INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The compilation of our statutory law is a matter deserving careful consideration. It is highly important that the supplement to the code be accurately compiled and it was the opinion of your committee that all things should be done, which could be done, to make it easy and convenient for the members of the bench and bar to find the law. Many new features, which are somewhat specifically set forth in the editor's preface, have been incorporated in the supplement here presented and it is hoped will meet with approval.

As has been the case with supervising committees of previous compilations, it was found that insufficient time had been allotted for the work in hand. It seemed especially advisable that an entirely new index for both the code and supplement be compiled, and while such an undertaking has involved a greater expenditure of time and effort than was perhaps contemplated by the act authorizing this supplement, your committee has felt amply justified in having the work done.

Mr. Charles S. Wilcox was selected editor and all of the work has been done by him, aided by his capable office force, with the exception of the annotations which were furnished by Hon. Emlin McClain. This book is evidence of their ability and painstaking care.

The relations which have existed between your committee and the state printer, Mr. Robert Henderson, and the state binder, Mr. John M. Jamieson, to whom the respective contracts were let, have been most satisfactory.

Your code supplement supervising committee presents this compilation of the statute law with the hope that it may fully meet the approval which the excellence of the book deserves.

EDITOR'S PREFACE

This supplement takes the place of prior supplements and contains all general and permanent laws enacted since the date of the code. No section number of the code or prior supplement has been changed except to correct an error. If a section of the code or prior supplement has been repealed, the repeal will always be found under the same section number of this supplement or an editorial note will show where the repeal may be found, as illustrated at section forty-nine hundred eighty-two. Complete citations of prior codes or session laws follow each section. The annotations cover the period between the date of the code and the close of the May, nineteen hundred thirteen, term of the supreme court. All amendments to the Constitution of Iowa and the Constitution of the United States are shown, as are also the Naturalization Laws and Regulations of the United States.

The supplement section number of any section of a session law can be readily found by reference to the tables beginning on page nineteen hundred sixty-five. A section of the Code of 1851 can be quickly traced through subsequent codes to the Code of 1897 by the use of the table beginning on page two thousand and four; likewise a section of the Revision of 1860 by the table on page two thousand and fifty-three, a section of the Code of 1873 by the table on page two thousand and ninety, and a section of McClain's Code of 1888 by the table on page twenty-one hundred twenty-nine.

Citations of prior rules have been added to each of the Statutes and Rules of the Supreme Court and an early rule may be easily traced through succeeding rules to the present rule by means of the series of tables beginning on page nineteen hundred sixty-two.

Proof-read copies of the enrolled bills of the thirty-second extra to the thirty-fifth sessions, inclusive, of the general assembly have been used in the compilation of the text of this book. The record of every bill has been verified, numerous errors found and notes made thereof as illustrated at sections twenty-four hundred seventy-eight and forty-nine hundred forty-four-h.

Citations following sections have been rearranged in chronological order beginning with the latest and ending with the earliest as shown at section twenty-seven hundred fifty-four; many citations have been picked up from various sources and inserted as shown at sections twenty-seven hundred fifty-seven and thirty-five hundred twenty-nine; and corrections of citations made as illustrated at section thirty-five hundred forty-three where an erroneous reference to the Revision of 1860 has heretofore been shown.

Wherever in the text of a section a reference is made to a section of a session law the same has been identified by a note such as shown at sections five hundred ninety-two-a and seven hundred forty-one-n except in cases where identification is otherwise made easy. Wherever acts conflicting with a section have been repealed the fact is shown by a note as at section eighteen hundred ninety-eight-d. Wherever a note calling attention to similar statutes has seemed advisable the same has been appended as shown at sections twenty-four hundred seventy-seven-a and ten hundred eighty-seven-a twenty-five a, and many cross reference notes have been inserted as illustrated at section twenty-seven hundred twenty-four. In every instance where a section of this supplement has been made applicable to cities acting under special charter the section is followed by a note showing that fact, as illustrated at section seven hundred twenty-nine, and if a section of the code is thus made applicable by another section of the code the fact is easily found in the index, as hereinafter explained.

There are fourteen thousand annotations in this book, every one of which has been compared with the opinion as reported. A large number of errors were discovered and corrected. Corresponding references to the Northwestern Reporter have been added and all notes from unofficial opinions dropped.

All tables are new. The tables of corresponding sections of Iowa codes, compiled from the texts of the various codes, and making it easy to trace a section of an early code through succeeding codes, are distinct innovations.

The text has been conformed to the style of the code by the elimination of figures, signs and characters.

The index covers both the code and supplement and is entirely new. The general plan thereof contemplates complete alphabetical referencing under principal topics with cross references thereto under minor titles. As all important topics show alphabetical subdivisions and the references thereunder are also alphabetically arranged, it is easy to find topics to which cross references are made. This is illustrated at "Exemptions" where there is a cross reference "See Taxation" and under "Taxation" the subdivision "Exemptions." Synonymous titles are indexed under one of the titles only and cross references made thereto. References are to section numbers only, except where page numbers conduce to brevity, in which cases the numbers are preceded by the letter p. The letter S indicates a section of this supplement.

The index to cities under special charter is as complete as that to cities and towns organized under the general law. Every index reference to each section of the law respecting cities and towns which is made applicable to cities acting under special charter by any other section is duplicated under the title "Cities Under Special Charter" and the number of the section making it applicable cited. Such an illustration is found under the subdivision "Elections" under "Cities Under Special Charter" as follows: "Annexation of territory, 610 by 935." If one desires to know whether section six hundred ten is anywhere made applicable to special charter cities it is only necessary to turn to the index "Cities Under Special Charter" and under the subdivision "Sections or Parts Thereof Made Applicable" he will find the following: "610 by 935." Every such section is likewise accounted for unless at the section itself an editorial note states the fact, as illustrated at section seven hundred twenty-nine. It is, therefore, quite as easy to find the powers of a special charter city, the duties of its various officers, provisions respecting its bonds, elections, streets, etc., as it is to find like provisions respecting other cities.

In indexing such a section as twelve hundred ninety-three-a, most thorough analysis thereof has been made. The section vitally affects forty-four sections of the code and supplement. It has been indexed as though it were a part of each of the sections affected.

I have had excellent assistance in this work. The services of Mrs. Mary E. Hammel, assistant editor, have been invaluable. The services of Miss Lillian Leffert in the correction of errors in annotations, of Miss Rose E. Tilden in the preparation of tables, of Miss Amy Byram, Miss Mary A. Reid, Miss Harriett E. King and Mrs. Clara A. Neidig in the compilation and proof reading of the text and index have been of the very highest order, and the work of others in less important positions has been exceptionally well done.

As has been the case in former code and supplement work, ably chronicled by Mr. Clifford Powell in his articles on "History of the Codes of Iowa Law" published in The Iowa Journal of History and Politics, the element of time has been an embarrassment. I have regarded the work as too important to warrant sacrifice of thoroughness for expedition.

I acknowledge deep appreciation of the confidence reposed in me by the Code Supplement Supervising Committee, for the interest Judge Emlin McClain has manifested in having as nearly accurate as possible the new annotations furnished by him, and for the courtesies extended me by Mr. C. N. Jepson, Editor of the Supplement of 1907, and by many other members of the bench and bar.

within thirty days after the filing of the same, and certified copies of such other proceedings and orders instituted in or issued out of said court affecting or relating to the naturalization of aliens as may be required from time to time by the said bureau.

In case any such clerk or officer acting under his direction shall refuse or neglect to comply with any of the foregoing provisions he shall forfeit and pay to the United States the sum of twenty-five dollars in each and every case in which such violation or omission occurs, and the amount of such forfeiture may be recovered by the United States in an action of debt against such clerk.

Clerks of courts having and exercising jurisdiction in naturalization matters shall be responsible for all blank certificates of citizenship received by them from time to time from the bureau of naturalization, and shall account for the same to the said bureau whenever required so to do by such bureau. No certificate of citizenship received by any such clerk which may be defaced or injured in such manner as to prevent its use as herein provided shall in any case be destroyed, but such certificate shall be returned to the said bureau; and in case any such clerk shall fail to return or properly account for any certificate furnished by the said bureau, as herein provided, he shall be liable to the United States in the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered in an action of debt, for each and every certificate not properly accounted for or returned.

SEC. 13.[1] That the clerk of each and every court exercising jurisdistion in naturalization cases shall charge, collect, and account for the following fees in each proceeding:

For receiving and filing a declaration of intention and issuing a duplicate thereof, one dollar.

For making, filing, and docketing the petition of an alien for admission as a citizen of the United States and for the final hearing thereon, two dollars; and for entering the final order and the issuance of the certificate of citizenship thereunder, if granted, two dollars.

The clerk of any court collecting such fees is hereby authorized to retain one half of the fees collected by him in such naturalization proceeding; the remaining one half of the naturalization fees in each case collected by such clerks, respectively, shall be accounted for in their quarterly accounts, which they are hereby required to render the bureau of naturalization, and paid over to such bureau within thirty days from the close of each quarter in each and every fiscal year, and the moneys so received shall be paid over to the disbursing clerk of the department of labor, who shall thereupon deposit them in the treasury of the United States, rendering an account therefor quarterly to the auditor for the state and other departments, and the said disbursing clerk shall be held responsible under his bond for said fees so received.

In addition to the fees herein required, the petitioner shall, upon the filing of his petition to become a citizen of the United States, deposit with and pay to the clerk of the court a sum of money sufficient to cover the expenses of subpœnaing and paying the legal fees of any witnesses for whom he may request a subpœna, and upon the final discharge of such witnesses they shall receive, if they demand the same from the clerk, the customary and usual witness fees from the moneys which the petitioner shall have paid to such clerk for such purpose, and the residue, if any, shall be returned by the clerk to the petitioner: provided, that the clerks of courts exercising jurisdiction in naturalization proceedings shall be permitted to retain one half of the fees in any fiscal year up to the sum of three thousand dollars, and that all fees received by such clerks in naturalization proceedings in excess of such amount shall be accounted for and paid over to said bureau as in case of other fees to which the United States may be entitled under the provisions of this act. The clerks of the various courts exercising jurisdiction in naturalization proceedings shall pay all additional clerical force that may be required in performing the duties imposed by this act upon the clerks of courts from fees received by such clerks in naturalization proceedings.

And in case the clerk of any court exercising naturalization jurisdiction collects fees in excess of the sum of six thousand dollars in any fiscal year the secretary of labor may allow salaries, for naturalization purposes only, to pay for clerical assistance, to be selected and employed by that clerk, additional to the clerical force, for which clerks of courts are required by this section to pay from fees received by such clerks in naturalization proceedings, if in the opinion of said secretary the naturalization business of such clerk warrants further additional assistance: provided, that in no event shall the whole amount allowed the clerk of a court and his assistants exceed the one half of the gross receipts of the office of said clerk from naturalization fees during such fiscal year: provided further, that when, at the close of any fiscal year, the business of such clerk of court indicates in the opinion of the secretary of labor that the naturalization fees for the succeeding fiscal year will exceed six thousand dollars the secretary of labor may authorize the continuance of the allowance of salaries for the additional clerical assistance herein provided for and employed on the last day of the fiscal year until such time as the remittances indicate in the opinion of said secretary that the fees for the then current fiscal year will not be sufficient to allow the additional clerical assistance authorized by this act.

That payment for the additional clerical assistance herein authorized shall be in the manner and under such regulations as the secretary of labor may prescribe.

SEC. 14. That the declarations of intention and the petitions for naturalization shall be bound in chronological order in separate volumes, indexed, consecutively numbered, and made part of the records of the court. Each certificate of naturalization issued shall bear upon its face, in a place prepared therefor, the volume number and page number of the petition whereon such certificate was issued, and the volume number and page number of the stub of such certificate.

SEC. 15. That it shall be the duty of the United States district attorneys for the respective districts, upon affidavit showing good cause therefor, to institute proceedings in any court having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens in the judicial district in which the naturalized citizen may reside at the time of bringing the suit, for the purpose of setting aside and canceling the certificate of citizenship on the ground of fraud or on the ground that such certificate of citizenship was illegally procured. In any such proceedings the party holding the certificate of citizenship alleged to have been fraudulently or illegally procured shall have sixty days personal notice in which to make answer to the petition of the United States; and if the holder of such certificate be absent from the United States or from the district in which he last had his residence, such notice shall be given by publication in the manner provided for the service of summons by publication or upon absentees by the laws of the state or the place where such suit is brought.

If any alien who shall have secured a certificate of citizenship under the provisions of this act shall, within five years after the issuance of such certificate, return to the country of his nativity, or go to any other foreign country, and take permanent residence therein, it shall be considered prima-facie evidence of a lack of intention on the part of such alien to become a permanent citizen of the United States at the time of filing his application for citizenship, and, in the absence of countervailing evidence, it shall be sufficient in the proper proceeding to authorize the cancellation of his certificate of citizenship as fraudulent, and the diplomatic and consular officers of the United States in foreign countries shall from time to time, through the department of state, furnish the department of justice with the names of those within their respective jurisdictions who have such certificates of citizenship and who have taken permanent residence in the country of their nativity, or in any other foreign country, and such statements, duly certified, shall be admissible in evidence in all courts in proceedings to cancel certificates of citizenship.

Whenever any certificate of citizenship shall be set aside or canceled, as herein provided, the court in which such judgment or decree is rendered shall make an order canceling such certificate of citizenship and shall send a certified copy of such order to the bureau of naturalization; and in case such certificate was not originally issued by the court making such order it shall direct the clerk of the court to transmit a copy of such order and judgment to the court out of which such certificate of citizenship shall have been originally issued. And it shall thereupon be the duty of the clerk of the court receiving such certified copy of the order and judgment of the court to enter the same of record and to cancel such original certificate of citizenship upon the records and to notify the bureau of naturalization of such cancellation.

The provisions of this section shall apply not only to certificates of citizenship issued under the provisions of this act, but to all certificates of citizenship which may have been issued heretofore by any court exercising jurisdiction in naturalization proceedings under prior laws.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the secretary of state shall be authorized, in his discretion, to issue passports to persons not citizens of the United States as follows: Where any person has made a declaration of intention to become such a citizen as provided by law and has resided in the United States for three years a passport may be issued to him entitling him to the protection of the government in any foreign country: provided, that such passport shall not be valid for more than six months and shall not be renewed, and that such passport shall not entitle the holder to the protection of this government in the country of which he was a citizen prior to making such declaration of intention.

SEC. 2. That any American citizen shall be deemed to have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state.

When any naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or for five years in any other foreign state it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen, and the place of his general abode shall be deemed his place of residence during said years: provided, however, that such presumption may be overcome on the presentation of satisfactory evidence to a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, under such rules and regulations as the department of state may prescribe: and provided also, that no American citizen shall be allowed to expatriate himself when this country is at war.

SEC. 3. That any American woman who marries a foreigner shall take the nationality of her husband. SEC. 77. Whoever shall use or attempt to use, or shall aid, assist, or participate in the use of any certificate of citizenship, knowing the same to be forged, counterfeit, or antedated, or knowing the same to have been procured by fraud or otherwise unlawfully obtained; or whoever, without lawful excuse, shall knowingly possess any false, forged, antedated, or counterfeit certificate of citizenship purporting to have been issued under any law of the United States relating to naturalization, knowing such certificate to be false, forged, antedated, or counterfeit, with the intent unlawfully to use the same; or whoever shall obtain, accept, or receive any certificate of citizenship, knowing the same to have been procured by fraud or by the use or means of any false name or statement given or made with the intent to procure, or to aid in procuring, the issuance of such certificate, or knowing the same to have been fraudulently altered or antedated; or whoever, without lawful excuse, shall have in his possession any blank certificate of citizenship provided by the bureau of naturalization with the intent unlawfully to use the same; or whoever, after having been admitted to be a citizen, shall, on oath or by affidavit, knowingly deny that he has been so admitted, with the intent to evade or avoid any duty or liability imposed or required by law, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

SEC. 78. Whoever shall in any manner use, for the purpose of registering as a voter, or as evidence of a right to vote, or otherwise unlawfully, any order, certificate of citizenship, or certificate, judgment, or exemplification, showing any person to be admitted to be a citizen, whether heretofore or hereafter issued or made, knowing that such order, certificate, judgment, or exemplification has been unlawfully issued or made; or whoever shall unlawfully use, or attempt to use, any such order or certificate, issued to or in the name of any other person, or in a fictitious name, or the name of a deceased person, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

SEC. 79. SEC. 80. Whoever, in any proceeding under or by virtue of any law relating to the naturalization of aliens, shall knowingly swear falsely in any case where an oath is made or affidavit taken, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars and imprisoned not more than five years.

SEC. 81. The provisions of the five sections last preceding shall apply to all proceedings had or taken, or attempted to be had or taken, before any court in which any proceeding for naturalization may be commenced or attempted to be commenced, and whether such court was vested by law with jurisdiction in naturalization proceedings or not.

[By the terms of section 341 of the act referred to above the foregoing sections specifically repealed sections 5395, 5424, 5425, 5426, 5428, and 5429 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as well as sections 16, 17, and 19 of the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. L., pt. 1, ch. 3592, p. 596).]

NATURALIZATION REGULATIONS.

These regulations supersede those of November 11, 1911.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, August 20, 1913.

1. Since September twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and six, naturalization jurisdiction of state courts is confined to such as have "a seal, a clerk, and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited."

2. Any alien who prior to September twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and six, has declared his intention in conformity with the law in force at the date of his declaration, shall not be required to renew such declaration.

3. Aliens who lawfully declared their intention on and after June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, and prior to September twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and six, must comply with all of the requirements of the naturalization act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, in petitioning for naturalization, with the exception that those arriving prior to June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, are not required to furnish certificates of arrival.

Aliens who declared their intention prior to June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, in accordance with the requirements of law, must comply with all of the requirements of the naturalization act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, in petitioning for naturalization, except that they will not be required to file certificates of arrival, sign their petitions in their own handwriting, or to speak the English language.

4. Any alien who declares his intention after June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, and files his petition thereon, must sign said petition in his own handwriting, and must be able to speak the English language, unless excepted by the provisos in section eight of the naturalization act. If an alien is physically unable to speak, that fact should be stated in his petition in lieu of the statement, "I am able to speak the English language." Aliens who arrive in the United States before reaching eighteen years of age cannot obtain citizenship without making declaration of intention, which may be made in a court having naturalization jurisdiction over the place of their established residence after reaching that age.

5. Blank forms "Facts for declaration of intention" (form 2213) and "Facts for petition for naturalization" (form 2214) are provided clerks of courts for the preliminary use of persons making declaration of intention or petition for naturalization, and may be taken away from the office of the clerk in order that the information called for may be obtained in full. When either of said forms is returned to the clerk he shall examine it to see that all the information required is furnished before proceeding to make out a declaration or petition.

In all cases where aliens have arrived in this country after June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, they should be given the form, "Application for certificate of arrival", form 2226, at the time they desire to file petitions for naturalization, instead of form 2214. This application has attached to it the facts required in a petition for naturalization. The application and other blanks on the form should all be carefully filled out by the alien and mailed with his triplicate declaration of intention to the commissioner of naturalization to enable him to obtain and transmit the required certificate of arrival (form 526 or 526a) to the clerk of court for filing with the petition. The clerk of the court should not commence the execution of the petition until he has received the certificate of arrival prescribed by this regulation. The certificate of arrival will contain its serial number in the upper right-hand corner, which the clerk of the court will insert in the petition for naturalization at the place indicated.

6. Declarations of intention will be furnished in bound volumes (form 2202, 50 leaves; 2202A, 150 leaves; or 2202B, 250 leaves) as a court record, varied in number of pages according to the requirements of the court. In addition to the bound records, the duplicate and triplicate declarations of intention (form 2203) will be furnished as loose sheets attached together and perforated, so that they can be readily torn apart, the triplicate to be given to the declarant and the duplicate to be forwarded to the bureau of naturalization. Each bound record will contain an index in addition to the original declarations of intention, and will be paged in consecutive order. At the time the original declarations of intention in the bound volumes are filled out and signed the names of the declarants must be entered in the index. The declarations shall be numbered consecutively, beginning with No. 1 in volume 1 and continuing the sequence from volume to volume.

7. The originals of the petitions for naturalization will also be furnished in bound volumes (form 2204, 100 leaves, or 2204B, 250 leaves) paged in consecutive order and provided with an index. The duplicate petitions (form 2205) will be furnished as loose sheets, and when executed must be forwarded to the bureau of naturalization by registered mail, as provided in rule 22 of these regulations. The original petitions for naturalization in the bound volumes must be filled out and signed, the names of the petitioners entered in the index, and retained as part of the permanent records of the office in which filed. Petitions shall be numbered consecutively, beginning with No. 1 in volume 1 and continuing in order in the following volumes. The first petition in volume 2 must not be numbered "1", but shall receive the number following that given the last petition in volume 1.

8. Certificates of naturalization (form 2207) will be supplied in bound volumes consisting of original and duplicate certificates and stubs. Each original and duplicate certificate and the stub will be given the same serial number, the stub to the original certificate bearing a page number in addition to its serial number. The original certificate will be given to the petitioner in accordance with the final order of the court, and the duplicate shall be forwarded to the bureau of naturalization by registered mail, as provided in rule 22 of these regulations, the stub to the original constituting a part of the permanent records of the court. The bound volumes, containing the declarations, petitions, and certificates, constitute the "records" and dockets required by sections 6 and 14 of the naturalization act. The department requires no other dockets to be kept.

9. No certificate of naturalization shall be issued to a petitioner until after the judge of the court granting naturalization has signed the order to that effect.

10. Clerks of courts will be furnished with requisition blanks (form 2201) on which are listed, by number and title, all blank forms, including record and order books, to be used in the naturalization of aliens, and these forms must be obtained exclusively from the bureau of naturalization, department of labor, none other being official. Manila envelopes or jackets (form 2211) will be furnished to clerks in which to place the triplicate declaration of intention or the original certificate of naturalization before delivering it to the person making the declaration or to the person naturalized.

11. The first supply of blank forms will be furnished upon the written application of the clerks of courts having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens, accompanied, in the case of clerks of state courts, by authoritative evidence (preferably the certificate of the attorney-general of the state) that the courts of which such clerks are officers have "a seal, a clerk, and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited". Subsequent supplies of such blank forms will be furnished the clerks of courts having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens upon the receipt by the bureau of naturalization of requisitions made on form 2201.

12. Clerks of courts when first making application to the bureau of naturalization for the supplies of the blank forms required in the naturalization of aliens shall state whether any declarations of intention have been filed or orders of naturalization made by their courts since September twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and six. They should also state the number of certificates of naturalization issued by the court since June first, nineteen hundred and three, if such certificates fail to comply with the requirements of the immigration act of March third, nineteen hundred and three.

13. Where the same court holds sessions at different places, whether a clerk is appointed at each of said places or the one clerk is required to transact the business of the court wherever it may sit, separate supplies shall be kept, in order to comply with the requirements of section 14 of the naturalization act, which provides that the bound declarations of intention and of petitions for naturalization shall be in chronological order.

14. In every case in which the name of a naturalized alien is changed by order of court, as provided in section 6, the clerk of the court is required to report both the original and the new name of the said person to the bureau of naturalization when transmitting to it the duplicate of the certificate of naturalization of the alien whose name is changed.

15. On the first working day of each month the clerk shall inform the bureau of naturalization on form 2209 of the date of posting notice on form 2206, as required by section five, and of the day, month, and year, as near as may be, for the final hearing of each and every petition for naturalization filed and posted during the preceding month. These reports on form 2209 must specify only the petitions filed in the month to which the report relates and no others. In continued cases notice on form 2206 must be amended to show the postponed date and remain posted until final action is had.

16. On the first working day of each month following the sitting of a court in naturalization cases the clerk of such court shall forward to the bureau of naturalization on form 2210 a list containing the name of each and every alien who, during such sitting of court, has been denied naturalization and shall state the reason or reasons for such denial.

17. Applications for lost or destroyed naturalization papers issued prior to September twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and six, should be disposed of in accordance with the rules in force in the court at the time of the issuance of the papers.

The following rule applies exclusively to naturalization papers issued since September twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and six:

Applications for the issuance of declarations of intention (form 2203) or certificates of naturalization (form 2207), in lieu of declarations of intention or certificates of naturalization claimed to have been lost or destroyed, shall be submitted in affidavit form to the clerk of the court by which any such declarations of intention or certificates of naturalization were originally issued, and shall contain full information in regard to the lost or destroyed papers, and as to the time, place, and circumstances of such alleged loss or destruction. (Form 2225 prepared for this purpose may be obtained from the clerk of any naturalization court.) The clerk shall forward to the bureau of naturalization the above-mentioned applications, together with such information as he may have bearing upon the merits thereof, for investigation, and no such paper so applied for shall be issued until the bureau of naturalization reports the results of its investigation as to the merits of the application.

In every case in which the clerk of the court issues, in accordance with the foregoing, a declaration of intention (form 2224) or a certificate of naturalization (form 2207), upon proof of the loss or destruction of the original, he shall make an entry on the original declaration showing the issuance of a certified copy, or on the stubs of both the new and the old certificates of naturalization, showing the issuance of a new certificate, giving the numbers of the new and old certificates, and shall immediately thereafter forward to the bureau of naturalization the duplicate of any such paper so issued.

One certified copy of declaration of intention (form 2215) or certificate of naturalization (form 2216) may be furnished by the clerk of the issuing court under his hand and the seal of the court for the use only of the person concerned to establish his citizenship status in connection with any entry under the public land laws of the United States. When issued these forms must be made in duplicate, one to be given to the person applying therefor and the duplicate forwarded with other naturalization papers on the first working day of the succeeding month to the bureau of naturalization. Unless the applicant presents to the clerk his original declaration or certificate for comparison, these forms can under no conditions be issued. In case the alien makes a second land entry he may support his second entry by describing the first land claim with which his declaration or certificate is filed.

The fees to be collected for the issuance of each of the copies of declarations of intention and of certificates of naturalization described in this regulation, and the disposal to be made of such fees when collected, will be determined in accordance with the law and the rules in force in the respective courts. No part of these fees is required to be forwarded to this department. Clerks are, however, required to make quarterly reports, on form 2217, on the first working day of January, April, July, and October, of the number of such papers issued during the preceding quarter.

18. Original declarations of intention, or certificates of naturalization, issued subsequent to September twenty-sixth, nineteen hundred and six, and surrendered to the general land office in support of entries upon public land, may be returned upon proper application. In cases of declarations of intention the clerk will forward the application to the bureau of naturalization, accompanied by a certified copy on form 2215. In cases of certificates, the application will be accompanied by a personal description of the applicant. In both instances a description of the land should be included, giving the section, township, and range, together with the date and place of making the entry. The originals will then be procured from the general land office and returned to the clerk of the court.

19. For recording the affidavits of substituted witnesses under section five of the act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, blank forms (form 2218) have been prepared as pasters to be affixed to the backs of petitions in the bound volume, following the "Order of court admitting petitioner." Copies of this form may be procured by the usual requisition (form 2201). Do not send copies of this form to the bureau of naturalization.

20. Aliens making declaration of intention, or filing petitions for naturalization, must sign their names in full and without abbreviation in the appropriate places on the various blank forms, and the entries of their names by the clerk must correspond in every particular. Where a name contains an initial which is used only to distinguish one individual from another with the same surname, that fact should be noted on the paper.

21. Clerks of courts shall not receive declarations of intention (form 2202) or file petitions for naturalization (form 2204) from other aliens than white persons and persons of African nativity or of African descent. Any alien, other than a Chinese person, who claims that he is a white person in the sense in which that term is used in section 2169, R. S., U. S., should be allowed, if he insists upon it after an explanation is made showing him the risk of denial, to file his declaration or his petition, as the case may be, leaving the issue to be determined by the court.

Declarations should not be received from, nor petitions for naturalization filed by, persons not residing in the judicial district within which the court is held.

22. On the first working day of each and every month, and not otherwise, clerks of courts shall forward to the bureau of naturalization duplicates of all declarations of intention, petitions for naturalization, and certificates of naturalization filed or issued during the preceding month. Duplicate petitions for naturalization and duplicate certificates of naturalization shall be forwarded by registered mail; and duplicate declarations of intention as well as other papers may be inclosed therewith provided the combined weight of the documents does not exceed four pounds, otherwise they shall be forwarded separately by unregistered mail. The same course should be followed in forwarding naturalization papers to the bureau which have been returned for correction. Each clerk making a shipment of naturalization papers other than papers returned for correction is required to forward therewith a report on form 2208 showing the number of such papers filed or issued during the month reported. Where petitions for naturalization have been filed the report on form 2209 showing the approximate dates of final hearings shall also be inclosed with such shipment. When no naturalization business has been transacted during any month it is unnecessary to render monthly reports to that effect, but report should be made as prescribed in rule 23.

23. All fees provided for in section thirteen of the act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, shall be accounted for on the "Abstract of collections" (form 2212) within thirty days after the close of each quarter of a fiscal year. These quarters end September thirtieth, December thirty-first, March thirty-first, and June thirtieth, respectively. One half of all moneys so collected, up to $6,000, and all in excess thereof, shall be remitted to the commissioner of naturalization, bureau of naturalization, with said quarterly account, such remittance to be made payable to the order of the "secretary of labor," preferably by draft. The comptroller of the treasury has decided that section thirteen requires the collection of the final fee of $2 whether the certificate of naturalization be issued or denied.

In cases where no naturalization business is transacted during any quarter, form 2212 shall be forwarded as aforesaid with the words "No transactions" noted thereon.

24. (a) Where a petition for naturalization is filed under section 2166, R. S., U. S., exempting honorably discharged soldiers from the necessity for filing declarations of intention and proving more than one year of residence in the United States in addition to good moral character, insert in lieu of the information regarding declaration of intention: "Petitioner is an honorably discharged soldier and applies for citizenship under section 2166, R. S., U. S. He enlisted in the (name of organization) on the (day, month, and year)." (Complete the petition according to paragraph 3 of this rule.)

(b) Where an alien files his petition for naturalization under the act of July twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred ninety-four, and claims exemption from the necessity for filing a declaration of intention on account of service in the United States navy or marine corps, the words having reference to declaration of intention in the petition should be struck through and in lieu thereof the following inserted: "Petitioner is an honorably discharged member of the navy (or member of the marine corps, if that be the case) and applies for citizenship under the act of July twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred ninety-four. He enlisted on the (day, month, and year) and was discharged on the (day, month, and year)." Each enlistment of the applicant and his discharge therefrom should be shown. (Complete the petition according to paragraph 3 of this rule.)

In executing petitions under the two foregoing exemptions, that portion of the last paragraph preceding the signature of the petitioner relating to the declaration of intention and certificate of arrival should be struck through when the alien arrived on or prior to June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six. When the arrival was after that date, only the words "my declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and" should be struck through. The statement following the signature of the petitioner to the body of the petition should be struck through entirely in cases of aliens arriving on or before June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six; but for those arriving after that date only the words "declaration of intention" should be struck through, and in both cases the entry in lieu thereof should be made "Honorable discharge certificate of petitioner was exhibited to me this ——— day of ———." An appropriate note should also be entered upon the stub of the certificate issued to said applicant.

(c) Certain aliens are permitted to petition for naturalization under the terms of the act of June twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred ten, without proof of previous declarations of intention. Clerks of courts should state in lieu of the information regarding the declaration of intention "Filed under provisions of section 3 of the act of congress approved June twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred ten," and the statement following the first signature of the petitioner should be changed so as to read "Declaration of intention omitted under the terms of the act of June twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred ten." Affidavit, form 2227, setting forth particulars as to the reason for the exemption claimed must be signed and sworn to by the petitioner before the clerk of the court or his authorized deputy. In the event this form is not presented by an officer in the naturalization service it will be forwarded to the clerk of the court for use in any case to which it relates, upon examination of the duplicate petition in the bureau.

(d) Petitions for naturalization under the sixth subdivision of section four may be legally filed by children of a deceased declarant only after such children have attained their majority and who were minors at the time of the death of the father. Where a petition is filed by a child under the foregoing conditions, the fifth assertion should be altered to read: "My father declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States on the ——— day of ———, A. D. ———, and died on the ——— day of ———, A. D. ———."

Where a petition for naturalization is filed under this subdivision by the widow of a deceased declarant, the fifth assertion should be altered to correspond to the foregoing in relation to the child, with the exception that the word "husband" should be inserted instead of the word "father."

In the last two cases referred to the words in the paragraph immediately preceding petitioner's first signature should be altered to show that the father's or husband's declaration (as the case may be), or a certified copy thereof, is attached to the original petition, and the statement of the clerk of the court immediately below the first signature of the petitioner should be changed to show the facts. If the petitioner arrived in the United States prior to June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, the words in statement immediately preceding the first signature of petitioner and thereafter having reference to the certificate of arrival should also be struck through. If the petitioner arrived in the United States after June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, certificate of arrival must be obtained in accordance with rule five of these regulations, and the words in the two statements above referred to should remain unaltered with the exception that the last statement should include the number of the certificate of arrival appearing in the upper right-hand corner thereof.

(e) Where a petition for naturalization is filed by the widow of an alien, based upon her own declaration of intention, the date of her husband's demise should be shown in the fifth assertion.

Naturalization papers may be legally filed by any unmarried woman who is otherwise qualified, or the widow of a foreign-born person not naturalized, but not by a woman during the existence of the marital relation. Notation of the facts in each case should be made upon the face of each paper before it is issued.

25. So far as practicable the clerks of courts having jurisdiction under the provisions of the naturalization laws will be furnished, upon requisition therefor on form 2201, with appropriately addressed envelopes for communicating with the bureau. When not using such envelopes, however, all communications, in addition to the other necessary address, should be plainly marked "Bureau of Naturalization."

26. Clerks of courts having jurisdiction to naturalize under the provisions of the act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, are requested, in case the foregoing rules and regulations fail to remove from their minds doubt as to the proper course of action in any case, to write to the commissioner of naturalization, bureau of naturalization, for instructions before taking such action.

(Signed) W. B. WILSON,
Secretary.

CONSTITUTION OF IOWA

Boundaries.

The boundary between Iowa and Missouri reëstablished. Missouri v. Iowa, 165 U. S., 118.

As to jurisdiction over boundary rivers, see notes to code § 3 in this supplement.

ARTICLE 1.—BILL OF RIGHTS.

Rights of persons. SECTION 1.

Courts have an undoubted right to inquire into the objects of a tax and to declare invalid all taxes that are levied for other than governmental purposes, and a tax may be held invalid on account of some implied prohibition of the constitution, but a court will not interfere unless it is clear that the legislature has exceeded its power. Youngerman v. Murphy, 107–686, 76 N. W. 648.

A right of contract exists as a necessary inference from the express guaranty of property rights, but this right, like all others, is held subject to such reasonable restrictions and regulations as may be imposed for the public good. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 131–340, 108 N. W. 902.

The right of the state to regulate liberty of contract is peculiarly applicable to corporations. Corporations and natural persons do not stand in the same relation to the power which inheres in the state to regulate their conduct or methods of business. The corporate person has no rights except those with which it is endowed by the law-making power, and the power of creation necessarily implies the right of regulation. Ibid.

The provisions of code § 2071, forbidding any contract between a railroad company and its employe, limiting its liability for injuries resulting from negligence of a co-employe, are not unconstitutional as interfering with freedom of contract. Mumford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 128–685, 104 N. W. 1135.

Political power. SEC. 2.

The declaration that government is instituted for the protection, security and benefit of the people has no immediate bearing upon the restraint on the legislative department of government, but is, rather, a declaration of the reserved or natural right of the people to alter or amend their form or scheme of government whenever in their judgment such alteration or amendment will promote the general good. No law has ever yet been declared unconstitutional simply because it works a public wrong or injury unless that wrong or injury be one against which some specific constitutional inhibition may be pointed out. Campbell v. Jackman, 140–475, 118 N. W. 755.

The constitution operates, not as a grant of power unto the state or its general assembly, but as a limitation thereon, and all powers not expressly or impliedly withheld may be constitutionally exercised. The so-called unwritten constitution or the spirit of the constitution cannot be relied on for holding statutes to be invalid. Ibid.

Religious test. SEC. 4.

The constitution does not fix the qualifications for municipal office but it does provide that no religious qualification shall be required for any office of public trust. There is no absolute right to hold office or to be a candidate therefor. State ex rel. Jones v. Sargent, 145–298, 124 N. W. 339.

Laws uniform. SEC. 6.

Uniformity of operation of general laws: The constitutional requirement that all laws of a general nature shall have a uniform operation means that every law shall have a uniform operation upon all citizens, persons or things of any class upon which it purports to act, and that there shall not be granted to any person or class of persons privileges which upon the same terms may not be enjoyed by all. But the legislature may classify the subjects of legislation, provided such classification is not purely arbitrary or unreasonable. Des Moines v. Bolton, 128–108, 102 N. W. 1045.

A law is uniform which applies to every one of a defined class of cases, provided the classification is reasonable. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

Special privileges and monopolies are always obnoxious, and discriminations against persons or classes still more so. Exclusive privileges and franchises cannot be granted except when absolutely necessary. Therefore held that the exception in code § 2508, relating to the use of the "Welsbach Hydrocarbon Incandescent Lamp" in burning the lighter forms of petroleum was unconstitutional. State v. Santee, 111–1, 82 N. W. 445.

A statutory provision, operating alike upon all persons in like situation, is of uniform operation within the language of constitutional provisions. Cook v. Marshall County, 119–384, 93 N. W. 372.

A statute giving to a land owner double damages for trespass in removing coal from his land is not unconstitutional as amounting to class legislation. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130–570, 107 N. W. 621.

The provisions of code § 2579 as to required qualifications for the practice of medicine are not unconstitutional under this section. State v. Bair, 112–466, 84 N. W. 532.

The provisions of code § 4764, making it criminal for a man who shall marry a woman for the purpose of escaping prosecution for seduction to afterwards desert her without good cause, is not open to the objection of want of uniformity in its operation. Morris v. Stout, 110–659, 78 N. W. 843.

The statute (27 G. A. ch. 108) regulating the admissibility of evidence of husband and wife in actions to set aside fraudulent conveyances from one to the other, is not unconstitutional as class legislation since it applies to every person coming within the relation and circumstances provided for. Burk v. Putman, 113–232, 84 N. W. 1053.

The right to hold office is not a natural or personal right in such sense that the statute granting preference to honorably discharged veterans of the civil war in the appointment to minor offices is unconstitutional. Shaw v. Marshalltown, 131–128, 104 N. W. 1121.

The provisions of code § 1347, requiring all peddlers carrying on a business outside of any city or town to secure a license from the county auditor and pay a tax therefor, but exempting from the payment of such tax persons who have served in the Union army or navy, is unconstitutional because not of uniform operation. State v. Garbroski, 111–496, 82 N. W. 959.

An ordinance requiring persons riding bicycles on the streets at night to carry a light is not unconstitutional, although no similar provision is made as to persons on other silently running vehicles. Des Moines v. Keller, 116–648, 88 N. W. 827.

An ordinance as to rates of fare on a street railway providing lower fares by way of commutation tickets to citizens of the city, not to be enjoyed by other citizens of the state, held invalid by reason of want of uniformity of operation. State ex rel. v. Omaha & Council Bluffs R. & B. Co., 113–30, 84 N. W. 983.

The provisions as to jurisdiction of superior courts are not unconstitutional under this section. Page v. Millerton, 114–378, 86 N. W. 440.

A curative statute legalizing the exercise in a particular case of authority given to counties in general held not to be invalid under this section. Witter v. Board of Supervisors, 112–380, 83 N. W. 1041.

Corporations: While a corporation is not a citizen, it is a person, and as such may not rightfully be denied the protection of the laws of the state upon equal terms with all other persons upon like circumstances and conditions. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. C., 131–340, 108 N. W. 902.

But the reasonable classification of persons for the purpose of legislation, according to occupation, business or other circumstances, by which one class or portion of the people is differentiated from other portions or classes, is not a violation of the constitutional guaranty. Ibid.

Legislation imposing upon railway companies special restrictions, obligations and liabilities not generally applicable to other persons or corporations, is not a denial of the equal protection of the laws. Ibid.

Therefore held that the so-called Temple Amendment to code § 2071 prohibiting railroad companies from limiting their liability by contracts of insurance or relief is not invalid. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the law should apply alike to all persons or all corporations in the state. If it is applicable to every person or corporation brought within the relations and circumstances provided for by the law, it is constitutional. Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 109–606, 80 N. W. 665.

The state is not prohibited from discriminating in the privileges it may grant to foreign insurance companies as a condition of their doing business within the limits of the state. Ibid.

There is no requirement of either the federal or state constitution that taxes on business or privileges shall be uniform. Ibid.

A statute making special provision as to the rate of charge for loans by building and loan associations is not unconstitutional. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107–297, 77 N. W. 1050.

The statutory provision prohibiting combinations between insurance companies is not open to the objection that it is not of uniform operation. Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Carroll, 125 Fed. 121.

The requirement as to uniformity of laws does not prevent provisions as to the business of unincorporated associations which are different from those applicable to the same business conducted by corporations. Brady v. Mattern, 125–158, 100 N. W. 358.

A statute authorizing cities to require licenses from itinerant physicians is not unconstitutional as a law not uniform in its operations. Fairfield v. Shallenberger, 135–615, 113 N. W. 459.

It is within the legislative discretion to make provision for the continuance in employment of a veteran until he shall be removed on charges and investigation, although no such provision is made with reference to other officers or employes. Kitterman v. Board of Supervisors, 137–275, 115 N. W. 13.

The statute providing for a commission form of government in certain cities is not unconstitutional as not uniform in operation. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

In fixing the qualifications for an office not provided for by the constitution the legislature may require that the officers to be appointed shall be from different political parties. State ex rel. Jones v. Sargent, 145–298, 124 N. W. 339.

Legislation which affects alike all persons similarly situated is not class legislation, and if a classification adopted in the statute is upon some apparent natural reason, some reason suggested by necessity, by such a difference in the situation and circumstances of the subjects placed in different classes as suggest the necessity or propriety of different legislation with respect to them, it is not open to the objection that it violates the provision as to uniform legislative power. Hubbell v. Higgins, 148–36, 126 N. W. 914.

While classifications, to be valid as against an objection on account of want of uniformity, must be based upon some substantial distinction by which one class of cases is so different from another as to suggest the necessity of different legislation with respect to such two classes, yet the legislature may take into consideration matters of common knowledge as to the methods in which business is conducted which may involve evil practices in one class of cases which are not to be anticipated in another. State v. Fairmont Creamery Co., 153–702, 133 N. W. 895.

The rule as to uniformity does not preclude the granting of exclusive privilege to operate a street railway over city streets, but such franchise cannot be granted in perpetuity in the absence of legislative authority. State v. Des Moines City R. Co., 140 N. W. 437.

Taxation: The legislature has plenary power in classifying property for taxation, and may make this classification dependent not only upon use, but upon ownership as well. Waterloo & C. F. R. T. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 131–237, 108 N. W. 316.

The legislature may impose a higher rate of tax upon foreign corporations than it does upon corporations organized under the laws of the state. Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 109–606, 80 N. W. 665.

The eastern half of the Union Pacific Company's bridge across the Missouri river, although within the corporate limits of the city of Council Bluffs, is not subject to municipal taxation, as it is separated from the city by a large body of land used for agricultural purposes, and does not receive either fire or police protection from the city. Arnd v. Union Pac. R. Co., 120 Fed. 912.

Liberty of speech and the press. SEC. 7.

Freedom of speech must be exercised with due regard for the rights of all people. State v. Heacock, 106–191, 76 N. W. 654.

While the press enjoys the utmost latitude in reviewing the action of the courts and may after the particular litigation is ended assail with just criticism opinions, rulings and judgments with the weapons of reason, ridicule or sarcasm, it is an act of contempt to publish and distribute in such way that it is likely to fall into the hands of jurors and witnesses matter which reflects upon one of the parties to the litigation and is intended to indicate the result which should be reached. Field v. Thornell, 106–7, 75 N. W. 685.

The truth can be shown as a defense only when the publication is made with good motives and for justifiable ends. Except as thus modified the common law relating to libel governs. State v. Haskins, 109–656, 80 N. W. 1063.

The right to plead the truth of a libel is restricted to publications made with good motives and for justifiable ends. The liberty of the press does not mean that the publisher of a newspaper shall be any less responsible than another person would be for publishing otherwise the same libelous matter. Morse v. Times-Republican Printing Co., 124–707, 100 N. W. 867.

Personal security. SEC. 8.

Searches and seizures: The guaranty against search, except on warrant issued on probable cause, applies to the person of the defendant in a criminal case as well as to his papers, and while it is well settled that when one is charged with an offense the officers may, without further legal procedure, seize the weapons with which the crime is committed, property which has been obtained by means of the criminal act, or articles which may give a clue to the commission of the crime or identification of the criminal, and that the officer making such search may testify as to any facts, even though criminating, which were discovered thereby, yet compulsory examination of the person of the defendant is not authorized, and evidence procured by means of such compulsory examination should be excluded. State v. Height, 117–650, 91 N. W. 935.

Evidence obtained by search of defendant's house under a search warrant unlawfully issued is inadmissible as against the defendant in a criminal prosecution. State v. Sheridan, 121–164, 96 N. W. 730.

A description which points out or identifies the place to be searched with such reasonable identity as will obviate any mistake in locating it is all that is required. State v. Moore, 125–749, 101 N. W. 732.

The invasion of a dwelling without lawful reason or proper procedure is a wrong for which recovery may be had in damages, unless the owner has voluntarily consented to such invasion. McClurg v. Brenton, 123–368, 98 N. W. 881.

A violation of this constitutional right without reasonable ground therefor gives the injured party a right of action for damages. Krehbiel v. Henkle, 142–677, 121 N. W. 378.

The protection afforded by the constitution against unreasonable search and seizure has no reference to regularly prescribed and orderly proceedings in a court for obtaining evidence. Finn v. Winneshiek Dist. Court, 145–157, 123 N. W. 1066; Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. District Court, 149–66, 127 N. W. 1114.

When a defendant is arrested, it is the duty of the sheriff to take and care for his property and if the property so taken, in itself or when considered with other circumstances, furnishes some evidence of defendant's guilt, he cannot complain on the ground of a search and seizure by which such evidence has been obtained. State v. Hassan, 149–518, 128 N. W. 960.

As a basis for a lawful search and seizure, an information or affidavit is not sufficient if predicated only on information and belief; but one who questions the sufficiency of a warrant on this ground must make his objection to the warrant and not to the information or affidavit on which it is predicated. Koch v. District Court, 150–151, 129 N. W. 740.

Trial by jury—due process of law. SEC. 9.

Jury trial: It is no violation of the general constitutional provision as to due process of law to provide that an appeal from the action of the board of supervisors on an application to secure a drainage of wet lands, shall be tried without a jury. It is only as to damages that there is a constitutional right to jury trial. In re Bradley, 108–476, 79 N. W. 280.

Within the meaning of the constitution the right of trial by jury extends only to those cases where a jury was necessary according to the course of procedure at common law. Therefore jury trial is not essential in a proceeding by appeal to question the legality of special assessments for public ditches. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

As there is a right to a jury trial in a proceeding to determine the right of possession of land, a court of equity will not by injunction interfere to disturb the possession unless there is some peculiar ground to justify equitable relief. Hall v. Henninger, 145–230, 121 N. W. 6.

The right of an incumbent to his office is not a right of property and a statutory provision for removal from office without a jury trial as to the grounds of the removal is not a violation of the guaranty of a trial by jury. State v. Henderson, 145–657, 124 N. W. 767.

Due process: The privilege of pleading usury is not a vested right which cannot be taken away by subsequent legislation. So held as to an act legalizing loans by building and loan associations providing for the payment of more than lawful interest on the sum borrowed. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107–297, 77 N. W. 1050.

The right of the owner of the bed of a nonnavigable stream to fish over his own land is subject to legislative control. State v. Beardsley, 108–396, 79 N. W. 138.

The legislature cannot, by a change in the statute as to limitation of actions, cut off instanter the remedy by suit upon an existing cause of action. A reasonable time must be given within which to prosecute the action under the new statute. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108–695, 77 N. W. 1067.

Confiscation of property without a judicial hearing, after due notice, is not due process of law, and a collateral inheritance tax authorized to be imposed without notice to those claiming the inheritance is invalid, where such a tax is in effect a property tax, and not a tax upon the right of succession. But such a tax may be rendered valid where the estate has not yet been fully settled by a curative act providing for such notice. Ferry v. Campbell, 110–290, 81 N. W. 604.

The legislature cannot by a retrospective statute require payment of higher fees in case of renewal of a corporation than those provided for by law at the time the legal steps for renewal were taken and tender of the fees then required by law was made. Lamb v. Dobson, 117–124, 90 N. W. 607.

The right to an appeal from one court or tribunal to another has never been held to be in itself a denial of due process of law. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

The fact that superior courts are given concurrent jurisdiction with the district courts throughout the county, even in cases where there are two divisions of the county for district court purposes, does not render the statutory provisions as to superior courts unconstitutional under this section. Page v. Millerton, 114-378, 86 N. W. 440.

The salary of an officer is property for which he is entitled to the protection of due process of law. State v. Miller, 132-587, 109 N. W. 1087.

No person has a vested right in a particular remedy, provided an adequate remedy be given. Rice v. Crozier, 139-629, 117 N. W. 984.

While the legislature may not arbitrarily cut off a remedy by providing a limitation of action as to a cause of action already accrued, it may require such action to be brought within a specified time if such limitation allows a reasonable time for instituting the action. Collier v. Smaltz, 149-230, 128 N. W. 396.

Due process of law does not require that any particular form of proceedings should be observed but only that they be regular proceedings in which notice is given of the claim asserted and an opportunity be afforded to defend against it. Smith v. State Board of Med. Exam., 140-66, 117 N. W. 1116.

A provision authorizing the board of medical examiners to revoke a certificate for bad moral character or incompetency, upon a hearing, is not invalid. Ibid.

As the legislature has the power in the first instance to absolve a county officer from liability for certain acts in the discharge of the duties of his office, there is no constitutional objection to retroactive laws relieving him from liability for such acts. McSurely v. McGrew, 140-163, 118 N. W. 415.

A judgment in personam on personal service outside the state, although made on one who is a resident of this state, is unconstitutional as amounting to denial of due process of law. Raher v. Raher, 150-511, 129 N. W. 494.

Due process of law requires notice to a party and opportunity to defend; yet where notice has once been duly given of the institution of any legal proceeding, the constitutional requirement is satisfied, and in the absence of any statute requiring further notice, every party to such proceeding will be treated as in court at each successive stage of the case, whether in the trial court or on appeal. Jones v. Mould, 151-599, 132 N. W. 45.

In a matter over which the state superintendent has exclusive jurisdiction on appeal from a school board, compliance of the board with the orders of the state superintendent may be enforced by mandamus without violation of the constitutional provision as to due process of law. State v. Thomas, 152-500, 132 N. W. 842.

The provision of code supp. § 325 that in a disbarment proceedings commenced on the court's own motion, the court must direct some attorney to draw up the accusation and that in such case no allowance of costs shall be made for the payment of attorney's fees, is not unconstitutional. Brown v. Warren County, 156-20, 135 N. W. 4, 137 N. W. 474.

A statute authorizing any officer on his own judgment and without notice to the owner, to kill a horse which is disabled or unfit for further use, is unconstitutional as applied to the case of an animal suffering from disease which is not contagious or infectious. Waud v. Crawford, 141 N. W. 1041.

The statute prohibiting the issuance of free passes by railroads, held not unconstitutional under this section. Schulz v. Parker, 157—, 139 N. W. 173.

As to legalizing acts see notes to const. art. 1, § 21.

In criminal cases: Due process of law, as guaranteed by the constitution, has received a very broad and liberal interpretation. Everyone is entitled to the protection of those principles of liberty and justice which lie at the basis of all our civil and political institutions. State v. Height, 117-650, 91 N. W. 935.

Fundamental principles of judicial procedure, whether in civil or criminal cases, as they existed and were recognized in the courts of England and the American colonies prior to the adoption of the federal and state constitutions, are intended to be preserved by this guaranty, and while forms may change, essential guaranties cannot be taken away, even by attempted legislative enactment. Ibid.

The rule that involuntary confessions cannot be shown as against the defendant in a criminal prosecution, although not recognized in our constitution or statutory provisions, is essentially involved in the guaranty of due process of law. Ibid.

Likewise the rule against requiring a witness to give self-incriminating evidence in any judicial proceeding, is fundamental, although not specifically guaranteed. And held, therefore, in a criminal prosecution, it was not competent for the state to prove the result of a compulsory examination of the person of the defendant. Ibid.

The provision for the trial and punishment of constructive contempts by the court without a jury does not deprive a person charged with such contempt of his liberty or property without due process of law. Drady v. District Court, 126-345, 102 N. W. 115.

Presence of the judge in the court room in a criminal case is essential unless waived by defendant. State v. Hammer, 116-284, 89 N. W. 1083.

To admit as against a defendant in a criminal prosecution evidence procured by an unlawful search of his premises under a pretended search warrant would amount to a denial of due process of law. State v. Sheridan, 121-164, 96 N. W. 730.

A corporation is a person within the constitutional provisions as to due process of law, and a statutory provision prohibiting agreements between insurance companies as to the rates of commissions to agents is unconstitutional as depriving them of the right of contract. Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Carroll, 125 Fed. 121.

The statutory provision imposing upon relatives the expense of the maintenance of an insane person at the state hospital is not unconstitutional as depriving a person upon whom such obligation is imposed of his property without due process of law. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133–171, 110 N. W. 454.

Laws providing for the prevention and detection of frauds are generally held to be free from constitutional objection. State v. Holton, 148–724, 126 N. W. 1125.

Taxation and assessments: The treasurer may be authorized to assess the tax due on property which the owner has failed to disclose to the assessor. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512.

Although the treasurer is allowed a commission on taxes collected he is not thereby disqualified from acting under code § 1374 in enforcing payment of taxes on omitted property. Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

A statute is not unconstitutional which provides for the collection of a tax by summary proceedings. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121–482, 96 N. W. 968.

The taxation of corporate property in the state in which the corporation is created and of the shares of stockholders in the states of their residence does not constitute such double taxation as is prohibited under the guaranties of due process of law and of uniform operation of the laws. Judy v. Beckwith, 137–24, 114 N. W. 565.

In a proceeding for the establishment of a county ditch a landowner whose property has been included within the drainage district and which is generally benefited by the improvement may be assessed for the cost thereof, although his property is not directly benefited by the specific improvement. Oliver v. Monona County, 117–43, 90 N. W. 510.

A statute providing for the assessment of the expenses of constructing a ditch upon lands not abutting, the owners of which have received no notice of the proceedings, is unconstitutional as depriving such owners of their property without due process of law. Beebe v. Magoun, 122–94, 97 N. W. 986.

When the amount of tax to be exacted depends upon the exercise of judgment and discretion of those fixing the value of the property or benefits by which such amount is to be measured, an opportunity for correction must be afforded. Ibid.

The provisions of § 3, ch. 118, acts 33 G. A. authorizing notice by publication even as to residents of the county in a proceeding to establish a drainage district are not unconstitutional. Johnson v. Board of Supervisors, 148–539, 126 N. W. 153.

If a statute provides for the superior lien on land as the result of special assessment, the mortgagee of such land has no ground for complaint although he is not by notice or otherwise made a party to the proceedings in which the assessment is levied. Fitchpatrick v. Botheras, 150–376, 130 N. W. 163.

The fact that the officers who levy special assessments in a drainage district are not elected by the electors of the drainage district does not render the statute invalid as providing for taxation without representation. Munn v. Board of Supervisors, 141 N. W. 711.

Rights of persons accused. SEC. 10.

Copy of indictment: Where a copy of the indictment is delivered to an attorney for the defendant there is a sufficient compliance with the constitutional requirement that defendant be furnished with a copy of the indictment against him. State v. McClain, 130–73, 106 N. W. 376.

Whether the copy of the indictment delivered to the defendant is a correct copy is a matter to be determined by the trial court when any question is raised with reference thereto. State v. Hatlestad, 132–188, 109 N. W. 613.

Further as to furnishing defendant with a copy of the indictment, see code § 5274 and notes.

Public trial: It rests within the sound discretion of the trial court to exclude the witnesses and send the jury from the room pending argument on a question. The constitutional guaranty is for the purpose of securing to the accused a fair and honest consideration by the jury of the charges made against him. State v. Worthen, 124–408, 100 N. W. 330.

Speedy trial: It is not competent on appeal in a criminal case for the supreme court to dismiss the proceeding on the ground that the defendant had not been given a speedy trial. State v. Sloan, 131–676, 109 N. W. 190.

Issue of fact: The court has no power to instruct that an essential fact is established notwithstanding all the evidence tends to prove such fact. State v. Lightfoot, 107–344, 78 N. W. 41. And on this point see also notes to code § 5386.

Waiver: The defendant in a criminal case may waive the benefit of a statutory provision intended for the protection of his rights. State v. Smith, 132–645, 109 N. W. 115.

Constitutional provisions for the benefit of persons accused may be waived and the conviction based on such waiver will be valid, provided it is pronounced by a court having jurisdiction and duly constituted to try the case. Busse v. Barr, 132–463, 109 N. W. 920.

Waiver of trial by jury: On an appeal to the district court from a conviction before the mayor for violation of a city ordinance, the defendant may waive a jury trial. Lovilia v. Cobb, 126–557, 102 N. W. 496.

The court is wholly without jurisdiction to hear or try an issue of fact in a criminal case without the aid of a jury, and consent or waiver of the defendant does not estop him from taking advantage of the error. State v. Rea, 126–65, 101 N. W. 507.

Confronting witnesses: Defendant is not deprived of privilege of confronting witnesses by provision for admitting testimony of absent witnesses as set out in application for continuance. State v. Wiltsey, 103–54, 72 N. W. 415.

The right of the defendant to be confronted with the witnesses against him in a criminal case is one which may be waived. State v. Smith, 124–334, 100 N. W. 40.

A proceeding to disbar an attorney is not a criminal prosecution, and the requirement that accused be confronted by the witnesses against him has no application. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

The right to be confronted by a witness against him may be waived by defendant, as for instance by a stipulation for the admission of a transcript of the evidence taken on a former trial. State v. Olds, 106–110, 76 N. W. 644.

The opportunity which defendant had for cross-examination, impeachment and contradiction when a witness testified on a former trial obviates any objection on account of not being confronted with the witness, if on account of the intervening death of such witness he cannot be produced on the second trial. State v. Kimes, 152–240, 132 N. W. 180.

The testimony of a witness for the prosecution on the first trial of a criminal case which has been preserved as provided in code supp. § 245-a, may be used on the second trial of the case where the witness has gone beyond the reach of subpoena, without violation of this constitutional provision. State v. Brown, 152–427, 132 N. W. 862.

Swearing of witnesses: To allow a material witness for prosecution to give testimony without being sworn is ground for new trial. State v. Lugar, 115–268, 88 N. W. 333.

Attendance of witnesses: The statutory provision that defendant asking for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness must set out what he expects to prove by such witness, and that a continuance shall not be granted if the opposite party admits the testimony thus set out, is not unconstitutional as depriving defendant in a criminal case of the right to have his witnesses present. State v. Wiltsey, 103–54, 72 N. W. 415.

Assistance of counsel: Although the constitution guarantees to the defendant the right to the assistance of counsel, it is competent for the legislature to reasonably regulate and prescribe the manner of the appointment of such counsel. Korf v. Jasper County, 132–682, 108 N. W. 1031.

When indictment necessary. SEC. 11.

Constitutional provisions for the benefit of persons accused may be waived, and the conviction based on such waiver will be valid, provided it is pronounced by a court having jurisdiction, and duly constituted to try the case. Busse v. Barr, 132–463, 109 N. W. 920.

Objection to the selection of the grand jury may be waived by a failure to make such objection at the proper time, and an objection thus waived cannot afterwards be made a ground for release on habeas corpus from the enforcement of the sentence imposed in a trial had under the indictment. Ibid.

Jurisdiction of justice of the peace: A statute providing for the punishment of an offense before a justice of the peace may provide for charging different violations in separate counts, although the aggregate fines which may be imposed under such information may exceed $100. State v. Denhardt, 129–135, 105 N. W. 385.

Where an ordinance provided for cumulative penalties for a continuing act, which might amount to more than $100, held that the offense was not one within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Babcock, 112–250, 83 N. W. 908.

A statute authorizing amendment of the indictment in matters of form is constitutional. State v. Mullen, 151–392, 131 N. W. 679.

Twice tried—bail. SEC. 12.

An act may constitute two offenses, one against the state and the other against a city or town; and conviction of one may not be pleaded as constituting former jeopardy in a prosecution for the other. Neola v. Reichart, 131–492, 109 N. W. 5.

While in general an acquittal in a criminal case is not a bar to a subsequent civil action founded on the same facts, yet, where the civil action is to secure a forfeiture which would have been a part of the penalty to be imposed in the criminal proceeding, and is between the same parties, the previous acquittal is a bar. State v. Meek, 112–338, 84 N. W. 3.

On reversal of a conviction for manslaughter under an indictment charging murder in the first degree, the defendant can only again be put on trial for the offense of which he was convicted, and he is only entitled to the number of peremptory challenges allowed in case of a prosecution for such offense. State v. Smith, 132–645, 109 N. W. 115.

The rule as to former jeopardy has no application in a contempt proceeding. Gibson v. Hutchinson, 148–139, 126 N. W. 790.

Bail—punishments. SEC. 17.

The habitual criminal act is not unconstitutional as imposing cruel or unusual punishment. State v. Dowden, 137–573, 115 N. W. 211.

Eminent domain. SEC. 18. Private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation first being made, or secured to be made, to the owner thereof, as soon as the damages shall be assessed by a jury, who shall not take into consideration any advantages that may result to said owner on account of the improvement for which it is taken.

[AMENDMENT.] The general assembly, however, may pass laws permitting the owners of lands to construct drains, ditches and levees for agricultural, sanitary or mining purposes across the lands of others, and provide for the organization of drainage districts, vest the proper authorities with power to construct and maintain levees, drains and ditches and to keep in repair all drains, ditches and levees heretofore constructed under the laws of the state, by special assessments upon the property benefited thereby. The general assembly may provide by law for the condemnation of such real estate as shall be necessary for the construction and maintenance of such drains, ditches and levees, and prescribe the method of making such condemnation.

[By proper action of the legislature (31 G. A., joint resolution No. 1, and 32 G. A., joint resolution No. 2) the foregoing paragraph was submitted to the electors at the general election in 1908 as a proposed amendment to the constitution and was by them adopted.]

The power of taking private property for public use may be delegated through an act of the legislature, and it is for that body to determine in the first instance what are the public uses to subserve which a grant of power may properly be made. Interference on the part of the courts with the exercise of this legislative power will not be warranted except where there is a clear, plain and palpable transgression of the constitutional rule. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

That a use for which private property is authorized to be taken shall be a public use, it is not essential that the entire community or any considerable portion of it should directly enjoy or participate in the improvement or enterprise, nor that each person to be benefited shall be affected in precisely the same manner or in the same degree. Ibid.

The substitution of one public use to the exclusion of other public uses is not an invasion of a right of property; therefore held that a statute giving to the board of park commissioners of Des Moines jurisdiction over the banks and bed of the river authorized such board to regulate the taking of ice from the river within such limits. Board of Park Commissioners v. Diamond Ice Co., 130–603, 105 N. W. 203.

An ordinary servitude for a street railway is not an additional use of streets dedicated to public purposes. Snyder v. Ft. Madison Street R. Co., 105–284, 75 N. W. 179.

Consequential injury to the property owner's entire premises, due to the taking of a portion thereof as a part of the site for a public school building, should be considered in estimating the damages resulting from the taking of his property. Haggard v. Independent Sch. Dist., 113–486, 85 N. W. 777.

Benefits will not be taken into account in estimating such consequential injuries. Ibid.

Benefits from the improvement are not to be considered. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116–31, 89 N. W. 77.

A statute requiring the construction of fishways in dams already constructed or owned by authority of the state, is not unconstitutional. State v. Meek, 112–338, 84 N. W. 3.

In determining, as between the state and a telephone company, the right to use the public highways, the question of damages to abutting owners will not be considered. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127–194, 103 N. W. 120.

The provision in the statute for special assessments for public ditches, that the damages shall be secured to be paid upon such terms and conditions as the county auditor may deem just and proper is not unconstitutional. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

A tax for a combination railroad and toll bridge is not unconstitutional. Pritchard v. Magoun, 109–364, 80 N. W. 512.

The land owner is entitled to a trial by a jury of twelve on appeal to the district court, and this proceeding is removable to the federal court in a proper case. Kirby v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106 Fed. 551.

The improvement of a street to the damage of an abutting property owner does not constitute a taking of private property without compensation, although no provision is made for the reimbursement of such owner for the damage suffered, even though by excavation in the street to its full width his property is deprived of lateral support. Talcott v. Des Moines, 134–113, 109 N. W. 311.

In estimating the damages for the taking of land for a drainage ditch the owner is entitled to recover the fair market value of the land taken without regard to the benefits which may accrue to the entire tract of land through which the ditch is located. Gish v. Castner, etc., Drainage Dist., 137–711, 115 N. W. 474.

In condemnation proceedings the benefits to the property by reason of the improvement cannot be taken into consideration. But in assessing damages to abutting property on account of the construction of a viaduct in the street, if benefits may be considered, they should not be allowed to entirely deprive the property owner or lessee of all damages. Western Newspaper Union v. Des Moines, 140 N. W. 367.

Provisions for the establishment of a drainage district on notice by publication to owners of property residing within the county are not unconstitutional. Johnson v. Board of Supervisors, 148–539, 126 N. W. 153.

The question of power to condemn land is judicial, but the question of necessity is legislative. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

The award, when made in a condemnation proceeding, though only preliminary, is final and binding unless there is an appeal. Ibid.

Milldam acts have quite generally been held constitutional in the exercise of the power of eminent domain. Ibid.

Imprisonment for debt. SEC. 19.

A statutory provision that failure to pay an inspection fee shall be punished as a misdemeanor is unconstitutional as authorizing an imprisonment for debt. Hubbell v. Higgins, 148–36, 126 N. W. 914.

Attainder—ex post facto law—obligation of contract. SEC. 21.

Ex post facto: A statute which increases the punishment of an offense already committed is unconstitutional. Therefore held that a statute by which an offense previously punishable as petit larceny on information before a justice of the peace was made indictable on account of three previous convictions was not applicable to an offense committed before the statute went into effect. State v. Dale, 110–215, 81 N. W. 453.

The habitual criminals act is not ex post facto as applied to a case in which the previous conviction relied upon as increasing the punishment antedated the passage of the statute. State v. Dowden, 137–573, 115 N. W. 211.

Change in the method of selecting grand jury lists is not unconstitutional as applied to a crime already committed. State v. Pell, 140–655, 119 N. W. 154.

The statute conferring authority on the board of parole to mitigate sentences and grant paroles to persons convicted before the law took effect is not objectionable as ex post facto. Ware v. Sanders, 146–233, 124 N. W. 1081.

Retroactive laws: A statute affecting the remedy only is not unconstitutional as applied to a right existing before the statute is passed. Allerton v. Monona County, 111–560, 82 N. W. 922.

The constitution does not forbid the enactment of retroactive laws, and the validity of such statutes has frequently been upheld. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

A statute relating simply to the remedy, such as the statute of limitations, may apply to causes of action previously existing, but a statute affecting the terms of a previous contract, for instance, one which extends the term of limitation of action fixed in a policy of insurance, will not be applied to contracts already made. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 112–608, 84 N. W. 904.

The term of limitation for bringing action under provisions of an insurance policy cannot be extended by statute. Ibid.

Statutory provisions as to collection of taxes on omitted property are not unconstitutional, though given retrospective operation. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512.

One who acquires by grant from the state the right to maintain a dam already erected by the state, takes such right subject to the police power of the state to require the construction of a fishway. State v. Meek, 112–338, 84 N. W. 3.

Legalizing acts: A curative act may be valid. Iowa Savings & Loan Assn. v. Selby, 111–402, 82 N. W. 968.

The bringing of suit vests no right in a particular decision, and a curative act may be effectual to obviate the effect of defective or unauthorized proceedings of a municipal corporation, even after the bringing of suit in which the legality of the corporate act is brought in question, provided no contract or vested right is affected. Windsor v. Des Moines, 110–175, 81 N. W. 476.

The defect in the collateral inheritance tax law, consisting of failure to provide for notice to those taking the inheritance, held cured by a restrospective statute providing for notice, so that in a case where the estate was not settled the supreme court might on appeal reverse the judgment entered in the lower court based on the failure of the law to provide for such notice. Ferry v. Campbell, 110–290, 81 N. W. 604.

The legislature may legalize the recording of instruments defectively acknowledged, and held that such a statute was applicable to an instrument of adoption. Bresser v. Saarman, 112–720, 84 N. W. 920.

The legislature may legalize any act which it might lawfully have authorized in the first instance, and held that it could provide retrospectively that a notice to nonresidents by publication was valid, a proceeding in which such notice might have been authorized. Fair v. Buss, 117–164, 90 N. W. 527.

The legislature may by amendment cure a constitutional defect in a statute, the main purpose of which is within the scope of legislative power, and give such amendment retroactive effect upon cases already begun and pending. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128–427, 104 N. W. 506.

Where a curative act has removed the invalidity of a contract, such invalidity is not restored by repeal. Edworthy v. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn., 114–220, 86 N. W. 315.

A legalizing act is not unconstitutional which simply makes effectual between parties a conveyance which otherwise would have been ineffectual on account of some irregularity or omission not involving substantial rights. Swartz v. Andrews, 137–261, 114 N. W. 888.

Those claiming under a transaction taking place after the passage of the curative act cannot assert any right which the parties themselves could not have asserted. Ibid.

Obligation of contracts: Where city warrants are issued at a time when the statutes required their payment in the order of presentation, such provision is a part of the warrant, and subsequent legislation subordinating prior warrants to those for subsequent years would be unconstitutional as to warrants issued before the statute went into effect. Phillips v. Reed, 109–188, 80 N. W. 347.

A statute which is found in its application to a particular case to impair the obligation of a contract, may be held unconstitutional in that respect, although valid in other cases. Brady v. Mattern, 125–158, 100 N. W. 358.

A judgment rendered upon a tort or other cause of action not entitled to protection as a contract may be impaired without violating the constitutional inhibition. Ferry v. Campbell, 110–290, 81 N. W. 604.

Whether a judgment is a contract within the constitutional provision, quaere. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

Change of judicial decision cannot constitute the impairment of the constitutional obligation of contracts. Swanson v. Ottumwa, 131–540, 106 N. W. 9.

The period of limitation may be reduced without impairing the obligation of an existing contract, provided a reasonable period within which to maintain action on such contract is preserved. Wooster v. Bateman, 126–552, 102 N. W. 521.

In determining what is a reasonable time, the period which has elapsed between the enactment of the statute and its taking effect may be considered. Ibid.

Where there is a contract to pay for services out of a specified fund of a building and loan association, such associations being expressly made subject to legislative control, the act of the legislature in abolishing the fund from which payment could be made is not invalid as impairing the obligation of a contract. Wood v. Iowa Bldg. & Loan Assn., 126–464, 102 N. W. 410.

As corporate charters are subject to legislative control, the provision in a franchise granted to a street railway company that it shall not be liable for the expense of street improvements otherwise than as specified in such franchise, does not prevent subsequent regulations imposing additional obligations on such company. Marshalltown Light, P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127–637, 103 N. W. 1005.

Where a county had contracted with agents to discover property omitted or concealed from taxation, for a compensation to be determined by a percentage of the taxes collected from such property, held that a subsequent statute limiting the percentage which could thus be contracted for was not valid as to services previously rendered under a valid contract. Shinn v. Cunningham, 120–383, 94 N. W. 941.

A resolution of a city council directing the removal from the streets of the tracks of a street railway company is a law of the state within the constitutional prohibition of the impairment of the obligations of contract. Des Moines City R. Co. v. Des Moines, 151 Fed. 854.

The legislature may impose conditions on a corporation with reference to its continuance in business which may affect its enforcement of contracts already entered into. St. John v. Iowa Business Men's B. & L. Assn., 136–448, 113 N. W. 863.

A school corporation acquires no vested rights or franchises by its creation. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

Liability of an officer to county or municipal corporations on account of his acts may be relinquished by retrospective legislation. A municipal corporation has no vested right in such case. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

ARTICLE 2.—RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.

Electors. SECTION 1.

The right of suffrage is not a natural or personal right, and does not come within the scope of constitutional guaranties as to equal privileges. Shaw v. Marshalltown, 131–128, 104 N. W. 1121.

The statute providing for primary elections in cities adopting the commission form of government is not unconstitutional as depriving the electors of the power to vote for the candidates of their choice. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

The provision as to appointment of police commissioners from different political parties (code supp. § 679-d) are not unconstitutional as interfering with freedom of elections or the rights of electors. The office not being one provided for by the constitution, but municipal in character, the legislature may regulate the qualifications for such office. State ex rel. Jones v. Sargent, 145–298, 124 N. W. 339.

As this section designates the precise qualifications of electors it necessarily disqualifies others from exercising the elective franchise and if the legislature provides for elections other than those expressly referred to in the constitution, the electors must be as here specified. But the statute authorizing women to vote at municipal elections on the question of issuing bonds or increasing taxes does not provide for the voting by women at an election, as the vote on such questions is advisory only. Coggeshall v. Des Moines, 138–730, 117 N. W. 309.

The legislature cannot add to or take from the qualifications of this section; and while the legislature may authorize women to vote on questions of public policy or administration submitted to the popular vote, but not including the election or choice of officers, such legislation does not make women qualified electors. In re Application of Carragher, 149–225, 128 N. W. 352.

The legislature has the power to regulate the exercise of the right of suffrage and to provide a method for determining whether persons offering to vote possess the required qualifications. Lane v. Mitchell, 153–139, 133 N. W. 381.

Ballot. SEC. 6.

Voting by means of a voting machine is voting by ballot. The constitutional provision that elections shall be by ballot was intended to require and protect the secrecy of the ballot, with the general purpose of guarding against intimidation, securing freedom in the exercise of the elective franchise, and reducing to a minimum the incentives to bribery. United States Standard Voting Mch. Co. v. Hobson, 132–38, 109 N. W. 458.

General election. [SEC. 7.]

The biennial election amendment was properly submitted as one proposition, although it involved changes in different sections of the constitution. Lobaugh v. Cook, 127–181, 102 N. W. 1121.

ARTICLE 3.—OF THE DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

General assembly. SECTION 1.

A statute authorizing the county auditor to exercise judicial powers in the assessment of property for taxation is not open to attack on the ground that it is in contravention of the constitutional provision distributing the powers among the three departments. Clark v. Horn, Auditor, 122–375, 98 N. W. 148.

The delegation by the legislature of the power to tax may be made to a municipal corporation, but not to other agencies, and such power cannot be vested in a board of trustees not elected by the people of the municipality. State ex rel. v. Mayor of Des Moines, 103–76, 72 N. W. 639.

The legislature may give to executive officers a discretion in determining the conditions to be imposed on the conducting of a business which is subject to legislative control. Brady v. Mattern, 125–158, 100 N. W. 358.

The legislature may prescribe for the punishment as a misdemeanor of the offense of violating the rules of the state board of health, adopted and published as authorized by statute. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130–333, 106 N. W. 751.

The statute authorizing cities of a certain description to adopt the commission form of government on the vote of the electors is not unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power. The statute is not dependent on the vote of the electors; the only question to be submitted being whether the city shall avail itself of the provision of the statute. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

Such statute is not unconstitutional on account of the provisions for initiative, referendum and recall. Ibid.

The statutory provisions as to a state board of medical examiners are not a violation of the constitutional provision that the legislative authority of a state is vested in the general assembly. Smith v. State Board of Med. Exam., 140–66, 117 N. W. 1116.

The legislature may exercise all powers not forbidden by the constitution or delegated by the people to the federal government or prohibited by the constitution of the United States. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

Authority vested in a board of supervisors which is in its nature legislative and not judicial cannot be exercised on appeal by a court authorized only to exercise judicial functions. Denny v. Des Moines County, 143–466, 121 N. W. 1066.

The legislature in exercising the power to legislate in the interest of public welfare may grant to commissioners and other subordinate officers power to ascertain and determine appropriate facts as a basis for procedure in the enforcement of the law, and the granting of such authority is not a delegation of legislative power. Hubbell v. Higgins, 148–36, 126 N. W. 914.

When action has once been commenced in a court the question of jurisdiction is purely a judicial one, and the legislature cannot by retroactive legislation affect the determination of that question. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

While the power of taxation is legislative, the determination of questions of fact as to whether particular property comes within the statutory description and particular persons are persons required to pay taxes on property, as well as the determination of the correctness of the method pursued in any particular case, is often strictly judicial. In re assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

The legislature may delegate the power of releasing county officials from liability to the board of supervisors. Such a provision does not confer legislative powers on another body than the legislature. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

Approval. SEC. 16.

A bill passed and signed in the method provided for in the constitution becomes a law notwithstanding a failure to observe some joint rule of the legislature relating to the method of procedure in the enactment of statutes. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

Who liable to—judgment. SEC. 20.

The general subject of the removal of county and city officers may be provided for by statute. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

The act relating to the removal from office of officers for misconduct etc., including intoxication (33 G. A. ch. 78) is not unconstitutional as in violation of the provisions of this section. State v. Henderson, 145–657, 124 N. W. 767.

Laws, when to take effect—publication. SEC. 26.

The date of the passage of a statute may be given effect as limiting an exemption therein provided for although it does not take effect until a subsequent date. Sawyer v. Gallagher, 151–64, 130 N. W. 173.

Divorce. SEC. 27.

As the jurisdiction of the legislature to grant divorces is denied, the courts are given general jurisdiction in such cases. Gelwicks v. Gelwicks, 142 N. W. 409.

Acts—one subject—expressed in title. SEC. 29.

Title of statute—one subject: The intention of this constitutional provision is to prevent the union in the same act of incongruous matter, but it is a unity of object which is to be looked for in the ultimate purpose to be attained and not in the details for accomplishing such purpose. Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

Titles of legislative acts are to be liberally construed. Ibid.

The subject of an act is required to be expressed in the title only by the use of general terms. But where the purpose is not so expressed the act is void. Rex Lumber Co. v. Reed, 107–111, 77 N. W. 572.

In the absence of any showing of defects in the enactment of the code, either as a whole or by titles and chapters, the court is not justified in holding that any section or chapter of the code is void because the subject matter is not embraced in the title. State v. Schlenker, 112–642, 84 N. W. 698.

The requirement is that the act shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith. Guaranty S. & L. Assn. v. Ascherman, 108–150, 78 N. W. 823.

Provisions relating to the means and manner of making effective the general purpose of the act as expressed in the title do not render the act invalid because such provisions are not included therein. Boggs v. School Township, 128–15, 102 N. W. 796.

The intention of the constitutional provision was to prohibit the insertion in an act of incongruous matter having no connection or relation with the general subject as expressed in the title. Accordingly the title is sufficient, although confined to general terms, if it answers as a key to the subject-matter of the act. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128–442, 104 N. W. 454.

It is the subject of the act and not all matters properly connected therewith which is to be expressed in the title. Newton v. Board of Supervisors, 135–27, 112 N. W. 167.

The title of an act (24 G. A., ch. 36) relating to counterfeiting of union labels, held sufficient to cover provisions of the act relating to damages or penalty for violation thereof. Beebe v. Tolerton & Stetson Co., 117–593, 91 N. W. 905.

The provision that every act shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith, which subject shall be expressed in the title, does not render invalid the provisions of code §§ 5006–7 with reference to the sale of cigarettes, by which it is provided that it shall be criminal for any one to make such sale who has not paid a mulct tax, notwithstanding the fact that this provision is contained in the title of the code relating to crimes and punishments. Cook v. Marshall County, 119–384, 93 N. W. 372.

The title of the code, "Of the practice of medicine," sufficiently covers professing relating to itinerant physicians professing or attempting to treat, cure or heal diseases. State v. Edmunds, 127–333, 101 N. W. 431.

The constitutional provision is not intended to prohibit the uniting in one bill of any number of provisions having one general object fairly indicated by its title. The unity of the objects must be sought in the end which the legislature purposes to accomplish. It is admissible to include in the statute means which are reasonably adapted to secure the objects intended by the title. Beaner v. Lucas, 138–215, 112 N. W. 772.

The title of an act is to be liberally construed in determining whether it covers the subject matter. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

It is not necessary that the details of the subject-matter be set forth in the title. It is sufficient if the title affords a fair "key" to the contents of the act. State v. Fairmont Creamery Co., 153–702, 133 N. W. 895.

The title of an act, though confined to general terms, is sufficient if it answers as a key to the subject-matter. Schulz v. Parker, 157——, 139 N. W. 173.

Amendments: A title which simply names or describes an amending act as such without stating the specific character or subject of the amendment is sufficient. It is only the general purpose which is to be expressed in the title, and not the methods or provisions by which that purpose is to be accomplished. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 131–340, 108 N. W. 902.

The amendment of an act in general, or of a particular section thereof, implies merely a change of its provisions upon the same subject to which the act or section relates. State v. Bristow, 131–664, 109 N. W. 199.

A provision for issuance of bonds by any city of a certain class for the erection of a city hall, held sufficiently embraced within the title of the act which authorized the erection of a city hall and the levy of a special tax therefor. Beaner v. Lucas, 138–215, 112 N. W. 772.

The title, "An act to amend § 1898 of the code relating to building and loan associations," held sufficient to cover curative provisions relating to such associations. Iowa Savings & Loan Assn. v. Selby, 111–402, 82 N. W. 968.

Local or special laws—laws general and uniform—boundaries of counties. SEC. 30.

General and special laws: Where a general law could not have been made applicable to remedy the difficulty to be cured by legislation a special statute is not unconstitutional. McCain v. Des Moines, 128–331, 103 N. W. 979.

The legislature may legalize a defective notice in proceedings for establishment of a highway without making such legalizing act applicable to other cases. Such a statute cannot be made of general application. Fair v. Buss, 117–164, 90 N. W. 527.

Curative acts are not subject to the requirement as to uniformity of operation. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

For incorporation of cities and towns: It was not intended by the provision of the constitution of 1857 forbidding the granting of special charters to cities to render invalid the charters already granted. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124–1, 97 N. W. 1082.

Municipal corporations: A curative statute legalizing the exercise in a particular case of authority given to counties in general held not to be invalid under this section. Witter v. Board of Supervisors, 112–380, 83 N. W. 1041.

A statute making special provisions as to one particular city with reference to the granting of a franchise to own and operate waterworks, is invalid. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 118–234, 91 N. W. 1081.

A legalizing act, the effect of which is to except or release a certain city from the operation of a general statute, which remains in full force against all other municipalities of the state, is an evasion of the provisions of article 3, section 30, as to special legislation and invalid. Ibid.

The constitutional provision seems to have been framed with special reference to the preservation of merely local interests from legislative interference, except through the medium of general laws having a uniform operation throughout the state. Ibid.

A statute applicable only to cities under special charter is not invalid for want of uniformity of operation. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124–1, 97 N. W. 1082.

An act is not local or special if it brings all municipalities similarly conditioned, then existing and thereafter to come into existence, into a class, and in respect of each of which the act thus designated is to have uniform operation. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

A classification of cities by population and the enactment of provisions for one which are not applicable to another does not interfere with the uniform operation of the laws. State v. Grefe, 139–18, 117 N. W. 13.

Uniform operation: An inheritance tax imposed on the value of the estate of the decedent above a certain exemption and applicable to that part of such estate not distributed to certain named relatives is not unconstitutional because not of uniform operation. In re McGhee's Estate, 105–9, 74 N. W. 695.

Discriminations between unincorporated associations and corporations conducting the same business when based on a reasonable distinction involving the public welfare are not prohibited. Brady v. Mattern, 125–158, 100 N. W. 358.

The statutory provision prohibiting combinations among insurance companies is not unconstitutional because not applicable to other forms of business. Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Carroll, 125 Fed. 121.

The fact that female suffrage is limited to questions involving the issuance of bonds, borrowing money and increasing of taxes at municipal elections does not render the statutory provision in that respect unconstitutional as lacking uniformity. Coggeshall v. Des Moines, 138–730, 117 N. W. 309.

A discrimination between the sexes in regard to the right to sell intoxicating liquors is not unconstitutional. In re Application of Carragher, 149–225, 128 N. W. 352.

Taxation—what is: The license which a city may impose on vehicles using its streets is authorized under the police power, if the fee is only such as will cover the expense of enforcing the regulation as to a particular calling, but when the fee is larger than is necessary for such purpose and is exacted for the purpose of revenue, the license is issued under the taxing power. Des Moines v. Bolton, 128–108, 102 N. W. 1045.

Senators—number—apportionment. SEC. 34. The senate shall be composed of fifty members to be elected from the several senatorial districts established by law and at the next session of the general assembly held following the taking of the state and national census, they shall be apportioned among the several counties or districts of the state, according to population as shown by the last preceding census.

Representatives—number—apportionment—districts. SEC. 35. The house of representatives shall consist of not more than one hundred and eight members. The ratio of representation shall be determined by dividing the whole number of the population of the state as shown by the last preceding state or national census, by the whole number of counties then existing or organized, but each county shall constitute one representative district and be entitled to one representative, but each county having a population in excess of the ratio number, as herein provided, of three fifths or more of such ratio number shall be entitled to one additional representative, but said addition shall extend only to the nine counties having the greatest population.

Ratio and apportionment. SEC. 36. The general assembly shall, at the first regular session held following the adoption of this amendment, and at each succeeding regular session held next after the taking of such census, fix the ratio of representation, and apportion the additional representatives, as hereinbefore required.

[By proper legislative action (29 G. A., joint resolution No. 2, and 30 G. A., joint resolution No. 2) a proposed amendment repealing sections 34, 35 and 36 of Article III, and adopting the three preceding sections in lieu thereof, was submitted to the electors at the general election in 1904 and adopted.]

ARTICLE 4.—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Pardons. SECTION 16.

A pardon may be conditional and may be revoked without a judicial proceeding on breach of the condition, such revocation being provided for in the pardon itself. But the acceptance of a conditional pardon does not bind the prisoner to forfeiture of his statutory right to diminution of his term of imprisonment on account of good conduct so far as the right to diminution has accrued prior to the granting of the conditional pardon. State v. Hunter, 124–569, 100 N. W. 510.

The power of the governor to pardon or reprieve or to commute a sentence is in no way abrogated, restricted or removed by the statute providing for a board of parole. (Code supp. § 5718-a18.) Ware v. Sanders, 146–233, 124 N. W. 1081.

The parole of prisoners under the provisions of the indeterminate law is not an infringement on the constitutional right of the governor in granting pardons and reprieves. State v. Duff, 144–142, 122 N. W. 829.

Until fines are paid the matter of their collection is under the control of those upon whom rests the responsibility for the enforcement of the laws of the state. The governor only may remit fines and forfeitures. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

ARTICLE 5.—JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Courts. SECTION 1.

The establishment of superior courts is not in contravention of the provisions of this section. Page v. Millerton, 114–378, 86 N. W. 440.

A court cannot be authorized to perform a nonjudicial function not connected with the exercise of its judicial power. Therefore held that a statute authorizing the judges of the district court to appoint trustees of city waterworks, to control and operate such works for the city, was unconstitutional. State ex rel. v. Barker, 116–96, 89 N. W. 204.

Although the power to punish for contempt is inherent in the courts, it is within the province of the legislature to regulate the procedure. Drady v. District Court, 126–345, 102 N. W. 115.

Courts interfere with legislative action on the ground that it is unconstitutional only when some provision of the fundamental law is violated or when the act is clearly in violation of some implied prohibition of the constitution. Youngerman v. Murphy, 107–686, 76 N. W. 648.

A court deriving its authority from the provisions of this section cannot be vested with the authority to review the action of a board of supervisors in a matter which is by the statute within the legislative discretion of such board. Denny v. Des Moines County, 143–466, 121 N. W. 1066.

The district court may be authorized by statute to ascertain on an appeal from the taxation board whether particular property is subject to taxation and particular persons are required to pay taxes on such property, as well as to determine the correctness of the methods pursued in any particular case. Judicial questions for determination by the courts may arise in the exercise of executive and legislative powers. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

Judges elected. SEC. 3.

It was not improper to embody the provision for changing the method for determining who should be chief justice of the supreme court in the amendment providing for biennial elections. Lobaugh v. Cook, 127–181, 102 N. W. 1121.

Jurisdiction. SEC. 4.

The supreme court has no jurisdiction to correct findings of fact made by the jury, and it cannot consider the question whether the verdict is supported by the evidence unless that question has been presented to the lower court. Schulte v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124–191, 99 N. W. 714.

The supreme court, being given supervisory control over all inferior judicial tribunals, has the power to revise the action of such tribunal where no appeal is provided for. Home Sav. & T. Co. v. District Court, 121–1, 95 N. W. 522.

The jurisdiction conferred by the constitution in equity suits is that possessed by chancery courts at the time of the adoption of the constitution, and, in the absence of restriction, an appeal brings the whole case before the supreme court for review and retrial of facts as well as of law. Lessenich v. Sellers, 119–314, 93 N. W. 348.

It seems to be within the implied powers of the supreme court to issue a writ of habeas corpus in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. Ware v. Sanders, 146–233, 124 N. W. 1081.

The legislature having provided the manner and method by which a party to an equitable action may preserve evidence that is essential to a hearing de novo on appeal, a failure to pursue the manner or method prescribed, even though as the result of unavoidable casualty or misfortune, does not entitle him to a new trial in order to secure the presentation of his case on appeal. Dumbarton Realty Co. v. Erickson, 143-677, 120 N. W. 1025.

It is not a constitutional right to have a case, which is triable de novo in the supreme court, tried on depositions in the lower court. Tuttle v. Pockert, 147-41, 125 N. W. 841.

As to the power of the supreme court to issue a restraining order, see notes to code § 4128.

Style of process. SEC. 8.

Where the mode of enforcing an ordinance is prescribed by charter, that mode should be pursued, and if thus authorized the prosecution may be in the name of the state. State v. Wilson, 109-93, 80 N. W. 230.

ARTICLE 7.—STATE DEBTS.

Tax imposed distinctly stated. SECTION 7.

Statutory provisions authorizing cities to impose a tax for waterworks, to be constructed under contracts to be made in the future on approval of the electors, are not in violation of this section. Youngerman v. Murphy, 107-686, 76 N. W. 648.

It is doubtful whether the provision of the constitution relating to laws which embody taxes has any application to license taxes. State v. Edmunds, 127-333, 101 N. W. 431.

The provisions requiring relatives of an insane person to pay for the support of such person at the hospital for the insane do not constitute the imposition of a tax. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133-171, 110 N. W. 454.

ARTICLE 8.—CORPORATIONS.

Property taxable. SECTION 2.

The provision of code § 1333 for payment by insurance companies of a per cent. of gross earnings in lieu of all other state, county and local taxes, except taxes on real estate and special assessments, is unconstitutional, as in violation of the provisions of this section. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. French, 109-585, 80 N. W. 660.

But such provision is not unconstitutional as authorizing unequal taxation. Manchester Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 91 Fed. 711.

A provision by which telegraph and telephone companies are required to pay taxes directly to the state and in so far were exempted from local taxes, was held to be invalid as providing for the taxation of the property of corporations on a different basis from that of individuals. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123-591, 99 N. W. 205.

It is not required that taxes on business or on privileges shall be uniform, and the state may impose a special tax on the business of foreign insurance companies within the state. Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 109-606, 80 N. W. 665.

The provision of the constitution that the property of all corporations for pecuniary profit shall be subject to taxation the same as that of individuals has no application to a business or license tax, such as the taxation of an insurance company based on its gross receipts. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn. v. Gilbertson, 129-658, 106 N. W. 153.

The property of foreign corporations is assessable the same as that of individuals. Morril v. Bentley, 150-677, 130 N. W. 734.

Amendment or repeal of charters—exclusive privileges. SEC. 12.

The terms of a franchise granted to a street railway company are subject to modification by subsequent legislation. Marshalltown Light, P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127-637, 103 N. W. 1005.

Special privileges being obnoxious and monopolies odious, a city council cannot grant a perpetual franchise for the use of the city street by a street railway company, but may fix the duration of the franchise at a reasonable length of time in the absence of any special provisions on the subject by the legislature. State v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 140 N. W. 437.

While the legislature cannot by the amendment of a corporate charter render invalid a contract executed by a corporation, it may require that the corporation continue in business only on compliance with new conditions imposed, even though that involves a modification of its contract rights. St. John v. Iowa Business Men's B. & L. Assn., 136-448, 113 N. W. 863.

ARTICLE 9.—EDUCATION AND SCHOOL LANDS.

1.—Education.

Board may be abolished. SECTION 15.

The general authority to regulate the conduct of pupils is vested in the school board as representing the school district. Kinzer v. Independent School District, 129-441, 105 N. W. 686.

2.—School Funds and School Lands.

Fines, etc., how appropriated. SEC. 4.

In the absence of any statutory authority the board of supervisors cannot agree to pay a percentage of fines to a person authorized by it to collect such fines. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155-527, 136 N. W. 929.

ARTICLE 10.—AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

How proposed—submission. SECTION 1.

A proposed amendment providing for biennial elections held not constitutionally adopted because not entered in full on the house journal. State ex rel. v. Brookhart, 113-250, 84 N. W. 1064.

More than one. SEC. 2.

The purpose of the provision as to submission of amendments is to exact the submission of each amendment to the constitution on its merits alone, and to secure the free and independent expression of the will of the people as to each; but if one change necessitates other corresponding changes in the constitution they may all be embodied in one proposition to amend. Lobaugh v. Cook, 127-181, 102 N. W. 1121.

ARTICLE 11.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Jurisdiction of justice of the peace. SECTION 1.

The action of forcible entry and detainer is a summary proceeding involving only the fact of possession, and not necessarily the right of possession, and it may therefore be properly maintained before a justice of the peace. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109-680, 81 N. W. 178.

Where the question of unlawful detention after the expiration of a lease is alone involved, the constitutional provision limiting the jurisdiction of the justice to a certain sum does not apply. Ibid.

If the notice of action in the court of a justice of the peace requires the defendant to appear or judgment will be rendered against him for $100 and interest, the justice does not acquire jurisdiction. Evans v. Murphy, 133-550, 110 N. W. 1025.

Indebtedness of political or municipal corporations. SEC. 3.

What indebtedness excessive: All property within the corporate limits, whether subject to assessment for city purposes or not, is to be taken into account in determining whether the indebtedness exceeds the five per cent. limit. Windsor v. City of Des Moines, 110-175, 81 N. W. 476.

The limitation has reference to the actual value and not to the value at which the property is to be assessed under code § 1305, providing for assessment at twenty-five per cent. of the actual value at which it is listed. Halsey v. Belle Plaine, 128-467, 104 N. W. 494.

This provision of the constitution is mandatory. Nash v. Council Bluffs, (C. C.) 174 Fed. 182.

The valuation furnishing the basis for determining whether the limit of indebtedness has been exceeded is that placed upon the property by the assessor and not the taxable value of twenty-five per cent. of the actual value as provided in code § 1305. Ibid.

A county may not incur pecuniary liability by bonds or notes or by express or implied promises in excess of the constitutional limitation of liability. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 121-733, 96 N. W. 1096.

The issuance of bonds in excess of the constitutional limitation for the purpose of taking up outstanding bonds which are valid is not justified where the new bonds are issued as binding obligations without a cancellation or surrender of the old ones. By such an arrangement a new debt is for the time being created. Ibid.

A judgment in the federal court in an action on interest coupons as to the validity of the bonds with reference to the constitutional limit of indebtedness is binding in a subsequent action in the state court on the bonds and their coupons, wherein the same defenses are urged as were determined in the federal court. Ibid.

If the city has on hand or in prospect at the time of the issue of warrants funds with which to meet them without trenching on the rights of creditors for current expenses of the city, such warrants are valid although such funds may afterwards have been wrongfully applied to other purposes. Phillips v. Reed, 107–331, 76 N. W. 850, 77 N. W. 1031; Phillips v. Reed, 109–188, 80 N. W. 347.

New bonds issued in exchange for bonds which were in excess of the constitutional limit of indebtedness when issued are subject to the constitutional objection. Salmon v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 125 Fed. 235.

The holder of bonds issued in excess of the constitutional limitation has the burden of proving that he acquired them for value and without notice of invalidity. Ibid.

The recital in new bonds that they are in conformity with the constitutional requirement does not give the holder any better right than he had under his original bonds not containing such recital. Ibid.

The purchaser of bonds is not entitled to rely on the recitals therein that the debt created does not exceed the constitutional limit. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. Sch. Dist., 111 Fed. 453.

The purchaser of bonds is bound to take notice of the value of the taxable property of the municipality. Burlington Sav. Bank v. Clinton, 111 Fed. 439.

This section does not prevent a city already indebted to the constitutional limit from becoming liable to a contractor for improvements, the cost of which is to be assessed to abutting owners and payment for which is to be made by special assessments, if the city fails to make valid assessments against the abutting property. The constitutional prohibition does not apply to a liability arising from such wrongful act of the city. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

If warrants are only drawn where there is an appropriation to meet them, outstanding warrants are not to be included in estimating the indebtedness of a city. Windsor v. Des Moines, 110–175, 81 N. W. 476.

An option to purchase real estate, under which the city is not obligated to make additional payments, except as it voluntarily elects to do so, does not constitute an indebtedness. Ibid.

Where it is contended that contracts for grading and the like, which are to be paid for out of the general revenues, are not to be included under the general indebtedness, the burden is on the city to show that the amounts to be paid will be covered by the current revenues. Ibid.

An obligation of the city to erect an electric light plant by issuing warrants and levying a tax for the payment of the same, and pledging future revenues also for such payment, held to create an indebtedness of the city. Ibid.

There is a distinction between a contract to procure light for a city and its inhabitants, and a contract for the construction of an electric light plant. A contract for the latter purpose, by which time of payment is postponed to a later date and no special levies for the purpose of erecting such works is authorized, creates a municipal indebtedness. Such a purpose is not one for which the city may anticipate its general revenues. Ibid.

Recovery cannot be had upon a series of bonds which of themselves exceed the constitutional limitation by simply saying that the series were sold for cash and that if the county official had properly used the proceeds in payment of existing indebtedness the total debt of the corporation would not have been increased. The party advancing money under such bonds is bound to take notice of the constitutional limitation and is charged with the knowledge that, to create a valid claim against the corporation, the money he advances must be used in payment of valid indebtedness. Aetna L. Ins. Co. v. Lyon County, 82 Fed. 929.

The action of the bondholder who can thus show that the money advanced by him was used in the extinguishment of valid indebtedness is properly founded on his bonds and he is not limited to an action for money had and received. His action is therefore not barred by the statute of limitations until the statutory period has run against the bonds. Ibid.

Where bonds are void because issued in excess of the constitutional limitation, they are not to be considered in estimating the amount of indebtedness, and the fact that subsequently these bonds have been paid by money obtained from the selling of another series of void bonds which have since been repudiated will be immaterial. Ashuelot Nat. Bank v. Lyon County, 81 Fed. 127; Lyon County v. Ashuelot Nat. Bank, 87 Fed. 137.

Bonds which are invalid when issued are to be treated as invalid for all purposes, even though they have subsequently been paid by the corporation, without question as to their validity. German Ins. Co. v. Manning, 95 Fed. 597.

Warrants outstanding at the time of the issuance of bonds do not constitute an indebtedness if there is money in the treasury to meet them, and the burden is upon the corporation to prove that such warrants relied upon by it as constituting a part of the indebtedness of the corporation exceeded the cash in the treasury available for their payment, the presumption being in favor of the validity of the bonds. Ibid.

A school district cannot defend against payment of its equitable portion of the indebtedness of the district which has been created by division on account of the excess of indebtedness beyond its constitutional limit. Taylor v. School Dist., 97 Fed. 753.

Warrants for ordinary current expenses which, together with other like expenses, are within the limit of the current revenue of such special taxes as the municipality may legally and in good faith have levied, do not constitute an indebtedness within the meaning of the constitutional provision. Cedar Rapids v. Bechtel, 110–196, 81 N. W. 468.

Refunding bonds to cover warrants of this kind, valid when issued, cannot be considered as an increase of the city's indebtedness. Ibid.

The provisions of code § 745, as amended by 27 G. A., ch. 23, and code § 894, with reference to contracting for the erection of waterworks, contemplate the levying of a tax to be paid in installments in the future and an appropriation of the proceeds of such tax to the erection or procuring of waterworks, and do not involve the assumption of any indebtedness on the part of the city, and they are not therefore unconstitutional as in violation of the provision limiting municipal indebtedness. Swanson v. Ottumwa, 118–161, 91 N. W. 1048. (Contra: Ottumwa v. City Water Supply Co., 119 Fed., 315; City Water Supply Co. v. Ottumwa, 120 Fed. 309.)

The fact that certificates, warrants or bonds are issued, payable out of the proceeds of such a tax, and not out of the treasury of the corporation, does not render the arrangement one involving municipal indebtedness. Ibid.

The constitutional provision does not impose a limitation upon taxation, but only a limitation upon indebtedness of the corporation. Ibid.

A tax, in the legal sense, is not a debt within the meaning of the constitutional provision limiting municipal indebtedness. Grunewald v. Cedar Rapids, 118–222, 91 N. W. 1059.

A contract by a city to pay rentals for fire hydrants at stated times in the future is one for a current expenditure and does not create an indebtedness. Centerville v. Fidelity Trust & Guar. Co., 118 Fed. 332.

Where the city assumes liability to the contractor for cost of street improvement, such liability becomes the indebtedness of the city. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

Contracts for street improvements to be paid for by certificates of assessments on abutting property are not to be considered as involving municipal indebtedness, even if any deficiency is to be paid out of a fund raised by taxation. Cory v. Ft. Dodge, 133–666, 111 N. W. 6.

In the absence of any statutory provision expressly applicable to special charter cities, held that the limitation of their indebtedness is that fixed by the constitutional provision. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 136–191, 113 N. W. 773.

The fact that warrants issued in excess of the constitutional limit are included in a judgment against a city does not alone impair its validity. That is a matter of defense. But parties cannot by acquiescence in a judgment for an indebtedness in excess of the constitutional limit give greater validity to such judgment than possessed by the indebtedness on which it was based. If only a part of the indebtedness is invalid, the judgment is not invalid in toto. Rankin v. Chariton, 139 N. W. 560, 141 N. W. 424.

Funding bonds: Funding bonds neither create nor increase the indebtedness of the municipality. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Rew, 111 Fed. 1.

If the bonds appear to have been issued in the refunding of a lawful indebtedness the fact that their proceeds were diverted to an unlawful purpose will not render them invalid. Ibid.

Negotiable refunding bonds, authorized by statute to be issued in exchange for valid outstanding evidences of indebtedness in the hands of purchasers for value before maturity, will be presumed to have been so issued, and not to have increased the indebtedness of the corporation. Lyon County v. Keene Five Cent Sav. Bank, 100 Fed. 337.

Bonds issued in exchange for outstanding warrants will not be held invalid unless it is shown that the warrants for which they were issued were also invalid. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 97 Fed. 155.

A purchaser of bonds reciting their issuance for the funding of outstanding indebtedness is not chargeable with notice of the invalidity of the indebtedness refunded. Keene Five Cent Sav. Bank v. Lyon County, 97 Fed. 159.

The amount of outstanding illegal warrants cannot be taken into account in determining whether bonds are in excess of the limitation of indebtedness, even though the proceeds of the bonds are used in extinguishing such warrants. Ibid.

A municipal corporation already indebted beyond the constitutional limit may issue bonds for the purpose of funding an outstanding judgment which is valid. Jamison v. Independent Sch. Dist., 90 Fed. 387.

Funding bonds neither create nor increase the indebtedness of the municipality, but merely change its form. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 116 Fed. 838.

An innocent purchaser of municipal bonds, which recite that they were issued to fund the debt of the municipality, is not required to consider or inquire concerning the excessive indebtedness of the municipality. Ibid.

Estoppel: Possibly the county may be estopped from denying the validity of bonds executed for refunding purposes, the proceeds of which are actually used in satisfying existing debts within the constitutional limit. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 121-733, 96 N. W. 1096.

The corporation will not be estopped by the action of its officers in acknowledging the validity of warrants, although in good faith, from interposing the defense that such warrants are in excess of the constitutional limitation of liability. Nor will a taxpayer be estopped from interposing such defense if the officers refuse to do so. Farmers' Savings Bank v. Independent School District, 122-99, 97 N. W. 988.

Portion valid: Where it is claimed that a portion of an issue of bonds is invalid because in excess of the constitutional limit of indebtedness, a court of equity may inquire into the facts to ascertain what part, if any, of the debt is enforceable. Everett v. Independent School District, 109 Fed. 697.

Such bonds may be enforced to the extent that their proceeds were used in paying off valid prior indebtedness. Ibid.

The limitation against such action commences to run only from the maturity of the bonds. Ibid.

Where a portion of the bonds are in excess of the constitutional limit, the holders of the entire series of bonds may join in maintaining a suit in equity to determine the portion of the debt which is valid and enforceable, and to have such amount apportioned between the different holders. Everett v. Independent School District, 102 Fed. 529.

Limitations of the statute against such an action do not commence to run until the maturity of the bonds. Ibid.

Holders of bonds which are to some extent in excess of the constitutional limitation may maintain an action in equity to ascertain what portion of the debt is enforceable, and the statute of limitations does not begin to run against such action until the maturity of the bonds. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Lyon County, 95 Fed. 325.

Holders of bonds which are invalid because in excess of the constitutional limitation are not entitled to subrogation to the rights of creditors whose claims have been paid from the proceeds of such bonds. But so far as the proceeds of the bonds have been used to pay obligations which were not in excess of the constitutional limitation, such bonds are valid. Ibid.

A paving contract, obligating the city to pay the cost of paving certain street intersections, is not wholly void, although the city is already indebted beyond its constitutional limit, and the contractor may take advantage of any portion of the contract which the city had power to make. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115-568, 89 N. W. 7.

An issue of bonds which is in excess of the constitutional limit is valid so far as the amount thereof is not in excess of the limit. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 121-733, 96 N. W. 1096.

Personal liability of officers: City officials, contracting within the general scope of their jurisdiction in behalf of the city, and for a lawful purpose, do not render themselves personally liable, although the indebtedness is in excess of the constitutional limitation. Lough v. Estherville, 122-479, 98 N. W. 308.

Oath of office. SEC. 5.

One who is appointed treasurer of a commission created by law, no such officer of the commission being provided for by statute, is not a public officer. State v. Spaulding, 102-639, 72 N. W. 288.

How vacancies filled. SEC. 6.

One who is appointed by the court to discharge the duties of its clerk until a vacancy in the office shall be filled (code § 1272) is not entitled to hold until the next general election and until his successor is elected and qualified. State v. Brown, 144-739, 123 N. W. 779.

ARTICLE 12.—SCHEDULE.

Biennial elections. SECTION 16. The first general election after the adoption of this amendment shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November in the year nineteen hundred and six, and general elections shall be held biennially thereafter. In the year nineteen hundred and six there shall be elected a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, auditor of state, treasurer of state, attorney-general, two judges of the supreme court, the successors of the judges of the district court whose terms of office expire on December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and six, state senators who would otherwise be chosen in the year nineteen hundred and five, and members of the house of representatives. The terms of office of the judges of the supreme court which would otherwise expire on December thirty-first, in odd-numbered years, and all other elective state, county and township officers, whose terms of office would otherwise expire in January in the year nineteen hundred and six, and members of the general assembly whose successors would otherwise be chosen at the general election in the year nineteen hundred and five, are hereby extended one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. The terms of office of senators whose successors would otherwise be chosen in the year nineteen hundred and seven are hereby extended one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. The general assembly shall make such changes in the law governing the time of election and terms of office of all other elective officers as shall be necessary to make the time of their election and terms of office conform to this amendment, and shall provide which of the judges of the supreme court shall serve as chief justice. The general assembly shall meet in regular session on the second Monday in January, in the year nineteen hundred and six, and also on the second Monday in January in the year nineteen hundred and seven, and biennially thereafter.

[By proper legislative action (29 G. A., joint resolution No. 5 and 30 G. A., joint resolution No. 1) a proposed amendment, adding the foregoing section numbered 16 to Article XII, was submitted to the electors at the general election in 1904, and adopted. Practically the same amendment was adopted by the people November 6, 1900, but the supreme court February 1, 1901, in the case of the State of Iowa ex rel. Marsh W. Bailey v. S. W. Brookhart, respondent, appellant, 113 Iowa 250, held that the amendment, section 16, was not proposed and adopted as required by the constitution, and did not become a part thereof.]

This act applies only to general elections. Lobaugh v. Cook, 127–181 N. W. 102§1121.

As Authorized by the Code and the Thirty-fifth General Assembly.

PART FIRST.

PUBLIC LAW.

TITLE I.

OF THE SOVEREIGNTY AND JURISDICTION OF THE STATE AND THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SOVEREIGNTY AND JURISDICTION OF THE STATE.

SECTION 3. Concurrent jurisdiction.

The concurrent jurisdiction referred to in this section does not apply to a slough wholly within the boundaries of this state connected at each end with the Mississippi river and to some extent supplied with waters from it. Little v. Green, 144-492, 123 N. W. 367.

While the actual boundary line between this state and Illinois is the middle thread of the main channel, the entire body of a navigable river is the physical, tangible, practical boundary over which both states may exercise authority so far as is necessary to protect the rights of all persons thereon. Ibid.

The jurisdiction of the state over boundary rivers is dependent upon the act of Congress admitting the state into the Union. It is within the jurisdiction thus conferred to provide by statute for the regulation of fishing within such boundary rivers without regard to the center of the main channel. State v. Moyers, 155-678, 136 N. W. 896.

The title of riparian owners upon the shores of a navigable stream extends to high-water mark only, and the state is the owner of the beds of such streams. State v. Carr, (C. C. A.) 191 Fed. 257; State v. Creighton R. E. & T. Co., (C. C. A.) 191 Fed. 270.

The title to an island which springs up in the bed of a navigable stream vests in the owner of that part of the bed upon which the land forms. Ibid.

Where, by avulsion, a navigable river suddenly abandons its former channel and never returns to it, the title to the island in the abandoned channel, and to the bed and banks of such channel, remain fixed where they were at the time of such avulsion. Ibid.

The title of a state to the bed of a boundary river between the thread of the stream and the high-water mark is held by it in trust for navigation and commerce and other public uses. Hagerla v. Mississippi River Power Co., (D. C.) 202 Fed. 776.

Congress alone has power to legislate for the improvement of navigation and its discretion is not subject to judicial control. Ibid.

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

SECTION 12. Compensation of members. The compensation of the members of the general assembly shall be: To every member, for each full regular session one thousand dollars, and for each extra session the same compensation per day while in session, to be ascertained by the rate per day of the compensation of the members of the general assembly at the preceding regular session; and in going to and returning from the place where the general assembly is held, five cents per mile, by the nearest traveled route; but in no case shall the compensation for any extra session exceed ten dollars per day, exclusive of mileage. [35 G. A., ch. 2, § 1.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE STATUTES.

SECTION 34. Acts—where deposited.

It is doubtful if the courts can properly go behind the enrolled bill to scrutinize the details of its legislative history for grounds upon which to hold it invalid, and held that failure of the journal to show what action was taken on certain amendments proposed will not invalidate the statute, the reasonable presumption being that the amendments not appearing upon the record of the proceedings have been rejected and not adopted. Conly v. Dilley, 153–677, 133 N. W. 730.

The enrolled bills duly signed and deposited with the secretary of state constitute the ultimate proof of their regular enactment, irrespective of the observation of the joint rules of the legislature which is a matter entirely within the control of the two houses and not subject to review by the courts. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

SEC. 36. Acts taking effect by publication—secretary of state may designate other papers. Acts which are to take effect from and after publication in newspapers shall be published in two or more papers, one at least of them at the seat of government, and in case either or both of the papers named in the act should fail or decline to publish said act as required therein, the secretary of state may designate another paper or papers in which publication shall be made and if such papers are not designated in the act, the same may be designated by the secretary of state, and the act published accordingly. All such acts shall take effect from and after the date of the last publication, and the secretary of state shall make and sign on the original roll of each of such acts a certificate, stating in what papers it was published, and the date of the last publication in each of them, which certificate and the printing thereof at the foot of the act shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated. [32 G. A., ch. 1; C., '73, § 33; R., § 24; C., '51, § 21.]

Where the publication clause provided for publication in "The Jefferson Souvenir," held that publication in a paper known as the "Souvenir," published at Jefferson, was sufficient. District Township v. Wiggins, 110-702, 80 N. W. 432.

Where it is provided that a statute shall take effect from and after its publication, it does not take effect on the day of such publication. Arnold v. Board of Supervisors, 151-155, 130 N. W. 816.

SEC. 36-a. Certified copies on file with clerk of district court. Whenever an act of the general assembly of a general nature shall take effect by publication the secretary of state shall forthwith send by mail to each clerk of the district court a certified copy thereof. Upon the receipt of such copies of such laws the clerk shall file the same in his office and preserve same for a period of not less than six months. All persons shall have access to such copies of laws when so filed and the clerk shall furnish copies thereof on request and may charge and receive therefor ten cents for every one hundred words. [33 G. A., ch. 2, § 1.]

[The enrolled bill, ch. 2, 33 G. A. (H. F. 130) does not appear to be signed by the president of the senate. EDITOR.]

SEC. 37. Acts of public nature—when take effect.

By the express language of a statute, an exemption therein referred to may be determined by the date of the passage of the statute although it does not take effect until a subsequent date. Sawyer v. Gallagher, 151-64, 130 N. W. 173.

"Every act passed in amendment, modification or repeal of a law, shall in its title and in the body of the act itself, refer to the law so amended, modified or repealed, as follows:

[33 G. A., ch. 1, § 7.] [17 G. A., ch. 123, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 132; C., '73, § 40.]

SEC. 44. Sales—proceeds. That section forty-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

SEC. 46-a. Not applicable to earlier laws—gratuitous distribution. The provisions of the law relative to the sale of and accounting for the session laws shall not be applicable to the session laws of the twenty-sixth and preceding general assemblies. The secretary of state and the county auditors are hereby authorized to distribute gratuitously to attorneys, libraries and other interested persons or associations the session laws of the twenty-sixth and previous general assemblies, provided that the secretary of state shall maintain the number of copies of the acts of each of said general assemblies in reserve as may be fixed by the executive council in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred twenty-six-d of the supplement to the code, nine hundred and seven. [33 G. A., ch. 1, § 11.]

SEC. 48. Construction.

Par. 1. Repeal—effect of; A statute relating simply to the remedy, such as the statute of limitations, may apply to causes of action previously existing, but a statute affecting the terms of a previous contract, for instance, one which extends the term of limitation of action fixed in a policy of insurance, will not be applied to contracts already made. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 112–608, 84 N. W. 904.

Where by curative act the defense of usury to certain loans of building and loan associations was removed, held that such act did not repeal the usury laws as to such loans, and the repeal of the curative act left the statutes as to usury applicable as before. Edworthy v. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn., 114–220, 86 N. W. 315.

The repeal of prior tax laws and the simultaneous reënactment of substantially similar ones, held not to relieve a taxpayer from any duty under the former law. Robinson v. Ferguson, 119–325, 93 N. W. 350.

Repeals by implication are not favored. State v. Higgins, 121–19, 95 N. W. 244.

Par. 2. Words and Phrases: Where a statute made special provision as to the use of a certain lamp by name by which it was admitted described that lamp only, held that it was not competent to extend the provision so as to include other lamps constructed on the same principle. State v. Santee, 111–1, 82 N. W. 445.

Words having an appropriate meaning in law should be construed in accordance with that meaning. Jewell v. Board of Trustees, 113–47, 84 N. W. 973.

Words and phrases are to be construed together according to the context and approved usage of language, but technical words and phrases and such words as may have acquired appropriate and peculiar meaning in law should be construed according to such meaning. In re Appeal of Bailies, 127–124, 102 N. W. 813.

While in statutory construction the word "may" has sometimes a meaning equivalent to the word "must" in its ordinary acceptation, such a construction should not be given if it would be inconsistent with the manifest intention of the legislature or repugnant to the text of the statute. State v. Hortman, 122–104, 97 N. W. 981.

Words and phrases are to be construed according to the context and approved usage of the language. Rohlf v. Kasemeier, 140–182, 118 N. W. 276.

The word "owner" as used in code § 2340 relating to liability for injuries by dogs is not of technical significance and is to be construed according to the context and approved usage of the language. Alexander v. Crosby, 143–50, 119 N. W. 717.

In construing words used in a statute the court will look at the context and the approved usage of the language in order to determine their proper construction and may also consider the fact that they have acquired a peculiar or appropriate meaning in the law. Webster City v. Wright County, 144–502, 123 N. W. 193.

Par. 3. Number and gender: The statutory phrase "to any person" held applicable to include more than one person, when such construction was required to give the statute the effect it was intended to have. In re McGhee's Estate, 105–9, 74 N. W. 695.

Par. 5. Highway—road: The terms "highway" and "road" include a street in a city. All streets are highways. And a highway or a street includes bridges therein. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109–224, 80 N. W. 336.

The term "road" as used in the code means any public highway unless otherwise specified. Nichols v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125–236, 100 N. W. 1115.

Par. 11. Month — year — A. D.: The word "year" is presumptively equivalent to "year of our Lord," that is, a calendar year. Sawyer v. Steinman, 148–610, 126 N. W. 1123.

Par. 13. Person: Corporations are included in the word "persons" as used in the statute. Swartley v. Oak Leaf Creamery Co., 135–573, 113 N. W. 496.

While for some purposes the law does not recognize fractions of a day in computing time, this principle is not universal. If the exact time is an important element in determining a right of action, the exact time will be considered. Roelefsen v. Pella, 121–153, 96 N. W. 738.

In determining whether the defendant has had four days' notice of proposed evidence in a criminal case under code § 5373, Sunday is not to be excluded from the computation. State v. Clark, 145–731, 122 N. W. 957.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE CODE AND ITS OPERATION.

SECTION 49. Citations—repeal of prior statutes.

Section applied. Greaves v. Posner, 111–651, 82 N. W. 1022.

This section is an express repeal of statutes previously in force. West v. Bishop, 110–410, 81 N. W. 696.

SEC. 51. Existing rights not affected.

The proceedings in pending actions are to be conformed to the provisions of the new code as far as consistent. State v. Dorland, 106–40, 75 N. W. 654.

This provision saves rights, not remedies, except where suit or proceeding has been had or commenced. No one has a vested right in a particular remedy. Therefore held that the provision of code § 1744, by which the time after a loss under a fire insurance policy before suit could be brought thereon was reduced from 90 to 40 days was applicable to an action brought after the taking effect of the code on a loss sustained prior to the time when the code took effect. Jones v. German Ins. Co., 110–75, 81 N. W. 188.

The assessment of an attorney's fee in a liquor prosecution relates solely to the remedy and is to be regulated by the provisions of this code, even in proceedings already commenced before the code took effect. Carter v. Bartel, 110–211, 81 N. W. 462.

The right to sell intoxicating liquors, notwithstanding the prohibitory law, resulting from compliance with the provisions of the mulct law in force prior to the taking effect of the present code, was not a right accruing, or which had accrued so as to be preserved from the effect of the repeal of prior laws resulting from the adoption of such code. West v. Bishop, 110–410, 81 N. W. 696.

A limitation of action is not a vested right which remains unaffected by subsequent change of the statute, but so far as such limitation affects an obligation already accrued it is not affected by such repeal. Norris v. Tripp, 111–115, 82 N. W. 610.

A statute affecting the remedy only is not unconstitutional as applied to a right existing before the statute is passed. Allerton v. Monona County, 111–560, 82 N. W. 922.

So far as code § 2978 restricts the extent of a homestead within a town plat it is not applicable to homesteads already existing. Sayers v. Childers, 112–677, 84 N. W. 938.

Where the prior statute gives a mere privilege and not a contract or vested right, such privilege is not preserved by this section after the repeal of the statute by the adoption of the code. Miller v. Hageman, 114–195, 86 N. W. 281.

A mere change in the mode of redemption from a mortgage foreclosure is applicable to a right to redeem already existing, notwithstanding the provision of this section. Jack v. Cold, 114–349, 86 N. W. 374.

Liability of parties with reference to work done under ordinance authorizing special improvements at the expense of abutting property owners is not affected by the repeal by the code of the statutes under which such ordinance was passed. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

Prior to the adoption of the code of '73, the period of limitation in an action on a judgment was twenty years; held, that the adoption of that code by which it was provided that no action on a judgment should be brought within fifteen years after its rendition did not apply to extend the period of limitation applicable to judgments rendered before that time. Wilson v. Tucker, 105–55, 74 N. W. 908.

The repeal of existing statutes by enactment of the code did not affect any act done before such repeal took effect. State v. Taylor, 140–138, 118 N. W. 301.

As soon as an examination for any county has been completed, and the expenses thereof paid by this state, the auditor of state shall forthwith file with the auditor of the county so examined, a claim for the full amount so paid by this state; which claim, when so filed, shall become a legal and valid claim against the county, payable from its general funds, as all other claims are paid. Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of his office, each examiner shall give a bond in the penal sum of two thousand dollars conditioned as provided in section eleven hundred eighty-three of the code, the same to be approved and filed as are the bonds of other state officers. [35 G. A., ch. 8, § 1.]

SEC. 100-b. On every such examination inquiry shall be made as to the financial condition and resources of each county; whether the first cost prices paid for improvements, materials, supplies, merchandise, etc., are in excess of the first cost prices paid for the same character of improvements, materials, supplies and merchandise by other counties of the state; whether the laws of the state and the requirements of the auditor of state have been complied with; also into the methods and accuracy of the accounts and reports of the office so examined. Such examination shall be made without notice. The auditor of state, or any examiner, when engaged in making any examination provided for in this act, or when engaged in any official duty devolving upon him as such, shall have, for the purpose of making an examination or inventory, the right to enter into any county office and examine any books, papers, or documents contained therein, or belonging thereto, and shall have access, in the presence of the custodian thereof or his deputy, to the cash drawers and cash in the custody of such officer, and they shall also have the right, during business hours, to examine the public accounts of the municipality under examination, in any depository which has such public funds in its custody pursuant to the laws of this state. The state auditor, or any of his examiners, when engaged in making any examination of any office, officer, board, or institution, or any other examination authorized by this act, is hereby empowered to issue subpœnas for witnesses to appear before him in person, or to produce books and papers before him for inspection and examination. Such subpœna shall be served by any person authorized to serve civil process from any court in this state. In case any witness duly subpœnaed refuses to attend, or refuses to produce documents, books and papers as required in subpœna, or shall attend and refuse to make oath or affirmation, or being sworn or affirmed and shall refuse to testify when called upon so to do, then the state auditor or the examiner may apply to the district court, or any judge of said district having jurisdiction thereof, for the enforcement of attendance and answers to questions as provided by law in the matters of taking depositions. They shall also have the authority to administer oaths and to examine such witnesses under oath orally or by interrogatories propounded touching the matters under investigation and examination, and such oral examination may be taken in shorthand, and transcribed, and the reasonable expense thereof shall be paid in the same manner as the expenses of the examiner are[1] paid. Wilful false swearing in such examination shall be perjury, and shall be punishable as such. A report of such examination shall be made in triplicate, signed, and verified under oath by the officer making the examination; one copy to be filed with the auditor of state; one copy with the officer under investigation, and one copy with the auditor of the county whose officer is under investigation. In the event that such examination discloses any of the grounds of removal mentioned in section one, chapter seventy-eight of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly, a fourth copy shall be provided and filed by the auditor of state in the office of the attorney-general of the state, and the attorney-general shall thereupon take such action as, in his judgment, the facts and circumstances warrant. It shall be unlawful for any examiner to make any disclosure of the result of any investigation, except as he shall make the same to the auditor of state, county auditor or to any court, and a violation of this provision shall be ground for removal. [35 G. A., ch. 8, § 4.]

As soon as examination for any such municipal corporation has been completed, and the expenses thereof paid by this state, the auditor of state shall forthwith file a claim against the municipal corporation so examined; which claim when so filed shall become a legal and valid claim against said municipal corporation, payable from its general funds as all other claims are paid. [29 G. A., ch. 12, § 3.]

SEC. 193-b. Rules. The court shall by appropriate rules provide for the assignment of causes for hearing at the regular and adjourned sessions thereof, and for reasonable notice to counsel of the time or times at which their cases will be called. [29 G. A., ch. 12, § 4.]

SEC. 195. Divided court.

In case of equal division of the judges, the decision of the lower court is affirmed by operation of law. Staber v. Collins, 124–543, 100 N. W. 527; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Davenport, 127–677, 103 N. W. 996; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 127–618, 103 N. W. 997; Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132–11, 109 N. W. 309.

The announcement in an opinion filed with the clerk that the judges of the supreme court are equally divided in opinion, and that the judgment of the trial court stands affirmed by operation of law, constitutes a judgment of affirmance on which the execution of the sentence may be ordered. Busse v. Barr, 132–463, 109 N. W. 920.

Such division of opinion does not entitle the defendant to discharge on the ground that there is reasonable doubt as to his guilt. The provisions relating to reasonable doubt are applicable only to the jury trying the questions of fact, and not to the court deciding questions of law. Ibid.

Where as to a particular question the judges of the supreme court are equally divided in opinion, the decision as to that question will be affirmed. Stewart v. Colfax Consol. Coal Co., 147–548, 126 N. W. 449.

SEC. 198. Opinions to be filed.

No written opinion is required where no question of law is involved rendering an opinion necessary. Clay v. Maynard Sav. Bank, 104–748, 73 N. W. 884.

SEC. 203. Salaries of judges—repealed.

[The above section has not been repealed by number specifically, but is manifestly repealed as shown at § 203-c. For substitute see § 203-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 203-a. Salaries. Each judge of the supreme court hereafter elected shall receive a salary of six thousand dollars per year. [29 G. A., ch. 12, § 5.]

SEC. 203-b. No other compensation. That no member of the supreme court shall be paid any compensation for services other than the salary herein provided. [29 G. A., ch. 12, § 8.]

SEC. 203-c. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with or inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 12, § 6.]

CHAPTER 2.

SECTION 205. Salary of clerk and deputy—fees to be collected. The salary of the clerk of the supreme court shall be twenty-seven hundred dollars per annum, and the salary of the deputy clerk of the supreme court shall be eighteen hundred dollars per annum. The clerk shall collect the following fees and account for them as provided in section one hundred ninety-one, of chapter nine, of title two of this code, and shall also keep account of and report in like manner all uncollected fees:

Upon filing each appeal, three dollars;

Upon entering judgment when the cause has been tried on its merits, two dollars;

Upon each continuance, one dollar;

Upon issuing each execution, one dollar and twenty-five cents;

Upon entering satisfaction of each judgment, fifty cents;

Upon each writ, rule or order to be served upon any person not in court, twenty-five cents;

For copying an opinion to be transmitted to an inferior court upon reversal of a judgment or an order, to be paid by the party against whom the costs are adjudged, or for a copy of such opinion or any record made at the request of any person, for each hundred words, ten cents. [35 G. A., ch. 7, § 5.] [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 6; 21 G. A., ch. 118, § 6; 19 G. A., ch. 117, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 74, § 1; C., '73, § 3771; R., §§ 2949, 4134-5; C., '51, §§ 2525-6.]

[For prohibition of additional compensation see § 86-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 207-a. Clerk and reporter appointed—terms—vacancies. The present incumbents of the offices of clerk of the supreme court and reporter of the supreme court shall hold office until the expiration of the time for which they were respectively elected, and until their successors have been appointed and have qualified. Within ninety days prior to the expiration of the term of office of the present clerk of the supreme court and of the present reporter of the supreme court, and every four years thereafter, the members of the supreme court shall appoint a clerk of the supreme court and a reporter of the supreme court who shall hold office for a period of four years and until their successors have been appointed and have qualified. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner for the unexpired portion of the term. [35 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.] [C., '73, § 583.]

SEC. 207-b. Soldiers' preference law—not applicable. Chapter fourteen-B of title five of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall not apply to any appointment under this act. [35 G. A., ch. 106, § 3.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL AND DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

SECTION 208. Department of justice—attorney-general at head of. That sections two hundred and eight, two hundred and nine, and two hundred ten of the code be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1]

"There shall be at the seat of government a department to be known as the department of justice, and the attorney-general shall be the head thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 9, §§ 1, 2.] [C., '73, § 150; R., § 124.]

[1]Substitute includes § 208-a and § 208-b hereof. EDITOR.]

SEC. 208-a. Duties of attorney-general. "It shall be the duty of the attorney-general:

1. To appear for the state, prosecute and defend all causes in the supreme court in which the state is a party or interested.
2. When requested to do so by the governor, executive council, or general assembly, or when in his judgment the interests of the state require it, he shall appear for the state before any other court or tribunal, prosecute or defend all actions and proceedings, civil or criminal, in which the state may be a party or interested.
3. When requested, he shall give his opinion in writing upon all questions of law submitted to him by the general assembly or either house thereof, the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the house, auditor, secretary of state, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, executive council, board of control, chairman railroad commissioners, food and dairy commissioner, commissioner bureau labor statistics, adjutant general, president and secretary department of agriculture, president commission of pharmacy, state librarian, state mine inspector, secretary state board of health, state veterinary surgeon, president state board of dental examiners, state fish and game warden, and to the heads of any other state departments now existing, or hereafter created.
4. He shall, when required, prepare drafts for contracts, forms and other writings which may be required for the use of the state; and shall report to the governor, preceding each general assembly, the condition of his office, opinions rendered, and business transacted of public interest.
5. To exercise supervisory powers over county attorneys in all matters pertaining to the duties of their offices, and from time to time require of them reports as to the condition of public business intrusted to their charge.
6. To prosecute and defend all actions and proceedings brought by or against any state officer in his official capacity.
7. To promptly account for all moneys received by him belonging to the people of the state, or received in his official capacity, and pay the same into the state treasury.

8. To keep in proper books a record of all official opinions, and a register of all actions prosecuted and defended by him, and of all proceedings had in relation thereto, which books shall be delivered to his successor.

9. To perform all such other and further duties as are now or may hereafter be enjoined upon him by law. [33 G. A., ch. 9, § 3.] [C., '73, §§ 150, 151, 152, 153; R., §§ 124, 125, 126, 127, 130, 131.]

The attorney-general has nothing to do with an appeal in a criminal case until it reaches the supreme court. It is within the duty of the county attorney to take the appeal and give notice thereof. State v. Grimmell, 116-596, 88 N. W. 342.

Notwithstanding the provisions of code § 208, the attorney-general is given authority by 33 G. A., ch. 9, to appear before the grand jury in a trial court when, in his judgment, the interests of the state require him to do so. Cosson v. Bradshaw, 141 N. W. 1062.

The grand jury while in the discharge of its duty is, though a constituent part of the court, in many respects an independent tribunal exercising judicial functions; and under this statute the attorney-general is authorized to appear before a grand jury whenever, in his judgment, the interests of the state require him to do so. Ibid.

SEC. 208-b. No compensation for other counsel unless specially authorized. "No compensation shall hereafter be allowed to any person for services as an attorney or counselor to any department of the state government, or the heads thereof, or to any state boards or commissions, except in cases specially authorized by law, and then only on the certificate of the attorney-general that such services were actually rendered, and that the same could not be performed by the officers of the department of justice; provided, however, that in any case where the attorney-general is an interested party, the executive council may employ special counsel and audit and pay a reasonable compensation for legal services rendered by him." [33 G. A., ch. 9, § 4.]

[See § 208. EDITOR.]

SEC. 211. Compensation. He shall be provided with an office in the capitol building. His salary shall be five thousand dollars per annum, as full compensation; and whenever he is required by the duties of his office, or by direction of the governor or general assembly, to attend any of the courts of this state, or any of the federal courts, or transact other business for the state, he shall receive his actual expenses when so engaged elsewhere than at the seat of government. [35 G. A., ch. 7, § 4.] [21 G. A., ch. 172; C., '73, § 3770.]

[For prohibition of additional compensation see § 86-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 212. Assistant—salary. That section two hundred twelve of the supplement to the code, nineteen hundred and seven, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"He may appoint one assistant who shall be required to devote his entire time to the duties of his office and who shall receive an annual salary of twenty-five hundred dollars." [35 G. A., ch. 23, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 10.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE SUPREME COURT REPORTER AND REPORTS.

[For provisions respecting appointment of supreme court reporter see §§ 207-a and 207-b. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE DISTRICT COURT.

SECTION 225. Jurisdiction—civil, criminal, probate.

Criminal: The criminal jurisdiction of the district court attaches at the time of the service of the warrant issued upon an indictment, and from that time it has control of the person of defendant, not only for the purpose of criminal investigation but for all matters incident to such control. Therefore authority cannot be given by statute to commissioners of insanity to determine the question of insanity of a prisoner under arrest. Stone v. Conrad, 105–21, 74 N. W. 910.

Probate: Jurisdiction to grant administration on the estate of a deceased person is in the district court of the county in which the deceased resided at the time of his death. The district court of another county acquires no jurisdiction in such case by the fact that there is property of the deceased in such county. In re King's Estate, 105–320, 75 N. W. 187.

While a probate court cannot foreclose a mortgage in favor of the estate against a person claiming a share in the estate, it may determine the indebtedness of such person to the estate and deduct the amount thereof from his share. Prouty v. Matheson, 107–259, 77 N. W. 1039.

A court taking jurisdiction in probate is presumed to have found facts such as to give it jurisdiction. McFarland v. Stewart, 109–561, 80 N. W. 657.

An order in a guardianship matter, under the provision of code § 3261 with reference to probate jurisdiction, may be made by consent of parties in another county in the same district, and will become a valid and binding adjudication when entered on the record in the proper county. Steiner v. Lenz, 110–49, 81 N. W. 190.

The fact that the case is brought before the court in an action in equity which should have been presented in probate does not go to the jurisdiction of the court. Easton v. Somerville, 111–164, 82 N. W. 475.

An action brought by a widow for an order upon her deceased husband's administrator to pay her distributive share of the assets of the estate is properly on the probate docket. Duffy v. Duffy, 114–581, 87 N. W. 500.

The objection that a proceeding relating to the construction of a will should have been in probate rather than in equity is not available on appeal, if not made in the trial court. Filkins v. Severn, 127–738, 104 N. W. 346.

While proceedings in probate are to be distinguished from proceedings at law or in equity, the court in which they are tried is the same. Tucker v. Stewart, 121–714, 97 N. W. 148.

An order admitting a will to probate after trial of issues raised on the ground that it is invalid is an adjudication and the question of validity cannot again be litigated by the same parties in an equitable action to set the will aside. Niemand v. Seemann, 136–713, 114 N. W. 48.

A probate court of this state has authority to appoint a guardian of the property on a nonresident on the ground of incompetency without judicial determination in a court having jurisdiction of the person of such nonresident. Wallace v. Tinney, 145–478, 122 N. W. 936.

No personal notice to the nonresident in such case is required to sustain the action of the court in making such appointment and the sufficiency of the showing cannot be questioned in a collateral attack on the probate proceedings. Ibid.

The probate court is a court of general jurisdiction and its proceedings are presumed to be regular until the contrary appears. Erwin v. Fillenwarth, 137 N. W. 502.

An order admitting a will to probate is effective throughout the state and may not be collaterally attacked. Ibid.

Absence of the judge from the court room during argument of counsel, held not to constitute error where it appeared that the judge was within the hearing of counsel and heard all that was said. State v. Porter, 105–677, 75 N. W. 519.

During the argument of a case the judge should remain within hearing that he may not even temporarily relinquish control of the proceedings or the conduct of the trial. At all times he must be in readiness to assert authority in keeping the argument within legitimate limits and to interpose whenever the conduct of officers of the court, jurors or spectators may require. State v. Carnagy, 106–483, 76 N. W. 805.

Absence of the judge from the court room during the arguments to the jury will not be a ground for a new trial where it appears that no prejudice resulted. Allen v. Ames & College R. Co., 106–602, 76 N. W. 848.

The court may do many things which a judge cannot do. The petition for the incorporation of a municipal corporation being required to be presented to the court, an allowance thereof by the judge not sitting as a court will not be sufficient. State ex rel. v. Council, 106–731, 77 N. W. 474.

SEC. 226. City or town to provide court room.

The county is liable for the expenses of the court, held as provided by law at the county seat, and by analogy the county is held liable for the reasonable compensation of an attorney appointed by the court to act in behalf of the public in prosecuting proceedings for the disbarment of an attorney. Hyatt v. Hamilton County, 121–292, 96 N. W. 855.

The statutory provisions of 22 G. A., ch. 37, with reference to the holding of court at Avoca, in Pottawattamie county, are not repealed, but on the contrary are recognized by this section. State v. Higgins, 121–19, 95 N. W. 244.

SEC. 227. Judicial districts. For judicial purposes, the state is hereby divided into twenty-one judicial districts, as follows:

The first district shall consist of the county of Lee, and have two judges.

The nineteenth district shall consist of the county of Dubuque, and have two judges.

The twentieth district shall consist of the counties of Des Moines, Henry and Louisa, and shall have two judges.

Each district judge hereafter elected, except to fill a vacancy, shall hold office four years and until his successor is elected and qualified. In preparing said plan or schedule, the judges shall so arrange, if practicable, that each judge shall hold at least one term of court during the year in each of the several counties of his district." [33 G. A., ch. 10, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 8; 21 G. A., ch. 134, § 6; 15 G. A., ch. 12, § 1; C., '73, § 165; R., §§ 2654-5; C., '51, §§ 1567-8.]

SEC. 232-a. Terms in fourth and twenty-first districts. That the judges of the district court of the fourth and twenty-first judicial districts are hereby directed to convene, separately, at some convenient point within their respective districts, on or before the fifteenth day of April, nineteen hundred thirteen, and determine the times and places of holding their courts and the judges who shall hold the same for the balance of the year nineteen hundred thirteen, and such determination shall have the effect of canceling any determination heretofore made. Such determination shall be forwarded to the secretary of state and the clerks of the district court and recorded, as provided by chapter ten of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly. [35 G. A., ch. 26, § 1.]

SEC. 233. When special terms ordered—pleas of guilty in criminal cases. A special term may be ordered in any county at any regular term of court in that county, or at any other time, by any judge of the district, for the trial of all causes pending at the last regular term of said court held prior to said special term, in which either party shall have served a trial notice as provided by law, or for receiving pleas of guilty in criminal cases and the entry of judgment thereon. When ordering a special term, the court or judge shall direct whether a grand or trial jury, or both, shall be summoned. [34 G. A., ch. 7, § 1.] [17 G. A., ch. 89; C., '73, § 166; R., §§ 2656-8; C., '51, §§ 1569-71.]

SEC. 235. When special adjournment ordered.

Authority to postpone the term is conferred on the judge who is to preside thereat. State v. McPherson, 126–77, 101 N. W. 738.

SEC. 238. Regular adjournment—business continued.

Adjournments: This section is applicable to the hearing of an application for permit to sell intoxicating liquors, where a remonstrance has been filed. Cox v. Burnham, 120–43, 94 N. W. 265.

An adjournment of court is a final adjournment for the term unless there is some provision in the order itself or by statute that the court shall reconvene for the transaction of the business of that term. Marengo Sav. Bank v. Byington, 135–151, 112 N. W. 192.

SEC. 240-a. Districts composed of one county—assignment by chief justice—expenses of judges. That in any judicial district of the state of Iowa composed wholly of one county and having but one judge therein the chief justice of the supreme court shall assign one judge from some of the other judicial districts to hold not less than two terms of court each year at each place where the district court is held within such district, and the judge of such district shall be assigned by the chief justice of the supreme court to some other district to hold therein not less than two terms of court in each year, said assignments to be made at such times as the chief justice of the supreme court may deem best. But this act shall in nowise affect any statute now in force, except as herein modified. Any judge who is required by such assignment to hold court outside of his judicial district, or who has heretofore held court outside of his judicial district by virtue of such assignment since chapter eleven, acts of the thirty-third general assembly went into effect, shall be allowed his necessary and actual expenses by reason thereof. An itemized sworn statement shall be made showing the amount of such expenses incurred, and the same shall be filed with the auditor of state, who thereupon shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount of such expenses so incurred. [34 G. A., ch. 9, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 11, § 1.]

SEC. 240-b. Petition for temporary additional judge—assignment—expenses. When, from any cause, the business of the district court of any judicial district of this state cannot be disposed of within a reasonable time by the judges elected within and for such district, then upon the filing of a petition signed by five or more resident attorneys of such district with the clerk of the supreme court, addressed to the chief justice thereof, setting forth the facts, the chief justice, being satisfied that the business of such judicial district demands an additional judge for a temporary period of time to dispose of such business or assist in the disposal of such business, shall name and transfer a judge from some other judicial district where the business of such district will warrant, to the place in the judicial district for which such petition is filed, who shall hold a term of court for such length of time as the chief justice of the supreme court may determine. The judge so transferred shall be allowed and paid all reasonable and actual expenses while in the performance of his duties in said temporary character, in addition to his salary. [35 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.]

