied with the provisions of this act and received from the secretary of state a certificate authorizing it to offer its securities for sale in this state may appoint one or more stockbrokers or agents to act for it; but no such stockbroker, except under the provisions of the next section, or agent, or any other person, shall directly or indirectly, do any business for said investment company in this state until he shall first register with the secretary of state and file with such officer his written appointment and authority from said investment company to act as its stockbroker or agent and receive from him a certificate showing that such investment company has complied with the provisions of the law and that such person is authorized to act for it. All such certificates shall be subject to revocation by the secretary of state, and unless so revoked shall expire on the first day of July each year. A charge of one dollar shall be made by the secretary of state for each certificate issued to each stockbroker or agent. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 14.]

SEC. 1920-t14. Stockbroker—permit—standard securities—lists—reports—investigation of broker and stocks—expense—fee—bond—forfeiture. The secretary of state may issue to any stockbroker who has been a resident of the state during the last preceding six months an annual permit, which permit shall entitle such stockbroker to handle such stocks, bonds or other securities in the state of Iowa as are known to be standard, or are well known to be safe and legitimate investments, or such as are found by investigation of the secretary of state to be safe and legitimate stocks, bonds or other securities; provided, however, such stockbroker shall file on the first and fifteenth day of each month a detailed list of the stocks, bonds or other securities on hand for sale and also all of those sold by him during the preceding half month and not previously reported; provided further that said secretary of state shall have authority to prohibit the stockbroker from handling any of such issues at any time or to cancel said stockbroker's permit at any time he decides that said broker is not handling such securities as he deems safe and legitimate investments. But the secretary of state shall not issue such annual permit to any stockbroker until he has first satisfied himself by special investigation as to the character and responsibility of such stockbroker and as to the character of the class of stocks, bonds and other securities handled by such stockbroker; and also as to his reputation for handling such stocks, bonds and other securities as the secretary of state shall deem to be safe and legitimate investments.

In the event the secretary of state shall make any investigation provided for under the provisions of this section, the expense incurred thereby shall be borne by the stockbroker so investigated. He shall also pay a fee of fifty dollars to the secretary of state for each of said annual permits, which permits, unless sooner revoked by the secretary of state, shall expire on the first secular day of July of each year. If said permit is issued after the first of January of any year, the fee shall be reduced one half. Before being granted such permit by the secretary of state the stockbroker shall give a bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars to the state of Iowa, conditioned upon a strict compliance with this act, which bond shall be approved by the executive council and filed with the secretary of state. Said bond shall be forfeited by a violation of the terms or conditions of this act, or by a conviction for such violation, and the attorney-general of this state may institute suit in the name of the state of Iowa in any court of competent jurisdiction for a forfeiture thereof at any time within two years from the time the cause of action accrues; provided that if it appears such violation was not intentional and no fraud was shown only so much of said bond shall be forfeited which shall be equal to the amount of damages sustained. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 15.]

SEC. 1920-t15. Stocks held by bona fide resident owners—authorization by secretary for sale of same—registration of securities. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prohibit a bona fide owner of any stocks, bonds or other securities, who is at the time a resident of this state, from selling, exchanging or otherwise disposing of the same when not made in the course of continuing or repeated transactions of a similar nature, or when the said securities, including negotiable promissory notes, have been issued or given for goods, wares or merchandise purchased or dealt in by the issuer in the ordinary course of his business, or when sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of to a bank, trust company, insurance company, building and loan association, or to a stockbroker duly authorized to transact business within this state, provided that the same are sold by said owner in good faith and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of this act; and the secretary of state may authorize in writing any such bona fide owner of any stocks, bonds or other securities to sell in this state any other securities not included in the provisions set forth in the preceding portion of this section; provided, however, that it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the secretary of state that such stocks, bonds or other securities are safe and legitimate investments, and that they were acquired and held by the owner in good faith, and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of this act, and that said owner desires in good faith to dispose of said securities; but before such authorization shall issue the owner of such securities shall register, in a book kept for that purpose by the secretary of state, the stocks, bonds and other securities desired to be sold, giving the character of the security, the par value thereof, the date of issue, and any other data concerning the same which the secretary of state may require. A certificate fee of one dollar shall be charged for each such authorization. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 16.]

SEC. 1920-t16. Statement that secretary does not recommend stocks printed on permit—advertisements. That each and every certificate or permit granted by the secretary of state under the provisions of this act to any investment company or to any stockbroker, agent or representative thereof or to any other person, shall have printed across its face in bold type the statement: "The secretary of state in no wise recommends the stocks, bonds or other securities offered for sale by this (investment company, stockbroker, agent, representative or person, as the case may be)"; and any investment company or any stockbroker, agent or representative thereof or any person who shall refer to such certificate or permit in any advertisement or printed matter of any kind shall also print in said advertisement or printed matter, with equal prominence, the statement: "The secretary of state in no wise recommends the stocks, bonds or other securities herein referred to." [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 17.]

SEC. 1920-t17. Terms defined. In the construction of this act the following definitions shall be followed, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the manifest intent or repugnant to the context of the statute:

1. That the name "investment company" as used in this act shall include every corporation or concern, however constituted, now or hereafter organized, which shall sell or cause to be sold or offered for sale, take subscriptions for, or negotiate for the sale of any stocks, bonds or other securities of any kind or character to any person or persons in the state of Iowa. But nothing in this act shall be construed to make the provisions thereof apply to state, savings, private or national banks, loan and trust companies, local building and loan associations, or to the sale of real estate under bond or contract where the actual transfer of title thereto is contingent upon the future payment or considerations, or corporations not organized for profit.

2. The name "domestic" as used in this act shall apply to those corporations or concerns incorporated or organized under the laws of Iowa or having their principal place of business in the state of Iowa; and the word "foreign" shall apply to those corporations or concerns organized under the laws of another state or having their principal place of business outside of the state of Iowa.

3. The name "stockbroker" as used in this act shall include every person, set of persons, association, company, copartnership or corporation, who shall deal in stocks, bonds or other securities covered by this act, or who shall sell, offer or negotiate for the sale, in the state of Iowa, of any stocks, bonds or other securities covered by this act, or who shall underwrite or purchase such securities and resell them to any person or persons in the state of Iowa at a commission or profit.

4. The name "agent" as used in this act shall include any persons who shall act for any investment company or stockbroker, offering for sale, taking subscriptions for, or negotiating for the sale of, or selling any securities for any investment company or stockbroker, either as an employe on a salary basis or for a commission or who shall execute, issue, sell, offer or negotiate for sale, any contract, bond or other instrument, by the terms of which title to real estate located outside the state of Iowa is to be transferred upon the completion of certain payments or the performance of certain conditions therein specified; provided that if it appears such violation was not intentional and no fraud was shown only so much of said bond shall be forfeited which shall be equal to the amount of damages sustained. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 18.]

[Subdivision 4 of § 18 of the above act does not appear to have been enrolled as passed by the legislature. It is given here as enrolled. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1920-t18. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in so far as they are in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 137, § 19.]

TITLE X.

OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

CHAPTER 2.

OF LEVEES, DRAINS, DITCHES AND WATERCOURSES.

SECTION 1939. Supervisors to locate.

The power of a board of supervisors to construct ditches and drains under these provisions is not restricted in terms or by necessary inference to territory outside of towns and cities. The presumption must be exercised that the board will have due consideration for the interests of the public within as well as without the limits of such municipal corporation. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

SEC. 1940. Proceedings—bond—survey—notice. A petition signed by a majority of the persons resident in the county, owning land abutting upon such proposed improvement, shall be first filed in the office of the county auditor, setting forth the necessity for the same, the starting point, route and terminus, together with a bond, with sufficient sureties to be approved by him, conditioned to pay all costs and expenses incurred in case the supervisors refuse to grant the prayer of the petition. The auditor shall thereupon place a copy of the petition in the hands of the county surveyor or a competent engineer, who shall make a survey of the proposed improvement, and return a plat and profile thereof to the auditor; which return shall set forth a full and detailed description thereof, its availability, necessity and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land owned by different persons, through or abutting upon which the improvement is proposed to be located, how it will be affected thereby, and its situation and elevation as compared with that of adjoining lands, with such other facts as he may deem material. The auditor shall immediately thereafter cause notice in writing to be served on the owner of each tract of land, through or abutting upon which the proposed improvement is to be located, who is a resident of the county, of the pendency and prayer of said petition, and the session of the board of supervisors at which the same will be heard, which notice shall be served ten days prior to said session in the same manner that original notices are required to be served. In case any such owner is a nonresident of the county, such notice as to him shall be published, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county, proof thereof being made by affidavits as in case of legal notices published in newspapers, which proof shall be filed with the board. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 15; 19 G. A., ch. 44, § 2; C. '73, § 1208.]

Under § 1208 of the code of '73 which used the word "adjacent" in describing the owners who are required to petition for a ditch, held that the term applied to owners of land abutting on the improvement, and not the owners of all the land within the congressional subdivision through which it runs. Wormley v. Board of Supervisors, 108–232, 78 N. W. 824.

Under this section only those through whose land runs or on whose land abuts the improvement participate in initiating the improvement, and the kind of land to be included is not described, the board of supervisors being required to find only that the improvement will be conducive to public health, convenience and welfare; and the district is defined by the commissioners appointed to apportion the cost to the owners of land along or in the vicinity of such improvement and to be benefited thereby, such land being classified for this purpose as "dry," "low," "wet" or "swamp." Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

In a proceeding to enjoin the issuance of bonds for the construction of a ditch, the contractor is a necessary party. Tod v. Crisman, 123–693, 99 N. W. 686.

The unconstitutionality of the provision for taxing lands in the vicinity of the ditch without notice to the owner thereof, renders the entire provision for assessment for such ditches invalid. Smith v. Peterson, 123–672, 99 N. W. 552.

The provisions of these sections do not contemplate notice to a landowner whose land does not abut upon the ditch that he may be assessed therefor, and as he is not afforded an opportunity for a hearing the statute is unconstitutional as to such owner. Beebe v. Magoun, 122–94, 97 N. W. 986.

A bond executed by petitioners to pay all costs and expenses incurred in case the supervisors refused to grant the petition, held to be invalid in view of the unconstitutionality of the section providing for such bond. Carroll County v. Cuthbertson, 136–458, 114 N. W. 17.

A statute which provides for notice to the property owner at some stage of the proceedings, before the assessment is made, is not open to constitutional objection simply because it does not provide for a new or additional notice of each successive step leading up to the assessment. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

The amendatory statute, 30 G. A., ch. 67, providing for notice in proceedings already instituted, is constitutional. Ibid.

No one is entitled to raise the objection of want of notice of the proceedings except the party entitled to notice. Ibid.

The landowner is not entitled to notice of the hearing as to the extent of the drainage district and as to whether his land shall be included therein. Ibid.

It is not required that the petition contain an accurate description of the lands to be included in the drainage district. The matter of the exact boundary is to be determined upon the engineer's survey and report. Mackay v. Hancock County, 137–88, 114 N. W. 552.

An owner who has had notice of the proceeding in which it is sought to have his land included within a drainage district cannot, after the district has been established and the improvement made, question the validity of the proceeding on the ground that his property was not within the scope of the benefits. Ibid.

About the only office of the petition, aside from alleging the character of land and the nature of improvement, seems to be to point out the locality in a general way and to indicate those who are to give the security for the preliminary costs and expenses to be paid in event the petition shall be rejected. Zinser v. Board of Supervisors, 137–660, 114 N. W. 51.

As to the requirements of the petition under subsequent statutes, see code supp. § 1989-a2. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

The return of the engineer is the basis of all subsequent proceedings, but he should not include all the lands within the watershed unless affected by the contemplated improvement. Zinser v. Board of Supervisors, 137–660, 114 N. W. 51.

In cases of a reassessment and relevy landowners have an opportunity to appear and be heard and at such hearing the board may hear and determine all objections made and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment as reported. Howard v. Emmet County, 140–527, 118 N. W. 882.

The proceedings for the establishment of a drainage district may be had under the provisions of code supp. §1989-a1, et seq., instead of under these sections. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

SEC. 1941. Location—damages.

Even though the notice is not in the language of the statute, if it is not so defective that it can be said there is no notice, the action of the board in holding it to be sufficient cannot be collaterally assailed. Oliver v. Monona County, 117–43, 90 N. W. 510.

No express finding that the ditch is necessary or would conduce to the public health, convenience or welfare is required. A finding by the board that all the requirements of the law have been fully complied with is sufficient, there being no requirement that a finding as to the necessity for the ditch shall be made of record. Ibid.

The validity of the establishment of a ditch is not affected by the fact that claims for damages are not made and allowed before such location. The objection is not jurisdictional. Ibid.

A landowner who has made claim for damages which has been passed on by the board of supervisors cannot afterwards enjoin the prosecution of the work because the damages allowed are not sufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 1942. Claim for damages.

If in the construction of a county drain or ditch through the limits of a city or town injury will result to the streets or an additional burden of expense be cast upon the corporation, there would seem to be no reason why damages might not be claimed by such corporation as well as by the individual owners through whose land the ditch extends. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

The owner of land taken for a drainage ditch is entitled to be paid for the portion so taken without regard to the benefits enjoyed in common with other owners of land in the neighborhood resulting from such ditch. Gish v. Castner etc. Drainage Dist., 137–711, 115 N. W. 474.

SEC. 1944. Letting work—payment. The auditor shall cause notice to be given of the time and place of letting, the kind and approximate amount of work to be done on each section, and the time fixed for its completion, by publication, once each week, for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in said county, and shall let it upon each separate section to the lowest bidder therefor, who shall be required to execute a bond, with sufficient sureties, in an amount equal to ten per cent. of the estimated cost of the work so let, or deposit such amount in cash with the auditor, as security for the performance of his contract. The engineer in charge of the construction shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section, and upon the filing of the same with the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of the contractor for eighty per cent. of the value of the work done, according to the estimate; and when said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge, and so certified by him to the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of said contractor upon the levee or drainage fund for the balance due, as provided in the following section. If any person to whom any portion of said work has been let shall fail to perform the same as, and in the time, specified in his contract, the cash deposited by him shall be forfeited to, or the penalty named in the bond may be recovered in an action thereon by, the county auditor, for the benefit of the levee or drainage district, on said contract, as liquidated damages, and it shall be relet by the auditor in the manner hereinbefore provided. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 16; 19 G. A., ch. 44, § 6; 18 G. A., ch. 85, § 8; 16 G. A., ch. 140, § 1; C. '73, § 1212.]

One who claims to be the lowest bidder cannot maintain an action of mandamus to compel the board to award the contract to him. Vincent v. Ellis, 116–609, 88 N. W. 836.

The statutory provision as to forfeiture of cash deposit and recovery of a penalty does not deprive the board of supervisors of their right to treat the whole contract as forfeited on default of the contractor to perform, and institute new proceedings for the construction of a different ditch. The board is not bound under such circumstances to allow the county auditor to relet the work under the former proceedings. Brown v. Board of Supervisors, 129–533, 105 N. W. 1019.

This statute confers upon the board authority to relet the work and maintain an action for damages against the delinquent contractor on his failure to comply with the terms of the contract. Webster County v. Nelson, 154–660, 135 N. W. 390.

If the contract provides for liquidated damages, the board has an election to forfeit the contract on account of the breach of its conditions and relet the work instead of relying upon the recovery of the damages provided for. Ibid.

The damages recoverable upon forfeiture of the contract should be assessed upon the basis of the necessary or reasonable cost of taking the work as it existed when the contract was forfeited and carrying it forward to completion. Ibid.

Where the bond given by the contractor covers his obligation to carry out such contract and not merely the obligation to pay liquidated damages, the surety is bound by the contractor's liability in the event of forfeiture of the contract and reletting the work. Ibid.

Further, see notes to supp. § 1989-a8.

SEC. 1945. Costs and fees—how paid.

As the statute points out a fund from which to pay costs and expenses of preliminary proceedings, the county is under no obligation to pay such costs and expenses save from the fund provided. Carroll County v. Cuthbertson, 136–458, 114 N. W. 17.

Since the county is not legally chargeable with the costs incident to the making of the improvements provided for, a bond given to the county in a proceeding under code § 1940, which as it stood when the proceeding was commenced was unconstitutional, was of no effect either as a statutory or a common-law obligation. Ibid.

SEC. 1946. Assessment of costs and damages—classification. When any levee, ditch, drain, or change of direction of any watercourse shall have been located and established, as provided in this chapter, or when it shall be necessary to cause the same to be repaired or reopened, the auditor shall appoint three persons, one of whom shall be a competent civil engineer, and two who shall be resident freeholders of the county, not living within the township or townships where the improvement is or is to be located, and not interested therein or in a like question, nor related to any party whose land is affected thereby, who shall within twenty days after such appointment personally inspect and classify as "dry," "low," "wet," or "swamp" all the land benefited by the location and construction of the improvement, or the repairing or reopening of the same, and shall make an equitable apportionment of the cost, expenses, cost of construction, fees, and damages assessed for the construction of any such improvement, or of repairing or reopening the same, and make report thereof in writing to the board of supervisors and file the same with the county auditor who shall immediately thereafter fix a time for hearing objections thereto before the board of supervisors, and cause to be served upon the owner of each tract of land or lot described in said report as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office notice in writing of the filing and pendency of said report, the amount of special assessment apportioned to such owner, the day set for hearing the same, and that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor on or before noon of the day set for such hearing, which notice as to residents of the county shall be served not less than ten days prior to the day set for such hearing in the same manner that original notices are required to be served, and as to nonresidents of the county such notice shall be served by publishing the same once[1] each week for two consecutive weeks, the last publication not less than ten days prior to the day set for hearing, in some newspaper published in the county and by serving the same upon the person or persons in the actual occupancy of the property, not less than ten days prior to the day set for such hearing. When the day set for hearing has arrived the board of supervisors shall proceed to hear and determine all objections made and filed to said report, and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment made in said report or any part thereof as may appear to the board to be just and equitable, which apportionment shall be assessed among the owners of the land along or in the vicinity of such improvement and to be benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefit to each of them, and levied upon the lands of the owners so benefited in said proportions, and collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected for county purposes; which fund so collected shall be kept separate from other county funds, and shall be paid out only for purposes properly connected with the improvement, on the order of the county auditor, on claims properly certified by the engineer in charge of the improvement as in this chapter provided, or on the order of the board of supervisors. The engineer shall receive for each day's service, while so engaged, five dollars, and the other commissioners shall receive each two dollars per day, to be paid out of the funds so collected. In order to prevent or repair a break in any levee in time of high water, any member of the board of supervisors may at once employ the necessary labor to repair the levee or prevent a break thereof, and the necessary and reasonable expense therefor shall be audited by the board of supervisors and paid from the levee fund. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 78, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 139; 19 G. A., ch. 44, § 7; 16 G. A., ch. 140, § 4; C. '73, § 1214.]

["one" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

[The amendment by 30 G. A. ignored § 1946 as it appeared in the code supplement, 1902, but amended § 1946 of the code. § 1946 of the code was amended by 29 G. A. by adding matter to the end of the section, and the amendment by 30 G. A. has been shown as amending the section as it appears in the code supplement, 1902. EDITOR.]

These statutory provisions practically authorize the creation of a drainage district and the assessment of the expenses for the improvement upon all the property coming within the general benefit involved in the promotion of the public health, convenience and welfare. It is not the proximity of the parcels of land in question to the ditch or the benefit to the parcels from the construction thereof which is the basis of the assessment, but all the parcels within the drainage district are to be assessed uniformly with the expense in accordance with their general character. The owner is entitled to notice with reference to whether his land is included within the drainage district and this is sufficient to charge him with notice of the subsequent proceedings. Oliver v. Monona County, 117–43, 90 N. W. 510.

The funds derived from a special assessment for the construction of a ditch do not belong to the county. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130–412, 106 N. W. 950.

Under this section, held that the entire assessment on the lands of an owner, some of which abutted upon the ditch, while others were in the vicinity thereof, was invalid for want of the provision for notice to the owner with reference to the proposed assessment on land in the vicinity. Smith v. Peterson, 123–672, 99 N. W. 552.

The act of 30 G. A., ch. 67, relating to special assessments for ditches, provides that when the report is made by the commissioners appointed to classify the benefited lands and apportion the expenses notice shall be served personally upon residents and upon nonresidents by publication, and that upon such hearing the board shall determine all objections to the assessment and may affirm or modify the apportionments, and this provision is made applicable to proceedings already instituted. It was competent for the legislature to thus provide for notice in existing proceedings. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

This section has no application to the proceedings provided for by code § 1952. Smittle v. Haag, 140–492, 118 N. W. 869.

The unconstitutionality of this section is remedied by the provisions of chs. 57 and 68, 30 G. A. code supp. §§ 1989-a1–1989-a47.) Ibid.

The county as such has no interest in the establishment of a ditch constructed for the benefit of a fraction of its territory. Canal Construction Co. v. Woodbury County, 146–526, 121 N. W. 556.

SEC. 1946-a. Applicable to proceedings now pending. That said section nineteen hundred forty-six of the code as amended by section one hereof shall be construed to apply to all proceedings now pending before boards of supervisors for the location and construction of levees, drains, ditches or watercourses under the provisions of chapter two, title ten of the code where the apportionment, assessment or levy of the cost of the improvement has not yet been made, as well as to proceedings instituted hereafter. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 2.]

SEC. 1946-b. Reassessment and relevy. Where the assessment and levy on account of any ditch, drain or watercourse has been made by the board of supervisors of any county under the provisions of said section nineteen hundred forty-six of the code without notice or legal notice to the owner of the land affected thereby and the whole or any part thereof remains unpaid, the board of supervisors shall have the authority to recall the assessment or levy thus made without notice and proceed anew as provided in section one hereof to apportion and levy the cost of such improvement among the owners and upon the land benefited thereby, taking as a basis the original apportionment, and report of the commissioners upon which the board had theretofore acted, and the new assessment and levy made upon notice and hearing in such cases shall be certified by the county auditor to the county treasurer, reëntered upon the tax list and collected as other taxes for county purposes, and all payments made under the prior assessment and levy shall be credited upon the new assessment and levy. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 3.]

A taxpayer who may be subjected to the payment of a tax by reassessment cannot object to the tax on account of defects which might thus be cured. Thompson v. Mitchell, 133–527, 110 N. W. 901.

The reassessment and levy provided for are for the express purpose of compelling the benefited land to pay its just proportion of the cost of improvement. Howard v. Emmet County, 140–527, 118 N. W. 882.

SEC. 1946-c. Completion of and payment for work already begun. When any levee, ditch, drain, watercourse or change of watercourse shall have been heretofore established by any of the boards of supervisors of this state and contract or contracts let therefor, and the improvement wholly or partly constructed or drainage bonds issued on account thereof and the proceedings or tax therefor have been or shall be for any cause found invalid and the board of supervisors has found or shall find that such improvement will be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, such board is authorized to provide for the completion of the work and the payment therefor, and for the payment of the work already done and of the drainage bonds issued and to that end shall recall the tax theretofore levied and shall reascertain the cost and expense of such improvement, and after notice and hearing as provided in this act shall assess and levy the same upon the lands benefited thereby, and the said board and the other county officers shall proceed as provided by section three and the other provisions of this act. Such reassessment and relevy of taxes shall be in proportion to and not in excess of benefits, and all taxes theretofore paid upon such improvement shall be credited as provided in section three of this act. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 4.]

SEC. 1946-d. Drainage bonds. Section nineteen hundred fifty-three of the code shall be construed to apply to and authorize the issuance of drainage bonds in proceedings heretofore or hereafter instituted under section nineteen hundred forty of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 5.]

SEC. 1946-e. Future levies. Such assessment shall fix the proportion for all future levies on account of such improvement or the repair or reopening thereof, and may be levied in one year or apportioned among a series of years, and drainage bonds issued therefor as provided by section nineteen hundred fifty-three of the code, and appeals may be taken as provided by section nineteen hundred forty-seven of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 6.]

SEC. 1947. Appeals.

The provision of this section that it shall not be competent to show that the lands assessed were not benefited by the improvements pertains exclusively to the remedy, and is applicable, although the statutory provision in force when the tax was levied authorized the property owner to show that his property was not benefited by the improvements. Allerton v. Monona County, 111–560, 82 N. W. 922; Oliver v. Monona County, 117–43, 90 N. W. 510.

The landowner, being given opportunity to appear before the board of supervisors and make objection that his land as reported by the commissioner is not in fact benefited by the improvement, is concluded by the finding of the board, and such provision is not unconstitutional. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

On an appeal to the district court from an order of the board of supervisors refusing to order the construction of a ditch on an application therefor there is no right to a jury trial. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

The petitioners for the establishment of a public ditch being required to contribute to the expense of establishing it, are entitled to notice of appeal from the award of damages taken by a claimant for such damages. Henderson v. Calhoun County, 129–119, 105 N. W. 383.

The board of supervisors has no authority to direct the dismissal of an appeal from its action in fixing the assessment upon lands. The county or board of supervisors, if properly a party to the appeal in any sense is such party only in a nominal or representative capacity and the real parties in interest have the right to control the proceedings. Temple v. Hamilton County, 134–706, 112 N. W. 174.

The board is given the authority to pass upon the necessity of the improvement and determine its public character and fix the boundaries of the district, which power is legislative rather than judicial; the court should on appeal be reluctant to interfere with the exercise of discretion on the part of the board. Ibid.

On appeal from an assessment of benefits the notice must be served on the first four petitioners. Service on the county auditor only is not sufficient. Poage v. Grant Twp. etc. Drainage Dist. Co., 141–510, 119 N. W. 976.

There is no provision for intervention in the district court by parties who are not residents of the county although they may be affected by the establishment of the proposed district. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

SEC. 1948. Nuisance—repeal. That the law as it appears in section nineteen hundred forty-eight of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 154, § 1.]

SEC. 1949. Through two or more counties.

In a proceeding relating to the establishment of a drainage district in two or more counties involving a matter concerning which the boards of the respective counties are required to act jointly, notice of appeal must be served on the auditor of each county and the court acquires no jurisdiction upon service on only one such auditor. In re Appeal of Head, 141–651, 118 N. W. 884.

Failure to record the proceedings in each of the counties does not affect the jurisdiction of the court on appeal in such a case. Ibid.

SEC. 1951. Levees, ditches or drains in public highway—highway along levee. Levees, ditches, drains and embankments may be located and constructed within the limits of public highways, on either or both sides of and along the same, to be so built as not materially to interfere with the public travel thereon, by taxation and assessment under the provisions of this chapter, and, when constructed, shall be under the control of the board of supervisors of the county in which they are situated; and it shall have power to grant a right of way thereon to any railway that will maintain them while used by it, subject to any claim for damages against the company in any condemnation proceedings which shall be instituted, and the damages awarded, paid, or secured to be paid before possession shall be given, but the county shall not be required on account thereof or otherwise to keep up such improvements at its expense. The board of supervisors shall have power to establish public highways along and upon any levee built under the provisions of this chapter, provided that when so used the same shall be worked as other highways and so as to at all times maintain its condition as a levee. [29 G. A., ch. 78, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 186, § 1.]

SEC. 1952. Petition for drain—proceedings.

Where a petition is apparently sufficient as to the number of signers the action of the board of supervisors in entertaining jurisdiction of the proceeding cannot be collaterally assailed. Oliver v. Monona County, 117–43, 90 N. W. 510.

The essential facts which must be alleged and established before the improvement can be ordered, are, that the body or district of land is subject to overflow, or is too wet for cultivation, and that the public health, convenience or welfare will be promoted by the proposed work. The duty of hearing and determining this question is committed in the first instance to the board of supervisors, and until the truth of both of these propositions has been established to the satisfaction of such board, the order for the location and construction of the improvement cannot rightfully be made. If the supervisors fail to find facts without which the order for the drain or ditch could not be made, they have no jurisdiction to proceed. In re Bradley, 117–472, 91 N. W. 780.

While it is required by code § 1940 that the petitioners in an application for a ditch to be constructed at the public expense shall give a bond to pay all costs and expenses incurred in case the board of supervisors refuse to grant the prayer of the petition, nevertheless, in an appeal in such a proceeding the court may tax the costs against the successful party. Ibid.

A property owner who has knowledge of the proceedings and allows the public improvement to proceed without objection cannot afterwards question the validity of the tax on account of irregularity. Thompson v. Mitchell, 133–527, 110 N. W. 901.

This section is not dependent on the validity of code § 1946 and is not affected by its unconstitutionality. Constitutional objections to both sections are cured by ch. 68, 30 G. A. (code supp. §§ 1989-a1–1989-a47.) Smittle v. Haag, 140–492, 118 N. W. 869.

Under this section the petition must describe the body or district of land by metes and bounds, or otherwise, and allege that it is subject to overflow or too wet for cultivation. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

SEC. 1955. Drains through land of another—application—notice. Section nineteen hundred fifty-five of the code is hereby repealed and the following substituted therefor:

"Whenever the owner of any land shall desire to construct any levee, open ditch, tile or other underground drain, for agricultural, sanitary or mining purposes or for the purpose of securing more complete drainage or a better outlet, across the lands of others, or across or through the right of way and roadbed of a railroad, and shall be unable to agree with the owner of any such lands, or with any such railroad company, through whose land or property he desires to construct the same, with regard to the location or manner of constructing any such ditch, drain or levee, or with regard to the compensation to be made, or with regard to any other matter properly connected therewith, he may file with the township clerk of the township in which any such land or right of way is situated, an application in writing, setting forth a description of the land or other property through which he is desirous of constructing any such levee, ditch or drain, the starting point, route, terminus, character, size and depth thereof. Upon the filing of any such application, the clerk shall forthwith fix a time and place for hearing thereon before the township trustees of his township, which hearing shall be not more than ninety days nor less than thirty days from the time of the filing of such application and thereupon the township clerk shall cause notice in writing to be served upon the owner of each tract of land across which any such levee, ditch or drain, is proposed to be located, as shown by the transfer books in the office of the county auditor, and also upon the person in actual occupancy of any such lands, of the pendency and prayer of such application, [and] the time and place set for hearing on the same before the township trustees, which notice, as to residents of the county and railroad companies, shall be served not less than ten days before the time set for such hearing, in the manner that original notices are required to be served. In case any such owner is a nonresident of the county, such notice as to him shall be posted in three public places within the township where his land is situated at least fifteen days before the time set for such hearing, one of which places shall be upon the land of which he is the owner. Such notices may be served upon a railroad company by serving the same upon its nearest station agent. If at the hearing it should appear that any person entitled to notice, as provided herein, has not been served with notice as herein provided, the township trustees may postpone such hearing and fix a new time for the same and notice of such new day of hearing may be served on such omitted persons in the manner and for the same length of time provided herein, and by fixing such new day for hearing and by adjournment of the proceedings to such time, the trustees shall not be held to have lost jurisdiction of the subject matter of such proceeding nor of any persons previously served with notice. Any person or corporation claiming damages as compensation for or on account of the construction of any such improvement, shall file a claim in writing therefor with the township clerk at least two days before the day fixed for hearing on the application and a failure to file such claim at the time specified shall be deemed to be a waiver of the right to claim or recover such damage. The term 'lands' as used in this and the next section shall include right of way and other real estate of a railroad company." [33 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 96, §§ 1, 6; 20 G. A., ch. 188, §§ 1, 6.]

SEC. 1956. Hearing—action of trustees. Section nineteen hundred fifty-six of the code is hereby repealed and the following substituted therefor:

"At the time set for hearing on any such application, the trustees, if they are satisfied that the provisions of the preceding section have been complied with, shall proceed to hear and determine the sufficiency of the application as to form and substance, which application may be amended both as to form and substance before final action thereon. They shall also determine the merits of the application, all objections thereto and all claims filed for damages that may be occasioned by the location and construction of the proposed drainage improvement, and, if deemed necessary, the trustees may view the premises. The trustees may adjourn the proceedings from day to day, but no adjournment shall be for a longer period than ten days. When the time for final action shall have arrived, the township trustees shall, if they find that the levee, ditch or drain petitioned for will be beneficial for sanitary, agricultural or mining purposes, locate the same and fix the points of entrance and exit on such land or property, the course of the same through each tract of land, the size, character and depth thereof, when and in what manner the same shall be constructed, how kept in repair, what connections may be made therewith, what compensation, if any, shall be made to the owners of such land or property for damages by reason of the construction of any such improvements, and any other question arising in connection therewith. The trustees shall reduce their findings, decision and determination to writing, which shall be filed with the clerk of such township, who shall record it in his book of records, together with the application and all other papers filed in connection therewith, and he shall cause the findings and decision of the trustees to be recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county in which such land is situated, and said decision shall be final unless appealed from as provided in the next section." [33 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.] [22 G. A., ch. 96, §§ 2, 3; 20 G. A., ch. 188, §§ 2, 3.]

SEC. 1959. Costs and damages paid—railroad land. The applicant shall pay the costs of the trustees and clerk and for the serving of notices for hearing, the fees of witnesses summoned by the trustees on said hearing, and the recording of the finding of said trustees by the county recorder. He shall pay all damages awarded, before entering on the construction of the drain through the land of another. If, after the decision of the trustees locating said drain, the party applying therefor shall pay to the party through whose land said drain is to be constructed the damages awarded to said party, or shall pay the same to the trustees for his use, he may proceed to construct said drain in accordance with the decision of the trustees, and the taking of an appeal shall not affect his right to proceed with the construction of the same. If any such ditch or drain shall be located through or across the right of way or other land of a railroad company, the trustees shall determine the cost of constructing the same across and through such property and the railroad company shall have the privilege of constructing such improvement through its property in accordance with the specifications made by the trustees and recover the cost thereof as fixed by the trustees. But such railroad company before it may exercise such privilege shall file its election to that effect with the township clerk within five days after the decision of the trustees is filed, and in case such election is filed the applicant shall within ten days thereafter pay to the township clerk for the use of the railroad company, the cost of constructing the drainage improvement through its property, in addition to the amount that may be allowed as damages, and when the railroad company shall have completed the improvement through its property in accordance with such specifications it shall be entitled to demand and receive from the township clerk such cost. If the railroad company shall fail to so construct the improvement for a period of thirty days after filing its election so to do, the applicant may proceed to do so and may have returned to him the cost thereof deposited with the township clerk. [33 G. A., ch. 117, § 3.] [22 G. A., ch. 96, § 9; 20 G. A., ch. 188, § 9.]

DRAINAGE OF COAL LANDS OR LEAD MINES.

SEC. 1968. Compensation. Any person or corporation who by machinery, such as engines or pumps, or by making drains or adit levels, or in any other way, shall rid any lead or zinc-bearing mineral lands or lead or zinc mines of water, thereby enabling the miners and the owners of mineral interest in said lands to make them productive and available for mining purposes, shall receive one tenth of all the lead and zinc mineral taken from said lands as compensation for said drainage. [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 1; C. '73, § 1229.]

SEC. 1969. Setting apart. The owners of the mineral interest in said lands, and persons mining upon and taking lead or zinc mineral from said lands, shall jointly and severally set apart and deliver from time to time, when demanded, the said one-tenth part of the mineral taken from said lands to the person or corporation entitled thereto, and the owners of the mineral interest therein shall allow the party entitled to such compensation and his agents at all times to descend into and examine said mines, and to enter any building occupied for mining purposes upon any of said lands, and examine and weigh the mineral taken therefrom. [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 2; C. '73, § 1230.]

SEC. 1971. Notice to smelters. The person or corporation entitled to said drainage compensation may at any time leave with any smelter of lead or zinc mineral in this state a written notice, stating that said person or corporation claims of the persons named in said notice the amount to which said person or corporation may be entitled, which notice shall have the effect of notices in garnishment, and also authorize the said smelter to retain, for the use of the person entitled thereto, the one-tenth part of the mineral taken from said land and received from the person named in said notice. The payment or delivery of the one-tenth part of the mineral taken from any of said lands by any one of the persons whose duty it is hereby made to pay or deliver the same, shall discharge the parties liable jointly with him, except liability to contribute among themselves. [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 3; C. '73, § 1232.]

SEC. 1972. Right of way. Any person or corporation engaged as aforesaid in draining such mines and lead or zinc-bearing mineral lands, when he or they shall find it necessary for the prosecution of their work, shall have the right of way upon, over or under the surface of such mineral lands, and the contiguous and neighboring lands, for the purpose of conveying the water from said mineral lands by troughs, pipes, ditches, water races or tunnels, and the right to construct and use shafts and air holes in and upon the same, doing as little injury as possible in making said improvements. [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 4; C. '73, § 1233.]

UNITED STATES LEVEES.

SEC. 1976. Proceedings. That section nineteen hundred seventy-six of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Proceedings as contemplated by the preceding section may be begun by filing with the county auditor a petition asking the board of supervisors to form a levee or a drainage district, for any one or all of the purposes specified in section nineteen hundred seventy-five hereof. Said petition shall be signed by one or more owners of lands lying within the limits of such proposed district; the general limits of said district shall be given therein, and a plat of the proposed district shall be filed with said petition. There shall be filed with said petition a bond, with sureties approved by the county auditor, conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses incurred, in case the board of supervisors shall refuse to grant the prayer or the petition." [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 2.]

SEC. 1977. Commission—appointment of—qualifications—report. At their next regular session held after the filing of such petition, or at a special session called for the purpose, the board of supervisors shall, if the foregoing provisions have been complied with, appoint a commission of three disinterested freeholders of the county, one of whom shall be, if practicable, a competent civil engineer or surveyor. This commission shall, after being duly sworn, proceed to examine the lands within such proposed district, lay out the work required, and make an estimate of the probable cost of the same. They shall make a full report to the board of supervisors, and may recommend that such district be formed as prayed, or that it be enlarged or diminished, as in their judgment will best subserve the general good and promote the general welfare. [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 3.]

SEC. 1979. Hearing. That section nineteen hundred seventy-nine of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"At the time named, or at such other time to which the board of supervisors may adjourn the matter, they shall proceed with the hearing, at which any interested parties may appear, either in person or by counsel, and be heard, and may file written pleadings. The board shall hear and determine the matter, and if they determine against the formation of such district, they shall dismiss the proceedings at the cost of the petitioners. If they shall decide to form such levee or drainage district, they shall proceed to fix the boundaries of the same, and their finding shall be entered upon their records. The finding and the report of the commissioners shall be competent evidence at the hearing above provided for, but shall not be conclusive." [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 3; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 5.]

SEC. 1981. Work carried on—land condemned. After entering the order as provided in section nineteen hundred seventy-nine hereof, unless further proceedings are suspended as provided in section nineteen hundred eighty hereof, the board of supervisors shall proceed and adopt such plan or system as in their judgment is proper and best under all the circumstances, and cause the work to be done, causing such ditches to be dug, channels opened, embankments erected, fills made, and such other work done as in their judgment will most efficiently promote the general good and the public welfare. They shall have power, in the manner now provided by law, chapter four of title ten of this code, to condemn any land which they deem it necessary to take or use in the prosecution of such work, including any that may be required to aid the United States in completing such levee, the costs and expenses of which shall be paid out of the drainage fund pertaining to such district as hereinafter provided. In the doing of this work the board of supervisors shall have power to employ such help and assistance as they deem necessary, and to fix compensation for the same. All the work to be done which shall involve an estimated expenditure of five hundred dollars or over shall be let by contract, after advertising the same, once each week, for three weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county, to the lowest bidder who shall furnish satisfactory security for the performance of the contract: provided, however, that the board of supervisors may reject all bids, and do the work themselves whenever in their judgment, the work can be so done at a substantial saving. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 17; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 7.]

SEC. 1982. Costs assessed. That section nineteen hundred eighty-two of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"If said district is established, the entire costs and expenses incurred under this chapter shall be assessed against and collected from the lands lying within such district, by the levy of a rate upon the assessable value of the land within such district, sufficient to raise the required sum, provided that where the proposed improvement is for drainage only the board may, in their discretion, classify the land within such district and graduate the tax thereon, as provided in chapter sixty-eight of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly. When the board decides to make such classification, they shall proceed in the manner set forth in section twelve of said chapter sixty-eight, and the commissioners shall each be allowed three dollars per day." [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 4; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 8.]

SEC. 1984. Annual installments. That section nineteen hundred eighty-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"If the proposed improvement is the maintenance of a levee, the amount collected in any one year shall not exceed[1] fifty mills on the dollar of the assessment valuation, which said assessment shall be levied at a level rate on the assessable value of the said lands, easements and railroads within the district. If the amount necessary to pay for the improvement, under section nineteen hundred eighty-two hereof, exceed said sum, it shall be levied and collected in annual installments. For all other improvements, the board shall levy a rate sufficient to pay for the same, and may, at their discretion, make the same payable in annual installments of ten or less." [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 83, § 5; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 10.]

[1]The amendment by 32 G. A. inserted the words "shall not exceed fifty" in lieu of "two and one-half," thereby using the words "shall not exceed" twice. The repeated words have been dropped. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1985. Bonds. If the entire amount required under this chapter cannot be collected in one year, the board of supervisors of such county shall have the power to issue drainage bonds for all which cannot thus be provided for in one year, in substantially the manner and form as provided in section nineteen hundred fifty-three, chapter two, title ten of this code, such issue to be determined upon by them before the levy, and an amount sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds shall be estimated and included in the assessment. If the amount of money required for the improvement under the provisions of this chapter cannot be collected in one year, or if the board of supervisors in their discretion deem it advisable that the taxes shall be paid in installments, or in case it becomes necessary to expend an extraordinary sum for the preservation of the levee in case of an emergency, the board of supervisors of the county shall have the power to issue bonds for all which cannot thus be provided for in one year in [1]substantially the manner and form provided in section twenty-eight of chapter sixty-eight of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly and acts amendatory thereto, and all acts and proceedings in relation thereto shall conform therewith, except that bonds issued in anticipation of taxes for the maintenance of a levee shall not exceed five years' taxes and shall be due in six years from the date of issue. [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 3; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 11.]

SEC. 1985-a. Claim for repairs. Whenever a levee or drainage district is organized, the board or boards of supervisors, as the case may be, shall have power and authority to audit and allow claims for money and labor expended in the preservation of said levee prior to and since the organization of the said district, all sums so allowed to be payable from the levee or drainage fund. The said board or boards shall also have full power and authority to make an equitable adjustment of and credit for any taxes paid for repairing the levee where the same has been heretofore levied and collected in any manner by said board or boards of supervisors under any prior proceedings. [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 4.]

SEC. 1986. Cost of maintaining. The board of supervisors shall have the right and power to keep up and maintain any such levee, ditches, drains, or system of drainage, either in whole or in part, established under the preceding sections of this chapter, as may in their judgment be required, and to levy the expense thereof upon the real estate within such drainage district as herein provided for, and collect and expend the same; provided, however, that no such work which shall impose a tax exceeding fifty mills on the dollar on the assessable value of the lands within the district shall be authorized by them, unless the same is first petitioned for and authorized in substantially the manner required by this chapter for the inauguration of new work. [34 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 83, § 6; 26 G. A., ch. 46, § 12.]

SEC. 1988. Apportionment of cost.

The statute plainly contemplates that after a principal improvement has been made, other improvements subordinate thereto may be established in districts which may include portions of the district created for the principal improvement. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

SEC. 1989. Through two or more counties. That section nineteen hundred eighty-nine of the code, 1897, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The boards of supervisors of any two or more adjoining counties where a government levee has been constructed, or partly constructed by the government and partly by other means, may carry on the work provided for in this chapter concurrently, provided that they first agree upon a plan or system and a basis of an equitable apportionment of the work to be done and the share of the cost and expense of the same to be borne by each of said counties; or when said levee has been built and separate districts have been heretofore formed the boards of supervisors may unite said districts into one district, but before said districts can be so united each board of supervisors, acting separately, must by resolution vote in favor of such consolidation and upon said separate votes being favorable the said levee districts shall be consolidated into one district and thereafter the same shall be governed in all respects as now provided, except all action governing the new district shall be by the boards of supervisors acting jointly." [34 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 46, § 15.]

CHAPTER 2-A.

OF LEVEES, DITCHES, DRAINS AND WATERCOURSES.

SECTION 1989-a1. Board of supervisors to establish drainage district. The board of supervisors of any county shall have jurisdiction, power and authority at any regular, special or adjourned session, to establish a drainage district or districts, and to locate and establish levees, and cause to be constructed as hereinafter provided any levee, ditch, drain or watercourse, or to straighten, widen, deepen or change any natural watercourse, in such county, whenever the same will be of public utility or conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, and the drainage of surface waters from agricultural lands shall be considered a public benefit and conducive to the public health, convenience, utility and welfare. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 1.]

By the term "agricultural lands" which is used in the provision for special assessments for public ditches, the legislature meant to designate generally those various and well-known bodies of land lying within the state which, owing to location and surface conditions, habitually collect and retain surface waters to such an extent as to presently unfit them for agricultural purposes. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

A drainage district is not a corporation and cannot be defendant in an appeal with reference to the allowance of damages. Clary v. Woodbury County, 135–488, 113 N. W. 330.

A board of supervisors has no authority to allow damages to land in another county where the district is entirely within the limits of the county in which it is established. Ibid.

The drainage of a district is distinctively a local enterprise undertaken solely for the benefit of the particular neighborhood, the expense of which is to be borne by lands within a prescribed area, and the county is not liable for the mistakes or neglect of officers to whom the organization, management and taxation of the district are intrusted. Canal Const. Co. v. Woodbury County, 146–526, 121 N. W. 556.

The provisions of this statute and those amendatory thereof are independent of previous statutory amendments on the same subject. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

The action of the board in determining the propriety of forming a district for the purpose of draining surface water from agricultural lands is largely legislative in character. Ibid.

The proceedings to establish a drainage district may be instituted under this section instead of under code § 1940. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

It is evident that the provisions of this section and those following do not relate solely to submerged land or those entirely unfit for use. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

SEC. 1989-a2. Proceedings — bond — survey. Whenever a petition signed by one or more of the landowners whose lands will be affected by, or assessed for the expenses of, the proposed improvement, shall be filed in the office of the county auditor setting forth that any body or district of land in the county, described by metes and bounds, or otherwise, so as to convey an[1] intelligible description of such lands, is subject to overflow or too wet for cultivation, and that the public benefit or utility, or the public health, convenience or[2] welfare will be promoted by draining, ditching, tiling or leveeing the same, or by changing a natural watercourse, and setting forth therein the starting point, route and terminus and lateral branches, if necessary, of the proposed improvement, and there is filed therewith a bond, in amount and with sureties to be approved by the county auditor and conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings in case the supervisors do not grant the prayer of said petition, the board shall at its first session thereafter, regular, special or adjourned, appoint a disinterested and competent engineer, who shall give bond to the county for the use and benefit of the proposed levee or drainage district, if it be established, in amount and with sureties to be approved by the county auditor and conditioned for the faithful and competent performance of his work, and place a copy of the petition in his hands and he shall proceed to examine the lands described in said petition and any other lands which would be benefited by said improvement or necessary in the carrying out of said improvement, and survey and locate such drain or drains, ditch or ditches, improvement or improvements, as may be practicable and feasible to carry out the purposes of the petition and which will be of public benefit or utility or conducive to public health, convenience or welfare. He shall make return of his proceedings to the county auditor, which returns shall set forth the starting point, the route, the terminus or termini of the said ditch or ditches, drain or drains, or other improvements, together with a plat and profile showing the ditches, drains or other improvements, and the course and length of the drain or drains through each tract of land, together with the number of acres appropriated from said tract for construction of said improvement, and the elevation of all lakes, ponds and deep depressions in said district, and the boundary of the proposed district, so as to include therein all lands that will be benefited by the proposed improvements, and the description of each tract of land therein and names of the owners thereof as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, together with the probable cost, and such other facts and recommendations as he may deem material. The board of supervisors may at any time recall the appointment of any engineer made under the provisions of this act, if deemed advisable to do so, and select another to act in his place. That the ditches or drains herein provided for shall so far as practicable be surveyed and located along the general course of the natural streams and watercourses or in the general course of natural drainage of the lands of said district, but where it will be more economical or practicable such ditch or drain need not follow the course of such natural streams, watercourses, or course of natural drainage, but may straighten, shorten or change the course of any natural stream, watercourse or general course of drainage. Whenever any such ditch or drain crosses any railroad right of way it shall when practicable be located at the place of the natural waterway across such right of way unless said railroad company shall have provided another place in the construction of the roadbed for the flow of the water; and if located at the place provided by the railroad company, such company shall be estopped from afterwards objecting to such location on the ground that it is not at the place of the natural waterway. [34 G. A., ch. 88, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 87, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 118, §§ 1, 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 1; 32 G. A., ch. 94, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 85, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 84, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 2.]

[1"any," 2"of" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

Petition: The only purpose of the petition is to bring to the board of supervisors the alleged desirability of the establishment of the drainage ditch and if the location, boundaries and starting point are described with sufficient definiteness to enable the board to determine whether the contemplated improvement is desirable and proper, it is sufficient. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146-564, 123 N. W. 1059.

Under this statute, the petition need not be signed by the majority of the landowners residing in the district. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

A petition is sufficient which describes the body or district of land to be included with sufficient definiteness to enable an engineer to ascertain precisely the land intended. While the board may require a petition to be made more specific, yet if the description does point out the land to be included, the subsequent proceedings thereon will not be without jurisdiction. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138, N. W. 841.

Further as to the petition, see notes to code § 1940 in this supplement.

Bond: The petitioners are not liable for the expenses of the proceedings preliminary to the action of the board and therefore may properly be sureties on the bond. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059; In re Hay Drainage Dist. No. 23, 146–280, 125 N. W. 225.

While the board may be justified in refusing to act if a bond is not filed, yet if the board does in fact act under the petition, any defect in the bond cannot be urged as a ground for questioning the validity of the act subsequently taken. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

Engineer's report: Insufficiency of the report of the engineer may be a good ground for setting aside on appeal the action of the board in establishing the drainage district. In re Nishnabotna River Imp. Dist., 145–130, 123 N. W. 769.

The return of the engineer should be made to the auditor and if the board has before it such return substantially as contemplated by the statute the requirements of the statute have sufficiently been complied with to sustain subsequent action In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

If the report is filed before notice is given the fact that it is subsquently withdrawn from the files will not defeat the jurisdiction of the board in further proceedings. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the engineer appointed personally do all the work necessary in making the surveys and plans. He may, to some extent at least, depend upon the reports and actions of others who assist. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

Where the boundaries of the proposed district are fixed by a description of the land to be embraced therein, it is not necessary that a plat showing the entire boundaries and all the tracts of land included shall accompany such report. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

Under the present statutory provisions, it is not necessary that the preliminary report of the engineer show the elevations of the different tracts. Ibid.

It is not necessary that in a preliminary report as to a general improvement, such as the shortening of a watercourse, the report of the engineer shall show what lateral drains will be necessary to drain the ponds and depressions. Ibid.

It is for the board to determine for itself whether the cost of construction and amount of damages awarded make the improvement a greater burden than should be borne by land affected by the improvement, and therefore the report of the engineer as to the size of the ditch required is not controlling on the board as to the fixing of larger dimensions. Ibid.

Under the record in a particular case, held that the engineer was not so far interested by reason of his previously expressed views in favor of a particular project, that he was incompetent to serve. Wallis v. Board of Supervisors, 152–458, 132 N. W. 850.

The law contemplates that the supervisors shall have the advantage of the best judgment of a competent engineer and this can be given only upon a thorough, actual examination and study of the proposed district in connection with such measurements as may be essential to an exact knowledge of the topography of the territory to be drained. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

The manner in which the engineer discharges his duty, however, if improper, constitutes only an irregularity in the proceedings and not a jurisdictional defect. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the engineer make return in his preliminary report of the levels or elevations of each tract or show how it would be affected by the improvement. Ibid.

The design of the requirement as to an engineer's report is to render certain the several tracts included in the district and furnish the names of the owners for the purpose of serving notice on them. Kelley v. Drainage Dist, 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

If the report of the engineer is sufficiently definite to enable the landowners to understand the system proposed and the injury which may result to any particular tract and the board of supervisors to intelligently pass on the feasibility of the enterprise, this is all that is required Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W 711.

By exacting the elevations of all lakes, ponds and deep depressions to be given, it was not intended that levels be taken of all depressions to be drained but only of those depressions of such depth and area necessary to be taken into account in estimating the character and extent of the drainage system to be adopted. Ibid.

Action of the board: After the report by the engineer the commissioners subsequently appointed under § 1989-a12 are to inspect and classify the lands benefited by the construction of the drainage district, and to justify the inclusion of lands within such district, it should appear that they will derive some benefit, either in drainage directly or in being afforded an outlet for excess of waters to be drained, or in accessibility, or the like. If any land will not be so benefited then it should not be included or assessed. Zinser v. Board of Supervisors, 137–660, 114 N. W. 51.

Mere elevation of land above the proposed ditch is not the sole test in determining whether the land included in the district will be benefited. Lands may be included which do not abut on the ditch so that the tile drains on such land may be directly connected with the ditch. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

The fact that the particular land has been included in a drainage district, although it might at less expense have been drained by the establishment of a smaller district, will not render erroneous the action of the board in thus including it within the larger district. Ibid.

The inclusion of land within a proposed district is not a ground of complaint which may be urged on appeal of owners of such land from the act of the board in establishing such district. The remedy of such owners is to present their complaint, if any, to the assessment on their land when made. Ibid.

Even during the pendency of an appeal from the action of the board, it may amend its records so as to show that the essential steps were in fact taken, although not fully made of record. Ibid.

The statute authorizes the construction of a drainage ditch which tends to shorten the natural course of a watercourse. In re County Drains, 151–47, 130 N. W. 152.

This section, as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 2, permits the diversion of a natural watercourse for the purpose of a public drain. Ibid.

It is not required that the finding of the board as to the necessity of the establishment of the district include also a finding that the district is subject to overflow and too wet for cultivation and that the improvement will be conducive to the public welfare. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

This section has reference to lands of the same character as those described in code § 1952. It is not limited to lands which are submerged or entirely unfit for use. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

The boundary of the district is sufficiently indicated by specifying all the forty-acre tracts of land to be included therein. Ibid.

It is not necessarily erroneous to include in the district lands but slightly benefited. The extent of the benefit is to be taken into account in determining the assessment. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

SEC. 1989-a3. Notice of hearing—approval of plan—fees and mileage for serving notice. That the law as it appears in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a three of the supplement to the code, 1907, be repealed and the following substituted in lieu therefor:

"Upon the filing of the return of the engineer, if the same recommends the establishment of the levee or drainage district, the board of supervisors shall then examine the return of the engineer, and if the plan seems to be expedient and meets with the approval of the board of supervisors, they shall direct the auditor to cause a notice to be given, as hereinafter provided; but if it does not appear to be expedient and is not approved, the board of supervisors are hereby authorized to direct said engineer, or another engineer, selected by them, to report another plan. At any time prior to the establishment of the district, the plan may be amended, and as amended shall be conclusive, unless appealed from as provided in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a six of this chapter. When the plan, if any, shall have been finally adopted by the board of supervisors, they shall order the auditor immediately thereafter to cause notice to be given to the owner of each tract of land or lot within the proposed levee or drainage district, as shown by the transfer books of the auditor's office, including railway companies having right of way in the proposed district, and to each lien holder or incumbrancer of any land through which or abutting upon which the proposed improvement extends as shown by the county records, and also to all other persons whom it may concern, including actual occupants of the land in the proposed district (without naming individuals)., of the pendency and prayer of said petition, the favorable report thereon by the engineer and that such report may be amended before final action, the day set for hearing on said petition and report before the board of supervisors, and that all claims for damages must be filed in the auditor's office not less than five days before the day set for hearing upon the petition, which notice shall be served, except as otherwise hereinafter provided, by publication thereof once each week for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county, the last of which publications shall be not less than twenty days prior to the day set for hearing upon the petition, proof of such service to be made by affidavit of the publisher and filed with the county auditor; provided further, however, that when any resident, nonresident, corporation, railroad company, or other persons owning or having an interest in any land or property affected by the proposed improvement shall have filed with the county auditor of the county wherein such improvement is proposed, an instrument in writing, duly signed, and designating the name and post-office address of his or its agent upon whom service of notice in said matter shall be made, the county auditor shall, at least twenty days prior to the date set for hearing upon said petition, mail a true copy of said notice in a registered letter addressed to the person or agent so designated in said written instrument, as aforesaid. Proof of such service of said notice shall be made by affidavit of said county auditor and filed by him in said matter in his said office on or before the date of the hearing upon the petition, and such service shall be in lieu of all other service of notice to such residents, nonresidents, corporations, railroad companies or other persons. No notice need be served by the auditor upon any of the persons hereinbefore described who shall file with said auditor a statement in writing signed by him entering his appearance at said hearing and waiving any additional notice. If, at the date set for the hearing before the board of supervisors, it should appear that any person entitled to notice, as provided in this section, has not been served with notice for the time, or in the manner, as herein provided, the board may postpone said hearing and set another time for the same, and notice of such day of hearing may be served on such omitted parties in the manner and for the same length of time as provided for in this section; and by fixing such new day for hearing and by adjourning said proceedings to said time, the board of supervisors shall not be held to have lost jurisdiction of the subject matter of said proceeding, nor of any parties so previously served with notice. Personal service upon any of the parties above described in the manner and for the time required for service of original notices shall be sufficient and make publication of notice as to such persons unnecessary." [34 G. A., ch. 87, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 85, § 2; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 3.]

Action of board: A survey and approval of an enginer appointed for that purpose is essential for the authority of the board of supervisors to proceed to the establishment of the district, and upon appeal the court may pass upon the order appealed from, affirming or reversing it, and make such order for the direction of the board as may be proper in giving effect to the court's judgment or decree, but cannot undertake to establish a district varying or differing in a substantial degree from that which was under consideration in the order appealed from. Hartshorn v. Wright County Dist. Ct., 142–72, 120 N. W. 479.

If the report is on file when notice is given a subsequent withdrawal of the report from the files will not defeat the jurisdiction of the board. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

The board in the exercise of its original jurisdiction cannot establish a district other than as planned and recommended by a competent engineer. Shaw v. Nelson, 150–559, 129 N. W. 827.

While the plan, as reported or approved by the engineer, may be amended, as provided in 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 3, the statute contemplates the establishment of the district according to an amended plan as recommended and not otherwise than as so recommended. Ibid.

As between two conflicting plans substantially suitable to accomplish the purpose intended, a court on appeal will sustain the action of the engineer and board in adopting the plan which they found to be preferable. Schumaker v. Edington, 152–596, 132 N. W. 966.

It is sufficient as to the boundaries of the district that the report show the tracts of land included. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

The question whether the cost of the improvement is out of proportion to the benefits rests primarily in the discretion of the board. Ibid.

The objection that the benefits to land proposed to be included in a drainage district will be slight is to be taken into account in the assessment of benefits, but it will not constitute a conclusive reason why such land shall not be included. Wallis v. Board of Supervisors, 152–458, 132 N. W. 850.

Rights of landowners in an existing improvement may be subordinated to the making of another improvement. Ibid.

Notice: The proprietor of a newspaper in which publication of notice is made is not disqualified from making affidavit of publication by being interested in the proceeding. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

The provisions of § 3, ch. 118, 33 G. A., substituted for this section, authorizing notice by publication, are not unconstitutional even as to actual residents of the county. Johnson v. Board of Supervisors. 148–539, 126 N. W. 153.

The fact that no notice is required to be given to mortgagees of land within the proposed drainage district does not render the statute unconstitutional. Fitchpatrick v. Botheras, 150–376, 130 N. W. 163.

The fact that notice is given without express direction of the board of supervisors to that effect and before the board has actually examined the return of the engineer, does not render subsequent proceedings thereunder invalid. In re County Drains, 151–47, 130 N. W. 152; Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

The voluntary appearance of the property owner by agent in the proceedings cures any irregularity of notice. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 3, held that error in giving a middle name in the name of the owner of property specified in such notice was immaterial. Collins v. Board of Supervisors, 138 N. W. 1095.

Objections: All objections not made before the board of supervisors are deemed to have been waived. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

Objections to the assessment of the drainage district should be presented to the board and if overruled should be urged on appeal. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a4. Claims for damages. Any person claiming damages as compensation for or on account of the construction of such improvement shall file such claim in the office of the county auditor at least five days prior to the day on which the petition has been set for hearing, and on failure to file such claim at the time specified, shall be held to have waived his rights thereto; provided, however, that it shall not be necessary to file claims covering value of land appropriated for right of way for construction of proposed improvements. [34 G. A., ch. 88, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 4.]

The owner of land in another county than that in which the ditch is established cannot make a claim for damages. Clary v. Woodbury County, 135–488, 113 N. W. 330.

A drainage ditch constructed in accordance with statutory provisions does not constitute an incumbrance within the ordinary warranty against incumbrances in a subsequent conveyance of such premises, even though no claim for damages has been made or allowed to the grantor. Stuhr v. Butterfield, 151–736, 130 N. W. 897.

Under this section as amended by 34 G. A., ch. 88, notice held sufficient as to one property owner, although a middle name was erroneously given, and further held that the notice being sufficient as to such owner, he could not subsequently interpose a claim for damages not presented before the board of supervisors. Collins v. Board of Supervisors, 138 N. W. 1095.

SEC. 1989-a5. Location—appraisers. The board of supervisors at the session set for the hearing on said petition, which session may be regular, special or adjourned, shall thereupon proceed to hear and determine the sufficiency of the petition in form and substance, which petition may be amended as to form and substance at any time before final action thereon, and, if deemed necessary, the board may view the premises and if they shall find that such levee or drainage districts would not be for the public benefit or utility, nor conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, they shall dismiss the proceedings; but, if they shall find such improvement conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare or to the public benefit or utility and no claim shall have been filed for damages as provided in section four[1] hereof, they may if deemed advisable locate and establish the same in accordance with the recommendations of the engineer, or they may refuse to establish the same as they may deem best; and at said hearing, the board may order the said engineer or a new engineer appointed by them if deemed advisable, to make further examination and report to said board as to said proposed improvement, and if they determine that further examination and report shall be made, or if any claims have been filed for damages, as provided in section four[1] hereof, then the board of supervisors shall proceed no further than to determine the necessity of the levee or drainage districts and further proceedings shall be continued to an adjourned, regular or special session, the date of which shall be fixed at the time of the adjournment; and the county auditor shall appoint three appraisers to assess such damages, one of whom shall be the engineer theretofore appointed as above provided, or, in case of his absence or inability to act, some other engineer, and two freeholders of the county who shall not be interested in, nor related to any party interested in the proposed improvement. [34 G. A., ch. 88, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 118, §§ 4, 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 3; 31 G. A., ch. 84, § 2; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 5.]

[The citation, 34 G. A., ch. 88, § 3, appearing above, is an amendment made after that portion of the paragraph which said ch. 88, 34 G. A., sought to amend had been stricken out by § 5, ch. 118, 33 G. A. EDITOR.]

The authority to pass upon the necessity of the improvement, determine its public character and fix the boundaries of the district is legislative rather than judicial in its nature and is intrusted, primarily at least, to the board of supervisors. The court should on appeal be very reluctant to interfere with the action of the board and should set aside its order on the ground that the ditch is not a work of public character or its cost a greater burden than the land benefited should bear only where the evidence is so clear as to render that conclusion unavoidable. Temple v. Hamilton County, 134–706, 112 N. W. 174.

A discretion is vested in the supervisors to determine whether the establishment of a drainage district would be for the public benefit or utility or conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, and if damages are claimed, whether the cost of construction and amount of damages awarded is a greater burden than should be properly borne by the property benefited and if the supervisors determine that it is not advisable to establish the drainage district and make the proposed improvements their action is not subject to review by the courts. Denny v. Des Moines County, 143–466, 121 N. W. 1066.

But the functions of the board in determining the sufficiency of the petition is judicial and its action in this respect is subject to review. Ibid.

The wisdom and practicability of the proposed drainage scheme cannot constitutionally be left to the determination of a court whose jurisdiction is provided for by the constitution. Ibid.

The petition may be amended before the final action of the board and its action may be properly made to conform to the change in plans thus proposed. In re Hay Drainage Dist. No. 23, 146–280, 125 N. W. 225.

The including of property within the boundaries of a district has been held to be an exercise of legislative power which the courts cannot review. However this may be, lands which will be to some extent benefited may be included, although the benefit is different from that which will accrue to other lands included. Such difference may be taken into account in determining the amount of the assessment. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

Where the board on final hearing approves the return of the engineer and orders the establishment of the district, that obviates any objection on the ground that such return was not examined by the board before notice was given. In re County Drains, 151–47, 130 N. W. 152.

The necessity of bridges and approaches may be taken into account in estimating the damages to the property through which the ditch is constructed. Anderson v. Board of Supervisors, 154–497, 133 N. W. 653.

The value of the land taken for the ditch may properly be considered. Ibid.

It is not required that any record be made that the land referred to in the proceeding is subject to overflow or too wet for cultivation. It is sufficient that the board determine that the petition complies with the statutory requirement in form and substance, that the improvement is necessary and will be conducive to the public health, convenience and welfare or to the public benefit or utility and that it is advisable. The establishment of the district necessarily determines that the land is of the character essential to authorize the improvement. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

A slight modification in the drain as recommended by the engineer may be made by the board. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

SEC. 1989-a6. Assessment of damages — appeal. The appraisers appointed to assess damages shall proceed to view the premises and determine and fix the amount of damages to which each claimant is entitled, and shall place a valuation upon all acreage taken for right of way as shown by plat of engineer and shall, at least five days before the date fixed by the board to hear and determine the same, file with the county auditor reports in writing showing the amount of damages sustained by each claimant. Should the report not be filed in time or should any good cause for delay exist the board may postpone the time of final action on the subject and, if necessary, the auditor may appoint other appraisers. When the time for final action shall have arrived, and after the filing of the report of the appraisers, said board shall consider the amount of damages awarded in their final determination in regard to establishing such levee or drainage district, and if in their opinion the cost of construction and the amount of damages awarded is not excessive and a greater burden than should be properly borne by the land benefited by the improvement, they shall locate and establish the same, and they shall thereupon appoint said engineer, or if deemed advisable, may appoint a new engineer as a commissioner, who shall make a permanent survey of said ditch as so located, showing the levels and elevations of each forty-acre tract of land and shall file a report of the same with the county auditor together with a plat and profile thereof and shall thereupon proceed to determine the amount of damages sustained by each claimant, and may hear evidence in respect thereto and may increase or diminish the amount awarded in respect thereto, and any party aggrieved may appeal from the finding of the board in establishing or refusing to establish the improvement district or from its finding in the allowance of damages to the district court by filing notice with the county auditor at any time within twenty days after such finding, at the same time filing a bond with the county auditor, approved by him, and conditioned to pay all costs and expenses of the appeal unless the finding of the district court shall be more favorable to the appellant or appellants than the finding of the board, which appeal shall be tried in the district court as an ordinary proceeding, except that when the appeal is from the order of the board in establishing or refusing to establish the levee or drainage district, it shall be tried in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term; the finding of the court in relation to the establishment of or refusal to establish the levee or drainage district shall be certified by the clerk of the board of supervisors, who shall enter an order in harmony therewith and proceed accordingly. If the appeal is from the amount of damages allowed, the amount ascertained in the district court shall be entered of record, but no judgment shall be rendered therefor. The amount thus ascertained shall be certified by the clerk of said court to the board of supervisors, who shall thereafter proceed as if such amount had been by it allowed the claimant as damages. If the appeal is from the action of the board in establishing or refusing to establish said drainage district, the court shall enter such order as may be proper in the premises, and the clerk of said court shall certify the same to the board of supervisors, who shall proceed thereafter in said matter in accordance with the order of the court. How the costs shall be distributed among the litigants and against whom the same shall be taxed shall rest in the discretion of the trial court. [34 G. A., ch. 88, § 4; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 3; 31 G. A., ch. 85, § 4; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 6.]

Damages awarded: The question of damages is to be finally determined at the time the ditch is located and established and an appeal may be taken within ten days thereafter. Clary v. Woodbury County, 135–488, 113 N. W. 330.

A property owner who has failed to file his claim within the time required by statute cannot have equitable relief. Collins v. Board of Supervisors, 138 N. W. 1095.

The damages are to be estimated as of the date of the construction of the ditch and not of the date of the establishment of the district. Gish v. Castner etc. Drainage Dist., 136–155, 113 N. W. 757.

Whether the point of time selected for the comparison of values in determining the damages should be that of the establishment of the district or that of the construction of the ditch, is a question not ordinarily material in the practical result to be obtained. In re Joint Drainage Dist., Ryg v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 939.

Engineer's permanent survey: The report of the engineer is not controlling as to the size of the ditch which the board may order. If, in its discretion, it deems a larger and more expensive ditch justified by the benefit to be derived, it may in that respect depart from the engineer's report. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

It is not necessary in the preliminary report to show levels and elevations of each tract. Ibid.

If the data contained in the report in connection with the plat and profile gives the information exacted by statute and such report is accepted by the board as sufficiently specific, the court will not interfere with the action of the board on appeal. A survey made by the engineer is in a sense preliminary and intended for use in ascertaining the feasibility of the improvement. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

Board's final action: The fact that the appraisers do not follow the statute in making their classifications and assessments does not defeat the jurisdiction of the board. The provisions as to their method of procedure are directory only. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

Where the record does not show the procedure of the appraisers in this respect the defect may be cured by amendment of the return. Ibid.

The determination of the relation of benefits to expenses may be considered by the district court in determining the validity of the action of the board in including certain lands within the proposed district. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

Where the record of the proceedings of the board showed a continuous session from day to day, attested at the end of the record of the proceedings for each day with the words "board adjourned," held that such record did not indicate an adjournment sine die prior to the session at which the improvement was ordered, it being apparent that these words were used only to indicate an intervening recess of the board. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

Appeal: The county cannot appeal from the action of the district court in setting aside an order of the board of supervisors for the reassessment of the expenses of constructing the ditch. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130–412, 106 N. W. 950.

The contractor who is entitled to be paid out of the funds collected by the assessment may appeal, as he has an interest in such fund. Ibid.

This section expressly authorizes an appeal from the refusal of the board of supervisors to establish a drainage district. Zinser v. Board of Supervisors, 137–660, 114 N. W. 51.

Notice: Where the proceedings involve a joint action of the boards of two or more counties notice of appeal must be served on the county auditor of each county. In re Appeal of Head, 141–651, 118 N. W. 884.

A concession that notice of appeal was served upon the county auditor is sufficient to show that notice was filed with him. Canal Const. Co. v. Woodbury County, 146–526, 121 N. W. 556.

Acceptance of service of notice of appeal by the county auditor and the filing of a notice with him is sufficient. Shaw v. Nelson, 150–559, 129 N. W. 827.

Filing a notice of appeal with the county auditor is sufficient without the service of notice upon the petitioners for the drainage improvement. Henderson v. Board of Supervisors, 153–283 and 470, 133 N. W. 671.

Bond: If the bond on appeal be defective only, the approval thereof by the auditor cannot be collaterally attacked. Shaw v. Nelson, 150–559, 129 N. W. 827.

Court's action: The court on appeal from the action of the board of supervisors in establishing a district in accordance with the recommendations of the engineer has no authority to establish a district substantially different from that recommended in the report and approved by the board. Hartshorn v. Wright County Dist. Ct., 142–72, 120 N. W. 479.

This section does not authorize the introduction of additional testimony in the district court for the purpose of determining whether or not there is some district which should be established although not petitioned for or surveyed. The action of the court should be limited to some district which is under consideration by the board and it could make no order which the board could not have made on the same record. Ibid.

A court should on appeal be reluctant to interfere with and set aside a finding on an order of the board establishing the drainage district. In re Nishnabotna River Imp. Co., 145–130, 123 N. W. 769.

If before the final action of the court on appeal the record of the board is so corrected as to show that the essential steps have been taken the proceedings of the board will be sustained. In re Drainage Dist. No. 3, 146–564, 123 N. W. 1059.

The court may exercise a reasonable discretion regarding the admission of evidence as to the damages, and held in a particular case that the admission of evidence was not erroneous. Larson v. Webster County, 150–344, 130 N. W. 165.

On the trial of the appeal, the district court acts simply as an appellate tribunal. It has no original jurisdiction, and parties not residents of the county cannot intervene, although they may be affected by the establishment of the ditch. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

The appellants must be confined to the objections presented by them before the board of supervisors. They cannot, in the district court, present new grounds for defeating the proposed improvement. Ibid.

Costs: The provision as to payment of all costs and expenses of the appeal does not contemplate the taxation of attorney's fees against the defeated appellant. In re County Drains, 151–47, 130 N. W. 152.

SEC. 1989-a7. Damages—by whom paid—division into districts—engineer. The amount of damages finally determined by the board in favor of any claimant or claimants shall be required to be paid in the first instance by the parties benefited by the said levee or drainage district, or secured to be paid by sufficient bond to be fixed and approved by the county auditor, and after such damages shall have been paid or secured as aforesaid, the board shall divide said improvement into suitable sections, numbering the same consecutively from the source or beginning of the improvement downward towards its outlet and prescribe the time within which the improvement shall be completed and appoint a competent engineer to have charge of the work of construction thereof, who shall be required before entering upon the work to give a bond to the county for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district to be approved by the auditor in such sum as the board may fix, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 7.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 7.]

The provision that the damages are to be secured to be paid upon such terms and conditions as the county auditor may deem just and proper does not render the statute unconstitutional. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

The damages are to be fixed by the testimony as of the date of the construction of the ditch and not of the date of the establishment of the district, and the evidence may therefore relate to the diminution of value which would result from the construction of the ditch at the date of the trial, the district not yet having been finally established. Gish v. Castner etc. Drainage Dist., 136–155, 113 N. W. 757.

The engineer is not authorized to modify the plans adopted by the board without its approval so as to entitle the contractor to additional compensation. Monaghan v. Vanatta, 144–119, 122 N. W. 610.

SEC. 1989-a8. Letting work—notice—bids. The board shall cause notice to be given by publication, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county wherein such improvement is located and such additional publication elsewhere as they may direct, of the time and place of letting the work of construction of said improvement, and in such notice they shall specify the approximate amount of work to be done in each section and the time fixed for the commencement and completion thereof; and when the estimated cost of said improvement exceeds fifteen thousand dollars the board shall make additional publication for two consecutive weeks in some contracting journal of general circulation, of such notice as they may prescribe, and they shall award contract or contracts for each section of the work to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders therefor, bids to be submitted, received and acted upon separately as to the main drain and each of the laterals, exercising their own discretion as to letting such work as to the main drain as a whole, or as to each lateral as a whole, or by sections as to both main drain and laterals, and reserving the right to reject any and all bids and readvertise the letting of the work. Each person bidding for such work shall deposit in cash or certified check a sum equal to ten per centum of the amount of the bid, not in any event however to exceed ten thousand dollars, said deposit to be returned to him if his bid is not successful, and if successful to be retained as a guarantee only of his good faith in entering on said contract. The successful bidder shall be required to execute a bond with sufficient sureties in favor of the county for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district in an amount equal to twenty-five per centum of the estimated cost of the work so let, or he may deposit such amount in cash with the auditor as security for the performance of his contract and upon the execution of such bond, or the making of such deposit, the deposit originally made with his bid shall be returned to him. [34 G. A., ch. 89, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 87, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 8.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 5; 31 G. A., ch. 9, § 30; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 8.]

In the absence of any special provision of the contract the contractor constructing a ditch does not assume any liability for the care of the water naturally accumulating by reason of such construction. Fitzgibbon v. Western Dred. Co., 141–328, 117 N. W. 878.

Where notice of letting the contract is given, a defect therein must be pointed out in objections filed with the board; otherwise it will not be considered. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

The contract may stipulate as to who shall stand the loss or damage to the ditch arising from unforeseen or unavoidable causes before final acceptance. Littell v. Webster County, 152–206, 132 N. W. 426.

Where the board notifies the contractor to show cause why his contract should not be declared at an end and the work relet, and after hearing forfeits the contract, it may relet the work without further notice to the contractor. Webster County v. Nelson, 154–660, 135 N. W. 390.

After such forfeiture, the county may properly refuse to make further payment under the contract for work done after such forfeiture. Ibid.

The board may elect to forfeit the contract and relet the work instead of relying upon the provisions of the contract for liquidated damages. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a9. Monthly estimates — payment. The engineer in charge of the construction shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section and upon filing the same with the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of such contractor, or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, for eighty per centum of the value of the work done according to the estimate, and when said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge thereof and so certified by him to the board and approved by it, the auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of said contractor upon the levee or drainage fund, or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, for the balance due. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 9.]

No authority is conferred on the board of supervisors to pass on the estimates preceding the final report of the engineer. It is only when the work is completed that the board is authorized to approve or disapprove it and if approved to authorize the auditor to issue warrants for the balance due. Monaghan v. Vanatta, 144–119, 122 N. W. 610.

The board has the right to assume that the work is being done in accordance with the contract and is not estopped from insisting on final settlement that work for which compensation is claimed was not authorized by the contract. Ibid.

The contractors cannot be deprived of their rights through the failure of the engineer to act, nor should they be defeated by his fraud or through his collusion. Littell v. Webster County, 152–206, 132 N. W. 426.

Where there is no provision for acceptance mile by mile or otherwise in portions as the work proceeds, intermediate estimates of the engineer are not binding in the final settlement. Ibid.

Where fraud and collusion are not made to appear, the contractor cannot maintain an action of mandamus to compel the engineer and board of supervisors to approve the performance of his contract and levy an assessment therefor. Federal Contracting Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 153–362, 133 N. W. 765.

In such an action of mandamus, the contractor is not entitled to recover on quantum meruit. Ibid.

But held that although the refusal of a mandamus by the lower court was proper, the supreme court might in its discretion remand the case for further proceedings in order to enable the appellant, by amending his pleadings and securing trial by appropriate methods, to determine whether he had a right under his contract or upon quantum meruit. Ibid.

It is only when the engineer has certified that the improvement has been completed to his satisfaction that the board of supervisors is called upon to approve or disapprove, and if it approve, the county auditor is authorized to issue warrants for the final payment of twenty per cent. of the contract. Barz v. Sawyer, 141 N. W. 319.

SEC. 1989-a10. Failure to perform work—penalty—completion of work. If any person to whom any portion of said work shall have been let shall fail to perform the same according to the terms specified in his contract, then the cash deposited by him shall be forfeited to the county, or recovery may be had in an action on the bond by the county, for the benefit of the levee or drainage district, for the damages sustained and the work may be relet by the board in the manner hereinbefore provided; or the board may cause the uncompleted work to be done, paying therefor out of the balance of the contract price not theretofore paid over to the contractor, and if the expenses of so completing the work exceed such balance of the contract price, then the board of supervisors may cause an action to be brought in the name of the county in behalf of said district, or in the name of the board of supervisors and of the said district, for the recovery of the amount of such excess from the contractor and his bondsmen. [35 G. A., ch. 156, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 9.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 10.]

SEC. 1989-a11. Changes in dimensions—notice—objections—appeal. That the law as it appears in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a eleven of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

If, after the establishment of said district, and before the completion of the drainage improvements therein, it shall become apparent that a levee or drain should be enlarged, deepened or otherwise changed or that a change or alteration in the location should be made for the better service thereof, said board may by resolution authorize such change or changes in the said improvement as the engineer shall recommend; provided that, whenever any change or changes are made either under this section or under any other section of this chapter, all persons whose land shall be taken or whose assessments shall be increased thereby shall first have been given like notices as provided in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a three of this chapter, and shall have like opportunity to file claims for damages, as provided for in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a four of this chapter, or file objection to such assessment as provided in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a twelve of this chapter, as the case may be, and like opportunity to appeal from the action of the board as provided in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a six of this chapter, or section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a fourteen of this chapter, as the case may be. [34 G. A., ch. 87, § 4; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 10.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 4; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 11.]

A contractor cannot recover for extra work except as authorized by modification of the contract made in accordance with these provisions. Monaghan v. Vanatta, 144–119, 122 N. W. 610.

SEC. 1989-a12. Assessment of costs and damages—apportionment. When the levee or drainage district or other improvement herein provided for shall have been located and established as provided for in this act, or when it shall be necessary to cause the same to be repaired, enlarged, reopened or cleared from any obstruction therein, unless such repairs, reopening or clearing of obstructions can be paid for as hereinafter provided, the board shall appoint three commissioners, one of whom shall be a competent civil engineer and two of whom shall be resident freeholders of the state not living within the levee or drainage district and not interested therein or in a like question, nor related to any party whose land is affected thereby; and they shall within twenty days after such appointment begin to personally inspect and classify all the lands benefited by the location and construction of such levee or drainage district, or the repairing or reopening of the same, in tracts of forty acres or less according to the legal or recognized subdivisions in a graduated scale of benefits, to be numbered according to the benefit to be received by the proposed improvement; and they shall make an equitable apportionment of the costs, expenses, costs of construction, fees and damages assessed for the construction of any such improvement, or the repairing or reopening of the same, and make report thereof in writing to the board of supervisors. In making the said estimate the lands receiving the greatest benefit shall be marked on a scale of one hundred and those benefited in a less degree shall be marked with such percentage of one hundred as the benefit received bears in proportion thereto. This classification when finally established shall remain as a basis for all future assessments connected with the objects of said levee or drainage district, unless the board, for good cause, shall authorize a revision thereof. In the report of the appraisers so appointed, they shall specify each tract of land by proper description and the ownership thereof as the same appears on the transfer books in the auditor's office, and the auditor shall cause notice to be served upon each person whose name appears as owner and also upon the person or persons in actual occupancy of any such land in the time and manner provided for the establishment of a levee or drainage district, which notice shall state the amount of special assessments apportioned to such owner, upon each tract or lot, the day set for hearing the same before the board of supervisors and that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor on or before noon of the day set for such hearing. When the day set for hearing shall have arrived, the board of supervisors shall proceed to hear and determine all objections made and filed to said report and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment made in said report or in any part thereof as may appear to the board to be just and equitable; but in no case shall it be competent to show that the lands assessed would not be benefited by the improvement, and when such hearing shall have been had the board shall levy such apportionment so fixed by it upon the lands within such levee or drainage district; and all installments of the tax shall be levied at that time, and shall bear interest at six per cent. per annum from that date; provided that if the owner of any parcel of land, lot or premises against which any such levy shall have been made and certified, shall, within twenty days from the date of such assessment, promise and agree in writing filed in the office of the county auditor that in consideration of his having the right to pay his assessments in installments he will not make any objection of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment of benefits or levy of such taxes upon or against his property, but will pay said assessment, then said taxes levied against said land, lot or premises of such owner shall be payable as follows: one third of the amount of said assessment at the time of filing the above agreement; one third within ten days after the engineer in charge of said drainage improvement shall file a certificate in the office of the county auditor that said improvement is one half completed, and the remaining one third within ten days after the said improvement shall have been accepted by the board of supervisors, and if said installments are not paid as above provided, the failure to pay any installment shall cause the whole sum to become due and payable at once with interest at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of filing said agreement, and such assessments shall thereupon be collected as other taxes on real estate, which rate may be later reduced to correspond with the rate specified in the certificates or bonds, as the case may be. Provided, however, that no deferred installment of the amount assessed, as between vendor and vendee, mortgagor and mortgagee, shall become a lien upon the property against which it is assessed and levied, until the thirty-first day of December of the year next preceding that in which it is due and payable; [1]and in case the board of supervisors shall increase said apportionment, service of notice thereof shall be made upon the owner of such tract or lot of land as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, in the same manner in which original notices are required to be served, where such owner is a resident of the county, and in case such owner is a nonresident of the county such notice as to him shall be served on the actual occupant of the tract or lot of land; provided that in case any railroad company shall be affected by such increased apportionment said notice shall be served upon the station agent of the said railroad company nearest the proposed improvement. If the first assessment made by the board of supervisors for the original cost or for repairs of any improvement as provided in this act is insufficient, the board may make an additional assessment and levy in the same ratio as the first for either purpose. [34 G. A., ch. 87, § 5; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 11.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 12.]