SEC. 240-c. Jury drawn as for regular term. Upon the order being made for the transfer of such judge as contemplated by this act, such order shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county where such judge shall hold a term or part thereof; thereupon the proper officers, as by statute provided, shall proceed and are hereby empowered as by statute provided to draw a grand jury and trial jury, if necessary, which shall have the same force and effect as if drawn for a regular term and upon the order of a judge elected for such district in the usual and ordinary transaction of business of such district. [35 G. A., ch. 29, § 2.]

SEC. 241. Judges not to sit together.

One judge is not bound to follow the ruling of another judge in a prior stage of the proceedings in the same case. Seery v. Murray, 107–384, 77 N. W. 1058.

Where one judge succeeds another of the same district in conducting the proceedings of a court, there is no error in the succeeding judge doing that which the trial judge might have done, and at the suggestion of such trial judge. Renner v. Thornburg, 111–515, 82 N. W. 950; State v. Jones, 115–113, 88 N. W. 196.

SEC. 242. Record to be signed—execution not delayed.

Even where the record of a judgment does not follow the written directions of the judge, it must be treated, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, as truly evidencing the decision of the court, for a change in the views of the judge will be presumed rather than that the record is other than valid. Christie v. Iowa L. Ins. Co., 111–177, 82 N. W. 499.

The provision as to the signing of the record is directory only, and a failure on the part of the presiding judge to sign the record does not prevent other proceedings being had which could have been predicated upon a signed record. Donnelly v. Smith, 128–257, 103 N. W. 776.

A judgment may be appealed from although the journal entry has not yet been signed by the judge. The statutory provisions as to the signing of the record by the judge are directory only. In re Estate of Jones, 130–177, 106 N. W. 610.

Judgments and decrees ordered and rendered during term time may be entered in vacation, the entry of a judgment and decree being a mere ministerial act. Burke v. Burke, 142–206, 119 N. W. 129.

As the record of a decree is sufficient without any signature of the judge, the fact that it is signed in the name of the judge without affixing any designation of his title is immaterial. The provisions of the statute as to the method of signing are directory only. Dermedy v. Jackson, 147–620, 125 N. W. 228.

SEC. 243. Court controls record.

A court may vacate and set aside its judgment when such judgment is unwarranted by the record. Cooper v. Disbrow, 106–550, 76 N. W. 1013.

Where the decree in an action allowing a minor to redeem from a tax sale fixed the time of redemption, held that the court might, at the next term before the record was signed, modify the decree so as to extend such time. Hartley v. Bartruff, 112–592, 84 N. W. 704.

There is no provision by which the signing of the record is to be postponed beyond the succeeding term, and the action of the court in modifying its judgment after the expiration of several terms cannot be sustained on a motion made at the succeeding term. Perry v. Kaspar, 113–268, 85 N. W. 22.

It is doubtful whether the district court has inherent power to suspend or supersede its judgments and orders pending an appeal; but at any rate a judge in vacation and acting in another county has no power to suspend the operation of a decree of the court duly entered. Whitlock v. Wade, 117–153, 90 N. W. 587.

A court has inherent power to do many things which a judge may not do and while a court may set aside an order theretofore made by it, a judge as such has no power to vacate, modify or suspend a judgment or order of the court. Ibid.

A court may set aside a default or vacate a judgment upon cause shown, or, if satisfied that a mistake or wrong has been done, may make such order upon its own motion. Streeter v. Gleason, 120–703, 95 N. W. 242.

The court may modify its decision at any time before it is spread upon the record. Hull v. Eby, 123-257, 98 N. W. 774.

A court may make orders relating solely to the enforcement of a decree, although by appeal it has lost jurisdiction to retry the issues, and the case has not been remanded to it for that purpose. Swan v. Harvey, 123–192, 98 N. W. 641.

The judge sitting as a court in one county cannot act as the judge of the court in another county. Williams v. Dean, 134–216, 111 N. W. 931.

A modification of a record made by the court after notice without objection to the sufficiency of the application or the time within which it was made cannot subsequently be questioned. In re Assignment of Wilson, 138–225, 114 N. W. 551.

Notice is not required in a proceeding to secure the correction of a record in order to make it correspond to the actual decision of the court. Meirkord v. Helming, 139–437, 116 N. W. 785.

The power of the court to expunge a record entered without jurisdiction exists independently of the statute and without reference to statutory time. Hollister v. Vermont Bldg. Co., 141–160, 119 N. W. 626.

Where the court has made a correction as to the date of judgment entry it is not precluded from a subsequent correction where it appears that the first correction was erroneous. Puckett v. Guenther, 142–35, 120 N. W. 123.

After a final decree has been entered of record the trial court is without authority to change the same on application of the defendant and to the prejudice of the plaintiff without notice. Kwentsky v. Sirovy, 142–385, 121 N. W. 27.

Until the decree is entered on the proper record it is subject to the control of the court and the parties are bound to take notice of any motion for its correction. Smith v. Willcockson, 143–449, 121 N. W. 1054.

The court has ample authority to correct its own record on proper notice. Kvamme v. Barthell, 144–418, 118 N. W. 766.

While the trial is pending the power of the court to change or set aside a previous ruling or order therein is presumptively equal to its power to make such ruling or order in the first instance and its own change of view may be a sufficient reason for such action. Holtz v. Smith-Morgan Ptg. Co., 150–91, 129 N. W. 328.

The court may at any time, without regard to the limitations of code § 4093, correct its record on proper application and showing, to conform to the facts. First Nat. Bank v. Eichmeier, 153–154, 133 N. W. 454.

While in one sense it may be said that a judgment is rendered when announced by the judge or entered by memorandum in his calendar, such announcement or entry amounts to nothing more than a decision or opinion as to what the judgment should be and does not constitute a judgment from which an appeal may be taken. Sievertsen v. Paxton, 133 N. W. 744, 142 N. W. 424.

SEC. 244. Corrections.

Mistake of the court in a matter of law cannot be corrected under this section. Manning v. Nelson, 107–34, 77 N. W. 503.

A court may during the term without notice modify a decree already entered. The record referred to in this and the preceding section is not the formal decree signed by the judge and kept in the record, but the record itself as found in the books which clerks are authorized to keep, and this record may be amended and corrected at any time before it is signed. Such correction may be made by a court on its own motion. If made at a subsequent term it must, as a general rule, be with notice to the parties interested. McConnell v. Avey, 117–282, 90 N. W. 604.

An amendment to a decree made at a subsequent term of court and without notice to the defendant is of no validity as to him. Browne v. Kiel, 117–316, 90 N. W. 624.

After the expiration of the term at which judgment is rendered a party is not required to take notice of other proceedings in the case. McConkie v. Landt, 126–317, 101 N. W. 1121.

The power of the court to correct its records as to a mistake of the clerk is not limited to the next succeeding term. Greazel v. Price, 135–364, 112 N. W. 827.

Even after the record is signed by the judge he may make a correction as to the date of the judgment entry and if it subsequently appears that such correction was itself erroneous he may make a further correction. Puckett v. Guenther, 142–35, 120 N. W. 123.

The right of the court to correct an evident mistake in the record is inherent. It is not affected by the statute nor the mere lapse of time. Lambert v. Rice, 143–70, 120 N. W. 96.

Though the minutes in the judge's calendar form no part of the records of the court, they are admissible in evidence in the absence of a record as tending to show the judgment actually rendered. Mahaska County v. Bennett, 150–216, 129 N. W. 838.

A decree having been entered, nunc pro tunc speaks from the date of the original entry and will support intermediate proceedings conformable therewith. Ibid.

Where the judge had, through misapprehension, dismissed a case for want of prosecution at a term at which it had not been entered for trial, held that he might at the next term set aside such dismissal. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Bleasdale, 141 N. W. 456.

The fact that the pleadings have been lost after the trial of a case will not deprive the court of jurisdiction on a second trial and if the parties stipulate as to what the issues were on the first trial the court may proceed without a substitution of the lost records. Blades v. Des Moines City R. Co., 146–580, 123 N. W. 1057.

SEC. 245-a. Reporter's notes as evidence. That the original shorthand notes of the evidence or any part thereof heretofore or hereafter taken upon the trial of any cause or proceeding, in any court of record of this state, by the shorthand reporter of such court, or any transcript thereof, duly certified by such reporter, when material and competent, shall be admissible in evidence on any retrial of the case or proceeding in which the same were taken, and for purposes of impeachment in any case, and shall have the same force and effect as a deposition, subject to the same objections so far as applicable. It shall be the duty of any such reporter, upon demand by any party to any cause or proceeding, or by the attorney of such party, when such shorthand notes are offered in evidence, to read the same before the court, judge, referee, or jury, or to furnish to any person when demanded a certified transcript of the shorthand notes of the evidence, of any one or more witnesses, upon payment of his fees therefor. When the reporter taking such notes in any case or proceeding in court has ceased to be the reporter of such court, any transcript by him made therefrom, and sworn to by him before any person authorized to administer an oath as a full, true, and complete transcript of the notes of the testimony of the witness, a transcript of whose testimony is demanded, shall have the same force and effect as though duly certified by the reporter of said court. When any exhibit, record, or document is referred to in such shorthand notes or transcript thereof, the identity of such exhibit, record, or document, as the one referred to by the witness, may be proven either by the reporter, or any other person who heard the evidence of the witness given on the stand. No portion of the transcript of the shorthand notes of the evidence of any witness shall be admissible as such deposition, unless it shall appear from the certificate or verification thereof that the whole of the shorthand notes of the evidence of such witness, upon the trial or hearing in which the same was given, is contained in such transcript, but the party offering the same shall not be compelled to offer the whole of such transcript. [27 G. A., ch. 9, § 1.]

The provisions of 27 G. A., ch. 9, as to the introduction on a subsequent trial of the shorthand reporter's notes of testimony, has no application except on the retrial of the same case, or where the transcript of the evidence in another case is used for the purpose of impeachment. Walker v. Walker, 117–609, 91 N. W. 908.

Under these provisions the transcript of the testimony of a witness on a former trial is not admissible on a subsequent trial if the witness is present and competent to testify and if under such circumstances a deposition of the witness would not be admissible. Lanza v. Le Grand Quarry Co., 124–659, 100 N. W. 488.

The translation of the shorthand reporter's notes of the testimony given on a former trial cannot be offered in evidence as the testimony of a witness subsequently deceased, unless the proceeding in which such transcript is offered is the same proceeding as that in which the testimony was first given. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122–423, 98 N. W. 294.

The transcript of shorthand notes of the testimony of a witness given on a former trial may be read in evidence as his testimony on retrial of the case if he is not present in the court room at the time it is offered. It is not necessary to show the grounds required for making a deposition admissible in evidence in a law case. Fitch v. Mason City & C. L. Traction Co., 124–665, 100 N. W. 618.

In the absence of any special showing of prejudice, held not reversible error to allow a transcript of the evidence on a former trial to be introduced over the objection of the opposite party and afterwards withdrawing it from the jury and allowing the witnesses to be called. Bell v. Clarion, 120–332, 94 N. W. 907.

Where a transcript of evidence on a former trial was sought to be introduced by virtue of 27 G. A., ch. 9, for the purpose of impeaching a witness on a subsequent trial, held that such transcript was not admissible where the certificate did not show that the whole of the shorthand notes of the evidence of the witness was included in the transcript. Connell v. Connell, 119–602, 93 N. W. 582.

The transcript of a party's testimony on a former trial is admissible as against him for the purpose of establishing admissions against interest. Lush v. Parkersburg, 127–701, 104 N. W. 336.

The shorthand reporter called to testify as a witness may, without the introduction of his transcript of the evidence, testify to admissions made by a witness. The act has no application to such a case. Frick v. Kabaker, 116–494, 90 N. W. 498.

Where in a proceeding to contest a will contestant's widow and children were erroneously substituted on his death and evidence was taken in a trial under such substitution, held that the shorthand notes of such evidence might be used in a retrial after the widow had been properly substituted as administratrix. In re Wiltsey's Will, 135–430, 109 N. W. 776.

The provision authorizing the use of the reporter's notes as evidence on a subsequent trial is intended to furnish a convenient means of proving the testimony of a witness on a former trial of the same case when the witness is not able to testify by reason of death, insanity or other intervening cause, and where a party becomes incompetent to testify as to conversations or transactions with one who is deceased at the time of the subsequent trial (under code § 4604), his testimony on a former trial cannot be used. Greenlee v. Mosnat, 136–639, 111 N. W. 996.

The method of proof of the testimony of a witness on a former trial provided for by this section does not exclude oral evidence as to what the testimony of the witness on a former trial was. State v. Dean, 148–566, 126 N. W. 692.

Notwithstanding the provisions of this statute for proving the evidence of a witness on a former trial, it is still competent as before to prove the fact by the testimony of witnesses who heard the evidence when given. State v. Kimes, 152–240, 132 N. W. 180.

The opportunity which defendant had for cross-examination, impeachment and contradiction when the testimony was given obviates any objection which can be made on the constitutional ground that defendant is entitled to be confronted with the witnesses against him. Ibid.

The testimony of a witness taken upon the first trial of a criminal case may be read upon the second trial where the witness has gone beyond the reach of a subpoena. Such use of testimony is not in violation of the constitutional provision that the defendant shall be confronted with the witnesses against him. State v. Brown, 152–427, 132 N. W. 862.

The transcript of the shorthand notes taken on a former trial is competent evidence of testimony given on such trial by a witness who is deceased or has gone beyond the reach of a subpoena; but the testimony of such a witness may be proven by oral evidence, even though it has not been taken down in writing. State v. Conklin, 153–216, 133 N. W. 119.

Where a portion of the testimony of a witness is read from the shorthand reporter's notes of his testimony on the first trial, the opposite party may have read the remainder of the examination of such witness as shown by the shorthand report. State v. Thomas, 157— ——, 138 N. W. 864.

The transcript of shorthand notes of evidence taken in a former trial may be used to show admissions or for impeachment purposes. Rudd v. Dewey, 139–528, 116 N. W. 1062.

Where the testimony preserved on a former trial is resorted to for the purpose of showing an admission by the party testifying, it is to be considered only as against such party and not as against coparties. Coldren Land Co. v. Royal, 140–381, 118 N. W. 426.

It is only on a retrial of the case that the shorthand notes taken on a former trial are admissible. Spiers v. Hendershott. 142–446, 120 N. W. 1058.

It is not improper to allow the minutes of the evidence of particular witnesses to be read to the jury on their request. State v. Perkins, 143–55, 120 N. W. 62.

To render the transcript of the evidence of a witness of a former trial admissible it is sufficient to show that the witness was not present at the subsequent trial. It is not necessary to show that his presence was not obtainable. Van Norman v. Modern Brotherhood, 143–536, 121 N. W. 1080.

There is no statutory authority for granting a new trial because of the death of the reporter before a transcript of his notes is made, preventing the procurement of such transcript for the purpose of appeal. Dumbarton Realty Co. v. Erickson. 143–677, 120 N. W. 1025.

This section has no reference to the use in evidence of admissions as to what a witness would swear to made on a former trial for the purpose of preventing a continuance. Neidy v. Littlejohn, 146–355, 125 N. W. 198.

SEC. 247. Decisions in vacation.

Attorneys cannot by agreement not reduced to writing nor entered on the records of the court agree to the submission of a case to be determined in vacation. Whitlock v. Wade, 117–153, 90 N. W. 587.

A judge in vacation and acting in another county cannot suspend the decree of a court duly entered. A judge in vacation has no authority except such as is expressly given him by statute. Ibid.

Where the trial judge filed with the clerk a finding of facts with his conclusions of law, ending with a direction that judgment be entered, but no judgment was entered in accordance therewith, held that there was not a decision of the case in vacation. Christie v. Iowa L. Ins. Co., 111–177, 82 N. W. 499.

The power of a judge in vacation to make orders or exercise judicial functions is that only which is conferred by statute. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127–665, 103 N. W. 1009.

A ruling or decree in vacation is invalid unless the case has been submitted for such determination. Marengo Sav. Bank v. Byington, 135–151, 112 N. W. 192.

A judge while holding court in one county has no power to make an order for the correction of the record in another county even in the same district. Williams v. Dean, 134–216, 111 N. W. 931.

A judgment rendered and entered in vacation, without consent of the parties or any order of court entered during term time, is void. Burke v. Burke, 142–206, 119 N. W. 129.

SEC. 250. Probate powers conferred on clerk.

The clerk may act for the court in the matter of endorsing an order for publication of notice of administration on the letters of administration issued by him, and although the order as endorsed is in the name of the court, the signature of the clerk is sufficient. No record of such order is required to be kept. Mosher v. Goodale, 129–719, 106 N. W. 195.

Any person interested may appear in the probate proceeding and contest the appointment of an administrator; but the regularity of the appointment cannot be attacked in a collateral proceeding on the ground of insufficiency of the bond. Beresford v. American Coal Co., 124–34, 98 N. W. 902.

SEC. 253. Salary of judges. The salary of each judge of the district court shall be thirty-five hundred dollars per year. [29 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 134, § 12.]

SEC. 254. Compensation of shorthand reporters—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 14, § 1.]

SEC. 254-a1. Repeal. That section two hundred fifty-four of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 14, § 1.]

SEC. 254-a2. Reporter—compensation. "Shorthand reporters of the district courts shall be paid eight dollars per day for each day's attendance upon said court, under the direction of the judge, out of the county treasury where such court is held, upon the certificate of the judge holding the court; and in case the total per diem of each reporter and his substitute shall not amount to the sum of sixteen hundred dollars per year, the judge appointing him shall at the end of the year apportion the deficiency so remaining unpaid among the several counties of the district, if there be more than one county in such district, in proportion to the number of days of court actually held by said judge in such counties, which apportionment shall be by him certified to the several county auditors, who shall issue warrants therefor to said reporter, which warrants shall be paid by the county treasurers out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. Shorthand reporters shall also receive eight cents per hundred words for transcribing their official notes, to be paid for in all cases by the party ordering the same. If a defendant in a criminal cause has perfected an appeal from a judgment against him and shall satisfy a judge of the district court from which the appeal is taken that he is unable to pay for a transcript of the evidence, such judge may order the same made at the expense of the county where said defendant was tried. [34 G. A., ch. 8, §§ 1, 2; 33 G. A., ch. 12, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 14, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 195, § 2; C., '73, § 3777.]

The application for an order for a transcript at the expense of the county for the purpose of prosecuting an appeal should be made to the trial judge. The expense of the transcript, if the order is made, should be paid by the county in which the case is tried, although it is brought to that county on change of venue. State v. Cater, 109–69, 80 N. W. 222.

The reporter is entitled to compensation for each day of attendance under direction of the judge without regard to the services actually performed. Ferguson v. Pottawattamie County, 126–108, 101 N. W. 733.

While the judge may have some discretion as to ordering a transcript at the expense of the county, yet if he finds that the defendant is unable to pay for such transcript, he should order it without regard to his judgment as to whether defendant has had a fair trial. State v. Robbins, 106–688, 77 N. W. 463.

It is for the court to determine whether the defendant in a criminal case is unable to pay for a transcript, and unless it appears on appeal that the finding of his inability to do so is unsupported by the evidence, an order allowing such transcript at the county's expense will not be interfered with on appeal. State v. Steidley, 133–31, 110 N. W. 147.

Under the language of this section, differing from that found in previous statutory provisions on the subject, it is not discretionary with the trial judge to refuse an order for transcript of the evidence in a criminal case at the expense of the county where the defendant makes a showing which is, prima facie, sufficient. State v. Goodsell, 136–445, 113 N. W. 826.

While the order for a transcript of the evidence at the expense of the county on an appeal by the defendant in a criminal case is discretionary, held that the showing in a particular case was such that it was error for the lower court to refuse an order for such transcript. State v. Harris, 151–234, 130 N. W. 1082.

It is not necessary in the application for such transcript to make a showing of merits. It will be presumed that the appeal is taken in good faith unless some showing be made to the contrary. Ibid.

If, by reason of a previous trial in the same prosecution in which the evidence was substantially the same, the defendant has a transcript of the evidence, he is not entitled to an order for a transcript of such evidence on the second trial at the expense of the county. State v. Kehr, 137–91, 114 N. W. 542.

While one who shows inability to pay the expense of a transcript of the evidence in a criminal case for the purpose of perfecting his appeal is entitled to a transcript at the expense of the county, yet if he has, by voluntary conveyance of his property after the institution of the criminal proceeding, deprived himself of the means necessary to meet the expense of his defense and of an appeal, he is not entitled to such allowance. If possessed of means for conducting his defense and prosecuting his appeal after the proceedings have been instituted, he is presumed to continue in that condition unless the contrary appears. State v. Shaffer, 137–93, 114 N. W. 540.

SEC. 254-a3. Taxed as part of costs. "A charge of six dollars per day for reporting in all cases, except where the defendant in a criminal case is acquitted, shall be taxed as part of the costs in the case by the clerk of the court and paid into the county treasury when collected." [29 G. A., ch. 14, § 3.]

OF APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES BY DISTRICT COURT TO MANAGE, CONTROL AND INVEST CEMETERY FUNDS.

SECTION 254-a4. Trustee—appointment—trust funds. Any owner or owners of any cemetery, or any party or parties interested therein, may by petition presented to the district court of the county where the cemetery is situate, have appointed a trustee with authority to receive any and all moneys that may be donated for and on account of said cemetery or any part thereof and to invest, manage and control same under the direction of the court; but he shall not be authorized to receive any gift, except with the understanding that the principal sum is to remain and be a permanent fund, and only the net proceeds therefrom to be used in carrying out the purpose of the trust created, and all such funds shall be exempt from taxation so far as consistent with the regulations governing the association owning or controlling the ground where the lot is located. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 1.]

The effect of this statute is to permit perpetual trusts or endowments for privately owned cemeteries. It has no application by inference or in terms to public cemeteries, the maintenance of which is a charitable act and therefore within the recognized exceptions to the operation of the statute against perpetuities. Chapman v. Newell, 146–415, 125 N. W. 324.

SEC. 254-a5. Receipt attested by clerk—cemetery record. Every such trustee shall execute and deliver to the donor a receipt showing the amount of money received, and the use to be made of the net proceeds from same. Such receipt shall be duly attested by the clerk of the court granting letters of trusteeship and a copy thereof signed by the trustee and so attested shall be filed with and recorded by the clerk in a book to be known as the cemetery record, and in which shall be recorded all reports and other papers, including orders made by the court or judge relative to cemetery matters. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 2.]

SEC. 254-a6. Loans—security. It shall be the duty of such trustee to loan all moneys received by him, under the direction and with the approval of the court, but only as same may be secured by first mortgage upon Iowa real estate, and no loan shall be made or approved, unless it be made to appear upon oath of three disinterested citizens that such real estate is worth at least double the amount of the loan applied for, and that the title to same is good of record and in fact in the party making application therefor. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 3.]

SEC. 254-a7. Bond—approval—oath. Every such trustee before entering on the discharge of his duties or at any time thereafter when required by the court or judge must give bond in such penalty as may be required by the court, to be approved by the clerk, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed on him by law and take and subscribe an oath the same in substance as the condition of the bond, which oath and bond must be filed with the clerk. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 4.]

SEC. 254-a8. Clerk—duty of—additional bond. It shall be the duty of the clerk at the time of filing each and every receipt mentioned in section two of this act, to at once advise the court or judge as to the amount of the principal fund in the hands of such trustee, the amount of bond filed, and whether or not it is good and sufficient for the amount given, to the end that the court or judge may, if to him it seems best, require a new or additional bond. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 5.]

SEC. 254-a9. To serve without compensation—expenses. Trustees appointed under this act shall not be entitled to receive any compensation for services rendered, but may out of the income received pay all proper items of expense incurred in the performance of their duties, including cost of bond, if any. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 6.]

SEC. 254-a10. Annual report. It shall be the duty of every such trustee to make full report of his doings in the matter of his trusteeship in the month of January following his appointment and in January of each successive year. In each of said reports he shall apportion the net proceeds received from the sum total of the permanent fund and make proper credit to each of the separate funds assigned to him in trust. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 7.]

SEC. 254-a11. Removal—vacancy filled. Any such trustee may be removed by the court or judge thereof at any time for cause and in the event of removal or death the court or judge must appoint a new trustee and require his predecessor or his personal representative to make full accounting with him for all the property belonging to such trusteeship. [29 G. A., ch. 15, § 8.]

SEC. 254-a12. County auditor to act as trustee—when—accounting. In case no trustee is appointed by said court, or if so appointed does not qualify as provided in this chapter, then such funds as are therein mentioned or any funds donated by any person or estate to improvement of cemeteries, unless otherwise provided by law, shall be placed in the hands of the county auditor who shall receipt for, loan, and make annual reports of such funds in manner as provided by the law as it appears in sections two hundred fifty-four-e, two hundred fifty-four-f and two hundred fifty-four-j, of the supplement to the code. The said auditor shall annually turn over the accrued interest in his hands to the cemetery association or other person having control of the cemetery entitled thereto, who shall use the same in carrying out the provisions of said trust, and who shall file a written report annually with the county auditor. [35 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 12.]

OF JUVENILE COURTS, DETENTION HOMES AND SCHOOLS.

[For concurrent jurisdiction of superior courts with the district court of all cases brought under §§ 254-a13 to 254-a30, inclusive, see § 260-a. EDITOR.]

SECTION 254-a13. Jurisdiction—district and superior courts—juvenile court record. The district court and superior courts are hereby clothed with original and full jurisdiction to hear and determine all cases coming within the purview of this act, and the proceedings, orders, findings and decisions of said courts shall be entered in a book or books to be kept for the purpose and known as the juvenile court record. Said courts shall always be open for the transaction of business coming under the purview of this act, but the hearing of any matter requiring notice shall be had only in term time or at such time and place as the judge may appoint. [33 G. A., ch. 13, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 1.]

SEC. 254-a14. Terms defined—to whom applicable. This act shall apply only to children under the age of sixteen years, not at the time inmates of a state institution or any industrial school for boys or for girls, or any institution incorporated under the laws of this state, and shall apply to all children of said age, except such as are charged with a commission of offenses punishable under the laws of the state with life imprisonment, or with the penalty of death. For the purpose of this act, the words "dependent children" or "neglected children" shall mean any child who for any reason is destitute or homeless or abandoned; or dependent upon the public for support; or who has not the proper parental care or guardianship; or who habitually begs or receives alms; or who is found living in any house of ill fame, or with any vicious or disreputable person; or whose home, by reason of neglect, cruelty or depravity on the part of its parents or guardian or other person in whose care it may be, is an unfit place for such child; and any child under the age of ten years, who is found begging, or giving any public entertainment upon the street for pecuniary gain for self or another; or who accompanies or is used in aid of any person so doing; or who, by reason of other vicious, base or corrupting surroundings, is, in the opinion of the court, within the spirit of this act. The words "delinquent child" shall include any child under the age of sixteen years, who violates any law of this state, or any city or village ordinance; or who is incorrigible; or who knowingly associates with thieves, vicious or immoral persons, or who is growing up in idleness or crime; or who knowingly frequents a house of ill fame; or who patronizes any policy shop or place where any gaming device is, or shall be operated; or who habitually wanders about any railroad yards or tracks, gets upon any moving train or enters any car or engine without lawful authority. The word "child" or "children" may mean one or more children, and the word "parent" or "parents" may be held to mean one or both parents when consistent with the intent of this act. The word "association" shall include any corporation which includes in its purposes the care or disposition of children coming within the meaning of this act. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 2.]

SEC. 254-a15. Petition in writing. Any reputable person being a resident of the county, having knowledge of a child in his county who appears to be either dependent, neglected or delinquent, may, without fee, file with the clerk of the court having jurisdiction of the matter a petition in writing, setting forth the facts, verified by affidavit; it shall be sufficient if the affidavit is upon information and belief. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 3.]

SEC. 254-a16. Summons—trial—statutes applicable—costs—appeals. Upon the filing of the petition the court may cause a summons to issue requiring the person having custody or control of the child or with whom the child may be, to appear with the child at a time and place stated in the summons. The parents of the child, if living, and their residence is known, or its legal guardian, if one there be, or if there is neither parent nor guardian or if his or her residence is not known, then some relative, if there be one and his residence is known, shall be notified of the proceedings, and in any case the judge may appoint some suitable person to act in behalf of the child. If the person summoned as herein provided shall fail to appear or bring the child, without reasonable cause, and abide the order of the court, he may be proceeded against as in case of contempt of court. In case the summons cannot be served or the party served fails to obey the same, and in any case when it shall be made to appear to the court that such summons will be ineffectual, a warrant may issue on the order of the court, either against the parent or guardian or the person having custody of the child or with whom the child may be, or against the child itself. On the return of the summons or other process, or as soon thereafter as may be, the court shall proceed to hear and dispose of the case in a summary manner; provided, however, that when the child is brought before the court, charged with the commission of a crime, not punishable with imprisonment for life, or the penalty of death, the court may, and if the child, its parent or guardian demands, shall place the child on trial for the commission of such offense. Where the penalty for the offense committed exceeds a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for thirty days, the court shall make an examination and in conducting same shall be governed by the provisions of section fifty-two hundred sixteen, fifty-two hundred eighteen, fifty-two hundred nineteen, fifty-two hundred twenty-one, fifty-two hundred twenty-two, fifty-two hundred twenty-three, fifty-two hundred twenty-four, fifty-two hundred twenty-five, fifty-two hundred twenty-six, fifty-two hundred twenty-seven, and fifty-two hundred thirty-nine of the code, and shall make certificate, order of discharge or commitment, issue warrant, require undertakings of witnesses and security and commit witnesses as provided by sections fifty-two hundred twenty-eight to fifty-two hundred thirty-five of the code inclusive. If the child is unable to furnish the required bail, the child may, pending the final disposition of the case, be detained in the possession of the person having charge of the same, or may be kept in a suitable place provided by the city or county authorities. If the crime is not triable on indictment or if it appears on the examination that a public offense has been committed which is not triable on indictment the court may order any peace officer to file an information against the child before him and shall proceed to try the case before a jury of twelve men, selected as in a justice's court. The proceedings, costs and taxation thereof, shall be as provided for trials in the district court and the defendant shall be entitled to his exceptions and right of appeal. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 4.]

SEC. 254-a17. Discretionary powers of court. When any such boy or girl shall be found guilty of the commission of a crime, not punishable with imprisonment for life, or the penalty of death, the court in its discretion may, instead of entering judgment of conviction, make order concerning such child in manner as hereinafter provided. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 5.]

SEC. 254-a18. Probation officers — appointment — compensation. The court shall have authority to appoint or designate one or more discreet persons of good character to serve as probation officers during the pleasure of the court; said probation officers to receive no compensation from the public treasury; provided, however, that the district court, in any county of this state having a population of more than fifty thousand, may designate and appoint not to exceed four persons, of good character and special fitness, to serve as probation officers during the pleasure of the court, who are hereby vested with all of the powers and authority of sheriffs in and about the discharge of their duties as probation officers, and who shall each receive a compensation, to be fixed by the court, not to exceed seventy-five dollars per month. Any probation officer provided for by this section, when performing the duties of his office under the order of the juvenile court or a judge thereof, shall be allowed such necessary expenses as may be authorized by the judge of said juvenile court, and the same shall be paid out of the county treasury as other court costs. In case a probation officer shall be appointed by any court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court, if practicable, to notify the said probation officer in advance when any child is to be brought before the said court; it shall be the duty of said probation officer to make such investigation as may be required by the court; to be present in court in order to represent the interests of the child when the case is heard; to furnish to the court such information and assistance as the judge may require, and to take such charge of any child before and after trial as may be directed by the court. [34 G. A., ch. 10, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 7, § 2; 30 G. A., ch. 11, § 6.]

SEC. 254-a19. Exclusion from court room. The judge of such court shall designate a certain time for the hearing of such cases and is hereby empowered, when tried in a summary manner as provided in section four hereof, to exclude from the court room at such hearing any and all persons that in his opinion are not necessary for the hearing of the case. The probation officer shall be present at every hearing in the interest of the child. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 7.]

SEC. 254-a20. Commitment—financial aid for widowed mother. When any child of the age stated in section two[1] hereof shall be found to be dependent or neglected, within the meaning of this act, the court may make an order committing the child to the care of some suitable state institution, or to the care of some reputable citizen of good moral character, or to the care of some industrial school, as provided by law, or to the care of some association willing to receive it, embracing in its objects the purpose of caring for and obtaining homes for dependent and neglected children, which association shall have been accredited as hereinafter provided. If the court finds that the mother of such dependent or neglected child is a widow, and if the court further finds that such mother is poor and unable to properly care for said child, but is otherwise a proper guardian, and that it is for the welfare of such child to remain at home, the court may enter an order finding such fact and fixing an amount of money necessary to enable such mother to properly care for such child; and thereupon it shall be the duty of the county board of supervisors, through its overseer of the poor or otherwise, to pay to such mother, at such times as said order may designate, the amount so specified for the care of such dependent or neglected child until further order of the court; providing, however, that the amount to be paid for the care of any such child shall not exceed the sum of two dollars per week; and provided further that such payment shall cease upon any such child's attaining the age of fourteen years. The court may, when the health or condition of the child may require it, cause the child to be placed in a public hospital or institution for treatment or special care, or in a private hospital or institution which will receive it for like purposes without charge. [35 G. A., ch. 31, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 8.]

SEC. 254-a20a. When considered widow. Any mother whose husband is an inmate of any institution under the care of the board of control, shall, for the purposes of this act, be considered a widow, but only while such husband is so confined. [35 G. A., ch. 31, § 2.]

SEC. 254-a21. Guardianship—decree for adoption. In any case where the court shall award a child to the care of any association or individual in accordance with the provisions of this act, the child shall, unless otherwise ordered, become a ward and subject to the guardianship of the association or individual to whose care it is committed. Such association or individual shall have authority to place such child in a family home, with or without indenture, and may be made party to any proceedings for the legal adoption of the child, and may by his or its attorney or agent appear in any court where such proceedings are pending and assent to such adoption. And such assent shall be sufficient to authorize the court to enter the proper order or decree for adoption. Such guardianship shall not include the guardianship of any estate of the child. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 9.]

SEC. 254-a22. Surrender of child by agreement. It shall be lawful for the parent, parents, guardian or other person having a right to dispose of [a] dependent or neglected child to enter into an agreement with any association or institution incorporated under any public law of this state for the purpose of aiding, caring for or placing in home such children, and being approved as herein provided, for the surrender of such child to such association or institution, to be taken and cared for by such association or institution or put in a family home. Such agreement may contain any and all proper stipulations to that end, and may authorize the association or institution, by its attorney or agent, to appear in any proceeding for the legal adoption of the child and consent to its adoption, and the order of the court made upon such consent shall be binding upon the child and its parents or guardian or other person the same as if such person were personally in court and consented thereto, whether made party to the proceeding or not. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 10.]

SEC. 254-a23. Optional commitments—parole. In the case of a delinquent child, the court may continue the hearing from time to time, and may commit the child to the care or custody of a probation officer, and may allow said child to remain in its own home subject to the visitation of the probation officer, such child to report to the probation officer as often as may be required, and subject to be returned to the court for further or other proceedings whenever such action may appear to be necessary; or the court may cause the child to be placed in a suitable family home, subject to the friendly supervision of the probation officer and the further order of the court; or it may authorize the child to be boarded out in some suitable family home, in case provision is made by voluntary contribution or otherwise for the payment of the board of such child, until a suitable provision may be made in a home without such payment; or the court may commit such child, if a boy, to an industrial school for boys; or, if a girl, to an industrial school for girls; or the court may commit the child to any institution within the county, incorporated under the laws in this state, that may care for delinquent children, or be provided by a city or county, suitable for the care of such children, or to any state institution which may be established for the care of delinquent boys or girls over the age of ten years. In no case shall a child be committed beyond his or her minority. A child committed to such institution shall be subject to the control of the board of managers thereof, and said board shall have power to parole the child on such conditions as it may prescribe; and the court shall, on the recommendation of the board, have power to discharge such child from custody whenever, in the judgment of the court, his or her reformation is complete; or the court may commit the child to the care and custody of some association that will receive it, embracing in its objects the care of neglected or dependent children, and that has been duly accredited as hereinafter provided. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 11.]

SEC. 254-a24. Custody of child—unlawful incarceration. No court or magistrate shall commit a child not yet having reached his seventeenth birthday, to jail or police station, but if such child is unable to give bail it may be committed to the care of the sheriff, police officer, probation officer, or other person, who shall keep such child in some suitable place provided by the city or county, outside the enclosure of any jail or police station. When any child shall be sentenced to confinement in any institution to which adult convicts are sentenced, it shall be unlawful to confine such child in the same yard or enclosure with such adult convicts, or to bring such child into any yard or building in which adult convicts may be present. Any such child, taken before any justice of the peace or police court, in such counties, charged with misdemeanor, shall, together with the case, be at once transferred by said justice of the peace or police court, to said district court and proper order shall be made therefor. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 12.]

The mayor of the city acting as a justice of the peace has no authority to fine or commit to jail persons under seventeen years of age charged with a misdemeanor, but he has power to hear complaints on preliminary informations, issue warrants, order arrests, etc., and he is not individually liable in damages for acting in excess of his jurisdiction in imposing a fine or imprisonment on such juvenile defendant. McGrew v. Holmes, 145–540, 124 N. W. 195.

SEC. 254-a25. Support of child. In any case in which the court shall find a child dependent, neglected or delinquent, it may, in the same or subsequent proceedings, upon the parents of said child or either of them, being duly summoned or voluntarily appearing, proceed to inquire into the ability of such parent or parents to support the child or contribute thereto, and if the court shall find such parent or parents able to support the child or contribute to its support, the court may enter such order or decree as shall be according to equity in the premises, and may enforce the same by execution or in any way in which a court of equity may enforce its orders or decrees. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 13.]

SEC. 254-a26. Supervision of institutions by board of control—annual reports. The board of control shall designate and approve the institutions and associations to have charge of juveniles under this act and shall have supervision, oversight and right of yisitation (by all or any of its members or by such persons as it shall appoint thereto) to all institutions and associations having charge of juveniles under this act, and said court, institutions and associations shall make annual reports in the first fifteen days in January of each year to said board of control. The report of the court shall include the number of juveniles of each sex brought before it, the number for whom homes have been obtained, the number sent to state institutions, and the number under charge of such association. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 14.]

SEC. 254-a27. Religious belief. The court in committing children shall place them as far as practicable in the care and custody of some individual holding the same religious belief as the parents of said child, or with some association which is controlled by persons of like religious faith with the parents of said child. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 15.]

SEC. 254-a28. Statutes construed liberally. This act shall be construed liberally to the end that its purpose may be carried out, to wit: that the care, custody and discipline of a child shall approximate as nearly as may be that which should be given by its parents, and in all cases where it can properly be done, the child to be placed in an approved family home and become a member of the family by legal adoption or otherwise. [30 G. A., ch. 11, § 16.]

SEC. 254-a29. Detention home and school in certain counties. In any county of this state having a population of more than fifty thousand, it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to provide and maintain, separate, apart and outside the enclosure of any jail or police station, a suitable detention home and school for dependent, neglected and delinquent children. [32 G. A., ch. 7, § 1.]

SEC. 254-a30. Tax for enforcement purposes. For the purpose of providing for the enforcement of this act in all its parts the board of supervisors may levy a tax each year, in the counties of this state to which this act is applicable, not to exceed one mill on the dollar in any year, in addition to the taxes which they are now authorized to levy. [32 G. A., ch. 7, § 3.]

SEC. 254-a31. Contributory dependency—who guilty of. When any child is found to be dependent or neglected, as defined by section two hundred fifty-four-a fourteen of the 1907 supplement of the code, the parent, parents, person or other person or persons having the care, custody, or control of such child, or any other person or persons who shall by any act or omission of duty encourage, counsel, or contribute to the neglect of such child, or who, by reason of wilful neglect of any duty owing by said parent or parents, person or persons to such child, is or are responsible for its neglect or dependency, shall be guilty of contributory dependency, and proceeded against as provided herein. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 1.]

SEC. 254-a32. Jurisdiction—proceedings as in equity. The district court shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine all cases coming within the purview of this act and the proceedings hereunder shall be as in equity and may be included with and be a part of the proceedings in behalf of the child and the court may enforce obedience to its orders in any way in which a court of equity may enforce its orders or decrees. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 2.]

SEC. 254-a33. Judgment—proceedings—release on probation—bond. Whenever the court upon hearing finds a person guilty of contributory dependency, the court may enter a judgment determining such facts and requiring such person to do or to omit to do any act or acts complained of in the petition; and for the purpose of enforcing its judgment the court in its discretion may continue the proceedings from time to time and release such person on probation during the period of two years. The court may further, in its discretion, as part of its judgment, require such person to enter into a bond to the state of Iowa, with or without surety, in such sum as the court may direct, to comply with the orders of the court. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 3.]

SEC. 254-a34. Failure to execute bond—commitment. If the judgment of the court be that the person proceeded against shall execute bonds as provided herein, such bond shall be executed within such time as the court may fix; if[1] the person proceeded against should fail within the time fixed to execute such bond, the court shall commit such person to jail, there to remain until he shall give bond or perform the judgment of the court. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 4.]

SEC. 254-a35. Proceedings on bond—sum recovered for benefit of child. If the court be satisfied by information or evidence on oath that at any time during the two years the person proceeded against has violated the terms of the court's order or the terms of said bond, the court may direct the county attorney to institute proceedings on said bond in any court having jurisdiction of the sum fixed in said bond; the sum so recovered on such bond shall be turned over to the chief probation officer to be by him safely kept and expended for the care and maintenance of such child under the direction and discretion of the court. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 5.]

SEC. 254-a36. Spendthrifts — drunkards — guardianship. In case any person found guilty of contributory dependency shall be found to be a spendthrift who is squandering his property or an habitual drunkard, incapable of managing his affairs, the court shall of its own motion or on application appoint a guardian as provided by statute, who shall also have the duty to see that such person is employed as much as possible. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 6.]

SEC. 254-a37. Failure to work—assistance—contempt—costs. In case the contributory dependency shall in whole or in part consist in the failure of such person to work when he is physically and mentally able to do so and defendant claims that he cannot find work, then the court may appoint some person to find suitable employment for such person, and if he fails and refuses to work at such employment without reasonable excuse after it has been approved by the court he shall be guilty of contempt and be dealt with accordingly. It shall be the duty of the board of supervisors and of the cities of such counties, whether they be under special charter or not, to give preference and precedence to such persons upon the application of such appointee for such work as such counties or cities may have, in case such appointee, after reasonable effort to the satisfaction of the court, can find no other work elsewhere. In case defendant claims that he can find work and he does not go to work within a reasonable time to be fixed by the court he shall be guilty of contempt. This statute shall not be interpreted as allowing involuntary servitude but it shall be liberally construed as punishing the party affected as for contempt in case he does not do his parental duty and support his children as the law contemplates that he should do, after he has been ordered by the court to do so and efforts have been made to aid him in so doing. Any person who is able to properly support his children without labor shall not come within the contemplation of this statute. Section forty-seven hundred seventy-five-a of the supplement to the code is not hereby repealed and the court in its discretion may order prosecution under that statute as provided in section ten[1] hereof. The costs of such probation including the compensation and expenses of such appointee shall be fixed, taxed, and paid as provided in the next succeeding section. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 7.]

SEC. 254-a38. Commitment to hospital for inebriates—probation—expenses—costs. In every case where the contributory dependency consists in whole or in part of habitual drunkenness it shall be the duty of the court to commit such person guilty thereof to the state hospital for inebriates, at Knoxville, or to such other hospital for the cure of inebriates as the state may furnish, and, after his release therefrom, the court shall put him into the care of some person duly appointed as special probation officer who shall aid and assist him toward reform and shall see that he is properly employed. Such probation shall terminate at the end of two years from and after the time of commitment as herein provided, and the provisions in regard to abandonment as set forth in section twelve[1] hereof shall apply. The court shall render a judgment against defendant for the cost of treatment at such hospital for inebriates and the costs of suit and may, in a proper case, allow him to pay the same in such installments as the court may fix during the period of his probation, the county of his residence to pay the same in the first instance. Such special probation officer shall have such compensation as the court may allow which shall be taxed as costs of the case. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 8.]

SEC. 254-a39. Failure to pay—no exemptions—garnishment. In case no guardian is appointed and the person found guilty of contributory dependency fails to apply a sufficient sum for the benefit of his family and it be deemed necessary by the court to levy upon any of his property, including wages, for the benefit of the family, he shall not have the benefit of any exemptions as provided by statute except such as are provided for an unmarried person. In such cases nothing further shall be necessary than the service of a copy of the order of the court which shall serve the purposes of an execution and it may also take the place of a notice of garnishment, and any property belonging to or debt owing such person shall be paid into court on or before a time to be fixed by the court, to be expended in such manner as the court may direct, and in case the person so garnished fails to turn over as herein provided or there is any dispute in regard to the matter, such person may be summoned to appear before the court out of which the order issued at a time for hearing to be fixed by the court and a hearing may be had and judgment entered as may be proper in the premises. The principal defendant shall be given such notice of the proceedings as the court may direct. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 9.]

SEC. 254-a40. Criminal proceedings. Nothing in this act shall be construed to be in conflict with, or to prevent proceedings under any statute of the state against any person for the commission of any act for which such person may be proceeded against as provided herein, and upon the hearing of any case herein the court in its discretion may order and direct the county attorney to take any and all needful steps to prosecute such person in accordance with the laws of the state concerning the commission of crimes. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 10.]

SEC. 254-a41. Disposition of child during probation. When children are allowed to remain in the custody of such person as is found guilty of contributory dependency the court may prescribe such conditions as seem most calculated to remove the cause of such dependency and neglect, and in case the court deems it for the best interests of the child to remove it from its home until the conditions of the probation have been complied with and the court is satisfied that such compliance will continue, then the court may place the same in the care and custody of the juvenile detention home, wherever such is authorized, or of such other suitable institution provided for by the juvenile court to act for such time during minority, as the court may deem fit, and the court at any time thereafter may set aside, change, or modify such order. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 11.]

SEC. 254-a42. May be declared abandoned. A person guilty of contributory dependency shall fully comply with all of the orders of the court within such time as the court may fix to be not more than one year and shall continue to comply with such order thereafter for such period as will make the full term of two years from and after the judgment establishing contributory dependency and, in case he fails to do so, the court may, in its discretion, declare the child or children whose parent he is, to be abandoned children, and, in case any person who has been adjudged guilty of contributory dependency and who has been ordered to pay for the support of such child departs from the jurisdiction of the court rendering such judgment and allows such support to remain unpaid for six months without excuse satisfactory to such court, such child or children whose support he has been ordered to pay may in the discretion of the court be[1] adjudged to be abandoned; the making of such payments shall not prevent the finding and judgment of abandonment after two years in case there are other orders of court which have not been complied with as hereinbefore provided. In case both parents are living and neither one has been relieved of its duty and both are guilty of contributory dependency, both shall be proceeded against at the same time. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 12.]

SEC. 254-a43. Disposal of abandoned children—adoption. In case at the end of two years a child is declared to be abandoned by both of its parents as provided by the preceding section the court may order the clerk of the district court to sign papers for its adoption, or it may be turned over to some home-finding association, approved by the board of control, or to the soldiers' orphans' home at Davenport, Iowa, with power to adopt such child out and to execute papers of adoption. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 13.]

SEC. 254-a44. Inheritance from parents. Any adoption as provided by [the] preceding section shall not prevent or cut off any inheritance he might be entitled to from his rightful or adoptive parents adjudged guilty of contributory dependency as hereinbefore provided, in accordance with the laws of descent of this state, such inheritance to be in addition to that to which he may be entitled by virtue of the adoption hereunder and no will to the contrary shall be valid. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 14.]

SEC. 254-a45. Court to give aid—divorced parents. In every cause in the juvenile court the court shall investigate whether every person responsible for the care, custody, maintenance, education, medical treatment and discipline of the child or children involved is doing his full duty by such child or children and, in case the court finds that the parents or other persons in loco parentis are not doing their duties, the court shall try all lawful and proper means under this act to make them do so, giving them aid and assistance in case it be deemed necessary. The court may declare a child abandoned by one parent while it may not be by the other. In case the parents are divorced and the one having the custody is adjudged to have abandoned the child, then the ability and propriety of the other parent shall be considered. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 15.]

SEC. 254-a46. Enticing away child—penalty. If any person maliciously, forcibly, or fraudulently, take, decoy or entice away any child under the age of sixteen years with intent to detain, or conceal such child from its parents, guardian, or other person or institution having the lawful custody thereof, he shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than ten years, or be imprisoned in the county jail not more than one year, or be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars. [34 G. A., ch. 11, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 14, § 16.]

SEC. 254-a47. Liberal construction for protection of child. This act shall be liberally construed in favor of the state for the purpose of the protection of the child from neglect, or omission of parental duty toward the child by its parents, or other persons standing in loco parentis, and further to protect the child from the effects of the improper conduct or acts of any person which may cause, encourage or contribute to the dependency and neglect of such child, although such person is in no way related to such child. [33 G. A., ch. 14, § 17.]

OF THE SUPERIOR COURTS.

SECTION 255. Establishment and effect of. Any city in this state containing four thousand inhabitants, whether organized under a special charter or the general law for the incorporation of cities and towns, may establish a superior court as hereinafter provided, which, when established, shall take the place of the police court of such city. [32 G. A., ch. 8, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 2; 19 G. A., ch. 24, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 143, § 1.]

SEC. 256. Submission to voters—election of judge—result certified—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 9, § 1.]

SEC. 256-a. Submission to voters—election of judges—term—commission. The law, as it appears in section two hundred fifty-six-a of the supplement to the code, [1902] is hereby repealed and there is enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"Upon petition of a hundred citizens of any such city, the mayor, by and with the consent of the council, may, at least ten days before any general or city election, issue a proclamation submitting to the qualified voters of any city the question of establishing said court. Should a majority of all the votes cast at such election upon such proposition be in favor of said court, the same shall be established. The terms of the judges of all superior courts other than those whose terms expire after the first Monday in January, nineteen hundred and eight, shall terminate on the first Monday in January, nineteen hundred and seven, and there shall be elected at the general election in November, nineteen hundred and six, for a term of four years the successors of those judges whose terms of office under this act are made to expire on the first Monday in January, nineteen hundred and seven. Except as above provided, the judges of the superior courts now or hereafter established shall be elected at the last general election preceding the expiration of the term of office of the incumbent. The names of candidates for judge shall be placed upon the same ballot as used in the city for state, county and township officers. The vote shall be returned and canvassed in the same manner as provided for county officers. Certificates of nomination of candidates for judge by conventions or primaries of political parties and nominations by petition shall be fixed with the auditor of the county in which said city is situated within the same time as provided by law for the filing of certificates of nomination and nominations by petition for offices to be filled by the electors of counties. Each judge shall qualify and hold his office for the term of four years from the first Monday in January next ensuing after said election and until his successor is elected and qualified. Immediately after the election of any judge, the board of supervisors of said county shall transmit a certificate of the election of said judge to the governor of the state, who shall thereupon issue to him a commission empowering him to act as judge, as herein provided. The terms of all judges who are now holding over by reason of the failure to elect their successors in the fall of nineteen hundred and five, are hereby extended until the first Monday in January, nineteen hundred and seven." [32 G. A., ch. 8, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 10; 28 G. A., ch. 9, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 24, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 143, § 2.]

SEC. 258-a. Vacancy—inability to act. That section two hundred fifty-eight of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That in case of vacancy in said office the governor shall appoint a judge who shall hold the office until the next general election, and in case of inability of any judge to act through sickness or any other cause a judge shall be appointed by the governor to hold during such inability." [28 G. A., ch. 9, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 77; 16 G. A., ch. 143, § 4.]

SEC. 260. Jurisdiction—attachments of real estate—city prisons used—inebriates. Said court shall have jurisdiction concurrent with the district court in all civil matters, except in probate matters and actions for divorce, alimony and separate maintenance. It shall have exclusive original jurisdiction to try and determine all actions, civil and criminal, for the violation of city ordinances, and all jurisdiction conferred on police courts as now or as may hereafter be provided by law, and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace. Writs of error and appeals may be taken thereto from justices' courts in the township in which the court is held, and, by consent of parties, from any other township in the county. For the trial of criminal actions on information and complaint, the court shall be open at such times and under such rules as it shall prescribe. In actions by attachment, where real property is levied on by writ of attachment, the officer levying the writ shall make entry thereof in the incumbrance book in the office of the clerk of the district court, in like manner and with like effect as of levies made in the district court. Parties may be committed to the city prison for confinement or punishment, instead of the county jail, at the option of the judge. In the absence of the judge, or in case of his inability to act, then, during such time, proceedings for the violation of city ordinances may be had before a justice of the peace residing in such city. Superior courts shall have original concurrent jurisdiction with the district courts of the state of Iowa in all matters pertaining to the detention and treatment of dipsomaniacs, inebriates and those addicted to the excessive use of narcotics, as provided in title twelve, chapter two-A of the supplement to the code, 1907, and the same proceeding shall be held so far as applicable. Wherever the words "district judge" "district court" or "judge of the district court" appear in title twelve, chapter two-A, the same shall be construed to apply to the superior courts or the judge thereof to the same extent that the same applies to the district court or the judge thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 15, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 40, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 24, § 3; 16 G. A., ch. 143, § 6.]

The provisions of this chapter as to jurisdiction of superior courts are not unconstitutional. Page v. Millerton, 114–378, 86 N. W. 440.

SEC. 260-a. Juvenile detention homes and schools—jurisdiction. The superior court of any city shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the district court of the county in which said superior court is located, of all cases brought under the provisions of sections two hundred fifty-four-a thirteen, two hundred fifty-four-a fourteen, two hundred fifty-four-a fifteen, two hundred fifty-four-a sixteen, two hundred fifty-four-a seventeen, two hundred fifty-four-a eighteen, two hundred fifty-four-a nineteen, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-one, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-two, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-three, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-four, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-five, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-six, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-seven, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-eight, two hundred fifty-four-a twenty-nine, two hundred fifty-four-a thirty of the supplement to the code, 1907; the superior courts shall have and possess all the powers conferred by said sections upon the district court and shall proceed in like manner, except that a jury trial in the superior court shall be had before a jury of six members. [33 G. A., ch. 13, § 2.]

[The title of ch. 13, 33 G. A., indicates that the above section is an amendment to the various sections named therein, but as this section gives additional jurisdiction to the superior court, it seemed advisable to have the section appear at this place. EDITOR.]

SEC. 260-b. Probation officers—qualifications. The probation officers appointed by the district court under section two hundred fifty-four-a eighteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall also act as the probation officers of the superior court, where such superior court is located at the county seat. Where the superior court is located in a city other than the county seat and in a county having a population of more than fifty thousand, the judge of such court may appoint a person of good moral character and special fitness to serve as probation officer during the pleasure of the court and such probation officer shall have the same powers as those conferred upon probation officers under the provisions of section two hundred fifty-four-a eighteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, and the compensation of such officer shall be fixed as provided by the terms of said section. [33 G. A., ch. 13, § 3.]

SEC. 261. Changes of venue—for nonresidents—no jury in criminal cases. Changes of venue may be taken from said court in all civil actions to the district court of the same or another county, in the same manner, for like causes and with the same effect as the venue is changed from the district court. But in all civil cases where any party defendant shall, before any pleading is filed by him, file in said cause a motion for a change of venue to the district court of the county, supported by affidavit showing that such party defendant was not a resident of the city where such court is held, at the time of the commencement of the action, the cause, upon such motion, shall be transferred to the district court of the county. All criminal actions, including those for the violation of the city ordinances, shall be tried summarily and without a jury, saving to the defendant the right of appeal to the district court, which appeal shall be taken in the same time and manner as appeals are taken from justices' courts in criminal actions. [28 G. A., ch. 10, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 40, § 2; 19 G. A., ch. 24, § 4; 16 G. A., ch. 143, § 7.]

Under this section as amended by 28 G. A., ch. 10, a defendant in an action brought in the superior court who is a nonresident of the city may have the venue changed to the district court upon showing such fact. Woodring v. Rooney, 121–595, 96 N. W. 1100.

Costs of change authorized by this section as amended follow the case and failure to pay the costs of the transfer does not render the order invalid. When such order is made the superior court loses jurisdiction of both parties and of the subject matter. Iowa Loan Co. v. Wilson, 145–381, 124 N. W. 201.

A railroad company operating its tracks through a city and having ticket offices there where it transacts business is not necessarily a resident of the city and may, in a proper case, have a change of venue to the district court when sued in the superior court. Wiar v. Wabash R. Co., 151–121, 130 N. W. 794.

A railway corporation nonresident of the city is entitled to avail itself of the provisions of this section as to change of venue. The requirement of transfer on proper application is unconditional and mandatory, and the court cannot impose as a condition to the change the payment of costs to the time the change is applied for. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Castle, 155–124, 135 N. W. 561.

A defendant who has made proper application for a change does not waive the error in refusing to grant such change by voluntarily going to trial after the change is refused. Ibid.

The refusal of the superior court to grant the change when properly applied for may be annulled by certiorari. Ibid.

The provision of this section is mandatory and leaves no discretion to the superior court. The filing of the motion necessarily terminates the right of the superior court to proceed further in the trial of the case. Donisthorpe v. Lutz, 155–379, 136 N. W. 233.

Where a partnership is sued in that capacity and the members are not made parties, the motion for a change of venue must show that the partnership is not a resident of a city. A showing that the partners are not such residents is not sufficient. Argus v. Ware, 155–583, 136 N. W. 774.

SEC. 263. Court of record—laws relating to district court to apply.

Statutes covering procedure in the district court as to setting aside default are also applicable in the superior court and a judgment by default may be set aside although a transcript of such judgment has been filed in the district court. Klepfer v. Keokuk, 126–592, 102 N. W. 515.

Provisions as to assignment of causes in the district court are applicable to the superior court except when inconsistent with specific provisions relating to the latter. Smith v. Redmond, 141–105, 119 N. W. 271.

SEC. 265. When recorder to act as clerk. As long as the business of the court can be done without a clerk, the judge shall be the clerk of said court and the city recorder or city clerk shall be deputy clerk of said court and may perform the duties of his principal as clerk of said court. Whenever, from the accumulation of causes and other demands upon the court, a clerk becomes necessary, the city recorder or clerk shall be the clerk thereof. He shall give bonds as required when the judge acts as clerk, and perform the same services as required by law of the clerk of the district court. [35 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.] [16 G. A., ch. 143, § 11.]

SEC. 266. Marshal as sheriff.

A constable is not authorized to act as officer of the superior court, and a writ of attachment issuing from such court should not be directed to such officer. Freeman v. Lind, 112–39, 83 N. W. 800.

SEC. 268. Right to jury, on demand.

Jury trial is not waived by failure to demand a jury at the time for which the cause has been assigned if the issues have not yet been joined. Smith v. Redmond, 141–105, 119 N. W. 271.

SEC. 273. Judgments made liens by transcript.

The effect of the filing of a transcript of the judgment of the superior court in the district court is to transfer to the district court the power to enforce the judgment of the superior court. No further proceedings can be had on the judgment in the superior court. Oyster v. Bank, 107–39, 77 N. W. 523.

A creditor who has recovered judgment in a superior court which has not been filed in a district court so as to become a lien on real property cannot proceed by equitable action to subject real property to payment of his claim. Peterson v. Gittings, 107–306, 77 N. W. 1056.

Judgments of superior courts are to be treated as judgments of the district court only when transcripts thereof are filed in the district court of the county in which the superior court has jurisdiction, and thereafter they are to be treated in all respects as judgments rendered in the district court. Before the transcript of a judgment is thus filed, the judgment can only be enforced through process issued out of the superior court which may be levied on personal property only. Drahos v. Kopesky, 132–497, 109 N. W. 1021.

Therefore held that in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of real estate, the plaintiff did not by showing judgment of the superior court, no transcript of which had been filed in the district court, establish his right to levy on the property. Ibid.

An action to enjoin the enforcement of the judgment of a superior court cannot, after transcript thereof has been filed in the district court, be maintained in the district court of another county in the state. Brunk v. Moulton Bank, 121–14, 95 N. W. 238.

The power of the superior court to set aside a default is not lost by the filing of a transcript of the default judgment in the district court. Klepfer v. Keokuk, 126–592, 102 N. W. 515.

SEC. 275. Shorthand reporters—compensation.

The shorthand reporter appointed by the judge is entitled to compensation for the time of his attendance upon the court under the order of the judge without regard to the services actually performed. Ferguson v. Pottawattamie County, 126–108, 101 N. W. 733.

SEC. 276. Question of abolishing court to be submitted. Upon the petition of one third of the qualified electors of any city in which a superior court is now or hereafter established, the mayor, by and with the consent of the council of such city, shall, at least ten days before any general election or election for city officers, issue a proclamation submitting to the qualified voters of said city the proposition to abolish the superior court. The ballots shall be printed, and in the following form: "Shall the proposition to abolish the superior court of ———— be adopted?" and the election shall be conducted in all respects in accordance with the provisions of the election law. [28 G. A., ch. 9, § 3; 24 G. A., ch. 5, § 1.]

SEC. 280. Compensation of marshal. The marshal shall receive the same fees and compensation for serving the process of said court, and for other services required of the sheriff in the district court, as the sheriff receives for like services, but in all criminal cases in said court the marshal shall receive the same fees for his services as are paid to the constable in justice court. [34 G. A., ch. 12, § 1.] [16 G. A., ch. 143, § 12.]

SEC. 280-a. Trial by jury without additional expense. In all cities which are not county seats, and which have now or may hereafter have a population of twenty-five thousand or more, and in which superior courts are now or may hereafter be established, it shall be unnecessary in such superior court to make demand for trial by jury, and causes triable to a jury shall be tried to twelve jurors without the additional expense to any of the parties, required by section two hundred seventy of the code. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 1.]

SEC. 280-b. Jury—how drawn. In providing jurors for superior courts in all such cities, the names of thirty persons shall be drawn by the officers at the times and in the manner provided by section two hundred sixty-nine of the code, and such persons whose names are drawn shall be subject to jury duty, and shall constitute the regular panel of jurors in said superior courts, for the two calendar months commencing with the first day of the month succeeding the drawing. The judges of the superior courts may order such additional drawings to be made as may be necessary to provide jurors for such courts. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 2.]

SEC. 280-c. Salary of judge. In all such cities the salary of the judge of the superior court shall be three thousand dollars per annum, and paid quarterly; the first two quarters from the city treasury, and the last two from the county treasury of the county wherein such court is located. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 3.]

SEC. 280-d. Compensation shorthand reporter. In all such cities the compensation of the shorthand reporter in such superior court shall be eight dollars a day for the time actually employed. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 4.]

SEC. 280-e. Deputy clerk—compensation. In all such cities there may be appointed by the city council, a deputy clerk of the court, who shall receive such compensation as the city council may allow. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 5.]

SEC. 280-f. Applicable to certain cities. This act shall apply to cities acting under the commission form of government, which are not county seats, and which may have, or may hereafter have, a population of twenty-five thousand or more. [34 G. A., ch. 13, § 6.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SECTION 281. Judges not to practice. No judge of any court of record shall practice as an attorney or counselor at law, or give advice in relation to any action pending or about to be brought in any of the courts of this state, but nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit judges of police courts from the practice as attorneys and counselors at law in civil matters. [32 G. A., ch. 9; C. '73, § 187; R. § 2674; C. '51, § 1587.]

A judge has no right to give advice out of court to a receiver. Directions to the receiver should be reduced to writing and entered of record. State Central Sav. Bank v. Fanning Ball-Bearing Chain Co., 118–698, 92 N. W. 712.

SEC. 283. Judicial proceedings public.

A proceeding to impanel a grand jury is not invalid although by reason of the lack of capacity in the room occupied for the purpose some persons are unable to gain access thereto. State v. Richards, 126–497, 102 N. W. 439.

SEC. 284. When judge disqualified.

A justice is not disqualified from certifying to a transcript of a judgment rendered by his predecessor by reason of the fact that he was a party to the action, his act of certification being one which is purely ministerial. Hass v. Leverton, 128–79, 102 N. W. 811.

The fact that the judge has previously been one of counsel for one of the parties in a previous litigation not involving the same issues does not disqualify him under the strict terms of the statute and he is not disqualified under the spirit of the statute if his connection with the previous proceedings has been nominal only. In re Estate of Glass, 127–646, 103 N. W. 1013.

Even as to a court of inferior jurisdiction, such as that of a justice of the peace or mayor, failure to object on account of relationship is a waiver of the disqualification. It is not necessary that the consent of the parties affirmatively appear in order to sustain the jurisdiction. Dows v. De Long, 149–251, 128 N. W. 341.

SEC. 285. No business done on Sunday, except.

Judicial business may be transacted on the fourth of July and a witness may be punished for contempt in not appearing on that day in response to a subpoena. Chambers v. Oehler, 107–155, 77 N. W. 853.

A ministerial act, such as the service of a notice, not forbidden on Sunday, will not be illegal because performed on that day. State v. Ryan, 113–536, 85 N. W. 812.

Trial of causes on legal holidays other than Sunday is not prohibited, and the overruling of a motion for a continuance on the ground that the cause is set for trial on such holiday is not error. Michel v. Boxholm Co-operative Creamery, 128–706, 105 N. W. 323.

The ministerial act of spreading a judgment on the records of the court by the clerk is not invalid because performed on Sunday. Puckett v. Guenther, 142–35, 120 N. W. 123.

SEC. 286. Courts to be held at places provided, except.

It is not unlawful for a court to transact its business in a different room of the courthouse from that specially set aside for occupancy by the court. State v. Richards, 126–497, 102 N. W. 439.

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT.

SECTION 287. Office—duties.

While it may be that the clerk of the court cannot be properly appointed receiver because as clerk he would be required to pass upon the sufficiency of the bond to be given by him as receiver, yet this objection cannot be raised by way of collateral attack in an action brought by him as receiver to collect indebtedness. His actions as receiver may be valid de facto although his appointment is erroneous. Metropolitan Nat. Bank v. Commercial State Bank, 104–682, 74 N. W. 26.

SEC. 288. Records—books to be kept.

What constitutes the record: An original decree, signed by the judge before it is entered in the proper record, is not a judgment. McGlasson v. Scott, 112–289, 83 N. W. 974.

The record book is the best evidence of a judgment, and it or a certain transcript thereof is alone admissible to show the judgment where there is no reason for introducing secondary evidence. Baxter v. Pritchard, 113–422, 85 N. W. 633.

Depositions, when filed, become a part of the records of the court, even though not used as evidence on the trial of the case in which they are taken, and if removed from the files without leave of court by the party filing them they may be required to be returned. Howe v. Mutual Reserve Fund L. Assn., 115–285, 88 N. W. 338.

A record showing the dismissal of an action made without authority will not prevent the action being notice to purchasers of property affected thereby after the case is noticed for trial. Furry v. Ferguson, 105–231, 74 N. W. 903.

The record is the only proof of a judgment. It cannot be established by entries in the judge's calendar, or a form for the entry of judgment signed by the judge. Callanan v. Votruba, 104–672, 74 N. W. 13; King v. Dickson, 114–160, 86 N. W. 263.

Neither the mental conclusion of the judge presiding at the trial, nor the oral announcement of such conclusion, nor his written memorandum entered in his calendar, nor the abstract entered in the judgment docket, constitutes a judgment. A judgment cannot be said to be entered until it is spread by the clerk upon the record book. Kennedy v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 119–123, 93 N. W. 71.

Where the judgment or conclusion of the court is reduced to writing and filed with the clerk, it becomes a judgment of the court, although not yet formally entered on the records. So held in a proceeding to punish for contempt in the violation of a temporary injunction which had been dissolved by a written decision of the court deposited with the clerk. Coffey v. Gamble, 117–545, 91 N. W. 813.

A judgment or decree is not rendered so that an appeal may be taken therefrom until it is entered of record as provided by statute. Martin v. Martin, 125–73, 99 N. W. 719.

Where the order for the hearing of an application for discharge of receiver was not entered of record until after the discharge was granted and publication of the notice of such application was not made until after the order was entered, held that the court was without jurisdiction and the discharge was void. Williams v. Des Moines Loan & Trust Co., 126–22, 101 N. W. 277.

The judgment may be valid, although the clerk's record entry thereof is not signed and approved by the court until the next term after the entry in the judge's calendar. Percival v. Yousling, 120–451, 94 N. W. 913.

The clerk should record the judgment in accordance with the memorandum of the judge, not only as to its substance, but also as to its date; but the record should show the actual date of final recording, and an appeal taken prior to such date is premature. Hoffman-Bruner Granite Co. v. Stark, 132–100, 108 N. W. 329.

Whether a transcript of evidence on a previous trial is admissible under a stipulation, is to be determined by the court, and it may take judicial notice of the record in the case and of the stipulation thereby shown. The record and stipulation need not be formally proved. State v. Olds, 106–110, 76 N. W. 644.

While the pleadings in a case are part of the record, a duly authenticated copy of the judgment is a specific item of evidence, admissible in itself without regard to the record in the case. Alexander v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 119–519, 93 N. W. 508.

Judgment rendered upon constructive or substituted service will not be binding upon a defendant not properly named in the record. Thornily v. Prentice, 121–89, 96 N. W. 728.

Thus where the service purported to be upon W. M. Thornily and judgment was entered against Wm. M. Thornily, held that the judgment was not valid as against Willis H. Thornily, the doctrine of idem sonans having no application. Ibid.

Where an amendment to the pleadings is treated by the parties as filed and the case is tried on the issues raised thereby, it cannot afterwards be objected that the filing of the amendment was not entered on the appearance docket. Foley v. Cedar Rapids, 133–64, 110 N. W. 158.

Entries nunc pro tunc: While a court may order a correction of its record of a prior date to conform to the facts as they existed at that date, it cannot by such order change its records so as to show that a fact existed on a prior date that did not then in truth exist. First Nat. Bank v. Redhead, 103–421, 72 N. W. 651.

Therefore held that failure to file a certificate of the evidence in an equity case within six months after the trial could not be cured by a nunc pro tunc order making such certificate of record of a date prior to the date of its actual filing. Ibid.

Where a decree was prepared and signed by the judge and given to the clerk who filed but failed to record it, held that it might subsequently be made of record by a nunc pro tunc order as of the date when it should have been recorded. Day v. Goodwin, 104–374, 73 N. W. 864.

While courts possess the power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc, yet the exercise of such power presupposes the actual rendition of a judgment; the mere right to a judgment which never was rendered will not furnish the basis for such an entry. Doughty v. Meek, 105–16, 74 N. W. 744; Graham Paper Co. v. Wohlwend, 116–358, 89 N. W. 1068.

But a court may enter judgment nunc pro tunc on a confession of judgment where the clerk has failed to enter judgment thereon. Doughty v. Meek, 105–16, 74 N. W. 744.

Mere formal or clerical errors or omissions or mistakes in the entries of the clerk concerning matters of procedure, even in criminal cases, may be corrected by nunc pro tunc orders. Smith v. District Court, 132–603, 109 N. W. 1085.

Where upon the death of plaintiff in an action an order to substitute his administrator was made but judgment was entered in the name of the deceased plaintiff, held that the defect in the judgment and in proceedings thereunder might be cured by a nunc pro tunc entry correcting the judgment so as to show that it was in fact entered in favor of the substituted plaintiff. Hunt v. Johnston, 105–311, 75 N. W. 103.

An order nunc pro tunc will be made to avoid the effects of a delay by the court or of a delay or omission of its clerk, but rarely, if ever, to remedy a delay or omission due to a party or his attorney. Newbury v. Getchell & Martin Lumber, Etc., Co., 106–140, 76 N. W. 514.

The time for taking an appeal is determined by the actual entry of the judgment and it cannot be made to relate back so as to cut off a right of appeal which until the entry of the judgment has not existed. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125–335, 101 N. W. 105.

An order for a judgment entry nunc pro tunc cannot be made to relate back for the purposes of an appeal. Hoffman-Bruner Granite Co. v. Stark, 132–100, 108 N. W. 329.

Courts have inherent power to make nunc pro tunc orders, and are not limited by special statutory provisions as to the time when application for modification of the record is to be made. Hofacre v. Monticello, 128–239, 103 N. W. 488.

If no action of the court is in fact taken, there can be no entry nunc pro tunc as to such action, but if in fact taken and the particular evidence thereof is wanting, it may subsequently be supplied so as to relate back to the time when the act was in fact done. Ibid.

A motion authorized by code § 4127 for the correction of the record for the purpose of an appeal is not controlled as to time of filing by code § 4093, providing that proceedings to correct mistakes or omissions of the clerk shall be by motion within one year. Puckett v. Gunther, 137–647, 114 N. W. 34; Thompson v. Great Western Acc. Assn., 136–557, 114 N. W. 31.

As to correction of the record by the court, see notes to §§ 243 and 244.

Lost records: If the shorthand notes or transcript in an equity case are lost the court may order a substitution and will not be without jurisdiction to do so in a proceeding commenced within the time allowed for taking appeal although the final order for substitution is not entered until the time for the appeal in which it is desired to make use of the evidence has expired. Ormsby v. Graham, 123–202, 98 N. W. 724.

An order for the substitution of lost records in a case is not a matter of absolute right, but rests in the sound discretion of the court. First National Bank v. Reid, 122–280, 98 N. W. 107.

Judgment docket: The clerk of the court is required to keep a book in his office containing an abstract of judgments rendered, and costs in the case may properly be entered thereon in connection with the entry of the judgment. Hayes v. Clinton County, 118–569, 92 N. W. 860.

A judgment though improperly indexed may be valid between the parties, and as to everyone save a bona fide purchaser or incumbrancer without notice. State Savings Bank v. Shinn, 130–365, 106 N. W. 921.

Liability of clerk: The clerk may be liable in an action for damages brought by a party injured for failing to enter a transcript from a justice's court on the judgment index. Lougee v. Reed, 133–48, 110 N. W. 165.

SEC. 290. Entry of return of notice.

This section no doubt applies to notice in probate proceedings. In re Will of Downs, 141–268, 119 N. W. 703.

SEC. 291. Pleadings—when deemed filed—dates to be entered.

A pleading cannot be considered unless entered as filed in the appearance docket. Johnson v. Berdo, 131–524, 106 N. W. 609.

A paper may be filed without being marked or endorsed by the clerk or any other officer. The memorandum by endorsement of the filing is simply evidence of the fact. In re Minor Children of East, 143–370, 122 N. W. 153.

SEC. 293. To report criminal statistics to board of parole—what included. That section two hundred ninety-three of the code and chapter three of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The clerk of the district court is required to report to the board of parole on or before the fifteenth day of July of each year, the number of convictions for all crimes and misdemeanors in that court in his county for the year ending June thirtieth preceding, and such report shall show the character of the offense and the sentence imposed, the occupation of the convict, whether he can read or write; also the number of cases tried on which there were verdicts of acquittal, or cases in which [there] were dismissals by the court without trial, and what crimes the indictments in cases of acquittal or dismissal were for; also the expenses of the county for criminal prosecutions during the year, including jurors fees in all criminal cases; jurors meals while in the trial of criminal cases; all bailiff's fees for services while in attendance of the court or[1] jury during the trial of criminal cases; the expense incurred in taking convicted prisoners to prison or jail, attorney's fees allowed in the attendance of criminals; all the fees of grand jurors; all fees paid witnesses in the trial of criminal cases; all fees paid to the court reporter for reporting the trial of criminal cases and for transcripts made at the expense of the county in criminal cases; all fees paid to witnesses brought before the grand jury; all fees paid to the clerk of the grand jury and compensation of the bailiff in attendance upon the grand jury; all fees and expenses of the sheriff and other officers paid by the county for services in connection with the work of the grand jury; all expenses made in connection with the jail, including board of prisoners; all jurors fees, jurors meals, witness fees, constable's fees, and justice fees paid by the county in all criminal cases before a justice of [the] peace, magistrate or police court; the compensation of the county attorney and his assistant and expenses in criminal cases." [35 G. A., ch. 33, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 3, § 2.] [24 G. A., ch. 41; 22 G. A., ch. 82, § 40; 18 G. A., ch. 28, § 3; C. '73, § 203; R. § 349; C. '51, § 148.]

[1"on" in the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

In addition to the foregoing, he shall charge and collect:

28. For issuing marriage licenses, one dollar each;

29. For all services performed in the settlement of the estate of any decedent, minor, insane person, or other persons laboring under any legal disability, except where actions are brought by the administrator, guardian, trustee or person acting in a representative capacity or against him, or as may be otherwise provided herein, where the value of the property of the estate does not exceed three thousand dollars, three dollars; where such value is between three and five thousand dollars, five dollars; where such value is between five and seven thousand dollars, eight dollars; where such value is between seven and ten thousand dollars, ten dollars; where such value is between ten and twenty-five thousand dollars, fifteen dollars; for each additional twenty-five thousand dollars or major fraction thereof, there shall be taxed the further sum of ten dollars;

30. In addition to the foregoing, for making a complete record in cases where the same is required by law or directed by an order of the court, for every one hundred words, ten cents.

All of which fees shall be paid into the county treasury. [34 G. A., ch. 14, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 17, § 1; C. '73, §§ 3781-2, 3787; R. §§ 430, 436, 1852, 4136, 4140-1; C. '51, §§ 2527, 2531-2.]

In estimating the value of the estate of a deceased for the purpose of determining the amount of the clerk's fee for services in the settlement of the estate, the value of real estate which is ordered to be sold for the payment of claims is not to be considered. In re Estate of Pitt, 153-269, 133 N. W. 660.

The statutory provision in this respect is predicated on the theory that payment is to be made on the basis of something actually done by the officer for the benefit of the litigant. Ibid.

SEC. 297. Salary of clerk—additional compensation. The clerks of the district courts shall receive as full annual compensation for all services the following: In counties having a population of less than ten thousand, the board of supervisors shall fix the salary at an amount not exceeding eleven hundred dollars. In counties having a population of ten thousand and not exceeding fifteen thousand, the salary shall be twelve hundred dollars. In counties having a population of fifteen thousand and not exceeding twenty thousand, the salary shall be thirteen hundred dollars. In counties having a population of twenty thousand and not exceeding twenty-five thousand, the salary shall be fourteen hundred dollars. In counties having a population of twenty-five thousand and not exceeding thirty thousand, the salary shall be fifteen hundred dollars. In counties having a population of thirty thousand and not exceeding thirty-five thousand, the salary shall be sixteen hundred dollars. In counties having a population of thirty-five thousand and not exceeding forty thousand, the salary shall be eighteen hundred dollars. In counties having a population of over forty thousand and less than fifty thousand, the salary shall be twenty-five hundred dollars; in counties having a population of fifty thousand and not over sixty thousand, the salary shall be twenty-seven hundred fifty dollars; in counties having a population of over sixty thousand and less than sixty-five thousand, the salary shall be three thousand dollars; and in counties having a population of over sixty-five thousand, the salary shall be thirty-three hundred dollars. The board of supervisors may in addition to the salary fixed for clerks in counties having a population of forty thousand or under allow them out of the probate fees as additional compensation an amount not exceeding three hundred dollars; provided that in counties where terms of the district court are held in two cities or towns there may be added to the salary of the clerk the further sum of four hundred dollars. [34 G. A., ch. 15, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 77; 22 G. A., ch. 36, § 2; 21 G. A., ch. 134, § 16; 18 G. A., ch. 184, § 1; C. '73, § 3784.]

The fact that duties are required of the clerk for which no compensation is provided does not authorize the allowance of exaction of compensation in addition to that provided by statute. Therefore, held that one who becomes entitled to a fund in the hand of the clerk received in his official capacity is entitled also to the interest on such fund earned while it is on deposit with a bank in the clerk's name. Rhea v. Brewster, 130–729, 107 N. W. 940.

SEC. 298. Deputies—appointment—compensation—qualification. The clerk, with the consent of the board of supervisors, may, when necessary, appoint a deputy, or employ a clerk or clerks, who shall not be a county officer. A certificate of such appointment and of the revocation thereof, when made, shall be filed with the county auditor. In counties of twenty thousand population or less, such deputy or clerk shall receive a salary not to exceed one half the sum allowed to the principal. In counties having a population above twenty thousand and not exceeding thirty-five thousand, one or more deputies or clerks may be employed, their total compensation not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars, except that, where court is held at two places in a county, it may be any sum not exceeding two thousand dollars. In counties having a population of thirty-five thousand and less than forty thousand, one or more deputies may be employed, their total compensation not to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars. In counties having a population exceeding forty thousand, one or more deputies or clerks may be employed, whose total compensation shall not exceed five thousand dollars; and in counties having a population exceeding sixty-five thousand, one or more deputy clerks may be employed, whose compensation shall not exceed ten thousand dollars, that each of the two chief deputy clerks shall be allowed a salary of not less than fourteen hundred dollars per annum. The compensation of such deputy or clerk shall be fixed by the board of supervisors at the time of the consent to the appointment. The deputy shall take the same oath as his principal, to be indorsed on the certificate of his appointment, and may perform the duties of his principal. Clerks' and deputies' salaries to be paid out of the county treasury in equal monthly installments. [35 G. A., ch. 35, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 16, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 12, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 36, §§ 1, 2; 18 G. A., ch. 184, § 1; C. '73, §§ 766-8, 770, 3784; R. §§ 642-3, 644-5, 647; C. '51, §§ 411-14, 416.]

OF COUNTY ATTORNEYS AND THEIR DUTIES.

SECTION 301. Duties. That sections three hundred and one, three hundred and two, three hundred and six and three hundred and seven of the code be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"It shall be the duty of the county attorney:

1. To diligently enforce, or cause to be enforced in his county, all of the laws of the state, actions for a violation of which may be commenced or prosecuted in the name of the state of Iowa, or by him as county attorney, except such laws, the enforcement of which is exclusively enjoined upon others by statute.

2. To appear for the state and county in all cases and proceedings in the courts of his county, to which the state or county is a party, and in the supreme court in all cases in which the county is a party.

3. To appear and prosecute all preliminary hearings before justices of the peace upon charges triable upon indictment.

4. To appear and prosecute misdemeanors before justices of the peace whenever he is not otherwise engaged in the performance of official duties.

5. To enforce all forfeited bonds and recognizances, and to prosecute all proceedings necessary for the recovery of debts, revenues, moneys, fines, penalties and forfeitures accruing to the state or his county, or to any school district or road district in his county; also to prosecute all suits in his county against public service corporations which are brought in the name of the state of Iowa.

6. To commence and prosecute all actions and proceedings brought by any county officer in his official capacity.

7. To give advice or his opinion in writing, without compensation, to the board of supervisors and other county officers when requested so to do by such board or officer, upon all matters in which the state or county is interested, or relating to the duty of the board or officer in which the state or county may have an interest; but he shall not appear before the board of supervisors upon any hearing in which the state or county is not interested, or in applications to establish, vacate or alter highways.

8. To attend the grand jury whenever necessary for the purpose of examining witnesses before it, or of giving it legal advice, or to procure subpœnas or other process for witnesses, to prepare all bills of indictment; but he must not be present when an indictment is considered or found.

9. To give a receipt to all persons from whom he shall receive money in his official capacity, and file a duplicate thereof with the county auditor.

10. To promptly notify the attorney-general of every criminal case appealed from his county to the supreme court, and when the appeal is taken by the state, at least forty days prior to the term at which the cause is to be heard, prepare and deliver to the attorney-general a typewritten manuscript of the abstract of the case; and when the appeal is taken by the defendant, he shall prepare and deliver to the attorney-general when necessary a typewritten manuscript of the amended abstract of the case in ample time to have the same printed and filed within the time prescribed by the rules of the supreme court; said manuscript of the abstract or amended abstract shall be in the form and manner prescribed by law, and the rules of the supreme court.

11. To make reports relating to the duties and the administration of his office to the governor or the attorney-general whenever called upon by the governor or the attorney-general so to do.

12. To perform such other and further duties as are now or may hereafter be enjoined upon him by law." [33 G. A., ch. 17, §§ 1, 2.] [21 G. A., ch. 73, §§ 2, 3, 7, 8.]

The county attorney cannot be called upon to perform any duty save such as may be enjoined upon him by law. He is not required to follow a case into another county on change of venue. Bevington v. Woodbury County, 107–424, 78 N. W. 222.

Therefore a contract for extra compensation for services to be rendered in a case in another county is valid. Ibid.

It is within the duties of the county attorney to take an appeal and give notice thereof in a criminal case. State v. Grimmell, 116–596, 88 N. W. 342.

A proceeding to punish for violation of a liquor injunction is not a criminal prosecution in which the county attorney is required to appear. Such a prosecution may be carried on by a citizen through an attorney employed by him. Brennan v. Roberts, 125–615, 101 N. W. 460.

In a proceeding under 33 G. A. ch. 78 to remove a county attorney from office, held that the showing as to failure of the county attorney to prosecute criminal charges was not of such character as to require such removal. State v. Hospers, 147–712, 126 N. W. 818.

Communications made to a county attorney, with a view to his taking steps for the prosecution of a crime, are privileged. Gabriel v. McMullin, 127–426, 103 N. W. 355.

And see notes to § 4608 in this supplement.

The county attorney is required to prosecute all proceedings necessary for the recovery of fines. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

The county attorney has no authority to appear for the county in proceedings to levy a special assessment for the construction of a ditch. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130–412, 106 N. W. 950.

The board cannot contract to pay compensation to the county attorney for the performance of services which are beyond the scope of his authority and which it is a part of the duty of the board to perform; nor can it authorize payment to him of compensation in addition to his salary for services which he is required to perform as a part of his duty as county attorney, although he might have had a deputy who would have been entitled to such compensation. Dubuque County v. Fitzpatrick, 144–86, 121 N. W. 15.

SEC. 303. Deputies—assistance—compensation—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 18, § 1.]

The provision of code § 5372, that the opening and closing arguments are to be made by the county attorney, does not prevent such arguments being made by an attorney hired by private prosecutors to assist the county attorney. State v. Novak, 109–717, 79 N. W. 465.

The assistant county attorney appointed with the approval of the court may represent the state in the investigation of the charge by the grand jury. State v. Tyler, 122–125, 97 N. W. 983.

The validity of the indictment is not affected by the fact that it is signed by the deputy county attorney. State v. Mathews, 133–398, 109 N. W. 616.

SEC. 303-a. Assistants—compensation. That section three hundred and three-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The county attorney may in writing, with the consent of the board of supervisors, appoint one or more practicing attorneys, who are residents of his county, as his assistants. The compensation of such assistants shall be fixed by the board of supervisors, and be paid out of the county treasury, and shall not exceed the following amounts: In counties having a population of thirty-six thousand and less than sixty thousand, one thousand dollars per annum; in counties having a population of sixty thousand and less than ninety-five thousand, fifteen hundred dollars per annum; in counties having a population of ninety-five thousand and over, two thousand dollars per annum. In counties of less that thirty-six thousand, he may appoint assistants who shall act without any compensation from the county, to assist him in the discharge of his duties. In any county, with the approval of the judge of the district court, he may procure such assistants in the trial of a person charged with felony as he shall deem necessary and such assistants upon presenting to the board of supervisors a certificate of the district judge before whom said cause was tried, certifying to the services rendered, shall be allowed a reasonable compensation therefor, to be fixed by the board of supervisors, but nothing in this act shall prevent the board of supervisors from employing an attorney to assist the county attorney in any cause or proceeding in which the state or county is interested." [34 G. A., ch. 16, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 18, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 73, § 4.]

A county attorney is now authorized, subject to the approval of the court, to procure assistance in the trial of a person charged with a felony, and it is not necessary that such assistant be employed before the beginning of the trial. State v. Cobley, 128–114, 103 N. W. 99.

SEC. 304. Substitute in case of disability—compensation.

The authority of a substitute appointed by the court to act for the county attorney will be presumed until his want of authority is shown in an issue properly made. Lake City Electric Light Co. v. McCrary, 132–624, 110 N. W. 19.

The county attorney is entitled to be heard when the question arises as to whether he is under disability in a particular case and a substitute should be appointed whose compensation is to be taken from his salary. State v. Miller, 132–587, 109 N. W. 1087.

Where the county attorney, prior to his election to the office, had been consulted by a client with reference to his criminal liability in a transaction, held that on subsequently becoming the county attorney he was disqualified from conducting the prosecution against such client for the crime involved, and should have asked for the appointment of a substitute. State v. Rocker, 130–239, 106 N. W. 645.

SEC. 305. Prohibitions.

Where objection is not made during the trial to the appearance for the state of an attorney interested in a civil suit involving the same matter, such objection cannot be made for the first time in a motion for a new trial. By failing to object to the appearance of such attorney within a reasonable time after defendant is informed of his relations in the civil suit he waives all right of objection. State v. Smith, 108–440, 79 N. W. 115.

A county attorney in whose term a person is indicted for illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, is not prohibited from being an attorney for the wife in her action against such person for sales of liquor to her husband, such sales not being connected with the sales for which the indictment was procured. Bellison v. Apland, 115–599, 89 N. W. 22.

When the county attorney is disqualified from acting in the prosecution of a crime, he should not appear before the grand jury with reference thereto, and if he does so the indictment should be set aside on motion. State v. Rocker, 130–239, 106 N. W. 645.

SEC. 308. Compensation. County attorneys shall be allowed an annual salary, in counties having a population less than fifteen thousand, nine hundred dollars; in counties of fifteen thousand and under twenty-five thousand, ten hundred dollars; in counties of twenty-five thousand and under thirty-five thousand, twelve hundred fifty dollars; in counties of thirty-five thousand and under forty-five thousand, fifteen hundred dollars; in counties of forty-five thousand and under fifty-five thousand, seventeen hundred fifty dollars; in counties of fifty-five thousand and under sixty-five thousand, two thousand dollars; and in all counties of sixty-five thousand and over, twenty-five hundred dollars; provided that in counties having a population exceeding thirty thousand and under thirty-five thousand the board of supervisors may pay not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars annually, and in counties having a population exceeding forty thousand and under forty-five thousand the board of supervisors may pay not to exceed seventeen hundred fifty dollars annually. Said salary shall be paid quarterly out of the general fund of the county, and shall be due at the end of each quarter, namely: March thirty-first, June thirtieth, September thirtieth and December thirty-first. In addition to the salary above provided, he shall receive the fees as now allowed to attorneys for suits upon written instruments where judgment is obtained, for all fines collected where he appears for the state, but not otherwise, and school fund mortgages foreclosed, and his necessary and actual expenses incurred in attending upon his official duties at a place other than his residence and the county seat, which shall be audited and allowed by the board of supervisors of the county. In counties where the district court is held at two places in the county, the board of supervisors may allow to the county attorney, in addition to the salary above provided, a sum not to exceed two hundred fifty dollars. [33 G. A., ch. 18, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 10, § 1; 31 G. A., ch. 11; 29 G. A., ch. 18, § 2; 21 G. A., ch. 73, § 11.]

The board of supervisors may contract to pay extra compensation for following a case into another county on change of venue. Bevington v. Woodbury County, 107–424, 78 N. W. 222.

In addition to his regular salary, the county attorney is to receive fees for collection of fines only where he appears for the state. These fees, however, are not to be deducted from the fines and there is no provision authorizing any officer or board to deduct or allow a deduction from such fines for services in collecting them. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

SEC. 308-a. In effect. The provisions of this act shall become operative and be in force and effect on and after the fourth day of July, nineteen hundred and seven. [32 G. A., ch. 10, § 2.]

SEC. 308-b. Qualifications of county attorney. County attorneys shall be qualified electors of their respective counties, duly admitted to practice as attorneys and counselors in the courts of this state as provided in chapter ten, title three of the code and amendments thereto; provided, however, that no person shall be qualified for such office whose license to practice has been revoked or suspended, while the same remains revoked or suspended. [35 G. A., ch. 36, § 1.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS.

SECTION 310. Qualifications. Every applicant for such admission must be at least twenty-one years of age, of good moral character, and an inhabitant of this state, and must have actually and in good faith pursued a regular course of study of the law for at least three full years, either in the office of a member of the bar in regular practice of this state or other state, or of a judge of a court of record thereof, or in some reputable law school in the United States, or partly in such office and partly in such law school; but, in reckoning such period of study, the school year of any such law school, consisting of not less than thirty-six weeks exclusive of vacations, shall be considered equivalent to a full year. Every such applicant for admission must also have actually and in good faith acquired a general education substantially equivalent to that involved in the completion of a high-school course of study of at least four years in extent. [32 G. A., ch. 11, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 11, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 168, § 2.]

[The amendment by the 32 G. A. changed the word "three" in the last line of the section to "four," the change to become effective after July 1, 1909. See § 310-a.]

The possession of a good general moral character is a requisite for admission to the bar. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W 105.

SEC. 310-a. In effect. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after July first, nineteen hundred and nine. [32 G. A., ch. 11, § 2.]

SEC. 311. Examinations. Every such applicant shall also be examined by the court, or by a commission of not less than five members constituted as hereinafter provided, as to his learning and skill in the law; and the court must be satisfied, before admitting to practice, that the applicant has actually and in good faith devoted the time hereinbefore required to the study of law, and possesses the requisite learning and skill therein, and has also the general education required by this act. The sufficiency of the general education of the applicant may be determined by examination before the commission, or in such other manner as the supreme court may by rule prescribe. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 168, § 3.]

SEC. 311-a. Commission—how constituted—term—oath—compensation—temporary examiners. The attorney-general shall, by virtue of his office, be a member of, and the chairman of, the commission provided for by the chapter of the code above referred to as amended by this act, and the court shall appoint from the members of the bar of this state at least four other persons who, with the attorney-general, shall constitute said commission, which shall be known as the board of law examiners. Of the persons first appointed as commissioners two shall be designated by the court to serve for one year; the remaining members shall serve for two years; and thereafter each person appointed shall serve for two years, except that in case of a vacancy during the term of office of any commissioner his successor shall be appointed only for the remainder of such term. The members thus appointed shall take and subscribe an oath to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme court to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of the office, and shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by the supreme court out of the fund arising from the examination fees hereinafter provided for. The supreme court may also appoint from time to time, when necessary, temporary examiners to assist the commission, who shall serve for one examination only, and shall receive such compensation as the court may allow, to be paid from the fund aforesaid. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 5.]

SEC. 311-b. Fees—how used. Each applicant for admission shall pay to the clerk of the supreme court an examination fee of five dollars, payable before the examination is commenced. The fees thus paid to said clerk shall be retained by him as a special fund to be appropriated as provided for in the preceding section, and for other expenses incident to the examinations provided for in this chapter; and any amount thereof remaining in his hands unappropriated on the thirtieth day of June shall be turned over to the state treasury. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 6.]

SEC. 311-c. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 8.]

SEC. 312. Of students in law department of university. Students in the law department of the state university, who are recommended by the faculty of said department as candidates for graduation and as persons of good moral character, who have actually and in good faith studied law for the time and in the manner required by statute, at least one year of such study having been as a student in said department, may be examined at the university by not less than three members of said commission with the addition of such temporary members as may be appointed by the court in accordance with the provisions of this act, and upon the certificate of such examiners, that such candidates possess the learning and skill requisite for the practice of law, they shall be admitted without further examination. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 168, § 4.]

[Acts in conflict with § 3, ch. 11, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 311-c. EDITOR.]

SEC. 313. Practitioners from other states. That the law as it appears in section three hundred thirteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any person a resident of this state having been admitted to the bar of any other of the United States may, in the discretion of the court, be admitted to practice in this state without examination or proof of period of study, as hereinbefore provided, on proof of the other qualifications[1] required by this chapter, and on satisfactory proof that he has practiced law regularly for not less than one year in the state where admitted to practice, after having been admitted to the bar according to the laws of such state." [35 G. A., ch. 37, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 168, § 5.]

[1"qualification" in the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 315. Mode of examination. The supreme court may by general rules prescribe the mode in which examinations under this chapter shall be conducted, and in which the qualifications required as to age, residence, character, general education and term of study shall be proved, and may make any other and further rules, not inconsistent with this chapter, for the purpose of carrying out its object and intent. [28 G. A., ch. 11, § 4; 20 G. A., ch. 168, § 7.]

[Acts in conflict with § 4, ch. 11, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 311-c. EDITOR.]

SEC. 316. Attorneys resident in other states—must appoint local attorney. Any member of the bar of another state, actually engaged in any cause or matter pending in any court of this state, may be permitted by such court to appear in and conduct such cause or matter while retaining his residence in another state, without being subject to the foregoing provisions of this chapter. Provided that at the time he enters his appearance he files with the clerk of such court the written appointment of some attorney resident in the county where such suit is pending, upon whom service may be had in all matters connected with said action, with the same effect as if personally made on such foreign attorney within such county. In case of failure to make such appointment, such attorney shall not be permitted to practice as aforesaid, and all papers filed by him shall be stricken from the files. [28 G. A., ch. 12, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 168, § 8.]

SEC. 317. Duties of attorneys and counselors.

Duties and liabilities: Under code § 3851 an attorney is not competent as a surety on a bond for appeal from a justice of the peace. Hudson v. Smith, 111–411, 82 N. W. 943.

The relations between attorney and client require the utmost fairness and good faith on the part of the attorney, and the burden of proving the entire fairness of the transactions between them rests upon the attorney. A contract between attorney and client with reference to the property of the client is presumed to be fraudulent. Shropshire v. Ryan, 111–677, 82 N. W. 1035.

It is not negligence on the part of an attorney to decline to proceed further in a case, and such refusal will not render him liable in damages for a subsequent adverse result therein. Cullison v. Lindsay, 108–124, 78 N. W. 847.

In an action to recover on account of the negligence of an attorney in defending an action it is not sufficient to show the negligence of the attorney and the fact that judgment was recovered in the action. The plaintiff must go further in establishing that he has suffered damage by reason of such negligence. Getchell & Martin Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Employers' Liability Assur. Cor., 117–180, 90 N. W. 616.

Where an attorney received money from his client to be applied to a specific purpose, held that he could not lawfully enter into an agreement for the appropriation of the money when received for the benefit of another to whom he owed no duty. Farrar v. Farrar, 104–621, 74 N. W. 5.

An attorney who has been employed by and received the confidence of his client is incompetent to accept a retainer from the other party in the same matter, even though he may have been discharged from the first employment and does not violate any confidence thus obtained. Whitcomb v. Collier, 133–303, 110 N. W. 836.

An attorney who has once been made the recipient of the confidence of a client concerning a certain subject matter is thereafter disqualified from acting for any other party adversely interested in such subject matter. Therefore, held that an attorney who had been consulted by a client with reference to a matter involving the criminal liability of the latter was disqualified on becoming county attorney from prosecuting the client for the crime involved. State v. Rocker, 130–239, 106 N. W. 645.

Compensation: The importance of the litigation, the success attained, and the benefit which it had secured may be considered in estimating the compensation to which the attorney who conducted it is entitled for the services he rendered. Clark v. Ellsworth, 104–442, 73 N. W. 1023.

Where the subject matter of the litigation is of great importance to the litigants, and of a character to lead them to use every legitimate effort to succeed, the wealth of the party and his consequent ability to make a severe contest may be considered in connection with his disposition to do so as tending to show the importance and value of services which the attorney for whose compensation he was responsible was required to render. Ibid.

Not only the amount and character of the services and the results attained, but also the professional ability and standing of the attorney, his learning, skill and proficiency in his profession and his experience may be considered in estimating the reasonable value of his services. Ibid.

In an action to recover compensation for services wherein the attorney had testified to the amount of time spent out of court in preparing for trial of the case, held that evidence that the time thus testified to as having been spent was an unreasonable time for the preparation of the trial of the case was admissible. Ibid.

The attorney is entitled to recover from the person who is liable for the services rendered by him any advances which he has made which were reasonably necessary in procuring information upon which to act. Whether, if a nonresident of the county in which the case is tried, he is entitled to recover for hotel bills and other expenses depends upon the usage in the locality, but he is not entitled to expenses of traveling outside the county where it does not appear that the services of competent attorneys in the county could not have been procured. Ibid.

The wealth of the client cannot be taken into consideration in fixing the value of legal services. Ibid.

In estimating the value of an attorney's services it is proper to take into account the time necessarily employed and the success of the litigation; also the amount or value involved and recovered, the ability, learning and experience of the attorney and his standing in the profession and if the action involved breach of trust on the part of the defendant and conduct inconsistent with business integrity, the standing of the defendant in the community may also be considered. Graham v. Dubuque Specialty Mach. Works, 138–456, 114 N. W. 619.

Where services have been rendered in pursuance of a written contract, no implied agreement for quantum meruit can arise. Payne v. Davis County, 150–597, 129 N. W. 823.

A contract by an attorney for contingent fee consisting of a certain proportion of the amount of recovery in the case, but not requiring of him the payment of any portion of the costs, is not unlawful. Dunham v. Bentley, 103–136, 72 N. W. 437.

A contract for a contingent fee, consisting of a specific share of the recovery, is not void as champertous. Rickel v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 112–148, 83 N. W. 957.

The fact that an attorney makes advancements in the way of paying the filing fee and for the attendance of witnesses and for other necessary expenses incident to the preparation and trial of the case, does not make the contract between the attorney and client as to fees illegal and immoral. Wallace v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 112–565, 84 N. W. 662.

An attorney who is required by the court to perform services for the public in a disbarment proceeding is entitled to reasonable compensation therefor from the county. Hyatt v. Hamilton County, 121–292, 96 N. W. 855.

An attorney who has faithfully discharged his duties under a contract for conducting a case to its conclusion until discharge, without ground by the client, may recover the entire compensation agreed upon. Spurrier v. Bullard, 131–123, 107 N. W. 1036.

A contract between client and attorney will be disregarded by the courts if made without a fair and full disclosure of the facts upon which it is predicated, and voluntary payment made by the client to the attorney while the relation still exists will not defeat the right of the client to have refunded to him the excess of the amount paid beyond a reasonable compensation where the settlement was procured by fraud or concealment. Donaldson v. Eaton, 136–650, 114 N. W. 19.

Contingent fee: A power of attorney by which the attorney for a consideration paid or promised obtains an interest in the subject matter, with an agreement to indemnify his principal against liability for costs and expenses in connection therewith, is irrevocable and operates as an assignment by the principal to the attorney. Blondel v. Ohlman, 132–257, 109 N. W. 806.

A contract between an attorney and his client that the attorney shall receive by way of compensation the balance of a lump sum agreed upon which shall remain after the attorney has satisfied a claim against his client is champertous and the voluntary payment by the client to the attorney of the sum thus agreed upon while the relation of attorney and client exists will not defeat the right of the client to have the balance returned to him, at least so far as it exceeds a reasonable compensation. Donaldson v. Eaton, 136-650, 114 N. W. 19.

A contract of employment of an attorney on a contingent fee is valid. Graham v. Dubuque Specialty Mach. Works, 138-456, 114 N. W. 619.

Where an attorney under contract for a contingent fee associates other attorneys with him and judgment is recovered for the client, the fact that one of such attorneys dies pending the appeal and that the appeal is defended by the others does not render improper the division of the contingent fee in accordance with the original agreement. Senneff v. Healy, 155-82, 135 N. W. 27.

Attorney—employment: An attorney who is employed by another attorney in the case as associate counsel and whose services are accepted by the client may recover from the client the value of his services. Dorr v. Dudley, 135-20, 112 N. W. 203.

As witness: While it is contrary to professional ethics for an attorney to become a witness without first entirely withdrawing from any further connection with the case, if he can safely do so without disregarding the interests of his client, nevertheless an attorney is a competent witness and it is error to throw discredit on the testimony of such witness further than to say that his interest as an attorney may be taken into account in determining the weight and credibility of his testimony. Fletcher v. Ketcham, 141 N. W. 916.

While the rules of professional ethics are for the guidance of attorneys in the practice of their profession and should, of course, as a rule, be scrupulously obeyed, it is not for the court to enforce them to the prejudice of the client or to state them to the jury in such a way that the client may suffer on account of the ethical impropriety of the attorney's conduct. Ibid.

SEC. 318. Deceit or collusion—punishment.

The facts in a particular case held sufficient to justify disbarment of an attorney for making a false affidavit, although under an agreement with the party to whom the affidavit was given that it should not be used in the state. It is not necessary under this section that a crime be committed. State v. Howard, 112-256, 83 N. W. 975.

SEC. 319. Authorities of attorneys and counselors.

An attorney does not have implied authority to confess or consent to judgment against his client. First Nat. Bank v. Bourdelais, 109-497, 80 N. W. 553.

An attorney under general employment has no authority to consent to judgment against his client or waive any cause of action or defense in his case. Kilmer v. Gallaher, 112-583, 84 N. W. 697.

An attorney recovering judgment for his client, which has proceeded to execution sale of the debtor's property, has no authority to assign or accept payment for the certificate of sale held by his client. Howard v. Kelly, 137-76, 114 N. W. 544.

An attorney for a party obtaining a judgment has no implied authority to make an assignment of such judgment for his client. Ritz v. Rea, 155-181, 135 N. W. 645.

An attorney has authority to sign a notice of appeal for his client. In re Oldfield's Estate, 157— ——, 138 N. W. 846.

Par. 2: An attorney has no power under his authority to bring and prosecute a suit to enter into a stipulation with reference to the liability of his client's homestead. Lingenfelter v. Bowman, 156-649, 137 N. W. 946.

Such stipulation made without special authority held not binding by ratification of the client, it appearing that the client had no knowledge of the terms and effect of the language used in the stipulation. Ibid.

Attorneys cannot by agreement not reduced to writing nor entered on the records of the court agree to the submission of a case for a decree to be entered in vacation. Whitlock v. Wade, 117-153, 90 N. W. 587.

It is within the scope of authority of an attorney to make an agreement as to the record in the case. American Emigrant Co. v. Long, 105-194, 74 N. W. 940.

An agreement between counsel not reduced to writing or made a matter of record cannot be enforced. Baily v. Birkhofer, 123-59, 98 N. W. 594.

An agreement between attorneys not in writing may be shown by the admissions of one of them as against his client. Johnson v. Nash-Wright Co., 121-173, 96 N. W. 760.

A party who has been represented by an unauthorized attorney should disavow and disaffirm his action promptly upon receiving knowledge thereof, and if he is made a party plaintiff with knowledge of the fact, he will be bound by the judgment if he does not disavow or disaffirm the action. Oxtoby v. Henley, 112–697, 84 N. W. 942.

Where an attorney has appeared in an action for defendant, authority for doing so will be presumed, and the burden is upon the defendant to show that no such authority in fact existed. Uehlein v. Burk, 119–742, 94 N. W. 243.

In the absence of bad faith on the part of the attorney, the presumption that he is authorized to appear for the client whom he represents is strong and can only be overcome by clear and satisfactory evidence. Walsh v. Doran, 145–110, 123 N. W. 999.

Clients cannot in reason expect that every act in connection with the business affairs entrusted by them to an attorney will be done by him personally. Therefore held that an attaching creditor, found to have unlawfully sued out an attachment, was liable for the negligent or wrongful acts of an assistant of the attorney employed by him, although such assistant was not a licensed attorney. Lord, Owen & Co. v. Wood, 120–303, 94 N. W. 842.

The attorney has no authority to employ an assistant at the claimant's expense without the client's consent and the mere fact that the client has knowledge of services being rendered in the prosecution of the case by such assistant will not bind him to make compensation, the presumption being that he was to be paid by the attorney regularly employed. Gillilland v. Brantner, 145–275, 121 N. W. 1047.

Under a contract for contingent fees in which it was provided that the attorneys should not in any event be chargeable for any part of the costs connected with the case, held that nevertheless they had implied authority to incur reasonable expense chargeable to the client in employing assistance to look up testimony. Forbes v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 150–177, 129 N. W. 810.

SEC. 320. Proof of authority may be required.

This section points out the exclusive method of testing the authority of the attorney to appear in behalf of the client, and the want of authority of the attorney cannot be raised by plea in abatement. State v. Beardsley, 108–396, 79 N. W. 138.

The authority of an attorney to prosecute an appeal to the supreme court may be called in question in a motion to dismiss the appeal, and if it affirmatively appears that such appeal was taken without authority, it will be dismissed. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130–412, 106 N. W. 950.

SEC. 321. Attorney's lien—notice.

The statute as to the lien of an attorney is a substantial enactment of the common law with the requirement concerning notice added. Foss v. Cobler. 105-728, 75 N. W. 516.

An attorney has no common law lien on money due his client, and can only enforce a claim against such a fund under the statutory provisions. Kerr v. Kennedy, 119–239, 93 N. W. 353.

A new contract as to fees, made after the filing of an attorney's lien, does not defeat the lien. Wallace v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 112–565, 84 N. W. 662.

Where an attorney's lien has been filed, it makes no difference whether the money paid in settlement of the action is in fact paid before or after the dismissal of the action, if it appears that the payment was made in settlement of the claim and to prevent further litigation. Ibid.

At common law, the attorney had no lien upon money due his client in the hands of the adverse party, and to establish such lien, the facts must be such as to bring the case within the statutory provision. Kauffman v. Phillips, 154–542, 134 N. W. 575.

An attorney has a lien for services rendered and not for a share of his client's recovery stipulated for by contract. Ibid.

This section makes no provision for a lien on real estate, and the attorney for a wife who sues for divorce and alimony, and asks to have set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of land by her husband, cannot on the dismissal of the action by the wife intervene for the purpose of having a lien in his favor enforced on such land. Keehn v. Keehn, 115–467, 88 N. W. 957.

The statute gives a lien on money due and not on real estate although real estate may be the subject of the litigation. McCormick v. Dumbarton Realty Co., 156–692, 137 N. W. 943.

Therefore held that in a proceeding by an occupying claimant to have determined his interest in the property, a finding of the amount of such interest did not entitle the attorney to a lien thereon. Ibid.

An attorney's lien is simply the right to hold or retain in the attorney's possession the money or property of client until his proper charges have been adjusted and paid. The lien may be enforced as a judgment, or by summary proceedings against a sheriff who has collected the money on execution, or in an action against the client or the adverse party, or, if it is a specific fund, by motion and order to get the necessary amount set aside for payment of the claim. The attorney's claim for services is properly triable by a jury. Sweeley v. Sieman, 123–183, 98 N. W. 571.

The lien is on the money due to the client, and not on the judgment or amount recovered in the action in which the attorney is employed. The client cannot by dismissing the action and employing another attorney defeat the lien for actual services rendered while the employment of the attorney giving the notice continues. But notice given by one attorney does not give rise to a lien for services rendered by him and another attorney jointly. Gibson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122–565, 98 N. W. 474.

The lien of an attorney attaches only to money or property coming into the possession of the attorney claiming such lien. Atlee v. Bullard, 123–274, 98 N. W. 889.

A notice of an attorney's lien signed by the attorney as attorney for the party and not for himself will nevertheless be sufficient. Gibson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122–565, 98 N. W. 474.

The lien of the attorney attaches to the money paid by the judgment debtor to the clerk in satisfaction of the judgment. The creditor cannot complain of such payment. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 135–259, 112 N. W. 796.

Such lien attaches to the alimony awarded in a final decree of divorce. Ibid.

The right of an attorney under his lien is subject to any set-off which the debtor has against his client. The attorney as assignee of the judgment in favor of his client is in no better situation than the client as against an equitable right of set-off existing against the judgment debtor at the time of the assignment. De Laval Separator Co. v. Sharpless, 134–28, 111 N. W. 438.

In an action lawfully prosecuted by one person for the benefit of another, the former may for that purpose employ counsel whose reasonable compensation is a charge upon the proceeds of a recovery so obtained. Lomack Home v. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Ass'n, 155–728, 133 N. W. 725.

A notice embodied in the original notice advising defendant of a lien "for legal services rendered and to be rendered" sufficiently indicates that it has reference to such services in the particular case. Barthell v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 138–688, 116 N. W. 813.

The purpose of the statute is to protect attorneys in the matter of compensation where, for some reason thought sufficient, their client settles with the opposite party unbeknown to them and such party must take the risk as to the attorney's claim and may not assume that no more has been promised than what subsequently shall be adjudged reasonable. Cheshire v. Des Moines City R. Co., 153–88, 133 N. W. 324.

The notice of the claim for a lien need not state the details of the attorney's contract of employment. The lien is for the balance of compensation, whether owing by virtue of a written or oral agreement, or to be measured contingently, or on quantum meruit, or for a fixed amount. Ibid.

A notice of a lien is sufficient to protect the attorney as to any amount due from his client under a contract to pay him a share of the recovery as contingent fee whether such recovery is by settlement or otherwise, and the adverse party settling with the client without consent of the attorney does so at his peril. Crosby v. Hatch, 155–312, 135 N. W. 1079.

The provision as to an attorney's lien is a declaration of the common law with the addition of a method for giving notice of the lien. Brown v. Morgan, (C. C.) 163 Fed. 395.

An attorney who has recovered a judgment in favor of his client in a federal court in Iowa, and entered notice of a lien on such judgment in conformity to the state statute, may maintain a suit in equity in such court against the parties to the judgment to enforce his lien, such suit being ancillary to the original suit and within the jurisdiction of the court, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties. Ibid.

SEC. 322. How lien released.

Where a suit is brought in equity to enforce an attorney's lien the client is not entitled to have the action transferred to the law docket on filing a bond, as authorized by this section. Crissman v. McDuff, 114–83, 86 N. W. 50.

After the release of the lien by filing a bond the client has full control of the judgment and of the funds in the hands of the clerk applicable to its satisfaction and the attorney's claim for services becomes an ordinary demand at law. Jamison v. Ranck, 140–635, 119 N. W. 76.

SEC. 323. License to practice may be revoked.

In a proceeding under this section, where the court fails to find the defendant guilty, it has no power, on dismissing the charges, to render judgment that the defendant be reprimanded and tax costs to the defendant. State v. Tracy, 115–71, 87 N. W. 727.

Notwithstanding the provision of code § 309, giving to the supreme court exclusive authority to license persons to practice law, any court of record has authority to revoke or suspend such license, and the district court therefore has jurisdiction to try and determine disbarment proceedings. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

SEC. 324. Grounds for revocation.

Judgment of disbarment should only be pronounced upon clear and convincing proof. State v. Howard, 112–256, 83 N. W. 975.

The evidence in a particular case considered and held sufficient to sustain a judgment of disbarment. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

The statute does not purport to include all the grounds for the revocation of licenses to practice as an attorney, and although ceasing to be of good moral character is not within the causes stated, a court has jurisdiction to disbar an attorney on that ground. The moral delinquencies must be such, however, as shall unfit the person accused for the proper discharge of the trust imposed in him. Among these are the absence of common honesty and veracity, especially in professional intercourse. Ibid.

Any unfaithful or fraudulent conduct toward the client, showing unfitness of the attorney to handle the affairs of others, is good ground for disbarment. State v. Rohrig, 139 N. W. 908.

Moral character is an essential qualification for the admission of an attorney to practice and he may be removed whenever he ceases to possess such character. Ibid.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that an attorney was properly disbarred for extortion, compounding a felony and other improper conduct. State v. Johnson, 149–462, 128 N. W. 837.

SEC. 325. Proceedings—how begun—costs—how paid. The proceedings to remove or suspend an attorney may be commenced by the direction of the court or on motion of any individual. In the former case, the court must direct some attorney to draw up the accusation; in the latter, the accusation must be drawn up and sworn to by the person making it. If an action is commenced by direction of the court, the costs shall be taxed and disposed of as in criminal cases; provided, however, that no allowance shall be made in such case for the payment of attorney fees. [29 G. A., ch. 19, § 1; C. '73, § 219; R. § 2712; C. '51, § 1622.]

The court may properly appoint more than one attorney to take charge of the proceedings and draw up the proper accusation. State v. Howard, 112–256, 83 N. W. 975.

The judge sitting as a court may direct disbarment proceedings to be begun in the name of the state and appoint attorneys to prosecute the case, although his attention to the misconduct of the attorney has been called by an affidavit presented to him in vacation. State v. Tracy, 115–71, 87 N. W. 727.

The order appointing attorneys to draw an accusation in a disbarment proceeding need not contain a recital of facts upon which the prosecution is to be based, but the attorneys appointed may include therein such matters as they deem proper. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

An attorney appointed by the court to act for the public in the prosecution of a disbarment proceeding is entitled to reasonable compensation to be paid by the county. Hyatt v. Hamilton County, 121–292, 96 N. W. 855.

The provision that the attorneys appointed by the court in a disbarment proceeding shall serve without compensation is not unconstitutional. Brown v. Warren County, 156–20, 135 N. W. 4, 137 N. W. 474.

SEC. 326. Notice.

The statute contemplates an examination of the accusation by the court and a finding as to its sufficiency before the accused is ordered to answer; but where the order to answer is previously made and defendant tests the sufficiency of the accusation by motion or otherwise, the irregularity is waived. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

SEC. 327. Pleading—trial—evidence preserved.

The defendant in a disbarment proceeding who has been acquitted is not entitled to have the evidence taken on a hearing extended into longhand at the expense of the county, and preserved in that form for future reference. The provision as to the preservation of the evidence is for the purpose of appeal only. State v. Tomlinson, 131–617, 109 N. W. 120.

A disbarment proceeding is not criminal in its nature, but a special civil proceeding, and defendant is not necessarily entitled to be confronted in court by the witnesses against him. The evidence of such witnesses may be offered in the form of depositions. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

Where the evidence is taken in shorthand, duly certified, and the transcript thereof filed with the clerk within a reasonable time, there is compliance with the statutory requirement that all evidence be reduced to writing, filed and preserved. Ibid.

A sworn denial by the accused of the accusations does not prevent an investigation thereof on the issue raised by such denial. Ibid.

The provision for appeal contemplates a hearing in the supreme court de novo. State v. Mosher, 128–82, 103 N. W. 105.

SEC. 329-a. Clerk to certify order or judgment. When a judgment has been entered in any court of record in the state of Iowa revoking or suspending the license of any attorney at law to practice in the said court, the clerk of the court in which the judgment is rendered shall immediately certify to the clerk of the supreme court the order or judgment of the court in said cause. [30 G. A., ch. 13.]

SEC. 330. Retention of money—misdemeanor.

This section has no application to a case where an attorney has extorted money from his client. State v. Johnson, 149–462, 128 N. W. 837.

SEC. 331. When not guilty.

The client is not required to give bond for the discharge of the attorney's lien before proceeding by motion to compel the attorney to pay over the money. Union Bldg. & Sav. Assn. v. Soderquist, 115–695, 87 N. W. 433.

Although an attorney gives bond for the return of money claimed in a summary proceeding, the payment of the money may be enforced in such proceeding, the attorney being protected by the bond given by plaintiff to release the attorney's lien. Emanuel v. Cooper, 153–572, 133 N. W. 1064.

Further as to compelling attorneys on motion to pay over money of the client, see notes to § 3826.

CHAPTER 11.

OF JURORS.

SECTION 332. Competency to act.

Inability to read and write the English language is a ground of challenge, but the mere fact that the juror is shown to have signed his name by a mark on several occasions, does not prove his inability to write. State v. Greenland, 125–141, 100 N. W. 341.

The fact that a juror has a slight defect in one eye which does not deprive him in any degree of his sight does not render him incompetent. State v. Norman, 135–483, 113 N. W. 340.

The discretion of the trial court in passing upon the competency of a person to act as a juror on challenge will not generally be interfered with on appeal. Harris v. Moore, 134–704, 112 N. W. 163.

And see notes to code § 3688 of this supplement.

SEC. 333. Who exempt. The following persons are exempt from liability to act as jurors: All persons holding office under the laws of the United States or this state; all practicing attorneys, physicians, registered pharmacists, dentists, and clergymen; all acting professors or teachers of any college, school or other institution of learning; and all persons disabled by bodily infirmity, or over sixty-five years of age; active members of any fire company; and any person who is conscientiously opposed to acting as a juror because of his religious faith. [33 G. A., ch. 19, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 61, § 2; C. '73, § 228; R. § 2721; C. '51, § 1631.]

If the jury list is made up from persons competent to serve as grand jurors and there is no showing of prejudice to defendant in the exclusion of any particular class of persons, the failure to consider persons as competent who might have been selected will not be a ground of challenge to the grand jury. State v. Pell, 140-655, 119 N. W. 154.

SEC. 335. Lists to be made biennially. That section three hundred thirty-five of the code, as amended by chapter twenty of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"At the time of holding the general election in A. D. nineteen hundred twelve, and biennially thereafter, lists shall be made from which to select persons to serve as grand and petit jurors and talesmen for the biennial period commencing with the first day of January next thereafter, as follows: One hundred fifty persons in each county from which to select grand jurors; the number equal to one fourth of the whole number of qualified electors in said county, who voted in the last preceding general election as shown by the poll books of said election, from which to select petit jurors; and the number equal to thirty per cent. of the whole number of qualified electors, who voted at the last preceding general election, as shown by the poll books of said election, in the city or town in which the district court is held and the township or townships in which said city or town is located, from which to select talesmen; provided, however, that in no case shall such list for talesmen contain more than six hundred names. [34 G. A., ch. 17, §§ 1, 2; 33 G. A., ch. 20, § 1.] [26 G. A., ch. 61, § 4; C. '73, §§ 234, 244; R. § 2723.]

SEC. 335-a. Talesmen—residence. "The talesmen list shall be made from names of persons who reside in the city or town in which the district court is held and the township or townships in which said city or town is located. [34 G. A., ch. 17, § 3.]

SEC. 335-b. Courts held in more than one place in county—jurors and talesmen. "In counties where court is held in more than one place, the persons shall be selected from the qualified electors of the separate divisions of the county, giving to each division the number of grand jurors and petit jurors and talesmen to which it would be entitled, if it were a separate county. [34 G. A., ch. 17, § 4.]

SEC. 335-c. Eligibility for jury service—length of service. "No person on the list of grand jurors shall be eligible to serve as a grand juror except for one calendar year of the biennial period for which the list is made, and no person on the list of petit jurors shall be eligible to serve as a juror at more than one term of court during such biennial period. [34 G. A., ch. 17, § 5.]

SEC. 335-d. Validity of nineteen hundred ten lists not affected. "Nothing herein shall be construed to affect the validity of the jury list made at the time of holding the general election in A. D. nineteen hundred ten in accordance with the provisions of chapter twenty of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly for the biennial period commencing January first, nineteen hundred eleven." [34 G. A., ch. 17, § 6.]

SEC. 337. Judges of election to return names—if they fail, supervisors supply names—who shall be omitted. The auditor shall, at the time of furnishing the poll books to the judges of election, furnish them also a statement of the number of persons apportioned to their respective precincts to be returned for each of the said jury lists, together with the names of all persons who have served as grand or petit jurors since January first preceding, which latter names shall be furnished to him by the clerk of the district court. The judges shall thereupon make the requisite selection, and return lists of names so selected to the auditor with the returns of elections; and in case the judges of election shall fail to make and return said lists as herein required, the board of supervisors shall, at the meeting held to canvass the votes polled in the county, make such lists for the delinquent precincts and the auditor shall file such lists in his office, and cause a copy thereof to be recorded in the election book. Should no general election be held in the year nineteen hundred and five, the board of supervisors shall meet on the first Monday in December of said year and prepare the grand and petit jury lists from the poll books returned from the various voting precincts of the county in the year nineteen hundred and four. Such lists shall be composed only of persons competent and qualified to serve as jurors; and the judges of election or boards of supervisors shall omit from said lists the name of any person who has served as a grand or petit juror in a court of record since January first preceding and shall also omit the name of any person who has served as judge or clerk of the general election in the year in which said jury list is prepared. And if the name of any such person is returned, the fact that he has requested to be so returned, or has served as such juror in a court of record during the jury year, as defined in this chapter, or has served as such judge or clerk of election as herein stated, shall be a ground for challenge for cause. The members of the election board, or the board of supervisors, when certifying to such lists, shall state that the lists do not contain the name of any person who requested, directly or indirectly, that his name appear thereon, and that it does not contain the name of any one who served as judge or clerk of the general election in the year in which the list is prepared. If the boundaries of any voting precinct shall be changed, it shall be the duty of the auditor, in making the apportionment of grand and petit jurors and talesmen, to assign to the new voting precincts the total number of grand and petit jurors and talesmen to which all the former precincts affected by the change were entitled, giving to each new precinct an equal number as nearly as possible. [33 G. A., ch. 21, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 61, § 6; C. '73, §§ 237, 238; R. §§ 2726, 2727-8; C. '51, §§ 1636, 1637-8.]

Objections to a juror because he was the officer at the election required to return names of jurors, and requested a return of his own name, cannot be made after the examination of the jurors, although the fact is not known until after verdict. In re Goldthorp's Estate, 115–430, 88 N. W. 944.

The act relating to selection of grand jurors which took effect July 1, 1895, did not render illegal grand juries which had already been selected for the year under the old law. State v. Wiltsey, 103–54, 72 N. W. 415.

While the law requires grand jurors to be electors of the county, it does not require that a person must have voted or that his name be found upon the poll books, to make him eligible. Therefore a showing that the sheriff was unable to find a person of the name in the ward or city from which he was drawn, or that the county auditor could find no such name on the poll books does not show that the juror was not properly selected. State v. Harris, 122–78, 97 N. W. 1093.

An order of the district court setting aside the jury list for irregularities is not binding on persons not parties to the proceedings. Polk County v. District Court, 133–710, 110 N. W. 1054.

It is a ground for challenge that the juror has expressly requested that his name be placed on the list returned and the fact that the names of all the members of the election board in any precinct are placed on the list and returned as qualified jurors suggests that such names have been returned by mutual agreement or acquiescence which in law would amount to a request and such practice is to be condemned, but where it appeared that only two persons were returned who are members of election boards and these were from different townships and each testified that his name was placed on the list and returned against his express wish, held that there was no ground to complain that the statute had been violated. State v. Anderson, 140–445, 118 N. W. 772.

Under this section as amended, the fact that the name of a member of an election board appears upon a jury list does not invalidate an indictment returned by the grand jury selected from such list. The burden is upon one who objects to the legality of the jury to show that such person sought or solicited appointment. State v. Clark, 141–297, 119 N. W. 719.

The district court has no doubt inherent power to set aside a list or panel of jurors on its own motion whenever it shall appear that a legal grand or trial jury cannot be drawn therefrom. State v. Carter, 144–371, 121 N. W. 801.

SEC. 337-a. District court to order lists prepared. Wherever it has been or hereafter shall be found or determined by the district court in any county that, for any cause, the lawfully constituted grand jury or a like petit jury has not or cannot be obtained by drawing from the names returned by the election officers to the county auditor to serve as jurors, or that lawfully qualified talesmen cannot be selected by drawing from the list of names, or that the term for which such lists were drawn has expired, the said court may order the board of supervisors of said county to prepare lists of names of persons having the qualifications required by law for grand jurors, petit jurors and talesmen. The court ordering shall fix the time of meeting of said board of supervisors therefor and shall prescribe the time and manner of notice thereof to be given the several members of such board. Said notice may be served by any person and proof of service shall be the same as that of original notice. [32 G. A., ch. 12, § 1.]

While this statute was passed as an emergency measure to avoid difficulties which had arisen in the several counties of the state by reason of the action of the court in holding the grand and petit jury lists invalid because not returned as provided by law, yet its provisions are general in their nature and they are made applicable, not only to difficulties in existence, but also to those which might arise in the future from irregularities in the returning of such lists and all other contingencies. The statute is therefore not unconstitutional. State v. Pell, 140–655, 119 N. W. 154.

The validity of jury lists prepared under this section held not to depend upon the question whether the lists which had been set aside were invalid. State v. Carter, 144–371, 121 N. W. 801.

SEC. 337-b. Supervisors to prepare lists—meeting. It is hereby made the duty of the members of said board of supervisors to obey the order of the district court made in accordance with the authority granted it in section one hereof, and they are hereby empowered and authorized to hold a meeting of said board for the said purpose and the preparation of jury lists by said board at said meeting shall have precedence over all other business. [32 G. A., ch. 12, § 2.]

SEC. 337-c. Apportionment. The names to be drawn for grand jurors, petit jurors and talesmen shall be the number now required by law; they shall be apportioned among the several voting precincts by the county auditor as required by law, and such apportionment shall be certified by the auditor to the board of supervisors. [32 G. A., ch. 12, § 3.]

SEC. 337-d. Names selected—lists certified—filed with county auditor. That section three hundred thirty-seven-d of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In preparing such lists the board of supervisors shall select the names from the qualified electors from the several precincts as shown by the poll lists of the last preceding general election, selecting for grand jury, petit jury and talesmen lists, the number in each precinct shown by the auditor's apportionment provided for in this act. Such lists shall be separately certified by the board of supervisors, in substance and in form, as election officers are now required to certify lists returned by them and the lists shall be filed with the county auditor and recorded by him in the proper record, and shall stand as the regular jury list for the county for the year for which it is selected and shall be used therefor and juries chosen therefrom, in all respects except as to time of selection of list and panel and summoning of the jurors, as is now provided by law; the time of selection of list and panel and summoning of the jurors to be under the order of the court." [33 G. A., ch. 22, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 12, § 4.]

Where there is no showing that the selection of names was not limited to "qualified electors from the several precincts, as shown by the poll lists," an objection on that ground is properly overruled. State v. Pell, 140–655, 119 N. W. 154.

One certification of all the lists returned to the auditor and recorded by him is a substantial compliance with the statute. State v. Carter, 144–371, 121 N. W. 801.

SEC. 339. Grand jurors—panel of twelve for each year.

The objection that two members of the grand jury were residents of the same township will be waived if not urged before pleading to the indictment, unless it appears that defendant did not know of the irregularity before pleading. State v. Kouhns, 103–720, 73 N. W. 353.

Where a challenge to the panel is allowed and a new grand jury is to be impaneled for a particular case, the requirement that no more than one person shall be drawn as grand juror from any civil township, etc., is not applicable. State v. VonKutzleben, 136–89, 113 N. W. 484.

It is no ground of objection to the statute that it does not provide a representation on the jury list in proportion to the population of the respective townships from which the jury list is made up. State v. Pell, 140–655, 119 N. W. 154.

Slight deviation from the statutory methods of selection of a grand jury is not sufficient to warrant the setting aside of an indictment found by such grand jury. State v. Clark, 141–297, 119 N. W. 719.

There is no vested right in any particular jury list. Any irregularities in discharging grand jurors whose names are on the list cannot be relied on to reverse a conviction under an indictment returned by a grand jury properly selected. Technical defects in the summoning of a grand jury are not sufficient to warrant the reversal of a conviction under an indictment found by such a grand jury. Substantial compliance with the law is all that is required in such cases. State v. Hassan, 149–518, 128 N. W. 960.

SEC. 340. Clerk draws seven for each term—repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 114, § 3.]

SEC. 340-a. Repeal.

That section three hundred forty of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 114, § 3.]

SEC. 342. When, how, and by whom drawn.

In a county having two county seats, the county recorder discharging the duties of his office at one county seat, and his deputy at the other, held that the deputy might act in the drawing of jurors at the latter county seat. State v. Turner, 114–426, 87 N. W. 287.

Where the court has set aside the precept under which a grand jury has been drawn and ordered the summoning of a new grand jury, the panel of the jury thus summoned cannot be challenged on the ground that it was not drawn in accordance with law. State v. Pitkin, 137–22, 114 N. W. 550.

SEC. 346. Number of jurors to be drawn.

The provisions of 22 G. A., ch. 37, relating to the drawing of jurors in Pottawattamie county, are still in force, although not expressly retained in the present code. Such provisions were in the nature of a special statute, and were not repealed by the code. State v. Higgins, 121–19, 95 N. W. 244.

SEC. 347. Others drawn when necessary.

It is not error for the court, before the beginning of trial, to order an additional panel to be drawn from the jury box and summoned for the trial of the case, the jurors so summoned becoming a part of the panel for the term or particular case as the order may direct, and not until the panel as thus increased has been exhausted should talesmen be called. State v. John, 124–230, 100 N. W. 193.

SEC. 348. Court controls number.

Where the jurors are excused for the time when their services are not needed, they are not entitled to compensation for such time. Venett v. Jordan, 111-409, 82 N. W. 953.

SEC. 349. Talesmen—when and how drawn—waiver.

The statute requires the drawing to be in the presence of the court, and it will be presumed, unless otherwise shown by bill of exceptions (and not by affidavits), that the statutory direction was followed. Moss v. Appanoose County, 109-671, 81 N. W. 159.

While the statute authorizes the court to direct the clerk in calling talesmen to omit names of any whom he knows to be exempt from jury service, and does not authorize a direction to omit names of those known to be unable to serve, yet such misdirection will not constitute error in the trial of a case, where it appears that the complaining party did not exhaust his challenges, and that the jurors before whom the case was tried were legally qualified to sit, and that no exception to any member of the jury, nor to the jury as a whole, was taken. State v. McIntosh, 109-209, 80 N. W. 349.

It is not necessary to call talesmen in the order in which their names are drawn from the box. It is not objectionable to draw a sufficient number of talesmen all at once to meet the requirements of a particular case. State v. Minor, 106-642, 77 N. W. 330.

Where the names of the talesmen are drawn from the proper box they may be used as they appear without their names being again drawn. State v. Wolf, 112-458, 84 N. W. 536.

If the court orders an additional panel to be drawn from the jury box before the commencement of the trial, talesmen should not be called until the panel, as thus increased, has been exhausted. State v. John, 124-230, 100 N. W. 193.

SEC. 350. Disposition of ballots drawn.

Where the drawing was set aside and the persons whose names were so drawn did not serve, held not error to return their names to the jury box. State v. Johnson, 136-601, 111 N. W. 827.

SEC. 354. Fees of jurors. That section three hundred fifty-four of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Jurors shall receive the following fees:

1. For each day's service or attendance in courts of record including jurors summoned on special venire, two dollars and fifty cents, and for each mile traveled from his residence to the place of trial, ten cents;

2. For each day's service before a justice of the peace, one dollar.

3. No mileage shall be allowed talesmen or jurors before justices. Immediately after the adjournment of each term of a court of record, the clerk thereof shall certify to the county auditor a list of the jurors, with the number of days' attendance to which each one is entitled." [33 G. A., ch. 23, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 14; C. '73, § 3811; R. § 4154; C. '51, § 2545.]

Where the jurors are excused for a time, as provided in code § 348, they are not entitled to compensation for such time. Venett v. Jordan, 111-409, 82 N. W. 953.

CHAPTER 12.

OF SECURITIES AND INVESTMENTS.

SECTION 355. Security to be by bond.

A surety company furnishing an official bond under a contract with the person for whom the bond is furnished that he will indemnify it against all losses, attorneys' fees and expenses sustained by reason of the execution of the bond, may in the absence of bad faith recover against such person its attorneys' fees expended in a suit on the bond, although the principal in the bond has also employed counsel and notified the company of that fact. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Hittle, 121-352, 96 N. W. 782.

SEC. 356. To whom payable.

A bond in the alternative as to the party for whose benefit it is given is not void. If two or more persons are designated as obligees, their rights are coextensive with their interests. Bonds required in judicial proceedings inure to the benefit of parties who may sustain loss, whether named or not. Lemon v. Drexel, 152-144, 132 N. W. 184.

SEC. 357. Defects rectified.

The amendment of an affidavit will not be effectual to cure an error against a party who has already acquired rights. McGillivary v. Case, 107–17, 77 N. W. 483.

A bond which is essentially insufficient for the purpose for which it is given cannot be made sufficient by amendment after the time for giving such bond has expired. Sutton v. Bower, 124–58, 99 N. W. 104.

Even though a bond required should be without penalty, it is not void on account of a penalty being fixed therein. Lemon v. Drexel, 152–144, 132 N. W. 184.

After objection to the sufficiency of a bond is made on account of defect therein, such defect may be cured by amendment. Emanuel v. Cooper, 153–572, 133 N. W. 1064.

SEC. 358. Qualifications of sureties—attorneys not accepted. The surety in every bond provided for or authorized by law must be a resident of this state, and worth double the sum to be secured beyond the amount of his debts, and have property liable to execution in this state equal to the sum to be secured, except as otherwise provided by law. Where there are two or more sureties in the same bond, they must in the aggregate have the qualification prescribed in this section. Attorneys at law shall not be accepted as sureties upon any official bonds provided for in this section. Whenever the board of supervisors of any county shall have knowledge that any attorney at law is surety upon any official bond, above referred to, it shall require said officer to forthwith file a new bond. But nothing herein shall exempt such person from any liability upon the bond signed by him. [33 G. A., ch. 24, § 1.] [C. '73, § 249; R. § 4126.]

SEC. 359. Affidavit of sureties—effect of—guaranty companies as sureties.

Affidavit by the surety is not essential to the validity of the appeal bond in justices' court. Porter v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133–747, 111 N. W. 322.

SEC. 360. When guaranty company may be accepted as surety—premium—not applicable to criminal cases. Whenever any person who now or hereafter may be required or permitted to give a bond applies for the approval thereof, any officer or body who is now or shall hereafter be required to approve the sufficiency of such bond shall accept and approve the same, whenever its conditions are guaranteed by a company or corporation duly organized or incorporated under the laws of this state, or authorized to do business therein, and to guarantee the fidelity of persons holding positions of public or private trust, or secure any bond above referred to, and which company shall have the certificate of the auditor of state authorizing it to do business therein, as provided in chapter four of title nine of this code, and the premium for any such guaranty or surety company bond as defined in this section, may, by the approval of the court, be paid out of the trust funds in the hands of the party of whom the bond is required. The certificate of the auditor of state, to the effect that such company has complied with the requirements of said chapter and title and is authorized to do business in this state, shall be sufficient evidence to authorize the officer or body having the approval of such bond to accept and approve the same, but no such security shall be accepted on any bond for an amount in excess of ten per cent. of the paid up cash capital of such company or corporation[1] authorized to do business in the state and in no case to exceed ten per cent. of the capital of the reinsuring company and provided that a certificate of such reinsurance shall be furnished to the insured, but nothing herein contained shall apply to bonds in criminal cases. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 25, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 157, §§ 1, 5.]

[1]The records of the 34 G. A. indicate an intent to insert at this place "unless the excess shall be reinsured in some other good and reliable company," but said clause was left out of H. F. 506, ch. 18, 34 G. A., as finally passed and enrolled. The amendment, "authorized to do business in the state and in no case to exceed ten per cent. of the capital of the reinsuring company and provided that a certificate of such reinsurance shall be furnished to the insured," could not be inserted at the place directed by § 1, of ch. 18, 34 G. A. EDITOR.]

SEC. 364. Investments—in what to be made. That section three hundred sixty-four of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Where investments[1] of funds are to be made, including those to be made by executors, administrators, trustees and guardians, and no mode of investment is pointed out by statute, they may be made in the stocks or bonds of this state, or of those of the United States, or in bond or mortgage upon real property of the clear, unincumbered value of twice the investment or under order of court in bonds issued by or under the direction of cities, towns, counties, school or drainage districts of this state." [35 G. A., ch. 38, § 1.] [C. '73, § 251; R. § 4115; C. '51, § 2507.]

SEC. 370. Administrator, trustee, etc., may deposit with clerk—effect. Whenever any administrator, guardian, trustee or referee shall desire to make his final report, and shall then have in his possession or under his control any funds, moneys or securities due, or to become due, to any heir, legatee, devisee or other person, whose place of residence is unknown to such administrator, guardian, trustee, or referee or to whom payment of the amount due cannot be made as shown by the report on file, such funds, moneys or securities may upon order of the court and after such notice as the court may prescribe, be deposited with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such appointment was made, and if he shall otherwise discharge all the duties imposed upon him by such appointment, he may take the receipt of the clerk of the district court for such funds, moneys or securities so deposited, which receipt shall specifically set forth from whom said funds, moneys or securities were derived, the amount thereof, and the name of the person to whom due or to become due, if known. Thereupon said administrator, guardian, trustee or referee may file such receipt with his final report, and if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that he has in all other respects complied with the law governing his appointment and duties, the court may approve such final report and enter his discharge; but notice of such contemplated deposit, and of final report, shall be given for the same time and in the same manner as is now required in cases of final report by administrators. [28 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.]

SEC. 371. Duty and liability of clerk as to deposits. The clerk of the district court with whom any deposit of funds, moneys or securities shall be made, as provided by any law or an order of court, shall enter in a book, to be provided and kept for that purpose, the amount of such deposit, the character thereof, the date of its deposit, from whom received, from what source derived, to whom due or to become due, if known. He shall be liable upon his bond for all such funds, moneys or securities which may be deposited with him, and shall make complete verified statements thereof to the board of supervisors at the January and June sessions each year. If the funds, moneys or securities so deposited with the clerk shall not be paid to the person or persons to whom the same is due, or to become due, within six months from the date of its deposit, the clerk shall then, unless otherwise ordered by the court or judge, deposit such funds, moneys or securities with the county treasurer for the use of the county wherein such appointment was made, taking the treasurer's receipt therefor, countersigned by the county auditor, who shall thereupon charge upon the books of his office and against the treasurer the amount named in such receipts. [28 G. A., ch. 14, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 41, § 2.]

OF NOTARIES PUBLIC.

SECTION 373. Appointment—commissions expire—notice. That section three hundred seventy-three of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The governor may appoint and commission one or more notaries public in each county and may at any time revoke such appointment. The commission of all notaries public heretofore or hereafter issued prior to the fourth day of July, A. D. nineteen hundred and nine, shall expire on that day, and commissions subsequently issued shall be for no longer period than three years, and all such commissions shall expire on the fourth day of July in the same year. The governor shall, on or before the first day of May, A. D. nineteen hundred and nine, and every three years thereafter, notify each notary when his commission will expire, sending such notice by mail and accompanying the notice with a blank application for reappointment and a blank bond." [32 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; C. '73, § 258; R. § 195; C. '51, § 78.]

A notary public acting for a bank which holds a draft for collection, in presenting the draft is not the mere agent of the bank, but is a public officer for whose negligence the bank will not be liable. It makes no difference that the notary is also an employe of the bank. First Nat. Bank v. German Bank, 107-543, 78 N. W. 195.

The court takes judicial notice that a person whose name appears to the jurat was a notary public in and for the county named therein, and it presumes that he acted within the county of his jurisdiction. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32, 96 N. W. 984.

SEC. 374. Conditions. That section three hundred seventy-four of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Before any such commission is delivered to the person appointed, he shall:

1. Procure a seal on which shall be engraved the words 'Notarial Seal' and 'Iowa,' with his surname at length and at least the initials of his christian name;

2. Execute a bond to the state of Iowa in the sum of five hundred dollars conditioned for the true and faithful execution of the duties of his office, which bond, when secured by personal surety, shall be approved by the clerk of the district court of the county of his residence; all other bonds shall be approved by the governor;

3. Write on said bond, or a paper attached thereto, his signature and place thereon a distinct impression of official seal;

4. File such bond with attached papers, if any, in the office of the governor;

5. Remit to the governor the fee required by law.

When the governor is satisfied that the foregoing requirements have been fully complied with, he shall execute and deliver a commission to the person appointed." [32 G. A., ch. 13, § 2; C. '73, § 259; R. §§ 197, 200, 207-9; C. '51, §§ 80, 83.]

One who is interested in the transaction or proceeding with reference to which an affidavit is taken cannot as notary take and certify such affidavit. Empire R. E. & M. Co. v. Beechley, 137–7, 114 N. W. 556.

SEC. 375. Certificate of appointment filed with clerk. That section three hundred seventy-five of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When the governor delivers a commission to the person appointed, he or his secretary shall make a certificate of such appointment and forward the same to the clerk of the district court of the proper county, who shall file and preserve the same in his office, and it shall be deemed sufficient evidence to enable such clerk to certify that the person so commissioned is a notary public during the time such commission is in force." [32 G. A., ch. 13, § 3; 22 G. A., ch. 100; C. '73, § 260.]

SEC. 376. Revocation—notice. That section three hundred seventy-six of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Should the commission of any person appointed notary public be revoked by the governor, he shall immediately notify such person and also the clerk of the district court of the proper county, through the mail." [32 G. A., ch. 13, § 4; C. '73, § 261.]

SEC. 377. Powers. Each notary is invested with the powers and shall perform the duties which pertain to that office by the custom and law of merchants within the county of his appointment or in any adjoining county in which he has filed in the office of the clerk of the district court a certified copy of his certificate of appointment. [34 G. A., ch. 19, § 1.] [C. '73, § 262; R. § 196; C. '51, § 79.]

SEC. 378. Record to be kept.

The requirement as to keeping a record of notices sent is for the purpose of perpetuating proof of the notice, as well as of the demand and protest. First Nat. Bank v. German Bank, 107–543, 78 N. W. 195.

CHAPTER 15.

OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS.

SECTION 393. Who may administer.

The jurat to a statement for confession of judgment is sufficient if it show that such statement was subscribed and sworn to without reciting the name of the person subscribing and swearing to the jurat. It will be presumed that it was sworn to by the person whose name is affixed thereto. Briggs v. Yetzer, 103–342, 72 N. W. 647.

An affidavit is a written declaration under oath signed by the affiant and where the declaration is not signed, a jurat showing that it is sworn to is not sufficient. Dyer v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 103–524, 72 N. W. 681.

A deputy clerk has power to administer oaths. Wheelock v. Hull, 124–752, 100 N. W. 863.

The court will take judicial notice of the fact that the clerk of the court has authority to administer oaths in proceedings before the court. State v. Harter, 131–199, 108 N. W. 232.

Although the jurat attached to a verified pleading does not disclose the county where the oath was administered it will be presumed it was in the proper county. Turner v. Loomis, 146–655, 125 N. W. 662.

TITLE IV.

OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP GOVERNMENT.

CHAPTER 1.

OF COUNTIES.

SECTION 394. Body corporate.

Aside from statutory provision, a county would be a quasi corporation, and not a municipal corporation. Hanson v. Cresco, 132–533, 109 N. W. 1109.

A county is a corporate person which can speak and act only through its appropriate officers and agents. State v. McKinney, 130–370, 106 N. W. 931.

A county has no such general financial interest in the expenses of the courts as to authorize it to interfere by certiorari to test the validity of the order of a judge declaring the jury lists illegal. Polk County v. District Court, 133–710, 110 N. W. 1054.

SEC. 395-a. Jurisdiction in border counties. That the jurisdiction of the courts of the state of Iowa, in counties bordering on the Missouri river, in all civil and criminal actions and proceedings, is hereby declared to extend to the center of the main channel of the Missouri river, where the same now is or may hereafter be, and to all lands and territory lying along said river, which have been adjudged by the United States supreme court or the supreme court of this state to be within the state of Iowa, and to such other lands and territory along said river over which the courts of this state have heretofore exercised jurisdiction. [27 G. A., ch. 14, § 1.]

SEC. 396. Relocation of county seat.

The board of supervisors cannot change location of courthouse without submitting question to vote. Way v. Fox, 109–340, 80 N. W. 405.

SEC. 398. Remonstrance.

A remonstrance may properly be circulated and signed while the petition for relocation is being likewise circulated and before it is presented to the board of supervisors. Willing v. Rye, 123–471, 99 N. W. 158.

Parties who have signed a remonstrance cannot withdraw their names therefrom after it has been presented and before the board has acted. Ibid.

SEC. 399. Notice of hearing. Upon the filing of such petition, sixty days' notice thereof and of the date of hearing shall be given by the auditor by publishing, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper, if there be one printed in the county; if not, then by posting the same in every township in the county, and on the door of the courthouse therein. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 12; C. '73, § 284.]

SEC. 400. Hearing—notice of election—when established forty years. Upon the hearing of such petition and remonstrance, if no objections are filed to either, the board shall proceed to determine whether the petition has been signed by one half of all the legal voters in the county as shown by the last census, either state or federal, after deducting therefrom all names appearing on the remonstrance which also appear on the petition, and also to determine whether more legal voters have signed the petition than have signed the remonstrance. If the requisite notice has been given, and the board shall find that one half of all the legal voters, after making said deduction, have signed said petition, and that said one half exceeds the number that have signed the remonstrance, the board shall order that, at the next general election, a vote shall be taken between said place and the existing county seat, and shall require a constable of each township in the county to post notices of such order in three public places in such township, at least fifty days before said election, and shall also publish a notice of such election in some newspaper, if there be one published in the county, once each week, for four consecutive weeks, the last publication to be at least twenty days before said election; but if objections are made, either as to petition or remonstrance, the board shall inquire into and hear additional evidence with reference to the fact as to whether the names appearing on either petition or remonstrance were the names of legal voters at the time they were placed on the petition or remonstrance, and whether the signatures are genuine; provided, however, where a county seat has been located continuously in one place for forty years or more, no order shall be made by the board that a vote shall be taken on the removal of such county seat unless one half of all legal voters of said county, according to the last state or federal census, have signed the petition, after deducting therefrom all the names that appear on both the petition and the remonstrance, and all other names not properly on the petition, and all names on said petition not placed thereon within sixty days next preceding the filing of the same shall be stricken therefrom; and provided further that the provisions hereof shall not be held to apply where the proposition is to relocate a county seat within the corporate limits of a city or town, where one is already located; and provided further, that the provisions hereof shall not apply when the distance between the limits of the proposed county seat and the limits of the then existing county seat does not exceed one mile. [34 G. A., ch. 20, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 13; 25 G. A., ch. 10, § 4; C. '73, § 285.]

SEC. 402. Removal of records—requisite vote. If a majority of all the votes cast be in favor of the proposition, the board of supervisors shall make a record thereof, and declare the town named therein to be the county seat of said county, and shall remove the records and documents thereto as early as practicable thereafter; provided, however, that where a county seat has been located continuously in one place for forty years or more two thirds of all the votes cast must be in favor of the proposition to remove said county seat before the board shall make a record thereof and declare the county seat removed; and in the absence of said two-thirds vote in favor of such proposition there shall be no removal; and provided further that the provisions hereof shall not be held to apply where the proposition is to relocate a county seat within the corporate limits of a city or town, where one is already located; and provided further, that the provisions hereof shall not apply when the distance between the limits of the proposed county seat and the limits of the then existing county seat does not exceed one mile. [34 G. A., ch. 20, § 2.] [C. '73, § 287.]

SEC. 403. County bonds—form of. Whenever the outstanding indebtedness of any county on the first day of January, April, June or September in any year exceeds the sum of five thousand dollars, the board of supervisors, by a two-thirds vote of all its members, may fund or refund the same, and issue the bonds of the county therefor in sums not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars each, payable at a time stated, not more than twenty years from their date. Where funding bonds have been issued to cover indebtedness for bridges erected outside the limits of a city of the first class, they are to be paid by taxes levied on the property in the county outside of the limits of such city. Slutts v. Dana, 138-244, 115 N. W. 1115.

SEC. 404. Negotiation of—duties of treasurer. Whenever bonds issued under this chapter shall be executed, numbered consecutively, and sealed, they shall be delivered to the county treasurer and his receipt taken therefor, and he shall stand charged on his official bond with all bonds delivered to him and the proceeds thereof, and he shall sell the same, or exchange them, on the best available terms, for any legal indebtedness of the county outstanding on the first day of January, April, June, or September next preceding the resolution of the board authorizing their issue, but in neither case for a less sum than the face value of the bonds and all interest accrued on them at the date of such sale or exchange. And if any portion of said bonds are sold for money, the proceeds thereof shall be applied exclusively for the payment of liabilities existing against the county at and before the date above named. When they are exchanged for warrants and other legal evidences of county indebtedness, the treasurer shall at once proceed to cancel such evidences of indebtedness by indorsing on the face thereof the amount for which they were received, the word "canceled" and the date of cancellation. He shall also keep a record of bonds sold or exchanged by him by number, date of sale, amount, date of maturity, and the name and post-office address of purchasers, and, if exchanged, what evidences of indebtedness were received therefor, which record shall be open at all times for inspection by the public. Whenever the holder of any bond shall sell or transfer it, the purchaser shall notify the treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number of the bond transferred and his post-office address, and every such transfer shall be noted on the records. The treasurer shall also report under oath to the board, at each regular session, a statement of all bonds sold or exchanged by him since the preceding report, and the date of such sale or exchange; and, when exchanged, a list or description of the county indebtedness exchanged therefor, and the amount of accrued interest received by him on such sale or exchange, which latter sum shall be charged to him as money received on bond fund, and so entered by him on his books; but such bonds shall not be exchanged for any indebtedness of the county except by the approval of the board of supervisors of said county. Where funding bonds have been issued to cover indebtedness for the erection of bridges outside of the limits of a city of the first class the levy for the payment of such bonds is to be made on the property in the county outside of such city limits. Slutts v. Dana, 138–244, 115 N. W. 1115.

SEC. 407. Redemption — notice — interest stopped — transfer of funds. Whenever the amount in the hands of the treasurer belonging to the bond fund, after setting aside the sum required to pay interest maturing before the next levy, is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, which by their terms are subject to redemption, he shall notify the owner of such bond or bonds, in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, that he is prepared to pay the same, with all the interest accrued thereon. If not presented for payment or redemption within thirty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such bond shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for its payment whenever presented. All redemptions shall be made in the order of their numbers. If after the payment of all bonds and interests provided for in section four hundred and three of the supplement to the code, 1907, there remains any money in said bond fund, the board of supervisors may by resolution transfer said funds to the particular fund or funds on account of which the indebtedness arose for which said bonds were issued. [34 G. A., ch. 21, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 15, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 58, § 4; C. '73, § 292.]

SEC. 409-a. Public hospital—proceedings for establishment of. Any county may establish a public hospital in the following manner: Whenever the board of supervisors of any county shall be presented with a petition signed by two hundred resident freeholders of such county, one hundred fifty of whom shall not be residents of the city, town, or village where it is proposed to locate such public hospital, asking that an annual tax may be levied for the establishment and maintenance of a public hospital at a place in the county named therein, and shall specify in their petition the maximum amount of money proposed to be expended in purchasing or building said hospital, such board of supervisors shall submit the question to the qualified electors of the county at the next general election to be held in the county, or at a special election called for that purpose, first giving ninety days' notice thereof in one or more newspapers published in the county, if any be published therein, and by posting such notice, written or printed, in each township of the county, which notice shall include the text of the petition and state the amount of tax to be levied upon the assessed property of the said county, which tax shall not exceed two mills on the dollar, for a period of time not exceeding twenty years and be for the issue of county bonds to provide funds for the purchase of a site or sites and the erection thereon of a public hospital, and hospital buildings, and for the support of same; which said election shall be held at the usual places in such county for electing county officers, the vote to be canvassed in the same manner as that for county officers. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 1.]

SEC. 409-b. Question submitted—hospital fund. The board of supervisors of such county shall submit to the qualified electors thereof, at a regular or special election, the question whether there shall be levied upon the assessed property of such county a tax of —— mills on the dollar for the purchase of real estate for hospital purposes, for the construction of hospital buildings, and for maintaining same, or for either or all of such purposes. The ballots to be used at any election at which the hospital question is submitted, shall be printed with a statement substantially as follows:

☐ Yes For a —— mill tax for a bond issue for a public
☐ No hospital and for maintenance of same.

If a majority of the votes cast at such election on the proposition so submitted shall be in favor of a —— mill tax for a bond issue for a public hospital and for maintenance of same, the board of supervisors shall levy the tax so authorized, which shall be collected in the same manner as other taxes are collected and credited to the "hospital fund," and shall be paid out on the order of the hospital trustees for the purposes authorized by this act and for no other purposes whatever. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 2.]

SEC. 409-c. Board of hospital trustees—term. Should a majority of all the votes cast upon the question be in favor of establishing such county public hospital, the board of supervisors shall proceed at once to appoint seven trustees chosen from the citizens at large with reference to their fitness for such office, three of whom may be women, all residents of the county, not more than four of said trustees to be residents of the city, town, or village in which said hospital is to be located, who shall constitute a board of trustees for said public hospital. The said trustees shall hold their offices until the next following general election, when seven hospital trustees shall be elected and hold their offices, two for two years, two for four years, three for six years, and who shall by lot determine their respective terms. At each subsequent general election the offices of the trustees whose terms of office are about to expire shall be filled by the nomination and election of hospital trustees in the same manner as other officers are elected, none of whom shall be practicing physicians. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 3.]

SEC. 409-d. Organization of board—treasurer—expenses of trustees—powers and duties. The said trustees shall within ten days after their appointment or election qualify by taking the oath of civil officers and organize as a board of hospital trustees by the election of one of their number as chairman, one as secretary, and by the election of such other officer as they may deem necessary, but no bond shall be required of them. The county treasurer of the county in which such hospital is located shall be treasurer of the board of trustees. The treasurer shall receive and pay out all the moneys under the control of the said board, as ordered by it, but shall receive no compensation from such board. No trustee shall receive any compensation for his services performed, but he may receive reimbursement for any cash expenditures actually made for personal expenses incurred as such trustee, and an itemized statement of all such expenses and money paid out shall be made under oath by each of such trustees and filed with the secretary and allowed only by the affirmative vote of all the trustees present at a meeting of the board. The board of hospital trustees shall make and adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations for their own guidance and for the government of the hospital as may be deemed expedient for the economic and equitable conduct thereof, not inconsistent with this act and the ordinances of the city or town wherein such public hospital is located. They shall have the exclusive control of the expenditure of all moneys collected to the credit of the hospital fund, and of the purchase of site or sites, the purchase or construction of any hospital building or buildings, and of the supervision, care and custody of the grounds, rooms or buildings purchased, constructed, leased or set apart for that purpose; provided that all moneys received for such hospital shall be deposited in the treasury of the county to the credit of the hospital fund, and paid out only upon warrants drawn by the auditor of said county upon the properly authenticated vouchers of the hospital board. Said board of hospital trustees shall have power to appoint a suitable superintendent or matron, or both, and necessary assistants and fix their compensation, and shall also have power to remove such appointees; and shall in general carry out the spirit and intent of this act in establishing and maintaining a county public hospital with equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Such board of hospital trustees shall hold meetings at least once each month, shall keep a complete record of all its proceedings; and four members of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 14.]

SEC. 409-o. Training school for nurses. The board of trustees of such county public hospital may establish and maintain in connection therewith and as a part of said public hospital a training school for nurses. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 15.]

SEC. 409-p. Detention and examination of insane. The said board of trustees shall at all times provide a suitable room for the detention and examination of all persons who are brought before the commissioners of insanity for such county, provided that such public hospital is located at the county seat. [33 G. A., ch. 26, § 16.]

SEC. 409-q. Such provision may be made by constructing or otherwise securing and equipping suitable buildings and operating them, or by placing the persons designated in institutions designed and prepared to give them suitable care and treatment, and the board of supervisors may allow for the care and support of each patient in such institution a sum not exceeding fifteen dollars per week. Provided that in counties of fifteen thousand, or over, population, a sum not to exceed five thousand dollars, and in counties of less than fifteen thousand population a sum not to exceed two thousand dollars, may be appropriated for constructing, acquiring and equipping buildings without a vote of the qualified electors. [35 G. A., ch. 40, § 1.]

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

SECTION 410. How constituted—number—how determined. The board of supervisors in each county shall consist of three persons, except where the number may heretofore have been or hereafter be increased in the manner provided by this chapter. They shall be qualified electors, and be elected by the qualified voters of their respective counties, and shall hold their office for three years. The board of supervisors of any county may, and, when petitioned to do so by one fourth of the electors of said county, shall submit to the qualified voters of the county, at any regular election, one of the following propositions, as such board may elect in the absence of a petition, or as may be requested in said petition: "Shall the proposition to increase the number of supervisors to five be adopted?" or, "Shall the proposition to increase the number of supervisors to seven be adopted?" as the board shall elect in submitting the question. If the majority of the votes cast shall be for the proposition so submitted, then at the next ensuing election for a supervisor, the requisite additional supervisors shall be elected, whose terms of office shall be determined by lot, in such a manner that one half of the additional members shall hold their office for three years, and one half for two years. In any county where the number of supervisors has been increased to five or seven, the board of supervisors, on the petition of one fourth of the legal voters of the county, shall submit to the qualified voters of the county, at any regular election, one of the following propositions, as the same may be requested in such petition: "Shall the proposition to reduce the number of supervisors to five be adopted?" or, "Shall the proposition to reduce the number of supervisors to three be adopted?" If a majority of the votes cast shall be for the decrease, then the board of supervisors shall be reduced to the number indicated by such vote, and thereafter there shall be biennially elected the number requisite to keep the board full. [31 G. A., ch. 12, § 1; C. '73, §§ 294, 299.]

SEC. 411. Election—term of office. That section four hundred eleven of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"At the general election in the year nineteen hundred and six there shall be elected for a term of two years, members of the county board of supervisors to succeed those whose terms were extended one year by the biennial election amendment. At the general election in the year nineteen hundred and six, and biennially thereafter, there shall be elected members of the board of supervisors for a term of three years to succeed those whose terms of office will expire on the first Monday in January following said election; there shall also be elected members for a term of three years to succeed those whose terms will expire on the first Monday in January one year later than the aforesaid date. It shall be specified on the ballot when each shall begin his term of office. No member shall be elected who is a resident of the same township with either of the members holding over (but a member-elect may be a resident of the same township as the member he is elected to succeed), except that, in counties having five or seven supervisors, and having therein a township embracing an entire city of thirty-five thousand inhabitants or over, he may be a resident of the same township; and in no case shall there be more than two supervisors from such township." [31 G. A., ch. 12, § 2; C. '73, § 295.]

Whether elected by a district or the entire county, a member of the board acts for the county, and only as a district is a part of the county can the member elected from such district be said to be a representative of such district. In re Assessment of Farmers' L. & T. Co., 155–536, 136 N. W. 543.

SEC. 412. Repeal—meetings. That section four hundred twelve of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The members of the board of supervisors shall meet at the county seat of their respective counties on the second secular day in January and on the first Monday in April and June and the second Monday in September and November in each year, and shall hold such special meetings as are provided by law."[1] [33 G. A., ch. 28, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 14; C. '73, § 296.]

[1]The words struck out by ch. 28, 33 G. A. are not identical with those in the supplement of 1907 which have been eliminated from the section as above compiled. It seems manifest, however, that the intent of the said amendatory act has been complied with. EDITOR.]

SEC. 416. Supervisor districts. The board of supervisors may, at its regular meeting in January in any even-numbered year, divide its county by townships into a number of supervisor districts corresponding to the number of supervisors in such county; or, at such regular meeting, it may abolish such supervisor districts, and provide for electing supervisors for the county at large. [34 G. A., ch. 22, § 1.] [17 G. A., ch. 68; 15 G. A., ch. 39, § 1.]

This statutory provision has never been repealed expressly or by implication. The provisions of the primary election law are not inconsistent with its application with reference to the election of members of the board of supervisors. Lahart v. Thompson, 140-298, 118 N. W. 398.

A board of supervisors has power to divide the county into supervisor districts after the holding of a primary election and the nomination of supervisors; and where this has been done and prior thereto the nomination of a member of the board from the county at large was made, rather than for the district thereafter created, such nomination will not be treated as one for the district but a vacancy occurs to be filled by the proper authorities by a nomination for such district. State v. Parker, 147–69, 125 N. W. 856.

SEC. 420. Special meetings—how called—business done.

The canvassing of a statement of consent under the mulct liquor law, which is required to be at a regular meeting (code § 2450), may be made at an adjourned meeting provided for at a regular meeting. Butterfield v. Treichler, 113–328, 85 N. W. 19.

SEC. 422. Powers specified. The board of supervisors at any regular meeting shall have the following powers, to wit:

1. To appoint one of its number chairman in the absence of the regular chairman, and a clerk, in the absence of the auditor or his deputy;
2. To adjourn from time to time, as occasion shall require;
3. To make such orders concerning the corporate property of the county as it may deem expedient;

10. To require any county officer to make a report, under oath, to it on any subject connected with the duties of his office, and to require any such officer to give such bonds, or additional bonds, as shall be reasonable or necessary for the faithful performance of his duty; any such officer who shall neglect or refuse to make such report or give such bonds within twenty days after being so required, may be removed from office by the board by a vote of a majority of the members elected thereto;

13. To appoint commissioners to act with similar commissioners duly appointed in any other county or counties, and to authorize them to lay out, alter or discontinue any highway extending through their own and one or more other counties, subject to the ratification of the board;

14. To fix the compensation of all services of county and township officers not otherwise provided for by law, and to provide for the payment of the same;

15. To authorize the taking of a vote of the people for the relocation of the county seat, as provided by law;

16. To alter, vacate or discontinue any state or territorial highway within their respective counties;

21. To have and exercise all the powers in relation to the poor given by law to the county authorities;

22. To make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as it may deem necessary for its own government, the transaction of business, and the preservation of order;

23. To purchase real estate for county fairs, the title of such real estate to be in the name of the county;

25. To contract with any free public library in the county for the free use of the books thereof by the residents of the county outside of the cities and towns therein, as provided in section one[1] of this act, which contract when made shall supersede all contracts made by townships or school corporations, and to levy annually on the taxable property of the county outside of cities and towns a tax of not more than one mill on the dollar to be used exclusively for that purpose. [35 G. A., ch. 70, § 4; 34 G. A., ch. 24, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 23, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 17, § 1; 32 G. A., ch. 15; 31 G. A., ch. 14, § 2; 31 G. A., ch. 13; 18 G. A., ch. 46; 16 G. A., ch. 80; C. '73, § 303; R. § 312.]

[By § 2, ch. 14, of the 31 G. A., subdivision 22, of above section was changed to 23, and a new subdivision was supplied to take the place of 22. By § 1, ch. 16, 32 G. A., § 2, ch. 14, 31 G. A., was stricken out. § 1, ch. 17, 32 G. A., added a new subdivision as 24, but as subdivision 22 of 31 G. A. was stricken out the old numbering has been retained and subdivision 24 by 32 G. A. is given as 23. § 2, ch. 24 of the 34 G. A., added a paragraph to be numbered 24, as did also § 4, ch. 70, of the 35 G. A. The situation made it necessary to place the amendment of the 35 G. A. as paragraph 25. EDITOR.]

In general: The act of the individual members of the board of supervisors, even though concurred in by majority, is not binding upon the county. Modern Steel Structural Co. v. Van Buren County, 126–606, 102 N. W. 536.

The members of the board cannot bind the county by a contract signed by them individually. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

The county is not liable for trespass or other torts committed by or under the order of its supervisors or other officers. Wenck v. Carroll County, 140–558, 118 N. W. 900.

Par. 4. Claims: The duty of the board of supervisors to audit and allow claims against the county cannot be delegated to any other person or officer and the board cannot, therefore, resolve in advance of the contracting of claims that they shall be paid by the county without further allowance. Heath v. Albrook, 123–559, 98 N. W. 619.

The board of supervisors has the authority to adjust with an officer any claim which the county may have for moneys irregularly drawn from the treasury, and to allow him as against such claim reasonable compensation for necessary assistance in his office procured and paid for by him notwithstanding irregularity in the method adopted at the time for securing from the county reimbursements for the amounts thus paid. McCarty v. Eggert, 154–28, 134 N. W. 426.

Par. 9. Purchase of real estate: The power to purchase real estate needed for the erection of buildings for county purposes carries with it as a necessary incident the power to create an indebtedness therefor, and to evidence the same by some form of nonnegotiable instrument, but held that under the provisions of code §§ 447, 448, the board had no authority to issue negotiable bonds for such indebtedness without compliance with the provisions of those sections. Witter v. Board of Supervisors, 112–380, 83 N. W. 1041.

Par. 11. General powers: The powers granted to or implied in a municipal or quasi corporation are only such as are necessary to make those expressly granted applicable; therefore it has no authority to execute a deed with covenants of warranty unless such authority is expressly given, and it will not be liable for breach of such a warranty. Harrison v. Palo Alto County, 104–383, 73 N. W. 872.

Nor will it be liable for failure of title to land conveyed by it at least where the nature of its title was known to the grantee. Ibid.

The mere fact of making a conveyance of land the title of which subsequently fails will not constitute such fraud as to render the corporation liable. Ibid.

A county may be liable under implied contract for sand and gravel taken by its agents in the construction of the approach to a county bridge. Ibid.

The care and management of the property and the business of the county is intrusted to the board and while the courts may inquire into a gross abuse of the power thus granted, they cannot substitute themselves for the board in determining as to the proper disposition of the property of the county. Nelson v. Harrison County, 126–436, 102 N. W. 197.

In an action to restrain the issuance of bonds on the allegation that warrants for which they were to be issued were illegal, held that the holders of warrants were necessarily parties. Ibid.

Boards of supervisors have the care and management of property belonging to the county, and should provide sidewalks in front of premises, in a city, belonging to the county and used for courthouse purposes, and the county is liable to special assessments for improvements on the streets abutting such premises. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

A county may employ agents other than the county attorney to prosecute claims for the county. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512; Disbrow v. Board of Supervisors, 119–538, 93 N. W. 585; Shinn v. Cunningham, 120–383, 94 N. W. 941.

Par. 12. School fund: The board of supervisors has no power to provide for the payment of a percentage of fines to be collected which are to go to the school fund. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155-527, 136 N. W. 929.

Par. 16. Highways: The power of establishing and vacating roads other than streets and alleys in municipalities is lodged in the board of supervisors and the power to vacate streets and alleys in the city council. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

Par. 18. Liability as to bridges: Where the traveler had the option of crossing the stream under the bridge and incurring the risk of going up a steep bank in doing so or to go upon the bridge along the approach which was not guarded by a railing, held that he was not guilty of contributory negligence in using the approach to the bridge, it not appearing that he had reason to anticipate any danger on the approach by reason of want of proper guarding rails. Morgan v. Dallas County, 103–57, 72 N. W. 304.

The contingency of horses becoming frightened on a bridge or the approach thereto and backing the vehicle to the side is one which should be foreseen and the danger thereof provided against by suitable barriers, and the county may be held liable for failure to provide a reasonable barrier as a protection against such danger. Faulk v. Iowa County, 103–442, 72 N. W. 757.

Where an accident happened by reason of the railing not being strong enough to resist the ordinary pressure from the backing of the vehicle under such circumstances, held, that the defective condition of the railing might be shown for the purpose of charging the county with notice. Ibid.

An approach to a bridge essential to enable persons on the highway to reach the main structure, and without which the main structure would be incomplete, constitutes a part of the bridge. Eginoire v. Union County, 112–558, 84 N. W. 758.

Although a horse being driven across an approach to the bridge becomes frightened by objects along the road, and gets beyond the control of the driver, yet, if the vehicle is thrown from the approach by reason of the want of proper railings, the county will be liable. Ibid.

When two causes combine to produce an injury to a traveler upon a bridge both of which are in their nature proximate, the one being a culpable defect in the bridge and the other some occurrence for which neither is responsible, the municipality is liable, provided the injury would not have been sustained but for such defect. Walrod v. Webster County, 110–349, 81 N. W. 598.

Where the owner of a steam threshing machine runs it over a highway bridge without complying with the statutory provision requiring him to place planks under his engine (code § 1571), he may nevertheless recover damages resulting from defects in the bridge for which the county is liable, if his violation of the statute has not directly contributed to the injury. Tackett v. Taylor County, 123–149, 98 N. W. 730.

Under the provisions of code § 757, the city is liable for negligence in failing to keep in repair the bridges not coming within the description of county bridges. Freeman v. Independence, 123–1, 97 N. W. 1083.

One who makes use of a bridge after repair and removal of barricades is not charged with contributory negligence by knowledge that prior to such repair and barricading the bridge was in defective condition. Jones v. Shelby County, 124–551, 100 N. W. 520.

To avoid the use of a bridge which has been known to be defective the traveler is not bound to commit trespass on private property, the bridge being apparently open to public travel. Ibid.

Failure to use reasonable care in making repairs of a bridge which is known to the county authorities to be unsafe, renders the county liable for injuries resulting from its unsafe condition after such repair has been attempted and the county will not be relieved by the action of its agents in reporting it as safe after inspection. Schlensig v. Monona County, 126–625, 102 N. W. 514.

The use of the county bridges for the passing of traction engines being well known, it is negligence on the part of the county to open for public use a bridge which is unsafe for the passage of such engines. Ibid.

The power to build and repair bridges carries with it corresponding duties, so that the county may be held liable for damages resulting from negligence in building or failing to repair, but there is no such obligation with reference to highways. Wilson v. Wapello County, 129–77, 105 N. W. 363.

Whatever may be the liability of a county for failure of the board of supervisors to maintain a county bridge in safe condition, the board cannot be compelled by mandamus, at the suit of a property owner, to build or restore a bridge which has become impassable, that being a matter of discretion with the board, to be exercised in view of the public interest. Leonard v. Wakeman, 120–140, 94 N. W. 281.

If a bridge stands for such a length of time that the natural processes of decay have weakened it to the point of danger, and the exercise of reasonable care in oversight and inspection will reveal such condition to the proper officers, the county cannot rely upon the want of notice as excusing it from the charge of negligence in not maintaining the bridge in safe condition. Perry v. Clarke County, 120–96, 94 N. W. 454.

The streets within a city or town plat pass under the control of the board of supervisors of the county when the corporate existence of the city or town is terminated. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

Failure to comply with code § 1571 does not defeat the right to recover for a defective bridge where a steam engine is hauled across such bridge by animal power. Young v. Madison County, 137–515, 115 N. W. 23.

An exception to the jurisdiction of the board of supervisors with regard to bridges is found in the provision of code § 758 giving cities of the first class full control of the bridge fund levied and collected within the city limits. Slutts v. Dana, 138–244, 115 N. W. 1115.

Any construction necessary to enable persons using a bridge to pass from it to the roadway at either end may be considered an approach which the county must keep in a reasonably safe condition. Hubbard v. Montgomery County, 140–520, 118 N. W. 912.

A member of the board of supervisors cannot bind the county by a statement made with reference to the condition of a bridge when at the time of making such statement he is not in the performance of any duty connected therewith or referring thereto. Escher v. Carroll County, 146–738, 125 N. W. 810.

Injury alleged to have resulted to plaintiff from defect in a county bridge held to be sufficiently shown under the evidence to be the proximate result of the defective bridge. Williams v. Clarke County, 148–746, 127 N. W. 1030.

The duty of reasonable inspection to discover and guard against the structure becoming weak by reason of rust and decay is imposed on the proper officers of the county which has undertaken to build and maintain the bridge. The duty of the county is not limited to making and repairing all defects to which its attention has been expressly called. Brooks v. Van Buren County, 155–282, 135 N. W. 1110.

In an action against the county to recover damages for injuries resulting from a defective bridge, the county may not be allowed to show that it followed its usual custom in repairing such bridge. Sewing v. Harrison County, 156–229, 136 N. W. 200.

Whether an approach to a bridge is a part of the bridge is generally a question for the jury. Ibid.

It is not proper to instruct the jury that it is the duty of the county to keep its bridges safe. Its duty is performed if it keeps them reasonably safe or uses ordinary and reasonable care in keeping them safe. Escher v. Carroll County, 141 N. W. 38.

Par. 21. Poor: The county acting through its board of supervisors being charged with the duty of relieving the necessities of destitute persons, a devise to the dependent poor of a specified county who are maintained wholly or in part by the county, and constituting the board of supervisors of said county trustees to receive and carry the trust into effect, is a charitable gift within the exception of the collateral inheritance tax. In re Estate of Spangler, 148–333, 127 N. W. 625.

SEC. 423. Expenditures for improvements—when vote necessary. The board of supervisors shall not order the erection of a courthouse, jail, county home or other building, or bridge, except as provided in section four hundred twenty-four of the code, when the probable cost will exceed five thousand dollars, nor the purchase of real estate for county purposes exceeding two thousand dollars in value, until a proposition therefor shall have been first submitted to the legal voters of the county, and voted for by a majority of all persons voting for and against such proposition at a general or special election, notice of the same being given for thirty days previously, in a newspaper, if one be published in the county, and, if none be published therein, then by written notice posted in a public place in each township in the county. [33 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 21, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 46; 16 G. A., ch. 80; C. '73, § 303; R. § 312.]

The limitation of the expense of erecting a courthouse, without submission to vote, does not apply to expenditure of money donated by private citizens. Way v. Fox, 109–340, 80 N. W. 405.

While an alteration in the contract for the construction of a courthouse which involves an expenditure beyond the amount voted for that purpose may be invalid, warrants for the construction cannot be enjoined unless it appears that such warrants represent unlawful expenditure. Zerwekh v. Thornburg, 123–254, 98 N. W. 769.

The board may expend money for the furnishing of a courthouse without vote of the electors notwithstanding a provision in a proposition submitted for the erection of the courthouse that no additional appropriation or expenditure for furnishing will be made. There is no authority in the statute for submitting a proposition to limit the power of expenditure for proper purposes. Ibid.

SEC. 424. Appropriations for county bridges—limitations.

Where two adjoining counties having equal interests in maintaining a boundary line road and the bridges thereon have proceeded, each relying on the action of the other to order a construction or repair of the common way, and each has bound itself by making an appropriation of money therefor or by taking any action obligating itself to make such appropriation for the common benefit, neither is permitted without the consent of the other to withdraw from the enterprise and thereby prevent its accomplishment, or cast the entire burden of such accomplishment on the other. Therefore, the board of supervisors of one of the counties committed to such a common enterprise cannot release such county from its obligation to contribute by rescinding the resolution by which the concurrent action of the two counties was initiated. Bremer County v. Walstead, 130–164, 106 N. W. 352.

SEC. 424-a. Bridges across boundary streams—rights of county to construct. Counties bordering upon streams of water which form the boundary lines of this state may construct and maintain foot and wagon bridges across any such stream the same as if such stream were wholly within the limits of the county constructing the same; any such county within which such bridge may be desired may unite in the construction and maintenance of such bridge with any adjoining state, or any county, city or other municipal subdivision within such state into which such bridge may extend; provided, that in such construction and maintenance the rights of adjoining states shall in no wise be infringed. [34 G. A., ch. 28, § 1.]

SEC. 424-b. Submission to electors on petition—notice—levy of tax—bonds. Whenever ten per cent. of the legal voters of any county named in section one[1] of this bill, as shown by the returns of the last general election, shall petition the board of supervisors of such county to submit to the voters of the county at a general election the question whether such county shall be authorized to construct a bridge extending from such county across the state boundary river into the adjoining state, and shall also include the amount to be expended in the construction of such bridge, it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to submit such question to the voters of such county at the first general election occurring not less than sixty days after the filing of such petition. Notice of the submission of such question shall be given by publishing the same for four consecutive weeks in at least three newspapers of general circulation published in such county, the last of which publications shall be at least three days and not more than ten days before the holding of such election. If a majority of those voting upon the said proposition shall vote affirmatively upon the same the board of supervisors may levy from year to year a tax, not to exceed one mill, upon all the taxable property in the county to erect said bridge; and it may also issue the bonds of the county in the manner provided by the provisions of title four chapter one of the code, except that said issue of bonds may be spread as to maturities over a period of twenty years; such issue shall not, however, exceed the amount authorized to be expended in the construction of such bridge. The provisions of section four hundred and six of the code shall apply to such issue of bonds and the levies for the payment of such bonds and interest shall be made under its provisions. [34 G. A., ch. 28, § 2.]

SEC. 424-c. Agreement as to construction and cost—shall advertise for bids. In the event that the construction of such bridge shall be authorized as hereinbefore provided, the board of supervisors may unite with the adjoining state or any county, city, town or other municipal division thereof in an agreement for the construction of such bridge, and such agreement may fix the particular portion or part which each of the contracting parties shall erect or maintain; or it may provide the particular percentage of the construction or maintenance of such bridge which each shall pay. The contract for the construction of such bridge shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder after bids have been invited by publication for four consecutive weeks in two or more papers of general circulation, and the board of supervisors shall have the right to reject any or all bids and readvertise for bids. The county shall not, however, be liable in any event for any part of the cost of construction of such bridge beyond the part or proportion that it has contracted with the adjoining state or municipality to bear in the construction of the same. [34 G. A., ch. 28, § 3.]

SEC. 424-d. Liability for maintenance. The county shall not be liable for negligence in the maintenance of such bridge except for that part which it shall undertake to exclusively maintain and where there is a contract for joint maintenance of the entire structure, it shall only be liable for that part or portion which is within the boundary lines of the state of Iowa. [34 G. A., ch. 28, § 4.]

SEC. 424-e. Leases for public utilities. The board of supervisors may lease to any street railway the right to cross said bridge with its line of railway upon such terms and conditions as may be authorized by the board of supervisors and the governing body of the adjoining state or municipality interested in such bridge, but no discrimination shall be made as between street railways and all shall be permitted to use the tracks constructed upon such bridge, provided that any line desiring to use the tracks thereon shall bear its reasonable share of the cost of construction and maintenance of such tracks. Like privileges may be leased to telegraph, telephone and electric power companies for the construction of their lines of wire across such bridges, except that a joint use of said wires shall not be exacted, and provided that any rights granted under the provisions of this section to use this bridge shall not in any way impair or abridge the use thereof by the public. [34 G. A., ch. 28, § 5.]

SEC. 427. Highways established to avoid bridging.

This section does not require that the road be constructed on the immediate bank of the stream, but a road within a reasonable distance of the stream is within its provisions; and the statute contemplates the abandonment of the highway in place of which a new one is established under this section. Stahr v. Carter, 116–380, 90 N. W. 64.

SEC. 430. Dependent soldiers' and sailors' tax—erection of monuments. A tax of one mill upon the dollar, or such less sum as may be needed, may be levied by the board of supervisors upon all taxable property within the county, to be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes, to create a fund for the relief of and to pay the funeral expenses of honorably discharged, indigent United States soldiers, sailors and marines, and their indigent wives, widows, and minor children not over fourteen years of age, if boys, nor over sixteen years, if girls, having a legal residence in the county, or for the erection of a monument in any cemetery in the county, a portion of which has been set apart for the burial of Union soldiers, sailors and marines, in which there have been not less than thirty interments, said fund to be expended for the purpose aforesaid by the joint action and control of the board of supervisors and the relief commission provided for by section four hundred thirty-one of the code. [35 G. A., ch. 41, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 25, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 17, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 69, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

[The amendments made by the 33, 34 and 35 assemblies are placed as manifestly intended. They do not make proper distinction between the code, supplement and session laws. EDITOR.]

The term "Union soldiers" as used in describing persons who may be appointed to the commission for distribution of soldiers' relief, means those who fought in the Civil War between the states in support of the Union in contradistinction to those who as soldiers fought for the establishment of the confederacy. Keely v. Board of Supervisors, 139 N. W. 473.

An action of certiorari is not the proper method to test the validity of an appointment to such board made by the supervisors. As the board has a discretion, a particular applicant for appointment has no such interest as to authorize him to maintain an action of certiorari. Ibid.

SEC. 431. Commission to disburse—duties.

The distribution of the fund provided for in this section is not controlled by the provisions of code § 2230 relating to the relief of the poor. Hamilton County v. Hollis, 141–477, 119 N. W. 978.

SEC. 432. Meetings—report to supervisors—disbursements—how made. The commission shall meet annually at the county auditor's office, on the second Monday in September, and at such other times as may be necessary, at which annual meeting it shall determine who are entitled to relief, and the probable amount required to be expended therefor, which sum it shall certify to said board, together with a list of those found to be entitled to relief, and the sum to be paid in each case, the aggregate not to exceed the amount to be raised by the tax levy authorized; and it, at its regular September meeting, shall levy a sufficient tax to raise this amount. Upon the filing of the list with the board of supervisors, the county auditor shall, within twenty days thereafter, transmit to the township clerks in the county the names of those, if any, to whom relief has been awarded, and the amount. On the first Monday of each month after the fund is ready for distribution, the auditor shall issue his warrant upon the county treasurer to the commission for the sums thus awarded, and it shall proceed to disburse the same to the parties named in the list, taking receipts therefor, or distribution may be made in any other manner the commission may direct. Should it appear to the commission that any person entitled to assistance will not properly expend the same, then the payment may be made to some suitable person, who shall, as directed by it, make the disbursements thereof, for the use and benefit of such person. The amount awarded to any party may be increased, decreased or discontinued by the commission at any regular meeting. New names may be added and certified thereat, and it shall, at the close of the year, make annual detailed reports of its work, which shall be accompanied with the proper vouchers for all moneys received by it. [32 G. A., ch. 18; 24 G. A., ch. 69, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 105, § 3.]

SEC. 433. Burial of indigent soldiers and sailors—wives and widows of same. That section four hundred thirty-three of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following substitute enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of supervisors shall designate some suitable person in each township to cause to be decently interred the body of any honorably discharged soldier, sailor, or marine who served in the army or navy of the United States during any war, who may hereafter die without leaving sufficient means to defray the expenses of his funeral. Such burial shall not be made in any cemetery or burying ground or part thereof used exclusively for the burial of the pauper dead. The expenses of such burial shall in no case exceed the sum of fifty dollars, and in case surviving relatives of the deceased shall desire to conduct the funeral, and are unable or unwilling to pay the charges therefor, they shall be permitted to do so and the expenses shall be paid as herein provided. The provisions herein contained shall also apply to the deceased wife or widow of such indigent soldier, sailor or marine who may hereafter die without leaving sufficient means to defray the expenses of her funeral." [34 G. A., ch. 26, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 31, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 17, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 178, § 1.]

SEC. 441. Official newspapers—how selected—what published in —printed in foreign languages—compensation. The board of supervisors of each county shall, at its January session in each year, select two newspapers published within the county, or one, if there be but one published therein, having the largest number of bona fide yearly subscribers within the county, which circulation shall be determined as follows: In case of contest, the applicants shall each deposit with the county auditor, on or before a day named by the board of supervisors, a certified statement, subscribed and sworn to before some competent officer, giving the names of the several post offices, and the number and the names of the bona fide yearly subscribers receiving their papers through each of said offices living within the county; such statements to be in sealed envelopes, and opened by the county auditor upon direction of the board of supervisors; and the two applicants thus showing the greatest number of bona fide yearly subscribers living within the county shall be the county official papers, in which all the proceedings of the county board of supervisors, the schedule of bills allowed, and the reports of the county treasurer, including a schedule of the receipts and expenditures, shall be published at the expense of the county during the ensuing year, and the costs of such publication shall be thirty-three and one-third cents for each ten lines of brevier type, or its equivalent; but in counties having a population of fifteen thousand or more, three papers, not more than two of which shall be published in the same town, shall be selected, in which such proceedings shall be published, with the same limitation as to compensation; and in counties where the district court is held in two places each district shall be regarded as a county for the purposes of such publication. The county auditor shall furnish all such papers selected a copy of such proceedings for that purpose. In case a contest is made by a publisher, the board shall receive other evidence of circulation, and he shall have the right of appeal to the district court, to be taken as in ordinary actions. Neither publisher to the contest shall receive pay for publishing such proceedings until the case is finally disposed of. And in counties where a newspaper of general circulation is printed in a foreign language, the board may, in addition to those already provided for in this section, select one of such newspapers as one in which the proceedings of the board of supervisors may be published, in a foreign language, and said newspaper shall receive the same compensation therefor as is paid the official papers of said county for such publication, not exceeding thirty-three and one-third cents per square. Provided that said paper shall have at least six hundred actual bona fide yearly subscribers residing within said county, and shall file a list thereof as provided by law. [34 G. A., ch. 27, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 15; 30 G. A., ch. 18; 29 G. A., ch. 22, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 86, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 197, § 2; C. '73, § 307.]

Where the board has authority, on account of the population of the county, to select a third paper, such third paper is to be selected in the same manner as the other two are selected. It is not intended that any two or more papers may combine their bona fide subscription lists and be selected by virtue thereof. Packard v. Snyder, 110–628, 82 N. W. 327.

As to measurement for purpose of determining amount of compensation, see Brown v. Lucas County, 94–70, 62 N. W. 694.

The appeal is triable in the district court de novo, and the court should not approve the action of the board of supervisors unless the paper selected by the board makes such showing in the district court as entitles it to be selected. Young v Rann, 111–253, 82 N. W. 785.

In determining who are yearly subscribers under the statute it is not necessary to show that such subscribers have already taken the paper for a year. Ibid.

The appeal must be taken within six months. Ibid.

The procedure to be adopted on appeal from the action of the board of supervisors in awarding the public printing is analogous to rather than identical with the methods employed to perfect an appeal from a justice of the peace. Sturges v. Vail, 127–705, 104 N. W. 366.

The bond may be approved by the county auditor with whom it is to be deposited. Ibid.

The filing and approval of the bond perfects the appeal and the transcript of the proceeding is necessary only for the purpose of presenting to the district court the facts on which the decision of the board of supervisors was based. Ibid.

The lists of subscribers which are to be considered by the board must be filed on or before the time named for hearing, and after the contestants have filed their respective lists the board has no authority to receive additional lists on a continuation of the hearing. One who has filed no such list at the time fixed for the hearing is not in a position to contest the selection subsequently made by the board. Ibid.

The person to whom the public printing is awarded takes such privilege in the exercise of a public function or employment and is not entitled to the fees authorized unless it appears that he holds the position by good title, even though he has performed the service as de facto officer. On the other hand one who has good claim to the office, but has not performed the service for which he claims the possession of the office, cannot recover from the county fees for the services which he had a right to perform. Smith v. Van Buren County, 125–454, 101 N. W. 186.

The provisions as to compensation for official publication in a newspaper fix a maximum limit to the cost of such publication, and leave it to the discretion of the board to fix the amount to be paid within such limits. Wooster v. Mahaska County, 122–300, 98 N. W. 103.

Where one publisher contests the bona fides of the showing of his competitor as to circulation, other evidence than the statement may be received, and if it appears that the paper whose list is contested has not the largest number of bona fide subscriptions within the county it is not entitled to selection as one of the county official papers. But if through error or mistake alone a slight variance as to the requirements of the statute appears such variance is not fatal to the paper which has in fact the largest number of bona fide subscriptions. Stone v. Quigley, 138–491, 116 N. W. 603.

The abstract of the election returns as canvassed and received from the various precincts under the provisions of code § 1149 is to be published as a part of the proceedings of the board. Clarke v. Lake, 146-109, 124 N. W. 866.

The action of the board in auditing and certifying the expenses of primary elections, one half of which is to be paid by the state, constitutes such proceedings of the board as should be published under the provisions of this section. Index Printing Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150–411, 130 N. W. 401.

The proceedings of the county board of canvassers are the proceedings of the board of supervisors and as such are required to be published as herein provided. Ibid.

The statements by the executive council as to the length of railroad track within the county and the assessed value thereof per mile, and as to the lines of telegraph and telephone companies within the county, and as to the length of the routes and the assessed value of each of the express companies within the county, are all matters which, being required to be made of record by the board, are proper to be published as a part of its proceedings. Ibid.

The itemized account of the township clerk showing receipts and expenditures of moneys for road purposes in his township, being required to be certified to the board, is to be published as a part of the proceedings of the board; also the synopsis of the itemized reports of the township trustees, showing the names of all persons to whom money has been paid out of the road fund and the amount paid to each. Ibid.

No particular time is specified within which the publications contemplated in this section shall be made. Ibid.

Service of notice of appeal on the publisher against whom a protest has been lodged is sufficient. A change in the name used to designate the appellant is immaterial where it does not lead to any confusion as to who are the contending parties on the appeal. In re Cherokee County Printing, 156–282, 136 N. W. 765.

The proceedings contemplated by this section are largely informal in character before a board not accustomed to judicial procedure. Ibid.

The county is in no just sense a party to the appeal and a service of notice on an official of the county is not required. Ibid.

The appeal is a special proceeding and while not triable to a jury, it is to be heard as an ordinary action. Ibid.

Notice of the intended canvass by the board of supervisors of a petition of consent required by code § 2450 to be published "in the official newspaper of the county," held to be sufficiently given by publication in all the newspapers of the county, the board having selected none as the "official paper" for the current year. In re Consent to Sell Intoxicating Liquors, De Board v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

Publication of a notice required to be by insertion in the official newspapers of the county held sufficient when made in the newspapers which had been selected as the official newspapers for the preceding year and which were still recognized as such. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

SEC. 442. Books to be kept by board.

As the appointment of a deputy sheriff is required by code § 510 to be filed in the auditor's office and approved by the board of supervisors, the fact that such appointment is not shown by the records of the board to have been approved is prima-facie evidence that it was never made. Buck v. Hawley, 129-406, 105 N. W. 688.

As to amendment of the records of the board of supervisors as kept by the auditor, see code § 470 and the notes.

SEC. 446. Manner of submitting questions to vote. The mode of submitting such questions to the people shall be the following: The whole question, including the sum desired to be raised, or the amount of tax desired to be levied, or the rate per annum, and the whole regulation, including the time of its taking effect or having operation, if it be of a nature to be set forth, and the penalty for its violation if there be one, shall be published once each week for at least four weeks in some newspaper printed in the county. If there be no such newspaper, the publication shall be by being posted up in at least one of the most public places in each township in the county, and, in addition, in at least five among the most public places in the county, one of them being at the door of the courthouse, for at least thirty days prior to the time of taking the vote. All such notices shall name the time when such question will be voted upon, and the form in which the question shall be taken, and a copy of the question submitted shall be posted up at each place of voting during the day of election. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 14; C. '73, § 310; R. § 251; C. '51, § 115.]

SEC. 448. Rate of such tax. The rate of tax shall in no case be more than one per cent. on the county valuation in one year. When the object is to borrow money for the erection of public buildings, as above provided, the rate shall be such as to pay the debt in a period not exceeding ten years; but in counties having a population of twenty-five thousand or over, and where it is proposed to expend one hundred thousand dollars or over, the rate of levy shall be such as to pay the debt in not exceeding twenty-five years. In issuing bonds for such indebtedness, when voted, the board of supervisors may cause portions of said bonds to become due at different definite periods. But none of such bonds so issued shall be due and payable in less than five or more than twenty-five years from date. When the object is to construct, or to aid in constructing, any highway or bridge, the annual rate shall not be less than one mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation; and any of the above taxes becoming delinquent shall draw the same interest as the ordinary taxes. [32 G. A., ch. 19; 23 G. A., ch. 32; C. '73, § 312; R. § 253; C. '51, § 117.]

Although the board of supervisors, under code § 422, par. 9, has power to create an indebtedness evidenced by nonnegotiable instruments for the purchase of real estate necessary for the erection of buildings for county purposes, it has not power to issue negotiable bonds therefor without compliance with the provisions of these sections. Witter v. Board of Supervisors, 112–380, 83 N. W. 1041.

SEC. 451. Rescission by subsequent vote.

Although the statute embodied in this section was enacted before that embodied in code § 423, authorizing the levying of a tax by popular vote for the erection of courthouses, both being now reënacted in the code, are to be construed together, and a tax levied for such purpose may be rescinded by vote of the electors. Windsor v. Polk Co., 115–738, 87 N. W. 704.

SEC. 452. Board must submit questions on petition.

In a particular case held that the petition on which it was desired that the board should act had never been presented to the board, and no action thereon was required. Windsor v. Polk Co., 115–738, 87 N. W. 704.

SEC. 458. Supervisors to tax dogs. Sections four hundred fifty-eight and four hundred fifty-nine of the code are hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board of supervisors of each county shall at its September session, each year, when levying other taxes, levy a tax of one dollar on each male and spayed female and three dollars on each female dog listed by the assessor, which shall constitute a special fund to be disposed of as provided for in this act." [32 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 70, § 2.]

[See § 458-a to § 458-d, inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 458-a. County auditor to prepare assessor's book. It shall be the duty of each county auditor to provide suitable columns properly headed in the assessor's book to carry out the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 20, § 2.]

SEC. 458-b. Domestic animal fund. The treasurer of each county may, if not otherwise used, upon the taking effect of this act, transfer all taxes collected on dogs during the year nineteen hundred and six and subsequent years to a separate fund to be known as the domestic animal fund, and hereafter on receiving the tax books for the collection of other taxes, shall collect the tax herein provided for as other taxes are collected and keep the same as a separate fund to be known as the domestic animal fund. [32 G. A., ch. 20, § 3.]

SEC. 458-c. Injuries to domestic animals—claims for damages—how allowed and paid. Any person damaged by the killing or injury of any domestic animal or fowl by dog, dogs or wolves may present to the board of supervisors of the county in which such killing or injury occurred, a detailed statement and account of such killing or injury, stating the amount of damage claimed therefor and verified by affidavits by two or more disinterested persons not related to the claimant, such claim to be filed with the county auditor not later than ten days from the time such killing or injury occurred or was known to[1] the owner or his agent. Claims filed as herein provided shall be heard by the board of supervisors at the first regular session after the filing thereof or at such time as the board of supervisors may determine upon. No claim shall be allowed where it is shown that the injury and damage complained of was caused by a dog or dogs owned or controlled by the claimant. The board shall hear and determine said claims as soon as practicable after they are filed, and shall allow the same or such portion thereof as they may deem just, and shall find and enter of record the value of each animal killed or the amount of damage done thereto, and shall authorize the auditor to issue warrants for the amount of damages thus found, the same to be paid by the county treasurer out of the domestic animal fund, and if disallowed they shall so enter it upon their record. [35 G. A., ch. 42, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 20, § 4.]

[1]The word "be" followed the word "to" in the 1907 supplement but does not appear in § 4, ch. 20, 32 G. A. It is therefore dropped in this work. EDITOR.]

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A. ch. 32, one whose animals have been killed by dogs has his election to resort to the domestic animal fund or to sue the wrongdoer for damages. After receiving an allowance made by the board of supervisors for such fund he cannot sue the wrongdoer for the balance of his claim. Ellis v. Oliphant, 141 N. W. 415.

SEC. 458-d. Warrants—how drawn and paid—balance. The county auditor shall on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and seven, and on the first day of January and July of each year thereafter, furnish an itemized statement to the county treasurer of all warrants that have been issued for the six months preceding such date as provided herein, and the treasurer shall on or before the tenth day of each of said months pay said warrants issued by the auditor, as aforesaid, out of the domestic animal fund; provided, however, that if such fund is then insufficient to pay said warrants in full he shall pay on each pro rata; and provided further, that no claim shall be allowed under the provisions of this act for any damages sustained for animals killed or damaged prior to the taking effect of this act. When the balance in the domestic animal fund, after paying the warrants issued thereto, as hereinbefore provided, exceeds the sum of five hundred dollars the board of supervisors may transfer the excess to the general county fund. [30 G. A., ch. 20, § 5.]

SEC. 468-a. Personal contracts by supervisors and trustees prohibited. Members of boards of supervisors and township trustees shall not buy from, sell to, or in any manner become parties, directly or indirectly, to any contract to furnish supplies, material, or labor to the county or township in which they are respectively members of such board of supervisors or township trustees. [27 G. A., ch. 13, § 1.]

Members of the board of supervisors are prohibited from becoming parties, directly or indirectly, to contracts for labor or material furnished to the county. Nelson v. Harrison County, 126–436, 102 N. W. 197.

The acts of a township trustee in furnishing men and teams to perform labor for the township under a contract with the road superintendent, to be paid for out of township funds, is a violation of this provision. State v. York, 131–635, 109 N. W. 122; State v. York, 135–529, 113 N. W. 324.

Labor contracts between a member of the board and the county are invalid. Harrison County v. Ogden, 133–677, 108 N. W. 451.

SEC. 469. Compensation of supervisors. That section four hundred sixty-nine of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The members of the board of supervisors shall receive four dollars per day each for each day actually in session, and four dollars per day exclusive of mileage when not in session but employed on committee service, and five cents for every mile traveled in going to and from the regular, special and adjourned sessions thereof and in going to and from the place of performing committee service. But in counties having a population of ten thousand or less they shall not receive compensation for session service of more than thirty days in the year; in counties having a population of more than ten and less than twenty-three thousand, for not more than forty-five days of such service in a year; in counties having a population of twenty-three and not over forty thousand, for not over fifty-five days of such service in a year; in counties having a population of forty and not over sixty thousand, for not more than sixty-five days of such service in a year; in counties having a population of sixty and not over eighty thousand, for not more than seventy-five days of such service in a year; in counties having a population of eighty and not over ninety thousand, for not more than ninety days of such service in a year; in counties having a population of over ninety thousand for not more than one hundred days of such service in a year. The time spent by the board of supervisors as a ditch or drainage board and in considering drainage matters, whether as a single board or jointly with one or more other boards, shall not be counted in computing the number of days which any board has been in session, but the members of the board shall be entitled to compensation at the same rate for the time spent in ditch and drainage matters, in addition to the compensation allowed as hereinbefore set forth, but in no case shall said board be allowed more than fifty days additional time in one year for time spent in drainage matters. If on the same day the board acts both as a county board and also for the purpose of considering drainage matters, the board shall be paid for one day only, and from the general fund or drainage fund as the board may order." [34 G. A., ch. 24, § 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 21; 21 G. A., ch. 15; 19 G. A., ch. 159; C. '73, § 3791.]

SEC. 469-a. Prospecting for coal—tax levy. The board of supervisors of any county is hereby authorized to levy a tax, not to exceed one mill upon the dollar, on all taxable property within the county, to be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes and to be used in payment of expense incurred in prospecting for coal as provided in this chapter. [34 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.]

SEC. 469-b. Question submitted—form of ballot. There shall be submitted to the voters of said county at any general election, to be determined by the board of supervisors, the question whether or not the levy provided for in section one hereof shall be made, and such question shall be submitted to the voters upon a printed ballot in the following form:

"Shall the board of supervisors be authorized and directed to levy a tax of one mill upon the dollar for the purpose of prospecting for coal?"

Those in favor will mark in the square, "yes" and those opposed to said tax will mark "no" in such square. [34 G. A., ch. 29, § 2.]

SEC. 469-c. Vote canvassed—result certified. That said vote shall be canvassed by the judges of election and the results certified to the board of supervisors, who shall canvass the vote at the same time and in the same manner as is required in other special propositions submitted to the voters. [34 G. A., ch. 29, § 3.]

SEC. 469-d. Coal fund tax to be kept separate. That said tax shall be paid into the county treasury at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes and shall be known upon the books of the treasurer as a coal fund tax and shall be kept separately and distinctly from the other funds, and be paid out upon the warrants duly issued by the county auditor when the same has been allowed and ordered paid by the board of supervisors. [34 G. A., ch. 29, § 4.]

SEC. 469-e. Bids for prospecting—location of shaft. The board of supervisors shall have the power to receive bids for ascertaining whether or not coal may exist in the county and shall award said bid to the lowest responsible bidder. The said board shall have the right to pass upon the location where said shaft is to be sunk, and ascertain whether or not said location is the most feasible point to prospect in said county. [34 G. A., ch. 29, § 5.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE COUNTY AUDITOR.

SECTION 470. Duties defined.

The appeal bond in a proceeding for the selection of an official newspaper should be filed with and approved by the auditor, he being the ministerial officer of the board. Sturges v. Vail, 127–705, 104 N. W. 366.

While the right of officers to amend records kept by them is generally recognized, yet such amendment cannot be resorted to for the purpose of making a new record retrospectively in order to sustain the action of a board of supervisors in levying assessments for a public ditch. Tod v. Crisman, 123–693, 99 N. W. 686.

If the records of the auditor do not show the filing of the appointment of a deputy sheriff as required by code § 510, this is prima-facie evidence that no such appointment was ever made. Buck v. Hawley, 129–406, 105 N. W. 688.

SEC. 475. Statistics of crime to clerk of court for report to board of parole. That section four hundred seventy-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The county auditor shall report to the clerk of the district court, on or before the fifth day of July of each year, the expenses of the county in criminal prosecutions during the year ending June thirtieth preceding, including but distinguishing the compensation of the county attorney; and such report shall be so made as to include all the items of criminal expenses which appear in the records of his office and are required to be reported by the clerk of the district court to the board of parole as set out in section two hundred ninety-three of the code, and the clerk of the district court shall furnish to the auditor the blanks to be used in making such report." [35 G. A., ch. 34, §§ 1, 2; 33 G. A., ch. 3, § 3.] [18 G. A., ch. 22, § 2.]

SEC. 479. Compensation. That section four hundred seventy-nine, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"County auditors shall receive an annual compensation for all services as follows: in counties having a population of less than fifteen thousand, fourteen hundred dollars; in counties having a population of fifteen thousand and less than twenty thousand, fifteen hundred dollars; in counties having a population of twenty thousand and less than twenty-five thousand, sixteen hundred dollars; in counties having a population of twenty-five thousand and less than thirty thousand, seventeen hundred dollars; in counties having a population of thirty thousand and less than thirty-five thousand, eighteen hundred dollars; in counties having a population of thirty-five thousand and less than forty thousand, two thousand dollars; in counties having a population of forty thousand and less than fifty thousand, twenty-two hundred dollars; in counties having a population of fifty thousand and less than sixty thousand, twenty-five hundred dollars; in counties having a population of sixty thousand and less than seventy thousand, twenty-seven hundred fifty dollars; in counties having a population of seventy thousand or over, three thousand dollars; in counties having a population of one hundred thousand or over, thirty-three hundred dollars; in counties having a population of more than twenty thousand, the board of supervisors may allow such additional compensation to the deputy or clerks as they may deem reasonable." [35 G. A., ch. 43, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 19; 18 G. A., ch. 184, § 3; C. '73, § 3798.]

SEC. 480-a. Financial report—what to contain. The county auditor shall during the month of January of each year, compile and prepare a financial report, which report shall contain a schedule showing the amount of the various classes of warrants drawn on the county fund, except for court expenses during the preceding year, including therein, among other items, the total amount paid each county officer, also their deputies and extra help, also other employes of the county, and amounts paid for rent and various other expenses, including printing and stationery, furniture and fixtures, publishing proceedings of the board of supervisors, postage allowed each county official, complete election expenses, including printing of ballots, expenses of registration and items of like nature; a schedule showing the amount of warrants drawn on the county fund for various court expenses, which shall include among other items the salary paid the county attorney and the amounts received by him as commission on fines and from other sources, and the amount paid to assistant counsel; also amount paid jurors in the district court, amount paid witnesses in the district court, amount paid bailiffs in district court, amount paid for shorthand reporting, amount paid for printing and stationery, amount paid for attorney fees for defending criminals, amount paid for meals for jurors and items of like nature; a schedule showing the expenses of the grand jury, stating amounts paid grand jurors, bailiffs, witnesses and items of like nature; a schedule showing the expenses of the coroner's court, stating amount paid coroner, coroner's clerk, constable fees, witness fees and items of like nature; a schedule showing the expenses of justice courts, stating amounts paid various justices, constables, total amount paid witnesses, jurors, attorney fees, for printing and items of like nature; a schedule showing the amount drawn by each member of the board of supervisors from the several funds of the county for services during the preceding year; a schedule, being a recapitulation of the total amount of warrants drawn on the county fund with a comparison with the amount of warrants drawn on the county fund each year for the last five years; a schedule showing the various classes of warrants drawn on the pauper fund for the preceding year, with a comparison with the total amount of warrants drawn on the pauper fund each year for the last five years; a schedule showing the amount of warrants drawn on the insane fund for the preceding year, including the amount received by each commissioner as fees and expenses, fees of witnesses, sheriff's fees and expenses, the cost of transportation and items of like nature; also total cost of maintenance of insane at county asylum, with number confined therein, and total paid the various state hospitals for the insane, with the number of patients from the county confined in such hospitals; a schedule showing the amount paid the various state institutions during the preceding year; a schedule showing the amounts paid the sheriff for boarding prisoners during the preceding year, together with the amount paid the sheriff as jail expenses, with a comparison with the amounts paid for boarding prisoners and for jail expenses each year during the last five years; a schedule showing the amounts paid for the condemning of intoxicating liquors during the preceding year, also costs of convictions, both in justice courts and in the district court, for the violation of the laws relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors, together with the amount of fines collected for such violation and the amounts received as mulct tax, if any; a schedule showing the amount of warrants drawn on the county road fund and each of the various other funds of the county. Said financial report shall also contain the report of the county auditor as required by section four hundred seventy-five of the code, also the various reports of magistrates and other officers as required by section thirteen hundred and two of the code, also the various reports made during the preceding year, by the county treasurer, county auditor, county recorder, sheriff, clerk of the district court and the soldiers' relief commission, as required by law. It shall also contain the reports of the various committees that may be appointed by the board of supervisors to examine the affairs and accounts of the various county officials and employes. It shall also contain such other and further matters and information as the board of supervisors may direct or the county auditor may deem advisable. The comparison herein provided for shall not be required in the first report published; the second report need only contain a comparison with the preceding year, the third report with the last two years, the fourth report with the last three years and the fifth report with the last four years. [29 G. A., ch. 23, § 1.]

SEC. 480-b. Printing and distribution—information to auditor of state. Said financial report shall be ordered printed by the board of supervisors in pamphlet form in such numbers as the board may direct, for distribution among the taxpayers of the county. The county auditor of each county shall, on or before April first of each year, furnish to the auditor of state the information contained in such financial report and any other information relative to the financial affairs of the county which he may require, upon blank forms provided by the auditor of state for this purpose. [33 G. A., ch. 33, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 23, § 2.]

SEC. 481. Deputy — qualifications — compensation — other assistants.

One who is orally designated as deputy, and to whom the oath is orally administered, and of whom no bond is exacted, but who in fact performs the duties of deputy, is an officer de facto. Murphy v. Lentz, 131–328, 108 N. W. 530.

The supervisors may make an allowance for temporary assistance required by the county auditor in a county where no deputy has been appointed, notwithstanding the provision of code supp. § 479, that in such county the auditor shall receive a stated compensation for all services. McCarty v. Eggert, 154–28, 134 N. W. 426.

The provision that the allowance for assistance shall be made on bills filed for such services at the next regular meeting of the board is directory only and it is not beyond the authority of the board to make a final settlement with the auditor on a showing that assistance in his office has been necessary and has been rendered and paid for in reasonable amounts, allowing in such settlement amounts paid out by the auditor not exceeding the amount previously authorized. Ibid.

When demand is made upon the board to bring action in the name of the county against the auditor to recover the amount received by him in excess of his salary, it is competent for the board to make a settlement in which they shall allow the auditor the amount which they might have properly allowed him from time to time for assistance had the bills for such services been properly presented. Ibid.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE COUNTY TREASURER.

SECTION 482. Duties in general.

The deposit by a county treasurer of funds in a bank in his name as treasurer would not constitute a conversion thereof, or render him liable for embezzlement. (Overruling Lowry v. Polk County, 51–50.) So held arguendo in a case involving the legality of such deposit by a school treasurer. Hunt v. Hopley, 120–695, 95 N. W. 205.

It is not competent for the board of supervisors to contract to pay a tax collector for making delinquent tax lists, that being a matter pertaining to the office of treasurer. Massie v. Harrison County, 129–277, 105 N. W. 507.

It is the treasurer's duty to receive, safely keep, disburse and account for all moneys payable to the county, and the provision of § 1457 as amended relating to the designation of a depository bank for county funds does not authorize the board of supervisors to designate such county depository save on the nomination of the treasurer. State v. Rhein, 149–76, 127 N. W. 1079.

Where the county has received and has in its possession a drainage tax, it cannot hold the county treasurer liable therefor. Calhoun County v. McCrary, 141 N. W. 310.

SEC. 483. As to warrants presented but not paid. When a warrant drawn by the auditor on the treasurer is presented for payment, and not paid for want of money, the treasurer shall indorse thereon a note of that fact and the date of presentation, and sign it, and thenceforth it shall draw interest at the rate of five per cent. He shall keep a record of the number and amount of the warrants presented and indorsed for nonpayment, which shall be paid in the order of such presentation. [29 G. A., ch. 24, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 84, § 1; C. '73, § 328; R. § 361; C. '51, § 153.]

SEC. 484. Calls for outstanding warrants—interest stopped.

The statute of limitations runs against a warrant without regard to whether it has been called by the treasurer for payment. Bodman v. Johnson County, 115–296, 88 N. W. 331.

SEC. 490. Compensation. Each county treasurer shall receive for his services the following compensation:

1. Three fourths of one per cent. of all money collected by him as taxes due any city or town, to be paid out of the same;
2. Three per cent. of all taxes collected by him for all other tax funds, to be paid out of the county treasury;
3. For each certificate of purchase issued for lands sold for nonpayment of taxes, twenty cents;
4. For paying money into the state treasury, when required by law or the auditor of state, such compensation as the board of supervisors shall allow, not exceeding one fourth of one per cent. on the amount so paid, which allowance shall be paid by the county;
5. When the aggregate amount of compensation allowed exceeds fifteen hundred dollars in any year, the excess shall be paid into the county treasury; but in counties where the population does not exceed ten thousand, the salary shall not exceed thirteen hundred dollars, and in such counties there shall not be allowed for deputy or clerk hire more than the amount provided in the next section. But in counties having a population of twenty-five thousand or over the board of supervisors may allow such additional compensation as it may deem proper. [35 G. A., ch. 44, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 184, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 122, § 3; C. '73, § 3793; R. § 777.]

Although a commission is allowed to the county treasurer for taxes collected, he has not such an interest in the taxes as to be disqualified to act under code § 1374 in collecting taxes on omitted property. His interest in the result is remote and incidental. Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

That portion of the regular annual mulct tax which the county is required by law to pay to the city is not subject to the county treasurer's charge of three fourths of one per cent. for collection. Waverly v. Bremer County, 126–98, 101 N. W. 874.

The compensation to which the treasurer is entitled for collecting special assessments certified to him by the city cannot be included in the levy of the assessment upon property. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

The county treasurer is not allowed a commission for the collection of taxes payable to the holder of city improvement certificates. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Woodbury County, 137–287, 114 N. W. 1044.

SEC. 491. Deputies — qualification — compensation — other assistants—counties doing drainage business. Each county treasurer may, in writing, with the consent of the board of supervisors, appoint any one not holding a county office his deputy, for whose acts he shall be responsible, and from whom he shall require bond, which bond shall be approved by the officer who has the approval of the principal's bond, and such appointment may be revoked in writing; which appointment and revocation shall be filed and kept in the auditor's office. The person thus appointed shall qualify by taking the same oath as his principal, indorsed upon the certificate of appointment. The deputy, in the absence or disability of his principal, may perform all the duties of the principal pertaining to his office, and shall receive a salary not exceeding nine hundred dollars a year, to be fixed by the board of supervisors. In case no deputy shall be appointed, but, on account of the pressure of business in his office, the treasurer is compelled temporarily to employ an assistant, he shall file the bill for such service at their next regular meeting, and the board of supervisors shall make a reasonable allowance therefor. In counties where the population does not exceed ten thousand, except in cases where such county is doing a drainage business in an amount requiring additional help, the board shall not allow to exceed three hundred dollars for deputy or clerk hire, and in counties having a population of more than twenty-five thousand, it may allow such sum in addition to the salary above fixed, or for clerk hire, as may be proper. [35 G. A., ch. 45, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 44, § 2.] [18 G. A., ch. 184, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 122, § 3; 16 G. A., ch. 4; C. '73, §§ 766–8, 770–1, 3793; R. §§ 421, 642, 643–5, 647–8; C. '51, §§ 411, 416, 417.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE COUNTY RECORDER.

SECTION 494. Office—duties. The recorder shall keep his office at the county seat, and shall record at length, and as speedily as possible, all instruments in writing which may be delivered to him for record, in the manner directed by law. If in the recording of any such instrument heretofore recorded or hereafter to be filed for record, the recording fee for which has once been paid, the recorder shall commit an error in making the record thereof, it shall be his duty to re-record such instrument upon the presentation of the original by the owner thereof, without further compensation; and he shall also enter upon the margin of the new record a reference to the original record, and upon the margin of the original record a reference to the new record, giving the book and page thereof. When an error has been made in indexing any instrument, it shall be the duty of the recorder to re-index the same without further compensation. [30 G. A., ch. 20; C. '73, § 335; R. § 358; C. '51, § 150.]

SEC. 495. Fees to be reported and paid to county—compensation. That section four hundred ninety-five of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The recorder shall report quarterly, under oath, to the board of supervisors, on blanks furnished by the auditor, all fees collected by him, and certify under oath that he has collected all fees for recording instruments provided by law; shall make annual settlement with the board of supervisors on the first Monday in January of each year, and pay into the county treasury all fees received by him. And the recorder shall receive as full compensation for all services the sum of twelve hundred dollars per annum in counties having a population of less than fifteen thousand, and fourteen hundred dollars in counties having a population of more than fifteen thousand and less than twenty-five thousand, and fifteen hundred dollars in counties having a population of over twenty-five thousand and less than thirty-five thousand, and sixteen hundred dollars in counties having a population of over thirty-five thousand and less than fifty thousand, and eighteen hundred dollars in counties having a population of over fifty thousand and less than sixty thousand, and two thousand dollars in counties having a population of sixty thousand or over." [35 G. A., ch. 46, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 22; 30 G. A., ch. 21, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

SEC. 496. Deputies—qualifications—compensation—other assistants. Each county recorder may, in writing, with the consent of the board of supervisors, appoint any one not holding a county office his deputy, for whose acts he shall be responsible, and from whom he shall require bond, which bond shall be approved by the officer who has the approval of the principal's bond, and such appointment may be revoked in writing; which appointment and revocation shall be filed and kept in the auditor's office. The person thus appointed shall qualify by taking the same oath as his principal, indorsed upon the certificate of appointment. The deputy, in the absence or disability of his principal, may perform all the duties of the principal pertaining to his office, and shall receive a salary not exceeding nine hundred dollars a year, to be fixed by the board of supervisors. In counties where no deputy is appointed, or in counties having a population of thirty-five thousand or over, the recorder may, with the approval of the board of supervisors, temporarily employ one or more assistants, when the pressure of business in his office renders it necessary, and he shall file a bill for such service at the next regular meeting of the board of supervisors, who shall make a reasonable allowance therefor. [30 G. A., ch. 21, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 25, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 76, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 184, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 122, § 3; 16 G. A., ch. 4; C. '73, §§ 766–8, 770–1; R. §§ 421, 642–5, 467–8; C. '51, §§ 411, 412, 413, 416, 417.]

In a county where the district court is held at two places, and the county recorder is in the discharge of his office at one place and his deputy at another, held that the deputy might act in drawing a jury. State v. Turner, 114–426, 87 N. W. 287.

No allowance can be made for an assistant except for services for the quarter of a year preceding the time when the bill is filed. The provision of the statute in this respect is mandatory. Allen v. Adams County, 120–63, 94 N. W. 261.

Where a proper claim is filed by the recorder, it is not necessary, in order to be entitled to an allowance, that the claim be made by the person who rendered the services, or that the recorder show that the services have been paid for. It is proper for the recorder to present the claim in his own name for services of an assistant necessarily employed, and the board can allow only the reasonable value of the services necessarily procured. Ibid.

SEC. 498. Fees to be collected—fee book. The recorder shall be entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

1. For recording each instrument containing four hundred words or less, fifty cents;

2. For every additional hundred words or fraction thereof, ten cents.

3. He shall keep a fee book which shall be ruled in appropriate columns in which he shall enter each and every instrument filed for record, each instrument shall be numbered in numerals from one consecutively through the year, and shall commence with number "1" on and immediately after the date of settlement with the board of supervisors each year. He shall enter on said fee book from left to right in appropriately ruled columns as follows: The number of the instrument, grantor, grantee and character of instrument, carrying out in separate columns the fee charged in dollars and cents in each case and said fee book shall be a part of the records of the office of the county recorder and shall be kept and maintained therein as the other books and records thereof. He shall also enter or cause to be entered at the top of the page where the permanent record of the instrument begins, these words "Recording fee————" and place on blank line the exact amount charged in dollars and cents for each instrument recorded. [31 G. A., ch. 16; C. '73, § 3792; R. § 4143; C. '51, § 2534.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE SHERIFF.

SECTION 499. Duties in general. That sections four hundred ninety-nine and five hundred and two of the code be, and the same are hereby, repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1]

"It shall be the duty of the sheriff, by himself or deputy, to preserve the peace in his county, to ferret out crime, to apprehend and arrest all criminals, and in so far as it is within his power, to secure evidence of all crimes committed in his county, and present the same to the county attorney and the grand jury; to file informations against all persons who he knows, or has reason to believe, have violated the laws of the state, and to perform all other duties pertaining to the office of sheriff, or enjoined upon him by law. [33 G. A., ch. 34, §§ 1, 2.] [C. '73, § 337; R. § 383; C. '51, § 170.]

[1]See § 499-a to § 499-d, inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 499-a. Authority to summon aid. "The sheriff, by himself or deputy, may call any person to his aid to keep the peace or prevent crime, or to arrest any person liable thereto, or to execute process of law; and when necessary, the sheriff may summon the power of the county. [33 G. A., ch. 34, § 3.]

SEC. 499-b. Execution and return of writs. "The sheriff shall, by himself or deputy, execute and return all writs and other legal process issued by legal authority to him directed. [33 G. A., ch. 34, § 4.]

SEC. 499-c. Investigation on order of county attorney. "The sheriff shall, whenever directed so to do in writing by the county attorney, make special investigation of any alleged infraction of the law within his county, and report with reference thereto within a reasonable time to such county attorney. When such investigation is made the sheriff shall file with the county auditor a detailed, sworn statement of his expenses, accompanied by the written order of the county attorney, and the board shall audit and allow only so much thereof as it shall find reasonable and necessary. [33 G. A., ch. 34, § 5.]

SEC. 499-d. Peace officers not relieved from duties. "Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to relieve any peace officer from the full and faithful discharge of all the duties now or hereafter enjoined upon him by law." [33 G. A., ch. 34, § 6.]

SEC. 501. Duty as to jail and prisoners.

Failure of a sheriff to properly confine in the county jail a prisoner sentenced to confinement therein by a proper federal court (see code § 5637) is punishable by such court for contempt. Ex parte Shores, (D. C.) 195 Fed. 627.

SEC. 502. Power to summon aid—repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 34, § 1.]

[See § 499 to § 499-d, inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 508. Fees to be reported and paid to county. Quarterly itemized reports under oath, upon blanks to be furnished by the county auditor, shall be made to the board of supervisors by the sheriff, of all fees and mileage charged or taxed, and all that are collected by him and his deputies, including all sums for which the county is liable, except for dieting and lodging prisoners; and at the time of making such quarterly reports he shall make full settlement with said board, filing therewith the receipts of the county treasurer for all moneys paid over to him. [29 G. A., ch. 26, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 75, § 1.]

SEC. 509. Compensation—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 27, § 1.]

SEC. 510. Deputies—qualification—compensation—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 27, § 1.]

SEC. 510-a. Compensation. That section five hundred and nine and section five hundred ten of the code be repealed and the following substituted therefor:

"In counties having a population of over forty-five thousand the sheriff shall receive in full compensation for his services, except the expenses hereinafter provided for, thirty-five hundred dollars per annum, to be paid out of the receipts of the office. In counties having a population of over twenty-eight thousand and less than forty-five thousand the sheriff shall receive in full compensation for his services, except the expenses hereinafter provided for, three thousand dollars per annum, the same to be paid out of the receipts of the office. In counties having a population of over eleven thousand and less than twenty-eight thousand the sheriff shall receive in full compensation for his services, including the salary provided by section five hundred eleven of the code, the sum of two thousand dollars per annum, the same to be paid out of the receipts of the office. And any excess over the sums provided in all counties shall be paid into the county treasury annually. In all counties the expenses necessarily incurred and actually paid while engaged in the performance of official duties in serving criminal process, or commitments to the penitentiaries, industrial schools or asylums, shall be allowed by the board of supervisors, and paid as other claims against the county, and he shall be allowed to retain all mileage collected by him in the service of civil process. Provided, that in counties having a population of less than eleven thousand in which the receipts of the office, together with the salary allowed under section five hundred eleven of the code, do not amount to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars in any year, the board of supervisors shall, at the January session thereof, allow the sheriff a sum which, added to the receipts of the office for the previous year, will amount to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars; and that in counties having a less population than twenty-eight thousand, in which the receipts of the office and salary allowed under section five hundred eleven of the code do not amount to the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum, the board of supervisors shall, at the January session thereof following, make an allowance to the sheriff of a sum equal to the difference between the receipts of the office in the previous year, and eighteen hundred dollars. And in counties having a population of more than twenty-eight thousand and less than forty-five thousand, in which the receipts of the office and salary allowed by the board do not in any year amount to the sum of two thousand dollars, the board of supervisors shall, at the January session thereof following, make an allowance to the sheriff of a sum equal to the difference between the receipts of the office for the previous year, and two thousand dollars. And in counties having a population of more than forty-five thousand in which the receipts of the office do not in any one year amount to the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars, the board of supervisors shall at the January session following make an allowance to the sheriff of a sum sufficient to make his salary equal to the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars. And provided further, that all fees earned, except mileage, and uncollected at the end of each year shall belong to the county, and when paid shall by the clerk of the district court be reported to the board of supervisors and paid into the county treasury. [33 G. A., ch. 35, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 27, §§ 1, 2.]

Where the county is entitled to the fees for service of process in criminal cases, the sheriff is entitled to allowance by way of expenses of the amounts necessarily paid out by him for railroad fare, livery hire and hotel bills, while traveling for the purpose of serving criminal process. Bybee v. Marion County, 128–610, 105 N. W. 118.

In counties having a population of over eleven thousand and under twenty-eight thousand the sheriff cannot receive more than eighteen hundred dollars per annum where the receipts of the office and salary do not exceed that amount. Dallas County v. Hanes, 135–550, 113 N. W. 345.

So far as the sheriff collects mileage before the expiration of his term of office he is entitled to retain it as his own, but after the expiration of such term it belongs to the county. Cremer v. Wapello County, 139–580, 117 N. W. 954.

SEC. 510-a1. Mileage heretofore earned—property of officer. All mileage heretofore taxed under the provisions of section five hundred ten-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, which has not been prepaid by parties litigant shall be and remain the property of the officer who earned the same and he shall be entitled to receive the same, when paid, whether in or out of office. [33 G. A., ch. 35, § 2.]

SEC. 510-b. Deputies—qualification—compensation. In all counties the sheriff shall in writing appoint one or more persons, not holding a county office, as deputy or deputies, for whose acts he shall be responsible and from whom he shall require a bond, which appointment and bond shall be approved by the officer having the approval of the principal's bond; and such appointment may be revoked in writing, which appointment and revocation shall be filed and kept in the auditor's office. In all cases the board of supervisors shall fix the number of deputies and shall fix the salary of such deputies at not exceeding one thousand dollars per annum in counties having a population of over twenty-eight thousand, and at not exceeding six hundred dollars per annum each in counties having a population of less than twenty-eight thousand; and in all counties the chief deputy shall be paid by the sheriff out of the compensation allowed him under the provisions of the preceding section,[1] and all other deputies shall be paid by the county. [29 G. A., ch. 27, § 2; 25 G. A., ch. 75, § 3;

A bailiff employed at a monthly salary cannot properly draw compensation for fees earned by him when actually serving in that capacity. State v. Welsh, 109–19, 79 N. W. 369.

Under statutory provisions which were superseded by the adoption of the code, held that the sheriff in a county not containing twenty-eight thousand inhabitants, and who was not therefore a salaried officer, was nevertheless entitled to an allowance for a deputy. Mentzer v. Marion County, 114–478, 87 N. W. 440.

The fact that the records of the auditor and of the board of supervisors do not show the filing of the appointment of a deputy sheriff is prima-facie evidence that no such appointment was made. Buck v. Hawley, 129–406, 105 N. W. 688.

The deputy which the sheriff is required to appoint is the chief deputy who is to be paid by the sheriff out of the compensation allowed him. Culver v. Fayette County, 142–269, 120 N. W. 627.

The sheriff cannot by stipulation in advance with one whom he appoints as chief deputy and whose salary is therefore to be paid out of the compensation of the sheriff, limit such compensation to a less amount than that subsequently fixed by the board of supervisors. Bodenhofer v. Hogan, 142–321, 120 N. W. 659.

A contract on the part of a public officer to render services for less than the compensation provided is against public policy. Ibid.

The illegality of the arrangement between the deputy and the sheriff as to the amount of compensation to be paid will not defeat the right of the deputy to recover the amount to which he is entitled irrespective of the provisions of the illegal contract. Ibid.

Acceptance by the deputy of the amount agreed upon and release of the sheriff from the illegal contract will not defeat the right of the deputy to recover the amount to which he is entitled. Ibid.

The sheriff is responsible for the acts of his deputy. Gutschenritter v. Whitmore, 139 N. W. 567.

SEC. 511. Fees to be collected. Each sheriff is entitled to charge and receive the following fees:

1. For attending the supreme court, to be paid out of the amount appropriated for contingent expenses of said court, two dollars per day;

2. For serving a notice and making return thereof, for the first person served, fifty cents, and for each additional person, twenty-five cents;

3. For each warrant served, two dollars, and the repayment of any amount actually paid by him as necessary expenses in executing such warrant, as sworn to by the sheriff; if service of the warrant cannot be made, the repayment of all necessary expenses actually paid by the sheriff, while attempting in good faith to serve such warrant within this state, and such reasonable compensation as the board of supervisors may deem just and equitable;

4. For serving and returning a subpoena, for each person served, twenty cents;

5. For summoning a grand or trial jury, for each person served, sixty cents, to be paid out of the county treasury; and such sum shall be in full compensation for such service;

6. For summoning a jury to assess the damages to the owners of lands taken for public improvements, and attending them, five dollars per day. This paragraph shall not be so construed as to allow a sheriff to make separate charges for different assessments, which can be made by the same jury and completed in one day of ten hours;

7. For serving an execution, attachment, or order for the delivery of personal property, injunction, or any order of court, and making return thereof, two dollars;

8. For collecting and paying over money, on the first five hundred dollars or fraction thereof, two per cent.; on all in excess of five hundred dollars and under five thousand dollars, one per cent.; on all over five thousand dollars, one-half per cent.;

9. For making and executing a certificate or deed for lands sold on execution, or a bill of sale for personal property sold, one dollar;

10. For the time necessarily employed in making an inventory of personal property attached or levied upon, twenty-five cents per hour;

11. For a copy of any paper required by law, made by him, for each one hundred words, ten cents;

12. Mileage in all cases required by law, going and returning, five cents per mile;

13. For taking each bond required by law, twenty-five cents;

14. For each commitment to jail, twenty-five cents; discharge from same, twenty-five cents;

15. For receiving a prisoner on surrender by bail, fifty cents;

16. For boarding prisoners, a compensation of twelve and one-half cents for each meal, and not to exceed three meals in twenty-four consecutive hours, and for each night's lodging the sum of twelve and one-half cents; provided that in counties having a population of fifty thousand or over, the board of supervisors may fix the compensation of the sheriff for boarding and lodging prisoners, at a rate not exceeding the above;

17. For waiting on and washing for prisoners, the sheriff shall have such reasonable compensation as shall be allowed by the board of supervisors;

18. For attending before any judge with a prisoner, one dollar per day;

19. For attending sale of property, for each day, one dollar;

20. For conveying one or more convicts to either of the penitentiaries of the state, or any prisoner to any county jail outside of the county in which said sheriff resides, or any insane person or persons to any insane asylum in the state, or person or persons to either of the industrial schools, he shall be allowed, as full compensation therefor, his necessary traveling expenses actually paid by him, including board and railroad fare for himself and such person or persons, or any other necessary expenses, and, in addition thereto, forty cents per hour for the time necessarily employed in going to and from said prisons, asylums, or schools, to be certified by the affidavit of such sheriff, accompanied by the proper vouchers, to the board of supervisors of the county from which the persons were committed. Should the sheriff need any assistance in taking prisoners to the penitentiary or insane persons to the asylum, the same shall be furnished at the expense of the county, the compensation to be fixed by the board of supervisors;

21. He shall be allowed for serving any warrant for the seizure of intoxicating liquors, one dollar; for the removal and custody of such liquor, actual and reasonable expenses; for the destruction of such liquor under the order of the court, his actual and reasonable expenses, and one dollar; for posting and leaving notices in such cases, one dollar;

22. The jailer may be furnished a dwelling in connection with the jail, or as convenient thereto as practicable, in the discretion of the board of supervisors;

23. The sheriff is also entitled, for attending the district court, and for other service for which no compensation is allowed by law, except in counties having a population of over twenty-eight thousand, an annual salary, which shall be fixed by the board of supervisors, but in no case less than two hundred dollars nor more than four hundred dollars. When sheriffs perform official duties in justices' courts, their fees shall be the same as allowed constables. [35 G. A., ch. 47, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 36, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 17, §§ 1, 2; 25 G. A., ch. 83; 23 G. A., ch. 41; 19 G. A., ch. 94, §§ 2–23; C. '73, §§ 3788–89, 3807; R. § 1570.]

Where an order of court fixed the time when persons who had signed affidavits in support of an application for change of venue should appear for cross-examination, held that service of subpoenas on such persons should not be taxed as the service of an order of court. Spangler v. Beaver, 106–744, 75 N. W. 668.

The fees of the sheriff for performing the duties of constable (as authorized in code § 4591) are to be accounted for by him as fees of his office. Jones County v. Arnold, 134–580, 111 N. W. 973.

SEC. 511-a. Repeal. Paragraph sixteen of section five hundred eleven of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter thirty-six of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1] [35 G. A., ch. 47, § 1.]

[1]The substitute appears as paragraph 16 of § 511 above. EDITOR.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF THE CORONER.

SECTION 515. Inquest—when held—warrant for jurors.

It is the province of the coroner to determine whether a post-mortem examination shall be made. Finarty v. Marion County, 127–543, 103 N. W. 772.

SEC. 520. Witnesses—shorthand reporter—compensation. The coroner shall issue subpoenas for such witnesses as have knowledge touching the manner of the death of the person whose inquest is being held, returnable at such time and place as he may direct. They shall be sworn as in other cases, and their evidence reduced to writing under the direction of the coroner, subscribed by them, and returned to the district court, with the verdict and all other papers in the case. For the purpose of preserving the testimony of such witnesses, and all the acts and doings of the coroner and jury, the coroner may appoint a shorthand reporter at a compensation of not to exceed fifty cents per hour for time actually employed in any inquest or investigation, and for extending the notes, and when such reports are extended into longhand by the said shorthand reporter and certified to by the coroner and said reporter to the effect that they contain a full, true and complete report of all proceedings, they shall be the official record of the said inquest or investigation. The said shorthand reporter shall before entering upon his duties as such reporter, take an oath to be administered by the coroner, that he will faithfully take down in shorthand the evidence as it is given by the witnesses at such inquest or investigation, and that he will correctly extend the same into longhand. The coroner may enforce the attendance of witnesses and jurors, and punish them for contempt in disobeying his process, in like manner as a justice of the peace may do in a criminal proceeding before him. [32 G. A., ch. 23; C. '73, §§ 356–8, 365; R. §§ 400–2, 409; C. '51, §§ 190–2, 199.]

SEC. 521. Finding of jurors—form.

The presumption is of an accidental rather than a suicidal death, and the coroner's verdict finding death to be suicidal only raises a conflict in the evidence to be determined by the jury. Tomlinson v. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen, 141 N. W. 950.

SEC. 529. Physician employed—fees.

The physician is entitled to recover his compensation from the county for making a post-mortem examination at the direction of the coroner without regard to the question as to whether the circumstances were such as to warrant the coroner in ordering such inquest. Finarty v. Marion County, 127–543, 103 N. W. 772.

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE COUNTY SURVEYOR.

SECTION 534. Duties—record to be kept.

The filing of notes and plans made by the county surveyor do not constitute a link in the chain of title nor give information as to possession, and the recording thereof has no bearing on ownership, possession or title save as they may tend to show the true location of the boundaries. Keller v. Harrison, 151–320, 128 N. W. 851, 131 N. W. 53.

SEC. 535. Former field notes to be used.

The statute recognizes the county auditor as the proper custodian of the government field notes. Keller v. Harrison, 139–383, 116 N. W. 327.

SEC. 538. Record to be furnished—presumptive evidence.

The survey, to be entitled to the presumption here contemplated, must have been made with the knowledge of the party sought to be bound, and recorded as here provided. McAnich v. Hulse, 113–58, 84 N. W. 914.

In a particular case held that even though the survey was admissible in evidence under this section there was sufficient evidence of its incorrectness to overcome the presumption in its favor. Ibid.

The object of the recording is to preserve evidence of the facts but such evidence has no bearing on the question of conflicting claims of title. Keller v. Harrison, 151–320, 128 N. W. 851, 131 N. W. 53.

Neither the record nor the report of the county surveyor is to be treated as prima facie correct in the absence of any showing authorizing it to be received in evidence. Matson v. Poncin, 152–569, 132 N. W. 970.

CHAPTER 9.

OF THE DUTIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS.

SECTION 549. Designation of newspapers. That section five hundred forty-nine of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The clerk of the district court, sheriff, auditor, treasurer and recorder shall each designate the newspapers printed in the English or foreign language in which the notices pertaining to his office shall be published, and the board of supervisors shall designate the papers in which all other county notices shall be published. Any person now empowered under the law to designate the newspaper in which he desires to publish legal notices may select the newspaper printed in the English or foreign language. Such notice, however, must be printed in the English language." [35 G. A., ch. 48, § 1.] [C. '73, § 306.]

SEC. 550-a. Auditor of state to prescribe system of accounts—advisory committee. The auditor of state is hereby authorized and directed to formulate and prescribe a system of books, blanks, records, vouchers, receipts, etc., for use of county auditors, county treasurers and clerks of the district court, which system shall be adopted and used by all county auditors, county treasurers and clerks of the district court of the state from and after January first, nineteen hundred and eight. To assist in the preparation of the forms above contemplated, the auditor of state is hereby authorized to appoint a committee of not less than five nor more than seven persons, each of whom shall have had at least one term's experience either as county auditor, county treasurer or clerk of the district court, or who shall be an[1] expert accountant. The committee thus appointed shall serve without compensation except that the necessary traveling, hotel and other expenses of the members for a period of not more than thirty days shall be paid by the state, and the auditor of state is hereby authorized to draw warrants upon the treasurer of state for the payment of such expenses upon receipt of vouchers therefor properly filed with and approved by the executive coucil. [32 G. A., ch. 24, § 1.]

[1"an" does not appear in the session laws. EDITOR.]

SEC. 550-b. Forms furnished—expenses—how paid. The auditor of state shall, as soon as practicable after the same have been prepared, furnish each county auditor, county treasurer and clerk of the district court with a complete set of all forms prescribed under the provisions of this act pertaining to the affairs of his office and the expense thereof shall be paid in the same manner as other like expenses of the office of the auditor of state. [32 G. A., ch. 24, § 2.]

SEC. 550-c. Fees to be paid quarterly—acts in conflict repealed. That the clerk of the district court, county auditor and county recorder shall pay all fees collected by them and belonging to the county, into the county treasury quarterly. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

SECTION 551. Supervisors divide county into townships.

A township is not a body corporate for any purpose. It is a mere subdivision of the county for governmental purposes, and it is not therefore a municipal corporation. Hanson v. Cresco, 132–533, 109 N. W. 1109.

A civil township is not a corporation and cannot be sued. Austin Western Co. v. Weaver Twp., 136–709, 114 N. W. 189.

A township is not a body corporate and cannot sue or be sued, but its officers are required by law to perform certain duties which are conferred upon them by statute and for the nonperformance of which they may be liable in damages. Davis v. Laughlin, 147–478, 124 N. W. 876.

Township trustees are not individually liable for an injury caused by a defect in a highway. Theulen v. Township of Viola, 139–61, 117 N. W. 26.

SEC. 555. Notice. Notice of the time when such petition shall be presented shall be given by publication, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the township, the last of which publications shall be at least ten days prior to the time fixed for the presentation of such petition; or if no paper is printed in such township, or the papers therein printed refuse to make such publication, the notice herein contemplated shall be given by posting in five public places in the township, two of which shall be without, and three within, such corporate limits. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 2; C. '73, § 383.]

SEC. 560. Township and city coterminous—clerk and trustees abolished. Where a town or a city, not acting under a special charter, constitutes one or more civil townships the boundary lines of which coincide throughout with the boundary lines of the town or city, the offices of township clerk and trustee are abolished. [30 G. A., ch. 22; 24 G. A., ch. 10, § 1.]

SEC. 564. Trustees may employ counsel—county attorney may act when interests are not adverse. Whenever litigation shall arise, involving the right or duty of township trustees to certify or levy taxes which have been authorized upon expressed conditions, then in such cases, if the trustees are made parties to said litigation, they shall have authority to employ attorneys in behalf of said township, and are further authorized to levy the necessary tax to pay for said legal services, and to defray the unavoidable expenses of said litigation. Provided, however, in counties having a population of less than twenty-five thousand where the trustees are made parties to litigation arising by reason of the performance of their duties, as provided in this chapter, the county attorney, as a part of his official duties, shall appear in behalf of the township trustees. Provided, however, that if the interests of the county and the trustees are adverse, then in such event, the county attorney shall not appear for said trustees but they may employ other counsel and pay the expense thereof out of the fund created by this act. [34 G. A., ch. 31, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 120.]

It is only in such a case as contemplated in this section that the township trustees are authorized to employ attorneys in behalf of the township. Where they are sued in their individual capacity for breach of duty in connection with the highways they have no such authority. Davis v. Laughlin, 147–478, 124 N. W. 876.

SEC. 565. Assessor where city included. That the law as it appears in section five hundred sixty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

"In each even-numbered year there shall be elected in each township, a part of which is included within the corporate limits of any city or town, by the voters of such township residing without the corporate limits of such city or town, one assessor who shall be a resident of said territory outside of said city or town." [33 G. A., ch. 37, § 1.] [19 G. A., ch. 110; 18 G. A., ch. 201, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 6; C. '73, § 390.]

SEC. 576. Clerk to keep record—to handle funds. The township clerk shall keep a record of all the proceedings and orders of the trustees, and of all acts done by him, including the filing of certificates of official oaths having been taken before other officers, and perform such other acts as may be required of him by law. It shall be the duty of each township clerk to receive, collect, preserve, and disburse, under the orders of the township trustees, all funds belonging to his township, including the cemetery fund, and those which are now or may hereafter be by law created or authorized. [28 G. A., ch. 15, § 1; C. '73, §§ 392, 395–6; R. §§ 445, 448–9; C. '51, §§ 223, 226–7.]

SEC. 579. Constable—duties.

A writ of attachment from a district or superior court cannot be directed to a constable. Freeman v. Lind, 112–39, 83 N. W. 800.

SEC. 583. Cemeteries—plat—record of.

Action of township trustees with reference to boundaries of cemetery lots will not be binding on parties who do not have notice. Hassenclever v. Romkey, 133–470, 110 N. W. 905.

SEC. 584. Conveyance of lots—record of.

A lot owner in a cemetery established by the township trustees does not acquire fee title to such lot by his deed. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

SEC. 585. Trustees condemn lands. The township trustees are hereby empowered to condemn, or purchase and pay for out of the general fund, and enter upon and take, any lands within the territorial limits of such township for the use of cemeteries, in the same manner as is now provided for cities and towns. Civil townships are hereby authorized and empowered to receive by gift, devise, or bequest, money or property for the purpose of establishing and maintaining libraries, township halls, cemeteries, or for any other public purpose. All such gifts, devises, or bequests shall be effectual only when accepted by resolution of the board of trustees of such township. [31 G. A., ch. 17; 16 G. A., ch. 130, § 3.]

SEC. 586. Tax to pay for—adjoining townships. They shall, at the regular meeting in April, levy a tax sufficient to pay for any such lands so condemned or purchased, or for the necessary improvement and maintenance of cemeteries thus established, or for the maintenance and improvement of cemeteries so established in adjoining townships in case they deem such action advisable. They shall have power to control any such cemeteries, or appoint trustees for the same, or sell them to any private corporation for cemetery purposes. They shall also have power to levy a tax not to exceed one mill to improve and maintain any cemetery not owned by the township, provided the same is devoted to general public use. The levy herein authorized may be extended to property within the limits of any city or town so far as same is situated within the township, unless such city or town is already maintaining a cemetery, or has levied a tax in support thereof. And the said tax may be so expended for the support and maintenance of any such cemetery after the same has been abandoned and is no longer used for the purpose of interring the dead. [35 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 38, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 23; 29 G. A., ch. 28, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 130, § 4.]

SEC. 590. Compensation of trustees. Township trustees shall receive:

1. For each day's service of eight hours necessarily engaged in official business, to be paid out of the county treasury, two dollars each, except in townships having a population of thirty thousand or over, and situated entirely within the limits of a city acting under special charter, such compensation shall be three dollars per day;

2. For each day engaged in assessing damages done by trespassing animals, one dollar each, to be paid as other costs are in such cases;

3. When acting as fence viewers, or viewing or locating any ditch or drain, or in any other case where provision is made for their payment otherwise, they shall not be paid out of such treasury, but in all such cases their fees shall be paid in the first instance by the party requiring their services, and they shall append to the report of their proceedings a statement thereof, and therein shall direct who shall pay said fees, and in what sums respectively; and the party having so advanced any such fees may have his action therefor against the party so directed to pay the same, unless, within ten days after demand by the party entitled thereto, he shall be reimbursed therefor. [33 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 35; C. '73, § 3808; R. § 4156; C. '51, § 2548.]

SEC. 591. Compensation of clerk. The township clerk shall receive:

1. For each day of eight hours necessarily engaged in official business, where no other compensation or mode of payment is provided, to be paid from the county treasury, two dollars, except in townships having a population of thirty thousand or over, and situated entirely within the limits of a city acting under special charter, such compensation shall be three dollars per day;

2. For all money coming into his hands by virtue of his office, except money received from his predecessor in office, unless otherwise provided by law, two per cent.;

3. For filing each application for a drain or ditch, fifty cents;

4. For making out and certifying the papers in any appeal taken from an assessment by the trustees of damages done by trespassing animals, such additional compensation as the board of supervisors may allow. [33 G. A., ch. 40, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 25; 16 G. A., ch. 61; C. '73, § 3809; R. §§ 909, 911.]

SEC. 592. Compensation of assessor. Each township assessor shall receive in full for all services required of him by law, a sum to be paid out of the county treasury, and fixed annually by the board of supervisors at their January session; said compensation shall be for the succeeding year, and shall not exceed the sum of two and one-half dollars for each day of eight hours which said board determines may necessarily be required in the discharge of all official duties of such assessors, except in townships having a population of thirty thousand or over, and situated entirely within the limits of a city acting under special charter, such compensation shall be four dollars per day. [33 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.] [C. '73, § 3810; R. § 730.]

SEC. 592-a. Township trustees—power to contract for use of public libraries—tax—annual levy. Section five hundred ninety-two-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following is enacted as a substitute therefor:

"The township trustees of any civil township shall have power to contract with any free public library for the free use of such library by the residents of said township, as provided in section one[1] of this act and to pay such library the amount agreed therefor, and to levy annually, at the April meeting, a tax not exceeding one mill on the dollar on the taxable property of the township, the fund derived from which shall constitute a special fund to be known as the library fund, and shall be used exclusively for the purposes contemplated in this section. When a majority of the resident taxpayers, as shown by the last preceding assessment list of such civil township, petition the trustees thereof in writing to enter into such contract, and such library gives its written consent thereto, it shall be the duty of such trustees to execute such contract. When any such contract is made, whether on petition of the resident taxpayers or without such petition, a tax in an amount sufficient to pay such library the consideration agreed upon, not exceeding one mill on the dollar, shall be annually levied by such trustees and their successors, until such contract is terminated by its own provisions or by a majority vote of the electors of such township." [35 G. A., ch. 70, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 16; 31 G. A., ch. 14, § 3.]

SEC. 592-b. Township hall funds—transfer authorized—how made. That whenever there is now, funds in the hands of any township clerk, when same was raised under the provisions of sections five hundred sixty-seven and five hundred sixty-eight of the code, when same is not desired for the purposes set forth in above-mentioned sections, then said fund may be transferred to road fund of any township wherein same was raised, when a petition is presented to the trustees, signed by a majority of the electors of said township that voted at the last regular election prior to the signing of said petition, as shown by the poll books of said township, said transfer of funds to be made by the township clerk, upon the filing of said petition with said clerk, upon order of the trustees. [31 G. A., ch. 18.]

CHAPTER 11.

OF GENERAL REGULATIONS AFFECTING COUNTIES AND TOWNSHIPS.

SECTION 596. Officers not to purchase warrants.

The statute prohibits the purchase at a discount by an officer of any claim against the county, whether it be evidenced in writing or not. Harrison County v. Ogden, 133–677, 108 N. W. 451.

TITLE V.

OF CITY AND TOWN GOVERNMENT.

CHAPTER 1.

OF INCORPORATION.

SECTION 599. How effected.

The petition is to be presented to the district court and not to the judge. State ex rel. v. Council, 106–731, 77 N. W. 474.

Organization of an incorporated town alone has no effect on the boundaries of a school district. These will remain as before the incorporation. Independent School Dist. v. Jones, 142–8, 120 N. W. 315.

SEC. 600. Commissioners—notice. Upon compliance with the provisions of the preceding section, the court shall at once appoint five commissioners, who shall at once give notice of an election for incorporation, for not less than three successive weeks preceding the same, by posting notices in three public places within the limits of the proposed town, and by publication, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county where the court is held; which notice shall state the time and place of holding the election, and a description of the limits of the proposed town, and that a plat and description thereof is on file in the office of the clerk of the district court. The court is vested with power to change or limit the territory proposed to be incorporated, before appointing the commissioners as herein provided. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 20; C. '73, § 422.]

SEC. 602. Notice of election of officers—council to elect assessors. If a majority of the ballots cast at such election be in favor of the incorporation, and the same has been confirmed and approved as above provided, the court, or a judge thereof in vacation, shall order the election of a council, mayor, clerk and treasurer. The commissioners shall give notice for two consecutive weeks of the time and place of holding the election of councilmen and the aforesaid officers, by publication, once each week, in a newspaper published in the county where the court is held, and by posting the same in five public places within the limits of such town, at which the qualified electors residing within such limits shall elect such councilmen and officers, who shall hold their offices until the first regular election thereafter. Said commissioners shall act as judges and clerks of the election, and shall have the same power and discharge the same duties as clerks in city or town elections, and such election shall be conducted, as far as practicable, in the manner prescribed by law for the election of town councilmen and officers. When the election of town officers as provided by this section shall be held on, or after, the date of the annual election for towns and prior to January first following, the council of said town so elected and confirmed by the court shall, at a regular meeting held prior to the first day of November following their election, elect an assessor for said town, who shall hold office for one year commencing on the first day of January next after his said election. The council shall elect the said assessor in the manner provided by subdivision nine of section six hundred sixty-eight of the code. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 28; 28 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; C. '73, §§ 423, 425.]

SEC. 608. Publication. When the incorporation of any city or town shall have been discontinued, the clerk of the court shall cause a notice thereof to be published, once each week, for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county where the court is held, and shall also certify the fact to the secretary of state and to the recorder of the county. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 21; C. '73, § 452.]

SEC. 611. By proceedings in court. When any city or town shall desire to annex abutting and contiguous territory which has been laid out in lots or parcels, not within the limits of a city or town, the council thereof may present to the district court of the county in which the city or town is situated a petition, describing the territory to be annexed, and stating that the same had been laid out as above mentioned, the facts constituting the desirability of annexation, the name of each owner of any portion thereof, if there is more than one such owner, and the particular portion of such territory owned by each, which petition shall have attached thereto a plat thereof. Notice of the filing of such petition shall be served, by publication in one newspaper published in the city or town, once each week, for four consecutive weeks, and by posting in five public places in the territory desired to be annexed for the same period; the corporation shall be plaintiff, the owners defendants, and issues joined and the case tried as an ordinary action, as far as applicable, except that no judgment for costs shall be rendered against any defendant who does not make defense. If the court finds the allegations of the petition true, and that justice requires the annexation of said territory or any part thereof, a decree shall be entered accordingly, and from that time the territory therein described shall be included in such corporation. The same record and certified copies shall be made and filed as provided in the preceding section. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 22; C. '73, § 431.]

SEC. 614. Indebtedness—how paid.

The remedy of the holder of bonds issued by a city subsequently annexed to another, and which has ceased to have officers of its own, is by a suit in equity against the city to which the annexation is made, which is to be deemed in equity a trustee for the creditor, charged with the duty of collecting the amount adjudged to be due him. Burlington Sav. Bank v. Clinton, 106 Fed. 269. And see S. C. 111 Fed. 439.

SEC. 615. Extension—how effected. Any city or town may have its limits enlarged by resolution of the council, fixing the boundaries of the city or town, to the proposed extent, which shall, as far as practicable, be terminated by straight lines drawn parallel, respectively, to the corresponding lines of the government survey, and the question must then be submitted to the vote of the electors of the city or town as thus proposed to be enlarged, on a day fixed by resolution of the council, and notice thereof given by proclamation of the mayor of the time and place of holding the same, setting forth the exact question to be presented to the electors for determination, which shall be published in some newspaper published in said city or town, once each week, for four weeks, consecutively; provided, however, that where no newspaper is published in such city or town, such proclamation shall be posted for an equal length of time in five public places within the corporate limits of said city or town, one of which shall be on the door of the mayor's office. The council shall select three judges and two clerks for said election, whose duties shall be the same as prescribed by law for judges and clerks of election. If at such election a majority of the votes cast are for such extension, the mayor shall issue a proclamation announcing that fact, and from thenceforth the limits of said city or town shall be enlarged as proposed. [35 G. A., ch. 51, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 23; 17 G. A., ch. 169, §§ 1–3; 16 G. A., ch. 47, §§ 1–3.]

A resolution providing for the submission of the question of extending the boundaries to the vote of the electors is simply a step to an election, and citizens in general have no right to be heard on the question of the adoption of such resolution. Moore v. City Council, 119–423, 93 N. W. 510.

The legality of the action of the council with reference to the extension of city limits may be tested by an action of certiorari. Ibid.

Irregularity in the form of the ballots prepared by the town officials will not vitiate the result of the election if the voters are not misled thereby. Lehigh Sewer Pipe & Tile Co. v. Lehigh, 156–386, 136 N. W. 934.

As to a proceeding for the extension of town limits, there is no provision for a recount of ballots cast on the question of such extension. Ibid.

SEC. 616. Taxation of lands. No lands included within said extended limits which shall not have been laid off into lots of ten acres or less, or which shall not subsequently be divided into parcels of ten acres or less by the extension of streets and alleys, and which shall also in good faith be occupied and used for agricultural or horticultural purposes, shall be taxable for any city or town purpose, except that they may be subjected to a road tax to the same extent as though they were outside of the city or town limits, which tax shall be paid into the city or town treasury. Said lands shall not be exempt from taxation for library purposes as provided by section seven hundred thirty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter forty-six of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly. [35 G. A., ch. 52, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 158; 17 G. A., ch. 169, §§ 4, 5; 16 G. A., ch. 47, § 4.]

The mere temporary occupancy and use for agricultural purposes of annexed land will not prevent its being subject to municipal assessments. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

The exemption of agricultural lands, owned in tracts of ten acres or more, from city taxes, does not apply to property which is used for city residence purposes. Windsor v. Polk County, 109–156, 80 N. W. 323.

SEC. 622. Severance—application. When the inhabitants of a part of any town or city, whether the same is or is not laid out in lots and blocks, desire to have the part thereof in which they reside severed therefrom, they may apply by petition in writing, signed by a majority of the resident property holders of that part of the territory of such city or town, to the district court of the county, which petition shall describe the territory proposed to be severed, and have attached thereto a plat thereof, and shall name the person or persons authorized to act in behalf of the petitioners in the prosecution of said petition. Where the property sought to be severed has not been subdivided into lots or blocks and there are no owners residing upon any portion of the same, the petition may be signed and the proceedings maintained in like manner by a majority of the owners of the property sought to be severed. [31 G. A., ch. 19; C. '73, § 440; R. § 1048.]

This section does not require that the reasons for desiring a severance shall be stated, and it evidently is not intended that the ordinary rules of pleading shall apply in such cases. Luick v. Belmond, 109–361, 80 N. W. 431.

It is for the court to determine whether control over the territory proposed to be severed is important to the proper exercise of police powers on the part of the city, and whether if desirable for residence purposes it is likely to be so occupied in the future; and the finding of the court or jury will not ordinarily be disturbed in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion. If however the interest of the city in retention of the territory is only for the purpose of deriving taxes therefrom, the severance should be granted. Johnson v. Forest City, 129–51, 105 N. W. 353.

Difference in the rate of assessments between property within the corporate limits and outside property will not be a ground for severing territory which by reason of its use is not subjected to city taxation. Hanson v. Cresco. 132–533, 109 N. W. 1109.

In such a proceeding, the question as to how the territory came to be annexed to the corporation is immaterial. Ibid.

The fact that a portion of the territory proposed to be severed is necessary for sewer outlets, garbage disposal, and the location of a pest house, will not make such severance improper in view of the fact sewers may be maintained through territory outside of the corporate limits, and outside property may be held by the municipality for garbage disposal and location of a pest house. Ibid.

The danger of increasing assessable valuations on account of inclusion of property within corporate limitations is not a ground for severance of territory. Wilson v. Waterloo, 138–628, 116 N. W. 734; Peek v. Waterloo, 138–650, 116 N. W. 735.

The fact that land used for agricultural purposes is included within the limits of a town does not entitle the owner thereof to have it severed. The sanitary regulations of the town and the probable necessity for future growth may be taken into account in determining whether such territory is properly included. In re Town of LeRoy, 135–562, 113 N. W. 347.

The petition should be signed by the majority of the holders of real property of the portion of the city or town which is asked to be severed. The reference to "resident property holders" does not relate to inhabitants owning personal property only. Stason v. Albia, 150–207, 129 N. W. 809.

SEC. 625. Trial—commissioners appointed.

On an application to have territory detached from a city on the ground that the land included therein was not platted and was used exclusively for agricultural purposes and not needed for any possible increase of city population, held that it did not sufficiently appear that the land was not needed for the city and that it would not be presumed that it would be taxed unreasonably, and the judgment of the court on a verdict of the jury that the territory should not be severed was sustained. Christ v. Webster City, 105–119, 74 N. W. 743.

SEC. 633. Proclamation—notice. The mayor, or, in case there is no mayor, the president of the council, shall at once issue a proclamation giving notice of such election, of the question submitted to the electors, and of the time and place of holding the election, which proclamation shall be published, once each week, for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in such city or town, and, if there is none published therein, then such proclamation shall be published by posting a copy thereof in five public places within the corporate limits of such city or town, one of which shall be on the door of the mayor's office. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 24; C. '73, § 436.]

OF ORGANIZATION AND OFFICERS.

SECTION 639. Change of class—loss of population. Within six months after the publication of any state or federal census, the executive council shall cause a statement and list of each city or town affected thereby, in its class as a municipal corporation, to be published in some newspaper at the seat of government, and in each city or town the class of which is changed by an increase of population. Provided, however, that any city at the time of taking effect of the code having a population sufficient to be classed either as a city of the first or second class shall remain in such class, and shall not be affected in its classification by a subsequent loss of population unless in cities of the second class, as shown by the last state or federal census, the population shall have dropped below fifteen hundred and in cities of the first class, below ten thousand. [35 G. A., ch. 53, § 1.] [15 G. A., ch. 52; C. '73, § 509; R. § 1079.]

SEC. 641. Wards. Cities may be, by the council thereof, divided into wards, new ones created, or the boundaries changed, but in all cases, whether it be the creation of wards or the changing of the boundaries thereof, the same shall be laid off, as nearly as may be, in a rectangular form, conforming the lines to the center of the streets or alleys, and giving to each ward, as far as practicable, an equal population; but in cities of the second class the number shall not be increased beyond five nor decreased to less than two. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 26; C. '73, § 520; R. § 1092.]

The city council has power to create new wards by ordinance but not by resolution. Cascaden v. Waterloo, 106–673, 77 N. W. 333.

SEC. 642. Regular elections.

The residence of an elector, if an unmarried man having no other home, is in the ward in which he rooms, and not in that of the boarding house at which he takes his meals. State v. Savre, 129–122, 105 N. W. 387.

Municipal elections are held according to the regulations enacted for the conduct of general elections. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

SEC. 643. Officers to be residents.

Where a woman was elected clerk of a city but on a question raised as to her eligibility to the office she resigned and her husband was appointed, after which she kept the records of the meetings of the council which were signed by him as clerk, held that the validity of the proceedings thus recorded was not impaired. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

SEC. 645. Council—how composed. That section six hundred forty-five of the supplement to the code [1902] be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"City and town councils shall be composed as follows: In cities, two councilmen at large and one councilman from each ward; in towns, five councilmen at large." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 29, § 2; 19 G. A., ch. 25; 18 G. A., ch. 120; 17 G. A., chs. 9, 14; C. '73, §§ 511, 521, 531; R. §§ 1081, 1093.]

SEC. 646. Election of councilmen—terms of office. That section six hundred forty-six of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"On the organization of a city or town or on its reorganization after the change of its class, or at the first regular municipal election hereafter, a council shall be elected as follows, except that in those cities of the second class that elect a mayor in odd-numbered years, the term of those councilmen and officers expiring in nineteen hundred and eight is extended one year; in those cities of the second class that elect a mayor in even-numbered years, the term of those councilmen and officers expiring in nineteen hundred and nine is extended one year; and at the municipal election at which a mayor is elected in nineteen hundred and nine or nineteen hundred ten, as the case may be, the council shall be elected in accordance with the provisions of this act: By the election of two councilmen at large, but if any city embraces within its limits the whole or part of two or more townships, two of which contain one thousand or more electors, only one of the councilmen at large shall be chosen from any one township. There shall also be elected at the same time one councilman from each ward, who shall be chosen by the electors residing within the limits thereof. Thereafter, the successors of such councilmen at large and ward councilmen and officers shall be chosen at the regular biennial elections and shall hold office for two years. In towns in which a mayor is elected in the even-numbered years the officers and councilmen shall be elected under the provisions of this act in the year nineteen hundred ten, and the councilmen and officers to be elected in nineteen hundred and eight shall be elected for a term of two years, and the term of councilmen and officers whose terms expire in nineteen hundred and nine shall be extended one year. In towns in which a mayor is elected in odd-numbered years the officers and councilmen shall be elected under the provisions of this act in nineteen hundred eleven, and the councilmen and officers to be elected in nineteen hundred and eight shall be elected for a term of three years. The councilmen and officers to be elected in nineteen hundred and nine shall be elected for two years, and the term of councilmen and officers whose term expires in nineteen hundred ten shall be extended one year. All town officers[1] elected in nineteen hundred ten or nineteen hundred eleven, as the case may be, and thereafter under the provisions of this act, shall be elected for the term of two years." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 3; 19 G. A., ch. 25; 17 G. A., chs. 9, 14; C. '73, §§ 511, 521; R. § 1093.]

Under the provisions of 32 G. A., ch. 26, held that in cities of the second class in which officers were to be elected in even-numbered years, such officers were to be elected in 1908 in accordance with the statute repealed and the councilmen were not to be chosen under the statute until 1910. State v. Payton, 139–125, 117 N. W. 43.

SEC. 647. Elective officers in cities of first class. That section six hundred forty-seven of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In all cities of the first class there shall be elected biennially a mayor, solicitor, treasurer, auditor, city engineer, assessor, and in cities where there is no superior court, a police judge." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 4; 19 G. A., ch. 110; 18 G. A., ch. 201, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 20; 16 G. A., chs. 6, 33; C. '73, §§ 390, 535; R. § 1106.]

SEC. 648. Elective officers in cities of second class. That section six hundred forty-eight of the supplement to the code, 1907, and the law as it appears therein, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In cities of the second class there shall be elected biennially a mayor, treasurer and assessor." [35 G. A., ch. 54, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 5; 21 G. A., ch. 141; 19 G. A., ch. 110; 16 G. A., ch. 6; C. '73, §§ 390, 517, 532; R. §§ 1090, 1103.]

SEC. 649. Elective officers in towns. That section six hundred forty-nine of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In towns there shall be elected, biennially, a mayor, treasurer and assessor." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 6; 19 G. A., ch. 110; 17 G. A., ch. 9; 16 G. A., ch. 6; C. '73, §§ 390, 511, 514; R. §§ 1081, 1084.]

SEC. 651. Officers appointed by council. That section six hundred fifty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, and the law as it appears therein, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In all cities and towns the council, at its first meeting after the biennial election, shall appoint a clerk, and in cities of the second class shall appoint a city solicitor." [35 G. A., ch. 54, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 7; 25 G. A., ch. 13, §§ 1, 3; 17 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 33, § 1; C. '73, §§ 515, 522, 532, 534; R. §§ 1086, 1093, 1103, 1105.]

Under this section as it originally stood, the term of office of street commissioner was in effect fixed at two years and the occupant of the office at the end of a two years' term who was a veteran had no better right to appointment than another candidate who was also a veteran. (See code supp. § 1056-a15.) King v. Ottumwa, 148-411, 126 N. W. 943.

SEC. 652. Officers appointed by the mayor. That section six hundred fifty-two of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The officers to be appointed by the mayor shall be as follows:

1. The mayor of each city or town shall appoint a health physician, street commissioner and a marshal who shall be, ex officio, chief of police, and may also appoint one or more deputy marshals. In cities and towns he shall appoint as many policemen as the council, by general ordinance, shall direct, and such officers shall hold their positions during the pleasure of the mayor. He shall also appoint such officers as shall be provided by ordinance. He may also, in cases of emergency, appoint such number of special policemen as he may think proper, reporting such special appointment to the council at its next regular meeting; all such special appointments to continue in force until such meetings, unless sooner terminated by the mayor. In cities having a board of police and fire commission, policemen shall be appointed as provided in the act creating such board.

2. In cities of the first class, he shall appoint, when deemed necessary, a wharf master. If there is a board of public works, such board shall appoint the street commissioner." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 8; 25 G. A., ch. 13; 20 G. A., ch. 7, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 20, §§ 1, 2; 16 G. A., ch. 33, § 2; C. '73, §§ 515, 532, 534–5, 537; R. §§ 1086, 1103, 1105–6.]

The marshal in towns being an appointee of the mayor, a contract between the city council and a person to act as marshal at a stipulated salary is not valid. Baxter v. Beacon, 112-744, 84 N. W. 932.

SEC. 654. Police matrons—appointment—number. In cities having a population of twenty-five thousand or more, for each station house provided therein for the detention or imprisonment of women or children under arrest, the mayor may, and in cities having a population of thirty-five thousand or over shall appoint one or more women, residents of the city, as police matrons, who shall be over thirty years of age. The appointees shall be, so far as applicable, subject to the same regulations and restrictions as policemen, and hold their positions during good behavior, unless by reason of age or infirmity they become incapacitated to perform the duties of the position. [27 G. A., ch. 18, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 15, §§ 2, 3, 5.]

A city may by ordinance provide for the appointment of a police matron, without regard to statutory authority, and may by contract fix her compensation at a different rate than that fixed by statute. Daniels v. Des Moines, 108-484, 79 N. W. 269.

SEC. 654-a. Applicable to special charter cities. The provisions of the law as it appears in section six hundred fifty-four of the supplement to the code [1902] and section six hundred seventy-two of the code, are also made applicable to cities acting under special charters. [32 G. A., ch. 27.]

SEC. 655. Other officers—appointed by mayor. Cities and towns may, by general ordinance, provide for the appointment, by the mayor, of such additional officers, including superintendent of markets, harbor masters and port wardens, usual and proper for the regulation and control of navigation, trade or commerce, or needful and proper for the good government of the city or town, or the due exercise of its corporate powers, and fix their term of office, as they may deem necessary. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 9; 16 G. A., ch. 33, §§ 1, 2; C. '73, 514, 524, 528; R. §§ 1084, 1095, 1098.]

SEC. 657. Removal of appointive officers. That section six hundred fifty-seven of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All persons appointed to office in any city or town may be removed by the officer or body making the appointment, but every such removal shall be by written order which shall give the reasons therefor and be filed with the city clerk." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 10.]

SEC. 658. Mayor—powers and duties. In cities and towns, the mayor shall have powers and perform duties as follows:

1. Executive officer—magistrate. He shall be a conservator of the peace, and, within the limits of the same, shall have all the powers conferred upon sheriffs to suppress disorders. He shall be the chief executive officer thereof, and it shall be his duty to enforce all regulations and ordinances; he may, upon view, arrest any one guilty of a violation thereof, or of any crime under the laws of the state, and shall, upon information supported by affidavit, issue process for the arrest of any person charged with violating any ordinance of the city; shall supervise the conduct of all corporate officers, examine into the grounds of complaint made against them, and cause all neglect or violation of duty to be corrected, or report the same to the proper tribunal, that they may be dealt with as provided by law. [C. '73, §§ 506, 519, 537; R. §§ 1085, 1091, 1102, 1105.]

2. Office. He shall keep an office at some convenient place in the city or town, to be provided by the council, and keep the corporate seal thereof in his charge. [16 G. A., ch. 58; C. '73, § 518; R. § 1091.]

3. Signature. He shall sign all commissions, licenses and permits granted by the authority of the council, and do such other acts as by law or ordinance may require his signature or certificate. [16 G. A., ch. 58; C. '73, § 518; R. § 1091.]

4. Other duties. He shall also perform such other duties compatible with the nature of his office as the council may from time to time require. [C. '73, § 519; R. § 1091.]

5. Presiding officer—vote. That paragraph five of section six hundred fifty-eight of the supplement to the code [1902] be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"He shall be the presiding officer of the council with the right to vote only in case of a tie." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 11; 29 G. A., ch. 29, § 1; 18 G. A., chs. 120, 146; 17 G. A., ch. 9; 16 G. A., ch. 58; C. '73, §§ 512, 518, 531; R. §§ 1082, 1091.]

6. Report. He shall, at the first regular meeting of the newly elected council in April, and at such other times as he may deem expedient, report to it concerning the municipal affairs of the city or town, and recommend such measures as to him may seem advisable. [C. '73, § 534; R. § 1105.]

7. Hold police court. Until a police judge or judge of superior court shall be elected and qualified in cities entitled to elect such officer, he shall have all the powers and jurisdiction and shall hold the police court in such manner as is required of such judge. [C. '73, § 547; R. § 1121.]

8. Station houses for women. In all cities containing a population of twenty-five thousand or more, he shall designate one or more station houses within such city for the detention or imprisonment of all women and children under arrest in said city, and see that provisions are made by which the rooms or cells set apart for them shall be separate from and out of sight of the rooms or cells in which male prisoners are imprisoned. [25 G. A., ch. 15, § 1.]

Par. 1. Executive officer—magistrate: Where the mayor of a town causes the arrest of a property owner for resisting eviction from a portion of the premises occupied by him, which is claimed by the town as a street, the official position of the mayor will not relieve him from liability if the arrest is wrongful and without jurisdiction. Young v. Gormley, 120–372, 94 N. W. 922.

Par. 2. Office: Where a city fails to furnish a proper office for its mayor he may furnish one and collect the actual and reasonable expense thereof from the city. Hill v. Clarinda, 103–409, 72 N. W. 542.

Par. 5. Presiding officers—vote: The mayor is the presiding officer of the city council when acting as a board of review for the equalizing of taxes. Frost v. Board of Review, 113–547, 85 N. W. 770.

The right of the mayor to a casting vote is limited to cases where there is in fact a tie. State v. Alexander, 107–177, 77 N. W. 841.

Under the code of '73, the mayor of a city of the second class being a member of the city council, though only voting in case of tie, held that he must be included with the council in determining whether a proposition was carried by a three-fourths vote. Griffin v. Messenger, 114–99, 86 N. W. 219.

SEC. 658-a. Legalizing certain proceedings. That all acts, motions, proceedings, resolutions and ordinances heretofore passed or adopted by the council of any city, including cities acting under special charter, and incorporated towns in the state on the supposition that the mayor was not a member of such council, and which would conform to the law if the mayor had not been a member of said council, shall for all purposes from the date of such act, motion, proceeding, resolution or ordinance, be considered as valid and legal as they would have been had the mayor not been a member of such body. [29 G. A., ch. 224, § 1.]

SEC. 659. Clerk—duties.

The clerk is to keep an accurate record of proceedings under the supervision of the council, and the council, on hearing the record read by the clerk, may correct it. The council has the control of the record of its proceedings, and until such record is approved it is open to such modifications as may be necessary to truthfully exemplify what has been done. Mann v. LeMars, 109–251, 80 N. W. 327.

Although the record of proceedings of the council is kept by one who is not the clerk, if such record is approved by the council and attested by the duly authorized clerk, the validity of the record is not involved. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

The town clerk is required to make an accurate record of all proceedings of the council and there cannot be a certification of a record of a resolution adopted by such council unless a record thereof has been made. Sawyer v. Collins, 148–712, 127 N. W. 1015.

SEC. 660. Treasurer—duties.

The preference given to warrant holders by this section applies only as between warrants issued in any given year. Holders of warrants for the expenses of one year have no claim on the funds of a subsequent year, at least until the expenses of the latter year are paid. Phillips v. Reed, 107–331, 76 N. W. 850, 77 N. W. 1031. And see Phillips v. Reed, 109–188, 80 N. W. 347.

SEC. 660-a. Depositary—daily balances—interest—bond by bank. That treasurers of cities of the first and second class, cities operating under special charter and cities under the commission form of government shall, with the approval of the city council as to place and amount of deposit, by resolution entered of record, deposit all city funds in any bank or banks in the city to which the said funds belong, at interest at the rate of not less than two per cent. per annum on ninety per cent. of the daily balances payable at the end of each month, all of which interest shall accrue to the benefit of the general city fund; but before such deposit is made in any bank it shall file a bond for double the amount deposited with sureties to be approved by the treasurer and the city council and conditioned to hold the treasurer harmless from all loss by reason of such deposit or deposits; provided that in cases where an approved surety company's bond is furnished said bond may be accepted in an amount of ten per cent. more than the amount deposited. Said bonds shall be filed with the city clerk and action shall be brought thereon by the treasurer or the city as the council may elect. [35 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.]

SEC. 660-b. Failure of local bank to accept funds. If no bank or banks in the city will accept said deposits under the terms and conditions of this act then the said funds shall be deposited in any bank or banks in the state which[1] will accept said funds under the terms and conditions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 55, § 2.]

[1"who" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 660-c. Private use of funds prohibited. No treasurer shall loan or in any manner use for private purposes any funds coming into his hands as such treasurer. [35 G. A., ch. 55, § 3.]

SEC. 660-d. Expense of bond. That if the city treasurer shall request it the city shall pay the reasonable expense of procuring the bond for the city treasurer not exceeding one half of one per cent. per annum upon the amount thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 55, § 4.]

SEC. 661. Assessor—duties—deputies—officer—supplies. All assessors elected by cities and towns shall perform the same duties as township assessors. They may appoint such number of deputies as the council shall authorize. Except that in cities of the first class having a population of sixty thousand or over the board of supervisors of the county shall furnish the assessor with supplies and an office. And said assessor shall appoint such number of deputies as the board of supervisors may authorize, such appointments to be approved by the said board. If any city or town is situated in two or more counties, the assessor shall make returns of the assessment to the proper county. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 12; 29 G. A., ch. 30, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 110; 18 G. A., ch. 201, §§ 1, 2; 16 G. A., ch. 6; C. '73, § 390.]

SEC. 662. Marshal—duties.

The town council is given no power to appoint a marshal. Baxter v. Beacon, 112–744, 84 N. W. 932.

A marshal arresting a person without warrant will be liable in damages for false arrest if he does not take the prisoner before a magistrate and make complaint before him. Stewart v. Feeley, 118–524, 92 N. W. 670.

SEC. 663. Deputy marshals—duties.

A deputy marshal held not to be a peace officer under the provisions of § 4109 of code of '73, and therefore not entitled to fees for the arrest of vagrants under 23 G. A., ch. 43. Twinam v. Lucas County, 104–231, 73 N. W. 473.

SEC. 666. Other officers—powers and duties.

A street commissioner has apparent authority to grade the streets, and if he does so in a case where the grading is unlawful and his acts are known to the city council and not objected to, his authority will be presumed and the city will be liable. Brown v. Webster City, 115–511, 88 N. W. 1070.

The act of the city engineer or chief of fire department in directing a water company as to the pressure to be maintained at certain hydrants or in certain districts does not amount to a waiver of the terms of a contract between the company and the city as to the water pressure to be maintained. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 117–250, 90 N. W. 746.

It is the duty of the city attorney to represent the city in a litigation pending in court and his appearance for it in instituting a suit, or in its behalf when sued, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, is presumed to have been authorized. Rankin v. Chariton, 139 N. W. 560, 141 N. W. 424.

SEC. 668. City and town councils—powers and duties. All legislative and other powers granted to cities and towns shall be exercised by the councils, except those conferred upon some officer by law or ordinance. They shall perform the duties required in this code including the following:

1. Organization. The members of such council shall, on the first Monday after their election, assemble and organize the council. [C. '73, § 522; R. § 1093.]

2. Quorum. In all cities or towns, a majority of the whole number of members to which such corporation is entitled, including the mayor, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum. [17 G. A., ch. 9; C. '73, §§ 511, 522; R. §§ 1081, 1093.]

3. Meetings. They shall determine the time and place of holding their meetings, which shall at all times be open to the public, and, in the absence of the mayor or clerk, shall appoint a temporary chairman or clerk from their own number, which appointment shall be entered of record. [C. '73, § 524; R. § 1095.]

4. Special meetings. The mayor or any three members of the council shall call special meetings by notice to each of the members, personally served, or left at his usual place of residence, of which service a record shall be made by the clerk. [C. '73, § 524; R. § 1095.]

5. Rules—journal. They shall determine the rules of their own proceedings, and keep a journal thereof, which shall be open to the inspection and examination of any citizen. [C. '73, § 522; R. § 1093.]

6. Attendance of members. They may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as they may prescribe. [C. '73, § 522; R. § 1093.]

7. Seal. Each council shall cause to be provided a seal, in the center of which shall be the name of the city or town, and around the margin the words, "city seal" or "town seal," as the case may be, which shall be affixed to all transcripts, orders or certificates which it may be necessary or proper to authenticate. [C. '73, §§ 454, 523; R. §§ 1047, 1094.]

8. Election of officers. All appointments or elections of officers, except for the purpose of filling vacancies, in offices not filled by election by the council, shall be made viva voce, and the concurrence of a majority of the whole number of members of the council shall be required. On the vote resulting in an election or appointment, the name of each member and for whom he voted shall be recorded. [18 G. A., ch. 146, § 3; C. '73, § 493; R. § 1134.]

9. Filling vacancies. In selecting persons to fill vacancies in offices not filled by election by the council, it shall vote by ballot, and the person receiving a majority of the votes of the whole number of members shall be declared elected to fill such vacancy. [19 G. A., ch. 124, § 2.]

10. Terms of officers. They shall fix by ordinance the terms of service, not exceeding one year, except in cities holding biennial elections, where such term shall not exceed two years, of all officers appointed or elected, whose terms are not prescribed by law. [C. '73, §§ 514, 524; R. §§ 1084, 1095.]

11. Powers of officers. They shall prescribe by ordinance the powers to be exercised and duties to be performed by the officers appointed or elected, so far as such powers and duties are not defined by law. [C. '73, §§ 514, 524–5, 528; R. §§ 1084, 1095, 1096, 1098.]

12. Police force. They shall have power to establish a police force, and to organize the same under the general supervision of the marshal, and to provide one or more station houses. [C. '73, §§ 525, 542; R. §§ 1116, 1695.]

13. Control of finances. They shall have the management and control of the finances and all the property, real and personal, belonging to the city or town. [C. '73, § 524; R. § 1095.]

14. Members not interested. No member of any council shall, during the time for which he has been elected, be appointed to any municipal office which shall be created, or the emoluments of which shall be increased, during the term for which he shall have been elected; nor shall he be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract or job for work, or the profits thereof, or services to be performed for the corporation. [C. '73, § 490; R. § 1122.]

15. Provide for custody of women and children. In cities having a population of twenty-five thousand inhabitants or more, the council shall appropriate annually such sums as may be necessary for the arrangements needed to secure separate care and confinement in the station houses of all women and children under arrest, and for the appointment, salary and maintenance of police matrons. [25 G. A., ch. 15, § 6.]

16. Appropriations. In cities of the first and second class, the council shall make the appropriation for all the different expenditures of the city government for each fiscal year at or before the beginning thereof, and it shall be unlawful for it or any officer, agent or employe of the city to issue any warrant, enter into any contract, or appropriate any money, in excess of the amount thus appropriated, for the different expenses of the city, during the year for which said appropriation shall be made. Any such city shall not appropriate, in the aggregate, an amount in excess of its annual legally authorized revenue; but nothing herein shall prevent such cities from anticipating their revenues for the year for which such appropriation is made, or from bonding or refunding their outstanding indebtedness. The council of such cities shall advertise in at least two newspapers published in said cities for three weeks, two insertions for each week, for bids for furnishing all supplies of every kind for the several departments of the city, not required to be advertised for by the board of public works; said advertisements to be published two weeks before the beginning of each fiscal year. [32 G. A., ch. 28; 22 G. A., ch. 4.]

Par. 1. Organization: In exercising their powers in respect to the control of utilities in which the city or town enjoys a proprietary interest, the governing bodies may, in the absence of statutory restrictions, delegate all functions purely ministerial or administrative to committees of their own members, by whose action the corporation will be bound as absolutely as though these bodies had acted directly. Burge v. Rockwell City, 120–495, 94 N. W. 1103.

Ordinarily all members of a committee should be notified of the time and place of its proposed meeting, even though a majority will control. The minority ought to have an opportunity of being heard. Ibid.

A committee having authority to make a contract, has also authority to change the terms thereof. Ibid.

The council may act as to a matter over which it has jurisdiction although it has no clerk and its proceeding may be proved by parol evidence in the absence of a record. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

Par. 4. Special meetings: A meeting of the council may be called by the mayor or any three members of the council, and at such called meeting all legitimate business may be considered. If all the members attend such meeting, failure to give notice thereof is immaterial. Moore v. City Council, 119–423, 93 N. W. 510.

Par. 8. Election of officers: A record showing the election of an officer is not conclusive where it shows proceedings inconsistent with such election. State v. Alexander, 107–177, 77 N. W. 841.

Under provisions of an ordinance (while the code of '73 was in force) somewhat analogous to those found in this paragraph, held that the mayor could cast the deciding vote in case of a tie in the election of an officer. Ibid.

The method of voting by the city council in the election of officers rests very largely within the discretion of the majority, and the fact that the mayor, with the approval of the majority of the council, refuses to allow a member to change his vote will not invalidate the election of the person thus declared to be elected. Mann v. LeMars, 109–251, 80 N. W. 327.

As the appointment of a marshal in towns is with the mayor, and not with the council, held that a contract made with the council to act as marshal on a salary named was invalid. Baxter v. Beacon, 112–744, 84 N. W. 932.

Par. 14. Members not interested: Where the council of a city was by statute authorized to fix the salaries of city officers, but the members of the council were forbidden to vote upon any question in which they were directly or indirectly interested, held that the action of the members of the council in increasing their salaries was unlawful and that in receiving the increased salaries thus voted to themselves they were guilty of a misdemeanor in doing an act forbidden by law. State v. Shea, 106–735, 72 N. W. 300.