[1]An amendement by 34 G. A. is inserted here which could not be placed as directed by that legislature, because an amendment by 33 G. A. had been inserted where 34 G. A. attempted to insert. EDITOR.]

In general: The statutory provision for notice in proceedings for the assessment of property on account of the benefits derived from the construction of public ditches is not open to the constitutional objection that it authorizes the levying of special assessments upon property in an amount greater than the benefit received, as provision is made therein for the determination of such benefits as a limitation upon the assessment. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

One who has had proper notice of a proceeding for the assessment of costs and damages is bound to take notice of the subsequent proceedings in that respect contemplated by the statute. The adjournment of the board to a subsequent date for further consideration does not deprive it of jurisdiction. Gray v. Anderson, 140–359, 118 N. W. 526.

If the board for any reason never acquired jurisdiction or right to act in the premises and this clearly appears in the record, the court on appeal may, on motion, at any time during the course of or even before the trial, dismiss the proceedings and cancel the assessment; but before such summary proceedings can be sustained, it must appear that the board was without jurisdiction. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

The fact that the statute does not provide for notice to mortgagees of the assessment apportioned to a tract of land covered by a mortgage does not render it unconstitutional. Fitchpatrick v. Botheras, 150–376, 130 N. W. 163.

By including lands within the district when established, the board necessarily finds that such lands will be benefited by the improvement, and a question as to whether there is any benefit to the land cannot be reconsidered in the levying of the assessment. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

The landowner cannot complain of the assessment because it is in excess of actual benefit to his land. The improved sanitary conditions and reclamation of highways giving access to the land and other matters of incidental benefit may be considered. Jackson v. Board of Supervisors, 140 N. W. 849.

A reasonably fair apportionment of the expense to the land benefited is all that can be expected and prospective benefits may be considered. Ibid.

The supreme court will not as a rule on an appeal interfere with the action of the board of supervisors confirmed by the district court as to the assessment of benefits. Ibid.

The fact that the assessment is to be made by a board, all the members of which are not elected by the voters whose lands are included within the district, does not render the assessment unconstitutional as resulting in taxation without representation. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

Classification of land: The statutory provisions as to classification do not apply to railroad property and highways within the district. Railroad lands are to be assessed in accordance with provisions of code § 1989-a18 and highways under the following sections. In re Johnson Drainage Dist., 141–380, 118 N. W. 380.

The statute fixes no time for the report of commissioners and their action within the specified time is not essential to the jurisdiction of the board to act. In re Farley Drainage Dist., 140–339, 118 N. W. 432.

There is no time fixed for the filing of an appraiser's report and a failure to file within twenty days or any other time given for filing does not deprive the board of jurisdiction. In re Farley Drainage Dist., 144–476, 123 N. W. 241.

The law requires equality of assessment so far as the same may be obtained; but it does not undertake to specify how such equality shall be determined. The main purpose of the law is to secure an equitable apportionment of the actual cost of the improvement after considering the location of the several tracts of land, their condition and needs, and the relative benefit that each tract will receive from the improvement as a whole. The commissioners may make any classification in addition to that specifically required by the statute which will aid them in finally accomplishing an equitable apportionment. If they find that such an apportionment requires that certain lands should be taxed for a certain part of the cost of the improvement in addition to a just proportion of the general cost, there is nothing in the law to prevent such action. Fardal Drainage Dist. v. Board of Supervisors, 157– —, 138 N. W. 443.

Slight variance from the method prescribed for the classification and assessment of lands, unless prejudice results therefrom, are immaterial. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

Objections: Where specific objections are made these objections alone will be considered on an appeal. Chicago M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Monona County, 144–171, 122 N. W. 820.

The inclusion of property within the boundaries of the district is an exercise of legislative power which the courts cannot review, but the courts may, when their jurisdiction is properly invoked, review the assessment or apportionment of the costs of the improvement. Ibid.

A landowner cannot be heard to complain of the method used by the appraisers in apportioning the costs and expenses to the various tracts unless objection on that ground has been interposed at the hearing before the board. In re Appeal of Jenison, 145–215, 123 N. W. 979.

The case in the district court and upon appeal to the supreme court must be tried upon the objections filed before the board and these must be reasonably specific. In re Lightner. Lightner v. Board of Supervisors, 156–398, 136 N. W. 761, 137 N. W. 462.

But the objectors need not set forth the evidence upon which they intend to rely in order to challenge each and every assessment made. If the real grounds of the objections are fairly apparent, this is sufficient. Ibid.

Where the trial court has adopted the assessments recommended by expert engineers, the only real question on appeal is whether or not the trial court erred in adopting such recommendation instead of confirming the assessments made by the board upon the report of its commissioners appointed for that purpose. And on the appeal to the supreme court there is a presumption in favor of the finding of the district court. Ibid.

On the entry of a decree in the supreme court reducing some of the assessments appealed from, a new time was fixed within which payment of the new assessments should be made and the case was remanded to the lower court for that purpose. Ibid.

Assessment: If the assessment is equitably apportioned and does not exceed the benefits conferred there is no constitutional objection to an assessment as to the amount. In re Farley Drainage Dist., 140–339, 118 N. W. 432.

A large discretion is reposed in the board of supervisors in estimating the amount necessary to be raised by taxation; but where without necessity of increasing the total assessment the board increases the assessments of particular landowners without any corresponding reduction or readjustment as to other owners, such abuse of power will be remedied by appropriate order. In re Castner Drainage Dist., 142–716, 119 N. W. 980.

It is erroneous to assess lands for improvements on the theory that the farther the land is from the outlet of the ditch the greater are the benefits received by it. Ibid. In re Appeal of Jenison, 145–215, 123 N. W. 979.

It is impossible to review the action of the board in apportionment of the expense to the various tracts of land included in the district if the record does not show the character of the land. In re Appeal of Jenison, 145–215, 123 N. W. 979.

The fact that land included within a drainage district may subsequently be included within another district for the purpose of effecting subsidiary drainage does not render its assessment in the main district invalid. In re Hay Drainage Dist. No. 23, 146–280, 125 N. W. 225.

In the absence of a showing that the commissioners or board have acted in bad faith, the presumption is in favor of their action and the property owner complaining of an assessment has the burden of showing that it is erroneous. Guttormsen v. Drainage Dist., 153–126, 133 N. W. 326.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the complaining property owner was properly assessed for substantial benefits received. Schropfer v. Hamilton County, 147–63, 125 N. W. 992.

In a particular case held that the assessment against the plaintiff was higher in proportion to the benefits than that against other property owners and that the reduction of such assessment on appeal was justified. Pollock v. Board of Supervisors, 157– —, 138 N. W. 415.

The cost of construction of the ditch or drain through particular land is not to be regarded as fixing either a maximum or minimum basis for assessment. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a13. Levy and collection of tax—warrants. In estimating the benefits as to the lands not traversed by said improvement they shall not consider what benefits such lands will receive after some other improvements shall have been constructed, but only the benefits which will be received by reason of the construction of the improvement in question as it affords an outlet for the drainage of such lands, or brings an outlet nearer to said lands or relieves the same from overflow. Said tax shall be levied upon the lands of the owners so benefited in the ratio aforesaid and collected in the same manner as other taxes for county purposes, and the funds so collected shall be kept as a separate fund and shall be paid out only for purposes properly connected with such improvement on the order of the board of supervisors; provided, however, that warrants drawn upon the funds of any drainage district shall be accepted by the county treasurer in payment of drainage assessments levied upon any lands in that district owned by the person to whom the said warrants were issued, and when the amount of the warrant exceeds the amount of the assessment, the treasurer shall cancel the said warrant, and give the holder thereof a certificate for the amount of the overplus, upon the presentation of which certificate to the county auditor he shall file it, and issue a new warrant for the amount of the overplus, and charge the treasurer therewith; and such certificate is transferable by delivery, and will entitle the holder of the new warrant, made payable to his order, and bearing the original number, preceded by the words, "Issued as unpaid balance due on warrant number....." [35 G. A., ch. 153, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 12.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 13.]

There is no statutory obstacle to the assessment of land for improvement in a subsidiary district after it has already been assessed for the principal improvement. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

Where a new drain relieves a main drain in the system as previously constructed by furnishing an additional outlet, it is of some benefit to all the lands tributary thereto. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a14. Appeal—drainage record—counsel—establishment rescinded—new hearing. An appeal may be taken to the district court from the order of the board fixing the assessment of benefits upon the lands in the same manner and time as herein provided for appeals from the assessment of damages, and such appeal may be taken from the order of the board of supervisors increasing the apportionment within twenty days after the completed service of notice of such increased apportionment in the same manner as herein provided for appeals in assessment for damages, whether objection was made to the report of the commissioner or not. The appeal herein provided for shall be tried in the district court as an action in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term; and when several appeals are taken and pending in the district court by land owners of the same drainage district whose lands have been assessed by the board, the court may, in its discretion, order the consolidation of such cases, and try the same as one cause of action. When any appeal is taken from any order of the board made in any drainage proceeding coming before it for action, it shall be the duty of the board to employ counsel to represent the interests of the drainage district affected by said appeal on the trial thereof in the appellate courts and the expense thereof shall be paid out of the drainage fund of such district. In all actions or appeals involving or affecting the drainage district, the board of supervisors shall be a proper party for the purpose of representing the drainage district, and all interested parties therein, other than the adversary parties thereto, and the employment of counsel by the board, as authorized by this chapter, shall be for the purpose of protecting all the rights of the drainage district and interested parties therein other than the adversary parties thereto; in all appeals or actions adversary to the district, the appellant or complaining party shall be entitled the plaintiff, and the board of supervisors and drainage district it represents, the defendants, and in all appeals or actions for or in behalf of the district, the board of supervisors and the drainage district it represents may sue as and be entitled the plaintiffs. When an appeal authorized by this chapter is taken, the county auditor shall forthwith make a transcript of the notice of appeal and appeal bond and transmit the same to the clerk of the district court, and the clerk shall docket the same upon payment by the appellant of the docket fee; and on or before the first day of the next succeeding term of the district court, the appellant shall file a petition setting forth the order or decision of the board appealed from and his claims and objections relating thereto; a failure to comply with these requirements shall be deemed a waiver of the appeal and in such case the court shall dismiss the same; it shall not be necessary for the appellee to file answer to the petition unless some affirmative defense is made thereto, but he may do so. The board shall provide a book to be known as the drainage record and the county auditor shall keep a full and complete record therein of all proceedings of the board relating to drainage districts. In any case where the decree is or has been entered setting aside the establishment of a drainage district for errors in the proceedings taken, and such decree becomes final, the board of supervisors shall rescind its order establishing the drainage district, assessing benefits, and levying the tax based thereon, and shall also cancel any contract made for construction work or material, and may refund any or all assessments paid in. The board shall fix a new date for hearing, giving notice thereof by publication for two weeks and at the time so fixed, enter its order as to the establishment of the proposed district, and thereafter proceed as by law provided. [35 G. A., ch. 156, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 87, § 6; 33 G. A., ch. 119, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 13.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 2; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 14.]

Failure to record the joint action of two or more boards in each county will not affect the jurisdiction of the court on appeal. In re Appeal of Head, 141–651, 118 N. W. 884.

If the proceedings are simply erroneous as distinguished from illegal, the property owner's remedy is to file objections before the board, and in the event of an adverse ruling to appeal to the district court as in equity proceedings. On appeal the property owner is confined to objections made by him before the board. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

Service of notice and filing of bond as provided in code supp. § 1989-a6 are sufficient under this section to effect an appeal to the district court. An appeal from action of the district court to the supreme court may be effected by service of notice in the usual way on counsel representing the district in the district court. In re Appeal of Jenison, 145–215, 123 N. W. 979.

On appeal the complaining party must be limited to the objections made before the board of supervisors. In re Hay Drainage Dist. No. 23, 146–280, 125 N. W. 225.

The action of the trial court in sustaining the board of supervisors will not be reversed for merely technical objections to the proceedings. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

The remedy by appeal is exclusive and objections to the assessment are to be prosecuted in that manner and not by an injunction in equity to restrain its enforcement. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

Before the amendment of this section by 34 G. A., ch. 87, § 6, it authorized a review of the action of the board of supervisors in raising an assessment as approved by the commissioners. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

Where the petition in an appeal proceeding such as contemplated by this section had been filed before the statute went into effect, held that a failure to comply with the requirements of the amendment (33 G. A., ch. 118, § 13) relating to the filing of petition should not be regarded as a waiver of such appeal. Arnold v. Board of Supervisors, 151–155, 130 N. W. 816.

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 118, the provision as to filing a petition relates to the procedure and a failure to comply with such provision does not deprive the court of jurisdiction. The provision as to filing a petition is remedial and should be so construed. If the petition is filed within such time as to enable the court to properly proceed with the trial of the case, a motion to dismiss on the ground that the petition is not filed by the time required by statute should be overruled. Elwood v. Board of Supervisors, 156–407, 136 N. W. 709.

A property owner who has voluntarily paid the amount of his assessment even under protest cannot subsequently maintain an appeal from such assessment. Collins v. Board of Supervisors, 138 N. W. 1095.

The assessment as made by the board of supervisors and confirmed in the district court on appeal is presumed to be correct and equitable and the burden is upon the property owner appealing to the supreme court to show that it was made on an incorrect basis or was inequitable. It is not enough for him to show that it was in excess of the actual benefits to his land. Ibid.

Where a stranger to the record of the board of supervisors served a notice of appeal from the assessment against specific land and asserted therein her ownership of such land, held that she could not, in the district court, have a review of the assessment against other land. Bradford v. Board of Supervisors, 140 N. W. 804.

The appeal is triable in the supreme court as an equitable proceeding. Ibid.

The findings of fact by the board of supervisors are conclusive and their action can be reviewed by the courts only on questions of law and upon the question of the amount of benefit assessed, which, by the express terms of the statute, is reviewable on appeal. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, (C. C.) 170 Fed. 665.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the assessments were not invalid as levied in excess of the benefits conferred or inequitable and unjust. In re Farley Drainage Dist., Pabbeldt v. Hamilton Co., 144–476, 123 N. W. 241.

Attorney's fees are not a part of the taxable costs on the appeal. In re County Drains, 151–47, 130 N. W. 152.

SEC. 1989-a15. Obstructions—nuisance—abatement. That the law as it appears in section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a fifteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any ditch, drain or watercourse, which is now or hereafter may be constructed so as to prevent the surface and overflow water from the adjacent lands from entering the same, is hereby declared as a nuisance and may be abated as such. Any person, firm or corporation diverting, obstructing, impeding or filling up, without legal authority, any ditch, drain or watercourse, or breaking down any levee established, constructed or maintained under any provision of law, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly." [35 G. A., ch. 154, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 15.]

SEC. 1989-a16. Subsequent proceedings—use of former surveys. In any proceedings heretofore or hereafter had for the establishment of a ditch, drain, levee or the changing of a natural watercourse, or the establishment of a levee or drainage district where an engineer has been appointed and has made a complete survey, return and plat thereof and for any reason the improvement has been abandoned and the proceedings dismissed and afterwards proceedings are instituted for the establishment of a levee or drainage district, or the changing [of] a natural watercourse, for the benefit or reclamation of the same territory surveyed in said former proceedings, or part thereof, or the same with territory additional thereto, the engineer shall use the return, levels, surveys, plat and profile made in said former proceedings, or so much thereof, as may be applicable; and in case the cost of said returns, levels, surveys, plat and profile made in said former proceedings have been paid for by the former petitioners or their bondsmen, then a reasonable amount shall be allowed said petitioners or bondsmen for the use of the same. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 14.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 16.]

Where proceedings with reference to a public ditch were abandoned at the instance of the contractor on account of doubt as to the constitutionality of the statute under which they were instituted, held that he was not entitled to do the work under new proceedings involving the construction of a ditch of a different character. Brown v. Board of Supervisors, 129–533, 105 N. W. 1019.

Where the report of the engineer intelligibly indicates the relation of the new drain with that previously constructed and furnishes the board with the necessary data to enable it to proceed with the performance of its duties, it is sufficient. Kelley v. Drainage District, 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a17. Relevy. Where proceedings have been had for the establishment of a ditch, drain, levee, change of natural watercourse or the establishment of a drainage district under the law as heretofore existing and such improvement has been established and constructed and taxes levied upon the land benefited thereby, or upon any portion thereof for the cost of such improvement, and where the levy so made cannot for any reason be enforced, the board shall proceed as to all lands benefited by said improvement in the same manner as if the appraisement and apportionment of benefits had never been made; and they shall proceed in the manner hereinbefore provided, using as a basis the entire cost of such improvement, and in taxing up said benefits account shall be taken of the amount of tax, if any, that has been paid by those benefited and credit therefor shall be given accordingly. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 17.]

Special assessments are charged to the land because of the benefits attached thereto and are to be collected in the same way as ordinary taxes are collected. Howard v. Emmet County, 140–527, 118 N. W. 882.

The county is not liable for neglect of its officers to enforce the assessment made in consequence of a relevy. Canal Const. Co. v. Woodbury County, 146–526, 121 N. W. 556.

SEC. 1989-a18. Establishment and construction across railroad right of way. Whenever the board of supervisors shall have established any levee, or drainage district, or change of any natural watercourse and the levee, ditch, drain or watercourse as surveyed and located crosses the right of way of any railroad company, the county auditor shall immediately cause to be served upon such railroad company, in the manner provided for the service of original notices, a notice in writing stating the nature of the improvement to be constructed, the place where it will cross the right of way of such company, and the full requirements for its complete construction across such right of way as shown by the plans, specifications, plat and profile of the engineer appointed by the board, and directing such company to construct such improvement according to said plans and specifications at the place designated, across its right of way, and to build and construct or rebuild and reconstruct the necessary culvert or bridge where any ditch, drain or watercourse crosses its right of way, so as not to obstruct, impede or interfere with the free flow of the water therein, within thirty days from the time of the service of such notice upon it; and upon receiving said notice it shall be the duty of such railroad company to construct the improvement across its right of way according to the plans and specifications furnished in said notice and to build and construct or rebuild and reconstruct the necessary culvert or bridge above mentioned and complete the same within the time specified in said notice; if such railroad company shall fail, neglect or refuse to do so within the time fixed in said notice the auditor shall cause the same to be done under the supervision of the engineer in charge of the improvement and such railroad company shall be liable for the cost thereof to be collected by the county in any court having jurisdiction; and the cost of constructing the improvement across the right of way of such company, not including the cost of building and constructing or rebuilding and reconstructing any necessary culvert or bridge when such improvement is located at the place of the natural waterway or place provided by the railroad company for the flow of the water, shall be considered as an element of such company's damages by the appraisers thereof; and the cost of building and constructing or rebuilding and reconstructing any necessary culvert or bridge when such improvement is located at the place of the natural waterway or place provided by the railroad company for the flow of the water, shall be borne by such railroad company without reimbursement therefor. The commissioners to assess benefits shall fix and determine the benefits to the property of the railroad company within the levee or drainage district and make return thereof with their regular return. Such special assessment shall be a debt due personally from the railroad company, and unless the same is paid by the railroad company as special assessment, it may be collected in the name of the county in any court having jurisdiction. All other proceedings in relation to railroads shall be the same as provided for individual property owners within the drainage district. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 15.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 3; 30 G. A., ch. 68, §§ 18, 19.]

Railroad property is not included within the provisions of code supp. 1989-a12 as to classification or notice. In re Johnson Drainage Dist., 141–380, 118 N. W. 380.

These statutory provisions do not contemplate that where the construction of the improvement necessitates the building of a new railroad bridge the entire cost of construction of such bridge is necessarily recoverable by the company as damages. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Drainage Dist., 142–607, 121 N. W. 193.

The expense of building or rebuilding a culvert or bridge over the ditch as constructed is not an element of damage in determining the damages which may be assessed in favor of the railroad company in connection with its right of way. Drainage of that character is for the public use, convenience and welfare and the making of the improvement is within the police power of the state. The damages involved to the railroad company in being compelled to rebuild or enlarge its culverts and bridges is merely incidental. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 144–10, 121 N. W. 39.

The cost of extending the ditch across the right of way and not of constructing or reconstructing culverts or bridges rendered necessary is the element of damage contemplated by the statute. Ibid.

While the railroad company cannot have reviewed on appeal the action of the board in including its property within a drainage district, it may have reviewed the assessment or apportionment of the costs with reference to its property. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Monona County, 144–171, 122 N. W. 820.

The description of the railroad right of way as a part of said described forty-acre tract is sufficiently definite. Ibid.

These statutory provisions imposing their burden on railroad property are not unconstitutional, as the state has the right in the exercise of its police power to impose such expense or burden without the allowance of an equivalent by way of damages. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, (C. C.) 170 Fed. 665.

This section, enacted by way of substitution for previous sections of the statute on the same subject, is not applicable to a drainage ditch established and, in part, constructed before the change in the statute. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, (C. C. A.) 182 Fed. 291.

A railroad company is not entitled to recover the expenses of building a new bridge over a public draining ditch. Its damages on account of the establishment of the ditch will be confined to the value of the easement across its right of way. Ibid.

In a particular case held that the assessment of railroad property was not in substantial excess of the benefits derived therefrom in the way of betterment of the roadway and track and not out of proportion of the assessments of other land within the district. In re Johnson Drainage Dist., 141–380, 118 N. W. 380.

SEC. 1989-a19. Construction across highway—interest on assessments. That section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a nineteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

Whenever such levee, ditch, drain or change of any natural watercourse crosses a public highway, necessitating the removal or the building or rebuilding of any bridge or bridges, the board of supervisors shall remove, build or rebuild such bridge or bridges, paying the costs and expenses thereof from the county bridge fund. Whenever any highway within the levee or drainage district will be beneficially affected by the construction of any improvement or improvements in such district, it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed to classify and assess benefits to determine and return in their report the amount of benefit to such highway, and notice thereof shall be served upon the clerk of the township in which said highway is located, as provided in the case of an individual property owner. The township trustees or clerk of such township may file objections to such assessment in the time and manner provided in case of landowners, and the trustees shall have the same right of appeal from the finding of the board with reference to the assessment on account of the benefits to such highway. One fourth of such assessment shall be paid by the county from the county road fund, or from the county drainage fund, and three fourths by the township. Such assessment may be paid by the township from its road fund, or out of a fund created for said purpose as provided in section fifteen hundred twenty-eight of the supplement of the code, 1907. The amount finally assessed for benefits to highways shall draw interest at the same rate and from the same time as the assessment against lands. [35 G. A., ch. 157, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 24, § 5; 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 16.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 20.]

SEC. 1989-a20. Construction on or along highway. Whenever a levee or drainage district shall have been established by the board and it shall become necessary or desirable that the levee, ditch, drain or improvement should be located and constructed within the limits of any public highway, on either or both sides and along the same, it shall be so built as not materially to interfere with the public travel thereon; and the board of supervisors shall have power and authority to lay out and establish public highways along and upon any levee or embankment along any ditch or drain built under the provisions of this act, provided that when so established the same shall be worked as other highways and so as not to impair the levee, ditch or drain. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 21.]

SEC. 1989-a21. Control—repairs—cost. Whenever any levee or drainage district shall have been established and the improvement constructed as in this act provided, the same shall at all times be under the control and supervision of the board of supervisors and it shall be the duty of the board to keep the same in repair and for that purpose they may cause the same to be enlarged, reopened, deepened, widened, straightened or lengthened for a better outlet, and they may change or enlarge the same or cause all or any part thereof to be converted into a closed drain when considered for the best interests of the public rights affected thereby. The cost of such repairs or change shall be paid by the board from the drainage fund of said levee or drainage district, or by assessing and levying the cost of such change or repair upon the lands in the same proportion that the original expenses and cost of construction were levied and assessed, except where additional right of way is required or additional lands affected thereby, in either of which cases the board shall proceed as hereinbefore provided; provided, however, that if the repair is made necessary by the act or negligence of the owner of any land through which such improvement is constructed or by the act, or the negligence of his agent or employe, or if the same is filled and obstructed by the cattle, hogs or other stock of such owner, employe or agent, then the cost thereof shall be assessed and levied against the lands of such owner alone. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 22.]

Whether such enlargement of the outlet as contemplated by this section be effected by widening and deepening the existing ditch or excavating another parallel with it, or whether this be done by removing the tile and replacing it by that of larger size, or by laying another tile drain parallel with that already laid, can make no difference, for in either event the result is the enlargement of the outlet which is here authorized. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a22. Outlet for lateral drains—specifications. The owner of any land, lot or premises that have been assessed for the payment of the cost of the location and construction of any ditch, drain or watercourse as hereinbefore provided, shall have the right to use the ditch, drain or watercourse as an outlet for lateral drains from said land, lot or premises. In making connections with the drainage improvements provided for in this chapter, care must be taken to so protect the drain or drains where such connection is made as to prevent damage thereto by washing out the banks or by permitting soil or silt to be carried into the public improvement, and to this end the board of supervisors may make specifications as to the manner in which all such connections shall be made. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 17.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 23.]

SEC. 1989-a23. Subdrainage districts. If any person who owns land within the drainage district which has been assessed for benefits and which is separated from the ditch, drain or watercourse for which it has been assessed, by the land of another or others, shall desire to ditch or drain his said land across the land of such other or others into such ditch, drain or watercourse and shall be unable to agree with such other or others on the terms and conditions on which he may enter upon their lands and construct such drain or ditch, he may proceed in the manner in this section provided, and the ditch or drain which he shall construct or cause to be constructed shall be considered to be conducive to the public health, welfare, convenience and utility to promote which said drainage district was established. He may file his petition with the county auditor asking the board to establish a subdistrict within the limits of the original district for the purpose of securing more complete drainage, describing the lands to be affected thereby by metes and bounds or otherwise so as to convey an intelligible description of such lands; and the bond and all other proceedings shall be the same as herein provided for the establishment, formation and construction of original districts and improvement thereof, including the assessment of damages and the assessment of benefits and when established and constructed, it shall be and become a part of the drainage system of such drainage district and be under the control and supervision of the board of supervisors. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 24.]

Lands may be assessed for an improvement in a subdistrict although they have previously been assessed for the main improvement. Laurence v. Board of Supervisors, 151–182, 131 N. W. 8.

If the original district is created by the joint action of boards of different counties, a subdistrict thereof is under the jurisdiction of such joint board. Bird v. Board of Supervisors, 154–692, 135 N. W. 581.

For the purpose of construing the phrase "within the limits of the original district" as used in this section, that phrase must under the provisions of code supp. § 1989-a54 be construed as applicable to the territory annexed to the original district under the provisions of that section. Ibid.

It is not necessary to establish a subdistrict within the main district in order to authorize the commissioners to assess particular lands with a share of the expense of a particular portion of the improvement specially beneficial to such land in addition to their proper proportion of the expense of the general improvement. Fardal Drainage Dist. v. Board of Supervisors, 157– —, 138 N. W. 443.

SEC. 1989-a24. Enlargement of watercourse or stream. When two or more districts shall have their outlet or discharge into the same natural watercourse or stream and it shall become necessary to deepen or enlarge said natural watercourse or stream, each district shall be assessed for the cost of such work in the same ratio to such total cost as the discharge of waters of such district bears to the combined discharge of waters of the several districts emptying into said natural watercourse or stream; but no district shall be liable to contribute for any improvement or costs and expenses incurred in improving said natural watercourse or stream above the point of discharge of the waters of such district into the same. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 25.]

A district once established may be extended, parts of the land therein included in another district, natural streams may be changed, and waters collected in one district of land higher up the stream may be turned into ditches lower down, and the ditch thus used may be deepened or enlarged to meet the necessities of the case. A ditch in another district may be used as an outlet for the water accumulating on lands in the new district. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

If the owners of lands drained by the ditch into which the waters of the new district are turned are injuriously affected thereby, they have a right to have their ditch deepened, enlarged, widened or changed to meet the new situation, but they cannot present their objections by intervention in an appeal from the proceedings for the establishment of the new district. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a25. New levee or drainage districts. If any levee, drainage district or improvement heretofore established, either by legal proceedings or by private parties, or which may hereafter be established, shall prove insufficient to protect or drain all of the lands necessarily tributary thereto, the board of supervisors, upon petition therefor as for the establishment of an original levee or drainage district, shall have the power and authority to establish a new levee or drainage district covering and including such old district or improvement, together with any additional lands deemed necessary; and whenever a new district shall be established as contemplated in this section and the new improvement shall extend into or along the former improvement, the commissioners of classification and benefits shall take into consideration the value of such old improvement in the construction of the new improvement and credit the same to the parties owning the old improvement as their interests may appear. [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 6; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 26.]

Where a new and larger district is created including a district in which a drain is already in existence, the property owner cannot insist that the tile on his land belonging to the older improvement is his personal property and recover damages for its appropriation. Smittle v. Haag, 140–492, 118 N. W. 869.

Portions of an adjacent district may be included in a new district if it appears that the land so included will receive benefit from the improvement in the new district. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

The proceedings under this section are to be the same as for the establishment of an original drainage district. Ibid.

The provisions of this section do not exclude the annexation of territory to a district under code supp. § 1989-a54, after the improvement has been completed. Bird v. Board of Supervisors, 154–692, 135 N. W. 581.

This section is not limited in its application to the formation of a new district with territory additional to that of the existing district. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a26. Special assessment—how paid—improvement certificates—waivers. The special assessment for benefits made by the commissioners appointed for that purpose, as corrected and approved by the board of supervisors, shall be levied at one time by the board against the property so benefited, and when levied and certified shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer. If the owner of any parcel of land, lot or premises against which any such levy shall have been made and certified, which is embraced in any certificate provided for in this section, shall within thirty days from the date of such assessment promise and agree in writing endorsed upon such certificate, or in a separate agreement, that in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments, he will not make any objection of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment of benefits, or levy of such tax upon and against his property, but will pay said assessment with interest thereon at such rate not exceeding six per centum per annum as shall be prescribed by resolution of the board, such tax so levied against the land, lot or premises of such owner shall be payable in ten equal installments, the first of which with interest on the whole assessment shall mature and be payable on the date of such assessment, and the others with interest on the whole amount unpaid annually thereafter at the same time and in the same manner as the March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes; but where no such terms and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any land, lot or premises then the whole of said special assessment, so levied upon and against the property of such owner, shall mature at one time and be due and payable with interest from the date of such assessment, and shall be collected at the next succeeding March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes. All of such tax with interest shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after its maturity and shall bear the same interest with the same penalties as ordinary taxes. And the board may provide by resolution for the issuance of improvement certificates, payable to bearer or to the contractors who have constructed the said improvement or completed part thereof within the meaning of this act in payment or part payment therefor, each of which certificates shall state the amount of one or more assessments or part thereof made against the property designating it and the owners thereof liable to assessments for the cost of same, and said certificate may be negotiated. Such certificates shall transfer to the bearer, contractor or assigns all right and interest in and to the tax in every such assessment or part thereof described therein, and shall authorize such bearer, contractor or assignee to collect and receive every assessment embraced in said certificate, by or through any of the methods provided by law for their collection, as the same mature. Such certificates shall bear interest not to exceed six per centum per annum, payable annually, and shall be paid by the taxpayer to the county treasurer who shall receipt for the same and cause the amount paid to be applied to the payment of the certificate issued therefor. Provided, that any person shall have the right to pay the full amount of the tax so levied against his property, together with interest thereon to date of payment at any time he desires so to do, even before the maturity of any certificates issued therefor. No certificate shall be issued or negotiated for the use of the drainage district for less than par value with accrued interest up to the delivery or transfer thereof. Should the costs of such work exceed the amount of benefits assessed and certificates issued, a new apportionment and levy of tax may be made and other certificates issued in like manner. If the board of supervisors provides for the issuance of improvement certificates by the owners of lands, the township trustees may execute waivers, and there may be issued improvement certificates for such part of the assessment for benefits to highways as is to be paid by the township, such waivers and certificates to conform as nearly as may be to those executed upon the assessments against lands. [35 G. A., ch. 157, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 27.]

The provision for the privilege of payment in installments upon waiver of objections does not impose a penalty for refusal to waive objections, and it does not constitute a denial of the equal protection of the law. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

For the purposes of collecting the special assessments referred to in this section they are separated into two classes. One class embraces all assessments where the owners have entered into the prescribed contract for payment in installments and the other class includes all such assessments with reference to which no such contract has been made. As to the first class, it is provided that the tax shall be payable in installments with interest not to exceed six per cent.; while the provision as to taxes becoming delinquent on the first day of March following and bearing "the same interest with the same penalties as ordinary taxes" refers to the second class only,—that is, taxes "where no such terms and agreements in writing shall be made." Fitchpatrick v. Fowler, 157–215, 138 N. W. 392.

SEC. 1989-a27. Drainage bonds—benefits to highways included. If the board of supervisors shall determine that the estimated cost of reclamation and improvement of such district of land is greater than should be levied in a single year upon the lands benefited, instead of issuing improvement certificates as provided in the preceding section, it may fix the amount that shall be levied and collected each year and may issue drainage bonds of the county, bearing not more than six per centum annual interest and payable semiannually in the proportions and at the times when such taxes shall have been collected, and may devote the same at par, with accrued interest, to the payment of the work as it progresses or may sell the same at not less than par, with accrued interest, and devote the proceeds to such payment; and if in the sale of said bonds a premium is received, such premium shall be credited to the drainage fund, and should the cost of such work exceed the estimate, or should the proceeds of the tax when collected be insufficient to pay the principal and interest of bonds sold, a new apportionment of the tax may be made and other bonds issued and sold in like manner, to meet such excess of cost or shortage in the proceeds of tax, but in no case shall the bonds run longer than fifteen years. Any property owner may pay the full amount of the benefit assessed against his property before such bonds are issued and receive a receipt in full therefor. Such payment shall be made to the county treasurer, and it shall be the duty of the county auditor to certify to the treasurer the amount of any such assessment when requested to do so, and the treasurer shall enter the same upon the tax lists in his hands in a separate place provided therefor, and shall furnish the auditor with duplicate receipts given for all assessments so paid in full. The terms and times of payment of the bonds so issued shall be fixed by the board. Said bonds shall be issued for the benefit of the district numbered thereon and each district shall be numbered by the board of supervisors and recorded by the auditor, said record showing specifically the lands embraced in said district and upon which the tax has not been previously paid in full. In no case shall the amount of bonds exceed the benefits assessed. Each bond issued shall show expressly upon its face that it is to be paid only by a tax assessed, levied and collected on the lands within the district so designated and numbered, and for the benefit of which district such bond is issued; nor shall any tax be levied or collected for the payment of said bond or bonds, or the interest thereon, on any property outside the district so numbered, designated and benefited. When the board of supervisors shall provide for the issuance of drainage bonds, it shall determine what part, if any, of the amount assessed for the benefits to highways shall be included in such bond issue, and such part, with interest, shall be paid out of the proper funds in the same yearly proportion and at the same times as the assessments against the lands of private owners. [35 G. A., ch. 157, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 3; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 28.]

SEC. 1989-a28. Establishment when owners mutually agree. Owners of land which requires combined drainage may provide for the establishment of a drainage district or location and construction of drains, ditches and watercourses upon their own lands by mutual agreement in writing duly signed, acknowledged and filed with the county auditor; such agreement may include the location, the character of the work to be done, the adjustment of the damages, the classification of the lands to be benefited thereby, the amount of taxes or special assessments to be levied, when the same shall be levied, or so many of these or other provisions as may be agreed upon, and to such extent shall be as valid and binding as though performed in the mode and manner provided for in this act. Upon the filing of the agreement with the county auditor, the board of supervisors shall at the next session thereafter establish such drainage district, and locate the ditch, drain or watercourse provided for in said mutual agreement according to the terms thereof, and shall thereafter have full and complete jurisdiction of the parties and subject matter, and order such procedure under the provisions of this act as may be required or necessary to carry out the object, purpose and intent of such agreement and to complete and construct the desired improvement and shall retain jurisdiction of the same as fully as in other cases made and provided for in this act. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 29.]

SEC. 1989-a29. Establishment through two or more counties—voting powers of boards of supervisors equalized. When the desired levee[1] or drainage district extends into or through two or more counties and embraces land in two or more counties, the petition of one or more owners of land to be affected or benefited by such improvement shall be presented to the county auditor of each county into or through which said levee[2] or drainage district will extend, accompanied by a bond to be filed with the county auditor of each of the said counties at the time of filing such petition, conditioned as provided when the district is wholly within one county, in an amount and with sureties satisfactory to and approved by the board of supervisors. Upon the presentation of such petition and the approval of such bond, the board of supervisors of each of said counties shall appoint a commissioner, and the commissioners of the several counties thus appointed shall meet within thirty days thereafter and appoint a competent engineer, and such commissioners and engineer shall together make a survey of the entire lands embraced in the district, and shall determine what improvement or improvements in the way of levees, drains, ditches or changing of natural watercourses are necessary for the reclamation of the lands described in the said petition; the engineer shall make a plat of all of the lands of said district, showing thereon the proposed improvements, the elevations and levels of said lands, so far as he may deem necessary, and a profile of said levee, drains, ditches or changes in any natural watercourse and shall file a copy in the auditor's office of each of said counties together with a full return of said commissioners and engineer, explaining the situation, describing the lands, the improvements, what effect said improvements will have upon the lands of said district, the course and length of any levee, drain, ditch or change of any natural watercourse through each tract of land, the estimated cost of the same, the dimensions of said improvement together with the names of the owners of all lands included within said district, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, and which in their opinion will be affected or benefited thereby, together with such other facts and recommendations as to them shall seem advisable, and especially whether or not in their judgment such levee or drainage district should be established. Immediately upon the filing of such return, plat and profile, if such recommends the establishment of the levee or drainage district, each county auditor of said counties shall cause the owners of the lands, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, and also the person in actual occupancy of any lots or lands in the district and also each lien holder or incumbrancer, as shown by the county records, of any land through or abutting upon which the proposed improvement extends, to be notified of the time and place where the boards of the several counties will meet in joint session for the consideration of said petition and return. Such notice shall be the same and served in the same time and manner as provided in this act when the levee or drainage district is wholly within one county. When the boards of supervisors are of unequal number, each member of the board of the smallest number of members shall cast a full vote and each member of any larger board shall cast such fractional part of a full vote as may be determined by making the smallest number of the membership of any board the numerator and the number of the membership of any such larger board entitled to vote, the denominator of such fraction, so as to equalize the voting power of each board. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 18.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 30.]

[1,2"levy" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

Failure to record the proceedings of the joint action of the boards in each of the counties will not defeat the jurisdiction of the court on appeal from such action. In re Appeal of Head, 141–651, 118 N. W. 884.

This section as amended by acts of 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 18, clearly authorizes the members of the boards to vote separately at their joint session. Schumaker v. Edington, 152–596, 132 N. W. 966.

SEC. 1989-a30. Claims for damages—where filed. Any person claiming damages as compensation for, or on account of, the construction of such improvement shall file his claim in writing therefor in the office of the county auditor of the county in which his land is situated, at least five days prior to the time at which the petition has been set for hearing, and on failure to file such claims at the time specified shall be held to have waived his right thereto. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 31.]

SEC. 1989-a31. Hearing—appraisers. At the time set for hearing such petition the boards of the several counties shall meet at the place designated in said notice and sit jointly in considering the petition and proceed in the same manner as provided in section five[1] of this act, except that if it becomes necessary to appoint appraisers, the boards of supervisors acting jointly shall appoint one appraiser from each county, and if said levee or drainage district extends into or through only two counties then the two appraisers shall choose a third, each of whom shall have like qualifications as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county and they shall then proceed in the same manner and make the same return as provided in section six[2] of this act, except that a copy thereof shall be filed in the auditor's office of each of the several counties. After the filing of the report of such appraisers the further proceedings of the boards[3] of supervisors acting jointly shall be the same as in this act provided where the levee or drainage district is wholly within one county, so far as applicable, except as herein otherwise provided. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 32.]

[3"board" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1989-a32. Assessment of costs and damages—improvement certificates—bonds. If the boards of supervisors, acting jointly, shall establish the levee or drainage district, they shall appoint a commission, one of whom shall be selected from each county and in addition thereto a competent engineer, each of whom shall have the same qualifications as provided where the district is wholly within one county; and said commission shall within twenty days go upon and view the premises and begin the work of classifying the same as hereinbefore provided where the district is wholly within one county, and in addition thereto shall make an[1] equitable apportionment of the costs, expenses, costs of construction, fees and damages assessed for the construction of such improvement or of the repairing or reopening the same, and make report thereof as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county, except a copy of said report shall be filed with each of the several county auditors. Immediately upon the filing of such report the several county auditors, acting jointly, shall cause notice to be served of the time when and the place where the boards of supervisors will meet and consider such report, which notice shall be the same and served in the same time and manner and all proceedings thereon shall be the same as provided where the district is wholly within one county, except after the amount to be assessed and levied against the several parcels or tracts of land shall have been apportioned and finally determined, the several boards of supervisors, acting separately, and within their own counties, shall proceed to levy and collect the taxes thus apportioned in the same manner as provided where the district is wholly within one county, and they may issue improvement certificates or may sell bonds for the full amount of the benefits apportioned to such county. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 19.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 33.]

["and" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1989-a33. Letting work. If the boards of supervisors, acting jointly, shall establish such levee or drainage district, the auditors of the several counties shall immediately thereafter, acting jointly, cause notice to be given of the time and place of the meeting of the boards for letting the contract or contracts for the construction of the improvement. The notices, bond and all other proceedings in relation to letting the contract or contracts shall be the same as in this act provided where the district is wholly within one county, except that the several boards shall act jointly. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 34.]

In case of a joint drainage district bonds are to be issued by each county severally in proportion to the benefits to such county. Wood v. Hall, 138–308, 110 N. W. 270.

The county boards acting jointly or severally have no power to provide that contractors shall purchase bonds covering the preliminary expenses and rights of way. Ibid.

But mere irregularities in the contract will not render it void if otherwise enforceable. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a34. Supervising engineer—contractor—how paid. At the time of establishing the levee or drainage district the boards of supervisors shall appoint a competent engineer to have charge of the construction of the work, and they shall fix his compensation therefor, and he shall before entering upon and taking charge of said work give bond to the counties for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district, approved by the boards of supervisors in such sum as they may direct, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. The engineer in charge of the work shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section and the amount due from each county, a duplicate of which shall be filed with the auditor of each of the several counties. Upon the filing of such statement each auditor shall draw a warrant or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, in favor of the contractor for eighty per centum of the amount due from his respective county. When said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge and accepted by the boards of supervisors, the engineer shall certify such fact to the several county auditors and each county auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of the contractor, or deliver to him improvement certificates, for the balance due from his respective county. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 35.]

SEC. 1989-a35. Appeals—notice—bond. Any person or persons aggrieved shall have the right to appeal in the same time and in the same manner as provided when the district is wholly in one county, except that if the appeal is taken from the action of the boards in establishing the levee or drainage district, such appeal may be taken to the district court of either county in which the district or some part thereof is located. If said appeal is from the award of damages or assessment of benefits the appeal shall be taken to the district court of the county in which the land affected is located. Notice of appeal and bond shall be given to and filed with the county auditor in the county where the appeal is taken. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 20.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 36.]

As claims for damages are to be filed with the auditor of the county in which the land injured is situated and an appeal from allowance of such damages is to the district court of that county only, a notice of appeal served on the county auditor of such county is sufficient. Cooper v. Calhoun County, 152–252, 132 N. W. 40.

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 118, § 20, notice of appeal and appeal bond are to be filed with the county auditor in the county where the appeal is taken. Schumaker v. Edington, 152–596, 132 N. W. 966.

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 118, the district court does not lose jurisdiction on failure of the appellant to file a petition. Elwood v. Board of Supervisors, 156–407, 136 N. W. 709.

SEC. 1989-a36. District court to establish—when. Whenever the establishment of a levee or drainage district, extending into or through two or more counties, is[1] petitioned for as hereinbefore provided and one or more of such boards of supervisors neglect, fail or refuse to take action thereon, the petitioner or petitioners may cause notice in writing to be served upon the chairman of such board or boards, demanding that action be taken upon the prayer of the petition within twenty days from and after the service of such notice; and if such board or boards shall neglect, fail or refuse to take action thereon within the time named, or if such action is taken and the boards of supervisors cannot agree as to the proper determination thereof, the petitioner or petitioners may cause such proceedings to be transferred to the district court of either of the counties into or through which such proposed district, or some part thereof, extends by serving notice upon the auditors of the several counties within ten days after the expiration of the time fixed by the notice, served upon the chairman of the board or boards, or within ten days after the failure of such boards to agree. Upon such notice being given the auditors shall, acting jointly, prepare and certify to the clerk of the district court a full and complete transcript of all proceedings had in such case, on or before the first day of the next succeeding term of said court. The clerk of the district court shall thereupon docket the case and the same shall be tried as in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term, and the court shall enter judgment and decree dismissing the case or establishing such levee or drainage district and may by proper orders and writs enforce its judgment and decree. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 37.]

SEC. 1989-a37. Special sessions of boards of supervisors. Whenever the district is located in two or more counties, the boards of supervisors shall have power and authority to adjourn from time to time and meet in special session and in all cases shall have the same jurisdiction, power and authority as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county, and all proceedings shall be the same so far as applicable and not herein otherwise provided. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 38.]

SEC. 1989-a38. Cities and towns included—benefits assessed—notice—objections—appeal. The board of supervisors shall have the same power, right and authority to establish a levee or drainage district that includes the whole or any part of any incorporated town or city, including cities acting under special charter, as they have to establish districts as hereinbefore provided, and they shall have the same power, right and authority with respect to the assessment of damages and benefits within such towns or cities as they have in other cases provided for in this act, and like notice to such city or town with respect to the establishment of such district and the apportionment and assessment of damages and benefits shall be given as is required by this act to be given to owners of property damaged or benefited by the establishment or construction of such improvement. Whenever the streets, alleys, public ways or parks of any incorporated town or city, or city acting under special charter, so included within a levee or drainage district, will be beneficially affected by the construction of any improvement or improvements in such district, it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed to classify and assess benefits to determine and return in their report the amount of benefit to such streets, alleys, public ways and parks, and notice thereof shall be served upon the clerk of such incorporated town or city, or city acting under special charter, and the town or city council, or clerk of such town or city, may file objections to such assessment in the time and manner provided in case of land owners, and the town or city council shall have the same right to appeal from the finding of the board with reference to such an assessment, and such assessment, as finally established, shall draw interest at the same rate and from the same time as the assessments against lands, and the board of supervisors and the town or city council shall have the same power and authority in reference to issuing improvement certificates or drainage bonds and executing waivers on account of such assessment for benefits to streets, alleys, public ways and parks as is herein conferred upon the board of supervisors and township trustees in reference to assessment for benefits to highways. [35 G. A., ch. 157, § 4.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 39.]

SEC. 1989-a38a. Retroactive. The provisions of this act are hereby made retroactive, and all waivers and improvement certificates heretofore issued by boards of supervisors are hereby legalized, confirmed and made valid. [35 G. A., ch. 157, § 5.]

SEC. 1989-a39. Outlet in another state—right of way. Whenever a drainage district is established in any county in this state and no practicable or feasible outlet can be obtained except through the lands of an adjoining state, the board of supervisors of such county shall have power and authority to purchase a right of way for such outlet in such adjoining state and pay for the same out of the funds of such district. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 40.]

While the board of supervisors may acquire an outlet over the land of an adjoining state or may unite with the board in another county for the establishment of a district including lands in both counties, it is not provided that where the district is located entirely in one county the board may acquire an outlet through land in another county. Clary v. Woodbury County, 135–488, 113 N. W. 330.

SEC. 1989-a40. Watchmen. Whenever a levee has been established, or shall hereafter be established, and constructed in any county, the board of supervisors shall be empowered and authorized to employ one or more persons whose duty it shall be to watch such levee and make repairs thereon in case of emergency or cause the same to be made. And such employe shall file with the county auditor an itemized bill for services rendered, and cost and expense incurred in watching or repairing such levee, and the same shall be audited and allowed by the board as other claims and demands and the amount or amounts so allowed shall be paid by the county from the funds belonging to such levee district. If there are no funds on hand belonging to such district, the same shall be paid in the first instance by the county from the general fund and the board shall proceed to assess and levy a tax upon the lands in such district, which assessment and levy shall be apportioned to each tract of land in the same ratio that the original cost thereof was apportioned, and when collected the auditor shall draw a warrant thereon in favor of the county for the sum or sums so paid from the county funds. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 41.]

SEC. 1989-a41. Fees and expenses. Any engineer employed under the provisions of this act shall receive such compensation per diem as shall be fixed and determined by the board of supervisors. Appraisers of damages and commissioners to assess benefits, other than the engineer, shall receive such compensation as the board of supervisors may allow, not to exceed four dollars per day each, and all other fees and costs required under the provisions of this act shall be the same as provided by law for like services in other cases. Such costs and expenses shall be paid by the order of the board of supervisors out of the county treasury from the levee or drainage funds collected for that purpose upon warrants drawn by the county auditor. And the amount of fees for publication of all notices required to be published by the provisions of this act shall be fixed by the board of supervisors not exceeding thirty-three and one-third cents for each ten lines of brevier type, or its equivalent. [35 G. A., ch. 159, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 4; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 42.]

SEC. 1989-a42. Drainage record—county auditor—additional help. That section nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a forty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whenever a levee or drainage district or districts shall be petitioned for or established in any county, the board of supervisors shall furnish such additional help as shall be just and reasonable, to be paid by the county; and the county auditor shall be the custodian of all papers and records pertaining to the levee or drainage matter in his county and shall keep the book known as the 'drainage record' and shall record therein all of the proceedings of the board of supervisors pertaining to the subject of levees or drainage, as well as the papers required to be filed by the county auditor in such proceedings." [33 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 43.]

SEC. 1989-a43. Drainage of highways—outlet through private property. Whenever the township trustees of any township or townships shall desire to drain any highway within or under the jurisdiction of such trustees, and it becomes necessary to cross the lands of a private owner or owners to obtain a proper outlet and the trustees cannot agree with the owner or owners of such land as to how, where and upon what terms such drain may be constructed, such trustees may file in the office of the county auditor a petition describing the highway to be drained and the lands necessary to be crossed to obtain a proper outlet, the starting point, route and terminus of the desired drain, as near as may be, and asking the establishment of such drain. Upon the filing of such petition the county auditor shall appoint a commissioner, who shall be a competent engineer, and place a copy of the petition in his hands and he shall proceed to survey the proposed ditch or drain along the route described in the petition, or other route if found more practicable or feasible, and shall return a plat and profile thereof to the county auditor, and his return shall set forth a full and detailed description thereof, its size, dimensions, whether it will require a covered or open drain, its availability, necessity and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land or lot owned by different persons through which or abutting upon which the drain is proposed to be located and such other facts and recommendations as he may deem material; and he shall also apportion among the several townships, if more than one, the ratio of the cost of construction and expenses that shall be borne by each township. After the filing of such report the further proceedings shall be the same as provided in title eight, chapter one of the code in relation to the establishment of highways, except that the costs, expenses and damages shall be paid by the township trustees from the road fund of such township or townships, or from the county road fund, or partly from each of said funds, as the board of supervisors may determine. If the board of supervisors shall establish such drain, the same shall be constructed by the board of supervisors in the same manner that other county work is done, and the cost thereof shall be paid from the road fund of such township or townships, or from the county road fund, or partly from each of said funds, as the board of supervisors may direct, or the township trustees having jurisdiction over said highway shall have the right, if they deem advisable, to petition for the establishment of a drainage district including therein said highway, and said petition shall be considered and acted upon and proceedings had thereunder in all respects the same as provided where petition is signed by one or more of the land owners whose lands would be affected by or assessed for the expenses of the proposed improvements. [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 5; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 44.]

SEC. 1989-a44. Annual inspection. The board of supervisors of any county in or through which an improvement of the character provided for in this act extends, or shall extend, shall cause a competent engineer to inspect such improvement whenever they may deem it necessary, and at least once in each year, and he shall make report to such board of the condition of the improvement together with such recommendation as he deems necessary. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 21.] [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 45.]

SEC. 1989-a45. Tax lien upon premises. The tax provided for in this act, when levied, shall be a lien upon all premises upon which the same is assessed to the same extent and in the same manner as taxes levied for county and state purposes. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 46.]

The fact that the assessment becomes a lien prior to a lease or mortgage does not render the statute unconstitutional as to mortgagees. Fitchpatrick v. Botheras, 150–376, 130 N. W. 163.

SEC. 1989-a46. Defects in proceedings. The provisions of this act shall be liberally construed to promote the leveeing, ditching, draining and reclamation of wet, overflow or agricultural lands; the collection of the assessments shall not be defeated, where the proper notices have been given, by reason of any defect in the proceedings occurring prior to the order of the board of supervisors locating and establishing the levee, ditch, drain or change of natural watercourse provided for in this act, but such order or orders shall be conclusive and final that all prior proceedings were regular and according to law unless they were appealed from. But if upon appeal the court shall deem it just and proper to release any person or modify his assessment or liability, it shall in no manner affect the rights or liability of any person other than the appellant; and the failure to appeal from the order of the board of supervisors of which complaint is made shall be a waiver of any illegality in the proceedings and the remedies provided for in this act shall exclude all other remedies. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 47.]

This provision as to liberal construction is to be applied only when it does not result in the repealing of some express provision of the statute. Clary v. Woodbury County, 135–488, 113 N. W. 330.

Failure of the county auditor to record the proceedings will not defeat the jurisdiction of the court on appeal. In re Appeal of Head, 141–651, 118 N. W. 884.

This section does not expressly or by implication limit the remedies for a review by the supreme court of the judgment which the district may enter upon the trial of an appeal. Hartshorn v. Wright County Dist. Ct., 142–72, 120 N. W. 479.

Where proper notices have been given, the collection of assessments cannot be defeated by reason of any defect in the proceedings occurring prior to the action of the board establishing the ditch. In re Appeal of Lightner, 145–95, 123 N. W. 749.

It is competent for the legislature to create a tribunal for hearing objections and provide that all objections not heard before such tribunal shall be considered waived. Ibid.

The only persons who may complain in a proceeding for the making of the contemplated improvement are landowners whose lands are within the proposed district. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

The court is required to solve doubts as to the propriety of the enterprise in favor of the action of the board. Bird v. Board of Supervisors, 154–692, 135 N. W. 581.

The effect of this section is to say that the only remedy of an owner of land contained within the district and who is made a party to the hearing of a petition for the establishment of the district is by appeal from the action of the board, and a failure to avail himself of that remedy is a waiver of all other remedies. Kelley v. Drainage Dist., 157– —, 138 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1989-a47. Additional to certain statutes. The provisions of this act shall be construed as an[1] independent procedure additional to chapter two, title ten of the code and supplement, relating to the location, establishment and construction of levees, drains, ditches and watercourses and shall not be held to repeal any of such provisions. [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 6; 30 G. A., ch. 68, § 48.]

The provisions of this statute are independent of those previously applicable to such proceedings. Prichard v. Board of Supervisors, 150–565, 129 N. W. 970.

SEC. 1989-a48. Preliminary expenses—how paid. Whenever a petition is filed with the county auditor of any county within the state, as contemplated in chapter sixty-eight, acts of the thirtieth general assembly of Iowa, for the establishment of a drainage district in any county or counties within the state, the board of supervisors of said county (or counties if there be more than one) are hereby authorized to pay all necessary preliminary expenses in connection with said drainage district, out of the general county fund of said county, or if there be more than one county from the general county fund of each of the counties included in said district in such proportion as the work done or expense created in each county bears to the whole amount of work done or expense created, said amounts to be determined by the engineer in charge of the work, and they shall replace the same to the credit of the county fund of said county or counties as their interests may appear as soon as possible after the drainage district is established, or if said district be not established, then said amounts shall be paid from the proceeds of the bond deposited with the county auditor for that purpose, as provided for in chapter sixty-eight, acts of the thirtieth general assembly of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 86.]

Prior to the enactment of this provision authorizing preliminary expenses to be paid by the county out of its general funds, held that the county was under no liability with reference to such expenses and that a bond given by petitioners to pay such preliminary expenses in a proceeding under a statute which was unconstitutional could not be enforced by the county as a common-law obligation. Carroll County v. Cuthbertson, 136–458, 114 N. W. 17.

SEC. 1989-a49. Pumping stations—petition. The board of supervisors of any county or counties in the state in which a drainage or levee district has been or may hereafter be organized as provided in this act may provide as a part of said drainage system for the establishment and maintenance of a pumping station or stations, when and where the same may be necessary to secure a proper outlet for the drainage of the land comprising the said district or any portion thereof, and the cost of construction and maintenance of said pumping station or stations shall be levied upon and collected from the lands in the drainage or levee district, or the lands benefited by such pumping station or stations, in the same manner as provided for in the construction and maintenance of ditches or drains or levees in this act; provided that such pumping station or stations shall not be established or maintained unless a petition therefor shall be presented to the board of supervisors signed by not less than one third of the owners of lands benefited thereby, and the lands benefited by such pumping station or stations shall be determined by the board of supervisors on the report of the engineer, nor shall additional land be taken into any such drainage district after the improvements therein have been substantially completed, unless thirty-three and one-third per cent. of the owners of the land proposed to be taken in shall have petitioned therefor or[1] consented in writing thereto. [34 G. A., ch. 87, § 7.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 5.]

[1"of" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]
[For control and supervision by trustees of drainage districts see § 1989-a52f. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1989-a50. Proceedings under petitions heretofore filed. Whenever any petition has heretofore been filed and any action thereon has been taken by the board of supervisors that is not final, it shall not be necessary that a new petition shall be filed in order to obtain the benefits of this act, but the board of supervisors are hereby empowered to proceed with the improvement from the point at which legal proceedings thereon were stopped. [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 6.]

SEC. 1989-a51. Statutes applicable. That the measure of damages for locating, establishing and constructing a levee, ditch, drain or watercourse across the right of way of any railroad company provided for in section three[1] of this act shall be construed to apply to all cases and proceedings now pending involving such question; and the provisions of this act shall also be applicable to chapter two, title ten of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 4.]

[1See § 1989-a18 herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1989-a52. Pumping stations. The board of supervisors of any county or counties in the state in which a drainage district has been or may hereafter be organized in the manner provided in chapter two of title ten of the code may provide for the establishment and maintenance of a pumping station when and where the same shall be necessary to secure a proper outlet for the lands comprising the district, and the costs of construction and maintenance of such pumping station or plant shall be levied upon and collected from the lands in the drainage district in the same manner as provided for the construction and maintenance of ditches as provided in title ten, chapter two of the code, and code supplement, except the petition referred to shall require the signatures[1] of fifty per cent. of the land owners of such district. [30 G. A., ch. 69.]

[1"signature" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1989-a52a. Same—petition for management by trustees. That in all drainage districts heretofore established or which may be hereafter established under the laws of the state of Iowa, having and operating a pumping station, upon the completion of the construction thereof, any three or more persons who own land within the drainage district which has been assessed for benefits may file in the office of the county auditor a petition signed by a majority of the persons owning land within the drainage district which has been assessed for benefits, asking that said district be placed under the control and management of three trustees, residents of and landowners in said district, to be elected by all the persons owning land in said district that has been assessed for benefits. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 1.]

SEC. 1989-a52b. Canvass of petition — election ordered — notice. Upon filing of said petition the board of supervisors shall at their next regular meeting canvass the same and if it shall be determined that the same is signed by a majority of all of the persons owning land in said district that has been assessed for benefits, the board of supervisors shall order an election to be held at some convenient place in the district, at some time not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the date of the canvass of said petition, for the election of said trustees, and shall name from the residents of the district three judges and two clerks of election and shall cause notice of said election together with the time and place of holding same to be published for two consecutive weeks in the newspaper published in the county in which the district is situated in which the official proceedings of the board of supervisors are published. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 2.]

SEC. 1989-a52c. Election—canvass of returns. On the day designated for said election the polls shall open at eight o'clock a. m. and remain open until seven o'clock p. m. and the judges of election shall canvass the vote, and certify the same to the board of supervisors and deposit the ballots cast and the poll books showing the names of the voters with the county auditor. The canvass of the returns shall be on the Monday following said election and the county auditor shall issue a certificate to the trustees of their election. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 3.]

SEC. 1989-a52d. Term of office. The trustees shall hold office for a period of two years and until their successors are elected and qualify. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 4.]

SEC. 1989-a52e. Biennial election. Elections shall be held biennially in each district upon the first Monday of the month in which the first election was held, for the election of trustees, which shall be called, held and the returns certified in the same manner as the first election. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 5.]

SEC. 1989-a52f. Powers and duties of trustees—costs and expenses. The said trustees shall qualify in the same manner as township trustees, and upon their election and qualification they shall have control and supervision of said district in the same manner and with the same powers as are conferred upon the board of supervisors for the control and supervision of drainage districts by sections nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a twenty-one, nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a forty-nine and nineteen hundred eighty-nine-a fifty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, and all costs and expenses necessary to carry out the powers and duties hereby conferred upon said trustees shall be levied and collected upon the land in said district in the same manner as the same are now levied and collected, upon certificate by the trustees to the board of supervisors, of the amount necessary therefor. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 6.]

SEC. 1989-a52g. Report—filed with auditor for record. Such trustees shall, from time to time, and with reasonable promptness furnish the auditor of each county in which any part of said district is situated with a correct record of their acts and proceedings, which statement must be signed by at least two of their number and shall be recorded by the auditor in the drainage record. [35 G. A., ch. 158, § 7.]

SEC. 1989-a53. Owners may drain. Owners of land may drain the same in the general course of natural drainage, by constructing open or covered drains, discharging the same into any natural watercourse, or into any natural depression, whereby the water will be carried into some natural watercourse, and when such drainage is wholly upon the owner's land he shall not be liable in damages therefor to any person or persons or corporation. Nothing in this act shall, in any manner, be construed to affect the rights or liabilities of proprietors in respect to running waters or streams. [30 G. A., ch. 70.]

The owner may conduct surface water by means of tile drains upon his own land into the natural and usual channel which nature has provided for its discharge upon his neighbor's land without being liable in damages. This was the rule before the adoption of this statute. Porr v. Simmerson, 127–551, 103 N. W. 806.

In an injunction case to restrain the establishment by a landowner of a system of tile drainage on his own land at the complaint of an adjoining owner, it must appear that the defendant is about to materially and unduly increase the flow of water to plaintiff's imminent damage. Wirds v. Vierkandt, 131–125, 108 N. W. 108.

Where a ditch is by agreement of adjoining owners constructed along a natural watercourse, connecting with an outlet, the upper owner's rights are not limited to the drainage of the particular area from which the ditch of itself conducts surface water, but he may construct lateral tile drains so as to drain lands not otherwise affected. Neuhring v. Schmidt, 130–401, 106 N. W. 630.

One may lawfully tile a natural watercourse which passes over his land onto that of another where the effect is not to cast a greater quantity of water or to carry the water in a different manner upon the land of his neighbor. Hull v. Harker, 130–190, 106 N. W. 629.

A natural watercourse is not necessarily a channel with banks, but if the surface water uniformly flows in a given course within reasonable limits, the line of its flow is a watercourse. Ibid.

The statute as to private drainage and tiling is merely declaratory of the rule at common law, that the owner of land may tile-drain it in the general course of natural drainage, discharging the water collected into one natural watercourse or natural depression by which the water will be carried into some natural watercourse. Pohlman v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 131–89, 107 N. W. 1025.

Where by means of tile drains the owner of the higher land discharges on the lower land water from an area which otherwise would not have been drained across the lower land, or at a point where the water of the higher land would not naturally have been discharged, to the material injury of the land, the owner of the higher land is liable in damages. Sheker v. Machovec, 139–1, 116 N. W. 1042.

The upper owner has no right to gather the water on his own land which did not previously flow through a natural watercourse over the land of a lower owner and discharge it upon the land of the latter at a different place and in a different manner than before. Valentine v. Widman, 156–172, 135 N. W. 599.

This section announces the law as it had been declared by the court and a swale or depression through and over which surface water runs is a watercourse even though it has no well-defined banks. Parizek v. Hinek, 144–563, 123 N. W. 180.

The natural watercourse referred to in this section is not necessarily a channel with banks but if the surface waters usually flow in a well-defined channel it is such a watercourse as the statute contemplates. Cech v. Cedar Rapids, 147–247, 126 N. W. 166.

The rule announced by the supreme court that, to constitute a natural watercourse, it is not necessary that the flow of water through it should have been sufficient to wear a channel or canal, having definitely well marked sides and banks, will be followed by the federal courts in cases to which the state law is applicable. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, (C. C. A.) 182 Fed. 291.

Even without a statute, the rule is in this state that the landowner cannot rightfully complain of a flow of surface water cast upon him by ordinary tile drains constructed on the land of an adjoining owner and discharging on such premises into a natural depression, although by such system of drainage the flow of water is accelerated. Obe v. Pattat, 151–723, 130 N. W. 903.

A landowner has the right to conduct the surface water from his land into the courses or depressions extending into his neighbor's land which nature has provided and into which it had previously flowed. Lyon v. Sac County, 155–367, 136 N. W. 324.

Where the drainage, not wholly upon the owner's land, is carried into a ditch upon the land of an adjoining owner with the agreement of the latter, there is immunity from liability for damages. The statute has served to relieve the situation from the hampering effect of a too literal reading and application of certain abstract statements of law contained in some of the earlier cases. Schlader v. Strever, 157– —, 138 N. W. 1105.

SEC. 1989-a54. Additional lands—procedure for annexation. That after the original establishment of a drainage district, as in this chapter provided, if the said board is satisfied that additional lands should be included within any drainage district, and that said lands are benefited by the improvement therein, and that said lands should have been included in said original district, then, in such case, the board may order the engineer to make a plat of said lands, with the elevations thereof, and report thereon: and thereupon if said report be in favor of including additional lands, which shall be particularly described in the report, said board shall proceed in such matter as to said proposed annexed territory as in the original establishing of such district, including the fixing and levying of the special tax for benefits, and thereafter the said annexed territory shall be a part of said district, and governed in all respects as lands within the original district; or said annexation may be made and brought under the jurisdiction of the board for all of said purposes upon the petition of the owners of all the lands to be annexed. [33 G. A., ch. 118, § 22.]

This statute is sufficient to authorize the annexation of territory to a district already formed even after the completion of the original enterprise. Bird v. Board of Supervisors, 154–692, 135 N. W. 581.

Where the original district has been created by the action of joint boards, territory annexed to the district, although exclusively within the limits of one county, is also under the jurisdiction of such joint boards. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a55. Outlet—acquisition of land for outside limits of county—procedure. In any case where the necessary outlet of any proposed drainage district is beyond the limits of the county wherein such district is projected, and in the judgment of the board of supervisors expense will be saved such district by avoiding joint proceedings with such adjoining county and by proceeding as hereinafter authorized or whenever after establishment of any district it is found necessary to extend the main ditch beyond the limits of such district as established, in order to secure proper outlet therefor, the board of supervisors shall have power to so extend such outlet and to use the general funds of the district for such purposes; and generally such board of supervisors shall have full power to treat with and to make fair and equitable agreements with any landowner, any other drainage district, ditching organization, corporation or association within this state, whether the same may be acting under this or any other law, touching any work in which such district may be interested, or which may facilitate the flow of the waters from the lands within such district or the flow of waters from the lands lying above said district, through the ditches of such district. Where such drainage district shall find it necessary to acquire real estate for such outlet purposes the board of supervisors may proceed in the county where said real estate is located to condemn the same under the provisions of title ten, chapter four of the code, and the amendments thereto, relating to the taking of private property for works of internal improvement. [33 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

SEC. 1989-a56. Pending litigation not affected. Nothing contained in this act shall be held to affect pending litigation or any proceedings heretofore had under the laws hereby amended. [34 G. A., ch. 87, § 8.]

SEC. 1989-a57. Claims of subcontractors—filing—priority. Every mechanic, laborer, or other person who as subcontractor, shall perform labor upon or furnish materials for the construction of any drainage ditch provided for in this chapter, shall have a claim against the funds provided for the payment of said ditch and improvements for the value of such services and material not in excess of the amount of the contract price for which no warrants shall have been issued at the time of the filing of said claim. Such claim shall be made by filing with the county auditor an itemized sworn statement of the demand at any time after the performance of the labor or furnishing of the material, but within thirty days from and after the completion of the contract, and such claims shall have priority in the order in which they are filed, provided that the county auditor shall not issue warrants in excess of eighty per cent. of the contract price until thirty days after the completion of the contract. Provided further, that neither the county auditor, nor the county, nor the drainage district shall be liable for any greater sum than the contract price, nor shall they or either of them be liable for the payment of the same before the time provided for in the principal contract. [35 G. A., ch. 155, § 1.]

SEC. 1989-a58. Adjudication—attorney's fee. Any party in interest may cause an adjudication of the amount, priority and mode and time of payment of such claims by an equitable action in the district court in the proper county. In such action the court may assess a reasonable attorney's fee against the party failing, in favor of said drainage district or county. [35 G. A., ch. 155, § 2.]

SEC. 1989-a59. Release of claim—contractor may file bond for. The contractor may at any time release such claim by filing with the county auditor of the county in which the drainage ditch is located, a bond for the benefit of such claimant in sufficient penalty and with sureties to be approved by said county auditor, conditioned for the payment of any sum which may be found due such claimant. Such contractor may prevent the filing of such claims by filing in a like manner a bond conditioned for the payment of persons who may be entitled to file such claims. And actions may be brought on any such bond by any claimant within one year after his cause of action accrues, and judgment shall be rendered on said bond for the amount due such claimant. [35 G. A., ch. 155, § 3.]

SEC. 1989-a60. Not retroactive—pending litigation not affected. This act shall not be deemed retroactive nor affect[1] pending litigation. [35 G. A., ch. 155, § 4.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF WATER POWER IMPROVEMENTS.

SECTION 1990. Taking land for.

A foreign corporation, having complied with the statutory provisions of this state, may exercise the power of condemning land for proper purposes. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

SEC. 1994. Completion of work—legislative control.

The provisions of this section as to the time within which water-power improvements are to be made relate to conditions subsequent, which are not selfforfeiting, but constitute grounds only for declaration of forfeiture by the granting power. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

Statutory provisions for condemning land for water-power improvements are constitutional. Ibid.

CHAPTER 4.

OF TAKING PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.

SECTION 1995. By railway—limit of—cemeteries. Any railway corporation organized in this state, or chartered by or organized under the laws of the United States or any state or territory, may take and hold under the provisions of this chapter so much real estate as may be necessary for the location, construction and convenient use of its railway, providing no part of any territory actually platted, used and devoted to cemetery purposes shall be taken without the consent of the proper officers or owners thereof, and may also take, remove and use for the construction and repair of said railway and its appurtenances, any earth, gravel, stone, timber or other materials on or from the land so taken. The land so taken, otherwise than by the consent of the owners, shall not exceed one hundred feet in width, except for wood and water stations, unless where greater width is necessary for excavation, embankment or depositing waste earth. [34 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.] [17 G. A., ch. 126; C. '73, § 1241; R. § 1314.]

When property has been devoted to public use it cannot be taken and applied to another conflicting public use by the exercise of the power of eminent domain, unless by authority of the legislature expressly given or necessarily implied. But held that land owned by a steamboat company and used for a landing was not so devoted to a public use, the steamboat company having no power to condemn land for public use for such purposes and therefore not being authorized to hold for such purposes exempt from the right of condemnation for purposes authorized by statute. Diamond Jo Line Steamers v. Davenport. 114–432, 87 N. W. 399.

Held further that the fact that the steamboat company had only an undivided interest in the property would indicate that it was not held absolutely and as of right to a public use. Ibid.

A railroad company undertaking to exercise the privilege of eminent domain is precluded from questioning the constitutionality of the conditions provided by statute for the exercise of such privilege. Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 114–713, 87 N. W. 714.

A railway company is not bound to acquire a right of way of any particular width, nor to lay its main track in the center of that which is acquired. While ordinarily it is to be presumed to have obtained a right of way of the maximum width, and to have intended to have its track in the center, this is a mere naked presumption, casting the burden of proof on anyone asserting the contrary, but subject to be overcome by evidence rebutting the inference. Hence, exclusive possession exercised by an abutting property owner to within less than fifty feet of the center of the railway track may be shown as against the claim of the railroad company to the full width of the right of way. Cedar Rapids Canning Co. v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 120–724, 95 N. W. 195.

A railroad cannot acquire by condemnation a strip to exceed one hundred feet in width. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 116–681, 88 N. W. 1082.

As the statute does not provide for nor require a preliminary survey or location until the condemnation proceedings are commenced, the company is a trespasser in entering upon land for the purpose of making such preliminary survey, and acquires no rights thereby. Ibid.

While the statute contemplates the condemnation only of a right of way one hundred feet in width, yet an additional strip acquired by purchase for use in connection with the right of way constitutes a portion thereof, and the duty of providing a private crossing to the landowner whose property is intersected by the right of way is not changed. Mattice v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 130–749, 107 N. W. 949.

Where only a small portion of the ground designated on a plat as depot ground has been used for the purpose or is apparently necessary for the future, the company cannot claim that the entire parcel of ground so designated is held adversely for such purposes. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Hanken, 140–372, 118 N. W. 527.

The doctrine of acquiescence in a division fence is applicable to a fence acquiesced in by the railroad company and adjoining lot owners as indicating the boundary line between them. Iowa Cent. R. Co. v. Homan, 151–404, 131 N. W. 878.

While a railroad built for the sole and only purpose of reaching a particular manufacturing establishment may not be considered to be built for public use, nevertheless a public use exists when it appears that the public has the right to use the road as so built and will in all probability do so at least to some extent. Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 146–666, 125 N. W. 672.

A railroad company, although having only an easement in its right of way, may permit the maintenance of a warehouse on such right of way to facilitate shipments over its road although the occupants of the warehouse may also make shipments over other roads. Anderson v. Interstate Mfg. Co., 152–455, 132 N. W. 812.

Where the condemnation is in the name of a railway company authorized to condemn a right of way for a public purpose, the question whether such right of way was in fact being condemned for a public rather than private purpose held to be a question of fact which might have been raised on appeal and could not be made the basis of a collateral attack. Davis v. Des Moines & Ft. D. R. Co., 155–51, 135 N. W. 356.

When a corporation is organized with authority to construct or operate a railway, it may exercise the power of eminent domain for the purpose of acquiring its necessary right of way. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

SEC. 1998. Additional depot grounds, yards and other purposes. Any railway corporation owning or operating or constructing a railway shall have power to condemn lands for necessary additional depot grounds or yards, for additional or new right of way for constructing double track, reducing or straightening curves, changing grades, shortening or relocating portions of the line, for excavations, embankments, or places for depositing waste earth in the same manner as is provided by law for the condemnation of the right of way. Before any proceedings shall be instituted therefor, the company shall apply to the railway commissioners, who shall give notice to the landowner, and examine into the matter and report by certificate to the clerk of the district court in the county in which the land is situated, the amount and description of the additional lands necessary for such purposes, present and prospective, of such company; whereupon the company shall have the power to condemn the lands so certified by the commissioners. [29 G. A., ch. 79, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 70, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 190, § 1.]

The right of way which may be taken for railroad purposes is limited to one hundred feet, whether acquired by condemnation or by purchase. Additional right of way for depot grounds can be acquired only by application to the railroad commissioners who shall, after a hearing, certify to the district court the amount and description of additional land necessary for that purpose. Crandall v. Des Moines N. & W. R. Co., 103–684, 72 N. W. 778.

SEC. 1999. Manner of condemnation.

Measure of damages: In condemnation proceedings the damages are to be assessed once for all, and when once assessed they include all the injuries which may result for all time to come from the construction and operation of the road in a reasonable and proper manner. Hileman v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 113–591, 85 N. W. 800.

Additional tracks and sidetracks, as they may become necessary, may be constructed without the payment of additional damages for right of way. Ibid.

The condemnation of land by virtue of the power of eminent domain is a special proceeding and the legislature has almost unlimited power in fixing the terms and conditions upon which such condemnation may be made. Richardson v. Centerville, 137–253, 114 N. W. 1071.

The landowner may recover compensation for depreciation of value of the remainder of his tract due to the proximity of the improvement for which the land was taken. Ibid.

Many of the considerations that tend to affect the value of town property are prospective only, but they may nevertheless be taken into account. Therefore, where land was condemned for depot purposes, held that its prospective increased value on account of the location of the depot in that locality might be considered. Snouffer v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 105–681, 75 N. W. 501.

Where a lessee seeks compensation he should be allowed the difference between the value of the annual use of the premises before the taking of the right of way and what it was worth afterward. Werthman v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128–135, 103 N. W. 135.

The damages to be assessed in condemnation proceedings do not include injuries which may result from the negligence or improper construction of the railroad. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125–301, 101 N. W. 94.

In such a proceeding damages resulting from causing water to flow upon the premises of the owner from lands of another owner by the improper construction of ditches are not to be taken into account. Ibid.

It is not to be assumed that where the right of way is maintained through the premises of an owner the private way to which he will be entitled will be a grade crossing. It must be assumed that it will be an adequate crossing. Ibid.

It is not competent to show in evidence the amount which the company has paid to other owners per acre for rights of way over their land. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128–139, 103 N. W. 129.

Damages are not to be predicated on any particular form of crossing, the requirement of the statute being that the company shall furnish an adequate crossing. Ibid.

Nor should the jury be told that they may take into account every element of annoyance and disadvantage resulting from the construction of the railroad which would influence an intending purchaser in making an estimate of the market value of the property. Ibid.

In ascertaining the value of a tract of land for the purpose of ascertaining the damage thereto by reason of the taking of a portion for a railroad right of way, evidence as to what another tract somewhat similarly situated was sold for at private sale between the time proceedings were instituted and the date of the trial is not admissible. Watkins v. Wabash R. Co., 137–441, 113 N. W. 924.

While the price at which the land was sold by the owner after the location of the right of way may be a circumstance to be considered as bearing upon the value of the property, it is error to instruct the jury that if the value of the land was not enhanced by the location of the railroad, then the owner was not entitled to recover anything for depreciation. Ibid.

The measure of damages in cases of condemnation is the difference between the fair market value of the tract as a whole immediately before and after the taking. The depreciation, if any, in the value of the entire tract should be taken into account. Ibid.

In determining the value of the property to be condemned, expert witnesses may testify as to their opinion of its value based upon comparison with other property in the same neighborhood or so nearly similar to the property in question that knowledge of the former and of its value will afford some degree of aid to the jury in estimating the value of the latter. The trial court is vested with discretion to draw the line in each case in determining whether the property referred to may thus be taken into account by way of comparison or illustration. Youtzy v. Cedar Rapids, 150–53, 129 N. W. 351.

Where a railroad company has authority under its articles of incorporation to construct and operate not only a street car line or an interurban line but also a general line of railway on which steam cars may be used, the right to use steam as a motive power may be taken into account in assessing the damages to property. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

The benefits to the property by reason of the improvement cannot be taken into consideration. Western Newspaper Union v. Des Moines, 140 N. W. 367.

Interest is to be awarded from the time the railway takes possession of the right of way. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 131–680, 109 N. W. 209.

The allowance of interest from the time of the construction of the road, antedating the institution of condemnation proceedings, is erroneous. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132–11, 109 N. W. 309.

Entire premises: The damages allowed on condemnation of a portion of the owner's premises should include damage to the entire premises resulting from the construction of the improvement which involves the taking of his land. Haggard v. Independent School Dist., 113–486, 85 N. W. 777.

Two tracts connected by a right of way may constitute one farm, damage to the whole of which is to be considered in proceedings to condemn a right of way across one portion. Westbrook v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115–106, 88 N. W. 202.

In the assessment of damages it is error to limit the witnesses to a consideration of any special use for the land. The owner is entitled to have his farm valued as a whole and his damages assessed on that basis. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116–31, 89 N. W. 77.

When separate tracts, one only of which is crossed by a right of way, are adapted to one use and both are especially valuable because of adaptability to that use and are both injuriously affected by the appropriation, they should be treated as constituting one property in assessing the damages. Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 117–296, 90 N. W. 724.

Whether the owner of separate parcels is entitled to have them treated as one tract is usually a question for the jury. But where the tracts are entirely independent, not contiguous, and there is no evidence that damage to the part actually taken affects the part not touched, the court should direct the jury to consider only that tract over which the right of way is taken. Ibid.