A contract for sale of lumber to a city for sidewalks, etc., by a member of the city council is void. Bay v. Davidson, 133–688, 111 N. W. 25.

Par. 16. Appropriations: The object of this subdivision requiring expenditures only as the result of appropriations, is to place municipal corporations on a cash basis, preventing the accumulation of a floating indebtedness. Windsor v. Des Moines, 110–175, 81 N. W. 476.

Notwithstanding the provisions of code § 660 that warrants which have been indorsed "not paid for want of funds" shall be paid in order of their presentation, warrants for the expenses of one year do not take priority over the warrants for the expenses of a subsequent year with reference to the funds available for payment of the expenses of the latter year. Phillips v. Reed, 107–331, 76 N. W. 850, 77 N. W. 1031.

The effect of the previous statutory provision that warrants should be paid in the order of presentation was to create a contract with the warrant holders which could not be impaired by subsequent legislation. Ibid.

SEC. 669. Compensation of councilmen—how paid—when acting as board of review. Councilmen in cities of the first class shall be paid an amount prescribed by ordinance, not in excess of two hundred fifty dollars per annum, which shall be in full compensation of all services of such councilmen of every character connected with their official duties, except when acting as members of the board of review, for which service they shall receive not more than two dollars a day for each day when acting as a board of review, to be paid out of the county treasury; and in all other cities and towns they shall receive not to exceed one dollar each for every regular or special meeting, and in the aggregate not exceeding fifty dollars in any one year; but in such cities and towns the members shall be paid in addition to the foregoing, for services as members of the board of review, an amount not exceeding one dollar for each session of not less than three hours, and the compensation for services as members of the board of review shall be paid out of the county treasury. [35 G. A., ch. 56, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 17, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 24, § 1; C. '73, § 505; R. § 1095.]

The compensation to be paid to a councilman is fixed by statute, and it cannot be increased either by direct payment or indirectly through the medium of profit on the sale of goods. Bay v. Davidson, 133–688, 111 N. W. 25.

SEC. 672. Compensation of police matrons.

If a police matron is appointed under statutory provisions, her compensation cannot be affected by contract, but to avail herself of this rule it must appear that she was appointed in virtue of the statute. The city need not necessarily act under the statute in making such appointment, and if it does not, a contract regulating her compensation will be valid. Daniels v. Des Moines, 108–484, 79 N. W. 269.

SEC. 673. Fees of marshal and deputy.

The county is not liable for statutory fees of the city marshal in liquor seizure cases. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107–525, 78 N. W. 249.

SEC. 674. Compensation of assessors and deputies—special services. That section six hundred seventy-four of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"City and town assessors and their deputies shall receive the same compensation as township assessors, which shall be determined in the same manner and payable from the county treasury. Except, that in cities including those under the commission form of government having a population of twenty thousand or over the compensation of the assessor shall not be more than eighteen hundred dollars per annum, to be fixed by the board of supervisors, and that of the deputies at not more than three dollars and fifty cents per calendar day, Sunday excepted, to be fixed by the board of supervisors. Provided, however, that in cities where extra or special services are to be performed by the assessor, the board of supervisors may by special contract with the assessor determine the compensation to be paid." [35 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 30, § 2.]

SEC. 675. Salaries in lieu of fees.

Where salaries are provided for police judge and marshal, the city becomes entitled to the fees thereof in criminal cases, and may recover the same in an action against the county. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107–525, 78 N. W. 249.

A statute granting certain cities the power to fix the compensation of mayors by ordinance, and limiting the salary to the amount so fixed, held not to take effect in any particular city until passage of an ordinance therein adopting that plan of compensation. State v. Olinger, 109–669, 80 N. W. 1060.

SEC. 676. Compensation of other officers.

Special policemen at elections, appointed under the provisions of code § 1125, are not entitled to compensation from either the city or the county as no provision for such compensation is made under the statute. Mousseau v. Sioux City, 113–246, 84 N. W. 1027.

CHAPTER 2-A.

OF BOARD OF POLICE AND FIRE COMMISSIONERS IN CERTAIN CITIES OF THE FIRST CLASS.

SECTION 679-a. Board created. That there is hereby created and established a board of police and fire commissioners in cities of the first class and cities under special charter which, according to any state or national census heretofore or hereafter taken, are shown to have a population of more than twenty thousand. [32 G. A., ch. 29, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 31, § 1.]

SEC. 679-b. Commissioners—term—vacancies. Said board of police and fire commissioners shall consist of three members, who shall be citizens of the state of Iowa and who shall have been residents of the city in which they are appointed for more than five years next preceding their appointment; they shall, except as hereinafter specified, hold their office for six years and until their respective successors have been appointed and qualified. All vacancies in such board by death, resignation, removal, or for any other cause, shall be filled as soon as practicable in the same manner as provided for appointment. Said commissioners shall receive no compensation for their services. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 2.]

SEC. 679-c. Commissioners must qualify. Before entering upon the duties of their office each of said commissioners shall take and subscribe an oath, which shall be filed and kept in the office of the city clerk, to support the constitution of the United States and of the state of Iowa, to obey the laws, and in all of his official acts and judgments to aim only to secure and maintain an honest and efficient police and fire force, free from partisan distinction or control, and to perform the duties of his office to the best of his ability, and shall execute a bond payable to the city in which he is appointed, in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties to be approved by the city council of said city. The expense for said bond shall be paid by said city. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 3.]

SEC. 679-d. Mayor to appoint—terms—how selected—chairman—quorum—removal. Immediately upon the taking effect of this act the mayor of such city shall appoint said board of police and fire commissioners, who shall be confirmed by the city council, and the said commissioners so appointed shall hold their office, one of them until the first Monday in April, nineteen hundred and four, one of them until the first Monday in April, nineteen hundred and six, and one of them until the first Monday in April, nineteen hundred and eight; and on the last Monday in March, nineteen hundred and four, and on the same day in each even-numbered year, thereafter, the mayor shall appoint one commissioner in such city to take the place of the commissioner whose term of office expires the first Monday in April following such appointment, and the members so appointed shall serve for the term of six years following the said first Monday in April. The chairman of the board for each biennial period shall be the member whose term first expires. The said commissioners shall be selected from the two leading political parties, so that, as far as practicable, two members of the board shall be members of the dominant political party and one member of the board shall be a member of the political party next in numerical strength, as shown by the votes cast at the last state or national election. And any commissioner who during his term of office becomes a candidate for or accepts any other place of public trust or emolument, or who during the same period knowingly consents to his nomination for any office elective by the people, or fails to publicly decline the same within twenty days succeeding such nomination, shall be deemed to have thereby vacated his office, and a successor shall be appointed as provided in this act. The majority of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Any of said commissioners may be removed for misconduct or malfeasance in office, by the mayor of said city, with the consent and approval of a majority of the city council. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 4.]

Under this section some discretion is left to the appointing power, and in the absence of proof that the mayor making an appointment was guilty of fraud or collusion or was acting perversely and in open disregard of the law, his discretion cannot be reviewed on appeal. State v. Sargent, 145–298, 124 N. W. 339.

The office provided for being not one created by the constitution, but municipal in character, the provisions relating to members of political parties do not render the statute unconstitutional. Ibid.

SEC. 679-e. Board to conduct examinations—results certified—preference given. Said board shall, on the first Monday of April and October of each year, or oftener if they shall deem it necessary, under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, hold examinations for the purpose of determining the qualifications of applicants for positions on the police and fire force of said city, which examinations shall be practical in their character and shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the fitness of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the position to which they seek to be appointed; such examination shall cover the physical, as well as other qualifications of the applicants. Said board shall, as soon as possible after such examinations, certify to the chief of police and the chief of the fire department the names of the ten persons who, according to its records, have the highest standing as a result of said examination, and all vacancies which occur in the police and fire force prior to the date of the next regular examination shall be filled from said list so certified; provided, however, that should said list for any cause become reduced to less than three, then the chief of police or the chief of the fire department, as the case may be, may temporarily fill a vacancy until the next examination of the board. In all examinations and appointments under the provisions of this act honorably discharged soldiers, sailors or marines of the regular or volunteer army or navy of the United States shall be given a preference, if otherwise qualified. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 5.]

The board of police commissioners is not given the power to appoint, but only the power to furnish a list of names from which appointments shall be made, and the chief of police has the discretion as to who shall be selected for positions on the police force. The action of the chief in suspending or discharging any of his subordinates is final unless the board shall determine otherwise on appeal, in which event, the board has the power to order a suspended member to be reinstated. But when reinstatement is directed, the chief may exercise his discretion as to the position on the force which the reinstated member shall be given. Markey v. Schunk, 152–508, 132 N. W. 883.

SEC. 679-f. Police and fire departments—officers—salaries—clerk of board—record. The officers of the police force in said city shall be a marshal who shall be, ex officio, chief of police, and shall be appointed by the mayor of said city, and such other officers as the city council may designate; and the officers of the fire department shall be chief of the fire department, who shall be appointed by the board of police and fire commissioners, and such other officers as the city council may designate. The city council of said city shall fix the salary of the marshal and of the chief of the fire department, and shall fix the number of policemen and firemen for the police and fire force, and shall fix the salaries to be paid to each. The city council shall also provide a suitable room in which the said board of police and fire commissioners may hold its meetings, and the board may appoint a clerk, whose salary shall be fixed by the city council. Said board shall keep a record of all its meetings and proceedings. [32 G. A., ch. 29, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 31, § 6.]

The city council has power to designate what officers shall constitute the police force except the marshal or chief, and to fix the number of policemen. Markey v. Schunk, 152–508, 132 N. W. 883.

SEC. 679-g. Appointments—how and by whom made. The law as it appears in section six hundred seventy-nine-g of the supplement to the code is hereby amended so that the same shall read as follows:

"The chief of police shall appoint the police force for said city and the chief of the fire department shall appoint the fire force for said city." [32 G. A., ch. 29, § 3; 29 G. A., ch. 31, § 7.]

SEC. 679-h. Removal—suspension—hearing—reduction of force. That section six hundred seventy-nine-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All police officers and policemen, and all firemen, including the chief of the fire department, and all employes in the civil list covered by this act, shall be subject to removal by the board of police and fire commissioners for misconduct or failure to perform their duty under such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the said board, whenever said board shall consider or declare such removal necessary for the proper management and discipline of said department; but the chief of police or the chief of the fire department may temporarily suspend or discharge any member of his force for misconduct, or neglect of duty, or disobedience of orders; provided that any person so suspended or discharged within five days thereafter may appear before said board, and said board shall investigate the cause of said removal or discharge, and if the same is found insufficient he shall be reinstated. The board shall fix the date for the trial of such discharged or suspended officer or man of either the police or fire department within fifteen days after demand for a hearing by the accused and shall give ten days' written notice to the accused of the date set for trial, specifying the charges upon which the accused is to be tried and the name of the person making the charges. The meetings and procedure of the board when trying such cases shall be open to the public, and said accused shall have the right of counsel, and the examination of witnesses for and against the accused shall be in the presence of the accused, and he, or his counsel, shall have the right to cross-examine any witness testifying against him. The accused shall have the right to produce witnesses in his defense, and the board shall cause the witnesses of the accused to be properly subpoenaed. Meetings shall be called by the chairman upon the application of two members of the board, and written notices must be sent to all members of the board, stating the time and the place and the purpose for calling a meeting. The board shall have the power to enforce the attendance of witnesses, and the production of books and papers, and to administer oaths in the same manner, and with like effect and under the same penalties as in the case of magistrates, exercising civil or criminal jurisdiction under the statutes of Iowa."

Whenever the revenue of any city available for the use of paying the salaries of the police officers, policemen and firemen is insufficient to pay the current salaries to the number of policemen then engaged on the police force and the firemen, the city council of any city which has a board of police and fire commissioners, as provided in chapter two-A of title five of the supplement to the code, 1907, may provide by general ordinance for a reduction in the number of its firemen, and its police officers and policemen, except the chief of the fire department and the chief of police, in which event, the necessary number to make such reduction shall be honorably discharged from the said police force or the fire department. The persons discharged shall be designated in writing by the mayor; provided, however, that in making such discharge, the mayor shall take into consideration the length of service, competency and efficiency of the members of the police force and the members of the fire department. It shall be the duty of the mayor to designate for discharge the policemen and firemen whose length of service is of the shortest duration and who have shown the least efficiency and competency. [34 G. A., ch. 33, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 29, § 4; 29 G. A., ch. 31, § 8.]

[Ch. 33, 34 G. A. repeals § 679-h of the supplement to the code, 1907, and enacts a substitute therefor which appears as the second paragraph of the above section, was approved April 1, 1911, carried no publication clause and became effective July 4, 1911. The third paragraph of the above section is an amendment to "Sec. 679-h, supplement to the code, 1907," enacted by ch. 32, 34 G. A., approved April 15, 1911, and effective by publication April 21, 1911. Neither of the above acts of the legislature refers to the other act. There may be some doubt as to whether the third paragraph above set forth remained in force longer than July 4, 1911. EDITOR.]

All police officers, except the chief, are removable absolutely by the police board for cause, and the chief is given the power to suspend or discharge subject only to a review by the board. Markey v. Schunk, 152–508, 132 N. W. 883.

The legislature intended no more than to require a continuance of employment on the force where a member has been discharged or suspended by the chief. The board has no power to place a discharged or suspended man in a particular position. Ibid.

SEC. 679-i. Present officers continued in office. The present chief of the fire department and the members of the police and fire department of each of the cities affected by this act, and the acts of which it is amendatory, other than the chief of police, shall be continued in their present positions without further appointment or examination, subject, however, to all rules and regulations adopted for the government of said departments under this act and the provisions of chapter thirty-one, acts of the twenty-ninth general assembly. [32 G. A., ch. 29, § 5.]

SEC. 679-j. Qualifications of appointees—political contributions. No person shall be appointed or employed on the police or fire force of said city who is not a citizen of the United States and who has not been a resident of said city for more than one year next preceding said appointment, and who is not able to read and write the English language, and who is not of good moral character, or who is addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage. No member of said police or fire force shall directly or indirectly contribute any money to any person for nomination or election purposes, and no person shall be appointed to or removed from said police or fire forces on account of his political beliefs. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 9.]

SEC. 679-k. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall pay a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [29 G. A., ch. 31, § 10.]

SEC. 679-l. Board of public works—vacancies—removals—who eligible. In any city having a population of thirty thousand or more the council may by ordinance establish a board of public works and in cities having a population of fifty thousand or more, there is hereby created a board of public works. Such board of public works shall consist of two members residents of the city, to be appointed by the mayor, and upon the establishment of said board one member shall be appointed for two years, and one for three years, and their successors shall be appointed for three years. The members shall hold office until their successors are appointed and qualified. The mayor shall have the power to remove any member of the board of public works for cause at any time. Vacancies shall be filled by the mayor. No member of the council or city official shall be a member of such board. The provisions of this section shall not affect the terms of those now constituting the board of public works in those cities in which a board of public works has heretofore been established by ordinance, but the successors to such members shall be appointed under the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 13.]

CHAPTER 2-B.

OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLICITY, DEVELOPMENT AND GENERAL WELFARE.

SECTION 679-m. Department authorized—superintendent—assistants—compensation. Any city in this state shall have power to establish by ordinance, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter prescribed, a department under control of the city council, said department to be known as the department of publicity, development and general welfare, and the mayor, with the approval of the council, shall have power to appoint a superintendent of such department, and may employ such assistants as may be necessary to perform the work of said department, upon such compensation as may be fixed by resolution of such city council. [34 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.]

SEC. 679-n. Purposes—supervision of mayor—no investment in private enterprises. Said department shall be for the purpose of collecting and distributing, by correspondence, advertising and other means, information relating to the industrial, commercial, manufacturing, residential, educational and other advantages and resources of such city; and for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the establishment and development of industries and manufacturing, commercial and other interests in such cities and the increase of population thereof; and for the purpose of investigating, promoting and doing such things as may be for the general welfare of such city and the inhabitants thereof; provided, however, nothing in this act shall be construed as authorizing cities to invest any funds raised by taxation in private enterprises or to pay from such funds any bonuses for same. The duties of the superintendent and other employes of said department shall be such as may be prescribed from time to time by the city council, and they shall be at all times under the supervision and control of the mayor in performing said duties. [34 G. A., ch. 57, § 2.]

SEC. 679-o. Conditions of establishment—question submitted. The said department can only be established upon the approval of sixty per cent. of the legal voters of said city who shall vote on said question, and which question may be submitted by the council of such city at any general, city or special election for such purpose, at which election the question submitted shall be: "Shall the city of (naming it) establish a department of publicity, development and general welfare?" If said question shall be answered in the affirmative by not less than sixty per cent. of the voters voting thereon, the said department may be established for a period of not to exceed five years from the date of such election. Within one year of the end of such period or at any time thereafter the question may be resubmitted and said department reëstablished for a like period, provided that not less than sixty per cent. of the voters thereon vote in favor thereof. [34 G. A., ch. 57, § 3.]

SEC. 679-p. Expenses—what funds available. The expenses of said department may be defrayed out of any and all funds received by such city from fines and penalties and out of any funds that may be in the treasury of said city, not derived from general taxation nor from special taxes levied for other purposes. [34 G. A., ch. 57, § 4.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF ORDINANCES, COURTS AND FINES.

SECTION 680. Power to pass ordinances—penalties.

In general: An ordinance is not generally necessary to determine the action of the council in carrying out, in a particular instance, the power expressly granted to it by the legislature. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

Where the city is authorized to exercise a power by general ordinance, an ordinance is essential before the city can act; and an ordinance may be necessary though the statute conferring the power does not specifically direct that it shall be exercised by means of a general ordinance as the statute is not specific as to the methods to be adopted in carrying out the power. But if the method to be adopted, as in the case of special assessments for street improvements, is specifically pointed out by statute, no ordinance is necessary. All that can be essential in such a case is that the city take the steps provided by the statute. Martin v. Oskaloosa, 126–680, 102 N. W. 529.

When a city provides by ordinance for the assessment of the costs of a permanent sidewalk upon abutting property, and specifies the notice to be given to owners of abutting property, the giving of such notice as required is an essential condition of the levying of the assessment upon the property. Zalesky v. Cedar Rapids, 118–714, 92 N. W. 657.

The grade of a street cannot be established or changed without an ordinance or resolution authorizing it. Eckert v. Walnut, 117–629, 91 N. W. 929; Caldwell v. Nashua, 122–179, 97 N. W. 1000.

The creating or changing of the boundary of wards must be by ordinance and cannot be by resolution. Cascaden v. Waterloo, 106–673, 77 N. W. 333.

The city having the power to construct sewers and to make ordinances with reference to the preservation of the health and convenience of the people has implied authority to borrow money for the purpose of constructing a plant for the disposition of sewage. Glucose Sugar Ref. Co. v. Marshalltown, 153 Fed. 620.

The invalidity of one provision of an ordinance does not necessarily render the remaining portions of the ordinance invalid. Davenport Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davenport, 124–22, 98 N. W. 892.

The establishment of a public way even over property belonging to a city calls for the exercise of legislative power which can be exercised only by ordinance or resolution. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

The action of the council in passing an ordinance relating to a matter within its jurisdiction is legislative and should not be interfered with by the courts. The motive of members will not be inquired into. But if an ordinance, by law or resolution is contractual in character the motives of its members may be inquired into as affecting the validity of the contract. If an ordinance is passed under the general welfare clause or by reason of some implied grant it will be condemned if unreasonable, arbitrary or oppressive. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

An ordinance will not be held void because unreasonable unless it clearly appears that it imposes an unreasonable burden as a whole. Council Bluffs v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 157– ——, 138 N. W. 891.

When a question is raised as to the reasonableness of a city ordinance which has reference to a subject matter within the corporate jurisdiction, the ordinance will be presumed to be reasonable unless the contrary appears on the face of the ordinance itself or is established by proper evidence. But a general power given to a municipality must be exercised in a reasonable manner. Iowa City v. Glassman, 155–671, 136 N. W. 899.

While the provisions of this section are very general in terms they do not give the city power to do more than impose fines. It cannot license or provide any other remedy than that provided by the statute itself. Therefore held that the city council had no authority to require a person selling milk within the city limits to apply for a license therefor from the city and provide for the issuance of such license at the discretion of the city board of health. Bear v. Cedar Rapids, 147–341, 126 N. W. 324.

The enforcement of such an ordinance may be enjoined. Ibid.

A city being expressly empowered to construct sewers, has implied power to provide for the disposition of sewage by constructing a plant for that purpose. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. v. Marshalltown, (C. C.) 153 Fed. 620.

Punishing offenses: A city has power to enact an ordinance prohibiting the keeping open on Sunday of places resorted to for the drinking of intoxicating liquors. Such an ordinance is not inconsistent with the statutes of the state relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors. Lovilia v. Cobb, 126–557, 102 N. W. 496.

The general policy of the law being to give municipalities full power and adequate means to protect themselves against unlawful disturbances of the peace and good order within their corporate limits, an ordinance providing for the punishment of assault and battery, which does not impose a different penalty from that provided by statute, is valid. Avoca v. Heller, 129–227, 105 N. W. 444.

The power of punishing gambling being unqualifiedly conferred on the city, it has authority to provide for such punishment by ordinance not inconsistent with the statutes of the state relating to the same offense. Blodgett v. McVey, 131–552, 108 N. W. 239.

An act may be punishable under a city ordinance although its punishment is also provided for by statute, if the ordinance is not inconsistent with the statutory provision. Neola v. Reichart, 131–492, 109 N. W. 5.

The city council cannot in the exercise of its general powers pass an ordinance providing a penalty for keeping saloons open on election day, as such an ordinance would be in conflict with the state law on the same subject. (See code § 2448.) Iowa City v. McInnerny, 114–586, 87 N. W. 498.

It may be provided in an ordinance for regulating or prohibiting the running at large of dogs, that the owner of a dog shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in allowing it to run at large unmuzzled. Sibley v. Lastrico, 122–211, 97 N. W. 1074.

Under the authority to provide for the safety of its inhabitants a city has authority to pass an ordinance requiring bicycles on the streets after dark to carry lights. Des Moines v. Keller, 116–648, 88 N. W. 827.

The violation of a municipal ordinance enacted by the authority of the state is a crime and proceedings for its punishment are criminal. Ewing v. Webster City, 103–226, 72 N. W. 511.

The legislature may confer authority upon mayors or police courts to enforce obedience to ordinances by a civil action. Ottumwa v. Scott, 139 N. W. 901.

Violation of ordinance negligence per se: Where the owner of a horse or his employe in charge thereof leaves the horse unfastened in the street in violation of the provisions of an ordinance, such owner is liable to one who is injured in consequence of the horse running away. Healy v. Johnson, 127–221, 103 N. W. 92.

SEC. 681. Adoption of ordinances.

In general: Omissions and irregularities in the adoption of an ordinance may be cured by a legalizing act. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

Failure to comply with a directory statute with reference to the recording of ordinances does not affect their validity. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

An ordinance which it is within the power of the city to pass will not be declared void in a quo warranto proceeding. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127–194, 103 N. W. 120.

Title: The requirement that an ordinance shall not contain more than one subject which must be expressed in the title is a limitation on the power of the council to enact ordinances, and an ordinance passed in violation of it is inoperative for want of power. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

The title of an ordinance describing it as relating to obstructions of or injury to streets, alleys and sidewalks, sufficiently covers a prohibition as to the leaving of horses in the streets without being properly fastened. Healy v. Johnson, 127–221, 103 N. W. 92.

Where the granting of certain rights and privileges to a telephone company is the subject matter expressed in the title of an ordinance, the grant of the use of the streets is sufficiently covered by such title. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127–194, 103 N. W. 120.

An ordinance "concerning misdemeanors" may include provisions as to keeping open a place of business on Sunday. Lovilia v. Cobb, 126–557, 102 N. W. 496.

The title of "an ordinance to regulate bicycles" is sufficient to cover provisions requiring riders of bicycles to carry a sufficient light after dark. Des Moines v. Keller, 116–648, 88 N. W. 827.

An ordinance vacating a street and at the same time conveying it, where the diversion is the real purpose does not contain two subjects. Tomlin v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 141–599, 120 N. W. 93.

The purpose of the requirement that an ordinance shall contain but one question is to prevent the practice of presenting in a single act subjects diverse in their nature with a view to effect a combination and thus secure the passage of several measures, no one of which would succeed upon its own merits. Trout v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 148–135, 126 N. W. 799.

Where the title of an amending ordinance in connection with the title of the ordinance amended leaves no doubt as to the correspondence between the subject matter and the title, it is sufficient. Council Bluffs v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 157– ——, 138 N. W. 891.

Amendment or repeal: Except as to rights acquired under an ordinance which a repeal cannot destroy or impair, the power of the city council to repeal ordinances is no less broad than its power to enact them. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

In amending, repealing or suspending an ordinance with reference to a matter which can be regulated by ordinance only, the council must act by ordinance and cannot proceed by resolution. Cascaden v. Waterloo, 106–673, 77 N. W. 333.

The amending ordinance must contain the entire ordinance or section revised or amended. Ibid.

The intention is that an amending ordinance or section shall be complete in itself and that the former ordinance or section shall be repealed. The purpose of this section is to avoid the confusion and frequent contradiction which results from amendments which purport to add to or take from an existing ordinance mere words or phrases. Rocho v. Boone Electric Co., 140 N. W. 193.

SEC. 682. Reading.

The requirement of reading on three different days may be dispensed with by vote of three fourths of the council. Collins v. Iowa Falls, 146–305, 125 N. W. 226.

SEC. 683. Adoption—majority vote. No resolution or ordinance for any of the purposes hereinafter set forth shall be adopted without the concurrence of a majority of the whole number of members elected to the council, to wit:

1. To pass or adopt any by-law or ordinance;
2. To pass or adopt any resolution or order to enter into a contract;
3. To pass or adopt any ordinance for the appropriation or payment of money; but in towns, by-laws, ordinances, and the resolutions and orders set forth in this section shall require for their passage or adoption a concurrence of four councilmen, or of three councilmen and the mayor. On the passage or adoption of every by-law, ordinance, and every such resolution or order, the yeas and nays shall be called and recorded. No money shall be appropriated except by ordinance. In towns money may be appropriated by resolution. [27 G. A., ch. 19, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 146, §§ 2, 3; C. '73, §§ 489, 493; R. §§ 1122, 1134.]

The concurrence of a majority of the whole number of the council is required for the adoption of a resolution. Cascaden v. Waterloo, 106–673, 77 N. W. 333.

In the absence of any statutory or charter restrictions a majority of a quorum of the council is sufficient for the adoption of a resolution. Thurston v. Huston, 123–157, 98 N. W. 637.

Except as otherwise specified by statute, the proceedings of the council are to be governed by the parliamentary rules generally recognized by the courts as applicable to the action of legislative bodies. Ibid.

The ayes and nays on the adoption of an ordinance must be entered at large on the minutes. Cook v. Independence, 133–582, 110 N. W. 1029.

The yeas and nays should be called and recorded on the passage of an ordinance authorizing the execution of a contract. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

Where the record shows the presence of a majority of the council and the vote on the passage of the ordinance is recorded as unanimous, it sufficiently appears that the ordinance is adopted by the concurrence of a majority of the council. Ibid.

If the record shows the names of the members present, and that the roll was called and the vote was unanimous, it sufficiently appears that the members recorded as present voted in the affirmative. Ibid.

Where the record of the adoption of the ordinance gives the names of the members of the council present and shows that there was a corresponding number of votes in favor of the passage of the ordinance and none against it, it is not essential that there be an express record also of the names of those voting in the affirmative. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127–194, 103 N. W. 120.

Where the minutes of the action of the council show the names of the members voting, it will be presumed that the vote was by yeas and nays. German Ins. Co. v. Manning, 95 Fed. 597.

A majority vote in favor of the motion to reconsider an affirmative vote on a resolution to adopt and approve a street improvement as made according to contract, held to render the resolution of approval ineffectual. Wingert v. Tipton, 134–97, 108 N. W. 1035, 111 N. W. 432.

Subject to certain exceptions, a resolution does not require a record of the yea and nay vote of the council and a less formal record of its passage may be sustained than would be required to show the adoption of an ordinance. Sawyer v. Lorenzen, 149–87, 127 N. W. 1091.

Where the record does not show that all members of the council were present, nor who voted for or against the passage of the ordinance, or whether the vote was unanimous, the statutory requirement that "the yeas and nays shall be called and recorded" is not complied with. The requirement is mandatory. Sutton v. Mentzer, 154–1, 134 N. W. 108.

Where an ordinance is relied on, its invalidity may be shown by a failure of the record to establish compliance with the statutory requirements as to its passage. Ibid.

Where the record shows the affirmative vote, by name, of the majority of the council, this is sufficient to indicate that the yeas and nays were called. Ibid.

No presumption can be entertained in support of an ordinance or resolution that it was duly enacted by vote of the council in a meeting duly assembled upon which vote the yeas and nays have been called and recorded. It is the recorded yea and nay vote which the statute requires and not the mere fact of such vote, and parol evidence is not admissible as a substitute for the official record. Farmers' Telephone Co. v. Town of Washta, 157– ——, 133 N. W. 361.

The city council can authorize the occupancy of its streets by a street railroad by resolution as well as by ordinance. But where the statute requires an ordinance, a resolution is not sufficient. Des Moines City R. Co. v. Des Moines, (C. C.) 151 Fed. 854.

SEC. 684. Two-thirds vote.

The mayor being a member of the council in cities of the second class, under code of '73, § 531, held that in determining whether there had been a three-fourths vote of the council to dispense with a rule as to reading an ordinance on three successive days, the mayor should be included, although not entitled to a vote except in cases of a tie. Griffin v. Messenger, 114–99, 86 N. W. 219.

SEC. 685. Signing by mayor—veto—passing over veto.

The requirement that the mayor sign resolutions or ordinances of the city council before they take effect is mandatory, and the successor of the mayor in office when the ordinance or resolution is passed has no power to make it valid by his signature. Altman v. Dubuque, 111–105, 82 N. W. 461.

There is a broad distinction between the requirement that the mayor shall sign ordinances simply as a means of authentication, and a requirement that he shall sign as evidence of his approval. The former may well be said to be ministerial and directory only, while the latter is undoubtedly mandatory. Moore v. City Council, 119–423, 93 N. W. 510.

The legislature has not authorized the signing of ordinances by the temporary chairman of the meeting of the council at which the ordinance is adopted. Ibid.

Action of a city council in allowing a claim against the city is a "resolve," and requires the signature of the mayor. Without such signature, or facts making the resolve valid notwithstanding the want of approval, the action of the council is invalid. Stutsman v. McVicar, 111–40, 82 N. W. 460.

Under prior statutory provisions, held that in cities of the second class having less than eight thousand inhabitants, the signature of the mayor to a resolution passed by the council was not necessary. Bennett v. Marion, 106–628, 76 N. W. 844.

The requirement that the mayor shall sign all ordinances or resolutions of the city council, or, in the event of his failure to do so, that he follow the requirements of this section, is mandatory; but as an ordinance may, in accordance with these provisions, become operative without the mayor's signature, it is not enough to defeat the validity of an ordinance to show that the mayor did not sign it. There is no necessity for formal presentation to him for signature. It is enough that he was present when the ordinance was passed and did not return the same with reasons for refusal to sign. Town of Hancock v. McCarthy, 145–51, 123 N. W. 766.

Signature of the ordinance by a temporary chairman of the council is not sufficient; but where under the charter of a special charter city there was provision for one, previously selected for the purpose, to act as president pro tempore in the absence of the mayor, held that the signature of such officer was the signature of the mayor for the time being. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

The direction to the clerk to advertise for bids for a street improvement need not be by resolution and therefore does not require the mayor's approval. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

SEC. 686. Recording—publishing.

A resolution or ordinance making a special assessment may be proven by parol evidence. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

Publication as required by statute is essential to the validity of an ordinance, and held in a particular case that the publication in an extra edition of a daily paper, only a few copies of which were issued and sold, was not such publication as contemplated by law. State v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 113–30, 84 N. W. 983.

Until a resolution or ordinance becomes effective there is no authority for its publication. Moore v. City Council, 119–423, 93 N. W. 510.

The object of the recording of an ordinance or resolution is to furnish evidence thereof and the failure to immediately record an ordinance or resolution which has been held by the mayor for fourteen days without signing does not prevent its going into operation under the provisions of code § 685. Hardwick v. Independence, 136–481, 114 N. W. 14.

The authentication required by this section is mandatory but it may be made in such a manner and at such time as to show a compliance with the preceding section if that be the manifest intent. Town of Hancock v. McCarthy, 145–51, 123 N. W. 766.

An ordinance found in a record book produced by the city clerk and identified by him as the original ordinance book of the city and a part of the records of his office is admissible in evidence as such. Lane-Moore Lumber Co. v. Storm Lake, 151–130, 130 N. W. 924.

An ordinance which is void may be repealed and a valid substitute enacted therefor. Ibid.

It is competent to show by parol evidence that an ordinance was properly signed by the mayor and that it was published in accordance with the statute. Powers v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 157– —, 136 N. W. 1049.

SEC. 687. Published ordinances.

The provision for the publication of ordinances of a city does not contemplate the necessity of a readoption of the ordinances. Gallaher v. Jefferson, 125–324, 101 N. W. 124.

Ordinances published in accordance with the provisions of this section are presumed to have been regularly passed and it will be presumed in the absence of proof to the contrary that the ordinance book in which the ordinance was recorded was duly authenticated. Town of Hancock v. McCarthy, 145–51, 123 N. W. 766.

Publication of a printed revision of ordinances does not cure a defect in the passage of an ordinance thus published. Sutton v. Mentzer, 154–1, 134 N. W. 108.

This section does not contemplate a reënactment of the ordinance but only a compilation and a method of proof and the embodiment in a publication of the city ordinances of an ordinance which is invalid on account of defect of form does not cure the defect. Rocho v. Boone Electric Co., 140 N. W. 193.

SEC. 687-a. Proceedings published or posted. Immediately following a regular or special meeting of the city or town council, the clerk shall, when so ordered by said council, prepare a condensed statement of the proceedings of said council, including the list of claims allowed, and from what funds appropriated and cause the same to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation, published in said city or town, or by posting in one or more public places, as directed by said council. [33 G. A., ch. 42, § 1.]

SEC. 687-b. Cost of publishing. That the compensation allowed each newspaper for such publication shall not exceed one third of the legal fee provided by statute for the publication of legal notices. [33 G. A., ch. 42, § 2.]

SEC. 688. Police court—jurisdiction.

A police court may entertain a civil action to recover the poll tax provided for in code supp. § 892. Ottumwa v. Scott, 139 N. W. 901.

SEC. 691. Jurisdiction of mayor—may transfer case on own motion—fees. The mayor shall have exclusive jurisdiction of all actions or prosecutions for violations of the city or town ordinances. He shall also have, in criminal matters, the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, coextensive with the county, and, in civil cases, the same jurisdiction within the city or town as a justice of the peace has within the township. None of the jurisdiction referred to in this section shall be exercised by the mayors in cities having a superior or police court. If the mayor or judge of the superior or police court is absent or unable to act, the nearest justice of the peace shall have jurisdiction and hold his court in criminal proceedings, and receive the statutory fees, to be paid by the city or county, as the case may be. When an information is filed before a mayor of any city or town for the violation of an ordinance of such city or town, the mayor having jurisdiction as provided in this section may, upon his own motion only, at any time after the information is filed and before the trial, transfer the case for further proceedings to any justice of the peace court within such city or town, and the justice of the peace, for the further proceedings in the case to whom the case is transferred, shall have jurisdiction thereof to the same extent and with the same power and like limitations as the mayor of such city or town. The fees taxable after the transfer of the case fixed by ordinance shall be paid by the city or town as the case may be to the justice before whom the case is tried. [35 G. A., ch. 58, § 1.] [24 G. A., ch. 6, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 189, § 1; C. '73, §§ 506, 546; R. §§ 1085, 1102, 1105.]

The mayor has the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace in criminal matters and while under the provisions of the statute relating to juveniles (code § 254-a24) he cannot impose a fine or imprisonment on such offender, he is not liable in civil damages for imposing such wrongful imprisonment, as he has jurisdiction to hear complaints or preliminary information, issue warrants, order arrests, etc., and the improper imposition of a fine or imprisonment is only in excess of jurisdiction and not without jurisdiction. McGrew v. Holmes, 145–540, 124 N. W. 195.

As the mayor of a city has coördinate jurisdiction to some extent with a justice of the peace of the township in which the city is situated, the acceptance by the mayor of a city of the office of justice of the peace creates a vacancy in the office of mayor on account of the incompatibility of the two offices. State v. Anderson, 155–271, 136 N. W. 128.

The jurisdiction of the mayor extends to both civil and criminal actions for violation of ordinances. Ottumwa v. Scott, 139 N. W. 901.

SEC. 691-a. Applicable to this act. The law as the same appears in section six hundred ninety-two of the code, shall apply to this act. [35 G. A., ch. 58, § 2.]

SEC. 692. Procedure—appeal—judicial notice of ordinances.

The town or city court has always taken judicial notice of the ordinances of the municipality in which it sits, as it stands in the same relation to these as does the state court to public statutes, and under the provision of this section the district court on appeal is required likewise to take judicial notice of such ordinances. Scranton v. Danenbaum, 109–95, 80 N. W. 221.

In a prosecution for violation of an ordinance the ordinance must be pleaded. Courts will not take judicial notice of an ordinance, except in case of appeals from inferior tribunals. State v. Olinger, 109–669, 80 N. W. 1060.

On an appeal from a conviction before the mayor for violation of an ordinance, the defendant may waive a jury trial. Lovilia v. Cobb, 126–557, 102 N. W. 496.

SEC. 694-a. Appropriation authorized—purposes—repealed. That section six hundred ninety-four-a, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 59, § 3.]

[The title to ch. 59, 35 G. A. makes no mention of a repeal. EDITOR.]

[See §§ 694-b, 694-c. EDITOR.]

SEC. 694-b. Membership in Iowa league of municipalities—appropriation authorized. Cities and towns, including cities under special charter and under the commission plan of government, may by resolution appropriate money out of the general fund and pay dues in the league of Iowa municipalities not to exceed annually the following amounts: Municipalities less than two thousand, ten dollars; from two thousand to five thousand, twenty dollars; from five thousand to ten thousand, thirty dollars; from ten thousand to thirty thousand, forty dollars; from thirty thousand to fifty thousand, fifty dollars; all over fifty thousand, sixty dollars; and in addition may pay the actual expenses of not more than two delegates to the meetings of such league. [35 G. A., ch. 59, § 1.]

SEC. 694-c. System of accounting—reports. At the annual meeting of the league in nineteen hundred thirteen, the chief clerk of the state municipal accounting department shall meet with the league and formulate a system of accounting and reports to be adopted by the league and thereafter the league shall keep and make such accounts and reports as shall be required by said department, and the same shall be annually checked by the municipal accounting department and published in the volume of municipal accounts. [35 G. A., ch. 59, § 2.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF GENERAL POWERS.

SECTION 695. Bodies corporate—name—authority.

Extent of powers: Municipal corporations have and can exercise such powers only as are expressly granted by their charters or legislative acts, or are necessarily implied therefrom, or are necessarily incidental thereto. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

The power to levy taxes may be delegated to a municipal corporation, but not to a board or tribunal not elected by the people of the municipality. State ex rel. v. Mayor, etc., of Des Moines, 103–76, 72 N. W. 639.

The city council, having the right to order a work of public improvement and having adopted an ordinance and resolution directing the work according to certain specifications, acquires jurisdiction over the property involved. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

A taxpayer may maintain an action to enjoin the carrying out of a resolution increasing the number of wards in a city, there being no authority to change the wards by resolution. Cascaden v. Waterloo, 106–673, 77 N. W. 333.

A municipality cannot exercise a power unless it be expressly conferred by the legislature or absolutely necessary to carry out some other power expressly conferred. In case of doubt the existence of the power will be denied. Cherokee v. Perkins, 118–405, 92 N. W. 68.

A municipal corporation has only such powers as are expressly granted or fairly or necessarily implied from those granted or such as are essential to the declared objects and purposes of the corporation. Brooks v. Brooklyn, 146–136, 124 N. W. 868.

If there is no authority to make a contract under these rules, any attempt to do so is void. Ibid.

If the project is merely colorable under the pretense of authority, but intended to promote some private purpose, the court will declare it illegal. Ibid.

A municipal corporation will not be allowed to repudiate a contract which has been carried out by the other party on the ground that such party stood in a fiduciary or official relation to the corporation with which the contract was made, without surrendering the benefits received. Nor will a taxpayer be allowed to maintain an action in the interest of the corporation to recover the compensation paid to a contractor under such contract. Kagy v. Independent Dist., 117–694, 89 N. W. 972.

Any contract of a municipal corporation for which there is no express or implied statutory authority is invalid. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 118–234, 91 N. W. 1081.

A person dealing with a municipal corporation is held to know the extent of the power of such corporation, and if, with such knowledge, he obtains a grant for which there is no legal authority or which is in violation of an express statute, he does so at his peril and obtains no right which is enforceable in the courts. Ibid.

Such a contract cannot be held to give color of right to the privilege thus attempted to be granted. Ibid.

A municipal corporation may be said to possess a dual character. In one capacity it is a property holder, a mere business agency, and is charged with the management of the financial and business interests of the municipality; in another capacity it is an arm of sovereignty and is charged with legislative and governmental powers. Contracts wrongfully made by it in the first capacity are as obligatory and inviolable as contracts made between private individuals, but, in the absence of statutory authority, any contract or agreement, whether in the form of an ordinance or otherwise which directly or indirectly surrenders or materially restricts the exercise of the governmental or legislative function or power, may at any time be terminated or annulled by the municipality, though such action may, under some circumstances, involve liability for compensation to persons who have acted upon and in good faith of the validity of such contract. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

A city has two classes of powers,—the one legislative or governmental, by which it controls its people as their sovereign; the other, proprietary or business, by means of which it acts and contracts for the private advantage of the inhabitants of the city and of the city itself. In the exercise of its business powers, the officers of the city may bind it beyond the terms of their offices, and in the exercise of these powers the city will be governed by the same rules as control a private individual or private corporation under like circumstances. Tuttle v. Cedar Rapids, (C. C. A.) 176 Fed. 86.

In the exercise of the proprietary or quasi private powers conferred upon it, the city is subject to the same rules as are applicable to private persons or corporations. Such a power is that of making special assessments for public improvements. First Nat. Bank v. Emmetsburg, 157– —, 138 N. W. 451.

Having exercised the power of letting a contract for the making of a permanent public improvement, a city cannot plead ultra vires as against the contractor on account of irregularities in the proceeding and may be estopped from objecting to payment for a completed and retained improvement although the irregularities in the proceedings have been such as to relieve property owners from special assessments on their property. Ibid.

A city in granting a franchise for the use of its streets for street railway purposes is acting in a sovereign capacity and has only such powers as are expressly given or arise by necessary implication from those granted. State v. Des Moines City R. Co., 140 N. W. 437.

In letting contracts for public printing to the lowest responsible bidder the council has no power or jurisdiction to discriminate in favor of an employer of union labor against others. Miller v. Des Moines, 143–409, 122 N. W. 226.

An incorporated town has power to acquire and hold real and personal property for the purpose of erecting a building for public offices and fire department, to be paid for out of the general fund. Brooks v. Brooklyn, 146–136, 124 N. W. 868.

The provisions of code supp. §§741-j–741-m have reference to cases where the town has not in its general fund enough to pay for the grounds and is compelled to issue bonds to be paid at a later date. Ibid.

Within the limitation fixed by the constitution and statutes a city has express power to borrow money and as a necessary incident thereto may issue proper evidences of indebtedness for money so borrowed. But it has no authority to issue long time negotiable bonds for money thus borrowed, in the absence of express statutory authority. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 136–191, 113 N. W. 773.

Liability for acts of officers: A municipal corporation is not as a general rule liable for the negligence or carelessness of its agents or servants in handling its fire apparatus. The service performed is one in which it has no particular interest and from which it derives no special benefit in its corporate capacity. Such employes are not agents and servants of the city, but act as officers charged with a public service, for whose negligence no action will lie against the city. Where the powers conferred are governmental in nature the city cannot be made liable for the execution thereof. Saunders v. Ft. Madison, 111–102, 82 N. W. 428.

The city is not liable for the acts of its officers in making an arrest without legal cause or excuse, and unlawfully, cruelly and inhumanly treating such person by imprisoning him in an unsuitable place. Lahner v. Inc. Town of Williams, 112–428, 84 N. W. 507.

Where a city contracting for macadamizing streets undertakes to furnish the use of a steam roller in charge of its own employes it is liable for damages by fire set out by sparks by reason of the defective condition of the engine. McMahon v. Dubuque, 107–62, 77 N. W. 517.

A city is thus liable where it is engaged in doing with its own instrumentality that which it was authorized to contract with another to do at the expense of the abutting lot owners, and the work was voluntarily assumed and carried on for compensation. Ibid.

The city having power to make excavations in the streets is liable for the wrongful acts of its officers or agents in making such excavations. Millard v. Webster City, 113–220, 84 N. W. 1044.

A municipal corporation is not estopped by the acts of its officers done without authority. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 117–250, 90 N. W. 746.

The city having power to prevent injury or annoyance from any nuisance, has no authority to permit the stretching of a wire over the public street on which a performance is permitted, resulting in injury to persons in the street. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge, 131–566, 108 N. W. 1057.

The statutory authority to provide places for the interment of the dead and to adopt regulations for their burial will not be construed to authorize the creation and maintenance of either a public or a private nuisance. Payne v. Wayland, 131–659, 109 N. W. 203.

SEC. 696. Prevention of nuisances—prohibition by ordinance—regulation of slaughter houses. They shall have power to prevent injury or annoyance from anything dangerous, offensive or unhealthy, to cause any nuisance to be abated, to provide for the destruction of weeds and other noxious growths upon any of the lots and parkings therein, and to provide for the assessment of the cost thereof to the property; to provide for the immediate seizure and destruction of tainted or unsound meat or other provisions; to establish all needful regulations as to the management of packing and slaughter houses, renderies, tallow chandleries and soap factories, bone factories, tanneries, and manufactories of fertilizers and chemicals, within the limits of such cities or towns; to regulate and restrain the deposit and removal of all offensive material and substances, and the engendering of offensive odors and sights therefrom, so as to protect the public against the same; to establish and regulate slaughter houses; and, in cities having five thousand or more inhabitants, to build and control the same. In addition to any right of abatement of any public or private nuisance, they shall have the right to prohibit the same by ordinance and to punish by fine or imprisonment for the violation thereof. [35 G. A., ch.

60, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 22, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 89, § 9; C. '73, §§ 456, 526; R. §§ 1057, 1096.]

[The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by § 952 as well as by § 696-a. EDITOR.]

A municipality being given power to prevent and abate nuisances cannot escape liability for damages resulting from its action on the plea of ultra vires. Fitzgerald v. Sharon, 143–730, 121 N. W. 523.

The powers here specified do not expressly or by implication cover the regulation of the sale of milk by dealers within the city limits nor authorize the exaction of a license from such dealers. Bear v. Cedar Rapids, 147–341, 126 N. W. 324.

After an ordinance has been properly adopted prohibiting the obstruction of a stream within the city limits, for the purpose of preventing injury to its inhabitants, the city may maintain proceedings in equity to enforce such regulation by having such obstruction abated as a nuisance. Sioux City v. Simmons Hardware Co., 151–334, 129 N. W. 978, 131 N. W. 17.

The burden is not in such a case upon the city to show that the obstruction which is in violation of a condition of the ordinance is in its nature a nuisance, but rather upon the property owners who have violated the provisions of the ordinance to show that it is unreasonable. Ibid.

A city conveying a portion of a street for private use may attach as a condition to such conveyance that the use be so restricted as not to constitute a nuisance. Ibid.

SEC. 696-a. Applicable to special charter cities. Section six hundred ninety-six of the code is hereby made applicable to cities acting under special charter. [35 G. A., ch. 60, § 2.]

SEC. 697. Burial of dead—cemeteries.

The provisions as to providing and regulating places for the burial of the dead are inconsistent with the acquirement of a fee by the lot owner. Anderson v. Acheson, 132–744, 110 N. W. 335.

SEC. 698. Filling or draining lots.

This section relates to water standing in depressions or pools and not to large areas of low, wet or swampy land. The authority of the council is limited to obviating the nuisance occasioned by the standing of stagnant water. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

SEC. 699. Drainage preserved.

The provisions of this section are intended to restore the natural course for surface or other water in case it has been obstructed by grading or filling. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

The city cannot require the owner of property abutting on a street to construct drains to carry off the surface water accumulated by improvements of the street. The provisions of this section relate to natural water courses. Hoffman v. Muscatine, 113–332, 85 N. W. 17.

A municipality may become liable for improperly constructing and maintaining a drain and it cannot escape such liability on the plea of ultra vires. Fitzgerald v. Sharon, 143–730, 121 N. W. 523.

SEC. 700. Regulations—licenses—engineers—examinations. They shall have power to regulate, license and tax hotels, restaurants and eating houses; to define by ordinance who shall be considered transient merchants; to regulate, license and tax their sales and those of auctioneers, bankrupt and dollar stores, and the like, but the exercise of such power shall not interfere with sales made by sheriffs, constables, coroners, marshals, executors, guardians, assignees of insolvent debtors or bankrupts, or any other person required by law to sell real or personal property; to regulate, license and tax peddlers, house movers, billposters, itinerant doctors, itinerant physicians and surgeons, junk dealers, scavengers, pawnbrokers, and persons receiving actual possession of personal property as security for loans, with or without a mortgage or bill of sale thereon, and to provide for the examination and licensing engineers of stationary engines; to license and regulate all keepers of intelligence or employment offices, bureaus and agencies, as well as all persons doing the business of seeking employment for others, or procuring or furnishing employers for others, or giving information whereby employes or employers may be obtained. [35 G. A., ch. 61, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 31; 27 G. A., ch. 21, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 22, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 89, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 24; C. '73, §§ 462–3; R. § 1063.]

This provision does not cover the case of an itinerant dentist. Cherokee v. Perkins, 118–405, 92 N. W. 68.

The city may, by ordinance, impose a license upon one engaged in taking orders for goods on his own account to be secured by him from a wholesale house and shipped to him for delivery to the purchasers, he paying for the goods at wholesale and collecting the retail price. Cedar Falls v. Gentzer, 123–670, 99 N. W. 561.

The business of a traveling optician who merely prescribes and collects for eye glasses to be furnished to his patients is not that of a merchant who must procure a license as an itinerant merchant. Waukon v. Fisk, 124–464, 100 N. W. 475.

One engaged simply in soliciting orders or making delivery of goods on behalf of another is not a peddler, nor a transient merchant. State v. Nelson, 128–740, 105 N. W. 327.

While a city has power to define by ordinance who shall be considered transient merchants, it cannot by ordinance declare those persons to be merchants who by universal acceptance in the business world are not such. Ibid.

Under an ordinance imposing a license on peddlers with packs or with vehicles, a license cannot be exacted of one who simply solicits orders for goods as an employe and occasionally makes delivery of the same while so soliciting. State v. Smithart, 128–631, 105 N. W. 128.

The legislature may in the exercise of its police powers impose a license on all itinerant physicians practicing within the state and at the same time may authorize municipalities to impose a license for the practice thereof within its boundaries, and held that an ordinance of a city requiring the payment of a license by itinerant physicians might be enforced as against an itinerant physician who was duly authorized by the state board of medical examiners to practice in the state. Fairfield v. Shallenberger, 135–615, 113 N. W. 459.

Such an ordinance is not to be construed as applicable to nonresidents only and therefore is not unconstitutional on that ground. Ibid.

A license may be required from the same person for the same business by the state and by its municipalities. Ibid.

An ordinance imposing a license on transient merchants is applicable to residents as well as nonresidents if the business conducted is intended to be intermittent in character, and not permanent. Town of Scranton v. Hensen, 151–221, 130 N. W. 1079.

In a prosecution for the violation of such an ordinance, the plaintiff has the right to show that the stock of goods in question had been kept and offered for sale at other places in an itinerant manner. Ibid.

An ordinance relating to the licensing of peddlers must be reasonable in view of the purpose for which such license is provided. Iowa City v. Glassman, 155–671, 136 N. W. 899.

The power to tax peddlers cannot be so exercised as to practically and effectually prohibit their business so far as it is lawful. Ibid.

SEC. 700-a. Public dance halls, etc.—regulation—license. Cities and towns shall have power to regulate, define, tax, license or prohibit public dance halls, skating rinks, fortune tellers, palmists, and clairvoyants. [32 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.]

SEC. 700-b. Billboards—regulation—license. Cities and towns shall have the power to regulate the construction and location of billboards and the power to license and tax the owners thereof or persons maintaining the same. [32 G. A., ch. 32, § 2.]

SEC. 700-c. Temporary merchants' license. That hereafter it shall be unlawful for any temporary or transient merchant to engage in, do or transact any business as such within any city or incorporated town without first having obtained a license as hereinafter provided. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

SEC. 700-d. How secured—fee—limitations. Any temporary or transient merchant desiring to engage in, do or transact business in any county in this state, shall file an application for license for that purpose with the auditor of the county in which he desires to do business, which application shall state his name, his proposed place of business, the kind of business proposed to be conducted and the length of time for which he desires to conduct such business. Such temporary or transient merchant shall pay to the treasurer of such county a license fee of two hundred dollars and the treasurer of such county shall issue to such person duplicate receipts therefor; such temporary or transient merchant shall thereupon file the treasurer's receipt for such payment, together with the bond and appointment of agent for service of notice of suit as hereinafter provided, with the auditor of such county, who shall thereupon issue to such temporary or transient merchant a license to do business at the place described in the application and the kind of business to be done shall be described in such license. No license shall be good for more than one person, unless such person shall be the member of a copartnership, nor for more than one place of business, and shall be good for a period of one year from the date of its issuance. The auditor shall keep a record of such licenses in a book which shall at all times be open to public inspection. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.]

SEC. 700-e. Bond to auditor—agent for service of notice. Before a license shall issue as herein provided, the applicant shall execute and deliver to the county auditor a good and sufficient bond in the amount of one thousand dollars with surety or sureties to be approved by the county auditor. Said bond shall run to the county auditor as obligee and shall be for the protection of all persons, firms[1] or corporations[2] who may have claims against the obligor arising out of said business and any such person, firm or corporation may sue thereon in his or in its own name. At the time of delivering such bond to the county auditor, the obligor shall also deliver to the county auditor a duly executed instrument making the county auditor the agent of the obligor for the purpose of being served with original notice of suit on said bond. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 3.]

[1"firm" and 2"corporation" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 700-f. Advertising of bankrupt or other special stocks—affidavit showing facts—false statements—penalty. It shall be unlawful for any temporary or transient merchant to advertise, represent or hold out any goods, wares or merchandise as being sold as an insurance, bankrupt, railway wreck, insolvent, assignee, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, syndicate, wholesale, manufacturer or closing out sale, or as a sale of any goods, wares or merchandise damaged by smoke, fire, water or otherwise, unless such temporary merchant shall file with the county auditor an affidavit showing all the facts relating to the reasons for and character of such sale so to be advertised or represented, and showing that the goods, wares and merchandise of such sale are in fact in accordance with such advertisements and representations; such affidavit shall include a statement of the names of the persons from whom the goods, wares and merchandise so to be advertised or represented, were obtained, and the date of the delivery of said goods to the applicant and the place from which said goods, wares and merchandise were last taken, and all details necessary exactly to locate and fully to itemize all goods, wares and merchandise so to be advertised and represented. If such affidavit shall fail to show that such goods, wares and merchandise of such sale are in accordance with the proposed advertisements or representations as shown in such affidavit, or fails to disclose the facts as herein required, or if the county auditor learns that the said affidavit is untrue in any particular, then the county auditor shall refuse such applicant a license for such sale. Should a license be issued to such applicant it shall state that such person is authorized and licensed to sell such goods, wares and merchandise, and advertise, represent and hold out the same as being sold as such insurance, bankrupt, railway wreck, insolvent, assignee, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, syndicate, wholesale, manufacturer or closing out sale of any goods, wares and merchandise, or as being damaged by smoke, fire, water, or otherwise, or in any similar manner present any other fact, as shown by such affidavit. Such affidavit shall be sworn to by the applicant before a person authorized to administer oaths. If the applicant be a partnership it shall be sworn to by a member of such partnership, or if the applicant be a corporation it shall be sworn to by one of the officers of such corporation. Every person making a false statement of any fact in such affidavit shall be deemed guilty of perjury and shall be punished for such offense as provided by the laws of Iowa. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 4.]

SEC. 700-g. Temporary or transient merchant defined. The words "temporary or transient merchant" for the purposes of this act shall include all persons, firms or corporations, both as principal and agent, who engage in, do or transact any temporary or transient business, either in one locality or more, or by traveling from one or more places in this state, selling goods, wares or merchandise and who for the purpose of carrying on such business hire, lease or occupy a building, structure or car, for the exhibition and sale of such goods, wares or merchandise. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 5.]

SEC. 700-h. Evidence. Provided, further, that whenever it appears that any such stock of goods, wares and merchandise has been brought into any county in this state by a person, firm or corporation who has not previously conducted a merchandise business therein, and it is claimed that such stock is to be closed out at reduced prices, such facts shall be prima-facie evidence that the person, firm or corporation so offering such goods for sale is a transient merchant as defined in this act. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 6.]

SEC. 700-i. Auditor may require bond on complaint—permanent merchant defined. If complaint be made to the county auditor that any person, firm or corporation doing business in any city or incorporated town within the county is a transient merchant and such person, firm or corporation shall claim to be a permanent merchant, the county auditor shall require of such person, firm or corporation, and he or it shall furnish, a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, with surety or sureties to be approved by the county auditor. Such bond shall run to the county auditor as obligee and it shall secure the payment of the license in the event that such person, firm or corporation does not continue in the business which he or it is conducting in such city or incorporated town for a period of one year from the time when such business was started; said bond shall also be for the protection of all persons, firms or corporations having claim or claims against the obligor arising out of said business as provided in section three hereof. At the time of delivering such bond to the county auditor the obligor shall also deliver to the county auditor a duly executed instrument making the county auditor the agent of the obligor for the purpose of being served with original notice of suit on said bond. Such merchant so complained against shall also furnish to the county auditor the affidavit required in section four[1] hereof before advertising or holding out any goods, wares or merchandise as being sold as an insurance, bankrupt, railway wreck, insolvent, assignee, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, syndicate, wholesale, manufacturer or closing out sale, or as a sale of any goods, wares or merchandise damaged by smoke, fire, water or otherwise. But after such merchant has been conducting the particular business in which he or it is engaged in such city or incorporated town for a period of one year, such merchant shall be held to be a permanent merchant and the provisions of this act shall no longer be applicable to such merchant. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 7.]

SEC. 700-j. To whom not applicable. The provisions of this act shall not apply to sales made to dealers by commercial travelers or selling agents in the usual course of business or to sheriffs, constables, bona fide assignees, receivers or trustees in bankruptcy, or other public officers selling goods, wares and merchandise according to law, nor to any person selling farm and garden products. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 8.]

SEC. 700-k. Additional to municipal regulation. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed as prohibiting or in any way limiting or interfering with the right of any city or incorporated town to regulate or license the carrying on within such municipality the business of a transient merchant as in this act defined, in any case where authority has been or shall hereafter be conferred upon it so to do, but the requirements of this act shall be in addition thereto. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 9.]

SEC. 700-l. Fees—paid into general fund. All license fees collected under this act shall be paid into the general revenue fund of the county. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 10.]

SEC. 700-m. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act or conducting any such business after the expiration of the license shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether he be the owner of goods, wares and merchandise sold or carried by him or not, and on conviction thereof shall forfeit and pay into the county treasury, in addition to the penalty imposed therefor, double the amount of the tax for one year, as fixed in section two[1] hereof. [35 G. A., ch. 62, § 11.]

SEC. 702. Billiard saloons—gaming.

The city may by ordinance provide for the punishment of gambling, although the same act constitutes a criminal offense under the statutes of the state. Blodgett v. McVey, 131–552, 108 N. W. 239.

SEC. 703. Circuses—theaters—shows.

The city, having power to regulate, license or prohibit shows and exhibitions, may render itself liable by permitting a performance on a wire stretched over the street resulting in injury to persons in the street. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge, 131–566, 108 N. W. 1057.

A court will not enjoin the enactment of a proposed ordinance in regard to the regulation or prohibition of theatrical exhibitions even though, if enacted, it would be invalid as in excess of the power here given. Majestic Theater Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 153–219, 133 N. W. 117.

SEC. 704. Gambling houses—disorderly houses. They shall have power to suppress, restrain and prohibit gambling houses, disorderly houses, houses of ill fame, opium or hop joints, or places resorted to for the use of opium or hasheesh, and punish the keepers thereof, and persons resorting thereto. [28 G. A., ch. 18, § 1; C. '73, § 456; R. § 1057.]

SEC. 707. Dogs.

The power to regulate or prohibit the running at large of dogs may be exercised by making it a misdemeanor on the part of the owner to allow a dog to run at large unmuzzled. Sibley v. Lastrico, 122–211, 97 N. W. 1074.

The fact that a dog is allowed to run at large without being muzzled as required by city ordinance does not render the owner liable for injury caused by such dog unless such injury is the proximate result of the lack of a muzzle. Forsythe v. Kluckhohn, 150–126, 129 N. W. 739.

Proof of specific acts or of the habit of the animal to bite or seize the clothing of persons on the street, held admissible as a circumstance tending to sustain plaintiff's charge that the animal so acted at the time of the injuries inflicted upon the plaintiff. Forsythe v. Kluckhohn, 142 N. W. 225.

SEC. 709-a. Building code—penalties. Cities and towns, including cities under special charter and cities under the commission form of government, shall have the power to adopt by ordinance a building code, providing for the districting of such cities into one or more districts, establishing reasonable rules and regulations for the erection, reconstruction and inspection of buildings of all kinds within their limits and for a fee for such inspection and providing penalties for violation thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.]

SEC. 711. Fires—electric apparatus—regulations—fire limits. That section seven hundred eleven of the code and the law as it appears therein be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Cities, including cities acting under special charters and cities acting under commission form of government, and towns shall have power to make regulations for protection against fire and electrical apparatus, to establish fire limits, to prohibit within such limits the erection of all buildings and structures of every kind, additions thereto, substantial alterations thereof involving partial rebuilding, not constructed of fireproof materials, in whole or in part, as prescribed by ordinance, and to remove or take down any building or structure or part thereof erected contrary to such ordinances and to collect the cost thereof from the owner." [35 G. A., ch. 64, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 1, § 15; 22 G. A., ch. 21, § 1; C. '73, § 457; R. § 1058.]

A building erected in violation of an ordinance fixing fire limits may be torn down or removed without any judicial proceeding whatever. But one who is erecting a building with the intention of complying with the law has a reasonable time within which to put his building into the condition required by ordinance. Lemmon v. Guthrie Center, 113–36, 84 N. W. 986.

The term "fire proof" as used in this section is to be reasonably construed and refers to a roof which can be reasonably depended upon to resist the action of ordinary fires. Lane-Moore Lumber Co. v. Storm Lake, 151–130, 130 N. W. 924.

The statute leaves the builder to his choice of non-combustible material. Ibid.

The city has authority to provide that no further building or structure shall be erected on premises already improved or used except in conformity with the specified regulations and it may provide appropriate means to enforce such regulations. Ibid.

SEC. 713-a. Smoke nuisance in certain cities. The emission of dense smoke within the corporate limits of the cities of the state, including cities acting under commission form of government, now or hereafter having a population of thirty thousand or over and in cities acting under special charter now or hereafter having a population of sixteen thousand or over, is hereby declared a nuisance. [35 G. A., ch. 49, § 1.]

SEC. 713-b. Abatement—inspection. Every such city is hereby empowered to provide by ordinance for the abatement of such nuisance either by fine or imprisonment or by action in the district court of the county in which such city is located, or by both, such action to be prosecuted in the name of the city. They may also by ordinance provide all necessary rules and regulations for smoke inspection and the abatement and prevention of the smoke nuisance. [35 G. A., ch. 49, § 2.]

[The title to ch. 49, 35 G. A., so far as it refers to classes of cities, mentions only "certain cities, including cities acting under special charter." EDITOR.]

SEC. 713-c. Repeal. That chapter thirty-seven of the laws of the thirty-fourth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 49, § 3.]

SEC. 716-a. Levy for fire fund. That any city of the second class may levy a tax in any one year of not more than three mills, and in cities with a population in excess of ten thousand, five mills on the dollar of the assessed valuation of the taxable property within the corporate limits for the purpose of maintaining a fire department; and the money so raised shall constitute a fire fund, and shall be applied to no other purpose. [33 G. A., ch. 43, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 20, § 1.]

SEC. 716-b. Maintenance of fire departments—special tax for. Cities organized under the commission form of government, and cities having a population of five thousand or more organized under chapter two of title five of the code, and cities organized under special charter shall have power to levy a special tax of not to exceed one and one-half mills each year, upon all taxable property in said city, for the purpose of acquiring property for the use of the fire department and equipping the same. No part of the general fund shall be used for equipping said fire department. Nothing in this act shall be held to extend the power of such cities to make annual levies for general and special taxes in excess of forty-eight mills. [35 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.]

SEC. 716-c. Levy—percentage—maturity. Such cities shall have the power after the purchase of the property and equipment, by ordinance or resolution, to levy at any one time the whole or any part of the cost of such property and equipment upon such taxable property and determine the percentage of tax, not exceeding one and one-half mills, to be paid each year, and the number of years not exceeding ten, given for the maturity of each installment thereof. Certificates of such levy shall be filed with the county auditor in which said city is located, setting forth the amount of percentage and maturity of said tax, or each installment thereof, certified as correct by the city clerk or auditor, and thereupon said tax shall be placed upon the tax lists of the proper county or counties, and collected as other taxes. [35 G. A., ch. 65, § 2.]

SEC. 716-d. May anticipate collection—fire fund bonds. Any such city may anticipate the collection of taxes authorized to be levied for a fire fund for the equipment, or purchase of property for the fire department, and for that purpose may issue fire fund certificates or bonds with interest coupons, and the provisions of chapter twelve, title five of the code shall be operative as to such certificates, bonds and coupons, in so far as they may be applicable. [35 G. A., ch. 65, § 3.]

SEC. 716-e. Bonds secured by assessments. Said certificates, bonds and interest thereon shall be secured by said assessments and levies and shall be payable only out of the funds derived from such levies and pledged to the payment of the same, and no certificate or bonds shall be issued in excess of taxes authorized and levied to secure the payment of the same. It shall be the duty of such city on receipt of such funds, to hold the same separate and apart in trust for the payment of said certificates, bonds and interest and to apply the proceeds of such funds to the payments of said certificates, bonds and interest. [35 G. A., ch. 65, § 4.]

SEC. 717. Markets.

A city may require that any person buying or selling by weight within the city limits shall have the commodity bought or sold weighed on the public scales and the fact that a grain buyer has a place of business remote from the public scales so that he suffers a disadvantage by being compelled to have the grain which he buys weighed at such scales will not be a ground for enjoining the enforcement of such ordinance. Ewing v. Webster City, 103–226, 72 N. W. 511.

The power to enact an ordinance establishing and regulating a city market is specifically given and this power necessarily carries with it the power to prohibit the sale or weighing of commodities elsewhere than at the place established as such public market. State v. Smith, 123–654, 96 N. W. 899.

The establishment of a public market on one of the streets of a city does not constitute a nuisance per se, even though it results in temporary or partial obstruction of the street. Ibid.

The powers conferred upon the city under this section are legislative in character, and within the limits prescribed by statute are plenary. Lacy v. Oskaloosa. 143–704, 121 N. W. 542.

SEC. 718. Wharves, docks and piers.

The right of a city to impose wharfage fees within its jurisdiction does not arise wholly out of the expense which it incurs in the maintenance of a wharf. Keckevoet v. Dubuque, 157– —, 138 N. W. 540.

The exercise of the power to impose wharfage fees is not an interference with interstate commerce. Ibid.

In a particular case held that the wharfage fees exacted of a person who made use of the river frontage in his business were excessive. Ibid.

SEC. 720. Heating plants—water or gas works—electric plants—purchase and sale of heat, gas, water and electric current. They shall have power to purchase, establish, erect, maintain and operate, within or without the corporate limits of any city or town, heating plants, waterworks, gas works or electric light or electric power plants, with all the necessary reservoirs, mains, filters, streams, trenches, pipes, drains, poles, wires, burners, machinery, apparatus and other requisites of said works or plants, and lease or sell the same. They may also grant to individuals or private corporations the authority to erect and maintain such works or plants for a term of not more than twenty-five years, and may renew, amend or extend the term of such grant; but no exclusive franchise shall be thus granted, amended, extended or renewed. And they shall have power to enter into contracts with persons, corporations or municipalities for the purchase of heat, gas, water, and electric current for either light or power purposes, and shall have power to sell the same either to residents of such municipality, or to others, including corporations, and to erect and maintain the necessary transmission lines therefor either within or without the corporate limits, to the same extent, in the same manner, and under the same regulations, with the same power to establish rates and collect rents as is or hereafter may be provided by law for cities having municipally owned plants. No such works or plants shall be authorized, established, erected, purchased, leased or sold, or franchise extended or renewed or amended, or contract of purchase entered into, unless a majority of the legal electors voting thereon vote in favor of the same at a general, city or special election. [35 G. A., ch. 66, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 34, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 44, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 19, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 13; 22 G. A., ch. 11, §§ 1, 2; 22 G. A., ch. 26; C. '73, §§ 471–3.]

Although the city attempts to give an exclusive monopoly to a water company, that fact will not nullify the portions of the contract giving the company the right to furnish water. Kimball v. Cedar Rapids, 100 Fed. 802.

Under § 471 of the code of 1873, the city council might by affirmative vote of four fifths of the members authorize the construction of waterworks. Marion Water Co. v. Marion. 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

But the passage of an ordinance by the requisite vote approving a contract for the furnishing of water to the city does not constitute an authorization of the erection of waterworks as required by the statute. Ibid.

Notwithstanding the failure of a council to authorize the erection of waterworks as provided by statute, the company with whom a contract to furnish water to the city is made may recover under such contract for water actually furnished. Ibid.

The assignee of such a contract may recover against the city for water furnished under its provisions. Ibid.

Under a contract to furnish water to the city the water company is not limited in its recovery of compensation for water furnished to the proceeds of the five mill water tax authorized by statute. Ibid.

The city may have power to contract for a water supply for a long term of years, but does not necessarily have the right to fix the rate in advance to be paid under such contract for a long period. It may, however, make the contract exclusive. Davenport Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davenport, 124–22, 98 N. W. 892.

The grant of a franchise to build and operate waterworks is limited to twenty-five years, and no privilege under such grant can continue for a longer time. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 118–234, 91 N. W. 1081.

The power to contract for water for municipal purposes and for the rate which shall be charged other consumers is to be exercised in the interests and for the benefit of the inhabitants of the city, including public corporations, and a provision in such contract that water be furnished free to public schools is not invalid. Independent School Dist. v. LeMars City Water & Light Co., 131–14, 107 N. W. 944.

Every consumer of water is privy to such contract to such an extent as to be entitled to enforce the provisions for his benefit. Ibid.

A contract to furnish free water to public schools is not affected by the fact that a sewerage system is subsequently installed for school buildings, making necessary a larger supply of water. Ibid.

The water supplied to a city or town at public expense may properly be used in sprinkling the streets. McAllen v. Hamblin, 129–329, 105 N. W. 593.

Under statutory provision authorizing cities to contract with a company for the erection of waterworks and furnishing water for public use, and providing that the city might levy a tax to pay for water taken for public use, not in excess of five mills on the dollar for any one year, held that the power to levy the tax was not a limitation on the power to contract, and that the city might be liable for the contract price in excess of the proceeds of the tax. Ft. Madison Water Co. v. Ft. Madison, 110 Fed. 901; Ft. Madison v. Ft. Madison Water Co., 114 Fed. 292.

The question to be voted upon under the statute being whether the municipality should construct waterworks, held that the adoption of a proposition submitted to the voters as to whether bonds should be issued for the construction of waterworks was not sufficient, the question of issuing bonds being incidental only to the real question of constructing the waterworks. Brown v. Carl, 111–608, 82 N. W. 1033.

Also held that it was error to include in the proposition as to issuing bonds the statement that the proceeds would be used for maintaining as well as constructing such works. Ibid.

An existing system of waterworks may be acquired by the city by agreement, or taken under the right of eminent domain. Nash v. Council Bluffs, (C. C.) 174 Fed. 182.

The rates fixed by a city council are presumptively correct, and the company challenging the same on the grounds that they are not remunerative must overcome such presumption by a fair preponderance of testimony. Des Moines Water Co. v. Des Moines, (C. C.) 192 Fed. 193.

The grant of a franchise to a waterworks company necessarily carries with it the power, by appropriate measures, to protect the works from destruction or injury and the water supply from impairment or pollution. The exercise of such power is not a denial of the substantial rights of individuals, as members of the general public, to use the waters of a stream and the sand forming its bed, as private rights are subordinate to a public use of paramount importance. Mann v. Des Moines Water Co., (C. C. A.) 202 Fed. 862.

SEC. 721. Question submitted—notice—how given. The council may order any of the questions provided for in the preceding section submitted to vote at a general or city election, or at one specially called for that purpose; or the mayor shall submit said question to such vote upon the petition of twenty-five property owners of each ward in the city, or of fifty property owners of any incorporated town. Notice of such election shall be given in two newspapers published in said city or town, if there are two, if not, then in one, once each week for at least four consecutive weeks. But if no such newspaper is published within the limits of the corporation, then such notice may be given by posting copies thereof in three public places within the limits of said corporation, two of which places shall be the post office and the mayor's office of such city or town. The party asking for a renewal or extension of such franchise shall pay the cost incurred in holding such election. [33 G. A., ch. 44, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 32, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 11, § 4.]

Where the question submitted was whether the town should issue bonds for the purpose of erecting, maintaining and operating a system of waterworks, held that this was not a submission of the question whether such waterworks should be constructed by the town, and the adoption of the proposition did not authorize such construction. The precise question to be passed upon should be placed in plain terms before the voters. Brown v. Carl, 111–608, 82 N. W. 1033.

Also held that the incorporation into such question of the proposition that the proceeds of the bonds should be used to some extent in the maintenance of the waterworks was improper, and being in the nature of an inducement to the voter to cast an affirmative ballot, vitiated the acceptance of the proposition. Ibid.

Under code § 955, providing for notice of application for waterworks franchises in cities under special charter, which section contains provisions similar to this section, held that the notice provided for is one not only advising the property owners that the franchise is desired, but also of the very terms of such franchise. Hall v. Cedar Rapids, 115–199, 88 N. W. 448.

SEC. 722. Condemning land, plants and works—limitation. They shall have power to condemn and appropriate so much private property as shall be necessary for the construction and operation of said works or plants, and for the purpose of constructing and maintaining dams across the nonnavigable waters and watercourses of the state in forming reservoirs and sources of water to supply such waterworks and plants, as provided for the condemnation of land for city purposes; to issue bonds for the payment of the cost of establishing the same, including the cost of land condemned on which to locate them, and to confer by ordinance the power to appropriate and condemn private property for such purpose upon any individual or corporation authorized to construct and operate such works or plants. That when any city or town shall have voted at an election as is provided in sections seven hundred twenty and seven hundred twenty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, to purchase, establish, erect, maintain, and operate heating plants, waterworks, gasworks, or electric light or electric power plants, or when any such city or town shall have voted to contract indebtedness and issue bonds as is provided in sections thirteen hundred and six-b, thirteen hundred and six-c, thirteen hundred and six-d, and thirteen hundred and six-e of the supplement to the code, 1907, for any of the purposes therein enumerated, and in such city or town there shall then exist any such heating plant, waterworks, gasworks, electric light or electric power plants, or incomplete parts thereof or more than one, not publicly owned, and the contract or franchise of the owner of which utility has expired or been surrendered and such owner and city or town cannot agree upon terms of purchase, such city or town may, by resolution, proceed to acquire by condemnation, as hereinafter provided, any one or more of such heating plants, waterworks, gasworks, electric light or electric power plants or incomplete parts thereof and when so acquired may apply the proceeds of the bonds voted or issued in payment therefor and in making extensions and improvements to such works or plants so acquired; but not more than one of such utilities shall be so acquired when any such city or town shall be indebted in excess of the statutory limitation of indebtedness for such purposes for any such acquired property. [33 G. A., ch. 45, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 20; 23 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 10, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 11, §§ 2, 3; C. '73, § 474.]

The city is authorized to condemn lands to protect, maintain and continue its water supply. Laplant v. Marshalltown, 134–261, 111 N. W. 816.

SEC. 722-a. Court of condemnation—appointment—vacancies—procedure. That upon the passage of the resolution as provided under section one hereof and presentation of a certified copy thereof to the supreme court while in session, or to the chief justice of the supreme court, the said court or chief justice shall, within five days thereafter, appoint three district court judges from three judicial districts, of which one shall be from the district wherein such city or town is located, if he be not a resident of such city or town, as a court of condemnation, and shall enter an order requiring said judges to attend as such court of condemnation at the county seat in the county in which said city or town is located, within ten days thereafter, which judges shall so attend as ordered; and such court of condemnation at the time it meets to organize, as is provided in said order, or at any time during the proceeding, which may be adjourned from time to time for any purpose, may fix a time for the appearance of any person or persons which any party desires to have joined in the proceedings and which the court deems necessary, which time for appearance shall be sufficiently remote to give notice upon such parties; but if such time of appearance shall occur after any proceedings are begun they shall be reviewed by the court as it may direct to give all parties full opportunity to be heard. All persons not appearing and having any right, title, or interest in or to the property which is the subject of condemnation or any part thereof and including all leaseholders and mortgagee trustees of bondholders which are to be made parties to the proceedings, shall be served with notice thereof, and the time and place of meeting of said court in the same manner and for the same length of time as the service of original notices, either by personal service or service by publication, the time so set being the time at which the parties so served are required to appear, and actual personal service of the notice within or without the state shall supersede the necessity of publication. These provisions shall also apply to condemnation proceedings which are pending, but nothing herein shall be held to invalidate any proceedings or notices served in any proceedings under chapter nine, title ten, or under the provisions of the act to which this is amendatory which have been had or taken at the time of the taking effect of this act. Such court of condemnation shall have the power to summon and swear witnesses, take evidence, order the taking of depositions, and require the production of any books and papers, as is provided in chapter one, title twenty-three of the code, and a reporter may be appointed, as is provided for the district court; and such court shall perform all the duties of commissioners in the condemnation of property and such duties and the method of condemnation and procedure, including provisions for appeal, shall, except as herein otherwise specially provided, be the same, as nearly as may be, as is provided in chapter four, title ten of the code, but the clerk of the district court of the county where such city or town is located shall perform all the duties required of the sheriff in said chapter and, in case of a vacancy in said court of condemnation, such vacancy shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made and the court may review any evidence of its record made necessary by reason of such vacancy. [34 G. A., ch. 35, § 1; 33 G. A., ch 45, § 2.]

So long as the supreme court of the state has not passed upon the constitutionality of this provision for appointment of appraisers by such court, but, on the other hand, has acted under it, the federal court will not pass upon the question of whether it is in violation of the constitution of the state. Des Moines Water Company, v. Des Moines, 194 Fed. 557.

SEC. 722-b. Costs—expenses of members. The costs of said proceedings shall be the same and paid in the same manner as in proceedings in the district court, and the said district court judges of said court of condemnation shall receive, while engaged in such service, their actual expenses, which expenses shall be taxed as costs in the case. [33 G. A., ch. 45, § 3.]

SEC. 724. Rates—taxes. They shall have power, when operating such works or plants,[1] and shall have the power to sell the products of such municipal heating plants, waterworks, gasworks or electric light or electric power plants, to any municipality, individual or private corporations outside of the city or town limits as well as to individuals or corporations within its limits, and to erect in the public highway the necessary poles upon which to construct transmission lines, and to assess from time to time, in such manner as they shall deem equitable, upon each tenement or other place supplied with water, gas, heat, light or power, reasonable rents or rates fixed by ordinance, and to levy a tax, as hereafter provided, to pay or aid in paying the expenses of running, operating, renewing, extending and repairing such works or plants owned and operated by such city or town, and the interest on any bonds issued to pay all or any part of the cost of their construction. [35 G. A., ch. 67, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 33, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 19, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 11, § 2; C. '73, § 475.]

[1]The amendment made by ch. 67, 35 G. A., which is inserted here beginning with "and shall have the power" and ending with "to construct transmission lines, and," is placed in strict accordance with the directions of the act, though the section is thereby rendered rather incoherent. EDITOR.]

A city may provide by ordinance for cutting off the supply of water to a customer who fails to pay his bills when due. But such a regulation cannot be made the instrument whereby the company may become the judge of its own case and shut off water to enforce the payment of disputed bills. Spaulding Mfg. Co. v. Grinnell, 155–500, 136 N. W. 649.

A contract by which the city is required to pay excessive rental for hydrants for a period of years held invalid. Hall v. Cedar Rapids, 115–199, 88 N. W. 448.

By acceptance from the city of a franchise to furnish gas to the inhabitants of the city the company assumes a public duty to supply gas at a reasonable rate to all inhabitants and to charge each the same price and to furnish on the same terms for like service under the same or similar circumstances. It cannot refuse to furnish gas to one who complies with the terms and conditions imposed on the ground that such applicant is indebted on a previous gas bill as to which there has been litigation, it not appearing that the applicant is irresponsible. Phelan v. Boone Gas Co., 147–626, 125 N. W. 208.

The act of the municipality in fixing rates for a corporation having a franchise to supply the public is purely legislative and it is presumed to have been in the proper exercise of the power conferred.

Evidence considered and held not sufficient to show that the rate fixed in the particular case was not remunerative. Cedar Rapids Gas Light Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 144–426, 120 N. W. 966.

The said proposition shall be submitted in the man-

The council shall in the resolution ordering such election, specify the rate of taxation proposed and the number of years the same shall be levied not exceeding fifteen years. If a majority of the votes cast at such election on the proposition so submitted shall be in favor of the proposition for taxation the council shall levy the tax so authorized which shall be collected and paid over to the treasurer of such hospital board in the same manner as other taxes are collected. Such taxes shall be known as a hospital fund and shall be paid out on the order of the trustees for the purposes authorized by this act and for no other purpose, whatever. [33 G. [31 G. A., ch. 22, § 4.]

[By ch. 35 the 32 G. A. changed the words "twelve thousand five hundred," in §§ 741-o and 741-q, respectively, to "five thousand," but made no change of the words "twelve thousand five hundred," in the above section.]

SEC. 741-s. Condemnation proceedings. If the board of hospital trustees and the owners of any property desired by them for hospital purposes cannot agree as to the price to be paid therefor, the city council of said city shall cause the same to be condemned in the manner provided for taking land for public purposes by cities. [31 G. A., ch. 22, § 5.]

ceeding two and one-half per centum of the actual value of the property within said city, to be ascertained by the last state and county tax list previous to the incurring of such indebtedness, provided that before an indebtedness shall be contracted in excess of one and one-fourth per centum of the actual value of the taxable property ascertained as provided in section two of chapter forty-one as found in section thirteen hundred and six-b of the supplement to the code, [1902] a petition signed by a majority of the qualified electors of such city shall be filed with the council of such city, asking that an election shall be called, stating the purposes for which the money is to be used and that the said hospital cannot be purchased, built or maintained within the limit of one and one-fourth per centum of valuation of the taxable property of such city. If two thirds of all the electors voting at such election vote in favor of such indebtedness at such election, the council of such city shall issue the bonds as provided in this act to the limit as herein provided. [31 G. A., ch. 22, § 8.]

SEC. 741-w. Department of public docks — question submitted. The city council or board of commissioners in any incorporated town or city, including cities under commission plan and those under special charter now or hereafter situated on any natural or artificial navigable waterway within or bordering upon the state of Iowa, may, when in their judgment [deemed] expedient, create a department known as the department of public docks, providing that before said commission may go into operation, the question shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said city or town at a regular or special election called for that purpose; and provided further, that a majority of those voting at said election shall vote in favor of the creation of such department of public docks. [35 G. A., ch. 74, § 1.]

SEC. 741-w1. Commissioners — appointment — qualifications — terms—organization—removal—vacancies. The department of public docks shall be administered by a dock board consisting of three members to be known as commissioners of public docks. Within three months, or as soon as possible after the time when this act shall go into effect, the mayor of the municipality shall appoint, with the approval of the municipal council, as members of the dock board, three commissioners of public docks, who have been residents of the municipality in which they are appointed for a period of not less than five years, and who shall not at the time of their appointment or during their term of office be interested in or be employed by any common carrier, and said board shall act without compensation. Said commissioners when first appointed shall hold office for a term of one, two and three years respectively, and shall determine by lot among themselves which commissioners shall hold the said respective terms. Thereafter, one commissioner with the said qualifications shall be appointed annually by the mayor and the term of office of such commissioner shall be three years. The members of the board shall qualify by taking oath for the faithful performance of their duties. Within ten days after their appointment the commissioners shall meet and organize the dock board by the election from among their number of a president and a secretary of said board, and shall from time to time adopt rules and regulations for the government of their department and to govern their proceedings, which shall be adopted by resolution recorded in a book kept by the board and known as book of rules and regulations, and said rules and regulations shall be in force after publication in some newspaper published and circulated in the municipality. The dock board shall maintain an office and keep a record of all of its proceedings and acts, and books of account showing all of its financial transactions, which records and books of accounts shall at all times be open to public inspection. If any commissioner shall at any time during his said incumbency cease to have the qualifications required by this act for his appointment, or shall wilfully violate any of his duties under the law, such commissioner shall be removed by the mayor after written charges have been preferred against him and a due hearing of such charges has been had by the mayor upon reasonable notice to such commissioner. Vacancies occurring in the board through resignation, or otherwise, shall be filled by the mayor, for the unexpired term. [35 G. A., ch. 74, § 2.]

SEC. 741-w2. Powers and duties. The board shall have power and it shall be its duty for and in behalf of the city or town hereinafter called the municipality, for which it is organized:

(a) General plan. To prepare or cause to be prepared a comprehensive general plan for the improvement of its harbor and water front, making provision for the needs of commerce and shipping, and providing for the construction of such docks, basins, piers, quay walls, wharves, warehouses, tunnels, belt railway connecting with all railway lines within the municipality, and such cranes, dock apparatus and machinery equipment as it may deem necessary for the convenient and economical accommodation and handling of water craft of all kinds and of freight and passengers, and the free interchange of traffic between the waterway and the railways and the railways and the waterway; which plan shall be filed in the office of the board and be open to public inspection, and which may from time to time be changed, altered or amended by the board, as the requirements of shipping and commerce and the advance of knowledge and information on the subject may suggest.

(b) Purchase and condemnation of property. To purchase or acquire by condemnation or other lawful means, such personal property, lands or rights or interests therein, including easements, as may be necessary for use in the provision and in the construction of any public owned harbor, dock, basin, pier, slip, quay wall, wharf, warehouse, or other structures, and in the construction of a belt railway and railway switches, and appurtenances as provided for in such plan as may be adopted by the board. If the board shall deem it proper and expedient that the municipality shall acquire possession of such wharf property, lands or rights or interests therein, including easements, and no price can be agreed upon between the board and the owner or owners thereof, the board may direct the municipal corporation attorney to take legal proceedings to acquire same for the municipality in manner as is or may be provided by the general laws of the state of Iowa in the case of corporations having the right of eminent domain. The title of all lands, property and rights acquired by the board shall be taken in the name of the municipality it represents.

(c) Control of property. The board shall have exclusive charge and control of the wharf property belonging to the municipality including belt railway located in whole or in part thereof, all the wharves, piers, quay walls, bulkheads, and structures thereon and waters adjacent thereto, and all the slips, basins, docks, water fronts, the structures thereon and the appurtenances, easements, uses, reversions and rights belonging thereto, which are now owned or possessed by the municipality, or to which the municipality is or may become entitled, or which the municipality may acquire under the provision hereof or otherwise. The board shall have the exclusive charge and control of the building, rebuilding, alteration, repairing, operation and leasing of said property and every part thereof, and of the cleaning, grading, paving, sewering, dredging and deepening necessary in and about the same.

(d) Abutting property—jurisdiction and improvement. The board is hereby vested with jurisdiction and authority over that part of the streets and alleys and public grounds of the municipality which abut upon or intersect its navigable waters, lying between the harbor line and the first intersecting street measuring backward from high-water mark, to the extent only that may be necessary or requisite in carrying out the powers vested in it by this act; and it is hereby declared that such jurisdiction and authority shall include the right to build retaining or quay walls, docks, levees, wharves, piers, warehouses, or other constructions, including belt railway and railway switches, across and upon such streets and alleys and public grounds, and to grade, fill and pave the same to conform to the general level of the wharf, or for suitable approaches thereto; provided that such improvements shall be paid for out of funds in the hands of the board and not by assessments against abutting property.

(e) Control consistent with navigation laws—collect tolls. The board is also vested with exclusive government and control of the harbor and water front consistent with the laws of the United States governing navigation, and of all wharf property, belt railway, wharves, piers, quay walls, bulkheads, docks, structures and equipment thereon, and all the slips, basins, waters adjacent thereto and submerged lands and appurtenances belonging to the municipality, and may make reasonable rules and regulations governing the traffic thereon and the use thereof, with the right to collect reasonable dockage, wharfage, sheddage, storage, cranage fees, and tolls thereon, as hereinafter provided.

(f) Rules and regulations—specifications — ordinances — publication. The board shall have power to make general rules and regulations for the carrying out of the plans prepared and adopted by it for the building, rebuilding, repairing, alteration, maintenance and operation of all structures, erections, or artificial constructions upon or adjacent to the water front of the municipality, whether the same shall be done by the board or by others; and except as provided by the general rules of the board, no new structures, or repairs upon or along said water front shall be undertaken, except upon application to the board and under permit by it and in accordance with the general plans of the board and in pursuance of specifications submitted to the board and approved by it upon such application. The general rules and regulations of the board, whenever adopted by it, shall be embodied in the form of ordinances and certified copies thereof shall, forthwith upon their passage, be transmitted to the clerk of the municipality who shall cause the same to be transcribed at length in a book kept for that purpose and the same shall be included in any compilation or publication of the ordinances of the municipality. Upon filing any such certified copy of any such ordinances, the said clerk shall forthwith cause the same to be published once in some newspaper of general circulation published in the municipality, or if none is there published, then in the next nearest newspaper published in this state, and the said ordinance shall be in force and effect from and after the date of said publication. Provided, however, that if the said ordinances are included in any book or pamphlet of ordinances published by said municipality, no other publication shall be required, and they shall be in force and effect from the date said book or pamphlet is published. The said ordinances of the board shall not be considered or construed as ordinances of said municipality, except as they may be adopted as ordinances of said municipality, and the provisions of the code and statutes of the state now or hereafter enacted relative to ordinances of cities and towns shall not apply to ordinances passed by said board unless express reference be made thereto in said statutes.

(g) Tolls and charges—regulations. The board shall have the power to fix and regulate and from time to time to alter the tolls, fees, dockage, wharfage, cranage, sheddage, storage and other charges for all public-owned docks, levees, belt railway, piers, quay walls, slips, basins, wharves and their equipment, or the use of any portion of the water front of the municipality, which charges and rates shall be collectible by the board and shall be reasonable with a view only of defraying the necessary annual expenses of the board in constructing and operating the improvements and works herein authorized; a schedule of such charges and regulations shall be enacted by the board in the form of ordinances and a certified copy thereof shall be transmitted to the clerk of the municipality in like manner as other ordinances of the board before the same shall go into or be in effect, and a copy of same shall be kept posted in a conspicuous place in the office of the board.

(h) Assistants—officers—ordinances. The board shall have power to employ such assistants, employes, clerks, workmen and laborers as may be necessary in the efficient and economical performance of the work authorized by this act. All officers, places and employments in the permanent service of the board shall be provided for by ordinance duly passed by the board and the same shall be transmitted to the clerk of the municipality as provided for other ordinances of the board.

(i) Construction work plans—approval—public inspection—bids—exceptions—emergencies. In the construction of docks, levees, wharves and their appurtenances, or in contracting for the construction of any work or structures authorized by this act, the board shall proceed only after full and complete plans (approved by the board) and specifications for said work have been prepared and submitted and filed with the board by its engineer for public inspection, and after public notice asking for bids for the construction of such work, based upon such plans and specifications, has been published in some newspaper of general circulation published within the municipality, or if none so published, then in the nearest newspaper published in this state, which publication shall be made at least thirty days before the time fixed for the opening of said bids and contracting for such work, and such contract may then be made with the lowest responsible bidder therefor; unless the board deems the bids excessive or unsuitable, in which event it may proceed to readvertise for bids, or the board may do the work directly, purchasing such materials and contracting for such labor as may be necessary without further notice or proposals for bids; except that it shall make no purchase of materials in amounts exceeding five hundred dollars except by public letting upon ten days' notice, published as aforesaid, specifying the materials proposed to be purchased; provided, however, that said public letting shall not be required in case no satisfactory bids are received, or in case of an emergency where the delay of advertising and public letting might cause serious loss or injury to the work. The board shall, in all cases, have the right to reject any and all bids, and may either readvertise therefor, contract with others at a figure not exceeding the lowest bidder without further advertising, or do the work directly as hereinbefore provided.

(j) Tax levy—dock fund. To defray the expense of exercising the powers conferred by this act, or any portion of such expense in excess of the income from the aforesaid rates and charges to be collected by the board, the council of the municipality shall levy a special tax upon the taxable property of the municipality, not exceeding two mills on the dollar, and which, if there is a bond issue as herein provided, may be levied and made payable for a period not exceeding ten years or the term for which the bonds may be issued, and any portion of which may be pledged to the payment of such bonds and which portion shall be set apart as a sinking fund for the payment thereof, and which bonds may be by said municipality made payable out of said funds only, or may be made payable as general indebtedness of said municipality. The provisions of section thirteen hundred and six-b of the supplement to the code of Iowa [1907] shall not apply to said indebtedness evidenced by such bonds. The board shall annually make to the council a report of the receipts and disbursements made by or on account of said board, and shall file with the council an estimate of the amounts necessary to be raised by taxation to defray the expenses of the board. The council shall at the time of levying annual taxes levy a sufficient tax not exceeding said two mills to meet the said estimate and which shall be collected as other taxes and paid over to the treasurer of the municipality and by him credited to the fund to be known as the dock fund.

(k) Bonds—limitation. Whenever said dock board shall deem it necessary or advisable to issue bonds for the purpose of constructing any of the works or improvements herein authorized or purchasing property for said purpose, the said board shall petition the council of the municipality to issue such bonds stating the purpose for which said bonds are requested and thereupon the council shall issue the said bonds if the municipality is not thereby indebted in excess of the limit imposed by section three of article two of the constitution of the state of Iowa; or if the council does not deem it advisable to issue said bonds, if the same would not be in excess of said limitation, the council shall submit the question of issuing said bonds to the voters of said municipality, and if a majority of said voters voting at a special election or general election vote in favor thereof, said bonds shall be issued. The proceeds of said bonds when issued shall be paid to the municipal treasurer and credited to the dock fund. If the municipality is already indebted beyond the said limitation the council may, if it deem it advisable, levy a special tax not exceeding two mills on the dollar per annum for the purpose of paying bonds and which may be levied for a period not exceeding ten years or the term of the bonds and in anticipation of the collection of the said tax, bonds may be issued for the said purpose designated in said petition, and which bonds shall be payable only out of the proceeds of said special tax already levied at the time of their issuance, and the municipality shall not be indebted on said bonds or any further obligated than to collect and apply the proceeds of said tax to the liquidation of said bonds.

(l) Funds, how disbursed—books audited. All funds collected by the dock board, or by the municipality for dock purposes from the proceeds of taxes, bonds or otherwise, shall be deposited with the treasurer of the municipality and disbursed by him only upon warrants or orders duly signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the dock board and which shall state distinctly the consideration for which same are drawn, and a permanent record shall be kept by the board of all warrants or orders so drawn showing the date, amount, consideration and to whom payable. When paid the same shall be canceled and kept on file by the treasurer of the municipality. The books of the board shall from time to time be audited by the municipal auditor under the direction of the mayor, in such manner and at such times as he may direct or prescribe, and all of said books and records of the board shall at all times be open to public inspection. [35 G. A., ch. 74, § 3.]

SEC. 741-w3. Applicable to special charter cities. This act shall be applicable also to cities acting under special charter, or exercising powers conferred by special charter. [35 G. A., ch. 74, § 4.]

SEC. 741-w4. Acts in conflict repealed—regulations applicable—control by state officers. All laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. That all state regulations for the control and operation of railroads, common carriers and public utilities shall apply to and have full force and effect in regard to all powers, duties and actions of the department of public docks and the same shall be subject to and under the control of the state board of railroad commissioners or the public utility commission now or hereafter established by law. [35 G. A., ch. 74, § 5.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE PURCHASE AND CONSTRUCTION OF WATERWORKS.

SECTION 742. Tax—sinking fund. Cities of the first class shall have power to levy, in addition to the regular water tax authorized by law, a tax of two mills upon the dollar upon all the property within the corporate limits of said cities, excepting lots greater than ten acres in area, used for horticultural or agricultural purposes, for the purpose of creating a sinking fund, to be used as provided in this chapter for the purchase or erection of waterworks in such cities, or for the payment of any indebtedness incurred by such cities for waterworks now owned by the same. The proceeds of such two-mill levy shall be deposited in one or more solvent banks or trust companies of the city making such levy, at a rate of interest not less than three per cent. per annum, compounded semiannually, and payable, principal and interest, on demand, after sixty days' notice in writing. The city treasurer depositing the proceeds of such tax shall exact from the bank or trust company wherein such money is deposited a satisfactory bond, payable to the city, to be approved by the treasurer and mayor of such city, and to be filed in the office of the city treasurer. [28 G. A., ch. 24, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 23, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 1, § 1.]

[The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by § 958 as well as by § 742-a. EDITOR.]

A city may provide for a tax to be levied before the contract for the purchase or construction of the works is entered into. The council may first determine the kind and cost of the works to be erected, the amount of tax to be levied and other incidental matters before submitting the matter to the voters. Youngerman v. Murphy, 107–686, 76 N. W. 648.

The fact that proceedings to erect and establish waterworks are irregular and the bonds issued for the erection of such works are void, does not authorize an injunction against the city to restrain it from using and operating such works. Ramsay v. Marble Rock, 123–7, 98 N. W. 134.

SEC. 742-a. Applicable to special charter cities. This act shall apply to cities acting under special charter. [28 G. A., ch. 24, § 2.]

[§ 742-a is § 2 of ch. 24 of the acts of the 28 G. A. § 1 of said chapter amends § 742 of the code by changing the rate of interest from four to three per cent.]

SEC. 742-a1. Use of sinking fund. In all cities of the first class, where a sinking fund has been accumulated as provided in chapter five, title five of the code, and in which waterworks have not been purchased under said chapter, such cities are hereby authorized to use and apply such sinking fund and all accumulations thereof upon the cost of waterworks purchased or erected under the provisions of sections seven hundred twenty, seven hundred twenty-one and seven hundred twenty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter forty-five, acts of the thirty-third general assembly, and chapter thirty-five, acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly. [35 G. A., ch. 73, § 1.]

SEC. 742-b. Authority to loan—service to military reservation—conditions. That wherever any corporation engaged in maintaining and operating a waterworks plant within any city of this state where the United States has or may hereafter establish a military reservation within a distance of five miles from either of the boundaries of said city and such city has either under the provisions of chapter one of the acts of the twenty-sixth general assembly or of section seven hundred forty-two of the code levied taxes for the purpose of creating a sinking fund to be used for the purchase or erection of waterworks therein, such city shall be authorized to loan a portion not however to exceed fifty thousand dollars of the proceeds of the taxes so levied to such corporation so maintaining and operating such waterworks plant, with interest at a rate not less than two per cent. per annum, for a period of not more than ten years from the date of the passage of this act upon such terms as the city council of such city may approve. Provided, however, that such corporation shall apply the proceeds of every such loan to the laying of a main with the necessary attachments and usual branches to hydrants from its pumping station or other connection with its mains to the said military reservation and to make the changes in its plant which may be required to furnish the service demanded by the United States at such reservation. [29 G. A., ch. 38, § 1.]

SEC. 742-c. Reversion of funds loaned. That when the funds that have been loaned as provided in section one of this act, and the interest thereon, are repaid to the city to which they belong, said funds together with all interest derived therefrom shall immediately revert to the fund for which the said taxes were levied and thereafter be used for no other purpose than as authorized by chapter one of the acts of the twenty-sixth general assembly or section seven hundred forty-two of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 38, § 3.]

SEC. 742-d. Water for military reservations—how furnished. That all individuals or private corporations to which any city in this state has granted authority to erect and maintain waterworks with all the necessary reservoirs, mains, filters, pipes and other appurtenances in such city including the Des Moines waterworks company now owning and operating such a plant in the city of Des Moines, shall, whenever the United States has, or may hereafter establish a military reservation within a distance of five miles from either of the boundaries of such city, be authorized to use said waterworks plant in said city, and the mains now or hereafter laid in the highways of said city for the purpose of furnishing water to such military reservation, such authority to continue so long as under franchises now held or hereafter granted such individuals or corporations shall be authorized to maintain and operate such waterworks plant in such cities. [29 G. A., ch. 207, § 1.]

SEC. 742-e. Mains in highways. The board of supervisors of any county in which such military reservation is or may hereafter be located, shall have the power to authorize any such individual or corporation to lay its mains in any of the highways of the county for the purpose of extending the same to any such military reservation. [29 G. A., ch. 207, § 2.]

SEC. 744. Purchase or erection—indebtedness heretofore incurred. Cities of the first class are hereby authorized to purchase or erect waterworks, under the provisions of this chapter, for the purpose of supplying said cities and the inhabitants thereof with water, and are authorized to continue the levy of the two-mill tax herein provided for until the purchase price, principal and interest, or the cost incurred in the erection of said works, or the indebtedness heretofore incurred for and on account of such works, is fully paid and discharged. [27 G. A., ch. 23, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 1, § 3.]

SEC. 745. Contracts—bonds—cities procuring or owning waterworks. Cities levying such sinking fund tax are hereby authorized to let a contract or contracts for the purchase or erection of waterworks, and, upon the approval and adoption of such contract or contracts as hereinafter provided, to apply such sinking fund upon the cost thereof, and cities so purchasing or constructing and those now owning such waterworks are authorized to pledge the proceeds of the continuing two-mill levy provided for in this chapter, and the regular water levy, and the net revenues derived from the operation of the waterworks, and shall have the right to mortgage or bond such works, to secure the payment of the purchase price or the cost of constructing such waterworks, or the cost of making necessary extensions and improvements of such waterworks, and such cities shall have the right to execute additional mortgage or mortgages or bonds upon such works for the purposes above set forth. Provided that said additional mortgage or mortgages or bonds shall bear not more than six per cent. interest per annum; but no part of the general fund of such city shall be applied upon such contracts, bonds or mortgage. In the payment thereof, the city and holders of said contracts, bonds or mortgages shall be restricted to the proceeds of the said taxes and the net revenues of the said waterworks, as hereinbefore provided; and such contract, contracts or bonds shall not bear a higher rate of interest than five per cent. per annum, payable semiannually. Cities of the first class which have adopted or may adopt an ordinance availing themselves of the privileges conferred herein, shall in addition thereto have and possess the following powers:

A—In addition to mortgage on the water plant to secure the bonds hereinbefore authorized, the said city may, in addition to the security of said mortgage and as a part thereof, grant a franchise to maintain and operate said plant on foreclosure sale under said mortgage, said franchise to become effective only on the passing of title under the said foreclosure sale and to continue for a period of not exceeding twenty-five years thereafter; providing that the granting of such franchise shall be approved by a majority of the electors of said city, voting at an election thereon, which election shall be held as provided in section seven hundred forty-six, supplement of the code [1902].

B—They shall have power to issue the general bonds of the city creating an indebtedness of said city to an amount which, with its other existing indebtedness, shall not exceed five per cent. of the actual value of the taxable property of said city, as shown by the last preceding assessment, the said bonds or proceeds of sale thereof to be used in the purchase or construction of a water plant, as herein provided; provided, however, that such bonds can be issued by order of the city council of said city only after a contract for the purchase or construction of a water plant and providing for the issuance of such bonds has been approved by the majority of the electors of said city voting at an election thereon to be held in accordance with the provisions of section seven hundred forty-six, supplement of the code [1902]. Neither the said bonds nor the proceeds thereof shall be diverted to another purpose than as herein provided. Said cities may purchase or contract a water plant and pay for the same partly out of the water bonds and partly out of the general bonds herein provided, or wholly out of either class of bonds or proceeds thereof, as such city may determine. The general bonds of the city herein provided shall bear interest at not exceeding five per cent. per annum, payable semiannually, and shall be payable not more than twenty years after date and in the general form of bonds provided by section four hundred and three of the code, with such changes as may be necessary to conform the same to this statute and the ordinances or contract of the city under which they are issued. [31 G. A., ch. 23, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 40, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 23, § 3; 26 G. A., ch. 1, § 4.]

[The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by § 958, also by § 745-b. EDITOR.]

Bonds issued in pursuance of statutory provisions authorizing the levy of taxes in the future for the construction of waterworks, with a provision that when the bonds are paid by the proceeds of such tax, the waterworks shall become the property of the city, are invalid if in excess of the constitutional limitation of indebtedness. Ottumwa v. City Water Supply Co., 119 Fed. 315; City Water Supply Co. v. Ottumwa, 120 Fed. 309.

The provisions of this section, as amended by 27 G. A., ch. 23, indicating the intention of the legislature to empower cities of the first class to purchase or erect waterworks and provide a plan by which the cost of such improvement may be met, held not to create an indebtedness, within the meaning of the constitution, art. 11, § 3, prohibiting municipal corporations from becoming indebted to an amount in the aggregate exceeding five per cent. on the value of the taxable property. Swanson v. Ottumwa, 118–161, 91 N. W. 1048.

Such provisions contemplate the levying of a tax, payable in installments in the future, to be appropriated, as they are collected, to the payment of the amount necessary to secure the waterworks which may be provided for by contract. But as the corporation is not under obligation to pay, except as money may be provided out of the collection of such taxes, there is no such obligation as to constitute an indebtedness. Ibid.

Under statutory provision authorizing cities to contract with a company for the erection of waterworks and furnishing water for public use, and providing that the city might levy a tax to pay for water taken for public use, not in excess of five mills on the dollar for any one year, held that the power to levy the tax was not a limitation on the power to contract, and that the city might be liable for the contract price in excess of the proceeds of the tax. Ft. Madison Water Co. v. Ft. Madison, 110 Fed. 901; Ft. Madison v. Ft. Madison Water Co., 114 Fed. 292.

It seems that the contract to purchase waterworks or the contract to erect, as may be adopted by the council, must be ratified by the voters. Nash v. Council Bluffs, (C. C.) 174 Fed. 182.

SEC. 745-a. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts, so far as the same are in conflict with the foregoing, are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 23, § 2.]

SEC. 745-b. Applicable to special charter cities. This act shall apply to cities acting under special charter. [29 G. A., ch. 40, § 2.]

[The above section is § 2, ch. 40, of the acts of the 29 G. A., making said act applicable to cities under special charters.]

SEC. 746. Question submitted—powers of council after affirmative vote—preliminary work. Said contract or contracts shall not be binding upon said city until the same shall have been approved by the city council at a regular meeting, or a special meeting called for such purpose, and shall have been adopted by a majority of the electors of said city voting at a city or special election, which shall have been duly called after thirty days' notice by said city. The proposition to be submitted at said election, and the form of ballot, shall be: "Shall the contract or contracts approved by the city council in relation to the waterworks be adopted?" The proposition shall be printed and placed on the ballots, and the voter shall designate his choice, and the election shall be conducted, in the manner provided in the chapter on elections. When a majority of the electors of said city at any election shall have declared in favor of the purchase or erection of any waterworks, or shall have authorized the incurring of indebtedness or issuance of bonds for waterworks, the city council may provide by contract or otherwise without submission of same to the electors, for surveys, examinations, appraisements, estimates, plans, specifications, advertisements for bids and all other necessary work, preliminary to the making of such contract or contracts for purchase or erection of waterworks, and pay for the same and the expense of said election out of said sinking fund. [33 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 49, § 4.] [29 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 1, § 5.]

The electors do not determine the abstract question of waterworks or no waterworks. They simply approve or disapprove of the particular contracts submitted to them. The ultimate question of the establishment of such works rests with the city council. Youngerman v. Murphy, 107–686, 76 N. W. 648.

An ordinance passed after the adoption by the electors of a proposition to grant a waterworks franchise, which differs in detail, but not substantially from the one submitting the matter to a vote, will not be invalid on account of such slight variance. Centerville v. Fidelity Trust & Guar. Co., 118 Fed. 332.

A resident and taxpayer has such interest in the matter as to be entitled to institute proceedings by quo warranto to test the validity of the appointment of trustees under this section. State ex rel. v. Barker, 116–96, 89 N. W. 204.

The provisions of this section, as amended by acts of 27 G. A., ch. 23, and 28 G. A., ch. 25, are unconstitutional because they take the control and management of the waterworks away from the city council and also because they provide for the exercise by the judges of the district court of authority not judicial in its nature nor connected with the exercise of the judicial power conferred on the courts by the constitution. Ibid.

SEC. 747-a. Trustees—appointment—term—vacancies—compensation—bond—removal. That section seven hundred forty-seven of the code as amended, be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The waterworks now owned or hereafter purchased or erected by such cities shall be managed and operated by a board of waterworks trustees, which shall be composed of three resident electors, appointed for the term of six years by the mayor of said city. Upon the taking effect of this act, in cities now owning such waterworks, or upon the approval of the contract for the purchase or erection of waterworks by cities as herein provided, the mayor thereof shall, within ten days thereafter, appoint such board of waterworks trustees, the first appointees thereto to hold office for the following designated terms, namely, one for two years, one for four years, and one for six years. All vacancies occurring on said board, occasioned by expiration of term, by death, resignation or removal, shall be filled by appointment of the mayor of such city. The compensation of said trustees shall be three hundred dollars per year to each member of said board. Each of the said trustees shall execute and furnish to the city an official bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, to be approved by the mayor and filed with the city clerk. Such trustees may be removed from office for proper cause under the provisions of chapter eight of title six of the code." [29 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 41, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 25, § 1; 27 G. [The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by §§ 747-b, 748-b, 958. EDITOR.]

The board of trustees has authority to bind the city for the expense of operating the waterworks and on refusal of the council to levy a tax under code § 1005 to cover the expense of running, operating and repairing, one who has furnished fuel for the operation of such works under contract with the trustees is entitled to maintain an action against the city for the indebtedness by way of damages. Martin-Strelau Co. v. Dubuque, 149–1, 127 N. W. 1013.

SEC. 747-b. Applicable to special charter and first class cities. All the provisions of this act shall be held and construed as applying to cities of the first class and to cities acting under special charters. [29 G. A., ch. 41, § 2.]

SEC. 748. Powers — waterworks fund — how disbursed. The said board of trustees shall have the power to carry into execution the contract or contracts for the purchase or erection of such waterworks, and to employ a superintendent and such other employes as may be necessary and proper for the operation of such works, for the collection of water rentals, and for the conduct of the business incident to the operation thereof. The said board of trustees shall require of the superintendent, and of the other employes as they may deem proper, good and sufficient bonds, the amount thereof to be fixed and approved by said board, for the faithful performance of their duty, such bonds to run in the name of the city and to be filed with the city treasurer and kept in his office. All money collected by the board of waterworks trustees shall be deposited at least weekly by them, with the city treasurer; and all money so deposited and all tax money received by the city treasurer from any source, levied and collected for and on account of the waterworks, shall be kept by the city treasurer as a separate and distinct fund. The city treasurer shall be liable on his official bond for such funds the same as for other funds received by him as such treasurer. Such moneys shall be paid out by the city treasurer only on the written order of the board of waterworks trustees, who shall have full and absolute control of the application and disbursement thereof for the purposes prescribed by law, including the payment of all indebtedness arising in the construction of such works, and the maintenance, operation, and extension thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 161, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 25, § 2; 26 G. A., ch. 1, §§ 8, 9.]

SEC. 749. Fixing rates.

The board of trustees of waterworks has the absolute power to fix water rates, with no limitation except that the rates shall be sufficient, together with the proceeds of a tax which the council is authorized to levy under the provisions of code § 1005, to meet the cost of operation, maintenance and repair. Martin-Strelau Co. v. Dubuque, 149–1, 127 N. W. 1013.

CHAPTER 6.

OF STREETS AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

SECTION 751. Establishment — improvement — assessments on abutting property. Cities and towns shall have power to establish, lay off, open, widen, straighten, narrow, vacate, extend, improve and repair streets, highways, avenues, alleys, public grounds, wharves, landings and market places within their limits; but no street, avenue, highway, or alley which shall hereafter be dedicated to public use by the proprietor of the ground in any municipal corporation shall be deemed a public street, avenue, highway, or alley, or be under the use or control of such municipality, unless the dedication shall be accepted and confirmed by an ordinance or resolution specially passed for such purpose. The expenses of such repairs and improvements may be paid from the general fund, or from the highway or poll taxes of such cities or towns, or partly from each of such funds. That in all cities having a population of more than thirty thousand, such cities shall have the power to extend, improve and repair streets, highways, avenues, alleys, public grounds, wharves, landings and market places within their limits. The expense of such extension, improvement and repairs may be paid from the general fund or from the highway or poll taxes of such cities or towns, or partly from each of such funds or by assessing all or any portion of the cost thereof on abutting property according to the benefits derived from such extension, repairs or improvement as provided in chapter seven of title five of the code, and amendments thereto. [35 G. A., ch. 75, § 1.] [20 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 96, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 6; 15 G. A., ch. 51, § 5; C. '73, §§ 464–5, 527; R. §§ 1064, 1095.]

Boundaries: The planting of trees and the construction of temporary sidewalks by an abutting owner does not constitute such assertion of title as against the city that the acquiescence therein by the city will give rise to estoppel as to the line claimed by such abutting owner to be his boundary line. Vorhes v. Ackley, 127–658, 103 N. W. 998.

The width of streets in a city is matter of proof, and the court cannot take judicial notice thereof. Coe College v. Cedar Rapids, 120–541, 95 N. W. 267.

By mutual acquiescence of the city and the grantor or dedicator of land for public purposes, a street may become established on a different line from that first fixed by the dedication. Menoher v. Gravity, 148–695, 127 N. W. 1087.

Wharves: A provision of an ordinance prohibiting house boats from landing or remaining on any portion of the river or landing within any part of the ice harbor of the city of Dubuque, held to be unreasonable and in excess of the power of the council. Keckevoet v. Dubuque, 157–—, 138 N. W. 540.

Laying out and changing: In an incorporated town the county board of supervisors has no authority to lay out a public highway. Philbrick v. University Place, 106–352, 76 N. W. 742.

A city may by ordinance changing the course of a street give to an abutting proprietor the title to a portion thereof. Ottumwa Brick & Const. Co. v. Ainley, 109–386, 80 N. W. 510.

Dedication and acceptance: The provision of § 527 of the code of '73 that no street dedicated to public use in any city shall be deemed public unless accepted by ordinance is intended for the protection of a city from liability for not keeping such street in good condition. It has reference only to streets and alleys which are dedicated by the land owner and not to such as are acquired by the city by purchase or by prescription, and in the latter case no acceptance by ordinance is necessary. It seems that such provision is applicable to cities only and not to towns. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Columbus Junction, 104–110, 73 N. W. 501.

The dedication of a street in a plat may be subsequently accepted by a city so as to make the dedication effectual, even as against one who has in the meantime acquired title to the adjoining lot and taken possession of the dedicated street. Backman v. Oskaloosa, 130–600, 104 N. W. 347.

A city may accept and improve a portion only of a street dedicated on a plat. Ibid.

Acceptance of an alley under a common law dedication may be shown by other acts than the adoption of a formal notice. It may be inferred from public use, or other acts indicative of an intention on the part of the city to treat it as a public alley. Keokuk v. Cosgrove, 116–189, 89 N. W. 983.

The approval of the plat provided for in code § 915 does not involve the question of accepting the streets and alleys. Giltner v. Albia, 128–658, 105 N. W. 194.

Where a contract of conveyance provided that the grantor should procure the dedication of a portion of the property as a street, or that such portion be included in the sale with the understanding that the same be dedicated for street purposes, held that both parties construed the contract to mean a dedication of the streets accepted by the city. McCormick v. Merritt, 131–160, 105 N. W. 428.

Alleys in cities and towns are usually public and a reference to an alley in a description to premises conveyed implies the existence of a public alley. Talbert v. Mason, 136–373, 113 N. W. 918.

An administrator authorized to sell the land of a deceased owner has no authority to make a dedication thereof for public streets. Davis v. Bonaparte, 137–196, 114 N. W. 896.

No conditions can be annexed to the dedication of streets restrictive of their full public use. Lacy v. Oskaloosa, 143–704, 121 N. W. 542.

The discretion of the council in requiring the removal of obstructions from the street cannot be reviewed by the courts. Ibid.

For the dedication of property belonging to a city to public use for a street or alley the city must act by ordinance or resolution directed to that end. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

Acceptance by either ordinance or resolution is sufficient; and held that acceptance by resolution was sufficient although an existing ordinance of the city required acceptance by ordinance. Hunter v. Des Moines, 144–541, 123 N. W. 215.

While mere use is not in itself sufficient to establish a public way by prescription, it is, when long continued with knowledge of the owner of the property, a fact of importance in determining the dedication to the public. Foulke v. Agency City, 145–471, 122 N. W. 823.

In contracting to accept the dedication of streets and alleys, to establish their grades and to grade them, a city is exercising, not its governmental or proprietary, but its business powers. Tuttle v. Cedar Rapids, (C. C. A.) 176 Fed. 86.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that the plaintiff town had never accepted the dedication of a portion of the street of which they sought to recover possession in an action. Exira v. Whitted, 140–576, 118 N. W. 917.

The filing of a plat containing the designation of a tract as a public square, followed by its occupancy, improvement and use as a park, constitutes a dedication and the title of the city thereto is as complete as its title to the streets. Lacy v. Oskaloosa, 143–704, 121 N. W. 542.

Vacation: The validity of proceedings to vacate a street should be tested by certiorari and not by an equitable action to restrain. McLachlan v. Gray, 105–259, 74 N. W. 773.

The general assembly has plenary power over streets and may vacate or discontinue the public easement in them and may invest municipal corporations with this authority. Ibid.

While the power to vacate is not arbitrary, and must be exercised only for some public purpose, yet in a proper case it is not unlawful for the city to vacate a street for the use of a railroad company for depot purposes. So held where a street was vacated for such purpose on conditions in behalf of the city imposed on the railroad company. Spitzer v. Runyan, 113–619, 85 N. W. 782.

When a city or town plat is filed the streets therein become county highways and on the termination of the corporate existence of the city or town pass completely under the control of the county board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

A board of supervisors has power to vacate the streets and alleys of a plat which is not within an incorporated town or city, although there may have been an incorporation of territory including the plat during a portion of the time intervening between the platting and vacation of the same, but which had been annulled by a decree of the court; and the jurisdiction of the supervisors in such circumstances is unaffected by the provisions of § 920 relating to a vacation of all or a part of a plat upon request of lot owners. Ibid.

The power to vacate a street is expressly conferred by statute, and when all property owners are affected alike by such vacation, though in different degrees, there is no ground on which to base a remedy. But in so far as the street is necessary to the free and convenient travel to and from the premises of a particular owner, his right to use the city property is an individual property right appurtenant to his premises which cannot be taken away without the payment of damages. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126–313, 101 N. W. 1120.

On the vacation of a street the title to the portion of land which has constituted such street does not revest in abutting owner, but remains in the city and may be disposed of for other purposes. And if a railroad company is permitted to use the land thus vacated the abutting owner has no action against a railroad company for damages for obstruction of the street. Harrington v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 126–388, 102 N. W. 139.

Upon vacation of a street the title thereto does not revest in the original dedicator, nor in the grantee of abutting lots. Lake City v. Fulkerson, 122–569, 98 N. W. 376.

The city council may vacate a street or alley by the passage of an ordinance with reference to the same even without notice to the abutting owner. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

The act of the city in permitting the continued public use of a street or alley after vacation and subsequent proceedings with reference to its improvement do not nullify the vacation effected by ordinance; nor will a mere repeal of the ordinance of vacation reëstablish the public character of the street or alley. Ibid.

A platted street may lose its character as a public street by abandonment and failure of use for a long period of time. De Nefe v. Agency City, 143–237, 121 N. W. 1049.

Where upon incorporation and afterward for many years the town has allowed a portion of a platted street to be occupied, improved and used for private purposes, it is estopped from afterwards asserting title to such portion. Duetzmann v. Kuntze, 147–158, 125 N. W. 1007.

The city council has authority to vacate a public street or alley and convey the same to a private individual. Ridgway v. Osceola, 139–590, 117 N. W. 974.

But an abutting property owner has a right appurtenant in a street or alley which is necessary to the free and convenient access to his premises and such right cannot be taken away without the payment of damages. If, however, the owner still has free access to his property and to the improvements thereon, notwithstanding the vacation, and his means of ingress and egress are not substantially interfered with, no damages can be recovered. Ibid.

The mere adoption of an ordinance for the vacation of a portion of a street where abutting owners are not compensated and such portion of the street is not separated in any way from the remaining portion does not affect such vacation as that an owner of property abutting upon the portion of the street to which the ordinance refers ceases to be an abutting owner subject to assessment for the improvement of the balance of the street. Sutton v. Mentzer, 154–1, 134 N. W. 108.

After vacation of a street, the title freed from the public use continues in the city and it may convey the ground vacated to another to be used for private purposes. Walker v. Des Moines, 142 N. W. 51.

But this power may not be exercised arbitrarily and in disregard of the trust for the public. Ibid.

The sole inquiry as to the vacation of the street should be, whether it is necessary for public use and convenience and sufficiently traveled as to justify its maintenance at the public expense, and the matter of subsequent disposal should be postponed until the feasibility of the vacation has been settled, or at least that question should be treated as of secondary consideration. Ibid.

Where access to the lots of an owner has not been interfered with, he is not entitled to compensation for vacation of the street. Ibid.

A city may vacate a street or alley and divert it to the use by a railroad company. Tomlin v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 141–599, 120 N. W. 93.

Under an easement thus granted the company has the right to construct and operate its road without the franchises necessary in case of the use of a street. Ibid.

The fact that a public street in which a railway track has been laid and been maintained in continuous use has ceased to be generally used otherwise, is not sufficient to show an abandonment. Baker v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 154–228, 134 N. W. 587.

A grant by a municipality of a right to use its streets for railroad purposes will be strictly construed against the grantee and where it is a grant of the right to lay a single track and damages against abutting property are settled on this basis the company cannot lay additional tracks without additional grant and compensation. Henry v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 140–201, 118 N. W. 310.

A contract between a city and a railroad company, pursuant to which the city vacates and conveys to the company certain street crossings in consideration of improvement to be made by the company, does not preclude the city from subsequently reopening such street crossings, by condemnation proceedings, on payment of damages assessed in favor of the company. Osceola v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., (C. C. A.) 196 Fed. 777.

As to vacation of a street by act of the owner in vacating a plat, see notes to § 919.

Improvements: A city whose finances will admit of doing so may pay for street improvements out of the general fund, or it may guarantee such payment. Ottumwa Brick & Const. Co. v. Ainley, 109–386, 80 N. W. 510.

The right to construct sewers to carry off the surface water and filth is usually regarded as incident to the power of maintaining the streets, but there is no provision for the construction of sewers through private property within incorporated towns, though the power to condemn for this purpose is conferred upon cities. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

The insertion in a contract for street paving of a stipulation that it shall be kept in repair for a specified period is not invalid as in violation of the provision that repairs shall be paid out of the general fund. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

Any power attempted to be exercised with reference to street improvements under the provisions of this section must be exercised by means of a general ordinance for no provision is made by statute as to the method of exercising that power. But so far as the power is conferred in ch. 7 of the code, the method is specifically prescribed and no ordinance is necessary. Martin v. Oskaloosa, 126–680, 102 N. W. 529.

The legislature has imposed on the city council the power of determining how the cost of street improvements shall be met and for this purpose a resolution is sufficient. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

In the exercise of its power to improve the streets a city may excavate the street to its full width without being liable in damages to an abutting property owner for depriving his property of its lateral support. Talcott v. Des Moines, 134–113, 109 N. W. 311.

While the council may order the removal of trees in the street if they are found to be an obstruction to its improvement, it has no authority to arbitrarily destroy them or order their destruction and an officer of the corporation may be liable in damages for removing trees in the street without authority. Waterbury v. Morphew, 146–313, 125 N. W. 205.

SEC. 753. Supervision—repair.

Supervision: The statute of limitations will not run to defeat the city in the exercise of its governmental authority with reference to streets. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Council Bluffs, 109–425, 80 N. W. 564.

The power given to cities and towns to control their streets, contract for their improvement and regulate their use, is a legislative power, and the burden is not cast upon the city to show that its exercise of such power is reasonable. The presumption is in favor of its reasonableness. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

As a city has authority to care for its streets, keep them free from rubbish and prohibit stone or other material being thrown thereon, it may provide by ordinance for the punishment of persons who negligently allow stones to fall and remain upon the street, and one who, in violation of such ordinance, allows stones to fall from wagons used in transporting them, and to remain on the street an unnecessary length of time, may be liable in damages to one who is injured by reason of running into such obstruction. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co., 118–417, 92 N. W. 74.

A municipality has the power to provide for the sprinkling of its streets and for payment of the costs thereof out of the general fund; and no ordinance or resolution to authorize such service is necessary. McAllen v. Hamblin, 129–329, 105 N. W. 593.

The use of water procured at the public expense for such purpose is authorized. Ibid.

Such service is in the nature of a public and not a private benefit. Ibid.

The city council has authority to require the removal from the street of hitching posts which in its judgment constitute a nuisance. Lacy v. Oskaloosa, 143–704, 121 N. W. 542.

Where streets have been opened and improved the council must take care that they are not obstructed by the unauthorized act of any person or persons. A street is a public way from side to side and from end to end, and any private use thereof which in any degree detracts from, hinders or prevents its free use as a public way is within the meaning of the law an obstruction or incumbrance. Ibid.

The city has no power or authority to grant any individual the right to permanently occupy any part of the street with any structure for any private use. Ibid.

The municipality being charged with the care, supervision and control of all public ways within its limits may exclude from the streets the telegraph or telephone lines of a corporation not securing the right to use the streets for the purpose as provided in code §§ 775–776. Farmers' Telephone Co. v. Washta, 157– —, 133 N. W. 361.

Use of streets other than for travel: There is no statutory authority for granting to individuals the right to the use of city streets for private purposes, and the city is not estopped from the use or improvement of the streets for public purposes by reason of a privilege given to an abutting owner to construct and maintain a private drain in such streets. Bennett v. Mt. Vernon, 124–537, 100 N. W. 349.

Cities and towns are required to keep all streets and public places within their limits, and which are open for public use, free from dangerous obstructions and pitfalls and in a condition of reasonable repair; and this requirement is broad enough to cover not only the purposes of public travel, but any use to which the street may be subject not in itself violative of any established rule of law and hence improper and illegal. Nocks v. Whiting, 126–405, 102 N. W. 109.

Therefore, held that the owner of a horse which has escaped from his control may recover for injuries to the animal caused by a defect in the street. Ibid.

While streets and alleys may be devoted to other purposes than public travel, yet such use is the paramount object in maintaining and establishing them and all other uses must be subordinated thereto. Young v. Rothrock, 121–588, 96 N. W. 1105.

The abutting owner is not necessarily guilty of obstructing the street so as to constitute a nuisance rendering him liable in damages by placing a wire around the parking along the sidewalk. Snyder v. Ward, 125–146, 100 N. W. 348.

The public right to the use of the street goes to the full width and extends indefinitely upward and downward, so far as to prohibit encroachment upon said limits by any persons by any means by which the enjoyment of the public right is or may be in any manner hindered or obstructed, or made inconvenient or dangerous. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge, 131–566, 108 N. W. 1057.

Therefore, held that the act of the city in permitting a wire to be stretched above the street on which a dangerous performance was to be carried on was unlawful, and rendered the city liable for an injury to a person in the street resulting from such attempted performance. Ibid.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to enquire into the reasonableness of the exercise of power on the part of a city in regulating the obstruction of streets by railway trains. The control of the streets by the city is in the exercise of a trust for the general public and it may not by ordinance or otherwise destroy or unnecessarily or unreasonably abridge the right of the public to the free and unobstructed use of the streets. Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines, 128–49, 102 N. W. 831.

The statutory provisions authorizing the construction of street railways over the streets of a city leaves in the general public the right of unrestricted use of the entire street from curb to curb, subject to the right of the company to the proper use of its track. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

The right of a street railway company in the streets is subordinate to the power of the city to control and improve such streets, and this power of the city cannot be abrogated by ordinance or relinquished by contract. Ibid.

One desiring to change the location of a house or other structure may move it along a public street providing the conditions of the street are such that this may be done without injury to others having a prior right thereto and providing further that this does not by interfering with travel become a nuisance. But where the use of the street has been lawfully appropriated in so far as essential for the operation thereon of an electric street railway, one desiring to move his house along such street may be enjoined from doing so if such unusual and extraordinary use of the street would destroy the trolley line and interrupt for a considerable time the operation of cars thereon. Ft. Madison St. R. Co. v. Hughes, 137–122, 114 N. W. 10.

A lot owner may lawfully erect a building to the full size of his lot and, subject only to municipal control, he may discharge the water flowing from his roof into a public street or alley. Reynolds v. Union Sv. Bk., 155–519, 136 N. W. 529.

The city may permit areaways and entrances to basements and cellars from a public street or alley where the same are properly protected and do not unreasonably interfere with the convenient use of the public way. Ibid.

The city may authorize areas and cellarways in the street leading into basements of abutting buildings and the property owner may be held liable for negligence in the use of such privilege notwithstanding the permission of the city. Edwards v. Hasel, 157– —, 138 N. W. 501.

While the city is required to keep its streets open and free from nuisances, yet they may be lawfully used for other purposes which are conducive to the public convenience and tend to make them of greater utility to those who legally have a right to use them. Therefore held that the city might authorize hitching racks and posts to be maintained in the street and that an adjoining property owner could not maintain an injunction for the the abatement thereof unless he was otherwise injured than as one of the public entitled to the use of such street. Smith v. Jefferson, 142 N. W. 220.

Trees in street: The lot owner has a property interest in the shade trees standing in the street in front of his lot, and if they are so located as not to be an obstruction to the proper use of the roadway or sidewalk, the city may not arbitrarily destroy or remove them. If, however, the city duly adopts a plan for the improvement of the street by grading or otherwise which necessarily requires the destruction of the trees, their removal and the prosecution of such work affords no cause of action to the lot owner. Kemp v. Des Moines, 125–640, 101 N. W. 474.

The city does not lose control of its streets by consent to or acquiescence in the planting of trees by an abutting owner within the limits of the street, and if such trees become an obstruction to public travel or interfere with proper street improvements, they may be removed, but even where the right to remove exists, it must be exercised reasonably and not to the injury of trees further than may be necessary. Gallaher v. Jefferson, 125–324, 101 N. W. 124.

Trees in a street are not necessarily a nuisance where they do not obstruct travel, and it is in accordance with public policy to preserve them, if practicable. A city or town should not require the removal of trees, nor the grading of a sidewalk so as to cause their destruction, unless necessary in the reasonable improvement of the street. Burget v. Greenfield, 120–432, 94 N. W. 933.

The interest of the property owner in the grading of a street in front of his premises and in the preservation of the trees growing there, so far as they do not constitute a nuisance, can be interfered with or affected only in the mode pointed out by statute and ordinances adopted in pursuance thereof. Ibid.

A property owner has such interest in the grade of his sidewalks in front of his premises and the preservation of the trees growing there, that he is entitled to an injunction to restrain an unauthorized action of the city council respecting change of grade. Ibid.

Trees along the side of the street of a city or town do not constitute a nuisance per se; nor do the shadows of such trees interfering with the lights or lighting of streets constitute such nuisance. Blain v. Montezuma, 150–141, 129 N. W. 808.

Change of grade: The general control of the streets, which is vested in a municipal corporation, does not authorize it to change the grade otherwise than by ordinance. Caldwell v. Nashua, 122–179, 97 N. W. 1000.

In grading streets the city may assume that the abutting owner will improve his property in conformity therewith and if no injury would have resulted had the abutting property been so improved there can be no recovery of damages on account of surface water flowing over the premises. But the fact that abutting property is brought to the level with the street at the lot line only does not prevent the owner from recovering damages for surface water thrown upon his land by an improper obstruction in the street. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, C. B. & S. R. Co., 127–511, 103 N. W. 493.

As the corporation is given the right to grade its streets, the rule as to liability for throwing surface water upon the premises of an adjoining owner to his damage is not applicable as between the city and the owner of the premises abutting upon the street. Keck v. Venghause, 127–529, 103 N. W. 773.

See also notes to code § 782 in this supplement.

Estoppel: Mere lapse of time without assertion of public right to land designated on a plat as intended for public purposes will not of itself estop a city from asserting the existence of the public right, but it may be taken into account in determining whether the right has been established by clear and unequivocal testimony. Mt. Vernon v. Young, 124–517, 100 N. W. 694.

The public right to the use and occupancy of streets and other lands dedicated to the public use may be lost by estoppel where the person claiming adversely to the public has made valuable improvements without objection on the part of the city. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 129–694, 106 N. W. 183.

Where a strip of land has been dedicated and accepted for a street and occupied by the public as such, the act of the city in levying taxes thereon will not estop it from asserting its rights thereto as a street. Hanger v. Des Moines, 109–480, 80 N. W. 549.

While lapse of time or failure to assert a public right will not of itself estop a city from claiming the existence of a street or street line, it does afford good ground for insisting that before dispos-sessing a citizen of property over which he has long been exercising ownership the public right shall be established by evidence of a clear and unequivocal character. Eldora v. Edgington, 130–151, 106 N. W. 503.

Moreover, a city may abandon a portion of a street or by nonuser forfeit its right thereto, and it may be foreclosed by agreement or acquiescence as to the true line. Ibid.

Further as to estoppel, see notes to § 917.

Liability for defects and obstructions: A city is not an insurer against all accidents on its streets and is responsible only when it fails to use reasonable care to keep its streets in reasonably safe condition for public travel. But if it fails in this, and injury results, not due to want of ordinary care on the part of the person injured, the city is responsible. So held where an injury resulted by reason of a horse becoming unmanageable through fright and throwing the vehicle over the edge of an embankment, which was not as wide as required by law. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111–528, 82 N. W. 994.

In such case it is for the jury to say whether the accident would have happened but for the defective condition of the street. Ibid.

A municipal corporation is liable for defects and obstructions in a street, left in its natural condition, which has been opened to public use. If used for the ordinary purposes of a street, it is the duty of the corporation to keep it in reasonably safe condition for that purpose. Lamb v. Cedar Rapids, 108–629, 79 N. W. 366.

Where the excavating of a street is done by a person with the knowledge of the city, it is liable for injuries resulting from a defective condition of the street due to such excavating. Keyes v. Cedar Falls, 107–509, 78 N. W. 227.

The city is liable for the unlawful grading of streets in front of the premises of a complaining owner, and where such grading was done by the street commissioner, with the knowledge of the council, held that authority of the officer to act would be presumed and his wrongful acts would be charged to the city. Brown v. Webster City, 115–511, 88 N. W. 1070.

One who, without negligence on his part, is injured by stepping into a hole in the portion of the street used for a driveway, is entitled to recover if the city is negligent in that respect. Finnegan v. Sioux City, 112–232, 83 N. W. 907.

It is not contributory negligence to walk in the driveway. Ibid.

The street includes the bridges located therein. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109–224, 80 N. W. 336.

The mere fact of tearing up or obstructing a street even to the full width thereof, if done under the authority of the city, does not in itself constitute negligence. Stevens v. Citizens' Gas & Elec. Co., 132–597, 109 N. W. 1090.

Cities being given the care of public highways, streets and alleys, and being required to keep the same in repair and free from nuisance, a city is liable for injuries resulting from its negligence in failing to keep in repair a bridge which does not come within the description of a county bridge. Freeman v. Independence, 123–1, 97 N. W. 1083.

It is negligence in the city to leave a ridge of dirt in the center of a traveled street such as to make it unsafe to drive thereon. Streeter v. Marshalltown, 123–449, 99 N. W. 114.

Although a street or part thereof may be abandoned by a city or town, nevertheless such city or town has no right to erect and maintain obstructions in such street, to the damage of a property owner, and will be liable in damages as a private individual would be. Pettit v. Grand Junction, 119–352, 93 N. W. 381.

If the city allows structures to remain in the street with the knowledge that they had been unlawfully placed there, and were dangerous, it renders itself liable to anyone receiving injuries by reason thereof. Farrell v. Dubuque, 129–447, 105 N. W. 696.

Ordinances of the city prohibiting such obstructions in the street are admissible in evidence to show that the action of those erecting such structures was unlawful and therefore negligent. Ibid.

A town is not liable for injury to one passing along the street resulting from negligence of a contractor in not barricading an opening made for purpose of building, unless the town authorities are charged with notice that the contractor has been negligent in failing to barricade such openings. Bender v. Minden, 124–685, 100 N. W. 352.

The duty of the city is to place warning lights near an excavation. If this is done the city is not liable if these lights are removed without its knowledge, until it knows or should know of their removal. The city is not required to keep a man on guard to see that the lights are not removed. Garnetz v. Carroll, 136–569, 114 N. W. 57.

The city cannot relieve itself of liability for a dangerous condition of sidewalks by delegating the work of construction or repair to independent contractors. Pace v. Webster City, 138–107, 115 N. W. 888.

The duty of the city to maintain its streets in a safe condition cannot be delegated to an independent contractor so as to relieve the city from liability with respect thereto. Prowell v. Waterloo, 144–689, 123 N. W. 346.

Therefore held that the city was liable for injuries resulting from a failure to place warning lights on a barrier erected on a sidewalk although such failure was that of an independent contractor. Ibid.

The authority to keep the streets free from nuisances carries with it the affirmative duty or obligation to keep and maintain the public ways in reasonably safe condition, or free from nuisances, and for violation of this duty an individual suffering injury therefrom may recover damages. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge, 131–566, 108 N. W. 1057.

Whether or not a given structure or performance in the street endangers the public safety is under ordinary circumstances a question for the jury. Ibid.

To render a city liable for injuries received on a sidewalk by reason of its negligence in maintaining the same, it is not necessary to show that the city has acquired perfect title to the street by dedication or otherwise. It is sufficient if that which is assumed to be a street is open and used as such and so recognized by the city and the control over the same has been assumed and exercised by it. Kircher v. Larchwood, 120–578, 95 N. W. 184.

It is the duty of the city to exercise reasonable care in keeping safe the sidewalks along thoroughfares regardless of whether there has been a formal dedication to the city of such thoroughfare as a street. Dunn v. Oelwein, 140–423, 118 N. W. 764.

Although the city may be required to keep its streets in a reasonably safe condition only for travelers with horses, teams and carriages, and may be under no obligation to maintain them in safe condition for use by bicycle riders, nevertheless, if it permits obstructions in the street which cause injury to the rider of a bicycle, without negligence on his part, it will be liable therefor. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co., 118–417, 92 N. W. 74.

Where an obstruction is improperly placed in the street by a police officer under the direction of the mayor, the city is liable for injuries resulting from such improper obstruction. Shinnick v. Marshalltown, 137–72, 114 N. W. 542.

If a vehicle of any kind becomes disabled on the street the owner may leave it in the street for such reasonable time as may be necessary for its removal. But after this time has elapsed it constitutes an obstruction and a nuisance, and the city, with express or implied knowledge of its continuance in the street, will be liable for any injury resulting to persons driving in the street by reason of their horses becoming frightened thereat or otherwise. Cutter v. Des Moines. 137–643, 113 N. W. 1081.

The duty of the city to keep its streets in a safe condition and free from obstructions that may seriously interfere with travel 'relates not only to defects in the highway and objects thereon against which vehicles may come in collision, but also extends to injuries resulting from the fright of horses of ordinary gentleness at objects upon the streets naturally calculated to, and which may reasonably be expected to, produce such fright. Frazee v. Cedar Rapids, 151–251, 131 N. W. 33.

In an action for such injuries where the obstruction is not in the traveled path and becomes obnoxious simply because of its being likely to frighten horses of ordinary gentleness, it must appear that the horses which the plaintiff was driving were of that kind. Ibid.

A person using the street has the right to assume that it is in safe condition and that the city has taken the proper precautions to keep it so. Ibid.

Unless the place in which the injury is received is a public street the city is not liable. Davis v. Bonaparte, 137–196, 114 N. W. 896.