The fact that the railroad company in condemnation proceedings described only one of two tracts which are occupied together as a farm does not deprive the owner of the right to have the damages to the entire farm estimated in the proceeding. Cook v. Boone Suburban Elec. R. Co., 122–437, 98 N. W. 293.

Although a tract belonging to one owner may have been platted, it does not follow that there should be a separate assessment as to each subdivision, where there is no physical evidence of the plat and no improvements made with reference thereto. Gray v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 129–68, 105 N. W. 359.

The damages to the property as a whole are to be estimated rather than to some particular government subdivision from which the right of way has been taken. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 141–250, 119 N. W. 927.

The fact that testimony is drawn out on cross-examination relating to distinct values of different parcels does not constitute error where the case is submitted only with reference to the value of the property as a whole. McCaskey v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 154–652, 135 N. W. 6.

Trespass by company: Where the railroad company entering without right upon land continues to occupy the same after title has been conveyed to another owner, such occupancy may be treated as a continuing trespass, for which the grantee may recover damages from the time of acquiring title. But the grantee is not entitled to recover for the damages suffered by his grantor. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132–11, 109 N. W. 309.

Obstructing watercourse: A railroad company constructing its road across a stream is not liable for negligence in failing to provide for a flood which is not only extraordinary, but unprecedented, and could not reasonably have been foreseen, but it should anticipate and make provision for such floods as may occur in the ordinary course of nature, and will be liable in damages to a property owner whose property is injured by its failing to do so. Houghtaling v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 117–540, 91 N. W. 811.

It is immaterial that in the construction of an adequate culvert the company acted upon the advice of its engineers who were shown to have been competent and skillful. Ibid.

The company is liable for damages resulting from the clogging of a culvert by debris carried down by a stream during a freshet, so far as such damage is the result of a flood not extraordinary and unprecedented, and which could reasonably have been anticipated. Ibid.

An exception in a conveyance of a right of way does not cover an additional right granted to the railroad company to discharge surface water upon the land. Earhart v. Cowles, 122–194, 97 N. W. 1085.

A railroad company procuring a right of way by condemnation does not have the right to divert the surface water or a stream to the damage of the land owner from whose land the right of way has been taken, and such unlawful obstruction may be enjoined. Albright v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 133–644, 110 N. W. 1052.

Any damage necessarily caused by the proper construction of the railroad is included in the damages paid for the right of way and is not a proper element of proof in an action to recover damages for obstruction of surface waters. Blunck v. Chicago N. W. R. Co., 142–146, 120 N. W. 737.

Where it appeared that the railroad company in the construction of its road had unnecessarily and negligently interfered with a tile drain on the right of way, held that the landowner might recover damages therefor although the construction was by an independent contractor. Swanson v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 153–78, 133 N. W. 351.

Proceedings: The proceedings before the commissioners appointed by law to appraise the land are not a suit at law, but in the nature of an inquest to ascertain its value. No hearing is had and no evidence introduced. The commissioners merely inspect the land, determine upon the amount of damages which will be occasioned by the appropriation and make a written report to the sheriff. To this extent the proceeding is in no respect a suit, but when an appeal from the finding is taken to the district court, the proceeding is adversary and is in the nature of a suit which may be removed to the federal court under the removal acts. Myers v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118–312, 91 N. W. 1076.

While no formal pleadings are required in condemnation proceedings, yet if the defendant undertakes to plead formally and files a written answer, the ordinary rules of pleading should prevail and no affirmative defense not pleaded can be relied on. Mason v. Iowa Central R. Co., 131–468, 109 N. W. 1.

Where the company is in possession of the right of way sought to be condemned, and the description given in the notice is sufficient to direct the sheriff and jury to the premises, and the award contains a correct description, there can be no objection that the notice of the proceedings was insufficient as to the description of the property to be condemned. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129–68, 105 N. W. 359.

Abandonment of proceedings: While a company may abandon the condemnation proceedings after the award of damages is made and thereby escape the payment of the award, it cannot simply abandon the award and continue the proceedings, or institute other proceedings for another award as to the same property. Robertson v. Hartenbower, 120–410, 94 N. W. 857.

Abandonment of road: When a railroad company enters upon the land of another, builds a roadbed, places ties and rails thereon, these as a general rule, in the absence of abandonment to the owner, belong to the company constructing the same or to its grantees or assignees, and the landowner cannot in condemnation proceedings, although instituted subsequently to the construction of the road, have the value thereof included in his award. Van Husen v. Omaha B. & T. R. Co., 118–366, 92 N. W. 47.

Payment to sheriff: Nothing short of actual payment or its equivalent to the owner of the damages assessed constitutes compensation for property wrested from him under the power of eminent domain. Payment of the damages to the sheriff is not effectual where the sheriff becomes insolvent and the property owner is unable to secure the money paid. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110–385, 81 N. W. 794.

The deposit with the sheriff of the amount of the award is intended as security for the landowner where the company takes immediate possession of the land and the landowner has such an interest in the deposit when made that he may hold the officer liable for its safe keeping. Bannister v. McIntire, 112–600, 84 N. W. 707.

SEC. 2000. Assessment of damages—notice.

It is not necessary that all the condemnations of the same right of way be before the same jury. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129–68, 105 N. W. 359.

Where a particular tract included among those as to which damages are to be assessed is overlooked or lost sight of by the sheriff and jury in making up the awards, a subsequent proceeding to assess the damages for such tract is not barred. Mason v. Iowa Central R. Co., 131–468, 109 N. W. 1.

SEC. 2003. Notice—how published. Said notice shall be published in some newspaper in the county, if there is one, if not, then in a newspaper published in the nearest county through which the proposed railway is to be run, once each week, for at least eight successive weeks prior to the day fixed for the appraisement at the instance of the corporation. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 26; C. '73, § 1248.]

SEC. 2007. Costs.

The provisions of this section allowing attorney's fees in such proceedings is not unconstitutional. Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 114–713, 87 N. W. 714; Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116–31, 89 N. W. 77; Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132–11, 109 N. W. 309.

The provision as to attorney's fees does not apply unless on the trial the award is at least equal to that allowed by the commissioners. Wormley v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 120–684, 95 N. W. 203.

In the taxation of attorney's fees, the court in its discretion may receive testimony, but is not bound to do so, and may limit the testimony to proof of the services rendered. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133–714, 110 N. W. 1039.

If under the statute attorney's fees are allowed for services rendered on appeal to the supreme court in a condemnation proceeding, such fees are to be taxed in the supreme court as a part of the costs of that court and not as a part of the costs in the district court. Woodcock v. Wabash R. Co., 135–559, 113 N. W. 347.

An attorney's fee is taxable as part of the costs in the proceeding and such fee as well as other costs may be determined by the court. Richardson v. Centerville, 137–253, 114 N. W. 1071.

Where on appeal the appellant recovers a verdict for a larger amount than allowed by the commissioners and the appellant elects to take a new trial rather than submit to a reduction by the court, and on such new trial, the party recovers another verdict for an amount in excess of the commissioners' allowance, though not so much as the first verdict, he is entitled to recover the costs of the first trial including an attorney's fee for that trial, as well as the costs including the attorney's fee for the second trial. McCaskey

v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 154–652, 135 N. W. 6.

By the provisions of code § 884 the proceedings provided for under this section are to be followed in condemning land by a city. Mellichar v. Iowa City, 116–390, 90 N. W. 86.

The provisions of this section as to attorney's fees are not incorporated by reference thereto in code § 2815 relating to condemnation for school purposes. Jones v. School Board, 140–179, 118 N. W. 265.

The provisions of this section as to attorney's fees are by reference applicable in the assessment of damages for a viaduct as provided in code supp. § 771. Globe Machinery & Supply Co. v. Des Moines, 156–267, 136 N. W. 518.

SEC. 2009. Appeals—change of venue. Either party may appeal from such assessment to the district court, within thirty days after the assessment is made, by giving the adverse party, or, if such party is the corporation, its agent or attorney, and the sheriff notice in writing that such appeal has been taken. The sheriff shall thereupon file a certified copy of so much of the appraisement as applies to the part appealed from, and said court shall try the same as in an action by ordinary proceedings. The landowner shall be plaintiff and the corporation defendant. In cases where the property to be taken is for the use of the state either party shall be entitled to a change in the place of trial to the nearest district court outside of the county in which the property is located upon filing a motion for such change of venue. [35 G. A., ch. 160, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1254; R. § 1317.]

The right of appeal furnishes an adequate remedy for any errors or irregularities in the proceeding. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129–68, 105 N. W. 359.

It is not error to strike from the files an answer of the appellee questioning the jurisdiction of the court over the appellee, where the facts alleged do not show want of jurisdiction. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128–139, 103 N. W. 129.

Where the landowner alone appeals from the award, the company is the defendant in such sense as to be entitled to remove the case to the federal court without regard to which party made the application for the appointment of commissioners. Kirby v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106 Fed. 551.

An appeal by the landowner from the assessment of damages by the commissioners in a condemnation proceeding is in effect an action by the landowner against the corporation for the value of the property taken, and may be removed to the federal court on account of diversity of citizenship of the parties. Myers v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118–312, 91 N. W. 1076.

An appeal from the finding of the sheriff's jury is such an action as may be removed to the federal court, on account of diversity of citizenship, although the landowner is the appellant and as a nonresident asks the removal. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Boynton, 204 U. S. 570.

Where in a single proceeding the jury passes on the question as to the damage to be allowed to the owner and his tenant separately, either may appeal without joining the other or serving notice upon the other. An award to one would in no manner affect or prejudice the right of the other. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128–139, 103 N. W. 129.

While it may not be proper in examining the jurors on voir dire to disclose the amount of the award by the sheriff's jury, there will not be a reversal on that ground where it does not appear that any of the jurors to whom such suggestion was made acted on the final trial of the case. Ibid.

Where the company served notice of appeal and afterwards the landowner also served notice and filed a transcript without paying the filing fee and the company thereupon caused the landowner's appeal to be docketed and asked an affirmance for failure of the landowner to prosecute his appeal, held that it was not error for the trial court to consolidate the landowner's appeal with that taken by the company, and subsequent dismissal of its appeal by the company left no question for determination by the court. McKinnon v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 126–426, 102 N. W. 138.

Where land is condemned and taken possession of before the damages are paid, interest should be allowed on the amount of the award. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116–31, 89 N. W. 77.

All questions which might have been presented on appeal from the condemnation proceedings are foreclosed if not thus raised and cannot be made the basis of a collateral attack. Davis v. Des Moines & Ft. D. R. Co., 155–51, 135 N. W. 356.

The landowner, appealing on the ground that he is entitled to larger award, cannot then, for the first time and in the same proceeding, challenge the right of the corporation to condemn land. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

Although under the statute the landowner, appealing from the award of the sheriff's jury, is treated as defendant for determining the right of removal to the federal court, yet if in the state court he files a pleading which is in effect a cross bill asking affirmative relief, the corporation seeking the condemnation may have the case removed if the corporation seeking removal is a citizen of another state and the amount in controversy is sufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 2011. Trial—judgment—costs.

Payment to the sheriff does not limit the property owner to his remedy against the sheriff for the recovery of money thus paid. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110–385, 81 N. W. 794.

The court should not on appeal render judgment against the corporation for the damages found where the property has not been appropriated. Haggard v. Independent Sch. Dist., 113–486, 85 N. W. 777.

It is improper to enter a judgment on the award of damages by the jury, but error in doing so does not require a reversal. The judgment may be set aside and the case allowed to stand as to award made and attorney's fees allowed. Richardson v. Centerville, 137–253, 114 N. W. 1071.

Although the court has no authority on appeal to render a judgment for the damages assessed, it may render a judgment for costs and attorney's fees and from such judgment an appeal will lie. Klopp v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 142–474, 119 N. W. 373.

Under this section as amended, the corporation would be liable for damages and attorney's fees on the abandonment of a proceeding for condemnation of property. Ford v. Board of Park Commissioners, 148–1, 126 N. W. 1030.

Ownership of the property condemned is not transferred unless the damages are finally ascertained and actually paid, and on appeal no personal judgment can be rendered against the railroad company except for the costs, including a reasonable fee for the owner's attorney. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Boynton, (C. C. A.) 158 Fed. 599.

SEC. 2015. Nonuser of right of way.

Where the right of the company to land taken for right of way is lost by nonuser the land does not revert to the original owner from whom it was taken, but to the present owner of the tracts of land from which it was taken. Smith v. Hall, 103–95, 72 N. W. 427.

Where a right of way is acquired by a fee simple deed and subsequently the separated tracts of the parcel of land through which the right of way is thus conveyed by description are conveyed, excluding the right of way, such subsequent conveyance does not cover any right of reversion of the right of way. Watkins v. Iowa Central R. Co., 123–390, 98 N. W. 910.

Where the owner of land conveys a right of way passing through his premises and afterwards conveys the two parcels expressly excluding the right of way by description from the conveyance, the grantees of the respective parcels are not entitled to damages on the taking of such right of way by another railroad, after abandonment by nonuser for eight years. Spencer v. Wabash R. Co., 132–129, 109 N. W. 453.

In a conveyance of land, a portion of which has been taken for railroad right of way, the portion thus taken may be excepted from the grant so that upon abandonment of the right of way the title thereto does not revert to the grantee of the balance of the tract, but to the original grantor. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133–714, 110 N. W. 1039.

It is to be questioned whether this section is meant to apply to a grant of the use of a public highway, but at any rate it does not apply to restrict a railroad company from using a right of way acquired over a public highway alongside a right of way acquired over private property whenever it shall see fit to avail itself of such right. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113–561, 85 N. W. 902.

By agreement a landowner may be entitled to enforce a forfeiture of the railroad right of way in case of abandonment although the length of time of nonuser contemplated by the statute has not expired. Gill v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117–278, 90 N. W. 606.

Use of the right of way over the owner's land which is merely colorable and not for ordinary railroad purposes will not prevent such forfeiture. Ibid.

It is not necessary to constitute such abandonment that the entire line of which the right of way in question forms a part shall have been abandoned. Ibid.

SEC. 2016. Condemning abandoned right of way.

After the lapse of eight years or nonuser, the right of way ceases to exist as such and is to be again acquired by exercise of the power of eminent domain in the same manner as right of ways are obtained in the first instance. And in such case the provision that parties who have previously received compensation which has not been refunded shall not be permitted to recover the second time, has no application. Remey v. Iowa Central R. Co., 116–133, 89 N. W. 218; Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129–68, 105 N. W. 359.

As to the question involved in the case of Remey v. Iowa Central R. Co., 116–133, the judges of the court on a subsequent consideration in another case were equally divided in opinion. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132–11, 109 N. W. 309.

SEC. 2017. Raising or lowering highways for crossings—railroad commission shall adjust disagreements. That section two thousand and seventeen of the code is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any such corporation may raise or lower any turnpike, plank road, or other road, for the purpose of having its railroad cross over or under the same, and, in such cases, such corporation shall put such road, as soon as may be, in as good repair and condition as before such alteration. When a new railroad crosses an established highway, or when it is desired to locate a new highway across an established railroad, or when it is desired by any citizen of or the board of supervisors of any county or by any railroad company operating a railroad in this state, for the safety of the public using such highway, to change, alter, relocate, or vacate an established highway, where same crosses a railroad, and the railroad company and the board of supervisors of the county in which such highway crossing is located cannot agree in respect thereto, the board of railroad commissioners of this state, upon application of either the board of supervisors or of twenty-five freeholders of said county, or the railroad company interested, are authorized and empowered, after hearing upon reasonable notice, to determine the necessity for such crossings, location thereof, whether the same shall be at grade or otherwise, the manner in which the same shall be constructed, maintained, or changed, division of expense thereof, and generally to make such orders in respect thereto as are equitable and just, including the right to require condemnation proceedings to be instituted by the board of supervisors as may be necessary to carry out such order; providing, however, that any portion of such expense that is borne by any city, town, county, state, or other public body, shall forever be considered as held in trust by said railroad company receiving same, and no part of the same shall be considered a part of the value of the properties of said railroad company upon which it is entitled to receive a return." [35 G. A., ch. 162, § 1.] [19 G. A., ch. 122; 15 G. A., ch. 47; C. '73, § 1262; R. § 1321.]

A railroad company may cross streets in the occupation of a right of way acquired over private property without the consent of abutting property owners, if in crossing such streets its track is not laid in front of the property of such abutting owners. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113–561, 85 N. W. 902.

Land devoted to the use of a railroad is devoted to public use and a common highway may be used by a railroad company without further compensation to adjoining owners. Burlington Gas Light Co. v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 165 U. S. 370.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the railroad took its grant of right of way subject to existing easements in favor of the public. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Council Bluffs, 109–425, 80 N. W. 564.

And held that, having recognized and adopted a dedication of highways to the public by the original proprietor, a mere nonuse by the public of such highways would not defeat the same. Ibid.

SEC. 2020. Crossing railways, canals and watercourses.

Where the right of one road to cross another has been acquired under existing statutes, the legislature cannot, by a subsequent statute, impose as a condition to the continued use of such crossing the burden of paying the entire cost of putting in and operating an interlocking system. Manhattan Trust Co. v. Sioux City & N. R. Co., 81 Fed. 50.

But by code § 2063 a railway proposing to cross one already constructed must bear the expense of interlocking. Minneapolis

& St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114–502, 87 N. W. 410.

The statute only requires that the crossings shall be reasonably necessary. An absolute necessity need not exist. The only limitation is that the crossing shall be made as not unnecessarily to interfere with the senior road. Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 146–666, 125 N. W. 672.

The statute does not require a subway crossing under ordinary conditions, and with reasonably good service a grade crossing protected by an interlocking switch is not objectionable as an undue interference with the operation of the road to be crossed. The relative expense of such a crossing and a subway crossing may properly be considered in determining whether the former is reasonable. Ibid.

SEC. 2021. Bridges—damages. The expense of building or rebuilding a culvert or bridge over a ditch excavated in the bed of a natural watercourse passing through a right of way is not a proper element of damages in determining the damages allowed to a railroad company in connection with the making of the improvement, under code supp. § 1989-a18. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 144–10, 121 N. W. 39.

SEC. 2022. Private crossings. That section two thousand and twenty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When any person owns land on both sides of any railway, or when the railway runs parallel with the public highway, thereby severing the farm from the public highway, the corporation owning the same shall, when requested to do so, make and keep in good repair a sufficient causeway or other adequate means of crossing the same and one cattle guard on each side thereof connected by cross fences to the right of way fence on each side of the right of way at such reasonable place as may be designated by the owner. If such person desires more than one crossing or desires an overhead or underground crossing over or under said railway, he shall serve or cause to be served a notice in writing upon such railway company setting forth his demand, with a plat of the land showing the place and manner of the desired crossing or crossings. If such railway company, within thirty days after having been served with such notice, has failed and refused to construct such crossing or crossings, such person may apply to the board of railroad commissioners of this state which shall have full authority to determine all questions growing out of such demand, and upon hearing, after due notice, make such order as it may deem just and equitable." [35 G. A., ch. 163, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 96; C. '73, § 1268; R. § 1329.]

The fact that an under passageway is contracted in width after it has been occupied and used for a long period does not entitle the property owner to damages if such passageway is left of sufficient width to fulfill the objects for which it was originally provided. Olver v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 111–221, 82 N. W. 609.

A landowner cannot acquire a right to a crossing by adverse possession so as to preclude change thereof by the company. Schrimper v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 115–35, 82 N. W. 916, 87 N. W. 731.

An undercrossing, constructed in pursuance of the statute and not by contract with the owner, may be changed by the company to a grade crossing when no peculiar damage results to the owner by the change and the expense of maintaining the undercrossing would be unreasonable. Ibid.

In condemnation proceedings it is proper for the jury to take into account the fact that an adequate crossing over the track is required by statute to be constructed, and that if only an underground crossing would be adequate, such a crossing will be given. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116–31, 89 N. W. 77.

The duty of determining the kind of crossings is imposed on the company with the limitation that they be adequate, and in determining the damages in a condemnation proceeding it is not to be assumed that the crossing will be a grade crossing. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125–301, 101 N. W. 94.

Mandamus will lie: To compel railroad companies to construct suitable crossings for one owning land on both sides of the railroad track without the prior submission of the matter to the board of railroad commissioners. Swinney v. Chi- cago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123–219, 98 N. W. 635.

The statute clearly contemplates such a crossing as shall connect the several parts of the owner's land without requiring him to go into the public highway, and consent to the construction of a way by which he may reach the public highway is not a waiver of his right to a private crossing. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129–507, 105 N. W. 436.

Where a grade crossing is impracticable, the fact that an overhead crossing would involve considerable expense will not constitute a sufficient reason for not requiring the company to construct such overhead crossing. Ibid.

The railroad company is not excused from providing a private crossing by the fact that the landowner may pass from one tract of his land to another separated by the railway by means of an adjoining public highway. The statute evidently contemplates more convenient access than is usually afforded by a public highway, even though one side of the land may abut thereon. Mattice v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 130–749, 107 N. W. 949.

The fact that the railway has acquired a strip of land for its use adjoining its right of way of full width does not excuse it from furnishing a private crossing. Ibid.

The railroad company is required to build and maintain cattle guards within a reasonable time after having been properly requested. The request must be of some officer or agent of the company acting within the scope of his duties, such duties including the management or control of the putting in of cattle guards, or of ordering them to be put in. McGill v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 113–358, 85 N. W. 620.

Where a private crossing was constructed over three adjacent parallel lines of railroad which was protected by gates at each end of the passageway, held that failure of one of the companies to maintain an inside gate between its own right of way and that of another company would not render it liable for an injury to an animal coming upon its right of way. Fowbel v. Wabash R. Co., 125–215, 100 N. W. 1121.

The obstruction of a private crossing is prohibited by the provisions of code § 5078, relating to obstructions of either public or private ways, and a tenant in possession may recover damages to his use of the premises by reason of such obstruction. Morrison v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117–587, 91 N. W. 793.

While the railroad company cannot be permitted to arbitrarily change a private crossing agreed upon between the parties, yet if it is found to be inadequate on the one hand or on the other hand unduly to interfere with the safe operation of the road, it may by proper notice require that a change be made. But it must take the initiative in making such change and cannot disregard the rights of the owner merely upon the ground that the crossing as agreed upon renders the operation of its trains unsafe. Hartshorn v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 137–324, 113 N. W. 840.

Although it may be against public policy to contract for the maintenance of an open crossing, the landowner may have the right to recover for stock killed at such crossing under the stipulations of a contract that the company will pay therefor. Livingston v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 142–404, 120 N. W. 1040.

In proceedings to condemn additional land for right of way it is proper to show the inconvenience that will be suffered by the landowner by reason of being deprived of a crossing which he has previously enjoyed. Klopp v. Chicago M. & St. P. R. Co., 142–474, 119 N. W. 373.

It is not required in the absence of request of property owner that cattle guards and wing fences be erected at a private crossing. Rutherford v. Iowa Central R. Co., 142–744, 121 N. W. 703.

The company is not required to use the same care towards persons using private crossings as to those using public crossings,—that is, it is not required to keep a lookout for such persons. Ibid.

Where it was contended that there was an agreement for an under crossing at a particular place, held that there had been a written agreement for such crossing between the landowner and the railroad company constructing the road and that the purchaser of the railroad was charged with knowledge of such agreement. Longshore v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 147–463, 124 N. W. 795.

Where the company having constructed a stone culvert over a stream crossing its right of way permitted the owner of the land abutting on each side of the right of way to use such culvert as an under crossing for cattle, held that such crossing was not a private crossing such as the company was bound to keep in repair and the use was permissive only. Hastings v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 148–390, 126 N. W. 786.

SEC. 2024-a. Institutions of United States—state to condemn land for. Whenever in the opinion of the governor of the state, the public interest requires the laying or construction of any drain, sewer or aqueduct, and the acquisition of an easement therefor, upon or across private property, or the taking of any real estate for the making or construction of any drain, sewer or aqueduct, or for rifle ranges, exercise, drill or parade grounds, yards, walls, buildings or other improvements or conveniences for the use or benefit of any fort, arsenal, military post or other institution of the United States, upon or across private property, the same proceedings may be had in the name of the state as are provided for the taking of private property for works of internal improvement by chapter four, title ten, of the code, and the proceedings shall be conducted by the county attorney of the county in which the land is situated, whenever directed by the governor, or he may appoint some other person for that purpose. [29 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-b. Same—damages certified—how paid—conveyance of title. When the amount of the damages is finally determined, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall certify the amount thereof to the governor who shall, by an order endorsed thereon, direct the payment of the same, including all costs and expenses incurred, and the auditor of state shall issue a warrant on the treasury for the amount, which shall be paid out of such money as may have been deposited in the treasury by the United States, or by any person or persons for and on its behalf, and when paid to the sheriff or person entitled thereto, the governor and auditor of state are hereby authorized and instructed to convey the easement or real estate so taken and all of the rights of the state so acquired therein, to the United States, by good and sufficient deed of conveyance executed for, on behalf of and in the name of the state of Iowa, and thereupon the United States, through its proper officer or agent, may enter upon the premises and construct the desired work. [29 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-c. United States may purchase or condemn. That where the United States of America has undertaken or may hereafter undertake to improve any river, stream, or watercourse, forming a part of the boundary line of this state, or within this state, or to utilize any river, stream, or watercourse, for any purpose, deemed advisable, the said United States may purchase, or condemn land and private property, in accordance with the provisions of chapter four, title ten of the code, for taking private property. [29 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-d. Additional grounds for state purposes—jury selected by chief justice. Whenever, in the opinion of the executive council of the state, public interest requires the taking of real estate as a site for any state building, or as additional grounds for any existing state building, or for any other state purpose, the state may take and hold, under its right of eminent domain, so much real estate as is necessary for the purpose for which the same is taken; and proceedings may be instituted in the name of the state of Iowa for the condemnation of such real estate under the provisions of chapter four of title ten of the code, except that the members of the sheriff's jury shall be selected by the chief justice of the supreme court of the state of Iowa upon receipt of notice from the sheriff of the county in which the real estate is situated that the application mentioned in code section nineteen hundred ninety-nine has been made to such sheriff, and not more than one member of such jury shall be residents of the same county, and the names and places of residence of each juror so selected by the said chief justice shall be returned by him and filed with said sheriff, and the proceedings shall be conducted by some person appointed by the governor of the state. [35 G. A., ch. 161, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-e. Damages—how paid. When the amount of damages is determined, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall certify the amount thereof to the executive council which shall, by an order endorsed upon the certificate, direct the payment of the same, and the auditor of state shall, upon receipt of such order, issue a warrant on the treasury for the amount, which warrant shall be paid out of any money appropriated by the general assembly for that purpose, or out of any money received from the sale of other property, the proceeds of which may have been authorized by law to be used for the purpose of the purchase of real estate for state use; and when the amount of such damages is paid to the sheriff, the clerk, or the person entitled thereto, the state, through its proper officer or agent, may enter upon the possession of the real estate taken, and use and occupy the same for state purposes. [30 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-f. Courthouses—jails—procedure. Whenever the interest of any county requires real estate for the erection of courthouses or jails by a county, such county may take and hold such real estate for the purpose for which same is taken, by condemnation proceedings. Such proceeding shall be instituted pursuant to a resolution of the board of supervisors of a county, and shall be instituted and prosecuted in the name of the county seeking such condemnation by the county attorney for such county under the provisions of chapter four of title ten of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-g. Same—damages—how paid. In cases where such condemnation is sought by a county, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall, when the amount of the damages is determined, certify the amount thereof to the board of supervisors and such board may direct payment thereof by resolution, and the county auditor shall thereupon issue his warrant therefor upon the proper fund of such county. In any case when the amount of the damages is paid to the sheriff or clerk, or the person entitled thereto, and the time for appeal has expired or final judgment entered upon appeal, the county may enter into possession of the real estate taken, through its proper officers or agents, and use and occupy the same for the purpose taken. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-h. Same—appeals. No county condemning or seeking to condemn land under the provisions of this act, shall be entitled to the possession of the lands condemned or sought to be condemned until the time for appeal to the district or supreme court from such condemnation has expired, or final judgment rendered on appeal, and in all appeals from the award of the sheriff's jury in such proceedings, the court shall have jurisdiction to pass upon the public necessity for the condemnation of such real estate, and shall determine the same without the intervention of a jury, and may make such order with reference thereto as it may deem proper within its discretion, and may modify, enlarge or diminish the area of grounds sought to be condemned, but all questions as to amount of damages shall be determined by ordinary proceedings as in other cases of condemnation. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 3.]

SEC. 2024-i. Gravel and material for road improvement—counties. That section two thousand and twenty-four-i of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following substitute enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of supervisors of any county is hereby authorized and empowered within the limits of such county and without the limits of any city or town, to procure, purchase or condemn, enter upon and take any lands, not to exceed five acres in any one place, for the purpose of obtaining gravel or other suitable material with which to improve the roads and highways of such county including a sufficient roadway to such land by the most reasonable route, and to pay for the same out of the county road funds, and it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of each county, where such material can be found within the county as herein provided, to procure, purchase or condemn such tracts so that no part of the county shall be more than six miles distant from land where such material can be obtained for highway purposes; provided, however, that the board of supervisors shall not be required to purchase such land, but may procure the road material at any place within or without the county when the combined cost of obtaining and hauling the same is not greater than the cost would be by condemnation proceedings under this act. [35 G. A., ch. 164, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-i1. Same—township trustees may use. "The township trustees of any township in such county shall have the right to enter upon, take and use any such land, gravel or other suitable material for the purpose of improving the highways and roads within their respective townships. [35 G. A., ch. 164, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-i2. Same—road improvement organizations—misuse—penalty. "Road improvement companies, corporations, voluntary associations, commercial clubs, road improvement districts, and individual citizens shall have the right to enter upon said land and haul and use said material for public road improvement. Any person, company, corporation or club using said material for any other purpose than public road improvement, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, fined not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days, or both. [35 G. A., ch. 164, § 3.]

SEC. 2024-i3. Same—nonfeasance—removal. "In case the board of supervisors of any county shall fail, neglect or refuse to perform the duty imposed upon them by this act, the members thereof shall be subject to removal from office for failure to perform their duty as provided by chapter seventy-eight of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly as amended." [35 G. A., ch. 164, § 4.]

SEC. 2024-j. Same—cities and towns. Cities and towns including cities under special charter are hereby authorized and empowered within or without their limits to procure, purchase or condemn, enter upon and take any lands for the purpose of obtaining gravel, stone or other suitable material with which to improve the streets and alleys of such city or town, including a suitable roadway thereto by the most reasonable route, and pay for the same from the general fund, grading fund, or from the highway or poll taxes of such city or town, or partly from each of said funds. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-k. Same—condemnation proceedings by cities and towns. Proceedings for condemnation of land as contemplated in this act shall be in accordance with the provisions relating to taking private property for works of internal improvements. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 3.]

SEC. 2024-l. Same—reversion of lands. When lands that have been condemned and taken under this act, and not used for the purpose herein specified for the period of five consecutive years, such lands shall then revert to the owner or owners of the tract from which it was taken. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 4.]

SEC. 2026. Interurban or street railway over highways. That section two thousand and twenty-six of the supplement to the code, [1902] and chapter eighty-seven of the acts of the thirty-first general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any interurban or street railway may for the purpose of constructing or extending its line locate, build and operate its road by any power other than steam, over and along any portion of the public road, beyond the limits of any city or town, which is one hundred feet or more wide. It shall as soon as practicable put the road in as good repair as it was before its use for such railway. Boards of supervisors are authorized to accept for road purposes conveyances of land adjoining any such road or part thereof sufficient to increase the same to the width of one hundred feet; but in any county in which such company desires to operate its line of railway over a road not less than sixty feet in width, for a distance not over two miles, beyond the limits of a city or town, the board of supervisors may grant the right to it to operate its line over said road, not exceeding two miles, under such rules and regulations as said board may prescribe, and may also from time to time make such further reasonable regulations as may be necessary. Where an interurban railway desires to operate its lines along or upon a public highway beyond the limits of any city or town, and in the opinion of the board of supervisors of the county in which such highway is located, it is impracticable or inexpedient to increase the width thereof to one hundred feet, such board of supervisors may permit such interurban railway company to construct and operate its railway along and upon such highway, under such restrictions and regulations as the board may deem advisable; but no such railway shall construct or operate its line along or upon such highway until a written statement of consent of two thirds of the residents owning property abutting upon such highway shall have been obtained and filed with the auditor of the county in which the highway is located; but no such written consent signed by any abutting landowner shall be construed to waive any claim for damages he may have on account of the location and construction of such railway upon and along the highway in front of the premises unless expressly so stated therein, and no such written consent shall have the effect to deprive any other abutting landowner of his right to recover damages therefor. And in all cases the location, construction and operation of such interurban railway shall be subject to the provisions of section two thousand and twenty-seven of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 97; 31 G. A., ch. 87; 29 G. A., ch. 81, § 5; 18 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.]

The provisions of the act from which this section is derived related entirely to street railways and a street railway which is thus extended beyond the city limits along the public highway to a neighboring city or town does not become subject to taxation under the provisions relating to taxation of railroads. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 106–476, 76 N. W. 728.

Under the provisions of code § 1334, which now control the taxation of interurban railways, an electric railway constructed and operated along the highway outside of the city limits is to be taxed as an interurban railway, being now so defined by code supp. § 2033-a. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125–430, 101 N. W. 176.

The distinctive or peculiar privilege given to an interurban railway is the right under certain conditions to occupy and use the public roads as a right of way and it is doubtless due to this fact that such railways are required to use some motive power other than steam. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

SEC. 2028. Ways to lands which have none. Any person, corporation or copartnership owning or leasing any land not having a public or private way thereto, may have a public way to any railway station, street or highway established over the land of another, not exceeding forty feet in width, to be located on a division, subdivision or "forty" line or immediately adjacent thereto; but if a railway is to be constructed thereon, as provided in section two thousand and thirty-one, the same may be located wherever necessary and practicable, but not exceeding one hundred feet in width, and not interfering with buildings, orchards, gardens or cemeteries; and when the same shall be constructed it shall, when passing through inclosed land, be fenced on both sides by the person or corporation causing it to be established. [33 G. A., ch. 123, § 1.] · [29 G. A., ch. 82, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 18; 15 G. A., ch. 34, § 1.]

One whose property is not reached by a public highway may have an outlet to the highway established at his expense. Perry v. Board of Supervisors, 133–281, 110 N. W. 591.

One who petitions for the establishment of a public way cannot be defeated by a showing that proceedings to establish a public highway along the same line have been defeated, where it does not appear that the party asking the establishment of the way was a party to the proceeding for establishing the highway. Kirkhart v. Roberts, 123–137, 98 N. W. 562.

The provisions relating to the establishment of right of ways to mines are to be construed together and it is only on a public way such as is authorized to be located under this section, that a railway may be established under § 2031. Morrison v. Thistle Coal Co., 119–705, 94 N. W. 507.

The right of way for a railway thus established is a public way, even though it is not maintained so as to be available for use by the traveler otherwise than by use of railway cars. Ibid.

The requirement of this section, before its amendment by 29 G. A., ch. 82, that such right of way, not exceeding forty feet in width, may be located on a division line or immediately adjacent thereto, did not render it improper where, by reason of making a reasonably convenient curve, it was necessary to construct a portion of the track more than forty feet from a division line. Ibid.

Unless a party has a way either public or private which is unobstructed and unquestioned, he may institute proceedings for condemnation of a highway through his premises. Carter v. Barkley, 137–510, 115 N. W. 21.

The statute seems to contemplate that a public way may be condemned on the application of one who does not have any public or private right of way to his land. The fact that he may be entitled to a way by necessity which is uncertain and worthless does not deprive him of the right to have a way condemned. Miller v. Kramer, 148–460, 126 N. W. 931.

Prior to the amendment of this section eliminating the requirement that the right of way be on a division line or immediately adjacent thereto, held that the fact that the condemnation would result in severing a small portion of the land of an owner from the balance of his tract was not sufficient ground for refusing the condemnation. Such damage could be taken into account in determining the allowance of damage to be made to such owner. Ibid.

In an action to enjoin the establishment of a way over land under this section, held that owners of land over which the defendant might have a right of way were neither necessary nor proper parties. Miller v. Kramer, 154–523, 134 N. W. 538.

SEC. 2032. Rights of riparian owners.

It has been the legislative policy of the state to allow the fee owners of adjacent shore lands along a navigable river to build piers, cribs and other convenient erections to be used in connection with navigation and commerce. But the riparian proprietor only owns to high-water mark. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

CHAPTER 4-A.

OF INTERURBAN RAILWAYS.

SECTION 2033-a. Definition. Any railway operated upon the streets of a city or town by electric or other power than steam, which extends beyond the corporate limits of such city or town to another city, town or village, or any railway operated by electric or other power than steam, extending from one city, town or village to another city, town or village, shall be known as an interurban railway, and shall be a work of internal improvement. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 1.]

The provision that the portion of an interurban railway system within the corporate limits of a city shall be subject to municipality regulation does not destroy its character as a part of the system for the purposes of taxation. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125–430, 101 N. W. 176.

An interurban railway is a railway operated by other power than steam and extending beyond the corporate limits of a city or town to another city or town. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

SEC. 2033-b. What statutes apply. The words railway, railway company, railway corporation, railroad, railroad company, and railroad corporation, as used in the code and acts of the general assembly, now in force or hereafter enacted, are hereby declared to apply to and include all interurban railways, and all companies or corporations constructing, owning or operating such interurban street railways, and all provisions of the code and acts of the general assembly, now in force or hereafter enacted, affecting railways, railway companies, railway corporations, railroads, railroad companies and railroad corporations, are hereby declared to affect and apply in full force and effect to all interurban railways, and to all interurban railway companies or railway corporations constructing, owning or operating such interurban railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 2.]

The provisions of this section render code § 2072, requiring the ringing of a bell and the blowing of a whistle on approaching a highway crossing, applicable to interurban railways. Swisher v. Interurban R. Co., 151–384, 130 N. W. 404.

SEC. 2033-c. When deemed a street railway. Any interurban railway shall within the corporate limits of any city or town, or of any city acting under a special charter, upon such streets as it shall use for transporting passengers, mail, baggage, and such parcels, packages, and freight as it may carry in its passenger or combination baggage cars only, be deemed a street railway, and be subject to the laws governing street railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 3.]

An interurban line which includes a city street car system may be taxed by the executive council as a unit. Waterloo & C. F. R. T. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 131–237, 108 N. W. 316; Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125–430, 101 N. W. 176.

An interurban railway, so far as it is operated within the limits of a city, does not come within the terms of code § 2071, declaring that a railway company is liable to an employe for injuries resulting from the negligence of a coemploye. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 125–270, 101 N. W. 77.

This statutory provision was evidently intended to regulate crossings outside of cities and not to interfere with the authority of cities within their limits. Council Bluffs v. Illinois Central R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 891.

SEC. 2033-d. Powers of cities and towns. Cities and towns and cities acting under special charters shall have power to authorize or forbid the construction of such railways upon, or over, or along the streets, alleys and public grounds within their limits and to prescribe the conditions and regulations under which said railways shall be constructed and operated within said limits. But the right to operate as a street railway under section three of this act shall not be granted for a period exceeding twenty-five years. Nothing herein shall impair the obligation of contracts of such city or town heretofore made. This act shall not in any manner affect sections seven hundred seventy-five and seven hundred seventy-six of the code, which shall be applicable to interurban railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 4.]

SEC. 2033-e. Grade crossings — duties of employes — penalty. Wherever the tracks of an interurban railway cross the tracks of any steam railway at grade the steam railway shall have the right of way and not be compelled to stop its trains and the interurban railway company operating said line shall cause its cars to come to a full stop not nearer than ten feet nor further than fifty feet from such crossing, and before proceeding to cross said steam railway tracks shall cause some person in its employ first to cross said track ahead of said car or cars and ascertain if the way is clear and free from danger for the passage of said interurban cars, and said interurban cars shall not proceed to cross until signalled to do so by such person employed as aforesaid, or said way is clear for such passage over said tracks. Every person in charge of any interurban car or cars, who wilfully fails to comply with the provisions hereof and fails to bring the car or cars which he has in charge to [a] stop, or causes the same to cross said steam railway tracks before the way is clear or he is signaled to do so, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed twelve months in the discretion of the court. No steam railway shall obstruct the free passage of the cars of an intersecting interurban railway at such crossing. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 6.]

SEC. 2033-f. Automobile railway—statutes applicable. Any system of railway operating cars within the state of Iowa over or upon any track other than steel or iron shall be known as an automobile railway, and shall be a work of internal improvement. The words "railway," "railway company," "railway corporation," "railroad," "railroad company" or "railroad corporation," as used in the code and acts of the general assembly now in force or hereafter enacted, are hereby declared to apply to, and include, automobile railways, and all companies or corporations owning or operating such automobile railways, and all provisions of the code and acts of the general assembly now in force or hereafter enacted affecting railways, railway companies, railway corporations, railroads, railroad companies or railroad corporations, are hereby declared to affect and apply in full force and effect to all automobile railways and to all automobile railway companies owning or operating such automobile railways. [32 G. A., ch. 98.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF RAILWAYS.

SECTION 2036. May join or consolidate.

A lease of railroad property for a long period of time is not void under the statutory provision against the creation of perpetuities. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124; First Nat. Bank v. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co., 69 Fed. 441.

SEC. 2038-a. Powers in other states. That any railroad corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of this state and owning and operating a railroad therein shall be authorized and empowered to exercise in any other state or territory of the United States in which it may control or operate a connecting line or lines of railway the powers and privileges conferred upon it by its articles of incorporation and all powers, privileges and franchises conferred upon railroad corporations under and by virtue of the laws of Iowa or of such other state or territory, for the purposes set forth in section two hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

SEC. 2038-b. May purchase, lease, control or operate extension in other states. That any railroad corporation so organized under the laws of Iowa and owning and operating a railroad therein may lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire and own, control or operate any connecting extension of its said railroad not parallel or competing therewith, in any other state or territory of the United States, and to that end may purchase and control the stock, bonds or securities of any such extension if not contrary to the laws of such other state or territory. [29 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2039. Duties and liabilities of lessees.

A special assessment on railway property for improvement of abutting streets cannot be collected directly from the lessee where the lessee has not undertaken to pay such assessment. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112–300, 83 N. W. 1074.

A construction company operating engines and cars over a temporary track in the construction of a railroad is engaged in the operation of a railroad within the provisions of code § 2071, providing that every corporation operating a railway shall be liable to its employes for all damages sustained in consequence of the negligence of coemployes. Mace v. Boedker, 127–721, 104 N. W. 475.

It being the primary duty of the owner of a railroad to construct and maintain bridges over ditches provided for the passage of surface water, the lessee of the road is liable in damages for a negligent obstruction of water by such bridge causing damage to property. De Lashmutt v Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 148–556, 126 N W. 359.

SEC. 2041. Bonds—mortgages.

By statute the company has express authority to mortgage after-acquired property, and by that statutory provision, when the power to mortgage exists, the right to incumber after-acquired property is necessarily included. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

SEC. 2042. After-acquired property.

The statute expressly authorizes any corporation organized under the state law for the purpose of constructing and operating a railway, to mortgage its franchise and all its property, whether acquired before or after the execution of the mortgage. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124.

SEC. 2043. Execution of mortgages.

A railroad company is in many respects purely a private corporation, and it may bind itself by an ultra vires mortgage, which is not against public policy, by accepting and retaining the benefits thereof. Beach v. Wakefield, 107–567, 76 N. W. 688, 78 N. W. 197.

SEC. 2049. Bonds secured by mortgage.

The provisions of this section are not inconsistent with those of code § 1611 as to the limitation of the indebtedness of a railroad corporation. Barnes v. Eastern Iowa R. Co., 155–721, 134 N. W. 90, 136 N. W. 1053.

SEC. 2051. Conditional sale or lease of equipment or rolling stock. In any contract for the sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock or power house, electric or other equipment of street or interurban railways or of electric light and power companies or of steam heating companies, such equipment including engines, boilers, generators, switch boards, transformers, motors and other machinery and appliances, it may be agreed that the title thereto, although possession thereof be delivered immediately or at any time or times subsequently, shall not vest in the purchaser until the purchase price shall be fully paid, or that the seller shall have and retain a lien thereon for the unpaid purchase money. In any contract for the leasing or hiring of such property, it may be stipulated for a conditional sale thereof at the termination of such contract, and that the rentals or amounts to be received under such contract may, as paid, be applied and treated as purchase money, and that the title to the property shall not vest in the lessee or bailee until the purchase price shall have been paid in full, and until the terms of the contract shall have been fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by such lessee or bailee; but no such contract shall be valid as against any subsequent judgment creditor, or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless

1. The same shall be evidenced by an instrument executed by the parties and acknowledged by the vendee, or lessee, or bailee, as the case may be, in the same manner as deeds are acknowledged or proved;

2. Such instrument shall be filed for record in the office of the secretary of state;

3. Each locomotive engine, stationary engine, boiler, switch board, transformer, motor, other piece of machinery or appliance or car sold, leased or hired as aforesaid shall have the name of the vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side thereof, followed by the word "owner," "lessor" or "bailor," as the case may be. [32 G. A., ch. 99; 25 G. A., ch. 28, § 1.]

SEC. 2052. Recording. The contracts herein authorized shall be recorded by the secretary of state in a book of records to be kept for that purpose, and, on payment in full of the purchase money and the performance of the terms and conditions stipulated in any such contract, a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by the vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, which declaration may be made on the margin of the record of the contract, duly attested, or it may be made by a separate instrument, to be acknowledged by the vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. For such services the secretary of state shall be entitled to a fee of ten cents per hundred words for recording each of the contracts and each of said declarations but in no case shall the fee be less than one dollar and a fee of one dollar for noting such declaration on the margin of the record. [31 G. A., ch. 88; 25 G. A., ch. 28, § 2.]

SEC. 2054. Cattle guards—crossings—signs.

The statute absolutely requires railroad companies to construct specified crossings wherever their road crosses public streets or highways and makes them absolutely liable for failure to do so. The provision for notice when there has been such failure and for the construction thereof by the municipal or other authorities is for the protection and accommodation of the public only and does not affect or lessen the duties or liability of the delinquent company. See v. Wabash R. Co., 123–443, 99 N. W. 106.

An approach to a crossing situated on the company's right of way is a part of the crossing which the company is bound to construct. Ibid.

The duty to erect a crossing necessarily implies a duty to maintain it. Ibid.

In an action for personal injuries resulting from a defect in such crossing or approach the burden of proof is on the defendant to show contributory negligence upon the part of the plaintiff. Ibid.

The company may be held liable for not taking precautions at highway crossings for the protection of those in the rightful use of the highway. Oliver v. Iowa Central R. Co., 122–217, 97 N. W. 1072.

But a person sui juris voluntarily and unnecessarily placing himself in a position of known danger cannot recover from the railroad company for injuries received, although the company has been negligent in not taking steps to protect him from danger. Ibid.

In the absence of some controlling reason to the contrary, highways are to be improved so that the travel shall pass along the middle line of the land appropriated therefor and a railroad company cannot complain of the assumption that it constructed its crossing at the place thus fixed by legal presumption. The statute requires cattle guards and fences to be placed along the line of the highway. Craig v. Wabash R. Co., 121–471, 96 N. W. 965.

In an action to recover damages resulting to an employe by reason of a defective cattle guard, a plea of contributory negligence may be quite different from an allegation in the petition that plaintiff was free from contributory negligence. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106–85, 75 N. W. 650.

Where an animal had gone upon the right of way over a defective cattle guard and had afterwards escaped across such guard to the highway and was there killed, held that it did not necessarily appear that it was not killed by reason of the defective cattle guard and the company might be liable. Riley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104–235, 73 N. W. 488.

. The company is required to make proper cattle guards and it is only on its neglect or refusal to do so that the provisions of this section apply. The burden of showing such neglect or refusal is on the party asking damages on account thereof. O'Mara v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 140–190, 118 N. W. 377.

The fact that portions of lots abutting upon a street improvement are covered by railroad tracks does not prevent the company owning such lots from being liable for its proportion of the entire improvement. Des Moines U. R. Co. v. Des Moines, 140–218, 118 N. W. 293.

The requirement of cattle guards and wing fences is not applicable to private crossings under code § 2022. Rutherford v. Iowa Central R. Co., 142–744, 121 N. W. 703.

SEC. 2055. Failure to fence—liability for stock killed—speed at depots.

Failure to provide fences and cattle guards: The fact that the railroad company allows a portion of its right of way to remain open for use of the public as a highway does not relieve it from liability for stock killed on such portion of its right of way where it does not appear that the dedication of such portion of the right of way to the public has been accepted by it. Sarver v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 104–59, 73 N. W. 498.

The fact that fencing would involve a cattle guard at the place where a spur track leaves the main track does not constitute an excuse for not maintaining a fence at such place. Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104–63, 73 N. W. 477.

The issue under a general denial in an action to recover for injuries to stock on a right of way raises simply the question whether the company has the right to fence its right of way at the point involved, and not the question whether it has a legal excuse for not so doing. Ibid.

There is no liability for a failure to fence unless the injury is caused thereby. Norman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 110–283, 81 N. W. 597.

Upon proof of the failure of the railroad company to fence its track at the point where an animal comes upon the right of way from adjoining premises and is killed a prima-facie case is made out for the recovery of damages for the killing of the animal, and to escape such liability the company attempting to relieve itself from the duty of maintaining a fence on account of an arrangement with the adjoining property owner by which such fence is to be maintained by him, has the burden of proof. The voluntary construction of some kind of a fence by the adjoining landowner will not excuse the company from erecting such fence as is required by law. Craig v. Wabash R. Co., 121–471, 96 N. W. 965.

It is the track, and not the right of way, which is required to be fenced, and where the track was laid on a bridge and the right of way under the bridge was left unfenced, and cattle passed through from an adjoining field under the bridge onto the highway, and were killed at the highway crossing, held that the railroad company was not liable by reason of the want of a fence. Cagwin v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 113–175, 84 N. W. 1032.

A railroad company is not responsible for stock killed by reason of the want of fences along its right of way through the platted portion of a city where its track is intersected with streets and alleys. Gibson v. Iowa Central R. Co., 136–415, 113 N. W. 927.

Whether or not the place where stock is killed is a place where the company has a right to fence is a question of law for the court, if the facts are undisputed. Ibid.

Defective fence or cattle guard: The finding in a particular case that stock got on the right of way through a defective gate held sufficiently supported by evidence indicating that the gate was liable to come open by reason of the action of the wind. Huss v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 113–343, 85 N. W. 627.

Failure to repair upon notice or within a reasonable time is a failure to fence within the statutory provision. Daily v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 121–254, 96 N. W. 778.

Although a proper fence is maintained at the boundary of the right of way, yet if there is another fence nearer the track, leaving a lane between the two fences to which stock have access from the highway or adjoining premises, the fence next to the track is a railway fence within the meaning of code § 2055, making a railway company liable for the killing of stock which have gone upon the track by reason of defects in such fence. Ibid.

Animals coming into this open way from adjoining premises are running at large within the meaning of the statute, and the company is liable for damages if such animals get upon the track by reason of defect in the fence adjoining the track and are killed. Ibid.

The company being charged with the duty of maintaining proper and sufficient gates at private crossings is bound to use ordinary care and prudence in the construction of such gates, but is not charged with an absolute liability for the results of defects therein. It will not be liable for the results of the defective condition arising from use or decay unless it has actual notice of the defects or in the exercise of reasonable care should have had notice and a sufficient time has elapsed within which to make repairs. Notice may be inferred from lapse of time and the question of notice and the reasonable time for repair or reconstruction are for the jury. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124–170, 99 N. W. 697.

The owner of stock can recover for injury thereto on the right of way only upon proof of want of repair in the fence, where that is complained of, and that the condition was known to the defendant or had existed for such length of time that knowledge should be imputed to it. Klay v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126–671, 102 N. W. 526.

Under a notice claiming damages on account of the killing of an animal going upon the track because of a defective fence, plaintiff may recover on proof that the accident occurred by reason of a defective cattle guard. Boyer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123–248, 98 N. W. 764.

To relieve the company from liability for the killing of an animal coming upon the right of way across a cattle guard, it must appear that the guard was reasonably sufficient for the purpose intended. Campbell v. Iowa Central R. Co., 124–248, 99 N. W. 1061.

Where a cattle guard is defective by reason of being filled up with sand and gravel so that animals may readily pass over the same from the highway to the portion of the right of way which is fenced, the company is liable for killing such animals on the fenced portion of the right of way after they have passed thereon from the highway. Pothast v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 110–458, 81 N. W. 693.

Where an animal gets upon a right of way over a cattle guard which is defective by reason of being filled up with snow, an action for the death of the animal falls within the provisions of this section. Paul v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 120–224, 94 N. W. 498.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to sustain a verdict against a railroad company for killing of stock by reason of a defective fence. Kling v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 115–133, 88 N. W. 355.

Where abutting owners have at their own expense changed an open crossing to a closed crossing by fences, they cannot recover for stock killed on the track which has passed through the gate in such fence, negligently left open by a trespasser. Weaver v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 146–149, 124 N. W. 1088.

Where the fence, as originally constructed, was sufficient, the duty of the railroad company is to use ordinary and reasonable care to maintain the same and keep it in repair and the burden is on the plaintiff to show negligence in that respect. Latta v. Illinois Central R. Co., 151–244, 130 N. W. 1059.

Negligence: Where the track is enclosed for a long distance each way from the place of accident and train men have no reason to expect that stock will be on the right of way at such place, there is no duty owed to the owner of the stock until their presence is discovered, and then the company owes only the duty of using ordinary care to avoid injury to such stock. Mears v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 103–203, 72 N. W. 509.

Where a gate at a crossing is such as is commonly in use and is in good order and the railroad company is not negligent in keeping it closed, it will not be liable for stock killed on the right of way going thereon through such gate, unless it is negligent in the operation of its trains with reference to such stock. Ibid.

The liability of the railroad company for stock coming upon the right of way on account of a failure to fence does not depend on the negligence of the employes operating the train. Mikesell v. Wabash R. Co., 134–736, 112 N. W. 201.

If an animal comes upon the right of way through a defective fence and becoming frightened by the operation of a hand car from which it attempts to escape is injured at a cattle guard, the company is liable. Ibid.

In an action based on negligent killing of cattle at a crossing, it is sufficient to allege the failure to give the warning signals and to stop the train after the cattle were or should have been discovered in the exercise of reasonable care. It is not necessary to state the causes of the failure of duty and charge the same as independent matters of negligence. Barnard v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 133–185, 110 N. W. 439.

Under a claim to recover damages for stock killed within city limits where the company has no right to fence, it is incumbent on the plaintiff to show not only the killing of his stock by a passing train but that this killing was due to the negligence of the defendant's employes; and it is not enough to show circumstances consistent with such negligence but the circumstances must negative every other reasonable hypothesis. Gibson v. Iowa Central R. Co., 136–415, 113 N. W. 927.

Negligence of owner: The mere fact that the owner knows that a gate separating his premises from the right of way is broken down will not as a matter of law preclude his recovery for killing of his animals which go upon the right of way through such gate. Contributory negligence alone will not defeat the owner's recovery. Enix v. Iowa Central R. Co., 114–508, 87 N. W. 417.

Contributory negligence of the owner of the stock does not defeat recovery if the animals are killed through the negligence of the company. Barnard v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 133–185, 110 N. W. 439.

Evidence—burden of proof: In an action for killing a horse which had passed through a right of way gate upon the track, held that the evidence was sufficient to justify the submission to the jury of the question as to how the gate became open. Titus v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 128–194, 103 N. W. 343.

If it appears that a right of way gate has been opened by stock so that an animal gets upon the right of way and is injured, it is then for the jury to determine whether the gate was sufficient in its construction and fastening. Ibid.

Proof of changes in such gate made by the railway company after the accident is inadmissible. Ibid.

If the fence through which stock go upon the right of way is not such as is required by the statute, the company is liable in double damages for the injury. Ibid.

In an action for the killing of an animal coming on the right of way through a gate, evidence is admissible tending to show the general construction of the gate, manner of use, the material of which it was constructed and the kind of fastening used, in order that the jury may determine whether or not the company was negligent in its construction. But the company is not to be charged with any other negligence in that respect than that related in the petition. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124–170, 99 N. W. 697.

In an action to recover damages for killing of stock, which it is claimed came upon the enclosed portion of the right of way over a cattle guard from a highway crossing, it is competent to show that the cattle guard was out of order and ineffective. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122–32, 96 N. W. 984.

It appearing that an animal had gone upon the track through a defective fence and there was killed, throws upon the company the burden of proving freedom from negligence. Daily v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 121–254, 96 N. W. 778.

Where the question was as to whether a gate in the right of way fence was sufficient, it was held error to permit a witness to testify that he did not think such gate was sufficient. Collins v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122–231, 97 N. W. 1103.

The provisions of this section as to burden of proof were not designed to dispense with all proof by the owner except as to injury or destruction of his property. Before a prima-facie case is made out the plaintiff must show an original want or subsequent insufficiency of the fence or cattle guard at a place where the cattle come onto the right of way. Then the burden is on the company to show that the defect was without its knowledge in the exercise of reasonable care,—that is, that after the construction of such a fence or cattle guard a defective condition has arisen and that this defect has not continued for such a time that in the exercise of reasonable care this defect should have been discovered. O'Mara v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 140–190, 118 N. W. 377.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the jury was justified in finding that the animal killed was struck upon the right of way and not upon the highway. Klay v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126–671, 102 N. W. 526.

Speed at depot grounds: Liability for injury to stock on account of operating trains on the depot grounds at a greater rate of speed than eight miles per hour where no fence is built, is limited to stock running at large and is not applicable to stock driven by and under the control of the owner or his servant. Strever v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106–137, 76 N. W. 513.

Measure of damages: One who has stock killed on the right of way as the result of a defective cattle guard over which the animals have come upon the right of way, may recover the value of the animals, and is not limited to the average value of such stock in general. Therefore, where the action was for the killing of a brood mare it was held competent to show the number of her foals as tending to show a special value for breeding qualities. Campbell v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 124–248, 99 N. W. 1061.

In proving the value of a mare killed on the right of way evidence is competent to show that she was with foal. Boyer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123–248, 98 N. W. 764.

Notice: The misnaming of the defendant in a notice with reference to the killing of stock by designating it as a "railway" instead of a "railroad" company is immaterial, actual notice having been served on the defendant. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122–32, 96 N. W. 984.

It is not essential that the jurat to the affidavit shall state that it was sworn to in the presence of or before the notary who verifies the fact by his certificate.

That fact is presumed from the official statement that the affidavit was sworn to, which statement is made over the notary's official seal and is signed by him as a notary public. Ibid.

The statute does not require the notice to deal in details nor is it essential that the notice state that the loss occurred in the county, as a loss occurring elsewhere would not be the subject of an action of which notice could be served on an agent within the county where the suit is brought. Latta v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 151–244, 130 N. W. 1059.

In such an action, it is incumbent upon plaintiff to prove notice to the defendant, actual or constructive, that the fence was out of repair. Ibid.

Double damages: Where the notice and affidavit were sufficient to put the railroad company upon inquiry, which, if diligently pursued, would have led to a discovery of the facts concerning plaintiff's claim, held that that was sufficient, although there was a discrepancy between them. Brammer v. Wabash R. Co., 112–375, 83 N. W. 1048.

The liability for double damages is provided for only if the stock is running at large when killed, and not if at that time it is in the charge of or under the control of the owner. Morris v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 133–28, 110 N. W. 154.

The company having failed to pay in accordance with a notice and affidavit of loss and it appearing that the action is properly maintainable for double damages, the court may give judgment for twice the value of the animal as found by the jury; or if the jury renders a verdict, which upon inquiry the court finds to have been for the value of the animal only, the jury may be allowed to correct their verdict accordingly. Campbell v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 124–248, 99 N. W. 1061.

A concession by counsel for plaintiff during the progress of the trial that there is no right to recover double damages is not binding on the court in rendering judgment, the facts necessary to entitle the plaintiff to recover double damages having been established. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122–32, 96 N. W. 984.

It is only the wilful act of the owner which will defeat his recovery for animals passing through a defective gate or fence and killed on the right of way by the operation of trains. Claus v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 136–7, 111 N. W. 15.

[The last reference in the notes to this section in the original code is erroneous. It should be Schurr v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 98–418, 67 N. W. 280.]

SEC. 2056. Damages by fire.

Ordinary care: The statute does not make a railroad company absolutely liable for fires set out by it. Ordinary and reasonable care on the part of the company is all that is required. But ordinary care demands the use of the best known and most appropriate appliances for preventing the escape of fire. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 128–386, 104 N. W. 361.

Where the company has offered testimony tending to show the condition of the engine at the time when a fire is set out, it is not improper for the court to instruct as to the duty of the company in providing proper appliances. Helverson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 139–423, 116 N. W. 699.

Presumption—burden of proof: The fact that fire is set out by sparks from an engine creates a presumption of negligence on the part of the railroad company which may be overcome by proof that it was not guilty of negligence. Swanson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116–304, 89 N. W. 1088; Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117–344, 90 N. W. 708.

The provision of this section throwing the burden of proof on the company to escape liability from loss due to fires is not applicable to fires set out by section men on the right of way. Connors v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 111–384, 82 N. W. 953.

Aside from the provisions of this section, the escape of sparks from a locomotive is not in itself proof of negligence in its operation, and where an employe claimed to be injured by reason of sparks and cinders striking him in the eye, held that proof of the accident was not in itself evidence of negligence on the part of the company. Duree v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 118–640, 92 N. W. 890.

Before the enactment of the fire statute it had uniformly been held in this state that negligence of the company would not be presumed from proof of the setting out of fire alone. But it was also held that the setting out of two or more fires by the same engine would constitute some evidence of negligence. And where the evidence indicated that the fires might have been set out by reason of the negligent use of slack coal in the engine, held that there was enough evidence on the subject of negligence to take the case to the jury. Glanz v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119–611, 93 N. W. 575.

The fact of a fire caused by the operation of a railroad company having been shown, a presumption of negligence on the part of the company follows without further proof. Kennedy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 119–29, 91 N. W. 831.

But the company may contract for exemptions from liability for its negligence in causing fires to property permitted by it to be located upon its right of way. Ibid.

The presumption arising from proof of the fire is to be given the effect of substantive evidence of negligence. It does not have merely the effect of changing the burden of proof. Stewart v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 136–182, 113 N. W. 764.

On proof of damage sustained from a fire set out by a locomotive engine the burden is on the company to exonerate itself from the charge of negligence. But nothing more is required than that the defendant shall show freedom from negligence in the respects charged in the petition. The plaintiff cannot base his claim on one kind of negligence and recover on another. Volquardsen v. Iowa Telephone Co., 148–77, 126 N. W. 928.

This statutory provision creates a presumption of negligence where a fire is caused in the operation of a railroad. If there is evidence tending to rebut this presumption, the question is for the jury. Iowa Cent. R. Co. v. Hampton Elec. L. & P. Co., (C. C. A.) 204 Fed. 961.

Measure of damages: Where one's meadow has been destroyed he is entitled to recover its value, which may be ascertained by finding what it would cost to reproduce or restore it. The rule is different as to the destruction of trees. Bradley v. Iowa Central R. Co., 111–562, 82 N. W. 996.

Where land has been appropriated to a particular purpose as by converting it into an orchard or a meadow or planting it to a crop which is already growing, the loss occasioned by a fire destroying the meadow or orchard or crop is to be determined with reference to such existing condition. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122–32, 96 N. W. 984.

When trees, shrubs or meadow are destroyed the measure of damages is at least the difference in value between the land as it was before the injury and its value afterward and the loss of rental value on account of the loss. Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117–344, 90 N. W. 708.

The rule of damages for the destruction of a hedge is the difference in value of the entire farm of plaintiff before and after its destruction, and the value of the hedge may be taken into account in determining the amount of the injury. Swanson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116–304, 89 N. W. 1088; Thompson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116–215, 89 N. W. 975.

In such case plaintiff is entitled to recover the value of the grass destroyed, as well as the expense of restoring the meadow. Ibid.

Evidence: In case of the destruction of a meadow, the value of the meadow burned may be determined by comparison with the condition of the remainder of the meadow at the time of the trial. Ibid.

In an action to recover damages for injury to a meadow by fire, evidence as to the effect of fire on another meadow under substantially similar circumstances is admissible. Proximity of the two meadows is not important, the competency of the evidence depending on similarity of the conditions. Castner v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 126–581, 102 N. W. 499.

In an action to recover damages for loss of property by fire set out by a railroad engine, evidence of witnesses that they had seen engines of the defendant throw sparks a distance from the track as far as the place where the fire in question started, is competent as bearing on the question whether the fire could have been occasioned by sparks from an engine. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122–32, 96 N. W. 984.

On the question whether the fire was set by sparks from defendant's locomotive, witnesses may testify that within a few minutes after the passing of a locomotive the fire was discovered. Ibid.

When grass land and meadow land is destroyed, the rule of damage is the cost of restoring it to its former condition and its rental value as such until restored. Pascal v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 141 N. W. 920.

Liability for personal injuries from fire: Where it appeared that the wife of the owner of farm buildings had been injured by being burned while attempting to protect the premises against fire, and had been made ill by overexertion in so doing, held that the railroad company being chargeable with negligence in setting out such fire, was liable, regardless of statutory provisions. Glanz v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119–611, 93 N. W. 575.

The provisions of this section as to liability for damages resulting from fires set out apply only to injuries to property, and not to injuries to the person. Duree v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 118–640, 92 N. W. 890.

SEC. 2057. Fences required. That section two thousand and fifty-seven of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All railway corporations owning or operating a line of railway within the state shall construct, maintain, and keep in repair a suitable fence of posts and barb wire, or woven wire, or both combined, or posts and boards, or any other fence which the fence viewers shall determine to be equivalent thereto, on each side of the track thereof, so connected with cattle guards at all public road crossings as to prevent cattle, horses, sheep, swine, and other live stock from getting on the railroad tracks. Such tracks shall be fenced within six months after the completion of the same or any part thereof. Such fence, when of barb wire, shall be of five wires; when of barb wire and woven wire, it shall consist of three barb wires above and woven wire not less than twenty-four inches wide at the bottom, or it may consist entirely of woven wire, in which event the woven wire shall be not less than fifty inches wide; all of the above to be securely fastened to posts not more than twenty feet apart, the top of such fences to be not less than fifty-four inches high; or such fences may consist of five boards, securely nailed to posts set not more than eight feet apart, and to be not less than fifty-four inches high; provided, however, that, where such fences are constructed entirely of barb wire, in addition to the above, on the written request of any person owning land abutting such right of way who has constructed, and is maintaining around his said land, or any part thereof, a hog-tight fence on all sides thereof except along such right of way, such railroad corporations shall reinforce such right of way fence with such additional barb or woven wire as is necessary to make it hog-tight. Fences repaired or rebuilt shall conform to the foregoing provisions. Nothing in this or the following sections shall be construed to compel a railway company operating a third-class line to fence its roads through the land of any farmer or other person who by written agreement with such company waives the fencing thereof." [32 G. A., ch. 100; 22 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.]

The purpose of specifying what shall be a sufficient fence is to fix absolutely the liability of the company for injury to animals going upon the right of way through a fence, unless it complies with the requirements of statute. Titus v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 128–194, 103 N. W. 343.

The railroad company erecting and maintaining gates at private crossings must construct them with an efficiency corresponding to the requirements as to a fence. Claus v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 136–7, 111 N. W. 15.

If, the railroad company having constructed a proper gate, the owner leaves it open and his animals enter on the right of way, the company is not liable; but if the gate is not such as is required his act in leaving it open will not relieve the company from liability for animals passing through such open gate upon the right of way and being injured by the operation of trains. Ibid.

SEC. 2063. Proposed crossing.

Where a railroad about to be constructed is to cross one already constructed, the former must bear the expense of interlocking. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114–502, 87 N. W. 410.

The right to use a crossing already established cannot be made to depend upon payment of the entire cost of an interlocking system. Manhattan Trust Co. v. Sioux City & N. R. Co., 81 Fed. 50.

Where one railroad company is bound to pay the expense of an interlocking system, the other company is bound to contribute to the expense of the maintenance thereof. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gowrie & N. W. R. Co., 123–543, 99 N. W. 181.

SEC. 2064. Apportionment of costs.

The provisions of this section as to apportionment relate only to the costs of the proceedings, and not to the expense of the interlocking device. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114–502, 87 N. W. 410.

SEC. 2066. Sale or lease of railroad property—joint arrangement.

A railway may contract with connecting lines to carry beyond its line, subject only to the qualification that under such agreement arbitrary rates cannot be fixed which are discriminatory in their nature. Bras v. McConnell, 114–401, 87 N. W. 290.

The fact that the railroad company is authorized to lease its road does not relieve it from liability for damages during use by the lessee due to the surface water resulting from an insufficient bridge over a ditch. In such case there may be joint liability of both the owner and the lessee. De Lashmutt v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 148–556, 126 N. W. 359.

SEC. 2071. Liability for negligence or wrongs of employes—personal injury—contributory negligence. Every corporation operating a railway shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person, including employes of such corporation, in consequence of the neglect of the agents, or by any mismanagement of the engineers or other employes thereof, and in consequence of the wilful wrongs, whether of commission or omission, of such agents, engineers or other employes, when such wrongs are in any manner connected with the use and operation of any railway on or about which they shall be employed, and no contract which restricts such liability shall be legal or binding. Nor shall any contract of insurance, relief, benefit, or indemnity in case of injury or death, entered into prior to the injury, between the person so injured and such corporation, or any other person or association acting for such corporation, nor shall the acceptance of any such insurance, relief, benefit, or indemnity by the person injured, his widow, heirs, or legal representatives after the injury, from such corporation, person, or association, constitute any bar or defense to any cause of action brought under the provisions of this section, but nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent or invalidate any settlement for damages between the parties subsequent to injuries received. That in all actions hereafter brought against any such corporation to recover damages for the personal injury or death of any employe under or by virtue of any of the provisions of this section, the fact that the employe may have been guilty of contributory negligence shall not bar a recovery, but the damages shall be diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to such employe; provided, that no such employe who may be injured or killed shall be held to have been guilty of contributory negligence in any case where the violation by such common carrier or corporation of any statute enacted for the safety of employes contributed to the injury or death of such employe; nor shall it be any defense to such action that the employe who was injured or killed assumed the risks of his employment. [33 G. A., ch. 124, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 49, § 1; C. '73, § 1307.]

In general: The company is not liable to an employe for an injury done by a coemploye when it would not have been liable to a third person injured by a like act. Kincade v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 107–682, 78 N. W. 698.

This section makes no pretense of fixing the degree of negligence which will entitle an injured person to recover. It does not render the company liable to a trespasser for injuries received, unless due to wilful wrong or gross negligence. Earl v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co., 109–14, 79 N. W. 381.

This provision applies only to companies operating commercial railroads and not to street railway companies. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 125–270, 101 N. W. 77.

This statutory provision does not render the company liable to the surviving husband or wife for such negligence causing the instant death of the other. Major v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 115–309, 88 N W. 815; Seney v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125–290, 101 N. W. 76.

Negligence: The provisions of this section do not alter the character of the relation between the railroad company and a person injured, nor the rules of evidence appropriate to such relation upon an issue as to negligence. In such an action the fact of the happening of the accident through which an employe is injured is not evidence of negligence on the part of the defendant, or its employes to sustain the burden of proof resting on the plaintiff. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. O'Brien, 132 Fed. 593.

Operation of the railroad: One employed in the construction of a bridge is engaged in the operation of the road in such sense as that the company will be liable for injuries to him caused by negligence of the foreman in allowing a train to go upon the incomplete bridge, the foreman having been provided with a flag for the purpose of enabling him to control the operation of trains over such bridge. Keatley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 103–282, 72 N. W. 545.

The peculiarity of the railroad business which distinguishes it from any other is the movement of vehicles or machinery of great weight on the track by steam or other power, and the dangers incident to such movement are those the statute was intended to guard against. If, then, the injury is received by an employe whose work exposes him to the hazards of moving trains, cars, engines or machinery on the track, and is caused by the negligence of a coemploye in the actual movement thereof, or in any manner directly connected therewith, the statute applies and recovery may be had. Beyond this the statute affords no protection. Akeson v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 106-54, 75 N. W. 676.

Therefore, held that an employe in a railroad coal house, who was injured by the negligence of a coemploye in shoving back a plank over which coal had been carried to fill a tender of a live locomotive, was so engaged in the operation of the railroad as to be entitled to recovery for negligence of the coemploye. Ibid.

An employe engaged in an occupation in connection with the business of the road, having nothing to do with the movement of trains, yet involving the performance of duties which bring him into a situation where he is exposed to the perils and hazards arising from such operation or movement, is within the provisions of this section. Williams v. Iowa Central R. Co., 121-270, 96 N. W. 774.

In determining whether an employe is engaged in such employment as to bring him within these provisions, the test is, does the duty of the employe, no matter what his designation, require him to perform services which expose him to the hazards peculiar to the business of operating a railway? And held that a car repairer injured by a moving engine when actually employed at his work in the railroad yards was within the statutory provision. Hughes v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 128-207, 103 N. W. 339.

An employe operating a hand car is engaged in the operation of the road. Larson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 91-81, 58 N. W. 1076.

The provisions of this section are intended for the benefit of those railroad employes, no matter in what department of service, whose employment for the time being exposes them to the danger and hazards peculiar to the operation of railroads. Therefore held that such provisions were applicable in an action to recover for injuries received by one employe engaged with other employes in removing a push car from the railroad track. Cahill v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 148-241, 125 N. W. 331.

The statute contemplates such injuries only as are caused by the negligent acts of employes engaged in the movement of the engines, cars and machinery on the track, or directly connected therewith. Therefore, held that the handling of a derrick in coaling an engine was not within the contemplation of the statute. Reddington v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 108-96, 78 N. W. 800.

A railroad is only operated, within the meaning of the law, by moving trains, cars, engines or machinery on the track. Connors v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 111-384, 82 N. W. 953.

This section has reference to the physical use and operation of the railway and does not cover an injury resulting in the movement of a dead engine along a track in a shop where it has been placed for repair. Slaats v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 149-735, 129 N. W. 63.

A railroad is operated under this section when in use for the transportation of freight or passengers. By that term is meant the movement of engines, cars and machinery on the tracks. Ibid.

This section held applicable to injuries sustained by a car cleaner working in a standing car on a side track, which was run into by an engine by reason of the negligence of a hostler in charge of such engine. Jensen v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 115-404, 88 N. W. 952.

One who is engaged in repairing or working upon a standing car and suffers injury by reason of a moving engine or car being negligently brought into collision therewith, is within the protection of the statute. Russell v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 141 N. W. 1077.

Where an employe was assisting in transferring railroad rails from one car to another by means of power furnished by the operation of a locomotive engine, held that he was so engaged in the hazardous business of operating railways as to be entitled to recover for injuries received through the negligence of a coemploye. Stebbins v. Crooked Creek R. & C. Co., 116-513, 90 N. W. 355.

The operation of an engine and cars over a temporary track in the construction of a railroad is the operating of a railway within the statutory provisions, rendering every corporation operating a railway liable to its employes for damages sustained in consequence of the negligence of other employes. Mace v. Boedker, 127-721, 104 N. W. 475.

The ordinary work of a section hand which is wholly disconnected from the operation and control of cars or trains operated on the track is not an employment connected with the use and operation of the road within the statutory provision. Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130-580, 107 N. W. 616.

Assumption of risk: The provisions of this section do not affect the rule as to assumption of risk. Chicago, G. W. R. Co. v. Crotty, 141 Fed. 913.

One engaging in the hazardous business of operating trains on a railroad does not assume the risk of the negligence of the train dispatcher. Phinney v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 122-488, 98 N. W. 358.

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 124, a person injured in consequence of the neglect of any agent or employe of a railroad company in matters connected with the operation of the railroad is within the limits of the statutory provision without respect to the question whether the duty neglected is or is not magisterial in character. Melody v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 141 N. W. 438.

The maintenance of safe switch yards and bridges is a matter connected with the use and operation of the railway. Ibid.

These statutory provisions are not, however, limited merely to the abolition of the fellow-servant rule in the cases to which it is applicable. Ibid.

Contractual limitation of liability: The so-called Temple amendment (added to this section by 27 G. A., ch. 49, and constituting the last sentence of this section as printed above) prohibiting any defense on account of a contract between a railroad company and its employes in the nature of a contract for insurance or relief in case of accident, made prior to the injury, is constitutional. Such a contract constitutes a limitation of liability such as is prohibited by the statute. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 131–340, 108 N. W. 902.

An agreement entered into at the time of the employment between the company and an employe that if he sustains any personal injury for which he makes a claim against the company for damages he will give notice thereof in writing within thirty days is a limitation on the company's liability, and therefore invalid. Mumford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co., 128–685, 104 N. W. 1135.

Participation in the benefit of a relief fund will not, under the provisions of this section, defeat recovery of damage for personal injury received by plaintiff in defendant's employment, the injuries complained of having been received in this state, although the contract of employment was made in another state where such limitation of liability was not invalid. Hamilton v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 145–431, 124 N. W. 363.

The provision of this section as amended, relating to the acceptance of benefits from a relief fund, is not unconstitutional. (On appeal affirming McGuire v. C. B. & Q. R. Co., 131–340, 108 N. W. 902.) Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 31 Sup. Ct. R. 259.

SEC. 2072. Signals at road crossings.

In general: A railroad company cannot be excused for failure to comply with the provisions of this section on the ground that compliance would amount to an interference with interstate commerce. Willfong v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 116–548, 90 N. W. 358.

The statutory requirement that the whistle be blown on approaching a highway crossing does not apply to the street crossings within the city limits in the absence of some ordinance or resolution on the part of the city; but the requirement that the bell shall be rung is applicable to street crossings, and if they are less than sixty rods apart, the bell should be rung continuously from the time the duty begins until all such crossings are passed. Golinvaux v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 125–652, 101 N. W. 465.

Where there is no ordinance requiring the blowing of the whistle within city or town limits it may be omitted. Pratt v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107–287, 77 N. W. 1064.

This section is applicable to a crossing within the limits of a village which is not an incorporated town or city. Bruggeman v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 147–187, 123 N. W. 1007.

The signals required of the railroad company on approaching a highway crossing are not only intended for the benefit of those who are on or about to cross the track, but also for the benefit of those who may be near the track in such position as to be placed in peril. Mitchell v. Union Terminal R. Co., 122–237, 97 N. W. 1112.

Failure to ring the bell at a crossing renders the company liable not only for an injury occurring at such crossing but for injuries to persons near the track who would have been warned by such signal of approaching danger and enabled to avoid it. Warn v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 149–450, 126 N. W. 1104.

Evidence of failure to give signals at other crossings cannot be considered in determining the liability of the company for failure to give signals at the crossing where the accident occurred. Heise v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 141–88, 119 N. W. 371.

Negligence: The requirements of state statutes and city ordinances are not the sole standards for determining whether due care has been observed by the railroad company to guard against accidents at a crossing. Kowalski v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 84 Fed. 586.

Failure to give signals as required by law will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, to have been the proximate cause of injury at a highway crossing. Kuehl v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126–638, 102 N. W. 512.

Even though there is no duty to keep a flagman at a crossing, the fact of the failure to do so may be taken into consideration on the question of alleged negligence in running the train at a high and dangerous rate of speed at such crossings. Golinvaux v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 125–652, 101 N. W. 465.

The railroad company does not necessarily discharge its whole legal duty with reference to the safety of persons about to cross a track at a public crossing, or as to the safety of the property under their control, by sounding the whistle and ringing the bell. If by reason of a curve in the track, high banks or other obstructions there is peculiar danger to such persons or their property, the common law obligation to exercise care may require the taking of further precautions. Kinyon v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118–349, 92 N. W. 40.

The mere fact of great speed will not in itself constitute negligence, but if, by reason of natural or artificial obstructions, or a curve in the track, the crossing is of peculiar or extraordinary danger, the operation of the railway must be conducted with reference to that fact. Ibid.

It is not error to instruct that failure to give statutory signals at a crossing constitutes negligence as to a person injured at such crossing and if the crossing is more than usually dangerous because of obstructions then reasonable and adequate warning, in view of the dangers to be reasonably apprehended at the crossing, should be given of the approach of the train. Bruggeman v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 154–596, 134 N. W. 1079.

Evidence that the railroad company has failed to have a post set near its track at the point where the whistle should be sounded for a railroad crossing may be considered in connection with other circumstances in determining whether due care has been exercised by the company. Gray v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 139 N. W. 934.

The giving of the statutory signals does not necessarily satisfy all the requirements of reasonable care on the part of the company as to persons on the highway near a railroad crossing. Ibid.

Where, owing to peculiar circumstances, other warning than that required by the statute at a highway crossing is necessary, it may constitute negligence to fail to give warning signals on approach of the train at a greater distance from the crossing than required by statute. Wilson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 142 N. W. 54.

Testimony tending to show that the plaintiff was looking out and listening for signals because he knew his horses were afraid of the cars and that if signals had been given he could have stopped his team in a safer place and been able to control them, tends to show that injury due to the frightening of the horses when the train reached the crossing without the giving of signals was the proximate result of the failure to give such signals. Morgan v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 151–211, 130 N. W. 1058.

Contributory negligence: The mere fact that the person approaching the crossing may have heard the train at the distance from the crossing at which the signal should have been given will not of itself justify the court in saying as a matter of law that there was no negligence on the part of the company, or that there was contributory negligence on plaintiff's part in connection with the accident happening at such crossing. Kinyon v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118–349, 92 N. W. 40.

One about to cross a railroad track at a highway crossing has the right to place some degree of reliance upon the presumption that the trainmen will do their duty and sound the usual signal of warning in approaching the crossing. The question of contributory negligence in such cases is for the jury. Mitchell v. Union Terminal R. Co., 122–237, 97 N. W. 1112.

It will not necessarily constitute contributory negligence that a person at a highway crossing seeing danger of a collision with his team imminent, attempts to so control the team as to prevent injury. Ibid.

It is usually a question for the jury whether one whose animals are injured at a highway crossing by a train was guilty of contributory negligence with reference thereto. Kuehl v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126–638, 102 N. W. 512.

Before there can be a recovery on account of negligence of the railway company in failing to give statutory signals, or for running at an exceedingly high rate of speed at a highway crossing, it must be shown that the person suffering injury from such negligence did not contribute to the injury by negligence on his own part, and he cannot in all cases rely upon the railway company to give the signals required by statute. A person possessing the ordinary powers of seeing and hearing cannot, without negligence on his part, knowingly approach a railway crossing and fail to discover an approaching train which he can readily see or hear within sufficient length of time to enable him, with reasonable effort, to avoid danger. Crawford v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 109–433, 80 N. W. 519.

While the absence of statutory signals does not relieve one who attempts to cross a railroad track from the duty of vigilantly using all his senses to ascertain if there is danger in crossing, such fact is properly to be considered by the jury with all the other facts in determining whether or not such person exercised reasonable care and caution for his own safety. Dusold v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 142 N. W. 213.

The failure of the servants of the company to give the statutory signals is no excuse for the failure of travelers on the highway to look and listen before crossing the track. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Bennett, (C. C. A.) 181 Fed. 799.

Injuries to stock: The statutory signals are intended for the protection, as far as possible, of animals as well as men, and a failure to give such signals when approaching a crossing makes the company absolutely liable for injuries to stock on the crossing, provided it appears that if such signals had been given they would have prevented the animals going on the track or frightened them away from the crossing. Graybill v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 112–738, 84 N. W. 946; McGill v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 113–358, 85 N. W. 620.

It is for the jury to determine whether the signals were given as required, and if not, whether the failure to give them was the cause of the injury to the animals. Ibid.

The engineer or motorman, if he sees, or in the exercise of reasonable care should see, a horse on a railroad crossing, is negligent in not giving signals, for such signals would be calculated even in the case of a dumb animal to cause it to get off the track and thus avoid the danger of injury. Swisher v. Interurban R. Co., 151–384, 130 N. W. 404.

Private crossings: The statute does not require the sounding of the engine whistle on approaching a private crossing. The term "any road crossing" as used, designates a highway crossing. Nichols v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125–236, 100 N. W. 1115.

There is no common law duty to give signals on approaching private crossings. The omission to give such signal might constitute negligence as by reason of peculiar or extraordinary circumstances where ordinary prudence would require an alarm or signal to be given by an approaching train. Ibid.

The provisions as to signals have no reference to private crossings. Weaver v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 146–149, 124 N. W. 1088.

While the company is not bound to give signals at private crossings, those who operate its trains must be presumed to know of the existence of the crossings and of their ordinary use. Ressler v. Wabash R. Co., 152–449, 132 N. W. 827.

Evidence: Testimony of witnesses that they did not hear the crossing whistles sounded does not even create a conflict with positive evidence that the signals were given at the whistling posts. Payne v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 108–188, 78 N. W. 813.

If the person injured at the crossing would not have heard the signals if given, then the omission to give them will not render the company liable. Ibid.

Positive evidence that the signal at a railroad crossing is not given is not to be discredited because in conflict with evidence of other witnesses that such signals were given. Kinyon v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118–349, 92 N. W. 40.

Testimony of witnesses in a situation to hear and likely to have heard a crossing signal, if one had been given, that they did not hear any such signal, is not to be ignored and treated as of no weight because opposed to the testimony of witnesses who say that the signal was actually given, or that they heard such signal. The testimony of the witnesses who were in a situation to hear and likely to hear a signal, if given, is not to be treated as merely negative evidence. Selensky v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 120–113, 94 N. W. 272.

Evidence of persons in a situation to hear and whose attention was not diverted that they did not hear a signal which other witnesses testified to having heard, is not merely negative evidence. Mackerall v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 111–547, 82 N. W. 975.

As between witnesses who are in an equally advantageous position as to hearing sounds and signals, those who testify that they did not hear are entitled to the same credit as those who testify that they did hear, and the former should not be discredited by an instruction that, as compared with other witnesses, their testimony is negative. Stanley v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 119–526, 93 N. W. 489.

Testimony of witnesses who are at the time looking out and listening for signals, that no signals were given, is affirmative testimony and entitled to as much weight as that of witnesses who in the same position testify that they heard such signals. Morgan v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 151–211, 130 N. W. 1058.

The testimony of a witness who was in fact listening for signals under circumstances rendering it his duty to do so, that he did not hear a signal given, is of equal credibility of that of a witness testifying that he did hear such signal. Lockridge v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 140 N. W. 834.

Interurban railways: Whether this section is applicable to electric interurban roads, quaere. Rogers v. Interurban R. Co., 150–270, 129 N. W. 946.

In any event, to render such a company liable for failure to give signals, it must appear that such failure was the proximate cause of the injury alleged to have resulted. Ibid.

By the provisions of code supp. § 2033-b, this section is made applicable to interurban railways, the term "locomotive engine" being applicable to an electric motor car which should be provided with such a whistle as is in common use on electric motor cars, and a gong with which such signal may be given as is required to be given by a bell in the case of steam locomotive engines. Swisher v. Interurban R. Co., 151–384, 130 N. W. 404.

SEC. 2073. Stopping at railway crossings.

This section is as to the forfeiture provided penal in character. The offense denounced is the omission of the engineer to stop the train as required, and the liability of the company is for the commission of the offense on the part of the engineer. There is no liability on the part of the company unless the engineer has been at fault, and the company may have the advantage of any excuse that would be available to the engineer. The burden of proof is not sustained by evidence of the fact alone that the train was not stopped at the crossing. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122–22, 96 N. W. 904.

This section is not unconstitutional as imposing a penalty on a railway company for an offense of its employe. The requirement is only that the company secure obedience by its employes to the requirements of the statute. Ibid.

Where the company whose track is crossed by the track of another company does not demand the installation of an interlocking system as authorized by code § 2063, it must comply with statutory requirement for the stopping of its trains approaching such crossings. If it does insist on the installation of an interlocking system by the other company, it must thereafter bear its share of the expense of maintaining such interlocking system. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gowrie & N. W. R. Co., 123–543, 99 N. W. 181.

This section is not applicable to a crossing of the line of an electric railway under the provisions of code supp. § 2033-a. Grace v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 153–418, 133 N. W. 672.

SEC. 2074. Contract or rule limiting liability.

A contract between an express company and its servant, exempting the express company from liability for injuries to the servant, and authorizing it to contract for like exemption from liability with a railroad company, and the corresponding contract between the express company and the railroad company exempting the latter from liability for injuries to servants of the express company, are invalid. O'Brien v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 116 Fed. 502.

As a railroad company may absolutely refuse to check as baggage of a passenger that which is merchandise, it may, notwithstanding the provisions of this section, make any regulations in regard to the waiver of such condition which it sees fit to adopt. Weber Co. v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co., 113–188, 84 N. W. 1042.

Limitations of liability in a bill of lading are void. McMillan v. American Express Co., 123–236, 98 N. W. 629.

A railroad company contracting for the carriage of goods beyond the end of its line may, in the contract with reference to such carriage, limit its liability, notwithstanding the provisions of this section. Hartley v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co., 115–612, 89 N. W. 88.

It may be stipulated that stock is to be in charge of the shipper or his agent while in transit, free transportation being furnished to such person, and that the shipper assumes the duty of loading and unloading, attending to, feeding and watering such stock at his own expense and risk. In case damage results from lack of care in these respects on the part of the shipper or his agent the company will not be liable unless the loss is due to the failure of the company to discharge duties not assumed and undertaken by the shipper. Grieve v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 104–659, 74 N. W. 192.

The burden is on the shipper in the first instance to show in such case that injury to stock from want of care did not result from his own negligence and if occasioned by failure to do what he has undertaken, then that such failure resulted from the omission on the part of the company to perform some duty devolving upon it. Ibid.

A contract between a railroad company and the shipper of stock by which the latter is to have the entire charge and care of the stock and the company is not to be liable for damages for failing to feed and water, is not void under the statute as a contract limiting liability. Burgher v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 105–335, 75 N. W. 192.

A contract for the transportation of live stock, exempting the carrier from liability for loss or damage received from heat, suffocation, crowding, maiming, etc., is invalid. Powers v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130–615, 105 N. W. 345.

A limitation of liability for a horse to one hundred dollars, named in the contract as "the release value of the horse," held invalid under the provisions of this section. Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 112–594, 84 N. W. 673.

The case of Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 95–260, 63 N. W. 692, is affirmed on appeal to U. S. supreme court. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133.

The case of Griswold v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 90–265, 57 N. W. 843, followed in a case involving a similar state of facts. Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 175 U. S. 91.

This section is not applicable to a contract exempting a railroad company from liability to one permitted to erect a building on its right of way, for loss thereof by fire. Ibid.

A railroad company cannot by contract limit its liability for injury to stock resulting from unreasonable and negligent delay during shipment. Siemonsma v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 137–607, 115 N. W. 230.

A contract seeking to relieve the carrier from liability for stock being transported when the owner or agent does not accompany it is of no validity. Wisecarver v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 141–121, 119 N. W. 532.

A limitation to an agreed valuation as the basis for fixing the rate of charge is invalid. Winn v. American Express Co., 149–259, 128 N. W. 663.

An agreement for fixing a rate for transportation on the basis of a fixed valuation is not valid to defeat recovery of the real value of the property lost, and the shipper may recover the actual loss less the difference between the freight collected and what would have been charged had the true valuation been given. Betts v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 150–252, 129 N. W. 962.

A contract in which the shipper in consideration of a reduced rate agrees that his shipment is of a stated value and that in the event of loss his recovery shall not exceed such stipulated valuation violates the provisions of this section. Blair v. Wells Fargo & Co., 155–190, 135 N. W. 615.

The provisions of this section are applicable to shipments under interstate commerce. Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 153–103, 133 N. W. 387.

In an action for loss of goods through negligence, a contract limiting liability to an arbitrary agreed valuation is not valid as a defense. Ibid.

A contract under interstate commerce between a carrier and a shipper of stallions that the carrier shall not be liable for more than one hundred dollars each for loss of any of them, if such contract is fairly made, is not so unreasonable in its terms that a court should refuse to enforce it. Lefebure v. American Express Co., 139 N. W. 1117.

SEC. 2074-a. Action against joint carriers. That chapter seventy-four of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted as a substitute therefor the following:

That in all cases where a railway company bills property to a point beyond the terminus of its own railway and provides by contract that it shall not be liable for the destruction of or damage to such property beyond the terminus of its own railway and the said property is damaged or destroyed between the place of shipment and place of destination to which it was billed, the initial carrier and the connecting carrier or carriers if more than one, over whose line or lines of railway the property shall have been carried between the place of shipment and said place of destination, may be joined as defendants in one action, brought in any county from or into which shipment shall be made, or suit may be brought in any county through which shipment shall be made and service of original notice may be made on any of said carriers in any county of the state, where the carrier to be served has a station agent, by serving such notice on such station agent. [32 G. A., ch. 101; 31 G. A., ch. 89, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 74, §§ 1, 2.]

A carrier may ordinarily limit its responsibility for the transportation of property to the terminus of its own line. McManus v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 138–150, 115 N. W. 919.

SEC. 2074-b. Liability of joint carriers. On proof being made by the owner of the property shipped, that the same has been destroyed or damaged in transit between the said place of shipment and the place of destination, the liability of a common carrier shall attach to all the defendants and judgment shall be entered accordingly against them all unless one or more of the defendants shall prove that it was not or they were not liable, in which case judgment shall go only against the remaining defendant or defendants. [31 G. A., ch. 89, § 2.]

SEC. 2074-c. Freight claims — damages — excessive charge—time limit for adjustment. That every claim for loss of or damage to property while in the possession of any common carrier, or for delay in delivering freight or baggage or express, or for a charge in excess of the legal and regular charge for the service rendered shall be adjusted and paid within forty days in case of shipments wholly within this state, and within ninety days in case of shipments from without the state after the filing of such claim with the agent or agent's carrier at the point of destination of each shipment, provided that no such claim shall be filed until after the arrival of the shipment or of some part thereof at the point of destination or until after the lapse of a reasonable time for the arrival thereof; and provided further that if such claim is not filed within sixty days from the time it accrues, the penalty provided in this act shall not apply. [35 G. A., ch. 179, § 1.]

SEC. 2074-d. Failure to adjust—penalty. Failure to adjust and pay such claim, within the period herein prescribed shall subject the common carrier, so failing, to the penalty of a sum which in amount shall be equal to the amount of the claim originally filed; provided, however, that it shall in no case be less than twenty-five dollars or more than one hundred dollars for each and every failure, to be recovered by the party aggrieved, in any court of competent jurisdiction; provided further that said claim shall be filed in proper form, including such information possessed by the claimant, as will aid in establishing his claim. The penalty shall not apply unless the claimant shall recover the full amount claimed by him, nor when the claim exceeds five hundred dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 179, § 2.]

SEC. 2074-e. No division of claims. The claimant shall not be permitted under this act to divide his claims arising from loss, damage or injury to one shipment or consignment of goods but only one claim within the meaning of this act shall be filed for one shipment. [35 G. A., ch. 179, § 3.]

SEC. 2075. Lien of judgment.

A pending right of action against a railroad, which is not reduced to judgment before the sale of the property under mortgage foreclosure, is not preserved by this section. Winter v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 111–342, 82 N. W. 760.

Section 1309 of code of '73 had no application to street railways. Fidelity Loan & Trust Co. v. Douglas, 104–532, 73 N. W. 1039.

SEC. 2076. Classification of railroads. That section two thousand and seventy-six of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All railroads of the state shall be classified in accordance with the gross amount of their several annual earnings within the state, per mile, for the preceding year, as follows: Class A shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be four thousand dollars or more; class B shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be three thousand dollars or any sum in excess thereof less than four thousand dollars; class C shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be less than three thousand dollars. In determining the classification of any railroad, the entire railroad property owned or operated by any company shall be considered as a single railroad, and the aggregate gross earnings of the entire railroad within the state shall be divided by the entire mileage owned or operated within the state, to ascertain the gross earnings per mile of such railroad." [32 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 68, § 1; C. '73, § 1305.]

SEC. 2077. Passenger rates—expositions and fairs—railroad commission. That section two thousand and seventy-seven of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

All railroad corporations according to their classifications as herein prescribed shall be limited to compensation per mile for the transportation of any person with ordinary baggage not exceeding one hundred and fifty pounds in weight as follows: Class A, two cents; class B, two and one-half cents; class C, three cents; and for children twelve years of age or under, one half the rate above prescribed; provided, however, that every railroad corporation shall be entitled to charge a fare of not to exceed ten cents for the transportation of each passenger with ordinary baggage for any distance not exceeding five miles. A charge of ten cents may be added to the fare of any passenger when the same is paid upon the cars, if a ticket might have been procured within a reasonable time before the departure of the train, except in those cases where a minimum of ten cents is charged for a distance of less than five miles as above provided. All railroad corporations, according to their classification, as herein prescribed, shall be limited to compensation per mile for the transportation of any person, with ordinary baggage not exceeding one hundred fifty pounds in weight, who shall purchase a round trip ticket from any point within this state to any town or city within said state at which an annual fair or exposition is being held, said ticket being good for return trip of said purchaser to point of origin during said fair or exposition, and at least one day after the conclusion of the same, as follows: Class A, one and one-half cents; class B, two cents; class C, two and one-half cents, and for children twelve years of age or under, one half of the rate above prescribed, all of the aforesaid rates to apply to each mile traveled; provided, however, that said maximum rates of charge shall only apply on transportation to such points at which an annual fair or exposition has been held during one or more preceding years, and where the attendance during the immediately preceding year for any week or part thereof was not less than seventy-five thousand bona fide paid admissions; and it is further provided that upon application being made by any interested party, the state board of railroad commissioners shall, after full hearing, determine whether or not any given fair or exposition comes within the provisions of this statute, and in case such commission shall find that any given fair or exposition comes within said provisions, then, and in that case, the said commission shall prescribe the time and place at which the carriers shall perform the services for the rates of charge, as hereinbefore stated; and said commission shall by order designate what reasonable notice shall be given by said railway companies to the public of the rates aforesaid; and the said orders of the board of railroad commissioners shall be enforced in the same manner as is provided by law for the enforcement of other orders of the said commission. [35 G. A., ch. 165, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 102, § 2; 15 G. A., ch. 68, § 2.]

Plaintiff suing for wrongful ejection from a train for the refusal to pay ten cents additional on account of not having a ticket has the burden of alleging facts to show that he could not have procured a ticket within a reasonable time before the departure of the train upon which he took passage. Bowsher v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 113–16, 84 N. W. 958.

SEC. 2077-a. Station telephones—bulletins posted. That section two thousand and seventy-seven-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

It shall be the duty of all railway companies on all lines of railway operated by them to install a telephone in each passenger or freight depot in any city or town where a telephone exchange is maintained for public service, said telephone to be connected with and for the use of the patrons of said exchange; and it shall be the further duty of all railway companies on all lines operated by them to keep posted in the waiting room of each passenger station, a bulletin plainly showing the time of arrival and departure at such station of all trains carrying passengers, and at all stations where a telegraph or telephone operator is maintained, such bulletin shall indicate whether said trains are late or on time, and if late, the approximate number of minutes late. If the train is less than ten minutes late, the same shall be considered on time for the purpose of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 166, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 125, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.]

SEC. 2077-a1. Violation—penalty. Any agent, telephone or telegraph operator of such railroad corporation who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 166, § 2.]

SEC. 2078. Classification by executive council. The law as it appears in code section two thousand and seventy-eight is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The executive council shall at its regular meeting on the second Monday in July in each year classify the different railways, as provided by section two thousand and seventy-six of the code, from information as to gross earnings obtained from the annual reports of railways made to the executive council for assessment and taxation, if it shall be satisfied of the correctness of same, or from information obtained by said executive council from any other source, and, when there shall be any change in classification, shall issue a certificate to any corporation or corporations affected by such change, certifying the class to which they are respectively assigned; any change of rates by any corporation pursuant to any change of classification shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of such certificate." [30 G. A., ch. 75; 15 G. A., ch. 68, § 7.]

[As to annual statement for purposes of taxation, see § 1334.]

AUTOMATIC COUPLERS AND BRAKES.

SEC. 2079. On new or repaired cars.

It is not negligence per se not to equip engines and tenders with the latest coupling device, in the absence of any statutory provision as to automatic couplers on engines and tenders. Bryce v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 119–274, 93 N. W. 275.

The test to be applied in determining the sufficiency of the automatic coupler as complying with the statutory requirement is whether the person operating the coupler is required to go between the ends of the cars; and this test applies to the act of coupling as well as to that of uncoupling. The use of a coupler not complying with these conditions constitutes actionable negligence. Chicago, M. & St P. R. Co. v. Voelker, 129 Fed. 522.

The statutory provision being for the protection of the lives and limbs of persons, is to be so construed as to prevent the mischief and advance the remedy so far as the words fairly permit. Ibid.

SEC. 2080. On all cars. After January first, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, no corporation, company or person, operating a railroad, or any transportation company using or leasing cars, shall have upon any railroad in this state any car that is not equipped with such safety automatic coupler; provided that the board of railroad commissioners shall have power upon a showing which it shall deem reasonable, to extend the time within which any such corporations shall be required to comply with the provisions of this section, but no such extension shall be made beyond January first, nineteen hundred. [27 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 23, § 2; 23 G. A., ch. 18, § 2.]

SEC. 2082. Power brake on cars.

This section does not require that all cars in a train shall be equipped with automatic couplers and power brakes, but only that there be a sufficient number so equipped to enable the engineer to control the train, etc. Carter v. Sioux City Service Co., 141 N. W. 26.

SEC. 2083-a. Exemption from liability. That no corporation, company or person shall be liable to any prosecution in any court of this state for any fines or penalties incurred under the provisions of section two thousand and eighty-three of the code in so far as the same relates to the operation of cars not equipped with safety automatic couplers only, as provided by section two thousand and eighty of the code, from the first day of January, eighteen hundred ninety-eight, up to and including the time of taking effect of this act; and every such corporation, company, or person shall be, and is hereby, released from all criminal prosecution, penalties, fines, and forfeitures for failure to have cars equipped with such safety automatic couplers during such period. [27 G. A., ch. 51, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-b. Pending litigation. This act shall in no manner affect pending litigation. [27 G. A., ch. 51, § 2.]

EQUIPMENT OF LOCOMOTIVES.

SEC. 2083-c. Switching service—headlights—footboards—grab rails. That it shall be unlawful for any railway or terminal transfer company, or any corporation operating locomotives in switching or yard service, to operate, or permit the same to be operated, unless said locomotives are equipped with headlight on both front and rear of engine, when operated between sunset and sunrise, and all such engines shall be equipped with a footboard of substantially uniform height, width, and length, securely fastened and firmly braced to the pilot beam in front of engine, and a similar footboard on rear of tank or tender of engines, upon which employes may stand or ride when their duties require them so to do, and that a substantial grab rail or rod be securely fastened upon said pilot beam at each end and in the center, at a convenient height for employes to reach and hold on to with their hands, said rod to extend across the full length of the said pilot beam, and also across the rear end beam of said tank or tender; provided that the provisions of this statute shall not apply to switching or yard service at stations or places where regular switch engines are not employed exclusively as switch engines, or during a period of not exceeding twelve hours, when a switch engine is being cleaned or washed out, and also switching by work trains; and provided further that where regular switch engines are disabled by accident, or in need of repairs, or there is an unusual or unexpected amount of work, switching, under such conditions, with ordinary engines, for a period of not to exceed forty-eight hours, shall not be considered a violation of this statute. [33 G. A., ch. 126, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-d. Same—violation—penalty. Any person, railway company, terminal transfer or other corporation or company who violates any of the provisions of section one of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars or more than five hundred dollars for any such violation, and each day that every such engine is operated shall constitute a separate and distinct violation of this act. [33 G. A., ch. 126, § 2.]

SEC. 2083-e. Frost glass in cab windows—repair. Every person, partnership, company or corporation owning or operating a railway in the state of Iowa, between November first and April first of each year, shall equip the cab of all locomotive engines in use, with frost glass, of not less than eight inches in width and eighteen inches in length on either side of the cab of said engine in front of the seat of the engineer and fireman; provided that where a frost glass is broken or becomes out of repair, a period of not to exceed seventy-two hours is allowed to repair or replace the same. [35 G. A., ch. 167, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-f. Same—violation—penalty. Any violation of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each day any locomotive engine is operated in violation thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 167, § 2.]

SEC. 2083-g. Power of headlights—time of compliance. It shall be the duty of every person, firm or corporation owning or operating any line of railway within the state of Iowa, except lines under twenty miles in length operated wholly within this state, to equip all locomotives, power vehicles, power cars, or other equipment used as the equivalent of or in place of a locomotive, when used in the transportation of passengers or freight, with a headlight of sufficient candle power, measured with a reflector, to throw a light in clear weather that will enable the operator of same to plainly discern an object the size of a man lying prone on the track at a distance of eleven hundred feet from the headlight, and thereafter to maintain and use such headlights upon every such locomotive, vehicle, car or other equipment. It shall be the duty of all such common carriers to so provide and equip ten per cent. of the whole number of locomotives used by such carriers with such headlight within ninety days after the taking effect of this act, and an additional ten per cent. of such locomotives to be so equipped each and every thirty days thereafter until all such engines and locomotives, and other equipment used as equivalent thereof shall be equipped with such headlight. This act shall not be construed to apply to power cars used by street railways and operated wholly within the corporate limits of any city or town, nor to engines or other equipment used exclusively for switching purposes, nor to engines or other equipment running after sunrise and before sunset. [35 G. A., ch. 172, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 171, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-h. Same—violation—penalty. Any person, firm or corporation owning such line of railway or the equipment operated thereon, who shall cause or permit any locomotive, power vehicle, power car, or other equipment used as the equivalent thereof, to be operated without being equipped with the headlight required by the provisions of section one hereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. Provided, however, that no punishment shall be imposed for the operation of any such locomotive or the equivalent thereof without such headlight, when such locomotive was properly equipped with such headlight at the commencement of the trip, providing it is shown that such headlight was in good and sufficient working condition when the trip was begun and became disabled during the trip. G. A., ch. 171, § 2.]

CABOOSE CARS.

SEC. 2083-i. Applicable to all railways except interurban. That the provisions of this act shall apply to any corporation or to any person or persons while engaged as common carriers in the transportation by railroads of passengers or property within this state except interurban to which the regulative power of this state extends. [34 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-j. Minimum length — construction — equipment. That from and after the first day of January, nineteen hundred twelve, it shall be unlawful, except as otherwise provided in this act, for any such common carrier by railroad to use on its lines any caboose car or other car used for like purposes, unless such caboose or other car shall be at least twenty-four feet in length, exclusive of the platform, and equipped with two four-wheel trucks, and shall be provided with a door in each end thereof and an outside platform across each end of said car; each platform shall not be less than eighteen inches in width and shall be equipped with proper guard rails, and with grab irons and hand brakes, and steps for the safety of persons getting on and off said car; said steps shall be equipped with a suitable rod, board, or other guard at each end and at the back thereof, properly designed to prevent slipping from said step. Said caboose shall be provided with cupola, and necessary closets and windows. And be it further enacted that each caboose car be equipped with an emergency air valve, and air gauge which shall be placed on inside of said car; provided that the provisions hereof shall not apply to work trains, transfer service or emergencies not exceeding thirty-six hours. [34 G. A., ch. 93, § 2.]

SEC. 2083-k. Cars now in use—when equipped. Whenever any such caboose car[1] or other car[2] now in use by such common carriers as provided by section one herein, shall, after this act goes into effect, be brought into any shop for general repairs, it shall be unlawful to again put the same into service of such common carriers within this state, unless it be equipped as provided in section two of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 93, § 3.]

[1],"cars" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2083-l. Extension of time—authority railroad commission. That the state railroad commission is hereby authorized to give to any common carrier aforesaid, upon full hearing, and for good cause shown, a reasonable extension of time in which to comply with the provisions of this act; provided that in no case shall such extension in the aggregate exceed a period of one year from the time herein limited for compliance with this act. [34 G. A., ch. 93, § 4.]

SEC. 2083-m. Penalty. Any common carrier as provided in section one of this act violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. [34 G. A., ch. 93, § 5.]

TAXES IN AID OF RAILROADS.

SEC. 2084. May be voted. Taxes not exceeding five per cent. on the assessed value of any township, town or city may be voted to aid any railway company, trolley or electric railway which is or may become incorporated under the laws of the state, to aid in the construction of a projected railroad or any trolley or electric railway within the state, as hereinafter provided. [29 G. A., ch. 85, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 27; 24 G. A., ch. 18; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 2.]

SEC. 2085. Petition—notice—submission—certificate—levy—collection—certain cities. When a petition is presented to the trustees of any township or the council of any town or city, signed by a majority of the resident freehold taxpayers of such township, town or city, asking that the question of aiding any railroad company incorporated under the laws of the state in the construction of a projected railroad within it be submitted to the voters thereof, it shall be the duty of the trustees or council, as the case may be, immediately to give notice of a special election, by publication in some newspaper printed in said township, town or city, if any there be, and, if not, then in some newspaper published in the county, and also by posting copies of said notice in five public places in such township, town or city at least ten days before such election, which shall state the time and place of holding the same, the name of the company, and the line of the road proposed to be aided, the rate per cent. of the tax to be levied, whether one half thereof shall be collected the first year and one half the following year, or whether the whole is to be collected in one year, the amount of work required to be done and when and where the same shall be done, to what point said railroad shall be fully completed, and any other conditions which shall be performed before such tax or any part thereof shall become due; and in no case shall such tax become due until such railroad is fully completed according to the conditions in said notice. The trustees or council, as the case may be, shall cause to be prepared the form of the proposition to be submitted. The proposition shall be printed and placed upon the ballots and the election shall be conducted in the same manner as provided with respect to like or similar propositions in the chapter on elections; and if a majority of the votes polled be for the adoption of the proposition, then the clerk of the township, city or town, or the clerk of election, shall forthwith certify to the county auditor the result thereof, the rate per cent. of tax voted, the year or years during which the same is to be collected, the name of the company to which voted, and the time, terms and conditions upon which the same, when collected, is to be paid under the conditions and stipulations in said notice, together with an exact copy of the notice under which the election was held, which the county auditor shall at once cause to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds; the expense thereof, and of publishing the notice, and all the expenses of the election, shall be paid by the railway company to which it is proposed to vote the tax. The taxes shall be collected at the same time or times specified in the order, and in the same manner, and subject to the same laws after they are collectible, as other taxes, or as may be stated in the petition and notices for the election, except as otherwise provided. Provided, that in cities acting under special charter, and cities having a population of twenty-five thousand or over, it shall only be necessary that the petition for the submission of the question of aiding any railroad company, as herein provided, shall be signed by two thousand or more resident freeholders thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 168, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 159, § 3.]

[The above section is made applicable to trolley or electric railways by § 2091-a. EDITOR.]

A condition in the proposition for voting a tax that the railroad shall be operated in connection and solely with a certain other specified railroad system for a specified time and in active competition with other specified roads does not render the taxes invalid. Bras v. McConnell, 114-401, 87 N. W. 290.

Printing of surplusage on the ballot will not necessarily render the election invalid. Ibid.

In a particular case held that the form of ballot was sufficient and was not calculated to mislead the voter in expressing his views. Ibid.

Under a notice of the voting of an aid tax containing a stipulation that the road should be built to a particular place and that the depot should be within one hundred rods of a certain street of that place, held that the stipulations were substantially complied with and that the company was entitled to the tax. Whitney v. Chicago, A. & N. R. Co., 133–508, 110 N. W. 912.

The right to vote taxes within the limits herein provided shall exist after the expiration of ten years from the exercise to the limit of the right herein granted. Nothing herein shall authorize a tax of five per centum within such period named to steam railroads and also five per centum within such period to interurban railways. [29 G. A., ch. 86, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 27; 24 G. A., ch. 18; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 4.]

When it shall be proposed in the petition and notice calling an election to issue first mortgage bonds not exceeding the sum of eight thousand dollars per mile for a railroad of three-feet gauge, and not exceeding the sum of eighteen thousand five hundred dollars per mile for the ordinary four-feet eight and one-half inch gauge in lieu of stock, it shall be lawful to issue bonds of the denomination of one hundred dollars in the same manner as is provided for the issue of stock, and in such case the petition and notice shall state the amount of bonds per mile to be issued, the rate of interest, and

SEC. 2100. Powers.

The corporation provided for in this section is not a railroad company. But a railroad company may, irrespective of this section, construct a union depot, and in so doing it does not lose any of the powers possessed by it under the general law. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113-561, 85 N. W. 902.

A railroad company may purchase and own such right of way as it sees fit and use it in connection with the operation of a union depot without securing the consent of the railroad commissioners. Ibid.

It shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to receive written statements of violations of this act and when so requested to hold the same without disclosure of the name of the person making such statement, and to investigate each and every complaint filed alleging such violation. The board in making such investigation shall have the power to administer oaths, interrogate witnesses, take testimony, and require the production of books and papers, and must file a report of such investigation in writing with a full statement of its finding to the governor. In all cases of violation of this act, the board of railroad commissioners, through the attorney-general, must at once begin the prosecution of all parties against whom evidence of violation is found; but this act shall not be construed to prevent any other person from beginning prosecution for violation hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

INTERURBAN TERMINALS.

SEC. 2110-c. Street railways to furnish terminal facilities—compensation—determination by railroad commission. That all persons, firms or corporations now or hereafter owning or operating electric street railways in any city (including cities organized under special charter) or town of this state, are hereby authorized and required to permit the use for interurban business only but not for local street railway business, of such of their terminals, tracks, poles and wires as are located in the streets, alleys and public places of said cities and towns, and such portions of their tracks, poles and wires as may cross property owned by said street railway companies in such cities and towns, by the passenger and combination baggage cars of interurban railway companies, for the transportation of passengers, mail, express and baggage; and said street railways shall furnish to said interurban railways, electric power for the operation of their cars and the transaction of their said business in said cities and towns, as to said tracks so furnished; but said street railways shall not be required to furnish electric power except during such hours as their street railway cars may be in operation; nor shall they be required to furnish such power where they have not power houses and machinery sufficient therefor; and they shall have the preference in the use of their own tracks and power so that their own cars shall not be delayed in transit; nor shall they be required to furnish car houses or car barns or access thereto. Said interurban railways shall pay a reasonable compensation for the privileges and power that may be furnished them as above mentioned under this act. If an agreement for the use of the facilities so furnished and the compensation for the same cannot be made between the interested parties the question as to the amount of such compensation and the conditions under which said facilities shall be furnished, used and operated, shall be heard and determined by the board of railroad commissioners of the state of Iowa, on petition to the said board by either party to the controversy, ten days' notice in writing of such petition being served upon the opposite party; and any order entered by said board of railroad commissioners, or court upon appeal, shall be subject to modification or review from time to time, upon notice being given as herein provided. The board of railroad commissioners shall, when such notice of appeal is filed with its secretary, forthwith certify to said district court a transcript of the papers and proceedings before said board, and its order thereon. The court, or a judge thereof, if the petition is filed in vacation, shall thereupon appoint a commissioner to examine into the necessity of such proceeding, and report the facts and his recommendation in such time as the court or judge may direct, and as soon as possible thereafter the court or judge shall appoint a time and place for the hearing of such petition. The proceedings shall be in equity and subject to all the rules of equity practice, except that the court shall require the issues to be made up at the first term after the petition is filed and give the proceeding precedence over other civil business and try the same thereat if possible. The action shall be triable de novo upon said appeal, except that the question of compensation for the tracks, poles, wires, terminals and power to be furnished shall first be tried to a jury in the same manner and with the same effect as jury trials in ordinary proceedings, and the jury shall assess, separately, compensation for power to be furnished, on such basis as the court shall direct. No such appeal shall suspend the order appealed from if the interurban railway company on whose behalf said order is made shall file such bond for the payment of damages and costs as the district court to which such appeal is taken, or a judge thereof, may order and require. In all cases payment of the compensation awarded shall be made or secured to be made as the board of railroad commissioners or court may order and require before the interurban company desiring the use of the same shall be entitled thereto. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 2.]

SEC. 2110-e. Power furnished outside of city or town. Street railroad companies desiring so to do shall be authorized to furnish to interurban railway companies, power for the operation of the cars of interurban railway companies outside of cities and towns, but no street railroad company shall be required to furnish such power. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.]

SEC. 2110-f. Applicable to interurban railways operating street railways. This shall not apply to those portions of the terminals, tracks, poles and wires of interurban railway companies which are located in the streets, alleys and public places of cities and towns and which are used by such companies for the transaction of a local street railway business; and where an interurban railway company has heretofore built tracks in a city or town used for street railway purposes it may acquire the use of such tracks, poles and wires as may be necessary to complete a terminal loop for the cars operated on such tracks and for the use of its interurban cars only, under the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.]

SEC. 2110-g. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 5.]

ELEVATORS AND OTHER BUILDINGS ON RAILROAD LANDS.

SEC. 2110-l. Disagreements adjusted by railroad commission. That whenever a disagreement arises between the owner of an elevator or grain warehouse, coal shed, ice house, buying station, flour mill, or any other building used for receiving, storing or manufacturing any article of commerce transported or to be transported, situated on a railroad right of way, or on land owned or controlled by a railroad company, and such railroad company, as to the terms and conditions on which the same is to be continued thereon, or removed therefrom, or whenever application is made by any person, firm or corporation for the right to a site for such elevator or grain warehouse, coal shed, ice house, buying station, flour mill, or any other building used for receiving, storing or manufacturing any article of commerce transported or to be transported, and such railway company and said applicant cannot agree as to whether said elevator or grain warehouse shall be so placed on said right of way or on property owned or controlled by the railroad company, or as to the character of the buildings to be erected and placed thereon, or the place where the same is to be so erected and maintained, or as to the terms and conditions under which the same may be so placed or operated, then, and in every such event on written application to the board of railroad commissioners by such railroad company, person, firm or corporation the said board of railroad commissioners shall have authority, and it is hereby made their duty, as speedily as possible after the filing of such application, to hear and determine such controversy, and make such order in reference thereto as shall be just and right between the parties under all the facts in the case, which order shall be enforced as other orders of said commission. [35 G. A., ch. 178, § 1.]

SEC. 2110-m. Destruction of buildings—liability of railroad for negligence. In the event that any elevator, warehouse, coal shed, ice house, buying station, flour mill or any other building used for receiving, storing or manufacturing any article of commerce transported or to be transported, situated on the right of way or other land of a railroad company shall be injured or destroyed by the negligence of any railroad company, or the servants or agents of any railroad company in the conduct of the business of such company, the railroad company so causing such injury or destruction shall be liable therefor to the same extent as if such elevator, warehouse, coal shed, ice house, buying station, flour mill or any other building used for receiving, storing or manufacturing any article of commerce transported or to be transported was not situated on the right of way or other land of such railroad company, any provision in any lease or contract to the contrary notwithstanding. [35 G. A., ch. 178, § 2.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

SECTION 2112. Supervision.

The power of supervision given by this section is broad enough to sustain an order of the railroad commissioners requiring a railroad to receive goods for shipment in the cars of the shipper or of another road in which such goods have been received by the shipper. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 152–317, 130 N. W. 802.

SEC. 2113. Powers and duties. That section twenty-one hundred thirteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"It shall from time to time carefully examine into and inspect the condition of each railroad, its equipment, and the manner of its conduct and management with regard to the public safety and convenience in the state; make semiannual examination of its bridges, and report the condition thereof to the company to which they belong; and if found by it unsafe it shall immediately notify the railroad company whose duty it is to put the same in repair, which shall be done by it within ten days after receiving such notice. If any corporation fails to perform this duty the board may forbid and prevent it from running trains over the same while unsafe. And should any railroad or transportation company in this state fail to provide proper shelter for its patrons at stations where two or more tracks are operated, or fail or refuse to connect by proper switches or tracks with the tracks or lines of other railroad or transportation companies, the board may require such railroad or transportation company to provide the same in such manner and upon such conditions as it may determine. When, in the judgment of the board, any railway corporation fails in any respect to comply with the terms of its charter or articles of incorporation or the laws of the state; or when in its judgment any repairs are necessary upon its road; or any addition to its rolling stock, or addition to or change in its stations or station houses, or the equipment thereof for the health and convenience of the public, or change in its rates of fare for transporting freight or passengers, or change in the mode of operating its road or conducting its business, is reasonable and expedient in order to promote the security, convenience, and accommodation of the public, the board may make an order prescribing such improvements and changes and shall serve a notice upon such corporation, in the manner provided for the service of an original notice in a civil action, which notice shall be signed by its secretary, of the improvements and changes which it finds to be proper; and a report of such proceedings shall be included in its annual report to the governor as provided in the next section; but nothing in this section shall be so construed as relieving any railroad company from its present responsibility or liability for damage to person or property." [35 G. A., ch. 173, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 127, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 106; 17 G. A., ch. 77, § 3.]

The board may require a railroad company, in order to promote the convenience and accommodation of the public, to receive goods tendered to it for transportation in cars belonging to a private person or to another road without being compelled to unload the goods from the cars in which they have been received by the shipper and reload them in the cars furnished by the railroad to which such shipment is tendered. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 152–317, 130 N. W. 802.

The board of railroad commissioners has general supervision of railroads and must investigate all alleged neglect or violation of the law, and the orders of the board will be enforced by the courts. An action to enjoin the board from enforcing its orders as to rates is not an action against the state. Poor v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., (C. C.) 155 Fed. 226.

SEC. 2116. Duty of railroad to transport freight—passenger service. Every railway corporation shall upon reasonable notice, and within a reasonable time, furnish suitable cars to any and all persons who may apply therefor, for the transportation of any and all kinds of freight, and receive and transport such freight with all reasonable dispatch, and provide and keep suitable facilities for the receiving and handling thereof at any depot on the line of its road; and shall also receive and transport in like manner the empty or loaded cars furnished by any connecting road, to be delivered at any station or stations on the line of its road, to be loaded or discharged or reloaded and returned to the road so connecting; and for compensation it shall not demand or receive any greater sum than is accepted by it from any other connecting railroad for a similar service. In any suit or action in court brought against a railroad corporation for the purpose of enforcing rights arising under the provisions of this section, the burden of proving that the provisions of this section have been complied with by such railroad corporation, shall be upon such railroad corporation. That every railway corporation owning or operating lines of railroads of more than twenty-five miles in length within the limits of the state of Iowa shall maintain a service of not less than two passenger trains each way every twenty-four hours, over the entire length of each division of such line or lines, when so ordered by the board of railroad commissioners. It is hereby further provided that passenger service of less than the number of trains provided herein shall be presumed to be unreasonable within the contemplation of section twenty-one hundred thirteen of the supplement to the code, 1907. [35 G. A., ch. 176, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 128, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 107; 17 G. A., ch. 77, § 10.]

Where a railroad company accepts live stock for shipment its duty is to transport the same with all reasonable dispatch. Siemonsma v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 137–607, 115 N. W. 230.

Whether this section authorizes the board of railroad commissioners to require a railroad to receive and transport merchandise tendered to it for transportation in cars belonging to the shipper or to another road, the general purport of other sections of the statute is to sustain such an order. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 152–317, 130 N. W. 802.

SEC. 2118. Cumulative.

The powers given the railroad commissioners to enforce performance by railroads of the duties imposed upon them by the statute as to private crossings and the like matters, do not exclude other remedies. Swinney v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123–219, 98 N. W. 635.

SEC. 2119. Orders of commissioners enforced—appeals—penalties. The district courts of this state shall have jurisdiction to enforce, by proper decrees, injunctions and orders, the rulings, orders and regulations affecting public rights, made or to be made by the board, such as are now, or may hereafter be, authorized to be made by them for the future direction and observance of railroads in this state. The proceedings therefor shall be by equitable action in the name of the state of Iowa, and shall be instituted by the attorney-general, whenever advised by the board that any railway corporation, or person operating a line of road in this state, is violating and refusing to comply with any rule, order or regulation made by the board, and applicable to such railroad or person. It shall be the duty of the court in which any such cause shall be pending to require the issue to be made up at the first term of the court to which such cause is brought, which shall be the trial term, and to give the same precedence over other civil business. If the court shall find that such rule, regulation or order is reasonable and just, and that in refusing compliance therewith said railway company is failing and omitting the performance of any public duty or obligation, the court shall decree a mandatory and perpetual injunction, compelling obedience to and compliance with such rule, order or regulation by said railroad company, or other person, its officers, agents, servants and employes, and may grant such other relief as may be deemed just and proper. All violations of such decree shall render the company, persons, officers, agents, servants and employes who are in any manner instrumental in such violation, guilty of contempt of court, and the court may punish such contempt by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars for each offense, and may imprison the person guilty of contempt until he shall sufficiently purge himself therefrom. And such decree shall continue and remain in effect and be enforced until the rule, order or regulation shall be modified or vacated by the board.

That all rules, orders and regulations affecting public rights, made or to be made by the board of railway commissioners, such as are now or may hereafter be authorized to be made by them for the future direction and observance of railroads in this state, shall be in full force and effect from and after the date fixed by the board for the taking effect of such rules, order and regulations. If any railroad fails, neglects or refuses to comply with any rule, order or regulation made by the board within the time specified, it shall pay a penalty of fifty dollars for each and every day it fails, neglects or refuses to obey any rule, order or regulation so made, to be recovered in any court having jurisdiction.

Any railroad aggrieved at any rule, order or regulation made by the board may institute proceedings in any court of proper jurisdiction to have the rule, order or regulation complained of vacated, if found by the court, after due trial, not to be reasonable, equitable or just, and if upon an appeal from any rule, order or regulation of the board the complaining railroad is successful in having such rule, order or regulation vacated, the aforesaid penalty shall be set aside, if unsuccessful, there shall be taxed as a part of the costs a reasonable attorney's fee for the attorney appearing in behalf of the state.

The time for the taking effect of any rule, order, or regulation affecting public rights, made by the board of railroad commissioners as provided herein, may, in its discretion, be extended, and said extension of time may be granted for the purpose of testing the legality thereof, upon application by any such aggrieved railroad, showing reasonable grounds therefor, and that said application is made in good faith and not for the purpose of delay.

When any railroad shall fail upon appeal to secure a vacation of the order from which it has appealed, it may apply to the court in which said appeal is finally adjudicated for an order remitting the penalty which has accrued during the pendency of the appeal and upon a satisfactory showing that the order appealed from was unreasonable or unjust, or that the power of the board to make the same was doubtful and that said appeal has been prosecuted in good faith and not for the purposes of delay, such court may remit the penalty that has accrued during the pendency of the appeal. [33 G. A., ch. 129, §§ 1, 2, 3.] [20 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.]

The authority given to the railroad commissioners to enforce the duties imposed by law on railroad companies does not exclude the remedy by mandamus to compel a railroad company to construct a private crossing where the lands of one owner are separated by the railroad right of way and track. Swinney v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123–219, 98 N. W. 635.

SEC. 2120-a. Interstate freight rates—investigation. It is hereby made the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to exercise constant diligence in informing themselves of the rates, charges, rules, and practices of common carriers engaged in the transportation of freight from points in this state to points beyond its limits, and from points in other states to points in this state, also in territory wholly outside this state; and whenever it shall come to the knowledge of the board of railroad commissioners either from their own investigation or by complaint made to them in any manner whatsoever that the rates charged by any common carrier on interstate business are unjust or unreasonable, or that such rates, rules or practices discriminate unjustly against the citizens, industries or interests of this state, or place any of the citizens, industries or interests of this state at an unreasonable disadvantage as compared with those of other states, or are levied or laid in violation of the act to regulate commerce, or in conflict with the rulings, orders or regulations of the interstate commerce commission, it shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to immediately call the attention of the officials of railroads operating in this state to the fact and to urge upon them the propriety of changing such rate or rates, rules or practices. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-b. Appeal to interstate commerce commission—prosecutions. Whenever such rates, rules or practices are not changed or adjusted so as to remove or remedy such discrimination within a reasonable time, it shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners, whenever it can legally be done, to present the facts involved in such discrimination to the interstate commerce commission and appeal to it for relief and thereafter, if deemed necessary, by said board of railroad commissioners, they shall prosecute any charge or charges growing out of any such discrimination at the expense of the state, before said interstate commerce commission. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-c. Attorney-general to assist. In all work devolving upon the railroad commission they shall receive, upon application, the services of the attorney-general of this state, and he shall also represent them, whenever called upon to do so, before the interstate commerce commission. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 3.]

SEC. 2120-d. Wires over railroad tracks. The railroad commissioners of this state shall have general supervision over any and all wires for transmitting electric current or any other wire whatsoever crossing under or over any track of a railroad in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-e. Regulations. Within thirty days from the taking effect of this act said railroad commissioners shall make regulations prescribing the manner in which such wires shall cross such railroad tracks in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-f. Wires must be strung in manner prescribed. It shall hereafter be unlawful for any corporation or person to place or string any such wire for transmitting electric current or any wire whatsoever across any track of a railroad in this state except in such manner as may be prescribed by the railroad commissioners as provided by this act. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

SEC. 2120-g. Examination of wires already strung. The board of railroad commissioners shall, as soon as possible after the taking effect of this act, either by personal examination or otherwise, obtain information where the tracks or railroads are crossed by wires strung over said tracks, contrary to or not in compliance with the rules prescribed by the railroad commissioners as contemplated by this act, and shall order such change or changes to be made by the persons or corporations owning or operating such wires as it may deem necessary to make the same comply with said rules and within such reasonable time as it may prescribe. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.]

SEC. 2120-h. Minimum height. In case such wires cross over said track, in no case shall said board of railroad commissioners prescribe a less height than twenty-two feet above the top of the rails of any railroad track for any wire. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 5.]

SEC. 2120-i. Wires across railroad right of way at highways. The board of railroad commissioners are hereby authorized to provide for and regulate the crossing of wires over and across railroad right of ways at highways and other places within the state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 6.]

SEC. 2120-j. Penalty—enforcement. Any person or corporation who string or maintain any wire across any railroad track in this state at a different height or in a different manner from that prescribed by the said board of railroad commissioners shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa the sum of one hundred dollars for each separate period of ten days during which such wire is so maintained, said forfeiture to be recovered in a civil action brought in any court of competent jurisdiction in the name of the state of Iowa, by the attorney-general, or by the county attorney of the county in which such wire is situated, at the request of the said board of railroad commissioners, and it is hereby made the duty of the said attorney-general and county attorney to bring such action forthwith upon being so requested. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 7.]

SEC. 2120-k. Accidents—investigation of—report. That upon the occurrence of any serious accident upon any railroad within this state, which shall result in personal injury, or loss of life, the corporation operating the road upon which the accident occurred shall give immediate notice thereof to the board of railroad commissioners whose duty it shall be, if they deem it necessary, to investigate the same, and promptly report to the governor the extent of the personal injuries, or loss of life, and whether the same was the result of mismanagement or neglect of the corporation on whose line the injury or loss of life occurred. Provided, that such report shall not be evidence or referred to in any case in any court. [32 G. A., ch. 110.]

SEC. 2120-l. Uniform gauge—inspection—order. That the railroad commissioners of Iowa are charged with the duty, within one year from the passage of this act, to inspect and examine all railroad lines or branches that are of a gauge less than four feet eight and one-half inches in width of track, and if, considering the interest of the public and the railroad traffic tributary to that line or branch road, and the physical or natural difficulties to be encountered and the expense that would be involved or incurred in changing the track to a gauge of four feet eight and one-half inches in width, and making it practical to operate the said line or branch road on that gauge, it appears to be reasonable and just to require the railway company which is the owner to do so, then said commissioners shall enter an order fixing a reasonable time within which said railroad track is to be changed to a gauge of four feet eight and one-half inches in width. [35 G. A., ch. 170, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-m. Same. It shall be the duty of the railroad commissioners, within one year after the passage of this act, to examine all the railroads in this state, now in existence, that are less than four feet eight and one-half inches gauge, and if they find that it is feasible or in their judgment necessary and reasonable to change the gauge of any such railroad to four feet eight and one-half inches, they shall make their order in writing, fixing such reasonable time within which such gauge shall be changed to that width. In making such order, said commissioners shall take into consideration the amount and probable life of the rolling stock of such narrow gauged road, and all other facts bearing on the reasonableness of the time to be allowed to make such change of gauge. [35 G. A., ch. 170, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-n. Electric current transmission lines—franchise—hearing. Upon petition to the railroad commission of the state of Iowa, said railroad commission may grant to any individual or corporation organized under the laws of Iowa, or corporation authorized to transact business in Iowa under the general incorporation laws of the state, engaged in the manufacture, sale, or distribution for sale of electric current for light, power, or heating purposes, the right within the state, except in cities and towns, to erect, use and maintain poles, wires, guy wires, towers, fixtures and other necessary construction for the purpose of conducting electricity for lighting, power and heating purposes over, along and across any public lands, highways or streams or the lands of any person or persons, and to acquire the necessary interests in real estate therefor. The said petition shall set forth the manner, methods and specifications for the construction of said line, together with a general description of the public lands, highways, streams or private lands over which it is desired that said transmission line be constructed, together with a map showing the starting point, route and terminus of said proposed line. Upon the filing of said petition, the commission shall cause publication in the official newspapers of each county into or through which said proposed line extends, of a notice addressed to the citizens of said county, which notice shall contain a statement as to the purpose of the petition, a description of the lands to be traversed by the transmission line, and the date and place fixed by the commission for hearing upon said petition.

The date fixed shall be not less than ten days after the last publication of said notice hereinbefore provided for, and at any time before final submission to the commission, objections in writing to the proposed line, either as to its establishment or location, may be filed with the commission and shall be given due consideration. The expense of said publication shall be paid by the applicant as a condition precedent to said hearing. The commission may personally examine the proposed route and upon said hearing may grant the application either as a whole or in part, or upon such conditions as to terms and location as to the commission may seem right and just. The privilege granted by the commission shall be and constitute a franchise to operate and maintain the proposed transmission line, but all rights granted by said franchise shall be subject to the provisions of this act and also to such regulations as the legislature may, from time to time, prescribe, either by direct legislative enactment or by and through the railroad commission, under the laws of Iowa now or hereafter in force. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-o. Additional rights—how granted. Any person or corporation organized under the laws of this state, or corporation authorized to transact business in Iowa under the general incorporation laws of the state, owning or operating a transmission line for the conducting of electricity, or who or which has obtained a right so to do, and desires to acquire additional rights for the purposes contemplated herein, may petition the railroad commission, as hereinbefore provided, for the original granting of such right, and the same proceedings shall be taken as hereinbefore provided; provided, however, that before the commission shall act upon such petition, the person or corporation filing same shall, with said petition, file its consent that the provisions of this act and of all acts or laws relating to public utilities or to the regulation, supervision, or control thereof which are now in force or which may be hereafter enacted shall apply to its existing line or lines with the same force and effect as though said line or lines had been constructed under the permit provided for in section one hereof. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-p. Obtaining franchise deemed acceptance of provisions and regulations. Any transmission line proceeding under this act and obtaining the franchise herein provided shall be conclusively held to an acceptance of the provisions of this act and of all acts or laws relating to public utilities or to the regulation, supervision, or control thereof which are now in force or which may be hereafter enacted, and to have consented to such reasonable regulation as the commission may, from time to time, prescribe. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 3.]

SEC. 2120-q. Eminent domain—extent—procedure. Any person or corporation having secured the franchise provided for in the preceding sections shall thereupon be vested with the right of eminent domain to such extent as may be necessary and as prescribed and approved by the commission, not exceeding twenty-five feet in width to carry out the purposes of said franchise, and in the event agreement with the private owner of lands as to damages caused by the construction of said transmission line cannot be made, the same proceedings shall be taken as provided for taking private property for works of internal improvement in chapter four of title ten of the code and amendments thereto. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 4.]

SEC. 2120-r. Supervision of construction—requirements—danger signals. The railroad commission shall have power of supervision over the construction of said transmission line and over its future operation and maintenance, and said transmission line shall be constructed near and parallel to the right of way of the railways of the state or along the division lines of the lands, according to the government survey thereof, wherever the same is practicable and reasonable, and so as not to interfere with the use by the public of the highways or streams of the state, nor unnecessarily interfere with the use of any lands by the occupant thereof, and shall be built of strong and proper wires attached to strong and sufficient supports properly insulated at all proper points of attachment; all wires, poles and other devices which by ordinary wear or other causes are no longer safe shall be removed and replaced by new wires, poles or other devices, as the case may be, and all abandoned wires, poles or other devices shall be at once removed. Where wires carrying current are carried across, either above or below wires used for other service, the said transmission line shall be constructed in such manner as to eliminate, so far as practicable, damages to persons or property by reason of said crossing; there shall also be installed sufficient devices to automatically shut off electric current through said transmission line whenever connection is made whereby current is transmitted from the wires of said transmission line to the ground, and there shall also be provided a safe and modern improved device for the protection of said line against lightning. No transmission line shall be constructed, except by agreement, within one hundred feet of any dwelling house or other building, except where said line crosses or passes along a public highway or is located alongside or parallel with the right of way of any railway company. At any crossing of any highway by said transmission line, the poles or towers next to the highway shall be labeled with the following words: "Danger.....volts Electricity." The stroke of said letters and numbers shall be at least four inches in length and not less than five eighths of an inch in width, and the color of the letters and numbers shall be in contrast with the color of the background. The said labels shall show the maximum number of volts of electricity transmitted over said line, and said label shall face toward the highway. Where said poles or towers are extended along said highway and within the limits thereof or immediately adjacent thereto, the sign hereinbefore described shall be placed at least every quarter of a mile. The commission shall have full power and authority to add such further and additional rules and regulations as regards location, construction, operation and maintenance of said transmission line as may be reasonable. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 5.]

SEC. 2120-s. Injury to person or property—burden of proof. In case of injury to any person or property by any transmission line operating under this act, negligence will be presumed on the part of the person or corporation operating said line in causing said injury, but this presumption may be rebutted by proof, but no change in the rule of the burden of proof shall exist in favor of employes of the person or corporation operating said transmission line who are charged with or engaged in the construction, reconstruction, repair or maintenance thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 6.]

SEC. 2120-t. Access to lines—damages to lands and crops. Individuals or corporations operating transmission lines constructed under the provisions of this act, or operating by acceptance under the provisions of this act, shall have reasonable access to said transmission line for the purpose of constructing, reconstructing, enlarging, repairing or locating the poles, wires or construction and other devices used in or upon said transmission line, but shall pay to the owner of such lands and of crops thereon all damages to said lands or crops caused by entering, using and occupying said lands for said purposes. Said damages shall be payable annually at the end of each season, and shall be payable in the county where caused, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the execution of an agreement between said operating company and the owner of said land or crops with reference to the use thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 174, § 7.]

SEC. 2121. Salaries. The board shall keep an office in the capitol at the seat of government, and each commissioner shall receive a salary of twenty-two hundred dollars a year. The secretary of the board shall receive a salary of eighteen hundred dollars a year. [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 7; 17 G. A., ch. 77, § 6.]

CHAPTER 6-A.

OF THE COMMERCE COUNSEL.

SECTION 2121-h. Appointment—term—removal—vacancy. That there is hereby created and established the office of commerce counsel, which shall be filled by an attorney of the state of Iowa, who shall be appointed by the board of railroad commissioners, subject to the approval of two thirds of the members of the senate in executive session. During the session of the thirty-fourth general assembly, and every four years thereafter, an attorney shall be appointed as said commerce counsel, whose term of office shall be for a period of four years commencing on the first day of July in the year appointed, or until his successor is appointed and qualified. The board of railroad commissioners may, by and with the consent of the senate, during a session of the general assembly, remove said counsel for malfeasance or nonfeasance in office, or for any cause that renders him ineligible for appointment, or incapable or unfit to discharge the duties of his office; and his removal, when so made, shall be final. A vacancy in said office occurring while the general assembly is in session, shall be filled for the unexpired term, by an appointment made by the board of railroad commissioners, with the approval of two thirds of the members of the senate in executive session. If the general assembly is not in session, then the said vacancy shall be filled by an appointment made by the board of railroad commissioners, which appointment shall expire thirty days from the time the next general assembly convenes. [34 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.]

SEC. 2121-i. Eligibility. No person in the employ, or owning any bonds, stock or property in, or who has, in any way or manner, pecuniary interest in any corporation, or business subject to the jurisdiction of the state board of railroad commissioners or interstate commerce commission, shall be eligible to said office; and the entering into the employ of, or acquiring of any stock or other interest in, any such corporation or business by said attorney, after his election or appointment, shall disqualify him from holding said office or performing the duties thereof. Said commerce counsel shall not engage in any other business, vocation or employment, than herein specified, nor shall he be a member of any political committee, or contribute to any political campaign fund, or take any part in political campaigns or be a candidate for any political office, during his term as commerce counsel. [34 G. A., ch. 94, § 2.]

SEC. 2121-j. Office — assistants — compensation — expenses. Said commerce counsel shall have his office in the quarters assigned to the board of railroad commissioners and he shall have free access to all the files, documents, reports and papers in said offices. He shall have the power and authority to appoint and remove, subject to the approval of the board of railroad commissioners, assistants, stenographers and rate clerks to assist him in the performance of his duties, the salaries and expenses of said employes to be paid out of the funds at the disposal of the board of railroad commissioners and subject to the order of said board. The annual salary of the said commerce counsel shall be five thousand dollars. Compensation of all assistants, stenographers and rate clerks shall be fixed by the board of railroad commissioners. The commerce counsel and other necessary agents and experts shall have reimbursed to them all the actual and necessary traveling, and all other expenses and disbursements incurred or made by him in the discharge of his official duties, such expenditures to be approved by the board of railroad commissioners, and paid out of such funds as shall be appropriated for said purpose by the general assembly. [34 G. A., ch. 94, § 3.]

SEC. 2121-k. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated from any funds in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, sufficient amount thereof to pay the salary of said commerce counsel. [34 G. A., ch. 94, § 4.]

SEC. 2121-l. Duties. The commerce counsel shall be the legal adviser of the railroad commissioners, and it shall be his duty to diligently investigate the reasonableness of the rates charged or to be charged for services rendered or to be rendered by the railroad companies, express companies, or of other individuals, parties, or corporations, subject to the jurisdiction of said board of railroad[1] commissioners, and it shall also be his duty to diligently investigate the reasonableness of the rates, charges, rules and practices of common carriers on interstate transportation, whenever directed by the board of railroad commissioners or whenever in his judgment any of said rates, charges, rules, or practices are undue, unjust, unreasonable, unlawful, unduly prejudicial or unduly discriminatory against any of the citizens or industries of the state of Iowa. It shall be his duty, if they pertain to intrastate business, to institute proceedings relative to such matters before said board of railroad commissioners and to prosecute same to final determination before said board or to any court to which same may be taken. If they concern interstate transportation, it shall be his duty whenever in his judgment such action is necessary or whenever directed by the railroad commission to institute proceedings before the interstate commerce commission and prosecute the same to final determination before said commission or in any court to which same may be taken. It shall also be his duty to act as attorney for and represent the board of railroad commissioners in all of the courts of this state or of the United States in which the validity of any order of said board is an issue. It shall be the duty of said commerce counsel also in all cases before the railroad commissioners in which any person or persons have filed complaint against any person, firm or corporation over which the state board of railroad commissioners has jurisdiction to appear for and in behalf of such person or persons so filing such complaint. It shall also be his duty to institute and prosecute in any of the courts any and all suits necessary to the proper enforcement of any rule or order of said railroad commissioners or to make defense therein whenever said rule or order may be called in question, provided that the duty here enjoined upon the commerce counsel shall not be construed to in any wise limit or abridge the authority or jurisdiction of the attorney-general. [35 G. A., ch. 177, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 94, § 5.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF THE REGULATION OF CARRIERS BY RAILWAY.

SECTION 2124. Unjust discrimination.

The provision of 22 G. A., ch. 28, in relation to unjust discriminations and the punishment therefor, held applicable to cases wherein railway companies voluntarily fixed joint rates, irrespective of provisions of 23 G. A., ch. 17 (code §§ 2152–2157), relating to the fixing of schedules of joint rates by the railroad commissioners. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

A rate on shipment of hogs from different points in the state to a central point for grading and distribution and shipment to different destinations outside of the state, held to constitute an interstate rate and not discriminatory although less than the rate for shipment from such different points to the central point. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

An action for discrimination under this and the following sections is ex delicto, in which the party suing can recover only for damages actually accruing to him. Ibid.

If the plaintiff is the assignee of goods purchased by him and delivered at his place of business the question whether he suffers damage by a discriminatory rate is one of fact. Ibid.

SEC. 2125. Undue preference — switching charges — switching service defined. It shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this chapter to make or give any preference or advantage to any particular person, company, firm, corporation or locality, or any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person, company, firm, corporation or locality, or any particular description of traffic, to any prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever; but this shall not be construed to prevent any common carrier from giving preference as to time of shipment of live stock, uncured meats, or other perishable property. All common carriers subject to the provisions of this chapter shall, according to their respective powers, afford all reasonable, proper and equal facilities for the interchange of traffic between their respective lines, and for the receiving, forwarding and switching of cars, and for the receiving, forwarding and delivering of passengers and property to and from their several lines, and to and from other lines and places connected therewith; and shall not discriminate in their accommodations, rates and charges between such connecting lines. Any common carrier may be required to switch and transfer cars for another, for the purpose of being loaded or unloaded, upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the board of railroad commissioners. The switching service of common carriers is hereby defined to be the shifting of loaded or empty cars from one main line or siding to another main line or siding at an industry, or at a group of industries, or at a station, village or city and within its industrial vicinity, as may be defined by the board of railroad commissioners, by means of switches and connecting tracks. [34 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 28, § 4; 15 G. A., ch. 18; C. '73, §§ 1292–6.]

SEC. 2128-a. Passenger tickets—redemption—time limit. It shall be the duty of every railroad company, corporation, person or persons acting as common carriers of passengers in the state of Iowa, to provide for the redemption, at the place of purchase and at the general passenger agent's office of said carrier, of the whole or any integral part of any passenger ticket or tickets that such carrier may have sold, as the purchaser or owner has not used for passage or received transportation for which such ticket should have been surrendered; and said carrier shall there redeem the same at a rate which shall equal the difference between the price paid for the whole ticket and the cost of a ticket between the points for which said ticket has been actually used, and no carrier shall limit the time in which redemption shall be made to less than ten days from date of sale at the place of purchase and six months from date of sale at general passenger agent's office. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.]

The requirement of the statute is that provision shall be made for the redemption of tickets which means that the person or persons in charge of the ticket window and authorized to sell tickets shall be prepared to make redemption when called upon to do so. The statute is not satisfied by the mere appointment of one person who may or may not have his station at the window where the ticket business is transacted, as the one through whom redemption must be made. Rohrig v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130–380, 106 N. W. 935.

Unless the company adopts some regulation limiting the time for redemption of tickets, provided for by 28 G. A., ch. 71, demand therefor may be made at any time within the period of the general statute of limitations. Jolley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119–491, 93 N. W. 555.

The company is afforded time in which to investigate, but must at its peril discharge the statutory obligation if found to exist, within the period fixed, and the holder of a ticket is not bound to apply a second time within ten days to have his ticket redeemed. Ibid.

Formal tender of the tickets is not essential, provided the agent has notice that the ticket holder presents them for redemption, and refuses at the time to accept them for that purpose. Ibid.

The remedy provided by the statute is for those purchasing tickets of passage in good faith and for actual use. One who purchases them for the purpose of subsequently presenting them for redemption and collecting the penalty in case the redemption is refused, is not entitled to relief. Ibid.

SEC. 2128-b. Notice posted as to limitation and transferability. No railroad company, corporation, person or persons doing business in the state of Iowa, as common carrier of passengers, whose rate of fare is regulated by statute of this state, shall sell or issue to any person, at the maximum rate allowed by law, any ticket or tickets bearing any condition of limitation as to the time of use, or as to transferability, without first providing for the redemption of said ticket, as directed by the preceding section hereof, and also having notice of such provision and privilege of redemption conspicuously posted at each place where sales of tickets are made by such common carriers in this state. A failure to provide for the redemption of such ticket or to give notice as above provided shall make all conditions and limitations as to time of use or transferability of no force or effect. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

If a passenger in order to secure transportation on a particular train is required by the agent to purchase a ticket to a more distant point than his destination and afterwards, not having used it, presents it for redemption, his right to have it redeemed under the statute cannot be successfully questioned unless he is shown to have acted in bad faith. Cook v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 136–497, 113 N. W. 1079.

SEC. 2128-c. Penalty. Any railroad company, corporation, person or persons, who as common carriers shall sell or issue tickets as set forth in the preceding sections, and shall refuse or neglect to redeem the same, as by said sections provided, within ten days of date of demand, shall forfeit and pay to the owner of such ticket the purchase price of said ticket, and the further sum of one hundred dollars. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 3.]

SEC. 2128-d. Mileage books. Nothing in this act shall prohibit the sale of mileage books or tickets, at less than the maximum rates allowed by law, bearing reasonable conditions of limitation, as to the right of use for passage. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.]

SEC. 2130. Penalty in treble damages.

The penalty of treble damages authorized in case recovery is had for unlawful discrimination in rates should not be increased by allowing interest on the damages thus awarded. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

While it is the duty of the carrier to provide proper facilities for the interchange of traffic between such carrier and a connecting carrier, or for the forwarding of goods over other lines, the carrier will not be liable in treble damages unless it appears that its failure was the result of undue preferences or unlawful combinations. The statutory provision is penal in character and is to be strictly construed. Clark v. American Express Co., 130–254, 106 N. W. 642.

The right of action against a carrier on the ground of discrimination is barred within two years unless fraudulently concealed. Central Trust Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 156–104, 135 N. W. 721.

SEC. 2145. Discrimination—punishment—schedule of switching charges. If any such railway corporation shall charge, collect or receive for the transportation of any passenger or freight of any description upon its railroad, for any distance within the state, a greater amount of toll or compensation than is at the same time charged, collected or received for the transportation in the same direction of any passenger or like quantity of freight of the same class, over a greater distance of the same railway; or if it shall charge, collect or receive at any point upon its road a higher rate of toll or compensation for receiving, handling or delivering freight of the same class and quantity than it shall at the same time charge, collect or receive at any other point upon the same railway; or if it shall charge, collect or receive for the transportation of any passenger or freight of any description over its railway a greater amount as toll or compensation than shall at the same time be charged, collected or received by it for the transportation of any passenger or like quantity of freight of the same class being transported in the same direction over any portion of the same railway of equal distance; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person a higher or greater amount of toll or compensation than it shall at the same time charge, collect or receive from any other person for receiving, handling or delivering freight of the same class and like quantity at the same point upon its railway; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person for the transportation of any freight upon its railway a higher or greater rate of toll or compensation than it shall at the same time charge, collect or receive from any other person or persons for the transportation of the like quantity of freight of the same class being transported from the same point in the same direction over equal distances of the same railway; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person for the use and transportation of any railway car or cars upon its railroad for any distance, a greater amount of toll or compensation than is at the same time charged, collected or received from any other person for the use and transportation of any railway car of the same class or number, for a like purpose, being transported in the same direction over a greater distance of the same railway; or if it shall charge, collect or receive from any person for the use and transportation of any railway car or cars upon its railway a higher or greater compensation in the aggregate than it shall, at the same time, charge, collect or receive from any other person for the use and transportation of any railway car or cars of the same class for a like purpose, being transported from the same original point in the same direction, over an equal distance of the same railway; all such discriminating rates, charges, collections or receipts, whether made directly or by means of any rebate, drawback, or other shift or evasion, shall be received as prima-facie evidence of the unjust discriminations prohibited by this chapter; and it shall not be a sufficient excuse or justification thereof on the part of said railway corporation that the station or point at which it shall charge, collect or receive less compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of such passenger or freight, or for the use and transportation of such railway car the greater distance than for the shorter distance, is a station or point at which there exists competition with another railway or other transportation line. This section shall not be construed so as to exclude other evidence tending to show any unjust discrimination in freight or passenger rates. The provisions of this section shall apply to any railway, the branches thereof, and any road or roads which any railway corporation has the right, license or permission to use, operate or control, wholly or in part, within this state; but shall not be so construed as to prevent railway corporations from issuing commutation, excursion or thousand-mile tickets, if the same are issued alike to all applying therefor. Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prevent railroad companies or the board of railroad commissioners from establishing schedules of reasonable charges applicable to switching services only, and which shall be independent of any schedule of charges which may be provided for the regular line haul freight service of common carriers. [34 G. A., ch. 95, § 2.] [22 G. A., ch. 28, § 24.]

When joint rates are established between all the points on two or more lines of road, if within the state, extortion and discrimination are prohibited. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

SEC. 2152. Joint rates.

When two or more companies enter into an agreement for joint rates, which agreement covers all stations upon the line in any given state, they virtually create a new and independent line, and become subject to the law preventing unjust discrimination and unreasonable exaction. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109–369, 80 N. W. 673.

SEC. 2153. Connecting lines. That section twenty-one hundred fifty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Every owner or consignor of freight to be transported by railway from any point within this state to any other point within this state shall have the right to require that the same shall be transported over two or more connecting lines of railway, to be transferred at the connecting point or points without change of car or cars if in carload lots, and with or without change of car or cars if in less than carload lots, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less over two or more connecting lines of railway than it is over a single line of railway, or where the initial line does not reach the place of destination; and it shall be the duty, upon the request of any such owner or consignor of freight, made to the initial company, of such railway companies whose lines so connect, to transport the freight without change of car or cars if the shipment be in a carload lot or lots, and with change of car or cars if it be in less than carload lots, from the place of shipment to destination, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less than the distance over a single line, or when the initial line does not reach the point of destination, for a reasonable joint through rate. This section shall apply to interurban railways and their connection with ordinary steam railways." [32 G. A., ch. 111, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 17, § 2.]

In this statutory provision, the legislature evidently recognized the long continued custom of railroads of receiving the cars of other roads for the transportation of freight over their own roads without breaking bulk, and the board of railroad commissioners may require a railroad to receive freight for shipment from its road in cars of a private person or of another road. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 152–317, 130 N. W. 802.

SEC. 2155. Schedules of joint rates. Section twenty-one hundred fifty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of railroad commissioners shall, within ten days after this act takes effect, notify in writing every railway company owning or operating a railway within this state that it will, upon a day named in such notice, which day shall not be more than thirty days after giving said notice, take up for investigation the subject of establishing joint through rates, as herein provided, between the railway lines in this state. It shall also give a similar notice, directed 'To whom it may concern,' and so publish the same that it will have general circulation throughout the state. All corporations, partnerships and persons interested in the subject may present themselves at the hearing and be heard, under such rules and regulations as the board may prescribe. At the end of the investigation, which shall be carried on with all due diligence, the said board of railroad commissioners shall make and publish a schedule of joint through railway rates for such traffic and on such routes as in its judgment the fair and reasonable conduct of business requires shall be done by carriage over two or more lines of railway, and will promote the interests of the people of this state. In the making thereof, and in changing, revising or adding to the same, the board shall be governed as nearly as may be by the preceding sections of this chapter, and shall take into consideration, among other things, the rates established for shipments within this state for like distances over single lines, the rates charged by the railway companies operating such connecting lines for joint interstate shipments, and the increased cost, if any, of a joint through shipment as compared with a shipment over a single line for like distances. In establishing such rates for shipments in less than carload lots, in cases where at the connecting point or points in the line of shipment the connecting railways have not and are not required to have a common station or stopping place for loading or unloading freight, the board shall make such lawful regulations as in its judgment will be fair and just respecting the transportation of such freight from the usual unloading place of one railway to the usual loading place of the other. The joint through rates thus established shall be promulgated by mailing a printed copy thereof to each railway company affected thereby, and shall go into effect within ten days after they are so promulgated; and from and after that time an official printed schedule thereof shall be prima-facie evidence, in all the courts of this state, that the rates therein fixed are just and reasonable for the joint transportation of such freight between the points and over the lines described therein. The said board shall deliver a printed copy of said schedule to any person making application therefor. The share of any railway company of any joint through rate shall not be construed to fix the charge that it may make for transportation for a similar distance over any part of its line for any single rate shipment or the share of any other joint rate. The board, upon such reasonable notice as it may prescribe, may, upon its own motion or upon the application of any person, firm or corporation interested therein, revise, change or add to any joint through rates fixed or promulgated hereunder; and any such revised, changed or added joint rates shall have the same force and effect as the rate or rates originally established. The said board is empowered to authorize, upon proper hearing, any railway company whose line connects the point of shipment with the point of destination but requires a longer haul than the joint haul over which a joint rate has been established, to charge the joint rate without affecting the charge upon any other part of its line, except that the charge for a like kind of property must not be greater for a shorter than for a longer distance over its railroad, all of the shorter haul being included within the longer. This section shall apply to interurban railways and their connection with ordinary steam railways." [32 G. A., ch. 111, § 2; 24 G. A., ch. 25; 23 G. A., ch. 17, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-a. Transportation of live stock — conditions — return transportation. On and after May first, nineteen hundred and four, common carriers of live stock, in carload lots, upon receiving, in this state, for shipment one or more carloads of horses or mules or two or more carloads of other live stock, shall upon demand of the owner of such animals offered for shipment, issue to such owner, or the actual agent or employe of such owner, without other consideration transportation from the place of receiving such shipment to the place of destination, and return, such transportation to be limited to one person for each shipment, as is above set out. When a single shipment aggregates six cars or more, such owner shall be entitled, on demand, as is above provided, to transportation for one additional person, such additional person to be an actual agent or employe of such owner, and such common carrier shall in like manner and under similar conditions issue transportation for one person to destination of shipment only to the shipper of one carload of cattle, hogs or sheep. The return transportation herein provided for is to be delivered, upon demand, at the office of the carrier at the place of destination, upon proper identification of the person so entitled to same, and shall be good for transportation if presented within forty-eight hours from the time of the delivery of such shipment at place of destination. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

SEC. 2157-b. Penalty. Any common carrier violating the above provisions shall forfeit and pay to the owner of any shipment, as is above provided, three times the amount of the regular fare expended by such owner for himself, or his agent, in going from point of shipment to point of destination, and return, of a shipment of stock as herein provided. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-c. Misuse of transportation—trespasser. Any person other than the owner, his agent or employe, as is described in section one hereof, attempting to use, or using, the transportation therein provided for, shall be considered a trespasser upon the trains or premises of such common carrier. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-d. Water-closets in cabooses. That the cabooses or cars attached to such stock trains, and in which the holders of such transportation are required to ride when accompanying such live stock to market, shall be provided with suitable water-closets for the use of such persons while in transit, provided that the provisions of this section shall not go into effect until January first, nineteen hundred and five, and that all such railroads shall be allowed until said time to comply with the requirements of this section. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-e. Penalty. Any railroad in this state engaged in the transportation of live stock, and failing or refusing to comply with the requirements of the foregoing section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars for each day's negligence or refusal to comply therewith; and all moneys so collected as fines shall be paid into the public school funds of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-f. Free passes—issuance or acceptance—what prohibited. No common carrier of passengers shall, directly or indirectly, issue, furnish or give any free ticket, free pass or free transportation for the carriage or passage of any person within this state except as permitted in the second section hereof. Nor shall any common carrier, in the sale of tickets for transportation at reduced rates, discriminate between persons purchasing the same, except the persons described in the second section of this act. Nor shall any person accept or use any free ticket, free pass or free transportation except the persons described in said section.

The words "free ticket," "free pass," "free transportation" as used in this act shall include any ticket, pass, contract, permit or transportation issued, furnished or given to any person, by any common carrier of passengers, for carriage or passage, for any other consideration than money paid in the usual way at the rate, fare or charge open to all who desire to purchase. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

An annual pass issued to a local attorney of the company in full compensation for prospective services of an occasional and casual character, held to be a free pass within the prohibition of this statute. Schulz v. Parker, 139 N. W. 173.

No interference with the jurisdiction of congress to regulate interstate commerce is necessarily involved in the statute. Ibid.

SEC. 2157-g. Persons entitled to such transportation. The persons to whom free tickets, free passes, free transportation and discriminating reduced rates may be issued, furnished, or given are the following, to wit: (a) the officers, agents, employes, attorneys, physicians, and surgeons, of such common carriers of passengers whose chief and principal occupation is to render service to common carriers of passengers; (b) to the families of the persons included in subdivision "a" hereof; (c) the general officers of any such common carrier; (d) employes on sleeping cars, express cars, and linemen of telegraph and telephone companies, railway mail service employes, post-office inspectors, customs inspectors and immigration inspectors, newsboys on trains, baggage agents; (e) persons injured in wrecks and physicians and nurses attending such persons; (f) passengers traveling with the object of providing relief in cases of railroad accident, general epidemic, pestilence, or other calamitous visitation; (g) necessary caretakers of live stock, vegetables and fruit, including return transportation to forwarding station; (h) the officers, agents or regularly accredited representatives of labor organizations, composed wholly of employes of railway companies; (i) inmates of homes for the reform or rescue of the vicious or unfortunate, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, and boards of managers, including officers, and superintendents of such homes; (j) superannuated and pensioned employes and members of their families and widows of employes who die while in the service of such common carriers; (k) employes crippled and disabled in the service of a common carrier of passengers; (l) policemen, mail carriers and firemen of any city wearing the insignia of their office within the limits of such city; (m) ministers of religion, traveling secretaries of Railroad Young Men's Christian Associations, inmates of hospitals and charitable and eleemosynary institutions, and persons exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; (n) indigent, destitute and homeless persons, while being transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and necessary agents, employes in such transportation; (o) school children to and from public or parochial schools; (p) the state fish and game warden, and his car and necessary assistants therewith, when engaged in the performance of official duties.

In any prosecution under this act if it is claimed that a free ticket, free pass or other transportation was wrongfully issued or given to physicians or surgeons, attorneys, agents, [or] employes, it shall be incumbent upon the defendant to prove the character of the service rendered, or to be rendered. The provisions of this act shall not be construed to prohibit the interchange of passes for the persons to whom free tickets, free passes, or free transportation may be furnished or given under the provisions of this section. Nothing in this act shall operate to repeal the provisions of section twenty-one hundred fifty of the code so far as said section refers to the members of the national guard, nor shall it operate to repeal section twenty-one hundred fifty-one of the code. Nothing in this act shall be construed to invalidate any existing contract between a street railway company and a city where a condition of a franchise grant requires the furnishing of transportation to policemen, firemen, and city officers, while in the performance of official duties. [34 G. A., ch. 96, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 2.]

This statute is not unconstitutional as interfering with freedom of contract between the employer and employe. Schulz v. Parker, 139 N. W. 173.

SEC. 2157-h. Testimony—immunity from prosecution. No person, within the purview of this act shall be privileged from testifying in relation to anything herein prohibited, but no person having so testified shall be liable to any prosecution or punishment for any offense concerning which he was required to give his testimony. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-i. Penalty. Any common carrier, its officer, agent or representative, violating any of the provisions of this act shall be fined in a sum not less than one hundred dollars and not more than ten hundred dollars for each offense, or in the discretion of the court shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than thirty and not more than ninety days; and any person other than the persons excepted in the second section of this act, who accepts or uses any free ticket, free pass or free transportation for carriage or passage within this state shall be subject to a like penalty. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-j. Names of free pass beneficiaries reported. Every common carrier of passengers within the provisions of this act shall on or before the first day of February of each year, file with the executive council of the state of Iowa, a sworn statement showing the names of all persons within this state to whom, during the preceding calendar year, it issued, furnished or gave a free ticket, free pass, free transportation or a discriminating reduced rate, except wage earners of common carriers in their ordinary employment and families of such wage earners, and disclosing such further information as will enable the council to determine whether the person to whom it was issued, was within the exception of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-k. Repeal. When this act takes effect, it shall repeal chapter ninety, laws of the thirty-first general assembly, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 6.]