Nuisances: A municipality is not liable in damages for the exercise of its purely governmental functions, but in the exercise of its purely municipal or ministerial functions it stands on the same footing with a corporation or an individual. Fitzgerald v. Sharon, 143–730, 121 N. W. 523.

The liability of a city or town for injuries to property owners resulting from making authorized street improvements must be predicated upon negligent or unskillful performance. So held where plaintiff sought to recover damages resulting from the flooding of his land in consequence of such improvement. Walters v. Marshalltown, 145–457, 120 N. W. 1046.

In its relation to land owners outside its limits the town has no greater authority than a private individual and if in grading or guttering its streets it causes damages to the land owner outside its limits it may be liable therefor. Baker v. Akron, 145–485, 122 N. W. 926.

While a city has no right to improve its streets in such a negligent manner as to cause injury to an abutting property owner by throwing an unnecessary burden upon him as to surface waters, it is the right of the city to make its streets passable and in doing so to provide for the passage of surface waters in drains and culverts through and over them and if a method adopted is reasonably suitable an abutting property owner cannot complain. Cech v. Cedar Rapids, 147–247, 126 N. W. 166.

A city may be liable for maintaining a nuisance on a strip of land used as a part of the street and appurtenant thereto which results in injury to a particular individual. Worrell v. Bloomfield, 148–691, 127 N. W. 1082.

The statutory duty of the city to keep its streets in repair and free from obstruction and from the inroads of flood waters is sufficient grounds to justify its insistance upon the opening of a channel for the natural flow of a stream, and it is im-material that a nuisance consisting of surface water did not develop into a source of injury to anyone until the subsequent growth and expansion of the city brought people into a position to be injuriously affected by it. As between the property owner and the public, the inquiry goes to the conditions existing at the time when the complaint was made. Waterloo v. Waterloo, C. F. & N. R. Co., 149–129, 125 N. W. 819.

The city has the right not merely as a private property owner but in behalf of the public to cause the abatement of obstructions in a stream, the consequence of which is to damage or reasonably threaten injury to neighboring property. Such obstruction is a nuisance. Sioux City v. Simmons Hardware Co., 151–334, 129 N. W. 978, 131 N. W. 17.

Use of sidewalks: An ordinance prohibiting the use on sidewalks of "all varieties of vehicles known by the general term 'bicycle'" does not apply to tricycles. Wheeler v. Boone, 108–235, 78 N. W. 909.

Persons who have a right to ride on sidewalks in vehicles which may properly be used thereon may rely, as footmen may, on the sidewalks being in suitable condition for people to walk over, and have the same rights in case of injuries resulting from neglect. Ibid.

The city council may permit reasonable use of sidewalks by an abutting owner in obtaining access to all parts of his property by the construction of areas, cellar stairways and otherwise, but it has no authority to permit the use, by one property owner, of the street so as to interfere with its reasonable use by another property owner, or to permit an obstruction of the reasonable use of the street or sidewalk by the public. Perry v. Castner, 124–386, 100 N. W. 84; S. C., 130–703, 107 N. W. 940.

Defective and obstructed sidewalks: The duty to keep sidewalks in repair being mandatory and not discretionary, the city is liable for injuries received by reason of the defective condition of a sidewalk due to the negligence of the city. Parmenter v. Marion, 113–297, 85 N. W. 90.

A platform projecting over the sidewalk from the second story of a building is not necessarily a nuisance, and held that the city was not liable for the wrongful act of the owner of such building in throwing a bale of hay from the platform to the street without proper care as to safety of persons who might be below. Ibid.

It cannot be said as a matter of law that a town is, because of the smallness of its population, not liable for defects in sidewalks. Graham v. Oxford, 105–705, 75 N. W. 473.

Where a sidewalk is constructed by a city not in accordance with a general plan or grade, but as a temporary expedient, it is liable for damages resulting from such plan of construction as renders it unsafe, and it is competent to show that it was so sloping as to be dangerous and also to show that it lacked appurtenances which were required to make it safe. Ford v. Des Moines, 106–94, 75 N. W. 630.

While it may be that the city will not be liable for defects in the sidewalk resulting from the adoption of a plan prepared by a competent engineer, and in accordance with which the work is done, yet it cannot make this defense where the plan of the sidewalk is left entirely to the direction or discretion of the city engineer. If the design is left to the whim or fancy of a single individual it cannot be said that the sidewalk is constructed in accordance with a plan, within the meaning of such rule. Hodges v. Waterloo, 109–444, 80 N. W. 523.

Where a sidewalk is built under the direction of the town officials and they assume jurisdiction thereof and it is used by the public, the town may be assumed to be liable for negligence in keeping it in repair, although it is not upon ground which has been lawfully dedicated to public use. Harrison v. Ayrshire, 123–528, 99 N. W. 132.

When the municipal corporation has allowed a sidewalk to be built for the use of the public, its duty is to see that it is kept in safe condition. Brown v. Chillicothe, 122–640, 98 N. W. 502.

A city is bound only to use reasonable diligence in making discovery of existing defects in sidewalks. Belken v. Iowa Falls, 122–430, 98 N. W. 296.

A city is not bound to do more than to keep its sidewalks in a reasonably safe condition for travel, and it is error to instruct the jury on the assumption that the walk was not in a reasonably safe condition where there is a conflict in evidence as to the city's negligence. Bauer v. Dubuque, 122–500, 98 N. W. 355.

When the municipality has exercised reasonable care to make and keep its sidewalks safe, it has discharged the duty of keeping them in a reasonably safe condition. Crandall v. Dubuque, 136–663, 112 N. W. 555.

A city or town is required only to maintain its sidewalks in a reasonably safe condition for public travel. Scurlock v. Boone, 142–580, 120 N. W. 313.

Where the petition in an action for injuries from a defective sidewalk sufficiently points out the location and nature of the defect, it is not necessary to specifically describe in detail the defect complained of. Brown v. Chillicothe, 122–640, 98 N. W. 502.

Negligence in allowing a ring and staple to remain near the edge of a sidewalk some considerable distance above the level of the street may constitute negligence, the injury being the result of the distance which a person tripped on such obstruction would fall rather than in the fact that a fall was likely to be occasioned by such obstruction. Schnee v. Dubuque, 122–459, 98 N. W. 298.

The liability of a city for an injury resulting from a trap door maintained in the sidewalk by an abutting property owner for access to the basement of his building is dependent upon knowledge on the part of the city, express or implied, that the trap was frequently left open without proper guards. Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126–361, 102 N. W. 140.

It is immaterial in such case whether the person who falls into the trap does so while passing from the street to the adjoining building or from the building to the street or whether the trap is only partly in the street and partly on the adjoining premises. Ibid.

An obstruction in the portion of the street set apart for a sidewalk and used for passing, if negligently allowed to remain, will render the city liable for resulting injury. Rea v. Sioux City, 127–615, 103 N. W. 949.

It cannot be said, as a matter of law, that an obstruction in a sidewalk or street crossing two inches high cannot be such a defect that the city or town may be liable for injuries which it causes. The liability in such case does not necessarily depend upon the size of the defect, but upon the effects which may reasonably be apprehended from it upon persons who use the walk or crossing in a proper manner. Baxter v. Cedar Rapids, 103–599, 72 N. W. 790.

In an action to recover for injuries received by slipping on an approach from the street to the sidewalk, held that there was no evidence of negligence in the construction of the approach such as to warrant a recovery. Lush v. Parkersburg, 127–701, 104 N. W. 336.

Snow and ice: That walks are made slippery by melting snow is a fact of common knowledge and should be taken into account by the city in constructing walks, especially those which have sloping surfaces and in consequence are liable to be dangerous when slippery. Ford v. Des Moines, 106–94, 75 N. W. 630.

A city is not relieved from liability for a defect in a sidewalk which causes an injury because of the icy condition of the walk which contributes to the accident. If the walk, by reason of its defective construction, or by reason of previous snow or ice thereon, which should not have been allowed to remain, is dangerous to pedestrians under the prevailing climatic conditions, then the city is liable. Hodges v. Waterloo, 109–444, 80 N. W. 523.

Even though the fall of a person on a sidewalk is caused in some part by snow thereon, if it is caused also in part by a dangerous slant in the walk the corporation may be liable. Sylvester v. Casey, 110–256, 81 N. W. 455.

Whether, under all the circumstances, it was negligence in the city not to anticipate the dangerous condition of a walk due to water running thereon and freezing, and in not providing against such danger, is a question for the jury. Shumway v. Burlington, 108–424, 79 N. W. 123.

Municipal corporations are chargeable with negligence in permitting the accumulation of snow and ice in uneven and irregular masses upon the streets. Sankey v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 118–39, 91 N. W. 820.

The mere fact that a sidewalk is dangerous because of the presence of snow and ice is not sufficient to establish negligence on the part of the city even though the snow and ice are not removed within a reasonable time. But if by reason of travel or the action of the elements the snow becomes ice and is allowed to remain in a dangerous condition, the city cannot escape liability by showing that the condition was caused by natural causes as by rain and sleet or sudden changes of weather. Templin v. Boone, 127–91, 102 N. W. 789.

If ice on a sidewalk is produced by artificial causes, such as the discharge of water from an eaves trough, and the city has notice thereof or should have had notice in the exercise of reasonable care, and there has been a reasonable time within which to remove it before the accident occurred, failure to do so constitutes negligence, rendering the city liable for resulting injuries. Hofacre v. Monticello, 128–239, 103 N. W. 488.

The city is negligent with reference to snow or ice on the sidewalk only when it has become rough and uneven by travel and allowed to remain and freeze in that condition, so that one in the exercise of ordinary care cannot safely pass over it. The burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the injury was caused by such condition of the walk, due to defendant's neglect. Tobin v. Waterloo, 131–75, 107 N. W. 1031.

The city is liable for injuries resulting from the slippery and uneven surface due to failure of the city to remove snow from the sidewalks within a reasonable time. Crandall v. Dubuque, 136–663, 112 N. W. 555.

The mere fact that snow and ice on a walk renders it dangerous does not, in itself, make the city liable for an injury resulting therefrom. It is only when the ice and snow is suffered to remain upon the sidewalk until, by tramping of pedestrians, freezing and thawing or other cause, the surface has become rough, rigid, rounded or slanting so that a person, in the exercise of ordinary care, cannot pass over it without danger of falling, that the defect is such as to render the city liable. Dempsey v. Dubuque, 150–260, 132 N. W. 758.

Proximate cause: A fall on a sidewalk which is in a dangerous condition, but which results from dizziness to which the person is subject by reason of a previous fall chargeable to the negligence of the city in maintaining safe walks, is not to be considered as the proximate result of the previous injury. Watters v. Waterloo, 126–199, 101 N. W. 871.

Evidence of negligence: Evidence of the defective condition of the sidewalk some distance from the place of the accident is admissible where it appears that the entire walk was out of repair and in a dangerous condition. Bailey v. Centerville, 108–20, 78 N. W. 831.

Where the question is whether or not a walk was defective, an ordinance of the city regulating the laying of walks and passed prior to the construction of the walk in question may be introduced in evidence as bearing on the question whether the walk as constructed was sufficient. Shumway v. Burlington, 108–424, 79 N. W. 123.

Evidence that a walk, as it existed at the time of the accident, has subsequently been taken out, may be introduced as showing how witnesses knew the condition of the walk, where it is not attempted thereby to prove an admission that the walk was defective. Frohs v. Dubuque, 109–219, 80 N. W. 341.

Evidence as to the original construcion of a walk may be admissible to show, not that it was originally defective, but as bearing upon the question of notice to the city as to its condition. Ibid.

Evidence that another person tripped upon the same loose board a few days before the accident is admissible, where such evidence is not relied upon as substantive proof of the actionable defect; but to show the existence of this particular loose board prior to the injury, and the manner in which it was discovered by the witness. Ibid.

Where the city offers evidence tending to show that the sidewalk was in good repair before, at and after the time of the injury complained of, the plaintiff may prove that repairs have been made at and near the place in question after the accident. Parker v. Ottumwa, 113–649, 85 N. W. 805.

Evidence of subsequent repair of the defective walk by the city is competent as bearing upon the actual condition at the time of the accident and that it must have been in such condition for such length of time as to charge the city with notice. Patton v. Sanborn, 133–650, 110 N. W. 1032.

An ordinance passed after the construction of a sidewalk is not to be considered in determining whether the sidewalk was constructed in a proper method. McCartney v. Washington, 124–382, 100 N. W. 80.

While evidence of subsequent changes or repairs is not admissible to show defective condition at the time of an injury, yet if such evidence is competent for any purpose it is not to be excluded on the ground that it is incompetent to show the negligence of the city. Achey v. Marion, 126–47, 101 N. W. 435.

Evidence as to the condition of the walk after the accident is admissible where by other evidence it is made to appear that the condition was practically the same when examined by the witnesses as when the accident occurred. Harrison v. Ayrshire, 123–528, 99 N. W. 132.

In an action for injury resulting from defective condition of a sidewalk, plaintiff should not be allowed to show the condition of the walk at a time substantially subsequent to the time of the accident. Edwards v. Cedar Rapids, 138–421, 116 N. W. 323.

If on examination within a short time after the accident the materials of which the walk was constructed were found to be rotten and decayed, it was proper to show that fact as bearing on the condition at the time of the accident as well as showing that such defective condition had existed for such time that the city in the exercise of reasonable care ought to have discovered and remedied the defect. Jackson v. Grinnell, 144–232, 122 N. W. 911.

Where plaintiff contends that the entire walk was out of repair, testimony as to prior accidents happening on the same walk is admissible, although they appear not to have occurred at the same place on the walk. Yeager v. Spirit Lake, 115–593, 88 N. W. 1095.

Evidence as to the condition of the walk and repairs thereto prior to the time of the accident is admissible for the purpose of showing knowledge of its condition on the part of the city. Ibid.

In an action for personal injuries resulting from defect in the street, evidence of similar accidents at the same place is not admissible. Streeter v. Marshalltown, 123–449, 99 N. W. 114.

It is the duty of a city to exercise ordinary care to discover latent as well as apparent defects in a sidewalk. Anders v. West Union, 131–192, 108 N. W. 226.

But proof that upon tearing up a walk the stringers were found in a decayed condition, held not of itself sufficient to show negligence on the part of the city. Ibid.

Evidence considered as tending to show negligence of the city in the construction and maintenance of the walk causing injury to the plaintiff. Goucher v. Sioux City, 115–639, 89 N. W. 24.

For witnesses to state that a walk was defective is to announce a conclusion, and therefore such testimony is not admissible, but the witness may say that the walk was sound and in good condition, as it would be impossible to describe absence of defects which did not exist. Brooks v. Sioux City, 114–641, 87 N. W. 682.

Witnesses may testify as to the life and durability of timber and nails, such as were used in the walk. Patton v. Sanborn, 133–650, 110 N. W. 1032.

Notice: Whether, in view of the fact that a sidewalk is continuously in a bad condition, the city is chargeable with notice of defects therein, is for the jury. Bailey v. Centerville, 108–20, 78 N. W. 831.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to charge the town with notice of the defective condition of the sidewalk in question. Hoover v. Mapleton, 110–571, 81 N. W. 776.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to show knowledge by the city of the defective condition of the sidewalk. Beaver v. Eagle Grove, 116–485, 89 N. W. 1100.

For the purpose of showing notice to the city, witnesses may testify as to their having tripped and fallen over the same defect in the sidewalk prior to the injury for which plaintiff seeks to recover. Wilberding v. Dubuque, 111–484, 82 N. W. 957.

Where a defect in original construction of the sidewalk is shown the city is conclusively presumed to have notice thereof. Evans v. Iowa City, 125–202, 100 N. W. 1112.

Notice of the defective condition of a sidewalk generally is notice of an included particular defect. Ibid.

If the sidewalk, as originally constructed, is defective and unsafe, the city is liable for resulting injuries although it had no knowledge of such defective condition. Roney v. Des Moines, 150–447, 130 N. W. 396.

Constructive notice to the city of defective condition of a walk is not to be founded upon the condition of the particular plank causing the injury. The general condition at such point may be considered. Hoover v. Mapleton, 110–571, 81 N. W. 776.

Evidence of the condition of the sidewalk near the place of the defect which causes the accident is admissible for the purpose of showing whether the officers of the city should have discovered the defect in question in time to repair it before the accident. Spicer v. Webster City, 118–561, 92 N. W. 884.

Evidence as to the condition of the walk near the place where the injury was received is competent upon the question of knowledge on the part of the city as to the condition of the walk at the point of the accident, but it is competent for no other purpose, and if the defendant requests an instruction limiting the effect of such evidence it should be given. Kircher v. Larchwood, 120–578, 95 N. W. 184.

Evidence of the condition of the sidewalk prior to the time of plaintiff's injury is admissible as showing notice of the defective condition. Hofacre v. Monticello, 128–239, 103 N. W. 488.

In an action for injury caused by an accumulation of snow and ice upon a sidewalk, it is proper to show the icy condition of the walk at the place of the accident at other times as tending to charge the city with notice of the dangerous condition. Hanousek v. Marshalltown, 130–550, 107 N. W. 603.

Where the plaintiff in an action against the city for injuries received by reason of a defective sidewalk alleged knowledge on the part of the city of such defect, and there is a general denial of plaintiff's allegations, it is competent for the plaintiff to prove the condition of the sidewalk at or near the place of the injury, provided the dangerous and defective condition thus shown was reasonably observable by the officers of the city in the exercise of ordinary care, and had been in existence for such length of time as to charge the city with notice. Clark v. Cedar Rapids, 129–358, 105 N. W. 651.

In such action it is competent to prove the condition of the sidewalk at the place of the accident as it was found soon after the accident occurred, there being no indication of any substantial change in the condition. Ibid.

A general allegation of knowledge on the part of the city of the unsafe and dangerous condition of a sidewalk at the time of the injury is sufficient to permit proof of actual or constructive notice of the condition of the walk. Pace v. Webster City, 138–107, 115 N. W. 888.

In an action to recover damages for injuries received by the falling of a structure permitted to be erected on the street, held that evidence of the dangerous construction of other structures of the same character was competent as tending to show notice to the city. Farrell v. Dubuque, 129–447, 105 N. W. 696.

Declarations of the sidewalk inspector with reference to the dangerous condition of the sidewalk by reason of such structure held admissible as against the city. Ibid.

Evidence as to the general condition of the walk is properly admissible as tending to show knowledge on the part of the town of a defective condition. Harrison v. Ayrshire, 123–528, 99 N. W. 132.

The general bad condition may be shown as tending to prove notice to the city of the defect resulting in injury. Witt v. Latimer, 139–273, 117 N. W. 680.

Where the negligence charged consists of improper construction and maintenance and not in want of repair, the question whether the improper condition has existed for such length of time that the officers of the city in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known thereof, is not involved. Achey v. Marion, 126–47, 101 N. W. 435.

A municipal corporation charged with the duty of maintaining its streets in reasonably safe condition for public use, is held to have notice of dangerous defects therein, and especially defects arising from natural wear and decay, whenever such condition has existed so long that, in the exercise of reasonable oversight and care by the officers of the municipality it should have been discovered and repaired. Smith v. Sioux City, 119–50, 93 N. W. 81.

Notice of defect in a sidewalk may be inferred from lapse of time and the character and location of the walk. The negligence of the city may consist in its not acquiring notice of defects in its walks. Padelford v. Eagle Grove, 117–616, 91 N. W. 899.

When a defect has existed for such a length of time that the officers of the city should have discovered the defect if they had exercised ordinary care and diligence, then the law presumes notice to them, whether the defect has been reported to them or not, and whether they actually knew it or not. Wilberding v. Dubuque, 111–484, 82 N. W. 957.

Evidence that a defect apparent to observation has existed in a sidewalk for six months will warrant the jury in finding knowledge thereof by municipal authority. Brown v. Chillicothe, 122–640, 98 N. W. 502.

Service of notice on the owner of property to construct a permanent sidewalk may be shown in an action against the city to recover damages for injuries received from a defective sidewalk in front of the premises of such owner, as tending to show knowledge of the defective condition of the walk on the part of the city. Wilson v. Cedar Rapids, 123–10, 98 N. W. 119.

Where a city through its proper officers directed the construction of repairs in the sidewalk necessarily involving the erection of barriers, it is the duty of the city to see that danger to passers should be prevented by proper lights and it is not necessary to show that the city had notice that the sidewalk was in a dangerous condition. Prowell v. Waterloo, 144–689, 123 N. W. 346.

Contributory negligence: One who has full knowledge of a defect in a sidewalk and afterwards without necessity passes over the place where such defect exists without any precaution or excuse for want of precaution, is guilty of such contributory negligence with reference to a resulting injury as to defeat recovery. Barce v. Shenandoah, 106–426, 76 N. W. 747; Marshall v. Belle Plaine, 106–508, 76 N. W. 797.

One who appreciates the danger of using a defective street cannot recover for injuries resulting from such use. Reynolds v. Centerville, 151–19, 129 N. W. 949.

It does not necessarily constitute contributory negligence to use a defective street, although the person using it has knowledge of the defect and there is another reasonably convenient way by which such person might reach his destination. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111–528, 82 N. W. 994.

It is not true that one who knows of a defect in a walk is necessarily guilty of negligence in attempting to pass over it. Much depends upon the character of the defect, the occasion for passing over it and the care used in doing so. If a person knows of a defect in a walk, but believes that it can be passed in safety with the exercise of ordinary care and is justified as a reasonably prudent man in holding that belief he is not negligent in attempting to pass over it in an ordinarily careful manner. Graham v. Oxford, 105–705, 75 N. W. 473.

One who knows a walk to be unsafe, and that it is imprudent to attempt to pass over it, is guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to do so, but knowledge of unsafe condition is not enough as matter of law to establish contributory negligence. Yeager v. Spirit Lake, 115–593, 88 N. W. 1095.

It is error to charge that if plaintiff knew the walk to be unsafe he was required to use more than ordinary care in passing over it. Hoover v. Mapleton, 110–571, 81 N. W. 776.

In such case the court may leave it to the jury to say whether there was contributory negligence in passing over the walk known to be dangerous, where it is shown that there was another and a convenient way by which the plaintiff might have proceeded to his destination. Ibid.

While in some cases the nature of the defect in the sidewalk may suggest that a person going upon the walk with knowledge of the defect will be deemed as matter of law guilty of contributory negligence, in general it must appear that the person using the walk regarded it as dangerous or considered it to be imprudent to go upon it at the time he did. Slyvester v. Casey, 110–256, 81 N. W. 455.

Intoxication does not in itself constitute contributory negligence on the part of a person injured on a sidewalk, unless the evidence shows that his intoxication in some way aided in bringing about the injury, or it appears that it was negligent for him to be on the walk in an intoxicated condition. Ibid.

It is not negligent for a person to pass over streets or sidewalks of a city at night. A person has the right to rely upon the assumption that the city has done its duty in keeping the streets in order. Keyes v. Cedar Falls, 107–509, 78 N. W. 227.

It is not negligence, as matter of law, for one to pass over a defective sidewalk. Whether or not it is imprudent for plaintiff to pass over a sidewalk in a defective condition is for the jury. Cox v. Des Moines, 111–646, 82 N. W. 993.

One who passes over a defective walk with reasonable care under the circumstances is not guilty of contributory negligence, although charged with knowledge that the walk is defective. Bailey v. Centerville, 115–271, 88 N. W. 379.

One who is injured in passing over a defective sidewalk is not guilty of contributory negligence if he exercised the care an ordinarily prudent person would exercise in passing over the walk. Rusch v. Dubuque, 116–402, 90 N. W. 80.

The fact that the person injured knew of the defect which caused the injury does not render his action in using the walk negligent if in view of the condition he used reasonable care. Van Camp v. Keokuk, 130–716, 107 N. W. 933.

The action of another in pushing by the person using the walk under such circumstances may constitute such diverting cause as to excuse failure to avoid the known defect. Ibid.

A pedestrian is not required to be on the lookout for hidden dangers in the street. He is only required to walk with his eyes open, observing his natural course in the usual way. Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126–361, 102 N. W. 140.

A pedestrian is not as a matter of law required to inspect a walk before passing over it, but may assume that it is in repair, and the question whether he might have discovered the defect with ordinary attention to his own safety so as to have avoided the injury is for the jury. Machacek v. Hall, 131–412, 105 N. W. 690.

Mere knowledge of the condition of a walk on the part of a person injured will not, as matter of law, constitute contributory negligence in the use of such sidewalk. Sachra v. Manilla, 120–562, 95 N. W. 198.

Testimony on the part of plaintiff in an action to recover for injuries due to a defective sidewalk, that he knew the condition of the walk and that it was dangerous, will not justify the taking of the case from the jury. The question of contributory negligence in such a case is one of fact. Carter v. Lineville, 117–532, 91 N. W. 777.

The mere knowledge of a pedestrian that a walk over which he assumes to pass is not safe is not sufficient alone to establish negligence on his part as a matter of law. Arnold v. Waterloo, 128–410, 104 N. W. 442.

One may go upon a dangerous and unsafe walk without being necessarily negligent in doing so unless he knew or should have known in the exercise of ordinary care for his own safety that it was imprudent for him to attempt to pass over the same. Templin v. Boone, 127–91, 102 N. W. 789.

It is not knowledge of a defect which renders a foot passenger negligent in attempting to use a defective sidewalk, but failure to use ordinary care in avoiding the defect either by taking another way or by passing around the defect or otherwise endeavoring to escape the danger incident thereto. Rea v. Sioux City, 127–615, 103 N. W. 949.

One is not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law in passing over a defective sidewalk rather than taking another way where the defect is not known to him. Considine v. Dubuque, 126–283, 102 N. W. 102.

The question of contributory negligence of a person injured by a defect in a street is usually one for the jury and if it appears by the uncontradicted testimony of the plaintiff that he did not know of an excavation in the street until he fell into it, he is not to be held guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to use the street, although there was another safe and convenient way. Bussell v. Ft. Dodge, 126–308, 101 N. W. 1126.

To constitute contributory negligence in using a sidewalk known to be defective there must be not only knowledge of the defect, but also an appreciation of the danger reasonably to be apprehended therefrom, and if the person using the defective walk is justified in believing and does believe that by the exercise of ordinary care he can pass over it in safety and he does in fact exercise such care he cannot be charged with negligence. Evans v. Iowa City, 125–202, 100 N. W. 1112.

If a defect in the walk known to the person using it does not render it so dangerous that he is necessarily guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to pass it in the exercise of due care, it is for the jury to say whether there is under the circumstances such contributory negligence as to defeat recovery for an injury resulting from such defect. Brown v. Chillicothe, 122–640, 98 N. W. 502.

The mere fact that a walk is in an unsafe condition will not preclude its use where there is no other convenient way for the passer to reach his destination. Houseman v. Belle Plaine, 124–510, 100 N. W. 343.

Knowledge of defects in a street is not alone sufficient to bar recovery for injuries received by reason thereof. It must also be shown that plaintiff knew it was imprudent to try to pass over the same and that there was another way comparatively safe which he might have taken to reach his destination. Hollingworth v. Ft. Dodge, 125–627, 101 N. W. 455.

One who steps into an opening in the street of which he has knowledge is guilty of contributory negligence, although for the moment he may have forgotten the existence of such opening. Bender v. Minden, 124–685, 100 N. W. 352.

If the walk is not so openly and visibly dangerous that no prudent person would attempt to make use of it, the mere fact of using it does not constitute negligence per se. Crandall v. Dubuque, 136–663, 112 N. W. 555.

Though a sidewalk is defective a traveler has the right to pass over it and if he does so it is usually for the jury to say whether in doing so he used due care. Cook v. Hedrick, 135–23, 112 N. W. 157.

The person injured is competent to testify as to want of knowledge of the defective condition of the walk. Patton v. Sanborn, 133–650, 110 N. W. 1032.

It is not negligence for one driving along a traveled street to cross from the right to the left side to avoid a rapidly approaching hosecart. Streeter v. Marshalltown, 123–449, 99 N. W. 114.

It is not contributory negligence on the part of one crossing the street to attempt to reach the sidewalk at a place other than a street crossing. Rea v. Sioux City, 127–615, 103 N. W. 949.

It is not negligence to cross a street in a diagonal direction and step upon a sidewalk at a place which is not a street crossing. Bell v. Clarion, 113–126, 84 N. W. 962; Bell v. Clarion, 115–357, 88 N. W. 824.

It is not contributory negligence to walk in the driveway. Finnegan v. Sioux City, 112–232, 83 N. W. 907.

A blind person making use of the streets or sidewalks of a city is not required to use a higher degree of care and caution than a person having full possession of his sense of sight, but the fact of his blindness is to be taken into account in determining whether he did or did not act with the care which a reasonably prudent man would ordinarily exercise when burdened by such infirmity. Hill v. Glenwood, 124–479, 100 N. W. 522.

Failure to anticipate an unusual danger in passing along a sidewalk does not constitute contributory negligence. Kaiser v. Hahn, 126–561, 102 N. W. 504.

One who relies upon defective sight as an excuse for failing to observe an obstruction from which an injury has resulted must show corresponding caution on account of such defective sight. Ibid.

The fact that an approach to the street, causing the injury to the plaintiff complained of, was similar to the approaches used generally in the city at the time of and long prior to the accident is admissible on the question whether the person injured had knowledge or should have had knowledge of the improper construction so as to be charged with contributory negligence in using such approach. Keim v. Ft. Dodge, 126–27, 101 N. W. 443.

So also it is competent to show that the corner at which the injury was received was not well lighted for the purpose of indicating a duty on the part of the plaintiff to exercise greater care. Ibid.

One passing along a sidewalk who steps over a foundation wall in process of construction adjoining the walk and falls into the excavation for the proposed building while trying to keep upon the walk, being misled by the darkness and the presence of obstructions, is not a trespasser in such sense that he cannot recover for injuries received on account of the obstructions in the walk which he is attempting to follow. Dodge v. Lamont, 130–721, 107 N. W. 948.

An instruction that a person in passing along a public street is required to use more caution and be more watchful when it is dark than in the daytime may be proper, but will not be necessary under all circumstances. Baxter v. Cedar Rapids, 103–599, 72 N. W. 790.

Under the facts of a particular case, held that the person injured by defect in a sidewalk had not been guilty of contributory negligence in failing to discover the defect. Ibid.

While the burden is on the plaintiff to negative want of due care, it is for the defendant to establish plaintiff's subsequent negligence respecting the consequences of the injury. Wissler v. Atlantic, 123–11, 98 N. W. 131.

Streets and sidewalks are for the use of the public and the law requires cities and towns to keep them in a reasonable condition of repair. It is not therefore the duty of the public or individual members thereof to critically inspect such streets and sidewalks before using the same. Robertson v. City of Waukon, 138–25, 115 N. W. 482.

Mere knowledge of the unsafe condition of an unbarricaded defective street or walk is not in itself sufficient to establish contributory negligence on the part of one who has the right to use such walk. Scurlock v. Boone, 142–684, 121 N. W. 369.

A person using a defective walk is not guilty of contributory negligence if he believes, and as an ordinarily prudent man he would believe, that he could use it with safety. Jackson v. Grinnell, 144–232, 122 N. W. 911.

The municipality is under some measure of active duty in the matter of inspection and of taking care to know that the streets do not become sources of danger to the traveling public and the traveler has the right to assume that the municipality has done its duty in this respect. Platts v. Ottumwa, 148–636, 127 N. W. 990.

It is not necessary that one using a sidewalk which is not in good condition shall go entirely out of his way in order to avoid the imputation of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Fuller v. Williamsburg, 152–424, 132 N. W. 819.

A traveler who knows, or as an ordinarily cautious person ought to know, that it is imprudent to pass over a defective sidewalk, and does so, although he might have taken another course equally convenient, is guilty of such negligence as will defeat recovery for damages in the event of injury. Gibson v. Denison, 153–320, 133 N. W. 712.

SEC. 754. Regulation of conveyances and transportation.

The provision authorizing cities to regulate, license and tax vehicles kept for hire is not limited to those let out or rented, but includes conveyances used by the owner for conveying persons or property for hire. Des Moines v. Bolton, 128–108, 102 N. W. 1045.

The city may graduate the scale of fees and exempt from license all vehicles, the ordinary use of which will not materially wear its streets or destroy the free use thereof. Ibid.

SEC. 756. Lighting.

The power being given to provide lights for streets necessarily implies power to purchase the light of others and enter into a contract for such service. Davenport Gas & Elec. Co. v. Davenport, 124–22, 98 N. W. 892.

The city may contract for a period of years for the lighting of its streets, but it does not necessarily have power to fix the rate of compensation for a long period in advance. Ibid.

Such a contract may be exclusive. Ibid.

The exercise of the power given to a city or town to light its streets rests in the discretion of the corporation and does not give rise to an absolute obligation either as to extent or the method of lighting to be adopted. Blain v. Montezuma, 150–141, 129 N. W. 808.

SEC. 757. Care, construction and repair of bridges.

A bridge is a part of the street in which it is situated. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109–224, 80 N. W. 336.

A city is liable for negligence in failing to keep in repair bridges and culverts within the city limits which are not of such size as to constitute county bridges. Freeman v. Independence, 123–1, 97 N. W. 1083.

SEC. 758. Bridge fund.

Cities of the first class are removed from the general provision of code § 422 giving the board of supervisors power to provide for the erection of bridges in the county. Slutts v. Dana, 138–244, 115 N. W. 1115.

Property within the limits of a special charter city is not subject to a bridge tax levied by the board of supervisors of the county. Keokuk v. Kennedy, 156–680, 137 N. W. 914.

SEC. 758-a. Bridge tax—levy authorized. When the whole or any part of the cost of building or reconstruction of any bridge by a city of the first class shall be ordered paid from the city bridge fund, to be levied upon all the property within any such city, it shall have the power, after the completion of the work, by ordinance or resolution, to levy at any one time the whole or any part of the cost of such improvement upon all of the taxable property within such city and determine the whole percentage of tax necessary to pay the same, and the percentage to be paid each year, not exceeding two thirds of the maximum annual limit of the tax such city may levy for a bridge fund, and the number of years, not exceeding twenty-five, given for the maturity of each installment thereof, but no part of such costs shall be levied against property owned by the city, county, state or the United States. Certificates of such levy shall be filed with the auditor of the county or counties in which said city is located, setting forth the amount or percentage and maturity of said tax, or each installment thereof, upon the assessed valuation of all the property in said city, certified as correct by the city clerk or auditor, and thereupon said tax shall be placed upon the tax lists of the proper county or counties. [32 G. A., ch. 36, § 1.]

Where the city council levied the tax and issued certificates therefor prior to the completion of the bridge, held that after such completion a taxpayer could not enjoin the collection of the tax. Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

Even though such certificates might be invalid when issued, the holders of such certificates would be entitled to the payment contemplated thereby when the bridge should be so completed as to authorize the issuance of new certificates of the same character. Ibid.

In such case, a surety company will be in no situation to complain of the issuance of the certificates. Ibid.

SEC. 758-b. Bridge certificates or bonds. Any such city may anticipate the collection of taxes authorized to be levied for a city bridge fund and for that purpose may issue bridge certificates or bonds with interest coupons, and the provisions of chapter twelve, title five, of the code shall be operative as to such certificates, bonds and coupons in so far as they may be applicable. [32 G. A., ch. 36, § 2.]

SEC. 758-c. How paid. Said certificates, bonds and interest thereon shall be secured by said assessments and levies and shall be payable only out of the funds derived from such levies and pledged to the payment of the same, and no certificates or bonds shall be issued in excess of taxes authorized and levied to secure the payment of the same. It shall be the duty of such city to collect such funds, with interest thereon, and to hold the same separate and apart in trust for the payment of said certificates, bonds and interest and to apply the proceeds of said funds pledged for that purpose to the payment of said certificates, bonds and interest. [32 G. A., ch. 36, § 3.]

SEC. 758-d. Bonds for construction of bridges. That cities of the first class are hereby authorized to contract indebtedness and to issue bonds for the purpose of constructing bridges. Such bonds shall be payable in not exceeding twenty annual installments and bear interest at not exceeding five per centum per annum, and shall be made payable at such place and be of such form as the city council shall by ordinance designate. But no city shall become indebted in excess of five per centum of the actual value of the taxable property of said city as shown by the last preceding assessment roll. [34 G. A., ch. 39, § 1.]

SEC. 758-e. Additional to other powers. This act shall be construed as granting additional power without limiting the power already existing in cities of the first class. [34 G. A., ch. 39, § 2.]

SEC. 759. Aiding county bridge.

Under these provisions aid may be given to a toll bridge. Pritchard v. Magoun, 109–364, 80 N. W. 512.

SEC. 760. Question submitted.

Prior to the adoption of the present code it was not required that the ballots at a special election, such as here contemplated, should be in accordance with the Australian ballot law. Pritchard v. Magoun, 109–364, 80 N. W. 512.

Also held that notices of such election posted in hotels were posted in public places, as required by the statute. Ibid.

SEC. 766-a. Additional tax. That any city in this state which has voted aid to any company for the construction of a highway or combination bridge across any navigable boundary river of this state, a condition of which vote, or the granting or acceptance of such aid, was that the city should have the right to purchase such bridge from the company so aided, its successors or assigns, may, at any time after such taxes voted in aid are collected, vote an additional tax of not exceeding five per centum of the assessed value of the taxable property of such city for the purpose of securing the funds necessary to enable it to make such purchase. Such taxes shall be payable in such annual installments not less than ten as the electors may determine. [29 G. A., ch. 42, § 1.]

SEC. 766-b. Question submitted. The question of whether or not such additional taxes shall be voted shall be submitted to the electors of such city before the city elects to make such purchase and the submission thereof shall be governed in all respects by sections seven hundred sixty, seven hundred sixty-one, seven hundred sixty-two, seven hundred sixty-three and seven hundred sixty-four of the code so far as the same are applicable. [29 G. A., ch. 42, § 2.]

SEC. 766-c. Bonds or warrants—tolls. After such taxes are voted the city may issue its bonds, warrants or other certificates drawing such interest not exceeding six per cent. per annum as the city council may determine, payable from such taxes as they are collected, and from no other source, and pledging them for their payment. Such taxes shall be used for no other purpose and such bonds, warrants or certificates shall not be sold for less than their par or face value with accrued interest. The city council shall fix the rate of tolls or charges for passing over the bridge, and such tolls shall be large enough to pay the interest upon the bonds, warrants or certificates issued for its purchase together with the expense of maintaining and operating it. [29 G. A., ch. 42, § 3.]

SEC. 766-d. Vote of tax in cities after annexation. In any case where aid has been extended and bridges erected in two separate cities, and subsequent thereto, one of such cities has been annexed to the other, the electors residing in the territory which comprises either of the separate cities before annexation, may vote taxes upon the property in such territory for the purchase of such bridge, and the proceedings in such case shall be the same as in the preceding sections of this act provided, except that the petition to the city council shall be signed by a majority of the resident freehold taxpayers of the territory in which the vote is to be had, and the taxes, when voted and properly certified, shall be levied only upon the property in such territory. [29 G. A., ch. 42, § 4.]

SEC. 767. Railway tracks—street railways.

An ordinary use of the street by a railway operated by trolley wires carried upon poles set at the side of the street is not a new or additional burden upon the public easement in a street entitling the abutting property owner to additional damages even though he is the owner of the fee. Snyder v. Ft. Madison Street R. Co., 105–284, 75 N. W. 179.

A railroad company may acquire a right of way over private property and across streets of a city with its tracks in the occupation of such right of way without securing the consent of property owners, if in crossing the street it does not construct its line in front of abutting property. Morgan v. Des Moines Union R. Co., 113–561, 85 N. W. 902.

The owner of abutting property upon a street may recover damages against a railroad company for obstructing the street by an embankment, although the track is not laid on the street in front of such abutting property owner's premises. Dairy v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 113–716, 84 N. W. 688.

The railroad track in the street for which damage must be paid to abutting property owners includes cuts, fills and other structures constituting the roadbed. Middleton v. Mason City & Ft. Dodge R. Co., 127–433, 103 N. W. 364.

A city may condemn land for a public landing and grant a railway company a right of way over the same. Diamond Jo Line Steamers v. Davenport, 114–432, 87 N. W. 399.

Where land is dedicated to a city for public highway and other public purposes, the city may permit its use by a railway for the purpose of facilitating the business of such railway. Burlington Gas Light Co. v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 165 U. S. 370.

The franchise to lay its tracks on the streets of a city having been granted to a street railway company, permission to lay such tracks on a street not already occupied may be granted by the city council by resolution. Thurston v. Huston, 123–157, 98 N. W. 637.

The right of a street railway under its franchise to occupy such streets as the council in the reasonable exercise of its discretion may designate is not inconsistent with the existence of another street railway system in the same city operating under another franchise. Ibid.

It is the duty of a street railway company to so construct and operate its railway as not to interfere unnecessarily with the right of abutting property owners to use and enjoy their property and it may be enjoined from maintaining a trolley pole in front of a dwelling house of plaintiff without necessity therefor in a manner to annoy him and injure and depreciate the value of his property. Snyder v. Ft. Madison Street R. Co., 105–284, 75 N. W. 179.

While a city has authority to grant the use of the streets for railway purposes, and the power so granted carries with it the implied power to permit temporary and not unreasonable use thereof for standing trains, yet under this power the city may not entirely obstruct the public use of a street, nor permit such use as shall constitute a private nuisance, and a court of equity has jurisdiction to restrain the continuance of a public or private nuisance thus created. Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines, 128–49, 102 N. W. 831.

The statutory provisions authorizing the construction of street railways over the streets of a city leaves in the general public the right of unrestricted use of the entire street from curb to curb, subject to the right of the company to the proper use of its track. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

If, in reliance upon a valid ordinance, a street railway company, in good faith and without notice that the authority to lay its tracks in the streets of a city is to be modified or withdrawn, proceeds to act in reliance upon such authority, the city cannot afterwards require the tracks to be removed, except upon the principle of fair indemnity. But the right of the railway company in the streets is subject to the general control of the city as to their reasonable use and improvement and this power of the city cannot be abrogated by ordinance or relinquished by control. Ibid.

A franchise granted to a street car company which was subsequently made exclusive for the term of thirty years, held in the absence of statutory or other limitation to be a perpetual franchise having been recognized by the city after the expiration of the thirty years' term, and therefore a contract which the city could not impair by ordering the company to remove its tracks from the streets. Des Moines City R. Co. v. Des Moines, 151 Fed. 854.

Where an electric street railway company has, under a franchise, constructed its track and erected the necessary trolley line of poles and wires, it acquires a right to maintain and use such track and line as against a citizen who desires to make an unusual and extraordinary use of the street in the moving of houses or other structures over it so as to destroy the trolley line and interrupt for a considerable time the operation of cars by means thereof. Ft. Madison St. R. Co. v. Hughes, 137–122, 114 N. W. 10.

Although a railroad track has been established in a street prior to the adoption of this section of the code and without compensation to the abutting property owners, such owners may object to the construction of a side track in the street without compensation being made. Baker v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 154–228, 134 N. W. 587.

The construction of street railways,—that is, of railways laid upon and along the streets and highways of a city for purposes of local traffic and travel—is subject to the authority and control of the municipality in which they operate. Lewis v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 1092.

If a corporation organized primarily to own and operate a street railway assumes in its articles the further power to own and operate other railways and reserves to itself the right to designate the power by which it shall be operated, it is a railway corporation in the broad sense of the term and may exercise the discretion which such corporations generally possess in choosing the motive power to be used in operating its cars. Ibid.

Under the provisions of § 464 of the code of '73, the city had no power to grant a perpetual franchise for the maintenance of a street railway over its streets and it could not estop itself by its conduct from insisting that such a franchise was invalid. State v. Des Moines City R. Co., 140 N. W. 437.

A corporation may, no doubt, operate a street railway upon the streets of a city under an ordinance or resolution permitting it so to do without express legislative authority. But such operation and occupancy would be nothing more than a mere license terminable at pleasure. Ibid.

SEC. 768. Street car vestibules. On and after November first, nineteen hundred and seven, every person, partnership, company or corporation owning or operating a street railway in this state shall, from November first of each year to April first following, provide all cars, except trailers, used for the transportation of passengers, with vestibules inclosing the front platform on[1] all sides, for the protection of employes operating such cars. Any violation of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each day said cars are operated in violation hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 37.]

['The words "at least" appear in brackets between the words "on" and "all" in the 1907 supplement, the brackets calling attention to manifest surplusage. Being meaningless the words are dropped in this supplement. EDITOR.]

SEC. 768-a. Transparent shields. That on and after the first day of October, nineteen hundred and nine, every person, partnership or corporation owning or operating street railways in this state shall provide and maintain upon all motor cars, except trailers, used for the transportation of passengers, not now by law required to carry an enclosed vestibule, a transparent shield extending the full width of each car and constructed in such manner as will afford protection to the motorman and passengers on the platform of such motor car from inclement weather. [33 G. A., ch. 51, § 1.]

SEC. 768-b. Penalty. Failure to comply with the terms of this act shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, and each day during which any car shall be operated in violation of this act shall constitute a separate offense. [33 G. A., ch. 51, § 2.]

SEC. 768-c. Power brakes—sanding equipment. Every person, partnership, company or corporation, owning or operating a street railway in this state shall equip every double truck passenger car of thirty-seven feet and more in length over all, or weighing thirty-five thousand pounds or more, purchased, built or rebuilt hereafter, with power brakes other than hand, capable of bringing such car to a stop within a reasonable distance, together with equipment for sanding the rails of any street railway, which brake and sand equipment shall be controlled and operated by the motorman on said car. [33 G. A., ch. 52, § 1.]

[See also § 768-e. EDITOR.]

SEC. 768-d. Penalty. Any violation of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each day every such car is operated in violation hereof. [33 G. A., ch. 52, § 2.]

SEC. 768-e. Power brakes—sanding equipment—when effective. Every person, partnership, company or corporation owning or operating a street railway in this state shall equip all of its double truck passenger cars with power brakes other than hand, capable of bringing such cars to a stop within a reasonable distance, together with equipment for sanding the rails, which brake and sand equipment shall be so constructed as to be operated by the motorman on the car operated by him; provided, however, that no street railway shall be required to equip more than one half of such cars now in operation and not so equipped before January first, nineteen hundred twelve, and all of such cars shall be equipped before January first, nineteen hundred thirteen. [34 G. A., ch. 38, § 1.]

SEC. 768-f. Single truck cars. All single truck passenger cars over thirty-two feet in length hereafter installed in service upon street railways shall be equipped and operated with the appliances provided for double truck cars in section one of this act. [34 G. A., ch. 38, § 2.]

SEC. 768-g. Penalty. Any person failing to comply with the terms of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars and each day's operation of any car in violation of the terms of this act shall constitute a separate offense. [34 G. A., ch. 38, § 3.]

SEC. 769. Railway crossings—speed of trains.

This section expressly authorizes cities of the class specified to compel railroad companies to erect and maintain gates upon public streets at railway crossings. Council Bluffs v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 157– —, 138 N. W. 891.

SEC. 771. Assessment of damages. That section seven hundred seventy-one of the code supplement [1902] is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"When a viaduct shall be by ordinance declared necessary for the safety and protection of the public, the council shall provide for appraising, assessing and determining the damages which may be caused to any property by reason of the construction of the same and its approaches. The proceedings for such purpose shall be the same as are provided in case of taking private property for works of internal improvement, and the damages assessed shall be paid by the city out of the general bridge fund, or in cities having a population of twelve thousand or over from any other fund or funds legally available therefor." [32 G. A., ch. 38, § 1; 29 G. A., ch. 43, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 32, § 2.]

The costs of the assessment and those occasioned by the appeal include reasonable attorney's fees as provided in code § 2007. Globe Machinery & Supply Co. v. Des Moines, 156–267, 136 N. W. 518.

And these costs are to be paid out of the fund designated in code supp. § 771-a. Ibid.

In a condemnation proceeding for the assessment of damages to property on account of the construction of a viaduct in the street, the supposed benefits to the abutting property may be considered as offsetting damages, but not to such extent as to entirely deprive the property owner or lessee of all damages. Western Newspaper Union v. Des Moines, 140 N. W. 367.

In such case, the shutting off of light or air may be considered as an element of damage to a leasehold interest. Ibid.

SEC. 771-a. Viaduct fund. That section one of chapter twenty-nine of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"In cities having a population of twelve thousand or over, where a viaduct is required to be constructed, and the plans therefor have been approved, and there are no available funds in the general bridge fund, or any fund or funds of said city which may be legally used for the payment of such damages, such city may levy an annual tax not exceeding two mills on the dollar for the purpose of creating a fund to be known as a viaduct fund, for the payment of damages caused to property by reason of the construction of such viaduct and approaches thereto." [32 G. A., ch. 38, § 2.]

SEC. 773. Apportionment of cost—use of—compensation for—repairs. When two or more railroad companies own or operate separate lines of track to be crossed by a viaduct, the proportion thereof, and the approaches thereto to be constructed by each, or the cost to be borne by each, shall be determined by the council. The council shall fix a time and place where it will consider such matters and any objections that may be made to the construction of such viaduct and the approaches thereto. Not less than twenty days' written notice of such hearing shall be given to the company or companies owning or operating the track or tracks over or under which it is proposed to construct such viaduct. Said notice may be served in the same manner and upon the same persons or officers as in the case of an original notice. Such cities shall have power to regulate the use of such viaducts and to authorize or forbid the use thereof by street railway companies and to require the payment of compensation for such use. After the completion thereof, any revenue derived therefrom by the crossing thereon of street railway lines shall constitute a special fund, and shall be applied in making repairs to such viaduct. One half of all ordinary repairs to such viaduct or its approaches shall be paid out of such fund, or be borne by the city, and the remaining half by the railroad company; and if the track of more than one company is crossed, the costs of such repairs shall be borne by such companies in the same proportion as was the original cost of construction. [29 G. A., ch. 43, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 32, § 4.]

SEC. 774. Refusal to comply. If any railroad company neglects or refuses, for more than thirty days after such notice as may be prescribed by ordinance, to comply with the requirements of any ordinance passed under the provisions of this chapter, the city may enforce the construction, maintenance or repair of such viaduct and approaches by proceedings in mandamus and the court shall require the issues to be made up at the first term to which such action is brought and shall give the same precedence over other civil business. Refusals to comply with, or violations of, the orders of the court in such proceedings may be punished as contempts, by fine and imprisonment as provided in section twenty-one hundred nineteen of the code; or the city may construct or repair the viaduct or approaches, or any portion thereof, which such railroad company was required to construct or maintain, and recover the cost thereof from such company. [29 G. A., ch. 43, § 3; 22 G. A., ch. 32, § 6.]

SEC. 776. Granting franchise—question submitted. No franchise shall be granted, renewed or extended by any city or town for the use of its streets, highways, avenues, alleys or public places, for any of the purposes named in the preceding section, unless a majority of the legal electors voting thereon vote in favor of the same at a general, city or special election. The council may order the question of granting, renewal or extension of any such franchise submitted to a vote at a general or city election, or at one specially called for that purpose; or the mayor shall submit said question to such vote upon the petition of twenty-five property owners of each ward in a city, or fifty property owners in any incorporated town. Notice of such election shall be given in two newspapers published in said city or town, if there are two, if not, then in one, once each week for at least four consecutive weeks. But if no such newspaper is published within the limits of the corporation, then such notice may be given by posting thereof in three public places within the limits of said corporation, two of which places shall be the post office and the mayor's office of such city or town, and by publication for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county. The clerk shall prepare the ballots, and the proposition shall be submitted as provided for in the chapter on elections. The party applying for the franchise, or for a renewal or extension thereof, shall pay all expenses incurred in holding the election. [33 G. A., ch. 44, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 39.]

[The above section is made applicable to interurban railways by § 2033-d. EDITOR.]

The franchise to lay its tracks on the streets of a city having been granted to a street railway company, permission to lay such tracks on a street not already occupied may be granted by the city council by resolution. Thurston v. Huston, 123–157, 98 N. W. 637.

The provisions of this and the preceding section constitute limitations upon the right of a corporation to construct a telegraph or telephone line along the public highways of the state as provided in code § 2158. Farmers' Telephone Co. v. Washta, 157– —, 133 N. W. 361.

Whether the granting of such a franchise may be by resolution or must be by formal ordinance, it can be validly enacted only by a vote in a meeting of the council upon which vote the yeas and nays must be called and recorded as required by code § 683. Ibid.

These provisions constitute an express limitation on the power of the city council as to granting the franchises contemplated. State v. Des Moines City R. Co., 140 N. W. 437.

SEC. 777. Temporary sidewalks. They shall have power to provide for the laying, relaying and repairing of temporary sidewalks upon any street, avenue, public ground, wharf, landing or market place within the limits of such city or town, at a cost not exceeding forty cents a linear foot, to prescribe a uniform width thereof, and to regulate the grade of the same, and to provide for the assessment of the cost thereof on the propertv in front of which the same shall be laid, in proportion to the special benefits conferred upon the property thereby and not in excess thereof, and the city or town clerk shall certify the amount of such assessment to the county auditor, and it shall be collected the same as other taxes. [28 G. A., ch. 26, § 1; C. '73, § 468.]

[The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by § 958 as well as by § 777-a. EDITOR.]

Where an ordinance provides for ordering the construction of temporary sidewalks at the expense of the abutting property owners upon resolutions of the council, a notice of such order and service of notice of the resolution is necessary before the assessment can be enforced. Hawley v. Fort Dodge, 103–573, 72 N. W. 756.

Where no permanent grade is established the council cannot require the construction of a temporary plank sidewalk above the natural surface so as to bring it on a line with improvements on the street. Hartrick v. Farmington, 108–31, 78 N. W. 794.

This section confers upon the city some discretionary power other than the establishment of a fixed and uniform grade. Converse v. Deep River, 139–732, 117 N. W. 1078.

SEC. 777-a. Applicable to special charter cities. The provisions of this act are also made applicable to cities acting under special charters. [28 G. A., ch. 26, § 2.]

[§ 777-a is § 2 of ch. 26 of the acts of the 28 G. A. § 1 of the same chapter amended § 777 of the code, by striking out the word "plank" in the second line of said section, and inserting the clause "in proportion to the special benefits conferred upon the property thereby and not in excess thereof" near the end of said section.]

SEC. 779. Permanent sidewalks—city clerk to certify assessment —special tax. They shall have power to provide for the construction, reconstruction and repair of permanent sidewalks upon any street, highway, avenue, public ground, wharf, landing or market place within the limits of such city or town; but the construction of permanent sidewalks shall not be made until the bed of the same shall have been graded so that, when completed, such sidewalks will be at the established grade; and to assess the cost thereof on the lots or parcels of land in front of which the same shall be constructed; and the city clerk shall certify the amount of such assessment to the county auditor, and it shall be collected the same as other taxes. But, in cities having a city collector or treasurer who collects city taxes, the city clerk shall certify the amount of such assessment to such collector or treasurer, and the same shall be collected as other city taxes. Towns shall have the power to make the street improvements provided for in chapter seven of this title, and pay for the same, or any part thereof, out of the general fund, or to assess, levy and collect special taxes for the cost, or any part thereof, against the abutting property, in the manner provided in the said chapter. But unless the owners of a majority of the linear feet of the property fronting on the improvements referred to in this section petition the council therefor, the same shall not be made unless three fourths of all the members of the council shall by vote order the making thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 27, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; C. '73, § 466.]

[See §§ 791-a to 791-i inclusive for further provisions respecting permanent sidewalks. EDITOR.]

In exercising the taxing power the city must pursue the manner pointed out in the statute, and if assessment is made for the reconstruction of a sidewalk and not merely for repair, then it must be based upon petition of the owners of the majority of the frontage. Farraher v. Keokuk, 111–310, 82 N. W. 773.

An ordinance is essential to the right of the city to build permanent sidewalks or to require the same to be built. Gallaher v. Jefferson, 125–324, 101 N. W. 124.

An ordinance establishing the street grade is also an essential prerequisite to the work of excavating for a sidewalk. Ibid.

Where a city has undertaken to avail itself of the provisions of statute as to construction of permanent sidewalks, and has fixed in its general ordinance the mode of procedure, it is limited to the mode prescribed in the ordinance. And if a particular form of notice is specified before the construction of a permanent sidewalk can be required, such notice must be given. Burget v. Greenfield, 120–432, 94 N. W. 933.

It is not contemplated that a permanent sidewalk at grade shall be required until the city or town is prepared to bring the street itself to grade and has graded the bed of the sidewalk. Ibid.

The council has no authority to establish a wholly artificial grade line and then proceed to compel the construction of permanent sidewalks, not in accordance with this grade, but in accordance with some grade to be fixed upon by the council or its sidewalk committee, with the penalty that if the property owner does not comply with such direction he shall be compelled to construct his walk at the artificial grade, without regard to his own convenience or the public welfare. Ibid.

A city council may not only provide for the construction of permanent sidewalks, but, as a necessary incident thereto, for the time, place and manner of such construction, and when the work shall be done by the city, whether the cost thereof shall be paid from general funds or assessed upon abutting lots or parcels of land. But if the ordinance with reference thereto specifies the character of notice to be given to the property owner in case the costs are to be thus assessed, the giving of such notice is an essential prerequisite to the enforcement of the tax against the abutting property. Zalesky v. Cedar Rapids, 118–714, 92 N. W. 657.

Under an ordinance requiring that sidewalks shall be built and constructed within thirty days after notice to the owner, an officer of the corporation has no authority to cut down trees for the purpose of preparing for the construction of sidewalks where no notice has been given. Waterbury v. Morphew, 146–313, 125 N. W. 205.

While the bringing of the street to grade is not a condition precedent to the adoption of a resolution ordering a permanent sidewalk, it is a condition precedent to the construction of the walk, and if the city fails to bring the street to grade within the time that the property owner might have put in the walk for himself he is not in default for failing to make the improvement. Bowman v. Waverly, 155–745, 128 N. W. 950.

This section does not confer upon the city the power to assess the cost of the construction of crosswalks against the lots which are being assessed for a permanent sidewalk. Kaynor v. Cedar Falls, 156–161, 135 N. W. 564.

When the surface has been brought to the established grade, the removal of any other earth essential to the proper construction of the sidewalk is merely incidental to the laying of the walk and may be regarded as so connected therewith that it is a part of such construction. Ibid.

SEC. 780. Repair of sidewalks.

Repairs without notice can be assessed to abutting property, but not the expense of reconstruction unless the provisions of the preceding section are complied with. Farraher v. Keokuk, 111–310, 82 N. W. 773.

SEC. 782. Grades and grading.

Although the specific provision of § 465 of the code of '73 with reference to the power of a city to provide for the grading of a street only by resolution is omitted from this section, nevertheless the rights of holders of property abutting on streets are too important to permit cities and towns to establish and alter the grades of such streets without the certainty and publicity given by the passage of some ordinance or resolution with reference thereto. Eckert v. Walnut, 117–629, 91 N. W. 929.

The failure to adopt a resolution before proceeding with the work of grading a street amounts at best to nothing more than a failure to observe and comply with a matter of form incident to the proceedings to carry into effect a legal right of which the city was already in full enjoyment. No special damages arising out of the failure to adopt a resolution ordering the work done being alleged or proved, an abutting property owner cannot recover damages as against a city for proceeding with the work without such resolution. Wilber v. Ft. Dodge, 120–555, 95 N. W. 186.

No remedy exists at common law to recover damages for injury to abutting property caused by bringing streets into conformity with the established grade. Nor is there any such remedy under statute, unless improvements were made with reference to a previously established grade. Reilly v. Ft. Dodge, 118–633, 92 N. W. 887.

The fact that no resolution is passed before the grading is done will not entitle an abutting property owner to recover damages against the city. Ibid.

An ordinance establishing a street grade is an essential prerequisite to the work of excavating for the construction of a permanent sidewalk. Gallaher v. Jefferson, 125–324, 101 N. W. 124.

The establishment of a grade for the center of a street operates also as the establishment of the grade for that portion of the street designed to be occupied by sidewalks and parking. Ibid.

The establishment of a grade for a permanent sidewalk is included and implied in the establishment of a street grade. Ibid.

The city is liable to an abutting property owner for damage to his property from cutting down a street on which no grade has been established. Millard v. Webster City, 113–220, 84 N. W. 1044.

As a general rule a city is not liable for damages occasioned by the mere grading of a street if this is done in a prudent manner, but the city will not be permitted to divert a large quantity of surface water from its natural course in another direction so as to flow on a lot owner's land in destructive quantities through a drain or channel. Hoffman v. Muscatine, 113–332, 85 N. W. 17.

Excavation in the street made in grading which allows the collection and standing of water may constitute such wrong on the part of the city as to sustain a judgment for damages. Howard v. Lamoni, 124–348, 100 N. W. 62.

The street grade having been properly established, the grade of the curb line is to be fixed with reference to the street grade according to approved methods of construction. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

Where an abutting property owner is damaged by the unlawful grading of a street the city is liable if the grading is done by its authority, and where done by the street commissioner, with knowledge of the city council, and without objection by the council, authority will be presumed. Brown v. Webster City, 115–511, 88 N. W. 1070.

A city is liable for damages occasioned to an abutting property owner by cutting down the street in front of his premises except for the purpose of bringing the street to an established grade fixed by valid ordinance. Markham v. Anamosa, 122–689, 98 N. W. 493.

But the abutting owner does not acquire title by adverse possession to the land lying between his lot line and the edge of the sidewalk merely by occupancy and assertion of title and cannot therefore recover damages for the mere removal of the dirt between the lot line and the sidewalk. Ibid.

The fact that a city excavates the street to an established grade so that abutting property is deprived of its lateral support does not entitle the owner to compensation by way of damages. Talcott v. Des Moines, 134–113, 109 N. W. 311.

No formal action of the council is necessary to authorize the bringing of the street to the established grade. Collins v. Iowa Falls, 146–305, 125 N. W. 226.

As the city has power to grade and gutter its streets it is not liable to lot owners for damage from surface waters resulting from adoption of defective plans; but it may be liable if it negligently carries out such plans or if without any plans it proceeds in a negligent manner to make embankments or fills without providing for the escape of surface water, resulting in damage to property. Hume v. Des Moines, 146–624, 125 N. W. 846.

The property owner is entitled to a perpetual injunction to restrain the city from illegally cutting down a street without the authority of an ordinance fixing a grade; but the decree should not be so broad as to prohibit the city from thereafter exercising its legislative power to fix a grade and improve the street. Hunter v. Ottumwa, 150–281, 129 N. W. 961.

SEC. 784. Embankments and fills.

A city may acquire land by purchase or condemnation on which to construct a retaining wall. Patterson v. Burlington, 141–291, 119 N. W. 593.

SEC. 785. Change of grade—damages.

The grade of street cannot properly be changed except by an ordinance. Caldwell v. Nashua, 122–179, 97 N. W. 1000.

The grade of a street can neither be established nor changed save by ordinance. The city can acquire no rights as against a property owner by virtue of a change of grade claimed to arise by implication only. Morton v. Burlington, 106–50, 75 N. W. 662.

That plaintiff's property was made more difficult of access and that a retaining wall was rendered necessary and that certain shade trees in the street, not obstructing travel, were injured or destroyed, held elements of damage for which recovery could be had under this section. Richardson v. Webster City, 111–427, 82 N. W. 920.

Where the work was done by the street commissioner, extending over a period of about six weeks, and the city disposed of some of the dirt taken from the excavation, held that there was sufficient evidence prima facie to show that the change was by the authority of the city. Ibid.

A witness should not be asked to state how much less in value the premises were worth after the change than before.

Mere adoption of an ordinance changing the grade gives no right of action to a property owner, and if the city proceeds to change the grade to some extent, without making the complete change necessary to conform the street to the established grade, the property owner can only recover damages resulting from such actual change. Buser v. Cedar Rapids, 115–683, 87 N. W. 404.

An abutting property owner is not entitled to recover damages until the change of grade is made effectual by change in the physical surface of the street; but his right of damages accrues when such actual change of grade is effected, although he has, between the time the change of grade is ordered and the time it is carried into execution, voluntarily conformed his improvements to the paper grade. York v. Cedar Rapids, 130–453, 103 N. W. 790.

Where the physical change of grade is made in pursuance of one general plan of improvement, the damages to be paid to the abutting property owner are indivisible, and the cause of action therefor does not arise until the improvement has been completed. Foley v. Cedar Rapids, 133–64, 110 N. W. 158.

One who improves his property with reference to the natural grade of the street, which does not conform to the grade established by ordinance, cannot recover damages occasioned by the act of the city in bringing the street to the established grade. Farmer v. Cedar Rapids, 116–322, 89 N. W. 1105.

If the land of the abutting owner is in fact benefited by the change of grade which improves the means of access to his property, that fact may be considered in fixing the amount of damages to be recovered for such change of grade. Morton v. Burlington, 106–50, 75 N. W. 662.

If a property owner makes improvements before the grade for a street is established, he cannot recover damages occasioned by the work of bringing the street to the grade as thereafter legally established. Wilber v. Ft. Dodge, 120–555, 95 N. W. 186.

The fact that the work of bringing a street to the grade established by city ordinance is begun without the adoption of a resolution ordering the work, does not create a right of action not otherwise existing in favor of a property owner for damages resulting from the bringing of such street to grade. Ibid.

But the city may be liable for damages caused by the grading of a street, even though done in accordance with the provisions of ordinance, if thereby the natural drainage is destroyed and no adequate means are provided for the escape of surface water. Ibid.

So the city may be liable for injury to abutting property by grading work done in a street, for which no legal grade has been established by ordinance, as required by law. Ibid.

To entitle a lot owner to damages for change of grade, the improvements must have been erected in accordance with the previous grade of the street; but it is not essential that such improvements shall have been made at the grade if they have been made with respect to a convenient use of the street, and damages thereto resulting from a change of grade may be recovered, although when made they were in fact below the established grade. Stevens v. Cedar Rapids, 128–227, 103 N. W. 363.

The property owner cannot complain of the improvement of the street in accordance with an established street grade, and the council may determine the grade of the curb line with reference to such street grade according to approved methods of street construction. The property owner alone and not a general taxpayer may complain of an improper method of construction. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

The city and the property owner may agree as to the damages to be awarded for change of grade, and a taxpayer has no occasion for complaint in the absence of fraud. Ibid.

The measure of damages recoverable in change of grade is the difference in value of the property before the change and as it was just after, so far as such difference is due to the change. In ascertaining such difference the opinions of expert witnesses may be considered and the jury may take into account the cost of putting the property in the same relative condition with respect to the new grade as it was in respect to the old. Richardson v. Sioux City, 136–436, 113 N. W. 928.

Damage for injury to trees in the parking between the sidewalk and the traveled portion of the street is not to be allowed where it appears that the trees were not set out in conformity with the grade which has subsequently been changed. Ibid.

The city is liable in damages if it injuriously grades the street in the absence of an ordinance and it is liable in damages if it injuriously makes a change in grade and the damage to the abutting owner cannot be any different in extent or character in the one case from what it is in the other. Ibid.

Benefits resulting from a change of grade are to be considered by the jury in connection with the disadvantages thereof. Meardon v. Iowa City, 148–12, 126 N. W. 939.

Property is improved according to an established grade whenever it is so improved that it can be comfortably and conveniently used for the purpose to which it is devoted while the street upon which it abuts is maintained at the grade so established. Ibid.

By a change or alteration of a street is meant actual physical change in the surface of the street. If the city does work in altering the grade and then ceases for such length of time to make it appear that the work is completed, an abutting property owner is only entitled to recover from the injury because of what is done, but for nothing more. Ibid.

The right to recover damages occasioned by the act of the public authorities in altering the grade of a street exists only by reason of some statute providing therefor. Chiesa v. Des Moines, 138 N. W. 922.

The term "owner" as used in this section includes the tenant as well as the holder of title. Ibid.

Where damages are awarded for change of grade, the measure generally is the difference in the value of the use of the property immediately before and immediately after the change of grade and the resulting benefits may be considered. Western Newspaper Union v. Des Moines, 140 N. W. 367.

SEC. 786. Appraisers.

The provisions of this section are not applicable to the assessment of damages for the construction of a viaduct in the street which is covered by code supp. § 771. Globe Machinery & Supply Co. v. Des Moines, 156–267, 136 N. W. 518.

SEC. 788. Assessment.

SEC. 791. Sewers.

As an incident to the power expressly given to construct sewers, the city has implied power to borrow money for the purpose of constructing a plant for the disposition of the sewage. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. v. Marshalltown, (C. C.) 153 Fed. 620.

In constructing sewers and keeping them in repair, a municipal corporation acts ministerially and is liable to a property owner for a nuisance created by the discharge of the sewer near his premises. Hines v. Nevada, 150–620, 130 N. W. 181.

The duty of preventing such a sewer from becoming a source of injury is a continuing one, not to be avoided by shifting the responsibility to landowners who make use of such sewer. Ibid.

The right to construct a sewer across the lands of others carries with it the right to enter upon the premises to make repairs and do such work as is necessary to its maintenance in proper condition so as not to constitute a nuisance. Ibid.

The city may provide for the construction of a sewer system out of the general funds of the city. First Nat. Bank v. Emmetsburg, 157– —, 138 N. W. 451.

SEC. 791-a. Permanent sidewalks—objections. All objections to the cost of construction of permanent sidewalks, as provided by the code, against the lots or parcels of land in front of which the same are constructed, and all objections to the prior proceedings, on account of errors, irregularities or inequalities, must be made in writing and filed with the city clerk prior to the date fixed for said assessment; and all objections not so made shall be deemed waived, except where fraud is shown. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.]

Objections to the construction of the walk are not to be deemed waived where fraud is shown. Kaynor v. Cedar Falls, 156–161, 135 N. W. 564.

SEC. 791-b. Tax—how paid. If the owner of any lot or parcel of land against which an assessment for permanent sidewalks is made shall, at the time of making said special assessment, promise and agree in writing, indorsed on a certificate, or in a separate agreement, that in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments, he will not make any objection of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment or levy of such tax upon and against his property, and will pay said assessment, with interest thereon at such rate, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as shall by ordinance or resolution of the council be prescribed, such tax, so levied against the lot or parcel of land of such owner, shall be payable in seven equal installments, the first of which shall mature and be payable on the date of said assessment and the others, with interest on the whole amount unpaid, annually thereafter, at the same time and in the same manner as the March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes; but where no such promise and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any lot or parcel of land, then the whole of said assessment so levied upon and against the property of such owner, shall be assessed and collected as provided for in section seven hundred seventy-nine of the code and amendments thereto. All such taxes, with interest, shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after their maturity and shall bear same rate of interest, with same penalties as ordinary taxes. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 2.]

SEC. 791-c. Certificates of levy—lien upon property. A certificate of levy of such special assessment, fixing the number of installments and the time when payable, certified as correct by the city clerk, shall be filed with the auditor of the county, or each of the counties in which the city is situated and thereupon said special assessment, as shown therein, shall be placed on the tax list of the proper county and said taxes and special assessment, with all interest and penalties thereon, shall become and remain a lien upon such lot or parcel of land until the same is paid; and said lien shall have precedence over all other liens, except ordinary taxes. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 3.]

SEC. 791-d. Interest—rate. Each installment of any such special assessment shall bear interest from the date of the assessment, not to exceed six per cent. per annum, which shall become due and payable at the March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes. Upon the payment of any installment there shall be computed and collected the installment and interest on the whole assessment remaining unpaid up to the first day of April following. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 4.]

SEC. 791-e. Payment of assessment, interest, costs and penalties. The owner of any property against which said special assessment is made and levied shall have the right to pay the same, or the unpaid installments thereof, with all interest up to the time of said payment, with any penalties, and the cost of any proceedings for the sale of the property for such special assessments or installments. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 5.]

SEC. 791-f. Tax sale. Property against which a special assessment has been levied for permanent sidewalks may be sold for any sum of principal or interest due and delinquent at any regular or adjourned tax sale, in the same manner, with the same forfeitures, penalties and rights of redemption and certificates and deeds on such sales shall be made in the same manner and with like effect, as in case of sales for the nonpayment of ordinary taxes. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 6.]

SEC. 791-g. Sidewalk certificates. The council may provide, by ordinance or resolution, for the issuance of permanent sidewalk certificates in the same manner and to the same effect as street improvement and sewer certificates provided for in chapter eight, title five of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 7.]

SEC. 791-h. Applicable to special charter cities. The provisions of this act shall apply to cities under special charter. [30 G. A., ch. 30, § 8.]

SEC. 791-i. Railroad right of way subject to special assessments. That the right of way of any railroad company fronting or abutting upon a street, highway, avenue, alley, public ground, wharf, landing or market place within the limits of any city or town shall be subject to special assessments for sidewalks and street improvements authorized to be made under the provisions of chapters six and seven, title five of the code and amendatory acts thereto the same as any land or lot therein, and any special assessment made against any railroad right of way under any of the provisions of said chapters six and seven, title five of the code shall be a debt due personally from the railroad company owning or leasing such right of way, and unless the same is paid by such railroad company as a special assessment it may be collected in the name of the city or town levying such assessment in any court having jurisdiction. [32 G. A., ch. 40, § 1.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF STREET IMPROVEMENTS, SEWERS AND SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS.

SECTION 792. Assessing cost of improvements—repavement—disposal of waste material. Cities shall have power to improve any street, highway, avenue or alley by grading, parking, curbing, paving, graveling, macadamizing and guttering the same or any part thereof, and to provide for the making and reconstruction of such street improvements, and to assess the costs on abutting property as provided in this chapter; but the construction of permanent parking, curbing, paving, graveling, macadamizing or guttering shall not be done until after the bed therefor shall have been graded, so that such improvement, when fully completed, will bring the street, highway, avenue or alley up to the established grade: provided that only so much of the cost of the removal of the earth and other material as lies between the subgrade and the established grade shall be assessed to abutting property. And upon the repaving of streets, avenues or alleys they shall have power to dispose of the waste material and salvage from the old pavement under such rules and regulations as the council by resolution may direct, the proceeds derived from the sale of such waste material and salvage to be equitably applied upon the cost of the new improvement. Provided, however, no salvage may be sold hereunder until the owner, or his agent, of abutting property shall have been given ten days' notice in writing requiring him to elect whether he himself desires such salvage, which notice shall be personally served on the owner or his agent, or, if neither be found, by posting in a conspicuous place on the abutting property. The election, if made, shall be in writing and filed with the city clerk. Any owner electing to take his salvage shall not be entitled to a pro rata distribution derived from the proceeds of sale of any salvage hereunder. [35 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, § 20; 23 G. A., ch. 9, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 16, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; C. '73, §§ 466, 527; R. § 1095.]

The term "paved" as applied to streets, avenues and highways refers to the laying of some hard substance upon the earth so as to make a finished surface for travel, and does not apply to the reflooring of a bridge. Cedar Rapids v. Cedar Rapids & Marion City R. Co., 108–406, 79 N. W. 125.

While permanent paving is not to be done until after the bed of the street shall have been brought so near to the grade as established by ordinance as that paving when fully completed shall bring the street fully up to the established grade, and the cost of grading is not to be assessed as part of the improvement, yet if the grade is established at such time as that the improvement may be made with reference thereto it is sufficient. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

The city has the power to make permanent improvements only where they are constructed upon the established grade. Otherwise no assessment for such improvements can be made on abutting property. Hubbell v. Bennett, 130–66, 106 N. W. 375.

The right of the municipality to levy special assessments depends on statutory enactment and has no existence unless there be a valid statute conferring it. General authority to levy taxes for municipal purposes is not sufficient to confer the power, and the statute which does confer it is to be strictly construed in favor of the person against whom the assessment is levied. When express power is given, however, substantial compliance with the statute is all that is required. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112–300, 83 N. W. 1074.

The whole theory of special assessments is based on the doctrine that the property against which they are levied derives some special benefit from the improvement. Ibid.

A mere easement is not a lot, nor a parcel of land, within the terms of this section, and therefore held that a railroad was not subject to special assessment for improvement of a street abutting its right of way. It would be otherwise as to property of the company used for warehouses, depots, or other like purposes. Ibid.

Where the validity of the assessment is conceded to depend upon a valid ordinance or resolution, the invalidity of the ordinance or resolution on account of irregularity in the method of adoption in an assential particular will defeat the assessment. Cook v. Independence, 133–582, 110 N. W. 1029.

The statutory provisions as to the procedure in making special assessments are sufficiently definite without the aid of an ordinance. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127–563, 103 N. W. 800.

The method of making the special assessments authorized in this section being specifically pointed out in subsequent sections, no ordinance is necessary to enable the city to act in the exercise of that power. All that is essential is that the city take the steps provided by the statute. Martin v. Oskaloosa, 126–680, 102 N. W. 529.

Under prior statutes it has been held that a special assessment cannot be enforced against lots which do not abut upon the improvement. Smith v. Des Moines, 106–590, 76 N. W. 836.

A provision requiring the city council to ascertain the entire cost of the improvement and what portion may be assessable on adjacent property, and to assess such portion as provided by law or ordinance, does not violate the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution. Burlington Sav. Bank v. Clinton, 106 Fed. 269.

A conveyance which is but an artifice, and not effectual to transfer title, will not relieve the property owner from liability for special assessments. Ransom v. Burlington, 111–77, 82 N. W. 427.

An assessment certificate becomes affected in the hands of a holder with the terms of the law and ordinances under which it is issued, and also with any agreement of the property owner made in pursuance of such ordinances, fixing the time of payment of the assessments. Talcott v. Noel, 107–470, 78 N. W. 39.

A city may by contract render itself liable on implied guaranty for the costs of an improvement in front of property not subject to the assessment, or which is of such value that the lien of the tax thereon cannot be successfully enforced. Ottumwa Brick & Const. Co. v. Ainley, 109–386, 80 N. W. 510.

And where the city by reason of its own fault issues certificates for such costs which are invalid, it is liable to the contractor for the amount thereof. Ft. Dodge Electric L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

The expense of paving in front of a courthouse square may be assessed against the county. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

Under prior statutes authorizing collection of the assessment by equitable proceedings, held that the city might proceed in equity although the taxes had been certified to the county treasurer and the necessary steps had been taken for the sale of the property for the tax. Smith v. Des Moines, 106–590, 76 N. W. 836.

Where paving and the curbing are provided for in separate proceedings, it is not objectionable to levy the curbing tax before the paving is completed. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

In a proposal for bids for macadamizing a street the expense of grading should not be included except in so far as grading is necessary merely to prepare the street for the improvement, and an assessment for the expense of macadamizing, which under the contract included the bringing of the street to grade, is void. Gallaher v. Garland, 126–206, 101 N. W. 867.

Where the vendor in a contract to convey had subsequently been assessed for street improvements which it was presumed had materially increased the value of his property, held that the contract to convey could not be specifically enforced as against him, and that in the action for specific enforcement the validity of the assessment which he had not contested but to which he had waived objection, could not be inquired into. King v. Raab, 123–632, 99 N. W. 306.

Where a reassessment is proper the city council may no doubt be compelled to make it by proceeding by mandamus, but no such remedy is available to enforce an assessment of benefits where the contractor has not complied with his contract, and no assessment as provided by statute can therefore be made. Crawford v. Mason, 123–301, 98 N. W. 795.

The fact that street improvements have been paid for out of the general fund to which an abutting property owner has contributed, does not preclude the adoption of the plan of special assessments as to further improvements. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

A city may provide for parking the center of a public street and may require an abutting property owner to pay for the expense of a curb along such park. Downing v. Des Moines, 124–289, 99 N. W. 1066.

Where power is given a city to provide for improvement of the streets it is ordinarily within the discretion of the council to determine when and where the work shall be done and to provide the plan thereof. Ibid.

It is not for the court to say whether the determination of a city to grade any particular street is reasonable or unreasonable, but it does have the power to say that the city must take reasonable care to do the work in a manner to avoid unnecessary injury to shade trees growing in front of a residence lot which do not obstruct the use of street or sidewalk. Kemp v. Des Moines, 125–640, 101 N. W. 474.

The authority of the city to grade its streets extends to the removal or destruction of trees which have been planted therein by an adjoining owner with the express or implied consent of the city, but the right should be exercised so as not to cause greater damage to the trees than necessary in the proper improvement of the street. Gallaher v. Jefferson, 125–324, 101 N. W. 124.

Where the council is wholly without power to order the paving of a street or alley at the expense of abutting property, its proceedings are without jurisdiction and void ab initio and the property owner may question the legality of the proceedings although he has not objected to or protested against the improvement. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

The authority to pave at the expense of abutting property is expressly limited to streets, highways, avenues and alleys and special assessment for the paving of an alley which had been previously vacated was held to be without jurisdiction and void. Ibid.

The provisions of this section and § 793 refer to improvements for which special assessments may be made on abutting property, and have no relation to the matter of bringing the street to the grade established in accordance with the provisions of code § 782. Collins v. Iowa Falls, 146–305, 125 N. W. 226.

The discretion of the council in determining whether the public interest required the making of the improvement is not open to judicial review in the absence of some allegation and proof of fraud and oppression. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

The provision that a street shall not be permanently improved until after it has been brought to grade does not make the establishment of the grade nor the preparation of the bed of the street for improvement a condition precedent to the adoption of a resolution of necessity or the ordering of the improvement. Shaver v. Turner Imp. Co., 155–492, 136 N. W. 711.

When assessments are made and certificates issued they draw interest from date until paid, and if the city, through negligence or otherwise, fails to make and deliver valid assessments and assessment certificates to the contractor, where under the terms of the contract he is to receive his pay in such assessments or assessment certificates, the city is liable to the contractor for the amount of interest of which he is thus deprived. Turner Imp. Co. v. Des Moines, 155–592, 136 N. W. 656.

It is the property abutting the street and not necessarily the lot or parcel of land according to some plat which is made subject to assessment. Kneebs v. Sioux City, 156–607, 137 N. W. 944.

The city is not authorized to assess the cost of mere repairs against abutting property. It must appear that the work proposed constitutes a reconstruction, but if the pavement is destroyed as an entity and is to be reconstructed upon the same foundation upon which the original pavement rested, the cost is assessable to abutting property under this section. Fuche v. Cedar Rapids, 139 N. W. 903.

Where a pavement was not laid in accordance with the contract and the contractor, after being defeated in an action for the contract price, offered to remedy any defects in the pavement but no defects are pointed out and the contractor was further defeated in an action on quantum meruit, held that he might remove the pavement if it could be done without injury to the street. Snouffer v. Tipton, 142 N. W. 97.

SEC. 792-a. Special assessment—rate. When any city or town council or board of public works levies any special assessment for any public improvement against any lot or tract of land, such special assessment shall be in proportion to the special benefits conferred upon the property thereby and not in excess of such benefits. Such assessment shall not exceed twenty-five per centum of the actual value of the lot or tract at the time of levy, and the last preceding assessment roll shall be taken as prima-facie evidence of such value. [28 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.]

[By the title of the act (ch. 29, 28 G. A.), the act seems to have been intended as amendatory of chs. 7 and 8 of the code, only, while the wording of the above section would seem to include any special assessment for any public improvement.]

Prior to the enactment of this section it was held that the front foot rule of assessment without regard to benefits was not unconstitutional. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

The value of the lots as shown by the assessment roll is prima-facie evidence of the value for the purpose of determining whether the assessment exceeds twenty-five per cent. of the actual value. Baily v. Sioux City, 133–276, 110 N. W. 839.

The valuation of the lot for the purpose of determining the proportion of benefit should be confined to that portion subject to the assessment. Rawson v. Des Moines, 133–514, 110 N. W. 918.

In determining the benefits the council may consider the size, shape and location of the lot. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 137–107, 111 N. W. 1013.

The size of parcels of ground adjoining the street improved may be taken into account in determining the assessment to be made thereon for the improvement. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Lindquist, 119–144, 93 N. W. 103.

In making permanent improvements account may be taken, not only of present conditions, but also as to future benefits. Ibid.

The city council may act upon its own judgment regarding the value of property and the amount of benefit conferred, and in the absence of fraud its judgment is conclusive unless an appeal is taken therefrom. Owens v. Marion, 127–469, 103 N. W. 381.

The front-foot rule of assessment for street improvements cannot equitably be applied where the property of the owner against whom it is sought to enforce such assessment is a strip of land practically useless and without market value. Iowa Pipe & Tile Co. v. Callanan, 125–358, 101 N. W. 141.

The abutting owner seeking relief in equity from assessment for street improvement is not bound to tender any specific sum as representing the benefits received, less than that for which he is assessed. Ibid.

This act was evidently passed to provide for assessments according to benefits as distinct from the front-foot rule, but it did not operate to repeal the sections of the chapter relating to special charter cities on that subject. Diver v. Keokuk Sav. Bank, 126–691, 102 N. W. 542.

The manner of assessing the expenses of the improvement is prescribed by statute, but what shall be taken into consideration in determining to what extent the property has been enhanced in value by the improvement must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. Everything else being equal the front-foot rule is just in apportioning the cost among the several lot owners. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127–563, 103 N. W. 800.

Where it appears from the recital of the resolution by the council that the assessment is in proportion to the special benefits from the improvement as found by it, such recital is sufficient to show that the assessment is in accordance with the benefits. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

While the assessment cannot be in excess of the benefits to the abutting property, within that limitation it should be distributed ratably and proportionately upon all such property in the taxing or assessment district. Early v. Ft. Dodge, 136–187, 113 N. W. 766.

Under code § 818 assessments are to be made in accordance with the front-foot rule unless the benefits are not proportional to the frontage, and it is only in this event that the assessment by benefits is applicable. Des Moines U. R. Co. v. Des Moines, 140–218, 118 N. W. 293.

A drainage district is not a city or town and the provisions of this section have no reference to the assessment of property for the construction of a ditch. In re Farley Drain. Dist. 140–339, 118 N. W. 432.

Where the assessment purports to be made in proportion to the benefits the recital in that respect is not contradicted by proof that the result would have been the same under the front-foot rule. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

The fact that property owners petition for the kind of improvement subsequently made tends to contradict their subsequent testimony that their property is not benefited by such improvement. Ibid.

A tax properly assessed in accordance with benefits is not liable to counterclaim or set-off on the ground that a portion of the material used in the improvement had been used in an improvement paid for by assessment on the same property. Ibid.

Assessments according to area of abutting parcels of property is not necessarily erroneous. Andre v. Burlington, 141–65, 117 N. W. 1082.

The assessment should not be disturbed on the ground that some parcels of abutting property are omitted from assessment. Ibid.

Where the assessment is in excess of one fourth of the value of the property it will be reduced on appeal. Ibid.

In applying this section to assessments of an unplatted tract of land, the valuation per acre of the entire tract will be presumptively applicable to each portion of the tract in the absence of any evidence on the subject. Gray v. Des Moines, 150–299, 130 N. W. 582.

If the council erroneously assesses property for a street improvement for an amount exceeding twenty-five per cent. of its value, the remedy is by objection and appeal and not by action for injunction to restrain collection of the assessment. Durst v. Des Moines, 150–370, 130 N. W. 168.

The benefits referred to in this section are those accruing to the specific lots or tracts subject to assessment. Presumably, the improvement will be of benefit to all abutting property; but circumstances may be such that although the improvement enhances the value of most abutting property, it confers no benefit on a particular parcel. Camp v. Davenport, 151–33, 130 N. W. 137.

In determining whether a particular parcel of property is benefited, the test is not necessarily whether the market value has been increased. It is sufficient if the improvement has enhanced the actual value or worth of the property. Ibid.

An intersection is as important as any other part of the street and the improvement of a street is not complete unless it covers such intersection. If the improvement as a whole is of special benefit to abutting property, the improvement of the intersection confers some benefit, at least, on abutting property which is not adjacent to the intersection. Perry v. Albia, 155–550, 136 N. W. 681.

When the city undertakes to pave a street not already supplied with suitable curbs and gutters, the cost of such curbs and gutters is a part of the cost of the paving which cannot exceed twenty-five per cent. in value of the property. Bailey v. Des Moines, 157– —, 138 N. W. 853.

The fact that the curbing and guttering are provided for in a separate proceeding does not prevent their being regarded as parts of one improvement. Ibid.

Although an ordinance may provide for assessment according to the front-foot rule, the other provisions of the ordinance as to the matter of making assessments are not necessarily superseded by this section. Dunker v. Des Moines, 142 N. W. 207.

SEC. 792-b. Deficiencies—how paid. If the special assessment which may be levied against any lot or tract of land shall be insufficient to pay the cost of the improvement, the deficiency shall be paid out of the general fund, or for sewers out of the sewer fund provided for in section eight hundred thirty-one, or subdivision three of section eight hundred ninety-four, or section nine hundred seventy-eight, or subdivision three of section ten hundred and five, or for other improvements out of the improvement fund provided for in section eight hundred thirty, or subdivision two of section eight hundred ninety-four, or section nine hundred seventy-seven, or subdivision two of section ten hundred and five of the code, and acts amendatory thereof as the case may be. If there be property against which no special assessment can be levied the proportion of the cost of the improvement which might otherwise be assessed against such property shall be paid in like manner. [28 G. A., ch. 29, § 2.]

The incorporation into the contract of a stipulation that for such portion of the costs of the improvement as cannot be taxed against the abutting property the contractor shall look to the improvement fund does not render the contract illegal. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

SEC. 792-c. What statutes govern. So far as applicable, sections eight hundred twenty-one, eight hundred twenty-two, eight hundred twenty-three, eight hundred twenty-four, eight hundred twenty-nine, and eight hundred thirty-nine of the code shall govern all special assessments made in cities and towns unless otherwise specially provided. Upon appeal the court shall determine all questions, including that of benefits to the property assessed. [28 G. A., ch. 29, § 3.]

In the appeal here provided for, an objection to a variance between the improvement as made and that contemplated in the preliminary proceedings may be urged and such objection cannot be made the ground for a collateral attack upon the assessment. Cheney v. Ft. Dodge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 549.

SEC. 792-d. Enforcement of certain statutes not affected. Nothing in this act shall be construed to interfere with the enforcement of the provisions of sections eight hundred thirty-four and eight hundred thirty-five, of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 29, § 4.]

SEC. 792-e. Applicable to special charter cities. This act shall apply to cities acting under special charter. [28 G. A., ch. 29, § 5.]

SEC. 792-f. This chapter and power to levy tax for improvement fund applicable to incorporated towns. That the law as it appears in chapter fifty-three of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That incorporated towns shall have and exercise the powers conferred by chapter seven, title five of the code, for the construction of street improvements authorized in section seven hundred ninety-two of the code, whenever four fifths of all of the members of the council by vote assent thereto, or when the same be petitioned for by the owners of the majority of the linear front feet of the property abutting thereon. That all of the provisions of subdivision two of section eight hundred ninety-four of the code shall be applicable and apply to incorporated towns." [35 G. A., ch. 84, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 43, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 53, § 1.]

SEC. 792-g. Assessment against property not abutting—limitations. Whenever, after January first, nineteen hundred fourteen, any city or town council, including the councils of cities acting under special charter, levies any special assessment for street improvement as provided by section seven hundred ninety-two of the code and amendments thereto and supplementary thereof, the same shall be made in accordance with the provisions of section seven hundred ninety-two-a of the supplement to the code, 1907, and shall be limited to the amount to be assessed against private property, against all lots and parcels of land according to area so as to include one half of the privately owned property between the street improved and the next street whether such privately owned property abut upon said street or not but in no case shall privately owned property situated more than three hundred feet from the street so improved be so assessed. In case of improvement upon an alley, such assessment shall be confined according to area to privately owned property within the block or blocks improved and if not platted into blocks for not more than one hundred fifty feet from such improved alley. [35 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

SEC. 792-h. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 76, § 2.]

SEC. 793. How ordered. That section seven hundred ninety-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The construction or reconstruction of such improvement shall not be ordered made until three fourths of all the members of the council shall by vote assent thereto, provided that in cities under the commission plan of government with but three members in the council, a two-thirds vote shall be sufficient, unless the same be petitioned for by the owners of the majority of the linear front feet of the property abutting thereon; but a majority of the council may provide for repairing said improvements." [35 G. A., ch. 78, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, § 19; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 1; C. '73, §§ 466, 494; R. § 1135.]

As the statute prescribes the steps to be taken for the construction of street improvements and sewers for which assessments may be made on abutting property, no ordinance with reference to the method of procedure is necessary. Hardwick v. Independence, 136–481, 114 N. W. 14.

Where the petition of property owners purports to be signed by such owners or their duly authorized agents, the city council in acting upon the petition is presumed to have satisfied itself as to the genuineness of the signatures and the authority under which they were made and such a signing makes a prima-facie case of sufficiency. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

The provisions of § 792 and this section refer to improvements for which special assessments may be made on abutting property, and have no relation to the matter of bringing the street to the grade established in accordance with the provisions of code § 782. Collins v. Iowa Falls, 146–305, 125 N. W. 226.

The statutory provision as to a three-fourths vote has reference only to the order for improvement. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

Although a petition may be presented for a public improvement, it may be ordered upon a vote of three fourths of the council without reference to such petition. Bailey v. Des Moines, 157– —, 138 N. W. 853.

SEC. 794. Sewers.

A sewer is usually closed but not necessarily so, and the term is usually applied to drains in a city, whether for water or filth or both; but there is no provision for the construction of sewers through private property within incorporated towns, though the power to condemn for this purpose is conferred on cities. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

The authority of a board of supervisors under code § 1939 to provide for the construction of ditches or drains within the county extends to cities and towns, and a county ditch may properly be constructed and the cost thereof assessed to abutting property through the limits of an incorporated town. Ibid.

A temporary gutter for surface drainage may be constructed in the street without the passage of a special ordinance authorizing it, and without compliance with the provisions as to sewers. Even if a resolution for such improvement should be necessary, the acceptance of the work by the city would be a ratification of the act of the street commissioner in constructing it without such resolution. If such drain or gutter is negligently constructed, one injured thereby may recover damages in an action, but is not entitled to have it abated as a nuisance. Cooper v. Cedar Rapids, 112–367, 83 N. W. 1050.

The entire city may be made one sewer district, and the cost of constructing a sewer which is beneficial to the entire city may be provided for by a sewer tax on the entire real property within the limits of the city. Grunewald v. Cedar Rapids, 118–222, 91 N. W. 1059.

Where an abutting property owner connected his cellar with a sewer, with knowledge that the sewer was not sufficient to carry off the surface water and sewage, due to extraordinary rains, held that he was not entitled to recover damages by reason of the insufficiency of the sewer for the purpose. Sheriff v. Oskaloosa, 120–442, 94 N. W. 904.

The city council, in attempting to contract for the city with reference to the construction of sewers beyond the limit of its powers, does not bind the city to the payment of the certificates issued in pursuance of such contract and there can be no recovery either on the certificates or upon quantum meruit. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer, 126–101, 101 N. W. 643.

The city having authority to provide for the construction of sewers has implied authority to borrow money for the purpose of constructing a plant for the disposition of sewage. Glucose Sugar Ref. Co. v. Marshalltown, 153 Fed. 620.

A sewer, though in itself properly constructed, may be so planted as to create a nuisance which may be abated. Rand Lumber Co. v. Burlington, 122–203, 97 N. W. 1096.

The existence of another sewer constructed by the city does not preclude an assessment for a new sewer. Bell v. Burlington, 154–607, 134 N. W. 1082.

The fact that no adequate outlet for the new sewer has yet been provided and that without such outlet it may create a nuisance, is not a sufficient reason for setting aside an assessment for the construction of such sewer. Ibid.

The fact that the property assessed is not benefited because drainage is afforded by an old sewer constructed by the city which the city has the power to discontinue, is not sufficient reason for setting aside an assessment for a new sewer. Ibid.

A sewer system is intended not only for the private convenience of lot owners but for the comfort and safety of the public as a whole. Ibid.

Future prospects and reasonable anticipations of the city's growth, expansion and consequent needs may also be considered in determining the propriety of the establishment of a new sewer. Ibid.

Contracts for the construction of sewers relate to the business powers of the city as distinguished from its governmental powers. First Nat. Bank v. Emmetsburg, 157– —, 138 N. W. 451.

A city has implied power to construct a plant for the disposition of sewage. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. v. Marshalltown, (C. C.) 153 Fed. 620.

SEC. 797. Changing watercourses.

Where a city in the exercise of statutory authority has fixed the channel of a water course through which surface water flows, a property owner has no right by filling his lot and obstructing such channel to throw such surface water out of the course thus fixed. Waverly v. Page, 105–225, 74 N. W. 938.

The power to change a water course is not conferred on incorporated towns. Aldrich v. Paine, 106–461, 76 N. W. 812.

SEC. 799. Question submitted—special election. If the council on receiving the plans, specifications, and estimate of the expenses to be incurred, referred to in the last preceding section, shall still be of the opinion that the work should be done as proposed, it shall call a special election of the entire city or of any sewer district thereof in which the proposed work is to be done to finally determine the same question, and also the question of levying a special tax upon the property of the city or such sewer district, in addition to all other taxes now provided for by law, for that purpose. If the council shall determine that the estimated cost is greater than should be levied and collected in a single year, it may fix the yearly proportion, and determine in what years the same shall be levied and collected, and provide by ordinance or resolution the time of submitting the question to a vote. [28 G. A., ch. 28, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 6, § 3.]

SEC. 801. Damages assessed. After the plat and notes of the survey are made and filed, the council shall appoint five commissioners, resident freeholders of the city, not interested in any property abutting on said stream, who shall be sworn faithfully and impartially to perform the duties that may be required of them, either by this chapter or any ordinance passed in pursuance hereof, who shall determine what lot, lots or lands abutting on said stream will be benefited or damaged by doing the work, the amount of benefit or damages which will accrue to or be sustained by each and every lot, lots or lands, and the owners thereof, and make report in writing of their findings. In determining any question as to whether benefits accrue to or damages are sustained by such lot, lots or lands, or the owners thereof, the said commissioners shall consider the amount of land reclaimed or lost, the expense that will be incurred by the owners thereof in doing said work, and the advantages accruing from the removal of the easement of said watercourse, and any other matter that they may think proper to be considered for such purpose, but no damages shall be awarded for the cost of filling said channel. The commissioners shall give notice of the time and place of their meetings to determine what lot, lots and lands are benefited or damaged, by publication thereof at least five days successively prior thereto, in some newspaper of general circulation in said city; and, for the purpose of enabling them to determine the fact of benefit or damage, may take any competent evidence which the owner of any property affected may see fit to offer. The findings of the commissioners shall be returned to the council, and it may approve, reject or modify the same. Notice of the hearing before the council, upon the report so made, shall be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the city for five successive days, which last publication shall be ten days before such hearing, and if, after this hearing, it shall conclude to reject the report, it shall resubmit the matter to other commissioners, who shall proceed as in the first instance. If the council shall approve or modify this second finding, it shall proceed to assess the amount of benefits so found against said abutting lot, lots or lands, and the channel to be filled or reclaimed. Any person aggrieved by the action of the council in making said assessment may appeal therefrom to the district court of the county in which it is made, within twenty days from the date of the assessment, and also have the right to review the action of the council in said court in the manner now provided by law. In the event that there is no daily newspaper published in the city or town then the notices provided for by section eight hundred and one of the code may be given by one publication thereof in a weekly newspaper of general circulation published in such city or town, such publication to be made at least five, and not exceeding ten, days prior to the hearing or meeting referred to in said section. [31 G. A., ch. 25; 23 G. A., ch. 6, § 5.]

It is immaterial that the assessment names the property upon which it is assessed as belonging to an owner deceased. Smith v. Des Moines, 106–590, 76 N. W. 836.

SEC. 807. Assessment to abutting property.

[The above section is made applicable to special charter cities by § 963-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 810. Street improvements and sewers—preliminary notice. When the council of any such city shall deem it advisable or necessary to make or reconstruct any street improvement or sewer authorized in this chapter, it shall, in a proposed resolution, declare such necessity or advisability, stating the one or more kinds of material proposed to be used and method of construction, whether abutting property will be assessed, and, in case of sewers, the one or more kinds and size, and what adjacent property is proposed to be assessed therefor, and in both cases designate the location and terminal points thereof, and cause twenty days' notice of the time when said resolution will be considered by it for passage to be given by four publications in some newspaper of general circulation published in the city, the last of which shall be not less than two nor more than four weeks prior to the time fixed for its consideration, at which time the owners of the property subject to assessment for the same may appear and make objection to the contemplated improvement or sewer and the passage of said proposed resolution, at which hearing the same may be amended and passed, or passed as proposed. But if no such newspaper is published within the limits of the corporation, then such notice may be given by posting copies thereof in three public places within the limits of the corporation, two of which places shall be the post office and the mayor's office of such city or town. [34 G. A., ch. 40, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, § 20; 22 G. A., ch. 6, §§ 2, 3; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 21.]

Establishment of the grade prior to the resolution providing for the improvement is not jurisdictional, and if the grade is established at such time that the improvement may be made with reference thereto it is sufficient. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

While cost of grading cannot be assessed as part of the street improvement, yet a reasonable amount of excavating in order to prepare the surface of the street for the finished improvement may be charged as part of the cost of paving. Ibid.

Resolution: The statutory provisions relating to special assessments for sewers authorize only a levy on abutting or adjacent property. A lot derives special benefit from a sewer, whether main or lateral, when it is so situated that connection can be made therewith. Bennett v. Emmetsburg, 138–67, 115 N. W. 582.

If it is proposed to specially assess abutting property for a sewer, the resolution of necessity must so declare, and if adjacent property is to be included the resolution must describe or point it out. Ibid.

A resolution of necessity which does not set forth a statement of the material to be used, method of construction, etc., is void. Ibid.

It is not necessary to mention in the resolution of necessity, or describe, the adjacent property to be assessed. Andre v. Burlington, 141–65, 117 N. W. 1082.

All that the council is authorized to do at the meeting when the resolution of necessity is presented is to receive such resolution and fix the date at which after due notice it shall be put upon its passage. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

It is not required that all details of the materials to be used and the method and manner of their use shall be set forth in the preliminary resolution. The fact that the resolution of necessity does not specify a concrete foundation for a street pavement does not prevent the letting of a contract requiring such foundation. Ibid.

While fraud of the contractor in procuring a contract for a street improvement will vitiate the contract, yet if such fraud does not affect the preliminary action of the council and the award is to the lowest bidder there is no ground of complaint. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

The conditions of the contract are necessarily determined by the resolution of necessity, the ordinance or resolution directing the improvement, the plans and specifications adopted therefor and the published proposals and bid submitted. Fullerton v. Des Moines, 147–254, 126 N. W. 159.

It is not necessary in the resolution of necessity to specify how the cost of intersections shall be paid. Durst v. Des Moines, 150–370, 130 N. W. 168.

Where the statutes provide in detail the method of procedure in regard to street improvements an ordinance is not necessary and the city may proceed in accordance with the statutory provisions regardless of the provisions of its ordinance. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

The statute does not require that the proposed resolution and notice thereof state all the details of the contemplated improvement. The object is to apprise the public and persons interested of its general character and give them opportunity for investigation and protest. Ibid.

The statute requires the resolution of necessity to state what adjacent property is proposed to be assessed for a sewer. The purpose of the resolution is to advise the owners of property of the proposed improvement so that those whose property will be liable to assessment therefor may appear before the council and make objections thereto if they so desire. Dunker v. Des Moines, 156–292, 136 N. W. 536.

If by ordinance of the city it is provided what adjacent property may be assessed for a sewer, it is sufficient in the preliminary resolution to declare that the assessment for such sewer is to be made upon adjacent property. Dunker v. Des Moines, 142 N. W. 207.

Failure to make such publication as is required by the statute will deprive the court of jurisdiction to levy an assessment in pursuance of such proceedings unless the property owners affected are estopped by their conduct from relying upon the jurisdictional question. Those owners who become parties to the proceeding by uniting in it or coming voluntarily into it pending the execution of the work and seek to compel the due performance of the contract according to its terms are thus estopped. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1072.

Notice: Failure of the notice to correspond with the ordinances and resolutions is such a defect as to vitiate the assessment. Gallaher v. Garland, 126–206, 101 N. W. 867.

The published notice in a particular case held sufficient. Arnold v. Ft. Dodge, 111–152, 82 N. W. 495.

The statutory provisions as to special assessments must be strictly complied with. Unless the preliminary notice is given as required the council acquires no jurisdiction to act. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 137–107, 111 N. W. 1013.

The fact that the last of the four publications is on Sunday does not render the proceedings invalid. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

It is not required that the last publication of notice be twenty days before the time fixed for the consideration of the resolution. It is sufficient that the first publication is more than twenty days before the time fixed, provided the publication is completed as required. Durst v. Des Moines, 150–370, 130 N. W. 168.

Objections: Even the acceptance of the improvement by the board of public works leaves the question open to review by the city council upon the property owners' objections to the validity or correctness of the assessment. But where it appeared that by reason of failure to give opportunity for objection the assessment was invalid, nevertheless the city might proceed to give such notice and entertain objections and determine whether an assessment should be made. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1072.

The council may select for street improvement a patented article or process without rendering the assessment void. Saunders v. Iowa City, 134–132, 111 N. W. 529.

Compliance with these provisions constitutes a condition precedent to the exercise of the power to direct the pavement of the street or the laying of sewers and is jurisdictional. Shaver v. Turner Imp. Co., 155–492, 136 N. W. 711.

But exact conformity of the improvement with the street grade as established is not essential to the validity of an assessment for such improvement. Ibid.

SEC. 811. Resolution.

No particular form of expression is necessary in the resolution ordering the street improvement. If it indicates that the improvement is to be made in accordance with the resolution of necessity, that is sufficient. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127–563, 103 N. W. 800.

It is not necessary that there should be embodied in the resolution for the construction of a sewer a reference to the petition which gives the council jurisdiction to proceed in the matter where such petition otherwise appears of record. Hardwick v. Independence, 136–481, 114 N. W. 14.

Where it appeared that the council consisted of the mayor and eight aldermen and that all were present, held that compliance with this section was not shown by a record reciting that a sewer system was ordered to be established in accordance with a previous resolution of necessity by "eight votes for." Bennett v. Emmetsburg, 138–67, 115 N. W. 582.

It seems to be sufficient to record the vote upon sheets of roll-call paper specially prepared for the purpose without setting out a detailed account in the general record book. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

When the record is made to show that the resolution for the improvement is not based on the petition of the property owners, the city cannot afterwards rely upon any waiver or estoppel from a petition which may have been filed for such improvement. Bailey v. Des Moines, 157– —, 138 N. W. 853.

SEC. 812. Contract.

A valid contract in compliance with the provisions of the statute is a jurisdictional prerequisite to the exercise by the city of the power to make a special assessment on abutting property for the cost of paving. Allen v. Davenport, 132 Fed. 209.

The acceptance of curbing under a contract is vitiated by proof of fraud of the contractor in not using the amount of cement required by the contract, whereby the work done is inferior to that contracted for, and such fraud will not be waived by the action of the city authorities in accepting the curbing. Mason v. Des Moines, 108–658, 79 N. W. 389.

The fact that the contract for the work requires that all the laborers employed shall be citizens of the city does not constitute such invalidity as to defeat recovery by the contractor after the work has been performed and accepted. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

In an action to recover the reasonable value of the improvements made under a contract which is void, recovery may be had for the cost of the material and labor. Davenport v. Allen, 120 Fed. 172.

The city's right of action against the property owner for money paid to the contractor commences to run at the time such payment is made. Ibid.

Under the terms of a particular contract for laying brick paving, held that nothing but a final acceptance of the completed work would constitute a waiver of the conditions of the contract as to the material used, and therefore a failure to object during the progress of the work would not be presumed to be an approval thereof. Atkinson v. Davenport, 117–687, 84 N. W. 689.

A stipulation in the contract providing for the maintenance of the improvement in good condition for the term of five years, held not to invalidate the contract, as it was in the nature of a guaranty and not an independent contract for repairing. Osburn v. Lyons, 104–160, 73 N. W. 650.

The fact that property owners knew that the improvements in question were being made and did not object thereto, held not to constitute an estoppel against them to question the validity of the contract, it not appearing that they had knowledge of the defects therein. Ibid.

The contract may properly provide for such grading and filling as is necessary to form the subgrade for the pavement. McCain v. Des Moines, 128–331, 103 N. W. 979.

In a particular case, held that there was such failure to comply with the specifications of the contract that the special assessment was invalid. Ibid.

A contract for a street improvement is not necessarily invalid because it requires the contractor to keep the improvement in repair for a specified period. Diver v. Keokuk Sav. Bank, 126–691, 102 N. W. 542.

Provisions of the contract not authorized by statute cannot be complained of after the work has been completed, by a property owner who has made no objection under the method pointed out by statute. Ibid.

Where the city assumes liability to the contractor for the cost of street improvements such liability becomes an indebtedness within the constitutional limitation; and the contract will be invalid if the indebtedness thus incurred is in excess of the constitutional limit. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

In the performance of the work called for by a contract for street improvements, strict compliance with every term and condition of the plans and specifications with mathematical exactness may not be attainable and if the engineer or overseer to whom both parties have committed the oversight of the work, acting in good faith without fraud or collusion, approves the work in all its various stages of progress, recovery should not be denied under the contract. Ford v. Manchester, 136–213, 113 N. W. 846.

The filing of the contract with the clerk before the commencement of the work is not a jurisdictional matter. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

The question whether there has been a substantial performance of the contract on the part of the contractor is a mixed question of law and fact and a property owner cannot on appeal raise the objection that the contract has been modified unless such objection has been made before the city council. In re Mayden, 156–157, 135 N. W. 571.

While it is the duty of the board of public works to let the contract for a street improvement and superintend the work and pass upon the question of its completion according to the contract, yet proceedings preliminary to and including the passage of the resolution or ordinance are to be taken by the council. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1072.

SEC. 813. Bids—notice. All contracts for the making or reconstruction of street improvements and sewers shall be let in the name of the city, to the lowest bidder, by sealed proposals, upon giving notice for at least ten days by two publications in a newspaper published in said city, which notice shall state as nearly as practicable the extent of the work and the one or more kinds of materials for which bids will be received, when the work shall be done, the terms of payment fixed, and the time the proposals shall be acted upon; but all bids may be rejected and new bids ordered; provided, however, that if no newspaper is published within the limits of such city or town, then such notice may be given by posting the same in three public places within the limits of such city or town, two of which such places shall be the post office and the mayor's office of such city or town. All bids must be accompanied, in a separate envelope, with a certified check payable to the order of the treasurer, in a sum to be named in the notice for bids, as security that the bidder will enter into a contract for the doing of the work, and will give the bond required in the following section. All such checks, where the bid has not been accepted, shall be returned to the respective bidders. [34 G. A., ch. 42, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 40, § 2.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, § 3; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 6, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 162, § 2; 15 G. A., ch. 51, § 2.]

Under statutory provisions requiring improvements to be made by bids advertised for by the board of public works upon plans and specifications furnished by the city engineer, the plans and specifications may be sufficient, although they are not as full and complete as they might possibly be made. Jenney v. Des Moines, 103–347, 72 N. W. 550.

Where the publication of the notice for bids did not state at what time the bids would be acted on and when the work should be done and the contract as let fixed a different date for the completion of the work from that referred to in the ordinance under which the improvement was to be made, held that the contract was invalid. The statutory provisions as to the method of letting such contracts are mandatory. Osburn v. Lyons, 104–160, 73 N. W. 650.

Where a notice for bids for street improvements did not specify when the work should be done nor at what time the proposals would be acted upon, held that it was insufficient and the assessments made for such improvements were invalid. Polk v. McCartney, 104–567, 73 N. W. 1067.

Where the notice is defective in not corresponding with the ordinance and resolutions, the acceptance of bids in pursuance of such notice does not furnish a sufficient basis for an assessment. Gallaher v. Garland, 126–206, 101 N. W. 867.

The requirement that notice of the letting be given "for at least ten days by two publications" means two publications, the last of which is at least ten days before the date specified. Comstock v. Eagle Grove, 133–589, 111 N. W. 51.

The contract is not invalid because it requires specifically the doing of acts of construction, implied but not expressed in the notice, or work for which no charge is made. Ibid.

The fact that the council selects for the paving a patented article or process does not render the contract invalid. Saunders v. Iowa City, 134–132, 111 N. W. 529.

The purpose of requiring notice to bidders is to avoid favoritism, and noncompliance with the statutory requirements defeats the jurisdiction to proceed in the levy of special assessments. Bennett v. Emmetsburg, 138–67, 115 N. W. 582.

The terms of the contract must correspond substantially with the terms of the conditions made the basis for the competitive bidding. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

It is impracticable to set out all of the details in advertisements for bids. It is enough if the bidder is referred therein to the plans and specifications on file. Fullerton v. Des Moines, 147–254, 126 N. W. 159.

Where the notice refers to specifications which are sufficiently definite, the contract is not open to objection on the ground that the specifications cover separate propositions for grading. Dubbert v. Cedar Falls, 149–489, 128 N. W. 947.

It is not necessary that the plans and specifications be on file until there is an advertisement for bids. The object of such plans and specifications has reference to entering into a contract and not to advising the property owners of the nature of the proposed improvement. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

It is not necessary that the direction to the clerk to advertise for bids be by resolution. Ibid.

To justify an injunction restraining the performance of a contract for street improvements on account of fraud of the contractor, the fraud must be something affecting the letting of the contract and such fraud will not be presumed. It cannot consist in mere intention. Swan v. Indianola, 142–731, 121 N. W. 547.

Fraud in accepting bids and the letting of the contract, material and prejudicial to the city, would be a ground for defeating the assessment and the contractor could not recover in an action for quantum meruit. Ibid.

Where the lowest bid is rejected for an insufficient reason and the contract is let to a higher bidder, such action of the council constitutes constructive fraud which will sustain an injunction against the city and its officers from entering into a contract with the higher bidder. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

As the contract is dictated and formulated by the officers of the city, the city should not be allowed to take an unconscionable advantage of a mistake or oversight therein. Fullerton v. Des Moines, 147–254, 126 N. W. 159.

After relying on the performance of the terms of the contract as made, the contractor is estopped from offering to remedy defects and asking a relevy or from recovering in quantum meruit. Snouffer v. Tipton, 150–73, 129 N. W. 345.

In view of provisions found in the contract, held that a pavement laid under an improvement contract did not become the property of the city or of the abutting property owners until paid for, but that any portion of it found faulty was to be removed by the contractor. Snouffer v. Tipton, 142 N. W. 97.

Under this section as amended by 34 G. A., ch. 40, the resolution and bid may relate to one or more kinds of material proposed to be used so that the city council may, in accepting a bid and entering into a contract, select the material to be used with reference to the cost of the work constructed of such material as compared with the cost of other kinds of material contemplated in the resolution and proposed by the bidder. Miller v. Oelwein, 155–706, 136 N. W. 1045.

SEC. 814. Contractor's bond to repair. All contracts for the making or reconstruction of street improvements or sewers may contain a provision obligating the contractor and his bondsmen to keep such improvement or sewer in good repair for not less than one year after the acceptance of the same by the city, and the bond shall be so conditioned as to conform to such contract. [27 G. A., ch. 24, § 1.]

The incorporation into the contract of the provisions of this section amended with reference to keeping the improvement in repair for one year does not render the contract illegal. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

SEC. 816. Lien of tax—filing of notice. After a contract has been made by any city for the making or reconstruction of any street improvement or sewer, the clerk shall file with the auditor of the county, or each of the counties, in which said city is situated, a written or printed copy of the notice of the resolution provided for, with a true copy of the proof of publication thereof, together with a certificate of the clerk that an ordinance or resolution has been adopted directing the making or reconstruction of said street improvement or sewer. Thereupon all special taxes for the cost thereof, or any part of said cost, which are to be assessed and levied against real property, or any railway or street railway, together with all interest and penalties on all of said assessments, shall become and remain a lien on such property from the date of the filing of said papers with the county auditor until paid, and shall have precedence over all other liens except ordinary taxes, which shall not be divested by any judicial sale; but such lien for street improvements in case of abutting property shall not cover to exceed one hundred fifty feet in depth from the abutting line. Any such assessment against a railway or street railway shall be a first and paramount lien upon the track thereof within the limits of the city, provided that in all counties where taxes are collected in two or more places, no lien shall attach on any property for special taxes until on and after the notices and certificates provided for in this section have been filed in the office of the auditor in the place where said special taxes are collected. The auditor shall keep a book properly ruled for that purpose and enter thereon under its tract number all of such notices immediately following the filing of the same. [35 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, § 12; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 25, § 9; 15 G. A., ch. 51, § 3.]

Under 25 G. A., ch. 7, § 12, which provided that the assessment should be a lien upon the property abutting upon the street on which the improvement was made, it was held that the cost of street improvements could not be assessed upon a lot not abutting upon the street, no matter how nearly adjoining it might be. Smith v. Des Moines, 106–590, 76 N. W. 836.

The liens of special assessments take priority in order of time. Des Moines Brick Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 108–307, 79 N. W. 77.

A conveyance which is but an artifice and not effectual to transfer title will not relieve the property owner from liability for special assessments. Ransom v. Burlington, 111–77, 82 N. W. 427.

A special assessment for the construction of a sidewalk becomes a lien on abutting property only upon the filing with the county auditor of a copy of the record of the city council directing a construction of the walk. Cemansky v. Fitch, 121–186, 96 N. W. 754.

The lien provided for is the lien of a tax and if there be no tax levied or leviable there is and can be no lien. Therefore a contractor who has not complied with his contract in constructing a street improvement cannot recover in quantum meruit against the abutting property owners for the benefit conferred by the insufficient construction of the improvement. Snouffer v. Grove, 139–466, 116 N. W. 1056.

The lien of the assessment attaches to the parcel of land abutting on the street and not necessarily to the platted lot of which such parcel forms a part. Kneebs v. Sioux City, 156–607, 137 N. W. 944.

SEC. 817. Cost at intersections.

There is nothing to require specific reference to intersections in the proposed resolution of necessity or the notice thereof. Durst v. Des Moines, 150–370, 130 N. W. 168.

The word "improvement" as here used includes the entire work under construction on a particular street and its meaning cannot be limited to the work done directly in front of a particular parcel of ground. Perry v. Albia, 155–550, 136 N. W. 681.

Property abutting a portion of the street improved, though not at the corner of a street intersection, may be assessed for its portion of the cost of the intersection. Ibid.

The property abutting or fronting upon the street which becomes subject to the assessment is not necessarily to be determined by platted lots. Kneebs v. Sioux City, 156–607, 137 N. W. 944.

SEC. 818. Cost of improvements—how paid.

The provisions of this section, authorizing apportionment of the cost on abutting lots according to their frontage, is not unconstitutional. Hackworth v. Ottumwa, 114–467, 87 N. W. 424.

An assessment for a street improvement should be made in accordance with the front-foot rule unless the benefits are not proportional to the frontage, in which case the provisions of code § 792-a are to be applied. Des Moines U. R. Co. v. Des Moines, 140–218, 118 N. W. 293.

SEC. 819. Cost of sewers.

The cost of the sewer at street intersections and also the cost of manholes and catch basins may be taken into account in making the assessment on abutting property. Andre v. Burlington, 141–65, 117 N. W. 1082.

The fact that no outlet is provided for a sewer which is to be constructed and to be paid for by assessment on abutting and adjacent property is not a ground for enjoining the improvement. Dunker v. Des Moines, 156–292, 136 N. W. 536.

Cities have the power to construct sewers and to assess the cost thereof on the property benefited or pay such costs from the sewer district fund or from the general fund, as the city may elect. First Nat. Bank v. Emmetsburg, 157 – —, 138 N. W. 451.

SEC. 820. Assessment of cost. When the making or reconstruction of any street improvement or sewer shall have been completed, or such part thereof shall have been completed as, under the contract, is to be paid for when done, the council, or board of public works where such board exists, shall, within twenty days following the completion of the making or reconstruction of said street improvement or sewer, ascertain the cost thereof, including the cost of the estimates, notices, inspection, and preparing the assessment and plat, and shall also ascertain what portion of such cost shall be, by law and the ordinance or resolution of the council under which such street improvement was made or sewer constructed, assessable upon abutting property; and, in case of sewers, also upon adjacent property, and what portion shall be assessed upon such abutting property, and in case of sewers, upon such abutting and adjacent property, for intersections and spaces opposite property owned by the city or the United States; and the council shall then assess such portions upon and against such property as provided by law. [35 G. A., ch. 81, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, §§ 10, 21; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 5; 22 G. A., ch. 6, § 4; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 10; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 3.]

Permanent street improvements for which assessment can be made upon abutting property can be provided for only at the established grade. Improvements otherwise than at the established grade are temporary only, and assessments therefor cannot be made on property owners. Hubbell v. Bennett, 130–66, 106 N. W. 375.

Property owners cannot be heard to complain of a part of the assessment without tendering payment of the portion of the assessment which is valid. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

It is not until the completion of the work that the council is required to determine the cost and authorized to assess such cost upon abutting property. It is not contemplated that the assessment be made for the estimated cost. Sanborn v. Mason City, 114–189, 86 N. W. 286.

Statutes authorizing special assessments for improvements must be strictly construed, and when any of their substantial requirements are departed from, the proceeding is void. Gill v. Patton, 118–88, 91 N. W. 904.

If the city acts in excess of its authority in assessing abutting property for street improvements, such void assessments may be enjoined. Hubbell v. Bennett, 130–66, 106 N. W. 375.

The cost of collection should not be made a part of the assessment. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

To render special assessments when certified to the county auditor a lien upon the property, they must have been assessed in strict conformity to the statute. Fitzgerald v. Sioux City, 125–396, 101 N. W. 268.

The owner of property abutting on a street opposite and at the end of an intersecting street is not relieved from liability to an assessment by the fact that the council does not include in the provisions for assessment the expense of improving the street intersection. Millan v. Chariton, 145–648, 124 N. W. 766.

By the term "abutting property" is meant that between which and the improvement there is no intervening land. Ibid.

The expense to the city involved in the making of the improvement may be properly paid out of the general revenue of the city. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

In determining what is abutting property when an improvement passes through an unplatted tract of land belonging to a single owner, some reasonable limit should be set as to the depth of the property which should be subject to assessment. As to what such reasonable limit should be, the question must necessarily be determined by the particular facts of each case, and held proper for the court to treat the tract for this purpose as though platted with streets and alleys conforming to those already established over adjoining property. Gray v. Des Moines, 150–299, 130 N. W. 582.

This ruling is applicable to assessments for sewers where the city has only attempted to make an assessment against abutting property as distinct from adjacent property. Ibid.

This section and the preceding do no more than direct how the cost of a sewer may be paid and the tax that may be placed on abutting and adjacent property. They are supplemental to the requirement of code § 810 for the purpose of advising interested parties of the streets and alleys affected by the improvement and of the exact amount assessed against each lot or parcel of ground in the sewer district. Dunker v. Des Moines, 156–292, 136 N. W. 536.

An action of quantum meruit will not lie against a city for the value of an improvement where the contractor has failed to substantially comply with the terms of his contract. Snouffer v. Tipton, 150–73, 129 N. W. 345.

Where the contractor insisting on his right to an assessment on account of the performance of his contract litigates that question to the conclusion of an appeal in the supreme court, he is estopped from afterwards insisting on the right to remedy defects and have a reassessment. Ibid.

Where the contractor has failed to recover the contract price on account of alleged defects in the pavement and has been defeated in an action for quantum meruit, he may still remove the pavement if he can do so without injury to the street or serious inconvenience or injury to property owners. Snouffer v. Tipton, 142 N. W. 97.

SEC. 821. Plat and schedule.

The provisions of this section require that the city council shall cause to be made and file for public inspection a plat of the land on which it is proposed to levy a special assessment, showing the street lots or parcels of ground subject to assessment for the improvement. It is therefore improper to assess platted lots collectively or in pairs. Gill v. Patton, 118–88, 91 N. W. 904.

The lots or parcels of land to be charged with the special assessment are to be assessed separately and not several together. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127–563, 103 N. W. 800.

Only that portion of a lot which is subject to assessment should be considered in determining the valuation as limiting the amount for which it may be assessed. Rawson v. Des Moines, 133–514, 110 N. W. 918.

The lot or parcel of ground abutting the improved street which is to be subjected to assessment is not necessarily determined by the boundaries of platted lots. Kneebs v. Sioux City, 156–607, 137 N. W. 944.

Property is abutting when there is no intervening land between it and the street. Ibid.

SEC. 823. Notice of assessment—publication. After filing the plat and schedule, the council shall give notice by two publications in each of two newspapers published in the city, if there be that number, otherwise in one, and by handbills posted in conspicuous places along the line of such street improvement or sewer; but if no such newspaper is published within the limits of such city or town then such notice may be given by posting copies thereof in three public places within the limits of such city or town, two of which such places shall be the post office and the mayor's office of such city or town; that said plat and schedule are on file in the office of the clerk, and that within twenty days after the first publication all objections thereto, or to the prior proceedings, on account of errors, irregularities or inequalities, must be made in writing and filed with the clerk; and the council, having heard such objections and made the necessary corrections, shall then make the special assessments as shown in said plat and schedule, as corrected and approved. [34 G. A., ch. 42, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 44, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 7, §§ 11, 18; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 6; 22 G. A., ch 6, § 5; 21 G. A., ch. 168, §§ 11, 19.]

If the property owner has notice and an opportunity to be heard before the assessment attaches and becomes a lien upon his property, this is all the law requires. Arnold v. Ft. Dodge, 111–152, 82 N. W. 495.

A property owner who has had notice during the progress of the work of the grade adopted, and in accordance with whose request the grade has been modified, cannot afterwards complain that the improvement is not in accordance with the established grade. Ibid.

Proof of the posting of notice may be made by parol evidence. Owens v. Marion, 127–469, 103 N. W. 381.

A record of the special assessment resolution reciting the posting of notices as required by law is sufficient to establish such fact. Ibid.

Objections to the form of notice must be made under the provisions of code § 824. A defect as to the form will not render the proceedings void. Ibid.

Although by 28 G. A., ch. 29, the provisions of this section as to notice of special assessments are made applicable to cities under special charters, nevertheless, code § 971 on the same subject in the chapter relating to special chartered cities is not thereby repealed. Diver v. Keokuk, 126-691, 102 N. W. 542.

Under prior statutory provisions, held that a mere mistake in name of the owner to whom notice was directed would not invalidate the assessment. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112-300, 83 N. W. 1074.

Objections not made to the city council before the hearing cannot by subsequent amendment be brought before the district court. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141-4, 119 N. W. 276.

Even though the notice is defective, if it accomplishes its purpose and the property owner is not prejudiced by reason of any defect therein, the jurisdiction of the council cannot be questioned on account of such defect. Andre v. Burlington, 141-65, 117 N. W. 1082.

It is only when the duty of the board of public works has been performed by approving the work and making a schedule of the proposed assessments and filing the same with the city council that it becomes the duty of the latter body to give notice and opportunity for objections by persons conceiving themselves aggrieved. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157- —, 137 N. W. 1072.

One who, having proper notice of a special assessment, fails to resort to the statutory remedy for the purpose of correcting error in such assessment, cannot have relief in equity. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Lindquist, 119-144, 93 N. W. 103.

The legislature having provided a tribunal for the determination of all controversies growing out of special assessments, a party complaining of such assessment must resort to that tribunal for the correction of all errors, irregularities or inequalities in the assessment itself or in any of the prior proceedings or notices, in the absence of fraud or of such a showing as deprives the tribunal of the right to act. Without resorting to such tribunal the property owner cannot complain of a defective notice. Owens v. Marion, 127-469, 103 N. W. 381.

Failure to appear before the city council and object to the making of a contract for improvements does not waive the right to enjoin a special assessment if defects in the proceedings are such as to render the assessment void. Gallaher v. Garland, 126-206, 101 N. W. 867.

The property owner is not bound to make any tender for benefits received in resisting the enforcement of a special assessment which is void. Ibid.

Complaints as to irregularities in the assessment of benefits as against a street railway company must be made before the city council, and must be specific as to the objection insisted upon. Marshalltown Light, P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127-637, 103 N. W. 1005.

Defects in the contract rendering it voidable and not void must be taken advantage of by a property owner by filing objections. No objection having been interposed until the work is performed, the property owner cannot complain. Diver v. Keokuk Sav. Bank, 126-691, 102 N. W. 542.

The errors and irregularities which are cured by failure to make objection as specified in the statute are such as the council might cure if attention were called thereto. Jurisdictional defects in the proceedings are not thus cured. Comstock v. Eagle Grove, 133-589, 111 N. W. 51.

Where the improvement is unauthorized and the tax void, the property owner complaining thereof is not bound to appear before the council to make objections but may proceed in equity to have the enforcement enjoined. Carter v. Cemansky, 126-506, 102 N. W. 438.

One who resists the enforcement of a special assessment against his property is not estopped from doing so by the fact that an installment of such assessment has been paid by one under whom he claims title. Ibid.

Failure of a property owner to object before the council to the character of the work does not estop him from insisting, in resistance to the payment of the special assessment, that the contractor has not complied with his contract. Wingert v. Tipton, 134-97, 108 N. W. 1035; 111 N. W. 432.

Objections not properly raised cannot be considered. Camp v. Davenport, 151-33, 130 N. W. 137.

The objection that the assessment exceeds twenty-five per cent. of the value of the property is one which should be presented to the council. Durst v. Des Moines, 150-370, 130 N. W. 168.

Jurisdictional defects are not waived by failure to appear and object to an assessment or failure to appeal from an order of the council adopting an assessment resolution. Bennett v. Emmetsburg, 138-67, 115 N. W. 582.

Where the property owner appears before the city council pursuant to notice and files objection to proceedings of the council he is limited both upon his appeal to the district court and to the supreme court to such objections as he filed with the council, save where fraud is shown or where it appears that the council acted without jurisdiction. Andre v. Burlington, 141-65, 117 N. W. 1082.

Objection on account of mere error or irregularity in the assessment must be raised by objection to the city council. Ibid.

Property owners who appear before the council and make objections and do not appeal from the adverse decision of the council are estopped from afterwards questioning the assessment or maintaining an action to enforce its collection unless it appears that the council was wholly without jurisdiction. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

Action of the council in increasing the width of a pavement after letting the contract, if erroneous or irregular, must be questioned by objection and appeal and not in a proceeding to enjoin the collection of the assessment. Ibid.

Where the city has jurisdiction to order an improvement the property owner may estop himself by his own conduct or concessions from denying the sufficiency or validity of the proceedings which he has himself invoked and upon the assumed regularity of which he has himself acted and induced others to act. Clifton Land Co. v. Des Moines, 144–625, 123 N. W. 340.

Save where the order or proceedings sought to be enjoined is absolutely void, a special remedy created by statute is exclusive as to all controversies coming within its scope and if a party to whom such remedy is given fails to take advantage of it he cannot resort to equity. Ibid.

Objections which might have been interposed before the council and considered on appeal are waived if not thus presented and do not furnish a ground for enjoining the enforcement of the assessment. Only those objections which go to the jurisdiction of the council to proceed can be presented in an action to enjoin the levy of an assessment for the improvement as made. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

Where the preliminary proceedings are such as to authorize the council to proceed to the letting of a contract, a taxpayer who has made no objection to the proceedings cannot enjoin the levy of an improvement tax to meet the cost of the excess beyond the assessments which may be levied on abutting property. Dubbert v. Cedar Falls, 149–489, 128 N. W. 947.

The objection that the improvement does not exactly conform with the established grade of the street is one which should be interposed by the property owner and cannot be made a ground for enjoining an assessment. Shaver v. Turner Imp. Co., 155–492, 136 N. W. 711.

The question whether the variance between the improvement as constructed and that provided for in the preliminary proceedings is sufficient to invalidate the assessment is a proper matter of inquiry for the city council and the mere fact of such variance without regard to its materiality and extent does not deprive the council of jurisdiction to make the assessment, the remedy of the property owners being by petition before the council and appeal from its action. Cheney v. Ft. Dodge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 549.

Where it appears that the improvement has been made in a manner which might have been authorized, the availability of such improvement as constructed for future use in connection with the property may be taken into account in determining whether the amount of assessment exceeds the benefits to the property relative to such future use, but a mere departure in plan not affecting the substantial character of the improvement and not rendering the contract under which it was made invalid, will not justify an annulment of the assessment in toto. Ibid.

SEC. 825. Levy of assessment—installments. The special assessments made in said plat and schedule, as corrected and approved, shall be levied at one time, by ordinance or resolution, against the property abutting on such street improvement or sewer, and, in case of sewers, upon adjacent property, and, when levied and certified, shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer. If the owner of any lot or parcel of land or railway or street railway, the assessment against which is embraced in any bond or certificate provided for in chapter eight of this title, shall, within thirty days from the date of such assessment, promise and agree in writing, indorsed on such bond or certificate, or in a separate agreement, that, in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments, he will not make any objection of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment or levy of such tax upon and against his property, and will pay said assessment with interest thereon at such rate, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, as shall by ordinance or resolution of the council be prescribed, such tax so levied against the lot or parcel of land or railway or street railway of such owner shall be payable in seven equal installments, the first of which, with interest on the whole assessment from date of acceptance of the work by the city council, shall mature and be payable on the date of such assessment, and the others, with interest on the whole amount unpaid, annually thereafter, at the same time and in the same manner as the March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes; but where no such promise and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any lot or parcel of land or railway or street railway within said time, then the whole of said special assessment so levied upon and against the property of such owner shall mature at one time, and be due and payable, with interest from the date of acceptance of the work by the city council, on the date of such assessment, and shall be collected at the next succeeding March semiannual payment of ordinary taxes. All such taxes with interest shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after their maturity, and shall bear the same interest, with the same penalties, as ordinary taxes. [35 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, §§ 11–20; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 7; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 12; 20 G. A., ch. 20, §§ 3, 6; 20 G. A., ch. 25, § 9; 17 G. A., ch. 162, § 3.]

Under the provision by which the owner of the property may by waiving objections to assessments have the right to pay in installments, a lessee is not such owner as to be entitled to file a waiver and thus make the assessment payable in installments. So held where a tenant under obligation to pay all taxes and assessments imposed on the property during the term of the lease attempted by signing a waiver to make the assessment payable in installments and thus escape liability for installments which would under such arrangements not become payable during his term. Vorse v. Des Moines Marble & Mantel Co., 104–541, 73 N. W. 1064.

The certifying of the assessment to the auditor is not a duty enjoined, but a right conferred, and its exercise is discretionary. Talcott v. Noel, 107–470, 78 N. W. 39.

A resolution or ordinance making a special assessment may be proven by parol evidence. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

The council has no authority to include the expense of collecting the special assessment in the assessment itself which is levied on the property. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

Where the vendor in a contract to convey had been subjected to special assessments which it was presumed had materially increased the value of his property, and on that ground resisted specific performance of his contract, held that the validity of the assessments could not be inquired into, such owner having waived any question as to their validity. King v. Raab, 123–632, 99 N. W. 306.

When it is sought to charge a property owner for the cost of works of public improvement, the power must be exercised strictly in the manner prescribed by law, and if by ordinance and resolution notice is specified as a condition for the levying of such special tax, the council has no jurisdiction to impose a tax unless the notice is given as required. Zalesky v. Cedar Rapids, 118–714, 92 N. W. 657.

Although the resolution levying the special tax does not specify the names of owners and description of their lots, yet if it makes reference to a plat and schedule previously filed which is approved, and which contains sufficient specifications, it is not objectionable. Higman v. Sioux City, 129–291, 105 N. W. 524.

A motion to reconsider the resolution adopting a pavement having been sustained by a majority vote of the council, held that there was no valid approval. Wingert v. Tipton, 134–97, 108 N. W. 1035, 111 N. W. 432.

Where a strip along one side of a street was vacated by ordinance, but abutting owners were not compensated and such portion of the street was not actually separated from the other portion, held that the vacation was not effectual so that the owners of property abutting on the vacated portion of the street ceased to be abutting owners for purposes of assessment for street improvement. Sutton v. Mentzer, 154–1, 134 N. W. 108.

Assessments are to be levied against property abutting on the street at the time the assessment is made. Ordinarily this is platted into lots but in the necessities of use, this may be subdivided or blocks or unplatted tracts may be found to be abutting. The term "parcel" may be applied to a part or subdivision of a lot as well as to some portion of a block or tract of other description. Kneebs v. Sioux City, 156–607, 137 N. W. 944.

Any interest and penalties collected by the county treasurer on paving certificates should be paid over to the holder of the certificates. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Webster County, 143–255, 121 N. W. 1072.

The city is liable to a contractor for interest on assessments or assessment certificates during the time he is delayed in receiving such assessments or assessment certificates through the negligence of the city. Turner Imp. Co. v. Des Moines, 155–592, 136 N. W. 656.

SEC. 829. Sale for assessment.

Where a special assessment is enforced by action by a private person only six per cent. interest can be collected. Des Moines Brick Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 108–307, 79 N. W. 77.

Where special assessments are certified for collection, the property owner is not required to pay interest or penalty, except as provided in the special assessment statutes. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

One who has paid taxes which he claims to have been unlawfully assessed by the city cannot recover back the money paid, unless it appears that there was no authority to assess the tax, that the money sued for has been actually received by the city, and that the payment was upon compulsion. Hawkeye L. & B. Co. v. Marion, 110–468, 81 N. W. 718.

A roadbed or right of way, or other property so connected with the operation of a railway as that its loss by conveyance or sale would necessarily dismember and break up the entirety and utility of the road as a line of travel and commercial intercourse, should not be sold for a special assessment thereon. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Lindquist, 119–144, 93 N. W. 103.

Whether the roadbed of a railway company, constructed through property to which the company has a fee simple title, may be sold for special assessments on such property for the improvement of abutting streets, quaere. But the portion of such premises not used for railroad purposes may be sold for such assessments, like any other property. Ibid.

Where a special tax has not become a lien on property in such sense that the property could be sold therefor at the time of sale for general taxes, the lien of the special tax is not effectual as against the purchaser at the sale. Harrington v. Valley Sav. Bank, 119–312, 93 N. W. 347.

Under a void assessment the certificate holder is not entitled to recover on quantum meruit for benefits conferred on the owner of the property by the improvement. Carter v. Cemansky, 126–506, 102 N. W. 438.

Special assessments not certified or brought forward so as that they constitute a lien on the property at the time of the tax sale and not included in such sale are cut off so far as the tax purchaser is concerned. Fitzgerald v. Sioux City, 125–396, 101 N. W. 268.

The payment of a tax collected on a special assessment into the hands of the treasurer operates to that extent to discharge the obligation of the city to the contractor and the property owners who have paid such special assessment cannot enjoin the county treasurer from paying over to the certificate holder the taxes which have thus been paid. First Nat. Bank v. Kelly, 139 N. W. 564.

SEC. 830. Levy for city improvement fund.

The city improvement fund out of which deficiencies in the special assessment for street improvements may be paid is the fund provided for in code § 894 to cover costs at street intersections and similar places. Corey v. Ft. Dodge, 133–666, 111 N. W. 6.

The incorporation into the contract of the provision that the cost of any portion of the improvement which cannot be assessed against abutting property shall be paid out of the city improvement fund, without further liability on the part of the city held not to render the contract illegal. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

When the notice and contract have fixed terms, such as the statute itself authorizes, the contract is sufficiently specific although it reserves an option to the city to pay the costs above the assessment on abutting property in cash or out of the city improvement fund. Dubbert v. Cedar Falls, 149–489, 128 N. W. 947.

SEC. 831. Levy for sewer fund.

A district sewer tax is enforceable only against the real property within the sewer district. Therefore it cannot be enforced as against a railroad company which is taxed under code § 1336 on its real and personal property collectively. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Phillips, 111–377, 82 N. W. 787.

SEC. 832. Cost of repairs.

The expense of repairing may be paid out of the general fund or the improvement fund. Shelby v. Burlington, 125–343, 101 N. W. 101.

SEC. 833. Assessments not to be diverted.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to compel a city to perform its duty as trustee to collect and properly apply such assessments. Vickrey v. Sioux City, 104 Fed. 164.

A city which has issued bonds to be paid for by the collection of special assessments is a trustee, charged with the duty of collecting and applying such assessments, and equity has jurisdiction over a suit by the holder of such bonds to require an accounting in respect to such trust and for the enforcement of the same. Farson v. Sioux City, 106 Fed. 278.

SEC. 834. Assessments on railways and street railways.

This section has reference to assessment of railways and street railways for the improvement of streets occupied by their tracks, and not to assessment of special taxes upon right of way abutting upon the street improvement. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112–300, 83 N. W. 1074.

This section is applicable to street improvements undertaken in pursuance of authority conferred by the code. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

When the contractor has agreed to take certificates in payment for his work in paving a street, and the city, having authority to assess the entire amount upon abutting property, improperly issues certificates against the street railway company for a share of the expense, which certificates are invalid, it becomes liable to the contractor for the amount of the invalid certificates. Ibid.

A provision in a franchise exempting a street railway company from any requirement to pave except as provided therein does not constitute a contract on which the company may rely as against subsequent provisions with regard to assessing the expense of a street improvement in part upon the property of the company thus occupying such street. Marshalltown Light, P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127–637, 103 N. W. 1005.

The company may be required to pave not less but a greater width than required by statute and the city is not bound by any ordinance on the subject existing at the time of the enactment of this section but may enact a new ordinance fixing the portion of the street which the railway company may be required to pave. Des Moines City R. Co. v. Des Moines, 152–18, 131 N. W. 43.

SEC. 835. Cost of paving already laid. Before any street railway company shall lay its track upon any street that has been paved, and which at the time is not being repaved, it shall pay into the city treasury the value of all paving between its tracks, and one foot outside thereof, which value shall be determined by the city council, but in no case shall exceed the original cost of the paving, and the money thus paid shall be refunded to the abutting property owners on said street in proportion to the amounts originally assessed against the property abutting thereon. The company or any person affected by or interested in such determination of the value of such pavement may appeal therefrom to the district court within thirty days thereafter and in the manner provided in section eight hundred thirty-nine of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 32.]