SEC. 2157-l. Weighing of coal in car lots—scales—weight certificates. That every person, firm or corporation engaged in operating any railroad within the state of Iowa shall equip the line of its track and thereafter maintain thereon in good order, track scales of sufficient capacity to weigh all carloads of coal that may be transported over the said railroad, and shall weigh the same at the request of any owner, consignor or consignee of such commodities, and furnish written certificates of such weights to such owner, consignor or consignee as hereinafter provided. Such track scales shall be so installed and maintained at all division stations along the line of such railroads within the state of Iowa, and at such other stations as the board of railroad commissioners shall from time to time direct. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-m. At point where shipment originates. That every person, firm or corporation engaged in operating any railroad within the state of Iowa, over which coal, in carload lots shall be transported for hire, shall weigh such coal at point where such shipment originates unless covered by weight agreement between consignor and railway company, provided such point is equipped with track scales. If not so equipped, it shall be weighed at first practicable point en route where track scales are provided. Said person, firm or corporation shall furnish to said shipper a bill of lading showing date and place weighed, also the gross, tare and net weight for each carload of coal so weighed. The tare weight shall be determined by using actual weight of empty car at loading station, provided track scales are maintained at such point. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-n. At destination upon request—fee. Such coal shall be weighed at destination upon request of consignee when there are track scales at such point. If not equipped with track scales at such point, then at nearest practicable point en route where such scales are maintained and certificate of weight showing actual gross, tare and net weights, shall be furnished to consignee and settlement of freight charges based on these weights. A reasonable charge of not more than one dollar per car, may be made for such weighing on request. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-o. How weighed. Cars when weighed on track scales shall be uncoupled, clear and unhampered at both ends, carefully weighed by competent weighmen and certificates issued upon request of consignees, showing gross, tare and net weights. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-p. Prima-facie evidence. Certificates mentioned in this act shall be prima-facie evidence of the facts therein recited in any action arising between consignors and consignees and common carriers. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 6.]

SEC. 2157-q. Penalty. Any common carrier operating in this state violating any of the provisions of this act by neglecting or refusing to weigh cars or to furnish certificates of weights as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be, upon conviction thereof, fined in the sum of not more than one hundred twenty-five dollars for each and every violation. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 7.]

SEC. 2157-r. Reconsignment without charge. Upon request of the consignee it shall be the duty of any common carrier of freight to reconsign, rebill and reship from any place of destination within the state to any other place within the state any property in carload lots, whether accompanied by any person or not, brought to said place of destination over its own or other line and treat the same in all respects as an original shipment between such places, provided the charges to first place of destination are paid or secured to the satisfaction of such company. [32 G. A., ch. 114.]

SEC. 2157-s. Movement of cars of live stock—burden of proof. That it is hereby made the duty of all common carriers of freight within this state to move cars of live stock at the highest practicable speed consistent with reasonable safety, and the reasonable movement of its general traffic. The burden of proof that cars of live stock are so moved shall be upon the carrier, and proof that such cars were moved according to schedule or time table shall not be prima-facie evidence that they were moved at the highest practicable speed consistent with reasonable safety. [35 G. A., ch. 180, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.]

SEC. 2157-t. Railroad commissioners to prescribe speed. In order to enforce the duty prescribed in section one, the board of railroad commissioners shall immediately and from time to time investigate the practice of the common carriers with respect to the movement of live stock; and if it ascertains at any time that the common carriers or any of them are not moving cars of live stock with the proper speed, then upon notice to any such common carrier or carriers, the said board shall prescribe the speed at which and the conditions under which cars of live stock shall be moved within this state by any such carrier or carriers. The order shall specify the time at which it shall go into effect, which shall be as soon as, in the judgment of the board, the carrier or carriers affected can, with reasonable diligence, readjust its or their time-tables. The power to prescribe speed and determine conditions for the movement of cars of live stock within this state is hereby expressly conferred upon the said board of railroad commissioners. [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-u. Enforcement. Any order, ruling or regulation made by the board under this act shall be enforceable as provided in section twenty-one hundred nineteen of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE LINES.

SECTION 2158. Right of way.

Under § 1324, code of '73, as amended by 19 G. A., ch. 104, providing that any person or company may construct a telephone line along the public highways of the state, held that the term "public highways" as used included city streets, and that a telephone company might occupy such streets without the city's consent. Chamberlain v. Iowa Telephone Co., 119–619, 93 N. W. 596.

Where grant is made to a telephone company to use the streets of a city without limitation as to territory it has the right under such grant to extend its service to meet the demands of the public. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127–194, 103 N. W. 120.

A mutual voluntary association for the construction and maintenance of a telephone line for the exclusive benefit of the members of such association is not bound to extend its membership nor furnish connecting lines for others. Dumont v. Peet, 152–524, 132 N. W. 955.

The general provisions of this section are limited and controlled by those found in code §§ 775 and 776 as to the granting of franchises to construct and operate telegraph or telephone lines in the streets of a city. Farmers' Telephone Co. v. Washta, 157– —, 133 N. W. 361.

SEC. 2161. Liability for refusing to transmit messages.

Telegraph companies are to a limited sense and yet in a strict sense common carriers of intelligence and news and are bound to afford equal facilities to all in like situations. Huffman v. Marcy Mut. Tel. Co., 143–590, 121 N. W. 1033.

In the absence of special ruling, a patron of a mutual telephone company should not be cut off from the use of the line for any impropriety of its use until after warning and failure to desist. Ibid.

SEC. 2163. Liable for mistakes.

A telegraph company being engaged in a public employment may be liable in tort for breach of its obligations arising under a contract. Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122–379, 98 N. W. 281.

Whether a telegraph company has used reasonable diligence as to the delivery of a message confided to it is to be determined upon the consideration of all the facts of the case, including improper or defective address, and is for the jury. Hurlburt v. Western Union Tel. Co., 123-295, 98 N. W. 794.

Negligence being shown, damages for mental pain and anguish resulting from failure to deliver may be recovered. Ibid.

The statutory provision as to the liability of a telegraph company does not create a right of action in the addressee of a death message to recover damages for negligent delay in the delivery where none existed before, and therefore held that such provision was ineffective to sustain a recovery of damages for mental anguish by the addressee unaccompanied by any physical injury. Rowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 149 Fed. 550.

Negligent delay in delivering a telegram containing an inquiry as to the price of land, but no proposition to buy which, if accepted, would have constituted a contract of sale, will not authorize recovery of damages for the delay based on loss of the sale. Bennett v. Western Union Tel. Co., 129–607, 106 N. W. 13.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages resulting from negligent delay in transmitting a proposition for the exchange of real estate, held that as the proposition was made by mail and did not contemplate a response by telegram, it was for the jury to say whether the unreasonable delay in the acceptance of the contract through a telegraphic response was the cause of the loss of the benefits of the bargain. Lucas v. Western Union Tel. Co., 131–669, 109 N. W. 191.

One who acts in response to a telegram apparently addressed to a person of a different name, cannot recover damages against the telegraph company for injuries resulting to him by reason of the fact that the telegram was not intended for him, although the telegram has been delivered to him by the company. Bowyer v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130–324, 106 N. W. 748.

Damages resulting from failure to receive a telegram erroneously transmitted as to the name of the addressee may be recovered in an action against the company. Hise v. Western Union Tel. Co., 137–329, 113 N. W. 819.

A telegraph company is liable for negligence in transmitting a forged telegram upon which there is reason to believe another will rely to his injury and from the transmission of which such injury results. Wells v. Western Union Tel. Co., 144–605, 123 N. W. 371.

It is sufficient to render the company liable that the result likely to follow from reliance upon the genuineness of the telegram may be gathered in a general way from the fact of sending it. Ibid.

Therefore held that the telegraph company was liable for negligence in transmitting as genuine a forged telegram from one bank to another stating that the former would honor a draft by a specified person for a certain amount and that the holder of such draft might recover against the company although he was not the person to whom the telegram was addressed. Ibid.

If a telegraph company receives a forged message under circumstances which excite, or reasonably ought to excite, suspicion of its true character and forwards it without warning to the addressee who relies upon it to his injury, a liability to the person thus injured is incurred. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Western Union Tel. Co., 139 N. W. 552.

Error in the transmission of the message being shown, the burden is upon the defendant company to prove that the mistake was not due to its negligence. Younker v. Western Union Tel. Co., 146–499, 125 N. W. 577.

An addressee may sue and recover damages but he must show that he suffered some damage. If the damage was suffered by the sender alone the addressee has no cause of action. Ibid.

Where a telegram is sent to an agent and by erroneous transmission the agent so acts as to cause a loss to the sender the agent has no right of action against the company unless he is in some way liable to his principal or suffers a loss as agent. Ibid.

In a proper case damages may be awarded for mental anguish resulting from the negligence of the defendant in the transmission or delivery of a message whenever such mental anguish is the natural and proximate result of such negligence. Maley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 151–228, 130 N. W. 1086.

Relation by affinity does not give rise to a presumption of mental suffering in the case of failure to deliver a death message. Foreman v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141–32, 116 N. W. 724.

It is not necessary however that the relationship of the parties be brought home to the company in order to sustain recovery for mental suffering in a proper case. Ibid.

In an action to recover damages for negligent delay in delivering a death message resulting in mental suffering to the addressee in consequence of his being unable to attend the funeral of a relative, the burden is upon the plaintiff to plead and prove either a close relationship with the deceased or such other facts showing such close and affectionate relations as to give rise to the mental suffering upon which the claim for damages is predicated. Seddon v. Western Union Tel. Co., 146–743, 126 N. W. 969.

It is not essential to the recovery of such damages that the relationship relied upon shall appear in the message. Ibid.

The burden on the plaintiff to show negligence is satisfied by proving an unreasonable delay; the burden is then on the defendant to show the absence of negligence. Ibid.

The duty owed by a telegraph company is public, though growing out of contract, and the measure of damages for failure to discharge its duty is governed by the law of the forum. Markley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 151–612, 132 N. W. 37.

If a message is sent as soon as given to the receiving agent of the company, no recovery can be had for delay in transmission resulting from an erroneous address. Ibid.

Where an agent for the sale of property, having a purchaser ready, willing and able to buy, is defeated in realizing his expected profit from such sale by the negligent delay of telegraphic service in the delivery of a message, he is entitled to recover the profits thus lost. McNeil v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 154–241, 134 N. W. 611.

Where the telegraph company installs a telephone in its office as a means of communication with those desiring to send messages to it for transportation, it is liable for the negligence of its agent in erroneously recording for transmission a message thus received by telephone. Markley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141 N. W. 443.

A telephone company may be liable under this section for damages in not furnishing the proper connection called for within a reasonable time. Volquardsen v. Iowa Telephone Co., 148–77, 126 N. W. 928.

While an allegation of unreasonable delay might be sufficient to throw on defendant the burden of showing that the delay was not due to negligence, yet where the particular negligence relied on is alleged it must be proven and plaintiff cannot complain of failure of defendant to prove freedom from negligence in other respects. Ibid.

The liability of the telephone company being defined by statute, the damages must be the proximate result of the unreasonable delay proven. Ibid.

SEC. 2164. Negligence presumed—notice of claim.

The burden is upon the company to prove that mistake or delay in the transmission or delivery of a message is not due to its own negligence. Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122–379, 98 N. W. 281.

It is error to admit in evidence a notice in writing of a claim for damages, where there is no allegation in the pleadings as to such notice. Heald v. Western Union Tel. Co., 129–326, 105 N. W. 588.

Failure to allege notice is a good ground for motion in arrest of judgment in an action on a claim as to which notice is required. Ibid.

The objection that notice of a claim against a telegraph company for damages due to negligence was not given within sixty days, as required by statute, may be raised for the first time in a motion in arrest of judgment. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 135–69, 110 N. W. 143.

Negligence will be presumed on proof of unreasonable delay in the delivery of a message and the burden is on the defendant to show that the delay was not due to negligence. Potter v. Western Union Tel. Co., 138–406, 116 N. W. 130.

In estimating the time for notice of claim the date of the alleged negligence of the company and not the date of delivering the telegram to the company is to be considered. Markley v. Western Union Tel. Co., 144–105, 122 N. W. 136.

The statutory provisions as to the time for filing claims cannot be waived by a stipulation made at the time that the telegram is delivered. Ibid.

The provision of this section as to notice does not apply to a case where there is neither erroneous transmission nor unreasonable delay, but it is sought to hold the company liable for negligence in transmitting a forged telegram and thereby misleading a party entitled to rely upon the information which the telegram purports to convey. Wells v. Western Union Tel. Co., 144–605, 123 N. W. 371.

Where a telegram was sent by a principal to an agent and by reason of error in transmission the agent so acted as to cause damage to the principal, held that notice given by the agent of a claim on his individual behalf would not support an action by the principal. Younker v. Western Union Tel. Co., 146–499, 125 N. W. 577.

The institution of suit and service upon the company within the sixty days is a sufficient compliance with the requirement as to notice. Seddon v. Western Union Tel. Co., 146–743, 126 N. W. 969.

It is immaterial that in the petition the allegation is that the company failed to deliver the telegram, whereas from the testimony it appears that the delivery was negligently delayed. Ibid.

It seems that service of notice would not be premature if made after the completion of the tort complained of, although at the time of the service of such notice the cause of action has not fully accrued. Salinger v. Western Union Tel. Co., 147–484, 126 N. W. 362.

Where in consequence of negligence in the transmission of a message an agent was imprisoned, held that notice of complaint on the part of his principal sending the message was not sufficient notice of a claim on the part of the agent to recover his damages resulting from such imprisonment. Brockelsby v. Western Union Tel. Co., 148–273, 126 N. W. 1105.

This provision for notice is not applicable in an action for the failure to deliver a telegram. Larsen v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 150–748, 130 N. W. 813.

Any such express company or common carrier, any officer, representative, or agent or any express company, or carrier, who knowingly violates the provisions of this act shall forfeit to the state of Iowa the sum of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered as by law provided. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 6.]

General courts-martial. Any member of the guard charged with an offense as defined in this act or in the articles of war or general regulations governing the organized militia and the army of the United States or any regulations promulgated by the governor under authority of this act, may be tried by a general court-martial ordered and appointed by the governor. The organization of the court and the forms of procedure shall, as far as practicable, be those prescribed in the articles of war and regulations for the army and organized militia, except that it shall not be necessary for the continuance or conclusion of the proceedings of any court-martial to have the minutes of its proceedings, which may be taken in shorthand, transcribed into longhand before the completion of such proceedings, but such transcript shall be filed within a reasonable time after the conclusion of the proceedings of such court. The punishment fixed by the sentence shall not be other than dismissal or dishonorable discharge from the service, or reduction to the ranks of a noncommissioned officer, and suspension from duty and forfeiture of compensation or confinement for a period named in the sentence or reprimand, according to the gravity of the offense; except when the offense shall have been committed while in the active service of the state, when the punishment may be as prescribed in the articles of war, and a trial under this section shall be a trial within the provisions of section twelve of article one of the constitution of Iowa. Witnesses duly served with subpoena, signed by the judge advocate, shall appear and testify as if duly served with subpoena to appear and testify in the district court, and shall receive the same fees and mileage therefor, to be taxed as costs, which, with other necessary expenses of the judge advocate and the court, shall be taxed and certified by the president of the court-martial, and paid by the state treasurer upon the auditor's warrant issued therefor to the judge advocate, who shall pay the expenses of the trial. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 38.]

SEC. 2215-f38. Inferior courts-martial. Inferior courts-martial are hereby authorized, and the constitution, composition, jurisdiction and proceedings thereof shall be assimilated to courts of the same nature in the army of the United States, but no stoppage of pay or confinement shall exceed that provided for in similar courts by the United States army regulations. A home station court-martial[1] is hereby authorized for the trial of offenses referred to in section thirty-seven hereof. The governor shall provide regulations governing the same and the procedure connected therewith, provided that such regulations must prescribe at least five days' notice of the time of hearing of the charge, and shall provide that the hearing before such court-martial shall be public. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 39.]

[1]"courts-martial" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2215-f39. Approval or disapproval of courts-martial proceedings—mitigation—record. The proceedings of all general courts-martial shall be submitted to the governor, who shall approve or disapprove the same, or he may mitigate or remit any punishment imposed by the sentence of said court. The proceedings of inferior courts-martial shall be approved or disapproved by the commanding officer, who may in like manner mitigate or remit the punishment fixed in the sentence. In all cases the record of the proceedings of the court-martial, with the order of the governor or commanding officer accompanied therewith, shall be preserved as a permanent record in the office of the adjutant general. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 40.]

SEC. 2215-f40. Tax exemptions—use of public utilities. It shall be lawful for the boards of supervisors of the several counties and for the city councils of the several cities and towns of the state to exempt from taxation all personal and real property held and used for armory or military purposes; and it shall be lawful for any county or city or town which owns public utilities to grant to any organization of the guard which is stationed in such place, the free use of such public utilities. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 41.]

SEC. 2215-f41. Building and camp ground improvements. The governor is authorized to expend from the funds appropriated for the support and maintenance of the guard such amounts as may be necessary in the erection of buildings and other improvements on the permanent camp grounds and rifle ranges purchased by the state for the use of the guard, or purchased by the United States for the uses of the guard of this state, when in his judgment such buildings and improvements will be for the permanent good of the guard. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 42.]

SEC. 2215-f42. Appropriation. There is appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one hundred fifty thousand dollars per annum or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the support of the guard under the provisions of this act not applying to active service, which shall be drawn by a warrant, drawn by the auditor of state on the state treasurer, upon the certificate of the adjutant general approved by the governor, showing for what purpose each draft is to be or has been used, and no indebtedness shall be created in excess of such annual appropriation. [35 G. A., ch. 182, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 131, § 43.]

SEC. 2215-f43. Present commissions, enlistments, contracts and organizations. The term of service and the rank of all officers and grades of all enlisted men in the guard at the time of the taking effect of this act shall not be affected thereby, unless especially mentioned herein, but each of said officers and enlisted men shall be held to service for the full period of the commission or enlistment under which he is then serving; neither shall the provisions of this act be construed to affect the continuity of the various organizations of the guard, nor of any contracts made by it, or by any of its organizations; provided, however, that upon the issuance of regulations and orders by the governor for the reorganization of the guard as herein contemplated or provided for, the governor may, if necessary in order to conform to such plan of reorganization, change the rank of any such officers or the grade of any such enlisted men. [33 G. A., ch. 131, § 44.]

TITLE XII.

OF THE POLICE OF THE STATE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SETTLEMENT AND SUPPORT OF THE POOR.

SECTION 2216. Who liable to maintain.

The obligation to support children being under these sections primarily upon their father and mother, and secondarily upon their grandfather, in the absence or inability of nearer relatives, held that the grandfather was not bound for their support, although the evidence showed that their father had abandoned his wife and had no property subject to execution, where there was no showing that he was absent or unable to provide for his children. Johnson County v. Stratton, 111–421, 82 N. W. 955.

Liability of a grandparent for support of children can be predicated only on proof that the parent is unable, because of physical or mental disability, to earn a living by labor. The inability of such parent to earn sufficient support for himself and children, not due to physical or mental disability, is no ground for throwing the liability for their support upon the grandparent. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129–53, 105 N. W. 350.

SEC. 2217. Same.

The grandparent is not liable for the support of his grandchildren where it appears that the parents are capable of furnishing such support. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129–53, 105 N. W. 350.

The fact that the father of such children has secured a divorce from their mother, the daughter of the grandparent who is sought to be charged with such support, and has subsequently remarried and become encumbered with another family, is no reason why the support of his children should be thrown upon the grandparent. Ibid.

SEC. 2219. Notice—hearing—order—appeal.

It is not necessary that liability for the support of a relative be determined under this section before the support is furnished for which relatives are subsequently to be held liable. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

SEC. 2222. Recovery by county.

The county may recover sums expended for relief and support at the poor farm or elsewhere; and the amount expended in case of support at the poor farm is determined by proof of the reasonable value of maintaining each inmate. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

SEC. 2224. Settlement—how acquired.

The wife's legal settlement is that of her husband only where the family relation in fact exists and her dependence upon him is acknowledged and acquiesced in by him. After the wife has been abandoned by her husband his change of residence does not affect the place of her settlement. Washington County v. Polk County, 137–333, 113 N. W. 833.

SEC. 2225. Foreign paupers.

One county furnishing relief to a resident of another state cannot recover therefor from another county in which such poor person has received an injury on account of which relief should have been furnished by the latter county. Cerro Gordo County v. Boone County, 152–692, 133 N. W. 132.

Neither the county nor its officers are liable to a transient for failure to furnish the relief authorized by this section to be furnished. Wood v. Boone County, 153–92, 133 N. W. 377.

SEC. 2228. Contest as to settlement.

The liability of a county for support furnished by another county is purely statutory. Cerro Gordo County v. Boone County, 152–692, 133 N. W. 132.

The fact that officers of one county fail to furnish relief which should be furnished to a transient does not render the county liable to another county which furnishes such relief. Ibid.

SEC. 2230. Relief by trustees—overseer of the poor. The township trustees of each township, subject to general rules that may be adopted by the board of supervisors, shall provide for the relief of such poor persons in their respective townships as should not, in their judgment, be sent to the county home. But where a city is embraced, in whole or in part, within the limits of any township, the board of supervisors may appoint an overseer of the poor, who shall have within said city, or part thereof, all the powers and duties conferred by this chapter on the township trustees. The relief may be either in the form of food, rent or clothing, fuel and lights, medical attendance, or in money, and shall not exceed two dollars per week for each person for whom relief is thus furnished, exclusive of medical attendance. They may require any able-bodied person to labor faithfully on the streets or highways at the rate of five cents per hour in payment for and as a condition of granting relief; said labor shall be performed under the direction of the officers having charge of working streets and highways. When medical services are rendered by order of the trustees or overseers of the poor, no more shall be charged or paid therefor than is usually charged for like services in the neighborhood where such services are rendered. No supervisor, trustee or overseer shall be directly or indirectly interested in any supplies furnished the poor. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 3.] [18 G. A., ch. 133; C. '73, § 1361.]

It is money expended in furnishing support or relief which may be recovered; but if the support is furnished at the poor farm, the reasonable value of maintaining an inmate is the measure of the money expended. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

Where it appeared that on notice of the clerk to the trustees two of the trustees appeared and it was agreed as to what action should be taken, held that there was a sufficient meeting of the trustees to support such action. Brock v. Jones County, 145–397, 124 N. W. 209.

The township trustees, in passing upon a claim for medical services rendered to a poor person, act in a quasi judicial capacity and a claim once presented and rejected cannot be allowed by a subsequent board although the trustees rejecting such claim may, no doubt, within a reasonable time, reconsider their action. Case v. Davis County, 150–552, 129 N. W. 804.

An allegation that the township trustees, without knowledge of the merits of a claim previously rejected by their predecessors at the time the services were performed, allowed and certified the same, held sufficient to charge fraud in such allowance. Ibid.

SEC. 2231. Soldiers or families. No person who has served in the army or navy of the United States, or their widows or families, requiring public relief shall be sent to the county home when they can and prefer to be relieved to the extent above provided, and other persons and families may, at the discretion of the board, also be so relieved. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [17 G. A., ch. 37; 16 G. A., ch. 26; C. '73, § 1362.]

The relief contemplated in this section is that furnished under code § 2230 which limits the trustees to the expenditure of two dollars per week. It does not have reference to the application of the soldiers' relief tax provided for in code § 431. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

SEC. 2232. County expense.

The county, being charged with the duty of relieving and looking after the interests of the poor, is to that extent a charitable institution; and a gift made specifically as an aid to this feature of its work is to all intents and purposes a charitable gift within the exception of the collateral inheritance tax. In re Estate of Spangler, 148–333, 127 N. W. 625.

SEC. 2233. Township trustees—duty. The trustees in each township, in counties where there is no county home have the oversight and care of all poor persons in their township, and shall see that they receive proper care until provided for by the board of supervisors. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1364; R. § 1387; C. '51, § 819.]

SEC. 2234. Application for relief—action of supervisors. The poor must make application for relief to the trustees of the township where they may be, and, if the trustees are satisfied that the applicant is in such a state of want as requires relief at the public expense, they may afford such relief, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors, as the necessities of the person require, and shall report the case forthwith to the board of supervisors, who may continue or deny relief, as they find cause. The board of supervisors may examine into all claims, including claims for medical attendance, allowed by the township trustees for the support of the poor, and, if they find the amount allowed by said trustees to be unreasonable, exorbitant or for any goods or services other than for the necessaries of life, they may reject or diminish the claim as in their judgment would be right and just, and this act shall apply to all counties in the state, whether there are county homes established in the same or not. This act shall apply to acts of overseers of poor in cities as well as to township trustees. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 2.] [22 G. A., ch. 101; C. '73, § 1365; R. § 1388; C. '51, § 820.]

If the board of supervisors has in fact employed a competent and efficient physician to care for the poor, the township trustees are not authorized to employ another simply because they believe the county physician is inattentive, neglectful or incompetent. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106–16, 75 N. W. 689.

A certificate from the township trustees attached to the account of a physician presented to the board of supervisors is properly admissible in evidence. Ibid.

Where a physician is employed by the board of health to attend upon a person infected with contagious disease he is entitled to compensation from the county if the infected person is a poor person, notwithstanding the employment by the county of another physician to attend generally upon the poor. Ibid.

Where it appeared that the board of supervisors had employed a physician but the case in question was not one which would come within his care under his contract of employment, held that the claim of another physician for services rendered in such case was properly allowed. Taylor v. Woodbury County, 106–502, 76 N. W. 824.

It is not necessary that application be made for relief by the poor person in order to entitle the county to recover from relatives for support furnished. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

The necessity for and extent of the relief to be furnished is largely, if not wholly, a matter of discretion, and neither the county nor its officers are liable for damages in failing to furnish such relief even though, under the circumstances, it might be proper to do so. Wood v. Boone County, 153–92, 133 N. W. 377.

SEC. 2235. Payment of claims.

The physician may claim for services performed by another physician under his direction. Taylor v. Woodbury County, 106–502, 76 N. W. 824.

Even though the services for which claim is made were originally rendered without proper legal sanction, yet the giving of the certificate contemplated in this section cures any such defect in the claim. Ibid.

Payment or allowance by the board of a claim which is defectively certified cannot be said to be illegal or unauthorized in such sense as that it should be set aside in an action to recover for the medical services authorized. Brock v. Jones County, 145–397, 124 N. W. 209.

SEC. 2238. Contracts for support.

A contract or an arrangement between the board of supervisors and a medical society for the furnishing of medical services to the poor is not invalid; and a member of the society cannot recover for services rendered on an arrangement subsequently made between him and the township board of trustees. Brock v. Jones County, 145–397, 124 N. W. 209.

SEC. 2241. County home established. The board of supervisors of each county may order the establishment of a county home in such county whenever it is deemed advisable, and also the purchase of such land as may be deemed necessary for the use of the same, and may make the requisite contracts and carry such order into effect, provided the cost of said county home and land, if in excess of five thousand dollars, shall be first estimated by said board and approved by a vote of the people. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1372; R. § 1396; C. '51, § 828.]

SEC. 2242. Contracts—government. The board of supervisors, or any committee appointed by it for that purpose, may make all contracts and purchases requisite for the county home and may prescribe rules or regulations for the management and government of the same, and for the sobriety, morality and industry of its occupants. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1373; R. § 1401; C. '51, § 833.]

SEC. 2243. Steward appointed. The board may appoint a steward of the county home, who shall be governed in all respects by the rules and regulations of the board and its committees, and may be removed by the board at pleasure, and who shall receive such compensation, perform such duties, and give such security for his faithful performance as the board may direct. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1374; R. § 1402; C. '51, § 834.]

SEC. 2244. Admission to county home—labor. The steward shall receive into the county home any person producing an order as hereafter provided, and enter in a book to be kept for that purpose the name and age, and the date of the reception of such person; he may require of persons so admitted such reasonable and moderate labor as may be suited to their ages and bodily strength, the proceeds of which, together with the receipts of the poor farm, shall be appropriated to the use of the county home in such manner as the board may determine. No person shall be admitted to the county home except upon the written order of a township trustee or member of the board of supervisors, and relief is to be furnished in the county home only, when the person is able to be taken there, unless in the cases hereinbefore otherwise provided. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 1375–7; R. §§ 1403–5; C. '51, §§ 835–7.]

Although persons admitted to the poorhouse may be required to perform such labor as may be suited to their age and strength, the proceeds of which are to be appropriated to the use of the poorhouse, nevertheless the board of supervisors may make a contract with reference to the labor of an insane inmate by which his services are to be accepted in full payment for his board and lodging, and his estate relieved from liability therefor. Marshall County v. Lippincott, 137–102, 111 N. W. 801.

SEC. 2245. Discharge. When any inmate of the county home becomes able to support himself, the board must order his discharge. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1379; R. § 1408; C. '51, § 840.]

SEC. 2246. Visitation of county home. The board shall cause the county home to be visited at least once a month by one of its body, who shall carefully examine the condition of the inmates and the manner in which they are fed and clothed and otherwise provided for and treated, ascertain what labor they are required to perform, inspect the books and accounts of the steward, and look into all matters pertaining to the county home and its inmates, and report to the board. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1380; R. § 1410; C. '51, § 842.]

SEC. 2247. Expenses—tax. The expense of supporting the poor shall be paid out of the county treasury in the same manner as other disbursements for county purposes; and in case the ordinary revenue of the county proves insufficient for the support of the poor, the board may levy a poor tax, not exceeding two mills on the dollar, to be entered on the tax list and collected as the ordinary county tax. [33 G. A., ch. 132, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 10; 17 G. A., ch. 166; C. '73, § 1381; R. § 1412; C. '51, § 844.]

SEC. 2248. Letting out. The board is invested with authority to let out the support of the poor, with the use and occupancy of the county home and farm, for a period not exceeding three years. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [C. '73, § 1382; R. § 1415; C. '51, § 847.]

SEC. 2249. Education of children. Poor children, when cared for at the county home, shall attend the district school for the district in which such home[1] is situated, and a ratable proportion of the cost of the school, based upon the attendance of such poor children to the total number of days' attendance thereat, shall be paid by the county into the treasury of such school district, and charged as part of the expense of supporting the county home. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [17 G. A., ch. 166; C. '73, § 1381; R. § 1412; C. '51, § 844.]

[1"house" in code changed here to comply with the manifest intent. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2250. Illegitimates.

The putative father of an illegitimate child being chargeable for its support, the child may recover civil damages for injuries resulting from sale of intoxicating liquors to the father. Goulding v. Phillips, 124-496, 100 N. W. 516.

SEC. 2252. "Poor person" defined.

The provisions as to the support of poor persons are to be construed as contemplating only those who having no property are unable because of physical or mental disability to earn a living by labor. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129-53, 105 N. W. 350.

A person to come within the class mentioned must be without property which can aid in his support or out of which funds may be realized for his maintenance. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141-477, 119 N. W. 978.

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE CARE OF THE INSANE.

[For general supervision by board of control and abolishment of boards of trustees see §§ 2727-a8 and 2727-a9 herein. EDITOR.]

SECTION 2253. Hospitals—trustees—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2253-a. State hospitals—names. That section twenty-two hundred fifty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The hospital for the insane at Mount Pleasant shall be known by the name of "Mount Pleasant State Hospital"; the one at Independence, "Independence State Hospital"; the one at Clarinda, "Clarinda State Hospital"; and the one at Cherokee, "Cherokee State Hospital." [29 G. A., ch. 91, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 80; 22 G. A., ch. 75, §§ 1, 2; C. '73, § 1383.]

SEC. 2266. Finding of commissioners—warrant—confinement.

The board of insane commissioners is not required to make a finding upon the question of legal residence of a person found to be insane. Brown v. Lambe, 119-404, 93 N. W. 486.

A finding of insanity and an order for commitment are not admissible as proof of the fact of insanity where it appears that there was no commitment in fact and that on further investigation the commissioners found that the person under investigation was not insane and ordered his discharge. State v. Neubauer, 145-337, 124 N. W. 312.

Discharge from the hospital after commitment is evidence of change in mental capacity but is not conclusive. Mileham v. Montagne, 148-476, 125 N. W. 664.

SEC. 2267. Appeal from finding. Any person found to be insane in proceedings herein authorized may appeal from such finding to the district court by giving the clerk thereof, within ten days after such finding has been made, notice in writing that an appeal is taken, which may be signed by the party, his agent, guardian or attorney, and, when thus appealed, it shall stand for trial anew. Upon appeal it shall be the duty of the county attorney to prosecute the action on behalf of the informant without additional compensation. [29 G. A., ch. 92, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 152, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2270. Settlement in another county. If the commissioners find that the person committed to the hospital has or probably has a legal settlement in some other county, they shall, after the time allowed for an appeal, or, in case an appeal is taken, after the same is finally disposed of, immediately notify the auditor of such county of such finding and commitment, and the auditor so notified shall thereupon inquire and ascertain if possible whether the person in question has a legal settlement in that county, and shall immediately notify the superintendent of the hospital and the commissioners of the county from which such person was committed of the result of such inquiry. If the legal settlement of a person committed cannot for a time be ascertained, and is afterwards found, the notices required shall then be given. If in either of the above cases the auditor of the county in which it is alleged that the patient has a legal settlement shall find adversely to the decision of the commissioners of the county from which the patient was committed, and said commissioners are unwilling to accept his findings, they shall, through the auditor of their county, forthwith apply to the district court through proper legal proceedings for a determination of the case. Any county whose officials shall fail either in cases now in dispute or disputes which may hereafter arise to apply to the district court as herein provided, within six months from the date of the receipt of notice from the auditor of the county in which it is claimed the patient has a legal settlement shall be liable for the maintenance of said patient. If, upon hearing, the court shall find that the patient has no legal settlement in either of the counties in dispute, the board of control shall at once be notified by the auditor of the county from which the patient was committed, in accordance with the provisions of section one, chapter ninety-two, acts of the thirty-first general assembly,[1] and the proceedings thereafter with reference to said patient shall be as provided in said section. The residence of any person found insane who is an inmate of any state institution shall be that existing at the time of admission therein. [32 G. A., ch. 118; 24 G. A., ch. 24, § 2; C. '73, § 1402.]

[1] § 2727-a28a herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2271. Custody outside hospital. If any person found to be insane and a fit subject for custody and treatment in the hospital cannot at once be admitted therein, or, in case of appeal from the finding of the commissioners, if such person cannot with safety be allowed to go at liberty, the commissioners shall require that such person shall be suitably provided for otherwise until such admission can be had, or until the occasion therefor no longer exists. Such patients may be cared for as private patients whose relations or friends will obligate themselves to take care of and provide for them without public charge. In such case, the commissioners shall in writing appoint some suitable person special custodian, who shall have authority to, and shall in all suitable ways, restrain, protect and care for such patient in such manner as to best secure his safety and comfort, and to best protect the persons and property of others. In the case of public patients, the commissioners shall require that they be in like manner restrained and protected and cared for by the board of supervisors at the expense of the county, and they may, accordingly, issue their warrant to such board, who shall forthwith comply with the same. If there is no county home for the reception of such patients, or if no more suitable place can be found, they may be confined in the jail of the county in charge of the sheriff; but no female may be confined in such county home or jail unless at all times under the personal care of a suitable female attendant, who shall hold a key of the apartment in which said person is confined. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 68, § 2; C. '73, § 1403.]

SEC. 2279. Insane prisoners—inquiry—confinement.

The commissioners of insanity have no authority to inquire as to the sanity of a prisoner under arrest on indictment, and the provisions of this section are in this respect invalid. The court should proceed under the provisions of code § 5540. Stone v. Conrad, 105–21, 74 N. W. 910.

SEC. 2283. At expense of state. Patients in a hospital having no legal settlement in the state, or whose legal settlement cannot be ascertained, shall be supported at the expense of the state. The trustees of any asylum may authorize the superintendent to remove any patient who has no legal settlement within the state, the cost of such removal to be paid directly from the state treasury, upon a sworn statement of the superintendent and the approval of the trustees appended to each voucher. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 3; 21 G. A., ch. 47; C. '73, § 1419.]

SEC. 2287. Escape—expenses of capture and return. That section twenty-two hundred eighty-seven of the code and chapter seventy-nine of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly amendatory thereof are hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"If any patient shall escape from a state hospital for the insane the superintendent shall cause immediate search to be made for him and if he cannot be found, shall cause notice of such escape to be given forthwith to the clerk of the district court of the county where he belongs and if found to be in that county the clerk shall at once notify the superintendent of the place where the patient can be found, and when so notified or when otherwise informed of the place in which the patient may be taken the superintendent shall send an employe of the hospital or other person for him and cause him to be returned to the hospital unless for good reasons a different course be deemed advisable by the superintendent, and is approved by the board of control. In case of apparent necessity the patient may be taken into custody and restrained by the local authorities until he is taken by the representative of the hospital. All actual and necessary expenses incurred in the capture, restraint and return to the hospital of the patient shall be paid on itemized vouchers, sworn to by the claimants and approved by the superintendent and the board of control of state institutions, from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated." [31 G. A., ch. 93; 30 G. A., ch. 79; C. '73, § 1423.]

SEC. 2288. Discharge when cured.

The money required for the purpose stated shall be drawn by and on the estimate of the superintendents of the several hospitals, approved by the board of control of state institutions, and may be so drawn before the expenses are incurred or vouchers therefor are filed. Any unexpended balance of money so drawn shall be returned to the state treasury. An itemized statement of the money so drawn and of the expenses so incurred and paid and of the balance, if any, returned to the state treasury shall be made by the board of control and filed in the office of the auditor of state. SEC. 2297. Estates of patients liable.

The wife does not become liable to the county for the support of her husband as a patient in the insane hospital. Blackhawk County v. Scott, 111–190, 82 N. W. 492.

The state has no common law right of recovery against the estate of one who has received the benefits of treatment as an insane person in the hospitals of the state, and there is no statutory provision creating a liability which may be enforced by the state against the patient or his property. State v. Colligan, 128–536, 104 N. W. 905.

The estate of an insane person cannot be taxed with the costs of the hearing on the question of insanity and commitment under such hearing. In re Estate of Westlake, 125–314, 101 N. W. 88.

In defense to an action to recover from the estate of an insane person the expense of maintaining him by the county, it may be shown that under an agreement with the board of supervisors he rendered services on the poor farm for an agreed compensation in full payment for his board and lodging. Marshall County v. Lippincott, 137–102, 111 N. W. 801.

A father is liable to the county for the care and support of his minor son at the hospital for the insane. The statutory provision does not impose a tax nor is it open to objection that it authorizes the taking of private property without just compensation. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133–171, 110 N. W. 454.

The question of the insanity of the person for whose support recovery is sought against his parent may be litigated in the action. Ibid.

The fact that the insane person is placed in the hospital without the consent of those liable for his support will not relieve them from the statutory liability. Ibid.

The county may recover judgment against an insane person for any sum paid by the county for his support, such insane person being defended by guardian. A judgment thus recovered may be enforced by execution sale of the property of the insane person. Gressly v. Hamilton County, 136–722, 114 N. W. 191.

No provision is made for jury trial on a claim of the county against the estate of an insane person for his care and support. In re Guardianship of Buck, 140–355, 118 N. W. 530.

A husband is liable under this section for the amount advanced by the county to support his insane wife at the hospital. Wapello County v. Eikelberg, 140–736, 117 N. W. 978.

This section does not authorize recovery by the state but only by the county which is legally bound in law for the support of an insane person, and the board of supervisors of the county may relieve the estate of an insane person from the payment of the expense of the keeping of such person in the insane hospital. State v. Cole, 155–654, 136 N. W. 887.

Where it appears that the county has expended nothing in the maintenance of a patient in the insane hospital it cannot recover the expense of such maintenance from the estate of such insane person who is a nonresident of the county. Ibid.

The estates of insane patients are not released from liability because they are supported at public charge and payments made by the county on that account may be collected. Such collection is to be enforced by judgment and execution as any other claims against the estate of the insane person. Clay County v. Meyers, 140 N. W. 889.

SEC. 2297-a. Nonresident patients—liability of estates and persons. That the estates of all patients who are provided for and treated in state hospitals for the insane in this state but who are nonresidents of this state, and all persons legally bound for the support of such patients shall be liable to the state for the reasonable value of the care, maintenance and treatment of such patients while in such hospitals, and the certificate of the superintendent of the state hospital in which any nonresident is or has been a patient, showing the amounts drawn from the state treasury or due therefrom as provided by law on account of any nonresident patient, shall be presumptive evidence of the reasonable value of the care, maintenance and treatment furnished such patient. [34 G. A., ch. 98, § 1.]

This statute is not applicable to claims for support of an insane person presented prior to the date of its taking effect. State v. Cole, 155–654, 136 N. W. 887.

SEC. 2308. County insane fund. The board of supervisors, when levying taxes for general purposes, shall include therein a tax of one and one-half mill or less, as may be necessary, for the purpose of raising a fund for the support of such insane persons as are cared for and supported by the county in the insane ward of the county home, or elsewhere outside of any state hospital for the insane, which shall be known as the county insane fund, and shall be used for no other purpose than the support of such insane persons. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 3.] [27 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.]

SEC. 2308-a. Nonresidents of county—costs and expenses—how paid. That section twenty-three hundred and eight-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That in all cases where the commissioners of insanity of a county find to be insane a person who does not have a legal settlement within that county, the necessary and legal costs and expenses of the arrest, care, investigation and commitment of such person, including quarterly support in a state hospital during the investigation, or time required to determine the residence of such person, also court costs in suit to determine the legal settlement of such patient, together with costs of appeal, if an appeal be taken, and the person is found to be insane on appeal, shall in the first instance be paid by the county in which such person is so found to be insane. If, upon investigation, such person is found to have a legal settlement in another county of this state, such necessary and legal costs and expenses shall be audited and paid by the supervisors of that county in the manner provided for the payment of other claims. If such person be found to have no legal settlement within this state such necessary and legal costs and expenses shall be paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, on vouchers executed by the auditor of the county which has paid them, and approved by the board of control of state institutions. Such vouchers shall contain an itemized statement of the costs and expenses and payment shall be made to the treasurer of the county." [35 G. A., ch. 183, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 78.]

And said paroled patient must make written reports to the superintendent of said hospital at the beginning of each month on blanks to be furnished the clerks of the district and superior courts for that purpose, to the effect that he has not during the month past in any respect violated any of the terms and conditions of his parole, which reports must be investigated and approved by the clerk or judge of the court which committed him, or if he shall have removed from the county from which he was committed then by the clerk of the district court of the county in which he actually resides at the time the report is made, who may demand from said paroled patient satisfactory evidence as to the truth of the statement. If at any time a patient on parole shall fail to make said report, or shall fail in any respect to fulfill all of the conditions upon which said parole was granted, he may, without any further proceeding whatever and on the written order of the superintendent of said hospital, be taken and returned to the hospital, there to be detained and treated as provided herein. If the superintendent be satisfied in any case that it will impose an unnecessary hardship upon a paroled patient to secure the approval of the clerk of the district court to the monthly report he may waive such approval when the report is approved by some other public officer, to be designated by him. SEC. 2310-a24. Any person who shall knowingly furnish any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug to one who has been discharged from either of said institutions as cured, except upon the written prescription of a reputable practicing physician, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars and not more than ten hundred dollars and stand committed to the county jail until such fine is paid. SEC. 2310-a26. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 22.]

SEC. 2310-a28. Insane patients—expenses. Whenever any person committed to and received in the hospital for inebriates shall become insane, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to file, or cause to be filed, with the commissioners of insanity of Marion county, Iowa, an information charging the said patient with insanity and the said insane commission shall proceed to inquire into the sanity of said patient as provided in title twelve, chapter two of the code. In the event that said person shall be judged insane, he shall be transferred to the hospital for the insane, where he shall be detained until such time as that he shall be discharged by the superintendent of the insane hospital, when he shall be returned to the hospital for inebriates, where he shall remain under the terms of the original commitment. All the expense incident to the commitment of said patient to the state hospital for the insane, including the expense of the hearing before the commissioners of insanity of Marion county, and the expense of returning said patient to the hospital for inebriates shall be paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated on vouchers executed and approved as in other cases. [33 G. A., ch. 133, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 23.]

[The direction for placing the amendment made by 33 G. A. is somewhat obscure. The above seems to carry out the intent. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2310-a29. Parole when confinement is injurious to health. Whenever the physical condition of any patient shall become such that, in the judgment of the superintendent, further confinement will prove injurious to the health of said patient, the state board of control may parole him, under proper conditions and restrictions, for such period of time as it may deem advisable. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 24.]

SEC. 2310-a30. Escape—expenses of recapture. The law as it appears in section twenty-three hundred ten-a thirty, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

[33 G. A., ch. 133, § 3.] [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 25.]

SEC. 2310-a30a. Claims—how paid. The board of control of state institutions is hereby authorized to permit the superintendent to pay any claims to which the three foregoing sections refer, from the contingent fund provided for by the law as it appears in section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a forty-four, supplement to the code, 1907, and the institution support fund shall be credited at the beginning of each month with the amount, if any, paid during the preceding month from such contingent fund, as shown by the certificate of the superintendent approved by said board of control. [33 G. A., ch. 133, § 4.]

[§ 4 of ch. 133, 33 G. A., authorized the superintendent to pay any claims to which the "three foregoing sections," viz.: §§ 1, 2, and 3 of the act, refer, which sections amend respectively §§ 2310-a19, 2310-a28 and 2310-a30. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2310-a31. Subject to prosecution for public offenses. Whenever any person shall have been committed to the state hospital for inebriates under the provisions of this act, he shall still be subject to prosecution for any public offense committed against the penal statutes of the state and he shall, at all times, be subject to arrest notwithstanding such commitment. Such person shall, when discharged, be returned to said hospital at the expense of the county in which said prosecution was pending and concluded. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 26.]

SEC. 2310-a32. Traveling expenses of paroled or discharged patients. That when an inebriate person is paroled or discharged from the state hospital for inebriates at Knoxville or from any state hospital in which female inebriates are kept and is unable to furnish or obtain money for the necessary traveling expenses from the hospital to the place of commitment, the superintendent of the hospital with the approval of the board of control of state institutions may furnish said patient with transportation to the place where he or she was committed or to any other point he or she may select which is not more distant from the hospital than the place of commitment. [31 G. A., ch. 97.]

SEC. 2310-a33. Custodial department. That there is hereby created in the state hospital for inebriates at Knoxville, Iowa, a department to be known as the custodial department. [35 G. A., ch. 184, § 1.]

SEC. 2310-a34. Persons confined. Said department shall be for the confinement of all male persons hereinafter committed to said hospital who have been discharged under the provisions of section twenty-three hundred ten-a twelve, supplement to the code, 1907; all male persons committed to said hospital who are found by the court making the order of commitment to be habitual inebriates or drug habituates; and any person committed to the hospital who, in the judgment of the board of control of state institutions acting upon the recommendation of the superintendent, is believed to be a menace to the maintenance of the discipline of the hospital; and providing that patients of any department of the hospital who leave the institution or grounds thereof without due authority shall be subject to transfer to said custodial department upon order of the superintendent of the hospital. [35 G. A., ch. 184, § 2.]

SEC. 2310-a35. Release—transfer. No person confined in the custodial department shall be released therefrom until he shall have remained a full term of three years, but may be transferred to any other department of said hospital after two years confinement, if, in the judgment of the board of control of state institutions acting upon the recommendation of the superintendent, such transfer would not be detrimental to the well-being of other patients or to the discipline of the hospital, and such transferred patients may be paroled as provided by law, provided nothing herein contained shall prevent the discharge of patients as is provided by section twenty-three hundred ten-a twenty-nine, supplement to the code, 1907. SEC. 2310-a36. Fifty cents of said sum shall be deducted for his maintenance and the balance, twenty cents, the superintendent shall pay monthly to those dependent upon him for support, if there be any; otherwise it shall be paid to said patient upon his legal release. All such payments shall be made from the general support fund of the hospital in the same manner as other obligations. CHAPTER 3.

OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

SECTION 2311. Meaning of terms.

The owner of property within the terms of this section may be one having less than an absolute or unqualified title. Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co v. Peterson, 124–599, 100 N. W. 550.

SEC. 2312. Male animals running at large.

The owner of a bull, turning him loose on his own field with knowledge or notice that the partition fence separating his field from a field of an adjoining owner is insufficient to restrain him, cannot complain that the animal is taken up by the adjoining owner as running at large. Conway v. Jordan, 110–462, 81 N. W. 703.

Tender of the damages cannot be made until the constable has taken possession of the animal and estimated the damages done. Ibid.

One who has been damaged by a bull which has escaped from the custody of its owner is not limited to a proceeding by distraint; but having distrained the animal to prevent further damage, he may surrender him to the owner and recover such damages as he has suffered, in an action at law. Burleigh v. Hines, 124–199, 99 N. W. 723.

This statutory provision is applicable without regard to the sufficiency of partition fences through which the animal escapes from custody of the owner onto the land of another owner and there causes damage by getting with calf the blooded cows of such adjoining owner. Ibid.

The damage to be recovered in such case is the depreciation in value resulting at once on the serving by the bull of the cows thus gotten with calf and a subsequent disposal by the owner of the cows, of one or more of them, will not relieve the owner of the bull from liability for the damage to the cows thus disposed of. Ibid.

SEC. 2313. Distraint damage feasant—recovery.

Where an animal passes from the premises of the owner to the premises of an adjoining owner through a defective fence, the latter may distrain him for damage done. Conway v. Jordan, 110–462, 81 N. W. 703.

By distraining a bull which the owner improperly allows to get beyond his control, such distraint being only for the purpose of preventing further damage, the person who thus distrains does not waive the right to sue for damages and elect to rely upon proceedings under the distraint. He may surrender the animal to the owner and afterwards recover in an action such damages as he has suffered. Burleigh v. Hines, 124–199, 99 N. W. 723.

Where adjoining properties are not separated by partition fences and there has been no attempt to comply with the statutes for the construction thereof, the owner of one property will not be liable for injury to the crops of another occasioned by animals trespassing from his own pasture, in the absence of any knowledge that the adjoining property has been planted. Lint v. Malone, 140 N. W. 372.

SEC. 2314. What animals not permitted to run at large.

The damages for which animals are distrained must be assessed by the township trustees on notice given as required in code § 2317. Holaman v. Marsh, 116–483, 90 N. W. 82.

Animals which have escaped from the owner's close and are under the control of no one are running at large within the statutory provision with reference to trespasses by such animals. Foster v. Bussey, 132–640, 109 N. W. 1105.

One who is in rightful possession of land may distrain and hold for damages animals prohibited from running at large, trespassing upon his land. Miracle Pressed Stone Co. v. Roth, 144–656, 123 N. W. 346.

SEC. 2316. Apportionment of damages.

Where separate trespasses are committed by the stock of different owners, the damages from each trespass are to be considered as distinct and separate, and there is no occasion to apportion the aggregate damages from such trespasses against the different owners in proportion to the number of animals belonging to each engaged in the trespass. Foster v. Bussey, 132–640, 109 N. W. 1105.

SEC. 2317. Assessment of damages—sale.

The damages for which animals running at large may be distrained under code § 2314, must be assessed by the township trustees on notice given to them by the person making distraint. Holaman v. Marsh, 116–483, 90 N. W. 82.

One who distrains trespassing animals is entitled to compensation for their keeping although by reason of defective township organization there are no trustees competent to assess the damages. Robinson v. Halley, 124–443, 100 N. W. 328.

SEC. 2318. Assessment made—appeal.

The fact that there were no trustees of the township wherein stock was distrained to appraise the damage, does not affect the rights of recovery thereof. The owner of the trespassing stock which is distrained by an adjoining landowner should bear the burden of the keeping of the animals, rather than an innocent party. Robinson v. Halley, 124–443, 100 N. W. 328.

SEC. 2339. Diseased animals killed.

So far as this section authorizes the destruction by an officer of animals disabled and unfit for further use on account of disease not contagious or infectious in character, and without notice to the owner, it is unconstitutional and the officer destroying such animal may be liable in damages to the owner therefor. Waud v. Crawford, 141 N. W. 1041.

SEC. 2340. Dogs killed. It shall be lawful for any person to kill any dog caught in the act of worrying, maiming or killing any sheep or lamb, or other domestic animal, or any dog attacking or attempting to bite any person, and the owner shall be liable to the party injured for all damages done, except when the party is doing an unlawful act. The provisions of this section shall not apply to any damage done by a dog affected with hydrophobia. [30 G. A., ch. 81; 25 G. A., ch. 84; C. '73, § 1485.]

Prior to the amendment of this section the owner of a dog was only liable for the portion of damage done by his dog acting in concert with others in inflicting an injury by killing stock. Anderson v. Halverson, 126–125, 101 N. W. 781.

The fact that a dog is harbored on the premises, title to which is in the wife, will not render the wife liable for injuries committed by such dog, the husband being presumed to be the head of the family and responsible for such injury. Burch v. Lowary, 131–719, 109 N. W. 282.

In an action under this section for injury inflicted by a dog, the only defense available to the dog's master is the doing of an unlawful act at the time of the attack by the person injured. Van Bergen v. Eulberg, 111–139, 82 N. W. 483.

The unlawful act of the person injured that will defeat liability of the owner of the dog must be one that directly contributes to the injury sustained. Beckler v. Merringer, 131–614, 109 N. W. 185.

Mere negligence of the party injured is not sufficient to defeat his recovery for the injury, and the burden is not on the plaintiff to show freedom from contributory negligence, but it is on the defendant to show that the plaintiff was guilty of some unlawful act. Ibid.

Permitting an animal to run at large in the public highway is not such unlawful act as will defeat the action of the owner of such animal against the owner of a dog causing injury to it. Ibid.

Where a horse is frightened in the highway by a dog, and as a consequence, after running some distance is injured by coming into collision with a barbed wire fence, the owner of the dog is liable for the injuries which are the proximate result, although there is an intervening cause contributing to the injury, if it is not the efficient cause thereof. Ibid.

Plaintiff having left his horse and buggy in defendant's livery stable went to the buggy at a seasonable hour and in a proper manner to get some article therefrom and was bitten by defendant's dog. Held that plaintiff not being a trespasser was entitled to recover, whether defendant's employes knew of his presence at the place or not. Shultz v. Griffith, 103–150, 72 N. W. 445.

Negligence by the injured party, whether of omission or commission, does not exempt the owner of a dog from liability for injuries committed by such dog unless the negligence amounts to an unlawful act. Ibid.

Persons who have possession of and harbor dogs are liable therefor as owners under the statutory provision making owners liable for injuries committed by dogs except when the party injured is doing unlawful acts. Ibid.

While this section was evidently intended to do away with the necessity of proving scienter, still the plaintiff is not precluded from proving those facts which would have been necessary to a right of action at common law. Sanders v. O'Callaghan, 111–574, 82 N. W. 969.

At common law a person was not entitled to keep a vicious dog on his premises for the purpose of keeping off trespassers, provided they came there in the daytime and on some innocent mission. Ibid.

In an action for damages on account of injuries received from a vicious dog, plaintiff must show freedom from contributory negligence. Ibid.

By the amendment of this section it was intended that the owner of a dog should be liable for damages done by it only when worrying, maiming or killing a domestic animal or when attacking a person. Miles v. Schrunk, 139–563, 117 N. W. 971.

The statute creates an absolute liability of the owner of a dog for damages done by it, regardless of knowledge or negligence; but the damages contemplated are compensatory only. Puls v. Powelson, 142–604, 121 N. W. 1.

The person to whom the dog legally belongs is the person designated as owner; and proof of knowledge of the mischievous propensities is dispensed with only in case of an action against the owner. To render one who merely harbors a dog liable, previous knowledge of the bad character is required. Alexander v. Crosby, 143–50, 119 N. W. 717.

The word "owner" as used in this section has reference to the person to whom the dog belongs, and if the wife of the defendant has bought and paid for it out of her own separate money, the defendant is not liable. Alexander v. Crosby, 150–239, 129 N. W. 959.

One may not lawfully kill the dog of another except he be caught in the act of worrying, maiming or killing sheep, lambs or domestic animals or attempting to bite some person. Ellis v. Oliphant, 141 N. W. 415.

Where a dog is wrongfully killed, evidence of persons who knew his character, traits and habits is admissible as to his actual value. Ibid.

Although plaintiff, in an action to recover for injuries resulting from the attack of a dog, apparently predicates his action upon the violation of a city ordinance, yet if he alleges facts giving rise to a remedy under this section, he may recover without regard to the ordinance. Forsythe v. Kluckhohn, 142 N. W. 225.

SEC. 2341-p. Blindness—examination—certificate. The owner of any blind stallion or jack may upon application have the same examined at the expense of the owner of said animal by a board of three examiners, one to be the state veterinarian or his duly authorized deputy, one to be selected by the owner of the animal, who shall be a graduate or licensed veterinarian, and these two shall appoint a third graduate or licensed veterinarian who shall act with them, and if upon examination and proof furnished, all three or any two members of said board declare that such blindness was caused by accident or disease not transmissible, then upon affidavit of said board the secretary of the state board of agriculture shall be authorized to issue a state certificate. [35 G. A., ch. 188, § 8.]

SEC. 2341-q. False pedigrees of stock—penalty for publishing. Any person who shall fraudulently represent any animal, horse, cattle, sheep or swine to be registered, or any person who shall post or publish or

SEC. 2341-u. If payment of the service fee and the costs are not made before the date thus fixed, the constable may sell at public auction to the highest bidder such progeny and the owner or keeper of the stallion may be a bidder at such sale. The constable shall apply the proceeds, first, in the payment of the costs, second, in the payment of the service fee. Any surplus arising from sale shall be returned to the owner of the progeny. The person claiming the bounty shall produce such statement, together with the whole skin of the animal, to the auditor of the county wherein such wolf, lynx or wild cat was taken and killed, and he shall destroy or deface the same so as to prevent their use to obtain for the second time the bounty herein provided. Any person who shall demand a bounty on any of the above mentioned animals killed or taken in another state or county, or on a domesticated animal, shall be fined not more than one hundred nor less than fifty dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 189, § 1.] [24 G. A., ch. 37; C. '73, §§ 1487, 1488; R. §§ 2193–5.]

While the board may require other evidence than the verified statement of the claimant that the animals had been destroyed, it is not intended to invest the board with the discretion to pay or not if the essential facts are established to its satisfaction, and on the refusal of the board to pay in a proper case action may be maintained against the county. Bourrett v. Palo Alto County, 104–350, 73 N. W. 838.

SEC. 2348-l. Destroyed by auditor. The head and feet of each crow, upon which said bounty shall have been paid, shall be destroyed by the auditor of the county wherein such crow was taken and killed, as soon as proof has been accepted, by him. [35 G. A., ch. 190, § 3.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF FENCES.

SECTION 2355. Partition fences.

The rights and duties of adjacent owners of land with respect to partition fences is purely statutory, and as the statute prior to the enactment of the present code recognized a hedge fence as a proper form of partition fence and did not specify the height nor required trimming, the owner maintaining such partition fence was not liable to adjoining owners for damage due to the height and untrimmed condition of such hedge. Kinney v. Kinney, 104–703, 74 N. W. 688.

One of the adjoining owners cannot by injunction compel the other owner to take out and destroy a division hedge on the ground that it has become a nuisance, such a hedge being considered common property of the two owners. Harndon v. Stultz, 124–440, 100 N. W. 329.

The rule as to partition fences has no reference to the boundary which is the thread of a nonnavigable stream and on which it is impracticable to erect any fence. In such case the bed of the stream must necessarily be regarded as unenclosed land, and the duty to fence devolves on neither one of the adjoining owners. Foster v. Bussey, 132–640, 109 N. W. 1105.

The sufficiency of a partition fence is of no consequence in determining the liability for damage committed by a bull which the owner does not restrain as required by code § 2312. Burleigh v. Hines, 124–199, 99 N. W. 723.

One property owner who has not compelled an adjoining owner to join in the erection of a partition fence cannot recover damages from such adjoining owner because of defendant's animals coming across such partition line onto plaintiff's land. Miracle Pressed Stone Co. v. Roth, 144–656, 123 N. W. 346.

SEC. 2356. Powers of fence viewers.

Fence viewers have no power to decide as to a disputed line, either by measurements of their own or by accepting a disputed survey of another. Boyd v. Shoop, 107–10, 77 N. W. 482.

But two modes of dividing partition fences are recognized by statute, one by written agreement and the other by order of fence viewers. If neither of these methods has been followed, the mere fact that a portion of the partition fence has been erected for the owner of the premises by a tenant does not give rise to liability to the adjoining owner for injuries caused by stock escaping through such defective fence. In the absence of division either of the adjoining owners has the right to build such portions of fence as he may see fit and the duty of maintaining every portion of it rests on both alike. DeMers v. Rohan, 126–488, 102 N. W. 413.

In an appeal from fence viewers relating to the apportionment of a partition fence, held not error to admit testimony as to who built the different portions of the fence, it appearing that the case was submitted to the jury on the theory that it was immaterial by whom the different portions of the fence were built. Smith v. Ellyson, 137–391, 115 N. W. 40.

SEC. 2358. Default—damages and fees collected as taxes. If the erecting, rebuilding or repairing of such fence be not completed within thirty days from and after the time fixed therefor in such order, the adjoining owner may do or complete the same, and the value thereof may be fixed by the fence viewers, and unless the sum so fixed, together with all fees of the fence viewers caused by such default, as taxed by them, is paid to the landowner so erecting, rebuilding, trimming or cutting back or repairing such fence, within ten days after the same is so ascertained; or when ordered to pay for an existing fence, and the value thereof is fixed by the fence viewers, and said sum, together with the fees of the fence viewers, as taxed by them, remains unpaid by the party in default for ten days, the fence viewers shall certify to the county auditor the full amount due from the party or parties in default, including all fees and costs taxed, together with a description of the real estate owned by the party or parties in default along or upon which the said fence exists, and the county auditor shall enter the same upon the tax list and the amount shall be collected as other taxes and when so collected same shall be paid to the party or parties entitled thereto. [35 G. A., ch. 191, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 1491, 1493, 1496; R. §§ 1528, 1530, 1533; C. '51, §§ 897, 899, 902.]

Where no claim is made before the trustees that a partition fence is not upon the true line, that question cannot afterwards be raised as against the order of the trustees making partition of the fence. Rainsberger v. Leverton, 155–92, 135 N. W. 56.

SEC. 2359. Service of notice on nonresidents. The notice by the fence viewers provided for in this chapter may be served upon any owner nonresident of the county where his land is situated, by publication thereof, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper printed in the county in which the land is situated, proof of which shall be made as in case of an original notice and filed with the fence viewers, and a copy delivered to the occupant of said land, or to any agent of the owner in charge of the same. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 1.]

SEC. 2360. Orders—notice.

The action of the fence viewers is not illegal because their findings are put in writing in another township, provided they are duly recorded by the clerk in the proper township. Miles v. Tomlinson, 110–322, 81 N. W. 587.

SEC. 2361. Division recorded.

In providing for a written agreement as to partitioning the fence and specifying the circumstances under which such agreement will be binding, the intention to exclude any other form of partition by mutual act is manifest. De Mers v. Rohan, 126–488, 102 N. W. 413.

SEC. 2367. Lawful fence defined—sheep and swine-tight fences. Section twenty-three hundred sixty-seven of the code of Iowa is hereby repealed and the following substituted in lieu thereof:

"A lawful fence shall consist of three rails of good substantial material, or three boards not less than six inches wide and three quarters of an inch thick, such rails or boards to be fastened in or to good substantial posts, not more than ten feet apart where rails are used, and not more than eight feet apart where boards are used, or wire either wholly or in part, substantially built and kept in good repair; or any other kind of fence, which, in the opinion of the fence viewers, shall be equivalent thereto, the lowest or bottom rail, wire or board not more than twenty nor less than sixteen inches from the ground, the top rail, wire or board, to be between forty-eight and fifty-four inches in height, and the center rail, wire or board not less than twelve nor more than eighteen inches above the bottom rail, wire or board; or it shall consist of three wires, barbed with not less than thirty-six iron barbs of two points each, or twenty-six iron barbs of four points each, on each rod of wire, or of four wires, two thus barbed and two smooth, the wires to be firmly fastened to posts not more than two rods apart, with not less than two stays between posts, or with posts not more than one rod apart, without such stays, the top wire to be not more than fifty-four nor less than forty-eight inches in height. Provided, however, that all partition fences may be made tight by the party desiring it, and, when his portion is so completed, and securely fastened to good substantial posts, set firmly in the ground, not more than twenty feet apart, the adjoining property owner shall construct his portion of the adjoining fence, in a like tight manner, same to be securely fastened to good substantial posts, set firmly in the ground not more than twenty feet apart. All tight partition fences shall consist of not less than twenty-four inches of substantial woven wire on the bottom, with three strands of barb wire with not less than thirty-six barbs of two points to the rod on top, the top wire to be not less than forty-eight inches, nor more than fifty-four inches high, or not less than eighteen inch substantial woven wire on the bottom with four strands of barb wire of not less than thirty-six barbs of two points to the rod, the top wire to be not less than forty-eight inches nor more than fifty-four inches high, or good substantial woven wire not less than forty-eight inches nor more than fifty-four inches high. In case adjoining owners or occupants of land shall use the same for pasturing sheep or swine, each shall keep his share of the partition fence in such condition as shall restrain such sheep or swine. Upon the application of either owner, after notice given as prescribed in this chapter, the fence viewers shall determine all controversies arising under this section, including the partition fences made sheep and swine tight." [33 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.] [18 G. A., ch. 47; 17 G. A., ch. 124; 16 G. A., ch. 101; C. '73, § 1507; R. § 1545.]

One whose close is surrounded by a lawful fence is entitled to damages against the owner of the animals which have escaped from his premises and being at large have broken through such lawful fence. DeMers v. Rohan, 126–488, 102 N. W. 413.

It is apparent that in repealing the former statute and enacting this substitute, the legislature had two purposes in view: first, to define a tight fence; and second, instead of requiring a person desiring it to make tight the entire partition fence at his own expense, with the privilege of removing the added material, to provide that all partition fences may be made tight by the party desiring it, and when his portion is so completed, the adjoining property owner shall construct his portion of the partition in like tight manner. Mitchell v. Graver, 139 N. W. 460.

SEC. 2368. Where stock restrained.

The respective duties of adjoining owners with respect to fences is the same where stock is prohibited to run at large as where there is no restraint. Miracle Pressed Stone Co. v. Roth, 144–656, 123 N. W. 346.

SEC. 2369. Appeal.

The correctness of the findings of the fence viewers is to be determined on appeal, and not on certiorari. Miles v. Tomlinson, 110–322, 81 N. W. 587.

An appeal from the order or decision of the fence viewers is effected by the filing of a bond as in the case of an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace. Hahn v. Lumpa Estate, 131–722, 109 N. W. 310.

It is error to tax all the costs to the appellant on an appeal from the decision of fence viewers apportioning a division fence when the appellant has secured a material modification of the finding of the fence viewers. Smith v. Ellyson, 137–391, 115 N. W. 40.

CHAPTER 5.

OF LOST GOODS.

SECTION 2372. Advertisement—title vests—sale. In all cases where the appraisement of any such property shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the taker-up shall advertise the same on the door of the courthouse, and in three other of the most public places in the county, within five days after the appraisement, and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such property within six months of the time of taking up, it shall vest in the taker-up; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the time of the reception of the justice's certificate at his office, shall cause an advertisement to be posted on the door of the courthouse, and at three other of the most public places in the county, and also a notice to be published once each week, for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed in this state; and if such property be not claimed or proved within ninety days after the advertisement of the same, as aforesaid, the taker-up shall deliver the same to the sheriff of the county wherein it was taken up, who shall thereupon proceed to sell it at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of sale; and the proceeds of all such sales, after deducting the costs and other necessary expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 18; C. '73, § 1513; R. § 1507.]

SEC. 2374. Disposition of property unclaimed. In all cases where such lost goods, money, bank notes or other things shall not exceed the sum of ten dollars in value, the finder shall forthwith advertise the same on the door of the courthouse and in three other of the most public places in the county where the same was found; and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such money, goods, bank notes or other things within twelve months from the time of such advertisement, the right to such property, when the same shall consist in goods, money or bank notes, shall be vested in the finder; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of ten dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the receipt of the justice's certificate, shall cause to be posted upon the courthouse door, and in three of the most public places in the county, a notice thereof, which shall also be published, once each week, for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed at the county seat; and if the said goods, money, bank notes or other things be not reclaimed within six months after the finding, the finder, if the same shall consist in money or bank notes, shall deliver the same to the county treasurer, after deducting the necessary expenses hereinafter provided for; if in bills, notes of hand, patents, deeds, mortgages, or other instruments of value, the same shall be delivered to the county auditor to be preserved in his office for the benefit of the owner when an applicant shall prove his title thereto; if in goods or merchandise, the same shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who shall thereupon proceed to sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of such sale; and the proceeds of such sale, after deducting the costs and other expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 19; C. '73, §§ 1510, 1515; R. § 1509.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

SECTION 2382. Manufacture, sale or keeping for sale prohibited. No one, by himself, clerk, servant, employe or agent, shall, for himself or any person else, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretense, or by any device, manufacture, sell, exchange, barter, dispense, give in consideration of the purchase of any property or of any services or in evasion of the statute, or keep for sale, any intoxicating liquor, which term shall be construed to mean alcohol, ale, wine, beer, spirituous, vinous and malt liquor, and all intoxicating liquor whatever, except as provided in this chapter, or solicit, take, or accept any order for the purchase, sale, shipment, or delivery of any such liquor, or aid in the delivery and distribution of any intoxicating liquor so ordered or shipped, or own, keep, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping any intoxicating liquor with intent to violate any provision of this chapter, or authorize or permit the same to be done; and any clerk, servant, employe or agent engaged or aiding in any violation of this chapter shall be charged and convicted as principal. Provided that nothing herein shall prohibit traveling salesmen soliciting orders for the purchase, sale, and shipment of intoxicating liquors, from persons legally authorized to sell or dispense the same. [28 G. A., ch. 74, §§ 1, 2; 23 G. A., ch. 35, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 8, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 143, §§ 10, 11; 17 G. A., ch. 119, § 4; C. '73, §§ 1523, 1540–2, 1554–5; R. §§ 1559, 1562, 1581, 1587; C. '51, §§ 929–31.]

Selling, keeping, giving, or dispensing: Proof that a liquor used as a beverage contains alcohol is sufficient to establish its character as intoxicating liquor, however much the alcohol may be diluted or however weak its intoxicating effect as a beverage may be. State v. Colvin, 127–632, 103 N. W. 968.

Proof of the sale of beer is prima-facie evidence of the sale of an intoxicating liquor and the burden is on the person charged with such sale to show, if he can, that the liquor so sold was not intoxicating. State v. Spiers, 103–711, 73 N. W. 343.

The fact that the seller is not aware of the intoxicating character of the liquor sold is no defense. Peters v. District Court, 114–207, 86 N. W. 300.

Violation by an agent of the conditions of the mulct law will render the principal liable to the penalties of the prohibitory law. Hawks v. Fellows, 108–133, 78 N. W. 812.

Sale of alcohol without a permit is unlawful even though it is to be used for scientific purposes. In re Application of Henery, 124–358, 100 N. W. 43.

The statute provides against every possible scheme that may be devised for the purpose of evading the provisions of the law prohibiting the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, and an acquittal in a prosecution for unlawfully selling or keeping for sale is a bar to a subsequent proceeding for the seizure and destruction of the same liquors as kept for unlawful sale. State v. Cobb, 123–626, 99 N. W. 299.

The gift of liquor which is prohibited by the statute is a gift resorted to for the purpose of avoiding the law by a subterfuge or by an indirect dealing intended to conceal unlawful sales, and held that the giving of a drink of liquor from samples by a traveling salesman of a foreign dealer for the purpose of testing the quality of the liquor was not within the prohibition of the statute. State v. Bernstein, 129–520, 105 N. W. 1015.

The crime of unlawfully selling or accepting an order for the purchase, sale or delivery of intoxicating liquors is not committed by one who makes a purchase of liquor from one authorized to sell, having the intent to give and afterwards giving such liquor to a minor who has solicited such person to make a purchase thereof for him. State v. Smith, 135–523, 113 N. W. 336.

The distribution of intoxicating liquors among the members of a club constitutes a sale. State v. Johns, 140–125, 118 N. W. 295.

It is not necessary that the sale or dispensing or distribution of intoxicating liquors among the members of an organization be within a building or "place." Such dispensing or distribution in a canvas inclosure in the public street is illegal. Shideler v. Tribe of the Sioux, 139 N. W. 897.

The provisions of the mulct law operate as a modification of the prohibitory law relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors. Campbell v. Jackman, 140–475, 118 N. W. 755.

The statute prohibits the sale of any liquor which is in fact intoxicating and certain described liquors whether intoxicating or not. A liquor manufactured from malted grain is a malt liquor, and its sale therefore prohibited, irrespective of whether it is an intoxicating beverage or not. Sawyer v. Botti, 147–453, 124 N. W. 787; State v. Stickle, 151–303, 131 N. W. 5.

The business of dealing in intoxicants being peculiarly within the control of the state, it is not unconstitutional to prohibit sales by women under circumstances that would render lawful similar sales made by men. In re Application of Carragher, 149–225, 128 N. W. 352.

Where liquor is delivered on a telephone order at the place of business of the buyer and the purchase price is there collected, a sale is made at such place and not at the place of business of the seller where the telephone order is received. Cheadle v. Roberts, 150–639, 130 N. W. 368.

The unlawful intent to keep may be presumed from unlawful sales although it may appear that the person making such unlawful sales has a pharmacy permit or has complied with the conditions of the mulct law. Bowers v. Maas, 154–640, 135 N. W. 25.

The use of the word "dispense" in the alternative with "manufacture, sell, exchange, barter" plainly indicates that it is not intended to describe an act which is included in selling, but, on the contrary, that the word is used to describe an independent and distinct method of being concerned in the disposal of such liquors. Sawyer v. Frank, 152–341, 131 N. W. 761, 132 N. W. 861.

Where it appeared that the defendant, in conducting a restaurant and as a part of his business, through his regular employes, dispensed liquor to his patrons whenever desired by them, to be drunk on the premises in connection with their meals, held that although the liquor was procured by his employes under his sanction with money furnished by the patrons, he was guilty of dispensing liquor illegally, under the provisions of this section. Ibid. To the same effect see Reusch v. Withrow, 137 N. W. 495.

Insurance: Where an insured building is described as used for saloon purposes, the fact that the occupant does not conduct his saloon in strict compliance with the law does not vitiate the policy. Petty v. Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 111-358, 82 N. W. 767.

Agents soliciting orders: The provisions of 28 G. A., ch. 74, amending this section so as to make criminal the soliciting of orders in the state for sales of liquors outside the state to be shipped into the state, held unconstitutional as an interference with interstate commerce. State v. Hanaphy, 117-15, 90 N. W. 601.

The amendment of this section by 28 G. A., ch. 74, is not unconstitutional. (Overruling State v. Hanaphy, 117-15 and State v. Bernstein, 129-520.) McCollum v. McConaughy, 141-172, 119 N. W. 539.

Notwithstanding the final decision that this section is constitutional, one who, acting on a prior decision of the court that it was unconstitutional, had violated its provisions held not subject to the punishment prescribed for such act. State v. O'Neil, 147-513, 126 N. W. 454.

Original packages: Where a dealer in cigarettes brought into the state packages thereof which were opened by him and contents consisting of small packages containing ten each were exposed for sale and sold, held that such small packages were not original packages within the meaning of the law as to interstate commerce, and that the seller was punishable under the anti-cigarette law. (Code §§ 5006, 5007.) The court considers the case of State v. Coonan, 82-400, relating to sales of intoxicating liquors in original packages, and overrules it in so far as it is inconsistent with this case. McGregor v. Cone, 104-465, 73 N. W. 1041; but see State v. McGregor, 76 Fed. 956.

SEC. 2383. Penalty—second offense. That section twenty-three hundred eighty-three of the code of Iowa be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whoever is found guilty of violating any of the provisions of the preceding section, for the first offense shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars and cost of prosecution, and stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid; for the second and each subsequent offense he shall pay, upon conviction thereof, a fine of not less than three hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed one year." [34 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 143, §§ 1, 10, 11; C. '73, §§ 1525, 1540, 1542; R. §§ 1561-2.]

SEC. 2383-a. Qualification to sell—elector. No one except a qualified elector of the town, city or township in which the business is conducted and carried on shall engage in the sale of intoxicating liquors at retail. [33 G. A., ch. 143, § 1.]

This statutory provision is applicable not only to those acting in compliance with the mulct law, but also to those acting under pharmacists' permits. In re Application of Carragher, 149-225, 128 N. W. 352.

SEC. 2383-b. Persons interested in distilling or brewing. No person, firm, association or corporation and no officer, member, stockholder, agent or employe of any such firm, association or corporation engaged in the manufacture, brewing, distilling or refining of intoxicating liquors shall be interested or engaged, either directly or indirectly, in the retail sale of intoxicating liquors, or own, operate or lease any building, erection or place to be used for the sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors at retail, or own or lease or be interested in, either directly or indirectly, any fixtures, furniture, or apparatus to be used in the retail sale of intoxicating liquors, or furnish the license bond required by law or pay for such bond or guarantee the bond of such person engaging in the sale of intoxicating liquors contrary to the conditions above prohibited shall be punished as in section three provided. [33 G. A., ch. 143, § 2.]

SEC. 2383-c. Violation—penalty. Any person, firm, association or corporation, or any agent or officer of such firm, association or corporation, violating any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to all of the penalties, both civil and criminal, provided in chapter six, title twelve of the code, the supplement to the code, 1907, and amendments thereto. [33 G. A., ch. 143, § 3.]

SEC. 2383-d. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts, in so far as they are in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 143, § 4.]

SEC. 2383-e. When effective. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after the first day of March, nineteen hundred ten. [33 G. A., ch. 143, § 5.]

SEC. 2384. Nuisance—penalty—abatement—attorney's fee.

While it is not necessary, in order to warrant an injunction, that actual sales must be shown up to the date of the action to enjoin, yet there must be some evidence of the existence of the nuisance at that time. If no nuisance exists when the action is brought, plaintiff is not entitled to a decree. Sharp v. Arnold, 108–203, 78 N. W. 819.

It is the use of the place in which the inhibited acts are done, rather than the doing of the acts, which constitutes the offense of nuisance here described. Therefore, held that where blank bills of lading for intoxicating liquors were sent to a banker and persons desirous of purchasing liquors were in the habit of paying the banker for such bills of lading, thereby procuring the liquors from the freight depot, held that such banker was properly convicted for maintaining a nuisance. The use of the building or place for the prohibited purpose renders it a nuisance, although the party charged owns neither the liquors nor the place. State v. Snyder, 108–205, 78 N. W. 807.

The sale of alcohol even though for scientific purposes without a permit is unlawful and constitutes a nuisance. In re Application of Henery, 124–358, 100 N. W. 43.

In an action for abatement of liquor nuisance and for injunction, evidence of illegal sales after the commencement of the action is competent, the charge being of a continuing offense. Hall v. Coffin, 108–466, 79 N. W. 274.

Either the selling in violation of law or the keeping with intent to sell renders the place where the liquors are sold or kept for sale a nuisance. State v. Thompson, 130–227, 106 N. W. 515.

The discovery of liquor on the premises is presumptive evidence of keeping for illegal sale, but in itself such keeping has no tendency to prove the act of selling. Ibid.

The finding of intoxicating liquors in the possession of one not legally authorized to sell is presumptive evidence that such liquors are kept for illegal sale. State v. Stevens, 119–675, 94 N. W. 241.

The fact that liquor found in the possession of defendant is shown to have been in fact owned by another does not prevent such possession from being evidence of keeping for unlawful purposes. Ibid.

Where the mulct law is in force and the seller has complied with its conditions, proof of the mere sale of liquor is not sufficient to sustain a conviction under this section. State v. Miller, 114–396, 87 N. W. 281.

It is not necessary in an indictment for maintaining a place for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor to negative defendant's right to sell under the mulct law, nor to specify in what respect the mulct law has been violated by defendant. It is for the defendant in the first instance to introduce evidence of compliance with the conditions of the mulct law, if he relies upon the provisions of that law as a justification or excuse for selling. State v. Donahue, 120–154, 94 N. W. 503.

Where an indictment describes a nuisance as kept in a particular building, situated in a certain town, it is necessary to prove the keeping in the place as charged. State v. Schuler, 109–111, 80 N. W. 213.

An indictment for keeping a nuisance, alleging that defendant used a certain building as a drug store "with the intent to sell there intoxicating liquors, to wit, (describing them), and then and there did sell the same," held sufficient where the words "then and there" were construed as designating the drug store as the place of the unlawful sale. State v. Pinckney, 111–34, 82 N. W. 450.

The sale of liquors by one purporting to act under the mulct law constitutes a nuisance upon the violation of the statutory provision relating to sale upon election day. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

There may be a violation of this section although the same act constitutes a violation of code § 2404, relating to club rooms. State v. Johns, 140–125, 118 N. W. 295.

One to whom liquors are consigned with his knowledge and delivered will be presumed to be the owner. Ibid.

A restaurant keeper who "dispenses" intoxicating liquors in his place of business, within the prohibition of code § 2382, is guilty of maintaining a nuisance. Sawyer v. Frank, 152–341, 131 N. W. 761, 132 N. W. 861.

One sale of intoxicating liquors by a pharmacist without a permit is enough to establish the unlawful selling and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors. State v. Benson, 154–313, 134 N. W. 851.

The intent or motive with which intoxicating liquors are thus kept and sold is immaterial. Ibid.

Evidence of the reputation of the place is not admissible in a criminal prosecution for maintaining a nuisance. Ibid.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the keeping of liquor with the intent of unlawful sale was sufficiently made out to sustain a conviction for contempt in violation of an injunction. Russell v. Anderson, 141–533, 120 N. W. 89.

On the death of a defendant charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance, he being the sole defendant, the proceeding is necessarily abated. Babbitt v. Corrigan, 157– —, 138 N. W. 466.

SEC. 2385. Permits.

If the liquor sold by the permit holder is so compounded with other substances as to lose its distinctive character as an intoxicant, and to be no longer desirable for use as a stimulating beverage, and is in fact a medicine, then the permit holder is not guilty of violating the law in making a sale without a written request. State v. Gregory, 110–624, 82 N. W. 335.

The written requests on which sales are made are admissible in evidence in a prosecution against the seller, and if such requests are defective, the seller is liable. The permit holder should refuse to make a sale on a written request unless he has reason to believe the statements made therein are true, and in no case should he make such sale unless he knows the person applying therefor is not a minor, intoxicated or in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage. When proper requests have been made the question of the seller's good faith in making the sale is for the jury. Ibid.

The keeping for sale by druggists of tonics or other preparations containing a small percentage of alcohol is not a violation of a druggist's permit if it appears that such preparations are not capable of being used as beverages. In re Application of Henery, 124–358, 100 N. W. 43.

In stating the purpose for which liquor is required in the request provided for by code § 2394, the purchaser must state a purpose or use authorized by this section. State v. Swallum, 111–37, 82 N. W. 439.

A statement in an application for liquor that it is desired for "medical purposes" is sufficient; but it is not sufficient to say that it is desired for "mechanical purposes." In the latter case, the specific mechanical purpose should be specified. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

SEC. 2386. Pharmacists — manufacturers of proprietary medicines. If any such registered pharmacist or manufacturer of proprietary medicines shall sell, barter, give, exchange, dispose of or use intoxicating liquors in any manner or for any purpose other than authorized in the preceding section, he shall be liable to all the penalties and proceedings provided for in this chapter, and upon proof of such violation by a registered pharmacist, the clerk of the district or superior court shall transmit to the commissioners of pharmacy a certified copy of the record thereof within ten days after its entry, and upon receipt of such certified copy said commissioner may strike his name from the list of registered pharmacists and cancel his certificate. The commissioners of pharmacy are empowered to make such further rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, with respect to the purchase, keeping and use of intoxicating liquors by registered pharmacists and manufacturers of proprietary medicines, as they shall think proper to prevent abuses of the privilege, and shall revoke the certificate of registration of any pharmacist for repeated violation of this chapter. Said commissioners are authorized to draw from the state treasury an amount not exceeding fifty per cent. of the clear proceeds of all fees collected and paid into the treasury of any county on account of violations of the provisions of this chapter or the chapter regulating the practice of pharmacy, prosecuted by the commissioners, the amounts so drawn to be used solely in prosecutions instituted by them for failure to comply with the provisions of such chapters. The court or clerk thereof, before whom any prosecution is instituted or prosecuted by the commissioners of pharmacy, shall certify to the auditor of state all such cases, and the amount of fees imposed and collected therein. The expenses thus incurred by the commission shall be audited by the executive council, and the amount thereof shall be drawn from time to time upon the warrants of the state auditor. [27 G. A., ch. 56, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 13, 17; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 18.]

SEC. 2387. Application for permit.

A decree entered by consent will bar one who has been enjoined from the selling of intoxicating liquors from receiving a permit under the provisions of the statute. In re Application of Thoma, 117–275, 90 N. W. 581.

A judgment finding defendant guilty of violating his liquor permit whether entered by confession or in settlement of criminal or civil proceedings for such violation, renders him ineligible to receive another permit within two years. In re Application of Wilhelm, 124–380, 100 N. W. 44.

A sale of alcohol without a permit, although to be used only for scientific purposes, is unlawful and a sufficient ground for refusing the issuance of a permit on application within six months after such unlawful sale. In re Application of Henery, 124–358, 100 N. W. 43.

A drug store in which soda water and ice cream are sold is not a restaurant within the language of the statute prohibiting the issuance of permits for the sale of intoxicating liquors to the keepers of restaurants. Ibid.

Where the applicant has voluntarily surrendered his permit in consequence of an action for its revocation being brought, his application for a new permit should be denied unless he alleges and proves that he has not knowingly been engaged in the unlawful sale of liquor within two years next before making the application. In re Application of Smith, 126–128, 101 N. W. 875.

A particular description of the place in the petition for a permit and in the notice of the application therefor is absolutely necessary to give the court jurisdiction to hear the application and grant the permit. Muncey v. Collins, 132–50, 106 N. W. 262.

The fact that the applicant for a permit has, during the previous six months, violated the Sunday law in making sales of articles not included within the business of a pharmacist is not a ground for refusing a permit. In re Application of Maulsby, 136–66, 113 N. W. 548.

A decree enjoining the defendant from illegal sale of intoxicating liquor does not prevent the granting of a permit to such person to sell or keep for sale after the lapse of two years. Denmead v. Parker, 145–581, 124 N. W. 780.

SEC. 2388. Notice. Notice of an application for a permit must be published, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper regularly published and printed in the English language, and of general circulation in the township, town or city where the applicant proposes to conduct the business, or, if none be regularly published therein, then in one of the papers selected by the board of supervisors for the publication of its proceedings, the last publication of which shall be not less than ten nor more than twenty days before the first day of the term at which the hearing is to be had. This notice shall state the name of the applicant, with the firm name, if any, under which he is doing business, the purpose of the application, the particular location of the place where the proposed business is to be carried on, and that the required petition is or will be on file in the clerk's office of the court (naming it) at least ten days before the first day of the term (naming it) when the application will be made. A copy of such notice shall be served upon the county attorney in the same manner and for the same length of time as is required of original notices in said courts. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 7; 23 G. A., ch. 35, § 3; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

SEC. 2389. Hearing—remonstrances.

Permits are not granted as a matter of course, and the requirement of the statutory provisions as to particularity of description in the petition and notice as to the place where the privilege is to be exercised is for the purpose of advising the court and public and those who may desire to resist the application as to the exact location where the business is to be conducted. Such description is therefore essential. Muncey v. Collins, 132–50, 106 N. W. 262.

In an action to restrain the defendant from selling intoxicating liquors under a permit not sufficiently describing the place where sales were authorized to be made, the defendant is not entitled to have the decree of the court giving him a permit to sell amended so as to make the permit sufficient. Ibid.

The statute is not mandatory with reference to the term of court at which the application for a permit to sell intoxicating liquors shall be passed upon. While it is provided that on the filing of a remonstrance the court shall fix a day in the term for the trial, and all applications shall be tried at the first term after completed service has been made of the required notice, if the business of the court shall allow, nevertheless the court may, in the exercise of its discretion, postpone the hearing to the next term, like other business. Cox v. Burnham, 120–43, 94 N. W. 265.

Any citizen of the county wherein the application is made may file a remonstrance or objection to granting the permit, and when a remonstrance is thus filed a trial is to be had and the issue is to be determined by the court. In re Application of Smith, 126–128, 101 N. W. 875.

A remonstrant becomes in effect a party to the proceeding and may appeal from a decision granting the permit. Ibid.

The question whether the public necessities or conveniences require the granting of a permit is addressed to the discretion and judgment of the trial court. In re Application of Henery, 124–358, 100 N. W. 43.

The reasonable convenience and necessities of the people are to be determined by the trial court under the evidence in the exercise of a sound discretion and judgment. In re Application of Moore, 140–560, 118 N. W. 879.

The action of the court can be properly interfered with on appeal only when there is a manifest abuse of discretion. Ibid.

SEC. 2390. Bond—to be recorded. No permit shall issue until the applicant shall execute to the state a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, with good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the clerk of the court, conditioned that he will well and truly observe and obey the laws of the state now or hereafter in force in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors, that he will pay all fines, penalties, damages and costs that may be assessed or recovered against him for a violation of such laws during the time for which the permit is granted, and the principal and sureties in said bond shall be liable thereon, jointly and severally, for all civil damages and costs that may be recovered against the principal in any action brought by a wife, child, parent, guardian, employer or other person under the provisions of this chapter. The bond, after being approved and recorded by the clerk, shall be deposited with the county auditor, and suit may be brought thereon at any time by the county attorney, or by any person for whose benefit the same is given. The clear proceeds of all other money which may be collected for breaches of the bond shall go to the school fund of the county. If at any time the sureties on the bond shall file with the court or clerk a written request for release, or become insolvent, or be deemed insufficient by the court granting the permit, or its clerk, such court or clerk shall require a new bond to be executed within a reasonable time to be fixed. If the permit holder fails or neglects to furnish a new bond within the time so fixed, the permit shall from that date become null and void. [28 G. A., ch. 75, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 35, § 5; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.]

Sales made elsewhere than in the place specified in the permit, while the permit holder continues in business in such place, will undoubtedly constitute a breach of his bond. But where the permit holder has ceased to conduct business in the authorized locality and is making sales in another building not covered by the permit, although corresponding in general to the description of the permit, the surety will not be liable. Carter v. Nicol, 116–519, 90 N. W. 352.

SEC. 2392. Permit issued. Upon taking said oath and filing said bond, the clerk of the court granting the same shall issue a permit to the applicant, authorizing him to keep and sell intoxicating liquors as in this chapter provided. The permit so issued shall specify the building, give the street and number or location in which intoxicating liquors may be sold by virtue of the same, and the length of time the same shall be in force, unless sooner revoked. Provided that upon the expiration of the lease or destruction of the building where such business is conducted, or for other good and sufficient cause shown, consent in writing of the bondsmen having been obtained therefor, or a new bond given, the district court of the county which granted said permit, or a judge of said court, may change the place specified in said permit to some other place in the same city, town, or township upon motion therefor. A copy of said motion, and notice of the time when and the place where the same will be heard, shall be given to the county attorney of the county where said place is situated, at least five days before said hearing. [27 G. A., ch. 57, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 5, 16; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 7.]

A liquor license or privilege is not a property right which cannot be revoked without due process of law. McConkie v. Remley, 119–512, 93 N. W. 505.

The permit is a trust reposed in the holder, granted after being shown worthy, and may be revoked. An order granting a permit confers no property right and amounts to no more than a mere privilege to sell under certain conditions. McCoy v. Clark, 104–491, 73 N. W. 1050.

Where the permit holder keeps for sale or sells contrary to law he may be enjoined for maintaining a nuisance. Ibid.

Where a permit holder takes orders at various places and delivers liquor in pursuance of such orders and receives payment on delivery, the sales are to be deemed made at such places, and not at the place for which the permit is had. Carter v. Bartel, 110–211, 81 N. W. 462.

Where the permit and bond describe the premises intended to be covered, they do not apply to sales in a different building, although it may be covered by the same description to which the place of business had been removed. Carter v. Nicol, 116–519, 90 N. W. 352.

Where the order granting a permit provided that it should be in force for a specified time, held that the fact that the permit issued by the clerk in pursuance of such order stated that the right to sell was to continue until revocation of the permit or so long as the applicant's registration as a pharmacist was in effect, was no protection to the applicant in selling liquor after the time limited in the order granting the permit. State v. Brown, 135–40, 109 N. W. 1011.

A pharmacist doing business under a liquor permit is a retailer of liquors, and therefore, the provisions of 33 G. A., ch. 143, § 1, prohibiting any person except a qualified elector from engaging in the sale of intoxicating liquors at retail render it illegal for a woman, although a qualified pharmacist, to sell under a permit. In re Application of Carragher, 149–225, 128 N. W. 352.

SEC. 2393. Record—costs. The clerk of the court granting the permit shall preserve as a part of the record and files in his office all petitions and other papers except bonds pertaining to the granting or revocation of permits, and keep suitable books in which bonds and permits shall be recorded. The books shall be furnished by the county like other public records. Whether said permit be granted or refused, the applicant shall pay the costs incurred in the case, and, when granted, he shall make payment before any permit issue, except the court may tax the cost of any witnesses summoned by private persons resisting said application, and the fees for serving such subpoenas, to such persons, when it is shown that such witnesses were summoned maliciously, or without probable cause to believe their evidence material. The fees in such cases shall be as provided in actions at law in the district court. [28 G. A., ch. 75, § 2; 23 G. A., ch. 35, § 9; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 10.]

SEC. 2394. Requests to purchase—blanks—permit holder to fill in. Before selling or delivering any intoxicating liquors to any person, a request must be signed by the applicant, in his true name, truly dated, stating the applicant is not a minor, his residence, for whom and whose use the liquor is required, and his true name and residence, and, where numbered, by street and number if in a city, the amount and kind required, the actual purpose for which the request is made, and for what use desired, and that neither the applicant nor the person for whose use requested habitually uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and attested by the permit holder who receives and fills the request. The blanks for such request shall, with proper stubs, in all cases, be printed in book form and shall be furnished to the permit holder by the county auditor of the county in which such permit is in force, and shall contain, in addition to the matter provided for in said section, the facsimile signature of the county auditor; and both the stub and the request shall be numbered consecutively. Such blank requests with stubs, shall be furnished the permit holder applying therefor upon payment by him to the county auditor of the actual cost of printing the same. Such blank requests and the corresponding stubs shall be filled out by the person making the sale in ink, and in the presence of the applicant for such liquors and prior to the applicant's signature thereof. The line between the request and its corresponding stub shall be perforated. The permit holder shall be required to preserve the stubs in book form and shall keep them at all times subject to the inspection of the commissioners of pharmacy, the county attorney, any grand juror, sheriff or justice of the peace in the county in which such permit is in force. The blank form of request and stub shall be as follows:

The request shall be refused unless the permit holder has reason to believe the statement to be true, and in no case granted unless the permit holder filling it personally knows the person applying is not a minor, intoxicated, nor in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage; or, if the applicant is not so personally known, before filling the order or delivering the liquor, he shall require identification, and the statement in writing of a reliable and trustworthy person, of good character and habits, known personally to him, that the applicant is not a minor, nor in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and is worthy of credit as to the truthfulness of the statements in the application; and this statement so made shall be signed by the witness in his own name, stating his residence correctly. [34 G. A., ch. 103, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 139, § 1.] [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 10; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 12.]

The seller must believe the statements in the application to be true; he must know the applicant, or have him identified; and he must know or obtain proof that such applicant is not in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage. The law is violated by sale to persons in the habit of using liquor as a beverage, although the seller is ignorant of such habit. The seller sells at his peril. Harlan v. Richmond, 108–161, 78 N. W. 809.

If the applicant makes the purchase for another he must give the street and number of the user, and in such case is only required to state his own residence generally, but if he is to use the liquor himself he must describe his residence with the same particularity required when he purchases for another, that is, if his residence is in a numbered city he must give his own street and number. The purchaser must not be allowed to avoid these requirements of the law, even though by oversight, forgetfulness or mistake. State v. Swallum, 111–37, 82 N. W. 439.

The purchaser must specify in his request the exact purpose and use for which the liquor is required, which must be a use which is lawful under code § 2385. Ibid.

Sales on written request, not containing the statements required by statute, are unlawful. State v. Harris, 122–78, 97 N. W. 1093.

Where a sale would be illegal but for the identification required by statute, it cannot be transformed into a legal sale by proof that upon some former occasion a sale had been made to such purchaser which was legal because preceded by a proper identification and statement. State v. Mulhern, 130–46, 106 N. W. 267.

The question of good faith in making sales under a permit only arises when proper requests have been made. Prohibition is the rule, and permission to sell is the exception, and he who claims the right to sell must bring himself within the exception. State v. Gregory, 110–624, 82 N. W. 335.

The requirement of the statute as to requests that they shall state the purpose for which the request is made and the use for which the liquor is desired must be complied with, and the pharmacist who violates an injunction by sales on insufficient written request subjects himself to punishment for contempt without regard to his intent. Barber v. Brennan, 140–678, 119 N. W. 142.

A sale by a permit holder to a minor is unlawful. Sharp v. Davis, 142–19, 120 N. W. 323.

A request for alcohol for "chemical" purposes is not in compliance with the statutory requirement. There should be a statement of the specified chemical use for which the liquor is desired. Stromert v. Johnson, 144–682, 123 N. W. 336.

The request to purchase for "medical purposes" is sufficient but it is not sufficient to say that the liquor desired is for "mechanical use." The latter designation is not specific enough under code § 2385. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

Under this section prior to its amendment by 34 G. A., ch. 103, held that the specification in the application as to the amount and kind of liquor was a part of the request which the applicant should fill out by himself and that it was unlawful for the pharmacist to fill out such portion of the application. Ibid.

When a purchaser of liquor lives in a town or village the statement in the request that he resides in the county is not sufficiently specific. Long v. Joder, 139–471, 116 N. W. 1063.

The signing of the written request specified by statute is a condition precedent to the right to sell. To sell without the written request is a violation of the law. Such a sale constitutes a violation of an injunction subjecting the seller to punishment for contempt. Batcher v. Nichols, 141 N. W. 420.

SEC. 2397. Returns by permit holder.

Where there was a violation of the law as to sale of intoxicating liquors, which consisted in a failure of a permit holder to make proper returns of sales, and an injunction was sought to restrain the permit holder from selling, held that, as it appeared that the permit holder had gone out of business and was not intending to make further sales, the injunction was properly denied. Redley v. Greiner, 117–679, 91 N. W. 1033.

The requests for liquor which are required to be preserved and returned by the permit holder may be introduced in evidence as against him. State v. Mulhern, 130–46, 106 N. W. 267.

Returns of sales made by the permit holder to the county auditor cannot be considered unless introduced in evidence and made a part of the record in the case. State v. Hatlestad, 132–188, 109 N. W. 613.

SEC. 2399. Illegal sales by permit holder—evidence.

Although sales by a permit holder are only made on signed applications for such liquor to be used for medicine, yet if the seller has knowledge that the purchaser is a minor, or is in the habit of using liquor as a beverage, the sale is unlawful. State v. Skillicorn, 104–97, 73 N. W. 503.

The seller of intoxicating liquors is bound to know at his peril whether a person to whom he sells is within the prohibited class. Where a large number of sales appear to have been regularly made to the same person, and the character and habits of sobriety of persons to whom such sales were made were shown to be such as to bring them within the prohibited class, held that a presumption of illegal sales would arise. Hall v. Coffin, 108–466, 79 N. W. 274.

The good faith of the seller is immaterial in determining whether the requirements of the law as to sale of intoxicating liquors have been complied with. Peak v. Bidinger, 133–127, 110 N. W. 292.

It is no defense to a permit holder in an action against him to recover damages on account of unlawful sales, that he had no knowledge that the person to whom the sales were made was in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Bistline v. Ney, 134–172, 111 N. W. 422.

A pharmacist renders the place in which his business is carried on a nuisance by violation of the law as to sales under his permit, and in an action to enjoin his place of business as a nuisance, will not be permitted to say that although the statutory regulations have been violated, he has acted in good faith. Rizer v. Tapper, 133–628, 110 N. W. 1038.

The permit holder cannot escape liability for unlawful sales in his place of business by others without his authority. Stromert v. Johnson, 144–682, 123 N. W. 336.

A registered pharmacist has a right to sell drugs and medicines, even though they contain intoxicating liquor or alcohol, provided they are so compounded that they cannot be used as a beverage; but the question as to whether a proprietary medicine is in fact capable of being used and is used as a beverage is to be determined on the evidence. McNiel v. Horan, 153–630, 133 N. W. 1070.

Proof of illegal sales by a druggist under a permit is sufficient to establish the character of the place in which such sales are made as a nuisance. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

When unlawful sales are shown, the unlawful intent with which the liquor is kept is no less to be presumed because it appears that the person making such sales holds a pharmacy permit. Bowers v. Maas. 154–640, 135 N. W. 25.

SEC. 2400. Revocation of permit. Permits shall be deemed trusts reposed in the recipients, and may be revoked upon sufficient showing by order of a court or judge. Complaint may be presented at any time to the district or superior court, or a judge thereof, which shall be in writing and signed and sworn to by three citizens of the county in which the permit was granted. A copy of the complaint shall, with a notice in writing of the time and place of hearing, be served on the accused five days before the hearing, and if the complaint is sufficient, and the accused appear and deny the same, the court or judge shall proceed without delay, unless continued for cause, to hear and determine the controversy. If continued or appealed at the instance of the permit holder, his permit may, in the discretion of the court, be suspended during the controversy. The complainant and accused may be heard in person or by counsel, or both, and proofs may be offered by the parties; and if it shall appear upon such hearing that the accused has in any way abused the trust, or that liquors are sold by the accused or his employes in violation of law, or dispensed unlawfully, or he has in any proceeding, civil or criminal, within the last two years, been adjudged guilty of violating any of the provisions of this chapter, the court or judge shall revoke and set aside the permit; the papers and order in such case shall be immediately returned to and filed by the clerk of the court, and, if heard by a judge, the order shall be entered of record as if made in court; and if in this or any other proceeding, civil or criminal, it shall be adjudged by the court or judge that any registered pharmacist, proprietor or clerk has been guilty of violating any provision of this chapter, such adjudication may be by the commissioners of pharmacy regarded as sufficient, if repeated, to work a forfeiture of his certificate of registration. It shall be the duty of the clerk to forward to the commissioners of pharmacy transcripts of such judgments or orders without charge therefor, and as soon as practicable after final judgment or order has been made and entered. [27 G. A., ch. 58, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 35, § 7; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 8.]

SEC. 2401. How business conducted — partner — clerks — physicians. A permit holder may employ not more than two registered pharmacists as clerks to sell intoxicating liquors in conformity to the permit and the law; but in such cases the acts of clerks in conducting the business shall be considered the acts of the permit holder, who shall be liable therefor as if he had personally done them, and in making returns, the verification of such requests as may have been received, attested and filled by the clerk must be made by such clerk, and the clerk who transacted any of the business under the permit must join in the general oath required of the employer, so far as relates to his own connection therewith. If for any cause a registered pharmacist who holds a permit shall cease to hold a valid and subsisting certificate of registration or renewal thereof, his permit shall be forfeited and be null and void. Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to prevent licensed physicians from in good faith dispensing liquors as medicines to patients actually sick and under their treatment. In case a permit holder shall die, his personal or legal representative may continue the business, subject to the provisions thereof, through the agency of any reputable registered pharmacist, upon the approval of the court granting such permit, or the clerk thereof, and the giving of a bond as hereinbefore provided. A partner who is a registered pharmacist, not holding a permit, shall have the same rights and be subject to the same restrictions as clerks; and for whose acts the permit holder shall be held responsible the same in all respects as for his clerks. [28 G. A., ch. 76, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 2, 15; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 16.]

Illegal sales of liquor made by a clerk may render the principal liable for nuisance. State v. O'Malley, 132–696, 109 N. W. 491.

The fact of settling a civil suit for injuries resulting from liquor furnished to a patient by a physician cannot be shown in a prosecution for illegal sale of such liquor. State v. Campbell, 129–154, 105 N. W. 395.

SEC. 2401-a. Wholesale druggists may sell for certain purposes — request blanks. Any corporation doing a general wholesale drug business within the state and having a registered pharmacist who holds a permit to sell intoxicating liquors, and is financially interested in and actually engaged in the conduct of said business, may sell and dispense intoxicating liquors, not including malt liquors, for the purpose of compounding medicines, tinctures, and extracts, none of which can be used as a beverage, to any registered pharmacist conducting a general drug business within the state, or to any firm or corporation having a registered pharmacist financially interested therein and doing a general drug business within the state, and to physicians duly licensed under the laws of the state; and for resale, to registered pharmacists holding a permit to sell intoxicating liquors. Such sales of intoxicating liquors shall be made only upon the written request of the registered pharmacist or physician desiring to purchase the same, said request to be signed by the applicant for the purchase and countersigned by the permit holder of the corporation making the sale with his name and the date the goods are delivered for transportation, and shall be in the following form:

SEC. 2401-b. Requests may be forwarded. Requests for intoxicating liquors made under the provisions of the foregoing section need not be filled out and signed in the presence of the permit holder countersigning the same for the wholesale drug corporation, but may be done by the applicant at his place of business and forwarded to the corporation of whom the request is made. Said requests shall be preserved and returns made to the county auditor in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-three hundred ninety-seven of the code, but said requests need not be consecutively numbered. [34 G. A., ch. 104, § 2.]

SEC. 2401-c. Shipments—bill of lading. Intoxicating liquors shipped under the provisions of this act may be inclosed in the same box, package, or carton containing other drugs or merchandise. In all cases of such shipments of intoxicating liquors the bill of lading shall set out that intoxicating liquors are in the shipment, with the kind and amount of the same, and one copy of the bill of lading shall be signed for the wholesale drug corporation by the permit holder provided for in section one of this act, or any officer of such drug corporation. [34 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.]

SEC. 2401-d. Common carriers shall require filing of copy of permit. All railway, transportation and express companies, and other common carriers shall receive intoxicating liquors from corporations conducting a wholesale drug business and ship to registered pharmacists and physicians. Before receiving such shipments, the common carrier shall require the corporation to file with it a copy of the permit of the permit holder connected with the wholesale drug corporation making the shipment, said copy to be certified by the clerk of the district court; the affidavit of any officer of the corporation that said corporation is actually and in good faith engaged in the wholesale sale of drugs in this state, and that the permit holder is a stockholder in the drug corporation; and with each shipment of intoxicating liquors a bill of lading made out and signed as provided for in section three of this act. The foregoing provisions having been complied with, the common carrier shall be relieved from all liabilities otherwise imposed by law for the transportation of intoxicating liquors. [34 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.]

SEC. 2401-e. Violation—penalty. A failure to comply with all or any of the provisions of this act shall render the person who so fails to comply liable to all the penalties otherwise imposed by law for the sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors within the state. [34 G. A., ch. 104, § 5.]

SEC. 2401-f. "Corporation" construed. The term corporation, as used in this act shall be construed to include corporations, firms and persons engaged in the general wholesale drug business within this state. [34 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.]

SEC. 2402. Intoxication punished.

To justify an arrest without a warrant on a charge of being intoxicated, it must be found that the person arrested was in fact in a state of intoxication. Snyder v. Thompson, 134–725, 112 N. W. 239.

SEC. 2403. Sale or gift to minor or intoxicated person. The law as it appears in section twenty-four hundred and three of the code, and section twenty-four hundred and three of the supplement to the code [1902], is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No person by himself, agent or otherwise, shall in any manner procure for, or sell or give any intoxicating liquors to any minor for any purpose, except upon written order of his parent, guardian, or family physician, or give to or in any manner procure for or sell the same to any intoxicated person, or to one in the habit of becoming intoxicated." [32 G. A., ch. 122, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 77, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 143, § 9; C. '73, § 1539.]

The statute absolutely prohibits the sale of liquor to a minor for any purpose whatever, and the seller is bound at his peril to know whether the person to whom he sells is within the prohibited class. Fielding v. La Grange, 104–530, 73 N. W. 1038.

Proof that the purchaser was in fact under the age of majority makes out a prima-facie case of sale to a minor, although there is no evidence that he had not attained his majority by marriage as provided in code § 3188. State v. Mulhern, 130–46, 106 N. W. 267.

The penalty herein provided for is not covered by the bond required under code § 2448, par. 3, of one who carries on the business of selling under the mulct law, nor that provided for in code § 2422, as to bonds required of permit holders. Headington v. Smith, 113–107, 84 N. W. 982.

Liability for illegal sale to minors and intoxicated persons cannot be enforced against the surety on a bond purporting to be executed in pursuance of the provisions of the mulct law, when it appears that the mulct law was not in force in the locality where the business was carried on. Gorman v. Williams, 117–560, 91 N. W. 819.

A partner and the partnership are liable for damages for the illegal and unauthorized sale of intoxicating liquors by which a wife is deprived of support which her husband should give her. Mathre v. Story City Drug Co., 130–111, 106 N. W. 368.

Where liquor is sold to an intoxicated person and his death is caused by drinking the same, the administrator of the estate cannot recover damages for his death against the person selling the liquor in violation of this section. Bissell v. Starzinger, 112–266, 83 N. W. 1065.

The action to recover the penalty provided for sales to minors or habitual drunkards may be brought in the county of defendant's residence, irrespective of the place of sale. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104–572, 73 N. W. 1076.

Such an action cannot be joined with an action by a wife to recover damages for sales of liquor to her husband. Ibid.

The provisions of the mulct law do not relieve one who sells under its provisions from liability for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Ibid.

The civil penalty provided for selling liquor to a minor does not apply to the act of a person who lawfully purchases liquor with intent to give and who does give such liquor when purchased to a minor, nor does such act constitute a crime. State v. Smith, 135–523, 113 N. W. 336.

This section does not qualify the provisions of code § 2394 with reference to sales under permits. The written order of the parent is a bar to the penalty provided in this section, but does not remove the statutory injunction that every permit holder must know that the applicant whose request he honors is not a minor. Sharp v. Davis, 142–19, 120 N. W. 323.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to sustain a conviction for procuring for and giving intoxicating liquors to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated. State v. Beede, 151–701, 130 N. W. 714.

SEC. 2403-a. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of section one hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. [32 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

SEC. 2404. Club room.

One who keeps or uses a particular place in violation of the provisions of this section may be found guilty of a nuisance under the provisions of §§ 2382 and 2384. State v. Johns, 140–125, 118 N. W. 295.

Although a place walled in by canvas in a street in which liquors are dispensed or given away by an incorporated association organized for legitimate purposes may not be a club room, it is a "place" within the meaning of this section. Shideler v. Tribe of the Sioux, 139 N. W. 897.

A violation of this section is punishable under code §§ 2382, 2384 and 2405. Ibid.

SEC. 2405. Action to abate nuisance—injunction—contempt.

Temporary injunction: A temporary injunction may be granted against a person holding a permit to sell intoxicating liquors for keeping for sale or selling the same in his pharmacy contrary to law. McCoy v. Clark, 104–491, 73 N. W. 1050.

The granting of a temporary writ as a matter of course follows the continuance of an application for the temporary writ, but not a general continuance of the action. Powers v. Winters, 106–751, 77 N. W. 509.

Where a case is made for an injunction it is error to refuse a preliminary writ. One who has been engaged in the traffic of intoxicating liquors in violation of law cannot avoid an injunction by simply making a profession of change of heart. Donnelly v. Smith, 128–257, 103 N. W. 776.

It is error to refuse a temporary injunction on the application of a citizen where it appears that the defendant operating under the mulct law is maintaining a place for the sale of liquor otherwise than in strict compliance with the provisions of the mulct law. State v. Roney, 133–416, 110 N. W. 604.

The notice of an application for a temporary injunction in vacation must show the name of the judge to whom the application will be made and the specific place at which the application will be made. The original notice of the beginning of the action in which a temporary and also a permanent injunction will be asked is not sufficient. Beck v. Vaughn, 134–331, 111 N. W. 994.

If the notice is not given as required, the preliminary injunction will be void for want of jurisdiction, and its enforcement may be enjoined. Ibid.

The fact that the injunctional method is not applicable to all classes of criminal offenses does not constitute such discrimination between classes as to render it unconstitutional as applied under the intoxicating liquor law. Brown v. Powers, 146–729, 125 N. W. 833.

This section is not unconstitutional as denying to the defendant the right to present his evidence in resistance to the application for temporary writ by deposition. Tuttle v. Pockert, 147–41, 125 N. W. 841.

Depositions taken for use on an application for a temporary injunction may also be used on a final hearing. Tinning v. Mumm, 146–263, 125 N. W. 203.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to make out prima facie the maintenance of a liquor nuisance. Ibid.

Where the application for a temporary injunction is under oath and sufficient notice thereof is given, the court may enter a decree without evidence, on defendant's default. Sowles v. Martens, 142 N. W. 442.

Permanent injunction: A decree of injunction should not be entered for the closing of a building and making the costs and attorney's fees in the action a lien thereon where it appears that the illegal sales in the building have been without the knowledge or consent of the owner and for a very short time. Merryfield v. Swift, 103–167, 72 N. W. 444.

An injunction cannot be granted against a person to restrain him from selling liquor independent of the place where it is sold. State v. Frahm, 109–101, 80 N. W. 209.

On failure to establish the maintenance of a nuisance at any given place, the trial court may well deny an injunction. Barr v. Neel, 151–458, 131 N. W. 650.

Where a permanent injunction has already been granted against the members of a firm, another decree for an injunction against them as individuals should not be granted. Carter v. Bartel, 110–211, 81 N. W. 462.

An injunction may properly be granted against the premises on which the nuisance is maintained and the owner thereof. Ibid.

The good faith of the person instituting the proceedings cannot be inquired into, nor the authority of the attorney purporting to represent him, where he has appeared as a witness and accepted responsibility for the action. Rizer v. Tapper, 133–628, 110 N. W. 1038.

By violating the provision of the statute as to the sale of liquors on election day, one who is acting under the mulct law becomes subject to an injunction with reference to any subsequent sales of liquors. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

Where it appears in a proceeding for injunction that defendant is selling liquor in violation of law, the court should enjoin the defendant absolutely from the further prosecution of the business in any manner or form. Hemmer v. Bonson, 139–210, 117 N. W. 257.

Where it appears that sales in violation of law have been made by a pharmacist holding a permit and that he still continues in the business, an injunction should be granted on proof of violation of the statute prior to the bringing of suit. Long v. Joder, 139–471, 116 N. W. 1063.

A pharmacist who violates an injunction by sale of liquor on written requests which are insufficient subjects himself to punishment for contempt without regard to the intent for which the sales were made. Barber v. Brennan, 140–678, 119 N. W. 142.

Where it is found that a pharmacist has been selling liquors on requests which are not in compliance with the requirements of the statute, he should be enjoined and the costs of the proceedings should be taxed against him without regard to whether the violation of the law was merely technical or without criminal intent. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

In a suit for an injunction to abate a liquor nuisance, held that the evidence was sufficient to show that the defendant acting under the mulct law and his co-defendant were partners and to sustain the granting of a perpetual injunction. Woodring v. Romberg, 155–105, 135 N. W. 566.

An injunction may properly be granted against an incorporated association organized for legitimate purposes which maintains from time to time a canvas inclosure in a street in which liquors purchased by it are dispensed to its members. Shideler v. Tribe of the Sioux, 139 N. W. 897.

The courts have no authority to restrain the sale of intoxicating liquors made in entire conformity to the provisions of the mulct law. Campbell v. Jackman, 140–475, 118 N. W. 755.

A charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance made in a petition for an injunction does not afford ground for an action of libel. Hess v. McKee, 150–409, 130 N. W. 375.

Abandonment of business: Where it appears that defendant has in good faith abandoned the business before the trial and sold his interest in the premises on which the crime is charged to have been carried on, no injunction should be granted. Patterson v. Nicol, 115–283, 88 N. W. 323.

Where an injunction was sought to restrain a permit holder from making further sales on the ground that he had violated the provisions of the law with reference to sales by such person, and it appeared that the defendant had gone out of business and had no intention of making further sales, held that the injunction was properly refused. Redley v. Greiner, 117–679, 91 N. W. 1033.

A showing that on the eve of the trial the defendant has abandoned the business is not sufficient to warrant the court in refusing to grant an injunction, and in such case the court may properly tax costs and attorney's fees to such defendant. Drummond v. Richland City Drug Co., 133–266, 110 N. W. 471.

Primarily a suit under this section has for its object the termination of the unlawful use of the particular premises, and the resulting consequence of restraining one found guilty from establishing a nuisance elsewhere is only incidental. Therefore, if the action is abated under the provisions of code § 2410 by the giving of bond no judgment can be rendered which will have effect as to a nuisance subsequently established on the premises. Morris v. Lowry, 113–544, 85 N. W. 788; Morris v. Connolly, 113–545, 85 N. W. 789.

Where it appears that the defendant is still engaged in the business and that the owner has taken no steps to abate the nuisance, the latter cannot complain of the granting of an injunction. McCracken v. Miller, 129–623, 106 N. W. 4

Where the trial court is satisfied that defendant has abandoned for all time the illegal sale of liquors it should deny a permanent injunction. Sawyer v. Termohlen, 144–247, 122 N. W. 924.

The fact that the defendant after the institution of injunction proceedings in which the ground of complaint that a certain form of drink which he was selling was a malt liquor abandoned the sale of such liquor, but contested the injunction on the ground that such sale was not prohibited by law, the court properly entered a final decree and taxed attorney's fees against him on the finding that the sale of such liquor was in fact within the statutory prohibition. Sawyer v. Botti, 147–453, 124 N. W. 787.

Where it appears that a defendant has in good faith gone out of the business without intention to again engage in it, an injunction may properly be denied; but if, though defendant has ceased business and professes reformation, the brief time elapsing between the reformation and the trial or other circumstances indicate a doubt as to defendant's good faith, an injunction may properly be granted. Tuttle v. Bunting, 147–153, 125 N. W. 844.

An injunction may be denied where it appears that the defendant has in good faith abandoned the unlawful sales; but if after the commencement of the injunction action, defendant has continued to sell without complying with the law, costs of the action should be taxed against him including statutory attorney's fees. Offil v. Westbrook, 151–446, 131 N. W. 649.

Where it appeared that the defendant, selling in his restaurant a beverage which came within the statutory definition of intoxicating liquor, abandoned such sale as soon as his right to sell it was challenged, held that the court might properly refuse to grant an injunction. Barr v. Neel, 151–458, 131 N. W. 650

An abandonment of the business immediately before the trial of the case is not sufficient to require the denial of a decree of injunction. Bowers v. Maas, 154–640, 135 N. W. 25.

Where one who has been unlawfully selling intoxicating liquors desists from the business of making such sales only on the institution of the injunction proceedings, the cost of the proceedings and attorney fees should be taxed to him even though the court may deem it unnecessary to award an injunction. Fisher v. Skoglund, 155–440, 136 N. W. 231.

Where there has been but a technical violation of the law and it appears that the defendant has in good faith quit the business with the intention not to reëngage therein, the supreme court will not on appeal interfere with the discretion of the trial court in denying an injunction. State v. Harrison, 140 N. W. 223.

Pleading and procedure: The general allegation that defendant has established and is keeping, using and maintaining a certain building described as a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors in violation of law, and as a place for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same in violation of law, is sufficient in an action to enjoin the nuisance. But if it appears that the defendant is entitled to keep and sell intoxicating liquors by virtue of a permit, then the petition should further recite facts which render the keeping and sale of liquor by such person unlawful. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119–583, 93 N. W. 563.

In an action to enjoin the maintenance of a liquor nuisance the defendant has the burden of proving that sales shown to have been made were lawful. Sharp v. Davis, 142–19, 120 N. W. 323.

Where plaintiff in an action for an injunction specifies the violation of law relied upon and the defendant, joining issue, is found not guilty of such violation, plaintiff cannot on appeal insist that in other respects sales by the defendant were unlawful. Reusch v. Withrow, 154–56, 134 N. W. 431.

The plaintiff is not required to plead the evidential facts as to the keeping and the intent, and the existence of such intent may be established by proof of unlawful sales or use and unlawful acts or omissions not specifically alleged. Bowers v. Maas, 154–640, 135 N. W. 25.

The plea of the bar afforded by the mulct law is an affirmative defense, the burden of establishing which is cast upon the defendant who seeks its protection. The plaintiff is not required to anticipate and negative in advance such possible defenses. Ibid.

A petition alleging only that the defendant maintains a place and keeps therein intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same in violation of the law is not subject to a motion for more specific statement. Fisher v. Stoevenor, 155–548, 136 N. W. 673.

Where the petition charges defendants with the maintenance of a liquor nuisance they are not entitled, on an affidavit showing that they are operating under the mulct law, to have the particulars of their violation of the law specifically alleged. Knauss v. Gruenwald, 156–331, 136 N. W. 690.

An action to enjoin a liquor nuisance is abated on the death of the sole defendant pending an appeal by the plaintiff from the action of the lower court in refusing the injunction. Babbitt v. Corrigan, 157– —, 138 N. W. 466.

Parties: An injunction restraining defendant from illegally selling liquors in a certain building is not void by reason of the recital therein that defendant was not the owner of the premises during the time of the previous sales and that subsequently the premises have been sold and possession thereof given to another, it appearing that such change of possession did not take place until after the temporary writ had been issued and served. Ohlrogg v. District Court, 126–247, 99 N. W. 178.

It is proper to so frame the decree as that it shall perpetually enjoin only the unlawful keeping of intoxicating liquors for sale. Denmead v. Parker, 145–581, 124 N. W. 780.

The fact that owners of premises alleged to have been used unlawfully have not been made parties furnishes no obstacle to decrees against those who are parties. But it is error to tax the costs and attorney's fees against any interest in the property of one who is not a party. Ibid.

The provisions relating to the abatement of liquor nuisances do not contemplate a proceeding in rem. The action is in personam and the property is to be subjected to the lien of a judgment for costs in such proceedings only on proof of facts under issues properly raised in an action to which the owner of the property is a party. State v. Kelly, 151–264, 130 N. W. 1088.

To sustain an injunction against the maintenance of the building as a nuisance and an order for its abatement, the owner is a necessary party. Fisher v. Sliph, 154–121, 134 N. W. 632.

Effect of decree: One who is enjoined from the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor may, without violating such injunction, make sales in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law. Landt v. Remley, 113–555, 85 N. W. 783.

A prior injunction will not bar a second action to enjoin for the same nuisance where it appears that the prior injunction was secured through the fraud of the defendant. Cameron v. Tucker, 104–211, 73 N. W. 601.

A prior injunction against the owner of premises will not bar a second action for an injunction against such owner and sureties on his bond given under the provisions as to the mulct tax. Ibid.

An invalid decree in another action cannot be relied upon as a defense in an injunction proceeding. Hemmer v. Dunlavey, 143–265, 121 N. W. 1024.

The injunction contemplated by this section prohibits the illegal sale of liquors. But prior to the enactment of 33 G. A., ch. 142, § 3, the granting of an injunction did not affect the right of one enjoined to sell under the mulct law after a new compliance with all the requirements by him to be performed, a new general statement of consent not being necessary. Rink v. Bollinger, 145–501, 123 N. W. 183.

SEC. 2406. How brought and tried—evidence—attorney's fee—investigation by county attorney—report. Actions to enjoin nuisances may be brought in the name of the state by the county attorney, who shall prosecute the same to judgment, or any citizen of the proper county may institute and maintain such a proceeding in his name. The action when brought shall be triable at the first term of court after due and timely service of notice of the commencement thereof has been given; and in such action evidence of the general reputation of the place described in the petition shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of such nuisance. If the plaintiff is successful in the action, an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars shall be taxed as costs in his favor.

Such action, when brought by a citizen, shall not be dismissed upon the motion of either the plaintiff or defendant until the county attorney shall have been notified in writing of the filing of such motion, and until such county attorney shall have made a personal investigation of the place of business sought to be enjoined, and of all matters set forth in said motion for dismissal, and shall have filed, in writing, a report of his findings in said cause, and his recommendation in reference to the disposition of the same. If any such action shall remain upon the docket for two terms of court, without trial, it shall be the duty of the judge of such court to order the plaintiff and his attorney or attorneys of record, to appear in open court for examination as to the reasons why such cause has not been brought on for trial; and it shall be the duty of the county attorney to conduct such examination, if the judge shall so order. Whenever the court shall have reason to believe that any action commenced under this section has not been brought or prosecuted in good faith said court shall direct the grand jury to investigate all the facts and circumstances connected with the bringing and prosecution of the same. [30 G. A., ch. 82; 21 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.]

Attorney's fee: This section fixes the amount of the attorney's fee which is to be allowed in such cases under the general provisions of code § 2429. Carter v. Bartel, 110–211, 81 N. W. 462.

An additional attorney's fee may be taxed against the defendant on an appeal to the supreme court in which he is unsuccessful. Drummond v. Richland City Drug Co., 133–266, 110 N. W. 471.

The limitation of this section as to the amount of the fee does not apply to the allowance of an attorney fee under code § 2429 providing for the allowance of such fee in proceedings to punish for contempt. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130–488, 107 N. W. 168.

One who consents to the prosecution of an injunction suit in his name and testifies that he is the plaintiff in such proceeding cannot deny the authority of the attorney by whom the proceeding is prosecuted, and attorney fees may be taxed in favor of such attorney. Plank v. Hertha, 132–213, 109 N. W. 732.

Suit by citizen: If the suit for an injunction is instituted by a citizen, he is free to employ any attorney he may choose, and he may prosecute a proceeding for contempt in violating the injunction when secured without the interposition of the county attorney. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

Where the action is brought in the name of the state, it must be brought by the county attorney. The defendant is not bound to respond in such an action brought by an attorney other than the county attorney. Beck v. Vaughn, 134–331, 111 N. W. 994.

The judge may issue a temporary writ of injunction in vacation on the petition of the state or citizens of the county under this section, as well as on the petition of a citizen of the county under code § 2405. Young v. Preston, 131–292, 108 N. W. 463.

If in a proceeding for an injunction brought by a citizen an unauthorized decree is permitted to be entered to the prejudice of the public, any other citizen may institute action by certiorari to annul such decree. Hemmer v. Bonson, 139–210, 117 N. W. 257.

A citizen of the county is authorized to institute and maintain an action of this kind without regard to his interest. Reusch v. Loserth, 139 N. W. 454.

Evidence: The mere fact of the possession of liquor is evidence of keeping for illegal sale where it does not appear that the defendant is entitled to sell by virtue of a permit or some other lawful authority. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119–583, 93 N. W. 563.

Evidence of the reputation of the place is not admissible in a criminal prosecution for maintaining a nuisance. State v. Benson, 154–313, 134 N. W. 851.

As the action is triable at the first term after due and timely service of notice thereof has been given, the defendant is not entitled to present his evidence in the form of depositions as a matter of right. Tuttle v. Pockert, 147–41, 125 N. W. 841.

Dismissal: While under this section as amended a dismissal without notice to the county attorney and his recommendation made on personal investigation is erroneous, such dismissal is not without jurisdiction and cannot be collaterally attacked. Sawyer v. Kelly, 148–644, 127 N. W. 977.

To render such dismissal invalid it must appear that it was procured by fraud or collusion to which the defendant relying on such dismissal was a party. Ibid.

SEC. 2407. Violation of injunction.

Contempt proceedings: It is no defense that accused has acted in good faith upon the advice of counsel in regard to selling liquor in violation of the injunction. State v. Stevenson, 104–50, 73 N. W. 360.

It is immaterial that the judge calls the defendant to answer for contempt by notice or citation rather than by warrant of arrest, if the defendant actually appears and submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court for the purposes of the case. State v. Thompson, 130–227, 106 N. W. 515.

A decree enjoining a party to the suit from selling liquor is self-executing and its violation is a contempt, though no formal writ of injunction has issued and been served on such defendant. Bartel v. Hobson, 107–644, 78 N. W. 689.

Where the defendant who is enjoined is represented in the case by attorney when the decree is rendered, he is chargeable with notice of the decree. Hawks v. Fellows, 108–133, 78 N. W. 812.

Violation by an agent of an injunction will subject the principal to punishment for contempt. Ibid.

Whether the provisions of code § 5337 as to withdrawal of a plea of guilty in a criminal prosecution are applicable to proceedings to punish for violation of a liquor injunction or not, it is too late to withdraw such plea after the judgment of the court has been pronounced, although it is not yet entered of record. Beatty v. Roberts, 125–619, 101 N. W. 462.

This section requires the setting out of the alleged facts constituting the violation of the injunction, but an information reciting the issuance of an injunction, the knowledge thereof and the selling and keeping for sale of liquor in violation of its terms, is sufficient. It was not intended to require the setting out of the evidence upon which the proceeding must finally be determined. McGlasson v. Scott, 112–289, 83 N. W. 974.

A judgment in an injunction proceeding should be proved either by the record itself or by an authenticated copy thereof. Ibid.

The specific provision that there shall be a trial on the issue raised by the denial of the defendant in a proceeding to punish for a contempt in violating an injunction against the sale of intoxicating liquors is in harmony with the general law. See code § 4465. Drady v. District Court, 126–345, 102 N. W. 115.

A proceeding to punish for contempt in the violation of an injunction to abate a liquor nuisance may be prosecuted without the aid of the county attorney. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

An information charging the violation of an injunction need not allege specifically the acts constituting the violation of law relied upon. Pumphrey v. Anderson, 141–140, 119 N. W. 528.

To establish the violation of an injunction by the owner of the property who is not in possession, knowledge either express or implied must be shown. Sawyer v. Mould, 144–185, 122 N. W. 813.

One who participates in an unlawful sale of liquor which is in his sole possession and receives the purchase price therefor is guilty of violating an injunction prohibiting him from selling intoxicating liquor or keeping the same for the purpose of selling. Goodrich v. Wheeler, 145–289, 123 N. W. 950.

Where the contempt proceeding is against persons named individually and as a partnership and fines are imposed on the individuals there should not be an additional fine on the partnership as such. Brown v. Powers, 146–729, 125 N. W. 833.

Where the injunction forbids everyone from maintaining a nuisance on the premises described, it is binding on any person who continues a nuisance on such premises. Dermedy v. Jackson, 147–620, 125 N. W. 228.

The information for violation of an injunction may be filed by another than the complainant in the proceeding in which the injunction was granted. Ibid.

The statute does not provide how the contempt proceedings shall be entitled. An information entitled in the name of the state against the person complained of as violating the injunction is sufficient. Ibid.

Where the description of the property in the information is the same in that of the decree of injunction the identity of the premises is presumed regardless of a discrepancy in the name of the owner. Ibid.

After forfeiting the protection of the mulct law by violating an injunction, the saloon keeper cannot avoid a second charge of contempt on the theory that he has made a change in the method of conducting his business, but he must qualify anew to become entitled to the benefits of the law. Sawyer v. Gaynor, 148–115, 126 N. W. 773.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the lower court was in error in dismissing a contempt proceeding in which it was charged that in violation of an injunction the defendant had made sales of liquors to minors. Sawyer v. Hutchinson, 148–449, 126 N. W. 798.

An information or affidavit charging violation of an injunction upon information and belief is sufficient. Koch v. District Court, 150–151, 129 N. W. 740.

The violation of an injunction in a nuisance case does not constitute a crime. The proceeding for such contempt is not criminal. Judge v. Powers, 156–251, 136 N. W. 315.

An injunction as to the use of premises for the sale of intoxicating liquors is not binding on persons not parties to the proceedings and who have no knowledge thereof. An employe is not bound by an injunction against his employer of which he has no notice. Harris v. Hutchison, 140 N. W. 830.

In a contempt proceeding for violating an injunction the court will take judicial notice of its own order granting such injunction. Bunting v. Powers, 144–65, 120 N. W. 679.

The office of a precept or warrant is to bring the defendant into court and give him an opportunity to be heard in defense. Having been heard in the proceedings he cannot question the court's jurisdiction because of irregularity in the issuance of the precept. Haaren v. Mould, 144–296, 122 N. W. 921.

Failure to attach to the information a duly authenticated copy of the decree alleged to be violated is not a valid objection to the court's jurisdiction. Ibid.

The court may take judicial notice of the decree for violation of which the proceeding is instituted. Ibid.

The decree of injunction which the defendant is charged with having violated is sufficiently before the court without being formally introduced in evidence. Sawyer v. Oliver, 144–382, 122 N. W. 950.

Review by certiorari: If the judge, imposing a fine for violation of an injunction, acts without jurisdiction, the person upon whom a fine is sought to be imposed is not bound to appeal, but may enjoin its enforcement. McConkie v. Landt, 126–317, 101 N. W. 1121.

Where it appeared that one charged with contempt in violating an injunction had not complied with the conditions of the mulct law, held that an order discharging him in a proceeding for contempt was improper, and on certiorari it was annulled. Jones v. Byington, 128–397, 104 N. W. 473.

The statute leaves no discretion with the trial judge as to punishment when it is clear that there has been a violation of injunction in the sale of liquor. His refusal to make an order of punishment for contempt may be reviewed by certiorari. Barber v. Brennan, 140–678, 119 N. W. 142.

An order of discharge in a contempt proceeding which is set aside in a proceeding by certiorari does not constitute a final adjudication barring a subsequent finding for contempt although the defendant was not formally a party to the proceeding by certiorari. Brown v. Powers, 146–729, 125 N. W. 833.

Where on a hearing for contempt the defendant was discharged but on annulment in certiorari proceedings of such ruling he was again put on trial and convicted, held that the rule of twice in jeopardy had no application. Gibson v. Hutchinson, 148–139, 126 N. W. 790.

While the supreme court on certiorari determines whether, under the evidence introduced, the lower court erred in refusing to punish for contempt, the decision of the lower court is entitled to weight where the evidence is in conflict. Sawyer v. Hutchinson, 149–93, 127 N. W. 1089.

A stay of contempt proceedings on application for certiorari does not suspend the injunction nor prevent another proceeding for contempt for a subsequent violation thereof. Silvers v. Vermilion, 151–163, 130 N. W. 913.

SEC. 2408. Abatement.

The existence of a nuisance being established, a decree as provided in this section must be given, unless action has been abated by the owner giving bond and paying costs before order of abatement, as provided in code § 2410. Such abatement should have the effect of closing the building referred to against all uses, unless sooner released by proceedings under that section. McCoy v. Clark, 109–464, 80 N. W. 538.

The order of abatement should be for the closing of the building for all purposes and the effect of such order can only be obviated by the giving of a bond under the provisions of § 2410. Lewis v. Brennan, 141–585, 120 N. W. 332.

Where it is found that a pharmacist has been selling liquor under a permit without full compliance with the requirements of the statute, the place of sale should be ordered to be abated as a nuisance irrespective of the knowledge of the owner of the premises; but the owner may, by complying with code § 2410, have such order canceled so far as it relates to his property. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

SEC. 2410. Abatement by owner. If the owner appears and pays all costs of the proceeding, and files a bond with sureties to be approved by the clerk in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or, in vacation, by the clerk, auditor and treasurer of the county, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein within a period of one year thereafter, the court, or, in vacation, the judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises closed under the order of abatement to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled so far as the same may relate to said property; and if the proceeding be an action in equity, and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said building only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty or liability to which it may be subject by law. [29 G. A., ch. 94, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 66, § 7.]

The giving of a bond abates the action, and not simply the nuisance, and therefore in such a case no judgment can be rendered. Morris v. Lowry, 113–544, 85 N. W. 788; Morris v. Connolly, 113–545, 85 N. W. 789.

It is only on the giving of a bond that the building is to be allowed to be used for other purposes. Lewis v. Brennan, 141–585, 120 N. W. 332.

SEC. 2412. Prepayment of fees not required — costs taxed to plaintiff.

One who procures a temporary injunction without complying with the statutory provisions with reference thereto so that the proceeding is void, is liable for costs in an action instituted against him, and others, to enjoin the enforcement of the decree. Beck v. Vaughn, 134–331, 111 N. W. 994.

Where no ground is shown for the granting of an injunction, the costs may properly be taxed to the county. Barr v. Neel, 151–458, 131 N. W. 650.

The costs should not be taxed to the plaintiff where it does not appear that the action was brought maliciously or without probable cause. Reusch v. Loserth, 139 N. W. 454.

SEC. 2413. Search warrant—seizure.

While the information should state the name of the owner or keeper of the intoxicating liquor so that in case of seizure notice thereof may be given to him, yet the determination as to who owned or kept it is important only when the owner or keeper resists unsuccessfully a judgment of forfeiture and it becomes necessary to tax costs. Where the claimant of the liquor states that he was the keeper thereof, there is no occasion for the jury to determine that fact, and he is liable for costs as fixed by the finding that the liquor was kept for illegal purposes. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109–145, 80 N. W. 230.

Evidence that the intoxicating liquors belonged to defendant and were kept by him in a restaurant or grocery store in the same building as that in which he resided, is sufficient evidence to warrant the condemnation and destruction of such liquor. State v. Johnson, 157– —, 138 N. W. 458.

The guilt of the person charged with unlawfully owning or keeping intoxicating liquors is essential to a judgment for its condemnation and destruction. Babbitt v. Corrigan, 157– —, 138 N. W. 466.

SEC. 2415. Notice—trial—judgment—appeal.

In a proceeding to forfeit liquor charged to be kept for illegal purposes, the presumption arising under code § 2427 that the keeping by a person not authorized to sell and on premises not used exclusively for a private dwelling, throws the burden upon a claimant of the liquor to show not only that he did not keep the liquor for illegal sale, but also that it was not kept by anyone for that purpose. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109–145, 80 N. W. 230.

Acquittal in a prosecution for the unlawful sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors is a bar to a subsequent proceeding for the seizure and destruction of the liquors so kept. State v. Cobb, 123–626, 99 N. W. 299.

As the procedure for condemnation of liquor seized under a search warrant relates only to the property so seized, an adjudication in such a procedure that the liquor was not unlawfully kept is not conclusive in a subsequent prosecution for maintaining a nuisance. State v. Dougherty, 147–570, 126 N. W. 696.

SEC. 2418. Civil action for damages by wife, parent, child, etc.

In an action for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors the person injured is not required to establish all the elements of an injury actionable at common law. And held that the wife of one who committed suicide while intoxicated by reason of unlawful sales of liquor to him by a permit holder might recover damages without showing that her husband would not have committed suicide had the defendant not sold him the liquor. It is sufficient in such case to show that the act was committed while the husband was in fact intoxicated with liquor unlawfully sold to him by defendant. Bistline v. Ney, 134–172, 111 N. W. 422.

The measure of damages in an action for loss to a wife by reason of causing the intoxication of her husband is dependent on what the husband had in fact done for the support of the wife prior to the wrongful acts of defendant in selling him intoxicating liquors. Bellison v. Apland, 115–599, 89 N. W. 22.

It is error to instruct the jury that the defendant in such a case is liable for all damages sustained by plaintiff on account of the intoxication of her husband where it appears that the husband procured intoxicating liquors elsewhere, which he drank, and which contributed to his besotted condition during the time complained of. Ibid.

Evidence of former suits of the same character by the wife against other defendants is admissible on the question of plaintiff's good faith in bringing the action. Ibid.

An action by a wife for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquor to her husband cannot be joined with an action to recover a penalty for sale to minors or intoxicated persons. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104–572, 73 N. W. 1076.

In an action to recover damages for permanent injuries received by the husband by reason of the intoxication complained of, he may be permitted as a witness to exhibit to the jury his physical condition. Faivre v. Mandercheid, 117–724, 90 N. W. 76.

A joint action may be maintained against different persons who contributed to the intoxicated condition causing injury to the husband, although the defendants were conducting separate places of business and did not act in concert. Ibid.

A wife, suing for injuries sustained by reason of the sale of intoxicating liquors by defendant to her husband, is not limited to the recovery of damages resulting from habitual intoxication, but may recover for damages resulting from specific intoxications, so far as defendant may have contributed thereto. League v. Ehmke, 120–464, 94 N. W. 938.

The fact that by reason of habitual intoxication the husband was not furnishing support to his wife prior to the time of the sales to her husband by the defendant, will not defeat the liability of the defendant for continuance of such condition by reason of sales made by him. Ibid.

A seller who by his acts contributes to a condition of habitual intoxication, cannot escape liability for specific injuries due to a particular fit of intoxication, not caused by liquor sold by him. Ibid.

Although the language of code § 2418 differs slightly from that of § 1557 of the code of '73, nevertheless, one who is entitled to sell liquors by reason of the mulct law, but who sells without compliance with the conditions of the law, is liable in civil damages to a wife who is injured by reason of such sales to her husband. Ibid.

In an action to recover damages for the death of a person caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors to him, life tables showing his expectancy of life are admissible in evidence. Knott v. Peterson, 125–404, 101 N. W. 173.

The fact that the husband, for whose death, due to the defendant's wrongful act in selling him intoxicating liquors, the wife seeks recovery, has on account of the habits of intoxication failed to support his wife prior to his death is not to be taken into account in measuring the amount of her recovery. Ibid.

In an action for damages resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors to plaintiff's husband, held that testimony tending to show that the husband was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors six or seven years prior to the time involved in the action was incompetent as a part of plaintiff's case. Mathre v. Devendorf, 130–107, 106 N. W. 366.

It is not competent for the defendant to show by way of defense that the plaintiff has instituted a suit against another for damages for sales of liquors to her husband within the same period of time covered by the petition in the case on trial. Ibid.

The wife is entitled to recover in such cases for only such damages as she has suffered by reason of defendant's act. Ibid.

The jury should not be permitted to give double damages by means of allowance for impaired ability to secure or hold remunerative employment in addition to damages to plaintiff's support or means of support. Ibid.

It is competent to show that the intoxication of the plaintiff's husband prevented him from securing or holding a permanent position of employment. Mathre v. Story City Drug Co., 130–111, 106 N. W. 368.

Ordinarily a firm or a partner will not be liable for the wilful or negligent tort of a partner acting beyond the scope of his authority; but an exception to this rule exists where the damage claimed is for unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors. Ibid.

In an action by a child for damages on account of sale of liquor to a parent, evidence of the number of children, even though immaterial, will not be prejudicial. Shull v. Arie, 113–170, 84 N. W. 1031.

Under this section both principal and agent are liable, but the principal is liable for an authorized sale made by the agent. Ibid.

Damages may be recovered in behalf of an illegitimate child who has been recognized by the parent. Goulding v. Phillips, 124–496, 100 N. W. 516.

The bondsmen of one who purports to sell in compliance with the conditions of the mulct law, but has not filed the requisite consent of adjoining property owners, are liable for damages provided for under this section. Breeding v. Jordan, 115–566, 88 N. W. 1090.

In an action by a child to recover damages for causing the death of the parent, life tables are admissible in evidence. Peterson v. Brackey, 143–75, 119 N. W. 967.

The awarding of such damages is discretionary with the jury only as to amount if the wrong is established. Ibid.

To sustain a recovery under this section it is enough that the injury was by an intoxicated person, regardless of whether it would have been committed by him if sober. It is not necessary to prove that the injury was in consequence of intoxication. Lee v. Hederman, 157– —, 138 N. W. 893.

The value of an infant's means of support lost by the death of his father necessarily depends largely on the habits of that father, whether economical, industrious and sober or the reverse. The fact as to the deceased parent's excessive use of intoxicants may be material in determining the loss in means of support by the infant through his father's death. Ibid.

The action may be brought against two or more persons who have contributed to the intoxication, causing the damage complained of, and if each has given a separate bond under the mulct law, the joint action may be maintained against the surety on such bonds. Kaus v. American Surety Co., (D. C.) 199 Fed. 972.

SEC. 2419. Transportation to one not holding permit.

The crime described in this section may be charged in the language of the statute. State v. Reilly, 108–735, 78 N. W. 680.

An individual engaged in illegal traffic in intoxicating liquors, if not a carrier, falls within the designation of "other persons" under the language of this section. Ibid.

Notwithstanding the so-called Wilson law, the statutory provisions as to transportation of liquors into the state have no application to carriers transporting such liquors into the state from another state. Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412.

Although by arrangement between the seller of intoxicating liquors in one state and the buyer thereof in another, the goods may be shipped C. O. D. by the seller to the buyer, without subjecting them to the provisions of the law of the state to which they are shipped, with reference to the sale of intoxicating liquors (American Express Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 133, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182, overruling 118 Iowa, 447), yet the legal effect of such transaction as to the time when title to the liquor passes from the seller to the buyer may be controlled by evidence as to the intention of the parties. Hamilton v.

Schlitz Brewing Co., 129–172, 105 N. W. 438.

The transportation and delivery of a C. O. D. package of liquor by an express company does not render the company liable for damages resulting from the sale thereof. Chambers v. Adams Express Co., 128–154, 103 N. W. 152.

An express company receiving liquors from a consignor outside of the state, to be transported to a consignee in the state and delivered to him on payment of the purchase price and charges of transportation, the shipment having been made in pursuance of an order of the consignee, accepted by the consignor, acts as the agent of the consignee in the transportation of liquors and as the agent of the consignor in the collection of the charges, and cannot be deemed the seller nor an agent of the seller of the liquors, in violation of federal or state law. United States v. Adams Exp. Co., 119 Fed. 240.

One who, as agent for the consignee, receives liquors from the carrier for delivery to such consignee is not engaged in interstate commerce. State v. Wignall, 150–650, 128 N. W. 935.

The statute applies only to railway and express companies, common carriers and persons engaged in the carrying business and not to private individuals acting without consideration and for the purpose of conferring a favor, even though acting as an agent of the consignee. Ibid.

SEC. 2422. Lien of judgments—liability of sureties—costs—evidence.

Where the real owner of property has an opportunity to make defense in the action he is bound by the judgment declaring a lien on such property. State v. Mateer, 105–66, 74 N. W. 912.

Where defendant has been convicted of maintaining a liquor nuisance, the governor may remit the fine, but cannot remit the costs nor suspend their execution. Ibid.

The bond here provided for does not cover the penalty authorized by code § 2403 in case of sales to minors. Heading-ton v. Smith, 113–107, 84 N. W. 982.

Authority to sell under the provisions of the mulct law is not the same as that given to a permit holder. Ibid.

Action against the surety on a liquor seller's bond for civil damages caused by sale of liquor may be maintained without making the principal a party. Knott v. Peterson, 125–404, 101 N. W. 173.

The premises on which a liquor nuisance is maintained are liable to a judgment for a fine imposed for the illegal keeping of liquors, although constituting the homestead of the seller. Jasper County v. Sparham, 125–464, 101 N. W. 134.

One who takes the property by conveyance prior to the enforcement of the fine takes it subject to the judgment. Ibid.

The indictment for a liquor nuisance need not specifically describe the premises on which the judgment will become a lien, but the property may be identified by evidence when it is sought to enforce the lien against it. Ibid.

While the judgment for costs and attorney's fees becomes a lien on the premises providing the unlawful use was with the knowledge of the owner or his agent, the property cannot be subjected to the payment of such judgment without notice to the owner and affording him an opportunity to be heard. Denmead v. Parker, 145–581, 124 N. W. 780.

The premises which have been used for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors by the occupants who were not the owners thereof, are subject to the lien of a judgment rendered against such occupants only when it is shown that they have been used for such illegal purposes with the knowledge or consent of the owner or his agent. A suit for injunction against the premises in such case is not a proceeding in rem so as to render the judgment a lien upon the premises as against the interest of an owner who is not made a party to the proceedings. State v. Kelly, 151–264, 130 N. W. 1088.

This section relates only to the lien of the judgment for costs and not to the order of abatement directed to be entered under code § 2408. Smith v. Foster, 153–664, 134 N. W. 93.

SEC. 2423. Payments—contracts—negotiable paper.

In general: An action under this section to recover back payments made for intoxicating liquors is an action for the enforcement of a statutory penalty, and cannot therefore be removed to the federal courts. Hamilton v. Joseph Schlitz Brg. Co., 100 Fed. 675.

The person named in this section as "receiver" and who is made liable for a return of the money, is evidently the person to whom it belonged when paid by the purchaser. It is not participation in making the sale nor the handling of the money that renders one liable for its return, but only the receipt of such money by him as his own. Foley v. Leisy Brg. Co., 116–176, 89 N. W. 230.

A contract for the sale of property, a part consideration of which is an indebtedness for intoxicating liquors, is wholly void, and the person who has contracted to convey may have his title quieted as against the person with whom the illegal contract of conveyance was made. Lindt v. Uihlein, 109–591, 79 N. W. 73.

One who claims title to real property in consideration of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors cannot, after his title is adjudged to be void on that ground, assert the rights of an occupying claimant. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116–48, 89 N. W. 214.

Money loaned to a partnership engaged in the business of unlawful sale of liquors may be recovered, it not appearing that the loan was made to enable the partnership to violate the law. Grey v. Callan, 133–500, 110 N. W. 909.

A mere suspicion on the part of an owner of property leased that intoxicating liquor may be sold on the premises by the tenant does not defeat the right of the lessor to recover on a bond given by the tenant to save the lessor harmless from any liability of the premises under the intoxicating liquor laws. Harbison v. Shirley, 139–605, 117 N. W. 963.

The owner of a brewery permitting the retail sale of liquor on any portion of the premises forfeits the right to recover on contracts of sale made in the prosecution of his business. Orke v. McManus, 142–654, 121 N. W. 177.

Notes which are in fact given either in whole or in part for and on account of intoxicating liquors sold in violation of law are invalid. Arie v. Dixon, 144–573, 123 N. W. 173.

An action to recover payments made for liquor sold in violation of statute is not a penal action, but civil and remedial, and may be maintained in a federal court. United Breweries Co. v. Colby, (C. C.) 170 Fed. 1008.

Sales in another state: Where a salesman has only authority to take orders subject to approval, and no part of the price is paid, nor any part of the goods delivered when the orders are taken which are to be filled in another state, the contract is not in violation of the laws of this state. Sachs v. Garner, 111–424, 82 N. W. 1007.

Money paid for liquor sold and shipped at a point outside of the state on orders there received and approved cannot be recovered under this section. Brown v. Wieland, 116–711, 89 N. W. 17.

As to payments for liquors unlawfully sold in this state, the obligation to repay exists from the time the payment is made, and only demand is necessary to maintain an action on the claim, and therefore such a claim may be introduced by way of counter claim, under the provisions of code § 3570, although at the time the original action is brought no demand has yet been made. Ibid.

An order given for liquor subject to approval in another state becomes binding upon such approval and the shipment of the liquor in response thereto and the payment of the purchase price may be enforced. Bowlin Liquor Co. v. Brandenburg, 130–220, 106 N. W. 497.

Where the sale of intoxicating liquors actually takes place in another state, no recovery may be had for payments made therefor. Hamilton v. Schlitz Brewing Co., 129–172, 105 N. W. 438.

Prohibition being the rule, the burden is upon one seeking to recover payment for intoxicating liquors sold to show that the sales, if made in this state, were lawful. But if it appears that the sale was made in another state it will not be presumed to have been unlawful. Westheimer v. Habinck, 131–643, 109 N. W. 189.

If sold in another state and shipped to this state for delivery to the purchaser, the liquors while in the hands of the carrier and still subject to the control and direction of the seller do not become subject to the police regulations of the state. Ibid.

When the buyer accepts liquors shipped to him on his order, given to the seller in another state, his liability is on the contract of sale thus made in the state where the seller resides, even though in the meantime he has countermanded the order. His acceptance is to be deemed a waiver of the countermand, rather than as giving rise to an action on implied contract. Gross v. Feehan, 110–163, 81 N. W. 235.

A contract between a principal in another state and an agent in this state to sell intoxicating liquor in original packages prior to the passage of the act of congress subjecting the traffic in intoxicating liquors brought into the state to the regulations of the state, was not unlawful. Green v. Schoenhofen Brg. Co., 103–252, 72 N. W. 655.

SEC. 2424. Requisites of indictment or information—testimony of purchaser.

Under the special statutory provisions as to prosecutions for liquor nuisances, it is not necessary in the indictment to allege that the liquors kept by the defendant were sold or kept in violation of law. State v. Brown, 135–40, 109 N. W. 1011.

SEC. 2425. Several counts—second conviction.

A prosecution under this section is within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, although the aggregate of the fines imposed may be in excess of one hundred dollars, but this is because more than one offense may be charged in the information, the penalty for each offense being within the constitutional limitation. State v. Babcock, 112-250, 83 N. W. 908.

SEC. 2427. Evidence of illegal selling or keeping—license.

The presumption which arises from the finding of liquor on the premises of defendant is that the liquor is kept by some one for illegal sale, and in a prosecution for forfeiture of such liquor the burden is on defendant claiming to be the owner of the liquor to show not only that he did not keep the liquor for illegal sale, but that it was not kept by anyone for that purpose. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109-145, 80 N. W. 230.

The possession of a federal license to sell liquor is presumptive evidence of the selling and keeping for sale. McCracken v. Miller, 129-623, 106 N. W. 4.

The discovery of liquor on the premises is presumptive evidence of keeping for illegal sale, but does not tend to prove the act of selling in violation of law. State v. Thompson, 130-227, 106 N. W. 515.

Proof of the possession of intoxicating liquor in a public eating house is a substantial fact declared by the statute to constitute a nuisance, and it is not essential in a prosecution for such nuisance to show that intoxicating liquors have actually been found in such place by an officer under a search warrant. State v. Wilson, 152-529, 132 N. W. 820.

The finding of liquors in a restaurant or grocery store kept in the same building as that of defendant's residence, with evidence that such liquor is the property of the defendant, is sufficient to show the keeping of such liquor for illegal sale. State v. Johnson, 157- —, 138 N. W. 458.

SEC. 2427-a. Certified list of federal license holders—county attorney shall secure. That the several county attorneys of this state are hereby authorized and directed to secure from the federal internal revenue collectors for Iowa, on or before the fifteenth day of January, April, July and October of each year, a certified copy of the names of all persons who have paid to the federal government special taxes imposed upon the business of selling intoxicating liquors within their respective counties, except such persons within their counties as are engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors under the mulct law and registered pharmacists who hold valid permits to keep and sell intoxicating liquors for medicinal purposes, and to pay to the internal revenue collector the fee prescribed by the statutes of the United States. Said county attorney shall file with the county auditor of his county a certified statement of the amount paid to such internal revenue collector, and the board of supervisors shall audit and allow the same at their next regular or special meeting. [34 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

SEC. 2427-b. Filed with auditor—record. Upon receipt by the county attorney of certified copies of the names of all persons in his county who have paid the federal government the special tax imposed on the business of selling intoxicating liquors as aforesaid, the county attorney shall, after examination of said list, file the same with the auditor of his county, who shall record the same in a book kept therefor, which shall be open to public inspection. [34 G. A., ch. 105, § 2.]

SEC. 2427-c. Prima-facie evidence. The certified copy furnished by the internal revenue collector of the name of any person who has paid to the federal government the special tax imposed upon the business of selling intoxicating liquors shall be prima-facie evidence that said person is engaged in the sale of, or keeping with intent to sell, intoxicating liquors in violation of law, unless said person by way of defense shows that he has complied with all the terms and conditions of the mulct law, or that he is a registered pharmacist, actually engaged in business as such and said certified copy shall be competent evidence in any court within this state. [34 G. A., ch. 105, § 3.]

SEC. 2428. Duty of peace officers—direction by county attorney—report—compensation—expenses. Peace officers shall see that all provisions of this chapter are faithfully executed within their respective jurisdictions, and when informed, or they have reason to believe, that the law has been violated, and that proof thereof can be had, they shall file an information to that effect against the offending party before a magistrate, who shall thereupon proceed according to law. Upon trials of such causes, the county attorney shall appear for the state, unless some other attorney, selected by the peace officer who filed the information, shall have previously appeared. Any peace officer failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars, and a conviction shall work a forfeiture of his office. Every peace officer shall give evidence, when called upon, of any facts within his knowledge tending to prove a violation of the provisions of this chapter, but his evidence shall in no case be used against him in any criminal prosecution. The attorney selected by a peace officer in accordance with the provisions of this section shall receive, for prosecuting such charge before a justice of the peace, five dollars, to be taxed as costs in the case. Any peace officer shall, whenever directed in writing so to do by the county attorney, make special investigation of any alleged or supposed infraction of the law within his county, and report in writing with reference thereto within a reasonable time to such county attorney. When such investigation is made, the peace officer shall file with the county auditor a detailed, sworn statement of the services rendered and of his actual itemized expenses incurred in connection therewith, accompanied by the written order of the county attorney. If the officer be one who is receiving a definite and fixed salary, the board of supervisors shall audit and allow only so much of such expense account as it shall find reasonable and necessary. If the officer be one not receiving a fixed and definite salary, the board of supervisors shall allow such additional sum for services as it may deem reasonable and just, which allowance shall be final. [35 G. A., ch. 192, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 143, § 13; 17 G. A., ch. 91; C. '73, §§ 1551, 3829; R. §§ 1578, 4168; C. '51, § 2561.]

This section applies equally to county attorneys and other officers named. Tennant v. Kuhlemeier, 142–241, 120 N. W. 689.

SEC. 2429. Attorney's fees.

The provisions of this section as to the amount of the attorney's fees are limited by those of code § 2406 and the cases provided for in that section. Carter v. Bartel, 110–211, 81 N. W. 462.

Under this section the limitation of § 2406 as to the amount of the fee to be allowed in an action to enjoin a nuisance is not applicable. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130–488, 107 N. W. 168.

The statute authorizes the taxation of attorney's fees as a part of the costs and also allows ten per cent. for collecting the penalty imposed. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

The ten per cent. of the fine, in addition to the attorney's fee which is to be allowed to the attorney prosecuting the case, cannot be recovered either as costs or otherwise until the fine has been collected. McConkie v. Landt, 126–317, 101 N. W. 1121.

The statute contemplates the allowance of reasonable attorney's fees in favor of the attorney by whom the injunction proceeding is actually prosecuted without objection on the part of the person who ostensibly appears as prosecutor. Plank v. Hertha, 132–213, 109 N. W. 732.

An attorney's fee may be taxed in the supreme court as costs in favor of the attorney who appears in the certiorari proceeding to sustain an order for punishment for contempt, if it be found that the order was properly made. Cheadle v. Roberts, 150–639, 130 N. W. 368.

The attorney in a prosecution for contempt is entitled to a percentage of the fine paid for collection, but the board of supervisors has no authority to contract with a private person for collecting such fines on a percentage. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

SEC. 2431. Evasions.

Statutes designed to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors are to be construed and interpreted by the rules having application to statutes generally, save as modified by the provisions of this section, that it shall be the duty of courts and jurors to construe the general chapter relating to the subject of intoxicating liquors so as to prevent evasion. Cox v. Burnham, 120–43, 94 N. W. 265.

MULCT TAX.

SEC. 2432. Payment of—lien.

[For additional provisions respecting annual mulct tax see §§ 2461-c and 2461-d. EDITOR.]

The mulct tax is not payable by a registered pharmacist who has a permit for the sale of intoxicating liquors, although he sells in violation of his permit. In re Assignment of Shonkwiler, 104–67, 73 N. W. 479.

Where at the time the mulct tax law went into effect certain premises were already leased under terms by which the lessor could terminate the lease in the case of illegal sale of liquor on the premises, and the lessor had knowledge of illegal sales and did not take steps to terminate the lease, held that the premises were subject to the tax. In re Smith, 104–199, 73 N. W. 605.

No notice to the lot owner of the assessment and levy of the mulct tax is necessary. It is a tax to be assessed and levied by virtue of a general law upon certain persons and property coming within the provisions of the act. The statute contemplates that the person liable to the tax shall appear and pay the same without notice. Ibid.

The mulct tax is to be assessed against every person, other than registered pharmacists holding permits, who is engaged in selling or in keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquors, and upon the real property, and the owner, thereof, in or upon which such liquors are sold or kept with intent to sell. The tax is to be assessed regardless of the fact that no petition of consent has been secured or permission to sell granted. The petition and permission are important only in determining whether prosecution under the prohibitory law is barred; they have no relation to the taxing provision. Ibid.

The mulct tax may properly be levied against the owner of the premises who, by the use of ordinary care and diligence, might have known of the unlawful sales of liquor thereon. David v. Hardin County, 104–204, 73 N. W. 576.

Under provisions of prior statutes requiring a levy of the mulct tax annually by the board of supervisors, held that where sales were continued for more than six months of the year there could not be any abatement of the full amount of the annual tax. Hubbell v. Polk County, 106–618, 76 N. W. 854.

The provisions of the prior statute as to time of making the levy held directory only and that a levy in December instead of in September was valid. Ibid.

Although the tax is payable in quarterly installments, the liability therefor attaches at the beginning of each annual period. Kane v. Grady, 123–260, 98 N. W. 771.

It is the property used in connection with the business, and this alone, which is liable for the tax. If a man has divided his property in good faith, so that a part is not used in connection with the business, such part is not liable for the tax, whether it be a part of the same platted lot or a distinct and separate portion of the same block of buildings. It does not follow that because, for the purpose of a general assessment, property has been treated as one tract, the entire tract is subject to mulct tax. Lucas County v. Leonard, 107–593, 78 N. W. 203.

On the other hand, the mulct tax is not limited in its application to the ground only upon which the building used for the purpose stands. The law intends to subject to the tax not only the building and the ground upon which it stands, but also all land appurtenant and used in connection therewith. Ibid.

Where property was sold at tax sale for the mulct tax at the instance of the bondsman who was liable for the payment of the tax, and the sale was subsequently set aside as invalid, held that such bondsman could not recover from the county the amount paid by him at the sale under the provisions of code § 1446. Guedert v. Emmet County, 116–40, 89 N. W. 85.

This so-called tax is merely a charge or license exacted for the privilege of carrying on the business of selling intoxicating liquors, and is therefore not a tax within the meaning of the federal bankrupt law requiring trustees in bankruptcy to pay all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt in advance of the payment of dividends to creditors. In re Ott, 95 Fed. 274.

The tax imposed by the mulct liquor law is a charge or license exacted for the privilege of carrying on the business of vending liquors. It confers no right on the person engaged in the business, but imposes an impediment to the transaction of such business. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121–482, 96 N. W. 968.

An action to recover a mulct tax may be maintained against the person conducting the business and the sureties on his bond. Carroll County v. Ley, 127–230, 103 N. W. 101.

But the mulct tax is not a personal obligation against the owner of property which can be enforced in an action at law. Ibid.

The provisions of the original mulct law, so far as they were reënacted in the code, have been in full force and effect ever since their original enactment and the bond given with reference to observance of the original law was effectual under the provisions of the code. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126–539, 102 N. W. 446.

The provisions with reference to the bond to be given by a seller under the mulct law contemplate the particular location of the place of sale, and it is for damages occasioned by the sale of intoxicating liquors there, and not elsewhere, that the bondsmen are liable. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121–139, 96 N. W. 739.

While the assessor may list only for the current quarter, the authority of citizens to act under code supp. § 2435 is not so limited. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 138–11, 115 N. W. 480.

There is no provision as to the term for which the bond is required to be given and it may therefore be continuing and not subject to revocation during any year with reference to which it has taken effect. But if prior to the beginning of any year for which the seller desires to pay the mulct tax the bond is revoked by the sureties, notice of such revocation being given to the officer appointed to see that such bond is approved, the sureties do not continue bound for such ensuing year. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Jenness, 138–725, 116 N. W. 709.

From this section and other provisions of the mulct law it appears that a corporation may engage in the business of selling intoxicating liquors under the statutory regulations. (But now see 33 G. A., ch. 143, supp. §§ 2383-a–2383-e.) State v. Delahoyde, 147–327, 126 N. W. 330.

The mulct law provides for a tax which is a lien as against a trustee in bankruptcy. In re Lange Co., (D. C.) 159 Fed. 586.

A contract of insurance on intoxicating liquors, kept in a bonded warehouse, is valid. Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Hoover Distilling Co., (C. C. A.) 182 Fed. 590.

This section was not intended to apply to and does not affect suits and proceedings in the federal courts. Ibid.