There is no provision for recovery by the city of any sum which is not to be apportioned among the property holders. The city is not entitled to recover in its own right unless it is an abutting property holder. Oskaloosa v. Oskaloosa T. & L. Co., 141–236, 119 N. W. 736.

A street car company whose right in the streets has been fully and completely forfeited is in no sense an abutting owner so as to be entitled to compensation for pavement laid between its rails. Ibid.

The provisions in the amendment to this section for appeal from the assessment so far as applicable to an assessment made prior to the taking effect of the amendment relate only to the value of the pavement and not to the fixing of the liability of the street car company to the persons entitled to recover under the statute. Ibid.

SEC. 836. Relevy—schedule. When by reason of nonconformity to any law or ordinance, or by reason of any omission, informality or irregularity, any special tax or assessment hereafter levied is invalid, or is adjudged illegal, or in case of deficiencies, the council shall have the power to correct the same by resolution or ordinance, and may reassess and relevy the same, as also an amount to make up such deficiencies, with the same force and effect as if done at the proper time, in the proper amount, and in the manner provided by law or by the resolution or ordinance relating thereto. Whenever any such special tax or assessment, upon property not by law exempt therefrom, shall have been heretofore or shall be hereafter adjudged to be void for any jurisdictional defect, and the city adjudged liable to pay the same, the city council shall as to such property have power, by resolution or ordinance, to cause to be prepared a schedule and proposed reassessment in proportion to and not in excess of benefits, and to cause notice thereof to be given, and to hear objections thereto and make necessary corrections, as provided by section eight hundred twenty-three of the code, as amended by chapter forty-two of the laws of the thirty-fourth general assembly; and thereupon the council shall reassess and relevy such special tax or special assessment as so corrected, with the same force and effect as if jurisdiction had been acquired in the first instance, and all subsequent proceedings had been regularly and legally had. [35 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.] [22 G. A., ch. 6, § 7; 22 G. A., ch. 44, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 20, § 3.]

An irregularity in an assessment does not affect the jurisdiction of the city in the proceeding, and may be cured. Ottumwa Brick & Const. Co. v. Ainley, 109–386, 80 N. W. 510.

Where a special assessment has been adjudged illegal because of some defect in the proceedings not going to the jurisdiction or power of the city to act in the premises, the legislature may, by general or special statute, provide for reassessment, but where the validity of an assessment has been finally determined by proceedings in court, the legislature cannot by subsequent action give validity to such assessment. McManus v. Hornaday, 124–267, 100 N. W. 33.

The statutory provision for reassessment is applicable where a valid assessment might have been made in the first place, but it does not authorize an assessment for the benefits conferred by the improvement where the contractor is not entitled to compensation under the contract. Crawford v. Mason, 123–301, 98 N. W. 795.

Where a legal assessment might have been made a reassessment is authorized. Martin v. Oskaloosa, 126–680, 102 N. W. 529.

There may be a relevy of a special assessment, even after the original levy of such assessment has been declared invalid by action in court. Gill v. Patton, 118–88, 91 N. W. 904.

These provisions have no application where an essential requisite of jurisdiction to impose an assessment has been omitted, such as the giving of notice, as required by ordinance and resolution. Zalesky v. Cedar Rapids, 118–714, 92 N. W. 657.

Where a portion of the improvement for which an assessment is made in bulk is without authority the collection of such assessment may be enjoined and the only method for the assessment on abutting property of the portion of the expense which is for a valid improvement is by relevy. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

Where the original assessment was erroneous because abutting property was assessed according to area for a depth of more than one hundred fifty feet, instead of setting aside the assessment on appeal and allowing the council to relevy the proper tax, the court modified the assessment and reached the same practical result. Hedge v. Des Moines, 141–4, 119 N. W. 276.

Where the contractor for a street improvement has insisted that his contract has been fully performed and that he is entitled to an assessment and has litigated that question in an appeal to the supreme court, he cannot afterwards, by offering to remedy the defects in the work, become entitled to an assessment or to recover quantum meruit unless there is some provision to that effect in his contract. By reliance on performance and putting the city and the property owners to the expense of litigating that question he is estopped from afterwards offering to carry out the terms of the contract. Snouffer v. Tipton, 150–73, 129 N. W. 345.

SEC. 839. Appeal.

On the appeal the court has no power to make an entirely new assessment. Berry v. Des Moines, 115–44, 87 N. W. 747.

The provisions of this section are limited to assessment proceedings under the provisions of the code. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

Where the assessment is made without any authority, then the property owner can enjoin the enforcement of the assessment without resorting to the remedy by appeal. Ibid.

One who might by appeal have an error in a special assessment corrected, cannot ask relief in equity. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Lindquist, 119–144, 93 N. W. 103.

If the assessment is void for want of jurisdiction of the city council to act, the objection need not be raised before the council nor by appeal; but if defective only on account of irregularities or erroneous judgment on the part of the council, objection and appeal are the only remedies. Owens v. Marion, 127–469, 103 N. W. 381.

The court is authorized to determine on appeal whether the assessment made is just and equitable and bears some reasonable proportion to the benefits which the property derives from the improvement. If the assessment is clearly inequitable the court should exercise the authority given it to make such an assessment as should have been made or remand the matter to the council with directions as to its duty in the premises. Early v. Ft. Dodge, 136–187, 113 N. W. 766.

A property owner who makes objection before the council and does not appeal from its action is estopped afterwards from questioning the validity of the assessment save on the ground that the council was wholly without jurisdiction. Nixon v. Burlington, 141–316, 115 N. W. 239.

Where jurisdiction over the proceedings has once attached, a defect or omission subsequently occurring and for which the statutory appeal furnishes ample remedy cannot be made an equitable ground for injunction. The exclusive remedy is by objection to the council and appeal. Clifton Land Co. v. Des Moines, 144–625, 123 N. W. 340.

The regularity and sufficiency of the initial steps in the ordering of the work and making the assessment must be questioned in the method pointed out, and cannot be made the basis of an action to enjoin the assessment of the costs after the work has been completed. Any objections not thus made are waived. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

The objection that the assessment exceeds twenty-five per cent. of the value of the property is one which should be made to the city council and prosecuted on an appeal from its action and cannot be made the basis of an original proceeding by injunction to defeat the assessment. Durst v. Des Moines, 150–370, 130 N. W. 168.

The propriety or necessity of making the improvement, no fraud being charged, cannot be reviewed in the courts. Camp v. Davenport, 151–33, 130 N. W. 137.

Objection to a modification of the contract for the improvement must be made before the city council. In re Mayden, 156–157, 135 N. W. 571.

Objection to a variance between the improvement as constructed and that provided for in the preliminary proceedings should be presented to the city council and by appeal from its action, and will not be a ground for setting aside the assessment as without jurisdiction in a collateral attack. Cheney v. Ft. Dodge, 157– —, 138 N. W. 549.

SEC. 840-a. Sewers—certain statutes applicable to towns. That chapter thirty-one of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That all of the provisions of sections seven hundred ninety-two to section eight hundred forty-nine inclusive, of chapters seven and eight of title five of the code and that subdivision three of section eight hundred ninety-four of the code granting to cities of the first and second classes the power to construct sanitary sewers and assess the cost of the same to the real property abutting on, adjacent to or benefited by such sewers, and providing for a tax on the assessed valuation of all property therein when the entire city comprises one sewer district, shall be applicable and apply to incorporated towns." [31 G. A., ch. 24; 30 G. A., ch. 31.]

SEC. 840-b. Main sewer fund. Any city of the first class shall have power to levy annually a tax not exceeding five mills on the dollar on the assessed valuation of all property therein, for a main sewer fund, to be used to pay the whole or any part of the cost of the making, reconstruction or repair of any main sewer within the limits of the city. [31 G. A., ch. 26, § 1.]

SEC. 840-c. Terms defined. A "main sewer" as referred to in this act shall be held to mean any sewer that is commonly referred to by any one of the following terms: "intercepting sewer, out-fall sewer, or trunk sewer." [31 G. A., ch. 26, § 2.]

SEC. 840-d. Statutes applicable—main sewer assessments may cover entire drainage area. The provisions of chapter seven, of title five of the code shall be applicable to providing for the making, reconstruction or repair of main sewers, the whole or any part of the cost of the making, reconstruction or repair of which shall be ordered paid from the main sewer fund herein provided for, to the same extent and in the same manner as the provisions of said chapter seven, of title five, of the code are now applicable to providing for the making, reconstruction or repair of sewers, the whole or any part of the cost of the making, reconstruction or repair of which may be ordered paid from the city sewer fund. In addition to the foregoing powers, cities, including cities under special charters, shall have the power to assess the whole or any part of the cost of the construction of any main sewer or system of main sewers to the respective lots, tracts or parcels of ground as adjacent property which are included within a district to be fixed by the council, which may include all territory within the drainage area of such main sewer or main sewer system. And all such lots, tracts or parcels of ground which are subject to be furnished with sewer connection or drained by such main sewers or main sewer system shall be considered as adjacent property; provided this act shall not apply to cities having a population of more than forty-seven thousand. [35 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 26, § 3.]

SEC. 840-e. Main sewer certificates or bonds—statutes applicable. The provisions of chapter twelve, of title five, of the code shall be applicable to taxes authorized to be levied for the main sewer fund. Certificates or bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes authorized to be levied for the main sewer fund shall be denominated main sewer certificates or main sewer bonds. [31 G. A., ch. 26, § 4.]

SEC. 840-f. Aggregate tax for all sewer funds. The aggregate tax levied by any city of the first class in any one year for a city sewer fund, a district sewer fund, and a main sewer fund, shall not exceed eight mills on the dollar on the assessed valuation of all the property therein. [31 G. A., ch. 26, § 5.]

SEC. 840-g. Sewer outlets and purifying plants—tax levy authorized. That the law as it appears in chapter forty-one of the laws of the thirty-second general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted as a substitute therefor, to wit:

"Cities of the second class and towns shall have the power to levy annually a tax of not to exceed three mills on the dollar to be used solely for the purpose of constructing outlets and purifying plants for sewers. The levy made under this act shall not be considered a part of the levy made for a sewer fund under provisions of the law as it appears in paragraph three of section eight hundred ninety-four of the supplement to the code, 1907. The tax herein authorized may be anticipated by issuing certificates or bonds, as provided by section nine hundred twelve of the code." [33 G. A., ch. 54, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF STREET IMPROVEMENT AND SEWER BONDS AND CERTIFICATES.

SECTION 841. Certificates issued.

Where a contractor agrees to take certificates in full payment for the work done, and the city, having authority to assess the entire cost on abutting property and issue certificates therefor to the contractor, attempts to issue illegal certificates for a portion of the amount against a street railway company not liable for the payment of any portion of the assessment, the city is bound to pay to the contractor the amount of the illegal certificates. Ft. Dodge Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 115–568, 89 N. W. 7.

The contractor by accepting the illegal certificates does not preclude himself from remedy against the city, inasmuch as he is not bound to know that the necessary steps to render the certificates valid and binding have been taken. Ibid.

The city is liable to the contractor for assessment certificates which have been improperly issued by it against property subject to assessment for the improvement. Iowa Pipe & Tile Co. v. Callanan, 125–358, 101 N. W. 141.

The city is not liable to a contractor on certificates which are invalid because proper steps have not been taken in ordering the improvement for which the certificates are issued. The contract with the contractor being invalid, no liability under the certificates arises. Citizens' Bank v. Spencer, 126–101, 101 N. W. 643.

Action against the city on implied contract is barred after five years from the time of the making of the improvement. Ibid.

The county treasurer being required to pay special assessments collected on account of city improvements to the holders of improvement certificates and not to the city, cannot retain the collection fee authorized in case of taxes collected for a city. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Woodbury County, 137–287, 114 N. W. 1044.

SEC. 842. Bonds.

Where the city by contract has rendered itself liable for the cost of street improvements, bonds to cover such cost will be invalid if in excess of the constitutional limit. Allen v. Davenport, 107–90, 77 N. W. 532.

Where the statutes of the state and the ordinances of the city under which the bonds were issued, and the recitals of the bonds themselves do not limit the right of recovery of the bond holder to a specific fund, the bonds are to be deemed an indebtedness of the city. Vickrey v. Sioux City, 115 Fed. 437.

SEC. 847. Bonds paid.

In equity the bond holder has the right to call upon the city to employ for his protection every power and right a city can exercise to levy and collect from the property benefited by the improvement the cost thereof which is in fact and in truth represented by the bonds issued. Burlington Sav. Bank v. Clinton, 111 Fed. 439.

CHAPTER 8-A.

OF PROTECTION OF CITY PROPERTY FROM FLOODS.

SECTION 849-a. Protection authorized. That in addition to the powers they now have all cities and towns in this state shall have power in accordance with the provisions of this act to protect lots, lands and property within their limits from danger and damage from floods and high water by deepening, widening, straightening, altering or changing and otherwise improving watercourses within their limits, and by constructing levees, embankments and other works, and to provide for the levy of special assessments and other taxes and the issuance of bonds and certificates to defray the expense of such improvements. [33 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 1.]

SEC. 849-b. Petition—plans and specifications. Whenever a petition requesting the exercise of the powers named in section one of this act, and signed by one hundred resident taxpayers of said city or twenty-five resident taxpayers of said town shall be presented to the council of said city or town, the council shall direct the city engineer, if there is one, and if not, one employed by it, to make the proper plans and specifications for doing the work, with an estimate of the cost thereof, including damages to property if any, and a map or plat showing the boundaries of the territory or district which will be benefited by such improvement, and showing as near as may be the name of the owner and the value of each lot or parcel of land, and other property therein as shown by the last assessment roll. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 2].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 2.]

SEC. 849-c. Resolution—notice—hearing—question submitted. If the council upon receiving such plans, specifications, estimate and map shall approve or modify and approve the same and be of opinion that the work should be done as proposed, it shall in a proposed resolution declare the necessity or advisability of such improvement, describing the same in general terms and stating the estimated cost thereof, and the boundaries or other description of the territory or district which will be benefited, and shall cause twenty days' notice of the time when said resolution will be considered by it for passage to be given by two publications in each daily newspaper of general circulation published in the city or town, the last of which publications shall be not less than two or more than four weeks prior to the time fixed for consideration of said resolution; or in case there be no daily newspaper published in said city or town, then by publication in one or more weekly newspapers published within said city or town once each week for two consecutive weeks, or in towns where there are no newspapers published by posting in five public places for four weeks, at which time the owners of property benefited or affected by such improvement may appear and make objections in writing to the contemplated improvement and the passage of said proposed resolution, at which hearing the resolution may be amended and passed or passed as proposed. The council shall after adopting said resolution submit to the electors of said city or town for final determination the question of whether said improvement shall be made as proposed, and of levying for that purpose a special tax of not more than four mills in case of cities and ten mills in case of towns in any one year, in addition to all other taxes now provided by law. If the council shall determine that the estimated cost is greater than should be levied and collected in a single year, it may fix the yearly proportion and determine in what years the same shall be levied and collected. The percentage or rate of tax levied on property within the territory or district benefited by such improvement shall be double the percentage or rates levied upon property outside such territory or district. The council shall provide by resolution or ordinance the time of submitting the question to a vote. Said question shall be submitted either at the general city election, or at a special election, or at the general November election in the manner provided by law. When said question is to be voted upon at the general November election the county auditor shall cause the same to be printed on the official ballot to be voted at the several precincts within said city and the returns shall be certified by the auditor to the city council. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 3].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 3.]

SEC. 849-d. Contracts. If the majority of the votes cast on such proposition shall be in favor of the same the council may by ordinance or resolution order the making or construction of such improvement and thereupon the council, or board of public works where such board exists, shall contract for furnishing labor and material and for the making or construction either of the entire improvement in one contract or in separate and specified sections. Such contract or contracts shall be made as nearly as may be in the manner provided for contracting for street improvements in sections eight hundred twelve, eight hundred thirteen, eight hundred fourteen and eight hundred fifteen of the code and acts amendatory thereof. [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 4.]

SEC. 849-e. Levy of tax—placed on tax list. As soon as may be after such improvement or specified section thereof has been contracted for, the council, or board of public works, where such board exists, shall ascertain as near as may be the cost thereof, including cost of property purchased or appropriated for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act and including the costs of plans, specifications, estimates, notices, inspection and preparing plats, schedules and assessments, and thereupon the council shall by resolution levy the whole of said cost at one time as a special tax, of not more than four mills in case of cities or ten mills in case of towns in any one year, upon all taxable property within said city or town and upon all taxable property within the territory or district benefited by such improvement, and shall determine the whole percentage of tax necessary to pay the same and the percentage to be paid each year, and the number of years, not exceeding ten, given for maturity of each installment thereof. But such percentage of tax and such number of years shall not exceed the percentage of tax and the number of years authorized under the provisions of section three of this act, but no part of said cost shall be levied upon property owned by the city or town, the state or the United States, and the percentage or rate levied upon property within the territory or district benefited by such improvement shall be double the percentage or rate levied upon property outside such territory or district. Certificates of such levies shall be filed with the auditor of the county in which the city is located, setting forth the boundaries of the territory or district benefited by such improvement and the amount or percentage and maturity of said tax, or each installment thereof, upon the assessed valuation of all property in said city and upon the assessed valuation of all property within said territory or district benefited, certified as correct by the city clerk and thereupon said tax shall be placed upon the tax list of the proper county. The proceeds of such tax shall be kept as a separate fund and shall be used for the purpose of paying for the cost of said improvement or in paying bonds and certificates issued thereupon and for no other purpose whatsoever. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 4].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 5.]

SEC. 849-f. Diversion of stream. Whenever in making such improvement a stream shall be diverted from its old channel or any part thereof, the city or town shall have and may exercise in respect thereto all the powers named in sections eight hundred and two and eight hundred and three of the code. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 5].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 6.]

SEC. 849-g. Purchase or condemnation of private property. Said cities or towns may also purchase or condemn and appropriate so much private property as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and the cost thereof shall be included in and paid as a part of the cost of said improvement. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 6].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 7.]

SEC. 849-h. Bonds and assessment certificates. Any city or town constructing any improvement authorized by this act may issue bonds and assessment certificates in anticipation of any special tax or special assessment; said bonds and certificates shall be issued and sold in accordance with and be governed by the provisions of sections eight hundred forty-one, eight hundred forty-two, eight hundred forty-three, eight hundred forty-four, eight hundred forty-five, eight hundred forty-six and eight hundred forty-seven of the code and acts amendatory thereof. [33 G. A., ch. 55, [§ 7].] [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 8.]

SEC. 849-i. Costs—how paid. The entire cost of constructing any improvement authorized by this act and any bonds or certificates issued in anticipation thereof shall be paid out of the special taxes and special assessments authorized by this act and no part of said cost or of any such bond or certificate shall ever be a charge upon or paid out of any other fund or the proceeds of any other assessment, tax or levy. [30 G. A., ch. 33, § 9.]

SEC. 849-j. Bonds—limitation of indebtedness. That cities of the first class, including cities acting under the commission plan of government, having more than twenty-four thousand population are hereby authorized to contract indebtedness and to issue bonds for the purpose of protecting the lots, lands and property within their limits from danger and damage from floods and high water by deepening, widening, straightening, altering or changing and otherwise improving watercourses within their limits and by constructing levees, embankments and other works. Such bonds shall be payable in not exceeding twenty annual installments and bear interest at not exceeding five per centum per annum, and shall be made payable at such place and be of such form as the city council shall, by ordinance, designate; but no city shall become indebted in excess of five per centum of the actual value of the taxable property of said city as shown by the last preceding assessment roll. [35 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.]

SEC. 849-k. Additional power to certain cities. This act shall be construed as granting additional power without limiting the power already existing in cities of the first class including cities acting under the commission plan of government. [35 G. A., ch. 86, § 2.]

CHAPTER 9.

OF PARK COMMISSIONERS AND BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

SECTION 850. Repeal. That sections eight hundred fifty to eight hundred sixty-two of the code inclusive and sections eight hundred fifty to eight hundred sixty-two of the supplement to the code [1902] inclusive and amendments thereto be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:[1] [32 G. A., ch. 42, § 1.]

[1]The substituted sections are §§ 850-a to 850-n inclusive. EDITOR.]

SEC. 850-a. Park commissioners—election—appointment. There shall be elected at the regular municipal election in each city containing a population of forty thousand or over, and all other cities and towns may, by ordinance, provide for the election of three park commissioners whose terms of office shall be six years, one to be elected at each regular municipal election, but at the first election three shall be elected and hold their offices respectively for two, four and six years, their respective terms to be decided by lot and their successors shall be elected for the full term of six years; provided however that in all cities and towns not now having park commissioners the ordinance establishing such park commissioners shall not be in force until it has been submitted to the voters at a special or regular municipal election and approved by a majority of the votes cast at such election. In the event that such ordinance is approved by a majority of the votes cast at such election, the city council shall have the power to appoint three park commissioners to hold such office until the next regular city election. [35 G. A., ch. 99, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 42, § 2; 29 G. A., ch. 45, §§ 1, 2; 28 G. A., ch. 30, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 25, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 1, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 2, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 151, § 1.]

SEC. 862-a. City council may appropriate—in certain towns and cities. In towns and cities of five thousand population or less, the council may apropriate each year not exceeding five per cent. of the general fund for the improvement and maintenance of public parks. [29 G. A., ch. 47, § 1.]

SEC. 862-b. How expended. Said fund so appropriated shall be expended under the direction of a committee of three persons, consisting of the mayor, one member of the council appointed by the council, and one resident property owner of such city or town appointed by the council, which committee shall receive no compensation for their services. [29 G. A., ch. 47, § 2.]

SEC. 865. Consultation with city engineer. Section eight hundred sixty-five of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The board shall consult the city engineer regarding the plans and specifications and the advisability of doing or making contemplated improvements or work, and he shall from time to time furnish it with estimates of the cost of material and plans and specifications for any work to be ordered or advertised to be done, and report to the board whether such improvement or work is made and completed according to contract. Whenever the members of the board of public works are unable to agree upon any matter which is before it for decision, including the appointing of agents and employes, the city engineer shall decide such matter or appointment, and his decision shall be the decision of the board of public works. Such decision shall be rendered in writing and shall be filed in the office of the board of public works and when so filed shall have the force and effect of a finding or determination by the board of public works." [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 14; 22 G. A., ch. 1, § 3.]

A tie or disagreement calling for the casting of the vote of the engineer can only exist where there has been a meeting of the board and the inability of the members to agree has been developed by a vote or other sufficient declaration. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1072.

SEC. 866. Contracts.

As the contract is prepared by the officers of the city it should be so construed as not to permit the city to avail itself of an unconscionable advantage by reason of a mistake. Fullerton v. Des Moines, 147–254, 126 N. W. 159.

SEC. 867. Bids. It shall advertise for bids and make all contracts on behalf of the city for all work, and for material and work for public improvements in excess of two hundred dollars, whenever the same shall be ordered by the council or voted for at any election. Proposals for bids shall be published once each week for two weeks in two of the daily newspapers therein, which shall be completed at least two weeks before the making of any contract, which proposals shall state the amount and kinds of material to be furnished, the kind of improvement, and the time and conditions upon which bids will be received, all of which may be rejected. All contracts shall be made with the lowest responsible bidder, but it shall not be necessary before proposals are published or bids received to determine specifically the kind of material to be used. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 15; 22 G. A., ch. 1, §§ 5, 6.]

Cities operating under the commission plan are not required or permitted to have a board of public works and the statutory provisions as to advertisement for bids applicable to the board of public works will not be applicable to the council of such city. Sims v. Des Moines, 146–410, 125 N. W. 329.

SEC. 869. Superintend lighting.

In entering into a contract, such as is contemplated in this section, the city is exercising its business powers as distinguished from those which are governmental, and is subject to the law of estoppel. It cannot, therefore, complain of the irregular manner in which a contract has been entered into after such contract has been fully executed by the other party and the city has received the full benefit of it. Des Moines v. Welsbach Street Lighting Co., (C. C. A.) 188 Fed. 906.

A contract entered into under this section does not constitute the granting of a franchise which must be submitted to a vote of the electors. Ibid.

SEC. 870. Public works.

Bridges will not be regarded for all purposes as parts of the street under this section. So held with reference to provisions for paving. Cedar Rapids v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 108–406, 79 N. W. 125.

Without actual fraud there may be such inattention, neglect of duty or other misconduct on the part of the person or body authorized to accept the improvement as to amount to legal fraud which will defeat the right of the municipality to collect a special assessment. McCain v. Des Moines, 128–331, 103 N. W. 979.

The certificate of the engineer that work has been done or material furnished is to be made to the board of public works and orders for payment drawn and signed by it. Gilcrest v. Des Moines, 157– —, 137 N. W. 1072.

Upon the abolition of the board of public works in Des Moines by the adoption of the commission form of government, held that the powers and duties of the board were conferred upon the city council, and as the board's authority to accept the work on a particular improvement had never been exercised by the board as distinct from its individual members, it had become the duty of the city council to determine whether the work should be accepted. Ibid.

SEC. 871. Expenditures. It shall control and direct all expenditures to be made by its department, and sign and draw orders for the same, and all orders given and bills and accounts created by it shall first be indorsed by each of the members thereof, or their reasons stated in writing for not doing so, and approved by the council, before the same shall be ordered paid. No claim for any work done or material furnished in the construction of any public improvement shall be allowed by the council unless the same has first been approved by the board of public works. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 16; 22 G. A., ch. 1, § 11.]

SEC. 873. Appointive powers. It shall have power to appoint agents and employes necessary for the doing of its work. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 17; 22 G. A., ch. 1, § 13.]

CHAPTER 9-A.

OF IMPROVEMENT OF THE CHANNELS OF MEANDERED STREAMS WITHIN THE CORPORATE LIMITS OF CERTAIN CITIES.

AN ACT to authorize the improvement of the channels of meandered streams dividing the territory within the corporate limits of certain cities, and to authorize the reclaiming of lands between the meandered lines of said streams within said corporate limits, and to create a commission therefor, and defining its powers and prescribing its duties.

WHEREAS the title to the beds of the meandered streams in Iowa, including all the land between the meandered lines of such streams, is vested in the state of Iowa and under control of the legislature, and

WHEREAS much of said lands between the meandered lines of such streams is land not needed by the waters of such streams for channels or watercourses, and

WHEREAS such lands as lie within the corporate limits of said cities would be of great value to the public if reclaimed by walls or embankments to secure an adequate channel for such streams, and

WHEREAS the courses of such streams through such cities could be beautified and made regular and sanitary and the expense of bridging greatly reduced, where they are now unsightly, irregular, unsanitary and of such great width that the expense of bridging and maintaining bridges is very great, and

WHEREAS the state can make no use of said lands and has an interest in the improvement of the channels of streams, therefore

Be it Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 879-a. Petition—river front improvement commission. That whenever five hundred electors of any city whose corporate limits are divided by a meandered stream shall, in writing, petition the governor of this state for the appointment of a commission, as provided for by this act, he shall, within one month thereafter, appoint three electors, residents of the city of the said electors so petitioning, who shall constitute a body corporate, to be known as the river front improvement commission of————, inserting in said blank the name of the city of the said electors so applying. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 1.]

SEC. 879-b. Election. That one commissioner shall be elected at each biennial city election after the passage of this act to succeed one of the commissioners so appointed, whose term shall expire when his successor is elected and qualified. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 2.]

SEC. 879-c. Organization—secretary—treasurer—bond. The commissioners shall, within ten days after their appointment, qualify by taking the oath of office, determine, by lot, the order of the expiration of their terms, and organize by the election of one of their number as chairman; they shall also elect a secretary, not one of their number; and shall also elect a treasurer, not one of their number, who shall give bonds in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, the penalty of which may be increased by the commission. The treasurer shall receive and pay out all moneys under the control of said commission as ordered by it, but shall receive no compensation for his services. Each of the commissioners shall be reimbursed for the actual expenses incurred or money paid out by him in connection with the discharge of his official duties, but shall receive no compensation for his services. An itemized statement of all expenses and moneys received and paid out shall be made under oath and filed with the secretary and allowed by the commission. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 3.]

SEC. 879-d. Title to river bed—lost boundary lines. That when said commissioners have been so appointed and qualified, the fee simple title to the bed of the meandered stream, separating the corporate limits of the city, for which they are appointed, shall immediately vest in the commission in trust for the public and the same while held by the commission shall be exempt from taxation; provided that the fee title to the channel or bed of the stream to be located and preserved as hereinafter provided shall remain in the state; and provided also, that the vested rights of riparian owners and owners of water powers, shall not be injuriously affected by this act. Where the original boundary lines separating the land under the control of said commission from the land of the state or of any adjoining landowner, or the monuments marking the same are now or shall hereafter become lost, destroyed or in dispute, said commissioners may proceed to have said boundary lines established in the manner provided in chapter five, title twenty-one, of the code, and any proceeding heretofore instituted or action heretofore brought as provided in said chapter five, title twenty-one, of the code, is hereby legalized and validated as to the form of procedure used therein. [35 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 4.]

SEC. 879-e. Powers. Said commission may redeem lands between the meandered lines of such stream, construct, regulate and maintain dams across such streams, provide for and protect, by secure walls or banks, a channel adequate to carry flood waters of a volume equal to all reasonable expectations, based on past experience, and the area drained by such stream, according to expert authority; beautify such walls or banks; and park so much thereof as public interest may require; and where circumstances permit, make any part of the area redeemed and acquired suitable for sites for public buildings. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 5.]

SEC. 879-f. Profiles and specifications—approval. That said commission may adopt plans, profiles and specifications for the improvement of the said river channel and banks, and the reclaiming of lands between the meandered lines of said stream within such city, and the construction of dams; but before the beginning of the execution of the same, such plans, profiles and specifications shall be approved by the executive council of Iowa. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 6.]

SEC. 879-g. Additional powers—annual report—tax—river front improvement fund. Said commission may acquire real estate and riparian and other rights within such city in the vicinity of such stream by donation, or purchase, or by condemnation for the public uses herein authorized in the manner provided by law for the taking of private property for public use, and shall take the title to property in the name of the commission and its successors, in trust for the public, and hold the same exempt from taxation. It may sell and convey or lease, or exchange any property acquired by it, by virtue of this act and otherwise. It shall have exclusive control of all the lands acquired by it, and of the banks and waters of such stream for carrying out the purposes of this act, may make contracts and sue and be sued. It shall keep a record of all its transactions, which shall during ordinary business hours be open to inspection by the public, and shall make an annual report of all moneys received and expended by it and for what general purposes, and of all moneys owing to it and by it and for what general purposes, to the city council at the regular November meeting, and publish such report in some newspaper in the city. The commission shall, subject to the approval of the city council, in each year determine and fix the amount or rate, not exceeding two mills on the dollar, on the taxable value of the taxable property of such city, to be levied, collected and appropriated for the ensuing year for the purpose of paying for real estate, riparian and other rights, for improvements, and for accomplishing the purposes of the creation of said commission and to provide for the payment of interest upon bonds and to retire such bonds, if any, and to meet the necessary expenses incident to the business of said commission. Said commission shall, on or before the first Monday in September of each year, certify to the county auditor the amount or rate of taxes so fixed, to be known as river front improvement fund, and when collected, the same [is] to be paid over to the treasurer of the commission, and by him paid out on its orders, and the board of supervisors of the county in which said city is situated shall levy said tax as fixed by said commission. [35 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 7.]

SEC. 879-h. Bonds—mortgages. For the purpose of paying for real estate and improvements and accomplishing the purposes of its creation, said commission may issue bonds in such amounts as it may deem necessary, and may execute trust deeds or mortgages upon its property acquired by virtue of this act and otherwise or any part thereof to secure the payment of said bonds and interest thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 8.]

SEC. 879-i. Cities may aid in making improvements—indebtedness. That such city shall not be liable for any indebtedness incurred by said commission or for any bond issued by said commission. That such cities are hereby authorized to aid in making the improvements specified in this act by appropriating money from its general fund or from the surplus remaining at the end of the fiscal year in any special fund, except in cases where such diversion of moneys is especially prohibited by statute, and may appropriate in aid of the improvements herein provided for, the reasonable saving effected in the building of bridges and otherwise by reason of said improvements. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 9.]

SEC. 879-j. Rules and regulations—penalty. Said commission may, in writing, prescribe rules and regulations for the government of the public grounds under their control and persons resorting thereto, which rules and regulations shall be enforced when entered in the record of the proceeding of the commission, and a copy thereof signed by the commissioners has been posted at each gate or principal entrance to any such public grounds and a wilful violation thereof shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars. Anyone who shall cut, break or deface any tree or shrub growing in such public grounds, without authority, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days in jail. Any magistrate in the city shall have jurisdiction to try such offenses. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 10.]

SEC. 879-k. Police protection—water supply—poles and wires. The mayor, on written request of the commission, shall furnish adequate police protection for such public grounds and the city shall furnish such water supply as may be necessary therefor, and properly light the same at its expense. The commission shall be entitled to the services of the city engineer, when requested, without expense to it. It shall have the power to permit or forbid the erection of poles or the stretching of wires for electric light, street railway or other purposes by persons or corporations, in such public grounds or in or along streets, highways or over public places laid out or controlled by it. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 11.]

SEC. 879-l. Wharves—landing places—bath and boathouses. That said commission shall have power, in and over the bed and banks of such river as specified, to construct and regulate the use of wharves, landing places, bathhouses, boathouses and other suitable structures and shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the water of such stream, within the corporate limits of such city and may maintain said stream in a suitable condition for boating, skating and other public amusements and purposes. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 12.]

SEC. 879-m. What prohibited. No member of the commission shall, during the time for which he has been appointed or elected, or for one year thereafter, be appointed to any office in the gift of the commission which shall be created, or the emolument of which shall be increased, during the term for which he was elected, nor shall he be interested directly or indirectly in any contract for work or service to be performed for the commission or in the purchase or sale of any property sold to or by the commission. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 13.]

SEC. 879-n. Vacancies. In case vacancy arises in the commission, the governor of the state shall fill such vacancy by appointment for the unexpired portion of the term, or until the next election, as the case may be. [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 14.]

SEC. 879-o. Cities affected. That the law as it appears in section eight hundred seventy-nine-o, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The provisions of chapter nine-A, title five of the supplement to the code, 1907, shall apply only to cities acting under special charter and cities of the first class acting under the general incorporation laws and cities acting under the commission form of government having a population of less than twenty-five thousand; provided, however, that the increase in population of any city subsequent to the establishment or appointment of a river front improvement commission therein shall in no manner invalidate or affect the title, standing or authority of such commission." [35 G. A., ch. 90, § 3.] [29 G. A., ch. 210, § 15.]

CHAPTER 9-B.

OF OFFICERS OF CITIES AND TOWNS.

SECTION 879-p. Executive powers and duties. All executive functions, powers and duties in cities and towns shall be exercised and performed by the mayor and other elective and appointive officers and boards as provided by law, and neither the council nor the members thereof shall exercise any executive function unless expressly conferred by law. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 18.]

SEC. 879-q. Officers not to be interested in contracts—free passes or franks. No officer, including members of the city council, shall be interested, directly or indirectly in any contract or job of work or material or the profits thereof or services to be furnished or performed for the city or town. No such officer shall accept or receive, directly or indirectly, from any person, firm or corporation operating within the said city or town, any railway, interurban railway, street railway, gasworks, waterworks, electric light or power plants, telegraph line or telephone exchange or other business using a public franchise, any frank, free pass or ticket or other service upon terms more favorable than is granted to the public generally, except where, by franchise granted by the municipality to any such person or corporation, any officers of said municipality are granted such privileges as part of such franchise, and except that members of the police and fire departments of any city or town shall be carried without charge. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor. [32 G. A., ch. 26, § 19.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF CONDEMNATION AND PURCHASE OF LAND.

SECTION 880. For what purpose.

The power to condemn may be delegated to municipalities and when this is done they have the same power as the state acting through any regularly constituted authority. Bennett v. Marion, 106–628, 76 N. W. 844.

The city may be allowed to determine for itself whether a particular improvement shall be made, but the land owner may raise a question as to the amount of land necessary for the purpose contemplated. Ibid.

If the land sought to be taken will to some extent conduce to the public use to which it is to be devoted, a decision of the municipality that it is necessary therefor should not be interfered with; otherwise it should be set aside. Ibid.

The jury should be directed to include, as damages, incidental injuries to the balance of the land owner's property by reason of the proper use of the condemned portion for the purpose contemplated. Ibid.

This section does not give the city any right to establish a pest house on property acquired by the city outside of its limits. Warner v. Stebbins, 111–86, 82 N. W. 457.

A city has authority to acquire land by condemnation for a public landing, and when so condemned it may give the right of way thereover to a railway company. Diamond Jo Line Steamers v. Davenport, 114–432, 87 N. W. 399.

The fact that the property is already owned by a private corporation as a steamboat landing does not prevent its condemnation for a public landing. Ibid.

The proceedings for condemnation may be abandoned by the city, but the city cannot abandon an award after it is made, and institute another proceeding for the purpose of condemning the same property. Robertson v. Hartenbower, 120–410, 94 N. W. 857.

Appropriation of property for a street or alley can be accomplished only by ordinance. Bradley v. Centerville, 139–599, 117 N. W. 968.

An incorporated town may purchase lands for the various public purposes contemplated by statute, to be paid for out of the general fund. Brooks v. Brooklyn, 146–136, 124 N. W. 868.

A city may condemn a right of way for a street crossing the depot grounds of a railway company where the use of the proposed street is not inconsistent with the continuing use by the railway company of such grounds for proper purposes, even though it may be necessary for the company to make slight changes in its tracks or other appurtenances. Chicago G. W. R. Co., v. Mason City, 155–99, 135 N. W. 9.

The discretion of the city authorities in establishing a public way by which land adjoining the platted portion of the city may become available for residence and business purposes cannot be interfered with unless it may be in a case of clear abuse. Ibid.

SEC. 881. Sewer outlets—disposal plants. That section eight hundred eighty-one of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Cities and towns shall have the power to acquire real estate within or without their territorial limits necessary for sewer outlets, garbage disposal plants, sewage disposal plants and dump grounds, by purchase or condemnation as in this chapter provided, and the expense of such acquisition of real estate for sewer outlets, garbage disposal plants, sewage disposal plants and dump grounds, shall, in the case of garbage disposal plants and dump grounds, be paid out of the general fund, and in the case of sewer outlets and sewage disposal plants, out of the general fund or out of the sewer fund of the sewer district for which the sewer outlet or sewage disposal plant is established." [30 G. A., ch. 37; 26 G. A., ch. 8.]

The question whether the amount of land sought to be condemned is necessary for a sewer outlet may be raised by the land owner. Bennett v. Marion, 106–628, 76 N. W. 844.

In estimating damages, an improper use for sewer purposes such as would give rise to a nuisance is not to be considered, but the jury should be allowed to consider in what way the taking of land for these purposes would inconvenience the land owner in the use of the remainder of his land or lessen its value, and if sewers properly constructed would have this effect, then the jury should be directed to take this into consideration in making up their verdict. Ibid.

In such cases the city may be allowed to determine for itself whether the particular improvement shall be made, but the necessity for taking for that purpose the amount of land sought to be taken may be questioned by the land owner. Ibid.

The municipality may acquire real estate outside of its territorial limits for sewer outlets and for garbage disposal plants and dump grounds. Hanson v. Cresco, 132–533, 109 N. W. 1109.

Detriment to the portion of property not taken, resulting from the construction of a sewer, may be taken into account in estimating the damages in proceedings to condemn land for sewer purposes. Richardson v. Centerville, 137–253, 114 N. W. 1071.

The condemnation of land by virtue of power of eminent domain is a special proceeding and the legislature has almost unlimited power to fix the conditions upon which such condemnation may be made; therefore held that the allowance of an attorney's fee by the court, to be taxed as costs in case of condemnation of lands for sewer, was proper. Ibid.

A city has implied power to construct a plant for the disposal of sewage. Glucose Sugar Ref. Co. v. Marshalltown, 153 Fed. 620.

SEC. 883. Disposal of lands acquired.

The city may grant the land covered by a street which is duly vacated to a railroad company for depot purposes. Spitzer v. Runyan, 113–619, 85 N. W. 782.

An abutting owner may have damages against the city for vacating a street furnishing special access to such owner's property, but cannot recover damages against a railroad company for obstruction of such street after its vacation. Harrington v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 126–388, 102 N. W. 139.

So long as the right of the public to use a street continues it cannot be diverted to other uses, but when its vacation has been effected, the title, freed from the trust, continues in the city and it may convey the ground vacated to another to be used for private purposes. Walker v. Des Moines, 142 N. W. 51.

Further as to vacation of streets, see notes to code § 751 in this supplement.

SEC. 884. Proceedings for condemnation.

Costs made by the commissioners are to be paid by the corporation in any event. Only those involved in the appeal to the district court and attorneys' fees occasioned thereby depend in any way on the result of the trial. These are to be taxed against the corporation, except in the contingency of a trial at which the amount of damages is not increased. If that contingency does not arise the costs are to be paid by the corporation. Mellichar v. Iowa City, 116–390, 90 N. W. 86.

On the abandonment of the proceedings it is but just and equitable that the party attempting to wrest the property from its owner should pay the expenses of litigation already incurred. Ibid.

The charge of the attorney in preparing an answer may properly be included in estimating the attorneys' fees, even though a formal answer is not required by the statute. Ibid.

Compensation for services rendered in other appeals, or in suits for the protection of the plaintiff's property, cannot be allowed. Ibid.

In the absence of a showing that delay in the proceeding is unreasonable, no action lies for the abandonment of the condemnation proceeding unless authorized by statute. Ford v. Board of Park Commissioners, 148–1, 126 N. W. 1030.

But by virtue of the reference to code § 2011 there is the same liability on the part of the board as on the part of a railroad corporation which having instituted proceedings for condemnation of property declines to take the property and pay the damage awarded. Ibid.

SEC. 885. Donation of sites for depots.

The city has no authority to issue negotiable bonds in payment for land condemned or otherwise taken in procuring a site for a railroad depot. The only indebtedness which the city can incur for that purpose is such indebtedness as may be satisfied out of its current revenues. Swanson v. Ottumwa, 131–540, 106 N. W. 9.

SEC. 886. Submission of question.

The provisions of this and the preceding section have no application to a case where the city vacates a street for use of a railroad company as depot grounds. Spitzer v. Runyan, 113–619, 85 N. W. 782.

CHAPTER 11.

OF TAXATION.

SECTION 888. City bridge fund.

This section provides the cities with means for exercising the power conferred in code § 758 with reference to the construction of bridges within the city limits. Slutts v. Dana, 138–244, 115 N. W. 1115.

Property within the city limits is not subject to a general bridge tax levied by the board of supervisors. Keokuk v. Kennedy, 156–680, 137 N. W. 914.

SEC. 891. Labor on highways. Any city or town shall have power to provide that all able-bodied male residents of the corporation between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five years, between the first day of January and the first day of November of each year, either by themselves or satisfactory substitute, shall perform two days' labor of eight hours each upon the streets, avenues, alleys, highways or public grounds within such corporation, at such times and places as the proper officer may direct, upon three days' notice in writing given, or pay in lieu thereof in money a sum to be fixed by such council, not exceeding one and a half dollars for each of such day's labor. For each day's failure to attend and perform the labor, or pay said sum of money, as required, at the time and place specified, unless excused by the supervisor of highways or street commissioner, the delinquent shall forfeit and pay the sum of two dollars, not exceeding four dollars in all. Any person excused shall be again notified to perform such labor or pay said sum of money in lieu thereof, at any time prior to November first of said year. All persons claiming to be exempt from labor under this section shall, within three days after receiving notice to perform such labor, furnish the mayor or other proper officer with an affidavit showing the extent and nature of the disabilities entitling him to such exemption.

If he fails to do so he shall be liable to perform such labor or pay the penalty provided herein. [27 G. A., ch. 27, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 32; C. '73, § 487.]

SEC. 892. Enforcement of road tax. In case of failure to pay said sum of money in lieu of said labor, together with such forfeit, to the supervisor of highways, street commissioner, or other officer of said corporation authorized to receive the same within ten days from the expiration of the time fixed for the performance of such labor, said corporation may recover the same by action brought in the name of such city or town before the mayor of said corporation, or before any justice of the peace in the proper township. No property or wages belonging to said person shall be exempt to the defendant on an execution issued for said judgment and costs. The tax and forfeit money so collected shall be expended upon the streets, avenues, highways, alleys or public grounds of said corporation. All of such tax and forfeit money remaining unpaid on the first day of November in each year may be certified to the county auditor at any time before the following first day of December, and shall be entered by him upon the tax list of said county, and treated and collected as ordinary county taxes, and shall be a lien on all the real property of the delinquent. [27 G. A., ch. 27, § 2; 19 G. A., ch. 32; C. '73, § 487.]

A police court has jurisdiction of a civil action to recover a poll tax provided for in this section. Ottumwa v. Scott, 139 N. W. 901.

valuation of all property in the sewer district, for a district sewer fund, to be used to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of the making, reconstruction or repair of any sewer located and laid in that particular district; [25 G. 6. Tax for gasworks or electric plant. A tax not exceeding, in any one year, five mills on the dollar, which, with the rates or rentals authorized, shall be sufficient to pay the expenses of running, operating and repairing gasworks and electric light or power plants owned by any city or town, and the interest on any bonds issued to pay all or any part of the cost of the construction of such works or plants; but such tax shall not be levied upon property which lies wholly without the limits of the benefit of the same, which limits shall be fixed by the council each year before making the levy; [22 G. '73, § 475.]

8. Tax for gas or electric light or power. A tax not exceeding, in any one year, five mills on the dollar, for the purpose of paying the amount due or to become due to any municipality, individual or company operating gasworks or electric light or power plants for all gas, electric light or power supplied under any contract, the levy to be limited to the property as in subdivision six hereof; providing that in[1] cities of five thousand or less, there may be in any one year a tax not exceeding seven mills on the dollar;

A., ch. 14, § 5; 23 G. A., ch. 4, §§ 6, 7; 22 G. A., ch. 17, § 5; 21 G. A., ch. 78, § 5.]

10. Tax for water or gasworks or electric plant bonds. A tax as authorized in the preceding subdivision, to be levied in the proportions therein set forth, and to be used exclusively in payment of the principal of bonds issued for the construction of water and gasworks and electric light and power plants, which tax shall not be levied upon property lying wholly without the limits of the benefit of such works or plants, which limits shall be fixed by the council each year before making the levy; [23 G. A., ch. 13, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 10, § 1.]

11. Cemetery tax. A tax, not exceeding one half of one mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation of the property within the corporate limits, for the care, preservation and adornment of any cemetery owned or controlled by the city, or any private or incorporated cemetery association utilized by the citizens of said city or town; and the said tax may be so expended for the support and maintenance of any such cemetery after the same has been abandoned and is no longer used for the purpose of interring the dead; [35 G. A., ch. 50, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 38, § 2.]

12. Subdivisions five, six, seven, eight, nine and ten, extended to incorporated towns, and proceedings legalized. The provisions of subdivisions five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten and eleven of said section eight hundred ninety-four are extended to incorporated towns, and all proceedings of incorporated towns had under the assumption that the said provisions were applicable to said incorporated towns are hereby legalized and confirmed, and said proceedings shall be in law held to be valid to the same extent as if the said subdivisions of said section eight hundred ninety-four of the code included incorporated towns by the specific terms thereof. The tax authorized by paragraph eleven hereof may as to towns exceed one half of one mill, but shall in no case exceed three mills on the dollar. [33 G. A., ch. 38, § 3.] [28 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.]

Par. 2. Improvement fund: The improvement fund may be resorted to for payment of deficiencies in special assessments for street improvements. Corey v. Ft. Dodge, 133–666, 111 N. W. 6.

Par. 5. Waterworks tax: The proceeds of the five-mill special water tax authorized by statute do not constitute the sole liability of the city under a contract to furnish water for public purposes. There may be a recovery of judgment under such contract payable out of the general funds. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121–306, 96 N. W. 883.

The limits of benefit and protection may be fixed by the council as coincident with the limits of the city. Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 152–187, 131 N. W. 25.

In the case of railroad property, a valuable portion of which is within the limits of benefit and protection, the tax may be levied on the basis of the entire property within the city, although a portion of the track extends beyond such limits. Ibid.

The tax here provided for is not a special assessment but is levied in the exercise of the general taxing power. Ibid.

SEC. 894-a. Transfer of unclaimed electric light fund. In any county of this state where a special tax has been levied to pay for the construction of an electric light plant for any city or town, and such tax is held invalid, and the same or any part thereof has remained uncalled for in the treasury of the county for a period of five or more years preceding the passage of this act, the board of supervisors of such county shall cause such unclaimed fund to be transferred and paid to the treasurer of the city or town in which such tax was levied, the same to be by the treasurer of such city or town credited to the general fund. [35 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 894-b. Refund to tax payer. The money so transferred and paid to the treasurer of such city or town, and so credited to the general fund or any part thereof, shall be paid at any time within five years from the receipt thereof to any person who is shown to be entitled thereto by evidence satisfactory to the city council or to the district court of the county in which such tax was levied and paid. Payment shall be made from the general fund of the city in the manner provided for the payment of other claims from that fund. [35 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.]

SEC. 898. Loans in anticipation of revenue.

The object of this provision is to place municipal corporations on a cash basis and prevent the accumulation of a floating indebtedness. Phillips v. Reed, 107–331, 76 N. W. 850, 77 N. W. 1031; and see Phillips v. Reed, 109–188, 80 N. W. 347.

A city is not authorized, when borrowing money in anticipation of its revenues, to issue negotiable bonds therefor. German Ins. Co. v. Manning, 95 Fed. 597.

SEC. 902. Assessments and taxes certified—collection. All assessments and taxes of every kind and nature levied by the council, except as otherwise provided by law, shall be certified by the clerk on or before the first Monday in September, to the county auditor, and by him placed upon the tax list for the current year, and the county treasurer shall collect all assessments and taxes so levied in the same manner as other taxes, and when delinquent they shall draw the same interest and penalties. Sales for such assessments and taxes when delinquent shall be made at the same time and in the same manner as such sales are made for other taxes, and should there be other delinquent taxes or assessments due from the same person, and collectible by the county treasurer, the sale shall be for all such delinquent assessments and taxes, and all the provisions of law relating to the sale of property for delinquent taxes shall be applicable as far as may be to such sales. Before the third Monday of each month, the county treasurer shall give written notice to the mayor of each municipality in the county of the amount collected for each fund up to the first day of that month, and the mayor of each municipality shall draw an order therefor in favor of the city treasurer, countersigned by the clerk or auditor of the municipality, upon the county treasurer who shall pay such taxes to the treasurers of the several municipalities only on such order. [31 G. A., ch. 29; 25 G. A., ch. 1, § 2; 24 G. A., ch. 1, § 3; 21 G. A., ch. 13, § 2; 19 G. A., ch. 63, § 2; C. '73, §§ 495, 498; R. §§ 1123, 1126.]

Where the proper notice of expiration of the period of redemption has not been served, so that the deed can properly be issued, the limitation of this section is not applicable. Hintrager v. McElhinny, 112–325, 82 N. W. 1008, 83 N. W. 1063.

CHAPTER 12.

OF BONDS.

SECTION 905. Funding.

The statutory authority given to refund does not validate an unauthorized indebtedness. Swanson v. Ottumwa, 131–540, 106 N. W. 9.

SEC. 906. Form.

An erroneous recital as to the statute under which bonds are issued will not render them invalid. Fernald v. Gilman, 123 Fed. 797.

SEC. 912-a. Applicable to towns. All provisions of section nine hundred twelve of the code, granting to cities the power to issue certificates or bonds in anticipation of special taxes, shall be applicable, and is hereby made to apply to towns. [32 G. A., ch. 44.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF PLATS.

SECTION 914. For subdivisions or additions.

The owner of a lot platted as abutting on a navigable stream is not limited to the dimensions as determined by the platted meander line, but owns to high-water mark. Board of Park Commissioners v. Taylor, 133–453, 108 N. W. 927.

SEC. 915. Acknowledgment and recording — abstract of title. Every such plat shall have a complete abstract of title attached thereto, and shall be accompanied by a statement to the effect that the subdivision of (here insert a correct description of the land or parcel subdivided), as appears on this plat, is with the free consent and in accordance with the desire of the proprietor, which shall be signed and acknowledged by him before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgment of deeds. Such proprietor shall also procure from the treasurer of the county in which the land lies, and file with the recorder, a certified statement that the land laid out into lots, streets and alleys is free from taxes, and a certified statement of the clerk of the district court that said land is free from all judgment, attachment, mechanics', or other liens, as appears by the records of his office, and a certified statement from the recorder that the title in fee is in such proprietor, and that it is free from incumbrance; but if the parcel of land so laid out shall be incumbered with a debt certain in amount, and which the creditor will not accept with accrued interest to the day of proffered payment if it draws interest, or with a rebate of interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum if it draws no interest, or if the creditor cannot be found, then such proprietor, and, if a corporation, its proper officer or agent, may file with the recorder of such county an affidavit, stating either that such proprietor has offered to pay such creditor the full amount of his debt, with interest, or with a rebate of interest, as the case may be, and that he would not accept the same, or that he cannot be found, whereupon such proprietor may execute and file with the recorder a bond in double the amount of such incumbrance, with three sureties who shall be freeholders of the county, to be approved by the recorder and clerk of the district court, which bond shall run to the county, and shall be for the benefit of the purchasers of any lots, and shall be conditioned for the payment of such incumbrance and the cancellation thereof of record as soon as practicable after the same becomes due, and for the holding of all purchasers and those claiming under them forever harmless from such incumbrance. When such affidavit and bond shall have been filed with the recorder, together with the certificate of approval of the council of the city or town in which such land is situated or which is proposed to be made an addition thereto and a certificate of the recorder that said land is free from all incumbrance except as secured by said bond, and that the title in fee is in such proprietor, and that of the treasurer that the land is free from taxes, said plat shall be admitted to record, and be as valid as if such proprietor had filed with the recorder the certificate of such officer that said land was free from all incumbrance. [29 G. A., ch. 49, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 53, § 1; C. '73, § 560.]

When a recorded plat is referred to in a deed as related to the matter of description, unless controlled by other facts or circumstances, such plat is to be considered as furnishing a true description of the property to be conveyed. Quade v. Pillard, 135–359, 112 N. W. 646.

The proprietor is entitled to have his plat approved if it complies with the provisions of the statute; that is the only question for determination by the city council. The matter of the acceptance of the streets and alleys by the city is not involved. Giltner v. Albia, 128–658, 105 N. W. 194.

SEC. 916. Approval by council. That section nine hundred sixteen of chapter thirteen, title five, of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted as a substitute therefor:

"All plats of additions to any city or town, or subdivision of any part or parcels of lands lying within or adjacent to any city or town, shall be divided by streets into blocks and such blocks and streets shall conform as nearly as practicable to the size of blocks and the width of streets in such city or town. And such streets shall be extensions of the existing system of streets thereof. All plats of such additions or subdivisions, except subdivisions of less than one block, before being recorded shall be filed with the clerk of such city or town, and when so filed, the council within a reasonable time shall consider the same, and if it is found that such plat conforms to the provisions hereof, the council shall direct the mayor and clerk to certify its resolution of approval, which shall be affixed to said plat before it shall be received for record by the county recorder. The council shall have power to require alleys to be platted separating abutting lots, and if so platted, said alleys shall conform as nearly as practicable to the width of alleys in said city or town and shall be extensions of the existing system of alleys." [34 G. A., ch. 45, § 1.]

If the blocks are divided into lots the dedication of alleys may be insisted upon, but the division into parcels smaller than blocks is not required. Giltner v. Albia, 128–658, 105 N. W. 194.

Where, at the time a plat of a town addition was filed, the place was an incorporated town, and not a city, an acceptance of the dedication by ordinance was not essential to the validity of the dedication, under code '73, § 527, declaring that the plat of an addition to a "city" should be ineffective until confirmed by an ordinance of the city, such provision being inapplicable to towns. Burroughs v. Cherokee, 134–429, 109 N. W. 876.

The ways designated on a plat as alleys become public ways on the acceptance of the dedication. Talbert v. Mason, 136–373, 113 N. W. 918.

For the purpose of assessment for street improvements on abutting property which has not been platted, it will be presumed that such property will be platted in conformity with the streets and alleys already established on adjacent property. Gray v. Des Moines, 150–299, 130 N. W. 582.

SEC. 917. Dedication to public.

Dedication: A deed which is inconsistent with the dedication of the streets and alleys of a plat to the public may amount to a revocation of the attempted dedication, unless it be shown that the public accepted the dedication before the deed was made. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Britt, 105–198, 74 N. W. 933.

While a substantial compliance with statutory provisions is all that is required to effect a dedication of portions of a plat laid out for streets and alleys, yet where the plat did not show the width of such streets and the size of the lots and blocks except as determinable by scale from the plat itself, held that it was too indefinite to be effectual. Ibid.

The plat of the city of Keokuk did not operate to vest the fee of the land in the streets in the city. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Kelley, 105–106, 74 N. W. 935.

Payment of taxes on property is admissible as evidence against a claim of a dedication thereof to the public. Brown v. Cedar Rapids, 117–302, 90 N. W. 711.

To warrant the presumption of dedication, the use must be of a kind to convey to the owner knowledge of its extent and adverse nature. Ibid.

In a contest between grantor and grantee, where the plat differs from the survey, the latter will control. It may be that as to a purchaser buying in reliance on the plat as showing the dimensions of the lot, or as to a public officer charged with opening the streets, as shown by the plat, the rule would be otherwise. Thrush v. Graybill, 110–585, 81 N. W. 798.

Where the question was as to dedication in a plat made by county commissioners, held that the vital inquiry was as to the intent with which the commissioners acted in determining whether a square, which had been used for a courthouse, had been dedicated to the city, or retained by the county, and that, in order to determine this, the acknowledgment should be considered in connection with the plat, the certificate of survey and such circumstances as might throw light on the transaction. Youngerman v. Board of Supervisors, 110–731, 81 N. W. 166.

And under the language of the instruments and the circumstances surrounding their execution, held in a particular case that the title to such square did not pass to the city, but had been excepted from the dedication and retained by the county. Ibid.

The court is not authorized to add a line to the plat for the purpose of limiting the extent of the land dedicated to public use which does not appear on the plat as originally made, unless, perhaps, when there is a conflict in the boundaries, or in some cases when the plat is shown to be not in accordance with the original survey. Boehler v. Des Moines, 111–417, 82 N. W. 914.

Facts in a particular case held sufficient to show dedication of a street to the city and its acceptance. Hull v. Cedar Rapids, 111–466, 83 N. W. 28.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to show that an alley had been dedicated to public use. Dodge v. Hart, 113–685, 83 N. W. 1063.

An alley marked on the plat may become public by a common law dedication and acceptance. Keokuk v. Cosgrove, 116–189, 89 N. W. 983.

The owner's intention as to dedication of a portion of the platted territory to public purposes is to be gathered from the plat itself. Mt. Vernon v. Young, 124–517, 100 N. W. 694.

The recording of the plat is a tender of the conveyance of the portion set apart as streets and alleys for such use to a municipality, which continues until shown to have been withdrawn. But where there has been nonuser for not less than the statutory period, accompanied by actual and notorious possession of the land by an individual as private property under claim of right, an abandonment of the rights of the public in the street will be presumed. Burroughs v. Cherokee, 134–429, 109 N. W. 876.

Dedication of land for a street may be shown by the verbal declarations of the owner, by his act in filing a plat, by his silence in the face of known adverse possession by the public, or by any other act or omission from which the intention to dedicate may fairly be inferred. Acceptance may be inferred from general use by the public, or by the improvement and repair of the way by the authorities having care and control of the highways. The owners of abutting property may also divest themselves of all title in favor of the public by laying out a street and selling lots or parcels of land with reference thereto, and this rule is not subject to any acceptance by the public generally or by the authorities. Snouffer v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 118–287, 92 N. W. 79.

Public use with the knowledge of the owner for the statutory period of limitation is admissible as tending to show a dedication. Cedar Rapids v. Young, 119–552, 93 N. W. 567.

In order that a dedication of land platted as a street shall be effectual, it is not essential that the statutory provisions as to platting be strictly complied with, but they must be substantially followed, that is, the portion of the platted land claimed as a street must have been pointed out with such precision and the boundaries so fixed that these may be certainly and definitely located from the data furnished. Coe College v. Cedar Rapids, 120–541, 95 N. W. 267.

Land may be dedicated to the public use in a plat without naming such use. But the intention to dedicate must appear, and this may sometimes be inferred from the shape of the land claimed to have been dedicated, its situation, dimensions and the like. Ibid.

The lines in a plat may aid in ascertaining a common law dedication, but they will not be sufficient alone to establish such dedication. Ibid.

By the designation of a tract in a plat as a public square the title to such tract vests in the public and on the incorporation of a city including such tract the title inures to the municipality in trust for the public use. Lacy v. Oskaloosa, 143–704, 121 N. W. 542.

Where there is no express dedication of a street to the city, none will be inferred from mere use alone. Johnson v. Robertson, 156–64, 135 N. W. 585.

Acceptance: An acceptance of the dedication is essential to the validity of a conveyance to the city of ground designated for streets and alleys. Blennerhasset v. Forest City, 117–680, 91 N. W. 1044.

The title to streets and alleys as laid out in the plat does not pass to the city until the dedication is accepted. Brown v. Taber, 103–1, 72 N. W. 416.

A reasonable time is allowed for acceptance by the public of a highway dedicated by a plat, and what is such reasonable time necessarily depends upon the situation and circumstances. Sarvis v. Caster, 116–707, 89 N. W. 84.

The plat constitutes a dedication of space left between the lots for public travel, but the title thereto does not vest in the city or town prior to its acceptance, and until then such spaces are not highways. After acceptance by the municipality and improvement so that the plat has become effective in passing the fee, the proprietor of the plats cannot divest the municipality of the title without the knowledge or consent of its officers. Chrisman v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 125–133, 100 N. W. 63.

In the absence of proof of acceptance of a portion only of the platted street and of the recognition of the lot line contended for by the abutting owner, the city will not be estopped from asserting title in the street as platted to the true line. Vorhes v. Ackley, 127–658, 103 N. W. 998.

The opening by the city of a portion of the streets in the plat indicates an intention to accept the others, to be opened when needed. Parriott v. Hampton, 134–157, 111 N. W. 440.

Although the streets remain enclosed the acceptance by notice to the owner may be effectual. Ibid.

After the lapse of many years, slight evidence of acceptance of dedication of a street is sufficient. Baker v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 154–228, 134 N. W. 587.

After a railway track has been laid in a public street, the continuous use of the track is sufficient to preserve the public right in the street although it is no longer generally used for other purposes. Ibid.

The improvement of the streets of a plat by grading and paving and by using them for water and sewer pipes constitutes an acceptance of the dedication. And the fact that a part of the street has not been improved or used is of no consequence if it appears that it has not been needed. Where a city has used or improved a part of the street it will be presumed that it has accepted the entire street. Gable v. Cedar Rapids, 150–108, 129 N. W. 737.

Estoppel: The public right to the use and occupancy of a street may be lost by estoppel. Corey v. Ft. Dodge, 118–742, 92 N. W. 704.

A town may estop itself from asserting title to ground indicated on a plat as a public alley. Blennerhasset v. Forest City, 117–680, 91 N. W. 1044.

The proceedings by the city, even though irregular, to abandon an alley shown on the plat, held in connection with other circumstances, to constitute an estoppel of the city from subsequently asserting a right to such alley as against one who had occupied adversely. Ibid.

With reference to portions of the premises covered by a plat which are set apart for streets, the city may so deal with another claiming title thereto, by subjecting it to the payment of public charges, as to estop itself from asserting title as against him. Davenport v. Boyd, 109–248, 80 N. W. 314.

Assessments of lots as the property of a taxpayer does not estop the city from claiming that a portion of such lots constitute a street. Cedar Rapids v. Young, 119–552, 93 N. W. 567.

The fact that the city exacts taxes on the dedicated property does not estop it from claiming that the same has become a public street. Hull v. Cedar Rapids, 111–466, 83 N. W. 28.

The levy and collection by the city of taxes on a strip of land which has been dedicated and accepted as a street will not estop the city, as the representative of the public, from asserting its rights in such street. Hanger v. Des Moines, 109–480, 80 N. W. 549.

The doctrine of estoppel is applied to municipal corporations to prevent the assertion of public right to a street where the exercise of such right would be inequitable, as, for instance, where the street has been for the statutory period of limitations enclosed by a private owner, and he has for that period asserted ownership thereof under a claim of right. Weber v. Iowa City, 119–633, 93 N. W. 637.

Where the public right to streets has once attached by a sufficient acceptance of the dedication of a town plat, it is not subject to be divested by a strict application of the rules pertaining to adverse possession or to laches which obtain in controversies of individual owners. McClenehan v. Jesup, 144–352, 120 N. W. 74.

To estop the town in such a case from asserting title to the streets something more must be shown than a demand for opening before expansion of the town has made the opening of the streets reasonably necessary. Ibid.

A city may be estopped by its conduct from insisting upon street lines different from those in accordance with which abutting property has been improved. Johnson v. Shenandoah, 153–493, 133 N. W. 761.

While the statute of limitations may not run against the city or town as to its right to its streets, it may by the conduct of its citizens or officers estop itself from claiming beyond a given line although another line may be, in fact, the true line according to the plat. Bridges v. Grand View, 139 N. W. 917.

The uninterrupted and undisputed possession of a strip of ground abutting upon a street for a long period of years, followed by the making of improvements thereon with reference to a claimed line, casts the burden upon the city or town of showing that the line thus claimed is not the true one. Ibid.

The building of houses, sidewalks and fences with reference to a claimed line for the street constitutes such improvement as that if acquiesced in for a long time by the city or town, it is estopped from contesting the correctness of the line thus claimed. Ibid.

Further as to estoppel, see notes to § 753.

Rights of abutting property owner: By accepting a street by dedication, a city or town enters into an implied obligation to keep it open and afford the dedicator or his grantee, near or remote, access to abutting lots, and though under the plenary powers of the legislature over all streets or highways such street may be vacated, the damages occasioned thereby cannot be said to be those shared by the public generally, and therefore compensation for such damages may be necessary. Long v. Wilson, 119–267, 93 N. W. 282.

The owner of property abutting on a street has a right to and an interest in the street distinct and different from that of the general public, and an adjudication between the city or town and another property owner as to the nonexistence of such street is not binding on a property owner not made party to such proceeding. Ibid.

While the legislature may authorize a city or town to vacate streets, it does not follow that it may do so without compensation to abutting property owners for damages to them as individuals, distinct from the general public, resulting from such vacation. Ibid.

Where land has been divided into lots, and a plat thereof is made, showing such lots and the streets on which they abut, and the owner sells the lots so designated on the plat, the purchaser has an easement in such streets as is necessary for the full enjoyment and use of his property, of which the grantor cannot deprive him. Nor can the fact that the plat was not made or authorized by the grantor, or that it was not a legal or recorded plat, make any difference with the rule. It is founded upon the doctrine of estoppel, and whether the plat be legal or illegal, authorized or unauthorized, if it be recognized and adopted by the grantor in making the sale, and is relied upon by the purchaser, the estoppel is as effectual as it would be were the conditions different. Cleaver v. Mahanke, 120–77, 94 N. W. 279.

The platting of ground as an alley, and designation thereof for that purpose, is equivalent to a deed in fee simple to the public, and the purchaser of lots abutting takes only to the lot line. Blennerhasset v. Forest City, 117–680, 91 N. W. 1044.

Although in a city under special charter the title in the streets may be in the abutting property owner so that the city has no right to use such streets for any purpose whatever other than that for which they were originally designed, yet the erection of trolley poles in the street in front of the property of an abutting owner is not such an additional use of the street as may be enjoined by a property owner in the absence of additional compensation. Snyder v. Ft. Madison St. R. Co., 105–284, 75 N. W. 179.

The owner of property, chargeable with such knowledge of the use and improvement of an abutting street as a reasonably prudent and observing person having care for his property would ordinarily acquire, is chargeable with notice of the dedication of an abutting street by the owner, and acceptance thereof by the public. Hanger v. Des Moines, 109–480, 80 N. W. 549.

One who takes possession of a dedicated street in connection with an adjoining lot under a conveyance of the lot cannot enjoin the city from subsequently opening and improving the street. Backman v. Oskaloosa, 130–600, 104 N. W. 347.

Vacation of street: Where an unrestricted dedication by designation in the plat has been made, it vests an absolute title in the municipality, and on vacation of a street thus designated, the title does not revert to the original owner. Lake City v. Fulkerson, 122–569, 98 N. W. 376.

Further as to vacation of streets, see notes to code § 751 in this supplement.

Nonuser: While mere nonuser for the statutory period will not constitute an abandonment by a city of a street duly laid out, yet, where there has been such nonuser, accompanied by actual and notorious possession of the land by an individual as private property, under a claim of right, an abandonment will be presumed and the public right in the street will be held to be extinguished. Weber v. Iowa City, 119–633, 93 N. W. 637.

A city may abandon a portion of a street, or by nonuser forfeit its right thereto, and it may be foreclosed by agreement or acquiescence as to the true line. Eldora v. Edgington, 130–151, 106 N. W. 503.

SEC. 917-a. Authority to change name of street. Cities and towns and cities acting under special charter shall have authority to change by ordinance the name of a platted street. The mayor and city or town clerk shall certify and file the ordinance, after its passage, with the county recorder and county auditor in the county where the said city or town is located, which shall be entered of record in the recorder's office and a reference made on the margin of the original plat referring to the record of such change of names. [34 G. A., ch. 56, § 1.]

SEC. 918. Vacation by proprietor.

Where none of the lots abutting on such streets or alleys have been conveyed, the owner may vacate the plat and will thereafter be the unquestionable owner of the vacated streets and alleys. Subsequent grantees of lots described in such plat will not be entitled to proportional shares of the streets and alleys so vacated. Brown v. Taber, 103–1, 72 N. W. 416.

A platted street may be vacated by filing a written declaration thereof under the provisions of these sections. De Nefe v. Agency City, 143–237, 121 N. W. 1049.

SEC. 919. Part of plat vacated.

The plat cannot be vacated so as to extinguish the title of the municipality to streets which have been accepted and improved. Such streets have become highways. Chrisman v. Omaha & Council Bluffs R. & B. Co., 125–133, 100 N. W. 63.

The provisions for vacation of a plat by the owner have no application to the vacation of streets in such plat by the city council or the board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

While provisions are here made for vacation of part of a plat, yet if the rights and privileges of other proprietors in the plat are affected and they do not consent to the vaction, it is not effectual. So held as to streets in a plat which the owner attempted to vacate. Uptagraff v. Smith, 106–385, 76 N. W. 733.

It is not only a highway which may not be vacated, but a public way against the closing of which there is a valid objection. Hunter v. Des Moines, 144–541, 123 N. W. 215.

Although the plat indicates a dedication of a portion thereof for railroad depot purposes, until such dedication is accepted, or so far as it is not accepted, such dedication may be withdrawn by a vacation of a portion of the plat. Iowa Cent. R. Co. v. Homan, 151–404, 131 N. W. 878.

SEC. 920. Vacation by lot owner.

A highway ought not to be vacated under the provisions of this section unless the immediate abutting owners so request. Sarvis v. Caster, 116–707, 89 N. W. 84.

A highway will not be vacated if it appears that in all reasonable probability it will soon be needed for public use, although it has not already been used by the public. Ibid.

After the incorporation of a town is discontinued the control of its streets and alleys passes to the board of supervisors. Chrisman v. Brandes, 137–433, 112 N. W. 833.

The statute requires only the owners of the part of the plat sought to be vacated to join in the petition. Gable v. Cedar Rapids, 150–108, 129 N. W. 737.

Streets should not be vacated for the benefit of private persons when such vacation will in all probability seriously inconvenience the general public. Ibid.

It is doubtful whether a court in a proceeding for the vacation of a street can order that it be vacated only as to some uses while retained as a public street for other uses. Ibid.

SEC. 922. Plat by auditor—special charter cities excepted. Whenever the original proprietor of any subdivision of land has sold or conveyed any part thereof, or invested the public with any rights therein, and has failed and neglected to execute and file for record a plat as provided in this chapter, the county auditor shall by mail or otherwise notify some or all of such owners, and demand its execution. If such owners, whether so notified or not, fail and neglect for thirty days after the issuance of such notice to execute and file said plat for record, the auditor shall cause one to be made, making any survey necessary therefor. Said plat shall be signed and acknowledged by the auditor, who shall certify that he executed it by reason of the failure of the owners named to do so, and file it for record in his office and in the office of the county recorder, and when so filed it shall have the same effect as if executed, acknowledged and recorded by the owners. A correct statement of the costs and expenses of such plat, survey and record, verified by oath, shall be by the auditor laid before the first session of the board of supervisors, which shall allow the same and order them paid out of the county treasury, and he shall at the same time assess the amount pro rata upon the several subdivisions of said tract, lot or parcel so subdivided, and it shall be collected in the same manner as general taxes, and shall go to the general county fund; or said board may direct suit to be brought in the name of the county to recover from the original proprietor such cost and expense. Real estate situated in cities acting under special charter shall not be platted by the auditor under this section. [35 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 30, § 1; C. '73, § 568.]

SEC. 923. Platting for assessment and taxation. Section nine hundred twenty-three of the code is hereby repealed and the following substitute is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whenever a congressional subdivision of land of one hundred sixty acres or less, or any lot or subdivision, is owned by two or more persons in severalty, and the description of one or more of the different parts or parcels thereof cannot, in the judgment of the county auditor, be made sufficiently certain and accurate for the purposes of assessment and taxation without noting the metes and bounds of the same, he shall cause to be made and recorded in his office and the office of the county recorder a plat of such tract or lot with its several subdivisions, including and replatting in such plat such other plats or parts thereof included within the same lot or congressional subdivision of land as may seem to him to be required in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, proceeding as directed in the preceding section, and all of its provisions shall govern." [31 G. A., ch. 30, § 2; C. '73, § 569.]

The plat referred to in this section is not a municipal plat. It does not fix the character of the land, but only its description and extension of the corporate limits of the city so as to include such plat, held not to make it a city or town plat, within the provisions of § 1996, code of '73, as to the extent of the homestead within town plats. Parrott v. Thiel, 117–392, 90 N. W. 745.

While the auditor has authority to plat a tract into subdivisions for convenience in taxation, although the same territory has previously been platted, he should not do so unless the new plat contains such reference to former plats as will make it possible to determine just what portions of any particular lots in the original plats are included in each subdivision of the new plat. Cranston v. McQuiston, 127–104, 102 N. W. 785.

The plat contemplated is to be recorded in the auditor's office and not in the recorder's office and is not intended to furnish the basis of description for purposes of conveyance. Ibid.

Where the auditor's plat is improperly recorded in the recorder's office, it may be set aside in an action in equity for the purpose of removing a cloud from the title of one whose rights are determined by the original plat. Ibid.

The platting of territory within city limits by the auditor for purposes of taxation does not make it a part of the city or town plat. Foster v. Rice, 126–190, 101 N. W. 771.

SEC. 924. Insufficiency of description in deed. Every conveyance of land in this state shall be deemed to be a warranty that the description therein contained is sufficiently definite and accurate to enable the auditor to enter the same on the plat book required to be kept; and when there is presented for entry on the transfer book any conveyance in which the description is not sufficiently definite and accurate, the auditor shall note such fact on the deed, with that of the entry for transfer, and shall notify the person presenting it that the land therein is not sufficiently described, and must be platted within thirty days thereafter. Any person aggrieved by the opinion of the auditor may within said thirty days appeal therefrom to the board of supervisors, by giving notice thereof in writing, and thereupon no further proceeding shall be taken by the auditor. At its next session the board of supervisors shall determine said matter and direct whether the plat shall be executed and filed, and within what time. If the grantor in such conveyance shall neglect for thirty days thereafter to file for record a plat thereof, and of the appropriate congressional subdivision in which the same is found, duly executed and acknowledged as required by the auditor, or, in case of appeal, as directed by the board of supervisors, then the auditor shall proceed as is provided in this chapter, and cause such plat to be made and recorded in his office and the office of the county recorder, and thereupon the same result shall follow as provided in the preceding section. Such plat shall describe said tract and any other subdivisions of the smallest congressional subdivision of which the same is part, numbering them by progressive numbers, setting forth the courses and distances, the number of acres, and such other memoranda as is necessary; and descriptions of such lots or subdivisions according to the number and designation thereon said plat shall be deemed sufficient for all purposes. [31 G. A., ch. 30, § 3; C. '73, § 570.]

SEC. 924-a. Acts of county auditors and recorders under certain statutes legalized. The acts of the county auditors of Iowa, in making and recording plats as authorized under sections nine hundred twenty-two, nine hundred twenty-three and nine hundred twenty-four of the code without first having properly signed or acknowledged the same, and the acts of the county recorders of Iowa in recording such plats, are hereby legalized and the same declared valid and binding the same as though they had in such respects been made and recorded in strict compliance with law. [32 G. A., ch. 247, § 1.]

SEC. 924-b. Descriptions of land legalized. The description of land in all instruments, conveyances and incumbrances describing lots in or referring to plats made by the county auditors of Iowa, or by the county surveyor for the owner, and placed of record by the county recorders of Iowa, are hereby legalized and the same declared valid and binding the same as though the said plats had been signed and acknowledged and filed and recorded in strict compliance with law. [32 G. A., ch. 247, § 2.]

SEC. 924-c. Pending litigation or decrees of court already rendered. This act shall not affect any rights now in litigation or which have been settled or adjudicated by the judgment or decree of any court. [32 G. A., ch. 247, § 3.]

SEC. 926. How made. The county surveyor of any county in which is situated any city, town, village or addition thereto, as contemplated in this chapter, may, and upon payment of his legal fees by any person desiring the same, must, make a resurvey of such city, town, village or addition, or any portion, and plat thereof, which plat shall conform as near as may be with the original lines of the parcel or tract so resurveyed, and be made in all respects in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. In making a resurvey and plat, the surveyor may summon witnesses, administer oaths, and take and hear evidence touching the original plat lines and subdivisions, whether the original proprietor is dead, and any other matter which may assist in arriving at and establishing the true lines and boundaries; but no resurvey shall be made except upon notice to be given by the surveyor by a publication of the contemplated resurvey, once each week, for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 25; 15 G. A., ch. 54, § 2.]

CHAPTER 13-A.

OF PENSIONS FOR DISABLED AND RETIRED FIREMEN.

SECTION 932-a. Firemen's pension fund—levy of tax for. In all cities and towns, including cities organized under special charter, now or hereafter having an organized fire department, there may be and in all such cities having a paid fire department there shall be annually levied at the time of the levy of other taxes for city purposes a tax not exceeding one half of a mill on the dollar upon all taxable property within the limits of such cities and towns for the purpose of creating a firemen's pension fund. All moneys derived from taxes so levied and all moneys received as membership fees and dues as hereinafter provided and all moneys received from grants, donations, and devises for the benefit of such fund shall constitute a fund to be known and designated as a firemen's pension fund, which said fund shall be under the control of a board of trustees and shall be exclusively devoted to and for the purposes hereinafter enumerated. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 1.]

SEC. 932-b. Board of trustees—to serve without compensation. The chief officer of the fire department, the city treasurer, and the city solicitor, or attorney, of such cities and towns shall be ex-officio members of and shall constitute the board of trustees of the firemen's pension fund. The chief officer of the fire department shall be president and the city treasurer, treasurer of such board of trustees and the faithful performance of the duties of the treasurer shall be secured by his official bond as city treasurer. Such trustees shall not receive any compensation for their services as members of said board. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 2.]

SEC. 932-c. Investment of surplus. The firemen's pension fund shall be kept and preserved as a separate fund. The board of trustees shall have power to invest any surplus left in such fund at the end of the fiscal year, but no part of the fund realized from any tax levy shall be used for any purpose other than the payment of pensions. Investments shall be limited to interest-bearing bonds of the United States, of the state of Iowa, of the county, township or municipal corporation of the state of Iowa. All such securities shall be deposited with the treasurer of the board of trustees for safe-keeping. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 3.]

SEC. 932-d. Gifts, devises or bequests—membership fees—assessments. The board of trustees may take by gift, grant, devise, or bequest, any money or property, real or personal, or other thing of value for the benefit of the firemen's pension fund. All rewards in money, fees, gifts, or emoluments of every kind or nature that may be paid or given to any fire department or to any member thereof, except when allowed to be retained or given to endow a medal or other permanent or competitive reward on account of extraordinary services rendered by said fire department or any member thereof, and all fines and penalties imposed upon members shall be paid into the said pension fund and become a part thereof. Every member of the paid fire department of any city or incorporated town within the provisions of this act shall be required to pay to the treasurer of said fund a membership fee to be fixed by the board of trustees, not exceeding five dollars, and shall also be assessed and required to pay annually an amount equal to one per cent. per annum upon the amount of the annual salary paid to him, which said assessment shall be deducted and retained in equal monthly installments out of such salary. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 4.]

SEC. 932-e. Who entitled to pensions—conditions of retirement—amount paid—disability—exemption. That section five of chapter sixty-one of the acts of the thirty-third general assembly, as amended by chapter fifty of the acts of the thirty-fourth general assembly be repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Any member of an organized paid fire department within the provisions of this act who shall have served twenty-two years or more in such department and shall have reached the age of fifty years, or who shall, while a member of such department, become mentally or physically permanently disabled from performing the duties of a fireman, shall be entitled to be retired, and upon retirement he shall be paid out of the firemen's pension fund of the city in which such department is located, a monthly pension equal to one half the amount of salary received by him monthly at the date he became entitled to retirement. Provided, however, that no member who has not served five years or more in such department shall be entitled to be retired and paid a pension under the provisions of this act on account of being mentally or physically permanently disabled, unless such disability was contracted while engaged in the performance of his duties or by reason of following the occupation of such fireman. Provided, further, that the chief officer of any fire department shall have the power to assign any member of the department, retired or drawing pensions under this act, to the performance of light duties in such fire department. The question of disability shall be determined by the trustees upon the advice of a physician appointed by the board of trustees for that purpose. Upon the death of any member of such fire department while in the service, or of any member who shall have been retired, leaving a widow or minor children or dependent father or mother surviving him, there shall be paid out of said fund as follows: To the surviving widow, so long as she remains unmarried and of good moral character, a pension of twenty dollars per month. If there be no surviving widow, or upon the death or remarriage of such widow, then to his dependent father and mother, if both survive, or to either dependent parent, if one survive, twenty dollars per month. To the guardian of each surviving minor child under sixteen years of age, six dollars per month. Provided, however, that the aggregate of all such payments shall not exceed one half of the amount of the salary of such member at the time of his death or retirement. If any such member shall have served twenty-two years in such department but shall not have reached the age of fifty years, he shall be entitled to retirement as above; provided, however, that no pension shall be paid while he lives until he reaches the age of fifty years. The provisions of this bill shall apply to volunteer or call members of a paid fire department, excepting that, as to such volunteer or call members, the amount of pension to be paid shall be such as the board of trustees shall fix or determine. After any member shall become entitled to be retired, such right shall not be lost or forfeited by discharge or for any other reason except conviction for felony. All pensions paid under the provisions of this act shall be exempt from liability for debts of the person to or on account of whom the same is[1] paid and shall not be subject to seizure upon execution or other process." [35 G. A., ch. 9, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 61, § 5.]

[1"as" in enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 932-f. When effective. No pension shall be paid under the provisions of this act prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred ten, and no portion of the pension fund accumulated under the provisions of this act shall be expended for any purpose whatsoever prior to that time. If, on that date, there are living any person or persons who would have been entitled to draw pensions under the provisions of this act, but for this limitation, pensions shall be paid to said persons from and after the first day of January, nineteen hundred ten, as though the right to said pensions had accrued on that date. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 6.]

SEC. 932-g. Reëxamination of retired members. If any member of any fire department shall have been retired by reason of physical or mental disability, the board of trustees shall have the right and power, at any time, to cause such retired member to be brought before it and again examined by competent physicians for the purpose of discovering whether such disability yet continues and whether such retired member should be continued on the pension roll, and shall also have the power to examine witnesses for the same purpose. Such retired member shall be entitled to reasonable notice that such examination will be made and to be present at the time of the taking of any testimony, shall be permitted to examine the witnesses brought before the board, and shall also have the right to introduce evidence in his own behalf. All witnesses produced shall be examined under oath and any member of such board of trustees is hereby authorized and empowered to administer such oath to such witnesses. The decision of such board upon such matters shall be final and conclusive, in the absence of fraud, and no appeal shall be allowed therefrom. Such disabled member shall remain upon the pension roll unless and until reinstated in such fire department by reason of such examination. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 7.]

SEC. 932-h. Provisions subject to alteration. The provisions of this act shall be, at all times subject to alteration or change and all persons claiming benefits under the provisions hereof shall be entitled to receive only such benefits as provided by law at the time such benefits shall be paid. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 8.]

SEC. 932-i. Moneys drawn—how paid—report. All pensions paid and all moneys drawn from the pension fund, under the provisions of this act, shall be upon warrants signed by the board of trustees, which said warrants shall designate the name of the person and the purpose for which payment is made. The treasurer of the board of trustees shall prepare annually, immediately after the first day of January, a report of the receipts and expenditures for the year ending December thirty-first of the previous year, showing the money on hand, how invested, all moneys received and paid out, which said report shall be filed with the city clerk. [33 G. A., ch. 61, § 9.]

CHAPTER 13-B.

OF PENSIONS FOR DISABLED AND RETIRED POLICEMEN.

SECTION 932-j. Policemen's pension fund—levy of tax for. In all cities and towns, including cities organized under special charter, now or hereafter having an organized police department, there shall be annually levied at the time of the levy of other taxes for city purposes a tax not exceeding one half of a mill on the dollar upon all taxable property within the limits of such cities and towns for the purpose of creating a policemen's pension fund. All moneys derived from taxes so levied and all moneys received as membership fees and dues as hereinafter provided and all moneys received from grants, donations, and devises, for the benefit of such fund shall constitute a fund to be known and designated as a policemen's pension fund, which said fund shall be under the control of a board of trustees and shall be exclusively devoted to and for the purposes hereinafter enumerated. [34 G. A., ch. 51, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

SEC. 932-k. Board of trustees—to serve without compensation. The chief officer of the police department, the city treasurer, and the city solicitor, or attorney, of such cities and towns shall be ex-officio members of and shall constitute the board of trustees of the policemen's pension fund. The chief officer of the police department shall be president and the city treasurer, treasurer of such board of trustees and the faithful performance of the duties of the treasurer shall be secured by his official bond as city treasurer. Such trustees shall not receive any compensation for their services as members of said board. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.]

SEC. 932-l. Investment of surplus. The policemen's pension fund shall be kept and preserved as a separate fund. The board of trustees shall have power to invest any surplus left in such fund at the end of the fiscal year, but no part of the fund realized from any tax levy shall be used for any purpose other than the payment of pensions. Investments shall be limited to interest-bearing bonds of the United States, of the state of Iowa, of any county, township, or municipal corporation of the state of Iowa. All such securities shall be deposited with the treasurer of the board of trustees for safe-keeping. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 3.]

SEC. 932-m. Gifts, devises or bequests—membership fee—assessments. The board of trustees may take by gift, grant, devise, or bequest, any money or property, real or personal, or other thing of value for the benefit of the policemen's pension fund. All rewards in money, fees, gifts or emoluments of every kind or nature that may be paid or given to any police department or to any member thereof, except when allowed to be retained or given to endow a medal or other permanent or competitive reward on account of extraordinary services rendered by said police department or any member thereof, and all fines and penalties imposed upon members shall be paid into the said pension fund and become a part thereof. Every member of the paid police department of any city or incorporated town within the provisions of this act shall be required to pay to the treasurer of said fund a membership fee to be fixed by the board of trustees, not exceeding five dollars, and shall also be assessed and required to pay annually an amount equal to one per cent. per annum upon the amount of the annual salary paid to him, which said assessment shall be deducted and retained in equal semiannual installments out of such salary. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 4.]

SEC. 932-n. Who entitled to pensions—conditions of retirement—amount paid—disability—exemption. Any member of a police department within the provisions of this act who shall, while a member of such department and while engaged in the performance of his duties as such policeman, be injured or disabled and, upon an examination by a physician appointed by the board of trustees, be found to be physically or mentally permanently disabled so as to render him unfit for the performance of duties of a policeman, shall be entitled to be retired and the board of trustees shall thereupon order his retirement and, upon being retired, [he] shall be paid out of the policemen's pension fund of such city, monthly, a sum equal to one half of the amount of the monthly compensation allowed such member as salary at the date of his injury or disability, if such person be a member of an organized police department in which salaries are paid to its members. If a member of such police department, retired, as above provided, because of permanent disability, shall die as a result of such injury, or if a member of such police department, while in the performance of his duties, shall be killed or die as a result of injuries received, or if a member die because of any disease contracted by reason of his occupation as a policeman, and shall leave a widow or minor children or dependent father or mother surviving him, there shall be paid to the surviving widow, so long as she remains unmarried and of good moral character, a pension of twenty dollars per month out of the policemen's pension fund, and there shall also be paid to the guardian of the minor children of such member, out of said fund, a pension of six dollars per month for each of said children until it or they reach the age of sixteen years; provided, however, that there shall not be paid to the surviving widow and minor children an aggregate sum in excess of a sum equal to one half of the amount of the salary of such member at the time of his death or disability; and if such deceased policeman leave no widow or minor children, then there shall be paid to his dependent father and mother or to either, if one alone survives, a pension of twenty dollars per month. Any member of a police department who may be entitled to benefits under the provisions of this act and who has served twenty-two years or more in such police department, of which the last five years' service shall have been continuous, may make application to the board of trustees to be retired from such police department, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the board of trustees to order the retirement of such member, if it be found that he is unable to perform the duties to which he is or may be assigned, or has reached the age of fifty-five years; and upon retirement, he shall be paid a monthly pension equal to one half the amount of salary received by him as monthly compensation at the date of his retirement. Any member of a police department entitled to be retired, under the provisions of this act, but who shall continue in service and who shall be thereafter discharged for cause other than the violation of any law of the United States or the state of Iowa, amounting to a felony, shall, upon being discharged, be entitled to, and there shall be paid to him, a monthly pension equal to one half of the amount of salary received by him at the date of his discharge; provided, however, that the chief officer of any police department shall have the power to assign any members of the police department retired or drawing pensions under this act to the performance of light duties in such police department in cases of extraordinary emergencies; and provided further that, after the decease of a retired or a discharged member receiving a pension under the provisions of this act, his widow and minor child or children under sixteen years of age, or in case he leaves no widow and minor children, his dependent parent or parents, if any, shall be entitled to a pension in the amount and under the conditions heretofore provided to be paid to the surviving widow and minor children and dependent parents of a member killed or disabled in the performance of his duties. And provided further, if, at any time, there shall be insufficient funds in the policemen's pension fund to meet and pay all pensions due and owing from said fund, the board of trustees shall apportion the amount on hand in said fund among the persons entitled to such pensions in proportion to the amount to which each is entitled and the payment of such proportionate amount shall be considered a full payment of the amount then due, and no liability shall thereafter exist for the unpaid portions of such pensions. All pensions paid under the provisions of this act shall be exempt from liability for debts of the person receiving the same and shall not be subject to seizure upon execution or other process. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 5.]

SEC. 932-o. When effective. No pension shall be paid under the provisions of this act prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred ten, and no portion of the pension fund accumulated under the provisions of this act shall be expended for any purpose whatsoever prior to that time. If on that date there are living any person or persons who would have been entitled to draw pensions under the provisions of this act, but for this limitation, pensions shall be paid to said persons from and after the first day of January, nineteen hundred ten, as though the right to said pensions had accrued on that date. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 6.]

SEC. 932-p. Such retired member shall be entitled to reasonable notice that such examination will be made and to be present at the time of the taking of any testimony, shall be permitted to examine the witnesses brought before the board, and shall also have the right to introduce evidence in his own behalf. All witnesses produced shall be examined under oath, and any member of such board of trustees is hereby authorized and empowered to administer such oath to such witnesses. The decision of such board upon such matters shall be final and conclusive, in the absence of fraud, and no appeal shall be allowed therefrom. Such disabled member shall remain upon the pension roll unless and until reinstated in such police department by reason of such examination. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 7.]

SEC. 932-q. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 8.]

SEC. 932-r. [33 G. A., ch. 62, § 9.]

CHAPTER 14.

OF CITIES UNDER SPECIAL CHARTERS.

SECTION 933. General provisions not applicable.

The sections in this chapter are applicable only to cities under special charter. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111–528, 82 N. W. 994.

A statute applicable only to cities under special charter is not unconstitutional for want of uniformity of operation. The adoption in the constitution of 1857 of the provision prohibiting the granting of special charters to cities did not annul or render invalid the charters already granted. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124–1, 97 N. W. 1082.

A statute relating to cities and towns containing no reference to special charter cities does not apply to such cities. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 136–191, 113 N. W. 773.

SEC. 936. Elections.

This provision places elections and election contests in special charter cities fully under the provisions of title VI of the code so far as those provisions might be applied to elections in other cities. Sterne v. Off, 149–96, 127 N. W. 1038.

SEC. 937. Council—vacancies. In any such city having a population of twenty thousand or more, as shown by the last state or national census, the council shall consist of a mayor, two aldermen at large, and one alderman from each ward. At the first annual city election after the taking effect of this code, there shall be elected two aldermen at large, and one alderman from each ward. Thereafter the successors of such aldermen shall be elected biennially. The aldermen in office at the time of taking effect of this code shall continue in office only until the election and qualification of the aldermen herein provided for. Vacancies in the office of alderman shall be filled by the remaining members of the council of said city. The vacancy shall be filled within thirty days after the same has occurred, at a regular or special meeting, and a majority vote of the remaining members of the city council shall be necessary to fill the same. [35 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.]

SEC. 943. Compensation of aldermen—not to be interested.

The provision that no member of the city council shall be directly or indirectly interested in any contract for work or services does not affect the validity of the contract in such sense that a property owner can complain after the work is done of a violation of such provision. Diver v. Keokuk, 126–691, 102 N. W. 542.

The provision that a member of a city council shall not become interested directly or indirectly in any contract for work or service to be performed for the corporation, has no application to the employment of a member of the city council as physician by the local board of health appointed by the mayor. Dewitt v. Mills County, 126–169, 101 N. W. 766.

SEC. 947. Ordinances—fines.

A city may not impose a fine in excess of $100 for breach of an ordinance, and if the ordinance provides cumulative penalties for a continuing offense, so that the aggregate fines for such offense may amount to more than $100, the ordinance is in that respect void. State v. Babcock, 112–250, 83 N. W. 908.

SEC. 952. Ordinances signed and published—general powers. Sections six hundred eighty-five, six hundred eighty-six, six hundred eighty-seven and six hundred ninety-three of chapter three of this title, and sections six hundred ninety-five to seven hundred nineteen, seven hundred twenty-two to seven hundred thirty-two inclusive, of chapter four of this title, are hereby made applicable to cities acting under special charter. [27 G. A., ch. 28, § 1.]

The signature of an ordinance by one who under the authority of the charter is the presiding officer of the council pro tempore in the absence of the mayor is sufficient. Collins v. Keokuk, 147–233, 124 N. W. 601.

SEC. 953. Library tax—repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 50, § 1.]

SEC. 953-a. Repeal. That section nine hundred fifty-three of the code and section two of chapter twenty-eight of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 50, § 1.]

SEC. 955. Water and gasworks—electric light and power plants—street railway and telephone franchises. Such cities shall have power to establish, erect, purchase, lease, maintain or operate, within or without the corporate limits, heating plants, waterworks, gasworks, electric light or electric power plants, with all the necessary reservoirs, mains, filters, streams, trenches, pipes, drains, poles, wires, burners, machinery, apparatus, and other requisites of said works or plants; but no such works or plants shall be thus established, erected, purchased or leased unless a majority of the electors voting on such proposition shall vote in favor of the same, at a general or special election. They may also grant individuals or private corporations the authority to erect, maintain or purchase such works or plants or railways, street railways or telephone systems, for the term of not more than twenty-five years, and may renew or extend the term of such grants for a period not exceeding twenty-five years; but no exclusive franchise shall be thus granted, extended or renewed, and no franchise shall be granted or authorized, until after notice of the application therefor has been published once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in such city. [23 G. A., ch. 11, § 1; 22 G. A., ch. 11, §§ 1, 2; 22 G. A., ch. 26; 14 G. A., ch. 78, §§ 2–5; C. '73, § 471.]

[The above section is made applicable to cities under commission form of government by § 1056-a19. EDITOR.]

The notice contemplated by this section is intended to advise the property owners of the city not only that the franchise is desired but also of the very terms of such franchise. Hall v. Cedar Rapids, 115–199, 88 N. W. 448.

The granting of permission to a street railway having a franchise for the laying of its tracks in the streets, to lay such tracks on a street not already occupied by it, is not the granting of a new franchise requiring statutory notice. Thurston v. Huston, 123–157, 98 N. W. 637.

SEC. 955-a. Repeal. The law as it appears in section nine hundred fifty-five-a of the suplement to the code [1902] is hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 46.]

[§ 955-a of the 1902 supplement was 29 G. A., ch. 51, § 1. EDITOR.]

SEC. 958. Other general powers. Sections seven hundred thirty-four to seven hundred forty-one, inclusive, of chapter four; chapter five; and sections seven hundred fifty-one to seven hundred seventy-four, and seven hundred seventy-seven to seven hundred ninety-one, inclusive, chapter six, of this title are made applicable to cities acting under special charter. And wherever the words "board of supervisors," "county auditor or recorder of deeds," and "county treasurer," are used in any section made applicable by chapter fourteen of title five of this code, to cities acting under special charters, the words "city council," "city clerk or recorder," and "city collector or treasurer," shall be respectively substituted. [27 G. A., ch. 28, § 4.]

Property in a special charter city which has adopted the commission form of government is not subject to bridge taxes levied by the board of supervisors. Keokuk v. Kennedy, 156–680, 137 N. W. 914.

SEC. 963-a. Applicable to special charter cities. That section eight hundred and seven of the code be and the same is hereby made applicable to cities acting under special charter. [35 G. A., ch. 79, § 1.]

SEC. 965. Street improvements and sewers. Before the council orders any street improved or sewer constructed, it shall direct the engineer to prepare a plat, showing the location and general nature of the improvement, the extent thereof, the one or more kinds of material, or, in case of sewers, the size and one or more kinds of material to be used, and an estimate of the cost thereof, and the amount assessable upon any railway or street railway and upon each lot or parcel of land adjacent to or abutting on such improvement per front foot or square foot in area, and file such plat and estimate in the office of the clerk or recorder. Notice of its intention to make such improvement shall be published by the city clerk or recorder in three consecutive issues of a newspaper of such city, stating that such plat is on file, and, generally, the nature of the improvement, its location, one or more kinds of material to be used, and the estimate of its cost, and fixing the time before which objections thereto can be filed, which time shall be not less than five days after the last publication of such notice. The council, after considering such objections, shall determine what changes, if any, shall be made in the plan shown by such plat, and may, by resolution, order such improvement, prescribing generally the extent of the work, the one or more kinds of material and, in case of sewers, the size and one or more kinds of material to be used, when the work shall be completed, the terms of payment, and provide for the publication of notice asking proposals for doing such work, and the time the same will be acted upon. [34 G. A., ch. 40, § 3.] [25 G. A., ch. 7, §§ 19, 20; 22 G. A., ch. 6, §§ 2, 3; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 21.]

The notice required by this section is jurisdictional. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 137–107, 111 N. W. 1013.

If the plat and schedule are filed as required in this section it is unnecessary to file a duplicate after the completion of the work. Ibid.

SEC. 971. Notice and levy of special assessments. After filing the plat and schedule referred to in section eight hundred twenty-one, chapter seven, of this title, the council shall direct the clerk or recorder to give ten days' notice, by publishing same three times in a newspaper published in said city, that such plat and schedule are on file in the office of the clerk, fixing a time within which all objections thereto or to the prior proceedings must be made in writing; and the council, having heard the objections and made necessary corections, shall levy the special assessment as shown in such plat and schedule. [27 G. A., ch. 28, § 3; 25 G. A., ch. 7, §§ 11, 18; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 6; 22 G. A., ch. 6, § 5; 21 G. A., ch. 168, §§ 11, 19.]

The provision of this section is not repealed by 28 G. A., ch. 29, making the general provisions of code § 823 applicable to cities under special charters. Diver v. Keokuk, 126–691, 102 N. W. 542.

This section is not unconstitutional for not requiring the notice to fix a time certain for hearing objections. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 137–107, 111 N. W. 1013.

SEC. 975. When delinquent—lien. Such assessment, and each installment with the interest thereon, shall be paid with accrued costs, at the office of the collector or treasurer, by the owner of the property upon which it is levied, at or before the time said property is sold for taxes or interest or both, and each installment and all interest due and unpaid shall become delinquent at the time fixed by ordinance or resolution, and shall bear such interest from the time of becoming delinquent, as ordinary taxes. All special assessments shall be a lien upon the property against which the same are assessed, from the date of the resolution of the council levying the same and shall be prior and superior to all other liens except ordinary taxes, and shall not be divested by any judicial sale of the property. [31 G. A., ch. 31; 25 G. A., ch. 7, § 11; 22 G. A., ch. 5, § 7; 21 G. A., ch. 168, § 12; 20 G. A., ch. 20, §§ 5, 6; 20 G. A., ch. 25; 17 G. A., ch. 162, § 3; 14 G. A., ch. 45, § 6; 13 G. A., ch. 14; 12 G. A., ch. 111; C. '73, §§ 478, 481; R. § 1068.]

SEC. 979. Other provisions as to special assessments. Sections eight hundred twenty-eight, eight hundred thirty-two, eight hundred thirty-three, eight hundred thirty-four, eight hundred thirty-five, and eight hundred forty, chapter seven, of this title, are made applicable to cities under special charter. [27 G. A., ch. 28, § 5.]

SEC. 984. Personal debt—action to enforce.

The provision of § 479 of the code of '73 for recovery of ten per cent. interest and expenses of collection, where the assessment is collected by suit against the owner, held applicable only to a suit by the city. Des Moines Brick Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 108–307, 79 N. W. 77.

The statutory provisions relating to special charter cities that recovery against an abutting owner for an improvement may be assessed on the basis of quantum meruit, notwithstanding infirmities or irregularities in the proceedings for the assessment, held not applicable where for want of a valid contract as required by law the city had no jurisdiction to make any assessment for such improvement. Allen v. Davenport, 132 Fed. 209.

SEC. 986. Judgment.

The irregularities and defects referred to in this section are those of the officers of the city relative to the proceedings which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties. Neither the city nor the property owners can be forced to pay for pavement which fails to comply substantially with the contract made for its construction. Snouffer v. Tipton, 150–73, 129 N. W. 345.

SEC. 989. Limitation of action questioning.

[The above section is made applicable to cities under commission form of government by § 1056-a19. EDITOR.]

This section is not to be given a retrospective operation. Waples v. Dubuque, 116–167, 89 N. W. 194.

The provision is not applicable to certificates and bonds already issued at the time the provision was adopted. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127–450, 103 N. W. 471.

Such limitation has no application to a reassessment to pay such certificates or bonds. Ibid.

SEC. 991. Park commissioners—election—ordinance submitted—terms. That sections nine hundred ninety-one to nine hundred ninety-six inclusive of the code, and amendments thereto be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

At the first regular municipal election after the passage hereof, three commissioners shall be elected, and shall hold their office respectively for two, four and six years, their respective terms to be decided by lot, and their successor shall be elected for the full term of six years; provided, however, that in all such cities under special charter, and containing a population of less than forty thousand, not now having park commissioners, the ordinance establishing such park commissioners shall not be in force until it has been submitted to the voters at a special or regular municipal election, and approved by a majority of the votes cast at such election; and provided further, that in all such cities under special charter containing a population of forty thousand or over, in which there already exists a board of three park commissioners whose term of office is six years, and one of the members of which board is elected every two years at each regular municipal election, the three commissioners at present holding the office of park commissioners in such cities are hereby made the commissioners in such city in accordance with the provisions of this act, and they and their successors shall have and exercise all the powers and duties of park commissioners within the provisions of this act. 9. Bond fund. A tax for the purpose of creating a bond fund sufficient to pay the interest, to accrue before the next annual levy, on funding or refunding bonds outstanding, and to pay the principal of such funding or refunding bonds. In case of such bonds, the levy shall be so made that, dividing the principal into as many parts as the bonds have years to run, not less than one such part shall be levied each year, and shall be made so that the fund derived therefrom shall be available and sufficient to pay the bonds at their maturity; [24 G. A., ch. 14, § 5; 23 G. A., ch. 4, §§ 6, 7; 22 G. A., ch. 17, § 5; 21 G. A., ch. 78.]

10. Water and gas or electric light and power bonds. A tax to be used exclusively in payment of the principal and interest of bonds issued for the construction of water and gasworks, electric light and power plants, and which shall be levied in the manner provided in the preceding subdivision; [23 G. PAR. 5. A statutory provision not retained in the code provided that property paying special assessments for street improvements might be exempted from road tax. Held that the repeal of such provision by the adoption of the code left the property subject to taxation under the provisions of this section. Miller v. Hageman, 114–195, 86 N. W. 281.

Par. 7. When the council refuses to levy a tax for the expense of running, operating and repairing waterworks owned by the city, one who has furnished fuel on the order of the trustees under the provisions of code supp. § 747-a may maintain an action against the city for damages for refusal to make such levy where the waterworks fund is not sufficient to meet the operating expense. Martin-Strelau Co. v. Dubuque, 149–1, 127 N. W. 1013.

Such obligation of the city is not affected by the amount of its general indebtedness. Ibid.

SEC. 1010. Levy and collection of taxes.

Where a city had provided by ordinance for notice to the tax payer before the city board of equalization could add to his taxes, held that in the absence of such notice the increase of his assessment by such board was invalid. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Redmond, 120–601, 94 N. W. 1096.

SEC. 1011. Assessment.

The provisions of code § 1320 as to listing of property by an agent of a nonresident owner are applicable to special charter cities. German Trust Co. v. Board of Equalization, 121–325, 96 N. W. 878.

SEC. 1020. Questioning deed—refund. Sections fourteen hundred and six, fourteen hundred and seven, fourteen hundred and eight, fourteen hundred twenty-three, fourteen hundred thirty-four, fourteen hundred forty-six, fourteen hundred forty-seven and fourteen hundred forty-eight, chapter two, title seven, of this code are hereby made applicable to cities acting under special charters except that, where the word "treasurer" is used, there shall be used the words "city collector or treasurer or deputy treasurer or deputy or officer authorized to collect city taxes." And where the word auditor is used, there shall be substituted the words, "city clerk or recorder." [27 G. A., ch. 28, § 6.]

SEC. 1026. Officers appointed—quorum.

There is nothing in the statutes prohibiting a member of the city council from being employed by the local board of health at an agreed compensation to treat cases of contagious diseases. Dewitt v. Mills County, 126–169, 101 N. W. 766.

SEC. 1050. Notice of unliquidated claim—limitation of action.

The limitations provided for by this section held not to be retroactive in effect. Thoeni v. Dubuque, 115–482, 88 N. W. 967.

A suit for injuries resulting from a defective sidewalk cannot be commenced within thirty days from the date of the service of the notice of the claim for such injuries, under the provisions of this section. Kenyon v. Cedar Rapids, 124–195, 99 N. W. 692.

Under the statutory provision relating to notice of claims against a special charter city before bringing suit the action must be commenced within three months after the cause thereof has accrued, and the filing of the claim must be at least thirty days before the suit is brought. Foley v. Cedar Rapids, 133–64, 110 N. W. 158.

SEC. 1051. Notice of claim for personal injury—limitation.

Reasonable certainty as to the place is all that is required in the notice. Rusch v. Dubuque, 116–402, 90 N. W. 80.

This section applies only to cities under special charters. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111–528, 82 N. W. 994.

For similar provisions as to other cities, see notes to § 3447, par. 1.

Recovery for the claim properly described in the notice is not defeated by the fact that the plaintiff asks in his petition to recover a larger sum than that named in the notice, and held that a verdict for the amount thus named would not be disturbed. Van Camp v. Keokuk, 130–716, 107 N. W. 933.

The notice required herein should advise the municipality of the nature and cause of the injury, the time and place when and where it occurred, and the particular defects or negligence which it is claimed caused or contributed to it. The claimant is not bound however to rely upon a single defect nor to confine his statement of the defendant's negligence to such defect. Bauer v. Dubuque, 122–500, 98 N. W. 355.

Notice of the nature and cause of an injury alleged to be due to the negligence of the city and for which recovery is sought is sufficient if it states in a general way the nature and cause of the injury and the defect or negligence complained of. It is not necessary that the facts constituting negligence be set out in detail. Schnee v. Dubuque, 122–459, 98 N. W. 298.

There cannot be recovery under an amendment to the petition filed more than three months after the injury for items of damage not included within the statement of the claim. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124–1, 97 N. W. 1082.

Under an amendment to a petition filed more than three months after the injury of which no notice was given, there can be no recovery for items of damages not included in the statement of claim. Frazee v. Cedar Rapids, 151–251, 131 N. W. 33.

As to sufficiency of notice of claim, see notes to code § 3447, par. 1, in this supplement.

[32 G. A., ch. 47, § 3.]

SEC. 1056-a4. Penalty or interest on unpaid taxes. That in cities acting under special charter no penalty or interest shall be collected upon taxes or assessments remaining unpaid four years or more, from the first day of January of the year in which the tax books containing the same were first placed in the hands of the city collector or treasurer. [31 G. A., ch. 32.]

SEC. 1056-a5. Valuation—how provided. That the assessed or taxable value of all property, and the value at which it shall be listed, and upon which the levy shall be made, in special charter cities shall be provided by the city council of such city. [31 G. A., ch. 33, § 1.]

SEC. 1056-a6. [31 G. A., ch. 33, § 2.]

SEC. 1056-a6a. on the taxable property thereof, the same when collected to be known as the levee improvement fund. The proceeds of such fund shall be used exclusively for said purposes. [33 G. A., ch. 60, § 1.]

[The above section is made applicable to cities under commission form of government by § 1056-a19. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1056-a6b. Bonds. In the event that the proceeds of such tax in any one year shall be insufficient to pay for the improvements of that year, or if the city council shall deem best to extend the payment over a number of years, then upon a majority vote of said council approving the same, said cities may borrow the money to make such improvements and issue the negotiable interest-bearing bonds of said city to evidence said debt; provided that the total bond that may be issued under this act by any one city shall not exceed one per centum of the assessed value of said city. [33 G. A., ch. 60, § 2.]

It shall pay out of these funds only for the purposes named. The city treasurer shall be the treasurer of the levee improvement commission. He shall keep the levee improvement funds and the moneys derived from the sale of bonds for water front improvements in a separate and distinct fund from which he shall pay no money except upon the order of the levee improvement commission signed by its chairman and secretary, and countersigned by at least one other member of said levee improvement commission. [35 G. A., ch. 95, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 49, § 2.]

CHAPTER 14-A.

OF UNIFORM SYSTEM OF MUNICIPAL ACCOUNTS.

SECTION 1056-a7. Annual financial report. It shall be the duty of the chief accounting and warrant issuing officer of each city and town, namely auditor or clerk as the case may be, to prepare and to publish the annual report of the financial condition and transactions of the city or town now or hereafter required by law, and all accounting officers of all boards or commission departments and offices whatsoever within the corporate area receiving or disbursing public funds shall file with the auditor or clerk, within thirty days from the expiration of their fiscal year, a report in writing of official transactions in the form and manner required by law. In case of refusal or gross neglect to comply with the law and provisions herein governing the method of accounting for and reporting municipal transactions herein referred to, the official so delinquent shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. The auditor or clerk aforesaid is hereby authorized to institute legal proceedings to enforce the provisions herein requiring report to him. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 1.]

SEC. 1056-a8. How published. In cities having a population of five thousand or over, the annual report aforesaid shall be printed in pamphlet form. At least five hundred copies of said report shall be printed and the expense thereof shall be provided for annually by the city council. In cities and towns having less than five thousand population, the annual report may be published in pamphlet form if authorized by the city council. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 2.]

SEC. 1056-a9. Certified to auditor of state—auditor to publish returns—may send examiner in case of delinquency. That section ten hundred fifty-six-a nine of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"On or before the first day of May of each year the auditor or clerk of each city or town shall forward to the auditor of state a certified copy of the annual report in a form prescribed as hereinafter provided, and said auditor of state shall publish in a separate volume such returns, showing under appropriate schedules the total receipts and expenditures, assets and indebtedness and related data of all cities and towns in the state together with his comment and recommendations respecting desirable changes in the laws governing financial administration in municipalities. If the auditor or clerk of any city or town shall fail to file his report with the auditor of state within the time hereby prescribed the auditor shall have authority to send an examiner or examiners to said city or town to make the report, and the expense of said examiner or examiners, including per diem for the time so employed, shall be charged against such delinquent city or town. It shall be the duty of the auditor or clerk who served in such capacity during the time covered by the report, to prepare and file the same, and if the said auditor or clerk has retired from the office the city or town council shall allow him such compensation for preparing the report as its members may deem proper, the same not to exceed five dollars per day for the time actually employed in such service. Thirty-five hundred copies of said report by the auditor of state shall be annually printed on or before December first for general distribution in accordance with law." [35 G. A., ch. 97, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 3.]

SEC. 1056-a10. Uniform system of accounts—auditor to prescribe —advisory committee. That uniformity in the methods of accounting for and reporting the financial transactions of municipalities may be secured, the auditor of state is authorized and he is hereby directed to formulate and prescribe a system of municipal accounts and method of presenting departmental and general reports which shall be adopted and complied with in the administration of all cities or towns on and after April first, nineteen hundred and seven. To insure careful consideration of the merits and defects of existing methods in local accounting, the auditor of state shall appoint an advisory committee of not less than five nor more than seven persons familiar with municipal accounts, a majority of whom shall be city accounting officers; said committee shall serve without compensation except that their necessary traveling and hotel expenses for a period not to exceed thirty days shall be allowed them, and for such expense the auditor of state is authorized to issue warrants upon the treasurer of state. In the system to be devised as herein contemplated, the officer and persons charged therewith shall adopt so far as practicable the latest and most approved methods in municipal accounting, especially the classifications and definitions of municipal finance in use in the national census office. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 4.]

SEC. 1056-a11. Examiners of municipal accounts—compensation. The auditor of state shall appoint one or more examiners of municipal accounts whose duty it shall be at least once in two years to examine into, audit and report upon the financial condition and transactions of all cities having a population of five thousand or more. Said examiners shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and to administer oaths and shall have access to all books, papers or records essential in a thoroughgoing examination. The examiner in charge of an investigation shall, on the conclusion thereof, file a written report of his findings with the mayor and council and with the auditor of state, including his criticisms of any faults found and his recommendations respecting improvements desirable. Any and all reports thus made and filed shall be open to public inspection. The compensation of said examiners shall be five dollars for each day actually employed, together with their necessary traveling expenses; the sum so due in any case shall be paid by the auditor of state upon the presentation of proper bills therefor, by warrants on the treasury of state; thereupon the auditor of state shall file a claim for the full amount so allowed with the auditor or clerk of the city or town examined, and the council thereof shall provide for its payment. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 5.]

SEC. 1056-a12. Further, upon petition of fifty or more taxpayers of any city or town setting forth facts that in the opinion of the state auditor justify action, the auditor of state shall send an examiner to inspect and report upon the financial administration and condition of the municipality in question. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 6.]

SEC. 1056-a13. Applicable to special charter cities. The foregoing provisions shall apply to cities under special charters. [31 G. A., ch. 34, § 7.]

CHAPTER 14-B.

OF APPOINTMENTS AND REMOVALS.

SECTION 1056-a15. Preference in appointments and promotions. That in every public department and upon all public works in the state of Iowa, and of the counties, cities and towns thereof, honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines from the army and navy of the United States in the late civil war, who are citizens and residents of this state, shall be entitled to preference in appointment, employment and promotion, over other persons of equal qualifications and the persons thus preferred shall not be disqualified from holding any position hereinbefore mentioned on account of his age or by reason of any physical disability, provided such age or disability does not render him incompetent to perform properly the duties of the position applied for, and when such soldier, sailor or marine shall apply for appointment or employment under this act, the officer, board or person whose duty it is or may be to appoint or employ some person to fill such position or place shall, before appointing or employing any one to fill such position or place, make an investigation as to the qualifications of said soldier, sailor or marine for such place or position, and if he is a man of good moral character and can perform the duties of said position so applied for by him, as hereinbefore provided, said officer, board or person shall appoint said soldier, sailor or marine to such position, place or employment. A refusal to allow the preference provided for in this and the next succeeding section to any honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine, or a reduction of his compensation intended to bring about his resignation or discharge entitles such honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine to a right of action therefor in any court of competent jurisdiction for damages, and also a remedy for mandamus for righting the wrong. [30 G. A., ch. 9, § 1.]

If the qualifications of a soldier of the civil war as applicant are not equal to those of the other persons under consideration for appointment he is not entitled to such appointment and the appointing board is authorized to determine that question. McBride v. City Council, 134–501, 110 N. W. 157.

The statute providing for preference of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the civil war who are residents of the state to appointment, employment and promotion in the public service over others of equal qualification, violates no constitutional provision. The right of appointment to a minor municipal office is not a privilege within the constitutional guaranties. Shaw v. Marshalltown, 131–128, 104 N. W. 1121.

It is not sufficient that the applicant for an appointment who is a veteran be found to be of good moral character and competent to discharge the duties of the office. It must appear that his qualifications are equal to those of another who is an applicant for the same position, and in the absence of a finding of such fact by the appointing power, the appointment of the latter will not be set aside. Ross v. City Council of Sioux City, 136–125, 113 N. W. 474.

There is no special obligation to make an investigation as between two applicants both of whom are honorably discharged soldiers and as between two such applicants an appointing officer or board may select at discretion without formal investigation as to their respective qualifications. Kitterman v. Board of Supervisors, 137–275, 115 N. W. 13.

The term of office being fixed, the incumbent who is a veteran has no better right to reappointment to the office than another applicant who is also a veteran. King v. Ottumwa, 148–411, 126 N. W. 943.

The court will not by mandamus control the exercise of discretion on the part of the board in making an appointment, although the person seeking such appointment is an old soldier, unless there has been bad faith. The person seeking appointment in such case must show equal qualifications with the person appointed. Arnold v. Wapello County, 154–111, 134 N. W. 546.

SEC. 1056-a16. Removals. Any person whose rights may be in any way prejudiced contrary to any of the provisions of this section shall be entitled to a writ of mandamus to remedy the wrong. No person holding a position by appointment or employment in the state of Iowa, or in the several counties, cities, or towns, thereof, who is an honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine having served as such in the union army or navy during the late civil war shall be removed from such position or employment except for incompetency or misconduct shown after a hearing, upon due notice, upon stated charges, and with the right of such employe or appointee to a review by a writ of certiorari. The burden of proving incompetency or misconduct shall rest upon the party alleging the same. Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to the position of private secretary or deputy of any official or department, or to any person holding a strictly confidential relation to the appointing officer. [30 G. A., ch. 9, § 2.]

[The above chapter 14-B is not applicable to the offices of clerk and reporter of the supreme court. See § 207-b. EDITOR.]

Where the original appointment is for an indefinite time the action of the board in fixing a definite term after which appointment will be made for another definite term is in effect a removal and invalid if there is no right of removal under the act. Kitterman v. Board of Supervisors, 137–275, 115 N. W. 13.

The provision as to removal only on charges and investigation is constitutional. Ibid.

The appointment of a veteran to a public service or employment of a continuous character for which no term is fixed by statute must be treated as continuous and the provisions of the statute cannot be defeated by the action of the board in appointing him for a specified term. Kitterman v. Board of Supervisors, 145–22, 123 N. W. 740.

CHAPTER 14-C.

OF GOVERNMENT OF CERTAIN CITIES.

SECTION 1056-a17. Cities affected. That section ten hundred fifty-six-a seventeen of chapter fourteen-C of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Cities having by the last preceding state or national census a population of two thousand or over, including any such city acting under special charter, may become organized as a city under the provisions of this act by proceeding as hereinafter provided." [35 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 1.]

The statute providing for commission form of government in cities of a certain description is not objectionable as local or special legislation. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

The statute is not unconstitutional as involving a delegation of legislative power. The only question to be submitted to the electors is whether the city shall be brought within the class of cities to which the statute is to be applicable. Ibid.

The statute does not violate the provision of the federal constitution guaranteeing to every state a republican form of government. Ibid.

Nor is it in conflict with the provision of the state constitution that the powers of government shall be divided into three departments. Ibid.

SEC. 1056-a17a. Reduction in population of no effect. Whenever any city shall have been heretofore or may be hereafter organized on the commission plan under the provisions of title five, chapter fourteen-C of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by chapter sixty-four of the laws of the thirty-third general assembly, no reduction of the population of such city shown by a subsequent census shall have any effect upon the organization, rights, powers, duties or obligations of such city or any of its officers, but the same shall continue and remain as though no such reduction or apparent reduction of population was made to appear. [34 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.]

SEC. 1056-a18. Petition — question submitted — result certified — election of officers. That section ten hundred fifty-six-a eighteen of chapter fourteen-C of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Upon petition of electors equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding city election of any such city, the mayor shall, not less than thirty days prior to the election to be held as herein provided, by proclamation submit the question of organizing as a city under this act at a special election to be held at a time specified therein, and within two months after said petition is filed; provided, however, that in case not less than ten per cent. of the qualified electors of any city reside in each of two or more townships, said petition shall be signed by not less than ten per centum of the qualified electors of said city residing in each of said townships. If said plan is not adopted at the special election called, the question of adopting said plan shall not be resubmitted to the voters of said city for adoption within two years thereafter, and then the question to adopt shall be resubmitted upon the presentation of a petition signed by electors as hereinbefore provided, equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general city election. At such election, the proposition to be submitted shall be, 'Shall the proposition to organize the city of (name the city), under chapter fourteen-C of the supplement to the code, 1907, and amendments thereto be adopted?' and the election thereupon shall be conducted, the vote canvassed, and the result declared in the same manner as provided by law in respect to other city elections. If the majority of the votes cast shall be in favor thereof, cities having a population of twenty-five thousand and over shall thereupon proceed to the election of a mayor and four councilmen, and cities having a population of two thousand and less than twenty-five thousand shall proceed to the election of a mayor and two councilmen, as hereinafter provided. Immediately after such proposition is adopted, the mayor shall transmit to the governor, to the secretary of state, and to the county auditor, each a certificate stating that such proposition was adopted. At the next regular city election after the adoption of such proposition there shall be elected a mayor and councilmen. In the event, however, that the next regular city election does not occur within one year after such special election the mayor shall, within ten days after such special election, by proclamation call a special election for the election of a mayor and councilmen, sixty days' notice thereof being given in such call, such election in either case to be conducted as hereinafter provided." [35 G. A., ch. 102, §§ 1, 2; 34 G. A., ch. 52, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 2.]

It is not improper to submit to the voters at one election the question whether the commission form of government shall be adopted and the further question as to who shall be the officers under the proposed organization. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

SEC. 1056-a19. Statutes applicable—existing ordinances, resolutions. All laws governing cities of the first and second class and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and sections nine hundred fifty-five, nine hundred fifty-six, nine hundred fifty-nine, nine hundred sixty-four, nine hundred eighty-nine, ten hundred, ten hundred twenty-three, and ten hundred fifty-three of the code, chapter sixty of the laws of the thirty-third general assembly and acts amendatory thereof now applicable to special charter cities and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, shall apply to and govern cities organized under this act. All by-laws, ordinances and resolutions lawfully passed and in force in any such city under its former organization shall remain in force until altered or repealed by the council elected under the provisions of this act. The territorial limits of such city shall remain the same as under its former organization and all rights and property of every description which were vested in any such city under its former organization, shall vest in the same under the organization herein contemplated, and no right or liability either in favor of or against it, existing at the time, and no suit or prosecution of any kind shall be affected by such change, unless otherwise provided for in this act. [34 G. A., ch. 53, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 3.]

The laws governing boards of public works do not apply to the action of the city councils in cities organized under the commission form of government. Sims v. Des Moines, 146–410, 125 N. W. 329.

The change to a commission form of government does not affect the sufficiency of notice of a claim for personal injuries against the city which has already arisen. Frazee v. Cedar Rapids, 151–251, 131 N. W. 33.

SEC. 1056-a20. Elective officers — vacancies — terms of office. In every city having a population of twenty-five thousand and over there shall be elected at the regular biennial municipal election a mayor and four councilmen, and in every city having a population of two thousand and less than twenty-five thousand, there shall be elected at such election a mayor and two councilmen. If any vacancy occurs in any such office the remaining members of said council shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy during the balance of the unexpired term. Said officers shall be nominated and elected at large. Said officers shall qualify and their terms of office shall begin on the first Monday after their election. The terms of office of the mayor and councilmen or aldermen in such city in office at the beginning of the terms of office of the mayor and councilmen first elected under the provisions of this act shall then cease and determine, and the terms of office of all other appointive officers in force in such city, except as hereinafter provided, shall cease and determine as soon as the council shall by resolution declare. [35 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 4.]

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the said city clerk shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election for mayor. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general municipal election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges can be made by not more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges at a general municipal election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the city clerk, upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said clerk, within six hours of the closing of the polls. [35 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 5.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 5.]

The statute providing for primary election in cities adopting the commission form of government is not unconstitutional as forbidding the electors to vote for other candidates than those whose names are placed on the primary ballot. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

SEC. 1056-a22. Services for hire—penalty. Any person who shall agree to perform any services in the interest of any candidate for any office provided in this act, in consideration of any money or other valuable thing for such services performed in the interest of any candidate, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 5-a.]

SEC. 1056-a23. Bribery and illegal voting—penalty. Any person offering to give a bribe, either in money or other consideration, to any elector for the purpose of influencing his vote at any election provided in this act, or any elector entitled to vote at any such election receiving and accepting such bribe or other consideration; any person making false answer to any of the provisions of this act relative to his qualifications to vote at said election; any person wilfully voting or offering to vote at such election who has not been a resident of this state for six months next preceding said election, or who is not twenty-one years of age, or is not a citizen of the United States, or knowing himself not to be a qualified elector of such precinct where he offers to vote; any person knowingly procuring, aiding or abetting any violation hereof shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined a sum not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten nor more than ninety days. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 5-b.]

SEC. 1056-a24. Council—quorum—mayor to preside. Every city having a population of twenty-five thousand and over shall be governed by a council consisting of the mayor and four councilmen, and every city having a population of two thousand and less than twenty-five thousand shall be governed by a council consisting of the mayor and two councilmen, chosen as provided in this act, each of whom shall have the right to vote on all questions coming before the council. In cities having four councilmen three members of the council shall constitute a quorum, and in cities having two councilmen, two members of the council shall constitute a quorum, and in cities having four councilmen the affirmative vote of three members, and in cities having two councilmen the affirmative vote of two members shall be necessary to adopt any motion, resolution or ordinance, or pass any measure unless a greater number is provided for in this act. Upon every vote the yeas and nays shall be called and recorded, and every motion, resolution or ordinance shall be reduced to writing and read before the vote is taken thereon. The mayor shall preside at all meetings of the council; he shall have no power to veto any measure, but every resolution or ordinance passed by the council must be signed by the mayor, or by two councilmen, and be recorded, before the same shall be in force. [35 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 6.]

SEC. 1056-a25. Council—powers and duties—departments. The council shall have and possess, and the council and its members shall exercise all executive, legislative and judicial powers and duties now had, possessed and exercised by the mayor, city council, solicitor, assessor, treasurer, auditor, city engineer and other executive and administrative officers in cities of the first and second class, and in cities under special charter, and shall also possess and exercise all executive, legislative and judicial powers and duties now had and exercised by the board of public works, park commissioners, the board of police and fire commissioners, and[1] board of waterworks trustees, in all cities wherein a board of public works, park commissioners, board of police and fire commissioners, and[1] board of waterworks trustees, now exist or may be hereafter created.

The executive and administrative powers, authority and duties in such cities shall be distributed into and among five departments, as follows:

1. Department of public affairs.
2. Department of accounts and finances.
3. Department of public safety.
4. Department of streets and public improvements.
5. Department of parks and public property.

The council shall determine the powers and duties to be performed by, and assign them to the appropriate department; shall prescribe the powers and duties of officers and employes; may assign particular officers and employes to one or more of the departments; may require an officer or employe to perform duties in two or more departments; and may make such other rules and regulations as may be necessary or proper for the efficient and economical conduct of the business of the city. [1]The words "and" have been inserted to make proper construction of the sentence. EDITOR.]

The fact that the executive, legislative and judicial powers are conferred upon one body is not a violation of the provisions of the state constitution that the powers of the government shall be divided into three separate departments. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

Notwithstanding the subsequent amendment of code § 850 relating to park commissioners, without special reference to the statute as to commission form of government, the statutory provisions relating to park commissioners are superseded as to such cities by this section. Ibid.

Cities operating under the commission plan do not have a board of public works and the statutory provision as to advertising for bids applicable to boards of public works has no application to the action of the city council. Sims v. Des Moines, 146–410, 125 N. W. 329.

A city acting under special charter which adopts the commission form of government may exercise the powers conferred by its charter. Keokuk v. Kennedy, 156–680, 137 N. W. 914.

Such designation shall be changed whenever it appears that the public service would be benefited thereby. The council shall, at said first meeting, or as soon as practicable thereafter, elect by majority vote the following officers: city clerk, solicitor, assessor, treasurer, auditor, civil engineer, city physician, marshal, market master, street commissioner, and such other officers and assistants as shall be provided for by ordinance and necessary to the proper and efficient conduct of the affairs of the city; provided, however, that in cities having a population of less than twenty-five thousand such only of the above named officers shall be appointed as may, in the judgment of the mayor and councilmen, be necessary for the proper and efficient transaction of the affairs of the city. In those cities of the first class not having a superior court, the council shall appoint a police judge. In cities of the second class not having a superior court the mayor shall hold police court, as now provided by law. Any officer or assistant elected or appointed by the council may be removed from office at any time by vote of a majority of the members of the council, except as otherwise provided for in this act." [35 G. A., ch. 100, § 2; 34 G. A., ch. 54, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 8.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 8.]

Upon the election of said five trustees the term of the existing board of nine trustees heretofore acting under the general law shall cease. Annually thereafter there shall be elected in like manner one trustee to serve for five years and to take the place of the trustee whose term first expires. Provided, however, that in cities already operating under said chapter fourteen-C of the supplement to the code, 1907, the library board shall continue as now constituted until the meeting of the first council elected after this date and until their successors as such trustees are elected and qualify. and provided, further, that from and after the passage of this act, and during the first term of his office under the provisions of this act, the mayor and councilmen shall by ordinance fix their compensation as herein provided for their term of office; but thereafter the salary of any such officer shall not be increased or decreased during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed.

2. In cities having by such census a population of twenty-five thousand and less than forty thousand, the mayor's annual salary shall be twenty-five hundred dollars, and [that of] each councilman, eighteen hundred dollars.

3. In cities having by such census a population of forty thousand and less than sixty thousand, the mayor's annual salary shall be three thousand dollars, and [that of] each councilman twenty-five hundred dollars.

In cities wherein civil service commissioners have been appointed under the provisions of this act each succeeding council shall, as soon as practicable after organizing, appoint one commissioner for six years, who shall take the place of the commissioner whose term of office expires. The chairman of the commission for each biennial period shall be the member whose term first expires. No person while on the said commission shall hold or be a candidate for any office of public trust. Two of said members shall constitute a quorum to transact business. The commissioners must be citizens of Iowa, and residents of the city for more than three years next preceding their appointment. The council may remove any of said commissioners during their term of office for cause, four councilmen voting in favor of

The city council shall provide suitable rooms in which the said civil service commission may hold its meetings. They shall have a clerk, who shall keep a record of all its meetings, such city to supply the said commission with all necessary equipment to properly attend to such business.

Such commission shall, as soon as possible after every such examination, certify to the city council the names of ten persons for each department who, according to its records, have the highest standing for the positions they seek to fill, as a result of such examination, and all vacancies in positions under civil service which shall occur before the holding of the next examination shall be filled from said list so certified; provided, however, if the list for any cause shall be reduced to less than three for any division or department, then the superintendent of the proper department may temporarily fill a vacancy until the next examination of the commission. In all examinations and appointments under the provisions of this act, honorably discharged soldiers, sailors or marines of the regular or volunteer army or navy of the United States shall be given a preference if otherwise qualified. [34 G. A., ch. 54, § 2.]

(c) Removals and discharges—appeal—witnesses—annual report—rules and regulations. All persons subject to such civil service examination shall be subject to removal from office or employment by majority vote of such civil service commission for misconduct or failure to properly perform their duties under such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the council. The chief of police, the chief of the fire department, or any superintendent or foreman in charge of municipal work, may peremptorily suspend or discharge any subordinate then under his direction for neglect of duty, disobedience of orders or misconduct, but shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, report such suspension or discharge, with the reason therefor, to the superintendent of his department, who shall thereupon affirm or revoke such suspension or discharge according to the merits under the facts in the case. Every officer or employe so suspended or discharged and whose suspension or discharge has been affirmed, or the officer or person so suspending or discharging a subordinate when such suspension or discharge has been revoked, as the case may be, may, within five days from the affirmance or revocation of any such suspension or discharge, appeal therefrom to the civil service commission, if the person taking the appeal was subject to such civil service, otherwise to the city council, and such commission or council, as the case may be, shall fully hear and determine the appeal upon the merits of the case, and if it be determined that any suspension or discharge was unwarranted the appellant shall be reinstated, otherwise it shall be affirmed. Any such appeal may be taken by serving upon the proper department superintendent or his secretary or clerk a notice in writing, within said time, specifying the ruling appealed from, which notice shall be signed by the person taking the appeal. A true copy of such notice of appeal shall be filed with the chairman of the civil service commission or mayor, as the case may be. Within five days from the service of such notice of appeal, the proper department superintendent shall file with the civil service commission, or city council, as the case may be, a written specification of the charges or grounds upon which the affirmance or revocation of the suspension or discharge appealed from was based. Within five days after such specifications are filed as aforesaid the commission or council, as the case may be, shall fix the time and place for hearing the appeal and notify the appellant in writing of the time and place so fixed, which notice shall contain a copy of the specifications so filed. The time for hearing any such appeal shall not be fixed earlier than five days nor later than twenty days from the filing of such specifications. The council and commission shall have the power to enforce the attendance of witnesses, the production of books and papers, and to administer oaths in the same manner and with like effect, and under same penalties, as in the case of magistrates exercising criminal or civil jurisdiction under the statutes of Iowa. The hearings on such appeals shall be public and appellant may be represented by counsel. The council or commission, as the case may be, shall issue subpoenas for such witnesses as appellant may designate, which shall be signed by the mayor or chairman of the commission, as the case may be. (d) Chief of fire department—appointment—removal—members of fire and police departments—qualifications. Such commission shall appoint a chief of the fire department, but the tenure of any person holding such position at this time shall not be affected by this section; provided, however, that such officer may be removed for cause in accordance with the provisions of the next preceding section. No person shall be employed in any capacity in the fire or police department unless he is a citizen of the United States and has been a resident of such city more than one year and is of good moral character and can read and write the English language and is not addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. Nothing in this act shall be construed as limiting the powers conferred upon the city council and its members in section ten hundred fifty-six-a twenty-five of the supplement to the code, 1907. [34 G. A., ch. 54, § 4.]

(d1) Campaign contributions prohibited—penalty. No member of the fire or police department in any such city shall directly or indirectly contribute any money or anything of value to any candidate for nomination or election to any office or to any campaign or political committee. Any

All officers and employes in any such city shall be elected or appointed with reference to their qualifications and fitness, and for the good of the public service, and without reference to their political faith or party affiliations. It shall be unlawful for any candidate for office, or any officer in any such city, directly or indirectly, to give or promise any person or persons any office, position, employment, benefit, or anything of value, for the purpose of influencing or obtaining the political support, aid or vote of any person or persons. Every elective officer in any such city shall, within thirty days after qualifying, file with the city clerk, and publish at least once in a daily newspaper of general circulation, his sworn statement of all his election and campaign expenses, and by whom such funds were contributed. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor and be a ground for removal from office. [35 G. A., ch. 102, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 64, § 10.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 14.]

SEC. 1056-a33. Monthly itemized statement—annual examination. The council shall each month print in pamphlet form a detailed itemized statement of all receipts and expenses of the city and a summary of its proceedings during the preceding month, and furnish printed copies thereof to the state library, the city library, the daily newspapers of the city, and to persons who shall apply therefor at the office of the city clerk. At the end of each year the council shall cause a full and complete examination of all the books and accounts of the city to be made by competent accountants, and shall publish the result of such examination in the manner above provided for publication of statements of monthly expenditures. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 15.]

SEC. 1056-a34. Appropriations. If, at the beginning of the term of office of the first council elected in such city under the provisions of this act, the apropriations for the expenditures of the city government for the current fiscal year have been made, said council shall have power, by ordinance, to revise, repeal or change said apropriations and to make additional apropriations. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 16.]

SEC. 1056-a35. Terms defined. In the construction of this act the following rules shall be observed, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the manifest intent, or repugnant to the context of the statute.

1. The words "councilman" or "alderman" shall be construed to mean "councilman" when applied to cities under this act.

2. When an office or officer is named in any law referred to in this act, it shall, when applied to cities under this act, be construed to mean the office or officer having the same functions or duties under the provisions of this act, or under ordinances passed under authority thereof.

3. The word "franchise" shall include every special privilege in the streets, highways and public places of the city, whether granted by the state or the city, which does not belong to citizens generally by common right.

4. The word "electors" shall be construed to mean persons qualified to vote for elective offices at regular municipal elections. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 17.]

SEC. 1056-a36. Removal of elective officers—procedure—statement of candidacy—election of successors. The holder of any elective office may be removed at any time by the electors qualified to vote for a successor of such incumbent. The procedure to effect the removal of an incumbent of an elective office shall be as follows: A petition signed by electors entitled to vote for a successor to the incumbent sought to be removed, equal in number to at least twenty-five per centum of the entire vote for all candidates for the office of mayor cast at the last preceding general municipal election, demanding an election of a successor of the person sought to be removed, shall be filed with the city clerk, which petition shall contain a general statement of the grounds for which the removal is sought. The signatures to the petition need not all be appended to one paper, but each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number. One of the signers of each such paper shall make oath before an officer competent to administer oaths that the statements therein made are true as he believes, and that each signature to the paper appended is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be. Within ten days from the date of filing such petition the city clerk shall examine and from the voters' register ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and, if necessary, the council shall allow him extra help for that purpose; and he shall attach to said petition his certificate, showing the result of said examination. If by the clerk's certificate the petition is shown to be insufficient, it may be amended within ten days from the date of said certificate. The clerk shall, within ten days after such amendment, make like examination of the amended petition, and if his certificate shall show the same to be insufficient, it shall be returned to the person filing the same; without prejudice, however, to the filing of a new petition to the same effect. If the petition shall be deemed to be sufficient, the clerk shall submit the same to the council without delay. If the petition shall be found to be sufficient, the council shall order and fix a date for holding the said election, not less than thirty days or more than forty days from the date of the clerk's certificate to the council that a sufficient petition is filed. The council shall make or cause to be made publication of notice and all arrangements for holding such election, and the same shall be conducted, returned and the result thereof declared, in all respects as are other city elections. So far as applicable, except as otherwise herein provided, nominations hereunder shall be made without the intervention of a primary election by filing with the clerk at least ten days prior to said special election, a statement of candidacy accompanied by a petition signed by electors entitled to vote at said special election equal in number to at least ten per centum of the entire vote for all candidates for the office of mayor at the last preceding general municipal election, which said statement of candidacy and petition shall be substantially in the form set out in section ten hundred fifty-six-a twenty-one, of the supplement to the code, 1907, so far as the same is applicable, substituting the word "special" for the word "primary" in such statement and petition, and stating therein that such person is a candidate for election instead of nomination. The ballot for such special election shall be in substantially the following form:

OFFICIAL BALLOT.

Special election for the balance of the unexpired term of ..... as .....
FOR.....

(Vote for one only)
(Names of Candidates)

☐ .....
☐ .....
Name of present incumbent.

Official ballot attest:
(Signature) .....
City Clerk.

The successor of any officer so removed shall hold office during the unexpired term of his predecessor. Any person sought to be removed may be a candidate to succeed himself, and unless he requests otherwise in writing, the clerk shall place his name on the official ballot without nomination. In any such removal election, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. At such election if some other person than the incumbent receives the highest number of votes, the incumbent shall thereupon be deemed removed from the office upon qualification of his successor. In case the party who receives the highest number of votes should fail to qualify within ten days after receiving notification of election, the office shall be deemed vacant. If the incumbent receives the highest number of votes, he shall continue in office. The said method of removal shall be cumulative and additional to the methods heretofore provided by law. [33 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 18.]

The initiative, referendum and recall features of the commission form of government do not render the statute unconstitutional. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

SEC. 1056-a37. Petitions for ordinances—adoption or submission —how repealed or amended. Any proposed ordinance may be submitted to the council by petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to the percentage hereinafter required. The signatures, verification, authentication, inspection, certification, amendment and submission of such petition shall be the same as provided for petitions under section eighteen hereof. If the petition accompanying the proposed ordinance be signed by electors equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general election, and contains a request that the said ordinance be submitted to a vote of the people if not passed by the council, such council shall either (a) pass said ordinance without alteration within twenty days after attachment of the clerk's certificate to the accompanying petition, or (b) forthwith after the clerk shall attach to the petition accompanying such ordinance his certificate of sufficiency, the council shall call a special election, unless a general municipal election is fixed within ninety days thereafter, and at such special or general municipal election, if one is so fixed, such ordinance shall be submitted without alteration to the vote of the electors of said city. But if the petition is signed by not less than ten nor more than twenty-five per centum of the electors, as above defined, then the council shall, within twenty days, pass said ordinance without change, or submit the same at the next general city election occurring not more than thirty days after the clerk's certificate of sufficiency is attached to said petition. The ballots used when voting upon said ordinance shall contain these words: "For the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance), and "Against the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance). If a majority of the qualified electors voting on the proposed ordinance shall vote in favor thereof, such ordinance shall thereupon become a valid and binding ordinance of the city; and any ordinance proposed by petition, or which shall be adopted by a vote of the people, cannot be repealed or amended except by a vote of the people. Any number of proposed ordinances may be voted upon at the same election, in accordance with the provisions of this section; but there shall not be more than one special election in any period of six months for such purpose. The council may submit a proposition for the repeal of any such ordinance, or for amendments thereto, to be voted upon at any succeeding general city election; and should such proposition so submitted receive a majority of the votes cast thereon at such election, such ordinance shall thereby be repealed or amended accordingly. Whenever any ordinance or proposition is required by this act to be submitted to the voters of the city at any election, the city clerk shall cause such ordinance or proposition to be published once in each of the daily newspapers published in said city, such publication to be not more than twenty or less than five days before the submission of such proposition or ordinance to be voted on. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 19.]

The incorporation of provisions as to the initiative and referendum does not render these statutes unconstitutional. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

SEC. 1056-a38. Ordinances—when effective—petitions of protest. No ordinance passed by the council, except when otherwise required by the general laws of the state or by the provisions of this act, except an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a two-thirds vote of the council, shall go into effect before ten days from the time of its final passage; and if during said ten days a petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to at least twenty-five per centum of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general municipal election at which a mayor was elected, protesting against the passage of such ordinance, be presented to the council, the same shall thereupon be suspended from going into operation, and it shall be the duty of the council to reconsider such ordinance; and if the same is not entirely repealed, the council shall submit the ordinance, as is provided by subsection b of section nineteen of this act, to the vote of the electors of the city, either at the general election or at a special municipal election to be called for that purpose; and such ordinance shall not go into effect or become operative unless a majority of the qualified electors voting on the same shall vote in favor thereof. Said petition shall be in all respects in accordance with the provisions of said section nineteen except as to the percentage of signers, and be examined and certified to by the clerk in all respects as is therein provided. [32 G. A., ch. 48, § 20.]

By special provision, an ordinance may be made to take effect at once as being "for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety." Empire State Surety Co. v. Des Moines, 152–531, 131 N. W. 870, 132 N. W. 837.

The sufficiency of such petition shall be determined, the election ordered and conducted, and the results declared, generally as provided by section eighteen[1] of this act, in so far as the provisions thereof are applicable. [The above section is made applicable to §§ 1087-a36 to 1087-a46 by § 1087-a47. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1087-a17. Ballots counted—returns. Upon the closing of the polls the clerks and judges shall immediately open the ballot box and proceed to take therefrom the ballots. Said officers shall count the number of ballots cast for each party, at the same time bunching the tickets cast for each party, in separate piles. As soon as the clerks and judges shall have sorted the ballots of each party, separately, they shall take the tally sheets provided in the poll books and shall count all the ballots for each party separately until the count is completed, and shall certify to the number of votes cast for each candidate for each office upon the ticket of each party. Said judges of election shall deliver the returns so made, together with the poll books, including tally sheets and certificates of the judges and clerks written thereon, to the county auditor within twenty-four hours after the primary election has closed; and if the returns from any precinct be not so delivered within the said time, the county auditor shall forthwith send a messenger for any such missing returns, and said messenger shall be paid, as provided by law, for the general election. [32 G. A., ch. 51, § 17.]

In case the returns from any precinct are challenged the board of supervisors has no authority to do more than to recount the ballots and verify and correct the returns. It has no authority to pass upon the qualifications to vote of persons who in fact vote at such election. Jones v. Fisher, 156–582, 137 N. W. 940.

SEC. 1087-a18. Recount of ballots. That the law as it appears in section ten hundred eighty-seven-a eighteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

"Any candidate whose name appears upon the official primary ballot of any voting precinct may require the board of supervisors of the county in which such precinct is situated to recount the ballots cast in any such precinct as to the office for which he was a candidate, at the time fixed for canvassing the returns of the judges of election, by filing with the county auditor not later than the day before such meeting, a showing in writing, duly sworn to by such candidate, that fraud was committed, or error or mistake made, in counting or returning the votes cast in any such precinct as to the office for which he was a candidate. The showing must be specified and from it there must appear reasonable ground to believe that a recount of the ballots would produce a result as to his candidacy different from the returns made by the judges. If such showing is made to the satisfaction of the board, it shall thereupon recount the ballots cast in any such precinct for the office for which the contestant was a candidate, and if the result reached by the board on the recount of the ballots as to such office be different from that returned by the judges of election it shall be substituted therefor as the true and correct return and so regarded in all subsequent proceedings. The action of the board shall be final and no other contest of any kind shall be permitted. The term 'candidate' as used in this section shall include and apply to persons voted for for delegates and party committeemen." [33 G. A., ch. 69, § 9.] [32 G. A., ch. 51, § 18.]

Under this section as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 69, § 9, held that the power conferred upon the board of supervisors is to recount the ballots actually cast for the purpose of correcting the returns if they be found erroneous through fraud or mistake. No authority is conferred upon the board to determine whether the persons who cast ballots in the precinct at the primary election were entitled to cast such ballots. Jones v. Fisher, 156–582, 137 N. W. 940.

Where the returns from a precinct were counted and the board ascertained by examination of the voting machines used that the votes shown were correctly returned, held that the board could not proceed further to hear witnesses for the purpose of finding whether persons had voted at the primary election in such precinct who were not qualified to vote. Ibid.

In a proceeding by certiorari to annul alleged illegal action of the board as a board of canvassers in declaring the result of a recount of the ballots cast at the primary election, held that the court might determine that the action of the board in announcing a result based upon the receipt of evidence that persons had voted at such primary election who were not authorized to so vote, was illegal. Ibid.

SEC. 1087-a19. Canvass by board of supervisors—certificates. That the law as it appears in section ten hundred eighty-seven-a nineteen of the supplement to the code, 1907, as amended by section ten, chapter sixty-nine, acts of the thirty-third general assembly, is hereby repealed and the following substitute enacted in lieu thereof:

"On the second Tuesday next following the primary election in June, the board of supervisors shall meet, open, and canvass the returns from each voting precinct in the county, and make abstracts thereof, stating in words written at length the number of ballots cast in the county by each political party, separately, for each office, the name of each person voted for and the number of votes given to each person for each different office and shall sign and certify thereto and file the same with the county auditor. Such canvass and certificate shall be final as to all candidates for nomination to any elective county office or office of a subdivision of a county; and the candidate or candidates of each political party for each office to be filled by the voters of any subdivision of a county having received the highest number of votes shall be duly and legally nominated as the candidate of his party for such office. Provided, however, that no candidate whose name is not printed on the official primary ballot, who received less than five per centum of the votes cast in such subdivision for governor on the party ticket with which he affiliates, at the last general election, nor less than five votes [,] shall be declared to have been nominated to any such office; and the candidate or candidates of each political party for each office to be filled by the voters of the county having received the highest number of votes, and not less than thirty-five per centum of all the votes cast by the party for such office, shall be duly and legally nominated as the candidate of his party for such office. Provided, however, that no candidate whose name is not printed on the official ballot who receives less than ten per centum of the whole number of votes cast in the county for governor on the party ticket with which he affiliates, at the last general election shall be declared to have been nominated to any such office; and each candidate so nominated shall be entitled to have his name printed on the official ballot to be voted for at the general election without other certificate, and the board shall prepare and certify a list of the candidates of each party so nominated, separately, and deliver to the chairman of each party central committee for the county a copy of the list of candidates nominated by the party he represents; and shall also prepare, certify and deliver to such chairman a list of the offices to be filled by the voters of a county for which no candidate of his party was nominated, together with the names of the candidate for each of such offices voted for at the primary election and the number of votes received by each of such candidates." [34 G. A., ch. 59, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 58, § 2; 33 G. A., ch. 69, § 10.] [32 G. A., ch. 51, § 19.]

Nominations of county supervisors by districts does not give the nominees a vested right to be placed on the official ballot, and if under the provisions of code § 416 supervisor districts are abolished after the nomination of candidates for supervisors therein, such nominees are not entitled to have their names on the official ballots for election in such districts. Lahart v. Thompson, 140–298, 118 N. W. 398.

The certificate of nomination from the board of supervisors is final as to all candidates for nomination to any county office or office of a subdivision of a county; but held that where a vacancy was created in the nomination for county supervisor by a redistricting of the county the certificate was no longer of any effect. State v. Parker, 147–69, 125 N. W. 856.

SEC. 1087-a22. If returns are not received from all the counties, the secretary of state shall immediately send a messenger after the abstract returns and the board may adjourn from day to day until they are received. The board shall make an abstract of its canvass, stating in words written at length, the number of ballots cast by each political party, separately, for each office designated in section twenty hereof, the names of all the persons voted for, and the number of votes received by each person for each office, and shall sign and certify thereto. Such canvass and certificates shall be final as to all candidates named therein; and the candidate of each political party for each office to be filled by vote of the people, including the office of senator in the congress of the United States, having received the highest number of votes in the state or district of the state, as the case may be, provided he received not less than thirty-five per centum of all the votes cast by the party for such office, shall be duly and legally nominated as the candidate of his party for such office and entitled to have his name printed on the official ballot to be voted at the general election without other certificate; and the board shall prepare and certify a list of the candidates of each party so nominated, separately, and deliver to the chairman of each party central committee for the state a copy of the list of candidates nominated by the party he represents; and shall also forthwith prepare a certificate as to each office, separately, for which no candidate was nominated, by reason of the failure of any candidate for any such office to receive thirty-five per centum of all votes cast by such party for such office, together with the names of the several candidates for each of such offices voted for at the primary election and the number of votes received by each of such candidates and send such certificate to the chairman of the party central committee for the state, in case of offices to be filled by the voters of the entire state, and to the chairman of the party central committee for a district of the state, if known, in case of offices to be filled by the voters of any such district of the state composed of more than one county, and to the county auditor of each county in any such district, and to the county auditor and the chairman of the party central

SEC. 1087-a25. County convention—delegates—committeemen. In each county there shall be held in each year in which a general election in November is to take place a county convention of each political party. Said county convention shall be composed of delegates elected at the last preceding primary election, and shall be held on the fourth Saturday following the primary election, convening at eleven o'clock a. m. The number of delegates from each voting precinct shall be determined by a ratio adopted by the respective party county central committees, and shall be thus determined and a statement designating the number from each voting precinct in the county filed in the office of the county auditor at least thirty days before the primary election; if not so done, the auditor shall fix the number. The requisite number of names of candidates of his choice for delegates to the county convention to which each precinct is entitled shall be written, or pasted with uniform white pasters, on the blank lines upon the ballot by the voter while in the booth, or by someone designated by a voter unable to write, after the ballots are received and before they are deposited, and the requisite number of persons from each precinct who receive the highest number of votes shall be the delegates from the precinct to the county convention. The term of office of such delegate shall begin on the day following the final canvass of the votes by the board of supervisors, and shall continue for two years and until their successors are elected. One member of the county central committee for each political party from each precinct shall be elected. His term of office shall begin on the day of the county convention and immediately following the adjournment thereof and shall continue for two years and until his successor is elected and qualified, unless such committeeman shall be removed by the county central committee for inattention to the duties of his position, incompetency or failure to support the ticket nominated by the party which elected him to such position. The county central committee elected in the primary election shall organize on the day of the convention, immediately following the same. Vacancies in such committee may be filled by majority vote of the committee. Returns shall be made by the judges of election respecting delegates and members of the county central committee in the same manner as for other offices, except that the judges of election shall canvass the returns as to delegates and members of the county central committee, and certify the result to the auditor with the returns. The auditor shall, immediately after the final count and canvass of the votes and returns by the board of supervisors, notify the delegates and members of the county central committee who have thus been elected, of their election, and of the time and place of holding the county convention, and shall on the second Thursday following the primary election, deliver a certified list thereof to the chairmen of the respective party central committees for the county. When the delegates, or a majority thereof, or when delegates representing a majority of the precincts, thus elected, shall have assembled in the county convention at the time herein prescribed and at the county seat, the convention shall be called to order by the chairman of the county central committee, who shall present the certified list of delegates and members of the county central committee, and a list of the offices for which no nomination was made at the primary election, by reason of the failure of any candidate for any such office to receive thirty-five per centum of all votes cast by such party therefor. If any precinct shall not be fully represented the delegates present from such precinct shall cast the full vote thereof, but there shall be no proxies. The said county convention shall make nominations of candidates for the party for any office to be filled by the voters of a county when no candidate for such office has been nominated at the preceding primary election by reason of the failure of any candidate for any such office to receive thirty-five per centum of all votes cast by such party therefor, as shown by the canvass of the returns provided for in section nineteen[1] of this act, and shall nominate candidates for the office of judge of the district court in counties comprising one judicial district of the state, and shall select delegates to the next ensuing state and district conventions of that year upon such ratio of representation as may be determined by the party organization for the state, district or districts of the state, as the case may be, but no delegates shall be so selected to any of the district conventions referred to in section twenty-six[2] of this act, except judicial conventions, unless a call therefor has been issued as therein provided. The said county convention shall also elect a member of the party central committee for the senatorial, judicial, and congressional districts composed of more than one county. But in no case shall the county convention make a nomination for an office for which no person was voted for in the primary election of such party, except for judges of the superior and district courts. SEC. 1087-a25a. Nomination of judges in certain districts. That in any county of this state which is or shall hereafter become a judicial district of itself and which has a population of seventy-five thousand or more as shown by any national or state census, the judges of the district court of such judicial district shall be nominated at the primary election provided for by the laws of this state and all the provisions[1] of the primary law relative to the nomination of county officers shall apply to the nomination of judges of the district court in such judicial districts. SEC. 1087-a25b. Acts in conflict repealed—when not applicable. That all acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. Provided, however, that this act shall not apply when by statute provision is made for state-wide nonpolitical judicial nominations. [35 G. A., ch. 25, § 2.]

SEC. 1087-a26. District convention. In any senatorial, judicial, or congressional district composed of more than one county, in any year in which a senator in the general assembly, a judge of the district court, or a representative in the congress of the United States, is to be elected, a senatorial or congressional convention may be held, and a judicial convention shall be held by each political party participating in the primary election of that year. Not less than ten days and not more than sixty days before the day fixed for holding the county convention a call for such senatorial, judicial and congressional convention to be held shall be issued by the party central committee for any such district and published in at least one newspaper of general circulation of each county composing any such district and which call shall state among other things the number of delegates each county of the district shall be entitled to and the time and place of holding the convention. Any such call shall be signed by the chairman of the party central committee for any such district, and be filed by him with the county auditor not less than five days before the county convention and the county auditor shall attach a true copy thereof to the certified list of delegates required to be delivered by him to the chairmen of the respective party county central committees. In case no nomination was made in the primary election for the office of senator in the general assembly in any district composed of more than one county, or for the office of representative in congress of the United States, by reason of the failure of any candidate for any office to receive thirty-five per centum of all votes cast by his party therefor, as shown by the certificate issued by the state board of canvassers provided for in this act, then in any such district the chairman of the party central committee therefor shall forthwith issue such call for a convention in such district and deliver the same to the county auditor of each county in the district and in such case said call need not be published. No such district convention shall be held earlier than the first Thursday or later than the fifth Thursday following the county convention. The convention when organized shall make nominations of candidates for the party for any such district office when no candidate for such office has been nominated at the preceding primary election, by reason of the failure of any candidate for any such office to receive thirty-five per centum of all votes cast by such party therefor, as shown by the canvass of the votes provided for in section twenty-two[1] hereof. The organization of and procedure in any such district convention shall be the same as in the state convention.

Such district conventions may adopt party platforms and transact such other business as may properly be brought before them. But in no case shall any such convention of a party make a nomination for an office for which no person was voted for in the primary election of such party, except for judges of the district court. If any county shall not be fully represented, the delegates present from such county shall cast the full vote thereof, but there shall be no proxies. [35 G. A., ch. 111, § 12.]

CHAPTER 2-B.

OF THE NONPARTISAN NOMINATION AND ELECTION OF JUDGES.

SECTION 1087-b. Primary nomination — election. That from and after the passage of this act, all candidates for the office of judge of the supreme, district and superior court, in the state of Iowa, shall be nominated at the regular primary election, and elected at the general election in November, in the manner hereinafter provided. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 1.]

SEC. 1087-b1. Petition—requisites. Any person desiring to become a candidate for the office of supreme or district judge at the regular primary election shall, not less than forty days prior to the date of such primary election, file in the office of the secretary of state, a petition favoring his nomination signed by qualified electors as follows: If the person on whose behalf said petition is filed is a candidate for nomination for judge of the supreme court, said petition shall be signed by not less than five thousand qualified electors of the state of which at least thirty shall reside in each county of the state, and the name of such candidate shall not appear upon the primary ballot in any county where the petition of the required thirty qualified electors has not been filed. If the person on whose behalf said petition is filed is a candidate for nomination for judge of the district court, said petition shall be signed by not less than five hundred qualified electors of the judicial district for which he is a candidate, and at least fifty of such qualified electors shall reside in each county of such district, and the name of any such candidate shall not be printed upon the primary ballot in any county of such district where the petition signed by the required fifty qualified electors has not been filed. Any person desiring to become a candidate for the office of judge of the superior court at the regular primary election shall, not less than forty days before such primary election, file in the office of the county auditor in the county in which said court is located a petition favoring his nomination signed by not less than two hundred fifty qualified electors of the municipality in which said superior court is located. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 2.]

SEC. 1087-b2. Primary ticket—tie vote. At all primary elections at which candidates for judges are to be nominated, there shall be provided on each ballot for each political party, a ticket entitled "nonpartisan judiciary ticket," and the names of such candidates as shall have complied with the requirements of this act shall be placed thereon in the same order as the names of the party candidates, but without any party designation; and the ticket shall be the same on all ballots, except as varied to change the alphabetical rotation. The number of judges each elector is entitled to vote for shall be stated on the ballot. Each elector shall be allowed to vote at each primary for twice as many candidates to be nominated as there are number of places to be filled at the election. In case of a tie vote which leaves it unsettled as to which candidates are nominated, the secretary of state shall determine it by lot, except as to superior judge in which case the county auditor instead of the secretary of state shall determine who is nominated in the same manner by lot. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.]

SEC. 1087-b3. Election ticket—election. At the general election in November there shall be placed on the ballots a separate ticket entitled "nonpartisan judicial ticket," upon which shall be placed the names of the candidates nominated for judges of the supreme court, district, or superior courts in the state, and in the several districts and cities who have been nominated as herein provided. The names of all candidates shall be placed on said ticket and in the same order as far as possible as other candidates and with the same provisions with reference to alphabetical rotation and the number of candidates for each office to which the elector is entitled to vote. The candidate or candidates on such judicial ticket receiving the highest number of votes shall be considered elected. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.]

SEC. 1087-b4. Regular primary and general election statutes applicable. The method of withdrawal, filling vacancies, conducting such primary and general elections, of preparation of the ballot, of canvassing the vote, of announcing the result, of recounting the ballot, of publishing notice of nomination and election, and the penalty for the illegal voting, misconduct of the election officials, and the making of the sworn return of nomination and election expenses, shall, so far as applicable, be the same as now provided for the regular primary and general election laws of Iowa. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 5.]

SEC. 1087-b5. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [35 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.]

CHAPTER 2-C.

OF THE NOMINATION AND ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS BY THE VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

SECTION 1087-c. Names of candidates on official ballot—statutes applicable. The names of the candidates of the different parties for United States senator shall, at the primary election and the general election in the year preceding the expiration of the term of office of United States senator, or in case of a vacancy in said office, be placed on the official ballot in the proper place, and there shall be nominated and elected a United States senator or senators, as the case may be, in the manner now provided by law for the nomination and election of state officers, and all provisions of the law pertaining to the nomination and election of state officers, congressmen and presidential electors shall apply to the nomination and election of United States senators in so far as the same may be applicable, the same as though the words "United States senator" were specifically written therein. [35 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF ELECTIONS.

SECTION 1088. All elections except school.

Notwithstanding the provision of this chapter making a distinction between general elections and school elections, the statutory prohibition of the sale of liquors under the mulct law "on any election day" includes days on which school elections are held. Hammond v. King, 137–548, 114 N. W. 1062.

SEC. 1089. General and special.

The Australian ballot law as originally adopted (24 G. A., ch. 33) did not apply to special elections held for the purpose of voting taxes in aid of railroads or bridges. Pritchard v. Magoun, 109–364, 80 N. W. 512; Bras v. McConnell, 114–401, 87 N. W. 290.

SEC. 1090. Election precincts. Each township, or, in case a township contains a city or a portion thereof, such portion of the township as is outside the limits of the city, and each ward of a city, shall, respectively, constitute an election precinct. But the board of supervisors or the council, as the case may be, shall have power to divide a township or part thereof, or a ward, into two or more precincts, or to change or abolish the same; or the board of supervisors and the council of any city of less than thirty-five hundred inhabitants, not including the inmates of any state institution, may combine any part of the township outside of such city with any or all the wards thereof as one election precinct, or change or abolish such precinct; or the council of such city may combine the several wards into one or more precincts. No precinct shall contain different townships or parts thereof, except that where an incorporated town embraces within its limits territory situated in different townships of any county, the board of supervisors may, for the convenience of the electors, constitute such town and, if desired, additional territory thereto abutting, into an election precinct. The board of supervisors in the order establishing such precinct shall define its boundaries and may change same if in their judgment occasion arises. In such cases, separate ballots and ballot boxes shall be provided for voting for township officers only. Each incorporated town shall constitute a precinct for town elections. No person shall vote in any precinct but that of his residence. [33 G. A., ch. 70, § 1.] [25 G. A., ch. 60; 21 G. A., ch. 141, § 2; C. '73, §§ 501, 603, 605; R. § 480; C. '51, § 245.]

The vital inquiry in determining the residence of a person is as to where is his home. This is not purely a matter of intention. A person cannot live in one place and by force of imagination constitute some other his place of abode. The intent and the fact must concur. State v. Savre, 129–122, 105 N. W. 387.

The home of an unmarried man is where he has his rooms, in which he keeps such personal effects as he has, where he rests when not at work, and spends his evenings and Sundays, and not the boarding house at which he takes his meals. Ibid.

Evidence in a particular case as to the actual residence of a voter considered. Kelso v. Wright, 110–560, 81 N. W. 805.

SEC. 1091. Polling places for country precincts. That section ten hundred ninety-one of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Polling places for precincts outside the limits of a city, but within the township, or originally within and set off as a separate township from the township in which the city is in whole or in part situated, may, for the convenience of the voters, be fixed at some room or rooms in the courthouse or in some other building within the limits of the city as the board of supervisors may provide." [33 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 161, § 14.]

SEC. 1093. Election boards. Election boards shall consist of three judges and two clerks. Not more than two judges and not more than one clerk shall belong to the same political party or organization, if there be one or more electors qualified and willing to act as such judge or clerk, and a member or members of opposite parties. In cities and towns, the councilmen shall be judges of election; but in case more than two councilmen belonging to the same political party or organization are residents of the same election precinct, the county board of supervisors may designate which of them shall serve as judges. In township precincts, the clerk of the township shall be a clerk of election of the precinct in which he resides, and the trustees of the township shall be judges of election, except that, in townships not divided into election precincts, if all the trustees be of the same political party, the board of supervisors shall determine by lot which two of the three trustees shall be judges of such precinct. The membership of such election board shall be made up or completed by the board of supervisors from the parties which cast the largest and next largest number of votes in said precinct at the last general election, or that one which is unrepresented; but, in city and town elections, the powers given in this chapter and duties herein made incumbent upon the board of supervisors shall be performed by the council. If, at the opening of the polls in any precinct, there shall be a vacancy in the office of clerk or judge of election, the same shall be filled by the members of the board present, and from the political party which is entitled to such vacant office under the provisions of this chapter. The election board at any special election shall be the same as at the last preceding general election. In case of vacancies happening therein, the county auditor may make the appointments to fill the same when the board of supervisors is not in session. [35 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 42; 26 G. A., ch. 68, § 3; C. '73, §§ 606–8; R. §§ 481–3; C. '51, §§ 246–8.]

SEC. 1096. Polls open. At all elections the polls shall be opened at eight o'clock in the forenoon, except in cities where registration is required, when the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or in each case as soon thereafter as vacancies in the places of judges or clerks of election have been filled. In all cases the polls shall be closed at seven o'clock in the evening. [28 G. A., ch. 34, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 33, § 32; C. '73, § 611; R. § 486; C. '51, § 251.]

SEC. 1102. Vacancies filled.

When a certificate of nomination of candidates is held by the county auditor not to have been filed with him in time, the vacancies in nominations for such office may be filled in accordance with the provisions of this section. The holding of the auditor that the filing is not as required by law is a holding that the nominating certificate is insufficient and inoperative. Reese v. Hogan, 117–603, 91 N. W. 907.

These provisions as to filling vacancies by a party central committee are superseded by the provision as to primary elections found in code supp. § 1087-a24. State v. Hayward, 141–196, 119 N. W. 620

SEC. 1103. Objections.

This section creates a tribunal for the determination of all questions arising in relation to nominations or nomination papers and makes the decision of such tribunal final. State v. Hayward, 141–196, 119 N. W. 620.

While objections to a relator's nomination can only be made as here provided, yet where by redistricting a nomination for county supervisor is rendered ineffectual, there is a vacancy as to such nomination. State v. Parker, 147–69, 125 N. W. 856.

SEC. 1106. Ballot—form—candidates for United States senator—district judge—separate ballot for constitutional amendments. The names of all candidates to be voted for in each election precinct shall be printed on one ballot, all nominations of any political party or group of petitioners being placed under the party name or title of such party or group, as designated by them in their certificates of nomination or petitions, or, if none be designated, then under some suitable title, and the ballot shall contain no other names, except that, in case of electors for president and vice president of the United States, the names of the candidates for president and vice president may be added to the party or political designation; provided further, however, that at all general elections next preceding the election of a senator in the congress of the United States there shall be placed upon the official ballot the names of all candidates for the office of senator in the congress that have been nominated by any of the methods now or which may hereafter be provided by law, for the nomination of state officers, the votes for which candidates shall be counted and certified to by the election judges in the same manner as the votes for other candidates. Each list of candidates for the several parties and groups of petitioners shall be placed in a separate column on the ballot, in such order as the authorities charged with the printing of the ballots shall decide, except as otherwise provided, and be called a ticket. But the name of no candidate shall appear upon the ballot in more than one place for the same office, whether nominated by convention, primary, caucus or petition, except as hereinafter provided. Where two or more conventions, primaries or caucuses, or any two of them, may nominate the same candidate for any office, the name of such candidate shall be printed under the name of the party first filing nomination papers bearing such name, unless the candidate himself shall, in writing duly verified, request the officer with whom the nomination papers are filed to cause the name to be printed upon some other ticket, provided, that in any judicial district of the state in which the bar association, or a convention of attorneys of the district nominates or recommends candidate or candidates for the office of district judge, and such candidates are also nominated or indorsed by any political party, in preparing the ballots for the general election, the names of such candidate or candidates shall be printed as candidate or candidates for each party by whom they are nominated, whether by primary, convention or petition. Each of the columns containing the list of candidates, including the party name, shall be separated by a distinct line. Said ballot shall be substantially in the following form:

REPUBLICAN.	DEMOCRATIC.	PROHIBITION.	UNION LABOR.
For Governor,	For Governor,	For Governor,	For Governor,
☐ A.....B..... of.....County.	☐ G.....H..... of.....County.	☐ M.....N..... of.....County.	☐ S.....T..... of.....County.
For Lieutenant Governor,	For Lieutenant Governor,	For Lieutenant Governor,	For Lieutenant Governor,
☐ C.....D..... of.....County.	☐ I.....J..... of.....County.	☐ O.....P..... of.....County.	☐ U.....V..... of.....County.
For Judge of Supreme Court,	For Judge of Supreme Court,	For Judge of Supreme Court,	For Judge of Supreme Court,
☐ E.....F..... of.....County.	☐ K.....L..... of.....County.	☐ Q.....R..... of.....County.	☐ W.....X..... of.....County.

When a constitutional amendment or other public measure is to be voted upon by the electors, it shall be printed in full upon a separate ballot, preceded by the words, "Shall the following amendment to the constitution (or public measure) be adopted?" and upon the right-hand margin, opposite these words, two spaces shall be left, one for votes favoring such amendment or public measure, and the other for votes opposing the same. In one of these spaces the word "yes" or other word required by law shall be printed; in the other, the word "no" or other word required, and to the right of each space a square shall be printed to receive the voting cross, all of which shall be substantially in the following form:

"Shall the following amendment to the constitution (or public measure) be adopted?"

(Here insert in full the proposed constitutional amendment or public measure.)

Yes.
No.

The elector shall designate his vote by a cross mark, thus, X, placed in the proper square. At the top of such ballots shall be printed the following words, enclosed in brackets: [Notice to voters. For an affirmative vote upon any question submitted upon this ballot make a cross (x) mark in the square after the word "Yes." For a negative vote make a similar mark in the square following the word "No."] If more than one constitutional amendment or public measure is to be voted upon, they shall be printed upon the same ballot, one below the other, with one inch space between each constitutional amendment or public measure that is to be submitted. All of such ballots for the same polling place shall be of the same size, similarly printed, upon yellow colored paper. On the back of each such ballot shall be printed appropriate words, showing that such ballot relates to a constitutional or other question to be submitted to the electors, so as to distinguish the said ballots from the official ballot for candidates for office, and a facsimile of the signature of the auditor or other officer who has caused the ballot to be printed. Such ballots shall be endorsed and given to each voter by the judges of election, as provided in section eleven hundred sixteen, and shall be subject to all other laws governing ballots for candidates, so far as the same shall be applicable. [35 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.] [31 G. A., chs. 43–44; 28 G. A., ch. 35, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 33, §§ 14, 16.]

SEC. 1109. Method of printing. The ballot shall be on plain white paper, through which the printing or writing cannot be read. The party name or title shall be printed in capital letters, not less than one fourth of an inch in height. The names of candidates shall be printed in capital letters not less than one eighth nor more than one fourth of an inch in height, and, at the beginning of each line in which the name of a candidate is printed, a square shall be printed, the sides of which shall not be less than one fourth of an inch in length. On the back or outside of the ballot, so as to appear when folded, shall be printed the words "official ballot," followed by the designation of the polling place for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the election, and a facsimile of the signature of the auditor or other officer who has caused the ballot to be printed. [31 G. A., ch. 44, § 2; 24 G. A., ch. 33, § 14.]

SEC. 1115. Challenges.

The duties and powers conferred by this section on judges of election are ministerial and such judges cannot refuse to administer the oath provided for or to receive the ballot after the oath has been taken. Lane v. Mitchell, 153–139, 133 N. W. 381.

A wilful and malicious refusal to receive a ballot which the voter is entitled to cast may subject an election judge to liability beyond merely nominal damages. Ibid.

SEC. 1117. Depositing ballot.

A ballot not bearing the indorsement of the judge should not be counted. Kelso v. Wright, 110–560, 81 N. W. 805.

SEC. 1119. Marking the ballot. Upon retiring to the voting booth, the voter shall prepare his ballot by placing a cross in the square opposite the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote. The voter may also insert in writing, in the proper place, the name of any person for whom he desires to vote, making a cross opposite thereto. The writing of such name without making a cross opposite thereto, or the making a cross opposite such blank without writing a name therein shall not affect the validity of his vote. [31 G. A., ch. 44, § 3; 28 G. A., ch. 36, § 1; 24 G. A., ch. 33, § 22.]

The law does not recognize the writing of the name of a candidate on the ballot, except by inserting it in the ballot in the proper place, with a cross in the square opposite the name as written. Voorhees v. Arnold, 108–77, 78 N. W. 795.

The amendment of this section, made by 28 G. A., ch. 36, held not applicable in a case tried and appealed before the amendment went into effect. Morrison v. Pepperman, 112–471, 84 N. W. 522.

The statute providing for primary elections in cities adopting the commission form of government is not to be construed as preventing the electors from voting for any candidates of their choice. Eckerson v. Des Moines, 137–452, 115 N. W. 177.

SEC. 1120. How counted. Ballots marked as provided in the preceding section shall be counted for the candidates designated by the marks in the squares. When only one candidate for any office is to be elected, if the voter marks in squares opposite the names of more than one candidate therefor, such vote shall not be counted for such office. When two or more officers of the same kind are to be elected, if more squares opposite the names of candidates for such office are marked than there are officers to be elected to such office, the ballot shall not be counted for any such candidates. If for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office. Any ballot marked by the voter in any other manner than as authorized in this chapter, and so that such mark may be used for the purpose of identifying such ballot, shall be rejected. [31 G. A., ch. 44, § 4; 24 G. A., ch. 33, §§ 22, 27.]

The law by implication prohibits any person, including the voter, from so marking the ballot that the mark may be used for the purpose of identification, and a ballot so marked should be rejected. The unauthorized marks, to be objectionable as identification marks, must be deliberately made, and not merely accidentally, or as the result of inexperience. Whether the marks in particular cases are identification marks is for the jury. The question is whether there has been a deliberate departure in the marking and in a way that might enable the marks to be used to identify the ballot. Voorhees v. Arnold, 108–77, 78 N. W. 795.

What constitutes an identifying mark upon a ballot is generally a question of fact for the trial court, and its finding, or the finding of the jury, if the case is submitted to the jury, is conclusive upon appeal. The unnecessary marking of a cross in the square below the marked circle does not affect the validity of the ballot. Kelso v. Wright, 110–560, 81 N. W. 805.

Where a ballot had crosses in squares opposite all the names on the republican ticket, except that of the candidate for township trustee, and as to that office had a cross on another ticket in front of a blank space, held that it was properly rejected. Morrison v. Pepperman, 112–471, 84 N. W. 522.

This section makes the cross in the circle effective as a vote for all names printed upon the ticket below it, and if in front of the name of the candidate to any office there is a blank in such ticket, then a cross on another ticket for such office will authorize the counting of the ballot for the candidate thus designated. Spurrier v. McLennan, 115–461, 88 N. W. 1062.

Whether unnecessary crosses in places where no provision for marking with a cross is made, as for instance in front of the names of the candidates for president and vice president, constitute identifying marks such as to vitiate the ballot is a question of fact for the trial court. Ibid.

Where there is a cross in the circle marked at the head of one ticket, the marking of a cross in the square before the name on another ticket has no effect other than to nullify the vote for the officer thus doubly voted for. This rule is in nowise altered by the marking of the squares below the marked circle. Ibid.

SEC. 1121. Voting mark—spoiled ballots. The voting mark shall be a cross in the square opposite to the name of the candidate for whom the voter desires to vote. Any voter who shall spoil his ballot may, on returning the same to the judges, receive another in place thereof, but no voter shall receive more than three ballots, including the one first delivered to him. None but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this chapter shall be counted. [31 G. A., ch. 44, § 5; 24 G. A., ch. 33, §§ 22, 25.]

The provisions of this section are mandatory. Lehigh Sewer Pipe & Tile Co. v. Lehigh, 156–386, 136 N. W. 934.

SEC. 1122. Defects in printed ballot.

The election law was enacted to aid the elector in expressing his free choice and not by technical obstructions to make the right of voting difficult and insecure. When the elector receives a ballot from the proper officials he may rely upon it as genuine and, when properly marked by him, have it counted for all candidates for whom he had the right to vote and did vote. There is a distinction between errors of officers which would have the effect to deprive voters of the franchise and a disregard of the law by the electors themselves. State v. Bernholtz, 106–157, 76 N. W. 662.

SEC. 1125. Special policemen.

Special policemen, appointed by the city council on the nomination of political parties are not entitled to compensation either from the city or the county as the statute makes no provision for such compensation. Mousseau v. Sioux City, 113–246, 84 N. W. 1027.

SEC. 1129. Expenses—special policemen—compensation. The special policemen appointed under the provisions of this chapter shall be entitled to receive two dollars a day as compensation for their services, which with the expense of providing booths, guard rails, and other things required in this chapter shall be paid in the same manner as other election expenses. The printing and distributing of ballots and cards of instruction to the voters, described in this chapter, for any general election, shall be at the expense of the county, and shall be provided for in the same manner as other county election expenses. The printing and distribution of ballots for use in city elections shall be at the expense of the city or town in which the election shall be held. [30 G. A., ch. 39; 24 G. A., ch. 33, §§ 2, 20.]

The provisions of this section do not cover compensation to special policemen appointed under code § 1125. Mousseau v. Sioux City, 113–246, 84 N. W. 1027.

SEC. 1130. Ballot boxes. The board of supervisors shall provide for each precinct in the county, for the purpose of elections, one box, with lock and key. When any township precinct includes a town or part thereof, together with territory outside the limits of such town, the township trustees shall prepare a separate ballot box to receive the votes for township assessor, which shall be on separate ballots, and only the ballots of persons living outside of the limits of such town shall be placed in said ballot box. The judges of election shall place each ballot in its proper ballot box. The judges of election shall have the right to administer an oath to any voter, and to examine him under oath as to the assessor for whom such elector is entitled to vote. [29 G. A., ch. 53, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 71, §§ 2, 3; C. '73, § 614; R. § 489; C. '51, § 254.]

SEC. 1131. Voting by women.

Women have the right to vote at city elections on questions involving either the issuance of bonds or increasing of taxation. Coggeshall v. Des Moines, 138–730, 117 N. W. 309.

These provisions as to women voting at municipal elections in certain cases are not unconstitutional. Ibid.

While these provisions are not unconstitutional, they do not make women qualified electors within the proper meaning of that term. In re Application of Carragher, 149–225, 128 N. W. 352.

SEC. 1132. Registry and poll books.

It is not required that the poll lists show in what town in the county the voter resides. Porter v. Butterfield, 116–725, 89 N. W. 199.

SEC. 1134-a. Promise of position prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any candidate for any office to be voted for at any primary, municipal or general election, prior to his nomination or election, to promise, either directly or indirectly, to support or use his influence in behalf of any person or persons for any position, place or office, or to promise directly or indirectly to name or appoint any person or persons to any place, position or office in consideration of any person or persons supporting him or using his, her or their influence in securing his or her nomination, election or appointment. [35 G. A., ch. 303, § 1.]

SEC. 1134-b. Promise of influence prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit from any candidate for any office to be voted for at any primary, municipal or general election, or any candidate for appointment to any public office, prior to his nomination, election or appointment, to promise, directly or indirectly, to support or use his or her influence in behalf of any person or persons for any position, place or office, or to promise either directly or indirectly to name or appoint any person or persons to any place, position or office in consideration of any person or persons supporting him or her, or using his, her or their influence in securing his or her nomination, election or appointment. [35 G. A., ch. 303, § 2.]

SEC. 1134-c. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided in section eleven hundred thirty-seven-a six, supplement to the code, 1907. [35 G. A., ch. 303, § 3.]

SEC. 1137-a1. Candidates to make sworn statement of election expenses—where filed. Every candidate for any office to be voted for at any primary, municipal or general election shall, within ten days after the holding of such primary, municipal or general election, file a true, correct, detailed, sworn statement showing each and all sums of money or other things of value disbursed, expended or promised directly or indirectly by him, and to the best of his knowledge and belief by any other person or persons in his behalf for the purpose of aiding or securing his nomination or election. If the person be a candidate for a municipal or a county office, such statement shall be filed with the county auditor; if for a state office, or any other office to be voted for by the electors of more than one county, such statement shall be filed with the secretary of state. Such statement shall show the dates, amounts, and from whom such sums of money or other things of value were received, and the dates, amounts, purposes and to whom paid or disbursed, and shall include the assessment of any person, committee, or organization in charge of the campaign of such candidate. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 2.]

SEC. 1137-a2. Testimony—immunity from prosecution. In prosecutions under this act, no witness shall be excused from giving testimony on the ground that his testimony would tend to render him criminally liable or expose him to public ignominy, but any matter so elicited shall not be used against him, and said witness shall not be prosecuted for any crime connected with or growing out of the act on which the prosecution is based in the cause in which his evidence is used for the state, under the provisions of this section. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 3.]

SEC. 1137-a3. Statements by committee chairmen. The chairman of each party central committee for the state, district or county, shall file a statement of receipts and expenditures within ten days after the general election. The chairmen of state and district central committees shall file said statements with the secretary of state; and the chairmen of county central committees, with the county auditor. Such statements shall contain all the information required to be filed by candidates as set forth in section two of this act, and in addition thereto shall state the amounts or balances remaining on hand. The person filing the same shall make oath that it is a full, true and correct statement. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 4.]

SEC. 1137-a4. Statements open to public inspection. The statements provided for in this act shall be open at all times to the inspection of the public, and remain on file and become a part of the permanent records in the office where filed. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 5.]

SEC. 1137-a5. Treating near the polls—duty of judges and clerks. It shall be the duty of the judges and clerks of all municipal, general and primary elections to prohibit the placing, keeping, and giving to the voters by any person of any cigars, food or other refreshments or treats, in or about the polling place. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 6.]

SEC. 1137-a6. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of the last five preceding sections shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months. [32 G. A., ch. 50, § 7.]

CHAPTER 3-A.

OF VOTING MACHINES.

SECTION 1137-a7. Use of voting machines authorized. That at all state, county, city, town, primary and township elections hereafter held in the state of Iowa, ballots or votes may be cast, registered, recorded, and counted by means of voting machines, as hereinafter provided. [33 G. A., ch. 72, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 1.]

Voting by a machine is voting by ballot within the constitutional provisions, and a court of equity has no authority to enjoin the use of a voting machine at an election, the right to vote being only a political and not a civil right. United States Standard Voting Mch. Co. v. Hobson, 132–38, 109 N. W. 458.

A tax payer cannot invoke the jurisdiction of a court of equity to restrain the performance of a contract by the board of supervisors for the purchase of voting machines on the ground that they are inefficient. Shoemaker v. Des Moines, 129–244, 105 N. W. 520.

A voter has no right which a court of equity will intervene to protect, with reference to the right to cast his ballot. Ibid.

SEC. 1137-a8. Board of supervisors to purchase. Hereafter the board of county supervisors of any county, or the council of any incorporated city or town in the state of Iowa may, by a two-thirds vote, authorize, purchase, and order the use of voting machines in any one or more voting precincts within said county, city, or town, until otherwise ordered by said board of county supervisors or city or town council. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 2.]

SEC. 1137-a9. Commissioners—term—removal. Within thirty days after this act goes into effect, the governor shall appoint three commissioners and not more than two of whom shall be from the same political party. The said commissioners shall hold office for the term of five years, subject to removal at the pleasure of the governor. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 3.]

SEC. 1137-a10. Examination of machine—report of commissioners—compensation. Any person or corporation owning or being interested in any voting machine may call upon the said commissioners to examine the said machine, and make report to the secretary of state upon the capacity of the said machine to register the will of voters, its accuracy and efficiency, and with respect to its mechanical perfections and imperfections. Their report shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state and shall state whether in their opinion the kind of machine so examined can be safely used by such voters at elections under the conditions prescribed in this act. If the report states that the machine can be so used, it shall be deemed approved by the commissioners, and machines of its kind may be adopted for use at elections as herein provided. Any form of voting machine not so approved cannot be used at any election. Each commissioner is entitled to one hundred fifty dollars for his compensation and expenses in making such examination and report, to be paid by the person or corporation applying for such examination. No commissioner shall have any interest whatever in any machine reported upon. Provided, that said commissioner shall not receive to exceed fifteen hundred dollars and reasonable expenses in any one year; and all sums collected for such examinations over and above said maximum salaries and expenses shall be turned into the state treasury. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 4.]

SEC. 1137-a11. Provisions as to the construction of machine approved. A voting machine approved by the state board of voting machine commissioners must be so constructed as to provide facilities for voting for the candidates of at least seven different parties or organizations, must permit a voter to vote for any person for any office although not nominated as a candidate by any party or organization, and must permit voting in absolute secrecy. It must also be so constructed as to prevent voting for more than one person for the same office, except where the voter is lawfully entitled to vote for more than one person for that office; and it must afford him an opportunity to vote for any or all persons for that office as he is by law entitled to vote for and no more, at the same time preventing his voting for the same person twice. It may also be provided with one ballot in each party column or row containing only the words "presidential electors," preceded by the party name, and a vote for such ballot shall operate as a vote for all the candidates of such party for presidential electors. Such machine shall be so constructed as to accurately account for every vote cast upon it. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 5.]

SEC. 1137-a12. Experimental use. The board of supervisors of any county, the council of any city or town, may provide for the experimental use at an election in one or more districts, of a machine which it might lawfully adopt, without a formal adoption thereof; and its use at such election shall be as valid for all purposes as if it had been lawfully adopted. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 6.]

SEC. 1137-a13. Duties of local authorities. The local authorities adopting a voting machine shall, as soon as practical thereafter, provide for each polling place one or more voting machines in complete working order, and shall thereafter keep them in repair, and shall have the custody thereof and of the furniture and equipment of the polling place when not in use at an election. If it shall be impracticable to supply each and every election district with a voting machine or voting machines at any election following such adoption, as many may be supplied as it is practicable to procure, and the same may be used in such election district or districts within the county, city, or town as the officers adopting the same may direct. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 7.]

SEC. 1137-a14. Bonds—certificates of indebtedness. The local authorities, on the adoption and purchase of a voting machine, may provide for the payment therefor in such manner as they may deem for the best interest of the locality, and may for that purpose issue bonds, certificates of indebtedness, or other obligations which shall be a charge on the county, city, or town. Such bonds, certificates, or other obligations may be issued with or without interest, payable at such time or times as the authorities may determine, but shall not be issued or sold at less than par. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 8.]

The county is given authority to issue bonds in the purchase of voting machines, with or without interest, payable at such time as may seem best. Impliedly it has the power to make such bonds negotiable in form and effect. Security Trust Co. v. Des Moines County, (C. C.) 198 Fed. 331.

SEC. 1137-a15. Ballots—form. All ballots shall be printed in black ink on clear, white material, of such size as will fit the ballot frame, and in plain, clear type as the space will reasonably permit. The party name for each political party represented on the machine shall be prefixed to the list of candidates of such party. The order of the list of candidates of the several parties or organizations shall be arranged as provided in section eleven hundred and six of the code, except that the lists may be arranged in horizontal rows or vertical columns. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 9.]

SEC. 1137-a16. Sample ballots. The officers or board charged with the duty of providing ballots for any polling place shall provide therefor two sample ballots, which shall be arranged in the form of a diagram showing the entire front of the voting machine as it will appear after the official ballots are arranged for voting on election day. Such sample ballots shall be open to public inspection at such polling place during the day of election and the day next preceding election day. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 10.]

SEC. 1137-a17. Two sets of ballots. Two sets of ballots shall be provided for each polling place for each election for use in the voting machine. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 11.]

SEC. 1137-a18. Delivery of ballots. The ballots and stationery shall be delivered to the election board of each election district before ten o'clock in the forenoon of the day next preceding the election. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 12.]

SEC. 1137-a19. Duties of election officers—independent ballots. The judges of election and clerks of each district shall meet at the polling place therein, at least three quarters of an hour before the time set for the opening of the polls at each election, and shall proceed to arrange within the guard rail the furniture, stationery, and voting machines for the conduct of the election. The judges of election shall then and there have the voting machine, ballots, and stationery required to be delivered to them for such election; and, if it be an election at which registered voters only can vote, the registry of such electors required to be made and kept therefor. The judges shall thereupon cause at least two instruction cards to be posted conspicuously within the polling place. If not previously done, they shall arrange in their proper place on the voting machine, the ballots containing the names of the offices to be filled at such election, and the names of the candidates nominated therefor. If not previously done, the machine shall be so arranged as to show that no vote has been cast, and the same shall not be thereafter operated, except by electors in voting. Before the polls are open for election, each judge shall carefully examine every machine and see that no vote has been cast, and the same shall be subject to inspection of the election officers. Ballots voted for any person, whose name does not appear on the machine as a nominated candidate for office, are herein referred to as independent ballots. When two or more persons are to be elected to the same office, and the machine requires that all independent ballots voted for that office be deposited in a single receptacle or device, an elector may vote in or by such receptacle or device for one or more persons whose names do not appear upon the machine with or without the names of one or more persons whose names do so appear. With that exception, and except for presidential electors, no independent ballot shall be voted for any person for any office whose name appears on the machine as a nominated candidate for that office; any independent ballot so voted shall not be counted. An independent ballot must be cast in its appropriate place on the machine, or it shall be void and not counted. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 13.]

SEC. 1137-a20. Voting machine in plain view—guard rail. The exterior of the voting machine and every part of the polling place shall be in plain view of the election officers. The voting machine shall be placed at least three feet from every wall and partition of the polling place, and at least three feet from the guard rail, and at least four feet from the clerk's table. A guard rail shall be constructed at least three feet from the machine, with openings to admit electors to and from the machine. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 14.]

SEC. 1137-a21. Method of voting. After the opening of the polls, the judges shall not allow any voter to pass within the guard rail until they ascertain that he is duly entitled to vote. Only one voter at a time shall be permitted to pass within the guard rail to vote. The operating of the voting machine by the elector while voting shall be secret and obscured from all other persons except as provided by this chapter in cases of voting by assisted electors. No voter shall remain within the voting machine booth longer than one minute, and if he shall refuse to leave it after the lapse of one minute, he shall be removed by the judges. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 15.]

SEC. 1137-a22. Additional instructions. In case any elector after entering the voting machine booth shall ask for further instructions concerning the manner of voting, two judges of opposite political parties shall give such instructions to him; but no judge or other election officer or person assisting an elector shall in any manner request, suggest, or seek to persuade or induce any such elector to vote any particular ticket, or for any particular candidate, or for or against any particular amendment, question, or proposition. After receiving such instructions, such elector shall vote as in the case of an unassisted voter. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 16.]

SEC. 1137-a23. Injury to the machine. No voter, or other person, shall deface or injure the voting machine or the ballot thereon. It shall be the duty of the judges to enforce the provisions of this section. During the entire period of an election, at least one of their number, designated by them from time to time, shall be stationed beside the entrance to the booth and shall see that it is properly closed after a voter has entered it to vote. He shall also, at such intervals as he may deem proper or necessary, examine the face of the machine to ascertain whether it has been defaced, or injured, to detect the wrongdoer and to repair any injury. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 17.]

SEC. 1137-a24. Canvass of vote. As soon as the polls of the election are closed, the judges of the election thereat shall immediately lock the voting machine against voting and open the counting compartments in the presence of all persons who may be lawfully within the polling place, and proceed to canvass the vote. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 18.]

SEC. 1137-a25. Judges to lock machine. The judges of election shall, as soon as the count is completed and fully ascertained as in this act required, lock the machine against voting, and it shall so remain for the period of thirty days. Whenever independent ballots have been voted, the judges shall return all of such ballots properly secured in a sealed package as prescribed by section eleven hundred forty-two of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 19.]

SEC. 1137-a26. Written statements of election. After the total vote for each candidate has been ascertained, and before leaving the room or voting place, the judges shall make and sign written statements of election, as required by the election laws now in force, except that such statements of the canvass need not contain any ballots except the independent ballots as herein provided. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 20.]

SEC. 1137-a27. What statutes apply—separate ballots. All of the provisions of the election law now in force and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act shall apply with full force to all counties, cities, and towns adopting the use of voting machines. Nothing in this act shall be construed as prohibiting the use of a separate ballot for constitutional amendments and other public measures. [28 G. A., ch. 37, § 21.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE CANVASS OF VOTES.

SECTION 1142. Proclamation of result—preservation of ballots.

The poll books and the registration lists prepared as provided by law furnish the best evidence as to who cast ballots at the election. So held where the question was as to the sufficiency of the petition of consent under the mulct tax law. State v. Pressman, 103–449, 72 N. W. 660.

The law provides for the strictest vigilance in the care and preservation of the ballots, and where it appears that these precautions have not been observed and there has been opportunity to tamper with them they will not be considered in an election contest for the purpose of overthrowing the result of the canvass by the proper officers. Davenport v. Olerich, 104–194, 73 N. W. 603.

The duty of preserving the ballots is not a negative one of noninterference, but a positive requirement to do whatever may be necessary in order to accomplish the purposes of the law in keeping them inviolate. Ibid.

The ballots when properly authenticated afford the very best evidence of who has been chosen by the electors to an office, but in order that the result of the canvass shall be overturned by the evidence of such ballots it must appear that they have been preserved with the care which precludes the suspicion of having been tampered with and the opportunity of alteration or change, and in a particular case, held that it appeared that there had been such opportunity for tampering with the ballots that they should not be considered for the purpose of overturning the result as announced by the canvassing board. Ibid.

The ballots should be preserved in such way as not to afford a reasonable possibility of their having been changed or tampered with by unauthorized persons. Mentzer v. Davis, 109–528, 80 N. W. 557

As the manner and mode of preservation of ballots has been enjoined by statute, a substantial compliance therewith must be shown preliminary to the introduction of the ballots in evidence. This preliminary proof, unless waived, is essential to the competency of the ballots as evidence for any purpose as against the official count, and no averment in the pleading is required as a basis for an objection to their competency. DeLong v. Brown, 113–370, 85 N. W. 624.

The question of the competency of the ballots as evidence is one of fact to be determined by the trial court. Ibid.

Where it appeared that the ballots had been so kept that they might have been tampered with, held that they were not admissible. Ibid.

The fact that the ballots are in the custody of one acting as deputy auditor de facto, but not de jure, will not prevent their being received in evidence in an election contest. Murphy v. Lentz, 131–328, 108 N. W. 530.

The provisions as to the folding, wiring and sealing of the ballots by the election officers are directory in character, and mere irregularities will not prevent such ballots from being admissible in evidence in an election contest. Ibid.

The provisions of the statute with reference to the conduct of election officers upon whom duties are enjoined, are mandatory, but as to the particular methods of preserving the ballots they are directory only. Ibid.

Before the ballots are admissible as evidence in a case of contest it must be made to appear affirmatively by the contestants that they have been preserved in the method required by statute; and where it appears that the custodian of ballots was personally interested in the result of the election his interest is a proper matter of consideration in determining whether they have been properly preserved. Doak v. Briggs, 139–520, 116 N. W. 114.

SEC. 1143. Destruction of ballots—in case of contest. The parties to any contested election shall have the right, in open session of the court or tribunal trying the contest, and in the presence of the officer having them in custody, to have the ballots opened, and all errors of the judges in counting or refusing to count ballots corrected by such court or tribunal. If at the expiration of six months no contest is pending, the officer having the ballots in custody, without opening the package in which they have been inclosed, shall, in the presence of two electors to be designated by the chairman of the board of supervisors, one each from the two leading political parties, or, in municipal elections, by the mayor of the city or town in which they are kept, destroy the same by burning; provided, however, that the ballots cast at a primary election shall, where no contest is pending, be destroyed ten days prior to the holding of the general election following the primary election at which said ballots were cast. If a contest is pending, the ballots shall be kept until the same is finally determined, and then so destroyed. [33 G. A., ch. 73, §1.] [24 G. A., ch. 33, § 25.]

SEC. 1145. Poll books returned and preserved.

Previous to the time when the poll books are directed to be destroyed they may be used by the board of supervisors in determining whether the number of signers to a petition of consent for the sale of intoxicating liquors is sufficient. Cameron v. Fellows, 109–534, 80 N. W. 567.

Where the poll books have not been destroyed by reason of the commencement of some legal proceeding involving their use in evidence, they are admissible in evidence after the expiration of the time when, in the usual course, they would have been destroyed. Reed v. Jugenheimer, 118–610, 92 N. W. 859.

In determining the sufficiency of signatures to a statement of consent for the sale of intoxicating liquors as provided in code § 2448, the poll books filed with the auditor and not those filed with the township, city or town clerk are to be considered. DeBoard v. Williams, 155–149, 134 N. W. 620.

In the case of a city election one of the poll books is to be delivered within two days by one of the judges to the county auditor and the other to the city clerk. Jackman v. Board of Supervisors, 156–620, 137 N. W. 906.

SEC. 1149. Canvass by board of supervisors.

The judges of election who have made defective returns may correct such returns so as to authorize the board of supervisors to canvass the same. Rummel v. Dealy, 112–503, 84 N. W. 526.

The board is required to make an abstract of the election returns as canvassed and received from the various precincts and such abstract should be published as a part of the proceedings of the board under the provisions of code § 441. Clark v. Lake, 146–109, 124 N. W. 866.

The proceedings of the county board of canvassers are the proceedings of the county board of supervisors and as such are to be published as provided under code § 441. Index Ptg. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150–411, 130 N. W. 401.

SEC. 1150. Abstracts. The abstract of the votes for each of the following classes shall be made on a different sheet:

1. Presidential electors;
2. Governor and lieutenant governor;
3. All state officers not otherwise provided for;
4. Representatives in congress;
5. Senators and representatives in the general assembly for the county alone;
6. Senators and representatives in the general assembly by districts comprising more than one county;
7. Judges of the district court;
8. County officers;
9. Senators in the congress of the United States.

[35 G. A., ch. 109, § 5.] [C. '73, §§ 636, 662; R. §§ 507, 538–9; C. '51, §§ 272, 304–5.]

SEC. 1151. For United States senators, congressmen, electors and state and district officers. Abstracts of all the votes cast for senators in the congress of the United States, congressmen, presidential electors, state or judicial district officers, shall be made in duplicate, and signed by the board of county canvassers, one of which shall be forwarded to the secretary of state, and the other filed by the county auditor. [35 G. A., ch. 109, § 6.] [C. '73, §§ 637, 662; R. §§ 507, 538–9; C. '51, §§ 272, 304–5.]

SEC. 1157. Abstracts forwarded to secretary of state. Within ten days after the election, one of the abstracts of votes for governor and lieutenant governor shall be sealed up by the auditor, indorsed "Abstract of votes for governor and lieutenant governor from ..... county (naming the county)," and be by him forwarded to the speaker of the house of representatives; those for presidential electors, senators and representatives in congress, and all other state and district officers, shall be separately sealed up, indorsed in like manner, with necessary changes, and then all placed in one package and forwarded to the secretary of state. Abstracts of votes cast at special elections to fill vacancies in office shall be forwarded as soon as canvassed. [35 G. A., ch. 109, § 7.] [C. '73, §§ 645, 662; R. §§ 517, 518, 538–9; C. '51, §§ 283–4, 304–5.]

SEC. 1162. Canvass by state board including votes for United States senator. The board of state canvassers shall open the abstracts for state senators and representatives transmitted to the secretary of state, and canvass the votes therein returned, at the time and in the manner of canvassing the state vote, or at such other time as they may fix, at least twenty days prior to the time fixed by law for the meeting of the next general assembly, and in case of a special election, within five days after the receipt of such abstracts, and shall immediately make out, certify, and transmit by mail to the county auditor of each county in the district, to be by him filed in his office, a copy of the abstract of such canvass required in the next section, which shall be recorded by him in the election book. The said board shall at the same time and in the same manner open the abstracts of the vote for senator in the congress of the United States, transmitted to the secretary of state, and canvass the vote therein returned. They shall make an abstract of said returns in duplicate and duly certify the same and deliver the same to the secretary of state, properly sealed, who shall retain the same in his office until the convening of the next general assembly, when he shall transmit one of said certified abstracts to the president of the senate and one to the speaker of the house of representatives, who shall open the same respectively and lay them before the respective houses when the same bodies shall be in session for the election of a senator in the congress of the United States. [35 G. A., ch. 109, § 8.] [C. '73, § 647.]

SEC. 1164. Record of canvass. That section eleven hundred sixty-four of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The secretary of state shall file the abstracts when received and shall have the same bound in book form to be kept by him as a record of the result of said state election, to be known as the state election book." [32 G. A., ch. 52; C. '73, § 654; R. § 524; C. '51, § 290.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

SECTION 1173. Election of. At the general election in the years of the presidential election, or at such other times as the congress of the United States may direct, there shall be elected by the electors of the state, one person from each congressional district into which the state is divided, as elector of president and vice president, and two from the state at large, no one of whom shall be a person holding the office of senator or representative in congress, or any office of trust or profit under the United States. Such election shall be conducted, and the canvass of the votes and the returns thereof made, in the same manner as for state officers and representatives in congress. [28 G. A., ch. 38, § 1; 16 G. A., ch. 23; C. '73, §§ 659, 660; R. §§ 535–6; C. '51, §§ 301–2.]

See U. S. const., art. II, § 1.

CHAPTER 6.

OF QUALIFICATION FOR OFFICE.

SECTION 1177. Oath and bond—time in which to qualify. The several officers, before entering upon their duties as such, shall qualify by taking the prescribed oath and by giving, when required, a bond, which qualification shall be perfected, unless otherwise specified, before noon of the second secular day in January of the first year of the term for which such officers were elected, but city and town officers shall so qualify within ten days after their election has been declared by the board of canvassers. When, on account of sickness or the inclement state of the weather or other unavoidable casualty, an officer has been prevented from qualifying within the prescribed time, he may do so within ten days after the time herein fixed, and in case of a contest, within ten days after the decision. [33 G. A., ch. 74, § 1.] [21 G. A., ch. 54, § 1; C. '73, §§ 670, 685, 686, 687; R. §§ 549, 564, 565; C. '51, §§ 319, 334, 335.]

One who is elected to an office, but does not qualify nor act, is not an officer de facto. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109–680, 81 N. W. 178.

SEC. 1177-a. Bond. When a bond is required by law to be given by or for any public officer, deputy or employe of such public officer, or by any person holding a fiduciary office or trust, administrator, executor, guardian, trustee, officer or employe of any public or private corporation or association, when not otherwise specifically provided, [it] shall be conditioned as provided in section eleven hundred eighty-three of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 54, § 1.]

These provisions relating to bonds given by public officers and others and providing for cancellation do not apply to a bond executed in compliance with the provision of the mulct law (code § 2448) and such bond cannot be canceled by the surety during any year as to which it has taken effect prior to the effort at cancellation. Fidelity & Dep. Co. v. Jenness, 138–725, 116 N. W. 709.

SEC. 1177-b. Sureties relieved—how. If any surety on said bond shall so elect, his liability thereon may be canceled at any time by giving thirty days' notice in writing to the person or persons authorized to approve said bond, and to the officer or person with whom the same is required to be filed or deposited by law, and refunding the premium paid, if any, less a pro rata part thereof for the time said bond shall have been in force. The liability and indemnity created by said bond shall extend to the date of cancellation as provided by chapter eleven, title six of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 54, § 2.]

SEC. 1177-c. Contract or stipulation. No contract, stipulation, or condition limiting the liability created by said bond shall be of any force or validity. [29 G. A., ch. 54, § 3.]

SEC. 1177-d. Other bonds. All other bonds, public or private, required to be given by law, when not otherwise specifically provided, shall be substantially conditioned as required in this act and subject to the limitations thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 54, § 4.]

SEC. 1182. Bond not required. The governor, lieutenant governor, members of the general assembly, judges of courts, township trustees, aldermen, and councilmen of cities and towns, are not required to give bond. [35 G. A., ch. 113, § 1.] [C. '73, § 674; R. §§ 550, 553; C. '51, § 323.]

[Enrolled bill, H. F. 58, ch. 113, 35 G. A., directs that § 1182 of the code be amended by striking out the words "county supervisors" in line six of said section. The section as it appears in the code consists of four lines only, the words "county supervisors" appearing in line two. The words have been dropped from line two. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1182-a. County supervisors shall give bond—amount of. That all county supervisors in the state of Iowa shall be compelled to give bonds for the faithful performance of their duties in such sums as shall be approved by one of the district judges of their respective districts where the supervisor resides. The amount of such bond shall not be less than five thousand dollars, and shall be approved by and left in the custody of the clerk of the district court. [35 G. A., ch. 113, § 2.]

SEC. 1183. Bond required.

The sureties of a county treasurer are liable for money in his hands at the expiration of his term which is subsequently converted by him before his successor comes into office and not paid over to such successor. Plymouth County v. Kersebom, 108–304, 79 N. W. 67.

Where the clerk of the courts in his official capacity receives a fund to hold for a claimant thereof and deposits it at interest with a bank, the claimant having established his right to the fund may recover against the clerk and his bondsmen the interest accrued on the fund. Rhea v. Brewster, 130–729, 107 N. W. 940.

There is nothing in this section requiring any action on the part of an officer in canceling a bond when notice of such cancellation is given by the surety under the provisions of code supp. § 1177-a. Fidelity & Dep. Co. v. Jenness, 138–725, 116 N. W. 709.

The liability of the county treasurer on his official bond may be released so far as the public funds are concerned by a curative act. McSurely v. McGrew, 140–163, 118 N. W. 415.

The provision as to bonds has no application to a special constable appointed to serve a search warrant. Hoeg v. Pine, 143–243, 121 N. W. 1019.

A bond executed in such case without authority is not valid as a common law bond. Ibid.

As it would be lawful for the county to receive a bond executed by a surety company only, without the county treasurer being a party to such bond, the fact that a surety company executes a bond to the county, contemplating the signature also of the county treasurer before delivery, and entrusts it to the county treasurer to be delivered when signed by him, such bond being accepted and acted upon by the county without the signature of the treasurer, estops the surety company from contending that such bond is not binding upon it. Empire State Surety Co. v. Carroll County, (C. C. A.) 194 Fed. 593.

Individual sureties on the treasurer's bond, purporting to cover the balance of his term and all funds coming into his hands as treasurer, cannot show by parol evidence a prior understanding that such bond was to be for a shorter term and for specific funds only. Ibid.

SEC. 1185. County and municipal officers—bond. That section eleven hundred eighty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The bonds of the following county officers, viz.: treasurers, clerks of the district courts, county attorneys, recorders, coroners, surveyors, auditors, superintendents of schools, sheriffs, justices of the peace and constables, and city, town and township assessors, shall each be in a penal sum to be fixed by the board of supervisors; but those of treasurers, clerks of the district courts, county auditors, sheriffs and county attorneys shall not be in less sum than five thousand dollars each, and those of justices and constables, not less than five hundred dollars each. The bonds of all municipal officers who are required to give bonds shall each be in such penal sum as may be provided by law or as the council shall from time to time prescribe by ordinance, provided that the bonds of mayors shall not be in less sum than five hundred dollars each. If any county treasurer shall elect to furnish a bond with any association or incorporation as surety as provided in this chapter the reasonable cost of such bond shall be paid by the county where the bond is filed." [33 G. A., ch. 75, § 1.] [18 G. A., ch. 201, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 20, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 33, § 2; C. '73, §§ 390, 504, 514, 678; R. §§ 128, 135, 165, 556–7, 1084, 1132; C. '51, §§ 326–7.]

SEC. 1188. Form—approval. That section eleven hundred eighty-eight of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All official bonds shall run to the state, and be for the use and benefit of any corporation, public or private, or person injured or sustaining loss, with a right of action in the name of the state for its or his use. Those given by state and district officers shall be approved by the governor; those of county officers, township clerk and assessor, by the board of supervisors; those of other township officers by the township clerk; and those of city and town officers by the mayor, or as may be provided by ordinance, except that the bond of the mayor shall be approved by the council. All bonds shall be approved or disapproved within five days after their presentation for that purpose, and endorsed, in case of approval, to that effect and filed, and, unless otherwise provided by law, kept in the office of the approving officer." [33 G. A., ch. 75, § 2.] [C. '73, §§ 677, 680; R. §§ 555, 560; C. '51, §§ 325, 330.]

SEC. 1193. Accounting before approval.

Where an officer has accounted, as required by law, and produced the funds and property with which he is chargeable, the settlement with him, in the absence of fraud or mistake, is conclusive, not only as against him, but also as against his sureties, and the burden is cast on the sureties to show his failure to produce funds and that such funds were misappropriated prior to the taking effect of the bond on which they are sureties. But the sureties are not estopped from showing that the defalcation for which they are sought to be charged in fact occurred prior to the making of such settlement, if at the time of settlement the funds were not in fact produced. Independent School Dist. v. Hubbard, 110–58, 81 N. W. 241.

SEC. 1195. Officer holding over. When it is ascertained that the incumbent is entitled to hold over by reason of the nonelection of a successor, or for the neglect or refusal of the successor to qualify, he shall qualify anew, within the time provided by section twelve hundred seventy-five of the code. [33 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.] [C. '73, § 690; R. § 568; C. '51, § 338.]

SEC. 1196. Recording. That section eleven hundred ninety-six of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The auditor of each county shall keep in his office a book, to be known as the record book of officers' bonds, and record in said book the official bonds of all county officers, including justices of the peace, township clerks, constables, assessors and mayors filed in his county; and also keep an index to said book, in which, under the title of each office, shall be entered the names of each principal and his sureties, and the date of the filing of the bond. All bonds when recorded shall be returned to the officers charged by law with the custody thereof." [33 G. A., ch. 75, § 3.] [C. '73, § 683.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF CONTESTING ELECTIONS.

SECTION 1198. Grounds of contest.

The provisions of this section are cumulative and not exclusive of those authorized by code § 4313 to test the right of an incumbent of a county office to hold the same. Haverstock v. Aylesworth, 113–378, 85 N. W. 634.

Voters at an election in a township for which defective returns are made may by action of mandamus compel the board of supervisors to canvass corrected returns. Rummel v. Dealy, 112–503, 84 N. W. 526.

The provisions as to election contests have no application to primary elections now provided for in code supp. §§ 1087-a1–1087-a35, as amended by 33 G. A., ch. 69. Jones v. Fisher, 156–582, 137 N. W. 940.

SEC. 1203. Statement of contest.

The provisions of this section as to what the statement of contest must show have reference to the paper filed by the contestant as the basis for his proceedings, and it is doubtful whether they apply to the answer filed by the incumbent. Kelso v. Wright, 110–560, 81 N. W. 805.

SEC. 1208. Procedure—powers of court.

The proceedings in contest cases should be assimilated to those in an action so far as practicable and the defendant, that is, the incumbent in such a contest, is not required, as a general rule, to give bond. Kelso v. Wright, 110–560, 81 N. W. 805.

The incumbent may meet the case made by the contestant by showing that the illegal votes counted for him were without prejudice because of the illegal votes cast for the contestant. Ibid.

SEC. 1217. Costs.

The payment of costs in an election contest in which the contestant is unsuccessful is to be determined by the rules applicable in criminal cases where the prosecution has failed. See code § 4318. Hull v. Eby, 123–257, 98 N. W. 774.

SEC. 1222. Appeal. The party against whom judgment is rendered may appeal within twenty days to the district court, but, if he be in possession of the office, such appeal will not supersede the execution of the judgment of the court as provided in the preceding section, unless he gives a bond, with security to be approved by the district judge, in a sum to be fixed by him, and which shall be at least double the probable compensation of such officer for six months, which bond shall be conditioned that he will prosecute his appeal without delay, and that, if the judgment appealed from be affirmed, he will pay over to the successful party all compensation received by him while in possession of said office after the judgment appealed from was rendered. The court shall hear the appeal in equity and determine anew all questions arising in the case. [28 G. A., ch. 39, § 1; C. '73, § 716.]

After the judges of contest have in fact announced their decision, the notice of appeal may be served although the decision has not yet been formally reduced to writing and filed with the proper authorities. Mentzer v. Davis, 109–528, 80 N. W. 557.

The statute does not require the giving of bond where no stay of proceedings is sought. Ibid.

Ballots should not be received in evidence unless they have been so kept as not to be exposed to the reach of unauthorized persons in such a way as to afford a reasonable possibility of their having been changed or tampered with. Ibid. And see notes to § 1142.

The fact that contestant claims that the returns for a certain township or precinct were not such as to entitle the votes from that precinct to be counted will not prevent a determination of the contest by a recounting of votes of which proper returns were made. Brown v. Crosson, 115–256, 88 N. W. 366.

The proceedings before the board are not binding on the court hearing the appeal. Ibid.

The supreme court does not on appeal in an election contest try the case de novo, but only upon errors assigned. Spurrier v. McLennan, 115–461, 88 N. W. 1062.

The appeal in an election contest is triable in the court in equity, and is therefore triable de novo; and an appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the district court is also to be heard de novo. Murphy v. Lentz, 131–328, 108 N. W. 530.

The officer obtaining possession of an office by judgment of a court in a contest cannot recover from the county the salary or compensation of which he has been deprived by the incumbency of the de facto officer who is ousted by the contest. Brown v. Tama County, 122–745, 98 N. W. 562.

These provisions as to appeal in contested election cases are applicable to special charter cities. Sterne v. Off, 149–96, 127 N. W. 1038.

SEC. 1250. Provisions applicable.

The provisions of this title as to contesting elections are applicable to elections in special charter cities. Sterne v. Off, 149–96, 127 N. W. 1038.

CHAPTER 8.

OF REMOVAL FROM OFFICE.

SECTION 1251. Causes.

Misconduct during a preceding term of office may be ground for the removal of a sheriff. State v. Welsh, 109–19, 79 N. W. 369.

The neglect of duty must be habitual or wilful to require removal. Ibid.

Voluntary intoxication while engaged in the performance of an official duty is such wilful misconduct as to be a ground for removal. Ibid.

To constitute wilful misconduct or maladministration something more is necessary than the mere breach of an official duty without intent to derive an advantage from such breach. The good faith and innocence of intentional wrong is a question upon which the officer to be removed is entitled to the verdict of a jury. State v. Meek, 148–671, 127 N. W. 1023.

As to removal of county attorney for failure to enforce the provisions relating to the mulct tax, see notes to code § 2446 in this supplement.

SEC. 1252. Complaint.

The power of suspension is not postponed to the filing of formal charges. The statute contemplates summary action and as preliminary thereto it requires no formalities and specifies no procedure. If the jurisdiction in fact exists at the time the order is made it is not essential that such facts be recited in the order. Battey v. Wheeler, 145–16, 123 N. W. 737.

SEC. 1256. Suspension—clerk or sheriff summarily.

To support the action of the court on charge in suspending an officer on his own motion for causes coming to his knowledge it is immaterial how such knowledge is acquired. Battey v. Wheeler, 145–16, 123 N. W. 737.

SEC. 1258-a. Applicable to special charter cities. The provisions of chapter eight of title six of the code are also made applicable to cities acting under special charters. [32 G. A., ch. 53.]

SEC. 1258-b. By executive council—for what causes. Members of the board of curators of the state historical society, members of the board of educational examiners appointed by the governor, the director of the weather and crop service, the fish and game warden, members of the commission of pharmacy, members of the board of dental examiners, members of the board of parole, dairy commissioner, custodian of public buildings and property, state veterinary surgeon, inspectors of products of petroleum, members of state board of veterinary medical examiners, inspectors of passenger boats, members of the board of optometry examiners, and members of the library commission appointed by the governor may be removed by a majority vote of the executive council, for any of the following causes:

1. For habitual or wilful neglect of duty;
2. For any disability preventing a proper discharge of the duties of his office;
3. For gross partiality;
4. For oppression;
5. For extortion;
6. For corruption;
7. For wilful misconduct or maladministration in office;
8. Upon conviction of felony;
9. For a failure to produce and fully account for all public funds and property in his hands at any inspection or settlement.

[33 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.]

SEC. 1258-c. By district court or judge—for what causes. Any county attorney, any member of the board of supervisors, sheriff, mayor, police officer, marshal or constable shall be removed from office by the district court or judge upon charges made in writing and hearing thereunder for the following causes:

1. For wilful or habitual neglect or refusal to perform the duties of his office;
2. For wilful misconduct or maladministration in office;
3. For corruption;
4. For extortion;
5. Upon conviction of a felony;
6. For intoxication or upon conviction of being intoxicated.

[34 G. A., ch. 60, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 78, § 1.]

In a particular case held that the showing of negligence or incompetency in the prosecution of certain criminal cases was not such as to require a removal of the county attorney from office. State v. Hospers, 147–712, 126 N. W. 818.

An officer such as described in this section is subject to removal for voluntary intoxication disabling him from performing the duties of his office. State v. Henderson, 145–657, 124 N. W. 767.

In a proceeding under this statute the defendant is not entitled to a jury trial. Ibid.

This action is not unconstitutional as violating the provisions of constitution, art. 3, § 20, relating to removals from office. The constitutional language expressly contemplates provisions by the legislature for removal from office of civil officers other than those expressly specified. Ibid.

SEC. 1258-d. Complaint or petition—who may file—county attorney to prosecute. The complaint or petition shall be entitled in the name of the state of Iowa, and may be filed upon the relation of any five qualified electors of the county in which the person charged is an officer, the county attorney of such county, or the attorney-general, and shall be filed by the attorney-general when directed so to do by the governor. It shall be the duty of the county attorney to appear and prosecute this proceeding when the officer sought to be removed is one other than himself; and when the proceeding is brought to remove the county attorney, the court may appoint an attorney to appear in behalf of the state and prosecute such proceedings. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 2.]

SEC. 1258-e. Governor to direct attorney-general to act—procedure. It shall be the duty of the governor, whenever he has knowledge that reasonable grounds exist for the filing of complaint against any of the within-named officers, to direct the attorney-general to file the same against the offending party and prosecute said action. The accused shall be named as defendant and the petition, unless filed by the attorney-general, shall be verified. The petition shall state the charges against the accused and may be amended as in ordinary actions, and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the person charged is an officer. The accused may at any time prior to the time fixed for hearing file in the office of the clerk of the district court his answer which shall be verified. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 3.]

SEC. 1258-f. Trial judge—time of hearing. If the person or persons filing the complaint or the defendant believe that the cause ought not to be heard before any of the judges in such district, he shall at the time he files his petition or answer in the office of the clerk of the district court, file a copy thereof in the office of the clerk of the supreme court, together with an application to the supreme court asking for the appointment of a judge outside of such district to hear the complaint. Upon the filing of the copy of said complaint, together with the application, in the office of the clerk of the supreme court, it shall be the duty of the chief justice of the supreme court, or in his absence or inability to act, any justice thereof, to forthwith issue a written commission directing a district judge in the state of Iowa outside of such district to proceed to the county in which the complaint was filed and hear the same. Upon the receipt of such commission, said judge shall immediately make an order fixing a time for hearing, which shall be not less than ten nor more than twenty days thereafter, and forward said order to the clerk of the district court of the county in which the hearing is to be had. The clerk shall file said order and forthwith cause a copy thereof or a notice of the time and place of hearing to be served on the accused. If the cause is to be heard by a judge within the judicial district, upon the presentation of the petition, or a copy thereof, to such judge, he shall make the order fixing a time for the hearing as hereinbefore specified. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 4.]

SEC. 1258-g. Summary proceeding—suspension from office—temporary vacancy—how filled. The proceeding shall be summary in its nature and triable as an equitable action and may be heard either in vacation or term time, and shall be heard before the court or judge without the intervention of a jury. Upon the filing of the petition in the office of the clerk of the district court, and presentation of the same to the judge, the court or judge may suspend the accused from office, if in his judgment sufficient cause appear from the petition and affidavit or affidavits which may be presented in support of the charges contained therein. In case of suspension, as herein provided, the temporary vacancy shall be filled in the manner specified in section twelve hundred fifty-seven of the code. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 5.]

SEC. 1258-h. Order of removal—vacancy—how filled. If upon the hearing herein provided for, the district court or judge shall find that the accused should be removed from office, he shall make and enter of record an order of removal and the vacancy thus created shall be filled as provided in section twelve hundred seventy-two of the supplement to the code, 1907. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 6.]

SEC. 1258-i. Appeal—procedure—bond shall not restore to office—expenses—costs. In case of appeal to the supreme court, the cause shall be advanced and take precedence over all other causes upon the court calendar, and shall be heard at the next term after the appeal is taken, provided the abstract and arguments are filed in said court in time for said action to be heard. The supreme court shall fix the time of hearing and the filing of arguments. The taking of an appeal by the defendant and the filing of a supersedeas bond shall not operate to stay the proceedings of the district court or judge, or restore said defendant to office pending such appeal. If the final termination of such proceedings be favorable to any accused officer, said officer shall be allowed the reasonable and necessary expense, including a reasonable attorney fee to be fixed by the court or judge, he has incurred in making his defense, by the county if he be a county officer, or by the city or town in which he holds office if he be a mayor, police officer or marshal. If the action is instituted upon complaint of citizens as herein provided, and it appears to the court that there was no reasonable cause for filing the complaint, the costs may be taxed against the complaining parties. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 7.]

SEC. 1258-j. Expenses of judge and reporter. Any judge who is required to preside at a hearing, herein provided for, outside of his judicial district, shall be allowed his necessary and actual expenses incurred by reason of such hearing, and the necessary and actual expenses of his official reporter. An itemized sworn statement shall be made by such judge and official reporter showing the amount of expenses incurred, and the same shall be filed with the auditor of state. Thereupon, the auditor shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for such amount. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 8.]

SEC. 1258-k. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act, in so far as they apply to the officers herein designated, are hereby repealed. [33 G. A., ch. 78, § 9.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF VACANCIES IN OFFICE.

SECTION 1265. Holding over.

Where the council of a city met at the time fixed by ordinance to elect a street commissioner and without doing so adjourned without date, held that the incumbent who thereafter gave bond as a holdover officer was entitled to the office as against a person elected at a subsequent meeting of the council. State ex rel. v. Alexander, 107–177, 77 N. W. 841.

SEC. 1266. What constitutes vacancy.

The office of justice of the peace becomes vacant if the incumbent becomes a resident of another state. State ex rel. v. Hemsworth, 112–1, 83 N. W. 728.

But mere temporary residence for a short time in another township does not operate to create a vacancy. Ibid.

In determining whether a vacancy exists in an office, a court is not confined to the statutory causes but may declare a vacancy if an office accepted is incompatible with one already held. While occupying one office, the acceptance of another incompatible with the first ipso facto vacates the first. State v. Anderson, 155–271, 136 N. W. 128.

The test of incompatibility is whether there is an inconsistency in the functions of the two offices. Therefore held that the acceptance of the office of justice of the peace in the township resulted in a vacancy in the office of mayor inasmuch as that to some extent the jurisdiction of the two officers is coördinate. Ibid.

SEC. 1272. Filling vacancies. Vacancies in the offices of clerk and reporter of the supreme court shall be filled by the supreme court; in all other state offices, judges of courts of record, officers elected in districts larger than a county, except state senators and representatives, officers, trustees, inspectors, and members of all boards or commissions, officers chosen by the general assembly if the legislature is not in session, and all persons filling any position of trust or profit in the state, by the governor, except when some other method is specially provided, and he shall issue the proper commission to the appointee; in county offices, including those of justices of the peace and constables, by the board of supervisors; and in the membership of such board, by the clerk of the district court, auditor and recorder; and when by death, or otherwise, a vacancy occurs in the office of the clerk of the district court, said court, or judge thereof, may, by order entered of record in the court journal, appoint a suitable and proper person to act as clerk until the vacancy shall be filled in the manner provided by law; in all other township offices, including trustees, by the trustees, but where the offices of the three trustees are all vacant, the county auditor shall appoint; in the office of councilman or mayor of any city, and all other elective city offices, the council may appoint any qualified elector to fill such vacancy, who shall qualify in the same manner as persons regularly elected to fill such office, and shall hold such office until the qualification of the officer elected to fill such vacancy, who shall be elected at the next regular municipal election; in all city appointive offices, unless otherwise provided by law, in the same manner as the original appointment was made; in all town offices, by the council at its first regular meeting after such vacancy occurs, or as soon thereafter as practicable. [30 G. A., ch. 41; 24 G. A., ch. 1, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 3, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 1, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 124, § 1; C. '73, §§ 390, 530, 783, 794–5; R. §§ 664, 1101; C. '51, § 436.]

See const., art. IV, § 10.

The board of supervisors alone has authority to fill a vacancy in the office of clerk of the district court. The authority of the court or a judge is to appoint a suitable person to act as clerk until the vacancy shall be so filled. One appointed by the court is not entitled to hold until the next general election and until his successor is elected and qualified. State v. Brown, 144–739, 123 N. W. 779.

SEC. 1275. Qualification.

Where there is an election of a person disqualified to hold the office, who therefore is unable to qualify, the vacancy is for failure to qualify and not for failure to elect, and the preceding officer is entitled to qualify within ten days after the failure of the newly elected officer to qualify. State ex rel. v. Cahill, 131–155, 105 N. W. 691.

The failure to elect within the statutory provision as to the vacancy refers to a failure to hold an election or a failure to make a choice as provided by law. Ibid.

CHAPTER 10-A.

OF THE DIVULGING OF CONTENTS OF SEALED BIDS BY PUBLIC OFFICERS.

SECTION 1279-a. Prohibited—damages—liability on bond. No public officer or deputy thereof, if any, shall directly or indirectly or in any manner whatsoever, at any other time or in any other manner than as provided by law, open any sealed bid or convey or divulge to any person any part of the contents of a sealed bid, on any proposed contract concerning which a sealed bid is required or permitted by law. A violation of the provisions of this section shall, in addition to criminal liability, render the violator liable, personally and on his bond, if any, to liquidated damages in the sum of ten hundred dollars for each violation, to inure to, and be collected by the state, county, city, town, school district or other municipal corporation of which the violator is an officer or deputy. [35 G. A., ch. 15, § 1.]

SEC. 1279-b. Witnesses—not privileged from testifying—immunity. In any action in any court wherein the matter of a violation of the preceding section is at issue, no witness shall be privileged from testifying to any matter or from producing any books, papers, or letters, on the ground that the same might or would tend to render such witness criminally liable, but such witness shall not be prosecuted for any offense whatever growing out of or connected with the matters and things so testified to or produced by him, provided such witness shall not be exempt from prosecution for perjury committed in so testifying. [35 G. A., ch. 15, § 2.]

CHAPTER 10-B.

OF LIABILITY ON CONTRACTS WITH THE STATE, OR ANY COUNTY, TOWN OR MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

SECTION 1279-c. Provision deemed to be a part of every contract—forfeit. The following provision shall be deemed and held to be a part of every contract hereafter entered into by any person, firm or private corporation with the state of Iowa, or with any county, city, town, city acting under special charter, cities acting under commission form of government, school corporation or with any municipal corporation, now or hereafter created, whether said provision be inserted in such contract or not, to wit:

The party to whom this contract has been awarded, hereby represents and guarantees that he has not, nor has any other person for or in his behalf, directly or indirectly, entered into any arrangement or agreement with any other bidder, or with any public officer, whereby he has paid or is to pay to any other bidder or public officer any sum of money or anything of value whatever in order to obtain this contract; and that he has not, nor has another person, for or in his behalf, directly or indirectly, entered into any agreement or arrangement with any other person, firm, corporation or association which tends to or does lessen or destroy free competition in the letting of this contract and agrees that the establishment of the falsity of these representations and guaranties, or any of them,[1] and he hereby agrees that in case it hereafter be established that such representations or guaranties, or any of them, are false, he will forfeit and pay not less than five per cent. of the contract price but in no event be less than three hundred dollars, as liquidated damages to the other contracting party. [35 G. A., ch. 21, § 1.]

[1This clause seems incomplete, but is the precise language of the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1279-d. Witnesses not privileged from testifying—immunity. In any action in any court wherein the falsity of such representations and guaranties are at issue, no witness shall be privileged from testifying to any matter or from producing any books, papers, or letters, on the ground that the same might or would tend to render such witness criminally liable, but such witness shall not be prosecuted for any offense whatever growing out of or connected with the matters and things so testified to or produced by him, provided such witness shall not be exempt from prosecution for perjury committed in so testifying. [35 G. A., ch. 21, § 2.]

CHAPTER 11.

OF ADDITIONAL SECURITY AND THE DISCHARGE OF SURETIES.

SECTIONS 1280-1288.

[For provisions relating to the release of sureties from an obligation, and manner of procedure, as enacted by 29 G. A., ch. 54, §§ 1, 2, 3 and 4, and made amendatory of this chapter, see §§ 1177-a, 1177-b, 1177-c and 1177-d, supra.]

CHAPTER 12.

OF GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO COMPENSATION.

SECTION 1290-a. Appraisers—compensation of generally. That the compensation of appraisers appointed to appraise property belonging to any estate as a basis for the assessment of the collateral inheritance tax and in other cases where the compensation of appraisers is not now fixed by statute, shall be two dollars per day for each appraiser and five cents a mile for the distance traveled in going to and returning from the place of appraisement, to be paid out of the property appraised or by the owner or owners thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.]

SEC. 1293. Publication of legal notices. The compensation, when not otherwise fixed, for the publication in a newspaper of any notice, order, citation or other publication required or allowed by law, shall not exceed one dollar for one insertion, and fifty cents for each subsequent insertion, for each ten lines of brevier type, or its equivalent, in a column not less than two and one-sixth inches in width. For publication of the official ballot, forty cents for each ten lines of brevier or its equivalent may be charged, the space necessarily occupied thereby being measured as if it were in brevier type set solid. In no case shall the cost of publishing the official ballot exceed forty dollars for each of the two papers in which it shall be published, except in presidential years, when it shall not exceed the sum of seventy dollars for each of said papers. Weekly publications may be made in a daily or weekly newspaper. The plaintiff or executor, in all publications concerning actions, executions and estates, may designate the newspaper in which such publication shall be made. If any newspaper refuse to make publication thereof, when copy therefor, with the cost or security for payment of the cost, is tendered, such publication may be made in some other newspaper of general circulation at or nearest to the county seat, with the same effect as if made in the newspaper so refusing. [31 G. A., ch. 47; 25 G. A., ch. 105; C. '73, § 3832.]

SEC. 1293-a. Succeeding publications. That in the publication of notices as provided for by this act, when the same shall be published in any paper published oftener than once each week, the succeeding publications of such notice shall be on the same day of the week as the first publication. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 32; 30 G. A., ch. 2, § 14.]

[The 31 G. A., ch. 9, § 32, enacted identically the same section as the one shown above, except that the words "once a week" instead of "once each week" are used therein, but it was not deemed best to insert both.]

SEC. 1297. Taking higher fees.

While the compensation of a public officer cannot be affected by contract, yet, if a city provides for a police matron without regard to the statutory provisions as to such office, it may fix the compensation by contract. Daniels v. Des Moines, 108–484, 79 N. W. 269.

SEC. 1298. Fees paid in advance.

A witness for the defendant in a criminal prosecution is not bound to attend without prepayment of fees, unless the subpoena is issued under the order of the judge, as provided in this section. State v. Keenan, 111–286, 82 N. W. 792.

SEC. 1299. Fee bill.

The unsuccessful party to a suit is primarily liable for the costs, and the successful party has no interest in and no right to collect any portion of such costs, except such as have been advanced by him. Hidy v. Hanson, 116–8, 89 N. W. 36.

A party having paid costs may cause the issuance of a fee bill although it includes other costs to which the party is not entitled. Charles City v. Surety Trust & Sav. Bank, 143–324, 120 N. W. 114.

SEC. 1300. Fees payable by state or county.

Where, by providing a salary for police judge and marshal the city becomes entitled to their fees in criminal cases, it may recover such fees in an action against the county. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107–525, 78 N. W. 249.

A claim or demand against the county on an unliquidated claim must be in writing. Escher v. Carroll County, 146–738, 125 N. W. 810.

SEC. 1302. Report of forfeited bonds.

This section does not confer any authority on the board with reference to fines, penalties and forfeitures but they are paid to the county treasurer. Gunn v. Mahaska County, 155–527, 136 N. W. 929.

TITLE VII.

OF THE REVENUE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE ASSESSMENT OF TAXES.

SECTION 1303. Levy—amount of. The board of supervisors of each county shall, annually, at its September session, levy the following taxes upon the assessed value of the taxable property in the county:

1. For state revenue, such rate of tax as shall be fixed by the executive council as hereinafter provided;

2. For ordinary county revenue, not more than six mills on a dollar in counties having a population of less than twenty thousand, and in counties having a population of twenty thousand or more, four mills, with a poll tax in either case of fifty cents on each male resident over twenty-one years of age. But in any county in which the levy is limited to four mills the board of supervisors may, at any general election, submit the question of increasing such levy to six mills or less to a vote of the electors, and if such proposition is adopted the board of supervisors may make the next general levy at the proposed rate; provided, however, that in any county where, by reason of extraordinary or unusual litigation the rates herein fixed for ordinary county revenue are found to be insufficient to pay the same, the board of supervisors may create an additional fund to be known as court expense fund, and may levy for such fund such rate of taxes as shall be necessary to pay all court expenses chargeable to the county. Such fund shall be used for no other purpose, and the levy therefor shall be dispensed with when the authorized levy for the ordinary county revenue is sufficient to meet the necessary county expenditures including such court expenses. Provided, further, that the levy for the purpose of providing an additional fund shall not exceed three mills on a dollar;

3. For support of schools, not less than one nor more than three mills on a dollar;

4. For making and repairing bridges, not more than five mills on a dollar; but such tax shall not be levied upon any property assessable within the limits of any city of the first class, and none of such bridge tax shall be used in the construction or repair of bridges within the limits of such city;

5. For the grading and building of roads two mills on a dollar, to be known as the county road building fund, but such tax shall not be levied upon any property assessable within the limits of any city or incorporated town and none of such road tax shall be used in the grading or building of any roads within the limits of such cities or incorporated towns. [35 G. A., ch. 122, § 21; 34 G. A., ch. 24, § 3; 33 G. A., ch. 79, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 42; 25 G. A., ch. 114; 22 G. A., ch. 43; 20 G. A., ch. 182; 18 G. A., ch. 13; 15 G. A., ch. 28; C. '73, § 796; R. § 710; C. '51, § 454.]

There can be no taxation except as authorized by statute or constitutional provision, and the taxing power can be exercised only in accordance with the forms of law. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Phillips, 111–377, 82 N. W. 787.

Provisions for levying a mulct tax on sellers of intoxicating liquor at the September session of the board of supervisors, held directory only and that a levy in December was valid. Hubbell v. Polk County, 106–618, 76 N. W. 854.

The territory of the county outside of a city of the first class embraced therein constitutes the county for bridge purposes and while indebtedness for bridges erected outside of the limits of such city may be considered a county indebtedness, still the property within the city is not taxable for the payment of funding bonds issued on account of the indebtedness for county bridges. Slutts v. Dana, 138–244, 115 N. W. 1115.

The board of supervisors has no authority to levy a general bridge tax on property within the limits of a special charter city which has adopted the commission form of government. Keokuk v. Kennedy, 156–680, 137 N. W. 914.

SEC. 1304. Exemptions. The following classes of property are not to be taxed:

1. The property of the United States and this state, including university, agricultural college and school lands; the property of a county, township, city, town or school district or militia company, when devoted entirely to public use and not held for pecuniary profit; municipal, school, and drainage bonds or certificates hereafter issued; public grounds, including all places for the burial of the dead, crematoriums, the land on which they are built and appurtenant thereto not exceeding one acre, so long as no dividends or profits are derived therefrom; fire engines and all implements for extinguishing fires, with the grounds used exclusively for their buildings and meetings of the fire companies; no deduction from the assessment of the stock of any bank or trust company shall be permitted because of such bank or trust company holding such bonds and certificates as may be exempted above;

2. All grounds and buildings used for public libraries, including libraries owned and kept up by private individuals, associations or corporations for public use and not for private profit, for cemetery associations and societies, and for literary, scientific, charitable, benevolent, agricultural and religious institutions, and societies devoted solely to the appropriate objects of these institutions, not exceeding one hundred sixty acres in extent, and not leased or otherwise used with a view to pecuniary profit, but all deeds or leases by which such property is held shall be filed for record before the property above described shall be omitted from the assessment; the books, papers and apparatus belonging to the above institutions, used solely for the purposes above contemplated, and the like property of students in any such institution used for their education; moneys and credits belonging exclusively to such institutions, and devoted solely to sustaining them, but not exceeding in amount or income the amount prescribed by their charters or articles of incorporation; real estate to the extent of not to exceed one hundred sixty acres in any civil township, owned by any educational institution of this state as a part of its endowment fund, shall not be taxed;

3. The farm produce of the person assessed, harvested by him, and all wool shorn from his sheep, within one year previous to the listing; all poultry, ten stands of bees, all swine and sheep under six months of age; and all other domestic animals under one year of age not hereinbefore exempt; obligations for rent not yet due, in the hands of the original payees, private libraries, professional libraries to the actual value of three hundred dollars; family pictures; household furniture to the actual value of three hundred dollars and kitchen furniture; beds and bedding requisite for each family; all wearing apparel in actual use; and all food provided for the family; but the exemptions allowed in this subdivision shall not be held to apply to hotels and boarding houses except so far as said exempted classes of property shall be for the actual use of the family managing the same;

4. The polls or estates, or both, of persons who by reason of age or infirmity may in the opinion of the assessor be unable to contribute to the public revenue, such opinion and the fact on which it is based being in all cases entered on the assessment roll, and subject to reversal by the board of review;

5. The farming utensils of any person who makes his livelihood by farming, the team, wagon and harness of the teamster or drayman who makes his living by their use in hauling for others, and the tools of any mechanic, not in any case to exceed three hundred dollars in actual value;

6. Government lands entered and located, or lands purchased from this state, for the year in which the entry, location or purchase is made;

7. The property, not to exceed twelve hundred dollars in actual value, of any honorably discharged union soldier or sailor of the Mexican War or of the War of the Rebellion or of the widow remaining unmarried of such soldier or sailor. It shall be the duty of every assessor annually to make a list of such soldiers, sailors [and] widows, and to return such list to the county auditor upon forms to be furnished by such auditor for that purpose; but the failure on the part of any assessor so to do shall not affect the validity of any exemption. All soldiers, sailors or widows thereof referred to herein shall receive a reduction of twelve hundred dollars, the same to be made from the homestead of such soldier or widow, if he or she shall so own a homestead of the value of such exemption, otherwise out of such property as shall be designated and owned by the soldier, sailor or widow, such designation to be made either to the assessor or by writing filed with the county auditor on or before July first, each year;

8. The accumulations and funds held or possessed by fraternal beneficiary associations for the purposes of paying the benefits contemplated by section eighteen hundred twenty-two of the code, or for the payment of the expenses of such association. [35 G. A., ch. 117, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 116, § 1; 35 G. A., ch. 115, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 61, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 62, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 81, §§ 1, 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 54; 31 G. A., ch. 48; 29 G. A., ch. 56, § 1; 26 G. A., ch. 29; 21 G. A., ch. 97; C. '73, § 797; R. § 711; C. '51, § 455.]

[Subdivision 7 of the above is the enactment of ch. 62, 34 G. A., as amended by ch. 115, 35 G. A., which has been treated here as an amendment, although the prefatory clause of said chapter 62 reads "That subdivision seven of § 1304, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof." EDITOR.]

In general: A general exemption from taxation, not embodied in a contract, is not irrepealable even though property has been acquired or expenses incurred in reliance thereon. Miller v. Hageman, 114–195, 86 N. W. 281.

One who claims an exemption must be able to point out some statute or rule of law which sustains such exemption. In re Assessment of Boyd, 138–583, 116 N. W. 700.

Exemptions from taxation should be expressed in unmistakable terms. They are not to be inferred or implied from doubtful or ambiguous language. The presumption is that all property is taxable. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

Par. 1: The fact that the property of a county is exempt from general taxation does not exempt it from liability for a special assessment for street improvements in a city. Edwards & Walsh Const. Co. v. Jasper County, 117–365, 90 N. W. 1006.

Land which has been acquired by condemnation by a school district for a schoolhouse site cannot be sold at tax sale for taxes already due thereon at the time of condemnation. Independent School Dist. v. Hewitt, 105–663, 75 N. W. 497.

The unsold lots of a cemetery held and owned by a private individual for sale at a profit are not exempt from taxation. Simcoke v. Sayre, 148–132, 126 N. W. 816.

Par. 2: To be entitled to an exemption as a charitable, benevolent or religious institution it must appear that the body is such institution and that the property is devoted solely to the appropriate objects of such institution. The presumption is in favor of taxation and against exemption. Lacy v. Davis, 112–106, 83 N. W. 784.

The exemption as to grounds and buildings used for literary and scientific institutions and societies devoted solely to the appropriate objects of these institutions, and not leased or otherwise used with a view to pecuniary profit, does not cover the case of buildings and apparatus employed in conducting an educational institution for private profit. In re Dille, 119–575, 93 N. W. 571.

The exemption of the property of religious, charitable and educational institutions from taxation does not create an exemption from a business or license tax. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn. v. Gilbertson, 129–658, 106 N. W. 153.

A public library privately endowed is an educational institution within the contemplation of this section as amended by 32 G. A., ch. 54, and the exemption of real estate owned by such instituion as part of its endowment fund extends to land situated in another county. Webster City v. Wright County, 144–502, 123 N. W. 193.

While it seems that a local Masonic lodge is not an institution whose grounds and buildings are devoted solely to the appropriate objects of charitable institutions, nevertheless held that under the somewhat different language used in stating the exemption from the collateral inheritance tax (code § 1467) a devise to such a lodge was exempt from such tax. Morrow v. Smith, 145–514, 124 N. W. 316.

Real estate owned by an educational institution as part of its endowment fund is exempted from taxation. The statute comprehends equitable as well as legal ownership. Ellsworth College v. Emmet County, 156–52, 135 N. W. 594.

In the application of the statute as to exemptions the doctrine of equitable conversion may be resorted to in order to ascertain the nature of the equitable ownership of the beneficiary under a will. Ibid.

Where an educational institution became the equitable owner of lands subject to a devise for the benefit of a home for the aged subsequently to be created, held that to the extent of such devise, the educational institution was taxable on such land. Ibid.

The substitute for paragraph 2 of this section (34 G. A., ch. 61) has no application to a devise already made. Ibid.

Par. 6: While it is true that when the full equitable title to public land has passed from the government, even prior to the issue of a patent conveying the legal title, the land is subject to taxation; yet until such equitable title has passed and while the land is still subject to the control of the government, it is beyond the reach of the state's power to tax. Hussman v. Durham, 165 U. S. 144.

Lands claimed under a railroad grant may by statute be made taxable from the time such lands are earned and selected. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Hemenway, 117–598, 91 N. W. 910.

Land which is part of the public domain at the time of assessment is not subject to taxation. Davis v. Magoun, 109–308, 80 N. W. 423.

But where a homestead entry was canceled only because in supposed conflict with a railway grant, and was subsequently established, held that such cancellation did not prevent the land from being taxable to the claimant. Ibid.

From the date of the location of a land warrant the land located ceases to be a part of the general domain and the legal title is thereafter held by the government in the nature of a trust for the use of a person showing himself entitled to the benefit of such location. The fact that patent is suspended during some investigation or controversy concerning the rights of the person claiming such patent does not necessarily prevent the application of this rule. Herrick v. Sargent, 140–590, 117 N. W. 751.

Exemption from taxation of land located under a soldier's warrant is a personal privilege not passing with the right of entry to the assignee of such warrant. Ibid.

An equitable owner with a right to a patent from the government is taxable for the land in which he has such right. Bishop v. O'Brien County, 144–567, 123 N. W. 351.

Although the swamp land grant is in praesenti, passing title as of its date but requiring identification of the lands to render the title perfect, the doctrine of relation back to the date of the grant does not of itself validate tax sales of such land during the time the title is in either the government or the county. Until the United States issues its patent to the state neither the state nor county could subject such land to taxation unless it appeared that the equitable title had passed to the state or county and from the state or county to a purchaser. Hart v. Delphey, 157–—, 136 N. W. 702.

Par. 7: The provision of § 876 of the code of '73 that where the homestead is listed separately it shall be liable only for the taxes thereon, is not retained in the present code. Bitzer v. Becke, 120–66, 94 N. W. 287.

This section as amended does not exempt from taxation property purchased with pension money. Beers v. Langenfeld, 149–581, 128 N. W. 847.

Further as to pension money, see notes to code § 1309 in this supplement.

It is not incompetent in the first instance for a soldier who claims an exemption on that account to show that his wife has no property or property less than $5,000 in value. White v. Marion, 139–479, 117 N. W. 254.

It is the fact of the ownership of property of the actual value of $5,000 which defeats the exemption. It is immaterial whether or not such property appears on the assessment rolls or is subject to taxation. Ibid.

The exemption is not defeated by a joint ownership by husband and wife of property of the value of $5,000. Ibid.

SEC. 1304-a. Beet sugar industry—limited exemption. That the following named property is exempt from taxation until January first, nineteen hundred seventeen, viz.: All mills, buildings, machinery, tools, apparatus and appliances for the manufacture of sugar, the land upon which said mill is situated, not to exceed ten acres, the capital invested in the business of the manufacture of sugar from beets raised in the state of Iowa, all personal property used in connection with said business, also the stock, shares, and certificates of any company or corporation actually engaged in said business. [32 G. A., ch. 55; 28 G. A., ch. 40, § 1.]

SEC. 1305. Valuation. All property subject to taxation shall be valued at its actual value, which shall be entered opposite each item, and shall be assessed at twenty-five per cent. of such actual value. Such assessed value shall be taken and considered as the taxable value of such property, upon which the levy shall be made. Actual value of property as used in this chapter shall mean its value in the market in the ordinary course of trade. This section shall not apply to special charter cities. [31 G. A., ch. 33, § 3; 27 G. A., ch. 30, § 1.]

As to whether the provision that property shall be valued for purposes of taxation at its actual value and assessed at twenty-five per cent. of such value is applicable to railroad property in special charter cities, the court was equally divided. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 127–678, 103 N. W. 997; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Davenport, 127–677, 103 N. W. 996.

The constitutional limitation as to municipal indebtedness to five per cent. of the actual value of property subject to taxation is not affected by the provision that property is to be assessed at twenty-five per cent. of the actual value at which it is listed. Halsey v. Belle Plaine, 128–467, 104 N. W. 494.

This provision held not applicable where the holder of bonds issued prior to the adoption of such provision sought by mandamus to compel the levy of a tax in the payment of such bonds in accordance with the provisions in force when the bonds were issued. Ft. Madison v. Ft. Madison Water Co., 134 Fed. 214.

In determining the limitation of municipal indebtedness under constitution, art. XI, § 3, the actual value, and not the value of the property for assessment, is to be taken into account. Nash v. Council Bluffs, (C. C.) 174 Fed. 182.

The only object in entering the total value of the property listed is to facilitate computation and assure the accuracy of the taxable value at which property is listed and on which taxes are to be levied. In re Appeal of Seaman, 135–543, 113 N. W. 354.

Even though property is returned for taxation at a full cash value, the property owner is not entitled to have the collection of the tax enjoined in equity. His remedy is by securing correction of the assessment. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 138–366, 116 N. W. 140.

SEC. 1306. Levy and indebtedness not to be increased—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.]

SEC. 1306-a. Repeal. That section thirteen hundred and six of the code be and is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [28 G. A., ch. 41, § 1.]

SEC. 1306-b. Amount of indebtedness limited. That section thirteen hundred and six-b of the supplement to the code [1902] and chapter forty-three of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No county or other political or municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to an amount exceeding in the aggregate the amount of one and one-fourth per centum of the actual value of the taxable property within such county or corporation, except that cities and incorporated towns may for the purpose of purchasing, erecting, extending or maintaining and operating waterworks, electric light and power plants, gasworks and heating plants or of building and constructing sewers, incur an indebtedness, not exceeding in the aggregate, added to all other indebtedness, five per centum of the actual value of the taxable property within such city or incorporated town. The amount of such taxable property shall be ascertained by the last state and county tax list previous to the incurring of such indebtedness." [33 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 49, § 1; 30 G. A., ch. 43; 28 G. A., ch. 41, § 2.]

The debt limit provision of the constitution has relation only to the actual value of property as the same may be found and returned by the assessor for taxation purposes, and an indebtedness which does not exceed five per cent. of the value of the property subject to taxation valued at its actual value is not unconstitutional. The constitutional limitation refers to the actual value, and not to the taxable value as prescribed by code § 1305, providing that property is to be assessed at twenty-five per cent. of the actual value at which it is listed. Halsey v. Belle Plaine, 128–467, 104 N. W. 494.

This section is not applicable to cities under special charter there being no express provision in the statute making it applicable to such cities. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 136–191, 113 N. W. 773.

In the absence of any statutory provision having express reference to special charter cities, the limitation of their indebtedness is that found in constitution, art. XI, § 3. Ibid.

SEC. 1306-c. Procedure to exceed limitation in cities and towns. Provided; that before such indebtedness can be contracted in excess of one and one-quarter per centum of the actual value of the taxable property ascertained as above provided in this act, a petition signed by a majority of the qualified electors of such city or town shall be filed with the council of such city or town, asking that an election shall be called, stating the purposes for which the money is to be used and that the necessary waterworks, electric light and power plants, gasworks, heating plants, or sewers, cannot be purchased, erected, built or furnished within the limit of one and one-quarter per centum of the valuation. And provided that in cities having a population of more than ten thousand, the petition need not be signed by more than two hundred qualified electors. [31 G. A., ch. 49, § 2.]

SEC. 1306-d. Election called—notice—ballot. The council of such city or town on the receipt of such petition shall at the next regular meeting call such election, fixing the time and place thereof, and give four weeks' notice thereof, by publication once each week, in some newspaper published in the said town or city, or if none be published there, then in the next nearest town or city in the county. At such election the ballots shall be prepared, and used in substantially the following form:

For the issuance of bonds in the sum of $———— for waterworks, electric light and power plants, gasworks, heating plants, or sewer purposes, ☐

Against the issuance of bonds in the sum of $———— for waterworks, electric light and power plants, gasworks, heating plants, or sewer purposes, ☐

[31 G. A., ch. 49, § 3; 31 G. A., ch. 9, § 31; 30 G. A., ch. 43, § 3.]

[§ 3, ch. 43, acts of 30 G. A., was amended by § 31, ch. 9, 31 G. A., but ch. 43, acts of 30 G. A., was repealed by ch. 49, 31 G. A., but as § 3 of ch. 43, 30 G. A., was the same as the above section the amendment is shown here. The amendment was by adding the words, "by publication once each week," after the word "thereof," in line 4.]

SEC. 1306-e. Issuance of bonds. If a majority[1] of all the electors voting at such election, provided said affirmative vote be as large as a majority of all the votes cast at the last preceding municipal election, vote in favor of the issuance of such bonds, the council of such city or town shall issue the same as provided by section seven hundred twenty-six of the code and make provision for the payment of the bonds and interest thereon as provided by title five of the code. [35 G. A., ch. 118, § 1; 33 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 49, § 4.]

[[1]35 G. A., by ch. 118 directed that ch. 83, 33 G. A., be amended by striking all therefrom following the word "majority" down to and including the word "more." The intention seems to have been to strike out all down to and including the word "more" where it appears the second time, and such has been done here. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1306-e1. Applicable to certain cities. This act shall be held to apply to any city or town whose qualified electors have heretofore authorized the issuance of such bonds by such election. [33 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

SEC. 1306-f. How construed. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to repeal the provisions of chapter one hundred fourteen of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly nor shall anything in this act contained be construed as being applicable to bonds issued under section seven hundred forty-five of the supplement to the code. [31 G. A., ch. 49, § 5.]

SEC. 1308. What taxable—lands of other counties.

Animals held with a view of traffic therein, as in merchandise, are assessable under the provisions of code § 1318, providing for the taxation of merchants; otherwise, although bought with the intention of owning them for a limited time only, they should be taxed to the owner as other personal property. Jewell v. Board of Trustees, 113–47, 84 N. W. 973.

Money in the hands of an executor or administrator is not exempt from taxation simply for the reason it is not being loaned or invested, and even though the administration is ancillary, the money and property of the estate located in this state is subject to taxation, unless at least taxes thereon have been paid in the state of principal administration. Dorris v. Miller, 105–564, 75 N. W. 482.

Shares of corporation stocks are not by this section included in "credits." Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

It is the general rule that all property is subject to taxation except such as has been specifically exempted therefrom by the legislature. Beers v. Langenfeld, 149–581, 128 N. W. 847.

SEC. 1309. Credits defined.

Credits: The word "due" as employed in this section does not have reference to the time of payment or fulfillment of an obligation, but is synonymous with "owing." Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

An unadjusted claim under a fire insurance policy is subject to assessment. Ibid.

Shares of corporation stock are not credits in such sense that they may be offset by debts for purposes of taxation. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

Pension money which has been paid to the guardian of an insane pensioner still remains subject to the jurisdiction and control of the federal government, and is therefore exempt from taxation under the provisions of § 4747 of the revised statutes of the United States. Manning v. Spry, 121–191, 96 N. W. 873.

Interest accruing from pension money is not exempt from taxation. Bednar v. Carroll, 138–338, 116 N. W. 315.

This exception as to pension money does not apply to property purchased with such money. Beers v. Langenfeld, 149–581, 128 N. W. 847.

SEC. 1310. Moneys—credits—annuities—bank notes—stock. Moneys, credits and corporation shares or stocks, except as otherwise provided, cash, circulating notes of national banking associations, and United States legal tender notes, and other notes, and certificates of the United States payable on demand, and circulating or intended to circulate as currency, notes, including those secured by mortgage, accounts, contracts for cash or labor, bills of exchange, judgments, choses in action, liens of any kind, securities, debentures, bonds other than those of the United States, annuities, and corporation shares or stocks not otherwise taxed in kind, shall be assessed, and, excepting shares of stock of national, state and savings banks and loan and trust companies, and moneyed capital as hereinafter defined, shall be taxed upon the uniform basis throughout the state of five mills on the dollar of actual valuation, same to be assessed and collected where the owner resides. The millage tax here provided for shall be in lieu of all other taxes upon moneys and credits and shall be levied by the board of supervisors, placed upon the tax list and collected by the county treasurer, and the amount collected in the various taxing districts of the state shall be divided between the various funds upon the same pro rata basis as other taxes collected in such taxing district are apportioned. All moneyed capital within the meaning of section fifty-two hundred nineteen of the revised statutes of the United States shall be listed and assessed against the owner thereof at his place of business, and if a corporation at its principal place of business, at the same rate as state, savings, national bank and loan and trust company stock is taxed, in the same taxing district, and at the actual value of the moneyed capital so invested. The person or corporation using moneyed capital in competition with bank capital shall furnish the assessor upon demand a full and complete itemized sworn statement showing the amount of moneyed capital so used. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.] [C. '73, § 813; R. § 721; C. '51, § 466.]

A contract for the conveyance of land creating an absolute indebtedness gives rise to a credit in favor of the grantor which is subject to taxation. Clark v. Horn, 122–375, 98 N. W. 148.

Deferred payments due on a mutually obligatory contract for the sale of land are taxable as credits. Cross v. Snakenberg, 126–636, 102 N. W. 508.

The owner of land who has given to a tenant the option to purchase at a specified price, which option has not been exercised so as to bind the prospective purchaser for the payment of the balance of the price, cannot be taxed on such option as moneys and credits. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

One having a contract for the purchase of real property which gives him no more than the right to exercise an option does not have a taxable credit nor such interest in the land as subjects him to taxation on account thereof. In re Shields Bros., 134–559, 111 N. W. 963.

Where one holds an enforceable contract for the sale of land he has such a credit as to be subject to taxation. In re Assessment of Boyd, 138–583, 116 N. W. 700.

The county and its officials, being strangers to a contract as to the conveyance of land, may show that a proposed modification thereof was a mere pretense and sham for the purpose of evading taxation. Montgomery v. Marshall County, 152–161, 129 N. W. 329.

A contract for the sale of land under which the seller may enforce performance by the buyer or rely upon a penalty for nonperformance is different from a mere option on the part of the buyer and constitutes a credit subject to taxation. Rampton v. Dobson, 156–315, 136 N. W. 682.

A contract for an option for the sale of real property is not taxable. Bissell v. Board of Review, 157– —, 138 N. W. 830.

One who indorses and transfers negotiable paper to a bank does not remain the owner thereof in such sense that he is subject to taxation for such paper as moneys and credits. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

SEC. 1311. Deducting debts. In making up the amount of money or credits which any person is required to list, or to have listed or assessed, including actual value of any building and loan shares, he will be entitled to deduct from the actual value thereof the gross amount of all debts in good faith owing by him, but no acknowledgment of indebtedness not founded on actual consideration, and no such acknowledgment made for the purpose of being so deducted, shall be considered a debt within the intent of this section, and so much only of any liability of such person as security for another shall be deducted as he believes he will be compelled to pay on account of the inability of the principal debtor, and if there are other sureties able to contribute, then so much only as he in whose name the list is made will be bound to contribute; but no person will be entitled to any deduction on account of any deposit or security note given in aid of the organization of a mutual insurance company for the premiums of insurance, nor on account of any unpaid subscription to any institution, society, corporation or company; and no person shall be entitled to any deduction on account of any indebtedness contracted for the purchase of United States bonds or other nontaxable property. Provided, however, that no deduction for debts shall be allowed from the shares of stock of any state, savings or national bank or loan and trust company, nor from moneyed capital used in competition with banks, within the meaning of section fifty-two hundred nineteen, of the revised statutes of the United States. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 2.] [C. '73, § 814; R. § 722; C. '51, § 467.]

The fact that in returning moneys and credits for assessments the taxpayer specifies liabilities which he claims the right to have deducted does not estop him, in a subsequent proceeding by the treasurer to enforce an assessment for moneys and credits omitted from taxation, from showing other debts than those previously returned. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

The taxpayer may waive the right to have his indebtedness offset against his moneys and credits for taxation, and although he does so for the purpose of concealing such indebtedness and to avoid a showing of insolvency, his assignee, for the benefit of creditors, cannot complain of the tax thus assessed. Carpenter v. Jones County, 130–494, 107 N. W. 435.

The valuation of corporate stock cannot be offset by indebtedness. In re Kauffman's Est., 104–639, 74 N. W. 8.

If a bank pays the taxes for its stockholders on their shares in the bank it should, as to those stockholders who are entitled to offset indebtedness as against the assessment of their shares as moneys and credits, pay over by way of dividends the amount of such assessments. The bank has no right except by way of declaration of a dividend to appropriate its assets to the payment of the interest on the shares of the stock of its stockholders. Redhead v. Iowa National Bank, 127–572, 103 N. W. 796.

The term "credits" as used in this section does not include shares of corporation stock except shares in building and loan associations. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

An indorser on promissory notes transferred by him with mortgage security is not entitled to deduct such contingent liability as a debt from his moneys and credits. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

The debts which may be deducted from moneys and credits due do not include delinquent taxes of a previous year. In re Appeal of Bailies, 127–124, 102 N. W. 813.

The existence of the debts to be offset may be shown otherwise than by the production of the notes evidencing such indebtedness. And held that the statements of the debtor confirmed by his creditor might be taken as sufficient evidence of the fact. Stein v. Board of Review, 135–539, 113 N. W. 339.

A note given on a valid consideration to a college for the benefit of its endowment fund constitutes a debt which may properly be deducted from moneys and credits for the purposes of taxation. Such a note does not constitute a subscription "to any institution, society, corporation or company" under the exception in this section. Such exception relates to subscriptions with reference to the organization of such institution or association. King v. Carroll, 129–364, 105 N. W. 705.

SEC. 1312. Listing—by whom. Every inhabitant of this state, of full age and sound mind, shall list for the assessor all property subject to taxation in the state, of which he is the owner, or has the control or management, in the manner herein directed: The property of one under disability, by the person having charge thereof; that of a married woman, by herself or husband; that of a beneficiary for whom the property is held in trust, by the trustee, and the personal property of a decedent by the executor or administrator, or if there is none, by any person interested therein; that of a body corporate, company, society or partnership, by its principal accountant, officer, agent or partner, as the assessor may demand.

Property under mortgage or lease is to be listed by and taxed to the mortgagor or lessor, unless listed by the mortgagee or lessee. In listing moneys and credits as herein provided, any administrator, executor, trustee or agent shall be entitled to deductions, as prescribed in section thirteen hundred eleven of the code, of debts owing by the legatee, devisee, beneficiary or principal to the same extent as such fund might be reduced if it were held by such legatee, devisee, beneficiary or principal who may be entitled to the income on such trust or fiduciary fund. [33 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.] [C. '73, § 803; R. § 714; C. '51, § 458.]

The owner is required to list his personal property, including moneys and credits, although it may be in the hands of an agent in another taxing district of the state. German Trust Co. v. Board of Equalization, 121–325, 96 N. W. 878.

The administrator of a nonresident should list for taxation in this state funds which have been sent into the state and placed in the hands of an agent for investment, as contemplated by code § 1320. In re Miller's Est., 116–446, 90 N. W. 89.

The fact that local or ancillary administration was delayed by the acts of the agent will not be taken into consideration in determining whether the funds remained subject to taxation. Ibid.

A referee appointed by a court as a commissioner to make a sale of property in a partition proceeding is not a trustee in such a sense as to be taxable for the property to be partitioned. In re Assessment of Boyd, 138–583, 116 N. W. 700.

Real and personal property held under a testamentary or other trust is taxable to the trustee and not to the beneficiary. Ellsworth College v. Emmet County, 156–52, 135 N. W. 594.

This section requires the listing of property of foreign corporations. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

The duty of listing property for assessment is imposed upon the taxpayer and the act of the assessor in returning or failing to return property for assessment to the board of review is ministerial and not judicial. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

The time within which the assessor is required to act in returning a mulct tax does not limit the action of citizens under code supp. § 2435 in case the assessor fails to perform his duty. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 138–11, 115 N. W. 480.

SEC. 1313. Place of listing.

If the owner is a resident the listing of moneys and credits is to be made by him and not by his agent in whose possession such moneys and credits are, in another taxing district. German Trust Co. v. Board of Equalization, 121–325, 96 N. W. 878.

Property which has been wrongfully taxed in a county in which it is not subject to taxation may be taxed as omitted property in the county where it should have been taxed, but the county cannot recover taxes on property omitted from taxation in the property district if it has been in fact taxed in another district of the same county. Snakenburg v. Stein, 126–650, 102 N. W. 533.

Choses in action are taxable to the owner at his domicile, and not elsewhere, unless the owner has himself given to the property a different situs. Gilbertson v. Oliver, 129–568, 105 N. W. 1002.

It is doubtful whether by "assessment districts" in this section is meant any subdivision less than one having an assessor and a local board of review. Within a school township personal property may well be assessed to the owner in the school district where he resides. Independent School Dist. v. Board of Review, 131–195, 108 N. W. 220.

Shares of stock in a foreign corporation owned by a resident of the state are not exempt from taxation in his hands, although the property of the corporation has been taxed in the state in which it is created. Judy v. Beckwith, 137–24, 114 N. W. 565.

Such taxation is not open to constitutional objection. Ibid.

Moneys and credits are to be listed and assessed where the owner lives,—that is, at the place of his residence; and residence having once been established continues until there is evidence of an abandonment. A mere intent to change a residence for the purpose of taxation only is ineffectual. Cover v. Hatten, 136–63, 113 N. W. 470.

Fact and intent must concur in order that one may gain a residence or domicile in another jurisdiction than that in which his original domicile is found to have existed. Shirk v. Twp. Board of Review, 137–230, 114 N. W. 884.

The place where a person lives within the meaning of this section is his residence, and a mere intention to change residence is not alone sufficient to terminate his liability to taxation in the place in which he has resided. Glotfelty v. Brown, 148–124, 126 N. W. 797.

As a man must have a domicile or taxing residence somewhere, his old residence will be deemed to continue until a new one is acquired. For purposes of taxation the word "residence" as used in our statutes means "domicile." Barhydt v. Cross, 156–271, 136 N. W. 525.

SEC. 1314. Who deemed owners—commission merchants.

A transfer company to which property has been consigned by an owner out of the state and which is held by it for the purposes of delivery and shipment under the owner's orders is subject to taxation for such property. Merchants Transfer Co. v. Board of Review, 128–732, 105 N. W. 211.

A referee in partition is not so related to the property as to be taxable therefor. In re Assessment of Boyd, 138–583, 116 N. W. 700.

SEC. 1316. Listing property of another.

Property may be listed to one as agent without giving the name of the person for whom he holds it. Securitu Savings Bank v. Carroll, 131–605, 109 N. W. 212.

SEC. 1317. Business in different districts—partners.

Notes taken by a branch bank in the ordinary course of business and held as a part of its assets are taxable in the district where such bank is located. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Fonda, 114–728, 87 N. W. 724.

Transfer of such notes to another branch of the same parent institution, and giving credit to the branch from which they are taken for the amount thereof, will not affect the question of taxation. Ibid.

Taxes levied against a firm become an individual debt of the partner, and must be paid from his estate in bankruptcy as a preferred claim. In re Green, 116 Fed. 118.

SEC. 1318. Merchants.

The assessable value of merchandise is not its value on January first, but its average value during the year. Larson v. Hamilton County, 123–485, 99 N. W. 133.

One who purchases stock with a view of fattening and reselling is not a merchant and should be assessed on the stock owned by him on the first of January. Jewell v. Board of Trustees, 113–47, 84 N. W. 973.

One to whom property has been assigned and transferred by a nonresident owner for the purpose of being held subject to disposal at the order of the owner, is taxable for such property. Merchants' Transfer Co. v. Board of Review, 128–732, 105 N. W. 211.

Whether it is within the jurisdiction of the county treasurer to review an assessment determining the liability of property to taxation and hold that a corporation should be taxed under this section rather than under the provisions of code § 1323, his action in doing so is not without jurisdiction and cannot be controlled by mandamus. Woodbury County v. Talley, 147–498, 123 N. W. 746.

SEC. 1319. Manufacturers.

This section has reference only to domestic corporations, and shares of stock in a foreign manufacturing corporation held by residents of this state are to be taxed without regard to these provisions. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

SEC. 1320. Agent personally liable.

Where funds are sent into this state and placed in the hands of an agent for investment so as to subject them to taxation, the death of the principal does not terminate the right to impose such tax. Such funds continue subject to taxation until removed from the state under the process of administration. In re Miller's Estate, 116–446, 90 N. W. 89.

One in possession of money, notes and credits of a nonresident may be assessed as agent, although the name of his principal is not disclosed. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 131–605, 109 N. W. 212.

To justify the assessor in requiring one person to list the property of another, it must appear first that there is an agency of the party required to list, and second that he has possession or control of the moneys, notes or other credits of his principal, and third, that such possession or control is held by the agent with a view to investing or loaning or in some other manner holding or using the money for the pecuniary profit of himself or his principal. No agent is liable to taxation for the property of another in his possession or under his control unless he holds that possession or is vested with that control for the particular purposes named in the statute. German Trust Co. v. Board of Equalization, 121–325, 96 N. W. 878; Heinz v. Board of Equalization, 121–445, 96 N. W. 967.

But where the principal puts his money into the purchase of securities through an agent who reserves the right to an interest in the proceeds, the agent is bound to list the securities for his principal. Ibid.

The statutory provision does not, however, contemplate the listing by an agent of money or securities of a principal who is a resident of the state and subject to taxation where he resides. Ibid.

The fact that the nonresident owner of property which is required to be listed by his agent in this state having possession and control thereof may also be taxed therefor in the state of his residence does not render the statutory provisions requiring listing by the agent unconstitutional. Heinz v. Board of Equalization, 121–445, 96 N. W. 967.

SEC. 1321. Private bankers. Private banks or bankers, or any persons other than corporations hereinafter specified, a part of whose business is the receiving of deposits subject to check, on certificates, receipts, or otherwise, or the selling of exchange, shall prepare and furnish to the assessor a sworn statement, showing the assets, aside from real estate, and liabilities of such bank or banker on January first of the current year, as follows:

1. The amount of moneys, specifying separately the amount of moneys on hand or in transit, the funds in the hands of other banks, bankers, brokers or other persons or corporations, and the amount of checks or other cash items not included in either of the preceding items;
2. The actual value of credits, consisting of bills receivable owned by them, and other credits due or to become due;
3. The amount of all deposits made with them by others, and also the amount of bills payable;
4. The actual value of bonds and stocks of every kind and shares of capital stock or joint stock of other corporations or companies held as an investment, or in any way representing assets, and the specific kinds and description thereof exempt from taxation;
5. All other property pertaining to said business, including real estate, which shall be specially listed and valued by the usual description thereof; the aggregate actual value of moneys and credits, after deducting therefrom the amount of deposits, and the aggregate actual value of bonds and stocks, after deducting the portion thereof otherwise taxed in this state, and also the other property pertaining to the business, shall be assessed as provided by section thirteen hundred and five of this chapter, not including real estate, which shall be listed and assessed as other real estate. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 3.] [27 G. A., ch. 30, § 2; 15 G. A., ch. 63; C. '73, § 812; R. §§ 719, 720; C. '51, §§ 460, 465.]

Where a branch bank had just prior to the first day of January as a part of its assets notes taken in the usual course of business, and the parent bank then transferred such notes to another branch, giving credit to the first branch therefor on the books of the parent institution, held that such transfer did not relieve the branch from which the notes had been transferred of liability for assessment thereon. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Fonda, 114–728, 87 N. W. 724.

On the transfer of the assets of a private bank to a national bank the assets of the private bank cease to be taxable as moneys and credits. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

SEC. 1322. National, state and savings banks—refusal to comply with statute—penalty. Section thirteen hundred twenty-two of the supplement to the code, 1907, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Shares of stock of national banks and state and savings banks, and loan and trust companies, located in this state, shall be assessed to the individual stockholders at the place where the bank or loan and trust company is located. At the time the assessment is made the officers of national banks and state and savings banks and loan and trust companies shall furnish the assessor with lists of all the stockholders and the number of shares owned by each, and the assessor shall list to each stockholder under the head of corporation stock the total value of such shares. To aid the assessor in fixing the value of such shares, the said corporation shall furnish him a verified statement of all the matter provided in section thirteen hundred twenty-one of the supplement to the code, 1907, which shall also show separately the amount of the capital stock and the surplus and undivided earnings, and the assessor from such statement shall fix the value of such stock based upon the capital, surplus, and undivided earnings. In arriving at the total value of the shares of stock of such corporations, the amount of their capital actually invested in real estate owned by them and in the shares of stock of corporations owning only the real estate (inclusive of leasehold interests, if any,) on or in which the bank or trust company is located, shall be deducted from the real value of such shares, and such real estate shall be assessed as other real estate, and the property of such corporation shall not be otherwise assessed. A refusal to furnish the assessor with the list of stockholders and the information required under this section shall be deemed a misdemeanor and any bank or officer thereof so refusing shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. [35 G. A., ch. 114, § 1; 34 G. A., ch. 63, § 4.] [31 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; 23 G. A., ch. 39; 15 G. A., ch. 60, § 28; 15 G. A., ch. 63; C. '73, §§ 812, 818–20; R. §§ 719, 720; C. '51, §§ 460, 465.]

National banks: The assessor is not bound by the showing of the books of a national bank in arriving at the valuation of its stock for the purposes of assessment. In making such valuation the assessor is to determine the value of the stock on the market without regard to whether such value is based upon assets that are tangible or intangible. First Nat. Bank v. City Council, 112 N. W. 829, 136 N. W. 203.

Although stock of a national bank is assessed to the shareholders, the bank is itself a party in interest as representing the shareholders and may appear before the board of review and prosecute an appeal from its findings. First Nat. Bank of Independence v. Independence, 123–482, 99 N. W. 142.

The bank has no right to pay out of its assets the taxes on the shares of stock held by the stockholders. And if it does so, such action amounts practically to the declaration of a dividend. Redhead v. Iowa National Bank, 127–572, 103 N. W. 796.

As the statute does not provide for the taxation of shares of stock in state or savings banks (as interpreted by the federal court) the taxation of shares of stock of national banks is invalid as in violation of the federal statute prohibiting discrimination against national bank stock in the matter of taxes as compared with other moneyed capital. First Nat. Bank v. City Council, 150–95, 129 N. W. 475.

The taxation of state and savings banks upon their assets, while national banks are taxed on their shares of stock, constitutes a discrimination against national banks and is in violation of the federal statute. Des Moines Nat. Bank v. Des Moines, 153–336, 133 N. W. 767.

Bank stock: Where by mutual agreement stockholders deposit a fund which becomes a part of the capital of the bank it should be taxed by taxing the shares of stock, and not as the individual deposit of the stockholders. State Exchange Bank v. Parkersburg, 112–104, 83 N. W. 793.

For the purpose of taxation, the corporation represents its stockholders in such sense that notice of appeal given to the corporation is sufficient to enable the court to determine the value of the shares and the amount to be paid by the corporation on account of the holders of such shares irrespective of their residence. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

United States bonds: The tax on the shares of stock of a bank is not a tax on its capital, and as against a tax on the shares of stock held by individuals, the bank has no right to deduct the amount of its capital invested in United States bonds. German-American Sav. Bank v. Council, etc., 118–84, 91 N. W. 829.

In estimating the value of shares of stock in a national bank for the purpose of taxation, the value of United States bonds owned by the bank may be taken into account. National State Bank v. Mayor, 119–696, 94 N. W. 234.

The fact that private banks and bankers are assessed on a valuation determined by finding the aggregate amount of moneys and credits of the bank, after deducting deposits and debts, and also the aggregate value of bonds and stocks, excluding

United States bonds, while in the case of corporate banks, including national, state and savings banks, the taxation is on the basis of the stock, in estimating which the property of the bank, including United States bonds, is taken into account does not constitute a discrimination between national and state banks such as to render the statute void under the provisions of the federal law relating to the taxation of national banks. Ibid.

In determining the value of national bank stock for the purpose of taxation, the value of government bonds held by the bank should be considered. First Nat. Bank of Independence v. Independence, 123–482, 99 N. W. 142.

As United States bonds belonging to the bank are to be taken into account in fixing the valuation of the shares on which taxes are to be paid by the holders, the treasurer is not authorized to tax such bonds to the bank or the stockholders as omitted property where the stock has in fact been assessed for taxation to such stockholders. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 128–230, 103 N. W. 379.

The treasurer and auditor have no right to assess against the stockholders of a bank as an element in determining the value of their stock the amount of United States bonds held by the bank where the assessor to whom a full report of the facts has been made has excluded such element of value in determining the taxable value of the shares. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

The statutory provision for taxation of bank stock does not authorize the assessment of such stock on a valuation which includes the United States bonds held by the bank. (In effect overruling People's Savings Bank v. Layman, 134 Fed. 635.) Home Savings Bank v. Des Moines, 205 U. S., 503.

SEC. 1322-1a. Bank stocks—moneyed capital—taxable value. "For the purpose of placing the taxation of bank and loan and trust company stock and moneyed capital as nearly as possible upon a taxable value relatively equal to the taxable value at which other property is now actually assessed throughout the state as compared with the actual value thereof, it is hereby provided that state, savings and national bank stock and loan and trust company stock and moneyed capital shall be assessed and taxed upon the taxable value of twenty per cent. of the actual value thereof, determined as herein provided, which twenty per cent. of the actual value shall be taken and considered as the taxable value and shall be taxed as other property in such taxing district. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 5.]

SEC. 1322-2a. When in effect—adjustment of irregularity. "The provisions of this act shall be in effect and govern the assessments made in the year nineteen hundred eleven, and subsequent years. If assessment of any such stock or moneyed capital is not made during nineteen hundred eleven within the time now provided by law, or is illegally or irregularly made, the assessor of the taxing district is hereby granted until June first, nineteen hundred eleven, in which to rectify the irregularity or correct the illegality, or reassess such stock or moneyed capital, and the board of review of the taxing district is, during the month of June, nineteen hundred eleven, authorized and directed to review such assessment following the proceedings now provided by law as to original assessments. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 6.]

SEC. 1322-3a. In special charter cities. "The provisions of this act, so far as applicable, shall apply to cities acting under special charter and in such cities stocks and moneyed capital referred to in section five hereof shall be assessed at the taxable value of eighty per cent. of that applied to other property. If the taxable value of such other property is fixed at any portion thereof except twenty-five per cent. of the actual value thereof, as shown by the assessment, the city council, when the levy for all city purposes has been determined, shall ascertain the equivalent thereof based upon such twenty-five per cent. valuation and shall certify the aggregate of the levy so ascertained to the county treasurer of the county in which such city is located. When the millage tax provided in section one hereof is collected the county treasurer shall pay to the treasurer of such city such portion of said millage tax collected as the aggregate levy so certified is of the total levy obtained by adding such certified levy to the levy for all purposes except city purposes, and such city shall not be permitted to impose taxes upon the property referred to in section one hereof. [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 7.]

SEC. 1322-4a. Not applicable to taxes levied for nineteen hundred eleven. "The provisions of this act as to the assessment and taxation of moneys and credits other than moneyed capital and shares of stock of state, savings and national banks and loan and trust companies, shall not apply to taxes levied for the year nineteen hundred eleven." [34 G. A., ch. 63, § 8.]

SEC. 1322-a. Applicable to nineteen hundred and six tax. This act shall apply to the assessment for the tax of nineteen hundred and six. [31 G. A., ch. 50, § 2.]

SEC. 1323. Shares of corporation stock.

The fact that the statutory provisions as to methods of ascertaining the value of personal property and fixing the situs thereof are different as to corporate property than as to property of private individuals does not render the provisions as to assessment of the corporate property invalid. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123–591, 99 N. W. 205.

As the statute provides a method for the assessment of the property of loan and trust companies that method is exclusive. Wahkonsa Inv. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 125–148, 100 N. W. 517.

The shares of stock in a corporation organized under the laws of this state, except as otherwise provided, are to be assessed to the owners thereof at the place where the principal business is transacted. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123–591, 99 N. W. 205.

This section relates solely to corporations organized under the laws of this state. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

The action of a county treasurer taxing shares of stock under this section when the board of review has found that the corporation should be taxed under the provisions of code § 1318 is judicial and not without jurisdiction and cannot be controlled by an action of mandamus. Woodbury County v. Talley, 147–498, 123 N. W. 746.

Where the board of review refuses to make an assessment on the stock of a corporation on the theory that it is taxable under code § 1318 relating to assessment of merchants, the question of the correctness of the action of the board of review may be determined on appeal by officers or taxpayers under code § 1373 as amended, and the district court on such appeal may in a proper case order the stock to be taxed under this section. The assessment of the stockholders on the value of their shares of stock is, in practical effect, an assessment of the corporation. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

Statements made by the corporation for the purposes of assessment may be considered as admissions by it without regard to whether such statements have been actually before the assessor. Woodbury County v. Talley, 153–28, 129 N. W. 967.

SEC. 1324. Valuation of corporate stock.

Where the capital stock of a savings bank has been listed and an assessment made by the proper assessor, the county treasurer has no authority to enter an assessment based on the difference between the assessed value and the real value of the stock as found by him. German Sav. Bank v. Trowbridge, 124–514, 100 N. W. 333.

The diminution of the value of corporate stock on account of the amount of capital invested in real estate is to be determined by the actual value of such real estate as fixed by the assessor and not by the amount of capital invested in such real estate. In re Appeal of Valley Investment Co., 152–84, 131 N. W. 669.

SEC. 1325. Corporation liable.

The bank having paid the taxes on its capital stock for the holders thereof is entitled to retain the amount from any dividends becoming due to such stockholders, and such claims for repayment are assets of the bank for the recovery of which an individual stockholder cannot maintain an action against the bank for his own benefit or against the other stockholders for whom such taxes have been paid. Kennedy v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 128–561, 104 N. W. 1021.

SEC. 1326. Stock of building and loan associations. Section thirteen hundred twenty-six of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The shares of stock of mutual building and loan, or savings and loan associations, exclusively engaged in such business, shall be assessed and taxed to the individual holders thereof at their place of residence. When such association owns real estate, or maintains a reserve, expense or other fund, or its equivalent, the real estate and the total amount of such fund or funds shall be subject to taxation at the principal place of business of the association and shall be assessed against the association as real estate or other personal property, the tax of same to be paid by the association. Every domestic and domestic local building and loan, or savings and loan association, on or before the thirty-first day of January of each year, shall furnish to the assessor of the assessment district in which its principal place of business is located a verified statement, showing specifically, with reference to the year preceding the first day of January last past, the total amount of their reserve, expense or other fund, or its equivalent, and the description and value of each tract of real estate owned by such association. The auditor of state shall, on or before the tenth day of February of each year, send to the county auditor of each county a statement of the name and post-office address of each stockholder of a foreign building and loan, or savings and loan association residing in their respective counties, together with the number of shares owned by each person on the first day of January preceding, and the actual value of each share of stock on said first day of January, which facts shall be reported to him by such associations under the law governing building and loan, or savings and loan associations. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to immediately furnish to each assessor in his county the name of each stockholder in any such foreign association residing in such assessor's district, together with the number of shares held by each person, and the actual value of each share on the first day of January preceding." [35 G. A., ch. 119, § 1.]