SEC. 2433. Return by assessor. In the months of December, March, June, and September of each year, and before the twentieth day of each of said months, the assessor of each township, town or city, or assessment district thereof, shall return to the county auditor a list of persons who are, or since the last quarterly return have been, engaged in carrying on within said township, town, city or assessment district the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors, or maintaining any place where such liquors are sold or kept for sale, and also a description of the real property wherein or whereon such business is carried on or such place is maintained, with the name of the occupant or tenant and owner or agent. At least five days before the assessor makes the return above contemplated to the county auditor he shall give to the person found in possession of each place which he intends to list, or is required to list, and to the tenant occupant and owner of such place a notice in writing that he intends to return such list to the county auditor charging the property itself and the owner of the property therein described and the person who owns or conducts the business with the mulct tax. But if any one of the persons to whom the assessor is herein required to give notice does not reside within the assessor's assessment district it shall be sufficient for the assessor to mail, at least five days before he make such return to the auditor, a copy of such notice to such person at his last known post-office address; and if there is anyone whose post-office address cannot be ascertained by the assessor it shall be sufficient as to such person for the assesor to post a copy of such notice in some conspicuous place on the front of the property about to be listed as liable to the tax. Service of notice on any agent having general charge of the property or on any agent renting or collecting rent on the property so used or having authority to rent or collect rent on such property, or on any member of the owner's family over fourteen years of age shall be equivalent to notice to the owner of such property. The assessor shall give notice in each case in such one of the ways above provided as the circumstances of the case require, and he shall show in his return to the auditor that he has given notice and the manner of the service. The return signed by the assessor shall in all cases be admissible in evidence without further proof, and such return shall have the same force and effect as the oath of the assessor. The burden of proof shall in all cases be upon the party claiming that notice was not given. The county auditor shall furnish to the several assessors of his county, printed blanks upon which to give the notice contemplated in this amendment. Any assessor wilfully failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of fifty dollars and costs for each offense. [29 G. A., ch. 95, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.]

The mulct tax is not a property tax in such sense as that the treasurer has authority under code § 1374 to assess it as an omitted tax on property subject to assessment. In re Appeal of Des Moines Union R. Co., 137–730, 115 N. W. 740.

SEC. 2435. Statement by citizens. Should the assessor for any reason fail to perform his duty, any three citizens of the county can, by verified statement on information and belief, addressed to the county auditor, procure the listing of names and places as above provided, with the same force and effect as if done by the assessor. At least five days before listing the property or names with the county auditor as contemplated in code section twenty-four hundred thirty-five such citizens shall give notice in writing of their intention so to do to the same parties and in the same manner as required of the assessor in section one[1] of this amendment, and proof of the service of notice shall be made by the affidavit of one or more of the citizens making the return, which affidavit shall be returned to and filed with the auditor with the list of names and property sought to be charged; and the return and affidavit of the citizens so filed with the county auditor shall be admissible in evidence in the same way and with the same force and effect as the return of the assessor. [29 G. A., ch. 95, § 2; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 3.]

[1]See § 2433 herein. EDITOR.]

The proceeding by citizens is not limited by the provisions applicable to the assessor as to the time for returning the tax. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 138–11, 115 N. W. 480.

SEC. 2436. Quarterly installments—lien—penalty.

Under previous statutory provisions levy of the tax by the board of supervisors was essential. Smithberg v. Archer, 108–215, 78 N. W. 847.

Where one sells liquor after the beginning of a period for which taxes are to be paid he becomes liable for the entire amount of the tax, and evidence of subsequent abandonment of the business before the expiration of the period is immaterial. State v. Miller, 114–396, 87 N. W. 281.

A surety on the bond who pays the tax is not subrogated to the county's rights under this section. Knoll v. Marshall County, 114–647, 87 N. W. 657.

The liquor seller is liable for the full tax for the quarter in which he commences business and the liability of his surety is the same. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126–539, 102 N. W. 446.

SEC. 2437. List certified to treasurer—mulct tax account. On the last day of December, of March, of June, and of September in each year, the county auditor shall certify to the county treasurer a complete list of the names of persons returned to him by the assessors, or entered on the sworn statements made to him by citizens as aforesaid, together with a description in each case of the real property wherein or whereon the business is carried on or the place maintained, and the name of the occupant or tenant, and the owner or agent of such property, and the county auditor shall keep in his office in books to be provided for that purpose an account to be known as the mulct tax account, in which memoranda of all moneys which may come into his hands and those of the county treasurer, from the mulct tax, shall be entered; and the county treasurer shall keep a like account and record of all mulct tax coming into his hands. Settlement of such accounts shall be made with the board of supervisors at the January and June sessions of the board, which settlement shall be published with the proceedings of the board. [30 G. A., ch. 83, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 10.]

The mulct tax is made a lien only on the real property wherein or whereon the business is conducted. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121–139, 96 N. W. 739.

The notice by citizens of the county of an application to the auditor to have places listed as subject to mulct tax which have been omitted by the assessor, must be a notice in writing, proof of the service of which is to be made by the affidavit of one of the citizens making the application, and proof of service of such notice by a constable is insufficient. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 134–527, 111 N. W. 1009.

SEC. 2438. Entry of tax—payments made to county treasurer. The county treasurer shall thereupon enter upon a book known as the mulct tax book a quarterly installment of the mulct tax, as due and payable by the person carrying on such business or keeping such place, and as a lien and charge upon and against the real property wherein or whereon such business is carried on or such place maintained, all payments of mulct tax shall be made to the county treasurer upon a certificate from the county auditor showing the amount due. [30 G. A., ch. 83, § 2; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 10.]

SEC. 2439. When delinquent—sales for—redemption—title in the county. After the expiration of one month from the date when such tax becomes due and payable, if not paid, it shall be delinquent and collectible by the treasurer in the same method as that in which other delinquent taxes are collectible, and all the provisions as to the collection of other delinquent taxes shall apply. Tax sales for such delinquent taxes shall also be made on the first Monday in June of each year, in the same manner and to the same effect as on the first Monday in December, and all the provisions of law as to tax sales in December shall apply to such sales in June. When real estate offered at tax sale under this section shall be passed for want of bid covering amount of tax due thereon, it shall be advertised and sold by the treasurer at next semiannual tax sale. The treasurer shall appoint, prior to such sale, three appraisers who shall appraise the value of any and all property to be offered at such sale, taking into account any superior, valid lien thereon, and file a separate appraisement for each parcel; and the cost thereof shall be added to the penalty. If at the sale an amount less than the tax and penalty and less than the appraisement is offered, the property shall be sold to the county; at the appraised value, if it is less than the tax and penalty; or at the tax and penalty, if they are less than the appraised value. The provisions of sections fourteen hundred thirty-six, fourteen hundred thirty-seven, and fourteen hundred thirty-eight of the code shall apply to the redemption; but the supervisors may allow redemption for any amount deemed advantageous to the county; and in default thereof after notice to redeem as provided by section fourteen hundred forty-one of the code, the treasurer shall execute a deed to the county, without fee, and such deed shall have, so far as applicable, all the effect as provided by section fourteen hundred forty-four of the code as to vesting in the county all the right, title, interest and estate of the former owner in and to the land conveyed. On redemption or on final sale of the property the proceeds shall be applied as provided by section twenty-four hundred forty-five of the code. While thus acquiring title the county, to protect its interest, may bid in the property at ordinary tax sale and acquire title under the same terms and conditions as other tax sale purchasers. [31 G. A.., ch. 99; 25 G. A., ch. 62, §§ 12, 13.]

A suit in equity cannot be maintained against the owner of the land on which the nuisance is situated to enforce the payment of the tax. Crawford County v. Laub, 110–355, 81 N. W. 590.

The provisions as to assessment and collection of the mulct tax are specific and complete. Such a tax cannot be assessed by the treasurer under the provisions of code § 1374 relating to property omitted from assessment. In re Appeal of Des Moines Union R. Co., 137–730, 115 N. W. 740.

SEC. 2441. Application for remission.

The board of supervisors in considering an application for remission of the mulct tax has no power to determine the question of priority as against a mortgage on the premises, nor can the district court on appeal from the action of the board of supervisors consider such question. David v. Hardin County, 104–204, 73 N. W. 576.

The word "year" as used in 25 G. A., ch. 62, with reference to the mulct tax, has reference to a calendar year, and therefore where the tax was not payable in advance because the case was not one where consent to the sale could be given, and the property was not shown to be subject to assessment until near the end of the calendar year, held that the board of supervisors at its January meeting could only levy such tax on the premises for the remainder of the preceding calendar year. Ibid.

But where the place had been used for more than six months of the calendar year for sale of liquor and the board at its September meeting levied a tax of six hundred dollars against the property, held that under the statute the owner was not entitled to a remission of any portion of the tax on the ground that the premises had thus been used for less than one year. Engelthaler v. Linn County, 104–293, 73 N. W. 578.

Notice of the proceedings against the property need not be given to the property owner, nor is the fact that the owner did not know of the sale of liquor on his premises controlling, and code §§ 2433 et seq. are not unconstitutional in this respect. Newton v. McKay, 130–596, 102 N. W. 827.

The mulct tax is imposed upon all except permit holders who carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors. Payment of the tax does not in itself constitute a bar to proceedings for the unlawful sale of liquors. It is not therefore a license. The legislature may impose a tax without legalizing the business taxed. Ibid.

The statutory provisions as to the assessment and collection of the mulct tax do not involve notice of the assessment or levy of the tax. Notwithstanding the omission of any provision for such notice, the statute is not unconstitutional. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121–482, 96 N. W. 968.

Such statute confers no right but imposes an impediment to the transaction of the business. It is a tax on that business levied to meet the burdens imposed on the general public by what is thought to be the result of the conduct of such business. Ibid.

As the property owner may apply to the board of supervisors for remission of the tax, notice to the property owner of the imposition of such tax by the board is not essential to its validity. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 196 U. S. 276.

SEC. 2445. Tax divided and apportioned. That the law as it appears in section twenty-four hundred forty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and there is enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"The revenue derived from the tax provided for in this chapter shall be paid into the county treasury, one half to go into the general county fund, and the remainder to be paid over to the municipality in which the business taxed is conducted. If such business is conducted outside the limits of a city or town then the tax now in hands of county treasurers, or that shall hereafter be collected from such business, shall be apportioned as follows: One half to the general county fund and the other one half to the clerk of the township in which such business is conducted. The clerk of the township shall apportion the amount so received by him equally among the road supervisors of the territory of the township outside of the city or town, to be by said road supervisors expended for the improvement of the roads of the districts. In counties where a tax on the traffic in intoxicating liquors is paid into and belongs to the county treasury, the board of supervisors may transfer the same or any part thereof to the county road fund and expend the same upon the roads of the county; and that portion of such revenue derived from such business conducted inside the limits of a city, including cities under special charter, or town, the board may expend all or any part thereof upon the permanent improvement of streets within such city or town abutting upon agricultural or horticultural lands not subject to taxation for general municipal purposes." [33 G. A., ch. 140, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 25; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 14.]

The county treasurer is not entitled to a collection fee under code § 490 for the portion of the regular mulct tax which is to be paid to the city, but may collect such fee as to any additional mulct tax imposed by the city and collected by him. Waverly v. Bremer County, 126–98, 101 N. W. 874.

The full amount of the tax is recoverable by the county, one half the amount recovered being for the use of the city or town in which the business is conducted. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126–539, 102 N. W. 446.

The county has no control over the portion of the mulct tax collected by the treasurer which goes to the municipality and is not liable for the action of the treasurer in deducting from such tax a collection fee. City of Sioux City v. Woodbury County, 144–326, 122 N. W. 940.

Anyone found engaged in the business of selling liquor is subject to the tax whether he be legally engaged therein or not. Therefore it is not to be inferred from this section that there is any authority to carry on such business outside of the city or town. Beck v. Woodruff, 148–193, 126 N. W. 1107.

SEC. 2446. Duty of county attorney.

This section relates to the collection of the mulct tax and not to the apportionment of the penalties of the prohibitory law. Tennant v. Kuhlemeier, 142–241, 120 N. W. 689.

SEC. 2447. Effect of payment.

The business of selling intoxicating liquor in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law is lawful, and a note given by one partner in such business to another for the purchase of the interest of the latter in such business is valid. Phillips v. Gifford, 104–458, 73 N. W. 1033.

A condition in such note that it shall be void "if the payer is obliged to abandon his present business on account of a change of the liquor law by the next legislature," held to be a valid condition. Ibid.

A person operating under the mulct law is engaged in a lawful occupation. State v. Miller, 114–396, 87 N. W. 281; Iowa City v. McInnerny, 114–586, 87 N. W. 498.

The statute confers no right but imposes an impediment to the transaction of the business. It is a tax on that business levied to meet the burdens imposed on the general public by what is thought to be the result of the conduct of such business. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121–482, 96 N. W. 968.

The mulct tax is imposed upon all except permit holders who carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors. Payment of the tax does not in itself constitute a bar to proceedings for the unlawful sale of liquors. It is not therefore a license. The legislature may impose a tax without legalizing the business taxed. Newton v. McKay, 130–596, 102 N. W. 827.

The provisions of the mulct law do not relieve the parties selling in accordance therewith from liability to a wife for damages by reason of sales to her husband nor from the penalty provided for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104–572, 73 N. W. 1076.

Violation of the provisions of the mulct law by an agent subjects the seller to the penalties of the prohibitory law as to the sale of liquor. Hawks v. Fellows, 108–133, 78 N. W. 812.

Notwithstanding a mistake of law on the part of one carrying on a business under the supposed protection of the mulct law, he renders himself liable to the penalties of the prohibitory law if he violate the conditions under which he is authorized to conduct the business. State v. Gifford, 111–648, 82 N. W. 1034.

One who sells in compliance with the mulct law does not violate a previous injunction restraining him from making further unlawful sales, but if he attempts to act under the mulct law without complying with its provisions he violates such injunction. Landt v. Remley, 113–555, 85 N. W. 783.

Prohibition is still the rule in this state, and freedom from the penalties imposed by the liquor law for the sale of intoxicants the exception, and he who would bring himself within the exception must prove compliance with all the conditions imposed to secure immunity. Schuneman v. Sherman, 118–230, 91 N. W. 1064.

The payment of the mulct tax does not legalize the business if the statutory prohibition of selling on election day is violated. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

The statutory prohibition against construing the terms of the mulct law into a license or legalization of the business is by express enactment so far waived as to exempt the dealer who fully complies with the law from any penalties for violation of the prohibitory law. In its general effect, the statute as a whole provides a species of local option whereby the selling or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors, though generally prohibited, is allowed in counties and other municipalities where the specific restraints and specifications shall have been properly observed. Campbell v. Jackman, 140–475, 118 N. W. 755.

This section expressly provides that the payment of a tax does not protect the wrongdoer except as provided in the section creating the bar. Beck v. Woodruff, 148–193, 126 N. W. 1107.

The mulct law is not unconstitutional in giving to the inhabitants of cities and towns privileges which are denied to those living outside thereof. Ibid.

SEC. 2448. When a bar—conditions. In any city, including cities acting under special charters, of five thousand or more inhabitants, no proceedings shall be maintained against any person who has paid the last preceding quarterly assessment of mulct tax, nor against any premises as a nuisance on account of the selling or keeping for sale therein or thereon, by such person, of such liquors, provided the following conditions are complied with; and in any city of over twenty-five hundred and less than five thousand inhabitants, when a written statement of consent that intoxicating liquors may be sold in such city, signed by eighty per cent. of the voters residing in such city, voting therein at the last preceding election, as shown by the poll list of said election, shall have been filed with the county auditor, and shall by the board of supervisors at a regular meeting, or at a special meeting called for that purpose, have been held sufficient, and its findings entered of record, which statement when thus found sufficient, shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated until revoked, said city shall come within the provisions of this section:

1. Statement of consent—action of supervisors. A written statement of general consent that intoxicating liquors may be sold in such city, signed by a majority of the voters residing in such city, voting therein at the last preceding election, as shown by the poll list of said election, shall have been filed with the county auditor and shall, by the board of supervisors, at a regular meeting, have been held sufficient, and its finding entered of record, which statement when thus found sufficient, shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated, until revoked, as hereinafter provided.

2. Resolution of council—consent of property owners—officers barred—limits—colleges and universities. The person appearing to pay the tax shall file with the county auditor a certified copy of a resolution regularly adopted by the city council, consenting to such sales by him, and a written statement of consent from all the resident freeholders owning property within fifty feet of the building where said business is carried on. But in no case shall said business be conducted by any person holding any township, town, city or county office, or within three hundred feet of any church building, schoolhouse, or cemetery, nor within one-half mile of the place where any agricultural fair is being held, nor within a distance of five miles from any normal school, college or university situated within the limits of any city or town and under the control of the state board of education. Provided however, that the provisions of this specific amendment and of section twenty-four hundred sixty-one of the code shall not exclude any brewery where consent is obtained as provided in section twenty-four hundred fifty-six to section twenty-four hundred sixty, inclusive, of the code.

2-a. Application of act. This act[1] shall apply only to saloons within said distance from any normal school, college or university under the control of the state board of education, operated under petitions of consent circulated and declared sufficient after the passage hereof.

[1Refers to the last part of par. 2 beginning with "nor within a distance of five miles from any normal school" * * *. EDITOR.]

3. Bond. He shall file with the county auditor, to be approved by the clerk of the district court, a bond to the county, in the sum of three thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful observance of all the provisions of this chapter relating to the mulct tax, and for the payment of all damages that may result from the sale of intoxicating liquors upon the premises occupied by the obligor. Said bond shall be signed by himself as principal, and by two sureties who shall qualify each in double the amount of the bond, and neither of whom shall be surety on any other like bond, provided that any surety company, authorized to do business in this state, under the laws thereof may become sole surety on any and all bonds required under this section.

4. Place of sale. Said selling or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors shall be carried on in a single room having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a public business street. The bar where liquors are furnished shall be in plain view of the street, unobstructed by screens, blinds, painted windows or any other device. There shall be no chairs, benches, nor any other furniture in front of the bar, and only such behind the bar as is necessary for the attendants. A list of names of all persons employed about the place shall be filed with the county auditor, and no persons shall be permitted behind the bar except those whose names are so listed.

5. Conduct. The place shall be conducted in a quiet, orderly manner.

6. Gaming and amusements. There shall be no gambling or gaming with cards, dice, billiards or any other device, nor any music, dancing or other form of amusement or entertainment, either in the room where said business is carried on or in any adjoining room or building controlled by the person, partnership or corporation carrying on said business.

7. Obscene pictures. There shall be no obscene or impure decorations, inscriptions, placards or any such thing in the place.

8. Females. No female shall be employed in the place.

9. Opening and closing. The place shall not be open nor any sales be made earlier than seven a. m. nor later than nine p. m. on any day. It shall not be open at all, nor shall any sales be made, on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, nor on any election day or legal holiday, nor on the evening of such days.

10. Minors, drunkards, intoxicated persons. No minor, drunkard or intoxicated person shall be allowed in the room, and no sales of intoxicating liquors shall be made to any minor, drunkard or intoxicated person, or knowingly to any person who has taken any of the so-called "cures for drunkenness."

11. Written notice not to sell. No sale of intoxicating liquors shall be made to any person whose wife, husband, parent, child, brother, sister, guardian, ward over fourteen years of age, or employer, shall by written notice forbid such sales.

12. Payment of tax. If the name of a person desiring to carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors, or maintaining a place where such liquors are sold or kept for sale, has not been entered by the auditor on the list of such persons as hereinbefore provided for, or if the property wherein or whereon such business is to be conducted has not likewise been entered by the auditor on such list, then the name of such person and the description of such property shall be entered upon such list by the treasurer, and a quarterly installment of tax shall be paid as though the name of such person and the description of such property had been duly entered upon such list at the last preceding quarterly assessment for such purpose. [35 G. A., ch. 194, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 193, §§ 1, 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 100; 29 G. A., ch. 96, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 17; 18 G. A., ch. 82; 18 G. A., ch. 147; 17 G. A., ch. 119, § 2; C. '73, § 1114.]

[The amendment by 31 G. A. ignored code supplement, 1902, where same appeared. The change has been made to the code supplement, 1902.]

Conditions—burden of proof: As against a charge of violating an injunction in selling intoxicating liquors, the defendant claiming to act in compliance with the mulct law has the burden of showing performance of all the conditions which are in their nature conditions precedent, but it is for the complaining party to show violations of the law involving matters of conduct only, as that sales are made to minors or on Sunday, etc. Jones v. Byington, 128–397, 104 N. W. 473.

The seller who relies on compliance with the mulct law as a defense against liability for civil damages in an action by the wife for sale of liquor to her husband, has the burden of alleging and proving full and complete compliance with the conditions imposed by the mulct law. League v. Ehmke, 120–464, 94 N. W. 938.

In an indictment for maintaining a place for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, it is not necessary to negative the right of defendant to sell under the mulct law. If defendant claims that his act was lawful because in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law, he must prove not only that he has complied with the provisions as to securing the consent of the proper authorities, but also that he has conducted his place in accordance with the provisions of this and other paragraphs relating to the method of conducting such business. State v. Donahue, 120–154, 94 N. W. 503.

The fact that one acting under the mulct law is advised by the county attorney or city attorney or chief of police that a sale on the day of a school election is not illegal, does not relieve him from the effect of a violation of statute. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

Where a party charged with a violation of the prohibitory law wishes to excuse himself by reason of provisions of the mulct law he must bring himself within such provisions by way of defense and the burden is on him to prove compliance with such law. Pumphrey v. Anderson, 141–140, 119 N. W. 528.

One who is enjoined under code § 2405 from illegal sale of intoxicating liquors may, by compliance with these provisions, become entitled to carry on business under the mulct law without securing a new general statement of consent (but by § 3, ch. 142, acts 33 G. A., one who is enjoined cannot sell liquor within five years). Rink v. Bollinger, 145–501, 123 N. W. 183.

Having once forfeited the protection of the mulct law and been enjoined, the saloon keeper cannot relieve himself from the bar of the statute by mere change of purpose or method in the sale of his goods. If he would reënter the same business he must qualify anew as if he had never enjoyed the privilege before. Sawyer v. Gaynor, 148–115, 126 N. W. 773.

The payment of the mulct tax operates as a bar only when the conditions of this section have been complied with and when the business is carried on in the place authorized. Beck v. Woodruff, 148–193, 126 N. W. 1107.

When one engaged in selling liquor has been enjoined from such sale, he forfeits the protection of the mulct law and cannot claim its protection for future sales without requalifying by the filing of a new bond. Reusch v. Withrow, 154–56, 134 N. W. 431.

Par. 1. Statement of consent: Under 25 G. A., ch. 62, the authority to determine whether the petition of consent was sufficient was not vested in the city council, and its action in granting permission to sell was not conclusive. State v. Pressman, 103–449, 72 N. W. 660.

In determining the sufficiency of the signatures to the petition the poll books and registration lists are the best evidence of who cast ballots at the last election. Ibid.

One who acts under the mulct law, in relying on the sufficiency of a petition of consent, does so at his peril, and if the statement of consent is insufficient he may be punished for illegal selling. Bartel v. Hobson, 107–644, 78 N. W. 689.

A statement of consent filed before the present code went into effect is not effectual under its provisions to suspend the penalties of the prohibitory law. The privilege to sell acquired under such a statement of consent does not constitute a right which is protected as against the repeal of prior statutes resulting from the adoption of the code. West v. Bishop, 110–410, 81 N. W. 696.

The board of supervisors is made a special tribunal for the determination of the sufficiency of the statement of consent, not only as to the county at large, but also as to each and every subdivision thereof, and its findings can only be questioned on appeal. Parol evidence is inadmissible, in the absence of a finding by the board as to the sufficiency of the statement of consent, to show the requisite number of signers for any town within the county. Schuneman v. Sherman, 118–230, 91 N. W. 1064.

One who sells liquor does so at his peril, and cannot rely on parol evidence that the statement of consent, not approved by the board of supervisors, was in fact sufficient as applied to the locality in which he sells. Ibid.

One who voluntarily pays a mulct tax without ascertaining whether the required general statement of consent has been filed cannot recover back the tax paid on the theory that it was paid under a mistake of fact, if it appears that the statement of consent was not sufficient. Ahlers v. Estherville, 130–272, 104 N. W. 453.

A statement of consent filed prior to the taking effect of the code not being effective after the time when the code took effect, held that taxes paid in reliance on such statement were paid under mistake of law and could not be recovered. Ibid.

It is not contemplated that a general statement of consent be secured with reference to any particular seller or that a new statement is required for one who, having been enjoined for violation of the law, has attempted to comply anew with those provisions. Rink v. Bollinger, 145–501, 123 N. W. 183.

Population: The official register of the state is, by code § 177, made conclusive evidence as to the number of inhabitants in the city. In re Sale of Intoxicating Liquors, 108–368, 79 N. W. 260.

As the sufficiency of a statement of consent may depend upon the population of the city, those resisting the application for consent have an interest in the proceedings of public officers with reference to taking the census. Semones v. Needles, 137–177, 114 N. W. 904.

As to cities over twenty-five hundred and less than five thousand in population, a petition signed by eighty per cent. of the voters of such city is sufficient. In such a city the consent may be secured by getting the signature of eighty per cent. of the voters in the city or the majority of the voters in the city and the majority of the voters in the township and sixty-five per cent. of the voters of the county. Theobald v. Flinn, 139 N. W. 449.

Poll books: The poll list is made the only and exclusive evidence as to who voted in the particular localities. Porter v. Butterfield, 116–725, 89 N. W. 199; Wilson v. Bohstedt, 135–451, 110 N. W. 898.

The names on the statement of consent must appear on the poll books of the last preceding general election. Where the signature is by mark it should be witnessed and unless so witnessed should not be counted. Scott v. Naacke, 144–164, 122 N. W. 824.

The statement must show the date of signature of each signer. Ibid.

The poll books referred to in this section are those filed with the county auditor and not those filed with the several township, city or town clerks. In re Consent to Sell Intoxicating Liquors, De Board v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

The poll books by which the sufficiency of the signatures to the petition of general consent are to be determined are those filed with the county auditor and not those retained by the local officers. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

If at the time the petition of general consent is signed and filed and at the time the board enters upon its canvass thereof, no poll book for a particular precinct of the city has been filed with the county auditor, the names of signers for such precinct must be excluded. Ibid.

The right to be heard upon a petition of consent is not the right of a voter, as such, but of those voters only who voted at the preceding election and whose names are to be found upon a poll book duly filed with the auditor. Ibid.

Although the poll lists afford the sole criterion for ascertaining the names of persons voting at the last preceding election, the use by a voter whose name appears on the poll list of his name as appearing on such list for signature to the petition of consent does not vitiate his signature to such petition although it is incorrectly spelled on such list. Taft v. Snouffer, 157– —, 137 N. W. 922.

These provisions as to qualifications of signers of the petition of consent are applicable under code § 2451 relating to petitions for revocation. Mills v. Hallgren, 146–215, 124 N. W. 1077.

Par. 2. Resolution of council: Where the application is for permission to a firm to sell intoxicating liquors under the mulct law, the authority given by the council to such firm is not available to one member of the firm to whom the business is transferred. State v. Zermuehlen, 110–1, 81 N. W. 154.

After violating the provisions of the statute by the sale of liquors on an election day, one who is acting under the mulct law is precluded from reliance upon the resolution of the city council and the written statement of consent of adjoining freeholders. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

To constitute a resolution of consent by a city or town council there must have been formal action of the council and a record of such action, for the statute requires a certificate of the record. Sawyer v. Collins, 148–712, 127 N. W. 1015.

The requirement of a certified copy of a resolution by the town council is complied with where it appears by certification of the town records that the town council granted a liquor license for certain prescribed premises, a copy of which, attested by the town recorder, was filed with the auditor. Sawyer v. Lorenzen, 149–87, 127 N. W. 1091.

Consent of property owners: The filing of a statement of consent by adjoining property owners is a condition precedent to the right to sell under the mulct law, and sales made before such statement of consent is filed are unlawful. Landt v. Remley, 113–555, 85 N. W. 783.

Where property within fifty feet of the building where the business is carried on is owned by a partnership, the consent of each partner is essential. Close v. O'Brien, 135–305, 112 N. W. 800.

The purchaser of property from an owner who has consented to the maintenance of a saloon within fifty feet of his property does not take the property subject to the consent previously given by his grantor, and a new statement of consent by such purchaser must be filed by the saloon keeper at the beginning of the next tax year. Conway v. District Court, 132–510, 109 N. W. 1074.

The consent of an adjoining property owner cannot be withdrawn during the year for which the annual tax is payable although it is paid in quarterly installments, but such withdrawal may be effectual as to the next annual payment. Kane v. Grady, 123–260, 98 N. W. 771.

If the room in which sales of liquor are made is less than fifty feet from the premises of a property owner who does not consent, the occupant cannot by constructing a board partition which is fifty feet from such premises leaving an unoccupied space between such partition and the wall of the room render the consent of such property owner unnecessary. McColl v. Rally, 127–633, 103 N. W. 972.

An agreement to pay a property owner a sum of money in consideration of his giving consent that a saloon may be established within fifty feet of his property, is against public policy and void. Greer v. Severson, 119–84, 93 N. W. 72.

The consent of neighboring property owners required by the statute is not intended to be the subject of barter and sale. Ibid.

The fact that a person operating under the mulct law elects to pay his tax in quarterly installments does not make it obligatory upon him to see that the consent of resident owners of property within fifty feet is renewed or refiled at the opening of each successive quarter. Having once complied with the law in this respect, his duty is discharged until such consent has in some manner been withdrawn or until the expiration of the tax year for which the consent was given. Sawyer v. Hutchinson, 149–39, 127 N. W. 1090.

It is only resident freeholders owning property within the fifty-foot limit whose consent is required to the establishment of a mulct saloon and a corporation organized and doing business in another county is not such resident freeholder although it may be the owner of such property. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the saloon proprietor owning also other property within the fifty-foot limit shall put on file his own consent to the operation of a saloon on his premises. Sawyer v. Lorenzen, 149–87, 127 N. W. 1091.

A resident property owner may maintain an action by certiorari to have determined the validity of a decree refusing to abate a liquor nuisance within the prescribed distance from his premises. Hemmer v. Bonson, 139–210, 117 N. W. 257.

Proximity to agricultural fair: In determining whether the place where intoxicating liquor is being sold is within one-half mile of the place where an agricultural fair is being held, the distance must be measured in a straight line and not by the nearest traveled route along the streets and sidewalks. Woodring v. Nolan, 135 N. W. 567.

Par. 3. Bond: The bond here provided for does not cover the payment of assessments required by city ordinance, under code § 2455. Ottumwa v. Hodge, 112–430, 84 N. W. 533.

Nor does the bond cover the penalty specified by code § 2403 for sales to minors. Headington v. Smith, 113–107, 84 N. W. 982.

The sureties on the bond are liable for sales which are unlawful under code § 2418, although the seller, purporting to act under the provisions of the mulct law, has failed to file the requisite consent of adjoining property owners. Breeding v. Jordan, 115–566, 88 N. W. 1090.

Where the bondsman bought in at tax sale the property of his principal, the sale being at his instigation and for taxes for which he was liable, held that he could not recover the amount paid from the county upon the setting aside of the sale as invalid. Guedert v. Emmet County, 116–40, 89 N. W. 85.

Where a bond was given in supposed compliance with the mulct law, but it appeared that at the time the provisions of the mulct law were not in force in the city where the business was carried on, held that no liability under such bond for illegal sales to minors and intoxicated persons, under the provisions of code § 2403, could be enforced against the surety on such bond. Gorman v. Williams, 117–560, 91 N. W. 819.

The surety on the bond who pays the amount of the tax is not subrogated to any lien of the county against the property for the payment of such tax. Knoll v. Marshall County, 114–647, 87 N. W. 657.

While the surety on the bond may recover from the principal the amount which he is required to pay, he is not subrogated to the remedy of the county against the principal and the county may proceed at its election to enforce the bond or punish the principal for illegal selling. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126–539, 102 N. W. 446.

A bond given to enable a dealer to do business under the mulct law is effectual as a common law obligation although it does not strictly conform to the statutory requirement. Ibid.

The county may elect to collect the mulct tax by action on the bond or to prosecute the principal for illegal sales made by him after failure to pay the tax, and the tax is due and payable whether the principal complies with the law or not. By resorting to one remedy the county does not necessarily waive the other. Ibid.

It is not necessary in the bond to describe the premises on which the business is to be conducted. Ibid.

Interest may be recovered in an action on the bond on account of the delinquency of the principal in paying the tax. Ibid.

The surety on the bond of a liquor seller, in general selling in accordance with the provisions of the mulct law, but in a particular instance to a drunkard, held liable under a judgment rendered against his principal in a civil action to recover damages in favor of one who was injured by such sale. Knott v. Peterson, 125–404, 101 N. W. 173.

Recovery on a bond given by one who sells liquor under the mulct law must be confined to sales made on the premises described in the bond. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121–139, 96 N. W. 739.

The provisions of code supp. §§ 1177-a–1177-d relating to cancellation of bonds on notice by sureties have no application to bonds given under the provisions of the mulct law. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Jenness, 138–725, 116 N. W. 709.

A joint action may be maintained on the bonds of separate sellers who have contributed to the intoxication of a person to the injury of one entitled to recovery therefor, under the provisions of code § 2418. Kaus v. American Surety Co., (D. C.) 199 Fed. 972.

Par. 4. Place of sale: The keeping of a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, as authorized by the mulct law, does not warrant the peddling of such liquors in other parts of the city, either at wholesale or at retail. Cameron v. Fellows, 109–534, 80 N. W. 567.

One room—single entrance: Compliance with the mulct law will not authorize the maintenance of a cold storage warehouse wherein intoxicating liquors are kept for sale and the filling of orders from such warehouse by delivery to purchasers at different places about the city. Carter v. Miller Brewing Co., 111–457, 82 N. W. 930.

The statutory provision as to one entrance is violated where, in addition to the front door, the room has a door leading into another room or shed where liquor is stored. State v. Bussamus, 108–11, 78 N. W. 700.

Where there was a door connecting the place where liquor was sold with a cellar which was used as a storeroom for such liquor, which cellar had an outside entrance, the room in which the sales were made having also an outside entrance, held that the use of the room and the cellar together constituted a violation of the provisions of this section. Powers v. Klatt, 111–357, 82 N. W. 752.

It is a violation of the law to have a smaller room partitioned from the main room to be used for a storeroom, or to so use a cellar connected with the main room having also an entrance from the street. Garrett v. Bishop, 113–23, 84 N. W. 923.

The maintenance of a cold storage warehouse separate and removed from the saloon in which the business of selling liquor under the mulct law is prosecuted by the defendant is a violation of the requirement that the business shall be carried on in a single room having but one entrance or exit. Bell v. Hamm, 127–343, 101 N. W. 475.

It is a violation of the law to carry on the business in two rooms, one a bar room proper, the other a basement room underneath in which liquors are kept, the two being connected by a flight of stairs, with egress from the basement room to other rooms in the building and through them into a side street. Jones v. Byington, 128–397, 104 N. W. 473.

It is not a violation of the provision requiring the business to be carried on in a single room having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a public street, that there is within the room used as a place for selling liquor an ice box or cooling room, in which beer and other liquor intended for sale are kept, if such cooling room is not a room which could be resorted to for the purpose of concealment while buying or drinking intoxicating liquor. State v. Donahue, 120–154, 94 N. W. 503.

There is no exception in the statute to the requirement that the room in which the liquors are sold shall have but one entrance or exit, and an additional doorway may not be maintained, even for the convenience of the proprietor or his employes. State v. Gifford, 111–648, 82 N. W. 1034.

One who conducts the business of selling intoxicating liquors under the mulct law in a place having a back door which may be used for purposes of entrance and exit, aside from the principal entrance, should be enjoined. State v. Roney, 133–416, 110 N. W. 604.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that a place from which the sale of intoxicating liquors was made was not a single room having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a business street. Bartel v. Hobson, 107–644, 78 N. W. 689.

A liquor dealer having paid but one tax under the mulct law has no right to keep for sale, and sell, intoxicating liquors from two wholly separate and independent rooms in the same building. Thomas v. Arie, 122–538, 98 N. W. 380.

Where the saloon keeper uses one room in which to sell liquor and another in which to store it for the purpose of sale, he violates the provision as to transacting his business in a single room with only one exit or entrance. Sawyer v. Oliver, 144–382, 122 N. W. 950.

As to conducting the business exclusively in one room, there is no distinction between wholesale and retail dealers. Manderscheid Sons Co. v. Oliver, 146–168, 124 N. W. 897.

It is unlawful to conduct a mulct saloon in two rooms although one of them is used exclusively for the purpose of storage of the stock while sales are made exclusively from the other room. Johannsen v. Hutchinson, 151–608, 132 N. W. 20.

But the fact that while removing the place of business from one room to another, sales are made in the latter while barrels of liquor are still in the former, practically in transit, does not constitute a violation of the law. Ibid.

A trap door to the cellar which is usually kept nailed down does not constitute a violation of the statute. Ibid.

It is the existence of an entrance or exit other than that allowed by statute which is condemned and not its use for any particular purpose. Reusch v. Loserth, 139 N. W. 454.

It is not in violation of the statute to maintain a so-called refrigerator room inside the walls of the room in which liquor is sold in which beer may be properly and conveniently kept. A hole through the outside wall into such refrigerator room for putting ice into it is not a separate entrance. Tuttle v. Carraher, 139 N. W. 453.

The entrance and exit must be upon a public business street. The fact that it is upon a public street is not sufficient if the street is not devoted to business. The placing of the saloon on a residence street does not make it a business street. Sowles v. Martens, 142 N. W. 442.

Bar in plain view: The location of a saloon in the basement of a building with the bar so situated that it is not in the plain view of pedestrians using the street or sidewalk in the ordinary manner is not in compliance with the statute. McColl v. Rally, 127–633, 103 N. W. 972.

A basement saloon so constructed that the only entrance is through a long hall after descending from the street does not have an opening upon a public street in the sense required by the statute. Ibid.

Where there were curtains in the window and a sign painted thereon, and flower jars, none of which obstructed the full view of the interior of the premises from the sidewalk in front, held that there was no violation of the mulct law as to the condition of the premises. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130–488, 107 N. W. 168.

On the question whether the bar is in plain view from the public street the finding of the trial judge, who has an opportunity to see and hear the witnesses, will be given weight on appeal. Sowles v. Martens, 142 N. W. 442.

Chairs: Evidence that a chair is kept in the room for the use of customers is sufficient to show a violation of the statute. Reusch v. Loserth, 139 N. W. 454.

List of employes: It is impossible to file a list of names of employes when there are no employes. The saloon keeper is not in such case required to file a statement showing that he has no employes. Jones v. Mould, 138–683, 116 N. W. 733.

The requirement as to filing a list of employes relates not only to regular barkeepers but to any persons employed about the place for any purpose. Pumphrey v. Anderson, 141–201, 119 N. W. 617.

The act of the keeper of a mulct saloon in having about the place employes whose names were not listed as provided by the statute constitutes a violation of an injunction restraining such saloon keeper from unlawfully conducting his business. Ibid.

Where the business is conducted by a corporation the officers of the corporation actively carrying on the business of selling must be listed as employes. Manderscheid Sons Co. v. Oliver, 146–168, 124 N. W. 897.

One who is employed in one particular instance only in transporting liquor to a mulct saloon for lawful sale is not such an employe as is by the statute required to be listed with the county auditor. Johannsen v. Hutchinson, 151–608, 132 N. W. 20.

It is not necessary to list as employes the names of persons who as common carriers pursuing an independent employment, having no connection with the business, haul beer to the saloon and place it in the refrigerator room. Tuttle v. Carraher, 139 N. W. 453.

Par. 9. Opening and closing: The act of keeping a saloon open on election day is punishable by reason of this provision, and the city council cannot provide for the punishment of the same act, either under code § 2455 or under the general powers given by code § 680. Iowa City v. McInnerny, 114–586, 87 N. W. 498.

The provision that sale shall not be made on legal holidays forbids the sale on the fourth of July or on any other of the days specified in code § 3053 as holidays with relation to the protesting and dishonor of negotiable instruments. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

Keeping the place open for any length of time after ten o'clock and for any purpose, even though it be the cleaning of the place or the counting of the money after door is closed and customers are excluded, will constitute a violation of the law. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130–488, 107 N. W. 168.

The bar of the statute is removed by the illegal sale of liquor on election day and the violator becomes liable to the penalty of the intoxicating liquor law for sales subsequently made. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

The day of a school election is an election day within the prohibition of the statute as to the sale of liquor under the mulct law. Ibid.

Par. 10. Minors, etc.: It is a violation of the provision that no minor shall be allowed in the room if the proprietor allows his own minor son to be in the room and behind the bar. Jones v. Byington, 128–397, 104 N. W. 473.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the employment in a saloon as porter of a person who sometimes became intoxicated was not a violation of the statute, it not appearing that he was allowed in the saloon when in an intoxicated condition. Tuttle v. Carraher, 139 N. W. 453.

A sale to a minor is such violation of the statute as to remove all the protection afforded by the mulct law, although the seller is ignorant of the fact of the infancy of the buyer. Sowles v. Martens, 142 N. W. 442.

Par. 12. Payment of tax: The county treasurer is without authority to assess a mulct tax save at the request of the party carrying on the business as directed by the provisions of this section as amended. In re Appeal of Des Moines Union R. Co., 137–730, 115 N. W. 740.

SEC. 2449. Cities under five thousand and towns.

Where the petition of consent was presented after the taking effect of the code, held that it was immaterial that some of the signatures to the petition had been affixed thereto before the code took effect. Cameron v. Fellows, 109–534, 80 N. W. 567.

In determining whether the percentage of signers is sufficient the statement of consent is to be compared with the poll books of the general election preceding the time when the petition is filed. Ibid.

But one general petition of consent for the county may be canvassed by the board of supervisors, and in acting on that petition the board may determine with reference to particular towns whether the number of signers to the general petition who reside in that town and in the township in which it is located, constitutes the required proportion of voters in such town and township. But the board has no authority to canvass a subsequent petition with reference to a particular town not found on the canvass of the general petition to be one in which sales of liquor may be made. Meyer v. Hobson, 116–349, 90 N. W. 85.

To authorize the sale of liquors in a town there should be a finding by the board of supervisors in connection with their canvass of the statement of consent, that there is the requisite number of signers in such town, and in making such determination the board may hear evidence. Therefore in an action in which the right to sell liquors in such town is involved the finding of the board of supervisors on the sufficiency of the number of signers in the town is the only evidence which may be considered. If there is no finding as to the town by the board, then there is no right to sell. Hill v. Gleisner, 112–397, 84 N. W. 511.

The board of supervisors canvassing a statement of consent for the sale of intoxicating liquors in the county and making no specific finding that the majority of voters in a certain town in the county had signed the petition cannot long after correct its records so as to make the finding sufficient to legalize the selling of liquor in such town. Brickley v. Westphal, 134–266, 111 N. W. 829.

The numerical basis upon which the percentage computation must be made under this section is the full number of legal voters who vote at the last preceding general election as shown by the poll lists regardless of deaths or removals, and the qualification with reference to residence within the county and outside of the corporate limits of cities, etc., is applicable to the eligibility of the proposed signers Gjerset v. Drexel, 155–559, 136 N. W. 538.

In cities and towns of less than five thousand, the petition of consent must contain the signatures of sixty-five per cent. of the voters of the county and outside of the corporate limits of cities having a population of five thousand or over, also a majority of the voters of the city or town and a majority of the voters of the township, except as otherwise provided. But it is provided in the preceding section that as to cities over twenty-five hundred and less than five thousand in population, the petition signed by eighty per cent. of such voters is sufficient. Theobald v. Flinn, 139 N. W. 449.

This statute does not, by implication even, permit the business to be carried on outside of cities and towns. Beck v. Woodruff, 148–193, 126 N. W. 1107.

SEC. 2450. Sufficiency of statement—finding—appeal. All statements of general consent, filed with the county auditor as provided in the two preceding sections, shall be publicly canvassed by the board of supervisors, at a regular meeting, at least ten clear days' notice of such intended canvass having been previously published by the county auditor in the official newspapers of the county, and its finding as to the result in the city having over five thousand inhabitants, or the county, as the case may be, and the various towns and townships therein, shall be entered of record. And such finding shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated until revoked as herein provided. If the board shall find the statement sufficient, any citizen of the county may, within thirty days thereafter, upon filing a sufficient bond for the costs, file with the clerk of the district court a general denial as to the statement of general consent, or any part thereof, whereupon the county attorney shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the person or persons filing said statement of consent with the county auditor, and said party shall within ten days file with said clerk a bond conditioned to pay the costs of the hearing in the district court, in a sum to be fixed by the clerk of said court. If such bond be filed, then the auditor shall certify the statement of consent and all papers and records to the district court, where the matter shall be tried de novo, the county attorney appearing for the state, but if no bond be filed, then the order of the board of supervisors finding the statement of general consent sufficient shall be considered and treated as set aside and null and void. The costs in all cases of appeal shall be taxed against the losing party. Should the board of supervisors find the statement of general consent insufficient, any party aggrieved may appeal therefrom to the district court by filing, within thirty days thereafter, with the clerk of said court a sufficient bond for the costs. Upon the filing and approval of said bond, the auditor shall certify the statement of consent and all papers and records to the district court, where the matter shall be tried de novo. All costs shall be taxed against the appellant, whether the finding of the board is sustained or reversed, and in such actions the county attorney shall appear and defend the finding of the board. Only one statement of general consent from any county, city or town, or city or town acting under special charter, therein entitled to file the same, shall be canvassed by the board of supervisors in any one year. When said petition of general consent is found sufficient by the board of supervisors or the city council, as the case may be, it shall, unless revoked under section twenty-four hundred fifty-one of the code, be in force and effect for the period of five years only; and all petitions and statements of general consent in force and effect previous to the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six shall, unless revoked under section twenty-four hundred fifty-one of the code, be and become null and void on and after five years from July first, nineteen hundred and six. [31 G. A., ch. 101.]

Where the record of the findings of the board as to the number of signers shows the number of voters and the number of signers in each of the election precincts, it is sufficient, although the aggregate for each township is not footed up. Cameron v. Fellows, 109–534, 80 N. W. 567.

The statute requires the county attorney to appear against the statement in all proceedings before the district court upon appeal. Green v. Smith, 111–183, 82 N. W. 448.

The proceeding here contemplated is a special proceeding, and there is no right to a trial by jury in the district court. Ibid.

No right vests until the statement of consent has been adjudged sufficient, and one who has signed the general statement may, before action is taken thereon, withdraw his consent and by proper written notice and request to the board annul his former act in affixing his signature. Ibid.

The sufficiency of the statement of consent may be passed upon by the board of supervisors at an adjourned meeting provided for at a regular meeting of the board. Butterfield v. Treichler, 113–328, 85 N. W. 19.

Notice of the hearing should be given ten clear days before the hearing and it is not necessary that notice be given ten days before the first day of the regular session of the board. Ibid.

The poll lists do not show in what towns the voters resided, and therefore in determining the result of the statement of consent with reference to the number of voters signing, resident in the various towns and townships in the county, the board of supervisors and the court on appeal can receive testimonv. Porter v. Butterfield, 116–725, 89 N. W. 199.

The appeal is to be tried by the court without a jury, and it is error to submit the questions of fact to the jury in such a case. Ibid.

The costs on appeal are to be taxed against the losing party. Ibid.

The "general denial as to the statement of general consent" contemplated by the statute as the basis of an appeal from the action of the board in approving the statement of consent is not a technical pleading, but a general exception or objection. Stokesbury v. Korte, 129–434, 105 N. W. 702.

Service of notice by the county attorney of such general denial upon the person or persons filing the statement of consent is not jurisdictional. Ibid.

Such notice may be served upon the person who files the statement with the auditor, although in doing so he acts as attorney or agent for others. Ibid.

The appeal is not made dependent upon the action or consent of the county attorney, and the objecting citizen or citizens may be represented on the appeal by other counsel than the county attorney, who is required to appear only as the representative of the public. Ibid.

A pleading by the objector in the district court describing himself as a citizen of the county is a sufficient allegation that he is such citizen. Ibid.

Where legal proceedings to test the validity of the action of the board of supervisors in approving a statement of consent have been commenced within the period during which the poll books are directed to be preserved, they may be subsequently properly introduced in evidence, although the time for their destruction in the ordinary course has passed. Reed v. Jugenheimer, 118–610, 92 N. W. 859.

Such a proceeding is to be tried before the district court de novo, and the burden is upon the petitioners to show that the statement of consent is sufficient. Ibid.

The statement of consent is a public record and the fact that it is temporarily out of the keeping of its legal custodian will not, in the absence of proof of alteration, prevent its admission in evidence on the trial of an appeal from the action of the board of supervisors. Wilson v. Bohstedt, 135–451, 110 N. W. 898.

In a proceeding for review, notice to the person or persons filing the statement of consent is all that is required. No notice to persons who have acted or may intend to act in reliance on such petition of consent is provided for. Fitzgibbon v. Macy, 118–440, 92 N. W. 78.

Nor is it contemplated that notice be given to all the persons signing the statement of consent, but only to those presenting it to the auditor and causing it to be filed. Ibid.

It is not required that such notice be filed with the county auditor, but it should, with proper proof of service, be filed with the clerk of the district court. Ibid.

The provision requiring the persons filing a general statement of consent to give bond within ten days after service of notice of review by the district court, is mandatory, and on failure to file such bond within the time specified, the order of the board of supervisors finding the statement of general consent sufficient is to be treated as null and void. Ibid.

The provision of code § 2450 that only one statement of general consent shall be canvassed by the board of supervisors in any one year does not relate to the filing of more than one petition, but to the final consideration thereof by the board, and if the first statement filed is insufficient, and before the board has finally acted upon it by making the canvass necessary to determine its sufficiency, another statement, which is sufficient, is filed and properly brought up for consideration, the board may approve it. In re Canvass of Statement of Consent, etc., 120–680, 95 N. W. 194.

The trial provided for in court as to the sufficiency of the statement of consent canvassed by the board of supervisors is by special proceedings, without a jury, but not in equity, and the applicants are not entitled to a continuance in order to take testimony by deposition. Dye v. Augur, 138–538, 110 N. W. 323.

The general denial which must be filed by those opposing the statement of general consent within thirty days may be amended after that time so as to show the persons contesting to be citizens of the county. Ibid.

Where a general allegation of citizenship is made in the denial and not controverted except by a general denial thereof, no issue is raised requiring the introduction of proof. Ibid.

The board obtains jurisdiction to canvass the statement only by notice given to the public of a hearing at which any citizen may appear and contest the sufficiency of the consent. Therefore the board of supervisors has no authority at a subsequent meeting to nullify the effect of the record which has already been made on such a hearing. Brickley v. Westphal, 134–266, 111 N. W. 829.

Any fact or action relied upon as estopping or barring the appeal should be taken advantage of either by plea in bar or abatement. Moon v. Hartsuck, 137–236, 114 N. W. 1043.

Other names cannot be added to the statement after it has been filed with the auditor and notice for hearing, although withdrawals may be allowed after that time. Scott v. Naacke, 144–164, 122 N. W. 824.

The provision that only one statement of general consent shall be canvassed "in any one year" relates to a calendar year and not to a period of twelve months. Sawyer v. Steinman, 148–610, 126 N. W. 1123.

There is no provision of the statute which in terms requires a statement of facts as to the findings of the canvass board in regard to each town and township to be made of record. The finding of the board should be sufficiently definite so that it can be ascertained therefrom whether a saloon may be lawfully operated in the city or town in question. Ibid.

The bond required by any citizen filing a general denial as to the statement of consent should contain a penalty before its sufficiency is to be determined by the clerk of the district court who should approve it. Lemon v. Drexel, 152–144, 132 N. W. 184.

Withdrawals may be made after the auditor makes a preliminary canvass and causes notices to be published. Ibid.

The intent of this section is to confer judicial or quasi judicial powers upon the board of supervisors in determining the sufficiency of the statement of consent, and the action of the board in finding the statement sufficient is not suspended by an appeal. Hammond v. Waldron, 153–434, 133 N. W. 661.

Until the amendment of this section by 31 G. A., ch. 101, a sufficient petition of consent continued in force indefinitely until revoked by a proceeding in the nature of a counter petition. Conly v. Dilley, 153–677, 133 N. W. 730.

The consents given to individuals by city councils must cease and become of no effect with the termination of the general consent upon which they are dependent for their validity. Ibid.

While withdrawals of the signers of the petition of consent may be considered by the board before the petition has been acted upon, the effect of such withdrawals cannot be defeated by a further withdrawal of withdrawal of signatures,—that is, by requesting the board not to consider the withdrawal of the signers' names already presented to the board. A signature to the petition thus once withdrawn cannot be reinstated by such request. In re Consent to Sell Intoxicating Liquors, De Board v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

A citizen and taxpayer of the county appearing in the district court on appeal to sustain the action of the board of supervisors in holding the statement of consent presented to them to have been insufficient, may appeal to the supreme court from the action of the district court reversing the action of the board of supervisors. Ibid.

Publication of notice of the intended canvass in all the newspapers of the county, though none of them have been regularly designated for that year as an official newspaper, held sufficient. Ibid.

The spirit and real intent of this statutory provision is to permit a citizen to defend the action of the board in an appeal taken from the action of the board in holding the petition for consent to be insufficient. Anderson v. Board of Supervisors, 156–153, 135 N. W. 570.

Withdrawals filed after the canvass of the statement has been commenced are not effective to change the number of original withdrawals. Ibid.

Where the notice was published in the newspapers selected for a previous year as the official newspapers of the county and still recognized as such, held that it was sufficient. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

One who attempts to comply with the mulct law is justified in relying upon the finding of the board of supervisors that the statement of consent is sufficient after it has been entered of record; and such a finding is effectual for the purpose of avoiding the penalty of the prohibitory law until revoked on appeal or otherwise. State v. Harrison, 140 N. W. 223.

SEC. 2451. Forfeiture or revocation. Whenever any of the conditions of the third preceding section shall be violated, or whenever the council of the city or town or city acting under special charter shall by a majority vote direct it, or whenever there shall be filed with the county auditor a verified petition, signed by a majority of the voters of the said city, town, or city acting under special charter, or county, as the case may be, as shown by the last general election, requesting it, then the bar to proceedings as provided in the second and third preceding sections shall cease to operate, and the persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be liable to all of the penalties provided in this chapter. [28 G. A., ch. 78, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 62, § 19.]

This section does not provide for any action by the board of supervisors with reference to a petition to remove the bar to the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law which has been declared by the board in determining the sufficiency of the general petition of consent in the county. Meyer v. Hobson, 116–349, 90 N. W. 85.

The board of supervisors is neither permitted nor required to pass upon the sufficiency of the petition for revocation. The filing thereof ipso facto removes the bar. McConkie v. Remley, 119–512, 93 N. W. 505.

There is no provision for the revocation of the consent of an adjoining property owner. No revocation of consent will be effectual during the annual period for which consent has been given but it may be effectual as to the succeeding annual period. Kane v. Grady, 123–260, 98 N. W. 771.

The sureties on the bond may be liable for unlawful sales, although the seller, purporting to act under the mulct law, has not filed the required consent of the adjoining property owners. Breeding v. Jordan, 115–566, 88 N. W. 1090.

There is no provision for revocation in a town on petition of the electors of the township in which the town is situated after the bar of the statute has once been established. A petition by a majority of the electors in the town who voted at the last general election is sufficient. Tuttle v. Poechert, 143–446, 121 N. W. 1057.

A petition for revocation can be signed only by electors actually voting at the last general election. Mills v. Hallgren, 146–215, 124 N. W. 1077.

One who has violated the provisions of the mulct law and been enjoined therefor cannot reëngage in the business without new compliance with all the conditions of code § 2448 required to be performed as precedent to carrying on the business under that section; but a new general statement of consent is not essential. Rink v. Bollinger, 145–501, 123 N. W. 183.

SEC. 2452. False signatures—time of signing.

The provision of this section that every general statement of consent shall be accompanied by the affidavit of some reputable person, showing that said person personally witnessed the signing of each name appearing thereon, and making any false statement contained in said affidavit punishable as perjury, does not impose upon the board the duty of determining the sufficiency and truthfulness of such affidavits where it is admitted that the statement of consent is signed by the genuine signatures of a sufficient number of persons qualified to sign it. In re Canvass of Statement of Consent, etc., 120–680, 95 N. W. 194.

The requirement that the signatures to the general statement shall show the voting precinct of the signers is not applicable to a written withdrawal of signatures by those who have already signed. Dye v. Augur, 138–538, 110 N. W. 323.

As no name may be counted that was not signed within thirty days prior to the filing of the statement of general consent, one who has, after filing, withdrawn his name cannot reinstate it by withdrawing such withdrawal, for the effect would be to sign his name to the statement after its filing. In re Consent to Sell Intoxicating Liquors, De Board v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

The term "reputable" used in this section to designate the person who may make an affidavit to signatures means one of good repute in the community. Therefore, a false statement in the affidavit alone is not sufficient to show that the maker of such affidavit is not a reputable person. Ibid.

One who six years before making such affidavit had been convicted of gambling, but during three years preceding the making of the affidavit had engaged in a lawful occupation, held to have been properly found by the lower court to be a reputable person in the absence of any other evidence on the subject. Ibid.

The fact that one who procured, witnessed and verified the signatures to a petition of consent had been enjoined from the illegal sale of liquors nine years before the time when he attested the petition, held not alone sufficient to disqualify him as such subscribing witness. Taft v. Snouffer, 157– —, 137 N. W. 922.

Canvassers for signatures who have altered the names of signers to the petition in order to make them correspond with the names of such signers as found in the poll books are not "reputable persons" within the meaning of the provision of this section as to the verification of the signatures of signers. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

Where there is a contest as to the jurisdictional facts entitling the board to consider signatures to the petition of consent, the burden rests on proponents to establish such facts by at least a prima-facie showing. Ibid.

Where the particular signatures improperly affixed or altered cannot be pointed out, the entire petition is vitiated. Ibid.

SEC. 2453. Inspection of papers.

It appears from this section that the poll books referred to in code § 2448 are those filed with the county auditor and not those filed with the township, city or town clerk. In re Consent to Sell Intoxicating Liquors, De Board v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

A poll book not duly certified and filed with the auditor and opened to inspection during the time allowed for the signing of a petition of consent cannot be considered in determining the validity of signatures to such petition. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

If the petition is insufficient when filed and offered for canvass, defects therein cannot be cured by any device short of a new petition in the making and presentation of which the requirements of the statute have been observed. Ibid.

SEC. 2455. Additional taxes and regulations.

The bond required by code § 2448, par. 3, does not cover payments required to be made by the city ordinance. Ottumwa v. Hodge, 112–430, 84 N. W. 533.

A city has no authority to provide by ordinance for the punishment of the act of keeping a saloon open on election day, as prohibited in code § 2448. Such provision would be inconsistent with the criminal laws of the state. Iowa City v. McInnerny, 114–586, 87 N. W. 498.

The mulct tax required to be paid by one selling intoxicating liquors under the mulct law is a tax. Ahlers v. Estherville, 130–272, 104 N. W. 453.

A failure to pay the tax imposed by the city under this section works a forfeiture of the resolution of consent of the city council and all sales thereafter made are invalid. Cheadle v. Roberts, 150–639, 130 N. W. 368.

Failure to pay the tax provided for in this section removes the bar of the mulct statute. Silvers v. Vermilion, 151–163, 130 N. W. 913.

PERMISSION TO MANUFACTURE.

SEC. 2460. Drinking or retailing on premises.

Where the premises occupied by a brewery constitute one entire property, permitting retail sales within any portion of such property is unlawful and the owner forfeits his right to carry on his wholesale business and to recover payment for sales made in such business. Orke v. McManus, 142–654, 121 N. W. 177.

As the provisions of this section relate to corporations as well as to individuals, it is apparent that corporations are authorized to engage in the business of the sale of intoxicating liquors under the mulct law. (But now see 33 G. A., ch. 143, supp. §§ 2383-a–2383-e.) State v. Delahoyde, 147–327, 126 N. W. 330.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

SEC. 2461-a. "Bootlegger" defined. Any person who shall, by himself, or his employe, servant or agent, for himself or any person, company or corporation, keep or carry around on his person, or in a vehicle, or leave in a place for another to secure, any intoxicating liquor as herein defined, with intent to sell or dispose of the same by gift or otherwise, in violation of law, shall be termed a bootlegger. [30 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

One who is operating a restaurant and lunch counter where a beverage is sold as not being intoxicating, should not be enjoined under this statute, although it appears that the beverage sold is within the statutory description of intoxicating liquor. Barr v. Neel, 151–458, 131 N. W. 650.

SEC. 2461-b. Penalty. Every such bootlegger may be restrained by injunction from doing or continuing to do any of the acts prohibited by law, and all the proceedings for injunctions, temporary and permanent, and for fines and costs for violation of same, as defined by law, shall be applicable to such person, company or corporation, and the fact that an offender has no known or permanent place of business or base of supplies, or quits the business after the commencement of an action shall not prevent a temporary or permanent injunction, as the case may be, from issuing. [30 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2461-c. Annual mulct tax—quarterly installments. Every person, partnership or corporation that shall engage in the business of holding intoxicating liquors in store and collecting for the owner thereof the purchase price of said liquors from those to whom they have been conditionally sold or from those not authorized by law to sell the same, shall pay to the treasurer of the county where the business is carried on an annual mulct tax of six hundred dollars in quarterly installments on the first day of January, of April, of July, and of October; and such tax shall be paid for each separate office or place where such business is carried on, and all the provisions of the law relating to the levying, collecting and enforcing of what is known as the mulct tax shall apply and govern in the levying and collecting of the tax herein provided for so far as applicable. [32 G. A., ch. 123, § 1.]

SEC. 2461-d. First quarter payable in advance. No person, partnership or corporation shall engage in the business described in section one of this act without first paying the tax herein required for the quarter during which such business is carried on; and when the tax is so paid it shall go into the general fund of the county collecting the same. [32 G. A., ch. 123, § 2.]

SEC. 2461-e. Sale near military reservations—penalty. No person shall open, maintain or conduct any shop or other place for the sale of wine, beer or any other intoxicating liquors, or sell the same at any place within a distance of one mile from any permanent military post or reservation established by the United States within the state of Iowa; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars for each offense, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not to exceed thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [32 G. A., ch. 124.]

SEC. 2461-f. Drinking on passenger cars—profane language—penalty. Any person who shall drink intoxicating liquors as a beverage on any passenger railway car or street car in service or who shall use profane or indecent language on such railway or street car shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [33 G. A., ch. 141, § 1.]

The commission of a misdemeanor by a passenger will not justify or excuse the carrier for the act of its employe in assaulting or mistreating him. Heggen v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 150–313, 130 N. W. 148.

SEC. 2461-g. Powers of conductor. Any conductor of a railway train or street car carrying passengers shall have the right to refuse to permit any person, not in the custody of an officer, to enter any passenger car on his train or street car in his charge who shall be in a state of intoxication; and shall have the further right to eject from his train at any station or from his street car at any regular stop any person found in a state of intoxication or drinking intoxicating liquors as a beverage, or using profane or indecent language on any passenger car of his train or any street car under his charge and for that purpose may call to his aid any employe of the railway or street car company. [33 G. A., ch. 141, § 2.]

The statute does not impose any duty upon the conductor of a railroad train as to passengers who are in a state of intoxication or otherwise violating its provisions and it does not, therefore, relieve the railroad company of liability on account of the misconduct of a conductor in attempting to exercise his authority with reference to such passenger. Heggen v. Ft. Dodge, D. M. & S. R. Co., 150–313, 130 N. W. 148.

The authority conferred upon the conductor of a railway train by this section will not justify the use of excessive force nor afford any protection against the willful or wanton action of a conductor in ejecting an intoxicated person who is in such condition as to be placed in peril of physical injury by such ejection. Adams v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 156–31, 135 N. W. 21.

LIMITING NUMBER OF SALOONS IN CITIES AND TOWNS.

SEC. 2461-h. According to last preceding census. From and after the passage of this act, no city or town council shall, by resolution, grant consent to sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage at retail to a greater number of persons than one to every one thousand of the population of said city or town as shown by the last preceding state or national census; provided, however, that in towns where the law has been otherwise complied with, the town council of any incorporated town of one thousand population or less, may by resolution grant consent to one person to sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage in such town. [33 G. A., ch. 142, § 1.]

The statute of which this and the following sections are a part is not unconstitutional on account of the method of its adoption. Conly v. Dilley, 153–677, 133 N. W. 730.

A consent by the city council to sell intoxicating liquors after the date of the passage of this act and in excess of the number of consents permitted by it, held to be invalid although such consent was granted before the date of the taking effect of the statute. Sawyer v. Gallagher, 151–64, 130 N. W. 173.

SEC. 2461-i. Existing consent resolutions—applicable to certain cities—reduction of number. In all cities and towns where a greater number of persons than are provided in section one hereof, now hold resolutions of consent to sell intoxicating liquors at retail, it shall not be mandatory under the provisions of this act for city or town councils to cancel or withdraw a sufficient number of such resolutions of consent to comply with the provisions of section one hereof, and such resolutions of consent may be renewed by city or town councils to the person or persons holding the same or their assignees or grantees, unless said resolutions of consent shall become inoperative by reason of the person holding the same violating any of the laws of the state, either civil or criminal, relating to the sale or disposition of intoxicating liquors, or by reason of a permanent injunction issuing against such person for a violation of law, or by reason of a civil or criminal action being commenced or instituted against said person for the violation of any of the laws of the state relating to the sale or disposition of intoxicating liquors, and said persons surrendering such resolution of consent before said action is prosecuted to final judgment or a conviction had in the court in which the same was instituted or by reason of the city or town council withdrawing such resolution of consent for cause, in which event, no new or additional resolution shall be granted to any person to sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage at retail except in accordance with the provisions of this act.

This act shall also apply to cities acting under special charter and in such cities in which a greater number of persons than are authorized under section one of chapter one hundred forty-two, acts of the thirty-third general assembly,[1] to keep and sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage under the mulct law now hold resolutions of consent to sell intoxicating liquors at retail, it shall be mandatory under the provisions of this act for the city councils of such cities to cancel or withdraw on July first, nineteen hundred thirteen, one third of the excess of such resolutions of consent over those authorized under section one of said chapter, and on July first, nineteen hundred fourteen, one half of such remaining excess of such resolutions of consent, and on July first, nineteen hundred fifteen, all of the excess of such resolutions of consent shall be canceled or withdrawn; provided, however, that from and after the passage of this act all resolutions of consent granted by the council of any city acting under special charter in excess of the number existing in such city at the time of the passage of this act shall be void and of no force and effect. [35 G. A., ch. 195, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 142, § 2.]

[1§ 2461-h herein. EDITOR.]

The amendment of this statute by 35 G. A., ch. 195, so as to make it applicable to special charter cities, cannot be considered as a legislative construction of the original statute in determining whether, without such amendment, it was applicable to such cities. Babbitt v. Alger, 141 N. W. 915.

The grant of authority to maintain an excess of saloons over and above the general statutory limit expires with the expiration of the petitions of general consent outstanding and in force at the date of the enactment of this statute. If the council disregards such limitation and grants consents in excess thereof, such consents afford no protection to persons doing business under color of the authority so given. Conly v. Dilley, 153–677, 133 N. W. 730.

SEC. 2461-j. Conviction or injunction bar to holding permit—time limitation. No person who shall be hereafter convicted of violating the laws of this state relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors, or shall be permanently enjoined by any court of this state for such violation, shall be permitted to sell intoxicating liquors in this state within five years from the date of such conviction or injunction, and no resolution of consent or permit shall be granted such person within said period. [33 G. A., ch. 142, § 3.]

An injunction granted against a defendant prohibiting him from the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors will not prevent his becoming entitled after five years as here prescribed to again engage in the sale of liquors under the mulct law upon compliance with the provisions of that law. Denmead v. Parker, 145–581, 124 N. W. 780.

A finding that one previously enjoined is guilty of a violation of such injunction does not constitute a conviction of violating the laws of the state relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors within the meaning of this section. Judge v. Powers, 156–251, 136 N. W. 315.

SEC. 2461-k. Resolutions granted in violation are invalid. No resolution of consent granted by any city or town council in violation of the provisions of this act, shall be valid or of any force or effect, or operate as a bar against any of the penalties provided in chapter six, title twelve of the code, the supplement to the code, 1907, and amendments thereto and supplementary thereof, but nothing in this act shall operate to extend any consent now or hereafter granted beyond the time at which such consent shall expire, as by law provided. [33 G. A., ch. 142, § 4.]

SEC. 2461-l. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts, in so far as they are in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 142, § 5.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF FIRE COMPANIES.

SECTION 2467. Removal of fire apparatus. No person shall remove any engine or other apparatus for the extinguishment of fire from the house or other place where it is kept or deposited, except in time of fire or alarm thereof, unless authorized so to do by the president, director or foreman of the company to whom the same shall belong. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 125, § 1; C. '73, § 1565; R. § 1767.]

SEC. 2468. False alarms. No person or persons shall cause or give a false alarm of fire, by setting fire to any combustible material, or by crying or sounding an alarm, or by any other means, without cause. Any person violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 125, § 2; C. '73, § 1566; R. § 1768.]

CHAPTER 7-A.

OF THE STATE FIRE MARSHAL.

SECTION 2468-a. Office created — appointment — term — removal. There is hereby created the office of state fire marshal and upon the taking effect of this act the governor shall appoint a citizen of the state versed in the causes of fires and having a knowledge of improved methods of preventing fires, to fill the position hereby created. The term of office of the state fire marshal shall be four years and the term of the first incumbent of the office shall end July first, nineteen hundred fifteen. During the thirty-sixth session of the general assembly and quadrennially thereafter the governor with the consent of the senate shall appoint a citizen of the state possessing the above requirements as state fire marshal, and the person so appointed shall assume the duties of his office July first following the date of his appointment. The state fire marshal may be removed for cause at any time by the governor and vacancies arising shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall be for the unexpired term. The state fire marshal shall maintain an office at the seat of government and for that purpose the executive council shall provide him with suitably furnished rooms, furniture, books, supplies, printing and stationery necessary to the proper conduct of his office. Before entering upon the discharge of his duties he shall give a bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars conditioned as provided in section eleven hundred eighty-three of the code. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 1.]

SEC. 2468-b. Deputy and other assistants—compensation. The state fire marshal is hereby empowered to appoint a deputy fire marshal to assist him in his work, and with the approval of the executive council may appoint and fix the compensation of such additional deputies, clerks and assistants as may be necessary to properly and efficiently conduct the affairs of his office. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 2.]

SEC. 2468-c. Vacancy filled by deputy. While any vacancy shall exist in the office of state fire marshal or during his absence or inability to perform his duties, the same shall devolve upon and be performed by the deputy fire marshal. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 3.]

SEC. 2468-d. Inspectors—appointment—powers. With the approval of the executive council the state fire marshal may, in addition to the provisions of section two, appoint any person, or persons, as state inspector, or inspectors, who may be known to him to be competent and skilled in the inspection of buildings and their contents. Such person or persons shall have all the powers of a deputy fire marshal to enter and inspect buildings, including their contents and occupancies, as provided in section nine hereof, and it shall be the duty of such inspector to report to the fire marshal any faulty or dangerous condition found. Such state inspector or inspectors shall be duly commissioned and shall receive such compensation as is provided for in section fifteen of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 4.]

SEC. 2468-e. Investigation of causes of fires—duties of city and other officers—reports—penalties. The state fire marshal either by himself or through other persons as in this act provided shall investigate the cause, origin and circumstances of every fire occurring within the state and it shall be the duty of the chief of the fire department of every city, town or village in which a fire department is established, and of the mayor of every incorporated town, or village in which no fire department exists, and of the township clerk of every organized township, outside the limits of any organized city, town or village, to investigate the cause, origin and circumstances of every fire occurring in such city, town, village or township by which property has been destroyed, or damaged, and to specially make investigation as to whether such fire was the result of carelessness or design. Such investigation shall be begun within two days, not including Sunday, of the occurrence of such fire, and the state fire marshal shall have the right to supervise and direct such investigation whenever he deems it expedient or necessary. The officer making investigation of fires occurring in cities, villages, towns or townships shall forthwith notify said fire marshal, and shall within one week of the occurrence of the fire furnish to the said fire marshal a written statement of all facts relating to the cause and origin of the fire and such other information as may be called for by the blanks provided by said fire marshal. Any chief of a fire department, mayor or township clerk who fails or refuses to make the investigation and report required of him by this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined in a sum not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 224, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 128, § 5.]

SEC. 2468-f. Record of fires. The state fire marshal shall keep in his office a record of all fires occurring in the state, showing the name of the owners and name or names of occupants of the property at the time of the fire, the sound value of the property, and amount of insurance thereon, the total amount of insurance collected, and the total amount of loss to the property owner, together with all the facts, statistics, and circumstances, including the origin of the fire, which may be determined by the investigation provided by this act. Such record shall at all times be opened to public inspection. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 6.]

SEC. 2468-g. Testimony under oath—arrest for arson. The state fire marshal shall, when in his opinion further investigation is necessary, take or cause to be taken the testimony under oath of all persons supposed to have knowledge of any facts, or to have means of knowledge in relation to the matter in which an examination is herein required to be made, and shall cause the same to be reduced to writing. If the state fire marshal shall be of the opinion that there is evidence sufficient to charge any person with the crime of arson, or with the attempt to commit the crime of arson, or of conspiracy to defraud, or criminal conduct in connection with such fire, he shall cause such person to be arrested and charged with the offense, or either of them, and shall furnish to the proper prosecuting attorney all such evidence, together with the names of witnesses and all of the information obtained by same, including a copy of all matter and testimony taken in the case. [34 G. A., ch. 128, § 7.]

SEC. 2468-h. Power to require attendance of witnesses—evidence —violation—penalty. The state fire marshal and his deputy shall each have power in any county in the state to administer an oath and compel the attendance of witnesses before them, or either of them, to testify in relation to any matter which is by the provisions of this act a subject of inquiry and investigation, and may require the production of any books, papers, or documents necessary for such investigation. False swearing in any matter of proceeding aforesaid shall be deemed perjury and shall be punished as such. Any witness who refuses to be sworn, or refuses to testify, or who disobeys any lawful order of said state fire marshal, or deputy state fire marshal, or who fails to produce any books, papers or documents touching any matter under examination, or who is guilty of any contentious conduct after being summoned by them or either of them to appear before them or either of them, to give testimony in relation to any matter or subject under investigation as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and it shall be the duty of the state fire marshal or deputy state fire marshal, or either of them, to make or compel said person or persons so refusing to comply with the summons or orders of said state fire marshal, or deputy state fire marshal, before any justice of the peace, police magistrate, or any court of record in the county in which said investigation is being had, and upon the filing of such complaint for such cause, shall proceed in the same manner as other criminal cases. CHAPTER 8-A.

OF EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY AND WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

Part I.

SECTION 2477-m. Employers—employes—exceptions. (a) Presumption—employes excepted. Except as by this act otherwise provided, it shall be conclusively presumed that every employer as defined by this act has elected to provide, secure and pay compensation according to the terms, conditions, and provisions of this act for any and all personal injuries sustained by an employe arising out of and in the course of the employment; and in such cases the employer shall be relieved from other liability for recovery of damages or other compensation for such personal injury, unless by the terms of this act otherwise provided; but this act shall not apply to any household or domestic servant, farm or other laborer engaged in agricultural pursuits, nor persons whose employment is of a casual nature.

(b) Compulsory. Where the state, county, municipal corporation, school district, cities under special charter or[1] commission form of government is the employer, the terms, conditions and provisions of this act for the payment of compensation and amount thereof for such injury sustained by an employe of such employer shall be exclusive, compulsory and obligatory upon both employer and employe.

(c) Rejection of terms—reasons for. An employer having the right under the provisions of this act to elect to reject the terms, conditions and provisions thereof and [who] in such case exercises the right in the manner and form by this act provided, such employer shall not escape liability for personal injury sustained by an employe of such employer when the injury sustained arises out of and in the usual course of the employment because:

(1) The employe assumed the risks inherent in or incidental to or arising out of his or her employment, or the risks arising from the failure of the employer to provide and maintain a reasonably safe place to work, or the risks arising from the failure of the employer to furnish reasonably safe tools or appliances, or because the employer exercised reasonable care in selecting reasonably competent employes in the business;

(2) That the injury was caused by the negligence of the coemploye;

(3) That the employe was negligent unless and except it shall appear that such negligence was wilful and with intent to cause the injury; or the result of intoxication on[2] the part of the injured party.

(4) [d] Negligence presumed—burden of proof—notices of election to reject—presumption on failure to give notice. In actions by an employe against an employer for personal injury sustained arising out of and in the course of the employment where the employer has elected to reject the provisions of this act, it shall be presumed that the injury to the employe was the direct result and growing out of the negligence of the employer; and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury; and in such cases the burden of proof shall rest upon the employer to rebut the presumption of negligence.

Every such employer shall be conclusively presumed to have elected to provide, secure and pay compensation to employes for injuries sustained arising out of and in the course of the employment according to the provisions of this act, unless and until notice in writing of an election to the contrary shall have been given to the employes by posting the same in some conspicuous place at the place where the business is carried on, and also by filing notice with the Iowa industrial commissioner with return thereon by affidavit showing the date that notice was posted as by this act provided. Provided, however, that any employer beginning business after the taking effect of this act and giving notice at once of his desire not to come under the provisions of this act, shall not be considered as under the act; provided, however, that such employer shall not be relieved of the payment of compensation as by this act provided until thirty days after the filing of such notice with the Iowa industrial commissioner, which notice shall be substantially in the following form:

The employer shall keep such notice posted in some conspicuous place which shall apply to the employes subsequently employed by the employer with the same force and effect and to the same extent and in like manner as employes in the employ at the time the notice was given.

Where the employer and employe have not given notice of an election to reject the terms of this act, every contract of hire express or implied, shall be construed as an implied agreement between them and a part of the contract on the part of the employer to provide, secure and pay, and on the part of the employe to accept compensation in the manner as by this act provided for all personal injuries sustained arising out of and in the course of the employment. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2477-m1. Wilful injury—intoxication. No compensation under this act shall be allowed for an injury caused:

(a) By the employe's wilful intention to injure himself or to wilfully injure another; nor shall compensation be paid to an injured employe if injury is sustained where intoxication of the employe was the proximate cause of the injury. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 2.]

SEC. 2477-m2. Rights of employe—notice to reject. (a) Exclusive of other rights—presumption—notice. The rights and remedies provided in this act for an employe on account of injury shall be exclusive of all other rights and remedies of such employe, his personal or legal representatives, dependents or next of kin, at common law or otherwise [,] on account of such injury; and all employes affected by this act shall be conclusively presumed to have elected to take compensation in accordance with the terms, conditions and provisions of this act until notice in writing shall have been served upon his employer, and also on the Iowa industrial commissioner, with return thereon by affidavit showing the date upon which notice was served upon the employer.

(b) Rejection — procedure — oath — form — undue influence. In the event such employe elects to reject the terms, conditions and provisions of this act, the rights and remedies thereof shall not apply where an employe brings an action or takes proceedings to recover damages or compensation for injuries received growing out of and in the course of his employment, except as otherwise provided by this act; and in such actions where the employe has rejected the terms of this act the employer shall have the right to plead and rely upon any and all defenses, including those at common law, and the rules and defenses of contributory negligence, assumption of risk and fellow-servant shall apply and be available to the employer as by statute authorized unless otherwise provided in this act. Provided, however, that if an employe sustains an injury as the result of the employer's failure to furnish or failure to exercise reasonable care to keep or maintain any safety device required by statute or rule, or violation of any of the statutory provisions or rules and regulations now or hereafter in force relating to safety of employes, the doctrine of assumed risk in such case growing out of the negligence of the employer shall not apply or be available as defensive matter to such offending party. The notice required to be given by an employe shall be substantially in the following form:

In any case where an employe or one who is an applicant for employment elects to reject the terms, conditions and provisions of this act, he shall, in addition to the notice required by subdivision (b) of section three of this act, state in an affidavit to be filed with said notice who, if any person, requested, suggested, or demands of such person to exercise the right to reject the provisions of this act. And if request, suggestion, or demand has been made of such employe by any person, such employe shall give and state the name of the person who made the request, suggestion, or demand, and all of the circumstances relating thereto, the date and place when and where made, and persons present, and if it be found that the employer of such employe, or an employer to whom an applicant for employment, or any person a member of the firm, association, corporation, or agent or official of such employer, made a request, suggestion or demand of such employe or applicant for employment to reject the terms, conditions and provisions of this act, such request, suggestion or demand if made under such conditions, shall be conclusively presumed to have been sufficient to have unduly influenced such employe or an applicant for employment to exercise the right to reject the terms of this act, and the rejection made under such circumstances shall be conclusively presumed to have been procured through fraud and thereby fraudulently procured, and such rejection shall be null and void and of no effect.

No person interested in the business of such employer, financially or otherwise, shall be permitted to administer the oath to the affidavit required in case an[1] employe or applicant for employment elects to exercise the right to reject the provisions of this act. And the person administering such oath in making such affidavit, shall carefully read the notice and affidavit to such person making such rejection, and shall explain that the purpose of the notice is to bar such person from recovering compensation in accordance with the schedule and terms of this act in the event that he sustains an injury in the course of such employment; all of which shall be shown by certificate of the person administering the oath herein contemplated. The Iowa industrial commissioner, or any person acting for such commissioner, shall refuse to file the notice and affidavit, unless such notice, affidavit and certificate fully, and in detail, comply with the requirements hereof. And if such rejection, affidavit and certificate is found insufficient for any cause, [it] shall be returned by mail or otherwise to the person who executed the instrument. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 3.]

SEC. 2477-m3. Tenure of election. (a) Until provisions complied with. When the employer or employe has given notice in compliance with this act electing to reject the terms thereof such election shall continue and be in force until such employer or employe shall thereafter elect to come under the provisions of this act as is provided in subdivision (b) of this section.

(b) Notice—how filed. When an employer or employe rejects the terms, conditions or provisions of this act, such party may at any time thereafter elect to waive the same by giving notice in writing in the same manner required of the party in electing to reject the provisions of the act and which shall become effective when filed with the Iowa industrial commissioner. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 4.]

SEC. 2477-m4. Liability of employer after election to reject. Where the employer and employe elect to reject the terms, conditions and provisions of this act, the liability of the employer shall be the same as though the employe had not rejected the terms, conditions and provisions thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 5.]

SEC. 2477-m5. Subsequent election to reject—security for compensation. An employer having come under this act, who thereafter elects to reject the terms, conditions and provisions thereof, shall not be relieved from the payment of compensation to such employe who sustains an injury in the course of the employment before the election to reject becomes effective; and in such cases the employer shall be required to secure the payment of any compensation due or that may become due to such workman, subject to the approval of the Iowa industrial commissioner. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 6.]

SEC. 2477-m6. Liability of other than that of employer. Where an employe coming under the provisions of this act receives an injury for which compensation is payable under this act and which injury was caused under circumstances creating a legal liability in some person other than the employer, to pay damages in respect thereof:

(a) Proceedings against both parties. The employe or beneficiary may take proceedings both against that person to recover damages and against the employer for compensation, but the amount of the compensation to which he is entitled under this act shall be reduced by the amount of damages recovered.

(b) Indemnity—subrogation. If the employe or beneficiary in such case recovers compensation under this act, the employer by whom the compensation was paid or the party who has been called upon to pay the compensation, shall be entitled to indemnity from the person so liable to pay damages as aforesaid, and shall be subrogated to the rights of the employe to recover therefor. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 7.]

SEC. 2477-m7. Contract to relieve not operative. No contract, rule, regulation or device whatsoever shall operate to relieve the employer, in whole or in part, from any liability created by this act except as herein provided. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 8.]

SEC. 2477-m8. Notice of injury—form—failure to give. Unless the employer or representative of such employer shall have actual knowledge of the occurrence of an injury, or unless the employe or someone on his behalf, or some of the dependents or someone on their behalf, shall give notice thereof to the employer within fifteen days of the occurrence of the injury, then no compensation shall be paid until and from the date such notice is given or knowledge obtained; but if notice is given or the knowledge obtained within thirty days from the occurrence of the injury, no want, failure or inaccuracy of a notice shall be a bar to obtaining compensation, unless the employer shall show that he was prejudiced by such want, defect or inaccuracy, and then only to the extent of such prejudice. Provided, that if the employe or beneficiary shall show that his failure to give prior notice was due to mistake, inadvertence, ignorance of fact or law, or inability, or to the fraud, misrepresentation or deceit of another or to any other reasonable cause or excuse, then compensation may be allowed, unless and then to the extent only that the employer shall show that he was prejudiced by failure to receive such notice. Provided, further, unless knowledge is obtained or notice given within ninety days after the occurrence of the injury, no compensation shall be allowed. No form of notice shall be required but may substantially conform to the following form:

FORM OF NOTICE.

(Give name of place employed and point where located when injury occurred.)

and that compensation will be claimed therefor.

but no variation from this form of notice shall be material if the notice is sufficient to advise the employer that a certain employe, by name, received an injury in the course of his employment on or about a specified time at or near a certain place. Notice served upon one [upon] whom an original notice may be served in civil cases shall be a compliance with this act.

The notice required to be given to the employer may be served by any person over sixteen years of age, who shall make return upon a copy of the notice, properly sworn to, showing the date of service where and upon whom served, but no special form of the return of service of the notice shall be required. It shall be sufficient if the facts therefrom can be reasonably ascertained. The return of service may be amended at any time. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 9.]

SEC. 2477-m9. Compensation schedule. If any employe has not given notice to reject the terms, conditions and provisions of this act, or has given such notice and waived the same as by this act provided, and the employer has not rejected the terms, conditions and provisions of the act or has given such notice and waived the same and the employe receives a personal injury arising out of and in the course of the employment, compensation shall be paid as herein provided.

(a) The compensation provided for in this act shall be paid in accordance with the schedule unless otherwise provided.

(b) At any time after an injury and until the expiration of two weeks of incapacity, the employer, if so requested by the workman, or anyone for him, or if so ordered by the court or Iowa industrial commissioner, shall furnish reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services and supplies, not exceeding one hundred dollars.

(c) Where the injury causes death the compensation under this act shall be as follows:

The employer shall in addition to any other compensation pay the reasonable expense of the employe's last sickness and burial not to exceed one hundred dollars. If the employe leaves no dependents this shall be the only compensation.

(d) If death results from the injury, the employer shall pay the dependents of the employe wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury, a weekly payment equal to fifty per cent. of his average weekly wages, but not more than ten dollars nor less than five dollars per week for a period of three hundred weeks.

(e) If the employe leaves dependents only partially dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury, the weekly compensation to be paid as aforesaid shall be equal to the same proportion of the weekly payments for the benefit of persons wholly dependent as the amount contributed by the employe to such partial dependents bears to the annual earnings of the deceased at the time of the injury. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employe before his death, the compensation to dependents shall begin from the date of the last of such payments, but shall not continue more than three hundred weeks from the date of the injury.

(f) Where injury causes death to an employe, a minor, whose earnings were received by the parent, the compensation to be paid the parent shall be two thirds of the amount provided for payment in subdivision (d) section ten.

(g) No compensation shall be paid for an injury which does not incapacitate the employe for a period of at least two weeks from earning full wages; but if incapacity extends beyond a period of two weeks, compensation shall begin on the fifteenth day after the injury.

(h) For injury producing temporary disability, fifty per cent. of the average weekly wages received at the time of injury, subject to a maximum compensation of ten dollars and a minimum of five dollars per week; provided, that if at the time of injury the employe receives wages less than five dollars per week, then he shall receive the full amount of wages per week. This compensation shall be paid during the period of such disability, not, however, beyond three hundred weeks.

(i) For disability total in character and permanent in quality [,] fifty per cent. of the average weekly wages received at the time of the injury, subject to a maximum compensation of ten dollars per week, and a minimum of five dollars per week; provided, that if at the time of injury, the employe receives wages less than five dollars per week, then he shall receive the full amount of wages per week. This compensation shall be paid during the period of such disability, not [,] however, beyond four hundred weeks.

(j) For disability partial in character and permanent in quality [,] the compensation shall be based upon the extent of such disability.

For all cases included in the following schedule [,] compensation shall be paid as follows, to wit:

(1) For the loss of a thumb [,] fifty per cent. of daily wages during forty weeks.

(2) For the loss of a first finger, commonly called the index finger, fifty per cent. of daily wages during thirty weeks.

(3) For the loss of a second finger, fifty per cent. of daily wages during twenty-five weeks.

(4) For the loss of a third finger, fifty per cent. of daily wages during twenty weeks.

(5) For the loss of a fourth finger, commonly called the little finger, fifty per cent. of daily wages for fifteen weeks.

(6) For the loss of the first phalange of the thumb or of any finger shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one half of such thumb or finger and compensation shall be one half of the amounts above specified.

(7) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered as the loss of the entire finger or thumb; provided, however, that in no case shall the amount received for more than one finger exceed the amount provided in this schedule for the loss of a hand.

(8) For the loss of a great toe, fifty per cent. of daily wages during twenty-five weeks.

(9) For the loss of one of the toes other than the great toe, fifty per cent. of daily wages during fifteen weeks.

(10) For the loss of the first phalange of any toe, shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one half of such toe and the compensation shall be one half of the amount above specified.

(11) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered as the loss of the entire toe.

(12) For the loss of a hand [,] fifty per cent. of daily wages during one hundred fifty weeks.

(13) For the loss of an arm [,] fifty per cent. of daily wages during two hundred weeks.

(14) For the loss of a foot [,] fifty per cent. of daily wages during one hundred twenty-five weeks.

(15) For the loss of a leg, fifty per cent. of daily wages during one hundred seventy-five weeks.

(16) For the loss of an eye, fifty per cent. of daily wages during one hundred weeks.

(17) For the loss of both arms, or both hands, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or of any two thereof, shall constitute total and permanent disability, to be compensated according to provisions of clause (i), section ten, part one hereof.

(18) In all other cases in this, clause (j), the compensation shall bear such relation to the amount stated in the above schedule as the disability bears to those produced by the injuries named in the schedule. Should the employe and employer be unable to agree upon the amount of compensation to be paid in cases not specifically covered by the schedule, the amount of compensation shall be settled according to provisions of this act as in other cases of disagreement.

(19) The amounts specified in this, clause (j) and subdivisions thereof[,] shall be subject to the same limitations as to maximum and minimum weekly payments as are stated in clause (h), section ten hereof. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 10.]

SEC. 2477-m10. Death—payment of unpaid balance. Where an employe is entitled to compensation under this act for an injury received and death ensues from any cause not resulting from the injury for which he was entitled to the compensation, payments of the unpaid balance for such injury shall cease and all liability therefor shall terminate. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 11.]

SEC. 2477-m11. Examination of injured employe—suspension of compensation. After an injury [,] the employe, if so requested by his employer, shall submit himself for examination at some reasonable time and place within the state and as often as may be reasonably requested, to a physician or physicians authorized to practice under the laws of this state, without cost to the employe; but if the employe requests [,] he shall, at his own cost, be entitled to have a physician or physicians of his own selection present to participate in such examination. The refusal of the employe to submit to such examination shall deprive him of the right to compensation during the continuance of such refusal. When a right to compensation is thus suspended no compensation shall be payable in respect to the period of suspension. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 12.]

SEC. 2477-m12. Contributions from employes—no reduction of employer's responsibility. The compensation herein provided shall be the measure of the responsibility which the employer has assumed for injuries or death that may occur to employes in his employment subject to the provisions of this act, and it shall not be in any wise reduced by contribution from employes. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 13.]

SEC. 2477-m13. Trustees for minors and those mentally incapacitated—reports. When a minor dependent or one physically or mentally incapacitated from earning is entitled to compensation under this act, payment shall be made to a trustee appointed by the judge of the district court for each county in the respective judicial districts, and the money coming into the hands of the said trustee shall be expended for the use and benefit of the person entitled thereto under the direction and orders of the judge during term time or in vacation. The trustee shall make annual reports to the court of all money or property received and expended for each person, and for services rendered as trustee shall be paid such compensation by the county as the court may direct by written order directed to the auditor of the county who shall issue a warrant therefor upon the treasurer of the county in which the appointment is made. If the judge making the appointment deems it advisable, a trustee may be appointed to serve for more than one county in the district and the expenses shall be paid ratably by each county according to the amount of work performed in each county. The trustee shall qualify and give bond in such amount as the judge may direct, which may be increased or diminished from time to time as the court may deem best. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 14.]

SEC. 2477-m14. Commutation of future payments—discretion of court. In any case where the period of compensation can be determined definitely either party may, upon due notice to the other, apply to any judge of the district court for the county in which the accident occurred for an order commuting future payments to a lump sum. And such judge may make such an order when it shall be shown to his satisfaction that the payment of a lump sum in lieu of future monthly or weekly payments, as the case may be, will be for the best interest of the person or persons receiving or dependent upon said compensation, or that the continuance of periodical payments will[,] as compared with lump sum payments[,] entail undue expense or undue hardship upon the employer liable therefor. Where the commutation is ordered, the court shall fix the lump sum to be paid at an amount which will equal the total sum of the probable future payments capitalized at their present value and upon the basis of interest, calculated at five per cent. per annum. Upon the payment of such amount the employer shall be discharged from all further liability on account of such injury or death, for which said compensation was being paid, and be entitled to a duly executed release, upon filing which the liability of such employer under any agreement, award, finding or judgment shall be discharged of record. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 15.]

SEC. 2477-m15. Schedule of computation. The basis for computing compensation provided for in this act shall be as follows:

(a) The compensation shall be computed on the basis of the annual earnings which the injured person received as salary, wages or earnings in the employment of the same employer during the year next preceding the injury.

(b) Employment by the same employer shall be taken to mean employment by the same employer in the grade in which the employe was employed at the time of the accident, uninterrupted by absence from work due to illness or any other unavoidable cause.

(c) The annual earnings, if not otherwise determinable, shall be regarded as three hundred times the average daily earnings in such computation.

(d) If the injured person has not been engaged in the employment for a full year immediately preceding the accident, the compensation shall be computed according to the annual earnings which persons of the same class in the same or in neighboring employments of the same kind have earned during such period. And if this basis of computation is impossible, or should appear to be unreasonable, three hundred times the amount which the injured person earned on an average of those days when he was working during the year next preceding the accident, shall be used as a basis for the computation.

(e) In case of injured employes who earn either no wages or less than three hundred times the usual daily wage or earnings of the adult day laborer in the same line of industry of that locality[,] the yearly wage shall be reckoned as three hundred times the average daily local wages of the average wage earner in that particular kind or class of work; or if information of that class is not obtainable, then of the class or kindred or similarity in the same general employment in the same neighborhood.

(f) As to employes in employments in which it is the custom to operate for a part of the whole number of working days in each year, such number shall be used instead of three hundred as a basis for computing the annual earnings, provided the minimum number of days which shall be used for the basis of the year's work shall not be less than two hundred.

(g) Earnings, for the purpose of this section, shall be based on the earnings for the number of hours commonly regarded as a day's work for that employment, and shall exclude overtime earnings. The earnings shall not include any sum which the employer has been accustomed to pay the employe to cover any special expense entailed on him by the nature of the employment.

(h) In computing the compensation to be paid to any employe who, before the accident for which he claims compensation, was disabled and drawing compensation under the terms of this act, the compensation for each subsequent injury shall be apportioned according to the proportion of incapacity and disability caused by the respective injuries which he may have suffered. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 16.]

SEC. 2477-m16. Terms defined. In this act unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Employer" includes and applies to any person, firm, association or corporation, and includes state, counties, municipal corporations, cities under special charter and under commission form of government and shall include school districts and the legal representatives of a deceased employer. Whenever necessary to give effect to section seven of this act, it includes a principal or intermediate contractor.

(b) "Workman" is used synonymously[1] with "employe"[,] and means any person who has entered into the employment of, or works under contract of service, express or implied, or apprenticeship for an employer, except a person whose employment is purely casual and not for the purpose of the employer's trade or business or those engaged in clerical work only,[2] but clerical work shall not include one who may be subjected to the hazards of the business or one holding an official position or standing in a representative capacity of the employer, or an official elected or appointed by the state, county, school district, municipal corporation, cities under special charter and commission form of government; provided that one who sustains the relation of contractor with any person, firm, association, corporation or the state, county, school district, municipal corporation, cities under special charter or commission form of government, shall not be considered an employe thereof.

The term "workman" shall include the singular and plural of both sexes. Any reference to a workman who has been injured shall, where the workman is dead, include a reference to his dependents as herein defined, legal representatives or where the workman is a minor or incompetent to his guardian or next friend.

(c) The following shall be conclusively presumed to be wholly dependent upon a deceased employe:

(1) The surviving spouse, unless it be shown that the survivor wilfully deserted deceased without fault upon the part of the deceased; and if it be shown that the survivor deserted deceased without fault upon the part of deceased, the survivor shall not be regarded as a dependent in any degree. No surviving spouse shall be entitled to the benefits of this act unless she shall have been married to the deceased at the time of the injury.

(2) A child or children under sixteen years of age (and over said age if physically or mentally incapacitated from earning) whether actually dependent for support or not upon the parent at the time of his or her death.

(3) A parent of a minor entitled to the earnings of the employe at the time when the injury occurred, subject to provisions of subdivision (f), section ten hereof.

(4) If the deceased employe leaves dependent surviving spouse, the full compensation shall be paid to such spouse; but if the dependent surviving spouse dies before payment is made in full, the balance remaining shall be paid to the person or persons wholly dependent, if any, share and share alike. If there be no person or persons wholly dependent, then payment shall be made to partial dependents.

(5) In all other cases [,] questions of dependency in whole or in part shall be determined in accordance with the fact as the fact may be at the time of the injury; and in such other cases if there is more than one person wholly dependent, the death benefit shall be equally divided among them, and persons partially dependent, if any, shall receive no part thereof. If there is no one wholly dependent and more than one person partially dependent, the death benefit shall be divided among them according to the relative extent of their dependency. Provided, however, that when a lump sum is paid as contemplated by this act, the court or commissioner, in making distribution thereof, shall take into consideration the contingent rights of partial beneficiaries or the rights of those who may become such after a wholly dependent child or children become sixteen years of age.

(6) Step-parents shall be regarded in this act as parents.

(7) Adopted child or children or stepchild or children shall be regarded in this act the same as if issue of the body.

(f) The words "injury" and "personal injury" shall not include injury caused by the wilful act of a third person directed against an employe for reasons personal to such employe or because of his employment.

(g) They shall not include a disease except as it shall result from the injury.

(h) "Industrial employment" includes only employment in occupation, callings, businesses or pursuits which are carried on by the employer for the sake of pecuniary gain.

(i) The word "court" whenever used in this act, unless the context shows otherwise, shall be taken to mean the district court. [35 G. A., ch. 147, § 17.]

[1"synonymous" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

[2The bill does not seem to be correctly enrolled here The records indicate that the amendment "but clerical work shall not include anyone who may be subjected to the hazards of the business" should have been placed before the comma following the word "only." EDITOR.]

SEC. 2477-m17. Insurance against compensation prohibited—penalty. (a) Any contract of employment, relief benefit or insurance or other device whereby the employe is required to pay any premium or premiums for insurance against the compensation provided for in this act shall be null and void; and any employer withholding from the wages of any employe any amount for the purpose of paying any such premium shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense [,] in the discretion of the court.

The members of said board shall qualify by taking oath to perform the duties devolving upon them fairly, faithfully and impartially, without fear or favor, uninfluenced by personal or political considerations. No member of said board shall be interested in or connected with any school, scheme, plan or device having for its object the preparation, education or instruction of persons in the knowledge required of applicants for certificates of competency. Any member of said board shall be summarily removed from office by the executive council, upon due notice and hearing, for violation of the law, misfeasance or malfeasance in the performance of his duties, or for other sufficient cause, and his successor shall thereupon be appointed by the said executive council for the unexpired term." [30 G. A., ch. 86; 29 G. A., ch. 98, § 1.]

SEC. 2482. Inspection districts—powers and duties of inspector—expenses and supplies. The governor shall divide the state into three inspection districts, and assign one inspector to each district, who shall devote his entire time to his work, and, before entering thereon, procure, to be paid for by and to belong to the state, all instruments necessary for the discharge of his duties, including a complete set of standards, balances and other means of adjustment in testing any and all apparatus used in weighing, and shall examine, test and adjust, as often as occasion demands, all scales, beams and other apparatus used in weighing coal at the mines. He shall examine all the mines in his district as often as the time will permit, which examination shall be made at least once in every six months of all mines having an average output of fifty tons or more of coal per day, keep a record of the inspections made, showing date, the condition in which the mine is found, the extent and manner in which the laws relating to the government of mines and their operation are observed and obeyed, the progress made in improvements for the better security to health and life, number of accidents happening and their character, the number employed, and such other and further matters as may be of public interest and connected with the mining industries of the state. He shall have the right at all reasonable times, by night or by day, to enter any mine in his district, or any district to which he may be sent by the governor for the purpose of ascertaining its condition, and the manner of its operation, by making personal examination and inquiry in relation thereto, but not so as to unnecessarily obstruct or impede the working of the mines; and to this end the mine owner or person in charge shall furnish such mine inspector all assistance in his power, and forthwith, upon the happening of any accident to any miner in or about the mine by reason of the working thereof which causes loss of life, shall report the same, by mail or otherwise, to the mine inspector and the coroner of the county. Each inspector shall have and maintain, at some suitable place in his district, to be approved by the governor, an office, and shall reside in the district and remain therein, unless otherwise engaged in the conduct of his official duties. The costs and expenses of the office of the mine inspector other than at the capitol, including rental, telephone, office supplies and necessary fixtures, shall be paid for by the state, and the bills audited and allowed by the executive council who shall direct a warrant to issue therefor. The bills for current expenses shall be presented monthly and shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars per month for each inspector, whose office is maintained at a place other than at the capitol. [34 G. A., ch. 107, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 99, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 54, § 2; 21 G. A., ch. 140, §§ 1, 2, 6; 20 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 1, 2, 6.]

SEC. 2483. General office—report to governor—compensation. The three inspectors shall maintain a general office in the capitol, and keep therein all records, correspondence, documents, apparatus or other property pertaining to their office; they shall meet in said office biennially on or before August fifteenth preceding the regular session of the general assembly, and make report to the governor of their official doings, including therein all matters which by this chapter are specially committed to their charge, adding such suggestion as to needed future legislation as in their opinion may be important. Each inspector shall receive for his services the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum and actual traveling expenses, not exceeding seven hundred fifty dollars yearly, the traveling expenses to be paid quarterly upon an itemized statement duly verified and audited by the state auditor. [32 G. A., ch. 129; 28 G. A., ch. 79, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 52, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 140, §§ 3, 4; 20 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 3, 4.]

SEC. 2484. Removal of inspector—appeal. Section twenty-four hundred eighty-four of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Charges of gross neglect of duty or malfeasance in office against any inspector may be made in writing, sworn to and filed with the governor, and must be made by five miners, or one or more mine operators; they shall be accompanied with a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars, running to the state, executed by two or more freeholders, approved and accepted by the clerk of the district court of the county of their residence, conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses arising from the investigation of the charges, and thereupon the governor shall convene the board of examiners at such time and place as he may designate, giving the inspector and the person whose name first appears in the charge ten days' notice thereof. The board, at the time and place fixed, shall proceed to hear, try and determine the matter, and for this purpose shall summon any material witness desired, by either party, and may administer the proper oath to all witnesses. Evidence may also be taken by deposition as in other cases, and continuances of the hearing may be granted in the furtherance of justice and upon the application of either party. After the evidence has been fully heard, the board shall report to the governor the results of its investigation, and if the charges are sustained the inspector shall be forthwith removed by the governor, and in that event the costs and expenses of the hearing shall be awarded against the inspector or the bondsmen as the case may be, with the right, however, upon the part of the aggrieved party to appeal from such findings and order to the district court of any county in the inspector's district against whom charges were made, by giving notice in writing to the board, or any member thereof, served in the same manner as original notices are served, within ten days from the time of filing the findings with the governor, or if the order of removal is made within ten days therefrom. Upon such appeal all matters shall be heard bearing upon the charges made, and the pleadings may be amended within the discretion of the court in the furtherance of justice. The appeal shall be tried as an equitable action and such order made as the evidence supports and justice demands. Provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the governor from proceeding under the law provided for the suspension or removal of state officers for malfeasance or nonfeasance in office. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.] [21 G. A., ch. 43; 20 G. A., ch. 21, § 16.]

SEC. 2484-a. Uniform reports. "The board of inspectors shall prepare a standard form of reports which shall be uniform for and throughout the state and which shall be used in all cases where reports are required to be made to the district mine inspectors or the board of inspectors as the case may be." [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 3.]

SEC. 2485. Maps of mines—surveys. Section twenty-four hundred eighty-five of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of any mine shall make or cause to be made an accurate map or plan of such mine drawn to a scale not more than two hundred feet to the inch, on which shall appear the name of the state, county and township in which the mine is located, the designation of the mine, the name of the company or owner, operator, lessee or person in charge, the certificate of the mining engineer or surveyor as to the accuracy and date of the survey, the north point and the scale to which the drawing is made. Every such map or plan shall correctly show the surface boundary lines of the coal rights pertaining to each mine and all sections or quarter section lines or corners within the same; the lines of town lots and streets; the tracks and sidetracks of all railroads, the location of all wagon roads, rivers, streams, ponds, reservations made of coal and mineral. For the underground workings said maps shall show all shafts, slopes, tunnels or other openings to the surface or to the workings of a contiguous mine; all excavations, entries, rooms and crosscuts; the location of the escape ways, and of the fan or furnace or other means of ventilation and the direction of air currents and the location of permanent pumps, hauling engines, engine planes, abandoned works, fire walls and standing water. A separate and similar map drawn to the same scale in all cases shall be made of each and every seam of coal operated in any mine in this state. A separate map shall also be made of the surface whenever the surface buildings, lines or objects are so numerous as to obscure the details of the mine workings if drawn upon the same sheet with them, and in such case the surface map shall be drawn upon transparent cloth or paper so that it can be laid upon the map of the underground workings and thus truly indicate the local relation of lines and objects on the surface to the excavations of the mine, together with any other principal workings of the mine. Each map shall also show by profile drawing and measurement, the last one hundred fifty feet approaching the boundary lines, showing the rise and dip of the seam. The original or true copies of all such maps shall be kept at the office of the mine and true copies thereof shall also be furnished the state mine inspector for the district in which said mine is located within thirty days after the completion of the same. The maps so delivered to the inspector shall be the property of the state and shall remain in the custody of the said inspector during his term of office, and be delivered to his successor in office. They shall be kept at the office of the inspector and be open to examination of all persons interested in the same; but such examination shall only be made in the presence of the inspector or his office assistant, and he shall not permit any copies of the same to be made without the written consent of the operator or the owner of the property, except as herein and otherwise provided. An accurate extension of the last preceding survey of every mine in active operation shall be made once in every twelve months prior to July first of every year and the result of such survey with the date thereof, shall be promptly and accurately entered upon the original map and a true, correct and accurate copy of said extended map shall be forwarded to the inspector of mines in the district in which said mine is located so as to show all changes in plan of new work in the mine, and all extensions of the old workings to the most advanced face or boundary of said workings which have been made since the last preceding survey, and the parts of the mine abandoned or worked out after the last preceding survey shall be clearly indicated and shown by colorings, which copy must be delivered to the inspector of mines within thirty days after the last survey is made. When any coal mine is worked out or is about to be abandoned or indefinitely closed, the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of the same shall make or cause to be made a completed and extended map of said mine and the result of the same shall be duly extended on all maps of the mine and copies thereof so as to show all excavations and the most advanced workings of the mine, and their exact relation to the boundary or section lines on the surface, and deliver to the inspector a copy of the completed map. The state inspector of mines shall order a survey to be made of the workings of any mine and the result to be extended on the maps of the same and the copies thereof whenever in his judgment the safety of the workmen, the support of the surface, the conservation of the property or the safety of an adjoining mine requires it; and if not made by the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge when ordered by the inspector it shall be made or caused to be made by the inspector and paid for by the state and the amount collected from the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge as other debts are collected. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 4.] [20 G. A., ch. 21, § 7.]

The statute authorizing the recovery of double damages occasioned by the removal of coal from the land of an owner without his authority is not unconstitutional. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130–570, 107 N. W. 621.

Evidence in a particular case considered and held sufficient to show such trespass as a basis for the recovery of double damages; but held that evidence as to removal of coal from adjoining land was irrelevant and should not have been admitted. Ibid.

As to whether double damages should be computed on the value of the coal after severed or after removed to the mouth of the mine, the judges of the court were equally divided. Stewart v. Colfax Consol. Coal Co., 147–548, 126 N. W. 449.

SEC. 2485-a. Failure to furnish map—penalty. "Whenever the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of any mine neglects and refuses for a period of three months to furnish to said inspector the map or plan of such mine or a copy thereof or of the extension thereof as provided for by this act, such owner, operator, lessee, or person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined one hundred dollars and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine is paid, and in addition thereto the inspector shall make or cause to be made an accurate map or plan of such mine or extension as the case may be, at the expense of the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge thereof; the cost to be paid by the state and recovered by law from the said owner, operator, lessee or person in charge in the same manner as other debts by suit; and it shall be the duty of the county attorney of the county in which such mine is located, at the request of the inspector, to bring such action in the name and for the benefit of the state. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 5.]

SEC. 2485-b. Right of adjoining landowner—expenses of examination—double damages. "Upon affidavit of an adjoining landowner in the vicinity of said mine, or his agents, filed with the inspector of the district stating that it is necessary for the protection of his property to know how near his land the excavations in the mine extend, the inspector shall make an examination or employ a surveyor therefor if necessary, to determine the length and direction of entries and other works toward the land of the applicant and the extent of excavation of same on all of his land, if any, and make report to the inspector to whom the application may have been made; the inspector may in such case permit examination of such map or copies thereof as may be in the possession of the inspector for the purpose of and to aid and assist in determining the location of the workings as herein contemplated. The necessary expenses incurred and compensation of five dollars per day to the inspector in favor of the state and ten dollars per day to the surveyor shall be paid by the applicant except when it shall be shown that said applicant's property has been undermined, in which case the expense shall be paid by the mine owner, operator, lessee or person in charge; and in any case where any owner, operator, lessee or person operating a mine, who without permission takes coal from adjoining land he shall be liable for double damages therefor and for all expense caused thereby. If it be found necessary to survey the premises to discover the facts as contemplated by this act the owner or person filing the affidavit shall first give a bond or other security to the inspector in favor of the state in the sum of one hundred dollars conditioned to pay all costs and expenses incurred thereby." [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 6.]

SEC. 2486. Escape ways and air shafts. The owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of any mine hereafter constructed and operated by shaft, or one having a slope or drift opening in which five or more persons are employed, shall construct and maintain at least two distinct openings for each seam of coal worked, which in mines operated by shaft shall be separated by natural strata of not less than three hundred feet in breadth, and in mines operated by slope or drift not less than two hundred feet in breadth, through which ingress and egress at all times shall be unobstructed to the employes and persons having occasion to use the same as escape ways or place of exit from the mine. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 7.] [22 G. A., ch. 56, §§ 1, 2; 20 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 8, 9.]

SEC. 2486-a. Stairways in escape shafts. All escape shafts hereafter constructed not provided with hoisting appliances as hereinafter provided shall have stairs at an angle of not more than sixty degrees in ascent, nor less than two and one-half feet in width with proper, safe and substantial landings at convenient and easy distances, and equipped with good and substantial handrails or banisters. If a shaft be used for an escape shaft and air shaft, that part of the shaft used as an escape way shall be divided and partitioned closely with good and substantial material from the part used as an air shaft, all of which shall be kept in safe condition as by this act provided. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 8.]

SEC. 2486-b. Hoisting appliances for use of workmen. All escape shafts not provided with stairs shall be provided with suitable appliances for hoisting underground workmen at all times ready for use both day and night, while the workmen are at labor, which hoisting apparatus shall be separate and apart from the hoisting shaft, and the equipment shall include a depth indicator, brake on the drum, steel or iron cage, safety catches on cages, and covers on cages to securely protect any person while on the cage. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 9.]

SEC. 2486-c. Underground connection with contiguous mine. Where two or more mines are connected underground the several owners by joint agreement may use the hoisting shaft, slope or drift of the one as an escape for the other, and the road or traveling ways to the boundary on either side shall be kept clear of every obstruction to travel by the respective operators, and the intervening doors, if any, shall remain unlocked and ready at all times for immediate use, and when such communication has once been established between contiguous mines it shall be unlawful for the owner, operator, or person in charge of either mine to close the same without the consent both of the contiguous operators and of the state inspector of mines of the district, provided that when either operator desires to abandon mining operations, the expense and duty of maintaining such communication shall devolve upon the party continuing operation. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 10.]

SEC. 2486-d. Location of shafts—approval of inspector—appeal. No escape shaft or other place of exit or any air shaft or opening for ventilation not including hoisting shafts shall be located or constructed without first giving notice to the state mine inspector and obtaining[1] his approval thereof in writing, who shall retain a copy and file in his office and preserve with other records of that mine. The state mine inspector of the district in which any mine is located shall have the right at any time to order any additional air and escape way, shaft or openings therefor or other place of exit as may be deemed necessary for the purpose of furnishing additional ventilation or reasonably necessary means of escape and such additional air and escape ways shall only be used in cases of emergency; but if the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of the mine feels aggrieved with the order as made by the mine inspector of the district in which the mine is located he shall have the right to appeal from the decision or the order of the mine inspector in such case to the district court, where the action shall be tried as an equitable action, and shall have precedence over any and all other cases, and the first term of such court held after the taking of such appeal shall be the appearance term; provided, however, that in any case the state mine inspector may elect by giving four days' notice to the party taking the appeal, to bring said cause on for hearing before any judge of the judicial district in which such mine is located, who shall make such order as the case demands; provided, however, that from and after the fourth day of July, nineteen hundred eleven, it shall be unlawful to construct a furnace shaft in connection with an escape shaft or other means of exit for the employes of a mine, and all furnace shafts hereafter constructed shall be separate and apart from the escape way or means of exit. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 11.]

[1"obtain" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2486-e. Ventilation—obstructions prohibited. The escape way shall be ventilated and kept free from vitiated air, accumulation of ice and obstructions of every kind; nor shall steam or heated air be discharged therein during the daytime unless an attendant be kept in charge thereof and the equipment so arranged that the steam or warm air may be readily turned off at any time when required and a conspicuous signboard placed in plain view indicating the point where the steam or warm air may be turned off as by this act contemplated; and all surface or other water which flows therein shall be conducted by rings or otherwise to receptacles for the same so as to keep the stairway reasonably free from falling water. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 12.]

SEC. 2486-f. Traveling ways—sign boards—inspection—appeal. In any mine affected by this act and every seam of coal or other mineral worked therein, there shall be constructed, kept and maintained safe and accessible traveling ways to and from any and all escape ways or place of exit, which shall be maintained free from falls of roof, standing water and other obstructions and made at least five feet high and seven feet wide. At all points where the passage or traveling ways to the escapement shaft or place of exit intersect other roadways or entries, conspicuous signboards shall be placed thereat indicating the way to such place of exit. All traveling ways shall be inspected by the mine foreman or his assistant at least once each week, and written report of their[1] condition made and filed in the office at the mine which shall be open for examination to all the employes of the mine and such other persons entitled thereto at all reasonable times. Provided, however, that in any case, when in the judgment of the mine inspector of the district where the mine is located it is deemed impracticable by reason of the conditions or strata, to make the traveling way herein referred to five feet in height, then and in that case the traveling way may be made and maintained less than five feet in height and seven feet in width, but in no case shall the traveling way be less than three feet in height or six feet in width. But if any dispute or difference should arise as to the findings or orders of the mine inspector, in the premises, between such inspector and employer operating the mine, or between such inspector and at least five operatives working in the mine, then and in that case the inspector shall furnish, on demand, to the aggrieved party or parties a copy of the findings or orders complained of and he shall also file the originals thereof in the office of the board of state mine inspectors and the aggrieved party or parties may have the right to appeal from said findings and orders to the district court of any county in which said mine is located on the same terms and conditions, so far as applicable, as those provided for the trial and appeal under section two hereof. When appeal is taken as herein provided the case shall be docketed and precedence given over all other cases excepting criminal cases where the party is in jail, and the inspector may bring the case on for hearing before any judge of the judicial district where the mine is located by giving five days' notice in writing to the opposite party and if the evidence fails to show that the order was not a reasonable one as made by the inspector the findings and order of the inspector shall stand as made by him. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 13.]

["'its" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2486-g. Precaution against fire—location of buildings. It shall be unlawful to erect, keep or maintain any inflammable structure or buildings or other material in the space intervening between the main or hoisting shafts, slopes or drifts, and the escapement shaft or other place of exit or any powder magazine in such location or manner as to jeopardize the free and safe exit of the employes from the mine by said escapement shaft or other place of exit in case of fire or other casualty to the main shaft, slope or drift buildings. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 14.]

SEC. 2486-h. Boiler and engine rooms. All boiler and engine rooms erected or constructed on the surface at any mine from and after July fourth, nineteen hundred eleven, shall be constructed of fireproof material and in no case shall the boiler room be placed within sixty feet of the hoisting shaft, slope or drift. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 15.]

SEC. 2486-i. Shaft lights. In all cases, after twilight, or when by reason of steam or other causes obscuring the plain view of the top and openings of any shaft, there shall be maintained a good and substantial light, but in no case shall an open light or torch be used. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 16.]

SEC. 2486-j. Traveling way around hoisting shafts. At the bottom of each hoisting shaft there shall be constructed a safe and convenient traveling way around the shaft for employes and animals, and it shall be unlawful for any person to pass across the shaft bottom in any other manner than by the traveling way herein contemplated; except such employes as may be necessary to perform the work at the bottom of the shaft or those engaged in making repairs. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 17.]

SEC. 2486-k. Places of refuge in haulage roads—signals—trip car lights. On all single-track haulage roads wherever hauling is done by machinery or other mechanical device, and on all gravity or inclined planes in mines where it is impractical to construct a separate traveling way and which persons employed in the mines must use while performing their work or travel on foot to and from their work, places of refuge must be cut in the side wall not less than three feet in depth and four feet wide and five feet high, and not more than twenty yards apart unless there be a clear space of not less than two and one-half feet between the car when on the track and the rib or side of the entry of the haulage way; but in no case shall such haulage way be used as a traveling way unless it shall first be determined by the inspector that it is impracticable to construct, keep or maintain a separate traveling way, and in all such cases, unless otherwise determined by the inspector to be impracticable, there shall be kept and maintained a separate traveling way for the employes which shall at all times be maintained in good and safe condition and free from falls of roof and other obstructions. On every such haulage road which is more than one hundred feet in length a code of signals shall be established between the hauling engineer and all points on the road, except where hauling is done by motor; and a conspicuous light shall be carried on the front of every trip or train of trip cars moved by machinery. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 18.]

SEC. 2486-1. Entries used by draft animals. All entries hereafter constructed in which the hauling is done by draft animal and wherein the employes perform their work or use as a means of ingress and egress to and from their working places, shall be maintained substantially eight feet in width from one rib or side of the entry or haulage way to the opposite side, which shall be kept free from timbers or other refuse and as reasonably even on the surface of each side of the track as may be reasonably practicable; provided, however, that this section of this act shall not apply to such haulage ways in longwall work when the inspector of the district where the mine is located shall determine that it is impracticable to maintain the width of the entry or haulage way as herein provided. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 19.]

SEC. 2487. Time for constructing outlets. Section twenty-four hundred eighty-seven of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In all mines there shall be allowed one year to make escape shafts or other means of exit as provided by law, but not more than twenty persons shall be employed in such mine at any time until the provisions of the law relating to escape shafts or other means of exit shall have been complied with and after the expiration of the period above mentioned it shall not be operated until made to conform to the provisions of law with reference to the escape shafts or other means of exit." [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 20.]

SEC. 2488. Ventilation—measurements of air. The law as it appears in section twenty-four hundred eighty-eight of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of any mine, whether operated by shaft, slope or drift shall provide and maintain an amount of ventilation of not less than one hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each person employed in the mine, nor less than five hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each mule, horse or other animal used therein, which shall be so circulated throughout the mine so as to dilute, render harmless and expel all noxious and poisonous gases in all working parts of the same; but in no case shall the air current be a greater distance than sixty feet from the working face except when making crosscuts in entries for an air course, then in that case the distance shall not be greater than seventy feet; provided, however, that in a special case requiring it, the state mine inspector may, in writing grant permission to go beyond the limit herein mentioned. When the air current is carried to the working face of the room in double room mining, such air current shall be treated as that contemplated in this act. The measurements of the air currents as herein contemplated shall be taken at the bottom of the intake and near the mouth of each split thereof, and also near the working face of the entries; the person in charge of the mine shall be furnished with an anemometer by the owner or lessee of the mine, who shall take the measurements of the air as herein contemplated at least once each week and make a record thereof showing the time and place and when and where measurements were taken, copy thereof shall be retained at the office of the mine where operated, and report sent each month to the state mine inspector of the district in which said mine is operated. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 21.] [27 G. A., ch. 59, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 56, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 21, § 10.]

Failure of a mine owner to so far remove or dilute noxious gases as to render the mine a safe place for the miners to work will render him liable. Mosgrove v. Zimbleman Coal Co., 110–169, 81 N. W. 227.

SEC. 2488-a. Air currents to be split. "In every mine the air current shall be split and so conducted that not more than eighty employes at any time shall be employed on or in each split except in case of emergency. Provided that the inspector of the district where the mine is located may in writing grant permission for a greater number not to exceed fifty when the required number of cubic feet of air per minute is properly circulated therein. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 22.]

SEC. 2488-b. Contrivances for supplying air current. "Artificial means of exhaust steam, fans, furnaces or other contrivances of sufficient capacity shall be kept in operation to supply the air current, but if a furnace is used it shall be so constructed by lining the upcast for a distance for not less than fifty feet or for such greater distance as special cases may be required and determined by the state mine inspector, with indestructible material so that fire cannot be communicated to any part of the works. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 23.]

SEC. 2488-c. Doors in haulage ways—duty of employes. "On all haulage ways where doors are maintained to direct the air current, it shall be the duty of the driver or other employes, passing through the same, to see that the same are properly closed. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 24.]

SEC. 2488-d. Breaks-through in entries. "All breaks-through in entries except the last one shall be securely closed and all stoppings in breaks-through except the one next to the last in the entries shall be made with some substantial material so as to securely and completely close the same, and thereby prevent the air from passing through or in any part thereof, which shall be subject to the state mine inspector's approval, who is hereby authorized and empowered to require any change to be made in the material or construction for the purpose of and to reasonably comply with the provisions of law and for the purposes intended. The stoppings in the next to the last break-through in entries may be constructed temporarily of some suitable material until one additional break-through has been made when the temporary stopping shall be replaced with material as by this act contemplated. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 25.]

SEC. 2488-e. Breaks-through in rooms. "All breaks-through in the rooms, except the last one shall be closed and securely fastened so as to prevent the air from passing through the same, which stoppings shall be of suitable material and subject to the approval of the state mine inspector of the district in which the mine is operated. The mouth or openings of all abandoned rooms shall be securely closed in the manner as provided for permanent stoppings in entries and all abandoned works shall be closed in like manner. All breaks-through in entries must be of an area of not less than twenty-five feet and in rooms not less than twenty feet for the purpose of and to accommodate the air current as herein contemplated. [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 26.]

SEC. 2488-f. Unhealthful conditions—changes ordered—suspension of work—violation—penalty. "When the state mine inspector finds the air insufficient or the employes working in unsafe or under improper health conditions, he shall at once give notice to the mine owner or his agent or person in charge, and upon failure to make the necessary changes within such reasonable time as said mine inspector may fix, he shall then and there order the employes, except such as may be necessary to correct the defect and make the repairs, to cease work and remain out of the mine until the defects are corrected and the mine put in proper condition, and any person, employer or employe failing to comply with the order of the state mine inspector relating thereto shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five dollars and not more than one hundred dollars." [34 G. A., ch. 106, § 27.]

Whether a roof which is in a dangerous condition should be propped by the miner or by the mine owner is to be determined by the jury with reference to whether it is the roof of a room under the charge of the miner, or of an entry for the safety of which the mine owner is responsible. Taylor v. Star Coal Co., 110–40, 81 N. W. 249.

The requirement that safety gates shall be maintained at the entrance to a mine shaft contemplates the guarding of the shaft opening so as to prevent involuntary entrance and not an absolute and complete covering of the shaft. Jacobson v. Smith, 123–263, 98 N. W. 773.

An employe engaged at work on top of the cage in a mine shaft cannot complain of the negligence of the mine owner in not providing the cage with a cover. Ibid.

The superintendent of a mine having the authority to provide an engineer as a substitute for the regular engineer in charge of the hoisting machinery and power, held that the superintendent himself attempting to operate such machinery and power in the absence of the engineer rendered the employer liable for damages from his own incompetency to discharge such duty. Beresford v. American Coal Co., 124–34, 98 N. W. 902.

The duty to furnish the necessary props is on the owner and the duty to use them in rooms being made by the employes is upon such employes. Lammey v. Center Coal Mining Co., 144–640, 123 N. W. 356.

Negligence of a coemploye in failing to procure or use props will defeat recovery by an employe who is injured. Ibid.

The overhead covers required on cages are obviously intended to protect the employe and others who may be upon a cage or in a shaft beneath, from injury from the falling of coal or other heavy substance from the top. Poli v. Numa Block Coal Co., 149–104, 127 N. W. 1105.

The employer cannot avail himself of the plea of assumption of risk as against the consequences of failing to afford to the employe the protection required by this statutory provision. Ibid.

Although the company is by law required to employ only duly licensed engineers and pit bosses, nevertheless those persons are not to be treated as quasi officers of the state so as to relieve the employer from liability for their negligence. Ibid.

If the defendant has failed to comply with the order made by the judge, such defendant may be charged with contempt of court and upon conviction thereof be fined not to exceed five hundred dollars and committed to the county jail until such fine is paid. The clerk of the district court where such petition has been filed shall issue subpoenas at the request of either party, and witnesses shall be required to respond thereto as in other cases, and it shall be a part of the county attorney's official duty to represent the plaintiff in all matters pertaining to the proceedings. Pending such proceedings, the judge may, if in his judgment it is deemed advisable for the safety of the employes, order the mine closed until such changes are made as have been directed by him. CHAPTER 9-A.

OF THE CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF GYPSUM MINES.

SECTION 2496-f. Escape and air shafts—contiguous mines. The owner or person in charge of any gypsum mine operated by shaft or one having a slope or drift opening in which five or more men are employed shall construct and maintain at least two distinct openings, which in shaft mines hereafter constructed shall be separated by not less than three hundred feet and in slope or drift mines by not less than two hundred feet in breadth through which, in every shaft or slope mine, ingress and egress at all times shall be unobstructed and free from water. All escape shafts hereafter constructed shall have stairs at an angle of not more than sixty degrees in descent, with a stairway not less than two feet in width, kept in safe condition, with proper landings at easy and convenient distances apart and adequate means of escape from mines now in operation. He shall provide all air shafts with fans for ventilating purposes, and no combustible material shall be allowed to be or remain between any escape shaft and hoisting shaft nor shall any building hereafter erected be located within two hundred feet of an escape shaft without written permission from the state inspector. Where two or more mines are connected underground the several owners may, by agreement, use the hoisting shaft or slope of one mine as an escape for the other. No escape shaft shall be located or constructed without first giving notice to, and obtaining the approval in writing of the state mine inspector. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 1.]

SEC. 2496-g. Time allowed to make changes. In all mines there shall be allowed one year to make outlets as provided for in section one hereof but no more than twenty men shall be employed in such mine at one time until the provisions of section one are complied with, and after the expiration of the period above mentioned, should the mine not have the outlets aforesaid, it shall not be operated until made to conform to the provisions of section one. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 2.]

SEC. 2496-h. Ventilation—air measurement—inspection. The owner or person in charge of any mine shall provide and maintain, whether the mine be operated by shaft, slope or drift, an amount of ventilation of not less than one hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each person, nor less than five hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each mule or horse employed therein, which shall be so circulated throughout the mines as to dilute, render harmless and expel all noxious and poisonous gases in all working parts of the same. But in no case shall the air current be a greater distance than sixty feet from the working face, except when making crosscuts in entries for air courses; then, in that case, the distance shall not be greater than seventy feet; provided, however, that the state mine inspector may, in writing, grant permission to go beyond the limit herein mentioned, when the conditions are such in a special case as to require it. When the mine inspector shall find the air insufficient, or men working under unsafe conditions, he shall at once give notice to the mine owner or his agent or person in charge, and, upon the failure to make the necessary changes within a reasonable time, to be fixed by him, he may order the men out, to remain out until the mine is put in proper condition. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 3.]

SEC. 2496-i. Speaking tubes—safety appliances—engineers—props. The owner or person in charge of any mine shall in all mines operated by shaft or slope, where the voice cannot be distinctly heard, provide and maintain a metal speaking tube or other means of communication, kept in complete order from the bottom or interior to the top or exterior, also a sufficient safety catch and proper cover overhead on all cages, and an adequate brake to all drums or other devices used for lowering or hoisting persons, an approved safety gate at the top of each shaft, springs at the top of each slope, and a trail attached to each train used therein. He shall not knowingly place in charge of any engine used in or about the operation of the mines any but experienced, competent and sober engineers, who shall have the same qualifications as are required of hoisting engineers at coal mines, and who shall not allow anyone but those designated for that purpose to handle or in any way interfere with it or any part of the machinery, nor shall more than ten persons be allowed to descend or ascend in any cage at one time, or such less number as may be fixed by the state mine inspector, nor anyone but the conductor on a loaded car or cage. He shall at all times keep a sufficient supply of timber to be used as props, convenient and ready for use, and shall send such props down when required and deliver them to the places where needed. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 4.]

SEC. 2496-j. Violation—writ of injunction. In addition to any and all other remedies if any owner or person in charge of any mine shall fail to provide the requirements herein specified, or such owner or agent neglect for twenty days after notice given in writing by the state mine inspector of such failure to remedy the same, such inspector may apply to the district court or any judge thereof in an action brought in the name of the state for a writ of injunction to restrain the working of the mine with more persons at the same time than are necessary to make the improvements needed, save as may be required to prevent waste, until such appliances have been provided, and in case an injury happens to those engaged in the work because of such failure, the same shall be held culpable negligence on the part of the operator of the mine. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 5.]

SEC. 2496-k. Duties and powers state mine inspector. It is hereby made the duty of the state mine inspector to enforce the provisions of this act. He shall have the right to enter any gypsum mine under the provisions of this act, at any time, but shall not unnecessarily interfere with the working of any mine, nor shall more than six months intervene between examinations of any such mine. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 6.]

SEC. 2496-l. Fatal accidents—reports. Every person in charge of a mine under the provisions of this act shall, within twenty-four hours after a fatal accident happens to any employe in or around the mine, report the same to the coroner of the county in which the mine is operated and to the state mine inspector. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 7.]

SEC. 2496-m. Maps—surveys—abandoned mines. The owner, aperator, lessee or person in charge of any gypsum mine shall make or cause to be made an accurate map or plan of such mine, drawn to a scale not more than two hundred feet to the inch, on which shall appear the name of the state, county and township in which the mine is located, the designation of the mine, the name of the company or owner, operator, lessee or person in charge, the certificate of the mining engineer or surveyor as to the accuracy and date of the survey, the north point and the scale to which the drawing is made. Every such map or plan shall correctly show the surface boundary lines of the rights pertaining to each mine and all sections or quarter section lines or corners within the same; the lines of town lots or streets; the tracks or side tracks of all railroads, the location of all wagon roads, rivers, streams, ponds, reservations made of gypsum and mineral. For the underground workings said map shall show all shafts, slopes, tunnels or other opening to the surface or to the workings of a continuous mine; all excavations, entries, rooms and crosscuts; the location of the escape ways, and of the fan or furnace or other means of ventilation and the direction of air currents and the location of permanent pumps, hauling engines, engine planes, abandoned works, fire walls and standing water. A separate and similar map drawn to the same scale in all cases shall be made of each and every seam of gypsum operated in any mine in the state. A separate map shall also be made of the surface whenever the surface buildings, lines or objects are so numerous as to obscure the details of the mine workings if drawn upon the same sheet with them and in such case the surface map shall be drawn upon transparent cloth or paper so it can be laid upon the map of the underground workings and thus truly indicate the local relation of lines and objects on the surface to the excavation of the mine, together with any other principal workings of the mines. Each map shall also show by profile drawing and measurement, the last one hundred fifty feet approaching the boundary lines, showing the rise and dip of the seam. The original or true copies of all such maps shall be kept at the office of the mine and true copies thereof shall also be furnished the state mine inspector for the district in which said mine is located within thirty days after the completion of the same. The maps so delivered to the inspector shall be the property of the state and shall remain in the custody of the said inspector during his term of office and be delivered to his successor in office. They shall be kept at the office of the inspector and be open to examination to all persons interested in the same. But such examination shall only be made in the presence of the inspector or his office assistant, and he shall not permit any copies of the same to be made without the written consent of the operator or the owner of the property, except as herein and otherwise provided. An accurate extension of the last preceding survey of every mine in active operation shall be made once in every twelve months prior to July first of every year and the result of such survey with the date thereof shall be promptly and accurately entered upon the original map and a true, correct and accurate copy of said extended map shall be forwarded to the inspector of mines in the district in which said mine is located so as to show all changes in plan of new work in the mine, and all extension of the old workings to the most advanced face or boundary of said workings which have been made since the last preceding survey, and the parts of the mine abandoned or worked out after the last preceding survey shall be clearly indicated and shown by colorings, which copy must be delivered to the inspector of mines within thirty days after the last survey is made. When any gypsum mine is worked out or is about to be abandoned or indefinitely closed, the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of the same shall make or cause to be made a complete extended map of said mine and the result of the same shall be duly extended on all maps of the mine and copies thereof so as to show all excavations and the most advanced workings of the mine and their exact relation to the boundary of section lines on the surface, and deliver to the inspector a copy of the completed map. The state inspector of mines shall order a survey to be made of the workings of any mine and the result to be extended on the maps of the same and the copies thereof whenever in his judgment the safety of the workmen, the support of the surface, the conservation of the property or the safety of the adjoining mine requires it; and if not made by the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge when ordered by the inspector it shall be made or caused[1] to be made by the inspector and paid for by the state and the amount collected from the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge as other debts are collected. [35 G. A., ch. 198, § 8.]

SEC. 2496-n. Violation—penalties. Any owner or person in charge of any gypsum mine who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this act, or either of them, or shall hinder or obstruct the carrying out of any of the requirements of this act shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding sixty days or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or if any miner, workman or other person knowingly injure or interfere with any air course or brattice, or obstruct or throw open doors or disturb any part of the machinery, or disobey any order given in carrying out the provisions of this act whereby the lives and health of the persons, or the security of the mines and machinery is endangered, or shall neglect or refuse to securely prop any entries under his control, or refuse to obey any order given by the superintendent in relation to the safety of the mine or that part of the mine under his charge or control he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the[1] county jail not exceeding thirty days. "He shall make detailed maps and reports of counties and districts as fast as the work is completed, which shall embrace such geological, mineralogical, topographical and scientific details as are necessary to make complete records thereof, and, when the information obtained warrants it, the results of any special investigation made by him may be brought together in a report for publication, accompanied by proper illustrations and diagrams. He shall coöperate with the United States geological survey and with adjoining state surveys in the making of topographic maps and the study of geologic problems of the state when in the opinion of the geological board such coöperation will result in profit to the state. He shall, before the first day of January of each year, make to the geological board a full report of the work in the preceding year, together with such minor reports and papers as may be considered desirable for publication." [31 G. A., ch. 104, §§ 1, 2; 24 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.]

SEC. 2501. Annual report—bulletins. The annual report, together with bulletins of educational and scientific value, and special bulletins containing information necessary for the immediate use of the people at large, shall be published by the state under the direction of the board, and disposed of as other published reports of state officers when no special provision is made, but the copies remaining in the control of the board after such distribution, after retaining a sufficient number to supply probable future demands, shall be sold to persons making application therefor at the cost price of publication, the money thus accruing to be turned into the treasury of the state. [31 G. A., ch. 104, § 3; 24 G. A., ch. 71, § 5.]

[For repeal of original code section see § 2500. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 11.

OF INSPECTION OF PETROLEUM PRODUCTS.

SECTION 2503. Inspectors — chief inspector. The governor shall appoint inspectors of products of petroleum, not exceeding fourteen in number, one of whom shall be designated as chief inspector, who shall have general supervision of the inspection service of the state, except in the matter of making reports and the payment and receipts of fees. All differences arising in the inspection of oils shall be referred to the chief inspector and his decision of the question shall be final. The chief inspector shall make such recommendations to the state board of health as may be deemed necessary to improve the inspection service. He shall devote his time and service wholly to the inspection of oil and the duties of his office. Inspectors may appoint such deputies, helpers and branders as may be necessary in the proper discharge of their official duties, but such appointments before becoming effective must be submitted to, approved and confirmed, and their compensation fixed by the executive council as in their judgment may be necessary, equitable and just. Each inspector shall be a resident of the state, and not interested directly or indirectly in the manufacture or sale of products of petroleum. His term of office shall begin on the first day of July in each odd-numbered year. He shall give bond to the state in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties, with sureties who shall, in addition to the usual justification, make oath, entered on the bond, that they are not directly or indirectly interested in the manufacture or sale of products of petroleum for illuminating purposes, which bond shall be for the benefit of all persons injured through the failure of the inspector to perform his duties, and shall be filed with, and the sureties thereon approved by, the secretary of state. Provided however, that the term of office of the inspectors appointed during the year nineteen hundred and six shall expire on the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and seven. [31 G. A., ch.

105, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 87, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 61, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 149, § 4; 20 G. A., ch. 185, §§ 1, 3, 12, 14.]

[For repeal of original code and supplement section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2504. Regulations. The state board of health shall make rules and regulations for the inspection of petroleum products, for the government of inspectors, and prescribe the instruments and apparatus to be used. Such rules and regulations shall be approved by the governor, and, when so approved, shall be binding upon all inspectors. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 185, § 2.]

[For repeal of original code section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2505. Inspection—branding—fees—supplies—rebate. Each inspector shall be furnished, at reasonable expense to the state, with the necessary supplies, instruments and apparatus for testing, and shall promptly make inspection, and test and brand all illuminating oils kept for sale, and for such purpose may enter upon the premises of any person. He shall reject all oils for illuminating purposes which will emit a combustible vapor at a temperature of 100° standard Fahrenheit thermometer, closed test, not less than one-half pint of oil to be used in the flash test. If upon test and examination the oil shall meet the requirements, he shall brand over his official signature and date the barrel or package holding the same, "Approved, flash test ..... degrees," inserting in the blank the number. Should it fail to meet the requirements, it shall be branded under his official signature and date, "Rejected for illuminating purposes." All inspections shall be made within the state, and paid for by the person for whom the inspection is made, at the rate of ten cents per barrel, fifty-five gallons for this purpose constituting a barrel, which charge shall be a lien upon the oil inspected, and be collected by the inspector, reported and paid to the secretary of state, on or before the fifteenth day of each month. For the purposes of this act, gasoline, benzine and naphtha shall be deemed illuminating oil. No gasoline shall be sold, given away or delivered to any person in this state until the package, cask, barrel or vessel containing the same has been plainly marked "gasoline" in such manner as the executive council may prescribe. There shall be no refund nor rebate of charges made or paid for inspection, except upon a duly verified certificate of the owner that the goods, for which such rebate is asked, have been disposed of outside of the state. Said certificate to be in such form as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state and shall be delivered to the inspector and attached to his monthly report. The amount of such rebate per barrel allowed during any fiscal year shall be determined by the secretary of state during the month of July of each year and shall equal approximately the net proceeds per barrel from the inspection service of the state during the preceding fiscal year, the same to be even cents per barrel and in no case more than the net proceeds above mentioned. Any person, firm, corporation or agent violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. All necessary supplies, labels, instruments and apparatus as contemplated in this chapter, shall be purchased by the executive council, and shall be furnished to inspectors as needed by them, upon requisition therefor, made to the chief inspector, approved by him and forwarded to the executive council. Every person who receives products of petroleum for sale which have not been inspected as provided in this chapter, shall, within five days after the receipt thereof, notify the inspector of that inspection district that the same is in his possession; and to neglect so to do shall be deemed a misdemeanor. [34 G. A., ch. 108, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 3; 26 G. A., ch. 94; 24 G. A., ch. 52, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 149, §§ 1, 2, 4; 20 G. A., ch. 185, §§ 1, 2, 4, 14.]

[For repeal of original code section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

The failure of the seller to label a vessel containing gasoline sold to a customer, as required by this section, held to constitute negligence per se so as to render the seller liable for injuries sustained by a minor daughter of the purchaser in using the gasoline to start a fire, under the belief that it was the ordinary form of coal oil. Ives v. Welden, 114–476, 87 N. W. 408.

SEC. 2506. A copy of this record duly verified under oath for the preceding month shall be filed with the secretary of state on or before the fifteenth day of each month, who shall examine said report and if found correct endorse his approval thereon, and certify the same to the executive council, and when approved by said council, the auditor of state shall issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount so approved and due the several inspectors, and no item of expense shall be allowed and paid not shown in such reports. It shall be the duty of all persons, firms or corporations, officers or agents thereof within the state, receiving any of the products of petroleum subject to inspection, to file with the secretary of state on or before the tenth day of each month, a certificate duly verified, in such form as shall be approved by the secretary of state, to cover the month preceding the one in which said report is made. Such report shall show the number of tanks or barrels, and if in tanks the tank number, of each product inspected for such person, firm, corporation, officer or agent, the amount of fees paid for such inspection, to whom paid, and that the amounts so stated are all the products received by him or them which are subject to inspection during such period. For any failure to make the reports contemplated in this section the person, firm, corporation, officer, agent or employe shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. Inspectors shall also be allowed such other sums necessarily and actually expended in the discharge of their official duties; and for necessary expenses incurred for prosecution of violation of the provisions of this chapter, and for neces-

Penalties—damages. If any person, company or corporation, or agent thereof, shall sell, or attempt to sell, any product of petroleum for illuminating purposes which has not been inspected and branded as in this chapter provided, or shall falsely brand any barrel or package containing such petroleum product, or shall refill with products of petroleum barrels or packages having the inspector's brand thereon, without erasing such brand and having the contents thereof inspected, and the barrel or package rebranded, or shall purchase, sell or dispose of any empty barrel or package without thoroughly removing the inspection brand, or shall knowingly or negligently sell or cause to be sold, or shall use or cause to be used, any product of petroleum mentioned in this chapter not inspected and tested, except as otherwise authorized herein; or if any person shall adulterate with any substance for the purpose of sale or use any product of petroleum to be used for illuminating purposes in such a manner as to render it dangerous, or shall sell or offer for sale, or use any product of petroleum for illuminating purposes, which will emit a combustible vapor at a temperature of less than 105°, standard Fahrenheit thermometer, closed test, except as otherwise provided in this section for illuminating railway cars, boats and public conveyance, and except when the oils from which said gas or vapor is generated in closed reservoirs outside the building to be lighted thereby, and except the lighter products of petroleum when used in such lamps or apparatus which, having been submitted to the state board of health and having been examined and tested by said board shall be found to be safe for the use of the public and for street light by street lamps, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or if any common carrier shall carry in any railway passenger, baggage, mail, or express car, street railway car, boat, stage coach, omnibus, or other means of public conveyance, or use or burn therein any oil or fluid, whether composed wholly or in part of petroleum or its products, which will ignite and burn at a temperature of 300° Fahrenheit thermometer, open test, for lighting any lamp, vessel, or fixture of any kind, or boat or street railway car, stage coach or other means of public conveyance; or if any inspector shall falsely brand any package or barrel, or shall practice any fraud or deceit in office, or be guilty of any official misconduct or culpable negligence to the injury of another, or shall deal or have any pecuniary interest, directly or indirectly in any oils or fluids sold for illuminating purposes while holding such office, he or such person, company, corporation or agent shall be fined not less than fifty dollars and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages which may be sustained on account thereof, and each such inspector shall be fined in a sum not less than ten dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months, or be punished by both fine and imprisonment. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 6; 29 G. A., ch. 168, § 1;

29 G. A., ch. 101, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 83, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 62, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 149, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 185, §§ 1, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 13.]

[For repeal of original code and supplement section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

The exception of the proviso in this section as to the "Welsbach hydrocarbon incandescent lamp" is unconstitutional as attempting to confer a special privilege, but the whole section is not invalid on that account, as the exception is not necessary to the completeness of the general statutory provision which had been in force prior to the attempt to incorporate the exception. State v. Santee, 111–1, 82 N. W. 445.

Even though the seller is put upon notice that the oil may be dangerous, he is not required as a matter of law to provide himself with apparatus for making a closed test such as the statute requires to be made by an inspector, nor to call upon an inspector to make such test. The duty of the seller upon receiving information such as would lead a reasonably prudent man to think that the oil which he is selling does not correspond to the brand on the barrel, is to make, or cause to be made, such inspection as would reasonably determine whether the oil which he is selling is in fact dangerous. Chapman v. Pfarr, 145–196, 123 N. W. 992.

It cannot be said as a matter of law that the brand of the inspector will protect the dealer from a charge of negligence in selling oil erroneously branded. The seller may be negligent in not detecting the true nature of the article which he is handling. Chapman v. Pfarr, 153–20, 132 N. W. 957.

SEC. 2508-a. Duties of state board of health — examination of lamps and apparatus. The state board of health shall examine the particular design, mechanism, and workmanship of such lamps or apparatus as shall be presented to such board, and test said lamps or apparatus, and, if it shall find any lamp or apparatus to be safe, said board shall enter the findings of the board upon the records of the proceedings of said board. The board shall have power, in case it comes to the notice of the board that any lamp or apparatus which it has heretofore approved as safe, because either of change of design, the use of unsuitable material, or poor workmanship in the construction of such lamps or apparatus, or for any other cause, is unsafe as then manufactured, and dangerous to public safety, to cancel its approval of such lamp or apparatus, and after such cancellation of the approval of said lamp or apparatus, it shall be unlawful to sell or use the same, and no lamps or apparatus manufactured or sold after such disapproval shall be used in burning the lighter products of petroleum for illuminating purposes. The state board of health shall notify by registered letter the several inspectors of any approval or disapproval by them of any lamp or apparatus submitted to them for examination. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 7; 29 G. A., ch. 168, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

[For repeal of original supplement section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2509. Removal of inspectors. It shall be the duty of the governor to remove from office any inspector who is incompetent or unfaithful in the discharge of his official duty, or, having knowledge of the violation of any of the provisions of this chapter, shall neglect or refuse to prosecute the offender. In July of each year each inspector shall file with the secretary of the executive council an inventory of all instruments and apparatus belonging to the state, in his possession, or that of his deputy or helper, which shall be fully accounted for in such manner as may be prescribed by the executive council. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 8; 20 G. A., ch. 185, § 9.]

[For repeal of original code section see § 2510. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2509-a. Biennial report. The secretary of state shall make and deliver to the governor a report, for the fiscal year ending on the thirtieth day of June in each even-numbered year, of all inspections made, the receipts and expenditures therefor, and such other items as are by this chapter required to be made of record. Provided, however, he shall make and deliver report to the governor for the fiscal year ending on the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and six, which report shall cover the period only from the date of his last biennial report. [31 G. A., ch. 105, § 2; 30 G. A., ch. 87, § 9.]

SEC. 2510. Repeal. The law as it appears in chapter eleven, title twelve, of the code and the law as it appears in sections twenty-five hundred and three, twenty-five hundred and eight and twenty-five hundred and eight-a, of the supplement to the code, [1902] relating to the inspection of petroleum products, are hereby repealed and the foregoing enacted in lieu thereof. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 10.]

SEC. 2510-1a. Gasoline—benzine—naphtha—labels—brands. That all products of petroleum, known as gasoline, benzine or naphtha, sold or kept for sale within this state, shall be labeled or branded in plain, clear, legible letters in English and figures showing the Baume gravity test at a temperature of 60° Fahrenheit. If such petroleum products are sold by the barrel, half-barrel or cask, the label shall be placed in a conspicuous place on each barrel, half-barrel or cask. If sold from a tank wagon, the person selling or delivering the same shall show on each sale ticket the gravity test as hereinbefore provided. [34 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2510-2a. Failure to brand—false labels. Any person, firm, company, association or corporation, or any employe or agent of any such person, firm, company, association or corporation, who shall sell or cause to be sold or keep for sale within this state, any products of petroleum known as gasoline, benzine or naphtha, which has not been branded as above required, or which shall be falsely or incorrectly branded, or which is labeled so as to mislead or deceive the purchaser, or which is not equal to the gravity test as stated therein, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [34 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

SEC. 2510-3a. Inspection. It shall be the duty of the chief oil inspector, or such state inspector or deputy as may be directed by him, upon complaint, to inspect gasoline, benzine or naphtha for the purpose of determining as to whether the same is up to the standard and quality as shown by the label thereon; or said chief oil inspector may at his own option inspect, or cause to be inspected, such petroleum products. [34 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

SEC. 2510-4a. Authority to enter premises. The chief oil inspector, or any state inspector or deputy, is hereby invested with authority and jurisdiction to enter upon the premises of anyone selling or keeping for sale within this state any gasoline, benzine or naphtha, for the purpose of inspecting the same as herein provided. [34 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.]

CHAPTER 11-A.

OF THE MANUFACTURE AND SALE OF PAINT, THE ADULTERATION THEREOF AND PENALTY.

SECTION 2510-a. Repeal. Sections twenty-five hundred ten-a, twenty-five hundred ten-b, twenty-five hundred ten-c, twenty-five hundred ten-d and twenty-five hundred ten-e of the supplement to the code [1902] are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 8; 27 G. A., ch. 52, §§ 1–5.]

Duty of manufacturers and dealers. Every person, firm or corporation who shall expose for sale, or sell, within this state, any white lead, or paint, shall accurately label the same as hereinafter required. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 9; 33 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.]

[For repeal of original 1902 supplement section see § 2510-a. EDITOR.]

[For special provisions respecting this section see § 2510-m. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2510-c. "Paint" defined. The term "paint" as used in this act shall include white lead in oil or any compound intended for the same use, paste or semi-paste, and liquid or mixed paint ready for use, or any compound intended for the same use. [33 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 2.]

[For repeal of original supplement section see § 2510-a. EDITOR.]

[For special provisions respecting this section see § 2510-m. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2510-d. Labels. Labels required by this act shall clearly and distinctly state the name and address of the manufacturer of the article, or the dealer therein, or of the party for whom the same is manufactured and show, with substantial accuracy, the percentage of each ingredient, both solid and liquid, contained therein (in continuous list with no intervening matter of any kind); provided that in case of paint other than white paint, the ingredients, other than the coloring material, may be treated as one hundred per cent., in which case it shall be necessary to state the description or trade name of such coloring matter and state, with substantial accuracy, its chemical analysis. The label shall also state, in case of liquid paints and other compounds, on packages holding one quart or more, the net measure of contents of each can, package or container. [For repeal of original 1902 supplement section see § 2510-a. EDITOR.]

The evident purpose of the statute in requiring the inspection of linseed oil is to prevent fraud and deceit. The statute does not prohibit the sale of linseed oil that is adulterated, or any compound that contains such oil, where the product is not sold as pure linseed oil. State v. Holton, 148–724, 126 N. W. 1125.

The provision as to the sale of linseed oil not conforming to the chemical test for purity only applies to raw linseed oil, inasmuch as boiled linseed oil always contains a dryer and no test for purity thereof is found in the United States Pharmacopoeia. State v. Manhattan Oil Co., 155–453, 136 N. W. 197.

SEC. 2510-f. Tanks or vessels containing oil to be marked—repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 9.] [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 5.]

[See § 2510-e. EDITOR.]

This section has no application to boiled linseed oil, as prior to the enactment of 34 G. A., ch. 110, there was no recognized standard of purity as to such oil. State v. Manhattan Oil Co., 155–453, 136 N. W. 197.

SEC. 2510-g. Enforcement—bulletins. It is hereby made the duty of the state food and dairy commissioner to enforce the provisions of this act. The inspectors, assistants and chemists appointed by the state food and dairy commissioner shall perform the same duties and have the same authority under this act as are prescribed by chapter one hundred sixty-six, laws of the thirty-first general assembly. The state food and dairy commissioner shall, from time to time, with the approval of the executive council, publish bulletins, giving the results of inspections and analyses, together with such additional information as he may deem suitable. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 6.]

SEC. 2510-h. Penalty. Whoever shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. [33 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 7.]

[For special provisions respecting this section see § 2510-m. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2510-i. When effective. This act shall take effect on January first, nineteen hundred and eight. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 9.]

SEC. 2510-j. Sale of gasoline—conditions—penalty. Every person dealing at retail in gasoline in this state shall after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and seven, deliver the same to the purchaser, in quantities of more than one quart and less than six gallons, only in barrels, casks, packages, cans or measures painted vermilion red and having the word "gasoline" plainly stenciled or marked thereon. No such dealer shall deliver kerosene in a barrel, cask, package or can painted or marked as above. Every person purchasing gasoline for use shall procure and keep the same only in barrels, casks, packages or cans painted and marked as above. No person keeping for use, or using, kerosene shall put or keep the same in any barrel, cask, package or can painted or marked as above. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by fine of not less than five, nor more than one hundred dollars. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 1.]

In a particular case held that defendant's having violated the law in putting gasoline into a kerosene can, not being the proximate cause of the injury complained of, was not material. Dubois v. Luthmers, 147–315, 126 N. W. 147.

SEC. 2510-k. For manufacturing or mechanical purposes. This act shall not be construed to prohibit the use of gasoline from tanks or reservoirs, of not less than ten gallons capacity, for manufacturing or mechanical purposes. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.]

SEC. 2510-l. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 3.]

SEC. 2510-m. Effective as to certain articles—when. That the provisions of sections twenty-five hundred ten-b, twenty-five hundred ten-c, twenty-five hundred ten-d, and twenty-five hundred ten-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall not until November first, nineteen hundred ten, apply to any articles therein described which were in the state in the hands of jobbers and dealers on January first, nineteen hundred and eight, provided such articles were not manufactured or contracted for after July fourth, nineteen hundred and seven. [33 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.]

SEC. 2510-o. "United States Pharmacopoeia." The term "United States Pharmacopoeia" as used in this act, shall refer to the latest revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia, official at the time of the sale in question. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2510-p. Boiled linseed oil—requirements. That no person, firm or corporation shall expose for sale, sell, or take orders for sale and delivery within this state, any "boiled linseed oil" or so-called "boiled oil," unless the same shall have been prepared by heating pure raw linseed oil to a temperature of at least 107° centigrade, and, if desired, incorporating not to exceed three per cent. by weight of dryer. And for the purpose of this act, it shall also be deemed a violation hereof if boiled linseed oil does not conform to the following requirements:

First. Its specific gravity at $^{20}/_{20}°$ centigrade must be not less than 0.935 and not greater than 0.945.

Second. Its saponification number must not be less than 186.

Fourth. Its acid value must not exceed 10.

Fifth. The volatile matter expelled at 100° centigrade must not exceed one half of one per cent.

Sixth. No mineral oil shall be present, and the amount of unsaponifiable matter as determined by standard methods, shall not exceed two per cent.

Seventh. The film left after flowing the oil over glass and allowing it to drain in a vertical position, must dry free from tackiness in not to exceed twenty hours, at a temperature of about 20° centigrade. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 3.]

SEC. 2510-q. Labels. That no person, firm or corporation shall expose for sale or sell any flaxseed or linseed oil unless it is exposed for sale or sold under its true name, and each original unbroken tank car, tank, barrel, keg or vessel containing such oil has distinctly and durably marked thereon the true name of such oil, and the name and place of business of the manufacturer thereof, in ordinary bold-faced capital letters not less than five-line pica in size, the words "pure linseed oil—raw," "pure linseed oil—boiled," as the case may be. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 4.]

SEC. 2510-r. Substitutes—how labeled. That no person, firm or corporation shall expose for sale, sell, or take orders for sale and delivery within this state, any compound or mixture of linseed oil (raw or boiled) with other products, or any product which is intended to be used as a substitute for linseed oil (raw or boiled), unless it is exposed for sale and sold under the name, "substitute for linseed oil," and, if the words "linseed" or "flaxseed" are used other than in the name, the true name of each and every ingredient of said product shall also appear, giving preference of order to the ingredients present in the greater proportion, but all letters used in naming the ingredients shall be of the same size and color, using the style of type as hereinafter specified. Each tank car, tank, barrel, keg, can, jug or vessel (both wholesale and retail), also all storage receptacles containing said product, shall be distinctly and durably marked in a conspicuous place, using the English language and kind of type as hereinafter specified, giving the name under which it is sold, the names of ingredients when required and the name and place of business of the manufacturer thereof, in continuous list, with no intervening matter of any kind, using ordinary bold-faced capital letters not less than five-line pica in size, and there shall be such a contrast between the color of the type and the background of the label as to render the same easily and plainly legible; provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as interfering with the sale of boiled linseed oil containing not to exceed three per cent. by weight of dryer as defined in section three of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 5.]

SEC. 2510-s. Failure to label—false label. Any failure to label said article as above specified or any erasures, defacements or carelessness in printing or stamping labels or any statement regarding the composition of said article or any statements of any kind which are misleading, deceptive or which are not true are hereby declared a violation of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 110, § 7.]

1. Its specific gravity at $^{20}/_{20}^{\circ}$ centigrade must be not less than 0.860 and not greater than 0.875.
2. Its index of refraction at 20° centigrade must not be less than 1.4680 and not greater than 1.4725.
3. Its iodine absorption number must not be less than 340.

[The secretary of state, in compiling the session laws of 34 G. A., indicated in the title of the above act (ch. 111, 34 G. A.) that the act is additional to ch. 11-A, title XII, of the supplement to the code, 1907; but in view of the fact that the title of ch. 11-A was so amended by § 9 of ch. 110, 34 G. A. (§ 2510-e), as to eliminate everything except paint, it has been deemed advisable to place the said act as 11-C in this work. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 12.

OF THE INSPECTION OF PASSENGER BOATS.

SECTION 2512. Certificates—fees. Any inspector, on the request of the owner, agent or master of any boat other than rowboat, upon the inland waters of the state, having a carrying capacity of five or more passengers, shall carefully and thoroughly inspect such boat, its appliances and machinery, and, if found in proper condition and safe for the carriage of persons or passengers, give his certificate thereof, including therein the number of persons or passengers that may be carried, and on what waters; which certificate, or a copy thereof, shall be posted in a conspicuous place on the boat, and any boat so inspected and certified shall be entitled to run for the season following the date thereof. In like manner, upon the request of any pilot or engineer for a license as such, the inspector shall forthwith investigate the competency of the applicant, his acquaintance with and experience in his business, his habits as to sobriety, and other qualifications, and, if found capable of performing well his duties, and of good habits, he shall issue his certificate authorizing him to act as pilot or engineer, as the case may be, for five years from the date thereof, unless sooner revoked for cause, which revocation when made shall take effect upon approval by the governor. The inspector may charge and require advance payment for inspection, for each sailboat, one dollar, each boat propelled by other power, with a capacity of not more than twenty persons, five dollars, those of greater capacity, ten dollars, and for each applicant for license as pilot or engineer, three dollars. [28 G. A., ch. 84, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 107, §§ 3–5.]

SEC. 2513. Penalties. If any owner, agent or master of any such boat, having a capacity of carrying five or more persons, plying the inland waters of the state, shall hire, or offer to hire, such boat for the carrying of persons, or receive persons thereon for hire, without first obtaining annually, before the boating season, a certificate as in this chapter required, or if such owner, agent or master, having obtained such certificate, shall permit or receive for carriage on such boat a greater number of persons than authorized therein, or if any person shall act as pilot or engineer on any boat mentioned for which inspection and license are herein required, without first obtaining a license therefor, or if, having such license, he continues to follow such avocation after the same has been revoked, or has expired, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or punished by both fine and imprisonment; but the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to vessels licensed by authority of the United States. [28 G. A., ch. 84, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 107, §§ 1, 3, 4.]

SEC. 2514. Reports. Each inspector annually, on or before the first day of January, shall report to the governor the number and date of licenses granted pilots or engineers, to whom issued, the date thereof, the number and kind of boats inspected, the time and place of inspection, upon what waters to be used and such other matters as may be considered useful or of general interest, with the total amount of fees received from all sources. But no hotel shall be inspected oftener than once a year unless there is a change of proprietors or unless upon a verified complaint signed by three or more patrons setting forth facts showing that such hotel is in an unsanitary condition or that fire escapes and appliances are not kept and maintained in accordance with the provisions of law. Upon receipt of such complaint, the inspector shall make or cause to be made an inspection or examination of the matters complained of, and, if upon inspection such complaint is found to be justifiable, the legal fee of inspection shall be charged and collected. In case the complaint is found to be without reasonable grounds the ordinary fee for such inspection shall be chargeable against and collected from the person or persons making the complaint. All fees for the inspection shall be forthwith paid over to the state treasurer and his receipt taken and filed with the secretary of the state board of health. Such fees shall be by the treasurer kept as a separate fund to be known as a hotel inspection fund, and only paid out upon warrants or orders issued by the secretary of the state board of health and countersigned by the chairman thereof. All salaries, compensation, printing, stationery, postage, and other contingent expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act shall be paid from said fund. All bills for compensation and necessary expenses shall be itemized, verified, audited, and warrant drawn on the hotel inspection fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health, provided that no salaries, compensation or expenses shall be paid in excess of the inspection fees received; and provided that at the close of each fiscal year all fees remaining in the state treasury in excess of the outstanding warrants and the sum of five hundred dollars shall be transferred to the general fund. [33 G. A., ch. 168, § 13.]

SEC. 2514-u. False certification—penalty. Any inspector or deputy who shall knowingly certify falsely regarding any hotel inspected by him, or shall issue a certificate to any person owning, managing, or operating a hotel when such person has not complied with the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months or by both such fine and imprisonment. [33 G. A., ch. 168, § 15.]

[For additional provisions relating to duties of hotel inspectors see §§ 2514-y to 2514-y5, inclusive, herein. EDITOR.]

SEC. 2514-w. Interference with inspector—failure to comply—penalty. Any owner, manager, agent or person in charge of a hotel who shall obstruct, hinder or interfere with an inspector or his deputy in the proper discharge of his duty, or who shall wilfully fail or neglect to comply with any of the provisions of this act, or who shall fail to pay the proper fee for inspection shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [33 G. A., ch. 168, § 16.]

The provision that a mere failure on the part of the hotel keeper to pay the inspection fee is a misdemeanor, even though he complies with every other requisite of the law, is objectionable as authorizing imprisonment for debt. But this provision may be eliminated without affecting the validity of the other provisions of the statute. Hubbell v. Higgins, 148–36, 126 N. W. 914.

SEC. 2514-x. Injunction—duty of county attorney. It shall be the duty of the inspector upon ascertaining that any owner, manager, agent or person in charge is violating any of the provisions of this act after the expiration of the time fixed in the notice provided in section fifteen hereof to make complaint, and [he] may file his petition in any court of competent jurisdiction or before any judge of such court in vacation, upon which an injunction may issue with or without bond as may be ordered by the court or judge, restraining the further use of such hotel until the provisions of this act are fully complied with; but no injunction shall issue until after the defendant has had at least five days' notice of the application therefor, fixing a time for hearing thereon. It is hereby made the duty of the county attorney in either case to prepare the necessary papers and conduct all prosecutions or litigation connected therewith. [33 G. A., ch. 168, § 17.]