SEC. 1327. Real estate of corporations.

This section has reference to real estate of domestic corporations. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

SEC. 1328. Telegraph and telephone companies. Every telegraph and telephone company operating a line in this state shall, on or before the first day of May in each year, furnish to the executive council of Iowa a statement verified by its president or secretary showing:

1. The total number of miles owned, operated or leased within the state, with a separate showing of the number leased;
2. The average number of poles per mile, and the whole number of poles on their lines in this state;
3. The total number of miles in each separate line or division thereof, also the average number of separate wires thereon;
4. The whole number of stations on each line, and the value of the same, including furniture;
5. The whole number of instruments on each separate line, and the gross rental charges per instrument, where the same are rented to patrons of the company making the return, together with the number of stations maintained, other than railroad stations;
6. The gross receipts and operating expenses of said company for the year ending December thirty-first next preceding on business originating and terminating in this state;

7. The gross receipts and operating expenses of said company for the year ending December thirty-first next preceding, and not included in the statement made under subsection six hereof;

8. The total capital stock of said company;

9. The number of shares of capital stock issued and outstanding, and the par or face value of each share;

10. The market value of such shares of stock on the first day of January next preceding, and if such shares have no market value, the actual value thereof;

11. All real estate and other property owned by such company and subject to local taxation within this state;

12. The specific real estate, together with the permanent improvements thereon, owned by such company and situated outside this state and taxed as other real estate in the state where located, with a specific description of each piece, where located and the purpose for which the same is used, and the actual value thereof in the locality where situated;

13. All mortgages upon the whole or any part of its property, together with the dates and amounts thereof;

14. a. The total length of the lines of said company;

b. The total length of the lines of said company outside this state.

[30 G. A., ch. 44, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 59, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 1329. Failure to make statement. Upon the receipt of said statements from the several companies, the executive council shall examine said statements and if it shall deem the same sufficient and that further information is requisite, it shall require the officer making same to make such other or further statement as it may desire. In case of failure or refusal of any company to make out or deliver to the auditor of state the statements required in this chapter, such company shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa one hundred dollars for each day such report is delayed beyond the first day of May, to be sued and recovered in any proper form of action in the name of the state, and on the relation of the executive council of Iowa, and such penalty, when collected, shall be paid into the general fund of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 44, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 59, § 3.]

SEC. 1330. Assessment by executive council. The executive council shall, at its meeting on the second Monday in July in each year, proceed to find the actual value of the property of such companies in this state, taking into consideration the information obtained from the statements above required, and any further information they can obtain, using the same as a means for determining the actual cash value of the property of such companies within this state; also taking into consideration the valuation of all property of such companies, including franchises and the use of the property in connection with lines outside the state, and making such deductions as may be necessary on account of extra value of property outside the state as compared with the value of property in the state, in order that the actual cash value of the property of the company within this state may be ascertained. Said assessment shall include all property of every kind and character whatsoever, real, personal, or mixed, used by said companies in the transaction of telegraph and telephone business; and the property so included in said assessment shall not be taxed in any other manner than as provided in this act. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 1.]

The certification to the board of supervisors by the executive council of the length of lines of telegraph and telephone companies within the county becomes a part of the record of the board, proper to be published under the provisions of code § 441. Index Printing Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150–411, 130 N. W. 401.

SEC. 1330-a. Actual value per mile—taxable value. The executive council shall ascertain the value per mile of the property of each of said companies within this state by dividing the total value, as above ascertained, by the number of miles of line of such company within the state, and the result shall be deemed and held to be the actual value per mile of line of the property of such company within this state. The taxable value shall be determined by taking the percentage of the actual value so ascertained, as provided by section thirteen hundred and five of the code, and the ratio between the actual value and the assessed or taxable value of the property of each of said companies shall be the same as in the case of property of private individuals. At such meeting in July any company interested shall have the right to appear, by its officers or agents, before the executive council and be heard on the question of the valuation of its property for taxation. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 2.]

[Acts in conflict with § 2, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-b. Assessment in each county—how certified. The executive council shall, for the purpose of determining what amount shall be assessed to any one of said companies in each county of the state into which the line of the said company extends, multiply the assessed or taxable value per mile of line of said company, as above ascertained, by the number of miles in each of said counties, and the result thereof shall be by said council certified to the several county auditors of the respective counties into, over or through which said line extends. [30 G. A., ch. 45; 28 G. A., ch. 42, § 3.]

[Acts in conflict with § 3, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-c. Levy and collection of tax. At the first meeting of the board of supervisors held after such statement is received by the county auditor it shall cause such statement to be entered in its minute book, and make and enter therein an order stating the length of the lines and the assessed value of the property of each of said companies situated in each city, town, township, or lesser taxing district in its county, as fixed by the executive council, which shall constitute the taxable value of said property for taxing purposes, and the taxes on said property when collected by the county treasurer shall be disposed of as other taxes on real estate. The county auditor shall transmit a copy of said order to the council or trustees of each city, town, or township in which the lines of said company extend. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 4.]

[Acts in conflict with § 4, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-d. Rates—purposes. All telegraph and telephone property shall be taxable upon said assessment at the same rates, by the same officers, and for the same purposes as the property of individuals within such counties, cities, towns, townships, or lesser taxing districts, and the county treasurer shall collect such taxes at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes, and the same penalties for the nonpayment shall be due and collectible as for the nonpayment of individual taxes. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 5.]

[Acts in conflict with § 5, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

Prior to the repeal of code § 1331, it was held that all the sections of the code relating to the taxation of telegraph companies were void because the result was that corporations engaged in conducting the telegraph or telephone business were not thereby taxed on the same basis as individuals. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123–591, 99 N. W. 205.

SEC. 1330-e. Other real and personal property. Land, lots, and other real estate and personal property belonging to any telegraph company or telephone company not used exclusively in its telegraph or telephone business shall be subject to assessment and taxation on the same basis as other property of individuals in the several counties where situated. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 6.]

[Acts in conflict with § 6, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-f. "Company" defined. The word "company" as used in this act shall be deemed and construed to mean and include any person, copartnership, association, corporation, or syndicate that shall own or operate, or be engaged in operating, any telegraph or telephone line whether formed or organized under the laws of this state or elsewhere. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 7.]

[Acts in conflict with § 7, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-g. Owners of capital stock exempt. The owner of the capital stock in any telegraph or telephone company operating any line or lines in this state shall not be assessed for taxation upon said capital stock. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 8.]

[Acts in conflict with § 8, ch. 42, 28 G. A., are repealed by § 1331-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1330-h. Reassessment and relevy. When by reason of nonconformity to any law, or by any omission, informality, or irregularity, or for any other cause, any tax heretofore or hereafter levied and assessed against any person, company, association, or corporation by the executive council is invalid or is adjudged illegal, the executive council may assess and levy a tax against such person, company, association, or corporation for the year or years for which such tax is invalid or illegal, or when necessary may assess and certify the same to the proper county officers, who shall levy such tax as by law in such cases made and provided, with the same force and effect as though done at the proper time and under any valid law, whether in force at the time of said levy and assessment or thereafter enacted. [28 G. A., ch. 49, § 1.]

SEC. 1330-i. Voluntary payments. When any person, company, association, or corporation, against whom any tax has been assessed and levied by the executive council and held invalid or illegal, shall have paid the same voluntarily or shall otherwise waive such invalidity and illegality, the executive council shall accept such tax in lieu of the tax to be raised by the reassessment and relevy provided for in section one hereof. [28 G. A., ch. 49, § 2.]

SEC. 1331. Rate of tax—when due—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 9.]

[See § 1331-a.]

SEC. 1331-a. Repeal. Section thirteen hundred thirty-one of the code, and all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 42, § 9.]

SEC. 1332. Line operated by railroad.

A telegraph line owned by a railroad company and not used exclusively for the transaction of railroad business is taxable under code § 1328, notwithstanding the provisions of code § 1336, by which telegraph lines exclusively used in railroad business are to be taken into account in the valuation of railroad property for taxation; and it is immaterial that the line has been in fact valued as a portion of the property of the railroad and that the taxes of the railroad have been paid in accordance with such valuation. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Rhein, 135–404, 112 N. W. 823.

SEC. 1333. Insurance companies. Every insurance company or association organized or incorporated under the laws of any state or nation other than the United States, and every other insurance company whose charter may be owned or a majority of whose stock may be controlled or whose business shall be carried on in the interest or for the benefit of any insurance company or association incorporated under the laws of any state or nation other than the United States, shall, at the time of making the annual statements as required by law, pay into the state treasury as taxes two and one-half per cent. of the gross amount of premiums received by it[1] or its agents, in cash, promissory obligation or other form of settlement for business done in this state, including all insurance upon property situated in this state and upon the lives of persons resident in this state during the preceding year. Every insurance company incorporated under the laws of any state of the United States other than the state of Iowa, not including associations operating under the provisions of chapter seven, title nine of this code, or fraternal beneficiary associations doing business in the United States, shall, at the time of making the annual statements as required by law, pay into the state treasury as taxes two and one-half per cent. of the gross amount of premiums received by it for business done in this state, including all insurance upon property situated in this state and upon the lives of persons resident in this state during the preceding year. At the time of paying said taxes, said companies and associations shall take duplicate receipts therefor, one of which shall be filed with the auditor of state, and upon filing of said receipt, and not till then, the auditor shall issue the annual certificate as provided by law. No deduction or exemption from the taxes herein provided shall be allowed for or on account of any indebtedness owing by any such insurance company or association. Provided, however, that companies doing a fire insurance business may deduct from the gross amount of premiums received, the amount of premiums returned upon canceled policies issued upon property situated in this state. [34 G. A., ch. 18, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 56; 29 G. A., ch. 57, § 1; 28 G. A., ch. 43, § 1; C. '73, § 807; R. § 718; C. '51, § 464.]

[1]The amendment by 34 G. A., is inserted here, where it manifestly belongs, as it could not be placed in line 8 as directed in the enrolled bill. EDITOR.]

This section which requires insurance companies to pay a tax on gross earnings within the state and exempts them from payment of all other taxes, state or local, except taxes on real property and special assessments is unconstitutional under constitution, art. 8, § 2, which subjects property of all corporations for pecuniary profit to taxation the same as that of individuals. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. French, 109–585, 80 N. W. 660.

The tax here provided for is not unconstitutional on account of lack of uniformity. There is no requirement that taxes on business or on privileges shall be uniform. Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 109–606, 80 N. W. 665.

The officers of the state are not authorized to collect this tax by suit or distraint of property. The only effect of the nonpayment is that the auditor will not issue a certificate authorizing the delinquent company to do business in the state during the ensuing year. Manchester Ins. Co. v. Herriott, 91 Fed. 711.

This section is not unconstitutional on account of lack of uniformity. Ibid.

SEC. 1333-a. Domestic companies. The shares of stock of every insurance corporation or association having capital stock, organized under the laws of this state, shall be assessed for taxation in the manner provided for the assessment of the shares of corporate stock in sections thirteen hundred twenty-three, thirteen hundred twenty-four and thirteen hundred twenty-five of the code, and as in this act provided, and said shares of stock shall not be otherwise assessed. In addition to the statement required in section thirteen hundred twenty-three of the code, the corporation shall furnish to the assessor a copy of its annual report made to the auditor of state. [28 G. A., ch. 43, § 2.]

SEC. 1333-b. Statement furnished local assessor—what to contain —duty of assessor. Every insurance corporation or association organized under the laws of this state, not including corporations with capital stock, county mutuals, and fraternal beneficiary associations, which county mutuals and fraternal beneficiary associations are not organized for pecuniary profit, shall on or before the twenty-sixth day of January in each year, for the purpose of assessment of its property, furnish to the assessor of the assessment district in which its principal place of business is located, a statement verified by its president, showing specifically with reference to the year next preceding the first day of January, then last past: (1) a duplicate of the statement required by law to be made to the auditor of state for the said year last past; (2) a detailed statement of all its property and assets of every kind and nature whatsoever, and the value of each item thereof, including surplus, guaranty and reserve fund, and the amount of each. It shall be the duty of the assessor, upon the receipt of said statements, and from other information acquired by him, to assess against every corporation or association referred to in this section, the value of all personal property owned by such corporation or association, together with the actual value of each parcel of real estate situated in the assessment district of such assessor, and all the said property shall be assessed at the same rate, and for the same purposes as the property of private individuals, as provided in section thirteen hundred and five of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 43, § 3.]

SEC. 1333-c. Assessment of moneys and credits. In assessing for taxation the moneys and credits of every insurance corporation, company or association organized under the laws of this state, except county mutuals and fraternal beneficiary associations, which county mutuals and fraternal beneficiary associations are not organized for pecuniary profit, the assessor shall ascertain the debts or liabilities, if any, of such corporation, company or association to its shareholders or other persons, which debts and liabilities shall be deducted, as provided in section thirteen hundred eleven of the code, but in ascertaining the indebtedness or liability of such corporation, company or association, a debt shall be deemed to exist on account of its liability on the policies, certificates or other contracts of insurance issued by it equal to the amount of the surplus or other funds accumulated by any such corporation or association, pursuant to law, its contracts of insurance or its articles of incorporation for the purpose of fulfilling its policies, certificates or other contracts of insurance, and which can be used for no other purpose. [28 G. A., ch. 43, § 4.]

The purpose of the legislature as indicated by statutory provisions with reference to the taxation of insurance companies is to make the moneys and credits of such companies taxable, subject only to certain definite exceptions, and these exceptions are limited to funds which may be accumulated pursuant to law or the contract of insurance or the articles of incorporation of the company for the purpose of fulfilling its policies, certificates or other contracts of insurance. Therefore held that an unassigned or surplus fund was not within the exception. Chicago Life Ins. Co. v. Board of Review, 131–254, 108 N. W. 305.

SEC. 1333-d. State tax—date payable. Every insurance corporation or association of whatever kind or character, organized under the laws of the state of Iowa, not including county mutuals or fraternal beneficiary associations, which county mutuals and fraternal beneficiary associations are not organized for pecuniary profit, shall, on or before the first day of March of each year, pay to the treasurer of state a sum equivalent to one per centum of the gross receipts from premiums, assessments, fees and promissory obligations required by insurance contracts which are received during the next year preceding the first day of January last past, after deducting the amounts actually paid for losses, matured endowments, dividends to policy holders and the increase in the amount of the reserve as certified by the department actuary in his official statement to the auditor of state on the thirty-first day of December previous, based on the actuaries' table of mortality and four per cent., and the amounts returned to members upon canceled policies, certificates and rejected applications, during said year, and not until such payment shall the auditor of state issue the annual certificate, as provided by law. Provided that fire insurance companies organized under the provisions of chapter four of title nine of the code shall only be required to pay to the treasurer of state a sum equivalent to one per centum upon the gross receipts from premiums, assessments, fees and promissory obligations for business done within this state, including all insurance upon property situated in the state, after deducting the amount actually paid for losses on property located within the state and the amount returned upon canceled policies and rejected applications covering property situated within this state. [32 G. A., ch. 57; 28 G. A., ch. 43, § 5.]

The statute requiring every insurance corporation or association to pay to the state treasurer by way of tax one per cent. of its gross receipts, and which is expressly declared not to be applicable to county mutual or fraternal beneficiary associations which are not organized for pecuniary profit, is not unconstitutional on account of this discrimination, the classification being one which the legislature has authority to make. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Assn v. Gilbertson, 129–658, 106 N. W. 153.

SEC. 1333-e. Supervisors to correct assessments—when and how. In the event that any insurance corporation or association, affected by this act, shall pay to the treasurer of state prior to May first, nineteen hundred, a sum so that the amount of its payment to said treasurer of state for the year nineteen hundred shall equal what said corporation or association would be compelled to pay to said treasurer of state had this act been in force prior to the granting of the annual certificate by the auditor of state for the year nineteen hundred, then such corporation or association shall, for the levy made in the year nineteen hundred, be subject to the provisions of this act, respecting the levy and assessment of taxes by local and municipal authorities, and upon presentation of the receipt from the said treasurer of state showing a compliance with this section by such insurance corporation or association, it is hereby made the duty of the board of supervisors of the proper county to alter and correct the assessment of such corporation, association or shareholder made in the year nineteen hundred, so that said assessment shall be the same in amount as though it had been made under the provisions of this act, and the tax levied by the local or municipal authorities against every such corporation or association or its shareholders entitled to the benefit of this section, is corrected accordingly. Any corporation or association entitled to, but failing to take advantage of, the provisions of this section, shall not be relieved from any local or municipal tax heretofore levied by any of the provisions of this act. [28 G. A., ch. 43, § 6.]

SEC. 1334. Railway companies—when made—verified statement —when furnished. On the second Monday in July in each year, the executive council shall assess all the property of each railway corporation in the state, excepting the lands, lots and other real estate belonging thereto not used in the operation of any railway, and excepting railway bridges across the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, and excepting grain elevators; and for the purpose of making such assessment its president, vice president, general manager, general superintendent, receiver or such other officer as the council may designate, shall on or before the first day of April in each year, furnish it a verified statement, showing in detail, for the year ended December thirty-first next preceding:

1. The whole number of miles of railway owned, operated or leased by such corporation or company within and without the state;

2. The whole number of miles of railway owned, operated or leased within the state, including double tracks and side tracks, the mileage of the main line and branch lines to be stated separately, and showing the number of miles of track in each county;

3. A full and complete statement of the cost and actual present value of all buildings of every description owned by said railway company within the state not otherwise assessed;

4. The total number of ties per mile used on all its tracks within the state;

5. The weight of rails per yard in main line, double tracks and side tracks;

6. The number of miles of telegraph lines owned and used within the state;

7. The total number of engines, and passenger, chair, dining, official, express, mail, baggage, freight and other cars, including hand cars and boarding cars used in constructing and repairing such railway, in use on its whole line, and the sleeping cars owned by it, and the number of each class on its line within the state, each class to be valued separately;

8. Any and all other movable property owned by said railway within the state, classified and scheduled in such manner as may be required by said council;

9. The gross earnings of the entire road, and the gross earnings in this state;

A street railway, although engaged to some extent in transporting goods and express matter for hire, is not subject to assessment under the provisions of this section. So held as to a street railway which had been extended along the public highway beyond the city limits to a neighboring town. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 106–476, 76 N. W. 728.

Interurban railways are to be assessed by the executive council of the state in the same manner in which steam railways are assessed. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125–430, 101 N. W. 176.

Where an interurban railway system includes a street railway system in a city, it may be taxed by the executive council as a unit. Waterloo & C. F. R. T. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 131–237, 108 N. W. 316.

SEC. 1334-a. Detailed statements—what to include. Each railway or other corporation required by law to report to the executive council under the provisions of the law as it appears in section thirteen hundred thirty-four of the supplement to the code shall, on or before the first day of April, nineteen hundred and five, make to the executive council a detailed statement showing the amount of real estate owned or used by it on December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and four, for railway purposes, in each county in the state in which said real estate is situated, including the right of way, roadbed, bridges, culverts, depot grounds, station buildings, yards, section and tool houses, roundhouses, machine and repair shops, water tanks, turntables, gravel beds and stone quarries, and for all other purposes, with the estimated actual value thereof, in such manner as may be required by the executive council. Only one such detailed statement by any corporation shall be necessary, and when received by the council it shall become the record of railway lands of such corporation, and be deemed as annually thereafter reported for valuation and assessment by the executive council. On or before the first day of April of each subsequent year such corporation shall in like manner report all real estate acquired for any of the railway purposes above named during the preceding calendar year; and also a list of any real estate, previously reported, disposed of during the same period, which disposition shall be noted by the council in an appropriate column opposite to the description of said tract in the original report of the same in the record of railway land. [30 G. A., ch. 46, § 1.]

SEC. 1334-b. Record of railway lands. The executive council shall, by some convenient method of binding, arrange the statements required to be made under the provision of the preceding section so as to form a consolidated list of all real estate reported to it as being owned or used for railway purposes within the state of Iowa, which list shall be known as the record of railway lands. [30 G. A., ch. 46, § 2.]

SEC. 1334-c. Acts in conflict repealed. Subsection three of the law as it appears in section thirteen hundred thirty-four of the supplement to the code [1902] and all other statutes or parts of statutes in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 46, § 3.]

SEC. 1336. Valuation.

The tax here provided for is on real and personal property without discrimination, and therefore a sewer district tax which can only be enforced against real property within the sewer district is not enforceable against the real property of a railroad company which is included in its general assessment for taxation. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Phillips, 111–377, 82 N. W. 787.

If a railroad company owns and operates a telegraph line which is not exclusively used in the operation of its road, such line is taxable under code § 1328, relating to the taxation of telegraph lines. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Rhein, 135–404, 112 N. W. 823.

SEC. 1337. Statement sent county auditors. On or before the first Monday in August of each year, the council shall transmit to the county auditor of each county, through and into which any railway may extend, a statement showing the length of the main track within the county, and the assessed value per mile of the same, as fixed by a ratable distribution per mile of the assessed valuation of the whole property. [29 G. A., ch. 58, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 153; C. '73, § 1320.]

The assessed value per mile is simply the unit of calculation for determining the aggregate value of the property. Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 152–187, 131 N. W. 25.

SEC. 1337-a. Plats—when filed. That every railroad company owning or operating a line of railroad within this state, shall on or before the first day of August, A. D. nineteen hundred and two, place on file in the office of the county auditor of each county in the state, into which any part of the lines of any said company lies, a plat of the lines of said companies within said county, showing the length of their said lines and the area of the land owned or occupied, by said companies in each government subdivision of land, not included within the platted portion of any town or city, within each of said counties, and the length of the said lines within the platted portion of cities and towns. Companies having on file such plats of part or all of their lines, in any of said counties, shall be required to file plats only of that part of their lines not fully shown as above required on the plats now on file. On the first day of January of each year hereafter, like plats shall be filed of all new lines or extensions of existing lines built or completed within the calendar year preceding. [29 G. A., ch. 60, § 1.]

SEC. 1337-b. Refusal to file. In the event of the failure or refusal of any railroad company to file the plats required under the provisions of section one of this act, at the time or according to the conditions named, then the county auditor may cause the same to be prepared by the county surveyor and the cost thereof shall, in the first place, be audited and paid by the board of supervisors out of the county fund, and the amount thereof shall be by said board levied as a special tax against said company and the property of said company which shall be collected as county taxes and when collected be paid into the county fund. [29 G. A., ch. 60, § 2.]

SEC. 1338. Levy and collection of tax.

The order of the executive council as to the length of the main track of each railroad within the county and the assessed valuation thereof per mile becomes a part of the records of the board of supervisors for the county and is to be published as a part of its proceedings under the provisions of code § 441. Index Printing Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150-411, 130 N. W. 401.

SEC. 1339. Rate.

As to whether in taxing railway property in special charter cities the provisions of code § 1305, as to assessment of property at twenty-five per cent. of its actual value, are applicable, the court was equally divided. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Davenport, 127-677, 103 N. W. 996; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 127-678, 103 N. W. 997.

SEC. 1340. Number of sleeping and dining cars. In addition to the matters required to be contained in the statement made by the company for the purposes of taxation, such statement shall show the number of sleeping and dining cars not owned by such corporation, but used by it in operating its railway in this state during each month of the year for which the return is made, the value of each car so used, and also the number of miles each month said cars have been run or operated on such railway within the state, and the total number of miles said cars have been run or operated each month within and without the state. Such statement shall show the average daily sleeping car and dining car service or wheelage operated on each part or division of the line or system within the state, designating the points on the line where variations occur, with the mileage of that part having the same daily service or wheelage. [28 G. A., ch. 44, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.]

SEC. 1340-a. Gross earnings—proportion. That for the purpose of making reports to the executive council, the gross earnings of railway companies, owning or operating a line or lines of railway partly within this state, and partly within another state, or other states, or territory, or territories, upon their line or lines within this state, shall be ascertained and reported by said railway companies as follows, to wit: The aggregate of the earnings upon business originating and terminating within this state, upon business originating in this state and terminating elsewhere, upon business originating elsewhere and terminating in this state, and upon business neither originating or terminating in this state but carried on or done over the line or lines in this state or over some part thereof, shall be reported; and with respect to all such interstate business the earnings in this state for the purpose of report shall be actually computed upon the basis of the length of haul or carriage in this state as compared with the length of haul or carriage elsewhere. It being hereby declared that for the purpose of making reports looking to the assessment of railway property for taxation the gross earnings or business done or carried partly within this state and partly in another state, or other states, or territories, shall be that proportion of the entire earnings of such business that the haul or carriage in this state bears to the entire haul or carriage. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 1.]

SEC. 1340-b. Rules and regulations—power of executive council. The executive council shall have the power to prescribe such rules and regulations with respect to the keeping of accounts by the railway companies doing business in this state as will insure the accurate division of earnings as aforesaid, and uniformity in reporting the same to the executive council. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 2.]

SEC. 1340-c. Net earnings. The executive council shall have the power to prescribe a method for all railway companies doing business in this state, together with the rules and regulations for the ascertainment of the net earnings of the railway lines in this state, to the end that all such railway companies, in ascertaining and making report of net earnings, shall proceed upon the same basis and in a uniform manner. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 3.]

SEC. 1340-d. Reports additional—when made. The reports herein provided for are not in lieu of, but in addition to, the reports provided for by law, and they shall be made at the time and as a part of the reports already required. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 4.]

SEC. 1340-e. Additional rules and regulations. The rules, regulations, method, and requirements herein provided to be made by the executive council shall be made and communicated in writing or print to the said several railway companies within thirty days from and after the passage and taking effect of this act, and shall be and become binding upon said railway companies from the time they are so communicated; provided, however, that the said executive council shall have the power to prescribe supplemental or additional rules, regulations, and requirements at any time, and communicate them to the several railway companies in the manner aforesaid, and with respect to such additional or supplemental rules, regulations, and requirements, they shall be and become binding upon the said railway companies within thirty days after they are so communicated. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 5.]

SEC. 1340-f. Refusal to conform to rules—penalty. If any railway company shall fail or refuse to obey or conform to the rules, regulations, method, and requirements so made or prescribed by the executive council under the provisions of this act, or to make the reports as herein provided for, the executive council shall proceed and assess the property of such railway company so failing or refusing, according to the best information obtainable, and shall then add to the taxable valuation of such railway company twenty-five per centum thereof, which valuation and penalty shall be separately shown, and together shall constitute the assessment for that year. [29 G. A., ch. 61, § 6.]

SEC. 1342. Real property of railways.

In determining whether real property claimed by a railroad company is included in its property as assessed by the executive council and is therefore exempt from taxation in any other form, the return of the railroad company to the executive council is not conclusive, and the council may reject property so returned as not coming within the statutory provisions as to such taxation; therefore to defeat the collection of taxes levied on lots claimed by the railroad company on assessments made by local authorities, not simply the return of the railroad company of such property to the executive council, but the inclusion of such property in the assessment of the railroad by the executive council must be shown. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Kelley, 105–106, 74 N. W. 935.

A railroad company is not taxable under this section for the value of elevators owned by it and situated on its right of way, though leased by tenants for a nominal rent, if exclusively used in storing or taking in grain for shipment over the road; otherwise if the elevators are used by the tenants for general purposes of storage for hire. Herter v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 114–330, 86 N. W. 266.

SEC. 1342-a. Freight line and equipment companies. Every company engaged in the business of operating cars, not otherwise listed for taxation or taxed in Iowa, for the transportation of freight, whether such freight be owned by such company, or any other person or company, over any railway line or lines, in whole or in part within this state, such line or lines, not being owned, leased or operated by such company, whether such cars be termed box, flat, coal, ore, tank, stock, gondola, furniture or refrigerator cars, or by some other name, shall be deemed to be a freight line company. Every company engaged in the business of furnishing or leasing cars of whatsoever kind or description, to be used in the operation of any railway line or lines, wholly or partially within this state, such line or lines not being owned, leased or operated by such company, and such cars not being otherwise listed for taxation in Iowa shall be deemed to be an equipment company. [29 G. A., ch. 62, § 1.]

SEC. 1342-b. Eighth.—The actual cash value, on the first day of January next preceding, of the said number of cars necessary to provide for the mileage, to be reported as required by paragraph six of this section.

Ninth.—The real estate, personal property, structure, machinery, fixtures and appliances, owned by said company, subject to local taxation within the state, and the location and the actual value thereof in the county, township or district where the same is assessed for local taxation. [30 G. A., ch. 47, §§ 1, 2; 29 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.]

SEC. 1342-c. Additional statements—refusal to furnish—penalty. Upon the filing of such statements the executive council shall examine each of them, and if it[1] shall deem the same insufficient, or if they fail to fully set out the matters required to be reported, it shall require such officer or agent to make such other and further statements as to such matters as it[1] may deem proper. In case of the failure or refusal of any company to make and deliver to the executive council any statement or statements required by this act, such company shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa one hundred dollars each day such report is delayed beyond the first Monday of June, to be sued and recovered in any proper form of action, in the name of the state of Iowa, and such penalty when collected shall be paid into the general fund of the state. SEC. 1342-d. Assessment by executive council. Upon the meeting of the executive council on the second Monday of July in each year, it shall value and assess as the property of said company within this state, the cars of the said company necessary, under the circumstances ordinarily attending the use of such cars, for the mileage to be reported under paragraphs six and seven of section two of this act, after examining such statements and after ascertaining the actual value of said property of such company therefrom, and from such other information as it may have or obtain. For that purpose the executive council may require such company, by its agents or officers, to appear before said council with such books, papers, or additional statements as the council may require, and may compel the attendance of witnesses in case said council shall deem it necessary to enable it to ascertain the actual value of such property. From the entire actual value of the property within the state so ascertained, there shall be deducted by the said council the actual value of all cars locally assessed, and one fourth of the residue of such actual value so ascertained shall be by the executive council assessed to said company. [30 G. A., ch. 47, § 3; 29 G. A., ch. 62, § 4.]

SEC. 1342-e. Tax—when due. The council shall also at said meeting determine the rate of tax to be levied and collected upon said assessments, which shall be equal, as nearly as may be, to the average rate of taxes, state, county, municipal and local, levied throughout the state during the previous year, which rate shall be ascertained from the records and files in the auditor's office, and said tax shall be in full of all taxes except on real estate, personal property locally assessed, and special assessments, and shall become due and payable at the state treasury on the first day of February following the levy thereof, and if not so paid, the state treasurer shall collect the same by distress and sale of any property belonging to such company in the state in the same manner as is required of county treasurers in like cases; and the order of the executive council in such cases shall be sufficient authority therefor. [29 G. A., ch. 62, § 6.]

SEC. 1342-f. "Company" defined. The word "company" as used in this act, shall be deemed and construed to mean any person, copartnership, association, corporation or syndicate that may own or operate, or be engaged in operating, furnishing or leasing cars, as defined and described in

SEC. 1342-g. Stockholders. The individual stockholders or owners of interests of said companies shall not be required to list their shares or interests in such companies so long as the companies pay the taxes on their property as herein provided. [29 G. A., ch. 62, § 8.]

SEC. 1343. Water and gasworks—electric plants—street railways.

The provisions of this section exclude the idea of making the franchise a distinct item of valuation in the assessment of such property for taxation. But on the other hand, the entire physical property of such plant, as, for instance, an electric railway, or some specific portion thereof, located within a taxing district, is to be subject to taxation, and not merely the material of which it has been constructed. City Council v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 120–259, 94 N. W. 501.

In the taxation of an electric light company, the franchise should not be valued as distinct from the plant; but in valuing the plant, the franchise may be taken into consideration. Lake City Elec. Light Co. v. McCrary, 132-624, 110 N. W. 19.

The portion of an interurban railway which is within the limits of a city is to be included with the other property of the interurban railway in the taxation of the system under the provisions of code § 1334. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125–430, 101 N. W. 176.

SEC. 1344. Roadbeds and highways.

This section relates to the raising of general revenues, and not to assessment of railway property for street improvements. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112–300, 83 N. W. 1074.

Fifth.—The market value of said shares of stock on the first day of January next preceding, and if such shares have no market value then the actual value thereof; and in case no shares of stock have been issued state the market value, or the actual value, in case there is no market value of the capital thereof, and the manner in which the same is divided.

Sixth.—The real estate, buildings, machinery, fixtures, appliances, and personal property owned by said company and subject to local taxation within the state of Iowa, and the location and actual value thereof in the county, township, or district where the same is assessed for local taxation.

Seventh.—The specific real estate, together with the improvements thereon, and all bonds, mortgages, and other personal property owned by said company, situated outside of the state of Iowa, and used exclusively outside the conduct of the business, with a specific description of all bonds, mortgages, and other personal property, and the cash value thereof, the purposes for which the same are used, and where the same are kept or deposited and each piece of real estate, where located, the purpose for which the same is used, and the actual value thereof, in the locality where situated.

SEC. 1346-b. Additional statement—delay—penalty. That section two, chapter forty-five acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Upon the filing of such statements, the executive council shall examine each of them, and if it shall deem the same insufficient, or in case it shall deem that other information is requisite, it shall require such officer or agent to make such other and further statements as the executive council may call for. In the case of the failure or refusal of any company to make out and deliver to the executive council any statement or statements required by this act, such company shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa one hundred dollars for each day such report is delayed beyond the first Monday in March of that year, to be sued and recovered in any proper form of action in the name of the state of Iowa, on the relation of the executive council, and such penalty when collected shall be paid into the general fund of the state." [29 G. A., ch. 164, § 2; 28 G. A., ch. 45, § 2.]

SEC. 1346-c. Assessment by executive council. That section three, chapter forty-five, acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The executive council shall meet on the second Monday in July in each year, and it shall thereupon value and assess the property of such company, in the manner hereinafter set forth, after examining such statements, and after ascertaining the actual value of the property of such company therefrom, and from such other information as it may have or obtain. For that purpose the executive council may require such company, by its agents or officers, to appear before said council with such books, papers, or statements as the council may require, or it may require additional statements to be made by such company, and may compel the attendance of witnesses, in case said council shall deem it necessary, to enable it to ascertain the actual value of such property; any such company interested may, upon written application, appear before the executive council at such meeting, and be heard in the matter of the valuation of the property of such company for taxation." [29 G. A., ch. 164, § 3; 28 G. A., ch. 45, § 3.]

SEC. 1346-d. Actual value—how ascertained. That section thirteen hundred forty-six-d of the supplement to the code [1902] be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The executive council shall first ascertain the actual value of the entire property owned by said company, from said statements or otherwise, for that purpose taking the aggregate market value of all shares of capital stock, in case said shares have a market value, and in case they have none taking the actual value thereof or of the capital of said company, in whatever manner the same is divided, in case no shares of capital stock have been issued; provided, however, that in case the whole or any portion of the property of said company shall be encumbered by a mortgage or mortgages, such council shall ascertain the actual value of such property by adding to the market value or the aggregate shares of stock or to the value of the capital, in case there shall be no such shares, the aggregate amount of the market or cash value of such mortgage or mortgages, and the result shall be deemed and treated as the actual value of the property of such company. The executive council shall, for the purpose of ascertaining the actual value of the property within the state of Iowa, next ascertain from such statements or otherwise the actual value of the property, both real and personal, owned by the company, and which is used exclusively outside the general business of the company, and also the actual value of that part of its property, if any, without the state which cannot lawfully be considered in determining the mileage value of its routes; and the aggregate of such values shall be deducted from the entire actual value of the property as above ascertained. The executive council shall next ascertain and deduct the actual value of the sea or ocean routes of any such company, and in ascertaining the same may take into consideration the earnings, both gross and net per mile, of such sea or ocean routes, as compared with the earnings, gross and net, of the land routes of such company or may ascertain their value in any other practicable manner, and may require that the reports heretofore provided for shall show such earnings. Thereupon the executive council shall ascertain the actual value of the property of such company within the state of Iowa, and for that purpose may take into consideration the proportional value of the company's property without and within the state, and shall take as a basis of valuation of the company's property in this state the proportion of the whole aggregate value of the property of said company, as above ascertained, after making the deductions above provided for which the length of the routes within the state of Iowa bears to the whole length of the routes of such company other than sea or ocean routes, and such amount so ascertained shall be considered and taken to be the entire actual value of the property of such company within the state of Iowa. From the entire actual value of the property within the state so ascertained, there shall be deducted by the said council the actual value of all the real estate, buildings, machinery, appliances, and personal property not used exclusively in the conduct of the business within the state that are subject to local taxation within the counties, townships, and other assessment districts as hereinbefore described in the sixth item of section one of this act." [32 G. A., ch. 58; 28 G. A., ch. 45, § 4.]

SEC. 1346-e. Actual value per mile—taxable value. The executive council shall thereupon ascertain the value per mile of the property within the state, by dividing the total value as above ascertained, after deducting the specific properties locally assessed within the state, by the number of miles within the state, and the result shall be deemed and held to be the actual value per mile of the property of such company within the state of Iowa. The assessed or taxable value shall be determined by taking that percentage of the actual value so ascertained, as is provided by section thirteen hundred and five of the code, and such valuation and assessment shall be in the same ratio as that of the property of individuals. [28 G. A., ch. 45, § 5.]

SEC. 1346-f. Assessment in each county—how certified. That section six, chapter forty-five, acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Said executive council shall thereupon, for the purpose of determining what amount shall be assessed by it to said company, in each county of the state, through, across, into, or over which the route of said company extends, multiply the value per mile, as above ascertained, by the number of miles in each of said counties, as reported in said statements, or as otherwise ascertained, and the result thereof, with the mileage and the rate of assessment per mile, shall be by said council certified to the auditors respectively of the several counties through, into, over and across which the routes of said company extend." [29 G. A., ch. 164, § 4; 28 G. A., ch. 45, § 6.]

SEC. 1346-g. Levy and collection of tax—rates. That section seven, chapter forty-five, acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"At the first meeting of the board of supervisors held after such certificate is received by the county auditor, it shall cause the same to be entered in its minute book and make and enter therein an order stating the length of the routes and the assessed value of each in each city, town, township, or other taxing district in its county, through or into which said routes extend, which shall constitute the taxable value of said property for taxing purposes, and the taxes on said property, when collected by the county treasurer, shall be disposed of as other taxes. The county auditor shall immediately thereafter transmit a copy of said order to the councils of cities, or towns, and to the trustees of each township, in the county. The county auditor shall also add to the value so apportioned the assessed value of the real estate, buildings, machinery, fixtures, appliances, and personal property not used exclusively in the conduct of the business situated in any township or taxing district as returned by the assessor thereof, and extend the taxes thereon upon the tax list as in other cases. All such property shall be taxable upon said assessment at the same rates, by the same officers, and for the same purposes as the property of individuals within such counties, townships, or taxing districts. The property so included in said assessment and the shares of stock in such companies so assessed shall not be taxed in this state, except as provided in this act." [29 G. A., ch. 164, § 5; 28 G. A., ch. 45, § 7.]

The certification to the board of supervisors of a county of the length of routes of express companies within the county and the assessed value of each becomes a part of the records of the board proper to be published under the provisions of code § 441. Index Printing Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 150–411, 130 N. W. 401.

SEC. 1346-h. Penalty. In case any such company shall fail or refuse to pay any taxes assessed against it in any county, township, or assessment district in the state, in addition to other remedies provided by law for the collection of taxes, an action may be prosecuted in the name of the state of Iowa by the county attorneys of the different counties of the state, on the relation of the auditors of the different counties of the state, and judgment in such action shall include a penalty of fifty per cent. of the amount of the taxes so assessed and unpaid, together with reasonable attorney's fees for the prosecution of such action, which action may be prosecuted in any county into, through, over, or across which the routes of any such company shall extend, or in any county where such company shall have an officer or agent for the transaction of business. [28 G. A., ch. 45, § 8.]

SEC. 1346-i. "Company" defined. The word "company," as used in this act, shall be deemed and construed to mean and include any person, copartnership, association, corporation, or syndicate that may own or operate, or be engaged in operating, any express route as herein defined, whether formed or organized under the laws of this state, any other state or territory, or of any foreign country. [28 G. A., ch. 45, § 9.]

SEC. 1346-j. Acts in conflict repealed. The provisions of this act are intended to take the place of sections thirteen hundred forty-five, and thirteen hundred forty-six of the code, and such sections and each of them, and all other laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed; provided, that all moneys now due the state on account of any assessment or charge made against any of such persons, copartnerships, associations, corporations, or syndicates, and all penalties and charges therein growing out of any of said repealed section[s], shall be paid and collected under the provisions of said repealed sections, the same as if said sections were not repealed, and it is hereby expressly provided that all rights of the state now accrued under said sections are hereby saved from the operation of the aforesaid repealing clauses. [28 G. A., ch. 45, § 10.]

SEC. 1347. Peddlers—amount of tax—repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 48; 27 G. A., ch. 32, § 1.]

This section, as amended by 27 G. A., ch. 32, and 30 G. A., ch. 48, does not apply to a traveling solicitor taking orders for goods from samples which are subject to the approval of his employer, and which on approval are to be filled by the delivery of the goods by the solicitor sent to him by his employer for that purpose. State v. Bristow, 131–664, 109 N. W. 199.

This section is unconstitutional on account of the exception as to persons who have served in the union army or navy. The classification attempted is based on no apparent necessity or difference in conditions or circumstances. State v. Garbroski, 111–496, 82 N. W. 959.

SEC. 1347-a. Peddlers—amount of tax. That chapter forty-eight, acts of the thirtieth general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"Peddlers plying their vocation in any county in this state outside of a city or incorporated town, shall pay an annual county tax of twenty-five dollars for each pack peddler or hawker on foot, fifty dollars for each one-horse conveyance, and seventy-five dollars for each two-horse conveyance. Such tax shall be paid to the county treasurer, who shall issue to the person making such payment duplicate receipts therefor and upon presentation of one of same to the county auditor, he shall issue to the person presenting such receipt a license which shall not be transferable authorizing such person to ply the vocation of a peddler in such county for the term of one year from the date thereof. The word 'peddlers' under the provisions of this act, and wherever found in the code, shall be held to include and apply to all transient merchants and itinerant vendors selling by sample or by taking orders, whether for immediate or future delivery. The provisions of this act shall not be construed to apply to persons selling at wholesale to merchants, nor to transient vendors of drugs, nor to persons running a huckster wagon, or selling and distributing fresh meats, fish, fruit, or vegetables, nor to persons selling their own work or production either by themselves or employes." [32 G. A., ch. 59; 30 G. A., ch. 48, § 1; 27 G. A., ch. 32, § 1; 15 G. A., ch. 62; C. '73, § 906; R. § 791; C. '51, § 510.]

SEC. 1348. License. Any person peddling outside the limits of a city or town without such license or after the expiration thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether he be the owner of the goods sold or carried by him or not, and, on conviction thereof, shall forfeit and pay into the county treasury, in addition to the penalty imposed therefor, double the amount of the tax for one year as fixed in the preceding section. The license shall be good only in the county in which issued, and shall not authorize peddling in cities and towns. [28 G. A., ch. 46, § 1; C. '73, § 907; R. § 792; C. '51, §§ 511, 512.]

SEC. 1350. Personal property—real estate—buildings.

Assessments of personal property relate back to the first of January previous. In re Kauffman's Estate, 104–639, 74 N. W. 8.

Assessments may properly be made in the name of the owner of the personal property on the first of January, although at the time of the assessment the owner is deceased. Ibid.

A claim for a loss under a fire insurance policy not yet adjusted should be listed for taxation. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

In estimating the value of property on January first the assessor is not limited to conditions known at that time but may use such information available at the time the assessment is made. Ibid.

SEC. 1352. Listing property—valuation.

An assessment in the absence of evidence to the contrary will be presumed to have been properly made. In re Kauffman's Estate, 104–639, 74 N. W. 8.

The description is sufficiently definite if it enables a competent person to identify the property. Abbreviations may be used if generally understood. Watkins v. Couch, 134-1, 111 N. W. 315.

The assessor acts ministerially and not judicially in returning an assessment roll including or omitting the property of the taxpayer. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

SEC. 1354. Duty of assessor—owner to assist. The assessor shall list every person in his township, and assess all the property, personal and real, therein, except such as is heretofore exempted or otherwise assessed, and any person who shall refuse to assist in making out a list of his property, or of any property which he is by law required to assist in listing, or who shall refuse to make either of the oaths or affirmations or combinations thereof required by the next section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars. [33 G. A., ch. 85, § 3.] [C. '73, § 823; R. § 734.]

Cattle brought into the state for feeding purposes and kept in the state until after the first of January, are subject to taxation, although the owner is a nonresident. The case is different where the property is taken through the state merely in the course of transportation. Fennell v. Pauley, 112–94, 83 N. W. 799.

Where, through clerical mistake, the amount of the valuation fixed by the assessor is erroneously entered on the list, the taxpayer is not precluded from questioning the amount of the assessment by failure to go before the board of equalization for relief. Smith v. McQuiston, 108–363, 79 N. W. 130.

The property owner is entitled to the judgment of the assessor as to the value of his property, but the statute does not require the assessor to personally list all property. Such work is clerical and even where an assistant fixes the value in the first instance the assessment is not invalid if the assessor afterwards examines and adopts it as his act. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 138–366, 116 N. W. 140.

SEC. 1354-a. Deaf and blind persons—enumeration. That it shall be the duty of the assessor at the time of making the assessments, as provided by law, to record the names, ages, sex and post-office address of all deaf or blind persons who reside within his jurisdiction. [33 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.]

SEC. 1354-b. Blanks provided. It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to supply the county auditors in each county with suitable blanks for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of section one hereof, which blanks shall be furnished to each assessor by the county auditor at the time he supplies the assessor with the blank assessment rolls and books. [33 G. A., ch. 88, § 2.]

SEC. 1354-c. Returns—forwarded by county auditor. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to forward to the secretary of the board of control of state institutions the returns of the assessor, as herein provided, within thirty days after the returns are filed in his office. [33 G. A., ch. 88, § 3.]

SEC. 1355. Oath. The assessor shall administer the oath or affirmation printed on the assessment rolls hereinafter prescribed, or combination thereof, to each person assessed, and require the person taking such oath to subscribe the same, and in case any one refuses so to do, he shall note the fact in the column of remarks opposite such person's name. [33 G. A., ch. 85, § 2.] [C. '73, § 824; R. § 735; C. '51, §§ 474-5.]

SEC. 1356. Notice of valuation.

The omission of the assessor to give written notice to the person assessed of the valuation placed upon his property will not render the assessment invalid. In re Kauffman's Estate, 104–639, 74 N. W. 8.

The act of the assessor in listing or omitting property is not a final determination as to the liability of the property for taxation. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

SEC. 1357. Refusal to furnish statement.

The penalty for failure to make return as required cannot be avoided by subsequently making a return after the assessor's books have been placed before the board of review. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Fonda, 114–728, 87 N. W. 724.

The penalty for refusing to furnish to the assessor a verified statement or to list property subject to taxation is not applicable to a false statement by a taxpayer respecting the amount of indebtedness for which he claims an offset as against his moneys and credits. Stein v. Board of Review, 135–539, 113 N. W. 339.

SEC. 1360. Assessment rolls and books. The auditor shall procure and furnish to each assessor a supply of blank assessment rolls, on which to enter, separately, the names of all persons, partnerships, corporations or associations assessed, which rolls shall be made in duplicate, except that the oath form in the original may be omitted and the following inserted in lieu thereof: "If you are not satisfied that the foregoing assessment is correct, you can appear before the board of review, which meets at.....on the first Monday of April next. Dated.....day of.....19.... .....Assessor." Said duplicate shall be signed by the assessor, detached from the original, and delivered to the person assessed. He shall also furnish to each assessor a supply of blanks in this chapter described as "Assessment Roll, Form No. 2," which shall be in duplicate, and subject to the same conditions as the roll above provided for. The auditor shall also furnish to the assessor two assessment books, each page of which shall be headed "Assessor's book for.....township, ...county, Iowa, independent district of.....," and shall contain columns ruled and headed for the information required by this act, which rolls and books shall be substantially in the following form:

[27 G. A., ch. 30, § 3; C. '73, § 821; R. § 732–3.]

The act of the assessor in returning to the board of review an assessment roll showing the listing or omission to list certain property is ministerial and not judicial. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

There is no provision that the board of review shall list the kind and character of items under the head of moneys and credits in making an assessment on moneys and credits not returned by the assessor. Barhydt v. Cross, 156–271, 136 N. W. 525.

SEC. 1361. Schedules returned. The assessor shall furnish to each person, partnership, corporation or association, except those otherwise assessed as provided by law, a blank known as "Assessment Roll—Form No. 2," as provided in the preceding section, upon which such person, partnership, corporation or association shall enter and set out all moneys and credits of whatsoever kind or nature belonging to such person, partnership, corporation or association, and such liabilities as they claim should be deducted from the total of their moneys and credits. The assessor shall carry the aggregate moneys and credits of such persons, partnerships, corporation or associations to the regular schedule. The assessor shall return all schedules with the assessment books to the county auditor as is provided in this chapter, and the county auditor shall carefully keep all schedules known and described in this chapter as "Assessment Roll—Form No. 2," for the period of five years from the time of filing of the same in his office. Provided, however, that it shall be lawful to combine the affidavit with reference to real and personal property, and the affidavit as to moneys and credits, into one affidavit. [33 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.] [27 G. A., ch. 30, § 4.]

SEC. 1363. Statistics—Iowa year book of agriculture. That section thirteen hundred sixty-three of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Each year the county auditor shall deliver to each assessor the necessary blanks for recording, as to each person whose property is listed, statistics of the previous year as to the number of acres, average and total yield of corn, oats, wheat, and such other crops and information as may be in their possession which may be called for relative to agriculture, agricultural production, agricultural labor, live stock, poultry and egg production, for publication in the Iowa year book of agriculture. The assessor shall require each person whose property is listed to make answers to such inquiries as may be necessary to enable him to return the foregoing statistics; and said blanks with such entries shall be returned to the county auditor on or before the fifteenth day of April, who shall tabulate the same by townships, and forward the returns thereof to the secretary of the state board of agriculture not later than the tenth day of May. The secretary of the state board of agriculture shall provide and cause to be delivered to the county auditor before the first week in January the blanks to be used by the assessors and county auditor for the proper return of the information required in this section." [33 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.] [24 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.]

SEC. 1365. Completion of assessment.

Failure of the assessor to attach to the assessment rolls his oath, as required by statute, renders the taxes based on such assessment void. Warfield-P.-H. Co. v. Averill Groc. Co., 119–75, 93 N. W. 80.

The assessment rolls are the lists or rolls of taxable property of persons, completed, verified and deposited by the assessors, and not the books or lists which shall thereafter be made up for other purposes. Reed v. Cedar Rapids, 138–366, 116 N. W. 140.

SEC. 1366. Assessors' books returned. That section thirteen hundred sixty-six of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Such rolls shall be laid before the local board of review on or before the first Monday of April in each year for correction, and when such correction has been completed, the assessor shall proceed to make up the assessor's books in duplicate from such assessment rolls, allotting a sufficient number of pages to each letter, and return to the county auditor, together with the assessment rolls, plat book, and all statements which have been furnished to him in connection with the assessment, and the county auditor shall foot up each column of numbers and values on each page and enter such footings in recapitulation sheets, and not later than the tenth day of May, return one of the books to the township clerk, and to the city or town clerk." [33 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.] [C. '73, § 825; R. § 736; C. '51, § 478.]

SEC. 1370. Local board of review. The township trustees shall constitute the local board of review for the township or the portion thereof not included within any city or town, and the city or town council shall constitute such board for such city or town. The board shall meet on the first Monday of April, at the office of the township, city or town clerk or recorder, and sit from day to day until its duties are completed, which shall be not later than the first day of May, and shall adjust assessments for the township, city or town by raising or lowering the assessment of any person, partnership, corporation or association as to any or all of the items of his assessment, in such manner as to secure the listing of property at its actual value and the assessment of property at its taxable value, and shall also add to the assessment rolls any taxable property not included therein, assessing the same in the name of the owner thereof, as the assessor should have done. Provided, however, that in townships having a population of twenty thousand or more, and situated entirely within the limits of a city under special charter, and in cities having a population of twenty thousand or more, including cities under special charter, the board of review may begin the performance of the duties herein defined on and after the first day of March each year. [34 G. A., ch. 64, § 1.] [C. '73, §§ 829, 830.]

The statutory provisions as to the local board of review do not confer authority upon such tribunal to transfer property for assessment purposes from one school district to another. The determination of a question as to the locality within the township at which personal property shall be entered on the assessment rolls is left entirely to the assessor. Independent School District v. Board of Rview, 131–195, 108 N. W. 220.

In determining what property is taxable and in ascertaining its value for the purpose of taxation the taxing officers act judicially. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

SEC. 1371. Clerk—correction of assessments. The clerk or recorder of the township, city or town, as the case may be, shall be clerk of the board of review, and keep a record of its proceedings, and the assessor shall be present at its meeting and make upon the assessment rolls all corrections or additions directed by the board. At such meetings it shall be the duty of the assessor to read each and every taxpayer's name and assessment on the assessment rolls, and, if the assessment is approved, pass to the next name. After checking the same, the board shall then take up the unchecked names in alphabetical order, and raise or lower the same as in their opinion will be just, checking off each taxpayer as the same is adjusted. [27 G. A., ch. 33, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 109, § 1; C. '73, § 831; R. § 740.]

The board of review in fixing the value of bank stock has the right to avail itself of any information within reach for the purpose of determining the real or market value of such stock. First Nat. Bank v. City Council, 136–203, 112 N. W. 829.

It is the order of the board of review if not appealed from which is final. The act of the assessor in returning or omitting property is ministerial and not judicial. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

SEC. 1372. Notice of assessments raised. In case the value of any specific property or the entire assessment of any person, partnership, corporation or association is raised, or new property is added by the board, the clerk shall give immediate notice thereof by mail to each at the post-office address shown on the assessment rolls, and at the conclusion of the action of the board therein the clerk shall post an alphabetical list of those whose assessments are thus raised and added, in a conspicuous place in the office or place of meeting of the board, and enter upon the records a statement that such posting has been made, which entry shall be conclusive evidence of the giving of the notice required. The board shall hold an adjourned meeting, with at least five days intervening after the posting of said notices, before final action with reference to the raising of assessments or the adding of property to the rolls is taken, and the posted notices shall state the time and place of holding such adjourned meeting, which time and place shall also be stated in the proceedings of the board. [27 G. A., ch. 30, § 5; 18 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

Where the board of equalization increases the assessed value of a taxpayer's property without posting notice of its intention to do so, such increase will be invalid. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Redmond, 120–601, 94 N. W. 1096.

SEC. 1373. Complaint to board of review—appeal. Any person aggrieved by the action of the assessor in assessing his property may make oral or written complaint thereof to the board of review, which shall consist simply of a statement of the errors complained of, with such facts as may lead to their correction, and any person whose assessment has been raised or whose property has been added to the assessment rolls, as provided in the preceding section, shall make such complaint before the meeting of the board for final action with reference thereto, as provided in said section, and appeals may be taken from the action of the board with reference to such complaints to the district court of the county in which such board holds its sessions, within twenty days after its adjournment. Appeals shall be taken by a written notice to that effect to the chairman or presiding officer of the reviewing board, and served as an original notice. The court shall hear the appeal in equity and determine anew all questions arising before the board which relate to the liability of the property to assessment or the amount thereof, and its decision shall be certified by the clerk of the court to the county auditor, who shall correct the assessment books in his office accordingly. Any officer of a county, city, town, township or school district interested or a taxpayer thereof may in like manner make complaint before said board of review in respect to the assessment of any property in the township, city or town and an appeal from the action of the board of review in fixing the amount of assessment on any property concerning which such complaint is made, may be taken by any of such aforementioned officers. Such appeal is in addition to the appeal allowed to the person whose property is assessed and shall be taken in the name of the county, city, town, township or school district interested and tried in the same manner, except that the notice of appeal shall also be served upon the owner of the property concerning which the complaint is made and affected thereby or person required to return said property for assessment. Upon trial of any appeal from the action of the board of review fixing the amount of assessment upon any property concerning which complaint is made, the court may increase, decrease or affirm the amount of the assessment appealed from. [32 G. A., ch. 60, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 109, § 1; C. '73, § 831; R. § 740.]

Appeal—what questions: Before the amendment by 32 G. A., ch. 60, held that no appeal could be taken from the action of the assessing tribunal refusing to make an assessment. In re Assessment of Farmers' L. & T. Co., 129–588, 105 N. W. 1023.

On all appeals from the action of the treasurer in assessing omitted property the matter stands before the district court in the same situation as before the treasurer, and the court should determine whether or not the property owner was liable to assessment on the property with which the treasurer has assessed him. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

If the treasurer has attempted to assess the person complaining with moneys and credits as omitted from assessment, it is for the court to fix the amount of moneys and credits for which the complainant should have been assessed. Ibid.

If the court on appeal finds that no assessment should have been made the assessment by the treasurer should be set aside in toto, and if it appears that as to any items included in the treasurer's assessment the complainant was not liable to assessment, then the court should reduce the assessment accordingly. Ibid.

The district court must have something before it to show what complaint was made to the board of review and what action was taken thereon, and the burden of proof is on the appellant to show that the decision of the board was erroneous. The taking of an appeal does not make an assessing tribunal out of the district court. Frost v. Board of Review, 114–103, 86 N. W. 213.

The court will presume that the board of review acted properly and upon sufficient evidence as to values, and the burden is upon the appealing taxpayer to overcome this presumption by evidence of injustice or inequity of the assessment as raised by the board of review. First Nat. Bank v. City Council, 136–203, 112 N. W. 829.

It is the questions arising before the board which the district court is required to try on appeals from the board of equalization. Such objections may be raised in the most informal way, and may be quite indefinite and general in statement and need not be reduced to writing, yet they must be in some manner brought to the attention of the tax tribunal. Gibson v. Cooley, 129–529, 105 N. W. 1011.

The court on appeal may correct the assessment of property in accordance with the application made in the first instance to the board of equalization, but it cannot include property for assessment as to which no assessment has been made, and no question raised before the board of equalization. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 106–476, 76 N. W. 728.

The district court on appeal is authorized to determine only the correctness of the assessment with reference to the complaints made, and cannot increase the assessment of appellant. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Fonda, 114–728, 87 N. W. 724.

Courts have no authority either to make or correct assessments. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

Under this section as amended by 32 G. A., ch. 60, the district court on appeal taken by officers or taxpayers from the action of the board of review in refusing to assess stock of a corporation on the ground that the corporation is properly assessable as a merchant under code § 1318, may order such assessment as should have been made. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

On appeal from the action of the board of review, the court has no authority to make a new assessment or increase that of the board. Woodbury County v. Talley, 153–28, 129 N. W. 967.

In the absence of evidence of fraud, the discretion of the board of review in assessing property cannot be interfered with on appeal. Ibid.

Where it appears that the board of review has exercised its honest judgment in the valuation of property, the treasurer has no power to assess as omitted property any portion of that which has thus been valued by the board of review. Ibid.

Until by final adjournment the board has placed it beyond its power to further review the assessment complained of, no right of appeal exists. Barz v. Board of Equalization, 133–563, 111 N. W. 41.

Jurisdictional questions may be raised upon the appeal as well as by other proceedings. Shirk v. Twp. Board of Review, 137–230, 114 N. W. 884.

On appeal from the action of the board of review, the person assessed is confined to the objections made before the board. Barhydt v. Cross, 156–271, 136 N. W. 525.

Notwithstanding the provisions as to appeal, it is still the rule that all assessments must be as equal as the facts will justify and equitable among the several property owners. Reiniger v. Board of Review, 157–193, 138 N. W. 399.

Effect of judgment: An adjudication of the court on an appeal from an assessment of land contracts for one year where it was decided that they were not assessable, held binding as an adjudication with reference to the assessment of the same contracts to the same person for a subsequent year. Defries v. McMeans, 121–540, 97 N. W. 65.

Procedure: The notice here contemplated must be served on the mayor, who is by law the presiding officer of the city council, unless another presiding officer has been appointed of record. Frost v. Board of Review, 113–547, 85 N. W. 770.

While jurisdiction is conferred by the service and filing of a proper appeal, a transcript of the proceedings of the board of review should be required not only that the proceedings upon which the appeal is passed may be clearly and fairly brought to the attention of the court, but that the court record may furnish a proper basis upon which to rest a decree. City Council v. National Loan & Inv. Co., 122–629, 98 N. W. 488.

The notice need not recite the fact of the complaint by the appealing party to the board of review, but such facts should appear in the transcript. A mere allegation of that fact in a petition filed by the appellant and not denied by responsive pleading is not sufficient to show the jurisdiction of the court. Ibid.

While pleadings may properly be filed, the rules governing the making up of issues in equity actions in general, do not apply. Ibid.

Jurisdiction of an appeal to the district court is obtained by service of a notice. When a notice has been served, if the board of review neglects to send up the transcript, such neglect may result in a dismissal of the appeal if the appellant does not obtain the proper order or rule requiring the performance of that duty by the board. But the appellant may be allowed by the court to introduce a transcript during the progress of the trial. City Council v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 120–259, 94 N. W. 501.

There is nowhere any direction or suggestion requiring a bond on such appeal, and the court has no power to impose any such condition. Ibid.

The notice of appeal gives the district court jurisdiction, and whether or not after acquiring jurisdiction it has sufficient evidence before it upon which to act intelligently, must be determined from the proceedings, and a judgment entered as the result of such proceedings will not be void. German-American Sav. Bank v. Council, etc., 118–84, 91 N. W. 829.

If the appellant neglects to present a transcript of the proceedings and to docket the appeal, the appellee may cause the appeal to be docketed and dismissed under the provisions of code § 3660. Stephens v. City Council, 132–490, 107 N. W. 614.

While a notice of appeal duly served is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction, such notice of itself presents nothing on which the court may try the merits of the appeal, but to that end the appellant must provide and file a proper transcript of the proceedings of the board with reference to the assessment in controversy. Peterson v. Board of Review, 138–717, 116 N. W. 818.

All that is required to enable the court to review the action of the board is that it appear what the complaint was before the board, its decision thereon and the taking of an appeal. White v. Marion, 139–479, 117 N. W. 254.

In an appeal to review the action of the board in refusing to tax the stock of a corporation, notice to the corporation is sufficient. For the purposes of taxation, the corporation represents its stockholders irrespective of their residence and the possibility of serving notice on them individually. In re Assessment of Sioux City Stock Yards Co., 149–5, 127 N. W. 1102.

In an appeal from the action of the treasurer in taxing omitted property, a transcript of the assessment certified by the treasurer is not essential. It is sufficient if the taxpayer recites the facts and the objections made before the treasurer. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

A member of the board of supervisors of the county is an officer of such county authorized under this section (as amended) to appeal from the action of the board of review. In re Assessment of Farmers' L. & T. Co., 155–536, 136 N. W. 543.

The objections contemplated in this section which may be made by an officer of the county or city to the action of the board of review need not be specific. It is sufficient that they indicate with reasonable certainty the matters in the assessment to which exception is taken. Ibid.

The statute authorizes a hearing de novo in the district court and the objections are to be heard in such court on such evidence as might be adduced. Ibid.

Other remedies — when allowable: After reversal in the supreme court of the finding of the district court relieving a taxpayer from taxes assessed against him, the reversal being on the ground that no sufficient complaint of the assessment was made before the board of review, the taxpayer cannot in the lower court interpose objections not thus made. City Council v. National Loan & Inv. Co., 130–511, 107 N. W. 309.

A national bank representing its stockholders is a party in interest as to the taxtion of its stock and may appear before the board of review and make complaint of the assessment of such stock and prosecute an appeal from adverse decision. First National Bank of Independence v. Independence, 123–482, 99 N. W. 142.

Where a loan and trust company objects before the board of review to an assessment on its moneys and credits, it is not required to point out the manner in which its property should be assessed, and it may object on appeal from the action of the board of review to such assessment on moneys and credits although it might have been assessed on its corporate stock. Wahkonsa Inv. Co. v. Ft. Dodge, 125–148, 100 N. W. 517.

A prior contention with reference to assessments for other years that the company was assessable only as a savings bank did not estop it from objecting as to the year in question to an assessment on moneys and credits. Ibid.

Where the value fixed by the assessor is by mistake erroneously entered on the tax list, the property owner is not precluded from seeking other relief by failing to apply to the board of review for correction. Smith v. McQuiston, 108–363, 79 N. W. 130.

Irregularities and inequalities in assessment are to be complained of only by appeal to the board of review and from it to the district court. Carpenter v. Jones County, 130–494, 107 N. W. 435.

Where the board of review or the treasurer, in assessing property omitted from taxtion, acts within the scope of the judicial or quasi-judicial power involved, such action is to be reviewed on appeal, and not in a proceeding for injunction, nor in an action to recover damages for an illegal act. Stevens v. Carroll, 130–463, 104 N. W. 433.

Injunction: The provision as to complaints to the board of review is broad enough to permit the correction of excessive assessments fraudulently made, and therefore one who complains that his property has been assessed too high on account of discriminations against him as a nonresident should ask relief by application to the board of review, and not by action in equity. The jurisdiction conferred upon the board is exclusive, unless otherwise expressed or clearly manifested. Crawford v. Polk County, 112–118, 83 N. W. 825.

If the tax is illegal, and not merely irregular, its enforcement may be restrained by injunction. Montis v. McQuiston, 107–651, 78 N. W. 704.

An excessive valuation can be corrected only on appeal, and not by an action to enjoin the collection of the tax. Lake City Elec. Light Co. v. McCrary, 132–624, 110 N. W. 19.

Equity will interfere by injunction to restrain the enforcement of a tax not supported by an assessment, but injunction will not lie to correct the error or wrong of an excessive assessment. Collins v. Keokuk, 118–30, 91 N. W. 791.

The fact that no appeal is authorized from an equalization board does not justify the interposition of the court by injunction to restrain the enforcement and levy of a tax based upon an assessment. Ibid.

Certiorari: The board of review having properly acquired jurisdiction to determine the correctness of the assessment, its subsequent action in raising the assessment cannot be questioned by certiorari on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence before it on which to base such increase. The remedy in such case is by appeal. Ferguson v. Board of Review, 119–338, 93 N. W. 352.

The board acts with reference to the assessment returned by the assessor, and is authorized to act on the same sources of information. Ibid.

SEC. 1373-a. Not applicable to pending litigation. The provisions of this act shall not apply to pending litigation. [32 G. A., ch. 60, § 2.]

SEC. 1374. Withholding property from assessment—penalty.

In general: Although the language of this section does not expressly make it retroactive, yet as it refers to an existing condition it may be applied to the collection of taxes on property omitted from taxtion before the code took effect. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512; Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

The act of the treasurer in determining that property has been omitted and ascertaining the tax due on account thereof is a substitute for the assessment by the duly constituted authorities. Ibid.

The act of the assessor for previous years in assessing only a portion of the moneys and credits of a taxpayer does not constitute such an adjudication as to preclude assessments for moneys and credits omitted where such omission resulted from the fraud of the officer or the failure of the taxpayer to return the full amount of his moneys and credits for taxation. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512.

But the mere fact that it appears that subsequently the taxpayer had a larger amount of moneys and credits than had been returned for assessment for previous years will not in itself show liability for taxes on omitted property. Ibid.

No penalty can be enforced with reference to taxes which should have been assessed prior to the taking effect of the code, nor can interest on such taxes be collected from the time when they should have been assessed. Ibid.

The fact that the penalty provided cannot be imposed in such case does not defeat the effect of the entire provision as to property previously omitted from taxation. Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

The fact that the treasurer is authorized to determine the amount for which suit shall be brought in such case and that by code § 490, a commission on the money collected is allowed to the treasurer does not render the section unconstitutional as making the treasurer a judge in a matter in which he is interested. Under the provision as to treasurer's compensation he is only collaterally and not directly interested in the result of the action. Ibid.

The return of property at much less than its real value constitutes such fraud on the part of the owner as to deprive an assessment based on such value of any binding force as against the taxing authorities and the fact of such fraud in returning the property for assessment may be shown to support a further assessment for omitted property although there is no special pleading of such fraud. In re Appeal of Seaman, 135–543, 113 N. W. 354.

The treasurer may assess property as omitted although the question as to whether it is taxable has been passed upon by the assessor. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

It is presumed that the treasurer acted upon sufficient evidence in fixing the value of property for the purposes of assessment unless there is competent evidence to the contrary. Morril v. Bentley, 150–677, 130 N. W. 734.

The county treasurer is not authorized to enter an assessment against property already assessed by the assessor and the board of equalization and returned to the county officials. Brainard v. Harlan, 139 N. W. 885.

A notice naming "moneys and credits" as the omitted property proposed to be assessed but describing such moneys and credits as consisting of "notes and corporation stock," held sufficient to authorize the treasurer to assess corporation stock. Woodbury County v. Talley, 153–28, 129 N. W. 967.

In a particular case, held that the treasurer properly reached the conclusion that certain capital stock of a corporation had been already assessed and was not, therefore, property omitted from assessment. Ibid.

No appeal by the county lies from the final determination by the treasurer in the matter of assessment of omitted property. Ibid.

The treasurer being clothed with authority to determine the value of omitted property, his valuation cannot be inquired into on certiorari. Ibid.

It is the entry on the tax list which constitutes the assessment and not the opinion filed by the treasurer finding the ground on which the assessment should be made. Ibid.

Under this section the treasurer has no authority to assess a mulct law tax. In re Appeal of Des Moines U. R. Co., 137–730, 115 N. W. 740.

Mandamus will not lie to compel the treasurer to reverse and set aside his decision as to the taxation of omitted property. His action in that respect is judicial. Woodbury County v. Talley, 147–498, 123 N. W. 746.

This section is not repealed by the enactment of ch. 50, acts of 28 G. A. (See supp. §§ 1407-a–1407-e.) Lambe v. McCormick, 116–169, 89 N. W. 241.

Discovery of omitted property by agents: A county may contract with agents to discover property omitted or concealed from taxation. Shinn v. Cunningham, 120–383, 94 N. W. 941.

The provisions of 28 G. A., ch. 50, limiting the percentage which may be allowed to an agent under such contract, do not affect the compensation for services previously rendered under a valid contract. Ibid.

The board of supervisors has the authority to employ persons to discover property which has been omitted from taxation, for the purpose of enabling the treasurer to bring action for the taxes due thereon. Disbrow v. Board of Supervisors, 119–538, 93 N. W. 585.

The property owner cannot in a suit by the county for taxes on omitted property raise the question as to the validity of the contract between the county and attorneys employed for the purpose of discovering omitted property. Galusha v. Wendt, 114–597, 87 N. W. 512.

Demand: While the notice of the action in which the treasurer seeks to recover taxes on omitted property is not the demand contemplated by this section, nevertheless an original notice in another action, indicating that payment of such taxes is demanded, which action is dismissed or otherwise disposed of, may constitute the demand contemplated. Bell v. Stevens, 116–451, 90 N. W. 87.

If such original notice is signed by the treasurer with words indicating that he acts in his official capacity, the court will take judicial notice that he was the treasurer of the county at the date when such notice was served. Ibid.

Further as to notice, listing and appeal, see supp. § 1407-a, and notes.

Action: Aside from the provisions of this section, an action cannot be maintained to recover taxes upon omitted property. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

If the petition follows the language of the statute with reference to the treasurer's knowledge as to omitted taxes, it is not vulnerable to attack on the ground that the allegation is by way of information and belief. Robinson v. Ferguson, 119–325, 93 N. W. 350.

Limitation: The fact that a time limit is fixed within which corrections by the treasurer may be made, while under code § 1385 with reference to entry on tax lists of omitted property by the auditor no limit is fixed, indicates that the authority of the auditor is limited to the current tax lists. Mead's Estate v. Story County, 119–69, 93 N. W. 88.

The treasurer alone has power to demand taxes on omitted property within five years from the date at which the assessment should have been made. The power of the auditor, under code § 1385, is limited to the current tax list. Jewett v. Foot, 119–359, 93 N. W. 364; Mead's Estate v. Story County, 119–69, 93 N. W. 88.

The five-year limitation begins to run from the date when the assessment should by law be completed, and not from the date when the tax lists are by law to be transmitted from the auditor to the treasurer. Thornburg v. Cardell, 123–313, 95 N. W. 239, 98 N. W. 791.

The provisions of 28 G. A., ch. 50 (see supp. §§ 1407-a–1407-e) are to be construed with reference to the language of this section, and therefore the five-year limitation of this section is applicable. Siberling v. Cropper, 119–420, 93 N. W. 494.

The limitation of such an action is to be found in the language of that section, and not in the general statute of limitations. Ibid.

The action of the treasurer must be brought within five years after the expiration of the thirty days given by his notice within which to appear and make objection. But the treasurer cannot delay the running of the statute by failing to make demand and give notice. Shearer v. Citizens' Bank, 129–564, 105 N. W. 1025.

The five-year limitation against an assessment of property omitted from taxation commences to run from the time when the assessment of such property should have been made. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

The five-year limitation on the treasurer's right to recover taxes on property omitted from assessment is to be computed from the completion of the work of the assessor. Thornburg v. Cardell, 123–313, 95 N. W. 239, 98 N. W. 791.

SEC. 1375. County board of review.

The power of county boards of equalization is plainly limited to equalizing by adding to, or taking from, the aggregate valuation of townships, cities and towns as a whole, and not as to parts thereof. Such board has no authority to equalize among assessment districts which are embraced in the same city. The city board has ample power to remedy inequality as among assessment districts by raising or lowering the assessments throughout the city. Montis v. McQuiston, 107–651, 78 N. W. 704.

SEC. 1378. State board of review. The executive council shall constitute the state board of review, and shall meet at the seat of government on the second Monday of July in each year. The auditor of state shall lay before it the abstracts transmitted to him by the auditor, as required by the preceding section. [32 G. A., ch. 5, § 3; C. '73, § 834; R. § 742; C. '51, §§ 481-2.]

SEC. 1380. State levy—repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 34, § 4.]

SEC. 1380-a. Repeal. Section thirteen hundred eighty of the code is hereby repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 34, § 4.]

SEC. 1380-b. State levy for certain years. The executive council shall, in the year eighteen hundred ninety-eight, fix the rate per centum to be levied upon the valuation of the taxable property of the state necessary to yield for general state purposes approximately the sum of sixteen hundred thousand dollars and in the year eighteen hundred ninety-nine shall fix the rate necessary to yield approximately fifteen hundred thousand dollars. [27 G. A., ch. 34, § 1.]

[See § 170-b. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1380-c. Annual levy fixed by general assembly. In the year nineteen hundred and each subsequent year the executive council shall fix the rate per centum to be levied upon the valuation of the taxable property of the state necessary to raise such amount for general state purposes as shall be designated by the general assembly, either by statute or joint resolution. [27 G. A., ch. 34, § 2.]

SEC. 1380-d. Executive council to certify to county auditor. The executive council shall certify the rate so fixed to the auditor of each county. [27 G. A., ch. 34, § 3.]

SEC. 1382. Adjustment by county auditor. The board shall keep a record of its proceedings, and finish its review and adjustment on or before the first Monday of August. The county auditor shall thereupon add to or deduct from the valuation of each kind or class of property in his county the required percentage, rejecting all fractions of fifty cents or less in the result, and counting all over fifty cents as one dollar. [32 G. A., ch. 5, § 3; C. '73, § 836; R. § 743; C. '51, § 483.]

SEC. 1382-a. Acts in conflict amended. That all statutes in conflict with any of the provisions of this act be, and are, hereby amended so as not to be in conflict with the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 5, § 3.]

SEC. 1383. Tax list. All taxes, except road taxes,[1] which are uniform throughout any township or school district shall be formed into a single tax, and entered upon the tax list in a single column, to be known as a consolidated tax, and each receipt shall show the percentage levied for each separate fund. Before the first day of January in each year, the county auditor shall transcribe the assessments of the several townships, towns or cities into a book, to be provided at the expense of the county for that purpose, to be known as the tax list, properly ruled and headed, with distinct columns, in which shall be entered the names of taxpayers, descriptions of lands, number of acres and value, number of town lots and value, value of personal property and each description of tax, with a column for polls and one for payments, and shall complete the same by carrying out the totals and footings of columns. At the end of the list for each township, town or city he shall make an abstract thereof, and apportion the consolidated tax among the respective funds to which it belongs, according to the number of mills levied for each. [30 G. A., ch. 50, § 1; C. '73, §§ 837-9; R. §§ 745-6; C. '51, §§ 485-6.]

["tax" in 30 G. A. session laws. EDITOR.]

The statute does not require the entry of the names in alphabetical order or that all the taxes due from one person appear at one place. Watkins v. Couch, 142–164, 120 N. W. 485.

SEC. 1385. Errors corrected—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 47, § 1.]

The auditor has authority to determine when a mistake on the tax list, not due to error of judgment on the part of the assessor, has been made, but when the determination of whether there is a mistake depends upon facts outside of the record, it is wise for the auditor to decline to act. Smith v. McQuiston, 108–363, 79 N. W. 130.

The extension of the application of this section by 28 G. A., ch. 47 (supp. §§ 1385-a–1385-c), and the enactment of 28 G. A., ch. 50 (supp. §§ 1407-a–1407-e), which may be construed as relating to code § 1398, do not amount to an implied repeal of code § 1374. Lambe v. McCormick, 116–169, 89 N. W. 241.

The auditor can act with reference to omitted property only for the purpose of adding such property to the tax list for the current year. Thornburg v. Cardell, 123–313, 95 N. W. 239, 98 N. W. 791.

The county auditor has no duty or authority with respect to the collection of taxes on property withheld from assessment save of adding such omitted property to the tax list for the current year. Heath v. Albrook, 123–559, 98 N. W. 619.

The auditor's power to list omitted property under this section as amended by 28 G. A., ch. 47, (supp. §§ 1385-a–1385-c) is limited to the current tax list and cannot be exercised without limitation as to the time. Mead's Estate v. Story County, 119–69, 93 N. W. 88; Jewett v. Foot, 119–359, 93 N. W. 364; Thornburg v. Cardell, 123–313, 95 N. W. 239, 98 N. W. 791.

SEC. 1385-a. Repeal. That section thirteen hundred eighty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [28 G. A., ch. 47, § 1.]

SEC. 1385-b. Errors corrected—omitted property. The auditor may correct any error in the assessment or tax list, and may assess and list for taxation any omitted property; but before assessing and listing for taxation any omitted property he shall notify by registered letter the person, firm, corporation, or administrator, or other person in whose name the property is taxed, to appear before him at his office within ten days from the time of said notice and show cause, if any there be, why such correction or assessment should not be made, and should such party feel aggrieved at the action of said auditor he shall have the right of appeal therefrom to the district court. And if such correction or assessment is made after the books have passed into the hands of the treasurer he shall be charged or credited therefor as the case may be. All expense incurred in the making of said correction or assessment shall be borne pro rata by the funds which are affected by said correction and the proceedings to be reported to the board of supervisors. [28 G. A., ch. 47, § 2; C. '73, § 841; R. § 747.]

A mere notice by the auditor to the taxpayer with reference to omitted property is not such assessment as is contemplated by law. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

The statutory provision authorizing the auditor to assess omitted property for taxation is not unconstitutional. Clark v. Horn, Auditor, 122–375, 98 N. W. 148.

The fact that the assessor has intentionally omitted property in his return of the assessment rolls to the board of review does not prevent its being omitted property within the purview of this section. Tally v. Brown, 146–360, 125 N. W. 248.

Where the county auditor in fact makes the assessment, it is immaterial that he does so on the recommendation of a "tax ferret." Montgomery v. Marshall County, 152–161, 129 N. W. 329.

Although the imposition of objection to an assessment by an auditor is essential to a review by the courts, such objection need not be formal and may be expressed orally. Moffit v. Fitzer, 141 N. W. 935.

SEC. 1385-c. Appeal. The appeal herein provided for shall be taken within ten days from the time of the final action of the auditor, by a written notice to that effect to the auditor, and served as an original notice. The court on appeal shall hear and determine the rights of the parties in the same manner as appeals from the board of review, as prescribed in section thirteen hundred seventy-three of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 47, § 3.]

SEC. 1387. Tax list delivered.

No mere informality in the making of the list will affect the validity of proceedings for the collection of taxes. Watkins v. Couch, 142–164, 120 N. W. 485.

SEC. 1389. Treasurer to enter delinquent taxes—repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 48, § 1.]

[See § 1389-a.]

Where the taxes have not been brought forward as required by statute a sale therefor is invalid and the owner should be permitted to redeem. Smith v. Callanan, 103–218, 72 N. W. 513.

Special assessments certified to the auditor by a city for collection if not brought forward on the treasurer's books as required with reference to general taxes, cease to be a lien upon the property. Fitzgerald v. Sioux City, 125–396, 101 N. W. 268.

SEC. 1389-a. Delinquent personal tax—treasurer to keep record. Section thirteen hundred eighty-nine of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The treasurer shall, after October first, and before December thirty-first, of each year, enter in a book to be kept in his office as a part of the records thereof, to be known as the delinquent personal tax list, all delinquent personal taxes of any preceding year. [28 G. A., ch. 48, § 1.]

The design of this section is to provide a convenient and accessible record of personal taxes without repetition after once being entered. The taxes of any previous year are to be placed in the book kept for that purpose and in such a manner as to show the year levied and the location of the property. Watkins v. Couch, 142–164, 120 N. W. 485.

SEC. 1389-b. Record—what to contain. Such entry of tax on delinquent personal tax list shall give the names of delinquents alphabetically arranged, with amounts of tax and for what year or years, and where property was located when assessed. [28 G. A., ch. 48, § 2.]

Abbreviations in describing the location of the property will not render the entry void. Watkins v. Couch, 134–1, 111 N. W. 315.

SEC. 1389-c. Lien on real estate. Personal tax entered on delinquent personal tax list, as provided in sections one and two of this act, shall constitute a lien on any real estate owned or acquired by any such delinquent, and so remain until the same has been paid or legally canceled, and taxes not so entered for each year shall cease to be a lien. [28 G. A., ch. 48, § 3.]

SEC. 1389-d. Entry of delinquent real estate taxes. The treasurer shall each year, upon receiving the tax list, enter upon the same in separate columns opposite each parcel of real estate on which the tax remains unpaid for any previous year, the amount of such unpaid tax, and unless such delinquent real estate tax is so brought forward and entered it shall cease to be a lien upon the real estate upon which the same was levied, and upon any other real estate of the owner. But to preserve such lien it shall only be necessary to enter such tax, as aforesaid, opposite any tract upon which it was a lien. Any sale for the whole or any part of such delinquent tax not so entered shall be invalid. [28 G. A., ch. 48, § 4.]

SEC. 1390. Treasurer to collect.

This section relates wholly to the collection of taxes in the ordinary way and has no reference to an action for the collection thereof. McCrary v. Lake City Elec. Light Co., 139–548, 117 N. W. 964.

SEC. 1391. Penalty on taxes not brought forward—unavailable taxes—delinquent taxes. That section thirteen hundred ninety-one of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"No penalty or interest shall be collected upon taxes remaining unpaid four years or more from the thirty-first day of December of the year in which the tax books containing the same were first placed in the hands of the county treasurer, and the board of supervisors at the January meeting may declare such tax unavailable, and when so declared by the board, the amount shall be credited to the treasurer by the auditor as unavailable and he shall apportion such tax among the funds to which it belongs. Any portion of such tax belonging to the state shall be reported by him in his semiannual settlement sheets to the auditor of state as unavailable, whereupon the auditor of state shall credit the county with the amount so reported, but nothing in this act shall be construed to in any way release the county treasurer from any duty required of him in the collection of delinquent taxes, nor to release the taxpayer from his liability for the same. Should any of such tax afterward be collected, the county treasurer shall distribute the net amount collected among the several funds the same as though it had never been declared unavailable, and the portion belonging to the state shall be credited back to the state and included in the treasurer's remittance of other state taxes to the treasurer of state and shall be reported by the county auditor in his semiannual settlement sheets to the auditor of state, who shall recharge the same to the county." [31 G. A., ch. 51; 15 G. A., ch. 29, § 1.]

SEC. 1398. Assessment of omitted property.

Although the provisions of 28 G. A., ch. 50 (supp. §§ 1407-a–1407-e) may be construed as relating to this section, and those of 28 G. A., ch. 47 (supp. §§ 1385-a–1385-c), as amplifying the provisions of code § 1385, nevertheless these acts are not to be regarded as repealing code § 1374. Lambe v. McCormick, 116–169, 89 N. W. 241.

SEC. 1400. Lien of taxes. Taxes upon real estate shall be a lien thereon against all persons except the state. Taxes due from any person upon personal property shall be a lien upon any and all real estate owned by such person or to which he may acquire title. As against a purchaser, such liens shall attach to real estate on and after the thirty-first day of December in each year. Taxes upon stocks of goods or merchandise shall be a lien thereon and shall continue a lien thereon when sold in bulk, and may be collected from the owner, purchaser or vendee. In all cases where buildings are assessed as personal property, the taxes shall be and remain a lien on said buildings from the date of levy until paid. [29 G. A., ch. 59, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 133; 20 G. A., ch. 194, § 1; C. '73, §§ 853, 865; R. § 759; C. '51, § 495.]

The lien provided for by this section attached, as to taxes already due on stocks of goods, on the day when the code went into effect. Plymouth County v. Moore, 114–700, 87 N. W. 662.

The lien of a general tax has priority over a special tax not chargeable on the property at the time the lien for the general tax attaches and sale thereunder is made. Harrington v. Valley Sav. Bank, 119–312, 93 N. W. 347.

The particular time at which taxes attach as a lien against a stock of goods is not specifically designated by statute but inferentially it is when they become due. But a sale of the stock in bulk after assessment and before the levying of the tax will not pass the title free from the lien of such tax when duly levied. Larson v. Hamilton County, 123–485, 99 N. W. 133.

The purchaser of a stock of goods taken subject to the taxes assessed thereon does not become personally liable for the payment of such taxes. Ibid.

Sale of goods at retail divests the lien of the taxes upon the stock and a subsequent payment of the tax by the purchaser of the stock to save other property from distraint is a voluntary payment which cannot be recovered from the vendor. The tax on a stock of goods is not a charge against the purchaser of such stock. Iowa Mercantile Co. v. Blair, 123–290, 98 N. W. 789.

As between vendor and vendee, the liability for taxes depends on the intent of the parties as to passing of title. The mere use of language indicating the passing of title at the time of execution of the contract is not controlling, but the usual test is the transfer of possession. Nunngesser v. Hart, 122–647, 98 N. W. 505.

The provision as to the date when the tax lien attaches between the seller and buyer does not affect the question as to which of the parties to a contract to convey shall pay the taxes accruing between the date of the contract and when the conveyance is to be made. In the absence of any controlling stipulation the vendor retaining possession, rents and profits until the conveyance is due is under obligation to pay the accruing taxes until the conveyance is made. Clinton v. Shugart, 126–179, 101 N. W. 785.

The lien of taxes has priority over the claims and interests of all parties in the land save those of the state and the United States, and a tax deed therefore cuts off the contingent dower interest of the wife of the owner. Lucas v. Purdy, 142–359, 120 N. W. 1063.

Although the mortgagee has not had notice of the proceedings, the tax assessed on the mortgaged property constitutes a lien thereon prior to the lien of his mortgage. Fitchpatrick v. Botheras, 150–376, 130 N. W. 163.

SEC. 1400-a. Telegraph and telephone plats—when filed. That on or before the first day of August, A. D. nineteen hundred and four, each telephone or telegraph company owning or operating a telephone or telegraph line, any part of which lies within the state of Iowa, shall file with the several county auditors of the counties within which any part of its line is located, a map of all its lines within said county, except its line within any platted city or town, drawn to a scale of not less than one inch to four miles, on which the location of the line or lines of said company is correctly shown. A telephone or telegraph company whose line is situated upon the right of way of a railway may file, in lieu of the map required to be filed by the provisions of this section, a certificate setting forth along what lines of railway said company's telephone or telegraph line extends. On or before the first day of March, A. D. nineteen hundred and five, and annually thereafter, like maps, statements or certificates shall be filed with the several county auditors of counties in which any part of said lines may have been extended, constructed, relocated or taken down entirely, during the preceding calendar year, showing the correct location of all such new or relocated lines, and the location of any part abandoned or taken down, as the same existed on the thirty-first day of December preceding; provided, county auditors of the several counties shall, upon application of any company, owning or operating a telephone or telegraph line in their respective counties, furnish a map or maps accurately showing the boundaries of all taxing districts in said county, and the public highways located within such taxing districts. [30 G. A., ch. 49, § 1.]

SEC. 1400-b. [30 G. A., ch. 49, § 2.]

SEC. 1400-c. [34 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 4.]

SEC. 1400-g. Groves. The trees of a forest reservation shall be in groves not less than four rods wide. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 5.]

SEC. 1400-i. What considered fruit trees. The cultivated varieties of apples, crabs, plums, cherries, peaches and pears shall be considered fruit trees within the meaning of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 7.]

SEC. 1400-j. Replacing dead or removed trees. Whenever any tree or trees on a fruit-tree or forest reservation shall be removed or die, the owner or owners of such reservation shall, within one year, plant and care for other fruit or forest trees, in order that the number of such trees may not fall below that required by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 8.]

SEC. 1400-k. Restraint of live stock. Cattle, horses, mules, sheep, goats and hogs shall not be permitted upon a fruit-tree or forest reservation. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 9.]

SEC. 1400-l. Taxable valution. Forest reservations fulfilling the conditions of this act shall be assessed on a taxable valuation of one dollar per acre. Fruit-tree reservations shall be assessed on a taxable valuation of one dollar per acre for a period of eight years from the time of planting. In all other cases where trees are planted upon any tract of land, without regard to area, for forest, fruit, shade or ornamental purposes, or for windbreaks, the assessor shall not increase the valuation of such property because of such improvements. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 10.]

SEC. 1400-m. Penalty for violations. If the owner or owners of a fruit or forest reservation violate any provision of this act within the two years preceding the making of an assessment, the assessor shall not list any tract belonging to such owner or owners, as a reservation within the meaning of this act, for the ensuing two years. [31 G. A., ch. 52, § 11.]

[31 G. A., ch. 52, § 14.]

SECTION 1400-q. State board of education—for erection, improvement and repair of buildings. For the purpose of providing for the erection, repair, improvement, and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the state board of education, there shall be levied annually for five years a special tax of one fifth of a mill on the dollar for the benefit of the state university, one fifth of a mill on the dollar for the benefit of the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, and one tenth of a mill on the dollar for the benefit of the state teachers college, upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state; and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the state treasury to the credit of the state university, the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, and the state teachers college respectively. Said levies shall first be made for said purposes in the year nineteen hundred twelve, and the same levies shall be made annually for four consecutive years thereafter. The money realized from such levies shall be held by the treasurer of state for the institutions and purposes hereinbefore provided, and drawn upon requisition of the state board of education; but the funds to be realized from the said tax levies herein provided shall not be anticipated by issuing warrants or other obligations of the state. [34 G. A., ch. 201, § 1.]

SEC. 1400-q1. Plans and specifications—how approved. No part of the said levies shall be expended for new buildings without first submitting to the general assembly for its approval plans and specifications prepared by the state architect, together with estimates of the cost of such buildings or betterments, and such plans and specifications, together with the said estimates of cost, shall be so submitted within thirty days from the first day of any regular session; provided that if the state board of education deems it advisable to make deviation from or additions to the plans, specifications, and estimated cost so submitted to the general assembly, the board shall first secure the approval thereof by a majority vote of the executive council; but the executive council shall not approve any deviation from such plans and specifications during any session of the general assembly nor costing more than twenty-five thousand dollars as to any one building. The executive council may, however, during the interim between sessions of the general assembly, on application of the state board of education, approve plans, specifications, and expenditures for buildings the necessity for which is created by fire or other casualty. The funds provided for by this act shall be drawn from the state treasury as provided in sections one hundred and nine and one hundred ten of the code. Nothing in this act shall be held to exclude the state board of education from employing an architect other than the state architect. [35 G. A., ch. 326, §§ 1, 2; 34 G. A., ch. 201, § 2.]

SEC. 1400-s2. Balance transferred to general revenues. Any balance of the annual fund created by this levy not used for the purposes specified in section two of this act, shall be covered into the general revenues of the state on the first day of April, nineteen hundred fifteen, and on the first day of April each year thereafter during the period of the levy of the tax herein provided. [35 G. A., ch. 228, § 3.]

SEC. 1400-t. Capitol grounds extension. That for the purpose of providing for the purchase of real estate for the extension of the capitol grounds and improvement of the same, there shall be levied annually for a period of ten years, commencing with the first levy made after the passage of this act, a special tax as follows: In each of the years nineteen hundred thirteen and nineteen hundred fourteen one-half mill on the dollar of the taxable property in the state, and in each of the remaining eight years such rate of levy to be fixed by the executive council, as will yield approximately one hundred fifty thousand dollars annually. The proceeds of such levies shall be carried into the state treasury to the credit of a fund to be called the capitol grounds extension and improvement fund. The executive council may make said purchase or enter into said contracts at any time within said period of ten years at its discretion and as the amount of money in said fund at any time may enable them to do but only after the most diligent inquiry and investigation as to the fair, just and reasonable value of said property. Payment for said real estate may be made by the said executive council certifying to the state auditor the amount due to any person at any time, and the auditor then drawing a warrant in his favor on the state treasury payable out of the fund herein created. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 4.]

[35 G. A., ch. 14, § 5.]

SEC. 1400-t5. Leases—removal of buildings. That the executive council shall have charge of all buildings that may be on any of the grounds acquired under the provisions of this act and may lease any or all of said buildings and grounds on behalf of the state until, in the judgment of said council, it is advisable to remove them. That at such times said buildings may be sold by said council or are [be] razed and the salvage thereon sold or such other disposition made of said buildings as said council may deem to the best advantage of the state. And all money realized from such sources and from rentals shall be carried into the state treasury to the credit of the capitol grounds extension and improvement fund. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 6.]

SEC. 1400-t6. Sale of Governor Square. That the executive council is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to sell or cause to be sold either as it now stands or to cause the same to be platted and subdivided into lots and sold in parcels the real estate now owned by the state known as Governor Square and more particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at a point south thirty-two degrees west thirty minutes west, one and sixty-five one hundredths chains from the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section two, township seventy-eight north range twenty-four west of the fifth principal meridian, thence north seventy-four degrees, thirty minutes east, six hundred eighty feet to a stone, thence south fifteen degrees thirty minutes east three hundred sixty feet, thence south seventy-four degrees thirty minutes west six hundred eighty feet to a stone, thence north fifteen degrees thirty minutes west three hundred sixty feet to the place of beginning, containing five and sixty one hundredths acres more or less. All proceeds derived from the sale of said real estate, except the expense of selling the same including agent's commission, if any, shall be carried into the state treasury to the credit of the capitol grounds extension and improvement fund herein created. All patents or deeds of conveyance to said above described real estate shall be executed and acknowledged by the governor in the name of the state upon resolution of the executive council authorizing such conveyance. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 7.]

SEC. 1400-t7. Payment from general fund prohibited. That no part of the purchase price of any of said grounds nor of any warrants or certificates issued in payment for the same and no part of the interest accruing thereon shall ever be paid from the general revenues or funds of the state or out of any fund or from the proceeds of any tax other than funds arising from the tax provided for herein and from the sale of the real estate herein authorized to be sold or from the proceeds or accumulations thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 8.]

SEC. 1400-t8. Warrants—collection anticipated. That for the purpose of accomplishing the earliest possible completion of the work contemplated herein and the carrying out of the plans provided for in this act the executive council may anticipate the collection of the tax herein authorized to be levied for the extension and improvement of the capitol grounds, and for that purpose may issue interest-bearing warrants or certificates carrying a rate of interest not to exceed five per cent. per annum to be denominated capitol grounds extension and improvement warrants or certificates and said warrants or certificates and interest thereon shall be secured by said assessment and levy and shall be payable out of the respective funds hereinbefore named, pledged to the payment of the same, and no warrants shall be issued in excess of taxes authorized or to be levied to secure the payment of the same. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer to collect said several funds and to hold the same separate and apart in trust for the payment of said warrants or certificates and interest and to apply the proceeds of said funds pledged for that purpose to the payment of said warrants or certificates and interest. Such warrants or certificates shall be issued in sums of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars each running not more than ten years bearing interest not exceeding five per cent. per annum, payable annually or semiannually and shall be substantially in the following form:

The state of Iowa, for value received, promises to pay to bearer .... dollars, lawful money of the United States of America, on ..... with interest on said sum from the date hereof until paid, at the rate of ..... per cent. per annum, payable ..... annually on the first day of ....., and ..... in each year, both principal and interest payable at Des Moines, Iowa. This warrant or certificate is issued by the state of Iowa pursuant to the provisions of section [nine], chapter [fourteen], of the acts of the thirty-fifth general assembly of Iowa. And it is hereby certified and recited that all acts, conditions and things required by the laws and constitution of the state of Iowa to be done precedent and in the issue of this warrant or certificate, have been properly done, happened and been performed in regular and due form, as required by law.

In testimony whereof said state, by its executive council, has caused this warrant or certificate to be signed by its chairman, and attested by its secretary, with the seal of said executive council attached this ..... day of .....

.....
Chairman of the Executive Council of the State of Iowa.

Attest:

.....
Secretary of the Executive Council of the State of Iowa.
[35 G. A., ch. 14, § 9.]

SEC. 1400-t9. Terms of warrants to be specified by executive council. That all warrants or certificates issued under the provisions of this act shall be issued pursuant to and in conformity with a resolution adopted by the executive council, which shall specify the amount authorized to be issued, purpose for which issued, the rate of interest they shall bear, and whether payable annually or semiannually, the place where the principal and interest shall be payable, and when to become due, and such other provisions, not inconsistent with law, in reference thereto, as the council shall think proper, which resolution shall be entered of record upon the minutes of the proceedings of the executive council, and a true and complete copy thereof printed on the back of each warrant or certificate (which resolution shall constitute a contract between the state and the purchasers or holders of said warrants or certificates). [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 10.]

SEC. 1400-t10. Registration of certificates by treasurer. That when warrants or certificates have been executed as aforesaid, they shall be delivered to the treasurer of state of the state of Iowa and his receipt taken therefor, who shall register the same in a book provided for that purpose, which shall show the number of each warrant or certificate, its date, date of sale, amount, date of maturity, and the name and address of the purchaser, which record shall at all times be open to the inspection of the citizens of said state. The treasurer of state of the state of Iowa shall thereupon certify upon the back of each warrant or certificate as follows:

"This warrant (or certificate) duly and properly registered is in my office this ..... day of .....

.....
Treasurer of State of the State of Iowa."

and shall stand charged on his official bond with all warrants or certificates so delivered to him and the proceeds thereof. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 11.]

SEC. 1400-t11. Sale of certificates. The treasurer of state of the state of Iowa shall, under resolution and the direction of the executive council, sell the warrants or certificates for cash on the best available terms, and the proceeds shall be applied and exclusively used as hereinbefore provided and for the purposes for which said warrants or certificates are issued. In no case shall they be sold for a less sum than their face value, and all interest accrued at the date of sale. After registration the treasurer of state of the state of Iowa shall deliver said warrants or certificates to the purchaser thereof. If, in the judgment of the executive council, it should be deemed expedient warrants or certificates may be issued direct to the vendor in payment for any property purchased under the provisions of this act. [35 G. A., ch. 14, § 12.]

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE COLLECTION OF TAXES.

SECTION 1403. Payment—installments.

Where the land is taxed as one parcel and the mortgage covers a portion only, the mortgagee cannot purchase the entire parcel at tax sale and acquire title so as to divest the owner of the balance of the tract of his title. Cone v. Wood, 108–260, 79 N. W. 86, and see notes to § 1440.

The weight of authority is that the particular remedy provided by statute for the collection of taxes is exclusive, and held that an action in equity for the enforcement of the lien of the mulct tax against the premises on which a liquor nuisance was situated could not be maintained. Crawford County v. Laub, 110–355, 81 N. W. 590. So held also as to enforcement of personal property tax under § 1406. Plymouth County v. Moore, 114–700, 87 N. W. 662.

The payment and acceptance of a tax as assessed by the assessor does not operate as an estoppel to enforce against such taxpayer an additional assessment made by the board of review. City Council v. National Loan & Inv. Co., 130–511, 107 N. W. 309.

One who makes voluntary payment of taxes cannot recover them back on the ground that they were not legal. Odendahl v. Rich, 112–182, 83 N. W. 886.

One whose title rests on forged instruments and is therefore invalid may recover of the true owner taxes paid by him under the mistaken belief as to his ownership, if such belief is not the result of his own carelessness or want of knowledge of the law, and such property may be had in an action at law. Govern v. Russ, 125–188, 100 N. W. 325.

As literal compliance with the statute in reference to the payment of taxes within a specified time is sometimes impracticable, the action of the treasurer in accordance with an established custom and method of doing business, although not strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions, will not require his removal from office for misconduct where no injury to the county was intended and where there was no design to secure personal benefit. In such a case the question of wilfulness is for the jury. State v. Meek, 148–671, 127 N. W. 1023.

SEC. 1406. Sale of personal property.

The provisions of this section as to the collection of personal property tax are exclusive of any other remedy, except as provided by statute, and a personal action cannot be maintained for such tax. Plymouth County v. Moore, 114–700, 87 N. W. 662.

The method of enforcing the lien of a tax being provided by statute, an action at law cannot be maintained against the owner of property to recover the amount thereof. Carroll County v. Ley, 127–230, 103 N. W. 101.

This section has reference only to collection of taxes by distress and sale and not to their collection by an act such as is authorized by code supp. § 1452-a. McCrary v. Lake City Elec. Light Co., 139–548, 117 N. W. 964.

SEC. 1407. Collectors—appointment of—compensation—sheriff. Immediately after the taxes become delinquent, each county treasurer shall proceed to collect the same by distress and sale of the personal property of the delinquent taxpayers, and for this purpose he may appoint one or more collectors to assist him in collecting the same. Each collector appointed shall receive for his services and expenses the sum of five per cent. on the amount of all taxes collected and paid over by him, which percentage he shall collect from the delinquent, together with the whole amount of delinquent taxes and interest; and pay the same to the treasurer at the end of each month, and in the discharge of his duties as collector, should it become necessary to make the delinquent taxes by distress and sale, or should no collector be appointed, or should the collector fail to institute proceedings to collect said delinquent taxes, the treasurer shall place the same in the hands of the sheriff, or a constable, who shall proceed to collect the same, and either shall be entitled to receive the same compensation, in addition to the five per cent., as constables are entitled to receive for the sale of property on execution. And the boards of supervisors may in their discretion authorize the appointment by the treasurer of one or more collectors to assist in the collection of such delinquent personal property tax as the board may designate and may pay such collector as full compensation for all services rendered and expenses incurred a sum not to exceed ten per cent. of the amount collected which sum shall in no event be paid or allowed until all such taxes collected have been paid over to the county treasurer by such collector. [33 G. A., ch. 89, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 53; C. '73, § 859.]

The county cannot contract with the collector that he is to receive a larger sum than that specified, nor can he recover his statutory compensation after receiving under contract a larger percentage than authorized by law. Any amount paid under such contract in excess of the statutory compensation may be recovered back. Massie v. Harrison County, 129–277, 105 N. W. 507.

To support such a contract it is not competent to show that the collector agreed to compile a delinquent tax list, as the compilation of such list pertained to the duties of the treasurer's office. Ibid.

SEC. 1407-1a. Compensation deducted ratably from the several funds. The amount allowed as compensation to such collector shall be deducted ratably from the several funds to which such taxes so collected by the collector belong. [33 G. A., ch. 89, § 2.]

SEC. 1407-a. Discovery of property withheld from taxation—contract—notice—appeal—repeal. That the law as it appears in sections fourteen hundred and seven-a, fourteen hundred and seven-b, fourteen hundred and seven-c, fourteen hundred and seven-d, and fourteen hundred and seven-e, supplement to the code, 1907, be and the same is hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 66, § 2.] [28 G. A., ch. 50, § 1.]

In general: This act is not unconstitutional as embracing more than one subject matter or subject matter not embraced in the title. Beresheim v. Arnd, 117–83, 90 N. W. 506.

The provisions of this act are not to be construed as impliedly repealing code § 1374. Lambe v. McCormick, 116–169, 89 N. W. 241.

What property: Before the county treasurer may act with reference to the enforcement of taxes for property wrongfully withheld from assessment, it must appear that the property withheld was subject to taxation in the county. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123–591, 99 N. W. 205.

Where a savings bank has been in fact assessed, the treasurer has no authority to make an additional assessment for the difference between the value of the stock as assessed and its real value. The statutory provision for assessment of omited property by the assessor has no application to those cases where property, the subject of taxation, has been in fact entered on the assessment books and has not been withheld, overlooked, or for any other cause, not listed. German Sav. Bank v. Trowbridge, 124–514, 100 N. W. 333.

It is no defense to a proceeding to collect taxes on property omitted from taxation in the proper taxing district that it has been in fact taxed for the year in question in another county, but if it has been taxed in the same county, though in another district than that in which it should have been taxed, the county is estopped by receiving the tax actually imposed from insisting on further taxation. Snakenberg v. Stein, 126–650, 102 N. W. 533.

If the item of property charged to have been omitted has in fact been listed and the value fixed thereon by the proper officers, no recovery of taxes therefor can be had. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 128–230, 103 N. W. 379.

An assessment by the treasurer cannot be sustained except upon proof of the ownership of taxable property, and that it was withheld from taxation. Gibson v. Clark, 131–325, 108 N. W. 527.

Proof of ownership at a subsequent date is not proof of ownership as of the date when it is alleged the property was withheld from taxation. Ibid.

Where the assessor has made an assessment without fraud on his part, or concealment on the part of the property owner, and no steps have been taken to review such assessment in the manner provided by statute through the board of equalization, it becomes a finality, and the property thus assessed cannot be reassessed as omitted property for the same year, though the valuation by the assessor through mistake of law is inadequate. People's Savings Bank v. Layman, 134 Fed. 635.

Contracts: Prior to the enactment of this chapter the board of supervisors could make a valid agreement for services rendered or to be rendered in the discovery of omitted property, for a reasonable compensation. Reed v. Cunningham, 121–555, 96 N. W. 1119.

While the board of supervisors may contract with an attorney to prosecute action against the owners of property omitted from assessment, it cannot contract with an attorney to render services in collecting such taxes for a percentage of the amount collected in addition to the amount which the county may pay under the provisions of this section. Heath v. Albrook, 123–559, 98 N. W. 619.

Any amount paid to an attorney under such illegal contract may be recovered back. Ibid.

Further as to contracts, see § 1374 and notes to that section in supplement.

Although tax ferrets may have no authority to deal with taxes regularly assessed and which are not the subject of controversy, they undoubtedly have authority to settle with property owners for the amount they should pay on property omitted from taxation and if in so doing they take into account the amount of taxes already assessed, there is no reason why the county should be permitted to repudiate the settlement. Barthell v. Hermanson, 138 N. W. 1108..

The county or its officers, having taken the benefit of such settlement, do so subject to the burdens involved therein. Ibid.

Notice: The treasurer must give notice to the owner of the proceeding by him to enforce payment of taxes on property omitted from assessment. Thornburg v. Cardell, 123–313, 95 N. W. 239, 98 N. W. 791.

Notice by the treasurer to the taxpayer to appear and show cause why he should not be assessed for omitted property is neither an assessment of such property nor a demand for payment of the taxes such as to render a subsequent voluntary payment of the taxes in pursuance of such notice and claim recoverable as having been illegally exacted. Kehe v. Blackhawk County, 125–549, 101 N. W. 281.

The agent of the county, sending out a notice as to the assessment by the treasurer of omitted property, is not liable in damages as for libel, although the property owner has not in fact been guilty of any fraud or perjury. O'Connell v. Shontz, 126–709, 102 N. W. 807.

The notice by the treasurer to appear and make objection to the proposed listing and assessment of omitted property for taxation may designate any reasonable place which may be at his office or anywhere else within the county. In re Appeal of Seaman, 135–543, 113 N. W. 354.

Where the property owner responding to the notice fixing the time for hearing of complaint is referred to the tax ferret to whom his objections are made, such objections are to be considered on appeal. Murrow v. Heath, 146–347, 125 N. W. 259.

The objection may be oral or in writing but need not be formal, though essential to a review in the district court. Ibid.

Listing: A notice by the treasurer to the taxpayer is not an assessment of taxes against him on property claimed to have been omitted from taxation. Kehe v. Blackhawk County, 125–549, 101 N. W. 281.

Nor is the demand made by the treasurer for payment of taxes on omitted property such an assessment as is contemplated. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

The county treasurer need not list omitted property for taxation on the day specified in the notice to the taxpayer, but may do so within a reasonable time thereafter. Snakenberg v. Stein, 126–650, 102 N. W. 533.

The listing of the property and assessment of the tax by the treasurer is not a judgment, nor does it in any way affect the bar of the statute as to actions for the collection of taxes upon omitted property. It is simply a condition precedent to the right of action. Shearer v. Citizens' Bank, 129–564, 105 N. W. 1025.

Where the person in possession of the personal property of a nonresident is notified to appear and show cause why the property in his possession should not be assessed, and he appears and denies that he has in possession or under his control as agent the property in question, the treasurer may assess the property to him as agent without specifying the name of the principal. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 131–605, 109 N. W. 212.

The determination by the county treasurer that property has been omitted, and ascertainment of the amount of tax due thereon, is a substitute for the assessment required by general provisions of the statute, and the treasurer should make the fact of such determination appear of record in his office. But the entry may be made by another under his direction. In re Morgan's Estate, 125–247, 101 N. W. 127.

The statute as it now stands contemplates the listing of an assessment by the treasurer after the delinquent has been offered an opportunity to be heard and exacts an entry in the tax list by the treasurer, either in a book delivered to him by the auditor or another kept for that purpose. Such entry constitutes the final determination of the treasurer. Woodbury County v. Talley, 153–28, 129 N. W. 967.

Appeal: No formal pleadings are necessary before the treasurer on objection to the assessment of omitted property nor on the appeal to the district court from such assessment, and the general allegation that items of moneys and credits scheduled and proposed to be listed and assessed are not items for which the complaining party is liable to assessment for the years specified is sufficient. Upon appeal the complaining party is entitled to have determined every question which the treasurer was called upon to determine with reference to liability of complainant to assessment on moneys and credits for years specified. Schoonover v. Petcina, 126–261, 100 N. W. 490.

The requirement for notice implies the right of the property owner to appear and make known his objections, and the duty of the treasurer to consider and pass upon the same. But it was not intended that the procedure be invested with all the formalities which pertain to an action in court. Gibson v. Cooley, 129–529, 105 N. W. 1011.

On the appeal, however, the district court is called upon to determine only such objections as have been in some manner raised before the treasurer. Ibid.

The burden of proof is upon the person seeking to reverse or set aside the treasurer's assessment. Ibid.

The treasurer cannot appeal from his own action in refusing to make an assessment on omitted property on the application of persons acting under contract with the county to discover omitted property. In re Assessment of Farmers' L. & T. Co., 129–588, 105 N. W. 1023.

Jurisdiction is conferred on the district court by the serving and filing of the notice of appeal, and the introduction in evidence of the treasurer's assessment is equivalent to a transcript of the assessment. Murrow v. Heath, 146–347, 125 N. W. 259.

Even after the treasurer has entered property for taxation on notice to the taxpayer and his failure to attend, if later in the same day such party appears before him desiring in good faith to show cause why his property should not be listed, the treasurer may set aside his entry and make another from which an appeal will lie. Ream v. Brown, 153–301, 133 N. W. 714.

In order to authorize a review of the finding of the treasurer or auditor, objection to the assessment must be interposed before such officer. But there is no requirement that the objection be reduced to writing or inserted as part of the assessment in order that it appear in the transcript filed by the clerk of the district court on appeal. Dowling v. Webster County, 154–603, 134 N. W. 870.

Other remedy: An attempt at assessment by the treasurer of property not subject to assessment in the county is void and the owner is not required to resort to an appeal from the assessment, but may attack it collaterally. Layman v. Iowa Telephone Co., 123–591, 99 N. W. 205.

The threatened action of the treasurer in proceeding to assess omitted property is not to be enjoined before he has proceeded to act. The findings of the treasurer are not conclusive, but any error therein may be corrected on appeal. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 128–230, 103 N. W. 379.

Where the treasurer is acting within the scope of his statutory power in taxing property as omitted, the correctness of his action is to be determined on appeal and not by injunction, nor is he liable in an action for damages for an erroneous exercise of power within the scope of his judicial or quasi-judicial capacity. Stevens v. Carroll, 130–463, 104 N. W. 433.

An appeal being provided for an action in equity to restrain the treasurer from acting will not lie unless it be made clearly to appear that an assessment by him would be absolutely illegal and void. Security Savings Bank v. Carroll, 131–605, 109 N. W. 212.

The treasurer having authority to assess omitted personal property to an agent in possession and control thereof for a nonresident, his assessment thereon is not illegal and void, and the sufficiency of the evidence on which the assessment is made can be called in question only by an appeal. Ibid.

If the treasurer makes an assessment within his jurisdiction the taxpayer can only be heard to complain of error in his finding by an appeal. He cannot set up such error by way of defense in an action by the treasurer to recover the taxes so assessed. Judy v. National State Bank, 133–252, 110 N. W. 605.

If the taxpayer fraudulently conceals his property he cannot rely by way of adjudication upon the assessment made by the assessor. Ibid.

If it appears that the taxpayer had property omitted from assessment, the treasurer has jurisdiction and any question as to the amount of such omitted property should be raised by appeal and not in an equitable action to enjoin the enforcement of the assessment made by the treasurer. Bednar v. Carroll, 138–338, 116 N. W. 315.

The parties to a hearing before the treasurer as to an assessment of property omitted from taxation are bound to take notice thereof and if dissatisfied therewith, their remedy is by appeal. Not having done so equity will afford them no relief. Saar v. Carson, 145–525, 124 N. W. 204.

Voluntary payment: One who, being charged by the treasurer or his agents for the collection of taxes on omitted property, with taxes on account of such property, voluntarily pays the same, cannot afterwards recover back the taxes so paid on proof that he was not liable therefor. Kehe v. Blackhawk County, 125–549, 101 N. W. 281; In re Morgan's Estate, 125–247, 101 N. W. 127.

SEC. 1407-e. Existing contracts—repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 66, § 2.] [28 G. A., ch. 50, § 5.]

[See § 1407-a. EDITOR.]

SEC. 1407-f. Contracts for discovery of unassessed property prohibited—acts in conflict repealed. It shall be unlawful for the council of any city or town, including cities under special charter and the commission plan, or for the board of supervisors of any county, to employ or contract with any person, corporation or firm to assist the proper officers in the discovery of property not listed or assessed for taxation as required by law. Any acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [34 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.]

SEC. 1409. Taxes certified to another county.

It is only when a taxpayer has removed from the county, leaving no property therein out of which the taxes can be made, that certification of his taxes to another county is authorized. Union Cent. L. Ins. Co. v. Chapin, 113–411, 85 N. W. 791.

SEC. 1413. When taxes delinquent—penalties.

Interest and penalties collected by the treasurer for nonpayment of paving certificates should be turned over to the holder of the certificates and not to the city. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Webster County, 143–255, 121 N. W. 1072.

SEC. 1415. Apportionment—recovery on treasurer's bond of interest or penalty misapplied. That section fourteen hundred fifteen of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"On or before the tenth day of each month the treasurer shall apportion all taxes and interest on same collected during the preceding month among the several funds to which it belongs according to the number of mills levied for each fund and enter the same upon his cash account, and report the amount of each tax and interest collected on same to the county auditor who shall charge him in each fund with the same. Any interest or penalty on delinquent taxes apportioned or transferred to any fund other than the fund upon which same was collected, together with a penalty of ten per cent. and interest at six per cent. on the aggregate from the time such tax was due and payable, may be recovered in a civil action brought against the county treasurer and his bondsmen by any person in control of the fund affected thereby." [33 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.] [C. '73, § 868.]

SEC. 1417. Refunding erroneous tax.

This section has reference to the county officers, and not to the recovery against a city of taxes collected by a county officer on certification from the city. Hawkeye L. & B. Co. v. Marion, 110–468, 81 N. W. 718.

Taxes volutarily paid under a mistake of law cannot be recovered back. Ahlers v. Estherville, 130–272, 104 N. W. 453.

The taxpayer who voluntarily appears and without protest pays taxes on property which he is charged with having omitted or concealed in returning his property for taxation, cannot recover back the taxes thus paid on proof that he was not properly chargeable with reference thereto. Kehe v. Blackhawk County, 125–549, 101 N. W. 281.

After payment of taxes a portion of which are due and collectible, the taxpayer cannot maintain an action to recover back another portion erroneously assessed. Ibid.

One who, being a purchaser of goods, in order to prevent their seizure for alleged taxes, pays such taxes assessed to the seller, which are invalid, cannot recover the same from the seller. Warfield-P.-H. Co. v. Averill Groc. Co., 119–75, 93 N. W. 80.

The right of action for taxes subsequently paid by a tax purchaser on property as to which it is found that the sale is invalid is barred in five years from the time of payment of such taxes, and is not extended by the provisions of code § 3448, with reference to an action based on fraud or mistake. Lonsdale v. Carroll County, 105–452, 75 N. W. 332.

The right to demand repayment of taxes illegally exacted arises at once, and the statute of limitations runs from the time of payment. The party making such payment cannot insist that the running of the statute be postponed until the legal character of the tax has been judicially determined. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118–582, 92 N. W. 857.

Under this section a taxpayer may by action recover back taxes found to have been erroneously or illegally exacted or paid, even though paid voluntarily and without protest. Slimmer v. Chickasaw County, 140–448, 118 N. W. 779.

But where the taxpayer has by his own act procured the taxation of his property in one county by mistake of law he cannot recover back the taxes paid on such property, although it subsequently appears that it was properly subject to taxation and taxed in another county. Ibid.

The law authorizes the holder of a tax sale certificate to protect his interest therein by paying the subsequent taxes, and this section expressly provides for the refunding of taxes erroneously or illegally exacted or paid. Howard v. Emmet County, 140–527, 118 N. W. 882.

In an action founded on this section there is no right to recover interest on the amount to be refunded. Home Sav. Bank v. Morris, 141–560, 120 N. W. 100.

This section has no application to the refunding of taxes paid to the county treasurer on special assessments for city improvements. First Nat. Bank v. Kelly, 139 N. W. 564.

Where the county has voluntarily refunded taxes as improperly collected, it cannot afterwards on a contention that such refund was erroneous, recover back the taxes so refunded. Adair County v. Johnston, 142 N. W. 210.

SEC. 1418. Tax sale—when and how made.

Irregularity, such as over assessment, will not render a tax void, nor authorize the interposition of a court of equity to restrain its enforcement. Collins v. Keokuk, 118–30, 91 N. W. 791.

Where there is an ambiguity on the face of the record as to whether taxes have been paid on the property sold, parol evidence is admissible with reference to the fact. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

After the treasurer has on complaint of the property owner made an entry of cancellation of a sale he cannot afterwards by erasing such entry render a deed, executed in pursuance of the sale, valid. Burchardt v. Scofield, 141–336, 117 N. W. 1061.

SEC. 1419. Notice. Notice of the time and place of such sale shall be given by the treasurer, and shall contain a description of each separate tract to be sold as taken from the tax list, the amount of taxes for which it is liable delinquent for each year, and the amount of penalty, interest and costs thereon, the name of the owner, if known, or the person, if any, to whom it is taxed, by publication in some newspaper in the county, once each week, for three consecutive weeks, the last of which shall be at least one week before the day of sale, and by immediately posting a copy of the first publication thereof at the door of the courthouse, if there be one, if not, at the door of the place where the last term of district court was held. The compensation for such publication shall not exceed twenty cents for each description, and shall be paid by the county. The amount paid therefor shall be collected as a part of the costs of sale and paid into the county treasury. If the treasurer cannot procure the publication of the notice for the sum herein fixed, then the notice may be given by posting the same in four of the most public places in the county, to be selected by him, for four weeks, and filing a copy thereof with the auditor before the day of sale, with his verified statement thereon that it had been posted as and for the time herein required, and that he could not obtain a publication thereof at the legal rate. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 194, § 3; C. '73, §§ 872–4, 3833; R. § 764; C. '51, § 498.]

The provision for posting notices of a tax sale "on the door of the county courthouse" held to be satisfied by a posting thereof on a bulletin board provided for such purposes at the courthouse door. Hoskins v. Iowa Land Co., 121–299, 96 N. W. 977.

Publication of notice in a particular case held sufficient. Davis v. Magoun, 109–308, 80 N. W. 423.

SEC. 1421. Advertisement.

The term "advertisement" here used is meant to include both publication and posting, and irregularity in the posting will not affect the validity of the sale. Davis v. Magoun, 109–308, 80 N. W. 423.

The provision that no irregularity or infirmity in the advertisement shall affect the legality of the sale is applicable to any irregularity as to the place or manner of posting the notice at the courthouse door. Hoskins v. Iowa Land Co., 121–299, 96 N. W. 977.

SEC. 1422. Offer for sale.

The sale of two lots in a lump is void. Hintrager v. McElhinny, 112–325, 82 N. W. 1008, 83 N. W. 1063.

SEC. 1423. Bid—purchaser.

It is of the highest importance to the owners that the bidders know from the description what is being offered for sale. In a particular case held that a description was not sufficient which described the property as eighteen acres "part of section," etc., with no specification as to the exact boundaries or designation by which the particular part of the section could be identified. Armour v. Officer, 116–675, 88 N. W. 1058.

SEC. 1425. Sale of property remaining unsold.

Under the provisions of this section, land which is subject to a lien for taxes and remains unsold for want of bidders, may be sold by the treasurer for a portion of the tax, but redemption from such sale can only be made by the payment of the full amount of the tax which is a lien on such property. (See code § 1437.) Everson v. Woodbury County, 118–99, 91 N. W. 9.

The purchaser at a tax sale for taxes, including special assessment for street improvements certified to the county auditor by the officers of the city, acquires title free from the lien of any installments of special assessments not certified or which have not been brought forward so as to continue to be a lien on the property. Fitzgerald v. Sioux City, 125–396, 101 N. W. 268.

SEC. 1426. Resale.

The intention is that payment for each parcel or portion sold shall be made immediately upon the completion of the sale, and held that a third person paying the amount bid by the purchaser could not recover from the purchaser the amount of his bid. Sheldon v. Steele, 114–616, 87 N. W. 683.

It will not render the sale illegal if the treasurer allows the bidder to postpone payment of the bid until after the conclusion of the sale. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Wall, 129–651, 106 N. W. 160.

SEC. 1432. Certificate of purchase. The treasurer shall prepare, sign, and deliver to the purchaser of any real estate sold for the nonpayment of taxes a certificate of purchase, describing it as shown in the record of sales, giving the part of each tract or lot sold, the amount of each kind of tax, interest and costs for each tract or lot as described in such record, and that payment has been made therefor. If any person is the purchaser of more than one parcel, he may have the whole included in one certificate, but each parcel shall be separately described. And in case of loss of said certificate of purchase, the owner thereof, as appears on record, may, by filing an affidavit of such loss or destruction with the county treasurer, receive a duplicate thereof, which shall take the place of the original certificate and have the same force and effect in law and be subject to the same rules and regulations. [32 G. A., ch. 61, § 1; C. '73, § 887; R. § 777; C. '51, § 503.]

The certificates are intended to be delivered when the sale is completed, and if the money bid is not then paid, a new sale should be made under the provisions of code § 1426. Sheldon v. Steele, 114–616, 87 N. W. 683.

Mere delay in issuing the certificate of purchase, no prejudice to the owner being shown, will not invalidate the sale. Fisk v. Keokuk, 144–187, 122 N. W. 896.

SEC. 1433. Assignment. Section fourteen hundred thirty-three of the code is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

"The certificate of purchase shall be assignable by endorsement and entry in the register of tax sales in the office of county treasurer of the county from which said certificate issued, and when such assignment is so entered in the register of tax sales in the treasurer's office, it shall vest in the assignee or his legal representatives all the right and title of the assignor. The statement in the treasurer's deed of the fact of the assignment shall be presumptive evidence thereof." [32 G. A., ch. 61, § 2; C. '73, § 888; R. § 778.]

No notation of the assignment of the certificate is necessary provided the person to whom the deed is made is in fact the holder of the certificate. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

The statutory presumption is that the grantee in the deed bought the land at the sale or succeeded to the rights of the bidder. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Wall, 129–651, 106 N. W. 160.

One who takes the certificate by assignment is subject to notice of all infirmities existing therein. Young v. Iowa Toilers' Protective Association, 106–447, 76 N. W. 822.

One who by reason of his interest in the property is bound to pay the taxes, cannot take an assignment of the certificate of sale of the property. Such assignment amounts to a redemption. Blumenthal v. Culver, 116–326, 89 N. W. 1116.

SEC. 1436. Redemption—how effected. Real estate sold under the provisions of this chapter may be redeemed at any time before the right of redemption is cut off, by the payment to the auditor, to be held by him subject to the order of the purchaser, of the amount for which the same was sold and eight per cent. of such amount added as a penalty, with eight per cent. interest per annum on the whole amount thus made from the day of sale, and the amount of all taxes, interest and costs paid by the purchaser or his assignee for any subsequent year or years, with a similar penalty added as before on the amount of the payment for each subsequent year, and eight per cent. per annum on the whole of such amount or amounts from the day or days of payment; but the penalty for nonpayment of taxes of any subsequent year or years shall not attach, unless the same shall have remained unpaid until the first day of April after they become due and have become delinquent, nor shall said penalties apply to taxes voted in aid of the construction of any railroad. In redeeming from a sale of a leasehold interest in agricultural college land, the amount to be paid shall include any amount paid by the holder of the certificate as interest or principal due by the terms of the lease or otherwise to prevent a forfeiture thereof, as provided by law, and for which proper voucher shall have been filed with the auditor, with interest thereon at eight per cent. per annum from date of payment, which amount shall be paid by the auditor to the holder of the certificate, and the certificate of redemption shall show the amount so paid by the party redeeming. [27 G. A., ch. 35, § 1; 19 G. A., ch. 45; C. '73, § 890; R. § 779; C. '51, § 505.]

The term "owner" as used in determining who may redeem from a tax sale is construed to include mortgagees, judgment creditors and holders of contingent interests; and a lien holder thus having a right to redeem cannot by a purchase or taking an assignment of a certificate of purchase acquire title as against a senior lien holder. Lane v. Wright, 121–376, 96 N. W. 902.

A judgment creditor may redeem from tax sale the land on which his judgment is a lien. Swan v. Harvey, 117–58, 90 N. W. 489.

A mortgagee has the right to redeem the mortgaged property from tax sale. Busch v. Hall, 119–279, 93 N. W. 356.

Where one of several lien holders upon land sold at tax sale takes an assignment of the certificate of purchase, he is to be treated as having redeemed from such sale for the benefit of all the lien holders. Equity will not permit one lien holder to absorb the common security by purchase at a tax sale. Lane v. Wright, 121–376, 96 N. W. 902.

Where a person, entitled by decree to redeem from tax sale, deposited the money with the clerk and moved to compel a conveyance, and was unsuccessful, and thereupon withdrew his money, and the tax title claimant by himself and grantee remained in possession for fifteen years, held that the right to redeem was thereby abandoned. Cooper v. Cook, 108–301, 79 N. W. 71.

The issuing of a deed before the expiration of the statutory period cannot affect the owner's rights, nor entitle him to redeem in equity from the tax sale, where he had not attempted to make statutory redemption within the time allowed him for doing so. It is not the execution or nonexecution of the deed which fixes the time within which redemption must be made, but the completed service according to law and the filing of the notice of the expiration of the right to redeem. Wood v. Coad, 120–111, 94 N. W. 264.

One who has voluntarily paid a tax, although under protest, cannot recover the amount thereof from one who has redeemed the property from tax sale. Anderson v. Cameron, 122–183, 97 N. W. 1085.

One who by reason of his interest in the property is under obligation to pay the taxes cannot acquire title thereto by tax deed, nor take an assignment of the certificate of sale. Such a transaction amounts to a redemption. Blumenthal v. Culver, 116–326, 89 N. W. 1116.

The husband of the owner of land has no such title or interest therein as to authorize redemption by him. Hart v. Delphey, 157– —, 136 N. W. 702.

SEC. 1437. Redemption from sale for part of tax.

Terms of redemption: When land has been sold as provided in code § 1425, for a portion only of the tax which is a lien thereon, the owner in making redemption must pay the full amount of the taxes legally due. Everson v. Woodbury County, 118–99, 91 N. W. 900.

The board of supervisors has no authority to allow redemption in such case for less than the full amount of the taxes due. Ibid.

SEC. 1439. Minors and lunatics.

Under this section, providing that real property of any minor or lunatic sold at tax sale may be redeemed within one year after disability is removed in the manner provided by code § 1440, that is, by equitable action, held that the action by the heirs of an insane person whose real estate had been sold for taxes before his death, and who continued insane from the time of such sale until his death, might be commenced within one year after the death of such insane person, but that the commencement of the action was to be determined by the actual service of notice, as provided by code § 3514, and not by the placing of the notice in the hands of the sheriff with intent that it be immediately served, as provided by code § 3450, relating to the sufficiency of the commencement of action for the purpose of avoiding the general bar of the statute of limitations. The one year provision in the section of the code relating to redemption is not a limitation upon the action, but a condition of the exercise of the right. Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to show that one whose lands had been sold for taxes was at the time insane, and that his heirs were therefore entitled to redeem the lands from such tax sale. Ibid.

SEC. 1440. Equitable action.

In general: Where proper notice of expiration of period for redemption has not been served, the property owner may have relief under this section, although the deed has in fact been issued. Hintrager v. McElhinny, 112–325, 82 N. W. 1008, 83 N. W. 1063; Swan v. Harvey, 117–58, 90 N. W. 489.

The action is deemed commenced when the notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service, the same rule being applicable as under the general statute of limitations. (See code § 3450.) Smith v. Callanan, 103–218, 72 N. W. 513.

Ordinarily the owner whose land has been sold for taxes must make redemption within three years from the date of sale and cannot insist on that right after the period has expired, even though no deed has been issued. Bitzer v. Becke, 120–66, 94 N. W. 287.

But where, by reason of mistake of law, the owner supposed that he was entitled to redeem his homestead from tax sale on payment of the taxes on the homestead alone, although it had been sold for the entire taxes due by him on his property, and he had commenced an equitable action to secure such redemption, offering to pay the amount of taxes which should be found to be due on his homestead, held that he might be allowed, by order of court, to make redemption after the expiration of the statutory period, although the court found that such redemption could be made only on payment of the entire amount of taxes for which the property had been sold. Ibid.

One who seeks to make equitable redemption must show that he was the owner of or had an interest in the property. Petersborough Sav. Bank v. Des Moines Sav. Bank, 110–519, 81 N. W. 786.

Where right to redeem from a tax deed has been decreed the time within which redemption may be made is a mere incident to the enforcement of the decree, and though the district court loses jurisdiction on appeal from such decree, it still has authority to extend the period of redemption. Swan v. Harvey, 123–192, 98 N. W. 641.

One who seeks to redeem in an equitable action on the ground that no proper notice of the expiration of the period of redemption has been given is not required to show payment of taxes. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. Pond, 128–600, 105 N. W. 119.

Under the provision that when the real estate of a minor or lunatic is sold for taxes the same may be redeemed at any time within one year after removal of the disability in an action in equity brought for that purpose, the right to relief is a right granted to be exercised by bringing action within one year from the removal of the disability, and the action must be in fact commenced within the period prescribed. It is not enough that notice of such action be placed in the hands of the sheriff for service as provided by code § 3450, which prescribes what shall be deemed the commencement of an action with reference to the general statute of limitations. Hawley v. Griffin, 121–667, 92 N. W. 113, 97 N. W. 86.

One who has been made defendant in a proceeding involving the title to property and asserts a title by tax deed prior to the tax deed relied upon by plaintiff, is not required to do more than show the invalidity of plaintiff's tax deed. National Surety Co. v. Walker, 148–157, 125 N. W. 338.

A deed which does not describe the property so as to identify it is void. Mahaska County v. Bennett, 150–216, 129 N. W. 838.

The holder of a valid outstanding mortgage may redeem if the deed is prematurely issued. Wood v. Yearous, 140 N. W. 362.

Under the evidence held that there was not such possession of real property as entitled one who had inherited it from his father to notice of expiration of the time of redemption. Reynolds v. Western Securities Co., 140 N. W. 371.

Amount to be paid: In an equitable action by a minor to redeem from a tax deed, if there is no showing as to the amount of taxes paid or of any other of the material items necessary to a computation of the sum to which the defendant is entitled, the case will be remanded to the trial court in order that these matters may be shown. Bemis v. Plato, 119–127, 93 N. W. 83.

In an action to redeem from the deed on the ground that the redemption notice was defective, the plaintiff should be required to pay the amount paid by the purchaser with penalty and interest on the total amount at eight per cent. and may be allowed a reasonable time within which to make such payment. Barcroft v. Mann, 125–530, 101 N. W. 276.

Rents and profits: Where a property owner was found entitled to redeem in equity, held that the defendant should be charged with the rents received and with interest on the amount received each year, and credited with the amount paid at the tax sale with interest and penalty and with the amounts paid for subsequent taxes with interest, and also for amounts paid for repairs and care of the property with interest. Hintrager v. McElhinny, 112–325, 82 N. W. 1008, 83 N. W. 1063.

Where it appears that the rents and profits received by the person in possession are at least equal to the amount which should be paid in making redemption, a decree may be entered without compelling plaintiff to pay anything, and in a particular case held that as the case must be reversed it would be remanded with permission to the person in possession to present his claim for improvements to the lower court for allowance. Hall v. Cardell, 111–206, 82 N. W. 503.

Who may acquire title: Where the agent for the owner of land is not chargeable with the payment of taxes, he may, after his discharge as agent, acquire title to such land from one who has secured a tax title thereon. Bemis v. Plato, 119–127, 93 N. W. 83.

A person having such interest in land as entitles him to redeem from a tax sale cannot by taking a tax title eliminate the rights of others jointly interested with him in the property, as persons thus jointly interested may in equity redeem from a tax title thus acquired. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130–513, 107 N. W. 305.

One who is under obligation to pay taxes upon the property or who has money of another in his possession for the purpose of paying such taxes cannot acquire a tax title as against other interested parties. Young v. Iowa Toilers' Protective Association, 106–447, 76 N. W. 822.

A mortgagee has the right to pay taxes and cannot by purchase at a tax sale defeat a senior mortgage nor acquire title against mortgagor. Cone v. Wood, 108–260, 79 N. W. 86.

A mortgagee alleging that a tax deed was fraudulently obtained through a transaction which amounted to a payment of the taxes by those under obligation to discharge the tax lien, may have the title acquired under such tax sale declared invalid as against him. Busch v. Hall, 119–279, 93 N. W. 356.

One who takes title to property in extinguishment of indebtedness evidenced by one of two or more notes secured by mortgage on such property excepting the liability of the property for the payment of the other notes cannot subsequently by acquiring a tax title to the premises cut out the rights of the holders of the other notes and the latter may redeem from the holder of such tax title. Gilman v. Heitman, 137–336, 113 N. W. 932.

Mere relationship as prospective heir to the owner is not sufficient to render fraudulent the acquisition of a tax title by such prospective heir. Wilson v. Godfrey, 145–696, 124 N. W. 875.

The agent of the owner of property cannot, by purchase of a tax certificate, acquire a tax title as against the owner of such property. Hoyt v. Brown, 153–324, 133 N. W. 905.

Concurrent owners: A tenant in common cannot acquire a valid tax title to property owned in common as against his cotenant. Funson v. Bradt, 105–471, 75 N. W. 337.

A tenant in common cannot allow the property to go to tax sale and cut off the interest of his cotenant by taking a tax deed, as between him and his cotenant such acquisition of title constitutes a redemption. Crawford v. Meis, 123–610, 99 N. W. 186.

But this rule has no application to the acquisition of such title by a remainderman. Ibid.

A life tenant is charged with the duty of paying taxes on the property and cannot, by collusively permitting the same to be sold and thereby acquiring a tax title either in his own name or in the name of another, cut off the rights of the remainderman. As against a tax title thus acquired the remainderman is entitled to have a redemption in equity. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130–513, 107 N. W. 305.

SEC. 1441. Notice of expiration of right of redemption. After two years and nine months from the date of sale, the holder of the certificate of purchase may cause to be served upon the person in possession of such real estate, and also upon the person in whose name the same is taxed, if such person resides in the county where the land is situated, in the manner provided for the service of original notices, a notice signed by him, his agent or attorney, stating the date of sale, the description of the property sold, the name of the purchaser, and that the right of redemption will expire and a deed for the land be made unless redemption is made within ninety days from the completed service thereof. Service may be made upon nonresidents of the county by publishing the same, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in some newspaper of said county, or by personal service thereof elsewhere in the same manner original notices may be served; but any such nonresident may in writing appoint a resident of the county in which said land is situated an agent, and file said appointment with the treasurer of said county, who shall forthwith record the same in a record kept in his office therefor, and index the same, after which personal service of said notice shall be made upon said agent. Service shall be complete only after an affidavit has been filed with the treasurer, showing the making of the service, the manner thereof, the time when and place where made, and under whose direction the same was made; such affidavit to be made by the holder of the certificate or by his agent or attorney, and in either of the latter cases stating that such affiant is the agent or attorney, as the case may be, of the holder of such certificate; which affidavit shall be filed by the treasurer and entered upon the sale book opposite the entry of the sale, and said record or affidavit shall be presumptive evidence of the completed service of said notice, and the right of redemption shall not expire until ninety days after service is complete. Any person knowingly and wilfully swearing falsely to any fact or statement contained in said affidavit shall be guilty of perjury. The cost of serving the notice and affidavit of publication shall be added to the anount necessary to redeem. The fee for serving the notice shall be the same as for service of an original notice, including copy fee and mileage. The treasurer shall, upon the filing of proof of service and statement of costs, forthwith report the same in writing to the auditor, who shall enter it in the sale book against the proper tract of real estate. The holder of the certificate of sale or his agent may report in writing to the county auditor the amount of costs incurred in giving such notice, and the auditor shall enter the same in the sale book as aforesaid, and no redemption shall be complete until such costs are paid. [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 3; 25 G. A., ch. 81; C. '73, § 894; R. § 781.]

Notice necessary: The title holder is entitled to have a tax deed set aside which had been issued without notice of the expiration of the period for redemption. Grimes v. Ellyson, 130–286, 105 N. W. 418.

The provision as to notice to the owner is not applicable where the person owning the property at the time of the tax sale is deceased. In such case service of notice is to be made as though the property had been assessed and taxed to an unknown owner. Ibid.

The requirement for notice is limited to the person in possession of the premises in whose name the property is assessed or taxed, and proof of service upon the real owner is not sufficient. Ibid.

Unless the right of redemption be terminated by proper notice the issuance of a treasurer's deed is no obstacle to the exercise of the right, but it must be asserted by an action as provided in the preceding section. Swan v. Harvey, 117–58, 90 N. W. 489.

The authority of the treasurer to issue the deed is dependent on the service of redemption notice upon the person to whom the land is taxed and the person in possession, and in the absence of such notice the deed is void and the statutory limitation does not run in his favor. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Kelley, 105–106, 74 N. W. 935.

A notice of expiration of the time for redemption directed to a railway by the initials of its name, such railway being in possession of the property, held not to be sufficient in the absence of evidence showing that the railway was commonly known and customarily referred to by such abbreviation. Ibid.

Insufficiency of the notice given of the expiration of the period of redemption may be made a ground of attack on the deed. Pease v. Globe Realty Co., 141–482, 119 N. W. 975.

The description in the notice must not be ambiguous or misleading but must point out with reasonable certainty the property of which the purchaser means to demand a conveyance. Wallace v. Weld, 145–710, 124 N. W. 789.

Failure to serve valid notice of the expiration of the right to redeem prevents the application of the requirements of code §§ 1445 and 1448 as to showing of payment of taxes and limitation of action attacking the title. Neilan v. Unity Inv. Co., 147–677, 126 N. W. 947.

The description in a particular case held to be insufficient in the notice to cut off the right of redemption. Wood v. Yearous, 140 N. W. 362.

By publication: Where the land was taxed to M. K. G., and there was no such person in the county at the time for serving notice of expiration of the period of redemption, service by publication was held sufficient, although the premises were in the possession of K. G., who was a resident of the county. Hawkeye Loan & Brokerage Co. v. Gordon, 115–561, 88 N. W. 1081.

Notice by publication to an owner who is a nonresident is sufficient where no one is in actual possession of the land at the time notice is given. McCash v. Penrod, 131–631, 109 N. W. 180.

The fact that the person in whose name the notice was given was stated as "Karney," and an affidavit as to publication was in the name of "Carney," held not to be a fatal defect, it appearing that the names referred to the same person. Ibid.

The omission of the abbreviation Jr. or Sr. after a name in the notice for redemption does not render the notice insufficient. Peterson v. Wallace, 140–22, 118 N. W. 37.

The statute requires that the affidavit must state under whose direction the notice is served and no presumption can be indulged in. Ibid.

By whom given: Notice of the expiration of the redemption period may properly be given by the lawful holder of the certificate without regard to who is the beneficial owner. Nugent v. Cook, 129–381, 105 N. W. 421.
